51. Under Const. art. 9, § 9, and Local Imp. Act 1897, § 1, cities and villages of Illinois may make local improvements by special taxation, general taxation or otherwise. City of Chicago v. Brede, 218 Ill. 528, 75 N. E. 1044. Under Act May 16, 1891, P. L. 71, a borough has general power to grade, curb, and pave a street, or it may ordain that a fund shall be raised by assessment upon the abutting properties of the costs, damages, and expenses, according to benefits. Dunn v. Tarentum Borough, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 332.

52. Where county commissioners had discretionary power to order construction of court house at once and meet the expense out of taxes for the current year, or to delay construction and allow an election to decide upon a bond issue, the court would not interfere with a decision to pursue the former course, and had no power to stay proceedings until the electors should have voted on a bond issue. Anderson v. Newton, 123 Ga. 512, 51 S. E. 508.

53. In the absence of mistake, fraud, or arbitrary action, amounting to an abuse of discretion, action of commissioners in determining the proportion of the cost of an improvement to be borne by the city, and the portion to be assessed on benefited property, is not subject to judicial review. In re Westlake Ave. [Wash.] 82 P. 279. Under city and village act, art. 9, § 24, assessment roll is conclusive on question of apportionment of cost of improvement between public and benefited property. Beckett v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 97, 75 N. E. 747.

provide for special assessments in the ordinance, and the assessment is levied and the work completed, it cannot thereafter pay for a portion of the work by general taxation;[54] but an issue of bonds is sometimes authorized where special assessments prove to be insufficient.[55] Where general taxation is resorted to, the work must be one of public utility,[56] and the constitutional limit of indebtedness cannot be exceeded.[57] Where a city changes its policy of special assessments for improvements and provides for payment thereof by general taxation, a charter provision providing for a refund to owners, who had already paid assessments, is not invalid as creating a debt without providing a fund for its repayment.[58]

Ordinances requiring lot owners to lay sidewalks are regarded as police regulations imposing duties, the neglect of which creates a liability to the municipality for the cost of doing the work.[59] Assumpsit lies to recover such cost from a lot owner who is in default,[60] but there is no liability for the cost or any part of it unless the owner has been notified.[61]

A public building to be used by the state and one of its subdivisions may properly be constructed at their joint expense.[62] The erection of a residence for the governor at the capital is within the purposes of the grant of land by congress to the state of North Dakota for public buildings, under the enabling act.[63] The power to dispose of such lands and to limit the sum used for each building rests solely with the legislature and cannot be delegated by it.[64]

Bonds must conform to the statutes or ordinances authorizing their issue.[65] In Illinois, local improvement bonds, payable solely out of instalments of assess-

54. City of Chicago v. Brede, 218 Ill. 528, 75 N. E. 1044. The city of Chicago has no power to pay or purchase improvement bonds, coupons, and vouchers issued in payment of local improvements constructed by special assessment. Id.

55. Comp. St. 1903, c. 12a, § 101b, does not require the issuance of bonds in every case when lands are appropriated for parks, parkways, or boulevards, but only where the special assessment is sufficient for the purpose. Hart v. Omaha [Neb.] 105 N. W. 546.

56. Construction of Northern Avenue and bridge across Fort Point channel would be of public benefit, and fact that private owners of neighboring property would profit did not render use of fund one for private purposes. Wheelwright v. Boston, 188 Mass. 521, 74 N. E. 937. Const. art. 3, § 34, prohibiting the giving of state aid or credit to any individual, association or corporation for the construction of works of internal improvement, does not apply to public roads; hence Acts 1904, p. 388, c. 225, authorizing state aid for the building of county roads and making an annual appropriation therefor, is not invalid. Bonsal v. Yellott, 100 Md. 481, 60 A. 593.

