78. Manders' Committee v. Eastern State Hospital [Ky.] 84 S. W. 761. See 3 C. L. 1230.

79. Glos v. Hanford, 212 Ill. 261, 72 N. E. 439; Miller v. Lanning, 211 Ill. 620, 71 N. E. 1115.

80, 81. Fooks v. Purnell [Md.] 61 A. 582.

82. See 3 C. L. 1228.

83. Wagenhurst v. Wineland, 22 App. D. C. 356. Pleas introducing no matter dehors, the record will be overruled. Dekle v. Barkley [Fla.] 37 So. 581.

84. Wagenhurst v. Wineland, 22 App. D. C. 356. The defense of former adjudication is properly made by plea. Id.

85. Western Elect. Co. v. North Elect. Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 79.

86, 87. Computing Scale Co. v. Moore, 139 F. 197.

88. A plea wil be held a nullity unless the certificate and affidavit required by Chancery Act, § 22 (P. L. 1902, P. 518) is attached thereto. Resnick v. Campbell [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 452.

89. Computing Scale Co. v. Moore, 139 F. 197.

90. McKee v. West [Ala.] 37 So. 740; General Elect. Co. v. Bullock Elect. Mfg. Co., 138 F. 412.

91. General Elect. Co. v. Bullock Elect. Mfg. Co., 138 F. 412.

facts which the pleas suggest.[93] If the plaintiff conceives the plea to be defective in point of form or substance, he may take the judgment of the court upon its sufficiency; and so may the defendant interposing the plea, and thus have its sufficiency determined before proceeding further with the defense.[94] If plea is defective it may be amended.[95] A plea and an answer strictly and wholly in support of the plea form one pleading, and such an answer cannot be regarded as a defense independent of the plea;[96] but when an answer contains more than is strictly applicable to the support of the plea, it will have the effect of overruling the plea.[97]

(§ 6) G. Answer.[98]—The answer should fairly meet the allegations of the bill,[99] and, while it need not set forth in detail all the circumstances connected with the facts alleged in the answer,[1] yet it must apprise complainant of the nature of the defense,[2] and defendant cannot avail himself of matters of defense appearing in the evidence but not set up in the answer,[3] unless he amends his answer.[4] When an answer in chancery concludes with the usual general denial found in such a pleading, it is sufficient to make an issue on material allegations in the bill, not admitted in the answer, and to which no especial response is made.[5] Such allegations cannot be taken as admitted to be true, but must be proved by at least a preponderance of the testimony.[6] While the same defense cannot be made by both plea and answer to a bill, yet after the plea has been adjudged insufficient, the same matter of defense set up by the plea may be advanced and relied upon in the answer.[7] In order that the answer of one co-defendant may re-dound to the benefit of another, their interests must not be separate and distinct.[8] An assignment of certain money sued for cannot be set aside for fraud under an answer containing a general denial only.[9] Where the defense is former adjudication, the answer should be supported by a verified copy of the record and decree in the former suit, exhibited as part of the answer.[10] A rule requiring an answer to be divided into paragraphs should not be applied where it would work an unnecessary hardship.[11] It is proper to file supplemental answers setting up facts occurring since the filing of the original answer.[12]

92. Computing Scale Co. v. Moore, 139 F. 197.

93. Ocala Foundry & Mach. Works v. Lester [Fla.] 38 So. 56.

94, 95. Wagenhurst v. Wineland, 22 App. D. C. 356.

96, 97. Ocala Foundry & Mach. Works v. Lester [Fla.] 38 So. 56.

98. See 3 C. L. 1229.

99. McNulty v. Wieson, 130 F. 1012. The answer should be perfect in itself, so that if the case is set down for argument on bill and answer all matters of defense may be properly before the court in one record. Wagenhurst v. Wineland, 22 App. D. C. 356.

1. McNulty v. Wieson, 130 F. 1012.

2. Rankin v. Rankin, 216 Ill. 132, 74 N. E. 763.

3. Potter v. Fitchburg Steam Engine Co., 110 Ill. App. 430; Rankin v. Rankin, 216 Ill. 132, 74 N. E. 763. Where defendant alleged that he refused to accept a tender because the money was not derived from a certain source, he thereby waived any claim that the tender was not good because conditional. Id.

4. Alfred Richards Brick Co. v. Trott, 23 App. D. C. 284.

5, 6. Parken v. Safford [Fla.] 37 So. 567.

7. Wagenhurst v. Wineland, 22 App. D. C. 356.

8. In a suit brought to enforce the specific performance of a contract, where the party with whom the contract is alleged to have been made, and against whose heirs the contract is sought to be enforced, is dead, and where the administrator and heirs of the decedent are made parties defendant, an answer filed by the administrator contesting the right of plaintiff to have specific performance, and denying the allegations of the bill, does not inure to the benefit of his co-defendants. Ferrell v. Camden [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 733.

9. Midler v. Lese, 45 Misc. 637, 91 N. Y. S. 148.

10. Wagenhurst v. Wineland, 22 App. D. C. 356. An answer, taking the place of a plea, setting up former adjudication, it need set forth no other matter than the record and decree which it is alleged constitutes a bar. Supreme Court rule 34 considered. Id.

11. Where the answer to a narrative and discursive bill of 40 separate paragraphs, some of them long and complex, simply sets up by way of defense a decree of dismissal in a former suit for the same subject-matter and between the same parties, exceptions to the answer on the ground that it is not divided into paragraphs as required by rule 54 of the supreme court, cannot be sustained. Wagenhurst v. Wineland, 22 App. D. C. 356.

12. Straus v. American Publishers' Ass'n, 45 Misc. 251, 92 N. Y. S. 153.

On a final hearing of a cause upon bill, answer and replication, after the time for taking testimony has expired, every averment in the answer responsive to the bill is taken as true.[13]

Verification.[14]—Unverified answers which neither deny the substantial allegations of the bill nor allege any sufficient ground of defense are insufficient.[15]

Effect of answer; as evidence; admissions.[16]—By answering, defendant may waive errors in the petition,[17] and in the ruling of a court denying a motion to strike out an amended petition.[18]

Unless the verification be waived,[19] a responsive, sworn answer in equity can only be overcome by the testimony of two witnesses, or of one witness and corroborating circumstances,[20] though in some states, to have this effect, discovery must be expressly prayed for.[21] Oath to the answer being waived, complainant must prove the material allegations in the bill by a preponderance of evidence.[22] An answer admitting the truth of certain allegations in the bill, the facts so alleged and admitted, are not in issue; consequently the complainant is entitled to a decree upon such allegations, though he produces no other proof, even though defendant has produced evidence tending to show that the allegations are untrue.[23] Pleadings can only be used as evidence by way of admission against the parties whose pleadings they are,[24] hence admissions in the answer of adult defendants do not bind infant co-defendants.[25] Where an answer is used in support of a bill, the whole of the answer must be taken together, and explanations given must be used in connection with the admissions made.[26] Plaintiff setting down the case for hearing upon bill and answer, he admits the truth of every fact set forth in the answer,[27] and this is true as well of averments in avoidance of, as of those responsive to, the allegations of the bill.[28]

(§ 6) H. Replication, exceptions and motions.[29]—When a general replication is filed to an answer in chancery, it thereby puts in issue all the matters alleged in the bill and not admitted in the answer,[30] as well as those matters contained in the

13. Lykes v. Beauchamp [Fla.] 38 So. 603.
14. See 3 C. L. 1229.
15. Raub v. Hurt, 24 App. D. C. 211.
16. See 3 C. L. 1229.
17. Jackson v. Powell, 110 Mo. App. 249, 84 S. W. 1132. An action being tried on a second amended complaint, to which an answer was interposed, any error in the rulings sustaining the original and first amended complaints is immaterial. Rooney v. Gray, 145 Cal. 753, 79 P. 523. See, also, 3 C. L. 1230.
18. Castleman v. Castleman, 184 Mo. 432, 83 S. W. 757.
19. Ocala Foundry & Mach. Works v. Lester [Fla.] 38 So. 56; Parken v. Safford [Ala.] 37 So. 567. So held where an allegation of the execution of certain deeds was denied by an unverified answer. Id. Answers when not called for under oath by the bill are not evidence of the facts alleged therein, but may be referred to as showing the grounds of defense. Mankey v. Willoughby, 21 App. D. C. 314.
20. Evans v. Evans [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 564; Ocala Foundry Mach. Works v. Lester [Fla.] 38 So. 56. Where one witness on behalf of the complaints testifies positively as to the material allegations of the bill, and the testimony of the defendant does not support his answer, being evasive, or in conflict therewith, this is to be taken into consideration by the court, and, in connection with all the circumstances as shown by the pleading and the evidence, may prove sufficient to overcome the probative force of the sworn answer. Id. Where both an answer and a plea are filed, it is incumbent upon the complainant to prove the allegations in his bill as to the matters contained in the answer, which were not in support of the plea, but which were responsive to the bill. Id. Complaints requiring an answer under oath make the same evidence so far as it is responsive to the charges contained in the complaint and to the interrogatories propounded. Evans v. Evans [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 564. In a suit to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance, evidence held insufficient to overcome answer. Id. Is open to explanation and rebuttal, unless sworn to with knowledge of the facts. Potter v. Fitchburg Steam Engine Co., 110 Ill. App. 430.
21. Toomer v. Warren [Ga.] 51 S. E. 393.
22. Parken v. Safford [Fla.] 37 So. 567; Lykes v. Beauchamp [Fla.] 38 So. 603.
23. Lainhart v. Burr [Fla.] 38 So. 711.
24. Potter v. Fitchburg Steam Engine Co., 110 Ill. App. 430.
25. Holderby v. Hagan [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 437.
26. Reager's Adm'r v. Chappelear [Va.] 51 S. E. 170.
27. Read v. Reynolds [Md.] 59 A. 669; Bowers v. McGavock [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 893.
28. Read v. Reynolds [Md.] 59 A. 669.
29. See 3 C. L. 1230.

answer which are not responsive to the bill,[31] and it is incumbent upon the complainant to prove all such matters by at least a preponderance of the evidence, the oath to the answer being waived.[32] The replication cannot be made to perform the office of a bill of exceptions.[33] Exceptions to an answer will lie for scandalous or impertinent matter contained therein,[34] but not as to matters admissible under the issues formed.[35] An exception to an answer for insufficiency does not raise the question of the sufficiency of the answer in point of law,[36] but raises the question as to whether a sufficient discovery has been made by the defendant, or the averments fully answered.[37] If such complete answer has been made, exceptions to new matter therein will not lie for insufficiency.[38] Exceptions for insufficiency will lie to the answer of a corporation.[39]

(§ 6) I. Issues, proof and variance.[40]—An allegation in a bill of material matter and a direct denial of that allegation in the answer frames an issue of fact.[41] The allegation and proof must agree. A recovery will not be allowed in a case, although proved, which differs essentially from that alleged in the bill.[42]

(§ 6) J. Objections and waiver thereof.[43]—It is a general rule that certain objections must be taken by demurrer,[44] plea,[45] or answer,[46] according to the nature of the defect, and also that by proceeding to plead defects may be waived. By going to trial on the merits, defendant waives all objections to the sufficiency of plaintiff's pleadings.[47] Appearance without objection waives defects in notice indorsed on bill.[48]

§ 7. Taking bill as confessed or on default.[49]—It is proper to take a bill for confessed as to all defendants thereto who have been personally served with process, or who have appeared in the cause and have failed to answer or make an issue therein.[50] When a plea in equity is not properly verified, complainant should disregard the plea and take a decree pro confesso.[51] A decree pro confesso cannot be entered if there is an answer on file, even though exceptions to it have been sustained.[52] A bill cannot be taken for confessed as to infants.[53] If the allegations of

30. Parken v. Safford [Fla.] 37 So. 567; Lykes v. Beauchamp [Fla.] 38 So. 603.
31. Parken v. Safford [Fla.] 37 So. 567.
32. Lykes v. Beauchamp [Fla.] 38 So. 603; Parken v. Safford [Fla.] 37 So. 567.
33. Robins v. American Car & Foundry Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 693.
34, 35, 36, 37, 38. Pennsylvania Co. v. Bay, 138 F. 203.
39. Flitcroft v. Allenhurst Club [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 878.
40. See 3 C. L. 1230.
41. Pierce v. Woodbury [Me.] 60 A. 424.
42. Reager's Adm'r v. Chappelear [Va.] 51 S. E. 170. Bill should be dismissed. Caton v. Raber, 56 W. Va. 244, 49 S. E. 147. An allegation that the grantor in a certain deed failed to retain a certain reservation authorized by the contract between the parties is not sustained by proof that such reservation was omitted by reason of an agreement between the parties that the grantee should make a separate deed for such reservation. Id. In a suit against an administrator, the bill alleging that borrowed money was repaid to the administrator and the proof showing that it was handed to a third party, held, plaintiff could not recover. Reager's Adm'r v. Chappelear [Va.] 51 S. E. 170. Where a bill sought to charge with a trust a fund in the hands of the executors of a deceased trustee and the proof showed that a portion of the trust fund did not continue in the possession of the decedent up to the time of his death, held not a fatal variance. Darlington v. Turner, 24 App. D. C. 573.
43. See 3 C. L. 1230.
44. See ante this section, subd. E.
45. See ante this section, subd. F.
46. See ante this section, subd. G.
47. Boglino v. Giorgetta [Colo. App.] 78 P. 612. In a suit in equity to set aside a judgment at law and for a new trial, held to waive defect in petition in that it did not allege that a motion for a new trial was properly filed, the evidence showing that such motion was in fact filed. Parker v. Parker [Neb.] 102 N. W. 85. Failure to incorporate amendment in complaint is waived by proceeding to trial upon the issues formed by the amended complaint and answer. Christiansen v. Aldrich [Mont.] 76 P. 1007. Defendant failing to object to a supplemental bill waives the fact that it is not germane to the original bill. Illinois Nat. Bank v. Trustees of Schools, 111 Ill. App. 189.
48. Hughes v. Antill, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 290.
49. See 3 C. L. 1231.
50. Ferrell v. Camden [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 733.
51. Computing Scale Co. v. Moore, 139 F. 197.
52. Wagenhurst v. Wineland, 22 App. D. C. 356.
53. Holderby v. Hagan [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 437.

a bill are distinct and positive, they may be taken as true without proof, if the defendant makes no defense; but if they are indefinite, or if the demand of the complainant is in its nature uncertain, the requisite certainty must be afforded by proof.[54] A decree pro confesso admits the facts charged in the bill, but not the conclusions drawn therefrom, nor the conclusions of law.[55] Statutes largely regulate the time within which application may be made to open a decree pro confesso.[56] In the Federal courts a decree pro confesso on a cross bill may be vacated on motion after the adjournment of the term.[57] The court will generally open the decree if the applicant shows a meritorious defense[58] and an excuse for his default.[59] If a partial defense is shown it will modify the decree pro tanto.[60] A consent decree will not be set aside because, through accident and mistake, one of the consenting parties failed to introduce evidence which was in his possession, and which might, if submitted on a trial, have resulted in the rendition of a decree different from the one which was taken by consent.[61] In some states, reversible error being shown, the trial court should reverse the decree and render a correct one.[62]

§ 8. Abatement and revival.[63]—Upon a bill of revivor the merits of the proceeding sought to be reviewed will be inquired into, and if the cause was properly adjudicated the relief sought by the bill of revivor will be denied.[64] A bill of revival is not the proper remedy where a decree has become final by failure to appeal.[65]

§ 9. Dismissal.[66] Voluntary dismissal.[67]—As a general rule, there being no cross bill on file and the answer not seeking affirmative relief, the complainant has the right, upon the payment of costs, to dismiss his bill at any time before final decree;[68] an exception to the above rule exists where a proceeding to account has

54. Perkins v. Tyrer, 24 App. D. C. 447. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 267, plaintiff is not entitled to judgment by default of answer, but is bound to establish his right to the relief sought to the satisfaction o the chancellor. Cannady v. Martin [S. C.] 51 S. E. 549.

55. Perkins v. Tyrer, 24 App. D. C. 447.

56. Florida: A final decree rendered in pursuance of a previous decree pro confesso may be set aside after the lapse of 20 days from its entry, whereby it has become absolute under Rev. St. 1892, § 1446, but an application to set aside such a final decree after the expiration of 20 days from its entry should never be entertained from a mere desire to let in a defense on the merits, but only where strong and unavoidable circumstances exist excusing failure to answer at the proper time. Macfarlane v. Dorsey [Fla.] 38 So. 512.

Rhode Island: Under Gen. Laws 1896, c. 240, § 10, as amended by Pub. Laws, p. 81, c. 671, providing that a decree pro confesso shall be "conclusive," such a decree has the same effect as a decree entered after appearance and hearing, and may, under Gen. Laws, c. 246, § 2, be opened within six months after its entry. Masterson v. Whipple [R. I.] 61 A. 446.

57. Is within Federal Equity Rule 1, but not within Rule 19. Blythe Co. v. Bankers' Ins. Co. [Cal.] 81 P. 286.

58. Robinson v. Arkansas Loan & Trust Co. [Ark.] 85 S. W. 413. A decree pro confesso on a bill for an account will not be vacated, it being clear that defendant is under a duty to account. Tull v. Brooke, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 426.

59. Where parties did not demur or answer, though represented by counsel, and shortly after an amended bill had been filed on an application to open a decree pro confesso, their counsel notified them that he could no longer represent them, and they took no steps to employ other counsel, held, they were not entitled to have the decree opened as a matter of right. Verstine v. Yeaney, 210 Pa. 109, 59 A. 689. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 195, it is within the discretion of the court to excuse default in serving answer in time by mail. Cannady v. Martin [S. C.] 51 S. E. 549.

60. Robinson v. Arkansas Loan & Trust Co. [Ark.] 85 S. W. 413.

61. Gray v. Wright [Ga.] 51 S. E. 373.

62. Under Code 1899, c. 134, § 5, the trial court should upon motion made reverse the decree for an error for which the appellate court might reverse it, and should give such decree as ought to be given upon the record as it exists at the time the motion is made. Ferrell v. Camden [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 733. Upon reversal of such decree the defendants are not entitled to file their answers and make defense to the bill. Id.

63. See 3 C. L. 1232, n. 61, 62. See, also, Abatement and Revival, 5 C. L. 1.

64. Prouty v. Moss, 111 Ill. App. 536.

65. Where no appeal was taken from a partition decree within the time allowed by law, held, the case was not a pending one so as to entitle a party to a revival of the suit 18 years later. Farmer v. Allen [Miss.] 38 So. 38. A dismissal of the case at such time, without prejudice to parties petitioning for its revival to file a bill on their own behalf, was not an abuse of the chancellor's discretion. Id.

66. See 3 C. L. 1232. See, also, Discontinuance, Dismissal and Nonsuit, 5 C. L. 1011.

67. See 3 C. L. 1232.

68. Gilmore v. Bort, 134 F. 658; Thompson reached the stage where the parties have been ordered to account to each other,[69] and in some states this right to dismiss is not an absolute one after the cause has been set down for final hearing.[70] The general rule is, moreover, subject to the exception that where such dismissal would be manifestly prejudicial to the defendant it will not be permitted.[71] The suit must have progressed so far that defendant, upon answer or cross bill, is either entitled to a decree, or the injury or prejudice to him because of the dismissal is of a character that deprives him of some substantial rights concerning the matter of the original bill which would not be available to him in a second suit;[72] and it is uniformly held that mere liability to or the inconvenience of future litigation against him regarding the subject-matter of the suit is not of that character.[73]

Involuntary dismissal.[74]—In a strictly equitable action there is no such thing as a technical nonsuit.[75] Defendant may, if he chooses, submit the cause to the court for decision,[76] or may, where the bill shows want of equity[77] or is unsupported by evidence,[78] or the suit has been abandoned,[79] move for the dismissal of the bill. In some states the legal nature of the action is not ground for dismissal, but the cause should be transferred on motion being made.[80] The dismissal of a bill for want of equity is a matter of discretion, and cannot be controlled by mandamus.[81] A motion to dismiss for want of equity is not the equivalent of a demurrer, nor is it sufficient to reach mere defects or insufficiencies of pleading curable by amendment;[82] but the possibility that a bill showing no equity can be amended so as to give it equity is no ground for its retention against a motion to dismiss.[83] Where a suit is improperly brought in equity, it should not on that account be dismissed, but should be transferred to the law court, and, if no motion is made to transfer the cause, the objection is waived.[84]

Effect.[85]—A general decree of dismissal of a suit in equity, without more, renders all the issues in the case res adjudicata, and constitutes a bar to an action at law for the same cause.[86] Hence, when the court has no jurisdiction of the suit, the decree of dismissal must expressly adjudge that it is for that reason, or must expressly provide that it is made without prejudice, to the end that the complainant may resort to his action at law for any damages he may have sustained.[87] The dismissal of the original bill before the final hearing carries with it the cross bill, in so far as that bill alleges matters that are defensive to the original bill.[88]

v. American Percheron Horse Breeders' & Importers' Ass'n, 114 Ill. App. 131; Wilcoxen v. Wilcoxen, 111 Ill. App. 90. The rule prevailing in some jurisdictions, which recognizes a discretionary power in the chancellor to restrict the exercise of this right, does not exist in Illinois. Id.

69. In such a case a cross bill is not necessary. Wilcoxen v. Wilcoxen, 111 Ill. App. 90.

70. After a cause in equity has been set down for a final hearing after issue and expiration of the time for taking testimony, in accordance with the provisions of Equity Rules Nos. 85 and 86, the complainant has no absolute right to a dismissal of his bill without prejudice, this being a matter resting within the sound judicial discretion of the court below. Lykes v. Beauchamp [Fla.] 38 So. 603.

71, 72, 73. Gilmore v. Bort, 134 F. 658.

74. See 3 C. L. 1232.

75, 76. Morrison v. Jones [Mont.] 77 P. 507.

77. Hendry v. Whidden [Fla.] 37 So. 571.

78. Finch v. Finch, 111 Ill. App. 481.

79. Under Act No. 107, p. 155, of 1898, amending and reenacting article 3519, Civ. Code 1870, five years' delay in prosecuting a suit will be considered an abandonment, and suit will be dismissed at the suggestion of any party in interest. Lockhart v. Lockhart, 113 La. 872, 37 So. 860.

80. Cribbs v. Walker [Ark.] 85 S. W. 244. Failure to make the motion waives the defect. Id.

81. Ex parte Merritt [Ala.] 38 So. 183.

82. Johnston v. Little [Ala.] 37 So. 692.

83. Edins v. Murphree [Ala.] 38 So. 639.

84. Cribbs v. Walker [Ark.] 85 S. W. 244. See Dockets, Calendars and Trial Lists, 5 C. L. 1039.

85. See 3 C. L. 1232.

86. Indian Land & Trust Co. v. Shoenfelt [C. C. A.] 135 F. 484; Wagenhurst v. Wineland, 22 App. D. C. 356. Where order is not made, "without prejudice," it is presumed that dismissal was on the merits. Lykes v. Beauchamp [Fla.] 38 So. 603.

87. Indian Land & Trust Co. v. Shoenfelt [C. C. A.] 135 F. 484.

88. Gilmore v. Bort, 134 F. 658.

Vacation of order.[89]—A motion to open an order of dismissal must be promptly made.[90]

§ 10. Trial by jury or master,[91] their verdicts and findings.[92]—While juries are not appropriate tribunals to determine purely equitable controversies,[93] still the chancellor may, in his discretion,[94] call a jury to try any issue of fact, either legal or equitable.[95] By the statutes of some states trial by jury in equity is made a matter of right.[96] The verdict of the jury is merely advisory.[97] A party by permitting the impaneling of a jury without objection does not thereby render its verdict binding.[98] It has been held that a verdict upon a legal issue is conclusive until set aside by competent authority.[99] In Minnesota the verdict of a jury upon specific questions of fact is as binding on the court as a general verdict in a legal action, and is subject to the same rules as to setting it aside for insufficiency of evidence.[1]

§ 11. Evidence.[2]—In general it may be said that the rules of evidence are the same in law and in equity,[3] though the court is not confined to the strict rules prescribed for the admission of evidence in law cases.[4] The matter of enlarging the time for taking testimony rests in the sound judicial discretion of the trial court,[5] and an exercise of such discretion will not be reversed on appeal unless the discretion is shown to have been abused.[6] Application not being made within the time fixed by the rules of the court, the circumstances, to excuse the delay, must have been controlling and unavoidable.[7] One failing to make an application to have the case referred to a commissioner cannot object that the service of plaintiff's notice of his intention to take testimony in open court is premature.[8] Every remedy having for its object the perpetuation of testimony is confined to the testimony of witnesses in being.[9]

§ 12. Hearing or trial.[10]—The parties are entitled to a hearing before the issues can be adjudicated.[11] The conduct of the trial is in the sound discretion of the

89. See 3 C. L. 1232.

90. Where case was dismissed for lack of prosecution two years and nine months after parties had appeared and defendants demurred, held, a motion to vacate the order made 44 days after the making of the order and two days before the end of the term would be denied. Peddecord v. Vannigerholz, 212 Ill. 612, 72 N. E. 819.

91. See 3 C. L. 1231-1283. See Masters and Commissioners, 4 C. L. 614.

92. Findings of the court, see post, § 13.

93. Van Houten v. Van Houten [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 555.

94. Proceeding for separate maintenance. Pike v. Pike, 112 Ill. App. 243. The various issues being referred to an auditor, to whose report exceptions were filed the judge has authority to pass on the exceptions without submitting the issues made thereby to a jury. Hogan v. Walsh [Ga.] 50 S. E. 84. Exceptions of fact to auditor's report need not be referred to a jury unless the judge approves them. Austin v. Southern Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [Ga.] 50 S. E. 382.

95. McClelland v. Bullis [Colo.] 81 P. 771. Issue at law. Gunning v. Sorg, 112 Ill. App. 332.

96. A petition being filed under Code 1899, c. 106, § 23, the issue must be tried by jury unless the right thereto is waived. Lipscomb's Adm'r v. Condon, 56 W. Va. 416, 49 S. E. 392. Waiver of such right must be by consent entered of record; it cannot be inferred from the fact that the court tried the cause without objection. Id.

97. McClelland v. Bullis [Colo.] 81 P. 771; Thompson v. Hardy [S. D.] 102 N. W. 299; Lauman v. Hoofer, 37 Wash. 382, 79 P. 953. Held no merit in assignment that court erred in calling jury and in submitting questions to them. Id. Rule applies in suit for separate maintenance. Kozacek v. Kozacek, 105 Ill. App. 180.

98. McClelland v. Bullis [Colo.] 81 P. 771.

99. Lancaster v. Lee [S. C.] 51 S. E. 139.

1. Reider v. Walz, 93 Minn. 399, 101 N. W. 601.

2. See 3 C. L. 1233. See, also, Evidence, 3 C. L. 1334.

3. Supreme Council Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. Beggs, 110 Ill. App. 139. See Evidence, 3 C. L. 1334.

4. Small v. Harrington [Idaho] 79 P. 461.

5, 6, 7. Lykes v. Beauchamp [Fla.] 38 So. 603.

8. So held where case was not at issue as to one defendant, and objection was that notice was premature, no pro confesso order having been entered against such defendant. Chancery Rule 15a considered. Letts v. Trevallick [Mich.] 102 N. W. 661.

9. Morris v. Parry, 110 Mo. App. 675, 85 S. W. 620.

10. See 3 C. L. 1232.

11. It is improper to sustain exceptions to an answer and cross bill and adjudicate the issues thereby raised without permitting the defendant and cross complainant to be heard touching such issues, where such issues are necessary and proper to be determined in order to adjudicate the rights and chancellor,[12] hence it is discretionary with him whether certain matters shall be passed by for the time being,[13] whether legal or equitable issues shall be first tried,[14] and whether, after the cause has been closed, it shall be opened to allow the introduction of more evidence.[15] In Pennsylvania the trial of the cause is regulated by rules promulgated by the supreme court;[16] these rules of court have the force of a statute,[17] and cannot be suspended by the court of common pleas, nor can that court adopt others inconsistent therewith;[18] but the rules are subject to the discretion of the chancellor as to their strict enforcement under circumstances productive of injustice or exceptional hardship.[19] A plaintiff being in contempt of court, he has no absolute right to proceed with the trial.[20] A feigned issue does not admit of any other defenses than are included in such issue.[21] Where an equitable action is tried on oral evidence, the effect of a demurrer to the evidence by defendant is the same as in a law action.[22] The taxation of costs is a matter of discretion with the trial court, and, in the absence of abuse, the exercise of such discretion will not be interfered with on appeal.[23]

§ 13. Findings by court[24] and decree, judgment or order.[25]—The usage and practice of courts of equity do not require any findings of fact as preliminary to the validity of a decree in equity,[26] and while it is the growing practice in some states to file a finding of facts with the decree, yet the propriety of doing so rests wholly within the discretion of the sitting justice,[27] and if the justice does make a finding of facts, and therein declares none inconsistent with the allegations of the bill, the omission to find other facts that might have been found will in no way affect the validity of the decree.[28] Findings appearing in the decree, it is not necessary that they should appear in findings separate therefrom.[29] As before shown, the court may disregard the verdict of the jury,[30] and, neither party offering proof, the court may make its own findings without hearing additional evidence.[31] Findings of chancellor as to matters of fact will not be reversed on appeal, unless they are clearly and manifestly against the weight of the evidence.[32]

The decree[33] must be entered by the court.[34] Where a bill in equity is filed in connection with an information, separate decrees may be rendered on the bill and information.[35] The decree must be supported either by a certificate of the oral evidence heard, or by recitals in the decree of the facts found by the court to be established by the evidence.[36] An objection to parties is not the proper subject of de-interest of the parties to the litigation, including the rights and interests of such defendant and cross complainant. Getzelman v. Blazier, 112 Ill. App. 648.

12. Winn v. Itzel [Wis.] 103 N. W. 220.

13. Randolph v. Nichol [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1037.

14. McCreery Land & Investment Co. v. Myers, 70 S. C. 282, 49 S. E. 848.

15. Winn v. Itzel [Wis.] 103 N. W. 220.

16, 17, 18, 19. Green v. Prince Metallic Paint Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 415.

20. Campbell v. Justices of Superior Court [Mass.] 73 N. E. 659.

21. Mulhearn v. Roach, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 483.

22. Anthony v. Kennard Bldg. Co. [Mo.] 87 S. W. 921. See Directing Verdict and Demurrer to the Evidence, 5 C. L. 1004, for discussion of subject.

23. Andrews v. Scott, 113 Ill. App. 581.

24. Verdict and findings of jury or master, see ante, § 10.

25. See 3 C. L. 1234, 1235.

26, 27, 28. Pierce v. Woodbury [Me.] 60 A. 424.

29. Reiner v. Schroeder, 146 Cal. 411, 80 P. 517.

30. See ante, § 10.

31. McClelland v. Bullis [Colo.] 81 P. 771.

32. Schoop v. Schoop, 115 Ill. App. 343; Entwhistle v. Henke, 113 Ill. App. 572; Obney v. Obney, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 116; Id., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 122. Findings of court were in accordance with verdict. Thompson v. Hardy [S. D.] 102 N. W. 299. While an equity case involving the issue of reformation is triable de novo in the appellate court, that court will be reluctant to disturb the findings of the trial judge. Johnson v. Farmers' Ins. Co., 126 Iowa, 565, 102 N. W. 502. See Appeal and Review, 5 C. L. 121.

33. See 3 C. L. 1232.

34. The clerk cannot enter a decree dismissing a bill after the court has sustained a demurrer thereto. Livingston County Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Keach, 213 Ill. 59, 72 N. E. 769.

35. Attorney General v. Cent. R. Co. of New Jersey [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 348.

36. Decree on a rule to show why a bid for property in the hands of a receiver cree, but a statement in the preliminary part of a decree that all proper parties have been joined is not an irregularity calling for a reversal.[37] A decree is improper which in effect asserts the adequacy of the legal remedy by providing security against damages.[38]

Effect and construction.[39]—A decree rendered upon a cross bill is interlocutory.[40] A decree finding that the allegations of a bill are not true, and denying complainant the relief asked, is a final disposition of the bill, though it does not explicitly dismiss it.[41] A decree to which all parties in interest who were in esse at the time the proceedings became lis pendens is binding upon parties in interest subsequently coming into being.[42]

Measure of relief.[43]—A court of equity obtaining jurisdiction of the suit, it has power to grant full relief, legal as well as equitable;[44] such relief must, however, be warranted by the facts and be within the issues made by the pleadings;[45] that the pleader is mistaken in the relief which he asks is immaterial.[46] It has been held that a party is entitled to such relief as the nature of the case, and the facts as they exist at the close of the litigation, demand.[47] Under a prayer for general relief, whatever relief is justified by the allegations of the bill and the proof may be awarded,[48] and, where all the facts are stated, it is no reason for denying relief under a general prayer, because it may differ from the theory of the law upon which the special prayer for relief is based, where both prayers are based on the same facts, clearly set forth in the bill.[49] On the trial of a feeigned issue to determine the ownership of a fund paid into court it is error to permit a verdict and judgment to be entered against the defendant for a stated sum. The verdict and judgment should be for the plaintiff generally.[50] The decree may provide for further contingencies,[51] and the defendants being liable for different periods, the decree may regulate and provide the periods for which each defendant shall be held responsible.[52] The court may condition its grant of relief, by reshould not be accepted. Day v. Davis, 213 Ill. 53, 72 N. E. 682.

37. Worcester City Missionary Soc. v. Memorial Church, 186 Mass. 531, 72 N. E. 71.

38. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Elec. Light & Power Co., 178 N. Y. 325, 70 N. E. 866.

39. See 3 C. L. 1234.

40. Blythe Co. v. Bankers' Inv. Co. [Cal.] 81 P. 281.

41. Kozacek v. Kozacek, 105 Ill. App. 180.

42. Pinkney v. Weaver, 115 Ill. App. 582.

43. See 3 C. L. 1234.

44. See ante, § 2 B, subd. Doing complete justice.

45. See 3 C. L. 1234, N. 98. A bill alleging that the deed was procured by fraud and undue influence at a certain place, a decree that the deed was obtained by fraud and undue influence, without reference to the place, does not vary from the allegations of the bill. Vollenweider v. Vollenweider, 216 Ill. 197, 74 N. E. 795. Under the Code of Practice relief may be granted according to the facts alleged and proved, though they are insufficient to constitute a cross complaint, and the pleading by which they are set forth is so designated. Randolph v. Nichol [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1037.

46. Hunt v. Fronizer, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 303. Equitable rights will not be denied to a defendant who has failed to pray for the equitable protection of the court in a suit for recovery of money paid out of the county treasury under an illegal contract for the construction of bridges. Id.

47. Straus v. American Publishers' Ass'n, 45 Misc. 251, 92 N. Y. S. 153.

48. Thompson v. American Percheron Horse Breeders' & Importers' Ass'n, 144 Ill. App. 131; Langlois v. People, 212 Ill. 75, 72 N. E. 28; Rankin v. Rankin, 216 Ill. 132, 74 N. E. 763; Mobile Land Imp. Co. v. Gass [Ala.] 39 So. 229. Though a bill seeks to have deeds declared void ab initio, yet a right to have them canceled, because voidable, being shown by the averments of facts, such relief may be had under the prayer for general relief. Id. In a suit against a guardian for an accounting, it being shown that the guardian's decree of discharge was procured by fraud, the court may set aside such discharge under the prayer or general relief. Willis v. Rice [Ala.] 37 So. 507.

49. Lockhart v. Leeds, 159 U. S. 247, 49 Law. Ed. 263.

50. Julius King Optical Co. v. Royal Ins. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 527.

51. A decree in equity, giving judgment on a contract by which the defendant is obligated to pay monthly instalments, not all of which are due, may provide, also, for future instalments, and that judgment may be entered for the same as they fall due, on application of the court and notice to defendant's attorney. Dancel v. Goodyear Shoe Machinery Co., 137 F. 157.

52. Suit for an accounting by corporate quiring that complainants do equity to their opponents, although the latter have been barred by limitation or by laches from successfully seeking that equity by an independent suit.[53] Immaterial errors will be disregarded.[54]

Modifications and amendment; vacation and setting aside; collateral attack.[55]—The court has power, after announcing a judgment, to amend the order before it is signed, to conform to the facts.[56] After the expiration of the term of court at which a decree was rendered, the court has no power over it, except to correct it in matters of form,[57] and it may, after directing the preparation of a decree dismissing a cross bill for want of equity, allow the cross complainant to dismiss without prejudice.[58] The application being made within a reasonable time,[59] the decree will be opened or set aside when to do so will result in doing equity.[60] Courts of equity will not set aside a decree upon the ground that it was obtained by false evidence, but only for fraud which gives the court a colorable jurisdiction.[61] As in other cases, the proof of the fraud must be clear and satisfactory.[62] A bill to impeach a decree by fraud, though not within the terms of the statute which bars a bill of review, must, by analogy, be governed by the same limitations.[63] Statutory methods of procedure govern.[64]

§ 14. Rehearing,[65]—A rehearing will not be ordered unless some special reason other than the desire of the defeated party to try the cause over again, be shown;[66] the chancellor may, however, grant a new trial if he is satisfied that the verdict or finding is against the weight of the evidence.[67] If the application is also for leave to present additional testimony, it must be shown that such testimony is newly discovered evidence, not accessible to the petitioner at the time of hearing, and that it will probably change the result.[68] A motion for a new trial being sustained, the cause is at issue for trial again, and the court has no authority to enter a judgment without another trial.[69]

§ 15. Bill of review.[70]—The object of a bill of review, or a bill in the nature stockholders against directors. Barry v. Moeller [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 97.

53. Burnes v. Burnes [C. C. A.] 137 F. 781.

54. Where, in an action on a vendor's lien note, defendant prayed for specific performance of a contract with plaintiff's decedent, whereby the note had been paid, held that, while the pleadings did not authorize the rendition of a general judgment for defendant on a finding that the note had been paid, yet being but a short way of accomplishing the right result, the judgment was not erroneous. Hasenbeck v. Hasenbeck [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 916.

55. See 3 C. L. 1235.

56. Harmon v. Thompson [Ky.] 84 S. W. 569.

57. Finch v. Finch, 111 Ill. App. 481.

58. Paltzer v. Johnston, 213 Ill. 338, 72 N. E. 702.

59. A divorce decree will not be set aside where the party in whose favor it was rendered is dead, the rights of infants have intervened and the complainant has been guilty of laches. Evans v. Woodworth, 115 Ill. App. 202. Where a judgment note is not entered up until five years after its date, and no rule is taken to open it until four years after its entry, and the testimony on the rule to open is contradictory in character, the court is justified in refusing to open the judgment. Fryberger v. Motter, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 317.

60. Where purchaser for value applied to have decree in favor of a volunteer opened, held, application would be granted. Foster v. Phinizy, 121 Ga. 673, 49 S. E. 865.

61. Evans v. Woodsworth, 213 Ill. 404, 72 N. E. 1082.

62. Evans v. Woodworth, 213 Ill. 404, 72 N. E. 1082. Two and a half years delay held to bar right to have divorce decree vacated for fraud, complainant having acquiesced in the proceedings to obtain such decree and the other party thereto being dead and the rights of third parties having intervened. Id. See Fraud and Undue Influence, 3 C. L. 1520.

63. Willis v. Rice [Ala.] 37 So. 507.

64. Michigan: Under Comp. Laws 1897, § 496, where a decree is entered on substituted service, the right of defendant to appear is conditional only on the payment of costs or securing thereof, and the appearing defendant is not required to give any notice to the opposite party. Coffin v. Ontonagon Circuit Judge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 219, 103 N. W. 835. Notice or subsequent steps must of course be given. Id.

65. See 3 C. L. 1232. See New Trial and Arrest of Judgment, 4 C. L. 810.

66. Richardson v. Hatch [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 52.

67. Hurley v. Kennally, 186 Mo. 225, 85 S. W. 357.

68. Richardson v. Hatch [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 52.

69. Hurley v. Kennally, 186 Mo. 225, 85 S. W. 357.

70. See 3 C. L. 1235.

of a bill of review, is to procure the reversal, alteration, or explanation of a decree in a former suit.[71] If the decree has been signed and enrolled, the practice is to file a bill of review, if not, a bill in the nature of a bill of review.[72] When it is sought to review errors of law apparent on the face of the record, a bill of review may be filed without leave first had and obtained;[73] but where it is to review the findings by reason of newly discovered evidence, leave must first be had,[74] and the granting of such leave rests in the sound discretion of the court.[75] While ordinarily before a bill of review can be filed the decree sought to be reviewed must be first obeyed and performed, prior obedience or performance may be excused by poverty, want of assets, and other inability to perform the decree,[76] and the court may, in the exercise of its judicial discretion, grant leave to file the bill without such previous performance.[77] An order overruling a motion to strike the bill from the files, which motion is based upon complainant's failure to perform, is equivalent to the granting of such special leave.[78] A bill of review does not lie to vacate or review a consent decree unless the consent of the parties was obtained by fraud or mistake.[79] All persons or the legal representatives of persons who are necessary parties to the judgment sought to be reviewed must be made parties to the bill of review.[80] The term "legal representatives" means the executor or administrator if the subject-matter is personalty, and heirs or devisees if it is realty.[81]

Time for bill; laches.[82]—Except where the review sought is founded on matters discovered since the decree,[83] in the absence of express statutory enactment a bill of review must ordinarily be filed within the time limited by statute for the taking of an appeal [84] or the suing out of a writ of error.[85] Laches will bar the right.[86]

Grounds.[87]—A bill of review must rest on error in law apparent from the face of the record,[88] fraud in procuring the decree,[89] or newly discovered evidence not of 71. Watkinson v. Watkinson [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 931.

72. Watkinson v. Watkinson [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 931.

NOTE. Present importance of this distinction: "As stated by Judge Story in Dexter v. Arnold, 5 Mason, 310, Fed. Cas. No. 3,856. 'The distinction between a bill of review and a bill in the nature of a bill of review, though important in England, is not felt in the practice of the courts of the United States, and perhaps rarely in any of the state courts of equity in the Union. I take it to be clear that in the courts of the United States all decrees as well as judgments are matters of record, and are deemed to be enrolled as of the term in which they are passed, so that the appropriate remedy is by a bill of review.' See, also, Wiser v. Blackly, 2 Johns. Ch. [N. Y.] 489."—From Watkinson v. Watkinson [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 931.

73. State Fair Ass'n v. Terry [Ark.] 85 S. W. 87.

74. State Fair Ass'n v. Terry [Ark.] 85 S. W. 87. So held where grounds were fraud and newly discovered evidence. Rowan v. First Nat. Bank, 112 Ill. App. 434.

75. State Fair Ass'n v. Terry [Ark.] 85 S. W. 87.

76, 77, 78. Perkins v. Tyrer, 24 App. D. C. 447.

79. Rowan v. First Nat. Bank, 112 Ill. App. 434.

80. State Fair Ass'n v. Terry [Ark.] 85 S. W. 87. Where a party represented by a guardian died, held a notice served on the guardian was insufficient. Id.

81. State Fair Ass'n v. Terry [Ark.] 85 S. W. 87.

82. See 3 C. L. 1236.

83. Jorgenson v. Young [C. C. A.] 136 F. 378.

84. Jorgenson v. Young [C. C. A.] 136 F. 378; Watkinson v. Watkinson [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 931. A bill of review cannot be filed after the lapse of three years from the final decree, except in case of new or newly discovered evidence. Id.

85. Wieczorek v. Adamski, 114 Ill. App. 161.

86. Ten years of unexplained inaction in failing to interpose a bill of review constitutes laches. Wieczorek v. Adamski, 114 Ill. App. 161.

87. See 3 C. L. 1236.

88. Watkinson v. Watkinson [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 931. It is error, apparent on the face of a decree, if, taking the whole previous record into consideration, exclusive of the evidence, it is plain that no cause of action has been stated sufficient to justify the decree. Perkins v. Tyrer, 24 App. D. C. 447. A personal pro confesso decree entered against several defendants without proof in support of the bill held reviewable by a bill of review, the original bill erroneously stating that the contract on which it was based was one of a loan with collateral security. Id. Where a petition to file a bill of review shows a decree authorizing a sale of petitioner's lands for the nonpayment of taxes, which decree petitioner claims is invalid, and the answer, in effect, admits that no taxes were due against the land, petitioner should be allowed to file such bill to a cumulative or impeaching character, but such as will produce a different result on the merits on another trial,[90] and which could not, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, have been discovered before the entry of the original decree.[91] If it appears that the complainant was heard as to matters complained of, or had opportunity to be heard in the original proceedings, the decree will not be disturbed.[92]

Application and proceedings.[93]—An application to review a decree upon a claim of newly discovered evidence must be supported by affidavit that the evidence is new and could not have been discovered by reasonable diligence before the hearing.[94] To maintain a bill of review and open a decree for fraud, the allegation must be so specific in fact and circumstances that the court may determine on demurrer whether there is sufficient ground for the relief prayed for,[95] and the particular facts relied upon must be supported by the affidavit of witnesses by whom such proof can be made.[96] An order overruling a demurrer to a bill of review is not erroneous because it fails to allow the defendants to plead over to such bill, where the bill was filed solely upon the ground of error of law apparent on the face of the decree, and the demurrer raised the only question that could be raised.[97] Such order should direct a dismissal of the original bill, unless the same be amended, it being fatally defective.[98]

§ 16. Other equitable remedies for which no specific title is provided. Bill quia timet.[99]—Fear that future recoveries on unliquidated claims will render a corporation insolvent will not sustain a bill quia timet by the holder of an unliquidated claim for damages,[100] nor in such case will fear that all the assets of the corporation will be distributed to the stockholders in the form of dividends before complainant can recover a judgment sustain such a bill.[101] It would seem that a bill quia timet will lie to prevent a woman from unwarrantably holding herself out as plaintiff's wife.[102]

ERROR CORAM NOBIS; ERROR, WRIT OF, see latest topical index.

ESCAPE AND RESCUE.

In both escape [1] and rescue [2] there must have been a detention based on lawful custody. It is immaterial that the arrested person passively submitted to arrest.[3] After a liberation of one unlawfully detained is complete, no criminality can be set aside the decree. Rumsey v. Auditor General [Mich.] 101 N. W. 623.

89. Watkinson v. Watkinson [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 931.

90. Wieczorek v. Adamski, 114 Ill. App. 161; Watkinson v. Watkinson [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 931.

91. Wieczorek v. Adamski, 114 Ill. App. 161; Jorgenson v. Young [C. C. A.] 136 F. 378. Where defendant testified that his brother was not his authorized agent or attorney in fact, a bill of review by plaintiff, alleging that such testimony was false, and was surmised by him so to be at the time it was given; and the falsity could be shown by powers of attorney of record, held, such records were not newly discovered evidence. Id.

92. Rowan v. First Nat. Bank, 112 Ill. App. 434.

93. See 3 C. L. 1236.

94. Watkinson v. Watkinson [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 931.

95. Rowan v. First Nat. Bank, 112 Ill. App. 434. The charge must be coupled with a tender of proof sufficient to sustain it, and this must be alleged under specification that the court may determine its value. Id.

96. Rowan v. First Nat. Bank, 112 Ill. App. 434.

97, 98. Perkins v. Tyrer, 24 App. D. C. 447.

99. See 3 C. L. 1236.

100, 101. Slover v. Coal Creek Coal Co., 113 Tenn. 421, 82 S. W. 1131.

102. Bell v. Clark, 45 Misc. 275, 92 N. Y. S. 411.

1. Complaint against Richard Roe; on learning his name it was entered and warrant issued against his real name and he was thus arrested. Held, lawful custody. State v. King [Kan.] 80 P. 606.

2. If the arrest must of necessity have been on warrant, either the arresting officer or one near by and acting in concert must have had the warrant. If it was in his house, the arrest was unlawful. Adams v. State, 121 Ga. 163, 48 S. E. 910.

3, 4. Adams v. State, 121 Ga. 163, 48 S. E. 910.

fastened on the liberator by procuring a lawful warrant and exhibiting it to him.[4] In Georgia it is an escape if a "trusty" voluntarily leaves a lawful chain gang, even if his sentence was alternative and he afterwards paid his fine,[6] and even though he left to avoid unmerited punishment.[7] A conspiracy to escape may subsist between prisoners, though one of them being sentenced for life is not with the statute defining escapes.[8] Under the law of Arkansas, one who aids a prisoner or does that which might aid him is guilty of a crime, though the prisoner does not assent.[9] It is irrelevant whether the prisoner is guilty,[10] The release of a prisoner under a mistake as to the authority of the officer ordering his release is equivalent to a negligent escape, and a prisoner so released may be taken and returned to custody.[11]

ESCHEAT.

Escheat must rest on the want of any person lawfully entitled to property.[12] If by any means a decedent had effectually disposed of property, it cannot escheat.[13] A devise of property "as the law directs" results in escheat if there are no relatives.[14] Ordinarily the title is in the state from the time of decedent's death, and not from decree,[15] but under statutes permitting aliens to hold inherited lands for a time certain, the public has no interest or any right of escheat initiate until the time has fully elapsed.[16] In Michigan the common-law doctrine that personalty of a dissolved corporation escheats is repudiated, at least where the members held a pecuniary interest in it,[17] and it is said that the doctrine should be obsolete.[18] In Kentucky the escheator may sue only in respect to decedent's property,[19] and though lands needlessly held by a corporation are forfeitable, he cannot sue.[20] In California, distributive shares of an estate falling to aliens who fail to claim them for five years escheat and do not fall back for distribution.[21]

Escheat can be claimed only by the state [22] and must be declared by a suit by the state.[23] Accordingly the grantor to an alien with covenants of warranty is estopped, and his heirs as well, to deny the title.[24] But where it is made the duty of the court in adjudging an escheat at suit of the state to ascertain and hold for the true owner the proceeds of the lands, the right of parties in respect to it may be adjudicated, though as between themselves relief has been denied for want of a litigable right.[25] Proof of want of relatives must naturally be negative and less certain than the contrary fact.[26]

5, 6, 7. Johnson v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 65.

8. People v. Wood, 145 Cal. 659, 79 P. 367.

9. Maxey v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1009.

10. But proof that he was acquitted is harmless. Maxey v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1009.

11. Jiha v. Barry, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 65.

12. Cannot take place where an incorporated fire company is dissolved and there are members or their legal representatives or other objects of the trust for which it held its funds still in being. Hopkins v. Crossley [Mich.] 101 N. W. 822. The common law and the modern doctrines of escheat and of forfeiture and confiscation are discussed in 2 Tiffany, Real Prop. p. 1049 et seq.

13. Evidence showed a completed gift in view of death. Phinney v. State, 36 Wash. 236, 78 P. 927.

14, 15. State v. Goldberg's Unknown Heirs [Tenn.] 86 S. W. 717.

16. Such a statute having been repealed, an action prematurely begun to declare the escheat has no basis in right to bring it within a saving clause. State v. Ellis [Kan.] 79 P. 1066.

17, 18. Hopkins v. Crossley [Mich.] 101 N. W. 822.

19, 20. Ky. St. 1903, §§ 567, 1606-1623 and Const. § 192. Commonwealth v. Wisconsin Chair Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 535; Commonwealth v. Farmers' Bank [Ky.] 84 S. W. 732.

21. Civ. Code, §§ 672, 1404; In re Pendergast's Estate, 143 Cal. 135, 76 P. 962.

22. Hopkins v. Crossley [Mich.] 101 N. W. 822.

23. Under Laws 1891, p. 7, c. 3, a nonresident alien may take title to land—subject to immediate forfeiture in some circumstances and with a right to hold it for a fixed time under other conditions—and until the state sues, the title cannot be questioned. Madden v. State, 68 Kan. 658, 75 P. 1023.

24, 25. Madden v. State, 68 Kan. 658, 75 P. 1023.

26. State v. Goldberg's Unknown Heirs [Tenn.] 86 S. W. 717.

Administration of a decedent's estate should precede escheat proceedings,[27] or else the latter should be stayed to abide the determination of the question whether there will be any property after debts are paid.[28] The judgment of escheat must be supported by findings that there is such property.[29] Whilst a petition to escheat does not invoke power to subject the property to payment of debts due to traversers who come in,[30] yet it will not invalidate the judgment where all parties participated without objection.[31] The state appealing from a decree of distribution on the ground that some of the shares have escheated must, in order to try that question, give notice of appeal to the distributees claiming such shares.[32] Failing such notice the appeal may proceed as to other parties and issues, and the shares which on the record appear to be escheated may be withheld pending suit to so declare them.[33]

The statutory right to sue to establish heirship and recover escheated property or its proceeds [34] is limited to such heirs and such conditions as are prescribed, and if not retroactive has no application to property fully escheated when the law was passed,[35] and under the laws of Montana the prescription of a time within which to sue excludes other limitations.[36]

ESCROWS.

An escrow is an instrument deposited with a stranger to be delivered to the obligee on the performance of a condition [37] and beyond power of revocation in the obligor.[38] The depositary must be a stranger to the escrow.[39] The escrow is inchoate,[40] and constitutes a mere scroll until the performance of the conditions.[41] A 27, 28. State v. Simmons [Or.] 79 P. 498.

29. State v. Simmons [Or.] 79 P. 498. Under the present law of Oregon (Gen. Laws 1903, p. 127, § 9), a proceeding to escheat property ousts the probate court of jurisdiction to determine heirship, but does not impair its power to settle the estate. Hence where there has been no such finding as that mentioned in the text, a premature judgment of escheat cannot be modified and as thus affirmed. Id.

30, 31. In re Bugg's Estate [S. C.] 51 S. E. 263.

32. In re Pendergast's Estate, 143 Cal. 135, 76 P. 962. The notice in such case must be to them, not merely to the attorneys who represented them. Id.

33. In re Pendergast's Estate, 143 Cal. 135, 76 P. 962.

34. In re Pomeroy's Petition [Mont.] 81 P. 629. Statute enabling nonresident alien to so sue does not enable citizens to do so. Id.

35. Code Civ. Proc. § 2253, is prospective. In re Pomeroy's Petition [Mont.] 81 P. 629.

36. Construing Code Proc. § 2253 and Pol. Code, § 5162. In re Pomeroy's Petition [Mont.] 81 P. 629.

37. A deed deposited with a third person to be delivered to the grantee on the performance of a condition is an escrow. Guild v. Althouse [Kan.] 81 P. 172. Receipt construed and held to constitute a mere escrow agreement creating no fiduciary relations between the parties. Havana City R. Co. v. Ceballos [C. C. A.] 139 F. 538.

38. Deed. Hayden v. Collins [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1120; Tompkins v. Thompson, 93 N. Y. S. 1070.

39. A delivery in escrow cannot be made to the grantee (Clark v. Harper, 215 Ill. 24, 74 N. E. 61) and if a delivery purports to be such, it will operate as an absolute delivery free from all parol conditions. Whitney v. Dewey [Idaho] 80 P. 1117.

40. Instructions held erroneous. Blair v. Security Bank, 103 Va. 762, 50 S. E. 262; Davis v. True, 89 App. Div. 319, 85 N. Y. S. 843.

41. If the grantee obtains possession of it he acquires no title. Powers v. Rude, 14 Okl. 381, 79 P. 89. That an escrow is delivered before the performance of the conditions constitutes a complete defense to it. Blair v. Security Bank, 103 Va. 762, 50 S. E. 262. The recordation of a deed delivered out of escrow without performance of the conditions constitutes a cloud on the grantor's title. Bales v. Roberts [Mo.] 87 S. W. 914. Evidence held to show that a grantor never authorized the delivery of a deed deposited in escrow except on the happening of the condition. Skinner v. Kelley [Mich.] 101 N. W. 205.

NOTE. Purchase from the grantor of a deed in escrow: Delivery of the deed is necessary to pass the title to land and escrow is a method of delivery. Under the general rule, this delivery does not avail to pass the title until the performance of the conditions or the happening of the contingency upon which the deed is held in escrow (Smith v. South Royalton Bank, 32 Vt. 341, 76 Am. Dec. 179); but if for any reason, such as insanity, coverture, or death, the grantor becomes incapacitated from passing title before the delivery out of escrow, this second delivery is by the fiction of relation carried back to the time of the delivery into escrow so as to make the title pass as of that time (Webster v. Kings County Trust Co., 145 N. Y. 275). Since then, in the or-delivery out of escrow without performance of the conditions is not binding on the obligor,[42] unless by virtue of estoppel, based on his negligence relative to such unauthorized delivery.[43] And while delivery must be with his consent,[44] which is deemed withheld until the performance of the conditions,[45] such performance renders the escrow effective, notwithstanding the death of the obligor in the meantime,[46] providing the instrument is an escrow,[47] no manual delivery out of escrow being essential.[48] If the depositary delivers the deed to the grantee without informing him of the conditions, they are not binding upon him;[49] but if he is informed of the conditions, he acquires no rights without performing them.[50] The holder of the escrow has no authority to accept performance of the conditions after the time within which they were to be performed has transpired.[51] It is held by some courts that a deposit of a deed in escrow passes title immediately,[52] while others hold that title does not pass until delivery out of escrow,[53] the grantor in the meantime being powerless to dinary case it is not the grantor's deed until the second delivery, the question arises whether a subsequent grantee getting a conveyance before the performance of the conditions of the escrow would get a title indefeasible at law. It is the policy of the law to favor the grant in escrow. At least it is not regarded as just that one charged with notice of the grant in escrow should nevertheless take a complete legal title; and all jurisdictions agree that he cannot, though there may be an exception where the original grantee is a volunteer. Since, however, the cases reach this result on different grounds, a conflict arises as to whether an innocent purchaser will take a complete legal title. Some jurisdictions cut off the intervening grant to a purchaser with notice by extending the use of the fiction of relation (McDonald v. Huff, 77 Cal. 279). But as it is a general doctrine that a fiction invoked to do justice should not be used against innocent third parties (Viner's Abdg. tit. "Relation"), in these jurisdictions a bona fide purchaser from the grantor of a deed in escrow takes an indefeasible title (Wolcott v. Johns, 7 Colo. App. 360), and this doctrine has been recently followed (Emmons v. Harding, 162 Ind. 154, 70 N. E. 142).

Other jurisdictions do not allow an innocent purchaser to defeat the grantee in escrow. Hall v. Harris, 5 Ired. Eq. [N. C.] 303. These jurisdictions hold that after the deed is placed in escrow the grantor no longer has full legal tilte. The grant in escrow puts the land out of his power and makes it possible for the grantee to get something analogous to specific performance at law. All the grantor has is a title subject to a defeasance, and a title subject to a defeasance is all that a purchaser from him, whether mala fide or bona fide, can buy. Hooper. v. Ramsbottom, 6 Taunt, 12; Fort v. Beekman, 1 Johns. Ch. [N. Y.] 288. Therefore, notwithstanding the intervention of third parties, the grantee in escrow gets a full legal title upon performance of the conditions. Leither v. Pike, 127 Ill. 287. The latter decisions invoke no fiction in reaching this result, and seem to support the better rule.—18 Harv. L. R. 138.

42, 43 Houston Land & Trust Co. v. Hubbard [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 474.

44, 45. Powers v. Rude, 14 Okl. 381, 79 P. 89.

46. A deed deposited in escrow becomes effective on performance of the conditions, and the death of the grantor does not abrogate the contract of deposit. Guild v. Alahouse [Kan.] 81 P. 172. After delivery in escrow to be delivered to the grantee on the grantor's death, of a deed of the land, rents, issues and profits thereof, the grantor died, while crops were growing. Held, the grantee was entitled to the amount agreed as rent. Wilhoit v. Salmon, 146 Cal. 444, 80 P. 705.

47. A husband executed a deed to his wife and deposited it with a third person, to be delivered in case the grantor again became intoxicated. At the time of his death the deed had not been delivered, though the condition had been satisfied. Held, since there was no contract pursuant to which the deposit had been made, the depositary was only the agent of the grantor and his authority was terminated by the death of the grantor. Bosea v. Lent, 44 Misc. 437, 90 N. Y. S. 41.

Note: The depositary of an escrow is usually called the agent of both parties to the instrument (Davis v. Clark, 58 Kan. 100; Olmstead v. Smith, 87 Mo. 602); but neither the death of the grantor or of the depositary will defeat the escrow (Ruggles v. Lawson, 13 Johns. [N. Y.] 285, 7 Am. Dec. 375), and since it is essential that neither party shall have acquired the instrument (Cook v. Brown, 34 N. H. 460; Cocks v. Barker, 49 N. Y. 107), it would seem more accurate to regard him an impersonal or an automaton. The court in the principal case having found that the grantor had never released control of the deed, no escrow was created.—5 Columbia L. R. 163.

48. A delivery in escrow is deemed consummate from the performance of the condition if the obligor dies prior to such performance. Gaudy v. Bissell's Estate [Neb.] 100 N. W. 803.

49, 50. Virginia Passenger & Power Co. v. Patterson [Va.] 51 S. E. 157.

51. Brinton v. Lewiston Nat. Bank [Idaho] 81 P. 112.

52. A delivery in escrow to be delivered at the grantor's death vests title in the grantee immediately, qualified by the life estate. Wilhoit v. Salmon, 146 Cal. 444, 80 P. 705.

53. Delivery is there deemed however to relate back. Tompkins v. Thompson, 93 N. Y. S. 1070. And see Bither v. Christensen [Cal. App.] 81 P. 670.

revoke it.[54] An escrow will be given effect from the date of deposit if such is the intention of the parties.[55]

ESTATES OF DECEDENTS.

54. Tompkins v. Thompson, 93 N. Y. S. 1070. And see Hayden v. Collins [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1120.

55. Where it is the intention of the parties that a note delivered in escrow shall draw interest from the date of deposit, it will be so computed and not merely from the date of consummation of the transaction. Bither v. Christensen [Cal. App.] 81 P. 670. And see Tompkins v. Thompson, 93 N. Y. S. 107.

Scope of title.—Matters relating to the descent of property under the interstate laws,[1] the validity, probate, and interpretation of wills,[2] testamentary trusts,[3] and inheritance and succession taxes, are treated elsewhere.[4]

§ 1. Necessity or occasion for administration and kinds thereof.[5] An administrator may be appointed for the sole purpose of collecting and receiving the proceeds of property or funds, or rights of action which cannot otherwise be made available, even though such proceeds will not become general assets of the estate, or liable for decedent's debts, but will belong to particular persons entitled thereto by law or by contract with deceased.[6] In such case it is for the probate court to determine whether there is an apparent claim, a bona fide intention to pursue it, and whether administration is necessary to its pursuit.[7]

Statutes in some states authorize the appointment of administrators for persons who have been absent and unheard of for a specified period, on the theory that they are presumed to be dead.[8]

No administration is necessary where there are no debts, and no suits to be brought,[9] nor to render a homestead exemption effectual.[10] As a general rule the estate may be settled without administration by agreement of all parties interested therein,[11] but if administration in the usual way thereafter becomes necessary, such an agreement becomes inoperative, except in so far as it has been executed, and the rights of the parties are to be determined as if it had never been made.[12]

In some states the conservator of a lunatic, idiot, drunkard, or spendthrift, if a resident, may, under his letters as such and without further letters of administration, make final settlement and distribution of his ward's estate.[13]

1. See Descent and Distribution, 5 C. L. 995.

2. See Wills, 4 C. L. 1863.

3. See Trusts, 4 C. L. 1727.

4. See Taxes, 4 C. L. 1605.

5. See 3 C. L. 1239.

6. Richards v. Riverside Ironworks, 56 W. Va. 510, 49 S. E. 437. Right of action for wrongful death being given solely to the representatives of deceased (Code 1899, c. 103, §§ 5, 6), refusal to appoint administrator would render it nugatory, though amount recovered is not assets. Id. Deceased died in Ohio by reason of injuries received while working for defendant in West Virginia. He left no property in the latter state. Held, that the claim against defendant for wrongful death must be regarded as personal property of decedent in the county where deceased was injured, and that the probate court of that county was therefore (Code 1899, c. 85, § 4, and c. 77, § 22) authorized to appoint an administrator to collect it. Id. The cause of action for wrongful death given by Code, § 1498 is a sufficient basis for the grant of letters of administration on the estate of a nonresident in the county where the injury and death occurred, though it is not assets in the sense that it must be distributed according to the law of the domicile, and though deceased left no other assets in the state. Vance v. Southern R. Co., 138 N. C. 460, 50 S. E. 860. A cause of action for death by wrongful act is sufficient upon which to base the appointment of an administrator for a nonresident leaving no resident next of kin, though a foreign administrator might have maintained the action. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lipscomb, 22 App. D. C. 104.

7. Richards v. Riverside Ironworks, 56 W. Va. 510, 49 S. E. 437.

8. Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 93, § 230, authorizes administration of estates of those who have been uninterruptedly absent and unheard of for more than seven years. Lee v. Allen [Md.] 59 A. 184. Due process clause of 14th amendment to Federal constitution does not deprive state of power to confer jurisdiction on its courts to administer on estates of absentees. Cunnius v. Reading School Dist., 198 U. S. 458, 49 Law. Ed. 1125. Pa. Laws 1885, p. 155, providing for the administration of estates of absentees, does not violate such clause either as to the publication of notice of the proceeding or as to the remedy afforded the absentee in case of his return. Id. Fixing period of absence at seven years held not so unreasonable as to render statute repugnant to such clause. Id.

9. Where father left no debts and no estate, and his son, who predeceased him, left no debts, the next of kin of both, being the same persons, could distribute the son's estate without administration on the father's estate. In re Losee's Estate, 94 N. Y. S. 1082. If no debts. Distributees or legatees may sue for property. Patton v. Pinkston [Miss.] 38 So. 500.

10. Exemption from forced sale to satisfy ancestor's debts. Randolph v. White, 135 F. 875.

11, 12. Bennett v. Morris, 111 Ill. App. 150.

13. 2 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896 (2d Ed.) p. 2665. Lang v. Friesenecker, 213 Ill. 598, 73 N. E. 329. Amendment whereby this provision was incorporated into the statute (Sess. Laws 1895, p. 244) held not unconstitutional as embracing more than one subject not expressed in the title. Id.

Community property may generally be administered by the surviving husband or wife without the supervision of the probate court.[14] In some states, upon the death of her husband without lineal descendants, the widow is his sole heir, and may, upon the payment of his debts, take possession of his property without administration.[15] This rule applies only in cases of intestacy,[16] and a legacy is not a debt as the term is therein used.[17]

In Louisiana, dative letters will be refused where the widow holds as usufructuary, the only debts are costs which are assumed by the attorney, and the only legatee is willing to await the widow's death before payment.[18]

A temporary administrator [19] may be appointed pending the appointment of one entitled to permanent letters.[20]

An ancillary administrator [21] is one appointed in a state other than that of decedent's domicile for the purpose of representing the estate therein.[22]

An administrator de bonis non [23] may be appointed after the death, resignation, discharge, or removal of the original representative, where the estate has not been fully administered.[24]

An administrator pendente lite [25] may in some states always be appointed where the appointment of a general administrator is delayed for any reason, or the validity of the will is contested, or pending an appeal of proceedings on removal of an executor or administrator.[26]

§ 2. Jurisdiction and courts controlling administration.[27]—The jurisdiction and powers of courts in administering upon the estates of decedents are fixed by the statutes of the various states.[28] Courts to which such matters are intrusted are,

14. Husband may administer it for payment of debts. Levy v. W. L. Moody & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 205.

15. Civ. Code 1895, § 3355, subd. 1. Moore v. Smith, 121 Ga. 479, 49 S. E. 601; Harrell v. Harrell [Ga.] 51 S. E. 283. Cannot sue on a debt owing decedent until after she has paid all his debts. Jackson v. Green [Ga.] 51 S. E. 284.

16. Widow cannot recover on chose in action of decedent where there is in existence a paper apparently executed in due form of law as the will of the deceased, until there has been a judgment of the court of ordinary that it is not his will. Harrell v. Harrell [Ga.] 51 S. E. 283.

17. Harrell v. Harrell [Ga.] 51 S. E. 283.

18. Succession of Glancey [La.] 38 So. 554.

19. See 3 C. L. 1240.

20. An appeal from the order admitting will to probate taken after the issuance of letters to, and the qualification of executors named therein, operates to suspend their functions pending its determination, and in such case it is proper for surrogate to grant them limited powers necessary for the preservation of the estate. Code Civ. Proc. § 2582. In re Choate's Will, 94 N. Y. S. 176. Where a resident of one county dies in another with property or business matters in the latter requiring immediate attention, the superior court of the latter may appoint a special administrator to conserve such property until an executor or general administrator is appointed in the former county. In re Long's Estate [Wash.] 81 P. 1007.

21. See 3 C. L. 1240.

22. Every administration, either on testate or intestate estates, granted in another state, not based on the adjudicated fact of decedent's domicile therein, but solely on the accidental situation of some personalty which may require the aid of its laws for its reduction to possession, is an administration ancillary in its nature to that of the domicile, whether granted before or after the grant of domiciliary administration. Appeal of Hopkins, 77 Conn. 644, 60 A. 657. In Missouri, nonresident executors cannot act, either in the collection of debts due the estate, or in disposing of its property for the payment of debts or legacies. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113. In case one dying testate leaves property in a state other than that of his domicile, letters testamentary with the will annexed should be issued in the latter state to some one qualified to administer by its laws. Rev. St. 1899, § 254. Such administration is in the nature of ancillary administration. Id. It is no objection to the grant of letters in the latter state that the estate is in process of administration in the state of testator's domicile. Id. Issuance of ancillary letters is necessary to enable a foreign executor to recover assets of the estate. Downey v. Owen, 98 App. Div. 411, 90 N. Y. S. 280. Ancillary letters are based on the existence of personalty. Spratt v. Syms, 93 N. Y. S. 728.

23. See 3 C. L. 1241.

24. After final settlement and discharge, there is neither a "death," "resignation" or "removal" to warrant letters de bonis non. Hickey v. Stallworth [Ala.] 39 So. 267. Grant of letters de bonis non when there is no vacancy is void. Id.

25. See 3 C. L. 1240.

26. Power exists where contest is being carried on in another court. Davenport v. Davenport [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 379.

27. See 3 C. L. 1241.

28. See, also, Jurisdiction, 4 C. L. 324.

in most states, courts of record, possessed of special, superior and original jurisdiction to administer any relief pertinent to probate and administration,[29] and of appropriate equitable powers.[30]

29. As to jurisdiction of the various courts to hear and allow claims, see § 6B, post. As to whether such courts are courts of general jurisdiction so as to render their judgments immune from collateral attack, see § 15, post. As to jurisdiction of appellate courts, see § 16, post.

In Illinois the probate court is not a constitutional court but a creature of statute, and possesses only such powers as are conferred upon it by the laws passed in pursuance of the constitutional provision authorizing its creation. Upson v. Davis, 110 Ill. App. 375.

In Montana, probate courts or district courts sitting in probate have but a special, limited jurisdiction, and only such powers as are expressly granted to them by statute, or necessarily implied to give effect to those granted. Statute giving them power to enforce written contracts of the decedent to convey land does not give them power to enforce executory oral ones. Bullerdick v. Hermsmeyer [Mont.] 81 P. 334.

Montana. The assignment of dower is not the settlement of the estate, or any part of the settlement of the estate of a deceased person, nor a matter of probate, and the county court has jurisdiction to assign it only when the right thereto is not disputed by the heirs and devisees, or any person claiming under them or either of them. Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 4908. Swobe v. Marsh [Neb.] 102 N. W. 619. The district court has original jurisdiction to assign both dower and homestead. Not curtailed by statute last cited. Id.

In New Jersey the orphans' court is a statutory tribunal with no powers beyond those conferred by law. Cannot, in absence of statute, allow counsel fees to next of kin defending fund from distribution to those held not entitled thereto. Smith v. McDonald [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 453. Has no jurisdiction to determine whether executors were negligent in failing to make provision for the payment of legacies at the proper time, the appropriate remedy being by bill in equity. In re Woolsey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 463.

In New York the eminent domain court has jurisdiction to determine the amount of attorney's fees to be allowed an executrix who is a party to the proceeding. Does not interfere with the jurisdiction of the surrogate court. In re East Seventh St., 95 N. Y. S. 140.

In Pennsylvania the direction and control of executors and administrators in the performance of their duties is an essential attribute of the jurisdiction of the orphans' court. They are officers of that court and should not be compelled to take orders from two courts. Moore v. Fidelity Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 1, afg. 134 F. 489.

Tennessee: Under Shannon's Code, § 3934, providing that letters of administration shall be granted by the county court, and § 3940, authorizing appeals to the circuit court from orders appointing administrators, the circuit court has no jurisdiction to make an appointment on appeal to it, or to revoke letters improvidently granted, but should, on determining the appeal in favor of appellant, remand the cause for the issuance of letters by the county court. In re Wooten's Estate [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 1105. Circuit court has no power to consider the application of any one not a party to the proceedings in the county court. Id.

In Texas, in probate matters, the county court is one of general jurisdiction. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839. A proceeding to compel an administrator to include in his inventory certain notes and credits held by him for decedent is not an action for debt ousting probate jurisdiction, but the county court has jurisdiction thereof under Const. art. 5, § 16, and Rev. St. 1895, art. 1840, giving it general probate jurisdiction, and under the express provisions of Batt's Ann. Civ. St. §§ 1973-1975. Moore v. Mertz [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 312.

In Washington the superior court of the county of which deceased was a resident or in which he had his abode at the time of his death has exclusive original jurisdiction to administer his estate, and to issue general letters of administration thereon. 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 6087. In re Long's Estate [Wash.] 81 P. 1007.

In West Virginia, county courts and the clerks thereof in vacation have exclusive original jurisdiction in all probate matters involving the probate of wills and the ordinary administrative proceedings involved in the settlement of estates. Stone v. Simmons, 56 W. Va. 88, 48 S. E. 841. Acts 1872-73, c. 136, p. 456, giving the circuit court concurrent jurisdiction with the county courts in probate matters, held repealed by the repealing clauses of Acts 1882, cc. 68, 84, pp. 137, 194. Id.

In Wisconsin the county court has no jurisdiction to compel an accounting by a surviving partner. Circuit court has jurisdiction of bill by administrator of deceased partner to compel an accounting of the partnership affairs by the surviving partner and the representatives of another deceased partner, notwithstanding that the estate of the latter is in process of settlement by the county court, since county court has no jurisdiction to bring before it or enter judgment against the surviving partner. Stehn v. Hayssen [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1074.

30. Illinois: A court having jurisdiction over estates of decedents, though having no general chancery powers, may administer equity principles in the exercise of its jurisdiction. Wheeler v. Wheeler, 105 Ill. App. 48. Claimant recovered judgments on two notes against the maker and the surety jointly, and on the subsequent death of the latter, filed claims against his estate based thereon. The administratrix paid the claims in full with money contributed by herself and the heirs, and then sued the maker, who claimed that the judgments were joint and consequently could not be enforced against decedent's estate, and claim could not have been allowed had plaintiff interposed such a

The general rules controlling precedence and conflict in jurisdiction,[31] and the jurisdiction of various courts over testamentary trusts, are treated elsewhere.[32]

The residence of decedent and the situs of the property fix the jurisdiction of the probate courts of particular counties,[33] and the existence of property within the state is generally held to be a condition precedent to the administration of the estates of nonresidents.[34] Whether decedents were residents of the state at the time of their deaths so as to give the public administrator a legal right to administer on their estates is a question of fact for the trial court.[35]

It has been held that probate courts have no jurisdiction to determine the respective rights of individuals in property the title to which it is claimed that decedent parted with prior to his death,[36] or rights under ordinary contracts not testadefense. Held, that the county court, in the exercise of its equitable powers had the right to look beyond the judgments to the notes, and allow the claim as an equitable money demand. The equitable jurisdiction of the county and probate courts does not give them power to declare a deed absolute on its face to be a mortgage. Rook v. Rook, 111 Ill. App. 398.

Missouri: Though the probate court has not general jurisdiction in equity, it may allow claims which are equitable as distinguished from legal, and entertain equitable defenses to claims and demands against the estate. Has jurisdiction to entertain defense to application for widow's allowance based on a separation agreement whereby she released all her rights in her husband's property, though such contract can be affirmatively enforced only in equity. Fisher v. Clopton, 110 Mo. App. 663, 85 S. W. 623.

In Pennsylvania the orphans' court is a court of equity and may compel an accounting by a surviving partner, who is one of the executors, of the assets of the partnership estate. Moore v. Fidelity Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 1, afg. 134 F. 489.

In Texas both the county court sitting in probate, and the district court on appeal, in classifying claims against the estate and for the purpose of determining their privity, have jurisdiction to hear evidence of a mistake in the terms of a written contract in order to determine the status of a claim growing out of it, and to grant appropriate relief. Held, that there was no intention to release vendor's lien, and that it was done through a mistake, so that lien was superior to widow's allowance. Zieschang v. Helmke [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 436.

Wisconsin: Where probate courts are given jurisdiction over all matters relating to the settlement of the estates of decedents, they necessarily have by implication all the judicial authority of courts of equity in the administration of trusts necessary to the proper administration of the particular class of trusts in question. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2443, county court has jurisdiction to determine the expense incurred by administrator for legal services, and on his defalcation without having paid for them, to make the amount thereof a lien on the assets of the estate in their favor. Carpenter v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 123 Wis. 209, 101 N. W. 404.

31. See Jurisdiction, 4 C. L. 324.

32. See Trusts, 4 C. L. 1727.

33. Where the resident of one county dies in another with property or business matters in the latter requiring immediate attention, the superior court of the latter may appoint a special administrator to conserve such property until an executor or general administrator is appointed in the former county (In re Long's Estate [Wash.] 81 P. 1007; but the appointment of such a special administrator does not give such court jurisdiction to issue letters of general administration, nor in any way to interfere with the exercise of general jurisdiction by the court of the county where deceased resided or had his abode (Id.). On an application for the grant of letters of administration, the proceedings of the superior court of another county granting special letters are immaterial. Certified copy thereof held properly excluded. Id.

34. New York: Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2476, subd. 4, the surrogate has no authority to grant original letters of administration with the will annexed on the estate of one who was not a resident of the state at the time of his death, but who left property in the county, unless the will of the testator is produced and proven before him. Spratt v. Syms, 93 N. Y. S. 728. The rule is not changed by the fact that the will is filed and remains in another state. Id. Has no jurisdiction to administer on the estate of a nonresident who has no property in the state. McCarthy v. Supreme Court I. O. F. 94 N. Y. S. 876.

Missouri: The granting of letters of administration on the estate of one dying testate in a foreign state is proper, where deceased leaves personalty, consisting of debts due him, in the county where the letters are granted, and also owes debts in such county. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113. Even if court in which suit for partition of realty of one dying in another state was instituted had exclusive jurisdiction to the exclusion of that subsequently exercised by the probate court in directing administrator to take charge of the realty, the granting of letters by the latter court as to personalty was in no way affected thereby. Id. The fact that an order authorizing such administrator to take charge of the realty is invalid in no way affects the validity of the letters. Order and letters are separate, and overthrow of former in no way invalidates latter. Id.

35. Preponderance of evidence held to be in favor of finding that they were. Sommer v. Franklin Bank, 108 Mo. App. 490, 83 S. W. 1025.

36. The surrogate has no jurisdiction to pass upon the issue of title to property bementary in character, even though made in contemplation of death,[37] or the validity of assignments by the heirs or beneficiaries of their interest in the estate.[38]

A probate court in a statutory partition cannot decide questions of jurisdiction.[39]

A state court has jurisdiction to order the transfer of national bank shares by an executrix to one for whom decedent held them in trust.[40]

The right of the probate court to exercise supervisory control over the estate does not give it jurisdiction to appoint a "superintendent" thereof,[41] and such appointment being void, a writ of prohibition will issue against the appointee to prevent him from acting as such.[42]

Jurisdiction of Federal courts.[43]—The Federal courts have no original jurisdiction in respect to the administration of the estate of a decedent and cannot take any action or make any decree looking to the mere administration of such an estate.[44] They have, however, in cases where the requisite jurisdictional amount is involved, and where there is diversity of citizenship, concurrent jurisdiction with the courts of the various states to hear and allow claims against such estates, and this is true even though the state statutes confer exclusive jurisdiction to hear and adjudge such claims on certain state courts.[45] In the exercise of such jurisdiction they administer the laws of the state of decedent's domicile, in the enforcement of which they uniformly follow the rules and decisions governing the state tribunals in so far as they violate no right secured by the Federal constitution or statutes.[46] The action may be at law in case it is commenced within the time limited for the presentation of claims, and no equitable relief is necessary to the allowance of the claim.[47] In case, however, the allowance of the claim for good cause shown after the expiration of the time limited, or the extension of such time, or other relief which can be secured by the exercise of the judgment of the chancellor alone, is indispensable, resort must be had to a suit in equity.[48]

tween an administrator as an individual and third parties, where both parties claim that deceased parted with the title thereto prior to his death. In re Finn's Estate, 44 Misc. 622, 90 N. Y. S. 159. Code D. C. § 122, providing a prompt remedy in the probate court for the discovery and reduction to possession of concealed assets of an estate gives that court no jurisdiction to determine ownership of property in the hands of persons claiming adversely to the estate, they having made full disclosure of assets in their possession. Richardson v. Daggett, 24 App. D. C. 440.

37. Cannot determine rights arising under contract between husband and wife made after marriage, where it was not executed with the formalities essential to a will. McWhorter v. Oneal, 121 Ga. 539, 49 S. E. 592.

38. See post, § 12.

39. Penn v. Case [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 349. See, also, special article, 3 C. L. 1489.

40. In re Fisher's Estate [Iowa] 102 N. W. 797.

41. Right of court to exercise a supervisory control over the estate does mean control by means of a personal and irresponsible agent. Court has no agent or representative except the administrator. Such an appointment not authorized by Laws 1901, c. 81, § 8. Koury v. Castillo [N. M.] 79 P. 293.

42. Koury v. Castillo [N. M.] 79 P. 293.

43. See 3 C. L. 1244.

44. Where surviving partner of firm was one of the executors of the estate of his deceased partner, the settlement of which was pending in the probate court of the state, which had full equitable jurisdiction to compel an accounting between the executor and by the surviving partner of his deceased partner's interest in the firm, bill cannot be maintained in Federal court by distributee under will to compel accounting by such surviving partner and a payment of the amount found due to the executors for distribution, particularly when both parties are citizens of the same state. Moore v. Fidelity Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 1, afg. 134 F. 489.

45. Schurmeier v. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 42. Jurisdiction of Federal courts cannot be limited by state statutes. Alice E. Min. Co. v. Blanden, 136 F. 252.

46. Schurmeier v. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 42; Alice E. Min. Co. v. Blanden, 136 F. 252.

47. Action to secure allowance of claim and its certification to proper state court for allowance in its class. Schurmeier v. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 42.

48. Federal court cannot determine such questions in an action at law. Schurmeier v. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 42.

A Federal court has jurisdiction equally with state courts to enforce liens on the interests of defendants in funds belonging to the estate of a decedent in the hands of an ancillary administrator.[49] Whatever action it may take, however, is subject to that of the probate court within its proper jurisdiction.[50] It will not enjoin the local probate court from directing that the funds within its control be remitted to the court of probate of the domicile,[51] but will, on a proper showing, enjoin those whose interests are sought to be reached from receiving any portion of the estate under any order of distribution by either the local probate court or that of the domicile.[52] Its decree in such case is necessarily confined to the property localized within its jurisdiction, though personal judgments may be entered against the defendants, to which the liens are incidental.[53]

Short of intermeddling with the possession of a state court, or controlling the administration, the Federal court may, where the requisite diversity of citizenship exists, grant full relief to one suing to obtain the share of the estate to which he is entitled.[54] If the requisite diversity of citizenship exists, and the jurisdictional amount is in controversy, such courts may direct the disposition of trust property over which the probate court has no jurisdiction,[55] and may entertain suits to set aside as fraudulently obtained judgments of a probate court which are liens on decedent's realty situated in the district and inherited by complainants.[56]

Jurisdiction of courts of equity.[57]—When probate jurisdiction is exclusively vested in probate courts, county courts, or the like, equity has no jurisdiction to interfere in matters of probate,[58] unless in exceptional cases, where the jurisdiction of the probate court is inadequate or has been found inefficient.[59] Its determination that such an exceptional case exists will not be reversed unless clearly erroneous.[60]

49. Ingersoll v. Coram, 127 F. 418.

50. Ingersoll v. Coram, 127 F. 418; Id., 132 F. 168. Decree should declare that nothing therein is intended to or shall contravene any action of any probate tribunal in the state of the domicile with reference to distribution, or to any order or judgment remitting to the courts of the domicile. Ingersoll v. Coram, 136 F. 689.

51, 52. Ingersoll v. Coram, 136 F. 689, Id., 132 F. 168.

53. In suit in Federal court under Rev. St. § 738 to establish a lien on the interest of defendants in property in the hands of an ancillary administrator in the state in which the suit is brought, the decree is necessarily confined to the property localized within the jurisdiction, though personal judgments may be entered against the defendants, to which the liens are incidental. Ingersoll v. Coram, 136 F. 689.

54. Herron v. Comstock [C. C. A.] 139 F. 370.

55. Where the powers and duties of executors and trustees under a will are severable, and, prior to the filing of a bill in the Federal court by a beneficiary under the trust, the admininstration of the personalty by the executors has been completed, and nothing remains but the management and disposition of the trust realty remaining unsold for the completion of the trust, such court has jurisdiction to decree an accounting by the trustees and direct final distribution and settlement of the trust, the probate court having no jurisdiction in that regard. Herron v. Comstock [C. C. A.] 139 F. 370.

56. Circuit court has jurisdiction under Act March 3, 1875, § 8, 18 St. at L. 472, c. 137, Comp. St. 1901, p. 513, empowering circuit court to remove cloud on title to realty or personalty within the district as against nonresident defendants. McDaniel v. Traylor, 196 U. S. 415, 49 Law. Ed. 533. The value of the matter in dispute in a suit to set aside judgments establishing claims is the aggregate amount of the claims the allowance of which was procured. The judgments were obtained by several who conspired together. Id.

57. See 3 C. L. 1244.

58. Stone v. Simmons, 56 W. Va. 88, 48 S. E. 841. Executrix named in the will being insane, county court appointed an administrator with the will annexed. Executrix thereafter recovered and served notice on administrator of an application to the county court for the revocation of his letters and for her appointment as executrix. Held, that circuit court, in which he had commenced an action to construe the will and for directions in regard to the distribution of funds in his hands, had no jurisdiction to restrain the executrix from further prosecuting her action. Id. Could not be contended that such injunction was merely ancillary, since court had no jurisdiction. Id. Contention that appointment of executrix in county court would interfere with action of circuit court in its proceedings in main case held without foundation, since change would only apply to that part of the estate already administered. Id.

59. Though the ordinary jurisdiction of courts of equity over administrations has been taken away and conferred on probate courts, or has become obsolete, yet there still remains an auxiliary or supplemental juris-

Courts of equity in some states have jurisdiction to entertain administration suits at the instance of creditors, devisees, legatees, or others interested in the proper administration of an estate,[61] and to appoint a receiver for the estate on a proper showing.[62] An order in an administrator's suit authorizing the issuance of a receiver's certificate does not bind creditors not parties to the suit when it is made.[63] When one person is both domiciliary and ancillary administrator, the chancery court of the domicile may assume entire administration, though it covers foreign assets brought thither without settlement by the administrator under his ancillary letters.[64]

Creditors of a decedent's estate may resort to equity for the ascertainment and preservation of the property and assets of the estate, and the subjection of the same to the payment of the debts against it, when the personal representative refuses to perform his duty in the premises.[65] If necessary to full relief in such case, a receiver may be appointed to take charge of the premises.[66]

Equity has jurisdiction of a suit to enforce a pledge of or lien upon the undivided shares of heirs or devisees in the hands of an ancillary administrator,[67] and to appoint a new trustee where the administrator de bonis non, who is also trustee, denies the right of the beneficiaries to the trust fund.[68] It may also grant relief to the diction, to be exercised in such cases. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 3845, as amended by Laws 1899, c. 5, p. 7, providing that actions may be prosecuted against executors and administrators in the circuit court when the county court cannot afford as adequate, complete, prompt, or efficient remedy, the circuit court has jurisdiction of a suit by the executor of a deceased director to wind up a corporation, in which a cross bill is filed against the executor to recover, as a corporate asset, a sum alleged to be due the corporation because of the wrongful conversion of its good will by decedent. Lindemann v. Rusk [Wis.] 104 N. W. 119.

60. Where the court of equity has determined that an exceptional case exists and has taken jurisdiction. Lindemann v. Rusk [Wis.] 104 N. W. 119.

61. Under Code, § 1511, authorizing original actions to be brought in the superior court against executors or administrators and empowering the court to order an account to be taken, and to adjudge the application or distribution of funds, or grant other relief as the case may require. Fisher v. Southern Loan & Trust Co., 138 N. C. 90, 50 S. E. 592. Facts set out in petition held to entitle parties to the aid of the court in protecting the property by the appointment of a receiver, and the adjustment of conflicting claims, to the end that it might be sold so as to pass an unincumbered title and under such circumstances and conditions as would pay the debts and leave the largest possible surplus to the devisees. Id. Where it appeared from the pleadings that the decedent had, prior to his death, entered into a contract for the sale of a part of the realty, under which certain vested rights were claimed, held, that it was proper for the court to dispose of the question so presented in order to clear the way for the sale of the property. Id. A distributee's right to remove administration to chancery in Alabama does not rest on any special equity such as the right to surcharge or falsify a partial settlement. Greenhood v. Greenhood [Ala.] 39 So. 299. A bill to remove administration to chancery and to require a bond of the executor may on general demurrer be sustained if defective as to the latter relief only; the attack should be to the defective part specifically. Cronk v. Cronk [Ala.] 37 So. 828.

62, 63. Fisher v. Southern Loan & Trust Co., 138 N. C. 90, 50 S. E. 592.

64. Greenhood v. Greenhood [Ala.] 39 So. 299.

65. Buskirk Bros. v. Peck [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 432.

66. May be appointed at the instance of creditors to take charge of, care for, put in marketable condition, and sell timber belonging to the estate, but subject to the purchase-money lien of a stranger on whose land it is lying, when representative has refused to do so. Buskirk Bros. v. Peck [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 432. Creditors do not represent estate and hence cannot take charge of timber or maintain any action at law for it or its proceeds. Id.

67. Lien to secure payment for services of lawyer in contesting will. Ingersoll v. Coram, 127 F. 418, Id., 132 F. 168. The fact that in ancillary probate proceedings the will was admitted to probate without any expressed reference to a compromise decree entered in the state of original jurisdiction whereby contesting heirs not named in the will were given a certain share in the estate, so that the record in the ancillary proceedings does not show any interest in such heirs, will not preclude a court of equity from fastening a lien upon their interest in the assets within the ancillary jurisdiction, such objection being one of form only, which will be disregarded. Ingersoll v. Coram, 136 F. 689.

68. Notwithstanding that administration is pending in the probate court. Morrow v. Morrow [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 590. Where an administrator de bonis non is removed from his office as trustee, the fact that the time for proving demands against the estate had expired and that distribution had been made beneficiaries on failure of the executor to properly perform the duty imposed on him by the will to select from the stock and bonds of the estate a sufficient amount to make up deficiencies in funds bequeathed in trust.[69]

A Federal court of equity has no jurisdiction of a suit against an executor or administrator to recover unliquidated damages for a tort alleged to have been committed by his decedent, where he is not charged as trustee, but is made a party solely as personal representative.[70]

As in other cases, a court of chancery having rightfully assumed jurisdiction of a matter involved in the administration of an estate, will grant complete relief, without remitting the parties to an action at law.[71]

§ 3. The persons who administer and their letters. A. Selection and nomination.[72] The right to administer[73] is a valuable right and those upon whom it has been conferred by statute should not be deprived of it except as provided by the statute.[74] One cannot sell his right to act as executor, and any agreement whereby he attempts to do so for a consideration is void as against public policy.[75] The legislature has a right to determine who may and who may not act as executor.[76]

Except as permitted by statute, only natural persons may be appointed.[77]

The executors named in the will have the right to the appointment unless they are within the class of persons declared by the statute to be incompetent,[78] or unless they have renounced their right,[79] which under certain statutes is presumed from delay to claim the right.[80] Such statutes apply to foreign as well as domestic shows that no legal impediment obstructs the administrator's obligation to pay a trust fund to a new trustee. Id.

69. Blair v. Scribner [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 211.

70. United States v. Bitter Root Development Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 274.

71. Plaintiff having sued to enjoin administrator from selling property to pay a fraudulent claim and alleging title in herself as evidence of her right to sue, court may quiet title in parties admitted to the suit as defendants and allowed to file answer and cross complaint in which they claimed the equitable title to the property. Norman v. Pugh [Ark.] 86 S. W. 833. See, also, Equity, 5 C. L. 1144.

72, 73. See 3 C. L. 1245.

74. Wiliams v. Williams, 24 App. D. C. 214.

75. Agreement whereby one of the executors renounced his right, in consideration of which, among other things, he was to share equally in the fees received by the other executors. Oakeshott v. Smith, 93 N. Y. S. 659.

76. Does not thereby interfere with testator's right to dispose of his property. In re American Security & Trust Co., 45 Misc. 529, 92 N. Y. S. 974.

77. In New York a foreign corporation cannot act as executor. In re American Security & Trust Co., 45 Misc. 529, 92 N. Y. S. 974. Corporations are not persons within meaning of code provisions relating to qualification of executors. Id. If they are, then foreign corporation is expressly prohibited from acting as such by § 2612, declaring incompetent aliens not inhabitants of the state. Id. As it is policy of the laws of the state not to permit the property of an estate to be taken out of the jurisdiction of its courts, there is an implied prohibition against foreign corporations acting as executors. Id. Banking Law, art. 4 (Laws 1892, c. 689, p. 1906), authorizing trust companies to act, applies only to domestic corporations. Id.

78. Are given preference by Rev. St. 1899, § 4574. Rice v. Tilton [Wyo.] 80 P. 828. Only objections authorized by Rev. St. 1899, § 4629, to the appointment of the executor named in the will are those specified by Id., § 4628. Id. Evidence held not to show incompetency. Id. The testator may appoint anyone and the court is bound to issue letters to the person so appointed unless he falls within a class specifically declared to be incompetent. Clark v. Patterson, 214 Ill. 533, 73 N. E. 806, afg. 114 Ill. App. 312. Administration Act, c. 3, § 1 (1 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 269), providing that when a will has been duly proved the county court "shall" issue letters testamentary to the executor named in the will, if he is legally competent, accepts the trust, and gives the required bond, is mandatory. Id. Under 1 Starr. & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 270, c. 3, § 3, the only qualifications are that the person must be 17 years old, of sound mind and memory, and not under conviction of a crime rendering him infamous, and under Id. § 18, he must be a resident. Id. Administration Act, c. 3, § 5 (1 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 270), providing that where two or more executors are named in the will and one of them dies, refuses to act, or is otherwise disqualified, letters shall be granted to the other person or persons so named and not renouncing and not disqualified, does not authorize the court to prescribe grounds of disqualification in addition to those prescribed by Id. §§ 3, 18. Id.

79. Rice v. Tilton [Wyo.] 80 P. 828.

80. By statute in some states an executor who fails to petition for probate and the grant of letters within a specified time after he has knowledge of the death of the tes-wills.[81] The delay does not render the executors incompetent, but merely deprives them of their preferential right, and makes their appointment a matter for the exercise of the sound discretion of the court.[82] In the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary, mere moral delinquencies,[83] alleged indebtedness to the estate, even when liability is denied,[84] or allegations that there are reasons warranting the belief that he will subsequently incur disabilities or be guilty of conduct justifying his removal,[85] do not justify the court in refusing to issue letters to the person named as executor in the will.

In case the person named in the will dies,[86] or refuses to act, or is disqualified, letters of administration may be granted to those who would have been entitled thereto had there been no will.[87] One is not rendered incompetent to act as administrator with the will annexed by reason of the fact that he is hostile to the will and claims adversely to it.[88]

The right to administer on the estate of one dying intestate is generally given first to the surviving husband or wife,[89] then to the next of kin [90] or the heirs,[91] and tator and of the fact that he has been named as executor may be held to have renounced his right to letters, and the court may appoint any competent person, unless good cause for delay is shown. Rev. St. 1899, § 4582, requires him to petition within thirty days. Rice v. Tilton [Wyo.] 80 P. 828. Evidence held to show no good cause for delay in applying for letters under foreign will. Id.

81. Rice v. Tilton [Wyo.] 80 P. 828.

82. Exercise of such discretion will not be disturbed on appeal unless abused. Rice v. Tilton [Wyo.] 80 P. 828.

83. Cannot refuse to appoint executrix because she maintained illicit relations with testator, and had alienated his affections from his family, and because by reason thereof her appointment would outrage the feelings of testator's family, work serious disadvantage to the beneficiaries, and prevent her co-executors from working in harmony with her. Clark v. Patterson, 214 Ill. 533, 73 N. E. 806, afg. 114 Ill. App. 312.

84. Particularly in view of the statutory provision (3 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 4045, c. 148, § 19) that the appointment of a debtor as executor does not release his debt. Clark v. Patterson, 214 Ill. 533, 73 N. E. 806, afg. 114 Ill. App. 312. Thus letters should not be refused because executrix had received property from testator during the existence of illicit relations between them, and that it was necessary for his executors to contest her right to retain it. Id. In any event allegations in regard to the receipt of such property, etc., held too indefinite to warrant refusal of letters. Id.

85. 1 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 282, c. 3, §§ 29, 30, authorizing removals in certain cases, the court has the right to remove executors only when one or more of such statutory grounds are properly brought before it for judicial action, and hence an objection to the appointment of an executrix on the ground that the court would be immediately obliged to remove her is untenable where no statutory grounds for removal are set out therein. Clark v. Patterson, 214 Ill. 533, 73 N. E. 806, afg. 114 Ill. App. 312. Such sections authorize removals only for disabilities occurring after appointment. Id.

86. Under 1 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896 (2d Ed.) p. 269, § 1, the court is required, in such case, to commit the administration to the widow, surviving husband, next of kin, or creditor, the same as if deceased had died intestate. Lang v. Friesenecker, 213 Ill. 598, 73 N. E. 329. Act June 7, 1895, Sess. Laws 1895, p. 244, 2 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896 (2d Ed.) p. 2665, providing for the settlement of a deceased lunatic's estate by his conservator repeals the last named statute pro tanto, or engrafts an exception thereon, so that, on the death of a lunatic's executor, his next of kin have no right to appoint an administrator as against his conservator's right to distribute his estate. Id.

87. Rev. St. 1899, § 11. Executors and widow of one dying in foreign state being disqualified by non-residence, letters held properly granted to brother of decedent who moved into state and acquired a residence therein. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113.

88. His bond affords sufficient protection to those interested. Rice v. Tilton [Wyo.] 80 P. 828.

89. Under Code D. C., §§ 276-280, 287, if the decedent leaves a widow and minor children, the widow, if a fit person, and qualified to act, is entitled to sole administration of the estate, and the probate court cannot against her consent appoint a co-administrator who is a stranger to the estate. Williams v. Williams, 24 App. D. C. 214. Under Code D. C., § 276, an adult child of decedent who is otherwise qualified may in the discretion of the probate court be appointed as co-administrator with the widow. Id. But if either is unwilling to act as joint administrator with the other, one of them should be appointed. Williams v. Williams, 25 App. D. C. 32. One cannot be appointed co-administrator against the protest of the other. Id.

90. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 7, providing that letters of administration shall be granted first to the husband or wife, and second to those entitled to distribution of the estate, or one or more of them, where deceased died in a foreign state and made his wife executrix, one of the next of kin is entitled to ancillary letters. State v. Guinotte [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 884. Decedent's half-sisters are entitled to letters as against his maternal uncle. In re then to the creditors, provided they are legally competent to act.[92] If none of these apply or will accept letters, then they may be granted to the first legally competent person applying therefor.[93] In New York a renunciation of the right to administer must be in writing, acknowledged or proved and certified as a deed, or otherwise proved to the satisfaction of the surrogate, and filed in his office.[94] An oral renunciation, which has not been acted upon by the parties, may be withdrawn with the consent of the surrogate.[95]

In case there are more than one next of kin of the same degree, the court may decide between them.[96] Where a stranger is appointed co-administrator with the next of kin, the latter is the only person entitled to object.[97]

In case the next of kin do not desire to act,[98] or in some states if they are nonresidents, they are entitled to nominate some other person who should be appointed if legally competent and a fit and suitable person for the office,[99] his fitness being tested by the same rules and tests as if the next of kin were applying personally.[1] The right of choice is not exhausted by reason of the fact that the first nominee is declared ineligible,[2] and, in such case, the probate court cannot, on its own motion, appoint another person, but should notify the next of kin and give them, and, after them, the creditors, an opportunity to name another appointee.[3]

An erroneous conclusion of the court in determining who is entitled to administer does not render the appointment of one not entitled to the office absolutely void,[4] but he is entitled to act until the order is revoked.[5]

The only grounds rendering one incompetent to act as administrator are those Morris, 91 N. Y. S. 706. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 3896, a sole distributee is absolutely entitled to be appointed. Buckner's Adm'rs v. Buckner [Ky.] 87 S. W. 776.

91. The tutor of minor legatees under a universal title is not an "heir" present or represented in the state and so entitled by preference over the public administrator to dative letters. Succession of Bossu [La.] 38 So. 878.

92. In New York a corporation creditor is not entitled to administer on the estate of its deceased debtor. In re Rhoda, 93 N. Y. S. 973. An attorney to whom the executor owes fees for services rendered in a will contest is a creditor in the sense of statute giving creditors a preferential, though deferred, right to administer, and as such is entitled to be heard before one having no interest in the estate is appointed. In re Wooten's Estate [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 1105.

93. Under Code Civ. Proc., § 2660, where deceased left no relative or next of kin within the state, and no creditors except a corporation, and neither the next of kin or the creditor applied for letters, they were properly issued to the first legally competent person applying therefor. In re Rhoda, 93 N. Y. S. 973.

94. Code Civ. Proc., § 2663. In re Morris, 91 N. Y. S. 706.

95. In re Morris, 91 N. Y. S. 706.

96. Shannon's Code, § 3939, applies only where there are more than one next of kin of the same degree applying for administration. In re Wooten's Estate [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 1105.

97. Buckner's Adm'rs v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 777.

98. In re Wooten's Estate [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 1105. If no executor is named and none of a class entitled to administer are competent or desire to act, a person nominated by the heirs entitled to administer should be appointed. Act of March 15, 1832, P. L. 135, gives the right in such case where there is a general residue to those having the right to such residue. Hence, a stranger cannot be appointed nor can one against whom a suit by the testator was pending at the date of his death. Job's Estate, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 611.

99. In Montana if a person otherwise entitled to serve as administrator is not a resident of the state and either the husband, wife, parent, child, brother or sister of the deceased, he may request the appointment of a resident of the state, and such person may be appointed. Code Civ. Proc. § 2434, as amended by Sess. Laws 1899, p. 137. Held that nominee of brothers and sisters, who were non-resident foreigners, should have been appointed rather than the public administrator. In re Watson's Estate [Mont.] 78 P. 702.

1, 2. In re Wooten's Estate [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 1105.

3. Appointment of outsider without giving next of kin or creditors an opportunity to be heard, held invalid. In re Wooten's Estate [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 1105. The next of kin do not, by appealing from an order refusing to appoint their nominee and wherein the court appoints another of his own motion, waive their right to make another nomination in the event that the reviewing court declares him ineligible. Id.

4. Buckner's Adm'rs v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 777.

5. A co-administrator appointed by an erroneous but not totally void order. Buckner's Adm'rs v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 777.

prescribed by statute,[6] or which disqualify or disable him as a trustee.[7] In some states, it is the duty of the probate court in the appointment of an administrator to ascertain and determine whether the applicant is a suitable person to administer,[8] and, if there is substantial evidence to support a finding that he is not, an order refusing to appoint him will not be disturbed on appeal.[9] As a general rule, and in the absence of a statute to the contrary, nonresidence does not disqualify one from acting as representative.[10] The rule has, however, been changed by statute in many states.[11]

Administrators pendente lite[12] are appointed to take the place of the court in temporarily caring for the estate, and consequently statutory provisions as to who are entitled to administer do not apply to them.[13] The court should ordinarily appoint disinterested persons rather than the nominee of either party, though in certain cases executors may be appointed.[14]

Temporary administrators.—A provision for the appointment of a temporary administrator other than one of the parties precludes the appointment of the executor named in the will.[15]

Public administrators.[16]—A county administrator does not, by virtue of his appointment, become the legal representative of any estate, but by giving the bond required by law he assumes a position where he may be appointed legal representative of such estates as the ordinary is authorized to place in his hands.[17] The right of the public administrator to take charge of the estate cannot be raised on exceptions to his accounts going only to the proper settlement of his administration.[18]

(§ 3) B. Procedure to obtain administration and grant of letters.[19]—General administration of the estate of one dying testate cannot be granted until his will has been proven.[20] In Louisiana the record of appointment of a dative testamentary executor must show that either the will or a copy was produced or registered in the district court for the parish where it was then sitting.[21]

Application for letters must be made within the time prescribed by law.[22]

6. Those prescribed by Rev. St. 1899, § 4637. Rice v. Tilton [Wyo.] 80 P. 828.

7. An attorney representing the bulk of the estate, but having no other interest therein, and who is obligated, as such attorney, to carry into effect agreements between those interested in the estate which will divert large amounts of its funds into channels different from the ordinary channels of distribution, is not eligible to appointment as administrator on nomination by the next of kin. In re Wooten's Estate [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 1105.

8. Gen. St. 1901, § 2817, provides that next of kin shall not be appointed if evidently unsuitable for the discharge of the trust. Brown v. Dunlap [Kan.] 79 P. 145.

9. Brown v. Dunlap [Kan.] 79 P. 145.

10. As a general rule, and in the absence of a statute to the contrary, a nonresident may qualify and act as executor. Hecht v. Carey [Wyo.] 78 P. 705. Non-residence does not disqualify one to act as executor provided he comes into the state, submits himself to the jurisdiction of the court, and personally conducts the affairs of the estate. Rice v. Tilton [Wyo.] 80 P. 828. Rev. St. 1899, § 4570, authorizes appointment of nonresident executor provided he is a citizen and resident of the United States, though non-residents are incompetent to act as administrators under section 4637. Statute detailing who cannot act omits non-residents. Section 4628. Hecht v. Carey [Wyo.] 78 P. 705.

11. Rev. St. 1899, § 10, disqualifies nonresident from acting as administrator. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113. An administrator is not a public officer within the meaning of Const. art. 8, § 12, providing that no one shall be elected or appointed to any office who has not resided in the state for a year. Id. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 3846, which contemplates the residence within the state of personal representatives, an administratrix appointed under the laws of the state cannot while exercising the office set up non-residence to avoid service of process in the courts of the state. Linn v. Hagan's Adm'x [Ky.] 87 S. W. 763.

12. See 3 C. L. 1247, n. 30.

13, 14. Davenport v. Davenport [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 379.

15. Bal. Ann. Codes & St. § 6172. Hartley v. Lord [Wash.] 80 P. 554.

16. See 3 C. L. 1247, n. 33.

17. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388.

18. Browning v. Richardson, 186 Mo. 361, 85 S. W. 518.

19. See 3 C. L. 1247.

20. Iowa Code, §§ 3278, 3297. Alice E. Min. Co. v. Blanden, 136 F. 252.

21. Order vacated for want of it. Succession of Henry, 113 La. 787, 37 So. 756.

22. Rev. St. 1895, §§ 1880, 1881, providing that no letters testamentary or of adminis-

The petition must be in accordance with the statutory requirements,[23] and the required notice must be given.[24] In some states, persons in the preferred classes are entitled to appointment on application without citation, subject only to the approval of the court, or the judge or clerk in vacation.[25]

An opposition that administration is needless, or, if proper, that opponent should be preferred, should be tried with and determined on the decision of the original application for letters.[26] In Missouri the determination of the qualifications of an applicant for letters to properly manage the estate is wholly discretionary with the probate court, and no trial or hearing in regard to the matter is necessary.[27] Objection that the time to claim a preferential right has not elapsed can only be made by one who is entitled to such preference.[28] Persons recognizing the authority of the representative cannot thereafter question the validity of his appointment.[29]

On a petition for the granting of letters of administration, the court has no jurisdiction to direct decedent's widow to turn over to the petitioner property alleged to have been held in trust for the latter by decedent, and to have been fraudulently transferred by him to his wife.[30]

Any party in interest may apply for the appointment of an administrator pendente lite, or the court may appoint one on his own motion.[31]

(§ 3) C. Security or bond.[32]—The giving of the bond required by statute is

tration shall be issued where application therefor is made more than four years after decedent's death, and that in no case shall letters testamentary be issued where a will is admitted to probate more than four years after testator's death, apply to ancillary proceedings to procure letters of administration c. t. a. and for the probate of a certified copy of a will admitted in a foreign state, and such proceedings cannot be maintained more than four years after testator's death. The granting of such letters after the lapse of that period is not, however, wholly beyond the jurisdiction of the court, so as to render the proceedings subject to collateral attack. Id.

23. Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 93, § 230, authorizes the appointment of an administrator for one who, by reason of his uninterrupted absence, unheard of, for more than seven years is presumed to be dead, on a petition setting forth when the absentee was last heard of, that diligent inquiry has been made among the family, that advertisement and inquiry has been made at the most likely place of his last residence without results, and that the applicant really believes him to be dead. Lee v. Allen [Md.] 59 A. 184. Petition held insufficient. Id. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2698, the failure of the petition to allege indebtedness of decedent to creditors within the state is fatal to the granting of ancillary letters. Spratt v. Syms, 93 N. Y. S. 728. No authority to issue ancillary letters is conferred on the surrogate by section 2703, relating to the recording of the will of a non-resident testator which disposes of realty within the state. Id. A petition for letters of administration need not set forth that there is no other application for letters pending. In re Long's Estate [Wash.] 81 P. 1007. The application will, on appeal, be deemed to have been amended to correspond to the proofs, where the evidence was sufficient to, and did, establish all the necessary facts, in the absence of any showing of prejudice to the rights of others. Id.

24. Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 93, § 230, authorizing administration on the estates of absentees in certain cases, requires notice of the petition therefor to be published not less than once a week for four successive weeks, fifteen days before the time fixed by the order for the appearance of the absentee. Lee v. Allen [Md.] 59 A. 184. Letters held void where it did not appear that any notice was given, and it did appear that letters were granted seventeen days after the petition therefor. Id.

25. No notice required by Rev. St. 1899, § 7. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113.

26. Separate disallowance of opposition is error. Miguez v. Delcambre [La.] 38 So. 820.

27. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113.

28. An objection to the grant of letters because the time during which a preferential right thereto is given to certain heirs and next of kin had not elapsed when they were issued is not available to one who does not belong to any of the classes to whom such preference is given except that of "principal creditors" to which the administrator appointed also belongs. In re Long's Estate [Wash.] 81 P. 1007.

29. A claimant who files his claim with the widow after her appointment as administratrix with the will annexed, and appeals from its classification, cannot question the validity of the court's action in canceling a clause of the will appointing her independent executrix and appointing her such administratrix. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839.

30. Petition held one for letters of administration only. Leach v. Misters [Wyo.] 79 P. 28.

31. Creditor may apply. Davenport v. Davenport [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 379.

32. See 3 C. L. 1248.

a necessary prerequisite to the right of the representative to act as such.[33] The insertion of an illegal or unauthorized provision in it does not affect the validity of the remaining portions, unless the conditions are not severable, or unless the statute expressly or by necessary implication so provides.[34]

The court may, either on his own motion,[35] or on petition of the heirs, require the administrator to furnish additional security.[36] In the absence of any words to the contrary therein, a new bond will be regarded as cumulative.[37] The amount of security to be given by an administrator pendente lite is discretionary with the court.[38] The Ohio statute requiring any administrator's or executor's bond in excess of two thousand dollars to be executed and guarantied by a surety company is unconstitutional as restricting the liberty to contract, and because it discriminates between different classes of estates.[39]

(§ 3) D. Removals and revocation of letters.[40]—Letters testamentary or of administration, will be revoked where the person appointed was, or has since become, incompetent or disqualified to act,[41] or has been guilty of misconduct or mismanagement of the estate,[42] or where the letters were obtained by a false suggestion of a

33. Where declaration, in action against city for damages for death of plaintiff's intestate, alleged plaintiff's appointment as administratrix, and that she presented the claim to the city as such, and it appeared that her bond was approved and filed not later than the date of such presentation, and defendant pleaded merely the general issue, held that her letters and evidence of the presentation of her claim were admissible as against the objections that her letters were issued before the filing of her bond, and that she was not administratrix when she presented her claim. Warn v. Flint [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 294, 104 N. W. 37. Failure of administrator to give bond renders appointment invalid and action for wrongful death brought by him nugatory. Archdeacon v. Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 45.

34. Fact that executor's bond contained waiver of right to discharge any liability except in legal tender currency, as required by Acts 1884, c. 22, pp. 24, 25, instead of waiver of any right to discharge any liability to the state with coupons detached from state bonds, as required by Code, § 177 (1 Code 1904, p. 99), held not to render it invalid as a statutory bond, but it binds obligees to extent of remaining valid provisions. Yost v. Ramey, 103 Va. 117, 48 S. E. 862. Where surety authorized his attorney in fact to execute "the bond required by the court," surety was not relieved from liability because bond contained such invalid provision. Id. Such invalid provision did not render bond void on ground that it was executed under legal duress. Id.

35. Whenever it comes to his knowledge that the bond is insufficient. Code Civ. Proc. § 1402. Elizalde v. Murphy, 146 Cal. 168, 79 P. 866. Where executors had accounted for all sums received by them and had disbursed all the assets, except the payment of a part of the legacies, the balance due on which, after applying funds admitted to be in their hands, could only be determined by an accounting, decree of orphans' court requiring bond for faithful performance of their duties held unjustified, the amount thereof being excessive even, if it was proper to require any bond. In re Woolsey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 463.

36. Code Civ. Proc. § 1397. Elizalde v. Murphy, 146 Cal. 168, 79 P. 866.

37. New bond, in view of the wording thereof and the order accepting it, held not a substitute for the original bond so as to terminate the liability of the sureties on the latter. Elizalde v. Murphy, 146 Cal. 168, 79 P. 866.

38. Not reviewable unless discretion is abused. Davenport v. Davenport [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 379.

39. Act April 20, 1904, § 97, Ohio Laws, 182, violates Const. art. 1, §§ 1, 2. State v. Robins, 71 Ohio St. 273, 73 N. E. 470.

40. See 3 C. L. 1248.

41. If the grounds of objection did not exist, or the objection was not taken by the petitioner or the person whom he represents, upon the hearing of the application for letters. Code Civ. Proc. § 2685. Foreign corporation. In re American Security & Trust Co., 45 Misc. 529, 92 N. Y. S. 974. Letters issued to a non-resident. Brother of deceased held to have become a resident. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113. Under Mont. Code Civ. Proc. § 2434, the court may revoke letters issued to one who is found to be incompetent to execute the duties of the trust by reason of his improvidence or want of understanding. In re Courtney's Estate [Mont.] 79 P. 317. Evidence held to warrant removal of executor. Id. The fact that one consents to the issuance of letters testamentary to a person not legally qualified to act does not estop him to apply for their revocation, since the defect is jurisdictional. Foreign corporations. In re American Security & Trust Co., 45 Misc. 529, 92 N. Y. S. 974.

42. The institution of a suit for partition of lands of one dying testate is in no sense a contest of the will and hence is no ground for the removal of the administrator with the will annexed. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113. Letters testamentary of foreign corporation revoked for making investments in securities not authorized by statute. In re American Security & Trust Co., 45 Misc. 529, 92 N. Y. S. 974. Action of ad-material fact, provided the result was affected thereby.[43] Letters of administration will be revoked on the subsequent discovery of a will.[44]

As a general rule when letters of administration are issued to any person other than those entitled to preference, any one of the latter may procure their revocation and his own appointment in his place.[45] So, too, letters issued to the nominee of a creditor may, on payment of all the debts by a devisee, be revoked and new letters be issued to such devisee in his stead.[46]

The fact that the petition on which letters were issued stated all the facts on information and belief merely, and failed to aver that decedent was a resident of the county or state, is no ground for revocation of the letters,[47] particularly where all the material facts necessary to authorize the issuance of letters are shown, on the hearing of the petition for revocation, to have existed.[48] The fact that the executor gave his testator unsound advice as to the management of trust property during the latter's lifetime,[49] or that he for a long time knowingly concealed the will of testator's wife, and all knowledge of the same, does not necessarily afford ground for his removal.[50] Neither should an administrator be removed merely because he has a hostile or unfriendly feeling toward persons interested in the estate, unless it is of such a character as to prevent him from managing the estate in such a manner as prudence, sound policy, and the interests of the heirs, devisees, and creditors require.[51]

The statutes of Montana provide for the suspension of the power of an executor when the judge has reason to believe that he has permanently removed from the state, and for the revocation of his letters, if, on the hearing, the court is satisfied that cause for his removal exists.[52] Since nonresidents may serve as executors in ministratrix in refusing to pay over accruing rents to committee of an incompetent, held, under the circumstances, not to be ground for her removal. In re Coiven, 94 N. Y. S. 303. Removal of administrator held justified where evidence showed that he had neither filed an inventory of the property, nor caused it to be appraised, nor given notice to creditors, and had failed to require verified vouchers for money paid out by him, had temporarily removed from the state, and did not then have a residence therein. In re Dietrich's Estate [Wash.] 81 P. 1061.

43. Code Civ. Proc. § 2685, subd. 4, § 2687, subd. 2. In re Rhoda, 93 N. Y. S. 973. False suggestion that there were no creditors not ground for revocation where only creditor was a corporation, and hence not entitled to letters. Id.

44. Existence of valid will and its probate determine conclusively that letters were improvidently granted. In re Kern's Estate [Pa.] 61 A. 573.

45. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1383, when issued to any person other than the surviving husband or wife, child, father, mother, brother or sister of the deceased. In re Aldrich's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 1011. Section deals only with classes of persons given statutory priority in their rights to letters, and refers only to cases where letters have been issued to one not claiming to be or not adjudicated to be one of the persons enumerated, and does not entitle one claiming to be decedent's widow to the revocation of letters granted on the nomination of one alleged and, after due notice and hearing, found to be decedent's widow. Id. Court has power to re-examine the facts upon which an administrator has been appointed, and to remove him if he is not entitled thereto. May remove administratrix on ground that she is not in fact the widow of the deceased and hence is not entitled to preference in the right to administer. Koury v. Castilla [N. M.] 79 P. 293. Power to remove administrators is vested in probate courts by Comp. Laws 1897, § 928. Laws 1901, c. 81, §§ 6, 8, pp. 151, 152, authorizing removals by the probate court for certain specified causes does not take away the right of removal for other causes. Id. Evidence held to show that petitioners were next of kin to decedent, and hence letters of administration issued to others revoked. In re Kelly's Estate, 95 N. Y. S. 57.

46. Adamson v. Parker [Ark.] 85 S. W. 239. The clerk of the probate court is not prejudiced by the revocation of letters while his fees remain unpaid where a new administrator is appointed. Has remedy against new administrator, and hence fact that fees are unpaid is no bar to revocation. Id.

47. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2685, In re Rhoda, 93 N. Y. S. 973.

48. In re Rhoda, 93 N. Y. S. 973.

49. Not where he is not a lawyer and it is not claimed that he acted in bad faith, or did not exercise his best skill and judgment. McGuinness v. Hughes [Mass.] 74 N. E. 317.

50. Does not follow as a matter of law that he was unsuitable, where evidence tended to show that he did not produce it because it left everything in the same manner as if there had been no will. McGuinness v. Hughes [Mass.] 74 N. E. 317.

51. Evidence held not to show grounds for removal. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113.

52. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 4622, 4623. Hecht v. Carey [Wyo.] 78 P. 705.

that state, this statute does not authorize the removal of an executor who was a nonresident when appointed merely on account of his continued nonresidence.[53] The fact that an administrator with the will annexed, appointed by a court of a state other than that of the testator's domicile, is improperly authorized to take possession of the realty and to collect the rents and profits thereof, is no ground for his removal.[54]

Creditors may petition for the revocation of letters of administration,[55] but only when they were such when the letters were issued.[56]

Administrators pendente lite are removable at the pleasure of the court appointing them.[57] So is a collector of an estate to whom letters ad colligendum have been issued.[58]

On petition for removal of the representative, a notice or citation must ordinarily be served on him.[59] In case he tenders his resignation and files his account and the heirs object thereto, he cannot thereafter, by withdrawing his resignation, withdraw the issue tendered by him as to whether his letters should be revoked, but the heirs have the right, on the hearing, to insist on the revocation of his letters for cause, without serving a notice or citation on him.[60] The burden is on one alleging grounds for removal to prove them.[61] The question of the unsuitableness of the representative is to be determined as of the date of the petition.[62] Trial by jury is not generally allowed.[63]

Testamentary trust powers conferred on an executor as such are his by virtue of his appointment, and the revocation of his appointment as executor also revokes his power to act as trustee unless the will provides to the contrary.[64] If he is specifically named as trustee by the will, the rule is otherwise.[65] The fact that an executor is removed by the court of the domicile does not, as a matter of law, require his removal as ancillary executor in another state.[66]

An appeal from the order admitting the will to probate, taken after the issuance of letters to, and the qualification of the executors named therein, operates to suspend their functions pending its determination.[67] On the issuance of letters testamentary to the executors named in the will, a temporary administrator appointed to

53. Hecht v. Carey [Wyo.] 78 P. 705. In such case the phrase "has permanently removed from the state" means a permanent withdrawal and remaining away from the state after receiving letters. Must come to the state within a reasonable time, personally submit himself to the jurisdiction of the court, and personally conduct the settlement of the estate. Id.

54. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113.

55. Code Civ. Proc. § 2685. In re Rhoda, 93 N. Y. S. 973.

56. Not when they subsequently acquire claims by assignment. In re Rhoda, 93 N. Y. S. 973.

57. Since they are officers of the court. Davenport v. Davenport [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 379.

58. Only an abuse of such discretion will be reviewed on appeal. Guthrie v. Welch, 21 App. D. C. 562. Removal of a collector appointed in a will contest because he is interested in the litigation is not an abuse of discretion. Id.

59. Pierce's Code, §§ 2329-2331, Bal. Ann. Codes & St. §§ 6081-6083. In re Dietrich's Estate [Wash.] 81 P. 1061.

60. In re Dietrich's Estate [Wash.] 81 P. 1061.

61. Evidence held not to show that administrator willfully or negligently delayed the settlement of the estate. In re Sylvar's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 663.

62. McGuinness v. Hughes [Mass.] 74 N. E. 317.

63. A proceeding under Rev. St. 1899, § 42, providing for the removal of administrators is a statutory proceeding, equitable in its nature, the matter resting primarily in the discretion of the probate court, and hence is not within Const. art. 2, § 28, guarantying the right to trial by jury "as heretofore enjoyed." No jury may be demanded either in probate court or on appeal to circuit court. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113.

64, 65. Mullanny v. Nangle, 212 Ill. 247, 72 N. E. 385, afg. 113 Ill. App. 457.

66. Ancillary administration is independent, and not affected by orders of foreign court. American Missionary Ass'n v. Hall [Mich.] 101 N. W. 535.

67. In re Choate's Will, 94 N. Y. S. 176. In such case it is proper for the surrogate to grant them limited powers necessary for the preservation of the estate until the appeal is determined. Code Civ. Proc. § 2582. Id.

preserve the estate pending the probate of the will becomes functus officio.[68] The repeal of a statute authorizing the appointment of an agent to take charge of lands belonging to an estate puts an end to the authority of such an agent.[69]

Resignations.—A county administrator on resigning his office does not thereby cease to be administrator of any estate of which he has been legally appointed as administrator, but remains as such until he has been removed, or his resignation has been accepted as to such estate.[70]

In Louisiana, an administrator may not resign after he has begun his administration [71] and he may be superseded only when some cause exists which disables him to perform his trust.[72] Press of private business is not such a cause [73] nor is illness not shown to be disabling, permanent, or protracted.

§ 4. The authority, title, interest, and relationship of personal representatives. A. In general.[74]—The administrative authority cannot be exercised to the full even in the case of an executor until letters issue,[75] but after probate, his power continues pending contests.[76] Letters to an executor relate back and validate his acts; [77] but it has been held that the authority of an administrator does not relate back in the matter of a claim for wrongful death, but begins with his appointment.[78] Where duties other than the mere settlement of the estate are imposed upon an executor by the terms of the will appointing him, he becomes a trustee.[79] A judgment for or against one in his representative capacity is not conclusive on him in a subsequent action in which he appears personally, and vice versa.[80] An ancillary administrator in one jurisdiction is not in privity with an ancillary administrator of the same

68. On appeal from the order admitting the will being taken after the qualification of the executors, it is not necessary that the care of the estate pending the appeal be again confided to him, but a new appointment is necessary. In re Choate's Will, 94 N. Y. S. 176.

69. Rev. St. 1889, § 257, authorizing the probate court to appoint an agent to take charge of lands belonging to estates, was repealed by Laws 1899, p. 41 (Act May 11, 1899), and hence an agent previously appointed had no authority, after such repeal, to sue for rent of lands of decedent leased by him. His office ceased on such repeal. Wendleton v. Kingery, 110 Mo. App. 67, 84 S. W. 102.

70. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388.

71, 72, 73. Succession of Broadway [La.] 38 So. 430.

74. See 3 C. L. 1249.

75. An executor cannot act as such until after the will has been properly probated and letters of administration have been issued to him. Mere taking of affidavits of subscribing witnesses by deputy register of wills does not constitute probate, and executrix named in will did not defend subsequent caveat in her official capacity so as to be entitled to attorney's fees from the estate. Tilingham v. France, 99 Md. 611, 59 A. 277.

76. In a will contest plaintiff cannot by any process that can be issued to enforce the judgment, obtain possession of the property, regardless of the right of the executor to duly and legally administer the estate. Burgess v. Sullivant, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 327. Executor cannot be interfered with by the appointment of a receiver in a suit to contest a will. Id.

77. Nance v. Gray [Ala.] 38 So. 916.

Note: Accords and satisfactions by persons assuming to represent an estate are held binding on them when they later receive letters. Rattoon v. Overacker, 8 Johns. [N. Y.] 126; Priest v. Watkins, 2 Hill [N. Y.] 225, 38 Am. Dec. 584; Vroom v. Van Horne, 10 Paige [N. Y.] 549, 42 Am. Dec. 94; Beck v. Snyder, 167 Pa. 234. The rule has been held inapplicable to a claim under the statutes respecting death by wrongful act, such rights of action not being general assets of the estate. Stuber v. McEntee, 142 N. Y. 200.—From note to Harrison v. Henderson [Kan.] 100 Am. St. Rep. 405.

78. Archdeacon v. Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 45. Where appointment is not completed until after action has been brought, and two years have elapsed since the accident occurred, the action cannot be maintained and the cause is abated. Id.

79. Nangle v. Mullanny, 113 Ill. App. 457. Where the will does not recognize any distinction between the offices of executors and trustees, but devises realty in trust to the executors, the trust vests in them as executors, and attaches to that office, and they accept such trust by accepting and qualifying as executors. Rowe v. Rowe, 92 N. Y. S. 491. An executor authorized to sell or release realty at discretion is vested with the fee in trust for the beneficiaries. Olcott v. Tope, 213 Ill. 124, 72 N. E. 751. See, also, Trusts, 4 C. L. 1727; Wills, 4 C. L. 1863.

80. Decree in partition suit dividing rents of which deceased was entitled to a part, to which suit representative was not a party, was not res judicata of his right to recover same, on his subsequent appointment as administrator, though he represented his wife in the partition suit, and had full knowledge of the terms of the decree. Perkins v. Goddin [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 936.

estate in another so as to render a judgment against one of them a bar to an action against the other on the same cause of action.[81]

It is for the court and not the jury to determine the powers of a representative.[82]

Though in the ordinary acts of administration of an estate, the act of one executor is the act of all, and is binding upon the estate, where several have qualified the joint act of all of them is necessary to execute a special trust created by the will.[82a]

It is the duty of a special administrator to preserve the estate merely.[83] The administrator de bonis non has the same powers possessed by the original administrator, and is governed by the laws for the settlement of decedents' estates.[84] His authority, however, is limited to the administration of such assets as have not been converted into money and not distributed and delivered or retained by the executor or former administrator, under the direction of the orphans' court.[85] Moneys received by the executor or former administrator and mingled with his own, or other assets sold, wasted, misapplied, or converted to his own use, are regarded as already administered within the meaning of this rule, and hence the administrator de bonis non acquires no title thereto, and cannot sue anyone for their recovery.[86] Thus he cannot in such case sue on his predecessor's bond, but the remedy is for the beneficiaries to apply to a court of equity for the appointment of a trustee for that purpose.[87]

The public administrator is generally a county officer, and acts by virtue of his office and not merely by virtue of the letters issued to him on particular estates.[88] When duly appointed administrator of any estate he occupies the same position as to duties and liabilities as any other administrator.[89]

Acts merely ministerial may be delegated; hence it is proper to employ another to conduct a sale in the representative's presence.[90]

(§ 4) B. Contracts, conveyances, charges and investments.[91] Contracts.—The executor or administrator personally, and not the estate, is liable on his contracts for the benefit of the estate,[92] and persons performing services thereunder are generally

81. Ingersoll v. Coram, 127 F. 418.

82. Held duty of court to determine powers of executor and temporary administrator to carry on business belonging to decedent, and not error to refuse to submit the question of their authority to the jury. Altgelt v. Oliver Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 28.

82a. Hosch Lumber Co. v. Weeks [Ga.] 51 S. E. 439. Heirs will not be held to have acquiesced in the unauthorized act of one of several co-executors in executing a deed requiring the signature of all, where there is no evidence that actual notice of its execution was ever brought home to them, and deed was not recorded until after execution and record of a later deed by an administrator de bonis non of the estate. Id.

83. In re Bell's Estate, 145 Cal. 646, 79 P. 358. An administrator pro tem appointed in a contest of a claim represents the entire estate and is bound to follow an appeal if another appointment is not made as authorized by administration act, section 72. Mayer v. Schneider, 112 Ill. App. 628.

84. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2395. As to payment of taxes. Cullop v. Vincennes, 34 Ind. App. 667, 72 N. E. 166.

85. Code Pub. Gen. Laws 1899, art. 93, §§ 70, 72, construed. State v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. [Md.] 59 A. 735.

86. Cannot sue for a devastavit by his predecessor in office. State v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. [Md.] 59 A. 735.

87. State v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. [Md.] 59 A. 735.

88. Is a county officer under Pol. Code, § 4103, and St. 1897, p. 492, c. 277, and acts by virtue of his office when acting under Code Civ. Proc. § 1726, subd. 4, requiring him to take charge of the estates upon which letters of administration have been issued to him by the court. Los Angeles County v. Kellogg, 146 Cal. 590, 80 P. 861.

89. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388.

90. Does not delegate power of sale. Landry v. Lapios, 113 La. 697, 37 So. 606.

91. See 3 C. L. 1251.

92. Judgment, in action on executor's contract for drilling well on land belonging to decedent, directing that the amount found to be due be paid out of the funds of the estate, held erroneous. Renwick v. Garland [Cal. App.] 82 P. 89. Debt is his own and he is personally liable to the party employed, and hence his promise to pay balance of an attorney's claim provided the latter will release his lien on funds of the estate in his hands is not a promise to pay the debt of another within the statute of frauds. Burleigh v. Palmer [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1068. In the absence of a provision therein to the contrary, is liable thereon in his personal required to look to him alone for their compensation,[93] though disbursements by reason thereof, when reasonable in amount and for necessary purposes, will constitute a charge against the estate in favor of the representative.[94] An attorney is not, however, deprived of his lien for compensation for professional services and for disbursements upon moneys received by him on his client's behalf in the course of his employment, by reason of the fact that the client is an executor, and that the services were rendered and the money received on behalf of the estate.[95] Agreements by the representative to pay his attorney a certain part of the amount recovered by him have been held to be valid.[96]

Since an administrator is not an agent of his intestate, but derives his authority solely from the statute, and is, with respect thereto, a public officer,[97] he is not personally liable on his official contracts, though in excess of his powers, provided he acts in good faith, and the persons with whom he contracts have equal means of knowing the extent of his authority, or the latter depends upon a public statute.[98] Executors making a contract in their official capacity have at least a prima facie right to enforce it.[99] One cannot be sued as executor on a contract made by him personally.[1] capacity to the same extent as though they were to be rendered for his personal benefit. Reynolds-McGinness Co. v. Green [Vt.] 61 A. 556. Is not relieved from personal liability on a contract to pay a commission to brokers for selling realty belonging to the estate because, at the time when he made it, he did not have a license from the probate court to make the sale. Particularly where the parties interested in the estate had authorized the sale, there was nothing to prevent his securing such a license, and he actually did secure one before the broker procured a customer. Id. Such a promise is an original one, and so not within the statute of frauds (V. S. 1224), requiring special promises of an executor or administrator to answer damages out of his own estate to be in writing. Id.

93. An attorney cannot maintain a suit in the probate court against the estate for legal services rendered by him to the estate under a contract with the executor. Parker v. Mayo [Ark.] 83 S. W. 324. Not a charge against the estate until it has been allowed in his account as executor. Plaintiff as executor procured the probate of decedent's will, but the probate was thereafter annulled and he was then appointed administrator. On settlement of his account as administrator the surrogate disallowed an amount paid by him for attorney's fees in the probate proceedings, and he appealed. Pending the appeal the estate was distributed by final order, but under an agreement with the distributees sufficient securities were retained to pay the claim if the court should so order. Court affirmed surrogate's decree on ground that claim must be credited to him in his account as executor and not as administrator, and that he might apply for the opening of the executor's account. Held that, on plaintiff's failure to secure the opening of his account as executor because of final distribution, he had no right of action against the distributees for contribution. Blair v. Blair, 97 App. Div. 507, 90 N. Y. S. 190. There is no relation between the administrator's attorney and the estate. In re Sullivan's Estate, 36 Wash. 217, 78 P. 945.

94. See § 9D, post.

95. Burleigh v. Palmer [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1068.

96. Agreement to pay attorney half the proceeds of realty recovered by him for the estate is valid and enforceable against the estate. In re Shoenberger's Estate, 211 Pa. 99, 60 A. 502. Where decedent left valuable papers, relative to French spolation claims, and under a contract between his administrator and an attorney the administrator was to receive 25 per cent. of the fees realized after deducting certain expenses, including office rent, a charge against such contract of four-fifths of the rent of a certain office used almost exclusively in the prosecution of such claims was not unreasonable. Wagaman v. Earle, 25 App. D. C. 582. Allowance of clerk hire held not unreasonable. Id. But a claim for lobbying services should not be allowed. Id.

97. Henry v. Henry [Neb.] 103 N. W. 441.

98. Persons contracting with him are supposed to know the extent and limitation of his powers. Henry v. Henry [Neb.] 103 N. W. 441. Mortgages on realty executed by widow as administratrix, which are void because executed without authority of law, are not liens on her dower or homestead interests. Id. Same result is reached even if she is regarded as the agent of the estate, since her interests are separate and distinct from those of the estate, and hence a mortgage on the latter cannot create a lien on the former; that is, one who without authority executes a mortgage on the land of another, though he thereby renders himself liable for damages, does not create a lien on his own land. Id.

99. Contract for the purchase of land. Complaint in action to declare a forfeiture held not demurrable for failure to show by what court, if any, plaintiffs were appointed executors. Stein v. Waddell, 37 Wash. 634, 80 P. 184.

1. Chambers v. Greenwald, 94 N. Y. S. 504.

In the absence of express authority in the will, the executors have no power to carry on testator's business.[2] By statute in some states an independent executor may do so.[3]

In the absence of a statute, a direction in the will, or an agreement between the partners to the contrary, the executor of a deceased partner has no authority to continue the partnership business.[4]

Investments.[5]—The representative in making investments should employ such diligence and prudence as, in general, prudent men of discretion and intelligence in such matters employ in their own like affairs.[6] Investments beyond the jurisdiction of the court are not necessarily illegal, but should not be sustained except under exceptional circumstances.[7] Statutes in some states provide in what securities the funds of the estate may be invested.[8] Where the security taken is unauthorized, the representative must convert it into cash at his own charges, and make good any deficiency;[9] but this is not necessarily the case where security, though authorized, is insufficient.[10] An administrator with the will annexed cannot justify the investment of trust funds in a manner not within the authority of trustees on the ground that the trustees appointed by the will were given discretionary power to make them, such discretion being purely personal.[11]

Conveyances.[12]—The deed of a commissioner who, acting as such, sells land belonging to decedent, is evidence of the facts therein recited.[13]

One whose interest in property depends upon the terms of a will does not, by a deed from the executor purporting to be executed pursuant to the requirements of the will, but which the executor is not required to execute either by the will or the law, acquire any greater interest than would pass under the will;[14] nor can such

2. In re Corbin, 101 App. Div. 25, 91 N. Y. S. 797.

3. Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 1894. Altgelt v. Oliver Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 28. The estate is liable for the salary of an agent employed by an independent executor carrying on a business belonging to the estate under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 1894, whose employment was continued by a temporary administrator, expressly authorized by order of court to continue the business, and by the permanent administrator. Altgelt v. Oliver Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 28. In action against administrator for indebtedness incurred and services rendered by plaintiffs as purchasing agents of the estate while it was engaged in a mercantile business, allegations held sufficient to charge estate with indebtedness incurred in carrying on its business. Id.

4. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 1867, providing that the rights, powers, and duties of representatives shall be governed by the principles of common law where the same do not conflict with any provisions of the statute. Altgelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank [Tex.] 83 S. W. 6. Cannot interfere with right of surviving partner to close up business, nor can survivor consent to his participation in the business. Id. Rev. St. 1895, art. 1984, providing that the representative may carry on decedent's business in certain cases, applies only to his individual business and does not repeal Id., art. 1867, or change the rule above stated. See, also, Partnership, 4 C. L. 908.

5. See 3 C. L. 1254.

6. Loans on realty should be such as a reasonable and prudent investor, dealing with his own funds under like circumstances, would require. P. L. 1902, p. 700, c. 240. Macy v. Mercantile Trust Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 586.

7. Investment in mortgages on realty outside of the state held not breach of trust under the circumstances. Macy v. Mercantile Trust Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 586. Investments in mortgages on property outside of state held improper. In re American Security & Trust Co., 45 Misc. 529, 92 N. Y. S. 974.

8. Under Laws 1902, c. 295, p. 1253, value of the property on which loans are taken must be 50 per cent. more than the amount of the loan. In re American Security & Trust Co., 45 Misc. 529, 92 N. Y. S. 974.

9. Macy v. Mercantile Trust Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 586.

10. Where trustee entitled to receive the fund claims that securities are insufficient, court should investigate question before directing them to be turned over to him. Macy v. Mercantile Trust Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 586.

11. Plaintiff held not to have ratified investments. Jewett v. Schmidt, 45 Misc. 471, 92 N. Y. S. 737.

12. See 3 C. L. 1253.

13. Though he styles himself receiver and commissioner, and receiver's deed is not evidence of facts so recited, is evidence of fact that sale was ordered by decree of circuit court. Kelley v. Laconia Levee Dist. [Ark.] 85 S. W. 249.

14. Will itself a muniment of title, and deed was merely a recognition by the executor of whatever interest the grantee took under the will. Sanders v. Thompson [Ga.] 50 S. E. 976.

deed be used as color to lay the foundation of a prescriptive title against the claims of those whom the grantee was bound to recognize as the owners under the terms of the will.[15]

Where an administrator's deed recites the authority given by the ordinary of the county to sell certain land with the exception of all the granite thereon, but in the granting clause fails to refer to the granite, it will be presumed that the administrator did not undertake to exceed his authority, and that there was no intention to pass title to the granite.[16]

(§ 4) C. Title, interest, or right in decedent's property.[17]—The administrator cannot exercise any right which was personal to the decedent.[18] The legal title to personalty goes to the executor or administrator,[19] and the legatees or distributees cannot take title thereto except through him.[20] He holds the same in trust, however, for the creditors and distributees, and is accountable to the court appointing him after the manner of trustees generally.[21]

An executor named in a valid will has a right to the custody of the title papers belonging to his testator, but has no right to refuse to allow the parties in interest to see and examine them.[22]

By statute in Georgia, no devise or legacy passes title until the executor assents thereto;[23] such assent perfects the inchoate title of the devisee.[24] When once given it is irrevocable,[25] and the property cannot thereafter be recovered by the executor or his successor,[26] even for the purpose of selling the same to pay debts.[27] Assent may 15. Sanders v. Thompson [Ga.] 50 S. E. 976.

16. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 666. The exception in the habendum clause is not void for repugnancy, since the whole instrument, when construed together, clearly shows the intention of the parties to make the exception. Id.

17. See 3 C. L. 1254.

18. Order in bankbook for payment of deposit to depositor's husband held personal to him and not to authorize payment to his administrator. Cole v. Bates, 186 Mass. 584, 72 N. E. 333.

19. See, also, Descent and Distribution, 5 C. L. 995. Huyler v. Dolson, 101 App. Div. 83, 91 N. Y. S. 794; Carpenter v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 123 Wis. 209, 101 N. W. 404; Stehn v. Hayssen [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1074. Unless the probate court, by order, dispenses with administration under Rev. St. 1899, § 2. Perkins v. Goddin [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 936. On setting aside a conveyance by complainant of his interest in his deceased wife's realty, in which he also transferred his interest in her personalty to the same persons, held error to require her administrator to surrender her personalty, of which he had taken possession prior to the commencement of the suit, since he was required to account for the personalty only in the course of administration. Irwin v. Sample, 213 Ill. 160, 72 N. E. 687. The legal title of a promissory note bequeathed to a particular individual. Jaques v. Ballard, 111 Ill. App. 567. Title to timber severed from realty before owner's death goes to executor, and purchaser from him acquires good title. Instructions held misleading. Curry v. Lanning, 94 N. Y. S. 535. Title vests in the administrators and not in distributees, and in a controversy between them over its title or possession the former must prevail. Burnes v. Burnes [C. C. A.] 137 F. 781.

20. Stehn v. Hayssen [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1074. Under Utah Rev. St. 1898, § 2810, in a specific devise or legacy, the title passes by will, but possession may only be obtained from the personal representative, and he may be ordered to sell the property devised or bequeathed in certain cases. Williamson v. Beardsley [C. C. A.] 137 F. 467. An executor to whom a promissory note payable to the order of his testator has been bequeathed and which was not indorsed by the testator nor by the executor as such prior to his final discharge cannot be sued thereon by such executor as an individual. Jaques v. Ballard, 111 Ill. App. 567. Under Probate Code, §§ 147, 242, making it the duty of the representative to take possession of all the property, the heir of the deceased indorsee of a note cannot sue thereon without proof by the probate records that all the debts of the decedent had been paid and that he became the owner by an order of distribution made by such court. Mears v. Smith [S. D.] 102 N. W. 295. In case the indorsee died in a foreign state, probate proceedings therein can be shown only by an attested copy thereof, and not by parol. Code Civ. Proc. § 529. Id.

21. Huyler v. Dolson, 101 App. Div. 83, 91 N. Y. S. 794; Carpenter v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 123 Wis. 209, 101 N. W. 404.

22. Neece v. Neece [Va.] 51 S. E. 739.

23. Civ. Code 1895, §§ 3319, 3320. Phillips v. Smith, 119 Ga. 556, 46 S. E. 640. Assent perfects inchoate title of devisee. Watkins v. Gilmore, 121 Ga. 488, 49 S. E. 598.

24, 25. Watkins v. Gilmore, 121 Ga. 488, 49 S. E. 598.

26. Administrator with the will annexed cannot recover devised land in ejectment. Phillips v. Smith, 119 Ga. 556, 46 S. E. 640.

27. Even though assets are insufficient.

be presumed from lapse of time,[28] the burden being on the party denying it to overcome the presumption.[29] Assent to a devise to the life tenant inures to the benefit of the remainderman, and, at the termination of the life estate, the latter may take immediate possession, unless the will shows a different intention.[30]

§ 5. The property; its collection, management, and disposal by personal representatives. A. Assets.[31]—Ordinarily realty passes to the heirs or devisees, subject only to the right of the probate court to order a sale thereof for the purposes fixed by statute, and the representative has no interest therein,[32] and is not entitled to the rents and profits thereof accruing after decedent's death.[33] By statute in some states, however, the representative is entitled to the possession of the realty and to the rents and profits thereof until the estate is settled and delivered by order of the court to the heirs or devisees.[34] In others where there is no heir or devisee present and competent to take possession of the realty, the administrator may do so, and demand and receive all rents and profits for the benefit of the persons entitled thereto.[35] The law of the place where realty is situated governs in respect to the rights of the parties and the modes of its transfer and distribution.[36] An administrator, being

Watkins v. Gilmore, 121 Ga. 488, 49 S. E. 598.

28. After lapse of 30 years. Phillips v. Smith, 119 Ga. 556, 46 S. E. 640.

29. Burden held not sustained. Phillips v. Smith, 119 Ga. 556, 46 S. E. 640.

30. Civ. Code 1895, § 3105. If will provides for sale or other act to be done for the purpose of, or prior to, a division, the executor may recover possession for the purpose of division. Watkins v. Gilmore, 121 Ga. 488, 49 S. E. 598. Fact that division is necessary on the death of the life tenant does not authorize executor to recover possession, where will does not provide that such division shall be made by the executor, but merely that the remaindermen shall take in equal shares. They become tenants in common and as such may have a division under Code 1895, § 4786, without any interference from the executor. Id.

31. See 3 C. L. 1255.

32. See, also, Descent and Distribution, 5 C. L. 995. Doris v. Story [Ga.] 50 S. E. 348; Rich Grove Tp. v. Emmett, 163 Ind. 560, 72 N. E. 543; Smith v. Courtnay's Ex'rs [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1101. Administrator cannot sue to quiet title or appeal from a decree in such a suit. Strong v. Peters, 212 Ill. 282, 72 N. E. 369. In proceedings to charge realty with cost of constructing ditch, where one of defendants died after judgment, his heirs and not his administrator should have been made co-appellants. Rich Grove Tp. v. Emmett, 163 Ind. 560, 72 N. E. 543. Forms no part of the estate in the hands of the administrator for distribution. Has nothing to do with it except in so far as it may be subjected to his control under the provisions of law authorizing its subjection to the payment of debts. Stark v. Kirchgraber, 186 Mo. 633, 85 S. W. 868. Where the same parties are named as executors and trustees they take and hold the personalty until the debts and legacies not included in the trust are paid, and balance then goes to them as trustees, but they take title to the realty as trustees under a devise to them in fee in that capacity. Herron v. Comstock [C. C. A.] 139 F. 370.

33. Broadwell v. Banks, 134 F. 470. Executrix has no interest in rent. Hollahan v. Sowers, 111 Ill. App. 263. Where purchaser of realty sold to pay mortgage and other debts took possession before the expiration of the time for redemption from the mortgage sale, he is liable for rents to the deceased owner's spouse and heirs at law and not to the estate. Costigan v. Truesdell, 26 Ky. L. R. 971, 83 S. W. 98. Proceeds of cotton raised on the homestead after the owner's death are not assets. Where a part of the purchase price of the homestead secured by vendor's lien notes was unpaid at vendee's death, his administrator, who was also the holder of the notes, had no right to treat proceeds of cotton, turned over to him by widow, as assets, but was bound to apply it on the notes, and, as against a donee of the notes after maturity, the widow was entitled to a credit on the notes of the amount realized. McCord v. Hames [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 504. Evidence held not to show that widow consented to use of proceeds of cotton as assets of estate. Id.

34. Under Bal. Ann. Codes & St. §§ 6200, 6201, 6296, 6309, the executor or administrator is entitled to the possession of the realty. Noble v. Whitten [Wash.] 80 P. 451. Where the statute authorizes an administrator to take charge of all of the realty of the deceased, it is his duty to take charge of realty belonging to the estate under a resulting trust, and hence items of his account relating to expenses incurred in its management and rents received therefrom should have been allowed. Lufkin v. Jakeman [Mass.] 74 N. E. 933. Under the Mississippi law rents accruing during the year of testator's death and crops remaining in whatever stage or condition on the lands at the time of his death are assets. Baled cotton. Gordon v. James [Miss.] 39 So. 18.

35. Code § 3333. Nonresident heirs held not parties to proceeding by administrator to recover rent notes and lease alleged to belong to estate, notwithstanding this section, where order of probate court directed administrator to treat notes as part of the estate, but did not refer to the interest of such nonresident. Milburn v. East [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1116.

36. As to whether chattel interests go to legally entitled to the possession of the lands of the estate when they are needed for the payment of debts, may, when the complaint shows that they are so needed, bring ejectment for their recovery without joining the heirs, provided that no affirmative relief is asked against the heirs and no relief which will affect their title.[37] In states where the administrator is entitled to the possession of the realty, the heirs may maintain an action for its recovery if there is no administrator, or, if there is one, provided he consents to their doing so.[38] A temporary administrator, as such, has no title or interest in the land of his intestate, and cannot maintain an action for its recovery, nor is his consent necessary to enable the heirs to do so.[39]

It must, of course, appear that decedent actually had title to the property at the time of his death.[40] The fact that the representative deals with property as assets is not conclusive upon the question whether or not it is such,[41] nor is an application for leave to sell land by an administrator evidence of possession or title in his intestate.[42]

Property deeded to the estate,[43] a contract of the grantee to pay the debts of the estate in consideration of the heirs conveying to him a portion of the lands of the deceased,[44] rents of realty accruing during decedent's lifetime,[45] and the right to redeem from a pledge, where no time for redemption is fixed by the contract, and the executor or administrator. Broadwell v. Banks, 134 F. 470.

37. Under Sand. & H. Dig. § 2573, providing that ejectment may be maintained in all cases where plaintiff is legally entitled to the possession of the premises. Cook v. Franklin [Ark.] 83 S. W. 325.

38. Doris v. Story [Ga.] 50 S. E. 348.

39. In suit by heirs to recover realty in possession of another, naming him as a coplaintiff amounts to a misjoinder, and the other plaintiffs may have his name stricken on motion. Doris v. Story [Ga.] 50 S. E. 348.

40. See, also, Gifts, 3 C. L. 1560; Trusts, 4 C. L. 1727. Where written contract for sale of personalty, to be paid for in instalments, provides for retention of title in the vendor and that, on failure to pay any instalment, he may take possession of the property without any legal process and apply all previous payments as rent and for depreciation, and the vendee defaults and dies, the vendor is not guilty of trespass if he seizes and removes the property while in the hands of the vendee's administrator. Administrator has no more title than the vendee. Wilmerding v. Rhodes-Haverty Furniture Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 100. Money on deposit in the wife's name at the time of her death presumably belongs to her and the burden is on the husband, or, in case of his death, on his representative, to show that it belongs to him. Where husband took out letters of administration and died within year, and executors filed his account as administrator, including such deposit in assets, but at the audit claimed that it belonged to the husband, evidence held to sustain finding that it belonged to wife. In re Crosetti's Estate, 211 Pa. 490, 60 A. 1081. Evidence held sufficient to show that stock belonged to the estate, though issued in the name of decedent's son, particularly where son transferred it to estate with knowledge that executors intended to sell it, and made no claim for it or its proceeds, until the executors' accounts were audited. In Moore's Estate, 211 Pa. 338, 60 A. 987. Finding that stock of corporation had been sold to decedent by bankrupt, whose trustee claimed it, held sustained by the evidence. In re Esten's Estate, 211 Pa. 215, 60 A. 733. In the absence of allegations or proof of insolvency of the donor's estate, his administrator is not entitled to a savings bank deposit standing in decedent's name which the latter had transferred during his lifetime by a valid gift. Hill v. Escort [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 367.

41. Cannot deprive next of kin of their interest by any act of his. In re Warren, 94 N. Y. S. 286. Fact that he receipts for funds in his official capacity conclusive evidence that he was dealing with them as belonging to the estate. Fact that he so indorsed certificates of deposit and receipted for a savings bank deposit because the banks required him to do so for their own protection, held not to render him responsible for the money received, where the evidence showed that they were the subjects of a gift causa mortis. Reed v. Whipple [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 77, 103 N. W. 548.

42. Application of former administrator inadmissible in action of ejectment between administrator of an intestate and one not privy in estate. Luttrell v. Whitehead, 121 Ga. 699, 49 S. E. 691.

43. A deed to "the estate of E., deceased, his heirs and assigns," makes the land assets of E.'s estate. McKee v. Ellis [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 880. Such deed is not void for want of a grantee, but conveys title to those entitled to take the estate. Id.

44. Stewart v. Rogers [Kan.] 80 P. 58.

45. Broadwell v. Banks, 134 F. 470. The court, in a partition suit to which the estate is not a party, has no jurisdiction to divide rents accruing before decedent's death, even though the heirs consent thereto, and the fact that it decrees their division does not preclude the administrator from recovering them for the purpose of paying the debts. Creditors have first right in the estate, and administrator represents them. Perkins v. Goddin [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 936.

creditor has not in the meantime called upon him to redeem,[46] have been held to be assets of the estate.

Where the grantor in a security deed dies after its execution, in exercising the power of sale therein the property should be sold as that of his estate.[47]

The proceeds of insurance policies payable to the estate are assets,[48] but the proceeds of those payable to the widow and children as individuals are not.[49] At common law an estate for years in land is personalty, and goes to the representative;[50] but this rule has been changed by statute in some states.[51] One with whom decedent, during his lifetime, deposited money or property with directions to use it for a specific purpose, is not liable to the decedent's representative as for assets in his hands, provided he has complied with such directions, even though he did not do so until after decedent's death.[52]

A note evidencing an advancement by an ancestor to an heir is not a part of the estate of the ancestor, but the heir must account to the estate.[53] The administrator should, however, inventory a note against a son of the decedent, where the will directs that, if the note is not paid at the death of the testator, the amount thereof shall be charged against the son and taken out of his distributive share.[54]

Since the legal title and the right to possession of personalty is in the representative,[55] suits for its recovery must ordinarily be brought by him;[56] but this rule does not apply where there is no administration and no necessity therefor.[57]

46. White River Sav. Bank v. Capital Sav. Bank & Trust Co. [Vt.] 59 A. 197.

47. Greenfield v. Stout [Ga.] 50 S. E. 111.

48. Where death benefits accruing to decedent from a beneficial association are payable to his estate, his administrator and not a minor son for whose support he was partially liable, is entitled to it. Compton's Estate, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 28. Widow, as administratrix of deceased husband, took out policy of fire insurance on a house which it was supposed belonged to him under the will of his first wife. Later it was held that the latter will was invalid and that the husband had no interest in the property. Held that the proceeds of policy belonged to the estate and passed as intestate property, and did not go to the widow under her husband's will. Bloom v. Strauss [Ark.] 84 S. W. 511.

49. Widow not bound to account therefor in her capacity as administratrix. Bramlett v. Mathis [S. C.] 50 S. E. 644.

50. Though for a longer period than the tenant's life. Broadwell v. Banks, 134 F. 470.

51. Under Swan's St. Ohio 1841, p. 289, § 1, personal leasehold estates, renewable forever, descend in the same manner as realty. Broadwell v. Banks, 134 F. 470. Lessor may pursue estate of deceased lessee for recovery of accruing rentals so long as there can be found assets of the estate subject thereto. Id.

52. Doctrine held not to apply where conditions of trust were not performed. Pierce v. Woodbury [Me.] 60 A. 424.

53. Tobias v. Richardson, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 74.

54. Bullock v. Bullock, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 190.

55. See § 4C, ante; also Descent and Distribution, 5 C. L. 995.

56. To recover part of crop due decedent as rental for lands owned by him and others in common. Perkins v. Goddin [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 936. Right to recover on chose in action payable to decedent. Harrell v. Harrell [Ga.] 51 S. E. 283. Including right to recover decedent's interest in partnership of which he was a member. Stehn v. Hayssen [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1074. Where the complaint, in an action by an administrator of a deceased partner for an accounting did not suggest that the parties in interest, some of whom were minors without guardians, had settled the estate without administration, held that it was not demurrable as raising a presumption that such settlement must have taken place. Id. Where a beneficiary was appointed administrator with the will annexed shortly after reaching his majority, held that the complaint, in an action by him to compel an accounting by the surviving partner and the representatives of a deceased partner in a firm of which his testator was a member, which expressly alleged that all of the beneficiaries under the will were ignorant of their rights thereunder was not demurrable as showing laches on its face. Id. Where testator bequeathed his interest in partnership to his wife for life with remainder to his children, she was not a necessary party to a suit by his representative for an accounting of his interest in the firm, though she participated in carrying on the business after his death. Id. The order of the county court appointing plaintiff temporary administratrix with power to bring the suit, and an order continuing her administration held to authorize the institution and prosecution by her of a suit to recover personalty alleged to have belonged to decedent. Young v. Meredith [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 32.

57. Not where the widow of one dying intestate and without lineal descendants takes possession of his property under a statute authorizing her to do so without administration on payment of his debts (Harrell v. Harrell [Ga.] 51 S. E. 283), but she cannot

It is only under special circumstances that distributee may maintain a suit against the personal representative and another who is a debtor of the estate.[58]

It is not incumbent on an administrator suing to recover rents belonging to the estate to prove that decedent left debts unpaid and that creditors are interested in the estate.[59]

Assets of the estate cannot be said to be in custody of the law where distrained for rent long after the final account of the executor has been confirmed.[60]

(§ 5) B. Collection and reduction to possession.[61]—The administrator is the agent of the creditors in marshaling the assets and accumulating funds for the payment of their claims, and is also the representative of the estate,[62] and may maintain an action on a contract made by the creditors for the benefit of the estate.[63] In Louisiana, it is his duty to recover the assets and reduce them to cash if the succession owes debts, unless the heirs pay such debts.[64] He may in that state sue a purchaser of land for the price or may recover the land pursuant to the contract in the event of nonpayment[65] and for that purpose the right is indivisible so that the assent or objection of heirs is immaterial.[66]

Statutes in some states provide for a proceeding by the representative in the probate court to recover money or other personal property belonging to the decedent, to the possession of which the representative claims to be entitled.[67] In the absence sue in such case until she has actually paid all his debts (Jackson v. Green [Ga.] 51 S. E. 284). Nonsuit properly granted in action by widow on open account for salary due decedent, where it appeared from her evidence that she had paid some of his debts before bringing the suit and some afterwards. Her status when suit is brought governs. Id. A specific legatee of a chose in action may sue when there are no debts and no administration (Patton v. Pinkston [Miss.] 38 So. 500), and the possibility that funeral expenses and administration costs are unpaid is no defense (Id.). The fact that a distributee is a defendant in such an action is no obstacle in equity. Id.

58. Held allowable to do so in suit against representative and two others, all of whom were debtors, the object of which was to have a further settlement of the accounts of the representative, to require debtor defendants to account for what they owed the estate, and for a distribution thereof between those entitled, where all defendants were necessary parties to a suit for settlement and distribution, and bill in effect charges collusion between the representatives and the other defendants, shows confidential relations between them and deceased, and that representative did not charge himself with his indebtedness or attempt to collect that of the other defendants. Reager's Adm'r v. Chappelear [Va.] 51 S. E. 170. Allegation that representative had been requested to sue other debtors and had refused to do so held not necessary under the circumstances. Id. In action by a distributee against administrator and debtor of estate where petition alleged that a third person had borrowed money from the decedent and repaid it to the administrator, there could be no recovery on proof that the money was repaid to the decedent through the medium of the debtor. Id.

59. Where court in partition suit divided realty and also certain rents accruing before decedent's death among the heirs, held that it could not be presumed in support of the decree, and as against the administrator of a deceased tenant in common, suing to recover decedent's share of the rents, that deceased left no debts and hence that administration on her estate was unnecessary. Perkins v. Goddin [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 936.

60. Where furniture had been bequeathed to a child who after the death of the decedent lived in the house with an aunt who was to pay the rent from income derived from the shares of the children. The rent for which furniture was distrained accrued more than a year after decedent's death. Fidelity Trust Co. v. Cook, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 142.

61. See 3 C. L. 1258.

62. Stewart v. Rogers [Kan.] 80 P. 58.

63. On contract between two creditors of the estate, made after the death of the deceased, whereby one of them agrees to pay all the debts and expenses of administration in consideration of the other satisfying a judgment against the estate, and of the heirs agreeing to convey certain tracts of land to each of them, after the same has been ratified by the heirs, and this is true though neither he nor the heirs knew of the contract when it was made. Stewart v. Rogers [Kan.] 80 P. 58. After its ratification, the contract becomes an asset of the estate. Id. The term expenses as used is such contract includes attorney's fees incurred by the administrator in enforcing it. Id.

64. Right to rescind sale of land for nonpayment may be exercised by him for that purpose. Succession of Delaneuville v. Duhe [La.] 38 So. 20.

65, 66. Succession of Delaneuville v. Duhe [La.] 38 So. 20. It cannot be said that such suit attacks the act of his intestate. Id.

67. Code Civ. Proc. § 2707. Proceeding before the surrogate. In re McGuire's Estate, 94 N. Y. S. 97. Irregularities in failing to comply with § 2708 relating to surrogate's order, and the service thereof and of the citations, are waived by a general appear-of statute, only the heir may recover intestate and the devisee testate realty or interests therein.[68] By statute in Arkansas the representative of a fraudulent grantor may, on application to a court of chancery, have any deed or grant made by decedent with intent to delay and defraud his creditors, set aside for the use and benefit of the grantor's heirs at law, saving the rights of creditors and purchasers without notice.[69] In case the representative refuses to take advantage of the act, the heirs at law may bring such a suit.[70] The sale of the subject of a fraudulent conveyance made by a decedent during his lifetime to one with notice of the fraud may be enjoined, where the estate is insolvent, particularly where the creditor has a lien upon the land.[71] This rule, however, has no application when a person seeking to enjoin partition proceedings has no present claim against the decedent's estate.[72]

A conditional gift of personalty by an intestate can be recovered by his administrator.[73]

An executor who is made trustee of certain legacies has sole power to maintain actions with respect to their preservation and recovery.[74]

An administrator with the will annexed to whom the testamentary trustee has, on his discharge, transferred the trust estate, may sue to recover property belonging to it.[75] The executor of the wife may enforce a trust resulting in her favor in property purchased by her husband in his own name with money belonging to her.[76]

In the absence of a statute to the contrary, the executor or administrator may assign, sell, and transfer the choses in action of the estate held by him,[77] but this ance and the filing of an answer to the merits. Id. If the control of the property is admitted, but the petitioner's right thereto is disputed, the surrogate is required to dismiss the proceedings, unless the parties consent to have him determine their rights. Id. § 2710. Id. Duty of surrogate to dismiss proceedings where witness claimed an attorney's lien on papers sought to be recovered. Id.

68. The heir at law and next of kin of decedent cannot maintain a bill to secure the reassignment of a mortgage alleged to have been secured from the decedent by fraud, where he alleges that the decedent died testate, and that his will has been admitted to probate, even though he further avers that he has appealed from such probate, it not appearing that he would have any interest if the will should be allowed to stand. Particularly in view of Act May 19, 1874 (P. L. 206) § 7, providing that the orphans' courts shall have power to prevent, by order in the nature of writs of injunction, acts contrary to law or equity, prejudicial to property over which they have jurisdiction. Gilkeson v. Thompson, 210 Pa. 355, 59 A. 1114.

69. Act April 19, 1895, Laws 1895, p. 165. Moore v. Waldstein [Ark.] 85 S. W. 416. Act is a remedial one and applies to deeds executed before its enactment. Id. Act does not vest grantor with any additional right to control or dispose of the land, or to make a will valid as to it, but when the deed is set aside the title goes to the heirs, saving the rights of the creditors and purchasers without notice. Devisees cannot, as such, take advantage of cancellation of deed. Id.

70. Moore v. Waldstein [Ark.] 85 S. W. 416.

71, 72. Monroe v. Monroe, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 51.

73. An intestate shortly before his death gave an acquaintance a promissory note stating that if he did not come back she could have it. Hafer v. McKelvey, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 202.

74. The guardian or curator of the legatee cannot. Morrow v. Morrow [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 590.

75. Where testamentary trustee filed his final account, transferred the trust estate and any rights of action in regard to it or pertaining to him as trustee to the administrator with the will annexed, and was discharged, the administrator had title to pledged securities formerly held by the trustee for a beneficiary since deceased and was entitled to recover the balance in the hands of the pledgee after the satisfaction of the claim secured thereby. Bristol Sav. Bank v. Holley, 77 Conn. 225, 58 A. 691.

76. Property purchased with proceeds of her securities. Gittings v. Winter [Md.] 60 A. 630. Evidence insufficient to show gift of securities by husband to his wife. Id. In action to recover proceeds of such securities memorandum of them written and signed by testatrix, and copy thereof which defendant examined after her death and from which he identified the securities, held admissible. Id. Where property purchased with proceeds of securities could not be easily identified, and husband failed to state in what they were actually invested and at what price, he was chargeable with the currency price of the securities in gold at the place where they were sold. Id.

77. Broadwell v. Banks, 134 F. 470. Has full legal title and may release, transfer, right has been taken away in some states.[78] The representative of a deceased surety may recover from the estate of the principal the amount which the surety has been compelled to pay by reason of his secondary liability, and may enforce such claim against property fraudulently conveyed by the principal where his estate is insolvent.[79] He may also compel the obligee to resort to the property so conveyed for the satisfaction of the balance of his claim.[80]

A surviving partner has a right to the possession and control of partnership property superior to that of the administrator of a deceased partner, and the latter can claim only such of it as remains after the payment of the partnership debts.[81] On a proper showing the administrator may compel the survivor to account,[82] but he cannot enforce partnership demands or maintain actions to reduce partnership assets to possession.[83]

The conservator of a nonresident alien whose property upon his death will escheat to the state is not precluded by that fact from removing it to the state of his residence.[84]

The heir ab intestato under the laws of Porto Rico may discharge debts owing the estate and release the debtor from further liability.[85] The validity of a payment by a mortgagor to one decreed the sole heir ab intestato of the deceased mortgagee is a question of fact where made before maturity and at a time when the debtor had notice of a well-founded assertion of another claiming a right to the property.[86] A mortgagor who, pending proceedings to have a petitioner declared sole heir ab intestato of the mortgagee, under order of the court pays his indebtedness into court, is thereby discharged from liability to one declared a co-heir in proceedings commenced subsequent to the payment.[87]

(§ 5) C. Inventory and appraisal.[88]—The inventory is an admission by the administrator, though not a conclusive one, of possession of such assets of his intestate as are therein described.[89] He may explain any mistake or error therein, or and compound them. Nance v. Gray [Ala.] 38 So. 916.

78. Broadwell v. Banks, 134 F. 470. Under Ohio Rev. St. § 6074, right to sell notes, claims, demands, rights of action, etc., is taken away except as to desperate claims, and bonds and stocks necessary to be sold to pay debts as provided by Id. §§ 6077, 6080. Id. Sale of claim for rents accruing before decedent's death held to confer no right of action on purchaser. Id.

79. Right of action of surety goes to representative and not to heir. Coffinberry v. McClellan [Ind.] 73 N. E. 97.

80. Has equitable right to have property of principal exhausted before resort is had to estate of surety which he represents. Coffinberry v. McClellan [Ind.] 73 N. E. 97.

81. Realty. Hartnett v. Stillwell, 121 Ga. 386, 49 S. E. 276.

82. Where an administrator of a deceased partner brings action for a partnership accounting against a surviving partner who asserts that he purchased the interest of the decedent, the surviving partner has the burden to show by clear and satisfactory evidence the truth of his assertion. Consaul v. Cummings, 24 App. D. C. 36.

83. For a full discussion of these questions see Partnership, 4 C. L. 908.

84. Langmuir v. Landes, 113 Ill. App. 134.

85. Payments by a mortgagor to one decreed the heir ab intestato of the deceased mortgagee, in proceedings under Porto Rico Code §§ 976-980 are not made at the risk of being required to respond to others who may subsequently be found to be co-heirs because the decree reserved the rights of third persons. Sixto v. Sarria, 196 U. S. 175, 49 Law. Ed. 436. The effect of proceedings under Porto Rico Code, §§ 1000, 1001, to designate the heirs ab intestato, is to permit them after final decision to collect the estate; hence payment of debts due an intestate to them is not made at the risk of being required to respond to others who establish a right thereto within five years because the Porto Rico mortgage laws declare that property acquired by inheritance cannot be cleared until five years from date of recording. Id.

86. Sixto v. Sarria, 196 U. S. 175, 49 Law. Ed. 436.

87. Sixto v. Harria, 196 U. S. 175, 49 Law. Ed. 436. After reinstatement by an appellate court of an order of a lower court directing a debtor to pay into court the amount of his debt, the debtor cannot discharge his liability by obtaining from the lower court an order permitting the withdrawal of a payment and paying it to an assignee of the claim. Id.

88. See 3 C. L. 1261. Necessity of inventory for purpose of levying succession tax, see Taxes, 4 C. L. 1605.

89. Wood v. Brown, 121 Ga. 471, 49 S. E. 295. Where inventory was introduced, evidence in suit on administrator's bond to col-may show that deceased had no title to the property inventoried, but the burden of doing so is on him.[90]

In Texas any executor may, on petition of any person interested in the estate pointing out property alleged to have been omitted from the inventory, be cited to show cause why he should not correct such inventory so as to include the same,[91] and upon proof, on the hearing, that property has been so omitted, the county court may require him to make such correction.[92]

(§ 5) D. Property allowed widow or children.[93]—In some states the widow is allowed to retain the mansion or chief dwelling house of her husband, free from molestation or rent, until dower is assigned to her.[94]

The widow and children generally have an extended estate of homestead in land occupied by decedent,[95] free from liability for debts except such as he charged thereon. The widow's right in the homestead is one of occupancy only, which she cannot convey, and may abandon at pleasure.[96] When she abandons it,[97] or sells her interest, the homestead right terminates, and the heirs of the deceased husband are entitled to possession of their interest in the property.[98] She cannot have both dower and homestead in the same land, and therefore by electing to take the former she waives her right to the latter.[99] By statute in some states it is made the duty of the probate court or judge, on the coming in of the inventory, to set aside to the surviving husband or wife, or minor children, the homestead selected and recorded during decedent's lifetime, or, if none has been so selected and recorded, then to select and set apart one from the estate and have it recorded.[1] The court may act either on petition or on its own motion.[2] The wife is not deprived of her right to lect amount of widow's allowance held to require submission of case to jury. Id.

90. Wood v. Brown, 121 Ga. 471. 49 S. E. 295. Has the burden of proving that property included in the inventory did not belong to decedent at the time of his death. In re Bayley [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 215. Evidence insufficient to show gift of stock by decedent to her children, but merely showed an attempted testamentary disposition, ineffective because not made by will. Id. Husband of decedent not estopped from claiming accounting for stock by his silence, where he did not have knowledge of all the facts. Id.

91. Batts' Ann. Civ. St. art. 1974. Allegation that particular description of notes and credits which legatees and devisees sought to have included could not be given because executor had suppressed and destroyed all evidence in regard to them held to state a sufficient excuse for failure to specifically describe property. Moore v. Mertz [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 312.

92. Batt's Ann. Civ. St. arts. 1973, 1975. Moore v. Mertz [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 312. Such a proceeding to compel him to include notes and credits held by him for decedent is not an action for debt so as to oust the county court of jurisdiction. Has jurisdiction under Const. art. 5, § 16, and Rev. St. 1895, art. 1840, giving such court general probate jurisdiction and under express provisions of Batts' Ann. Civ. St. §§ 1973-1975. Id.

93. See 3 C. L. 1261.

94. Under statute authorizing widow to occupy the mansion or chief dwelling house of her husband for two months or until her dower is assigned, an answer in ejectment in which defendant claims right to hold land under her dower right, and alleging that defendant's dower has not been assigned, but failing to allege anything as to the premises being the mansion or farm attached thereto is fatally defective. Gates v. Solomon [Ark.] 83 S. W. 348. See, also, Descent and Distribution, § 6, 5 C. L. 1001.

95. See, also, Homesteads, 3 C. L. 1630. Under Const. art. 9, §§ 3-6, entitling the widow of a deceased resident to a homestead during her natural life, answer in ejectment alleging that defendant was widow of one who occupied land as a homestead and that she had continued to occupy it as such since his death, held to state a good defense. Gates v. Solomon [Ark.] 83 S. W. 348.

96. Jones v. Green, 25 Ky. L. R. 1191, 83 S. W. 582. The right of the survivor of a community to occupy the community homestead is a personal right, and not an estate in land. York v. Hutcheson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 895.

97. Terminates an unexpired lease previously made by her. Jones v. Green, 25 Ky. L. R. 1191, 83 S. W. 582.

98. York v. Hutcheson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 895.

99. Having conveyed and abandoned land after electing to take homestead, her grantee does not acquire her dower interest. Jones v. Green, 25 Ky. L. R. 1191, 83 S. W. 582.

1. Code Civ. Proc. § 1465. In re Firth's Estate, 145 Cal. 236, 78 P. 643; In re Shively's Estate, 145 Cal. 400, 78 P. 869. Comp. St. 1887, Div. 2, § 134. Bullerdick v. Hermsmeyer [Mont.] 81 P. 334.

2. Bullerdick v. Hermsmeyer [Mont.] 81 P. 334.

such homestead by the fact that she has other property fitted for occupancy.[3] In a proceeding merely to set apart a homestead to the surviving wife, the probate court has no jurisdiction to determine in whom the remainder in fee vests.[4] Where the administrator has previously, and under order of the court, mortgaged property belonging to the estate, including that subsequently set apart as a homestead, the administrator is entitled to pay out of the assets of the estate a sum necessary to secure the release of such homestead.[5]

The surviving husband or wife is also generally entitled to certain of decedent's personalty free from liability for his debts, or a money equivalent in lieu thereof.[6] Desertion of her husband by the wife may operate to deprive her of this right.[7]

In most states the widow is also given an allowance for the support of herself and her family during the period of administration.[8] It is for the benefit of herself and her family, and, if it may be reached by her creditors after it has been allowed, she cannot be compelled to assert it for their benefit, nor can they assert it for her.[9] It is not a claim against the decedent within the statute relating to the filing of claims.[10] The widow and minor children of a deceased partner are entitled to a statutory year's support only in what remains of his interest in the partnership property after payment of the partnership debts.[11]

The right may be lost by delay in asserting it.[12] The wife is not necessarily de-

3. Not because she has another residence. In re Firth's Estate, 145 Cal. 236, 78 P. 643. Court held not to have abused his discretion, where homestead awarded is much less in value than her interest would have been under the dower law. Id.

4. In re Firth's Estate, 145 Cal. 236, 78 P. 643.

5. Even though it was a greater sum than the homestead tract was liable for in proportion to its value. In re Shively's Estate, 145 Cal. 400, 78 P. 869.

6. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2424, she may select articles named in the appraisement not exceeding $500 in value, and if she fails to select any part of them the amount of the deficiency shall be paid to her in cash. If the personalty is insufficient to pay that amount, it is made a lien on the realty, to be enforced by sale upon petition of the administrator. Rush v. Kelley, 34 Ind. App. 449, 73 N. E. 130. Where administrator knows that the amount selected by her is less than $500, and that there is not sufficient personalty to pay the balance, it is his duty to petition for a sale of the realty before seeking final settlement of the estate. Id. Where a husband deserts his wife and family in England and after becoming domiciled in Pennsylvania dies, leaving an estate, the widow is entitled to the exemption allowed by the act of April 14, 1851 (P. L. 612), though she knew during his lifetime of his residence in Pennsylvania. Balmforth's Estate, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 491. Tex. Rev. St. 1895, art. 2046, authorizing probate court to set aside property exempt from forced sale to the widow, minor children, and unmarried daughters remaining with the family of the deceased, held not repugnant to Const. art. 16, § 52, providing for the descent of the homestead. Randolph v. White, 135 F. 875.

7. Where a wife without reasonable cause leaves her husband and renounces all conjugal relations a considerable time before his death, she is not such a widow as entitles her to appropriate $300 of his estate to her own use. Myer's Estate, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 142.

8. Widow's and minor's allowance given by Rev. St. 1895, arts. 2037, 2038, 2044, 2093, is a claim on the estate next in priority to those of the first class, and is superior and prior to all other claims except that of a vendor who expressly reserves a lien on land to secure the payment of the purchase money. Zieschang v. Helmke [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 436. Has right in proceeds of sale of land prior to that of one holding a trust deed thereon to secure his claim. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839.

Allowance as lien on realty, see Tiffany, Real Prop. p. 1323.

9. She being barred by laches from obtaining it, creditors cannot do so. Jespersen v. Mech, 213 Ill. 488, 72 N. E. 1114.

10. Rush v. Kelley, 34 Ind. App. 449, 73 N. E. 130.

11. Wood v. Brown, 121 Ga. 471, 49 S. E. 295.

12. A widow who makes no effort to administer on her husband's estate for ten years after his death is barred by laches from doing so thereafter for the sole purpose of having her widow's award set off and the homestead sold for that purpose. Barred after seven years. Jespersen v. Mech, 213 Ill. 488, 72 N. E. 1114. Where the clause in the will appointing the widow as independent executrix was canceled and she was then appointed administratrix with the will annexed, held that, under the circumstances, the order making an allowance to the widow and minor children was not void because not made within a year after decedent's death. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839.

prived of her right by her misconduct,[13] but a separation agreement between herself and her husband may have that effect.[14] The acknowledgment by a married woman of a deed of trust given by her husband does not deprive her or her minor children, after her husband's death, of the right to have the proceeds of a sale of the land covered thereby applied to the payment of her allowance, where the estate is insolvent.[15] Neither does the fact that she joins the grantee in an application for the sale of the land.[16] She does not, by joining in an agreement with other heirs to settle the estate without administration and agreeing to take a life estate in the realty for her share, waive her right to an award when administration becomes necessary because of a deficiency of personalty to pay the debts.[17] The allowance of a claim by an independent executrix in her official capacity does not estop her, on her subsequent removal and her appointment as administratrix with the will annexed, from claiming priority over the same for her widow's allowance.[18]

The allowance may, in some states, be made before the return of the inventory and appraisement.[19] Any person interested in the estate may ordinarily oppose the application therefor.[20]

In determining the amount thereof the court may take into consideration the character and amount of the estate, and the provision the deceased sought to make for the widow as well as her actual necessities.[21] Evidence showing the financial condition of the estate when the application is made is admissible.[22]

The widow may recover property set apart to her for a year's support and in the possession of a third person.[23] She is not entitled to interest on the amount thereof from the date when it is set off by the commissioners.[24] It is the duty of the administrator to pay the allowance, and a final settlement made before doing so is illegal and may be set aside, though she made no demand for such payment.[25] The judgment of the ordinary allowing a year's support is conclusive only that she is entitled to the amount of the judgment, if there are assets to pay it, and is no

13. Misconduct held, under the circumstance, not to be such as to deprive her of her right to an allowance, even if misconduct ever would be. In re Drasdo's Estate, 36 Wash. 478, 78 P. 1022.

14. Though she does not therein expressly renounce all interest in her husband's property. Sufficient if it appears that there was an intent to do so. Fisher v. Clopton, 110 Mo. App. 663, 85 S. W. 623.

15. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839.

16. Where there is no other property from which it can be paid. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839.

17. Bennett v. Morris, 111 Ill. App. 150.

18. Evidence held to show that she made allowance in her official capacity without any intention of waiving her individual rights. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839. Even if approval could be construed as having been made in her individual capacity, it was not binding because there was no consideration therefor. Id. Evidence as to her intention and as to lack of consideration held admissible, without pleas of non est factum or want of consideration. Id. Hence, if it was error to allow filing of such pleas by administratrix after testimony was concluded, it was harmless. Id.

19. Under Gen. St. 1894, § 4477, as amended by Laws 1903, c. 334, p. 581, and § 4493. In re Strauch's Estate [Minn.] 104 N. W. 535.

20. Including the executor of a co-surety of the decedent on a bond on which suit has been brought, may interpose a caveat to an application of the widow for a year's support. Civ. Code 1895, § 3467, requires citation to be issued to all persons interested. Mathews v. Rountree [Ga.] 51 S. E. 423.

21. Allowance held not excessive under the circumstances. In re Drasdo's Estate, 36 Wash. 478, 78 P. 1022. The extent should be determined primarily by the value of the estate and the amount of claims against it, though some regard should be had to the situation in life and the previous manner of living of the surviving family. In re Strauch's Estate [Minn.] 104 N. W. 535.

22. Evidence as to the amount of claims admissible on appeal, though they have not yet been passed upon by the probate court. In re Strauch's Estate [Minn.] 104 N. W. 535.

23. Where portion of crop owned by tenant at time of his death was set apart to his widow as a year's support, she could recover the same in trover from one to whom the landlord, without authority, had delivered it as payment of a debt which deceased owed such person, though the tenant owed the landlord one-fourth of the crop for rent, and such conversion was made before the year's support was set apart. Neal v. Smi [Ga.] 50 S. E. 922.

24. Field v. Field, 215 Ill. 496, 74 N. E. 443.

25. Rush v. Kelley, 34 Ind. App. 449, 73 N. E. 130.

evidence of the fact that the administrator has sufficient assets out of which to pay it.[26]

(§ 5) E. Management, custody, control, and disposition of estate.[27]—The management and disposal of property under testamentary trusts, though the same persons act as executors and trustees, is treated in the article on trusts.[28]

Where there is a will the executor is governed by its directions, if legal, as to administration.[29]

The executor or administrator represents the creditors as well as the heirs in the collection of debts, and in the prosecution and defense of claims,[30] and it is his duty to conserve the interests of all the creditors, and not to so administer the estate as to work a preference to any one of them.[31] He may assert any right commensurate with his title; hence an executor who, under the will, has the right to keep the estate intact until the youngest child becomes of age, may sue for an injury to the property resulting from a negligent tort.[32] For any acts contrary to good trusteeship, he may be held liable according to the usual equitable principles.[33]

An independent executor in Texas may do, without an order of court, everything which an executor administering the estate under the control of the court may do with such order.[34] He may, without an order of court, convey land belonging to the estate in payment for services rendered to him as executor.[35] He may sell personalty, especially when so licensed, but cannot without license mortgage it.[36] Executory sales of personalty whereby title remained in decedent at his death leave the personal representative free to dispose of it.[37]

Control by courts.—The exercise of a legal discretion vested in the executor may be compelled.[38] In Georgia, when for any reason it becomes impossible to carry out the will in whole or in part, the judges of the superior court are given power at chambers, in vacation, to render any decree that may be necessary and legal in the premises, provided all parties in interest consent thereto in writing.[39] In some states the court may order a sale of securities which are in danger of depreciation.[40]

26. Administrator is not required to object to setting aside of allowance, and cannot show lack of assets with which to pay it. Wood v. Brown, 121 Ga. 471, 49 S. E. 295.

27. See 3 C. L. 1263.

28. See Trusts, 4 C. L. 1727.

29. The question usually arises as to what the will intends. See Wills, § 5E, 4 C. L. 1937.

30. Perkins v. Goddin [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 936.

31. Schermerhorn v. Gardenier, 94 N. Y. S. 253.

32. For loss due to fire set by locomotive. Hendricks v. Southern R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 415.

33. See post, § 9.

34. Altgelt v. Mernitz [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S W. 891.

35. Where will authorizes him to gather and collect all decedent's property, collect all debts due the estate, and to sell and convey any of the property. Baker v. Hamblen [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 467.

36. A purchaser from an administrator under a sale authorized by the court acquires title as against a purchaser under foreclosure of a chattel mortgage given by the administrator without authority. Richley v. Childs, 114 Ill. App. 173.

37. Sale of chattels by the executor was regarded as in pursuance of a new contract rather than one made by decedent, the contrary not having been proven, and hence a right of satisfaction out of proceeds reserved by decedent's agreement was not binding on executor. Schermerhorn v. Gardenier, 94 N. Y. S. 253.

38. Where will imperatively requires sale of realty and executrix has discretion only as to terms and time of sale, she will be compelled to sell after occupying property for three years without attempting to do so, unless she shows some satisfactory reason to the contrary. In re Severns' Estate, 211 Pa. 68, 60 A. 494. Burden on her to show such reason is not met by simple declaration by herself and her sister that time was not suitable for sale, where there was no showing that they knew anything about the matter. Id.

39. Civ. Code 1895, § 4855. Jurisdiction of the subject-matter depends upon such written consent of all persons sui juris. Callaway v. Irvin [Ga.] 51 S. E. 477. If a feme covert be a beneficiary under a will probated prior to the married woman's act of 1866, and her husband has taken no steps to enforce his marital rights with respect to the devise or bequest made to her by the testator, her written consent is necessary to the validity of an order passed in vacation authorizing the executor to sell the property of the estate. Id.

Contracts for sale or conveyance of land by or to decedent.—The administrator may maintain a suit in equity to compel the heirs at law to specifically perform a contract made by the decedent for the sale of land.[41] His right to do so is not dependent on the fact that the funds to be derived from the sale are necessary for the payment of decedent's debts.[42] The fact that such suit is instituted by the widow, who is also administratrix, and that she will, under the statute of distributions, take the whole of the proceeds of the sale as personalty whereas she would only take half the realty, does not affect her right to specific performance as against the heirs.[43] By statute in some states, where one bound by a contract in writing to convey realty dies before doing so, and where such decedent, if living, might be compelled to make such conveyance, the probate court may make a decree authorizing and directing his executor or administrator to convey such real estate to the person entitled thereto.[44] An executor or administrator of an estate has the same right to present a petition for conveyance of real estate to him under these circumstances as any other person, and need not first resign his position in order to enforce it.[45] Such a statute does not give jurisdiction to compel performance of an executory oral contract to convey,[46] and hence the petition must show that the contract was in writing.[47]

Right to sell realty.[48]—In the absence of a provision to the contrary in the will, an executor has no authority to sell realty except when necessary for the payment of debts and legacies, and then only after obtaining an order of sale from the probate court,[49] nor has he authority to deliver a deed executed by testator.[50] He cannot

40. In Ohio the probate court has power to order the sale of securities of an estate which are in danger of depreciation. Guthrie v. Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 117.

41. Where purchaser was ready and willing to perform and had deposited the money in escrow. Has no adequate remedy at law. Butman v. Butman, 213 Ill. 104, 72 N. E. 821. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 29, § 4, providing that the representative of a decedent who has contracted to sell land may, when the consideration has been paid, or a conveyance ought to be made, obtain an order for a conveyance on notice to the vendee, does not require such notice to be given to the heirs when they refuse to convey, and the vendee is ready and willing to perform. Id.

42, 43. Butman v. Butman, 213 Ill. 104, 72 N. E. 821.

44. Comp. St. 1887, div. 2, § 236. Bullerdick v. Hermsmeyer [Mont.] 81 P. 334. Provision in decree setting aside certain water for use of such homestead held invalid, the petition being one merely for setting aside homestead and not asking for or contemplating any other relief. Id. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1597-1602, held within the power of the legislature to enact. In re Garnier's Estate [Cal.] 82 P. 68. Rev. Prob. Code, § 259, authorizes the circuit court to take jurisdiction of a suit to compel an executor to specifically perform a contract to convey land entered into by his testator, where the latter died before making the conveyance, and requires the county court to dismiss the petition whenever the rights of the petitioner to specific performance is doubtful. Right held so doubtful as to render dismissal of petition by county court proper. Id. Sayle's Ann. Civ. St. 1897, arts. 2152, 2153, authorizes the county court to direct the administrator to convey land in accordance with a bond for a deed executed by decedent, and provides that a conveyance made in accordance with such statute shall be prima facie evidence that all laws have been complied with in obtaining the same. Such a deed to a trustee is prima facie evidence of title in the latter. Dutton v. Wright [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1025. Court records being burned, bond for title offered in evidence and purporting to have been executed by decedent, but differing essentially from the recitals in regard to the bond in the judgment authorizing the conveyance, held insufficient to show that it was the bond on which the court acted, or to rebut the presumption that court had sufficient evidence before it on which such judgment was rendered. Id.

45. In re Garnier's Estate [Cal.] 82 P. 68.

46. Cannot direct specific performance of contract whereby decedent, in his lifetime, agreed to convey certain water rights to his wife. Bullerdick v. Hermsmeyer [Mont.] 81 P. 334.

47. Court is without power to proceed unless it does so, and order made on petition which does not is ineffective for any purpose. Bullerdick v. Hermsmeyer [Mont.] 81 P. 334. Court being one of limited jurisdiction, it cannot be presumed that the contract was in writing, and that the court therefore had jurisdiction to enforce it. Id. Decree being void for want of jurisdiction, it was not validated by curative act (Sess. Laws 1899, p. 145) subsequently passed to validate judicial sales by executors, administrators, etc. Id.

48. See 3 C. L. 1265 n. 28 et seq. For matters relating to sale to pay debts, see § 7, post.

49. Deed without such order is absolutely void. Coy v. Gaye [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 441. The realty of one dying testate passes immediately to the devisees, and the executor has no authority over or title to it by virtue of his appointment merely, and no exercise a power of sale of realty given him by the will until the will has been probated and he has qualified under his appointment.[51] A power of sale coupled with a trust,[52] or a mandatory power, without discretion, may be exercised by an administrator with the will annexed.[53]

The power of an administrator to sell land belonging to the estate is in all cases limited by the order granting him license to sell, and is confined to the lands therein described.[54] Though the estate owns only an equity of redemption in land, the administrator may, with the public consent of the owner of the legal title, sell the fee.[55]

A notice of sale must be given where the statute or order of license requires it.[56] Mere irregularities will not avoid the sale,[57] or render the proceedings subject to collateral attack,[58] nor will fraud be presumed on a sale in regular form to the executor,[59] for confirmation is an adjudication that the sale was under order of the court, and cures all irregularities.[60]

The rule of caveat emptor applies, and the purchaser takes only such title as the decedent had at the date of his death.[61] He is also charged with absolute notice of any want of power on the part of the representative to make the sale,[62] and must right to sell it unless the will, either expressly or by necessary implication, authorizes him to do so. Where will directs property to be sold and proceeds to be divided, executor is by implication vested with power to make the sale though not named as the donee of the power. Smith v. Courtnay's Ex'rs [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1101. A deed by an executrix who by the terms of the will of a decedent has power to convey in as full a manner as the testator could had he been alive passes a good title, though she was not empowered to pay debts of the estate. Kerr v. Long's Ex'r [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1068.

50. Delivery of a deed to the grantee by the executor of the grantor and recording the same by the grantee, held not to pass title to the latter, in the absence of a showing that the executor was authorized by the grantor to make the delivery. Berkmeier v. Peters [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 598.

51. Coy v. Gaye [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 441.

52. May v. Brewster [Mass.] 73 N. E. 546.

53. Ayers v. Courvoisier, 101 App. Div. 97, 91 N. Y. S. 549.

54. Hall v. Davis [Ga.] 50 S. E. 106. One claiming title to land under an administrator's deed must in all cases show the order of the court of ordinary granting the administrator license to sell the land in question. Must affirmatively appear that the land described in the order is the same as that described in the deed and for which the action is brought. Id.

NOTE. Right to postpone sale: An executor or administrator may lawfully postpone the sale if in so doing he exercises a sound discretion and acts with a view to the best interests of the parties. Norris v. Howe, 15 Mass. 175; Noland v. Barrett, 122 Mo. 181, 26 S. W. 692, 43 Am. St. Rep. 572; Gillespie's Estate, 10 Watts [Pa.] 300; Lamb v. Lamb, 1 Spears Eq. [S. C.] 289.—From 40 Am. Dec. 618.

55. Mallard v. Curran [Ga.] 51 S. E. 712. Borrower of money executed deed of trust to secure it, and thereafter died. His administrator, having been granted authority by the ordinary to sell the land, sold the fee with the consent of the grantee in the deed, which was publicly announced by the auctioneer at the sale. Held, that the purchaser could maintain an action to compel the administrator to make a deed, and the holder of the trust deed to cancel the same. Id.

56. In Minnesota notice of sale must be given where the order of license requires it. Gen. St. 1894, §§ 4600, 4612. Cater v. Steeves [Minn.] 103 N. W. 885. Order of license held to require notice of sale to be given. Fact that it only required a notice of the terms under which the sale was to be made did not render it void, as an effective notice could not be given without stating when and where the sale was to take place. Id.

57. Under Gen. St. 1894, § 4612, if it appears that license was issued by court having jurisdiction, that representative gave bond and took prescribed oath, that he gave required notice, and that sale was made in manner required by license, and was confirmed, and that land is held by bona fide purchaser. Cater v. Steeves [Minn.] 103 N. W. 885. That a sale and adjudication of the property of a succession was not made at the court house or an authorized place is a mere irregularity prescribed in five years. Landry v. Laplos, 113 La. 697, 37 So. 606.

58. See post, § 15.

59. Where the will and the probate records show that the executors were authorized to sell the land to one of their number and that they did so and that the sale was approved, mortgagees of the purchasing executor are entitled to rely thereon, and are not bound to inquire into his disposition of the purchase price. Their rights are superior to those of legatees. Curtis v. Brewer [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 105, 103 N. W. 579.

60. Altgelt v. Mernitz [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 891.

61. Court only attempts to order sale of what deceased owned and not to determine what he owned, and representative sells without any warranty or guaranty. Altgelt v. Mernitz [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 891.

62. By records of necessary proceedings in probate court. Coy v. Gaye [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 441.

see that the order of sale is regularly obtained and properly complied with.[63] As a general rule the representative is not bound to make known defects of title within his knowledge, and where there is neither fraud nor misrepresentation by the administrator in selling, and the sale is regular, the purchaser is bound to pay the amount bid, though there be a defect in the title.[64] He will, however, be protected from the consequences of having been misled by the fraud or mistake of the representative in so far as he had a right to rely on his representations.[65]

An executor will not be compelled to execute a deed to a purchaser guilty of fraud.[66] An administrator's sale is effective without any deed where the record shows that he received the purchase money.[67]

Neither the estate nor its administrator can be held to be a constructive trustee of property sold without authority by the executor named in the will,[68] but, if necessary, the purchaser may be held as trustee in invitum for the estate.[69]

An administrator may recover land belonging to the estate sold by a former executor without authority,[70] notwithstanding the fact that the will is not executed according to the laws of the state where the realty in dispute is situated and hence cannot be admitted to probate therein.[71] The estate and administrator are not estopped to set aside such deed in a transaction to which they were not parties and in which they did not profit or participate.[72]

Right to mortgage realty.—Lands belonging to a decedent's estate can only be incumbered for the purposes and in the manner prescribed by law.[73] Statutes in some states authorize the mortgage of realty on order of the court, when it appears to him to be for the best interests of the estate.[74]

The estate is bound in equity to repay with interest the amount advanced by the

63. Coy v. Gaye [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 441.

64. Altgelt v. Mernitz [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 891.

65. Conceding that the rule of caveat emptor applies in all its strictness to sales by independent executors made without any order of the court, yet the purchaser will be protected against the consequences of having been misled by the fraud or mistake of such executor in so far as he had a right to rely on his representations. Altgelt v. Mernitz [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 891. Thus, where the executor knows, or may reasonably be supposed to know, material facts concerning the title which are unknown to the vendee, and which cannot otherwise be ascertained by him at the time and place of sale, and the vendee informs the vendor that he relies solely on the truth of his statements and representations concerning the title, and the vendor makes such statements relative thereto, which if true, would constitute a good title, and the vendee buys relying thereon, and the representations prove to be false and the title bad, the vendee may, to the extent of the failure of the title, surrender the property and defend against an action for the purchase money, irrespective of whether the vendor knew such representations to be false or did not know whether they were true or false. Id.

66. Not where it appears that prior to the sale the devisees had agreed among themselves that the property should not be struck off under a certain price and the crier in disregard of his instructions sold at a lower price to some of the parties to the agreement. Cobleigh's Estate, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 271.

67. Where approval of sale contains evidence that he received it, sale was effective, though deed was dated and acknowledged before the date of the sale and before sale was approved. Sale for purpose of dividing estate and closing administration. Whitaker v. Thayer [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 364.

68. Coy v. Gaye [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 441.

69. Sale by executor to carry out compromise agreement with parties contesting will. Coy v. Gaye [Tex. Civ App.] 84 S. W. 441.

70. Sale to carry into effect compromise with persons contesting will. Coy v. Gaye [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 441. Purchasers held not to have purchased in good faith so as to be entitled to return of purchase-money. Id.

71. Coy v. Gaye [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 441.

72. Land sold without authority by a former executor to carry out a compromise agreement between the executor and those contesting the will, to which neither the creditors nor the legatees were parties, where none of the proceeds were paid into court, or accounted for, or expended for the benefit of the estate, or of any one having an interest in or a claim against it. Coy v. Gaye [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 441.

73. No lien or right of subrogation created on account of money derived from mortgage, which was expended for farm machinery and general uses. Henry v. Henry [Neb.] 103 N. W. 441.

74. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1577, 1578. In re Shievly's Estate, 145 Cal. 400, 78 P. 869. Under Gen. St. § 253, real estate held in trust. Townsend v. Wilson, 77 Conn. 411, 59 A. 417.

mortgagee under an unauthorized mortgage, where the proceeds have been applied to the payment of debts and legacies.[75]

§ 6. Debts and liabilities of estate; their establishment and satisfaction. A. Claims provable[76] embrace those arising out of contracts, express or implied, valid against decedent in his lifetime and not extinguished by his death,[77] and also torts which survive.[78] They must subsist in law and be enforceable as against a plea of limitations or of the statute of frauds or like defense.[79] These matters are the subjects of separate topics in Current Law. An implied contract may arise on the death of decedent leaving his part of a contract unperformed.[80] The decedent rather than his heir, partner, principal or other person must have stood as debtor. Thus, taxes which become a lien on decedent's realty prior to his death should be paid by his representative out of the personalty.[81] So also the estate is liable for money loaned decedent to be used in a business in which he was interested, whether he owned the entire business or was only a partner;[82] but the estate of one partner is not liable for money loaned to another partner as an individual.[83] Where the husband, as head of the community, manages a business and treats it as his own, he and the community and not the wife or her paraphernal property invested in the business is liable for its debts.[84]

The estate is not liable for the torts of the representative, even though persons interested therein have benefited thereby.[84a] An administrator who obtains and converts property belonging to another under the mistaken belief that it belongs to the estate which he represents is liable to the owner for the value thereof both in his representative and his individual capacity.[84b] An executor who borrows money from an heir for the use of the estate may be personally bound if it is not used as agreed at the time of the loan.[84c]

(§ 6) B. Exhibition, establishment, allowance, and enforcement of claims.[85] Jurisdiction.[86]—As a general rule the courts having jurisdiction of probate

75. Thomas v. Provident Life & Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 348. Executors borrowed money and executed mortgage to secure its repayment without specific authority to do so, and used the proceeds to pay debts and a legacy charged on a portion of the land. Later, in consideration of their obligation to repay the money, they quitclaimed to the mortgagee. Held, neither the legatee whose legacy was charged on the land nor a judgment creditor of the residuary devisees could attack the mortgage or deed in the absence of fraud. Id.

76. See 3 C. L. 1267.

77. See Contracts, 5 C. L. 664; Implied Contracts, 3 C. L. 1690.

78. See Abatement and Revival, 5 C. L. 6.

79. See Limitation of Actions, 4 C. L. 445; Frauds, Statute of, 3 C. L. 1527; Fraud and Undue Influence, 3 C. L. 1520; Duress, 5 C. L. 1047.

80. See full treatment in Implied Contracts, 3 C. L. 1690. One rendering services to deceased for which the latter agrees to compensate him out of his estate has, in case he fails to do so, a claim against his estate on a quantum meruit. Properly construed, petition held to be one for recovery on quantum meruit. Moore v. Smith, 121 Ga. 479, 49 S. E. 601. One authorized to improve and sell lands and reimburse himself for his expenses out of the proceeds of the sale is entitled, after the termination of his authority by the death of party conferring it, to be repaid and compensated from the proceeds of the property when sold, for expenses incurred and services rendered in reliance thereon. Fisher v. Southern Loan & Trust Co., 138 N. C. 90, 50 S. E. 592.

81. Not by testamentary trustee who takes the realty. Rev. St. § 2838. Loomis v. Von Phul, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 423. Where it is the duty of a life tenant to pay the taxes, his estate is liable for taxes which became a lien prior to his death. Penn's Ex'r v. Penn's Ex'r [Ky.] 87 S. W. 306.

82. Altgelt v. Elmendorf [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 412. Money deposited in decedent's business after her death and before the qualification of her independent executor may be collected from the latter, where he ratifies such deposit after his qualification. Id.

83. Altgelt v. Elmendorf [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 412.

84. Succession of Sangpiel [La.] 38 So. 554.

84a. Not for his misapplication of the proceeds of an insurance policy which were not assets of the estate but belonged to the widow. Nickals v. Stanley [Cal.] 81 P. 117. The estate should not he mulcted in damages for his failure to deed property sold. Mallard v. Curran [Ga.] 51 S. E. 712.

84b. Bank deposit. Hill v. Escort [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 367

84c. Frick v. Shimer, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 563. Parol evidence is admissible to show the terms of the loan, if denied by the executor. Id.

85. See 3 C. L. 1269.

86. See 3 C. L. 1267.

matters are given authority to hear and determine claims against the estate.[87] Accordingly creditors must enforce their claims in the probate court and cannot, during the time allowed by law for the issuance of letters of administration, sue the heirs or devisees.[88] But this rule does not apply where there is no administration and no necessity therefor.[89]

Occasion and necessity of proving claims.[90]—The widow's allowance,[91] claims arising under contracts with the representative,[92] and costs incurred by the representative in suits to recover assets alleged to belong to the estate, are not claims against the decedent within the statutes relating to the filing and adjustment of such claims.[93] The widow is not a creditor to the extent of the amount necessary to augment her separate estate to the share she is entitled to take under the statute by electing against the will, under the Mississippi statute.[94]

The presentation of a claim against the estate is not necessary to enable one to sue the representative for property or money which can be identified in specie as that of the plaintiff,[95] nor is the presentation of a claim against the estate of the maker

87. See, also, § 2, ante.

In New York the surrogate has no authority to determine disputed claims, but where a claim is questioned by the representative, he must dismiss the proceeding and remit the creditor to the common-law courts for the establishment of his claim. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2722, 2743. In re Gall [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 875.

In Oregon the county court has jurisdiction to hear and determine claims which have been presented to and rejected by the administrator, under Laws 1854-55, p. 339, giving such jurisdiction to the judge of probate, and Const. art. 7, § 12, conferring on the county court the jurisdiction pertaining to probate courts. In re Morgan's Estate [Or.] 78 P. 1029.

88. On the death of the defendant pending an appeal from a judgment against him in the superior court, the power of the latter court to enforce the judgment terminates, and, in case said judgment is affirmed, plaintiff is remitted for its collection to the probate jurisdiction of the court having charge of the administration of his estate, to which court any objection to its payment out of the assets of the estate must be presented. Peoples' Home Sav. Bank v. Sadler [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1029. Appellate court will not, on substitution of defendant's executors, refuse to consider the case on the ground that the judgment appealed from was unenforceable because not presented to defendant's executors. Id. A vendor's lien when established in the district court as against an estate must be collected through the probate court. A failure to pursue such remedy results in a loss of the claim. Wall v. Club Land & Cattle Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 677, 88 S. W. 534. Until a claim has been established in a pending suit at law, equity cannot make any declaration or decree against the executrix in regard to it. Seymour v. Goodwin [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 93. Until the creditor has exhausted his remedy against the estate in the hands of the executor, equity cannot grant any relief against a legatee, or a trust fund alleged to be held by the executor for the payment of debts. Id.

89. Where the widow takes possession of the estate of her husband as sole heir, a creditor of the husband may maintain an action directly against her, upon proof that he is sole heir and in possession, that there has been no administration on the estate, that his claim was the only debt due by the estate, and that the widow took possession without notice of any debt due by the estate. This by implication and analogy to Civ. Code 1895, § 3422, authorizing creditors to compel distributees without notice to contribute pro rata to payment of their debts. Moore v. Smith, 121 Ga. 479, 49 S. E. 601. Failure of petition to allege that widow took possession without notice of any existing debt can be taken advantage of only by a special demurrer, and does not render petition subject to general demurrer. Id. Amendment to show that there were no other debts, and no necessity for administration, and that the widow was in possession held properly allowed. Id.

90. See 3 C. L. 1267 et seq.

91. Widow's allowance under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2424, is not a claim against the estate within the meaning of Id. § 2465, providing for the filing of claims. Rush v. Kelley, 34 Ind. App. 449, 73 N. E. 130.

92. A claim arising under a contract with the widow while acting as independent executrix in accordance with the terms of which claimant paid certain indebtedness of the estate, including funeral expenses, etc., need not be presented to her for allowance on a change in the form of the administration and her appointment as administratrix with the will annexed. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839.

93. Not within Rev. St. 1898, § 3838. Ferguson v. Woods [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1094.

94. Rev. Code 1892, §§ 4496, 4499. Gordon v. James [Miss.] 39 So. 18.

95. Right arises from the fact that the thing sued for is not part of the estate. Sprague v. Walton, 145 Cal. 228, 78 P. 645. One claiming that property left by deceedent was held by him in trust for claimant and others, and claiming a definite and identified portion thereof under the trust is not a creditor in such sense as to be required to present a claim, or to be entitled to object to the distribution of the estate. In re Dutard's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 519. The fact that the claimant asks for the value of the property in the alternative (Id.), or that he adds a claim for an accounting and settlement of

of a promissory note a necessary prerequisite to a suit against a surety thereon.[96] A creditor of the community after the death of the wife may sue the husband and, upon establishing his debt, subject the community property to its payment, notwithstanding administration may be pending.[97] The claim of one partner against the estate of his deceased co-partner cannot be passed upon by the probate court until the accounts of the partnership have been settled by a bill in equity.[98] The administrator of a deceased partner may maintain a suit for a partnership accounting against the administrator of the surviving partner, who dies before the partnership affairs are settled, without presenting a claim against the latter's estate.[99]

A claim for taxes need not be filed against the estate, but it is the duty of the representative to take notice thereof and pay it before final settlement.[1] Statutes in some states, however, provide for the presentation of such claims.[2]

As a general rule mortgages and other liens on land owned by decedent may be foreclosed without presenting a claim for the debt secured thereby to the representative.[3] In California a mortgage upon the homestead cannot be enforced unless a claim for the mortgage debt is first duly presented to the representative;[4] but this rule applies exclusively to the property described in the mortgage which is impressed with the character of the homestead, and a failure to present the claim does not deprive the mortgagee of his right to foreclose the same against property covered by it in excess of that set off as a homestead by the superior court to those entitled thereto.[5] In the same state on foreclosure of a mortgage on land the account of decedent as administrator of an estate of which claimant was afterward made administrator does not change the character of the claim so as to make him a creditor (Id.).

96. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Robertson [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 643. Rev. St. 1895, art. 3814, providing that, when a principal and surety are sued together, the surety may have the property of the principal first sold for the satisfaction of the debt, cannot be enforced where the principal is dead, with a preservation to the creditor of his right to proceed against the surety, since the principal must be proceeded against in the probate court, and hence does not apply to such a case. Id. Hence in an action on certain notes secured by trust deeds, one of which was given by the deceased maker alone and the other by him and certain other parties who were liable as sureties on the notes, and to foreclose such deeds, held, that foreclosure should have been authorized against the interests of the sureties alone as in ordinary cases, without making a sale dependent on proceedings in the probate court to enforce the claim against the decedent's estate. Id. Where a trust deed was given to secure payment of notes executed by one of the grantors since deceased, his administrator was properly joined as defendant in an action to foreclose the deed against the other grantors, he having rejected a claim on the notes against the estate, though the mortgaged property of the estate could not be sold therein. Id.

97. Levy v. Moody & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 205.

98. Cannot be passed upon by the orphans' court until the accounts of the partnership have been settled by bill in equity in the court of common pleas. Claim cannot be considered where accounting has previously been had upon a bill filed against claimant and decedent, in which proceeding a decree pro confesso was taken against claimant and his interest sold and a certain sum was paid in full settlement. In re De Coursey's Estate, 211 Pa. 92, 60 A. 490.

99. Surviving partner and his administrator holds partnership property in trust, and the claim is not one against his estate. Franklin v. Trickey [Ariz.] 80 P. 352. The fact that no claim is presented by the estate of a deceased partner against the estate of a partner dying subsequently cannot operate to bar the right of the administrator of the first estate to a partnership accounting and to reach the partnership property, though it prevents a money recovery against the estate of the second decedent. Stehn v. Hayssen [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1074.

1. Must list for taxation property in his possession. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 8420, 8421, 8459, 8460. Cullop v. Vincennes, 34 Ind. App. 667, 72 N. E. 166.

2. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 8587. Cullop v. Vincennes, 34 Ind. App. 667, 72 N. E. 166. See, also, Taxes, 4 C. L. 1605.

3. Where grantor in deed of trust subsequently conveyed land to a third person, held, that a foreclosure sale less than four years after the grantor's death, and after his estate was closed was valid, though the claim secured by the trust deed was never presented. Miles v. Coleman Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 284.

4. Bank of Woodland v. Stephens [Cal.] 79 P. 379.

5. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1475, the rule applies only to cases where the homestead does not exceed $5,000 in value, or in which the mortgagee seeks to foreclose against the property eventually set off as a homestead under that section where the premises described in the homestead declaration exceed $5,000. Bank of Woodland v. Stephens [Cal.] 79 P. 379. Thus, where the in-belonging to the estate, the petition must either allege that the mortgage debt has been presented to the administrator for allowance as a claim against the estate, or must expressly waive all recourse against the other property of the estate.[6]

Statutes in some states provide for the presentation and allowance of contingent claims and for their payment, less interest.[7] In California if there is any claim not due, or any contingent or disputed claim against the estate, the amount thereof, or such part of the same as the holder would be entitled to if the claim were due, established, or absolute, must be paid into court, to be paid to the party when he becomes entitled thereto, or if he fails to establish his claim, to be paid over or distributed as the circumstances of the case require.[8] A matured mortgage indebtedness against the estate is not contingent within the meaning of this statute.[9]

Time for presentation; limitations.[10]—It is the policy of the law to insure the speedy administration and distribution of estates.[11] As a general rule all claims must be filed or presented to the executor or administrator within the time fixed by statute or they will be barred.[12] The time may usually be extended, however, or claims may be allowed after its expiration in cases where justice and equity require ventory shows the value of the community homestead to be $15,000, and, in proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1476-1486, 100 acres are set off to the surviving widow, a failure to present the mortgage debt as a claim does not bar foreclosure as against the remaining 220 acres. Id.

6. Code Civ. Proc. § 1500. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080. Held an abuse of discretion to refuse to allow amendment setting up such waiver. Id. Error cured by allowing plaintiffs to file a statement making such waiver, since it was in substance a part of the complaint. Id.

7. Administration Act, § 67, Rev. St. 1903, p. 116, providing for the presentation and allowance of claims not yet due, and their payment, less interest, applies only to unmatured debts which will become due on a specified date, capable of ascertainment by the court at the time of their presentation and allowance. Brown v. Rouse, 116 Ill. App. 513.

8. Code Civ. Proc. § 1648. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 196, 79 P. 875.

9. Not on the theory that balance which will remain due after a sale of the mortgaged premises and an application of the proceeds thereto is uncertain and indeterminable, and the court is not authorized to take testimony to ascertain the probable deficiency which will arise on foreclosure, and to direct the retention of a sufficient sum to pay it. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 196, 79 P. 875.

10. See 3 C. L. 1270.

11. Holway v. Ames [Me.] 60 A. 897.

12. In California the time allowed for presenting claims depends on the value of the estate. Ten months after first publication of notice if estate exceeds $10,000 in value, and four months if it does not. Code Civ. Proc. § 1491. In re Wilson's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 313.

In Iowa claims must be filed in the probate court, and notice thereof served on the representative within one year after publication by the latter of notice of his appointment. Code 1897, § 3278 et seq. Alice E. Min. Co. v. Blanden, 136 F. 252. The preferred claim of a physician for services rendered deceased in his last sickness is not barred by failure to file and prove it within the time limited by statute for the presentation of ordinary claims, provided it is presented before final settlement and the estate is solvent. Code, § 3349, barring claims not presented within twelve months, is expressly limited to those of the fourth class as designated by Id., § 3348, and does not apply to claims made preferred by § 3347. Wolfe v. Knapp [Iowa] 103 N. W. 369.

Michigan. Comp. Laws 1897, § 9380. Rankin v. Big Rapids [C. C. A.] 133 F. 670.

In Minnesota claims must be presented within the time limited by the order of the probate court, except that, for good cause shown, the court may in its discretion consider claims presented thereafter, and within one year and six months from the time when notice of the order limiting the time for presenting claims is given. Gen. St. 1894, § 4509. Schurmeier v. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 42. Actions upon claims which are susceptible of ascertainment and proof within the time fixed by the order of the probate court are barred unless presented within that time. Gen. St. 1894, § 4511. Id.

In West Virginia if a creditor fails to present his claim before a decree upon a report of debts, allowing debts and subjecting the lands of the estate to their payment, such decree bars him from claiming participation in the proceeds of such lands until such decreed debts are satisfied. Code 1899, c. 86, § 9. Statute requiring decree of distribution among creditors is mandatory, though word "may" is used. Trail v. Trail, 56 W. Va. 594, 49 S. E. 431. A creditor named in a bill by an executor to administer the assets of his testator, and who is made a formal party but fails to appear or prove his claim, is concluded by a decree allowing certain debts, but not his, both under the statute and by the principle of res judicata. Id. Rule not changed by Id., § 3, making realty of deceased liable for his debts, nor by Code 1899, c. 87, § 26, which applies only to ex parte settlements in probate court, and not to creditor's suits in circuit court. Id

it.[13] A decree barring all claims not presented within the time limited operates in a court of law to prevent plaintiff from showing facts estopping the executrix from setting it up, or that the presentation of plaintiff's claim under oath was waived.[14] Equity however, may enjoin the executor from proving such decree in the action at law, where it appears that verification was waived when the claim was presented before such decree.[15]

Such limitations do not apply to the remedy provided by the Federal statutes for the enforcement against an estate of its liability on national bank stock owned by it, but the estate is liable so long as its assets may be reached.[16] Unless the statute makes an exception in favor of creditors laboring under disability, it is generally held that none exists.[17]

Claims which are so contingent and uncertain as not to be susceptible of ascertainment and proof are not ordinarily barred by failure to present them within the time prescribed.[18] Provision is generally made for their presentation and payment where they do not become absolute until after such time has expired.[19] The

13. In Maine if the supreme judicial court, upon a bill in equity filed by a creditor whose claim has not been presented within the time limited is of the opinion that justice and equity require it, and that such creditor is not chargeable with culpable neglect in not presenting his claim on time, it may give him judgment thereon against the estate, but such judgment does not affect any payment or distribution made before the filing of the bill. Rev. St. 1883, c. 87, § 19. Holway v. Ames [Me.] 60 A. 897. "Culpable neglect" means a culpable want of watchfulness and diligence, the unreasonable inattention and inactivity of creditors who slumber on their rights. It is less than gross carelessness, but more than failure to use ordinary care. Id. In order to take advantage of this act the creditor must show the existence of a claim due him and enforceable by an action at law except for the special statute bar of limitations; that there are undistributed assets of the estate; that justice and equity require it; and that he is not chargeable with culpable negligence. Id. Evidence held to show that claimant was guilty of culpable neglect, there being nothing to show fraud, or that there was any agreement that its claim could be corrected. Id.

In Minnesota claims must be presented within the time fixed by the order of the probate court limiting the time for the presentation of claims, except that the court may thereafter, and within 18 months from the time when notice of the order limiting the time is given, allow claims for good cause shown and in the exercise of its discretion. Minn. Gen. St. 1894, § 4509. Schurmeier v. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 42. Federal court may entertain a suit in equity to permit presentation of and to allow such claims for good cause shown after the time limited by order of the probate court and within the 18 months. Id.

Nebraska: Even if the county court has authority to permit the filing of claim after the time limited in its order, it should not do so in the absence of a showing of diligence and of unavoidable mistake or accident, or of fraud of a nature analogous to that which warrants the interposition of a court of equity to grant a new trial in ordinary cases. Even if the rule previously laid down by the court that the county court has no jurisdiction to enlarge the time for filing claims under any circumstances is not adhered to, the most that could be held would be that the matter is one for the exercise of judicial discretion, which will not be interfered with except in cases of manifest error or abuse. Nebraska Wesleyan University v. Bowen [Neb.] 103 N. W. 275.

14. Decree made under Rev. 1898, p. 764, § 62, P. L. 1898, p. 740, § 70. Seymour v. Goodwin [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 93.

15. Seymour v. Goodwin [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 93.

16. Estate liable under U. S. Rev. St. § 5152, Comp. St. 1901, p. 3465. Mortimer v. Potter, 213 Ill. 178, 72 N. E. 817, afg. 114 Ill. App. 482.

17. Code, § 3349, requiring claims to be filed within twelve months after notice of the administrator's appointment, applies to minors, nor will minority be regarded as a peculiar circumstance entitling the creditor to equitable relief. Boyle v. Boyle, 126 Iowa, 167, 101 N. W. 748.

18. Under Minn. Gen. St. 1894, § 4509, actions upon claims that are so contingent and uncertain that they are not susceptible of ascertainment and proof within 18 months are not barred. Schurmeier v. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 42. In case the claim becomes absolute and provable a sufficient length of time before the expiration of the 18 months to give the creditor a reasonable time in which to present it and show cause within the 18 months, the rule is otherwise. Id.

19. Comp. Laws Mich. §§ 9411-9414, providing for the retention of funds to pay contingent claims which are presented to the commissioners, authorize retention for two years only, at the end of which time, if the claims have not become absolute, such funds will be distributed. Rankin v. City of Big Rapids [C. C. A.] 133 F. 670. Sections 9415, 9416, authorizing the presentation and payment of claims which do not become absolute until after the time for presenting claims has passed, provided they are presented within one year after they become due, applies only to claims becoming absolute before the estate has been closed. Id. For right to re-

Alabama act requiring the filing of claims against insolvent estates within six months has no application to judgments rendered not against the intestate but against the administrator.[20]

In the absence of a special statute of limitations, claims not barred by the general statute of limitations may be proved and presented at any time before final settlement, and therefore no claim not within the bar of the special statute can be excluded.[21] The death of the debtor arrests the running of the general statute of limitations until an administrator or executor has been or can be appointed.[22] Any claim that might have been enforced against decedent at the time of his death may be enforced against his representatives within the time prescribed by law therefor in any court having jurisdiction thereof.[23] The time prescribed within which claims may be enforced against the representative is a period of limitations as to debts owing by the decedent at the time of his death, distinct and separate from that prescribed by the general statute of limitations.[24] It is not operative until the death of the debtor, but it then supersedes the general statute, and stops the running thereof as to such debts.[25] Such time may shorten or extend the period fixed by the general statute as to such debts, and all thereof that are not barred at the time of the debtor's death may be proven against his representative within the time fixed therefor, and will not be barred until the expiration of such time.[26] Statutes providing short limitations for actions on rejected claims, and for barring claims not duly presented, are generally regarded as penal, and cannot be invoked by the representative to bar suit on the claim where his action toward the creditor in relation to its preservation or rejection has been ambiguous or equivocal.[27]

It is the duty of the representative to plead the general statute of limitations against a demand which is barred,[28] at least if the bar attached during decedent's cover from distributees in case claim does not become absolute until after estate is closed, see § 8, post.

20. Woodall v. Wright [Ala.] 37 So. 846.

21. Wolfe v. Knapp [Iowa] 103 N. W. 369. Conceding that preferred creditor may lose his right to priority by laches, the administrator cannot object to payment because of delay, where the estate is solvent and no other creditor is in any way prejudiced thereby. Id.

22, 23. Alice E. Min. Co. v. Blanden, 136 F. 252.

24. Alice E. Min. Co. v. Blanden, 136 F. 252. Proviso to Code 1887, § 2920, barring rights of action within five years from the qualification of the representative in terms applies only to cases in which the person whose estate is to be affected died after it took effect and where the right of action had accrued at the time of his death, and concurrence of both of these circumstances is essential. Davis' Adm'x v. Davis [Va.] 51 S. E. 216. Where creditors accepted securities under agreement that when and if paid they should be in full settlement of the debt, right of action was suspended during the currency of the securities, and where some of them did not mature until after death of decedent, right of action had not then accrued. Id. In any event case is controlled by Code 1887, § 2938, providing that when action was not pending when code took effect, it may be prosecuted within such time as it might have been had not the change been made. Limitation before code was enacted was 20 years. Id. Where trust fund, as such, did not come into the hands of the executors of the trustee, and the beneficiaries brought an action against the executors on the trustee's bond conditioned to pay over the trust fund to his successors and did not seek to follow a specific trust fund, held that, as to the defendants, the claim was a mere personal obligation of the testator to be enforced as any other obligation, and the two years' statute of limitations applicable to actions against executors applies. Downer v. Squire, 186 Mass. 189, 71 N. E. 534. Such bond not having been breached until a demand was made to pay over the fund in accordance with its terms, and the statute of limitations did not begin to run until such demand. Id.

25. Alice E. Mining Co. v. Blanden, 136 F. 252. On the death of the maker of a note, the statute limitations ceases to run against the note, and is succeeded by the two years' statute of nonclaim which runs from the grant of letters of administration. Ross v. Frick Co. [Ark.] 83 S. W. 343.

26. Alice E. Min. Co. v. Blanden, 136 F. 252. Where claim on promissory note was filed in the probate court and notice thereof served on the executor within one year after notice of his appointment, in accordance with Iowa Code 1897, § 3278 et seq., and action thereon was commenced within such year, the claim was not barred, though the ten years allowed by the general statute for commencing suit thereon (Code 1897, §§ 3447, 3451) expired before the appointment of the executor but after decedent's death. Id.

27. Seymour v. Goodwin [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 93.

28. Brantley v. Bittle [S. C.] 51 S. E. 561.

lifetime.[29] If he allows judgment to be rendered against him in either case, both he and the heirs, who are his privies, are bound hereby, and cannot thereafter set up that the claim is barred.[30] A dormant judgment is a debt of record and these rules apply to a proceeding instituted thereon, whether an ordinary suit on the judgment or a scire facias to revive the same.[31] Devisees may rely on the defense of limitations,[32] or show such laches on the part of plaintiff as to deprive him of the right to invoke the equity powers of the court, even though the representative fails to do so.[33]

Where it affirmatively appears on the face of the petition that the statutory period for bringing an action on a claim had elapsed before the action was brought, the objection may be raised by demurrer on the general ground that it fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.[34] In case the bar does not so affirmatively appear, the objection must be taken by answer.[35]

It is held in South Carolina that an administrator may, by his promise in writing, renew a note of his intestate so as to prevent the running of general limitations against the right to collect it from the personalty of the maker's estate,[36] but the promise of the heir is necessary in order to prevent limitations from running against the right to collect it from the realty.[37] The representative may also, by his conduct, estop himself from setting up limitations.[38]

An express waiver of the statute of limitations in the will and a direction to pay claims without reference thereto inures to the benefit of creditors and is binding on the executors.[39]

Where the representative has collected the assets and, by filing a petition for the settlement of his accounts, has brought the surplus into court for distribution among the creditors and next of kin, the fund becomes a trust fund for the benefit of creditors whose claims were presented in due time, and such claims do not afterwards become barred by lapse of time.[40]

To assert defense when claim is presented. In re Goss, 98 App. Div. 489, 90 N. Y. S. 769.

29. If the bar attached during decedent's lifetime, but not otherwise. Civ. Code 1895, § 3433. Helms v. Marshall, 121 Ga. 769, 49 S. E. 733.

30. Helms v. Marshall, 121 Ga. 769, 49 S. E. 733.

31. Judgment against administrator, purporting to revive a dormant judgment which so far as the record discloses was barred, there being no entry on the execution within ten years after its issuance, is not void, and cannot be collaterally attacked by heirs in trial of claim interposed by them to levy of an execution issued on the revived judgment. Helms v. Marshall, 121 Ga. 769, 49 S. E. 733.

32. Brantley v. Bittle [S. C.] 51 S. E. 561. A judgment cannot be renewed against the administrator of the judgment debtor, so as to again become a lien on the lands of the estate, by his acquiescence after the expiration of the 20 years' limitation prescribed by Code of Laws of 1902, § 2449. Id. Though he allows renewal after that time by default, devisees may prevent its enforcement against the realty. Id.

33. In action for partition and to enjoin defendants from enforcing judgment rendered against testator and revived more than 20 years thereafter against his administrator, the latter permitting such revival by default, held that the judgment creditor was barred by laches. Brantley v. Bittle [S. C.] 51 S. E. 561.

34. Columbia Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Clause [Wyo.] 78 P. 708.

35. Objection not raised by general demurrer where petition shows the date of the accrual of the cause of action but not the date when the action was commenced. Columbia Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Clause [Wyo.] 78 P. 708.

36. Divine v. Miller, 70 S. C. 225, 49 S. E. 479.

37. Promise of administrator held to bind him to extent of his interest in realty as heir. Divine v. Miller, 70 S. C. 225, 49 S. E. 479.

Note: There is a conflict on the question whether the personal representative has any power to waive or toll the statute, see 3 C. L. 1270, n. 89, 90; p. 1271, n. 98; 1 C. L. 1106, n. 86-90; 2 C. L. 759, n. 46-49.

38. An executor who assures a claimant of full payment of his claim and requests him not to sue and induces him to delay filing his claim for more than a year from the qualification of the executor is estopped to assert a forfeiture of his rights because of such failure to file. Hamilton's Ex'r v. Wright [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1093. An executor of a surety who induces a creditor not to file his claims cannot set up the limitations prescribed for sureties to defeat the clause. The statute does not apply to a period during which a surety obstructs or hinders suit. Id.

39. Glassell v. Glassell [Cal.] 82 P. 42.

40. No presumption of payment arises. In re Hannon's Estate, 93 N. Y. S. 207.

The enforcement of claims may also be barred by laches.[41]

Notice.[42]—Publication of a notice to creditors directing them to present their claims within a specified time is commonly required.[43] In California, after notice has been given, the court may, on proof of due publication filed, make an order or decree of due notice given.[44] In case the value of the estate is doubtful and the court is, therefore, unable to determine whether the notice allows sufficient time for the presentation of the claims, he may postpone the making of the decree of due notice until final settlement and distribution.[45]

The claim; its form and substance.[46]—Claims should so specify and identify the transactions out of which they arise as to appraise all concerned of their general nature, character and amount, so that they can be properly investigated and defended against if desired.[47] As a general rule it is not necessary to present the agreement on which the claim is founded;[48] but in some states, if it is founded on a bond, bill, note, or other instrument, a copy thereof must accompany it.[49] If a claim is secured by a recorded mortgage, it is sufficient to describe the mortgage or lien, and to refer to the date, volume, and page of its record.[50]

In some states claims must be supported by an affidavit of the claimant that they are justly due, and that no payments have been made thereon and that there are no offsets thereto.[51] In others the representative may require such an affidavit if in doubt as to the validity of a claim.[52]

In Ohio any person whose property is or may be affected by the recovery of a judgment on a claim may file a written requisition on the representative to disallow and reject it.[53]

Informalities in the manner of presenting claims may be waived.[54] The objection that a claim was not presented by the proper party is a matter in abatement

41. Plaintiffs loaned money to their brother and subsequently forgave him half the debt and accepted securities for balance under agreement that, if paid, they should constitute full settlement. Brother died leaving his estate to his wife for life. Plaintiffs took no steps to interfere with her possession, but commenced action against brother's representatives within two years after wife's death to recover the unpaid balance. Held that they were not guilty of laches. Davis' Adm'x v. Davis [Va.] 51 S. E. 216.

42. See 3 C. L. 1272.

43. Code Civ. Proc. § 1490. In re Wilson's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 313.

44. Code Civ. Proc. § 1492. In re Wilson's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 313.

45. Held that a decree vacating a decree of due notice, after publication of notice requiring claims to be presented within four months, and stating that the court found the estate to be greater in value than $10,000 (in consequence of which notice should have allowed ten months) is not res adjudicata as to the value of the estate, and does not preclude the court from determining, on an application for settlement and distribution, that the estate never exceeded $10,000 in value, and that the notice was sufficient, and again making a decree of due notice. In re Wilson's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 313.

46. See 3 C. L. 1272.

47. Carter v. Pierce, 114 Ill. App. 589.

48. Altgelt v. Elmendorf [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 41.

49. Code Civ. Proc. § 1497. Filing of note is sufficient, without filing the assignment by which it was transferred to claimant. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 191, 79 P. 878.

50. Code Civ. Proc. § 1497. Description of mortgage held sufficient. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 191, 79 P. 878.

51. Affidavit to claim presented held in conformity with Rev. St. 1895, § 2072. Altgelt v. Elmendorf [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 41.

52. Code Civ. Proc. § 2718. In re Goss, 98 App. Div. 489, 90 N. Y. S. 769. The affidavit is not admissible to prove the existence of the claim on the judicial settlement of the administrator's accounts. Id.

53. Rev. St. § 6098. Word "heir" as there used includes devisees and legatees. Todd v. Todd, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 105.

54. Where claim was presented in form of a letter, but parties adopted it as the basis of the issue, referred the same by consent, and litigated, without objection, every question upon which it was based, plaintiff was entitled to recover, if, on any theory presented by the evidence, he established a valid legal demand against the estate. Merino v. Munoz, 99 App. Div. 201, 90 N. Y. S. 985. Statutory provisions requiring the presentation of claims under oath are intended primarily for the benefit of the executor or administrator and may be waived by him, provided the estate is solvent. Right recognized by P. L. 1898, p. 739, § 68, providing for allowance to representative for payment of claims not so presented, if proved to be just. Seymour v. Goodwin [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 93. Verification held to have been waived by attorney of executrix. Id.

only, and is waived by joining issue on the merits without raising it in the county court.[55]

Allowance and rejection.—In some states, the executor or administrator is required to indorse on all claims presented to him his allowance or rejection with the date thereof.[56] If he allows it, it must then be presented to the county judge, who must in the same manner indorse upon it his allowance or rejection.[57] The failure or refusal of the representative or the judge to indorse such allowance or rejection within a specified time amounts to a constructive rejection.[58] The judge may, in his discretion, set aside a previous rejection and allow a claim, provided he does so before it is barred by either the general or special statute of limitations.[59] If rejected, suit must be brought on the claim in the proper court within a specified time.[60] The allowance of a claim at less than the full amount thereof is a rejection of the balance.[61] The rejection of the claim in such states is a condition precedent to the right to sue thereon.[62] Notice of the rejection is generally necessary in order to start the running of limitations.[63]

Contests and actions on claims.[64]—All interested parties must be cited to appear.[65] In Ohio any person whose property may be affected by the recovery of a judgment may file a requisition on the representative to disallow any claim presented, and is a proper party to an action on a claim so rejected, and may defend

55. That it was presented by assignee instead of the original claimant, even if presentation by assignee is insufficient. In re Morgan's Estate [Or.] 78 P. 1029.

56. Rev. Code 1899, § 6405. In re Smith's Estate [N. D.] 101 N. W. 890. Indorsement of words "allowed and approved," with the amount thereof and the date, on a claim purporting on its face to be a secured one, must be construed to refer to the claim on which they are indorsed, and constitute a sufficient allowance thereof as a secured claim. Is not a rejection of the claim as a secured one. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 191, 79 P. 878.

57. Rev. Code 1899, § 6405. In re Smith's Estate [N. D.] 101 N. W. 890. May be conclusively rejected by either the administrator or the judge, and the statute commences to run on a rejection by either. Jones v. Walden, 145 Cal. 523, 78 P. 1046. In case the claim is disallowed by the executor, it need not be presented to the judge, but if the administrator allows it, the rule is otherwise. Id.

58. Within ten days under Rev. Code 1899, § 6405. Purpose of this section is to fix time when claimants secure the right to sue, and when they become barred by the special limitation fixed by Id. § 6407, and for these purposes a rejection by nonaction is equivalent to an actual rejection by written indorsement. In re Smith's Estate [N. D.] 101 N. W. 890.

59. Whether rejected by nonaction or written indorsement. Thus allowance after ten days operates as revocation of constructive rejection. In re Smith's Estate [N. D.] 101 N. W. 890.

60. Code Civ. Proc. § 1822. Heinrich v. Heidt, 94 N. Y. S. 423. In California when a claim is rejected either by the administrator or a judge of the superior court, suit thereon must be commenced within three months from the date of its rejection, if it is then due, or within two months after it becomes due. Code Civ. Proc. § 1498. Jones v. Walden, 145 Cal. 525, 78 P. 1046. The rejection by an executor of an unauthenticated claim did not, under ch. 101, § 18, subch. 18, Act of Maryland 1798, have the effect to bring any part of it under the operation of the limitations prescribed by that act. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Darling, 21 App. D. C. 132. Under Rev. Code 1899, § 6407, must be brought in justice or district court, according to its amount, within three months after the date of its rejection, or it will be forever barred. In re Smith's Estate [N. D.] 101 N. W. 890. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4753, an action on a claim must be commenced within three months after its rejection. Columbia Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Clause [Wyo.] 78 P. 708.

61. Jones v. Walden, 145 Cal. 523, 78 P. 1046.

62. Hence rejection is no defense to action on claim, but only operates to set the special statute of limitations in motion. In re Smith's Estate [N. D.] 101 N. W. 890.

63. Code Civ. Proc. § 1822. Dockwood v. Dillenbeck, 93 N. Y. S. 321. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1822, an action against executors or administrators on a claim against the estate must be commenced within six months after notice of its rejection. Heinrich v. Heidt, 94 N. Y. S. 423. Notice may be served on the claimant's duly authorized agent. Notice addressed to claimant and served on attorneys who prepared claim held sufficient, though their actual employment had been limited to its preparation where the executor had no notice of that fact, where claim was indorsed by them. Lockwood v. Dillenbeck, 93 N. Y. S. 321. Where attorney employed to present claim sent it to executors by mail, a notice to him by mail of its rejection was notice to the claimant and started the running of limitations. Heinrich v. Heidt, 94 N. Y. S. 423.

64. See 3 C. L. 1274.

65. Judgment on a disputed claim rendered in the absence of necessary parties, as the next of kin, is not binding on them.

against it.[66] In New York a legatee cannot intervene in a proceeding to collect a disputed claim, which by reference has assumed the status of an action in the supreme court, on the ground of collusion between the administrator and the claimant, and consequent danger to his legacy.[67]

The ordinary rules of pleading apply to actions on claims,[68] though in states where the contest is in the probate court, technical rules governing suits at law may be disregarded and the substantial rights of the parties considered.[69] In some states it is not necessary for defendant to plead any matter by way of answer except a set-off or counterclaim.[70] A plea of plene administravit which fails to allege that the estate has been fully administered without notice of plaintiff's claim is defective, and is properly stricken on demurrer.[71]

Evidence and proof.[72]—The claimant, of course, has the burden of proving his claim.[73] On presentation of a claim for money received by decedent as a loan or for purposes of investment, his representatives have the burden of showing either payment or an accounting.[74]

It is competent to show by parol that a promissory note is not a valid claim.[75] Evidence of the payment by the executors of other similar claims is inadmissible.[76] Proof that a note presented as a claim was executed by mistake and did not express the intention of the parties is only admissible when such facts are alleged by way of an equitable counterclaim.[77]

Recovery can be had only on the claim as presented to and rejected by the administrator,[78] but a variance is mere error and not an avoidance of the judgment.[79]

Riley v. Ryan, 103 App. Div. 176, 93 N. Y. S. 386, rvg. 45 Misc. 151, 91 N. Y. S. 952.

66. Rev. St. § 6098. Word "heir" in such section may be construed to include legatees and devisees. Todd v. Todd, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 105.

67. Code Civ. Proc. § 452, subd. 2, authorizing intervention in certain cases, does not apply where no specific or tangible property is involved, and a mere money judgment is sought. Honigbaum v. Jackson, 97 App. Div. 527, 90 N. Y. S. 182.

68. Petition held to state good cause of action. Altgelt v. Elmendorf [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 41. In an action on a claim against decedent's estate held not necessary to set out the will, but plaintiff was entitled to prove its terms under allegation that it did not specifically direct how the executor was to dispose of the property. Id.

69. Carter v. Pierce, 114 Ill. App. 589. Thus where a claim filed was insufficient, and an amended claim was filed after limitations had run, it will be deemed to relate back though a different cause of action is set up where it appears by extraneous evidence that the original and amended claims pertain to the same transaction. Id.

70. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2479. Kennedy v. Swisher, 34 Ind. App. 676, 73 N. E. 724.

71. Allegations that plaintiff did not file his claim within twelve months from the date of administration is insufficient where it is not also alleged that defendant did not know of existence of claim when he administered the estate. Allen v. Confederate Pub. Co., 121 Ga. 773, 49 S. E. 782.

72. See 3 C. L. 1275, n. 31 et seq.

73. Evidence sufficient to support claim for half interest in certain stock. In re Brown's Estate [Pa.] 60 A. 147. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2479, regulating the trial of claims against estates, one claiming on a note made by his agent and found in the latter's possession at his decease, has the burden of establishing its execution. Indiana Trust Co. v. Byram [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 670. Evidence held to show that decedent held note as claimant's agent and hence claimant was entitled to recover thereon. Id.

74. Representatives held to have failed to meet burden. In re Brown's Estate [Pa.] 60 A. 149.

75. That the holder (a child of the decedent) held it under an agreement to return it when demanded and that when demand was made she said it was lost and would be returned when found. Carskaddon v. Miller, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 47.

76. Admission held harmless. Tyndall v. Van Auken's Estate, 94 N. Y. S. 269.

77. For purpose of showing that it was intended as an advancement. Schmidt v. Schmidt's Estate, 123 Wis. 295, 101 N. W. 678.

78. Columbia Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Clause [Wyo.] 78 P. 708; In re Dutard's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 519. Claimant is not, on appeal, entitled to enlarge the written claim filed in the probate court. Form of claim for services held not to cover demands for property destroyed or for loss of profits of claimant's business, and evidence thereof properly excluded. Luizzi v. Brady's Estate [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 59, 103 N. W. 574.

79. The fact that a referee appointed to pass on a disputed claim allows an amendment and that a judgment materially differing from that asked for in the claim filed is rendered on the amended claim is no ground for vacating such judgment at a subsequent term. Though it may be ground for reversing it on appeal. Riley v. Ryan, 103

Claims against estates of decedents must be established by very satisfactory evidence,[80] and this is particularly true of claims for services and the like, which were never presented to decedent during his lifetime,[81] and claims or contracts alleged to have been made by him.[82] By statute in Massachusetts if a cause of action brought against an executor is supported by oral testimony of a promise by the testator, evidence of written or oral statements made by him and of his habits of dealing tending to disprove or show the improbability of making such a promise, are admissible.[83]

Set off.[84]—In an action by the assignee of a claim, the administrator cannot offset a claim which plaintiff owes him personally, though the heirs have assigned their interests in the estate to defendant in his personal capacity.[85]

(§ 6) C. Classification, preferences, and priorities.[86]—Claims are generally classified by statute and provision made for their payment in the order of such classification.[87] No creditor of any one class is entitled to receive any payment on

App. Div. 176, 93 N. Y. S. 386, rvg. 45 Misc. 151, 91 N. Y. S. 952.

80. Evidence insufficient to sustain verdict against the estate for the value of certain securities alleged to have been delivered to deceased during his lifetime to be sold by him. Linden v. Thieriot, 94 N. Y. S. 246. Rule that a fact testified to by disinterested witness, who is not discredited, and whose evidence does not conflict with other evidence offered at the trial, is to be taken as established, does not apply. Walbaum v. Heaney, 93 N. Y. S. 640. Question whether loan sought to be recovered was made, held for the jury. Id. The unsupported testimony of claimant is insufficient to establish a claim for personal services rendered decedent during his lifetime. Evidence insufficient to support claim for caring for premises, nursing decedent, etc. Mulhern v. Carrard, 94 N. Y. S. 741. Allowance of claim for board and clothes furnished decedent's daughter by her half-brother, held excessive. Goetz v. Walters [N. J. Law] 59 A. 19; Id., 59 A. 20. In proceedings to establish claim on open account, evidence held insufficient to support judgment for plaintiff. Stickley v. Hanson [Iowa] 102 N. W. 514.

81. In action for services alleged to have been rendered testator, evidence as to the property and circumstances of deceased (Tripp v. Macomber, 187 Mass. 109, 72 N. E. 361), and as to plaintiff's conduct after testator's decease in failing to make any claim, held admissible (Id.). It being shown that decedent was amply able to pay his debts, it will be presumed that he did so, and such presumption can only be overcome by clear and convincing proof on the part of the claimant. Evidence insufficient to establish claim for board and lodging alleged to have been furnished deceased. Schultz v. Carrard, 94 N. Y. S. 740. Can only be allowed on clear proof of their validity. Evidence insufficient to establish promise by deceased to pay any more for services, consisting of shaving him, etc., than was paid when the services were rendered. Maisenhelder v. Crispell, 94 N. Y. S. 707. Claims for board and care of decedent should be carefully examined and only allowed upon the most satisfactory proof, particularly when in favor of near relatives. In re Goss, 98 App. Div. 489, 90 N. Y. S. 769. Clear proof from disinterested witnesses that the services were accepted with intent to pay therefor is required. Evidence insufficient, where no claim was made until after provisions of will were known. Rock v. Rock, 93 N. Y. S. 646. Are looked upon with great disfavor and every intendment will be made against them. Claim by partner against estate of deceased co-partner on due bills given by firm thirty-five years before decedent's death held stale and unenforceable, though bills were payable on demand, there being no evidence to rebut the presumption of payment. In re De Coursey's Estate, 211 Pa. 92, 60 A. 490. Where one renders personal services to a relative during his last illness and does not present a claim until after his relative's death, the evidence of a promise to pay for such services must be considered. Currey's Estate, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 479.

82. Contracts must be established by the clearest and most convincing evidence. Oral contract whereby he promised mother of his illegitimate child to settle certain sum on it provided she would support it for certain time cannot be established by parol evidence of an interested witness. Rosseau v. Rouss, 180 N. Y. 116, 72 N. E. 916. In action on claim for services, where claimant claimed that testatrix had agreed to leave her her property in consideration of such services, and where it appeared that she had accepted the provisions made for her by the will, and she testified that she was claiming the property given her thereby, held that she was not entitled to recover anything further. Finn v. Sowders' Estate [Mich.] 103 N. W. 177.

83. Rev. Laws, c. 175, § 67. Tripp v. Macomber, 187 Mass. 109, 72 N. E. 361. In action to recover for services rendered testator, his declarations made in his lifetime or contained in his will held admissible. Id.

84. See 3 C. L. 1275, n. 37. See, also, Set-off and Counterclaim, 4 C. L. 1421.

85. Under Pub. St. 1901, c. 223, § 7, authorizing set-off of mutual debts or demands only. McCaffrey v. Kennett [N. H.] 60 A. 96.

86. See 3 C. L. 1276.

87. California: Code Civ. Proc. § 1643, divides debts into five classes to be paid in the order there given. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 196, 79 P. 875. The fourth class includes judgments and mortgages in the order of their date, and the fifth class all other demands not included in the preceding classes. Id. Section 1644 provides that the preference given to mortgages in the preceding section only extends to the proceeds of the property mortgaged, and that if his claim until all those of the preceding class are fully paid.[88] If the estate is insufficient to pay all the debts of any one class, each creditor is entitled to a dividend in proportion to the amount of his claim.[89] Classification is primarily for the benefit and protection of creditors, and when they will not be prejudiced thereby, the representative cannot object to the belated payment of a preferred claim not filed and presented within the time limited for the presentation of ordinary claims.[90]

Claims for proper and necessary attorneys fees and other expenses of administration which are payable out of the assets of the estate are usually given priority over the general debts of the decedent.[91] The right of the widow to dower and homestead is superior to the rights of the general creditors.[92]

The liens, incumbrances, and order of payment of the indebtedness are fixed either by contract or by statute, and cannot be disturbed by the court in an administration suit.[93]

Secured debts and liens.[94]—The lien of a judgment obtained during the life of a decedent continues indefinitely as against his heirs and devisees.[95] One proving his claim as unsecured and failing to enforce his security thereby places himself in the list of general creditors.[96]

The priority called a "privilege" and given in Louisiana to the claim of a

they are insufficient to pay the debt, the part remaining must be classed with other demands against the estate. Id. "Proceeds" as there used does not include the rents of the mortgaged property accruing before the sale, at least where they are not included in the mortgage, and hence such rents are general assets of the estate on which the mortgage is not a lien, and in which it is entitled to no preference. Preference given by section 1643 is clearly limited to proceeds arising from the mortgaged property, either on a foreclosure sale, or a sale by the administrator under section 1659. Id. Where there are no proceeds before the court, as where there has been no sale of the mortgaged premises, the mortgage debt should be classed as a claim of the fifth class, and allowed a dividend estimated on the full amount thereof, without any deduction for the probable proceeds of a future sale. Id.

Georgia: Under Civ. Code 1895, § 3424, debts due for rent take priority over liquidated demands. Wade v. Peacock, 121 Ga. 816, 49 S. E. 826.

Illinois: Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 3. § 70, places claims for money received by deceased in trust for any purpose in the sixth class, and all debts and demands, not included in the other six classes, in the seventh class. Felsenthal v. Kline, 214 Ill. 121, 73 N. E. 428. The word "trust" is used in its restrictive sense and applies only to technical trusts and not to those implied by law as growing out of contracts. Hence, claims for repayment of money deposited by customers in hands of broker and loan agent for investment belong in the seventh class rather than in the sixth. Id. Indebtedness of trustee for moneys received under an express trust for the use of the beneficiaries of the trust belongs to sixth class. Jarrett v. Johnson, 216 Ill. 212, 74 N. E. 756, afg. 116 Ill. App. 592.

Iowa: Money deposited with decedent in tr for a particular purpose is a preferred claim. Money deposited with firm, of which decedent was a member, for purpose of securing it for advances to be made in the future. Officer v. Officer [Iowa] 101 N. W. 484.

North Carolina: Referee's fees, in a suit in which judgment is recovered against the administrator, are not a preferred claim against the estate, but are simply a part of the costs, and, when not paid in advance, take no greater pro rata than the judgment of which they are a part. Not preferred by Code, § 1416. Cobb v. Rhea, 137 N. C. 295, 49 S. E. 161. The fact that funds derived from the sale of realty to make assets in another proceeding are in the hands of the clerk does not authorize the court to order the payment of such fees therefrom as a preferred debt. Id.

88, 89. Code Civ. Proc. § 1645. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 196, 79 P. 875.

90. Physician's claim for services preferred under Code, § 3347, and not barred by failure to present it within time limited for presentation of ordinary claims. Wolfe v. Knapp [Iowa] 103 N. W. 369.

91. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 3852. Costs of suit to recover assets alleged to belong to the estate, which he was authorized by county court to bring, and in which he was unsuccessful. Ferguson v. Woods [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1094. Action cannot be regarded as one pending at death of decedent within Id. §§ 3846, 3847. Id.

92. Whitmore v. Rascoe, 112 Tenn. 621, 85 S. W. 860.

93. Not by authorizing the issuance of a receiver's certificate to pay expenses incurred by the administratrix in discharging mortgages, funeral expenses, attorney's fees, and expenses of support of the widow and family. Fisher v. Southern Loan & Trust Co., 138 N. C. 90, 50 S. E. 592.

94. See 3 C. L. 1277, n. 62.

95. Even though after five years and between two revivals, its priority is lost as to other judgments against decedent or as to mortgagees or judgment creditors of devisees by failure to notify them of its revival. Ziegler v. Schall, 209 Pa. 526, 58 A. 912.

96. Defendant died pending a suit at law in which his land was attached, and the suit widow and minors in necessitous circumstances does not disturb the relative rank of inferior claims or cause them to prorate in what may be left.[97]

(§ 6) D. Funds, assets, and securities for payment.[98]—The usual way in which charges against an estate are satisfied is for the administrator to collect the debts owed to the deceased, and to sell personalty not specifically bequeathed, and use the proceeds for that purpose.[99] The personalty is the primary fund for the payment of debts,[1] with the realty secondarily liable if there is a deficiency.[2] The testator may, however, if he so desires, designate what portion of the estate shall be appropriated for that purpose and the expenses of administration, and such a provision controls.[3] In case he fails to do so, or the estate appropriated for that purpose is insufficient, resort should be had to that portion of the estate not devised or disposed of.[4]

Legatees and devisees must contribute ratably in case there is not sufficient undisposed-of property.[5] A widow electing to take under the will in lieu of dower must also contribute.[6] Her election against the will does not make what she takes under the statute intestate in the sense that it is primarily liable; but her portion and that devised are equally liable.[7]

Subsequently collected assets are available to creditors unless their claims have become statute barred.[8]

Under the doctrine of marshaling assets, general creditors may, ordinarily, compel the holder of a claim secured by a lien on realty to look to the land alone for the satisfaction of his debt, or, failing in that, are entitled to be subrogated or substituted to his rights against the land to the extent that the personalty is used in paying his debt.[9] This rule does not, however, apply to a case where the widow is asserting her right of dower and homestead against the general creditors, to whose rights hers is superior.[10] If the holder of the lien debt resorts to the realty instead of the personalty for its payment, the widow is entitled to be subrogated and substituted to the rights which he would have had in the personalty, had he filed a claim against the estate, for the satisfaction of her claim to dower and homestead, which is superior to the rights of the general creditors.[11] was revived against his administrator. Judgment was entered by plaintiff and execution was issued and a levy made on the land. Held that, by releasing and returning the levy, and by proving his claim against the estate as an absolute and unsecured one, without anything to indicate an intention to retain his lien, and a continuance of that condition for over a year, plaintiff abandoned his levy and placed himself in the list of general creditors. Lafferty v. Lafferty [Mich.] 102 N. Y. 626.

97. Succession of Peters [La.] 38 So. 690.

98. See 3 C. L. 1277.

99. In absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that testator intended his estate to be administered in the ordinary way. Walker v. Hill [N. H.] 60 A. 1017.

1. Whitmore v. Rascoe, 112 Tenn. 621, 85 S. W. 860. Including a vendor's lien debt created by decedent. Id.

2. See post, §§ 7, 8.

3. Code Civ. Proc. § 1560. In re Traver's Estate, 145 Cal. 508, 78 P. 1058. Where a testator designates a fund, items of indebtedness paid should not be charged by the executor to the general estate. Phillips v. Duckett, 112 Ill. App. 587.

4. Code Civ. Proc. § 1562. Where no provision is made, there is an "insufficient" provision within the meaning of this section. In re Traver's Estate, 145 Cal. 508, 78 P. 1058. Where half of testator's property is undisposed of, debts and expenses should be paid from it. Id.

5. In Ohio whenever any estate, real or personal, that is devised is taken from the devisee for the payment of testator's debts, all other devisees and legatees are required to contribute their respective proportions of the loss to the person from whom such estate is taken. Rev. St. § 5973. Allen v. Tressenrider [Ohio] 73 N. E. 1015.

6. Allen v. Tressenrider [Ohio] 73 N. E. 1015.

7. Gordon v. James [Miss.] 39 So. 18.

8. From Code 1857 to the year 1880, creditors might have sued the administrator though the estate was insolvent, the earlier law not having been re-enacted; hence, limitations ran and claims not prosecuted in 1867 cannnot be enforced as to assets first available in 1902. Nutt v. Brandon [Miss.] 38 So. 104. Errors pointed out in Hendricks v. Pugh, 57 Miss. 162, 163, and in Pool v. Ellis, 64 Miss. 555, 1 So. 725. Id.

9, 10. Whitmore v. Rascoe, 112 Tenn. 621, 85 S. W. 860.

11. Is entitled to allowance of dower and Assets should not be applied to discharge liens on land which when thus cleared will not come into the estate but will go to the administrator as an individual holding under the foreclosure of a junior lien.[12] Moneys arising from one year's crops and constituting nearly the entire assets should not be ordered paid to satisfy crop liens partly on other crops.[13]

(§ 6) E. Payment and satisfaction;[14] refund; interest.—Interest on a claim for board can only be allowed from the date of its presentation.[15]

In California, if the estate is insolvent, no greater rate of interest can be allowed on any claim after the first publication of notice to creditors than is allowed on judgments obtained in the superior court.[16] In case of payment of a lien to clear land later adjudged to a stranger, the executor may be subrogated to the lien.[17]

§ 7. Subjection of realty to payment of debts under orders of court. A. Right to resort to realty.[18]—The personalty being insufficient for that purpose, so much of decedent's land as may be necessary may be sold under order of the court for the payment of his debts,[19] unless the same is exempt by law from sale on execution.[20] Such exemptions will be deemed waived unless asserted when the application for sale is made.[21] The land may also as a general rule be sold for the payment of funeral and administration expenses,[22] but in some states the rule is otherwise.[23] homestead from surplus arising on the sale of the realty, and from the pro rata share of the personalty to which the lien creditor would have been entitled, the estate being insolvent. Whitmore v. Rascoe, 112 Tenn. 621, 85 S. W. 860.

12, 13. O'Bryan Bros. v. Wilson [Miss.] 38 So. 509.

14. See 3 C. L. 1278.

15. Where date not shown, will be allowed from date of rejection of claim. Tyndall v. Van Auken's Estate, 94 N. Y. S. 269.

16. Code Civ. Proc. § 1494. Where the estate is insolvent, this statute operates to reduce the rate of interest on a mortgage given by decedent from ten to seven per cent., so that a parol agreement by the mortgagor to pay taxes on both his own and the mortgagee's interest in the premises in consideration of the reduction of the rate of interest to seven per cent. is unenforceable as against the mortgagor's estate for want of consideration. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 196, 79 P. 875.

17. See, also, Subrogation, 4 C. L. 1583; Implied Contracts (payments by mistake), 3 C. L. 1690. Realty was conveyed subject to a mortgage, and two actions were brought against the grantee to set aside the conveyance as in fraud of creditors. The appellate division reversed a judgment in one of the actions setting aside the conveyance. Pending an appeal to the court of appeals the grantee died, and his executors were served with notice of appeal. They only had constructive notice of the other action through filing of lis pendens. Mortgage, which was a prior lien to the claims of the creditors seeking to set aside the conveyance, became due before the appeal was heard, and the executors paid it from the assets of the estate, after which the judgment was reversed. Held that executors were not volunteers and were entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee as against judgment creditors. Lilianthal v. Lesser, 102 App. Div. 500, 92 N. Y. S. 619.

18. See 3 C. L. 1278.

19. Stewart v. Rogers [Kan.] 80 P. 58. Code Civ. Proc. § 2479. Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667. Is in the hands of the representative for the payment of the debts as far as needed for that purpose after the personalty has been exhausted. James v. Gibson [Ark.] 84 S. W. 485. See, also, Tiffany, Real Prop. p. 1321. An allowance of claims and a full accounting of personalty leaving them unpaid makes a prima facie case in most states. The burden is on opponents to show that claims are not properly allowable. Milburn v. East [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1116; 2 Woerner, Adm. 466, and see cases cited from other states.

20. See Exemptions, 3 C. L. 1408; Homesteads, 3 C. L. 1630. Except where it is devised expressly charged with the payment of his debts or funeral expenses, or is exempt from levy and sale by virtue of an execution. Code Civ. Proc. § 2749. Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667. Decedent's homestead is not subject to administration, and any attempt on the part of the county court to sell it for the payment of debts is void. Dignowity v. Baumblatt [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 834.

21. See Exemptions, 3 C. L. 1408; Homesteads, 3 C. L. 1630. If the property purchased with pension money is exempt from sale for payment of decedent's debts, the widow and heirs cannot assert such an exemption in a collateral proceeding as against an innocent purchaser, where they did not assert it before the surrogate. Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667.

22. Sale ordered for payment of funeral and administration expenses. In re Koppikus' Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 732. Funeral expenses. Code Civ. Proc. § 2749. Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667.

23. In Arkansas, where there are no debts there can be no sale for the purpose of paying the expenses of administration. Under Kirby's Dig. § 186, providing that lands shall be assets in the hands of the representative for the payment of debts. Collins v. Paepcke-

The application for a sale must be made within the time limited by statute,[24] or, in case no time is fixed, within a reasonable time.[25] Only those persons can complain of the delay who have been injured thereby,[26] and it is not a ground of collateral attack where the rights of innocent third parties have intervened.[27] Equity having assumed jurisdiction of a suit to set aside a sale of lands to pay a claim may, where the right to resort to the land has been lost by delay, enjoin any further proceedings to sell it for that purpose.[28]

It is the policy of the law not to permit the sale of lands of a decedent by the representative for any purpose for which other funds and property are available and sufficient.[29]

Realty which is specifically devised should not be sold until the rest of the estate has been exhausted,[30] and it is the duty of the devisee to see that this is done.[31]

Leicht Lumber Co. [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1044. In case application is made to sell lands solely for the purpose of paying the expenses of administration, it must be made to appear that such expenses were incurred in the course of administering the estate to pay debts due personally by the decedent. Id.

24. Where plaintiff was both the committee of a lunatic and administrator of his estate after his death, held, that limitations had not run against an action by him against the heirs to settle his accounts, and to have the lands of decedent sold to pay the indebtedness he held against the estate, and the balance partitioned among the heirs and next of kin, where he had never been discharged from either office, especially as defendants required him to retain both offices when he was about to file his suit for an accounting before the statute could have been a bar. Cauthen v. Cauthen, 70 S. C. 167, 49 S. E. 321. In Pennsylvania no debts except those secured by mortgage or judgment are a lien on decedent's realty longer than five years after his decease unless an action is brought thereon within such time, or unless a copy or particular written statement of any bond, covenant, debt, or demand not payable within such period is filed in the office of the prothonotary, in which case it is a lien for five years after it becomes due. Act Feb. 24, 1834, P. L. 70. Sleeper v. Hickey, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 59. A judgment note of a decedent entered in the office of the prothonotary is equivalent to the filing of a copy or written statement of the debt within the act, and will continue the lien of the debt for five years from the date of filing. Id.

25. Seven years has been adopted in Illinois as the time within which the application must be made. Graham v. Brock, 212 Ill. 579, 72 N. E. 825. Mere lapse of time will not bar the proceeding if sufficient excuse is given for the delay. Delay of nineteen years, where land was subject to widow's dower, held not excused by merely showing that land was practically worthless for many years, and had recently increased in value. Id. The rights of the creditors to enforce payment out of the lands must be exercised within a reasonable time, and will be barred by unreasonable delay. Unexplained delay of fourteen years held a bar. James v. Gibson [Ark.] 84 S. W. 485. On setting aside sale for fraud, held error for chancellor to declare debt a lien on the land and to order a resale. Id. Rule is not, strictly speaking, an application of the equitable doctrine of laches, or of the statute of limitations, but is, sui generis, rather an application of the statutory period of limitation to the equitable doctrine, so as to prevent creditors from abusing their rights. Id. Fact that land was in possession of executor during delay does not change the rule. Id. In the absence of peculiar circumstances excusing delay, application should be made within the time allowed for the filing and allowance of claims. Milburn v. East [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1116. Application of administrator made three and one-half years after his appointment held not too late, where, by reason of the fact that the conveyances to her were not recorded, he had no knowledge that she owned the property. Id.

26. Heir not injured cannot complain. Robbins v. Boulware [Mo.] 88 S. W. 674.

27. See, also, § 15, post. Such delay is a matter of defense which may be set up to prevent the sale, but cannot be made available in a collateral proceeding after the sale where the rights of innocent parties have intervened. Delay of fourteen years. Kelley v. Laconia Levee Dist. [Ark.] 85 S. W. 249.

28. James v. Gibson [Ark.] 84 S. W. 485.

29. Where all the debts had been paid by a devisee, and only a small part of the expense of administration remained unpaid, and there was no showing that funds could not be realized from the rents of the property to pay it, held, that no necessity for a sale had been shown, conceding that a sale could be had to pay the cost of administration. Adamson v. Parker [Ark.] 85 S. W. 239.

30. Lot in which will gave devisee an interest. In re Bryant's Estate [Wash.] 80 P. 555. Where order provided that administrator should not sell certain lots until the balance of the estate had been exhausted and all the rest of the realty had been sold or offered for sale and it should become necessary to sell them in order to raise the required amount, held, that he was entitled to sell such lots where he was unable to sell enough of the other property to raise the required sum, though he offered it for sale for more than six months, the statute requiring the sale to be made within six months from the date fixed by him when he will commence receiving bids. Id. In a collateral action it will be presumed that land specifically devised was not sold until the

In some states the whole of the realty may be sold, when such a course is deemed to be for the best interests of the estate, though the sale of only a part thereof is necessary.[32]

In Georgia, on the executor assenting to a devise of realty, the land is no longer assets of the estate, and is not subject to sale for the payment of its debt and the ordinary has no jurisdiction to order it sold as part of the estate.[33]

(§ 7) B. Procedure to obtain order.[34]—An application under the statute to a court of general equity powers for license to sell realty is not an action in equity, but a special statutory proceeding.[35] It is purely a proceeding in rem, and the only questions to be determined are the amount of the indebtedness, the amount of personalty available for its payment, the necessity for selling the land, and the character of the estate sought to be charged.[36] The allowance of claims against the estate by the administrator, though not binding on the heirs, is prima facie sufficient to authorize the sale of realty for their payment, and the administrator need not, in the first instance, prove them on the hearing of the application to sell.[37] The heirs may, on the hearing of the application, contest the validity of claims already allowed in proceedings to which they were not parties, but if they do so, must introduce some evidence to overcome the prima facie case made by proof of their allowance.[38]

Creditors or others interested in the estate are generally given the right to petition for a sale,[39] or to oppose an application to sell.[40] rest of decedent's land was exhausted. Gwinner v. Michael, 103 Va. 268, 48 S. E. 895.

31. If he is party to suit in which land is sold, and makes no objection, he cannot, in a collateral action, have his loss made good out of other lands of decedent. Gwinner v. Michael, 103 Va. 268, 48 S. E. 895.

32. Whether it will be for the advantage, benefit, and best interests of the estate or those interested therein to order a sale of all the realty, when it is only necessary to sell one tract to pay the expenses of administration, is a question of fact to be determined by the trial court upon the evidence before it in reference thereto. In re Steward's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 728. And to the extent that its decision depends upon inferences to be drawn from the situation of the property, or of the parties interested therein, is not open to review. Court held to have exercised a wise discretion in refusing to sell both tracts, though one of them was so small as to render its division among the heirs impractical, where title thereto was in dispute. Id.

33. Such order is void for want of jurisdiction. Watkins v. Gilmore, 121 Ga. 488, 49 S. E. 598. Though the ordinary has granted an order of sale, the executor cannot recover the land from the remainderman or from a third party, whether the latter has good title or not. Id. Unpaid creditors may follow the land in the hands of the devisees, or have their remedy against the executors personally for assenting to the devises before paying the debts. Id.

34. See 3 C. L. 1280.

35. Bixby v. Jewell [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1026.

36. When it is made to appear that the property is the homestead, court has no authority to proceed further until homestead right has been admeasured and its value determined. Bixby v. Jewell [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1026.

37. Fact of existence of valid claims not it so appears from the fact set forth in the required to be affirmatively established by Code, § 3323. Milburn v. East [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1116.

38. Milburn v. East [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1116.

39. On creditor's bill for sale of realty for payment of debts, evidence held to establish that wife was creditor of estate for money paid in construction of building, which husband had promised to repay. Ruliman v. Winterling [Md.] 60 A. 468. Evidence insufficient to support her claim for money advanced for repairs of building, or for rents and profits. Id. The purchaser of the interest of an heir in decedent's land is not entitled to apply for a sale under Rev. St. 1899, § 150, providing for a sale on application of a "creditor or other person interested in the estate," and a sale made on his application is void. Realty is no part of the estate which goes to the administrator for distribution, and persons interested are those entitled to a distributive share. Stark v. Kirchgraber, 186 Mo. 633, 85 S. W. 868.

40. Any person interested in the estate including the grantee of one of the heirs. Code Civ. Proc. § 1540. Is entitled on distribution to the share of the heir so conveyed to him. Code Civ. Proc. § 1678. In re Steward's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 728. Objection to introduction of deed conveying heir's interest on the ground that it did not appear that the latter had any interest in the estate, held overcome by averment in administrator's petition that grantor was the husband of the deceased. Id. Its introduction did involve any adverse claim to the property, but was proper for purpose of establishing grantee's right to object to sale of all the property. Id.

Among other things the petition should set forth a description of the real estate of the deceased liable to be made assets for the payment of his debts, and his title therein at his death.[41] The sufficiency of the petition may be tested by a demurrer for want of facts.[42]

The required notice of the proceedings must be given,[43] and a failure to give it is not waived by a voluntary petition.[44]

A mortgagee of a portion of the lands of the estate has a right, when application is made for authority to sell all the lands, to require that the sale of land which his mortgage does not cover shall be proper and regular.[45]

Mere irregularities in the proceedings do not affect the title of the purchaser [46] or render them subject to collateral attack.[47]

(§ 7) C. The order.[48]—An order authorizing a sale of the land does not give the representative power to exchange it,[49] but though the order authorizes a sale of all the land, where the representative sells a part of it for a sum sufficient to pay all the debts, and his return to that effect is approved, accepted and recorded, and his final account showing the receipt and application of the proceeds is also accepted, he has no authority to thereafter sell the balance.[50] Recitals in the order that the statutory notice was given is evidence of such fact only on a collateral attack on the order.[51]

A license purporting to authorize the sale of a homestead for the payment of debts, in states where it is exempted from liability therefor, is absolutely void.[52]

(§ 7) D. The sale.[53]—The rules of fairness, etc., applicable generally to judicial and trustees' sales apply here.[54] Where the general bond does not include it or where the statute requires it, a special bond must be given before making the

41. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2491. Taylor v. Stephens [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 609. If by his death decedent's title was defeated, and it so appears from the facts set forth in the petition, it will be held insufficient on demurrer. Id.

42. For failure to show title in decedent. Taylor v. Stephens [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 609.

43. Rev. St. 1879, § 149, requiring notice of proceeding to be published four weeks before the term of court, does not require that the period should be the four weeks immediately preceding the term. Robbins v. Boulware [Mo.] 88 S. W. 674.

44. Where notice of an application for an order authorizing the sale of realty to pay debts is required by statute to be publicly given. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Dunovant's Estate [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 208.

45. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Dunovant's Estate [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 208.

46. Under Rev. Probate Code, § 202, the failure to set forth facts showing a sale to be necessary in the order to show cause will not invalidate the subsequent proceedings if the defect is supplied by the proofs at the hearing, and the general facts showing such necessity be stated in the decree. Blackman v. Mulhall [S. D.] 104 N. W. 250. The petition was not verified by affidavit as required by statute. Robbins v. Boulware [Mo.] 88 S. W. 674. Failure to comply with Rev. St. 1895, art. 2123, requiring application to show the estimated expense of administration, etc., can be taken advantage of only by exceptions made at the proper time, and does not render the application insufficient to support an order of sale. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Dunovant's Estate [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 208. Title of bona fide purchaser at sale made pursuant to a decree of the surrogate is not affected, where petition was presented, the parties were duly cited, and a decree was made as prescribed by statute, by any omission, defect, irregularity, or error, occurring between the return of the citation and the making of the decree, except so far as the same would affect the title of a purchaser at a sale pursuant to a judgment of the supreme court. Code Civ. Proc. § 2763, as amended by Laws 1904, c. 750, p. 1911. Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667. Not by omission to appoint guardian ad litem for minor heirs, where decree recites that order had been made appointing special guardian. Id.

47. See § 15, post.

48. See 3 C. L. 1281.

49. Order to sell land held not to authorize its exchange. Cole v. Jerman, 77 Conn. 374, 59 A. 425.

50. Cole v. Jerman, 77 Conn. 374, 59 A. 425.

51. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Dunovant's Estate [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 208.

52. Homestead of less value than $2,000. Bixby v. Jewell [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1026. Pleadings insufficient to sustain judgment for sale, where they fail to set out that the sale is sought for purpose of paying claims from liability for which the homestead is not exempted. Id.

53. See 3 C. L. 1282.

54. See Judicial Sales, 4 C. L. 321; Trusts, 4 C. L. 1727; Compare Foreclosure, etc., 3 C. L. 1438.

sale.[55] In Mississippi the land sold must be divided into tracts of not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres.[56]

A sale of realty to pay decedent's debts, made under order of the proper court, is a judicial sale,[57] to which the rule of caveat emptor applies.[58] The court in dealing with the purchaser, however, will do so upon the equitable principles governing all cases of specific performance, and will grant him relief if he can legally claim that he was misled or deceived by some apparent adjudication by the court, and that it would be inequitable to enforce his contract against him under the circumstances.[59]

The purchaser ordinarily takes all the right, title, and estate which the deceased had in the premises at the time of his death,[60] and hence his title is superior to that of a mortgagee of an heir.[61] The mortgagee, however, has a lien on the funds of the mortgagor in the hands of the administrator, and is, therefore, entitled to recover from him, payable out of the mortgagor's share, the amount due him, with costs.[62]

The purchaser takes decedent's title cum onere.[63] Thus, the purchaser at a sale of a deceased partner's interest in land, the title to which stands in the partnership name, takes only the interest of the deceased partner in the land after a settlement of the partnership affairs, and the surviving partner may, in a proper proceeding against him, subject the land to the payment of partnership debts.[64] The proceeds of the sale, in such case, belong to the estate of the deceased partner, and are no part of the partnership assets.[65] But where title to the land stands in the name of the individual partners, an innocent purchaser takes the interest of the deceased partner unincumbered by the secret equity of the partnership, and the proceeds of the sale can be recovered from the administrator by the surviving partner, if necessary to pay partnership debts.[66]

55. Parol evidence of the giving of the statutory bond must rest on proof of loss of original or failure to find it where it should be. Shannon v. Summers [Miss.] 38 So. 345.

56. A sale is void as one of more than 160 acres if a half section be sold entire, reserving an unascertained homestead and dower. Const. 1869, art. 12, § 18. Shannon v. Summers [Miss.] 38 So. 345. All subsequent purchasers must take notice of this. Id.

57. Podesta v. Binns [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 815; Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554.

58. Hartnett v. Stillwell, 121 Ga. 386, 49 S. E. 276. Purchaser is bound to examine for himself beforehand to see what title he will get, and to take such title as an examination of the proceedings will show that he will get. Podesta v. Binns [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 815. Orphans' court not called upon and does not pass upon question of how much or what kind of a title sale made in pursuance of its order will vest, but purchaser takes as prescribed by P. L. 1898, p. 749, § 94, and assumes risk of what he will get. Id.

NOTE. Subrogation of purchaser at void sale to rights of creditors: A purchaser at an invalid sale is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of creditors to the extent that the money paid by him has been applied to the payment of their claims, and may retain the property as security for the repayment of the sums to which he is entitled. Duncan v. Gainey, 108 Ind. 579, 9 N. E. 470; Pool v. Ellis, 64 Miss. 555, 1 So. 725; Valle v. Fleming, 29 Mo. 152, 77 Am. Dec. 657; Scott v. Dunn, 21 N. C. 425, 30 Am. Dec. 174; Perry v. Adams, 98 N. C. 167, 3 S. E. 729, 2 Am. St. Rep. 326; Hunter v. Hunter, 58 S. C. 382, 79 Am. St. Rep. 845; Hunter v. Hunter, 63 S. C. 78, 41 S. E. 33, 90 Am. St. Rep. 663; Hudgin v. Hudgin, 6 Grat. [Va.] 320, 52 Am. Dec. 124; Blodgett v. Hitt, 29 Wis. 169. The right of subrogation has been denied to a purchaser whose title fails for want of a proper description. Borders v. Hodges, 154 Ill. 498, 39 N. E. 597.—From note to American Bonding Co. v. National Mechanic's Bank [Md.] 99 Am. St. Rep. 530.

59. Podesta v. Binns [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 815.

60. Code Civ. Proc. § 1555. Gutter v. Dallamore, 144 Cal. 665, 79 P. 383.

61. Purchaser's title relates back to the time of the death of the deceased and he takes freed from the mortgage. Land cannot be ordered sold on foreclosure of mortgage. Gutter v. Dallamore, 144 Cal. 665, 79 P. 383. Finding in foreclosure suit construed as finding that property was sold by the administrator under order of the court. Id.

62. Gutter v. Dallamore, 144 Cal. 665, 79 P. 383. In such case the supreme court will not inquire into the propriety of the action of the probate court in ordering a sale of an entire city lot, instead of a part of it only. Id.

63, 64, 65. Hartnett v. Stillwell, 121 Ga. 386, 49 S. E. 276.

66. Rule of caveat emptor does not extend to secret equities, and purchase money would be substituted for the land. Hartnett v.

The sale is subject to the widow's right of dower unless she consents to the disposal of her interest, in which case her rights attach to the proceeds.[67] In case she has only a life interest in the homestead, the fee may be sold subject to her rights.[68] Where the lien of a first mortgage is set up, it must be preserved in the fund realized from the sale; but if the mortgage is not set up, the lien is cut off, and the mortgagee becomes a general creditor.[69]

Statutes in some states require the deed to refer to the record wherein the order or judgment of the court authorizing its execution is entered,[70] and in case this is done the grantee and all those claiming under him take with notice of the character, extent, and contents of the order and judgment.[71] One is not deprived of his character as bona fide purchaser because the administrator's deed to him is a quitclaim.[72] Where land of a nonresident decedent is sold, a copy of the will probated in the state is not within the chain of title of a subsequent purchaser so as to charge him with notice of outstanding equities.[73]

Mere inadequacy of price is no ground for setting aside the sale,[74] but by statute in some states it may be be set aside if a sum greater by ten per cent. than the amount bid, together with the expenses of resale, is offered for the property before confirmation.[75] In such case the intrinsic value of the property and the motive of the person making the increased bid are immaterial.[76]

Payment or tender of part of the indebtedness before the sale does not affect its validity,[77] nor does a tender of the whole indebtedness before the sale affect the title of one purchasing without notice thereof.[78]

The confirmation cures all irregularities in the sale or order, but not jurisdictional defects.[79] The sale cannot be set aside except on grounds authorizing the vacation or modification of a judgment after the expiration of the term.[80] The Stillwell, 121 Ga. 386, 49 S. E. 276. If the surviving partner himself purchases the land, he is charged with knowledge of the nature of the title and is estopped from claiming the proceeds of the partnership property. Id. See, also, Partnership, 4 C. L. 908.

67. May be sold free and clear of her interest where she consents thereto and such course appears to be for the best interests of the estate. Widow in such case takes her interest in cash. Decree directing sale of reversionary interest only, reversed and remanded for that purpose. Rullman v. Winterling [Md.] 60 A. 468.

68. Robbins v. Boulware [Mo.] 88 S. W. 674.

69. Sherman v. Millard, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 338.

70. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2518, requires the deed to describe the kind of record, the number of the volume, and the page wherein the order or judgment of the court is entered, by virtue of which the administrator is authorized to execute the particular deed. Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554.

71. Where the deed contains all such entries, the grantee and all persons claiming under him take with notice of the character, extent, and contents of the order and judgment, and in a suit to reform the deed on the ground that, through a mistake, it describes more property than was intended to be sold, one claiming under the grantee cannot defend on the ground that he is an innocent purchaser. Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554.

72, 73. Nelson v. Bridge [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 885.

74. Costigan v. Truesdell, 26 Ky. L. R. 971, 83 S. W. 98.

75. Purchaser takes subject to this contingency. Rohlff v. Snyder's Estate [Neb.] 103 N. W. 49.

76. Rohlff v. Snyder's Estate [Neb.] 103 N. W. 49.

77, 78. Green v. Cannady [S. C.] 51 S. E. 92.

79. Does not render sale valid where order shows on its face that it was made to pay expenses of administration only and not to pay debts, and statute only authorizes sale for latter purpose. Collins v. Paepcke-Leicht Lumber Co. [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1044. Where evidence demanded finding that administrators of common grantor of plaintiffs and defendant sold property in dispute at public outcry as that of their decedent, to pay debts and for distribution; that defendant had a complete chain of title from the purchaser; that sale was had by order of the court of ordinary, and after compliance with the usual procedure, and that plaintiffs or their predecessors received the benefits of the proceeds, and never attempted to repudiate the sale or refund the money received, held that defendant showed a perfect equitable title as against plaintiff, regardless of any defects or irregularities in the sale, and that it was not error to direct a verdict in his favor. Leggett v. Peterson [Ga.] 50 S. E. 51.

80. Grounds stated in Civ. Code Prac. § 518. Costigan v. Truesdell, 26 Ky. L. R. 971, 83 S. W. 98.

rule is not changed by the fact that one claiming to be a creditor, but who has not proved his claim, is not made a party.[81]

The representative may make the deed as the purchaser directs.[82] Equity may correct mistakes in the deed,[83] and fraudulent sales may be set aside.[84] If bidders abstain on the general understanding and belief that the purchase is for the heirs, the purchaser holding out such facts may be held as their trustee.[85]

An invalid sale may be cured by subsequent ratification.[86]

Owners of decedent's realty sold for the payment of a mortgage thereon are entitled to possession until a receiver is appointed or until the expiration of the time for redemption.[87] Where land is sold merely for enough to pay a mortgage thereon, the fact that the equity of redemption is not also sold in accordance with the order of the court does not prevent the termination of the right to redeem at the expiration of a year from the date of the sale.[88]

If the sale is subsequently declared void, a purchaser who has entered and made improvements in good faith cannot be ejected until the purchase money has been repaid and he has been paid for such improvements,[89] and as against a purchaser who rescinds an assignment of his bid for fraud, the fraudulent assignee may be subrogated to liens he has discharged.[90] Various statutes limit the time within which sales open to objections and irregularities may be challenged,[91] but sales not in good faith are not within them.[92]

Actions to recover realty sold by an executor or administrator must be brought within the time fixed by the statute of limitations.[93] Laches will bar such a suit in a court of equity.[94]

81. Costigan v. Truesdell, 26 Ky. L. R. 971, 83 S. W. 98.

82. Sale is not rendered void because deed is made to the husband of the successful bidder even though the bidder paid the purchase price. West v. Burgie [Ark.] 88 S. W. 557.

83. Whereby more land was described than was intended to be sold. Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554. Estate not estopped from prosecuting action to correct deed and recover possession of excess by reason of the fact that the purchase money notes and mortgage were assigned to a third person who foreclosed the mortgage, it not appearing that the administrator knew of the mistake when he assigned it. Id.

84. Fact that sales were irregular or even void does not establish that executor was guilty of fraud, where he applied for permission to sell and truthfully stated in detail the condition of the estate and the previous conduct of its affairs. Williamson v. Beardsley [C. C. A.] 137 F. 467. Mere allegations that sales sought to be set aside were fraudulently conducted, without an averment of substantive facts justifying the charge of fraud, are insufficient. Id. Evidence insufficient to show fraud in an executor's sale of realty. West v. Burgie [Ark.] 88 S. W. 557.

85. See 15 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [2d ed.] 1191. But on suit to hold persons, in whose name land was purchased, as trustees for all the devisees, it being claimed that the person who bid it off had agreed with his mother to buy it for the benefit of both plaintiffs and defendants, and that this agreement being known, no one else bid at the sale, evidence that it was understood that the mother was to buy the land for the children, and that people did not want to bid against her, held hearsay. King v. Bynum, 137 N. C. 491, 49 S. E. 955.

86. Podesta v. Binns [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 815. Purchaser cannot maintain bill in chancery to relieve him from his bid on the ground that he was entitled to a deed in fee, clear of all incumbrances, where he was tendered a deed, and an offer was made to pay off mortgages, which would give him a fee. Id.

87, 88. Costigan v. Truesdell, 26 Ky. L. R. 971, 83 S. W. 98.

89. Patillo v. Martin, 107 Mo. App. 653, 83 S. W. 1010. Where the sale is set aside in ejectment the fact that the purchaser failed to plead his right to remuneration for improvements and taxes, and to recover the purchase money, does not estop him from claiming the same in a subsequent suit therefor in equity brought while he is still in possession. Suit held not to be one under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 3075, 3076, since nothing but improvements can be adjudicated under them. Id.

90. Where one by fraud procured from an administratrix an assignment of her bid on land at a sale thereof to pay debts, though the assignment could not be enforced, the assignee was held entitled to a lien on the land for the amount of a debt paid by her on procuring the assignment. Daniels v. Daniels [Ky.] 86 S. W. 1116.

91. Sale en gross of more than 160 acres may be cured by lapse of two years without objection. Code 1880, § 2693. Shannon v. Summers [Miss.] 38 So. 345.

92. Shannon v. Summers [Miss.] 38 So. 345. That one took in good faith from the fraudulent grantee is no protection. Id. Sale to himself through agent held fraudulent. Id.

93. Utah Rev. Laws 1888, § 4193, Rev. St.

By statute in Ohio the proceeds of the sale must be applied first to discharge the costs and expenses of the sale, and the percentum and charges of the representative thereon for his administration of the same, then to the payment of mortgages and judgments, and then to the payment of claims and debts in the order of their priority.[95] General costs of administration are not charges and expenses of the sale within the meaning of this act.[96]

§ 8. Subjection of property in hands of heirs or beneficiaries to payment of debts.[97]—At common law the heirs and devisees took the realty by descent, free from the debts of the ancestor, unless the latter expressly bound or charged them for the payment thereof.[98] This rule has, however, been generally abrogated so that the heir or devisee now takes by descent or devise, subject to all valid claims against the ancestor's estate,[99] and they, together with distributees and legatees, are liable to creditors to the amount of property received by them from the estate.[1] An heir or devisee, having entered as such, cannot acquire title to the lands descended or devised, as against the debts of the ancestor or devisor, by a claim of adverse possession as against the title descended or devised.[2] One who advances money to pay claims is not a "creditor of the deceased" entitled to sue the heirs in assumpsit.[3]

In the absence of a statute to the contrary, presentation of the claim to the representative is not necessary to enable the creditor to enforce such liability,[4] and 1898, § 2870, requires such actions to be brought within three years after the sale, and actions to set aside the sale within three years after the discovery of the fraud or other lawful grounds on which the action is based. Williamson v. Beardsley [C. C. A.] 137 F. 467. Statute runs during the minority of the complainant. Id. Suit by administrator for relief from mistake in description in deed of the land intended to be sold, and to recover possession of the excess not sold or intended to be sold and conveyed, and not attacking the validity of the sale actually made, is not a suit for the recovery of realty, and the five-year statute of limitations does not apply. Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554.

94. Suit to set aside conveyances barred. Williamson v. Beardsley [C. C. A.] 137 F. 467. Where grounds of attack were matters of record and complainants had notice of the pendency of the administration proceedings sufficient to excite their attention and put them on guard, as to the course thereof, they are deemed to have actual knowledge of the facts therein contained, and cannot escape the imputation of laches because of their inactivity. Id. Fact that they were nonresidents does not change the rule. Id.

95. Rev. St. § 6165. Sherman v. Millard, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 338.

96. Attorneys' fees, court costs of administration, and premiums due a surety company on the administrator's bond, are not included, and cannot be allowed prior to the claim of a mortgagee. The administrator assumes the risk of the fund realized being insufficient to pay the mortgage lien and these items of expense in addition. Sherman v. Millard, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 338.

97. See 3 C. L. 1283.

98. Alderson v. Alderson's Guardian [Ky.] 87 S. W. 810, withdrawing former opinion, 26 Ky. L. R. 1260, 83 S. W. 1129. Heir liable only by virtue of statute. Clevenger v. Mathews [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 161.

99. Takes it with all the burdens he left upon it. Alderson v. Alderson's Guardian [Ky.] 87 S. W. 810, withdrawing former opinion, 26 Ky. L. R. 1260, 83 S. W. 1129. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 2087, the only way to prevent creditors from subjecting decedent's lands to the payment of their claims is by a voluntary alienation by the heir or devisee after six months from the date of the death of the ancestor. Id. In equity, lands are regarded as a fund for the payment of debts, and the heirs or devisees as holding the same in trust for the creditors. Id. The chancellor may either subject the land as a trust fund, or, if it has been alienated, may take the proceeds for the payment of the ancestor's debts, or hold the heir or devisee personally liable to the extent of the value of the land received. Id. A devisee in possession holds subject to the equity of the creditors of the devisor to have land sold for the payment of his debts. Brock v. Kirkpatrick, 69 S. C. 231, 48 S. E. 72.

1. The receiver of a national bank may collect an assessment on stock owned by decedent from the distributees to the extent of the assets received by them, where the executor or trustee makes distribution with knowledge that the assessment has been ordered. Mortimer v. Potter, 213 Ill. 178, 72 N. E. 817, afg. 114 Ill. App. 422. Creditor whose claim does not become absolute until estate is closed may recover from distributees in equity. Rankin v. Big Rapids [C. C. A.] 133 F. 670.

2. Answer, in action to subject land devised to payment of debts alleging adverse possession, held not to set up title inconsistent with plaintiff's equity so as to raise an issue triable by jury as a matter of right. Brock v. Kirkpatrick, 69 S. C. 231, 48 S. E. 72.

3. Statute of Frauds, § 12. Calhoun v. Tangany, 105 Ill. App. 23.

4. Not necessary to enable them to resort to statutory remedy against heirs and devisees. Acton v. Shultz [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 876.

where a claim does not arise until after the settlement of the estate, the creditor has a right of action against the heirs and distributees independent of and in addition to the statutory one.[5] In South Carolina a creditor's equity to subject land devised to the payment of his debts does not arise until his remedy against the executor has been exhausted and a return of nulla bona made,[6] and until this has been done, the heir's possession does not become hostile and adverse.[7] In Pennsylvania, however, a creditor who secures an adjudication of his claim and a decree against the executor awarding him his debt out of the personal estate cannot thereafter proceed against real estate in the hands of a devisee.[8]

Where complainant seeks relief as to the personal estate of the deceased, his remedy is at law and not in equity, unless some right of lien is made to appear.[9] It has, however, been held that the remedy of the receiver of a national bank to collect an assessment on stock from the distributees of a decedent's estate is in equity.[10]

The creditor must commence his action within the time prescribed by statute, unless it is practically impossible for him to do so.[11] If no time is fixed, he must act within a reasonable time.[12]

§ 9. Rights and liabilities between representative and estate. A. Management of and dealings with estate.[13]—The executor or administrator is chargeable with, and must account for, all the assets of the estate coming into his hands.[14] He

Not necessary to enable creditor whose claim does not become absolute until after estate is closed to recover from distributees in equity. Rankin v. Big Rapids [C. C. A.] 133 F. 670. Failure of a claimant of an annuity acquired by contract with the decedent to prosecute suit against the executor before his final discharge will not preclude him from proceeding in equity to charge the estate in the hands of a trustee who received it from the executor. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Darling, 21 App. D. C. 132.

5. Clevenger v. Mathews [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 23.

6, 7. Brock v. Kirkpatrick, 69 S. C. 231, 48 S. E. 72.

8. He is concluded on the fact that there were assets. Reading Trust Co. v. Pennsylvania Trust Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 599.

9. Where one has no lien on personal assets he cannot sue in equity against distributees to subject them or realty purchased with their shares to payment on bond on which deceased was liable. Acton v. Shultz [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 876.

10. Mortimer v. Potter, 213 Ill. 178, 72 N. E. 817, afg. Potter v. Mortimer, 114 Ill. App. 422.

11. In such case has a right to do so thereafter independently of the statute. Clevenger v. Mathews [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 23. Held that action for contribution could be maintained by nonresident surety on a note against the heirs and distributees of his cosurety though commenced more than two years after the settlement of the estate, notwithstanding a statute (Burns' Ann. St. 1903, § 2579) requiring actions by nonresident creditors against heirs and distributees to be brought within two years after settlement, where the petition shows that claimant was a nonresident and defendants were residents, and that he did not know of the nonpayment of the note or of the maker's insolvency until three years after the settlement of the estate, even though the note waived notice of nonpayment. Id.

12. Creditor whose claim does not mature until after estate is closed must sue distributees within reasonable time. Rankin v. Big Rapids [C. C. A.] 133 F. 670.

13. See 3 C. L. 1285.

14. Is chargeable in his account with the whole of the estate which may come into his possession at the value of the appraisement contained in the inventory. Code Civ. Proc. § 1613. In re Glanelli's Estate, 146 Cal. 139, 79 P. 841. There being a substantial conflict in the evidence, held that the court would not, on appeal, reverse an order disallowing certain items of the account of an executrix and charging her with a part of the estate not accounted for. Id. He will not be allowed to make any profit by the increase, nor to suffer any loss by the decrease or destruction, without his fault, of any part of the estate. Must account for excess, if he sells any part of the estate for more than the appraised value, and is not responsible for the loss resulting from the sale of any of it for less, if the sale has been justly made. Id. For moneys shown to have come into their possession. Wilbanks v. Crosno, 112 Ill. App. 503. Where bill sought to set aside deed of trust given by executrix and life tenant on ground that she had no such authority under the will, and to compel her to conduct the administration of the personalty under the supervision of the circuit court, and to charge herself with all the personalty of the testator, and decree required her to account as did a subsequent one after an appeal, held that the auditor had authority to include in the account any personalty shown to have belonged to testator at his death and to have come into the executrix's possession, though it had not been specifically mentioned in the first decree of the trial court or considered on appeal. Bauernschmidt v. Bauernschmidt [Md.] 60 A. 437. Executrix held properly charged with funds derived from sale of stock in corporation and funds received by her husband from deceased in his lifetime, and for stock received by

is not excused from doing so by reason of the fact that the decedent, at the time of his death, owed him a sum in excess of the value of the estate.[15]

The representative is required to act with the utmost good faith in dealing with the estate,[16] and is responsible for losses resulting from his want of reasonable diligence,[17] or his unauthorized acts or omissions.[18] Acquiescence of a beneficiary in the wrongful application of a trust fund releases the administrator and his sureties from liability therefor.[19]

An administrator is not chargeable, either in his individual or representative capacity, with the amount of a debt which he has never collected and which has

him. Id. Where owner transferred brewery to corporation composed of himself and his wife and children, who paid nothing for their stock, and it subsequently conveyed its property to a realty company formed by the brewer in which his children held merely sufficient stock to qualify them as incorporators, held that such property would be regarded in equity, in determining the assets of the estate, as the individual property of the brewer. Id. Evidence held to warrant finding that certain gold coin buried by testator had come into the possession of the executrix and that she should be charged therewith. Id. Item for money received from "political lease" of mine owned by decedent, held properly disallowed, there being some question as to whether executor had accounted for full amount received, or which he should have received, therefrom. In re Courtney's Estate [Mont.] 79 P. 317. Objection to account that certain personalty should have been charged to the administrator overruled, where it did not appear that it ever belonged to decedent, or came into the administrator's hands. In re Robinson, 45 Misc. 551, 92 N. Y. S. 967. Evidence insufficient to show that executrix had not accounted for all the property of the estate. Bramlett v. Mathis [S. C.] 50 S. E. 644. Where owner of possessory right in Indian lands operated ferry thereon, which, though conducted under periodical license, was regarded by the customs of the nation as appurtenant to the land, its operation by his widow and administratrix after his death, though under license granted in her own name, must be regarded as having been for the benefit of the estate, and she is chargeable with the income therefrom. Nivens v. Nivens [C. C. A.] 133 F. 39, rvg. 76 S. W. 114, 64 S. W. 604.

15. State v. Stuart [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 471.

16. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 196, 79 P. 875. An administrator who holds a judgment in his own name and also one in the name of the estate he represents is bound on a sale under the judgment to see that the land brings the highest possible price (Montgomery v. Black [Ark.] 86 S. W. 1006), and where the judgments are equal in priority, the proceeds of the sale must be divided pro rata between himself and the estate. (Id.).

17. Liable for improvidently disposing of debts and choses. Nance v. Gray [Ala.] 38 So. 916. In case he fails to promptly and diligently prosecute a suit in favor of the estate in accordance with the order of the court, the measure of the damages to which the estate is entitled is the loss, if any, which it sustained by reason thereof. McDowell v. First Nat. Bank [Neb.] 102 N. W. 615. Pleadings held insufficient to warrant holding the executor personally liable for the sum, with interest, that had been paid by the estate on a note on which decedent was surety, and which the executor failed to collect from the payee on the latter's releasing the principal. Id. Act of executors in paying claim of widow for property advanced by her to deceased after it had been rejected and had been established before a referee, held not to be fraudulent, collusive, or negligent, where they thereby kept her from contesting the will, though they did not raise the question of her competency to testify on the hearing before the referee, and their accounts were improperly surcharged with the amount thereof. In re Watson, 101 App. Div. 550, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 150, 92 N. Y. S. 195. The orphans' court has no jurisdiction to determine whether the executors were negligent in failing to make provision for the payment of legacies at the proper time, the appropriate remedy being by a bill in equity. Failed to provide for their payment at end of year out of surplus credited to deceased on books of corporation, which thereafter became insolvent. In re Woolsey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 463.

18. An administratrix who fails to list a mortgage, which she holds against realty belonging to the estate, and which secures a debt exceeding the value of the land, for assessment, but allows the land to be taxed as though unincumbered, is not entitled to credit for taxes paid by her on such realty in her representative capacity. Her duty, in her individual capacity, to list her mortgage interest, and taxes levied on that interest would be her individual debt. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 196, 79 P. 875. Executors are liable for the loss resulting from breach of trust in making sale. Where one of two executors purchased securities of the estate at less than their value. Wilbanks v. Crosno, 112 Ill. App. 503. Not relieved from liability because sale is approved by the court. Id. Evidence insufficient to show fraud and wrongdoing on the part of the administratrix in regard to the personalty. Walker v. Walker [Iowa] 102 N. W. 435. Payment of annuities out of surplus income credited to decedent on books of corporation, before fully paying legacies, held, in view of the provisions of the will, not to be an improper use of the fund rendering the executors personally liable therefor. In re Woolsey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 463.

19. Estate of Koehnken, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 359.

never been established against the debtor.[20] By a statute in Rhode Island both the person and estate of an executor are exempted from execution for the debts and legacies of his testator unless he has committed waste.[21] The act does not apply to an action on a bond given by the executor as residuary legatee and conditioned to pay the debts and legacies.[22]

Executors are entitled to credit for money used in keeping up the market price of stock owned by testator and on which he had borrowed large sums, where the loans would have been called if any considerable depreciation had occurred, and injury would thereby have resulted to the estate, particularly where testator had a contract with another person to keep up the price in their joint interest, which the latter performed on his part.[23] So, too, they are entitled to credit for the repayment of moneys advanced by a corporation, in which decedent was largely interested, for the payment of pressing bills against the estate, even though it was indebted to the estate, where the will constitutes such indebtedness a fund which is not to be distributed except for certain specified purposes.[24]

The position of representative is one of trust and confidence and not one of profit.[25] In the absence of a provision to the contrary in the will, he cannot purchase property at his own sale either personally or through third parties.[26] Such a sale is not void.[27] but is voidable at the option of the heirs or others interested in the estate,[28] regardless of the adequacy of the consideration.[29] The fact that the sale was made under order of, and was subsequently approved by, the court, does not prevent its being set aside, where it is reported as having been made to a third party.[30] In such case the lien of a mortgagee of the purchaser, who took in good faith, is superior to that of one having a judgment against the heir.[31]

Neither the administrator of the estate nor his attorney may, for his personal use and profit, purchase an outstanding life estate in realty of which the adminis-

20. Cannot be charged with laches in failing to collect it until it is established that debtor owes it. Reager's Adm'r v. Chappelear [Va.] 51 S. E. 170.

21. Gen. Laws 1896, c. 218, § 24. Probate Court v. Adams [R. I.] 60 A. 769.

22. Probate Court v. Adams [R. I.] 60 A. 769.

23. In re Corbin, 101 App. Div. 25, 91 N. Y. S. 797.

24. Where, before executors received any funds, a corporation in which decedent was largely interested, paid certain pressing bills against the estate on the understanding that the sum so advanced was to be repaid, which was done as soon as the executors received any money. In re Woolsey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 463. Nor was the fact that the executors had not charged themselves with receiving the money ground for disallowing them credit therefor when they repaid it. Id.

25. Hence, one named as an executor in a will is not incompetent as a witness in a contest thereof. Standley v. Moss, 114 Ill. App. 612.

26. Comp. Laws, § 9095. Curtis v. Bremer [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 105, 103 N. W. 579. Statute does not apply where will expressly confers power on the executors to sell to one of their number. Id. Cannot purchase at sale under judgment owned by estates. Montgomery v. Black [Ark.] 86 S. W. 1006. Evidence held to show that the purchase was made by an agent of the administrator. Id. Evidence held to show that sale to pay debts was made with secret understanding that property should be reconveyed by purchaser to the administratrix. Walker v. Walker [Iowa] 102 N. W. 435.

27. Deed is not void and cannot be collaterally attacked. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 666.

28. May be avoided by persons interested. Montgomery v. Black [Ark.] 86 S. W. 1006. Objection can only be raised by heirs at law or creditors. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 666. A judgment creditor of an heir cannot take advantage of irregularities in the sale or of the fact that the administratrix bought at her own sale, and therefore acquired only a voidable title. Cannot levy upon and sell land formerly belonging to the estate held by such voidable title. Williams v. Williams Co. [Ga.], 50 S. E. 52. Sale will be set aside on motion of any party interested. Walker v. Walker [Iowa] 102 N. W. 435. Where the administrator procured an unauthorized order to sell and sold to himself individually for an inadequate price, the heirs by afterwards petitioning for his discharge but not calling him to account or settling with him do not ratify his transaction; and hence may pursue the property into the hands of his grantees. Tucker v. Benedict [La.] 38 So. 142.

29. Montgomery v. Black [Ark.] 86 S. W. 1006.

30. Walker v. Walker [Iowa] 102 N. W. 435.

31. To that of heir's wife for alimony. Walker v. Walker [Iowa] 102 N. W. 435.

trator is trustee.[32] In case the attorney does so and afterwards sells the interest so acquired, the administrator is chargeable with and must account for the amount so realized.[33] Though the law does not absolutely prohibit the representative from purchasing the share of an heir or devisee, equity looks with disfavor upon such transactions, and, if attacked, they will not be upheld unless it clearly appears that the vendor was fully informed in regard to the value of the property and the nature of his interest therein.[34] If the administrator, through misrepresentations, purchases a share for less than its value, the sale may either be set aside entirely, or he may be compelled to make good the full value of the property purchased.[35] Statutes in some states provide that no administrator or executor shall purchase any claim against the estate which he represents.[36]

One may not in equity, by invoking his representative capacity, obtain to his exclusive use property to which he would not be entitled in his individual capacity.[37]

A representative who distributes the estate without citing a creditor in the accounting proceedings and procures an order for distribution by false allegations is personally liable for the amount of his claim.[38] So, too, a representative paying claims on ex parte orders,[39] or paying judgments rendered in the absence of necessary parties,[40] does so at his peril. A beneficiary who with knowledge receives benefit or who requests a payment mistakenly made in the belief that it was for the estate is liable to repay the representative; but not where he paid it as an advance on distribution.[41]

32. No right to purchase life estate of husband, where there are conflicting interests between the two estates. In re Robbins' Estate [Minn.] 103 N. W. 217.

33. In re Robbins' Estate [Minn.] 103 N. W. 217.

34. Sale will not be upheld if there was any misrepresentation or concealment. Cornish v. Johns [Ark.] 85 S. W. 764. Held that purchase by administrator of shares of minors for one-fourth of their value, through false representations made to their guardian, could not be upheld. Id.

35. Purchase by administrator from minor beneficiaries allowed to stand on his paying them the full value of their interests. Cornish v. Johns [Ark.] 85 S. W. 764.

36. Code Civ. Proc. § 1617. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 191, 79 P. 878.

37. Huyler v. Dolson, 101 App. Div. 83, 91 N. Y. S. 794. Insured was induced to assign a life policy to a married woman through the fraud of herself and her husband. Thereafter he sued to set aside the transfer, but died pending the suit leaving a will whereby the husband was made executor and sole legatee. Held that the executor was not precluded from continuing the action because of his participation in the fraud, in the absence of a showing that there were no debts and consequently that he would be the only one to benefit by a recovery. Id. Burden is on defendant, in such case, to show that there are no debts. Id.

38. By falsely alleging under oath that her infant daughter was the only creditor. In re Gall [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 875.

39. An ex parte order to pay money in satisfaction of a lien which the administrator says exists does not determine its existence or validity and he pays at his own risk. Not a proceeding to test a claim of lien (Code 1892, § 1937). O'Bryan Bros. v. Wilson [Miss.] 38 So. 509.

40. If the next of kin are necessary parties to an action on a disputed claim, a judgment rendered thereon in their absence will not be effective against them and the administrator, in such case, will be liable for any improper distribution of the estate in paying the same. Riley v. Ryan, 103 App. Div. 176, 93 N. Y. S. 386, rvg. 45 Misc. 151, 91 N. Y. S. 952. Judgment was entered against administrator on a claim, from which he appealed, but he subsequently dismissed the appeal. Thereafter certain of the next of kin, alleging that the dismissal was brought about by the connivance of the administrator and the claimant, procured an order making them parties to the proceeding. Thereafter the administrator paid the judgment in full and procured its discharge. The next of kin then procured an order vacating the judgment and the report of the referee on which it was based, and the satisfaction of the judgment, and directing a new trial unless the appeal was reinstated. Held that latter order was unwarranted, no fraudulent connivance having been proved. If next of kin were necessary parties, judgment was not effective against them, and if not they could not complain of the omission to appeal. In any event, any improper distribution of funds could be regulated on final account. Id.

41. An executor who advances money to pay for improvements on land, which he knows belongs to decedent's daughter, as an advance payment upon and against the latter's distributive share of the estate, cannot recover the same in an action by the daughter against him for specific performance of an alleged gift of the property to her by decedent. Held error to exclude evidence that payments were so made. Neil v. Harris, 121 Ga. 647, 49 S. E. 773. But if he, at the request of the daughter, or with her knowledge and consent, makes such payment on behalf of the estate and believing that the

Though the revocation of his letters terminates the authority of the administrator, it does not relieve him from liability on account of acts done while in office, or the retention of assets of the estate after his removal.[42]

Executors de son tort.[43]—In some states anyone converting any property of the deceased before the granting of letters testamentary or of administration is made liable for double its value.[44]

(§ 9) B. Representative as debtor or creditor.[45]—As a general rule any indebtedness of an executor or administrator to his decedent is regarded as assets with which he is chargeable at its maturity as so much money in his hands.[46] It is generally held that this rule does not apply where the representative is insolvent at the time of his appointment and so remains during the course of his administration,[47] nor will it be applied so as to prevent the running of interest on such a debt evidenced by an interest-bearing obligation.[48]

The fact that decedent, at the time of his death, owes the administrator a sum larger than the value of the estate, is no excuse for his failure to inventory and account for all moneys received by him in his representative capacity,[49] but his remedy in such case is to present his claim to the probate court for allowance, and to have a special administrator appointed for the hearing.[50] An administrator and heir who agrees to rent decedent's lands and apply the proceeds on the amount due him from the estate should so credit his share of the rent as well as that of the other heirs.[51]

To apply on an individual debt to an estate a sum coming from the estate to the debtor as trustee is a misappropriation of estate funds, and the debt being for the price of land, the vendor's lien remains.[52]

If the widow, under an order to a bank authorizing her to do so, draws out deposits standing in decedent's name, she, if not entitled thereto as donee or as the beneficiary of a trust, will hold it as trustee for decedent at the time of his death, and, on her subsequent appointment as executrix, the claim of his representatives therefor is protected from the running of limitations in her favor in the same man-property belongs to the estate, then he is entitled to reimburse himself, as executor, from the property, for the money so advanced. Directions in former decision held to have been misconstrued by trial judge. Id.

42. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388.

43. See 3 C. L. 1289. For a full discussion of who are executors de son tort, the rights and liabilities of such executors, and the effect of statutes abolishing the office, see note 98 Am. St. Rep. 191.

44. Rev. St. 1898, § 3824. Statute is penal and must be strictly construed. Dixon v. Sheridan [Wis.] 103 N. W. 239. Conversion after the appointment of a special administrator, but before the appointment of the general one, is not a conversion before the granting of letters of administration within the meaning of the act. Id.

45. See 3 C. L. 1290.

46. Sanders v. Dodge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 137, 103 N. W. 597. Rev. St. § 6069. Jones v. Willis [Ohio] 74 N. E. 166. On executor's death before the estate is closed, his representative must account therefor the same as other property, whether it was included by decedent in his inventory or not. Id. Evidence held to show that an administrator was properly charged with interest on notes held by the estate of his decedent against him. Yost's Estate, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 223.

47. Under Comp. Laws, § 9433, providing that the representative shall not be accountable for any debts due the deceased if they remain uncollected without his fault. Sanders v. Dodge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 137, 103 N. W. 597.

48. A debt due the estate from one appointed executor by will does not upon his qualification become cash in his hands but continues a debt, and where evidenced by an interest-bearing obligation bears interest until he reports it as cash in his hands or distributes the same in a manner approved by the court. Phillips v. Duckett, 112 Ill. App. 587.

49. State v. Stuart [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 471.

50. Rev. St. 1899, § 205. State v. Stuart [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 471. The disputed amount due from an executor to the estate may, in Illinois, be determined by the probate court, either with or without the appointment of a special administrator to defend on behalf of the estate. Phillips v. Duckett, 112 Ill. App. 587.

51. Cauthen v. Cauthen, 70 S. C. 167, 49 S. E. 321.

52. Marshall v. Hall, 51 W. Va. 569, 42 S. E. 641.

ner and upon the same principle as applies to a debt from a representative to his decedent.[53]

(§ 9) C. Interest on property or funds.[54]—An administrator is properly charged with interest on a sum with which he is charged on the record with his consent as money which he should have put into his account and held as an identified fund and did not,[55] and also on a fund which he retained in his own hands after the assets of the estate had been ordered paid into court and, with the consent of the parties, transferred to the solicitors of the parties as custodians.[56]

All presumptions being in favor of the regularity of the management of the estate by the representative [57] the burden is on one alleging that he should be charged with interest as a penalty for willfully or negligently delaying the settlement of the estate to prove that he has done so.[58] He should not be charged with compound interest in the absence of any showing that he received compound interest on any moneys of the estate, or that he misappropriated any of the property of the estate.[59]

In Georgia the interest to be charged trustees, including executors and administrators, is fixed by statute at seven per cent. per annum, without compounding, for six years from the date of their qualification, and after that at six per cent. per annum, annually compounded.[60] Any trustee may relieve himself from this rule by returning annually the interest actually made, and accounting for the balance of the fund,[61] and any distributee may recover a greater interest by showing that the trustee actually received more, or that he used the funds himself to greater profit.[62]

Where the funds of the estate are deposited with a trust company which is also one of the executors, and it allows interest thereon at the usual rate allowed other customers, it cannot be charged with a higher rate on the theory that it is bound to account for all the profits made by it out of the estate.[63]

Interest may, in proper cases, be allowed the executor or administrator on ad-

53. Sprague v. Walton, 145 Cal. 228, 78 P. 645.

54. See 3 C. L. 1290. For liability of estate for interest on legacies not paid when due, see § 12, post.

55, 56. McIntire v. McIntire, 192 U. S. 116, 48 Law. Ed. 369.

57. In re Sylvar's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 663.

58. Evidence held not to show that administrator willfully or negligently caused the delay. In re Sylvar's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 663.

59. In re Castner's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 991.

60. Civ. Code 1895, § 3498. Tippin v. Perry [Ga.] 50 S. E. 35. The charging of compound interest under this statute is not dependent upon misappropriation of assets, or fraud, misconduct, or negligence. Id. When beginning to charge compound interest, simple interest for six years at seven per cent. should be added to the fund and a new principal formed upon which the compound interest should be computed. Id. Where administrator made only five returns in 19 years, and the auditor calculated interest against him upon each separate receipt and in his favor on each separate disbursement, held not erroneous to overrule an exception of law to auditor's report merely alleging that he erred in not making the calculations of interest on "the balances as they appear in the several returns" of the administrator. Id. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 3497, no interest is to be charged either way for the first year, in the case of executors or administrators. Id. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 3496, in regard to funds coming into his hands after the first year, a reasonable time must be allowed the trustee in which to make investments before charging him with interest thereon, and disbursements should generally bear interest from some period anterior to the date of payment, according as he may have retained funds to meet them. Id. Time allowed by auditor before charging any interest held reasonable. Id. Where administrator, at time of his discharge, was allowed by the ordinary to retain, at four per cent. interest, an unclaimed fund in his hands belonging to the estate, and did so until his death, without adding to it the interest which had accrued thereon, his own administrator was not entitled, before being charged as such with interest upon funds received by him by virtue of his office, to have the total amount of such funds reduced by subtracting therefrom both the principal of such unclaimed fund and the interest which had accrued thereon at the time when he received it. Id. In the final settlement of the last named administrator, he was entitled to credit for the amount of the interest upon such fund which had accrued when he received it and which he paid to those who had established their legal right to the fund and the interest thereon. Id.

61, 62. Civ. Code 1895, § 3498. Tippin v. Perry [Ga.] 50 S. E. 35.

63. In re Moore's Estate, 211 Pa. 348, 60 A. 991.

vances made by him to the estate out of his own funds, where the making of such advances is necessary and results in benefit to the estate.[64] Such claims are not favored, however, and will be viewed with caution and examined with scrupulous care.[65]

(§ 9) D. Allowance for expenses, costs, counsel fees, and funeral expenses.[66]—The representative is entitled to an allowance for all necessary expenses incurred by him in the care, management, and settlement of the estate.[67] He is entitled to be reimbursed for reasonable attorney's fees and court costs necessarily incurred.[68] In some states the allowance is made directly to the attorney.[69] Money paid by an administrator to his attorney from funds of the estate is paid at the former's peril until the court has duly adjudicated his claim for an allowance for that purpose, after giving all interested parties an opportunity to be heard,[70] and the same is true of money paid by an administrator to himself.[71] In case he improperly pays fees to his attorney out of the funds of the estate, the latter will not be compelled to make restitution, but the administrator will be held personally liable therefor.[72]

If the representative acts in good faith, he will not be refused an allowance for attorney's fees and costs merely because he is unsuccessful in the suit in which the services were rendered.[73] He will not, however, be allowed attorney's fees for services which he should have performed personally,[74] nor attorney's fees

64. In re Carpenter's Estate, 146 Cal. 661, 80 P. 1072.

65. In the absence of a bill of exceptions showing the evidence on which it was made, held that the court on appeal could not say that the circumstances were not such as to justify the allowance made. In re Carpenter's Estate, 146 Cal. 661, 80 P. 1072.

66. See 3 C. L. 1292.

67. Bal. Ann. Codes & St. § 6312. Noble v. Whitten [Wash.] 80 P. 451. Though he receives no fee because no money has passed through his hands. Adamson v. Parker [Ark.] 85 S. W. 239. For expenses incurred in defending the estate from claims deemed unjust. Hampden Trust Co. v. Leary, 186 Mass. 577, 72 N. E. 88.

68. In re Arnton, 94 N. Y. S. 471. Fee for preparation of account and services in connection with the distribution held reasonable and proper. In re Castner's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 991. Sum allowed and paid attorneys of executor for services in attempting to probate codicil discovered after probate of will held reasonable. Couchman v. Bush, 26 Ky. L. R. 1277, 83 S. W. 1039. Court held not to have abused his discretion in allowing $12,500 for attorney's fees for two and a half years' services. In re Davis' Estate [Mont.] 78 P. 704. Entitled to counsel fees for services in settling estate and in defending ejectment suit resulting in saving property for legatees and creditors. Evan's Estate, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 151. Under 2 Bal. Ann. Codes & St. § 6312, allowing him all necessary expenses. Noble v. Whitten [Wash.] 80 P. 451. Costs of suit to recover assets alleged to belong to the estate, which he was authorized by the court to bring and in which he was unsuccessful. Ferguson v. Woods [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1094. An executor who, without objection by the other parties in interest, sues to construe the will of his testator which undertakes to exercise a power conferred on the latter by a former will, and who comes into possession of the property taken by his testator under such former will, is entitled to reasonable attorneys fees, though the court holds that the will does not execute the powers conferred on the testator by the former will and appointed an administrator with the will annexed for the first estate. Ketchin v. Rion [S. C.] 51 S. E. 557.

69. Claim of attorney of independent executrix and administratrix held properly allowed approved, and classified. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839. In proper cases allowances may be made directly to them instead of to the trustee. As where administrator has defaulted without paying them. Carpenter v. United States Fidelity & Guar. Co., 123 Wis. 209, 101 N. W. 404. The expenses incurred by the administrator in the management of the estate are in all cases his personal liabilities, but in proper cases necessary expenses may be made, by order of the court, a lien on the assets of the estate and provision may be made for its enforcement. Attorneys' fees for services beneficial to the estate are necessary expenses within this rule, and may be decreed to be a lien on application of such attorneys, where the administrator has defaulted without paying them. Id.

70, 71. In re Sullivan's Estate, 36 Wash. 2117, 78 P. 945.

72. Since he sustains no relation to the estate. In re Sullivan's Estate, 36 Wash. 217, 78 P. 945.

73. McDowell v. First Nat. Bank [Neb.] 102 N. W. 615; Ferguson v. Wood [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1094.

74. Charges in an administrator's account for "drafting, inventory and appraisement" and for "drafting inventory" cannot be allowed as charges for legal advice and services, such drafting being mere clerical work which is imposed by law on the administrator and for which he is compensated by his commissions. Browning v. Richardson, 186 Mo. 361, 85 S. W. 518.

or expenses incurred in litigation carried on for his own benefit or for the benefit of those whose interests are adverse to the estate.[75] So, too, he cannot charge the estate with expenses incurred in advising with counsel whom he knows is at the time representing interests and demands antagonistic to the claims of the heirs, as such, and with respect to those very interests,[76] nor is he entitled to an allowance for a fee paid an attorney's clerk for engrossing the bill of exceptions therein, where the attorney is allowed a fee by the court.[77] In case the administrator is an attorney, he is not entitled to extra compensation for drawing his own ordinary papers in the conduct of the estate.[78]

An allowance to an executor for the amount paid to an accountant employed by him,[79] and an allowance to a stenographer employed on the executor's accounting, have been held proper.[80] The amount paid by the representative to a security company for his official bond is not ordinarily a proper charge against the estate.[81]

A trust fund is not chargeable with the expenses incurred by an administrator with the will annexed, into whose hands the trust property came on the death of the trustee named in the will, in procuring a bond, or with disbursements for the services of counsel in the matter of the administration.[82]

Statutes in some states authorize the appointment of an attorney to represent minor heirs and devisees who have no general guardian, and provide that he shall receive a fee to be fixed by the court and payable out of the funds of the estate as necessary expenses of administration.[83] Such acts have been construed to mean that such fee shall be payable out of the portion of the heir, devisee, or legatee represented by the attorney, and hence the latter's right thereto depends upon the existence of a fund or property belonging to such person.[84] Therefore the debts and general expenses of administration must first be paid.[85]

It has been held that a special administrator will not be reimbursed for expenses incurred in employing real estate and other agents to secure purchasers for the property of a debtor of the estate, though made in good faith and resulting in

75. Where the administrator pays claims before their allowance and has them assigned to himself individually, the estate is not interested in their classification, and the costs of litigation carried on by him with reference to such classification, apparently for his personal benefit, should be paid by him personally and not by the estate, it not appearing that he paid the claims out of his own money, or that the estate is not able to pay all claims. Felsenthal v. Kline, 214 Ill. 121, 73 N. E. 428. Not entitled to credit for an attorney's fee paid for services in collecting a claim which it is afterwards determined does not belong to the estate. Laughlin's Ex'x v. Boughner [Ky.] 84 S. W. 300. Cannot recover from the estate money advanced for court costs and attorney's fees for his own benefit, or for the benefit of those whose claims are adverse to the estate. Evidence held to show that executor failed to diligently prosecute suit against bank, of which he was president, so that he was personally liable for costs. McDowell v. First Nat. Bank [Neb.] 102 N. W. 615.

76. Cannot, in any case or in any manner, either by advice or otherwise, litigate any claim or demand of one legatee or heir at the expense of the estate. In re Davis' Estate [Mont.] 78 P. 704.

77. Clerk of attorney of special administrator. In re Bell's Estate, 145 Cal. 646, 79 P. 358.

78. Administrator who had been the agent and attorney of the intestate with reference to the property of the estate, held not entitled to allowance for attorney's services where the administration was not attended with any legal complications. Noble v. Whitten [Wash.] 80 P. 451.

79. Where will suggested the employment of an accountant. In re Arnton, 94 N. Y. S. 471.

80. In re Arnton, 94 N. Y. S. 471.

81. Incumbent on administrator to furnish his own bondsmen. Adamson v. Parker [Ark.] 85 S. W. 239.

82. Plaintiff held not estopped from objecting. Jewett v. Schmidt, 45 Misc. 471, 92 N. Y. S. 737. Where no costs are allowed accounting administrators, charge for printing on appeal cannot be allowed against the trust fund for which they were ordered to account, there being no basis for holding that the disbursement was incurred otherwise than in their personal interest. Id.

83. Code Civ. Proc. § 1718. In re Carpenter's Estate, 146 Cal. 661, 80 P. 1072.

84. In re Carpenter's Estate, 146 Cal. 661, 80 P. 1072.

85. Is inferior to claim of executor for advances and interest thereon. In re Carpenter's Estate, 146 Cal. 661, 80 P. 1072.

benefit to the estate,[86] nor for expenditures in procuring the examination of a mine in which the estate held stock, for the purpose of ascertaining its value,[97] nor for expenditures for a detective to watch the executors, who had been removed at her suit, because they had not turned over all the papers and she believed them dishonest, they never having refused to produce any paper when asked.[88]

There seems to be some conflict of authority as to whether the executor is entitled to an allowance for costs and counsel fees incurred by him in defending the will. Some courts hold that he is entitled to such allowance,[89] others that he is not,[90] unless the estate is materially benefited by his taking part in the litigation;[91] others that he is entitled to an allowance provided that the will has been probated before the contest is instituted;[92] and still others that he is not entitled to an allowance pending the trial, but that one may thereafter be made to him in the discretion of the court provided it appears that he has acted in good faith.[93]

Orders making an allowance to an administrator and his attorney for their services are void if made without notice to all interested parties, or a voluntary appearance on their part.[94]

The burden is upon contestant to show that payments made by the representative in the discharge of his duties are not a proper charge against the estate.[95]

86. Civ. Code, § 2273, providing for repayment to a trustee of unlawful expenditures which are of benefit to the estate, does not apply, § 2250 limiting its application to express trusts not including those of executors, administrators, or guardians. In re Bell's Estate, 145 Cal. 646, 79 P. 358.

NOTE. Liability of estate for broker's commissions: There seems to be a conflict of authority as to the liability of the estate for commissions of brokers or agents selling property. It is liable where the will expressly or impliedly permits their employment. Ingham v. Ryan, 18 Colo. App. 347, 71 P. 899; O'Brien v. Gilleland, 79 Tex. 602, 15 S. W. 681. If governing statutes exist, they, of course, control. See Danielwitz v. Sheppard, 62 Cal. 342; Shepard v. Shepard, 19 Fla. 300; In re Dunn, 8 N. Y. St. Rep. 766. In the absence of statute or a direction in the will, the representative seems to have the right to employ a broker under proper circumstances. See Day v. Codman, 39 N. J. Eq. 258; Armstrong v. O'Brien, 83 Tex. 635, 19 S. W. 268; Lewis v. Reed, 11 Ind. 239; Tucker v. Tucker, 29 N. J. Eq. 286. In some states the amount allowed brokers will be deducted from the representative's commission. See Jacobs v. Jacobs, 99 Mo. 427, 12 S. W. 457; Pomeroy v. Mills, 35 N. J. Eq. 442; Sloan's Estate, 7 Pa. Co. Ct. 377.—From note to In re Willard's Estate [Cal.] 64 L. R. A. 554.

87, 88. In re Bell's Estate, 145 Cal. 646, 79 P. 358.

89. Should be allowed for expenses incurred in proving the will, and in resisting an attack upon it by persons interested in preventing its allowance. Hampden Trust Co. v. Leary, 186 Mass. 577, 72 N. E. 88. Trust deed, to the provisions of which the will was made subject, held not to require such expenses to be paid out of the trust estate. Id. Sum allowed and paid attorneys of executor for services in attempting to probate codicil discovered after probate of will held a proper claim against the estate. Couchman v. Bush, 26 Ky. L. R. 1277, 83 S. W. 1039. Entitled to counsel fees, even though legatees had a share in calling in such counsel. McIntire v. McIntire, 192 U. S. 116, 48 Law. Ed. 369.

90. As a general rule the executor has no right to take sides in a controversy between two sets of beneficiaries as to the validity of the will, nor in a contest in which it is contended that the will is invalid and that distribution should be made under a prior will or under the intestate laws, and cannot charge the expense of so doing to the estate. In re Alexander's Estate, 211 Pa. 124, 60 A. 511.

91. As where, by the sustaining of the last will instead of a former one, the estate was enabled to secure the outlawed indebtedness of two of testator's sons as assets, by treating it as advancements. In re Alexander's Estate, 211 Pa. 124, 60 A. 511. He may take part in controversy where no appeal was taken from the order admitting the will until shortly before the time to do so would have expired, and in the meantime he had qualified and made a partial distribution of the estate and is entitled to attorney's fees. Id.

92. It is the duty of an executor, after the probate of a will, to protect it when assailed, and he will be allowed reasonable counsel fees to compensate the attorneys whom he may employ for that purpose; but he is not entitled to allowance, where will has never been probated and no letters have been issued. Tilghman v. France, 99 Md. 611, 59 A. 277.

93. Not entitled to counsel fees pending the trial of issues on a caveat to a will charging that its execution was procured by fraud and undue influence of the executor named therein (Kengla v. Randall, 22 App. D. C. 463); but after the trial if it appears that he has acted in good faith throughout, he may, in the discretion of the court, have an allowance therefor out of the estate whether the will be sustained or not. Id.

94. In re Sullivan's Estate, 36 Wash. 217, 78 P. 945.

95. Evidence held insufficient to over-

Funeral expenses.[96]—There is conflict of authority as to whether the funeral expenses of a married woman are a charge against her estate.[97]

The courts will allow a reasonable sum to be expended for the erection of a monument over decedent's grave, even where the will makes no provision therefor.[98]

(§ 9) E. Rights and liabilities of co-representatives.[99]—Where one of two executors and trustees fails to qualify, the other, on his qualification, becomes vested with all the power and authority of a sole executor and trustee.[100] The acts of a regularly appointed administrator are valid, notwithstanding irregularities in the appointment of a co-administrator who acted with him.[101]

One executor is not liable for funds in the hands of his co-executor unless they subsequently come into his hands, or are dissipated with his consent or by reason of his negligence.[102]

One of two administrators may appeal from an order allowing claims, though his co-administrator does not consent thereto.[103] One of two executors made a defendant in an action by his co-executor merely because he refuses to join as plaintiff, and who is not mentioned in the judgment, is not an adverse party and need not be served with notice of a motion for a new trial or of appeal.[104]

(§ 9) F. Compensation.[105]—Matters relating to the compensation of testamentary trustees are treated elsewhere.[106]

In the absence of statute the representative is entitled to a fair compensation for the amount and character of labor performed and responsibility involved.[107] In many states the compensation of the representative is fixed by statute, and in such case he is generally allowed a certain percentage on all property passing come presumption in favor of administrator's honesty. In re Cozine, 93 N. Y. S. 557.

96. See 3 C. L. 1294.

97. In Maryland the husband is chargeable with the funeral expenses of his wife and is bound to pay them, and they constitute no charge upon her separate estate, under Code, art. 45, § 21, providing that husband's liability for necessaries shall remain as at common law. Stonesifer v. Shriver [Md.] 59 A. 139. The same is true in regard to a tombstone for her grave. Id.

Note: It has been generally held that statutes creating the wife's statutory estate do not absolve the husband from his common-law obligations to provide suitable burial for the wife, and that he is not entitled to any credit on the settlement of his administration of her estate for such expenditures. Smyley v. Reese, 53 Ala. 89, 25 Am. Rep. 598; Sears v. Giddey, 41 Mich. 590, 2 N. W. 917, 32 Am. Rep. 168; Staple's Appeal, 52 Conn. 425; Matter of Werringer's Estate, 100 Cal. 345, 34 P. 825. Rhode Island and Ohio, under their statutes, hold that a husband who administers upon his wife's estate, is entitled to be allowed for reasonable funeral expenses. Moulton v. Smith, 16 R. I. 126, 12 A. 891, 27 Am. St. Rep. 728; McClellan v. Filson, 44 Ohio St. 184, 5 N. E. 861, 58 Am. Rep. 814. The Massachusetts statute expressly declares the husband to be so entitled (Constantinides v. Walsh, 146 Mass. 281, 15 N. E. 631, 4 Am. St. Rep. 311), but before its adoption it was held otherwise (Cunningham v. Reardon, 98 Mass. 538, 96 Am. Dec. 670).—From Stonesifer v. Shriver [Md.] 59 A. 139.

98. Regarded as funeral expenses. In re Koppikus' Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 732. Especially where the estate is solvent and five of six heirs consented to such expenditure. Phillips v. Duckett, 112 Ill. App. 587.

99. See 3 C. L. 1294.

100. Spengler v. Kuhn, 212 Ill. 186, 72 N. E. 214. Where property is given to the two executors or the survivor of them in trust for specific purposes, and one refuses to qualify, the other becomes sole trustee and the court has no authority to appoint another person to act with him. Mullanny v. Mangle, 212 Ill. 247, 72 N. E. 385. Where two persons are appointed testamentary trustees and one renounces, the entire trust devolves upon the remaining one, and so long as he continues to act there is no vacancy. Mangle v. Mullanny, 113 Ill. App. 457.

101. Under Rev. Prob. Code, § 80, authorizing grant of letters to one or more of several classes of persons. Blackman v. Mulhall [S. D.] 104 N. W. 250.

102. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Pendleton, 179 N. Y. 486, 72 N. E. 508.

103. Under Comp. Laws, § 9386, providing that any administrator, executor, or creditor may appeal. Hammond v. Frazer [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 254, 103 N. W. 996.

104. Is impossible for him to be affected adversely by a new trial or a reversal. Sprague v. Walton, 145 Cal. 228, 78 P. 645.

105. See 3 C. L. 1295.

106. See Trusts, 4 C. L. 1727.

107. Three per cent. allowed on proceeds of sale of realty, less incumbrances, and same amount on personalty, there being no unusual services or responsibility. In re Moore's Estate, 211 Pa. 343, 60 A. 989.

through his hands.[108] In case the statute fixes a maximum, the amount to be allowed is, within the limit so fixed, discretionary with the court.[1] In states where the administrator is entitled to the possession of real estate, he is entitled to commissions on the appraised value thereof.[2] On the sale of realty subject to an incumbrance, he is only entitled to a commission on the balance of the price remaining after deducting the amount of the incumbrance.[3] An administrator of the estate of a deceased partner who administers on the partnership estate is entitled to his regular statutory commissions on partnership assets coming into his hands.[4] The representative is not entitled to commissions on claims collected by him which are afterwards held not to belong to the estate,[5] nor on the amount of a mortgage which is paid off and satisfied by giving the holder trust certificates secured by a new mortgage.[6]

In case the will provides for the payment by the executor of dividends on stocks directly to the beneficiaries of a trust created thereby instead of to himself as trustee, he is not entitled to dividends thereon in both capacities.[7]

Statutes in some states allow extra compensation for extraordinary services.[8] A trust company acting as executor is entitled to compensation for acts performed by it in pursuance of its ordinary business which are entirely outside its duties as executor.[9]

Where the will provides a specific compensation to an executor, he is not entitled to the statutory commissions unless he renounces such specific compensation.[10]

108. Kirby's Dig. § 134, gives him commission on all sums passing through his hands for his entire trouble and risk, and he is entitled to nothing if nothing passes through his hands, even though he may have been put to considerable trouble and annoyance in his preparation for the administration. Adamson v. Parker [Ark.] 85 S. W. 239. Under 1 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896 [2d Ed.] p. 348, c. 3, § 133, they are entitled to a sum not exceeding six per cent. on the amount of the personal estate, and not exceeding three per cent. on money arising from the sale of realty, with such additional allowances for costs and charges in collecting and defending the claims of the estate and disposing of the same as shall be reasonable. Griswold v. Smith, 214 Ill. 323, 73 N. E. 400. See 116 Ill. App. 223. An executor who, without objection by the other parties in interest, sues to construe the will of his testator which undertakes to exercise a power conferred on the latter by a former will, and who comes into possession of the property taken by his testator under such former will, and holds the custody of the same until such suit is decided, is entitled to commissions on such property, though the court holds that the second will does not exercise the powers conferred by the first one, and appoints an administrator with the will annexed for the first estate. Ketchin v. Rion [S. C.] 51 S. E. 557. Under Bal. Ann. Codes & St. § 6314, is entitled to commissions on the whole estate accounted for by him. Noble v. Whitten [Wash.] 80 P. 451.

1. Allowance will not be increased on appeal unless there is a plain case of wrongful exercise of judgment. Griswold v. Smith, 214 Ill. 323, 73 N. E. 400. See 116 Ill. App. 223.

2. Noble v. Whitten [Wash.] 80 P. 451.

3. Not upon principal or capitalized amount of a ground rent which is an incumbrance on the property, and is included in the price of the realty sold out of which it is payable. In re Moore's Estate, 211 Pa. 343, 60 A. 989. Where deed recites less consideration than that expressed in contract of sale, and difference is caused by purchaser assuming a ground rent on the property, the executor is not entitled to a commission on the amount thereof. Id.

4. Entitled to five per cent. under Rev. St. 1899, § 223, providing that courts shall, in all settlements of executors and administrators, allow them that amount. Browning v. Richardson, 186 Mo. 361, 85 S. W. 518.

5. Not where he collects such a claim, denies the right of the owner to any part thereof, and only turns proceeds over to him after long litigation. Laughlin's Ex'x v. Boughner [Ky.] 84 S. W. 300.

6. Executors held not entitled to commissions on amount of mortgage which was paid off and satisfied by giving the holder trust certificates secured by a new mortgage. In re Moore's Estate, 211 Pa. 338, 60 A. 987. Held no such manifest error as to warrant reversal of finding that compensation of executors was reasonable and sufficient. Id.

7. Lamar v. Harris, 121 Ga. 285, 48 S. E. 932.

8. Attorneys' fees, court costs of administration, and premiums due a surety company on the administrator's bond, cannot be allowed out of the proceeds of a sale of realty to pay debts prior to the claim of a mortgagee, under Rev. St. § 6188, authorizing compensation for extraordinary services. Sherman v. Millard, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 338.

9. Allowance for acting as trustee, arranging for loan, drawing papers, signing certificates, and acting as registrar, held reasonable. In re Moore's Estate, 211 Pa. 343, 60 A. 989.

10. Code Civ. Proc. § 2730. Where given in lieu of commissions must renounce it by

But this does not apply where the will expressly provides that such compensation shall be in addition to that allowed by the statute, in which case he is entitled to both.[11] So long as one remains an executor, he is entitled to the compensation provided by the will.[12] If the will provides for an annual stipend, deficiencies due to failure of income may be made up from excess income in other years.[13]

Commissions will generally, but not necessarily, be divided equally among several executors, or administrators.[14] In such case a gross sum should be allowed to all, and the court should not attempt to distinguish between their services, or determine how much each or any of them may have earned,[15] though in some states commissions must be apportioned among the representatives according to the services rendered by each.[16]

The representative may waive his statutory compensation,[17] and if his acts purport to be done gratuitously, no claim for payment can be founded on them at a later date.[18]

In some states the public administrator receives a salary and is required to pay all fees received by him into the county treasury.[19] In such case he is not entitled to retain the fees allowed him for services rendered after the expiration of his term of office, but such services will be deemed voluntary.[20] In other states he is entitled to the same commissions as an ordinary representative.[21]

Executors and administrators have no absolute right to commissions until they are determined upon and awarded by the proper court on a judicial settlement of their accounts,[22] and the assignment by an executor of his fees before they are earned is void as contrary to public policy.[23]

a written instrument filed with the surrogate. In re Sprague, 94 N. Y. S. 84

11. In re Sprague, 94 N. Y. S. 84.

12, 13. Marfield v. McMurdy, 25 App. D. C. 342.

14. Griswold v. Smith, 214 Ill. 323, 73 N. E. 400. See 116 Ill. App. 223.

15. Griswold v. Smith, 116 Ill. App. 223, app. dism'd 214 Ill. 323, 73 N. E. 400.

16. Code Civ. Proc. § 2730, provides that, where the estate is worth more than $100,000, and there is more than one representative, a full commission shall be allowed for each of them, not to exceed three, and the gross sum so allowed shall be apportioned among them according to the services rendered by each. In re McCormick, 94 N. Y. S. 1071; In re Arnton, 94 N. Y. S. 471. The number of executors or administrators to whom an allowance can be made under this section is the number who are such at the time of the judicial settlement, and not those who may have been such at any prior time, and who, for any cause, are no longer before the court as such. In re McCormick, 94 N. Y. S. 1071. Hence where three executors were named in the will and only two qualified, and one of them died before settlement, only one full commission can be allowed to the survivor. Id. Where there were two executors, both of whom took part in the work and shared in the responsibility, held, that commissions should have been equally divided between them. In re Arnton, 94 N. Y. S. 471.

17. McIntire v. McIntire, 192 U. S. 116, 48 Law. Ed. 369. Record must show an agreement to do so. Letters and other evidence held not to show waiver of fees. Noble v. Whitten [Wash.] 80 P. 451.

18. McIntire v. McIntire, 192 U. S. 116, 48 Law. Ed. 369. Where order was made by consent of all parties that assets should remain in the custody of the court and that the administrator should act without compensation, held, that he was not entitled to commissions, though the assets were restored to him under a subsequent order on his filing a new bond. Id.

19. Los Angeles County Laws 1897, c. 277, § 159, subd. 10, and §§ 215, 216, 217, control Code Civ. Proc. § 1618, providing that he shall receive the same compensation and allowances as are allowed to other administrators. Los Angeles County v. Kellogg, 146 Cal. 590, 80 P. 861.

20. Cannot complain since he is entitled to state his accounts to the close of his term and procure a revocation of his letters under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1726, 1735. Los Angeles County v. Kellogg, 146 Cal. 590, 80 P. 861.

21. Under Rev. St. 1899, the public administrator is entitled to the same compensation for his services as may be allowed by law to executors and administrators, unless the court for special reasons allows a higher compensation. Browning v. Richardson, 186 Mo. 361, 85 S. W. 518.

22. Hence any allowance made for the services of one dying before that time is not measured by Code Civ. Proc. § 2730, but is in the discretion of the surrogate. In re McCormick, 94 N. Y. S. 1071. In exercising such discretion the surrogate should, however, follow the standard of the percentage upon receipts and disbursements fixed thereby. Id. Thus the amount received by the deceased executor which is afterwards turned over to those entitled to it, and the amount actually realized in cash up to his

Statutory commissions may be denied for misconduct.[24]

The approval of an executor's final report and the distribution of the estate does not debar him from his right to fees provided he asserts it during the term at which his final report is allowed.[25] On appeal from an order setting aside an executor's semi-annual account and revoking his letters, it will be presumed that, on final settlement of the estate he will be allowed proper compensation for his services, there being nothing in regard to the matter in the orders appealed from.[26]

(§ 9) G. Rights and liabilities of sureties and actions on bonds.[27]—The sureties on the representative's bond are only responsible for his faithful performance of the duties imposed upon him by law in his representative capacity.[28] They are liable for all breaches by him of its conditions,[29] including his failure to account for assets in his hands at the time of his removal,[30] and for the value of property obtained and converted by him under the mistaken belief that it belonged to the estate.[31]

As a general rule the sureties of a representative who is indebted to the estate are chargeable with the amount of the debt,[32] but in most states this does not apply where the representative is insolvent at the time of his appointment, and continues to be so until his discharge.[33] death should be used as a basis for computing commissions at one-half rate for receiving. Id. Right depends upon the rendition of the services and the settlement of his account. Code Civ. Proc. § 2730. Executor not entitled to claim or be paid commissions until the will has been proved, letters testamentary issued, and his account presented to and passed upon by the surrogate. Oakeshott v. Smith, 93 N. Y. S. 659.

23. Oakeshott v. Smith, 93 N. Y. S. 659.

24. Denied for maladministration in paying claims which had not been proved. State v. Taylor [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 7. Surrogate may deny them in his discretion, notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 2730, providing that, on the settlement of his account, the surrogate must allow him the commissions fixed by law. In re Gall, 95 N. Y. S. 124. Administratrix deprived of all commissions and costs because of misconduct. Allowance by surrogate reversed. Id. Where no misconduct or improper management of the estate is shown, it is error to allow the executor only half his legal commissions and to charge him personally with costs, on the theory that he made out his account in the manner he did for the purpose of getting commissions to which he was not entitled. In re Dutcher, 102 App. Div. 410, 92 N. Y. S. 418.

25. Evidence held to show that he did not intend to waive right. No time being fixed for allowance, it may be made after approval of the final report as well as before. Griswold v. Smith, 116 Ill. App. 223, app. dism'd 214 Ill. 323, 73 N. E. 400.

26. In re Courtney's Estate [Mont.] 79 P. 317.

27. See 3 C. L. 1297.

28. Not responsible for misapplication of proceeds of insurance policies payable to the administrators for the benefit of the widow. Administrator takes fund as agent and trustee of widow and not as assets of the estate. Nickals v. Stanley [Cal.] 81 P. 117.

29. Evidence held sufficient to show a breach of an administrator's bond. American Bonding & Trust Co. v. United States, 23 App. D. C. 535. Evidence in action by administrator de bonis non against a former administrator and his sureties to recover money in the hands of such administrator on his removal, held to demand the verdict rendered, without reference to evidence illegally admitted. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388.

NOTE. Subrogation in favor of sureties: Sureties on bonds of executors and administrators are entitled to be subrogated to the rights of those whose demands they have met (Gowing v. Bland, 3 Miss. [2 How.] 813; Wernecke v. Kenyon, 66 Mo. 275; Cowgill v. Linnville, 20 Mo. App. 138), including the rights of creditors (Pierce v. Holzer, 65 Mich. 263, 32 N. W. 431), next of kin (Kennedy v. Pickens, 38 N. C. 147), and legatees (Pinckard v. Woods, 8 Grat. [Va.] 140).—From note to American Bonding Co. v. National Mechanics' Bank [Md.] 99 Am. St. Rep. 509.

30. Are just as much liable therefor as for his misappropriation of assets while in office. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388.

31. When administrator is sued therefor in his representative capacity and his liability is established, sureties are liable to the ordinary. Hill v. Escort [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 367. In action by donee of savings bank-book against administrator and his bondsmen for amount of deposit alleged to have been converted by him, petition held to sufficiently allege plaintiff's ownership. Id. Not necessary for her to plead writing by which she acquired ownership. Id.

32. Sanders v. Dodge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 137, 103 N. W. 597.

33. Does not apply in Michigan under Comp. Laws, § 9433, providing that representatives shall not be accountable for any debts remaining uncollected without his fault. Sanders v. Dodge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 137, 103 N. W. 597.

NOTE. Liability of surety for debt of insolvent representative: There is a conflict

A surety on the bond of an administrator of an insolvent estate who has been guilty of maladministration is liable to a creditor of the estate only for the difference between what he received and what he would have received but for the maladministration.[34]

A county administrator who has been appointed administrator of an estate and has not been required to give a bond in addition to that which he has given as county administrator, is liable upon the latter under the same circumstances and to the same extent as if the bond had been given in the particular case, and the remedies upon such bond are the same that would be allowed to those interested upon an ordinary administrator's bond.[35] So far as persons interested in the administration of estates vested in him are concerned, his bond is to be treated as one given for the faithful performance of his duties as administrator of each estate, and any person aggrieved by his conduct as administrator of a particular estate may bring suit thereon.[36] It is not necessary, in such case, that other persons who may have been aggrieved on account of his administration of other estates should be joined in the action.[37] A recovery in such action for a sum less than the full penalty of the bond does not exhaust all remedies thereon but persons interested in other estates who may be aggrieved by the administrator's conduct may bring other suits and recover other judgments until the full penalty in the bond has been exhausted.[38]

An administrator de bonis non may maintain an action against his predecessor and the sureties on his bond to compel them to account for property of the estate not turned over to him.[39] The same is true of a county administrator, who has been appointed administrator de bonis non of an estate, and he may call to account a former county administrator, who was appointed administrator of the same estate and removed, by suing him and the sureties on his official bond.[40] In a suit by the ordinary on such a bond for the use of the administrator de bonis non of an estate of which such county administrator has been administrator, the court will take judicial notice of the fact that he is the incumbent of such office.[41]

In some states it is not necessary, as a condition precedent to a suit on the bond, to establish against the principal either a liability in his representative capacity or a devastavit by him.[42] In others an action cannot be maintained against the sureties of authority as to the liability of the sureties in such cases where the representative was insolvent at the time of his appointment and continues to be so until his discharge. They have been held liable in Massachusetts (Leland v. Felton, 1 Allen, 531; Kinney v. Ensign, 18 Pick. 232; Stevens v. Gaylord, 11 Mass. 256; Chapin v. Waters, 110 Mass. 195; Winship v. Bass, 12 Mass. 198), New Hampshire (Judge of Probate v. Sulloway, 68 N. H. 511, 44 A. 720, 73 Am. St. Rep. 619, 49 L. R. A. 347), Alabama (Wright v. Lang, 66 Ala. 389), Ohio (McGaughey v. Jacoby, 54 Ohio St. 487, 44 N. E. 231) and Maryland (Lambrecht v. State, 57 Md. 240). A contrary rule prevails in California (In re Walker, 125 Cal. 242, 57 P. 991, 73 Am. St. Rep. 40), Indiana (State v. Gregory, 119 Ind. 503, 22 N. E. 1), Kentucky (Buckel v. Smith's Adm'r, 26 Ky. L. R. 991, 82 S. W. 1001), New York (Baucus v. Stover, 89 N. Y. 1, afd. 107 N. Y. 624, 13 N. E. 939; Keegan v. Smith, 172 N. Y. 624), New Jersey (Harker v. Irick, 10 N. J. Eq. 269), Missouri (McCarty v. Frazier, 62 Mo. 263), Tennessee (Rader v. Yeargin, 85 Tenn. 486, 3 S. W. 178), Vermont (Lyon v. Osgood, 58 Vt. 707, 7 A. 5), Pennsylvania (Piper's Estate, 15 Pa. St. 533) and Michigan (Sanders v. Dodge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 137, 103 N. W. 597).—From note to 61 L. R. A. 313; note to 51 Am. Dec. 521; 18 Harv. Law Rev. 394; 3 C. L. 1299; 1 C. L. 1118.

34. State v. Taylor [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 7.

35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388.

41. Where it is alleged that he is ordinary, no averment as to his election and qualification is necessary. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388.

42. Civ. Code 1895, §§ 2536, 3398, 3501-3504. Suit by administrator de bonis non to recover funds not turned over by his predecessor on revocation of his letters. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388. Code 1863, § 2470, providing that no prior judgment establishing the liability of the administrator "or" a devastavit by him shall be necessary before suit against the sureties on the bond, is included in all subsequent Codes, including that of 1895 (§ 3398), with the exception that the word "or" is changed to "for." Held that the change will be deemed to be due to oversight, accident, or mistake, instead of an intention to change the law, and hence the rule stated in the text, which applied under the Code of 1863, applies under that of 1895.

of an executor or administrator for breach of the bond until the probate court has, by order or decree, fixed the liability of the representative.[43] In others a judgment must first be recovered against the representative, an execution issued, and a return of nulla bona made.[44] In the latter case such a judgment or decree is conclusive evidence of the debt as against the sureties.[45]

Actions on bonds must, of course, be brought within the time fixed by the statute of limitations.[46] No demand on the administrator or the sureties is necessary as a condition precedent to the owner's right to sue the sureties for the value of property obtained and converted by the administrator under the mistaken belief that it belonged to the estate.[47]

Plaintiff having alleged the execution of the bond and its breach need not, as against a general demurrer, allege its condition.[48] A petition alleging the administrator's failure to inventory and account for all the assets of the estate in his hands and the conversion of a part of them to his own use, states a cause of action.[49] A statement of claim against a surety on a bond given to secure the proper distribution of the proceeds of a sale of real estate must aver that the award made by the orphans' court and claimed by plaintiff was a portion of the proceeds of such sale.[50]

The exoneration of the administrator from personal liability on judgments where the estate was subsequently declared insolvent is immaterial and not a defense to his sureties when sued because of his failure to pay; in such a case the proper plea is want of assets.[51] While want of assets is a defense to suretyship, want of "sufficient assets" is not.[52]

In a suit by an administrator de bonis non against his predecessor, who had been removed, and the sureties on his bond, evidence showing that the principal had, during the time of his administration, received assets, and had, after his removal, failed and refused, upon demand, to deliver them to his successor, establishes a prima facie liability on the bond.[53] Admissions made by the legal representative of an estate, after his letters have been revoked, are inadmissible against the surety.[54] The return of the administrator charging himself with assets and crediting himself with payments and showing on its face a balance due by him to the estate, is prima facie evidence, both against him and his sureties, as to the amount in his hands appearing therefrom.[55] The liability of the sureties cannot be terminated by the filing of a void bond as a substitute for the original.[56] In states where a release of one of two or more joint debtors does not extinguish the obligation of any of the others, an order releasing a surety upon application of the heirs at law does not release a co-

Id. Rulings on this question in Henderson v. Levy, 52 Ga. 35, and Richardson v. Whitworth, 103 Ga. 741, will not be followed as they are in conflict with that in Morgan v. West, 43 Ga. 275. Id.

43. Nickals v. Stanley [Cal.] 81 P. 117.

44. Act Maryland, 1720, requiring that before an action be maintained on an administrator's bond, after recovery of judgment against the administrator, execution must have been returned nulla bona, is satisfied where return is made the day after issue upon the order of plaintiff's attorney. American Bonding & Trust Co. v. United States, 23 App. D. C. 535.

45. American Bonding & Trust Co. v. United States, 23 App. D. C. 535.

46. A distributee who is a nonresident infant at the time of distribution has five years after reaching his majority in which to enforce his right to a share of the estate by suit on the executor's official bond, under Ky. St. 1903, §§ 2521, 2550; Smith v. Hardesty, 26 Ky. L. R. 1266, 83 S. W. 646.

47. Hill v. Escort [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 367.

48. Condition prescribed by statute, and hence allegation of execution carried condition with it. Hill v. Escort [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 367.

49. Not necessary to allege that settlement and release relied on as a defense was obtained by fraud, but that is a matter for reply. State v. Stuart [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 471.

50. Commonwealth v. Magee, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 329.

51. Woodall v. Wright [Ala.] 37 So. 846.

52. Plea overruled. Woodall v. Wright [Ala.] 37 So. 846.

53, 54, 55. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388.

56. Elizalde v. Murphy, 146 Cal. 168, 79 P. 866.

surety.[57] Sureties of an administrator or trustee who wrongfully applies a trust fund with the acquiescence of the beneficiary are released from liability to the beneficiary.[58]

A bond given by an executor and residuary legatee to pay debts and legacies so as to relieve himself from the necessity of accounting is not invalidated because it contains a provision requiring him to account.[59] It is no defense to an action on such a bond that the executor is ready and willing to apply such assets as he has received to that purpose.[60] A legatee is not bound to obtain judgment against the executor before suing on the bond.[61]

§ 10. Actions by and against representatives and costs therein.[62]—The personal representative is the only person entitled to represent the estate as such in litigation.[63] His capacity in this respect is official and not personal.[64]

Upon the death of a party to an action, it may generally be revived by or against his executor or administrator,[65] and the exclusive remedy for proof of claims does not apply.[66] After the death of defendant has been suggested, and a motion has been made to revive the cause in the name of his administrator, the latter's appearance in filing an answer in which he alleges that he is the administrator, and that the cause has been revived in his name, is equivalent to a waiver of summons and a formal order of revivor.[67] Because his capacity is representative only, he is not a necessary party unless some interest or title is affected which he represents, but may be a proper one.[68] One of two co-executors alleged to have interests inimical

57. Code Civ. Proc. § 1543, has this effect, though § 1403 authorizes the release of a surety only on his own application. Elizalde v. Murphy, 146 Cal. 168, 79 P. 866.

58. Estate of Koehnken, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 359.

59. Given under Laws 1896, c. 220, § 3. Unnecessary or illegal conditions which are separable may be disregarded. Probate Court v. Adams [R. I.] 60 A. 769.

60. Such is not the legal condition of the bond. Probate Court v. Adams [R. I.] 60 A. 769.

61. Obligation to pay is absolute and amount is fixed by the will. Probate Court v. Adams [R. I.] 60 A. 769.

62. See 3 C. L. 1301.

63. There is no person in existence to bring an action in favor of the estate of a decedent, arising after his death, until an executor or administrator is appointed, and hence limitations do not begin to run until such appointment. Right of representative of deceased partner to compel surviving partner and representatives of another deceased partner to account. Stehn v. Hayssen [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1074. In Wisconsin the fact that there is no person in existence authorized to sue when the cause of action accrues cannot extend the time within which the action may be brought to more than double the period otherwise provided by law. Rev. St. 1898, § 4251. Id. Statute cannot be taken advantage of unless pleaded. Id.

64. An exemption from service of process of a nonresident who comes into a state as a witness, is personal and does not apply to a personal representative in his representative capacity. Linn v. Hagen's Adm'x [Ky.] 87 S. W. 763; Id. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1101.

65. See Abatement and Revival, 5 C. L. 1.

66. A statute prohibiting the bringing of actions against executors or administrators by complaint and summons and requiring all claims against the estate to be filed in the clerk's office does not apply to actions commenced before the death of the deceased, nor prevent their prosecution by or against his representatives. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2465; Newman v. Gates [Ind.] 72 N. E. 638. Where, in an action by a firm of attorneys, judgment was rendered for defendants on a counterclaim, and one of the plaintiffs died before an appeal was taken, his personal representative was a necessary party appellant, and if he is not joined, the appeal will be dismissed. Newman v. Gates [Ind.] 72 N. E. 638. See 67 N. E. 468.

67. Cleveland v. Cazort [Ark.] 83 S. W. 316.

68. See generally Parties, 4 C. L. 888, and titles treating of particular remedial rights. An administrator is not a necessary party to a suit to foreclose a mortgage on real estate of the decedent, but he is a proper party where the equity of redemption is of any value. Sherman v. Millard, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 338. The representative of a deceased maker of a note is not a necessary party to a bill in equity by two other purported makers to have the same adjudged void on the ground that their signatures thereto are forgeries, and to restrain its collection (Ritterhoff v. Puget Sound Nat. Bank, 37 Wash. 76, 79 P. 601), nor is the representative of a deceased guardian a necessary party to a suit by the ward on the guardian's bond. (Under Shannon's Code, §§ 4484, 4486, providing that where parties are jointly and severally bound on the same instrument, they may all, or any part of them, be sued in the same action. Brannon v. Wright, 113 Tenn. 692, 84 S. W. 612). In proceedings to enforce a mechanic's lien, where the owner gives a bond with sureties to those of the estate cannot be joined as a party plaintiff in his representative capacity in a suit for the benefit of the estate, but should be made a party defendant in his individual capacity.[69] Though he may have, in the first instance, been made a defendant, if it appears at the trial that he really has no interest in the outcome of the litigation, he may, on the death of his co-executor after the case has been appealed, be substituted in his stead as the party entitled to represent the interests of the estate.[70] An administratrix suing the heirs at law to compel them to specifically perform decedent's contract for the sale of realty may join herself, in her personal right as one of the heirs, as a complainant.[71] A defendant to a bill for partition who becomes an administrator after it is filed cannot complain that he was not made a party in his official capacity, in the absence of an application therefor.[72]

Actions brought by or against one described as administrator or executor of a certain estate are generally presumed to be actions by or against him in his own right, the additional words being descriptio personae,[73] but this rule does not apply where it would be impossible under the pleadings for a judgment to be rendered for or against him individually, or for him to have a personal interest in the subject-matter of the proceedings,[74] nor where on appeal the case is tried as one against him in his representative capacity.[75] Where the will devises realty in trust to executors, a complaint containing a copy of the will, and showing that as executors defendants have accepted the trusts created by the will, is not demurrable for failure to add the words "as trustees" to the statement of the representative capacity of defendants in the caption.[76]

One suing as administrator can only recover for the use and benefit of the estate he represents, or, in certain cases, for the benefit of the next of kin of the decedent.[77] One suing a representative in his official capacity cannot amend so as to state a cause of action against him individually,[78] nor can one suing on a quantum meruit for

for the purpose of dissolving the lien, sells the property, and dies before judgment, and his estate has been settled, the time for presenting claims has passed, and there were no assets for his heirs, his administrator is a proper, but not a necessary, party to the suit. Where, in such case, administrator is dead and sureties are notified and appear, the case may be prosecuted to judgment without the appointment of an administrator de bonis non. Holmes v. Humphrey [Mass.] 73 N. E. 668.

69, 70. Quillian v. Johnson [Ga.] 49 S. E. 801.

71. Butman v. Butman, 213 Ill. 104, 72 N. E. 821.

72. Jespersen v. Mech, 213 Ill. 488, 72 N. E. 1114.

73. Altgelt v. Elmendorf [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 412.

74. Altgelt v. Elmendorf [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 412. Where action was brought against administrator in his official capacity to recover money judgment against the estate, held that his designation in pleadings, assignments of error, and record generally as "defendant C. G. A., administrator," etc., could not be deemed as a designation of him in his personal capacity, and appeal could not be dismissed on ground that it was taken in his individual capacity on a judgment against him in his representative capacity. Id. A petition by "A., as independent executrix of E.," cannot be construed as the petition of A. in her individual right, where it again mentions her as a distinct party suing in her own right, thus showing an intention to proceed in both capacities. McKee v. Ellis [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 880.

75. In action against administrator and sureties on his bond to recover proceeds of insurance policy alleged to belong to the widow and to have been wrongfully used in paying the debts of the estate, where defendant demurred solely as administrator and the judgment sustaining the demurrer ran in his favor solely as administrator, and he was not brought within the jurisdiction of the court in his individual capacity, and plaintiff's counsel in their brief treated the action as against him in his official capacity, held that action would on appeal be regarded as one against him in his official capacity only, and hence one against the estate, and judgment would be sustained if no cause of action was alleged against it. Nickals v. Stanley [Cal.] 81 P. 117.

76. Described only "as executors." Rowe v. Rowe, 92 N. Y. S. 491.

77. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Pierce, 34 Ind. App. 188, 72 N. E. 604. One suing as administratrix of the estate of "Ferdinand N." A. cannot recover on a complaint alleging the wrongful death of "Fernando W." A. Not idem sonans. Id. The question of her right to do so is properly raised by demurrer to the complaint for want of sufficient facts to constitute a cause of action. Id.

78. Moore v. Smith, 121 Ga. 479, 49 S. E. 601. In action against one as executrix, on contract made by her in her representative capacity, proceedings cannot be amended services rendered decedent amend so as to seek a recovery on an express contract made with decedent's widow after his death.[79] If plaintiff sues as an administrator only, he cannot, in the absence of an amendment, be treated as having sued as trustee of an express trust.[80]

Where an administrator is, by order of court, made a party to a suit commenced by his decedent, no allegation of his official capacity is necessary.[81] A denial that plaintiff was duly appointed administratrix as alleged in the complaint raises the issue of jurisdiction, involving as it does the right of the court to issue the letters.[82] In Texas in order to put in issue the legal capacity of the representative to sue, defendant must deny the same under oath.[83]

The probate proceedings [84] and the letters are admissible to prove the authority of plaintiff to prosecute the suit,[85] and the production of letters is sufficient proof of capacity to sue in the absence of proof of want of jurisdiction in the court granting them.[86] Proof of capacity may be waived by appearance.[87] Where special letters are presented, limiting the power of the administrator to specific property of the intestate, his power will not be extended beyond them.[88]

An executor cannot join his individual claim for rent, as devisee, with a claim in his representative capacity for rent which had accrued during the lifetime of his testator,[89] nor can the grantee in a security deed join in the same action a suit against the widow of the deceased grantor to recover the land described in the deed, and a suit against the administrator of the grantor's estate to recover a judgment on the debt secured by the deed.[90] A complaint showing a good cause of action in plaintiff in his individual capacity and another in his representative capacity, both growing out of the same contract, and demanding specific performance and damages for a breach, is not demurrable.[91] on appeal so as to allow judgment to be entered against her individually. Renwick v. Garland [Cal. App.] 82 P. 89.

79. One suing the widow who has taken possession of the estate as sole heir and without administration, on a quantum meruit for services for which deceased agreed to compensate him out of his estate, cannot amend by seeking to recover upon an express contract made with the widow after the husband's death to pay a given sum for such services. Moore v. Smith, 121 Ga. 479, 49 S. E. 601.

80. Sommer v. Franklin Bank, 108 Mo. App. 490, 83 S. W. 1025.

81. Noyes v. Young [Mont.] 79 P. 1063.

82. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 532, providing that if an allegation that a judgment of a court of special jurisdiction was duly given is denied, the party alleging it must show the facts conferring jurisdiction. Ziemer v. Crucible Steel Co., 99 App. Div. 169, 90 N. Y. S. 962.

83. Rev. St. 1895, art. 1265, cl. 2. Young v. Meredith [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 32.

84. Where one's right, as community administratrix of the estate of herself and her deceased husband, to prosecute an action is put in issue, the probate proceedings appointing her are admissible. Rogers v. Tompkins [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 379.

85. Held no error in admitting in evidence a paper purporting on its face to be letters of administration issued to plaintiff over the objection that it did not show on its face whether it was an original or a copy. Defendants at liberty to show by evidence that it was not a genuine document. Sharpe v. Hodges, 121 Ga. 798, 49 S. E. 775.

86. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2591, providing that letters granted by a court having jurisdiction are conclusive evidence of the authority of the persons to whom they are granted, until the decree granting them is reversed, or the letters are revoked. Shaw v. New York Cent. & H. R. Co., 101 App. Div. 246, 91 N. Y. S. 746. Letters admissible to show plaintiff's authority to sue though granted on a defectively verified petition. Id.

87. If an administrator, summoned as such, appears and makes a defense, and prosecutes error, there is sufficient evidence by admission of his capacity without formal proof. Squires v. Martin, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 313.

88. Taylor v. McKee, 121 Ga. 223, 48 S. E. 943. Where authority was limited to property in certain county in state in which decedent was domiciled, administratrix could not sue on note in another state in the absence of any allegation or proof that it was part of the assets she was authorized to administer. Id.

89. Well v. Townsend, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 638.

90. Statutory action for recovery of real property is not an action ex contractu, and hence cannot be joined with one. Ramey v. O'Byrne, 121 Ga. 516, 49 S. E. 595.

91. Fact that causes of action are not separately stated and numbered is no ground for demurrer. Greene v. New York, O. & W. R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 18.

An answer in a suit by a public administrator to recover property assigned to defendant by decedent before his death, alleging the assignment and that defendant was disposing of the property in accordance with the request of decedent made after such assignment does not estop him from alleging in a subsequent suit brought by the distributees to compel him to account for the property from relying on a defense of absolute ownership by virtue of the assignment.[92]

As a general rule an executor or administrator cannot maintain an action as such in the courts of any sovereignty other than that under which he was appointed and qualified without obtaining an ancillary grant of letters in the state where the action is brought,[93] but this does not apply to a case where the cause of action declared on is one involving an assertion of his own right rather than one of the deceased, or is one which has accrued directly to him through his contract or transaction and which was not originally an asset of the estate.[94] The rule has been changed by statute in many states.[95] The foreign representative is, however, generally first required to file an authenticated copy of his letters.[96] His failure to do so goes to his capacity to sue and is waived unless taken advantage of by demurrer, if it affirmatively appears on the face of the complaint, or by answer, if it does not so appear.[97] So, too, when incapacity because of nonresidence is apparent on the face of the complaint, it is waived unless taken advantage of by special demurrer, and when so waived cannot be taken advantage of after judgment in his favor.[98]

In the absence of a statute to the contrary, an executor or administrator cannot be sued in a state other than of his appointment, at least where he has taken no steps to recover assets there located,[99] nor can a foreign executor or administrator be substituted for a party who dies during the pendency of an action.[1]

92. Mussman v. Zeller, 108 Mo. App. 348, 83 S. W. 1021.

93. Unless its laws permit him to do so. Moore v. Petty [C. C. A.] 135 F. 668; Taylor v. McKee, 121 Ga. 223, 48 S. E. 943. A foreign administrator has no legal capacity to sue. Sommer v. Franklin Bank, 108 Mo. App. 490, 83 S. W. 1025. Foreign executor cannot sue to set aside fraudulent conveyances. Downey v. Owen, 98 App. Div. 411, 90 N. Y. S. 280.

94. In such case may sue in his personal capacity, and, if he sues as executor or administrator, the words so describing him may be regarded as merely descriptive, and rejected as surplusage. Moore v. Petty [C. C. A.] 135 F. 668. Thus he may sue on cause of action to recover, from agents employed by him, the proceeds of a sale of realty belonging to the estate. Id.

95. Arkansas: Under Kirby's Dig. § 6003, permitting a foreign administrator to sue in the courts of the state, a married woman who is competent to act as administratrix in the state of her appointment may maintain an action though she married subsequent to her appointment. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Cleere [Ark.] 88 S. W. 995.

In Georgia to authorize a foreign executor or administrator to sue it must appear that his decedent was, at the time of his death, domiciled in the state where letters testamentary or of administration were granted, and that no administrator or executor has been appointed in the state where the action is brought. Civ. Code 1895, § 3521. Taylor v. McKee, 121 Ga. 223, 48 S. E. 943.

In Illinois a foreign administrator may maintain an action for the unlawful death of his decedent. Chicago Transit Co. v. Campbell, 110 Ill. App. 366.

South Dakota: Under Laws 1901, p. 206, c. 124, authorizing foreign administrators to sue as such under the same restrictions as are applicable to non-residents generally, a foreign corporation duly appointed administrator in another state, and which has complied with the laws relating to foreign corporations may do so. Germantown Trust Co. v. Whitney [S. D.] 102 N. W. 304.

96. Upson v. Davis, 110 Ill. App. 375. Must pending the action, file a properly authenticated exemplification of his letters with the clerk of the court, to become a part of the records. Civ. Code 1895, § 3522. Need not be filed before the judgment term. Taylor v. McKee, 121 Ga. 223, 48 S. E. 943. In the case of an administrator it need not be accompanied by an exemplification of the pleadings and judgment in the proceeding in which he was appointed, though the contrary is true in the case of a foreign executor. Civ. Code 1895, § 3318. Id. Must file a copy of his letters of administration in the office of the probate court of the county in which the action is brought. Gen. St. 1894, § 5917. Pope v. Waugh [Minn.] 103 N. W. 500.

97. Gen. St. 1894, § 5235. Held waived by failure to raise objection in the answer. Pope v. Waugh [Minn.] 103 N. W. 500.

98. Incapacity held waived. Sommer v. Franklin Bank, 108 Mo. App. 490, 83 S. W. 1025.

99. Courtney v. Pradt, 135 F. 818.

1. On death of defendant, court has no jurisdiction to revive action on contract

In New York an execution cannot issue upon a judgment for a sum of money against an executor or administrator in the representative capacity until an order permitting it to be issued has been made by the surrogate from whose court the letters were issued.[2] To obtain such an order, the petitioner must show either that the representative has funds of the estate on hand applicable to the payment of the judgment which he refuses to apply, or that funds which should have been devoted to its payment have been misapplied.[3] If it appears that the assets, after payment of all sums chargeable against them for expenses and for claims entitled to priority as against the plaintiff are not, or will not be, sufficient to pay all the debts, legacies, or other claims of the class to which that of the plaintiff belongs, the sum directed to be collected by the execution must not exceed the plaintiff's just proportion of the assets.[4] On application being made to the surrogate for such an order, he may, in his discretion, require the representative to make an intermediate account.[5]

Costs and counsel fees.[6]—Costs and reasonable counsel fees, payable out of the estate, will be allowed for services rendered for the benefit of those who take the fund in litigation.[7] The costs of a contest between a devisee and an administrator concerning the right of the latter to continue the administration, which results in a revocation of the letters, are properly taxed against the administrator personally.[8] So, too, an executor is properly required to pay a portion of the costs of litigation resulting largely from personal claims advanced by him which are not sustained.[9] Where, on the death of complainant pending suit, her legatees, devisees, and executrix are substituted as complainants, no part of the costs should be taxed against the estate or the executrix.[10] The attorney's fees, costs, and expenses of an heir who successfully prosecutes an action for the removal of the executors, are not payable out of the estate, though he is afterwards appointed special administrator.[11]

In Georgia in an action to compel an administrator to make a deed of property sold by him at public sale, plaintiff is not entitled to recover the expenses of the litigation in the absence of allegations of stubborn litigiousness, bad faith, or a wanton disregard of plaintiff's rights.[12] In a suit to set aside a deed given by the executrix and life tenant and to compel her to account, where it is held that the deed passes against his foreign executor, where none of the assets are within the state, and no ancillary letters have been issued. McGrath v. Weiller, 98 App. Div. 291, 90 N. Y. S. 420.

2. Code Civ. Proc. § 1825. In re Warren, 94 N. Y. 286.

3. In re Warren, 94 N. Y. S. 286.

4. Code Civ. Proc. § 1826. No preference can be given to a judgment creditor under this section. In re Warren, 94 N. Y. S. 286.

5. Code Civ. Proc. § 2725, subd. 1. In re Warren, 94 N. Y. S. 286. Where it appears that the fund held by the administrator consists of a part of the proceeds of a judgment against the government based on a French spoliation claim, and his answer expressly avers that there is no property in his hands applicable to the judgment, such an accounting should be ordered to enable the court to determine whether such fund is assets, or belongs to the next of kin. Id.

6. See 3 C. L. 1303. See, also, Wills, 4 C. L. 1863. For allowance to representative of amount paid by him for costs and fees, see § 9D, ante.

7. Rule applies only in favor of successful litigants. Smith v. McDonald [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 453. Allowance made to counsel representing cousins and descendants of deceased cousins who defended fund against distribution to those held not entitled thereto, but not to those representing those claiming, but held not to be entitled to, a share therein. Id. Orphans' court has no authority to allow such fees. Id. Allowance of counsel fees to exceptants to the account of executors held proper where court charged executors with large sum, though its ruling was reversed on appeal. In re Woolsey's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 463.

8. Where administrator stands upon improper judgment of probate court ordering payment to him of fees to which he was not entitled as a condition of revocation of letters. Adamson v. Parker [Ark.] 85 S. W. 239.

9. Phillips v. Duckett, 112 Ill. App. 587.

10. Clemens v. Kaiser, 211 Ill. 460, 71 N. E. 1055.

11. In re Bell's Estate, 145 Cal. 646, 79 P. 358.

12. Held that there were no such allegations of bad faith, stubborn litigiousness, and wanton disregard for the rights of the plaintiff as to entitle him to recover, either against the administrator personally or the estate, the expenses of litigation to compel the defendant to make a deed of property sold by him at public sale. Mallard v. Curran [Ga.] 51 S. E. 712.

certain property absolutely and only her life estate in certain securities belonging to the estate, and the decree refers the cause for an accounting, the court has power to make an allowance to an attorney rendering services in support of the deed.[13]

In Wisconsin costs in actions by or against representatives are chargeable against the estate, unless the court directs that they be paid by the representative personally, on account of his mismanagement or bad faith.[14]

In North Carolina, in a suit on a claim, no costs are recoverable against an executor, administrator, or collector unless it appears that payment was unreasonably delayed or neglected, or that the defendant refused to refer the matter in controversy, in which cases it is discretionary with the court to award the costs either against defendant personally or against the estate.[15] The burden is on plaintiff to bring himself within the exceptions.[16] Where there is a material reduction between the claim presented and the amount allowed at the trial, refusal to pay it is not regarded as unreasonable.[17]

§ 11. Accounting and settlement by representatives. A. The right and duty.[18]—As a general rule an administrator or executor can only be compelled to account by the courts of the state in which he was appointed,[19] but in case he removes a portion of the assets into a foreign state and there invests them, the equity courts of that state may require him to account therefor and decree their distribution.[20] Unexplained laches is a bar to the suit.[21]

Since an executor is a trustee for the benefit of those entitled to the decedent's property under the will, limitations do not begin to run against his liability to account therefor until he repudiates his trust by some act sufficient for the purpose.[22] If he relies on limitations he must allege in his answer both the requisite lapse of time and that such lapse occurred after his repudiation of the trust.[23]

The executor or administrator of a deceased representative is generally required to render a final account of the latter's administration within a certain time after his appointment.[24] In an action to compel the representative of a deceased executor to account for funds alleged to have come into the latter's hands in his official

13. Where, in suit to set aside deed given by executrix and life tenant and to compel her to account, it was held that deed passed certain property absolutely and only her life estate in certain securities, which were held to be the property of the estate, and decree referred the cause for an accounting, held that court had power, within the scope of the decree, to make an allowance to an attorney rendering services in support of the deed. Bauernschmidt v. Bauernschmidt [Md.] 60 A. 437. Better course to allow fee from income of securities which went to life tenant. Id.

14. Rev. St. 1898, § 2932. Ferguson v. Woods [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1094. Where he sued to recover property alleged to be assets of the estate, under express direction of the county court pursuant to Id. §§ 3811, 3813, held that costs were properly charged against the estate, though he lost his suit. Id.

15. Code, § 1429. Prima facie no unreasonable delay where suit was brought within fifty-two days after executor's qualification. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 50 S. E. 630.

16. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 50 S. E. 630.

17. Where reduced one-half. Whitaker v. Whitaker, 138 N. C. 205, 50 S. E. 630.

18. See 3 C. L. 1304.

19. Holzer v. Thomas [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 154.

20. Bill by beneficiary held not demurrable. Holzer v. Thomas [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 154. Bill for an accounting brought by beneficiary under a foreign will alleging that executrix had not accounted for the estate in the foreign state but had brought the assets into the state where the action was brought, and had there mingled them with those of another estate of which she was also executrix, in which complainant was also interested, and for which she had never accounted, and had used the assets of both estates in purchasing realty, and seeking an accounting and relief as to both estates, held not demurrable for misjoinder of causes of action, both accountings being necessary to the main relief prayed against the realty. Id.

21. If apparent on the face of the bill, it may be taken advantage of by demurrer. Holzer v. Thomas [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 154. Held, that allegations of bill, if proved, would explain long delay apparent on the face of the bill. Id.

22, 23. In re Meyer's Estate, 98 App. Div. 7, 90 N. Y. S. 185.

24. Under Rev. St. § 6175a, must do so within six months. Jones v. Willis [Ohio] 74 N. E. 166. Must include therein as assets in his hands the amount of a debt owed by the deceased representative to his decedent. Id.

capacity, the contestants must show by competent proof the amount of the estate in the hands of the decedent as executor or trustee, and his representative is chargeable only for the amount thus found to have been in his hands.[25]

In order to have accounting as incident to other relief defendant must have had the estate as personal representative or in privity to him.[25]

In some states an executor who is also residuary legatee may relieve himself from the necessity of accounting by giving bond for the payment of the debts and legacies.[27]

(§ 11) B. Who may require.[28]—As a general rule any one interested in the estate may compel an accounting by the representative.[29]

The administrator de bonis non with the will annexed is the proper party to call on the administrator of a deceased executor to account for any funds belonging to the estate of the testator in the hands of the latter.[30]

(§ 11) C. Scope and contents of account.[31]—The account should be itemized,[32] and should ordinarily be accompanied by vouchers covering all expenditures.[33] No vouchers are necessary for interest paid to the widow in accordance with the provisions of the will.[34]

In case the representative is charged with rents collected and retained by one entitled to them under the will, he should also be credited with an equal amount.[35]

Beneficiaries cannot take advantage of the fact that executors, by mistake, charge themselves with a fund for which they are not liable to account.[36] The fact that credits allowed the public administrator in one of three estates which he represents would more properly have appeared in the settlement of another one of them is not prejudicial where the exceptors are the sole beneficiaries, in the same proportions, in both estates.[37]

The court is not precluded from settling the account because it does not show what property or estate is in the possession of the executor.[38]

25. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Pendleton, 179 N. Y. 486, 72 N. E. 508, rvg. 90 App. Div. 607, 85 N. Y. S. 1130, 75 N. Y. S. 294. In action by substituted trustee against the executrix of a deceased trustee for an accounting of the trust funds, judgment against her for full amount thereof cannot be sustained where it appears that she had no knowledge of such fund, and no books or papers of her testator from which to prepare such an account, and there is no finding that she received any part of the fund, or that the full amount thereof came into her hands. Id.

26. Denied where he took only representative's inheritance. Cole v. Cole [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 895.

27. Gen. Laws 1896, c. 220, § 3. Probate Ct. v. Adams [R. I.] 60 A. 769. For discussion of liability on such bonds, see § 9G, ante.

28. See 3 C. L. 1305.

29. Code Civ. Proc. § 2727. Children of deceased testator have an interest by operation of law. In re Meyer's Estate, 98 App. Div. 7, 90 N. Y. S. 185.

30. Jones v. Wooten, 137 N. C. 421, 49 S. E. 915. In suit by legatees against administrator d. b. n. c. t. a. in which it was alleged that plaintiffs had requested defendant to require the administrator of the deceased executor to account but that he had refused to do so, held, that defendant's plea of account stated was a good plea in bar, and that it was error to order a reference before disposing of it. Id.

31. See 3 C. L. 1305.

32. Objection that account does not show whence or how certain items with which the executor charged himself were obtained held untenable, in view of the evidence and findings. In re Casner's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 991. Account for amount paid attorneys held sufficiently itemized by giving the dates of the commencement and close of the services, and the gross amount paid therefor, where they were retained generally and represented the estate in all litigation for several years. In re Davis' Estate [Mont.] 78 P. 704.

33. Objection that there was no voucher for the payment of a certain note not alleged to have been made by the administrator, overruled, where the note as paid was introduced in evidence, and appears to have been satisfied and discharged in due course of administration. In re Robinson, 45 Misc. 551, 92 N. Y. S. 967. Objection that there was no voucher for payment of bill overruled, where testimony showed that it was duly presented and no objection made to it, and it was paid in due course of administration. Id.

34. In re Casner's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 991.

35. In re Dutcher, 102 App. Div. 410, 92 N. Y. S. 418.

36. Where they act in good faith. In re Corbin, 101 App. Div. 25, 91 N. Y. S. 797.

37. Browning v. Richardson, 186 Mo. 361, 85 S. W. 518.

After an account is homologated except so far as opposed, the opponent may raise all questions involved in his rights as pleaded and may even amend if he does not change the issues.[39] When a rule to vacate letters is dismissed, the question cannot be determined on an opposition to the account, notwithstanding the opposition was grounded on the pendency of the rule.[40]

Intermediate accounts are only for the purpose of informing the court and the interested parties of the receipts and disbursements and changes in the property from time to time, and it is not necessary for each of them to contain a full inventory of the assets of the estate.[41]

(§ 11) D. Procedure.[42]—One who as administrator takes what does not belong to the estate may be required to answer for it either by direct action or by accounting.[43] On the judicial settlement of the representative's account, all persons interested in the estate, though not cited, are entitled to appear on the hearing and make themselves parties to the proceedings.[44] On final accounting it is not necessary to cite illegitimate relatives of decedent, or persons holding disputed assignments of interests in the estate.[45] In New York as a general rule, where application is made to the surrogate for permission to appear and file objections to the representative's accounts, he may examine into the question of whether the applicant is interested in the estate, and if necessary, send the issue to a referee, in proper cases.[46] But where he can see from the moving papers that a real question is presented, involving the right of the applicant and the other heirs and next of kin to participate in the distribution of a portion of the estate, he should reserve the question until the hearing of the account, when all interested parties will be present.[47] One who fails to appear in response to a citation, because she does not then know of her interest as heir, is entitled, on motion, to open her default, and to appear and litigate her claim.[48]

The report of the representative and an exception thereto stand as the complaint and answer of the respective parties, and the cause is to be tried upon the issue thus raised.[49] As a general rule an interested party desiring to contest the account is re-

38. In re Carpenter's Estate, 146 Cal. 661, 80 P. 1072.

39. Opposition to a charge for rents collected admits of a supplemental opposition that opponent paid taxes and made repairs. Succession of Sangfried [La.] 38 So. 593.

40. Succession of Thomas [La.] 38 So. 519.

41. Account held to sufficiently comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 2780 et seq. In re Davis' Estate [Mont.] 78 P. 704.

42. See 3 C. L. 1306.

43. The public administrator caused himself to be appointed dative testamentary executor of a succession, which had been closed by the sending of the heir into possession, and he, as such dative testamentary executor, took into his possession funds not belonging to that succession. Casey v. Abraham, 113 La. 581, 37 So. 484.

44. Code Civ. Proc. § 2728. In re St. John, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 279, 93 N. Y. S. 836. By § 2514, subd. 11, a person interested includes every person entitled, either absolutely or contingently, to share in the estate or the proceeds thereof, or in the fund, as husband, wife, legatee, next of kin, heir, devisee, assignee, grantee or otherwise, except as a creditor. Id. Includes next of kin whose right to share in the estate depends upon the determination of a disputed question as to the survivorship of three persons who perished in a common disaster. Id.; In re St. John, 93 N. Y. S. 841.

For discussion of remedy of distributee as to accounting of which he had no notice and on which he did not appear, see note, 63 L. R. A. 95.

45. In re Losee's Estate, 94 N. Y. S. 1082.

46. In re St. John, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 279, 93 N. Y. S. 836.

47. In re St. John, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 279, 93 N. Y. S. 836. Where the right of one of the next of kin to share in the estate depended on the determination of a disputed question as to the survivorship of three persons who perished in a common disaster, held, that his application for an order permitting him to appear and file objections to the executor's account should have been granted, without deciding on the motion his right to share in the estate. That question should have been reserved for decision on the accounting when all parties interested are present. Id. In re St. John, 93 N. Y. S. 841.

48. In re St. John, 93 N. Y. S. 840.

49. Spray v. Bertram [Ind.] 74 N. E. 502. Where exceptors alleged the existence of a written contract between all the next of kin making it improper to charge them with advancements, the administrator was not obliged to file a plea of non est factum to put them to their proof as to the existence of such contract. Id.

quired to file his exceptions thereto in writing, setting out specifically the grounds of his objections, and is limited on the hearing to the exceptions so presented.[50] The rule that in the absence of exceptions the court may inquire into any matter in the settlement of the account which may seem objectionable, and may pass judgment thereon does not apply to any matter by which it is sought to impose a penalty on the representative, nor to cases where the parties have appeared and made their objections in writing.[51]

In Wisconsin, whether the final account is contested or not, the county court must be satisfied of its correctness before allowing it, and must not allow it of course.[52] Where specific objections are filed, the burden is on the representative to justify the allowance.[53]

Beneficiaries cannot object to the accounts on the ground that they have received more than they are entitled to,[54] or because other beneficiaries have received less than they are entitled to.[55]

A par to a contest in the probate court, upon an administrator's account, is not entitled to a jury trial.[56]

Statutes disqualifying judges on account of prejudice have been held applicable to probate proceedings on motion to confirm the report of a referee on objections to an executor's account.[57]

The practice of raising purely legal questions by demurrer is not applicable to probate courts.[58]

The account itself is not evidence of contested items.[59]

The report and findings of a referee, to whom an account is referred for the purpose of examining it and the objections thereto and making report thereon, are merely advisory, and the court may modify, adopt, or disapprove them as he sees fit, or may take further testimony and make findings of its own on which to base its orders.[60] An exception to a report on the ground that the auditor erred in not allowing a specified credit is properly overruled, where it clearly appears from the report of the evidence that the representative is not entitled thereto.[61]

On appeal from the allowance of the administrator's account, where the appellant desires the administrator to produce books of account, he should procure a subpoena duces tecum or order to produce.[62] It is proper for the court on appeal to al-

50. Code Civ. Proc. § 1635. Administrator will not be charged with interest on funds deposited in private bank and used by proprietor thereof, where no such claim is made in written grounds of contest. In re Sylvar's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 663. Claim that administrator should be charged with such interest held not supported by statement that he "has not accounted for all the estate of said deceased which has come to his possession." Id.

51. In re Sylvar's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 663.

52. County court rule 15, § 6. Fitch v. Huntington [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1066.

53. Same is true on appeal to the circuit court. Fitch v. Huntington [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1066.

54. In re Casner's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 991.

55. Because widow has not received all the interest which she was entitled to under the will. In re Casner's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 991.

56. Clifford v. Gridley, 113 Ill. App. 164.

57. Code Civ. Proc. § 180, providing that no judge shall act in any proceeding where he is disqualified by reason of bias or prejudice in the matter, and providing for the filing of affidavits of prejudice. State v. Donlan [Mont.] 80 P. 244.

58. Hence on appeal from an order of the circuit court affirming an order of the probate court directing a partial distribution, made after hearing on a demurrer to a cross petition filed by the heirs, the case will be treated as though evidence had been offered in both of the lower courts to prove the facts alleged in the cross petition and had been excluded. Turner v. Burr [Mich.] 104 N. W. 379.

59. In re Shively's Estate, 145 Cal. 400, 78 P. 869.

60. In re Courtney's Estate [Mont.] 79 P. 317.

61. Exception of fact to the report of the auditor upon the ground that he erred in not allowing a specified credit claimed by the administrator in his returns. Tippin v. Perry [Ga.] 50 S. E. 35.

62. Reed v. Whipple [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 77, 103 N. W. 548.

low amendments and additions to the account presented for settlement, in furtherance of justice.[63]

(§ 11) E. The decree or order.[64]—The settlement of the estate is completed by the settlement and acceptance of the administrator's final account.[65]

The order settling the account need not necessarily set forth the then condition of the estate, nor need it show the property and estate on hand, with its value.[66] The decree need not in any way affect the manner of the distribution of the estate, and hence it is not necessarily error to make such a decree pending an appeal from a decree of partial distribution.[67] A decree settling the balance due in the executor's hands on final accounting is not an exercise of the jurisdiction of the court to construe the will on application for distribution, and does not prevent the executor from subsequently claiming the right to turn over securities in payment of legacies instead of paying them in cash.[68] In Indiana a final settlement made without payment or provision for the payment of taxes is illegal, and may be set aside for the purpose of compelling their payment.[69] Upon the settlement of the accounts of the representative the court is required, in some states, to make an order for the payment of the debts, or for a dividend to the extent justified by the funds on hand.[70] On the incoming of an auditor's report leaving a fact in doubt, the account may be left open in the particulars affected till the question be adjudicated.[71]

Where some of a contestant's objections to the account are well founded as to material matters, his costs should be paid out of the estate.[72] Where the order settling the final account of a special administrator is modified on appeal by inserting items inadvertently omitted, the administrator is not entitled to costs where he did not call the attention of the lower court to the omissions.[73]

§ 12. Distribution and disposal of funds.[74] Occasion and time for distribution.[75]—After the payment of debts, any remaining personalty not specifically bequeathed is subject to distribution.[76] In the case of a will this should, unless otherwise directed or impracticable,[77] be accomplished within a year.[78] If there are debts,

63. Not confined to questions passed upon by the probate court, but the appeal brings up the whole account. Reed v. Whipple [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 77, 103 N. W. 548. Fact that appellant's attorney was present in the lower court held immaterial where no appearance was entered and no rights waived. Id.

64. See 3 C. L. 1308.

65. Where part of land had been sold under order authorizing sale of all of it, such acceptance held to prevent sale of rest of it. Cole v. Jerman, 77 Conn. 374, 59 A. 425.

66. In re Carpenter's Estate, 146 Cal. 661, 80 P. 1072.

67. In such case, where on appeal from the order settling the account, the account rendered was not in the transcript, held that it would be presumed that it contained no account of any payment made under the decree of distribution, and hence that it was not shown that the court determined any matter that it did not have jurisdiction to determine at that time. In re Thayer's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 658.

68. Orphans' court. Macy v. Mercantile Trust Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 586. Power to construe for purposes of distribution given by Gen. St. p. 2391, § 151, must be exercised upon a proceeding for that purpose, on actual notice to all parties. Id.

69. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2558. Cullop v. Vincennes, 34 Ind. App. 667, 72 N. E. 166.

70. Code Civ. Proc. § 1647. Held error to refuse to grant order for payment of debts, and to make order merely directing administrator to close the estate and have the proceeds thereof distributed among the creditors at the earliest possible date. In re Sylvar's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 663.

71. Question of an election was doubtful. White's Estate, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 552.

72. Personal imposition of costs authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 2557, is punitive in character. In re Corbin, 101 App. Div. 25, 91 N. Y. S. 797.

73. In re Bell's Estate, 145 Cal. 646, 79 P. 358.

74, 75. See 3 C. L. 1308.

76. In re Stilphen [Me.] 60 A. 888.

77. A widow entitled to a fraction of the net income of the estate during a certain period is entitled to have the estate kept intact for the purpose of receiving such part. The executor cannot at the instance of a remainderman be compelled to sell the estate upon giving satisfactory assurance that the income would be paid. Marfield v. McMurdy, 25 App. D. C. 342.

78. In the absence of any provision in the will as to the time and manner of paying residuary legacies, the residuary legatee has, as a general rule, a right to insist that before the end of the first year after testator's death the executor shall, if possible, convert all the assets into money, pay the debts and the representative ordinarily has no right to make distribution until final settlement and an order of distribution by the probate court.[79] Administrators may, however, vest in the distributees both title and possession of their respective shares of the property before an order of distribution,[80] and an unauthorized conveyance of the personalty to them, when subsequently approved by the court, vests title in them as of the date of the conveyance.[81] A decree of final distribution should not be made pending litigation involving property belonging to the estate.[82]

Partial distribution.[83]—In some states a partial distribution may be had before the administration is completed, where the estate is but little indebted, and the share of the applicant therefor may be allowed to him without loss to the creditors,[84] whether such conditions exist being a question of fact to be determined by the court upon a comparison of the value of the estate with the amount of the debts.[85] In determining the amount available for the payment of the petitioner's legacy, the court should not take into consideration the amount of the collateral inheritance tax to which the legacy is subject,[86] nor the amount required to erect tombstones where the executor is authorized by the will to resort to the realty for that purpose if necessary.[87] Before ordering a partial distribution prior to the expiration of the period of administration, the better practice is to require a written report from the representative.[88] The petition is properly denied where there is pending an application for the sale of the realty for the payment of the administration and funeral expenses.[89] A refunding bond may be dispensed with if the time for presenting claims has expired and all allowed claims have been paid, and the court is satisfied that no injury can result to the estate.[90] A bond given by a distributee during his lifetime is sufficient to protect the estate where after his death his share is paid to his executor.[91] The appearance of an executor on the hearing on petition for a expenses, and hand over the clear residue to him. Macy v. Mercantile Trust Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 586.

79. Where there are debts, the representative holds the estate in trust for their payment, and has no right to transfer choses in action to a residuary legatee until final settlement and order of distribution by the probate court. Broadwell v. Banks, 134 F. 470.

80. Burnes v. Burnes [C. C. A.] 137 F. 781. Judgment of probate court and contract held to have estopped parties thereto from claiming that title to stock did not vest in grantee. Id.

81. No debts. Burnes v. Burnes [C. C. A.] 137 F. 781.

82. Objection to jurisdiction of court to render decree of final distribution while litigation involving property belonging to the estate was pending held untenable, it appearing that all such litigation had been finally determined. Drasdo v. Jobst [Wash.] 81 P. 857. Evidence held to sustain finding that all debts had been paid except expenses of administration and funeral expenses. Id.

83. See 3 C. L. 1313, n. 32 et seq.

84. Code Civ. Proc. § 1661. In re Murphy's Estate, 145 Cal. 464, 78 P. 960. Petition for partial distribution following the language of that part of the statute declaring what must be made to appear before the petition can be granted, held sufficient as against the executrix. Id. Either a full or a partial distribution may be made prior to the expiration of the period of administration where it appears that there are sufficient assets to satisfy all demands against the estate, subject, however, to the giving of refunding bonds. Murdock v. Murdock, 111 Ill. App. 375.

85. In re Chesney's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 679. Persons claiming property described in the inventory adversely to the estate are not creditors, and their claims should not be considered in determining the indebtedness. In re Dutard's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 519.

86. Tax is not an expense of administration or a charge on the general estate, but is to be deducted from the amount payable to the legatee in satisfaction of his legacy. In re Chesney's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 679.

87. In re Chesney's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 679.

88. This course not imperative. Murdock v. Murdock, 111 Ill. App. 375.

89. Petition of legatee asking for distribution to him of share to which he is entitled properly denied. In re Koppikus' Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 733.

90. Code Civ. Proc. § 1663. In re Chesney's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 679. Where only indebtedness consisted of a disallowed claim filed by the petitioner on which suit had been commenced, and executors had property of the estate many times greater in value than the amount of such claim, held not error to grant petitioner's application for payment of her legacy without requiring a refunding bond. Id. Court is not authorized to require bond in favor of executors or administrators when claims have become barred by the expiration of the statutory period. The claims then not presented are barred and cannot be paid, bond or no bond. Klicka v. Klicka, 105 Ill. App. 369.

91. Murdock v. Murdock, 111 Ill. App. 375.

partial distribution solely in his representative capacity gives him no standing to claim rights to which he is entitled as residuary legatee.[92]

Person entitled to receive payment or transfer of share.[93]—It is the duty of the representative to pay funds in his hands to those entitled thereto by law or to their assignees.[94] In the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary,[95] probate courts have as a general rule, no jurisdiction to determine controversies between heirs, devisees, legatees, or the next of kin and persons claiming under them;[96] but where it is shown that funds have been wrongfully included in the account as trust funds, or where title or ownership is in another person, jurisdiction may be assumed to avoid circuity of action.[97] When the distributee is under a guardian or committee regularly qualified, the guardian is entitled to payment.[98]

Contracts between the heirs and distributees, or between them and the representative, in regard to the distribution of the estate, will be enforced if otherwise valid.[99] In New York, where the person entitled to a legacy or distributive share is unknown, the statute provides that the distribution decree must direct the representative to pay the amount thereof into the state treasury for the benefit of those who may thereafter appear to be entitled thereto, and that the surrogate or the supreme court on petition of one claiming to be so entitled may, by reference, ascertain the rights of the parties interested and grant an order for payment of the money found to be due claimant.[1] The surrogate referred to must be deemed to be the one who has or had jurisdiction of the settlement of the estate, and no other surrogate may act in the matter.[2] Property turned over to trustees may be delivered direct by them to ultimate beneficiaries on cessation of the trust.[3]

Distribution need not always be in money; residuary legatees [4] and heirs may, if they so desire, take the residue of the personalty in kind.[5] Where an equitable 92. If he does not appear in his individual capacity, is concluded as legatee by the decree. In re Murphy's Estate, 145 Cal. 464, 78 P. 960.

93. See 3 C. L. 1311, n. 8, 9.

94. The wife of an heir who has a judgment against her husband for alimony cannot reach his share in an estate except by garnishment or other proper proceeding. Clifford v. Gridley, 113 Ill. App. 164. Where executors and trustees had written notice of the assignment of a legacy and notified their successor in the trust thereof, such notice inured to the benefit of the assignee, who had no notice of the substitution of trustees, and imposed on the substituted trustees the duty of ascertaining the facts by reasonable inquiry, or of making the alleged assignee a party to their accounting. Seger v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 92 N. Y. S. 629.

95. Rev. St. c. 65, § 34, gives any one claiming under an heir at law the same rights as the heir in all proceedings in probate courts including rights of appeal. In re Stilphen [Me.] 60 A. 888.

96. In New Hampshire the probate court has no jurisdiction to determine the validity of an equitable assignment among the heirs (Crockett v. Sibley [N. H.] 61 A. 469), and hence a bill in equity will lie for that purpose (Id.).

In New York the validity of a disputed assignment of an interest in a decedent's estate cannot be determined by the surrogate (In re Losee's Estate, 94 N. Y. S. 1082); but he may act on an assignment, the validity of which is admitted (Id.).

Pennsylvania: As a general rule no one can claim in the distribution of an estate in the orphans' court except as creditor, legatee or next of kin. In re Moore's Estate, 211 Pa. 338, 60 A. 987; In re Crosetti's Estate, 211 Pa. 490, 60 A. 1081.

97. Orphans' court held to have properly assumed jurisdiction to determine whether proceeds of sale of stock belonged to claimant or to the estate. In re Moore's Estate, 211 Pa. 338, 60 A. 987. Where it is claimed that deposits in the name of decedent in fact belong to her husband. In re Crosetti's Estate, 211 Pa. 490, 60 A. 1081.

98. An administrator is bound to pay over to the committee of a lunatic accruing rents to which the latter is entitled under the will, and is not justified in refusing to do so until after his annual accounts have been submitted and approved. In re Cowen, 94 N. Y. S. 303.

99. See § 17, post.

1. Code Civ. Proc. § 2747. Kinneally v. People, 98 App. Div. 192, 90 N. Y. S. 587.

2. Kinneally v. People, 98 App. Div. 192, 90 N. Y. S. 587.

3. In re Garman's Estate, 211 Pa. 264, 60 A. 720.

4. See 3 C. L. 1313, n. 27 et seq. May consent to accept securities held for conversion under the general rule for settlement, or under special directions of the will. Such acceptance considered as practically a conversion and sale by the executor and a distribution of the proceeds. Macy v. Mercantile Trust Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 586.

5. Under Rev. St. 1842, c. 159, §§ 5, 6, 7, conversion takes place at testator's death by reason of a direction to sell realty, distribution should be made on the theory that the donation in the first instance was made in money.[6]

Procedure to obtain order for final distribution.[7]—If on the settlement of any account of an administrator or executor, there appears to remain in his hands property not necessary for the payment of debts and expenses of administration, and not specifically bequeathed, it is the duty of the court to determine who are entitled to the estate and their respective shares therein under the will or according to law, and to order the same to be distributed accordingly.[8] A decree directing distribution is void as to creditors not cited to appear.[9]

A final order of distribution, made in proceedings to administer the estate as intestate, is valid and binding upon the parties until set aside, notwithstanding the subsequent discovery of a valid will.[10] On the termination of a trust estate after the death of the executor, distribution should be made directly to the legatees without the appointment of an administrator de bonis non, where it appears from the account of the administrator of the deceased executor that all the debts of the estate have been paid.[11]

Suits for payment of shares or settlement.[12]—As a general rule legatees are not entitled to sue for the amount of their legacies until the court has made an order of distribution,[13] but where the executor is not required to give bond and dies before any account is due or filed, and all the testator's debts have been paid, the legatees may, on the failure or refusal of the executor's administrator to account for moneys charged against such executor's estate, sue such estate in equity for an accounting and to recover the amounts due them under the will.[14] An action to enforce a legacy as a lien on realty is not based on an instrument for the payment of money, and consequently plaintiff has the burden of proving nonpayment.[15] A legatee whose legacy is payable when the property is disposed of, and who is also one of the heirs at law and next of kin, may maintain a bill to compel the executor, to whom the property is given in trust for the payment of debts and legacies with a discretionary power of sale, to execute the trust by a sale and to distribute the balance among those entitled thereto.[16] The executor cannot set up that parties seeking the heirs may, if they so desire, take the residue of the personalty in kind, rather than have it converted into money by the representative. Stevens v. Meserve [N. H.] 61 A. 420. Statute covers choses in action as well as goods and chattels. Id. A guardian may bind his ward by an agreement for a division of the property in kind. Id. Laws 1857, p. 1874, c. 1963, authorizing the court to direct the transfer of bonds, stocks, or other evidences of indebtedness to minor heirs or their guardians instead of giving them their share in cash, does not deprive the guardian of the right to consent to a division in specie without an order. Id. See, also, Guardianship, 3 C. L. 1569.

6. Nelson v. Nelson [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 482. See Conversion in Equity, 5 C. L. 758.

7. See 3 C. L. 1312, n. 18 et seq.; 1309, n. 74 et seq.

8. Rev. St. c. 67, § 20, c. 65, § 7. In re Stilphen [Me.] 60 A. 888. Probate court has jurisdiction to determine whether legacy was specific one, and was consequently adeemed by failure of the fund out of which it was to be paid and therefore the balance in administrator's hands not otherwise disposed of went to the heirs as intestate property, or whether it was demonstrative, so that such fund was applicable to its payment. Need not be determined by a court of equity as a preliminary question. Id.

9. In re Gall [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 875.

10. Perkins v. Owen, 123 Wis. 238, 101 N. W. 415.

11. Act Feb. 24, 1834 (P. L. 78), providing for appointment of administrator d. b. n. c. t. a. on death of executor does not apply in such case, its object being merely to prevent circuity of action. In re Garman's Estate, 211 Pa. 264, 60 A. 720.

12. See 3 C. L. 1314, n. 41 et seq.

13. Jones v. Willis [Ohio] 74 N. E. 166.

14. Amount owed by executor to his testator and charged against his estate as assets in his hands. Jones v. Willis [Ohio] 74 N. E. 166.

15. Conkling v. Weatherwax, 181 N. Y. 258, 73 N. E. 1028, afg. 90 App. Div. 585, 86 N. Y. S. 139.

16. A legatee whose legacy is to be paid when the property is disposed of, and who is also one of the heirs at law and next of kin, is entitled to maintain a bill to compel the executor, to whom the property was given in trust for the payment of the debts and payment of their legacies have forfeited their right thereto by contesting the will.[17] In some states devisees, distributees, or creditors may, at any time after the qualification of the representative, institute suit for a settlement of the estate.[18] No allegation of fraud or mismanagement on the part of the representative is necessary.[19]

Adjustment of shares.[20]—Debts due by distributees,[21] advancements made to them by decedent,[22] and partial distributions or anticipations,[23] should be reckoned against their shares in order to equalize them; but an executor cannot as such make an offset against what he is to pay over as trustee.[24] In the absence of a definite understanding to the contrary, payments made to legatees on a partial distribution should be charged against their legacies instead of their share of the residue, and the liability of the estate for interest on the legacies thereby stopped.[25]

Interest on legacies.[26]—A legatee whose legacy is wrongfully withheld is entitled to recover interest thereon, though a judgment for the amount of the legacy and the interest will exceed the balance in the hands of the executor.[27] General legacies ordinarily draw interest at the legal rate after one year from the issuance of letters testamentary, unless there is something in the will to indicate a contrary intention.[28] This rule, however, deals only with interest given as compensation for the withholding of money and not with income earned, and hence does not apply to gifts in trust to pay income only to one for life or a term, so as to cut down the term of enjoyment for a year.[29] In such case, though the beneficiary is not, while the estate is in the hands of the executor, entitled to receive the income in quarterly or yearly instalments as the will directs, he is entitled to have the income then accruing, calculated at the average rate earned by the whole estate, added to the corpus of the fund.[30] In the absence of a provision in the will to the con-legacies, with power to sell on such terms and at such time as should seem meet to him, to execute the trust by a sale, and distribute the balance, if any, to the heirs and next of kin, but is not entitled to partition of the lands divised, in which she has only the interest of a cestui que trust. White v. Crossman [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 529.

17. Cannot litigate the claims of one set of legatees as against the others at the expense of the estate. In re Murphy's Estate, 145 Cal. 464, 78 P. 960.

18. Civ. Code Prac. §§ 428, 429. Faulkner v. Tucker, 26 Ky. L. R. 1130, 83 S. W. 579.

19. Faulkner v. Tucker, 26 Ky. L. R. 1130, 83 S. W. 579.

20. See 3 C. L. 1309, n. 79 et seq.; 1310, n. 87 et seq. See, also, post, § 17.

21. In settling the estate the representative is entitled to offset against the share of a distributee debts and obligations owed by him to deceased and contracted during the latter's lifetime. In re Robinson, 45 Misc. 551, 92 N. Y. S. 967. Evidence insufficient to show that advances made by decedent to her brother, for which she took his notes, were intended as gifts. Id. Money owing the testator by an heir or distributee should be deducted under the doctrine of detention or set-off. Wick v. Hickey [Iowa] 103 N. W. 469.

22. See post, § 17B.

23. Income received by decedent's son from his mother, who was administratrix of his father's estate. Evidence held to show that son had received more than he was entitled to, so that his widow was not entitled to anything further. Nivens v. Nivens [C. C. A.] 133 F. 39, rvg. 76 S. W. 114, 64 S. W. 604.

24. Executors have no right of retainer from income of trust funds to satisfy a judgment for costs against the beneficiary, though they are also trustees under the will. In re Knibbs' Estate, 45 Misc. 83, 91 N. Y. S. 697.

25. Legacies must be paid before there is any residue. McIntire v. McIntire, 192 U. S. 116, 48 Law. Ed. 369. Such application not objectionable as stopping the running of interest to the disadvantage of the legatees because the amount paid to one who is only entitled to a share in the residue is necessarily charged against his share thereof.

26. See 3 C. L. 1309, n. 83 et seq. Interest charged representative as a penalty, see § 9C, ante.

27. Legacy withheld after all the debts and the legacies have been fully paid. Berkemeier v. Peters [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 598.

28. In re Schabacker, 94 N. Y. S. 80. Irrespective of whether the estate is fruitful or unproductive. Legatees not deprived of right to interest because legacies could not be paid in full until funds were received from sale of lands in foreign state. In re Erving's Estate, 92 N. Y. S. 1109. Do not bear interest before a year in the absence of a direction to the contrary. Webb v. Lines, 77 Conn. 51, 58 A. 227.

29. Webb v. Lines, 77 Conn. 51, 58 A. 227. Does not apply to case where under will life tenant is entitled to all income acruing after testator's death. In re Sprague, 94 N. Y. S. 84.

30, 31. Webb v. Lines, 77 Conn. 51, 58 A. 227.

trary, an executor who is given a fund in trust to pay the income to the widow is not bound to separate it as soon as practicable from the rest of the estate, so as to entitle the beneficiary, on his failure to do so, to legal interest rather than the actual income earned.[31]

If partial payments are made on legacies, each payment should first be applied to the discharge of the interest then due. If the payment exceeds the interest, the surplus goes toward discharging the principal, and the subsequent interest is to be computed on the balance of the principal remaining due. If the payment is less than the interest, the surplus of interest must not be taken to augment the principal, but interest continues on the former principal until the period when the payments taken together exceed the interest due, and then the surplus is to be applied towards discharging the principal, and interest is to be computed on the balance as before.[32]

Legacies payable after the death of the life tenant bear interest from that time.[33] If payable out of the proceeds of a sale of the property of the estate, a reasonable time will be allowed in which to make the conversion, and interest will not be given until after the sale.[34]

If legacies are paid before they become due, proper deduction should be made for interest.[35]

Setting out and retaining funds and precedent interests.—Sufficient should be set apart from the residue of the estate to meet annuities given by the will,[36] which amount is subject to distribution according to the will when the annuities cease.[37]

Statutes in some states provide for the retention by the representative of sufficient assets to pay claims for the establishment of which actions are pending.[38] A petition for the retention of assets by an executor to pay a claim alleged to be due the petitioner and on which he subsequently brings suit must be filed before final settlement.[39] The claim specified in the petition must be substantially the same as that on which suit is subsequently brought.[40]

32. In re Erving's Estate, 92 N. Y. S. 1109,

33. Where will gives income to widow for life income as well as principal belong to children immediately on widow's death, and they are entitled to interest on principal, if it is retained after that time. In re Driskel, 100 App. Div. 171, 91 N. Y. S. 273.

34. Where realty is devised to executor after death of life tenant in trust to sell it and divide proceeds, and no time is fixed for execution of trust, a reasonable time will be allowed, and interest will only be allowed from the date of sale, there being no claim that the trustee arbitrarily or capriciously refused to sell. In re Schabacker, 94 N. Y. S. 80. Doctrine of equitable conversion at testator's death will not be applied so as to require interest to be paid on the legacies as though a sale had actually been made at that time. Id.

35. Suit to charge land with legacies. Mallery v. Facer, 181 N. Y. 567, 74 N. E. 487, rvg. 90 App. Div. 610, 85 N. Y. S. 1137.

36. Merrill v. Wooster, 99 Me. 460, 59 A. 596. Where legacies are left to testator's children with the condition that the widow shall have the income for life, it is the duty of the executor to set apart the amount thereof and keep it intact until the widow's death. Where executor died and widow was appointed administratrix, remarried, and died, leaving a will directing payment of such legacies, her second husband could not defeat the right of the children to their payment from the wife's estate, it appearing that there was sufficient cash realized from testator's estate, to have set aside the amount for the payment of the legacies immediately after his death. In re Driskel, 100 App. Div. 171, 91 N. Y. S. 273. Where expenses connected with the probate of the will and the administration of the estate which are properly chargeable to principal have been paid out of income, the proceeds of the sale of a bond of the estate are properly applied to the reduction of the amount due from principal to income. Townsend v. Wilson, 77 Conn. 411, 59 A. 417.

37. Is a part of the residuum and executor never parts with title thereto. Same rule applicable even if it is treated as a trust fund for the benefit of the annuitant. Merrill v. Wooster, 99 Me. 460, 59 A. 596.

38. Code Civ. Proc. § 2745, providing for the retention of a sufficient amount to pay claims for the establishment of which actions are pending, applies only to cases in which no distribution has been made before the pendency of such an action has been brought to the notice of the surrogate. In re Gall [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 875.

39. Downer v. Squire, 186 Mass. 189, 71 N. E. 534. Petition filed more than a year before executors filed their account, in which they charged themselves with a balance more than sufficient to meet the claim sued on, no account having been previously settled, held seasonably presented, though ex-

Refunding bonds.[41]—Where the will provides that the executrix shall not be required to give bond as such, she will not be required to give bond as life tenant.[42] In New Jersey if a decree barring action against the executor is made upon the settlement of the estate, he should take a refunding bond upon paying the distributive shares to those entitled thereto.[43]

Partition of realty among heirs and devisees.[44]—Partition of realty among adult heirs may be made under some statutes, or, if the premises are not divisible, a decree of sale may be entered, prior to the expiration of the period for probating claims against the estate.[45] In case a sale is ordered, the court should, on the coming in of the report, take additional proof and make such an order with reference to the distribution of the proceeds as will insure their application, so far as may be necessary, to the satisfaction of the claims of creditors against the estate.[46] A widow in possession of the homestead and having an unassigned dower interest in the rest of the realty cannot maintain an action for partition against her husband's other heirs.[47]

By statute in Missouri, no partition of devised lands can be had contrary to the terms of the will.[48] Under such statute the court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit for partition of devised land instituted by persons expressly excluded from participation in the estate, or who have disposed of their interest, and the bringing of such suit does not exclude the jurisdiction of the probate court over the lands involved.[49]

In some states in case the realty may not be equitably divided among those entitled thereto, the probate court may order the same to be sold to pay specific legacies, if for the best interests of the estate and all parties concerned.[50] ecutors, who were also trustees, had previously closed their accounts as executors on their books, so far as the administration of income was concerned, and had turned over the personal assets to themselves as trustees. Id.

40. Downer v. Squire, 186 Mass. 189, 71 N. E. 534. Where successor of trustee filed petition as such against executors of his deceased predecessor for retention of assets to pay claim on latter's bond conditioned on payment of the trust fund to his successor, held no objection to subsequent action by obligees on bond, who were also the beneficiaries of the trust, against the executors to recover the trust fund, that the action was not brought by the person filing the petition for retention of assets. Id.

41. See 3 C. L. 1313, n. 26. See, also, supra, "Partial Distribution," and see 3 C. L. 1313, n. 32 et seq.

42. Where the will provides that the executrix shall not be required to give bond as such, she will not be required to give bond as life tenant. McGuire v. Gallagher, 99 Me. 334, 59 A. 445.

43. Orphans' Court Act, § 78, (Laws 1898, P. 742). Acton v. Shultz [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 876.

44. See 3 C. L. 1314, n. 47 et seq. See, also, Partition, 4 C. L. 898.

45. Watke v. Stine, 214 Ill. 563, 73 N. E. 793. Right given by Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 106, § 1, not affected by fact that estate is not settled. Hall v. Gabbert, 213 Ill. 208, 72 N. E. 806. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 490, authorizing a court of equity to sell land owned jointly by two or more persons on the petition of either if the estate be in possession, and the property cannot be divided without materially impairing its value, may divide property held by heirs of an intestate and purchasers from them who hold vested present interests therein jointly with the unity of possession. In such case the possession of one is the possession of all, in the absence of any adverse claim by him. Stone v. Burge, 26 Ky. L. R. 1060, 83 S. W. 139.

46. Watke v. Stine, 214 Ill. 563, 73 N. E. 793; Hall v. Gabbart, 213 Ill. 208, 72 N. E. 806. Where administrator was made a party and the decree provided that the proceeds of the sale should be paid into court, held immaterial that time for presenting claims had not expired and that answer of administrator showed that there would not be sufficient personalty to pay the debts. Watke v. Stine, 214 Ill. 563, 73 N. E. 793.

47. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 3101, action can only be maintained by one having an estate in possession. Ullrich v. Ullrich, 123 Wis. 176, 101 N. W. 376. Laws 1899, c. 336, p. 613, and Laws 1903, c. 280, p. 442, do not change rule. Id.

48. Rev. St. 1899, § 4383, applies to case where will executed and proved in Ohio according to laws of Missouri and duly recorded in the latter state disposes of land therein. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113.

49. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113.

50. Gen. St. 1894, §§ 4578, 4580, as amended by Laws 1901, c. 89, p. 91. Such power is incidental to the administration of estates. Kelly v. Slack, 93 Minn. 489, 101 N. W. 797. Evidence held sufficient to sustain finding that sale was necessary for best interests

The title of heirs who request and procure a sale of realty for the purpose of closing up the affairs of the administration passes to the purchaser by estoppel, and a stranger to the proceeding cannot impeach the sale on the ground that the probate court had no authority to order a sale for that purpose, especially after a long time has elapsed.[51]

§ 13. Enforcement of orders and decrees by attachment as for a contempt.[52]

§ 14. Discharge of personal representatives.[53]—The administration of a dead man's estate is never complete until all the assets have been turned over to those rightfully entitled to them.[54] An executor continues to be an executor so long as he has anything under the will to execute, even though the period of administration may have elapsed.[55] After such period has passed he is responsible to a court of equity for the performance of his trust, while during such period he is responsible to the probate court.[56] As to a consenting creditor, the administration closes when the administrator delivers all the property to the widow and heirs.[57] Notice of the administrator's application for a discharge need not be given to creditors who have not filed their claims.[58]

§ 15. Probate orders and decrees.[59]—Courts having charge of the administration of estates are usually held to be courts of general jurisdiction in regard to probate matters;[60] hence, their judgments and decrees are as binding on parties and their privies,[61] and until vacated, or reversed, set aside, or modified on appeal, as conclusive as to matters necessarily involved in their determination as those of any other court.[62] The existence of all facts necessary to give jurisdiction will be pre-of all concerned and that realty could not be equitably divided, and order directing sale of all the land, including the undivided third interest of the husband who elected to take under the statute instead of under the will, held proper. Id.

51. Whitaker v. Thayer [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 364.

52, 53. See 3 C. L. 1315.

54. Bristol Sav. Bank v. Holley, 77 Conn. 225, 58 A. 691.

55. Marfield v. McMurdy, 25 App. D. C. 342. Where the will provides for an annual stipend and the scheme of the will indicated an intention to continue the executorship for several years, it will continue after the expiration of the period of administration. Id. Rev. St. 1898, § 3850, providing that the county court may not extend the time for settling the estate beyond six years from the time of granting letters, does not have the effect of terminating the functions of the executor at the expiration of that time, but they continue until final settlement or until he is otherwise discharged where the nature of his duties and the matters involved in the settlement of the estate require a longer time. Lindemann v. Rusk [Wis.] 104 N. W. 119. Where no steps are taken to compel a termination of the proceedings in the county court, it will be presumed on appeal that a necessity existed for continuing the administration. Id.

56. Marfield v. McMurdy, 25 App. D. C. 342.

57. Barton v. Burbank [La.] 38 So. 150.

58. Boyle v. Boyle, 126 Iowa, 167, 101 N. W. 748.

59. See 3 C. L. 1316. The rules generally applicable to all orders and decrees are discussed in Former Adjudications, 3 C. L. 1476; Judgments, 4 C. L. 287; Motions and Orders, 4 C. L. 704.

60. See, also, § 2, ante, and title Jurisdiction, 4 C. L. 324.

In Arkansas the probate court is a court of superior jurisdiction. Collins v. Paepcke-Leicht Lumber Co. [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1044.

In New Jersey the orphan's court is a superior court of general jurisdiction. Podesta v. Binns [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 815.

In Texas county courts are courts of general jurisdiction as to probate matters. Rogers v. Tompkins [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 379; Dutton v. Wright [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1025.

61. See Former Adjudication, 3 C. L. 1476. A decree on acounting directing the representative to turn over property in his hands to certain named beneficiaries is conclusive upon each party to the proceeding who was duly cited or appeared, and upon every person claiming under him. Code Civ. Proc. § 2743. Phalen v. United States Trust Co., 100 App. Div. 264, 91 N. Y. S. 537. Where the estate is directed to be distributed according to the provisions of a codicil, the decree is a bar to a suit by such a party for specific performance of a contract between him and testator whereby the latter agreed to make no distinction between his children in his will, and which it is alleged was violated by the codicil. Id. Proceedings for the appointment of an administrator are in rem, and a decree therein, if made after the notice and hearing required by the statute, is conclusive as to the facts adjudicated therein, even on interested parties who do not appear and have no actual notice of the proceedings. Finding that petitioner was the only surviving wife of deceased held conclusive against subsequent application of another alleging that she was his wife. In re Aldrich's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 1011.

62. See, also, Former Adjudication, 3 C. L.

sumed until the contrary appears,[63] and such judgments cannot be collaterally at-

1476. In re Morris, 91 N. Y. S. 706; Blackman v. Mulhall [S. D.] 104 N. W. 250. Are conclusive only as to matters necessarily litigated. Allowance of claims is not binding on heirs. Milburn v. East [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1116. The unappealable order of the surrogate denying the motion of an executor to compel his attorney to pay money into court, on the ground that the circumstances were not such as to require punishment of the attorney and that the executor's remedy was in another direction, is no bar to an action by the executor to recover the money. Reilly v. Provost, 98 App. Div. 208, 90 N. Y. S. 591.

Grant of letters: Letters granted by court having jurisdiction are conclusive evidence of the authority of the persons to whom they are granted until the decree granting them is reversed, or the letters are revoked. Code Civ. Proc. § 2591. Shaw v. New York Cent. & H. R. Co., 101 App. Div. 246, 91 N. Y. S. 746. A decree granting letters of administration to one of two contesting relatives of deceased does not determine who is entitled to take as distributees of the fund. In re Morris, 91 N. Y. S. 706.

NOTE. Letters of Administration. How Far Evidence of Widowhood: Plaintiff's husband was killed in a wreck caused by the alleged negligence of a street railway company, and she, as administratrix, sued for damages. Defendants claimed that plaintiff was not the lawful wife of the deceased and, therefore, not entitled to damages under the statute and offered to show that deceased had a lawful wife living other than plaintiff. Held, that exclusion of such evidence was error. Phillips v. Heraty [Mich.] 100 N. W. 186.

The claim has been made that letters of administration are prima facie evidence of death and it was so held in Tisdale v. Connecticut Mut. Ben. Life Ins. Co., 26 Iowa 170, 96 Am. Dec. 136; Id., 28 Iowa, 12; but that such evidence is very weak may be rebutted by slight evidence. On the same state of acts with the same plaintiff the United States Supreme Court held in Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Tisdale, 91 U. S. 238, 23 Law. Ed. 314, that the granting of letters of administration afforded no legal evidence of death. The latter holding seems to be the correct one, for if otherwise it would open up an avenue of fraud in connection with life insurance policies that would be startling in its possible consequences. It would be easy to procure a policy for a large sum. In a year or two the person insured could disappear. Then letters of administration can be procured and the case is made. Similar unfortunate consequences will result in holding that granting letters of administration is conclusive evidence of widowhood. It might defeat the rights of heirs and the lawful widow and would be an easy way to forestall a prosecution for bigamy. Counsel for plaintiff relies on James v. Emmet Min. Co., 55 Mich. 347, as sustaining his position; the facts were similar to the principal case but the point decided was that the letters of administration were conclusive evidence of plaintiff's right to appear as plaintiff. But in the principal case counsel contended that said letters were conclusive also as to the fact of plaintiff being the lawful widow of the deceased at the time of his death and hence entitled to pecuniary compensation under the statute. Carpenter and Moore, J.J., dissent.—3 Mich. L. R. 159.

Order making allowance to widow: If not appealed from or set aside, is conclusive that she is the widow, and cannot be collaterally attacked on acounting by showing that she is not. In re Nolan's Estate, 145 Cal. 559, 79 P. 428. No appeal having been taken, order is res adjudicata in contest by creditor over classification of his claim. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839.

Decree barring claims not presented within time limited by notice to creditors. Seymour v. Goodwin [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 93. Executor cannot be estopped from setting it up, or be held to have waived presentation of claim under oath, in action at law. Id.

Settlement and allowance of accounts: The settlement of an account and the allowance thereof by the court, after due notice, is conclusive against all persons in any way interested in the estate, as to all matters involved which might have been disputed at the hearing, though no objection was in fact made. Code Civ. Proc. § 1637. In re McDougald's Estate, 146 Cal. 191, 79 P. 878. Where the acount required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1628, included an allowed claim in favor of the administratrix for the amount of a note secured by a mortgage on realty belonging to the estate, and was settled and allowed after due notice and without objection, the general creditors could not, on final settlement, contend that such claim was improperly allowed because purchased by the administratrix after her appointment and qualification in violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 1617. Id. If the probate court has jurisdiction of the parties and the subject-matter, its findings and judgment as to the amount of a debt owed by a deceased executor to his testator, and hence to be regarded as assets of the estate to be accounted for by such executor's administrator, are conclusive until reversed, modified, or otherwise adjudged erroneous. Jones v. Willis [Ohio] 74 N. E. 166. A decree of the orphan's court upon the first account of an executor is, as to residuary legatees, conclusive as to the fund being distributed. Does not determine that all subsequent distributions must be made upon the same theory. Stahl's Estate, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 402.

Decrees on distribution: Adjudication of probate court that one is entitled to a distributive share is conclusive on the administrator. Drew v. Provost [Me.] 60 A. 794. Final order of county court settling estate, and ordering payment of attorney's fees, and imposing lien therefor on funds of the estate, is conclusive. Carpenter v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 123 Wis. 209, 101 N. W. 404.

63. California: On collateral attack all presumptions are in favor of an order making a family allowance. In re Nolan's Estate, 145 Cal. 559, 79 P. 428.

New York: Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2473, on collateral attack, where the necessary parties were cited or appeared, the jurisdiction of the surrogate to make an order is presumptively, and in the absence of fraud or collusion, conclusively established, by an allegation of the jurisdictional facts contained in a written petition or answer duly verified, used in the surrogate's court. The fact that the parties were duly cited is presumptively proved by a recital to that effect in the decree. Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667. Surrogate's court obtains jurisdiction by the existence of the jurisdictional facts prescribed by statute, and by the citation or appearance of the necessary parties. An objection to a decree or other determination, founded upon an omission therein, or in the papers upon which it was founded, of the recital or proof of any fact necessary to jurisdiction, which actually existed, or the failure to take any intermediate proceeding required by law, is available only on appeal. Surrogate may allow such defect to be supplied by amendment. Code Civ. Proc. § 2474. Id.

tacked [64] except for want of jurisdiction appearing on the face of the record,[65] or for fraud or collusion.[66]

North Carolina: Where it is admitted that the administrator of a deceased nonresident was regularly appointed, it will be presumed, on collateral attack, and in the absence of a showing to the contrary, that deceased left assets within the state and died within the county of the clerk making the appointment (Code, § 1374, subsec. 4), and hence that the clerk had jurisdiction and that the appointment is valid. Vance v. Southern R. Co., 1138 N. C. 460, 50 S. E. 860.

In South Dakota decrees of the probate court have same force and effect and subject to same presumptions as those of circuit court. Rev. Probate Code, § 26. Blackman v. Mulhall [S. D.] 104 N. W. 250. Need not recite the existence of facts, or the performance of acts upon which jurisdiction depends, but, except as otherwise provided, it is only necessary for them to contain the matters ordered or adjudged. Rev. Probate Code, § 322. Id. Where the order confirming a sale recites that the sale was legally made, it will be presumed in a collateral proceeding that the court had before it proof of compliance with all the statutory requirements, including those in regard to notice. Id. On collateral attack it will be presumed that a petition for appointment of administrator was in fact filed and notice thereof given, in the absence of an affirmative showing to the contrary. Id.

Courts of general jurisdiction: It will be presumed in a collateral proceeding that the circuit court making a decree directing the sale of land belonging to a decedent had jurisdiction of both the parties and subject-matter. Kelley v. Latonia Levee Dist. [Ark.] 85 S. W. 249. Recital in chancery decree of summons and service suffices as against collateral attack though files, etc., contain no citation or indication thereof. Shannon v. Summers [Miss.] 38 So. 345.

64. Blackman v. Mulhall [S. D.] 104 N. W. 250; Rogers v. Tompkins [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 379. Within its jurisdictional limits, judgments of probate court import absolute verity the same as those of other superior courts (Collins v. Paepcke-Leicht Lumber Co. [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1044), unless they show on their face want of jurisdiction (Dutton v. Wright [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1025).

In Minnesota import absolute verity to the same extent as those of other courts of superior jurisdiction, except as otherwise provided by statute. Cater v. Steeves [Minn.] 103 N. W. 885. Gen. St. 1894, § 4612, providing that a sale by the representative cannot be avoided by the heir on account of any irregularity in the proceedings, provided certain enumerated essentials appear, operates to take away the conclusive character of an order confirming a sale as to such essentials, so that whenever the record is silent or wanting in material particulars as to any of them the sale may be collaterally attacked within the time limited by statute. Id. Among other things such section requires it to appear that the representative gave notice of the time and place of sale as prescribed by statute, if the order of license so requires, and hence recitals in the order of confirmation that the requirements as to notice were complied with are not conclusive. Id.