57. A county had already exceeded its constitutional debt limit when a law was passed authorizing an annual tax for a series of years to build a court house. Held, the levy and collection of such tax to meet obligations to be thereafter incurred was an obligation within the constitutional prohibition, though the law provided that the county should not be liable to the contractor, except that the special tax was to be applied to pay him. Brix v. Clatsop County [Or.] 80 P. 650.

58. City of Houston v. Stewart [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 55, 87 S. W. 663.

59, 60. Pittsburg v. Biggert, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 540.

61. Pittsburg v. Biggert, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 540. Under Act April 2, 1867, P. L. 677, the city of Chester has no power to compel a lot owner to cut down an embankment so as to conform to the grade of the road before building his sidewalk. The city must first reduce the street to the required grade. Chester City v. Lane, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 359. Hence, where notice to construct a walk is given and the owner expresses his willingness to do so when the city has cut down such embankment, the city cannot reduce the street to grade and construct the walk without further notice to the owner and then recover the cost of the owner. Id.

62. Statute providing for building to be used as parish court house and state library building, expense to be borne by the parish and state, held valid. Benedict v. New Orleans [La.] 39 So. 792.

63. 25 Stat. 681, c. 180. State v. Budge [N. D.] 105 N. W. 724.

64. Laws 1905, p. 297, c. 166, providing for the appointment by the governor of a commission to remodel and reconstruct the capitol building, and to erect a residence for the governor, but not specifying the sums to be used, nor the time for completion of the buildings, is invalid, being an unwarranted delegation of legislative functions. State v. Budge [N. D.] 105 N. W. 724.

65. Local Improvement Act, § 86, authorizing bonds to anticipate only second and succeeding instalments of assessments, held not violated by ordinance providing for bonds to anticipate five instalments where it ments, are not negotiable.[66] Purchasers of such bonds have only such rights as the contractor would have, and where the latter has failed to complete an improvement as required by the authorizing ordinance, they cannot compel payment of the bonds.[67] A property owner is entitled to credit for a proportion of a premium received from a sale of bonds,[68] but has no recourse against a municipality which refunds street improvement bonds at a lower rate of interest, deriving a profit therefrom.[69]

§ 4. Proceedings to authorize making. A. In general.[70]—Statutes prescribing procedure must be followed, and while mere irregularities may be waived or cured,[71] a jurisdictional defect renders subsequent proceedings, including assessments, invalid.[72] Thus, the various steps must be taken by the officers designated by law for their performance.[73] Ordinarily, different classes of improvements must be made by separate proceedings,[74] but the amount of work of the same kind to be included in one proceeding is largely discretionary.[75] Where the work is performed by the municipality directly and not by contract, the procedure required in the case of contract work need not be followed.[76]

(§ 4) B. By whom and how initiated.[77]—Where a petition by property owners is required,[78] it must be signed by the required number of owners, or persons authorized to sign.[79] was also provided that the bonds were to conform to the statute. Gage v. Chicago, 216 Ill. 107, 74 N. E. 726.

66. Construing Local Imp. Act, c. 24, §§ 73, 86, 90. Northern Trust Co. v. Wilmette [Ill.] 77 N. E. 169.

67. Northern Trust Co. v. Wilmette [Ill.] 77 N. E. 169.

68. An abutting owner, upon whose property a street assessment was levied prior to the passage of the Municipal Code, is entitled to be credited with his proportion of the premium received from the sale of bonds to meet the cost of the improvement, but this credit can only be made upon the interest payable on the deferred instalments of his assessment. Mudge v. Evanston, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 197.

69. Borger v. Columbus, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S). 261.

70. See 4 C. L. 1129.

71. See post, § 8 H, Waiver of and estoppel to urge defenses.

72. All steps taken under an invalid ordinance are void. Glos v. Collins, 110 Ill. App. 121.

73. Where map of sewer as determined upon by ordinance was changed by city engineer, under direction of director of public works, and engineer's map was followed in making the improvement, an assessment of benefits according to the altered plan could not be enforced. In re Scranton Sewer [Pa.] 62 A. 173. Under Laws 1896, p. 76, c. 57, § 1, amended by Laws 1897, p. 925, c. 679, a commissioner of street improvements has no power to employ an engineer to make plans for a boulevard approach. Hildreth v. New York, 97 N. Y. S. 582. An ordinance requiring permanent walks to be constructed of stone or artificial stone is a compliance with an ordinance requiring the mayor and council to designate the kind of materials to be used for permanent walks, and is not a delegation of that duty. Richardson v. Omaha [Neb.] 104 N. W. 172.