Appointment of administrator: In a suit by a foreign administrator, the jurisdiction of the court appointing him cannot be attacked on the ground that his decedent was not a resident of the jurisdiction where administration was granted. Consaul v. Cummings, 24 App. D. C. 36. Judgment appointing administrator cannot be attacked by testimony contradicting the recitals contained in the letters of administration issued thereon. Presumed that recitals are true until set aside in proper court, and defendant cannot have letters ruled out in action by administrator on ground that it appears from plaintiff's evidence that the letters were illegally issued in that he did not take the oath or execute the bond before the ordinary who issued them. Sharpe v. Hodges, 121 Ga. 798, 49 S. E. 775. A person not interested in the assets of the estate has no right to raise any question as to the legality of a judgment, regular on its face, appointing an administrator. If administrator relies for authority to sue on letters issued by a proper court and regular on their face, a judgment in such suit protects defendants against further suits by other representatives of the estate or others claiming an interest therein. Id. On appeal from an erroneous grant of dative letters to a tutor instead of appellant public administrator, the latter cannot collaterally attack the administrative acts done when no one else complains. Succession of Bossu [La.] 38 So. 878. Fact that no petition was filed cannot be taken advantage of in a collateral proceeding. Blackman v. Mulhall [S. D.] 104 N. W. 250. Though, under Rev. St. 1895, §§ 1880, 1881, the court has no authority to issue ancillary letters of administration c. t. a. more than four years after testator's death, their issuance thereafter is not wholly beyond the jurisdiction of the court so as to render the proceedings subject to collateral attack. Nelson v. Bridge [Tex.] 86 S. W. 7. A decree annulling a clause of the will appointing an independent executrix and appointing the same person administratrix with the will annexed cannot be attacked in a contest by a creditor over the classification of his claim. Court has jurisdiction and order not void. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839.

Decrees barring claims: Decree provided for by Rev. 1898, p. 764, § 62, P. L. 1898, p. 740, § 70. Seymour v. Goodwin [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 93.

Judgments allowing claims. James v. Gibson [Ark.] 84 S. W. 485. Instrument sued on held not a judgment allowing a claim but merely an account, and therefore open to collateral attack. Howell v. Brown [Ind. T.] 83 S. W. 170.

Sales of realty to pay debts. Podesta v. Binns [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 815. Orders for sale of tract of land which has lost its homestead character and has become assets of the estate. Dignowity v. Baumblatt [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 834. Finding that notice was properly published. Robbins v. Boulware [Mo.] 88 S. W. 674. Unreasonable delay in applying for order of sale not available in collateral proceeding where rights of innocent purchasers have intervened. Kelley v. Laconia Levee Dist. [Ark.] 85 S. W. 249. The existence of an actual unpaid probated indebtedness gives the probate court jurisdiction to sell lands, and pass title so that the sale is not subject to collateral attack. Washington v. Govan [Ark.] 84 S. W. 792. The fact that, on a sale of lands to pay probated debts, the court permitted the widow, who purchased the land, to apply her unpaid dower allowance in personalty to the purchase price instead of paying cash, is, at the most, an error in the distribution of the proceeds, and does not affect the jurisdiction of the court to sell the lands, or render the sale void on collateral attacks. Id. Where it has been determined that realty purchased with pension money is subject to sale for payment of debts, widow and heirs cannot, in collateral proceeding, deny the title of an innocent purchaser on the ground that it is exempt, where they made no such claim before the surrogate. Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667. Where it appears that the surrogate had jurisdiction of the persons of those interested for the purpose of decreeing a sale and to confirm the sale, and no fraud or collusion is shown in either proceeding, the same cannot be collaterally attacked for failure to appoint guardian ad litem for minor heirs. Id. Judgment cannot be collaterally attacked for failure of petition to show that there were any valid debts which had been properly allowed, or because all of the realty was not described therein. Blackman v. Mulhall [S. D.] 104 N. W. 250. Finding that petition was presented by both administrators cannot be collaterally attacked where order of sale was made in name of both. Id. Recital in order for sale that all the proceedings required by law have been complied with is an adjudication that the prior proceedings were valid, and where some notice of sale was given, prevents its regularity or sufficiency from being collaterally attacked (Id.), or for failure to publish notice, for the required time (Id.), or for failure of the published notice of sale to require interested persons to appear and show cause why a sale should not be ordered (Id.).

Note: Where there is some notice of sale, an irregularity or the insufficiency thereof cannot be questioned in a collateral proceeding. Kerr v. Murphy [S. D.] 102 N. W. 687; Quarl v. Abbett, 102 Ind. 233, 1 N. E. 476, 52 Am. Rep. 662; Granger v. Judge of Superior Court, 44 Mich. 384, 6 N. W. 848; Levy v. Pilger, 59 Neb. 561, 81 N. W. 507; Goodell v. Starr, 127 Ind. 198, 26 N. E. 793; Essig v. Lower, 120 Ind. 239, 21 N. E. 1090; Morrow v. Weed, 4 Iowa, 77, 66 Am. Dec. 122; Ballinger v. Tarbell, 16 Iowa, 491, 85 Am. Dec. 527; Bonsall v. Isett, 14 Iowa, 309; Darrah v. Watson, 36 Iowa, 117; Shea v. Quintin, 30 Iowa, 58; Applegate v. Applegate, 107 Iowa 312, 78 N. W. 34; Millard v. Marmon, 116 Ill. 649, 7 N. E. 468; Dowell v. Lahr, 97 Ind. 146. —From Blackman v. Mulhall [S. D.] 104 N. W. 250.

Judgment directing administrator to execute deed to property for which decedent had given bond for title cannot be impeached in trespass to try title by showing that description of land in judgment and deed was different from that in the bond. Dutton v. Wright [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1025.

Widow's allowance: Order making allowance to one as widow cannot be collaterally attacked on acounting by showing that she is not. In re Nolan's Estate, 145 Cal. 559, 79 P. 428. Court may, however, hold that she is not the widow for purposes of distribution. Id.

Allowance of widow's dower in personalty and the extent of her dower in realty, and questions in regard to rents and alleged mismanagement and waste during administration are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the probate court and hence its rulings thereon are not open to collateral attack. Washington v. Govan [Ark.] 84 S. W. 792. Laches held a bar to raising such questions even on direct attack. Id. County court having canceled clause of will appointing independent executrix and having appointed the same person administratrix with the will annexed, a subsequent order making an allowance to the widow and minor children is valid and not open to collateral attack. King v. Battaglia [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 839.

Distribution and settlement: As to effect of decree on title to land see Critical Note, 3 C. L. 1489. Nonresident defendants, who fail to prosecute an appeal from the denial of their application for a retrial, cannot collaterally attack a judgment for distribution directing a sale of the property for mere errors not rendering it void and which could have been corrected on appeal. Smith v. Hardesty, 26 Ky. L. R. 1266, 83 S. W. 646. The final order of the county court settling the estate and ordering the payment of attorney's fees directly to the attorneys and imposing a lien in their favor on the funds of the estate is not subject to collateral attack in a proceeding against the administrator's bondsmen to recover for a defalcation. Carpenter v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 123 Wis. 209, 101 N. W. 404.

65. Blackman v. Mulhall [S. D.] 104 N. W. 250; Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667. The whole record may be introduced for the purpose of showing want of jurisdiction over the person or subject-matter. Stark v. Kirchgraber, 186 Mo. 633, 85 S. W. 868.

Letters of administration, for want of jurisdiction on the part of the surrogate to grant them. Code Civ. Proc. § 2473. McCarthy v. Supreme Court of Independent Order of Foresters, 94 N. Y. S. 876. Invalidity of letters is established in such case

An administrator seeking to get in rents and profits of land for the estate does not represent heirs and though by statute he may sometimes represent them he cannot be regarded as having done so when their interests were not considered or passed on by the court.[67]

In a former volume it was pointed out that a probate decree of distribution should not properly be res adjudicata as to real property titles except so far as to decide who is "entitled to take possession" from the personal representative in order to discharge him, or except the distribution is also endued with the statutory functions of a proceeding to settle titles, a power not ordinarily attributable to courts of probate.[68] This is just what would follow from the general rules of res adjudicata.[69] In a recent case where the effect of a probate decree to deliver property to the personal representative was discussed, an analogous result was reached.[70]

The right of the court to vacate or modify its orders or decrees depends upon the statutes of the various states, construed in the light of the fact that such courts are usually of record and of superior jurisdiction in their limited field.[71]

where the only jurisdictional fact stated in the petition for letters was that deceased was a resident of the county, and this fact is shown to be untrue on the trial of the collateral action. Id. The surrogate's jurisdiction cannot be upheld by proof of facts not before him or acted on by him when he made the decree. Id. Appointment of administrator d. b. n., where there was no vacancy. Hickey v. Stallworth [Ala.] 39 So. 267.

Sale of realty, where it is only authorized to pay debts, and the order of sale shows on its face that it was made to pay expenses of administration only and hence was void. Collins v. Paepcke-Leicht Lumber Co. [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1044. Order directing sale made by judge in vacation, where it was impossible to carry out terms of the will, may be collaterally attacked where it appears on its face that all parties in interest did not consent to the court's assuming jurisdiction as required by Civ. Code 1895, § 4855. Calla-way v. Irvin [Ga.] 51 S. E. 477. Validity of proceedings for sale may be attacked in collateral action to quiet title, where record of those proceedings shows that court had no jurisdiction because application for sale was not made by a creditor or other person interested in the estate, as required by Rev. St. 1899, § 150. Stark v. Kirchgraber, 186 Mo. 633, 85 S. W. 868.

66. James v. Gibson [Ark.] 84 S. W. 485. Fraud which will vitiate judgment allowing claim must be not alone in the original cause of action on which the judgment was obtained, but that practiced in the procurement of the judgment. Id. Even if defendants could collaterally attack judgment appointing administrator for fraud in procuring it, held that court properly instructed jury to find for defendant on this issue as there was no evidence of fraud. Sharpe v. Hodges, 121 Ga. 798, 49 S. E. 775. A surrogate's decree granting letters of administration upon the estate of a nonresident may be collaterally attacked in a negligence action brought by the administrator on the ground of collusion and legal fraud in obtaining the letters. When such collusion and fraud appear, court is without jurisdiction to sustain the negligence action. Ziemer v. Crucible Steel Co., 99 App. Div. 169, 90 N. Y. S. 962. Letters of administration reciting that they were granted on the ground that deceased left property in the state, when in fact he left none, are legally fraudulent, though they further recite that such property was of no value. Id.

67. There is no adjudication as to them. Milburn v. East [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1116.

68. See Critical Note, 3 C. L. 1489. It has recently been held that where the statute authorizes the court on distribution of the estate to "declare the persons entitled thereto" and if it be assigned to two or more in common to make "partition and distribution" which "shall be conclusive," there is no doubt the decree is as binding on the coparceners as to titles as one out of chancery. Parkinson v. Parkinson [Mich.] 102 N. W. 1002. In so holding, the court carefully distinguishes a decision (Haddon v. Hemingway, 39 Mich. 617), that such a partition between heirs or devisees, though binding on their titles as necessarily adjudicated between them, was not binding on the executor as to the unnecessary question, what was his power under the will to sell the lands. Whether in absence of partition the decree is anything more than declaratory of ownership was expressly left unanswered. Id.

69. See Former Adjudication, 3 C. L. 1476.

70. The proceeding was one to compel the delivery of rent notes and a lease to him. The notes were ordered turned over but the decree was silent as to the lease wherein it was claimed to be an adjudication of the title to the leased property. The court held first, that the probate court could not in that proceeding decide title, second, that in adjudging the rent notes to the estate it did not follow that decedent owned the land whence the rents issued wherefore no decision of title could be implied. Milburn v. East [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1116.

71. In California the probate court cannot set aside an appealable order which has become final by failure to take an appeal therefrom or have the same set aside within the time allowed by law. Order making family allowance. In re Nolan's Estate, 145 Cal. 559, 79 P. 428.

In Illinois, the probate court may, at any time during the term of entry, amend, change, or vacate an order settling an estate and discharging the executors, as jus-

An infant distributee, who is one of the next of kin, is a proper party to a proceeding by a creditor for a modification of a decree of distribution.[72] In such a proceeding the representative cannot set up limitations to protect himself against his own fraud.[73]

If the probate court is a court of record, it may at any time amend its records for the purpose of making them conform to the facts and truth of the case.[74]

A decree of distribution has no effect as to property outside of the jurisdiction of the court rendering it as against a stranger in possession thereof.[75]

The full faith and credit rule applies to judgments of probate courts.[76]

The discovery of a valid will after the estate has been administered as intestate does not render such administration proceedings void for want of jurisdiction, but merely furnishes ground for the revocation of the letters of the administrator, and of all the acts of the court inconsistent with the terms of the will.[77]

§ 16. Appeals in probate proceedings.[78]—The jurisdiction of appellate courts[79] and the practice on appeal is regulated by the statutes of the various tice may require it. Griswold v. Smith, 116 Ill. App. 223, app. dism'd, 214 Ill. 323, 73 N. E. 400. An executor m' ing to have such an order set aside for failure to allow him his fees is not required to give notice of his motion to the heirs and beneficiaries. Id. A final order settling the estate is not a consent order, so as to preclude its being set aside except for fraud, accident or mistake, where it is entered in the usual way, though it appears from the order that the parties consented to the approval of the report and the discharge of the executor. Id. Order allowing fees to executor and directing probate court to take such proceedings as might be necessary to secure repayment by legatees of sufficient sum to pay them, held not a personal judgment against the heirs. Id.

In Indiana the final settlement may be set aside on petition of a person interested in the estate, who did not appear and was not personally summoned to do so, showing illegality, fraud, or mistake in such settlement or in the prior proceedings in the administration of the estate affecting him adversely. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2558. Rush v. Kelley, 34 Ind. App. 449, 73 N. E. 130. Widow may have the settlement set aside for a failure to pay her allowance. Id. Petition by widow showing settlement without payment of her allowance, and that decree was procured by fraudulent statement that heirs had settled with her, and the taking of improper credit by the administrator and a wrongful application of assets which should have gone to pay her allowance held to state sufficient grounds for setting aside the settlement. Id. Need not allege that she has not lost or waived her right to the allowance. Id. The probate court had no power to modify its judgments or decrees after the expiration of the time for appealing therefrom, except when they were entered through a mistake of fact or a clerical error. Gen. St. 1894, § 4730. In re Phelps' Estate [Minn.] 101 N. W. 496.

72. Where it is claimed that the administrator is personally liable, and his surety is joined, an infant is properly made a party at the instance of the surety, though the surrogate cannot compel restitution by him. In re Gall [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 875.

73. Administratrix was served with notice of claim, but did not reject it, and no steps were taken to have it passed upon. She thereafter procured an order for distribution in which there was no mention of the claim, and in which she alleged under oath that her infant daughter was the only creditor. Claimant who had no notice of the proceedings, thereafter began suit against her on his claim which she contested for over five years, and which resulted in a judgment in his favor. In the meantime she had exhausted the estate. Held that, in a proceeding by the creditor to procure a modification of the decree of distribution brought more than 8 years after it was made, the administratrix could not set up limitations. In re Gall [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 875.

74. So as to include an order of notice of the appointment of the executors. Smith v. Whaley [R. I.] 61 A. 173. Such an order is not a judgment so as to preclude its amendment. Id.

75. In such case is not evidence as to the heirship of the distributees. Mace v. Duffy [Wash.] 81 P. 1053.

76. Decree of foreign court directing legacies to be paid out of property therein will control the imposition of inheritance taxes. In re Clark's Estate, 37 Wash. 671, 80 P. 267.

77. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2443, giving the county court jurisdiction over the settlement of the estates of all deceased inhabitants or residents of the county, whether they die testate or intestate, and in view of Id. §§ 3815-3817, which contemplate such a situation and recognize as legal the acts of the administrator done prior to the revocation of his letters and provide for the continuation of the settlement of the estate. Perkins v. Owen, 123 Wis. 238, 101 N. W. 415.

78. See 3 C. L. 1320. See, also, Appeal and Review, 5 C. L. 121.

79. Illinois: Under 3 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896 (2d Ed.) p. 3153, c. 110, § 90, a party to a probate proceedings can only remove it from the appellate to the supreme court if the judgment of the former be that the order, judgment, or decree of the lower court be affirmed, or if final judgment or decree be rendered therein in the appellate court, or its states.[80] Statutes authorizing executors or administrators to appeal without giving bond do not apply to cases where the representative is acting in his own interest and adversely to the estate.[81] judgment, order, or decree is such that no further proceedings can be had in the lower court, except to carry into effect the judgment of the appellate court. Griswold v. Smith, 214 Ill. 323, 73 N. E. 400. See 116 Ill. App. 223. Judgment of appellate court partly reversing and partly affirming judgment of circuit court allowing commissions to one of three executors, and remanding it with directions to ascertain and allow jointly the fees of the three executors, is not final, and will not be reviewed by the supreme court on writ of error. Id. In a proceeding to sell realty to pay debts, where it is admitted that decedent owned the land and there is no question as to the title, the freehold is not involved and hence an appeal lies only to the appellate court and not to the supreme court. Roberson v. Tippie, 215 Ill. 119, 74 N. E. 96.

In Kansas an appeal does not lie to the district court from an order of the probate court refusing to revoke letters testamentary or of administration. Gen. St. 1901, § 2994, provides only for appeal in case letters are revoked. Graves v. Bond [Kan.] 78 P. 851.

In Louisiana homologation of account is not appealable to supreme court unless fund for distribution exceeds $2,000 exclusive of interest, etc. Succession of Fullerton [La.] 38 So. 151. See, also, Appeal and Review, § 4C, 5 C. L. 140.

In Maryland an appeal from an order in proceedings on petitions alleging that the administrator has concealed assets or has omitted to return any part of the assets, under Code, art. 93, § 239, lies only to the circuit court of the county or to the superior court of Baltimore city. Id. § 240. Stonesifer v. Shriver [Md.] 59 A. 139. This does not apply where petition improperly combines an allegation as to the omission of assets with others matters over which the orphans' court has no jurisdiction, and the order deals with both subjects, but in such case an appeal lies to the court of appeals. Id.

In Pennsylvania an appeal from the decree of the orphans' court on any single claim not greater than $1,500 lies only to the superior court. Act May 5, 1899 (P. L. 248). In re Eslen's Estate, 211 Pa. 215, 60 A. 733. Where orphans' court disallows two distinct claims, one over and one under that amount, the supreme court will, on appeal to it, remit the consideration of the smaller one to the superior court and review the larger one. Id.

80. Time of appeal: In Indiana on appeal by any person other than the executor or administrator, growing out of any matter connected with a decedent's estate, the appeal bond must be filed within ten days after the decision complained of is made, unless, for good cause shown, the court to which the appeal is prayed shall direct the appeal to be granted on the filing of such bond within one year. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 2609, 2610. Action by nonresident to recover from residuary devisees and legatees upon an alleged liability of their testator is within the statute. Clevenger v. Mathews [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 161. The mere fact that the trial court allowed plaintiff 30 days in which to file his bond and that he filed it within that time is insufficient to prevent dismissal, no application having been made to the appellate court for an extension of time. Id.

In Rhode Island under Gen. Laws 1896, c. 248, § 1, appeals to the supreme court from probate orders must be taken within 40 days next after the order or decree is made. Smith v. Whaley [R. I.] 61 A. 173.

Practice, etc. California: The judgment roll on an appeal from an order settling the accounts of an executor consists of the petition and account, and reports accompany the same, objections and exceptions thereto, if any, findings of the court, if any, and the order settling the account. In re Thayer's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 658. Though the transcript on appeal from a decree settling the executor's final account includes a decree of partial distribution, notice of appeal therefrom, and a remittitur, they cannot be considered unless contained in a bill of exceptions as required by rule 29 (64 P. xii). Id. Hence court cannot pass upon the power of the superior court to make such decree pending an appeal from a decree of partial distribution. Id.

Maryland: In case of appeal from a final decree of the orphans' court, the other proceedings must be transmitted to the appellate court with the decree. Code, art. 93, § 251. Stonesifer v. Shriver [Md.] 59 A. 139. In such case all the depositions must be taken in writing and recorded. Code, art. 93, § 250. Decree cannot be sustained where, on appeal therefrom, no evidence appears in the record. Stonesifer v. Shriver [Md.] 59 A. 139. A proceeding in the orphans' court to rescind an order approving an administrator's account, and to require a restatement of such account, in which the administrator appeared in pursuance of an order to show cause, is plenary and not summary. Id. Hence appeal will not be dismissed for failure to give immediate notice of intention to appeal or because the evidence has not been reduced to writing and transmitted to the appellate court. Id.

Utah: The findings and order of the court making certain allowances for administrator's and attorney's fees, and offsetting a personal claim of the administrator against moneys coming into his hands, cannot be reviewed on appeal from an order allowing his report and final account, where the record does not contain any of the evidence relating to the matters in dispute. In re Reed's Estate, 28 Utah, 465, 79 P. 1049.

Wyoming: Where executor is erroneously removed solely on the ground of non-residence, which is admitted, it is not necessary for the supreme court to have all the evidence before it in order to reverse the judgment. Hecht v. Carey [Wyo.] 78 P. 705.

81. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 2609-2612, does not apply to an appeal by an administrator from orders requiring him to give a new bond and removing him for failure to do so.

Appeals are generally allowed from all final orders or decrees of the court having jurisdiction of probate matters,[82] and may be taken by anyone having an interest in the estate,[83] who is aggrieved thereby.[84]

Moore v. Bankers' Surety Co., 34 Ind. App. 633, 73 N. E. 607.

82. Section 124, Administration Act, relative to appeals from county courts in probate matters, allows appeals only from orders, final in their character. Van Sellar v. James, 113 Ill. App. 206. Whenever a bill or petition is filed in the orphans' court, whether or not the parties are cited to appear, the proceedings are plenary if they do in fact appear and answer. Stonesifer v. Shriver [Md.] 59 A. 139.

Orders and decrees held appealable: Judgment overruling motion to dismiss caveat to widow's application for an allowance. Mathews v. Rountree [Ga.] 51 S. E. 423. An order permitting resignation and cancellation of the bond on qualification of a successor. Succession of Broadway [La.] 38 So. 430. The disallowance of an opposition to letters where it was predicated alternatively on needlessness of administration and on opponent's preferential right to letters. Miguez v. Delcambre [La.] 38 So. 820. An order of the probate court vacating in part a previous decree of distribution. Gen. St. 1894, § 4665, subd. 9. In re Phelps' Estate [Minn.] 101 N. W. 496. Orders allowing fees of administrator and his attorney entered in the form of solemn judgments, and showing that they were entered after hearing evidence and making findings, and unqualifiedly directing payment of the sums allowed, which are found reasonable. In re Sullivan's Estate, 36 Wash. 217, 78 P. 945. Decree in suit by executor against devisees to convene creditors and administer the assets for their payment, made on a report of debts by a commissioner, which decrees debts against the estate and subjects its land to their payment. Must be appealed from within two years. Trail v. Trail, 56 W. Va. 594, 49 S. E. 431.

Orders and decrees held not appealable: Supreme court cannot review allowance of amendment to caveat to widow's application for an allowance, since it is interlocutory and would not have finally disposed of the case if decided in favor of the excepting party. Civ. Code 1895, § 5526. Mathews v. Rountree [Ga.] 51 S. E. 423. An order by the circuit court upon appeal from the county court refusing to pass upon the merits of objections to a final account and finding that such account was not a proper account. Van Sellar v. James, 113 Ill. App. 206. Comp. Laws, § 669, authorizing appeals from orders, sentences, appeals or denials of probate judges, does not authorize an appeal from an order to produce for examination books and papers to be used in controversy over removal of executor and the settlement of his accounts, it not being final or decisive of the merits. Erwin v. Ottawa Circuit Judge [Mich.] 101 N. W. 537. A decree directing an executor to make return to the court of an order of sale of real estate for the payment of debts, granted upon his application, and upon confirmation of the sale to execute a deed to the purchaser, is interlocutory. Walker's Estate, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 256. Where the statute enumerates the instances in which an appeal may be taken from the district court to the supreme court, orders or decrees not mentioned therein are not appealable. Orders refusing to vacate decree of distribution and settlement of final account, and refusing to vacate an order settling an administrator's account and discharging him, not appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1722, subd. 3, as amended by Sess. Laws 1899, p. 146. In re Kelly's Estate [Mont.] 78 P. 579. Orders refusing to vacate, dissolve or modify appealable orders or judgments are not appealable in any event, unless right is specifically given. Id. The provisions of subd. 2 of such section, authorizing appeals from special orders after final judgment, does not apply to orders in probate proceedings except in so far as it is made applicable by other provisions of the statute. In re Kelly's Estate [Mont.] 79 P. 244. In an equitable action to subject lands devised to the debts of the testatrix against devisees in possession under the will, where the case has been referred to a master to hear and determine all equitable issues, and there has been a verdict of a jury on certain matters submitted to them, but there has been no order or judgment predicated thereon, an appeal is premature under Code Civ. Proc. § 11. Brock v. Kirkpatrick, 69 S. C. 231, 48 S. E. 72. Appeals will not ordinarily lie from discretionary orders. Where it only calls in question the selection of person appointed administrator pendente lite of decedent's estate and amount of security to be given. Davenport v. Davenport [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 379. In New York the exercise of the surrogate's discretion in the allowance of commissions to a representative who has been guilty of misconduct is reviewable by the appellate division. Allowance by surrogate reversed. In re Gall, 95 N. Y. S. 124.

83. Levy v. Moody & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 205. Where, on application of the legatees for partial distribution, the executrix raises an issue of law as to the sufficiency of the petition to show that there were sufficient assets to pay the legacies without loss to the creditors, both the power of the executrix to comply with the order and the right to an immediate distribution are involved, and hence the executrix is interested both personally and on behalf of the creditors, and may appeal from an order directing such distribution. In re Murphy's Estate, 145 Cal. 464, 78 P. 960. Administrator is not an interested party and hence cannot sue out a writ of error to review the decree in a suit to remove a cloud from title to realty. Right is in the heirs. Strong v. Peters, 212 Ill. 282, 72 N. E. 369.

84. Gen. Laws 1896, c. 248, § 1. Smith v. Whaley [R. I.] 61 A. 173. Rev. St. c. 65, § 28. In re Stilphen [Me.] 60 A. 888. Code Pub. Laws, art. 50, § 60. Lee v. Allen [Md.] 59 A. 184. Code Civ. Proc. § 938. In re Steward's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 728. Only those are aggrieved whose pecuniary interests are directly affected by the order or decree complained of, or, in other words, only those

Only such persons in such capacities as are affected by the order appealed from need be joined as appellees, not all who are interested in the estate.[85] The estate is not a necessary party to an appeal from an order directing an administrator to file a new bond and removing him for failure to do so.[86] The administrator is neither a necessary nor a proper party to an appeal from a judgment classifying approved claims against the estate.[87] Where the judgment or order entered on the administrator's report is favorable to the estate, but unfavorable to him individually, he should appeal therefrom in his individual and not in his representative capacity.[88] In such case the estate, by its administrator, should be made an appellee and should not be joined as appellant.[89] Notice of appeal from an order settling the account whose rights of property may be established or divested thereby. Not every one who is dissatisfied, or who happens to entertain desires on the subject. In re Stilphen [Me.] 60 A. 888. Means a denial of some personal or property right, or the imposition on the party of a burden or penalty. Smith v. Whaley [R. I.] 61 A. 173.

An assignee of the distributive share may appeal from a decree directing distribution to a legatee, under Rev. St. c. 65, § 34, giving anyone claiming under an heir at law the same rights as the heir in all proceedings in probate courts, including rights of appeal. In re Stilphen [Me.] 60 A. 888.

Creditors may appeal from order permitting resignation of representative and cancellation of bond on qualification of his successor. Succession of Broadway [La.] 38 So. 430.

Executor may appeal from an order refusing to set aside an order approving his final account and to fix and allow his fees. Griswold v. Smith, 116 Ill. App. 223, app. dism'd 214 Ill. 323, 73 N. E. 400. Appeal properly taken from such order and not from order approving the final account, where no fees at all were allowed by the latter order, since it contained no adjudication personal to himself. Id.

Heirs: Where, on petition alleging that moneys deposited in the name of the deceased belonged to the petitioner, the heirs intervened, denying the allegations, they were entitled to appeal from a judgment that the petitioner owned the money, though the judgment entry did not refer to them in terms. In re Anderson's Estate, 125 Iowa, 670, 101 N. W. 510.

Trustee holding funds of an absentee may appeal from order refusing to revoke letters of administration on his estate, especially when it was made for purpose of vesting title to trust property in administrator. Lee v. Allen [Md.] 59 A. 184.

Representative held not to have right to appeal: Executrix not aggrieved by order, on petition for partial distribution, directing payment of legacies, though she claims that legatees have forfeited their rights under the will by contesting it. In re Murphy's Estate, 145 Cal. 464, 78 P. 960. In any event she is not entitled to litigate the question on appeal, where the order directing distribution has become final by failure of the legatees and devisees to appear or in any manner object thereto. Id. Administrator not aggrieved by order denying his petition to sell all of the realty, where enough of it was ordered sold to pay the expenses of administration (In re Steward's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 728), Nor by decree directing him to pay to a legatee rather than to an heir, since he has no pecuniary or personal interests which can be affected by a decree of distribution of funds shown by his account to be in his hands, and no property rights which can be established or divested thereby (In re Stilphen [Me.] 60 A. 888). Where a claim is made before the auditor which no other creditor or claimant objects to and is allowed by the auditor and confirmed by the court, the executor cannot on appeal object to its allowance. May's Estate, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 267.

A creditor is not aggrieved by an order of the probate court amending the record of its proceedings so as to include an order of notice of the appointment of the executors of the estate, required by Gen. Laws 1896, c. 212, § 32, for the purpose of limiting the time within which suits may be brought against them (Id. c. 218, §§ 8, 9). Only the representative could appeal from the order of notice. Smith v. Whaley [R. I.] 61 A. 173.

85. On appeal from the appointment of a dative testamentary executor, he need not be cited as executor, only as individual, and the succession need not be cited. Succession of Henry, 113 La. 787, 37 So. 756. Where creditors appeal from the allowance of a resignation and cancellation of the bond on qualification of a successor, the beneficiaries and other creditors of the succession are not necessary parties. Succession of Broadway [La.] 38 So. 430.

86. Estate itself is not a proper party to an appeal, and record did not show that a new administrator was appointed after removal of appellant. Appeal is in interest of appellant alone. Moore v. Bankers' Surety Co., 34 Ind. App. 633, 73 N. E. 607.

87. Zieschang v. Helmke [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 436.

88. Where order of circuit court refused allowances asked by administrator, charged him with costs, and ordered allowance made him for services to be set off against a debt due from him to the estate. Moore v. Ferguson, 163 Ind. 395, 72 N. E. 126.

89. Rights as administrator and as individual are separate and distinct, and are adverse to each other. Appeal dismissed for failure to join administrator as appellee. Moore v. Ferguson, 163 Ind. 395, 72 N. E. 126. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2546, permitting anyone interested in the administration of the assets of the estate to except to and contest the correctness of the representative's accounts, does not make exceptor stand for or of an executor need not be served on a creditor whose claim has been allowed, but who does not appear and make himself a party to the proceedings,[90] nor on the attorneys of the executor, whose fees the order appealed from directs him to pay.[91]

An appeal from an order of final settlement deprives the probate court of jurisdiction over the estate pending its determination.[92]

In those states in which an appeal lies to a court of general jurisdiction, the matter is generally tried de novo,[93] the issues, however, being limited to those raised in the probate court.[94]

A court having appellate jurisdiction only can consider only questions raised and passed upon in the lower court,[95] except that fundamental errors may be raised at any time.[96] The usual presumption in favor of the proceedings in the lower court apply.[97]

All the findings and matters decided which enter into and are part of the order appealed from go up with it,[98] but matters subsequently decided [99] and recitals of facts previously decided and become conclusive will not be considered.[1] represent the estate so as to change the rule. Id.

90. In re Carpenter's Estate, 146 Cal. 661, 80 P. 1072.

91. Not persons interested in the estate, and could not be parties to the proceedings settling the account. In re Carpenter's Estate, 146 Cal. 661, 80 P. 1072.

92. A probate court has no jurisdiction to adjudicate a claim filed therein while the estate is pending in the circuit court on appeal from a decree of the probate court settling the executor's accounts. In re Cassity [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 595.

93. In Illinois appeals from the probate court are triable de novo, and their effect is to vacate the judgments appealed from. Klicka v. Klicka, 105 Ill. App. 369.

In Minnesota appeals from the probate to the district court are to be tried de novo in the latter court. Gen. St. 1894, § 4672. On appeal from order making allowance for support of widow and family, district court should determine allowance to be made in exercise of its own judgment. In re Strauch's Estate [Minn.] 104 N. W. 535.

In Texas issues on orders appealed from from the county to the district court will be tried de novo. Levy v. Moody & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 205. On appeal from a judgment classifying claims. Evidence otherwise admissible may be admitted, though not offered below. Zieschang v. Helmke [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 436.

In Wisconsin on appeal from allowance of final account case is tried de novo in circuit court. Rev. St. 1898, § 4034. Fitch v. Huntington [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1066.

94. In Missouri the jurisdiction of the circuit court on appeal from a decree in the probate court settling the executor's accounts is limited to passing on the matters presented by the appeal; hence it cannot remand the case to the probate court to hear and determine a claim filed there pending the appeal. In re Cassity [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 595.

In Texas the district court has appellate jurisdiction only in the administration of estates (Levy v. Moody & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 205), and has no jurisdiction to order a sale of property, on an appeal from the county court from an order removing an administrator (Id.).

95. The supreme court has no original jurisdiction in the matter of the removal of executors, and can only consider grounds of removal passed upon by the lower court. Order erroneously removing executor on the sole ground of non-residence cannot be sustained because the evidence shows other grounds, notwithstanding a statute authorizing the supreme court in certain cases to render such judgment as the court below should have rendered. Hecht v. Carey [Wyo.] 78 P. 705.

96. That lien creditors do not object to an order authorizing the sale of land to pay debts, on the ground that the record fails to show that proper notice of the application for the order of sale was given or that there was no evidence of necessity for the sale, does not preclude them from objecting on appeal. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Dunovant's Estate [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 208. That mortgagees of a portion of the lands of an estate do not object to a sale of all the lands in bulk, at the time application for authority to sell was made does not preclude them urging on appeal that there was no evidence authorizing such sale. Id.

97. Where the court finds that an order fixing the fee of an attorney appointed to represent minor devisees and legatees having no guardian was duly made, given and entered, it will be presumed on appeal, in the absence of a showing to the contrary in the record, that all persons interested were duly notified of the application for the fixing of the fee. In re Carpenter's Estate, 146 Cal. 661, 80 P. 1072. Mere fact that there never had been any previous account filed by the executor does not conclusively establish want of such notice. Id.

98. A decree establishing due notice to creditors to present their claims which is embraced in a decree settling the executor's account and making final distribution is reviewable on appeal from the latter. In re Wilson's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 313. Where there is only one fund out of which claims can be paid, which is insufficient to satisfy them all, and on a contest for priority in the county court a judgment is rendered so classifying the claims as to give one of them nearly the entire fund to the exclusion of the others, an appeal by one of the unsuc-

A reversal will not be ordered for errors not affecting the substantial rights of the parties.[2]

The right of the appellate court, on reversal of an order appointing an administrator, to itself make an appointment,[3] and, on reversal of a decree of distribution, to itself make distribution, depends on the statutes of the various states.[4] In Minnesota on appeal from an order making an allowance for the support of the widow and minor children, the district court should determine the allowance to be made in the exercise of its own judgment.[5]

Mandamus will lie to compel the probate court to set aside its order appointing one as ancillary administrator who is not of kin to decedent, and to grant letters to relators, there being no denial of the fact that the latter are decedent's next of kin and are otherwise qualified to act.[6]

§ 17. Rights and liabilities between beneficiaries of estate. A. In general.[7]—Contracts between the heirs, distributees, and legatees,[8] and between them and the cessful claimants to the district court ipso facto brings up the entire case, with its subject-matter and all the parties contesting therefor. Zieschang v. Helmke [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 436.

99. On appeal from an order settling the executor's account, the contention that the court erred in refusing to grant a motion to amend the findings of fact, which was made more than a month after taking the appeal, will not be considered. In re Carpenter's Estate, 146 Cal. 661, 80 P. 1072.

1. Where it had already been determined, in the course of administration and in special proceedings for that purpose, what property was the separate property of deceased and what was community property, findings on application for distribution merely reciting the ultimate facts so previously found are not reviewable on appeal from the decree of distribution. Drasdo v. Jobst [Wash.] 81 P. 857.

2. Not for failure of the district court to pass upon the claim of one of the parties, where the ruling of the county court thereon was unquestionably correct. Zieschang v. Helmke [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 436. The homologation will not be disturbed merely because the accountant applied to her claim as widow certain movables of small value at their appraised value instead of selling them, no loss to the estate having resulted. Succession of Peters [La.] 38 So. 690.

3. In Louisiana when on a devolutive appeal the appointment of one as dative administrator is reversed in favor of the public administrator, the court of review must of necessity make the appointment as it should have been, notwithstanding administration is practically complete and no good will result to the estate, but the burden of fees and commissions instead. Succession of Bossu [La.] 38 So. 878.

In Tennessee the circuit court, on appeal from order of county court appointing administrator, has no jurisdiction to make an appointment, or to revoke letters improvidently granted, but, on deciding in favor of appellant, should remand the cause for the issuance of letters by the county court. In re Wooten's Estate [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 1105. It has no power to consider the application of anyone not a party to the proceedings in the county court. Id.

4. In reversing an order of distribution in an action by an administrator to pay debts, the appellate court should either make the order of distribution or remand the case to the probate court with specific instructions as to the items to which the fund should be applied. Sherman v. Millard, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 338.

5. In re Strauch's Estate [Minn.] 104 N. W. 535.

6. Court's action in such case is ministerial and involves no exercise of judicial discretion. State ex rel. Mitchell v. Guinotte [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 884. The fact that evidence was required to show the relationship of relators to deceased and their residence did not convert the proceeding into a judicial investigation. Id. Probate court could not, by mere denial of relator's right to administer, convert the proceedings into a judicial inquiry, but must have been some foundation for such denial. Id. Statement of return that respondent heard witnesses whose evidence justified his action and which made it a judicial hearing involving judicial discretion, without stating and proving the import of such evidence, does not make a showing constituting a good defense to the writ. Id.

7. See 3 C. L. 1323.

8. Where the interests of creditors are not involved, the heirs may agree upon a division of the property, or they may adopt and make valid a distribution under what would have been void as a judicial proceeding. Williams v. Williams Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 52. Agreement by widow to a division, without consideration and made under a mistake of law as to her rights in the estate, may be set aside. Terry v. Logue [Ark.] 87 S. W. 119. Assignment by widow of her right to receive certain interest under the will in consideration of support for life held without consideration, where assignees were bound to furnish her such support under the terms of a deed to realty previously made by her to them. In re Castner's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 991. Administrator with the will annexed held to have no power, either under the will or under a compromise agreement between the interested parties, to partition the realty among the residuary devisees, or to sell it for the purpose of dividing the proceeds among them, no sale being neces-representative in regard to the distribution of the estate, will be enforced, if otherwise valid.[9] In case a consent division is made, each heir, without deed or further conveyance, acquires a perfect equity in the property set apart to him, and loses all interest in the part assigned to the other distributees.[10] A release of all claims on account of a legacy does not estop one from participating as heir in any portion of the estate as to which testator died intestate.[11] Where a conveyance of the interest of certain female heirs in decedent's land is void for failure of their husbands to join therein, their interest in the proceeds of the sale of the land for purposes of distribution and payment of debts should be charged with the amount received by them

sary for any other purpose, but he could only convey the same to them as tenants in common. Cronan v. Adams [Mass.] 75 N. E. 101. Evidence insufficient to show agreement or contract by legatee that her share of the estate should be applied as payment for certain land conveyed to her husband. Berkemeier v. Peters [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 598. An agreement by the husband that estate of his wife shall be distributed in a certain manner in case her will is set aside is not contrary to public policy, though he is her executor. Is not an agreement to permit setting aside of the will. Crockett v. Sibley [N. H.] 61 A. 469. Agreement by husband with heirs of deceased wife to accept a specified sum in full of his rights in her estate, held to amount to an equitable assignment to the heirs of the rest of his interest. Id. Agreements by heirs of deceased wife that if will was set aside they would pay a specified sum to the husband and another sum to another person, and by husband to accept such sum in full of his rights and to pay certain specified legacies therefrom, held to constitute one contract, each being a consideration for the other. Id. Persons to whom the husband agreed to pay certain sums out of the share which he was to have in case the will was set aside, but who had no interest in the estate after it was set aside, are not necessary parties to a bill by the heirs to secure distribution in accordance with the agreement. Id. An agreement for the distribution of the estate in case the will is set aside is not enforceable until due administration has been had, though it becomes binding as soon as the will is set aside. The claims of the parties while unsatisfied, however, afford ground for equitable protection. Id. Where equity determines the rights of the parties under a contract, the probate court, on final settlement, must decree distribution in accordance with its views. Id. Agreement for settlement of litigation and division of estate held to entitle plaintiff to ten per cent. of the excess over a certain sum, though such excess consisted of income instead of principal. Chauvet v. Ives, 93 N. Y. S. 744. Where, after settlement of estate as intestate, the widow and mother of decedent, recognizing the possibility of a will being discovered which would give the mother an interest in the property, agreed that two parcels of realty should be conveyed to her by the widow in full satisfaction of any claim on her part, whether a will should be subsequently discovered or not, and this was done and mother gave receipt in full of all claims, held that such agreement was valid, and mother was estopped to claim that she was not bound thereby. Perkins v. Owen, 123 Wis. 238, 101 N. W. 415. Though the mother did not convey her interest in the land retained by the widow, her release amounted to an equitable conveyance of her rights therein, and entitles the widow to a decree in equity removing the cloud from her title. Id. Parol evidence is admissible to show that the word "claims" in the release refers to possible claims of the mother under the supposed will. Id. Where certain heirs at law of testator assigned an undivided third interest in their shares to another heir who agreed to employ and pay counsel and do all things necessary to secure the assignor's interests, it being understood that no further liability should exist against the assignors, the assignors are not necessary or proper parties to a suit to enforce a lien on their shares of the estate for services rendered by counsel in contesting the will under a contract with the assignee pursuant to the assignment, which could not, under its terms, create a charge against them personally, or against their unassigned interest in the estate. Ingersoll v. Coram, 127 F. 418. Neither is the principal legatee or his representative, on his decease, a necessary or proper party. Ingersoll v. Coram, 136 F. 689.

9. An agreement by an administrator that in case a transfer tax was not assessed he would divide the amount reserved for that purpose ratably among the heirs provided they would waive a formal settlement and execute a release so that he could obtain his discharge is his personal promise and not a promise as administrator, and, no tax having been assessed, neither the release nor a decree of discharge entered thereon is a defense to an action by one of the heirs for his share. Execution of release for purpose of enabling him to obtain a discharge is sufficient consideration for the promise. Thompson v. Thompson, 180 N. Y. 311, 73 N. E. 43, rvg. 88 App. Div. 618, 84 N. Y. S. 1148. No variance of the written release since claim is based on his personal promise and not his promise as administrator. Id.

10. Williams v. Williams Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 52. Where, pending an appeal by a sole legatee from a judgment setting aside the probate of the will, the matter was compromised and it was agreed that the will was to be established, and that the legatee should convey half the property to contestants on its division by commissioners, held that, until the execution of the conveyances by the legatee, he held title to the part set off to contestants in trust for them, so that his wife was not entitled to dower therein after his death. Allard v. Allard [Ky.] 86 S. W. 679.

11. In re St. John,. 93 N. Y. S. 840.

as the consideration for such conveyance.[12] A separation agreement between husband and wife whereby the latter releases all her interest in his property, in consideration of a payment to her of a part thereof, is enforceable against her after her husband's death.[13]

A contract to dispose of one's property in a particular way by will may be enforced against his heirs, devisees, or legatees.[14]

The omission of an executor to formally convey to the widow who remained in possession under a written agreement whereby she was to pay the debts of the estate and discharge the executor from liability does not affect the right of the widow to the property.[15]

Legacies abate ratably to pay the share of a widow electing to take against the will.[16] One who elects against a will devising land charged with unpaid purchase money takes the intestate share in the lands free of such incumbrance[17] though he elects after the devisee has assumed the charge.[18] The personalty is in such case exonerated from contribution[19] and the devisee is on a parity with specific legatees in this respect.[20] Forced contribution does not apply against specific devises to exonerate specific legacies.[21] A specific charge on a devise is not to be reckoned as a debt of the estate in finding the intestate share of one who renounces.[22]

The liability of heirs to contribute is pro rata.[23]

Family settlements.[24]—Compromises of conflicting claims by family settlements are encouraged by the courts, and they may not be avoided or disregarded for mere inadequacy of consideration, or except upon clear and convincing proof of grave fraud or mistake.[25] Children who do not claim from their father, but directly under the will of their grandfather, are not affected by a family settlement to which their father was a party.[26]

(§ 17) B. Advancements.[27]—Strictly speaking the word advancements is applicable only to cases of intestacy, and means moneys advanced by a parent to a child in anticipation of the latter's future share of his estate.[28] It is, however, employed by courts of equity in a broader sense to denote money or property advanced as a satisfaction pro tanto of a general legacy given by a parent or other person standing in loco parentis to a child or grandchild.[29] Whether moneys advanced to a legatee shall be considered as reducing his legacy is a question of intention.[30]

As a general rule if the purchase money for land is paid by the husband or father, and the legal title is taken in the name of the wife or child, the presumption

12. Furnish's Adm'r v. Lilly [Ky.] 84 S. W. 734.

13. Fisher v. Clopton, 110 Mo. App. 663, 85 S. W. 623. See, also, Husband and Wife, 3 C. L. 1669.

14. See Wills, 4 C. L. 1863.

15. Agreement between executor and beneficiary turning over property to latter is equivalent to formal deed. Logan v. Bean's Adm'r [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1110.

16. Where stock was decreased one-third by widow's election to take against the will, the interest of the legatees in the remainder abates in proportion to their original holdings. In re Klenke's Estate [Pa.] 60 A. 167.

17, 18, 19, 20. Gordon v. James [Miss.] 39 So. 18.

21. All legacies must be entirely consumed. Gordon v. James [Miss.] 39 So. 18.

22. Gordon v. James [Miss.] 39 So. 18.

23. Hence assumpsit lies not. Calhoun v. Tangany, 105 Ill. App. 23.

24. See 3 C. L. 1315.

25. Adopted children held to have no equitable claim to have settlement, whereby they accepted certain stock, set aside after eleven years, and where they did not offer to return what they had received. Burnes v. Burnes [C. C. A.] 137 F. 781. Family settlement held not void for duress or fraud, nor would it be set aside because some of the parties signed it without reading it. Burnes v. Burnes, 132 F. 485.

26. Parrott v. Barrett, 70 S. C. 195, 49 S. E. 563.

27. See 3 C. L. 1324.

28. Code Civ. Proc. § 2733, Real Property Law (Laws 1896, c. 547), §§ 295, 296. In re Cramer, 43 Misc. 494, 89 N. Y. S. 469. The operation of the statute as to advancements can only apply where the decedent died intestate as to his property. Bullock v. Bullock, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 190.

29. In re Cramer, 43 Misc. 494, 89 N. Y. S. 469.

30. See Wills, 4 C. L. 1919.

is that such conveyance was intended as an advancement, and there is no implication of a resulting trust.[31] Such presumption, however, may be rebutted by proof of a contrary intention,[32] and parol evidence is admissible for that purpose.[33] No such presumption exists where the person paying the consideration is under no legal or natural obligation to support the person taking the title.[34]

The use of land which is enjoyed must be accounted for as an advancement.[35]

In the absence of statutory provisions to the contrary, the value of advancements is to be reckoned as of the time when they are made, unless the contrary appears from the terms of the conveyance.[36] This rule has been changed in many states so that the advancement is valued at what it would have been worth at the death of the decedent if no change had been made in the condition of the property.[37] Though the intention of the parent as to the equality of advancements is not conclusive, and will be disregarded if it is shown that he was mistaken, yet, where the facts were within his personal knowledge, and there was no interference with his judgment or attempt to influence it, some weight must be given to his conclusion that he had equalized the shares of those to whom the advancements were made.[38]

By statute in some states in order to constitute an advancement it is necessary either that the ancestor express in the gift or grant his intention that it be an advancement, or that he charge it in writing as an advancement, or that the child or other descendant acknowledge it in writing to be such.[39] Under such a statute parol evidence is inadmissible to show that the sum named in a note was intended as an advancement.[40] A loan from an ancestor to an heir may, with the latter's consent, be converted into an advancement by the ancestor, but in order to establish such fact it must be made to clearly appear that the ancestor expressed the intention to make the change, and that the heir acquiesced therein.[41] In case the ancestor receives such evidence of indebtedness as a bond or promissory note, the presumption is that it is a debt and not an advancement, and, while such presumption is not absolute, it can only be overcome by clear and satisfactory evidence.[42]

31. Brennaman v. Schell, 212 Ill. 356, 72 N. E. 412; Deuter v. Deuter, 214 Ill. 113, 73 N. E. 453.

32. Such presumption, however, may be rebutted by evidence showing that, at the time of the conveyance, it was the intention that the wife or daughter should not take the beneficial interest. In such case a trust will result in the parent's favor. Brennaman v. Schell, 212 Ill. 356, 72 N. E. 412. Evidence held to rebut presumption of intention to make advancement to daughter. Id. Purchase of land by husband in wife's name held advancement in absence of sufficient proof of contrary intention. Deuter v. Deuter, 214 Ill. 113, 73 N. E. 453.

33. The question is one of intention, which may be shown by proof of antecedent or contemporaneous facts or acts, or of acts or facts occurring so soon after the purchase as to be fairly considered parts of the transaction. May be shown that it was not an advancement by proof of facts tending to show that it was not so intended. Brennaman v. Schell, 212 Ill. 356, 72 N. E. 412. Presumption may be rebutted by clear and convincing parol testimony, or by proof of such acts and circumstances as clearly show a contrary intention. Deuter v. Deuter, 214 Ill. 113, 73 N. E. 453. Parol evidence is admissible to rebut the presumption. Evidence held to disprove any presumption of gift to one whom deceased had promised to marry when his wife procured a divorce. Lufkin v. Jakeman [Mass.] 74 N. E. 933.

34. Is a resulting trust where married man takes title in name of woman to whom he was engaged to be married whenever his wife should obtain a divorce and leave him free to marry again. Lufkin v. Jakeman [Mass.] 74 N. E. 933.

34. Boblett v. Barlow, 26 Ky. L. R. 1076, 83 S. W. 145.

36. Eastwood v. Crane, 125 Iowa, 707, 101 N. W. 481.

37. Code, § 3383, adopts this rule. Increased value on account of improvements put upon the land by the heirs should not be considered. Eastwood v. Crane, 125 Iowa, 707, 101 N. W. 481.

38. Boblett v. Barlow, 26 Ky. L. R. 1076, 83 S. W. 145.

39. Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 4937. Lodge v. Fitch [Neb.] 101 N. W. 338. Rev. St. 1898, § 3959. Schmidt v. Schmidt's Estate, 123 Wis. 295, 101 N. W. 678.

40. Schmidt v. Schmidt's Estate, 123 Wis. 295, 101 N. W. 678. It is also inadmissible irrespective of the statute as tending to contradict the plain terms of an unambiguous written contract. Id.

41. Lodge v. Fitch [Neb.] 101 N. W. 338.

42. Converts intended advancement into debt unless memorandum is made elsewhere

Money given as an advancement cannot afterwards be made a debt.[43] Advancements do not bear interest unless an intent that they shall is clearly expressed in the will.[44]

Hotchpot.[45]—Where advancements have been made in the lifetime of the parent, they must, on his death intestate, be brought into hotchpot by those who have received them, so that perfect equality may be obtained.[46] There is a conflict of authority as to whether or not this rule applies where those receiving the advancements have relinquished all further interest in the inheritance.[47] In determining the effect of such relinquishments, the law of the state where the property is situated controls.[48]

§ 18. Rights and liabilities between beneficiaries and third persons.[49]—If made for a legal consideration and without fraud, an assignment of one's interest in the estate of a decedent before the estate is settled and his right to a distributive share is established is valid and is a good defense to an action by the assignor against the administrator to recover the share adjudged to be due him as distributee.[50] In such case, though the adjudication of the probate court as to his right to such share is conclusive on the defendant, he may, for the purpose of meeting the charge of fraud in obtaining the assignment, prove circumstances tending to show that at the time of the assignment the assignor doubted his right to a share.[51]

One claiming title to property ordered distributed as assets of the estate of a decedent should sue in equity to prevent its being turned over to the estate, provided this has not already been done, rather than to recover it from the beneficiaries.[52]

In equity and good conscience, the debts of decedent should be paid out of his estate before it should be made to pay the individual debts of the heir or devisee,[53] of its real character. Lodge v. Fitch [Neb.] 101 N. W. 338. Evidence insufficient to show that note executed by daughter and her husband to her father was intended as an advancement. Id.

43. Boblett v. Barlow, 26 Ky. L. R. 1076, 83 S. W. 145.

44. Stahl's Estate, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 402.

45. See 3 C. L. 1326.

46. Mort v. Jones [Va.] 51 S. E. 220. Advancements should be brought into hotchpot and deducted from the shares of the heirs to whom they were made. Wick v. Hickey [Iowa] 103 N. W. 469.

47. See 3 C. L. 1326, n. 58. In Virginia the rule is unaffected by the fact that some of the heirs at the time of receiving their advancements entered into covenants with the parent relinquishing all interest in or claim to any portion of the estate then owned or thereafter acquired by the parent, and as to which he might die intestate. Mort v. Jones [Va.] 51 S. E. 220.

For discussion of right of one receiving an advancement and executing a release of his interest to share in after-acquired property, see note 65 L. R. A. 578.

48. Mort v. Jones [Va.] 51 S. E. 220. Adult children of owner of land in Tennessee and Virginia conveyed their expectancy to him in consideration of advancements. Such conveyances were inoperative in Virginia but effective in Tennessee. Held that in a suit for partition the Virginia court could not enjoin the infant heirs from setting up the deeds in the courts of Tennessee. Id. In such case the court should ascertain the amount of decedent's estate, wherever situated, and distribute the estate in Virginia without requiring the adults to bring their advancements into hotchpot, unless it shall be made to appear that such advancements added to their share of the estate in Virginia, exceeds the shares of the infant heirs in the entire estate, in which case they should be required to account for so much of such advancements to each of them as will produce equality. Id.

49. See 3 C. L. 1326.

50. Drew v. Provost [Me.] 60 A. 794. Quitclaim deed covering all the interest of an heir in the real estate of his ancestor carries such additional interest as the grantor may have by reason of advancements to other heirs. Dow v. Dow, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 125. Conveyance of half interest in that portion of an estate which should be finally distributed and alloted to plaintiff held not to include widow's allowance, which the grantee, in an accompanying contract, agreed to use his best efforts to secure. De Leonis v. Walsh, 145 Cal. 199, 78 P. 637.

51. Though court had adjudicated that assignor was husband of deceased at her death, record of his divorce from another woman after his marriage to decedent and before the assignment, held admissible as tending to show his belief that he was lawfully married to the other woman. Drew v. Provost [Me.] 60 A. 794. Evidence held to sustain verdict that there was no misrepresentation in procuring assignment. Id.

52. Deposit in bank. Fretz v. Roth [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 676.

53. Alderson v. Alderson's Guardian [Ky.]

and hence a judgment creditor of the latter only acquires a lien on his interest in the estate after the payment of decedent's debts.[54] In North Carolina after the expiration of two years from the grant of letters, a purchaser for value of a devisee's interest takes good title even as against creditors of the testator of whose claims he has no notice.[55]

In the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary, property or money held by the executor or administrator in his official capacity cannot be reached by attachment or garnishee process in an action against the heir or legatee prior to an order of distribution.[56] In Illinois no assignment or transfer by an heir, devisee, or legatee, of his share of the estate in the hands of the representative, can operate to defeat a garnishment of the same unless the transfer is reduced to writing and filed with the clerk of the county court before the service of the garnishee process.[57]

The mere fact that a child would inherit real estate of the father in the event of the latter's death intestate does not invest the child with an interest therein which can be made the subject of sale or conveyance by him during the life of the father.[58]

In an action by distributees to impress a trust upon property in the hands of a third person, defendant may, under a general denial, avail himself of an assignment to him by decedent.[59]

Where the executor and residuary devisee takes land subject to the payment of certain legacies, and sells it and applies the proceeds to his own use and becomes insolvent, the legacies will be charged upon the lands so conveyed.[60] In such case the lien of the legacies should be charged on the various parcels of land in the inverse order of their alienation.[61]

87 S. W. 810, withdrawing former opinion, 26 Ky. L. R. 1260, 83 S. W. 1129.

54. Can only be enforced against share remaining due him after such debts are paid. Alderson v. Alderson's Guardian [Ky.] 87 S. W. 810, withdrawing former opinion, 26 Ky. L. R. 1260, 83 S. W. 1129. The assignment by devisees of their interests to secure judgments confessed by them does not put an end to the lien of a judgment against their testator so as to deprive the orphans' court of jurisdiction to sell the decedent's land for its payment. Ziegler v. Schall, 209 Pa. 526, 58 A. 912.

55. Code, § 1442. Francis v. Reeves, 137 N. C. 269, 49 S. E. 213. One who makes a loan to a devisee, secured by a trust deed on the land so devised, and on the faith of the devisee's title thereto, is a purchaser for value. Lender held to have no notice of debt. Id.

56. Executor is not creditor of heir until order of distribution is made, nor is it certain until that time that he is the custodian of any property belonging to such heir. Orlopp v. Schueller [Ohio] 73 N. E. 1012. Rev. St. 1892, § 5531, authorizing the service of process on public officers does not apply to or authorize service on an executor or administrator. Id. Fact that executor was made garnishee contrary to Gen. St. 1902, § 881, held not to make writ defective as against the principal defendant. Hatch v. Boucher, 77 Conn. 347, 59 A. 422. Judgment cannot be rendered against executors as garnishees before order of distribution has been made by county court. Hurd's Rev. St. c. 62, § 35. Rhodes v. Rhodes, 115 Ill. App. 335. See, also, Clifford v. Gridley, 113 Ill. App. 164.

57. Act of 1897. Rhodes v. Rhodes, 115 Ill. App. 335. Transfer of notes in full settlement of legatee's interest held in the nature of an assignment, and did not defeat garnishment where receipt was not filed until after service of process. Id.

58. Deed purporting to convey "expectancy" of grantors in land of their mother held void. Furnish's Adm'r v. Lilly [Ky.] 84 S. W. 734.

59. Mussman v. Zeller, 108 Mo. App. 348, 83 S. W. 1021.

60. Mallery v. Facer, 181 N. Y. 567, 74 N. E. 487, rvg. 90 App. Div. 610, 85 N. Y. S. 1137. Where a part of the cash payment made by one of the purchasers has been applied to the papment of a prior lien and the balance is in the hands of the administratrix with the will annexed, subject to the order of the court, and she also holds the bond and mortgage given to secure the payment of the balance of the purchase price, the purchaser is entitled to credit for the full amount of such purchase price. Id. Where the executrix borrowed money giving a mortgage on one of the parcels subject to the lien of the legacies, and later conveyed such parcel subject to the mortgage, which the purchaser assumed and agreed to pay, a sum paid into court by the purchaser to apply on the mortgage belongs to the mortgagee as against him. Id.

61. Mallery v. Facer, 181 N. Y. 567, 74 N. E. 487, rvg. 90 App. Div. 610, 85 N. Y. S. 1137.

ESTATES TAIL, see latest topical index.

ESTOPPEL.

Scope of title.—Many common applications of the doctrine of estoppel are so closely related to other subject-matters that it is deemed best to treat them elsewhere; thus estoppel to claim that a corporation acted ultra vires or to aver want of authority in a corporate officer or agent,[56] to question the existence or scope of an agent's authority,[57] to deny partnership,[58] and the estoppel of a tenant to deny his landlord's title,[59] are elsewhere discussed.

§ 1. In general. Kinds of estoppel.[60]—Estoppels are usually classified as those arising from records, from deeds, and from matter in pais.[61] Where an estoppel is set up against an estoppel, the matter is set at large.[62] Estoppels are mutual and reciprocal and cannot be insisted on by one who is not himself bound thereby.[63]

§ 2. Estoppel by record.[64]—The doctrine of estoppel by record rests upon the rule that public official and judicial records import absolute verity. Estoppel by judgment is given separate treatment in Current Law,[65] and the doctrine of the conclusiveness of public records in general is based upon principles of evidence, and is not here discussed.[66] While one cannot be estopped to set up a decree in bar of a cause of action in a court of law,[67] a court of equity will in a proper case enjoin use of the decree for such purpose.[68]

§ 3. Estoppel by deed.[69]—Recitals in deeds and conveyances may operate as an estoppel against the parties to such deeds and in favor of those claiming in privity of title with them;[70] but such an estoppel cannot be invoked by a stranger

56. See Corporations, 5 C. L. 764.
57. See Agency, 5 C. L. 64.
58. See Partnership, 4 C. L. 908.
59. See Landlord and Tenant, 4 C. L. 389. A person entering upon land under title of another and with his permission is estopped to deny the title of the other, and a contract of leasing or renting is not essential to the creation of such an estoppel. Cobb v. Robertson [Tex.] 86 S. W. 746. While a tenant cannot dispute his landlord's title as of the date of his lease, he may show that it has been subsequently extinguished. Sherman v. Fisher [Mich.] 101 N. W. 572.
60. See 3 C. L. 1327.
61. See post, §§ 2, 3, 4.
62. Plaintiff sued for settlement of a partnership, and defendant pleaded settlement in bar of the suit; held, plaintiff was estopped to assert there had been a settlement, and defendant that there had not been one, and the two estoppels destroyed each other and set the matter at large. Chretien v. Giron [La.] 38 So. 881.
63. Chesapeake Lighterage & Towing Co. v. Western Assur. Co., 99 Md. 433, 58 A. 16.
64. See 3 C. L. 1327. Record of sale of land forfeited for non-payment of taxes under Code 1899, c. 105, estops the state from selling the land a second time for forfeiture under another title. State v. Jackson, 56 W. Va. 558, 49 S. E. 465.
65. See Former Adjudication, 3 C. L. 1476.
66. See Evidence, 5 C. L. 1301.
67. In an action at law on a claim against a decedent's estate, a decree under P. L. 1898, p. 740, § 70, barring all claims not duly verified and presented within the time specified by previous notice, is conclusive, and defendant cannot be estopped from setting up the decree or be held to have waived lack of verification of the claim. Seymour v. Goodwin [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 93.
68. Where the plea (see note above) sets up the decree barring creditors whose claims have not been duly presented, plaintiff may maintain a bill in equity to enjoin defendant from proving the decree in the suit at law, where it appears that lack of verification of the claim has been in fact waived by the defendant, and the claim recognized as just. Seymour v. Goodwin [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 93.
69. See 3 C. L. 1328.
70. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Abbott, 215 Ill. 416, 74 N. E. 412. A party who accepts a deed describing the property as a certain lot in a certain addition which is shown by a plat referred to not to be a part of a street, is estopped to assert that the land so conveyed is a part of a street agreed to be dedicated. Schneider v. Sulzer, 212 Ill. 87, 72 N. E. 19.

to the conveyance who is claiming by an independent and hostile title.[71] Thus, erroneous recitals in a patent from the government do not estop the grantee therein as against a stranger.[72] A recital of consideration does not estop the grantor from showing an abatement thereof,[73] nor the grantee from showing a consideration other than that recited,[74] unless the rights of third parties have intervened.[75] A trust deed by a husband and wife of land formerly conveyed to the husband by the wife by an unrecorded deed, such trust deed reciting that the trustees might reconvey to the wife on payment of the debt which the deed was given to secure, does not estop the husband to deny the ownership of the wife.[76]

One who conveys by warranty deed is estopped to assert title in himself thereafter;[77] hence a title subsequently acquired by such a warrantor inures to the benefit of his grantee[78] and those holding under such grantee.[79] But this rule does not operate when the subsequent title is acquired in a different representative capacity from that in which the prior title was held and conveyed,[80] nor when the instrument by which a transfer of title was attempted is wholly void.[81] The rule applies to married women where they are given full power over their separate property.[82] Beneficiary heirs, as well as heirs pure and simple, are bound by the warranty estoppel of those through whom they inherit by representation.[83] A grantor of property held as a homestead is estopped to claim title thereafter on the ground that his wife did not join in the deed,[84] unless the deed by the husband alone is wholly void.[85] The covenant of seizin in a purchase-money mortgage does not

71. In ejectment against a railroad, plaintiff was not estopped by reservation of certain land claimed by the road, in a mortgage given by plaintiff to a third person. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Abbott, 215 Ill. 416, 74 N. E. 412.

72. McCorkell v. Herron [Iowa] 103 N. W. 988.

73. That a deed of an equity of redemption recites that the consideration is paid and covenants against incumbrances does not estop the grantor to show that the consideration was abated on account of the mortgage, so that the grantee was bound to indemnify him against the same. Lowy v. Boenert, 110 Ill. App. 16.

74. Recital of love and affection as consideration for deed does not estop grantee from showing a money payment equal to the value of the land as against persons claiming by sheriff's deed under judgment against the grantor. Miles v. Waggoner, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 432. See, also, following article on Evidence, 5 C. L. 1301.

75. Where, in ejectment, defendant claims a homestead right, a conveyance by the defendant is shown, whereby the homestead right was lost, defendant cannot set up want of consideration rendering the conveyance void. Jasper County v. Sparham, 125 Iowa, 464, 101 N. W. 134.

76. Tyler v. Currier [Cal.] 81 P. 319.

77. A conveyance estops the grantor from later setting up title in himself, but if his wife did not join she would not be estopped to assert any contingent interest she had at the time. Cunningham v. Cunningham, 125 Iowa, 681, 101 N. W. 470.

78. Warrantor's title was defective; title subsequently acquired inured to grantee. Yock v. Mann [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1019. Where one sells property of which he is not owner, any title which he may subsequently acquire inures to his vendee. City of New Orleans v. Riddell, 113 La. 1051, 37 So. 966. This rule operates, though the vendee sign as a witness the subsequent act of purchase, since signing as a witness is not ground for an estoppel. City of New Orleans v. Riddell, 113 La. 1051, 37 So. 966.

Note: For full discussion of this doctrine, see Tiffany, Real Property, § 456.

79. Title acquired by mortgagors subsequent to giving of mortgage containing covenant of seizin inures to benefit of mortgagees and those holding under them. People's Sav. Bank v. Lewis, 37 Wash. 344, 79 P. 932.

80. Lauve v. Wilson [La.] 38 So. 522. Rule not applicable where state sold as trustee for schools, and acquired afterwards as trustee for the general public in the drainage and reclamation of swamp lands. Id.

81. An assignment of a certificate of entry by a married woman in 1858, being of no effect under the law then existing, and conferring no rights on the assignee, did not cause a subsequently acquired title to inure to such assignee. Bland v. Winsor, 187 Mo. 108, 86 S. W. 162.

82. A married woman given, by Comp. St. Neb. 1903, c. 53, § 2, the same power over her separate property as a married man has over his, is estopped by covenants in a mortgage, in which she and her husband join, of property in which she has a vested life estate, to assert that an after-acquired title to the fee did not inure to the benefit of the mortgagee. Cooper v. Burns, 133 F. 398.

83. Chevalley v. Pettit [La.] 39 So. 113.

84. Mann v. Wilson [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1061.

85. A conveyance of a homestead without the wife's joinder is wholly invalid, and the warranty does not estop the grantor after the death of the wife. Bollen v. Lilly [Miss.] 37 So. 811.

estop the mortgagor from suing for breach of the covenant of seizin in the deed of his grantor.[86]

As a general rule a grantee named in a deed is not estopped to deny his grantor's title.[87] The estoppel exists only where there is an obligation to restore the possession in some event or upon some contingency.[88] A second mortgagee who does not assume the first mortgage is not estopped to deny its validity, even though it is excepted from the covenants of the mortgage he holds.[89] Hence a holder of a second mortgage taken subject to rights under a first mortgage, which is in fact void, is not estopped to assert it against the first.[90] A recital in a warranty deed that the premises conveyed are free and clear of all incumbrances, excepting certain named liens, is only a limitation of the covenant against incumbrances, and is not such a recognition of the liens as will estop the grantee from contesting their enforcement against the property conveyed.[91] A recital in a mortgage that the grantor therein has good title from the mortgagees estops the mortgagees from asserting want of title in the grantor as against his subsequent grantee.[92]

Estoppel arises against a grantee seeking to escape a street assessment when it appears that the assumption of that particular assessment constituted a part of the purchase price,[93] provided the deed specifies the assessment with sufficient particularity.[94]

The doctrine of estoppel by deed is applicable only when there has been a delivery; but a party may be estopped by his conduct to deny that there has been a valid delivery,[95] and thus became bound by the deed.

86. Reinhalter v. Hutchins, 26 R. I. 586, 60 A. 234.

87, 88. Oregon Short Line R. Co. v. Quigley [Idaho] 80 P. 401.

89. Livingstone v. Murphy, 187 Mass. 315, 72 N. E. 1012.

90. First mortgage was no part of consideration for second. Nicholson v. Aney [Iowa] 103 N. W. 201.

91. Stough v. Badger Lumber Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 737.

92. School trustees who accept a mortgage on property, reciting that the grantor therein has good title "from said trustees" and that the property is free from incumbrances, is estopped to set up 40 years thereafter against a grantee under the mortgagor that the latter had no title. Trustees of Schools of De Witt County v. Wilson, 215 Ill. 352, 74 N. E. 375.

93. Waldschmidt v. Bowland, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 99. Estoppel arises against a grantee who purchased after the resolution declaring the necessity for the improvement and the ordinance ordering the improvement were passed, but before the passage of the ordinance assessing the property. Id.

94. Estoppel does not arise against a grantee resisting a street assessment where the provision in the deed as to payment of a street assessment does not specify any particular assessment on any particular street. Waldschmidt v. Bowland, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 99.

95. Debtor conveyed land to son-in-law in violation of injunction in creditors' suit, but procured a reconveyance from the grantee, the deed being placed in escrow. A creditor on faith of this reconveyance redeemed the land from a prior execution sale. Held, son-in-law estopped to claim that his deed was not delivered with intent to pass title, the delivery in escrow being in fact void. Clark v. Harper, 215 Ill. 24, 74 N. E. 61. Plaintiff made a deed of land to her husband, but did not deliver it, and during her absence and without her knowledge the husband secured it and transferred the land, which came to defendant, through various mesne conveyances, in trust for a railway company. Improvements were made by the company during six months, and though plaintiff knew of them, she did not assert her title for three years, when she brought suit to quiet title. She was held to be estopped to deny the defendant's title. Baillarge v. Clark, 145 Cal. 589, 76 P. 268.

Note: A writer in the Michigan Law Review, commenting on the decision last cited, says: "The foregoing facts would strongly appeal to a court of equity, yet it is doubtful if a case for the application of the doctrine of estoppel by deed could arise where no delivery of the deed had been made. Bigelow, Estoppel [5th Ed.] p. 349; Nourse v. Nourse, 116 Mass. 101. For a party cannot be relieved in equity, by reason of an estoppel, any more than at law, from the effects of a positive rule of law. Nat'l Granite Bank v. Tyndale, Adm'r, 176 Mass. 547. And for more extreme facts than those of the principal case upon which a recovery was allowed and the application of estoppel denied, see Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100; Id., 132 N. C. 959, although the court did not commit itself as to whether relief in equity would be granted."—3 Mich. L. R. 482.

This criticism is obviously based upon an erroneous analysis of the facts and the opinion. There was no attempt to apply the doctrine of estoppel by deed, but the estoppel arose from the conduct of the plaintiff, and it was the fact of delivery which she was estopped to deny.—[Editor].

§ 4. Estoppel in pais.[96]—Briefly stated, the doctrine of estoppel in pais is that one cannot deny the existence of a state of facts which by his representations, silence, or misleading conduct he has induced another to believe, and to rely and act upon to his prejudice.[97] Though estoppels were formerly characterized as odious, and were said not to be favored,[98] the doctrine is now rather freely applied, both in courts of law and equity,[99] and when properly limited, is a salutary one.[1] It should be applied, however, only in cases where every element of an estoppel is made to appear.[2]

Elements.[3]—It must appear that the misrepresentations, silence or conduct of the party claimed to be estopped,[4] related to existing,[5] material facts;[6] that he had full knowledge of the truth,[7] or that it was his duty to know the truth;[8] and that

96. See 3 C. L. 1329.

97. An estoppel is, in substance, an admission by a party regarding the subject-matter; having admitted the fact, he cannot thereafter deny it, but is bound by his admission. Reinhalter v. Hutchins, 26 R. I. 586, 60 A. 234. The doctrine of equitable estoppel is founded upon principles of equity and justice and is applied so as to conclude a party who by his acts and admissions intended to influence the conduct of another, when in good conscience and honest dealings, he ought not to be permitted to gainsay them. Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713. One insisting on an estoppel must show that the other party has done something or represented something which has had the effect to deceive and mislead him and which would render it inequitable for the right of the other party to be now enforced against him. Huot v. Reeder Bros. Shoe Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 98, 103 N. W. 569. Husband and wife conveyed wife's land as security for a loan, on the agreement to reconvey to the husband, neither understanding the contract. The land was so reconveyed. Held, wife was not estopped to assert the land was hers as against a creditor of the husband who became such after the conveyance to him. Id. Parties who have knowingly made false statements with the intention that another should rely thereon, such other having in fact relied thereon to his injury, cannot show the credulous confidence of such other as a defense. Miller v. John, 111 Ill. App. 56.

98. See Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713.

99. Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713. An estoppel by matter in pais may be set up as a defense to an action at law in the Federal courts. Courts of law have long recognized such estoppels and resort to equity is not necessary to assert them. Anglo-American Land, Mortg. & Ag. Co. v. Lombard [C. C. A.] 132 F. 721.

1, 2. Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713.

3. See 3 C. L. 1330, 1331, 1332.

4. Alleged representations held to have been made by a stranger and not to be binding on plaintiff. Campbell v. Flannery [Mont.] 79 P. 702. Declarations of the wife made in the absence and without the knowledge of the husband cannot raise an estoppel when his title to community property is involved. Bashore v. Parker, 146 Cal. 525, 80 P. 707. An attorney accepted a sum of money as proceeds of a sale of land in an orphans' court, but did so without knowledge of the facts and without the knowledge or authority of his clients, who did not receive the money. Held, his clients were not estopped to claim the land. Harrington v. Stivanson, 210 Pa. 10, 59 A. 268.

5. An estoppel cannot be based on a promise as to future action. A parol promise to lease realty, in reliance on which goods on premises were purchased, does not work an estoppel to deny validity of the promise under the statute of frauds. Dechenbach v. Rima, 45 Or. 500, 78 P. 666.

6. Davis v. Neighbors, 34 Ind. App. 441, 73 N. E. 151; Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554. Persons who testified under oath that they had no interest in a note would be estopped to assert any interest therein thereafter. Barber v. Stroub [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 915.

7. Davis v. Neighbors, 34 App. 441, 73 N. E. 151; Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554. A receipt to an administrator given as result of mistake held no basis for an estoppel. Hill v. Terrell [Ga.] 51 S. E. 81. Where a husband puts property purchased with his wife's money in his own name instead of hers, and she is ignorant of such fact, she is not estopped to assert title as against his creditors. Mayer v. Kane [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 374. One who was induced by fraud to convey land in exchange for other land of less value held not estopped to set up the fraud by her statement made to a purchaser, who had knowledge of the fraud but had not yet paid for the land, that she was satisfied, it appearing that she was not fully informed of the facts and was relying on the advice of those who were defrauding her. Jordan v. Cathcart, 126 Iowa, 600, 102 N. W. 510. One who signs an instrument expressing satisfaction with an exchange of land, with knowledge of a deficiency in the quantity of land but without knowledge of the falsity of other material representations regarding the land, is not estopped to rescind the contract thereafter. Willey v. Clements, 146 Cal. 91, 79 P. 850. One who bought a horse sent his son to take possession. The seller told the son that title would be reserved in him until payment was made. Held, unless actual knowledge of this statement by the father was shown, he would not be estopped to deny it by acquiescence therein. Schenck v. Griffith [Ark.] 86 S. W. 850. Heirs held not to have had adequate knowledge of source of money

he intended that the other party should act upon facts so misrepresented,[9] though such intent may be implied, so that an actual intent to mislead and deceive is not essential.[10] It must further appear that the party relying on the estoppel was ignorant of the truth,[11] and that such ignorance did not arise out of his own received by them to be estopped to deny validity of administrator's deed; nor was giving power of attorney to procure sale sufficient. Demars v. Hickey [Wyo.] 80 P. 521. Plaintiff accepted dividends on a claim against an insolvent, not knowing that its property had been used to realize assets, or that one claiming to be its agent had assumed to waive its rights or consent to a sale. Held, it was not estopped to claim the property. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Grimmon [Nev.] 81 P. 43. A person represented to plaintiff that he owned the exclusive right to sell a certain newspaper in certain territory and induced plaintiff to buy the right. The newspaper company accepted plaintiff as its agent and sold him papers. Held, since the company had no notice of the contract or of the representations made to plaintiff, it was not estopped to deny that the third person had any rights. Fox v. Commercial Press Co. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1063. Husband of intestate held not to have had such knowledge of transfer of stock by administrator as to be estopped to object to the administrator's account with reference to such transfer. In re Bayley [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 215. Silence concerning title will not work an estoppel where the other party is himself aware of the title; nor where the owner is ignorant of his title; nor where with knowledge of his title he is ignorant of valuable improvements being made by others in ignorance of his title. Wickham v. Twaddell, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 188. Judgment creditor bought land at execution sale, and thereafter land was sold under execution against him, and he then caused a third sale under his judgment. Held, purchaser at second sale not having been a party to the motion or order for the third levy, was not estopped to assert title against the purchaser at the third sale. Ables v. Webb, 186 Mo. 233, 85 S. W. 383.

8. Want of knowledge in making the representation or inducing conduct is no excuse if it resulted from negligence or otherwise involves culpability. Failure of casualty company to learn true facts of case from its own attorneys before advising abandonment of an appeal, held not to excuse it from liability for judgment which it promised to pay. Globe Nav. Co. v. Maryland Casualty Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 826.

9. Davis v. Neighbors, 34 Ind. App. 441, 73 N. E. 151; Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554.

10. It is not necessary that the conduct relied on as creating an estoppel should be characterized by an actual intention to mislead or deceive. Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713. If the conduct is such as to reasonably lead one to rely upon it. Globe Nav. Co. v. Maryland Casualty Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 826. One who concealed leasehold interest estopped to set it up in opposing application for writ of assistance, though he had no evil intent. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 66. A person intending to convey land to his daughters, made measurements and indicated what he believed to be a boundary line, and designated the site of a house to be built thereon, and put up a fence. Held, he was estopped to assert that the line so indicated was the true line, even though he was innocent in making his representations, the other parties having relied and acted on them. Clark v. Hindman [Or.] 79 P. 56.

11. Davis v. Neighbors, 34 Ind. App. 441, 73 N. E. 151; Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554. A party setting up an estoppel must have been ignorant of the true facts. Carter-Battle Grocer Co. v. Rushing [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 449. Plea insufficient to show estoppel where ignorance of the truth was not alleged. Bartholomee v. Lowell [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1030. Where there is neither concealment nor misrepresentation, but both parties have equal knowledge or means of knowledge, there can be no estoppel. Silver Burdett & Co. v. Indiana State Board of Education [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 829. One who discovered the truth regarding ownership of a mortgage, and was not misled or prejudiced by representations or concealment of the true ownership could not rely on an estoppel. Parsons v. McCumber [N. D.] 103 N. W. 626. A married woman gave note and mortgage to secure husband's debt, but stated in mortgage and in an affidavit that debt secured was her own. Under the statute such a contract—to secure another's debt—was void. The mortgagee knew all the facts. Held, woman not estopped to set up the true facts showing the invalidity of the contract. Ft. Wayne Trust Co. v. Sihler [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 494. Plaintiff not estopped to rely on representation that property could be turned over to his possession within 30 days by accepting a deed which was expressly subject to a lease of the property, when he did not examine the deed at the time, and brought his action to rescind as soon as he discovered the fact. Thompson v. Hardy [S. D.] 102 N. W. 299. Where one of two contestants for office of clerk of school board executed a bond to the board to hold it harmless against loss by reason of paying him the salary, the board was not estopped to sue on such bond by allowing him to perform the services of the office, since he was not mislead, but knew all the facts. McLaughlin v. Board of Education of City of Covington, 26 Ky. L. R. 1126, 83 S. W. 568. A married woman is not estopped to claim the benefit of Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 6964, making her contracts of suretyship void, by her affidavit that the loan was a joint one, the other party being fully informed as to the fact that she was a surety only, especially where the wife did not know the contents of the affidavit. Davis v. Neighbors, 34 Ind. App. 441, 73 N. E. 151. Where an attorney undertook to recover an estate for certain heirs, on shares, and at the time did not disclose the nature and extent of the estate, but the heirs were later fully informed in regard thereto and allowed the attorney to proceed, he expending money negligence,[12] as from failure to consult an available public record;[13] but if failure to consult a record is induced by active conduct of the other party, it is excusable.[14] Again, it must appear that the party setting up an estoppel actually[15] and reasonand time, they were estopped to assert that he did not disclose the facts, in a suit by him to enforce a lien for compensation. Adams v. Schmidtt [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 345.

12. It should appear that such person had no knowledge, and did not have equal means of knowledge with the other party. Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713. It is essential that the person claiming to have been influenced by the conduct or declarations of another was not only destitute of knowledge of the facts, but was also destitute of any convenient and available means of acquiring such knowledge. Gallagher v. Northrup, 215 Ill. 563, 74 N. E. 711. Lender held to have been put on notice of invalidity of contract for homestead lien; hence borrower on faith of contract not estopped to set up its invalidity. Cooper v. Brazelton [C. C. A.] 135 F. 476. The fact that a cotenant in possession of property, who paid off a mortgage debt thereon, failed to attend a sale on execution of the other tenant's interest and notify the purchaser of his equity, does not estop him from enforcing his right to contribution from the purchaser who became his cotenant, his possession and the record being sufficient notice of his rights. Rippe v. Badger, 125 Iowa, 725, 101 N. W. 642. Husband and wife conveyed city property to son, he agreeing to reconvey to the wife. While title stood in the son he became surety on a replevin bond, and later a judgment was acquired against him on the bond. While the son had the paper title, tenants of the property paid rents to his mother. Held, mother not estopped to assert that property belonged to her at the time her son became surety, since inquiry of the tenants would have disclosed her equitable ownership. Gallagher v. Northrup, 215 Ill. 563, 74 N. E. 711.

13. Under modern registration laws a public record is an available, convenient and ready means of information as to all such questions touching title to realty as are required to be made matter of record. Eastwood v. Standard Mines & Milling Co. [Idaho] 81 P. 382. Hence one who has recorded his title is not bound to give any other notice to anyone who assumes to deal with other parties in reference to such property; he may remain silent and passive. Id. A person will not be estopped merely by his silence and failure to disclose facts that may be ascertained by an examination of public records, when the situation is not such as to place upon him the duty of making known the truth. Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713. Where assignee of mortgage gave notice of his rights by recording his assignment, and thereafter a purchaser paid the debt to the assignor, the mere fact that the assignee waited two years did not estop him from enforcing the mortgage, where neither his silence nor any act or statement could have misled the mortgagor. Cornish v. Woolverton [Mont.] 81 P. 4.

14. The record of a deed will not preclude a reliance upon misconduct of the owner representing title in another. Brice v. Sheffield, 121 Ga. 216, 48 S. E. 925. If one becomes active his actions, declarations and conduct with reference to the title must not be such as to deceive or mislead a reasonable person, or deter, prevent, or dissuade him from examining the record and learning the true condition of the title. Eastwood v. Standard Mines & Milling Co. [Idaho] 81 P. 382. If the situation is such that it is one's duty to speak, as where inquiries are made of him, or where, instead of merely remaining silent, he does some affirmative act which would naturally have the effect of misleading or deceiving one, then the mere fact that the truth can be ascertained by an examination of the records does not prevent the operation of the estoppel against him. Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713. One who gave a corporation an option on mining property and caused a notice to be posted thereon to the effect that the corporation was the owner, knowing that the employes would rely thereon, could not thereafter assert title against the employes when they were seeking to enforce liens against the property for their labor, even though his title was a matter of record. Eastwood v. Standard Mines & Milling Co. [Idaho] 81 P. 382.

15. There can be no estoppel unless the party alleging it relied on the representations and was induced thereby to act to his injury. Bashore v. Parker, 146 Cal. 525, 80 P. 707. The conduct, silence, or declarations relied on must have been in the presence of or made to a person known to have an interest in the subject-matter. Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713. There need not be an affirmative declaration by one party that he relied on the acts of the other, but such reliance may be inferred from the facts and circumstances. Defendants held to have relied on acts and declarations of plaintiffs relative to insurance on building and to have refrained from procuring additional insurance for that reason. Fransen v. Regents of Education of South Dakota [C. C. A.] 133 F. 24. Defendant claimed rights in a mine by virtue of a contract with plaintiff, and had brought suit against a third person, to enjoin him from working the mine, in plaintiff's name, this being authorized by their agreement. Held, defendant was not estopped by such suit from asserting rights against plaintiff, since the latter was not misled by the suit in his name. Finlen v. Heinze [Mont.] 80 P. 918. Representations in a letter held not to create an estoppel when the one receiving it afterwards saw the writer and contrary representations were then made. Mace v. Duffy [Wash.] 81 P. 1053. Failure of creditor to enforce claim when prices of realty were high held not to estop him to enforce it after prices had fallen, since the debtor could have paid and so protected himself. Davis' Adm'x v. Davis [Va.] 51 S. E. 216. No estoppel in suit to enforce a mechanics' lien where one who purchased during the progress of the work did not act on state-ably [16] relied upon the conduct, silence or representations of the other party, and was thereby misled [17] and induced [18] to so change his position [19] that he will suffer injury,[20] if a denial of the facts as represented to him be permitted.

ments or representations of the petitioner, none such being made. Billings Co. v. Brand [Mass.] 73 N. E. 637. A contractor assigned his contract, and told an employe who inquired as to his pay, to quit if dissatisfied. The assignee's agent told him the assignee would guaranty payment if he would continue to work. The employe, however, quit. Held, the assignee was not estopped to deny liability for compensation. Central Asphalt & Refining Co. v. Manning [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 1055. A will devised a life estate to testator's daughter, the remainder share and share alike to her heirs. Before her death she and her children made a settlement dividing the land, and thereafter one of such children died. His children continued to use the land alloted to him as his heirs. Held, they were not estopped by such use to claim under the will, since the other parties interested could not have changed their position in reliance upon such conduct. Parrott v. Barrett, 70 S. C. 195, 49 S. E. 563. Agent of firm pointed out 70 acres belonging to plaintiff, a member of the firm, as a part of land a purchaser was buying. It did not appear that the land was represented as better in any way than that actually bought, and it appeared that the sale would have been made, though the misrepresentation had not been made. Hence the purchaser was not relying on the representation, was not prejudiced, and plaintiff was not estopped to claim title to the 70 acre tract. Lewis v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 794.

16. The conduct, silence or declarations must have been of a character such as would naturally have the effect of influencing the conduct of the other party. Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713. Silence of an assignee of a note when the payee assumes to act as owner by extending the time, while it may estop the assignee from asserting ownership at that time, does not estop him from asserting ownership subsequently, since the maker had no right to assume that the ownership of a negotiable note would remain unchanged. Loizeaux v. Fremder, 123 Wis. 1193, 101 N. W. 423. Where a contract of employment was for a specified term, with a provision for a further employment if services were satisfactory, mere failure of the employer to answer letters from the employe did not estop him from contending that the services were unsatisfactory, since he was under no duty to answer such letters, and the employe had no right to infer from the failure to answer them that his services were satisfactory. Carter & Co. v. Weber [Mich.] 101 N. W. 818. One cannot be held to have reasonably relied upon the assurance by another of authority to bind a minor in a sale of realty, nor upon a mere verbal assurance of authority as to one not a minor, where there was opportunity to know the truth, and no reasonable ground for not dealing with the owner of the realty in person. McDougald v. New Richmond Roller Mills Co. [Wis.] 103 N. W. 244. A husband is not estopped to claim property as community property by allowing the wife to use it in business, since a married woman is presumed to use the funds of the community when she engages in business. Bashore v. Parker, 146 Cal. 525, 80 P. 707. One seeking to extend an estate cannot base his claim on an estoppel by virtue of an oral agreement by a married woman, since he could not be misled by an agreement she had no power to make. Gilbert v. White, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 187.

17. If no one is misled, the doctrine of estoppel does not apply. Harrington v. Stivanson, 210 Pa. 10, 59 A. 268. Delay of stockholders in bringing suit for dividends held not to amount to an estoppel, no showing being made that anyone was misled or injured by the delay. Redhead v. Iowa Nat. Bank [Iowa] 103 N. W. 796. Rev. St. 1898, § 4222, subd. 5, requires service of a notice of a claim for injuries in the manner required for service of summons. A claimant notified a railroad claim agent and the latter corresponded with him about the case, but did not indicate that no other notice would be required, and it did not appear that the claimant was in any way misled. Held, railroad not estopped to claim that no proper notice was served. Smith v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 336.

18. The substance of estoppel is the inducement to another to act to his prejudice. Distinction made between estoppel and ratification, the latter being defined as confirmation after conduct. Steffens v. Nelson [Minn.] 102 N. W. 871. Representations must have been believed and relied on, and must have induced action. Lewis v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 704. One could not be estopped to claim damages for maintenance of a pool which was a nuisance unless the one maintaining it was induced to do so by such conduct. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Dennis [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 860. Representations made or acts done subsequent to a change of position by the other party which they do not invite or influence, will not operate as an estoppel. Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713. Architect, superintendent, local secretary and president of Regents of Education held to represent that body so that acts and representations inducing those individuals to leave procuring of insurance to contractors instead of procuring it themselves could be relied on as an estoppel by the regents when sued for loss by reason of failure to have building insured. Fransen v. Regents of Education of South Dakota [C. C. A.] 133 F. 24.

19. Must have acted. Davis v. Neighbors, 34 Ind. App. 441, 73 N. E. 151; Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554. Party relying on estoppel must have changed position or conduct. Potter v. Fitchburg Steam Engine Co., 110 Ill. App. 430. Party relying on estoppel must have changed his position for the worse. Lewis v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 704. One claiming an estoppel must show that he changed his position, reasonably relying on the conduct of the other, and that if the other be allowed to change

Illustrative applications of doctrine.[21]—Among the rules which have resulted from the application of the doctrine of estoppel in pais are: One who has been silent concerning facts which it was his duty to disclose[22] will not thereafter be his attitude, the person relying on his conduct will be prejudiced. McDougald v. New Richmond Roller Mills Co. [Wis.] 103 N. W. 244. A landowner who has built and improved ditches on his land through which water from another's land was drained, is not estopped to fill up a ditch on his land, when the other has taken no action in reliance on his former improvements. Schofield v. Cooper, 126 Iowa, 334, 102 N. W. 110. The fact that a citizen may have led city authorities to believe that he would not attack the validity of an ordinance providing for vacation of a street does not work an estoppel so as to preclude an attack by him on the ordinance before anything has been done under it. Coker v. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 481. Promise by defendant to pay judgment against him to an assignee of the judgment did not estop him to set up payment to the plaintiff without notice of the assignment, when the assignee had not changed his position in reliance on such promise. Work v. Prall, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 104. A person is not estopped to claim property by having previously sworn that it belonged to another, unless the party against whom he claims has changed his position in reliance on the former sworn declaration. Greenberg v. Stevens, 114 Ill. App. 483. Where no interested party had changed his position or in any way relied on an alleged promise of a grantee in a deed to assume a mortgage, such grantee was not estopped to contend that he was not bound by the assumption clause because he had never seen the deed and it had not been delivered to him. Merriman v. Schmitt, 211 Ill. 263, 71 N. E. 986.

20. Davis v. Neighbors, Ind. App. 441, 73 N. E. 151; Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554; Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713; Houghen v. Skjerheim [N. D.] 102 N. W. 311. By Code Civ. Proc. § 1848, the rights of a party cannot be prejudiced by the declaration, act or omission of another, except by virtue of some particular relation existing between them. Bashore v. Parker, 146 Cal. 525, 80 P. 707. That conduct relied on induced plaintiff to abandon an appeal was a sufficient showing of prejudice. Globe Nav. Co. v. Maryland Casualty Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 826. A statement in a petition for alimony that the husband owned certain property, held not to estop wife from later claiming the property, alimony not having been granted. Place v. Place [Mich.] 102 N. W. 996. A gas company is not estopped to deny the validity of a franchise provision for payments to a municipality for the privilege of using its streets, to which it has submitted for a period of years, when the city had no power to grant such use of the streets and hence has not parted with anything of value. City of Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 293. Receipt of money by a bank from an attorney who had collected it on a note did not mislead or prejudice the sureties on the note, but was an advantage to the extent of the amount collected. Hence the bank was not estopped to deny the attorney's authority to collect for it. Bank of Batesville v. Maxey [Ark.] 88 S. W. 968. Bank president allowed his son to overdraw, and bank agreed to look to trust deed of the son to satisfy its claims against him. Held, the bank was not estopped to recover from the president its loss sustained by his breach of trust. Western Bank v. Coldewey's Ex'x, 26 Ky. L. R. 1247, 83 S. W. 629. A vendee of land under a parol contract to sell, the rendition of services being the consideration, took possession in good faith and held it until after the vendor's death and until the claim for services was barred by limitations. Held, such facts did not constitute an estoppel precluding assertion of title by the vendor's estate. Terry v. Craft [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 844.

21. See 3 C. L. 1330, 1331, 1332.

22. There can be no estoppel by silence unless there was a duty to speak. The rule that where a man has been silent when in conscience he ought to have spoken, he shall be debarred from speaking when conscience requires him to be silent does not apply to a judicial sale so that a judgment creditor will be estopped to assert facts regarding the true ownership of the land sold if he fails to state them at the time of the sale. Brady v. Carteret Realty Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 938. But an adjudicatee at a tax sale who not only stands by without objection but by his acts and assertions shows he does not claim the property is estopped to thereafter assert a claim against the purchaser. In re Lafferranderie [La.] 37 So. 990. Failure to file a claim to property which has been levied on will not estop the true owner from asserting title against a purchaser at the sale, where the owner has done nothing tending to mislead the purchaser as to his relation to the property. Lawless v. Orr [Ga.] 50 S. E. 85. The true owner, though cognizant that a stranger to the title is having improvements made on the premises, is under no legal duty to give a materialman notice of his ownership; and when nothing has been done to mislead the materialman, the true owner is not estopped by silence to assert his ownership. Reaves v. Meredeth [Ga.] 51 S. E. 391. Failure of wife to deny statements made by husband in her presence adverse to her property rights will not estop her from thereafter asserting title to the property concerned. Thomas v. Butler, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 305. Mere failure to reply to a written notice that one appointed as a valuer to fix the price of goods had refused to act, and that if the person notified did not appoint another the valuer willing to act would do so, does not amount to a consent to such an appointment by way of estoppel (Elberton Hardware Co. v. Hawes [Ga.] 50 S. E. 964), nor does the fact that a party to the contract of sale induced a valuer to refuse to act estop him to assert that he is not bound by an appraisal not made by valuers appointed according to the terms of the agreement (Id).

permitted to assert such facts to another's prejudice.[23] One who has recognized legal title in another [24] by inducing a third person to purchase from him,[25] or by

23. When a party has by his silence when, if ever, it was his duty to speak, naturally induced conduct on the part of his adversary, he will not be permitted to take advantage of any act or omission so induced, to the latter's disadvantage. Fair Haven & W. R. Co. v. New Haven, 77 Conn. 667, 60 A. 651. One who fails to respond when asked if a signature to a note purporting to be his was genuine is estopped thereafter to deny that it is genuine. Harmon v. Leberman [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 203. A retiring partner who fails to give notice of the dissolution of the firm is estopped to deny liability for a debt contracted by the continuing partner in the name of the firm after such dissolution. Easton v. Wostenholm [C. C. A.] 137 F. 524. A party who permitted another to believe that a paper on which he relied had not been altered was estopped to deny the falsity of a representation that it had not been changed. Webster Realty Co. v. Thomas, 46 Misc. 139, 93 N. Y. S. 1077. In a suit against a city for damages for trespass to land, plaintiff's son testified for plaintiff but did not assert any claim of title to any part of the land or for damages. Held, he would be estopped thereafter to set up such claim. City of Clinton v. Franklin, 26 Ky. L. R. 1053, 83 S. W. 142. Gas company notified a rival company before laying its mains and requested information as to position of its mains which was refused. Rival company had a representative on the ground who did not object to work being done. Held, rival company was estopped, in injunction suit, to object that mains being laid were not at the distance from its mains required by P. L. 1876, § 21. Atlantic City Gas & Water Co. v. Consumers' Gas & Fuel Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 750. Defendant, though informed that plaintiff was to finance certain work to be done for defendant by another who was to assign claims therefor to plaintiff, did not reveal an indebtedness due him from the one who was to perform the work. Held, in an action by plaintiff as assignee, defendant was estopped to set off such indebtedness. House v. Brilliant, 92 N. Y. S. 325. Bank received warehouse receipts for cotton as collateral for a loan and wrote to warehouse company to that effect. Company did not reply, though it had no cotton corresponding to receipts, which were in fact forged. Held, company liable for loss to bank on failure of the borrower, on theory of estoppel. Commercial Nat. Bank v. Nacogdoches Compress & Warehouse Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 501. Mortgagor is estopped, as against purchaser, to deny validity of sale, when he fails to give notice at the sale of his appeal from the order denying his application to correct the amount found due by the decree, and fails to except to the confirmation of the sale. State Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. O'Callaghan [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 496. Specific performance of agreement to devise land, conveyed by complainant, denied, when complainant concealed and failed to assert her rights for ten years, her grantee and his widow having died, and the property having been devised to the widow's residuary legatees. Lozier v. Hill [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 234.

24. One who has recognized land as a public street by bringing suit to enjoin work thereon, within the period of limitations, cannot thereafter claim the property by adverse possession. Heard v. Connor [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 605. Heirs of a vendor of property having recognized the title of a subsequent holder in a judicial proceeding, and having given him quitclaim deeds were estopped to assert title to it thereafter. Hubbard v. Kansas City Stained Glass Works & Sign Co. [Mo.] 86 S. W. 82. Husband took title to property in his own name, giving his note. Wife had full knowledge of the deed, and of two mortgages given on the land. Held, she was estopped after sixteen years and after second mortgage was foreclosed to claim that land was bought with her money and title taken in husband's name by mistake. Duncansville Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Ginter, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 42. A mother was in possession of land as co-tenant with her minor son, and purchased the land under a mortgage, later taking a sheriff's deed. Son, who knew the facts, failed to assert any claim as co-tenant for several years after coming of age. Held, he could not assert a claim against a remote grantee of his mother. Ryason v. Dunten [Ind.] 73 N. E. 74. One claiming a mortgage lien conveyed to a corporation of which he was president, with covenant against incumbrances. Thereafter the corporation, with the claimant's knowledge, gave a trust deed under which the property was sold, and the purchasers exercised ownership over it with claimant's knowledge. Held, he was estopped to assert his claim. Battery Park Bank v. Western Carolina Bank [N. C.] 50 S. E. 848. One who promises to convey land to his wife, and who uses money loaned the wife to pay off an incumbrance on his land, is estopped as against those relying on his promise and on his representations that title was in his wife, to assert title in himself. Clark v. Havard [Ga.] 50 S. E. 108. One who by his acts had recognized complainant's title to a half interest in certain land for many years, held estopped to claim legal title thereto against them under a deed of which they were ignorant. Dickson v. Sledge [Miss.] 38 So. 673. The grantee of such person who obtained a deed with knowledge of the facts, and also procured a deed of another portion, by what amounted to fraud, held estopped also to claim title. Id. If a wife vests her property in her husband and permits him to appear to the world to be the owner thereof, and he contracts debts in the course of his business while he is apparently such owner, she is estopped to deny, as against his creditors, that he was the owner. Mertens v. Schlemme [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 808.

25. One who induces another to buy land which he himself claims, from a third person, and permits the purchaser to go on the land and improve it for three years, is estopped to assert his claim. Spears v. Conley [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1072. One who induced an-standing by without objection while such other makes valuable improvements upon land,[26] cannot thereafter assert title in himself. Conversely, one who represents himself as owner cannot thereafter deny ownership in order to escape a liability accruing from such ownership.[27] One who has by his conduct treated a contract or transaction as valid [28] cannot thereafter assert its invalidity [29] and deny liability thereunder.[30] other to purchase land from a third person is estopped thereafter to set up title in himself as against such purchaser, even though his title was of record at the time. Brice v. Sheffield, 121 Ga. 216, 48 S. E. 925. Owners of land who induce persons to purchase the same land from others are estopped to assert any rights in themselves when the purchasers relied on their conduct and were ignorant of the former conveyance. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Roberts, 103 Va. 661, 49 S. E. 984.

26. A landowner who stood by and permitted a steam railway to be constructed over the land is estopped to maintain ejectment for the entry and is restricted to damages for injuries suffered. Warren & O. V. R. Co. v. Garrison [Ark.] 85 S. W. 81. Where a boundary line was agreed upon by adjoining owners, and one saw the other erect a building and make other improvements, and his successors acquiesced in the line for thirteen years, the one agreeing thereto and his successors were estopped to question the correctness of the line. Deidrich v. Simmons [Ark.] 87 S. W. 649. A vendor of land knew that the land described in the bond for title was not that which the vendee intended to buy, but allowed him to take possession and make improvements. Held, his heirs were estopped to deny knowledge of the facts to the prejudice of the vendee. Black v. Baskins [Ark.] 87 S. W. 647. Plaintiff made deed to husband but did not deliver it. He obtained it, and transferred to others. A subsequent grantee took title in trust for a railway company, which took possession of the land and made improvements. Plaintiff learned facts ten days after such possession was taken, and knew of improvements. Held, she was estopped to deny defendant's title three years thereafter. Baillarge v. Clark, 145 Cal. 589, 79 P. 268. Husband and wife made an oral contract for sale of their homestead, and the purchaser took possession, paid the price and made valuable improvements, all of which was known and consented to by the wife. Held, she was estopped to set up want of consent by her to a transfer of the homestead. Grice v. Woodwarth [Idaho] 80 P. 912. Statutes protecting married women's rights in homestead and prescribing manner of transferring homestead do not prevent operation of such acts as estoppel. Id. A landowner agreed in writing to allow use of right of way over his land in consideration of benefit to him, and allowed railway company to construct road and operate it seven years. Held, he was estopped to question the right to such use or disturb possession of the company. Robertson Mortg. Co. v. Seattle, etc., R. Co., 37 Wash. 137, 79 P. 610. A landowner who stands by and without protest sees a railroad constructed on his land is estopped thereafter to maintain an action of ejectment, or a suit for an injunction to prevent operation of the road. His remedy is an action for damages for his compensation. Kakeldy v. Columbia, etc., R. Co., 37 Wash. 675, 80 P. 205. One who has allowed a railway company to make a survey and construct its road and make other improvements on his land, should not be permitted to maintain ejectment or obtain an injunction so as to prevent operation of the road, to the prejudice of the public; but there is no objection to an action of ejectment, where execution on the judgment is stayed, pending ascertainment of the compensation to which the owner is entitled, and the effect of the judgment is merely to compel payment thereof. Slaght v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 1062.

One who makes valuable improvements upon or by the use of another's property, in the face of opposition by the other, or with knowledge that he does not consent thereto, cannot invoke the doctrine of estoppel to protect him, upon the sole ground that the other did not prevent him from making the outlay. Southside Improvement Co. v. Burson [Cal.] 81 P. 1107. City held not to have recognized rights of property owners who had encroached on the street so as to be estopped to insist that sidewalks be removed to street line. Vorhes v. Ackley [Iowa] 103 N. W. 998.

27. Condemnation proceedings treated land as that of plaintiff and he accepted the award and gave a quitclaim deed. Held, he was estopped to deny that he had title at the time. Choate v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 218. One who represents himself as owner of property and employs a broker to sell it cannot assert that he is not the owner when sued by the broker for his commission. Lopard v. Fritz, 45 Misc. 620, 91 N. Y. S. 5.

28. Assignor of judgment by allowing assignee to levy execution and receive the proceeds is estopped to question assignment. W. T. Rickards & Co. v. J. H. Bemis & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 239. Where the former owners of land, sold to the state for taxes, petitioned for a sale, they thereby induced the purchaser at the sale to believe that they had waived irregularities in the original sale and could not thereafter assert that such waiver was due to a mistake. Jackson v. Rowe, 94 N. Y. S. 568.

Acceptance of benefits: Beneficiaries who accept benefits of trustee's sale are estopped to set up want of power in the trustee and to recover the property, the proceeds received not being returned by them. Dickson v. New York Biscuit Co., 211 Ill. 468, 71 N. E. 1058. Heirs who knowingly accept the proceeds of an unauthorized sale of land, full value being received, and no claim being made that they did not understand their rights, cannot thereafter go behind the sale and assert an interest in the land itself. Knutson v. Vidders, 126 Iowa, 511, 102 N. W. 433. A person who causes his land to be sold for some purpose of his own under a judicial proceeding which turns out to be void, and receives and retains the proceeds of sale, cannot be heard to question its validity. He has made his election. Rhea v. Shields, 103 Va. 305, 49 S. E. 70. Corporation having appropriated and received benefit of consideration for notes given by it cannot deny authority to give notes. Peoria Star Co. v. Cutright, 115 Ill. App. 492. Plaintiff who obtained lumber on replevin writ estopped to say that writ was wrongly issued or executed, or to contradict the return of the marshal. Three States Lumber Co. v. Blanks [C. C. A.] 133 F. 479. Where one drainage district connects with another, it will be estopped to deny that some benefit accrued to its lands. Drainage Com'rs Dist. No. 2 v. Drainage Com'rs Dist. No. 3, 113 Ill. App. 114. A father conveyed land to his son in consideration of support, and the son conveyed to his sister, with the father's consent, the sister undertaking to support and maintain the father. Held, the latter was estopped to assert that the son had defaulted, when the daughter supported him as she agreed. Brumback v. Chowning, 26 Ky. L. R. 917, 82 S. W. 974. Where a person in possession of land held himself out as owner and contracted with defendant for the removal of materials for the construction of a roadbed, and accepted a sum of money as full or partial payment, he could not thereafter, as assignee of the real owner, whose ownership had been concealed, sue for the conversion of the materials so used. Rogers v. Portland & B. St. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 713. Where a wife conveys her separate property without joining her husband as required by Rev. St. 1887, § 2498, and the purchaser receives, uses and consumes the property, he cannot set up non-compliance with the statute to defeat recovery of the price. Karlson v. Hanson & K. Saw Mill Co. [Idaho] 78 P. 1080.

29. One who has recognized the existence and validity of a contract, another having relied and acted upon such recognition, cannot thereafter deny its existence. Eau Claire Canning Co. v. Western Brokerage Co., 115 Ill. App. 71. Obligors in a bond having secured an advantage by having it treated as valid ought not to be relieved from liability by having it treated as invalid. Wall v. Mount, 121 Ga. 831, 49 S. E. 778. A bank which had a junior mortgage consented to the senior mortgagee's disposal of the property and application of the proceeds on the claim. Held, the bank could not attack the transaction. Atkins v. Boyle [Colo.] 80 P. 1067. Borrowers who by representations as to a building contract induced the lender to rely on it as valid, could not thereafter set up its usurious character; nor could they deny that a certain amount was due thereon, having previously represented such amount to be due. Cooper v. Brazelton [C. C. A.] 135 F. 476. Stockholders of a lessor corporation were allowed to buy stock in a third corporation, the value of which depended on the validity of the lease. Held, one who took stock in such third corporation, and sold it, could not thereafter assert the invalidity of the lease. Wormser v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 98 App. Div. 29, 90 N. Y. S. 714. If a carrier by an unlawful discrimination carries goods at a rate lower than that which should have been charged, it cannot, after arrival of the goods refuse to deliver them until an additional charge is paid, and thus profit by its own wrong. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Seitz, 214 Ill. 350, 73 N. E. 585. A seller of goods obtained by fraud attached the property in an action for the fraud; thereafter a third person who had a prior claim against the buyer, also attached the property, relying on the seller's action; the seller was estopped to rescind the sale for fraud, thereby making the third person liable as a tort feasor. Gunnison v. Abbott [N. H.] 61 A. 589. A son conveyed land to his father and after the father's death sued to recover as heir. Held, by so affirming his deed, he was estopped to set up undue influence and want of consideration in a subsequent suit for cancellation of his deed, especially where he waited ten years after he had full knowledge of the father's claim and two years after his death. Ferns v. Chapman, 211 Ill. 597, 71 N. E. 1106. Where a lessee assigned his lease with the landlord's consent, he could not, in an action to recover rent, retain the proceeds of the assignment while the assignee retained possession, and at the same time plead fraud inducing the execution of the lease, to defeat a recovery of rent. Gilsey v. Keen, 93 N. Y. S. 783. A void judgment may support an equitable estoppel. Void foreclosure estops mortgagee as against purchaser. Ray v. Pitman, 119 Ga. 678, 46 S. E. 849.

30. If all the members of a firm, with knowledge of the facts, consent to a purchase of merchandise as one by the firm, though it is in fact for the personal use of one member, the firm will be estopped to deny liability. Stewart v. Brubaker, 112 Ill. App. 408. One who has accepted an option to purchase realty and made a tender of the price and commenced a suit for specific performance is estopped to deny that he is bound by the agreement. Jones v. Barnes, 94 N. Y. S. 695. Where a corporation officer was employed by president to obtain business outside his duties as officer, and he was credited with commissions on business obtained, the corporation was estopped to deny liability for services so rendered. Hooke v. Financier Co., 99 App. Div. 186, 90 N. Y. S. 1012. A partnership sold out its business to another company and an agreement was drawn up whereby the parties "and their members" agreed not to engage in a similar business for ten years. This agreement was drawn up and signed by the chairman of the partnership. Held, he could not thereafter, in a suit to enjoin him from engaging in business, deny that the agreement bound him individually. Pittsburg Valve, Foundry & Construction Co. v. Klingelhofer [Pa.] 60 A. 161. One who gave note expressly providing for a lien, and who did not deny that the holder of the note had such lien, held estopped to deny the existence of the lien. Hamilton's Ex'r v. Wright [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1093. One who has signed and sworn to a certificate for a charter of a corporation for profit, which sets out a subscription for a certain number of shares, of a certain par value, is estopped

The doctrine that one assuming a certain position in a judicial proceeding is precluded from subsequently assuming a position inconsistent therewith, though not strictly one of estoppel, is closely related thereto.[31] The term "estoppel" is sometimes used to designate the equitable doctrine that where one of two innocent parties must suffer a loss, the loss should fall on the one whose conduct has induced or made it possible.[32] to deny liability for the shares as specified by setting up an agreement that he was to take a smaller number of shares, the remainder being intended as treasury stock. Greater Pittsburg Real Estate Co. v. Riley, 210 Pa. 283, 59 A. 1068.

Other applications of the doctrine[33] and cases wherein it was held inapplicable[34] are collected in the notes.

31. See Election and Waiver, 5 C. L. 1078; Saving Questions for Review, 4 C. L. 1368; Appeal and Review, 5 C. L. 121. When one takes a position in a judicial proceeding, and a decree is made conformable thereto, and another party relies upon it and acquires property under the decree, he that takes such position is estopped from afterwards claiming contrary to such position to the prejudice of the other party. La Comte v. Freshwater, 56 W. Va. 336, 49 S. E. 238; Neal Loan & Banking Co. v. Chastain, 121 Ga. 500, 49 S. E. 618. A litigant is bound by his judicial admissions and cannot shift his position and claim the same amount first for services rendered to one interest and then to another. In re Immanuel Presbyterian Church, 113 La. 911, 37 So. 873. One who has assumed and successfully maintained a certain position in a cause cannot thereafter assume a position inconsistent therewith to the prejudice of one who has acquiesced in the position first taken. Rhea v. Shielde, 103 Va. 305, 49 S. E. 70. A party who has deliberately chosen his ground of defense and has been defeated thereon will not ordinarily be allowed to shift it so as to secure the benefit of another trial. Amendment to answer, tendered after trial had well progressed, not permitted when it set up a new defense. Barrett v. Kansas & Tex. Coal Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 150. A party who has agreed by counsel to certification of the shorthand notes of the evidence in a certain manner is estopped to thereafter assert that such certification is improper. Hofacre v. Monticello [Iowa] 103 N. W. 488. An administrator claimed that a bond and mortgage running to an estate were only indemnity for a judgment, and his contention prevailed and they were not included in the appraisal of the estate for the transfer tax. Held, he could not afterwards claim they were an absolute liability so as to have them deducted from the appraised valuation. In re Skinner's Estate, 94 N. Y. S. 144. Where the theory of an action against an agent as shown by pleadings and evidence is that the agent is personally liable, not having bound the principal, there can be no recovery upon the theory of damages for false assertion of authority. Le Roy v. Jacobosky, 136 N. C. 443, 48 S. E. 796. A grantee returned his deed to the grantors before record and demanded rescission, and upon refusal by the grantors, brought suit for damages for deceit in which grantors disclaimed any interest in land. Held, in suit to quiet title by grantee, grantors were estopped to assert any interest in the land. Everett v. Stokes [S. D.] 103 N. W. 20. A lessee who during mortgage foreclosure proceedings conceals his interest in the property concerned, is estopped to assert it upon application of the purchaser at the sale for a writ of assistance. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 66. The fact that the purchaser is not injured by such concealment is immaterial, since the plaintiff in the foreclosure suit was injured because he could not make the lessee a party, not knowing of his interest. Id. Where a judgment creditor was represented at the sheriff's sale, and the sheriff returned a sale for "cash in hand," but it appeared at the hearing that only costs had been paid by a second mortgagee who was the purchaser, and the judgment creditor moved to confirm the sale, —held she was estopped to deny that her judgment had been satisfied to the extent of the bid returned by the sheriff. Fraser v. Sceley [Kan.] 79 P. 1081. After entry of an informal judgment for plaintiff, he procured the entry of a formal judgment. Held, he was estopped to assert that the time for an appeal should run from the informal judgment. Herzog v. Palatine Ins. Co., 36 Wash. 611, 79 P. 287. The advancement of certain arguments in defense of its use of its franchise by a street railway company in an action against it could not estop it from taking a position in seeking a continuance of the franchise inconsistent with such arguments. Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 137 F. 111.

One who pleads a certain state of facts may become estopped to controvert them. Sworn complaint that a locus was a dedicated street estops assertion of title to it by adverse possession. Heard v. Connor [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 605. An admission in an unsworn pleading, made under a mistake of fact, will not estop the pleader from setting up the contrary. Harris & Cole Bros. v. Columbia Water & Light Co. [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 897.

32. Pennypacker v. Latimer [Idaho] 81 P. 55. See Equity, 5 C. L. 1144.

33. One who makes a contract on behalf of himself and another is estopped to deny the other's interest, although the contract is in his name alone. Murphy v. Smith, Walker & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 678. A guarantor who has been notified that his contract of guaranty has been accepted and that goods are being delivered upon the faith of it, and who encourages continued deliveries by positive statements, is estopped to assert that notice of acceptance of his guaranty was not given in time. American Radiator Co. v. Hoffman, 26 Pa. Super. Ct.

177. Estoppel arises against one seeking to enforce a covenant against the sale or manufacture of intoxicating liquor on the land conveyed, where he has encouraged a breach of the covenant. Mooter v. Whitman, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 141. If a landowner is indebted to a contractor in a sum equal to or greater than the amount of the lien of a materialman, the fact that the materialman is on the contractor's bond to save the owner harmless from mechanics' liens does not estop the materialman from enforcing his lien against the owner. Badger Lumber Co. v. Muehlebach [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 546.

Estoppel to deny representations: Defendant having induced plaintiff to act on supposition that certain conditions existed which would give plaintiff a right of subrogation to a lien, defendant was estopped to deny the existence of such conditions by virtue of a secret agreement with another. Anthes v. Schroeder [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1072. Where a defendant had denied that it had bought certain property from plaintiff, and plaintiff then sued as for a conversion, defendant was estopped to claim there had been a sale and that assumpsit was the proper form of action. Great Western Smelting & Refining Co. v. Evening News Ass'n [Mich.] 102 N. W. 286. A contractor who had furnished finishing material for a hotel had judgment giving him a lien on the realty and enjoining a levy on unused material on the ground that it was to go into the building. In other proceedings he also treated it as a part of the realty. Held, he was thereatfer estopped to claim it was personalty and that it did not pass by a sale of the land on execution. Potvin v. Denny Hotel Co., 37 Wash. 323, 79 P. 940. A shipper who has placed a certain valuation on his property for the purpose of procuring a certain rate is estopped thereafter to show a greater actual value when seeking to recover for a total loss; but actual value may be shown in case of a partial loss to show the proportionate part of the real value to which the shipper is entitled under the limitation clause. United States Exp. Co. v. Joyce [Ind.] 72 N. E. 865. In a bankruptcy proceeding begun in Arkansas, the alleged bankrupt swore that he was a resident of Colorado. The suit was commenced in Colorado at great expense and trouble. Held, the administrator was estopped to deny residence of the bankrupt in Colorado. Long v. Lockman, 135 F. 197. A proposal for insurance contained a certain rate and agent told insured that he need not keep the application, as a copy would be attached to the policy. Such copy contained a different rate. Insured, relying on agent's declaration, did not read policy. Held, insurer could not claim that policy rate controlled because insured had actual or implied notice of the change. Employers' Liability Assur. Corp. v. Grand Rapids Bridge Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 975. A surety who represents himself as the owner of certain property above his debts and exemptions is estopped to claim such property exempt from the judgment obtained on the bond. McMahon v. Cook, 94 N. Y. S. 1018. Code Civ. Proc. § 1404, providing the manner in which such exemptions may be canceled, does not prevent such estoppel. Id.

Estoppel by acquiescence: Plaintiff and her grantor had planned a system of drainage and had acquiesced in the system many years. Held, plaintiff estopped to claim that defendant, a neighboring land owner, should take care of water from a pond in a different manner. Brown v. Armstrong [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1047. Man and woman married, both believing former husband of woman was dead. Later she obtained a divorce from the former husband, who was in fact living. The parties lived together as man and wife for 20 years. Held, in suit by wife to compel support, husband was estopped to deny that he had intended to marry the plaintiff. Chamberlain v. Chamberlain [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 813. A party who proceeds to take possession of property under a written agreement for a contract, and fails to demand formal execution of the contract, and leads the other party to believe that such execution will not be demanded, is estopped to insist on such contract before an action may be maintained against him for failure to perform. Vicksburg Waterworks Co. v. Guffy Petroleum Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 302. Town supervisors who stood by and permitted street railway company to build railway at great cost could not months afterwards demand removal of road on ground that consent under which company acted was given by de facto supervisors. Jordan v. Washington & Canonsburg R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 564.

Estoppel by articles of association: A corporation's articles of association declared that certain certificates constituted a part of the capital stock. Held, in a proceeding to determine liability for franchise tax, the construction of these certificates being in doubt, the corporation was estopped by the declaration of the articles to set up the contrary. People v. Miller, 180 N. Y. 16, 72 N. E. 525.

Estoppel to deny authority: Corporation which has accepted land bought by one of its officers cannot assert want of authority of the officer to promise a consideration in addition to that named in the deed. Windsor v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., 37 Wash. 156, 79 P. 613 A vendee of a part of a tract of land authorized the vendor's agent to sell it with the rest of the tract to one who desired it all, and agreed to arbitrate his claim, and the subsequent purchaser had knowledge of this agreement Held, the first vendee was estopped to assert any claim against the second. Pollock v. Pegues [S. C.] 51 S. E. 514. One who accepted an unexpired liquor license, gave the required bond and carried on a liquor selling business, is estopped, in an action on his bond, to deny the authority of the agent who transferred to him the unexpired license. Faulkner v. Cassidy [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 904.

Acceptance of payment "in full:" Where congress appropriates for the balance of a judgment "in full for the principal of judgment," acceptance of the amount appropriated constitutes an estoppel. Bloodgood's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 69. One who accepts and retains the proceeds of a check given as payment in full for work done under a contract

Pleading and proof; questions of law and fact.[35]—An estoppel should be pleaded,[36] but if evidence of facts constituting it are admitted without objection, the defense is available, though not pleaded.[37] The facts constituting an estoppel is estopped to deny that he has been paid in full. McGregor v. Ware Const. Co. [Mo.] 87 S. W. 981. See, also, Accord and Satisfaction, 5 C. L. 14.

Vendor of chattels estopped to set up title in himself unless acquired subsequent to sale. Deatz & Sterling's Case, 38 Ct. Cl. 355. See, also, Sales, 4 C. L. 1318.

34. Where in making a settlement items of extra work were not discussed, payment of contract price does not operate as an estoppel. McFerran's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 441. The owners of land and of half a crop raised thereon allowed the crop to be shipped in the name of the husband of one of them. Held, they were not estopped, by holding him out as owner, to claim the crop, as against his attaching creditors. Monroe v. Mattox [Ky.] 85 S. W. 748. Where a claimant of land and his grantors had paid taxes, and a sale for taxes was void, he was not estopped to acquire the tax deed and set up title by adverse possession under the void tax deed. Carpenter v. Smith [Ark.] 88 S. W. 976. A lot owner who joins in a petition for grading of a street is not estopped to claim damages to his property resulting from the improvement. Dunn v. Tarentum Borough, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 332. Agent for mortgagee sent interest which had not in fact been paid, and took an assignment of an interest coupon. Held, the mere fact that plaintiff at the time had notice of negotiations for payment of the mortgage did not estop it to claim the interest so advanced. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Ritz, 37 Wash. 642, 80 P. 174. By having accepted samples of water to be furnished by a water company, a city is not estopped to assert that the water actually furnished thereafter was not reasonably pure. Meridian Waterworks Co. v. Meridian [Miss.] 37 So. 927. A landlord who obtains a liquor license for rented premises is not estopped to assert that the tenancy is in another than the licensee. Liebmann's Sons Brewing Co. v. De Nicolo, 91 N. Y. S. 791. City held not estopped to deny liability for injury caused by billboard in front of opera house in an area on private property inside the street line, the city having never exercised any control over it. Temby v. Ishpeming [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 114, 103 N. W. 588. A bank which held notes of the treasurer of a corporation, accepted a check signed by him as treasurer and applied it on his notes, according to his instructions. Held, the corporation could recover from the bank, though it waited four years, and though the transaction was disclosed by its passbook and the return of the canceled check soon after it occurred. Manhattan Web Co. v. Aquidneck Nat. Bank, 133 F. 76. Though a stockholder votes for the letting of a contract to other stockholders and directors, where he protests against the price afterwards fixed, he is not estopped to object to the recovery of compensation at the rate fixed by them against his objection. Booth v. Land Filling & Imp. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 767. Mere silence and inaction of a street railway company while streets occupied by it were being paved, do not estop it to set up absolute want of power in the city to make a special assessment on it for street improvement, especially where the contract provided for payment by the city and abutters and no benefit accrued to the company from the paving. Louisiana Imp. Co. v. Baton Rouge Elec. & Gas Co. [La.] 38 So. 444. Taxpayers held not estopped to sue for injunction against collection of taxes, though they had been notified by publication of a report of the appraisal and of the time of a hearing to confirm such report, when a portion of the property had not been assessed as required by statute, and this fact was shown by the report. Tefft v. Lewis [R. I.] 60 A. 243. Pending an injunction restraining the announcement of the result of an election to annex a certain ward of Little Rock to North Little Rock, Little Rock granted a franchise to street railway company which proceeded to lay tracks in the annexed territory. Held, North Little Rock was not estopped to deny the validity of the franchise by failing to object to the improvements during the life of the injunction. Little Rock R. & Elec. Co. v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 88 S. W. 826. A wife joined a commissioner in executing a deed to a purchaser at a judicial sale, the deed reciting that she relinquished her rights in the premises. Her husband did not join in the deed. She was not guilty of fraud, nor did she mislead the purchaser or induce him to buy. Held, she was not estopped to claim her dower rights Lewis v. Apperson, 103 Va. 624, 49 S. E. 978. One who bought cotton raised in 1893 is not estopped to deny that the vendee had title to the land in 1890 such as to make a mortgage then given a lien on the 1893 crop. Karter v. Fields, 140 Ala. 352, 37 So. 204. Though a patent recites that the invention is an improvement upon another and prior one by the same inventor, his acceptance of it in that form does not preclude him from showing that the inventive idea was antecedent to it. Eck v. Kutz, 132 F. 758.

35. See 3 C. L. 1334.

36. Hill v. Terrell [Ga.] 51 S. E. 81; Word v. Marrs [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 17; Harle v. Texas Southern R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1048; McCorkell v. Herron [Iowa] 103 N. W. 988.

37. Where testimony to facts relied on to show an estoppel is admitted without objection and rebutting testimony is produced on the other side, the estoppel may be relied on, though not pleaded. Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. Arrott [C. C. A.] 135 F. 750. Where, in an action for goods sold and delivered plaintiff did not know he would have to rely on an estoppel to prove agency, and evidence of the facts was admitted without objection, he was entitled to the benefit of the facts so shown, though he had not pleaded an estoppel. Capital Lumber Co. v. Barth [Mont.] 81 P. 994. While estoppel in pais may be specially pleaded, this is not necessary, since evidence of such an

must be set forth with particularity and precision, and nothing can be supplied by intendment or inference,[38] and when there is ground for inference on intendment, it will be against and not in favor of estoppel.[39] The burden of proving estoppel is on the party alleging it,[40] and every element or essential fact must be made to appear by clear and convincing proof.[41] Proof of an equitable estoppel in a suit on a contract does not violate the rule that a written contract can be altered only by a contract in writing or by an executed oral agreement.[42] Whether certain facts constitute an estoppel is for the court; but the existence of such facts is for the jury if there is a conflict in the evidence.[43]

§ 5. Extent of operation of doctrine of estoppel.[44]—An estoppel operates against a privy of the party estopped.[45] Parties under disability are not estopped unless their conduct has been intentional and fraudulent.[46] Though there is a conflict, the weight of authority seems to be that the doctrine of estoppel is applicable to married women;[47] at least in those states where they have been given enlarged property rights.[48]

estoppel is admissible under the general issue. Dickson v. New York Biscuit Co., 211 Ill. 468, 71 N. E. 1058.

Contra: Even though an estoppel be shown by the evidence, it cannot be taken advantage of unless pleaded. Schofield v. Cooper, 126 Iowa, 334, 102 N. W. 110.

38. Bartholomee v. Lowell [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1030. When an estoppel is relied on as a defense in equity and is such that it can be pleaded, it should be alleged with particularity and certainty. Potter v. Fitchburg Steam Engine Co., 110 Ill. App. 430.

39. Bartholomee v. Lowell [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1030.

40. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Grimmon [Nev.] 81 P. 43.

41. Proof of acts constituting an estoppel must be clear. Houghen v. Skjervheim [N. D.] 102 N. W. 311. Claim of estoppel untenable because proof of essential elements was wholly wanting. McCook Irrigation & Water Power Co. v. Crews [Neb.] 102 N. W. 249. Evidence held not to show representations on which an estoppel could be based. Hase v. Schotte [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 1014. An estoppel in pais must be made to appear by clear and convincing evidence and is only sanctioned in order to prevent perpetration of fraud and to promote justice. Potter v. Fitchburg Steam Engine Co., 110 Ill. App. 430. Unless fraud is proved, an estoppel cannot be based upon acts or conduct of the party sought to be estopped, where such conduct is as consistent with honest purpose or with absence of negligence, as with their opposites. Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. Arrott [C. C. A.] 135 F. 750. Evidence held insufficient to prove an agreement by which the owner of a patent would be estopped to claim title to a patent as against a company in which he held stock. Id. To create on estoppel against a city to prevent it from removing a stand from a street, it must appear that the city has abandoned control over the street for such a time as has induced the owner of the stand to believe that the street has been abandoned by the public; and that he has made permanent and valuable improvements or expenditures in reliance on such belief. City of Chicago v. Pooley, 112 Ill. App. 343.

42. Civ. Code, § 1287, not violated. Fransen v. Regents of Education of South Dakota [C. C. A.] 133 F. 24.

43. In ejectment to recover land on which defendant had constructed building, jury properly instructed that if they found that plaintiff had consented to the construction of the building, he was estopped to deny location of line. Daley v. Wingert, 210 Pa. 169, 59 A. 982.

44. See 3 C. L. 1333.

45. An heir is bound by an estoppel of the ancestor. Spears v. Conley [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1072. Assignor of chattel mortgage being estopped by conduct to enforce it against subsequent mortgages for value, assignee is also estopped. May v. First Nat. Bank [Neb.] 104 N. W. 184.

46. Minors not estopped by accepting benefits of sale of land from setting up invalidity of sale, guardian having purchased for his own benefit. Cooper v. Burns, 133 F. 398.

47. Grice v. Woodwarth [Idaho] 80 P. 912.

Contra: A married woman cannot lose her land, whether separate estate or not, by estoppel by conduct (in pais) without actual fraud, even if by it. Yock v. Mann [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1019. A married woman cannot be estopped by acts or representations of her husband (Harle v. Texas Southern R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1048), nor can she be estopped unless she is guilty of fraud (Id.).

48. Grice v. Woodwarth [Idaho] 80 P. 912. Married woman bound by estoppels in pais under Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 6962. Ft. Wayne Trust Co. v. Sihler, 34 Ind. App. 140, 72 N. E. 494.

Note: A married woman is held, in relation to matters about which she is competent to contract, to the observance of that good faith in her dealings to which others are bound. Hence she may be estopped by her silence whenever it is her duty to speak. Grim's Appeal, 105 Pa. 375; Logan v. Gardner, 136 Pa. 589, 20 Am. St. Rep. 939; Schweitzer v. Wagner, 94 Ky. 458; Tracy v. Lincoln, 145 Mass. 357. It has been held that a married woman cannot be estopped by conduct unless it amounts to intentional or posi-

The doctrine of estoppel applies to states and public municipalities in litigation concerning property rights.[49] But neither the state[50] nor a public municipality[51] can be estopped by unauthorized acts of its agents. A state may be estopped by record.[52]

The doctrine of estoppel does not apply to a matter in the nature of a public right,[53] nor where property, and not a person, is to be charged.[54] One cannot be estopped to assert the invalidity of a wholly void assessment[55] or tax foreclosure proceeding.[56] Since jurisdiction cannot be conferred on a foreign tribunal by the application of the principle of equitable estoppel, one cannot be estopped to deny tive fraud (Steed v. Petty, 65 Tex. 490), or at least unless her acts amount in law to fraud (Johnson v. Bryan, 62 Tex. 623; Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Stephens, 96 Ky. 401, 49 Am. St. Rep. 303).

But if a married woman's contract relates to a matter concerning which her common-law disabilities continue, so that her contract is void for want of capacity or power to make it, the doctrine of estoppel cannot be invoked. Cook v. Walling, 117 Ind. 9, 10 Am. St. Rep. 17; Crenshaw v. Julian, 26 S. C. 283, 4 Am. St. Rep. 719. For full discussion of the subject, see note to Trimble v. State [Ind.] 57 Am. St. Rep. 169.

49. When a sovereign comes into court to assert a pecuniary demand against a citizen, the rights of the parties must be adjusted in accordance with settled principles applicable in controversies between ordinary parties. Walker v. United States, 139 F. 409. Thus, acts or omissions of its officers, authorized to represent and bind the United States in a particular transaction, within the scope of that authority, may, in a proper case, work an estoppel against the government. Marshal rendered accounts to government in good faith, which were audited by the proper officer, after which he was paid, he in turn paying his deputies. All this was done according to a long standing custom of the department. Held, the government was estopped, in a suit against the marshal after he had gone out of office, to assert the invalidity of payments to him and to recover overpayments. Id. Where a municipal corporation has entered into a contract with an individual under and by virtue of a statute which is unconstitutional, and the subject-matter of the contract is not ultra vires, illegal, or malum prohibitum, and the facts are such, as against the corporation, as would estop an individual from setting up the unconstitutionality of the statute as a defense, the municipal corporation will also be so estopped. City so estopped where contract for public improvement was made and performed and the city accepted the benefits thereunder. City of Mt. Vernon v. State, 71 Ohio St. 428, 73 N. E. 515. The doctrines of estoppel and laches apply to counties the same as to individuals in respect to swamp lands held by a county. Palmer v. Jones [Mo.] 85 S. W. 1113. An ordinance providing for refunding bonds recited the existence of a legal indebtedness, and that bonds were properly issued. Held, the city was estopped by the recitals in the ordinance to assert nonliability because the original bonds were void. City of Tyler v. Tyler Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [Tex.] 86 S. W. 750. Where the trial court has for years allowed the corporation counsel to assume control of the calendar and delay trial of condemnation proceedings, the city is estopped to claim that application to have case set should have been made to the court rather than to counsel. Winkelman v. Chicago, 213 Ill. 360, 72 N. E. 1066.

50. State not estopped by acts of text book commission which were beyond their power. Silver, Burdett & Co. v. Indiana State Board of Education [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 829. In a suit to quiet title brought by the state, it may set up the invalidity of a tax title by which defendant claims, even though acts of its agents caused such irregularities. State v. Coughran [S. D.] 103 N. W. 31. Unauthorized act of land commissioner in issuing patents under veteran donation act for land which had already been allotted to the public school fund could not operate as an estoppel against the state. Eyl v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 607.

51. County not estopped by illegal agreement made by supervisors. People v. St. Lawrence County Sup'rs, 101 App. Div. 327, 91 N. Y. S. 948. City not estopped to deny liability for services rendered under contract with a special attorney when an ordinance prohibited such contract. Hope v. Alton, 214 Ill. 102, 73 N. E. 406, afg. 116 Ill. App. 116.

52. Record of sale of forfeited land under Code 1899, c. 105, bars a second sale by the state for forfeiture under another title. State v. Jackson, 56 W. Va. 558, 49 S. E. 465.

53. The fact that a relator was present at some meetings of drainage commissioners and acquiesced in the proceedings does not estop him from maintaining quo warranto to test the legality of the organization of the district. People v. Burns, 212 Ill. 227, 72 N. E. 374.

54. No estoppel by representations of defendants in mechanics' lien case. Bradley v. Gaghan, 208 Pa. 511, 57 A. 985.

55. Payment of instalments of a void special assessment by a predecessor in title of a property owner does not estop such owner from attacking the validity of the assessment. Carter v. Cemansky, 126 Iowa, 506, 102 N. W. 438.

56. A landowner is not estopped to attack the validity of tax foreclosure proceedings by appearing and bidding at the sale, if the proceedings are wholly void. Young v. Droz [Wash.] 80 P. 810.

the validity of a foreign decree of divorce.[57] In Texas a parol sale of real estate is upheld on the ground of estoppel if the facts constituting an estoppel are present,[58] as where the vendee makes improvements in reliance upon the parol sale, the vendor having knowledge thereof.[59]

The doctrine of estoppel has been applied in criminal law as well as in civil cases.[60] Thus, it has been held that a county officer who had himself selected a jury list and sworn to its legality is estopped to set up illegality on the ground that the grand jury was drawn from an irregular list when tried on an indictment for misfeasance in office.[61]

EVIDENCE.

Scope of article.—This article treats specifically of the competency of evidence, the competency of witnesses and the rules governing their examination being entirely excluded,[62] and questions of relevancy and sufficiency of evidence, except so far as they illustrate some general rule, being excluded to titles dealing with the particular subject or issue to which the evidence is addressed. Evidence in criminal prosecutions is also treated elsewhere,[63] though occasional holdings of undoubted general application have been included.

57. Percival v. Percival, 94 N. Y. S. 909.

58. Bringhurst v. Texas Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 893.

59. One who bought up several outstanding claims, bought one under a parol agreement, and thereafter made valuable improvements on the land. Held, though the purchaser did not rely exclusively on the parol sale, the vendor was estopped to claim against him. Bringhurst v. Texas Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 893.

60. See discussion in State v. Second Judicial Dist. Ct. [Mont.] 78 P. 769.

61. State v. Second Judicial Dist. Ct. [Mont.] 78 P. 769.

Note: "It has been held that if a person makes away with money which he has received upon his false representation that he is the agent of another and that he accepts the money for his alleged principal, he may be punished for the crime of embezzlement. State v. Spaulding, 24 Kan. 1. Contra, Moore v. State, 53 Neb. 831. As in the present case (State v. Second Jud. Dist. Court [Mont.] 78 P. 769), this result is reached on the ground that the prisoner is estopped to deny what he represented to be true. This reasoning can hardly be supported. The state should punish a person only for doing it an injury, and should conduct the trial in a legal and regular manner. Hence the false representation of a person which, if true, would result in his criminal liability, or his false statement that a certain procedure is legal, should not form the basis for the infliction of punishment; for, in the first instance, the injury for which he is being punished has not really been done, and in the second he is not in fact being legally tried. 12 Harv. L. R. 56."—18 Harv. L. R. 467.

62. See 3 C. L. 1335. See Witnesses, 4 C. L. 1943; Examination of Witnesses, 5 C. L. ——

63. See Indictment and Prosecution, 4 C. L. 1.

§ 1. Necessity and duty of adducing evidence.[64]—Facts admitted in the pleadings or on the trial [65] need not be proved.

(§ 1) A. Judicial notice.[66]—Courts take judicial notice of their own records and proceedings [67] in causes pending before them; [68] of public domestic statutes [69] and other official acts of the legislature; [70] of the adoption of a constitutional amendment; [71] of regulations [72] and official acts of the executive departments of the United States; [73] of public elections; [74] of who are public officers; [75] of the common-law powers of a notary; [76] of public surveys and boundaries of public municipalities; [77] of matters of common knowledge; [78] of general customs; [79] of well settled

64. See 3 C. L. 1335.

65. Admissions of counsel upon trial of civil suit may obviate necessity of proof of subject-matter of such admissions. Preston v. Davis, 112 Ill. App. 636; Everett v. Marston, 186 Mo. 587, 85 S. W. 540. Admissions of fact by an attorney only bind a client when distinct and formal and made for the express purpose of dispensing with proof of a fact on the trial. Hicks v. Naomi Falls Mfg. Co., 138 N. C. 319, 50 S. E. 703. Informal admissions of an attorney at a former trial are not evidence against the client at a subsequent trial. Thus, where, in former action, attorney said he would take a nonsuit if facts were as defendant's witnesses said they were and after two persons had investigated, did take a nonsuit, the attorney's admissions were not binding on the client in a subsequent action. Id.

66. See 3 C. L. 1335.

67. Court in auxiliary proceeding in contempt may take judicial notice of records of main prior proceedings. Ferguson v. Wheeler, 126 Iowa, 111, 101 N. W. 638. Court took judicial notice of records of other cases between same parties in deciding whether to modify or reverse a judgment. In re Transfer Penalty Cases, 92 N. Y. S. 322. The supreme court will, in determining whether an appeal was taken in good faith, take judicial notice of a mandamus proceeding before it to compel the trial judge to settle a bill of exceptions. Gay v. Gay, 146 Cal. 237, 79 P. 885. Court of appeals took notice of its reversal of a judgment in favor of appellees, which controlled recovery in subsequent suit, and remanded the latter. Avocato v. Dell' Ara [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 444.

68. Courts do not take judicial notice of their records and proceedings in other causes. Demars v. Hickey [Wyo.] 80 P. 521. Courts do not take judicial notice of the existence of judgments or decrees in cases other than the one then pending; decree in receivership proceedings is no exception. Allison v. Fidelity Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Neb.] 104 N. W. 753.

69. Statutes of the state set up in declaration need not be proved. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Moore, 110 Ill. App. 304. Acts of the legislature incorporating a railroad must be judicially noticed when properly pleaded. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Liebel [Ky.] 86 S. W. 549. Gen. Laws 1896, c. 26, § 15, provides that every act of incorporation shall be deemed a public act; hence an act incorporating a fire district for distribution of water will be judicially noticed, and construed. Foley v. Ray [R. I.] 61 A. 50. Supreme court will judicially notice that railroads have been assessed and have paid ad valorem taxes for previous years pursuant to Rev. Code 1892, § 3877. Gulf & S. I. R. Co. v. Adams [Miss.] 38 So. 348.

70. Proceedings entered on Senate Journal by which members were expelled judicially noticed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1875, subd. 3, providing for such notice of official acts of the legislature. French v. Senate of State, 146 Cal. 604, 80 P. 1031. Dates fixed by legislative enactment for beginning of sessions of superior courts of the state. Edwards v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 630. That legislature had twice sanctioned continuance of encroachments on public streets. Empire Realty Corp. v. Sayre, 95 N. Y. S. 371.

71. Adoption of constitutional amendment. Carmody v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 87 S. W. 913.

72. Judicial notice taken of post office regulations which are a part of public records. Carr v. First Nat. Bank [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 947.

73. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 3150, orders creating Missoula military reservation may be judicially noticed. State v. Tully [Mont.] 78 P. 760.

74. Courts will take judicial notice of prohibition election, and whether it was held under general local option liquor law, or a local act providing for such election. Oglesby v. State, 121 Ga. 602, 49 S. E. 706.

75. Supreme court judicially noticed that certain persons were not attorney general and state treasurer on a certain day, but that their successors had been elected and had qualified. State v. Board of State Canvassers [Mont.] 79 P. 402. State courts bound to take judicial notice of who are public officers of the state holding under commissions issued by the governor. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388. Judicial notice taken by supreme court that person signing decree appealed from was a county judge. Fisher v. Chicago, 213 Ill. 268, 72 N. E. 680.

76. Midland Steel Co. v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 34 Ind. App. 107, 72 N. E. 290.

77. State courts take judicial notice of boundaries of counties and changes therein by the legislature, and of the governmental survey and districts thereby created. Stanford v. Bailey [Ga.] 50 S. E. 161. Supreme court judicially knows ranges and townships in counties. Brannan v. Henry [Ala.] 39 So. 92. Judicial notice taken that land in certain section was on Arkansas river, and that section was made fractional by meandering of river. Harvey v. Douglass [Ark.] 83 S. W. 946.

78. Common belief of people of state that vaccination is a preventive of smallpox. Vie-or authenticated scientific,[80] geographical,[81] and historical [82] facts; and, since attorneys are officers of the court,[83] whether a certain person is a duly licensed attorney at law.[84] In the absence of a statute to the contrary,[85] the laws of another state,[86] special or private acts,[87] and municipal ordinances,[88] will not be judicially noticed. A voluntary report of a grand jury not made pursuant to the requirements of law will not be judicially noticed.[89] Appellate courts may judicially notice terms of lower courts,[90] but not their rules.[91] Akin to the doctrine of judicial notice but clearly to be distinguished therefrom is the inference by the court of ultimate from probative facts.[92]

(§ 1) B. Presumptions and burden of proof.[93]—The so-called conclusive presumptions, being mere rules of law, are not here treated; and only those disputable presumptions which are of wide application are discussed or illustrated.[94]

meister v. White, 179 N. Y. 235, 72 N. E. 97. Construction of ordinary horse street car. Kleffman v. Dry Dock, etc., R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 741. Nature of game of ping pong and that ping pong balls are not toys. United States v. Strauss Bros. & Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 185. That certain land is held as military reservation by Federal government, under private purchase; but not of the metes and bounds of the land so used. Baker v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1122. That the use of dynamite in constructing tunnel under populous city is inherently dangerous. City of Chicago v. Murdoch, 113 Ill. App. 656. That electricity is dangerous and that society recognizes the fact and acts accordingly. Warren v. City Elec. R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 415, 104 N. W. 613 That best spark arresters will not prevent emission of sparks from engines under certain conditions. Babbitt v. Erie R. Co., 95 N. Y. S. 429. That phosphate is mined in parts of Florida and is an article of transportation. State v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 652. That all taxes assessed are not collected until years after the assessment. State v. Mutty [Wash.] 82 P. 118. Judicially known that letters "N. P." after signature in acknowledgment are commonly used to signify "notary public." Leech v. Karthaus [Ala.] 37 So. 696. In action for infringement of patent, court will take judicial notice of conventional bushel basket. Roberts v. Bennett [C. C. A.] 136 F. 193. Judicial notice taken of intimate commercial relations between two ports, and inference drawn that highest wage at port of departure would not be less than lowest at port of destination. The Elihu Thompson, 139 F. 89. Court will not shut its eyes to common knowledge of character of improvements in business center of Chicago, and that large buildings are there erected under long term leases. Denegre v. Walker, 114 Ill. App. 234. Code Civ. Proc. § 1875, authorizing courts to take judicial notice of the true significance of English words and phases, enables them to assume judicial knowledge of common and current knowledge relating to automobiles. Ex parte Berry [Cal.] 82 P. 44.

79. John O'Brien Lumber Co. v. Wilkinson, 123 Wis. 272, 101 N. W. 1050.

80. That 1-10 of grain of morphine taken every four hours could not poison a person. Laturen v. Bolton Drug Co., 93 N. Y. S. 1035. That overflows and floods are followed by disease and that swamps are detrimental to public health. Applegate v. Franklin [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 347.

81. That Missoula military reservation is located in Missoula County. State v. Tully [Mont.] 78 P. 760. That the Passaic river is a tidal stream, the bed of which belongs to the state so far as the tide ebbs and flows. McCarter v. Hudson County Water Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 710.

82. Judicial notice taken of fact that Maryland embraces territory which was a part of the original English colonies. Frank v. Gump [Va.] 51 S. E. 358.

83. Morrison v. Snow, 26 Utah, 247, 72 P. 824.

84. Weber v. Powers, 114 Ill. App. 411.

85. By Ark. Acts 1901, p. 164, no. 98, judicial notice is taken of laws of other states. Creelman Lumber Co. v. Lesh & Co. [Ark.] 83 S. W. 320.

86. Gunning System v. La Pointe, 113 Ill. App. 405; Clark v. Assets Realization Co., 115 Ill. App. 150; Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. McDonald, 112 Ill. App. 391; Callender, McAuslan & Troup Co. v. Flint, 187 Mass. 104, 72 N. E. 345; First Nat. Bank v. Nordstrom [Kan.] 78 P. 804; Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. v. Evans, 121 Ga. 391, 49 S. E. 308.

87. Court cannot judicially know when local option laws, being special laws, are put in operation. Craddick v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 347.

Contra: In Connecticut, courts take judicial notice of all private acts. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Offield [Conn.] 60 A. 740.

88. City of New York v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 93 N. Y. S. 937; Gibbs v. Manchester [N. H.] 61 A. 128. Supreme court cannot take judicial notice of two mile limit of city of Seattle. Town of West Seattle v. West Seattle Land & Improvement Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 549.

89. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. People, 114 Ill. App. 75.

90. Appellate courts take judicial notice of terms of district courts. Accousi v. Stowers Furniture Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 1104.

91. Rules of court not judicially noticed by appellate court; recital of clerk in record that certain day was second day of term does not control. Edwards v. Warner, 111 Ill. App. 32.

92. See post, §§ 1B and 11.

93. See 3 C. L. 1337.

94. Note: The legislature has entire con-

A presumption of fact is simply an inference or conclusion logically deduced from known data.[95] A presumption of fact cannot be based upon another presumption of fact,[96] but must be an immediate inference from facts proved.[97] Inconsistent presumptions cannot spring from the same state of facts.[98] Whether a particular inference can be drawn from facts proved is a question of law;[99] which of two possible and proper inferences shall be drawn, and whether one inference defeats or answers another, is for the jury.[1] Among the presumptions of fact or logical inferences commonly recognized are the presumption that a state of facts once shown to exist will continue to exist[2] as long as is usual with things of that nature;[3] that the ordinary and usual course of business has been followed;[4] that a letter properly addressed,[5] stamped and mailed, and not returned, was received by trol over rules of evidence subject only to constitutional limitations. (Applied to act of Congress which creates presumption in favor of report of interstate commerce commission). Tift v. Southern R. Co., 138 F. 753.

95. Western Maryland R. Co. v. Shivers [Md.] 61 A. 618.

96. Bycyznski v. Illinois Steel Co., 115 Ill. App. 326; Condon v. Schoenfeld, 214 Ill. 226, 73 N. E. 333; Tull v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 910. The existence of a fact cannot be presumed from another fact which itself rests wholly on presumption. Williams v. Miles [Neb.] 102 N. W. 482.

97. No presumption can be drawn from a presumption; circumstantial evidence being relied on, the circumstances must be proved and not themselves presumed. Bube v. Weatherly Borough, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 88.

98. Facts warranting inference of negligence cannot give rise to contrary presumption. Western Maryland R. Co. v. Shivers [Md.] 61 A. 618.

99, 1. Seely v. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. [N. H.] 61 A. 585.

2. Cohabitation, without marriage ceremony, commenced as meretricious, is presumed to continue such. Bell v. Clarke, 45 Misc. 272, 92 N. Y. S. 163. Incorporation of a bank, once admitted, is presumed to continue until contrary is shown. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080. Voting machines are presumed to remain unchanged between the close of election, when read by inspectors, and the time of an election contest. Trumbull v. Board of Canvassers of Jackson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 255, 103 N. W. 993. Recital in deed of 1862 that grantor was a bachelor is presumptive proof that he was a bachelor in 1858, a deed of that year containing no statement as to whether he was married or single. Gibson v. Brown, 214 Ill. 330, 73 N. E. 573. Where no evidence of a change in the condition of an automobile between the time of its possession by defendant and examination by experts was introduced, the jury was warranted in drawing inference that condition had remained unchanged, and evidence of the expert examination was admissible without showing that the condition had remained unchanged. White Sew. Mach. Co. v. Phoenix Nerve Beverage Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 600.

3. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 3266, cl. 32, account shown to have been good and collectible are presumed to continue so. Thornton-Thomas Mercantile Co. v. Bretherton [Mont.] 80 P. 10.

4. By Code Civ. Proc. § 1963, subd. 20. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Presumed that bank did business in the usual way and that it did not buy paper of insolvent parties. German Security Bank v. Columbia Finance & Trust Co. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 761. Evidence of clerk whose only knowledge came from presumption arising from his duties and usual course of business was admissible for what it was worth. Netherlands Fire Ins. Co. v. Barry, 93 N. Y. S. 164. Having testified that no report was sent in as to lights on a certain night, city electrician could testify that usual course was to send in a report when a light was out of order. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Where contract is for delivery of goods f. o. b., it is prima facie presumed that weights are to be determined at place of delivery. Boyd v. Merchants' & Farmers' Peanut Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 199. Where creditor takes notes from debtor payable at a future day, the law does not imply an agreement to give time until the maturity of the note. Hummelstown Brownstone Co. v. Knerr, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 465. It is presumed that title to a package delivered to a carrier passes to consignee upon such delivery. Bank of Irwin v. American Exp. Co. [Iowa] 102 N. W. 107. In absence of any evidence, presumption would be that electric wires were fastened to insulators in usual way. Nagle v. Hake, 123 Wis. 256, 101 N. W. 409. The presumption arising from proof of custom cannot supply proof of substantive facts. When there was no proof of contests of lost affidavit in replevin, proof of custom in the clerk's office could not supply proof that in a particular case, the value of goods as stated therein was copied into the writ, and that clerk obtained knowledge from so doing. Franks v. Matson, 211 Ill. 338, 71 N. E. 1011.

5. No presumption that letter addressed to 317 Main street, New York City, reached 317 Main street, Cincinnati. Westheimer v. Howard, 93 N. Y. S. 518.

6. Letter placed in mail box or general post office, properly addressed and prepaid, prima facie presumed to have reached destination. Phoenix Brewing Co. v. Weiss, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 519. Presumption is that properly mailed letter or telegram properly given telegraph company for transmission was received by the addressee. Kibler v.

the addressee [6] in due course of the mail; [7] that one in possession of personalty is the owner; [8] that an owner of land is in possession; [9] that a person absent from home for seven years, and not heard from, is dead.[10] Identity of person is presumed from identity of name.[11] Other illustrations are given in the note.[12]

Suppression or spoliation of evidence warrants the presumption that, if produced, the evidence would be unfavorable to the party suppressing it; [13] and failure to call an available [14] witness [15] to rebut a prima facie showing made by the other party on a particular issue [16] warrants the inference by the jury that the testimony of the witness, if produced, would be unfavorable.[17] But this presump-Caplis [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 57, 103 N. W. 531. Account stated sent in customary way is presumed to have been duly received. Dick v. Zimmermann, 105 Ill. App. 615. Addressee presumed to have received notice duly mailed properly addressed and stamped; but presumption is rebuttable. Sherrod v. Farmers' Mut. Fire Ass'n [N. C.] 51 S. E. 910.

7. Disputable presumption that letter duly directed and mailed was received in regular course of mail. B. & C. Comp. § 788, subd. 24. Sloan v. Sloan [Or.] 78 P. 893. Mailing of letter raises prima facie presumption that it was received in due course by the person to whom it was properly addressed. Merchants' Exch. Co. v. Sanders [Ark.] 84 S. W. 786. Proof of the writing of a letter on a certain day and of its receipt by the addressee at the time it would have arrived in due course is sufficient to support a finding that it was mailed the day it was written. Campbell v. Beard [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 747. Proof of the receipt of a letter and the day on which it was written, dispenses with proof in detail of addressing, stamping and deposit in the mail, no objection being made to the form in which the evidence is introduced. Id.

8. Husband who had possession of money before and at time he deposited it in wife's name was presumptive owner. First Nat. Bank v. Taylor [Ala.] 37 So. 695. Possession of a negotiable instrument payable to order and properly indorsed is prima facie proof of bona fide holdership. Price v. Winnebago Nat. Bank, 14 Okl. 268, 79 P. 105.

9. An owner of land is presumed to be in possession until ousted by an actual occupant. Kreamer v. Voneida, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 347. Presumption of possession follows proof of ownership. Ewers v. Smith, 98 App. Div. 289, 90 N. Y. S. 575.

10. Presumption of death arises where a person leaves his home and is continually absent therefrom for more than seven years, without any intelligence being received of his whereabouts. Policemen's Benevolent Ass'n v. Ryce, 115 Ill. App. 95. Mere absence of husband from home and failure to send word to family for sixteen years does not raise presumption of death when husband was known to have been living with another woman, having given up his former home. Donovan v. Twist, 93 N. Y. S. 990.

11. Code Civ. Proc. subd. 25, § 1963. Bickerdike v. State, 144 Cal. 698, 78 P. 277.

12. Fact and date of baptism being shown, birth on a day prior thereto will be presumed. Collins v. German-American Mut. Life Ass'n [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 891. It will be assumed that a traveler, bound to look and listen at a railway crossing, saw what he would have seen had he looked, and heard what he would have heard had he listened. Southern R. Co. v. Davis, 34 Ind. App. 377, 72 N. E. 1053.

13. Patch Mfg. Co. v. Protection Lodge, No. 215, International Ass'n of Machinists [Vt.] 60 A. 74. Where a note is shown to have been destroyed, the jury may infer that it was a properly witnessed note on which an action could be maintained. Sullivan v. Sullivan [Mass.] 74 N. E. 608. Failure to produce available evidence to rebut adverse evidence warrants adverse presumption. Chicago Junction R. Co. v. McAnrow, 114 Ill. App. 501. Where, in action for injuries to infant, father refused to allow committee of physicians appointed by court to examine the child, and child was not produced in court, the father's claim as to serious injuries was greatly discredited. Houston Elec. Co. v. Lawson [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 459.

14. Charge that jury could consider fact that defendant called no witnesses was erroneous, when it was not shown that any witnesses, not called by plaintiff, were available. Robinson v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 92 N. Y. S. 1010.

15. Failure to produce available witnesses may be considered by jury. Levine v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 78 App. Div. 426, 80 N. Y. S. 48. Where four persons were present where accident occurred, and only three were called, though fourth was available, it was proper for counsel to argue that if fourth had been called his testimony would have been unfavorable to adverse party. Lambert v. Hamlin [N. H.] 59 A. 941. Unfavorable inference is always to be drawn when an available witness is not called to testify to facts in dispute; failure of injured person to call examining physician is no exception. Crago v. Cedar Rapids, 123 Iowa, 48, 98 N. W. 354. Failure of defendant to produce an available witness, presumably favorable to him, who knows facts excusing defendant from liability if anyone does, warrants strong presumption that such facts do not exist. Anderson v. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 786. Failure to call a witness said to have been present at a conversation is a strong circumstance, weakening the effect of testimony to the conversation. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Walker [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 28.

16. Chicago & W. I. R. Co. v. Newell, 113 Ill. App. 263; Condon v. Schoenfield, 114 Ill. App. 468; East St. Louis Connecting R. Co. v. Altgen, 112 Ill. App. 471.

17. There is no presumption arising from failure to call a witness, but the jury has tion does not relieve the other party from introducing affirmative proof on the issue in question so far as he has the burden thereon.[18] Evidence tending to show efforts to produce witnesses,[19] or to show that certain persons would be incompetent to testify if produced,[20] or to otherwise explain their absence,[21] is admissible to rebut any unfavorable inferences which may be drawn from their absence. No unfavorable inference is to be drawn from failure to call a witness equally available to both parties,[22] or to call all the persons who could throw light on the questions at issue.[23] Efforts to suppress testimony must be shown by competent evidence.[24]

Among the presumptions indulged by courts on grounds of public policy are, the presumption that judicial proceedings have been regular;[25] that a court of record is one of general jurisdiction[26] and had jurisdiction of the parties and subject-matter in a given case;[27] that official acts and duties have been regularly performed,[28] in accordance with law;[29] that men are sane[30] and solvent,[31] and are the right to draw any inference from the fact which they deem warranted. Kirkpatrick v. Allemannia Fire Ins. Co., 102 App. Div. 327, 92 N. Y. S. 466.

18. Instruction, fairly construed, held to correctly state the law. Patch Mfg. Co. v. Protection Lodge, No. 215, I. A. M. [Vt.] 60 A. 74. Suppression by one party of a document relied upon as evidence by the opposite party is not equivalent to an admission of the truth of the claim of the latter regarding its contents. Suppression does not dispense with the necessity of prima facie proof of the claim sufficient to sustain a judgment or decree. Stout v. Sands, 56 W. Va. 663, 49 S. E. 428. But when a prima facie case is made, and doubt is cast upon it by rebuttal evidence or otherwise, suppression of the document raises a strong inference against the party suppressing it, and determines the point in favor of the other party. Id.

19. Lichtenstein v. Case, 99 App. Div. 570, 91 N. Y. S. 57. Evidence that party had applied to street railway company for list of witnesses of accident and had been refused was admissible to account for failure to produce witnesses. Iaquinto v. Bauer, 93 N. Y. S. 388. Where, in action for non-delivery of telegram, it appeared from the evidence that the messenger, who testified on a former trial, was not present, evidence of defendant's efforts to procure his attendance was admissible to rebut the inference which jury might draw from his non-attendance. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Waller [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 695.

20. No unfavorable inference can be drawn from failure to call an attending physician as a witness, since information acquired by him to enable him to prescribe would be privileged under Rev. St. 1899, § 4659. Arnold v. Maryville, 110 Mo. App. 254, 85 S. W. 107. In action on liquor dealer's bond for allowing minor on premises, state could show that minor's mother was mentally unsound in explanation of its failure to put her on the stand to prove the alleged minor's age. Brewster v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 685, 88 S. W. 858.

21. Competent for plaintiff in personal injury case to explain absence of eyewitness to accident. Macon R. & Light Co. v. Mason [Ga.] 51 S. E. 569.

22. Reynolds v. International & G. N. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 323.

23. Party could rely on her own testimony solely. Baldwin v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 99 App. Div. 496, 91 N. Y. S. 59.

24. An effort to suppress testimony cannot be shown by certificate of a notary who took the deposition of the witness that he refused to answer some of the questions, and refused to sign or swear to any of his answers. Reynolds v. International & G. N. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 323.

25. Judicial proceedings of another state are presumed to have been regular. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703. Jurisdiction being shown, legal presumption favors regularity of subsequent proceedings. Broadway Trust Co. v. Manheim, 95 N. Y. S. 93.

26. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703.

27. Woodworth v. McKee, 123 Iowa, 714, 102 N. W. 777.

28. Records having been lost by fire, presumed that clerk duly recorded will and probate as required by law. Hymer v. Holyfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 722. Presumption that city officers performed duties respecting walk applicable only when there is no evidence on subject. Miller v. Town of Canton [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 96.

29. Presumption that commissioners filed report as required by law. In re Webster, 94 N. Y. S. 1050. County commissioners presumed to have acted within legal powers and county warrants presumed valid. Board of Com'rs of Greer County v. Gregory [Okl.] 81 P. 422. Presumed that tide land appraisers acted within their jurisdiction. Town of West Seattle v. West Seattle Land & Improvement Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 549. Council presumed to have provided for indebtedness by appropriate levies as required by Ball. Ann. Codes & St. §§ 1792, 1794, 1796. State v. Mutty [Wash.] 82 P. 118.

30. Presumption favors sanity and testamentary capacity. Gesell v. Baugher [Md.] 60 A. 481.

31. Solvency will be presumed rather than insolvency. Jensen v. Montgomery [Utah] 80 P. 504.

under no disability;[32] that they exercise ordinary care;[33] that their acts are legal,[34] within their rights,[35] and free from fraud;[36] and that death resulted from natural causes and was not voluntary.[37] The presumption that a public officer has done his duty cannot sustain his action when mandatory requirements of the law concerning the record of such action are disregarded.[38] The presumption that members of a corporation are citizens of the state where the corporation has its legal existence is indulged only to fix the status of a corporation as a litigant and does not obtain when the question is as to the citizenship of an individual suing in his own right.[39]

In the absence of proof of a statute, the common law is presumed to prevail in a foreign state,[40] providing such state was once subject to the laws of England.[41] In the absence of proof to the contrary, the laws of a foreign state are presumed to be the same as those of the forum;[42] but this presumption does not apply to statutory law.[43]

32. Absence of disability to sue is presumed, no disability being shown by evidence. Arnold v. Limeburger [Ga.] 49 S. E. 812.

33. No presumption that physician was negligent arises from fact of failure to effect a cure. Wohlert v. Seibert, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 213.

34. Law presumes payments made by bankrupt were legal. Keith v. Gettysburg Nat. Bank, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 14. Every presumption is against a violation of law by a usurious contract. Cameron v. Fraser, 94 N. Y. S. 1058. Presumed that one erecting a building complied with regulation requiring filing of plans, and that city consented to erection of building. Empire Realty Corp. v. Sayre, 95 N. Y. S. 371.

35. Presumption is that possession of one co-tenant is not adverse to other co-tenants. Coberly v. Coberly [Mo.] 87 S. W. 957.

36. Fraud will not be presumed. Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742.

37. Prima facie presumption is that death was not by suicide. Clemens v. Royal Neighbors of America [N. D.] 103 N. W. 402; Knights Templars' & Masons' Life Indemnity Co. v. Crayton, 110 Ill. App. 648. Presumption that sane man will not commit suicide is rebuttable. Hardinger v. Modern Brotherhood of America [Neb.] 103 N. W. 74. Presumption is against suicide, but this presumption may be rebutted. Masonic Life Ass'n v. Pollard's Guardian [Ky.] 89 S. W. 219.

38. No record of selection of land to supply deficiency of school land. Lauve v. Wilson [La.] 38 So. 522.

39. That litigant is president of a corporation creates no legal presumption that he is a citizen of the same state as the corporation. Utah-Nevada Co. v. De Lamar [C. C. A.] 133 F. 113.

40. Midland Steel Co. v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 34 Ind. App. 107, 72 N. E. 290; Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Norcross, 163 Ind. 379, 72 N. E. 132; Scholten v. Barber [Ill.] 75 N. E. 460; Eckles v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 99; Frank v. Gump [Va.] 51 S. E. 358. Common law of contracts presumed to be in force in other state. Bailey v. Devine [Ga.] 51 S. E. 603. Common law presumed to prevail in Virginia as to bills of lading as evidence of contract. National Bank of Bristol v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 99 Md. 661, 59 A. 134. No statute of Pennsylvania being proved, prohibiting alienation of annuities, common law with reference thereto is presumed to prevail. Robb v. Washington & J. College, 103 App. Div. 327, 93 N. Y. S. 92. Common law as to care required of carriers of passengers presumed to prevail in Alabama. Southern R. Co. v. Cunningham [Ga.] 50 S. E. 979. Common law presumed to prevail in Illinois as to liability of common carrier for passenger's baggage. Hubbard v. Mobile & O. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 52.

41. See 3 C. L. 1338, n. 42, 43.

42. Gunning System v. La Pointe, 113 Ill. App. 405. Common law of another state presumed same as that of forum. Cherry v. Sprague, 187 Mass. 113, 72 N. E. 456. Common law of Rhode Island presumed same as that of Massachusetts on point in issue. Callender, McAustan & Troup Co. v. Flint, 187 Mass. 104, 72 N. E. 345. Law of England as to amount of interest on judgments presumed same as that of California. Murphy v. Murphy, 145 Cal. 482, 78 P. 1053. Law of Nevada as to express trusts in realty presumed same as that of California. In re Dunphy's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 315. Laws of Iowa as to effect of alteration in note on its negotiability presumed same as those of Kansas. First Nat. Bank v. Nordstrom [Kan.] 78 P. 804. Law of Iowa presumed identical with that of South Dakota as to effect of contract of extension in releasing surety. Iowa Loan & Trust Co. v. Schnose [S. D.] 103 N. W. 22. Missouri law as to transfer of note as collateral presumed same as that of Texas. National Bank of Commerce v. Kenney [Tex.] 83 S. W. 368. Law of Montana as to liability of wife on mortgage presumed same as that of Washington. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556. In absence of proof, laws of other states presumed identical with those of Wisconsin as to forfeiture of property for taxes. Edleman v. Edleman [Wis.] 104 N. W. 56.

43. Cherry v. Sprague, 187 Mass. 113, 72 N. E. 456. Statutes of one state not presumed to exist in another. Eckles v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 99. In absence of proof it will not be presumed that statute of New Jersey limits age of persons who may take fraternal insurance. Wood v. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle, 212 Ill. 532, 72 N. E. 783. There being no common law on the subject, no presumption can be indulged as to the law of

The burden of proof [44] is always on the party asserting a fact as the basis of his action or defense,[45] and it never shifts during the progress of the trial.[46] The burden of adduction may, however, change according to the necessities of the case in overcoming evidence introduced by the other party.[47] Which party has the burden of proof on particular issues is to be determined from the pleadings [48] and the rules governing their construction.[49]

§ 2. Relevancy and materiality.[50]—Evidence which, if true, tends, within reasonable probabilities, to establish a matter in dispute, is relevant.[51] Evidence as another state regarding issuance of certificates of incorporation of private corporations, or what officer is authorized to issue them, or who is the custodian of them when issued. Florscheim & Co. v. Fry [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 1023.

44. Burden of proof on particular questions is treated in the topic dealing therewith. See 3 C. L. 1339.

45. In action of trespass to try title, where plaintiff relies on chain of title, a deed constituting a link therein having been lost, the burden is on him to prove execution of the lost deed. Garrett v. Spradling [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 293. Instruction that burden of proof is on plaintiff erroneous where one issue is conceded by defendant, and defendant has burden on other. Swift & Co. v. Mutter, 115 Ill. App. 374. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 526, providing that the burden of proof is on the party who would be defeated if no evidence were introduced on either side, the burden is on the party against whom, if no evidence were introduced, such judgment would be rendered as would carry costs. Mattingly v. Shortell [Ky.] 85 S. W. 215.

46. Rupp v. Sarpy County [Neb.] 102 N. W. 242. Burden of proof in its technically proper sense does not shift so long as parties remain at issue on a proposition affirmed on one side and denied on the other. Appeal of O'Brien [Me.] 60 A. 880. Burden of proof on undue influence in will case does not shift from contestant to proponent because the person who draws the will or takes part in its preparation occupies a confidential relation to testator and receives a bequest. Id.

47. Thus, in negligence cases, if plaintiff's evidence conclusively shows contributory negligence, defendant is entitled to a peremptory instruction at the close of plaintiff's case. But if plaintiff's evidence does not show contributory negligence conclusively, defendant must introduce evidence, if he has pleaded contributory negligence, and has the burden of proof on that issue. Plaintiff must then overcome the weight of defendant's evidence on the issue. But the burden of proof does not in such case shift; only the weight of evidence and the burden of producing it. Rupp v. Sarpy County [Neb.] 102 N. W. 242.

48. A party who adds, or whose duty it is to add, a similiter, has the burden of proof. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Jennings, 114 Ill. App. 622. Where defendant merely files general issue, instruction that burden of proof is on plaintiff is proper, even though defendant introduces evidence of fraud, an affirmative defense. Adams v. Pease, 113 Ill. App. 356. Where defendant set up cross-action and plaintiff replied by supplemental petition containing a general denial and matter in confession and avoidance, burden was on defendant to prove cross-action, and supplemental petition could not be taken as evidence for defendant as basis for directed verdict. Banderer v. Gunther Foundry Mach. & Supply Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 851. When defendant pleads non-joint liability the burden of proving joint liability is on plaintiff. Lasman v. Harts, 112 Ill. App. 82.

49. By Code Civ. Proc. § 1869, it does not devolve on a plaintiff to prove his negative allegations. Holmes v. Warren, 145 Cal. 457, 78 P. 954. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 367, requiring a denial of the execution of a written instrument to be under oath, does not change the burden of proof. Fudge v. Marquell [Ind.] 73 N. E. 895. Plaintiff need prove only facts necessary to constitute a cause of action; hence unnecessary allegations, anticipating a defense, denied by defendant, do not shift the burden of proof on such defense from defendant. Bell v. Pleasant, 145 Cal. 410, 78 P. 957.

50. See 3 C. L. 1339. Only the most general holdings are here given; as to relevancy of evidence to a particular issue, see title treating the subject-matter in issue.

51. Evidence is relevant if it has any legitimate tendency to prove any matter in issue. Healey v. Bartlett [N. H.] 59 A. 617. Questions adapted to elicit statements on which a legitimate argument can be based in support of a claim or defense are relevant. Norman Printers' Supply Co. v. Ford, 77 Conn. 461, 59 A. 499. Any fact is admissible which reasonably tends to throw any light on the subject-matter contested. Thus, jury entitled to know all circumstances surrounding parties with reference to property or transaction in issue, so that it may know which party's claims are true. Farmers' State Bank v. Yenney [Neb.] 102 N. W. 617.

ILLUSTRATIONS. Held relevant: In action for damages to land from locomotive smoke, etc., from tunnel, testimony as to effect of smoke, etc., on other lands similarly situated, is relevant. Baltimore Belt R. Co. v. Sattler [Md.] 59 A. 654. In action for fire from sparks from engine, evidence that cinders were found on roof of burned building day before fire is relevant. Gorham Mfg. Co. v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 60 A. 638. To show brain injury as result of accident, it is competent to show mental condition before injury and after, up to time of trial. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Lawrence, 211 Ill. 373, 71 N. E. 1024. Where two semaphores worked in unison, evidence that a red light shone on one track was relevant on issue whether such light shone on adjacent track. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Vipond, 212 Ill. 199, 72 N. E. 22. Evidence that defendants procured indemnity insurance against accidents in an elevator admissible as tending to prove control of elevator by them. Perkins v. Rice, 187 Mass. 28, 72 N. E. 323. Evidence that railway employes worked on a mail crane admissible to show the railway company erected and maintained it. Western R. of Ala. v. Cleghorn [Ala.] 39 So. 133. Condition of two cars which collided may be shown on issue of speed of train. Elgin, A. & S. Traction Co. v. Wilson [Ill.] 75 N. E. 436. On issue of fraud in a sale, evidence of financial condition is admissible but should be confined to time of sale. Fabian v. Traeger, 215 Ill. 220, 74 N. E. 131. Where fraud in procuring insurance on goods is charged, and false swearing after the fire, testimony as to value of goods based on what witnesses saw in the warehouse was relevant. Prudential Fire Ins. Co. v. Alley [Va.] 51 S. E. 812. On the issue of damage caused by burning over land, evidence of another owner that his land had been similarly burned over and was not permanently injured but improved, was relevant though the parcels of land were not shown to be similarly situated. Castner v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 126 Iowa, 158, 102 N. W. 499. Whether railroad track had been worked so that tracks of steer had been obliterated relevant to show position of animal when struck and whether obliteration of tracks was intentional. Klay v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 126 Iowa, 671, 102 N. W. 526. Whether witness ever heard defendant request plaintiff to do any work admissible in action for services based on implied contract. Grotjan v. Rice [Wis.] 102 N. W. 551. In action for breach of covenant permitting lessee to go on adjoining land to shore leased property, expert testimony that shoring of building from lessor's other land was unnecessary was relevant and material. Levy v. Tiger, 90 N. Y. S. 366. Evidence of hole in roadbed relevant where petition alleged that rail extended above ground, and earth was washed away from it. El Paso Elec. R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 718. Letter containing statements of plaintiff inconsistent with claim in suit erroneously excluded. Lembeck v. Steifel [N. J. Err. & App.] 59 A. 460. In suit for cancellation of deeds for duress, evidence of condition of plaintiff mentally, immediately after the transaction in issue, was relevant. McClelland v. Bullis [Colo.] 81 P. 771. In proving noxious effects of odors, persons other than plaintiff may testify that they were nauseated and made sick by them, the court instructing that damages were recoverable by plaintiff only for his own sickness and discomfort. Fairbank Co. v. Bahre, 112 Ill. App. 290; Bowman v. Hartman, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 264. There being no evidence of a change in a testator's mental condition after arriving at maturity, evidence of condition thereafter and a reasonable time before has tendency to show capacity at time of execution of will. In re Wheelock's Will, 76 Vt. 235, 56 A. 1013. Deed admissible when description covered at least a part of the land described in the declaration in ejectment. Marsh v. Bennett [Fla.] 38 So. 237. Facts tending to show one's possession or finances may prove whether certain money or property came to him. Bank account admissible. Wright v. Davis, 72 N. H. 448, 57 A. 335. In action for injuries to child from electric wires, evidence of voltage carried in wires in city generally, of the effect of crossing, and in regard to insulation, was relevant on issues of negligence. Nagle v. Hake, 123 Wis. 256, 101 N. W. 409. Pipe line statements held relevant on issue of fraudulent representations as to flow of oil, though statements themselves were not shown to be correct. Barnsdall v. O'Day [C. C. A.] 134 F. 828. In action for excessive levy where plaintiff is allowed to show market value of property levied on, defendant may show relative amount realized from public judicial sale as compared with ordinary market value. Mills v. Larrance, 111 Ill. App. 140. Evidence that on former trial a witness had been asked to point out plaintiff, in the court room, and that she had failed to do so, was admissible on issue whether she knew him. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Boykin [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1163. Measurement by witness of place pointed out by prosecutor as place where crime was committed admissible. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846.

Held irrelevant: In action by payee against maker of note, evidence of an indorsement is irrelevant. Burns v. Goddard [S. C.] 51 S. E. 915. In personal injury action against street railway company, evidence that no reports of the accident had been sent in by employes, and that company had not heard of it from anyone, is inadmissible. Guenther v. Metropolitan R. Co., 23 App. D. C. 493. Proof of doctor's bills inadmissible in personal injury action without proof of reasonableness of charges and of payment of the bills. Klingaman v. Fish & Hunter Co. [S. D.] 102 N. W. 601. Where letter of owner offering land at certain price was introduced, offered evidence in rebuttal that writer had nothing to do with land or its management, some time before the letter, irrelevant. Kaufman v. Pittsburg, C. & W. R. Co. [Pa.] 60 A. 2. In action to recover contract price for water furnished during a particular period, evidence of condition of reservoir and sufficiency of supply at a subsequent time is irrelevant. Ephrata Water Co. v. Ephrata Borough, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 353. Whether plaintiff's doctor bills had been paid wholly or in part was immaterial in personal injury action. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Haverstick [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 34. Non-residence of a person in a village cannot be shown by proof that the same name is found in the directory of a city in a different part of the state, especially when date of directory is not shown. State v. Rosenthal, 123 Wis. 442, 102 N. W. 49. Evidence of purchaser of a horse after its injury by a street car as to its condition, such condition not being connected with the injury, should have been stricken. Fisher v. New York City R. Co., 90 N. Y. S. 348. Testimony calling for comparison of corn on different tracts of land inadmissible, the tracts being shown to be dissimilar. Story v. Nidiffer, 146 Cal. 549, 80 P. 692. In action for death at a railroad crossing, evidence of number of other crossings within a half mile of place where decedent was struck to collateral matters not pleaded [52] or otherwise placed in issue,[53] not relating to the transaction [54] or subject matter [55] in issue, and furnishing no legal inference as to

was irrelevant. Stewart v. North Carolina R. Co., 136 N. C. 385, 48 S. E. 793. Introduction of lease from defendant to plaintiff erroneous in action against defendant for trespass for wrongfully foreclosing chattel mortgage. Tanton v. Boomgaarden, 111 Ill. App. 37. Ordinance providing where cars should stop at street intersections inadmissible to prove where a car should have stopped when turning a corner. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Brown, 112 Ill. App. 351. Ordinance restricting speed of trains inadmissible to prove contributory negligence of fireman on engine of one of two colliding trains, since such fireman did not have control of operation of train. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Vipond, 112 Ill. App. 558. Where expert testified that a cave-in might occur in a properly timbered mine, evidence of causes that might produce a cave-in was properly excluded, it not being in evidence that any of such causes existed at the mine in question. Mountain Copper Co. v. Van Buren [C. C. A.] 133 F. 1. Question as to rate of interest at which money could be invested for long term of years, too remote on question of damages, since rate changes. Lakeside Mfg. Co. v. Worcester, 186 Mass. 552, 72 N. E. 81. In action by consignor, who had sought to stop goods in transit, against a purchaser from the consignee, to recover the goods, a letter from the attorney of the consignee to such purchaser, demanding payment, is inadmissible. Delta Bag Co. v. Kearns, 112 Ill. App. 269. Whether a sum would have been paid by a beneficial association if dues had been paid on certain date, immaterial. Wells & McComas Council No. 14, Junior Order U. A. M. v. Littleton [Md.] 60 A. 22. Witness could not testify to condition of light at place visited by him without a showing that such place was that where the crime in question was committed. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Inventory and appraisement of property in settlement of estate inadmissible to show acts of ownership over property by deceased in his lifetime. Nathan v. Dierssen, 146 Cal. 63, 79 P. 739.

52. In general, evidence is admissible to prove facts pleaded and not admitted. Greenlee v. Mosnat, 126 Iowa, 330, 101 N. W. 1122. Testimony irrelevant because not responsive to allegations of complaint. Bowick v. American Pipe Mfg. Co., 69 S. C. 360, 48 S. E. 276. Evidence that injuries were permanent inadmissible, such fact not being pleaded. Wallace v. New York City R. Co., 92 N. Y. S. 766. Where charge in personal injury action was only ordinary negligence, evidence of the arrest of the conductor and motorman after the accident was irrelevant. Chicago City R. Co. v. Uhter, 212 Ill. 174, 72 N. E. 195. Where one party pleaded an agreed boundary line, and the other traversed the allegation, the latter could not show that the agreement was under a mistake, this being inconsistent with the pleading. Berry v. Evans [Ky.] 89 S. W. 12. The party pleading the agreement could show statements of the other relating to the agreement. Id.

53. Evidence relating to facts not made an issue is inadmissible. Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290. Evidence must be relevant to issues made. Mitchell Square Bale Ginning Co. v. Grant [Ala.] 38 So. 855; Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc. v. King [Ill.] 75 N. E. 166. Only evidence tending to prove issues relevant. Henderson v. Henderson [Ind.] 75 N. E. 269. Evidence of time required by experienced shipper familiar with premises to remove goods is inadmissible when issue is time required by deputy sheriff and assistants. Commonwealth v. Middleby [Mass.] 73 N. E. 208. While only issue was whether defendant had backed out of agreement for exchange of lands, evidence of fraud inducing the making of the agreement was irrelevant. Blumberg v. Pecarsky, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 568. Evidence is incompetent where tending to show negligence other than that alleged in the petition, or to establish a theory different than the one upon which the case is being tried. Welever v. Williams, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 407.

54. In action for false imprisonment in eleemosynary institution, evidence of the beating of others than plaintiff was irrelevant. Smith v. Sisters of the Good Shepherd [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1083. In action for conversion of logs evidence of attempts to steal logs belonging to others is inadmissible. Seymour v. Bruske [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 145, 103 N. W. 613. In action for dishonor of check, evidence of previous dishonor of another check was inadmissible. Sprowl v. Southern Nat. Bank [Ky.] 86 S. W. 1117. In suit to cancel conveyance, for fraud, evidence that plaintiff had since been defrauded of another lot by another person is inadmissible. Obst v. Unnerstall, 184 Mo. 383, 83 S. W. 450. Defense to action for price of stove being that it was worthless, evidence of a third person that he had also bought a stove of plaintiff which proved to be worthless was inadmissible. Lander v. Sheehan [Mont.] 79 P. 406. Evidence of other transaction with which defendant was not connected, irrelevant. Stone & Co. v. Mulvaine [Ill.] 75 N. E. 421. In suit to enjoin change of location of irrigation ditch over plaintiff's land, what defendants did on another's land was irrelevant. Vestal v. Young [Cal.] 82 P. 383. Evidence regarding an injury suffered in a prior accident, and consultation with a lawyer concerning it, inadmissible. City of Dallas v. Muncton [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 431. In action for injuries from being shot, evidence that on a former occasion, unconnected with shooting difficulty, defendant showed witness how quickly he could draw a pistol was inadmissible. Johnston v. Wells [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 70. Where incendiarism is defense in action on fire insurance policy, proof of fires other than that on which the action is based is irrelevant. Colonial Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Ellinger, 112 Ill. App. 302. Where, in action on fire insurance policy, defense was that plaintiff set the fire, evidence tending to show that plaintiff had advised the burning of another stock in which he had an interest, and that the stock was in fact burned, was too remote, the incendiary origin of the second fire not being clearly shown. Pala-facts in dispute [56] but tending rather to introduce collateral issues which the adverse party is not bound to be prepared to meet,[57] is usually excluded as too remote.[58] But whether evidence which is relevant, but only remotely so, shall be admitted or excluded, rests largely in the discretion of the court.[59]

On the issue of negligence, evidence of other similar accidents is inadmissible [60]

tine Ins. Co. v. Santa Fe Mercantile Co. [N. M.] 82 P. 363. In civil assault and battery, evidence of former assaults of plaintiff is irrelevant to show that he only employed a physician when he intended to bring suit. Lowe v. Ring, 123 Wis. 107, 101 N. W. 381. Where vendee in fraudulent sale case said he borrowed money to pay for stock from a third person, a judgment against the third person, including his testimony in supplementary proceedings that he was penniless, was inadmissible for the creditors. Morimura v. Samaha, 25 App. D. C. 189.

55. Testimony regarding town meetings, and copies of records thereof, called to consider propositions to convey land other than that in suit, properly excluded. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. Evidence that one part of beach had long been public property proves nothing as to ownership of another part. Id. An opinion of the New York court of appeals on the validity of a contract like the one in suit is inadmissible where the contract is to be performed in Indiana and must therefore be construed with reference to the law of the latter state. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Teeters [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1014. In action on attachment bond, it is error to read to the jury the opinion of the appellate court in an appeal in the attachment suit, especially since it was admitted that the attachment was unsuccessful. State v. Parsons [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 1019. Evidence of what an old inhabitant said regarding public rights to certain land properly excluded because not confined to the particular land concerned in the suit. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

56. On an issue whether goods were sold on the credit of a married woman or her husband, evidence that she had rented rooms was irrelevant. Hughes v. McHan, 121 Ga. 499, 49 S. E. 590. Value of water power at certain town irrelevant when not shown to be same as at mill in question. Lakeside Mfg. Co. v. Worcester, 186 Mass. 552, 72 N. E. 81. Whether one mule was sick is not proved by showing condition of others, the disease not being contagious. Moulton v. Gibbs, 105 Ill. App. 104. In action for damages from smoke coming from defendant's premises, evidence that others than plaintiff were annoyed is inadmissible. Kuhn v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 111 Ill. App. 323. In action by passenger for injuries, whether other passengers had complained of injuries and sent in claims were collateral and remote matters. Foss v. Portsmouth, etc., R. Co. [N. H.] 60 A. 747. Evidence of value of services is irrelevant when it appears there was an express contract specifying the price. O'Connell v. King, 26 R. I. 544, 59 A. 926.

57. Where a witness testified to a specific charge of immorality against a witness, testimony of the person said to have made the charge was held irrelevant, introducing a collateral issue. Hofacre v. Monticello [Iowa] 103 N. W. 488.

58. Award of damages in another condemnation proceeding held too remote. Lakeside Mfg. Co. v. Worcester, 186 Mass. 552, 72 N. E. 81. Evidence of votes of town to appoint agent to sell stone on seashore too remote on issue of public or private ownership of a particular part of the beach. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. Where plaintiff, in suit to determine adverse claims to realty, showed paper title by chain of recorded deeds to 1829, evidence of old inhabitants and former selectmen of town that they had never heard of claims of private ownership was held too remote to establish claims of the town that the property in question was a public beach. Id. Evidence that other members of a decedent's family had died from pulmonary tuberculosis held properly excluded as too remote on issue of whether decedent suffered from this disease. Dickinson v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 68.

59. Not all logically probative matter is entitled to be admitted as evidence. The admission or exclusion of matter of slight significance, or only remotely connected with the fact to be proved, rests to some extent, though not wholly, in the discretion of the court. Thus cost price of property may or may not be admissible on the issue of value, according to conditions of sale or other circumstances. Rosenstein v. Fair Haven & W. R. Co. [Conn.] 60 A. 1061. On issue how plaintiff fell off steps, evidence of convictions for selling beer, to rebut denial of evidence that plaintiff did not sell it, held too remote. Lambert v. Hamlin [N. H.] 59 A. 941. In personal injury action, exclusion of evidence regarding cause of another fall on previous evening held proper exercise of court's discretion. Id. In action for breach of contract to deliver lumber on March 21, 1903, it was not an abuse of discretion to admit evidence of the value of lumber at place of delivery on March 7, 1903, and in May following. Nicola Bros. Co. v. Sperr Box & Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 914. There being no other way to identify a certain wood wagon behind which plaintiff was driving before a collision, and its height being an issue, testimony as to height of ordinary wood wagon in the city was competent. Lightfoot v. Winnebago Traction Co., 123 Wis. 479, 102 N. W. 30. In keeping irrelevant evidence out of the case the judge must have regard to the particular circumstances involved in the issue. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

60. On issue whether condition of railroad track was negligent, evidence of other similar accidents at the same place is inadmissible. Gregory v. Detroit United R. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 546.

except to show notice;[61] and evidence of long use of a device[62] or existence of a condition,[63] without resulting injury or accidents, is also excluded. What is customary may be shown on the issue of negligence[64] but not to excuse negligence,[65] and evidence of an individual custom is incompetent.[66] To prove the existence of a dangerous condition at a particular time, proof of such condition before or after such time is admissible when it is shown that there has been no change.[67] Proof of a defective condition at places other than that where the accident in suit occurred is inadmissible.[68] Proof of repairs subsequent to the time of an injury is also inadmissible.[69]

61. Proof of previous accidents from the same cause is admissible to show knowledge of the dangerous condition. Previous accidents by falling into unguarded ash pit. Withers v. Brooklyn Real Estate Exch., 94 N. Y. S. 328. In action for injuries received in runaway caused by steam whistle evidence that a team had been frightened by the whistle on another occasion was admissible to show whistle in that place dangerous. Powell v. Nevada, etc., R. Co. [Nev.] 78 P. 978. Evidence that clips attaching shafts to wagon had broken on other occasions, to show notice to owner, must be confined to breaks before the accident in question. Schlesinger v. Scheunemann, 114 Ill. App. 459. Evidence as to the condition of a sidewalk subsequent to an injury caused thereby, or as to injuries subsequent to the one in suit, is not admissible to show knowledge. City of Chicago v. Vesey, 105 Ill. App. 191. Previous specific acts of negligence by engineer admissible to show incompetency and knowledge thereof by master. Conover v. Neher-Ross Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 281. Specific acts of negligence by a brakeman could be shown on issue of company's knowledge of his incompetency, it being also shown that the conductor knew of such acts and that it was his duty to report them. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 89 S. W. 29. But it was reversible error to show that the brakeman had been out until 4 o'clock the night before he fell asleep while on duty, since knowledge of this fact by the company was not shown. Id.

62. Evidence that a particular device had been used a number of years without injury resulting therefrom, inadmissible. Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Vallowe, 115 Ill. App. 621.

63. Evidence that coal chute had existed in same condition five years and that no injury had occurred there is inadmissible on issue of negligence in locating it close to track. Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Vallowe, 214 Ill. 124, 73 N. E. 416. In action for injury on highway, evidence that others had driven over the place about the same time without trouble was inadmissible. Garske v. Ridgeville, 123 Wis. 503, 102 N. W. 22.

64. In injury action caused by alleged defective chain, evidence of usual and customary manner of fastening bolt was admissible. Berg v. United States Leather Co. [Wis.] 104 N. W. 60. Evidence of customary way of placing team in unloading freight from cars, and that plaintiff conformed to custom, admissible on issue of contributory negligence. Bachant v. Boston, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 642. Evidence that it was customary to blow whistle at a certain curve admissible on issue of negligence in failing to require, by rules, engineers to whistle there. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Minter [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 477. Evidence of a custom of a railway company to notify regular trains of presence of work trains, admissible. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 89 S. W. 29. On issue of delay in carriage of cattle between two points, evidence of the time taken to make the trip on other occasions was admissible. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Gunter [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 938. On issue of negligent delay in cattle shipment, evidence of customary length of time consumed by a run between the two points is admissible. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Crowley [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 342. Custom of street railway company of allowing passengers to ride on running board competent on issue of negligence, though knowledge of the custom by person injured was not claimed. Stone v. Lewiston, etc., R. Co., 99 Me. 243, 59 A. 56.

65. That it was custom of other companies to put worn rails from main track on side track inadmissible on issue of negligence of defendant company. Chicago & G. T. R. Co. v. Kinnare, 115 Ill. App. 132.

66. Whether housemover always looked after electric wires himself. Nagle v. Hake, 123 Wis. 256, 101 N. W. 409.

67. Evidence as to condition of defective switch eight days after accident not too remote when there was evidence that its condition had remained unchanged. Logan v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 183 Mo. 582, 82 S. W. 126. Condition of semaphore soon after railroad accident held competent in view of all the evidence. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Vipond, 112 Ill. App. 558. Testimony of witness who examined a railroad crossing held to show that the condition of the crossing had not been changed since the accident in question, so that his description of it was relevant. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. McAdams [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1076. Evidence of condition of boiler a year or two before an accident was admissible when plaintiff said he would show condition had remained unchanged. Shea v. Pacific Power Co., 145 Cal. 680, 79 P. 373. Condition of railing on stairway day after accident inadmissible without showing there had been no change. Merchants' Loan & Trust Co. v. Boucher, 115 Ill. App. 101. Questions not tending to show repairs or changes but to show a condition of wires existing at the time of an accident, held proper. North Amherst Home Tel. Co. v. Jackson, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 386.

68. In action for death from crossed electric wires, evidence that defendant's wires were defective at other times and places is

Proof of similar independent transactions is usually inadmissible to show the nature or terms of an agreement,[70] except in the case of a written agreement distinctly referring to a previous transaction;[71] but may be admissible to show a conspiracy[72] or general scheme to defraud.[73]

To prove the value of realty, sales of other lands in the vicinity may be shown, if such lands are shown to be similar in character and location,[74] and if the sales are not too remote in time,[75] but mere offers are usually inadmissible.[76] Rental irrelevant. United Elec. Light & Power Co. v. State [Md.] 60 A. 248. In action for injuries from electric wire, evidence of defective insulators at points other than that where injury occurred was inadmissible. North Amherst Home Tel. Co. v. Jackson, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 386. Evidence of condition of other places in city is admissible, not to show city's negligence, but to show plaintiff was not negligent in choosing route he followed. Hollingworth v. Ft. Dodge, 125 Iowa, 627, 101 N. W. 455.

69. Achey v. Marion, 126 Iowa, 47, 101 N. W. 435. Evidence of repairs to machine after an injury inadmissible to prove negligence. Going v. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 784. Evidence showing that four years after accident wooden railing on stairway had been replaced by iron railing, erroneously admitted. Merchants' Loan & Trust Co. v. Boucher, 115 Ill. App. 101. In action for damages for smoke, etc., allowed to escape from defendant's premises, evidence that smoke stacks were raised after commencement of action is inadmissible to prove negligence, but is admissible to show that lowness of stacks caused injury complained of. Kuhn v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 111 Ill. App. 323.

70. On issue of agreement to pay commissions on sales to certain customer, contract between parties relative to sales to another customer was inadmissible. Abrams v. Manhattan Consumers' Brewing Co., 90 N. Y. S. 425. In action for money had and received, receipt showing payment of money between strangers inadmissible. Vacca v. Martucci, 90 N. Y. S. 356. In action on note, whether plaintiff's agreement with defendant was different from that he usually made in such cases was irrelevant. Burns v. Goddard [S. C.] 51 S. E. 915. Evidence of what was done under similar contracts with other parties is sometimes admissible to show what the contract in issue is. Where deed to right-of-way provided for construction of "cattle or wagon pass" on plaintiff's premises, evidence that railway had built undergrade crossings for others who had similar contracts was admissible. Owens v. Carthage & W. R. Co., 110 Mo. App. 320, 85 S. W. 987.

71. Where there is evidence that in making a contract a previous transaction was distinctly referred to, evidence of the previous transaction is admissible. Sullivan v. Mauston Milling Co., 123 Wis. 360, 101 N. W. 679.

72. In a civil action based on conspiracy to defraud, evidence of subsequent like acts and transactions, closely allied in time, before the end of the conspiracy, is admissible to show the fraudulent character of the act in question. Wright v. Stewart, 130 F. 905.

73. Where the knowledge or intent of a person charged with fraud is in issue, evidence of other similar transactions is admissible, within reasonable limits. Patterson v. First Nat. Bank [Neb.] 102 N. W. 765. Where defense to action on note was that indorsement was procured by a trick, evidence that others were tricked in the same way is admissible. Yakima Valley Bank v. McAllister, 37 Wash. 566, 79 P. 1119. Where two sales were on the same day, made in the same manner, and to some extent between the same parties, evidence regarding one is admissible to show fraud in the other. Fabian v. Traeger, 215 Ill. 220, 74 N. E. 131. Where fraud is basis of defense to written instrument, evidence of like fraud against a third person is inadmissible, in the absence of any claim of a general scheme to defraud. Guckley v. Acme Food Co., 113 Ill. App. 210.

74. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Rottgering, 26 Ky. L. R. 1167, 83 S. W. 584. Price obtained at fair public sale held competent evidence of value of corn. Mayberry v. Lilly Mill Co., 112 Tenn. 564, 85 S. W. 401. The value of other similarly situated pieces of property as shown by sales or by the opinion of properly qualified witnesses, is admissible on the value of a particular price of property. Penobscot Chemical Fibre Co. v. Inhabitants of Bradley, 99 Me. 263, 59 A. 83. Evidence of purchases by witness of land in vicinity inadmissible without showing lands bought similar to defendant's in situation and otherwise. Kirby v. Panhandle & G. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 421, 88 S. W. 281. In condemnation proceedings, evidence as to what railroad paid for other tracts of land is irrelevant. Simons v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 129. When property to be condemned has no market value, market value of other property is irrelevant. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 248.

75. Price paid for land is admissible, if the time of purchase is not too remote. Guyandotte Valley R. Co. v. Buskirk [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 521. Price at which other lots in neighborhood sold a reasonable time before land in question was taken admissible on value. Union R. Co. v. Hunton [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 182. Sales of land in neighborhood of that to be condemned, a year or two before proceedings were instituted and before a drainage system had been completed, held irrelevant on value. Louisiana R. & Nav. Co. v. Xavier Realty [La.] 39 So. 1.

76. An offer for property is not admissible unless it is shown who made it, the knowledge of the person making it, and the good faith of the offer. State v. Nevada Cent. R. Co. [Nev.] 81 P. 99.

value may be shown,[77] but not the amount of insurance carried,[78] nor the value as returned for taxation.[79] The cost of a railroad may be shown.[80] Whether, in proving the value of personalty, offers,[81] cost price,[82] selling price,[83] or market value,[84] may be shown depends, usually, on the remoteness, in time or place, of such evidence.

In civil cases, evidence of the good or bad character of one whose reputation is not made an issue, is almost universally excluded as irrelevant and immaterial;[85] but if a person's reputation is put in issue, evidence in regard thereto is admitted.[86]

Testimony, not otherwise relevant, is usually held inadmissible merely to show that other testimony is probable or improbable;[87] but where there is a conflict, evidence of collateral facts is sometimes admitted to show that testimony on one side is more reasonable than that on the other,[88] or to corroborate a witness.[89] If evidence is relevant and material, it is admissible, though its admission incidentally lets

77. Rental value of property may be shown, in condemnation proceedings. Union R. Co. v. Hunton [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 182. But evidence of rent or net income from buildings on a lot is inadmissible to show value of lot exclusive of buildings. Springer v. Borden, 112 Ill. App. 168.

78. Evidence of the amount of insurance on property is not usually relevant on the issue of its value. Refusal of such evidence not reversible error. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Lucas [C. C. A.] 136 F. 374.

79. Rendition of property for taxation is no criterion of value. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Goswick [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 423. Assessment for taxes not controlling as standard of actual value. Thompson v. Williams [Md.] 60 A. 26. Tax lists inadmissible on value of land in condemnation proceedings. Suffolk & C. R. Co. v. West End Land & Improvement Co., 137 N. C. 330, 49 S. E. 350. Valuation for taxation of other property, or a valuation of the same property in previous years is inadmissible on the issue of its value. Penobscot Chemical Fibre Co. v. Inhabitants of Bradley, 99 Me. 263, 59 A. 83. Lessees return of property for taxation not conclusive on issue of value in condemnation proceedings. Sanitary Dist. v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 248.

80. Cost of railroad as shown by amount of stock is admissible on its value, since it is presumed to be worth what it cost until the contrary is shown. State v. Nevada Cent. R. Co. [Nev.] 81 P. 99.

81. Offer of $100 for dog two years before it was killed inadmissible in action for damages for its death. Southern R. Co v. Parnell [Ala.] 37 So. 925.

82. Price paid is competent on market value but is not conclusive. Doll v. Hennessy Mercantile Co. [Mont.] 81 P. 625. Cost price of furniture admissible to prove market value. Osmers v. Furey [Mont.] 81 P. 345. Cost price of goods admissible on value when destroyed by fire. Glaser v. Home Ins. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 524. Value of property when invoiced at another time and place is inadmissible on issue of value when destroyed, without a foundation showing such values the same, or showing the difference. Lundvick v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 429.

83. Selling price is some evidence of value, and witness should have been permitted to give it on cross-examination. Farnsworth v. Miller [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1100. Where stock has no market value, evidence of what it sold for in a bona fide transaction is competent. Humphreys v. Minnesota Clay Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 338. Evidence of what personalty sold for in 1903 irrelevant in action for conversion which took place in 1901, there being no evidence that value was same in 1901 as in 1903. Alling v. Weissman, 77 Conn. 394, 59 A. 419.

84. In action against carrier for injuries to horses, evidence of market value at points other than their destination was irrelevant. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Stephens [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 933.

85. Where issue was validity of deed, character of one who took acknowledgment is immaterial on issue of forgery. West v. Houston Oil Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 343. Character of plaintiff held not to have been put in issue so as to admit evidence of reputation for honesty. Mattingly v. Shortell [Ky.] 85 S. W. 215. Plaintiff's character is not put in issue by allegation in answer, and supporting proof, that he fraudulently converted $1,000 belonging to his firm. Gordon v. Miller [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 943. Proper to exclude testimony that claimant against an estate, who testified in her own behalf, had another husband living when she married decedent, and that she was unchaste. Taylor v. Taylor's Estate [Mich.] 101 N. W. 832. Evidence relating to moral character inadmissible to affect credibility. Camden & S. R. Co. v. Rice [C. C. A.] 137 F. 326. In trespass for assault and battery, evidence of defendant's reputation in the community as a peaceable, law-abiding man, is inadmissible. Coruth v. Jones [Vt.] 60 A. 814.

86. In assault and battery, defendant alleged he struck because he knew plaintiff was pugnacious and of a violent disposition. Lowe v. Ring, 123 Wis. 107, 101 N. W. 381.

87. Brown v. Harris [Mich.] 102 N. W. 960.

88. Such evidence should be received with caution. Philips v. Mo, 91 Minn. 311, 97 N. W. 969. Impossibility of performance of an alleged agreement may be proved to show improbability that such agreement was made. McNamara v. Douglas [Conn.] 61 A. 368.

89. Circumstances surrounding certain conversation admissible to identify the time and show why witness remembered a certain statement was not made. Sexton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 617, in other irrelevant matter;[89] but the effect of such evidence should be properly restricted by the court.[91]

§ 3. Competency or kind of evidence in general.[92]—Where one party introduces incompetent evidence, he cannot complain of the introduction by the other of similar evidence addressed to the same point.[93] The mere fact that evidence is cumulative does not justify its exclusion.[94] Certain evidence being competent, other evidence necessary to explain and render intelligible such material evidence is also admissible.[95]

§ 4. Best and secondary evidence.[96]—Evidence must, in general, be the best of which the nature of the case admits.[97] Under this rule, original written docu-

88 S. W. 348. Where evidence of a statement, made at the time of an accident is introduced, the other party may introduce evidence relating to an entirely different accident in order to show that such statement was made at that time and not at the time of the accident in issue. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Malone [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1018, 88 S. W. 389.

90. That evidence admissible as tending to prove allegations of the complaint tends also to prove wrongs not charged does not render it inadmissible. Objecting party must be satisfied with instructions limiting the effect of such evidence. Plourd v. Jarvis, 99 Me. 161, 58 A. 774. On the issue of knowledge by a witness of an approach to a walk where plaintiff was injured, and of its dangerous condition, the time when it was removed may be shown, though proof of a subsequent change is thus shown. Achey v. Marion, 126 Iowa, 47, 101 N. W. 435. Evidence of a conversation, to show admissions by a party, is competent though the witness incidentally repeats statements which he said at the time had been made to him by others. Fitzpatrick v. Tucker [Kan.] 78 P. 828.

91. Where evidence admitted upon the trial relates only to a single issue, the court, upon proper request, should instruct the jury to consider it only in the proper connection. Original petition properly restricted to issue of contradicting a party by showing inconsistent claims. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Slaughter [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1085. Copy of record of vote in town meeting held properly restricted to proof of a particular issue in order to keep out irrelevant matters. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. The court should by proper instructions, restrict evidence admitted for impeachment only, to that issue, and not allow its consideration as substantive evidence. Straight Creek Coal Co. v. Haney's Adm'r [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1114.

92. See 3 C. L. 1345. This section is intended to include only a few miscellaneous holdings not covered by the general rules treated in the following sections.

93. One party having introduced telegrams, other could put in other telegrams and letters relating to same matter. German-American Ins. Co. v. Brown [Ark.] 87 S. W. 135. Party cannot object to evidence as irrelevant which is introduced to rebut evidence which he has introduced. Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290. One cannot complain of evidence when he has himself introduced evidence of the same kind. Policeman's Benevolent Ass'n v. Ryce, 115 Ill. App. 95. One who elicits testimony from a witness cannot thereafter question the competency of the witness or the evidence so introduced. Barker v. Citizens' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Mich.] 99 N. W. 866. Plaintiff having been permitted to give secondary rather than the best evidence, similar evidence by defendant to contradict plaintiff should have been received. McCormack v. Mandelbaum, 102 App. Div. 302, 92 N. Y. S. 425. Evidence cannot be complained of by a party who introduces other evidence to rebut that already in. Ehrhart v. Rork, 114 Ill. App. 509. Party introducing evidence of offers of compromise cannot complain of introduction of similar evidence by other party. Cook v. Lantz, 116 Ill. App. 472. Where evidence of assets of plaintiff in insurance case was shown, to show a motive for burning a stock for insurance, evidence in rebuttal to show solvency was proper. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Santa Fe Mercantile Co. [N. M.] 82 P. 363. Defendant having shown conclusions from books, etc., too voluminous to be produced in court, plaintiff could contradict same by any evidence available to her. Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc. v. King [Ill.] 75 N. E. 166. In action for damages to mill pond and race, a witness stated he was a former owner, held testimony on cross-examination that he sold to another was not objectionable as oral proof of sale. Neely v. Detroit Sugar Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 664. Expert opinion having been admitted on one side, the other side may have similar evidence on the same matters. Expert opinion on efficiency of certain features in electric light plant. Kernan v. Crook, Horner & Co. [Md.] 59 A. 753.

94. Applied where testimony of additional expert was not given. Crago v. Cedar Rapids, 123 Iowa, 48, 98 N. W. 354.

95. Answer to question being competent as an admission, the question could be shown though it involved an opinion. Hayward v. Scott, 114 Ill. App. 531.

96. See 3 C. L. 1345.

97. The unwritten law of another state may be proved by parol evidence. Rieck v. Griffin [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1061. A witness may state whether a quarantine is being enforced in a certain town; the ordinance authorizing it is not the only evidence of the fact. Mitchiner v. Western Union Tel. Co., 70 S. C. 522, 50 S. E. 190. Sheet of paper containing record of minutes of stockholders' meeting, signed by secretary and bearing president's initials, admissible, when it was not shown that such record was tran-ments,[98] books of account[99] and records,[1] are the best evidence of their contents; but scribed into a book. Chott v. Tivoli Amusement Co., 114 Ill. App. 178. City clerk may testify that a claim for injuries had been presented and disallowed. Jewell City v. Van Meter [Kan.] 79 P. 149. Though a written order on an employer was given as payment on accident insurance policy, the reason why such order was not paid was admissible. Hagins v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 683. Testimony by a governor that he signed a bill inadvertently and immediately erased his name is the best evidence of want of approval as required by law, and does not vary or modify the language of a law. Commissioners of Allegany County v. Warfield [Md.] 60 A. 599. Testimony of certain witnesses that they were street commissioners at different times and that certain acts were done by them as such officers, was competent to prove such acts official. Conner v. Nevada [Mo.] 86 S. W. 256. A railroad president may testify to intention of the company to make certain improvements and the production of a record vote is not necessary to prove such intention. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Offield [Conn.] 60 A. 740. Writing is best evidence of its contents, but not best evidence of what one person told another as to its contents. Minnesota Lumber Co. v. Hobbs [Ga.] 49 S. E. 783. Record of deed in year of its execution best evidence to show mutilation of original and that parts thereof were missing. Senterfeit v. Shealy [S. C.] 51 S. E. 142. Contents of petition filed in a court of record in a county other than that where the trial took place should be proved by a certified copy of the record and not by parol. Parker v. Ballard [Ga.] 51 S. E. 465. A transcript of a witness' testimony on a former trial is the best evidence thereof. Where transcript was available, it was error to permit jurors in the case to tell what a witness' testimony was. Estes v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 110 Mo. App. 725, 85 S. W. 909. A stenogographer's minutes of testimony on a former trial is not the best evidence thereof in the sense that the testimony of one who heard it is secondary. Weinhandler v. Eastern Brewing Co., 92 N. Y. S. 792. Bought and sold notes made by a broker in negotiating a sale are not the contract itself but are mere memoranda of its terms, admissible to prove it, in the absence of any entry upon the sales book of the broker. Eau Claire Canning Co. v. Western Brokerage Co. 115 Ill. App. 71. In forgery case, it was proper to ask school official how he signed school warrants, it not being shown to be possible to produce all the warrants, and the evidence relating to a collateral matter. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

98. Tax deed best evidence of recitals therein. Easton v. Cranmer [S. D.] 102 N. W. 944. Parol evidence of contents of title bond inadmissible, loss of bond not being shown. Comb's Adm'x v. Krish [Ky.] 84 S. W. 562. Printed copy of contract inadmissible, no attempt being made to produce original or show inability to produce it. Chicago, W. & V. Coal Co. v. Moran, 110 Ill. App. 664. Abstract of title inadmissible in registration proceeding in absence of proof that original conveyances abstracted were lost or destroyed or could not be produced, or that abstracts had been made in ordinary course of business. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 30, § 36, and c. 116, §§ 23, 24. Glos v. Talcott, 213 Ill. 81, 72 N. E. 707. Neither record in land office nor certified transcript thereof is original evidence, and neither is admissible without proof of loss or destruction of deed or certificate, although Kirby's Dig. § 3064, provides that existence of record may be shown by certified transcript. Carpenter v. Dressler [Ark.] 89 S. W. 89. An assignment of a bank account being in writing, oral evidence was incompetent to prove it. Robbins v. Bank of M. & L. Jarmulowsky, 90 N. Y. S. 288. Written partnership agreement not having been shown to have been lost or destroyed could not be shown by parol. Doll v. Hennessy Mercantile Co. [Mont.] 81 P. 625. Agent's authority being in writing, writing should be produced or its absence explained. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Grimmon [Nev.] 81 P. 43. A letter introduced in evidence speaks for itself and the writer may not testify to his purpose in writing it. Clark v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 138 N. C. 25, 50 S. E. 446. Letter press copy of waybill not best evidence. Texas & P R. Co. v. Lynch [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 884. Letters of administration properly admitted over objection that there was nothing to show whether they were original or a copy, when they were apparently received as the original and objecting party did not show the contrary. Sharpe v. Hodges, 121 Ga. 798, 49 S. E. 775. In absence of a showing that viewers' report was not reduced to writing, oral evidence of an agreement between them and the owner allowing the latter to maintain gates, was incompetent. Allen v. Hopson, 26 Ky. L. R. 1148, 83 S. W. 575. Copy of answer in another action not best proof of admission by defendant that it managed the car in question. Mandelbaum v. New York City R. Co., 90 N. Y. S. 377. Original patent or certified copy is best evidence of grant of land from the state. Butt v. Mastin [Ala.] 39 So. 217. Exemplification of patent in records in land commissioner's office is not competent evidence of patent, absence of patent not being explained. Carpenter v. Smith [Ark.] 88 S. W. 976. Transcript of record of land office incompetent to prove patent. Covington v. Berry [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1005; Boynton v. Ashabraner [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1011. Printed offer of reward incompetent, when it was not shown why original could not be produced. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Santa Fe Mercantile Co. [N. M.] 82 P. 363.

99. Accountant could not testify to book accounts, no foundation having been laid as provided by Nev. Comp. Laws, § 3522. State v. Nevada Cent. R. Co. [Nev.] 81 P. 99. Improper to allow plaintiff to read memorandum taken from books. Engelman v. Anderson, 92 N. Y. S. 376. Alleged copies of book entries held secondary evidence. Bouldin v. Atlantic Ricemills Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 795. Statement of clerk as to what he found in a book in the office not the best evidence. Spencer v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 899. Where results of since only the best evidence available [2] is required to be produced, secondary evidence, such as oral testimony [3] or a duly authenticated [4] copy,[5] is admissible when the engine inspections were first entered in a scrapbook, and memoranda made therefrom by a clerk were afterwards signed by the inspector, such memoranda were only secondary evidence of what was in fact done. Manchester Assur. Co. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Or.] 79 P. 60.