74. Where a charter provides that the improvement of each street or part thereof shall be by separate proceeding, the city has no power to include in one proceeding different classes of improvements for separate parts of a street. Portland City Charter § 375. Oregon Transfer Co. v. Portland [Or.] 81 P. 575.

75. A city may elect by separate ordinances and contracts to pave and grade different parts of the same street. Wabash Ave., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 305. Resolution of intention to pave held not invalid because including work of various kinds on different streets. San Francisco Pav. Co. v. Egan, 146 Cal. 635, 80 P. 1076.

76. Specifications for repair of street need not be filed. Andrix v. Columbus, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 368.

77. See 4 C. L. 1130, 1132, (§ 4) F.

78. Jurisdiction of council to order a street improvement was based, under 90 O. L. 156, in the petition therefor of one-half or more of the frontage. Herman v. Columbus, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 216. Comp. Laws 1897, § 2480, requiring repairs on public buildings to be authorized by vote of electors when they exceed $500 in value, does not apply where work of reconstruction is to be paid out of insurance money and not by taxes. Attorney General v. Montcalm County Sup'rs [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 562, 104 N. W. 792.

79. The president of a corporation is the proper person to sign a petition for repaving on behalf of the corporation. Corporation held bound by president's signature, though directors did not act. Eddy v. Omaha [Neb.] 103 N. W. 692. The board of education of the Omaha school district may authorize its president to sign a petition for repaving. Id. To render effective a signature to a petition

Initiatory steps by municipal legislative bodies must be taken in the manner and form required by the statute or charter.[80] Thus, an order, resolution, or ordinance must be passed by the required vote.[81] Where the authorization of a work is required to be by ordinance, a resolution is insufficient.[82] A common practice is to require a preliminary resolution of intention[83] to be followed, after property owners have had an opportunity to be heard, by an ordinance or resolution providing for construction. In such case the ordinance must conform to the resolution, as a substantial variance between the work as declared for in the resolution and that provided for by ordinance invalidates the proceedings.[84] Both the resolution and ordinance must properly describe[85] and fix[86] the character and location of the proposed work. In this respect a resolution of intention may be aided by reference to plans for a street improvement, it must be that of the owner of the property at the time of the passage of the ordinance ordering the improvement. Herman v. Columbus, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 216. Life tenant binds the property by signing for a street improvement. Id. Owner of unassigned dower cannot bind the property by her signature for a street improvement. Id.

80. Under St. 1892, p. 467, c. 418, § 5, the Boston board of street commissioners need not include an order for construction in its order providing an improvement shall be made. The construction order may be separate. New England Hospital for Women & Children v. Street Com'rs, 188 Mass. 88, 74 N. E. 294. A resolution of a board of public works of New York authorizing the commissioner of highways to employ a consulting engineer on the work of constructing an approach to a bridge is not an authorization and approval of the work as required by Laws 1897, c. 378, § 413. Hildreth v. New York, 97 N. Y. S. 582. Specifications need not be created by ordinance. A resolution is sufficient. Haughawout v. Raymond [Cal.] 83 P. 53.

81. A paving ordinance is not invalid because passed by the casting vote of a member of the council who signed the petition for the paving. Erie City v. Grant, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 109. Street improvement ordinance void because not passed by majority of council as required by law. Reed v. Woodcliff [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1128. Plans and specifications for rebuilding of court house destroyed by fire held to provide practically for a new structure, and not merely for repairs. Hence, a two-thirds vote of county supervisors was necessary to authorize the work. Attorney General v. Montcalm County Sup'rs [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 562, 104 N. W. 792. Under Comp. Laws 1897, §§ 2543, 2544, 2484, subd. 16, 2485, a board of supervisors of a county cannot provide for reconstruction of burned county building out of insurance money except by a two-thirds vote. Id.

82. In cities of the third class, the ordering of the work and the assessment of the cost must be by ordinance and not by resolution. City of Sedalia v. Donohue, 190 Mo. 407, 89 S. W. 386. Street grading must be authorized by ordinance, not by resolution, under Rev. St. 1899, § 5979. Graden v. Parkville [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 115. Under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 5954, 5955, grading and macadamizing of a street, not provided for by ordinance, was without authority of law. Id. An ordinance authorizing a common council to determine the necessity for, and to require construction of a new sidewalk, by resolution, cannot make action so taken valid, since the statute requires such action to be taken by general or special ordinance, preceded by application in writing for the improvement. Sproul v. Borough of Stockton [N. J. Law] 62 A. 275.

83. Local Imp. Act § 7 is complied with where a resolution is passed approving an engineer's estimate and fixing a time and place of hearing as to the necessity, nature, and cost of the improvement, and it is immaterial that two preliminary resolutions had previously been passed. Heiple v. Washington, 219 Ill. 604, 76 N. E. 854. A recital that a certain improvement "seems desirable" does not satisfy a requirement that the council decide by resolution that public convenience demands it. Blanchard v. Barre, 77 Vt. 420, 60 A. 970. No particular form of expression is required by Code § 811, in order that a resolution may "order" an improvement. A resolution adopted pursuant to another fixing a hearing with the purpose of making the improvement if expedient, held sufficient. Stutsman v. Burlington, 127 Iowa 563, 103 N. W. 800.

84. Held no variance between first resolution and ordinance. McLennon v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 62, 75 N. E. 762. Where first resolution described improvement as "a system of brick and vitrified tile-pipe sewer," an ordinance described it as "a system of brick and vitrified tile-pipe sewers," both resolution and ordinance describing the streets and character of sewer in each, the variance was immaterial. Washington Park Club v. Chicago, 219 Ill. 323, 76 N. E. 383.

85. Ordinance providing that catch-basins shall be provided with cast iron covers weighing 470 pounds, "and of the same size and pattern as those used in new work by the city of Chicago during the year 1902," sufficiently describes the catch-basins. Gage v. Chicago, 216 Ill. 107, 74 N. E. 726; Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 352, 75 N. E. 365. "Flat stones" held to have well understood meaning among contractors so that ordinance using term was sufficient. Beckett v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 97, 75 N. E. 747. It is not necessary that a resolution to pave should refer to curbing and guttering, these being necessarily included in the prop-

and specifications.[87] A substantial compliance with statutory requirements as to the description of the improvement in the ordinance is all that is required.[88] An erroneous description or date may be corrected by a second resolution or ordinance.[89] A resolution of intention to pave properly excepts work which is required to be done by street railway companies,[90] or which has already been done by property owners as required by law.[91] An ordinance for a street improvement should either establish a grade or require the work to conform to a grade already established.[92] It is proper for an ordinance to name more than one material of which an improvement may be constructed, since competition is thus encouraged.[93] Where two ordinances have been passed for the same improvement, one of which is valid and the other invalid, the law will presume that the improvement was made under the valid ordinance.[94] Formal defects in the record of the action taken are immaterial.[95]

(§ 4) C. Notice and hearing.[96]—It is essential to the validity of proceedings that notice of the proposed work be given owners of property which will be affected, and an opportunity for a hearing afforded,[97] where the law so requires.[98] osition to pave. Owens v. Marion, 127 Iowa 469, 103 N. W. 381. If a sidewalk resolution so describes its location that property owners could know what property abutted on the proposed improvement, it would be sufficient. Dyer v. Woods [Ind.] 76 N. E. 624. Failure of resolution to give estimated cost held not to invalidate proceedings. City of North Yakima v. Scudder [Wash.] 82 P. 1022.