1. Parol evidence of judgment of court for divorce is incompetent. Carhart v. Oddenkirk [Colo. App.] 79 P. 303. The court records are the best evidence to show by whom proceedings to revoke probate of will were dropped. Spencer v. Spencer [Mont.] 79 P. 320. In trespass for wrongful seizure and sale of property, plaintiff cannot show by constable what goods were sold; record should be produced. Mansfield v. Bell, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 447. Admission of parol evidence of what defendant said before committing magistrate was error, when the evidence on such preliminary examination had been reduced to writing and the record filed with the clerk of the circuit court as required by law. Bell v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 795. Parol evidence incompetent to show schedule of freight rates on file with interstate commerce commission. Sloop v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 111. Best evidence of a recommendation by a Master Mechanics' Association of a certain kind of spark arrester is the record of the vote of the association and not the oral statement of a member. Norwich Ins. Co. v. Oregon R. Co. [Or.] 78 P. 1025. Transcript of a lost record, filed in another court previous to the loss of the record, is the best secondary evidence of the contents of the original record. Southern R. Co. v. Seymour, 113 Tenn. 523, 83 S. W. 674. The record of the court where final judgment was rendered is the primary evidence of the contents of the entire record, regardless of the manner in which the court acquired jurisdiction. Thus, in case removed to Federal court, record of that court is best evidence. Id. Under Kirby's Dig. § 3064, making transcript of record of commissioner of state lands evidence of the facts therein stated, a certified transcript is evidence equal in dignity to the original. Boynton v. Ashabranner [Ark.] 88 S. W. 566. Parol evidence is inadmissible to prove probate proceedings in another state. A properly attested copy of the record is the only evidence thereof, under Code Civ. Proc. § 529. Mears v. Smith [S. D.] 102 N. W. 295.

2. When papers in divorce proceedings have been lost from files, docket entries and minutes of court are evidence of contents of the record. Given v. Given, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 467. Contract and warrant of attorney having been taken from record, entries in continuance docket were admissible to prove contents of contract. Mulhearn v. Roach, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 483. Lithograph copy of city map, of great age, used by city officials exclusively, admissible in evidence, where it appeared that the original, if there ever had been one, was lost, and the copy was the one kept in the city engineer's office. City of Houston v. Finnigan [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 470.

3. Contents of lost written instrument provable by parol. Richardson v. Morris, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 192. Certificate for wolf bounties having been lost or destroyed, both its issue and contents could be shown by other evidence. Bickerdicke v. State, 144 Cal. 698, 78 P. 277. Where a judgment is in general terms and the pleadings in the case have been lost, parol evidence is competent to prove what the issues in the case were. Holford v. James [C. C. A.] 136 F. 553. Parol proof of contents of answer in another case is admissible where the answer itself is shown to have been removed from the files. Meyer v. Purcell, 214 Ill. 62, 73 N. E. 392. When a subsequent will is lost or cannot be produced, parol evidence is competent to show that it contained a clause revoking the former will. Williams v. Miles [Neb.] 102 N. W. 482. Record of county court is best evidence of delivery and acceptance of sheriff's bond, but parol evidence is admissible, after proper formation is laid, as where record is silent. Baker County v. Huntington [Or.] 79 P. 187. Contents of ballots wrongfully destroyed by election judges may be shown by parol. State v. Conser, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 119. When original deed is lost, and was not recorded, oral evidence is admissible to show its execution and what was conveyed by it. Carpenter v. Jones [Ark.] 88 S. W. 871. Evidence of circumstances attending execution of deed admissible to show execution, deed having been lost. Garrett v. Spradling [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 293.

4. A copy of a lost paper is admissible when shown that it has been compared with the original and found correct. Lancaster v. Lee [S. C.] 51 S. E. 139. Where clerk testifies that he transcribed a deed, the record is admissible as a copy of the original, on proof of its execution, delivery and loss, even though the record has been held irregular because of noncompliance with registry laws. Lancaster v. Lee [S. C.] 51 S. E. 139.

5. Failure to produce original draft of alleged libel being accounted for, a printed copy as furnished the public is competent to prove its contents. Prewitt v. Wilson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 365. Transcript from court records containing copy of deed of trust, admissible after proof of loss and legal search for original, and proof of deed by subscribing witnesses not necessary. Masterson v. Harris [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 428. Where recovery cannot be based on original instrument because of unauthorized alterations therein, but may be based on an unchanged duplicate, proof of the contract by an office copy of the unchanged original is competent when the adverse party fails to produce the duplicate on notice. Hayes v. Wagner, 113 Ill. App. 299. That a deed is not an ancient one does not preclude its proof by certified copy of the land records, where the parties to it are not parties to the cause, since it is presumed that grantors were in possession at the time of execution. Dawson v. Town of Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. Existence of proper foundation has been laid by showing that the original has been lost or destroyed,[6] and that diligent but fruitless search has been made for it [7] by the proper person,[8] or that it is in the possession of the adverse party or his attorney, who has failed to produce it, after due notice to do so.[9] An alleged lost instrument must be proved to have been in existence and to have been duly executed.[10] Copies of copies lost deed may be proved by record of it, though record is void because deed was not entitled to record, being improperly acknowledged. Simmons v. Hewitt [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 188. A curative deed executed to cure defective acknowledgment of former deed which is lost, and the record of which is void, is competent evidence, though executed by a trustee without authority. Id.

6. Guilford Granite Co. v. Harrison Granite Co., 23 App. D. C. 1. The burden is upon one seeking to introduce a copy of a telegram to show loss of the original. Bond v. Hurd [Mont.] 78 P. 579. Secondary proof of contents of notice of injury competent after proof of loss or destruction of notice itself. Considine v. Dubuque, 126 Iowa, 283, 102 N. W. 102. Proof of execution of trustee's deed, of its loss, and of search for it, held sufficient to admit secondary evidence of its contents. McCaugh v. Young [Miss.] 37 So. 839. Oral evidence of contents of release admissible after proof of due execution of release and of its loss. Conant v. Jones, 120 Ga. 568, 48 S. E. 234.

7. Clerk having testified to diligent but unsuccessful search for original report of commissioners, proof by certified copy was proper. In re Webster, 94 N. Y. S. 1050. Evidence as to search for spindle containing prescriptions for liquor held insufficient to warrant secondary proof of prescriptions. Cullinan v. Hosmer, 100 App. Div. 148, 91 N. Y. S. 607. Where it is shown that the original had been delivered to the party seeking to introduce a copy, he must show that search has been made for it. Guilford Granite Co. v. Harrison Granite Co., 23 App. D. C. 1. Mere proof that plaintiffs did not have original patent is not a sufficient predicate for admission of certified copy of extract from tract book of probate judge's office. Butt v. Mastin [Ala.] 39 So. 217. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 30, § 36, relating to admission of records of instruments, testimony that a party had delivered a contract to another, that it had been recorded, and that it was not in his possession is not sufficient foundation for introduction of the record. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Brubaker [Ill.] 75 N. E. 523.

8. Parol evidence is not competent to prove the existence and contents of an instrument of record until it is shown that search has been made for it by the person charged with the custody thereof in the place where by law it ought to be kept. Parol evidence improperly admitted to prove existence and contents of administrator's sale bond. Shannon v. Summers [Miss.] 38 So. 345. Loss of the original should be proven by the custodian if possible. Hence proof of search for a letter in the office of those with whom it was left by others than the custodians was not sufficient as a foundation for secondary proof. Alabama Const. Co. v. Meador [Ala.] 39 So. 216.

9. Exclusion of secondary evidence of contents of letter proper when no reasonable notice to produce original was given. British American Ins. Co. v. Wilson, 77 Conn. 559, 60 A. 293. No demand being made upon addressees of telegram, who were in court, for the original, offer of a copy was properly refused. Brownlee v. Reiner [Cal.] 82 P. 324. Where policy is in defendant's possession and he has failed to produce it after notice to do so, secondary evidence of its contents is admissible. State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561. Where execution, record, and delivery by recorder to grantee of deed was proved, and on notice to produce it, attorneys announced it was not in their possession, the record of it was admissible. Uzzell v. Horn [S. C.] 51 S. E. 253. Original instruments being in counsel's hands at trial, and he failing to produce them when called upon, copies were competent. Wabash R. Co. v. Johnson, 114 Ill. App. 545. When a paper which, if in existence, must be under control of a party to the suit who must know that it is indispensable to his adversary, a notice to produce it is unnecessary. Dawes v. Dawes, 116 Ill. App. 36. Where effect of pleadings was to admit due execution of assignments, and copies had been attached to complaint at defendant's instance, and plaintiff proved demand on defendant for them, and inability to procure them, secondary evidence of such assignments was competent without further foundation in the complaint. City Bank of New Haven v. Thorp [Conn.] 61 A. 428. In action to recover for services rendered a county, the nature of the suit was equivalent to notice to defendant to produce the written claim which plaintiff had presented, since proof of such claim would be necessary. Hence, on failure to produce it, proof of its contents by parol was competent. Presidio County v. Clarke [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 475.

10. A lost will not probated nor proved as required by statute is no evidence of title. Myar v. Mitchell [Ark.] 80 S. W. 750.

NOTE. Presumption as to execution: A lost deed, the contents of which have been established by parol testimony, is presumed to have been executed in conformity with law. Christy v. Burch, 25 Fla. 942, 2 So. 258. By one court it was intimated that a copy of a will would have been admitted to probate, had the proponent shown the correctness of the copy, by whom it had been made, or from who procured. Jacques v. Horton, 76 Ala. 238. In Fletcher v. Horne, 75 Ga. 134, the attorney who made a copy of the lost deed to exhibit in a bill in equity, was allowed to testify to the correctness of such copy, it being sustained. But in Carter v. Wood, 103 Va. 68, 48 S. E. 553, copies of the record and of a deed were are inadmissible.[11] In the case of instruments executed in duplicate, each is primary evidence.[12] Hence a party who has lost his copy cannot prove its contents by parol where he has taken no steps to procure the production of the other copy.[13] Where a telegram is sent in reply to another the copy of the reply filed for transmission, and not the copy received by the addressee, is the original for the purpose of evidence.[14] Where weather conditions are exceptional, the impressions of witnesses may be given in regard thereto;[15] but reliable testimony concerning temperature can be expressed only in degrees as observed by the witness or recorded by signal service officers.[16]

Written evidence noticed to be produced should be presented at the hearing at the time it is called for by the noticing party.[17] Refusal then to produce is a ground of objection to the admission of the same writing, after secondary evidence of its contents has been offered because of such refusal, if the party who withheld it should then offer it.[18]

§ 5. Parol evidence to explain or vary writings.[19]—When a written contract imports on its face to be a complete expression of the whole agreement, it is presumed that the parties have introduced therein every item or term,[20] and that all prior negotiations[21] and contemporaneous oral agreements have been merged therein; hence the well settled rule that evidence of prior or contemporaneous oral agreements is inadmissible to vary or contradict the terms of a valid written instrument.[22] But this is the rule only when the writing is a complete, clear, and unam-held insufficiently established as genuine to prove title in ejectment.—3 Mich. L. R. 243.

11. Copies from the book of conveyance of the clerk and ex officio recorder's office are copies of copies, and inadmissible. Ruddock Cypress Co. v. Peyret, 113 La. 867, 37 So. 858.

12. Norris v. Billingsley [Fla.] 37 So. 564. Carbon copy of letter made at same time and by same impression of type, admissible without laying foundation for its admission as a copy; but letter in question held not to have been shown such a carbon copy. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Stock [Va.] 51 S. E. 161.

13. Norris v. Billingsley [Fla.] 37 So. 564.

14. Whether the copy of a telegram filed or the one received is the original depends upon whether the telegraph company is the agent of the sender or receiver. Bond v. Hurd [Mont.] 78 P. 579. The reply message as received must be considered a copy, and is admissible only when the proper foundation for secondary evidence has been laid, and its genuineness and authenticity has been shown. Cobb v. Glenn Boom & Lumber Co. [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1005.

15, 16. Peterson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 102 N. W. 595.

17, 18. Merritt v. Jordan, 65 N. J. Eq. 772, 60 A. 183.

19. See 3 C. L. 1348.

20. Written contract signed by parties, conclusively presumed to contain all terms of agreement, and constitutes waiver of terms discussed but not included therein. Standard Mfg. Co. v. Hudson [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 137. Agreements and understandings concerning representations made by one party are presumed to have been incorporated in the written contract and parol evidence is inadmissible to vary its terms. Butler v. Standard Guaranty & Trust Co [Ga.] 50 S. E. 132.

21. Schneider v. Sulzer, 212 Ill. 87, 72 N. E. 19; Nielson v. Northeastern Siberian Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 292. Letters prior to execution of charter party properly excluded. United States v. Conkling [C. C. A.] 135 F. 508. Negotiations prior to sale merged in written contract. Spencer v. Huntington, 100 App. Div. 463, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 30, 91 N. Y. S. 561. Express warranty of machine in form of advertisements and letters cannot be read into subsequent written contract of sale. Cooper v. Payne, 103 App. Div. 118, 93 N. Y. S. 69. Proof of prior negotiations inadmissible to vary written order for goods so as to show a warranty respecting them. American Home Sav. Bank Co. v. Guardian Trust Co., 210 Pa. 320, 59 A. 1108. Previous conversations and negotiations leading up to policy of life insurance presumed to have been merged in written policy. Ijams v. Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc., 185 Mo. 466, 84 S. W. 51. In the absence of fraud, accident, or mistake, all prior parol negotiations are, as a general rule, merged in the written contract. Kilby Mfg. Co. v. Hinchman-Renton Fire Proofing Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 957. No representation, promise, or agreement made or opinion expressed in previous conversations is admissible to contradict, explain, or modify the plain provisions and just interpretation of the writing. Id.

22. Wheaton v. Bartlett, 105 Ill. App. 326; Gage v. Cameron, 212 Ill. 146, 72 N. E. 204; McConnell v. Pierce, 116 Ill. App. 103; Stone & Co. v. Mulvaine [Ill.] 75 N. E. 421; Gemmer v. Hunter [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 586; Hill v. Maxwell [Kan.] 79 P. 1088; Carter & Co. v. Weber [Mich.] 101 N. W. 818; Apking v. Hoffer [Neb.] 104 N. W. 177; Orion Knitting Mills v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 137 N. C. 565, 50 S. E. 304; Stickney v. Hughes [Wyo.] 79 P. 922.

ILLUSTRATIONS. Miscellaneous contracts: Contract held complete and parol evidence inadmissible. Southwestern Teleg. & T. Co. v. Paris [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 724.

Written contract to pasture and care for cattle. Brown & Co. v. St. John Trust Co. [Kan.] 80 P. 37. Oral agreement wholly inconsistent with written contract inadmissible. Halliday v. Mulligan, 113 Ill. App. 177. Absolute written agreement to pay for lamp cannot be varied by oral evidence that payment was conditioned upon buyer's satisfaction. Cluster Gaslight Co. v. Baker, 90 N. Y. S. 1034. Letters regarding return of beer kegs being explicit, and their directions having been agreed to, evidence of a custom to return kegs was inadmissible. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Grimmon [Nev.] 81 P. 43. Parol evidence contradicting express terms and adding new terms excluded. Rucker v. Bolles [C. C. A.] 133 F. 858. Parol evidence inadmissible to enlarge scope of contract as written or give witness' construction of it, different from its terms. Julius Kessler & Co. v. Perilloux & Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 903. Terms of accepted order cannot be varied by parol. Parsons v. Wentworth & Drew [N. H.] 59 A. 623. Admission of testimony to identify signer of contract as a partner did not make admissible evidence as to terms. Dunn v. Mayo Mills [C. C. A.] 134 F. 804. A warranty not expressed or implied from the terms of a written contract cannot be added by implication of law or parol proof. Rollins Engine Co. v. Eastern Forge Co. [N. H.] 59 A. 382. Written warranty of quality of engine cannot be enlarged by proof of subsequent oral warranty. Houghton Implement Co. v. Doughty [N. D.] 104 N. W. 516. A written submission of a dispute to arbitration and the written award cannot be enlarged by parol proof. Pinkstaff v. Steffy [Ill.] 75 N. E. 163. Where final letter in correspondence shows it was intended to embrace the entire contract as finally agreed upon, it is the only evidence of the contract; oral testimony as to negotiations, and other letters in the correspondence are incompetent to vary or contradict it, or to supply terms as to which it is silent. Grueber Engineering Co. v. Waldron [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 386. Evidence of custom and usage admissible to explain and enlarge meaning of written contract, but has little if any bearing to establish a different contract which by mistake was not reduced to writing. John O'Brien Lumber Co. v. Wilkinson, 123 Wis. 272, 101 N. W. 1050. An instrument under seal cannot be varied except by an instrument of the same dignity. Morehouse v. Terrill, 111 Ill. App. 460. Sealed instrument being complete and unambiguous, oral agreement that it was to be conditional cannot be shown. Bieber v. Gans, 24 App. D. C. 517. Where a written contract of sale referred to a catalogue for the warranty, parol evidence regarding the warranty was incompetent. Buchanan v. Laber [Wash.] 81 P. 911. When letters plainly showed all terms of sale contract, one party's understanding as to price could not be shown by parol. Fletcher v. Underhill [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 726. Sale from sample could not be shown when written contract did not show it. Dowagiac Mfg. Co. v. Mahon [N. D.] 101 N. W. 903. Oral evidence that sale of beans was to be by sample held to contradict and vary written contract. Gardiner v. McDonough [Cal.] 81 P. 964. Where written contract of sale expressly stated there were no agreements outside the writing, evidence of contemporaneous oral agreement inadmissible. Tranter Davison Mfg. Co. v. Pittsburg Trolley Pole Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 46. Where sale contract provided that electric generators were to have certain capacity, oral agreement relative to capacity different from contract could not be shown. Western Elec. Co. v. Baerthel [Iowa] 103 N. W. 475. Contract of sale, complete in itself, cannot be extended by parol proof of warranty as to how machine will do its work. Davis Calyx Drill Co. v. Mallory [C. C. A.] 137 F. 332. Written contract for sale of wire being based on terms of contract between defendant and third person, statements of salesman of third person before contract was made, in regard to weight of mile of wire inadmissible on amount of wire called for by contract. American Electrical Works v. New England Elec. R. Const. Co., 186 Mass. 546, 72 N. E. 64. Contract for sale of land held clear and consistent, rendering oral evidence incompetent. Harmon v. Thompson [Ky.] 84 S. W. 569. City lots being sold by written contract, oral agreement to dedicate certain adjacent land to city for street could not be shown. Schneider v. Sulzer, 212 Ill. 87, 72 N. E. 19. Release from liability for personal injury held complete and definite and alleged oral agreement by defendant to give plaintiff employment could not be shown. Rapid Transit R. Co. v. Smith [Tex.] 86 S. W. 322. Instrument acknowledging receipt of $100 in full of all demands for injuries held a contract, and parol evidence inadmissible to add an additional agreement. Lanham v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 86 S. W. 680. Option not being ambiguous, oral evidence of agreement to pay earnest money is incompetent. Kibler v. Caplis [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 57, 103 N. W. 531. Plain and unambiguous power of attorney cannot be explained by parol. Rogers v. Tompkins [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 379. Recital of bargain and sale and warranty of title in chattel mortgage cannot be contradicted by parol evidence to show mortgagor was not the owner. Beadleston & Woerz v. Furrer, 102 App. Div. 544, 92 N. Y. S. 879.

Deeds: Definite, unambiguous deeds of land are not an exception to the rule excluding parol evidence to vary the terms of instruments. Kruse v. Koelzer [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1072. Secret and undisclosed intentions of either party limiting effect of unconditional deed are incompetent. Wilbur v. Grover [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 99, 103 N. W. 583. Where deed given in family settlement was unconditional an oral agreement whereby a certain person was to have use and occupancy of land for life could not be shown. Schmidt v. Brittain [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 677. An express warranty against incumbrances and for peaceable possession cannot be contradicted by evidence of an oral agreement excepting a certain incumbrance. Patterson v. Cappon [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1083. Where conveyances by a mother are relied on as a partition, parol evidence is inadmissible to prove a condition that the values of the different portions were to be equalized. Spann v. Hellen [La.] 38 So. 248. Where deed is in usual form with complete warranty of title, parol evidence is inadmissible to prove an intention of the parties that timber on the land should not pass by the biguous expression of the entire contract. Parol or extrinsic evidence, such as evidence of the circumstances surrounding execution of the instrument,[23] and of the conduct and acts of the parties before and after such execution,[24] is admissible to deed. McCall v. Wilkes, 121 Ga. 722, 49 S. E. 722. Where deed of married woman purports to convey title to husband unconditionally, statements of husband that he did not intend to take title unless he survived his wife are inadmissible. Wilbur v. Grover [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 99, 103 N. W. 583. In an action of covenant the deed governs and the grantor cannot show by parol the grantee's knowledge of an incumbrance to defeat the covenant. Newburn v. Lucas, 126 Iowa 85, 101 N. W. 730. Absolute conveyance cannot be changed by proof of oral agreement whereby grantee was to devise to grantor, thus converting fee into life estate with reversion in grantor. Lozier v. Hill [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 234. A deed expressing a consideration, and notes for a certain amount executed at the same time, held to constitute one transaction, the written evidence of which was on its face complete. Hence parol evidence of an agreement to bequeath the difference between the consideration for the land and the amount of the notes, was incompetent. Gemmer v. Hunter [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 586.

Leases: If description in lease is applicable to land, evidence of conversation at time is inadmissible to vary it. Naughton v. Elliott [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 869. Parol evidence of agreement that dwelling house and certain fields were not to be included in lease of farm on shares incompetent to change written contract. Thayer v. Gibbs [Mich.] 12 Det. L. N. 93, 103 N. W. 526. Lease expressly requiring tenant to make repairs on plumbing cannot be varied by showing prior oral agreement that landlord would put premises in perfect condition. Thomas v. Dingelman, 45 Misc. 379, 90 N. Y. S. 436. In suit for use and occupation of basement, lease under which other parts of building were occupied could not be extended by parol to include basement. Kraus v. Smolen, 92 N. Y. S. 329. Written lease providing for repairs by tenant cannot be contradicted by showing prior agreement that landlord was to make repairs. Daly v. Piza, 94 N. Y. S. 154, rvg. 45 Misc. 608, 90 N. Y. S. 1071. In action on written lease, breach of an alleged prior or contemporaneous oral agreement by the lessor to make additions to buildings cannot be shown. Morningstar v. Querens [Ala.] 37 So. 825. Where lease provided that lessee could erect such buildings as he deemed proper, and remove them on expiration of the term, parol evidence as to purpose for which land was leased is inadmissible. Cox v. O'Neal [Ala.] 37 So. 674. Agreement to pay rent for use of plantation held complete and clear, and oral agreement by one to repair fences could not be shown. Hightower v. Henry [Miss.] 37 So. 745.

Notes: Condition cannot be ingrafted on note by parol evidence of contemporaneous agreement. Berendt v. Ripps, 120 Ga. 228, 47 S. E. 595. Maker of note, in action thereon, cannot show an oral agreement whereby he was not to be liable thereon. Western Carolina Bank v. Moore [N. C.] 51 S. E. 79. Oral agreement to "knock off" interest for first year inadmissible, when note provided for interest at ten per cent. per annum from date. Tisdale v. Mallett [Ark.] 84 S. W. 481. Oral evidence inadmissible to show agreement to give a future credit on a note and that note was then to be for balance; since this evidence would change the note from one for a certain sum to one for a less sum. Knight v. Walker Brick Co., 23 App. D. C. 519. Parol evidence incompetent to show note for land conditional upon maker's receiving certain timber. Begley v. Combs [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1081. In action on absolute unconditional premium note, parol evidence of an agreement to deliver the policy in a given time, and breach of that agreement, is inadmissible to show failure of consideration. Civ. Code 1895, § 3675, (1) 5201. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Wynne [Ga.] 51 S. E. 389.

Contract of indorsement: Parol evidence incompetent to show indorsers were not to be liable as such. Second Nat. Bank of Beloit v. Woodruff, 113 Ill. App. 60. Liability of persons who sign note as indorsers cannot be varied by parol evidence, as of custom or usage of maker in regard to other notes of a like character. Harnett v. Holdrege [Neb.] 103 N. W. 277. Indorsement for collection, clear and unambiguous, cannot be contradicted by showing that indorsee owned two-sevenths of note in his own right. Smith v. Bayer [Or.] 79 P. 497.

23. Brannan v. Henry [Ala.] 39 So. 92. General character of the business of parties may be shown to explain terms used in their contract. Helper v. MacKinnon Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 804. Subject-matter, surrounding circumstances and conduct of parties, may be shown when contract is not clear. Dugan v. Kelly [Ark.] 86 S. W. 831. In case of ambiguity, evidence of subject-matter, relation of parties and surrounding circumstances is admissible to aid court in its interpretation of contract. L'Engle v. Scottish Union & Nat. Fire Ins. Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 462. Parol proof as to condition of subject-matter competent to show intent of parties in use of terms. Walker v. Johnson, 116 Ill. App. 145. Circumstances leading to passage of statute under which a contract was made admissible in evidence to aid in construction of agreement. Old Colony R. Co. v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 134. In action to recover toll paid, what was said by parties was admissible to show extent to which a receipt was accepted by the one making the payment. Ver Duyn v. Detroit & S. Plank Road Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 522, 104 N. W. 612. In action for failure to deliver message, addressee may testify what he would have understood the message to mean, had he received it, to show that both parties understood it. Elam v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 115.

24. Subsequent acts and declarations of parties to contract to furnish ties held admissible to show construction placed on contract by the parties. Laclede Const. Co. v. T. J. Moss Tie Co., 185 Mo. 25, 84 S. W. 76. What was said and done before and after supply a term as to which the writing is silent,[25] and which is not supplied by implication of law;[26] to explain a latent[27] or patent[28] ambiguity; to identify the sub-execution of lease admissible to show what was intended to pass and to identify subject-matter. Parish v. Vance, 110 Ill. App. 57. Where it is claimed that a deed was given by mistake as a part of a settlement, evidence of what was done pursuant to the settlement was admissible. Shields v. Mongollon Exploration Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 539. Where deed states it is given to replace a former lost deed, parol proof of situation and former dealings of parties is competent. Scaplen v. Blanchard, 187 Mass. 73, 72 N. E. 346. Where a contract, uncertain in its terms, has been partially performed, the court, in construction of it, will have recourse to the use and course of dealing of the parties, their conduct, and surrounding circumstances. Naughton v. Elliott [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 869. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1860, where a description in a contract of sale was uncertain, proof of occupation by the vendee, and of improvements, was admissible to identify the land. In re Garnier's Estate [Cal.] 82 P. 68.

25. Contract being silent as to terms of payment, oral agreement in regard thereto admissible. Allum v. Nolie, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 220. Contract being silent as to time and manner of shipping live-stock, parol proof of custom to furnish independent train for ten carloads or more, when demanded, was competent. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Kempton [C. C. A.] 138 F. 992. Where paper contained an apparent admission by defendants, they could show circumstances attending execution of it though plaintiff was not present. Badanes v. Feder, 93 N. Y. S. 478. Where goods are to be transported over several lines, and the route is not designated in the contract, the presumption that it may be selected by the carrier may be rebutted by parol proof of a subsequent agreement as to the route. Steidl v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 701. Where a writing reciting a delivery of goods purports to evidence a contract of agency rather than a sale, but does not give the terms of the agency, proof of a collateral oral agreement is competent to show that the goods could be returned upon the happening of certain contingencies. Sutton v. Weber [Iowa] 101 N. W. 775. Where application for insurance was inadmissible because not attached to policy, and policy did not contain basis rate of assessment, and by-laws did not show it, oral evidence and records of the company were admissible to show the general methods of showing rate, and the particular rate of the policy. Moore v. Bestline, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 6.

26. Contract of agency held complete, one term being implied in law. Union Special Sew. Mach. Co. v. Lockwood, 110 Ill. App. 387. In absence of term in agency contract as to duration of relation, law presumed it was to last as long as both desired and terminate at will of either, upon notice given, hence parol evidence inadmissible. Id. Failure of a sale contract to state time and place of delivery does not make parol evidence admissible, since these elements are fixed by Code, §§ 1753-1754, in absence of express provisions. Gardiner v. McDonogh [Cal.] 81 P. 964.

27. A latent ambiguity, raised by parol evidence, may be explained by evidence of the same kind. As meaning of "Levi Jackson Home Place" used in sale contract. Jackson v. Hardin [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1119. An ambiguity may arise, not only from the face of the writing, but also from language, clear in itself, which leads to an absurd result when applied to situation with which it deals. In either case, the situation of the parties, the subject-matter, and surrounding circumstances, may be shown. Corbett v. Joannes [Wis.] 104 N. W. 69. While the general rule is that only latent ambiguities are explainable by parol evidence, under Georgia Civ. Code 1895, § 3325, either patent or latent ambiguities may be so explained. Oliver v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 836, 49 S. E. 743. Where there is a latent ambiguity in the description in a deed, evidence of the situation and condition of the land, the circumstances under which the conveyance was made, and the practical construction placed upon the deed by the parties, is admissible. Mayberry v. Beck [Kan.] 81 P. 191. Contract for sale of pine held to contain latent ambiguity in description rendering parol evidence competent to show which lot or area of timber on each of two tracts was intended to be sold. Kimball v. Waterman [N. H.] 61 A. 595. Where insurance policy by its terms expired at "noon" on a certain day, parol evidence was admissible to show that by a custom of the place of contract "noon" meant 12 o'clock midday, standard time, and not 12 o'clock sun time. Rochester German Ins. Co. v. Peaslee Gaulbert Co. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1115. Where the description of land in proceedings to confirm a special tax and in application for judgment is shown to be inaccurate by extrinsic evidence, similar evidence is competent to explain the ambiguity. Harman v. People, 214 Ill. 454, 73 N. E. 760. Where contract was to supply railroad ties needed for 1899, parol evidence was competent to show that ties for a contemplated extension were intended. Laclede Const. Co. v. Moss Tie Co., 185 Mo. 25, 84 S. W. 76. Where check was indorsed over to executor as such and he receipted for it as a loan to the estate, parol evidence is admissible to show that the money was to be returned if not used for a particular purpose. Frick v. Shimer, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 563.

28. Callender, McAuslan & Troup Co. v. Flint, 187 Mass. 104, 72 N. E. 345. Oral evidence competent to explain figures and abbreviations used in mechanic's lien statement. Kneisley Lumber Co. v. Stoddard Co. [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 774. To explain written contract uncertain as to price stipulated. Schmidt v. Turner, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 492. To show that "Boyo" used in sale contract meant a variety of "Bayous" beans and that "per 100" meant "per hundred pounds." Gardiner v. McDonogh [Cal.] 81 P. 964. Words "unless otherwise satisfied," found in mortgage, held ambiguous. Moorman v. Voss, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 145. Following order, held ambiguous: "Please pay to * * * $300, ject matter;[29] to show the actual relation of parties to the contract;[30] and, in general, to show the real intention of the parties at the time.[31]

the amount of my account. With all overplus on lumber when shipped." Bertig-Smythe Co. v. Bonsack Lumber Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 870. Contract for exchange of stock of merchandise for realty providing that stock was to be invoiced "as per following cost mark" was ambiguous. Webb v. Steiner [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 618. Word "account" in written guaranty given by brokers indemnifying a customer against loss held to render writing ambiguous. Britton v. Marks, 93 N. Y. S. 828. Phrase "keep them out" in salesman's contract explainable by parol as referring to machines sent to dealers which salesman was to prevent return of and effect settlement for. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Bryson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1016. Description in agreement to deed back "said piece of land, containing twenty-seven acres" may be made certain by parol evidence. Welborn v. Dixon, 70 S. C. 108, 49 S. E. 232. Where tax deed recited ownership of a tract of land by a certain person, parol proof was competent to aid description. Brannan v. Henry [Ala.] 39 So. 92. Correspondence between parties to charter party admissible to show meaning of phrase "say about 3,400 gross tons" used in shipper's agreement as to cargo to be furnished. Sewall v. Wood [C. C. A.] 135 F. 12. Words "merchantable lumber, mill run," used in lumber contract, being peculiar to lumber business in a certain vicinity and having no settled judicial meaning, are explainable by parol evidence. Barnes v. Leidigh [Or.] 79 P. 51. Where policy insured property "for a term of three years from Jan. 14, 1903, to Jan. 14, 1904," parol evidence was competent to prove which of the two terms indicated was intended by the parties. Traders' Ins. Co. v. E. D. Edwards Post No. 22, G. A. R. [Miss.] 38 So. 779. Method of payment of balance of price being ambiguous as set forth in contract, parol evidence was competent to show an agreement that such balance was to be paid out of profit of an enterprise referred to in the contract, and that no payment was to be made if there were no profits. Morrison v. Dickey [Ga.] 50 S. E. 178. Where signatures came between two parts of writing parol proof that writing was all one and that space for signatures had been made before writing was added did not vary or contradict writing. Cox v. Burdett, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 346. Witnesses familiar with conditions at time could explain meaning of "tenement house" in clause in deed of 1873 restricting use of property and show whether it included modern apartment houses. Kitching v. Brown, 180 N. Y. 414, 73 N. E. 241. Where contract provided for shipment of goods between certain dates as ordered by plaintiff according to its requirements, a conversation between plaintiff's officer and defendant's agent as to when goods would be needed was competent to explain contract. Semon, Bache & Co. v. Coppes, Zook & Mutschler Co. [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 41. Sheriff's bond held ambiguous and equivocal, rendering competent parol proof that it was intended as an additional bond to cover his duties as tax collector. Baker County v. Huntington [Or.] 79 P. 187. Written contract being incomplete and indefinite, parol evidence was admissible to show nature of agreement. Niles v. Sire, 94 N. Y. S. 586.

Held unambiguous: Building contract. Dugan v. Kelly [Ark.] 86 S. W. 831. Excepting clause in deed. Barrett v. Kansas & T. Coal Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 150. "Estate of F. Lawrence," used in sale contract to describe the vendor. Morrison v. Hazzard [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 310, 88 S. W. 385. "Acceptable to the engineer" used in building contract. United Engineering & Contracting Co. v. Broadnax [C. C. A.] 136 F. 351. Evidence regarding subject-matter and surrounding circumstances inadmissible if there is no ambiguous or equivocal term in contract. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. McMahon & Montgomery Co., 110 Ill. App. 510. The term "pro rata," used in insurance, having been judicially construed, expert testimony as to its customary meaning is inadmissible. Home Ins. Co. v. Continental Ins. Co., 180 N. Y. 389, 73 N. E. 65. Extrinsic evidence is inadmissible to show that words "bodily heirs" in a deed were used to designate the grantee's children. Edins v. Murphree [Ala.] 38 So. 639. Contract to lease hotel premises, which provided that term should "commence as soon as vacated by present occupants" is not so indefinite as to admit parol evidence to show when delivery of premises was to be made. Rhodes v. Purvis [Ark.] 85 S. W. 235. Unambiguous note cannot be shown to have been an advancement by parol. Schmidt v. Schmidt's Estate, 123 Wis. 295, 101 N. W. 678. Contract for advertising held unambiguous so that parol evidence as to when publication was to begin was incompetent. Mail & Exp. Co. v. Wood [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 244, 103 N. W. 864. Contract for purchase of scrap iron held complete and unambiguous and evidence of collateral agreement excluded. Helper v. MacKinnon Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 804. Contract held to evidence an agreement to buy stock and not a mere option, and to be unambiguous, so that parol evidence was inadmissible. Edwards v. Capps [Ga.] 50 S. E. 943. Where a contract provided that lumber was to be measured and shipped, each party to pay one-half the cost of inspection "as per suggestion and oral verbal understanding, in other words, the lumber is to be measured at the mill," parol evidence is inadmissible to show manner of delivery. Oriental Lumber Co. v. Blades Lumber Co., 103 Va. 730, 50 S. E. 270. Instrument acknowledging receipt of $50 as first payment on price of realty, and reciting that balance was to be paid as soon as defendants furnished perfect title, and that they agreed to give a warranty deed on tender of price by plaintiff or assigns, held an unambiguous contract for sale, and oral evidence of a condition is inadmissible. Miller v. Smith [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 249, 103 N. W. 872.

29. Parol proof admissible to identify land described in contract as "Abbey Ranch." Hill v. McCoy [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1015. Parol evidence admissible to ascertain and explain subject-matter of written contract of sale. Young v. Guess [La.] 38 So. 975. Parol evidence, explanatory of subject-matter of written contract, consistent with its terms and necessary for its interpretation is admissible. Cox v. Wilson, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 635. Parol evidence admissible to show mortgaged property was a part of land referred to in a pending suit. Johnson v. McKay, 121 Ga. 763, 49 S. E. 757. Description of timber in deed being ambiguous, parol evidence was competent to show intention of parties as to what was to be conveyed. Ward v. Gay, 137 N. C. 397, 49 S. E. 884. Parol evidence competent to show what land was meant by term "Levi Jackson Home Place" used in contract of sale of land. Jackson v. Hardin [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1119. Where land is described, in instrument leasing and giving an option on it, merely as a certain person's "place," parol evidence is admissible to identify it. Wellmaker v. Wheatley [Ga.] 51 S. E. 436. Where grantee assumed "mortgages, liens, taxes and claims of any and every description," parol proof was competent to show what mortgages and claims existed and were assumed. Gage v. Cameron, 212 Ill. 146, 72 N. E. 204. Where a deed conveys property generally described as that "formerly occupied by" a certain company and "now occupied by" a certain other company, parol evidence is admissible to show what land had been occupied by the companies named. Georgia & A. R. Co. v. Shiver, 121 Ga. 708, 49 S. E. 700. Location of land from uncertain description in deed being impossible, resort will be had to the acts and conduct of the parties at and after the time when possession is given under the deed. Carney v. Hennessey, 77 Conn. 577, 60 A. 129. An ambiguity in the description in a deed may be explained by parol, and the deed as explained, may be made the basis of a claim. Leverett v. Bullard, 121 Ga. 534, 49 S. E. 591. When a deed does not specify the particular appurtenant right alleged to have been conveyed by it, extrinsic evidence must be resorted to in order to establish it. Parol evidence admissible to identify particular water right appurtenant to land. Bullerdick v. Hermsmeyer [Mont.] 81 P. 334. Parol evidence admissible to show that word "claims" as used in a release given in a settlement of an estate meant all possible claims under a supposed will which was not discovered until after the final settlement was made. Perkins v. Owen, 123 Wis. 238, 101 N. W. 415. Description of property in chattel mortgage being sufficiently definite to make the mortgage admissible, extrinsic evidence is competent to identify the property. Colean Implement Co. v. Strong, 126 Iowa, 598, 102 N. W. 506. Where bill of sale describes property as "complete sawmill" consisting of certain specified articles "together with equipment" and things pertaining thereto, and refers to chattel mortgage as source of title, parol evidence is competent to show whether sale included articles placed in mill after mortgage was given but before the sale. Edwards v. Wisconsin Inv. Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 575. Where writing attached to policy described property insured as a certain building "and addition," evidence that the addition was to be built after policy was issued, and of its value, did not vary, but helped explain the policy. Prudential Fire Ins. Co. v. Alley [Va.] 51 S. E. 812.

Where a sufficient description is given in a contract to convey land, parol evidence is admissible to fit the description to the land (Powers v. Rude, 14 Okl. 381, 79 P. 89); but if there is no description, or an insufficient description, such evidence is inadmissible (Id.). Description in deed held sufficient to warrant admission of parol evidence to identify property. Hinton v. Moore [N. C.] 51 S. E. 787. A fatally defective description in an assessment for taxes, as where township and range numbers are omitted, cannot be aided or cured by parol. Paine v. Germantown Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 527.

30. Parol evidence is competent to show true relation of parties to note. Iowa Nat. Bank v. Cooper [Iowa] 101 N. W. 459. Parol evidence admissible to show third person signed contract as surety. First Nat. Bank v. Dutcher [Iowa] 104 N. W. 497. Note signed by partners individually may be shown to be partnership debt, discharged by discharge in bankruptcy. Young v. Stevenson [Ark.] 84 S. W. 623. Lease, though under seal, may be shown that of a partnership, though signed in the name of one partner. Woolsey v. Henke [Wis.] 103 N. W. 267. In suit on promissory note executed by corporation and indorsed by stockholders, minutes of the corporation and other attendant facts and circumstances were admissible to show intention. Somers v. Florida Pebble Phosphate Co. [Fla.] 39 So. 61. Where two persons sign a note apparently and presumptively as joint principals, parol evidence is admissible to show that one is surety for the other. Trammell v. Swift Fertilizer Works, 121 Ga. 778, 49 S. E. 739. Charter party leasing dredge to corporation was signed by corporation and also by president individually, but contained no reference to president's being a party. Held, evidence admissible to show that dredge owner refused to contract unless president also signed. Esselstyn v. McDonald, 98 App. Div. 197, 90 N. Y. S. 518.

31. Proof of surrounding circumstances competent to show what parties intended by words used in assumption clause. Gage v. Cameron, 212 Ill. 146, 72 N. E. 204. Where cattle were carried by special train and contract did not provide for time of delivery, extrinsic evidence was admissible to show understanding that cattle should arrive in time for next morning's market. Sloop v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 111. If a contract of sale of land is ambiguous as to whether the sale is in gross or by acre, parol evidence of the surrounding circumstances and situation of the parties, and their conduct, is admissible to show their intention. Newman v. Kay [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 926. Cross-examination of a witness as to the purpose for which a lease was given was not objectionable as tending to contradict or vary a writing. Richmond Ice Co. v. Crystal Ice Co., 103 Va. 465, 49 S. E. 650. The rule that parol testimony is not admissible to contradict or add to a written contract does not forbid inquiring into the object of the parties executing it. Cleveland, etc., Co. v. Consumers' Carbon Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 258. Oral declarations at or about time deceased gave order on bank to pay deposit to Agreements collateral to the obligation imported by the written contract and not inconsistent therewith,[32] and subsequent agreements,[33] may be shown by parol. A mere receipt is always open to parol explanation;[34] hence recitals of consideration in written contracts are not conclusive,[35] and do not exclude parol proof of the real consideration[36] different from that expressed.[37] Failure of the consideration exhis wife admissible on his intention to make a gift. Sprague v. Walton, 145 Cal. 228, 78 P. 645. Declarations of grantor at time of execution of instrument admissible to show whether it was intended as an absolute deed or mortgage. Bell v. Pleasant, 145 Cal. 410, 78 P. 957. Where, in applying a contract to its subject-matter, an ambiguity or uncertainty arises which cannot be removed by an examination of the agreement alone, parol evidence of the circumstances under which it was made, and of statements made in prior negotiations may be admitted to resolve the ambiguity and prove the real intention of the parties. Kilby Mfg. Co. v. Hinchman-Renton Fire Proofing Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 957.

32. Written and oral contracts, while connected, may yet be distinct, each having appropriate and specific rights and remedies peculiar to itself. Proof of such a collateral agreement does not violate Civ. Code, art. 2276. Davies v. Bierce [La.] 38 So. 488. A distinct oral agreement may sometimes be shown in order to prevent use of the writing to accomplish a fraud. Corbett v. Joannes [Wis.] 104 N. W. 69. Parol evidence is competent to show oral contemporaneous agreement inducing execution of written agreement, and without which writing would not have been executed. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Harder [Pa.] 61 A. 880. It is competent to show a contemporaneous parol agreement without which the instrument would not have been executed, and that such agreement has been violated and the instrument used for a purpose other than agreed upon. Wheatley v. Niedich, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 198. Oral evidence of contract to indemnify purchaser of mortgaged lands against judgment liens held not to contradict deed and release of land. Peterson v. Creason [Or.] 81 P. 574. Evidence admissible to show sheriff's deed was executed under an agreement that grantee was to hold legal title as mortgagee subject to redemption by payment of indebtedness. Foster v. Rice, 126 Iowa, 190, 101 N. W. 771. Where note, lease of right to sell machine, and oral agreement to deliver machine were all parts of one transaction, failure to deliver the machine could be shown to prove want of consideration for note, though lease was under seal. Burns v. Goddard [S. C.] 51 S. E. 915. Though loan was evidenced by writing, a pledge of a warehouse receipt was collateral, and a parol agreement that in case of sale of the pledged property the surplus over the present loan should apply on former notes could be shown. Lewis v. First Nat. Bank [Or.] 78 P. 990. Though chattel mortgage does not provide for delivery of property, oral evidence is admissible to show that the mortgagee took possession so as to become a mortgagee in possession. Brockway v. Abbott, 37 Wash. 263, 79 P. 924. Parol evidence admissible to show a written assignment of a mortgage was made with understanding that mortgage should remain in hands of a certain attorney for collection and foreclosure. Easton v. Woodbury [S. C.] 50 S. E. 790. Contract with initial carrier limiting liability for injuries to those occurring on its own line, not varied by proof of conversations with agent tending to show that the initial carrier would furnish its own cars for the through trip. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Foster [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 879.

33. The terms of a written contract may be varied, modified, waived, annulled, or wholly set aside by any subsequently executed contract, whether such executed contract be in writing or parol. Settlement of dispute and delivery of deed as a part thereof may be shown though there was a written memorandum, and transaction was within statute of frauds. Hill v. Maxwell [Kan.] 79 P. 1088. A conversation constituting a waiver of a term of a contract may be shown though it occurred between the execution of the original and the duplicate. Morehouse v. Terrill, 111 Ill. App. 460.

34. Lynn v. Bean [Ala.] 37 So. 515. Recitals of a receipt may be explained or contradicted by parol. Devencenzi v. Cassinelli [Nev.] 81 P. 41. A receipt is ordinarily satisfactory evidence of its recitals, but is always open to parol explanation. Fitzgerald v. Coleman, 114 Ill. App. 25. Parol evidence admissible to show what was covered by a receipt. Construing Code 1896, §§ 1805, 1806. Stegall v. Wright [Ala.] 38 So. 844. Evidence is admissible to show an address on a package different from that stated in the shipper's receipt, even though such receipt also contained the shipping contract. Cappel v. Weir, 92 N. Y. S. 365. A writing which acknowledges payment in part with cash and the remainder with notes "in full settlement of claim," is evidence of the extinguishment of the debt, and not a mere receipt; and testimony as to a separate agreement, whereby the creditor was to have the right in the event the notes were not paid to surrender them and proceed on his original claim, is not admissible. Fitch v. Gottschalk, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 240.

35. Recital of consideration in deed not conclusive. Gray v. Freeman [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1105. Recital of consideration of love and affection and $1 in deed does not estop grantee from showing by parol a money payment equal to value of land, as against persons claiming under sheriff's deed. Miles v. Waggoner, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 432. Parol contract for sale of land having been executed and a deed given, the deed is conclusive evidence of the contract except as to consideration, which may be shown by parol. Tucker v. Dolan [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 1126.

36. Noyes v. Young [Mont.] 79 P. 1063; Walker v. Johnson, 116 Ill. App. 145. As to what claims grantee assumed. Gage v. Cameron, 212 Ill. 146, 72 N. E. 204. Real con-pressed may also be shown by parol.[38] But where the consideration, instead of being merely recited in the contract, is made one of its terms and conditions,[39] parol evidence is inadmissible.[40]

Parol or extrinsic evidence is admissible to show that a writing, purporting to be a contract, never became effective as such [41] owing to the breach or nonfulfillment of a condition precedent,[42] unless such condition is expressed in the writing.[43] It sideration for conveyance. Merriman v. Schmitt, 211 Ill. 263, 71 N. E. 986. True consideration for life insurance policy, and that it was not paid may be shown by parol. Continental Casualty Co. v. Jasper [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1078. Parol evidence is admissible to show additional consideration for deed. Windsor v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., 37 Wash. 156, 79 P. 613. Where instrument recites that maker of note received checks from payee, and contains an agreement for the transfer of stock by the maker, parol evidence is admissible to show consideration for such transfer. Cameron v. Fraser, 94 N. Y. S. 1058. Evidence that part of consideration for mortgage was contemporaneous oral agreement to extend time of payment of notes, admissible. Moroney v. Coombes [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 527, 88 S. W. 430. Real consideration for deed of right of way may be shown to be location of station on adjoining land. St. Louis & N. A. R. Co. v. Crandall [Ark.] 86 S. W. 855. As between indorser and immediate indorsee, consideration may be shown by parol. Peabody v. Munson, 211 Ill. 324, 71 N. E. 1006. Written agreement being an original and not a collateral one, within the statute of frauds, it need not express consideration, but this may be shown aliunde. Dryden v. Barnes [Md.] 61 A. 342.

37. Real consideration for deed may be shown to be different from that expressed in the writing. Gemmer v. Hunter [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 586. Grantee agreed to pay the taxes in addition to the consideration named in the deed. Henderson v. Tobey, 105 Ill. App. 154. Though check had words written across face "In payment of note of 15 Dec. '92," maker and indorser may show conditions and for what it was given. United States Wringer Co. v. Cooney, 214 Ill. 520, 73 N. E. 803.

38. Full or partial failure of consideration may be so shown. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Hill [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 609. Parol evidence admissible to show failure of consideration of note. Aultman Threshing & Engine Co. v. Knoll [Kan.] 79 P. 1074. It may be shown by parol that consideration for note was bonds issued by the payee; that such bonds were actually the undertaking of the payee, and that performance of the undertaking was impossible. German-American Security Co.'s Assignee v. McCulloch [Ky.] 89 S. W. 5.

39. As where terms and conditions expressed on one side form the consideration for terms and conditions expressed on the other. Wellmaker v. Wheatley [Ga.] 51 S. E. 436.

40. Wellmaker v. Wheatley [Ga.] 51 S. E. 436.

41. Parol evidence is admissible in equity to show a collateral agreement that note and mortgage were not to be enforced, but were given as a convenience in bookkeeping. O'Brien v. Paterson Brewing & Malting Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 437. In an action to collect rent under a lease, evidence of a contemporaneous parol agreement is admissible to show that the lease was never to have any validity. Metzger v. Roberts, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 344. Witness to a deed may testify that an instrument is the one she witnessed, but that date, consideration, and property conveyed had been changed; such testimony does not contradict, but shows destruction of original deed. City of St. Joseph v. Baker [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 1122.

42. Writing being silent as to condition precedent, circumstances, acts and declarations of parties could be shown. Donner v. Alford [C. C. A.] 136 F. 750. Written order for goods not contradicted by proof of oral agreement that order should not be binding until submitted to and approved by other member of firm. Pratt v. Chaffin, 136 N. C. 350, 48 S. E. 768. Lessee may show by parol that he signed lease and paid a month's rent upon the oral promise of lessor to repair premises before lease should take effect. Donaldson v. Uhlfelder, 21 App. D. C. 489. Where application for insurance and note for premium were given agent at same time, evidence was admissible, in action on the note, to show agreement that note was given as evidence of good faith and was not to be binding unless policy, when delivered, was satisfactory and accepted. Graham v. Remmel [Ark.] 88 S. W. 899. Parol evidence admissible to show an agreement whereby lightning rod contract was to be put into fire insurance policies, and that policies were never delivered. Keeler v. De Witt, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 463. A contemporaneous parol agreement between parties to a chattel mortgage, though at variance with its terms, may be proved by a purchaser for value claiming against the mortgagee, if the agreement rendered the mortgage void as to him. Aleshire v. Lee County Sav. Bank, 105 Ill. App. 32.

A deed, absolute on its face, may be shown to have been intended as a mortgage. Welborn v. Dixon, 70 S. C. 108, 49 S. E. 232. A deed in which grantor assumes mortgage may be shown to be itself a mortgage. Merriam v. Schmitt, 211 Ill. 263, 71 N. E. 986. Parol evidence is admissible to show a deed absolute on its face to be in fact a mortgage, but such evidence must be clear and unequivocal to warrant relief. Way v. Mayhugh [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 724.

Conditional delivery: Oral testimony is admissible to show that a written contract was not intended to be operative from its delivery but only on the happening of some future event. Agreement that note was not to be of force until life insurance policy should be received and accepted. Mendenmay also be shown that what purports to be a written obligation has been discharged by performance of a parol collateral agreement,[44] unless the parol agreement contradicts the writing.[45] Fraud in the inception of the contract,[46] or mutual[47] mistake[48] whereby the writing does not express the real agreement, may be shown by parol, and such evidence is also competent to show that a writing is a cover for usury, a penalty or forfeiture, or other illegal advantage.[49] hall v. Ulrich [Minn.] 101 N. W. 1057. Parol evidence is competent to show nondelivery or a conditional delivery, and if the contract is not under seal, this may be shown though the instrument is in possession of the obligee or his assignee. Thus, parol evidence is competent to show delivery of note conditional and as security for performance of another agreement. Oakland Cemetery Ass'n v. Lakins, 126 Iowa, 121, 101 N. W. 778. Oral evidence showing conditional delivery of deed from father to daughter, and that condition precedent to vesting of title never happened, competent. Holbrook v. Truesdell, 100 App. Div. 9, 90 N. Y. S. 911. But parol evidence is inadmissible to show that a deed delivered to the grantee and absolute on its face shall take effect only upon the performance of some condition or the happening of some contingency unexpressed therein, since in such case title vests by the legal effect of the terms of the grant. Whitney v. Dewey [Idaho] 80 P. 1117.

43. Parol proof is inadmissible to show conditions precedent when the instrument itself sets them forth. United Engineering & Contracting Co. v. Broadnax [C. C. A.] 136 F. 351.

44. As where note was given to secure collateral agreement which was performed. Oakland Cemetery Ass'n v. Lakins, 126 Iowa, 121, 101 N. W. 778.

45. The rule that a written contract may be shown by parol to be a mere part performance of an entire verbal contract does not apply where the verbal contract is inconsistent with or contradicts the writing, or where the writing plainly purports to contain the entire contract. Corbett v. Joannes [Wis.] 104 N. W. 69.

46. McCarthy v. Woods [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 405. Parol evidence admissible to show a written permit to locate a telegraph line was obtained by a fraudulent representation. Mason v. Postal Tel. Cable Co. [S. C.] 50 S. E. 781. Parol evidence is admissible to show that an indorsement in blank was induced by fraud. Nethercutt v. Hopkins [Wash.] 80 P. 798. Evidence that defendant was induced to execute written agreement by fraudulent misrepresentations as to consideration admissible. Machin v. Prudential Trust Co., 210 Pa. 253, 59 A. 1073. Fraud may be shown by parol, though facts shown are contrary to those stated in written application for membership in benefit society. Supreme Council Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. Beggs, 110 Ill. App. 139. In determining whether release was free from fraud, correspondence preliminary to it was properly admitted as showing circumstances attending its execution. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Chiles [Miss.] 38 So. 498. Oral misrepresentations inducing execution of a contract may be shown notwithstanding Civ. Code, § 1625, which provides that a written contract supersedes previous oral negotiations. Willey v. Clements, 146 Cal. 91, 79 P. 850. Written order for goods expressly excluded all agreements with agents not contained therein. Held, promise by an agent inadmissible to show failure of consideration, but admissible on issue of fraud. Patten-Worsham Drug Co. v. Planters' Mercantile Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 209. Evidence held not to show mistake or fraud in execution of notes, so as to make oral evidence admissible under exception to parol evidence rule. Poindexter v. McDowell, 110 Mo. App. 233, 84 S. W. 1133.

Effect of failure to read contract: One who signs a written contract is presumed to have read it and cannot show that he did not read and agree to its terms. Standard Mfg. Co. v. Hudson [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 137. Where applicant failed to read application for insurance policy, he cannot by parol show that it does not contain provisions represented by the agent, where it purports to contain all the provisions of the policy. Vette v. Evans [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 504. But where contract of shipment of cattle, limiting the carriers liability, was signed by the shipper hurriedly, after the cattle were loaded, without reading it, he was allowed to show the oral agreement with the carrier, notwithstanding the written contract. McNeill v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 32; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 47.

47. Alleged mistake by one party, whereby contract for sale of land did not express meaning of parties, held not to make parol evidence admissible. Harmon v. Thompson [Ky.] 84 S. W. 569.

48. Where there is an omission by mutual mistake, parol evidence is competent to supply it. Huber Mfg. Co. v. Claudel [Kan.] 80 P. 960. Parol evidence is admissible to show an omission from an instrument by mutual mistake. Beach v. Bellwood [Va.] 51 S. E. 184. Where there has been a defective attempt to put in writing the terms of an agreement actually made, parol evidence is admissible to show that fact, and to show what the real agreement was. Locke v. Lyon Medicine Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 307. Error in contract whereby trees intended to be conveyed with land were not in fact conveyed may be shown by parol. Pharr v. Shadel [La.] 38 So. 914. In equity it may be shown by parol that through mistake of both or either of the parties a contract does not express their real agreement. Somerville v. Coppage [Md.] 61 A. 318. In mechanics' lien suit, parol evidence admissible to show contract purporting to have been made Oct. 3, 1897, and filed Oct. 19, 1897, was in fact executed on Oct 18, and the date placed thereon was by mistake. Cutter v. Pierson, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 10.

49. Word "rent" in land contract may be

The rule above discussed, excluding oral evidence to contradict or vary written contracts, is peculiarly applicable to those contracts which the statute of frauds requires to be in writing.[50] It applies not only to the original parties to a contract, but to parties subsequently acquiring rights thereunder.[51] It does not apply to a mere incomplete memorandum, not intended by the parties to contain or express their entire contract,[52] nor to instruments collateral to the issue.[53] Illustrative applications of the analogous rule excluding oral evidence to contradict or vary the recitals of public records,[54] of records of corporate proceedings,[55] of wills[56] and other writings,[57] are given in the notes.

§ 6. Hearsay. A. General rules.[58]—Unsworn statements out of court, by persons not parties to the action, are inadmissible,[59] and testimony based on hear-shown to be a cover for excessive price. Lytle v. Scottish-American Mortg. Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 402.

50. See Statute of Frauds, 3 C. L. 1527. Elements in contract for sale of land, required by statute of frauds, as proper description of land, cannot be supplied by parol. Morrison v. Hazzard [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. R. 310, 88 S. W. 385. An advancement cannot be proved by parol under Rev. St. 1898, § 3959. Schmidt v. Schmidt's Estate, 123 Wis. 295, 101 N. W. 678. Boundaries of land as shown by calls in patent cannot be changed by parol evidence of a statement of the surveyor before making the survey that he intended to begin at a certain monument. Ratliff v. May [Ky.] 84 S. W. 731. Title to realty cannot be shown by parol. Thus, declarations of one in possession that he had bought the land, or that it had been given him, incompetent. Swope v. Ward, 185 Mo. 316, 84 S. W. 895. One cannot lose vested title to land by oral admission that it is the property of another. Yock v. Mann [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1019. Declarations of one not in possession but holding record title inadmissible to show she did not in fact have title but that it was in another. Fall v. Fall [Me.] 60 A. 718. Question as to what interest witness had in lands under discussion in town meetings, to which he testified, properly excluded, since that fact should be shown by documentary proof. Dawson v. Town of Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. On issue of ownership of a railroad, statement of a station agent that his company did not own it is incompetent. Black v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 110 Mo. App. 198, 85 S. W. 96. But in a petitory action, where plaintiffs claim as heirs of their father, and defendant by virtue of an adjudication to his vendor at judicial sale to settle succession of father of plaintiffs, parol evidence is admissible to show whether or not such adjudication was made. Landry v. Laplos, 113 La. 697, 37 So. 606.

Trusts in personalty may be created, and hence may be established by parol. Dawes v. Dawes, 116 Ill. App. 36.

51. Where third parties acquire interests in the subject-matter of contracts, and are recognized as parties thereto, parol evidence is not admissible to change the contract recognized as in force between the parties. Third person became interested in stock insured after policy was issued; held, contract between original parties could not be varied by parol. Johnston v. Charles Abresch Co., 123 Wis. 130, 101 N. W. 395.

52. Rule does not apply to memorandum signed and understood as a mere step in the negotiations. Schwarz v. Lee Gon [Or.] 80 P. 110. Where it appears parties did not intend writing to embody final and complete agreement, oral evidence is admissible to show terms on which writing is silent. Halliday v. Mulligan, 113 Ill. App. 177. Where a writing is manifestly incomplete and is not intended to embody all the terms of the contract between the parties, the terms omitted from the writing may be shown by parol. Davies v. Bierce [La.] 38 So. 488. A memorandum authorizing a clerk to pay fees to a bank is not a contract, and oral evidence is admissible to show disposition to be made of fees by the bank. Hopkins v. Harlin, 110 Mo. App. 465, 85 S. W. 642. A railway ticket is not the only evidence of the contract between a carrier and passenger, but parol evidence is admissible thereon. Pennsylvania Co. v. Loftis [Ohio] 74 N. E. 179.

53. In suit to recover share of proceeds of sale of options, alleged to have been fraudulently retained, parol evidence is admissible regarding the options and their contents. Ledford v. Emerson [N. C.] 51 S. E. 42. Where instrument did not purport to be a lease, premises being indefinitely described, and plaintiffs did not seek recovery thereon, but on entire agreement, defendants could show circumstances under which writing was made to show real agreement. Browder v. Phinney, 37 Wash. 70, 79 P. 5[illegible] On the issue whether deceased had transportation, evidence that his son found transportation in his pocket from a certain point to another is admissible and not objectionable as varying a contract by parol. Elgin, etc., R. Co. v. Thomas, 215 Ill. 158, 74 N. E. 109.

54. A recognizance is a debt of record and cannot be impeached by parol to show irregular acknowledgement. Commonwealth v. Gray, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 110. Records and proceedings of a court of record are not open to oral attack as they are conclusively presumed to have been correctly made. Cook v. Penrod [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 676. Where petition in condemnation proceedings described land, and it was adjudged condemned for use of railroad, parol evidence was held incompetent to show that the award was for the crop and not the land. Choate v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 218. The recitals of legislative journals, or the presumptions which attach from their silence, cannot be contradicted by verbal statements. Andrews v. People [Colo.] 79 P. 1031. Parol evidence is inadmissible to show that final action was taken by a board of equalization on an increase in assessment at a date after that shown by its record. Montana Ore Purchasing Co. v. Maher [Mont.] 81 P. 13. Parol evidence incompetent to contradict entries in justice's docket and make an otherwise void judgment valid. Pfeiffer v. McCullough, 115 Ill. App. 251. Parol evidence inadmissible to show purpose of vote of school district appropriating money. Brooks v. School Dist. of Franconia [N. H.] 61 A. 127. Order of commissioner's court authorizing and instructing plaintiff to act as counsel for county in a given case held clear and unambiguous, and parol explanation was inadmissible. Presidio County v. Clarke [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 475.

Record held not contradicted: Where a particular order does not show there was an adjudication on the merits, parol evidence is admissible to show what was adjudicated. Langmuir v. Landes, 113 Ill. App. 134. Where settlement of former suit is relied on as bar to subsequent suit, parol evidence, not contradicting the record, is competent to show that prior suit and settlement related to a different transaction. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 110 Ill. App. 626.

55. Where a resolution by a board of directors of a corporation is uncertain and indefinite, its terms may be explained by parol evidence relating to circumstances surrounding its passage, and the conduct of the corporate authorities before and after its passage. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Deepwater R. Co. [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 890.

56. Parol evidence is inadmissible to show a testator meant one thing when he said another. Oliver v. Henderson, 121 Ga. 836, 49 S. E. 743. "Usual mining privileges," used in will, is clear and unambiguous and extrinsic evidence inadmissible. Allshouse's Estate, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 146. Whom testator meant by "William Wilson's children" could be shown by parol, being a latent ambiguity. Miller's Est., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 443. Recitals in an instrument that it is a will, that it has been signed as such by the person named as testator, and attested and subscribed by persons signing as witnesses may be contradicted by parol. Fleming v. Morrison, 187 Mass. 120, 72 N. E. 499.

57. Field notes of survey held ambiguous so that parol evidence was admissible to locate it. Wilkins v. Clawson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 732. A sheriff's formal and correct return of his writ cannot be overthrown by parol evidence. Philadelphia Sav. Fund Soc. v. Purcell, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 205. It may be shown by parol that a certificate of acknowledgment is false, and that there was in fact no examination or acknowledgment by the person signing. Chattanooga Nat. B. & Loan Ass'n v. Vaught [Ala.] 39 So. 215. Some courts admit testimony of a notary to impeach an acknowledgment taken before him, but such evidence is of little weight. Winn v. Itzel [Wis.] 103 N. W. 220. Testimony by notary that grantor did not express consciousness of the nature of the transaction and that another person lifted her hand and held it on the pen while he made her mark held admissible. Id. Provision of railroad franchise as to charging excessive fares (Railroad Law, § 39) being clear, extrinsic evidence was inadmissible to give it a different meaning. Byars v. Bennington & H. V. R. Co., 99 App. Div. 34, 90 N. Y. S. 736.

58. See 3 C. L. 1355.

59. Sanders v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 728. Where testimony is shown on cross-examination to be hearsay, it should be stricken if the motion relates only to the hearsay. Davis v. Arnold [Ala.] 39 So. 141.

Illustrations: Conversation, not in defendant's presence. Craddick v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 347; Knapp v. Hanley, 108 Mo. App. 353, 83 S. W. 1005. Declarations of third person to defendant in plaintiff's absence. Joyner v. Early [N. C.] 51 S. E. 778. What witness heard father say about value of jewelry. Motton v. Smith [R. I.] 60 A. 681. Certain declarations of a deceased that he had received value for property sold. Babcock Print. Press Mfg. Co. v. Herbert, 137 N. C. 317, 49 S. E. 349. Memoranda of telephone communications. Jacobs v. Cohn, 91 N. Y. S. 339. Testimony by plaintiff of a statement to him by his physician, that his hand would have to be amputated. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Smith [Ky.] 84 S. W. 755. Explanation given witness by others as to cost marks. Sylvester v. Ammons, 126 Iowa, 101 N. W. 782. Statements of third person, entered on books by plaintiff. Mattingly v. Shortell [Ky.] 85 S. W. 215. Voluntary statement by a stranger to the suit, and presented as a writing that had been shown to one of the parties. Harmison v. Fleming, 105 Ill. App. 43. Receipt excluded as hearsay. British American Ins. Co. v. Wilson, 77 Conn. 559, 60 A. 293. Conversation between witness and former legal advisor of testator inadmissible in will case. Lancaster v. Lancaster's Ex'r [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1137. Question whether certain alleged facts were not matters of common talk called for hearsay. Palatine Ins. Co. Limited, of Manchester, England v. Santa Fe Mercantile Co. [N. M.] 82 P. 363. That land in suit was generally known as that of a certain person incompetent on issue of ownership. Davis v. Arnold [Ala.] 39 So. 141. In action on implied contract for services, what plaintiff's father said to third persons about advice to his son was incompetent. Grotjan v. Rice [Wis.] 102 N. W. 551. Evidence that granddaughter had received word from third person that grandfather was dead is incompetent. Donovan v. Twist, 93 N. Y. S. 990. In abduction case, testimony as to what abducted child told witness defendants had promised child if she would go to them was hearsay. Baumgartner v. Eigenbrot [Md.] 60 A. 601. Where A. sells ties to B. subject to inspection and rejection, a report by C. to B., forwarded to A. showing inspection and rejections, is hearsay. Moultrie Lumber Co. v. Driver Lumber Co. [Ga.] 49 S. E. 729. In suit by wife for alienation of husband's affections, testimony by plaintiff as to statements made to the husband by defendant was hearsay and incompetent. Humphrey v. Pope [Cal. App.] 82 P. 223. On issue of ownership of household goods, testimony by assessor that husband told him of improvements in furnishing and added $500 to assay,[60] and not on the personal knowledge of the witness,[61] or which is conjectural,[62] is also excluded. Proof of the fact that a statement or inquiry was made is not sessment was hearsay. Terry v. Clark [Ark.] 88 S. W. 987. In an action on life insurance policy, evidence that insured said he had taken insurance and paid premium by crediting the agent on his account, and that he told his son to credit the agent on the books, is incompetent as hearsay. Horine v. New York Life Ins. Co. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 274. Advertisements of an air brake, in the back of a book of instructions relating to the use and operation of the brake, are inadmissible to show distance in which train could be stopped with such brake. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Stith's Adm'x [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1173.

A trade paper containing the market value of an article of commerce has been held competent. Trade paper containing market value of hides in Chicago competent, when that city is shown to be the great market for that commodity. Kibler v. Caplis [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 57, 103 N. W. 531. Quotations from National Live Stock Reporter, showing sales of cattle at a certain market on a certain day, admissible on issue of damages to shipment of stock, plaintiff's cattle being shown to have been of the same grade as those described in the trade papers. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Gunter [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 938.

Newspaper report on market value of stock is incompetent, it not being shown how the report was made up. Bunte v. Schumann, 92 N. Y. S. 806.

NOTE. Statements by interpreter: Testimony as to an interpreter's translation is hearsay as to the original statement. State v. Terline, 23 R. I. 530, 91 Am. St. Rep. 650; Wigmore, Evidence, §§ 668, 1810. This rule does not apply where the interpreter acts as the agent of those conversing, as where later one of them becomes a party to a suit, the statements being considered admissions. Commonwealth v. Vose, 157 Mass. 393, 17 L. R. A. 813; Sullivan v. Kuykendall, 82 Ky, 483, 56 Am. Rep. 908; Camerlin v. Palmer Co., 10 Allen [Mass.] 539; Greenleaf, Evidence [16th Ed.] §§ 162, p. 430j, 439e. But a formal interpreter is not necessarily an agent. Diener v. Diener, 5 Wis. 483. In the recent case of People v. Jailles, 146 Cal. 301, 79 P. 965, statements made by a witness through an interpreter were held admissible to discredit the witness, over the objection that they were hearsay. This case, while in line with a suggestion in People v. Sierp, 116 Cal. 249, is not within the above rule, and is directly opposed to earlier decisions of the same court. People v. Lee Fat, 54 Cal. 527; People v. Ah Yute, 56 Cal. 119; People v. Lee Ah Yute, 60 Cal. 95. The court should have held the evidence inadmissible, but refused to disturb the verdict, the testimony being harmless. 5 Columbia L. R. 326.—5 Columbia L. R. 474.

60. Illustrations: Testimony based on what other people told witness. King v. Bynum, 137 N. C. 491, 49 S. E. 955. Whether witnesses had heard of previous injuries or ailments of plaintiff in personal injury action. Chicago City R. Co. v. Uhter, 212 Ill. 174, 72 N. E. 195. That there was a real estate man who would give a certain amount for land. Pichon v. Martin [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1009. What witness heard from others as to market value of cattle. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Crowley [Tex. Civ App.] 86 S. W. 342. Testimony regarding market value of cattle at a certain place, based wholly on information gained from others. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Arnett [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 547, 88 S. W. 448. Testimony of witnesses that from inquiries of other persons they could not find that certain voters had been residents at the time of an election. State v. Rosenthal, 123 Wis. 442, 102 N. W. 49. Testimony of policeman that street car conductor gave him a certain name as that of the motorman. Morris v. New York City R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 16. Testimony as to value of property, based on figures and reports given witness by others, not shown to be correct. Steinmetz v. Cosmopolitan Range Co., 94 N. Y. S. 456. Information derived by a police officer from a third person as to amount of nitro-glycerine transported through street contrary to ordinance. Walter v. Bowling Green, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 516. Testimony based on recollection of what appeared in books, and not of the actual transactions, inadmissible. Sterling v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 655. Improper to permit witness to testify to facts, knowledge of which she gained from what her husband told her. Stephens v. Herron [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 334, 88 S. W. 849. On issue of insanity of testator, what a witness heard in the family as to insanity of his ancestors, and statements by his mother to a physician and letters by her, were inadmissible. Roche v. Nason, 93 N. Y. S. 565. Answers not based on personal knowledge, but pure hearsay, properly stricken from record. Lambert v. Hamlin [N. H.] 59 A. 941. Admission of testimony of witness that "they told me it [piano] was worth $400," reversible error. Jaeger v. German-American Ins. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 310.

61. Illustrations—held inadmissible: Testimony of witness who had no knowledge of weights of cattle except as gained from records. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Leggett [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1066. Testimony of witness in deposition in regard to contract held hearsay because not based on personal knowledge. Norman Printers' Supply Co. v. Ford, 77 Conn. 461, 59 A. 499. On issue of what articles of personalty were included in a contract of sale of a farm and personalty thereon, a list made by plaintiff on basis of another list made by a former occupant, was hearsay, and could not be used to refresh witness's memory. Dryden v. Barnes [Md.] 61 A. 342. Testimony based on book entries examined by witness, but not made by him, or in any manner authenticated, is hearsay. Rosenthal v. McGraw [C. C. A.] 138 F. 721. Conversation with defendant as to mental capacity of a deceased donor and an examination of him inadmissible. Downey v. Owen, 98 App. Div. 411, 90 N. Y. S. 280. Witness whose only knowledge of market value of stock is derived from newspaper report cannot tes-objectionable as hearsay.[63] A fact incapable of direct proof, owing to lapse of time, may be established by proof of general opinion in the community,[64] and proof of the notoriety of a fact in the neighborhood is competent to show knowledge of such fact.[65] Reputation is admissible to prove the location of a boundary line only when it has its origin at a time comparatively remote and always ante litem motam,[66] and when it attaches to some monument of boundary or natural object, or is fortified and supported by some evidence of occupation and acquiescence tending to give the land in question some fixed or definite location.[67] The only reputation admissible to tify thereto. Bunte v. Schumann, 92 N. Y. S. 806. Reading copied entries relating to transactions of which witness had no personal knowledge amounted to hearsay evidence. Rothenberg v. Herman, 90 N. Y. S. 431. General testimony not based on personal knowledge will not support a claim. Spring v. Markowitz, 98 App. Div. 324, 90 N. Y. S. 602. Testimony as to sales made in Europe, not based on personal knowledge, but on letters and telegrams from a representative there, held hearsay. Kirby Lumber Co. v. C. R. Cummings & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 231. Testimony of witness who sold cattle but did not weigh them or see them weighed, and an account of sales, attached to witness's answers as to weights of cattle, held hearsay, it not appearing who weighed the cattle or made the account, and witness's knowledge being based on the account. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Scott & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1065. Where court sustained objection to questions as to what frightened a horse, and remarked that it would be well to find out if witness knew, and counsel did not then attempt to lay a foundation, it was not error to sustain the objection. Foster v. East Jordan Lumber Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 426, 104 N. W. 617.

Held competent: Proof of death may be by hearsay when not emanating from one whose interest is thereby subserved. York v. Hilger [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1117. A witness whose knowledge is gained from market reports may testify to market value. Texas & P. R. Co. v. W. Scott & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1065. Witness may state what market value of cattle was on a certain day in Chicago, though he was not there all day, when he said he knew the market. McCrary v. Chicago & A. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 82. Testimony of witness as to market value of cattle on a certain day admissible so far as it was based on market report in a stock journal, but inadmissible so far as based on information gained from salesmen. St. Louis. etc., R. Co. v. Gunter [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 938. Witness who had paid a freight rate several times, and had been told by agent what it was, qualified to testify to it. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. West [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 552, 88 S. W. 426. Witness who has paid a certain freight rate, a number of times may testify to it from his own knowledge. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Miller [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 587, 88 S. W. 499. Man who accompanied shipment of cattle could testify to value per head when shipped and amount of damage per head en route. Red River, etc., R. Co. v. Eastin [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 660, 88 S. W. 530. Testimony of witness who said he had never been on engine, but had stood beside them at night and observed headlight, and that he could see up the track two hundred yards, competent. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Shannon [Ark.] 88 S. W. 851. Witness, who examined a railroad crossing, held to have shown such knowledge that his testimony in regard to it was not objectionable as mere conjecture. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. McAdams [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1076. Testimony of certain persons that they had an option to buy cotton, but it was not in writing, was not hearsay. Western Union Tel. Co. v. L. Hirsch [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 394.

62. What witness thought, no personal knowledge by him being shown is incompetent. Le Clair Co. v. Rogers-Ruger Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 346. Testimony that witness "supposed" certain persons to be his nieces and nephews, incompetent. Keith v. Keith [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 384. After witness testified that he did not know what a certain person had done, a question whether he had any reason to believe such person had done a certain thing was improper, calling at most for conjecture. John O'Brien Lumber Co. v. Wilkinson, 123 Wis. 272, 101 N. W. 1050.

63. Where the fact that a statement was made and was acted upon by a party becomes original and material evidence, the statement may be proved by any one present when it was made. Connelly v. Brown [N. H.] 60 A. 750. Evidence of inquiries made by plaintiff in trying to find residence of defendants, and information given him, held not objectionable. Wiley v. Shivel [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1100.

64. Where owing to lapse of time it was impossible to prove by direct evidence that a person, since deceased, had served in the Mexican war, the general opinion in the community where he lived and was known was admissible on the issue. Allen v. Halsted [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 754.

65. Proof of the notoriety of a fact in the neighborhood of the party to be affected thereby is competent to bring knowledge home to him. Wright v. Stewart, 130 F. 905. General reputation among railroad men of incompetency of brakeman may be shown on issue of notice of incompetency. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 89 S. W. 29.

66. Hemphill v. Hemphill [N. C.] 51 S. E. 42. Recorded deed made in 1806 and map attached thereto properly admitted to identify certain premises and show strect line, because tending to show common belief in community at the time. Village of Oxford v. Willoughby, 181 N. Y. 155, 73 N. E. 677.

67. Testimony of one who had known land fifty years and knew reputation respect-establish the fact of public ownership of land is that of a past generation.[68] Matters of pedigree may be proved by family repute,[69] or by regularly kept and properly authenticated church records.[70] But family repute is incompetent to prove possession of land by an ancestor.[71]

(§ 6) B. Res gestae.[72]—Contemporaneous or nearly contemporaneous acts or declarations, explanatory of the act, transaction, or condition which is the subject of controversy, and growing naturally therefrom, are admissible as a part thereof.[73]

ing it, that according to such reputation a division line ran along a certain ridge, was admissible. Hemphill v. Hemphill [N. C.] 51 S. E. 42.

68. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

69. Luttrell v. Whitehead, 121 Ga. 699, 49 S. E. 691.

70. A baptismal register of a church, in which entries are made by the officiating clergyman in the regular course of his duties, is admissible to prove the fact and date of baptism. Entries in church register, kept in Ireland, properly verified by parish priest, shown to be admissible in Ireland, held competent in Missouri. Collins v. German-American Mut. Life Ass'n [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 891. Where baptismal record had been kept from time immemorial by the parish priest, entries therein were presumed to have been made by the priest whose duty it was to make it, and proof that entry was in his handwriting was unnecessary. Id. Church marriage records kept by priest, not required by law to be kept and not by statute made competent evidence, are inadmissible after the priest's death to prove a fact recited therein unless the entry is proved to be in the handwriting of the priest. Murphy v. People, 213 Ill. 154, 72 N. E. 779.

71. Civ. Code 1895, § 5177, allowing such evidence to prove descent, relationship, birth, marriage and death, has no reference to proof of such possession. Luttrell v. Whitehead, 121 Ga. 699, 49 S. E. 691.

72. See 3 C. L. 1357.

73. To be admissible as a part of the res gestae, declarations or acts must be connected with or grow out of the main or principal transaction which is the subject-matter of the litigation, and must tend to elucidate and explain such transaction. Leach v. Oregon Short Line R. C. [Utah] 81 P. 90. The test of res gestae is whether the declaration is a verbal act illustrating, explaining or interpreting other parts of the transaction of which it is itself a part. If it is a mere history of a past transaction, it is not res gestae. Chicago City R. Co. v. White, 110 Ill. App. 23; Boyd v. West Chicago St. R. Co., 112 Ill. App. 50. To be admissible as res gestae, declarations must accompany an act under investigation, or be so nearly connected therewith in time as to be free from all suspicion of device or afterthought. Civ. Code 1895, § 5179. Pool v. Warren County [Ga.] 51 S. E. 328. Events speaking for themselves through the instructive words and acts of participants are parts of the res gestae. Chapman v. Pendleton, 26 R. I. 573, 59 A. 928.

Illustrations—held competent: Statements on which credit was extended, and a subsequent denial of such statements, held admissible as part of res gestae. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift [Ga.] 51 S. E. 748. Declarations of decedent, an osteopath, that he had strained his back while treating a patient and was in great pain, made a half hour after commencing such treatment, admissible as res gestae. Patterson v. Ocean Acc. & Guarantee Corp. 25 App. D. C. 46. Statement made by freight conductor to plaintiff, during transportation of cattle, when asked why he didn't get over the road, that he couldn't "get any where with this dummy" and that company should not have sent it out, competent as res gestae. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Kempton [C. C. A.] 138 F. 992. Where an injury, the coming of witnesses to the scene, and the account of how the injury occurred, given by the injured man to witnesses, were practically simultaneous, what he said was admissible as part of the res gestae. Muren Coal & Ice Co. v. Howell [Ill.] 75 N. E. 469. Admission of motorman a few seconds after a collision that he did not sound gong or stop car because the gong and brake were out of order, held competent as a part of the res gestae, since he did not have time to make a premeditated false statement. Lexington St. R. Co. v. Strader [Ky.] 89 S. W. 158. Declaration of alleged partner who bought goods, made at time of purchase, that he bought for the firm, is admissible as res gestae, to show actual contract. Beckwith v. Mace [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 124, 103 N. W. 559. Statements made by an insurance agent to his company as to moneys received by him, and admissions of indebtedness made during an attempt to settle, held to have been a part of transactions in which he was engaged as agent; they were therefore admissible as res gestae against his sureties in an action on his bond. Thompson v. Commercial Union Assur. Co. [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1073. Declarations of a person showing the mental condition or intention at the time an act is done are competent. Declarations before and after a gift that intestate intended to give property to husband. Hagar v. Norton [Mass.] 73 N. E. 1073. Declarations of a witness in a will contest are competent, which tend to show the state of mind of the witness and her design and purpose in treating the testatrix as she did. Schoch v. Schoch, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 110.

Held incompetent: Evidence of a dream of plaintiff about his injured hand inadmissible. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Smith [Ky.] 84 S. W. 755. In a civil action for damages for assault and battery, the record of a trial and acquittal of defendant before a justice of the peace is inadmissible as a part of the res gestae. Stevens v. Friedman [W. Va.] 51 S. E. 132. On issue of damage to property from changing street grade, statements of contractor when he commenced the work were incompetent as res gestae. Swope v. Seattle, 36 Wash. 113, 78 P. 607.

Statements subsequent to the main transaction in issue,[74] relating to its cause or effect,[75] or merely narrating past events,[76] are usually excluded. But subsequent declarations may be competent if intimately connected with the transaction out of which they arise.[77] Declarations or exclamations of a mere spectator are inadmissible as res gestae.[78]

74. Exclamation of plaintiff when riding on a train some time after the injury complained of inadmissible to prove his neurasthenic condition. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Hammerlund [Kan.] 79 P. 152. In suit for damages caused by fire from sparks, what defendant's foreman said about refusing to take engine back into the field unless fixed so as to prevent escape of sparks was not res gestae. Quint v. Dimond [Cal.] 82 P. 310. In action for ejectment from train, statements of conductor to witness the day after the occurrence were inadmissible. Wieland v. Southern Pac. Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 226.

75. Statement of motorman almost immediately after street car collision that he lost control. Norris v. Interurban St. R. Co., 90 N. Y. S. 460. Statement by mate of vessel ten minutes after man fell down hatchway, that "hatch covers never did fit." The Saranac, 132 F. 936. Statement by foreman after injury to plaintiff and while plaintiff was confined from injury, made to plaintiff and to another, that he had forgotten to disconnect machinery. Baier v. Selke, 211 Ill. 512, 71 N. E. 1074. Statements by master of barge, sunk by collision with bridge, as to cause of accident, made at a subsequent time and a different place. The Maurice [C. C. A.] 135 F. 516. Statement of street car conductor to injured passenger as he was assisting him off the car after the injury, as to cause of sudden stopping of car. Redmon v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 185 Mo. 1, 84 S. W. 26. What miners said to mine boss forty-five minutes after accident. Wojtylak v. Kansas & T. Coal Co. [Mo.] 87 S. W. 506. What occurred between mine boss and workmen forty-five minutes after an accident to a miner. Id. Statements of section boss in mine day after injury. Straight Creek Coal Co. v. Haney's Adm'r [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1114. In action for fire from locomotive sparks, statements of conductor and engineer that fire from locomotive was the cause. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Laforge [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1072.

76. In action for death under intoxicating liquor law, declarations of deceased as to where he got whisky, while on the road. Horst v. Lewis [Neb.] 103 N. W. 460. Declarations of a testator relative to an agreement of co-suretyship between himself and defendant, made in his own interest and in defendant's absence. Chapman v. Pendelton, 26 R. I. 573, 59 A. 928. Testimony as to what witnesses heard an engineer say in explanation of circumstances under which deceased was killed held hearsay and of no probative force, though admitted without objection. Kemp v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 465. Declarations of motorman, long after collision, as to his position in car and distance away of truck when first seen. Dorry v. Union R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 637. Statements by plaintiff and defendant's agent after plaintiff had fallen in elevator, as to warning, and responsibility for accident. Simms v. Forbes [Miss.] 38 So. 546. Narrative of circumstances attending accident to passenger on alighting from train, given by him a half hour after he was hurt. White v. Southern R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 411. An account to defendant's agent the following day, reduced to writing by the agent. Id. Statement of deceased, a minute or more after the accident in which he received injury resulting in death, as to manner in which it happened. Boyd v. West Chicago St. R. Co., 112 Ill. App. 50.

77. The limit of time in regard to such declarations—how long before or after the act they are competent—is largely discretionary. Hagar v. Norton [Mass.] 73 N. E. 1073. Declarations of woman to her husband after she had fallen on walk and screamed and he had come to her, having been a little distance ahead, admissible as res gestae. District of Columbia v. Dietrich, 23 App. D. C. 577. Exclamation of plaintiff immediately after she fell from street car, "Yes; let the step down after I fall," competent as a part of res gestae, tending to show negligence in not letting down step in time. Hutcheis v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 779. Statement of boy a few minutes after he was hurt, while crying and holding his arm, and in answer to question as to what had happened, that brakeman had kicked him off the train, admissible as res gestae. Dixon v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 37 Wash. 310, 79 P. 943. Exclamation of conductor and statement to brakeman a few seconds after accident, "My God! Go back and see if you can find Leach. The bridge knocked him off," held admissible. Leach v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Utah] 81 P. 90. Declarations of an injured person as to manner in which and place where she fell, made a half hour after she fell and while she was still suffering from the injury, held competent. Rothrock v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 103 N. W. 475. Statement of plaintiff, less than five minutes after accident, that he was badly hurt, held admissible as res gestae. Texas Cent. R. Co.v. Powell [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 21.

78. In collision case, evidence by a spectator that he called to motorman, when car was pushing wagon, "Why don't you stop the car?" incompetent. Kuperschmidt v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 17. Statements of a stranger, who was not found at time of trial, to a witness as to how a boy was hurt, inadmissible. Dixon v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 37 Wash. 310, 79 P. 943. Conversation after street car accident in which bystander reproached conductor for negligence is no part of res gestae. Chicago City R. Co. v. White, 110 Ill. App. 23. Witness who saw street car collision could not tell what he said to street car conductor when the car was stopped. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Taylor [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1045.

Complaints [79] or natural expressions [80] of present [81] pain and suffering are competent, even though made subsequent to the time of the original injury.[82] But statements relating to the cause or nature of an injury or malady are inadmissible,[83] unless the absence of any motive for falsifying is shown.[84]

79. Estes v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 110 Mo. App. 725, 85 S. W. 627; Birmingham R., Light & Power Co. v. Rutledge [Ala.] 39 So. 338. Plaintiff's wife could testify that after accident he complained of pain in his back and hips. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Haverstick [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 34. Complaints of pain "in and about the groins." Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Powell [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 21. Evidence that witness had seen plaintiff frequently since accident and heard him complain of pains in the spine, held admissible. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Butler [Ala.] 38 So. 1024. Parents of plaintiff properly allowed to testify to complaints by plaintiff showing natural symptoms and effects of injury and to the fact that plaintiff had not complained before the injury. Stevens v. Friedman [W. Va.] 51 S. E. 132. Testimony that plaintiff "seemed to be complaining some since accident, and spitting up blood," held, as a whole, proper, and not mere hearsay. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Williams [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 248.

80. Usual and natural expressions of physical and mental suffering, manifested at the time, are admissible as original evidence. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Smith [Ky.] 84 S. W. 755. Expressions of pain and complaints regarding it are admissible, though made to persons who are not medical experts. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Powell [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 21. Exclamations, acts and demeanor of child could be shown to prove he was in pain. Boehm v. Detroit [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 397, 104 N. W. 626.

81. Evidence that plaintiff was complaining while at work, and finally had to quit, inadmissible because it was not shown that the complaints concerned present pain and suffering. Wells Fargo & Co. Exp. v. Bayle [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 164. Witness statement that plaintiff "always complains of being sore through her lungs" fairly imports that complaints were related to present suffering. Howe v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mich.] 103 N. W. 185.

82. Complaints of suffering three or four weeks after accident causing injury admissible. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Haynes [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 934. Testimony that about fifteen minutes after accident, injured man was sitting on the edge of the track, groaning and complaining, was competent. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Williams [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 248. Statements of facts fairly indicative of a relevant bodily condition of a declarant at the time of the declaration will be received as circumstantial evidence of the existence of that condition, though made a considerable time after the injury was received. Statement some hours after injury, "I am badly shaken up. No bones broken, old fellow; and it might have been worse," held competent. Western Travelers' Acc. Ass'n v. Munson [Neb.] 103 N. W. 688. Complaints of pain from injuries attributable to defendant's negligence during the time intervening between the time when the injuries were received and the death of the injured person are competent when confined to current conditions, narrations of past conditions or causes of present conditions being excluded. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews [Ala.] 39 So. 207; Birmingham R., Light & Power Co. v. Enslen [Ala.] 39 So. 74.

83. Complaints or statements relative to physical condition or feeling made in answer to questions, descriptive or narrative in character and not a part of the res gestae, are incompetent. Klingaman v. Fish & Hunter Co. [S. D.] 102 N. W. 601. Statements of sick person to her physician as to how she was injured inadmissible for her husband in action by him for her death. Hardin v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 440. Statements describing his sufferings made by plaintiff some months after his injury was received incompetent. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Smith [Ky.] 84 S. W. 755. Statement to physician by plaintiff that she fell on the ice on defendant's bridge inadmissible. Shade's Adm'r v. Covington-Cincinnati El. R. & Transfer & Bridge Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 733. Statements by injured man in response to questions made an hour after he was injured, a mile from the place of the accident, though he had not been unconscious during the interval, were incompetent. White v. Marquette [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 141, 103 N. W. 698.

Note: Evidence of statements of present physical suffering is generally admitted when the physical condition of the person making the statement is in issue, and evidence of statements of past suffering is generally excluded. State v. Fournier & Co., 68 Vt. 262. This rule is not universal, however, and in a few states no evidence of assertions of pain is admitted unless the assertions were made to a physician. Davidson v. Cornell, 132 N. Y. 228. In Massachusetts and a few other jurisdictions, evidence of statements of past suffering is admitted when the statements were made to a physician. Roosa v. Boston Loan Co., 132 Mass. 439. In the recent case of Cashin v. New York, etc., R. Co., 185 Mass. 543, 70 N. E. 930 [3 C. L. 1358, n. 32], a personal injury action, testimony by a witness not a physician was received that plaintiff had said, with his hands on his head, "Oh, if I could only get rid of these headaches." In this case, since the statement was not made to a physician, the admission of the evidence had to be rested solely on the ground that it was a statement of present suffering. Although no authority directly in point has been found, the court seems to have been justified in holding that it was admissible on that ground. The statement necessarily carried with it an idea of past suffering as proof of which the evidence would be inadmissible; but since it also clearly referred to present pain, it was not on that account objectionable.—18 Harv. L. R. 148.

84. Held incompetent: Exclamations of pain by plaintiff long after injury and after she had decided to bring suit were incompetent. McCormick v. Detroit, G. H. & M. R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 326, 104 N. W. 390. Opinion of physician based in whole or in part on self-serving statement of party made with view of enabling physician to testify. Bates Machine Co. v. Crowley, 115 Ill. App. 540.

(§ 6) C. Admissions or declarations against interest,[85] oral[86] or written,[87] are competent evidence against the declarant,[88] and similar admissions and declarations by one shown to be the agent of another,[89] accompanying and explaining acts

Held competent: Statements of an injured person to a physician at the time of his examination, to enable him to give proper treatment, are admissible as a part of the res gestae. Shade's Adm'r v. Covington-Cincinnati El. R. & Transfer & Bridge Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 733. In action by husband for death of wife, wife's declarations concerning her condition were admissible against him. Hardin v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 440. Voluntary and spontaneous declarations of the deceased to those in attendance upon him as to the cause of his illness, due to poison, from which he was then suffering and soon died, are admissible as part of the res gestae, where the circumstances are such as to preclude the idea of premeditation or any motive for falsifying. Puls v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. [N. D.] 102 N. W. 165. In personal injury actions, complaints made by plaintiff to attending physician are inadmissible as evidence unless made under such circumstances as to be equivalent to spontaneous and involuntary exclamations or outcries, groans, convulsive movements, and other physical manifestations of present pain and suffering. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. Gardner [Ga.] 49 S. E. 818. Testimony that plaintiff, in personal injury suit, "would bring her hand up to her side, and say her side hurt her, and that she had such pains in the hollow of her neck and back of her head" competent, the complaints being made before suit was instituted. McHugh v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 853. Declarations of a sick or injured person as to the nature, symptoms and effects of the disease or injury from which he is suffering at the time, are competent evidence in an action wherein the nature and cause of the malady are in question. Puls v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. [N. D.] 102 N. W. 165.

85. See 3 C. L. 1359.

Held admissions against interest: Recognition by heir of widow's endowment rights is an admission that ancestor owned land at time of his death. Coberly v. Coberly [Mo.] 87 S. W. 957. Conduct of party indicating a belief in the weakness of his cause may be shown as an admission, subject to his explanation. Neece v. Neece [Va.] 51 S. E. 739. Admissions of decedent as to condition of her health when she applied for insurance admissible against executor in action on policy. Finn v. Prudential Ins. Co., 98 App. Div. 588, 90 N. Y. S. 697. In election cases, voluntary admissions of persons whose names appear upon the poll lists that they voted but were not at the time residents are held admissible, though there is a conflict. By some courts voters are considered parties to the controversy. State v. Rosenthal, 123 Wis. 442, 102 N. W. 49. An auditor's settlement of a tax collector's account is admissible both against him and his sureties, even though the settlement contains an item for which the sureties are not liable. Commonwealth v. Carson, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 437. Assessment value of vessel, together with evidence that owner had appeared before commissioners and objected to first asseessment as too high and more than boat was worth, and had stated what he paid for it, and that assessment had then been lowered, competent as an admission. Gossage v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co. [Md.] 61 A. 692.

Held not admissions: Acceptance of quitclaim deed of certain land not an admission of ownership by grantor of certain other land. Dougan v. Greenwich, 77 Conn. 444, 59 A. 505. Silence in court when another is testifying cannot be construed as an admission by one not a party to the action then being tried. Caseday v. Lindstrom, 44 Or. 309, 75 P. 222. Statement of boy of 17, after having lost a night's sleep, that grandfather was drinking and was crazy, was not an admission of his insanity and testamentary incapacity. Gesell v. Baugher [Md.] 60 A. 481. A mere opinion, not resting upon a knowledge of actual facts, is incompetent as an admission. Remark that girl must have left a faucet open incompetent. Aschenbach v. Keene, 92 N. Y. S. 764. Where parties submit claims to arbitration but agree that the finding of the arbitrator shall not be binding, such finding is inadmissible. Truax v. Bliss [Mich.] 102 N. W. 635. Proofs of death are competent on issue whether they were such as policy required; but incompetent on issue of cause of death, as affecting company's liability. Knights Templars' & Masons' L. I. Co. v. Crayton, 110 Ill. App. 648. Proofs of death not prepared by or under direction of beneficiary are not binding as admissions on her. Puls v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. [N. D.] 102 N. W. 165.

Contra: Proofs of death admissible as admissions against interest in insurance cases. Houghton v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. [Ind.] 73 N. E. 592. Statements in preliminary proofs of death of insured admissible as admissions against interest of plaintiff but not conclusive. Baldi v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 275.

86. Conversation admissible to show admissions by defendant that his cattle had damaged corn. Story v. Nidiffer, 146 Cal. 549, 80 P. 692. Conversation containing admissions improperly excluded, although occurring at a time after alleged misrepresentations on which action was based. Lefler v. Fox, 92 N. Y. S. 227. An offer to pay a certain sum for goods involves an admission of delivery of the goods and of their value up to the amount of the offer. Hopkins v. Rodgers, 91 N. Y. S. 749. Declaration by party against interest, tending to establish adverse party's claim, admissible. Fitzgerald v. Coleman, 114 Ill. App. 25. Where, after hearing that plaintiff's sheep had been killed, defendant killed his dog and said he "would kill no more sheep," such act and declaration were competent as an admission against interest. Anderson v. Halverson, 126 Iowa, 125, 101 N. W. 781. Declarations of woman that she had sold a clock admissible, being against interest as tending to show she had no title. Wonsetler v. Wonsetler, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 321. Declarations of a father tending to show a gift of land to his son admissible. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 230. Testimony on former trial containing admissions on point in issue improperly excluded. Hillman v. De Rosa, 92 N. Y. S. 67. In an action against a city and the water, light and power commission of the city, evidence of a conversation between the chairman of the commission and the city electrician, tending to show why power was not cut off from the wires on which plaintiff was working, was held admissible, though the conversation occurred after the injury. City of Austin v. Forbis [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 29. An admission by a party against interest relating to any material matter may be proved without laying a predicate therefor. Contreras v. San Antonio Traction Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 870.

87. Written calculation of interest by decedent, found among his papers, used to show admission of liability. Yost's Estate, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 223. In action for commissions by salesman, a letter, written by him admitting a mistake in use of samples by which sale was made was competent evidence against him. Schreiner v. Kissock, 91 N. Y. S. 28. On issue whether building was to be erected on leased premises by lessee and cost taken from the rent, letters from a co-lessor to the lessee, showing knowledge of the erection of the building and tending to show the agreement claimed by the lessee, were competent. Chamberlain v. Iba, 181 N. Y. 486, 74 N. E. 481. Letter by owner to railroad representative offering to sell land at certain price admissible in condemnation proceedings as declaration against interest. Kaufman v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. [Pa.] 60 A. 2. Letter by plaintiffs to defendants, referring to mill as "your mill," competent as admission regarding an arrangement between them regarding the mill. Cox v. Burdett, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 346. Letter written in course of negotiations competent to show intention, notice, and reason for punitive damages, in action for inducing breach of contract. Morehouse v. Terrill, 111 Ill. App. 460. Letter written by attorney of party to contract in answer to bill rendered admissible as tending to show that no claim of fraud had been set up at that time. McNamara v. Douglas [Conn.] 61 A. 368. The agency of a certain person in the transaction out of which the prosecution grew may be shown from statements that he was agent made in a publication of which defendant was the author. Hurgren v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 141 Cal. 585, 75 P. 168. Book of railroad rules giving, among other things, heights of bridges, competent evidence. Doyle v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 113 Ill. App. 532. Affidavit of person under whom defendant claimed interest in land, admitting that affiant did not own such interest, admissible, though affiant was dead, and though affidavit had been used in litigation to which defendant had not been a party. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 666.

Pleadings as evidence: Either party may introduce as evidence the pleadings of the adverse party. Palmer Transfer Co. v. Eayes [Ky.] 85 S. W. 750. Pleadings in a case are before the court and jury and may be read and commented on to define the issues and show what is admitted without being formally introduced in evidence. Foley v. Young Men's Christian Ass'n, 92 N. Y. S. 781. Allegations of a reconvention or cross bill may be used as evidence by the plaintiff, but are not conclusive, and do not relieve plaintiff of the necessity of proving his case, the defendant having also filed defensive pleadings. Lewis v. Crouch [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1009. Pleadings in another suit admissible to prove that statute of frauds had been set up as a defense. De Montague v. Bacharach, 187 Mass. 128, 72 N. E. 938. Unsworn answers not evidence of facts therein stated, but may be referred to to show grounds of defense. Mankey v. Willoughby, 21 App. D. C. 314. After the filing of an amended pleading, the original pleading is competent as an admission. Schultz v. Culbertson [Wis.] 103 N. W. 234. In such case evidence tending to show such original pleading to have been unauthorized is admissible. Thus, testimony of attorney that he drew answer without consulting client and on information furnished by third persons, admissible on weight of answer as admission. Schultz v. Culbertson [Wis.] 103 N. W. 234. Pleadings are admissible as evidence only against the pleader as admissions by him, and are open to explanation and rebuttal unless sworn to with knowledge of the facts. Potter v. Fitchburg Steam Engine Co., 110 Ill. App. 430. Allegations in a suit between two parties, if available at all to a third party, not a party to the suit in which they were made, are not conclusive admissions, but are open to explanation. Brown, Chipley & Co. v. Haigh, 113 La. 563, 37 So. 478. A pleader is not bound by the admission of a mere conclusion of law when the facts pleaded show such admission to be erroneous. Hensel v. Hoffman [Neb.] 104 N. W. 603. In a suit by an assignee of a mortgage to foreclose, the answer of the assignor, made a defendant, admitting the allegations of the bill, is admissible to prove the assignee's title. This is an exception to the general rule that the answer of one defendant is not admissible against another. Langley v. Andrews [Ala.] 38 So. 238.

88. But declarations of a person inadmissible in suit by him in a representative capacity. Thompson v. Mecosta [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 474, 104 N. W. 694.

89. Person held an agent of insurance company, so that his declarations were admissible against it. Prudential Fire Ins. Co. v. Alley [Va.] 51 S. E. 812. Agency being admitted, declarations of agent were admissible, though there was no evidence of agency. Nicola Bros. Co. v. Hurst [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1081. Declarations of one not shown to be an agent of party to suit are inadmissible against such party. Brounfield v. Denton [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 378. Acts and declarations of one not shown to have authority as agent inadmissible. Phenix Nerve Beverage Co. v. Dennis & L. Wharf & Warehouse Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 258; Dexter v. Thayer [Mass.] 75 N. E. 223. Declarations of a former officer and agent at time when he had ceased to represent company inad-then being done by him [90] while acting within the scope of his authority as agent,[91] are competent against the principal.[92] The existence of the agency [93] or the extent missible against it. Walker Mfg. Co. v. Knox [C. C. A.] 136 F. 334. Declarations and acts of agent are binding on principal only after prima facie case of agency has been established. Brittain v. Westall, 137 N. C. 30, 49 S. E. 54. Proof as to time of termination of agency being conflicting, material and relevant declarations of the agent during the entire term as to which there is evidence tending to show the existence of the agency should be received. Porter v. Adams, 115 Ill. App. 439. Where evidence authorized inference of agency, exclusion of representations by the agent was error. Romano v. Brooks [Ala.] 39 So. 213. Statements by person in insurance office, unidentified, and not shown to have authority to bind the company, held incompetent. Spencer v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 899. Admissions or declarations of partner after dissolution of firm are inadmissible against co-partners. Mackintosh v. Kimball, 101 App. Div. 494, 92 N. Y. S. 132. Statement of a son held not binding on his mother nor on her heirs, and inadmissible. Johnson v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1023.

90. Declarations of an agent are admissible against the principal only when accompanying an act within the scope of the agency, and so nearly connected therewith as to become a part of the res gestae. Turner v. Turner [Ga.] 50 S. E. 969. Statements by corporation's servant as to how horses were injured held mere narratives of past events and inadmissible as res gestae. Alden v. Grande Ronde Lumber Co. [Or.] 81 P. 385. Declarations of driver of wagon after injury to child, in absence of employer, inadmissible. Burke v. Borden's Condensed Milk Co., 98 App. Div. 219, 90 N. Y. S. 527. Statement of section foreman as to cause of accident inadmissible against defendant, because not res gestae, even though foreman was vice principal. Lee v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 12. Statement of engineer in charge of steam roller, after accident to horse, not part of res gestae so as to be binding on employer. Hall v. Uvalde Asphalt Pav. Co., 92 N. Y. S. 46. Admission of town chairman of receipt of notice of injury on highway, not a part of the res gestae, is inadmissible against the town on issue of service of notice. Garske v. Ridgeville, 123 Wis. 503, 102 N. W. 22. Statement of manager to plaintiff's wife, who came to collect wages after he was hurt, that it was not plaintiff's fault that he was hurt, not part of res gestae, and not binding on company. Alquist v. Eagle Iron Works, 126 Iowa, 67, 101 N. W. 520. In action by passenger for abusive language by brakeman, evidence that brakeman said to witness, some time after the occurrence, that he started to slap plaintiff, and wished he had, was inadmissible. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Winslow [Ky.] 84 S. W. 1175. Statement of servant while driving horses from a pasture that, if found there again, they would be scattered so that they would never be found, held inadmissible because relating to a future act, and not the act then being done. Waggoner v. Snody [Tex.] 85 S. W. 1134.

91. Declarations of agent admissible against principal only when res gestae, or when they accompany and are a part of an act performed by the agent on behalf of his principal within the scope of his authority. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Keegan, 112 Ill. App. 338. Declarations held inadmissible. Burbank v. Hammond [Mass.] 75 N. E. 102. Conversation with agent inadmissible in absence of showing that it was in the course of his employment. Klingaman v. Fish & Hunter Co. [S. D.] 102 N. W. 601. Threats not brought home to a party and not shown to have been authorized by him inadmissible. Mabb v. Stewart [Cal.] 81 P. 1073. What station agent said after team was struck by engine incompetent. Bachant v. Boston & M. R. Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 642. Admissions of a cashier made on witness stand in action to which bank was not a party inadmissible against the bank. Harrison County v. State Sav. Bank [Iowa] 103 N. W. 121. Employe's statements as to character of principal's work, not made when employe was authorized to represent principal as to such matters, are incompetent against principal. Manning v. School Dist. No. 6 of Ft. Atkinson [Wis.] 102 N. W. 356. Alleged admissions of insurance adjuster who had no power to waive contract provisions inadmissible against company. Emanuel v. Maryland Casualty Co., 94 N. Y. S. 36. Evidence of admissions by engineer tending to show elevator machinery defective inadmissible, no authority of the engineer to represent defendant in making the statements being shown. Harkins v. Queen Ins. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 140.

92. Admissions of agent held competent against principal: General rule stated. Blair-Baker Horse Co. v. First Nat. Bank [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1027. Correspondence between two agents. Ragsdale v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 540. Letters signed by the agent as such. Id. Admissions of defendant's agent, made in conversation with plaintiff while acting in line of duty. Id. Statement of authorized agent when transacting business for principal regarding subject-matter of the transaction. Prussian Nat. Ins. Co. v. Empire Catering Co., 113 Ill. App. 67. Admission of authorized agent that certain abbreviation stood for firm name, and receipt containing such abbreviation. Campbell v. Emslie, 101 App. Div. 369, 91 N. Y. S. 1069. Conversations between injured servant—plaintiff—and one shown to represent the master. Flickner v. Lambert [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 263. On issue of fraud and duress in procuring a release, evidence of what defendant's physician said and did before and after the paper was signed. Glisson v. Paducah R. & Light Co. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 305. There being some evidence of agency, letter signed by agent was admissible as tending to show by what authority he acted. Fulghan v. Carter [Ala.] 37 So. 932. Declarations of vice-president of corporation while occupying chair at meeting in president's absence, binding on corporation, even though made in absence of adverse party. Vincent v. Soper Lumber Co., 113 Ill. App. 463. Conversation between employe and foreman competent to show notice to foreman of existence of conditions subsequently causing injury. Bates Mach. Co. v. Crowley, 115 Ill. App. 540. In forcible entry and detainer action, statements by plaintiff's authorized agent made for and in behalf of plaintiff, tending to show plaintiff did not claim the land, are admissible. Bailey v. Blacksher Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 827. Statement of conductor in charge of train that he knew the condition of the engine, and knew he couldn't get far with it, admissible against defendant. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Russell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 591, 88 S. W. 379. Persons known as "general manager" and "general traffic manager" of railroad held to have such apparent authority that their statements were competent evidence against the railroad company. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Rolfe [Ark.] 88 S. W. 870. Declaration of insurance company's supervisor of death claims relative to company's refusal to pay loss is not hearsay but competent proof on issue of waiver of proof of loss. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Norcross, 163 Ind. 379, 72 N. E. 132. Statement of telephone company manager while in performance of his duties as manager, that a certain wire belonged to his company admissible against the company. Lynchburg Tel. Co. v. Booker, 103 Va. 594, 50 S. E. 148. Statement of bank cashier, who represented the bank, to the effect that a contract of indemnity was to be held in escrow by the bank until all the stockholders of a certain corporation had signed it, was admissible against the bank. Blair v. Security Bank, 103 Va. 762, 50 S. E. 262. Declaration of street commissioner in notice to property owner as to condition of sidewalk binding on city. Hofacre v. Monticello [Iowa] 103 N. W. 488.

of the agent's authority [94] cannot be shown by the declarations of the alleged agent,

Rule applied to other analogous relations.—Attorney and client: Application for continuance, made through attorney, containing admissions contradicting plaintiffs' testimony, admissible. Scott & Co. v. Woodard [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 550, 88 S. W. 406. Letter written by attorney under mistake of fact containing advice to client, held not an admission binding on client. Klein v. East River Elec. Light Co. [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 495. Advice given by an attorney cannot be treated as an admission by the client, especially where the client does not act upon it. Id. Admission of indebtedness by attorney, unauthorized and not of record, not binding on client. Jefferson Bank v. Gossett, 45 Misc. 630, 90 N. Y. S. 1049. Failure of an attorney to answer letters held not an admission binding on the client rendering the letters admissible. Irwin v. Buffalo Pitts Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 849. The mere fact that counsel for plaintiff does not state sufficient facts in his opening statement does not warrant a directed verdict, such statement not containing admissions constituting a complete defense. Redding v. Puget Sound Iron & Steel Works, 36 Wash. 642, 79 P. 308. Admission inserted in contract by attorney after its execution held not binding on client. Everett v. Marston, 186 Mo. 587, 85 S. W. 540.

Principal and surety: Admissions of a principal, made during the transaction of the business for which the surety is bound, become a part of the res gestae, and are admissible; but otherwise they are not. Admissions, made before contract by which surety is bound is made, are inadmissible against surety. Bailey v. McAlpin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 388. Admissions of a legal representative of an estate after his letters have been revoked are inadmissible against the surety. Id.

Co-conspirators: When a conspiracy has been shown to exist, in a civil action, the acts and declarations of each co-conspirator in furtherance of the fraudulent purpose, are regarded as acts and declarations of all concerned, and are competent evidence, though made in absence of others. Miller v. John, 111 Ill. App. 56. After evidence was in tending to show conspiracy to defraud creditors, declarations of bankrupt that certain property was his and he placed it in his wife's name to get it beyond reach of creditors, were competent. Sheeley v. Nolen [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 524. Declarations of a conspirator are inadmissible against co-conspirators unless made in furtherance of a common design or unless they accompany an act then being done in furtherance of the design. In boycott case, declarations of a member of a union that he would go out, withdraw from the union and then return, held competent, as accompanying his act of going out, there being evidence of a conspiracy. Patch Mfg. Co. v. Protection Lodge No. 215 [Vt.] 60 A. 74. Declaration of co-conspirator after completion of criminal enterprise, relating to a past transaction, and not accompanying an act done in furtherance of the enterprise, is incompetent against other conspirators. Lederer v. Adler, 92 N. Y. S. 827. Unsworn declarations of an alleged conspirator having been admitted on the promise of the state's attorney to make the proper connection, and such connection not being made, it is error to refuse to strike such declarations from the record. Brennan v. People, 113 Ill. App. 361. Admissions by alleged conspirators after completion of purpose are admissible if confined to persons alone who made them, and consideration of them is excluded as against alleged co-conspirators. Lorenz v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 337.

Guardian and ward: Admissions of guardian not binding on ward. Kidwell v. Ketler, 146 Cal. 12, 79 P. 514. Guardian's part in conversation inadmissible against incompetent ward. Hayden v. Collins [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1120.

Consignor and consignee: Admissions of bank officer, consignor of package of money held not binding on consignee of package. Bank of Irwin v. American Exp. Co. [Iowa] 102 N. W. 107.

93. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Grimmon [Nev.] 81 P. 43; Sloan v. Sloan [Or.] 78 P. 893; Brounfield v. Denton [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 378; Blair-Baker Horse Co. v. First Nat. Bank [Ind.] 72 N. E. 1027; Larson v. Centennial Mill Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 294.

94. Attorney's declarations inadmissible to show extent of his authority. West v. Messick Grocery Co., 138 N. C. 166, 50 S. E. 565.

though an agent may himself testify to the fact of agency.[95] Self-serving,[96] ex parte[97] declarations are incompetent evidence for the declarant, or those in privity with him.[98] Silence or acquiescence of a person in whose presence statements are made is construed as an admission by him,[99] as is failure to deny [1] or present [2] claims. A portion of a declaration or other admission being introduced, 95. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Grimmon [Nev.] 81 P. 43; Aultman Threshing & Engine Co. v. Knoll [Kan.] 79 P. 1074.

96. Hayden v. Collins [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1120. Statements by plaintiff claiming rights in land in dispute inadmissible because self-serving. Spellman v. Rhode [Mont.] 81 P. 395. Proof of loss under fire policy is not evidence of the amount of loss but is admissible only to show that proof has been made as required. Tucker v. Colonial Fire Ins. Co. [W. Va.] 51 S. E. 86. Declarations of woman that she had not sold clock, being in her own interest, tending to show title in herself, and not made in adverse claimant's presence, incompetent. Wonsetler v. Wonsetler, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 321. Self-serving declarations to attorney regarding execution of release inadmissible. Wojtylak v. Kansas & T. Coal Co. [Mo.] 87 S. W. 506. Where written statement by plaintiff was introduced, statements by plaintiff to another differing from the written statement, were held inadmissible in rebuttal because made to one who afterward became his attorney, and at a time when he was contemplating a suit. Vicars v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 286.

97. Ex parte statements by defendant, made in plaintiff's absence, inadmissible. Lynn v. Bean [Ala.] 37 So. 515. Ex parte affidavit attached to proofs of loss by fire, purporting to fix amount of loss, inadmissible. American Ins. Co. v. Walston, 111 Ill. App. 133. Testimony of officer before whom instrument was acknowledged that he understood from both grantors that instrument was to be a security for the debt of one of them, held a mere conclusion based on ex parte statements of the grantors. Henderson v. Brunson [Ala.] 37 So. 549. Representations of mortgagor to creditors that mortgage had been paid are not binding on the mortgagee when made in his absence and without his knowledge. Smith v. Leavenworth [Or.] 80 P. 1010. Declarations of municipal officer inadmissible to establish municipal right against one adversely interested, when made in latter's absence. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. Declarations of maker of note to indorser at the time of procuring the indorsement, in the absence of the transferree of the note, inadmissible against the transferree. Meyer v. Foster [Cal.] 81 P. 402. A statement of an alleged partner, made in the absence of one against whom a suit is brought and after commencement of such suit, that he knew plaintiff ought to recover but hoped he would not because defendant could force him (the speaker) to pay, held inadmissible against the absent defendant. Bailey v. Fritz Bros. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 569. Rule of street railway company as to place of stopping cars inadmissible in favor of the company. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Brown, 112 Ill. App. 351. In determining value of railroad for taxation purposes, classification of expenses in the company books is in the nature of self-serving declaration. State v. Nevada Cent. R. Co. [Nev.] 81 P. 99. Entries on the books of a delinquent treasurer will be treated as declarations in his favor merely and are not competent to disprove receipts given by him. Hudson v. Baker, 185 Mass. 122, 70 N. E. 419. Report of an expert to his employe, though communicated to adverse party, is incompetent, being mere hearsay and a self-serving declaration. Manning v. School Dist. No. 6 [Wis.] 102 N. W. 356. Private survey inadmissible to show that certain government lands, when surveyed, will be included in a grant to a railway. United States v. Montana Lumber & Mfg. Co., 196 U. S. 573, 49 Law. Ed. 604. Application by an administrator for leave to sell land of plaintiff's intestate is inadmissible to prove a link in plaintiff's chain of title, by showing possession by such administrator. Luttrell v. Whitehead, 121 Ga. 699, 49 S. E. 691. In the absence of a rule of court to the contrary, an affidavit of defense cannot be introduced as evidence of the facts alleged. Kittanning Borough v. Kittanning Consolidated Nat. Gas. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 355.

98. Declarations of one in possession in favor of his own title are inadmissible in favor of those claiming under him. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 235. Declarations of a lessor in his own interest are inadmissible for his lessee in an action between the lessee and the adjoining owner. Western Union Oil Co. v. Newlove, 145 Cal. 772, 79 P. 542.

99. Declarations of physician after examining plaintiff, and in his presence, as to result of examination, competent against plaintiff. Kozlowski v. Chicago, 113 Ill. App. 513. On issue of acceptance of architect's plans, declarations of defendant's wife at the time the contract was being considered, coupled with defendant's acquiescence therein, were admissible against him. Hight v. Klingensmith [Ark.] 87 S. W. 138. Memorandum of contract dictated in presence of corporation manager and shown to be correct by stenographer, admissible against corporation, though unsigned. Pacific Export Lumber Co. v. North Pacific Lumber Co. [Or.] 80 P. 105.

1. Rendition of bills and their retention without objection is some evidence of price agreed to be paid. Blanding v. Cohen, 101 App. Div. 442, 92 N. Y. S. 93. Failure to reply to letters or deny statements therein relating to matters in issue is evidence tending to show the truth of such statements. Richardson v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co. [Okl.] 81 P. 781.

2. Failure to assert a claim at a time and place when such assertion would be natural and proper is some evidence that the claim was an afterthought. Thus failure to present claim for damages to hack caused by hauling smallpox patients in final bill the remainder is competent,[3] since an admission is to be considered as an entirety.[4] The party against whom an admission is introduced may explain it.[5]

Offers of compromise [6] and admissions of liability [7] made in the course of negotiations looking toward a settlement,[8] are excluded on grounds of public policy.

Declarations of a person in possession of land which qualify or explain the nature of his possession [9] are competent against a successor in interest.[10] The sub-rendered city is an admission against the good faith of the claim. Nichols v. New Britain, 77 Conn. 695, 60 A. 655. Written submission of claims to arbitration admissible on existence of claim in suit, such claim not being included in written submission. Stock v. Crawford, 125 Iowa, 355, 101 N. W. 89. Verified tax schedules, made by a party, in which no return of note was made, competent on issue whether such party owned the note at the time the schedules were made. Fudge v. Marquell [Ind.] 72 N. E. 565.

3. Where part of a declaration or conversation is given in evidence by one party, the whole on the same subject may be inquired into by the other party. Code Civ. Proc. § 1854. Risdon v. Yates, 145 Cal. 210, 78 P. 641. A letter having been admitted, reply thereto is admissible. Hoggson & P. Mfg. Co. v. Sears, 77 Conn. 587, 60 A. 133. Under Code, § 4615. Robertson v. Vasey, 125 Iowa, 526, 101 N. W. 271. Portion of a conversation having been shown, details thereof may be shown in rebuttal. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Frazier [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 400. Robertson v. Vasey, 125 Iowa, 526, 101 N. W. 271. Where one witness testified to interview, another could testify in rebuttal and to contradict other witness, and admission of statement that party wanted to settle was not error. Hoggson & P. Mfg. Co. v. Sears, 77 Conn. 587, 60 A. 133. Where a conversation contained an admissible declaration, another statement in the conversation, explanatory of such declaration, is admissible. Smith's Adm'r v. Smith [Vt.] 61 A. 558. Declarations or admissions of a party inconsistent with present claims having been admitted, evidence explanatory of such admissions is always competent. Chamberlain v. Iba, 181 N. Y. 486, 74 N. E. 481.

4. Account book kept by deceased executor held competent, if at all, as a whole; error to introduce only certain items. Curry v. Lanning, 94 N. Y. S. 535. Portion of answer showing admission of a killing held admissible without the rest of the answer. Stewart v. North Carolina R. Co., 136 N. C. 385, 48 S. E. 793. Part of a sentence in an answer which admitted that death of plaintiff's decedent was caused by his coming in contact with overhead bridge admissible without the rest of the sentence. Hedrick v. Southern R. Co., 136 N. C. 510, 48 S. E. 830.

5. Party against whom admissions have been introduced should be allowed to explain them. Bartley v. Comer [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. R. 816, 89 S. W. 82. He may state that he acted on advice of counsel when making statements, but cannot tell what the attorney told him. Id.

6. Evidence of overtures to compromise, and offers to settle inadmissible. Field v. Schuster, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 82. Offers of compromise after suit has been threatened are incompetent. American Ins. Co. v. Walston, 111 Ill. App. 133. Error to refuse instruction that offer of settlement could not be considered as recognition of liability. Chicago City R. Co. v. Schuler, 111 Ill. App. 470. An offer made to compromise litigation is not an admission. Castner v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 126 Iowa, 581, 102 N. W. 499. Where a letter containing a statement of loss, not showing on its face that it was an offer to compromise, is introduced, evidence tending to show it was intended as such an offer is admissible as affecting the weight of the letter as evidence. Id. Questions as to how soon plaintiff made an attempt to settle held not to relate to offer of settlement. Russell v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 433.

7. The only admissions made during an attempt at compromise which are competent evidence are distinct, unqualified admissions of independent facts, made, not as a part of the attempted settlement, but because they were facts. Admissions of liability held improperly admitted as evidence. Roome v. Robinson, 99 App. Div. 143, 90 N. Y. S. 1055.

8. The fact that parties have entered into negotiations to secure a compromise, and admissions or propositions made in the course thereof, are inadmissible for or against either party, in case the negotiations failed of their purpose. Georgia R. & Elec. Co. v. Wallace & Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 478. Evidence of an attempt to settle with a third person, injured in the same accident, is also inadmissible. Attempt to settle with driver of carriage, injured in collision, could not be shown in action by owner for damages to carriage and horses. Id. An acknowledgment of indebtedness unconnected with and unaccompanied by any unaccepted proposition of settlement or compromise is admissible. Statement "We owe it and ought to pay" made in interview between parties held competent. Miller v. Kinsel [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1075. If an offer is not shown to be a part of an attempt to settle, and is not accompanied by a caution that it is made as confidential and without prejudice, it is admissible. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Stock [Va.] 51 S. E. 161.

9. The declarations in disparagement of title usually held admissible are those made by a declarant in possession which qualify or explain the nature of the possession. Fall v. Fall [Me.] 60 A. 718. Nature of possession, whether as tenant or owner. Field v. Field [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 726. Declarations by one in possession of land are admissible to show the character of his possession and the intent with which possession was originally taken. Swope v. Ward, 185 Mo. 316, 84 S. W. 895. Claim of ownership of one in possession of land may be ject-matter of the declarations must be capable of parol proof,[11] and the declarations must tend to establish such subject-matter.[12] Declarations of one in possession of personalty, explanatory of and characterizing his possession, are also admissible.[13] But declarations in disparagement of title by a former owner who has parted with his title are incompetent against any successor to the title.[14]

Where defendant pleads guilty in a criminal action, the plea and judgment are admissible as an admission in a civil action based on the same facts, but are not conclusive.[15] Hence defendant in the civil suit may show his entire statement to the court at the time he entered his plea of guilty in the criminal action.[16] shown by his declarations while in possession. Henry v. Brown [Ala.] 39 So. 325. Declarations of one in possession of land are competent to show extent or nature of possession, though not to show title. Dibble v. Cole, 102 App. Div. 229, 92 N. Y. S. 938. Making a map of lands, and conveyances based on the map, are acts admissible to show extent of possession. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. Declarations of a deceased grantor while in possession tending to show character of possession and whether he claimed adversely or in subservience to the title of another are competent. Emmet v. Perry [Me.] 60 A. 872. Declarations against interest as to boundaries admissible against one in privity of estate with declarant. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. Declarations of husband that certificates and land located by them belonged to his wife admissible in suit between wife and persons claiming through execution sale against husband. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cooper [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 235. Proof of permission given by town official to camp on certain land held inadmissible as proof of an act accompanying and characterizing possession where it was not proved that permission was given as to the land in suit, nor that those seen camping were those to whom permission had been given. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

10. Declarations of a person under whom title is claimed are receivable against his successor, if admissible at all, on the theory that there is sufficient identity of interest to render statements of the former equally receivable with admissions of the latter. Fall v. Fall [Me.] 60 A. 718. To be competent against a tenant, the declarant must be the tenant's predecessor in title. Id. In action involving title to realty, letters of plaintiff's grantor acknowledging that defendant's grantor had an interest in the property were admissible. Costello v. Graham [Ariz.] 80 P. 336. A mortgagor and mortgagee are not so far in privity that naked declarations of the former are admissible to disparage title of the latter. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. Oral declarations of a deceased mortgagor which have no relation to the res gestae or character or extent of his possession, many years after the mortgage was given are incompetent against the mortgagee when there is no identity of interest between the mortgagor and mortgagee. Conkling v. Weatherwax, 181 N. Y. 258, 73 N. E. 1028.

11. Declarations which do not bear on quality of any possession of declarant, and have no reference to identity or location of boundaries or monuments, or to any matter concerning physical conditions or use, are incompetent. Fall v. Fall [Me.] 60 A. 718. Title cannot be shown. Dibble v. Cole, 102 App. Div. 229, 92 N. Y. S. 938. Declarations the sole purpose of which is to show that a title shown by the record did not in fact exist are incompetent whether declarant was in or out of possession, or is living or dead. Fall v. Fall [Me.] 60 A. 718.

12. Fall v. Fall [Me.] 60 A. 718.

13. Declarations of a debtor, who has sold goods but still retains possession, that he is the owner, admissible against the buyer to show the sale fraudulent as to creditors. Piedmont Sav. Bank v. Levy, 138 N. C. 274, 50 S. E. 657. Declarations of a defendant in execution up to the time of levy, and while he is in possession are admissible; but if the evidence as to his possession is conflicting, the jury should be instructed to disregard such declarations if they do not believe he was in possession. Smiley v. Padgett [Ga.] 50 S. E. 927.

14. Self-serving declarations of a grantor after he had conveyed, in disparagement of title conveyed, are inadmissible for himself or his subsequent vendee, or to rebut other declarations against interest. West v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas [C. C. A.] 136 F. 343. Self-serving declarations of grantor, after giving his deed, are incompetent against his grantee, or the vendees of the latter. Skidmore v. Smith [Ky.] 84 S. W. 1163. The vendor of property cannot, after the sale, prejudice the vendee's rights by any ex parte denial of the bona fides of the transaction. Glaucke v. Gerlich, 91 Minn. 282, 98 N. W. 94. In replevin suit, third party's title to property cannot be shown by his own unsworn declarations, after he has parted, or while he is parting, with possession. Vagts v. Utman [Wis.] 104 N. W. 88. But this rule does not render incompetent declarations of a grantor at the time of execution of an instrument to show whether it was intended as an absolute deed or mortgage. Bell v. Pleasant, 145 Cal. 410, 78 P. 957.

Declarations of a woman that she had sold her life estate in certain land inadmissible against one claiming as remote grantee from a third person. Kirkman v. Holland [N. C.] 51 S. E. 856.

15. Assault and battery. Plea of guilty not conclusive as to facts in civil action. Risdon v. Yates, 145 Cal. 210, 78 P. 641.

16. Risdon v. Yates, 145 Cal. 210, 78 P. 641.

Declarations of a person since deceased, made ante motam litem,[17] such as declarations respecting the boundaries of land,[18] form an exception to the hearsay rule. Declarations of a deceased against interest are competent under the rule as to admissions.[19]

§ 7. Documentary evidence. A. In general.[20]—Private writings are competent evidence [21] when their contents are relevant and material [22] and their authen-

17. Under Massachusetts Rev. Laws, c. 175, § 66, declarations of a deceased person made in good faith before commencement of the action, and upon the personal knowledge of the declarant, are competent. Nagle v. Boston & N. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 1019. Such declarations are competent though made in answer to leading questions. Motorman's affirmative answer to question by conductor if he had orders to go to a certain place, over a single track, competent. Nagle v. Boston, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 1019. An offer of such declarations must show that they were made before commencement of the action. Flynn v. Coolidge [Mass.] 74 N. E. 342. Under St. 1898, c. 535 (Rev. Laws, c. 175, § 66), declarations of a deceased person after notice has been served on the city of a claim for injuries, as required by Rev. Laws, c. 51, § 20, but before an action is in fact commenced, are competent. Dickinson v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 68. From the fact that such declarations were admitted in evidence it will be inferred that the trial court found they were made in good faith. Id. Declarations of a testator to persons in his lifetime or contained in his will are admissible to contradict an oral claim for services against his estate, under Rev. Laws, c. 175, § 67. Tripp v. Macomber, 187 Mass. 109, 72 N. E. 361. Entries by an agent in the course of his principal's business are admissible after the agent's death. Civ. Code 1895, § 3034, is merely declaratory of the common law and makes entries by an agent admissible only where, under established rules of evidence, declarations of a deceased person would be admissible. Turner v. Turner [Ga.] 50 S. E. 969. In action for death, declarations of decedent, and of his father, also dead, as to decedent's age, were competent. Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Henderson Cotton Mills [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1090.

18. Acts of owner, when upon it, pointing out monuments and location of line, and declarations made when no controversy existed, are competent on location of a boundary line after declarant's death. Emmet v. Perry [Me.] 60 A. 872. The declarations of a deceased person, disinterested at the time, respecting boundaries, are competent, even though they do not accompany and give character to some act affecting declarant's title. Declaration that a certain tree was a line tree admissible. Hathaway v. Goslant [Vt.] 59 A. 835. Declarations relating to boundaries of land, made ante litem motam by a disinterested deceased person are competent evidence. Yow v. Hamilton, 136 N. C. 357, 48 S. E. 782. The fact that another person, who established the boundary is available as a witness does not make such declarations incompetent as not the best evidence. Id. Recitals in deed as to location of line inadmissible because of grantor's interest. Hemphill v. Hemphill [N. C.] 51 S. E. 42. Acts of a surveyor in marking a tree or placing a stone at the time of surveying a line are incompetent, as his declarations as to such acts would be, in the absence of proof of his death, or other proof making his declarations competent. Hill v. Dalton, 136 N. C. 339, 48 S. E. 784.

19. Declarations of a decedent against his pecuniary interest are admissible against a successor in interest, by Code Civ. Proc. § 1853. Declaration of decedent that certain property belonged to his mother, he being in possession for convenience sake, held admissible. Stoddard v. Newhall [Cal. App.] 81 P. 666. Declarations and entries of a person since deceased, against his interest, and not made with a view to pending litigation are admissible in any case. Massee-Felton Lumber Co. v. Sirmans [Ga.] 50 S. E. 92; Turner v. Turner [Ga.] 50 S. E. 969. If the declaration or entry contains statements both for and against declarant's interest, it is admissible only if those against interest preponderate over those for interest. Masse-Felton Lumber Co. v. Sirmans [Ga.] 50 S. E. 92. Such declarations or entries when admitted are evidence as to any fact stated therein which was within the knowledge of declarant or which it was his duty to know. Id.; Turner v. Turner [Ga.] 50 S. E. 969.

20. See 3 C. L. 1364.

21. Under Act May 11, 1881, P. L. 20, an application for insurance, not attached to policy, is inadmissible in evidence. Moore v. Bestline, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 6. But this statute does not exclude the policy itself though the application is not attached. Id. By rule of court properly filed verified copies of account are admissible in evidence, and items not denied are admitted as true. Blair v. Ford China Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 374.

22. Letter admissible to show promise to repurchase stock. Crandell v. Classen, 25 App. D. C. 5. Deed is admissible as prima facie proof of price paid, in action for damages to land. Sanitary District of Chicago v. Pearce, 110 Ill. App. 592. Leases of beach land by town competent to prove possession and claim by town of land in dispute. Murphy v. Commonwealth [Mass.] 73 N. E. 524. Certificates of redemption are proper evidence as to the amounts paid to redeem from tax sales. Arneson v. Haldane, 105 Ill. App. 589. Note found in room where a person is found dead from violence, in handwriting of deceased, giving directions as to burial, etc., is competent evidence on issue of suicide. Clemens v. Royal Neighbors of America [N. D.] 103 N. W. 402. A receiver's deed is admissible as a link in a chain of title though the party against whom it is offered was not a party to the proceeding in which the decree authorizing the sale was rendered. Phillips v. Collins-ticity [23] and due execution [24] have been properly shown. Where one party produces a paper and there is found thereon an entry, memorandum, or indorsement favorable to his adversary, the latter may rely on the same as evidence without further proof of its genuineness.[25] A deed is admissible only when the description contained in it is legally sufficient,[26] and when title in the grantor therein is shown.[27] A void deed ville Granite Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 666. The sale being under a consent decree, the fact that the receiver was not in possession of all the land at the time of the sale would not make the deed inadmissible. Id. Nor could the deed be collaterally attacked on the ground that an administrator bid off the property which was in part that of an intestate's estate. Id.

23. Letters inadmissible unless proved authentic. In re Ladue Tate Mfg. Co., 135 F. 910. Letter inadmissible to contradict witness, when he said he did not write it or authorize anyone else to write it. Sharpton v. Augusta & A. R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 553. Evidence as to authorship of letters held sufficient. Broadrick v. Broadrick, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 225. Identity of anonymous letter held sufficiently shown to warrant its reception. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61. Letter written by defendant's wife by defendant's permission to write as she wished regarding the matter in issue admissible against defendant. Harmon v. Leberman [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 203. A typewritten letter may have about it peculiarities which will enable one who has received several such letters, which he knows came from one whose typewritten signature is attached thereto, to identify such letter. Huber Mfg. Co. v. Claudel [Kan.] 80 P. 960. Handwriting and execution of letter need not be proved when letter is shown to be part of a correspondence relating to same subject, and was received in due course of mail. Sun Mfg. Co. v. Egbert [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 667. Where letters are introduced as evidence only on collateral matters, proof of their receipt in due course, and that they were acted upon is sufficient proof of genuineness. Jones v. Cooke, 25 App. D. C. 524. Letters are admissible against one who signs them when shown to have been received by due course of mail in answer to letters written, addressed, stamped and posted to such person by the person who afterwards received the answer. Huber Mfg. Co. v. Claudel [Kan.] 80 P. 960. A letter written in behalf of a corporation, and signed by a person admitted by the corporation to be its general manager, undertaking to bind the corporation by a contract which the manager had implied power to make, is admissible against the corporation over the objection that it was not shown to have been written by one with authority. Raleigh & G. R. Co. v. Pullman Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 1008. A telegram, whether the original or a copy, must be shown to be genuine before it is competent evidence. Cobb v. Glenn Boom & Lumber Co. [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1005. Interlineation in deed correcting a word therein held not such a mark of suspicion as to warrant exclusion of the deed as evidence. Campbell v. Bates [Ala.] 39 So. 144. A paper styled "the itemized claim presented" by defendant "to the United States government," without an explanation as to how it came into court as an original and without showing authenticity as a copy, is incompetent. Bomgardner v. Swartz, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 263. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4241, the affidavit attached to a railroad lien, containing plaintiff's signature, being only means of authentication and connecting plaintiff with paper, must be read with lien, the whole being one instrument. Bagnell Timber Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co., 180 Mo. 420, 79 S. W. 1130. Where the validity of a private writing, purporting to have been signed by an agent in behalf of his principal, is questioned, it is inadmissible in evidence, without proof of the agent's authority. McClung v. McPherson [Or.] 82 P. 13. But admission of the writing without objection is an admission of the agent's authority. Id. Rules applied to notice to tenant to quit, signed by lessor's attorneys. Id.

24. Marriage certificate does not prove itself, but its authenticity must be shown. Broadrick v. Broadrick, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 225. Power of attorney inadmissible when signature of principal was not sufficiently proven. Schaffer v. Emmons, 92 N. Y. S. 993. Summons purporting to have been issued by justice in prior suit, unauthenticated and not certified, is incompetent. Chapman v. Duffy [Colo. App.] 79 P. 746. Unless tax receipt is made self-proving by statute, it must be proved the same as any other paper introduced in evidence. Chastang v. Chastang [Ala.] 37 So. 799. Deed of sale inadmissible when its execution had not been proved by extrinsic evidence. Succession of Sallier [La.] 38 So. 929. A corporate deed, without the corporate seal affixed, is inadmissible as a conveyance without proof that the persons signing it in corporate name were officers and had authority to execute it. Bale v. Todd [Ga.] 50 S. E. 990. Where witness admitted signing paper, it was properly admitted in evidence as his own. Chicago City R. Co. v. Matthieson, 212 Ill. 292, 72 N. E. 443. Admission by maker of note that he had made it and it was "all right" held sufficient to warrant submission of the execution to the jury and to admit the note in evidence. Stewart v. Gleason, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 325. Objections to deed of association obviated by evidence introduced later that the officers executing it had authority. Leech v. Karthaus [Ala.] 37 So. 696. Execution of a tax deed being proved, it is error to exclude it on the ground of want of acknowledgment. Marsh v. Bennett [Fla.] 38 So. 237. Proof by subscribing witness that deed was duly executed and delivered in his presence is sufficient to admit the deed in evidence. Crawford v. Verner [Ga.] 50 S. E. 958.

25. Entry on back of deed relied on to show deed given as security for usurious debt. McBrayer v. Walker [Ga.] 50 S. E. 96.

26. A deed is inadmissible if the description therein is so vague and indefinite that it is of no effect as a conveyance, or as is admissible to show color of title, if it contains a legally sufficient discription of the land, without proof of execution.[28] Recitals in a private writing are evidence only against parties thereto and their privies.[29] Inquiry as to the origin, competency, or evidential value of a writing, more or less relied on by an opponent, does not make the contents of the writing evidence for the opponent.[30]

An ancient document, if it comes from proper custody and is itself free from fraud or invalidity, proves itself.[31] Recitals in such documents are presumptively true.[32] But recitals in an ancient deed that grantors are heirs of a former owner are not alone sufficient to prove the fact recited.[33] color of title. Luttrell v. Whitehead, 121 Ga. 699, 49 S. E. 691. A deed in which the description is wholly inadequate is inadmissible either as a conveyance or as color of title. Crawford v. Verner [Ga.] 50 S. E. 958. Description in deed held sufficient to identify land, and deed held admissible. Echols v. Jacobs Mercantile Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1082. Description of land as one-fourth interest in definitely described lot is sufficient. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 666. A state grant is admissible without preliminary proof if the lot of land can be located by reference to the state survey of which the court takes judicial notice. Stanford v. Bailey [Ga.] 50 S. E. 161. A power of attorney to sell all the donors' lands situated in the state of Georgia is not inadmissible in evidence because not describing the lands by county, number and district. Lanier v. Hebard [Ga.] 51 S. E. 632.

Standard mortality tables are competent[34] when life expectancy is in issue.[35]

27. A deed is inadmissible in evidence unless some title or spark of title is shown in the grantor. Jackson v. Gunton, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 203. Where plaintiff's predecessor was shown to have owned the land in controversy admission of a deed to him, without showing title in the grantor in such deed, was not error. Nathan v. Dierssen, 146 Cal. 63, 79 P. 739. To prove title by a chain from the commonwealth, an intermediate deed, not shown to be connected with the deed from the commonwealth, is inadmissible. Christ v. Boust, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 543. Where deed conveys all of grantor's interest as heir of another, it is admissible for one claiming title from such grantor, since the latter's interest may be shown by other evidence. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 666.

28. Brannan v. Henry [Ala.] 39 So. 92.

29. Recitals in instrument purporting to substitute a new trustee held not evidence of death, resignation or removal of former trustee, as against strangers to the instrument. Leech v. Karthaus [Ala.] 37 So. 696. Recitals of facts in deeds are not evidence against a stranger. Jackson v. Gunton, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 203. Recitals in a deed that grantors were heirs of a former owner are not competent evidence in favor of the persons making them and against strangers to the deed. Mace v. Duffy [Wash.] 81 P. 1053.

30. Where time book was objected to, and objection overruled, cross-examination regarding items therein did not make contents evidence for other party. Collins v. Carlin, 94 N. Y. S. 317.

31. Testimony of county clerk that certain resolution of supervisors came from a book in his office containing records for 1818, and that the older records were in his custody as clerk, held to render such record admissible without other proof. In re Webster, 94 N. Y. S. 1050. Record containing copy of certificate of clerk dated 1829 to report of commissioners on bridges filed 1819, the whole record being certified by town clerk in 1835, held to be an ancient document, and properly admitted. Id. Record of certificate from town minute book made in 1818 also properly received as ancient record. Id. Map showing division of estate, filed in 1802, admissible without proof of signatures of commissioners by whom it purported to have been made. Id. Deed thirty years old admissible without proof of execution, even if not recorded within statutory period. Campbell v. Bates [Ala.] 39 So. 144. Ex parte affidavits made forty years after the event cannot be regarded as ancient documents. The Brig Maria, 39 Ct. Cl. 39.

32. Recitals of pedigree in ancient deeds. Jackson v. Gunton, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 203. Administrator's deed, over thirty years old, proved itself and its recitals. Dutton v. Wright [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1025. Recitals of heirship and widowhood in deeds over thirty years old are presumptively true, and are admissible against adverse claimants. Wilson v. Braden, 56 W. Va. 372, 49 S. E. 409.

33. Deed purported to convey property for the party executing it and by him as attorney in fact for others as heirs of a former owner, and recited that the former owner was dead and that the grantors were his heirs. Such recitals were held insufficient to prove the facts, without proof of the relationship of the one making the recitals to the former owner, or of uninterrupted possession under the deed for such time as to render recitals therein presumptively true. Lanier v. Hebard [Ga.] 51 S. E. 632.

34. Virginia & S. W. R. Co. v. Bailey, 103 Va. 205, 49 S. E. 33. Carlisle and other standard mortuary tables are competent. City of South Omaha v. Sutliffe [Neb.] 101 N. W. 997. Standard life and annuity tables showing probable duration of life at different ages and present value of a life annuity are competent in an action for death. Reynolds v. Narragansett Elec. Lighting Co., 26 R. I. 457, 59 A. 393. Standard mortality tables competent, proper foundation being laid by showing age and condition of deceased. Horst v. Lewis [Neb.] 103 N. W. 460.

35. Mortality tables admissible to show life expectancy of injured person, when

Books of science are not admissible to establish doctrines therein stated,[36] nor can the contents of such books be placed before the jury indirectly by incorporating the same in questions.[37]

Proof of handwriting.[38]—Any writing admitted or proved to contain the genuine writing or signature of the party is admissible as a standard of comparison,[39] though inadmissible for any other purpose.[40] But the court, in the exercise of its discretion in the matter, may exclude from the jury any irrelevant writing or paper which might influence their decision.[41] Comparison of the disputed and admittedly genuine writings may be made by experts in some states;[42] in others such comparison can be made only by the jury.[43] An expert who has several specimens of handwriting before him, may testify which is the normal handwriting of the writer, but may not give an opinion as to cause of the abnormality of the others.[44] A witness may be qualified to testify as to genuineness of handwriting by having seen the party write;[45] by having seen letters or documents shown to be in the handwriting which is the subject of controversy;[46] or by comparison of handwritings as an expert.[47]

there is evidence tending to show injuries permanent. Hyland v. Southern Bell Tel. & T. Co., 70 S. C. 315, 49 S. E. 879. Mortality tables inadmissible in personal injury case where permanent injury is alleged, unless there is evidence of the value of plaintiff's services or capacity to earn. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. Gardner [Ga.] 49 S. E. 818. Mortality tables inadmissible to show life expectancy for purpose of proving length of time during which plaintiff would have to climb steps after street in front of home had been graded down. Swope v. Seattle, 36 Wash. 113, 78 P. 607. Carlisle tables not to be considered unless jury found injuries permanent. Sanders v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 728.

36. Elliott v. Ferguson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 56.

37. Error to relate facts relative to history of typhoid epidemic in Switzerland and ask witness if such statement was correct. Elliott v. Ferguson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 56.

38. See note in 3 C. L. 1377.

39. Common-law rule has been changed. Mississippi Lumber & Coal Co. v. Kelly [S. D.] 104 N. W. 265. An admittedly genuine lead pencil signature is competent as a standard of comparison. Groff v. Groff, 209 Pa. 603, 59 A. 65. Answer containing admittedly genuine signature held admissible as standard of comparison. Mississippi Lumber & Coal Co. v. Kelly [S. D.] 104 N. W. 265. Checks with indorsements thereon not shown to be in handwriting of party, inadmissible. Id. Unidentified signatures are inadmissible. Taylor v. Taylor's Estate [Mich.] 101 N. W. 832. Where issue is whether will is a forgery or genuine, it is competent to introduce the disputed will in evidence for comparison with other written documents which have been proved to be genuine. Gurley v. Armentraut, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 156.

Signatures to records of commissioners' court inadmissible for purpose of comparing with signature to deed. Campbell v. Bates [Ala.] 39 So. 144.

40. Mississippi Lumber & Coal Co. v. Kelly [S. D.] 104 N. W. 265.

41. Mississippi Lumber & Coal Co. v. Kelly [S. D.] 104 N. W. 265. Where witness denied signing a paper containing statements, contradictory of his testimony, and on request wrote his signature on another paper in the presence of the jury, whereupon the first paper was offered entire for comparison of the signatures by the jury, it was held that such paper was inadmissible, entire, for that purpose, though the signature alone, if detached, would have been admissible. Jacobs v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 349.

42. By provisions of P. L. 1895, 69. Groff v. Groff, 209 Pa. 603, 59 A. 65. Application for insurance, containing admittedly genuine signature, available as standard of comparison by expert, without being introduced in evidence. Abernethy v. Yeunt, 138 N. C. 337, 50 S. E. 696. Where specimen of handwriting is established as that of a certain person, a properly qualified witness may testify whether a record of a deed is in the same handwriting. Whitaker v. Thayer [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 364.

43. At common law comparisons of genuine signatures with alleged spurious signatures is for the jury. Groff v. Groff, 209 Pa. 603, 59 A. 65.

44. Could not testify that writer's hand was guided. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61.

45. In re Burbank's Estate, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 247, 93 N. Y. S. 866. Witness held competent to testify to handwriting though she had seen party write but once. Broadrick v. Broadrick, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 225. One who had seen defendant sign a receipt and write his name in a subscription book is competent to identify his handwriting in letters. Frank v. Berry [Iowa] 103 N. W. 358.

46. The party having been communicated with, or the writing having been adopted or recognized by him as his own. In re Burbank's Estate, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 247, 93 N. Y. S. 866. Clerk in registry office, familiar with handwriting of deputy, qualified to testify whether a certain record was in the deputy's handwriting. Whitaker v. Thayer [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 364. Chairman of county board of public instruction who had had op-

The proved signature of one witness to an instrument does not prove the signature of the other.[48] Handwriting may be proved by circumstantial evidence.[49] A witness should be permitted to examine documents in testifying to signatures contained therein.[50]

The Florida statute permitting a disputed writing to be compared with one proved to be genuine, and providing that the writings and the evidence of witnesses making the comparison may go to the jury or court,[51] applies to criminal as well as civil actions.[52] Under this statute, not only the genuine writings of the party whose signature is alleged to be forged, but also the genuine writings of the alleged forger, are admissible.[53]

(§ 7) B. Books of account.[54]—Original entries in books of account,[55] regularly kept in the usual course of business[56] and shown to be correct,[57] are compe-

portunities to become acquainted with handwriting of county superintendent could testify whether handwriting in certain warrants was that of accused, charged with forgery. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3. A stenographer and typewriter, who had studied penmanship, and was assistant to clerk of court, held qualified as handwriting expert. Abernethy v. Yount, 138 N. C. 337, 50 S. E. 696.

47. In re Burbank's Estate, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 247, 93 N. Y. S. 866. Expert should not be allowed to give an opinion as to handwriting without a thorough examination. Colbert v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 61. Witnesses with long experience in handling and examining written papers may, as experts, testify whether one witness' signature was written in the same ink as the body of a will and the testator's signature, and which was the older writing. Savage v. Bowen, 103 Va. 540, 49 S. E. 668. Witness who said she had seen a signature on a lost will-fourteen years before, and had compared her recollection of it with proved signatures, and that signature on will was genuine. was not qualified to give such opinion. In re Burbank's Estate, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 247, 93 N. Y. S. 866.

48. In re Burbank's Estate, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 247, 93 N. Y. S. 866.

49. It is not required that a witness testifying to the handwriting of a party should have seen him write, or have corresponded with him, but proof of handwriting may consist of ordinary circumstantial evidence showing a reasonable probability of the handwriting being that of the party whose handwriting it purports to be. Shaffer v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 417.

50. A witness who has given testimony tending to show genuineness of signatures to notes in suit may properly refuse to testify to the genuineness of signatures on documents, not in evidence, when he is not permitted to examine the documents. Taylor v. Taylor's Estate [Mich.] 101 N. W. 832.

Contra: In an action upon a promissory note, after denying the genuineness of the maker's signature, a non-expert witness was shown documents, apparently already in evidence, so covered as to leave visible only the signatures, and was asked whether the latter were genuine. Held, that the witness is not entitled to see the entire document before expressing an opinion. Groff v. Groff, 209 Pa. 603.

Note: "A witness to handwriting, whether expert or not, may on cross-examination be tested by writings which are properly in evidence or are admitted by the parties or the witness to be genuine. Whether he may be questioned as to writings not already in evidence is in conflict. Where the handwriting of an instrument is disputed, it has been held not error to require an expert to be shown the entire document. West v. State, 22 N. J. Law, 212, 240. The opposite result has been reached in the case of expert or non-expert witnesses examined as to signatures. Brown v. Woodward, 75 Conn. 261; Hoag v. Wright, 174 N. Y. 36. Contra. Insurance Co. v. Throop, 22 Mich. 146. If the signature only is disputed and the witness' knowledge is not limited to the alleged author's signature on a particular class of documents, the practice employed in the principal case seems unobjectionable. Generally, the question should rest with the discretion of the trial judge. It should be noticed that the decision of the precise question under discussion should not vary whether or not the court is one of those which allow witnesses to be tested by documents extrinsic to the issue."—18 Harv. L. R. 468, commenting on Groff v. Groff, 209 Pa. 603.

51. Minute book of school board containing writing of superintendent, charged with forgery, admitted for comparison with forged warrant. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

52. Rev. St. 1892, § 1121. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

53. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

54. See 3 C. L. 1366.

55. Page from order book competent. Norman Printer's Supply Co. v. Ford, 77 Conn. 461, 59 A. 499. Ledger used by defendant to refresh his memory while on the stand was admissible as a part of his cross-examination. Logan v. Freerks [N. D.] 103 N. W. 426.

56. A memorandum must have been made in the usual course of business. Manchester Assur. Co. v. Oregon R. & N. Co. [Or.] 79 P. 60. Evidence that entries in books were made in the usual course of business is admissible. Norman Printer's Supply Co. v. Ford, 77 Conn. 461, 59 A. 499. An entry which is a mere recital of a past transaction is incompetent; the entry should be contemporaneous with transaction. Id. Books of account are admissible if the entries therein are original, and made contemporaneously with or about the time of tent evidence of the facts of the particular transactions to which they relate.[58] Evidence explaining words or marks which constitute part of an entry is admissible with the entry.[59] Secondary entries are usually inadmissible [60] unless supported by the original memoranda.[61] In the case of entries made upon information reported by another acting in the line of his duty, there is a conflict as to the necessity of producing the person upon whose report the entry is made.[62] Memoranda or book entries the transaction recorded, and if the one making them had personal knowledge of the fact recorded. Bouldin v. Atlantic Ricemills Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 795. The entries must be made in, and must relate to matters in the regular course of business, and matters not relating to the business and which are not properly the subject of book accounts, cannot be proved by such entries. Id. Private memoranda not made in pursuance of any duty owed by the person making them are inadmissible. Manchester Assur. Co. v. Oregon R. & N. Co. [Or.] 79 P. 60. Memoranda by one watching a blackboard whereon arrivals of trains were noted, not made in ordinary course of business, nor as part of res gestae, nor because of a duty to make them, incompetent. Southern R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 272.

57. Entries must be shown to have been true and correct when made. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Moras, 111 Ill. App. 531. Facts stated in memorandum must be shown to have been correctly entered at the time. Manchester Assur. Co. v. Oregon R. & N. Co. [Or.] 79 P. 60. Account of sales of cattle held admissible over objection that it was hearsay and not made by party testifying, when it appeared that witness had compared it with memoranda made by him at the time and since destroyed, and that the account was found to be correct. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Birdwell [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1067. Book account in ledger admissible when agent of party introducing it testified she kept it, that the entries were true and correct, and made at the time of the transactions noted, and in the regular course of business. Richardson v. Benes, 115 Ill. App. 532. Reports to cattle inspectors, which were not public records required by law to be kept, and not established as genuine reports by a live stock agent, were improperly admitted. Dorr Cattle Co. v. Chicago & G. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1003. Records of weather observations, voluntarily made, and not verified by person keeping them, are inadmissible as private memoranda. Monarch Mfg. Co. v. Omaha, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 493. Where witness called to testify regarding entries in ledger said he did not make them or see them made, did not know they were correct, and suggested how they might be inaccurate, their admission was error. Hoogewerff v. Flack [Md.] 61 A. 184. Book of entries inadmissible against a party when shown to have been made by a third party, with whom the litigant had no connection or relation. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Moras, 111 Ill. App. 531. Statement of account inadmissible because not testified to as correct by plaintiff who made it out. Callaway v. Gay [Ala.] 39 So. 277.

58. Books of deceased surveyor competent to show amount of bark taken from trees on certain land, books containing original entries made for that purpose. Hagerty v. Webber [Me.] 61 A. 685. Entries in town treasurer's books under caption "Land Rent Long Beach," showing payment of rent to town for many years admissible to show claim and adverse possession of town. Murphy v. Com. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 524. Entries in memorandum book kept by agent competent evidence after his death to show extent and nature of business relations between him and his principal. Jewell v. Jewell's Estate [Mich.] 102 N. W. 1059. Hospital records are evidence only of facts necessarily within knowledge of person making the entry. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Moravec, 116 Ill. App. 271. Books showing cut and delivery of lumber at certain place excluded because not covering all the transactions in issue. Capen's Adm'r v. Sheldon [Vt.] 61 A. 864.

59. Testimony that words "on contract," together with fact that a line drawn across other pages was not on a certain page, indicated conditional sale or lease, held admissible. Norman Printers' Supply Co. v. Ford, 77 Conn. 461, 59 A. 499.

60. A memorandum must be the original unless it is lost or its absence explained. Manchester Assur. Co. v. Oregon R. & N. Co. [Or.] 79 P. 60. Entries not shown to be original; admission error. Hoogewerff v. Flack [Md.] 61 A. 184. Entry in a ledger of payment on a note not primary evidence. Eastham v. Patty [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 885. Error to permit party to testify to recollection of payment on note from entry on last page of ledger, such ledger entry not being best evidence. Id. Book kept by plaintiff in which he entered names of men transported on certain dates, held competent up to date when names were so entered at once; but inadmissible as to dates on which names were entered there from way bills. Idol v. San Francisco Const. Co. [Cal. App.] 81 P. 665. A timebook made from other timebook kept by timekeeper who got time from workmen was inadmissible without proof of correctness by bookkeeper or men who gave reports of their time. Collins v. Carlin, 94 N. Y. S. 317.

61. It is first entries in daybooks, journals, pay rolls, stubs, etc., and not the secondary entries, that make them competent; and subsequent classifications into various accounts are not evidence in a party's favor except so far as substantiated by original entries, which control. State v. Nev. Cent. R. Co. [Nev.] 81 P. 99. Entries in hotel books regarding goods sold by cigar and bar departments, made from slips sent in by those departments, the bookkeeper having no personal knowledge of them, are incompetent, the original slips not being produced. Gould v. Hartley [Mass.] 73 N. E. 656.

62. Firemen's Ins. Co. v. Seaboard Air are not the best evidence when witnesses are shown to have a distinct and independent recollection of the facts.[63]

Corporate records.—When the controversy is between stockholders, concerns their interests in the corporation, and involves the consideration of the acts of the corporation as affecting directly its status and indirectly their interests, the records and books are admissible, if authenticated, by showing that they are the records and books of the corporation and have been regularly kept as such.[64] But in a controversy between a private corporation and a stranger respecting title to property or other right directly in issue between them, such books and records are not admissible in favor of the corporation to prove that the acts therein recited were performed at the time and in the manner therein stated, except as memoranda in connection with the oral evidence of witnesses testifying from personal knowledge to such transactions.[65] After proof that certain corporate acts have been performed and written memorials thereof made in the form of resolutions or otherwise, the books and records are admissible to identify and prove the character and terms of such instruments.[66] Books of a corporation are prima facie identified when shown to have come from the proper custody and to be free from suspicion of fraud.[67] The trustee is the proper custodian of such books when the corporation has become bankrupt.[68]

Line R. Co., 138 N. C. 42, 50 S. E. 452. In some states it has been held that train sheets, upon which the time of arrival and departure of trains is entered by a dispacher upon information telegraphed by operators, are admissible upon the testimony of the dispatcher, without that of the operators, the dispatcher testifying that he entered thereon reports as sent him. Id. Where cattle weigher entered weights on slips which were sent to bookkeeper in regular course of business, and entered by him, his accounts, testified to be correct, are admissible to establish such weights, without the original slips or the testimony of the weigher, especially where, as in this case, the weigher could not be found. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Williams [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 38. Memoranda made in the usual course of business, when made up from reports of subordinates, are admissible when accompanied by the testimony of such subordinates that they are correct, combined with that of the person minuting the transactions that they were also truly noted. Manchester Assur. Co. v. Oregon R. & N. Co. [Or.] 79 P. 60.

Note: See opinion in Firemen's Ins. Co. v. Seaboard Air Line Ry. Co., supra, for discussion and authorities on the proposition.

63. A memorandum cannot be read in evidence if the witness who made it remembers the facts without it. Morris v. New York City R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 16. Books of account are not best evidence, when witness testifies from independent recollection. Echols v. Jacobs Mercantile Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1082. Memorandum made by officer, though competent to refresh his memory, should not have been read by the court, not being competent as original evidence. Garber v. New York City R. Co., 92 N. Y. S. 722. A memorandum is of no evidentiary value unless it appears that the witness cannot speak from knowledge of the facts, or from present recollection thereof, after having consulted it. Manchester Assur. Co. v. Oregon R. & N. Co. [Or.] 79 P. 60. Witness' memory of contents of policy of insurance is better evidence than a memorandum made by him, even though he must refresh his memory with the memorandum. State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561. Evidence of the value of property must be the individual opinion of witnesses, not a quotation from memoranda. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Seitz, 105 Ill. App. 89. Timebook excluded when officers who kept it were not called to testify. Conover v. Neher-Ross Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 281. Testimony of express agent who said he had no independent recollection and could only testify what his books showed, held admissible. Cantwell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 18. Preliminary evidence that a witness could not testify to the contents of a memorandum is unnecessary to make the memorandum admissible, when it shows on its face that such testimony could not be given, as where memorandum contained six hundred items. Meyers v. McAllister [Minn.] 103 N. W. 564. Refrigerator car report testified to by witness as made by him in usual performance of his duties and turned in in usual way, and to be correct, held admissible, provided witness had no independent recollection of facts; but this objection not being specifically raised, admission in evidence would not be reviewed on that ground. Naas v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 717.

64. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Deepwater R. Co. [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 890. When witness admitted that a book had been identified and admitted by him as evidence of by-laws in a prior case in which he was counsel, the book was properly admitted in evidence. Wells & McComas Council v. Littleton [Md.] 60 A. 22.

65. Applied where two railroad corporations claimed a location of land adversely. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Deepwater R. Co. [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 890.

66. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Deepwater R. Co. [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 890.

67. Lowry Nat. Bank v. Fickett [Ga.] 50 S. E. 396.

68. When books are produced by trustee, it need not be shown that he received them

(§ 7) C. Public records and documents.[69]—Public records, required by law to be kept,[70] are competent evidence of facts therein stated.[71] A valid [72] record of an instrument required by law to be recorded is competent evidence of the contents of the instrument.[73] Records of courts,[74] of legislative bodies,[75] or administrative or executive branches of government,[76] are competent evidence, and are from the proper custodian. Lowry Nat. Bank v. Fickett [Ga.] 50 S. E. 396.

69. See 3 C. L. 1367.

70. Voluntary weather observations, recorded daily for weather bureau, but not required, are inadmissible as records. Monarch Mfg. Co. v. Omaha, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 493. Where no law was proved relative to certificates of incorporation or their custody, a copy of articles of incorporation, certified by the secretary of state of Illinois, was inadmissible in Missouri. Florscheim & Co. v. Fry [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 1023. One who has kept records of vital statistics for some years cannot testify in regard thereto unless it appears that the records were kept pursuant to a statute or a church or local custom. Pirrung v. Supreme Council of Catholic Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 93 N. Y. S. 575. If records are shown to have been kept pursuant to a foreign law, proof of such law must be made according to Code Civ. Proc. § 942. Id.

71. Records of vital statistics: Copy of death certificate placed on record according to requirement of law, reciting certain disease as cause of death, is evidence of that fact. National Council of Knights & Ladies of Security v. O'Brien, 112 Ill. App. 40.

Records of weather bureau: Records of the federal weather bureau may be read in evidence by an officer of the department. Anderson v. Hilker [Wash.] 80 P. 848. Official records of meteorological observations required to be kept by public officers in performance of their duties are admissible. Monarch Mfg. Co. v. Omaha, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 493. Letter press copies of typewritten sheets, kept in Chicago office of weather bureau as records, the original sheets being sent to Washington, are competent evidence, being equivalent to sworn copy of a record, when introduced with testimony of officer in charge of bureau. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Zapp, 110 Ill. App. 553.

72. Deed acknowledged before a justice of California who had no official seal is not entitled to be recorded in Florida and hence is not evidence if recorded. Rev. St. 1892, § 1973. Norris v. Billingsley [Fla.] 37 So. 564. A copy of a void record is not admissible for any purpose. Where certificate of clerk did not show that subscribing witness to deed had been sworn, in proving execution, the acknowledgment was defective, and hence the deed was not entitled to record. The existence of such record could not be proved by certified copy. Wanza v. Trapp [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 877. The record of a deed, void because the deed was improperly acknowledged and not entitled to record is admissible to establish existence of the deed when lost. Simmons v. Hewitt [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 188. Though diligent search for original patent certificate was made, and its loss plausibly accounted for, but it appeared that no witness had ever seen the original, a certified copy of the record, of an instrument purporting to be such original, unsealed, and not entitled to record, was inadmissible. Arbuckle v. Matthews [Ark.] 83 S. W. 326.

73. Under Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 3372, record of mortgage is competent and mortgage need not be produced. Embree v. Emmerson [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 44. A power of attorney, executed like a deed subject to registry, may be recorded, and is admissible with the record of a deed executed pursuant to its terms, under the same rules governing the admissibility of the recorded deed. Flint River Lumber Co. v. Smith [Ga.] 49 S. E. 745. Where original deed showed that it had been mutilated and that a plat referred to therein was missing, the record of the deed and plat was admissible to show the missing portion. Senterfeit v. Shealy [S. C.] 51 S. E. 142. Abstracts of grants by another state, duly signed and certified as correct copies, containing proper descriptions, naming the grantees and giving the quantity of land, are competent evidence of title in that state. Marshall v. Corbett, 137 N. C. 555, 50 S. E. 210. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 3098, records and exemplifications of records and books, not pertaining to a court, are evidence when attested by the keeper of such records and books, and the seal of his office, if there be a seal. Florscheim & Co. v. Fry [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 1023. Certified copy of certificate of designation of agent by a foreign corporation is competent and sufficient evidence of incorporation. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080.

74. Certified copy of tax judgment is prima facie evidence of facts recited therein. Tifft v. Greene, 211 Ill. 389, 71 N. E. 1030. Transcript of proceedings before justice of peace admissible, in action for malicious prosecution, jurisdiction of justice being sufficiently made to appear. Kerstetter v. Thomas, 36 Wash. 620, 79 P. 290. Record in foreclosure action, commissioner's deed to plaintiff, writ of assistance and sheriff's return showing delivery to plaintiff, competent, as a part of plaintiff's record title, to show complete divestiture of title and possession of judgment debtor. Nathan v. Diersen, 146 Cal. 63, 79 P. 739.

75. Certain town votes setting out town's rights in beach land and showing acts of ownership and control competent to prove possession and claim of town to land. Murphy v. Com. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 524. Records of Newport having become dilapidated through capture by British in Revolutionary War, city council referred matter of copying them to a committee in 1855. There is no record of the committee's action, but the records were in fact copied in part and used officially for fifty years. Held, such copy was properly considered a public record, and a certified copy of the record of a vote therein was competent evidence. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Horgan, 26 R. I. 448, 59 A. 310.

76. On issue of service of a person as a usually proven by transcript or copy,[77] though the originals are competent when produced.[78] Copies must be certified as required by law,[79] or otherwise duly authenticated.[80] Foreign records [81] and laws [82] must be proved in the manner pre-soldier, copy of muster roll, certified by adjutant general as copy of instrument in his office, admissible under Rev. St. 1895, § 2308. Allen v. Halsted [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 754. Accuracy of lithograph copy of maps being shown, and it appearing that copy had long been used by city in dealing with streets in question, copy was competent evidence. City of Houston v. Finnigan [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 470.

77. Public records may be proven by duly certified copies thereof. Copy of death certificate. National Council of the Knights & Ladies of Security v. O'Brien, 112 Ill. App. 40. By Rev. St. 1895, art. 2306, certified copies of the record of proceedings in the courts of the state, made under seal of the custodian of such record, are admissible in evidence. Wren v. Howland [Tex. Civ. App.] 75 S. W. 894. Order confirming composition of bankrupt sufficiently proved by certified copy under Bankr. Act, § 21, subd. f. Mandell v. Levy, 93 N. Y. S. 545. See Bankruptcy, 5 C. L. 367.

78. If certified copies of departmental records are admissible under U. S. Rev. St. § 889, there is no good reason why orlginals should not be admitted. Lorenz v. United States, 24 App. D. C. 337. Application for pension, supportlng affidavit and indorsed wrapper attached thereto, being part of archives in the office and custody of controller, admissible to show war service of person. Allen v. Halsted [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 754.

79. Certification of copy of judgment held sufficient where certificate was on separate sheet which was attached to copy of decree. Woodworth v. McKee, 126 Iowa, 714, 102 N. W. 777. Transcript of judgment admissible when clerk's certificate showed it to be "a full and complete copy of the complaint, answer, reply and judgment." Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Grantham [Ind.] 75 N. E. 265. County clerk's certificate to copies of record held to comply with law. Glos v. Stern, 213 Ill. 325, 72 N. E. 1057. Certificate of copy of viewers' report held not to show on its face that record was incomplete. Maus v. Mahoning Tp., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 624. Official records which should be certified by the county clerk are inadmissible when certified by the clerk of the county court, even though one person holds the two offices. Tifft v. Greene, 211 Ill. 389, 71 N. E. 1030. The fact that the clerk's certificate to a copy of the delinquent tax list contained his conclusion as to what part related to the issues did not make it incompetent to prove the material fact shown by the list. Glos v. Dyche, 214 Ill. 417, 73 N. E. 757. Where clerk copies a deed having a certificate of acknowledgment under official seal, the word "seal" written by the clerk in the copy is presumptively held to represent the seal of the officer taking the acknowledgment, and the copy is admissible. Wilson v. Braden, 56 W. Va. 372, 49 S. E. 409. Affidavit of subscribing witness to will, being taken in open court, was admissible, though clerk's certificate was not authenticated by seal. Hymer v. Holyfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 722.

80. A foreign judgment may be proved by an examined copy. Testimony of two witnesses that they had examined copy of judgment and compared it with original docket entries and found it correct, sufficient to prove the judgment. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co. v. Beilharz [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 605, 88 S. W. 512.

81. Court records of another state are competent when attested and certified in the manner required by law. Transcript of foreign judgment competent under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 458, though only the initials of the Christian names of the clerk and judge appear in their signatures to certificates. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703. Whether the record of a foreign decree is properly authenticated is a question for the trial court. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556. The sufficiency of the certification of a foreign judgment is governed by the law of the forum. Illinois judgment held properly certified under Iowa Code, § 4646, regardless of Illinois law. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Rimerman [Iowa] 104 N. W. 279. A transcript of a will and its probate in another state must not only be certified by the clerk, under seal of the court, as a correct transcript, but the presiding magistrate must certify that the attestation is in due form. Civ. Code 1895, § 5237. Conrad v. Kennedy [Ga.] 51 S. E. 299. Certified copies of record of proceedings in another state are inadmissible if the court did not have jurisdiction. Wren v. Howland [Tex. Civ. App.] 75 S. W. 894.

82. The public seal of another state affixed to a copy of a written law of that state is admissible as evidence of such law. Rieck v. Griffen [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1061. Oral proof of Pennsylvania statute as to giving notice of protest is incompetent under Code Civ. Proc. § 942. Traders' Nat. Bank v. Jones, 93 N. Y. S. 768. By Civ. Code 1895, § 5231, the public laws of another state, as published by authority, may be proved by introducing the authorized publication, which will be judicially noticed as genuine. Savannah, etc., R. Co. v. Evans, 121 Ga. 391, 49 S. E. 308. "Willson's Revised and Annotated Statutes of Oklahoma, 1903," made by statute presumptive evidence of laws of the territory, is admissible in Texas to prove such laws. Beard v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 824. Pamphlet purporting to contain insurance laws of state and to be printed by "state printers" does not purport to be printed by authority of the state so as to be admissible under the Texas statute. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Blasingame [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 819. Under Hurd's St. 1895, § 65, c. 24, pamphlet containing ordinance, purporting to have been published by authority of village trustees is competent evidence of the ordinance. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Burke, 112 Ill. App. 415. Nonexpert could not say whether records were kept in accordance with laws of a foreign country, since this involved proof of foreign laws in a manner other than that provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 942. Pirrung v.

scribed by law. Records, when used to prove facts contained therein, should be produced entire.[83] Persons who have searched records may testify that they do not contain certain entries;[84] but some courts hold that such testimony can be given only by the lawful custodian of the record.[85]

Official documents are competent to prove essential [86] but not incidental [87] facts recited therein, and are not competent if unauthorized.[88] The contents of an official document beyond the jurisdiction of the court may be proved by the deposition of the official custodian.[89] Courts of Louisiana receive the attestation of American consuls or commercial agents residing abroad as legal evidence of the attributes and official station or authority of magistrates and civil officers of foreign countries.[90]

(§ 7) D. Proceedings to procure production of documentary evidence.[91]—If timely [92] and legally sufficient [93] notice to produce documentary evidence is given,[94] or if a subpoena duces tecum or order to produce is asked for,[95] the court should order such evidence to be produced.[96] Refusal to produce unprivileged [97] documents

Supreme Council of Catholic Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 93 N. Y. S. 575.

83. Parts of records of classification of public lands being introduced, other parts were competent in rebuttal. Lynch v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 535. Transcript of judgment held incompetent because only a part of the record to be proved. Southern R. Co. v. Seymour, 113 Tenn. 523, 83 S. W. 674.

84. That records did not show naturalization of certain person. Rev. St. 1898, § 4163, relative to proof of records by certificate of custodian, does not render such proof incompetent. State v. Rosenthal, 123 Wis. 442, 102 N. W. 49. Town clerk after examination of records of marriages and deaths could testify that an alleged marriage and alleged death did not occur in a certain year. McPhelemy v. McPhelemy [Conn.] 61 A. 477.

85. Testimony of one not the custodian that he had examined files in office of secretary of state and had failed to find record of charter of certain corporation, held inadmissible. Cobb v. Bryan [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 887.

86. Duly certified tax roll of a town showing lands assessed and names of those assessed as owners, competent evidence in statutory proceedings to exclude bonds from municipal organization under Acts 1903, c. 5197. Town of Ormond v. Shaw [Fla.] 39 So. 108.

87. Since viewers under Act Feb. 17, 1822, P. L. 35, have no power to fix width of road, the record of their report is not legal evidence of the width of the road. Maus v. Mahoning Tp., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 624. Certificate of discharge of soldier from army, reciting his physical characteristics, is inadmissible to prove his size and height. Commonwealth v. Crowley, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 124.

88. In Texas, a certificate of the secretary of state that a permit to a foreign corporation to do business in the state has been forfeited for nonpayment of taxes is not evidence of such forfeiture, since the statutes do not authorize such certificate. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co. v. Beilharz [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 605, 88 S. W. 512.

89. Kelly v. Moore, 22 App. D. C. 9.

90. When German official certifies to genuineness of signatures to power of attorney and American vice consul certifies to signature and seal of such official, his capacity and authority, the signatures to the power must be considered as proved. Rev. St. 1876, § 1436. Werner v. Marx, 113 La. 1002, 37 So. 905.

91. See 3 C. L. 1368.

92. Where in suit for injunction the time between sanction of the bill and return of the rule was less than 10 days, an order to produce books in less than that time was proper, it being impossible to give 10 days notice, and defendant having made no objection. Town of Adel v. Woodall [Ga.] 50 S. E. 481.

93. Notice specifying letters by insurance agent concerning loss, and letters by insured to agent concerning the desire for insurance and concerning the loss was sufficient. Home Ins. Co. v. Overturf [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 47. A notice need not call for the production of a paper "from term to term;" if the trial occurs at a term subsequent to that for which notice was given, the party served is bound to produce the paper at such subsequent term. Carrington v. Brooks, 121 Ga. 250, 48 S. E. 970.

94. Refusal to order production of letters proper where no exception or objection was taken, and no formal notice to produce was given, or showing made as to proof to be made. Winn v. Itzel [Wis.] 103 N. W. 220.

95. Administrator's books on appeal from probate court will not be ordered to be produced unless subpoena or order is asked for. Reed v. Whipple [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 77, 103 N. W. 548.

96. Where a party does not respond to a notice to produce a writing, and the adverse party makes affidavit, or counsel states in his place, that he believes the writing to exist and to be under the control of the party, and that it is material, it is error for the court to refuse an order to produce the writing, under Civ. Code 1895, § 5253. Carrington v. Brooks, 121 Ga. 250, 48 S. E. 970. The court will order the production of books shown to be material and essential to the full presentation of questions raised. Dun v. International Mercantile Ag., 133 F. 1004.

97. Reports made by conductors and motormen of accidents occurring along the line made to the claim agent of a street railway renders the party guilty of contempt.[98] The Federal court has no power to order an examiner before whom documents and books have been produced under subpoenas duces tecum to remove such documentary evidence to another district for use in examining witnesses.[99]

§ 8. Evidence adduced in former proceedings.[1]—Testimony of a witness given on a former trial is admissible when the witness is dead,[2] or beyond the jurisdiction of the court.[3] There is a conflict as to the applicability of this rule in the Federal courts.[4] The issues and parties in the former proceeding must have been substantially the same as those in the subsequent trial.[5] A transcript of the former testimony is the best evidence of it,[6] if shown to be correct,[7] but oral testimony by one who heard it is admissible.[8] Testimony of a party on a former trial may be com-company are not privileged and must be produced under a duces tecum issued in an action growing out of such accidents. Ex Parte Schoepf, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 93.

98. Where a witness served with a subpoena duces tecum testifies that he is unable to find the desired document, but the attorney for the party admits, when called to the stand, that the document is in court in his possession, the court has power to order him to produce it and to punish him for contempt if he fails to do so. Dunn v. New York Edison Co., 92 N. Y. S. 787.

99. Pepper v. Rogers, 137 F. 173.

1. See 3 C. L. 1369.

2. Code Civ. Proc. § 830, gives court no discretion to refuse to allow reading of testimony of deceased witness given on former trial. Wallach v. Manhattan El. R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 575. Code Civ. Proc. § 830, authorizing reading of testimony of witness given on former trial, after death of witness, applies to experts. Id. Exception to denial of right to read testimony of expert given on former trial is not waived by calling another expert, even though the court customarily allows only one expert on a side. Id.

3. Statutes so providing, as Rev. St. Ohio, § 5242a, are merely declaratory of the common law. Toledo Traction Co. v. Cameron [C. C. A.] 137 F. 48. Under Comp. Laws 1897, § 10142, a deposition used on trial may be used on an appeal or retrial, in the absence of any showing that witness, unable to attend when deposition was taken, is on the second trial able to be present. Taylor v. Taylor's Estate [Mich.] 101 N. W. 832. Evidence by a witness on a former trial is admissible only where the witness has left the state permanently or for such an indefinite time that his return is contingent or uncertain. Southern R. Co. v. Bonner [Ala.] 37 So. 702. Testimony of a witness that he had seen the absent witness and that he said he was living in Texas is not a sufficient foundation for the admission of his former testimony. Id. Mere proof that diligent search has been made in the county by the sheriff and deputies for one who testified at the preliminary examination, is insufficient to warrant admission of his former testimony. Bardin v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 833.

4. The rule is properly applied in actions at law in the Federal courts, sitting in states where it is the law, when the witness is outside the district and more than one hundred miles from the place of trial. Rev. St. § 861, providing that the mode of proof shall be by oral testimony and examining witnesses in open court, with some exceptions, does not preclude application of such a state rule. Toledo Traction Co. v. Cameron [C. C. A.] 137 F. 48. But in another circuit it is held that the provisions of the revised statutes as to the mode of proof in Federal courts form a complete system, that every case must fall under the general rule or exceptions there specified and that no state legislation can add to or take from the methods of procuring evidence there provided. Diamond Coal & Coke Co. v. Allen [C. C. A.] 137 F. 705. Hence, where there was proof that a witness was 200 miles distant from the place of trial, but no proof that any effort had been made to procure his attendance nor that it was not practicable to obtain his testimony by deposition or otherwise as provided in Rev. St. §§ 863-867, his evidence given at a former trial was excluded. Id.

5. Evidence of deceased witness given in case where issues were practically the same, plaintiffs were the same, and defendant was assignor of present defendants. Martin v. Ragsdale [S. C.] 50 S. E. 671. Where conspiracy is charged in a contempt proceeding, evidence therein is admissible in a subsequent contempt proceeding involving the same conspiracy, which has continued meanwhile. Christensen v. People, 114 Ill. App. 40. Certified translation of shorthand reporter's notes of testimony of a witness held inadmissible when proceeding was not a "retrial" of that in which the testimony was given (Construing Iowa statute. See 91 N. W. 908). In re Wiltsey's Will, 122 Iowa, 423, 98 N. W. 294. Two suits being so connected in subject-matter as to be practically one, and having been consolidated, a deposition taken in one suit before consolidation was admissible in the consolidated suit, after the death of the witness. Kothman v. Faseler [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 390.

6. Error to permit jurors to tell what witness testified, when transcript was available. Estes v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 909. Question as to what a witness testified on a former trial, such witness not having testified on the present trial, improper. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Prude [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1046.

7. An unsigned, unverified transcript of testimony on a former proceeding, not shown to be correct, held inadmissible. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Rea [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 428.

8. The fact that the deceased witness' petent as an admission against interest.[9] In the absence of anything in a stipulation as to facts limiting its use, it may be introduced in evidence in a subsequent trial of the same cause.[10]

The record of a coroner's inquest is inadmissible to show cause of death in another proceeding.[11]

§ 9. Expert and opinion evidence. A. Conclusions and nonexpert opinions.[12]—Mere conclusions of a witness[13] or the opinions of nonexperts on issues testimony at the former trial was taken down officially in shorthand and transcribed in longhand does not make oral evidence, by one who heard the testimony, incompetent. Meyer v. Foster [Cal.] 81 P. 402.

9. Testimony on a former trial is competent as an admission against interest, though it does not contradict present testimony. Lush v. Incorporated Town of Parkersburg [Iowa] 104 N. W. 336.

10. Stipulation that certain person was seized and possessed of the land in dispute at his death. Nathan v. Dierssen, 146 Cal. 63, 79 P. 739. A stipulation containing an admission is not limited to the first trial, but is in the case until the litigation is ended, and on a second trial, it may be read from the record of the preceding trial. Stemmler v. New York, 179 N. Y. 473, 72 N. E. 581.

11. Finding at coroner's inquest that deceased committed suicide, is inadmissible in action on life insurance policy, where suicide is the defense. Boehme v. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World [Tex.] 84 S. W. 422; Boehme v. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 444; Kane v. Supreme Tent Knights of Maccabees of the World [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 547.

Contra: Verdict or inquisition of coroner's jury competent evidence on issue of suicide. Knights Templars & Masons' Life Indemnity Co. v. Crayton, 110 Ill. App. 648. But depositions taken before coroner's jury are not competent. Id.

Note: For discussion and collection of authorities see note to Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Milward [Ky.] 68 L. R. A. 285.

12. See 3 C. L. 1370.

13. Nonexperts are required to testify to facts within their own knowledge and not to opinions, inferences, and conclusions from facts. Watson v. Colusa-Parrot Mining & Smelting Co. [Mont.] 79 P. 14; Illinois Steel Co. v. McNulty, 105 Ill. App. 594.

Held mere conclusion and inadmissible: Whether testator controlled, or was controlled by, his wife. Franklin v. Boone [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 93, 88 S. W. 262. Whether price of stock was steady enough to withstand the putting of 18,000 shares on the market. Spinks v. Clark [Cal.] 82 P. 45. Whether there was anything unusual in the appearance of a mail crane at a railway crossing. Western R. of Ala. v. Cleghorn [Ala.] 39 So. 133. Whether or not car on which workmen were being carried was overcrowded. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. O'Donnell, 213 Ill. 545, 72 N. E. 1133; Chicago Terminal Transfer Co. v. O'Donnell, 114 Ill. App. 345. Whether it was possible to discover defect in plant previous to the accident. Village of Upper Alton v. Green, 112 Ill. App. 439. Whether witness could have told that a wheel of a certain size was revolving, under a certain condition of light. Morrow v. Gaffney Mfg. Co., 70 S. C. 242, 49 S. E. 573. Whether there had not been previous attempts to break into dwelling. Osborn v. State, 140 Ala. 84, 37 So. 105. What witness could have seen if he had taken down the lids of a machine. Morrow v. Gaffney Mfg. Co., 70 S. C. 242, 49 S. E. 573. Testimony that defendant acted as though he thought five or six men were after him. Bell v. State, 140 Ala. 57, 37 So. 281. That only baggage received on board ship was that shown by baggage list. Lunansky v. Hamburg-American Packet Co., 94 N. Y. S. 557. That witness did all in his power to get a message off. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Merrill [Ala.] 39 So. 121. That certain securities were of doubtful value. Kelly v. Home Sav. Bank, 92 N. Y. S. 578. That administrator "did not speak very friendly" of certain persons. Stevens v. Larwill, 110 Mo. App. 140, 84 S. W. 113. That witness thought deceased was near enough to hear a conversation. Hourigan v. Norwich, 77 Conn. 358, 59 A. 487. That testator was incapable of self-control, or self-government. Franklin v. Boone [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 93, 88 S. W. 262. Opinion as to existence or nonexistence of a substantive fact is ordinarily incompetent. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Alfred, 113 Ill. App. 236. Unless the testimony is the result of an actual experiment, a witness may not testify how far a "small object" at a certain point could be seen on a clear day. Ayers v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 608. Statements of brakeman held mere mental operations and conclusions regarding reasons for engineer's action. Southern R. Co. v. Bonner [Ala.] 37 So. 702. Word "authority" used in question as to powers of agent calls for conclusion. Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Grimmon [Nev.] 81 P. 43. Question to witness whether he was an expert on insanity held to call for conclusion. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Testimony of general manager of railroad that company never consented to use of its track as a walk by persons not employes, incompetent. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 244, 88 S. W. 192. Certain evidence held incompetent because containing statements of conclusions. Slater v. New York City R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 395. Question whether any cement was ever stolen from certain company held too general and to call for conclusion. State v. Minck [Minn.] 102 N. W. 207. Question calling for comparison of values and not for a fact, properly excluded. Sylvester v. Ammons, 126 Iowa, 140, 101 N. W. 782. Testimony of nonexpert that before accident horse was worth about $200 and that after it he would not give $50, inadmissible. Reid v. New York City R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 533. Certificate of clerk containing only his conclusions as to contents of a record, held incompetent. Bickerdike v. State, 144 Cal. 698, 78 P. 277. Witness' answer to question regarding speed of car, that it would be hard to judge because the car had just started and could not have been running fast, excluded because a mere conclusion of fact based on another conclusion of fact. Birmingham R. Light & Power Co. v. Rutledge [Ala.] 39 So. 338. In action on bond, testimony of a witness that he would not have accepted the bond if he had known the facts shown by the proof, was inadmissible, the witness having had nothing to do with the acceptance of the bond. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Blackley, Hurst & Co. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 196. In suit to enjoin location of cemetery, statements of witnesses that their land would depreciate in value because they would not and could not drink water off dead people, held mere opinion on issue whether water would be polluted. Elliott v. Ferguson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 56. Admission of statement of witness as to what she thought her condition was, though an opinion, was not reversible error, where she had previously testified to all the facts. Chicago City R. Co. v. Saxby, 213 Ill. 274, 72 N. E. 755.

Mental status: Witnesses are not permitted to testify to their motives, wishes, or mental status. Barnewell v. Stephens [Ala.] 38 So. 662. Purchaser of property may not give his conclusion as to whose efforts induced him to buy. Johnson v. Dysert [Kan.] 79 P. 652; Jenkins v. Beachy [Kan.] 80 P. 947. Testimony of plaintiff injured by collision that he looked and thought he would have plenty of time to cross the street, held competent on issue of his negligence. McCrohan v. Davison [Mass.] 73 N. E. 553. Where the intent is a material issue in the case, the party may be asked the direct question what his intent was at the particular time or with respect to the particular act in question. If circumstances tend to show an intent and notice thereof to the other party, such testimony is admissible; an undisclosed intention is inadmissible. Dunbar v. Armstrong, 115 Ill. App. 549. On issue of fraud as to creditors, buyer and seller properly allowed to testify directly to their intent in the sale. Hill v. Page, 95 N. Y. S. 465. The cognition of another is not a fact of which a witness may testify. Question to physician as to "what every experienced physician knows," improper. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. In an action on a life insurance policy, the defendant, in order to prove that the insured had committed suicide, sought to introduce in evidence the following declaration of the deceased made about an hour before his death: "Adolph, will you be as good a friend to my wife as you have been to me?" Held, that the declaration is not admissible. Ross-Lewin v. Germania Life Ins. Co. [Colo. App.] 78 P. 305.

Note: "In most jurisdictions declarations of intention are admitted in proof of a subsequent act, where the declarations are made under circumstances precluding the idea of misrepresentation or bad faith, and so close to the act in point of time as to render it probable that the intention was carried into execution. Commonwealth v. Trefethen, 157 Mass. 180, 24 L. R. A. 235; Rens v. Northwestern, etc., Ass'n, 100 Wis. 266. In the present case the court, while not squarely rejecting this doctrine, refuses to apply it to a case where the statement does not expressly declare the alleged intention, but merely implies it. The soundness of this decision seems doubtful; for, once admitting that the intention is a relevant fact and that it may be proved by evidence of declarations, it is difficult to see why a statement should not be admitted, which under the circumstances could reasonably be interpreted as expressing such intention. In cases of murder and arson remote and obscure allusions to the act in contemplation are often admitted to show an existing disposition or design. State v. Hoyt, 47 Conn. 518, 36 Am. Rep. 89; State v. Gailor, 71 N. C. 88." 17 Am. Rep. 3.—18 Harv. L. R. 393, commenting on Ross-Lewin v. Germania Life Ins. Co. [Colo. App.] 78 P. 305.

Held statements of fact, and admissible: That temperature in room was "cold." Dahms v. Moore, 110 Ill. App. 223. Lander v. Sheehan [Mont.] 79 P. 406. How far wreckage had been dragged by car. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Pearce [Ala.] 39 So. 72. How far engineer could see headlight of another engine when at a certain place. Southern R. Co. v. Bonner [Ala.] 37 So. 702. Whether witness (defendant) ever advised son to leave his wife. Leavell v. Leavell [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 55. Testimony of plaintiff as to what he would have done if he had heard a whistle. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 669. Proof of the usage of term "winter season" in lumbering is proof of a fact. Barker v. Citizens' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Mich.] 99 N. W. 866. Testimony of witnesses as to effect of polluted water on land and crops is testimony to facts. Watson v. Colusa-Parrott Min. & Smelting Co. [Mont.] 79 P. 14. When witness said he knew working condition of semaphore at certain time, a question what that condition was, called for a fact. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Vipond, 112 Ill. App. 558. Witness may testify who was in actual possession of designated realty at a given time. Sweeney v. Sweeney, 121 Ga. 293, 48 S. E. 984. Witness who saw plaintiff immediately after his fall could testify that he found him senseless. Hyland v. Southern Bell Tel. & T. Co., 70 S. C. 315, 49 S. E. 879. Witness may state that there was no dynamite in his house when he left it without being an expert on explosives. Davis v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 676. Questions as to amount of cotton and value of melilotus destroyed by stock call for facts. Ryall v. Allen [Ala.]38 So. 851. Testimony that some of the passengers on a coach seemed to be drunk, and that they were rude and boisterous was testimony to facts. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Wright [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 270. Statement of damage to cattle from delay in shipment held not to involve a conclusion. McCrary v. Chicago & A. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 82. Proper to allow answer to question whether train was runing at usual rate after stopping at a railroad crossing. Southern R. Co. v. Bonner [Ala.] 37 So. 702. Question to witness who had talked to accused, whether he said anything irrational did not call for an opinion on his sanity. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890. Question whether testator spoke of his brother "affectionately or otherwise" does not call for conclusion. Appeal of Spencer, 77 Conn. 638, 60 A. 289. Plaintiff in assault case may testify that she had her back cauterized for the ailment resulting from her injury. Hubbard v. Perlie, 25 App. D. C. 477. Question whether one's hand could be caught in gear of machinery held not to call for opinion, but to be a way of getting a description of a machine. Gomes v. New Bedford Cordage Co., 187 Mass. 124, 72 N. E. 840. Question to commissioner of public works whether he objected to use of dynamite by contractor in excavating tunnel does not call for conclusion. City of Chicago v. Murdock, 212 Ill. 9, 72 N. E. 46. Testimony that witness could not get into car before he was hurt (by a pole), because the car was crowded, was not a mere conclusion. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Haverstick [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 34. Statement that defendant "acknowledged" that he took horses at a certain valuation was not a conclusion on the issue of an agreement to pay a certain price. Hunter v. Davis [Iowa] 103 N. W. 373. In action for wrongful death, testimony of witness that, in his opinion, deceased was one of two men he saw walking on the track, was competent. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 244, 88 S. W. 192. Question who was in "possession" of land at a certain date proper, "possession" being used in sense of "occupancy" and not of "seizin." Nathan v. Dierssen, 146 Cal. 63, 79 P. 739. Conductor may testify whether it was brakeman's duty to warn a passenger whom he sees about to do some act liable to result in injury to him. Long v. Red River, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1048. A witness may give an opinion as to the time between two facts where the time has not been measured by a timepiece, nor dates noted. Allison v. Wall, 121 Ga. 822, 49 S. E. 831.

which are for the court [14] or jury,[15] or the subject-matter of which requires expert

14. Whether sender of message considered addressee liable for charges. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Merrill [Ala.] 39 So. 121. Evidence of witnesses inadmissible on construction of instruments. Dorr v. Reynolds, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 139. Opinion of witness as to what she meant by language used in letter incompetent. Mabb v. Stewart [Cal.] 81 P. 1073. Question held to call for opinion whether acts had resulted in surrender of policy or its invalidity. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Allen, 212 Ill. 134, 72 N. E. 200. Question as to effect of nonpayment of last dues in beneficial association, improper. Wells & M. Council No. 14 Junior Order U. A. M. v. Littleton [Md.] 60 A. 22. Possession being a question of law, statements of witness that a person was in possession and that he "seemed" to be in possession of certain property, inadmissible. Howell v. Simpson Grocery Co., 121 Ga. 461, 49 S. E. 299. Whether, under certain circumstances, a person would have been a beneficial or nonbeneficial member of an association. Wells & M. Council, No. 14, Junior Order U. A. M. v. Littleton [Md.] 60 A. 22. Whether witness knew of attempts to secure title to land called for opinion as to what would constitute such an attempt. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. A witness, as an accountant, may summarize classified items in railroad books, leaving the effect to be given such items to the court. State v. Nevada Cent. R. Co. [Nev.] 81 P. 99.

15. Whether property was urban or rural. Philadelphia v. Dobbins, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 136. That there was less danger in crossing a railroad track at a certain point than at another. Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. v. Evans, 121 Ga. 391, 49 S. E. 308. Whether train stopped long enough to allow passengers to alight. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 445. That sidewalk was in a reasonably safe condition. Miller v. Canton [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 96. Whether rule requiring work trains to flag regular trains was safe. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 89 S. W. 29. Whether one steering road engine had necessary knowledge and ability to steer safely. Johnson v. Highland [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1085. Conclusion of witness that her son was afflicted and needed medical attention. Valentini v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 758. Question what defendants could have done improper, because calling for conclusion on negligence. Consolidated Coal Co. v. Shepherd, 112 Ill. App. 458. Opinions inadmissible on incompetency of a servant. Purkey v. Southern Coal & Transportation Co. [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 755. Opinion of witness that guy rope anchor pulled out because not weighted heavily enough, inadmissible. Lounsbury v. David [Wis.] 102 N. W. 941. Questions held to call for conclusions as to negligence in handling cars, where they had already testified to facts. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Osgood [Ind App.] 73 N. E. 285. Error to allow witness to say whether he willfully, negligently, or carelessly failed to watch and look after a fire. Sampson v. Hughes [Cal.] 81 P. 292. Engineer should state, when a witness, what he did to stop a train in order to avoid striking stock on the track, and not whether he did everything he could do. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Bagley, 121 Ga. 781, 49 S. E. 780, Agent could not testify whether he had authority to make a contract giving an injured employe $40 a month until he recovered. American Tel. & T. Co. v. Green [Ind.] 73 N. E. 707. Question whether dredge was delivered with intention of transferring title called for deduction which was for the jury. Pacific Export Lumber Co. v. North Pacific Lumber Co. [Or.] 80 P. 105. Offer to prove that defendant had right to command services of plaintiff and to discharge him held objectionable as offer to prove ultimate fact, issue being parties' relation. Bentley, Shriver & Co. v. Edwards [Md.] 60 A. 283. Statement in proof of death and coroner's jury's verdict that death was due to alcoholic poisoning held to have no probative force, because mere opinion based on same facts as were before jury. Puls v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. [N. D.] 102 N. W. 165. Ownership of granite interest in land being in issue, witness could not testify that granite quarried on the land belonged to the one who had quarried it.

skill or knowledge,[16] are inadmissible. But the opinions of nonexperts are received in regard to such matters as value,[17] ownership,[18] sanity,[19] mental capacity,[20] and Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 666. Where testimony of witness on preliminary examination was used to impeach him, and examining magistrate testified that witness did not give certain testimony before him, it was error to allow such magistrate to say that he remembered it because it had impressed him as unreasonable. Dyer v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 192.

Where descriptive language can put the facts before the jury adequately, opinion evidence is incompetent. Phladelphia v. Dobbins, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 136. Opinion evidence inadmissible when facts and circumstances are such that they can be clearly detailed and described and the jury can readily form conclusions therefrom. City of Macon v. Humphries [Ga.] 50 S. E. 986. Witness' statement that horse, after accident, could not be used for same purpose as before, given without facts, inadmissible. Reid v. New York City R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 533.

16. Driver who had no special knowledge of subject could not give opinion on strength of material used in clips which attached shafts to wagon. Schlesinger v. Scheunemann, 114 Ill. App. 459. Non-expert cannot give opinion on injured man's ability to work even though he knew him and lived near him. Wells, Fargo & Co. Exp. v. Boyle [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 164.

17. After testifying to facts, the opinion as to value or amount of damage is merely a matter of computation, and, by weight of authority, a witness may make such computation and present the result to the jury for what it is worth. Watson v. Colusa-Parrot Min. & Smelting Co. [Mont.] 79 P. 14. Witnesses who testified to conditions existing before and after a mill was built on a stream, could give opinions as to what rental value would have been if stream had remained unpolluted, and as to rental value during the time the stream was polluted. Muncie Pulp Co. v. Martin [Ind.] 72 N. E. 882. A witness may testify what, in his opinion, his services would be worth but for his injuries. City Elec. R. Co. v. Smith, 121 Ga. 663, 49 S. E. 724. Opinion of party performing services is competent on their value. Duhme Jewelry Co. v. Hazen, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 606. Any person having sufficient knowledge of a stock of goods to speak intelligently of its value may give an opinion, the weight of which is for the jury. Tucker v. Colonial Fire Ins. Co. [W. Va.] 51 S. E. 86. Estimates and opinions are competent on the question of deterioration in value of improvements on real property. Sydney Webb & Co. v. Daggett [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 743. Witness who testified she knew cost of property and its value qualified to testify to value. Glass v. Buttner [Wash.] 81 P. 699. An opinion on value must be confined to the market value of the land as a whole but may state the grounds of his opinion. Neppach v. Oregon & C. R. Co. [Or.] 80 P. 482. An owner of property, though not an expert in real estate values, may testify to value of land and buildings before and after fire. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Lucas [C. C. A.] 136 F. 374. Real estate man who had no special knowledge of real estate values in a section of the city where land concerned was located, and who expressed an opinion contrary to the law as laid down by the court, which opinion might affect his view of the value, was properly held disqualified on the issue of damages in condemnation proceedings. Klous v. Com. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 330. After it was shown that the owner of a stock of goods was the manager of the business, that he knew their value, that they and the last inventory had been burned, and that he could not give the value of each item, an estimate in a lump sum was competent. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Lucas [C. C. A.] 136 F. 374.

As to damages: Witness may not state amount of damage to land caused by overflow. Owen v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 92. Statement that plaintiff had suffered damages in a named sum because goods levied on were kept in stock was a mere conclusion. Cross v. Coffin-Fletcher Packing Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 704. Answers to questions as to damage from overflow of land not improper where elements of damages were given, and amount not stated. Owen v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 92. Though it is not proper to allow witnesses to give the difference between the market value of land before and after an alleged injury thereto without first giving an estimate of such values, such practice is not reversible error. Parrott v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 352. Testimony of plaintiff that he thought he would be safe in saying his loss from spoiling of meat in poor refrigerator would equal $100, held not competent evidence of damages. Dean Co. v. Standifer [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 230. Where question was whether road would make land better or worse and answer was that witness thought it would advance the price, evidence was held improper because too closely akin to opinion evidence on amount of damages. Pichon v. Martin [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1009. Opinion evidence as to consequences of certain threatened acts held competent, when from the nature of the case, it was the only evidence available. Patterson v. Johnson, 114 Ill. App. 329.

18. Ownership of personal property is a fact to which a witness may testify. In action for wrongful levy question "Whose property was that?" did not call for a conclusion. Rasco v. Jefferson [Ala.] 38 So. 246. Witness held qualified by personal knowledge of log marks to testify regarding ownership of logs. St. Paul Boom Co. v. Kemp [Wis.] 103 N. W. 259.

19. One not an expert may give an opinion, founded upon observation, that a certain person is sane or insane. Where witness stated condition of person as he had observed it for six months, his conclusion that such person was not mentally competent to make a will, was admissible. Spencer v. Spencer [Mont.] 79 P. 320. Non-experts who have had opportunity to observe an accused may give an opinion as to his sanity. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890. Non-expert may give opinion on sanity or insanity, detailing his opportunities for observation, and the weight of such opinion is for other matters not requiring expert skill or knowledge,[21] when the witness is shown to be qualified [22] by his observation or familiarity with the subject of inquiry,[23] and when his opinion is accompanied by a statement of the facts on which it is based.[24]

the jury considering the opportunity for and accuracy of such observation. Howard v. Carter [Kan.] 80 P. 61. Non-expert witnesses who have observed acts and conduct of a person may give an opinion on his sanity after giving instances of his conduct. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Lawrence, 211 Ill. 373, 71 N. E. 1024. Witness who had known defendant since childhood and had had several recent conversations with him could testify as to his sanity. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. While a witness who has testified to facts observed which created an impression on his mind may give an opinion on sanity, he may not give an opinion on the degree of mental incapacity, and whether the person observed was capable at the time of making a valid and binding contract. This is an issue of law and fact for the jury, under instructions from the court. Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Scott [Colo.] 81 P. 763. Lay witnesses may, on issue of insanity, only characterize acts which they have observed and to which they testify; they cannot give opinions based on hypothetical facts. People v. Silverman, 181 N. Y. 235, 73 N. E. 980. Non-expert opinion as to sanity must be based on observed facts; but such opinion is competent without facts to show a continuation of normal or rational conditions. Lucas v. McDonald, 126 Iowa, 678, 102 N. W. 532. On issue of insanity, a witness may state whether defendant talked disconnectedly, but may not testify to "any other peculiarities" he noticed, since these peculiarities might not be relevant on insanity. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Reporter who had not known defendant previously, but had interviewed him, not qualified to give non-expert opinion on insanity. Id.

20. A witness may give an opinion on mental unsoundness of a testator, based on facts within his knowledge. Franklin v. Boone [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 93, 88 S. W. 262. One who had long known a person, and had done business with him, could give opinion, with facts on which it was based, as to his mental condition. Field v. Field [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 726. An opinion as to the testamentary capacity of an alleged testator is competent if based on observation of his habits, conduct, demeanor, conversation and acts, and if the testator's physical condition is not in issue; but when alleged incapacity is due to an exhausted physical condition, induced by illness or the approach of death, weakening the mental faculties, mere opinion evidence is incompetent. Struth v. Decker [Md.] 59 A. 727. Attorney who drew will and had known testator for fifteen years could compare mental capacity at time of execution of will and before that time. Id. Witness may give opinion based on his own observation of testator's conduct, the facts observed having also been testified to. In re Selleck's Will, 125 Iowa, 678, 101 N. W. 453. But facts testified to must be consistent with the opinion expressed. Opinions that a testator was incompetent held inadmissible where none of the facts testified to by witnesses were inconsistent with capacity or sanity. Hibbard v. Baker [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 384, 104 N. W. 399. Testimony of associates of a decedent, who had observed his habits, that they had seldom or never seen him drink or appear to be under the influence of liquor, competent to prove he was not an habitual or immoderate drinker. Puls v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. [N. D.] 102 N. W. 165.

21. Non-experts may testify to experiments, observed by them, which were performed by an expert. Experiments to show direction in which timber is thrown by ripsaw. Krueger v. Brenham Furniture Mfg. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1156. Evidence of examination of flat cars made to test credibility of witness held properly admitted. Pierce v. Brennan, 88 Minn. 50, 92 N. W. 507.

Speed of trains: Chicago City R. Co. v. Hyndshaw, 116 Ill. App. 367. Anyone of average intelligence who sees a moving car is qualified to express an opinion as to its speed. Blick v. Metropolitan R. Co., 22 App. D. C. 194. Person with whose vehicle a street car collided, and who testified that he was familiar with the speed of trains running twenty or twenty-five miles an hour, may state that car was running at about that speed. Sluder v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 648. Ordinary witness who has given some attention to speed of trains and has some knowledge of time and distance may testify to speed of a train; his inexperience goes to the weight, not the admissibility of his testimony. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Holloway [Kan.] 80 P. 31. Witness who had observed and ridden on trains properly allowed to testify to speed of a train at a crossing. Borneman v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 208. One who has traveled and has observed the speed of trains may give an opinion on the speed of a train which he has observed. Gregory v. Wabash R. Co., 126 Iowa, 230, 101 N. W. 761.

Appearances of things: Wife may testify to external symptoms observed by her indicating injury and pain suffered by husband, though she may not generalize and give an opinion. Macon Railway & Light Co. v. Mason [Ga.] 51 S. E. 569. A witness may state result of his observations regarding the appearance or condition of things observed by him, when the facts cannot be reproduced and made palpable to the jury. Testimony of witness, a passenger on a street car, that another passenger, stepping on running board, "slipped" and fell, admissible. McCabe v. San Antonio Traction Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 576, 88 S. W. 387. Testimony that snowy place on walk looked as though someone had fallen there, competent. Rathbrock v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 103 N. W. 475.

22. [Qualification of experts, including qualification of witnesses to value, whom many courts treat as experts, is treated in section 9C, post.]

Qualification of non-experts to give opinions is for the court. Watson v. Colusa-Parrot Min. & Smelting Co. [Mont.] 79 P. 14; Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Qualification of non-expert to testify as to sanity of accused in homicide case is for court; weight and value of his opinion is for the jury. Shaffer v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 417. Witness should not be permitted to testify to land values or damage to land until his competency has been shown by a proper preliminary examination. Hope v. Philadelphia & W. R. Co., 211 Pa. 401, 60 A. 996. Qualification of expert on real estate value should be shown before his testimony is received. Watkins Land Mortg. Co. v. Campbell [Tex.] 84 S. W. 424.

(§ 9) B. Subjects of expert testimony.[25]—Expert opinion is admissible in regard to matters adequate knowledge of which presupposes special skill, experience, or investigation;[26] it is inadmissible regarding matters of common knowledge,[27] or

23. One not a surveyor may testify to measurements of a city lot made by him. Gunkel v. Seiberth [Ky.] 85 S. W. 733. Witness may tell within what time an act may be done, when he testifies from personal knowledge. Biggers v. Catawba Power Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 882. Not necessary to qualify physician as expert to admit his testimony to course of bullet, when he took part in autopsy and is giving result of his own observations. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890. Non-experts who have had sufficient opportunity to observe may testify to condition of a certain person's health. Pioneer Reserve Ass'n v. Jones, 111 Ill. App. 156. Witnesses may estimate depth of hole in street which they have seen but not measured. Miller v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 227. Witness who knew situation could testify whether curve in track was such that it should be flagged when section men are at work. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Minter [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 477. Testimony as to switchman's duties when train was being made up unobjectionable when witness appeared to be testifying from personal knowledge. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Rea [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 428. In action for damage to corn by hogs, testimony of plaintiff, a farmer, that he went over the field and observed and estimated the damage, made his estimate competent. Auckland v. Lawrence [Colo. App.] 78 P. 1035. Witnesses familiar with situation may testify how far a railroad track could be seen by a person standing at a certain point and under certain conditions. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Crose, 214 Ill 602, 73 N. E. 865. Statement that a railroad semaphore was in good working order at time of a collision not a conclusion when witness testified that he had been over crossing many times before the collision. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Vipond, 212 Ill. 199, 72 N. E. 22. Witness who had ridden on car over a certain place very often could testify that noise and motion at time when wheels were off the track was not of the usual kind, the issue being whether conductor or motorman knew it was off. Beers v. West Side R. Co., 101 App. Div. 308, 91 N. Y. S. 957. Witnesses who notice that speed of train is unusually fast on approaching a depot are not discredited by fact that they are not familiar with management of railroad under way. Harvey v. Louisiana Western R. Co. [La.] 38 So. 859. Husband who had observed effects of injuries of wife on her effort to work could testify in regard thereto. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 545, 88 S. W. 445. Non-expert may not testify to cause of flashes accompanying blowing out of fuse, he not having been present. Kight v. Metropolitan R. Co., 21 App. D. C. 494.

24. [Opinions on sanity or mental capacity especially must be accompanied by such facts. See cases above.—Ed.]

Proper for experts on value to state elements, such as rental value, location, character of improvements, etc. Watkins Land Mortg. Co. v. Campbell [Tex.] 84 S. W. 424. Witness could testify whether he could have crossed stream at a certain time, after stating fact on which he based his opinion. Machen v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 697.

25. See 3 C. L. 1373.

26. Horst v. Lewis [Neb.] 103 N. W. 460. Expert opinions are admissible in matters of science, special art or particular occupation, where persons inexperienced therein would be unable to reach a proper conclusion from a mere statement of the facts on which the expert opinion is based. Allison v. Wall, 121 Ga. 822, 49 S. E. 831. How long tamarack timbers will remain sound in the ground. Rice v. Wallowa County [Or.] 81 P. 358. Qualified witnesses may testify to number of logs which could have been run and sawed per day by a certain mill. Fletcher v. Prestwood [Ala.] 38 So. 847. Experienced persons may give opinions on usual loss of weight in cattle during transportation. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Watson [Kan.] 81 P. 499. Expert testimony admissible to show delay of cattle train at junction point for two hours was not unreasonable. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Kapp [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 233. Properly qualified witnesses may testify what would be a reasonable time for completion of transit of shipment of horses between two points. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Ellerd [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 362. Writings evidencing put or call stock transaction, having no market value, expert testimony was admissible to show their value at a given time. Vroom v. Sage, 100 App. Div. 285, 91 N. Y. S. 456. Expert testimony on process of manufacturing kerosene from petroleum to show that gasoline is lighter and gives off vapor at a lower temperature is competent to aid the jury in determining what a substance sold as kerosene contained. Stowell v. Standard Oil Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 227. In action to recover for water supply to borough, expert may testify, on issue of sufficiency of supply, what amount is required per day in a town of the same size, no objection being then raised that all the people did not use water. Ephrata Water Co. v. Ephrata Borough, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 353. On issue of pedigree of colt, the opinions of persons familiar with the breed of horses by which the parties claimed the colt was sired, and their colts, are competent. Brady v. Shirley [S. D.] 101 N. W. 886. It is competent to prove by one acquainted with the habits and disposition of horses that a stallion is liable to jump over fences or break out of pasture. Kittredge v. City of Cincinnati, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 646. Where agreement was to pay reasonable value of services, witnesses could testify to usual custom as to percentage paid, though no fixed custom was proved. Walker Mfg. Co. v. Knox [C. C. A.] 136 F. 334. Captain of vessel, qualified as expert, could give opinion on whether he could have prevented a collision after he saw a projection in a bridge. Lambert v. La Conner Trading & Transp. Co., 37 Wash. 113, 79 P. 608.

Railroad construction and management: Experts may testify whether unblocked switch frogs are dangerous. Schroeder v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 985. Distance within which street car can be stopped by brake. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Seerley [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 169. Expert cannot state distance in which particular car could be stopped unless he has had experience with that or similar cars; but he may state that cars differently equipped could be stopped in a shorter distance. Columbus Ry. Co. v. Connor, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 361. Speed of train and distance in which it could be stopped not subject of expert testimony unless based on operation of cars and engines of similar construction and equipment. Wise Terminal Co. v. McCormick [Va.] 51 S. E. 731. Experienced railroad men could testify to conductor's duties and whether he ought to give a stop signal in switching before he knew a car to be switched was uncoupled. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Nicholas [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 195. Properly qualified witnesses may testify as to whether sparks or fire can leave fire box of engine without going through spark arrester; whether engines could be operated without small cinders escaping through smoke-stack; and to construction and efficiency of spark arresters on engines like those in question. German Ins. Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 361. Experts may testify to condition of sparks or cinders thrown a certain distance, and whether live or burning sparks would have carried that far if engine emitting them was in proper order. Babbitt v. Erie R. Co., 95 N. Y. S. 429.

Machinery, construction, engineering: Whether insulator on pullover wire was safe. North Amherst Home Tel. Co. v. Jackson, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 386. Expert who had superintended erection of electric light plant could testify of his own knowledge to character of dynamo and how many lights it would furnish. Kernan v. Crook, Horner & Co. [Md.] 59 A. 753. Whether steel plates used in building a vault should have been supported by set screws to protect workmen was for the jury, and expert testimony thereon was incompetent. Dolan v. Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Co., 94 N. Y. S. 241. Experienced operative, who had described machine, could testify what a person would have to do in order to get his hand caught in it. Wofford v. Clifton Cotton Mills [S. C.] 51 S. E. 918. Miners may testify whether certain bent and broken timbers could have been used to prop up a roof in the mine. Kellyville Coal Co. v. Strine [Ill.] 75 N. E. 375.