86. Ordinance for street improvement held not invalid as giving city engineer discretionary power to change character of proposed work. Guyer v. Rock Island, 215 Ill. 144, 74 N. E. 105.

87. A reference is sufficient; the plans need not be physically annexed to the resolution. Haughawout v. Raymond [Cal.] 83 P. 53.

88. Ordinance for street paving held not invalid for uncertainty in determination of grade, since grade could be computed by mathematical calculation. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Chicago, 215 Ill. 410, 74 N. E. 449. In determining the sufficiency of the description in an ordinance, what was done under it is immaterial. Beckett v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 97, 75 N. E. 747.

89. No jurisdictional defect where a second improvement ordinance is passed and published identical with the first, except that an erroneous description of the improvement district is corrected. City of North Yakima v. Scudder [Wash.] 82 P. 1022. Where a resolution of intention specified a date for the hearing which would not permit of a sufficient publication thereof, and the council on being so informed by the clerk, substituted a later date, and the resolution was published as changed, there was no jurisdictional defect in such procedure. Id.

90. San Francisco Pav. Co. v. Egan, 146 Cal. 635, 80 P. 1076.

91. As work done under St. 1891, p. 204, c. 147, § 7, subds. 10, 11. San Francisco Pav. Co. v. Egan, 146 Cal. 635, 80 P. 1076.

92. Amended ordinance which established no grade for a sidewalk and referred to no other ordinance, record, or datum by which the grade could be determined, but attempted to delegate the power to determine the grade to the engineer in charge, was void. Harris v. People, 218 Ill. 439, 75 N. E. 1012. Failure of ordinances authorizing special assessments for street improvements to fix the grade of the street held not to deprive court of jurisdiction of subject-matter, so as to render judgment rendered by county court void on collateral attack. People v. Brown, 218 Ill. 375, 75 N. E. 989. A reference to an established grade of a street to be improved, which has been established by another ordinance, is a sufficient specification of the grade. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 352, 75 N. E. 365. Where the grade of a street had been established by a general ordinance, and, though not placed on record, the grade of the street to be improved could be ascertained, this was a sufficient establishment of the grade to sustain a paving ordinance. Guyer v. Rock Island, 215 Ill. 144, 74 N. E. 105. City council ordered sidewalk constructed and board of public works determined it should be built adjacent to the curb, fixing the grade. Subsequently, the board recommended delay, but the council ordered the work done at once. Held the board did not rescind its action fixing the grade. Cuming v. Gleason [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 127, 103 N. W. 537.

93. Ordinance for paving with "brick, bithulithis, bituminous macadam, or other improved material," held proper. Ex parte City of Paducah [Ky.] 89 S. W. 302. Failure of the ordinance authorizing an improvement to specify which of several materials shall be used does not invalidate the action of the board of public surveys in awarding the contract for one of the materials named. Emmert v. Elyria, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 381.

94. Harris v. People, 218 Ill. 439, 75 N. E. 1012.

95. That a clerk's certificate of an improvement ordinance preceded the ordinance instead of following it in the record, held immaterial. Heiple v. Washington, 219 Ill. 604, 76 N. E. 854.

96. See 4 C. L. 1131.

The sufficiency of the notice given depends upon the requirements of the law and the facts.[99] Failure to notify a particular land owner does not invalidate proceedings as to other owners duly notified.[1] In Nebraska, property owners are entitled to an opportunity to designate materials to be used for paving.[2]

(§ 4) D. Protests and remonstrances.[3]—In some jurisdictions, objections to the prosecution of a work, properly raised by the required number of property owners, deprives the local authorities of jurisdiction to proceed.[4] Only the owners of property affected[5] or their authorized agents[6] may sign a remonstrance. Persons

97. A municipal ordinance directing that a street be paved, and the cost assessed upon property benefited, is a judicial act, and it is essential to its validity that notice be given and an opportunity for a hearing afforded to property owners liable to be affected thereby, although the city charter does not expressly require such notice. Sears v. Atlantic City [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1093. A notice of a hearing before commissioners to assess benefits after the completion of the improvement does not suffice. Id. Under statutes or charters providing for construction of improvements by the municipality on default of abutting owners, the right of an owner to construct the improvement cannot be taken from him except in accordance with law. City of Denver v. Dunning, 33 Colo. 487, 81 P. 259. Thus a wholly insufficient notice to owners relative to the construction of the improvement renders subsequent proceedings by the municipality invalid. City of Denver v. Dunning, 33 Colo. 487, 81 P. 259. Publication of resolution declaring necessity of sewer, and filing of plans and plats required by Ohio statute, afford reasonable notice to property owners of intention to make improvement, and of the extent and character thereof. Cleneay v. Norwood, 137 F. 962.

98. Where a charter does not require the question of advisability of an improvement to be submitted to taxpayers, nor provide for a hearing on that question, the fact that the contract was let and executed, the bond approved, and the work completed before taxpayers had an opportunity to be heard, did not render the assessment invalid. Parsons v. Grand Rapids [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 507, 104 N. W. 730. No notice is required by the Grand Rapids charter until after assessments are reported. Id. Under Local Imp. Act § 11, the ordinance need not be referred and published where the engineer's estimate does not exceed $100,000, and no publication is necessary where it is $100,000, though court costs are not included. McLennon v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 62, 75 N. E. 762. In Indiana an order to build a sidewalk need not be served on the owner but is to be entered of record and the owner must then take notice of it. Order unnecessarily served held not to have misled owner. Dyer v. Woods [Ind.] 76 N. E. 624.

99. Held no variance between first resolution and notice of the public hearing. McLennon v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 62, 75 N. E. 762. Use of word "expense" instead of "extent" in notice of public improvement did not invalidate assessment, it not appearing that owners were misled thereby. Heiple v. Washington, 219 Ill. 604, 76 N E. 854. Publication of the ordinance requiring an owner to build a sidewalk is sufficient notice to the owner under the sidewalk act of 1875. Marshall v. People, 219 Ill. 99, 76 N. E. 70. If notice of sidewalk resolution is in fact served on owner, a defect in the return of service is immaterial. Dyer v. Woods [Ind.] 76 N. E. 624. Law held to require posting of notices of passage of resolution of intention only along line of improvement, and not on a block not to be improved. Sacramento Pav. Co. v. Anderson [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1069. Failure to give notice within 10 days of an ordinance for improving a street required by Act May 16, 1891 (P. L. 79), does not render the assessments invalid but only inconclusive. The error may be shown on trial. Duquesne Borough v. Keeler [Pa.] 62 A. 1071. Recitals in special assessment resolution that handbills announcing filing of plat, and schedule, and time and place of hearing thereon, had been posted as required by law, held sufficient proof of the fact. Owens v. Marion, 127 Iowa, 469, 103 N. W. 381. Notice of a proposed street improvement is binding upon all parties interested in the property, when served on a lessee for ten years with privilege of purchase, to whom the care and control of the property is entrusted. Clemmer v. Cincinnati, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 31.

1. Failure to give notice of proceedings for a drainage ditch to a particular landowner did not render the proceedings invalid as to other owners. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506.

2. In Nebraska, property owners of a paving district must be allowed 30 days after approval and publication of the ordinance declaring the improvement necessary in which to designate by petition the materials to be used. But where a petition, signed by owners representing a majority of taxable foot frontage, is filed, the mayor and council do not lose jurisdiction by acting on the petition before the 30 days have expired, where no other petition designating materials, and signed by the required number of owners, is filed within the 30 day period. Eddy v. Omaha [Neb.] 103 N. W. 692.