Medical, scientific and other professional matters: Opinions of medical men are competent on matters within the range of their profession. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Harton [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 589, 88 S. W. 857. The fact that medical testimony as to the cause or effect of injury consists usually of opinions based on personal experience and the learning of the profession, and not of positive statements of fact, does not render it incompetent. City of South Omaha v. Sutliffe [Neb.] 101 N. W. 997. Opinion of physician as to cause of death should be confined to facts and should not extend to matters not requiring medical skill or knowledge. Knights Templars' & Masons' Life Indemnity Co. v. Crayton, 110 Ill. App. 648. Physician may testify whether wounds about the head were sufficient to produce death. Horst v. Lewis [Neb.] 103 N. W. 460. Expert medical opinion, based on symptoms as shown by the evidence, is competent on issue whether a person was addicted to use of morphine. Buxton v. Emery [Mich.] 102 N. W. 948. Exclusion of question to physician whether child could show no symptoms of diphtheria one day and develop a fatal case the next was error. Purcell v. Jessup, 99 App. Div. 556, 91 N. Y. S. 165. Physician could testify whether persons unconscious with pneumonia ever rally and regain consciousness. Struth v. Decker [Md.] 59 A. 727. Testimony of physician that pain might possibly be referred to injury did not invade province of jury. Noller v. Wright [Mich.] 101 N. W. 553. A physician may testify to which of two accidents he attributes an injury, the circumstances surrounding each being fully shown. Jones v. American Warehouse Co., 137 N. C. 337, 49 S. E. 355. Medical expert in personal injury action may be asked either as to cause of plaintiff's condition, or conversely, as to effect of injuries such as he received. Holden v. Missouri R. Co., 108 Mo. App. 665, 84 S. W. 133. Physicians who had examined plaintiff's injured foot, could testify that in their opinion injury must have been caused by contact with uneven surface. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Smith, 111 Ill. App. 177. A physician may testify to the probable consequences of an injury. Norfolk R. & L. Co. v. Spratley, 103 Va. 379, 49 S. E. 502. Questions whether injuries to skull were "likely" to result in recurrent troubles or were "apt" to affect injuriously the other eye were proper. Faber v. C. Reiss Coal Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1049. Whether cerebral meningitis would have been caused by injuries shown by evidence and stated in hypothetical case. Birmingham R. L. & P. Co. v. Enslen [Ala.] 39 So. 74. Where evidence showed child well before an accident, and presence of an abscess thereafter, testimony as to what might have caused the abscess was proper. Boehm v. City of Detroit [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 397, 104 N. W. 626. Physician may give opinion on whether injury was cause of disease or condition by which plaintiff was affected. Redmon v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 185 Mo. 1, 84 S. W. 26. Physician may give opinion whether injuries are slight or serious. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Rea [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 428. Physicians may give opinions on the temporary or permanent character of injuries and the probability or reasonable certainty of recovery. Klingaman v. Fish & Hunter Co. [S. D.] 102 N. W. 601. Physician properly allowed to state whether plaintiff would recover, or the injury was permanent. Kansas when the facts can be intelligibly presented to the jury and are of such a nature that jurors generally are competent to form opinions and draw conclusions from them.[28] Expert opinion is inadmissible on issues of law.[29]

City, M. & B. R. Co. v. Butler [Ala.] 38 So. 1024. A practicing physician knowing the nature, extent and condition of the injury in its early stages may give an opinion as to whether or not it will be permanent. Citizens' Elec. R. etc., Co. v. Bell, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 321.

27. Whether keeping cows in connection with hotel is profitable. Smith v. Stevens [Colo.] 81 P. 35. Proper way to lift cable from one insulator pin to another on telephone pole. Meehan v. Holyoke St. R. Co., 186 Mass. 511, 72 N. E. 61. Whether land was injured by construction of tunnel whereby smoke was thrown over land, and noise and vibration from trains resulted. Baltimore Belt R. Co. v. Sattler [Md.] 59 A. 654. That certain items of expense, such as coal, were necessary operating expense of a railroad. State v. Nev. Cent. R. Co. [Nev.] 81 P. 99. That railway tunnel increased quantity of smoke at ends, over quantity there would have been if trains ran through open cut. Baltimore Belt R. Co. v. Sattler [Md.] 59 A. 654. Question to master mechanic whether it was necessary to sound whistle at stated times to notify employes when to begin and leave work. Powell v. Nevada, C. & O. R. Co. [Nev.] 78 P. 978. Damages to property by change of grade crossing not subject for expert testimony. Ramschasel's Est., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 262.

28. State v. Nev. Cent. R. Co. [Nev.] 81 P. 99. The opinion of experts should not be received if all the facts can be ascertained and made intelligible to the jury or if it is such as men in general are capable of comprehending and understanding. Opinion of machinist that certain machinery should have been safeguarded incompetent. National Bi uit Co. v. Nolan [C. C. A.] 138 F. 6. Opinion evidence is admissible only where, because of the complexity of the elements involved, it is impossible for the witness to detail all the circumstances which lead his mind to a particular conclusion. As what time would reasonably be required to perform an unusual task or special work, where all the elements or data for calculation could be successfully and intelligibly presented to the jury. Allison v. Wall, 121 Ga. 822, 49 S. E. 831. Expert opinion inadmissible on question whether land was mineral or non-mineral. Lynch v. United States [C. C. A.] 138 F. 535. Whether a shaft was sunk on a vein of ore. Hickey v. Anaconda Copper Min. Co. [Mont.] 81 P. 806. Whether train could be run safely over submerged track, when a freight train had preceded it. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Cain [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 682. Whether machinery was reasonably safe and suitable. Coe v. Van Why [Colo.] 80 P. 894. Who was responsible for securing of train, and what witnesses would have done under certain circumstances. Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Vitello [Colo.] 81 P. 766. Whether cause of derailment was spreading of rails and defect in wheels of street car. Schutz v. Union R. Co., 181 N. Y. 33, 73 N. E. 491. Whether method adopted by boy of twelve of starting a belt operating machinery was dangerous. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Tomlinson [Va.] 51 S. E. 362. Amount of damage to land caused by railway tunnel and consequent noise, etc., and smoke thrown on land. Baltimore Belt R. Co. v. Sattler [Md.] 59 A. 654. Expert on mental condition of testator should not be allowed to state which of two other witnesses had better opportunity to judge of testator's condition. Lancaster v. Lancaster's Ex'r [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1137. Error to permit physician to testify that plaintiff's paralysis was due to injury received in street car accident, defense being that such condition was due to other causes. Taylor v. Grand Ave. R. Co., 185 Mo. 239, 84 S. W. 873. Where data could have been presented to jury, question what was a reasonable time to perform a certain act was for the jury. Allison v. Wall. 121 Ga. 822, 49 S. E. 831. Question to expert properly excluded because it involved an opinion on the credibility of witnesses. International, etc., R. Co. v. Goswick [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 423. Witness who had testified to facts could not tell whether a new contract was made. Foster v. Murphy & Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 47. Opinion of expert on the "judgment of other competent workmen" as to practicability of using guard on machinery, incompetent. Espenlaub v. Ellis, 34 Ind. App. 163, 72 N. E. 527. Witnesses who testified fully to plaintiff's condition could not express opinion as to whether he was feigning. McCormick v. Detroit, etc., R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 326, 104 N. W. 390. In action for injuries to engineer caused by running into first section of train, it was improper to allow another engineer to testify as an expert, that, under same circumstances he would not have run into the first section. Quinn v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 395. Police officers or others may not identify persons accused of crime from mere general descriptions which they have received. State v. Rutledge, 37 Wash. 523, 79 P. 1123. An expert cannot be asked whether the testator was capable of making such a will as good reason and a normal condition of mind would requre. Moore v. Caldwell, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 484.

Whether a contention of fact is such that expert testimony is required is largely discretionary with the trial court. Accounts held not so complicated as to require expert evidence. City of Philadelphia v. Neill, 211 Pa. 353, 60 A. 1033.

29. The meaning of the phrase "net receipts" in the Illinois foreign insurance company law is a question of law on which the opinion of insurance experts is incompetent. National Fire Ins. Co. v. Hanberg, 215 Ill. 378, 74 N. E. 377. It is not proper for a witness to classify a railroad's expenses for the purpose of showing which were properly considered in determining the value of the road for taxation purposes. State v. Nev. Cent. R. Co. [Nev.] 81 P. 99. Witness may not state that taxes ought not to be charged as operating expenses of road in determining value of road for taxation. Id. Witness may not state whether he considered certain language used by policeman profane, without giving the exact language used; whether it was profane, within the meaning of a law prescribing policemen's duties, being for the court. Lamb v. City of Brunswick, 121 Ga. 345, 49 S. E. 275. Where witness' opinion involved not only what could have been done in a certain time, but also what should have been done, it was inadmissible. Allison v. Wall, 121 Ga. 822, 49 S. E. 831. The text of a foreign statute being before the court, its construction is for the court and the opinion of a lawyer of experience as to the consensus of opinion among lawyers in the sister state, as to its meaning, is inadmissible. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556.

(§ 9) C. Qualification of experts.[30]—Qualification of a witness to testify as an expert is a preliminary question,[31] addressed largely to the discretion of the trial court.[32] Special familiarity with the subject under investigation, experience, and professional skill and training, are the tests usually applied.[33] Expert capacity is a matter wholly relative to the subject of a particular question.[34]

30. See 3 C. L. 1375.

31. Meyers v. McAllister [Minn.] 103 N. W. 564. It is improper to allow a witness called as an expert to testify, leaving his qualification to be determined on cross-examination. Dolan v. Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Co., 94 N. Y. S. 241. The party calling the expert should show his qualification before his testimony is admitted. Id. Expert testimony on former trial, having been given without objection to qualification of witness, such objection was unavailing on reading of testimony at later trial after expert's death. Wallach v. Manhattan El. R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 574. Objection that expert oculist was not qualified to testify to a pathological condition of the optic nerve, held untenable, his qualification having been conceded. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890. Where witness was shown to be qualified to give opinion by cross-examination, the cross-examiner could not complain of the admission of his testimony. Speck v. Kenoyer [Ind.] 73 N. E. 896.

32. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Tomlinson [Va.] 51 S. E. 362; Gila Valley, G. & N. R. Co. v. Lyon [Ariz.] 80 P. 337; I. L. Corse & Co. v. Minnesota Grain Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 728. Discretion properly exercised in allowing witness to testify as to values. Meyers v. McAllister [Minn.] 103 N. W. 564. Exclusion of expert testimony is not error where the qualification of the expert is left in doubt. Groff v. Groff, 209 Pa. 603, 59 A. 65. Whether a witness has such special knowledge or experience as to qualify him to give opinion evidence is a question of fact for trial court, and a ruling thereon is not reviewable on writ of error, if supported by legal evidence. Burns v. Delaware & A. Teleg. & Tel. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 59 A. 220.

33. Illustrations. Held competent: One who had been private secretary of government official for years, and then chief clerk in the office, held qualified to testify as to usage in office. Lorenz v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 337. One who had cultivated cotton all his life, and who saw land in cotton the previous year could give his opinion on the amount of cotton it produced, though he did not know the exact amount. Baker v. Cotney [Ala.] 38 So. 131. In an action for damages for overflow of land caused by railroad, witnesses familiar with land and rainfalls were qualified to testify how water would flow if railroad were not there. Taylor v. San Antonio, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 738. Witness held to have had such knowledge of "dry murrain" and of conditions as to be qualified to testify that certain cattle, when shipped, were not affected with the disease. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Hagler [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 692. Shipper of large experience who had shipped stock between two points for several years, could testify as to what was a reasonable time for the trip. McCrary v. Chicago & A. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 82. Machine operatives qualified as experts to testify whether machine was working properly at given time. Scarlotta v. Ash [Minn.] 103 N. W. 1025. Placer miner of long experience, but not shown to have had mining experience as to particular land in question, not qualified to testify as to its mineral character. Lynch v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 535. Member of local health board who had had experience with several smallpox cases and knew fees charged in those cases was not qualified to testify to reasonableness of physician's fees in such a case. City of Lawrence v. Methuen [Mass.] 73 N. E. 860. Witness with fifteen years' experience in mercantile business competent to testify whether cost mark on goods was original mark. Sylvester v. Ammons, 126 Iowa, 140, 101 N. W. 782. Also whether stock was old or new, the marks appearing to be fresh. Id. And witnesses who were also familiar with stock, having invoiced it, could testify to difference between actual wholesale cost as inventoried, and the amount of the seller's invoice. Id. Witness held qualified by experience to testify to length of time timbers would remain sound in the ground. Rice v. Wallowa County [Or.] 81 P. 358. Hardware dealer qualified to state difference between materials put into building and those contracted for, though he got prices from wholesale catalogue, where it also appeared that list prices were the same in all such catalogues. American Bonding Co. v. Regents of University [Idaho] 81 P. 604. Quarrymen, experienced in blasting, qualified to testify to proper manner of doing such work. Lane Bros. & Co. v. Bauserman, 103 Va. 146, 48 S. E. 857. Qualification of experts on tunnel ventilation held sufficient, and their testimony admissible under pleadings. Baltimore Belt R. Co. v. Sattler [Md.] 59 A. 654. Brakeman, also experienced in track construction could give opinion on whether track at certain place was defective and unsafe. Northern Alabama R. Co. v. Shea [Ala.] 37 So. 796. Experienced brakeman may give opinion on whether speed of train around a curve was dangerous. Id. Engineer, long in the service and familiar with locality, qualified to testify what rate of speed was necessary to haul a train across a street and into yards. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Connell [C. C. A.] 137 F. 8. Practical railroad man, with three years' experience in construction and repair work on tracks qualified to testify to purpose and proper location of derailing switch. Smith v. Fordyce [Mo.] 88 S. W. 679. That a physician cannot testify to confidential communications does not disqualify him to give expert opinion, based on hypothetical facts, as to cause of injury of a patient whom he attended. Crago v. City of Cedar Rapids, 123 Iowa, 48, 98 N. W. 354. Osteopath, who had had experience in nervous diseases, qualified to testify to extent of injuries, though not a licensed practitioner. Macon Railway & L. Co. v. Mason [Ga.] 51 S. E. 569. Electricians held competent to give their experience and opinions as to effectiveness of certain insulators and their tendency to fall into disuse where formerly used. Warren v. City Elec. R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 415, 104 N. W. 613. One who had been a waterman for twenty years, had knowledge of boats, and special knowledge of boat in question, competent to testify to boat's value. Gossage v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. [Md.] 61 A. 692.

Held incompetent: Witnesses not shown to have sufficient knowledge of subject to give opinions on effect of embankment on flow of water in stream. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Harbison [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 67, 88 S. W. 452. One not shown to have any knowledge of a general custom in handling wires in house moving cannot testify thereon. Nagle v. Hake, 123 Wis. 256, 101 N. W. 409.

Qualification of witnesses to value: Witness with no knowledge of cost price or of value of jewelry incompetent to express an opinion on value. Motton v. Smith [R. I.] 60 A. 681. Witness held qualified to give opinion on value of furniture. Osmers v. Furey [Mont.] 81 P. 345. Witnesses held competent to testify to value of automobile. Paterson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 621. Experienced salesman who had inspected stock of goods could testify to their value. L. T. Madden & Co. v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 70 S. C. 295, 49 S. E. 855. Witness engaged in business some years and has some knowledge of property destroyed qualified to give opinion on value of goods burned. Glaser v. Home Ins. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 524. Woman who did her own business, managed farm and bought and sold horses, qualified to give opinion on value of horse she claimed to own. Vogts v. Utman [Wis.] 104 N. W. 88. Opinion of treasurer of company competent on value of stock when there had been no sales. Aldrich v. Bay State Const. Co., 186 Mass. 489, 72 N. E. 53. Witnesses with long experiece in deals, involving value of broker's services in sale of railroad plants and corporations holding franchises were qualified to testify to value of such services in sale of electric light plant. Hart v. Maloney, 101 App. Div. 37, 91 N. Y. S. 922. Saleswoman in dry goods store which handled millinery, who knew cost and value of millinery, and had assisted in invoicing, qualified to testify to value of millinery stock. Lundvick v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 970. Husband and wife may give opinions as witnesses concerning the value of their own household furniture. Lincoln Supply Co. v. Graves [Neb.] 102 N. W. 457. One who had worked on logs many years, knew the logs in question, and their value, could testify as to value, though he had not bought or sold logs. Rylander v. Laursen [Wis.] 102 N. W. 341. One who had worked in logging business some years, had learned general market value of pine lumber, and before testifying had learned market value from reported prices and sales made by him, was qualified to testify to market value. St. Paul Boom Co. v. Kemp [Wis.] 103 N. W. 259. Persons who knew value of freight terminal could testify as experts, though they did not know market value of other property in city. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Pittsburgh, Ft. W. & C. R. Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 248.

Value of and damages to realty: One who shows familiarity with land in question may testify to its value before and after appropriation of right of way through it, basing his opinion on the facts to which he has testified, even though he is not familiar with land values in vicinity and knows of only one transfer. Consolidated Traction Co. v. Jordan [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 301. Persons acquainted with market value of property in neighborhood are qualified to testify to such value of land damaged by change of grade. Schrodt v. St. Joseph [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 543. One who only knew value of his wife's land and of one other tract was not qualified to testify to value of certain tract with or without shade trees. Ferguson v. Buckell, 101 App. Div. 213, 91 N. Y. S. 724. Market value of property injured by construction of a railroad through it does not require expert testimony, but all persons familiar with the property, who have formed an opinion, are competent witnesses. Hope v. Philadelphia & W. R. Co., 211 Pa. 401, 60 A. 996. A witness otherwise competent to testify to damage to land is not rendered incompetent by inability to state the items on which his calculation is based. Id. Witnesses familiar with value of lands in neighborhood, knew land in question, and nature of injury to it, competent to testify to value in action for damages for injury to it. McGroarty v. Lehigh Valley Coal Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 570. Resident witnesses who have knowledge of land, its location, uses, buildings, environment, and prices of sales in vicinity, and value placed on property by people there are qualified to testify to value of property to be condemned. Reed v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 210 Pa. 211, 59 A. 1067. Persons who lived near land for many years, were familiar with its quality and improvements and knew of sales and prices in vicinity, held competent. Hope v. Philadelphia & W. R. Co., 211 Pa. 401, 60 A. 996. To testify to damages to land by construction of a railroad through it, a witness should have knowledge of the market value of the land before and after construction of the road, knowledge of location, area, quality, productiveness, extent and condition of improvements, manner in which road crosses, and value of other lands in vicinity. Id. One who had knowledge of only two rental contracts of land in vicinity, but was acquainted with property there and had had several years' experience as real estate agent, could testify as to value of lot condemned. Union R. Co. v. Hunton [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 182. On the issue of value of land, the opinions of persons residing near it and who have known it for some time, are competent evidence, though such persons are not real estate dealers and are not specially informed as to prices. Guyandotte Valley R. Co. v. Buskirk [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 521.

(§ 9) D. Basis of expert testimony and examination of experts.[35]—The opinion of an expert may be based directly on his personal knowledge of the facts or subject under investigation;[36] but it is usually elicited by means of a hypothetical question.[37] Such a question should hypothesize all the essential facts relating to the matter on which the opinion is sought,[38] which the evidence tends to show,[39] but

34. One who had been ironworker eighteen years but had been building vaults only five or six weeks was not qualified as to the proper manner of protecting workmen from falling of steel plates used in vault building. Dolan v. Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Co., 94 N. Y. S. 241. Mine employe who had no knowledge of mine in question could not testify to the duties of employes from his knowledge of the customs and rules in other mines. Smith v. Hecla Min. Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 779. Estimate of market value of stock at place of destination inadmissible because based on knowledge of market at another place. Missouri, etc., R. Co. of Texas v. Allen [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 168. Experienced hydraulic and mechanical engineers, familiar with production of power, but not familiar with values in vicinity, could testify to cost of producing power in a given place, but not to its value in the vicinity. Lakeside Mfg. Co. v. City of Worcester, 186 Mass. 552, 72 N. E. 81.

Members of different schools of medicine: Where it appears that a disease is ascribed to the same causes, and diagnosed the same, by different schools of medicine, members of one school are qualified, in an action for malpractice, to give opinions on the diagnosis made by a member of another (Grainger v. Still, 187 Mo. 197, 85 S. W. 1114); but members of one school cannot express opinions as to the treatment of a disease by a member of another, unless it appears that the treatment employed by the two schools is the same. Allopathic physicians held qualified to give opinions on diagnosis of disease by osteopath, but not on treatment of disease by him (Id.).

35. See 3 C. L. 1376. For examination of witnesses in general, see following article.

36. Physician's testimony, based on examination of injured child, competent. Boehn v. Detroit [Mich.] 104 N. W. 626. Question to physician whether pains claimed to exist were caused by or likely to result from injuries received, held to call for opinion based on his knowledge gained from treating the patient. Franklin v. St. Louis & M. R. R. Co. [Mo.] 87 S. W. 930. Questions put to a medical expert need not be hypothetical if the witness is personally acquainted with the facts. City of Chicago v. Lamb, 105 Ill. App. 204. General manager of corporation may testify as to solvency of concern at a given time without a prior disclosure of the facts on which he bases his opinion. Campbell v. Park [Iowa] 101 N. W. 861. Where the witness is an expert upon the matter as to which he is called to testify, he need not testify to all the facts on which his conclusion is based. Error to require physicians who attended patient and took part in post mortem to detail all the facts before giving opinion on cause of death. Morrow v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n, 125 Iowa, 633, 101 N. W. 468.

37. Proper course is to state hypothetically the case which the party producing the witness thinks he has made and to ask an opinion based on such case. Elgin, A. & S. Traction Co. v. Wilson [Ill.] 75 N. E. 436. Error to permit physician to base opinion on evidence as he heard and construed it and gave it weight. Id. A hypothetical question should not purport directly to state or recite the evidence. Botwinis v. Allgood, 113 Ill. App. 188. Facts must be stated hypothetically, leaving jury to determine their truth or falsity. Netcher v. Bernstein, 110 Ill. App. 484. The purpose of a hypothetical question is to obtain the opinion of one entitled by superior learning or experience to speak and to express an opinion upon the state of facts which, for the purpose of his consideration, are to be received by him as true. Id.

38. Question calling for opinion, and stating no facts, improper. Mitchell Square Bale Ginning Co. v. Grant [Ala.] 38 So. 855. Questions calling for opinions upon a state of facts not known to witness, nor stated to him hypothetically, are improper. Stowell v. Standard Oil Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 227. Expert cannot say how far a sick mule might have been driven unless question hypothesizes the severity of its sickness. Moulton v. Gibbs, 105 Ill. App. 104. Questions improper because assuming facts not in evidence, and not containing sufficient facts on which opinion could be based. United Electric L. & P. Co. v. State [Mo.] 60 A. 248. Hypothetical question as to time and space within which street car could be stopped objectionable because not specifying condition of street and track at exact place, nor equipment for stopping car. Impkamp v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 655, 84 S. W. 119. Opinion of roadmaster that train could be run over track submerged with water without danger, if run slowly, especially where freight train had preceded it, inadmissible, the condition on which opinion was based not being same as those actually existing at time of accident. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Cain [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 682. Experienced street car operatives may testify as to time and space in which street car, similar to one in question, under same circumstances, could be stopped. Meng v. St. Louis & Suburban R. Co., 108 Mo. App. 553, 84 S. W. 213. Where plaintiff testified that his condition at time of trial was the same as when his physician last examined him, a hypothetical question to the physician whether recovery was likely should not assume facts not in evidence,[40] unless it is understood that such facts shall be made to appear,[41] or unless they are uncontroverted.[42] Questions should be clear and definite,[43] but are not objectionable because somewhat leading in character.[44] They should not call for speculative opinions.[45] One who has adopted and used a hypothetical question asked by his adversary cannot thereafter complain of the form of the question.[46] Testimony of a proper kind to show reasons

if plaintiff's condition was the same as when he last examined him, was proper. Kaiser v. St. Louis Transit Co., 108 Mo. App. 708, 84 S. W. 199. Question to expert, assuming facts proved with reference to construction of electric wires and asking an opinion as to whether such constructon was good, was proper. German-American Ins. Co. v. New York Gas & Electric L., H. & P. Co., 103 App. Div. 310, 93 N. Y. S. 46. After stating hypothetically the facts regarding an accident and resulting injury, it is proper to ask the expert, "Would you attribute such injuries to the accident stated in the question, or would such an accident be sufficient to produce such injuries." Netcher v. Bernstein, 110 Ill. App. 484. No objection having been made to expert opinion on ground that sufficient facts were not shown on which to base it, and no effort having been made to elicit such facts on cross-examination, the opinion will not be stricken at the close of the case. Manning v. School Dist. No. 6 [Wis.] 102 N. W. 356.

39. Question held substantially based on evidence and properly allowed. Boehm v. Detroit [Mich.] 104 N. W. 626. The question need not state all the facts in evidence if those stated are supported by some evidence. Botwinis v. Allgood, 113 Ill. App. 188. But it should be based on a theory each element of which is based on some evidence. Id. There being some evidence to establish every fact assumed in hypothetical question to doctor, it should have been allowed. Becker v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 99 App. Div. 5, 90 N. Y. S. 1007. Facts stated in a hypothetical question must be those proven by the evidence. Carman v. Montana Cent. R. Co. [Mont.] 79 P. 690. The questions should include only such facts as the evidence will warrant the jury in finding. West v. Knoppenberger, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 305. Question to physician whether if plaintiff received injuries shown by the evidence, they caused the condition found by witness when he examined plaintiff, held proper. Holden v. Missouri R. Co., 108 Mo. App. 665, 84 S. W. 133. Question to medical expert held proper in form when based on facts as the examining party claimed they were shown by the proof; whether such facts were actually proven being for jury. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Harton [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 589, 88 S. W. 857. Question as to cause of ovaritis claimed to have been caused by injury from fall, held proper in form, facts assumed being shown by evidence. O'Neill v. Kansas City, 178 Mo. 91, 77 S. W. 64.

40. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Physician may not give opinion on purely speculative data. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Moore, 110 Ill. App. 304. Question as to value of services not based on manner of performance as shown by evidence is improper. Snyder v. Zeller, 113 Ill. App. 34. Physician having testified that he found an "old" scar, hypothetical question assuming that the scar resulted from recent injury in question was improper and no answer should have been allowed. Fitzpatrick v. New York City R. Co., 92 N. Y. S. 248. It is not proper to include in a hypothetical question to a physician the fact that plaintiff had a case pending at the time he made the declarations to his physician who was examining him. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Goswick [Tex.] 85 S. W. 785. Physician's testimony as to permancy of loss of hearing improperly admitted when there was no foundation for assumption that loss of hearing was due to injury in controversy. Lamm v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 584.

41. A hypothetical question will not be stricken when facts assumed are subsequently proved. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Nicholas [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 195. Hypothetical question only partly supported by evidence may be permitted, in court's discretion, on counsel's statement that wanting evidence will be supplied. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Moore, 110 Ill. App. 304. While it is within the discretion of the trial court to permit a hypothetical question based on assumed facts to be asked, with the understanding that such assumed facts shall be made to appear in evidence later, the better practice is to require proof of facts on which such question is based in the first instance. McDonald v. Rhode Island Co., 26 R. I. 467, 59 A. 391. Not error to exclude question until foundation should be laid in evidence. Id.

42. Hypothetical question assuming fact not in dispute is proper. Hart v. Maloney, 101 App. Div. 37, 91 N. Y. S. 922.

43. Hypothetical question to physician improper because confused and indefinite. McGinness v. Third Ave R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 787.

44. Question whether it was not a fact that a shock such as plaintiff received usually affected women of her age, so far as their nervous organizations were concerned, for the rest of their lives, held proper. Edwards v. Burke, 36 Wash. 107, 78 P. 610.

45. Testimony of physician that a nervous or mental shock might have caused plaintiff's condition at time of trial incompetent. Newton v. New York, etc., R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 825. Physician's statement that momentum and shock was "possible" to bring on nervousness should have been stricken. Lazarus v. New York City R. Co., 92 N. Y. S. 246. When physician is unable to give an opinion as to which of several possible causes was the reasonably certain cause of a condition, his opinion evidence was incompetent. Rayner v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 632.

46. Netcher v. Bernstein, 110 Ill. App. 484.

for the opinion of an expert, already in evidence, is competent to give weight to his opinion and make it intelligibile.[47] A wide range of inquiry is permitted in the cross-examination of experts to test the accuracy [48] and extent [49] of their knowledge, and to show the elements of which their judgments are made up,[50] but such examination must be confined to issues in the case.[51] The court may, in its discretion, limit the number of experts to be examined by each side.[52]

§ 10. Real or demonstrative evidence.[53]—Real evidence is admissible if relevant.[54] Exhibition of wounds or injuries is usually permitted,[55] but exhibitions of the effect of injuries is held improper.[56] Photographs,[57] radiographs,[58] maps or

47. Expert having testified to damage to property by construction of elevated railroad, may testify to diminished salability of property along the road. Logan v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 663.

48. Insanity expert properly cross-examined as to causes of insanity to test his knowledge. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Where a physician testifying as an expert admits that a certain medical work is standard, he may be asked if it does not contain a certain statement, inconsistent with his testimony. Beadle v. Paine [Or.] 80 P. 903. Where a medical expert has testified to his original diagnosis of an injury, he may properly be cross-examined with a view of showing his original diagnosis incompatible with subsequent developments. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Harton [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 589, 88 S. W. 857.

49. The extent of the cross-examination of a witness testifying as one specially familiar with the subject-matter depends on the extent of knowledge or familiarity which the witness professes to possess. Witnesses who testified in effect that they could form a judgment as to the genuineness of a certain person's signature on sight of it, were properly cross-examined by placing the paper containing the signature in an envelope, allowing only the signature to be visible through an aperture, and asking an opinion as to its genuineness. Groff v. Groff, 209 Pa. 603, 59 A. 65.

50. Question to physician, who had testified to testamentary capacity, whether he would have been "willing" to make a contract with testator involving the amount involved in the will, at the time of its execution, held improper. Struth v. Decker [Md.] 59 A. 727. Expert on value in proceedings to condemn right of way over oil lands was properly allowed to testify on cross-examination in regard to matters which would influence him if a contemplative buyer, as that he would consider the number of wells which could be economically placed on the land, and ordinary losses therefrom, and the general relation of outlay to income. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. San Francisco Sav. Union, 146 Cal. 290, 79 P. 961. But his statement that he would consider what "he could pay for it and have sufficient margin for speculation for at least five years" was improper. Id.

51. Physician testifying to extent of injuries, cannot be cross-examined as to professional opinions in other personal injury actions. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Schmitz, 211 Ill. 446, 71 N. E. 1050.

52. Limitation of experts on value of property to three held proper. Swope v. Seattle, 36 Wash. 113, 78 P. 607. See, also, Trial, 4 C. L. 1708.

53. See 3 C. L. 1380.

54. Pieces of rotten wood, identified as parts of ties, admissible on issue of negligence in leaving ties in roadbed when rotten. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Boyce [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 395. Electric insulator or hanger, claimed to be defective, properly admitted in evidence. Warren v. City Elec. R. Co. [Mich.] 104 N. W. 613. Amputated hand preserved in fluid, and having a streak of ink on it, admissible to show where employe had his hand when hurt. Anderson v. Seropian [Cal.] 81 P. 521. In action for damages for pollution of water of stream, samples of sediment taken from the stream were competent evidence. Muncie Pulp Co. v. Martin [Ind.] 72 N. E. 882. Clothes and razor of prisoner and section of wall with imprint of bloody hand held competent in murder case. State v. Miller [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 202.

55. Felsch v. Babb [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1011. Exhibition of injuries held proper. Coney Island Co. v. Mitsch, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 81. If one party's experts make a physical examination of an injury while testifying, and give an opinion thereon, the other party is entitled to have his experts make a similar examination and give an opinion. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 943.

56. Improper to have witness walk across floor and lift various articles to show effect of injuries, though error was not prejudicial in this case. Felsch v. Babb [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1011. Exhibition of injuries by plaintiff by walking across floor at request of jury not error, no objection being made, and injuries so exhibited being practically admitted. Harvey v. Fargo, 99 App. Div. 599, 91 N. Y. S. 84. Held not error to allow plaintiff, in personal injury action, to "walk the best he could" before the jury, where it was not shown that plaintiff feigned. Birmingham R. L. & P. Co. v. Rutlege [Ala.] 39 So. 338.

57. Photograph of accused admissible. Shaffer v. United States, 24 App. D. C. 417. Photographs, properly identified and connected with event they are intended to illustrate, are evidence of a very satisfactory and conclusive nature. City of La Salle v. Evans, 111 Ill. App. 69. Photographs of place of accident, shown to be correct representations, admissible, though taken without notice to other party. Hawkins v. Missouri K. & T. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 52. Photograph of plaintiff two and a half years before he was injured, and one taken after the accident, representing the place where it occurred, admissible, their correctness and accuracy being shown. Houston & T. C. R.

plats[59] and models,[60] are competent evidence, when shown to be correct,[61] and to represent actual conditions[62] at the particular time in issue.[63] Permission to Co. v. Cluck [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 852. Photograph of real estate showing its condition before change of street grade is competent. Village of Grant Park v. Trah, 115 Ill. App. 291.

58. X-ray photographs are competent after proper preliminary proof of correctness and accuracy. Chicago & J. Elec. R. Co. v. Spence, 213 Ill. 220, 72 N. E. 796. X-ray photograph admissible when not shown to be actually misleading, even though it was admitted that such photogrphs are not infallible. Miller v. Minturn [Ark.] 83 S. W. 918. X-ray photograph competent to show position of bullet in body. State v. Matheson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 137. [See discussion and authorities in this case.—Ed.]

NOTE. X-ray photographs: "Photographs are generally recognized as a permissible mode of testimony when appropriate. A photograph must, however, be verified; not necessarily by the one who takes it, but by some one who can testify that it represents his idea of the subject. Greenleaf, Evidence, § 439h; People's Gaslight & Coke Co. v. Amphlett, 93 Ill. App. 194; Bedell v. Burky, 76 Mich. 435, 15 Am. St. Rep. 370; Miller v. Louisville R. Co., 128 Ind. 97, 25 Am. St. Rep. 416. Whether it is sufficiently verified is a preliminary question of fact for the trial judge, and not open to exception. Blair v. Pelham, 118 Mass. 420; McGar v. Borough of Bristol, 71 Conn. 652. But in this, as in other matters which may be left generally to the discretion of the trial judge, his discretion is not unlimited, and he is not at liberty to disregard the rules of law, by which the rights of the parties are governed. De Forge v. N. Y., etc., R. Co., 178 Mass. 59, 86 Am. St. Rep. 464. The discovery of the X-ray is comparatively recent. However, its utility and the reliability of its results are already so well known and established as scientific facts that courts ought to take judicial notice of them. Wittemberg v. Onsgard, 78 Minn. 342, 47 L. R. A. 141. And, although a picture produced by an X-ray cannot be verified as a true representation of the subject in the same way that a picture made by a camera can be, yet it should be admitted if properly taken. Bruce v. Beall, 99 Tenn. 303; Miller v. Dumon, 24 Wash. 648; Mauch v. Hartford, 112 Wis. 40; Jameson v. Weld, 93 Me. 345; City of Geneva v. Burnett, 65 Neb. 464, and note; Carlson v. Benton, 66 Neb. 486; De Forge v. N. Y., etc., R. Co., supra. It has been said that 'unless precluded by some rule or principle of law, all that is logically probative is admissible.' Thayer, Preliminary Treatise on Evidence, p. 265. It is the duty of courts to use every means for discovering the truth reasonably calculated to aid in that result. In the performance of that duty, every new discovery when it shall have passed the experimental stage, must necessarily be treated as a new aid in the administration of justice in the field covered by it. In that view, courts have shown no hesitation, in proper cases, in availing themselves of the art of photography by the X-ray process. See 1 Mich. Law Rev. 329; 56 Albany Law Journal 309." —3 Mich. Law Rev. 409, commenting on Chicago & I. Elec. R. Co. v. Spence, 213 Ill. 220, 72 N. E. 796, in which a skiograph was admitted to show condition of heart.

59. In suit for damages to injuries to land, map made after suit brought admissible to show land, effect of removal of lateral support, and location of railroad causing injury. Ruppert v. West Side Belt R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 613. A map or plat of property admitted without objection and treated by parties as correct, cannot be contradicted by parol proof by the party introducing it. Schneider v. Sulzer, 212 Ill. 87, 72 N. E. 19. Plat showing place of accident is not inadmissible because of memoranda thereon regarding distances and other data, where the subject-matter of such memoranda was not in issue. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Pettit, 111 Ill. App. 172.

60. Admission of model of approach from street to sidewalk proper, where it was shown to be an exact reproduction except as to details which were explained. Lush v. Incorporated Town of Parkersburg [Iowa] 104 N. W. 336. Evidence tending to show that a model was a reproduction of a bridge in substantial features, the model was admissible. Coolidge v. New York, 99 App. Div. 175, 90 N. Y. S. 1078. Whether the model was a correct representation was for the jury, there being a conflict. Id.

61. Plat, stated by witness to be incorrect, is incompetent. City of Peru v. Bartels, 214 Ill. 515, 73 N. E. 755. Testimony of injured person that photograph of place of accident was correct, was sufficient to make photograph admissible. Accousi v. G. A. Stowers Furniture Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 861. Photograph of a building after an explosion competent when shown by a witness to be a correct representation. Huntington L. & F. Co. v. Beaver [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1002. Testimony of expert in X-ray photography that he was regularly engaged in taking such photographs, that he made the photograph in question, and that it was a correct representation, renders it competent. Chicago & I. Elec. R. Co. v. Spence, 213 Ill. 220, 72 N. E. 796. Testimony by another witness that it was not properly taken and was not correct did not make it necessarily incompetent. Id.

62. Photographs which show assumed or theoretical conditions are inadmissible. Photograph of men in assumed postures and things in assumed situations, to illustrate a contention as to how an accident occurred, held inadmissible. Babb v. Oxford Paper Co., 99 Me. 298, 59 A. 290. A photograph of a room other than that in question, used by the witness to locate objects in the room, is admissible as a demonstration made by the witness. Morrow v. Gaffney Mfg. Co., 70 S. C. 242, 49 S. E. 573.

63. Photograph by an amateur, taken after two years, should have been rejected. City of Chicago v. Vesey, 105 Ill App. 191. Photograph, when shown to be correct, competent to show surroundings of place of accident though taken a year after the ac-perform experiments in court is discretionary.[64] Evidence of experiments out of court is admissible when the experiments are shown to have been fairly and honestly made,[65] under conditions similar to those surrounding the occurrence in question.[66] The admission or exclusion of photographs or evidence of experiments is largely discretionary, the test applied by the court being relevancy,[67] and the tendency of such evidence to aid or mislead the jury.[68] To render competent evidence of an expert analysis or examination, it must be shown, first, that the thing analyzed or examined is identical with that which is the subject of inquiry,[69] and second, that the condition of the thing examined has remained unchanged between the time when it became a question and the time of the examination.[70] Comparison of real evidence is usually for the jury, but comparisons may be made by witnesses when inspection by the jury has become impossible.[71]

cident. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Crose, 113 Ill. App. 547. To be competent photographs should simply show conditions existing at the time in question. Babb v. Oxford Paper Co., 99 Me. 298, 59 A. 290. Photographs showing sidewalk just as it was when plaintiff fell there, except that ice thereon did not appear, were admissible. Considine v. Dubuque, 126 Iowa, 283, 102 N. W. 102. Photographs of place may be met by evidence of changes meanwhile. Achey v. Marion, 126 Iowa, 47, 101 N. W. 435. Photographs of scene of railroad accident incompetent when not shown to represent conditions just as they were at the time of the accident. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Crose, 214 Ill. 602, 73 N. E. 865. Photograph of hole in street taken in October admissible in action for injury sustained preceding April, evidence showing photograph to be a correct representation of it as it was in April, except that the hole was then deeper. Miller v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 227. Photograph of scene of wreck taken next morning before conditions had changed materially, admissible to show force of collision. Maynard v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Or.] 78 P. 983.

64. See 3 C. L. 1381, n. 30; Trial, 4 C. L. 1708.

65. See 3 C. L. 1381, n. 32.

66. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Crose, 113 Ill. App. 547. Evidence of experiments inadmissible, conditions not being shown same as at time of accident. Merchants' L. & T. Co. v. Boucher, 115 Ill. App. 101. Experiments with a horse other than the one driven at time of accident to determine time required to turn and cross tracks could not be shown. Louisville R. Co. v. Hoskins' Adm'r [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1087. Experiment consisting in sending car round curve where accident ocurred at same speed, conditions not being shown same, was inadmissible. Zimmer v. Fox River Valley Elec. R. Co., 123 Wis. 643, 101 N. W. 1099. Evidence of an experiment by a witness to show that an unobstructed view of a track could be had from a certain point was properly excluded when not made under same conditions as existed at time of accident. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Crose, 214 Ill. 602, 73 N. E. 865. Where death was caused by being thrown from engine on defective track, evidence of a run by the engine over the same track next morning was inadmissible, there having been changes both in the engine and track. Chicago City R. Co. v. Brecher, 112 Ill. App. 106. Evidence of experiments, performed by an expert, with a ripsaw, to show direction in which timber would be thrown when caught, held admissible, the conditions being shown to be similar to those existing at time of accident to plaintiff. Krueger v. Brenham Furniture Mfg. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1156. Observations from car as to distance at which switch could be seen held to have been made under substantially same conditions as those existing at time of collision. Elgin, A. & S. Traction Co. v. Wilson [Ill.] 75 N. E. 436. Testimony of witnesses who had made observations of distance they could see ahead on a track was admissible when conditions of their observations were less favorable than those surrounding plaintiff at the time. Northrop v. Poughkeepsie City & W. F. Elec. R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 602.

67. If an experiment has any legitimate tendency to prove any matter in issue, it is relevant to that issue. Where issue was as to what testator heard at time of execution of will, evidence of an experiment by witnesses in same relative positions as testator and witnesses when will was executed and attested was relevant. Healey v. Bartlett [N. H.] 59 A. 617.

68. Whether photograph is properly verified, is fairly representative and will be useful, are questions addressed to court's discretion. Stone v. Lewiston, B. & B. St. R. Co., 99 Me. 243, 59 A. 56; Babb v. Oxford Paper Co., 99 Me. 298, 59 A. 290. To render evidence of an experiment legally admissible it must not only be relevant but must have a tendency to aid rather than to confuse jury, and whether it has such tendency is for the court. Healey v. Bartlett [N. H.] 59 A. 617. Experiment to test insulation of wire when wet and dry held too uncertain and misleading to warrant evidence of it. United Elec. L. & P. Co. v. State [Md.] 60 A. 248.

69. State v. McAnarney [Kan.] 79 P. 137.

70. Evidence of chemical analysis of alleged bloody clothes inadmissible where it appeared the clothes had been placed in a sack with other bloody articles and carried for a long distance before they were examined. State v. McAnarney [Kan.] 79 P. 137.

71. Evidence of a comparison by witnesses between spots on pieces of clothing and other pieces used by experts in analysis,

§ 11. Quantity required and probative effect.[72]—The weight of evidence[73] and the credibility of witnesses[74] are exclusively for the jury or trial court,[75] who may consider the interest or bias of the witness,[76] or the inherent improbability of testimony.[77] A preponderance of evidence, by which is meant the greater weight of evidence,[78] and not necessarily the greater number of witnesses,[79] is all that is required in civil cases.[80] Evidence need only satisfy the minds of jurors, not their held competent. State v. Miller [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 202.

72. See 3 C. L. 1381. Sufficiency of evidence as to particular issues is treated in the topic dealing with the particular subject-matter. Facts which evidence, or which, in accurate speech, constitute or form a predicate for a given right, cause of action, defense or duty, are assigned to such titles as treat of the particular matter. Consult also topics such as Appeal and Review, 5 C. L. 121, Directing Verdict and Demurrer to Evidence, 5 C. L. 1004; Discontinuance, Dismissal and Nonsuit, 5 C. L. 1011; New Trial and Arrest of Judgment, 4 C. L. 810.

73. Poppers v. Schoenfeld, 110 Ill. App. 408; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Colly [Ky.] 86 S. W. 536; Avery v. Stewart, 136 N. C. 426; 48 S. E. 775. Comparative weight of evidence for jury. Western Maryland R. Co. v. Shivers [Md.] 61 A. 618. Instruction erroneous as on weight of evidence. Simons v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 129. See Instructions, 4 C. L. 133. Weight and value of a deposition of a lawyer as to the law of another state is for the jury. Hancock v. Western Union Tel. Co., 137 N. C. 497, 49 S. E. 952. Weight of evidence is for jury and trial court, and a verdict approved by the judge will very rarely be set aside on appeal. Buck v. Newberry, 55 W. Va. 681, 47 S. E. 889. Impeachment of a witness by proof of previous contradictory testimony does not wholly destroy his testimony; the weight to be given it is for the jury. East St. Louis Connecting R. Co. v. Altgen, 112 Ill. App. 471. Corroborated expert opinion estimating shortage in weight of bridge materials held properly followed by court, though another witness attempted to give actual weights. Modern Steel Structural Co. v. Van Buren County, 126 Iowa, 606, 102 N. W. 536.

74. Western Maryland R. Co. v. Shivers [Md.] 61 A. 618; Pressed Steel Car Co. v. Herath, 110 Ill. App. 596. Various instructions on credibility of witnesses held erroneous. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Burke, 112 Ill. App. 415; Himrod Coal Co. v. Clingan, 114 Ill. App. 568. Error to ask one witness if another was not mistaken in his testimony. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919. Opinion of witness that certain other witnesses would swear the truth inadmissible. Hardin v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 440. Error to allow witness to characterize testimony of another as untrue. People v. Buckley, 91 App. Div. 586, 87 N. Y. S. 191. Expert cannot pass on relative merits of testimony of other experts. Lancaster v. Lancaster's Ex'r [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1137. Statement of plaintiff in deposition, contrary to testimony, not conclusive against him; it was for jury to say which statement was correct. Bond v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 110 Mo. App. 131, 84 S. W. 124.

75. Where, in suit on note, defendant testifies to facts constituting a good defense, and is corroborated by other facts and circumstances, but there is strong rebutting testimony, it is for trial court to decide to which side scales incline. Gottlieb v. Middleberg, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 525.

76. Credibility for jury, who may consider bias or impartiality as shown by the evidence. Macon R. & L. Co. v. Barnes, 121 Ga. 443, 49 S. E. 282. Testimony of hired detectives should be received with caution. Carey v. State, 70 Ohio St. 121, 70 N. E. 955.

77. Testimony to that which is physically impossible should be rejected even if uncontradicted. Testimony of plaintiff that he did not see a handcar, though he had a full view of track and the car was directly in front of him, rejected. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Vremeister, 112 Ill. App. 346. Verdict set aside because evidence supporting it was improbable. Lehn v. Central Crosstown R. Co., 92 N. Y. S. 301. A judgment based on testimony apparently given to supply a lack indicated by the court on a prior appeal, and which contradicts the parties' previous testimony and conflicts with the physical facts, will be reversed. McCarthy v. Interurban St. R. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 548.

78. Nickey v. Steuder [Ind.] 73 N. E. 117. Where witness who used bill of particulars in testifying could not distinguish items as to which he had personal knowledge from those as to which he knew nothing except on information and belief, his testimony could not support recovery. McCormick v. Gubner, 90 N. Y. S. 1073. Testimony of one expert that method of fastening wire rope in socket was improper cannot sustain finding of negligence when other experts thought it proper. McMullen v. New York, 93 N. Y. S. 772.

79. Heaton v. Hennessy, 112 Ill. App. 653; City of La Salle v. Evans, 111 Ill. App. 69; Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Johnson, 163 Ind. 518, 72 N. E. 571; Marcotte v. Sheridan, 91 N. Y. S. 744. The number of witnesses is to be considered in determining where preponderance lies, but is not conclusive. Chicago City R. Co. v. Enroth, 113 Ill. App. 285. Evidence must be measured by weight and not alone by count. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills v. Spring, 116 Ill. App. 27. Numerical weight of evidence as to value of legal services is not binding on a judge in making an allowance therefor, as he is himself capable of judging as to such services. Cochran's Guardian v. Lee's Adm'r [Ky.] 89 S. W. 145. That defendant's theory is supported by two witnesses and plaintiff's by one does not establish a preponderance in defendant's favor. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. O'Donnell, 113 Ill. App. 259.

80. Marcotte v. Sheridan, 91 N. Y. S. 744. A slight preponderance is sufficient. Devine v. Ryan, 115 Ill. App. 498. Error in civil case to charge jury that plaintiff must make out his case to a moral and reasonable cerconsciences.[81] Prima facie evidence means evidence sufficient to establish a fact unless rebutted,[82] and a prima facie case cannot prevail if rebutted or if the contrary is shown by competent proof.[83] To support an action depending wholly on circumstantial evidence, the circumstances must form a connected chain pointing to a single conclusion, or a number of independent circumstances pointing in the same direction or verging to a common center.[84] In civil as in criminal cases, a theoretical possibility, wholly unsupported by proof or probability, will not outweigh direct testimony which, to the ordinary mind, carries conviction beyond a reasonable doubt.[85] The inference of ultimate from probative facts is for the trier of the facts, though an expect opinion may have been given thereon.[86]

Evidence of a negative character is not to be given such probative value as positive or affirmative evidence;[87] but this rule does not warrant entire disregard of negative testimony by the jury.[88] Casual statements or admissions[89] and declarations of a deceased person,[90] are entitled to little weight; but written admissions are entitled to very considerable weight.[91] Solemn admissions of a party made in the course of a trial have the same effect as if contained in his pleadings.[92] Allegations in a pleading of one party introduced in evidence by his adversary are not conclusive.[93] A deposition has the same weight as though the witness was present testifytainty. Brown Store Co. v. Chattahoochee Lumber Co., 121 Ga. 809, 49 S. E. 839. If evidence proves the essential facts, this is sufficient; the jury has the right to draw reasonable inferences from facts found. Indianapolis, G. & F. R. Co. v. Hubbard [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 535. Preponderance of evidence has reference to the quality of outweighing in convincing power. Instruction that it "was evidence which satisfies and convinces your minds and judgments" condemned. Grotjan v. Rice [Wis.] 102 N. W. 551. Jury should reconcile conflicts in evidence if possible, and if not, should render verdict for side on which evidence reasonably and clearly preponderates. Waller v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del. Super.] 61 A. 874.

81. Birmingham R., L. & P. Co. v. Hinton [Ala.] 37 So. 635.

82, 83. Wathen v. Allison Ditch Dist. No. 2, 213 Ill. 138, 72 N. E. 781.

84. Fields v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 134.

85. Burns v. Ruddock-Orleans Cypress Co. [La.] 38 So. 157.

86. Court may take judicial notice of reasonableness of $50 as attorney fee for note on which $268.26 was due. Warnock v. Itawis [Wash.] 80 P. 297. In action to recover for attorney's services, the court cannot properly ignore its own knowledge as to compensation usually paid for such services. Gates v. McClenahan [Iowa] 103 N. W. 969. See, also, Cochran's Guardian v. Lee's Adm'r [Ky.] 89 S. W. 145, supra, n. 79.

87. Evidence that witnesses did not hear bell of engine ring as it approached crossing not of such value as affirmative evidence that the bell was rung. Northern Cent. R. Co. v. State [Md.] 60 A. 19. Testimony that witnesses heard car bell ring is of more weight than that of others who testified that they did not hear it. Faulk v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del. Super.] 60 A. 973. Testimony that witness did not notice or hear a bell ring is not of equal weight with positive testimony that it rang. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Eganolf, 112 Ill. App. 323. Where one set of witnesses testify to an occurrence and another set swear that they had equal opportunity to know the fact, having had their attention directed thereto, and that the fact did not occur, the testimony of the latter set is not negative testimony. Grabill v. Ren, 110 Ill. App. 587. Where witnesses having equal opportunity with others testifying to the contrary to hear and know whether or not a gong was sounded, testify that it was not, their testimony is deemed affirmative. Chicago Consolidated Traction Co. v. Gervens, 113 Ill. App. 275. Where witnesses swear that they did not see one person strike another, but do not swear that no blow was struck, their testimony is negative. Grabill v. Ren, 110 Ill. App. 587.

88. Northern Cent. R. Co. v. State [Md.] 60 A. 19. Testimony of witnesses that they heard no bell ring is some evidence that no bell was in fact rung. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Pulliam, 111 Ill. App. 305.

89. Grotjan v. Rice [Wis.] 102 N. W. 551. Verbal declarations are to be received with caution, but an oral contract to devise land must be proven in part by such declarations. Cherry v. Whalen, 25 App. D. C. 537.

90. Applied in suit to enforce oral contract to will property. Rosenwald v. Middlebrook [Mo.] 86 S. W. 200.

91. Instruction criticized as giving such evidence too little weight. Castner v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 126 Iowa, 581, 102 N. W. 499. Instruction erroneous because in effect permitting jury to disregard written admissions. Sidway v. Missouri Land & Live Stock Co., 187 Mo. 649, 86 S. W. 150.

92. Testimony of plaintiff when on the stand that conductor took hold of his arm and did not let go until commanded to do so by plaintiff. Shanahan v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 783.

93. Defendant could not recover damages on allegations of answer introduced in evi-

ing in open court.[94] Standard mortuary tables are not binding on a jury; they may make their own estimate of life expectancy.[95]

Uncontradicted testimony of disinterested witnesses cannot be disregarded;[96] but the entire testimony of a witness may be disregarded if he has willfully sworn falsely to a material fact.[97] The testimony of a party who offers himself as a witness in his own behalf is to be construed most strongly against him, when it is self-contradictory, vague or equivocal.[98] But the mere fact of interest is not sufficient to discredit the witness.[99] Expert testimony is not conclusive.[100]

Evidence offered and admitted for a limited purpose, and facts found upon such evidence, cannot be used for another and totally different purpose.[101] Incompetent evidence, admitted without objection, is in the case for all purposes and must be given the same effect as if legally admissible;[102] but if admitted over a proper objection, it cannot on appeal be considered as evidence of the facts it tends to prove.[103]

dence by plaintiff. Masterson v. F. W. Heitmann & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 227.

94. Olcese v. Mobile Fruit & Trading Co., 211 Ill. 539, 71 N. E. 1084.

95. Based on age, health, habits, physical condition, and appearance of person. City of South Omaha v. Sutliffe Neb.] 101 N. W. 997. Mortality tables prepared for use in insurance matters are of little real aid in determining life expectancy in cases of wrongful death, especially in the case of colored persons; commissioner erred in following tables absolutely. The Saginaw, 139 F. 906.

96. Kapiloff v. Feist, 91 N. Y. S. 27; Spring v. Millington, 44 Misc. 624, 90 N. Y. S. 152.

97. See Witnesses, 4 C. L. 1943. But false testimony must relate to a material fact. Bickerman v. Tarter, 115 Ill. App. 278. And must have been willfully false. Himrod Coal Co. v. Clingan, 114 Ill. App. 568.

98. Southern R. Co. v. Hobbs, 121 Ga. 428, 49 S. E. 294; Steele v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 438. Where a plaintiff testifies in his own behalf and there are material conflicts and contradictions in his testimony, he is not entitled to recover unless that portion of his testimony which is least favorable to his contention authorizes a recovery. Horn v. Peacock [Ga.] 49 S. E. 722. Testimony of motorman corroborated by three disinterested witnesses held to outweigh that of plaintiff which varied on direct and cross-examination and was only slightly corroborated by one witness. Orchard Stables v. Interurban St. R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 330.

99. A court is not justified in refusing to believe a witness who gives the only testimony on a certain point merely because he was a party and interested. Williams v. Van Norden Trust Co., 93 N. Y. S. 821. The uncorroborated evidence of plaintiff alone may prevent a judgment in his favor from being disturbed as against the weight of the evidence. Doherty v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 19.

100. Morrow v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n, 125 Iowa, 633, 101 N. W. 468. Jury must consider expert testimony with other evidence, but is not bound by it. Restetsky v. Delmar Ave. & C. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 665; Markey v. Louisiana, etc., R. Co., 185 Mo. 348, 84 S. W. 61; St. Louis v. Kansas City, 110 Mo. App. 653, 85 S. W. 630. Jury sole judges of credibility of experts and may reject their testimony. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890. Jury not bound to find in accordance with evidence of customary rate of payment as shown by witnesses. Walker Mfg. Co. v. Knox [C. C. A.] 136 F. 334. Jury not bound by opinion evidence on damage to land in condemnation proceedings. Heath v. Sheets [Ind.] 74 N. E. 505. If a jury takes the range of expert testimony alone on a question of damages, their verdict must be within the limits of the highest and lowest expert estimate. Denison v. Shawmut Min. Co., 135 F. 864. But the jury may disregard such testimony entirely and award no damages or only nominal damages. Id.

101. Fair Haven & W. R. Co. v. New Haven, 77 Conn. 667, 60 A. 651. Testimony on a former proceeding being introduced to contradict a witness, containing in fact contradictions, the court may disregard statements therein relevant to issues on the subsequent trial as having no probative force. Bailey v. Fransioli, 101 App. Div. 140, 91 N. Y. S. 852.

102. Eastlick v. Southern R. Co., 116 Ga. 48, 42 S. E. 499; Harnish v. Miles, 111 Ill. App. 105; Webb v. Sweeney, 32 Ind. App. 54, 69 N. E. 200; Healy v. Patterson, 123 Iowa, 73, 98 N. W. 576; M'Vey v. Barker, 92 Mo. App. 498; Struth v. Decker [Md.] 59 A. 727; Rapson v. Leighton [Mass.] 73 N. E. 540; Hatch v. Pullman Sleeping-Car Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 246; Western Union Tel. Co. v. L. Hirsch [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 394. Incompetent evidence, admitted without objection, cannot be disregarded on motion for nonsuit; but its sufficiency is for the jury. Blowers v. Southern R. Co., 70 S. C. 377, 50 S. E. 19. Great importance may be attached to improper evidence admitted without objection, where proof of the fact sought to be established is unsatisfactory. Williams v. Hawley, 144 Cal. 97, 77 P. 762.

103. Mobb v. Stewart [Cal.] 81 P. 1073. Where evidence is admitted, subject to objection, the relevancy of which is to be shown by subsequent evidence, and such relevancy is not made to appear, evidence should be ruled out or treated as of no probative value. Lanier v. Hebard [Ga.] 51 S. E. 632.

EXAMINATION BEFORE TRIAL, see latest topical index.

EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

Scope.—This article treats generally of the rules governing the examination of witnesses, except those peculiarly applicable to the examination of experts, which are treated in the preceding article.[1] Matters pertaining to the impeachment of witnesses are elsewhere treated,[2] as are general questions of trial procedure, such as the exclusion of witnesses from the court room,[3] and performing experiments in the presence of the jury.[4] The proper manner of raising objections is also given separate treatment.[5]

§ 1. General rules of examination.[6]—The examination of witnesses is a matter resting largely in the discretion of the trial court. It is proper for the judge to question a witness,[7] provided such examination is fair and impartial, no opinion as to the facts or credibility of witnesses being disclosed, and no prejudice being aroused.[8] An improper question asked by the court is more effective to impress and mislead a jury than one asked by counsel.[9] Questions[10] and answers[11] should be clear and definite. Questions should not assume facts not in evidence[12] and should be so framed as to call for facts, not opinions.[13] Questions are properly refused that hypothesize the existence of supposed facts into which the policy of the law will not permit an inquiry.[14] The youth or inexperience of a witness justifies considerable latitude in the form of questions.[15] A witness may properly be allowed to give his testimony in narrative form without questions by counsel, when counsel

1. See Evidence, 5 C. L. 1301.
2. See Witnesses, 4 C. L. 1943.
3, 4. See Trial, 4 C. L. 1708.
5. See Saving Questions for Review, 4 C. L. 1368.
6. See 3 C. L. 1383.
7. State v. Knowles, 185 Mo. 141, 83 S. W. 1083.
8. Arkansas Cent. R. Co. v. Craig [Ark.] 88 S. W. 878; Grant v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 946; Johnson v. Leffler Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 488; Howard v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 773. In equity case, severe cross-examination of plaintiff was held not improper, where it did not appear that plaintiff was induced to testify to anything which he did not intend. Stelpflug v. Wolfe [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1130.
9. In negligence case, question by court as to what defendants could have done was prejudicial error. Consolidated Coal Co. v. Shepherd, 112 Ill. App. 458.
10. Question held too general. State v. Minck [Minn.] 102 N. W. 207. Question whether it was not conductor's duty to know "exact spot" where cars had been left in switching before signaling engineer, held misleading. Virginia & S. W. R. Co. v. Bailey, 103 Va. 205, 49 S. E. 33. A question not being sufficiently definite and certain to indicate the materiality or relevancy of the desired testimony, the court is justified in sustaining an objection thereto. Spinks v. Clark [Cal.] 82 P. 45.
11. Answer of witness to question as to estimate of expenses, "I expect I have spent something near $30," held too uncertain and indefinite. Texas Portland Cement & Lime Co. v. Ross [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 94.
12. White v. Boston, 186 Mass. 65, 71 N. E. 75. Question held improper because assuming a material fact not in evidence. Brannan v. Henry [Ala.] 39 So. 92. Question as to amount expended on lease in constructing three wells properly excluded where evidence showed only two wells had been constructed. Ohio Oil Co. v. Detamore [Ind.] 73 N. E. 906. Assumption of an uncontroverted fact is not error. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Allen, 212 Ill. 134, 72 N. E. 200; Burnside v. Everett, 186 Mass. 4, 71 N. E. 82. A question on cross-examination of a witness for the state which assumes that a fact has been testified to, when such is not the truth, is improper. State v. Boice [La.] 38 So. 584.
13. Question whether there was any room in a car for other men improper; question should have been whether there was any vacant or unoccupied space in the car. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. O'Donnell, 114 Ill. App. 345. As to what are conclusions as distinguished from statements of fact, see Evidence, ante, p. 1301.
14. As facts regarding action of grand jury in finding an indictment. Taylor v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 380.
15. State v. Sheets [Iowa] 102 N. W. 415.

so requests, if he is not permitted to state anything which is inadmissible.[16] A party should not be allowed to experiment with witnesses by offering incompetent evidence, and then be permitted to withdraw the testimony at the close of the trial, on finding it prejudicial or unavailing.[17] It is unprofessional and improper for counsel to seek to get collateral matters before the jury by suggestive questions to witnesses.[18] It is also improper for counsel, when merely surprised by a witness's testimony, to remark that he is an unwilling witness, and proceed to so conduct the examination as to show that he is unwilling.[19] One party cannot limit his adversary's method of making proof by offering to admit facts, during the examination of a witness.[20] The calling of interpreters,[21] permitting witnesses to illustrate testimony,[22] and the exclusion of questions calling for testimony that has already been given,[23] are matters within the court's discretion. When the court has limited the number of expert witnesses, a party who has examined all that he is entitled to cannot ask an expert opinion from one called as an ordinary witness.[24]

Leading questions.[25]—In general, leading questions, that is, those which suggest a desired answer,[26] are improper on the direct examination,[27] but such questions are usually permitted on cross-examination [28] or where a witness proves to be hostile.[29] Whether a question is leading depends on the circumstances attending the 16. The practice is to be commended rather than condemned. Horton v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 287.

17. Ashby v. Elsberry & N. H. Gravel Road Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 957.

18. Pioneer Reserve Ass'n v. Jones, 111 Ill. App. 156. Voluntary statements by a party of incompetent matters and repeated attempts of counsel to get such matters before the jury, held ground for reversal. Robison v. Bailey, 113 Ill. App. 123.

19. O'Donnell v. People of Illinois, 110 Ill. App. 250.

20. Where physician was testifying to character of injuries and that death resulted, an offer to admit that death was caused by injuries received in collision did not render further examination of the witness improper. Terre Haute Elec. Co. v. Klely [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 658.

21. Kozlowskl v. Chicago, 113 Ill. App. 513.

22. Permitting witnesses to illustrate testimony relating to a well with a paper cylinder, held not error. Comer v. Thornton [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 19. Physician properly allowed to use skeleton in explaining nature of injury to plaintiff's ankle. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Walker [Ill.] 75 N. E. 520.

23. Question calling for testimony that had already been given properly excluded. Illinois Steel Co. v. Jeka, 123 Wis. 419, 101 N. W. 399. Court may properly refuse to allow repitition of testimony by a witness. Braham v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919; Spinks v. Clark [Cal.] 82 P. 45; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 89 S. W. 29.

24. White v. Boston, 186 Mass. 65, 71 N. E. 75.

25. See 3 C. L. 1385.

26. Held leading: Fulgham v. Carter [Ala.] 37 So. 932. Question as to effect of road on land held improper as suggestive and explanatory. Pichon v. Martin [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 1009. Whether substance of conversation with plaintiff was that she caused accident by her own negligence. Busch v. Robinson [Or.] 81 P. 237. Question held leading and anticipatory of a defense. Hayward v. Scott, 114 Ill. App. 531.

Held not leading: People v. Hodge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 407, 104 N. W. 599. Question whether witness had at any time made a certain statement not leading. Emanuel v. Maryland Casualty Co., 94 N. Y. S. 36. Held not error to allow counsel to read description of land from deed and then ask witness if he knew the land, and what name it was known by. Senterfeit v. Shealy [S. C.] 51 S. E. 142. Question whether at time of sale of horse there was any agreemnt as to taking possession on default in payments, and what the agreement was, held not leading. Davis v. Millings [Ala.] 37 So. 737. Witness testifying as to contract, he may be asked as to whether or not the contract contains a certain term, the question being put with a view to bringing out the whole contract. Id. Question: "State, if you know, whether or not there was an inventory * * * and, if you say there was no invoice or inventory * * * whether you knew this fact at the time. Did you or did you not exact an inventory at that time * * * and if not, why not?" held not leading. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Masterson [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 49. Question to officer who had testified to a confession whether or not defendant told him where he would find the meat, held not leading. Gibson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1119.

27. Engelking v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 187 Mo. 158, 86 S. W. 89.

28. Bell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 558, 87 S. W. 1160. A more liberal rule prevails in cross-examination than in direct. Hayward v. Scott, 114 Ill. App. 531.

29. It is proper to permit leading questions to be put to a witness by the party calling him when it is apparent that the witness was called under a misapprehension as to what his testimony would be, and he proves to be hostile. Zilver v. Robert Graves Co., 94 N. Y. S. 714.

examination of the witness, and the fact that it is leading does not necessarily make it objectionable,[30] and the allowance of such questions is very largely discretionary,[31] especially in criminal cases [32] or where the witness is examined by written interrogatories.[33] Lack of knowledge of the English language is no ground for permitting leading questions to be asked, if the witness understands sufficiently to make intelligent answers.[34] Testimony adduced by leading questions will be considered if not objected to,[35] but an objection is not waived by permitting the witness to reiterate the suggested matter.[36] Leading questions are reversible error if the evidence, without the replies to such questions, is insufficient to support the verdict.[37]

Refreshing memory.[38]—A witness may refresh his memory from a memorandum made by him,[39] or under his direction,[40] at or near the time of the transaction in issue,[41] and while the facts of which it speaks were fresh in his mind; or from a memorandum or record made by another if read by or to him when the matter was fresh in his memory, so that he could depose that the writing correctly represented his recollection at the time.[42] By statute in Oregon, a memorandum must have been made by the witness himself, or under his direction.[43] Whether the memorandum was made by the witness or another, it must appear that he had personal knowledge of the facts; [44] it must also appear that the witness cannot testify with-

30. Shaffer v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 417.

31. Colley v. Williams [Ga.] 50 S. E. 917; Phinazee v. Bunn [Ga.] 51 S. E. 300; Holmes v. Clisby, 121 Ga. 241, 48 S. E. 934; Condon v. Schoenfield, 114 Ill. App. 468. A case will not be reversed because leading questions were allowed, no abuse of discretion appearing. Hollingsworth v. Ft. Dodge, 125 Iowa, 627, 101 N. W. 455.

32. Woodruff v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1114; State v. Newman, 93 Minn. 393, 101 N. W. 499.

33. Holmes v. Clisby, 121 Ga. 241, 48 S. E. 934.

34. Craddick v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 637, 88 S. W. 347.

35. Smith v. Brooks, 24 App. D. C. 75.

36. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 37.

37. Questions to plaintiff in action for damages for mental anguish caused by conduct of conductor held leading. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 37.

38. See 3 C. L. 1386.

39. Memorandum in witness' own handwriting properly used to refresh his memory. Heenan v. Forest City Paint & Varnish Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 806. Error to refuse to allow street car conductor to refresh his memory by use of written report at time of accident containing names and addresses of passengers who saw accident. Clark v. Union Traction Co. [Pa.] 60 A. 302.

40. Deputy sheriff may refresh his memory by use of copy of his own return on order of delivery of goods, the copy being written under his direction and supervision. Flohr v. Territory, 14 Okl. 477, 78 P. 565. In fire insurance case, treasurer of company under whose supervision an inventory of stock had been made a year before could use a verified copy of the inventory to refresh his memory in testifying regarding the stock and net profits. Wells Whip Co. v. Tanners' Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 209 Pa. 488, 58 A. 894.

41. Witness having testified that he made memoranda of log marks as he found them on logs, he was properly allowed to testify from such entries. St. Paul Boom Co. v. Kemp [Wis.] 103 N. W. 259. Memoranda made by foreman of lumber yard the day after a fire were admissible to refresh his memory on amount and value of lumber destroyed. Greenwich Ins. Co. v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1025.

42. Rule at common law. Manchester Assur. Co. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Or.] 79 P. 60. Error to allow witness to refresh memory by use of memorandum which he had neither made nor seen made, and which he had not seen when the transaction was fresh in his memory and known at the time to be correct. Emanuel v. Maryland Casualty Co., 94 N. Y. S. 36.

43. B. & C. Comp. § 848. Manchester Assur. Co. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Or.] 79 P. 60.

44. Witness could not refresh memory by book in which she merely copied entries from other slips, she having no other personal knowledge of facts. Kirschner v. Hirschberg, 90 N. Y. S. 351. Witness cannot read copied entries relating to transactions of which he has no personal knowledge. Rothenberg v. Herman, 90 N. Y. S. 431. Error to permit witness to read a report when no foundation was laid to show his recollection of the facts or correctness of report or who wrote it, it only appearing that it was taken at the time. Wittmann v. Wittmann, 110 Ill. App. 201. Memorandum made from register sheets and time slips made by others, and regarding which witness had no personal knowledge, improperly used by witness in testifying. Doyle v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 113 Ill. App. 532. Not proper to allow witness to refresh memory from memoranda taken from book kept by another. Haish v. Dreyfus, 111 Ill. App. 44. Witness may refresh his memory from records made by him or known to be correct, but cannot merely recite the contents of such records if he has

out the use of such record or memorandum.[45] Some courts hold that a witness cannot testify with the aid of a memorandum, unless, after refreshing his memory therefrom, he can then testify from present remembrance,[46] or is willing to swear positively to the facts from the paper.[47] Others hold that where the witness swears positively that the memoranda or entries were made at the time according to the true facts, he may testify therefrom though such facts are not in his present remembrance;[48] and that in such case the memoranda are also admissible as a part of his testimony.[49] The memorandum used must be the original unless the original is lost or its absence explained.[50] A memorandum made for the purposes of the trial is not a sufficient basis for testimony.[51] It is not essential that a paper used by a witness should itself be competent evidence,[52] or that it should be produced in court.[53] It has been held proper to allow a witness to refresh his memory from books of account,[54] from testimony given on a former trial, correctly preserved,[55] from a memorandum made by an attorney and read to the no personal knowledge of the facts. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Leggett [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1066. A memorandum cannot be wholly substituted for the recollection of the witness; the witness must have some present knowledge or recollection independent of the memorandum, and cannot testify wholly therefrom. Southern R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 272.

45. If witness has present knowledge or recollection of facts, the memorandum is only secondary evidence. Manchester Assur. Co. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Or.] 79 P. 60. Use of report of accident improper. Morris v. New York City R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 16.

46. See Manning v. School Dist. No. 6 of Ft. Atkinson [Wis.] 102 N. W. 356. A printed copy of testimony on a previous trial could not be used, when witness could not testify from his own recollection after refreshing his memory. Ragsdale v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 540. No error in permitting witness to refresh recollection of figures by use of memoranda, his testimony being based on refreshed recollection and not on memoranda. Ascheim v. Levinsohn, 91 N. Y. S. 157. Witness properly allowed to refresh memory from testimony given on former trial where after doing so he could testify from recollection. State v. Aspara, 113 La. 940, 37 So. 883. A witness may use memoranda not made by himself, if after referring thereto, he can testify to the facts from memory. Memoranda of weights of cattle sold held proper to refresh memory of witness. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Birdwell [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1067.

47. Under Civ. Code, 1895, § 5284, witness may use a mortgage not prepared by himself. Shrouder v. State, 121 Ga. 615, 49 S. E. 702.

48. This is Wisconsin rule. Manning v. School Dist. No. 6 of Ft. Atkinson [Wis.] 102 N. W. 356.

49. Manning v. School Dist. No. 6 of Ft. Atkinson [Wis.] 102 N. W. 356. No error in introducing in evidence memoranda made from books, used by witness in testifying, where books were also in evidence. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Bryson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1016. Ledger used by witness in testifying was admissible as part of his cross-examination. Logan v. Freerks [N. D.] 103 N. W. 426.

50. Memoranda, made from original entries in shop book, afterwards signed by witness, could not be used. Manchester Assur. Co. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [Or.] 79 P. 60. Where it did not appear whether witness was refreshing his memory from original entries or copies of memoranda, and he had both before him, it was not error to refuse to strike his testimony. Southern R. Co. v. State [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 174. An original memorandum must be shown to have been lost or destroyed before a copy may be used by a witness to refresh his memory. Southern R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 272.

51. Downs v. Downs [Iowa] 102 N. W. 491.

52. A witness may refresh his memory from memoranda of dying declarations, though the paper itself is inadmissible as evidence. State v. Teachey, 138 N. C. 587, 50 S. E. 232. See, also, Allwright v. Skillings [Mass.] 74 N. E. 944.

53. The fact that a witness has referred to a memorandum, made by him, having no present recollection of an event, and that the memorandum is not produced in court, does not render his testimony incompetent. Such memorandum may be referred to in or out of court, and need not be produced unless the court so orders. Loose v. State, 120 Wis. 115, 97 N. W. 526.

54. Express agent properly allowed to refresh his memory from express books to find what he did with a particular package. Cantwell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 19. Secretary of insolvent company properly allowed to refresh his memory by referring to policy register, applications, cash book and transfer book. French v. Millville Mfg. Co., 70 N. J. Law, 699, 59 A. 214. A witness may refresh his memory from books of account not put in evidence, and whether or not the books are competent as evidence. In this case many of the entries were in witness' own handwriting. Allwright v. Skillings [Mass.] 74 N. E. 944.

55. If a witness be reluctant or his memory be clouded, he may properly be examined by referring to his testimony on a former trial. Ashby v. Elsberry & N. H. Gravel Road Co. [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 957. It is proper, if a witness is not hostile, to call his attention to testimony given on a former trial and permit him to refresh his memory from the minutes of such testimony. Hart v. Maloney, 101 App. Div. 37, 91 N. Y. S. 922. Witness adverse party,[56] from a newspaper report, recognized as an authority,[57] and from a copy of an indictment prepared and furnished under direction of the court.[58]

Responsiveness.[59]—If an answer is not responsive to the question,[60] it should, on motion, be stricken.[61]

§ 2. Cross-examination.[62]—The range of the cross-examination is largely discretionary with the trial court.[63] Repetition is properly prevented.[64] Examination in the nature of argument with the witness is improper.[65] Permission to re-cross-examine a witness is discretionary.[66] A party who has not availed himself of an opportunity to cross-examine a witness cannot complain on appeal.[67]

Greater latitude is allowed in the cross-examination of a party than in that of a mere witness.[68] Where a party is called by his adversary for cross-examination under the statute, whether the examination may be continued by his own counsel may refresh his memory from notes taken by counsel or other persons at a former trial, or from his own testimony at such trial, or a copy thereof. State v. Dean [S. C.] 51 S. E. 524.

56. Memorandum from which attorney for plaintiff testified, not open to objection that it was made without defendant's knowledge or consent, where attorney testified that he read it to defendant at the time, and that defendant assented to it. Crawford v. Abbey [Tex. Civ. App.] 79 S. W. 346.

57. Witness properly allowed to refresh memory on price of milk at given time with newspaper shown to be recognized by milkman as authority on price of milk. Blanding v. Cohen, 101 App. Div. 442, 92 N. Y. S. 93.

58. Flohr v. Territory, 14 Okl. 477, 78 P. 565.

59. See 3 C. L. 1387.

60. Where question as to gangways between piles of baled cotton was whether they were straight or "how were they," the object being to ascertain whether they were left in such condition that a fire could be readily discovered, an answer that they were usually straight but sometimes the cotton might fall off and block them a little was responsive. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Coutourie [C. C. A.] 135 F. 465.

61. Beadle v. Paine [Or.] 80 P. 903.

62. See 3 C. L. 1387.

63. Quigley v. Thompson, 211 Pa. 107, 60 A. 506; Smith v. State [Ind.] 74 N. E. 983; Henderson v. Henderson [Ind.] 75 N. E. 269; Carey v. State, 70 Ohio St. 121, 70 N. E. 955. No error to refuse to allow further cross-examination, no sufficient reason for such examination appearing. Brown v. Harris [Mich.] 102 N. W. 960. Discretion of court not abused by allowing and refusing to allow certain questions on cross-examination. Worrell v. Kinnear Mfg. Co., 103 Va. 719, 49 S. E. 988. Question as to value of land after construction of road, after witness had been cross-examined as to value in general, held properly excluded. Heath v. Sheetz [Ind.] 74 N. E. 505. Where counsel had fully cross-examined physician as to an examination by him of plaintiff, suing for damages for injuries, refusal to permit cross-examination as to his usual method of examination was proper. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Banfill, 206 Ill. 553, 69 N. E. 499. Questions carrying intimation that witness had pressed inquiries on deceased, when he was in a feeble condition, concerning the making of his will, and that her affection for deceased was merely mercenary, held improper cross-examination. Stutsman v. Sharpless, 125 Iowa, 335, 101 N. W. 105. Where both a notice of an appropriation of water rights, and the witness' testimony were before the court, it was proper to refuse to allow a cross-examination to show discrepancies between the two. Norman v. Corbley [Mont.] 79 P. 1059.

64. The court may properly limit cross-examination when the ground has already been covered more than once. San Miguel Consol. Gold Min. Co. v. Bonner [Colo.] 79 P. 1025. The substance of questions having been included in former questions to which no objection was made, it was discretionary with court to allow them or not. Beadle v. Paine [Or.] 80 P. 903.

65. Especially where facts which were subject-matter of examination had been admitted. Brown v. Harris [Mich.] 102 N. W. 960.

66. Presidio County v. Clarke [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 475.

67. Where party did not improve opportunity to cross-examine a party, and did not seek to reopen case for the purpose, he cannot complain on appeal. Colonial Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Ellinger, 112 Ill. App. 302. Where a party has had one opportunity to contradict a witness, refusal to allow such contradiction at a later time is discretionary. Brinkley Car Works & Mfg. Co. v. Cooper [Ark.] 87 S. W. 645.

68. Cross-examination of party regarding former similar transactions, tending to show his custom, held proper. Sullivan v. Mauston Mill. Co., 123 Wis. 360, 101 N. W. 679. Where witness is a party, a wider range of cross-examination is permitted. Winn v. Itzel [Wis.] 103 N. W. 220. Where extent and character of plaintiff's injuries are in dispute wide latitude allowed in cross-examination. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Miller, 212 Ill. 49, 72 N. E. 25. In assault and battery brought on by dispute over money claims, cross-examination of plaintiff as to whether defendant had not paid his rent after the time in question was competent, tending to show plaintiff's claim for rent was not genuine. Lowe v. Ring, 123 Wis. 107, 101 N. W. 381. In action against railroad for killing stock, examination of plaintiff as to whether he had not been an agent of defendant and had been discharged, and rests in the discretion of the court.[69] Where an adverse party is examined as to a transaction or conversation as to which he could not have testified in his own behalf, he is entitled to explain the entire conversation or transaction.[70]

When the defendant in a criminal case takes the stand, he may be cross-examined the same as any other witness.[71] Much latitude is also allowed in the case of prosecuting witnesses.[72]

Limitation to scope of direct examination.[73]—The cross-examination should be confined to matters connected with or related to matters brought out on the direct examination.[74] But where the direct examination opens up a general subject, the cross-examination may cover any phase of the general subject;[75] and an incident of as to acts which caused the discharge, was proper to show bias. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Wilson [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 274.

69. Miller v. Carnes [Minn.] 103 N. W. 877.

70. Personal transaction with a decedent. In re Cozine, 93 N. Y. S. 557.

71. See Witness (Privileges of), 4 C. L. 1943. Under Kirby's Dig. § 3088, a defendant who takes the stand may be cross-examined the same as any other witness. Corothers v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 585. Defendant may be cross-examined as to an attempt to get prosecutrix out of the country so she would not testify against him. Id. Proper to subject defendant in criminal case to rigid and searching cross-examination. State v. Sheronk [Conn.] 61 A. 897. Defendant may be cross-examined as to conviction of assault and battery. Examination as to particulars of assault held harmless error. State v. Mount [N. J. Law] 61 A. 259. Extent of cross-examination of a defendant is discretionary. Corothers v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 585.

72. Cross-examination of prosecutrix for rape, who testified she was unconscious part of the time, held improperly restricted. Posey v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 1019.

73. See 3 C. L. 1388.

74. State v. Gray [Or.] 79 P. 53; Bill v. Fuller, 146 Cal. 50, 79 P. 592; Cheney v. Field, 114 Ill. App. 597; Meyer v. Purcell, 214 Ill. 62, 73 N. E. 392; State v. Usher, 126 Iowa, 281, 102 N. W. 101; Quigley v. Thompson, 211 Pa. 107, 60 A. 506; Hathaway v. Goslant [Vt.] 59 A. 835; Johnston v. Charles Abresch Co., 123 Wis. 130, 101 N. W. 395; Nagle v. Hake, 123 Wis. 256, 101 N. W. 409. Cross-examination on matters not covered in direct examination is largely discretionary. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890. Matters of defense, not touched on in direct examination, cannot be brought out on cross-examination. Story v. Nidiffer, 146 Cal. 549, 80 P. 692. Cross-examination of defendant's wife on matters not touched in her direct examination, and incriminative of defendant, held improper. Webb v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 394. Witness who had testified that lots were substantially at grade could not testify on cross-examination whether accident would have happened if lots had been brought to grade established by city. Monarch Mfg. Co. v. Omaha, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 493. Where direct examination had not referrd to mail crane, question on cross-examination whether there was anything unusual about it was properly excluded. Western R. of Ala. v. Cleghorn [Ala.] 39 So. 133. Where physician testified on direct examination only on removal of kidney by him, he could not be cross-examined as to his opinon of the cause of the degeneration of the kidney. Maurer v. Gould [N. J. Law] 59 A. 28. Witness cannot be asked concerning conversation not referred to in direct. State v. Brady [N. J. Law] 59 A. 6. A disinterested witness who has testified to defective mine timbering cannot be asked if he suggested to foreman that place was dangerous. Mountain Copper Co. v. Van Buren [C. C. A.] 133 F. 1. There being no previous testimony as to contribution to a fund to abate a pool as a nuisance, cross-examination thereon was improper. Godwin v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 120 Ga. 747, 48 S. E. 139. When witness had said he did not remember whether he had paid a certain charge on a telegram, a question whether he had paid charges on any other telegram was properly excluded. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Merrill [Ala.] 39 So. 121. Under the "Federal rule" cross-examination of an adversary who takes the stand in his own behalf must be confined to matters brought out on the direct examination; under the "orthodox rule" much more latitude is permitted. Ayers v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 608. (See discussion and authorities in this case.)

75. Osburn v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 601; Henderson v. Henderson [Ind.] 75 N. E. 269. Where there was evidence as to insanity in defendant's family, witness was properly cross-examined as to whether defendant was or had been crazy. Bell v. State, 140 Ala. 57, 37 So. 281. Where witness testified that his relations with his step mother were friendly, cross-examination as to his conduct toward her was proper. Taylor v. Taylor's Estate [Mich.] 101 N. W. 832. After testifying to sinking of shaft in mine, and direction of vein so discovered, witness could be cross-examined fully in regard thereto to show the true direction of the vein. Hickey v. Anaconda Copper Min. Co. [Mont.] 81 P. 806. Where banker testified that defendant and deceased both drew checks on a fund in his bank according to an agreement with him, he was properly cross-examined as to transactions between him and defendant and deceased relative to such fund. State v. Coleman, 17 S. D. 594, 98 N. W. 175. Doctor testifying that plaintiff had had no trouble but tuberculosis before her injury, could be asked, on cross-examination, his opinion as to the permanency of her injuries. Hofacre v. Monticello [Iowa] 103 N. W. 488. Where physician testified that a physician in the town a transaction proved, and circumstances connected with it which qualify or destroy the effect of the testimony in chief, may be brought out on cross-examination.[76] That facts brought out on cross-examination tend to establish a defense is not a valid objection to the cross-examination when the facts so brought out are merely explanatory of matters testified to on the direct examination.[77] An explanation of previous statements is properly drawn out on the cross-examination.[78] A portion of a conversation [79] or of an account book [80] having been introduced on the direct, it is proper to show other relevant portions on the cross-examination. A party who desires on cross-examination to go outside the scope of the direct examination must make the witness his own.[81]

Limitation to issues.[82]—Cross-examination, not directed to the credibility of testimony, should be confined to issues in the case.[83]

Examination going to credibility of witness.[84]—It is always proper on cross-examination to interrogate a witness, within reasonable bounds, as to any matter of fact calculated to affect his credibility or the weight of his testimony,[85] and the

had an X-ray machine, it was proper cross-examination to ask him if it was the only one and if it was customary for physicians in the locality to have them. Beadle v. Paine [Or.] 80 P. 903. Where defendant charged with burglary in a house of ill-fame himself testified to his relations with inmates, his visits, and his approaching marriage, cross-examination on these subjects was proper. People v. Davis [Cal. App.] 81 P. 716. In action for support, where plaintiff testified to marriage with defendant, she could be asked on cross-examination if defendant had ever contributed to her support since the marriage. McPhelemy v. McPhelemy [Conn.] 61 A. 477. Witness having shown by statements in direct examination that he had dealt with one as another's agency, he could be cross-examined on that subject. Brownlee v. Reiner [Cal.] 82 P. 324.

76. Where plaintiff, suing for injury caused by automobile collision, called chauffeur to identify machine and testify to his employment by defendant, the fact that he was at the time running the machine for his own personal use, contrary to his employer's orders, could be shown on cross-examination. Quigley v. Thompson, 211 Pa. 107, 60 A. 506. Certain transaction being testified to on direct examination, what was said and done at the time could be shown on cross-examination. Harnish v. Miles, 111 Ill. App. 105. Where witness testifies to facts tending to show that mistake in telegram was due to carelessness of sender in dictating it, the adverse party may show on cross-examination that negligence was that of the sending operator. Wolf Co. v. Western Union Tel. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 129.

77. Garlich v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 131 F. 837. The fact that cross-examination of plaintiff regarding operation and use of saw by which he was injured might tend to show contributory negligence did not make it improper, being confined to matters touched on in direct examination. Beltz v. American Mill Co., 37 Wash. 399, 79 P. 981.

78. Proper to draw out on cross-examination explanation of what witness meant by statement made by him. Nichols v. New Britain, 77 Conn. 695, 60 A. 655.

79. Where direct testimony is as to certain conversations, cross-examination may bring out all of such conversations. In re Hayden's Estate [Cal. App.] 81 P. 668. Part of a conversation being elicited on direct, it is error to refuse to allow all relevant portions thereof to be shown on cross-examination. Adams v. Long, 114 Ill. App. 277. Where state shows a conversation, defendant may on cross-examination show all that was said in reference to the matters brought out by the state, but nothing more. Brahan v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 919.

80. A portion of defendant's account book having been offered in evidence on the direct examination, he was properly cross-examined as to other accounts therein. Devencenzi v. Cassinelli [Nev.] 81 P. 41.

81. Hampton v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 421.

82. See 3 C. L. 1390.

83. Mitchell Square Bale Ginning Co. v. Grant [Ala.] 38 So. 855; Snedecor v. Pope [Ala.] 39 So. 318; Bill v. Fuller, 146 Cal. 50, 79 P. 592. Cross-examination on immaterial matter improper. Quale v. Hazel [S. D.] 104 N. W. 215. Court may of its own motion exclude irrelevant questions on cross-examination. Wells v. Missouri-Edison Elec. Co., 108 Mo. App. 607, 84 S. W. 204. After cross-examination had brought out fact that witness was manager of a co-operative building company, it was proper to refuse examination as to character and purpose of company. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Allen, 212 Ill. 134, 72 N. E. 200. Where witness had admitted use of liquor to excess, refusal to permit questions whether he had taken "Keeley cure" or had "snakes" was proper. Woods v. Dailey, 211 Ill. 495, 71 N. E. 1068. Cross-examination upon independent cases of the same character and about the same time as the principal case is not allowed. Physician, testifying to injuries, cannot be cross-examined as to professional opinions in other personal injury action. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Schmitz, 211 Ill. 441, 71 N. E. 1050. Defendant in burglary should have been allowed to cross-examine state's witness as to customary manner of closing the doors. Adkinson v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 522.

84. See 3 C. L. 1391. See, also, Witnesses, 4 C. L. 1943.

85. Everything which will tend to rebut the fact testified to by a party to an action, extent of such examination is necessarily left largely to the discretion of the trial judge.[86] Among the matters which such examination may properly cover are the relationship of the witness to the parties,[87] compensation of the witness,[88] his interest in the result of the suit,[89] his sincerity and honesty,[90] and his bias or hostility.[91] The character and previous life of the witness may be inquired into to some extent,[92] especially if the witness is the defendant in a criminal case;[93] and in some states or dispute an inference that may be drawn from his direct testimony, is admissible on cross-examination. Perrin v. Carbone [Cal. App.] 82 P. 222.

86. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Burke, 112 Ill. App. 415.

87. Seymour v. Bruske [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 145, 103 N. W. 613. Proper to ask witness if he was in employ of defendant. Stowe v. La Conner Trading & Transp. Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 856. Proper to show whether witness was in employ of party calling him, and whether he was paid to come and testify. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 29. Allowance of questions to show relation of attorney and client between a witness and plaintiff's attorney held not an abuse of discretion. Birmingham So. R. Co. v. Lintner [Ala.] 38 So. 363. For whom impeaching witness acted in gaining information may be shown to show fact and manner of his interest. National Enameling & Stamping Co. v. Fagan, 115 Ill. App. 590. Proper to ask defendant's wife on cross-examination whether she had been hypnotized by defendant, where evidence tended to show he had great influence over her. State v. Exum, 138 N. C. 599, 50 S. E. 283. To show bias of witness, and close relation to defendant, testimony, on cross-examination, that had she lived with defendant in adultery, and believed he had a wife and child living, and that she had visited defendant in jail, was proper. Sexton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 348. As affecting credibility of witness, facts could be brought out on cross-examination showing that action was being supported by a street railway company which was responsible in part for the accident in question. Iaquinto v. Bauer, 93 N. Y. S. 388.

88. Evidence that witness was paid for time taken to investigate an alleged illegal election, and that expenses of a trip were paid by one of the parties, proper on cross-examination. State v. Rosenthal, 123 Wis. 442, 102 N. W. 49. Whether witness had a conversation with a party relative to being paid if out of the state at time of trial could be inquired into. Hathaway v. Goslant [Vt.] 59 A. 835. What witness expected as compensation immaterial when no agreement to pay him anything was shown. Southern R. Co. v. State [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 174. Where detective testified that he was paid by his agency and salary did not depend on conviction in cases on which he worked, it was not error to refuse to allow inquiry as to the amount of his salary. White v. State, 121 Ga. 191, 48 S. E. 941.

89. In action concerning ditch, witnesses may be tsked if they paid anything to discharge their ditches on another's land. Kennedy v. Murphy, 112 Ill. App. 607. Plaintiff might show on cross-examination that defendant expected the vendor to make good the expense of the litigation if plaintiff secured verdict. Coolidge v. Ayers [Vt.] 61 A. 40.

90. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Santa Fe Mercantile Co. [N. M.] 82 P. 363.

91. Questions tending to disclose animus or bias proper. Hampton v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 421. Cross-examination to determine bias or prejudice of witness held within proper limits. City of Guthrie v. Carey [Okl.] 81 P. 431. Hostility may be shown, but not whether it is justifiable. Seymour v. Bruske [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 145, 103 N. W. 613 Witnesses for state in homicide case properly cross-examined as to threats to take defendant's store and run him out, shortly before the killing. Ringer v. State [Ark.] 85 S. W. 410. Discretionary to allow witness' attitude on assault and battery in testing credibility on cross-examination. Commonwealth v. Middleby [Mass.] 73 N. E. 208. Question whether plaintiff had not brought assault and battery action because he had been compelled to pay for a cow was proper. Lowe v. Ring, 123 Wis. 107, 101 N. W. 381. Where physician was sent by defendant to examine plaintiff, it was proper to ask physician on cross-examination what defendant's attorney said to him when he was sent to plaintiff, in order to show bias. Birmingham R., Light & Power Co. v. Rutledge [Ala.] 39 So. 338. Offer to prove intimidation of witness properly excluded where it was apparently not made in good faith, but simply to prejudice the jury. Commonwealth v. Ezell [Pa.] 61 A. 930.

92. Extent of cross-examination as to previous life of witness discretionary. State v. Nergaard [Wis.] 102 N. W. 899. Rigid cross-examination of deputy oil inspector proper where his testimony should loose methods of inspection. Stowell v. Standard Oil Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 227. A witness who has testified to another's general reputation, cannot be asked whether he had not himself been impeached three times in a certain county. Hellard v. Com. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 329. Cross-examination as to whether witness supported his family, improper. Chicago City R. Co. v. Uhter, 212 Ill. 174, 72 N. E. 195. Improper to ask impeaching witness which had the worst reputation, he or the witness whose reputation he had testified was bad. Newman v. Com. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1089. Whether witness was not notorious person who had been tarred and feathered and run out of the country, improper. State v. Mann [Wash.] 81 P. 561. Marriage relations of two witnesses improper matter for cross-examination to test credibility. Flohr v. Territory, 14 Okl. 477, 78 P. 565.

93. Proper to cross-examine defendant, when a witness, as to business and occupation for three or four years preceding trial. Sexton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 348.

indictment [94] or conviction of crimes [95] or offenses involving moral turpitude [96] may be shown. It is usually held that specific acts of immorality cannot be shown,[97] but some courts hold that such examination may be allowed in the discretion of the court.[98]

Previous contradictory statements may always be shown to impeach the witness.[99] In some states it is unnecessary to lay a foundation for proof of contradictory oral statements by inquiring on cross-examination whether he made the declarations of which it is proposed to offer proof;[1] but usually such foundation is required.[2] A witness cannot be cross-examined as to whether he made written statements inconsistent with his testimony unless the writing has been put in evidence, and has been shown the witness.[3] Further examination of the contents of the writing cannot then be made unless the witness admits the writing to be his.[4] Questions as to previous statements [5] or charges of crime [6] should definitely specify time and place.

A witness cannot be impeached by cross-examination as to irrelevant and collateral matters;[7] answers to questions calling for such matters are conclusive.[8] While the state cannot impeach its own witnesses, it is not bound by every statement

94. Defendant's witness properly asked whether there was a case pending against him. Hill v. Territory [Okl.] 79 P. 757.

95. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2051, permitting conviction of witness of a felony to be shown, and § 17, that words used in singular include the plural, it was not error to show conviction of five felonies. People v. Kelly, 146 Cal. 119, 79 P. 846. Whether witness had been convicted of forcible trespass admissible to impeach him. Coleman v. Southern R. Co., 138 N. C. 351, 50 S. E. 690. In prosecution for homicide, defendant may be asked by the state if he has been convicted of crimes in another state. Rev. St. 1899, § 4680. State v. Heusack [Mo.] 88 S. W. 21.

96. Indictments for adultery could be shown to affect defendant's credibility as a witness. Sexton v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 348.

97. Questions imputing want of chastity are improper. Knickercocker v. Worthing [Mich.] 101 N. W. 540. But such questions, put in the belief that they are competent, do not constitute reversible error. Id. Attempt to show witness, physician, had performed criminal operation, improper cross-examination. Flohr v. Territory, 14 Okl. 477, 78 P. 565.

98. How far party may go in cross-examination as to specific acts of immorality rests in court's discretion. Little Rock Vehicle & Implement Co. v. Robinson [Ark.] 87 S. W. 1029.

99. A paper shown a witness and admitted to have been signed by him may be read on his cross-examination, to show it contains statements contradictory to his testimony. Chicago City R. Co. v. Matthieson, 113 Ill. App. 246. When witness testifies he was drunk, it is proper to show what he said immediately after the time when he claims he was drunk. Sauter v. Anderson, 112 Ill. App. 580.

1. Villineuve v. Manchester St. R. Co. [N. H.] 60 A. 748.

2. A witness should be allowed to deny participation in conversations testified to by others. Emanuel v. Maryland Casualty Co., 94 N. Y. S. 36.

3. Villineuve v. Manchester St. R. Co. [N. H.] 60 A. 748.

4. Villineuve v. Manchester St. R. Co. [N. H.] 60 A. 748. Where witness testified that he did not write or authorize a letter, counsel may not read it to him, and ask him if he did not write it. Sharpton v. Augusta & A. R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 553.

5. Bradley v. Gorham, 77 Conn. 211, 58 A. 698. And the question concerning such a statement put to the impeaching witness, should be substantially identical with the question first asked. Gormley v. Hartney, 105 Ill. App. 625.

6. Question on cross-examination of defendant whether he had not been charged with subornation of perjury should be made definite as to time. Stull v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 1059.

7. Bell v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 795. Questions for impeachment covering immaterial matters are properly excluded. Illinois Steel Co. v. Jeka, 123 Wis. 419, 101 N. W. 399. Witness cannot be impeached as to testimony first drawn out on cross-examination. Bullard v. Smith, 28 Mont. 387, 72 P. 761. Defendant's agent being cross-examined as to a collateral and irrelevant statement, not brought out in direct examination, he could not thereafter be contradicted regarding the same. Simms v. Forbes [Miss.] 38 So. 546. While cross-examination on immaterial matters to affect credibility is largely discretionary, discrediting by innuendo instead of by competent evidence should not be allowed. Malone v. Stephenson [Minn.] 102 N. W. 372.

8. Denial by witness that he had been charged with larceny held conclusive. Coleman v. Southern R. Co., 138 N. C. 351, 50 S. E. 690. Where a witness is asked on cross-examination whether he made a certain statement, not relevant to matters brought out on his direct examination, his denial that he made the statement is binding on the inquiring party. The Saranac, 132 F. 936.

made by them, but may explain the true facts by other witnesses,[9] and cross-examination of its own witnesses is allowable if they prove hostile and give testimony other than that expected.[10]

Questions which tend only to humiliate and degrade a witness, and not to show bias, are improper.[11] It is improper to read from a medical work in the cross-examination of a medical witness.[12]

As to probability of testimony.[13]—In testing the probability of testimony, previous acts or conduct of the witness, inconsistent with his testimony[14] or other facts inconsistent with those testified to,[15] may be shown. Questions designed to test the recollection of the witness are proper[16] and in the case of expert[17] and opinion evidence,[18] full cross-examination as to the knowledge of the witness and the

9. State v. Boice [La.] 38 So. 584.

10. State v. Moon [Kan.] 80 P. 597.

11. Question whether witness' daughter had two children of whom defendant's brother was the father, though daughter was unmarried, held improper. Adkinson v. State [Fla.] 37 So. 522.

12. Attempt to get medical work on insanity before jury without offering it in evidence, held improper. State v. Thompson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 377.

13. See 3 C. L. 1393.

14. Acts of witness inconsistent with his statements on direct examination may be shown in cross-examination as affecting credibility. Philadelphia v. Dobbins, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 136. Where defendant, in homicide case, testified that he was shot at the night before the killing, cross-examination as to why he had not reported the fact to the authorities was proper. Long v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 88 S. W. 203.

15. Where in action for pollution of stream a witness produced a sample of the water while on the stand, it was proper to ask him on cross-examination whether he did not know that the sewage in question was dumped into the stream above his ranch and above the place where he took the water. Watson v. Colusa-Parrot Min. & Smelting Co. [Mont.] 79 P. 14. Question to plaintiff as to ability to pay taxes if he had not paid other bills held proper cross-examination, in action for false imprisonment against a tax collector. Kerr v. Atwood [Mass.] 74 N. E. 917.

16. Children properly cross-examined as to occurrences in room where they were in order to test their credibility or the probability of their testimony. State v. Patchen, 37 Wash. 24, 79 P. 479. Telegraph operator having testified to the minute when he received a message, could be asked on cross-examination when he received a certain message for transmission the day before. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Merrill [Ala.] 39 So. 121. Conductor having testified that he was not sure of identity of man seen on his car, could be asked if he did not think it strange for a man to alight where he did. State v. Sherouk [Conn.] 61 A. 897.

17. Expert who testified that coupling of engine and dynamo was too short could be asked on cross-examination if room was large enough for longer coupling, though it was a fact that other rooms could have been added. Kernan v. Crook, Horner & Co. [Md.] 59 A. 753. Where an expert testifies as to dangers apparent and appreciable in operating a given machine, he may be cross-examined as to whether he had learned what dangers could be known by a person of less than the average intelligence, such as plaintiff was. Kasjeta v. Nashua Mfg. Co. [N. H.] 58 A. 874. Question to physician who testified testator was incompetent to make will, calling attention to internal evidence of will, and asking opinion thereon, held proper cross-examination, though question was not in technically proper form. Struth v. Decker [Md.] 59 A. 727. Where an expert has testified as to danger attending use of a given device, cross-examination going to the elements of his judgment and extent of his knowledge is proper. Carr v. American Locomotive Co., 26 R. I. 180, 58 A. 678.

18. Where witnesses testified to rental value of plant, full cross-examination as to elements of value should have been permitted. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. McMahon & Montgomery Co., 110 Ill. App. 510. Owner having testified to value of land, cross-examination as to what he paid, and what he received for parts of it, should have been permitted. Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Shepherd [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 904. Where witness gave opinion on value of horse before and after an injury it was proper to ask in cross-examination what he paid for the horse. Rosenstein v. Fair Haven & W. R. Co. [Conn.] 60 A. 1061. Where witness testified to value, cross-examination to disclose his knowledge of one element of value, in order to weaken the effect of his opinion was proper. Union R. Co. v. Hunton [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 182. Witness having testified that defendant was drinking heavily on day of murder, it was proper cross-examination to ask what he had done to make witness believe he was drunk. Smith v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 329. Knowledge of a witness tending to discredit his estimate given of another's character, not reputation, may be shown on cross-examination. State v. Richards, 126 Iowa, 497, 102 N. W. 439. Witness who testifies to good reputation of defendant for truth and veracity may be asked if he has heard of a difficulty between defendant and a widow as to money matters. Leavell v. Leavell [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 55. A witness who has testified to the good reputation for truth and veracity of a defendant, may be asked on cross-examination if he has not heard that defendant has been elements of his opinion is proper. It may also be shown that the witness's testimony is a mere conclusion [19] or that he entertains opinions inconsistent with the facts to which he has testified.[20]

§ 3. Redirect examination.[21]—A witness may be re-examined as to matters brought out on cross-examination,[22] and while the court may, in the exercise of its discretion,[23] prevent a mere repetition of testimony already given,[24] such repetition is not necessarily prejudicial.[25] On redirect examination, the witness should be allowed to explain statements made on the cross-examination,[26] and where statements, acts, or conduct of the witness have been shown, it is proper on redirect examination to introduce explanatory matter tending to show such statements, acts, or conduct consistent with present testimony.[27] A witness should be re-examined as to matters brought out on his cross-examination at the close of such examination, and should not be called in rebuttal for that purpose.[28] The re-examination should be confined to matters brought out on cross-examination.[29]

charged with and indicted for subornation of perjury, but not that he married the woman he induced to swear falsely, in order to escape prosecution. Stull v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 1059. Where witness testified that brakeman's reputation for competency was good, and that he had heard of no complaints against him, it was proper cross-examination to show that witness had heard of the brakeman's allowing a car to go through a switch. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 89 S. W. 29. Also that witness had found him violating rules by talking to farmers outside the right of way, when he had been sent to flag a train. Id.

19. Where witness testifies to ownership, cross-examination going to show that his testimony was a mere conclusion was proper. Prussian National Ins. Co. v. Empire Catering Co., 113 Ill. App. 67.

20. It is proper on cross-examination to ask for opinions and conclusions of a witness to test him and show inconsistencies between such opinions and the facts. Caven v. Bodwell Granite Co., 99 Me. 278, 59 A. 285. Owner having testified to value of property in suit for damages, it is proper cross-examination to ask him what he will take for it. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Carr [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1020, 89 S. W. 35.

21. See 3 C. L. 1394.

22. Caven v. Bodwell Granite Co., 99 Me. 278, 59 A. 285.

23. The extent of re-examination is discretionary with the court. Caven v. Bodwell Granite Co., 99 Me. 278, 59 A. 285.

24. Proper to exclude, on redirect examination, an explanation of circumstances attending execution of written statement, where witness had had opportunity to make explanation before. Reynolds v. International & G. N. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 323. Where physician had testified that there were no objective signs of injury, and was cross-examined, it was proper to refuse to allow redirect examination covering same ground. Finley v. New York City R. Co., 91 N. Y. S. 759.

25. Repetition of opinion given on cross-examination held not prejudicial. Caven v. Bodwell Granite Co., 99 Me. 278, 59 A. 285.

26. Marlow v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 653. It is proper on redirect examination to ask questions designed to afford the witness an opportunity of explaining answers given on cross-examination. Baltimore Belt R. Co. v. Sattler [Md.] 59 A. 654. On redirect examination witness may explain what he intended to convey by answers on cross-examination. State v. Lyons, 113 La. 959, 37 So. 890. Where a witness has given an erroneous impression of facts, he is entitled to explain himself while under examination, in the presence of the jury. Pacific Export Lumber Co. v. North Pacific Lumber Co. [Or.] 84 P. 105.

27. Comer v. Thornton [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 19. Where witness admitted leaving a place after a certain conversation wherein he was told to leave, it was proper to show on redirect examination how long after the killing, to which he testified, such conversation occurred. Bardin v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 833. Where claimant against an estate testified that she signed her husband's name to a certain note, she could, on redirect examination, explain the transaction to rebut presumption that she signed the notes in suit in the same way. Taylor v. Taylor's Estate [Mich.] 101 N. W. 832. Where in action on note, plaintiff was cross-examined as to state of accounts between himself and defendant with a viw to showing satisfaction of note by sale of mortgaged property, it was proper to show other transactions as basis of note on redirect examination. Finch v. Mishler [Md.] 59 A. 1009. A contradicted witness is entitled to an opportunity to explain statements claimed to be inconsistent with his testimony after proof of such statements has been made, or the party calling him may re-examine him for the purpose of such explanation. Villineuve v. Manchester St. R. Co. [N. H.] 60 A. 748. Where an attempt is made to discredit a witness by showing a motive or interest influencing his testimony, he may show that he made statements similar to his testimony at a time when the alleged motive or influence did not exist. Sweeney v. Sweeney, 121 Ga. 293, 48 S. E. 984.

28, 29. Struth v. Decker [Md.] 59 A. 727.

§ 4. Recalling witness for further examination.[30]—Permitting a witness to be recalled for further examination is discretionary.[31]

§ 5. Privileges of witnesses.[32]—The privileges of witnesses, both as to the manner of examination and the matters as to which they may be examined, are elsewhere fully considered.[33]

EXCEPTIONS AND OBJECTIONS; EXCEPTIONS, BILL OF, see latest topical index.

EXCHANGE OF PROPERTY.

The general rules governing an exchange of property are the rules applicable to all contracts and are treated in appropriate topics.[34]

If time is not of the essence of a contract for the exchange of property each party has a reasonable time within which to comply with its provisions.[35] A substantial compliance is all that is required.[36] Original lack of mutuality may be supplied.[37]

One party to a fair exchange cannot recover property delivered under it, where the contract has never been broken;[38] but on failure of the owner of land to comply with the terms of the contract, the value of merchandise turned over to him may be recovered in an action for money had and received.[39] Where there is a breach of the covenant of warranty in one of the deeds to lands exchanged, the grantee has a lien on the land he conveyed for the damages he sustains.[40]

If induced by fraud, the defrauded party may maintain an action for damages,[41] or he may bring an action to rescind,[42] or he may rescind and recover the specific property parted with,[43] though the fraudulent representations were innocently

30. See 3 C. L. 1395, also title Trial.

31. Refusal to allow witness to be recalled for further cross-examination is discretionary. United States Wringer Co. v. Cooney, 214 Ill. 520, 73 N. E. 803. Allowing witness to be recalled to explain former testimony is discretionary. Piehl v. Piehl [Mich.] 101 N. W. 628. Allowing witness to be recalled for the purpose of laying a foundation for impeaching him is within court's discretion. Savage v. Bowen, 103 Va. 540, 49 S. E. 668.

32. See 3 C. L. 1396.

33. See Witnesses, 4 C. L. 1943.

34. See Contracts, 5 C. L. 664; Fraud and Undue Influence, 3 C. L. 1520; Sales, 4 C. L. 1318; Vendors and Purchasers, 4 C. L. 1769. For remedies relative to such transactions, see Contracts, 5 C. L. 664; Specific Performance, 4 C. L. 1494.

35. Gibson v. Brown, 214 Ill. 330, 73 N. E. 578.

36. A stipulation that the property shall not be incumbered is satisfied by the production of releases of incumbrances secured by an arrangement with the lienors to satisfy the liens out of the purchase price. Gibson v. Brown, 214 Ill. 330 73 N. E. 578. In an action to recover "boot money" paid, evidence held insufficient to show an agreement to trade back in case of dissatisfaction. Boire v. McDowell, 93 N. Y. S. 1091.

37. Where it is not mutual at the time it is made, but subsequent developments recognized by the party renders it mutual. Gibson v. Brown, 214 Ill. 330, 73 N. E. 578.

38. Forbes v. Rogers [Ala.] 38 So. 843.

39. Proctor v. Stevens Land Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 395.

40. Newburn v. Lucas, 126 Iowa, 85, 101 N. W. 730.

41. Joyner v. Early [N. C.] 51 S. E. 778. A refusal of one party to comply with the terms of a contract relieves the other of the necessity of keeping good a tender of a deed or preserving it unmutilated in order to maintain an action for damages. Cohen v. Parnass, 93 N. Y. S. 649.

42. Under Civ. Code, §§ 1282-1285, a suit to rescind a contract for the exchange of real property may be maintained on an offer to restore everything acquired and a tender of a deed of the real property acquired. Thompson v. Hardy [S. D.] 102 N. W. 299.

43. Joyner v. Early [N. C.] 51 S. E. 778. A party induced to exchange his land by false representations as to the title of the land he received may have rescission of his deed. Corbett v. McGregor [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 278. Misrepresentations as to productiveness of the land and appurtenant water rights. Willey v. Clements, 146 Cal. 91, 79 P. 850. Evidence held to show that an exchange of realty for personalty was induced by fraud. Parker v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 856. Evidence held to show false representations as to the value of land. Troutman v. Eggleston [S. D.] 104 N. W. 257.

Evidence insufficient to show that an exchange was induced by fraudulent representations. Spinks v. Clark [Cal.] 82 P. 45.

made;[44] but if the contract is executed, the fraud must be established by clear and satisfactory evidence.[45] The action to recover the specific property is at law,[46] and resort should not be had to a court of equity, unless for some special reason the remedy at law is unavailing or inadequate.[47] A rescission based on a demand for performance not made in good faith does not preclude the right to specific performance;[48] but where the evidence of one party shows him to be entitled to a rescission, the claim of the other party for specific performance is eliminated.[49]

EXCHANGES AND BOARDS OF TRADE.

Membership, rights and dealings.[50]—A membership on a board of trade is in its nature a personal privilege, yet such value as it may possess, notwithstanding the restrictions to which it is subject, is susceptible of being realized by creditors.[51] Proceedings of a board of trade regularly engaged in an investigation of a complaint of a member, pursuant to valid by-laws will not be enjoined,[52] nor will the expulsion of a member for the violation of a valid rule.[53] Members can lawfully refuse to deal with a person who has been expelled from the association for his wrong doing.[54]

Property and contract rights of board.[55]—The quotations collected by a board of trade are property, and an unlawful use of them may be enjoined, even assuming that such statistics relate to unlawful transactions.[56] Contracts between boards of trade and telegraph companies which limit the communication of quotations collected by it are not in restraint of trade.[57] A by-law which prohibits members from doing business with a person expelled from the board for misconduct does not render it an illegal combination in restraint of trade.[58] Under the rules of the New York Stock Exchange, an indorsement of a member on a certificate of stock is a guarantee of the correctness of the signature of the party in whose name the stock stands.[59]

44. Du Bois v. Nugent [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 339.

45. Wilson v. Maxon, 56 W. Va. 194, 49 S. E. 123. A litigant relying on the outstanding title of a third person to sustain his action or defense must fully establish such title by competent and sufficient proof. Id.

46. A verbal contract for the exchange of personal property may be rescinded by either party thereto for good cause, and a suit at law maintained for the restitution of the property. Wilson v. Maxon, 56 W. Va. 194, 49 S. E. 123.

47. Wilson v. Maxon, 56 W. Va. 194, 49 S. E. 123.

48. Gibson v. Brown, 214 Ill. 330, 73 N. E. 578.

49. Bales v. Roberts, 87 S. W. 914.

50. See 3 C. L. 1397.

NOTE. Constitution and by-laws: It is essential to the validity of rules and regulations for the government of members that they be reasonable (Belton v. Hatch, 109 N. Y. 593, 4 Am. St. Rep. 495; Lewis v. Wilson, 121 N. Y. 284; Hibernia Fire Engine Co. v. Com., 93 Pa. 264), and not in conflict with the settled law of the jurisdiction (State v. Williams, 75 N. C. 134; Sewell v. Ives, 61 How. Pr. [N. Y.] 54), nor contrary to public policy (Belton v. Hatch, 109 N. Y. 593, 4 Am. St. Rep. 495), nor deny to a member the aid and protection of a court of justice in his legitimate operations (Austin v. Searing, 16 N. Y. 112, 69 Am. Dec. 665; Rowe v. Williams, 97 Mass. 163; Heath v. President of Gold Exch., 7 Abb. Pr. [N. Y.] 54). And in order that rules be binding on a member, he must have given his consent thereto. White v. Brownell, 2 Daly [N. Y.] 329; Inhabitants of Palmyra v. Morton, 25 Mo. 593. See Helliwell, Stocks and Stockholders, § 203.

51. Hence a court may compel a bankrupt to execute papers necessary to effectuate a sale of a seat. In re Hurlbutt, Hatch & Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 504.

52. Board of Trade of Chicago v. Weare, 105 Ill. App. 289.

53. A rule prohibiting members from charging less than a specified commission is valid, if the commission is reasosnable, and the rule was enacted for the benefit of the board and its members. Dickinson v. Board of Trade of Chicago, 114 Ill. App. 295.

54. Such refusal was in accordance with the by-laws of the board and does not constitute an alleged boycott. Gladish v. Bridgeford [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 77.

55. See 3 C. L. 1397.

56, 57. Board of Trade of Chicago v. Christie Grain & Stock Co., 198 U. S. 236, 49 Law. Ed. 1031.

58. Gladish v. Bridgeford [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 77.

59. If such signature is not genuine, the broker is liable. Jennie Clarkson Home for Children v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 571.

EXECUTIONS.

Scope of title.—This article relates only to the ordinary writ of execution or final process on a money judgment to enforce it by levy and sale.[60]

§ 1. Definition.[61]—A writ of execution is a process by which a final judgment of a court is carried into effect.[62]

§ 2. Right to have execution.[63]—A valid execution cannot issue upon a judgment which has been satisfied [64] or has become dormant.[65] A statutory provision that execution shall not issue within twenty-four hours after judgment is for the benefit of the debtor and may by him be waived by a proper agreement in writing made and filed in the case.[66] Whether such agreement is effectual as a waiver depends upon its construction, and this is for the court.[67] Under a statute authorizing issuance of execution on a justice's judgment within five years and requiring leave of court thereafter, the life of a judgment is not prolonged by the filing in the circuit court of a transcript of the judgment in the justice's court.[68] An order that a judg-

60. Procedure to aid execution is elsewhere discussed. See Civil Arrests (body execution), 5 C. L. 587; Creditors' Suit, 5 C. L. 880; Garnishment, 3 C. L. 1550; Supplementary Proceedings, 4 C. L. 1591. Writs in execution of judgments not for money are discussed in Assistance, Writ of, 5 C. L. 291; and in titles treating possessory actions, such as Ejectment (and Writ of Entry), 5 C. L. 1056; Trespass (to try title), 4 C. L. 1706; Forcible Entry and Unlawful Detainer (writ of restitution), 3 C. L. 1435; Quo Warranto (writ of ouster), 4 C. L. 1177; Replevin, 4 C. L. 1284.

The lien, dormancy and revivor of judgments are discussed in Judgments, 4 C. L. 287.

Compare Attachment, 5 C. L. 302; and for procedure for collection of judgments against representatives, receivers and fiduciaries, see Receivers, 4 C. L. 1238; Estates of Decedents, 5 C. L. 1183; Guardianship, 3 C. L. 1569; Trusts, 4 C. L. 1727.

61. See 3 C. L. 1397.

62. Cyc. Law Dict. "Execution;" 11 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 609.

63. See 3 C. L. 1398.

64. If a judgment has been fully satisfied, an execution issued upon it confers no authority on the officer, and a sale under it is void. Parker v. Crilly, 113 Ill. App. 309. A judgment is not satisfied by a levy and sale under execution if the purchase price is not paid. Hence second execution may issue thereon. Richardson v. Wymer [Va.] 51 S. E. 219.

65. An execution issued upon a dormant judgment is void. Denny v. Ross [Kan.] 79 P. 502. Under Rev. Codes, 1899, § 5500, providing that a judgment may be enforced by execution issued within ten years after its entry, execution cannot properly issue after that time, even though the judgment continues in force by virtue of the debtor's continuous absence from the state during the ten years. Weisbocker v. Cahn [N. D.] 104 N. W. 513. See, also, Judgments, 4 C. L. 287.

66. Washington Nat. Bank v. Williams [Mass.] 74 N. E. 470.

67. Agreement held to amount to waiver. Washington Nat. Bank v. Williams [Mass.] 74 N. E. 470.

68. Construing Justice Code, § 81, and Code Civ. Proc. §§ 329, 325. Phillips v. Norton [S. D.] 101 N. W. 727.

ment stand as security does not prevent the issuance of an execution thereon, nor operate as a stay,[69] and hence does not preserve the lien of a judgment after the expiration of a year, no execution having issued thereon.[70] The California statute providing that execution may issue by leave of the court upon motion after the expiration of five years after entry of judgment is valid, though no notice to defendants is provided for.[71] In New York leave to issue execution on a judgment five years after its entry is discretionary.[72] In an action by trustee process, where final judgment against the principal debtor has been entered, execution may issue thereon by special leave of the court while the action is still pending and undetermined as to the trustee.[73] A judgment entered against a partnership as a corporation, over a plea in abatement, cannot be enforced against the partners.[74] One who has assigned his judgment cannot thereafter issue execution.[75] Execution will not be summarily denied when the rights of the parties are in doubt and there is a legal remedy for a wrongful enforcement of the judgment.[76]

§ 3. Stay and how procured.[77]—Execution may be stayed where a petition in bankruptcy is filed before the day on which the sale is to be made.[78] It should not be stayed until a proceeding in equity to determine the amount of another person's claim on the fund has been disposed of;[79] but the proper practice in such case is to ask for a rule on plaintiff to show cause why leave should not be granted to pay the money into court to discharge the judgment.[80] A writ of supersedeas subsequent to the levy of an execution stays further proceedings but does not have the effect of restoring the personal property levied on to the defendant's possession or of impairing the lien created by the levy.[81] Under the Ohio statute permitting immediate collection of a judgment, though defendant has given bond for a stay of execution, the bond required of plaintiff should provide for interest on the amount to be collected, in case restitution is necessary.[82]

§ 4. Procedure to procure issuance of writ.[83]—Where notice of application for execution is required by law,[84] an order for execution without such notice is void.[85] The practice varies where execution is desired in a county other than that wherein the judgment was rendered.[86] Where execution against a decedent's estate is sought, the administrator may be required to make an intermediate account.[87]

69, 70. International Packing Co. v. Cichowicz, 114 Ill. App. 121.

71. Code Civ. Proc. § 685. Harrier v. Bassford, 145 Cal. 529, 78 P. 1038. Hence an order for execution without notice is valid in the absence of special circumstances rendering such order an abuse of discretion. Id.

72. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1377. Schiller v. Weinstein, 94 N. Y. S. 764.

73. Leonard v. Sibley, 76 Vt. 254, 56 A. 1015.

74. Sinsabaugh v. Dun, 214 Ill. 70, 73 N. E. 390.

75. Mawson v. Wermuth [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 829.

76. Where, pending an action against a bank in a Federal court, an assignee was appointed in a state court, and judgment was thereafter obtained in the Federal court, summary action denying execution was denied. Anglo-American Land Mortg. & Ag. Co. v. Cheshire Provident Inst., 134 F. 152.

77. See 3 C. L. 1398.

78. Discretion of court held properly exercised in refusing to vacate order of stay. Rothermel v. Moyer, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 325.

79, 80. McManus v. Philadelphia, 211 Pa. 394, 60 A. 1001.

81. Rev. St. 1892, § 1272, changing the common-law rule is to be strictly construed. Thalheim v. Camp Phosphate Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 523.

82. Rev. St. § 6722. Haunts v. Lanman Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 405.

83. See 3 C. L. 1399.

84. Applications for execution under Code Civ. Proc. § 1391, as amended by Laws, 1903, c. 461, must be on notice. Neuman v. Mortimer, 98 App. Div. 64, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 164, 90 N. Y. S. 524. To judgment debtor and trustees of fund against which execution is sought. Sloane v. Tiffany, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 208, 93 N. Y. S. 149. Upon application for an order for execution against income from trust funds, the trustee is entitled to be heard. King v. Irving, 92 N. Y. S. 1094.

85. An order made in vacation without notice to the opposite party is void under Code, §§ 3834-3841. McConkie v. Landt, 126 Iowa, 317, 101 N. W. 1121.

86. In the absence of statutory requirements, a second or subsequent execution from the county wherein the judgment was rendered need not be recorded in the foreign execution docket. Steel v. Katzen-

§ 5. Power to allow or issue writ.[88]—A court has no power, in a statutory proceeding, to order execution for attorneys' fees, except as allowed by the statute.[89] A court has power to so control execution of its final processes as to prevent a wrong from being done.[90] Where execution issued by an appellate court is recalled and reformed to comply with an amended judgment, rights which have accrued under it will be saved.[91] In some states execution may be issued by a circuit court upon a judgment by a justice,[92] when a proper transcript of the justice's judgment has been filed with the clerk.[93]

§ 6. Form and contents of writ.[94]—Where a judgment is amended nunc pro tunc, the execution should recite the date of the original judgment.[95] The command to make costs of a proceeding in error must be expressed in the body of the writ, since such costs are not a part of the judgment of the lower court;[96] and if the judgment below has been already satisfied, the writ should be confined to such costs.[97]

§ 7. Quashal of writ.[98]—Notice of a motion to quash an execution is waived when a party appears generally to resist the motion without objection for want of notice.[99]

§ 8. The levy. A. Leviable property and order of leviability.[1]—The subject of exemptions is elsewhere treated.[2]

Equitable estates in land, though not subject to execution under the English common law,[3] are now subject to levy and sale in most jurisdictions,[4] if the estate is definite and certain;[5] but a mere right or interest which can only be asserted or meyer, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 25. Where a judgment exceeding $100 is obtained before a justice of the peace in one county, and a transcript is filed in the prothonotary's office of that county, and then transferred to another county by exemplification, it is not a prerequisite to execution to file a certificate with the transferred judgment showing a return of "no goods" by a constable in the county where the justice's transcript was originally filed. Mougenot v. Vernon, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 165.

87. In proceedings against an administrator for execution against property of the estate, the question whether there is property applicable to satisfaction of the judgment being in issue, the administrator may be required to make an intermediate account. In re Warren, 94 N. Y. S. 286. Such accounting held proper where question was whether judgment against government in French spoliation case was available. Id.

88. See 3 C. L. 1399.

89. Where a fine is assessed for violation of an injunction against the sale of liquor, but such fine is remitted by the governor, the court has no power to order execution for 10 per cent. of the fine as attorney's fee under the statute [Code, § 2429], authorizing as such fee 10 per cent. of the fine "collected." McConkie v. Landt, 126 Iowa, 317, 101 N. W. 1121.

90. King v. Davis, 137 F. 222.

91. Seymour v. Bruske [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 144, 104 N. W. 691.

92. Code 1899, c. 50, § 118, allowing a transcript of a judgment of a justice to be filed in the office of a circuit court, and execution to be issued thereon, does not violate the constitutional provision requiring the amount for jurisdiction of the circuit court to exceed $50. Joseph Speidel Grocery Co. v. Warder, 56 W. Va. 602, 49 S. E. 534.

93. Execution void as between parties when only an imperfect abstract was filed, Code 1899, c. 50, § 118, not being complied with. Steringer v. John Mackie & Co. [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 942.

94. See 3 C. L. 1399.

95. Carter v. Smith [Ala.] 38 So. 184.

96, 97. Hopper v. Smith [N. J. Law] 60 A. 63.

98. See 3 C. L. 1400.

99. Steringer v. Mackie & Co. [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 942.

1. See 3 C. L. 1400.

2. See Exemptions, post, p. 1400; also Homesteads, 3 C. L. 1630.

3. Tucker v. Denico [R. I.] 61 A. 642.

4. St. 29 Car. 11, c. 3, § 10, has changed common-law rule in England. Tucker v. Denico [R. I.] 61 A. 642. In Rhode Island the statute adopting St. 29 Car. c. 3, § 10, has never been changed or repealed. Id. Hence in that state equitable estates are leviable. Id. Land held by an equitable title may be levied on and sold under a general execution in Kansas. Poole v. French [Kan.] 80 P. 997.

5. The interest of a purchaser at execution sale, after expiration of the period of redemption, but before execution of the sheriff's deed, is subject to levy and sale under execution. Pogue v. Simon [Or.] 81 P. 566.

An equity of redemption is subject to levy and sale under execution. Code 1896, § 1890. Carter v. Smith [Ala.] 38 So. 184. An equity of redemption, whether created by mortgage deed to the creditor or to a third person, with or without power of sale, may be sold under execution, under Code, § 450, subsec. 3. Mayo v. Staton, 139 N. C. 670, 50 S. E. 331.

enforced in a court of equity cannot be seized and sold under an execution at law.[6] A bare legal title to realty, uncoupled with a beneficiary interest, is not subject to execution.[7] A creditor can subject the estate of a cestui que trust if his claim is such that the beneficiary could himself enforce it against the trustee for the estate.[8] The interest of the grantor in a trust deed given as security is not leviable if the grantor has failed to demand conveyance of the legal title.[9] The reversion in lands which have been assigned as dower,[10] an undivided interest in a remainder in property devised to one for life, with unlimited power of disposition,[11] and a descendible, devisable and alienable estate in expectancy,[12] are subject to levy and sale.

The judgment creditor of an heir can levy on all the property belonging to the debtor but nothing more.[13] The distributive share of an heir in an undivided in-

6. Pogue v. Simon [Or.] 81 P. 566. Where land is conveyed to one person, who advances the consideration, under an agreement to convey to another on payment of the advancement, and the latter never holds legal title, his interest is not subject to sale. Holmes v. Wolford [Or.] 81 P. 819. Where title to land has never been in the judgment debtor but is held by another on a secret trust for such debtor, such land is not subject to levy and sale under an execution at law, but is an equitable asset of the judgment debtor which can only be reached by proper proceedings in a court of equity. Macfarlane v. Dorsey [Fla.] 38 So. 512.

NOTE. Leviability of Equitable Interests: "The rule thus established rests upon the assumption that an equitable interest in real property is an uncertain estate, which if it could be sold on execution issued on a judgment rendered in a law action, would produce a sum grossly inadequate in proportion to its real value; for most persons, in purchasing real property, insist upon a certainty of the title thereto, and, where there is a doubt in this respect, usually decline to invest their money. If a compulsory sale of such interest upon execution were permissible, there would be little or no competition in bidding. Few people desire to purchase a lawsuit, and the judgment creditor would probably secure the equitable estate for a nominal sum. In the interest of the debtor, and to afford purchasers of real property at an enforced sale thereof an equal opportunity with the judgment creditor, the rule adverted to has been adopted, requiring the latter first to establish the fact in a court of equity, in a suit instituted for that purpose, that the debtor's equitable estate in real property is subject to the payment of his demand, before such interest can be divested by a sale thereof upon execution. So long, therefore, as any substantial thing remains to be done by the debtor before his equitable estate in real property ripens into the legal title, such interest cannot be reached under an execution issued on a judgment in a law action, but to subject such estate to the payment of the creditor's demand, resort must be had to a court of equity to establish the right. In Pogue v. Simon [Or.] 81 P. 566, it was held that real property sold upon execution, the sale duly confirmed, and the time for its redemption having expired, though the sheriff's deed therefor had not been executed, was subject to levy and sale on execution issued on a judgment rendered against the purchaser of the real estate. The decision in that case proceeds upon the theory that, the time for redemption having expired, the purchaser of the real property had nothing substantial to do in order to establish his right, and therefore by operation of law, eo instante, on the expiration of the time limited, became the owner of the premises, which rendered the real property subject to seizure and sale on execution, though the deed evidencing the transfer of the title had not been executed. In that case there was nothing that could possibly be done by the original debtor, or those in privity with him, to defeat the right of the prior purchaser under the execution sale, who was entitled to a sheriff's deed; and for a failure to execute such instrument, mandamus would lie."—From opinion in Holmes v. Wolford [Or.] 81 P. 821.

7. Lee v. Wrixon, 37 Wash. 47, 79 P. 489.

8. Will gave all children equal rights and made one son trustee for incompetent daughter with power to pay income to her for life, and to give her a part of the estate if necessary for her support. Held, she had a beneficial interest subject to execution to satisfy a judgment for necessaries by an asylum to which she had been committed. Hopper v. Eastern Kentucky Lunatic Asylum [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1187. A trust deed providcd for application of the income of the property to certain purposes, and that surplus should go to pay a mortgage, and should be distributed to the grantor's children, and after the grantor's death, the property was to be held in trust for one of the children. Held, before the grantor's death and payment of the mortgage, such child had no leviable interest in the trust property. Hill v. Fulmer [Miss.] 39 So. 53.

9. The lien of the judgment against such grantor can be enforced only in a civil action. Mayo v. Staton, 139 N. C. 670, 50 S. E. 331.

10. At the instance of creditors of the husband's estate. Rusk v. Hill, 121 Ga. 378, 379, 49 S. E. 261.

11. Under judgment against the remainderman. Pedigo's Ex'x v. Botts [Ky.] 89 S. W. 164.

12. Purchaser will become owner of a future expectant estate, contingent upon events that may never happen. Higgins v. Downs, 101 App. Div. 119, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 85, 91 N. Y. S. 937.

13. He represents the debtor and takes the property as the debtor held it. Lippincott v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 330.

terest of the ancestor may be levied upon, though it has not been assigned;[14] but a judgment creditor of an heir cannot levy upon and sell land formerly belonging to the estate but held by a voidable title because of a purchase by the administratrix at her own sale.[15]

A creditor whose judgment is inferior to a mortgage cannot by a common-law execution subject property held by the mortgagee under a title voidable because purchased at his own sale under a power,[16] since the right to disaffirm such sale is personal to the mortgagor.[17]

A community homestead which has been set aside in a divorce proceeding for the wife and minor children is not subject to execution against the divorced husband.[18]

Wages [19] and the income from a trust fund [20] are leviable in New York under a judgment wholly for necessaries.

Property belonging to municipal corporations and used for public municipal purposes,[21] or held by charitable corporations in trust for the public [22] is exempt. Salary due a teacher in city schools cannot be seized under execution, since such seizure would in effect involve garnishment of a municipal corporation.[23] Property in the hands of a receiver [24] or assignee in insolvency [25] is not leviable.

A mere disclaimer of title by a judgment debtor does not defeat the rights of judgment creditors since the question whether title has passed so as to permit a levy and sale is to be determined from the evidence and law.[26]

(§ 8) B. Mode of making levy.[27]—Whether a levy has been effectually made depends upon the character of the property and the acts of the officer.[28] Careless-

14. Byerly v. Sherman, 126 Iowa, 447, 102 N. W. 157.

15, 16, 17. Williams v. Williams Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 52.

18. Holland v. Zilliox [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 36.

19. Code Civ. Proc. § 1391, providing mode of procedure to collect judgment out of wages by special form of execution, applies to judgments acquired before passage of the act. Meyer v. Halberstadt, 44 Misc. 408, 89 N. Y. S. 1019. A claim for services as a surgeon is not subject to execution as wages under this section. Taylor v. Barker, 95 N. Y. S. 474.

20. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1391, as amended by Laws 1903, c. 461, providing for execution against income from a trust fund upon a judgment for necessaries sold, execution will not issue on a judgment recovered in an action on another judgment. Neuman v. Mortimer, 98 App. Div. 64, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 164, 90 N. Y. S. 524. To authorize an order for an execution under such statute, it must also appear that no execution remains outstanding against the judgment debtor. Id. The act is not retroactive so as to apply to a trust created by will before passage of the act; if intended to be so retroactive, it is unconstitutional. King v. Irving, 92 N. Y. S. 1094; Sloane v. Tiffany, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 208, 93 N. Y. S. 149.

21. Property admitted to belong to a municipal corporation, and which is either in use for the public or held for future use for the public. Walden v. Whigham, 120 Ga. 646, 48 S. E. 159. Under Code 1896, § 2040, exempting from levy and sale property belonging to municipal corporations and used for municipal purposes, a stock of liquors in a municipal liquor dispensary conducted under Acts 1898-99, p. 108, is exempt, even though incidental profits may be received therefrom by the municipality. Equitable Loan & Security Co. v. Edwardsville [Ala.] 38 So. 1016.

22. Property acquired under congressional grant for maintenance of library for use of members of corporation and public not subject to sale under execution for judgment for tort of corporate agent. Woman's Christian National Library Ass'n v. Fordyce [Ark.] 86 S. W. 417.

23. Flood v. Libby [Wash.] 80 P. 533.

24. It is error to award execution against a receiver. Malott v. Mapes, 111 Ill. App. 340.

25. Where, after passage of an insolvency act, judgment is entered on a bond secured by a mortgage executed prior to the act, and thereafter the debtor makes an assignment for creditors, the assignee may have the execution on the personalty set aside [construing Act June 4, 1901 (P. L. 404)], since he is entitled to the control and custody of the property of the assignor. This does not defeat plaintiff's preference, if he has one. Musser v. Brindle, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 37.

26. Cole v. Bradner, Smith & Co., 111 Ill. App. 210.

27. See 3 C. L. 1401.

28. Sheriff held to have made and maintained effectual levy upon drug stock when he went to store and informed proprietor that he took charge under his writs, and then left a man in charge and shortly returned and had an inventory taken and thereafter remained in charge. Hereford v. Benton [Colo. App.] 80 P. 499.

ness of a sheriff in maintaining possession will not invalidate the creditor's lien unless the creditor was also negligent.[29] A levy on corporate stock is made on the shares as registered on the books of the corporation,[30] and in Indiana the sheriff is by statute given access to the books for the purpose.[31] After the sale the sheriff is authorized to transfer on the books the shares sold to the purchaser.[32] Where property part of which is claimed as a homestead is levied on, the homesteader has a right to designate the portion he desires to claim as his exemption, and if he is not given opportunity to make such choice, the sale is void.[33] In Illinois, it is not the duty of the officer to make the debtor's selection of articles as exempt, if the debtor fails to do so,[34] since one claiming an exemption must comply with the statute requiring him to make a selection.[35]

(§ 8) C. Duty to make levy.[36]

(§ 8) D. Extent and adequacy of levy.[37]—No more than is necessary to satisfy the execution should be levied on, and an excessive levy may avoid subsequent proceedings.[38] In directing a levy plaintiff may take into consideration the probable depreciation of the property levied upon when sold at forced sale, and levy upon sufficient property to realize the execution in view of such depreciation.[39]

(§ 8) E. Conflicting levies and liens; priorities.[40]—Except where the true owner is estopped from asserting title, the lien of a judgment only attaches to such interest as the judgment debtor actually has in the property levied on.[41] The creditor of an heir cannot by entry of judgment and levy against him, acquire a right to payment from the ancestor's lands in priority to the debts owing by the ancestor, subject to which the defendant heir took his estate.[42] One who advances money to another under an agreement that he is to hold the property purchased therewith until the advancement is repaid is at least a mortgagee or pledgee in possession, and though his contract is unwritten, his rights are superior to those of an execution creditor

29. Hereford v. Benton [Colo. App.] 80 P. 499.

30. Boone v. Van Gorder [Ind.] 74 N. E. 4.

NOTE. Leviability of stock and mode of levy: At common law, the right to levy execution upon shares of stock is denied. Shares are in the nature of choses in action, and choses in action, at common law, are not subject to levy of execution. Howe v. Starkweather, 17 Mass. 240; Van Norman v. Jackson Circuit Judge, 45 Mich. 204; Blair v. Compton, 33 Mich. 414; Foster v. Potter, 37 Mo. 526; Mooar v. Walker, 46 Iowa, 164. See, also, Slaymaker v. Bank of Gettysburg, 10 Pa. 373. With the multiplication of corporations which has taken place in recent years, however, and the immensely increased investment of money in corporate stocks, it has been frequently deemed expedient to enable creditors to subject this species of personal property to their legitimate demands, and statutes are now found in many of the states which provide, in more or less definite form, that shares of stock shall be deemed subject to levy of execution. Where statutes so provide, and at the same time direct the manner in which the levy shall be made, the requirements of the statute must be strictly followed in order that the levy may be valid. People v. Goss & P. Mfg. Co., 99 Ill. 355; Princeton Bank v. Crozer, 22 N. J. Law, 383, 53 Am. Dec. 254; Blair v. Compton, 33 Mich. 414; Howe v. Starkweather, 17 Mass. 240.—Helliwell, Stock and Stockholders, § 396.

31. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 735. Boone v. Van Gorder [Ind.] 74 N. E. 4.

32. Boone v. Van Gorder [Ind.] 74 N. E. 4.

33. Rev. St. 1899, § 3617. Kessner v. Phillips [Mo.] 88 S. W. 66; Reed Bros. v. Nicholson [Mo.] 88 S. W. 71.

34, 35. Johnson v. Larcade, 110 Ill. App. 611.

36, 37. See 3 C. L. 1401.

38. Where property worth $1,500 or $2,000 was levied on and sold under a tax execution for $17.81, and it appeared that defendant in execution had two other less valuable lots, and that the tract sold was capable of division, though a division would have impaired the value of the whole, the levy was held excessive and void, and the purchaser acquired no title. McKenzie v. Pound, 121 Ga. 708, 49 S. E. 689.

39. Mills v. Larrance, 111 Ill. App. 140.

40. See 3 C. L. 1401.

41. Owens v. Atlanta Trust & Banking Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 379. The lien of a judgment against one holding stock is inferior to an existing lien of the corporation for indebtedness of the stockholder by virtue of a by-law under Code 1895, § 2825, even though the execution plaintiff had no notice of such lien at the time of making his loan, securing judgment, or giving notice to the corporation under Civ. Code, 1895, § 5431. Id.

42. Lippincott v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 330.

of the purchaser.[43] The lien of a mortgage, duly recorded, is superior to that of a purchaser at execution sale against the mortgagor, under an execution issued after the registration of the mortgage.[44] In some states all the debtor's interest in realty passes by a duly recorded levy,[45] and creditors who have recorded their levy on property apparently belonging to the debtor have title superior to that of a grantee whose conveyance is unrecorded and of whose rights the creditors had no actual notice.[46] A constable who levies on property under an execution issued by a justice secures a lien prior to that of a sheriff who subsequently levies under execution issued by the circuit court.[47] The lien of an execution levied upon an indeterminate estate is lost by a conveyance by deed executed after the estate vested.[48] In Illinois the lien of a judgment ceases if execution is not issued thereon within a year; and a sale under execution issued after expiration of a year transfers no title as against bona fide purchasers before the issuance of such execution.[49]

A discharge in bankruptcy does not affect the lien of an execution levied on the bankrupt's property more than four months before the bankruptcy proceedings were instituted,[50] even though the judgment debt is proved as a claim secured by levy and a dividend based on the full amount of the judgment is paid thereon.[51] Nor is such lien affected by sale of the bankrupt's property in the bankruptcy proceeding.[52]

An execution and levy is entirely compatible with a continuing property right in the debtor sufficient at least for sale and transfer.[53] Where the debtor sells after execution and pays the debt, thereby satisfying the execution in full, his vendee acquires good title free from incumbrance.[54]

A levy upon a tenant's interest in a crop is valid as against the landlord's lien, if the crop is not removed from the premises,[55] but the landlord has such possessory rights therein as entitle him to prevent its removal and to maintain an action for the trial of the right of property in order to have the crop, if so removed, returned.[56]

(§ 8) F. Relinquishment and dissolution of levy.[57]

(§ 8) G. Release of property on receipts or forthcoming or delivery bonds.[58]—The forthcoming bond given by a claimant should be made payable to the levying officer and not to the plaintiff in execution.[59] But a bond may be defective in this respect and yet valid as a common-law obligation where it served the purpose for which it was given and effected a change of possession of the property from the officer to the claimant.[60]

43. Mitchell v. McLeod [Iowa] 104 N. W. 349.

44. Registration of mortgage is constructive notice to purchaser at subsequent execution sale. Howard v. Deens [Ala.] 39 So. 346.

45. Pub. St. 1901, c. 233, § 13. Butler v. Wheeler [N. H.] 59 A. 935.

46. Butler v. Wheeler [N. H.] 59 A. 935. Claim of creditors of the heir of one who was apparent owner, who have recorded their levy superior to claim of grantee under unrecorded conveyance. Id.

47. Miller v. Grady [Ark.] 88 S. W. 963.

48. Swerer v. Ohio Wesleyan University Trustees, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 333.

49. International Packing Co. v. Cichowicz, 114 Ill. App. 121.

50. Bassett v. Thackara [N. J. Law] 60 A. 39. A creditor who has reduced his claim to judgment and levied on a debtor's interest in property held in his wife's name, ten months before commencement of bankruptcy proceedings, is entitled to have a resulting trust in his favor established in equity, though he does not proceed in equity until after the bankruptcy. Tucker v. Denico [R. I.] 61 A. 642.

51. Bassett v. Thackara [N. J. Law] 60 A. 39.

52. Bassett v. Thackara [N. J. Law] 60 A. 39. See Bankruptcy, 5 C. L. 367.

53. Robinson v. Hart, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 299.

54. Vendee's title to goods as against creditors whose executions issue after the sale by the debtor is complete. Robinson v. Hart, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 299.

55. Groesbeck v. Evans [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. R. 659, 88 S. W. 889.

56. Groesbeck v. Evans [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. R. 659, 88 S. W. 889. See, also, Landlord and Tenant, 4 C. L. 389.

57, 58. See 3 C. L. 1402.

59. Civ. Code, 1895, § 4615. Wall v. Mount, 121 Ga. 831, 49 S. E. 778.

60. Having injured the plaintiff and benefited the principal in the bond. Wall v. Mount, 121 Ga. 831, 49 S. E. 778.

(§ 8) H. Liability of officer for loss of property levied upon.[61]

(§ 8) I. Liability for wrongful levy.[62]—Whether a seizure of goods under a writ was justifiable is a question of law.[63] An execution creditor is not liable for acts of the marshal in making a levy if he gave no specific directions regarding it.[64] A stranger whose property has been levied upon may maintain trespass, and, if the facts warrant, recover even vindictive damages,[65] or he may maintain trover or replevin;[66] but he cannot maintain both, and a successful resort to replevin bars a subsequent action of trespass.[67] Under a bond for the faithful discharge of his duties, an officer and his sureties are liable in damages for a levy on goods of one person under an execution against the goods of another.[68] But sureties of an officer are not proper parties to an action of claim and delivery against the sheriff, they not being in any way concerned in the seizure and detention of the goods.[69] Where the sheriff has sold the goods, the owner need not sue on the indemnifying bond but may sue to recover the property from the person then in possession,[70] and the sheriff is a proper party defendant in such suit.[71] One whose property has been sold under execution against another may recover its value at the time of the sale[72] with interest from that date.[73] In an action of claim and delivery by a mortgagee of goods wrongfully seized, where return of the goods cannot be had, the measure of damages is their value up to the amount of indebtedness, with accrued interest.[74] One against whom an execution has been wrongfully issued may recover damages for injuries to and use of property wrongfully withheld, even though he was engaged in an unlawful business, but he cannot recover a loss caused by an interference with such business.[75]

§ 9. Claims of third persons and trial thereof.[76]—The notice of a claim must be properly served on the officer[77] in due season,[78] and must properly describe the property claimed.[79] The object of the notice of ownership is to enable the sheriff to secure a proper indemnifying bond.[80] Hence, when that object is accomplished defects in the notice are immaterial.[81] No notice need be given by the true owner to the execution plaintiff.[82] Though one who claims property may interpose his claim

61, 62. See 3 C. L. 1402, and see Sheriffs and Constables, 4 C. L. 1442.

63. Claim and delivery action. Gallick v. Bordeaux [Mont.] 78 P. 583.

64. Milella v. Simpson, 94 N. Y. S. 464.

65. Harris v. Nelson, 113 Ill. App. 487.

66. Harris v. Nelson, 113 Ill. App. 487. Replevin lies by the true owner or person entitled to possession against the sheriff who has notice of the true ownership while in possession of the goods under the writ. Mitchell v. McLeod [Iowa] 104 N. W. 349.

67. Harris v. Nelson, 113 Ill. App. 487.

68. Frankenstein v. Cummisky, 92 N. Y. S. 708.

69. Gallick v. Bordeaux [Mont.] 78 P. 583.

70, 71. Mitchell v. McLeod [Iowa] 104 N. W. 349.

72. Where the constable, without manual seizure, wrongfully sells goods of the wife as property of the husband, and the purchaser pays his bid, takes a bill of sale, and leaves the goods on the premises, and there is no agreement between the purchaser and the husband or wife as to the sale or use of the goods, the wife may recover the value of the goods at the time of the sale. Mansfield v. Bell, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 447.

73. Johnson v. Gillen [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 135, 103 N. W. 547.

74. Not value of property and amount of indebtedness with interest. Gallick v. Bordeaux [Mont.] 78 P. 583.

75. Where execution was wrongfully levied on stock of liquors of one who was selling without a license, a recovery for spoiling of beer and for use of building was allowed, but not for wages paid help. Young v. Stevenson [Ark.] 86 S. W. 1000.

76. See 3 C. L. 1403.

77. Though former proceeding to try a claim to property levied on was dismissed because a notice of the claim was not personally delivered to the constable, a second proceeding need not be dismissed when based on a second notice properly given. Goltra v. Tice [N. J. Law] 60 A. 757.

78. Evidence held sufficient to show that notice was on day of sale and in due time to stop the sale. Brown v. Petersen, 25 App. D. C. 359.

79. Where the constable levied on property by naming several articles of the same kind as so many of the same kind, a claimant may prove claims under a notice describing the property in the same manner, without particularizing the articles claimed. Goltra v. Tice [N. J. Law] 60 A. 757.

80, 81, 82. Mitchell v. McLeod [Iowa] 104 N. W. 349.

through an agent or attorney,[83] it must be made in the name of the principal as owner,[84] and an agent, having no interest in the property cannot interpose a claim in his own name as owner.[85] Failure to file a claim will not estop the true owner from asserting his title by an action of trover against the purchaser at the execution sale, such owner having done nothing to mislead the purchaser as to his relation to the property.[86]

The officer is not bound to deliver possession of goods to a claimant if the execution plaintiff furnishes a proper indemnifying bond.[87] In Georgia a sheriff cannot put a purchaser in possession of land sold by him when another is holding it adversely to the execution defendant before the judgment against the defendant.[88] But when the person in possession brings the purchaser into a court of equity in a suit to restrain the sheriff from putting him into possession, the purchaser may by answer and cross bill put in issue the title and right to possession of the land, and such answer and cross bill should not be stricken.[89]

To be successful upon the trial of the claim, the claimant must show title in himself [90] at the time the lien of the judgment attached.[91] He cannot defeat a levy by showing paramount title in a third person,[92] unless he also shows that he has acquired it.[93] Under the Alabama statute a superior equitable title or a lien paramount to defendant's title is as available to a claimant as the legal title.[94] If the claim is based on a mortgage or lien the affidavit must state the nature of the right.[95] Proof of possession of the land levied on by the defendant in execution since the judgment casts the burden on a claimant to prove his title;[96] and proof that personalty levied on was in a house on the defendant's premises is prima facie proof of his ownership.[97] The character of defendant's possession of land may be shown[98]

A court will not, upon motion of one not a party to the action, undertake to determine title to property levied upon.[99] Hence, where a motion to quash a levy is made by one not a party on the ground that the property levied on belonged to him and not the debtor, refusal to grant the motion for want of power, not appealed from, is not a judicial determination of the title so as to bar a subsequent suit to determine the adverse interest acquired under the levy.[1]

The relief granted on trial of the claim must be authorized by the pleadings.[2]

§ 10. Appraisement.[3]—In Kansas no appraisement of real estate sold upon execution is required even where such sale is expressed to be subject to a mortgage.[4]

83. Civ. Code 1895, § 4611. Rowland v. Gregg [Ga.] 50 S. E. 949.

84. Rowland v. Gregg [Ga.] 50 S. E. 949.

85. Though a factor may do so. Rowland v. Gregg [Ga.] 50 S. E. 949.

86. Lawless v. Orr [Ga.] 50 S. E. 85.

87. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1220. Gallick v. Bordeaux [Mont.] 78 P. 583.

88, 89. Reaves v. Meredeth, 120 Ga. 727, 48 S. E. 199.

90. Evidence held to require verdict for claimant in trial of claim of title. Burkhalter v. Durden [Ga.] 50 S. E. 144. Evidence held to warrant finding that execution defendant owned property and that it was subject to levy. Smiley v. Padgett [Ga.] 50 S. E. 927.

91. Held, that if evidence showed a gift, from debtor to claimants, the date was not shown to be before the lien of the judgment attached. Donaldson v. Everett [Ga.] 50 S. E. 94.

92. Rowland v. Gregg [Ga.] 50 S. E. 949.

93. Bennett v. McKee [Ala.] 38 So. 129.

94. Under Code 1890, § 4141. Howard v Deens [Ala.] 39 So. 346.

95. Code 1896, § 4145. Bennett v. McKee [Ala.] 38 So. 129.

96. Claimant held to have shown perfect title in himself from the state. Rountree & Co. v. Gaulden [Ga.] 51 S. E. 346.

97. Bennett v. McKee [Ala.] 38 So. 129.

98. Rountree & Co. v. Gaulden [Ga.] 51 S. E. 346.

99, 1. Holmes v. Wolfard [Or.] 81 P. 819.

2. Where an execution is levied and a claim interposed, and the claimant files an equitable petition praying that in the event the property is found subject, the amount due on the execution be ascertained, offering to pay that amount, and the answer to such petition is purely defensive, a decree fixing an amount due by the execution defendant larger than the total amount due on the execution and charging the land therewith is not authorized by the pleadings. Austin v. Southern Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [Ga.] 50 S. E. 382.

3. See 3 C. L. 1404.

§ 11. Execution sales. In General.[5]—The sale must be for cash to the highest bidder,[6] and must be made by a person authorized by law to make it,[7] and at the place designated by the statute.[8] If the purchase price is not paid, the judgment is not satisfied and a second execution may issue.[9] When a plaintiff in execution becomes the purchaser of lands sold under it at his instance, the judgment is satisfied in whole, or in part to the amount of his bid;[10] and in the absence of fraud, imposition or surprise, he cannot repudiate the purchase nor resist entry of satisfaction because the defendant in execution had no title to or interest in the land.[11] But this rule does not apply to an incomplete sale not reported to or confirmed by the court,[12] and where the plaintiff purchases an equity of redemption, and the sale is never confirmed, he has the right to redeem from the mortgage as a judgment creditor.[13]

Rights and liabilities of purchaser.—An action for conversion lies against a purchaser who has knowledge of the ownership of a stranger.[14]

Since the sale must be for cash in Rhode Island, no action will lie against a bidder, who does not pay, for the amount of his bid.[15] In Pennsylvania, it is held that a purchaser who pays the amount required at the time of the sale, but fails to pay the balance when due is liable for the difference between the price paid by him and the smaller sum obtained at a second sale.[16] Whether notice to such purchaser that he will be held to his bid, or an immediate resale by the sheriff, is necessary to fix such liability, depends upon the terms of the sale as fixed by the notice.[17] Where

4. Armstead v. Jones [Kan.] 80 P. 56.

5. See 3 C. L. 1404.

NOTE. Applicability of statute of frauds to execution sales: Execution and sheriffs' sales are, by the great weight of authority, within the statute of frauds, and require some written memorandum to support them. Robinson v. Garth, 6 Ala. 204, 41 Am. Dec. 47; Chapman v. Harwood, 8 Blackf. [Ind.] 82, 44 Am. Dec. 736; Gossard v. Ferguson, 54 Ind. 519; Pepper v. Com., 6 T. B. Mon. [Ky.] 27; Barney v. Patterson, 6 Har. & J. [Md.] 182; Fenwick v. Floyd, 1 Har. & G. [Md.] 172; Evans v. Ashley, 8 Mo. 177; Alexander v. Merry, 9 Mo. 614; Joslin v. Ervien, 50 N. J. Law, 39, 12 A. 136; Jackson v. Catlin, 2 Johns. [N. Y.] 248, 3 Am. Dec. 415; Elfe v. Gadsden, 2 Rich. [S. C.] 373; Rugely v. Moore, 23 Tex. Civ. App. 10, 54 S. W. 379; Remington v. Linthicum, 14 Pet. [U. S.] 84, 10 Law. Ed. 364. Compare Emley v. Drum, 36 Pa. 123; Nichol v. Ridley, 5 Yerg. [Tenn.] 63, 26 Am. Dec. 254. If the property is struck off to a purchaser who fails to pay, and a resale is made for a less amount to a second purchaser, an action will not lie against the first purchaser to recover the difference, unless there is a memorandum in writing. Baker v. Jameson, 2 J. J. Marsh. [Ky.] 547. But see Cogwill v. Worden, 2 Blackf. [Ind.] 332. The statute of frauds has no application to the enforcement of a penalty for not completing the contract of sale agreed upon, by making a bid at an execution sale. Lockridge v. Baldwin, 20 Tex. 303, 70 Am. Dec. 385.—From 102 Am. St. Rep. 242.

6. Gerardi v. Caruolo [R. I.] 61 A. 599.

7. Only a constable can execute a writ of execution issued by a justice. Mills' Ann. St. § 2668. Stacy v. Bernard [Colo. App.] 78 P. 615. Sale by a person to whom execution was given by constable void, since the constable had no power to appoint a deputy for the purpose. Id.

8. Statutes fixing the place of sale of lands are mandatory and a sale at any other place is void. Sale by United States marshal void if outside county in which land was situated, unless at place where Federal court, was sitting, at defendant's written request. Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742.

9. Richardson v. Wymer [Va.] 51 S. E. 219. Where a party bids in land at a sale but does not pay any money and the sheriff does not indorse the executions as satisfied, they are not deemed satisfied and further proceedings thereon are not precluded. Andrews v. Scott, 113 Ill. App. 581.

10, 11, 12. McGaugh v. Deposit Bank of Frankfort [Ala.] 38 So. 181.

13. Code 1896, § 3510. McGaugh v. Deposit Bank of Frankfort [Ala.] 38 So. 181.

14. Where an execution purchaser was notified by the actual owner of the property sold as to his ownership, the fact that the execution defendant had remained in possession of the property as agent after a sale was immaterial on the issue of coversion by the execution purchaser. Sperling v. Stubblefield, 105 Mo. App. 489, 79 S. W. 1172.

15. Gerardi v. Caruolo [R. I.] 61 A. 599.

16. Hartman v. Pemberton, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 222.

17. Notice provided that balance of purchase money must be paid to sheriff at his office within ten days from time of sale, without further demand by the sheriff. Held, a bidder who pays the money in hand and signs the bid, is not released because, upon informing the attorneys of the partles that he would not perfect the sale, he was not at once notified that he would be held to his bid. Hartman v. Pemberton, 24 Pa.

a defaulting purchaser acts under the belief that it is customary for the sheriff to give notice of liens, he is not entitled to be relieved of liability for his bid, no fraud or misrepresentation being shown.[16] An action against a defaulting bidder is properly brought in the name of the sheriff alone, but the introduction of a use plaintiff will not defeat the action.[19]

Under the Iowa statute providing that a purchaser at a sale may recover the amount paid if the property was not in fact subject to the lien of the judgment, and that fact was unknown to the purchaser,[20] knowledge of a claim that the property was exempt is not sufficient to defeat a recovery, if the purchaser did not know that it actually was exempt.[21] The right of the purchaser to recover is not affected by the fact that the sale is set aside at the instance of the owner,[22] and that the purchaser resisted the suit brought by the owner.[23]

Fees and costs.—An action by a sheriff for fees and costs is premature if brought before such costs have been taxed and allowed according to law.[24]

§ 12. Return and confirmation of sale.[25]—The return must sufficiently describe the land sold,[26] and must set out every vital jurisdictional fact relative to the sale;[27] but if it otherwise complies with the spirit of the statute and is substantially correct in form, it is sufficient.[28] A sheriff's formal and correct return cannot be overthrown by parol.[29] Where the return shows a sale to one person, the court cannot compel the officer to return that he sold to another.[30] But if a return is false, the party injured has his remedy against the officer and his surety.[31] A return on an execution sale of land, does not transfer title but merely gives the right to demand a deed.[32]

A sale of an equity of redemption in Alabama is not complete or valid so as to amount to a satisfaction of the judgment, in whole or in part, until it has been confirmed by the court.[33] On an ex parte application to confirm, the court cannot look beyond the report of the sale;[34] and if such report, on its face, shows that the proceedings were regular, it is the duty of the court to confirm the sale.[35] In such case. the order of confirmation settles no question of fact or proposition of law as against the owner of the property sold.[36] Although a sale will be set aside where fraud, mistake or surprise is shown,[37] mere irregularities in proceedings leading up to or in the conduct of the sale are cured by confirmation by a court of competent jurisdiction [38] and are not sufficient to render the sale invalid.[39]

Super. Ct. 222. Since the purchase money was to be paid without further demand, a notice to the sheriff that the sale would not be perfected is of no avail, and the sheriff is not bound to immediately re-expose the property to sale. Id. Where the second bidder signs the bid and pays the bond money, the sheriff need not offer the property for sale a third time the same day. Id. A defaulting bidder cannot avoid liability for loss caused by a lower bid at a subsequent sale on the ground that the sale was not made the succeeding month, where it appears that after allowing the time provided for payment of the balance, such sale could not be made the succeeding month. Id.

18, 19. Hartman v. Pemberton, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 222.

20. Code, § 4034. Rosenberger v. Hawker [Iowa] 103 N. W. 781.

21. Purchaser held to have been ignorant of material facts, so that he did not in fact know the property was exempt. Rosenberger v. Hawker [Iowa] 103 N. W. 781.

22, 23. Rosenberger v. Hawker [Iowa] 103 N. W. 781.

24. Gen. Laws 1896, c. 247, § 17, and c. 295, §§ 13, 15, must be first complied with. Gerardi v. Caruolo [R. I.] 61 A. 599.

25. See 3 C. L. 1404.

26. Description held insufficient. Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742.

27. Return of sale outside county where land was failed to state that sale was at such place by defendant's written request. Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742.

28. Return—"and by returning this writ no other property found upon which to levy the writ"—held practically a return of nulla bona. Ables v. Webb. 186 Mo. 233, 85 S. W. 383.

29, 30, 31. Philadelphia Sav. Fund Soc. v. Purcell, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 205.

32. Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742.

33. McGaugh v. Deposit Bank of Frankfort [Ala.] 38 So. 181.

34, 35, 36. Crouch v. Dakota, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 101 N. W. 722.

37. Held v. Ebner [C. C. A.] 133 F. 156.

38. Answer alleging judgment, execution

§ 13. Redemption.[40]—To entitle a person to redeem, he must comply fully with the statutory requirements, or must show some valid reason for failure to do so in any particular.[41] Where the purchaser is absent from the state, a tender for the purpose of redemption must be made by payment of the money into court, on filing of the bill.[42] Where a purchaser resells portions of the land, the person seeking to redeem need not tender the amount required by law to each of the several owners, but may make a valid tender by paying the amount required into court for distribution.[43] An actual tender is unnecessary when the owners refuse any information as to improvements or other lawful charges.[44] It is a sufficient tender if the party to redeem makes diligent inquiry to ascertain the lawful charges, pays the charges he was able to ascertain into court and offers to pay all charges which may be ascertained under orders of the court.[45] The Alabama statute providing for a reference where parties cannot agree on the value of improvements has no application where one party remains outside the state and refuses to communicate with or accept any proposition from the party seeking to redeem.[46]

The assignee of a judgment creditor cannot redeem from an execution sale against the debtor, the right being personal to those named in the statute and non-assignable.[47] Since only the owner may redeem, a payment of the amount required by a third person and the giving of a receipt by the purchaser completes the redemption and revests title in the execution defendant.[48] Where an owner of land redeems but fails to file the purchaser's receipt with the clerk as he is permitted by law to do, a purchaser from the execution purchaser without notice of the owner's redemption, acquires a good title.[49] The owner may in such case reach the proceeds of the sale in the hands of the execution purchaser,[50] having given notice to the latter of his intention to stand upon his rights.[51]

A law extending the time of redemption is unconstitutional as to liens accruing before its enactment because it impairs the security in which the creditor has a vested right;[52] but a law reducing the interest rate upon a redemption is valid.[53]

§ 14. Title and rights acquired under sale, and evidence thereof.[54]—As in the case of other judicial sales, the rule of caveat emptor applies,[55] and the purchaser ordinarily acquires no better title than the debtor could have conveyed at the time the lien attached.[56] Thus the sale passes no title when the property sold was not sale thereon, confirmation thereof, and execution and recordation of marshal's deed, sufficiently alleges title. Heid v. Ebner [C. C. A.] 133 F. 156.

39. Heid v. Ebner [C. C. A.] 133 F. 156.

40. See 3 C. L. 1405.

41. Francis v. White [Ala.] 39 So. 174.

42, 43, 44. Absence of the purchaser or his vendee excuses a tender in person. Francis v. White [Ala.] 39 So. 174.

45. Allegations of bill to redeem held to show sufficient tender. Francis v. White [Ala.] 39 So. 174.

46. Code 1896, § 3517. Francis v. White [Ala.] 39 So. 174.

47. Under Code 1896, § 3510. Chambers v. Pollak [Ala.] 39 So. 316.

48, 49, 50. McMillan v. Bagby, 26 Ky. L. R. 1265, 83 S. W. 610.

51. Execution purchaser returned money paid to redeem, to the person paying it for the owner, and the owner wrote a letter asking about the transaction. McMillan v. Bagby, 26 Ky. L. R. 1265, 83 S. W. 610.

52. Welsh v. Cross [Cal.] 81 P. 229. St. 1897, p. 41, c. 44, amending Code Civ. Proc. § 702, by extending the time of redemption after sale to twelve months, does not apply to judgments existing at the time of its passage. Id.

53. It does not impair the security of the creditor nor affect injuriously the interest of the debtor. Welsh v. Cross [Cal.] 81 P. 29.

54. See 3 C. L. 1406.

55. Pullen v. Simpson [Ark.] 86 S. W. 801; Walkau v. Manitowoc Seating Co., 105 Ill. App. 130; Rippe v. Badger, 125 Iowa, 725, 101 N. W. 642.

56. Rippe v. Badger, 125 Iowa, 725, 101 N. W. 642. A purchaser buys at his own risk and takes the title of the defendant in execution as it is. Hartman v. Pemberton, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 222. A creditor who acquires title to his debtor's real property by attachment and sale on execution is not a bona fide purchaser, but takes only such interest as the debtor had therein. Where debtor had only legal title, equitable title being in others, creditor acquired nothing by sale. Lee v. Wrixon, 37 Wash. 47, 79 P. 489. A judgment creditor is not a bona fide subject to execution,[57] as where title was in another than the judgment debtor.[58] But the purchaser will be protected against outstanding equities of which he had no notice, actual or constructive, before the sale.[59] The levy of the execution on land as the property of the debtor and its sale and purchase as such are conclusive on the purchaser as to the debtor's interest,[60] and the judgment plaintiff is estopped to assert that the property sold was less than claimed by him.[61] A purchaser is chargeable with notice of facts disclosed by the record of the proceedings in the case which resulted in the judgment on which his rights are based.[62] The record of a prior mortgage is constructive notice to a purchaser, and he is bound by the facts disclosed by such record.[63] One who purchases an equity of redemption is subrogated to the rights and subject to the disabilities of the execution defendant.[64] He may maintain ejectment against the mortgagor and the latter will not be allowed to set up an outstanding title in the mortgagee to defeat the action.[65] But the purchaser cannot maintain such action against the mortgagee in possession.[66]

Rights to possession of realty.—A purchaser of realty at an execution sale is not entitled, as against the judgment debtor or his successor in interest, to possession of the property prior to the expiration of the period of redemption,[67] and is not entitled to have a receiver appointed before that time to care for the property.[68] When the right of redemption no longer exists, his possession and estate are complete, although the technical naked legal or record title remains in the judgment debtor until execution and delivery of the sheriff's deed.[69] Failure of a purchaser to demand possession is a valid reason for failing to deliver it.[70] Proceedings to secure possession of realty after sheriff's sale are statutory in Pennsylvania[71] and New York.[72] purchaser. When he levies upon property under his execution he parts with nothing in exchange for his property, nor does he take it in satisfaction of a precedent debt. He has a lien upon the interest of the debtor only, and he must yield to every equitable claim which exists in third persons. Magerstadt v. Schaefer, 110 Ill. App. 166.

57. Woman's Christian Nat. Library Ass'n v. Fordyce [Ark.] 86 S. W. 417.

58. Where legal title and possession is in another than the debtor, the purchaser acquires no title. Magoffin v. San Antonio Brewing Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 843.

59. Purchaser not protected where inquiry of one in possession would have disclosed outstanding equities. Rippe v. Badger, 125 Iowa, 725, 101 N. W. 642. Where property is reduced to possession by sale to an execution creditor under his own execution, he takes it free of claims of which he had no notice, and can assign it free of said claims to one having notice of them; but a stranger with such notice cannot by becoming purchaser at the execution sale take the property discharged of the claims. Walkau v. Manitowoc Seating Co., 105 Ill. App. 130. The rule that where plaintiff in execution, or his attorney, purchases at the sale for an inadequate price, he cannot be considered a bona fide purchaser, applies only where the purchaser claims to have purchased without notice of prior conveyance. Clark v. Bell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 767, 89 S. W. 38.

60. Francis v. White [Ala.] 39 So. 174.

61. One who had treated certain lumber as a part of his realty in previous litigation was estopped to claim it was personalty, so that title to it did not pass upon sale of the realty under execution. Potvin v. Denny Hotel Co., 37 Wash. 323, 79 P. 940.

62. Hence he is deemed to have constructive notice of the fact that no execution has been issued on the judgment within a year after its rendition. International Packing Co. v. Cichowicz, 114 Ill. App. 121.

63. Hartman v. Pemberton, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 222.

64, 65, 66. Carter v. Smith [Ala.] 38 So. 184.

67. Mau, Sadler & Co. v. Kearney, 143 Cal. 506, 77 P. 411. The purchaser is said to have an inchoate right to possession and title from the day of the sale, subject to be defeated by redemption until the period for redemption has expired. Pogue v. Simon [Or.] 81 P. 566.

68. Mau, Gadler & Co. v. Kearney, 143 Cal. 506, 77 P. 411.

69. The purchaser's interest when right of redemption has ceased to exist is subject to levy and sale under execution. Pogue v. Simon [Or.] 81 P. 566.

70. Francis v. White [Ala.] 39 So. 174.

71. A petition in a proceeding to secure possession of realty after a sheriff's sale is not subject to exception because of the absence of an allegation that respondent was in possession by title derived from defendant in execution, subsequently to the judgment on which the land was sold. Under Act June 16, 1836. Moore v. Moore, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 73.

72. In the statutory summary proceeding to remove a defendant from property sold on execution against him, the defendant may show that the person procuring execution

The sheriff's deed.[73]—The sheriff is not bound to tender a deed before payment of the purchase money.[74] A deed will not be presumed to have been made unless the purchaser shows that he went into possession under the sale and continued in possession.[75] Where a sale of realty is made subject to the right of redemption, the issuance of a certificate of purchase is not a prerequisite to the execution of a sheriff's deed to the property sold.[76] Realty being sold subject to redemption, the sheriff in office when the right to a deed accrues is the proper person to make the deed.[77] The sheriff's deed as acknowledged is prima facie evidence of payment of the purchase money and of valid title in the grantees therein named.[78] But to authorize a recovery on such a deed in an action of ejectment, it must appear that there was a valid judgment, execution, levy, sale and deed, and that defendant had an estate or interest in the land subject to execution.[79] The deed relates back to and is controlled by the power conferred by the execution upon the officer making it.[80] Where part of the property levied on is claimed as a homestead, the deed need not recite that the debtor was given opportunity to designate the portion he desired to claim as his exemption, though such recital is essential in the officer's return.[81] Misrecitals in a deed will not defeat a recovery by the person holding it in an action of ejectment brought by him.[82] A deed which is void on its face cannot be reformed where the execution and proceedings thereunder contain the same imperfection.[83]

§ 15. Legal and equitable remedies against defective or improper levy or sale.[84]—A sale of land on execution issued from the circuit court on a justice's transcript is not subject to collateral attack on the ground that the justice's prior execution was not issued to the proper constable,[85] nor on the ground that the justice's prior execution was returned before the return day.[86] In Massachusetts the premature issuance of the execution renders it absolutely void, and hence open to collateral attack,[87] but the general rule is that it is a mere irregularity.[88]

Injunction against levy or sale.[89]—The issuance of an execution on a default judgment entered contrary to an understanding between the attorneys,[90] and the enforcement of an execution issued under a void order,[91] may be enjoined. A suit to restrain service of execution on the ground that judgment by confession was entered in another court by mistake will not lie until correction of the record has been made by the court having control of it.[92] Equity will not interfere in such case when the did not at the time own the judgment. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2242, 2244, allowing in such proceeding new matter constituting a legal or equitable defense. Mawson v. Wermuth [N. Y.] 74 N. E. 829.

73. See 3 C. L. 1406.

74. Hartman v. Pemberton, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 222.

75. Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742.

76, 77. Armstead v. Jones [Kan.] 80 P. 56.

78. Deed to firm not overthrown by proof of return showing sale to purchaser who was member of the firm. Jackson v. Gunton, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 203.

79. Carter v. Smith [Ala.] 38 So. 184.

80. Sheriff's deed reciting an execution directing seizure and sale of property of the C. M. Landon Milling Co., does not convey title to C. M. Landon's property even though it is shown by extrinsic proof that the latter owned the property and conducted his business in the former name, and that the judgment was on a note given by him. Landon v. Morris [Ark.] 86 S. W. 672.

81. Kessner v. Phillips [Mo.] 88 S. W. 66.

82. Armstead v. Jones [Kan.] 80 P. 56.

83. Landon v. Morris [Ark.] 86 S. W. 672.

84. See 3 C. L. 1408.

85, 86. Ables v. Webb, 186 Mo. 233, 85 S. W. 383.

87. Fact that it is issued within twenty-four hours after judgment contrary to Pub. St. 1882, c. 171, §§ 15, 16. Washington Nat. Bank v. Williams [Mass.] 74 N. E. 470.

88. 8 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 345.

89. See 3 C. L. 1408.

90. Where both attorneys understood a justice case was to be continued, but plaintiff himself had a default judgment entered, and defendant's attorney did not learn of it until too late to appeal, execution on the judgment should be enjoined. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Flowers [Miss.] 38 So. 37.

91. McConkie v. Landt, 126 Iowa, 317, 101 N. W. 1121.

92, 93. Hearn v. Canning [R. I.] 61 A. 602.

judgment would not have been entered but for negligence of the party or his attorney.[93] In a suit to restrain enforcement of a judgment, an allegation that plaintiff believes and is informed that defendant claims to own the judgment sufficiently alleges ownership.[94]

Equity will not enjoin a sale of land under execution issued on a judgment void on its face,[95] but an injunction is the proper remedy when the defect in the judgment must be shown by facts outside the record.[96] Existence of a meritorious defense is not essential if the judgment is without jurisdiction.[97] In the absence of fraud,[98] gross injustice, irremediable injury, or other ground of equitable jurisdiction, a court of chancery will not restrain a threatened sale under execution against one person of property claimed by another,[99] though the latter has filed a bill to quiet title.[1] A court of equity will never enjoin a levy upon and sale of personal property, unless it is of such peculiar and intrinsic value to the owner that its loss cannot be adequately compensated in damages.[2] The ordinary remedy is by an action of trespass or other appropriate action in a court of law.[3] An unregistered equitable owner of shares of stock may not restrain a levy and sale against the registered owner, where the levy and sale is of the stock as registered and transfers to the purchaser only the rights of the registered owner subject to the equitable rights of the unregistered owner.[4] Wrongful levy on books of a mercantile agency and threatened disclosure of their contents constitutes an irreparable injury, and such levy will be enjoined.[5]

Affidavits of illegality.—In Georgia, the sufficiency or validity of an execution or levy thereof may be tested by filing an affidavit of illegality, and until such affidavit is filed, an execution issued is a final process.[6] An execution against property described as that of a certain named person, "executor," is presumed, nothing else appearing, to be against such person individually as owner.[7] So, too, an affidavit of illegality wherein the same descriptive language is used, is presumed to be inter-

94. Phillips v. Norton [S. D.] 101 N. W. 727.

95, 96. Henman v. Westheimer, 110 Mo. App. 191, 85 S. W. 101.

97. Schiele v. Thede, 126 Iowa, 398, 102 N. W. 133.

98. Failure to execute judgments when creditors saw improvements being made by others on the property is not fraud. West Jersey & S. R. Co. v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 757.

99. West Jersey & S. R. Co. v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 757. Where property, legal title to and possession of which is in one person, is levied on as the property of another, the holder of the legal title is not entitled to an injunction to restrain the sale. The title acquired by the execution purchaser will not be a cloud on the real owner's title. Magoffin v. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 843.

Contra: The privilege of one whose real property is levied upon under an execution against another to make a motion in the case in which the execution was issued to release the property from such levy does not afford him an adequate legal remedy so as to preclude a right to an injunction to restrain the sale. Gale Mfg. Co. v. Sleeper [Kan.] 79 P. 648. Where it is clear that defendant in the judgment has no shadow of title or interest which can be sold, equity will restrain the sale in order to prevent the casting of a shadow on the title of the real owner. Barrell v. Adams, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 635.

1. The sole question is whether certain judgments are valid liens against property claimed by another, and this is a legal, not an equitable, question. West Jersey & S. R. Co. v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 757.

2. Florida Packing & Ice Co. v. Carney [Fla.] 38 So. 602. Sale of shares of stock not enjoined, when it was not shown that property was of peculiar value or that irreparable damage would result. Boone v. Van Gorder [Ind.] 74 N. E. 4.

3. Florida Paking & Ice Co. v. Carney [Fla.] 38 So. 602.

4. Construing Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 735. Boone v. Van Gorder [Ind.] 74 N. E. 4.

5. Sinsabaugh v. Dun, 214 Ill. 70, 73 N. E. 390.

6. Unless an execution issued upon foreclosure of a chattel mortgage be arrested by counter affidavit, it is final process. Ford v. Fargason, 120 Ga. 708, 48 S. E. 180. An execution issued on foreclosure of a laborer's lien. Moultrie Lumber Co. v. Jenkins, 121 Ga. 721, 49 S. E. 678. Affidavit taken by attorney representing affiant in resisting execution was void and did not convert the execution into a mesne process returnable into court. Id. Hence consideration of sufficiency of levy was properly refused and proceeding was properly dismissed. Id.

7. "Exec." following the name is merely posed by such person individually as owner,[8] especially where it alleges that the property is held by him as an individual and not as executor for any estate.[9] Such affidavit should not therefore be dismissed on the ground that it shows that the affiant had no interest in the property at the time of the levy, and that only the executor of the estate referred to could interpose the affidavit.[10] The only persons authorized to file an affidavit as against an execution issued on foreclosure of a chattel mortgage are the mortgagor, his special agent or legal representative, and his creditors.[11] When such an execution is levied upon the mortgaged property and a claim is interposed thereto, the claimant, upon trial of the claim, cannot amend the same by alleging that the mortgagor is not indebted to the mortgagee nor introduce evidence tending to show it.[12] Where the ground of an affidavit of illegality interposed to the levy of a common-law execution is that it has been partially paid, the amount admitted to be due must be paid in order to stay the execution.[13] But where the ground of the illegality is that the execution has been fully paid, the sheriff is bound to accept it, and await the result of the trial of the issue so made.[14] If, upon trial, it should be proved that the execution has been only partially paid, the plaintiff would be entitled to a verdict that the execution proceed for the balance shown to be really due thereon and not for the amount apparently due from the execution itself.[15] When an affidavit of illegality is interposed to the levy and returned to a county court for trial, no notice of the time and place of hearing need be given to the party filing the affidavit.[16] Where an execution has been levied on the property of the principal debtor, he cannot resist it by an affidavit of illegality setting up that the judgment is void as against the sureties named as co-defendants therein.[17]

Setting aside the sale.[18]—A court may, before a deed has issued, set aside an execution sale and the certificate of sale, upon motion made before the time of redemption expires and upon notice to the purchaser and parties to the action.[19] A purchaser who has parted with his interest cannot complain of want of notice of a motion to vacate the sale.[20] Inadequacy of price is not alone ground for setting aside a sale;[21] but gross inadequacy, coupled with even slight evidence of irregularity or fraud, may be.[22] A sale of property previously conveyed by the debtor in fraud of creditors will not be set aside at the instance of the fraudulent grantee on the ground of inadequacy of price.[23]

§ 16. Restitution on reversal of judgment.[24]—Where payment of a judgment has been coerced by execution and the judgment is afterwards reversed and the suit descriptive. Stephens v. Atlanta, 119 Ga. 666, 46 S. E. 872.

8, 9, 10. Stephens v. Atlanta, 119 Ga. 666, 46 S. E. 872.

11, 12. Ford v. Fargason, 120 Ga. 708, 48 S. E. 180.

13, 14, 15. Equitable Mortg. Co. v. Montfort, 121 Ga. 696, 49 S. E. 715.

16. Berry v. Jordan, 121 Ga. 537, 49 S. E. 607.

17. Levadas v. Beach, 119 Ga. 613, 46 S. E. 864.

18. See 3 C. L. 1407.

19. International Packing Co. v. Cichowicz, 114 Ill. App. 121. The court entering judgment by confession may upon a proper showing quash a writ of execution issued thereon, set aside a sale, and open the judgment, though the purchaser was not a party to the suit, where it appeared that such purchaser made the affidavit attached to the cognovit and deposed that he was the duly authorized agent of the plaintiff in such suit. Parker v. Crilly, 113 Ill. App. 309.

20. Real party in interest had actual notice and appeared. Bank v. Doherty, 37 Wash. 32, 79 P. 486.

21. Bank v. Doherty, 37 Wash. 32, 79 P. 486; McCoy v. Brooks [Ariz.] 80 P. 365; Clark v. Bell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 767, 89 S. W. 38.

22. Clark v. Bell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 767, 89 S. W. 38. Note and mortgage for $2,400 sold for $110.20 and purchaser transferred to administrator of a mortgagor. Sale set aside. Bank v. Doherty, 37 Wash. 32, 79 P. 486. Where price was inadequate, and officer exceeded his authority by selling more property than was necessary, and refused to accept payment of the amount of the judgment and costs, sale set aside. McCoy v. Brooks [Ariz.] 80 P. 365.

23. Clark v. Bell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 767, 89 S. W. 38.

24. See 3 C. L. 1408.

dismissed, the party paying has a right to restitution without regard to the merits of the suit or whether the dismissal operated as a retraxit,[25] and is entitled to interest on the amount paid from the time of the reversal.[26]

EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS; EXEMPLARY DAMAGES, see latest topical index.

EXEMPTIONS.

§ 1. The right to exemptions generally.[27]—Exemption laws should be liberally construed in favor of the debtor.[28] They have no extra territorial effect;[29] and relate to the remedy and not to the contract.[30] Hence when sued abroad, the debtor cannot claim the exemptions allowed by his domicile[31] even though his creditor also resides there if the debt has no situs at the domicile.[32] But it has been held that garnishee process in a state foreign to all the parties will not reach wages earned and exempt at the domicile.[33] An exemption from "execution" will include garnishment and other mesne process.[34] Being remedial, exemption laws may apply to existing judgments,[35] and an extension of the right does not impair contract obligations.[36] Where the constitution directs the passage of laws protecting "homestead and other property," a limitation of legislative power to such property is not implied[37] but its power is plenary.[38] A nonforfeitable exemption may be conferred despite a constitutional provision that a debtor may waive exemptions.[39] State exemptions are recognized in bankruptcy courts, but are enforced according to bankruptcy procedure.[40] The provision of the Bankruptcy act that the bankrupt may save his life insurance by paying its surrender value, if any, to the trustee, is to be read with the provision excepting exempt property and that adopting the state exemption laws; hence whatever life insurance policies are exempted by the state are beyond the trustee's control.[41]

25. Florence Cotton & Iron Co. v. Louisville Banking Co. [Ala.] 36 So. 456. Where land is sold under judgment on a scire facias sur mortgage and on appeal without supersedeas the judgment is reversed, restitution is made only of the money or price for which the lands were sold. Proceeds of the sale, after deducting costs and liens discharged thereby, are to be distributed to defendant. Lengert v. Chaninel, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 626.

26. Florence Cotton & Iron Co. v. Louisville Banking Co. [Ala.] 36 So. 456.

27. See 3 C. L. 1408.

28. Their purpose is to protect the debtor's dependent family. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank v. Hoffman [Neb.] 96 N. W. 1044; Bank of Gulfport v. O'Neal [Mass.] 38 So. 630.

29. National Tube Co. v. Smith [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 717.

30, 31, 32. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 49 S. E. 173, 67 L. R. A. 209, with note. See, also, note 19 L. R. A. 577. Determined by the law of the state where debtor resides and is sued. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556.

33. When the creditor, debtor and garnishee at the time of the creation of both debts are all residents and doing business in the same state, the exemption of wages is such an incident and condition of the debt from the employer that it will follow the debt if the debt follows the person of the garnishee into another state, and attach itself to every process of collection in any state, unless jurisdiction is obtained over the person of the principal debtor. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. McDonald, 112 Ill. App. 391.

34. Code, § 493; Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 49 S. E. 173, 67 L. R. A. 209.

35. Meyer v. Halberstadt, 44 Misc. 408, 89 N. Y. S. 1019.

36. Richardson v. Kaufman [Ala.] 39 So. 368.

37, 38. Holden v. Stratton, 198 U. S. 202, 49 Law. Ed. 1018.

39. Richardson v. Kaufman [Ala.] 39 So. 368.

40. Lipman v. Stein [C. C. A.] 134 F. 235; Burke v. Guarantee Title & Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 134 F. 562. See full treatment in Bankruptcy, § 16, 5 C. L. 396.

41. Construing Bankr. Act. §§ 6, 70a. Hol-

§ 2. Persons who may claim.[42]—Exemption laws are generally limited to certain classes such as head of families, laborers, etc.[43] The headship of a family and right of exemption may devolve on the wife by the husband's desertion [44] but his title endures.[45] Unless the statute is restrictive, nonresidents may avail of it.[46] One living on an Indian reservation is a resident of the state embracing it.[47] The right is personal to the debtor and is not assignable.[48] den v. Stratton, 198 U. S. 202, 49 Law. Ed. 1018.

42. See 3 C. L. 1409.

43. Jarboe v. Jarboe, 106 Mo. App. 459, 79 S. W. 1162.

Head of a family: Jarboe v. Jarboe, 106 Mo. App. 459, 79 S. W. 1162. A person furnishing a home for himself, his mother, two minor brothers and an invalid sister, and furnishing groceries and money for their support is the head of a family, within a statute fixing the amount of wages which shall be exempt. Id. A widower, who is living with his own mother, cannot be said to be a man of family, and entitled to the special exemption allowed to one with a family, because he contributes something toward the support of a stepchild, who has never been formally declared to be his own child, and who lives with her maternal grandmother. Kraft v. Wolf, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 105. A stepchild is not the child of her stepfather within the meaning of the act providing for exemption in lieu of homestead, unless so declared to be by the probate court under sections 3137a and 3139. Id.

Laborers: Schroeder v. Collins, 113 La. 778, 37 So. 722 A railroad switchman is a laborer under statutes exempting "laborers' wages" from seizure under execution. Schroeder v. Collins, 113 La. 778, 37 So. 722.

Note: In an exhaustive monographic annotation at 102 Am. St. Rep. 81, are collected the cases interpreting the various statutes allowing exemptions to "laborers," "mechanics," etc., and exempting "wages," "salaries," "earnings," etc., of such persons; also the cases falling under statutes providing for exemptions to "householders," "heads of families," etc. An extract from that note is appended.

Meaning of terms "wages" and "salary:" "The word 'wages' means the compensation paid to a hired person for his services. This compensation to the laborer may be a specified sum for a given time of service or a fixed sum or a specified piece of work, that is, payment may be by the job. The word 'wages' does not imply that the compensation is to be determined solely upon the basis of time spent in the service, but it may also be determined by the work done. 'Wages' means compensation estimated in either way." Ford v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 54 Iowa, 728, 7 N. W. 126. See, also, Freeman, Executions, § 234; Swift, etc., Co. v. Henderson, 99 Ga. 136, 25 S. E. 27; Moore v. Heaney, 14 Md. 559; Hamberger v. Marcus, 157 Pa. 133, 27 A. 681, 37 Am. St. Rep. 719; Adcock v. Smith, 97 Tenn. 373, 37 S. W. 91, 56 Am. St. Rep. 812. In Fox v. McClay, 48 Neb. 820, 67 N. W. 888, it was held that the term "wages" also includes the idea not merely of one person working for another, but also that he shall work under the direction of the latter and not as an independent contractor. In South, etc., R. Co. v. Falkner, 49 Ala. 115, the court, in discussing the question said: "The act referred to provides 'that hereafter the wages of laborers and employes shall not be subject to garnishment or attachment except for public dues.' The president of a railroad company cannot be said to be a laborer or employe within this law. The term 'wages' indicates inconsiderable pay, without excluding 'salary'—which is suggestive of larger compensation for personal services. But its application to laborers and employes certainly conveys the idea of a subordinate occupation which is not very remunerative; one of not much independent responsibility, but rather subject to immediate supervision."

The distinction between wages and salary was also adverted to in Bell v. Indian Livestock Co. [Tex.] 11 S. W. 344, wherein it was said: "'Wages' are the compensation given to a hired person for service, and the same is true of 'salary.' The words seem to be synonymous, convertible terms, though we believe that use and general acceptation have given to the word 'salary' a significance somewhat different from the word 'wages' in this: that the former is understood to relate to position or office, to be the compensation given for official or other service, as distinguished from 'wages,' the compensation for labor. It is of little or no importance, however, in determining the question now being discussed whether the distinction here suggested be recognized or not. We have to deal with the phrase 'current wages,' without other limitation as to time or amount, and we think the exemption would apply without regard to whether the compensation be called 'wages' or 'salary.'"

In Hamberger v. Marcus, 157 Pa. 133, 37 Am. St. Rep. 719, 27 A. 681, it was held that the difference between "wages" and "salary" was immaterial in determining the question of exemption. In McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Vaughn, 130 Ala. 314, 30 So. 363, it was held that wages, salary, or compensation for personal services was personal property within the meaning of the exemption laws. And in Magers v. Dunlap, 39 Ill. App. 618, it was held that the insertion of the words "for labor" in a note given to a physician for his services do not import that the consideration was wages as a laborer or servant within the meaning of the exemption laws.—From note to Tabb v. Mallette [Ga.] 102 Am. St. Rep. 94.

44, 45. She may claim the benefit of the exemptions but the husband's desertion does not transfer the title of his exempt property to his wife nor divest him of power to create a lien thereon. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank v. Hoffman [Neb.] 96 N. W. 1044.

46. Code, § 493, entitles non-resident. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 49 S. E. 173, 67 L. R. A. 209; Campbell v. Bennington, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 447.

47. Coey v. Cleghorn [Idaho] 79 P. 72.

§ 3. Goods and other chattel properties exempted.[49]—The statutes of the several states enumerate the articles which are exempt from execution. Most states exempt, in case there is no homestead or in addition thereto,[50] debtor's earnings for a certain period,[51] wearing apparel of debtor and his family,[52] articles used in conducting debtor's business,[53] necessary tools and implements of a mechanic or miner or other person necessary to carry on trade,[54] a certain amount of growing crops,[55] household furniture up to a certain value,[56] provisions and forage on hand necessary for home consumption for a certain period,[57] a seat or pew occupied by judgment debtor or the family in place of public worship, and a lot in a burying ground.[58] Many exempt moneys and benefits growing out of life insurance policies,[59] pension moneys, or that in which they are invested.[60] Property owned by municipal corporations for public purposes is exempt from execution.[61]

§ 4. Debts and liabilities inferior or superior to right of exemption.[62]—Purchase-money liens [63] and liens for rent or advances to mature a crop which is the subject of the levy,[64] are examples of liens made by statute superior to exemption. In some states, the exemption is only against contract debts.[65] The statutes of Missouri now provide that no property shall be exempt from an execution based on a 48. In re Sloan, 135 F. 873; Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667.

49. See 3 C. L. 1409.

50. See infra, this section, and as to exempt homesteads, see Homesteads, 3 C. L. 1630.

51. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 49 S. E. 173. Under provisions of Code N. C. § 493, providing that the earning of a debtor for his personal services for the sixty days next preceding shall be exempt from execution, such earnings are protected from seizure in garnishment. Id. Salary due school teacher in city schools. Flood v. Libby [Wash.] 80 P. 533.

See, also, annotation in section 2, ante.

52. Jackman v. Lambertson [Kan.] 80 P. 55.

53. O'Reilly v. Erlanger, 92 N. Y. S. 56. The question as to whether the articles are of the character claimed is for the jury. Id.

54. Williams v. Vincent [Kan.] 79 P. 121. A bowling alley is not exempt from seizure on execution as the tools or implements of the keeper's trade or business. Id. A person who is the head of a family and whose principal business is running a threshing machine is included in the phrase "or other person" as used in subd. 8, § 3018, Gen. St. Kan. 1901. Jackman v. Lambertson [Kan.] 80 P. 55. A threshing machine is an implement under subdivision 8, § 3018, Gen. St. Kan. 1901, and is exempt from execution when used for purpose of carrying on debtor's business. Id.

55. Shirling v. Kennon, 119 Ga. 501, 46 S. E. 630.

56. Williams v. Vincent [Kan.] 79 P. 121.

57. Bell v. Fox [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 384.

58. Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667.

59. Holmes v. Marshall, 145 Cal. 777, 79 P. 534. Endowment is "life" policy within Laws 1897, p. 70. Flood v. Libby [Wash.] 80 P. 533; Holden v. Stratton, 198 U. S. 202, 49 Law. Ed. 1018. The same statute includes policies payable to debtor's "estate," "executors" or "assigns." Id.

Note: The court in Holden v. Stratton, 198 U. S. 202, 49 Law. Ed. 1018, calls attention to the fact that the Washington statute is more than ordinarily broad and therefore holds inapplicable precedents arising under the laws of other states.

60. Lands bought with such moneys. In re Stafford, 94 N. Y. S. 194. After the pensioner's death such land may be sold to pay his debts. Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667. The authorities are conflicting as to whether the exemption of pension moneys provided for by the Federal statutes operates to exempt also property purchased with pension. The weight of authority seems to be that it does not. This has been regulated in some states by statute. Smyth v. Hall, 126 Iowa, 627, 102 N. W. 520. Iowa Code, § 4009, exempting property purchased with pension money, operates to exempt land paid for with pension money, and with the proceeds of a sale, after purchase of the land and coal rights therein, as such coal rights constitute an interest in the land, and are not merely the increase or produce desired from the land. Id.

61. Equitable Loan & Security Co. v. Edwardsville [Ala.] 38 So. 1016. A municipality in conducting a liquor dispensary under the Georgia statute is exercising a governmental function and the stock of liquors owned and carried by it in the dispensary constitutes property used for municipal purposes although profits may incidentally result to the municipality from the sale of such liquors, within the meaning of Code 1896, § 2040, exempting property belonging to municipal corporations and used for municipal purposes, from levy and sale under execution. Id.

62. See 3 C. L. 1411.

63. No property is exempt from a levy under a judgment for its purchase price. Liddell v. Jones [Ark.] 88 S. W. 961.

64. The landlord's special lien for rent upon the crops raised on the rented premises is superior to an exemption set apart in such crops under Ga. Civ. Code 1895, § 2866. Shirling v. Kennon, 119 Ga. 501, 46 S. E. 630.

65. Miller v. Minturn [Ark.] 83 S. W. 918. A judgment against a physician for unskillful treatment is not a debt by contract. Id.

judgment for alimony.[66] A husband who is divested of his headship of the family may nevertheless create superior liens on the exempt property.[67]

A waiver of exemptions in a judgment note makes the creditor stand prior to a trustee in bankruptcy in respect to the property.[68] In bankruptcy one who has a priorty by reason of a waiver of exemptions may be allowed his claim out of the proceeds of exemptions which have come into the trustee's hands though no levy was ever made by the creditor.[69]

§ 5. Loss of exemption rights.[70]—In those states where the terms of the statute are not decisive,[71] there is a conflict of authority as to whether exemptions may be waived or lost by estoppel.[72] In New York it is held that a statute prescribing a method does not exclude others.[73] It may be waived by failure to claim the right until after bona fide purchases intervene,[74] or by procuring one's acceptance as surety by misrepresentation as to nonexempt worth,[75] but inaction when there is no occasion to assert the right, is not a waiver,[76] nor is representation an estoppel if reliance thereon wrought no prejudice.[77] An assignment of the right to exemptions operates as an abandonment of that right.[78] An executory waiver will, however, protect the creditor when the debtor's estate is in bankruptcy.[79] Moneys "growing out" of life insurance do not lose that character by mere transfer into the custody of the beneficiary.[80] His creditors as well as those of insured are subject to the exemption.[81]

§ 6. Selling or transferring exempt property.[82]—Exempt property may be

66. Acts 1903, p. 240. Myher v. Myher [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 116. On an execution levied before that act it was held that wages were so exempt. Jarboe v. Jarboe, 106 Mo. App. 459, 79 S. W. 1162, 3 C. L. 1411, n. 57.

67. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank v. Hoffman [Neb.] 96 N. W. 1044.

68. A Federal trustee in bankruptcy is not entitled to the bankrupt's exemption of $300, against a creditor who has attached the same by an attachment execution and served within four months prior to the bankruptcy, on a judgment waiving exemption. Sharp v. Woolslare, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 251.

69. Where a lease to a bankrupt contained a waiver of exemptions, and the landlord proved his claim for rent before the referee, he was entitled to receive such rent as a prior claim out of the proceeds of property from which the bankrupt claimed his exemption, which was subject to distress for rent, though the landlord made no levy either before or after the filing of the bankruptcy petition. In re Sloan, 135 F. 873.

70. See 3 C. L. 1411.

71. Miller v. Almon [Ga.] 50 S. E. 993. Cannot waive exemption of $25 wages under Acts 1898-99, p. 37. Richardson v. Kaufman [Ala.] 39 So. 368.

72. McMahon v. Cook, 94 N. Y. S. 1018, and see 3 C. L. 1411.

73. N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 1404, providing that exemption of real estate may be canceled in a certain way, and that any other release or waiver of an exemption is void, does not prevent one from estopping himself to claim property as exempt. McMahon v. Cook, 94 N. Y. S. 1018.

74. Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667.

75. McMahon v. Cook, 94 N. Y. S. 1018. Fraud is not necessary to such an estoppel. Id.

76. Not lost by failure to claim when not requested to do so by the levying officer as provided by statute. Code 1892, § 1966. Bank of Gulfport v. O'Neal [Miss.] 38 So. 630.

77. By representing that a stranger was owner of defendant's exempt property whereby a levy was forborne, he does not waive his own exemption. It being leviable in neither event the creditor suffered no prejudice. Bank of Gulfport v. O'Neal [Miss.] 38 So. 630. Where it is shown that an attachment was levied upon certain personal property exempt by law from seizure under an attachment or execution proceeding, and at the time the levy was made the attached party disclaimed ownership and thereafter the attachment is discharged on motion and a second writ of attachment is issued and levied on all or part of the property originally levied upon, and at the second levy the property is claimed under the exemption laws of the state, held that under the facts in the case his first disclaimer did not waive his right to claim under the exemption laws. Coey v. Cleghorn [Idaho] 79 P. 72.

78. In re Sloan, 135 F. 873.

79. Thorp v. Woolslove, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 251; In re Sloan, 135 F. 873. See, also, ante, § 4.

80, 81. Under Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 690, subd. 18, providing for the exemption from execution of all "moneys, benefits, etc., growing out of life, insurance extends to the beneficiary and exempts insurance money received by a surviving wife from liability for her debts or debts of the deceased husband and the deposit by her of the money received from life insurance does not change its character or render it subject to execution. Holmes v. Marshall, 145 Cal. 777, 79 P. 534.

82. See 3 C. L. 1411.

conveyed free from liability for debts,[83] but the consent of the wife may be required.[84]

§ 7. How the right is claimed and enforced.[85]—The claim may be made in a proceeding to sell lands of a decedent which were purchased with exempt moneys.[86] In absence of statute it is the duty of the debtor to select such property as he claims to be exempt, and when no duty is imposed on the officer making the levy to make the selection for the debtor the latter waives his right to exemption if he fails to demand it,[87] but a selection is unnecessary where there can be no residue.[88] In Illinois the additional amount allowed to a married debtor residing with his family is not to be claimed by a "second" selection but should be included in one selection.[89] It is also essential that he deliver to the officer that which is renounced,[90] and if this be not done or an excessive amount be selected there is no exemption,[91] for the officer is not obliged to make a selection for the debtor.[92] In Georgia the absolute exemption of $300 must be judicially set apart.[93] Where a verified schedule is required it must be full and true.[94] In Washington the schedules of property and of exemptions may be in one paper.[95] Where property has, in bankruptcy, been set apart as exempt, the trustee has no title therein[96] and hence cannot be directed to take any action toward it for the protection of a creditor who has a special lien on it.[97] If exemptions are not allowed as claimed, the debtor may have the exemption set out of the proceeds.[98]

§ 8. Recovery for selling exempt property or evading exemption laws.[99]—The

83. Smyth v. Hall, 126 Iowa, 627, 102 N. W. 520. Where a homestead was exempt from a judgment lien, its value in realty for which it was exchanged was exempt. Godfrey v. Herring [Ark.] 85 S. W. 232. Under Const. Va. 1902, § 191, which provides that a homestead exemption "shall not be claimed or held * * * in any property the conveyance of which by the homestead claimant has been set aside on the ground of fraud or want of consideration," held, in view of the Virginia decisions under the prior law, where there had been a conveyance by a head of a family, a reconveyance and claim of homestead in the property made prior to a decree setting aside the conveyance as fraudulent is sufficient to make the claim a valid one although creditor's suit to set aside conveyance for fraud was instituted prior to the reconveyance and was then pending. In re Allen & Co., 134 F. 620.

84. Threshing outfit. Jackman v. Lambertson [Kan.] 80 P. 55.

85. See 3 C. L. 1411.

86. Where in a proceeding to sell the lands of a decedent for the payment of debts, the widow and heirs at law, who had an opportunity did not assert an exemption on the ground that the property was purchased with pension money, as against an innocent purchaser, they could not in a collateral proceeding deny his title on the ground of exemption. Smith v. Blood, 94 N. Y. S. 667.

87. Williams v. Brown [Mich.] 100 N. W. 786.

88. The specific chattels exempted with all other chattels did not aggregate the amount given ($250) in lieu of the specific chattels. Bank of Gulfport v. O'Neal [Miss.] 38 So. 630.

89, 90, 91, 92. Johnson v. Larcade, 110 Ill. App. 611.

93. Under Civ. Code Ga. 1895, § 5914, in order for an exemption of $300 worth of personal property to be effective as against a general waiver of exemptions, the debtor must have such personal property set apart to him as exempt in the same manner that the homestead allowed him by the constitution is set apart. Miller v. Almon [Ga.] 50 S. E. 993, following Sasser v. Roberts, 68 Ga. 252.

94. Where the statute provides that when a debtor desires to claim his exemptions he shall prepare a verified schedule of his property which he claims as exempt, the debtor's claim of exemption of specific articles may be denied when he fails to fully disclose all his property in the schedule. Farris v. Gross [Ark.] 87 S. W. 633.

95. Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 5255, providing that a debtor whose property is levied upon, who claims personal property as exempt, shall deliver to the officer an itemized list of all the property owned by him, and shall also deliver a list, by separate items of the property he claims as exempt is satisfied by a single list, where the debtor claims as exempt all his personalty. Wiser v. Thomas [Wash.] 80 P. 854.

96, 97. Claim of the creditor was for the purchase price of property. The law of the state gave no right of exemption against such debt. In re Seydel, 118 F. 207.

98. Where a bankrupt's property was sold by a receiver under order of court appointed the day after the petition was filed, and prior to the filing of the bankrupt's schedule, and he notified the receiver at the sale that he claimed his exemption, and specified the property from which he desired it allotted, he was entitled to claim his exemption from the proceeds of the sale of such property. In re Sloan, 135 F. 873.

99. See 3 C. L. 1412.

owner of exempt property wrongfully levied upon may recover the same by an action of replevin or sue the person making the levy for damages for the trespass.[100] A statutory bond given as one on a doubt as to defendants' ownership of chattels but defective in the amount of the penalty may be enforced for the debtor's benefit if exempt chattels are sold under it.[101]

EXHIBITIONS AND SHOWS.

A public exhibition is one to which the public generally are admitted, and the imposition of nonprohibitive conditions does not change its character.[1] The police power relative to the regulation of public exhibitions and shows extends to all shows whether an admittance fee is charged or not.[2] Statutory requirements relative to licenses must be complied with,[3] and cannot be evaded by fraudulent contrivances.[4]

Purveyors of public amusement must exercise ordinary diligence to furnish safe conveniences and surroundings for their patrons,[5] but are not liable for an injury caused by an act of a servant acting outside the scope of his employment.[6]

EXHIBITS; EXONERATION; EXPERIMENTS; EXPERT EVIDENCE, see latest topical index.

EXPLOSIVES AND INFLAMMABLES.

The mere use of explosives[7] in the manner in which they are ordinarily used[8] is not negligence, if proper care is taken to warn persons in the vicinity.[9] Thus, it is not negligence to keep gasoline in an unlocked storehouse,[10] nor to keep nonexplosive powder in a magazine in the woods a considerable distance from the road, though the door is open;[11] but where by statute it is unlawful to sell kerosene or gasoline below a specified test, a seller who vends an inferior article is liable for resulting injury.[12] The degree of care required of persons having control of dangerous explosives is the highest.[13] It must be commensurate with the dangerous nature

100. Johnson v. Larcade, 110 Ill. App. 611. See Replevin, 4 C. L. 1284; Sheriffs and Constables, 4 C. L. 1442. Compare Executions, 3 C. L. 1397.

101. Construing Code 1892, §§ 340, 1971, Bank of Gulfport v. O'Neal [Miss.] 38 So. 630.

1. Requiring purchasers of tickets to sign an application to become members of a club. Commonwealth v. Mack [Mass.] 73 N. E. 534.

2. Under the charter of Minneapolis free shows may be regulated by the common council. State v. Scaffer [Minn.] 104 N. W. 139.

3. Commonwealth v. Mack [Mass.] 73 N. E. 534.

4. A public boxing match is not deprived of its character as public by requiring ticket purchaser to sign an application for membership to an alleged club. Commonwealth v. Mack [Mass.] 73 N. E. 534.

5. Williams v. Mineral City Park Ass'n [Iowa] 102 N. W. 783.

6. One injured by the careless dropping from an elevated band stand of a beer bottle; the use of beer by members of a band being beyond the scope of their employment. Williams v. Mineral City Park Ass'n [Iowa] 102 N. W. 783.

7. It is not negligence to use dynamite in quarrying. Erickson v. Monson Consol. Slate Co. [Me.] 60 A. 708. The mere fact that a signal torpedo is found on the ground at a railroad crossing does not show negligence on the part of the company. Obertoni v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 186 Mass. 481, 71 N. E. 980.

8. Leaving unexploded cartridges in old drill holes when new holes are to be drilled is not negligence in law. Erickson v. Monson Consol. Slate Co. [Me.] 60 A. 708.

9. In an action by one injured by rocks being thrown by a blast on shore onto a boat on which the person injured was a passenger instruction relative to giving notice held not erroneous as implying a necessity of sending a messenger onto the boat to give notice. Smith v. Day, 136 F. 964.

10. So as to render the owner liable where some of it was purloined and used in starting a fire which consumed another's property. Bellino v. Columbus Const. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 684.

11. The powder had become wet and would not explode. Chambers v. Milner Coal & R. Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 170.

12. Stowell v. Standard Oil Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 227. Evidence insufficient to show a sale or storage of gasoline in violation of law. Weston v. District of Columbia, 23 App. D. C. 367.

13. Mattson v. Minnesota & N. W. R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 443. Evidence of negligence in the care of natural gas held a question for the jury. Olive Stove Works v. Ft. Pitt Gas Co. 210 Pa. 141, 59 A. 819.

of the article,[14] and is greater and more exacting as respects young children.[15] In the use of dynamite both master and servant must use a degree of care proportionate to the danger.[16] Persons in the vicinity of high explosives [17] and servants operating with them [18] must exercise a degree of care commensurate with the dangerous circumstances. One who owes no duty relative to the care of an explosive is not liable for injuries occasioned by negligence in the care of it,[19] and a master is not liable for an injury resulting from an explosion caused by the act of a servant beyond the scope of his employment.[20]

A town which operates a quarry for commercial purposes is liable for an injury resulting from negligence in blasting,[21] and a city which allows fire works in its public streets, constituting a public nuisance, is liable for resulting injuries,[22] though such exhibition is authorized by the municipal authorities.[23]

The keeping and disposition of large quantities of explosives or inflammables [24] and the handling of combustible, lubricating and fuel oils on the streets,[25] is subject to police regulation. A tax is an incident of regulation.[26]

14. Evidence held to show negligence in the care of dynamite. Mattson v. Minnesota & N. W. R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 443. The manufacturer of a machine that uses gasoline in generating power has only to exercise ordinary care. Talley v. Beever [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 23. Evidence insufficient to show negligence in the manufacture of a gasoline pear burner. Id.

15. Mattson v. Minnesota & N. W. R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 443. Evidence held to show that children who were injured by dynamite they found in an exposed and unguarded place were not guilty of contributory negligence. Id. Evidence insufficient to show negligence in keeping non-explosive powder in an open magazine in a secluded place, where a child set fire to the powder and its clothes caught therefrom. Chambers v. Milner Coal & R. Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 170.

16. Erickson v. Monson Consol. Slate Co. [Me.] 60 A. 708. Instructions to a servant to "set his drills as far as possible from the old holes" is a warning and fulfills the master's duty. Id.

17. Whether one who went to watch a conflagration with notice that there was naptha in the vicinity of the fire, was guilty of contributory negligence held a question for the jury. Morrison v. Pittsburg etc., R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 338. One is not guilty of contributory negligence in walking along a street three hundred feet from an extensive conflagration, though he knows that there is naptha in the vicinity of the fire; employes of the railroad company and members of the fire department being at work within thirty feet of the cars containing the naptha. Smith v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 210 Pa. 345, 59 A. 1077.

18. One familiar with quarries who knows that dynamite is constantly used and that unexploded cartridges often remain in old drill holes, and who sets his drill within a few inches of one containing an unexploded cartridge without clearing the surface to ascertain its location is guilty of contributory negligence. Erickson v. Monson Consol. Slate Co. [Me.] 60 A. 708.

19. The Standard Oil Co. is not liable for injuries caused by an explosion of gasoline on the premises of one of its customers. Marples v. Standard Oil Co. [N. J. Law] 59 A. 32. A vendor of gasoline is not liable for injuries caused by an explosion caused by the escape of the liquid inside the building of the vendee, where an agent of the vendee was on watch to see that the inside appliances were all right. The servant of the vendor delivering the gasoline was at the receiving box outside the building. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Van Elderen [C. C. A.] 137 F. 557. One who assisted to carry out a contract made by his son, loaned him tools and money, occasionally gave orders to the men, but never directed the use of dynamite, is not liable for damage caused by a blast. Page v. Dempsey, 99 App. Div. 152, 90 N. Y. S. 1019.

20. Where railroad employes after playing with a signal torpedo left it on the ground where it was picked up by a small boy who was injured by its explosion. Obertoni v. Boston & M. R. Co., 186 Mass. 481, 71 N. E. 980.

21. Duggan v. Peabody [Mass.] 73 N. E. 206.

22. Landau v. New York, 180 N. Y. 48, 72 N. E. 631. An extensive exhibition of fire works on a street where many people are assembled may be a nuisance, though not so at law. Id.

23. Landau v. New York, 180 N. Y. 48, 72 N. E. 631.

24. Standard Oil Co. v. Com., 26 Ky. L. R. 985, 82 S. W. 1020. Ky. St. § 4224, imposing a tax on inflammable oils kept in large quantities, applies to any warehouse or other place where large quantities are kept. Id. The keeping of large quantities of oil "in bulk or tank" means oil stored in large tanks holding thousands of barrels. Ky. St. § 4224, imposing a tax on oils so kept. Id. The commissioners of the District of Columbia have power under Act of Cong. Jan. 26, 1887, to make and enforce a regulation requiring a license for the storage of gasoline in the city of Washington. District of Columbia v. Weston, 23 App. D. C. 363. Municipal corporations may adopt ordinances forbidding storage or transportation of nitroglycerine within municipal limits. Walter v. Bowling Green, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 516.

25. Ordinance providing that such oils should not be handled on the streets ex-

Ex Post Facto Laws; Express Companies, see latest topical index.

EXTORTION.[27]

Extortion is the corrupt demanding or receiving,[28] by a person in office,[29] of a fee for services which should be rendered gratuitously;[30] or when compensation is permissible, of a larger fee than the law justifies,[31] or a fee not yet due.[32] If money is extorted by color of office, it is immaterial whether the officer acted under a void or valid process.[33] In charging the offense at common law, no averment is required to charge the wrongful taking as a fee, or that it was to the officer's own use.[34] Evidence tending to show the obtaining of money, by color of office, without authority and right, is sufficient to go to the jury.[35] Where an officer exacts a fee for services for only a portion of which he was entitled to compensation, it will not be presumed, in the absence of contrary proof, that the fee exacted was more than reasonable compensation for the services for which he was entitled to pay.[36] Where in an action to recover the statutory penalty for charging an illegal fee, the illegal charge is proved by plaintiff and admitted by defendant, the court should give binding instructions against defendant.[37]

Under the Iowa statutes denouncing as a criminal offense a threat to accuse a person of a crime or offense with intent to extort money or a pecuniary advantage, the threatened accusation must be of a statutory offense.[38]

EXTRADITION.