3. See 4 C. L. 1131.

4. Where Sess. Laws 1897, p. 219, § 31, providing that if the owners of more than half the property assessed object to the improvement, it shall not then, nor within six months, be made, is violated, the assessment is void. Hensley v. Butte [Mont.] 83 P. 481.

5. Administrator of deceased owner cannot sign. City of Sedalia v. Montgomery [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 1014. Conveyance in who sign may withdraw their signatures during the period within which the remonstrance must be filed,[7] and those who have so withdrawn cannot be counted in determining the sufficiency of the remonstrance.[8] The validity of a remonstrance is subject to impeachment by evidence controverting ownership or authority of the signers.[9] The passage of an ordinance for an improvement, after the report of a committee, that a remonstrance filed is insufficient, has been received and filed, amounts to an adoption of the report and a finding that no sufficient remonstrance was filed.[10] But since a sufficient remonstrance would deprive the council of jurisdiction to proceed,[11] its finding that there was no sufficient remonstrance is not conclusive.[12] In California a written protest against the acceptance of a work is treated as an appeal to the council from the action of the street superintendent.[13] Where the council has sustained such a protest and vacated an assessment, it cannot thereafter rescind the action so taken.[14]

(§ 4) E. Estimates of cost.[15]—Statutes requiring estimates of cost should be closely followed,[16] though merely formal defects will not invalidate proceedings thereunder.[17] Such estimates need be made only when required by law.[18] firm name vested title in party named only. He alone should be counted as a single remonstrant. Id.

6. Officers of corporate owners cannot sign unless authorized by directors. City of Sedalia v. Montgomery [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 1014.

7. Within 10 days after resolution, under Laws 1892-1893, p. 92, § 110. City of Sedalia v. Montgomery [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 1014.

8, 9, 10. City of Sedalia v. Montgomery [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 1014.

11. Under Laws 1892-1893, p. 92, § 110, that council may proceed if majority of property owners liable do not protest within 10 days after publication of resolution. City of Sedalia v. Montgomery [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 1014.

12. City of Sedalia v. Montgomery [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 1014.

13. Under St. 1885, p. 156, c. 153, § 11, a written protest by property owners stating that they protest against acceptance of work because it has not been performed in accordance with the terms and specifications of the contract, is properly treated as an appeal to the council from action of the street superintendent. Creed v. McCombs, 146 Cal. 449, 80 P. 679.

14. Where a city council has sustained a protest of property owners under St. 1885, p. 156, c. 153, § 11, and vacated an assessment, it cannot rescind its action, and bonds issued on an assessment vacated and attempted to be reinstated are void. Creed v. McCombs, 146 Cal. 449, 80 P. 679. But though the holders of such bonds have no active subsisting lien, they are not deprived of the right to acquire a lien by proper proceedings. Id. A city council having sustained an appeal of property owners and vacated an assessment, it cannot rescind such action. Hence, the appeal remains pending notwithstanding such attempted rescission, and the council has power to direct a new assessment, or a reissuance of the former assessment, on completion of the work. Id.

15. See 4 C. L. 1132.

16. An estimate which will give property owners a general idea of the estimated cost of the substantial component elements of the improvement is sufficient. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 352, 75 N. E. 365. Estimate of cost of street paving held sufficiently itemized. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Chicago, 215 Ill. 410, 74 N. E. 449. Evidence held not to show that estimate included items not provided for by the ordinance. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 352, 75 N. E. 365. Street commissioner directed by ordinance to make an estimate of the cost of a sidewalk is a "proper officer" to make such estimate, within Rev. St. 1899, § 5985. City of Bevier v. Watson, 113 Mo. App. 506, 87 S. W. 612. Where an engineer made an estimate of cost of a sewer based on plans showing levels, distances, directions, and location with sufficient fullness, and these plans were executed and the assessment was based thereon, and the estimate and plans had been in town clerk's office and used by the town, Pub. St. 1882, c. 50, § 7, requiring an estimate of cost, was complied with. Cheney v. Beverly, 188 Mass. 81, 74 N. E. 306.