§ 1. International.[39]—The complaint for the arrest and examination of an alleged offender, under the treaty with Great Britian, need not be drawn with the cer-cept from tank wagons equipped with drip pans. Spiegler v. Chicago, 216 Ill. 114, 74 N. E. 718.

26. Standard Oil Co. v. Com., 26 Ky. L. R. 985, 82 S. W. 1020.

27. See 3 C. L. 1414. See, also, Blackmail, 5 C. L. 422; Implied Contracts, 3 C. L. 1690 (recovery back of involuntary payments).

28. Under the Pennsylvania statute, an indictment charging, in effect, a conspiracy to extort is sufficient though neither the word "extort" nor "extorsively" appears therein. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470. Count charging common-law conspiracy to extort held not objectionable for not alleging that payment of charges was not voluntary. Id.

29. Indictment describing defendants as "directors of public schools of the twenty-eighth ward of the city of Philadelphia" held sufficient. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470. A special agent of the Federal land office, appointed under act June 4, 1897, c. 2 (30 Stat. 32), is not an officer of the United States within Rev. St. § 5481, defining extortion. United States v. Schlierholz, 137 F. 616.

30, 31. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470.

32. Commonwealth v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 470. See other definitions of common-law offense, the same in substance in Hanley v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 57.

33. No defense that constables acted under void search warrant, for discharging which they extorted $75. Rev. St. 1898, § 4550. Hanley v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 57.

34. Complaint charging that defendants, as constables, "did conspire and did extorsively receive and take from the complainant, by color of their office, the sum of seventy-five dollars in money" for discharging a warrant then in their possession, held sufficient. Hanley v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 57. That the complaint unnecessarily alleges that the sum was obtained "as and for a fee" and the evidence fails to show the taking as for a fee, does not constitute a fatal variance. Id.

35. Hanley v. State [Wis.] 104 N. W. 57.

36. Construing Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 9060, prescribing a penalty for exacting illegal fees. Shelbley v. Hurley [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1082.

37. Reversible error in action under Act May 26, 1897, P. L. 100, to submit to jury question whether law had been violated. Wilson v. Barrett, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 68.

38. Under Code, § 4767, to threaten to charge vagrancy is not sufficient, that being neither a felony (Code, § 5093) nor a misdemeanor (§ 5094). State v. Dailey [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1008.

39. See 3 C. L. 1414.

tainty and exactness of an indictment,[40] but in construing such complaint the rule applied to complaints before local magistrates should govern.[41] The complaint need not charge the crime in the identical language of the treaty.[42] If the accused is held on competent legal evidence and if probable cause exists for believing him guilty of the offense charged, a commissioner is warranted in issuing a certificate to the executive for the surrender of the accused.[43] The existence of a malicious or other ulterior purpose cannot nullify extradition proceedings otherwise valid.[44] Since justices of the supreme court, circuit and district judges, and commissioners have concurrent jurisdiction to issue warrants, hear examinations, and commit, in extradition proceedings, the judgment of a commissioner in such a proceeding cannot be reviewed by a district court on a writ of habeas corpus.[45]

§ 2. Interstate.[46] Origin of power.—Interstate extradition is regulated by law and the power cannot be exercised by virtue of comity alone.[47] The governor of a state, in extradition matters, acts under the authority of the constitution and laws of the United States and not of the states,[48] and the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States upon the subject of extradition between states are binding upon all persons and all courts.[49] When jurisdiction has attached under the Federal statute, substantial compliance with a state law controlling requisition is all that is required.[50] But it has been held that state legislatures have power to authorize extradition between the states, independently of the provisions of Congress upon that subject.[51] The principles governing international extradition have no application to cases of extradition between states of the Union.[52]

40, 41. In re Herskovitz, 136 F. 713.

42. A charge of "assault with intent to kill and murder" is within article 10 of the treaty with Great Britain authorizing extradition in cases of "assault with intent to commit murder." United States v. Piaza, 133 F. 998.

43. United States v. Piaza, 133 F. 998.

44. In re Herskovitz, 136 F. 713.

45. A commitment by a commissioner having jurisdiction, founded on testimony tending to show guilt of the accused, is sufficient as against such collateral attack. In re Herskovitz, 136 F. 713.

NOTE: The writ of habeas corpus in a case of extradition cannot perform the office of a writ of error. Hence, as a general rule, if the committing officer had jurisdiction of the subject-matter and of the person of the accused, and the offense charged is within the terms of a treaty of extradition, and the officer in arriving at a decision to hold the accused has before him competent legal evidence on which to exercise his judgment as to whether the facts are sufficient to establish legal ground to hold the accused for the purpose of extradition, such decision cannot be reviewed as to the sufficiency of such evidence by any higher or other court. In re Luis Oteiza y Cortes, 136 U. S. 330, 34 Law. Ed. 464; In re Adutt, 55 F. 376; In re Vermaire, Fed. Cas. No. 16,915; Ex parte Van Aernam, 3 Blatchf. 160, Fed. Cas. No. 16,824. The court issuing the writ may inquire and adjudge whether the officer acquired jurisdiction of the subject-matter by conforming to the requirements of the treaty and the statute, and whether he exceeded his jurisdiction, and whether he had any legal and competent evidence of facts before him on which to exercise judgment as to the criminality of the accused, but the court is not to judge of the sufficiency of such evidence to warrant the conclusion reached, nor interfere with such conclusion even if, on a consideration of all of the evidence adduced, it would have reached a different conclusion. In re Macdonnell, 11 Blatchf. 170, Fed. Cas. No. 8,772; In re Stupp, 12 Blatchf. 501, Fed. Cas. No. 13,563.—From note in State v. Smith [Ala.] 100 Am. St. Rep. 37.

46. See 3 C. L. 1414.

47. Barriere v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 55. [See history of extradition in this country before the adoption of the constitution in the opinion in this case.—Ed.]

48. Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 7016, requires prosecuting officer to investigate grounds of demand for a rendition warrant but imposes no duty on the governor, who may make his investigation in such manner and through such agency as he chooses, so long as he acts within the pale of the law. Gillis v. Leekley [Wash.] 80 P. 300.

49. Ex parte Dennison [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1045.

50. Rev. St. Ohio, § 95, requiring a requisition to be accompanied by an affidavit of the facts constituting the offense by one having knowledge thereof held substantially complied with. In re Polly, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 265. Warrant properly issued where affidavit accompanying requisition states positively the facts constituting the offense, under Rev. St. Ohio, § 95. Id.

51. The power to arrest and surrender a fugitive from justice is not dependent upon the Federal constitution, since it existed in the colonies prior to the adoption of that instrument. Ex parte Dennison [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1045; Barriere v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 55.

52. Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255.

The governor of the District of Alaska is authorized to demand fugitives from justice of the executives of the states and territories,[53] and his demand should be honored by them in a proper case.[54] The chief justice of the supreme court of the District of Columbia is charged with the same duties in extradition proceedings as are imposed on the governors of the states.[55]

Persons removable.—The term "charged with crime" includes persons accused and convicted, whose sentences have not been fully performed.[56] A person against whom a complaint of felony is filed before a committing magistrate is "charged" with crime within the meaning of the Federal constitution,[57] and congressional legislation authorizing extradition in such a case is constitutional.[58] One who, having committed a crime in one state, is found in another state, is a "fugitive from justice." [59]

Procedure.—Proceedings in extradition before a governor are summary in their nature.[60] The person demanded has no constitutional right to a hearing before the governor, and the Federal statute provides for none.[61] But the governor should, before issuing the warrant, be satisfied that the person demanded is substantially charged with a crime against the laws of the state from whose justice he is alleged to have fled; [62] that he is in fact a fugitive from justice,[63] and that there is probable cause to believe that at the time when it is charged that the crime was committed such person was within the state from which the requisition proceeds.[64] But in determining these questions the governor acts in an executive, not a judicial capacity, and any mode of proof satisfactory to him and tending to establish it satisfies the requirements of law.[65] Technical objections to an indictment or information will be disregarded in the removal proceedings; if it appears that a crime is substantially charged, removal will be granted.[66] If the issue of a warrant is authorized by the 53. 30 U. S. St. p. 1328, c. 429. Gillis v. Leekley [Wash.] 80 P. 300.

54. Governor of Washington is authorized to surrender a fugitive upon demand of governor of Alaska. Gillis v. Leekley [Wash.] 80 P. 300.

55. Hayes v. Palmer, 21 App. D. C. 450.

56. Hughes v. Pflanz [C. C. A.] 138 F. 980.

57. U. S. Const. art. 4, § 2, subd. 2. In re Strauss, 197 U. S. 324, 49 Law. Ed. 774.

58. Rev. St. U. S. § 5278. In re Strauss, 197 U. S. 324, 49 Law. Ed. 774.

59. Hughes v. Pflanz [C. C. A.] 138 F. 980.

60. Munsey v. Clough, 196 U. S. 364, 49 Law. Ed. 515.

61. Munsey v. Clough, 196 U. S. 364, 49 Law. Ed. 515. Under the Federal statute no hearing before the governor to whom the requisition is addressed and no notice to the person charged with crime is required as a preliminary to the issue of a warrant for his arrest and surrender. Rev. St. U. S. § 5278. Farrell v. Hawley [Conn.] 61 A. 502.

62. Ex parte Dennison [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1045. Pennsylvania indictment charging the obtaining of a signature to a written instrument by a false pretense with intent to cheat, etc., held to state an offense under the laws of that state. People v. Police Com'r, 100 App. Div. 483, 91 N. Y. S. 760.

63. Court below having found that person demanded was not a fugitive from justice, he was entitled to be discharged. Poor v. Cudihee, 37 Wash. 609, 79 P. 1105. No extradition can be allowed unless it appears that the accused is a fugitive from justice. Construing Crim. Code § 364 (Cobbey's Ann. Code, 1901). Ex parte Dennison [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1045.

64. Farrell v. Hawley [Conn.] 61 A. 502.

65. Farrell v. Hawley [Conn.] 61 A. 502. Strict common-law evidence is not necessary and no particular kind of evidence or mode of authentication is required by statute. Munsey v. Clough, 196 U. S. 364, 49 Law. Ed. 515. In view of rule that governor must decide upon evidence satisfactory to him whether a person demanded is substantially charged with crime and is a fugitive from justice, a Federal court will not interfere in an extradition case for mere irregularity therein. Ex parte Moebus, 137 F. 154.

66. Indictment presented in court having jurisdiction is probable cause to justify issue of warrant of removal of accused. Farr v. Palmer, 24 App. D. C. 234. Removal of party indicted for fraudulent use of mails under Rev. St. U. S. § 5480, can be refused only when, upon a broad and liberal construction of the indictment, it clearly appears that no offense against the United States is charged. Indictment held sufficient. Id. Sufficiency of affidavits on which larceny charges were based immaterial, charge having culminated in conviction. Hughes v. Pflanz [C. C. A.] 138 F. 980. Description of crime in requisition may be regarded as supplemented by descriptions in indictment and bench warrant made a part of the requisition. Hayes v. Palmer, 21 App. D. C. 450. Immaterial that indictment against accused in governor, it is immaterial that he signed it in blank and that it was issued by his executive clerk in his absence.[67]

Review.—The legality of extradition proceedings may be reviewed in a habeas corpus proceeding.[68] In such proceeding the petitioner has a right to show that he was illegally restrained of his liberty and was detained under a void process.[69] A prima facie case that the prisoner is legally held is made out when the return to the writ of habeas corpus shows a demand or requisition for the prisoner made by the executive of another state; a copy of the indictment found or affidavit made before a magistrate, charging the alleged fugitive with commission of a crime, certified as authentic by the executive making the demand; and the warrant of the governor authorizing the arrest.[70] The rendition warrant is prima facie evidence of the existence of every fact which the executive must determine before issuing the warrant,[71] as of the fact that the person demanded is a fugitive from justice,[72] and the decision of the governor upon such questions upon evidence pro and con before him will not ordinarily be reviewed by the courts.[73] But where in a habeas corpus proceeding, the showing upon which the governor acted is made to appear, it is a question of law whether the person demanded has been substantially charged with a crime in the demanding state.[74] The court will not, however, inquire into the technical sufficiency demanding state does not show indorsement as a true bill over signature of foreman of grand jury, especially where it conforms to statutory practice of that state. Id. Fact that requisition recites that accused "stands charged with the crime of gambling" and nothing more does not constitute fatal defect, "gaming" and "gambling" being used interchangeably in indictment, made a part of requisition. Id.

67. In re Polly, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 265.

68. Associate judge of Montgomery City court has jurisdiction to issue writ and review proceedings, and an appeal from his decision lies to the supreme court. Barriere v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 55.

NOTE. Review in habeas corpus proceeding: In order that a person may be lawfully held for extradition it must appear that there is a charge of crime against him in the state from which he is alleged to be a fugitive. There must also be a demand by the governor of that state for his arrest and detention. There must also be an indictment found in the state from which he has fled, or an affidavit made and a copy thereof certified by the governor, that he has committed a crime; that the prisoner is the person named for extradition and that he was in the demanding state when the crime was committed. These are jurisdictional facts necessary to a valid commitment of the alleged fugitive, and in habeas corpus proceedings, in extradition cases, although the court will not go into the merits of the case, it will go into the sufficiency of the papers before it and of the evidence to show such jurisdictional facts. Kurtz v. State, 22 Fla. 36, 1 Am. St. Rep. 173; Ex parte McKean, 3 Hughes, 23, Fed. Cas. No. 8,848. In habeas corpus proceedings in extradition cases, the writ cannot perform the office of a writ of review, and the court can inquire only as to the existence of the jurisdictional facts, the jurisdiction of the committing officer over the subject-matter and whether there was any legal evidence before him to support his judgment. If these facts exist the prisoner is not entitled to his discharge. In re Luis Oteiza y Cortes, 136 U. S. 330, 34 Law. Ed. 464; In re Adutt, 55 F. 376; In re Macdonnell, 11 Blatchf. 170, Fed. Cas. No. 8,772; In re Clark, 9 Wend. [N. Y.] 212.—From note to State v. Smith [Ala.] 100 Am. St. Rep. 36.

69. Demurrer to petition held erroneously sustained. Barriere v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 55.

70. Barriere v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 55.

71. Warrant prima facie proof that person named in warrant is person held under it and accused of crime. Gillis v. Leekley [Wash.] 80 P. 300. If the proceedings, when produced, appear to be regular, the presumption arising from the warrant becomes conclusive evidence of the right to extradition. People v. Police Com'r, 100 App. Div. 483, 91 N. Y. S. 760.

72. Issuing of a warrant by the governor, with or without a recital that the person demanded is a fugitive from justice is sufficient to justify removal until the presumption in favor of the legality and regularity of the warrant is overthrown by contrary proof in a legal proceeding to review the action of the governor. Munsey v. Clough, 196 U. S. 364, 49 Law. Ed. 515; Ex parte Dennison [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1045. Held, that presumption was not overcome in this case. Hayes v. Palmer, 21 App. D. C. 450. Where in a habeas corpus proceeding the accused refuses to introduce evidence on the question whether she was a fugitive from justice, she is concluded by the prima facie case made by the papers on which the governor acted in issuing the warrant. Munsey v. Clough, 196 U. S. 364, 49 Law. Ed. 515.

73. Ex parte Dennison [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1045.

74. Ex parte Dennison [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1045. Whether person demanded has been substantially charged with a crime is a question of law. Munsey v. Clough, 196 U. S. 364, 49 Law. Ed. 515.

of the indictment, this being for the courts of the demanding state to determine.[75] It will be held sufficient in the habeas corpus proceeding if it substantially charges a crime under the laws of the demanding state.[76] When it is conceded or conclusively proved that the person demanded was not within the demanding state when the crime is said to have been committed, and his arrest is sought on the ground of a constructive presence only at that time, the court will discharge the defendant.[77] But if the evidence on the question is contradictory, the defendant will not be discharged, since his guilt or innocence will not be tried in the habeas corpus proceeding.[78] An averment of the petitioner that he was neither physically nor constructively present in the demanding state at the time of the commission of the alleged crime is unavailing, since it is presumed that the governor acting upon sufficient evidence before him found such averment untrue.[79] The objection that the identity of the prisoner with the person named in the rendition warrant has not been shown is not available when the issue of identity is not raised in the pleadings.[80]

Rights of extradited persons.—When a fugitive has been returned to a state, he may be lawfully held to answer for any crime committed by him against the laws of the state to which he has been returned, without regard to the offense named in the extradition papers.[81]

Refusal to admit a prisoner, held under extradition warrant, to bail, pending an appeal from an order in a habeas corpus proceeding remanding him to custody, is discretionary.[82] In Mississippi, the judges of the supreme court cannot, pending such an appeal, admit the prisoner to bail.[83]

FACTORS.

The relation of factor to consignor.[84]—A factor is one who as a business receives and sells consignments of goods, for a compensation,[85] and the fact that he sells upon a del credere commission does not make him a purchaser of the goods consigned to 75, 76. Munsey v. Clough, 196 U. S. 364, 49 Law. Ed. 515; People v. Police Com'r, 100 App. Div. 483, 91 N. Y. S. 760.

77, 78. Munsey v. Clough, 196 U. S. 364, 49 Law. Ed. 515.

79. This presumption held not met by anything in petitioner's pleadings, want of sufficient evidence not being set up in a reply. Farrell v. Hawley [Conn.] 61 A. 502.

80. Gillis v. Leekley [Wash.] 80 P. 300.

NOTE. Identity of Prisoner: On habeas corpus the question of the identity of the prisoner with the person named in the warrant of extradition is always open, and unless such identity is in some way established he is entitled to his discharge. Matter of Leary, 10 Ben. C. C. 198, Fed. Cas. No. 8161; In re White, 55 F. 54; Ex parte McKean, Fed. Cas. No. 8,848, 3 Hughes, 23; United States v. McClay, Fed. Cas. No. 15,660. Parol evidence is always admissible to show that there has never been any presence of the accused in the demanding state, and that he is not the person named in the warrant or indictment. Kurtz v. State, 22 Fla. 36, 1 Am. St. Rep. 173; Wilcox v. Nolze, 34 Ohio St. 520. A person arrested as a fugitive from justice on a warrant issued by the governor of one state based on an indictment found in that state is entitled to show, on habeas corpus, to prevent extradition from another state, that he was not in the former state at the time that the offense was alleged to have been committed, that he has never been there since, that he is not the person named in the indictment or warrant and that he is not a fugitive from justice. In re Mohr, 73 Ala. 503, 49 Am. Rep. 63.—From note in State v. Smith [Ala.] 100 Am. St. Rep. 38.

81. Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255. Citing many authorities.

82. Farrell v. Hawley [Conn.] 61 A. 502.

83. Decision of chancellor must be reviewed, if at all, by judges sitting as a court. Ex parte Wall [Miss.] 38 So. 628.

84. See 3 C. L. 1415.

Note: As to the general law of factors, see an excellent discussion in Clark & Skyles, Ag., pp. 1748-1857.

85. One who receives and takes actual possession of goods shipped to him as agent of the shipper for the purpose of sale is a factor within Code D. C. § 838, providing a punishment for embezzling factors. Green v. U. S., 25 App. D. C. 549.

Evidence sufficient to show the relation of consignor and factor. Rowland v. Gregg [Ga.] 50 S. E. 949. Evidence held to establish the relation of consignor and factor, so as to entitle the factor to recover for advances made. Coates v. Metcalf [Utah] 81 P. 900. One to whom goods are delivered to be by him delivered to a purchaser is not a factor so as to have a lien either at common law, or under the Maryland statute. Rowland v. Dolby [Md.] 59 A. 666.

him.[86] One may be both a factor and a broker. His rights and liabilities are governed by the capacity in which he acts in the particular transaction under inquiry.[87]

Rights and liabilities inter se and as to third persons.[88]—The rights and liabilities between factor and consignor are controlled by the terms of their contract.[89] A ratification of the violation of instructions precludes a consignor from setting up such violation as a defense to any liability to the factor.[90]

Title to the property consigned remains in the consignor until it is sold,[91] and the proceeds of sales belong to him;[92] but the factor has a qualified interest in them to the extent of his advances and commissions.[93] A factor in possession has apparent authority to sell and a bona fide purchaser gets good title as against the original owner.[94] The factor owes his consignor the duty of exercising ordinary diligence to sell at the best price obtainable and to render a true account of the sale.[95] He is not liable for loss of goods in his possession not the result of his negligence.[96]

The Minnesota statute requiring a grain factor to render a statement to the consignor within 24 hours after making a sale contemplates a sale valid as between all parties.[97] Hence a purchase by the factor himself is not a sale within this statute,[98] though it is customary for factors to make such sales,[99] and failure of the factor to make the required report of a sale of the goods to another at an advanced price over what he paid for them is a violation of the law.[100]

Lien.[101]—For advances made the law implies a lien, without agreement upon 86. By custom among live stock commission men, they assumed the risk of payment of the price by the purchasers. In re Taft [C. C. A.] 133 F. 511.

87. Green v. U. S., 25 App. D. C. 549.

88. See 3 C. L. 1415.

89. A notification to customers that they would be charged a commission on goods on which advancements had been made, whether such goods were shipped to them or not does not show an agreement to pay such commissions. Allen-West Commission Co. v. Hudgins & Bro. [Ark.] 86 S. W. 289. Where a factor seeks to recover a balance due for advances made, he must set out the account between himself and the consignor, showing sales made and prices received. Park v. Standard Spinning Co., 135 F. 860.

90. Where a consignor executes a note for advances made without objecting to the factors account or expressing dissatisfaction at his violation of instructions, such violation is no defense to an action on the note. Allen v. McAllister [Wash.] 81 P. 927.

91. He may recover it as against a receiver of the consignee. Williamson & Co. v. Prairie Queen Mill. Co., 111 Ill. App. 373.

92. Where such funds are kept separate from his general estate and can be traced, the consignor is entitled to them as against the creditors of a bankrupt factor. In re Taft [C. C. A.] 133 F. 511. In an action to recover the proceeds of a consignment of goods where the factor set up that plaintiff was not the owner but the goods were shipped in his name under a scheme to defraud, evidence held to show that plaintiff was the owner. Holden v. Maxfield [Minn.] 101 N. W. 955.

93. A factor who claims no interest in the proceeds of a sale may file a bill of interpleader, based on adverse claims. Byers v. Sansom-Thayer Commission Co., 111 Ill. App. 575. Factor held entitled to apply proceeds of consignments to his own benefit or to that of others for whom he was agent, and to whom the consignor was indebted. Norwood v. H. L. Laws & Co., 113 La. 812, 37 So. 764.

94. Where, after a sale to commission merchants was rescinded, the owner of the goods left them in his possession. Gardiner v. McDonogh [Cal.] 81 P. 964.

95. Bouldin v. Atlantic Rice Mills Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 795.

96. Death of horses. Hunter v. Davis [Iowa] 103 N. W. 373.

97. State v. Edwards [Minn.] 102 N. W. 697.

98. State v. Edwards [Minn.] 102 N. W. 697. A consignor is not estopped from repudiating a purchase by the factor himself, unless he acquiesces therein after being fully informed of the entire transaction, including a subsequent sale at a profit. Id.

99, 100. State v. Edwards [Minn.] 102 N. W. 697.

101. See 3 C. L. 1416.

NOTE: The factor's lien is a personal privilege of which he may avail himself or not as he pleases. It cannot be transferred, nor can question upon it arise between any but the principal and factor. Holly v Huggeford, 8 Pick. [Mass.] 73, 19 Am Dec. 303; Jones v. Sinclair, 2 N. H. 321, 9 Am. Dec. 75; Ames v. Palmer, 42 Me. 197, 66 Am. Dec. 271; Barnes Safe & Lock Co. v. Block Bros. Tobacco Co., 38 W. Va. 158, 45 Am. St. Rep. 846. It does not depend on contract, but is deemed to exist in all cases until a contrary presumption is established. Martin v. Pope, 6 Ala. 532, 41 Am. Dec. 66; Nagle v. McFeeters, 97 N. Y. 196; Gragg v. Brown, 44 Me. 157; Haebler v. Luttgin, 61 Minn. 315. It does not give him any right of ownership, but only the right to retain possession until his commissions and advances are paid. Jordon v. James, 5 Ohio, 88; United States v. Villalonga, 23 Wall. [U. S.] 35, 23 Law.

all goods in his hands which he has power to sell.[102] The right to a lien depends primarily on possession.[103] Hence a factor who has deprived himself of both actual and constructive possession has no lien.[104]

FACTORS' ACTS, see latest topical index

FALSE IMPRISONMENT.

§ 1. What constitutes, persons liable, and justification.[1]—False imprisonment consists of any unlawful restraint of a man's liberty, whether in a place made use of for imprisonment generally or in one used only on a particular occasion, or by words and an array of force without bolts or bars, in any locality whatever.[2] There must be an interference with one's freedom of locomotion [3] and the restraint must be unlawful.[4]

One who merely states facts to public officials charged with the duty of taking action in the matter is not liable,[5] unless he instigates or takes active part in the execution of the warrant.[6] An officer who executes a warrant valid on its face [7] or who in good faith makes an arrest without a warrant is not liable; [8] but one who

Ed. 64; The Packet, 3 Mason, 334, Fed. Cas. No. 10,665. See Clark & Skyles, Ag. § 868.

102. Plattner Implement Co. v. International Harvester Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 376.

103. Rowland v. Dolby [Md.] 59 A. 666. A factor has a lien for his disbursements, commissions and advances on goods in his possession but not for advances made after transfer of possession to a purchaser. Ermeling v. Gibson Canning Co., 105 Ill. App. 196.

104. Where he has placed the goods in a warehouse and given the owner the receipt. Rowland v. Dolby [Md.] 59 A. 666.

1. See 3 C. L. 1417.

2. See Cyc. Law Dict. "False Imprisonment."

3. Where an officer invites a person to a police station for the purpose of interrogating him, and without any idea of then putting him under arrest, and there is no reasonable apprehension that force will be used in the absence of submission, and the person voluntarily accompanies the officer, there is no imprisonment. Gunderson v. Struebing [Wis.] 104 N. W. 149. Evidence as to whether one was imprisoned or not, held a question of fact. Id. Where an action is brought against a home for fallen women, evidence of plaintiff's previous depraved character is admissible on the question of the motive for her being willing to stay there and on the question of restraint. Smith v. Sisters of the Good Shepherd [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1083. Issues held properly limited to the question as to whether plaintiff's stay in an institution was voluntary or involuntary. The declarations of a judge who heard habeas corpus proceedings in which plaintiff was released are not admissible in an action for false imprisonment. West v. Messick Grocery Co., 138 N. C. 166, 50 S. E. 565.

4. A complaint must allege that the warrant under which the arrest was made was invalid and that liberty was illegally restrained. Watters v. De La Matter, 109 Ill. App. 334. In determining the sufficiency of information pursuant to which an imprisonment is made, great latitude should be indulged in its favor. Gilbert v. Satterlee, 101 App. Div. 313, 91 N. Y. S. 960.

5. Love v. Halladay [Mich.] 102 N. W. 1027. One who merely prefers a complaint to a magistrate in a matter over which the later has general jurisdiction is not liable for false imprisonment for acts done under a warrant thereupon issued, though the magistrate had no jurisdiction over the particular complaint. Rush v. Buckley [Me.] 61 A. 774. If a complaint is sufficient to give the magistrate jurisdiction, the person making it is not liable. Gilbert v. Satterlee, 101 App. Div. 313, 91 N. Y. S. 960.

6. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 2750, one who makes a criminal complaint and induces a justice to issue a warrant without the sanction of the prosecuting attorney is liable for false imprisonment. Brueckner v. Frederick [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 775.

7. Rush v. Buckley [Me.] 61 A. 774. A ministerial officer is bound to know the jurisdiction of the court which issues process to him; he is bound to know whether from constitutional or other reasons the court has jurisdiction over offenses of that nature, but he is not bound to inquire into a question of fact as to whether or not a city ordinance in relation to the subject-matter, concerning which the city is by statute authorized to pass ordinances, has been published as required by law. Id. A judgment imposing a fine and in default of payment thereof by the accused, that he work it out at hard labor on the streets, is as to the latter provision void, but it is in the nature of a warrant, and an officer who makes an arrest thereunder while acting in good faith is not liable for false imprisonment. Williams v. Sewell, 121 Ga. 665, 49 S. E. 732.

8. Where he is authorized to arrest for makes an unauthorized arrest without a warrant is. A judge of inferior jurisdiction who in good faith issues a warrant in excess of his jurisdiction is not liable for false imprisonment,[10] nor is he liable because of mere error or irregularity in proceedings before him,[11] nor because he reaches an erroneous decision;[12] but is if he entertains a proceeding wholly beyond his jurisdiction.[13] A state is not liable.[14] One who does not instigate or cause an imprisonment is not liable,[15] though the arrest is made by a special officer appointed at his instance.[16] A master is not liable for a false imprisonment caused by his servant outside the scope of his employment,[17] though the servant did the act with the intent to serve or benefit the master,[18] and a client is not liable for the unauthorized act of his attorney in causing an unlawful arrest;[19] but a client who stands by and sanctions what his attorney does is liable for the act of his attorney in unlawfully inducing a justice to issue a warrant,[20] and a carrier is liable for the false imprisonment of a passenger instigated by a servant who at the time is not actively engaged in furthering the carrier's business.[21]

Justification.[22]—That imprisonment was in accordance with the law is justifi-drunkenness or disorderly conduct and has reason to believe the person arrested is guilty. Easton v. Com., 26 Ky. L. R. 960, 82 S. W. 996.

9. There had been no breach of the peace. Smith v. Dulion, 113 La. 882, 37 So. 864.

10. A magistrate who issues a warrant under a void ordinance is not liable. Gilbert v. Satterlee, 101 App. Div. 313, 91 N. Y. S. 960. Where he has jurisdiction of the general class of cases to which the proceeding in question belongs, but not of the particular offense because the ordinance making it an offense was not regularly enacted. Rush v. Buckley [Me.] 61 A. 774. Emery, J., dissenting.

Note: The court say in this case that there is a strong tendency that where a judge of an inferior court is invested with jurisdiction over the general subject-matter of an alleged offense—that is, has power to hear and determine cases of the general class to which the proceeding in question belongs—and decides, though erroneously, that he has jurisdiction over the particular offense of which complaint is made to him or that facts charged constitute an offensse, and acts accordingly in entire good faith, such erroneous decision is a judicial one for which he should not be and is not liable in damages to a party injured.

11. Gardner v. Couch [Mich.] 100 N. W. 673.

12. In deciding whether or not a warrant should issue. Gardner v. Couch [Mich.] 101 N. W. 802.

13. A justice of the peace who imprisons a person in a proceeding coram non judice is liable in false imprisonment. McCary v. Burr, 94 N. Y. S. 675. A justice who issues a warrant not authorized by law is liable in false imprisonment where he sentences one thereunder, though under certain circumstances the proceeding might have been heard by him. Id.

14. The State Agricultural Society, is a department of the state government, and its officers and board of managers, as public officials, are exempt from liability for actions for false imprisonment. Berman v. Cosgrove [Minn.] 104 N. W. 534.

15. Evidence as to whether one charged with false imprisonment was guilty of instigating an arrest held a question for the jury. Gunderson v. Struebing [Wis.] 104 N. W. 149. In an action for false imprisonment, plaintiff must show that the defendant caused, authorized or instigated the proceedings leading to his imprisonment. Vara v. Quigley Const. Co. [La.] 38 So. 162.

16. One at whose request a special policeman is appointed for the protection of his premises is not liable for a false imprisonment committed by him where he never authorized the arrest and the special policeman in making it acted exclusively under powers conferred by his appointment. Samuel v. Wanamaker, 95 N. Y. S. 270. That an arrest was made by an officer as such and not as the agent of the defendant may be shown under a general denial. Schultz v. Greenwood Cemetery, 93 N. Y. S. 180.

17. A servant whose duty is to collect money for freight and sell tickets to passengers has no authority to cause the arrest of a person whom he suspects of having stolen money from his office. Daniel v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 136 N. C. 517, 48 S. E. 816. Where an imprisonment is caused by a servant, his express or implied authority must be established by clear proof. Vara v. Quigley Const. Co. [La.] 38 So. 162. Authority to cause the arrest of persons for violating a labor contract is not to be implied in the employment of agents or clerks to run a commissary store and in connection therewith collect amounts due from the laborers to the master. Id.

18. Daniel v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 136 N. C. 517, 48 S. E. 816.

19. West v. Messick Grocery Co., 138 N. C. 166, 50 S. E. 565.

20. Brueckner v. Frederick [Mo. App.] 83 S. W. 775.

21. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Dean [Tex.] 85 S. W. 1135, afg. [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 524. Evidence insufficient to show that the servant of the defendant carrier instigated the arrest complained of. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Dean [Tex.] 85 S. W. 1135, overruling [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 524.

22. See 3 C. L. 1418.

cation,[23] but probable cause or absence of malice,[24] or that the imprisoned person is of bad character [25] is not, and that the operation of street cars is a nuisance does not justify the wholesale imprisonment of the motormen to prevent their operation.[26]

Damages.[27]—The measure of damages is the amount that will compensate the imprisoned person for injury sustained.[28] Punitive damages may be recovered if the imprisonment was malicious.[29] The sense of shame, mental suffering, humiliation and outrage is to be considered, whether it tends to increase [30] or diminish the amount recoverable.[31] For false imprisonment because of irregularity of proceedings, the amount of damages is a question for the jury.[32] If actual damages only are demanded, good faith of the person causing the imprisonment is not to be considered.[33]

§ 2. The action to recover damages.[34]—In New York a cause of action for false imprisonment and one for malicious prosecution may be united in one complaint, but not in a single count.[35] The complaint must show that the process under which the imprisonment was effected was void or irregular and unlawful.[36] Facts tending to show malice should not be pleaded unless as ground for special damage.[37] In an action for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution the plaintiff must show that the defendant acted maliciously and without probable cause.[38]

FALSE PERSONATION.[39]

An indictment charging that defendant represented himself to be the sheriff of a certain county, in that he pretended to be a certain named person, is not sustained by proof that he represented himself as sheriff, even though the person named was sheriff of the county, and though the allegation that he pretended to be such person was unnecessary.[40]

23. A tax payer imprisoned under Rev. Laws, c. 13, § 26, for refusal to pay taxes on demand and after diligent search made by the collector refuses to exhibit goods that may be taken on the warrant. Kerr v. Atwood [Mass.] 74 N. E. 917. As to whether a diligent search had been made held a question for the jury. Under Rev. Laws, c. 13, § 26, providing that a tax payer who refuses to pay taxes may be imprisoned if the collector after reasonable search cannot find sufficient goods upon which to levy, evidence as to whether the taxpayer had told the collector he had certain goods or pointed out goods to him is admissible on the question of reasonable search. Id.

24. Markey v. Griffin, 109 Ill. App. 212.

25. Evidence of bad character is inadmissible. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Dean [Tex.] 85 S. W. 1135.

26. The nuisance could have been abated by other means. Mumford v. Starmont [Mich.] 102 N. W. 662.

27. See 3 C. L. 1418.

28. Not such as will compensate the average man for injury he would sustain under the same circumstances. Mumford v. Starmont [Mich.] 102 N. W. 662.

29. Where one was arrested for failure to pay taxes, whether there was unnecessary delay in proceeding to jail or whether the prisoner was subjected to improper treatment held questions of fact. Kerr v. Atwood [Mass.] 74 N. E. 917. Evidence of cruel treatment held irrelevant. Smith v. Sisters of the Good Shepherd [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1083.

30. Mumford v. Starmont [Mich.] 102 N. W. 662. The imprisoned person may testify that he felt humiliated by the arrest. Id.

31. Where the imprisonment was for disorderly conduct, evidence that the imprisoned person was at the time keeping a house of prostitution is admissible. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Dean [Tex.] 85 S. W. 1135. Overruling [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 524. Evidence that the plaintiff had often been imprisoned before on similar charges is admissible. Id.

32. The proceeding for the arrest of a person attempting to travel on a railroad train without paying his fare was not in accordance with the statute. Gen. Ry. Law, § 18 (2 Gen. St. p. 2671). Tidey v. Erie R. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 60 A. 954.

33. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Dean [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 524.

34. See 3 C. L. 1418.

35. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 484. Ring v. Mitchell, 45 Misc. 493, 92 N. Y. S. 749.

36. An allegation that plaintiff was duly arrested is insufficient, though malice be alleged. Ring v. Mitchell, 45 Misc. 493, 92 N. Y. S. 749.

37. Ring v. Mitchell, 45 Misc. 493, 92 N. Y. S. 749.

38. Sundmaker v. Gaudet, 113 La. 887, 37 So. 865.

39. Obtaining property by false personation, see False Pretenses and Cheats, post.

40. Butts v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 586.

FALSE PRETENSES AND CHEATS.

Elements of offense.[41]—A false pretense is a false and fraudulent representation or statement of a fact as existing or having taken place,[42] made with knowledge of its falsity,[43] with intent to deceive and defraud,[44] and which is adapted to induce the person to whom it is made to part with something of value.[45] Where a false token is used,[46] it must be one calculated to deceive, according to the capacity of the person to whom it is presented to detect its falsity under the circumstances.[47]

To constitute the crime of obtaining property by false pretenses,[48] such pretenses must have been relied on,[49] and property must have been obtained [50] by the defendant personally, or by a person designated by defendant to receive it for his benefit.[51] The owner must part with the property, intending to transfer both title and possession,[52] and the crime is not consummated until he has parted with both title to and control over the property.[53] If he intended to part with the bare possession only, the crime is larceny, and not cheating by false pretenses.[54] One who ob-

41. See 3 C. L. 1419.

42. State v. Seligman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 357. Statement that manufacturer had large order for garments from a responsible house, made in order to procure goods, held statement of an alleged existing fact. People v. Rothstein, 180 N. Y. 148, 72 N. E. 999.

Opinions: Indictment charging obtaining of money by sale of wheat falsely represented as a superior dry-weather variety, held not to state an offense, since the alleged representations were mere expressions of opinion. Curtis v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 709, 88 S. W. 236.

43. State v. Seligman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 357. False pretenses must be knowingly made. Doxey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 1061.

44. State v. Seligman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 357. Letter, claimed to have induced extension of credit, held not to have been intended for that purpose, and not such as was reasonably capable to induce prosecutor to part with money, having been sent for a different purpose, some time prior to the transaction complained of. Doxey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 1061.

45. State v. Seligman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 357. False pretense must afford some reason why party was induced to part with property. Doxey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 1061.

46. Use of confederate bill, under pretense that it was valid, held a false token, under Ky. St. 1903, § 1208. Commonwealth v. Beckett [Ky.] 84 S. W. 758.

47. Confederate bill, given in horse trade, held calculated to deceive person to whom it was presented. Commonwealth v. Beckett [Ky.] 84 S. W. 758.

48. A solicitor who induced a state agent to pay him $100 in advance as a part of his commission on a policy, by exhibiting an application therefor and inducing the agent to believe it was made in good faith, whereas the applicant had agreed with the solicitor that no premium should be paid, the whole plan being merely an advertising scheme, is guilty of the crime of obtaining money by false pretenses under Code, § 5041. State v. Seligman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 357.

49. The elements of the crime are false statements adapted to the fraudulent purpose, and money parted with on the faith of such statements. People v. Ward, 145 Cal. 736, 79 P. 448. Where defendant procured money on a worthless draft, held, under evidence, the jury could find that false pretense that draft had been "arranged for" was relied on by cashier, and that payment was not induced by trust and confidence in defendant. Semler v. State, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 393.

50. The gravamen of the crime is the obtaining of the property described. Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251.

51. Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251. The fact that a draft alleged to have been fraudulently obtained by defendant was made payable to him "to the use" of the person defrauded does not conclusively show that defendant was a mere trustee, but may be explained as a mere memorandum showing on whose account payment was made. State v. Wilson [Kan.] 80 P. 639.

52. State v. Loser [Iowa] 104 N. W. 337. The essence of the offense of obtaining money by false pretenses is in the fraudulent and false representations which result in securing the consent of the owner to part with the title as well as the possession of the property. State v. Anderson, 186 Mo. 25, 84 S. W. 946.

53. Held that where agent of party injured sent drafts through the mail, he did not part with title to or control over money in Wisconsin, where he mailed the drafts. Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251.

54. State v. Loser [Iowa] 104 N. W. 337. The essence of larceny is the taking and conversion of the property or money against the consent of the owner, with the intent to deprive him of it. State v. Anderson, 186 Mo. 25, 84 S. W. 946. Where prosecutor delivered $50 to defendant for the privilege of being employed thirty days in a certain bus-tains property by falsely personating another commits the offense of obtaining property by false pretenses,[55] even though the one personated had no interest in the property so obtained.[56]

The offenses of larceny and of obtaining money by false pretenses are ordinarily separate and distinct,[57] so that an acquittal upon a charge of one does not bar a prosecution upon a charge of the other.[58]

The place of the crime.[59]—The crime is committed and must be prosecuted where the property was obtained.[60]

Statutory cheats, swindling, etc.[61]—The crime of presenting a false and fraudulent claim to a public officer is consummated when such claim is presented, and it is not essential that the claim should have been allowed and paid.[62] When persons conspire to cheat a man under color of a bet, and he deposits money as a stake with one of them, not meaning thereby to part with the ownership therein, they, by taking the money, commit larceny even though afterwards they are made, by fraud, to appear to win.[63] But if the loser bets his money intending to part with its title and possession, the taking of it would not constitute larceny.[64] Under the New York statute, a false statement of an existing fact need not be in writing to constitute the crime of larceny by false representations;[65] but a representation of a purchaser's means or ability to pay must be written.[66] In Texas the crime of obtaining property under a false pretext is denominated theft.[67] Under this statute the crime is committed though the pretext used is illegal.[68] iness, defendant agreeing to return the money at the end of that time if prosecutor was dissatisfied, and defendant refused to return the money on demand, the crime was larceny, since there was no intent to deliver possession of the money permanently. Id. Under similar facts, except that prosecutor advanced more money and took a supposed receipt which was in fact a bill of sale, held also crime was larceny, and not obtaining money by false pretenses. State v. Buck, 186 Mo. 15, 84 S. W. 951.

55. Under Vt. St. § 4960. State v. Marshall [Vt.] 59 A. 916.

56. State v. Marshall [Vt.] 59 A. 916.

57. As under Mo. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 1898, 1927. State v. Anderson, 186 Mo. 25, 84 S. W. 946.

58. Acquittal under larceny charge no bar to prosecution for obtaining money by false pretenses. State v. Anderson, 186 Mo. 25, 84 S. W. 946.

59. See 3 C. L. 1420.

60. Where drafts were drawn in Wisconsin and paid in Iowa the crime of obtaining money, if committed at all, was committed in Iowa. Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251. Where defendant represented himself as another in a letter written from New York to Vermont, and went to Vermont as the person he was personating, and there obtained a check, the offense was committed in Vermont. State v. Marshall [Vt.] 59 A. 916. The place of the theft of horses hired on a false pretext, with intent to appropriate them, is the place where possession was obtained, not where an attempt to sell them is made. Lewis v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 831.

61. See 3 C. L. 1420.

Swindling: Evidence held sufficient to show conspiracy between defendant and another to swindle complaining witness by means of a bet on a card draw. State v. Crawford [Minn.] 104 N. W. 295.

Presenting false claims: Sess. Laws, 1901, p. 205, § 4, relative to making false affidavits of claims for bounties, and Rev. St. 1887, § 6385, relating to the presentation of false and fraudulent claims, define separate and distinct offenses. State v. Adams [Idaho] 79 P. 398.

62. Construing Rev. St. 1887, § 6385. State v. Adams [Idaho] 79 P. 398. Evidence held sufficient to show presentation of false claim for coyote bounties. Id.

63. Rule applied in fraudulent foot-race scheme. Johnson v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 905.

64. So, if after one race, the prosecutor consented to leave his money up until a second race should be run, taking it would not be larceny. Johnson v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 905.

65. People v. Rothstein, 180 N. Y. 148, 72 N. E. 999.

66. Pen. Code, § 544. People v. Rothstein, 180 N. Y. 148, 72 N. E. 999.

67. Where one hires horses, representing that he is to drive to a certain place, and drives to another place and there attempts to sell them, he may be indicted under Pen. Code 1895, art. 877, relating to conversion of hired property, or under art. 861, relating to obtaining property under a false pretext. Lewis v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 831. If indicted under art. 861, it must be shown that the intent to appropriate existed at the time possession was obtained; if under art. 877, such intent need not be formed until after possession has been obtained under a contract of hiring. Id. Evidence held sufficient to support indictment under art. 861. Id.

68. Under Pen. Code, art. 861, a false pretext that in consideration of the money

Defenses.[69]—The fact that the fraud could be easily detected is no defense to a prosecution for presenting a fraudulent claim.[70] The injured person is not under the duty of ascertaining the truth or falsity of representations made to him even if he has means at hand for so doing.[71] One may be guilty of swindling by a pretended sale of property, even though the purchaser is not involuntarily dispossessed of the property sold him.[72]

The indictment.[73]—The indictment must of course show every essential element of the offense.[74] Thus, it must show that the pretenses or representations were false,[75] and were knowingly made,[76] and that the injured party was deceived thereby and relied thereon in parting with his property.[77] It must specify some person who was deceived or from whom property was obtained,[78] and must set out with certainty what property or other thing of value was procured by the defendant.[79] It need not allege whether the prosecutor parted with his money as a loan, gift, or otherwise,[80] and where the facts recited show that the false pretense or token used was capable of deceiving, an allegation to that effect is unnecessary.[81] In a prosecution for obtaining money by false pretenses by selling property incumbered by a mortgage under a representation that it was clear, the information need not show whether the mortgagee, described as a certain company, was a partnership or a corporation.[82] In such case, an allegation that the property was incumbered sufficiently alleges that the mortgage was unpaid.[83]

In Alabama, an indictment in the code form is not demurrable.[84] Under the Iowa statutes an indictment charging a conspiracy to injure the business, property, and rights in property of another, and also the overt act of cheating by false pretenses, is not bad for duplicity,[85] nor is it uncertain.[86] In Texas a false pretext by which property was obtained may be shown under an ordinary indictment for theft.[87] obtained the county attorney would dismiss a prosecution against the person cheated, is sufficient. Lovell v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 758.

69. See 3 C. L. 1421.

70. Where false claim was for coyote bounties, the fact that the manufactured ears presented were easily found to be spurious was no defense. State v. Adams [Idaho] 79 P. 398.

71. Instruction to that effect properly refused. Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 630, 88 S. W. 811.

72. Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 630, 88 S. W. 811.

73. See 3 C. L. 1421.

74. An indictment charging defendant with making a written statement and account purporting to show assets and liabilities of his company, which he knew to be false, with intent to induce another company to intrust and advance money, held to state an offense under Crimes Act, § 175. State v. Turner [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1112.

75. An averment that defendant "did falsely and designedly pretend" the matter alleged, is a sufficient allegation of the falsity of the pretenses, and sufficiently negatives such matter. Commonwealth v. White, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 178.

76. An allegation that representations were fraudulent, does not render unnecessary the allegation as to knowledge. Doxey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 1061.

77. Stifel v. State, 163 Ind. 628, 72 N. E. 600.

78. Count charging obtaining of money from "H. P. Proctor & Son" is bad. Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251. To make such count good, it should charge that misrepresentations were made to, and property obtained from, the persons who composed the firm, though an allegation that they were co-partners might be proper to establish the agency of the one person dealt with. Id. Indictment held to charge the making of false pretenses to and obtaining property from one Elmer Dwiggins personally, and not as manager of a corporation, the title given being merely descriptive. State v. Seligman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 357.

79. Accusation under Acts 1903, p. 90, charging fraudulent procurement of "the sum of forty & 57-100 dollars, or the value thereof," held too vague and indefinite. Oglesby v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 505.

80. Commonwealth v. White, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 178.

81. Commonwealth v. Beckett [Ky.] 84 S. W. 758.

82, 83. State v. Wilson [Kan.] 80 P. 639.

84. Indictment for obtaining money by a false representation of part ownership in a government certificate drawn under Code 1896, § 4923, form 48, Cr. Code 1896, p. 330, held sufficient. Johnson v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 937.

85. Construing Code, § 5059. State v. Loser [Iowa] 104 N. W. 337.

86. Conspiracy being the crime relied upon, the overt acts need not be alleged with great particularity. State v. Loser [Iowa] 104 N. W. 337.

87. Under Texas statute. Lewis v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 831.

Where a written instrument is the basis of the swindling, it must, in Texas, be set out in full in the indictment.[88] Under the statute denouncing as a crime the misinterpretation of the contents of a written instrument, an indictment charging that defendant represented a deed obtained by him as a mortgage will not be quashed on the ground that the parties intended the deed as a mortgage, and that, the property transferred being a homestead, it could be shown to be a mortgage by parol.[89]

Evidence; admissibility.[90]—In general, evidence tending to show a pretense,[91] its falsity,[92] and knowledge thereof,[93] and the fraudulent intent of the one making it,[94] is admissible if otherwise competent. On the issue of intent, other similar acts of the accused may be shown,[95] including acts subsequent to the one charged.[96]

Sufficiency of proof.—As in other cases, the corpus delicti must be proved by evidence independent of extrajudicial confessions or admissions of the defendant.[97] A slight variance between the allegations and the proof, which could not have been prejudicial to the defendant, will not warrant setting aside a conviction.[98] Proof of obtaining part of the money or property described will justify conviction.[99] Proof that property was obtained by means of a false pretense, other than the one charged, does not warrant conviction.[1] An allegation of obtaining money is not satisfied by proof of obtaining some other property, even so nearly the equivalent of money as evidences of money indebtedness or orders to pay money.[2] A charge of conspiracy

88. Letter, claimed to have induced extension of credit, should have been set out in full. Doxey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 1061.

89. Pen. Code 1895, § 546. Lewis v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1027.

90. See 3 C. L. 1421.

91. In a prosecution for sale of a lot falsely represented as belonging to defendant's accomplice, the deed from the accomplice to the purchaser, executed after payment of the money is admissible in evidence though not set out in the indictment. Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 630, 88 S. W. 811. Where defendant referred the person defrauded to the book of a mercantile agency for the rating of the one he was falsely personating, the book is admissible in evidence as a representation. State v. Marshall [Vt.] 59 A. 916.

92. Where charge is larcency by obtaining property by false pretenses in making a sale of a business, evidence that amount of business immediately after sale was less than represented before the sale is admissible to show the falsity of the representations. Commonwealth v. Clancy, 187 Mass. 191, 72 N. E. 842. Where the charge was obtaining a loan on land by false pretenses, evidence that defendant overstated the value of the land was admissible as evidence of a material fact misrepresented. Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251.

93. Where there was evidence tending to show a conspiracy to obtain property by fraudulently selling businesses, evidence of other similar transactions by the conspirators is admissible, at least on issue of knowledge of the falsity of representations as to the volume of business. Commonwealth v. Clancy, 187 Mass. 191, 72 N. E. 842.

94. In a prosecution for representing a deed obtained as a mortgage, a sale by defendant to another may be shown; also the fact that the deed obtained by defendant was not recorded for seven months; also that defendant had said that he had a mortgage and had torn it up; and that he had offered to sell to another. Lewis v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 1027.

95. Where insurance solicitor was charged with obtaining money by a fictitious application for a policy, evidence of other similar transactions by him was admissible to show his fraudulent intent. State v. Seligman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 357. Where a conspiracy to cheat by a fraudulent bet is charged, evidence of other similar acts of the conspirators is admissible to show the fraudulent intent, and for this purpose an act subsequent to the one charged may be shown. Johnson v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 905.

96. Johnson v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 905. Letter written subsequent to obtaining check by false personation, asking for draft, admissible. State v. Marshall [Vt.] 59 A. 916.

97. People v. Ward, 145 Cal. 736, 79 P. 448. Corpus delicti held not shown, where only evidence of falsity of representations was by defendant's confession, uncorroborated by other proof. Johnson v. State [Ala.] 37 So. 937.

98. In a prosecution for obtaining money by selling mortgaged property under a representation that it was clear, an allegation that the mortgage had been assigned to and was owned by certain persons, held sufficiently sustained by proof. State v. Wilson [Kan.] 80 P. 639. A slight variance between the amount of the mortgage as alleged and proved is not fatal, as where amount alleged was $13,336.80; amount proved, $13,366.80. Id.

99. Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251.

1. Where charge was obtaining money on a draft by the false representation that defendant had funds in the bank drawn on, proof of a false representation that defendant had "arranged for" the draft with such bank did not warrant conviction. Semler v. State, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 393.

2. Proof of obtaining drafts does not susto commit the crime of cheating by false pretenses is sustained by proof of conspiracy in the state where the charge is made, and proof of commission of the overt acts in another jurisdiction.[3] But it must be shown that the acts of the conspirators would have amounted to the crime of cheating by false pretenses, and not some other crime.[4] Thus, one indicted for conspiracy to cheat by false pretenses may not on that charge be convicted of a conspiracy to commit larceny.[5]

Verdicts.—Unless the verdict is responsive to the issue before the court[6] and is sufficient to show that defendant committed the crime as defined by the statute[7] it cannot sustain a judgment.

FALSE REPRESENTATIONS; FALSIFYING RECORDS; FAMILY SETTLEMENTS; FEDERAL PROCEDURE; FELLOW SERVANTS, see latest topical index.

FENCES.

Rights, duties and regulations.[8]—Agreements relative to the erection and maintenance of division fences must be made as required by statute,[9] and when there has been no legal division, the owner of animals which escape onto the land of an adjoiner is liable for damage done by them.[10] In Wisconsin, compliance with the statute requiring adjoiners to erect a division fence is a condition precedent to a tain charge of obtaining money. Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251.

Note: The following cases are cited in Bates v. State [Wis.] 103 N. W. 251, as sustaining the proposition given in the text: Schleisinger v. State, 11 Ohio St. 669; Baker v. State, 31 Ohio St. 314; Commonwealth v. Howe, 132 Mass. 250; Commonwealth v. Wood, 142 Mass. 459, 8 N. E. 432; Queen v. Bradley, 26 U. C. Q. B. 13; People v. Haynes, 14 Wend. [N. Y.] 546, 28 Am. Dec. 530. Other illustrations of the necessity that money, as such, should actually pass from the hand of the defrauded person to that of the accused in order to support the charge of obtaining money, are given in the opinion. Thus, fraudulently obtaining consent to the entry of a judgment against a city is held not sufficient, although the judgment be afterward paid, and the money actually received by accused, without further misrepresentation (Commonwealth v. Harkins, 128 Mass. 79); procuring a pre-existing account to be receipted and balanced (Commonwealth v. Usner [Pa.] 6 Lanc. Law Rev. 121; Moore v. Commonwealth, 8 Pa. 260); or obtaining indorsement of credit on a note (Reg. v. Eagleton, 1 Jur. [N. S.] 944; State v. Moore, 15 Iowa, 412); obtaining a credit entry to one's account with his banker (Rex v. Wavell, 1 Moo. C. C. 224); obtaining transfers of accounts so as to result in a credit to the accused (Reg. v. Crosby, 1 Cox, C. C. 10; Jamison v. State, 37 Ark. 445, 40 Am. Rep. 103). Obtaining shipping receipt does not support charge of obtaining the goods (People v. Haynes, 14 Wend. [N. Y.] 546, 28 Am. Dec. 530); charge of obtaining property not supported by obtaining board and lodging (State v. Black, 75 Wis. 490, 44 N. W. 635).

3. State v. Loser [Iowa] 104 N. W. 337.

4. Such as larceny. Court should have distinguished between and defined both crimes. State v. Loser [Iowa] 104 N. W. 337.

5. State v. Loser [Iowa] 104 N. W. 337.

6. Where, under the indictment, a verdict that defendant was guilty of knowingly and designedly, by false and fraudulent representations or pretenses, defrauding a person of a sum less than $103, or less than $50, or was not guilty, was possible, a verdict finding him guilty "of the crime of felony, to wit, obtaining money by false pretenses," was void. People v. Small [Cal. App.] 82 P. 87.

7. A verdict finding "defendant guilty of the crime of felony, to wit, obtaining money by false pretenses," does not show the crime defined by Pen. Code, § 532. People v. Small [Cal. App.] 82 P. 87.

8. See 3 C. L. 1422.

9. Code, §§ 2356, 2361, provides that the division of partition fences for maintenance may be made by order of fence viewers or by written agreement, hence it cannot be made by a mere understanding between one landowner and the tenant of another. De Mers v. Rohan, 126 Iowa, 488, 102 N. W. 413. Evidence insufficient to show an agreement to build a division fence between one owner and the holder of a tax title (in dispute) of adjoining land. Hammond v. Tuttle [Mich.] 103 N. W. 178.

10. De Mers v. Rohan, 126 Iowa, 488, 102 N. W. 413.

Note: The authorities are in conflict as to whether an oral agreement dividing a line fence is within the statute of frauds. In the negative will be found: Ivens v. Ackerson, 38 N. J. Law, 220; Guyer v. Stratton, 29 Conn. 421. In the affirmative Osborne v. Kimball, 41 Kan. 187, 21 P. 163; Glidden v. Towle, 31 N. H. 147; Knox v. Tucker, 48 Me. 173, 77 Am. Dec. 233; Pityner v. Shinnick, 41 Wis. 676. See De Mers v. Rohan, 126 Iowa, 488, 102 N. W. 413.

right to recover damages for a trespass such fence was designed to prevent.[11] In Idaho a landowner is not required to fence against sheep or swine.[12]

The ordinance of the city of Newark prohibiting the erection of a fence over eight feet high is prospective only.[13] Hence one erected prior to its enactment cannot be destroyed under the ordinance giving the superintendent of buildings authority to remove any fence maintained contrary to the city ordinances;[14] and since certiorari will not lie to review his determination to remove it, the owner may restrain the threatened removal.[15]

Construction, maintenance and cost.[16]—Co-terminous owners may by agreement assume an obligation to maintain a line fence, each agreeing to keep up a designated part,[17] and the validity of such obligation is not affected by the fact that the agreement did not contemplate a lawful fence within the meaning of a statute on the subject.[18]

The measure of care required in maintaining a fence around a pasture to restrain stock is that which an ordinarily prudent man would exercise under like circumstances.[19] In Kentucky barbed wire cannot be used on division fences without the consent of both parties.[20]

In Indiana, adjoiners are required by statute to share the cost of maintaining a partition fence.[21] An action under this law to foreclose a lien for the erection of a partition fence is equitable.[22] If the plaintiff recovers, he is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees.[23]

An agreement by a railroad company with a landowner to maintain fences along the right of way in part consideration for the grant creates a covenant running with the land,[24] but is no defense to the contributory negligence of the landowner in turning animals into a field along the right of way when he has notice that the fence is out of repair.[25] A statute, valid when enacted, providing for the levy of taxes for the maintenance of fences, is not rendered void by a prospective constitutional

11. Walls v. Cunningham, 123 Wis. 346, 101 N. W. 696.

12. Spencer v. Morgan [Idaho] 79 P. 459.

NOTE. Duty to fence: At common law an owner of land is under no obligation to fence his land in order to keep the cattle of others from straying thereon. Rust v. Low, 6 Mass. 90. In some states the common law rule has been recognized as in force. Holladay v. Marsh, 3 Wend. [N. Y.] 143, 20 Am. Dec. 678; Thayer v. Arnold, 4 Metc. [Mass.] 589; Noyes v. Colby, 30 N. H. 143; Bonner v. De Loach, 78 Ga. 50; Webber v. Closson, 35 Me. 26, and in some states the rule has been confirmed by statute. Bulpit v. Matthews, 145 Ill. 345, 22 L. R. A. 55; Wells v. Beal, 9 Kan. 597; Hahn v. Garratt, 69 Cal. 146; Little v. McGuire, 38 Iowa, 560. In many states, however, this rule is no longer in force owing either to express legislation or as being inconsistent with the custom of the community to allow cattle to run at large (Merritt v. Hill, 104 Cal. 184; Delaney v. Erickson, 10 Neb. 492, 35 Am. Rep. 487; Clark v. Stipp, 75 Ind. 114; Pace v. Potter, 85 Tex. 473; Pruitt v. Ellington, 59 Ala. 454), and in some states the question as to whether an owner must fence against cattle is a matter under the control of the subdivisions of the state (Mathis v. Jones, 84 Ga. 804; Lammert v. Lidwell, 62 Mo. 188, 21 Am. Rep. 411). See 1 Tiffany, Real Property, p. 587.

13, 14, 15. Jackson v. Miller [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 1019.

16. See 3 C. L. 1422.

17. If through the negligence of one to keep his portion in repair the animals of the other enter and do damage, he is liable. Collins v. Cochran, 121 Ga. 785, 49 S. E. 771.

18. Collins v. Cochran, 121 Ga. 785, 49 S. E. 771. By agreement they can take their fence, relative to the rights of each against the other, from under the operation of the statute. Id.

19. Kittredge v. Cincinnati, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 646. It is competent to prove by one acquainted with the habits and disposition of horses that a stallion is liable to jump over fences or break out of pasture. Id.

20. McKinney v. Thompson [Ky.] 86 S. W. 543.

21. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6564, providing that fences used by adjoiners as partition fences shall be maintained and paid for as provided by the statute a complaint to recover the cost of maintaining such a fence is sufficient if it shows the fence to be a partition fence. Burck v. Davis [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 192. And it is not necessary to allege that the plaintiff had performed his obligation to keep his portion of the fence in repair. Id.

22. Trial by jury may be denied. Burck v. Davis [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 192.

23. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6566. Burck v. Davis [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 192.

24, 25. Scowden v. Erie R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 15.

provision subsequently enacted which, if it had been in force at the time, would have been in conflict with such statute.[26]

Crimes and penalties.[27]—In many states the willful destruction of another's fence is made a crime;[28] but in Texas, if one tears down a fence under mistake of fact, believing the fact to exist,[29] or if he pulls down a fence with permission of a co-owner of it or under belief that he has authority to do so, it is not a criminal act.[30]

FERRIES.

The establishment of ferries is an attribute of sovereignty.[31] A ferry franchise may, like any other franchise, be granted by special statute,[32] and the legislature is not deprived of its power to enact such a statute by a provision vesting the supervision of ferries in county commissioners.[33] Such a special law operates as a restriction on the general power of the county commissioners.[34] In Maine, the only proprietorship in a ferry is the franchise conferred by statute, and the party holding it has no common-law remedy against those who without right interfere with his profits.[35] In that state ferries may be established by county commissioners and when no person is found to keep them the town in which they are located must provide a person,[36] and where a town does provide a ferryman it is entitled to tolls and profits of ferriage[37] and has a right of action against those interfering with the ferry franchise and causing an appreciable loss of profits.[38] In Kentucky the sale or lease of a ferry franchise must be with leave of the county court,[39] and where another than the grantee of a franchise is operating the ferry and no lawful transfer of the franchise is made to appear, it is presumed that it is being operated under the authority granted by the franchise.[40] The Texas statute regulating the right of riparian owners to operate ferries is not affected nor restricted to streams wholly within the state by the statute providing for a system of retaliatory taxation on ferries over a state boundary stream.[41] A person operating a ferry without having procured a license as required by law cannot have a public road kept open for the benefit of his

26. McCullough v. Graham, 70 S. C. 63, 49 S. E. 1.

27. See 3 C. L. 1423.

28. In Georgia. Shrouder v. State, 121 Ga. 615, 49 S. E. 702. Where one pulls down a fence in which he has no interest though at the time the fence is not completed so as to inclose the land of the builder. State v. Hays, 110 Mo. App. 440, 85 S. W. 127. An information in the language of the statute for pulling down a fence is sufficient. State v. Gift [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 593.

29. Where one pushed loose a couple of planks from a post so as to release a boat which up to that time had been used by the public generally and which the owner without notice had decided to exclude them from using. Giddings v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 694.

30. Bailey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 700.

31, 32, 33. In re Spease Ferry, 138 N. C. 219, 50 S. E. 625.

34. Under their general power they could not establish a ferry within the prohibited distance prescribed by the special law. In re Spease Ferry, 138 N. C. 219, 50 S. E. 625.

35. His remedy is by § 6, c. 20, Rev. St. 1883. Inhabitants of Peru v. Barrett [Me.] 60 A. 968.

36, 37. Inhabitants of Peru v. Barrett [Me.] 60 A. 968.

38. Anyone has a right to keep boats for his own convenience but he has no right to transport persons and goods for hire. Inhabitants of Peru v. Barrett [Me.] 60 A. 968. Where a merchant controlled land on both sides of a river near the location of a ferry and maintained boats to transport goods and customers from one side to the other it was held an interference with the ferry franchise. Id.

39. A lease without such leave is void and the grantee of the franchise is liable for injury to a passenger on the ferry boat, the same as if the lease had not been made. Brooker v. Maysville & B. S. R. Co., 26 Ky. L. R. 1022, 83 S. W. 117. A statute authorizing a railroad company with power to own and operate ferries, to make contracts for the operation of its road does not authorize it to divest itself of a ferry franchise without regard to the financial liability of the alienee. Id.

40. Brooker v. Maysville, etc., R. Co., 26 Ky. L. R. 1022, 83 S. W. 117.

41, 42. Parsons v. Hunt [Tex.] 84 S. W. 644.

ferry,[42] and he may be enjoined from using land of a riparian owner for landing purposes where he has no valid permission or license from such owner.[43]

As soon as a ferryman signifies his assent to receive horses and vehicles upon his boat, his liability as a common carrier attaches,[44] and he is liable for injuries sustained because the boat is not in a proper condition for their reception.[45] If goods on a boat are in charge of their owner, the ferryman is liable only for negligence,[46] and where goods are lost because of the refusal of the person in charge of them to obey instructions of the ferryman, he is not liable though negligent in not having a rear guard rail on the boat.[47] A ferryman who makes no charge for transporting property is liable only for gross negligence;[48] but where under the contract of employment an employe's goods were to be transported free, the ferryman is as liable for their loss as if toll had been paid.[49] A city which operates a ferry as a common carrier is held to the liabilities and duties of carriers.[50] It must keep its boat in a fit condition for passengers traveling on it,[51] make reasonable provision for passage from the boat to the wharf by teams,[52] and is liable for injuries to goods occasioned by the negligence of its employes.[53]

Where a ferry though operated under a periodical license is an appurtenant to land, the profits belong to the owner of the land though the license is in the name of another.[54]

43. Parsons v. Hunt [Tex.] 84 S. W. 644. A continuing right to use land for the purpose of a ferry landing must be created by writing. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 4798, providing that no estate of inheritance shall be conveyed except by writing. Id.

44. As soon as he directs the driver of a team to drive aboard. Wilson v. Alexander [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 935.

NOTE: Ferrymen are common carriers when they hold themselves out for general employment (Fisher v. Clisbee, 12 Ill. 344; Pomeroy v. Donaldson, 5 Mo. 36; Smith v. Seward, 3 Pa. 343; Wilson v. Hamilton, 4 Ohio St. 722; Hall v. Renfro, 3 Metc. [Ky.] 51; Albright v. Penn, 14 Tex. 290; May v. Hanson, 5 Cal. 360, 63 Am. Dec. 135), and the fact that they are required to give bond and that their tolls are regulated by statute does not affect their liability as such (Babcock v. Herbert, 3 Ala. 392, 37 Am. Dec. 695). But if a ferryman merely employs his boat for the accommodation of persons who wish to employ him reserving the right to reject business offered he is not a common carrier. Self v. Dunn, 42 Ga. 528, 5 Am. Rep. 544. Like other common carriers he must have his boat in readiness for the accommodation of the public at all reasonable times. Golconda v. Field, 108 Ill. 419; Wallen v. McHenry, 3 Humph. [Tenn.] 245; Koritke v. Iryin, 100 Ala. 323, 13 So. 943, 21 L. R. A. 787. It is the duty of a ferryman to have a safe boat (Clark v. Union Ferry Co., 35 N. Y. 485, 91 Am. Dec. 66), proper appliances and skillful servants. Wyckoff v. Queens County Ferry Co., 52 N. Y. 32, 11 Am. Rep. 650; Dudley v. Camden & P. Ferry Co., 42 N. J. Law, 25, 36 Am. Rep. 501; Wilson v. Shulkin, 51 N. C. 375. He must provide lanterns for the boat. Blakely v. Le Duc, 19 Minn. 187. See Gillette v. Goodspeed, 69 Conn. 363, 37 A. 973. He must maintain proper railings and barriers to protect passengers and property. Evans v. Goodrich, 46 Minn. 388, 49 N. W. 188; Ferris v. Union Ferry Co., 36 N. Y. 312; Miller v. Pendleton, 8 Gray [Mass.] 547; Sturgis v. Kountz, 165 Pa. 358, 30 A. 976, 27 L. R. A. 390. He must provide proper fastenings for the boat. Richards v. Fusqua, 28 Miss. 792, 64 Am. Dec. 121; Albright v. Penn, 14 Tex. 290. He must provide adequate and safe approaches and passages. Patton v. Pickles, 50 La. Ann. 857, 24 So. 290; Polk v. Coffin, 9 Cal. 56; May v. Hanson, 5 Cal. 360, 63 Am. Dec. 135; Osborn v. Union Ferry Co., 53 Barb. [N. Y.] 629; Magorie v. Little, 23 Blatchf. 399, 25 F. 627. See note to Rosen v. Boston [Mass.] 68 L. R. A. 153.

45. He is liable for the loss of a span of mules which while being driven aboard saw water negligently allowed to be on the floor of the boat and started to back and in doing so pushed the boat which was not tied, away from the shore, fell in and were drowned. Wilson v. Alexander [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 935. A teamster who drives aboard at the invitation of the ferryman is not guilty of contributory negligence though he knows that boat is not tied. Id.

46. Where a team in charge of a driver, who refused to unhitch them, backed off the boat into the river. Frierson v. Frazier [Ala.] 37 So. 825.

47. A teamster refused to unhitch his team during passage. Frierson v. Frazier [Ala.] 37 So. 825.

48, 49. Frierson v. Frazier [Ala.] 37 So. 825.

50. Townsend v. Boston, 187 Mass. 283, 72 N. E. 991.

51. Evidence that a passenger was injured by slipping on a piece of ice frozen to the deck establishes a prima facia case. Rosen v. Boston, 187 Mass. 245, 72 N. E. 992.

52, 53. Townsend v. Boston, 187 Mass. 283, 72 N. E. 991.

54. Where operated by the fee owners' administratrix after his death under a license in her own name it will be regarded as having been for the benefit of the estate. Nivens v. Nivens [C. C. A.] 133 F. 39.

FIDELITY INSURANCE; FILINGS; FINAL JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS; FINDING LOST GOODS; FINDINGS, see latest topical index.

FINES.[55]

The constitutional inhibition against imprisonment for debt has no application to fines or other pecuniary penalties lawfully inflicted for violation of law.[56] Though a municipal court, authorized by charter to impose two or more kinds of punishment for a violation of municipal ordinances, may impose an alternative sentence,[57] it has no power, in the absence of express legislative authority, to impose a fine, and enforce its collection by labor upon the public streets,[58] and a judgment of this kind is void.[59] Under a statute allowing ten per cent of any fine assessed in a certain proceeding as attorney's fees, where a fine assessed has been remitted by the governor on condition of payment of costs, and costs have been paid, no further sum can be assessed as attorney's fees.[60] In North Carolina, fines collected by municipal officers in prosecutions for violations of city ordinances, which are made misdemeanors by statute, must, under the constitution, go to the county school fund, and not to the city.[60] The mode of recovering fines is statutory in Rhode Island.[62]

FIRES.

§ 1. Rights and duties respecting fires.[63]—Fire is a dangerous agent, and when property of others is exposed to its destruction, it can only be rightfully set out after every reasonable precaution has been taken to prevent damage to such property.[64] The use of fire for proper purposes is lawful,[65] and no recovery can be had for injury caused by it in the absence of negligence,[66] which may, however, under certain cir-

55. See Criminal Law, 5 C. L. 883, as to extent of fine; Indictment and Prosecution, 4 C. L. 1, as to procedure for imposition.

56. Ex parte Diggs [Miss.] 38 So. 730. Miss. Acts 1894, p. 67, c. 76, provides for continued imprisonment of convicts in the county jail until the fine, costs and jail fees are paid, and that if not promptly paid, the convict shall work them out under the county contractor. Section 22 provides that a convict who has served his term may be released by paying the amount still due and reimbursing the contractor for clothing furnished him. Held, the act does not provide for imprisonment for debt, and a convict who has paid his fine, costs and fees, but has not reimbursed the contractor, may be lawfully restrained until the amount due him has been worked out. Id.

57. Williams v. Sewell, 121 Ga. 665, 49 S. E. 732.

58. Judgment imposing fine "and in default" in payment within ten days, decreeing that accused work at hard labor on the streets, imposes a fine and provides for its enforcement, and is not an alternative sentence. Williams v. Sewell, 121 Ga. 665, 49 S. E. 732.

59. Williams v. Sewell, 121 Ga. 665, 49 S. E. 732.

60. Construing Code, § 2429, relating to illegal sale of liquors in violation of an injunction. McConkie v. Landt, 126 Iowa, 317, 101 N. W. 1121.

61. Construing Const. art. 9, § 5, and Code, § 3820. Board of School Directors of Buncombe County v. Asheville, 137 N. C. 503, 50 S. E. 279.

62. Under Gen. Laws 1896, c. 288, § 1, fines of upwards of $20 may be recovered by indictment; hence, a fine of $100 imposed under Laws 1896, c. 118, § 6, for polluting a water course, is so recoverable. State v. Providence Gas Co. [R. I.] 61 A. 44.

63. See 3 C. L. 1425.

64. The setting of fire to high stubble in a field in which are standing stacks of grain is actionable negligence where there is nothing reasonably calculated to prevent the fire being communicated to such stacks. Harris v. Savage [Kan.] 79 P. 113.

65. See 3 C. L. 1425, n. 40. Evidence that defendant had been warned of danger when he was burning prickly pear on another occasion is inadmissible on the question of negligence in allowing the fire which caused the damage complained of to spread. Dunn v. Newberry [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 626.

66. That a fire is started by a spark from a locomotive does not show conclusively that the fire originated on the right of way. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Watkins [Va.] 51 S. E. 172. Evidence held to show negligence where one set fire on his own prem-

cumstances, be inferred from the mere fact that fire is set out.[67] If conditions are such as to render it intrinsically dangerous the mere setting out of fire is negligence,[68] regardless of the degree of care taken to keep it under control.[69] The degree of care required is that exercised by men of ordinary care and prudence, or by men generally engaged in the same or similar lines of business under the same or similar circumstances,[70] and not the degree exercised by men in the same or similar lines of business in any given locality.[71] The runing of a train at a high rate of speed is not, per se, negligence,[72] but may be negligence when taken in connection with other circumstances.[73]

One negligently setting out a fire is liable for all injury of which it is the proximate cause.[74]

Early statutes based on then existing conditions prohibiting the setting out of fires, in fields, prairies, woods, etc., have been rendered inapplicable by changed conditions in many localities,[75] and apply only to the conditions they were intended to remedy.[76] ises and allowed it to spread to the lands of another. Cullen v. Bowen, 36 Wash. 665, 79 P. 305.

Note: An owner of land who sets a fire thereon is not liable for damages caused by its spreading in the absence of negligence (Sweeney v. Merrill, 38 Kan. 216, 5 Am. St. Rep. 734; Clark v. Foot, 8 Johns. [N. Y.] 421; Bennett v. Scutt, 18 Barb. [N. Y.] 347; Miller v. Martin, 16 Mo. 508, 57 Am. Dec. 242; Fahn v. Reichart, 8 Wis. 255, 76 Am. Dec. 237), nor does the fact that it spreads to premises of another raise a presumption of negligence (Catron v. Nickols, 81 Mo. 80, 51 Am. Rep. 222; Lansing v. Stone, 37 Barb. [N. Y.] 15; Bryan v. Fowler, 70 N. C. 596); but in all such cases the burden is on one complaining to show negligence (Sturgis v. Robbins, 62 Me. 289; Bachelder v. Heagan, 18 Me. 32; Burbank v. Bethel Steam Mill Co., 75 Me. 373, 46 Am. Rep. 400), and whether or not there was negligence is generally a question for the jury (Powers v. Craig, 22 Neb. 621; McCully v. Clarke, 40 Pa. 399, 80 Am. Dec. 584; Dewey v. Leonard, 14 Minn. 153).—See note to McNally v. Colwell [Mich.] 30 Am. St. Rep. 503.

67. See Railroads, 4 C. L. 1225. That a fire is set by sparks from a locomotive raises a presumption of negligence (Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Fritts, 103 Va. 687, 49 S. E. 971; Swindell & Co. v. Alabama Midland R. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 386), and casts the burden on the railroad company to show no negligence on its part (Southern R. Co. v. Johnson [Ala.] 37 So. 919). Fire caused by sparks from a locomotive is a prima facie proof of negligence, and throws upon the railroad company the burden of proof of approved appliances and careful handling. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Needham, 105 Ill. App. 25.

Evidence sufficient to show that a fire was started by sparks from an old and defective locomotive. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Prude [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1046. To show that a fire was caused by sparks from a passing locomotive. Fields v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 134. To show that a fire originated by sparks from an engine thrown into combustible material negligently allowed to accumulate on the right-of-way. Elder Tp. School Dist. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 112.

It is negligence for a railroad company to permit combustible materials to accumulate on its right-of-way. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Watkins [Va.] 51 S. E. 172. A railroad company which negligently allows combustible material to accumulate on its right-of-way which is ignited and negligently allowed to escape is guilty of negligence. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wise [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1107. To maintain its engines and spark arresters in a defective condition is negligence. Birmingham R., Light & Power Co. v. Hinton [Ala.] 37 So. 635. Where it is shown that a fire was caused by sparks from an engine, it is sufficient to show circumstances from which negligence may be inferred. It is not necessary to point out any specific act of negligence. Norwich Ins. Co. v. Oregon R. Co. [Or.] 78 P. 1025. A finding that employe's who operate an engine were usually negligent in its operation authorizes a conclusion that they were negligent at the time the fire in question was started. Id.

68. Where combustible materials are littered throughout the country. Sampson v. Hughes [Cal.] 81 P. 292.

69. Instruction disapproved. Sampson v. Hughes [Cal.] 81 P. 292.

70. Instruction disapproved. Rylander v. Laursen [Wis.] 102 N. W. 341.

71. Rylander v. Laursen [Wis.] 102 N. W. 341.

72. Norwich Ins. Co. v. Oregon R. Co. [Or.] 78 P. 1025.

73. Dryness of the season, etc. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Fritts, 103 Va. 687, 49 S. E. 971.

74. That the fire traveled over land of a third person before reaching the complainant is not too remote. Phillips v. Durham & C. R. Co., 138 N. C. 12, 50 S. E. 462. A complaint which avers that defendant negligently set fire to the house in which plaintiff resided and that plaintiff was burned and injured while escaping shows that defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries. Birmingham R., Light & Power Co. v. Hinton [Ala.] 37 So. 635.

75. Rev. St. § 18, c. 38, does not apply to a fire kindled in a back yard for the pur-

One is only required to exercise the degree of care in seeking to preserve his property from destruction by fire that an ordinary man would exercise under like circumstances.[77] It is not contributory negligence for him not to keep his premises in such order that they are not in danger of catching fire,[78] nor is one guilty of contributory negligence in seeking to save one portion of his property while leaving another portion exposed to danger.[79]

The measure of damages[80] is the value of the property destroyed.[81] Where turf is injured, it is the difference in the value of the land immediately before and immediately after the fire, together with the market value of the growing crops.[82] In California, multifold damages can be recovered where fire is negligently set out and negligently allowed to spread.[83]

§ 2. Remedies and procedure.[84]—Recovery may be had by the party damaged.[85] One seeking to recover as against several for damages for negligently setting out fire may recover against all or any whose negligence is established.[86]

It must be established that the person charged with negligence set out the fire.[87] One may testify that he did not think there was any danger in leaving the fire where such opinion is connected with facts on which it is based,[88] but if unconnected with such facts, he may not.[89]

§ 3. Fire districts and protection[90]

FISH AND GAME LAWS.

§ 1. Public control of fish and game.[91]—The state has the right, in the exercise of its police power, to make all reasonable regulations for the preservation of fish and game within its limits,[92] and since fish and wild game are, until reduced to actual pose of burning rubbish. McNemar v. Cohn, 115 Ill. App. 31.

76. The Georgia statute prohibiting the setting out of fires in "woods, lands or marshes," except between certain dates and after notice to proprietors likely to be affected by it, does not apply to a farmer who in the usual course of husbandry sets fire to weeds, brush and stubble. Acree v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 180.

77. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Willard, 111 Ill App. 225.

78. Phillips v. Durham & C. R. Co., 138 N. C. 12, 50 S. E. 462.

79. Chicago, P. & St. L. R. Co. v. Willard, 111 Ill. App. 225.

80. See 3 C. L. 1426. Evidence that grass had not grown on land burned over in October is inadmissible on the question of damages, where land was burned over the following March. Dunn v. Newberry [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 626.

81. Where grain burned would have been ready for the market in a very short time, evidence of the market value at the nearest market is admissible. Quint v. Dimond [Cal.] 82 P. 310.

82. Grass. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Prude [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1046.

83. Under Pol. Code, § 3344, proof of negligence in either instance will sustain a recovery. Sampson v. Hughes [Cal.] 81 P. 292.

84. See 3 C. L. 1427.

85. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 446, authorizing all persons having an interest in the subject of the action to join as plaintiffs, an insurance company which has paid the loss may join. Jacobs v. New York, etc., R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 954.

86. Dunn v. Newberry [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 626.

87. Evidence that the owner of a building burned was seen leaving it in a hasty manner shortly before the fire broke out is relevant on the issue of the origin of the fire. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Jordan [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 791. In an action on the theory that fire was started by a locomotive, evidence that intoxicated tramps were seen passing along the road and were heard to remark that they would sleep in the barn that was burned, is inadmissible. Id.

88, 89. Dunn v. Newberry [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 626.

90. See Municipal Corporations, 4 C. L. 737. Water districts and service, see Waters and Water Supply, 4 C. L. 1824.

91. See 3 C. L. 1428.

92. State v. Nergaard [Wis.] 102 N. W. 899. The provision of 97 O. L., 436, which prohibits hunting or shooting or having in the open air for such purpose any implements for hunting or shooting on any Sunday, does not abridge the right to keep and bear arms, and is within the police power for the protection of game. Walter v. State, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 13.

possession, incapable of absolute private ownership,[93] statutes regulating and restricting their capture are not violative of the constitutional provisions for the protection of personal and property rights.[94] Thus, the state has the unquestioned right to regulate the time, manner, and extent of taking fish from running streams, large lakes, and small lakes with outlets into other waters.[95] A legislature has power to declare fish nets set or used contrary to law a public nuisance, and to provide that they may be destroyed by wardens and executive officers,[96] and a statute which so provides is not unconstitutional on the ground that it deprives the citizen of his property without due process of law.[97] But statutes which make it unlawful for nonresidents to hunt or fish in the state at any season are unconstitutional because denying nonresident landholders equal protection of law, and depriving them of property rights without due process,[98] since the right of a landowner to hunt and fish on his own land, though qualified by the rights of the state, is a special property right.[99] An ordinance regulating the taking of fish in all lakes and streams of a certain county is not special legislation.[1] The regulatory power of the state may be delegated by the legislature to local boards having a mixed executive, legislative and judicial jurisdiction.[2]

Statutes prohibiting transportation of fish in quantities greater than those specified therein are a valid exercise of the police power;[3] but a state has no power to prohibit a common carrier from shipping or receiving for shipment, outside the state, fish or game taken beyond the limits of the state. Hence, a statute which prohibits the transportation "of any shad" beyond the state limits is void.[5] A statute regulating and restricting the taking of fish or game within a state does not infringe upon the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce, even as to fish or game taken within the state for transportation to a point outside the state.[6]

While police regulations of one state do not apply to game in another, yet game taken in one state and brought into another becomes subject to such regulations of the latter as are reasonably necessary to the protection of its game.[7] The Minnesota statute prohibiting the sale of ruffled grouse within the state which, it is held, applies to all ruffled grouse, whether captured inside or outside the state,[8] and the New York

93. See post, § 3.

94. Such legislation does not violate Const. U. S. art. 14, nor Miss. Const. § 17. Ex parte Fritz [Miss.] 38 So. 722.

95. Ex parte Fritz [Miss.] 38 So. 722. Right of regulation held applicable to a lake eight or ten miles long, which has an outlet into the Mississippi during the wet season, sufficient to allow steamers to pass through, though the outlet sometimes ceases to flow during times of drought. Id. Ordinance of supervisors of De Sota county prohibiting catching of fish in any lake or stream of the county with any seine or net more than 75 feet long or six feet deep, or having meshes smaller than one inch, is a valid regulation under the power delegated to such board by the legislature. Id.

96. State v. French, 71 Ohio St. 186, 73 N. E. 216.

97. Rev. St. § 6968-2, as amended by 93 Ohio Laws, p. 303, is valid. State v. French, 71 Ohio St. 186, 73 N. E. 216.

98. Acts 1903, p. 306, is void because it violates Const. U. S. Amend. XIV. State v. Mallory [Ark.] 83 S. W. 955.

99. State v. Mallory [Ark.] 83 S. W. 955. See post, § 3.

1. Ex parte Fritz [Miss.] 38 So. 722.

2. In Mississippi, county boards of supervisors have executive, legislative and judicial functions, and the statute giving such a board power to regulate the taking of fish in the county is valid. Ex parte Fritz [Miss.] 38 So. 722.

3. Laws 1901, c. 358, § 22, as amended by Laws 1903, c. 437, § 20, is valid. State v. Nergaard [Wis.] 102 N. W. 899.

4. McDonald v. Southern Exp. Co., 134 F. 282.

5. Act S. C. Feb. 16, 1904, is unconstitutional. The act cannot be construed as restricted to shad taken within the state, in order to make it valid, since the legislature expressly refused to so restrict it. McDonald v. Southern Exp. Co., 134 F. 282.

6. The grant to Congress does not give it power to regulate production of commodities, though intended for sale outside the state where produced. Ex parte Fritz [Miss.] 38 So. 722.

7. Ruffled grouse taken in Wisconsin and sent into Minnesota becomes subject to the Minnesota statute prohibiting the sale of any ruffled grouse within the state. State v. Shattuck [Minn.] 104 N. W. 719.

8. Laws 1903, c. 336, § 45, construed. State v. Shattuck [Minn.] 104 N. W. 719.

statute prohibiting possession, sale, or transporation of brook trout in the state during the close season, which expressly applies to fish coming from without the state, as well as to fish taken within it,[9] are held valid.[10]

The relative location and the dimensions of fish traps and other appliances in the Columbia river are governed by statute.[11] The state oyster commission created in Washington in 1903 now has full control of the oyster reserves of that state.[12] In New York, the fish commissioners have no power to lease for shellfish cultivation lands under waters claimed by any town[13] or persons in certain counties, under colonial grant or legislative patent.[14] Town authorities in these counties have the power to grant or withhold fishing privileges.[15] Legislative authority to county commissioners to grant exclusive rights to plant oysters upon exhausted or barren oyster beds does not make the finding by such tribunal that a certain bed is barren or exhausted conclusive upon the courts in a direct proceeding to test the validity of a lease given under such authority.[16]

§ 2. Offenses; penalties; prosecutions.[17]—The construction of statutes penalizing violation of fish and game laws is treated in the note.[18] In an action by the state to recover a forfeiture, a preponderance of the evidence is all that is required to

9. Laws 1902, c. 194, § 141. People v. Booth & Co., 93 N. Y. S. 425.

10. The New York decision, People v. A. Booth & Co., 93 N. Y. S. 425, follows People v. Bootman, 180 N. Y. 1, 72 N. E. 505, and reverses People v. Booth & Co., 42 Misc. 321, 86 N. Y. S. 272, for which see 3 C. L. 1429. The Minnesota statute does not interfere with interstate commerce, and does not violate the 14th amendment. State v. Shattuck [Minn.] 104 N. W. 719.

11. Laws 1899, p. 1997, c. 117. Gile v. Baseel [Wash.] 80 P. 437. Under the statute a lateral passageway is always measured at right angles to the course of the trap, and extends on each side of the trap either 900 or 2,400 feet, according to the location, and in all cases has a width equal to the width of the trap. Its course or direction is not affected by the direction of the shore line towards which the trap points, but is controlled entirely by the course of the trap. The end passageway only is affected by the shore line, and the statute does not affect the course of the end passageway, but only its width, which, in the Columbia can never exceed thirty feet, but may be any less distance. Id.

12. Laws 1903, c. 166, impliedly repeals Laws 1897, c. 107, providing for county boards of oyster land commissioners. State v. Ross [Wash.] 81 P. 725.

13. Evidence held to show claim of town of Flatlands under colonial grant. Denton v. Bennett, 102 App. Div. 454, 92 N. Y. S. 522.

14. Commissioners' power so limited by Fisheries, Game and Forest Law, § 198, as amended in 1895. Denton v. Bennett, 102 App. Div. 454, 92 N. Y. S. 522.

15. Laws 1868, c. 734, does not disaffirm the rights of the towns in this respect. Denton v. Bennett, 102 App. Div. 454, 92 N. Y. S. 522.

16. Laws 1901, c. 4960. State v. Gibson [Fla.] 37 So. 651.

17. See 3 C. L. 1430.

18. In Idaho it is a misdemeanor for any person or persons not the owners of a private pond, to sell or offer to sell, or to transport or receive, or to have in possession for any of such unlawful purposes, any fish protected by the statute. Laws 1905, p. 258. Defendant convicted for offering for sale and selling trout. State v. Dolan [Idaho] 81 P. 640.

Mississippi: So much of Code 1892, § 2128, as commits the judicial administration of the game laws to mayors and justices of the peace, whether the act be done in their respective districts or not, is void. Ex parte Fritz [Miss.] 38 So. 722. But since a violation of a county regulation regarding fish and game is made a misdemeanor, any person guilty may be prosecuted before any justice having local jurisdiction. Id.

Texas: Pen. Code 1895, art. 527 and art. 529p, both relate to and prescribe punishment for theft of oysters from oyster beds; the two are inconsistent, and hence art. 529p, being the later statute, repealed art. 527. Ragazine v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 84 S. W. 832. Where the title to oyster beds has been made public by acts of the owner and by recordation of his papers, it is no defense to a prosecution of one for theft therefrom that the public had formerly taken oysters therefrom without objection, especially where one prosecuted had been warned that he was trespassing. Id.

Vermont: A deer which has no horns protruding through the skin so that they can be seen and ascertained to be horns is not a deer having horns, within the meaning of the Vermont statute prohibiting the killing of wild deer not having horns. State v. St. John [Vt.] 59 A. 826.

Wisconsin: Laws 1901, c. 358, § 23, providing that the law governing fish shipments from inland waters shall apply to shipments offered or received at any point within the state not situated on outlying waters, does not apply to a shipment begun at a point on outlying waters, even though the fish were previously sent there from a point inside the state. State v. Nergaard [Wis.] 102 N. W. 899.

establish the state's case.[19] In Wisconsin a district attorney may prosecute a violation of the fish and game law though the complaint, made by one styling himself a deputy warden, does not state that it is made on behalf of the state.[20] In such a prosecution the ordinary rules as to evidence[21] and questions of law and fact[22] govern.

§ 3. Private rights in fish and game.[23]—Wild game and fish (except in artificial lakes or in small ponds that are entirely landlocked)[24] are incapable, until actually taken, of absolute private ownership,[25] the title thereto being in the state in trust for all the citizens thereof.[26] Private ownership can be acquired only under such reasonable conditions and limitations as may be prescribed by the state in the exercise of the police power.[27] The state's ownership in fish and game, however, is not such a proprietary interest as will authorize a sale thereof, or the granting of special interests therein or license to enjoy,[28] but is solely for the purposes of regulation and preservation for the common use,[29] and is not inconsistent with a claim of individual or special ownership by the owner of the soil.[30] The owner of the soil has, by virtue of his ownership, a right to fish and hunt on his own lands,[31] and this right, though subordinate to the state's right to regulate and protect the interest of the public,[30] is nevertheless a special property right, in the enjoyment of which he is entitled to the protection of law.[33]

19. Action for forfeiture under Laws 1901, c. 358, § 22, as amended by Laws 1903, c. 437, § 20, prohibiting transportation of fish in greater than the specified quantities. State v. Nergaard [Wis.] 102 N. W. 899.

20. Action for forfeiture for shipment of larger amount of fish than that allowed by law. State v. Nergaard [Wis.] 102 N. W. 899.

21. In action for forfeiture for illegal shipment of fish from an inland lake, testimony of wardens that more fish was taken about that time from the lake in question than was necessary to supply the local demand, and that they knew of no shipments from other points to the town in question, was admissible. State v. Nergaard [Wis.] 102 N. W. 899.

22. Under the Wisconsin statute regulating shipments of fish from inland waters, the question whether the fish came from such waters is for the jury, if the evidence is conflicting. State v. Nergaard [Wis.] 102 N. W. 899.

23. See 3 C. L. 1431.

24. Fish in running waters, or in large bodies of water, or bodies connected with others, wherein migration is possible, cannot be privately owned. Ex parte Fritz [Miss.] 38 So. 722.

25. Ex parte Fritz [Miss.] 38 So. 722.

26, 27. State v. Shattuck [Minn.] 104 N. W. 719.

28, 29, 30, 31. State v. Mallory [Ark.] 83 S. W. 955.

NOTE. Rights of fishing and hunting incident to ownership of soil: Animals ferae naturae do not belong to the owner of the land on which they may be, but are his if captured or killed by him. Fish do not belong to the owner of land under the water if there is any mode of escape for them to other water. The owner of land has, however, the exclusive right of fishing thereover, except in the case of a grant of the shore by the state to an individual, in which case, as in the case of all waters covering land which belongs to the state, each member of the public has the right of fishing.

The owner of land has no right of property in animals ferae naturae, or wild animals, merely because they are upon the land. He may, however, acquire a qualified ownership in them, that is, an ownership while in his possession or control, by their capture, and an absolute ownership by killing them. The right of the landowner to such animals is so far exclusive, however, that other persons cannot, while upon such land as trespassers, acquire rights in the animals by capture or killing, and the animals so captured or killed become, it seems, the property of the landowner, unless another person had previously a qualified property in them.

Fish at large in a stream or other body of water are ferae naturae, and the right of property in them, so far as it can exist, is in the public, or in the state for the benefit of the public. They are, however, if lawfully captured or confined by an individual, or when contained in a private pond having no communication through which they can pass to other waters, the subject of a qualified ownership.

The ownership by an individual of land under nontidal waters, whether in the case of a navigable stream, a non-navigable stream, or a lake or pond, involves the exclusive right to fish in such water and to appropriate the fish when caught, unless this right has been granted to another person, constituting in him a right to a "profit a prendre." This right to take fish does not, however, involve the right to interfere with the passage of fish to other waters, as by the erection of dams or weirs, and the right must always be exercised in subordination to the right of navigation in the public.—Tiffany, Real Property, pp. 599, 560, 561. See cases there cited.

32. State v. Mallory [Ark.] 83 S. W. 955.

33. Acts 1903, p. 306, making it unlaw-

Fishery rights.[34]—A license to lay off an oyster and clam bed in waters of the state is not an interest in land.[35] Ownership of land whereon oysters are deposited is not a prerequisite to ownership of the oysters.[36] Hence, though one who plants or cultivates oysters on another's land is a trespasser, the owner of the land has no right to appropriate the oysters to his own use,[37] though he may compel the trespasser to take them up, or may remove them as a nuisance.[38]

ful for nonresidents to hunt or fish in the state violates Const. U. S. art. 14, since a nonresident landowner is thereby deprived of the enjoyment of his property, while a resident landowner is not; his property is thereby taken without due proces and he is denied the equal protection of law. State v. Mallory [Ark.] 83 S. W. 955.

Note: In this case (State v. Mallory, supra), appellee, a nonresident of Arkansas, owning land in that state, was indicted for taking fish and game on his own land in violation of Acts of 1903, p. 306, declaring it unlawful for any nonresident to hunt or fish at any season, and the law was held unconstitutional.

"It will be difficult to reconcile the authorities applicable to this state of facts. On the one hand it is held, and this doctrine is supported by a strong dissenting opinion in the principal case, that inasmuch as, at common law, the state had the right of ownership over wild fish and game and the common law has not been changed by statute, it is within the power of the state to make such regulations as it thinks fit. Geer v. Connecticut, 161 U. S. 519, 40 Law. Ed. 793; Organ v. State, 56 Ark. 267; Magner v. People, 97 Ill. 320. In McCready v. Virginia, 94 U. S. 391, 24 Law. Ed. 248, the Supreme Court upheld, as constitutional, a statute of Virginia forbidding nonresidents to plat oysters within the jurisdiction, deciding that the discrimination was based on the exclusive right of the state over waters, and that the statute was not within the provision as to equal protection of the laws. See, also, Peters v. State, 96 Tenn. 682, 33 L. R. A. 114. There is undoubtedly great weight in the above decisions, but in none of them was it decided that a man could not exercise the rights pertaining to ownership in his own land. In the principal case the court say: 'Nowhere do we find that in modern times has the absolute and unqualified ownership of such animals by the government, been exerted further than for the purpose of controlling the taking of the same, and, on the other hand, we find frequent denials of that right,' citing Bristow v. Cormican, L. R. 3 App. Cas. 641, 24 Moak. 431, where it was held that the crown has no de jure right to the soil or fisheries of an inland, nontidal lake. Other cases supporting this principle are: Venning v. Steadman, 9 Can. Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Rowell v. Doyle, 131 Mass. 474; Payne v. Sheets, 75 Vt. 335; Brown v. Cunningham, 82 Iowa, 512, 12 L. R. A. 583; Burrows v. McDermott, 73 Me. 441; Priewe v. Improvement Co., 93 Wis. 534, 33 L. R. A. 645; Blades v. Hicks, 11 H. L. Cas. 621. These authorities establish the proposition that the state ownership over fish and game is not such proprietary interest as will authorize a sale thereof by the state or the granting of special interests therein, but is solely in trust for the public and for the purpose of regulation and preservation for the common use. We must concede that the state has merely a right to regulate fish and game to the extent of protecting the public, and that when a person has acquired a property right in land, such right ought not to be taken away under the guise of police regulation, and the discrimination made in this case between residents and nonresidents ought to be within the 'equal protection of the law' clause. See on this point Eldridge v. Trezivant, 160 U. S. 452, 40 Law. Ed. 490."—3 Mich. L. R. 405.

34. See 3 C. L. 1431.

35. One holding a license under Code §§ 3390-3392 is not a freeholder, and was properly rejected as a tales juror under Code, § 1733. State v. Young, 138 N. C. 571, 50 S. E. 213.

36. Vroom v. Tilly, 99 App. Div. 516, 91 N. Y. S. 51.

37. Plaintiff recovered where defendant took oysters planted on his lands by plaintiff, under a mistake as to the boundaries. Vroom v. Tilly, 90 App. Div. 516, 91 N. Y. S. 51.

38. Vroom v. Tilly, 90 App. Div. 516, 91 N. Y. S. 51.

Note. Following are comments on Vroom v. Tilly, supra:

"Whether property in oysters is governed by the general law of original acquisition and disseisin of chattels or by its special branch relating to wild animals has been a puzzling question. Oysters have been variously regarded as being analogous to; (1) animals ferae naturae; (2) inanimate personalty; (3) ferae naturae until taken and thereafter inanimate chattels; (4) emblements. See (1) McCarty v. Holman, 22 Hun. [N. Y.] 53; (2) State v. Taylor, 27 N. J. Law, 117; (3) Fleet v. Hegeman, 14 Wend. [N. Y.] 42; (4) Huffmire v. Brooklyn, 22 App. Div. [N. Y.] 406. This interesting case seems to test the nature of the property right. Whatever the status of adult oysters, the free-swimming form seems more nearly ferae naturae, and if such, when taken by a trespasser title would be in the owner of the land or privilege. Blades v. Higgs, 11 H. L. Cas. 621. Again, though the shells sown remain the plaintiff's personalty, it is difficult to say that the young oysters are the increase of such chattels. But see Grace v. Willets, 50 N. J. Law, 414. If the shells be regarded either as seed or as realty to which the oysters became attached, the defendant's case is even clearer. The analogy to animals ferae naturae seems the most helpful, but on whatever reasoning, the court might well have decided for the defendant."—18 Harv. Law. Rev. 472.

"Although the operations were under a statute, Laws of N. Y. 1887, c. 584, the de-

Under the Washington statute providing that a fishery locator who fails to construct his fishing appliance during the fishing season covered by his license shall be deemed to have abandoned his location, failure to construct a fishing appliance cannot be deemed an abandonment until the season has expired.[39] A fishery location which is invalid by reason of a prior conflicting location is not validated by expiration of the license under which the prior location was made, nor by a subsequent abandonment of such prior location.[40] Grantees of lands bordering the Columbia River, from the United States or the state of Washington, take such lands subject to the rights granted to the Yakima Indians by the treaty of 1859 to take fish "at all usual and accustomed places in common with the citizens" of Washington, and to erect "temporary buildings" to cure the fish so taken.[41] In Idaho a person or corporation may establish a private pond to propogate fish in water on premises of his own where food fishes do not naturally abound and may propogate and grow fish therein and sell the same.[42] Ponds constructed on streams which are natural spawning grounds, the fish grown in the private ponds being taken from the natural spawning grounds, are not private ponds within the meaning of the statute.[43]

The owner of fishing traps and other appliances may recover damages for their malicious and wanton destruction even though he is not lawfully occupying the stream, and though his appliances are a slight obstruction to navigation.[44]

FIXTURES.

§ 1. Definition.[45]—A fixture is an article which was a chattel, but which, by being physically annexed or affixed to realty, becomes accessory to it, and a part and parcel of it.[46] On petition to sell by a referee, a court of bankruptcy will not determine whether a certain structure is a fixture or personalty.[47]

cision is placed on common-law principles. Fish, the term including oysters (Caswell v. Johnson, 58 Me. 164), are animals ferae naturae (Bracton, 11, c. 1, s. 2; R. v. Hundson, 2 East P. C. 611; Brinkerhoff v. Starkins, 11 Barb. [N. Y.] 248; Treat v. Parsons, 84 Me. 520) and property in such is acquired by possession only. 2 Columbia L. R. 241; Sutter v. Van Derveer, 47 Hun. [N. Y.] 366; Moore's Hist. and law of Fisheries, 191. But unlike game, oysters having no power of locomotion, need not be under the control of the owner, nor on his land, to be in his possession. If a bed be properly placed and marked in the public waters of the state, a property in the oysters vests in the planter (Decker v. Fisher, 4 Barb. [N. Y.] 592; Moore's Foreshore, 164) which is as absolute as that in domestic animals or inanimate things. State v. Taylor, 3 Dutch. [N. J.] 117, 72 Am. Dec. 347; Grace v. Willets, 50 N. J. Law, 414. It attaches, seemingly, when the oysters are first appropriated, and is lost by direct abandonment or an act equivalent (Shepard v. Leverson, 1 Pen. [Pa.] 391) but not by merely placing or planting them on the land of another (Davis v. Davis, 72 App. Div. [N. Y.] 593; but see Brinkerhoff v. Starkins, supra. But in all these cases the owner's first possession was obtained rightfully. In the principal case, the plaintiff planted no oysters; he, as a trespasser, merely deposited shells on the land, and so trapped such spat as was floating over the land. Possession acquired by a trespasser gives no title. 5 Columbia L. R. 241."—5 Columbia L. R. 328.

39. Under Sess. Laws 1899, c. 117, § 9. Womer v. O'Brien, 37 Wash. 9, 79 P. 474.

40. Womer v. O'Brien [Wash.] 79 P. 474.

41. United States v. Winans, 198 U. S. 385, 49 Law. Ed. 1094. Though a Federal patent is absolute in form it can grant exemption from such treaty fishing rights. Id. Nor are those rights subordinate to the powers of the state of Washington over the lands, acquired when that state was admitted to the Union. Id.

42. Sess. Laws, 1905, p. 258. State v. Dolan [Idaho] 81 P. 640.

43. One selling trout from such a pretended private pond is guilty of a misdemeanor. State v. Dolan [Idaho] 81 P. 640, See supra, § 2.

44. Evidence held to show destruction by owners of steamboat wanton, and that navigation was not impeded by appliances; and that owner has substantially complied with law, hence defendants liable. Fowler v. Harrison [Wash.] 81 P. 1055.

45. See 3 C. L. 1432.

46. See Bronson, Fixtures, c. 1, where conflicting definitions are gathered and commented on.

47. In re Gorwood, 138 F. 844.

§ 2. Annexation and intent.[48]—The tests by which to determine whether a chattel annexed to the freehold retains its character as personalty or becomes a fixture are annexation, adaptability and intention.[49] An intention to make it a fixture

48. See 3 C. L. 1432.

NOTE. Tests for determining what are fixtures: The true criterion in testing whether an article is a fixture is (1) actual annexation to the realty or something appurtenant thereto; (2) application to the use or purpose to which that part of the realty with which it is connected is appropriated; (3) intention of the party making the annexation to make a permanent accession to the freehold. The modern rule seems to be that the intention is of paramount importance, but the first and second requisites are by no means dispensed with. Annexation is the sine qua non of an article, in order that it be a fixture, but a physical annexation is not always, essential. Thompson v. Smith, 111 Iowa, 718, 82 Am. St. Rep. 541, and cases cited therein. Fuller-Warren Co. v. Harter, 110 Wis. 80, 84 Am. St. Rep. 867; Baker v. McClurg, 198 Ill. 28, 92 Am. St. Rep. 261; Gunderson v. Swarthout, 104 Wis. 186, 76 Am. St. Rep. 860. The fact that chattels may be removed and sold for other purposes, or that they were not made with special adaptation to the building in which they are placed is not conclusive of the question whether they become fixtures; but such, and like facts are to be considered in deciding the question. Feder v. Van Winkle, 53 N. J. Eq. 370, 51 Am. St. Rep. 628. In Edwards & B. Lumber Co. v. Rank, 57 Neb. 323, 73 Am. St. Rep. 514, it is said the intention of the parties is the controlling consideration, and in McFarlane v. Foley, 27 Ind. App. 484, 60 N. E. 357, 87 Am. St. Rep. 264, it is said there is no general test for determining whether or not an article personal in nature has acquired the nature of realty by being attached thereto. In each particular case regard is to be had to the chattel itself, the injury that would result from its removal and the intention in placing it upon the premises with reference to use or ornament. As to what the intention of the party making the annexation was is to be inferred from the nature of the article; the relation of the person making the annexation; the structure and mode of annexation; the purpose or use for which the annexation is made. In Knickerbocker, etc., Co. v. Penn, etc., Co., 66 N. J. Eq. 305, 58 A. 409, 105 Am. St. Rep. 640, the court says that "whenever chattels have been placed in and annexed to a building by their owner as a part of the means by which to carry out the purposes for which the building was erected or to which it has been adapted, and with the intention of permanently increasing its value for the use to which it is devoted, they become as between the owner and his mortgagee, fixtures, and as much a part of the realty as the building itself, and this is true, notwithstanding that such chattels may be severed from, and taken out of, the building in which they are located without doing any injury either to them or to it, and advantageously used elsewhere, and notwithstanding that the building itself may thereafter readily be devoted to a use entirely different from that which was contemplated when the annexation was made." In determining between mortgagor and mortgagee whether erections are fixtures, the same rules prevail as between grantor and grantee. Gunderson v. Swarthout, 104 Wis. 186, 76 Am. St. Rep. 860.

49. Great Western Mfg. Co. v. Bathgate [Okl.] 79 P. 903.

Held to be fixtures: A ponderous machine weighing 37,500 pounds erected upon and fastened to a brick base with bolts, and to the adaptation of which the building was renovated, is a fixture within Rev. St. Ohio 1892, § 3184, giving a lien to one furnishing mill machinery. Pflueger v. Lewis Foundry & Mach. Co. [C. C. A.] 134 F. 28. A heating plant, money drawer, ticket box, opera chairs, curtains and scenery, gas pipes, electric switch boards and lights. Filley v. Christopher [Wash.] 80 P. 834.

Plumbing equipment. McMillan v. Leaman, 101 App. Div. 436, 91 N. Y. S. 1055. A number of summer residences were built on a piece of ground near the seashore. In these houses, the owner placed window screens, gas logs, gas chandeliers and gas fixtures. These were annexed to the buildings, but the annexation was such as to permit their removal without injury to the realty. Subsequently, the buildings became the property of another owner, who executed a bill of sale of "the personal property" therein. This bill of sale was executed on the same day on which the owner executed a mortgage of the real property. A dispute arose between the mortgage of the realty and the vendee of the personal property as to the ownership of the window screens, gas logs, gas chandeliers and gas fixtures. Held, that these articles were a part of the realty and had not passed by the bill of sale. Cunningham v. Seaboard Realty Co. [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 819.

Note: This case, while in accord with previous holdings, in similar New Jersey cases, is in opposition to the great weight of authority. There are a few decisions, holding with this, that gas chandeliers and gas fixtures are a part of the realty and cannot be removed as personal property in opposition to the wishes of the real property's owner. Hayes v. Doane, 11 N. J. Eq. 84; Johnson's Ex'r v. Wiseman's Ex'r, 4 Metc. [Ky.] 357, 83 Am. Dec. 475. But in the vast majority of cases, the courts and text writers agree that gas chandeliers and gas fixtures are personal property. Jarechi v. Philharmonic Soc., 79 Pa. 403, 21 Am. Rep. 78; Kirchman v. Lapp, 19 N. Y. Supp. 831; Towne v. Fiske, 127 Mass. 125, 34 Am. Rep. 353; Rogers v. Crow, 40 Mo. 91, 93 Am. Dec. 299; Fratt v. Whittier, 58 Cal. 126, 41 Am. Rep. 251; Capehart v. Foster, 61 Minn. 132, 52 Am. St. Rep. 582; Montague v. Dent, 10 Rich. Law [S. C.] 135, 67 Am. Dec. 572; Guthrie v. Jones, 108 Mass. 191; Wall v. Hinds, 4 Gray [Mass.] 256, 64 Am. Dec. 64; Vaughen v. Haldeman, 33 Pa. 522, 75 Am. Dec. 622; Shaw v. Lenke, 1 Daly [N. Y.] 487; Lawrence v. Kemp, 1 Duer [N. Y.] 363; Mc-is essential,[50] but it may be read from the character,[51] and adaptability of the chattel,[52] or the circumstances under which it was annexed;[53] thus a building is prima facie a fixture;[54] but if it was the intention of the parties at the time it was built to regard it as personalty, it will be so regarded in law,[55] and a purchaser of the freehold with notice of its character acquires no right to it.[56] Whether physical annexation is necessary depends on the character of the chattel.[57] The injury that Keage v. Hanover Ins. Co., 81 N. Y. 38, 37 Am. Rep. 471; Penn. Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Thackera, 10 Wkly. Notes Cas. [Pa.] 104, 11 Wkly. Notes Cas. [Pa.] 391; Tyler, Fixtures, 402; Bronson, Fixtures, 258; 13 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [2d Ed.] 666. There seem to be very few adjudications as to whether or not window screens, when attached to a house, are personalty or fixtures. As between mortgagor and mortgagee, they have been held to be personalty. Hall v. Law Guar. & Trust Soc., 22 Wash. 305, 60 P. 643, 79 Am. St. Rep. 935; Bronson, Fixtures, 297.—3 Mich. L. R. 165.

Held not to be fixtures: Gas appliances, such as pendants, chandeliers, brackets and globes, unless put in with the intention of making them a permanent part of the realty. Frank Adam Elec. Co. v. Gottlieb [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 901. That they were put in by the owner of the building and remain after it is sold by him does not show such an intention. Id.

NOTE. Gas fixtures: There is a conflict of authority as to whether gas fixtures are realty or personalty. The following cases decisions treat gas chandeliers as fixtures and some of them hold that they are lienable articles: McFarlane v. Foley [Ind. App.] 60 N. E. 357, 87 Am. St. Rep. 264; Baum v. Covert, 62 Miss. 113; Stack v. Eaton Co., 4 Ont. L. R. 335; Johnson's Ex'r v. Wiseman's Ex'r, 4 Metc. [Ky.] 357, 83 Am. Dec. 475. The next cases cited hold that whether such articles are fixtures depends on the intention of the owner to make them permanent. Erdman v. Moore [N. J. Law.] 33 A. 958; Central Trust Co. v. Hotel Co., 26 Wkly. Law Bul. 149; Funk v. Brigaldi, 4 Daly [N. Y.] 359; Monte v. Barnes, 70 Law. J. K. B. 225. The following cases hold that gas attachments are not, technically speaking, fixtures. McKeage v. Insurance Co., 81 N. Y. S. 38; Lawrence v. Kemp, 1 Duer [N. Y.] 363; Shaw v. Lenke, 1 Daly [N. Y.] 487; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Allison, 107 F. 179; Vaughen v. Haldeman, 33 Pa. 522, 75 Am. Dec. 622; Towne v. Fiske, 127 Mass. 125, 34 Am. Rep. 353; Chapman v. Insurance Co., 4 Ill. App. 29; Capehart v. Foster, 61 Minn. 132, 63 N. W. 257, 52 Am. St. Rep. 582; Montague v. Dent, 10 Rich. Law [S. C.] 135, 67 Am. Dec. 572; L'Hote Co. v. Fulham, 51 La. Ann. 780, 25 So. 655; Hall v. Trust Soc., 22 Wash. 305, 60 P. 643, 79 Am. St. Rep. 935. See Frank Adam Elec. Co. v. Gottlieb [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 901.

59. In a suit by a purchaser of premises to enjoin the removal of buildings by a tenant, it is permissible to show the understanding between the vendor and purchaser (plaintiff). Lynn v. Waldron [Wash.] 80 P. 292.

51. Machinery constituting a necessary part of a manufacturing plant which can be removed without material injury to the building, but not without seriously impairing the efficiency of the plant, is a fixture. Union Bank & Trust Co. v. Wolf Co. [Tenn.] 86 S. W. 310.

52. Where a chattel annexed to the realty is necessary to the enjoyment thereof and when detached loses its character and usefulness, it is a fixture. Incorporated Town of Ozark v. Adams [Ark.] 83 S. W. 920.

53. Ponderous machinery placed in a flouring mill held by a lessee under a lease for ninety-one years is a fixture. Incorporated Town of Ozark v. Adams [Ark.] 83 S. W. 920. Rails purchased by a street railway company under conditional sale and annexed to realty in which the company has no interest do not become part of the realty. Lorain Steel Co. v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 646.

54. Adams v. Tully [Ind.] 73 N. E. 595. Buildings are not trade fixtures, though erected for the purpose of carrying on business. In re Long Beach Land Co., 101 App. Div. 159, 91 N. Y. S. 503.

55. Adams v. Tully [Ind.] 73 N. E. 595. An averment in a complaint in replevin for a building, that it is personalty, overcomes the presumption that it is realty. Such a complaint is good on demurrer. Id.

56. Where a house is personalty and belongs to a stranger to the title, no reservation in a deed by the fee owner to a purchaser with notice of its character is necessary. Adams v. Tully [Ind.] 73 N. E. 595.

57. Commercial finishing material not especially made for any building and available for use in any building is not a fixture where stored in a building. Blue v. Gunn [Tenn.] 87 S. W. 408. Fencing timber cut and piled on land is not a fixture, though cut for the purpose of building a fence on the land. Longino v. Wester [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 445. In an action brought by the vendor of real estate to recover for the conversion of cut stone and structural iron, brought for the purpose of finishing an uncompleted house and lying in a lot sold to the vendee, it was held that the materials passed by the vendor's warranty deed of the lot. Byrne v. Werner [Mich.] 101 N. W. 555.

Note: Where chattels are actually joined to the freehold, though not so as to become an integral part of it, they are regarded as real or personal property, according to the intention evidenced by the acts of the parties. 2 Columbia L. R. 407. If the chattel be not physically connected as in the principal case, it is said to be constructively affixed, if there be a manifest appropriation of it to the land for a permanent purpose; it then passes with the realty by the rule of destination. Hackett v. Amsden, 57 Vt. 432; Conklin v. Parsons, 1 Chandler, 240; Patton, Malone & Co. v. Moore, 16 W. Va. 428, 37 Am. Rep. 789.—5 Columbia L. R. 250.

will result to the freeholder by removal and the value of the article after removal are circumstances to be considered, but are not controlling.[58] Manure made on agricultural land is a fixture.[59]

As between grantor and grantee,[60] mortgagor and mortgagee,[61] and a purchaser in possession under a contract to purchase,[62] the strict rule of the common law, that all chattels adapted to the use of the premises, whether physically [63] or constructively annexed to the realty, are fixtures, applies;[64] but as between landlord and tenant, the rule has been considerably modified in favor of the tenant.[65]

When a fixture by any cause is detached from the tenement of which it forms a part, it ceases to be a fixture.[66]

58. Filley v. Christopher [Wash.] 80 P. 834.

59. On land leased for agricultural purposes. Roberts v. Jones [S. C.] 51 S. E. 240.

60. As between grantor and grantee, all fixtures whether actually or constructively annexed to the freehold, pass with a conveyance of it. This includes trade fixtures. Wolff v. Sampson [Ga.] 51 S. E. 335, citing Bronson, Fixtures, § 44. Structures placed upon realty by the fee owner may be fixtures, though otherwise if put up by another under an agreement that they should retain their character as personalty. Ice-houses. Roberts v. Lynn Ice Co. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 523.

61. As between mortgagor and mortgagee, annexations affixed by the owner before mortgage, of such character as are apparently calculated for the permanent use and enjoyment of the realty, are presumed to be intended to form a part of the realty. Hot water heating apparatus, tank and fixtures. Young v. Hatch, 99 Me. 465, 59 A. 950. Chattels attached to the realty by the owner thereof as a permanent improvement after the execution of a mortgage become realty and a part of the mortgage security. Great Western Mfg. Co. v. Bathgate [Okl.] 79 P. 903.

62. It is presumed that structures erected by purchaser under conditional sale are intended to be a part of the realty. Barn and fences erected by a vendee before he had paid in full and acquired title. Union Inv. Co. v. McKinney [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1001.

63. Machinery adapted to the purpose of operating a grist mill becomes a part of the realty when it is attached thereto by nails, screws, bolts and cleats. Great Western Mfg. Co. v. Bathgate [Okl.] 79 P. 903.

64. Machinery which is a constituent part of a manufactory to the purposes of which a building has been adapted is a fixture, though not actually annexed. Great Western Mfg. Co. v. Bathgate [Okl.] 79 P. 903, following Voorhis v. Freeman, 2 Watts & S. [Pa.] 116, 37 Am. Dec. 490.

65. See post, Right to Remove.

Held not fixtures: A steam boiler attached by pipes screwed onto it, placed in a building by a tenant to replace an insufficient one, and with the intention of removing it when his term expires. McLain Inv. Co. v. Cunningham [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 605.

Gas fixtures are personalty which may be removed by a tenant. Wolff v. Sampson [Ga.] 51 S. E. 335.

Engine, wooden oil well rig, tanks, casing, pipes, etc., necessary to the work of sinking oil wells, brought on land under a provision that they might be removed, do not become part of the realty and on forfeiture of the lease the tenant has a reasonable time within which to remove them. Gartland v. Hickman, 56 W. Va. 75, 49 S. E. 14.

Boilers, engines, shafting, pulleys, etc., placed in a building by a tenant, removable without material injury to the building, are trade fixtures. Bergh v. Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 368. Where boilers are rented and annexed to the realty by a lessee of the realty who becomes bankrupt, the owner of the boilers may have equitable relief against the owner of the building who is seeking to defraud him of his rights by a sale of the premises to an innocent purchaser. Wetherill v. Gallagher, 211 Pa. 306, 60 A. 905.

Question of fact: Whether certain shelving was a fixture. Farnsworth v. Miller [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1100. Whether planking placed on a dock by a tenant was a fixture or a chattel, held a question of fact, the landlord having at one time told the tenant he could remove it and subsequently offered to pay him for it. Crerar v. Daniels; 209 Ill. 296, 70 N. E. 569.

66. Remains of machinery after a factory is burned valuable only as metal, cease to be subject to a lien of a mortgage on the premises. Folse v. Sheriff, 113 La. 915, 37 So. 875.

Note: The property in question was conceded to have been immovable by destination under the civil law. That it would have been a fixture by adaptation in other states, see Bond v. Coke, 71 N. C. 97; Voorhis v. Freeman, 2 Watts & S. [Pa.] 116, 37 Am. Dec. 490; Reyman v. Henderson, 98 Ky. 748; Fairlo v. Walker, 1 Bailey [S. C.] 540; Firth v. Loan & Trust Co., 122 F. 569. But in the majority of states greater weight is given to the intention of the parties and mode of annexation. 13 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [2d Ed.] 608. In Otis v. May, 30 Ill. App. 581; Wilmarth v. Bancroft, 10 Allen [Mass.] 348; Goddard v. Bolster, 6 Greenl. [Me.] 427, 20 Am. Dec. 320; Rogers v. Gilinger, 30 Pa. 185, 72 Am. Dec. 694, and Patton v. Moore, 16 W. Va. 428, 37 Am. Rep. 789, it was held that severance by act of God did not release property from the operation of a mortgage, because not done with the mortgagee's consent. In Wadleigh v. Janvris, 41 N. H. 503, 77 Am. Dec. 780; Hitchins v. Warner, 5 Barb. [N. Y.] 666, and Hamlin v. Parsons, 12 Minn. 108, 90 Am. Dec. 284, fixtures severed by the mortgagor without the mort-

By agreement or estoppel.[67]—The character of personalty may be impressed on annexed things. Hence, as between the parties, the character of plumbing equipment as personalty may be preserved;[68] but not as against a mortgagee or purchaser without notice.[69]

The right to remove.[70]—Chattels annexed by a tenant may be removed by him at any time prior to the expiration of his lease,[71] but not subsequent thereto,[72] unless he is a holdover tenant,[73] and fixtures removable under the conditions of a lease are not removable where the tenant remains in possession under a new lease not reserving such right;[74] but it is otherwise held in some jurisdictions,[75] though the new lease is taken from a subsequent purchaser.[76]

A tenant in under a lease providing for a right to remove structures may remove them,[77] but contrary to the general rule[78] it is held in New York that a right in a tenant to remove fixtures does not enlarge the right he would have at law to remove personalty.[79]

A disposed tenant is entitled to a reasonable time within which to remove fixtures,[80] and one who owns a house located on land of another has a reasonable time within which to remove it as against a grantee with notice of its character.[81] If the grantee has agreed, as part of the consideration of his deed, to give him a certain gagee's consent were held to be still a part of the realty, while in Pope v. Garrard, 39 Ga. 471; Buckout v. Swift, 27 Colo. 433, and Gardner v. Finley, 19 Barb. [N. Y.] 317, it was held that severance by accident or act of God did change the fixture from realty to personalty. That a mortgage no longer covers buildings or machinery that have been removed by the mortgagor without the mortgagee's consent, see Harris v. Bannon, 78 Ky. 568; Verner v. Betz, 46 N. J. Eq. 256, 19 Am. St. Rep. 387; Davis v. Goodnow, 89 Mo. 271; Padgett v. Cleveland, 33 S. C. 339; Insurance Co. v. Cronk, 93 Mich. 49. The difference between the equitable and legal theory of mortgages has perhaps contributed to this lack of harmony among the decisions. It would seem, however, that in either case if removal would impair the security, the mortgagee should be entitled to injunction to prevent removal. Brady v. Waldron, 2 Johns. [N. Y.] 148; Emmons v. Hinderer, 9 C. E. Green [N. J.] 39; Verner v. Betz, 46 N. J. Eq. 256, 19 Am. St. Rep. 387.—3 Mich. L. R. 584.

67. See 3 C. L. 1433. One purchasing land with knowledge of one's right to remove fixtures thereon is by leasing such fixtures estopped to deny ownership in his landlord. Carper v. Risdon, 19 Colo. App. 530 76 P. 744. One who has regarded certain building material as a fixture in litigation in which its nature is adjudicated is estopped to assert that it is personalty. Potvin v. Denny Hotel Co., 37 Wash. 323, 79 P. 940.

68. By agreement that title shall not pass until it is paid for. McMillan v. Leaman, 101 App. Div. 436, 91 N. Y. S. 1055.

69. McMillan v. Leaman, 101 App. Div. 436, 91 N. Y. S. 1055.

70. See 3 C. L. 1433.

71. As between landlord and tenant, trade fixtures are personalty and may be removed before the expiration of the lease if it can be done without material injury to the premises. Cohen v. Wittemann, 100 App. Div. 338, 91 N. Y. S. 493; In re City of New York, 101 App. Div. 527, 92 N. Y. S. 8; Dreiske v. People's Lumber Co., 107 Ill. App. 285. Lessee of a theatre held to have a right to remove all property which had not become a part of the realty. Morris v. Pratt [La.] 38 So. 70.

72. Dreiske v. Peoples' Lumber Co., 107 Ill. App. 285.

73. A tenant who holds over from month to month does not lose the right to remove fixtures secured by his original lease. Lynn v. Waldron [Wash.] 80 P. 292.

74. Wadman v. Burke [Cal.] 81 P. 1012. A notice from a landlord to a tenant holding over that his lease might be continued for a certain period is not a new lease which destroys the right to remove fixtures secured by the original lease. Lynn v. Waldron [Wash.] 80 P. 292.

75. The acceptance of a new lease by a tenant without reservation of the right to remove trade fixtures previously placed on the premises is not an abandonment of the right to remove such fixtures. Bergh v. Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 368.

76. Daly v. Simonson, 126 Iowa, 716, 102 N. W. 780.

77. Where such provision is omitted from the lease through fraud or mistake, the lease may be reformed. Daly v. Simonson, 126 Iowa, 716, 102 N. W. 780.

78. See Bronson, Fixtures, §§ 28 et seq.

79. Refrigerating machinery, boilers built into a building, electric wiring, pipes, etc., are realty, though they could be taken out without material injury to the building. In re City of New York, 101 App. Div. 527, 92 N. Y. S. 8.

80. Bergh v. Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 368. Where tenants are summarily ejected, a voluntary surrender of trade fixtures will not be inferred. Id.

81, 82. Adams v. Tully [Ind.] 73 N. E. 595.

time within which to remove it he may do so at any time within the period specified.[82] What is a reasonable time depends on the circumstances of each particular case.[83]

§ 3. Title of third persons.[84]—A contract is necessary to overcome the rule that structures erected by persons not the owners of land become part of the realty.[85] Chattels sold under conditional sale and annexed to realty become fixtures as to a mortgagee of the realty without notice of their character.[86] Permanent improvements placed on land by one with notice of the superior title of another cannot be recovered for,[87] though the person making the improvements through error of law believes his title superior.[88]

FOLIOING PAPERS, see latest topical index.

FOOD.

Validity and construction of statutes.[89]—Statutes prohibiting the sale of adulterated food products are valid.[90] An act of Congress prescribing the standard of milk sold in the District of Columbia cannot be held void on the ground that it is unreasonable and oppressive, no violation of the constitution being shown.[91] Under the police power, the legislature may prescribe how animals may be killed by their owner in order that they may be used for food,[92] and may confer jurisdiction on a court to restrain the violation of a statute prohibiting the sale of oleomargarine without a license.[93] The California statute requiring fruit packages offered for shipment to be stamped with a statement giving the county and locality where the fruit was grown, and providing for a fine and imprisonment for a violation, is not a proper exercise of the police power.[94] The New York statute prohibiting the sale of veal from animals less than four weeks old, and requiring all shipments of veal carcasses to have attached thereto a tag giving information as to the person who raised the calf, the shipper, the point of shipping, and the age of the calf, is within the police power. It is not unreasonable because requiring all veal shipments to be tagged regardless of legitimacy as an article of food, and it does not interfere with interstate commerce, though it is not expressly restricted to shipments within the state.[95]

Tort liability.[96]—No cause of action for death caused by eating food manufactured by defendant exists, if the food was not inherently dangerous, and there was no fraud, concealment, or implied invitation by defendant, and no privity between defendant and decedent.[97]

83. Gartland v. Hickman, 56 W. Va. 75, 49 S. E. 14.

84. See 3 C. L. 1433.

85. In re Long Beach Land Co., 101 App. Div. 159, 91 N. Y. S. 503.

86. Union Bank & Trust Co. v. Wolf Co. [Tenn.] 86 S. W. 310. A vendor of chattels under a conditional sale who does not record the same as required by law loses his rights as against bona fide mortgagee of realty of which such chattels have become a part. Great Western Mfg. Co. v. Bathgate [Okl.] 79 P. 903.

87, 88. Yock v. Mann [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1019.

89. See 3 C. L. 1433.

90. Act May 29, 1901, P. L. 327, prohibiting sale of oleomargarine as butter is constitutional. Commonwealth v. Caulfield [Pa.] 61 A. 243.

91. In a prosecution for selling milk containing less than three and one-half per cent. of butter fat, defendant cannot show standard unreasonable. Wiegand v. District of Columbia, 22 App. D. C. 559.

92. Such legislation does not infringe property rights. State v. Davis [N. J. Law] 61 A. 2. See Animals, 5 C. L. 113.

93. Act May 29, 1901, § 9, P. L. 327, is valid. Commonwealth v. Andrews, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 571.

94. St. 1903, c. 251, § 1, held unconstitutional as an unlawful invasion of personal liberty. Ex parte Hayden [Cal.] 82 P. 315.

95. Construing Agricultural Law, as amended by Laws 1902, c. 30, §§ 70e, 70f. People v. Bishopp, 94 N. Y. S. 773.

96. See 3 C. L. 1434.

97. No cause of action for death caused by eating mince pie made from mince meat put up by defendant. Salmon v. Libby, 114 Ill. App. 258.

Crimes; prosecutions.[98]—The removal of stamps and caution notices attached to renovated butter in original packages which are subjects of interstate commerce, is an offense against federal law,[99] and this offense is committed by a consignee who removes such stamps and notices from packages received from another state immediately upon their arrival.[1] Failure of a wholesale dealer in oleomargarine to pay the special tax required by act of Congress is a violation of the law in the nature of a criminal offense which may be prosecuted by information and indictment.[2] In New York, inspectors of city health departments may prosecute for sales of adulterated milk, notwithstanding the general powers given to the commissioner of agriculture to enforce food laws.[3] In such a prosecution, based on samples from a peddling can, it is not error to refuse to allow defendant to show the standard of a herd sample taken by the inspectors.[4] In a prosecution under the New York statute regulating the branding of food articles, it may be a question for the jury whether the words used are a sufficient characterization of the substances composing a mixture.[5] In a prosecution under an act prohibiting the sale of milk not of a certain standard the sole question is whether defendant sold milk that did not conform to the prescribed standard.[6]

A notice of appeal from a conviction for violation of a pure food law should conform to the statute.[7]

FORCIBLE ENTRY AND UNLAWFUL DETAINER.

§ 1. Civil rights and remedies. A. The cause of action.[8]—A forcible entry on a peaceable possession [9] of real property [10] gives a cause of action, and it is not essential that possession should have existed for any definite length of time.[11]

To constitute an unlawful detainer there must have been a previous possession

98. See 3 C. L. 1434.

99. United States v. Green, 137 F. 179.

1. Oleomargarine Act, § 1, making renovated butter subject to state laws upon arrival in the state, does not deprive it of its interstate commerce character within the meaning of the penal statutes. United States v. Green, 137 F. 179.

2. Under Act Cong. Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 4, 30 Stat. 209, which provides or a fine, but does not in terms make a violation a misdemeanor. United States v. Joyce, 138 F. 455. Indictment held not objectionable because it did not negative that defendant was selling his own products in stamped packages at the place of manufacture, within the statutory exception. Id.

3. Construing Agricultural Law, Laws 1893, c. 338. People v. Beaman, 102 App. Div. 151, 92 N. Y. S. 295.

4. Since the fact that the herd sample is no better than the peddling sample is not a bar to the criminal prosecution, though it is a bar to an action for a penalty brought, under Laws 1893, c. 338, by the commissioner of agriculture, by section 12 of such act. People v. Beaman, 102 App. Div. 151, 92 N. Y. S. 295.

5. Under Laws 1902, c. 214, § 80b, and Laws 1903, c. 524, held, under the evidence, a question of fact whether the word "honey" was properly used in branding an article of food. People v. Berghoff, 95 N. Y. S. 257.

6. For what purpose defendant had the milk on hand is immaterial. Weigand v. District of Columbia, 22 App. D. C. 559.

7. Under Laws 1902, p. 580, c. 183, § 16, notice filed with justice containing name of party appealing in the body of the notice held sufficient. State Board of Health v. McCue [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1094.

8. See 3 C. L. 1435.

9. Highland Park Oil Co. v. Western Minerals Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 228. Where a man armed with a deadly weapon enters and flourishes at and directs the occupant to leave, supplementing the demand with "jumpers have been known to lose a leg" the vacation is forcible and with a strong hand. Id.

Evidence insufficient to show an entry by violence. Spellman v. Rhode [Mont.] 81 P. 395.

10. One granted a privilege to maintain a stand for the sale of refreshments, etc., in a park, the place for the stand not being specifically designated, is not an occupant so as to render his forcible ejectment a forcible entry within Code Civ. Proc. § 2233. Becher v. New York, 102 App. Div. 269, 92 N. Y. S. 460.

11. One day is sufficient. Highland Park in the plaintiff [12] and a present possession in defendant, accompanied by his refusal to surrender it on demand,[13] but if one in possession attorns to another, the latter may acquire an action for unlawful detainer;[14] and in Kentucky a tenant who fails to perform the conditions in a lease which provide for a forfeiture in case of failure to so comply is guilty of forcible detainer without demand for possession.[15] The action is available to any one against whom possession is unlawfully withheld,[16] and hence may be maintained by a lessee against his lessor,[17] but will not lie to recover possession of premises conveyed to the plaintiff as security for a loan.[18]

Damages.[19]—A plaintiff unlawfully holding over, entitled to reimbursement for sowing crops, must allege his damages in such manner that they can be definitely ascertained.[20] A prayer for multifold damages must be in consonance with the terms of the statute.[21]

Defenses.[22]—Abandonment by plaintiff subsequent to forcible entry is no defense,[23] nor can his acts after the entry work a defense by way of estoppel.[24]

(§ 1) B. Procedure.[25] The proceeding is designed to furnish a summary method for the obtention of possession unlawfully withheld,[26] and does not contemplate an investigation of secret equities between the parties,[27] nor of the title.[28] The possession, only, is involved,[29] hence the pendency of an action of ejectment is not a bar to forcible entry for the same premises,[30] and the judgment will not bar an action in ejectment.[31] A successful contestant before a land tribunal can maintain the action notwithstanding the unsuccessful party has instituted proceedings asking the Secretary of the Interior to re-open the case.[32]

The action being legal in its nature,[33] it is not competent to set up an equitable defense,[34] nor that the plaintiff had executed a deed to a third person which had

Oil Co. v. Western Minerals Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 228.

12. Where defendants were in possession at the time plaintiff's alleged possession began the action cannot be maintained. Barnewell v. Stephens [Ala.] 38 So. 662. One who has never had possession cannot maintain the action against an occupant not in possession by virtue of a contract with him. Aurner v. Pierce, 106 Ill. App. 206.

13. Preston v. Davis, 112 Ill. App. 636. Under Forcible Entry and Detainer Act, § 2, a landlord may maintain the action against his tenant who holds possession without right after the termination of the tenancy or notice to quit. Merki v. Merki, 113 Ill. App. 518. Evidence sufficient to sustain a judgment against a tenant holding over after notice to vacate. Thull v. Allen [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1024.

14. Barnewell v. Stephens [Ala.] 38 So. 662.

15. Andrews v. Erwin, 25 Ky. L. R. 1791, 78 S. W. 902.

16. Under Code 1892, § 4461, it may be maintained where one entered under an agreement to make certain payments in the nature of rent, the premises to be deeded to him when the entire amount was paid, where before payment of the entire amount the person in possession repudiates the contract. Clark v. Bourgevis [Miss.] 38 So. 187.

17. Floersheim v. Baude, 110 Ill. App. 536.

18. Aurner v. Pierce, 106 Ill. App. 206.

19. See 3 C. L. 1435.

20. An allegation that he had put in about forty acres at an expense not to exceed $4 per acre is insufficient. Buhman v. Nickels & Brown Bros. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 85.

21. Under a statute allowing a recovery of treble rents damages cannot be awarded on a prayer for treble rents and profits. Buhman v. Nickels & Brown Bros. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 85.

22. See 3 C. L. 1435.

23, 24. Spellman v. Rhode [Mont.] 81 P. 395.

25. See 3 C. L. 1436.

26. Spellman v. Rhode [Mont.] 81 P. 395.

27. Clark v. Bourgeois [Miss.] 38 So. 187.

28. See 3 C. L. 1436, n. 73, et seq. Clark v. Bourgeois [Miss.] 38 So. 187. Under Code Civ. Proc. the questions of title and right to possession cannot be investigated. Spellman v. Rhode [Mont.] 81 P. 395. The question of title is not in issue (Brown v. Slater, 23 App. D. C. 51), and evidence thereof is inadmissible (Spellman v. Rhode [Mont.] 81 P. 395). The question of title by adverse possession cannot be litigated. Weatherford v. Union Pac. R. Co. [Neb.] 104 N. W. 183. No proof of title is required. Stover v. Davis [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 1023.

29. Floersheim v. Baude, 110 Ill. App. 536; Clark v. Bourgeois [Miss.] 38 So. 187.

30. Merki v. Merki, 113 Ill. App. 518.

31. Swanson v. Smith, 25 Ky. L. R. 1260, 77 S. W. 700.

32. Smith v. Finger [Okl.] 79 P. 759.

33. See 3 C. L. 1436.

34. Defendant cannot set up an equitable title and have a deed declared a mortgage. Cottrell v. Moran [Mich.] 101 N. W. 561.

been lost or destroyed,[35] nor to show a mistake in the deed under which plaintiff claims.[36]

Jurisdiction [37] of the action is generally vested exclusively in courts of justices of the peace,[38] regardless of the amount involved.[39] In Indiana, by statute, if title is put in issue by verified plea, the justice is required to certify the cause to the circuit court.[40] Such answer deprives the justice of jurisdiction and if he refuses to certify the cause, the circuit court does not acquire jurisdiction by appeal.[41] In the South Carolina proceeding against a trespasser, a defendant who answers to the merits gives jurisdiction of the person.[42]

Parties.[43]—A trustee of an express trust may maintain the action without joining the persons for whose benefit it is brought.[46]

The statutory requirements [45] of notice to quit or demand for possession must be complied with,[46] and such notice must be given by one entitled to possession or his authorized agent or attorney [47] subsequent to the termination of contractual relations,[48] but may be waived if it is not an essential part of the procedure,[49] and need not be given if it would constitute a mere idle act.[50] In Kentucky if contractual relations terminate by limitation in the contract by virtue of which the occupant holds possession, no notice to quit is nesessary.[51]

Limitations [52] are governed by the statutes of the various states.[53] If the action is barred as against a grantor, it is likewise barred as against his grantee.[54] In Kentucky the action must be brought within two years from the date of entry.[55]

35, 36. Merki v. Merki, 212 Ill. 121, 72 N. E. 9.

37. See 3 C. L. 1436.

38. The supreme court of the District of Columbia does not have concurrent jurisdiction with the courts of justices of the peace in forcible entry and detainer actions. Brown v. Slater, 23 App. D. C. 51.

39. The statutory limit as to amount in justice courts does not apply. Mark v. Schumann Piano Co., 105 Ill. App. 490.

40. An answer denying that defendant ever held as tenant, but as equitable owner and that plaintiff's grantor held the legal title as trustee puts title in issue under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 1501. Deane v. Robinson, 34 Ind. App. 468, 73 N. E. 169.

41. Deane v. Robinson, 34 Ind. App. 468, 73 N. E. 169.

42. A trespasser served with a rule to show cause why he should not be ejected who appears and objects to the jurisdiction of the magistrate and on the overruling of the objection files a return. Lee v. Chaplin, 70 S. C. 561, 50 S. E. 501.

43. See 3 C. L. 1436.

44. A person executing a lease in his own name as owner. Houck v. Williams [Colo.] 81 P. 800.

45. See 3 C. L. 1436.

46. The statutory notice to vacate must be given before the action can be maintained. Smith v. Finger [Okl.] 79 P. 759. Under Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. 1903, § 5089, the plaintiff must affirmatively show that it was given. Id.

A notice to quit in the form of a rule to show cause why he should not be ejected gives jurisdiction to the magistrate under Civ. Code 1902, § 2972, providing that if a trespasser on service of notice to quit fails to do so within five days a warrant may issue to eject him unless he gives bond for costs to one claiming to be the owner. Lee v. Chaplin, 70 S. C. 561, 50 S. E. 501; Cotton v. Johnson [S. C.] 51 S. E. 245.

47. A notice by one purporting to be attorney without proof of his authority is insufficient. Barnewell v. Stephens [Ala.] 38 So. 662. That the action is brought by an attorney does not show that he had authority to give the notice at the time it was given. Id.

48. Under Code 1896, § 2127, defining an unlawful detainer, a tenancy at will must be terminated prior to the statutory demand for possession. Barnewell v. Stephens [Ala.] 38 So. 662.

49. The notice required by B. & C. Comp. § 5755, is intended for the termination of contractual relations and not as a part of the procedure in forcible entry and detainer. Wolfer v. Hurst [Or.] 82 P. 20.

50. Where a tenant is in under a lease requiring him to quit on thirty days' notice, it is not necessary to give the statutory notice as a condition of rendering him guilty of unlawful detainer. Buhman v. Nickels & Brown Bros. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 85.

51. Where it is terminated by breach of condition in a lease. Andrews v. Erwin, 25 Ky. L. R. 1791, 78 S. W. 902.

52. See 3 C. L. 1437.

53. If defendants attorned to plaintiff within three years before bringing the action, the defense of limitations is not available to them. Barnewell v. Stephens [Ala.] 38 So. 662.

54. Weatherford v. Union Pac. R. Co. [Neb.] 104 N. W. 183, disapproving Syl. 3 of a former report, 98 N. W. 1089, cited 3 C. L. 1437, n. 94.

55. An agreement to arbitrate the right to possession and a refusal to abide by the award does not constitute a new entry. Hord v. Sartain [Ky.] 86 S. W. 692.

Pleading.[56]—The complaint should definitely describe the premises in controversy,[57] and under some statutes must state all the requisites essential to the cause of action.[58] In an action for damages for forcible entry, all that need be alleged is that plaintiff was in peaceable possession.[59] An answer in such action which merely alleges that the relation of landlord and tenant never existed between the parties does not state a defense.[60] It is not competent to set up a counterclaim,[61] nor a cross-demand of any kind.[62]

Evidence.—Proof of a right to possession establishes a prima facie case.[63] In unlawful detainer, plaintiff must show that defendant's entry was by his consent.[64] In an action to eject a trespasser under the South Carolina statute, the defendant must show a bona fide claim of right to possession.[65] A charge of forcible entry by means of violence and circumstances of terror is not sustained by proof of a peaceable entry and a subsequent dispossession by force, threats, and menacing conduct.[66] A deed is not admissible as proof of title,[67] but is admissible as tending to show possession,[68] or the extent thereof.[69]

The judgment[70] should describe the premises so that they can be located without resort to extraneous aid.[71] It cannot be taken as confessed, but proof must be made.[72] Where a judgment is assailed for lack of jurisdiction to render it, all facts necessary to show want of jurisdiction should be alleged.[73]

Appeal[74] or other mode of review is controlled by the statutes of the various states.[75] A right of appeal is to be implied from a statute fixing the requirements of an appeal bond.[76] In Kansas the right of appeal lies, regardless of the amount involved.[77] In Kentucky the mode of reviewing the proceeding is provided by statute and is exclusive.[78] On an appeal from the county to the circuit court, a warrant

56. See 3 C. L. 1437.

57. So that they can be located without resort to extraneous aid. Preston v. Davis, 112 Ill. App. 636.

58. In a proceeding under Act April 3, 1830, to recover possession from a tenant for non-payment of rent. Hickey v. Conley, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 388.

59. The nature of his interest or relationship existing between him and defendant need not be set forth. Mendelson v. Kitt, 92 N. Y. S. 127. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2080, subd. 1, defining a forcible entry as one by any kind of violence or circumstance of terror, a complaint alleging that while plaintiff was in peaceable possession of certain lands defendant forcibly and without right entered and ejected him, is sufficient. Spellman v. Rhode [Mont.] 81 P. 395.

60. Is demurrable. Mendelson v. Kitt, 92 N. Y. S. 127.

61. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 690-692. Spellman v. Rhode [Mont.] 81 P. 395.

62. Mark v. Schumann Piano Co., 105 Ill. App. 490.

63. Floersheim v. Baude, 110 Ill. App. 536.

64. Bailey v. Blacksher Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 827.

65. Lee v. Chaplin, 70 S. C. 561, 50 S. E. 501.

66. Spellman v. Rhode [Mont.] 81 P. 395.

67. Since title cannot be inquired into. Bailey v. Blacksher Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 827.

68. Bailey v. Blacksher Co. [Ala.] 37 So. 827.

69. Barnewell v. Stephens [Ala.] 38 So. 662.

70. See 3 C. L. 1437.

71. Preston v. Davis, 112 Ill. App. 636.

72. The defendant is not required to plead. The plaintiff must prove his case. Smith v. Finger [Okl.] 79 P. 759.

73. A complaint to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment because rendered by a justice who was not a justice of the precinct in which the land was situated, must allege that there was a justice in such precinct. Rev. St. 1901, par. 2058, provides that if there is no justice in the precinct where the land is situated the action may be maintained before the nearest justice. Beam v. Parks [Ariz.] 80 P. 324.

74. Under Starr. & C. St. §§ 18, 19, ch. 57, a party desiring to appeal must, within five days from judgment rendered, apply to the trial court for an appeal and have the amount of the appeal bond fixed. Saxton v. Curley, 112 Ill. App. 450. The record of the justice in a proceeeding under the Act April 3, 1830, to oust a tenant for non-payment of rent must show everything required by the statute to confer jurisdiction. Hickey v. Conley, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 388. Order reversing a judgment of a magistrate in a proceeding to eject a trespasser construed and held to direct another hearing and not a dismissal. Cotton v. Johnson [S. C.] 51 S. E. 245.

75. The proceeding in a county court to eject an intruder cannot be carried by appeal to the superior court. The remedy in such case is certiorari. Rigall v. Sirmans [Ga.] 51 S. E. 381.

76. Wolfer v. Hurst [Or.] 80 P. 419.

77. Burdsal v. Shields [Kan.] 79 P. 1067.

78. Under Civ. Code, § 463, the party who conceives himself aggrieved may file a travmay be amended to perfect the statement of the cause of action.[79] In Illinois the amount of the appeal bond may be increased in the discretion of the appellate court.[80] In Oregon the bond required on appeal from the justice's to the circuit is effectual on a further appeal to the supreme court.[81] A summary judgment against sureties as well as principals on an appeal bond in an action of this character is erroneous.[82]

§ 2. Criminal responsibility.[83]

FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGES ON LAND.[84]

§ 1. The general rights and defenses to foreclose and remedies available therefor.[85] Rights and defenses in general.—There can be no foreclosure unless there is a real and legal debt[86] and a sum presently due[87] and unpaid,[88] and a subsisting erse within three days after the finding. Civ. Code, § 714, authorizing the granting of a new trial on application made within ten days does not apply to proceedings in forcible entry. Swanson v. Smith, 25 Ky. L. R. 1260, 77 S. W. 700.

79. Witt v. Willis [Ky.] 85 S. W. 223.

80. Under the Forcible Entry and Detainer Act (Hurds' Stat. c. 57, § 19), the appellate court may require a new bond in a greater amount if it is necessary to secure the rights of the parties and dismiss the case for failure to furnish it. Brown v. Wagar, 110 Ill. App. 354.

81. B. & C. Comp. § 5754, requires a bond in twice the rental value of the property from rendition of the justice judgment until final determination. Wolfer v. Hurst [Or.] 80 P. 419.

82. Crow v. Williams, 104 Mo. App. 451, 79 S. W. 183.

83. See 3 C. L. 1437.

84. The scope of this title is self-expressed. It treats only of the "foreclosure of mortgages on land," not of other liens (see Liens, 4 C. L. 433; Vendors and Purchasers, 4 C. L. 1769; Chattel Mortgages, 5 C. L. 574), and not of the nature, validity, requisites, operation and effect of the mortgage (see Mortgages, 4 C. L. 677).

85. See 3 C. L. 1438, 1441-1443.

86. Excepting perhaps the case of a gift. It would lack consideration. Perkins v. Trinity Realty Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 167. Denied where founded on a debt incurred in whole or part under agreement in restraint of trade. Evans v. American Strawboard Co., 114 Ill. App. 450.

87. Evidence sufficient to show an amount due. Richardson v. Horton, 139 Ala. 350, 35 So. 1006.

A demand debt may be foreclosed at any time. Kebabian v. Shinkle, 26 R. I. 505, 59 A. 743.

88. Evidence insufficient to show payment. Douglas v. Miller, 102 App. Div. 94, valid mortgage;[89] and plaintiff, when not the mortgagee, must prove interest in or ownership of the mortgage [90] and failing, will be defeated, even though a defendant's title to it is also doubtful.[91] Persons claiming adversely may show that the mortgagor never had title; [92] but the mortgagor cannot.[93] That the mortgagors are not the beneficiaries of a mortgage transaction is no defense.[94] Where it is pleaded in defense that mortgagor had surreptitiously obtained a deed and had no title, it will not be presumed that grantor was negligent in leaving it accessible.[95]

The condition of the mortgage must have been broken,[96] which most commonly occurs by default of payment of the principal or an instalment or part of it,[97] or interest, according to the terms of the mortgage or of subsequent agreements supplanting such terms.[98] To supplant them an extension must rest on consideration,[99] and it may be rescinded for fraud.[1] Default is not waived by failure to declare it at the earliest moment.[2]

An option to foreclose on breach of any covenant may be exercised immediately under a mortgage of a fee with warranty by mortgagors who owned a life estate only.[3] Extending time for payment of principal does not waive the right to fix default on subsequent nonpayment of taxes.[4] The filing of a bill to foreclose a trust deed is a sufficient declaration of an election to declare the note due before maturity.[5]

It will not be foreclosed at the instance of one who merely seeks to further a scheme of fraud,[6] but fraud lying back of the mortgage and going solely to a separate transaction is no defense,[7] nor is the single fact that after action brought the plaintiff in possession sold other property on which the debt was also secured.[8] The 92 N. Y. S. 514. A receipt and indorsements held to show a payment. Durkin v. Markus, 94 N. Y. S. 757.

As to what makes out discharge or payment, see generally Mortgages, 4 C. L. 677; Payment and Tender, 4 C. L. 955.

89. Evidence insufficient to show an extinguishment by mortgagee's purchase under an option thereto. Smith v. Leavenworth [Or.] 80 P. 1010. Evidence insufficient to show mortgage was inseparable from a contract for an illegal object [lobbying]. Reynolds v. Britton, 102 App. Div. 609, 92 N. Y. S. 2.

Whether the requisites of a valid mortgage are present presents a question properly referable to Mortgages, 4 C. L. 677, which see.

90, 91. Merager v. Madson [S. D.] 103 N. W. 650. Disavowal of ownership by ostensible mortgagee held to disprove title of plaintiff claiming by assignment. Id.

92. A good defense is made out by pleading that the answering deendants' ancestor made but did not deliver a deed to the mortgagor who surreptitiously obtained and re- under Rev. Civ. Code, 1903, § 974 must be dent and assistant secretary. Erickson v. by president and secretary, not vice presi- W. 210. Acknowledgment by corporation corded it simultaneously with the mortgage. Kay v. Gray, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 536.

93, 94. State Mut. B. & L. Ass'n v. Batterson, 65 N. J. Eq. 610, 56 A. 703.

95. Kay v. Gray, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 536.

96. To omit to perform what another voluntarily did is not a breach of condition. Provide burial under mortgage for support, etc. Davis v. Poland, 99 Me. 345, 59 A. 520.

97. On default by the mortgagor in payment of a part of the notes secured by the mortgage, the mortgagee is entitled on petition therefor, to a foreclosure for the amount due. Notes secured by deeds reciting that they shall be void if notes are not paid at maturity. Land v. May [Ark.] 84 S. W. 489.

98. There is no default on failing to pay interest at the stipulated place where it was in consequence of an agreement to call and collect it. Lawrance v. Ward, 28 Utah, 129 77 P. 229.

99. Sturgeon v. Mudd [Me.] 88 S. W. 630.

1. Concealment of the fact of other conflicting liens. Sturgeon v. Mudd [Mo.] 88 S. W. 630.

2. Nonpayment of taxes for ten days not waived in three years where mortgagee paid them. Lawler v. French [Va.] 51 S. E. 180.

3. King v. King, 215 Ill. 100, 74 N. E. 89.

4. Clark v. Elmendorf [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 538. Clause as to taxes construed to include any falling due before principal. Id.

5. Holdroff v. Remlee, 105 Ill. App. 671; Noe v. Witbeck, 105 Ill. App. 502.

6. Scheme to cut off purchaser's rights under contract of sale. Weis v. Levy, 94 N. Y. S. 857.

7. The mortgagee is not defeated as a wrongdoer because in another transaction he in fraud of third persons got in the title and conveyed to mortgagors. Mortgage was for debt owing by mortgagors' husbands and fraud was on other creditors of husbands. Pitzele v. Cohn [Ill.] 75 N. E. 392.

8. Not unless the sale was disadvantageous or the proceeds were misapplied.

mortgagor's procuring an assignee to take the mortgage precludes the defense of duress.[9] The lender may foreclose for so much as he has loaned, despite his failure to loan as much as he agreed.[10] Foreclosure is not defeated by the fact that owing to a wife's nonjoinder in the mortgage it does not bind her.[11] The mortgagee may foreclose on the part he has retained despite the absence of a stamp on an assignment of an interest.[12]

The mortgagor may not defend when he no longer has any interest in the land and the mortgage bond has been released.[13] The mortgagor's trustee in bankruptcy may plead invalidity.[14] Unless the mortgage was within four months, a trustee in bankruptcy cannot obtain an injunction if the debt be not proved and he makes no tender.[15]

Accounting and amount due.—The foreclosure being to enforce a lien requires that the land be subjected only to what is equitably due on an accounting.[16]

Tender[17] must include stipulated attorney's fees if the condition allowing them has befallen.[18]

Presentation to debtor's estate.—This is necessary in some states in order to hold personal assets or to charge the general estate for a possible deficiency.[19] In California, if the mortgagor of a homestead be deceased, a claim must be first presented to his estate;[20] but as against portions of the premises not exempt as homestead, no previous presentation is necessary.[21]

Persons entitled to foreclose.—The creditor or mortgagee so long as he retains an interest in the debt[22] or in a part thereof,[23] or any one who has an interest in the debt as against the land which equity can recognize, may cause foreclosure.[24] Whether any of these may foreclose in a particular way or stand as parties is hereafter discussed.[25] Persons secondarily liable for the debt may foreclose pursuant to stipulations to that effect on producing the note and mortgage without any proof of payment.[26]

The remedies for foreclosure most common are sale under a power reserved in Anglo California Bank v. Cerf [Cal.] 81 P. 1077.

9. Langley v. Andrews [Ala.] 38 So. 238.

10. Less v. English [Ark.] 87 S. W. 447.

11. Dever v. Selz [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 891.

12. Wisconsin Trust Co. v. Chapman, 121 Wis. 479, 99 N. W. 341.

13. Evans v. Wilmer [Pa.] 60 A. 312.

14. Carlsbad Water Co. v. New [Colo.] 81 P. 34.

15. Parks v. Baldwin [Ga.] 51 S. E. 722.

16. See Mortgages, 4 C. L. 677, for the rules for adjusting equities between various parties.

17. See generally, Payment and Tender, 4 C. L. 955.

Besides wiping out a default, tender is either to save costs (see Costs, 5 C. L. 842), or to force a discontinuance (see post, § 6a) or to stop interest (see Interest, 4 C. L. 241).

18. Fees given if placed in hands of attorney are due as soon as he has received it before he has done anything towards collection. Easton v. Woodbury [S. C.] 50 S. E. 790. If the deed of trust provides for a solicitor's fee, a tender after suit begun must include the fee. Healy v. Protection Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 213 Ill. 99, 72 N. E. 678.

19. See Estates of Decedents, § 6, 5 C. L. 1219.

20, 21. Bank of Woodland v. Stephens [Cal.] 79 P. 379.

22. Creditor who has sold the debt cannot demand of trustee that he sell. Collier v. Doe ex dem. Alexander [Ala.] 38 So. 244.

23. The holder of a note given for earned interest is secured by the mortgage and may foreclose. Kleis v. McGrath [Iowa] 103 N. W. 371.

24. A guarantor who has taken an assignment of the mortgage as security may foreclose. Ruberg v. Brown [S. C.] 51 S. E. 96.

Co-mortgagor who is entitled to contribution: Where a mortgage covers property owned by two parties and one of them makes payments on the mortgage to the other, such a one is entitled to have the mortgage first enforced against the land of the other. Blackwell v. British-American Mortg. Co., 65 S. C. 105, 43 S. E. 395.

One who becomes subrogated to the mortgage and released it by mistake may foreclose. He loaned money in ignorance of borrower's insanity and at his request used it to discharge the mortgage debt. Doxey v. Western State Bank, 113 Ill. App. 442.

25. See post, §§ 2-5.

26. Iberia Cypress Co. v. Christen, 112 La. 448, 36 So. 490.

the mortgage [27] and equitable action or suit to enforce the lien.[28] In several states scire facias sur mortgage is available,[29] and executory process,[30] ejectment,[31] strict foreclosure,[32] and entry and possession,[33] are used in others. In many states two or more of these modes exist. The applicability of any of them in a particular case is hereafter discussed.[34] In equity the equitable remedies may be administered incidentally.[35] A trustee with power of sale will be relegated to it unless some impediment requires judicial foreclosure in equity.[36] The mere existence of other liens superior or inferior is no impediment unless they are so uncertain or conflicting as to deter bidders.[37] Neither is the fact that there will arise rights of subrogation.[38] The trustee having no power to assert a creditor's right to a marshaling of securities [39] cannot go to equity on such ground.[40] An instrument which is essentially a mortgage may be foreclosed as one though called a trust deed.[41] In Georgia the grantee in a security deed may concurrently [42] sue on the debt and sell the land and may sue for possession under the deed; [43] and the transferee of the debt may also sue thereon.[44] He being in equity also the owner [45] may sue to establish title necessary to the security deed and withheld by fraud,[46] and to that end to quiet or set aside other titles or claims thereof made in fraud.[47]

§ 2. Foreclosure by scire facias, and by executory process.[48] Scire facias.—The general rules of procedure are discussed in another topic.[49] A judgment by stipulation substantially adjusting rights of parties is valid.[50] A certificate of an amount due a defendant, the judgment and the right to execution thereon to such defendant in sci. fa. is bad, since he could not levy on his own land.[51] The proper return to scire facias on a mortgage which the sheriff has been unable to execute is nihil habet and not non est inventus.[52]

Executory process.—A fixed sum not payable on such terms as import a penalty, is so absolute in terms that executory process lies in Louisiana, though the amount may by terms be compounded in a commodity.[53] Executory process may go against the syndic of an insolvency to whom the equity of redemption has been ceded [54] and he may make all defenses.[55] On opposing a proceeding via executiva no injunction need be prayed if the opponent "not originally a party" but pretending to own the thing seized seeks to arrest the "order of seizure" and "regulate" its effect in what relates to it.[56]

§ 3. Sale by trustee in deed or under power. A. Right and authority to sell.[57] The trustee has such powers only as the deed gives and those properly implied thereto.[58] Unless so authorized in the deed, the trustee cannot delegate his power.[59]

27. Post, § 3.

28. Post, § 6. The modes in vogue in the several states are enumerated in 9 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 97.

29, 30. See post, § 2.

31, 32, 33, 34. See following sections.

34. See following sections.

35. If one holding a mortgage as collateral for his guaranty sues for reimbursement, he may in the same action as part of necessary relief foreclose. Ruberg v. Brown [S. C.] 51 S. E. 96.

36, 37, 38, 39, 40. George v. Zinn [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 904.

41. Langmaack v. Keith [S. D.] 103 N. W. 210.

42, 43, 44. Clark v. Havard [Ga.] 50 S. E. 108.

45, 46, 47. Clark v. Havard [Ga.] 50 S. E. 108. Allegations held sufficient to make out equity. Id.

48. See 3 C. L. 1438.

49. See Scire Facias, 4 C. L. 1415.

50. On scire facias of a mortgage from vendee to vendor which was to have been satisfied by reconveyance, a judgment by stipulation expressly limited to the land exonerating mortgagee and with execution stayed until release and surrender of the bond is valid. Evans v. Wilmer [Pa.] 60 A. 312.

51. When entered the reviewing court will set it aside while sustaining the judgment. Land Title & Trust Co. v. Fulmer (No. 1), 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 256.

52. In re Walsh [Del. Super.] 58 A. 945.

53. Iberia Cypress Co. v. Christen, 112 La. 451, 36 So. 491.

54, 55. Trezevant v. Levy's Heirs [La.] 38 So. 589.

56. Code Proc. arts. 395, 396. Brugier v. Miller [La.] 38 So. 404.

57. See 3 C. L. 1439.

58. George v. Zinn [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 904.

It is presumed that the trustee continues entitled,[60] and conveyance by the grantor to creditor is not a payment of a "mortgage" which extinguishes the title.[61] If the deed provides for the substitution by the beneficiary of another trustee in case the one named fails or refuses to act, a sale by a substituted trustee is invalid unless the original trustee has been first requested to make it;[62] but if substitution is warranted by absence of the trustee, no request need be made to fix a right to substitute as on a refusal.[63] The mortgagee's attorney in fact is not a "legal representative" of the mortgagee or holder within a clause for substitution of a trustee.[64] A corporation need not execute a substitution under its seal.[65]

If the name of a corporation in a security deed be mere description of the person of the grantee, neither the corporation nor its officers may sell,[66] and if the corporation acquires such title, the power cannot be exercised by one describing himself as its officer.[67]

There was no limitation in time on a proceeding to sell by advertisement in North Dakota until the act of 1901 extended the terms of that act applicable to actions.[68] Time run before that time is not to be reckoned.[69] The better rule is that unless the debt is extinguished, the mere bar of action in personam thereon does not bar foreclosure;[70] but in Arkansas a second and curative sale cannot be had after the debt is barred.[71]

In South Dakota where all assignments must have been first duly recorded, a record is void if defectively acknowledged.[72] In Mississippi a substitution of trustees is "recorded" when filed for record, and sale may be contemporaneous.[73]

In Georgia reconveyance is made in order to sell as against the debtor,[74] but is not necessary if there is neither defeasance clause nor bond to reconvey.[75] If the grantor is dead, it should be sold as property of his estate.[76]

(§ 3) B. Notice.[77]—If the character of notice of sale is provided in the mortgage, it must be strictly followed,[78] and when the power specifies advertisement in a particular newspaper that one or its identical successor must be chosen.[79] The ad-

The power of sale conferred upon trustees must be strictly followed or no title will pass by their deeds. Trustee represents both parties and has no powers except those named in the instrument. Davis v. Hughes [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1161.

59. Polliham v. Reveley, 181 Mo. 622, 81 S. W. 182. Such delegation is not impliedly authorized by provisions as to how he shall act by "attorney in fact" if one becomes necessary, those words being referable to necessary ministerial acts. Id.

60, 61. Leech v. Karthaus [Ala.] 37 So. 696. The statute (Code 1896, § 1067), so providing, does not apply to deeds of trust. Id.

62. Can be no failure or refusal until after a request. Davis v. Hughes [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1161. Where deed named a principal and an alterative trustee, held that right to appoint substitute to make sale did not arise until after both had been requested to act, and sale was void. Id.

63. Ward v. Forrester [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 751.

64. He could not appoint a new one instead of one deceased. Allen v. Alliance Trust Co., 84 Miss. 319, 36 So. 285. Sale was void. Id.

65. Brown v. British American Mortg. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 312.

66, 67. Greenfield v. Stout [Ga.] 50 S. E. 111.

68. Laws 1901, c. 120, p. 152, amending Rev. Codes 1899, § 5200, subd. 2. Clark v. Beck [N. D.] 103 N. W. 755.

69. Clark v. Beck [N. D.] 103 N. W. 755.

70. See post, § 5, note citing Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Northwest Thresher Co. [N. D.] 103 N. W. 915.

71. Ford v. Nesbitt [Ark.] 79 S. W. 793.

72. Langmaack v. Keith [S. D.] 103 N. W. 210. Acknowledgment by corporation under Rev. Civ. Code, 1903, § 974, must be by president and secretary, not vice president and assistant secretary. Erickson v. Conniff [S. D.] 101 N. W. 1104.

73. Brown v. British Am. Mortg. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 312.

74, 75, 76. Greenfield v. Stout [Ga.] 50 S. E. 111.

77. See 3 C. L. 1439.

78. Where notice of sale in the name of the person making the sale is required, notice in the name of a deceased mortgagee is insufficient. Ford v. Nesbitt [Ark.] 79 S. W. 793.

79. Moore v. Dick, 187 Mass. 207, 72 N. E. 967. Evidence held to show that the semi-weekly and not daily edition succeeded the discontinued one specified. Id.

vertisement need not describe improvements erected by a subsequent tenant of the mortgagor not in privity to the mortgagee.[80]

(§ 3) C. Sale and deed.[81]—The trustee must faithfully follow the terms in the deed,[82] but it will be presumed he did so.[83] Where the manner and time of execution of a power of sale in a mortgage is fixed by stipulation, it is not necessary to the validity of the sale that it be made on the day fixed by statute for public sales.[84] A stipulation for sale after advertising for a time certain fixes the time of sale at the expiration of such period.[85] Sale of an excessive amount is bad.[86] Several tracts under one mortgage should not be sold en gross if one will pay out.[87] The Mississippi law against sales en masse of more than 160 acres may be waived [88] and a provision to that end in the trust deed is efficient.[89]

The deed need not recite the particulars of compliance with terms of the deed in making sale.[90]

(§ 3) D. Costs and fees [91] are those stipulated in the debt or prescribed by statute.[92]

§ 4. Entry and possession or possessory action.[93]—While ordinarily the mortgagee need not prove breach of condition to entitle him to enter and possess,[94] it is otherwise where in terms the mortgage contemplates continued possession in the mortgagor.[95] All the heirs and the widow of a deceased mortgagee must join in the possessory action,[96] and the breach of condition must be clearly and certainly alleged.[97]

§ 5. Strict foreclosure [98] is a harsh and drastic remedy, where the mortgagee is regarded as having only a lien and not the legal title, and will not be allowed if sale is a proper remedy.[99] It is proper where a mortgagee has in good faith gone into possession under a foreclosure defective for mistaken failure to implead an heir.[1] After a judgment establishing the right to redeem, time runs unless tolled by payment or otherwise.[2] A judgment establishing the interests in land as a mortgage and "debarring" the mortgagor "absolutely" in case of default is not to be construed as strict foreclosure.[3]

§ 6. Foreclosure by action and sale. A. Right of action and nature of remedy.[4]—The action in equity is ordinarily a second resort where legal remedies co-

80. Description in deed good. Kebabian v. Shinkle, 26 R. I. 505, 59 A. 743.

81. See 3 C. L. 1440.

82. Material departure avoids sale. McCaughn v. Young [Miss.] 37 So. 839.

83. McCaughn v. Young [Miss.] 37 So. 839.

84. Crawford v. Garrett, 121 Ga. 706, 49 S. E. 677.

85. Sale therefore need not be on a "public sales day." Crawford v. Garrett, 121 Ga. 706, 49 S. E. 677.

86, 87. Mays v. Lee [Ind.] 59 A. 848.

88, 89. Brown v. British Am. Mortg. Co. Co. [Mass.] 38 So. 312.

90. McCaughn v. Young [Miss.] 37 So. 839.

91, 92. See 3 C. L. 1440.

93. See 3 C. L. 1441. See, also, ante, § 1, notes 42-46.

94, 95. Must prove it where mortgagor covenated to support mortgagee "on the premises." Davis v. Poland, 99 Me. 345, 59 A. 520.

96. Davis v. Poland, 99 Me. 345, 59 A. 520.

97. Plea that mortgagor failed to bury mortgagee as provided in mortgage for support, held bad. Davis v. Poland, 99 Me. 345, 59 A. 520.

98. See 3 C. L. 1441.

99. Sale is not a proper remedy and hence it will lie to foreclose a vendee under a broken contract of sale of land, and in favor of the purchaser in possession under a senior mortgage which more than consumed the value of the land. South Omaha Sav. Bank v. Levy, 1 Neb. Unoff. 255, 95 N. W. 603.

Note: It is not allowed to a mortgagee against the owner of the legal title acquired before foreclosure. South Omaha Sav. Bank v. Levy, 1 Neb. Unoff. 255, 95 N. W. 603, cited 1 C. L. 18; Jefferson v. Coleman, 110 Ind. 515; Whitney v. Higgins, 10 Cal. 507, 70 Am. Dec. 748; Montgomery v. Tutt, 11 Cal. 190; Goodenow v. Ewer, 16 Cal. 461, 76 Am. Dec. 540; Shaw v. Heisey, 48 Iowa, 438; Boiles v. Duff, 43 N. Y. 469; McCaughey v. McDuffie, 141 Cal. XVIII, 74 P. 751, 3 C. L. 1441, n. 65, citing Flanagan Estate v. Great Cent. Land Co., 45 Or. 335, 77 P. 485.

1. Henthron v. Security Co. [Kan.] 70 P. 653.

2, 3. Bunn v. Braswell [N. C.] 51 S. E. 927.

exist;[5] but a statutory foreclosure by sale wholly void because of defects on its face is no defense,[6] and a mortgage to a partnership in which the names of the individual partners do not appear may be foreclosed in equity, though the designation of the mortgagees is insufficient to authorize its foreclosure at law.[7] The mortgage note and a subsequent note for interest may be brought into one action;[8] but a foreclosure suit being ex contractu cannot be joined with an action to recover land, a mixed action, analogous to ejectment.[9] Easements pre-existing the mortgage cannot be adjudicated,[10] even though in litigation when the mortgage was made.[11] A suit by a corporation to foreclose is not an action in relation to property "purchased, located or held" in the county, requiring filing of articles.[12] In equitable foreclosure, incidental relief will be administered according to equitable principles,[13] and foreclosure may be incident to other relief.

Jurisdiction.[14]—Jurisdiction rests on the situs of the land and not on personal service.[15] In Texas, one holding a mortgage on the land of a decedent may have his debt established and his lien foreclosed by a suit against the widow and children in the district court, it appearing that there is no administration, that the property is not worth more than the amount of the mortgage debt, and that there are no other debts against the estate or if there are that they are inferior to the mortgage.[16] A judgment for plaintiff in such suit stops the running of limitations against the mortgage debt.[17] The action is purely local, even though both parties are foreign and the mortgage is payable out of the state,[18] and a suit is properly brought in the county in which the property subject to the lien or any part thereof is situated.[19]

Limitations.[20]—The application of the statute of limitations has resulted in some conflict partly due to loss of the distinction between the various "actions" which spring from the debt and the lien.[21] The limitation applicable to sealed instruments accruing without the state does not apply even if the debt is there payable, because the action is on the lien and not on the debt.[22] The action in North Dakota being in personam [23] attracts to it the suspension of limitations on such actions during absence of the person against whom the cause of action shall accrue,[24] but the

4. See 3 C. L. 1441.

5. See ante, § 1.

6. The notice was prematurely dated, did not describe the land and was informal. Woodruff v. Coffman [Mich.] 103 N. W. 166.

7. Decree and sale not thereby rendered void. Carpenter v. Zarbuck [Ark.] 86 S. W. 299.

8. Klels v. McGrath [Iowa] 103 N. W. 371.

9. Ramey v. O'Byrne, 121 Ga. 516, 49 S. E. 595.

10, 11. Mayer v. Margolies, 95 N. Y. S. 204.

12. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080.

13. See generally, Equity, 5 C. L. 1144. The sale of infants' interests may be incidentally ordered in order to do complete equity. Infants' lands sold where there was danger of drainage assessments beyond their ability to meet. King v. King, 215 Ill. 100, 74 N. E. 89. May incidentally construe a will. Id. A lessor may intervene in a proceeding to foreclose the lessee's mortgage on the leasehold and pray cancellation where because of the custody of a receiver he could not maintain a possessory action for breach of condition against mortgages. Gunning v. Sorg, 214 Ill. 616, 73 N. E. 870, afg. 113 Ill. App. 332.

14. See 3 C. L. 1443.

15. Greenwood Loan & Guarantee Ass'n v. Williams [S. C.] 51 S. E. 272. The courts of the state within which the land is territorially included have jurisdiction and this fact cannot be challenged by general allegation. Islands held in New Jersey. Cook v. Weigley [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 1029.

16. Cates v. Field [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 52.

17. Debt not barred so as to prevent foreclosure of lien against interest of purchaser with notice. Cates v. Field [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 52.

18. Wells v. Scanlan [Wis.] 102 N. W. 571.

19. Rev. St. 1895, art. 1194, subds. 12, 23, art. 1465, subds. 2, 4. Commercial Tel. Co. v. Territorial Bank & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 66. Rev. St. 1895, art. 1488, relating to the venue of actions for the appointment of receivers for corporations, does not apply to an action for the foreclosure of a trust deed in which a receiver is appointed. Id.

20. See 3 C. L. 1443; see, also, Limitation of Actions, 4 C. L. 445.

21. See post, note 31.

22. Wells v. Scanlan [Wis.] 102 N. W. 571.

23, 24. Paine v. Dodds [N. D.] 103 N. W.

absence of a mortgagee after he has parted with title is not within this rule;[25] neither does absence of the administrator[26] nor the want of an administrator of a deceased mortgagor toll foreclosure as to heirs.[27] But the absence of part of the heirs of the equity of redemption tolls foreclosure as to their shares.[28] Whether the action to foreclose may be barred while that on the debt still runs is much in conflict;[29] but North Dakota has adopted the affirmative view[30] held by the majority, and the further proposition that the outworking of equities arising from the fact that the land is a primary fund even as to an absent mortgagor does not require a suspension of the statutes during his absence.[31] Also the grantee may tack the time

931; Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Northwest Thresher Co. [N. D.] 103 N. W. 95; Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Flemington [N. D.] 103 N. W. 929.

25. Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Northwest Thresher Co. [N. D.] 103 N. W. 915.

26. Paine v. Dodds [N. D.] 103 N. W. 931.

27, 28. Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Flemington [N. D.] 103 N. W. 929.

29, 30. Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Northwest Thresher Co. [N. D.] 103 N. W. 915.

31. Paine v. Dodds [N. D.] 103 N. W. 931; Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Northwest Thresher Co. [N. D.] 103 N. W. 915; Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Flemington [N. D.] 103 N. W. 929.

NOTE. Can limitations run against foreclosure while suspended as to an action on the debt: The contrariety of opinion on this subject and the reasoning of the courts is very learnedly commented on in the opinion of Judge Engerud, in the case of Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. N. W. Thresher Co., from which we quote in substance. In that case the principal debtor absented himself from the state after disposing of all his interest in the land, whereupuon the question arose. The decisions may be divided into several classes.

Where the mortgage either conveys a defeasible estate in the land or the statute of limitations raises a presumption of payment: In this class belong the Illinois cases: Emory v. Keighan, 94 Ill. 543; Schifferstein v. Allison, 24 Ill. App. 294; Id., 123 Ill. 662, 15 N. E. 275; Banking Ass'n v. Bank, 157 Ill. 524, 41 N. E. 919; Jones v. Foster, 175 Ill. 459, 51 N. E. 862; Richey v. Sinclair, 167 Ill. 184, 47 N. E. 364. Of these the court points out that Richey v. Sinclair, 167 Ill. 184, was the only one in which there was mere absence of the mortgagor after parting with his estate, uncoupled with other features tolling the statute. It is sustainable because in Illinois the mortgage is defeasible only by extinguishing the debt, and as the debt was not extinguished by the bar, the mortgage could not be. The suggestion is made, however, that later legislation in Illinois may have destroyed the principles on which this conclusion is reached. In North Dakota the statute of limitations neither extinguishes obligations nor raises presumptions thereof, but merely bars the remedy, and a mortgage conveys no estate. Rev. Codes 1899, § 4699; Halloran v. Holmes [N. D.] 101 N. W. 310; Satterlund v. Beal, 12 N. D. 122, 95 N. W. 518.

Where foreclosure is a proceeding in rem: In such states the absence of the mortgagor cannot toll the statute. Anderson v. Baxter, 4 Or. 105; Peters v. Dunnells, 5 Neb. 460.

Where the mortgage is not an estate in land and the statute does not raise a presumption of payment: Of this class of states, Texas, Kansas and Iowa hold that the mortgagor's absence after parting with all interest, nevertheless tolls the statute against foreclosure. Cases fairly representing the views of the Texas courts are Ewell v. Daggs, 108 U. S. 143, 27 Law. Ed. 682; Falwell v. Hening, 78 Tex. 278, 14 S. W. 613. From Kansas may be cited Waterson v. Kirkwood, 17 Kan. 9, and Schmucker v. Sibert, 18 Kan. 104, 26 Am. Rep. 765; and from Iowa, Clinton Co. v. Cox, 37 Iowa, 570; Brown v. Rockhold, 49 Iowa, 282; Robertson v. Stuhlmiller, 93 Iowa, 326, 61 N. W. 986; and Leeds Lumber Co. v. Haworth, 98 Iowa, 463, 67 N. W. 383, 60 Am. St. Rep. 199. Judge Engerud points out that the cases from these states are erroneous in principle and opposed to the majority, and states that they are fallacious in their reasoning; for while the mortgage is incident to the debt and survives until it is discharged, those courts overlook the fact that the bar of the remedy is entirely distinct from a discharge of the obligation. It is not true that when the personal liability for the debt has become merely unenforceable, its obligation is so destroyed that the functions of the mortgage terminate. The statute operates on the remedy only, and so it comes that personal liability may be unenforceable while the mortgage is yet enforceable, and conversely, foreclosure may be barred and action on the debt still maintainable. The principal Iowa case is Clinton County v. Cox, 37 Iowa, 570, in which the reasoning thus criticised is stated, and a similar reasoning is found in Schmucker v. Sibert, 18 Kan. 104, 26 Am. Rep. 765. Duty v. Graham, 12 Tex. 427, 62 Am. Dec. 534. These cases, it is said assume that not only is the mortgage incident to the debt, but foreclosure is incident to the action to enforce personal liability. This reasoning, and the propositions upon which it rests, is in direct conflict with the overwhelming weight of authority. Joy v. Adams, 26 Me. 330; Thayer v. Mann, 19 Pick. [Mass.] 535; Richmond v. Aiken, 25 Vt. 324; Baldwin v. Norton, 2 Conn. 161; Pratt v. Huggins, 29 Barb. [N. Y.] 282; Fowler v. Wood, 78 Hun, 304, 28 N. Y. Supp. 976; Colton v. Depew, 60 N. J. Eq. 454, 46 A. 728, 83 Am. St. Rep. 650; Demuth v. Bank, 85 Md. 315, 37 A. 266, 60 Am. St. Rep. 322; Arthur v. Screven [S. C.] 17 S. E. 640; Elkins run in his favor to that run for grantor.[32] The reason given for these conclusions is that the remedies to foreclose and on the debt are distinct and the bar acts only on the remedy, not on the right.[33] Whether the bar of foreclosure by action does or does not carry with it foreclosure by sale, [34] an estoppel to plead it to a sale does not cut off a plea to the action.[35]

Where there has been a binding extension, time runs from the expiration thereof and not earlier defaults.[36] As to one who took under and subsequent to the mort-

v. Edwards, 8 Ga. 326; Bizzell v. Nix, 60 Ala. 281, 31 Am. Rep. 38; Browne v. Browne, 17 Fla. 607, 35 Am. Rep. 96; Kendall v. Clarke, 90 Ky. 178, 13 S. W. 583; Tate v. Hawkins, 81 Ky. 577, 50 Am. Rep. 181; Insurance Co. v. Browne, 11 Mich. 265; Wiswell v. Baxter, 20 Wis. 680; Whipple v. Barnes, 21 Wis. 332; Lewis v. Schwenn, 93 Mo. 26, 2 S. W. 391, 3 Am. St. Rep. 511; Bush v. White, 85 Mo. 339; Bank v. Guttschlick, 14 Pet. [U. S.] 19-30, 10 Law. Ed. 335; Eubanks v. Leveridge, 4 Sawy. 274, Fed. Cas. No. 4,544. It has been held that the two causes of action could not even be joined in the absence of a statutory provision to that effect. Ins. Co. v. Brown, 11 Mich. 265; Borden v. Gilbert, 13 Wis. 670; Stilwell v. Kellogg, 14 Wis. 461; Cary v. Wheeler, 14 Wis. 281; Faesi v. Goetz, 15 Wis. 231; Doan v. Holly, 25 Mo. 357, and 26 Mo. 186. The doctrine established by the foregoing cases is well stated by Judge Deady in Eubanks v. Leveridge. That case was tried in the Federal court in Oregon, and, of course, the decision of the supreme court of Oregon on the question involved was conclusive on the Federal court sitting in that state. The state court had held that an action to foreclose was not barred by the absence of the mortgagor after he parted with the title; because the action was in rem; but Judge Deady reached the same conclusions for reasons different from those of the state court. He said: "But I apprehend the true doctrine to be that the remedy upon the note and mortgage is, like the transaction itself, two-fold. The making and delivery of the note, and the failure to pay the same according to its tenor, gives the holder thereof a right of action against the maker, upon which he can obtain a personal judgment for the sum due thereon. So the execution and delivery of the mortgage creates a lien upon the property included in it to secure the payment of the sum mentioned in the note, and, in case of a default in such payment, a suit may be maintained upon this 'sealed instrument,' the mortgage, to enforce such lien for the purpose of paying the debt. Notwithstanding section 410 of the Code provides that in a suit 'to foreclose a lien, where there is also a personal obligation for the payment of the debt,' in addition to the decree of foreclosure and sale, 'a decree may be given against the person giving the same for the amount thereof,' yet I apprehend that either the remedy upon the personal obligation or the mortgage may be pursued for the collection of the debt without reference to the other. . . . These authorities go to show that the holder of a note and mortgage has two distinct remedies for the collection of his debt, and that they exist and may be pursued independently of each other."

Summing up Judge Engerud continues: "The remedy on the personal obligation for the debt and that on the mortgage may, and often must, be pursued against different defendants and in divers jurisdictions. The remedy on the mortgage must be invoked in the jurisdiction where the property lies, and the time within which it must be commenced is governed by the law of that state. The only person or persons affected by that remedy are those who are interested in the property adversely to the mortgage. Those persons are the only necessary parties to such an action. It is against them that the cause of action for the foreclosure of the lien accrues. It is in their favor and for their protection that the statute operates. The acts or situation of the debtor who has no interest in the land clearly should not toll the statute in an action to which he is not a necessary party. It is clear that it is only he in whose favor and for whose protection the statute operates, who can waive or deprive himself of its benefits. Such is the reasoning of the courts of California, Washington, New York, Missouri and South Carolina, and we think those decisions are in accord with both law and common sense. Wood v. Goodfellow, 43 Cal. 185; Watt v. Wright, 66 Cal. 202, 5 P. 91; George v. Butler, 26 Wash. 456, 67 P. 263, 90 Am. St. Rep. 756, 57 L. R. A. 396; Denny v. Palmer, 26 Wash. 469, 67 P. 268, 90 Am. St. Rep. 766; Bush v. White, 85 Mo. 339; Arthur v. Screven [C. C.] 17 S. E. 640; Fowler v. Wood, 78 Hun, 304, 28 N. Y. Supp. 976, aff. 150 N. Y. 584, 44 N. E. 1124. See, also, Tate v. Hawkins, 81 Ky. 577, 50 Am. Rep. 181." Compare Halloran v. Holmes [N. D.] 101 N. W. 310; Satterlund v. Beal, 12 N. D. 122, 95 N. W. 518.

There is a dissenting opinion in Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Northwest Thresher Co., wherein Judge Young dissents from the views expressed by Judge Engerud, on the ground that the words of the North Dakota statute suspending limitations during the absence "of the person against whom the cause of action shall accrue," by fair construction must include the person who created the obligation, to-wit, the mortgagor. An exhaustive discussion of the meaning of the words "cause of action" is given in the dissenting opinion.

32. Paine v. Dodds [N. D.] 103 N. W. 931.

33. Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Flemington [N. D.] 103 N. W. 929.

34, 35. Teigen v. Drake [N. D.] 101 N. W. 893.

36. White v. Krutz, 37 Wash. 34, 79 P. 495. Such agreement binds subsequent grantee and prolongs period as to him. Id.

gage, the statute is tolled by a timely suit against the mortgagor.[37] The action is not barred as to other lien holders until the original cause of action is barred.[38] It does not run against a mortgagee in possession.[39] The death of one mortgagor does not toll the statute as to the other.[40]

The defense of limitations may be interposed by the owner, though not a party to the mortgage.[41] A purchaser at judicial sale of an heir's undivided interest may plead the bar.[42] If the statute is tolled against the note, that against the mortgage also is extended.[43] By failure to implead all parties who have interests subject to the lien, the bar may arise as to them.[44] The first mortgagee cannot plead it against a second who does not contest the former's lien.[45]

Abatement.[46]—Transfer of premises does not abate the suit.[47] Revivor after death of mortgagor who had parted with title and was unnecessary party is unnecessary.[48] In case of the landowner's death before confirmation, the suit should be revived and not merely the decree.[49] In case of a transfer of plaintiff's right pendente lite, the action may in California be continued in plaintiff's name without substitution.[50]

Leave to sue.—In a suit against a receiver in his own court, it is presumed that leave was obtained.[51]

Discontinuance.—The action should be discontinued and the mortgage assigned on motion of the mortgagor's tenant in common who pays or tenders what is due.[52] The assent or dissent of other defendants is immaterial,[53] and their failure to receive notice of the motion is no concern of plaintiff.[54] Whilst the assertion by defendant of an adverse title might require dismissal,[55] a prior judgment lien is not such a title.[56]

(§ 6) B. Parties and process. Parties plaintiff.[57]—The complainant must be either the legal or equitable owner of the mortgage or the mortgage debt.[58] The real creditor is a "real party in interest" entitled under the codes to sue as plaintiff,[59] even if the nominal mortgagee might also be entitled as a "trustee" of an express trust.[60] A foreign corporation organized for the purpose of doing a trust business, and holding a trust deed of all the property of a telephone company in the state as security for its bondholders, may maintain a suit for the foreclosure of the lien and

37. The mortgagor's grantee was not served and afterwards set up title and pleaded the bar. Less v. English [Ark.] 87 S. W. 447.

38. Citizens' State Bank v. Jess [Iowa] 103 N. W. 471.

39. One who bought in under a void sale. Investment Securities Co. v. Adams, 37 Wash. 211, 79 P. 625.

40. Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Boland, 145 Cal. 626, 79 P. 365.

41. Blakeslee v. Hoit, 116 Ill. App. 83.

42. Hopkins v. Clyde, 71 Ohio St. 141, 72 N. E. 846.

43. MacMillan v. Clements, 33 Ind. App. 120, 70 N. E. 997.

44. Dowress held entitled to plead it in 1901, where her dower was not subjected to suit in 1877. Dubois v. Martin [Neb.] 99 N. W. 267.

45. Privilege is the debtor's. Tinsley v. Lombard [Or.] 78 P. 895.

46. See 3 C. L. 1443, n. 3-6.

47. So under Code, § 3476. Citizens' State Bank v. Jess [Iowa] 103 N. W. 471.

48. Boatman's Bank v. First Nat. Bank [Kan.] 79 P. 125.

49. On the death of the mortgagor after the sale but before confirmation, it is proper to revive the action against his heirs under Civ. Code Prac. § 507, rather than to revive the judgment under § 407, subsec. 3. Montz v. Schabacher, 26 Ky. L. R. 1214, 83 S. W. 569.

50. Code Civ. Proc. § 385. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080.

51. Payson v. Jacobs [Wash.] 80 P. 429.

52, 53, 54. Simonson v. Lauck, 93 N. Y. S. 965.

55, 56. Illinois Nat. Bank v. Trustees of Schools, 111 Ill. App. 189.

57. See 3 C. L. 1443.

58. As to the rights and interests in Mortgages, see Mortgages, 4 C. L. 677. The right to maintain an action on a note carries with it the right to foreclose a mortgage securing it. Mortgage is mere incident to the note. Barber v. Stroub [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 915. Assignee may foreclose in Georgia in mortgagee's name to use. Montgomery v. King [Ga.] 50 S. E. 963.

59, 60. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Corf [Cal.] 81 P. 1077.

the appointment of a receiver, though it has never been granted permission to do business within the state.[61]

Parties defendant.—A trustee for security only with power to sell has no interest in the debt but only a mere legal title;[62] hence the creditor or his administrator is a necessary party.[63] The owner of the equity of redemption or his successors in estate, if recorded or in possession,[64] are indispensable to a suit to bar such equity. The holder of a senior lien is not a necessary party to a junior lienor's foreclosure,[65] but if it is sought to effect a sale of a clear title, all other lienors[66] or their legal representatives[67] or claimants or possible owners of an interest, must be joined.[68] A plea of conveyance is notice to complainant that new parties may be necessary.[69] In order to fix personal liability, all persons whom it is sought to charge must be joined. The administrator of the debtor is properly joined with mortgagors who did not personally owe the debt where the suit is to foreclose and also to establish the debt.[70] A mortgagor after conveyance is not a necessary party but is proper.[71] In Louisiana the wife and heirs of an insolvent community are not necessary parties to foreclosure of purchase price mortgage either in Louisiana or Federal courts.[72] Parties who are co-complainants need not be impleaded as defendants.[73]

New parties and intervention.[74]—Where the mortgagor is nonresident, an amendment of parties may bring in the one in possession[75] and the suit be continued except to adjudge personal debt.[76] Mere contract holders without interest in or lien on the property cannot intervene.[77]

The process[78] in Georgia does not issue as in ordinary actions, but by a rule nisi on the mortgagor to pay into court on or before the first of next term the 61. Suit is for benefit of bondholders. Commercial Tel. Co. v. Territorial Bank & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 66.

62, 63. Bryan v. McCann, 55 W. Va. 372, 47 S. E. 143.

64. The owner of the equity is necessary to pass title. If mortgagor's grantee is in possession or has recorded, he must be joined. Stough v. Badger Lumber Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 737. The title of a grantee, whose deed is recorded, is not affected by a sale on foreclosure of a prior trust deed to which he is not made a party. Cates v. Field [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 52. The widow and heirs of mortgagor after they have been put into possession of his succession are necessary parties. Notice to administrator alone is insufficient. Barton v. Burbank [La.] 38 So. 150. Unrecorded grantees need not be joined if a statute provides otherwise, even though plaintiff knows of the grant. Code Civ. Proc. § 726. Hager v. Astorg, 145 Cal. 548, 79 P. 68. The rule is not relaxed where the mortgage was by a trustee to mortgagee's knowledge and the unrecorded deed was from the trustee to the cestui que trust. Id.

65. Not considered in aligning parties in Federal court. Boatman's Bank of St. Louis v. Fritzlen [C. C. A.] 135 F. 650. A prior mortgagee is not a necessary party to suit by a junior mortgagee to foreclose his lien. Garza v. Howell [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 461.

66. Assignee of a junior mortgage not impleaded is not bound. Sherman v. Fisher [Mich.] 101 N. W. 572.

67. Junior lienors are not necessary when their trustee is impleaded and served. Alabama & V. R. Co. v. Thomas [Miss.] 38 So. 770.

68. An administrator is not a necessary party to a suit to foreclose a mortgage on real estate of the decedent, but he is a proper party where the equity of redemption is of any value. Sherman v. Millard, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 338. Necessary. Wife of mortgagor's grantee. Sloane v. Lucas, 37 Wash. 348, 79 P. 949. Not necessary. Grantors to trustees on a trust which was personal and did not attach to and run with the land. Thompson v. Price, 37 Wash. 394, 79 P. 951.

69. Licata v. De Corte [Fla.] 39 So. 58.

70. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Robertson [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 643.

71. Greenwood Loan & G. Ass'n v. Williams [S. C.] 51 S. E. 272. As against subsequent grantees, the mortgagor is not a necessary party. Boatmen's Bank v. First Nat. Bank [Kan.] 79 P. 125.

72. Luria v. Cote Blanche Co. [La.] 38 So. 279.

73. MacMillan v. Clements, 33 Ind. App. 120, 70 N. E. 997.

74. See generally, Parties, 4 C. L. 888.

75, 76. Greenwood Loan & G. Ass'n v. Williams [S. C.] 51 S. E. 272.

77. Holders of service contracts with a mortgaged public service plant. Wightman v. Evanston Yaryan Co. [Ill.] 75 N. E. 502. Holders of irrigation contracts with mortgaged ditch company. Almeria Irr. Canal Co. v. Tzschuck Canal Co. [Neb.] 93 N. W. 174.

78. The general principles of process by summons or publication are treated in Process, 4 C. L. 1070.

amount due, which rule nisi is the process and must be published monthly for four months or served three months previously.[79]

(§ 6) C. Pleading, trial, and evidence. Bill complaint or petition.[80]—The bill must allege the mortgage, the debt, and all the particulars essential to the right to foreclose.[81] The facts making out a title need not be pleaded with the utmost particularity to avoid a conclusion of law.[82] Allegations must be made to overcome the presumption that a mortgagor's wife continued alive and has inchoate dower.[83] In Georgia the assignee of the mortgage may foreclose in the mortgagee's name to his own use [84] and since he declares on the mortgage and not the assignment need not attach a copy of the assignment.[85] A prayer for interest according to terms of the note from date is a good prayer for interest at the contract rate from complaint to judgment.[86] A bill for other equitable relief may be amended to pray foreclosure.[87] A failure to disclaim in the complaint all recourse to aught but the land of a deceased mortgagor, this being necessary in California, can be cuured by amendment,[88] but a filed statement of waiver in substance sufficient cures a denial of leave to amend.[89]

Demurrer, plea, or answer.[90]—A defendant with a junior interest may demur that parties necessary to make title good are not joined.[91] A party impleaded as having some interest inferior to the mortgage must, if he claims it, so answer and prove it.[92] Usury must be specially pleaded,[93] and an objection that there was no right to declare the entire amount due must be taken below.[94] A denial of genuineness of the mortgage must, under some of the codes, be sworn.[95] An allegation "that there never was any valuable or other legal consideration" is not a conclusion.[96] An answer alleging a conversion by the mortgagee or other parts of the security is defense as well as counterclaim.[97]

The plaintiff is not put to a denial of a merger where the allegations of a union of the fee and the mortgage in one person are inconclusive.[98]

Cross bills and supplemental bills.[99]—If a defendant impleaded to determine ownership of part of the mortgage debt as between him and a co-defendant files no cross complaint he can have no affirmative relief as against the mortgagor.[1] A pleading setting up a purchase of a share in the mortgaged premises and praying an adjustment of rights is a cross complaint if so treated, though not so called.[2]

79. Montgomery v. King [Ga.] 50 S. E. 963.

80. See 3 C. L. 1445.

81. What these are, see ante, § 1, and Mortgages, 4 C. L. 677. Indebtedness, default, and right to claim default for nonpayment of taxes held confessed by demurrer. Bill held to negative waiver of default. Garrett v. Simpson, 115 Ill. App. 62.

82. Allegation of petition that the deceased mortgagor "left no heirs or kindred of any kind or degree and that the property descended under the statute to her husband" is not a conclusion of law but is sufficient, it not being necessary to allege specifically that she left neither maternal nor patnernal kindred. Montz v. Schwabacher, 26 Ky. L. R. 1214, 83 S. W. 569.

83. Franklin v. Beegle, 102 App. Div. 412, 92 N. Y. S. 449.

84. 85. Montgomery v. King [Ga.] 50 S. E. 963.

86. Thrasher v. Moran [Cal.] 81 P. 32.

87. Plaintiff having sued to have deeds canceled should be allowed to amend so as to ask for foreclosure. Land v. May [Ark.] 84 S. W. 489.

88, 89. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080.

90. See 3 C. L. 1445.

91. Lack of allegations as to mortgagor's wife or her dower coupled with her nonjoinder is demurrable. Franklin v. Beegle, 102 App. Div. 412, 92 N. Y. S. 449.

92. Illinois Nat. Bank v. Trustees of Schools, 111 Ill. App. 189.

93. Thayer v. Buchanan [Or.] 79 P. 343.

94. Illinois Nat. Bank v. Trustees of Schools, 111 Ill. App. 189.

95. Damman v. Vollenweider, 126 Iowa, 327, 101 N. W. 1130; Ellis v. Hof, 123 Wis. 201, 101 N. W. 368.

96. First Nat. Bank v. Robinson, 94 N. Y. S. 767.

97. Aultman & Taylor Co. v. Meade [Ky.] 89 S. W. 137.

98. Answer simply alleged a "discovery" that "claims" to the fee and to the mortgage had been made by same person. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080.

99. See 3 C. L. 1445, n. 53, 54.

1. West v. Shurtliff, 28 Utah, 337, 79 P. 180.

If a supplemental complaint be necessary as to a grantee unrecorded when the suit began,[3] an amendment allowed by the court to bring him in may be so regarded.[4] A supplemental complaint does not introduce new matter relative to the priorities which reciting the proceedings and the decree of foreclosure asks the cancellation of liens for special assessments claimed by one of the parties which the original complaint alleged were void.[5]

Trial and hearing.[6]—A reference after a finding that something was due the mortgagee gives the referee no authority to find that money was due the mortgagor.[7]

Evidence.[8]—Plaintiff must make out his cause of action [9] by the ordinary rules of evidence.[10] Holders of negotiable mortgage bonds purchased in the open market are presumed bona fide unless it be shown that they were fraudulent in their inception.[11] The burden is on defendants to prove their plea of payment.[12] By a rule of some codes execution denied under oath puts the burden on complainant.[13] Identity of the notes must be proved by more than a mere correspondence in description.[14] In a suit by an assignee, the mortgagee's disclaimer filed therein is proof of complainant's title to the mortgage.[15] Recognition in the mortgage of the plaintiff by a name importing incorporation is proof of plaintiff's corporate character.[16] If the mortgage contains evidence of the debt it may be foreclosed without producing the bond,[17] and not every bond secured by the mortgage need be proved before decree of foreclosure, but each must be before the order to distribute its share of proceeds.[18] Certificate of redemption is proper evidence as to the amounts paid to redeem from tax sales.[19] In a second foreclosure to perfect one wherefrom the owner of the equity was omitted the liens sued on must be proved anew.[20]

(§ 6) D. Decree or judgment.[21]—The owner of an equity of redemption of mortgaged premises has an absolute right to have the amount due on a mortgage judicially determined before sale.[22] Solicitor's fees may be included in the decree and may draw interest therewith.[23] Interest should be included only to date of decree.[24] An award of "attorney's fees" sufficiently follows a prayer for "counsel fees." [25] Such fees stipulated for are a mere incident to the main action.[26] As against an estate, inclusion in the decree of counsel fees otherwise chargeable to the general assets is not harmful unless redemption was thus made more onerous.[27]

2. Schneider v. Reed, 123 Wis. 488, 101 N. W. 682.

3, 4. Greenwood Loan & G. Ass'n v. Williams [S. C.] 51 S. E. 272.

5. Citizens' State Bank v. Jess [Iowa] 103 N. W. 471.

6. See 3 C. L. 1446, n. 62, 63.

7. Such finding having been reported was set aside. Richardson v. Horton, 139 Ala. 350, 35 So. 1006.

8. See 3 C. L. 1445, n. 59 et seq.

9. See ante, § 1.

10. See Evidence, 5 C. L. 1301. The introduction in evidence of an original answer alleging an agreement to extend held to have proved the allegation of the amended answer of the same facts. Briggs v. Weeks, 98 App. Div. 487, 90 N. Y. S. 853. Amount of advances and supplies covered held well proved as against denials though mortgagee did not prove by books of account. Padgett v. Carter, 70 S. C. 480, 50 S. E. 182.

11. McVicar Realty Trust Co. v. Union R., Power & Elec. Co., 136 F. 678. See, also Negotiable Instruments, 4 C. L. 787.

12. Evidence insufficient to sustain burden as to certain items. Tisdale v. Mallett [Ark.] 84 S. W. 481.

13. Damman v. Vollenweider, 126 Iowa, 327, 101 N. W. 1130. Statutes attaching a presumption of genuineness to written instruments declared on if there be no sworn denial apply to mortgages. Ellis v. Hof, 123 Wis. 201, 101 N. W. 368.

14. Santee v. Day, 111 Ill. App. 495.

15. Langley v. Andrews [Ala.] 38 So. 238.

16. Recognized superior claim in "Anglo-Californian Bank Limited," which later sued. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080.

17. Bennett v. Edgar, 93 N. Y. S. 203.

18. Weed v. Gainesville, J. & S. R. Co., 119 Ga. 576, 46 S. E. 885.

19. Arneson v. Haldane, 105 Ill. App. 589.

20. Former record is not evidence. Stough v. Badger Lumber Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 737.

21. See 3 C. L. 1446.

22. State Mut. B. & L. Ass'n v. O'Callaghan [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 496.

23. Healy v. Protection M. F. Ins. Co., 213 Ill. 99, 72 N. E. 678.

24. Laflin v. Gato [Fla.] 39 So. 59.

25, 26. Thrasher v. Moran [Cal.] 81 P. 32.

27. Bell v. Thompson [Cal.] 82 P. 327.

Where adverse claimants to the mortgage notes are foreclosing and stipulate for a hearing of both suits on the same proof but do not consolidate or cross implead necessary third persons, the court cannot, in the decrees, adjudicate the rival claims.[28] The record must contain enough facts pleaded to support the judgment.[29] Judgment may be entered nunc pro tunc.[30] A finding that one impleaded "claims" an interest is not one that he has an interest.[31] The decree after denying foreclosure may be retained to adjust collateral equities brought into the case.[32]

The validity of a mortgage having been adjudicated in a suit to foreclose it, it cannot thereafter be questioned in a collateral attack on the decree of foreclosure.[33] A junior lienor who asserts no right of redemption incurs no prejudice from a decree ordering sale and payment of expenses and prior liens and the turning into court of the surplus for distribution.[34] Reservation of judgment as to rights in surplus is not an adjudication against a claimant.[35] A court of equity will not set aside a decree of foreclosure until it has been found and adjudged that there is a valid defense to the court in which it was rendered, and if it finds a partial defense it will modify the decree or judgment pro tanto[36] and adjust the equities.[37] Stockholders in a mortgagor corporation who were not parties may have set aside a decree colluded at by the mortgagee and the president of the corporation.[38] They may sue in their own names under the usual rule when the officers refuse to act.[39] If error be made in transposing the order of liens, the remedy is by appeal and not in equity.[40] The decree cannot be reformed to include property mistakenly omitted from the mortgage.[41] Ancillary reformation should be decreed without attaching conditions operating to conclude rights not triable in the case.[42]

(§ 6) E. Sale.[43]—A decree of foreclosure is a prerequisite[44] unless some

28. Adjudging prospective surplus to original payee is bad when none could result unless a consolidation had been effected, and where parties necessary to holder's title are not in court. Kittler v. Studabaker, 113 Ill. App. 342.

29. Record held to show jurisdiction, also sufficiency of pleadings to support decree. Stull v. Masilonka [Neb.] 104 N. W. 188. Jurisdiction appears to support a default where the land was in the county, the notes were made by defendants, and there was an entry of default thus presuming due service. Twigg v. James, 37 Wash. 434, 79 P. 959.

30. Facts held not to show delay by plaintiff. Phelps v. Wolff [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1062.

31. He has, therefore, no interest shown on the record entitling him to question the amount recovered. Coy v. Druckamiller [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 921.

32. A foreclosure of a leasehold and the intervention of the lessor to cancel the mortgage and forfeit the lease for breach of condition having brought the whole question into equity it is proper to disallow the forfeiture while cancelling the mortgage on condition that the lessee pay up and to retain the decree and thereafter forfeit the lease on failure to pay up and then adjust all the rights of parties. Gunning v. Sorg, 214 Ill. 616, 73 N. E. 870, afg. 113 Ill. App. 332.

33. Carpenter v. Zarbuck [Ark.] 86 S. W. 299.

34. Lockhaven Trust & Safe Deposit Co. v. United States Mortg. & Trust Co. [Colo.] 81 P. 804.

35. Easton v. Woodbury [S. C.] 50 S. E. 790.

36. Robinson v. Arkansas Loan & Trust Co. [Ark.] 85 S. W. 413.

37. Where the purchaser of a portion of mortgaged premises was unable to pay notes given for the purchase price and was in arrears for three years in succession before the land was sold under foreclosure, after which he consented to a rescission of the sale and became a tenant and paid rent to the receiver, held that it was not error, in proceedings to set aside the foreclosure decree and for an accounting, to direct a cancellation of the contract of sale. Robinson v. Arkansas Loan & Trust Co. [Ark.] 85 S. W. 413.

38. Whitney v. Hazzard [S. D.] 101 N. W. 346. They may do so despite the disallowance of a motion for such relief where evidence was later discovered. Id. One year after such evidence was discovered not laches. Id.

39. Whitney v. Hazzard [S. D.] 101 N. W. 346.

40. Nebraska Loan & Trust Co. v. Crook [Neb.] 103 N. W. 57.

41. Stewart v. Wilson [Ala.] 37 So. 550.

42. Reformation improperly refused as to the description of land where only the mortgagor's interest therein was doubtful. Jenkins v. Bailey [Ark.] 87 S. W. 1180.

43. See 3 C. L. 1447.

44. Want of finality in it because of pendency of appeal must be challenged else it is waived. State Mut. B. & L. Ass'n v. O'Callaghan [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 496.

other practice is prescribed.[45] Where, after a decree for foreclosure pro confesso, the defendant claims the master to whom a reference was made to determine the amount due has made an erroneous report, and makes application for correction of the final decree before sale, the merits of such application should be passed upon before sale.[46]

An order of sale is not always regarded as essential,[47] but when so it must issue before the decree becomes dormant.[48] The requirement of a seal on writs of execution probably does not apply to orders of sale on a decree which unlike a money judgment contains within itself a precept to sell.[49] In such case the decree, not the order, affords the authority.[50]

The time of sale being fixed by the decree or by law is ipso facto designated by a vacation of a stay.[51] It is complainant's duty to bring on a sale if the decree is not satisfied.[52]

The selection of a trustee to sell is discretionary with the court.[53] Under the rules of the supreme courts of New York, a referee to sell will not be chosen on nomination of parties or their counsel; but such rules does not bind the county courts.[54]

The notice or advertisement must contain such particulars[55] as will enable bidders and persons interested to know the material facts of sale. It may be signed by the sheriff as such without stating of what county.[56]

The property to be sold must be confined to that actually included in the mortgage[57] or covered by the decree which may in one sale dispose of an entire tract or of several interests in order to do complete relief.[58]

The sale must follow the decree,[59] hence a sale en gross is void if the decree directs sale in parcels without provision for gross sale.[60] The fact that sale in parcels as the decree provided produced no bids will not of itself authorize sale en gross.[61]

In case of several tracts or liens, assets and securities will be marshaled if the equities thereto exist.[62]

45. In Kentucky if there be no attachment and bond there can be no sale until decree of foreclosure. Tipton v. Harris [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1074.

46. State Mut. B. & L. Ass'n v. O'Callaghan, 65 N. J. Eq. 738, 55 A. 1002.

47. An order of sale is not essential if sale may be made under the decree. Farm Land Co. v. St. Rayner [Neb.] 102 N. W. 610.

48. Five years. Dalgardno v. Barthrop [Wash.] 82 P. 285.

49, 50. Hager v. Astorg, 145 Cal. 548, 79 P. 68.

51. New day need not be set. Ayers v. Casey [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 452.

52. A mortgagor who continues on the land undisturbed after a decree for foreclosure unless payment be made within a time certain is not required to move for dismissal of proceedings. Twelve years held not laches. Eakle v. Hagan [Md.] 60 A. 615.

53. Wood v. Grayson, 22 App. D. C. 432.

54. Supreme Ct. Rule 61. Finn v. Smith, 45 Misc. 240, 92 N. Y. S. 168.

55. In Kansas the notice published need not state that the decree ordered sale in parcels. Gen. St. 1901, § 4905, does not so provide. Fraser v. Seeley [Kan.] 79 P. 1081. The possession of a prior mortgagee satisfying his claim out of rents and profits is a "charge or lien" which must be declared if the property is to be sold subject to it. Code Civ. Proc. § 1678. Nesbit v. Knowlton-Hall Co., 45 Misc. 510, 92 N. Y. S. 761.

56. Farm Land Co. v. St. Rayner [Neb.] 102 N. W. 610.

57. Where land is mortgaged with an easement appurtenant, the servient land must not be sold. Wood v. Grayson, 22 App. D. C. 432.

58. Where several mortgages are due and all persons are in court, the entire tract may be sold though only the third mortgage covered the whole tract and the others covered different parts. Wood v. Grayson, 22 App. D. C. 432. A mortgagor who has but a life estate cannot object to sale of the remainder. Infants' remainder sold to prevent loss to them. King v. King, 215 Ill. 100, 74 N. E. 89.

59, 60, 61. Smith v. Sparks, 162 Ind. 270, 70 N. E. 253.

62. In case of a prior lien on two tracts the junior encumbrancer of one of them cannot require marshalling unless enforcement against both tracts will impair his security. Staniels v. Whitcher [N. H.] 59 A. 934. Mortgagee of two tracts one of them foreign will not be required to proceed against the singly charged foreign one at the instance of the second mortgagee who took as such; neither on buying in is the second mortgagee a purchaser for value entitled to this relief. Sternberger v. Sussman [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 195.

The sheriff may complete a sale pending when his term expires.[63]

A return that sale was at public auction implies that it was to the highest bidder,[64] and one by a sheriff that he "forthwith" filed an appraisement and "thereupon" published notice of sale shows that publication did not precede filing the appraisement.[65]

On confirmation.[66]—The owner of the equity of redemption and the junior lienors should be brought or heard.[67] While conflicting claims of title should not be determined on a motion to confirm, one who makes that question necessary to decision may not object.[68] Confirmation despite technical defects and irregularities is sometimes authorized where no loss or prejudice can be said to have resulted.[69] The burden of proving a fair price or other condition rebutting prejudice exists is on him who seeks confirmation.[70] To be relieved because of defective title the purchaser must either prove the defect or point it out in the record.[71] If the mortgagor fails to object on confirmation that sale was had pending appeal from the decree he is estopped.[72] When the purchaser has been in no way at fault for the defect and has not profited he should be indemnified at the cost of the exceptant who procures resale.[73]

Resale being discretionary,[74] it should appear that enough more will be realized above added costs to make resale beneficial.[75] It may properly be sustained when petitioners offer an advanced bid with security even though the evidence of inadequacy be conflicting.[76]

In Georgia after judgment on the debt is recovered there must be a reconveyance to the debtor [77] and a record thereof,[78] else the levy will be void.[79]

(§ 6) F. Receivership in foreclosure [80] is discretionary.[81] Ordinarily none should be ordered unless the security is deficient.[82] It is proper, though applicant's decree is all deficiency, a prior lien having exhausted the land.[83] A stipulated right

63. Ayers v. Casey [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 452.

64. Fraser v. Seeley [Kan.] 79 P. 1081.

65. Farm Land Co. v. St. Rayner [Neb.] 102 N. W. 610.

66. See 3 C. L. 1448.

67. Polhemus v. Princilla [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 263.

68. Mercer v. McPherson [Kan.] 79 P. 118.

69. Under statutes (Acts 1891, p. 24, § 1) requiring confirmation notwithstanding defects or irregularities in the advertisement if the officer shall certify that a fair price was realized, it cannot be said to have been harmless to a junior lien to fall short in this respect where too low a price was bid. Polhemus v. Princilla [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 263. Evidence held to show that price was too low. Id.

70. On the certifying officer in New Jersey. Polhemus v. Princilla [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 263. On exceptions by the purchaser to the confirmation of the sale where the mortgagor died after the sale but before confirmation, held that a mere allegation that the mortgagor left no heirs or kindred without proof of that fact, defendant having defaulted, and without proceedings against the unknown heirs under the statute, is not sufficient to protect the purchaser against the claims of such heirs. Montz v. Schwabacher, 26 Ky. L. R. 1214, 83 S. W. 569.

71. Title Guarantee & Trust Co. v. Fallon, 101 App. Div. 187, 91 N. Y. S. 497. Mere addition of the word "trustee" in conveyances to and from a remote grantee and allusion to a statute, establishing restrictive building line in a region not embracing the land are not defects. Id.

72. State Mut. B. & L. Ass'n v. O'Callaghan [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 496.

73. Polhemus v. Princilla [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 263.

74, 75. Merrill v. Ladendorf, 123 Wis. 140, 101 N. W. 385.

76. Montague v. International Trust Co. [Ala.] 38 So. 1025.

77, 78, 79. Benedict v. Gammon Theological Seminary [Ga.] 50 S. E. 162.

80. See 3 C. L. 1450.

81. Garrett v. Simpson, 115 Ill. App. 62.

82. Ruprecht v. Henrici, 113 Ill. App. 398; Schaeppi v. Bartholomae [Ill.] 75 N. E. 447. In a suit to foreclose, there being no receivership clause in the mortgage, a receiver pendente lite should not be appointed unless it clearly appears that the mortgagor is unable to meet any deficiency judgment, and that the property is not worth the amount of the incumbrance. Welche v. Schoenberg, 45 Misc. 126, 91 N. Y. S. 880. In actions to foreclose mortgages or trust deeds, the court may, where the security is weak or inadequate, appoint a receiver of the income or profits of the property covered in anticipation of the judgment and sale. Commercial Telephone Co. v. Territorial Bank & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 66.

83. Ruprecht v. Henrici, 116 Ill. App. 583.

to collect and apply rents pending redemption does not prevent it.[84] In California a stipulation for receivership is not alone sufficient without the probability of a deficiency.[85] In Kentucky a receiver may in proper cases be appointed pendente lite when there is no attachment.[86] Receivership after sale is ordinarily allowable if a deficiency results without any express charge on rents and profits.[87] The defendant cannot have a receiver unless by cross bill he has made it probable that ultimately he will be entitled to relief.[88] A mere allegation that the premises are insufficient is bad as a conclusion.[89] Deficiency itself shows inadequacy of land as security.[90] A bond ought commonly to be exacted,[91] but failure to do so is not reversible error where the receivership was proper.[92] An appointment is not erroneous because it directs collection of rents whereas one property is paid up long in advance beyond the possible duration of receivership.[93]

The receiver has presumptively the same powers as a receiver pendente lite.[94] He is not bound by the mortgagor's separate oral agreement to furnish special facilities to a tenant.[95] A receiver in foreclosure is an officer of the court and not the agent of either party, and the mortgagee is not liable for his acts or omissions.[96] A tenant who does not attorn to a receiver is not in contempt unless he has had notice,[97] and when not made party the rent is recoverable from him only by separate action.[98]

(§ 6) G. Costs, fees and expenses.[99]—The costs and allowances are fixed by the rules for costs in equity, where no statute specially provides for them.[1] An administrator who successfully defended a claim of personal liability on notes executed for the estate is entitled to costs.[2] Statutory commissions on "money" in court are not allowable where no money passed through the officer's hands.[3] An account stated should be at the cost of bondholders if they required it.[4] The expense of sale set aside for want of a sale bond by the trustee will be charged to him if his failure was due to negligence, otherwise if he was prudent.[5] Any fees or expenses provided for by the note or mortgage are allowable if the conditions therein stated have occurred.[6] The fee provided by the note may be allowed on foreclosure of the mort-

84. A stipulated privilege to the trustee to enter, collect and pay over rents collected before expiration of redemption period held not to prevent receivership during that period, the decree postponing purchaser's right of possession to such period. Walker v. Kersten, 115 Ill. App. 130, citing Davis v. Dale, 150 Ill. 239.

85. Code Civ. Proc. § 564, makes it essential. Bank of Woodland v. Stephens [Cal.] 79 P. 379.

86. Tipton v. Harris [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1074, citing Lee v. Newton [Ky.] 87 S. W. 789.

87. Walker v. Kersten, 115 Ill. App. 130.

88. A mere interlocutory petition does not suffice. Ruprecht v. Henrici, 113 Ill. App. 398.

89. Their value should be alleged. Bank of Woodland v. Stephens [Cal.] 79 P. 379.

90. Receiver allowed for rents and profits. Ruprecht v. Henrici, 116 Ill. App. 583.

91, 92. Walker v. Kersten, 115 Ill. App. 130.

93. Mortgagor cannot complain and tenant has good legal defense. Thorp v. Mindeman, 123 Wis. 149, 101 N. W. 417.

94. Dow v. Nealis, 93 N. Y. S. 379.

95. Cold storage. Dow v. Nealis, 93 N. Y. S. 379.

96. He and his sureties are alone responsible for his failure to account for assets coming into his hands. Robinson v. Arkansas Loan & Trust Co. [Ark.] 85 S. W. 413.

97, 98. American Mortg. Co. v. Sire, 92 N. Y. S. 1082.

99. See 3 C. L. 1452.

1. See Costs, 5 C. L. 842.

2. Wisconsin Trust Co. v. Chapman, 121 Wis. 479, 99 N. W. 341.

3. A United States circuit clerk is not entitled to commissions under Rev. St. § 828, where a master pays over the money realized; and not for the custody and delivery of bonds, for they are not "money." Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Harsha [C. C. A.] 134 F. 217.

4. Real Estate Trust Co. v. Union Trust Co. [Md.] 61 A. 228.

5. Bond required by Acts 1900, c. 114, p. 128. Real Estate Trust Co. v. Union Trust Co. [Md.] 61 A. 228. Under the state of the decisions a trust company which failed to give bond on making sale because it was so advised by counsel was not negligent, the law requiring it having later been judicially construed to apply to trust companies as well as individual trustees. Id.

6. An intervention by the mortgagee to claim the proceeds is a "suit" in which attorney's fees are "incurred" or "paid." Hayward v. Hayward [La.] 38 So. 424. A stipulation for fees for "collecting" warrants allowance, though suit to foreclose might not gage.[7] The trustee who is also an attorney cannot be allowed the attorney's fee stipulated in event of foreclosure.[8] If another attorney is substituted he may recover [9] but only for what he did after substitution.[10] On a foreclosure by one having a pledgee's interest in the mortgage, he may recover attorney's fees, though foreclosure be ancillary to the main action.[11] Fees must be limited to what is reasonable.[12] The statutory extra allowance of 2½ per cent. on foreclosure given in New York does not depend on the "difficult" or "extraordinary" character of the case or on a defense thereto.[13] The notice customary in New York of application for the relief demanded in the complaint suffices for this allowance without further notice.[14]

(§ 6) H. Effect of proceeding.[15]—The decree fixes the right of all parties to the mortgage [16] and extinguishes it;[17] but does not adjudicate equities in the debt for or against strangers to the decree. Where various notes are secured by mortgage, and equitable foreclosure is sought in a partition proceeding to which both the mortgagor and mortgagee are parties, it cannot be maintained that a particular note secured by the mortgage, but upon which there is a surety, was merged in the finding in the suit in partition to which the surety was not a party.[18] It is not in rem and hence does not bind strangers to it.[19] The foreclosure of a junior mortgage cannot possibly affect the lien of a senior recorded mortgage,[20] and it is improper to direct the foreclosure of a senior mortgage in a suit to foreclose the junior mortgage to which the senior mortgagee is made a party, where the senior mortgage has not matured and is not in default;[21] for the junior mortgagee has only an equity of redemption.[22] An invalid foreclosure passes no title and does not extinguish the debt.[23] Such title and rights pass as were covered by the decree and the sale.[24] When the decree fixes the terms and amount for redemption, it must be concluded that the right to rents and profits during mortgagee's possession were fully adjusted.[25] It cannot be maintained that the fund realized on the mortgage was applied in whole or in part unequally to a particular note, inasmuch as under the common-law rule, the fund is applied in accordance with equitable principles if it be not applied in accordance with the intention of the parties, whether the payment be made voluntary or by operation of law.[26]

§ 7. Defective foreclosures and avoidance thereof.[27]—Defects and irregularities in procedure which do not reach some substantial basis of the court's jurisdiction, the decree [28] or the sale,[29] are not in general cause for avoidance. The terre have been necessary. Langley v. Andrews [Ala.] 38 So. 238.

7. Note read "10 per cent.," mortgage read "reasonable fee." Langley v. Andrews [Ala.] 38 So. 238.

8. Gantzer v. Schmeltz, 206 Ill. 560, 69 N. E. 584, citing Gray v. Robertson, 174 Ill. 242, 51 N. E. 248.

9, 10. Gantzer v. Schmeltz, 206 Ill. 560, 69 N. E. 584.

11. Ruberg v. Brown [S. C.] 51 S. E. 96.

12. Two hundred and fifty dollars solicitor's fee for foreclosing trust deed for $6,000 while large was sustained where chancellor had allowed it on hearing. Healy v. Protection Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 213 Ill. 99, 72 N. E. 678.

13. Code Civ. Proc. § 3253. Badger v. Johnston, 94 N. Y. S. 421.

14. Badger v. Johnston, 94 N. Y. S. 421.

15. See 3 C. L. 1451.

16, 17. Cannot thereafter be reformed nor can the decree for causes resting in the mortgage. Stewart v. Wilson [Ala.] 37 So. 550.

18. Moorman v. Voss, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 145.

19. Lohmeyer v. Durbin, 213 Ill. 498, 72 N. E. 1118. Contra. See cases cited in annotation to section 6 A, Limitations (n. 31).

20, 21, 22. Garza v. Howell [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 461.

23. Dever v. Selz [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 891.

24. See post, § 8, Title and Rights, etc.

25. Meredith v. Lochrie, 126 Iowa, 596, 102 N. W. 502.

26. Moorman v. Voss, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 145.

27. See 3 C. L. 1448.

28. Decree not vacated because of mortgagor's liability to occasional dementia coupled with absence, of a committee for the suit. Team v. Bryant [S. C.] 51 S. E. 148. After a bill is taken as confessed by default, it will not be vacated because only one of the two notes alleged was in fact secured. Twigg v. James, 37 Wash. 434, 79 P. 959.

29. Omission of a seal of the court from tenant sued in ejectment cannot complain of want of service on the mortgagor.[30] The return to a writ reciting erroneously that sale was to some other than the real purchaser may be corrected to show the truth.[31]

Grounds available after confirmation.—After entry of confirmation, the proceedings and sale being final, may be opened only on equitable grounds.[32] Finality is not postponed by leave to file additional pleadings trying the right to rents and profits.[33] The sale will not be set aside because the purchaser collected rents accrued before sale, the proper remedy being action.[34] Sale of property which the mortgage should have but did not cover is void;[35] but a sale will not be set aside because made for a slightly larger amount than that secured by the trust deed, where it does not appear that any fraud was practiced, nor that anyone was prevented from attending or bidding at the sale, nor that any injury was done to the owner.[36] Sale en gross is prejudicial to persons having separate interests in parcels who are thus disabled to separately redeem,[37] but is not usually ground for setting aside if no diminution of price resulted.[38] Neither the mortgagee nor the purchaser may complain of the order in which the separate interests subject to the mortgage were sold, they having been parties.[39] A mortgagee who has bid in and applied money paid to redeem cannot thereafter attack the sale as invalid and seek to set it aside.[40]

Fraud, accident or mistake.—The court should be liberal in opening a sale to promote equity in case of fraud, accident or mistake,[41] wherever a larger bid or less loss will result,[42] and especially where a senior lienor has bought in, and junior lien-an order of sale which merely reiterated the decree is not fatal but merely erroneous, where the order was properly signed by the clerk and the decree was sealed. Hager v. Astorg, 145 Cal. 548, 79 P. 68. Mere irregularities in the published notice are disregarded. Farm Land Co. v. St. Rayner [Neb.] 102 N. W. 610. A failure to give the notice of sale required by law is a mere irregularity which is cured by confirmation. Cannot be made the subject of a collateral attack on the sale and confirmation. Carpenter v. Zarbuck [Ark.] 86 S. W. 299. Sale under trust deed will not be set aside, though consideration expressed in trustee's deed is less than two-thirds of the appraised value of the land, where the uncontradicted evidence shows that such recital is a mistake and that it was in fact sold for more than two-thirds of its value. Hamilton v. Rhodes [Ark.] 83 S. W. 351.

Held not curable: A sale made without notice cannot be cured in equity. Ford v. Nesbitt [Ark.] 79 S. W. 793. Sale on execution before reconveyance to debtor according to Georgia procedure. Benedict v. Gannon Theological Seminary [Ga.] 50 S. E. 162. Where there were six mortgages on five lots, each covering two to four of the lots but not all of them on the same lots, so that the same mortgages differed in rank as to different lots, a sale of only one lot subject to mortgages prior as to it but covering others as well was set aside as indefinite in amount where it did not appear whether the purchase was subject to all of the prior mortgages or only to a ratable portion. Roosevelt v. Schile, 95 App. Div. 524, 88 N. Y. S. 592.

30. He is concluded by having failed to make objection in the scire facias. Taylor v. Beckley [Pa.] 61 A. 79.

31. Diamond State Loan Ass'n v. Collins, 4 Pen. [Del.] 77, 60 A. 861.

32. See Judgments, 4 C. L. 287. Only for the ordinary grounds of mistake or accident. Clement v. Ireland, 138 N. C. 136, 50 S. E. 570.

33. Clement v. Ireland, 138 N. C. 136, 50 S. E. 570.

34. Bell v. Thompson [Cal.] 82 P. 327.

35. Stewart v. Wilson [Ala.] 37 So. 550.

36. Not invalidated because advances made to mortgagor's wife were included in the account which deed was given to secure, and constituted a small part of the amount for which the land was sold, though mortgagor's representatives could doubtless recover the excess. Hamilton v. Rhodes [Ark.] 83 S. W. 351.

37. Wife's share had been allotted to her and husband's share was encumbered by his separate judgment debt. Smith v. Sparks, 162 Ind. 270, 70 N. E. 253.

38. Sale was at real estate exchange and was fair but counsel forgot the day. Vingut v. Ketcham, 102 App. Div. 403, 92 N. Y. S. 605.

39. Smith v. Sparks, 162 Ind. 270, 70 N. E. 253.

Note: The reason stated is the rule against collateral attack. But it may be observed that they would ordinarily have no interest entitling them to raise that question.

40. Mortgagor redeemed and resold before levy to satisfy deficiency could be made. Mallar v. Mallarian [Mich.] 101 N. W. 548.

41. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 301.

42. Lowness of bid and offer to advance same held sufficient where junior liens were unsatisfied and the owners of them were excusable in failing to be on hand at ors seek relief.[43] The right may be lost by want of timely assertion,[44] or by the interposition of a bona fide purchaser.[45] Inadequacy of price alone is not sufficient,[46] provided due and legal notice of the time, terms, and place of sale has been given, and the sale has been conducted fairly and in accordance with the decree of the court making it,[47] unless so gross as to shock the moral sense;[48] but the sale may be set aside where the price is clearly inadequate, though not grossly so, and there are other circumstances rendering it inequitable to let it stand.[49] Sales will not be set aside at the instance of one who might adequately protect himself by redeeming.[50] Fraud in the decree or the sale,[51] especially if coupled with inadequacy of price,[52] is ground for avoidance.

Modes of attacking sale.—Before confirmation, if there be such a proceeding, the objections should be made on motion to confirm.[53] Otherwise the proper mode of attacking a sale voidable for irregularities is by bill to redeem.[54] Promptness is essential [55] or at least action within the period of limitation on land.[56] When vacation is not of right, conditions may be imposed.[57] The particulars of invalidity of sale, the senior having bought in. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 301.

43. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 301.

44. Invalidity of mortgage in that scrivener filled blanks cannot be raised after ratification by making payments and by giving confirmatory mortgage. Carr v. McColgan [Md.] 60 A. 606.

45. See post, § 8, Title and Rights, etc., also see Notice and Record of Title, 4 C. L. 829.

46. See 3 C. L. 1448. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 301.

47. Cooper v. Ryan [Ark.] 83 S. W. 328. Will not be set aside for inadequacy of price under circumstances uncoupled with inequity, fraud or mistake. Hamilton v. Rhodes [Ark.] 83 S. W. 351.

48. Daggett Hardware Co. v. Brownlee, 186 Mo. 621, 85 S. W. 545.

49. Daggett Hardware Co. v. Brownlee, 186 Mo. 621, 85 S. W. 545. Sale set aside where property was sold for about a ninth of its value, and mortgagor was absent from the city and had no knowledge of the sale, because he believed it was to be postponed in accordance with his request, and within a few days thereafter tendered to the purchaser the amount of his bid, and tendered into court the amount of the debt. Id. Gross inadequacy of price caused by a failure to give sufficient notice of the land to be sold. Cooper v. Ryan [Ark.] 83 S. W. 328. Failure of notice of sale to name the block in which the lots were situated held to make it so ambiguous as to render it inefficient to carry out its purpose, and to warrant setting aside confirmation of sale, where price was grossly inadequate. Id.

50. Inadequacy of price realized for nonexempt land is no ground for setting aside sale at the instance of the owner who procured it to be first sold in order to protect his homestead also subject to the lien, for by redeeming and reselling he might avoid any loss to his homestead by applying the profit thus made. Especially is this true because there could be no further resort to the redeemed land under Gen. St. 1901, § 4949. Fraser v. Seeley [Kan.] 79 P. 1081.

51. Evidence in suit by grantee under second trust deed to have sale under first trust deed set aside on the ground of fraud and collusion held to show that sale was made at customary time and was in all respects fair and regular. New York Store Mercantile Co. v. Thurmond, 186 Mo. 410, 85 S. W. 333.

52. Allegations of unnecessary and misleading continuances of the sale, of fictitious bidding, and of inadequacy of price suffices. Kebabian v. Shinkle, 26 R. I. 505, 59 A. 743. Sale set aside where in furtherance of a scheme to necessitate resort to decedent mortgagor's realty his creditor who was executor and guardian suffered a default and then had the land bought in for his interest under the resultant foreclosure at an inadequate price. Coley v. Tallman, 43 Misc. 280, 88 N. Y. S. 896. Ignorance and incapacity of mortgagor, suppression of bids by purchaser's misrepresenting that he would bid full value, purchase at nominal price and forbearance to oust debtor after sale evidently because of fear that exposure might follow. Herring v. Sutton [Miss.] 38 So. 235. Where the land brought less than its worth and parties in interest were dissuaded from defending by complainant's misrepresentation, the decree should be opened. Marcole v. Hinnes [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 975.

53. See ante, § 6 E.

54. Adams v. Carpenter, 187 Mo. 613, 86 S. W. 445.

55. Ten years' delay held laches. Alabama & V. R. Co. v. Thomas [Miss.] 38 So. 770. Facts held to show unexcused delay amounting to laches. Tetrault v. Fournier, 187 Mass. 58, 72 N. E. 351. Action to set aside must be seasonabley brought. Six years not too late, the right of redemption being still alive. Benedict v. Gammon Theological Seminary [Ga.] 50 S. E. 162.

56. May be brought at any time before adverse possession is complete. Moore v. Dick, 187 Mass. 207, 72 N. E. 967.

57. Vingut v. Ketcham, 102 App. Div. 403, 92 N. Y. S. 605. It is proper to make the order conditional on the giving of security that a responsible advanced bid shall result or prior liens be paid if one does not. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 301.

the sale should be alleged.[58] General allegations of fraud are insufficient.[59] If the defect be due to excusable mistake,[60] relief may be awarded by opening the decree in order to perfect proceedings,[61] or by strict foreclosure.[62] A bill by a personal representative to vacate a decree must allege a good defense in plaintiff, the estate or a person interested therein.[63] One attacking a sale by a substituted trustee must prove his allegation that the substitution was invalid.[64] The question whether the sale was fairly and faithfully conducted is for the chancellor on the evidence, and his finding will not be set aside on appeal in a suit to set aside the sale unless clearly wrong.[65] On hearing of motion to vacate sale, the merits of the unappealed decree will not be examined.[66] In an action assailing a foreclosure as void, a foreclosure anew and sale under it will be refused until the fact of invalidity of the former foreclosure is judicially established.[67]

Offer of equity by the person seeking avoidance is essential,[68] even, it is held, in case of a void foreclosure attacked by the mortgagor or his privies;[69] but the contrary has also been recently held.[70] A suit by the owner for relief is essentially a bill to redeem [71] and the doing of equity requires payment for improvements made and if rent has been charged on the enhanced value, interest on it should be countercharged.[72] It is proper to fix a shorter period for redemption than in a regular foreclosure.[73] Taxes paid under such a possession entitles the purchaser to a lien.[74]

Rights under invalid foreclosures by action.[75]—All that passes when the owner of the equity is not joined is an assignment of the liens adjudicated and the right to foreclose them.[76] A subsequent lienor or holder of the equity of redemption, who is not made a party to foreclosure proceedings against the original mortgagor, can only claim the right to redeem.[77] If the mortgagee buy in and enter in good faith under a void sale, he is a mortgagee in possession,[78] whether or not the mortgagor consents.[79] All defenses against liens are available to the owner in a second 58. Lawler v. French [Va.] 51 S. E. 180.

59. Alabama & V. R. Co. v. Thomas [Miss.] 38 So. 770.

60. Ignorance of the existence of an heir held to be such. Investment Securities Co. v. Adams, 37 Wash. 211, 79 P. 625.

61. Bring in necessary parties. Investment Securities Co. v. Adams, 37 Wash. 211, 79 P. 625.

62. Henthorn v. Security Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 653.

63. Bell v. Thompson [Cal.] 82 P. 327.

64. Answer held sufficiently explicit in denial to put proof on complainant. Brown v. British Am. Mortg. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 312.

65. Hamilton v. Rhodes [Ark.] 83 S. W. 351.

66. Vingut v. Ketcham, 102 App. Div. 403, 92 N. Y. S. 605.

67. Sole heir of mortgagee sued purchaser and others and all others defaulted leaving fact confessed except as denied by purchaser's answer. Carraway v. Stancill, 137 N. C. 472, 49 S. E. 957.

68. Luria v. Cote Blanche Co. [La.] 38 So. 279. Junior claimants must do equity by paying. Alabama & V. R. Co. v. Thomas [Miss.] 38 So. 770. A mortgagor whose property has been sold under the power conferred by the mortgage cannot raise the question of the right of one standing in a trust relation to him under the mortgage to foreclose, without paying or offering to discharge the obligation secured by the mortgage. First Nat. Bank v. Waddell [Ark.] 85 S. W. 417. No attack on the purchaser's title on this ground in the pleadings and proof, the question cannot first be raised on appeal. Id.

69. Offer to pay amount due and interest. Stull v. Masilonka [Neb.] 104 N. W. 188.

70. No offer to do equity is necessary. Benedict v. Gammon Theological Seminary [Ga.] 50 S. E. 162.

71, 72. Sloane v. Lucas, 37 Wash. 348, 79 P. 949.

73. Ninety days given instead of a year. Sloane v. Lucas, 37 Wash. 348, 79 P. 949.

74. Dalgardno v. Barthrop [Wash.] 82 P. 285.

75. See 3 C. L. 1448.

76. Stough v. Badger Lumber Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 737.

77. Holders of subsequent mortgage and vendor's lien notes after sale to satisfy prior vendor's lien notes. Dickinson v. Duckworth [Ark.] 85 S. W. 82.

78. Void for want of parties heir to deceased owner of the equity of redemption. Investment Securities Co. v. Adams, 37 Wash. 211, 79 P. 625. Henthorn v. Security Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 653. Omission to join wife of owner. Sloane v. Lucas, 37 Wash. 348, 79 P. 949.

79. Investment Securities Co. v. Adams, 37 Wash. 211, 79 P. 625.

suit brought because of his omission from the first.[80] Where the purchaser at a void sale sues for subrogation, the allegation of good faith is essential.[81]

Rights under invalid exercise of power.[82]—The trustee's deed will pass title, even though the advertisement was not for as long as stipulated.[83] Invalid or irregular sale may be color of title to support adverse possession.[84] When a sale is void as made by an unauthorized delegate, only the debt is transferred.[85] The right to disaffirm a voidable sale is personal to the mortgagor [86] and his judgment creditor can neither assert it nor, assuming it to be void, levy on the land.[87] A deed pursuant to a curative sale will be upheld if fair.[88] In Kentucky, when it is forbidden to "foreclose" a mortgage, one who sells under a power of sale is in the same position as if he had enforced his lien as the law permits [89] and must account not for the selling price but for the real value of the land.[90] The mortgagor by acquiescing in a void foreclosure and recognizing the purchaser is not estopped as against the mortgagee.[91]

§ 8. Title and rights of purchaser.[92]—As a general rule a foreclosure decree and sale thereunder carry all the interest both of the mortgagor and mortgagee at the time the mortgage was executed,[93] and the interests and liens outstanding whose owners have been impleaded,[94] and will include accretions if the deed is broad enough.[95] In some states persons holding under unrecorded titles are bound, though strangers.[96] The purchaser's title is not affected by latent defects in a partition decree under which the title was derived.[97] Holders of tax titles or liens otherwise prior lose that right if having been parties they do not assert them.[98] No greater title or

80. Stough v. Badger Lumber Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 737. He is not estopped by a deed to him covenanting against incumbrances "except" the ones in suit; such does not recognize their validity. Id.

81. Griffin v. Griffin, 70 S. C. 220, 49 S. E. 561.

82. See 3 C. L. 1440.

83. Adams v. Carpenter, 187 Mo. 613, 86 S. W. 445. If the trustee sell without requisite notice, etc., his legal title may yet pass. Leech v. Karthaus [Ala.] 37 So. 696.

84. McCaughn v. Young [Miss.] 37 So. 839.

85. Polliham v. Reveley, 181 Mo. 622, 81 S. W. 182.

86, 87. Unauthorized purchase by mortgagee under his own power of sale is voidable. Williams v. Williams Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 52.

88. Green v. Collins [Miss.] 38 So. 188.

89, 90, 91. Aultman & Taylor Co. v. Meade [Ky.] 89 S. W. 137.

92. See 3 C. L. 1448. Title and rights under defective sales, see ante, § 7.

93. Subsequent deeds of one of the grantors in trust deed held to pass no title. Hill v. Denton [Ark.] 86 S. W. 402. Grant of easements is junior. Caccia v. Brooklyn Union El. R. Co., 98 App. Div. 294, 90 N. Y. S. 582. Commissioner's deed on foreclosure of trust deed held to pass title of both of the grantors, though foreclosure decree was inaccurate in that it described the wife's interest as one of dower and homestead, where she was in fact a tenant by the entireties. Hill v. Denton [Ark.] 86 S. W. 402. If the mortgagor had but partial interest, no greater can be acquired. Sternfels v. Watson, 139 F. 505. Title of purchaser at sale under a foreclosure of mortgage cannot in the absence of fraud or collusion be impeached by the general creditors or the administrator of the deceased mortgagor, where the value of the property proves less than the mortgage debt. Sherman v. Millard, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 338. Purchaser's title is good as against mortgagor's grantee served by publication. Boyer v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Cal. App.] 81 P. 671. Title of purchaser at sale under a foreclosure of mortgage cannot in the absence of fraud or collusion be impeached by the general creditors or the administrator of the deceased mortgagor, where the value of the property proves less than the mortgage debt. Sherman v. Millard, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 338.

94. The mortgagor's lessee subject to both mortgages is inferior in right of possession to the second mortgagor, who has bought in under foreclosure of the first mortgage. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 66. A right of possession subject to the senior mortgagee is also subject to the junior mortgagee who buys in. Id.

95. Leonard v. Wood, 33 Ind. App. 83, 70 N. E. 827.

96. In California binds unrecorded grantee, though not a party (Code Civ. Proc. § 726). Hager v. Astorg, 145 Cal. 548, 79 P. 68. The assignee of a junior mortgage who has failed to record his assignment is foreclosed, though he was not made a party. His assignor who was party is presumptively the holder. Pinney v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 71 Ohio St. 173, 72 N. E. 884. Purchaser is superior to unrecorded surrender of an easement. Dahlberg v. Haeberle [N. J. Law] 59 A. 92.

97. Schneider v. Sellers [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 126.

98. Ayers v. Casey [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 452.

right passes than the decree professes to sell,[99] and redemption terms will not be construed as cutting off liens when there has been nothing from which to redeem.[1] If community lands be sold as a whole, a recital in the deed that "all right," etc., of the deceased husband is sold does not reduce the purchaser's estate to the husband's share.[2] The purchaser's title is subject to all liens given priority by the decree and terms of sale, even if not repeated in his deed.[3] The deed of trust is merged in decree and the purchaser's rights are measured thereby and by the statutes,[4] consequently a provision in the deed giving rents and profits during the period of redemption is of no avail,[5] and unless redeemed, he can have naught but a deed, though he bought on the strength of the trust deed.[6] A paramount title is unaffected by sale of the mortgaged estate even though the owners be joined.[7] Easements prior to the mortgage are not affected.[8] Others are junior.[9] The sale does not cover moneys due from eminent domain proceedings prior to sale,[10] and they may be followed and in equity subjected to unsatisfied liens.[11] In such a case a third mortgagee cannot, as against the purchaser under foreclosure of the second, throw the whole burden of an outstanding first mortgage on the land, leaving all the moneys to himself.[12] A deed pursuant to confirmation and approved in court is prima facie evidence of the truth of recitals therein of regularity of the advertisement and order for sale and the officer's authority.[13]

Sale under a power of sale in a junior mortgage has no effect on senior mortgages.[14] The assignee of the debt buying in on trustee's sale gets legal title and

99. The purchaser at a sale under a decree of foreclosure acquires only such interest in the property as is sold. Duncan v. American Standard Asphalt Co., 26 Ky. L. R. 1067, 83 S. W. 124. Decree held res adjudicata that purchaser took only undivided half and also that he could not recover rents and profits. German Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Tull [C. C. A.] 136 F. 1. Is bound by a construction of the deed under which the mortgagor claims which is contained in such decree. On foreclosure of mortgage on mineral rights, purchaser cannot exercise any rights which the decree determines did not pass under the deed to the mortgagor. Duncan v. American Standard Asphalt Co., 26 Ky. L. R. 1067, 83 S. W. 124. The purchaser on foreclosure of a mortgage on a leasehold acquires all the rights of the lessee in the premises, and no more, the same as though the lease had been assigned to him. Where mortgage covered leasehold and also certain machinery to secure the purchase price of the latter which had been annexed to the soil by the lessee and had become a fixture, purchaser could not remove such machinery as against the owner of the realty, the sale having wiped out the debt and the right to treat it as personalty by virtue of its original character between the mortgagor and the mortgagee. Incorporated Town of Ozark v. Adams [Ark.] 83 S. W. 920.

1. A decree on petition, answers and cross-petitions and supplemental petition between mortgagor, mortgagees of differing rank and a judgment lienor, the latter having no service of the supplemental petition, gave effect to a settlement alleged in the supplemental petition by means of a conveyance to the senior mortgagee. It did not foreclose aught but the judgment lienor's right to redeem "as provided by law and within the time fixed by law." There being no redemption save from a sale, it was held, that the decree must have meant merely to declare priorities and to cut off the judgment lien only if in case of a subsequent sheriff's sale he should fail to redeem seasonably until then the lien continued. First Nat. Bank v. Campbell, 123 Iowa, 37, 98 N. W. 470.

2. Luria v. Cote Blanche Co. [La.] 38 So. 279.

3. Deed was subject "to all liens thereon." Welche v. Schoenberg, 45 Misc. 126, 91 N. Y. S. 880.

4. Schaeppi v. Bartholomae [Ill.] 75 N. E. 447.

5. Schaeppi v. Bartholomae [Ill.] 75 N. E. 447. Unless there has been a sequestration by receivership, the mortgagor takes rents and profits till redemption is barred, even though specifically pledged. Keeley Brewing Co. v. Mason, 116 Ill. App. 603.

6. Schaeppi v. Bartholomae [Ill.] 75 N. E. 447.

7. Remaindermen joined in foreclosure of mortgage on life estate. Pryor v. Winter [Cal.] 82 P. 202.

8. Crossing rights over a foreclosed railroad reserved in grant of right of way to it are not affected. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Brubaker [Ill.] 75 N. E. 523. Takes subject to easements good against mortgagor. Van De Vanter v. Flaherty, 37 Wash. 218, 79 P. 794.

9. Grant of easement held junior. Caccia v. Brooklyn Union El. R. Co., 98 App. Div. 294, 90 N. Y. S. 582.

10, 11. Bates v. Boston El. R. Co., 187 Mass. 328, 72 N. E. 1017.

12. First lien will be apportioned between remaining land and the money. Bates v. Boston El. R. Co., 187 Mass. 328, 72 N. E. 1017.

13. Ayers v. Casey [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 452.

right to possession.[15] A trustee's deed executed as trustee conveys all his title, though it recites a foreclosure.[16] It is presumed that taxes, for nonpayment whereof foreclosure was had, were properly levied.[17] That the trustee was absent authorizing a substitution may be proved by inference.[18]

All fixtures pass [19] subject to the tenant's rights under a lease; crops go with the title till they are harvested.[20] As against a tenant who took while lis pendens was on, the crops go with the land.[21]

The purchaser has a right to possession as against the mortgagor's creditor in possession under a verbal agreement to secure the debt.[22] But a purchaser by parol from the owner of the equity, though without title, may for improvements made in good faith have an equitable lien for same declared and enforced.[23]

Lis pendens and bona fide purchasers.[24]—The doctrine of lis pendens applies to foreclosures [25] but one is a bona fide purchaser who bought at sale pending appeal from decree of foreclosure of which he had no notice save the filing of the notice of appeal three days before.[26] The mortgagee buying in and crediting his bid is a purchaser for value.[27] The purchaser who takes without knowledge of rights of an assignee of a junior lien, the record owner whereof was party, and when the assignment is not recorded is a bona fide purchaser.[28] The sale is not final until confirmed and no purchaser has the right to rely absolutely on the order directing the sale, and the fact that the agent of the court has pursued the terms prescribed in making the sale.[29] Fraud on the owner by the mortgagee does not affect a purchaser in good faith for value at the sale.[30] Nor does the fact that the sheriff, named to conduct sale in case of the trustee's refusal, sold without any request to the trustee.[31]

14. A mortgagee who has pledged senior mortgages may redeem from the pledgee while they stand in relation of pledgor and pledgee, despite the pledgee's bringing in under a junior foreclosure. Jennings v. Wyzanski [Mass.] 74 N. E. 347.

15. Collier v. Alexander [Ala.] 38 So. 244.

16. Chesapeake Beach R. Co. v. Washington, etc., R. Co., 26 S. Ct. 25.

17. Clark v. Elmendorf [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 538.

18. He had resided abroad and it was presumed he so continued. Ward v. Forrester [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 751.

19. Under Sand. & H. Dig. § 5943, the purchaser acquired the rights of all the parties to the suit, both those of the mortgagor and of the mortgagee; and mortgage having covered machinery affixed to the soil prevented its becoming fixtures, but when lien on machinery was merged in decree the right to remove the machinery ceased. Incorporated Town of Ozark v. Adams [Ark.] 83 S. W. 920.

20. A tenant who enters under the owner of the equity after sale is not entitled to crops. Rev. St. 1899, § 4355 saves this right only in case of entry before sale. Nichols v. Lappin, 105 Mo. App. 401, 79 S. W. 995. Crops harvested after foreclosure title but before grantee's title from the purchaser belong to the purchaser or the tenant and not the grantee. Grantee cannot maintain trover. Standlick v. Downing [Vt.] 60 A. 657.

21. Tittle v. Kennedy [S. C.] 50 S. E. 544.

22. Clark v. Elmendorf [Tex. Civ. App.] 78 S. W. 538.

23. Schnelder v. Reed, 123 Wis 488, 101 N. W. 682.

24. See generally, Lis Pendens, 4 C. L. 466; Notice and Record of Title, 4 C. L. 829.

25. Kaston v. Storey [Or.] 80 P. 217. A purchaser from the mortgagee before deed but after sale while suit was pending to cancel the mortgagor's conveyance and quiet his title and while lis pendens was on is not bona fide without notice. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Stryker [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 953.

26. State Mut. B. & L. Ass'n v. O'Callaghan [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 496. Sale made pending appeal from refusal to correct the decree in respect to the amount found due will not be set aside where the purchaser at the sale was a bona fide purchaser, having received no notice of the appeal. The sale was not set aside, even though the order denying the petition was reversed on appeal, after the sale had taken place. State Mut. B. & L. Ass'n v. O'Callaghan, 65 N. J. Eq. 738, 55 A. 1002.

27. Barrett v. Eastham Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1057.

28. Pinney v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 71 Ohio St. 173, 72 N. E. 884.

29. Court not compelled to confirm sale conducted in prescribed manner, though he will generally do so. Cooper v. Ryan [Ark.] 83 S. W. 328. A purchaser at foreclosure sale who reads the decree reciting that the title is reserved until the sale is approved, and does not pay the purchase price until after an appeal has been taken from the order approving the commissioner's report, and has knowledge of the facts alleged to avoid the sale, is not a bona fide purchaser. Id.

30, 31. Adams v. Carpenter, 187 Mo. 613, 86 S. W. 445.

In Georgia the transferee of the note may gain a special lien on the land by suing to judgment on the note, then procuring a reconveyance, recording it and levying on the land.[32]

Purchases by beneficiary, trustee or the like.—The beneficiary may purchase at a sale under a trust deed where a third person is named as trustee.[33] One who had been the mortgagee's attorney is not disqualified to make a valid bid under a power if he no longer sustains that relation.[34] The assignee for creditors of the deceased mortgagor's heir has no title as trustee to land inherited after the assignment; and can buy in as assignee of the mortgage.[35] A pledgee of the mortgage and notes who forecloses and buys in takes title and need only apply the proceeds.[36] As administrator who buys in or his individual agent who buys in for him continues to hold as a trustee [37] subject to redemption by the estate.[38] A tenant in common who buys in does so constructively for his cotenants.[39] On a bid to set aside a sale under a power as one to a person in joint interest with the mortgagor, an inference against them may arise from failure to produce evidence explanatory of their relations.[40]

Agreements to permit redemption.—By agreement that the purchaser shall buy in and permit redemption, a mortgage may be created [41] or the title may be held in abeyance from the purchaser.[42]

A writ of assistance will go of right to aid a purchaser or any party entitled under the decree to possession,[43] and against all persons, whether parties to or bound by the decree or not, provided it is necessary in the doing of speedy justice to dispossess strangers.[44] It bears substantially the same relation to the decree as a writ of possession does to a judgment in ejectment.[45] It must be clear, though not so clear as were title to be settled, that a purchaser has acquired a lawful title.[46] A

32. All who thereafter derive title from the debtor are inferior. Maddox v. Arthur [Ga.] 50 S. E. 668.

33. Hamilton v. Rhodes [Ark.] 83 S. W. 351.

34. Evidence held to show cessation of the relation. Yarborough v. Hughes [N. C.] 51 S. E. 904.

35. Read v. Reynolds [Md.] 59 A. 669.

36. A mortgagee who has pledged mortgages with power in the pledgee to exercise a power of foreclosure by sale and buy in cannot have such a foreclosure set aside or redeem the land from the pledgee, but may require application of the proceeds to discharge the pledge. Jennings v. Wyzanski [Mass.] 74 N. E. 347.

37, 38. Smith v. Goethe [Cal.] 82 P. 384.

39. Ryason v. Dunten [Ind.] 73 N. E. 74. See, also, Tenants in Common and Joint Tenants, 4 C. L. 1672.

40. Yarborough v. Hughes [N. C.] 51 S. E. 904.

41. An agreement by a stranger to buy in and permit the debtor to redeem may set the parties to it in the relation of mortgagee and mortgagor. If fair, such a contract is valid. Yarborough v. Hughes [N. C.] 51 S. E. 904. If the purchase by a stranger be really for the debtor's interest, his retention of title may be shown to be a virtual mortgage. Liskey v. Snyder, 56 W. Va. 610, 49 S. E. 515. See, also, Mortgages, 4 C. L. 682.

42. An agreement to extend the time of redemption from a mortgage precludes the mortgagee from asserting title prior to the expiration of the period of extension. Horne v. Mullis, 119 Ga. 534, 46 S. E. 663.

43. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 66.

44. It is considered necessary against strangers in four cases (1), entry pendente lite under one of the parties (2), entry pendente lite as a trespasser (3), under the operation on his right or claim, of section 58 of the Chancery Act (4), where the stranger, if he has title conceals it and holds out his right as one subject to the suit, or makes it seem unnecessary to join him as a party. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 66. A lease neither acknowledged nor proved is not an "instrument which by any provision of law could be recorded;" and hence the lessee is not bound by the decree according to Chancery Act, § 58. Id. The brother-in-law of the owner of the equity is estopped to set up an unrecorded lease, though not a party, the owner having lived in the house in the brother-in-law's family and the facts having been concealed with full knowledge of the pending suit. Id. Such an estoppel being for the benefit of the complainant to whom purchaser succeeds, prejudice to the purchaser who invokes it is not essential. Id. Lack of fraudulent intent and ignorance that he would be bound do not protect such a lessee Id.

45. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 66.

46. The order for the writ settles nothing but the present right to possession. Strong v. Smith [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 66.

writ of asistance against one claiming of right should issue only on notice.[47] It should not be executed against a person not named who is a stranger to it[48] and if done he is entitled to an order of restitution.[49]

Remedies to assert or protect title.—The purchaser takes a title and constructive possession of vacant property sufficient to support suit to quiet title.[50] As ancillary to its decree foreclosing a mortgage on lands adjoining but in different states, a Federal court may enjoin a party from attacking its decree and purchaser's title for want of diversity of citizenship which he had admitted there was[51] also from assailing it on the ground that such land as was in the foreign state belonged to the corporation there chartered and which was not party by name either to the mortgage or the suit[52] both objections being captious and not substantial.

§ 9. The bid and the proceeds of foreclosure.[53] The bid is a contract and the plaintiff bidding in will not be relieved from a mistake which was essentially of law[54] and particularly not to enable him to so arrange his bids as to consume the entire property.[55]

Bid money or deposit exacted as a condition of security and indemnity against loss as well as part payment should not be returned on a resale.[56] To enforce his rights in a deposit, as against a defaulting purchaser, the plaintiff, a junior lienor, must move to fix liability on the sale before senior mortgage is foreclosed or the deposit cannot be applied.[57] In such a case it is impossible to resell on the same terms, hence damage cannot be fixed for the default[58] and there is no contempt, for the original sale could not be completed,[59] hence the deposit should be returned.[60]

Accumulated rents collected by a receiver in foreclosure are part of the security and will be applied.[61]

Payment and distribution.—When a purchaser's lien is satisfied by a credit, others cannot object that naught was paid in cash but the costs.[62] Where bid money is impounded subject to complainant's demand, the bidder's direction to turn it over is a good payment.[63]

The application of payments will be according to law if there has been no agreement,[64] equally to all of the debts, or parts of the debts, or bonds or interest thereon,[65] which partake of the same security and are in the same rank. In the 47, 48, 49. Ray v. Trice [Fla.] 38 So. 367.

50. Keener v. Wilkinson [Colo.] 80 P. 1043.

51, 52. Mortgagor was a corporation chartered in both states and land laid on both sides of a boundary river. Riverdale Cotton Mills v. Alabama & G. Mfg. Co., 198 U. S. 188, 49 Law. Ed. 1008.

53. See 3 C. L. 1451.

54, 55. By mistake he bid substantially on homestead property satisfying one lien and the non-exempt property was bid away from him on sale under sale for his other lien. Crawford v. Foreman [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1000.

56. Even if resale is a rescission, it does not release the right to indemnity. Smith v. Cunningham [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 561.

57. This because there can then be no conveyance under the junior judgment. Nesbit v. Knowlton-Hall Co., 45 Misc. 510, 92 N. Y. S. 761.

58, 59, 60. Nesbit v. Knowlton-Hall Co., 45 Misc. 510, 92 N. Y. S. 761.

61. Ray v. Henderson, 110 Ill. App. 542. A mortgagee who sues for foreclosure is chargeable as mortgagee in possession from the date of the possession of a receiver appointing pending litigation, and is liable to account accordingly. Where receiver is appointed in suit to have certain deeds, reciting that they shall be void if notes referred to therein are not paid, canceled for nonpayment, and grantor amends so as to ask for foreclosure. Land v. May [Ark.] 84 S. W. 489.

62. Fraser v. Seeley [Kan.] 79 P. 1081.

63. A credit on the decree should be allowed where bid money impounded was bethe mortgagor who bid, ordered paid over to complainants' solicitors, though because of the impounding order payment was refused. It was the duty of the solicitors as much as defendant's to have the impounding order revoked, and failure to do so is imputed to complainant. Winants v. Traphagen, 66 N. J. Eq. 455, 59 A. 164.

64. Ray v. Henderson, 110 Ill. App. 542.

65. Where there are several bonds and interest over due on some, it should come in as an equal claim if not waived. Interest is not superior to principal. Real Estate Trust Co. v. Union Trust Co. [Md.] 61 A. 228. And see 8 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [2d Ed.] 13.

case of several liens of which the older cover only a portion of the security covered by the younger, the proceeds of the entire tract should be so apportioned as to limit the elder to that which they cover.[66] The plaintiff buying in cannot waive a direction pursuant to statute that taxes and assessments shall be first paid where that would simply enhance the burden on the equity redemption.[67] On paying over moneys realized from the judgment, a referee to sell should not exact refunding agreements against the event of a reversal.[68] It being his duty to pay over conformably to judgment,[69] an agreement to abstain therefrom pending appeal is void [70] and the violation of it will not be redressed.[71]

The beneficiary in a trust deed who purchases the land on foreclosure is only obliged to credit the amount of his bid less the expenses of the sale, on the debt, even though he subsequently sells the land for more than enough to pay the entire amount due.[72] On sale by a junior lienor pursuant to redemption, he having bid in, must be credited his lien, his costs, and what he paid to redeem.[73] The bid should not be credited when sale is vacated.[74]

The surplus belongs to the mortgagor and equity will follow it for him,[75] and those who get the equity of redemption and buy in at a fair price obtaining release of the surplus by fraud on the mortgagor, are liable for the bid without allowance for expenses.[76] The trustee should be allowed to retain from distribution a fund for contingent expenses likely to be incurred.[77] All charges as between co-owners should be adjusted before division.[78] Under the New Jersey act for the commutation of life estates in the surplus remaining on foreclosure by a payment in gross with the life tenant's consent, the wishes of the remainderman are not material.[79] On setting aside default in a surplus proceeding, the defaulting party should be charged with costs and witness fees incurred after his default and till the judgment, and with fees and charges for a new hearing.[80]

§ 10. Personal liability and judgment for deficiency.[81]—The repeal of a law allowing a deficiency judgment does not retroact on mortgages previously made.[82] All may be charged who would have been personally bound by the mortgage debt.[83]

66. Wood v. Grayson, 22 App. D. C. 432.

67. Shaw v. Youmans, 94 N. Y. S. 178.

68, 69, 70, 71. Finn v. Smith, 45 Misc. 240, 92 N. Y. S. 168.

72. New York Store Mercantile Co. v. Thurmond, 186 Mo. 410, 85 S. W. 333.

73. Illinois Nat. Bank v. Trustees of Schools, 111 Ill. App. 189.

74. Greenwood Loan & G. Ass'n v. Williams [S. C.] 51 S. E. 272.

75. Followed through execution purchaser to his fraudulent grantee and to the latter's passive co-defendant who received benefits of the fraud. Johnston v. Reilly [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 1044.

76. Johnston v. Reilly [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 1044.

77. Real Estate Trust Co. v. Union Trust Co. [Md.] 61 A. 228.

78. One co-owner who was to be entitled to a share of surplus if any on payment of a sum should be adjudged that share subject to a retainer out of it of the sum agreed, where the other co-owners who made the agreement had sold before such payment. Schneider v. Reed, 123 Wis. 488, 101 N. W. 682.

79. Leach v. Leach [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 562. In that state the wife has in lands deeded to her during coverture a life estate with remainder for life to the husband if he survive, then over to the issue in fee (citing Doremus v. Paterson [N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 548); hence she takes the sum in gross at once, the remainder of the surplus will be invested for the joint benefit of husband and wife while they both live and for his benefit for life if he survives her, and if not, the principal to be paid to her when he dies. Id.

80. Irving Sav. Inst. v. Smith, 100 App. Div. 460, 91 N. Y. S. 446.

81. See 3 C. L. 1449, 1450.

82. Daniels v. Mutual Ben. Ins. Co. [Neb.] 102 N. W. 458; Blumle v. Kramer, 14 Okl. 366, 79 P. 215.

83. No deficiency can be enforced against a surety if his risk was enhanced by increasing the rate of interest. Evidence insufficient to show aught but a voluntary payment of more. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Casey, 178 N. Y. 381, 70 N. E. 916. An administrator who pursuant to an order of the court mortgages the real estate of his decedent is not liable for a deficiency judgment. Wisconsin Trust Co. v. Chapman, 121 Wis. 479, 99 N. W. 341. In Wisconsin a wife who separately derived no benefit from a note in which she joined with her husband is not liable. Lolzeaux v. Fremder, 123 Wis. 193, 101 N. W. 423.

Whether a wife is liable with her husband depends on the law of the place and time of creating the debt.[84]

There is no personal liability without an adjudication thereof,[85] nor until a deficiency arises after the sale of the property.[86] Hence the deficiency clause in a decree of foreclosure is not a final decree for a deficiency until the amount is ascertained by sale.[87] Rents and profits during time for redemption should not be off-set against deficiency if mortgagee was entitled to possession.[88] Jurisdiction over the person to support a deficiency judgment may be acquired by the original process in the foreclosure suit where, as formerly in Nebraska, the statutes allow such a judgment on the incoming of a report showing a deficiency.[89] Where, as in that state, the main decree simply adjudges the amount due and orders foreclosure, deficiency judgment being in personam, cannot be entered until return enabling the court to say what deficiency there was.[90] A foreign judgment of foreclosure on the land alone is entitled to full credit, though on published service [91] and if properly authenticated leaves it a question of law whether there had been a foreclosure.[92] When the deficiency judgment is declared on in a foreign state, errors averred to be therein will, as in other foreign judgments, be ignored,[93] and defenses not therein made are lost.[94] Such a suit is not one to revive a dormant judgment.[95] On application for deficiency judgment, a jury trial is not allowable, even if a legal defense is made.[96] One who assumed to pay and failed to defend, having notice, is charged by a deficiency judgment.[97] A mortgagee may treat the mortgagor, and his grantee who assumes the mortgage, both as principal debtors, and may have a personal joint and several decree against them.[98]

The deficiency judgment does not become a lien on other land until everything necessary to give it certainty has been done.[99]

§ 11. Redemption.[1]—The right to redeem from sale exists only by statute [2] or by terms of the decree, being distinct from the right of redemption from the mortgage.[3]

Statutes giving the right to redeem should be construed to allow it to any who have a substantial interest, whether parties or not.[4] The mortgagor may redeem a first lien,[5] and a lessee under him may do so as well.[6] Among others who may

84. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556. Law presumed same as former, hence debt being for home was community and she was liable. Id.

85. Ridgely v. Abbott Quicksilver Min. Co. [Cal.] 79 P. 833. In California where the clerk is to "docket" such a judgment if a deficiency appears, he must await the rendering and the entering of the judgment by enrollment. See Code Civ. Proc. §§ 726, 671. Id., per Shaw, J.

86. Whitney v. Meister, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 271.

87. Thomson v. Black, 208 Ill. 229, 70 N. E. 318.

88. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556.

89. Mortgagor having meanwhile departed, the state asserted invalidity of judgment for want of new personal service. Blumle v. Kramer, 14 Okl. 366, 79 P. 215.

90. Blumle v. Kramer, 14 Okl. 366, 79 P. 215.

91, 92. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556.

93. Blumle v. Kramer, 14 Okl. 366, 79 P. 215.

94, 95. Defense of limitations. Blumle v. Kramer, 14 Okl. 366, 79 P. 215.

96. Daniels v. Mutual Ben. Ins. Co. [Neb.] 102 N. W. 458.

97. Cudaback v. Hay, 134 F. 120.

98. Arneson v. Haldane, 105 Ill. App. 589.

99. Sum so recovered must be docketed in figures. Code Civ. Proc. § 1246, construed with §§ 1250, 1627. French v. French, 94 N. Y. S. 1026.

1. See 3 C. L. 1452.

2. A statutory right applies only to subsequently executed mortgages. Comp. Laws 1897, § 3938. Bremen Min. & Mill. Co. v. Bremen [N. M.] 79 P. 806.

3. See 3 C. L. 1452, n. 86; see, also, Mortgages, 4 C. L. 677.

4. Statute naming legal owner (Gen. St. 1901, § 4945) does not exclude equitable owner. Mercer v. McPherson [Kan.] 79 P. 118. Purchaser in possession under parol sale superior to subsequent grantee with notice. Id.

5. Stockton v. Dillon, 66 N. J. Eq. 100, 57 A. 487.

6. Where a senior and junior mortgage have been foreclosed and the mortgagor procures one to advance interest, costs and the consideration for an assignment of the junior mortgage, thus staying the decree, do so are a bona fide purchaser before foreclosure [7] and a rescinding grantor who was not a party.[8] Junior lienors may redeem as such only while they sustain that character.[9]

The amount of the decree with costs accrued or that due at the time of a tender [10] is necessary to redeem.

The time is generally statutory. In Illinois a junior lienor so recognized by the decress may redeem within one years; [11] but as to one omitted from decree and seeking the right by suit, the time is in the chancellor's discretion, six months being usually but not always allowed.[12] In that state a judgment creditor may redeem after twelve and within fifteen months, whether he be senior or junior to a junior lienor recognized in the decree, unless he has levied and gained a specific lien which puts him as an assignee of mortgagor on equality with the junior lienor.[13] The fact that, on a sale of decedent's realty to pay debts where only a sum sufficient to pay a mortgage on the property is realized, the equity of redemption is not sold in accordance with the order of the court, does not prevent the expiration of the statutory right to redeem at the expiration of a year from the date of the sale.[14] The period begins to run from judgment of foreclosure [15] and an interruption of it as to one separate parcel does not toll it as to others. By agreement, the time may be extended.[16] By consenting to a sale in fee without condition, limitation or restriction, the right may be waived.[17] A like result attends the acceptance of proceeds under a decree which does not allow redemption.[18]

The right to redeem cannot be enforced by trespass to try title [19] and must be pleaded in facts showing an equity to such relief.[20] A bill after the period must allege tender of the requisite security demanded by statute against waste and for interest.[21] An amendment setting up the bar of limitations and asking cancellation arises, it is said, out of the same transaction as a bill to redeem,[22] and if made as a first amendment and before time to plead has elapsed is allowable of course.[23] the mortgagor can pay the decree but cannot keep it open to defeat or impair a bona fide leasehold which the assignee took as consideration for his advances. Stockton v. Dillon, 66 N. J. Eq. 100, 57 A. 487.

7. Licata v. De Cortę [Fla.] 39 So. 58.

8. The original mortgagor may redeem against any but bona fides, though he had conveyed and was not a party where he sues to cancel for fraud and impleads all parties. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Stryker [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 953.

9. After a sale on execution to the judgment creditor has passed beynd redemption, the judgment creditor is the real owner and as such, not as judgment creditor must redeem from a foreclosure of a senior mortgage. Bagley v. McCarthy Bros. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 7. A holder of two simultaneous docketed judgments who sold under the larger one cannot, after time to redeem from his own execution sale has gone by, have any right under the smaller judgment to redeem from a foreclosure senior to both. The smaller judgment was under the circumstances either merged in the larger or entirely cut off by the sale. Id.

10. A decree on appeal held to have fixed as law of the case the amount necessary to redeem at the amount due with interest to original tender not to appellate decree. Farmers' & Traders' Bank v. Kelsay, 186 Mo. 648, 85 S. W. 538.

11. Illinois Nat. Bk. v. Trustees of Schools, 111 Ill. App. 189.

12. 60 days held too short. Rodman v. Quick [Ill.] 75 N. E. 465. The supreme court may on appeal extend the time without reversal if too short. 60 days extended by granting 90 days from decree above. Id.

13. Illinois Nat. Bank v. Trustees of Schools, 111 Ill. App. 189.

14. Costigan v. Truesdell, 26 Ky. L. R. 971, 83 S. W. 98.

15. Dalgardno v. Barthrop [Wash.] 82 P. 285.

16. Evidence held insufficient to show an agreement before time expired, by the certificate holder to permit redemption at any time. Becker v. Lough [N. D.] 103 N. W. 417. The time may be extended by agreement even if verbal. Taggart v. Blair, 215 Ill. 339, 74 N. E. 372. Evidence held insufficient to show an agreement in view of collateral circumstances. Id. Evidence held insufficient to establish a parol agreement to extend the statutory time to redeem from foreclosure. Norman v. Gunton, 127 F. 871.

17. King v. King, 215 Ill. 100, 74 N. E. 89.

18. Error cannot be assigned on such decree. King v. King, 215 Ill. 100, 74 N. E. 89.

19, 20. Must excuse apparent laches. Parks v. Worthington [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 720.

21. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 4343, 4344, fixing terms on which redemption is allowed, must have been met. Sturgeon v. Mudd [Mo.] 88 S. W. 630.

Right to possession pending redemption.—Where at the time of execution and at the time of foreclosure the purchaser was allowed possession during time for redemption, a law to the contrary for an interim period is not applicable.[24] A purchaser of the realty of a decedent which is sold to pay a mortgage debt, who takes possession before the expiration of the time for redemption, is liable to the owners for the rents thereof.[25]

Title and rights acquired by redemption.—One who buys the owner's right to redeem, knowing of an outstanding contract by him to convey, is subject thereto if he redeems and revests title in himself.[26] In Oregon, where the property may be redeemed during a specified period, the purchaser's title is held to be defeasible and inchoate until time for redemption has passed [27] and redemption vests the title in the redemptor [28] subject to any judgments docketed against the owner of the equity of redemption pending time to redeem from the foreclosure and not merged in the foreclosure.[29]

A junior lienor who deposits the bid price to redeem nullifies the certificate of purchase and subrogates the redemptor to the right to sell under the decree.[30]

FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.[1]

§ 1. Status, privileges, and regulation.[2]—The domicile of a corporation is the state of its creation,[3] and it has no legal existence [4] or right to exercise its corporate franchise [5] outside of the limits of the jurisdiction creating it, except by the comity of other states,[6] it not being a citizen within the meaning of the constitutional provision securing to citizens of each state the privileges and immunities of the citizens of 22, 23. Construing Comp. Laws 1897, § 2685, subsecs. 32, 33, 60-62, 81. Bremen Min. & Mill. Co. v. Bremen [N. M.] 79 P. 806.

24. Laws 1897, p. 227, c. 87, not applicable. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556.

25. Land sold to pay all the debts, but only enough realized to pay mortgage. Costigan v. Truesdell, 26 Ky. L. R. 971, 83 S. W. 98.

26. Alexander v. Goetz [Ala.] 37 So. 630.

27, 28. The property is restored to "the same condition as if no sale had been attempted." Kaston v. Storey [Or.] 80 P. 217, citing other Oregon cases and the statute B. & C. Comp. §§ 250, 427.

29. Purchaser pending foreclosure redeemed and thereupon judgment creditor of mortgagor levied as on land subject to his lien. Kaston v. Storey [Or.] 80 P. 217.

Note: An early case holding the same on a like interpretation of statute is Curtis v. Millard, 14 Iowa, 128, 81 Am. Dec. 460, with note.

30. Illinois Nat. Bank v. Trustees of Schools, 111 Ill. App. 189.

1. Scope of article: This article treats of the status, powers, rights and liabilities of foreign corporations as such. For general corporation law, see Corporations, 3 C. L. 880; for taxation of foreign corporations, see Taxes, 4 C. L. 1605; for questions peculiar to foreign corporations of a particular kind, see Railroads, 4 C. L. 1181; Building and Loan Associations, 5 C. L. 478; Insurance, 4 C. L. 157; Indemnity, 3 C. L. 1698.

2. See 3 C. L. 1455. See, also, Special Article, Right to Transact Business; Comity, 3 C. L. 1459.

3. Such domicile is not changed by the establishment of branch agencies elsewhere. Philippine Sugar Estates Co.'s Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 225. Corporation created in Philippines under Spanish laws is a domestic corporation, though some incorporators are foreigners. Id.

4. Booth & Co. v. Weigand [Utah] 79 P. 570.

5. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703. Foreign corporations except interstate commerce corporations, and those organized for a Federal purpose, have no right to do business nor any right of existence out of the state of their creation, except as the legislature of the state into which they seek to migrate chooses to accord them. State v. Kansas Natural Gas Co. [Kan.] 81 P. 506.

6. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703. See, also, special article, "Right to Transact Business; Comity," 3 C. L. 1459.

the several states.[7] Hence a state may exclude foreign corporations entirely or may admit them under such conditions as it deems proper,[8] so long as the conditions imposed are within constitutional limits,[9] and do not infringe upon the power of congress to regulate interstate commerce.[10] Thus, conditions requiring foreign corporations to consent to be sued in the state and providing a mode of service of process upon them,[11] and requiring the filing of evidence of incorporation, and other information, in the state,[12] and prohibiting the removal to the Federal court of suits instituted against them in state courts, under the penalty of revocation of the license to do business in the state,[13] are held valid. The rule of comity does not ex-

7. Attorney-General v. Electric Storage Battery Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 467; In re Speed's Estate, 216 Ill. 23, 74 N. E. 809.

8. Prewitt v. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co., 26 Ky. L. R. 1239, 83 S. W. 611; In re Speed's Estate, 216 Ill. 23, 74 N. E. 809; Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703; Attorney-General v. Electric Storage Battery Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 467; Groel v. United Elec. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 822; Woodward v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 178 N. Y. 485, 71 N. E. 10; Johnston v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ins. Co., 43 Misc. 251, 87 N. Y. S. 438, afd. 45 Misc. 316, 90 N. Y. S. 539. A state may exclude a foreign corporation entirely or exact such security for performance of its contracts with citizens as it deems proper to promote the public interest. National Council Junior Order U. A. M. v. State Council Junior Order U. A. M. [Va.] 51 S. E. 166.

9. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703.

10. Belle City Mfg. Co. v. Frizzell [Idaho] 81 P. 58. Conditions must not restrict or regulate interstate commerce in which the corporation may be engaged. Attorney-General v. Electric Storage Battery Co. [Iass.] 74 N. E. 467. Regulations imposing conditions on foreign corporations which in fact restrict their right to engage in interstate commerce are invalid. Greek-American Sponge Co. v. Richardson Drug Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 888. A foreign corporation which controls subordinate councils of a beneficial association within a state is not engaged in interstate commerce, and may be entirely excluded from the state. National Council Junior Order U. A. M. v. State Council Junior Order U. A. M. [Va.] 51 S. E. 166.

11. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703. Each state has power to prescribe mode of service by which corporations may be subjected to jurisdiction of domestic courts. Groel v. United Elect. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 822.

12. Requiring evidence of corporate existence to be filed, place of business to be designated, and agent to accept service of process to be designated, are reasonable conditions. Booth & Co. v. Wleigand [Utah] 79 P. 570.

13. Ky. St. 1903, § 631, requiring insurance commissioner to revoke license of insurance company which removes a case against it without the consent of the other party, is valid. Prewitt v. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co., 26 Ky. L. R. 1239, 83 S. W. 611.

Note: Says a writer in the Columbia Law Review, commenting on Prewitt v. Insurance Co., supra: "In the leading case of Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. [U. S.] 519, 10 Law. Ed. 277, it was established that a corporation cannot exist outside the state in which it is incorporated, and, although its agents can act elsewhere, they can do so only with the consent of the state in which they act. Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. [U. S.] 168, 19 Law. Ed. 357; Hooper v. California, 155 U. S. 648, 39 Law. Ed. 297. Most states have found it advisable to impose conditions upon foreign corporations before admitting them, and insurance companies have been especially subjected to such regulation. In order to place them as much as possible upon the same footing as domestic corporations, they are frequently required to stipulate, as a condition precedent to obtaining a license, not to sue in, or remove any suit to, a Federal court, on the ground of diversity of citizenship, local prejudice, or other basis of Federal jurisdiction. In Home Ins. Co. v. Morse, 20 Wall. [U. S.] 445, 22 Law. Ed. 365, an agreement under such a statute not to sue in a Federal court was held unenforceable and the statute void as ousting the Federal courts of jurisdiction. It was held that although a state may admit upon condition, it may not make the condition repugnant to the Federal Constitution. Southern Pac. Co. v. Denton, 146 U. S. 202, 36 Law. Ed. 943; Blake v. McClung, 172 U. S. 239, 254, 43 Law. Ed. 432. Compare Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 41 Law. Ed. 832; McCall v. California, 136 U. S. 104, 34 Law. Ed. 391. This position was reaffirmed in Barron v. Burnside, 121 U. S. 186, 30 Law. Ed. 915, where a similar statute was held unconstitutional, and an agent who had been arrested for its violation was released. Commonwealth v. E. Tenn. Coal Co., 97 Ky. 238. * * * In the principal case, the court, following Doyle v. Cont. Ins. Co., 94 U. S. 535, 24 Law. Ed. 148, held that, while the statute imposing the condition might be void, indeed, a similar one had been so held by the same court (Commonwealth v. E. Tenn. Coal Co., 97 Ky. 238), nevertheless the commissioner could not be enjoined from revoking the license. * * *

"There can be no question that this position is strictly within the holding of the United States supreme court in Doyle v. Insurance Co., supra, and it seems that the latter case, although distinguished and questioned (Beale, Foreign Corp. § 122; Cable v. U. S. Life Ins. Co., 191 U. S. 288, 307, 48 Law. Ed. 188), is still law. It has been suggested, however, that the contrary result could have been more consistently reached in that case. The right to exclude does not include the right to admit upon tend to such corporations as propose to do business prohibited by statutes or obnoxious to the policy of the laws of the state.[14] Thus, a state has power to exclude corporations belonging to a trust.[15]

Permits.—A permit granted a foreign corporation under one name inures to its benefit under a new name, if the change of name does not involve a change in its management or in the character of its business.[16] In a proceeding in the nature of quo warranto, brought by the state to oust a foreign corporation from the exercise of corporate franchises in the state, the court will not review the action of the state charter board in refusing to grant permission to the corporation to transact business in the state.[17]

License, excise, or franchise taxes[18] are imposed on foreign corporations in some states for the privilege of doing business, or having a place of business therein,[19] the amount being fixed by statute.[20] Whether a corporation is engaged in business any condition. * * * In the absence of statutory provisions to the contrary, the consent of each state is presumed to exist by the common law of comity between nations. Bateman v. Service, L. R. 6 App. Cas. 386; Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. [U. S.] 519, 10 Law. Ed. 277; Williams v. Creswell, 51 Miss. 817; People v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 153 Ill. 25, 26 L. R. A. 295. This law is not discretionary with the court, but is found and administered as is any other principle of law. Story, Conflict of Laws [8th Ed.] § 35; 2 Morawetz Corp. [2d Ed.] § 962. An unconstitutional enactment being void, and no other statute having conferred authority on the agent of the state to act, it would seem to follow that the right of the insurance company to continue acting within Kentucky was protected by the common law, and the agent should be enjoined to prevent injury to rights already vested under former constitutional legislation. Niagara Fire Ins. Co. v. Cornell, 110 F. 816. This is not a denial of the absolute power of the state to exclude foreign corporations, but an insistence upon the right of a foreign corporation, once admitted, to remain until properly expelled."—5 Columbia L. R. 231.

14. Corporation organized to defend malpractice cases against physicians is engaged in professional business prohibited by Rev. St. § 3235, and is properly refused a certificate to do business in Ohio. State v. Laylin, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 185.

NOTE. "Tramp corporations:" There are two well-defined classes of tramp corporations whose admission the rule of comity does not require: (1) Where the state creating the corporation will not permit it to do business within its own boundaries (Railway Co. v. Board, 6 Kan. 245); (2) Corporations organized abroad in evasion or fraud of the laws or policy of the state where the corporation does business or of the state where the corporation is organized. See note in 24 L. R. A. 291; Hill v. Beach, 12 N. J. Eq. 31. But the mere fact that citizens of a state go into another state to incorporate and come back home to conduct business is not a badge of fraud. State v. Cook, 181 Mo. 596, 80 S. W. 929. To hold otherwise would be to discriminate in favor of citizens of a foreign state. 13 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [2d Ed.] p. 486. On the subject of "tramp corporations," an interesting article appears in the 11 American Lawyer, p. 13. The case of State v. Cook, 181 Mo. 596, 80 S. W. 929, is a well considered opinion; thoroughly reviewing the legal history of tramp corporations. See, also, Clark & M. Priv. Corp. § 838; Cook, Corp. §§ 237-240; Lancaster v. Amsterdam Improvement Co., 140 N. Y. 576, 35 N. E. 964, 24 L. R. A. 322; Cincinnati Second Nat. Bank v. Lovell, 2 Cin. Sup. Ct. Rep. 397.—From 3 Mich. L. R. 161.

15. A foreign corporation which belongs to a trust formed to regulate or fix prices or rates is prohibited from doing business in Arkansas whether or not the trust to which it belongs attempts to regulate or fix rates or prices in that state. Under Act Jan. 25, 1905, an insurance company belonging to an insurance trust is guilty of conspiracy and liable to a penalty, if it transacts business in the state, even though the trust does not attempt to regulate rates of insurance in Arkansas. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 42. The statute which so provides is held constitutional. Id. The Texas anti-trust laws, providing that a foreign corporation violating their provisions shall forfeit its license to do business in the state, do not provide for a taking of the property of such a corporation without due process of law. National Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas, 197 U. S. 115, 49 Law. Ed. 689; Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas, 197 U. S. 134, 49 Law. Ed. 696. These laws as amended by Act of May 25, 1899, do not discriminate against foreign corporations, since discriminatory features of prior laws were removed by amendment of 1899. Id.

16. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co. v. Beilharz [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 512.

17. Action of state board pursuant to Gen. St. 1901, § 1263, is not so reviewable. State v. Kansas Natural Gas Co. [Kan.] 81 P. 506.

18. Taxation of foreign corporations in general is treated in Taxes, 4 C. L. 1605.

19. Under St. 1903, c. 437, § 58, the excise tax on capital stock is imposed for the privilege of having a place of business in the state, in the case of a corporation having such a usual place of business. Attorney-General v. Electric Storage Battery Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 467.

20. St. 1903, c. 437, § 75, requires excise tax of one one-hundredth of one per cent. of par value of authorized capital stock, but in the state, within the meaning of such a law, is to be determined by reference to the powers and privileges conferred on it by charter, and not solely by the actual business being done by it.[21] The Massachusetts statute, the language of which is broad enough to include every corporation which has a usual place of business in the state, is held not to apply to corporations maintaining such places of business solely for use in interstate commerce; but does apply to corporations using a place of business for interstate and also for other business;[22] and as so construed, is valid.[23] In New York the franchise tax is to be computed only on the amount of capital employed in the state, and not on the entire authorized capital stock.[24] In determining the amount of such capital, the value of a trade-mark used by it,[25] and the value of its good will, as estimated by the corporation itself,[26] may be considered. Stock of a foreign corporation invested in stock of a domestic corporation cannot be subjected to the license tax.[27] When a year has elapsed since a determination of the amount of a license tax, and the corporation has not meantime increased its stock, the comptroller has no authority to increase the tax on his own motion.[28] In Louisiana, a separate license may be exacted of a foreign insurance company by every municipality within whose limits it does an insurance business.[29] A company will not be relieved from liability for such a license by proof of payment to a particular city of a license based on business done by it throughout the state.[30]

Operation and construction of regulatory statutes.[31]—Statutes regulating corporations engaged in business in the state do not apply to corporations engaged solely in interstate commerce.[32] Whether, within the meaning of a regulatory statute, a foreign corporation is doing business in the state,[33] and whether it is en-allows deduction of local property taxes, and limits amount in any one year to $2,000. Statute construed. American Can Co. v. Com. [Mass.] 73 N. E. 856.

21. Corporation organized in New Jersey to take title to certain New York realty, authorized to deal in realty anywhere in the United States, and to carry on other business incidental thereto and calculated to increase the profits of the corporation, dividends being paid on the income from New York realty, is liable to the tax imposed by Laws 1896, c. 908, §§ 181, 182. People v. Miller, 181 N. Y. 328, 73 N. E. 1102.

22. Corporation held not to use place of business solely for interstate commerce; hence subject to excise tax. Attorney-General v. Electric Storage Battery Co. [Mass.] 14 N. E. 467.

23. Construing St. 1903, c. 437, §§ 66, 67, 75, 58, and Const. c. 1, § 1, art. 4. Attorney-General v. Electric Storage Battery Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 467.

24. Under Laws 1896, c. 908, § 181, as amended by Laws 1901, c. 558, providing for license fee of one-eighth of one per cent. on capital stock employed in state. People v. Kelsey, 93 N. Y. S. 369; People v. Miller, 94 N. Y. S. 193.

25. People v. Kelsey, 93 N. Y. S. 971.

26. People v. Miller, 94 N. Y. S. 193.

27. People v. Kelsey, 101 App. Div. 205, 91 N. Y. S. 709.

28. Construing Tax Law, §§ 181, 195. People v. Kelsey, 93 N. Y. S. 971. Comptroller cannot arbitrarily review his own decision. People v. Miller, 94 N. Y. S. 193.

29. The operations of an agent obligated to secure business for one company exclusively constitutes a doing of an insurance business within the meaning of an ordinance levying a license. City of Lake Charles v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. [La.] 38 So. 578.

30. "Payment to one other than the creditor does not extinguish the debt." City of Lake Charles v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. [La.] 38 So. 578.

31. See 3 C. L. 1456.

32. Belle City Mfg. Co. v. Frizzell [Idaho] 81 P. 58.

33. [As to what constitutes a doing of business in the state within the meaning of statutes regulating service of process, see § 3, Service of Process, post.] Mining company which has offices in the state for use of officers and directors, but all of whose properties with which mining and smelting are carried on are in the state granting its charter, is not engaged in business in the state. Bradbury v. Waukegan & Washington Min. & Smelting Co., 113 Ill. App. 600. Illinois corporation had branch house in Kansas City, Mo., and had five men traveling in Kansas soliciting orders, and making settlements with local dealers, receiving their cash and notes, though the contract with the local dealer was approved at Kansas City. Held, corporation was doing business in Kansas, and could not sue without complying with statutes. Elliott v. Parlin & Orendorff Co. [Kan.] 81 P. 500. Furnishing materials for a building under a contract with the owner is not "doing business" in the state so as to require statutory certificate in order to sue on the contract under Laws 1892, c. 687, § 15. New York Architectural Terra Cotta Co. v. Williams, 102 App. Div. 1, 92 N. Y. S. 808. Illinois publishing corporation which main-gaged in state or interstate commerce,[34] must be determined from the facts of each particular case. Mere ownership of property,[35] or the institution and prosecution of an action,[36] is not doing business in the state. Foreign insurance companies which collect premiums, pay losses, make contracts of insurance, issue policies, and conduct and maintain insurance agencies in the state, are engaged in business therein.[37] A corporation of one state which sells goods in another through traveling agents,[38] making shipments either direct from the factory to the purchaser,[39] or to a local agent for distribution [40] or inspection,[41] is engaged in interstate commerce and need not comply with state laws regarding foreign corporations. But if goods are shipped to a local agent and held and offered for sale by him,[42] or if a contract for tained agent in New York to solicit orders for advertisements, the orders being sent to Chicago for acceptance, and if accepted, the advertisements were published in the corporation's magazine published at Chicago. Held, Illinois corporation was not "doing business" in New York. American Contractor Pub. Co. v. Bagge, 91 N. Y. S. 73. An Ohio corporation with no place of business in New York but employing an agent there who sold goods in question under a written contract addressed to and accepted by the corporation in Ohio, held not to be doing business in New York. Hence, payment of license fee need not be alleged in action by it to recover for goods so sold. Harvard Co. v. Wicht, 99 App. Div. 507, 91 N. Y. S. 48. Foreign corporation which has not registered under Act April 22, 1874, cannot recover on a subscription to a fund for a butter factory, where the building was of large size, material was to be purchased in the state, labor was by residents, and machinery and equipment could be bought in the state; the corporation was doing business in the state. Chicago Bldg. & Mfg. Co. v. Myton, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 16. Foreign corporation which owned land in state, leased it on shares, and assigned the rent, held not to be doing business in the state so as to be required to obtain a permit from the secretary of state. Wilson v. Peace [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 31. Trust corporation taking property in Texas as trustee and undertaking management of it under terms of its deed and bond, services of various kinds being required, held to be doing business, and not merely holding property in trust, in the state. Commercial Telephone Co. v. Territorial Bank & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 66.

34. Answer in quo warranto by the state held to show that corporation was engaged in transportation of oil and gas solely in Kansas and was not engaged in interstate commerce. State v. Kansas Natural Gas Co. [Kan.] 81 P. 506.

35. Julius King Optical Co. v. Royal Ins. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 527. Under Acts 1895, c. 81, § 1, providing that a foreign corporation desiring to own property or carry on business in the state shall first fille a copy of its charter with the secretary of state, and section 2, making it unlawful for such corporation to do business in the state before complying with section 1, the mere purchase of real estate was not doing business within the meaning of section 2, and was not unlawful; hence damages to the land by change of grade of street could be recovered by the corporation. Louisville Property Co. v. Nashville [Tenn.] 84 S. W. 810.

36. Within the meaning of Acts 1899, p. 18, c. 19, requiring copy of articles to be filed. Alley v. Bowen-Merrill Co. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 838.

37. North American Ins. Co. v. Yates, 116 Ill. App. 217.

38. A manufacturer or dealer in goods engaged in business in one state may send his agents into another state to solicit orders without complying with statutes of the latter state regarding foreign corporations doing business therein. Barnhard Bros. v. Morrison [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 376.

39. A corporation, manufacturing machinery in Wisconsin, and selling it in Idaho upon orders taken there by its agents subject to its approval, the goods being shipped from the manufactory to Idaho pursuant to such orders, when approved, is not engaged in business in Idaho, within Rev. St. 1887, § 2653, as amended by Laws 1903, p. 49. Belle City Mfg. Co. v. Frizzell [Idaho] 81 P. 58. Such business is interstate commerce. Id. Foreign corporation sold materials through Texas agent and shipped them from factory in Ohio or from St. Louis. Transaction held interstate commerce and corporation could recover price, though it had not complied with Rev. St. 1895, art. 745, which applies only to corporations doing business in the state. De Witt v. Berger Mfg. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 334.

40. Where a foreign corporation sells goods in a state through traveling salesmen and delivers goods so sold through a distributing agency maintained in the state, the agent having no power to sell but merely to deliver, it is not engaged in business in the state within meaning of Gen. Laws 1899, chapters 69, 70. Rock Island Plow Co. v. Peterson, 93 Minn. 356, 101 N. W. 616.

41. Goods were sold by a foreign corporation to a domestic concern and shipped to a local agent for inspection, and after inspection, delivered in same package to purchaser; held, transaction was interstate commerce, and foreign corporation could recover, though it had not filed articles with secretary of state as required by Rev. St. 1898, § 1770b. Greek-American Sponge Co. v. Richardson Drug Co. [Wis.] 102 N. W. 888.

42. Barnhard Bros. v. Morrison [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 376.

labor and materials is made and performed in the state,[43] the corporation is held to be doing business therein.

State legislation granting powers, privileges or immunities to corporations must be construed as applying only to domestic corporations, unless the intent to make it applicable to foreign corporations is plainly expressed.[44] A statute, exempting from the operation of the transfer tax law bequests to charitable corporations, is not unconstitutional because it does not apply to bequests to foreign corporations.[45]

Foreign stock corporations doing business in New York are required to maintain a stock-book in the state.[46] A refusal by the agent in charge of such book to allow a proper person to inspect it[47] renders the agent and the corporation liable to a penalty,[48] which may be recovered by one who makes out a case strictly within the terms of the statute.[49]

Noncompliance with statutes; effect.[50]—Foreign corporations doing business in a state will be presumed to have assented to the conditions prescribed by law.[51] Noncompliance is not a cause for forfeiture of charter rights, unless so declared by statute,[52] especially where the violation of law is not willful or persistent.[53] Penalties must be reasonable in amount.[54]

Contracts of a foreign corporation which has not complied with the statutory requirements are generally held to be unenforceable, if the statute is mandatory and prohibitory.[55] Some courts, however, hold that, if the statute imposes a penalty for noncompliance therewith, it will be deemed exclusive of any other,[56] and that, in such case, noncompliance does not render the contracts of the corporation void, unless the statute expressly so provides.[57] The corporation cannot itself take ad-

43. A foreign corporation which contracts, through a resident agent for labor and materials for a building, and sends men and a superintendent into the state to perform such contract, engages in business in the state within Rev. St. 1895, art. 745, and is not engaged in interstate commerce. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co. v. Beilharz [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 605, 88 S. W. 512.

44. Act May 10, 1901, amending Act June 15, 1895, exempting from the transfer tax, bequests to charitable corporations, does not apply to bequests to foreign corporations. In re Speed's Estate, 216 Ill. 23, 74 N. E. 809.

45. Act May 10, 1901, does not violate Const. art. 9, §§ 1, 2, requiring taxation to be uniform. In re Speed's Estate, 216 Ill. 23, 74 N. E. 809.

46. Every foreign stock corporation having an office for the transaction of business in New York must keep a "stock book" in the state, and the book must be kept in the office of its transfer agent, if it has one. Tyng v. Corporation Trust Co., 93 N. Y. S. 928. Stock book held not to comply with statute. Fay v. Coughlin-Sandford Switch Co., 94 N. Y. S. 628.

47. The right to inspect such stock book carries with it the right to make extracts therefrom. Fay v. Coughlin-Sandford Switch Co., 94 N. Y. S. 628.

48. Stock Corp. Law, § 53. Tyng v. Corporation Trust Co., 93 N. Y. S. 928. The liability of the corporation for such penalty is not affected by the fact that the book does not contain every item required by law to be recorded. Id.

49. In an action to recover the penalty for refusal to allow inspection of the stock book, a complaint is fatally defective if it does not allege that defendant corporation was a "stock corporation" and was not a "moneyed or railroad" corporation. Seydel v. Corporation Liquidating Co., 92 N. Y. S. 225. Plaintiff cannot recover such penalty if he fails to prove by competent evidence that defendant is a stock corporation, and has an office for the transaction of business or a transfer agent in New York; that it is not a moneyed or railroad corporation; and that plaintiff is a stockholder. Hollister v. De Forest Wireless Tel. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 504.

50. See 3 C. L. 1458.

51. As provision for service of process on insurance commissioner. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703.

52. Failure of telephone company to file abstract of charter in each county where it had an exchange held not ground for forfeiture. State v. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. [Tenn.] 86 S. W. 390.

53. Where failure to file charter abstract in counties was by mistake, which was corrected when discovered, there was no cause for forfeiture. State v. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. [Tenn.] 86 S. W. 390.

54. Verdict of $8,000 as penalty for failure to procure permit to do business held excessive, where business was done in the state for only a short period. Finlay Brewing Co. v. People, 111 Ill. App. 200.

55. In Utah, statutes are mandatory. Booth & Co. v. Weigand [Utah] 79 P. 570.

56. Thompson v. National Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 756.

57. Code 1899, c. 54, § 30, does not make contracts of undomesticated concerns void. Thompson v. National Mut. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 756.

vantage of its noncompliance for the purpose of avoiding liability under its contracts,[58] especially if it was lawfully engaged in business in the state, having a license, at the time the cause of action arose.[59] Noncompliance does not render the directors and stockholders liable as members of a co-partnership for debts contracted in the state.[60]

§ 2. Powers.[61]—A corporation which enters a state other than that of its domicile becomes subject to its laws,[62] which become a part of its charter privileges and immunities.[63] Its powers are those granted by its charter which it is allowed to exercise by public policy and law.[64] Foreign corporations have no other or greater powers or privileges than those exercised by domestic corporations of the same kind,[65] and they are subject to the same restrictions and regulations.[66] But it has been held that charter powers, not prohibited by positive laws, or contrary to public policy or against the interests of citizens, may be exercised by a foreign corporation, though such powers are denied similar domestic corporations.[67] In the absence of proof to the contrary, it will be presumed that there are the same limitations upon the powers of a corporation created in another state as are imposed by law on similar corporations in the state into which such corporation comes.[68] The exercise of powers granted to similar domestic corporations is conditioned upon domestication by compliance with statutory requirements.[69] A foreign trust company cannot, under the laws of New York, act as an executor in that state and administer the estate of a deceased testator.[70]

58. In re Naylor Mfg. Co., 135 F. 206.

59. Where, at the time the contract for an abstract to title was made, the abstract company was licensed to do business in the state, the fact that such license lapsed for a short time thereafter was no defense to an action for damages for an omission in the abstract, defendant having renewed its license at the time of the foreclosure of the omitted mortgage, and at the time when the action for damages was brought. Western Loan & Sav. Co. v. Silver Bow Abstract Co. [Mont.] 78 P. 774.

60. Corporation had not registered under Act April 22, 1874. Bond v. Stoughton, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 483.

61. See 3 C. L. 1461.

62. The admission of a foreign corporation to do business in the state is a matter of comity and not of right, and a corporation which enters the state and undertakes to do business there becomes amenable to the laws of the state and subject to the jurisdiction of its courts the same as a private individual or domestic corporation. State v. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. [Tenn.] 86 S. W. 390. Hence such corporation cannot complain of a law restricting or prohibiting its business because it is a monopoly and is in restraint of trade. Civ. Code 1902, § 2845, applies to foreign corporations. State v. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 455.

63. Under Rev. St. 1903, § 1471, and Rev. St. 1893, § 1499. State v. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 455.

64. In re American Security & Trust Co., 45 Misc. 529, 92 N. Y. S. 974.

65. Miller v. Monumental Sav. & Loan Ass'n [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 533.

66. Foreign building and loan associations cannot enjoy the special privileges enjoyed by domestic building and loan associations unless they comply with the statutes regulating the business of such domestic associations. Code 1899, c. 54, §§ 25-30. Miller v. Monumental Sav. & Loan Ass'n [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 533. Foreign building and loan associations must comply with laws governing domestic associations. Land Title & Trust Co. v. Fulmer, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 256. See article on Building & Loan Associations, 5 C. L. 478.

67. Foreign life insurance companies, authorized by charter to write employers' liability insurance, may write such insurance in Ohio, though domestic companies cannot. State v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 69 Ohio St. 317, 69 N. E. 608.

68. Whaley v. Bankers' Union of the World [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 431, 88 S. W. 259. A foreign fraternal beneficial association is subject to limitations imposed on similar domestic corporations by Acts 1899, c. 115, §§ 1, 2, 3. Hence, an attempt to divert a benefit fund derived from assessments on its own members and appropriate it to pay a certificate or policy issued by another association with which it attempted to consolidate, is ultra vires and void. Id.

69. A telegraph company not domesticated under the laws of South Carolina cannot make entry upon lands under condemnation proceedings, since Code 1902, § 2211, applies only to domesticated companies. Duke v. Postal Tel. Cable Co. [S. C.] 50 S. E. 675. A railroad corporation cannot exercise the right of eminent domain in Kentucky unless it has become a Kentucky corporation by organizing under its law. Under Const. Ky. § 211, a foreign railroad corporation must organize under Ky. St. 1903, § 763, to exercise the right; compliance with § 841 is not sufficient. Evansville & H. Traction Co. v. Henderson Bridge Co., 134 F. 973.

70. Both because letters testamentary cannot be granted to an alien (Code Civ.

§ 3. Actions by and against; jurisdiction of courts. Right to sue.[71]—A foreign corporation cannot maintain an action based on business done in the state unless it has complied with statutory regulations;[72] but such compliance is not ordinarily a prerequisite to the maintenance of an action arising out of interstate business,[73] or based on a contract made outside the state,[74] or for the recovery of property owned in the state.[75] In some states, however, noncompliance is a bar to the maintenance of any action whatever,[76] and statutes which so provide are held not to be an unlawful restriction of interstate commerce.[77] The question what constitutes interstate commerce, and what a doing of business within the state, within the meaning of such statutes, has been already treated.[78] Compliance at any time before trial is sufficient.[79] The fact that a foreign corporation did not have a permit to do business in the state may be shown in an action on a judgment acquired by it in another state, and based on business done in the state wherein the action on the judgment is brought.[80] A foreign trustee corporation which has not complied with the statute may yet be permitted to sue as nominal plaintiff for the benefit of others, Proc. § 2612) and because it is the policy of the state not to permit trust property to be taken outside the state. In re American Security & Trust Co., 45 Misc. 529, 92 N. Y. S. 974.

71. See 3 C. L. 1462.

72. A foreign corporation which has not complied with requirements of statute which would entitle it to do business in the state cannot maintain "any suit or action, legal or equitable, in any of the courts of this state upon any demand, whether arising out of contract or tort." Central Mfg. Co. v. Briggs, 106 Ill. App. 417. A foreign corporation cannot maintain an action in Kansas, based on business done in the state, without procuring the certificate required by law, and the statute requiring such certificate applies to actions commenced before its passage. Evidence to show non-compliance with Laws 1901, c. 125, § 3, admissible on motion to dismiss, though action was commenced in 1896. Vickers v. Buck Stove & Range Co. [Kan.] 79 P. 160.

73. A corporation engaged solely in interstate commerce may maintain actions in the state without complying with the statutes regulating foreign corporations doing business in the state. Belle City Mfg. Co. v. Frizzell [Idaho] 81 P. 58; Rock Island Plow Co. v. Peterson, 93 Minn. 356, 101 N. W. 616.

74. Statutes prescribing conditions on which foreign corporations may do business in the state do not prohibit such corporations from maintaining actions in the courts of the state upon contracts made in other states. New York corporation may sue in Minnesota on contract made in Kansas without complying with Gen. Laws 1899, c. 69, p. 68. Mason v. Edward Thompson Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 507. Failure of a foreign corporation to obtain the certificate required by Laws 1892, c. 687, could not bar an action by the corporation on a contract alleged to have been executed and delivered in another state, unless it is alleged that such corporation was doing business in the state. Onderdonk v. Peale, 93 N. Y. S. 505; Gen. Corp. Law, § 15, prohibiting maintenance of an action by a foreign corporation which has failed to file the certificate required by that section, does not apply to actions on contracts made outside the state. Box Board & Lining Co. v. Vincennes Paper Co., 45 Misc. 1, 90 N. Y. S. 836. Hence an averment that such certificate was obtained is unnecessary in an application for attachment which does not show that the contract on which the action is brought was made within the state. Id. Laws 1896, c. 908, requiring foreign corporations to pay a license tax, does not prohibit maintenance of an action by an assignee of a foreign corporation. Hence an application for an attachment need not allege payment of the tax. Id.

75. Owning property and suing to protect rights therein is not doing business in the state. Julius King Optical Co. v. Royal Ins. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 527. The person retaining the property, having no contract relations with the corporation, cannot object when sued that the corporation is engaged in business in the state without complying with the statute. Id.

76. Under Rev. Civ. Code, §§ 833-835, foreign corporation must file articles and appoint agent for service before it can maintain an action in the state on any demand. Iowa Falls Mfg. Co. v. Farrar [S. D.] 104 N. W. 449. Hence an answer alleging noncompliance is a complete defense to an action to enforce a lien for materials furnished under a contract made in another state. Id.

77. Such statutes do not restrict transaction or enforcement of interstate business, but merely make use of the courts conditional upon performance of such acts as are required of domestic corporations. Iowa Falls Mfg. Co. v. Farrar [S. D.] 104 N. W. 449.

78. See ante, § 1, Operation and Construction of Statutes.

79. May do so after commencement of action. Filing statement and procuring certificate. Ryan Live Stock & Feeding Co. v. Kelly [Kan.] 81 P. 470.

80. Since it may be shown that plaintiff's original cause of action was not one on which he could have maintained an action in the state where suit on the judgment is brought. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co. v. Beilharz [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 605, 88 S. W. 512.

the trust deed providing for such action.[81] A foreign corporation which has furnished materials for a real estate improvement in New York may file a mechanic's lien therefor, though not authorized to do business in that state.[82]

In some states, a foreign corporation, in a suit based on business done in the state, must allege due compliance with the statutes;[83] but an objection that a complaint does not contain such allegation must be properly raised,[84] or it is waived.[85] In other states, compliance with law, and consequent capacity to sue is presumed,[86] and the burden is upon the defendant to allege and prove noncompliance,[87] and the defense is waived unless raised by a proper[88] plea in abatement.[89] In Texas, the certificate of the secretary of state that the right of a corporation to do business in the state has been forfeited is not evidence of such forfeiture.[90]

Liability to be sued.[91]—A foreign corporation doing business in the state and having agents located therein for that purpose, so that process may be served upon it,[92] may there be sued not only upon a cause of action arising in the state,[93] but also upon any transitory cause of action, whether originating in the state or

81. When bondholders could have sued in their own names. Commercial Tel. Co. v. Territorial Bank & Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 66.

82. In accordance with Laws 1897, c. 418, § 3. New York Architectural Terra Cotta Co. v. Williams, 102 App. Div. 1, 92 N. Y. S. 808.

83. Must allege and prove, in a suit based on business for which a permit is required, that such permit had been procured by it. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fire-proofing Co. v. Beilharz [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 605, 88 S. W. 512. A complaint showing on its face that plaintiff had not procured a certificate of authority to do business in the state at the time of the making of the alleged contract, though it had paid the license tax, is demurrable for want of legal capacity to sue. Emmerich Co. v. Sloane, 95 N. Y. S. 39.

84. Failure in action on a contract made in the state, to allege due authority to transact business in the state by compliance with the statutes, is not available on a demurrer that the complaint does not state a cause of action. Portland Co. v. Hall, 95 N. Y. S. 36; Emmerich Co. v. Sloane, 95 N. Y. S. 39.

85. A failure to plead compliance with the statutes is waived by a defendant who answers with a general denial, upon information and belief, even as to its own incorporation. Harris Automatic Press Co. v. Demorest Pattern Co., 94 N. Y. S. 462.

86. Mason v. Edward Thompson Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 507.

87. Where a foreign corporation alleges in a suit by it that it was lawfully doing business in the state, the burden is upon the defendant to plead and prove incapacity to sue because of non-compliance with statutes. Defense of non-compliance not available when not set up in answer. Lehigh Valley Coal Co. v. Gilmore, 93 Minn. 432, 101 N. W. 796. Presumption is that law has been complied with; burden on a defendant setting up non-compliance when sued, to show violation of statute. Rock Island Plow Co. v. Peterson, 93 Minn. 356, 101 N. W. 616.

88. If non-compliance with statutes be relied on as a defense, defendant must specify in what particular the plaintiff has failed to comply with the law. Worrell v. Kinnear Mfg. Co., 103 Va. 719, 49 S. E. 988. A plea that a suit is illegally maintained because of non-compliance with the law at the time of entering into the contract in suit should allege that fact specifically and affirmatively aver that the corporation did business in the state. Peoria Star Co. v. Steve W. Floyd Special Ag., 115 Ill. App. 401. Where a plea in an action to recover the price of a machine sets out that the cause of action grew out of business done in the state by a foreign corporation which had no place of business in the state, as required by Const. Ala. art. 14, § 4, such plea is not demurrable on the ground that it shows that the transaction was interstate commerce. Keystone Mfg. Co. v. Hampton [Ala.] 37 So. 552.

89. Want of capacity to sue, because of non-compliance with statutes, must be set up by a plea in abatement, and is waived by pleading to the merits. Failure to appoint an agent to accept service of process, as required by Gen. Laws 1896, c. 253, and Pub. Laws, c. 980, must be set up by plea in abatement. Weaver Coal & Coke Co. v. Rhode Island Co-op. Coal Co. [R. I.] 61 A. 426.

90. Construing Rev. St. 1895, art. 749, and art. 5243, as amended by Laws 1897, p. 168, c. 120. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co. v. Beilharz [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 605, 88 S. W. 512.

91. See 3 C. L. 1462.

92. In Georgia, foreign corporations doing business and having agents in the state may be served in the same manner as domestic corporations. Reeves v. Southern R. Co., 121 Ga. 561, 49 S. E. 674; Hawkins v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 724.

93. When a foreign corporation comes within the boundaries of a sovereignty other than that of its creation, and there makes contracts and transacts business, it is there answerable for causes of action there arising, provided service is made upon the corporation in the manner prescribed by law. Reasons for rule discussed and authorities collected. Groel v. United Elec. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 822.

elsewhere, and whether the plaintiff be a resident or nonresident,[94] provided the enforcement of the cause of action would not be contrary to the laws and policy of the state where such suit is brought.[95] In some states, statutes determine when actions may be maintained by residents [96] or nonresidents [97] against foreign corporations. A foreign corporation is entitled, when a personal judgment is sought against it, to present the question of jurisdiction by plea,[98] and no other appearance than that made by filing such plea is necessary in order that it may be heard.[99]

Service of process.[1]—Each state has the right to prescribe a mode of service of process upon foreign corporations which will subject them to the jurisdiction of its courts, provided, of course that such mode is not unreasonable or contrary to the principles of natural justice.[2] Usually, jurisdiction cannot be acquired for the pur-

94. Reeves v. Southern R. Co., 121 Ga. 561, 49 S. E. 674, overruling Bawknight v. Insurance Co., 55 Ga. 194. Railroad corporation doing business in Georgia suable by nonresident for injury to horse in Alabama. Id. Non-resident insurance company suable in Georgia on contract made outside the state, where insured died in Oklahoma Territory. Hawkins v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 724.

Note: "Aside from an authorizing statute, if service is lawfully made, suit in such an action is maintainable by a non-resident alien at the discretion of the court. Johnson v. Insurance Co., 132 Mass. 432; Steamship Co. v. Kane, 170 U. S. 100, 42 Law. Ed. 964. If the right to sue depends on citizenship, not residence, art. IV, § 2, of the Federal Constitution, extends it to all citizens of the United States. Railway Co. v. Nix, 68 Ga. 572, 580; Cole v. Cunningham, 133 U. S. 107, 113, 33 Law. Ed. 538; Barrell v. Benjamin, 15 Mass. 354. But where a statute (New York C. C. P. § 1780), limiting the right to residents irrespective of citizenship, is constitutional (Robinson v. Oceanic S. S. Co., 112 N. Y. 315, 2 L. R. A. 636), it would seem a non-resident citizen could not sue."—5 Columbia L. R. 471.

95. Enforcement of cause of action for tort to property not against state policy. Reeves v. Southern R. Co., 121 Ga. 561, 49 S. E. 674. Enforcement of accident insurance policy proper. Hawkins v. Fidelity Casualty Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 724.

96. Code Civ. Proc. § 1780, regarding actions by residents against foreign corporations, relates to the jurisdiction of the court and not to the cause of action; hence an objection that a complaint does not state a cause of action under that section is unavailing under a demurrer, unless it appears on the face of the complaint that the action is not one allowed by the section. MacGinniss v. Amalgamated Copper Co., 45 Misc. 106, 91 N. Y. S. 591.

97. An action may be brought in North Carolina by a nonresident against a foreign corporation when the cause of action arose in the state, or the subject of the action is situated therein. Code, § 194. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 49 S. E. 173. Where property and place of business of a New Jersey corporation were located in North Carolina, and a contract between it and a salesman was made in North Carolina, and checks in payment were there drawn, though his services were performed in Virginia, courts of North Carolina were held to have jurisdiction of a garnishment proceeding in an action in the state against the salesman, the cause of action having arisen and the subject of the action being located in the state. Id. In determining whether a cause of action arose in the state, the allegations of the pleadings alone may be considered. Code Civ. Proc. § 1780, subd. 3. Rosenblatt v. Jersey Novelty Co., 45 Misc. 59, 90 N. Y. S. 816. An action for breach of contract may be maintained in New York by a nonresident against a foreign corporation if the breach occurred in the state, no matter where the contract was made. Id. Under D. C. Code, § 1537, an action by a nonresident corporation may be maintained against another nonresident corporation when the defendant has a place of business and is engaged in business in the district. Guilford Granite Co. v. Harrison Granite Co., 23 App. D. C. 1.

98, 99. Groel v. United Elec. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 640.

1. See 3 C. L. 1464.

2. Groel v. United Elec. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 822, citing numerous authorities.

3. [As to what constitutes a doing of business in the state within the meaning of other statutes, see § 1, Operation and Construction of Statutes, supra.] Colorado corporation, with no office in New York, though directors occasionally met there, and though it had a bank account there, held not to be engaged in business in New York. Honeyman v. Colorado Fuel & Iron Co., 133 F. 96. Insurance company held to have been doing business in North Carolina at time process was served on insurance commissioner, though it had ceased to solicit new business. Johnston v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ins. Co., 43 Misc. 251, 87 N. Y. S. 438. Under Shannon's Code, § 4546, providing that process may be served on any agent of a foreign corporation that is within the county where suit is brought, no matter what kind of agent he is, valid service cannot be made on a person merely retained as an attorney, the corporation having never transacted business in the state. Thach v. Continental Travelers' Mut. Acc. Ass'n [Tenn.] 87 S. W. 255. Under P. L. 1896, p. 307, though a course of action grew out of business other than that specified in the statement filed by the corporation with the secretary, service on the designated agent is sufficient to give the court jurisdiction. Groel v. United Elec. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 822. A foreign corporation which organized and controlled another corporation in New Jersey, caused pose of obtaining a personal judgment, unless the corporation was engaged in business in the state [3] at the time service was made,[4] and unless the person served was authorized to accept service,[5] and was one of the persons designated by the statute as those upon whom service may in such case be made.[6] Service upon an officer it to issue bonds and stock, which it took, and also bought stock in other corporations, and took money from its stockholders, and guaranteed payment of its bonds by another corporation, was engaged in business in New Jersey within P. L. 1896, p. 307. Id. A foreign corporation is not "found" within a district within the meaning of U. S. Rev. St. § 739, for the service of process, when its president comes temporarily into the district on business of the corporation, such corporation having no office or place of business therein, and not having transacted any business there except that which the president came to transact. Territory v. Baker [N. M.] 78 P. 624. The fact that a railroad company organized under an act of Congress (29 St. at L. 622, c. 374) owned lands in New Mexico, and prosecuted trespass actions to protect such land, did not authorize service of summons on the president of the company while passing through the state on a train, in a personal action in which an attachment may be levied on property of the corporation in the state (assuming that the state law is applicable to a corporation organized under Federal law). Territory of New Mexico v. Baker, 196 U. S. 432, 49 Law. Ed. 540. Service on the treasurer of a foreign corporation in New York does not give a Federal court sitting in that state jurisdiction, when it is not at the time, and has never been engaged in business in the state. Kendall v. American Automatic Loom Co., 198 U. S. 477, 49 Law. Ed. 1133. Where property insured by a foreign corporation was located in New York, the loss was, by the terms of the policy, to be there adjusted, and the company was given the option, in case of loss, of payment, repairing or rebuilding, a cause of action for a loss arose in the state of New York, so that summons could be served in accordance with N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 432, subd. 3. Pennsylvania Lumbermen's Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Meyer, 197 U. S. 407, 49 Law. Ed. 810. Under N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 432, subd. 3, service of summons on a resident director of a foreign insurance company gives a Federal court sitting in New York jurisdiction, if the cause of action arose in the state and the company is doing business therein. Id. A foreign insurance company which regularly solicits business in New York insures property there, and sends agents there to adjust losses, is doing business in the state, so that a Federal court sitting in the state may acquire jurisdiction over it. Id.

Note: "The question what constitutes doing business by a foreign corporation is usually presented under a state statute imposing conditions thereon, the payment of a tax, for example, or the filing of a certificate of its financial condition. The natural meaning of the term is often variously warped and narrowed in accordance with the supposed intent of the legislature to avoid interference with some policy of the state or with interstate commerce. Commonwealth v. Standard Oil Co., 101 Pa. 119; 148; Coit & Co. v. Sutton, 102 Mich. 324, 25 L. R. A. 819. In that line of cases the temper of the courts is decidedly against the decision in Penn., etc., Ins. Co. v. Meyer, 197 U. S. 407, 49 Law. Ed. 810. People v. Gilbert, 44 Hun [N. Y.] 522; New Orleans v. Virginia, etc., Ins. Co., 33 La. Ann. 10. But here the question is whether the corporation has not done business in the state so that it may fairly be subjected to jurisdiction on proper service. The court is restrained by no adverse policy; it is rather encouraged to furnish domestic relief to domestic plaintiffs, and may well decide on the natural, though difficult, basis of fact. This distinction is not expressed in the cases, but, it is submitted, will avoid some of the confusion on the subject. Colorado Iron-Works v. Sierra Grande Mining Co., 15 Colo. 499."—18 Harv. L. R. 619.

4. Johnston v. Mut. Reserve Fund Life Ins. Co., 43 Misc. 251, 87 N. Y. S. 438.

5. Johnston v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ins. Co., 43 Misc. 251, 87 N. Y. S. 438. Local "correspondents" of a foreign corporation which sends them market quotations to enable them to take orders for stock deals from customers, may properly be treated as agents for service of process, though their contracts expressly disclaim agency, where it appears that the "correspondents" are paid by commissions and the corporation is the party really interested in their transactions. Board of Trade of Chicago v. Hammond Elevator Co., 198 U. S. 424, 49 Law. Ed. 1111. Bank president who collected dues and charges and remitted same for building association, not as special agent but only as a part of his general banking business, and who ceased doing this after liquidation of association had commenced, was not an agent authorized to receive service for the association. Cooper v. Brazelton [C. C. A.] 135 F. 476.

6. Where plaintiff's attorney called at the office of the secretary of a foreign corporation and was informed by the clerk that all the officers were outside the state, and was given names of resident directors, he had used due diligence to obtain service on officers, and service on a director was sufficient, under the New York statute. Honeyman v. Colorado Fuel & Iron Co., 133 F. 96. Advertising solicitor for New Jersey paper, who had an office in New York, containing his own furniture, held not a "managing agent" within Code Civ. Proc. § 432, subd. 3. Doherty v. Evening Journal Ass'n, 98 App. Div. 136, 90 N. Y. S. 671. One who had been, but had ceased to be, a mere solicitor of applications in a company which sells sick, accident and funeral benefits, is not a "managing agent" within the meaning of the Ohio statute on whom service may be made. Spiker v. American Relief Soc. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 143, 103 N. W. 611. Rev. St. 1895, art. 1223, provides that citation may be served on the president or general manager or any local agent of a foreign corporation; hence, where service is casually in or merely passing through the state is not valid.[7] The appointment of an agent to receive service cannot be revoked so as to defeat service in an action to enforce liability previously incurred,[8] no other agent having been designated in accordance with the statute,[9] and this is true even though at the time of service the corporation has ceased to do business in the state.[10] The appointment in the state of a second agent upon whom process may be served, and the filing of the certificate of such appointment as required by law, is an implied revocation of the authority of the former agent,[11] and is sufficient notice of such revocation to all persons interested.[12] Service should be upon the person designated by law at the time of instituting suit, regardless of a change in the law in that respect since the liability sought to be enforced was incurred.[13] Under the New York statute service on a cashier or managing agent is good only when the corporation has property in the state, or the cause of action arose there,[14] and when after the exercise of due diligence, the on the general manager, it need not be shown that he was also a local agent. El Paso, etc., R. Co. v. Kelly [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 855.

7. Service on a director of a foreign corporation casually in the state for a few days, when the corporation has no property, and is not engaged in business in the state of New York, does not give a Federal court sitting in that state jurisdiction. Remington v. Central Pac. R. Co., 198 U. S. 95, 49 Law. Ed. 959. Where service was on vice-president of Missouri corporation who was in New Jersey on private business, and was not sent or authorized by the corporation to go or to receive process, the New Jersey courts did not acquire jurisdiction. Puster v. Parker Mercantile Co. [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 232. Service on officer of corporation temporarily in the state to hire an engineer is not a legal service on the corporation under Rev. St. c. 32, § 26. Schillinger Bros. Co. v. Henderson Brewing Co., 107 Ill. App. 335. In an action to recover a personal judgment against a foreign corporation, service on its secretary, while temporarily in the state, such secretary not having transacted the business out of which the action grew (Act No. 149, p. 188, of 1890) and the corporation having no property in the state, and not being engaged in business therein, is insufficient to support a judgment. Southern Saw Mill Co. v. American Hardwood Lumber Co. [La.] 38 So. 977.

8. Insurance company which had consented to service on insurance commissioner could not revoke his power to receive service in actions on policies previously issued. Johnston v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ins. Co., 43 Misc. 251, 87 N. Y. S. 438, afd. 45 Misc. 316, 90 N. Y. S. 539. See, also, Woodward v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 178 N. Y. 485, 71 N. E. 10; and Lambert v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 1059.

9. Service on a designated agent is good, though the corporation has, in writing, previously revoked the agent's authority, and sent a copy of the revocation to the secretary of state, no other agent having been designated under P. L. 1896, p. 307. Groel v. United Elec. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 822.

10. It is held, under the New Jersey statute requiring a foreign corporation doing business in the state to designate an agent upon whom service of process may be made, that the courts of that state may enforce their jurisdiction by process served upon the designated agent, whether the corporation is actually engaged in business in the state at the time of such service or not (Groel v. United Elec. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 822), and the statute, as so construed, does not violate the constitutional requirement of due process of law (Id.).

11. Mullins v. Central Coal & Coke Co. [Ark.] 84 S. W. 477.

12. Service upon first agent after such revocation ineffective to give notice to corporation of suit against it. Mullins v. Central Coal & Coke Co. [Ark.] 84 S. W. 477.

13. Under Laws N. C. 1899, c. 54, § 62, providing for appointment of insurance commissioner to receive service of process on foreign insurance companies, process should be served on such commissioner in actions on policies issued when the law provided for service on the secretary of state. Johnston v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ins. Co., 43 Misc. 251, 87 N. Y. S. 438, afd. 45 Misc. 316, 90 N. Y. S. 539. As so construed, the law affects only the remedy, and does not impair the obligation of contracts, in the case of policies previously issued. Id. When a policy of insurance was taken in North Carolina from a New York company, the North Carolina statute provided for service of process on foreign companies by service on the secretary of state, but thereafter the insurance commissioner was substituted for the secretary of state by law, and the company complied with the law as changed. Held, such law and the compliance therewith were for the benefit of policy holders, and the holder in question who acquired judgment in North Carolina in an action in which service was on the insurance commissioner, could recover on such judgment in an action thereon in New York, even though the company had attempted to revoke the agency of the commissioner of North Carolina and had ceased to do business in that state. Woodword v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 178 N. Y. 485, 71 N. E. 10.

14. Allegation in libel suit that paper containing libellous matter was "circulated throughout Jersey City and the state of New Jersey and other states of the United States" does not show that the cause of action arose in New York. Doherty v. Evening Journal Ass'n, 98 App. Div. 136, 90 N. Y. S. 671.

officers named in the statute cannot be found in the state.[15] A foreign corporation doing business in Georgia and having agents in the state for that purpose may be served in the same manner as domestic corporations.[16]

To sustain a default judgment, the return must show facts bringing the service as made within the terms of the statute.[17]

Limitations.[18]—A foreign corporation which has complied with the laws of a state, and which has been regularly and continuously doing business therein during the entire period required to bar an action, and during all that time has had an agent resident therein on whom personal service of process could be had, may avail itself of the statute of limitations of such state.[19]

§ 4. Remedies of stockholders and creditors as against foreign corporations and their officers.[20]—A court of equity should not take jurisdiction of a controversy relating to the internal management of a foreign corporation at the suit of a stockholder, when no question of public concern is involved,[21] especially where all the property of the corporation with which it carries on business is located in the state which granted its charter.[22] Courts have no jurisdiction to appoint a general receiver of a foreign corporation, or to enjoin it from exercising the powers granted by a sister state or foreign government.[23] But a receiver of assets of the corporation within the state will be appointed in a proper case.[24] Resident stockholders of a foreign corporation may maintain an action to protect their interests by enforcing a contract in favor of one foreign corporation against another corporation where such a cause of action could be maintained if the corporation of which they are stockholders was a domestic corporation.[25] It is held in New York that, at the suit of an officer, director, stockholder, or

15. Doherty v. Evening Journal Ass'n, 98 App. Div. 136, 90 N. Y. S. 671.

16. Civ. Code 1895, § 1899, is broad enough to apply to both foreign and domestic corporations. Reeves v. Southern R. Co. 121 Ga. 561, 49 S. E. 674.

17. Where both citation and return described person served merely as agent, a default judgment could not be sustained, as the return must affirmatively show service on "a local agent within the state." National Cereal Co. v. Earnest [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 734. Where the statute permits service on the secretary of state, when no agent has been designated, the sheriff's return, in case of service on such official, must show that no agent has been designated. Court acquires no jurisdiction without such fact appearing, and default judgment may be set aside. Construing St. 1899, c. 94, § 1. Willey v. Benedict Co., 145 Cal. 601, 79 P. 270. A return which does not show such fact is not aided by the certificate of the secretary of state, attached to the summons as returned, that no agent had been designated. Such certificate is no proper part of the record to which the court must look in determining whether a default judgment should be set aside. Id.

18. See 3 C. L. 1465.

19. Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Northwest Thresher Co. [N. D.] 103 N. W. 915.

Note: The weight of authority is said to sustain the rule given in the text. See Huss v. Railway Co., 66 Ala. 472; Lawrence v. Ballou, 50 Cal. 258; King v. National, M. & E. Co., 4 Mont. 1, 1 P. 727; Wall v. Railway Co., 69 Iowa, 498, 29 N. W. 427; Insurance Co. v. Duerson's Ex'r, 28 Grat. [Va.] 630; Turcott v. Railway Co. [Tenn.] 45 S. W. 1067, 70 Am. St. Rep. 661, 40 L. R. A. 768; City v. Railway Co. [Minn.] 48 N. W. 17; Pennsylvania Co. v. Sloan, 1 Ill. App. 364; Abell v. Insurance Co., 18 W. Va. 400. The courts of New York, Wisconsin, and Nevada hold that a foreign corporation is incapable of being present in a state other than that under whose laws it exists, and hence, under all circumstances, a foreign corporation is absent from all other states than that of its domicile. Consequently those courts hold that a foreign corporation comes within that provision of the statute of limitations which excepts absentees from its operation. Olcott v. Railway Co., 20 N. Y. 210, 75 Am. Dec. 393; Rathbun v. Railway Co., 50 N. Y. 656; Larson v. Aultman & Taylor Co. [Wis.] 56 N. W. 915, 39 Am. St. Rep. 893; Insurance Co. v. Fricke [Wis.] 74 N. W. 372, 41 L. R. A. 557; State v. Society [Wis.] 79 N. W. 220; Robinson v. Imperial, etc., Co., 5 Nev. 44.—From opinion in Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. v. Northwest Thresher Co., cited above.

20. See 3 C. L. 1463.

21, 22. Bradbury v. Waukegan & W. Min. & Smelting Co., 113 Ill. App. 600.

23. Acken v. Coughlin, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 200, 92 N. Y. S. 700.

24. Courts of a state wherein a foreign corporation is engaged in business have jurisdiction to appoint a receiver of assets of the corporation, at the instance of a stockholder, to preserve such assets for the benefit of creditors. Reusens v. Manufacturing & Selling Co., 99 App. Div. 214, 90 N. Y. S. 1010. In a suit for a receiver by creditors of a New Jersey corporation, the state of New Jersey could file a claim for a franchise tax. Holshouser Co. v. Gold Hill Copper Co. [N. C.] 50 S. E. 650.

25. Jacobs v. Mexican Sugar Refining Co., creditor of a foreign corporation, the courts of that state have jurisdiction to compel officers or directors of the corporation, over whom jurisdiction has been acquired by the service of process, to account to the corporation for property of the corporation in their hands, or which they have misapplied.[26] The court may, in a proper case, enjoin such officers or directors from disposing of property of the corporation in their hands until final judgment, or may appoint a receiver of the property in the state pending final judgment; but an order granting such injunction or appointing a receiver of such property can only be made when necessary to protect the corporation or its stockholders and creditors against an unlawful disposition of the property of the corporation during the pendency of the action.[27]

Since the claims of domestic creditors are preferred to those of foreign creditors,[28] a foreign receiver of a nonresident corporation cannot defeat the levy of an attachment or garnishment by a domestic creditor on property of the corporation in the state.[29] Thus, where domestic creditors of an insolvent foreign corporation have attached and seized under execution funds and property of the corporation situated in the state, an ancillary receiver will not be appointed to collect the funds and turn them over to the foreign receiver.[30] The courts of one state will not take jurisdiction of a suit by creditors of a foreign corporation to enforce a liability of citizens of the state where suit is brought under a statute of the sister state, which is the corporation's domicile, since the corporation cannot be brought into court, and it, as well as all the stockholders, should be made parties.[31]

FOREIGN JUDGMENTS.[32]

§ 1. Recognition and effect.[33]—The judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction of another state or of a foreign nation[34] is generally held to be conclusive and binding on other courts, and when properly proved, will be recognized as conclusive evidence of the facts adjudicated. As applied to judgments of foreign nations, the rule has some limitations, growing out of the rules of international com-

93 N. Y. S. 776. A suit by a stockholder of a foreign corporation in his own behalf and in behalf of other stockholders similarly situated, to have cancellation of a lease declared null and void is not brought for the benefit of the corporation, and hence the suit is not prohibited by Code Civ. Proc. § 1780, and the courts have jurisdiction. Id., 45 Misc. 180, 91 N. Y. S. 902, afd. 93 N. Y. S. 776.

26, 27. Acken v. Coughlin, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 200, 92 N. Y. S. 700.

28. Choctaw Coal & Min. Co. v. Williams-Echols Dry Goods Co. [Ark.] 87 S. W. 632; Clark v. Supreme Council of Order of Chosen Friends, 146 Cal. 598, 80 P. 931. Claim of New Jersey for franchise tax, through provable in receiver proceedings in North Carolina, will not be preferred to claims of domestic creditors of the New Jersey corporation, even though the New Jersey statutes declare that such tax shall be a preferred claim in case of insolvency. Holshouser Co. v. Gold Hill Copper Co. [N. C.] 50 S. E. 650.

29. Levy or service being before receiver has obtained possession of goods. Choctaw Coal & Min. Co. v. Williams-Echols Dry Goods Co. [Ark.] 87 S. W. 632.

30. Clark v. Supreme Council of Order of Chosen Friends, 146 Cal. 598, 80 P. 931.

31. Suit should be brought in Colorado to enforce liability of citizens of Maine as stockholders in a Colorado corporation, under a statute of that state. Abbott v. Goodall [Me.] 60 A. 1030.

32. See, also, Judgments, 4 C. L. 287; Former Adjudication, 3 C. L. 1476; Divorce, 5 C. L. 1026 (foreign decrees of divorce).

33. See 3 C. L. 1466.

34. In a personal injury action, a certified transcript of proceedings in Mexican courts, and the finding of such courts that the injury was the result of an accident, and that no culpability was attached to any one, was erroneously excluded; the record of such proceedings should have been admitted to show that plaintiff had no cause of action in Mexico where the injury was inflicted. Mexican Cent. R. Co. v. Chantry [C. C. A.] 136 F. 316.

ity.[35] As applied to judgments of sister states, the rule is absolute, under the construction placed upon the full faith and credit clause of the constitution, and the acts of Congress pursuant thereto,[36] the effect of which is said to be that in the courts of other states, the judgment of a court of a state is not impeachable except for fraud or want of jurisdiction,[37] is indisputable proof that it rests upon an unanswerable cause of action,[38] is conclusive evidence that the right to its enforcement is wholly unaffected by any laches or lapse of time which preceded its rendition,[39] and gives a right of action for its enforcement, subject to limitation and other laws of the forum, which regulate, but do not deny, unreasonably restrict,[40] or oppressively burden, the exercise of that right.[41] The same effect as to its finality must be given such judgment as would be given in the state where it was rendered.[42] Hence, to bring a decree or judgment within the rule, it must be conclusive where rendered,[43] and must be final in its nature.[44] A decree for future payments of alimony, which provides equitable remedies in the nature of execution for its enforcement, is not conclusive or final within the meaning of this rule.[45] The law of the state where the judgment is rendered must be shown in order that it may appear what effect is there given it.[46] In some states it is held that, in the absence of such proof, the court will presume that the laws of the state where the judgment was rendered, as to the faith and credit to be given it, are the same as its own;[47] in others it is held that the faith and credit to be given such judgment are to be determined by the rules of the common law, which is presumed to prevail there.[48] Such lack of jurisdiction as will defeat conclusiveness may be due to the lack of power of the court to deal with the subject-matter[49] or with the parties,[50] or to want of due notice to the per-

35. See note, "Conclusiveness of judgment rendered in foreign country," in 3 C. L. 1466.

36. Const. U. S. art. 4, § 1, and Act of Congress, May 26, 1790, 1 St. 122, c. 11; Rev. St. § 905.

37. Lamb v. Powder River Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 434. Court of one state may inquire into jurisdiction of court of another state, and Federal court may inquire into jurisdiction of court of state wherein it is sitting, when its judgment is being considered. Cooper v. Brazelton [C. C. A.] 135 F. 476. Proceedings, judgments and decrees of the courts of another state may be inquired into to determine whether the court had jurisdiction of the subject-matter and parties. Field v. Field, 215 Ill. 496, 74 N. E. 443.

38, 39. Lamb v. Powder River Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 434.

40. Colorado three-months limitation statute applied to actions on foreign judgments held unreasonable and void. Lamb v. Powder River Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 434.

41. Lamb v. Powder River Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 434.

42. Thompson v. Williamson [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 602. Judgment is entitled to same full faith and credit elsewhere as in state where rendered if the court had jurisdiction. Harris v. Balk, 198 U. S. 215, 49 Law. Ed. 1023. Judgment must be given same effect in other states as it has in the state where rendered. Levison v. Blumenthal, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 55. If conclusive where rendered, it is conclusive everywhere. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703. Kansas judgment rendered for defendant on plaintiff's opening statement given full value in Missouri, since in both states, a court has jurisdiction to enter judgment in such manner in a proper case. Tootle v. Buckingham [Mo.] 88 S. W. 619.

43. Page v. Page [Mass.] 75 N. E. 92.

44. Page v. Page [Mass.] 75 N. E. 92. Final order in supplemental proceedings in New York is a final decree or judgment conclusive in New Jersey. Orient Ins. Co. v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 26. Objection that judgment is not final because it provides for subsequent taxation of costs by clerk untenable, especially where record showed taxation of costs entered thereon after date of judgment. Clark v. Barber, 21 App. D. C. 274.

45. Since such a decree is usually subject to modification by the court rendering it. Page v. Page [Mass.] 75 N. E. 92.

46. In order that full faith and credit may be given it. Baltimore & Ohio S. W. R. Co. v. McDonald, 112 Ill. App. 391.

47, 48. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ins. Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703.

49. Since courts of one state cannot by decree affect title to realty in other states, a decree attempting to do so is entitled to no credit in the state where the land is situated. Courtney v. Henry, 114 Ill. App. 635. New York court held to have jurisdiction of debt recoverable in that state by a judgment debtor; hence could appoint receiver in supplementary proceedings. Orient Ins. Co. v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 26.

50. A receiver of a Minnesota corporation cannot enforce in New York a judgment for an assessment against a stockholder of a corporation acquired under Const. art. 10, and Laws Minn. 1899, c. 272, providing for son against whom it is rendered,[51] or to fraud practiced on the court.[52] Proceedings of courts of general jurisdiction are presumptively regular and valid, and jurisdiction of such a court is presumed where no defect appears in the record,[53] and judgments against foreign corporations are no exception to this rule,[54] though it is said enforcement of double liability of stockholders, when the stockholder was never a resident of Minnesota and did not appear in the proceedings in which the receiver was appointed and judgment for the assessment given. Converse v. Stewart,94 N. Y. S. 310. Court of Maryland held to have had jurisdiction of a garnishee by personal service on him while temporarily in the state; hence its judgment in the garnishment proceedings was entitled to full faith and credit in North Carolina, when pleaded in bar in an action on the debt in the courts of that state. Harris v. Balk, 198 U. S. 215, 49 Law. Ed. 1023. When Utah corporation "appeared" within the meaning of Rev. St. Utah, 1898, § 3334, and similar Illinois statute, and submitted to jurisdiction of Illinois court by pleading that it was sued in a wrong name, without objecting to the jurisdiction, it could not thereafter attack the Illinois judgment collaterally in a suit in Utah. Richardson & Boynton Co. v. Utah Stove & Hardware Co., 28 Utah, 85, 77 P. 1. Where in action on North Carolina judgments against a nonresident, insurance company, the judgment roll fully showed jurisdictional facts, including service of summons on insurance commissioner according to the statutes recited in the judgment roll, evidence of an attempted revocation of the authority of the commissioner could not show want of jurisdiction, since such revocation could not be made. Lambert v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 1059.

51. A judgment rendered against a person without due notice to him is not entitled to credit and will not be enforced elsewhere. Where an apparently final judgment of dismissal was, without notice to defendant, stricken, and a judgment for plaintiff entered, such judgment was not enforceable in another jurisdiction. Karrick v. Wetmore, 25 App. D. C. 415. Notice of proceeding to an agent held sufficient. Orient Ins. Co. v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 26. Nebraska court, having jurisdiction of subject-matter and parties in foreclosure action, had jurisdiction, under the law of that state, to enter a deficiency judgment after the return of the sale was made, though the defendant had then removed from the state, no notice of the entry of such judgment being by law required. Blumle v. Kramer, 14 Okl. 366, 79 P. 215.

52. Where party obtaining divorce practiced fraud on Nebraska court, its decree was held void and not binding on Illinois court. Field v. Field, 215 Ill. 496, 74 N. E. 443. Facts constituting fraud held not to be alleged in answer in action on judgment, and no evidence of fraud in the record. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Rimerman [Iowa] 104 N. W. 279. Where, in a Nebraska suit, plaintiff served notice that his deposition would be taken in Ohio, and defendant went to Ohio and while there was served with a writ in a suit by plaintiff in Ohio, jurisdiction was not acquired in Ohio by fraud; hence Nebraska court is bound to recognize Ohio judgment, and refusing to do so on the ground that the fraud alleged by defendant, in an action thereon in Nebraska, is an equitable defense which would be good in Ohio, is a violation of the constitution. Jaster v. Currie, 198 U. S. 144, 49 Law. Ed. 988.

53. If want of jurisdiction of the subject-matter or parties does not appear from the transcript of the proceedings, the burden of proving it is on the person attacking the judgment. Want of jurisdiction not shown, where transcript showed judgment by a court of record, having a judge and clerk, and no other evidence was produced. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n. v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703. A decree, if in the proper form, and in accordance with the statutes of the state where rendered, imports absolute verity and want of jurisdiction must be made to appear. Wisconsin court held to have had jurisdiction of parties in divorce suit under the statutes; hence decree of divorce conclusive on Minnesota court. McHenry v. Bracken, 93 Minn. 510, 101 N. W. 960. Montana foreclosure decree, rendered upon service by publication presumed to be in accordance with statutes of that state. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556. Even though jurisdictional facts are not shown in the judgment roll, this presumption extends to due service of process; return of service on foreign corporation by leaving summons with insurance commissioner held good. Johnston v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 1052. Recitals in transcript of justice's judgment held to show justice had jurisdiction. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Rimerman [Iowa] 104 N. W. 279. Recitals of jurisdictional facts in final order prima facie evidence of the existence of those facts. Orient Ins. Co. v. Rudolph [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 26. As that agent of corporation served was proper person to accept service. Id. Necessary jurisdictional facts being recited in order appointing receiver in supplementary proceeding in New York, the order was conclusive proof of the regularity and validity of the order. Id. Where it appeared that court had jurisdiction of subject-matter, and of defendant, by its general appearance, validity of service was immaterial; hence the admission of evidence outside the record, though unnecessary, was harmless, since the judgment could not be collaterally attacked. Johnston v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 1062. Where judgment roll showed that court, on preliminary motion to set aside service and dismiss, found that service was duly made on an authorized agent of a foreign corporation, and that he forwarded the summons served on him, and where final judgment recites that summons was duly served on defendant, the judgment is valid and must receive full faith and credit. Johnston v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 1048.

54. Judgment roll need not show that in the Federal courts that somewhere in the record it must appear that the corporation was engaged in business in the state or appeared in the action.[55] The record, however, is not conclusive, and may be contradicted as to facts necessary to give the court jurisdiction.[56] There is no such favorable presumption if want of jurisdiction appears on the face of the record, and in such case the judgment is subject to collateral attack.[57] It will not be presumed that a judgment of a court of limited jurisdiction is valid [58] and facts essential to its jurisdiction must appear affirmatively on the face of the proceedings.[59] Facts disprobative of jurisdiction may be proved by parol.[60]

A court of one state is not bound by an adjudication of a court of last resort of another state when the highest court of its own state has previously adjudicated the identical issue between the same parties and reached a decision contrary to that of the foreign court.[61]

§ 2. Matters adjudicated and concluded by foreign judgment.[62]—If the court foreign corporation was doing business in the state and that service of summons on it was in the statutory mode. Johnston v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 1052. It is not necessary to include in judgment roll statutes of foreign state which must be complied with in making service on agent of foreign corporation. Id. Allegation of complaint, as shown by record, that corporation was doing business in the state, is sufficient to show jurisdiction could be obtained over it in the state, compliance with law being presumed. Id. Hence it may also be presumed that corporation authorized service on insurance commissioner, as provided by statute, and that such service gave the court jurisdiction. Id.

55. Johnston v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 93 N. Y. S. 1052.

56. If it be shown that facts do not exist giving jurisdiction of parties or subject-matter, the judgment will be held a nullity, even though necessary facts are recited. Cooper v. Brazelton [C. C. A.] 135 F. 476. It may be shown that an entry of appearance by an attorney was unauthorized. Evidence insufficient to show that attorney had authority or that his acts had been ratified. Prichard v. Sigafus, 93 N. Y. S. 152.

57. Want of jurisdiction of the parties. McHenry v. Bracken, 93 Minn. 510, 101 N. W. 960. Transcript of Ohio judgment held not to show jurisdiction of foreign corporation, service having been made on one not authorized by law to receive it. Spiker v. American Relief Soc. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 143, 103 N. W. 611.

58. Erwin v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 50 S. E. 778.

59. To make a judgment of an inferior North Carolina court in garnishee proceedings binding on the parties in an action in South Carolina, it must be shown that the court had jurisdiction of the debt and that the garnishee, a foreign corporation, had submitted itself to the courts of the state; that it was doing business therein, or was incorporated therein. Erwin v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 50 S. E. 778.

60. Want of jurisdiction of the person. Olson v. Mackolite Fire Proofing Co., 116 Ill. App. 573.

61. A garnishee obtained in Missouri a judgment canceling his contract and declaring he was not indebted to plaintiff's debtor, and thereafter such debtor, in a suit in New Jersey, obtained a judgment that the garnishee was liable on an implied contract for services. In the New Jersey suit the Missouri judgment was successfully pleaded against a count on the contract, but was not pleaded as against the count on an implied contract. Held, in a garnishment proceeding in Missouri, pending when the New Jersey decree was rendered, such decree would not be enforced, but the Missouri decree would be followed. Grimm v. Barrington [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 357. Held, further, that the garnishee was not bound to plead in New Jersey the pending garnishment suit in Missouri, but was entitled to rely on the Missouri adjudication that he was not indebted to the plaintiff's debtor. Id.

Note: "This case seems questionable. The Missouri judgment was an affirmative defense similar to res adjudicata, and therefore, not having been pleaded to the second count in the New Jersey suit, the judgment on that count was correct. And no defense which with diligence might have been made in the suit can be an answer to an action elsewhere on the judgment. Snow v. Mitchell, 37 Kan. 636. But granting that the New Jersey court erred, by the general rule, full credit must be given the judgment of a sister state, except when rendered by a court without jurisdiction, or when a collateral attack would be valid in that state. See Barras v. Bidwell, 3 Woods [U. S.] 5. Mere irregularity such as affords ground for direct appeal is no defense. Milne v. Van Buskirk, 9 Iowa, 558. By the better view, the error here, if any, would appear to have been ground rather for appeal than for collateral attack, and no appeal having been taken, Missouri was bound to give credit to the judgment. Ex parte Boenninghausen, 91 Mo. 301; Buckmaster v. Carlin, 4 Ill. 104."—18 Harv. L. R. 544.

62. See 3 C. L. 1467; also Former Adjudication, 3 C. L. 1476.

NOTE: The effect as res judicata or as estoppel of a judgment of a court of another state is the same as that of a domestic judgment. Memphis R. R. Co. v. Grayson, 88 Ala. 572, 7 So. 122, 16 Am. St. Rep. 69; West Felicia R. Co. v. Thornton, 12 La. Ann. 736, 68 Am. Dec. 778; Mackee v. Cairnes, 2 Mart.

had jurisdiction, its judgment is conclusive, as between the parties,[63] on all questions of law and fact decided by it,[64] and as to all defenses to the cause of action which were or might have been made.[65] Alleged errors of the court will not be examined in an action on the judgment.[66] The character of the original cause of action may, however, be inquired into, and if it was one which could not have been maintained in the state in which suit on the judgment is brought, no recovery on such judgment can be had.[67]

[La. N. S.] 601; Mutual Nat. Bank v. Moore, 50 La. Ann. 1332, 24 So. 304; Whiting v. Burger, 78 Me. 287, 4 A. 694; Wernag v. Pawling, 5 Gill & J. [Md.] 500, 25 Am. Dec. 317; Taylor v. Bryden, 8 Johns [N. Y.] 173; Spencer v. Brockway, 1 Ohio, 259, 13 Am. Dec. 615; Hall v. Mackay, 78 Tex. 248, 14 S. W. 615; Sayre v. Harpold, 33 W. Va. 557, 11 S. E. 17. Whatever might have been pleaded as a defense in the original action cannot be interposed as a defense to an action on the judgment. Drake v. Granger, 22 Fla. 348; Powell v. Davis, 60 Ga. 70; Snow v. Mitchell, 37 Kan. 636, 639, 15 P. 737; West, etc., R. Co. v. Thornton, 12 La. Ann. 736, 68 Am. Dec. 778; Harryman v. Roberts, 52 Md. 64; Green v. Sanborn, 150 Mass. 454, 23 N. E. 224; Greene v. Republic F. I. Co., 84 N. Y. 572; Goodrich v. Jenkins, 6 Ohio, 43; Norwood v. Cobb, 20 Tex. 588; Hall v. Mackay, 78 Tex. 248. Hence no plea or evidence can be permitted which seeks to relitigate the merits of the original controversy. Sammis v. Wightman, 31 Fla. 10, 12 So. 526; Powell v. Davis, 60 Ga. 70; McMahon v. Eagle L. Ass'n, 169 Mass. 539, 48 N. E. 339, 61 Am. St. Rep. 306; Peet v. Hatcher, 112 Ala. 514, 21 So. 711, 57 Am. St. Rep. 45; Vaught v. Meador, 99 Va. 569, 39 S. E. 225, 86 Am. St. Rep. 908.—From note, "Judgments of the Courts of Other States," 103 Am. St. Rep. 304.

63. Defense that judgment was based on gambling transaction open to grantees of judgment debtor. Thompson v. Williamson [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 602.

64. Held res judicata: Record of foreclosure decree having been admitted in evidence, it was conclusive of the fact of foreclosure, and that fact was no longer in issue. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556. Where in a proceeding for maintenance, in Massachusetts, the validity of the marriage was placed in issue, the decree of the court denying relief, on the ground that there was no marriage, was conclusive on that issue, in an action subsequently brought in New York by the wife to set aside a judgment obtained by the husband annulling their marriage. Everett v. Everett, 180 N. Y. 452, 73 N. E. 231. Under Illinois Laws 1877, p. 115, a decree for separate maintenance of the wife can be granted only where the wife is living separate from the husband without her fault; hence an Illinois decree for separate maintenance is conclusive in a suit by the husband for divorce in California on the issue whether her separation was a willful desertion. Harding v. Harding, 198 U. S. 317, 49 Law. Ed. 1066. The fact that, after considerable evidence had been taken in the Illinois action, the husband filed a stipulation consenting to a decree, did not render it any the less res judicata, since a finding that the separation of the wife was without her fault, was embodied in the decree, and such finding was necessary before a decree could be given for her. Id. Such finding was also affirmed when the decree of the Illinois court was affirmed by the appellate and supreme courts of that state. Id.

Held not res judicata: Title of cattle held not to have been adjudicated by Kansas court in replevin action, where judgment was rendered for defendant on plaintiff's opening statement. Tootle v. Buckingham [Mo.] 88 S. W. 619. Where, in Pennsylvania suit, judgment was for defendants for costs, and plaintiff not having appeared, there was no trial on the merits, such judgment was not binding in trial on merits in New York. Levison v. Blumenthal, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 55. When an order of sale by a bankruptcy court directed the assignee to sell simply "the interest of such bankrupt and of said assignee," an order refusing to set aside the sale for inadequacy of price and want of notice is not an adjudication of the bankrupt's interest, and a refusal to so treat it does not deny full faith and credit to the order of the bankruptcy court. Cramer v. Wilson, 195 U. S. 408, 49 Law. Ed. 256.

65. Leathe v. Thomas, 109 Ill. App. 434. A judgment duly proven cannot be impeached by showing that no indebtedness existed on which a judgment could properly be rendered. Illinois justice's judgment could not be impeached by defendant's testimony to that effect. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Rimerman [Iowa] 104 N. W. 279. Defense that judgment was founded on gambling transaction not available in suit thereon in New Jersey, in the absence of proof that it could have been avoided on that ground in New York. Thompson v. Williamson [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 602. That deficiency judgment by Nebraska court was barred by limitations of that state cannot be raised in suit on judgment in Oklahoma. Blumle v. Kramer, 14 Okl. 366, 79 P. 215.

66. Errors of Nebraska court, not involving jurisdiction, cannot be raised in suit on its deficiency judgment in Oklahoma. Blumle v. Kramer, 14 Okl. 366, 79 P. 215. Judgment of one state cannot be retried on the merits in an action thereon in another, if the court had jurisdiction; even if erroneous, decision is binding until reversed. Levison v. Blumenthal, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 55. Order granting administration in foreign jurisdiction cannot be collaterally attacked on ground that administrator's decedent was not a resident of the jurisdiction. Consaul v. Cummings, 24 App. D. C. 36.

67. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 512. In an action on a judgment obtained in another state by a foreign corporation, it may be shown by the defendant that the cause of action merged in such judgment arose out

§ 3. Actions on foreign judgments.[68]—Since execution will not issue on a foreign judgment, an action thereon is usually necessary to enforce it.[69] In such action, the laws of the forum relating to remedies control.[70] The complaint should show that the court rendering the judgment had jurisdiction,[71] and should show the value of the judgment.[72] It must be made to appear that the judgment sued on was in fact rendered against the defendant.[73] In the absence of contrary proof, a foreign judgment will be presumed to bear interest at the local rate.[74]

Since the full faith and credit clause of the constitution establishes a rule of evidence rather than of jurisdiction,[75] it is not violated by a statute which precludes an action on a foreign judgment by one foreign corporation against another because such action is not upon a cause of action which arose in the state.[76] of business done in the state, and that the corporation has not complied with statutory regulations of the state. Id.

68. See 3 C. L. 1467.

69. NOTE. Mode of enforcing judgment: The granting to a judgment of each state the same faith and credit in every other state that it has in the state where rendered does not carry the right to enforce it by execution in any other state. The cause of action on which it is founded is by it established, and the matters litigated and determined are conclusively settled, but the enforcement in another state must generally be by an action in its courts to recover another judgment upon which execution may be there issued. While there may be other remedies, they must be such as are authorized by the law of the forum, and in no event can such remedy be by way of process issued in either state, nor by any proceeding taken in the courts of the state where the judgment was rendered. Nations v. Johnson, 24 How. [U. S.] 195, 16 Law. Ed. 218; Carter v. Bennett, 6 Fla. 214; Turley v. Dreyfus, 35 La. Ann. 510; Lamberton v. Grant, 94 Me. 508, 80 Am. St. Rep. 415, 48 A. 127; Weaver v. Cressman, 21 Neb. 675, 33 N. W. 478; Elizabethtown S. I. v. Gerber, 34 N. J. Eq. 130; Bullock v. Bullock, 52 N. J. Eq. 561, 30 A. 676, 46 Am. St. Rep. 528, 27 L. R. A. 213; Bennett v. Bennett, 63 N. J. Eq. 306, 49 A. 501; McLure v. Benceni, 2 Ired. Eq. [N. C.] 513, 40 Am. Dec. 437.—From note, "Judgments of the Courts of Other States," 103 Am. St. Rep. 304.

70. The right of each state to legislate upon the remedy is not restricted by the Federal Constitution. Leathe v. Thomas, 109 Ill. App. 434.

Local limitation statute governs. Leathe v. Thomas, 109 Ill. App. 434. But Colorado three months' statute held unreasonable and void. Lamb v. Powder River Live Stock Co. [C. C. A.] 132 F. 434. Under the twelve-year limitation statute of Maryland, and N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 390a, an action in New York on a Maryland judgment, based on a cause of action accruing and thereafter belonging to a resident of Maryland, must be brought within twelve years after the original cause of action accrued in Maryland. Chesapeake Coal Co. v. Mengis, 102 App. Div. 15, 92 N. Y. S. 1003.

71. In an action on an English judgment, a complaint alleging that "said Queen's Bench Division of said High Court of Justice had jurisdiction of the subject-matter of said action and of the parties thereto" and that judgment "was duly given, made and entered in and by" said court, sufficiently alleges jurisdiction of the English court; and findings that the allegations of the complaint are true are sufficient to show jurisdiction. Murphy v. Murphy, 145 Cal. 482, 78 P. 1053.

72. In an action on an English judgment, the value of the judgment is sufficiently alleged by an averment that on the date of the judgment its value was $7,055 in lawful money of the United States. Murphy v. Murphy, 145 Cal. 482, 78 P. 1053.

73. Evidence insufficient to show whether corporation or firm, or if a firm, who composed the firm. Whitman v. Hitt [Ark.] 87 S. W. 1032.

74. English judgment presumed to bear interest at seven per cent. in California. Murphy v. Murphy, 145 Cal. 482, 78 P. 1053. Interest was properly computed from the figures of the complaint when the findings were that the allegations of the complaint were true. Id.

75. Anglo-American Provision Co. v. Davis Provision Co., 191 U. S. 373, 48 Law. Ed. 225. See, also, note in 3 C. L. 1466, n. 46.

76. N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 1780, as construed by New York courts, is constitutional. Anglo-American Provision Co. v. Davis Provision Co., 191 U. S. 373, 48 Law. Ed. 225.

NOTE. When actions on foreign judgments may be maintained: An action may be maintained in each state on a judgment or decree rendered in another whenever it creates a personal obligation for the payment of money. Dow v. Blake, 148 Ill. 76, 35 N. E. 761, 39 Am. St. Rep. 156; Bullock v. Bullock, 57 N. J. Law, 508, 31 A. 1024. Nor is it within the power of a state to deprive a judgment creditor of his right to resort to its courts for the purpose of maintaining an action on his judgment. This has been attempted by statutes declaring that an action shall not be brought in a state against a resident thereof on a judgment recovered in another state on a cause of action barred by the statute of limitations of the former state when the action on the judgment was commenced. Such statutes were pronounced unconstitutional. Christmas v. Russell, 5 Wall. [U. S.] 290, 18 Law. Ed. 475; Keyser v. Lowell [C. C. A.] 117 F. 400; Dodge v. Coffin, 15 Kan. 283. This was because the judgment creditors were of a class having a right to resort to the courts of the state where they brought suit on their judgment, and, having such right, to deny them relief was to deny to their judg-

Proof of foreign judgments.[77]—Foreign judgments are provable by transcripts, if properly authenticated.[78] The sufficiency of the authentication is for the trial court,[79] and is to be determined by reference to the law of the forum.[80] An authentication of the judgment of a sister state in accordance with the provisions of the act of Congress is not the only method of proving such judgment in a suit thereon;[81] but proof may be made by a witness who has compared the copy offered in evidence with the original record entry thereof, or who has examined the copy while another person read the original.[82]

FOREIGN LAWS, see latest topical index.

FORESTRY AND TIMBER.

§ 1. Protection and regulation of forests and trees.[83]—In New York the commission of the forest preserve is given the care, control, and supervision of the forest preserve and has the actual possession and occupancy thereof.[84] A fish and game protector and forester in that state has no authority to sell as agent for the state, wood cut from the forest preserve, and a buyer from him acquires no title even as against one taking the wood without right.[85]

Statutes in some states provide a penalty for willfully and knowingly, and without the consent of the owner, cutting the trees of another.[86] In an action to recover the same, the burden of establishing want of consent is on the plaintiff.[87]

In Arkansas anyone desiring to cut any timber for certain specified purposes is required to have the land on which the same is situated surveyed by the county surveyor, and its metes and bounds marked and plainly established, unless the same ment the faith and credit to which it was entitled in the state where rendered. If, however, a judgment creditor has no absolute right to resort to the courts of a state, it may by statute deny him the right to sue there on a judgment recovered in another state. Hence, a statute providing that an action against a foreign corporation may not be maintained by another foreign corporation or by a non-resident, except when the cause of action arose within the state, is not unconstitutional, though applicable to a judgment pronounced against a foreign corporation in another state. Anglo-American P. Co. v. Davis Provision Co., 191 U. S. 376, 48 Law. Ed. 228; Id., 169 N. Y. 506, 62 N. E. 587, 88 Am. St. Rep. 608. Doubtless, however, general laws prescribing the time within which causes may be enforced within a state may apply to judgments rendered in another state, provided always that a reasonable time is left to creditors within which to seek remedies on their judgments. Fields v. Mundy's Estate, 106 Wis. 383, 82 N. W. 343, 80 Am. St. Rep. 39.—From note, "Judgments of Courts of Other States," 103 Am. St. Rep. 304.

77. See, also, Evidence, 5 C. L. 1301.

78. Transcript admissible though signatures of judge and clerk in certificates attached thereto contained only initials of their Christian names. Old Wayne Mut. Life Ass'n v. McDonough [Ind.] 73 N. E. 703.

79. Clark v. Eltinge [Wash.] 80 P. 556.

80. Authentication of transcript of Illinois justice's judgment held sufficient under Code, § 464. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Rimerman [Iowa] 104 N. W. 279.

81. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co. v. Beilharz [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 512.

82. Copy so proved is admissible as an "examined copy" and is prima facie proof of judgment. St. Louis Expanded Metal Fireproofing Co. v. Beilharz [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 512.

83. See 3 C. L. 1468.

84. Laws 1900, c. 20, § 220, p. 62. People v. Kelsey, 180 N. Y. 24, 72 N. E. 524. Is an occupant within the meaning of Laws 1896, c. 908, § 134, p. 842, requiring that, where land is sold for taxes, notice to redeem shall be given to the occupant before a deed is given, and where land is deeded to the state as part of the preserve subject to all previous taxes and tax sales, a purchaser at such a tax sale must serve such notice on the commission. Id.

85. No statutory authority, and no such authority will be presumed. Pashley v. Bennett, 95 N. Y. S. 384.

86. Code 1896, § 4137. Davis v. Arnold [Ala.] 39 So. 141.

87. Davis v. Arnold [Ala.] 39 So. 141. Evidence held sufficient to make the question of consent one for the jury. Id.

has already been surveyed and the boundaries thereof ascertained and known.[88] The owner cannot justify a failure to cause an official survey to be made by showing a previous unofficial one, unless the same is proved to be correct, nor unless the true boundaries are ascertained and known.[89] He is not, however, guilty of a violation of the act where he procures an unofficial survey, which is incorrect in that it is less favorable to him than a subsequent official one, and where he cuts no trees outside of the true boundaries.[90]

§ 2. Logs and lumbering; booms and flotage.[91]—Lumber operations on legally navigable streams involve public and private rights in such streams which are the subject of a separate article.[92] Such being in some degree a public occupation is subject to regulation.[93] Thus statutes in some states require copies of log marks to be filed with the surveyor general and, when so recorded, make them prima facie evidence of ownership of the logs bearing them.[94]

Growing timber is a part of the realty,[95] and deeds and contracts concerning it are governed by the laws applicable to that kind of property.[96] Title thereto may be transferred to and held by one not the owner of the land;[97] but contracts conveying it must be executed with the same formalities as are required in the conveyance of real estate.[98] An attempted parol conveyance confers on the grantees a mere license to enter upon the premises and cut and remove the growth,[99] which is revocable at any time,[1] and is revoked at the death of the grantor.[2] Acts done upon the land by the licensee after revocation, and without other lawful authority, render him liable as a trespasser.[3] The authority of an agent to grant such a license need not be in writing.[4]

88. Kirby's Dig. § 1988. Sawyer & A. Lumber Co. v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 431.

89, 99. Sawyer & Austin Lumber Co. v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 431.

91. See 3 C. L. 1468.

92, 93. See Navigable Waters, 4 C. L. 757.

94. Held proper to allow witness to testify as to marks on logs converted and as to his knowdedge of marks used by certain parties for the purpose of identifying them, without proof that such marks were recorded in accordance with the laws of Minnesota, in which state they were cut. St. Paul Boom Co. v. Kemp [Wis.] 103 N. W. 259.

95. See Emblements and Natural Products, 5 C. L. 1096. Neils Lumber Co. v. Hines, 93 Minn. 505, 101 N. W. 959; Hodsdon v. Kennett [N. H.] 60 A. 686; Hawkins v. Goldsboro Lumber Co. [N. C.] 51 S. E. 852; Van Doren v. Fenton [Wis.] 103 N. W. 228. Civ. Code, §§ 658, 660. Peterson v. Gibbs [Cal.] 81 P. 121. One who, for a valuable consideration, purchases standing timber from the owner of the land, acquires a vested interest in such land, provided the transfer is evidenced by a duly executed instrument, and, as against the vendor, is authorized to cut and remove the timber within the time limited by the contract for so doing. Neils Lumber Co. v. Hines, 93 Minn. 505, 101 N. W. 959. Contract for sale of standing trees is contract for sale of interest in land. De Camp v. Wallace, 45 Misc. 436, 92 N. Y. S. 746; Brodack v. Morsbach [Wash.] 80 P. 275. Title to the land being in defendant, and the timber being a part of it, the burden of proving that he had parted with title to the timber and that plaintiff owned it was on him. Watson v. Gross [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 104.

96. Hawkins v. Goldsboro Lumber Co. [N. C.] 51 S. E. 852.

97. Peterson v. Gibbs [Cal.] 81 P. 121.

98. Oral contract to sell it is void as a contract. Antrim Iron Co. v. Anderson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 314, 104 N. W. 319. Cannot be conveyed by parol. Hodsdon v. Kennett [N. H.] 60 A. 686. Failure to allege that contract was in writing cannot be taken advantage of by demurrer, silence raising no presumption that it was in parol. Anderson v. Hilton & Dodge Lumber Co., 121 Ga. 688, 49 S. E. 725. Receipt reciting parties to the contract, the price to be paid, and a description of the land, and signed by the owner, held a sufficient memorandum to constitute a valid contract for sale of timber within the statute of frauds (Pub. St. 1901, c. 215, § 1), though not stating the time within which timber must be cut and removed, where there was no agreement in that regard. Kidder v. Flanders [N. H.] 61 A. 675.

99. Hodsdon v. Kennett [N. H.] 60 A. 686. Though contract is void as a contract, it is good as a license, and timber cut before its revocation belongs to grantee. Antrim Iron Co. v. Anderson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 314, 104 N. W. 319.

1, 2. Hodsdon v. Kennett [N. H.] 66 A. 686.

3. Defendants liable as trespassers for clearing lot after death of one of the grantors and notification by the other not to cut wood and timber. Hodsdon v. Kennett [N. H.] 60 A. 686.

4. Evidence held to show that agent had authority. Antrim Iron Co. v. Anderson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 314, 104 N. W. 319.

Conveyances of standing timber are within the recording acts, and the usual rules in regard to the effect of recording them apply.[5] There can be no warranty of title to timber by parol,[6] nor is there an implied warranty of title on a parol purchase thereof.[7] A decree quieting title to land should protect the rights of one to whom the growing timber thereon has been conveyed by reserving and excepting such timber from its operation.[8]

One purchasing land with full knowledge of a previous sale of the timber thereon acquires no interest in the timber except a right to have it revert to him in case it is not removed under the contract of sale.[9] A promise by the grantor to secure a release and satisfaction of the timber contract cannot avail him as against the holders thereof.[10]

Contracts for the sale of growing timber showing an intent to separate it from the soil immediately, or within a reasonable time, are generally held to pass title to the timber upon the severance thereof and not before.[11] When, however, the intent is to buy growing trees and to allow them to remain upon the land and take its benefit by future growth, it is a sale of an interest in the land, passing title at once.[12] The general rule that the seller is deemed to have parted with title to the property when he permits the buyer to change its character by expending money and labor upon it applies.[13] Severance of the timber changes its character from realty to personalty, and the purchaser thereby takes actual manual control and possession of it.[14]

There is an apparent conflict of authority as to whether one purchasing growing timber under a contract limiting the time within which it must be removed loses title to all timber not removed within that time. It would seem, however, that the cases might be reconciled by regarding the question as one of intention to be determined from the terms of the contract itself.[15] A right of forfeiture for failure to re-

5. See Notice and Record of Title, 4 C. L. 829. De Camp v. Wallace, 45 Misc. 436, 92 N. Y. S. 746. Option held to have ripened into valid contract when accepted, and hence it was entitled to be recorded and record was constructive notice to subsequent purchasers. Id. Evidence held to also show actual notice. Id. One purchasing land after the execution by the owner of an instrument conveying the timber thereon to a third person, which is not recorded, and who enters into possession prior to the cutting of the timber without actual or constructive notice of the sale, acquires a paramount interest in the timber. Neils Lumber Co. v. Hines, 93 Minn. 505, 101 N. W. 959.

6. Van Doren v. Fenton [Wis.] 103 N. W. 228.

7. Particularly when timber was not in the possession of the vendor. Rule in regard to implied warranties in sales of personalty not applicable. Van Doren v. Fenton [Wis.] 103 N. W. 228.

8. Peterson v. Gibbs [Cal.] 81 P. 121. In suit to quiet title, where it appeared that plaintiff owned land and defendant the timber, held error to grant a nonsuit, but plaintiff's interest should have been declared by the court. Id. See, also, Quieting Title, 4 C. L. 1167.

9. Brodack v. Morsbach [Wash.] 80 P. 275. His subsequent possession of the land as against purchasers of timber is not under "claim and color of title, made in good faith," as required by 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5503, in order to confer title by adverse possession in seven years. Id. See. also, Chemical Charcoal Co. v. Smith [Miss.] 38 So. 232.

10. Brodack v. Morsbach [Wash.] 80 P. 275.

11. Buskirk Bros. v. Peck [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 432. See, also, Sales, 4 C. L. 1318.

12. Buskirk Bros. v. Peck [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 432.

13. Buskirk Bros. v. Peck [Mo. Va.] 50 S. E. 432. Contract held to show an intention that title to timber should vest in vendee as cut down, subject to a lien thereon in favor of the vendor for the purchase money, reserved by a provision prohibiting removal before payment. Id.

14. Will not be presumed that he will go to expense of cutting and hauling it without acquiring at least an equitable interest therein. Buskirk Bros. v. Peck [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 432.

15. In California it is held that a sale of standing trees to be removed may be an absolute sale, the agreement to remove within a specified or reasonable time being merely a covenant, in which case the timber remains the property of the purchaser, though not removed within such time, the question in each case being one of intention. Peterson v. Gibbs [Cal.] 81 P. 121. Instrument whereby owners of land "grant, bargain, sell, and convey" all the timber on certain land, and give the vendees ten years in which to remove it, each party to pay half the taxes on the land during that period, and, in case it is not removed within that time, the vendees to pay a yearly rental for the privilege of removing it thereafter, held to constitute absolute sale of timber, whether removed in ten years or not, only effect of failure to remove it being to render vendees liable for rent. Id. Evidence that vendors entered into contract relying on statements of vendees that they expected to commence work within three years, held not to affect contract or assist in its construction, it being unambiguous. Id.

In Georgia an instrument executed in the form of a deed conveying all the timber on a certain lot suitable to be manufactured into cross-ties, and providing that the contract shall expire after a certain time, does not pass to the purchaser the absolute title to the timber, but only gives him a license to use it for the purpose stated during the period specified. Johnson v. Truitt [Ga.] 50 S. E. 135. In the absence of a forfeiture clause in the contract, the purchaser does not forfeit his right to the timber or to ties manufactured therefrom by failure to remove it during the specified time. Id. He is, however, liable for any damages occasioned by his wrongful act in leaving it on the seller's land, and in trespass for entering on the land after the expiration of such time. Id. A provision that all the "timber" left on the land after the expiration of such time shall revert to the grantor will not be construed to include cross-ties manufactured from the timber, the word being used in other parts of the contract to mean growing trees and logs, and title to ties manufactured during such time passed to grantee absolutely. Id. General verdict for defendant in action to enjoin him from cutting timber held equivalent to finding that plaintiff had not removed the timber within a reasonable time, and therefore that all the trees, whether growing or lying on the ground, had reverted to the grantor, hence charge as to plaintiff's right to dead timber held harmless, if erroneous. Allison v. Wall, 121 Ga. 822, 49 S. E. 831.

Illinois: A provision requiring the removal of a certain amount of timber each year and in a specified order is to be treated as a covenant and not as a condition on which to base a forfeiture, and though the purchaser is liable in damages for its breach, he still owns the timber, and his property right therein cannot be forfeited or reclaimed by the seller, within the period fixed by the contract for the removal of all the timber. Where contract provides that at least eighty acres is to be removed each year and that the whole is to be taken off within five years, cannot be forfeited within five years. Walker v. Johnson, 116 Ill. App. 145. Held that, under the evidence, plaintiff, who purchased from the grantee, was chargeable with notice of the time limit in the original contract. Id.

Kentucky: A sale of the timber on a certain tract of land to be removed in a given length of time is only a sale of so much timber as is removed within that time. Under contract of sale providing that it is agreed that the vendee "is to have eighteen months from this date for the purpose of cutting, hauling, and removing" it. Jackson v. Hardin [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1119. The purchaser's right to timber ceases on the expiration of the time limited, and its removal by a subsequent purchaser of the land is no invasion of his rights. Instruction erroneous. Chestnut v. Green [Ky.] 86 S. W. 1122.

In Minnesota, one acquiring the right to "cut and remove" standing timber until a specified date does not forfeit the right to timber cut before such date by failing to remove it until after such date, nor does the title thereto revert to and become reinvested in the land owner under such circumstances, but the extent of the latter's remedy is a right to damages for trespass on, and occupation of the land after the expiration of the limitation. No implied condition that title shall revert if independent duty of removal is not strictly performed. Alexander v. Bauer [Minn.] 102 N. W. 387. Title to logs cut after the expiration of the time limited is, however, in the landowner, and he may recover the same. Id.

New York: Where contract provided that purchaser should draw all the timber off the lot on or before a specified date, "after which date he has no further right on said premises or in any timber left thereon," held, that all timber, logs or bark cut or uncut, remaining on the premises after such date, became the absolute property of the seller, and buyer ceased to have any further interest therein. McNeil v. Hall, 94 N. Y. S. 920. Seller was not required, in order to protect his rights, to forbid buyer to move his saw mill on the land after such date, until fully advised of such rights. Id.

North Carolina: A deed selling and conveying the timber of a certain size on a certain tract then standing or growing or which may be standing on such land during the period of fifteen years from and after the time when the grantees shall begin to cut and remove it, conveys a present estate of absolute ownership in the timber, defeasible as to all timber not removed within the time required by the terms of the deed. Hawkins v. Goldsboro Lumber Co. [N. C.] 51 S. E. 852.

Tennessee: A deed of land subject to a previous contract, whereby a third person was given the right to cut and remove trees thereon at any time within five years and under which he acquired no right to timber not removed within that time, passes to the grantee the title to all standing trees subject to be defeated only if they, or any of them, shall be cut and removed before the expiration of the time limit. Mengal Box Co. v. Moore [Tenn.] 87 S. W. 415. Under contract whereby owner of land gave and granted "permission to enter upon and cut and fell any and all cottonwood trees now standing and growing" upon a certain tract, "with the privilege of cutting and removing said cottonwood timber for a term of five years," with the exception that the grantee was to release all claim on at least two hundred acres each year, so that the same might be released or cleared, the title to all other kinds of timber to be retained by the grantor, the grantee to have the right of ingress and egress for his said term, "after which he is to have no right to cut any timber on said land," and to own all said timber "that he may cut and remove within said five years," and whereby the grantor warrants his title and agrees not move timber within the time limited may be waived,[16] and the grantor cannot take advantage of a failure caused by his own acts.[17] Where one having a right to cut and remove trees for a specified period, and who has title only to those removed within that time, cuts trees both before and after a conveyance of the land and mingles and confuses the logs and fails to remove them within the time limited, the grantee in the deed may recover all of the logs under the doctrine of confusion of goods.[18]

If the contract fixes no time within which the timber must be cut and removed, the law will infer an intention to grant a reasonable time for that purpose,[19] and a subsequent purchaser with notice of the existence of the contract takes with notice of its terms in this regard.[20] What is a reasonable time must be determined by the facts existing when the contract was made.[21] This is a question for the jury,[22] and a witness cannot give his opinion in regard to the matter.[23]

As in the case of all other contracts, the minds of the parties to a contract for the sale or manufacture of timber must meet as to all its terms.[24] and its provisions must be definite and certain.[25] One may become bound by a contract to which he is to give any one else permission to cut or remove timber within the five years, held, that the grantee acquired title only to such timber as he had both cut and removed before or by the expiration of the five-year limit, and, after the expiration of that time, had no right to either fell any trees, cut any logs, or remove them after being cut, or to remove logs previously cut. Mengal Box Co. v. Moore [Tenn.] 87 S. W. 415.

Washington: Though the sale of growing timber is a sale of an interest in land, upon the execution and delivery of the contract of sale the timber becomes personal property and the only interest which the vendees acquire in the land is an implied license to enter and remove the timber. Brodack v. Morsbach [Wash.] 80 P. 275.

16. Defendant held to have waived right to forfeit timber for failure to remove it from the land within the time specified by permitting it to be deposited in a gulch on another part of the land, and his subsequent refusal to permit plaintiff to remove it amounted to a conversion. Watson v. Gross [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 104.

17. Where contract provides that in case vendee is prevented from removing timber during time limit by accident or misfortune unavoidable by him, he shall have a reasonable additional time, he is entitled to such additional time in case he is prevented from removing the timber by the vendor. Jackson v. Hardin [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1119.

18. Mengal Box Co. v. Moore & McFerrin [Tenn.] 87 S. W. 415. See, also, Accession and Confusion of Property, 5 C. L. 12.

19. Kidder v. Flanders [N. H.] 61 A. 675; Johnson v. Truitt [Ga.] 50 S. E. 135. No time being fixed in which to commence cutting, the grantee must commence within a reasonable time. Hawkins v. Goldsboro Lumber Co. [N. C.] 51 S. E. 852. Where deed conveyed all the timber above a certain size then standing on certain land or growing, or which might be standing thereon during period of fifteen years after time when grantees commenced to cut and remove it, held, that a further provision that "the time in which to begin to cut and remove said timber shall be and is not limited," should be rejected as indefinite and repugnant and because contrary to the intent and purpose of the parties as manifested by the entire instrument. Id.

20. Where contract fixes no time for removal of timber, and owner of land sells it, "reserving" to the purchaser of the timber the right thereto until a specified date, the grantee of the land cannot prevent the purchaser of the timber from removing it within a reasonable time. Kidder v. Flanders [N. H.] 61 A. 675.

21. In which to box and cut timber. Allison v. Wall, 121 Ga. 822, 49 S. E. 831.

22. Allison v. Wall, 121 Ga. 822, 49 S. E. 831.

23. Such testimony involves calculations as to what could be done, and as to what should be done, as a matter of law, and usurps the functions of the jury. Allison v. Wall, 121 Ga. 822, 49 S. E. 831.

24. See Contracts, 5 C. L. 664. Held no contract where plaintiff's acceptance of defendant's offer to sell timber contained a provision that he should have the use of the land for mill purposes. Lord v. Meader [N. H.] 60 A. 434. Defendant's letter acknowledging receipt of check for earnest money held not acceptance of plaintiff's offer to purchase timber with logging and mill privileges, and he having returned it within a reasonable time, there was no contract. Id. Agreement whereby defendant is to cut timber on plaintiff's land, and plaintiff's cruiser is to state what it is worth, which amount is to be the contract price, held a complete contract and not merely preliminary negotiations for a possible one. Tacoma Mill Co. v. Perry [Wash.] 82 P. 140.

25. See Contracts, 5 C. L. 644. Contract for sale of "a certain lot of timber situate on Rhodes Branch, about three miles from Williamsburg," held not void for vagueness and uncertainty, it being sufficiently definite to enable the parties to effectuate it to the extent of the timber actually delivered and received. Comes within maxim "that is certain which can be made certain." Bradford v. Huffman [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1057. Provision in contract for sale of land permit-not a party by adopting it as his own.[26] The mere fact that a contract contains the words "agrees to sell" does not render it executory.[27]

The ordinary rules as to interpretation apply.[28] The contract should be construed according to its legal effect on the day it was executed, and not according to ting vendees to "cut and remove portions of the timber now standing on said premises," held too uncertain for enforcement in a court of law, and could be binding on the parties only in so far as they mutually acted under it. Watson v. Gross [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 104.

26. Defendant's contract for sale of land, provided that his vendees might "cut and remove portions of the timber" thereon, but that the same should remain defendant's property, and that the proceeds should be paid to him and credited on the purchase price. Held, that by a subsequent contract of cancellation, reciting sales of timber by the vendees to plaintiff and others, and providing that the latter might remove it within a certain time, defendant adopted the contracts of the vendees for such sales, and they thus became as effective in law as if he had made them himself, thus rendering it immaterial whether or not the vendees had authority to make them. Watson v. Gross [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 104. Provision allowing vendees to cut and remove "portions of the timber" held too indefinite to show what portion they had a right to cut, and hence plaintiff who had no greater right or title, failed to establish title to timber outside of two-acre tract as to which his rights were ratified by the contract of cancellation. Id. Fact that defendant permitted him to deposit all timber cut by him in a gulch on another part of the land, held not a recognition by him of plaintiff's right to any of it cut outside of such tract, there being no evidence that he knew that any part of it was cut elsewhere. Id. Instruction predicated on the theory that, if defendant knew that plaintiff was appropriating timber in excess of that on the two-acre tract and made no objection, plaintiff was entitled to recover in an action for converting it, held error, since defendant was not, as against plaintiff, deprived of his title by failure to object. Id.

27. Contract for sale of timber held an executed one and to have passed title, though it contained the words "agrees to sell," where defendants paid full consideration at the time of the execution of the agreement. Brodack v. Morsbach [Wash.] 80 P. 275.

28. See Contracts, 5 C. L. 664. Where contract provided that defendant was to run and saw plaintiff's logs "with all due diligence, and as fast as water will permit," he was not excused from exercising due diligence by a further provision that the contract should terminate at the end of eight months, and was liable for damages caused by unreasonable delay, though the work was completed within the time limit. Fletcher v. Prestwood [Ala.] 38 So. 847. Defendant had no right to postpone the running and sawing of plaintiff's logs while he ran and sawed his own. Provision as to water refers to natural conditions, such as drouth and the like, bearing upon the supply of water in the ditch and wasteways, and does not cover the fortuitous breakings of defendant's dam. Id. Conveyance of "timber suitable for turpentine and sawmill purposes," when considered with other provisions of the lease, held to include only timber suitable for both purposes, and hence not cypress timber. Gray Lumber Co. v. Gaskin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 164. Under contract for sale of logs providing that if they were not delivered by a certain date they should be scaled 10 per cent. for sap rot, and if not delivered by a later date they should be forfeited to the buyer, held, that forfeiture would not be enforced, there having been no delivery and no part of the purchase price having been paid, but they will be scaled 10 per cent. as provided and for any further deterioration. Daniel v. Day Bros. Lumber Co. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 1092. Sale of timber on tract owned by three persons jointly, which was described by its generally known name, and also by boundaries, held not to include timber on adjoining tract owned by one of the grantors individually, though the description by boundaries was broad enough to include it. Jackson v. Hardin [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1119. Contract held a sale of all the timber on a specified tract, a provision that the seller "agrees to deliver not less than 200,000 feet of all classes of timber above specified," merely establishing the minimum amount, and practically amounting to a guarantee that there would be at least that amount. Bradford v. Huffman [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1057. Contract for sale of lumber to be sawed from standing timber to be cut and paid for by measurement, the vendee agreeing that if it is not measured and inspected right, and if he does not furnish a man who will fairly comply with the contract, the sellers may resell, and also providing that the lumber is to be measured, inspected, and settled for by a third person, cannot be avoided by the sellers because such third person cannot furnish the money or inspect the lumber, where the vendee offers to have it fairly inspected and measured and to pay for it. Mills v. Stillwell [Ky.] 89 S. W. 112. Where written contract providing that scale made by the surveyor general when logs were loaded on cars should be binding on the parties was subsequently modified in writing so as to provide for delivery on skidways for a less price per thousand, without any reference as to scaling, held that, on conflicting evidence as to whether the parties orally agreed, at the time of the modification, that the scaling should be final or only prima facie, it was for the jury to determine what was the actual agreement. Nelson v. Mashek Lumber Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 1027. Defendant's assignor aquired a right to all timber and wood left on certain land after owner had removed all saw timber over a certain size, and was given 15 years in which to remove it, agreeing to remove from a certain number of acres each year. Custom was for vendor to take what timber he wanted, and subsequent changes.[29] Parol evidence is admissible to show the meaning of trade terms.[30] The term timber, when applied to standing trees, generally means such as are suitable for use in the erection of buildings or for manufacturing purposes.[31] The term growth includes all the wood upon the land.[32] "Timber suitable for sawmill purposes" includes any timber ordinarily used for manufacture into lumber,[33] and the sale of such timber carries with it the right to use it for any purpose whatever.[34]

The sale may, of course, be set aside for fraud.[35] A purchaser of timber who discovers that the seller has no title is not required to tender the purchase price to him as a condition precedent to the right to sue for damages.[36] Neither party to a sale of logs is bound by a scale which is the result of fraud or gross mistake on the part of the scalers,[37] and such conduct is always open to investigation.[38] Any com-then for vendee to take rest, irrespective of size. Subsequent conveyance by vendor to plaintiff contained no reservation of timber, but purchaser was told that failure to reserve it was an oversight, and that defendant was cutting when plaintiff bought with full knowledge of his rights and of the custom. Vendor had previously removed the saw timber and quit the land. Held, that defendant would not be enjoined from removing any saw timber which was of the specified size at the date of the contract. Chemical Charcoal Co. v. Smith [Miss.] 38 So. 232. Contract held an entire one, though it provided for treating different portions of timber in different ways. Snell v. Remington Paper Co., 102 App. Div. 133, 92 N. Y. S. 343. Contract held to require defendant to supply plaintiff with certain number of logs to be sawed and placed on board cars each year for five years at a certain rate per thousand, and that defendant failed to do so for three years. Id. Under contract whereby bank advanced money to mill owner to enable him to operate his mill, held that title to lumber and shingles manufactured therefrom was in the bank. Dennis v. Montesano Nat. Bank [Wash.] 80 P. 764. Purpose of provision that in case purchaser of timber fails to have it measured and to pay for it each month as cut and hauled, he shall forfeit all right and title to timber, whether cut or not, and all payments made on account thereof, is to prevent accrual of large indebtedness and cutting of large quantities of timber without paying for it, and vendor will be deemed to have waived forfeiture if he permits large quantities to be cut without such measurement and payment. Buskirk Bros. v. Peck [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 432. Under contract requiring second party "to keep a constant supply of logs on the skids sufficient to run the mill not to exceed 20,000 feet per day of 20 days each month, unless otherwise hindered by Providence," and requiring first party to run mill constantly at its full capacity as nearly as possible, held, that clause "not to exceed 20,000 feet," etc.; fixed maximum quantity of logs which party of second part could be required to keep on skids, and not quantity which other party was bound to remove from skids under implied covenant of the contract, but such implied covenant only required removal of quantity sufficient to run mill when run constantly at its full capacity as nearly as possible. Stephenson v. Collins [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 439. Two contracts between the same parties for the sawing of two lots of logs construed. Barker & S. Lumber Co. v. Edward Hines Lumber Co., 137 F. 300.

29. A conveyance in 1891 "of all the pine trees growing and being upon 4,900 acres of land, for sawmill and turpentine purposes," includes only those then suitable for those purposes and not those which by growth subsequently became so. Allison v. Wall, 121 Ga. 822, 49 S. E. 831. Charge to the effect that right to cut timber could be exercised during the entire period covered by a "reasonable time," but that after all trees suitable for sawmill purposes had been cut, plaintiff could not return and remove timber which was not originally suitable, but had subsequently become so, held proper. Id.

30. To show the meaning of the terms "merchantable lumber, mill run" in a contract for the sale of lumber, they being peculiar to the lumber business, in which they are well understood. Barnes v. Leidigh [Or.] 79 P. 51.

31. Lord v. Meader [N. H.] 60 A. 434. Agreement to take all the "growth" on a certain lot held not an acceptance of an offer to sell all the "timber" thereon, in the absence of proof that the words were used synonomously by the parties. Id.

32. Lord v. Meader [N. H.] 60 A. 434.

33. In a lease held to include cypress timber, there being nothing in the lease to show that only pine was meant, and no evidence that it was given such a restricted meaning by the custom of the trade. Gray Lumber Co. v. Gaskin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 164.

34. If timber is in fact suitable for sawmill purposes, the purchaser may hew it into cross-ties. Gray Lumber Co. v. Gaskin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 164.

35. Sale set aside where defendants used artifice to prevent an investigation by plaintiffs as to the value of the timber, and induced them to accept their statements as to quantity and value by the most positive assurances of fair dealing, and thereby procured timber at much less than its actual value. Garr v. Alden [Mich.] 102 N. W. 950. See, also, Fraud and Undue Influence, 3 C. L. 1520.

36. Barnes v. Weikel Chair Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 222.

37. Robinson v. Ward [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 113, 104 N. W. 373.

38. Question of fraud held for the jury.

petent proof of any scale of the logs or the lumber manufactured from them tending to show the amount actually delivered is admissible.[39]

A contract for the sale of timber on land held adversely by the vendor's wife and children and on which he resides with them is not champertous, their possession not being adverse to him.[40]

Contracts relating to the purchase and sale of manufactured lumber,[41] and questions in regard to the measure of damages for breach of contracts in regard to timber are treated elsewhere.[42]

The owner [43] or one in rightful possession of logs may maintain replevin to recover them, or lumber manufactured from them, from one who wrongfully converts them, or from one purchasing them from the latter with good reason to believe that he has acquired them wrongfully.[44] Though the purchaser wrongfully intermingles lumber manufactured from them with other lumber, the owner is only entitled to his ratable proportion of the whole, if it is possible to make an apportionment.[45]

Until the identification by government survey of the odd numbered sections granted to the Northern Pacific Railroad along its line, the United States has such title in the timber growing thereon as to enable it to recover the value of timber cut and removed by the railroad company or its grantees.[46] A private survey is inadmissible in such a suit to show that when surveyed the land will be an odd numbered section, and therefore included in the grant.[47]

Injunction will issue in proper cases to restrain the unlawful cutting of timber.[48]

The general rules of pleading and evidence apply to actions on contracts in regard to timber,[49] and to actions for its conversion.[50] In an action for the conver-

Robinson v. Ward [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 113, 104 N. W. 373. Evidence of a fraudulent conspiracy between the logging contractor and the deputy scaling the logs held sufficient to justify submission of that issue to the jury. Nelson v. Mashek Lumber Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 1027.

39. Robinson v. Ward [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 113, 104 N. W. 373.

40. Barnes v. Weikel Chair Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 222. See, also, Champerty and Maintenance, 5 C. L. 565.

41. See Sales, 4 C. L. 1318.

42. See Damages, 5 C. L. 904. Allegation that plaintiff sold defendant standing timber to be sawed into lumber, and that, after plaintiff had moved and located his mill for that purpose, defendant prevented him from cutting the timber, whereby he was compelled to shut down his mill and lose the profits, held not demurrable on the ground that the damages were remote or speculative. Anderson v. Hilton & D. Lumber Co., 121 Ga. 688, 49 S. E. 725. One cutting timber belonging to another is only liable for nominal damages where it is as valuable when cut as uncut. De Camp v. Wallace, 45 Misc. 436, 92 N. Y. S. 746.

43. Evidence in action of replevin for logs held to sustain verdict for plaintiff. Day v. Ferguson [Ark.] 85 S. W. 771. Award for piling, described in one of the writs and covered by the bond, held erroneous, where there was no evidence that plaintiff owned it. Id.

44. See, also, Replevin, 4 C. L. 1284. Evidence held to sustain finding that plaintiff was in lawful possession of logs and had a right to reclaim them in replevin, and motion for nonsuit properly denied. St. Paul Boom Co. v. Kemp [Wis.] 103 N. W. 259.

45. Plaintiff held only entitled to his ratable proportion and not to whole amount seized. St. Paul Boom Co. v. Kemp [Wis.] 103 N. W. 259. Evidence held not to support finding that defendant did not wilfully and indiscriminately intermix logs and lumber, and to justify court in changing it to a finding that he did. Id.

46. United States v. Montana Lumber & Mfg. Co., 196 U. S. 573, 49 Law. Ed. 604.

47. Act July 2, 1864, 13 St. at L. 367, c. 217, § 6, reserves right of survey to the government. United States v. Montana Lumber & Mfg. Co., 196 U. S. 573, 49 Law. Ed. 604.

48. See Injunction, 4 C. L. 96. Issues in Georgia when defendant is involvent, or the damages would be irreparable, or where plaintiff has perfect title to the land or the timber, or there exist "other circumstances" which, in the court's discretion, render it necessary. Civ. Code, §§ 4916, 4927, as amended by Acts 1899, p. 39. Gray v. Lumber Co. v. Gaskin [Ga.] 50 S. E. 164. Thus it may issue where the circumstances indicate that the trespasses are constantly recurring, and the defendant threatens to continue from day to day to cut timber. Id.

49. See Evidence, 5 C. L. 1301; Pleading, 4 C. L. 980. In action for damages for breach of contract to run and saw logs with all due diligence, witnesses who knew the capacity of defendant's mill and waterway could testify as to the number of logs that could have been run and sawed each day while plaintiff's logs were in readiness. Fletcher v. Prestwood [Ala.] 38 So. 847.

50. In an action for the conversion of sion of logs, defendant cannot rely on the fact that plaintiff did not cut them within the time limits fixed by the bills of sale.[51] Evidence of the attempted conversion by defendant of logs belonging to others is incompetent.[52] In an action in tort for trespass in cutting timber, there can be no recovery of the purchase price on proof that the cutting was under a contract.[53]

Liens.[54]—One sawing logs under contract is a bailee of the logs and the lumber and has a common-law lien for sawing them, so long as he retains actual possession,[55] but he waives such lien by surrendering possession.[56]

Statutes in many states give a lien for labor performed in cutting and hauling logs,[57] and for boomage charges.[58]

In Maine a lien is given to persons performing labor in cutting, handling, or sawing spool timber, or in the manufacture of spool timber into spool bars and the piling of such bars.[59]

Though a part of the logs on which the lien is sought to be foreclosed have been converted into lumber before the commencement of the foreclosure suit, the lienor is entitled to foreclose on such of them as then exist;[60] but a foreclosure and sale should not be ordered where, at the time of the trial, the logs have all been cut up into lumber and otherwise disposed of, so that identification of them or their products is impossible.[61] In a suit to foreclose a lien on logs for boomage charges, the court may, in the exercise of its equitable powers, impress the lien on money logs, it is proper for plaintiffs to show the number of logs put into the water, the number regularly accounted for to them, and the probable and possible chances of loss of logs in the regular course of business for the purpose of arriving approximately at the number converted. Seymour v. Bruske [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 145, 103 N. W. 613. Under the evidence, held that a charge that, if the jury believed defendant as to an interview with plaintiff, it would amount to an abandonment by plaintiffs of the logs alleged to have been converted, was sufficiently favorable to defendant. Id. In an action for conversion of logs, evidence held to sufficiently establish plaintiff's ownership for the purposes of the suit. Id. Witness held qualified to express opinion as to market value of logs converted and sued for. St. Paul Boom Co. v. Kemp [Wis.] 103 N. W. 259.

51, 52. Seymour v. Bruske [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 145, 103 N. W. 613.

53. Not in action under Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. §§ 5656, 5657. Tocoma Mill Co. v. Perry [Wash.] 82 P. 140.

54. See 3 C. L. 1471.

55. Walker v. Cassels, 70 S. C. 271, 49 S. E. 862.

56. Waived where sawing had been completed, and plaintiff left ground without leaving any agent in charge, and plaintiff stacked lumber and used and sold part of it. Delivery destroys lien, and defendants are not liable for subsequent injuries to lumber. Walker v. Cassels, 70 S. C. 271, 49 S. E. 862.

57. Laborer hauling logs for one contracting with the owner to haul them is entitled to enforce a lien against the owner, where the latter had knowledge that he was hauling the logs and that he had not been paid, it being the owner's duty to retain sufficient money from the contract price to pay him. Allen v. Roper [Ark.] 86 S. W. 836. Affidavit held to set out substantially all the necessary facts. Id.

58. The evidence being conflicting, held that action of court in refusing to hold that amount charged for boomage services was excessive would not be disturbed on appeal. Gray's Harbor Boom Co. v. Lytle Logging & Mercantile Co., 36 Wash. 151, 78 P. 795. Evidence in action to foreclose lien for labor performed in securing logs by means of boom, held insufficient to show liability on the part of defendant. Cascade Boom Co. v. McNeeley Logging Co., 37 Wash. 203, 79 P. 793. In action to foreclose lien for boomage charges, held that, it appearing that there was no right to a lien, plaintiff was not entitled to recover the reasonable rental value of the boom, there being no basis for such recovery in the complaint and no evidence as to such value, and plaintiff having no right to a lien to secure its payment. Id.

59. Lien given by Rev. St. c. 93, § 53, takes precedence of other claims and continues for sixty days after such timber or bars arrive at the place of destination for sale or manufacture. Chamberlain v. Wood [Me.] 60 A. 706. In the case of spool bars, held, that the "place of destination for sale or manufacture" is the place where they are actually intended to be sold or manufactured into spools, and not the mill where one contracting to sell spool bars cuts them from the timber. Id.

60. Gray's Harbor Boom Co. v. Lytle Logging & Mercantile Co., 36 Wash. 151, 78 P. 795.

61. Fact that logs were not in existence does not require dismissal, but court may retain jurisdiction to distribute money retained and deposited in lieu of them and to enter personal judgment against defendant. Gray's Harbor Boom Co. v. Lytle Logging & Mercantile Co., 36 Wash. 151, 78 P. 795. Evidence held not to support finding that some of the logs were in existence at the time of the trial. Id.

withheld by the purchasers of the logs and paid into court, in lieu of the property.[62] By statute in Washington, no mistake or error in the statement of the demand or description of the property invalidates the lien unless the court finds that an innocent third party is injured thereby.[63]

FORFEITURES, see latest topical index.

FORGERY.[64]

Elements of offense.[65]—To constitute forgery there must be such a material false making or alteration[66] with intent to defraud,[67] of an instrument which is capable of being the basis of a right or liability,[68] as will give it the appearance of legal efficiency.[69] The instrument need not be such as, if genuine, would be legally valid;[70] it is sufficient if it is apparently valid and thus calculated to deceive.[71] Per contra, an instrument invalid on its face cannot be the subject of forgery.[72]

To constitute the crime of uttering a forged instrument, the defendant must have, with knowledge of its forged character,[73] asserted its genuineness, either di-

62. Boom company notified purchasers of its claims and they withheld enough to cover them from purchase price. Gray's Harbor Boom Co. v. Lytle Logging & Mercantile Co., 36 Wash. 151, 78 P. 795.

63. Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 5944. Gray's Harbor Boom Co. v. Lytle Logging & Mercantile Co., 36 Wash. 151, 78 P. 795. Liens for boomage charges literally complying with the statute held sufficient as against the debtor. Id.

64. See Clark & M. on Crimes [2d Ed.] pp. 576-594.

65. See 3 C. L. 1472.

66. Erasing or altering a material part of a true instrument. An indictment under Ky. St. 1903, § 1185, is good, though alleging the forgery by a material alteration of the order. Commonwealth v. Walls [Ky.] 86 S. W. 684. Must be a material part. Wilson v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 46. Under Code 1892, § 1106, it is not forgery to alter the figures "$2.50" written in the upper right-hand corner of a draft so as to read "$12.50," the rest of the draft being left as it was. Id. See Clark & M., Crimes [2d Ed.] p. 583, § 395 (b). Or making a false entry in the record or accounts of a municipal corporation. People v. Herzog, 93 N. Y. S. 357.

67. Rev. St. 1887, § 7028. State v. Swensen [Idaho] 81 P. 379.

68. In New York in order to constitute forgery in the third degree, it is not necessary that by the entry a pecuniary demand or obligation be or purport to be created, increased, discharged or affected. Pen. Code, § 515. People v. Herzog, 93 N. Y. S. 357. A school warrant drawn upon the treasurer of a county, signed by the chairman of the board and countersigned by the county superintendent of public instruction imports such validity as to be made the subject of forgery. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3. Check drawn payable to the order of cash. Hale v. State, 120 Ga. 138, 47 S. E. 547. In the absence of a showing that property rights are involved, a release of a landlord's lien on crop is not. Williams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 800.

Statutory extensions: Under a statute declaring a person guilty of forgery who knowingly utters a false or counterfeited letter, by which the sentiments, opinions, conduct, character, prospects, interests or rights of the person whose utterance the writing purports to be are misrepresented or otherwise injuriously affected, the false making of a letter of introduction, misrepresenting the identity of the defendant, constitutes the crime of forgery, although there is no injury to the person whose name is forged to the letter. People v. Abeel [N. Y.] 75 N. E. 307, afg. 100 App. Div. 516, 91 N. Y. S. 1107, afg. 45 Misc. 86, 91 N. Y. S. 699.

NOTE. Interpretation of statute: Such letters at common law were not subjects of forgery (Foulkes v. Com., 2 Rob. [Va.] 836); but only writings which if valid would impose some legal liability or be of some legal efficiency (Bish. Crim. Law, § 533; Rex. v. Ward, 2d Ld. Raymond, 1461; Case of Ames, 2 Me. 365). So, also, under statutes less comprehensive than that in New York. Waterman v. People, 67 Ill. 91. The principal case presents a liberal interpretation of a statute supplying a defect in the common law.—5 Columbia L. R. 325.

69. A. J. W. indorsing a school warrant payable to J. W. B. as follows: "J. W. B. by A. J. W." such indorsement, though fraudulent, does not constitute forgery. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3. One attesting a note as a witness, knowing that the maker's name is a forgery, is guilty of forgery. Shelton v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 377.

70. See 3 C. L. 1472, n. 32.

71. State v. Alexander, 113 La. 747, 37 So. 711.

72. Order apparently signed by married woman. State v. Alexander, 113 La. 747, 37 So. 711.

73. Commonwealth v. Bond [Mass.] 74 N. E. 293. Pen. Code, § 470. State v. Swensen [Idaho] 81 P. 379; Commonwealth v. Hall, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 558; Commonwealth v. Hall, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 104. Upon an indictment charging the defendant with forging, uttering and publishing in a single count, held error to charge that defendant could be convicted in the manner and form indicted rerectly or indirectly, by words or actions, for the purpose of getting money.[74] It is not necessary that his effort to pass it shall have proved successful,[75] nor that the person whom it was sought to deceive should in fact have been misled.[78] It is immaterial that defendant did not make the instrument.[77]

In most states, where the crime intended or offense attempted has been perpetrated, an indictment for an attempt will not lie.[78]

Defenses.[79]—Condonation or ratification is no defense.[80] In order to take the case out of the statute of limitations, it is not necessary to prove by direct evidence that the note was antedated.[81]

The indictment.[82]—In the absence of statute,[83] the general rule requires that there should be such a setting out of at least the material parts of the paper alleged to be forged or altered as will put the defendant upon notice of its contents;[84] but it is not necessary to set out the value of the instrument nor the amount for which the forgery was committed.[85] The writing being complete on its face and purporting to impose a liability, it is not necessary to aver extrinsic facts to show its validity or that another might be injured by it.[86] An information charging the crime in the language of the statute is sufficient.[87] An indictment for forgery must allege that the act was done with intent to defraud,[88] and one for uttering must allege scienter;[89] but the instrument being negotiable, it is not necessary that the indictment should allege an indorsement thereon.[90] The offenses of forging and uttering may be charged in one count;[91] but such joinder does not relieve the prosecution of the necessity of charging all the elements of each offense.[92] The allegations must be clear and definite.[93] As a general rule, the words "forge," "counterfeit" or gardless of when the note was made or who made it, and regardless of whether defendant knew it was forged. Id. An instruction to convict if note was a forgery, held erroneous, there being nothing said as to whether the defendant forged the note or knew that it was forged. Id. See Clark & M., Crimes [2d Ed.] p. 591, § 399.

74, 75, 76, 77. Commonwealth v. Bond [Mass.] 74 N. E. 293.

78. Under Code 1892, § 974, an immaterial alteration of a draft does not constitute an attempt to commit forgery. Wilson v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 46.

79. See 3 C. L. 1473.

80. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

81. Commonwealth v. Hall, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 558. Where note by its date was over five years old and the indictment charged that it was less than a year old, held, the question was one for the jury. Id.

82. See 3 C. L. 1473. See Indictment and Prosecution, 4 C. L. 1.

83. In New York the indictment need not set forth the forged instrument in words or figures, but a full and accurate description of it is sufficient. Code Cr. Proc. §§ 273, 275, 284, 290, construed. People v. Herzog, 93 N. Y. S. 357.

84. Taylor v. State [Ga.] 51 S. E. 326. An indictment for forging or fraudulently altering a teacher's license held insufficient, it merely calling the instrument a license and setting out as a legal conclusion that it authorized the holder to teach in the public schools of the state and receive pay therefor. Id.

85. State v. Alexander, 113 La. 747, 37 So. 711. Held not necessary to set out that a particular amount in money or goods of any particular quantity or value had been fixed in the order, falsely made, for the payment of goods. Id.

86. Shelton v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 377.

87. State v. Alexander, 113 La. 747, 37 So. 711.

88. State v. Swensen [Idaho] 81 P. 379. An information charging that defendant "did wilfully, unlawfully, feloniously and falsely forge and utter a bank check," and "did then and there utter the said bank check as true and genuine, with intent to defraud the said," etc., held fatally defective. Id.

89. Shelton v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 377. Pen. Code, § 470. State v. Swensen [Idaho] 81 P. 379. An information charging that defendant "did willfully, unlawfully, feloniously and falsely forge and utter a bank check," and "did then and there utter the said bank check as true and genuine, with intent to defraud the said," etc., held fatally defective. Id.

90. Commonwealth v. Bond [Mass.] 74 N. E. 293.

91. An indictment charging that the defendant did unlawfully, falsely and fraudulently make, utter and publish and cause to be made, uttered and published a certain written instrument is not bad for duplicity. Commonwealth v. Hall, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 104.

92. State v. Swensen [Idaho] 81 P. 379. An information charging that defendant "did wilfully, unlawfully, feloniously and falsely forge and utter a bank check" and "did then and there utter the said bank check as true and genuine, with intent to defraud the said," etc., held fatally defective. Id.

93. An indictment alleging that the forged instrument is the usual and ordinary

"alter" are not indispensable to the validity of the indictment or information.[94] Foreign words [95] and ambiguities [96] in the instrument must be explained in the indictment, and statements in the latter must be connected with each other so as to show their true relation.[97] The indictment must not be contradictory within itself.[98]

Presumptions.[99]

Admissibility of evidence.[1]—Evidence as to the acts of defendant or his coconspirators at the time it was sought to pass the instrument,[2] and immediately thereafter,[3] is admissible. Evidence that another person once forged the same name is inadmissible in the absence of testimony connecting that other person with the forgery on trial or showing that the instrument in question was in the handwriting of such other person.[4] Subject to the application of the general rules of evidence, any evidence tending to show an intent to defraud is admissible.[5] An offense not charged furnishing a motive for one charged, all the facts can be shown.[6] An unauthorized payment of the forged instrument is not admissible.[7] Evidence of other forgeries is admissible as tending to show a general scheme to defraud.[8] There is no general rule for determining the competency of a witness to testify as to defendant's handwriting, but each case must depend largely upon itself.[9] A partner is way by which the company is informed of the amount it owed its employees, held not defective in that if the instrument was made in the usual and ordinary way it was not subject to forgery. Joiner v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 614, 87 S. W. 1039.

94. Are not essentially necessary to every information under Rev. St. § 833. State v. Alexander, 113 La. 747, 37 So. 711. Held sufficient to charge the accused with having "falsely made" the instrument declaring it to be "an order for money or goods" and declaring further that that instrument was "falsely made" by the party charged, with the intention of defrauding some one. Id.

95. An indictment for the forgery of a check, "Pay to . . . breer $10.30. Jev rale 30-100 dollars," held bad for falling to explain the terms "breer" and "jev rale." McBride v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 88 S. W. 237.

96. An indictment setting forth an instrument stating that when properly signed it would be paid by F. Treasurer, held insufficient for failure to contain allegations sufficiently explanatory with reference to F. Joiner v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 614, 87 S. W. 1039.

97. An indictment alleging that defendant was working the land of T. G. C. and that by the instrument forged (which was signed C. J. C.) it was intended to show that T. G. C. released his landlord's lien on the crop, and that by C. J. C. was meant T. G. C., held not to sufficiently connect the names of C. J. C. and T. G. C. Williams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 800.

98. Where the indictment in the purport clause charges that the instrument is the act of a designated person, and the tenor clause shows that the instrument was signed by such person and another, the variance is fatal. Mayers v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 802. There being a variance between the purport clause and the tenor clause of the indictment in that the Christian name in the alleged forged signature was not the same, a check corresponding to one of the alleged signatures is inadmissible. Webb v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 394.

99, 1. See 3 C. L. 1474.

2. On trial for conspiracy to pass a forged check, evidence of what a co-conspirator said when he attempted to pass the check held admissible as part of the res gestae. Knox v. State [Ind.] 73 N. E. 255.

3. In a prosecution for uttering a forged check, the officer who arrested defendant and observed his acts immediately after the defendant supposed that he had obtained the money, may testify thereto and also to declarations then made by the defendant. Commonwealth v. Bond [Mass.] 74 N. E. 293.

4. Laudermilk v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1107.

5. The omission of a duty by the county superintendent of public instruction to post a school warrant in a warrant registry book is competent evidence tending to show a fraudulent intent on his part, he being charged with the forgery of such warrants. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3. In a prosecution for forging the signature to a school warrant, the fact that the indictment also alleges that the defendant indorsed the warrant in the payee's name by himself as agent does not prevent the prosecution from asking the payee whether he authorized such indorsement. Id.

6. Where defendant's bankbook showed such frequent deposits, in excess of defendant's salary, as to tend to prove that defendant's motive for placing spurious notes to the credit of his employer at the bank was to cover or supply deficiencies in the employer's cash receipts due to defendants acts, held, the bankbooks were admissible. People v. Gaffey [N. C.] 74 N. E. 836.

7. Held error to permit witness to testify that the forged instrument was partly paid off after the indictment was found, there being no evidence that defendant authorized such payment. Webb v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 394.

8. On a prosecution for forging a school warrant, it is competent to show that about the time of the alleged forgery other warrants were forged by the accused. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

9. In a prosecution for the forgery of a school warrant by the county superintend-competent to testify to the handwriting of a co-partner who is absent from the state.[10] It is not allowable for either witnesses or juries to compare the handwriting of papers, not in evidence for other purposes, with the disputed writing or signature.[11] In Florida the statute providing for a comparison of handwriting covers not only the genuine writings of the party whose signature is alleged to be forged, but the genuine writings of the alleged forger.[12] The general rules as to parol evidence apply.[13] The date of the presentation of the forged instrument may be shown by parol, though it is contained in the books of the prosecutor.[14] Irrelevant evidence is inadmissible.[15]

Sufficiency of evidence.[16]—The guilt of defendant must be established beyond a reasonable doubt.[17] The sufficiency of evidence as to the identification of defendant,[18] and as to his having had the note in his possession,[19] is shown in the notes.

Trial.[20]—The proof must conform to the allegations in the indictment.[21] Facts not admitted must be proved.[22] The forged instrument being introduced in evidence and defendant's counsel being allowed to examine it, he should not be allowed to take it from the courthouse, at least in the absence of a showing of a necessity therefore.[23] General rules as to the cross-examination of witnesses apply.[24] Conclusion of guilt or innocence that should be drawn from the facts is for the jury.[25]

ent of public instruction, held, that the chairman of the county board of public instruction was competent to testify as to defendant's handwriting. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3. See Evidence, 5 C. L. 1301.

10, 11. Washington v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 388.

12. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3, in which the cases on comparison of handwriting are collected.

13. In a prosecution for the forgery of school warrants, held proper to ask the chairman of the county board how he signed school warrants, it not being apparent that it would be possible to introduce in evidence all the warrants which the witness had signed, and the question relating to a collateral matter. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

14. Such books may be resorted to only for the purpose of refreshing the prosecutor's memory. Laudermilk v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 1107.

15. On the trial for the forgery of an order for merchandise, evidence as to other orders drawn by persons other than the one whose name is alleged to have been forged and as to whether the merchant had asked the defendant, before the latter's arrest, about an order brought by a child, held irrelevant. Washington v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 388.

16. See 3 C. L. 1475.

17. Commonwealth v. Hall, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 104. An instruction that if the jury were not satisfied by the evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant altered the check in question, or caused it to be done, before he parted with the possession of it, it should find him not guilty, held correct. Goss v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1035.

18. Where, in a prosecution for uttering a forged check, the prosecuting witness positively identified the defendant as the party who gave him the check, and his evidence was corroborated by another witness who was present when the check was cashed, and by the facts and circumstances surrounding the transaction, identification held sufficient to sustain a conviction. Mays v. State [Neb.] 101 N. W. 979.

19. Evidence that defendant had brought a civil action on a note similar to the one set out in the indictment, and a large number of witnesses testified to seeing the note and to declarations of the defendant that he had such a note, held sufficient to show that defendant had possession of the note. Commonwealth v. Hall, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 558.

20. See 3 C. L. 1475.

21. An instrument "Tha is allright I have nothing to do with Jim par of his crope," constitutes in the absence of explanatory statements a variance from an indictment alleging, "That is all right I have nothing to do with Jim part of his crope." Williams v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 85 S. W. 800. There being a variance between the purport clause and the tenor clause of the indictment in that the Christian name in the alleged forged signature was not the same, a check corresponding to one of the alleged signatures is inadmissible. Webb v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 394.

22. Defense that check bore date of Sunday held of no avail, no evidence being offered to show that the day was Sunday. Commonwealth v. Bond [Mass.] 74 N. E. 293.

23. Miller v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 87 S. W. 821.

24. In a prosecution for the forgery of a school warrant, the chairman of the county board of public instruction testifying that he never signed warrants in blank, held proper to exclude the further questions as to whether or not it was the custom for the chairman, or member of the board acting as chairman, to sign warrants in blank, with directions to be filled out afterwards. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3. Where accused's wife testified that some time prior to the date alleged in the indictment accused stated he was going away because he was not doing well where he was, held

Instructions.[26]—The defendant being indicted for forging and uttering, the jury should be instructed that if they could not convict for forgery they should inquire whether defendant could be convicted of uttering the forged instrument.[27] The evidence being positive, the defendant is not entitled to an instruction on the law of circumstantial evidence.[28] The accused is entitled to an instruction on his defense.[29] An instruction covering the same ground as those already given should be refused.[30]

Appellate review.[31]—Defendant's testimony nullifying the effect of objections, the latter will not be considered.[32] Though the count of an indictment for uttering a forged note is insufficient, the count for forgery being sufficient, and there being evidence tending to establish such offense, the verdict and judgment thereon will be referred to such count.[33]

FORMER ADJUDICATION.

To be distinguished from former adjudication are the doctrines that a decision of an appellate court is binding in all subsequent proceedings in the same case,[34] and that decisions on questions of law will be observed as precedents.[35]

§ 1. The doctrine in general.—The doctrine of former adjudication is that whatever matters have been finally determined[36] on the merits,[37] in any action or improper for the state on cross-examination to elicit from her the fact that she had received letters from accused after he left, that such letters were signed "Sweetheart," and that after reading them she burned them. Webb v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 394.

25. Commonwealth v. Bond [Mass.] 74 N. E. 293.

26. See 3 C. L. 1475.

27. Commonwealth v. Hall, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 104. Such an instruction held not prejudicial. Usher v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 712.

28. Usher v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 81 S. W. 712.

29. Defense being that accused had received the check from the alleged signer in payment of a gambling debt, it is error for the court to fail to submit such issue to the jury. Webb v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 83 S. W. 394.

30. An instruction to acquit unless the jury were satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant altered or caused the check to be altered before it left his hands, held to cover a requested charge to acquit if the jury were not satisfied that defendant altered the check or caused it to be altered before he parted with the possession thereof. Goss v. State [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1035.

31. See 3 C. L. 1476.

32. Objections to evidence introduced by the state showing flight or concealment will not be considered on appeal, defendant in his testimony admitting facts which show his flight or concealment in view of the probable discovery of the alleged forgery. Wooldridge v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 3.

33. Shelton v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 377.

34. See Appeal and Review, 5 C. L. 121.

35. See Stare Decisis, 4 C. L. 1512.

36. Must be final judgment: Pickel Stone Co. v. Wall, 108 Mo. App. 495, 83 S. W. 1018. Order denying alleged widow's petition for homestead allowance based on her claim of widowhood is final. In re Harrington's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 546. A judgment is conclusive as against one who took no appeal therefrom, though it was based on plaintiff's right to a certain fund in which it was subsequently determined that he had no interest. Sanger Bros. v. Corsicana Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 737. Auditor's fee fixed by him in his report held res judicata, it not being excepted to within the required time, and the court refusing an application to file exceptions nunc pro tunc. McHenry v. Finletter, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 636. Decree sustaining validity of patent and awarding a permanent injunction against infringement and referring the case to a master for an accounting as to damages and profits, held not conclusive as to validity of patent. Australian Knitting Co. v. Gormly, 138 F. 92. Distribution decree awarding life estate to devisee held to estop him from claiming different tenure. Parkinson v. Parkinson [Mich.] 102 N. W. 1002. See Special Article, 3 C. L. 1489. A guardian's settlement made without filing an exhibit of the account as required in case of final settlements is no more than an annual settlement and is not conclusive. May v. May [Mo.] 88 S. W. 75. Finding of jurisdictional facts by highway commissioners in proceedings for the organization of a drainage district held not final on quo warranto. McDonald v. People, 214 Ill. 83, 73 N. E. 444. Confirmation of report not based on appraisal required by law is without force as an adjudication. Tefft v. Lewis [R. I.] 60

A. 243. Appointment of a legatee as trustee of property pending a contest is not an adjudication that he is entitled to take the same under the will. Congregational Church of Chester v. Cutler, 76 Vt. 338, 57 A. 387. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1490-1492, requiring different notices according to the value of the estate, a decree vacating a formal decree establishing due notice after publication for four months because of a doubt entertained by the court as to the value of the estate, and leaving such matter open for full consideration and full determination when the estate came to be closed, held not res judicata of the issue of the value of the estate. In re Wilson's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 313. See 3 C. L. 1476.

Interlocutory rnlings not final: Rule to show cause. Sims v. Davis, 70 S. C. 362, 49 S. E. 872. Overruling a motion to quash an attachment is no bar to its renewal. Elkins Nat. Bank v. Simmons [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 893.

Order in supplementary proceedings directing the payment of a debt owing to the judgment debtor is, if not appealed from, res judicata of the question of debtor's liability. Societa di Mutuo Socorso v. Mantel [Cal. App.] 81 P. 659.

Verdict or findings without judgment not final: Harnish v. Miles, 111 Ill. App. 105. Findings of fact and conclusions of law. Wilson v. Wilson [Wash.] 82 P. 154; Oklahoma City v. McMaster, 196 U. S. 529, 49 Law. Ew. 587. See 3 C. L. 1476.

Reservation of right to additional relief: Decree reserving right to seek additional relief on the foot thereof is final. Stout v. Stout [Va.] 51 S. E. 833.

A rnling on demurrer is not final: Is not binding at trial (Wiggin v. Federal Stock & Grain Co., 77 Conn. 507, 59 A. 607), unless a final judgment is entered thereon (Parrotte v. Dryden [Neb.] 102 N. W. 610).

Effect of appeal: Judgment from which an appeal is pending but which has not been superseded may be pleaded in bar. Collier v. Doe ex dem. Alexander [Ala.] 38 So. 244. See 3 C. L. 1476.

Appellate jndgments are as conclusive as any. Intermediate appellate court. Koehler v. Holt Mfg. Co., 146 Cal. 335, 80 P. 73. Kentucky court of appeals. Holtheide v. Smith's Guardian [Ky.] 84 S. W. 321. A judgment of remand by an appellate court is ordinarily not final. Blakeslie's Exp. & Van Co. v. Ford, 215 Ill. 230, 74 N. E. 135.

A void judgment is no bar: A judgment rendered void by a discharge in bankruptcy has no effect as a former adjudication. Gardiner v. Ross [S. D.] 104 N. W. 220. See 3 C. L. 1477.

Error does not prevent binding effect: Glass v. Shapard [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 880. Errors, however grave, do not deprive the court of jurisdiction. Brown v. Schintz, 109 Ill. App. 598. It is of no importance whether conclusions, either of fact or law, are right or wrong. Hall v. City of Kalamazoo [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 500, 104 N. W. 689. Judgment in habeas corpus proceedings where the validity of an order of adoption was collaterally attacked, held conclusive. In re Clifford, 37 Wash. 460, 79 P. 1001. Where defendant failed to appear and the trial court failed to treat a counterclaim as withdrawn. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. Clark Pressed Brick Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 27. See 3 C. L. 1477.

37. Jndgment must be on the merits: Roberts v. Jones [S. C.] 51 S. E. 240; Armstrong v. Manatee County [Fla.] 37 So. 938; Levison v. Blumenthal, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 55. Plea of res judicata held insufficient, it not showing that the former judgment was on the merits. Goff v. Wilburn, 25 Ky. L. R. 1963, 79 S. W. 232. Where there were several defenses, some of which did not go to the merits, it must clearly appear that the judgment was on the merits. Callaway v. Irvin [Ga.] 51 S. E. 477.

Refusal of leave to allow intervening petition is no adjudication of matters therein averred. Hamilton Nat. Bank v. American L. & T. Co. [Neb.] 100 N. W. 202. Judgment based on a defect of pleading is not on the merits. Langmuir v. Landes, 113 Ill. App. 134.

Denial of mandamus as an exercise of discretion or because there is an adequate remedy at law does not adjudicate the merits. Hoffman v. Silverthorn [Mich.] 100 N. W. 183. Judgment against an assignor suing for the assignee, on the ground that he had no litigable interest does not conclude the assignee as against the defendant. Tootle v. Buckingham [Mo.] 88 S. W. 619. The denial of a petition in a Federal court for leave to file a bill of review for newly discovered evidence showing fraud, held res judicata of petitioner's right to maintain a bill in a state court to set aside the decree for fraud, though the matter was decided on ex parte affidavits. Keith v. Alger [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 71. See 3 C. L. 1477.

Dismissal: Unless a dismissal be upon the merits (Dismissal of petition of trustee in bankruptcy in suit in state court to recover mortgaged property of the bankrupt held on the merits. Code Civ. Proc. Mont. § 1005, construed. In re Reynolds, 133 F. 585), or "with prejudice" (Hargis v. Robinson [Kan.] 79 P. 119), it does not constitute a bar (Durham v. Stubbings, 111 Ill. App. 10). Hence a dismissal without prejudice. Robinson v. American Car & Foundry Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 693; Wilson v. May Pants Co. [Miss.] 37 So. 813; Johnson v. Walker [Miss.] 39 So. 49. Suit to cancel patents. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. United States [C. C. A.] 133 F. 651. A proceeding under Ky. St. 1903, § 4297, to abolish gates erected across a public road, in which the relief sought is denied on the ground that the gates were not shown to have been erected under permission of the county court, and hence within the scope of the proceedings, is no bar to another proceeding brought for the same purpose, if the gate was in fact erected by permission of the county court (Allen v. Hopson, 26 Ky. L. R. 1148, 83 S. W. 575), or one because suit was prematurely brought (Nevills v. Shortridge, 146 Cal. 277, 79 P. 972). Action on an injunction bond (Tutty v. Ryan [Wyo.] 79 P. 920), or was not the proper form of action (Chicago Terminal R. Co. v. Winslow, 216 Ill. 166, 74 N. E. 815), does not bar a subsequent suit. Dismissal for failure to give surety for costs is no bar. Randolph v. Cottage Hospital of Des Moines [Iowa] 103 N. W. 157. Dismissal of a bill for want of equity does not bar an action at law on the same facts. Follett v. Brown, 114 Ill. App. 14. A general decree of dismissal in equity is presumptively on the merits and concludes all issues (Indian Land & Trust Co. v. Shoenfelt [C. C. A.] 135 F.

proceeding[38] in a court having jurisdiction,[39] or before an officer or board exercising judicial functions,[40] are concluded by such adjudication and cannot again be litigated between the same parties[41] or their privies,[42] until the adjudication has been duly reversed, modified or otherwise adjudged erroneous.[43]

484), but a judgment of dismissal for failure to prosecute presumptively does not involve the merits (Sanford v. King [S. D.] 103 N. W. 28). General dismissal in equity when the case is pending on pleadings and proof is conclusively presumed to be on the merits unless there is a reservation in the decree. Lykes v. Beauchamp [Fla.] 38 So. 603. See 3 C. L. 1477.

Discontinuance: Judgment is no bar as to subject-matter of counts discontinued. Crossman v. Griggs [Mass.] 74 N. E. 359. See 3 C. L. 1477.

Nonsuit: Plaintiff who takes a nonsuit after intervention is bound by the decree. Dawson v. Thigpen, 137 N. C. 462, 49 S. E. 959. An adjudication that an action cannot be maintained because one of the necessary parties plaintiff was a foreign corporation, which had not complied with the laws of the state, held not res judicata. Harris & Cole Bros. v. Columbia W. & L. Co. [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 897.

On a motion for judgment and not for nonsuit, the trial court's finding that the evidence presented did not establish the case alleged is res judicata if the holding was correct. Campbell v. Flannery [Mont.] 79 P. 702.

Judgment of abatement for death of plaintiff is not on the merits. Stuber v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 113 Tenn. 305, 87 S. W. 411. See 3 C. L. 1478.

Judgment on demurrer is res judicata in so far as it is on the merits. Richmond Hosiery Mills v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 290. Demurrer being overruled, defendant is not entitled on the trial to benefit of defense set up therein. Sims v. Georgia R. & Elec. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 573. Sustaining a demurrer to an amendment on the ground that it presents a new cause of action does not bar a suit on the subject-matter thereof. Butler v. Tifton, T. & G. R. Co., 121 Ga. 817, 49 S. E. 763. See 3 C. L. 1477.

Judgment on default: Judgment on plaintiff's proof, defendant failing to appear, held to bar defendant as to a counterclaim set up by him. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. Clark Pressed Brick Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 27. This is true, though trial court should have treated counterclaim as withdrawn by failure to appear. Id. See 3 C. L. 1478.

Consent judgment: Order for judgment by consent held not conclusive. Cuccurullo v. Societa Italiana di Mutuo Soccorso di Brooklyn, 102 App. Div. 276, 92 N. Y. S. 420. See 3 C. L. 1478.

38. See 3 C. L. 1476, 1477.

Condemnation proceedings. Compton v. City of Seattle [Wash.] 80 P. 757.

Election contests: A count of ballots by the court at the request of the parties, in an election contest before answer, held not to create an estoppel. Hamilton v. Young, 26 Ky. L. R. 447, 81 S. W. 682.

Habeas corpus: In re Clifford, 37 Wash. 460, 79 P. 1001. See 3 C. L. 1478.

Probate proceedings: Final settlements of guardians, executors and the like are as conclusive as other judgments. May v. May [Mo.] 88 S. W. 75.

39. See 3 C. L. 1477. It is essential that the court have jurisdiction (Jensen v. Montgomery [Utah] 80 P. 504); establishment of claims in probate court (Jones v. Willis [Ohio] 74 N. E. 166), of the parties (Omaha Nat. Bank v. Robinson [Neb.] 102 N. W. 613), though the absence of a necessary party does not affect the conclusiveness of the judgment as to those before the court (Tod v. Crisman, 123 Iowa, 693, 99 N. W. 686). A replication denying in general terms lack of jurisdiction and lack of identity of parties and subject-matter, held good on demurrer. United States v. Jacoby [Del. Super.] 61 A. 871. Decision of law court within its jurisdiction is binding in subsequent suit in equity. Attorney General v. Cent. R. Co. of New Jersey [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 348; Hofmann v. Burris, 110 Ill. App. 348. Discharge of guardian after insufficient publication of notice is no bar. Griffin v. Collins [Ga.] 49 S. E. 827. An order in probate proceedings requiring surrender of a lease to the administrator does not adjudicate title to the leased premises. Milburn v. East [Iowa] 102 N. W. 1116. A decree in the state where mortgaged land is located canceling the mortgage is not an adjudication against a non-resident mortgagee served only by publication as to the right to recover the mortgage debt. Fitch v. Huntington [Wis.] 102 N. W. 1066.

40. See 3 C. L. 1477, 1478. Decision of Federal land department. Sanford v. King [S. D.] 103 N. W. 28. Civil service commission. People v. Snyder, 94 N. Y. S. 541. Confirmation of local assessment. Sheriffs v. City of Chicago, 213 Ill. 620, 73 N. E. 367.

Action of justice in ministerial capacity in eminent domain proceedings not res judicata. Sullivan v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 33. Proceedings of town council issuing warrant in favor of one whose sheep were injured by dog not conclusive against owner of dog who was not a party. Town of Richmond v. James [R. I.] 61 A. 54.

41. See 3 C. L. 1478, 1479. Pickel Stone Co. v. Wall, 108 Mo. App. 495, 83 S. W. 1018; Delaney v. West [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 419, 88 S. W. 275. A replication denying in general terms lack of jurisdiction and identity of parties and subject-matter held sufficient on demurrer. United States v. Jacoby [Del. Super.] 61 A. 871. See post, Persons concluded.

42. Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1; Schuler v. Ford [Idaho] 80 P. 219; Perkins v. Goddin [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 936; Delaney v. West [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 419, 88 S. W. 275; In re Harrington's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 546. As to who are privies, see infra, this section, Persons concluded. See, also, 3 C. L. 1481, 1485.

43. Jones v. Willis [Ohio] 74 N. E. 166; Hargis v. Robinson [Kan.] 79 P. 119; In re Clifford, 37 Wash. 460, 79 P. 1001. A judgment which has been vacated and superseded cannot be pleaded in bar. Minor's Heirs v. City of New Orleans [La.] 38 So. 999.

FORMER ADJUDICATION — Cont'd.

Where suits are pending for the same cause in courts of concurrent jurisdiction, the first judgment rendered bars the other suit, without regard to which suit was first begun.[44] Orders made by a state court are not binding on a Federal court to which the cause is removed.[45] It is no objection to the conclusiveness of proceedings in a Federal court that those proceedings were not conducted according to the forms of practice obtaining in the state courts in similar matters.[46] An affirmance by agreement pursuant to division of opinion as in Florida and California concludes the parties, though it establishes no precedent.[47] As a general rule a judgment in ejectment is no bar to a second suit in ejectment between the same parties for the sale of the land.[48]

Persons concluded.[49]—All adversary parties to the action [50] or persons in privity with parties to the action [51] are bound by a final judgment on the merits rendered therein. To be a "party" one must have an interest in the subject-matter of the litigation.[52] In equity the adversary character of parties is determined by their respective claims upon the subject-matter rather than by their positions as parties plaintiff or defendant.[53] The term "privity" suggests mutual succession or relation to the same property or property right.[54] Privity to the estate is not necessarily

44. Boatman's Bank of St. Louis v. Fritzlen [C. C. A.] 135 F. 650. It is immaterial that the suit in which judgment was rendered was begun after that in which judgment is asserted as a bar. Church v. Gallic [Ark.] 88 S. W. 979; Place v. Rogers, 101 App. Div. 193, 91 N. Y. S. 912.

45. Ruling on interlocutory motion. Remington v. Central Pac. R. Co., 198 U. S. 95, 49 Law. Ed. 959.

46. Keith v. Alger [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 71.

47. State v. McClung [Fla.] 37 So. 51.

Note: Under the constitutions of these states the concurrence of a majority of the members of the appellate court is necessary to a decision. Florida Const. 1885, art. 5, § 4, as amended (Acts 1901, p. 361). Const. Cal. Jud. Dept. § 2. In construing these provisions the following California cases will be found valuable: Luco v. De Toro, 88 Cal. 26, 25 P. 983, 11 L. R. A. 543; Frankel v. Deidesheimer, 93 Cal. 73, 28 P. 794; Santa Rosa City R. v. Central St. R. Co., 112 Cal. 436, 44 P. 733.

48. Jamison v. Martin, 184 Mo. 422, 83 S. W. 750. A judgment in ejectment awarding possession of the land to plaintiff and decreeing that the sums paid by defendant should be a lien thereon, held more than a judgment in ejectment and hence a bar to ejectment by the defendant therein. Id.

49. See 3 C. L. 1485.

50. Order distributing fund in court concludes all parties as to their rights therein. Clifford v. Gridley, 113 Ill. App. 164. One contesting the application of an administrator to mortgage real estate, but abiding by the decision and taking her share of said realty when partitioned subject to the mortgage is estopped to question the regularity of the proceedings by which such mortgage was authorized. Wisconsin Trust Co. v. Chapman, 121 Wis. 479, 99 N. W. 341. In an action upon a lease to recover unpaid rent for a portion of the term, held, upon the record, the lessee and one of the joint owners of the premises leased are estopped from objecting to a recovery by a joint owner of the full amount due from the lessee, both joint owners being parties to the action. Forman v. Saunders, 92 Minn. 369, 100 N. W. 93. A distributee being a party to administration proceedings is charged with notice of recitals in a judgment discharging the administrator. Bridgens v. West [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 417.

51. See ante, this section.

52. Husband representing wife held to have no interest in subject-matter. Perkins v. Goddin [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 936. One who is only indirectly interested in the litigation, and who is not made a party and who is not represented by a party to the record who represents his interests, but who comes forward and defends because it may ultimately benefit him so to do is not a party. Manufacturer of patented article assisting a purchaser in defending a suit for infringement held not a party. Australian Knitting Co. v. Gormly, 138 F. 92.

53. Where a creditor of a mortgagor sued the latter and his mortgagee claiming that a certain conveyance was fraudulent, held a judgment awarding the proceeds of the sale of the property to the mortgagee was binding in a subsequent suit between the mortgagor and mortgagee. Ellis v. Cole, 94 N. Y. S. 1031.

54. Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1. To constitute one privy in title so as to bind him by a former adjudication he must succeed, after the bringing of the action, to the interest of a party thereto involved in such action. Minnesota Debenture Co. v. Johnson [Minn.] 102 N. W. 381. And see Parrotte v. Dryden [Neb.] 102 N. W. 610. Judgment in action to recover possession of a mining claim held res judicata as to the parties and their successors in interest as to their then existing rights. Lauman v. Hoofer, 37 Wash. 382, 79 P. 953.

ILLUSTRATIONS. Administrator and remaindermen and legatees: A judgment in an action of ejectment brought by the administrator of a decedent devising land to one for life with remainder over, held not binding on the remaindermen in a subsequent suit to quiet title instituted by them against the same defendant. Pryor v. Winter [Cal.] 82 P. 202. Establishment of a claim for assessments against the estate of a deceased stockholder concludes his distributees as to his ownership in an action against them for subsequent assessments. Rankin v. City of Big Rapids [C. C. A.] 133 F. 670. See, also, 3 C. L. 1481.

Assignor and assignee: Assignees of contract are in privity with assignor with respect to action to establish the contract. Butterly v. Deering, 102 App. Div. 395, 92 N. Y. S. 675. An assignee of a note and mortgage knowingly allowing the assignor to sue to foreclose the same in his own name is estopped, after judgment against the assignor, to sue thereon in his own name. Bailey & Son v. Wells, 68 S. C. 150, 46 S. E. 768. Judgment in a suit by the assignee of the lessor against the assignee of the lessee is not evidence as between the lessee and lessor. Broadwell v. Banks, 134 F. 470.

Attorney and client: An attorney, having a contract for a percentage of the recovery, who sues in the client's name on the entire cause of action and obtains a recovery as against a defense that the attorney is a part owner of the claim, is estopped by the judgment to assert against defendant that he was such part owner. American Cotton Co. v. Simmons [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 343, 87 S. W. 842. See 3 C. L. 1481.

Bank depositors: A judgment against a bank on assigned claims of depositors is not res adjudicata in an action by plaintiff on assigned claims of other depositors. Nathan v. Uhlmann, 101 App. Div. 388, 92 N. Y. S. 13.

Building contractor and owner: A judgment in an action by a subcontractor against the principal contractor does not bar the owner from litigating the question with the principal contractor as to whether or not the work was done in accordance with the principal contract. Wagner v. St. Peter's Hospital [Mont.] 79 P. 1054.

Note: This case must be distinguished from those wherein a city is held liable for negligence occuring through the fault or act of some third persons, and other cases of similar character. For a case dealing with this phase of the subject, see Hoppaugh v. McGrath, 53 N. J. Law, 81, 21 A. 106. This case is distinguished from Wagner v. St. Peter's Hospital [Mont.] 79 P. 1054, in the latter case.

Corporation and stockholders: Stockholders are bound by a judgment against the corporation in the absence of fraud or collusion. Gund v. Ballard [Neb.] 103 N. W. 309, citing Clark & M. Corp. § 800. Evidence held to show that judgment between corporation and its president was collusive. Id. See 3 C. L. 1481. See, also, p. 1485.

Covenantor and covenantee: One covenanting to save another harmless from a certain cause of action is not bound by a judgment against the covenantee, unless notified to come in and defend. Otherwise it stands merely as payment, and to make it material he must show that it was rightly made. Busell Trimmer Co. v. Coburn [Mass.] 74 N. E. 334.

Firm and members thereof: Judgment for defendant in a money action by an individual does not bar an action on the same debt by a firm to which he belongs. Figarra v. Saitta, 91 N. Y. S. 728.

Grantors and grantees: Vendee is not in privity with vendor. Subsequent suit against the latter does not affect the former. Weir v. Cordz-Fisher Lumber Co., 186 Mo. 388, 85 S. W. 341; State v. Coughran [S. D.] 103 N. W. 31; Munnelly v. Barnes, 139 Ala. 657, 36 So. 763. Where suit was dismissed as to vendee held not bound by judgment that vendor was the owner of the land. Page v. W. W. Chase Co., 145 Cal. 578, 79 P. 278. A vendor is not bound by a judgment in ejectment against his vendee, he not being a party to the action nor allowed to participate in the defense. Bank of Winchester v. White [Tenn.] 84 S. W. 697. A grantor is not in privity with his grantee so as to be bound by a judgment against the latter on a covenant against incumbrances. McCrillis v. Thomas, 110 Mo. App. 699, 85 S. W. 673. A grantee of a purchaser at an execution sale is in privity with the judgment. Edmonston v. Carter, 180 Mo. 515, 79 S. W. 459.

Guardian and ward: Ward is bound by judgment against guardian. Cowling v. Nelson [Ark.] 88 S. W. 913. See 3 C. L. 1481, 1485.

Husband and wife: Husband representing wife is not in privity with her. Perkins v. Goddin [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 936 (dicta).

Joint debtors: If the holder of a joint debt or obligation sues one of the joint debtors and obtains judgment thereon against him, and then sues another of the joint debtors for the same debt or obligation, the latter may plead such judgment against his co-debtor as a bar to the action. Armentrout v. S. H. Smith & Bros., 56 W. Va. 356, 49 S. E. 377.

Joint tort feasors: Where action is dismissed as to an alleged joint tort feasor on demurrer to his being joined, he is not bound by the judgment. City of Boston v. Brooks [Mass.] 73 N. E. 206.

Landlord and tenant and the latter's sublessees: A judgment against a tenant is not, so far as the title to the land is concerned, conclusive against the landlord, or those claiming under him, when he is not made a party to the action. Eldred v. Johnson [Ark.] 86 S. W. 670. A landlord who enters on removal of the tenant from the premises pending ejectment against him by a third person is not bound by the judgment in ejectment. King v. Davis, 137 F. 198. A sublessee is not bound by the judgment in a suit by the lessee against the lessor to terminate the lease. Wray-Austin Machinery Co. v. Flower [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 214, 103 N. W. 873. See 3 C. L. 1481.

Mortgagors and mortgagees and their coincident with privity to the judgment.[55] While, strictly speaking, only parties or privies to parties to the action are bound by the judgment therein,[56] one may be bound, though not a party, where he has negligently failed to become a party,[57] or where he introduces the record and judgment in evidence in a subsequent case to which he is a party,[58] or where the judgment constitutes a link in a chain of title,[59] grantees: One taking a mortgage on land pending a suit to determine the title thereto is in privity with the mortgagor. Johnson v. McKay, 121 Ga. 763, 49 S. E. 757. Mortgagee of a franchise cannot be deprived of security by a decree against the company annulling the franchise, entered in a suit begun after the mortgage was given, and to which the mortgagee was not a party. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Meridian Waterworks Co., 139 F. 661. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 726, the grantee in an unrecorded deed from a mortgagor is bound as to all matters necessarily adjudicated in a suit foreclosing the mortgage though he is not a party to such suit. Hager v. Astorg, 145 Cal. 548, 79 P. 68; Hibernia Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Cochran, 141 Cal. 653, 75 P. 315. Deficiency judgment against mortgagor is conclusive against his grantee as to validity of mortgage debt. Le Herisse v. Hess N. J. Eq.] 57 A. 808. Adjudication against railroad as to its liability to taxes held not to conclude its bondholders. Wicomico County Com'rs v. Bancroft [C. C. A.] 135 F. 977. See 3 C. L. 1481, 1485.

Municipality and taxpayer: A judgment declaring a municipal assessment void is binding on the city in the absence of fraud or collusion though it was not a party. Otis v. City of St. Paul [Minn.] 101 N. W. 1066, following Willius v. City of St. Paul, 82 Minn. 273.

Officers and members of an unincorporated association are in privity. American Percheron Horse Breeders' Ass'n v. American Percheron Horse Breeders' & Importers' Ass'n, 114 Ill. App. 136.

Parent and child: Judgment for defendant in an action by a widow for death of her husband under a civil damage act does not bar an action by her children. Stecher v. People [Ill.] 75 N. E. 501.

Parties to a contract to sell: A party in possession of land under contract to purchase is not in privity with the party who contracted to sell. Schuler v. Ford [Idaho] 80 P. 219.

Principal and surety: A surety is estopped as to an issue of payment by the principal by a judgment against the latter. Beh v. Bay [Iowa] 103 N. W. 119. Sureties on injunction bond not concluded by dissolution of injunction. McLennon v. Fenner [S. D.] 104 N. W. 218. Sureties who participated in defense of action against principal bound by judgment. Meyer v. Purcell, 214 Ill. 62, 73 N. E. 392.

Public officers and the public: Judgment against highway commissioners acting for the public binds all citizens. Sampson v. Com'rs of Highways, 115 Ill. App. 443. Judgment in suit against municipal officers held not to bar suit against municipality. Town of Adel v. Woodall [Ga.] 50 S. E. 481. See 3 C. L. 1481.

Purchasers at judicial sale: A grantee of a purchaser at an execution sale is in privity with the judgment. Edmonston v. Carter, 180 Mo. 515, 79 S. W. 459. Judgment, for injuries to stock, recovered against receivers of railroad held not to bar subsequent action against a purchaser of the railroad at foreclosure sale. Kansas City So. R. Co. v. King [Ark.] 85 S. W. 1131.

Remainderman and life tenant: The remainderman is not bound by a decree in a suit between the life tenant and another by which the life tenant was held to take in fee simple. Downey v. Seib, 102 App. Div. 317, 92 N. Y. S. 431.

State and relator: The relator being the real party in mandamus, the judgment is conclusive as between him and respondent. Greenfield Gas Co v. Trees [Ind.] 75 N. E. 2.

United States and land patentees: Under Rev. St. U. S. § 2326, the government is not a party to a suit to determine adverse claims to land patents, and a judgment therein is not conclusive on a subsequent patentee from the government of land embraced therein, who was not a party, or privy to a party, to the suit. Butte Land & Inv. Co. v. Merriman [Mont.] 80 P. 675. See 3 C. L. 1485.

55. Judgment recitals of the establishment of a homestead are not admissible against grantees of a party. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Vawter [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 47, 88 S. W. 407.

56. Only binds the parties. Raftery v. Easley, 111 Ill. App. 413. Does not bind one not a party or in privity. Clark v. Durland, 93 N. Y. S. 249. A property right is not affected by the judgment in any suit to which the holder of such right was not a party of record. Busse v. Schaeffer [Iowa] 103 N. W. 947. Action of town council in issuing warrant for reimbursement of one whose sheep were injured by dog not binding on owner of dog who was not a party. Town of Richmond v. James [R. I.] 61 A. 54. Denial by county board of an application to have a road alleged to be established by user recorded as a public way does not conclude abutting landowners as to fact of establishment by user. McClaskey v. McDaniel [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1023. One who does not claim under either patent is not bound by order in interference proceedings. McCaslin v. Link Belt Machinery Co., 139 F. 393. One who being real party in interest undertakes the defense of a suit is bound by the judgment. Leathe v. Thomas, 109 Ill. App. 434.

57. Where a person not a party to an action will be liable to another who is a party if the latter's claim or defense shall fail, and such person has notice of the action and opportunity to participate therein in defense or maintenance of his position, he will be bound by the result the same as if he were a party to such action. Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1.

58. Richardson v. Southwestern Cotton Seed Oil Co. [Okl.] 81 P. 781.

or where the proceeding is in rem.[60] These last two cases, however, may be related to the doctrine of privity. In order that a judgment shall be conclusive upon any particular person of a class "there must have been a previous formal act on his part in applying to the court, and an order therein making him a party to the action, so that his name should have appeared in some manner upon the record, or it must be shown that he had notice of proceedings and an opportunity to unite in them, of which he neglected or refused to avail himself."[61] One who conducts the defense for a party must do so openly to be bound by the decree.[62] One as to whom the action is dismissed is not concluded by a judgment subsequently rendered therein.[63] Parties are not precluded by a judgment where they assert and are sustained in a plea of privilege to be sued in another county than that in which suit is brought, and thereupon withdraw from the suit.[64] Plaintiff taking a nonsuit after an intervention is bound by the decree rendered between intervenor and defendant.[65] One represented in the action by an attorney is bound by the judgment.[66]

§ 2. Adjudication as bar of causes of action or defense.[67]—As a general proposition, it is stated that to constitute a prior adjudication a complete bar to a cause of action or defense, there must concur identity of parties;[68] identity of subject-matter,[69] and identity of issues;[70] or the cause of action as it has been termed.[71]

59. Chapman v. Greene [S. D.] 101 N. W. 351; Minnesota Debenture Co. v. Johnson [Minn.] 102 N. W. 381. Suit to determine adverse claims held not within rule. Id.

60. Adjudication in bankruptcy. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift [Ga.] 51 S. E. 748. A summary proceeding to enjoin an insolvent corporation from the exercise of its franchises is in rem and the order therein fixes the status of the corporation. Pierce v. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 319. Foreclosure decree is not in rem but ex contractu and does not bind strangers. Lohmeyer v. Durbin, 213 Ill. 498, 72 N. E. 1118.

61. Pomeroy, Remedies & Remedial Rights, § 400. Holderman v. Hood [Kan.] 78 P. 838. A final judgment in a suit brought by a beneficiary of an express trust "on behalf of complainant and all other creditors likewise situated who desire to avail themselves thereof," held not to affect the rights of a beneficiary in the same situation as complainant, but who was without notice or knowledge of the pendency of the action. Id.

62. Suit for infringement of patent. Jefferson Electric L., H. & P. Co. v. Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 385, afg. 135 F. 365.

63. Partition. Atlee v. Bullard, 123 Iowa, 274, 98 N. W. 889. Where action is dismissed as to an alleged joint tort feasor on demurrer to his being joined he is not bound by the judgment. City of Boston v. Brooks [Mass.] 73 N. E. 206. Action to foreclose the lien of street improvement being dismissed as to a vendee, he is not bound by a judgment that his vendor is the owner of the land. Page v. W. W. Chase Co., 145 Cal. 578, 79 P. 278.

64. Sawyer v. J. F. Wieser & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 1101.

65. Dawson v. Thigpen, 137 N. C. 462, 49 S. E. 959.

66. Evidence held to show that a party was represented in the former action by an attorney, and hence was bound thereby. Durrett v. Durrett [Ky.] 89 S. W. 210. Evidence held sufficient to show that defendant authorized the appearance in the former action and such decision was binding. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Allen, 67 Kan. 838, 73 P. 98.

67. See 3 C. L. 1479.

68. Harrison v. Ottman, 111 La. 730, 35 So. 844; J. M. Weatherwax Lumber Co. v. Ray [Wash.] 80 P. 775; Pickel Stone Co. v. Wall, 108 Mo. App. 495, 83 S. W. 1018; Campbell v. Upson [Tex.] 84 S. W. 817; Weir v. Cordz-Fisher Lumber Co., 186 Mo. 388, 85 S. W. 341; McCrillis v. Thomas, 110 Mo. App. 699, 85 S. W. 673; Hess' Estate, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 498. Instruction given receivers on motion not res judicata in action by them against persons not parties to motion. Beardslee v. Ingraham, 94 N. Y. S. 937. Judgment in a suit by grandchildren of testator to enforce a trust deed executed by their father of lands set apart to him under partition deed between his mother and brothers and sisters, does not bar them from suing for general partition between themselves and their uncles and aunts under the will of their grandfather. Parrott v. Barrett, 70 S. C. 195, 49 S. E. 563.

Suit trying title to land held not to bar claims of state, the latter not being a party. Madden v. State, 68 Kan. 658, 75 P. 1023.

Sureties on injunction bond are not concluded by dissolution of injunction. McLennon v. Fenner [S. D.] 104 N. W. 218.

Minors not represented in partition proceedings and having no knowledge thereof held not estopped from asserting their rights against a third party purchasing the property. Underwood v. Deckard, 34 Ind. App. 198, 70 N. E. 383. Dismissal of suit to restrain removal of county seat no bar to similar suit by other citizens. Board of Sup'rs of Simpson County v. Buckley [Miss.] 38 So. 104. Judgment, for injuries to stock, recovered against receivers of railroad, held not to bar subsequent action against a pur- chaser of the railroad at foreclosure sale. Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. King [Ark.] 85 S. W. 1131.

Adjudication of bankruptcy on the ground of having given a preference does not estop the creditor named in the petition as having been preferred from showing in a suit by the trustee to recover the alleged preference that the transaction did not constitute a preference. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift [Ga.] 51 S. E. 748. The discharge of a bankrupt cannot be pleaded in bar of a creditor's bill to secure property fraudulently conveyed by the bankrupt, even though the facts in the bill were in issue in the bankruptcy court. Friedman v. Verchofsky, 105 Ill. App. 414. Where a suit is dismissed because one of the necessary parties plaintiff was designated as a foreign corporation, held not to bar a subsequent suit on the same cause of action, it being shown that the party in question was designated a corporation by mistake of fact, and was a partnership whose individual members joined as plaintiffs in the second suit. Harris & Cole Bros. v. Columbia Water & Light Co. [Tenn.] 85 S. W. 897.

Former criminal prosecution: Judgment in a criminal prosecution does not bar a civil action between defendant and a third person. Frierson v. Jenkins [S. C.] 51 S. E. 862. The trial and acquittal of a party charged, in a criminal complaint, with the construction of a nuisance in a navigable stream by a justice's jury, is no bar to a civil action to restrain the completion of the alleged nuisance. This is especially true where plaintiff was not the complainant in the criminal action. Small v. Harrington [Idaho] 79 P. 461. Acquittal on a charge of bigamy does not operate as an adjudication against the alleged second marriage to bar the wife in a civil suit based thereon. Frierson v. Jenkins [S. C.] 51 S. E. 862. See 3 C. L. 1479.

69. United States v. Jacoby [Del. Super.] 61 A. 871; Pickel Stone Co. v. Wall, 108 Mo. App. 495, 83 S. W. 1018. Sureties on injunction bond are not concluded by dissolution of injunction. McLennon v. Fenner [S. D.] 104 N. W. 218. Determination in former action that promise sued on was never made bars recovery. Arnold v. Randall [Wis.] 102 N. W. 340. Divorce decree. Held, as to the property covered thereby, plaintiff's only remedy was by proceedings in the court rendering the same to enforce it, but as to property not covered thereby, plaintiff was entitled to sue at law in another action to recover the same. Jackson v. Jackson [Mich.] 98 N. W. 260. A recovery in an action of conversion against a sheriff in New York for unlawful seizure and sale of goods is no bar to an action of replevin to recover specific goods found in Pennsylvania, the goods sought to be recovered not being included in the bill of particulars in the conversion action. Levy v. Solomon, 207 Pa. 478, 56 A. 1007. Issuance of an order for sale of land by guardian to pay debts against opposition on the ground of indebtedness by the guardian because of mismanagement is conclusive against such mismanagement. In re Kimble [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1009. A decree ordering execution of lease by landlord on execution of rent notes by tenant does not bar an action for rent under the oral lease for occupancy pending the former litigation or a counterclaim for damages for failure to give possession at the time required by the oral lease. Harmont v. Sullivan [Iowa] 103 N. W. 951. See 3 C. L. 1480.

70. Bonanza Consol. Min. Co. v. Golden Head Min. Co. [Utah] 80 P. 736; Evans v. Woodsworth, 115 Ill. App. 202. Judgment in assumpsit held no bar to action of tort involving some of the same facts. Linder v. Rowland [Ga.] 50 S. E. 124. Judgment denying petition to vacate judgment for fraud is no bar to application to open it for irregularity. Scott v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 137 N. C. 515, 50 S. E. 221. An adjudication of the rights of the public to car service over a spur track is not binding after the track has been sold by the carrier to an individual. Oman v. Bedford-Bowling Green Stone Co. [C. C. A.] 134 F. 64. Order on habeas corpus to determine custody of children held res judicata in subsequent divorce suit. Dawson v. Dawson [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 613. Adjudication of bankruptcy on the ground of giving a preference does not estop creditor alleged to have received same from showing in a suit by the trustee to recover the alleged preference that the transaction did not constitute a preference. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift [Ga.] 51 S. E. 748.

Divorce proceedings: Denial of divorce for cruelty and drunkenness, no bar to suit for separate maintenance for desertion and failure to support. Smith v. Smith [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1008. Decree for separate maintenance based on finding that wife is rightfully living apart from her husband bars husband's action for divorce for desertion. Harding v. Harding, 198 U. S. 317, 49 Law. Ed. 1066.

Rights under contracts: Defendant gave plaintiff a bill of sale for standing timber and plaintiff brought suit for breach of covenant owing to the failure of title as to a portion of the timber, and in such action a default judgment was taken and satisfied. Held, in a subsequent action of replevin for logs cut from the timber, that defendant was not barred from claiming that the bill of sale produced and relied on by plaintiff was a forgery. Metropolitan Lumber Co. v. McColeman [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 172, 103 N. W. 809. Judgment for defendant in a suit against a bank to cancel bonds held by the latter as collateral security does not bar a suit by a purchaser of the bonds at a sale of the collateral to enforce payment thereof and to foreclose a mortgage given for their security. Buckman v. Union R. Co., 45 Or. 578, 78 P. 748. Judgment for defendant in an action to have a contract declared a mortgage and to redeem therefrom is no bar to an action for specific performance of such contract as a contract of sale. Kaaterud v. Gilbertson [Minn.] 104 N. W. 763. A judgment for services against a defense that they were unskilfully performed is a bar to an action for damages by such unskillful performance. Goldberg v. Ziegler, 92 N. Y. S. 777. Judgment for seller against defense of breach of warranty bars suit for alleged breach. Miller v. Buckley [Miss.] 38 So. 99. See 3 C. L. 1480.

Rights affecting property: Judgment rendered on petitions for assessment of damages for injuries done to land by the erection of an elevated railway, brought under Identity of parties.[72]—Identity of names is presumptive, but not conclusive, evidence of identity of persons.[73] That a party's sureties were joined with him in the former suit does not prevent identity of parties.[74] It is essential that the party sought to be bound by the former judgment must have appeared in both actions in the same capacity or character.[75]

Identity of cause of action.[76]—The test of the identity of causes of action is whether the same evidence will sustain both.[77]

Privies of a party.[78]

Scope of adjudication.[79]—If the parties and issues be identical, the adjudication is binding not only as to all matters actually litigated,[80] but as to everything which

Rev. Laws, c. 48, § 114, and chapter 111, §§ 112, 113, held not conclusive on equitable rights of a third mortgagee who had brought a bill for marshaling assets. Bates v. Boston El. R. Co., 187 Mass. 328, 72 N. E. 1017. Judgment in a suit to impress a trust on realty purchased by a husband in his own name with his wife's money, held not a bar to an action by the wife's administrator against the husband for conversion of the fund. Kraft v. Moore [Ark.] 89 S. W. 51. An award of past damages does not preclude a suit for an injunction to prohibit the further maintenance of the nuisance. Scheurich v. Southwest Missouri Light Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 1003. One by suing and recovering double damages for the wrongful construction of a dam is not thereby precluded from suing to abate the nuisance, created by the obstruction, under the equity powers of the court. Rev. St. 1899, § 8750, construed. Scheurich v. Southwest Missouri Light Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 1003. A judgment for plaintiff in an action for rent defended on the ground of constructive eviction does not bar an action for damages for eviction where the tenant did not abandon the premises till after the judgment for rent. Goldstein v. Asen, 91 N. Y. S. 783. A judgment for defendant on the issues of damage raised in a replevin action is res judicata in subsequent action by plaintiff in the replevin action against defendant therein to recover the same items of damages. Vulcan Iron Works v. Kent Lumber Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 913. A judgment for plaintiff in replevin by a mortgagee against the mortgagor settling the accounts between the parties pursuant to Kirby's Dig. § 6869, is a bar to a subsequent action on the account. Neal v. Brandon & Baugh [Ark.] 85 S. W. 776. See 3 C. L. 1479, 1480.

71. Pickel Stone Co. v. Wall, 108 Mo. App. 495, 83 S. W. 1018. An action on coupons from a mortgage bond is not on the same cause of action as a former judgment on other coupons from the same bond. Schmidt v. Louisville, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 314. Cause of action for conspiracy in restraint of trade held different from that concluded by former judgment. John D. Park & Sons Co. v. Bruen, 139 F. 698. A cause of action for equitable relief from the consequences of accepting a void guaranty is essentially different from an action on the guaranty. Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1. Unsuccessful defense to petition to foreclose tax lien bars suit to vacate tax deed on ground which might have been raised. Napper v. Fitzpatrick [Mich.] 102 N. W. 642. Decree dismissing a bill to enjoin use of a corporate name is no bar to a suit for damages for appropriation of the corporate good will. Lindemann v. Rusk [Wis.] 104 N. W. 119. Suit for breach of covenant of warranty held barred by previous judgment for defendant in a suit for recovery on a mortgage and note given to secure the fulfillment of the covenant, for the same breach. Dime Sav. Bank v. McAleney [Conn.] 61 A. 476. There is a material difference between a suit brought for the settlement and distribution of an estate and a suit by the personal representative against a debtor of the estate requiring him to account for his indebtedness. Botto's Ex'r v. Botto, 25 Ky. L. R. 2130, 80 S. W. 174. Judgment in a suit by grandchildren of testator to enforce a trust deed executed by their father of lands set apart to him under partition deed between his mother and brothers and sisters does not bar them from suing for general partition between themselves and their uncles and aunts under the will of their grandfather. Parrott v. Barrett, 70 S. C. 195, 49 S. E. 563. See 3 C. L. 1480.

72. See 3 C. L. 1481.

73. Fowler v. Stebbins [C. C. A.] 136 F. 365.

74. Andreas v. School Dist. No. 4 [Mich.] 100 N. W. 1021.

75. Perkins v. Goddin [Mo. App.] 85 S. W. 936. Administrator held not bound as such by a judgment in a suit in which he, as an individual, represented his wife, she being a party thereto. Id. There must be identity to the quality of the persons for or against whom the claim is made. Pickel Stone Co. v. Wall, 108 Mo. App. 495, 83 S. W. 1018.

76. See 3 C. L. 1481.

77. Kaaterud v. Gilbertson [Minn.] 104 N. W. 763.

78. See ante, § 1. See, also, 3 C. L. 1481.

79. See 3 C. L. 1482.

80. Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1. Where note given to secure performance of award of arbitrators was delivered to the prevailing party, and the other party sued for conversion, claiming that the arbitration was illegal and the defendant sought to sustain the arbitration, claiming that there was an indebtedness due him, held, a judgment in favor of plaintiff was res judicata of defendant's claim. Pickel Stone Co. v. Wall, 108 Mo. App. 495, 83 S. W. 1018.

Judgment overruling demurrer conclusive of right of action but not of measure of might have been litigated under the issues as made.[81] The judgment does not ex-damages. Richmond Hosiery Mills v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Ga.] 51 S. E. 290.

Dismissal on one ground does not affect other questions raised. Smith v. Town of Stoughton, 185 Mass. 329, 70 N. E. 195.

Denial of motion to open default judgment on one ground is no bar to a suit to set it aside on another. Everett v. Everett, 180 N. Y. 452, 73 N. E. 231.

Dismissal of proceeding to foreclose lien on the ground that the lien had been discharged by a bond is no bar to an action on the bond. Mertz v. Press, 99 App. Div. 443, 91 N. Y. S. 264. One who procures the dismissal of an appeal from an order establishing a highway on the ground that appellant is not a party cannot subsequently assert that appellant is estopped by the order. Kirkhart v. Roberts, 123 Iowa, 137, 98 N. W. 562.

Sustaining of demurrer to complaint is no bar to amended complaint supplying defects of original. Duke v. Postal Tel. Cable Co. [S. C.] 50 S. E. 675.

Decree for sale held not to determine distribution of proceeds. Lengert v. Chaninel, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 626.

Judgment in partition declaring the interests of the parties held binding in ejectment. Place v. Rogers, 101 App. Div. 193, 91 N. Y. S. 912. A decree that a certain point was beyond a boundary line without stating how far is not conclusive as to the line at other points. Wharton v. Harlan, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 61. A judgment that certain property was given by plaintiff to defendant's predecessor in interest precludes plaintiff, when afterwards sued by defendant for rents and profits, from setting up by way of counterclaim a demand for the purchase price. Smith's Guardian v. Holtheide [Ky.] 84 S. W. 346. Judgment for defendant in an action to have title to land, the purchase money for which was furnished by plaintiff, vested in him held res judicata of an action to recover the purchase money furnished by plaintiff to intestate. Holtheide v. Smith's Guardian [Ky.] 84 S. W. 321.

Judgment for defendant in action on account stated does not bar suit on an item of the alleged account. Tuck v. Rottkowsky, 93 N. Y. S. 1112; Mincer v. Green, 94 N. Y. S. 15.

Confirmation of judicial sale is res judicata as to the limitations imposed by the deed. Corbett v. Fogle [S. C.] 51 S. E. 884. A judgment in an action of writ of entry does not establish the title of the petitioners to any other land than that described in the writ. In re Butrick, 185 Mass. 107, 69 N. E. 1044. Judgment in action involving possession of property held to involve only real and not personal property. Grim v. Griffith, 34 Ind. App. 559, 73 U. E. 197.

Judgment, in a suit to have a note canceled, in favor of the payee, held res judicata as to the maker's liability to an indorsee as against the payee in a subsequent suit in which the maker pleaded the same facts as had been previously alleged in the prior suit. Scott v. American Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 445. Judgment against trustee held to conclude him as to his liability as to full amount of claim and not merely as to the part as to which he was able to reimburse himself. In re Howard [C. C. A.] 135 F. 721. A judgment in an action to completely settle a trustee's accounts is final as to a claim that the trustee should be charged for certain misconduct. Hackney v. Hoover [Ky.] 87 S. W. 769.

A judgment for defendant in replevin is conclusive in an action on the replevin bond that the property was taken from defendant on the writ. Stafford v. Baker [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 393, 104 N. W. 321. A judgment in a suit to set aside a fraudulent conveyance is conclusive in garnishment against the grantee that the conveyance was fraudulent. Dodge v. Knapp [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 47.

Judgment for defendant on a note for wages bars a suit for such wages except for the amount over the face of the note. Mack v. Logue, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 160.

A judgment for a landlord in an action for possession does not conclude the tenant as to a set-off not pleaded. McMichael v. McFalls, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 256. Judgment for plaintiffs in action on a note secured by a mortgage held to render res judicata a defense that the mortgagor had no power to execute the mortgage. Edmonston v. Carter, 180 Mo. 515, 79 S. W. 459.

81. Long v. Lebanon Nat. Bank, 211 Pa. 165, 60 A. 556; Australian Knitting Co. v. Gormly, 138 F. 92; Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1; First Nat. Bank v. Gibson [Neb.] 104 N. W. 174; Greer v. Greer, 142 Cal. 519, 77 P. 1106; Ruckman v. Union R., 45 Or. 578, 78 P. 748; Peacock v. Iron & Steel Publishing Co., 114 Ill. App. 463. Condemnation proceedings. Compton v. Seattle [Wash.] 80 P. 757; American Cotton Co. v. Frank Heierman & Bro. [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 845. Where the right to possession of a chattel is in controversy, the fact that the issues with reference to damages are withdrawn does not preclude a party from setting up any claim he may have as to possession. Id. Judgment against a bill in equity is conclusive as to all grounds, for the relief asked which might have been set up therein. Barnes v. Huntley [Mass.] 74 N. E. 318. A judgment in scire facias on a recognizance bars any defense which might have been made to the scire facias. State v. Boner [W. Va.] 49 S. E. 944. Money recovered by judgment cannot be recovered back by reason of any new right or claim. United States v. McConnaughey [C. C. A.] 135 F. 350. Claim which might have been asserted on an accounting cannot be set up against a party thereto. Barnes v. Huffman, 113 Ill. App. 226. Claim of homestead is barred by failure to set it up in an action where it would have been a defense. Hallman v. George, 70 S. C. 403, 50 S. E. 24. Defendant in a suit to quiet title is concluded as to every claim of title which he might have asserted. Chicago & S. E. R. Co. v. Grantham [Ind. Sup.] 75 N. E. 265. A foreclosure decree bars a tax title previously acquired by the mortgagor which he might have set up in the foreclosure suit. Ayers v. Casey [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 452. A debtor who has had his day in court will not be heard after judgment, to attack tend to defenses which could not have been set up,[82] but the unsuccessful use of a remedy supposed to be, but in effect not, appropriate to vindicate the right of a particular matter, either because the facts turn out to be different than plaintiff supposed them to be, or the law applicable to the facts is found to be different than supposed, though the first action proceeds to judgment, does not preclude the plaintiff from thereafter invoking the proper remedy.[83] One failing to present the proper evidence in the first suit will not for that reason be permitted to relitigate the questions involved in a second suit.[84] Failure to plead an existing cause of action as a counterclaim when presented with an opportunity to do so does not operate to cancel or satisfy such cause of action.[85] The right of an innocent purchaser to full remuneration for his permanent improvements, for taxes paid, and the purchase price thereof, is not lost by failure to plead the same in ejectment against him.[86] An acquittal on a criminal charge bars an action by the government for a forfeiture on the same facts.[87] One cannot split his cause of action and have successive recoveries,[88]

the levy of the execution on the ground that his debt was infected with usury. Wilkinson v. Holton, 119 Ga. 557, 46 S. E. 620. A judgment for defendant in an action for permanent alimony and to set aside a deed as fraudulent on plaintiff's marital rights, held to bar a subsequent action for divorce, setting forth the desertion of the husband from the date alleged in the first action, and his failure to provide for her, and praying to have the deed set aside, in so far as it related to desertion, and to the claim that the deed was fraudulent. Greer v. Greer, 142 Cal. 519, 77 P. 1106. Where a bill by an executor to administer the assets of his testator for the payment of debts states that a person named claims a debt against the estate on a specific demand and such person is made a formal party, but does not prove his claim or appear, a decree allowing certain debts, but not his debts, and subjecting the estate's land to their payment, concludes him. Trail v. Trail, 56 W. Va. 594, 49 S. E. 431.

After a decree for the sale of land for the purposes of partition among heirs at law has been passed and enrolled and the land sold, an heir, who was a party to such proceeding, cannot contest the same by exceptions to the auditor's account or by petition on the ground that the property in fact belonged to his father and not to his mother as alleged, and that he was entitled to the same as his father's only heir at law. Rice v. Donald, 97 Md. 396, 55 A. 620. Nor was he entitled to intervene and claim the land as administrator of his father's estate, on the ground that his mother had converted his father's estate and invested a part of the proceeds therein. Id.

82. J. M. Weatherwax Lumber Co. v. Ray [Wash.] 80 P. 775; Holmes v. Wolfard [Or.] 81 P. 819. Where an execution was levied on property belonging to plaintiff, under a judgment against plaintiff's grantor, rendered in a suit to which plaintiff was not a party, the court having no power to vacate such levy on plaintiff's motion, its refusal to grant the same is no bar to a subsequent action by plaintiff to determine an adverse interest in the real estate acquired under such levy. Id. Does not apply to after-occurring facts. Bedford-Bowling Green Stone v. Oman, 134 F. 441. Grounds of objection to an ordinance. Lusk v. City of Chicago, 211 Ill. 183, 71 N. E. 878. An adjudication authorizing defendant railroad to cross plaintiff's tracks, held not conclusive of defendant's right to reduce the grade of the outer rail of plaintiff's track, so as to preclude plaintiff from suing to restrain defendant from so changing the grade. Southern R. Co. v. Washington, A. & Mt. V. R. Co., 102 Va. 483, 46 S. E. 784. A judgment establishing a mortgage in a suit to quiet title is not conclusive in a suit to foreclose such mortgage against the statute of limitations, unless it appears that such defense could have been raised in the former suit. Teigen v. Drake [N. D.] 101 N. W. 893.

83. Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1. See Election and Waiver, 5 C. L. 1078.

84. In re Harrington's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 546.

85. Failure of purchaser to plead his right to rents and profits after day when deed should have been delivered as a set-off in an action for the purchase price, does not bar his action therefor. Ferguson v. Epperly [Iowa] 103 N. W. 94.

86. May subsequently maintain a suit in equity therefor. Patillo v. Martin, 107 Mo. App. 653, 83 S. W. 1010.

87. United States v. Seattle Brewing & Malting Co., 135 F. 597.

Contra: An acquittal in a criminal prosecution for violating a town ordinance is not a bar to a subsequent civil action by the town to recover a penalty imposed for violating the ordinance. Town of Canton v. McDaniel [Mo.] 86 S. W. 1092. [In this case the court seems to have regarded the question of one of former jeopardy and to have overlooked the adjudicative force of the decree].

88. Morgan v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 590; Watkins v. American Nat. Bank [C. C. A.] 134 F. 36. One recovery for a permanent injury bars a suit for damages subsequently resulting. Archison, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 110 Ill. App. 626. Recovery for death by wrongful act bars recovery for vehicle destroyed in same accident. Coles' Adm'x v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1082. After recovery of principal, interest cannot be recovered in separate action. Gordon v. City of Omaha [Neb.]

unless he be unavoidably ignorant of the full extent of the wrongs received or injuries done,[89] or unless defendant consents thereto.[90] Whether defendant is unavoidably ignorant of the full extent of the injury would seem to be a question of fact.[91] Where damages are occasional and recurring, a party may sue as often as he suffers injury therefrom;[92] hence one recovery does not bar subsequent suits for continuing nuisance.[93] In Colorado a judgment rendered on a firm debt, where service is had on less than all the partners, is a bar to a subsequent action against the partners not served.[94] In Oregon a party may rely upon a legal defense without being thereby precluded from afterwards asserting his equitable title in an original suit.[95] A decree affirmed on appeal is res adjudicata on all matters determined by it and not merely on the one on which it was affirmed.[96]

§ 3. Adjudication as estoppel of facts litigated.[97]—Though there be no identity of issues and subject-matter, an adjudication is conclusive in all courts[98] in suits between the parties[99] and their privies,[1] as to all matters in issue[2] and decided[3] or necessarily involved in the decision made.[4]

99 N. W. 242. Counterclaim to amount of jurisdiction is a splitting which will bar suit for the remainder. Andreas v. School Dist. No. 4 [Mich.] 100 N. W. 1021. The right of a creditor having various claims against a corporation to exact payment from a stockholder is not such a single and indivisible demand that, by placing one such claim in judgment against the stockholder, he is precluded from proceeding against him upon the others. Manley v. Park, 68 Kan. 400, 75 P. 557.

89. Morgan v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 590, following Wheeler Sav. Bank v. Tracy, 141 Mo. loc. cit. 258, 42 S. W. 947, and limiting Kerr v. Simmons, 9 Mo. App. loc. cit. 377.

90, 91. Morgan v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 590.

92. Obstruction in stream causing overflow. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Roberts [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1052.

93. Hartman v. Pittsburg Inclined Plane Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 360.

94. Mills' Ann. Code, §§ 235-240. Blythe v. Cordingly [Colo. App.] 80 P. 495.

95. Under B. & C. Comp. § 391, allowing an equitable defense by cross bill in actions at law. Clark v. Hindman [Or.] 79 P. 56.

96. Russell v. Russell (C. C. A.) 134 F. 840.

97. See 3 C. L. 1484. Brock v. Boyd, 211 Ill. 290, 71 N. E. 995; Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1; Carter v. Carter [N. D.] 103 N. W. 425; Schmidt v. Louisville, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 314.

98. In re Harrington's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 546.

99. In re Harrington's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 546. Order in administration suit does not bind creditors not parties. Fisher v. Southern L. & T. Co., 438 N. C. 90, 50 S. E. 592. Finding that scow was unseaworthy, in suit by assignee of owner of goods against the owner of the vessel, not binding by way of estoppel in action by owner of vessel against insurer of cargo. Chesapeake Lighterage & Towing Co. v. Western Assur. Co., 99 Md. 433, 58 A. 16. A judgment adjudging that an insolvent purchaser of a private bank was indebted to the seller is not an adjudication that the latter is not liable, to depositors of the bank, where the depositors were not parties to the proceedings. Johnson v. Shuey [Wash.] 82 P. 123. Decree of distribution held not evidence that certain persons were not heirs of decedent as against one not a party to the suit, though in the possession of property of the decedent lying beyond the jurisdiction of the court rendering the decree. Mace v. Duffy [Wash.] 81 P. 1053.

1. See ante, § 1, subd. "Persons concluded."

2. Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1; Ruckman v. Union R., 45 Or. 578, 78 P. 748; In re Harrington's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 546. Judgment only binding as to matters within the issues. Cowling v. Nelson [Ark.] 88 S. W. 913; Bank of Visalia v. Smith [Cal.] 81 P. 542. Every matter found which was material and within the pleadings. In re Harper, 133 F. 970. Judgment in partition not binding as to land not described in petition. Cowling v. Nelson [Ark.] 88 S. W. 913. Assessment of benefits held not within issues in condemnation proceeding. City of Chicago v. McCartney [Ill.] 75 N. E. 117. A decree establishing a survey does not conclude the parties as to title. Krause v. Nolte [Ill.] 75 N. E. 362. A note introduced in evidence but not used as a set-off or counterclaim is not discharged by the judgment. Leask v. Dew, 102 App. Div. 529, 92 N. Y. S. 891. A judgment against a charitable corporation does not conclude any question as to whether its property is subject to execution. Woman's Christian National Library Ass'n v. Fordyce [Ark.] 86 S. W. 417. Adjudication in bankruptcy concludes participating creditor as to bankrupt's residence. In re Hintze, 134 F. 141. Interlocutory order in foreclosure held not to adjudicate jurisdiction in foreclosure suit. Carly v. Boner [Neb.] 102 N. W. 761. Dissolution of injunction does not conclude sureties on injunction bond. McLennon v. Fenner [S. D.] 104 N. W. 218. Refusal to remove an executor for fraud in withdrawing appeal from judgment is conclusive against an application to vacate the judgment for the executor's fraud. Riley v. Ryan, 45 Misc. 151, 91 N. Y. S. 952. An order refusing to vacate an attachment upon an offer to deposit stock as security in lieu thereof is not res judicata of the right to have the attachment dismissed in that defendant was not a resident. Brady v. Onffroy, 37 Wash. 482, 79 P. 1004. A judgment allowing a widow and minor children a year's support is conclusive only that she is entitled to the amount of the judgment if there be assets to pay it, and such judgment is no evidence that the administrator has sufficient assets of his intestate with which to pay it. Wood v. Brown, 121 Ga. 471, 49 S. E. 295. Decree of foreclosure of railroad bonds does not bar a stockholder's action to have the purchaser at foreclosure sale declared a trustee for stockholders. MacArdell v. Olcott, 93 N. Y. S. 799. Where suit against tenant for possession was decided in his favor on grounds not involving payment of rent, the judgment is not an estoppel as to whether rent was due. Cockerline v. Fisher [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 55, 103 N. W. 522. A judgment in habeas corpus awarding the custody of a child to its adoptive parents is res judicata as to the validity of the order of adoption in a subsequent proceeding between the same parties on the same facts to vacate the order of adoption. In re Clifford, 37 Wash. 460, 79 P. 1001. Decree stating heirship in a partition suit, such heirship not being in issue, is not conclusive in a subsequent suit involving other property. Stone v. Salisbury, 209 Ill. 56, 70 N. E. 605. A judgment in replevin under Rev. St. § 4965, for the forfeiture of infringing publications is not evidence that such publications were in defendant's possession in a subsequent suit for penalties for having the same in possession. Werckmeister v. American Tobacco Co., 138 F. 162. An adjudication that a will was procured by undue influence of the beneficiary does not conclude him as to the validity of a gift causa mortis from testator at about the time of the execution of the will. Reed v. Whipple [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 77, 103 N. W. 548. A decree setting aside a conveyance for incapacity of the grantor is not admissible in favor of the defendant therein, in an action by him to set aside a subsequent conveyance of the same property. Bollnow v. Roach, 210 Ill. 364, 71 N. E. 454. Where, in an action on a bond given for the payment of alimony, plaintiff prayed judgment for the penalty of the bond and for damages, and a general denial was entered, and judgment rendered for the plaintiff for the penalty and damages, held the judgment for the penalty should be treated as surplusage, and hence the judgment did not merge the bond, so as to prevent subsequent action for further damages thereon. Burnside v. Wand, 108 Mo. App. 539, 84 S. W. 995. Where a husband, living on land owned by his wife, is served with notice of an ejectment suit, but the wife is not, and after judgment he comes into possession of a life estate by the death of his wife, the judgment in the ejectment suit is not an estoppel against him as owner of such life estate. King v. Davis, 137 F. 222.

3. Rowell v. Smith, 123 Wis. 510, 102 N. W. 1; Carter v. Carter [N. D.] 103 N. W. 425; Ruckman v. Union R., 45 Or. 578, 78 P. 748; Jensen v. Montgomery [Utah] 80 P. 504; Schmidt v. Louisville, C. & L. R. Co. [Ky.] 84 S. W. 314. Only those matters are concluded which were actually decided either expressly or by necessary implication. Hudson v. Remington Paper Co. [Kan.] 80 P. 568. In ejectment against a tenant, dismissal of a bill for want of equity held not to render the question of title res judicata. Eldred v. Johnson [Ark.] 86 S. W. 670. A judgment against a charitable corporation does not conclude any question as to whether its property is subject to execution. Woman's Christian National Library Ass'n v. Fordyce [Ark.] 86 S. W. 417. Decree vacating judicial sale on finding that title had not passed concludes the parties as to the question of title. International Wood Co. v. National Assur. Co., 99 Me. 415, 59 A. 544. Decree for partition is conclusive in a suit between the same parties for partition of other land as to matters on which complainant's title to both tracts rests. Legality of an adoption. Brack v. Boyd, 211 Ill. 290, 71 N. E. 995. Matters having been determined in a former suit they are not available as a defense in a subsequent suit. Bond v. Chapman, 34 Wash. 606, 76 P. 97. A judgment adverse to an alleged widow's application for a homestead, determining that she was not decedent's widow held res judicata of such issue in subsequent proceedings for distribution of the estate. In re Harrington's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 546. Where after demand on a constable to apply certain money in his hands as the property of a judgment debtor, to plaintiff's execution, the constable impleaded the plaintiff in a proceeding in a justice court by the debtor to recover the money, a judgment therein awarding the fund to the debtor, is conclusive against the constable's liability in a subsequent proceeding for failure to apply such fund to the execution. Glass v. Shapard [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 880. A judgment, in an action to recover an instalment payment, deciding that the order under which plaintiff claimed had been revoked is conclusive on the question in a subsequent suit by plaintiff for other instalments alleged to be due under the order. Koehler v. Holt Mfg. Co., 146 Cal. 335, 80 P. 73. Judgment in action to recover possession of a mining claim held res judicata as to the parties and their successors in interest as to their then existing rights. Lauman v. Hoofer, 37 Wash. 582, 79 P. 953.

4. Judgment for separate maintenance bars suit to annul marriage. Durham v. Durham, 99 App. Div. 450, 34 Civ. Proc. R. 141, 91 N. Y. S. 295. Decree of distribution under will bars action for specific performance of contract to bequeath. Phalen v. United States Trust Co., 100 App. Div. 264, 91 N. Y. S. 537. Order directing railroad to connect its line with that of another company is conclusive on duty to exchange cars. Hudson Valley R. Co. v. Boston, etc., R., 94 N. Y. S. 545. An offer in supplementary proceedings directing the payment of a debt owing to the judgment debtor held res judicata of the question of the debtor's liability. Societa Di Mutuo Socorso v. Mantel [Cal. App.] 81 P. 659. Judgment for principal based on agent's knowledge of illegality in the employment held conclusive on agent in subsequent action for breach of the contract of employment. People v. Mercantile Co-op Bank, 93 N. Y. S. 521. After a judgment validating an issue of municipal bonds

Matters concluded.[5]—The rule of res judicata applies as well to facts settled and adjudicated as to causes of action.[6] Estoppel by res judicata extends only to matters in issue,[7] but an issue being presented by the pleadings and urged by counsel without objection, the decision of the court is conclusive, though it was not necessary to the decision.[8] An undisturbed judgment is conclusive of the facts recited therein,[9] no change of facts or conditions being shown;[10] hence, an appellate judgment affirming the case on one point and reciting that the decision of the lower court on the other points is correct renders all such questions res judicata.[11] A judgment reciting only one of several issues, the issue recited being sufficient to support the judgment, it will be presumed, in the absence of other evidence, that the other issues were not passed upon.[12] A former decree including the subject-matter in controversy in a subsequent suit, while evidence therein, is of no binding force as to facts therein incorrectly stated and incompatible with each other.[13] In some states an adjudication in respect to the exempt character of property in a suit for taxes for one year cannot be pleaded as an estoppel in suits involving taxes of other years.[14]

§ 4. Pleading and proof.[15]—Ordinarily the defense of res judicata must be presented by plea[16] and unless so presented cannot be proved over an objection properly made[17] except where the former adjudication fully appears in the complaint or answer in which case it may be raised by demurrer.[18] Res adjudicata may, an injunction will not lie to restrain the sale of the bonds on the ground that the notice of the election to authorize their issue was not published the statutory number of times. Roundtree v. Rentz, 119 Ga. 885, 47 S. E. 328. Beneficiaries of an estate held estopped from claiming that a provision of a will directing accumulations, and acts of executors in conformity therewith, were invalid. Thorn v. De Breteuil, 179 N. Y. 64, 71 N. E. 470. A judgment for plaintiff in an action wherein the complaint alleged five days peaceable and undisturbed possession by plaintiff of the land in dispute is conclusive in ejectment by plaintiff against defendant of the fact of plaintiff's peaceable and undisturbed possession for the specified five days and of the wrongfulness of defendant's entry. George v. Columbia & P. S. R. Co. [Wash.] 80 P. 767. Where defendant was personally served but defaulted and trial was had, verdict rendered, judgment entered against defendant and the property sold, held in an action by the purchaser to quiet title that the question whether defendant owed the plaintiff in the former action anything at the time of its commencement was res judicata. Lilly v. Eklund, 37 Wash. 532, 79 P. 1107.

5. See 3 C. L. 1487.

6. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Wyandotte County Com'rs, 69 Kan. 572, 77 P. 274.

7. See ante, this section, n. 2.

8. One who did not object to a decision on a particular issue, cannot object that the judgment is no bar because it was not proper to determine such issue. Dime Sav. Bank v. McAlenney [Conn.] 61 A. 476. If a matter could be and was determined it is immaterial that it need not have been. Slingluff v. Hubner [Md.] 61 A. 326.

9. Decree of distribution conclusive that fund distributed belonged to decedent. In re Morris, 91 N. Y. S. 706.

10. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Wyandotte County Com'rs, 69 Kan. 572, 77 P. 274.

11. Hall v. Kalamazoo [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 500, 104 N. W. 689.

12. Hudson v. Remington Paper Co. [Kan.] 80 P. 568. A judgment in a suit to remove a trustee, held not res judicata of plaintiff's right to contest the validity of a claim against her husband's estate. Hamilton's Ex'r v. Hamilton [Ky.] 84 S. W. 1156.

13. Partition decree. Cronkhite v. Strain, 210 Ill. 331, 71 N. E. 392.

14. Kentucky rule. Covington v. First Nat. Bank, 798 U. S. 100, 40 Law. Ed. 963.

15. See 3 C. L. 1488.

16. Thompson v. Vance, 111 La. 548, 35 So. 741; Bonanza Consol. Min. Co. v. Golden Head Min. Co. [Utah] 80 P. 736. Must be alleged in the case and cannot be raised by bill of review. Evans v. Woodsworth, 115 Ill. App. 202. The former judgment must be pleaded as a bar. Res adjudicata cannot be claimed under pleading disclaiming any bar. Smith v. McClain [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 212. Plea only for purpose of recovering costs in former action insufficient. Newburn v. Lucas, 126 Iowa, 85, 101 N. W. 730.

NOTE. Use of former judgment as evidence where it is not specially pleaded: While the universal rule is that a judgment must be specially pleaded before it can be admitted in evidence for the purpose of showing that the matter in issue is res judicata, still if a judgment in a former suit between the parties tends to disprove material facts stated by the plaintiff in his petition it may be admissible as legal proof. Glenn v. Priest [C. C. A.] 48 F. 19; Garton v. Botts, 73 Mo. 274; Krekeler v. Ritter, 62 N. Y. 372.—From Bonanza Consol. Min. Co. v. Golden Head Min. Co. [Utah] 80 P. 736. See, also, 3 C. L. 1488, n. 81, citing Werner v. Cincinnati, 23 Ohio Circ. R. 475; Smith v. Bean [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 793.

17. Thompson v. Vance, 111 La. 548, 35 So. 741.

18. Holthcide v. Smith's Guardian [Ky.] 84 S. W. 321.

however, be shown under a plea of not guilty in ejectment.[10] The plea must show identity of issues [20] and parties,[21] and that the judgment was rendered on the merits.[22] A replication denying the elements of the former adjudication in general terms is good on demurrer.[23]

The burden is on the party setting up the plea of res judicata to prove it.[24] In determining the scope of the former adjudication the record [25] controls,[26] but the record being uncertain or ambiguous,[27] or having been destroyed,[28] the scope of the former adjudication may be shown by extrinsic evidence. All essential elements must appear in the record.[29] On appeal, the record being silent, the court will presume that the rights of the parties have changed so that a former suit will not operate as a bar,[30] or that the former proceeding was found to be void.[31] The former adjudication may be proved by admissions made in the subsequent suit.[32] The fact that one is not a party may be proved by the dismissal of an appeal, taken by him, upon that ground.[33] Identity of causes of action will not ordinarily be determined on the pleadings but the case will be sent to a master.[34] Where parties and relief demanded is not the same, the question of res judicata is for the court.[35] It is improper to quash a writ in ejectment on a rule to show cause based on a former adjudication.[36]

In Arkansas an appellee may move for a dismissal on the ground that since the appeal was taken a judgment has settled against appellant the rights asserted on appeal.[37]

FORMER CONVICTION OR ACQUITTAL, see latest topical index.

19. Bruner v. Finley, 211 Pa. 74, 60 A. 488.

20. Greenfield Gas Co. v. Trees [Ind.] 75 N. E. 2.

21. Pleading held insufficient to show that person sought to be charged was a party to former action. Brown v. Fisher [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 632.

22. Armstrong v. Manatee County [Fla.] 37 So. 938. A plea that plaintiffs were defeated in a former action between the parties involving the same controversy, is insufficient since it does not show that they were defeated on the merits. Goff v. Wilburn, 25 Ky. L. R. 1963, 79 S. W. 232.

23. A replication denying in general terms lack of jurisdiction and lack of identity of parties and subject-matter is good on demurrer. United States v. Jacoby [Del. Super.] 61 A. 871.

24. To show that issues were within adjudication. Sanford v. King [S. D.] 103 Nev. 28. Where the defendant in the former suit asserted defenses not going to the merits, the burden is on one asserting an estoppel to show the grounds of decision. Callaway v. Irvin [Ga.] 51 E. 477. The issues in the two actions being different defendant in order to successfully interpose the plea of res judicata must prove that the matter has been determined in the former case. Hudson v. Remington Paper Co., [Kan.] 80 P. 568.

25 Order for judgment insufficient; judgment roll must be produced. Cuccurullo v. Societa Italiana, etc., 102 App. Div. 276, 92 N. Y. S. 420.

26. Must be tried solely on the record. Miller v. Buckley [Miss.] 38 So. 99. Evidence held to show former adjudication in Mexico. Mexican Cent. R. Co. v. Chantry [C. C. A.] 136 F. 316.

27. Parol evidence is admissible to show what was decided when the pleadings are general. Evans v. Woodsworth, 115 Ill. App. 202. If the record leaves it open to doubt as to what was litigated, there is no bar unless the uncertainty is removed by extrinsic evidence. Hartman v. Pittsburg Inclined Plane Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 360.

28. Where the pleadings have been destroyed, the issues may be shown by parol. Holford v. James [C. C. A.] 136 F. 553.

29. Record must show identity of parties. Campbell v. Upson [Tex.] 84 S. W. 817. Record in former suit, held not to show that plaintiffs in present suit were parties thereto. Id. Judgment roll must show that decision was on the merits. N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 1209. The court should examine the judgment roll in the former suit to see if decision was on merits. John D. Park & Sons Co. v. Bruen, 139 F. 698.

30. Miller v. Lanning, 211 Ill. 620, 71 N. E. 1115.

31. Bennett v. Roys, 212 Ill. 232, 72 N. E. 380.

32. Identity of subject-matter. Geisreiter v. McCoy [Ark.] 85 S. W. 86.

33. Kirkhart v. Roberts, 123 Iowa, 137, 98 N. W. 562.

34. So held where record of former action was not before the court. John D. Park & Sons Co. v. Bruen, 133 F. 807.

35. J. M. Weatherwax Lumber Co. v. Ray [Wash.] 80 P. 775.

36. Bruner v. Finley, 211 Pa. 74, 60 A. 488. Under Kirby's Dig. § 1227, providing that where an appellant's right of further prosecuting an appeal has ceased appellee may move for a dismissal. Church v. Gallic [Ark.] 88 S. W. 979.

FORMS OF ACTION.

This topic includes holdings of general application as to the distinctions between particular forms or kinds of actions; grounds for particular actions being excluded to the title appropriate to each action. The common-law forms of personal actions, now abolished in many states, will be found treated under appropriate heads.[1] The forms of actions merely, not the substance thereof, as regards the essential of the remedy, are abolished by the codes, hence we still have legal [2] and equitable [3] actions, which distinction is important, as it sometimes confers valuable rights; for instance, the right to a jury trial.[4] The distinction between actions arising ex delicto [5] and ex contractu [6] is often important in matters of procedure.[7] There may be mixed ac- The principal forms of real actions are treated under appropriate heads.[9]

The form of action is to be determined from the declaration,[10] and in determining such question, the prayer is of great weight, though the effect thereof may be waived by counsel.[11] Where a petition can be construed either as a suit ex contractu or ex delicto, the latter construction will be adopted.[12] An action at law may become one in equity by interpleading proceedings.[13]

1. See Assumptsit, 5 C. L. 297; Trespass, 4 C. L. 1698, etc.

2. An action to recover an award is one at law. Couch v. State [N. D.] 103 N. W. 942. Where, in ejectment, plaintiff claimed land under an execution sale, a defense that the property was the corpus of a spendthrift trust, in which the judgment debtor had been the beneficiary, but no affirmative relief was asked, held, action was one at law. Kessner v. Phillips [Mo.] 88 S. W. 66. An action to recover on a contract, in which the issue raised is the existence of the contract, is an action at law and cannot be changed to a suit in equity, against defendant's objection, by a mere assignment by plaintiff of his interest under the alleged contract, and making the assignees parties defendant. Butterly v. Deering, 102 App. Div. 395, 92 N. Y. S. 675.

3. An action to have an ordinance declared ultra vires and to have the town authorities enjoined from enforcing it, and alleging that by its enforcement plaintiff's property was injured, is a suit in equity. Riley v. Town of Greenwood [S. C.] 51 S. E. 532. An application to the district court by an executor or administrator for license to sell real estate is not an action in equity, but a special statutory proceeding. Bixby v. Jewell [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1026.

4. See Couch v. State [N. D.] 103 N. W. 942. See, also, Jury, 4 C. L. 358; and Equity, 5 C. L. 1144.

5. Where property converted has not been converted into money, and a suit is instituted to recover the property or its value, the action is ex delicto and not ex contracto. Southern R. Co. v. Born Steel Range Co. [Ga.] 50 S. E. 488.

6. A suit for damages based on an alleged breach of contract for the affreightment of goods is an action ex contracto. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Hubbard [Ala.] 38 So. 750. Complaint alleging that defendant received of plaintiff, as his agent, certain sums of money for the use of the plaintiff, that plaintiff demanded payment thereof, but that no part thereof has been paid, and that there is "now due and owing" a certain sum, and demands judgment for a specified amount with interest, held, an action ex contracto. Starin v. Fonda, 95 N. Y. S. 379.

7. Counts in trespass quare clausum et de bonis and in trover are properly joined. Meloon v. Read [N. H.] 59 A. 946. Grantee in a security deed cannot join in the same action a suit against the widow of the deceased grantor to recover the land described in the deed, and a suit against the administrator of the grantor's estate to recover a judgment on the debt secured by the deed. Ramey v. O'Byrne, 121 Ga. 516, 49 S. E. 595.

8. Statutory action for the recovery of real property is a mixed action; being partly an action ex delicto, but mainly to recover possession of the land. It is in no sense an action ex contracto. Ramey v. O'Byrne, 121 Ga. 516, 49 N. E. 595.

9. See Ejectment, 5 C. L. 1056; Forcible Entry and Unlawful Detainer, 3 C. L. 1435; Waste, 4 C. L. 1823, etc.

10. Durham v. Stubbings, 111 Ill. App. 10.

11. Plaintiff's counsel stating that the action was one at law held to thereby waive his prayer for equitable relief. Van Veghten v. Hudson River Power Transmission Co., 92 N. Y. S. 956.

12. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Chicago Portrait Co. [Ga.] 49 S. E 727.

13. An action to recover a reward is not changed to one of equitable cognizance by the fact that other claimants have been permitted to intervene under Rev. Codes, 1899, § 5239; the rule is otherwise when a defendant against whom there are other claimants for the same debt interpleads such claimants and secures his own discharge, and pays the money into court pursuant to Rev. Codes 1899, § 5240. Couch v. State [N. D.] 103 N. W. 942.

FORNICATION.

Fornication was not a crime at common law,[14] and its definition must be found in the statutes of the various jurisdictions, many of which require that the illicit intercourse be habitual [15] or accompanied by cohabitation apparently matrimonial.[16]

Though the offense requires the concurrent act of two persons, either may be separately indicted.[17] If the indictment allege acts constituting the offense, it need not expressly characterize it.[18] Circumstantial evidence is sufficient.[19] Instructions misstating the offense charged or ambiguous in respect thereto have been held harmless.[20]

FORTHCOMING AND DELIVERY BONDS; FORWARDERS, see latest topical index.

FRANCHISES.

The rights and privileges here treated constitute a class entirely distinct from and independent of the corporate franchise.[21]

§ 1. Definition and elements.[22]—A franchise is a special privilege conferred by a government on individuals or corporations and which does not belong to the citizens of a country generally by common right.[23] A distinction must in some cases be made between the franchise and the acquisition of an easement or license necessary to its fulfillment.[24]

§ 2. Grant of franchise and regulation of its exercise.[25]—Except as limited by constitutional provisions, the power to grant franchises involving the use of public streets and places is vested in the legislature,[26] though it may, and frequently does, delegate such power to municipal corporations,[27] but such grant does not deprive the legislature of the right to exercise the authority itself if it wishes to do so,[28] and if it does, its delegate cannot grant a franchise inconsistent or in conflict with the legisla-

14. See Clark & M., Crimes [2d Ed.] 707.
15. Whether the acts proven were sufficient to show "habitual" intercourse is for the jury. State v. Sauls, 70 S. C. 393, 50 S. E. 17.
16. Such is the effect of the use of the word "cohabit" in defining the offense. State v. Williams [Minn.] 102 N. W. 722.
17. State v. Sauls, 70 S. C. 393, 50 S. E. 17.
18. In this case there was a possible ambiguity as to whether adultery or fornication was charged, but the indictment was held sufficient. Alexander v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 56.
19. That parties were seen in bed together sufficient. Seats v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 65.
20. Seats v. State [Ga.] 50 S. E. 65.
21. The word "franchise" is sometimes used in a restricted sense and sometimes as a generic term, which may include not only the right granted by the crown in England, or by the state in this country, to be a corporation, but the right to exercise certain rights or privileges of a public nature, which properly and in the first instance belonged to the royal prerogative. There is a clear distinction between "corporate franchise" and franchises or privileges which a corporation or individual may exercise. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Omaha [Neb.] 103 N. W. 84. For the law relating to corporate franchises, see Corporations, 5 C. L. 764.
22. See 3 C. L. 1495.
23. Cyc. Law Dict. p. 390. The right to operate a public ferry is a franchise. In re Spease Ferry, 138 N. C. 219, 50 S. E. 625.
24. See Govin v. Chicago, 132 F. 848, where the act incorporating the Chicago city railways is construed and the distinction between the terms "franchises," "licenses" and "contracts" as applied to such act is shown.
25. See 3 C. L. 1496.
26. So held as regards the general assembly. State v. Missouri & K. Tel. Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 41.
27. Cities of the fourth class have power to grant franchises to erect and maintain electric light and power plants therein. State v. Taylor, 36 Wash. 607, 79 P. 286.
28. In re Spease Ferry, 138 N. C. 219, 50 S. E. 625.

tive grant.[29] The power of the municipality is limited by the terms of the grant from the legislature,[30] and is generally made conditional.[31] A municipality being annexed to another, its power to grant a franchise ceases.[32] A court granting a franchise in the absence of orderly and well-defined issues acts legislatively.[33] Franchises may be granted to individuals, or an individual, as well as to corporations, under a statute authorizing grants to "companies."[34] In the absence of constitutional provisions to the contrary, a franchise may be granted by special act,[35] and the grant may be made exclusive if the legislature so desires.[36] A franchise cannot be granted except by clear and explicit language or by implication equally clear,[37] and all rights not expressly granted are deemed reserved.[38] A grant by a municipality should generally be made by ordinance.[39] A franchise not being exclusive, it does not prevent the grant of another similar one.[40] The grantor may impose conditions on the use of the franchise,[41] which must be fully complied with within the statutory,[42] or, in the absence of a statute, a reasonable[43] time, and the fact that an

29. Act granting a special ferry franchise declaring that it should be unlawful for any person to establish a ferry within one and one-half miles thereof, held, county commissioners had no power to grant a permit for a ferry within the prohibited distance. In re Spease Ferry, 138 N. C. 219, 50 S. E. 625.

30. Where legislative act provided that there must be no obstruction of navigation, and a city granted a street railway company the right to construct a tunnel under a river, the city might insist on a removal of the tunnel as an obstruction to navigation, though the city reserved no such right in granting the privilege. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People, 214 Ill. 9, 73 N. E. 393. Where a statute provided that all franchises should be subject to such conditions as the legislature may deem it necessary to impose, the fact that a franchise granted to a street railway company by a municipality exempts the grantee from liability for street paving does not prevent the legislature from requiring that the company pave between its tracks and one foot outside thereof. Marshalltown L., P. & R. Co. v. Marshalltown [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1005.

31. An extension of a street railway into or through a municipality being an original line, the notice prescribed by Rev. St. §§ 2502, 3739, is a prerequisite to the granting of a franchise. C., C., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Urbana, B. & N. R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 583. Council obtains jurisdiction to grant a street railway franchise only by the production of consents from more than one-half the frontage. Day v. Forest City R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 393. Under Railroad Law, § 102 (Laws 1892, p. 1405, c. 676), the consent of an existing railroad to the use of streets occupied by it by a competing company is not a condition precedent to the right of such competing company to obtain the consent of the municipal authorities to the use of such streets. Electric City R. Co. v. Niagara Falls, 95 N. Y. S. 73.

32. Where the announcement of a favorable result on a vote for the consolidation of two municipalities was forbidden by a temporary injunction, a franchise obtained from the municipality that was to be annexed to the other is void. Little Rock R. & Elec. Co. v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 88 S. W. 826.

33. Probate court can grant franchise to telephone companies only by the exercise of judicial power applied to orderly and well defined issues, otherwise the grant is legislative and void. Gueen City Tel. Co. v. Cincinnati, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 411.

34. Act 1891, p. 297, c. 96, construed. Lowther v. Bridgeman [W. Va.] 50 S. E. 410.

35, 36. Ferry franchise. In re Spease Ferry, 138 N. C. 219, 50 S. E. 625.

37. Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 137 F. 111. Where none of the titles of several city ordinances granting street railway extensions indicated an intention to deal with the life of the original grant, held, an extension of the main grant could not be implied therefrom. Id.

38. Electric City R. Co. v. Niagara Falls, 95 N. Y. S. 73.

39. The granting of the right to use streets and alleys by village authorities otherwise than by ordinance is not illegal. Village of London Mills v. Fairview-London Tel. Circuit, 105 Ill. App. 146.

40. A former franchise not being exclusive, held, mayor was not justified in refusing to sign an ordinance granting a similar franchise to another corporation on the ground that the other franchise had been previously granted. State v. Taylor, 36 Wash. 607, 79 P. 286. See, also, 3 C. L. 1498, n. 83, 84.

41. Condition in a franchise to a street railway company requiring it to obtain the consent of the county court for its right of way over a bridge, held a reasonable and enforceable condition precedent. Little Rock R. & E. Co. v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 88 S. W. 826. The Union Pacific Railroad Company is required to permit the trains of all roads terminating at the Missouri river at Omaha to use its bridge at that point up to the fair limits of capacity, and upon payment of reasonable compensation. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 26 S. Ct. 19.

42. Under P. L. 1901, § 514, in the absence of a showing of bad faith, a delay of less than two years in applying for consent of municipal authorities does not forfeit the right. Nanticoke Suburban St. R. Co. v. People's St. R. Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 997.

43. Where company had to obtain consent of county court, one month held not a rea-application duly made for municipal consent is denied does not prevent a subsequent application within such time.[44] The franchise being exclusive, a second company may apply for the necessary municipal consent after its lapse by the expiration of the statutory time.[45] Additional conditions cannot be added by parol.[46] By accepting a franchise on condition, one becomes estopped to repudiate the condition [47] or to deny its reasonableness [48] or validity.[49] Except where the grant is invalid,[50] a franchise accepted and acted upon by the grantee becomes a contract,[51] which neither the grantor [52] nor the grantee [53] can abolish or alter without the consent of the other. A municipality is not bound by the act of an annexed municipality in issuing a franchise.[54]

A taxpayer cannot maintain a suit to prevent the granting of a franchise unless such franchise constitutes such a wrongful squandering or surrendering of the property or money of the city as will increase taxation.[55] One signing a petition for the granting of a franchise on a certain condition may sue to enforce the performance of the condition.[56]

The regulation of prices to be charged by a corporation intrusted with a franchise of a public utility character is within the sovereign power of the state that grants the franchise or that suffers it to be exercised within its borders,[57] and this power may be conferred on a municipal corporation; [58] but it is not a power appertaining to the government of the city, and does not follow as an incident to a grant of power to frame a charter for a city government.[59]

§ 3. Powers and duties under franchises.[60]—A franchise carries with it an implied obligation to fulfill all the purposes for which it was granted.[61] The obligations sonable time. Little Rock R. & E. Co. v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 88 S. W. 826.

44, 45. Nanticoke Suburban St. R. Co. v. People's St. R. Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 997.

46. Byars v. Bennington & H. V. R. Co., 99 App. Div. 34, 90 N. Y. S. 736.

47. Commonwealth Electric Co. v. Rose, 214 Ill. 545, 73 N. E. 780.

48. In re Topping Ave., 187 Mo. 146, 86 S. W. 190.

49. Corporation accepting the benefits of an ordinance allowing it to use the streets of the city upon certain conditions is estopped to deny that such conditions were ultra vires. Jersey City v. North Jersey St. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 61 A. 95.

50. Where ordinance is not adopted in a statutory manner, there is no contract. City may subsequently change terms. So held where city availed itself of benefits of first ordinance. City of Pensacola v. Southern Bell Tel. Co. [Fla.] 37 So. 820.

51. Street railway franchise. Virginia Passenger & Power Co. v. Commonwealth, 103 Va. 644, 49 S. E. 995; Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 135 F. 368; Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 137 F. 111. Franchise granting water company the right to maintain pipes in the streets of a city. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Meridian Waterwowrks Co., 139 F. 661. Where village board by resolution granted the owner of a telephone company the right to use the village streets. Village of London Mills v. White, 208 Ill. 289, 70 N. E. 313. Where a municipality gave its consent to the construction of a railroad upon the condition that the railroad company pay an annual license fee for each car, held to constitute an obligation resting in contract to pay such fees. Jersey City v. Jersey City & B. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 59 A. 15.

52. Street railway franchise. Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 135 F. 368. Where village board by resolution granted the owner of a telephone company the right to use the village streets. Village of London Mills v. White, 208 Ill. 289, 70 N. E. 313. A license granted to a telephone company, under which money is expended and which is not abused, is not revocable at the pleasure of the municipality. Village of London Mills v. Fairview-London Tel. Circuit, 105 Ill. App. 146.

53. Street railway franchise. Virginia Passenger & Power Co. v. Commonwealth, 103 Va. 644, 49 S. E. 995.

54. Where the announcement of a favorable result on a vote for the consolidation of two municipalities was forbidden by a temporary injunction, the fact that a franchise was obtained from the municipality to be annexed and work done thereunder without objection from the annexing municipality, held not to estop the latter from asserting the invalidity of the franchise. Little Rock R. & E. Co. v. North Little Rock [Ark.] 88 S. W. 826.

55. Clark v. Interstate Independent Tel. Co. [Neb.] 101 N. W. 977.

56. Wright v. Glen Tel. Co., 95 N. Y. S. 101.

57, 58. State v. Missouri & K. Tel. Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 41.

59. State v. Missouri & K. Tel. Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 41. Kansas City ordinance held void. Id.

60. See 3 C. L. 1497.

61. Kent v. Common Council of Binghampimposed will be construed with reference to the life of the franchise.[62] The grant is generally construed as carrying with it all incidental powers.[63] Particular duties depend upon the terms of the franchise, and being a contract, the general rules of contract interpretation are applied.[64]

§ 4. Duration and extension of term.[65]—A grant to a corporation without restriction is presumed to be for the life of the corporation.[66] The power to grant franchises being conferred on a municipal corporation without restriction, it has the power to limit the duration of the grant;[67] but a power to prescribe conditions on the exercise of the grant does not confer the power to determine the life of the grant.[68] A franchise giving a street railway corporation the right to extend its lines cannot exist after the expiration of its main franchise.[69] The fact that corporate grantees consolidate does not extend the duration of all the franchises to the date of the last expiring franchise.[70] A franchise may be renewed prior to the expiration of the original grant.[71] An ordinance renewing all the rights and privileges of a ton, 94 App. Div. 522, 88 N. Y. S. 34. The use of a franchise granted for public purposes as a mere cover for a private enterprise is contrary to public policy. Brown v. Gerald [Me.] 61 A. 785, quoting from Fanning v. Osborne, 102 N. Y. 441, 7 N. E. 307.

62. Where street railway companies consolidated, held, the imposition of transfer obligations would not prolong the life of one of the franchises. Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 137 F. 111.

63. That a street railway is forbidden to use its electricity for lighting does not preclude it from using the electricity to light the streets through which its cars run. So held where such lighting was ordered by town council. Cunningham v. Boston & W. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 74 N. E. 355.

64. Particular franchises construed [See, also, 3 C. L. 1498, n. 81]. Franchise requiring a street railway company to plank all crossings, the railroad must do so at its own expense. In re Topping Ave., 187 Mo. 146, 86 S. W. 190. A franchise requiring a street railway laying its tracks on unpaved streets to place a plank inside and outside of the rails does not require the company to "pave." West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People, 214 Ill. 9, 73 N. E. 393. Words "cost of paving" held not merely to include the actual cost of the paving itself, but also the cost of the work necessarily preliminary to the laying of the same. Danville St. R. & L. Co. v. Mater, 116 Ill. App. 519. Franchise granted by a town to a street railway on the condition that only one fare be charged for a single passage over said road, held only to apply to fares charged for riding within the limits of the town. Byars v. Bennington & H. V. R. Co., 99 App. Div. 34, 90 N. Y. S. 736. A street railway ordinance requiring the company to keep a certain portion of the streets, in which its tracks were laid, in good condition and repair, held not to impose on the company liability to assessment for the laying of a water pipe outside of such repair limit. McChesney v. Chicago, 213 Ill. 592, 73 N. E. 368. A telephone company agreeing to furnish service at a certain rate provided the subscribers furnished their own instruments, it is nevertheless entitled, if it desires, to furnish its instruments, but is not entitled to make an extra charge therefor. Wright v. Glen Tel. Co., 95 N. Y. S. 101. Telephone companies being granted the right to use streets do not thereby acquire the right to use parks or other public places outside of the streets. Id. Act 1859, incorporating Chicago city railways, held not to constitute a grant in praesenti by the legislature of streets designated by the city after it exercised its election to adopt and be governed by the provision of the act of April 23, 1875, as to which streets the railway companies' rights were regulated, by the city ordinances affecting the same. Govin v. Chicago, 132 F. 848. Act of 1859, as amended, incorporating the Chicago city railways constitute a grant to the companies named directly over the streets designated or to be designated, to the extent that the franchise granted was essential to the promotion of street railway facilities, and was not a mere grant to the city to in turn grant a franchise to the railways. Id.

65. See 3 C. L. 1498.

66. Govin v. City of Chicago, 132 F. 848.

67. Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 137 F. 111. A municipal corporation in Ohio could so do prior to the passage of 75 Ohio Laws, p. 360, providing that the grant should not be for longer than 25 years. Id. Ordinance held to fix a uniform period for the termination of the franchise of a street railway line and its extensions, and to abrogate, by consent of both parties, any prior contract for a different date. Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 137 F. 111.

68. Act of 1859, incorporating Chicago city railways, considered. Govin v. Chicago, 132 F. 848.

69. Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 137 F. 111. Does not operate to extend the latter. Id. So held where the ordinance allowed the company to extend and double track a certain line. Id.

70. Street railways. Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 137 F. 111.

71. A street railway company's franchise being extended, the franchise cannot be forfeited at the suit of an abutting property owner for the railroad's failure to complete the line within the time prescribed in the franchise before it was extended. Kent v. Common Council of Binghamton, 94 App. Div. 522, 88 N. Y. S. 34.

former franchise continues and renews rights not exercised at the passage of the renewing ordinance.[72]

§ 5. Transfer of franchises and effect thereof.[73]—An unlawful transfer cannot relieve the grantee from liability.[74] A public duty being imposed upon the grantee, it cannot relieve itself of that duty by leasing its property and franchises under a general legislative authority to lease.[75] In some states a lease to a foreign corporation is void.[76] Statutory provisions must be regarded.[77] What have been termed "secondary" franchises may be mortgaged.[78]

§ 6. Revocation and forfeiture.[79]—The franchises, other than the corporate one, of a foreign corporation, may be declared forfeited.[80] A franchise may be for-

72. Continues and renews the right of the grantee to lay street railway tracks on a portion of the territory covered by the original ordinance but not constructed at the passage of the renewing ordinance, notwithstanding the fact that such territory is not specifically named in the renewing ordinance. Akron v. Northern Ohio Traction & Light Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 445.

73. See 3 C. L. 1499.

NOTE. General rule as to the nontransferability of franchise: The cases are virtually in unison as to the doctrine that a transfer of franchises cannot be effected without the authority of the sovereign grantor. Richardson v. Sibley, 11 Allen [Mass.] 65, 87 Am. Dec. 700; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. St. Louis, etc. R. R. Co., 118 U. S. 290, 30 Law. Ed. 83; Lauman v. Lebanon Valley R. Co., 30 Pa. St. 42, 72 Am. Dec. 685; Roper v. McWhorter, 77 Va. 214; Gue v. Tide-Water Canal Co., 24 How. 257, 16 Law. Ed. 625; Coe v. Columbus, etc., R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 372, 75 Am. Dec. 518; Clarke v. Omaha, etc., R. Co., 4 Neb. 458; Black v. Delaware, etc., Canal Co., 24 N. J. Eq. 465; Ammant v. New Alexandria Turnpike Co., 13 Serg. & R. 210, 15 Am. Dec. 593; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Morris, 67 Tex. 692; Bruffet v. Great W. R. Co., 25 Ill. 353; Rogan v. Aiken, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 609, 42 Am. St. Rep. 684; Abbott v. Johnstown, etc., R. Co., 80 N. Y. 27, 36 Am. Dec. 572; Brunswick G. L. Co. v. United G., F. & L. Co., 85 Me. 532, 35 Am. St. Rep. 385. The rule is the same whether the transfer is attempted to be made by a voluntary act, such as conveyance, mortgage, lease, consolidation, or by forced sale at the instance of the creditors of the holder of the franchise. Bayard's Appeal, 72 Pa. St. 453; James v. Pontiac Road Co., 8 Mich. 91; Randolph v. Larned, 27 N. J. Eq. 557; Leedom v. Plymouth R. Co., 5 Watts & S. 265; Wood v. Truckee Turnpike Co., 24 Cal. 474. The only courts which have declined to accept the above doctrine to the full extent are those of Main, Kentucky and Vermont: Shepley v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 55 Me. 395; Kennebec, etc., R. Co. v. Portland, etc., R. Co., 59 Me. 9; Bardstown, etc., R. Co. v. Metcalfe, 4 Metc. (Ky.) 1991, 81 Am. Dec. 541; Bank of Middlebury v. Edgerton, 30 Vt. 182; Miller v. Rutland, etc., R., 36 Vt. 452. The following reasons have been assigned by the courts as the foundation of the rule: (1) A franchise is a personal trust, and the state has therefore a right to declare who shall be the transferee of such trust. See Shepley v. Atlantic R. R. Co., 55 Me. 395, where this reason is considered and rejected. (2) A corporation enjoying public franchises is an agent of the state, and on the ordinary principles of agency is incapable of delegating its powers without the permission of its principal. Beman v. Rufford, 1 Sim. N. S. 569; Great Northern R. Co. v. Eastern Counties R. Co., 9 Hare, 306; Troy and R. R. Co. v. Kerr, 17 Barb. 581. (3) A grant of a public franchise is a contract between the state and the grantee, by which the latter undertakes to perform certain public duties, from the the performance of which he cannot release himself without the consent of the other contracting party. Thomas v. Railroad Co., 101 U. S. 83, 25 Law. Ed. 950. (3) The powers of the grantee of a public franchise, like other grantees of the sovereign, are strictly limited by the instrument of grant, and the existence of a power to alienate cannot be inferred in the absence of express statutory provisions. Thomas v. Railroad Co., 101 U. S. 82, 25 Law. Ed. 950. (5) Transfer of franchises may sometimes be illegal as tending to the establishment of monopolies. Brunswick G. L. Co. v. United G. F. & L. Co., 85 Me. 532, 35 Am. St. Rep. 385.—From note to Brunswick G. L. Co. v. United G., F. & L. Co., 35 Am. St. Rep. 385, 390.

74. Where a railroad having a ferry franchise unlawfully leased the same to a foreign corporation, held liable for injuries resulting to a passenger. Brooker v. Maysville & B. S. R. Co., 26 Ky. L. R. 1022, 83 S. W. 117.

75. Ryerson v. Morris Canal & Banking Co. [N. J. Law] 59 A. 29. Held, a canal company could not relieve itself of the duty to erect and maintain bridges over the canal by leasing its canal, with all its boats, property, works, appurtenances and franchises, to a railroad company. Id.

76. A railroad possessing no greater rights than an individual would have had if granted a ferry privilege under the general law cannot lease its ferry franchise to a foreign railroad corporation. Sess. Laws 1853-54, vol. 1, p. 358, c. 178, and Ky. St. 1903, § 1808, construed. Brooker v. Maysville & B. S. R. Co., 26 Ky. L. R. 1022, 83 S. W. 117. Acts 1865-66, p. 664, c. 755, does not alter the rule. Id.

77. Foreign corporation failing to conform with Kirby's Dig. § 6749, in leasing road held subject to have its rights forfeited. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co. v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 559. Such act is not retrospective. Id.

78. Franchise granting water company the right to maintain pipes in city streets. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Meridian Waterworks Co., 139 F. 661.

79. See 3 C. L. 1499.

80. Kirby's Dig. §§ 6749, 6750, construed.

feited for a failure to perform the duties due the public.[81] Notice being required, it must be given.[82] Abandonment is a question of intention depending upon the facts of each case.[83] By accepting a new franchise, one may surrender the old.[84]

Where the grantee is in the exercise of the privileges conferred by the franchise, the remedy to set aside the latter as irregularly or fraudulently granted is by quo warranto at the suit of the state.[85] In quo warranto proceedings in courts of original jurisdiction, the right to trial by jury of issues of fact is a constitutional right.[86]

§ 7. Taxation.[87]—Franchises are taxable.[88] A legislative franchise giving the right to use city streets, the city cannot impose a tax or rental on such use.[89]

FRATERNAL MUTUAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATIONS.

Scope of title.—This title deals only with the law peculiarly applicable to fraternal and mutual benefit societies and their contracts of insurance. Matters relating to insurance companies, or insurance contracts generally, or which are common to all corporations or associations, are treated elsewhere.[1]

Louisiana & N. W. R. Co. v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 559.

81. That it is a lessee makes no difference. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co. v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 559.

82. When street railway franchise provides that a failure to comply with its terms and conditions after twenty days' notice from the city council shall operate as a forfeiture of all rights and franchises granted, the failure of the grantee to lay a track in a portion of the territory covered by the franchise will not work a forfeiture of its rights in the absence of the notice required. City of Akron v. Northern Ohio T. & L. Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 445.

83. That street railway company operated only one car a day over a certain line, and in days of snowfall no car was operated, held not to show an abandonment of route. Forty-Second, etc., R. Co. v. Cantor, 93 N. Y. S. 943. Change of route held not to amount to an abandonment of the right to run street cars on a certain street. Id. Where a corporation had an electric light and telephone franchise, the fact that an act authorizing it to connect its telephone lines with those of other companies did not mention the electric light franchise shows no abandonment thereof. Brown v. Maryland Tel. & T. Co. [Md.] 61 A. 338.

84. Where a street railway company having an alleged unlimited franchise to operate a line on a certain street accepted the terms of a subsequent ordinance authorizing it to extend its line on such street, and to equip and operate such extension and all its tracks on such street for a period of twenty-five years, the acceptance of such ordinance operated as a surrender of its alleged unlimited franchise as to such street. Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Cleveland, 137 F. 111.

85. And not by an equitable action at the suit of private parties. Clark v. Interstate Independent Tel. Co. [Neb.] 101 N. W. 977. See Quo Warranto, 4 C. L. 1177.

86. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co. v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 559.

87. See 3 C. L. 1499.

88. See Taxes, 4 C. L. 1605.

89. Memphis v. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., 139 F. 707.

1. See titles Insurance, 4 C. L. 157; Cor-

§ 1. Nature, organization and powers.[2]—Fraternal beneficiary associations are limited in their powers by their articles and by-laws.[3] Their sessions may be held in states other than where incorporated, when organized to do business in such states.[4] Societies created by different states can consolidate only under concurrent legislation of such states, in which case there is a separate corporation in each state.[5]

Legislative control as to insurance.[6]—Beneficial societies are usually exempted from the provisions of the general insurance laws.[7] The exemption applies to foreign societies authorized to do business in the state.[8] The question of what mortuary rates fraternal insurance associations must adopt may be determined by the legislature.[9] Under the statutes of Alabama, a city can impose a license fee on mutual aid associations and provide a penalty for doing business without such license.[10]

Protection of ritual and individuality.[11]

Status of local lodges and relation to supreme body.[12]—The subordinate lodge is the agent of the society, not of the claimant, notwithstanding proofs of loss were forwarded through the secretary.[13] A local society of a mutual benefit association cannot by resolution sever its connection with the association and assume the payment of the benefit certificates of its members, such action being in violation of the constitutional provision against the impairment of the obligation of contracts.[14] Where a local lodge is required to collect a fund to be sent at stated intervals to the grand lodge, prior to such transmission the local lodge has a property right in such funds.[15] Matters relating to the winding up and dissolution of such associations are treated elsewhere.[16]

§ 2. Foreign associations.[17]—The statutes of the state of the association's porations, 3 C. L. 880; Foreign Corporations, 3 C. L. 1455; Associations and Societies, 5 C. L. 292.

A few cases arising on contracts of insurance of the kind excluded are retained because of applicability of the rules laid down.

2. See 3 C. L. 1500.

3. The certificate of association in Illinois must contain a limitation as to the ages of applicants for membership, which is material and precludes the admission of persons not within such limitation. Fraternal Tribunes v. Steele, 114 Ill. App. 194.

4. Head Camp, Pac. Jur., Woodmen of the World v. Woods [Colo.] 81 P. 261.

5. Whaley v. Bankers' Union of the World [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 431, 88 S. W. 259.

6. See 3 C. L. 1500.

7. In Iowa, under Code, c. 9, tit. 9, § 1825. Held, that the provision of Code, c. 8, tit. 9, § 1812, estopping a company from the defense that insured was not in good health, when its own examiner certifies to his good health, has no application to fraternal associations. Smith v. Supreme Lodge Knights & Ladies of Golden Precept, 123 Iowa, 676, 99 N. W. 553. The Royal Arcanum is a fraternal order and exempt from the insurance laws of the state of Ohio, within the meaning of Rev. St. §§ 3631-11. Gilligan v. Supreme Council of Royal Arcanum, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 471, 26 Ohio Circ. R. 42.

8. Loyd v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 530; Pauley v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 990.

9. The act of Washington, Laws 1901, p. 356, c. 174, making it necessary for subsequently formed associations to adopt assessment rates not lower than those indicated as necessary by a certain mortality table, held valid. State v. Fraternal Knights & Ladies, 35 Wash. 338, 77 P. 500.

10. Acts 1894-95, p. 635, § 10; Act Dec. 13, 1900 (Acts 1900-1901, p. 538); Act Feb. 28, 1901 (Acts 1900-1901, p. 1921). City Council of Montgomery v. Shaddox [Ala.] 36 So. 369.

11, 12. See 3 C. L. 1501.

13. Pioneer Reserve Ass'n v. Jones, 111 Ill. App. 156.

14. An association organized under How. Ann. St. c. 164. Kern v. Arbeiter Unterstuetzungs Verein [Mich.] 102 N. W. 746.

15. Conversion of the funds of such a lodge, though unincorporated, is an offense, under Rev. St. 1899, § 1918, making it embezzlement for an officer or member of such organization to convert its funds. State v. Knowles 185 Mo. 141, 83 S. W. 1083.

16. See Corporations, 3 C. L. 880; Receivers, 4 C. L. 1238. Where an ineffectual attempt was made by a foreign mutual benefit association to consolidate with an insolvent domestic association and take over its assets and certificates, a certificate holder of the latter could enforce his rights only through its receiver after he had recovered its assets. Whaley v. Bankers' Union of the World [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 431, 88 S. W. 259. A beneficiary whose claim had been approved had the right to attach funds of the association collected for the payment of claims generally, so as to acquire a lien which could not be defeated by the subsequent appointment of a receiver. National Park Bank v. Clark, 92 App. Div. 262, 87 N. Y. S. 185.

17. See 3 C. L. 1502.

domicile govern in the determination of its character.[18] In the absence of proof to the contrary, it will be presumed that a foreign beneficial association was created for the same purpose as similar associations under the laws of the state where it is doing business.[19] The statutes of the different states generally give foreign associations the right to be admitted, upon compliance with their terms,[20] and place them on the same footing as domestic associations;[21] and an exact correspondence with the classification of beneficiaries prescribed in the domestic statute is not required.[22]

§ 3. Officers, agents, organizers, physicians, etc.[23]

§ 4. Members and discipline.[24]—Beneficiary associations have the inherent power to expel a member for offenses affecting the life and integrity of the organization, by insubordination and resistance to the supreme law of the order.[25] Where the by-laws of a police relief association made a distinction between "active" and "retired" members of the force, the regulations of the police commissioners determined the status of the members.[26] Where a member, who is dissatisfied with a change of plan of insurance, elects to cancel his certificate and demand a return of the money he has paid, he is bound to pursue that remedy.[27]

Arbitration of disputes and claims.[28]—In order to preclude a member or beneficiary from resorting to the courts to enforce his contract with the association, there must be an express and specific contract shown for some other mode of settlement.[29] While a member, in controversies concerning the discipline or policy of the order, must resort to the method of procedure prescribed by the association, including the remedy by appeal,[30] yet, where a member claims money due on a contract of insur-

18. It is not sufficient to constitute a foreign association a beneficiary and fraternal society that it calls itself such and that it is authorized to do business in the state as such. Herzberg v. Modern Brotherhood of America, 110 Mo. App. 328, 85 S. W. 986. Correspondence of the laws of Illinois, the domicile, and those of Missouri, where the corporation was doing business, as to the definition of a fraternal benefit society. Loyd v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 530. A foreign fraternal beneficial association is a life insurance company under the laws of New York (Laws 1892, p. 1933, c. 690, art. 7). Within the meaning of the question as to whether applicant had ever been rejected by any insurance company or association. Alden v. Supreme Tent, Knights of Maccabees, 178 N. Y. 535, 71 N. E. 104. A mutual beneficiary association organized under the act of Illinois of 1883 (Laws 1883, p. 104) and afterward reorganized under the act of 1893 (Laws 1893, p. 130) held to be an association doing business under the later act. Pauley v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 990.

19. So held in Texas, under Acts 1899, p. 195, §§ 1, 2, 3. Whaley v. Bankers' Union of the World [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 431, 88 S. W. 259.

20. The statutes of Ohio are mandatory upon the superintendent of insurance to issue the necessary certificate. Rev. St. §§ 3631-13, 3631-16. State v. Vorys, 69 Ohio St. 56, 68 N. E. 580.

21. Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 1406. Loyd v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 530. The statute of Kentucky (Ky. St. 1903, § 679), providing that all life policies referring to by-laws having any bearing on the contract, shall have a copy thereof attached to make them admissible in evidence, applies to foreign beneficial associations. Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Hunziker [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1134.

22. An Illinois association is not excluded merely because, in certain cases, a member may name a charitable institution as his beneficiary, which is not provided for in the Missouri statute. Pauley v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 990.

23, 24. See 3 C. L. 1502.

25. Under by-laws providing for expulsion for publicly attacking or scandalizing the national council, a member may be expelled for publishing derogatory articles in newspapers, etc. Crow v. Capital City Council, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 411.

26. Nickerson v. Providence Police Ass'n, 26 R. I. 40, 57 A. 1057.

27. He cannot file a bill to compel the company to continue operations under the original plan. Iversen v. Minnesota Mut. Life Ins. Co., 137 F. 268.

28. See 3 C. L. 1503.

29. See 3 C. L. 1503, n. 52. The remedy provided within the Order of Foresters for collection of a benefit certificate must be exhausted before resort can be had to the courts. Supreme Court, etc., of Foresters v. Herlinger, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 28.

30. Pearson v. Anderburg, 28 Utah, 495, 80 P. 307. A by-law prohibiting a resort to the civil courts for redress, until a member has exhausted every means of appeal in the order, under penalty of expulsion, is not void as an attempt to oust the courts of their jurisdiction. Held, that a member suspended and fined, under an invalid order entered by one of the tribunals of the society, could not resort to the civil courts until he had exercised the right of appeal authorized by the by-laws. McGuiness v. Court Elm City, No. 1, Foresters of America

ance, the right to resort to the law courts will not be abridged by the right of appeal to a higher tribunal of the society.[31] The tribunals of the order must afford a reasonably prompt hearing of claims.[32] While strict rules of procedure are not enforced in such tribunals, and the trials need not be conducted with absolute technical accuracy, the proceedings must be regular and conducted in good faith;[33] the accused must be accorded a full and fair hearing,[34] and a proper finding and judgment entered on the facts.[35] Notice of rejection of a claim must be given to the member personally.[36]

§ 5. Membership and contract securing benefits.[37] A. Membership.—A member may, at any time, with or without cause, terminate his membership in a voluntary benefit association.[38] Though formal provisions as to withdrawal of a member are not strictly complied with, the parties may waive strict compliance and cancel the policy by agreement.[39]

(§ 5) B. Application for benefits.[40]—As in all insurance, material misrepresentations in the application avoid the contract,[41] irrespective of whether the applicant knew of their materiality,[42] and where the answers in the application are made warranties, false statements vitiate the policy, whether material or immaterial;[43]

[Conn.] 60 A. 1023. The civil courts are always inclined to sustain the decisions of the judicial tribunals of beneficiary organizations, in the interpretation of their rules and regulations (Crow v. Capital City Council, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 411), and their determination of controversies between grand and subordinate bodies must be accepted (Id.). Held that, under the by-laws, the directors were not constituted a tribunal to settle grievances of individual members, and members unlawfully suspended were not required to submit their claims to the directors before resorting to the courts. Moeller v. Machine Printers' Beneficial Ass'n [R. I.] 60 A. 591.

31. Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen v. Greaser, 108 Ill. App. 598. Where property rights in an association are involved, and not a mere question of discipline, a claimant is not obliged to exhaust the remedies by appeal within the association before bringing suit. Independent Order of Foresters v. Mutter, 105 Ill. App. 518. Where the action of a beneficial association in dropping a member from its rolls is grossly irregular and unjust, he may sue to recover sick benefits, notwithstanding a stipulation to submit his grievances to the tribunals of the association. Pearson v. Anderburg, 28 Utah, 495, 80 P. 307. A member who has been deprived of sick benefits for violation of an invalid by-law is not required to submit the controversy as to his right to them to the standing committee for trying offenses against members. Loftus v. Division No. 7, Ancient Order of Hibernians [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1119. Beneficiary held not to have been precluded from resort to the courts by failure to appeal under the laws of the order. Wells & McComas Council No. 14, Junior Order United American Mechanics v. Littleton [Md.] 60 A. 22.

32. Where the by-laws provided that a claimant, whose benefit claim had been rejected, should not sue in the courts until after two appeals to the tribunals of the order, one of which tribunals convened only once in two or three years, such by-laws were unreasonable and invalid as a partial ouster of the jurisdiction of the courts. Kane v. Supreme Tent Knights of Maccabees of the World [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 547.

33. Crow v. Capital City Council, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 411.

34. Crow v. Capital City Council, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 411; Loftus v. Division No. 7, Ancient Order of Hibernians [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1119.

35. Crow v. Capital City Council, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 411.

36. Notice to the local secretary of the society is not notice to the member, notwithstanding proofs of loss may have been forwarded through such secretary. Pioneer Reserve Ass'n v. Jones, 111 Ill. App. 156.

37. See 3 C. L. 1504.

38. When membership deemed terminated by resignation from lodge. Chaloupka v. Bohemian Roman Catholic First Central Union, 111 Ill. App. 585.

39. Facts held to constitute a cancellation and surrender of policy. Nelson v. Farm Property Mut. Ins. Ass'n [Iowa] 103 N. W. 966.

40. See 3 C. L. 1504.

41. Royal Neighbors of America v. Wallace [Neb.] 102 N. W. 1020; Supreme Lodge of Order of Columbian Knights v. McLaughlin, 108 Ill. App. 85. Where an applicant is informed that he cannot have insurance if either of his parents died of consumption, a false answer that they had not bars recovery whether it be deemed a warranty or a representation. Hoagland v. Supreme Council, Royal Arcanum [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 982.

42. False statements made in the application, either through inadvertence, ignorance or mistake, avoid the certificate. Binder v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n [Iowa] 102 N. W. 190.

43. Rupert v. Supreme Court U. O. F. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 715; Supreme Lodge of Order of Columbian Knights v. McLaughlin, 108 Ill. App. 85. Ga. Civ. Code 1895, §§ 2097, 2098. Supreme Conclave Knights of Damon v. Wood, 120 Ga. 328, 47 S. E. 940. Where but a mere representation need be only substantially complied with and in matters material to the risk.[44] A fraudulent representation will always avoid the contract, even where it relates to an immaterial matter.[45] Answers which are merely expressions of opinion are warranties of the bona fide belief and judgment of the applicant;[46] but, though untrue, if made in good faith, will not avoid the policy.[47] Where the application is prepared by the company's agent without the assistance of the applicant,[48] or where the agent fails to disclose certain statements therein to an applicant whom he knows cannot read,[49] the applicant is not bound by the application. Where the intent to make the application a part of the contract clearly appears, the court will read it into the contract, whatever may be its phraseology;[50] but when the application is not made a part of the policy, the statements therein are not warranties.[51] The execution of a life policy waives a medical examination and an application on one of the regular forms of the association.[52]

A fraternal beneficiary association is a "life insurance company" within the meaning of the question in an application, "Has any life insurance company declined to grant a policy on your life, and, if so, why?"[53]

(§ 5) C. Certificate.[54]—As to signatures, delivery and receipt by the member, the certificate must correspond with the positive requirements of the laws of the association.[55]

the applicant warranted that he had not been under a physician's care within five years, whereas he had visited one nearly every day during that time for granulated eyelids. Brock v. United Moderns [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 340. The use of the term "warranty" in the application, in relation to the answers given, is not conclusive that they are warranties, as against the tenor of the contract as a whole. O'Connor v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., 146 Cal. 484, 80 P. 688.

44. Supreme Council Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. Beggs, 110 Ill. App. 139. Questions concerning the physical condition of the applicant, or anything that tends to shorten his life, do not invariably require absolute truth in answering. Rupert v. Supreme Court U. O. F. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 715. But the statement by the applicant that he is in good health, when he has knowledge of facts tending to show his affliction with a fatal disease, will be presumed to be fraudulent. Royal Neighbors of America v. Wallace [Neb.] 102 N. W. 1020. Evidence held sufficient to show the falsity of the answers to questions as to whether applicant had been subject to certain diseases. Smith v. Supreme Lodge Knights & Ladies of Golden Precept, 123 Iowa, 676, 99 N. W. 553; O'Connor v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., 146 Cal. 484, 80 P. 688.

45. Supreme Council Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. Beggs, 110 Ill. App. 139. A misrepresentation renders the policy void for fraud, while noncompliance with a warranty operates as a breach of the contract. Supreme Lodge of Order of Columbian Knights v. McLaughlin, 108 Ill. App. 85. Where there is doubt as to whether it is required that the answers in an application should be literally true or only that they should not be willfully false, and the doubt was created by the society, the assured is relieved from the obligation of a strict warranty. O'Connor v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., 146 Cal. 484, 80 P. 688. Evidence held insufficient to sustain the allegation of misrepresentations as to the use of intoxicating liquors. Puls v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. [N. D.] 102 N. W. 165. The purpose of questions in the application relative to the use of intoxicating liquors held to be to ascertain the extent of their use and that the insurer was not misled by the answers, though the insurer was not a total abstainer. Endowment Rank Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Townsend [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 220.

46. Rupert v. Supreme Court U. O. F. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 715.

47. Royal Neighbors of America v. Wallace [Neb.] 102 N. W. 1020.

48. Bushnell v. Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co., 110 Mo. App. 223, 85 S. W. 103. Omissions by the agent of the insurer of answers made by the applicant are chargeable to the insurer. Home Circle Soc. No. 2 v. Shelton [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 320. The fact that the agent who took the application was named a beneficiary does not affect the rule that omission by the agent of answers by the applicant does not invalidate the insurance. Id.

49. Home Circle Soc. No. 1 v. Shelton [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 84.

50. Blasingame v. The Royal Circle, 111 Ill. App. 202. Where a statute provides for the attaching of the application, or a copy thereof, to the policy, before it can be treated as a part of the contract, any waiver of liability contained in the application is not available to the order, unless it has been so attached. Ky. St. 1903, § 679, held applicable to fraternal insurance orders doing business on the lodge plan. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. of Kentucky v. Edwards [Ky.] 85 S. W. 701.

51. Supreme Council Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. Beggs, 110 Ill. App. 139.

52. Weber v. Ancient Order of Pyramids, 104 Mo. App. 729, 78 S. W. 650.

53. Alden v. Supreme Tent, Knights of Maccabees, 178 N. Y. 535, 71 N. E. 104.

54. See 3 C. L. 1505.

55. Contract of insurance held inoperative

(§ 5) D. Nature and construction of contract.[56]—The relation existing between the member and the association is a contractual one,[57] and the ordinary rules in regard to contracts apply.[58] The certificate, constitution, rules and regulations and the by-laws of a beneficial association constitute the contract between the association and its members.[59] The contract of insurance will be strictly construed against the company preparing it and liberally as against the insured.[60] Where the insurance contract consists of several different instruments, each one will be read and construed with reference to the others, so as to give the contract effect as a whole.[61] The materiality or immateriality of a fact in an insurance contract may depend upon the wording of the contract.[62] Words used in the contract, having a narrower meaning appropriate to the purpose, will not be given their broadest import, when that has no reference to good faith or hazard and leads to absurdity, or demands an impossibility.[63] In the absence of evidence, it will not be presumed that the statutes of another state contain any limitation as to the age of persons insurable in fraternal benefit associations organized in such state.[64] The contract, during the lifetime of the insured, is executory and conditional on both sides,[65] and as to the rights of the beneficiary,[66] but becomes fixed and absolute at the death of the insured.[67] A policy of life insurance, valid in its inception, remains so, although the insurable interest or relationship of the beneficiary has ceased, unless otherwise stipulated.[68] The contract of insurance is a contract of the state where it is finally consummated.

The construction of particular contracts will be found in the notes.[70] where the certificate was neither delivered, received nor signed as required. Sterling v. Head Camp, Pacific Jurisdiction, Woodmen of the World, 28 Utah, 505, 80 P. 375. A written acceptance of the certificate, by the member, held not requisite to its validity, under the by-laws. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 372.

56. See 3 C. L. 1505.

57. The contract, whether certain or uncertain, is between the individual certificateholder and the association. Gilbert v. Washington Beneficial Endownment Ass'n, 21 App. D. C. 344.

58. See 3 C. L. 1506, n. 92. A mistake made by the association in setting out an article of its charter in the contract of insurance binds the association, where the insured acts in good faith thereon. Binder v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n [Iowa] 102 N. W. 190.

59. Chevaliers v. Shearer, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 587.

60. O'Connor v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., 146 Cal. 484, 80 P. 688; Supreme Lodge of Order of Columbian Knights v. McLaughlin, 108 Ill. App. 85; Binder v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n [Iowa] 102 N. E. 190; Clemens v. Royal Neighbors of America [N. D.] 103 N. W. 402.

61. Sterling v. Head Camp, Pac. Jur., Woodmen of the World, 28 Utah, 526, 80 P. 1110. The application, whatever may be its phraseology, will be read into the contract, where such appears to be the intent of the parties. Blasingame v. The Royal Circle, 111 Ill. App. 202.

62, 63. Rupert v. Supreme Ct. U. O. F. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 715.

64. Wood v. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle, 212 Ill. 532, 72 N. E. 783.

65. Gilbert v. Washington Beneficial Endowment Ass'n, 21 App. D. C. 344.

66. Tisch v. Protected Home Circle [Ohio] 74 N. E. 188.

67. Gilbert v. Washington Beneficial Endowment Ass'n, 21 App. D. C. 344.

68. White v. Brotherhood of American Yeomen, 124 Iowa, 293, 99 N. W. 1071.

69. A certificate issued in Illinois to a resident of New York, to take effect only upon the execution of an agreement of acceptance indorsed thereon, is a New York contract, where the agreement is executed there. Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Meyer, 198 U. S. 508, 49 Law. Ed. 1146.

70. A provision in a certificate that no benefits shall be due until disability ceases or the right to benefits has terminated, does not apply to a permanent total disability. Binder v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n [Iowa] 102 N. W. 190. Stipulations with the relief department of a railroad company, that the bringing of suit for damages for death, or the payment by the company of damages for injuries or death shall operate as a release to the relief department, are valid. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Ray [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 942. Under a by-law providing for a benefit, "if a member loses both feet, both hands or both eyes, thereby becoming totally disabled," it is not necessary that both feet or legs be actually severed from the body; it is enough if they be so badly injured that they cannot perform their functions. Theorell v. Supreme Court of Honor, 115 Ill. App. 313. The attendance of a physician at his office is sufficient to constitute "medical attendance;" attendance at the patient's home is not necessary. Gilligan v. Supreme Council of Royal Arcanum, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 471, 26 Ohio Circ. R. 42. The rupture of a blood vessel, caused by heavy lifting, the party then suffering from arterial sclerosis, or hardening of the blood vessels, was not an accident, within the meaning of a certificate providing for indemnity in case of accidental injury. Niskern v. United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners of America, 93 App. Div. 364, 87 N. Y. S. 640. The scope of the term "total disability," used in contracts of indemnity against injury by accident, considered and discussed. Order of United Commercial Travelers of America v. Barnes [Kan.] 80 P. 1020. Plaintiff who was able to take trips for his health held not entitled to sick benefits under a policy agreeing to pay an indemnity when the insured was entirely and continuously "confined in bed" and under a physician's care. Bradshaw v. American Benev. Ass'n [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 46. Death received while retreating from an encounter, brought on by an assault committed by deceased himself, is not a death "in violation or attempted violation of any criminal law," within the terms of a policy exempting the company from liability in such cases. Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Bradley [Ark.] 83 S. W. 1055. A clause making the policy incontestable except as to representations in relation to age, occupation and use of alcohol, and another reducing the indemnity in case of suicide, are separate and in no wise affect each other. Childress v. Fraternal Union of America, 113 Tenn. 252, 82 S. W. 832. Where initiation is made by the by-laws a condition precedent to membership, a certificate can have no force until after initiation. The delivery of a certificate before initiation by the officers of a local lodge was beyond the scope of its authority and did not constitute a waiver. Loyd v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 530. When a certificate, issued by a beneficial association to one of its members, provided that if the holder lose one of his hands by accident, he shall be paid one-fourth the face value of the policy from the benefit fund, and that "this certificate is issued subject to, and to be construed and controlled by the constitution, laws, rules and regulations of the order," the holder thereof is not entitled to recover for a permanent loss of one of his hands unless it be amputated at or above the wrist, where the constitution provides for payment only in such case, and this, notwithstanding the holder had no actual knowledge of such latter provision. Chevaliers v. Shearer, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 587.

(§ 5) E. Charter and by-laws as part of contract.[71]—The charter,[72] constitution and by-laws of a fraternal order, as they exist at the time of making a contract of insurance, become, as a matter of law, a part of the contract.[73] A fraternal benefit society has the inherent power to adopt such by-laws as its charter permits, which cannot be taken away by its own constitution, so called.[74] A member of a fraternal order is presumed to know and understand its charter, constitution, by-laws, rules and regulations, and they are binding upon him;[75] but he cannot be charged with knowledge of the charter and by-laws before he becomes a member.[76] The construction given to the by-laws of a society by its officers is not binding on the courts.[77]

71. See 3 C. L. 1507.

72. See special article By-Laws—Amendment as affecting existing membership contracts, 5 C. L. 496. Binder v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n [Iowa] 102 N. W. 190.

73. Butler v. Supreme Council A. L. H., 93 N. Y. S. 1012; O'Connor v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., 146 Cal. 484, 80 P. 688; Supreme Council Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. Beggs, 110 Ill. App. 139; Loyd v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 530. The constitution of the general association as well as that of the constituent local society. Kern v. Arbeiter Unterstuetzungs Verein [Mich.] 102 N. W. 746. Constitution made a part of certificate. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Hicks [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 425.

74. The constitution of a fraternal benefit society has no greater force than its by-laws. Blasingame v. The Royal Circle, 111 Ill. App. 202, citing K. of P. v. Kutscher, 179 Ill. 340. A provision which appears as a clause in the "constitution" of an association may nevertheless be regarded only as a mere by-law in the established legal signification of that term. See the distinction between the "charter" of a corporation and its "constitution" pointed out in Supreme Lodge v. Knight, 117 Ind. 489, 3 L. R. A. 409. Burns v. Manhattan Brass Mut. Aid Soc., 102 App. Div. 467, 92 N. Y. S. 846. The state and Federal constitutions are "laws," within the meaning of the statute authorizing mutual benefit associations to make regulations for their government not contrary to the laws of the state or the United States. How. Ann. St. c. 164, § 4. Kern v. Arbeiter Unterstuetzungs Verein [Mich.] 102 N. W. 746.

75. Sterling v. Head Camp, Pac. Jur., Woodmen of the World, 28 Utah, 505, 80 P. 375; Binder v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n [Iowa] 102 N. W. 190; Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W. v. Marshall, 31 Ind. App. 534, 68 N. E. 605; Pete v. Woodmen of the World, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 446. Especially when they are made a part of the benefit certificate. Loyd v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 530. Where a local camp was disbanded, a member was charged with knowledge of the rules relative to transfer of membership to another camp, so as to retain his financial standing. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Hicks [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 425.

76. The payment of the fee and the delivery of the policy being contemporaneous acts, completing the membership, a member is not presumed to know that the contingent fee paid to the agent is greater than allowed by the charter and by-laws. Younghoe v. Grain Shippers' Mut. Fire Ins. Ass'n, 126 Iowa, 374, 102 N. W. 137.

77. Morey v. Monk [Ala.] 38 So. 265.

Amendments to the constitution or by-laws, or additions thereto, adopted after the making of the contract, do not enter into it, unless consented to by the member,[78] or authorized by the charter of the association.[79] The assent of a member to changes in the by-laws affecting the contract of insurance may be implied,[80] or may be given in advance by an agreement to be bound by by-laws subsequently enacted.[81] But such new by-laws must be reasonable,[82] in harmony with the general policy of the order,[83] and not in conflict with the general statutes.[84] A fraternal beneficiary society cannot under the reserved power to amend its laws, reduce the amount stipulated to be paid, without the consent of the certificate holder;[85] and where the association repudiates its contract by reducing the amount of the death benefit, a member may treat it as rescinded and recover the amounts paid as assessments, with interest thereon.[86] A change from the assessment to the old-line plan of insurance is not a change in the essential character of the corporation's business, and can be made over the protest of a minority of policy holders.[87] Nor does such a change constitute an impairment of the obligation of its existing contracts, where no attempt was made to repudiate such contracts and the assessments levied are not unreasonable.[88] By-laws operate prospectively only.[89] The intention to make them retrospective must be clear and undoubted;[90] and it will be presumed that an amendment to the 78. Butler v. Supreme Council A. L. R., 93 N. Y. S. 1012; National Council of Knights & Ladies of Security v. Dillon, 108 Ill. App. 183.

79. Member held bound by a subsequent amendment of the constitution and by-laws, limiting the right to name beneficiaries. Brinnen v. Supreme Council of Catholic Mut. Ben. Ass'n [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 147, 103 N. W. 603. The first trustees of a beneficial association have power to adopt a provision which concerns the conduct of its business, such as providing that the members shall not be entitled to share in the benefit fund for the loss of a hand, unless amputation at or above the wrist follows the injury. Chevaliers v. Shearer, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 587.

80. Surrender of a certificate and receipt of a new one, after an amendment to the by-laws, is an assent to the amendment. Breslow v. Southern Tier Masonic Relief Ass'n, 94 N. Y. S. 787. The acceptance of a reduced certificate, under a by-law scaling existing certificates, believing it to be binding, being a mistake of law, is binding on the member, in the absence of misrepresentation. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Garrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 27.

81. Theorell v. Supreme Court of Honor, 115 Ill. App. 313; Head Camp, Pac. Jur., Woodmen of the World v. Woods [Colo.] 81 P. 261; Modern Woodmen of America v. Wieland, 109 Ill. App. 340.

82. Theorell v. Supreme Court of Honor, 115 Ill. App. 313. A by-law destructive of the liability the society had assumed would be unreasonable. Modern Woodmen of America v. Wieland, 109 Ill. App. 340. If the laws are so amended as to make persons engaged in the liquor business ineligible, such persons already members must be given a reasonable time to abandon the business and withdraw their investments therein. Id.

83. Modern Woodmen of America v. Wieland, 109 Ill. App. 340.

84. A by-law, subsequently adopted, providing a shorter time for bringing actions than that prescribed in the statute of limitation in the absence of contract. Butler v. Supreme Council A. L. R., 93 N. Y. S. 1012.

85. A member cannot be held to have ratified such reduction, by the payment of a reduced premium, in the absence of proof that he knew such reduction was occasioned solely by the reduction in the indemnity to be paid. Smith v. Supreme Council, A. L. H., 94 App. Div. 357, 88 N. Y. S. 44. Or where the association refused to receive any greater assessments and he notified the association of his refusal to consent to the reduction. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Champe [C. C. A.] 127 F. 541. Unless he delays so long as to mislead the association or prejudice its interests thereby. Lippincott v. Supreme Council, A. L. H., 130 F. 483; Clymer v. Supreme Council, A. L. H., 138 F. 470. Benefits cannot be reduced by amendment of by-laws, though power to amend is reserved and certificate provided that payment should be of such sum as by-laws prescribed. Evans v. Southern Tier Masonic Relief Ass'n [N. Y.] 75 N. E. 317.

86. He does not lose the right by delay, so long as he has done nothing to affirm the action of the association, or unless the position of the association has been altered to its injury by the delay; nor is he barred by a limitation in the by-laws, which, from its context, applies only to actions to recover on the certificate after the death of a member. Daix v. Supreme Council, A. L. H., 127 F. 374. Where, after the adoption of a by-law scaling all $5,000 certificates to $2,000, the holder of a $5,000 certificate returned it with a request for a new one for $2,000, she was not entitled to recover the premiums paid on the $5,000 certificate. Supreme Council, A. L. H., v. Lyon [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 435.

87, 88. Iversen v. Minnesota Mut. Life Ins. Co., 137 F. 268.

89. National Council of Knights & Ladies of Security v. Dillon, 108 Ill. App. 183.

90, 91. Modern Woodmen of America v. Wieland, 109 Ill. App. 340.

by-laws of a mutual benefit society was not intended to affect a contract of insurance previously made.[91] A contract of insurance made in contravention of the charter is ultra vires,[92] and unenforceable, though performed in good faith by insured, and the association has had the benefit of it.[93] But a contract made in contravention of the by-laws is not absolutely void; for a mutual benefit association may waive compliance with its by-laws, and any provisions therein attempting to disable the organization from so doing are nugatory;[94] but a local lodge cannot do so.[95]

§ 6. Dues and assessments.[96]—Assessments can be made only as provided by the laws of the association.[97] The authority of the directors to make assessments cannot be delegated to the secretary.[98, 99] A member cannot be compelled to pay assessments after suspension or forfeiture.[1] The liability of a certificate holder in a beneficial endowment association to pay assessments terminates upon its insolvency and the commencement of proceedings to wind up its affairs.[2]

Notice.[3]—Where the constitution of a beneficial association provides what shall constitute an assessment and notice thereof, all members are bound thereby.[4] Before forfeiture for nonpayment of assessments can avail as a defense, it must appear that the member has been notified in the precise manner required by the rules;[5] and in the absence of any prescribed kind of notice to be given of an extra assessment, actual notice must be given to each member.[6]

§ 7. Forfeitures and suspensions; reinstatement.[7]—Fines and penalties imposed, if not illegal, immoral or against public policy, will be enforced.[8] Provisions

92. The admission of a person beyond the age limit. And the society, by the receipt and retention of dues and assessments, does not waive the right to contest a claim upon the certificate issued to such person. Fraternal Tribunes v. Steele, 114 Ill. App. 194; Supreme Ruling of the Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Wood, 114 Ill. App. 431. But an association is estopped from taking advantage of the fact that the insured was above the age limit, where such limit is not fixed in its organic law, and it was within the power of the association to determine insured's real age. Wood v. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle, 212 Ill. 532, 72 N. E. 783.

93. Steele v. Fraternal Tribunes, 215 Ill. 190, 74 N. E. 121.

94. Where an association always restored a member upon payment of three months' arrearages, it justified a member in believing his insurance still in force, although he was delinquent for a month's dues, and was a waiver of its by-laws to that extent. Cline v. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 501. Where the officers of the local camp visited the member while ill, obligated him, collected the premium and dues and delivered the certificate, with full knowledge of the condition of the insured, the association was liable on the certificate, notwithstanding a requirement of a by-law that the certificate should be delivered to the applicant while in good health. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Dismukes [Miss.] 38 So. 351.

95. Where initiation is made a condition precedent to membership in the order, a local lodge cannot waive initiation by delivery of the certificate. Loyd v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 530. Where the constitution prohibits the initiation of members over fifty years of age, its officers cannot admit such person Pirrung v. Supreme Council of Catholic Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 93 N. Y. S. 575.

96. See 3 C. L. 1510.

97. Maximum assessment under the by-laws held to be only one sufficient to pay $10 a week for each member out of employment. Moeller v. Machine Printers' Beneficial Ass'n [R. I.] 60 A. 591. The burden of showing that an assessment was regularly levied is on the association. Supreme Council American Legion of Honor v. Haas, 116 Ill. App. 587; Farmers' Federation v. Croney, 106 Ill. App. 423.

98, 99. So held under similar laws applicable to mutual fire insurance companies. Code, § 1706, provides for the determination of assessments by the directors. Farmers' Milling Co. v. Mill Owners' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 207.

1. Johnston v. Anderson, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 152.

2. Gilbert v. Washington Ben. Endowment Ass'n, 21 App. D. C. 344.

3. See 3 C. L. 1510.

4. Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., v. Marshall, 31 Ind. App. 534, 68 N. E. 605.

5. Farmers' Federation v. Croney, 106 Ill. App. 423; United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners of America v. Fortin, 107 Ill. App. 306.

6. Supreme Council American Legion of Honor v. Haas, 116 Ill. App. 587.

7. See 3 C. L. 1510.

8. A by-law providing for suspension, ipso facto, upon non-payment of an assessment, with deprivation of all benefits from the policy, held to be self-enforcing. Feiber v. Supreme Council, A. L. H., 112 La. 960, 36 So. 818. A provision that no death benefit shall be paid in case of death within ten days of reinstatement is reasonable. Anderson v. Alta Friendly Soc., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 630. A by-law, adopted by a local division of an order, that any member receiving sick in regard to them, however, will be construed in favor of the assured and, when possible, so as to prevent forfeiture;[9] but it is the duty of the court to declare a forfeiture upon facts that will admit of no other conclusion.[10]

For nonpayment of dues and assessments.[11]—An act within the apparent authority of the agent binds the company, where the other party deals with him in good faith;[12] but he cannot extend the time of payment when such authority is expressly denied by the laws of the association.[13] In the absence of any prohibition, the financial officer of a lodge may advance and pay the assessments of a member, under an agreement for reimbursement,[14] and he may receipt for payments of monthly dues, at the time of payment, or at any time thereafter.[15]

A provision that a failure to pay assessments on the day when due shall ipso facto work a suspension and forfeiture of all rights under the benefit certificate is valid and binding;[16] but forfeiture does not result, where the member has been prevented from payment by some act or omission of the order or its officers,[17] nor where the amount of the assessment was duly tendered.[18] The receipt of arrearages of dues, with full knowledge of all the circumstances, and the subsequent receipt of dues, estop a beneficial association from insisting on a forfeiture for such arrearages.[19] But an acceptance of a past delinquency does not estop from insisting on future delinquencies,[20] unless the association, by the adoption of a custom or the course of its conduct, has led its members honestly to believe that they will be received after the appointed day.[21] A policy cannot be canceled for nonpayment of an assessment ir-benefits found absent from his home after 8 p. m. should be deprived of his benefits, held to transcend the power of the division in respect to sick benefits. Loftus v. Division No. 7, Ancient Order of Hibernians [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1119. A by-law providing that any member in arrears for four weeks' dues shall not draw any benefit until one month from the date of paying the deficiency is void for unreasonableness. Burns v. Manhattan Brass Mut. Aid Soc., 102 App. Div. 467, 92 N. Y. S. 846.

9. Supreme Council American Legion of Honor v. Haas, 116 Ill. App. 587; Farmers' Federation v. Croney, 106 Ill. App. 423.

10. Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., v. Marshall, 31 Ind. App. 534, 68 N. E. 605.

11. See 3 C. L. 1511.

12. Plaintiff insured in mutual fire insurance company paid a contingent fee to the agent, greater than allowed by the charter and by-laws, on the understanding that he should be exempt from further payments during the first year. Younghoe v. Grain Shippers' Mut. Fire Ins. Ass'n, 126 Iowa, 374, 102 N. W. 137.

13. Pete v. Woodmen of the World, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 446.

14. Puls v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. [N. D.] 102 N. W. 165.

15. United Moderns v. Pistole [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 377. Where the constitution provides that "all payments of dues and assessments shall be receipted for by stamps," a member's book showing such payments is controlling, as against the secretary's testimony that he is in arrears. Stand v. Griessman, 91 N. Y. S. 278.

16. It authorizes the forfeiture of the certificate without further action on the part of the society. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Hicks [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 425. Under a certificate providing for forfeiture for failure to pay the per capita tax when due, and assessments within 30 days of notice thereof, the mere failure to pay the per capita tax when due did not work a forfeiture, but there must be a failure to pay the tax, and an assessment within 30 days of notice of both. Hyatt v. Legal Protective Ass'n, 106 Mo. App. 610, 81 S. W. 470.

17. As where he was unable to find the secretary until after the expiration of the time, and he was then informed that the local camp had been disbanded. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World v. Hicks [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 425; Lavin v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 600.

18. Tender of dues and assessments held not sufficient, when made outside of the collecting officer's place of business, where he could not comply with the requirements of the association as to giving receipts, etc. Sterling v. Head Camp, Pac. Jur. Woodmen of the World, 28 Utah, 526, 80 P. 1110. Evidence as to whether payment of an assessment was tendered within the time required held to present a question for the jury. Lavin v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 600.

19. Pearson v. Anderburg, 28 Utah, 495, 80 P. 307.

20. Pete v. Woodmen of the World, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 446.

21. Pete v. Woodmen of the World, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 446. Where there was evidence of an invariable course of dealing to waive the condition of forefeiture for nonpayment, defendant was held estopped to insist on a forfeiture. See Wagaman v. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co., 110 Mo. App. 616, 85 S. W. 117.

regularly made;[22] nor when the company has in its possession sufficient funds of the insured, paid as a contingent fee, to satisfy the assessment.[23] But where members engaged in hazardous occupations were required to pay an extra premium, an association was not required to apply, on such extra premium, a payment of a regular assessment paid before delinquent.[24] The burden of showing a forfeiture for nonpayment is upon the insurer.[25] Where, by the laws of the society, nonpayment of an assessment operates as a forfeiture, the member must elect, every time an assessment is made, either to pay within the time limited or suffer the penalty of loss of membership and benefits.[26] The mere announcement of a member that he will drop his insurance does not affect his status as a member, but he remains such until actual forfeiture has worked.[27] Acquiescence in a suspension for nonpayment of an assessment, though irregular, precludes a recovery on the certificate.[28] The enforcement of a law to insure prompt payment of assessment may be waived by the association;[29] but forfeiture is not waived, as a matter of law, by the issue of receipts for assessments and forwarding the amounts to the association, by its agent, in ignorance of the serious illness of the insured;[30] nor by a general call for assessment.[31] Courts of law will not ordinarily concern themselves with the question of the good standing of members, where the same depends on matters of morals, religion and the like,[32] but will do so where it depends on the payment of dues.[33]

Reinstatement.[34]—A member can be reinstated only in the manner provided by the laws of the association,[35] and only on the terms contained in the health certificate.[36] The "health certificate" necessary to reinstatement may be signed by an agent of the insured.[37]

§ 8. The beneficiary. Designation.[38]—Statutes in some states provide that payment of benefits may be made only to certain designated classes of beneficiaries.[39] In such case only persons belonging to such classes have an insurable interest in the

22. As where the organic act (Code, § 1706) provides for the determination of assessments by the directors and one was made by the secretary. Farmers' Milling Co. v. Mill Owners' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 207.

23. Younghoe v. Grain Shippers' Mut. Fire Ins. Ass'n, 126 Iowa, 374, 102 N. W. 137.

24. Head Camp, Pac. Jur. Woodmen of the World v. Woods [Colo.] 81 P. 261.

25. Supreme Council of Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. O'Neill, 108 Ill. App. 47. Held, that the jury was justified in finding that defendant had not sustained the burden. Van Etten v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. [N. J. Law] 60 A. 210.

26. Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W. v. Marshall, 31 Ind. App. 534, 68 N. E. 605.

27. Hyatt v. Legal Protective Ass'n, 106 Mo. App. 610, 81 S. W. 470.

28. As where a member, through the alleged mistake of the financier of the local lodge, was prevented from paying his assessment, twice tendered, and afterward took no further steps to question his suspension or for reinstatement. Lavin v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. [Mo. App.] 86 S. W. 600.

29. Local agent held authorized to waive forfeiture. Wagaman v. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co., 110 Mo. App. 616, 85 S. W. 117.

30. Miller v. Head Camp, 45 Or. 192, 77 P. 83; Pete v. Woodmen of the World, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 446.

31. Pete v. Woodmen of the World, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 446, 26 Ohio Circ. R. 653.

32. See 3 C. L. 1512, n. 79.

33. Member held not to have been in good standing, on account of arrearages equal to 6 months' dues, although he was charged with a dollar for lottery tickets issued by the society. Kelly v. Court R. F. Phelan, No. 122, Foresters of America [Conn.] 60 A. 1022. The burden of proof that, before his death, a member had lost his good standing, is upon the society. United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners of America v. Fortin, 107 Ill. App. 306.

34. See 3 C. L. 1510.

35. Sterling v. Head Camp, Pac. Jur. Woodmen of the World, 28 Utah, 505, 80 P. 375. A vote of the lodge taken during the lifetime of the member and payment of all matured assessments held essential to reinstatement under the by-laws. Butler v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., 146 Cal. 172, 79 P. 861. Payments requisite to reinstatement required to be made personally. Delaney v. Kelly, 92 N. Y. S. 1021, reversing decision in supreme court, trial term, ante p. 265.

36, 37. Anderson v. Alta Friendly Soc., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 630.

38. See 3 C. L. 1513.

39. In Illinois, the act of 1883 (Laws 1883, p. 104) which permitted the issue of certificates for the benefit of legatees, was amended in 1893 (Laws of 1893, p. 130), restricting benefits to families, heirs, blood relatives, affianced husband or wife, or persons dependent. Loyd v. Modern Woodmen of America [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 530.

life of the member, and they alone may receive death benefits.[40] Similar provisions, when found in the charter, constitution, by-laws or certificate, must also be regarded in the designation of beneficiaries.[41] In determining the eligibility of the beneficiary designated, as broad and comprehensive a meaning as possible will be given to the terms of the charter provisions.[42] Where the association pays the money into court, it waives the objection that the beneficiary was not within the class authorized by its laws, and such objection cannot be raised by a claimant of the benefit, as against the beneficiary.[43] A designation of a beneficiary, valid in its inception, remains so, although the insurable interest or relationship of the beneficiary has ceased, unless otherwise stipulated.[44] Where neither the statutes, constitution nor by-laws of a benefit order provide for the designation of a beneficiary by will, such a designation is insufficient.[45] Precedence of beneficiaries may be determined by the organic law of the association, without formal designation by the insured.[46]

40. Where the statutes of the state (Rev. St. 1898, § 1955c, amd. by Laws 1899, p. 138, c. 101) authorized the association to designate who might be made beneficiaries and it permitted only "survivors" to be named, one who was not a relative was not a "survivor" and not entitled to the benefit. Grand Lodge of Wisconsin of Order of Hermann's Sons v. Lemke [Wis.] 102 N. W. 911. A niece of a deceased member's father's first wife, not made by will a legatee of the deceased, though named as beneficiary, was not entitled to the death benefit under Code, § 1824, providing that no certificate shall issue to one not "the husband, wife, relative, legal representative, heir or legatee." Smith v. Supreme Tent Knights of Maccabees of the World [Iowa] 102 N. W. 830.

41. Where payment under the certificate can be made only to a beneficiary named and no provision is made for payment in case of the beneficiary's death during the life of the insured, if no substitute has been named, the benefit fund lapses to the society upon the death of the member. Home Circle Soc. v. Hanley [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 641. The by-laws may provide for the payment of benefits to the beneficiary's legal representatives, in case of his death before the death of the insured and no appointment of a new beneficiary. Anderson v. Supreme Council Catholic Benev. Legion [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 759. A person who is not of the class for whose benefit a benefit society is authorized to issue a policy of insurance cannot legally be made a beneficiary in the policy, or demand the amount payable upon the death of the assured. Starr v. Knights of Maccabees of the World, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 473. A woman who has occupied the relation of wife for a period of twelve years in the honest belief that she was the wife of the man with whom she was living, which relation, however, was unlawful in that he had a wife living at the time from whom he had never been divorced, is a "dependent," within the meaning of the charter and by-laws of a benefit society, which authorizes the designation of dependents as beneficiaries in policies of insurace issued to their members, and is, therefore, as against the lawful wife or the heirs of the assured, entitled to the proceeds of a policy of insurance issued to him by the society without notice of such relation, in which she was referred to as his wife and designated as the beneficiary, notwithstanding the policy was issued after she discovered the unlawful relation referred to. Id. Proceeds of a policy payable to the members "widow or other heir" cannot be devised by him to one to whom he was married while he had a wife living. Tutt v. Jackson [Miss.] 39 So. 420.

42. Designation of "estate" as beneficiary in an association organized to render assistance to members in case of accident and to families and friends, in case of death, sustained, and payment to administrator instead of guardian of minor son approved. Compton's Estate, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 28. Under charter provisions for the payment of benefits to the "widow, orphans, dependents or other beneficiary," and constitutional provisions for payment "to the member, wife, affianced wife, blood relations or persons dependent," a brother can be designated as beneficiary. Donithen v. Independent Order of Foresters, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 442. The word "family," in the certificate of incorporation, held to include the mother of a member, as regards the designation of a beneficiary. Klee v. Klee, 93 N. Y. S. 588. The dependence upon a member of a fraternal benefit society to be his beneficiary need not be a complete dependence for support, but a regular and partial support is sufficient, as in case of a divorced wife receiving alimony. Martin v. Modern Woodmen of America, 111 Ill. App. 99.

43. Coulson v. Flynn, 181 N. Y. 62, 73 N. E. 507.

44. White v. Brotherhood of American Yeomen, 124 Iowa, 293, 99 N. W. 1071. Where the wife was made the beneficiary and was afterward divorced, but no change of beneficiary was made, although the member remarried, held, that the first wife was entitled to the benefit. Id. A statement in a certificate that the beneficiary is the wife of the member is descriptive of her relation to him and not a provision for payment to the widow only. Id.

45. In re Smith's Estate, 42 Misc. 639, 87 N. Y. S. 725.

46. Where the charter provided for payment primarily to a member of the immediate family of the deceased, and secondarily to others, and an unmarried man designated his father as his beneficiary, afterward marrying; held, that his widow was entitled to

Right to change beneficiary.[47]—The beneficiary named in the certificate is presumed to be entitled to the proceeds thereof,[48] but does not acquire, by that fact alone, a vested right therein.[49] The member may exercise the power of appointment without the consent of the beneficiary, and without any restriction other than such as may be imposed by the organic law, or the rules and regulations of the association.[50] Unless restricted by law of the state or association,[51] or unless the beneficiary has obtained a vested interest[52] or equity therein,[53] he may ordinarily change the beneficiary at will.[54] But he must do so in the manner prescribed by the laws of the association,[55] or by the contract of insurance.[56] An antenuptial agreement to make the wife a beneficiary is valid,[57] but must be in writing under the statute of frauds.[58] The right to change the beneficiary is sometimes given by statute,[59] in which case neither the insurer nor the beneficiary can prevent such change, if the proposed new beneficiary belongs to the proper class.[60]

The issuance of a new certificate naming a new beneficiary, with a waiver of the surrender of the old certificate, is an effectual cancellation of the latter, if the new beneficiary is eligible.[61]

Assignment of benefits.[62]—The insured may, by parol, assign a life insurance policy to one having an insurable interest in his life;[63] and a party who has such interest may have a lien on the beneficiary's expectancy for assessments paid.[64] The assignee of a policy as collateral security takes it subject to the rules and by-laws of the company.[65] Provisions in the by-laws prohibiting a member from assigning his certificate to secure a debt can be taken advantage of only by the society.[66]

Status of beneficiary.[67]

the benefit, although no change in beneficiary was made by deceased. Larkin v. Knights of Columbus [Mass.] 73 N. E. 850.

47. See 3 C. L. 1514.

48. Lide v. American Guild, 69 S. C. 275, 48 S. E. 222.

49. Carter v. Carter [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 187. Where a member can change his beneficiary at will, the beneficiary has no vested right during the life of the member. Coleman v. Anderson [Tex.] 86 S. W. 730.

50. Carter v. Carter [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 187. The inference of unnaturalness or improbability is not sufficient to show fraudulent inducements to change the beneficiary from an infant daughter to a full-grown brother. Broderick v. Broderick, 69 Kan. 679, 77 P. 534.

51. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. O'Malley [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 68.

52. See 3 C. L. 1514, n. 2.

53. Mere payment of assessments, in the absence of a contract that she is to receive the benefits, does not give the beneficiary such an equity in the certificate as to estop a member from changing his benficiary. But such beneficiary is entitled to reimbursement out of the benefits. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. O'Malley [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 68.

54. See 3 C. L. 1514, n. 2. Change of beneficiary from mother to wife subsequently married sustained, although the insured had another wife living, the second one being an innocent party. Broadrick v. Broadrick, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 225. The burden of proof is on the association to show the illegality of the marriage of the beneficiary to the deceased. Senge v. Senge, 106 Ill. App. 140.

55. When required to be in writing, a substitution, though intended and attempted, is not effectual unless reduced to writing. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Warren [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 1122. Held, that there was a substantial compliance in this case. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. O'Malley [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 68.

56. Sterling v. Head Camp, Pac. Jur. Woodmen of the World, 28 Utah, 505, 80 P. 375.

57. Carter v. Carter [Ind. App.] 72 N. E. 187, and cases cited.

58. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Warren [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 1122.

59. Ky. St. 1903, § 670. Lockett v. Lockett, 26 Ky. L. R. 300, 80 S. W. 1152.

60. Facts held sufficient to constitute a change of beneficiary, entitling plaintiff to the proceeds of the policy. Lockett v. Lockett, 26 Ky. L. R. 300, 80 S. W. 1152.

61. Klee v. Klee, 93 N. Y. S. 588. Evidence held to sustain a finding that the insured authorized the issue of a new certificate making a change of beneficiary. Superior Lodge, Degree of Honor, A. O. U. W. v. Philbin [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 58.

62. See 3 C. L. 1514.

63. Lockett v. Lockett, 26 Ky. L. R. 300, 80 S. W. 1152.

64. Coleman v. Anderson [Tex.] 86 S. W. 730.

65. He is not entitled to notice of the time of payment of premiums required to be given to the insured. Franklin Life Ins. Co. v. American Nat. Bank [Ark.] 84 S. W. 789.

66. Coleman v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 82 S. W. 1057; Id. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 730.

Exemption of benefits from liability for debts.[68]—A designation in the certificate "Payable to estate," is not such a designation of a beneficiary as to make the sum exempt from execution under the statutes therefor, but it passes to the person who would take the personalty under the statute of distribution.[69]

§ 9. Maturity and accrual of benefits. Incontestable clauses.[70]—In the absence of any contrary provisions in the certificate, liability accrues thereunder at the time of the death of the member.[71] A clause making the policy incontestable and another reducing the indemnity in case of suicide were held to be separate and not affecting each other.[72]

Suicide [73] is not, as a rule, recognized as a ground of forfeiture of a policy of insurance, unless so expressly provided.[74] Provisions may be made in the contract of insurance for reducing the indemnity in case of suicide,[75] and also against any liability, although such provision is not directly authorized by the constitution and by-laws.[76] Suicide as used in by-laws limiting liability means voluntary and intentional self-destruction.[77] It does not include accidental self-destruction,[78] nor self-destruction where, at the time of the act the assured was so affected with insanity as to be unconscious of the act, or had not the power to resist the insane impulse.[79] But if the certificate or by-law provides for the avoiding of the certificate in case of self-destruction, whether sane or insane, there is a complete exemption from liability [80] by the acts of self-destruction.[81]

The legal presumption is always against suicide;[82] but the presumption is a rebuttable one and must yield to physical facts clearly inconsistent with it.[83] The burden of proving intentional self-destruction is on the association.[84] The verdict

67, 68. See 3 C. L. 1515.

69. Laws 1892, p. 2018, ch. 690, art. 7, § 238. In re Smith's Estate, 42 Misc. 639, 87 N. Y. S. 725.

70. See 3 C. L. 1515.

71. American Home Circle v. Schumm, 111 Ill. App. 316.

72. Childress v. Fraternal Union of America, 113 Tenn. 252, 82 S. W. 832.

73. See 3 C. L. 1516.

74. Supreme Council of Royal Arcanum v. Pels, 110 Ill. App. 409.

75. Childress v. Fraternal Union of America, 113 Tenn. 252, 82 S. W. 832.

76. Blasingame v. Royal Circle, 111 Ill. App. 202.

77. See 3 C. L. 1516, n. 29.

78. Clause in a policy with reference to self-destruction, "whether voluntary or involuntary, sane or insane," held not to apply to a case of death from the accidental discharge of a gun while being cleaned, if the insured had no intention of discharging it or of hitting himself. Knights Templars & Masons' Life Indemnity Co. v. Crayton, 110 Ill. App. 648.

79. The phrases "commit suicide," "die by his own hand," "take his own life," or their equivalents, do not include the taking of one's own life when insane. Supreme Council of Royal Arcanum v. Pels, 110 Ill. App. 409. An intent to take one's life being a necessary element of suicide, where no immunity from liability in case of self-destruction other than suicide was provided for, the society was liable, in case of the self-destruction of the insured while insane. Mauch v. Supreme Tribe of Ben Hur, 100 App. Div. 49, 91 N. Y. S. 367.

80. Supreme Council of Royal Arcanum v. Pels, 110 Ill. App. 409; Tisch v. Protected Home Circle [Ohio] 74 N. E. 188.

81. Brown v. United Moderns [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 357; Mauch v. Supreme Tribe of Ben Hur, 100 App. Div. 49, 91 N. Y. S. 367; Blasingame v. Royal Circle, 111 Ill. App. 202; Supreme Court, Knights of Maccabees v. Marshall, 111 Ill. App. 312; Supreme Court of Honor v. Buxton, 111 Ill. App. 187, following Seitzinger v. Modern Woodmen, 204 Ill. 58, 68 N. E. 478. Where the by-laws precluded recovery in case of suicide, except when the authorities of the order were satisfied that the deceased, at the time of suicide, was of unsound mind, and had been reported to the supreme secretary as such, recovery could not be had, in the absence of any showing of such exception. Post v. Supreme Court, I. O. F. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 241, 103 N. W. 841. Language held equivalent to a provision that death by self-destruction, whether sane or insane, avoids the policy. Clemens v. Royal Neighbors of America [N. D.] 103 N. W. 402.

82. Knights Templars & Masons' Life Indemnity Co. v. Crayton, 110 Ill. App. 648; Hardinger v. Modern Brotherhood of America [Neb.] 101 N. W. 983.

83. Hardinger v. Modern Brotherhood of America [Neb.] 103 N. W. 74; Clemens v. Royal Neighbors of America [N. D.] 103 N. W. 402.

84. Chambers v. Modern Woodmen of America [S. D.] 99 N. W. 1107; Knights Templars' & Masons' Life Indemnity Co. v. Crayton, 110 Ill. App. 648; National Union v. Fitzpatrick [C. C. A.] 133 F. 694. Held, that, under the circumstances of this case, reasonable minds might differ as to the question of suicide. Hardinger v. Modern Brotherhood of

of the coroner's jury is inadmissible to show suicide,[85] and so is a copy of a letter purporting to have been written by assured to his wife, the beneficiary in the certificate;[86] but a note found in the room where the deceased was discovered dead, in his handwriting, giving directions as to burial, etc., is competent evidence of suicide.[87] Where the evidence shows deliberate intention and preparation for suicide, it is the duty of the court to direct a verdict for defendant.[88]

§ 10. Proofs of death or right to benefits.[89]—The agent of a fraternal association, charged with the duty of receiving proofs of death, prima facie has the power to waive the presentation thereof by refusing to recognize any liability upon the part of his principal.[90] The preparation of death proofs by a local lodge officer is not a waiver of forfeiture for suicide.[91] Death will be presumed from absence of seven years from one's usual abode or resort, without any intelligence received within such time.[92]

§ 11. Payments of benefits.[93]—The disposition of the benefit fund must be made strictly in conformity with the constitution of the association.[94] The ordinary rules as to accord and satisfaction apply in the settlement of benefit claims.[95] Repayment of the amount paid in settlement of a claim on a benefit certificate is a condition precedent to a rescission of the settlement by plaintiff.[96] A settlement of a claim induced by fraud will be set aside.[97]

Interest.[98]—Where the beneficiary is named in the certificate, the sum recoverable is certain, proper proofs or demand have been made and payment refused, interest may be recovered on the certificate.[99]

America [Neb.] 101 N. W. 983; Id. [Neb.] 103 N. W. 74. Evidence that insured was found dead, with a discharged pistol by his side, raises a question for the jury of accidental death or suicide. Kane v. Supreme Tent Knights of Maccabees of the World [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 547. Held that there was substantial evidence that the insured's killing of himself was accidental. Hunt v. Ancient Order of Pyramids, 105 Mo. App. 41, 78 S. W. 649. A finding that deceased did not commit suicide held to be manifestly against the weight of evidence. Supreme Court I. O. F. v. Mutter, 105 Ill. App. 518.

85. Kane v. Supreme Tent, Knights of Maccabees of the World [Mo. App.] 87 S. W. 547; Chambers v. Modern Woodmen of America [S. D.] 99 N. W. 1107.

86. Chambers v. Modern Woodmen of America [S. D.] 99 N. W. 1107.

87. Clemens v. Royal Neighbors of America [N. D.] 103 N. W. 402.

88. Mason v. Supreme Court of Honor, 109 Ill. App. 10; Hardinger v. Modern Brotherhood of America [Neb.] 103 N. W. 74; Clemens v. Royal Neighbors of America [N. D.] 103 N. W. 402.

89. See 3 C. L. 1517.

90. United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners of America v. Fortin, 107 Ill. App. 306.

91. Modern Woodmen of America v. Hicks, 109 Ill. App. 27.

92. Policemen's Benev. Ass'n of Chicago v. Ryce, 213 Ill. 9, 72 N. E. 764.

93. See 3 C. L. 1517.

94. Where the constitution provided for certain amounts to be paid on claims for total disability, resulting from certain physical injuries, and that all other claims should be considered only as addressed to the systematic benevolence of the order, persons not coming within those provisions could not maintain claims for total disability. Pool v. Brotherhood of R. Trainmen, 143 Cal. 650, 77 P. 661. Election of benefits, where the nature of the injury falls under two different provisions of the certificate, as a weekly benefit for loss of time, resulting from injuries through violent means leaving external marks, or a specified sum for the loss of a hand or foot. Fricke v. United States Indemnity Soc. [Conn.] 61 A. 431.

95. Where a beneficiary surrendered his policy and accepted a smaller amount than he claimed, writing on his surrender of the certificate the words "Receipt below given for $1,900 only," held not to be a protest affecting the legal effect of the surrender of certificate. Simons v. Supreme Council A. L. H., 178 N. Y. 263, 70 N. E. 776.

96. Held not to have been waived by the defendant. Slater v. United States Health & Acc. Ins. Co., 133 Mich. 347, 95 N. W. 89, 10 Det. Leg. N. 211.

97. Settlement induced by the company's representations that it had enacted a by-law reducing the amount payable under a benefit certificate, when it knew that such by-law had been declared void. Simon v. Supreme Council, A. L. H., 91 App. Div. 390, 86 N. Y. S. 866. The remedy of a beneficiary who is induced by false representations to settle his claim for a smaller amount than that to which he is entitled is in equity to set aside the receipt and for the cancellation of the policy and not at law to recover the amount paid. Stephenson v. Supreme Council A. L. H., 130 F. 491. The question of whether the beneficiary had been induced by fraud to release his claim, held to be one for the jury. Fraternal Army of America v. Evans, 215 Ill. 629, 74 N. E. 689.

98. See 3 C. L. 1518.

§ 12. Procedure to enforce right to benefits.[1]—Beneficiaries have no right of action against the association for fraudulently inducing the member to believe that it was able to pay all claims in full, under which belief he paid all assessments up to the time of his death.[2] Where a certificate is made payable to different beneficiaries, it does not create a joint demand in their favor and they should not be joined as plaintiffs in an action on the certificate.[3] A cause of action to recover sick benefits, payable during a member's lifetime, survives and may be brought by his administrator;[4] but an administrator cannot recover a death benefit fund made payable to the beneficiary, when the latter dies before the insured.[5] The venue of a cause of action on a certificate of membership in a fraternal benefit association is the county of the member's residence at the time of his death.[6] Where the contract of insurance provides that action must be brought thereon within a certain time after the rejection of the claim, notice of rejection must be given before the limitation begins to run.[7] Suit on an accident certificate is not premature because commenced before the expiration of the time for payment where the association disavowed liability before commencement of suit and after presentation of proofs.[8] Process may be served on a local agent.[9] An unincorporated fraternal beneficiary order cannot ordinarily be sued in the name by which it is commonly known but the suit must be brought against the individual members.[10]

The members of a voluntary benefit association are not personally liable for the debts of the association, unless they have in some way sanctioned them or made themselves liable.[11] Where the certificate is issued in the name of a separate and independent association, distinct from the parent society, it is the proper party defendant in an action to enforce payment.[12] Where a mutual insurance company, after loss, denied liability solely on the ground of failure to pay an assessment illegally levied, it could not, after suit brought and costs incurred by plaintiff, defend on the ground that defendant's policy had been canceled by the exercise of the discretion of the directors, as authorized by its charter.[13] In Missouri, to constitute the insured's misrepresentations an available defense to the insurer, it must be shown that the subject of his misrepresentation caused his death, and the premiums paid on the certificate must be deposited in court to be refunded.[14]

Pleading.[15]—It is not necessary for the plaintiff to either allege or prove such matters as appear in the application only. To be available as a defense they must be pleaded and proved by the defendant.[16] Breaches of warranties, representations

99. Grand Lodge Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen v. Orrell, 109 Ill. App. 422. Interest is allowed on such certificates as on written instruments. Knights Templars & Masons' Life Indemnity Co. v. Crayton, 110 Ill. App. 648; Supreme Lodge, Knights & Ladies of Honor v. Rehg, 116 Ill. App. 59.

1. See 3 C. L. 1518.

2, 3. Conard v. Southern Tier Masonic Relief Ass'n, 101 App. Div. 611, 93 N. Y. S. 626.

4. Pearson v. Anderburg, 28 Utah, 495, 80 P. 307.

5. In such case the benefit lapses to the society, if no substitute has been named. Home Circle Soc. v. Hanley [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 641.

6. B. & C. Comp. §§ 44, 55. Hildebrand v. United Artisans [Or.] 79 P. 347.

7. Pioneer Reserve Ass'n v. Jones, 111 Ill. App. 156.

8. Binder v. National Masonic Acc. Ass'n [Iowa] 102 N. W. 190.

9. Under B. & C. Comp. § 55. Hildebrand v. United Artisans [Or.] 79 P. 347. A former solicitor of applications in a benefit association held not to be "a managing agent," within the meaning of the Ohio statute as to service of process on foreign corporations. Spiker v. American Relief Soc. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 143, 103 N. W. 611.

10. Where the members are too numerous a few may be made defendants to represent the interests of all. Pearson v. Anderburg, 28 Utah, 495, 80 P. 307. But see Wells & McComas Council No. 14, Junior Order United American Mechanics v. Littleton [Md.] 60 A. 22.

11. Pearson v. Anderburg, 28 Utah, 495, 80 P. 307.

12. Delaney v. Kelly, 45 Misc. 286, 92 N. Y. S. 265.

13. Farmers' Milling Co. v. Mill Owners' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 207.

14. Rev. St. 1899, § 7891. Herzberg v. Modern Brotherhood of America, 110 Mo. App. 328, 85 S. W. 986.

15. See 3 C. L. 1519.

16, 17. Supreme Lodge, Knights & Ladies of Glenwood v. Albers, 106 Ill. App. 85.

or statements in the application or policy must be pleaded specially.[17] Extension of time of payment under a benefit certificate should be pleaded in abatement and not in bar, where such extension was by a transaction extraneous of the certificate.[18] In an action on a life policy, where the answer is not verified, the contract as alleged stands confessed.[19] The allegation in an answer that the member committed suicide, whereby the certificate became void, is put in issue perforce the statute of Texas.[20] The general rules as to pleading apply.[21]

Evidence.[22]—Plaintiff in an action on a benefit certificate need not prove the statements in the application to be true,[23] nor show that the insured did not violate any of the provisions of the constitution and by-laws; those are matters of defense.[24] In an action to establish a trust in the proceeds of a life insurance policy, plaintiff must establish it by a preponderance of evidence.[25]—The burden is upon the society to show that its constitution has been amended in accordance with its provisions, before the amendment becomes competent evidence for the society.[26] The constitution and by-laws may be proved by a copy purporting to be published by the supreme council of the order,[27] by the admissions of the officers,[28] or by a showing that the association has recognized and operated under them.[29] Under the Kentucky statute, by-laws referred to in any life insurance policy and having a bearing on the contract, are inadmissible in evidence, unless a copy thereof is attached to the policy;[30] and the statute applies to a subsequently enacted by-law, though the certificate was issued prior to the statute.[31] To determine the eligibility of a stepson as a beneficiary, as a member of insured's family, evidence as to the family relation and surroundings, exercise of dominion over the household by the insured, and ownership of the house were admissible.[32] Nonexpert witnesses, having opportunities of observa-

18. American Home Circle v. Schumm, 111 Ill. App. 316.

19. Weber v. Ancient Order of Pyramids, 104 Mo. App. 729, 78 S. W. 650.

20. Rev. St. 1895, art. 1193, declaring it unnecessary to deny any special matter of defense. Brown v. United Moderns [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 357.

21. The complaint in an action on a membership certificate must show where the cause of action accrued, under B. & C. Comp. §§ 44, 55, relative to the venue of actions. Hildebrand v. United Artisans [Or.] 79 P. 347. Where the petition failed to allege the amount due under the certificate, but the amount could be gathered from the pleading, it was sufficient to support a judgment. Hyatt v. Legal Protective Ass'n, 106 Mo. App. 610, 81 S. W. 470. Affidavit of defense based on surrender, payment and cancellation of certificates held sufficient. Mitchell v. Monumental Mut. Life Ins. Co., 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 584. A defense that the insured did not comply with the provisions of the policy as to the payment of premiums, without specifying wherein there was noncompliance, was insufficient. Weber v. Ancient Order of Pyramids, 104 Mo. App. 729, 78 S. W. 650. The plea nil debet puts in issue no fact and cannot be regarded as a defense; action of court in entering judgment on the pleadings approved. Bankers' Union of the World v. Favalora [Neb.] 102 N. W. 1013. Objection on the ground of variance between the proof offered and the averments of the declaration held properly overruled. Wells & McComas Council No. 14, Junior Order United American Mechanics v. Littleton [Md.] 60 A. 22.

22. See 3 C. L. 1519.

23. Knapp v. Order of Pendo, 36 Wash. 601, 79 P. 209.

24. Lloyd v. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America, 115 Ill. App. 39.

25. Evidence held not to show an agreement that a substituted beneficiary should hold the proceeds as trustee for the first beneficiary. Lide v. American Guild, 69 S. C. 275, 48 S. E. 222.

26. United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners of America v. Fortin, 107 Ill. App. 306.

27. Home Circle Soc. No. 1 v. Shelton [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 84.

28. Book purporting to be a copy of the laws of one of defendant's affiliated associations held admissible as evidence, under the secretary's admission that, at a former trial, he had admitted it in evidence, though he could not say whether it was a copy of the laws. Wells v. McComas Council No. 14, Junior Order United American Mechanics v. Littleton [Md.] 60 A. 22.

29. Where it appears that a certain book contained all laws of the society and it had operated for a long time under such rules, the members were estopped from questioning the authority of the book. State v. Knowles, 185 Mo. 141, 83 S. W. 1083.

30. Ky. St. 1903, § 679. Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Hunziker [Ky.] 87 S. W. 1134.

31. The statute may be complied with in regard to by-laws subsequent to the contract by tendering a copy within a reasonable time and offering to attach it. Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Hunziker, 87 S W. 1134.

32. Morey v. Monk [Ala.] 38 So. 265.

tion, may give their opinions as to the state of health of a member.[33] The application, the certificate to the original beneficiary, the surrender of the certificate, the issue of the certificate to the substituted beneficiary, the payment of assessments and proof of death, were all admissible as relating to the history of the insurance contract, and determining the right and title thereto.[34] Evidence that the applicant could not read or write and that the agent, knowing that fact, did not disclose to him certain material statements in the application, was admissible over objection that the application spoke for itself and was not denied.[35] Foreign records of vital statistics are inadmissible to prove the age of insured, in the absence of evidence showing whether they were kept in pursuance of a church custom or a statute requiring them.[36] The making of assessments may be shown by the records of the body authorized to make them,[37] or by direct and affirmative testimony.[38] An entry of payment of dues, in a receipt book of a subordinate lodge, by an officer authorized to receive payments of dues, may be taken by a jury as true, though such officer testifies that the entry was false and the payment was not made.[39] A failure to pay an assessment may be shown by the financial officer to whom payment should have been made.[40] The proper way to show suspension of a member is by the books and records of the branch of the society to which he belongs.[41] On an issue of the materiality of representations as to health, evidence that defendant society recently had the reputation of insuring applicants without regard to their health is admissible.[42] Cases involving the weight and sufficiency of the evidence are cited below.[43]

Trial and judgment.[44]—The ordinary rules as to trial and instructions apply.[45]

Defendant was not prejudiced by a failure of the court to specially find that answers relative to the use of liquor were warranties, when the death of the insured was not caused or superinduced by the use of liquors.[46]

A judgment entered by confession in favor of "Treasurer of Division No. 168, A. A. of S. R. E. of A." could be set aside on motion for insufficiency of the name of the party plaintiff; but an appeal to the conscience of the chancellor by rule to open the judgment waives the mere irregularity.[47] Proceedings in error to reverse a judgment against a fraternal benefit association must be commenced within 60 days after the rendition of judgment.[48]

33. Pioneer Reserve Ass'n v. Jones, 111 Ill. App. 156.

34. Morey v. Monk [Ala.] 38 So. 265.

35. Home Circle Soc. No. 1 v. Shelton [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 84.

36. Pirrung v. Supreme Council of Catholic Mut. Ben. Ass'n, 93 N. Y. S. 575.

37. Supreme Council of Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. O'Neill, 108 Ill. App. 47.

38. Supreme Council American Legion of Honor v. Haas, 116 Ill. App. 587.

39. United Moderns v. Pistole [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 377.

40, 41. Supreme Council of Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. O'Neill, 108 Ill. App. 47.

42. Home Circle Soc. No. 2 v. Shelton [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 320.

43. Held, that the evidence did not support a finding of total disability. Order of United Commercial Travelers of America v. Barnes [Kan.] 80 P. 1020. Circumstances held not to show that the death was the result of the "involuntary" movements of deceased and therefore accidental. Smouse v. Iowa State Traveling Men's Ass'n, 118 Iowa, 436, 92 N. W. 53. The question as to whether the insured is "totally and permanently incapacitated from performing manual labor" is a question for the jury. Grand Lodge Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen v. Orrell, 109 Ill. App. 422.

44. See 3 C. L. 1519.

45. Where the evidence as to the insured's being beyond the age limit is conflicting, it is error to direct a verdict. Dinan v. Supreme Council of Catholic Mut. Ben. Ass'n. [Pa.] 60 A. 10.

Instruction approved: As to question of health of applicant and attendance of physician. Wilson v. Royal Neighbors of America [Mich.] 102 N. W. 957.

Instruction disapproved: That an accidental cause is such as "may" happen by chance, as suggesting that chance is not always necessary. Smouse v. Iowa State. Traveling Men's Ass'n, 118 Iowa, 436, 92 N. W. 53.

46. Endowment Rank Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Townsend [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 220.

47. Treasurer of Division No. 168. v. Keller, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 135.

48. Under § 3580, Gen. St. 1901. Modern Woodmen of America v. Heath [Kan.] 79 P. 1091.

FRAUD AND UNDUE INFLUENCE.

§ 1. Actual fraud.[49]—Fraud consists of any deception or artifice used to circumvent, cheat or deceive another.[50] A false representation [51] or concealment [52] of a material [53] past or existing fact,[54] made by a party or his agent,[55] and relied and acted upon [56] by one who has a right to rely upon it,[57] to his damage,[58] is fraud. It is

49. See 3 C. L. 1520. See, also Deceit, 5 C. L. 953.

50. See Cyc. Law Dict. "Fraud."

It is fraud for an agent to conspire with another and enter into a secret transaction whereby the principal is defrauded. Pacific Lumber Co. v. Moffat, [C. C. A.] 134 F. 836. Where artifice in a sale of standing timber is used to prevent an investigation as to its value, and timber worth $4,000 is procured for $1,600, it will be set aside. Garr v. Alden [Mich.] 102 N. W. 950. To induce one to sign an agreement which omits a stipulation it was agreed to contain. Davy v. Davy, 98 App. Div. 630, 90 N. Y. S. 242. Where one is induced by a fraudulent trick to indorse a negotiable instrument. Yakima Valley Bank v. McAllister, 37 Wash. 566, 79 P. 1119. Under P. L. 45, an act to prevent fraud upon hotel keepers where one removes his baggage from a hotel with the intention of not paying his board bill. Commonwealth v. Billig, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 477. Sale under trust deed set aside because of gross inadequacy of price paid, mental incapacity of the grantor and the fact that the purchaser prevented competition at the sale by misrepresentations as to the amount he would bid. Herring v. Sutton [Miss.] 38 So. 235.

Held not fraud: A mere intention by an insolvent purchaser of goods not to pay for them. Reed v. Felmlee, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 37. A breach of contract does not constitute fraud which will vitiate it. Miller v. Butler, 121 Ga. 758, 49 S. E. 754. Where one who does not know the financial condition of a bank and gives a check thereon, suggesting to the drawer that he leave the money in the bank until he needs it, such suggestion does not show fraud on his part. Hubbard v. Pettey [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 509. The purchase of stock by a company which desired control of the corporation, under an agreement with the stockholders as to the price if a majority of the stock could be acquired is not rendered fraudulent by the fact that the corporation pays a higher price for the stock of certain other holders. Newman v. Mercantile Trust Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 6. A mere error of judgment on the part of an executor is not fraud. In re Cunningham's Estate [Pa.] 61 A. 993.

51. Where a creditor was induced to settle with a debtor by false representations that the debtor could pay only 40 cents on the dollar, letters written to other creditors enclosing checks for 75 per cent. of their claims are admissible. George L. Storms & Co. v. Horton [Conn.] 59 A. 421.

Note. Subscriptions to stock under misrepresentation, see Helliwell, Stocks & Stockholders, §§ 81-85.

False representations made in a prospectus by promoters of a corporation respecting the value of property to be transferred by them to the corporation when organized, made for the purpose of getting subscriptions to the stock. Manning v. Berdan, 135 F. 159. Where goods are sold to a corporation on faith of a false return of its assets and liabilities filed pursuant to Pub. St. 1882, c. 106, § 54. Steel v. Webster [Mass.] 74 N. E. 686. Inducing one to cash a check by representations that the maker had funds on deposit in the bank upon which it was drawn. Hengen v. Lewis, 91 N. Y. S. 77. A representation by a promoter that property can be purchased for a certain price, entitles the subscriber, if such price includes commissions to the promoter, to rescind a note executed for his subscription. Hall v. Grayson County Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 762.

52. Where a married woman has abandoned her husband and conceals such fact when purchasing goods on his credit. Edward Malley Co. v. Button [Conn.] 60 A. 125.

53. HELD, MATERIAL FACTS: False representations that a company had been properly incorporated and misrepresentations as to the condition of its business and value of its stock, made to procure a conveyance of land in consideration of such corporate stock. Wagner v. Fehr, 211 Pa. 435, 60 A. 1043. Statements in a stock subscription contract that certain patents were basic patents, and it was proposed to acquire those patents, held representations of fact. American Alkali Co. v. Salom [C. C. A.] 131 F. 46. Where one represents to another that the first may enter a syndicate on the same terms as the latter. Hall v. Grayson County Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 762. As to freight rates by a carrier, which are relied on in purchasing coal to be shipped. . Texas & P. R. Co. v. Mugg [Tex.] 83 S. W. 800. False representations by one joint purchaser to another as to the lowest price the property could be purchased for. Paddock v. Bray [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 383, 88 S. W. 419. That certain property could be obtained possession of within 30 days made to induce one to give up his farm so he could take possession of it, is one of fact. Thompson v. Hardy [S. D.] 102 N. W. 299. A statement by a party that he had recently sold certain property for a certain amount, made to induce an exchange of property. Id. That a worthless medicine is a sure cure for hog cholera. McDonald v. Smith [Mich.] 102 N. W. 668. False statements by a salesman that he had not sold a line to any other merchant in the town and did not intend to. Pratt v. Darling [Wis.] 103 N. W. 229. As to the amount of power engines and boilers will produce held one of fact inducing a contract. American Cotton Co. v. Frank Heierman & Bro. [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 845. An exchange of land accomplished by false representations as to title may be rescinded. Corbett v. McGregor [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 278. As to health made in an application for life insurance. Home Circle Soc. No. 2 v. Shelton [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 320. As to fertility of soil. Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290. That a trust deed is a first mortgage. Kehl v. Abram, 112 Ill. App. 77. That land is unincumbered. Hahl v. Brooks, 114 Ill. App. 644. False representations that the property adjacent to a tract sold would be improved so that the value of the tract sold would be greatly enhanced. Troxler v. New Era Bldg Co., 137 N. C. 51, 49 S. E. 58.

A fraudulent representation not material to the risk will not avoid an insurance policy. Supreme Council Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. Beggs, 110 Ill. App. 139.

54. Not of a future one. Dowagiac Mfg. Co. v. Mahon [N. D.] 101 N. W. 903; Miller v. Fulmer, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 106.

55. Evidence held to show that one who made false representations was the agent of the party charged. Willey v. Clements, 146 Cal. 91, 79 P. 850. One is responsible for false representations made by a person to whom he refers another. Corbett v. McGregor [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 278. False representations made by one to whom a vendor refers a prospective purchaser are binding on him. Hahl v. Brooks, 213 Ill. 134, 72 N. E. 727.

56. Sinclair v. Higgins, 46 Misc. 136, 93 N. Y. S. 195; Spinks v. Clark [Cal.] 82 P. 45. To enable one to have set aside a contract induced by false representations. Hooker v. Midland Steel Co., 215 Ill. 444, 74 N. E. 445. Where a vendee relies on the false reading to him by the vendor of a deed. The clause making it subject to a mortgage being omitted. Hahl v. Brooks, 213 Ill. 134, 72 N. E. 727. A stockholder who before selling stock to a director causes an investigation of the affairs of the company to be made cannot be regarded as having relied on representations of fact affecting the value of the stock. Hooker v. Midland Steel Co., 215 Ill. 444, 74 N. E. 445.

Evidence sufficient to show that false representations were relied upon. Zeeman v. Saleburg, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 423; I. L. Corse & Co. v. Minnesota Grain Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 728. Evidence held to show that a subscriber to corporate stock relied on false representations held out as material inducements. American Alkali Co. v. Salom [C. C. A.] 131 F. 46. Where one purchased machinery in a sunken hull and there was evidence that the water about the hull was roily, evidence as to whether representations as to the condition of the machinery were relied on held a question for the jury. McRae v. Lonsby [C. C. A.] 130 F. 17. Instruction on this point held to be warranted by the evidence. American Cotton Co. v. Frank Heierman & Bro. [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 845.

Evidence insufficient: Where vendors refused offers until the vendee met their terms, misrepresentations as to the value of the land is no ground for setting aside the deed. Storthz v. Arnold [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1036.

57. Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290.

One is entitled to rely on representations, though by the exercise of ordinary diligence he might discover their falsity. Hall v. Grayson County Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 81 S. W. 762. It is no defense to say that the party defrauded might have discovered the falsity of the representations by the exercise of ordinary diligence. Buckley v. Acme Food Company, 113 Ill. App. 210. Representations must be such as to mislead a reasonably prudent man. Loose statements held insufficient. Sinclair v. Higgins, 46 Misc. 136, 93 N. Y. S. 195. An allegation in a complaint to reform a mortgage note, that plaintiff had confidence in his attorney who drew the note and was deceived by his use of a certain form of note, held sufficient to charge the attorney with fraud. Johnson v. Sherwood, 34 Ind. App. 490, 73 N. E. 180. The fact that a deed which the grantee has no opportunity to examine shows the property to be subject to an outstanding lease does not estop the grantee from relying on representations that possession can be had immediately. Thompson v. Hardy [S. D.] 102 N. W. 299. One may be entitled to rely on representations as to the contents of a written instrument and sign it without reading it. New Omaha Thomson-Houston Electric Light Co. v. Rombold [Neb.] 102 N. W. 475.

Where a confidential relation exists, one may be in the exercise of ordinary care in signing an instrument without reading it. Grim v. Griffith, 34 Ind. App. 559, 73 N. E. 197. As where one occupying a relation of trust to another contracts with him without disclosing information relative to the subject of the contract peculiarly within his own knowledge. Boren v. Boren [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 48.

Statements peculiarly within the knowledge of the maker relative to subject-matter of which the person to whom they are made is ignorant may be relied on. Watson v. Molden [Idaho] 79 P. 503. False representaitons that evidences of mining claims on public lands were those of claims long since abandoned. David v. Moore [Or.] 79 P. 415.

NOTE. Doctrine of reasonable inquiry: The defendant, falsely representing that it was the owner of a newly invented machine, by the use of which matches could be manufactured at one-fifth the cost and five times as rapidly as by any other known means; that the machine would do the entire work of making the matches; that it would place them in boxes, wrap the boxes in packages, pack them ready for shipment, print advertising matter on the boxes and, if desired, on each match; induced the plaintiff to contract for the purchase of shares of its stock. In a suit to rescind the contract and recover money paid under it, held that, as the representations were made concerning a complicated machine, the plaintiff was not bound to make inquiry as to their truth or falsity and was entitled to the relief prayed for. Mulholland v. Washington Match Co., 35 Wash. 315, 77 P. 497. The doctrine announced in this case is undoubtedly sound (Speed v. Hollingsworth, 54 Kan. 436; Faribault v. Sater, 13 Minn. 223; Cottrill v. Krum, 100 Mo. 397, 18 Am. St. Rep. 549), though the facts would almost seem to warrant an application of the rule, that where the exercise of ordinary prudence would have pre-not essential that the maker have knowledge of the falsity,[59] unless affirmative relief is sought,[60] and he is liable if it is made recklessly, without knowledge of its truth or falsity.[61] It must relate to some matter of inducement to the transaction,[62] but need not have been made at the time the transaction was entered into.[63] It must be more than a mere expression of opinion.[64] Ordinarily a representation of law[65] or as to value[66] is a mere expression of opinion; but either may amount to one of fact under vented deception, no relief will be given (Moore v. Turbeville, 2 Bibb [Ky.] 602, 5 Am. Dec. 642; Morrill v. Madden, 35 Minn. 493). The doctrine of caveat emptor does not apply to the purchase of the right to sell an invention (Heater Co. v. Heater Co., 32 F. 723), nor need the vendee inspect the public records to ascertain what is covered by a patent (David v. Park, 103 Mass. 501; Rose v. Hurley, 39 Ind. 77; McKee v. Eaton, 26 Kan. 226). Where, however, an opportunity is given the vendee to test a machine, and he relies on statements made by the vendor concerning such tests, he is bound thereby (Machine Works v. Meyer, 15 Ind. App. 385, 44 N. E. 193, 111 Mich. L. R. 161).

No right to rely: Representations that trees in an orchard are "sound, healthy, and fruitful" where the seller discloses the existence of scale, are not ground for rescission because of the scale. De Bois v. Nugent [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 339. One who signs an instrument without reading it cannot set it aside on the ground of fraud, no representations to deceive her having been made. Powers v. Powers [Or.] 80 P. 1058. One signing a contract is conclusively presumed to know its contents and will not be permitted to show that he did not read it. Standard Mfg. Co. v. Hudson [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 137. Fraud in the reduction of an agreement to writing is no defense where one with full opportunity signs without reading. Whiting v. Davidge, 23 App. D. C. 156. A person who can read is bound by an instrument he signs unless induced by fraudulent representations or conduct not to read the same. Barrie & Son v. Frost, 105 Ill. App. 187. A widow has no right to rely on representations as to the validity of her husband's will in the absence of a contest begun or threatened in connection with such representations. Whitesell v. Strickler [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 153. That an instrument plainly showing on its face that it was a release was read in an indistinct manner to one able to read but who signed without reading it, thinking it was a receipt, does not show fraud. Hartley v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 214 Ill. 78, 73 N. E. 398.

58. One induced by fraud to sell his land for a fair price cannot complain. Storthz v. Arnold [Ark.] 84 S. W. 1036.

59. In equity (Tucker v. Osbourn [Md.] 61 A. 321), knowledge of the falsity is not essential to the rescission of a contract procured (Du Bois v. Nugent [N J. Eq.] 60 A. 339. Misrepresentations innocently made, if relied on are ground for relief in equity. Weise v. Grove, 123 Iowa, 585, 99 N. W. 191. A sale procured by false representations may be rescinded, though such representations were innocently made. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Nolan [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 821.

Bnt see Hough v. Maupin [Ark.] 84 S. W. 717, holding that representations made by a building and loan association to a borrowing member which were true according to the terms of the contract are not fraudulent because such provisions are subsequently declared void by the courts, it not appearing that the corporation knew of such invalidity.

60. See Deceit, 5 C. L. 953; Cancellation of Instruments, 5 C. L. 500. Troxler v. New Era Bldg. Co., 137 N. C. 51, 49 S. E. 58. Scienter must be alleged and proved where rescission is sought. Requisites to rescission for fraud. L. D. Garrett Co. v. Appleton, 101 App. Div. 507, 92 N. Y. S. 136.

61. Statements as to the health of a person. Obney v. Obney, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 116. A vendor who permits a vendee to contract with him on faith of his representations must know that such representations are true. Jack v. Hixon, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 453.

62. A representation to ignorant negro orphans that because of their circumstances a certain price would be paid for their land, though it would not sprout peas, is not. Storthz v. Arnold [Ark:] 84 S. W. 1036. Where a contract for the sale of goods stipulates "this sale is made on the representations herein expressed and no others," no other false representations can be shown in defense to the contract. Equitable Mfg. Co. v. Biggers, 121 Ga. 381, 49 S. E. 271.

63. Obney v. Obney, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 122.

64. Mere promises and like expressions are not. McConnell v. Pierce, 116 Ill. App. 103. In letting a contract for the carriage of mails a representation that the service required but one horse, one wagon and one driver, is but an expression of opinion. Devers v. Sollenberger, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 64. Representations by a book agent that his wares are nice books and such as children love to read are mere matters of opinion. Barrie v. Jerome, 112 Ill. App. 329. That certain machines are the best on the market. Dowagiac Mfg. Co. v. Mahon [N. D.] 101 N. W. 903. One is not entitled to rely on matters of opinion. Hooker v. Midland Steel Co., 215 Ill. 444, 74 N. E. 445. Representations that a contractor's bid was so low that no profit could be made is a mere expression of opinion. Worrell v. Kinnear Mfg. Co., 103 Va. 719, 49 S. E. 988. A statement by one about to be employed as advertising solicitor that he could turn certain patronage to his new employer construed as a mere statement of opinion, and not a fraudulent misrepresentation; hence contract could not be avoided on that ground. Weik v. Williamson-Gunning Adv. Co. [Mo. App.] 84 S. W. 144.

65. One is not entitled to rely on representations as to the law. Hooker v. Midland Steel Co., 215 Ill. 444, 74 N. E. 445. Not a mere opinion; a misrepresentation of law. First Nat. Bank v. Columbus Sav. & T. Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 525.

66. Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290. Not misrepresentations as to value where both par-certain circumstances.[67] A false promise [68] made with no intention of performance,[69] or declaration of an intention not really entertained,[70] is not fraud. Fraud may result from silence when it is one's duty to speak,[71] especially if the parties stand in a fiduciary relation.[72]

§ 2. Inferences from circumstances and condition of parties or from the intrinsic nature of the transaction.[73]—Fraud may be inferred from the circumstances surrounding the transaction, as where one getting the better of a bargain stands in the more advantageous position,[74] or in a fiduciary relation.[75] The rule requiring a person standing in a fiduciary relation to another to show that transactions inuring ties have equal means of ascertaining the true value. Cornish v. Johns [Ark.] 85 S. W. 764.

67. A misrepresentation of law where a purchaser is a lawyer and kinsman of the seller, besides being his attorney. Cornish v. Johns [Ark.] 85 S. W. 764. Where one to whom they are made is of feeble intellect and unfamiliar with the value of the subject in question. Culley v. Jones [Ind.] 73 N. E. 94.

68. See 3 C. L. 1520, n. 98. Promises by a salesman that he would not sell his line of goods to any other merchant in town. Pratt v. Darling [Wis.] 103 N. W. 229.

69, 70. Miller v. Fulmer, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 106.

71. Mere silence on the part of a seller as to defects of which he knows the bidder is ignorant is not such fraud as would avoid the contract of sale; but silent acquiescence in the false statement of an auctioneer makes it a false averment of the seller, and the rule of caveat emptor does not apply. Disease of cattle. Dayton v. Kidder, 105 Ill. App. 107.

72. An agent for the purchase of a tract of land who joined with others in purchasing the same for speculative purposes stands in a fiduciary relation as to his associates in the purchase, and they may require him to refund a secret profit. Walker v. Pike County Land Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 609.

73. See 3 C. L. 1524.

Note: Relationship of parties in general. See Hammon on Contracts, § 142.

74. Evidence sufficient to show that a deed was procured by fraud, though signed without reading by one shiftless and indolent and susceptible of being easily overreached. Vollenweider v. Vollenweider, 216 Ill. 197, 74 N. E. 795. Release by father of damages for the death of his son, procured when he was prostrated with grief and sorrow held procured by fraud. Erickson v. Northwest Paper Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 291. Where an assignment of a bid on land was obtained for a mere fraction of its value and at a time the assignee was laboring under an erroneous impression as to her rights. Daniels v. Daniels [Ky.] 86 S. W. 1116. Evidence held to show that one mentally weak signed a deed on false representations that it was a lease. Snyder v. Arn, 187 Mo. 165, 86 S. W. 197. Where ignorant woman is taken advantage of by a shrewd business man in whom she has implicit confidence. Schaeffer v. Blanc [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 745. Where the attorney of an illiterate woman procured an assignment of a cause of action by false representations as to the import of the papers. Bush v. Prescott & N. W. R. Co. [Ark.] 89 S. W. 86. Deed by aged and illiterate grantors held procured by fraud. Obst v. Unnerstall, 184 Mo. 383, 83 S. W. 450. Where one deals with an illiterate man, able neither to read nor write, who makes his mark to an instrument, and there is evidence tending to show he did not understand the paper he executed, or that his signature was obtained by fraud, it is incumbent on the former party to show by a preponderance of evidence that the latter fully understood the object and import of the writing which he executed. Spelts v. Ward. 2 Neb. Uuoff. 177, 96 N. W. 56. False representations relative to the value of certain corporate stock made to a widow by one who had been the legal advisor of her dead husband, to secure an exchange of such stock. Tucker v. Osbourn [Md.] 61 A. 321. A joint purchaser must disclose the true purchase price of the property to be purchased. Failure to do so is fraud on his associate. Hinton v. Ring, 111 Ill. App. 369. Joint purchasers of property sustain a fiduciary relation toward each other. Paddock v. Bray [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 383, 88 S. W. 419. That a person mentally unsound does an act which a person would not be likely to do unless he was unduly influenced is evidence of undue influence. Howard v. Carter [Kan.] 80 P. 61. Where an unconscionable bargain is procured from an aged woman who at the time was without advice of counsel. Hubert v. Traeder [Mich.] 102 N. W. 283. Gifts to one in a fiduciary relation will be set aside. In re Sperl's Estate [Minn.] 103 N. W. 502. Lease and deed of trust procured from a widow held the result of undue influence where persons whom she relied on induced her to believe that her property was subject to sale on execution. Kane v. v. Quillin [Va.] 51 S. E. 353.

Evidence sufficient to show fraud and undue influence where one in whom an ignorant woman reposed trust and confidence procured her to execute to him a deed of her property. Gatje v. Armstrong, 145 Cal. 379, 78 P. 872. To warrant the cancellation of a deed. Ryan v. Galvin [Or.] 80 P. 421. To show fraud and undue influence in procuring a deed. Winn v. Itzell [Wis.] 103 N. W. 220.

Evidence insufficient to show a fraudulent conspiracy by one in a confidential relation. Havana City R. Co. v. Ceballos [C. C. A.] 139 F. 538. To show undue influence in the execution of a deed by a self reliant woman 59 years old to her nephew on whom she was not dependent, and with whom she did not live. Absalon v. Sickinger, 102 App. Div. 383, 92 N. Y. S. 601.

to his own benefit were fair and reasonable applies wherever fiduciary relations exist,[76] whether between attorney and client,[77] principal and agent,[78] guardian and ward,[79] parent and child,[80] husband and wife,[81] or those standing in other similar relations.[82] The mere fact of parental relation, however, does not raise a presumption of fraud and undue influence,[83] and transactions between parent and child, beneficial to the 76. Bingham v. Sheldon, 101 App. Div. 48, 91 N. Y. S. 917. Where parties stand in confidential relations, the burden is on a donee to show that the gift is not the result of undue influence. Reed v. Reed [Md.] 60 A. 621. The courts have made a distinction between transactions inter vivos, and those of a testamentary character in reference to undue influence; in transactions inter vivos where confidential relations exist between the parties, the law raises the presumption of undue influence and puts upon the donee, when the dominant party in the action, the burden of proof. In transactions testamentary, mere confidential relation raises no such presumption. Hutcheson v. Bibb [Ala.] 38 So. 754. See, also, 4 C. L. 1863.

77. Whiting v. Davidge, 23 App. D. C. 156. An attorney who, after his employment in a particular transaction ceases, continues to give his client confidential advice, is, in the absence of a distinct understanding that the relation has ceased to exist, subject to this rule. Bingham v. Sheldon, 101 App. Div. 48, 91 N. Y. S. 917.

78. Dealings between agent and subagent must be in entire good faith. Barnett v. Block [Minn.] 102 N. W. 390. Where an agent for the purchase of land purchases for himself, he is deemed to hold the property in trust for his principal. Johnson v. Hayward [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1058.

79. Where a guardian is made the beneficiary of his ward's will, undue influence is presumed. In re Cowdry's Will [Vt.] 60 A. 141. Evidence held to show fraud where a guardian secured his wards property on foreclosure sale for his own benefit. Coley v. Tallman, 95 N. Y. S. 339.

80. A gift by a father to a daughter who is caring for him during his disabling illness is presumptively made under undue influence. Slack v. Rees, 66 N. J. Eq. 447, 59 A. 466. A gift by a daughter to her stepmother, while the daughter was a member of the donee's family and treated as a daughter, which reserves no power of revocation and made without advice as to the effect of the conveyance will be set aside at the suit of the donor. Albert v. Haeberly [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 380. Voluntary conveyance by a father to a daughter with whom he lived and on whom he was wholly dependent for physical assistance held procured by undue influence. White v. Daly [N. J. Eq.] 58 A. 929. Evidence held to show that a voluntary deed from parent to child was the result of undue influence. Rickman v. Meier, 213 Ill. 507, 72 N. E. 1121. Conveyance from stepdaughter to step-father when she was but 18 years of age, for less than one-third the value of the premises, will be set aside. Eighmy v. Brock, 126 Iowa, 535, 102 N. W. 444. A deed from child to parent will be eyed critically by the court, but if made voluntarily and fully understood, it will be sustained. Ferns v. Chapman, 211 Ill. 597, 71 N. E. 1106.

81. If the provision secured the wife by an antenuptial settlement is unreasonably disproportionate to the means of the intended husband, it raises a presumption of fraud. Yost's Estate, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 183.

82. Transactions between individuals and corporations of which they are the controlling officers by which such individuals secure an unjust advantage may be avoided by the corporation. Burnes v. Burnes [C. C. A.] 137 F. 781. Between a promoter and a corporation, he is promoting, where, through a syndicate, a promoter purchased property to be sold to the corporation he was promoting and sold it to such corporation for more than it was worth without disclosing what was paid for it or other facts relative to it, the transaction could be rescinded. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow [Mass.] 74 N. E. 653.

Mortgagor and mortgagee. Where a mortgagee obtains a release of the mortgagor's equity of redemption, he has the burden to show that the contract was fair and that he paid what it was worth. Liskey v. Snyder, 56 W. Va. 610, 49 S. E. 515.

Administrator and heirs. A purchase by an administrator of the interest of heirs for less than its value will be set aside. Cornish v. Johns [Ark.] 85 S. W. 764.

Nurse and patient: Where a nurse and friend receives from her patient a large part of his estate, she has the burden of showing no fraud. Knee v. McDowell, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 641.

Brother and sister: In an action by a sister to set aside for want of consideration and fraud, a writing wherein she agrees to convey certain property to her brother, the burden of proof is on the brother. Goodhue v. Goodhue, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 225. A contract between brother and sister is not fraudulent where each acts with full knowledge of all the facts and on independent advice. Lozier v. Hill [N. J. Eq.] 59 A. 234. Where brothers-in-law are exceedingly intimate and one reposed trust and confidence in the other, a voluntary conveyance by one when he was physically incapacitated, though not mentally incompetent, to transact ordinary business, will be set aside. Irwin v. Sample, 213 Ill. 160, 72 N. E. 687.

Members of family: A purchaser of land from a member of his family who has just attained majority has the burden of showing it to be free from fraud. Jordan v. Cathcart, 126 Iowa, 600, 102 N. W. 510. Conveyance of land worth $4,500 for $600 to one of whose family the grantor was a member held void. Id.

83. In the absence of incompetency, fraudulent conduct or confidential relations, the parental relation does not raise a presumption against the validity of a gift from parent to child. Kennedy v. McCann [Md.] 61 A. 625. A deed from parent to child is not void merely because of the relationship. Powers v. Powers [Or.], 80 P. 1058. Evi-child, are presumed free from fraud;[84] but if a confidential relationship exists, the party receiving the benefit of the transaction has the burden of showing that it was free from fraud.[85]

§ 3. Remedies.[86]—Fraud vitiates all contracts into which it enters as an inducing element.[87] A defrauded party may affirm the transaction and maintain an action for damages,[88] or he may sue in equity for rescission,[89] or he may rescind by his own act and bring action for what he parted with by reason of the fraud,[90] but he cannot retain the benefits of the contract and avoid his liabilities.[91] If he seeks to rescind by his own act, he must first offer to restore whatever he received by virtue of the contract,[92] unless it is worthless;[93] but such restoration is not a condition precedent to maintaining an action to rescind.[94] A fair offer to return and a demand for what he parted with, however, is sufficient.[95] A seller who elects to rescind may recover so dence sufficient to rebut the presumption of improper influence in a deed from son to father. Ferns v. Chapman, 211 Ill. 597, 71 N. E. 1106.

84. Evidence insufficient to show fraud or undue influence in a conveyance from parent to child. Rixey v. Rixey, 103 Va. 414, 49 S. E. 586.

85. Where a fiduciary relation exists between parent and child, a transaction without consideration is presumed the result of undue influence. Rickman v. Meier, 213 Ill. 507, 72 N. E. 1121. A son who for a nominal consideration accepts a deed from an aged and infirm parent with whom he is living and taking personal care of, has the burden of showing that such deed was the parent's free act. Swanstrom v. Day, 93 N. Y. S. 192. A gift from mother to a son who is acting as her agent generally is presumptively procured by undue influence. Reed v. Reed [Md.] 60 A. 621.

Evidence insufficient to show that a gift from mother to son was the result of undue influence. Reed v. Reed [Md.] 60 A. 621. To show fraud or undue influence in procuring the execution of a deed. Brown v. Cole, 126 Iowa, 711, 102 N. W. 782. That an assignment of stock from child to parent was made by reason of the latter's parental control or for an inadequate consideration. Ripple v. Kuehne [Md.] 60 A. 464. Deed executed by an aged father to his son who was a lawyer and his legal advisor held not the result of undue influence, it appearing that the father desired to reward the son's wife for her care of him during his old age. Ball v. Ball, 214 Ill. 255, 73 N. E. 314. To show undue influence in procuring the execution of a deed. Brown v. Cole, 126 Iowa, 711, 102 N. W. 782. To show undue influence in the execution of a deed of trust where revocation was not sought for 20 years and after the death of the person who exercised the alleged undue influence. Dayton v. Stewart, 99 Md. 643, 59 A. 281.

86. See 3 C. L. 1526.

87. A condition in a contract of sale of goods that the purchaser shall inspect and give notice within five days if the goods do not comply with the warranty or otherwise the warranty shall be waived does preclude the purchaser after such time from showing a fraudulent substitution of the goods. Folkes v. Walter Pratt Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 224. One who acquires title to land by fraud and without consideration, acquires the bare legal title under constructive trust for the grantor. De Leonis v. Hammel [Cal. App.] 82 P. 349.

88. See Deceit, 5 C. L. 953. Kellenberger v. Meisner, 103 App. Div. 231, 93 N. Y. S. 44; Corse & Co. v. Minnesota Grain Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 728; John Silvey & Co. v. Tift [Ga.] 51 S. E. 748. It is optional. Burnes v. Burnes [C. C. A.] 137 F. 781; Joyner v. Early [N. C.] 51 S. E. 778. If a defrauded party at the time he discovers the fraud is unable to return the goods he received, he may recover compensation in damages for injury sustained. Rumsey v. Shaw, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 386.

89. Corse & Co. v. Minnesota Grain Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 728. Under Civ. Code, § 2314 a ratification may be rescinded if made with an imperfect knowledge of the material facts of a transaction. Willey v. Clements, 146 Cal. 91, 79 P. 850.

90. Corse & Co. v. Minnesota Grain Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 728. He may rescind and recover what he has parted with. Kellenberger v. Meisner, 103 App. Div. 231, 93 N. Y. S. 44. Under Civ. Code, § 1691, the tender back of the consideration of a deed procured by fraud is a rescission. Green v. Duvergey, 146 Cal. 379, 80 P. 234. Rescind and recover his specific property. Joyner v. Early [N. C.] 51 S. E. 778; John Silvey & Co. v. Tift [Ga.] 51 S. E. 748.

91. Gilsey v. Keen, 93 N. Y. S. 783. When one is induced to convey land for cash and other land the value of which is fraudulently represented, he cannot retain the cash and compel the other party to take back the land at what he represented it to be worth. Kellenberger v. Meisner, 103 App. Div. 231, 93 N. Y. S. 44.

92. Corse & Co. v. Minnesota Grain Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 728. A purchaser who elects to rescind must restore to the seller what he has received under the contract. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift [Ga.] 51 S. E. 748. The contract is at an end when an offer to return the property is made after an election to rescind. Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow [Mass.] 74 N. E. 653.

93. If the goods received are entirely worthless, they need not be returned. Rumsey v. Shaw, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 386.

94. Tender of the consideration received is not a condition precedent to the maintenance of an action to set aside a deed for fraud. Thorpe v. Packard [N. H.] 60 A. 432.

95. If his offer is refused, a strict and technical tender is not essential. Corse & much of the property sold as is in the possession of the vendee,[96] and for the value of such goods as cannot be recovered, an action based on the theory of a conversion [97] or upon the implied contract [98] may be maintained.

A defrauded party must assert his rights without unnecessary delay [99] after discovery of the fraud,[1] and if he affirms [2] or refuses to exercise his election to disaffirm,[3] or waives [4] or ratifies [5] the fraud, he is bound by the terms of the contract.

Fraud practiced by one seeking relief upon him against whom relief is sought, relative to the subject-matter of the action, is fatal to his claim [6] unless relief is asked by one in a representative capacity,[7] or unless the parties are not in pari delicto, and the person seeking relief is comparatively the less guilty; [8] and where a Co. v. Minnesota Grain Co. [Minn.] 102 N. W. 728.

96, 97, 98. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift [Ga.] 51 S. E. 748.

99. Long acquiescence in the binding effect of an instrument defeats a claim that its execution was procured by fraud. McConnell v. Pierce, 116 Ill. App. 103. A son who waits 9 years after he is fully advised and two years after the death of his father cannot have set aside for fraud a deed from himself to his father. Ferns v. Chapman, 211 Ill. 597, 71 N. E. 1106. Eight years' delay together with the death of the party charged with fraud. Ripple v. Kuehne [Md.] 60 A. 464. After a delay of seven years during which time a vendor received payments on the purchase price, the conveyance will not be set aside. Horn v. Beatty [Miss.] 37 So. 833. Relief must be sought promptly on the discovery of the fraud. Smith v. Bank of Lewisport [Ky.] 85 S. W. 219. Rescission must be made with reasonable promptness. Rumsey v. Shaw, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 386. One who immediately on discovering fraud perpetrated on him tenders back what he received in the transaction and demands what he parted with is entitled to be placed in statu quo. Green v. Duvergey, 146 Cal. 379, 80 P. 234. One is not guilty of laches in seeking relief until he has or should have discovered the fraud. Boren v. Boren [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 48.

1. Action for relief on the ground of fraud must be brought within four years from the discovery thereof or of the discovery of facts indicative of fraud. Weckerly v. Taylor [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1065. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 318, actions to recover land procured by fraud and undue influence must be brought within five years after possession has been parted with. Page v. Garver, 146 Cal. 577, 80 P. 860. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 2519, limitations commence to run from the time the fraud by ordinary diligence should have been discovered. German Security Bank v. Columbia Finance & Trust Co. [Ky.] 85 S. W. 761. One who has means at hand to discover fraud and such means would have been used by a person of ordinary diligence will not be heard to complain after twenty-three years, though he be illiterate. Boren v. Boren [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 48. Code Civ. Proc. § 338, requiring actions for relief on the ground of fraud to be commenced within three years is inapplicable to an action to quiet title against a deed procured by fraud. De Leonis v. Hammel [Cal. App.] 82 P. 349.

2. Delay, silence, or retention of the benefits of the transaction for a considerable period after discovering the fraud is an exercise of the option to affirm. Burnes v. Burnes [C. C. A.] 137 F. 781.

3. Hooker v. Midland Steel Co., 215 Ill. 444, 74 N. E. 445.

4. Fraud of an assignor of a note in inducing the assignee to take it by representations as to the solvency of the maker is waived where the assignee accepts payments on it with notice of the maker's insolvency. Miller v. Browning [Ky.] 89 S. W. 3. Fraud and misrepresentations, if any, in procuring contract, held waived by continuing work and accepting payment after knowledge thereof. Baltimore & A. R. Co. v. Jolly Bros. & Co., 71 Ohio St. 92, 72 N. E. 888. A son who deeds land to his father and after the latter's death sues to recover it as heir cannot thereafter maintain an action to cancel the deed for fraud and undue influence. Ferns v. Chapman, 211 Ill. 597, 71 N. E. 1106.

5. One who after discovering that she had signed a deed under belief that it was a will, remained passive and accepts a paper from the grantee wherein he undertakes to care for her husband during his life ratifies the fraud by which the deed was procured. Absalon v. Sickinger, 102 App. Div. 383, 92 N. Y. S. 601. A ratification or waiver of fraud precludes a recovery based thereon. Guinn v. Ames [Tex. Civ. App.] 83 S. W. 232. That some of the fraudulent representations inducing a transaction were ratified does not preclude relief on the ground of others. Willey v. Clements, 146 Cal. 91, 79 P. 850. One induced by fraud to execute a deed is not estopped thereafter to assail it because subsequent to the transaction she stated that she was satisfied. Jordan v. Cathcart, 126 Iowa, 600, 102 N. W. 510.

6. Supreme Council Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. Beggs, 110 Ill. App. 139.

7. An executor who is sole legatee of his intestate and who participated in a fraud whereby he was deprived of some of his property may maintain an action as executor to recover it, unless it is shown that he alone would benefit thereby. Huyler v. Dolson, 101 App. Div. 83, 91 N. Y. S. 794.

8. Where grantees take advantage of the weakness of the grantor and frighten him into conveying to them without consideration so as to escape liability in a suit on a pending bond. Sanford v. Reed [Ky.] 85 S. W. 213.

9. Where a woman who has great confidence in her attorney by his advice transferred her property to him, to put an obstacle in the way of certain creditors, she confidential relation exists, the doctrine of pari delicto may not apply.[9] An intention to defraud a third person, however, is no defense.[10]

Equity has concurrent jurisdiction with law in cases of fraud.[11] Fraud which will defeat an action at law upon a sealed instrument is confined to fraud in the execution of the instrument.[12] For fraudulent representations as to collateral matters, relief may be had only in equity.[13]

The right to set up or complain of fraud is personal.[14] Relief from a fraudulent transaction may be had by heirs of the defrauded party.[15] A corporation may recover for a fraud against it, though the perpetrator is a stockholder.[16] In a suit attacking a transaction as fraudulent, a party in the fraud may be joined, though he has no interest in the suit.[17]

Pleading.[18]—Fraud as a defense must be pleaded,[19] and the facts constituting it be specifically alleged,[20] except in Kentucky,[21] and an averment, defective because in general terms, cannot be cured by a bill of particulars,[22] but general averments are sufficient as against an objection to the introduction of evidence thereunder.[23] may nevertheless have such transfer set aside. Ingersoll v. Weld, 93 N. Y. S. 291.

10. That in executing a deed procured by fraud the grantor thereby intended to defraud another is no defense to an action to cancel it. Gatje v. Armstrong, 145 Cal. 370, 78 P. 872. Especially where the remedy at law is not fully adequate. Bank of Montreal v. Waite, 105 Ill. App. 373.

11. That a party has an adequate remedy at law does not oust a court of equity of its concurrent jurisdiction. Bush v. Prescott & N. W. R. Co. [Ark.] 89 S. W. 86; Supreme Council Catholic Knights & Ladies of America v. Beggs, 110 Ill. App. 139. The right of a vendee to recover a portion of the purchase price of land he was fraudulently induced to pay by a co-vendee and an agent is at law. Johnston v. Little [Ala.] 37 So. 592. A remedy at law exists where an exchange of land for a worthless consideration is induced by fraud. Creamer v. James, 116 Ill. App. 465. Fraud is available as a defense at law. American Alkali Co. v. Salom, 131 F. 46.

12. Such as misreading the instrument, the substitution of one paper for another, or other device or trickery, whereby one is induced to sign one instrument under belief that it is another. Fowler Cycle Works v. Fraser, 110 Ill. App. 126; Miller v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 113 Ill. App. 481.

13. Fowler Cycle Works v. Fraser, 110 Ill. App. 126; Miller v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 113 Ill. App. 481. In an action at law, a release introduced in evidence cannot be impeached for fraud not affecting the execution but going only to the consideration. Hartley v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 214 Ill. 78, 73 N. E. 398.

14. Not assignable. McConnell v. Pierce, 116 Ill. App. 103.

15. A deed procured by undue influence may be set aside by the heirs of the grantor after his death. Rickman v. Meier, 213 Ill. 507, 72 N. E. 1121. A widow may maintain an action to recover land procured from her husband by fraud and undue influence. She is the real party in interest. Page v. Garver, 146 Cal. 577, 80 P. 860.

16. Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow [Mass.] 74 N. E. 653.

17. Johnston v. Little [Ala.] 37 So. 592.

18. See 3 C. L. 1527.

19. Fraud cannot be shown unless specially pleaded. Pickett v. Gleed [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 946.

20. Brian v. Merrill, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 629; Miller v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 113 Ill. App. 481; Newman v. Mercantile Trust Co. [Mo.] 88 S. W. 6; Miller v. Butler, 121 Ga. 758, 49 S. E. 754. Not sufficient to allege fraud in general terms. Beadleston v. Furrer, 102 App. Div. 544, 92 N. Y. S. 879; Board of Com'rs of Howard County v. Garrigus [Ind.] 73 N. E. 82. A general denial does not raise the issue of fraud. Midler v. Lese, 45 Misc. 637, 91 N. Y. S. 148.

Complaint held sufficient in an action by stockholders against directors for fraud in the management of the corporation. Glover v. Manila Gold Min. & Mill. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 261. A notice of a special defense accompaning a plea of the general issue detailing a false representation sufficiently pleads fraud. Smith v. McDonald [Mich.] 102 N. W. 738. Where an heir seeks to recover property of the ancestor on the ground that such ancestor was induced by fraud to marry defendant and convey property to him, an answer denying such allegation is sufficient on demurrer. Mott v. De Nisco, 94 N. Y. S. 380. In a complaint to rescind an exchange of land for false representations as to title, it is sufficient to allege the specific misrepresentation. Facts affecting title need not be set out. Corbett v. McGregor [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 278.

Held insufficient: An allegation that a contract was procured by undue influence is a mere conclusion. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Field [Mo.] 86 S. W. 860. An allegation that a board of equalization arbitrarily added property to the assessment roll is insufficient. Ricketts v. Crewdson [Wyo.] 81 P. 1. Acts constituting fraud held not sufficiently pleaded. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Field [Mo.] 86 S. W. 860.

21. In Kentucky a general plea of fraud is good. It is said, however, that it is better practice to set out the facts and this may be required by motion to make more specific. Craft v. Barron [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1099.

22. Beadleston v. Furrer, 102 App. Div. 544, 92 N. Y. S. 879.

23. Howard v. Carter [Kan.] 80 P. 61.

Relief on the ground of undue influence cannot be had on an allegation of fraud.[24] Where pleaded as a defense and not as an equitable counterclaim for rescission, it cannot be used as a counterclaim, thought sufficient.[25]

Evidence.[26]—Fraud is never presumed. It must be established by one who asserts it.[27] It will not be imputed when the facts from which it is supposed to arise are consistent with honest intentions.[28] To entitle one to equitable relief, the proof must be clear and satisfactory,[29] but where relief is sought at law, only a preponderance of evidence is required.[30] It need not be so convincing as to amount to positive

24. Absalon v. Sickinger, 102 App. Div. 383, 92 N. Y. S. 601. Inducing one to sign a deed in a belief that it is a will is not undue influence. Id.

25. In an action for rent. Gilsey v. Keen, 93 N. Y. S. 783.

26. See 3 C. L. 1523.

27. Anderman v. Meier, 91 Minn. 413, 98 N. W. 327; Briggs v. Brown, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 163; Barrie v. Frost, 105 Ill. App. 187; Edwards v. Story, 105 Ill. App. 433. One who alleges fraud has the burden of proving it. Holden v. Maxfield [Minn.] 101 N. W. 955; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Jennings, 114 Ill. App. 622. One seeking to set aside a deed for fraud and undue influence has the burden of proof. Winn v. Itzel [Wis.] 103 N. W. 220.

28. Allen v. Riddle [Ala.] 37 So. 680. It is preferable, where it can be done, to trace a motive to an honest source, rather than to a corrupt one. Eickstaedt v. Moses, 105 Ill. App. 634.

29. Meyers v. Meyers, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 603; Allen v. Riddle [Ala.] 37 So. 680.

Cancellation of a contract. First Nat. Bank v. Buetow, 123 Wis. 285, 101 N. W. 927. To set aside a written instrument. Smith v. Rust, 112 Ill. App. 84. Nothing but clear and satisfactory evidence can justify the falsifying of a mutual settlement of accounts. Fletcher v. Whitlow, Lake & Co. [Ark.] 79 S. W. 773.