17. That engineer did not place proper title after signature to estimate did not affect assessment. Heiple v. Washington, 219 Ill. 604, 76 N. E. 854. The qualifications of the engineer who furnished the estimate of cost cannot be questioned in a proceeding to confirm an assessment. Id.

18. If city council does not require an estimate of the engineer, failure to furnish one does not invalidate the proceedings. Haughawout v. Raymond [Cal.] 83 P. 53. Pol. Code 1886, § 4409, does not require the city council to have an estimate of street work before passing a resolution of intention unless the council is desirous of issuing bonds or of placing the work in a district. Sacramento Pav. Co. v. Anderson [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1069. Though a charter provides that a grading of a street can be legally ordered only at the expense of abutting property owners to the extent of excess of benefits over damages, under Rev. St. 1898, § 1210d, a

(§ 4) F. Approval and acceptance of work.—The acceptance of an improvement by a local board of public works is, in the absence of fraud, conclusive in a collateral proceeding attacking the assessment, where the manner in which the work was done is questioned;[19] but an arbitrary acceptance of work not done according to the terms of the contract is not binding or conclusive upon property owners.[19a] The engineer's certificate of the completion of a work, when required,[20] must show that the work was properly done.[21]

(§ 4) G. Curative legislation and ratification.[22]—Where proceedings for a public work are commenced under a statute subsequently held unconstitutional, it is competent for the legislature, by a retroactive amendatory act, to validate such proceedings.[23]

§ 5. Proposals, contracts, and bonds.[24] Awarding the contract.—The advertisement for bids must comply with statutory requirements[25] and must be sufficiently definite as to the character and extent of the work, and the terms and time of payment, to render possible intelligent bidding and competition.[26] In awarding contracts, municipal authorities are vested with broad discretion, and their action will not be disturbed by the courts in the absence of fraud or a palpable abuse of discredetermination of the amount so chargeable is not a condition precedent to ordering of the work in order to create a valid lien on the property. Pabst Brewing Co. v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 105 N. W. 563.

19. Duniway v. Portland [Or.] 81 P. 945. Under Local Imp. Act § 84, an order of the county court approving a certificate of the board of improvements, which recites that the improvement has been completed in substantial compliance with the ordinance, is conclusive on that issue. People v. Cohen, 219 Ill. 200, 76 N. E. 388.

19a. Paving not done in manner provided by contract, the departures being to the advantage of the contractor and to the prejudice of owners. Acceptance held not conclusive. McCain v. Des Moines [Iowa] 103 N. W. 979.

20. St. 1891, p. 206, c. 147, held not to require certificate of city engineer in certain street paving proceedings. San Francisco Pav. Co. v. Egan, 146 Cal. 635, 80 P. 1076.

21. Engineer's certificate of completion of work held not defective, because not containing an estimate of cost where it gave measurements of the different kinds of work, and stated that the work was completed to official line and grade. San Francisco Pav. Co. v. Dubois [Cal. App.] 83 P. 72. Certificate of engineer that he had examined work described in resolution to pave and found same "practically to official line and grade," and showing area of pavement laid and length of curb constructed, held sufficient, if any certificate was required. San Francisco Pav. Co. v. Egan, 146 Cal. 635, 80 P. 1076.

22. See 4 C. L. 1134. See also, post, § 8 H, Waiver of and estoppel to urge defenses.

23. Proceedings for a ditch were begun under Code tit. 10, c. 2, notice being given as required by that act, which was held invalid because not providing for notice to owners of "lands in the vicinity." Laws 30th Gen. Assem. p. 59, c. 67, cured the defect and was made retroactive. Held proceedings already taken were validated. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506. Acts 25th Gen. Assem. p. 167, c. 179, expressly legalizing a contract between a city and a contractor for paving, is not invalid because its preamble erroneously recited that part of the work was done. McCain v. Des Moines [Iowa] 103 N. W. 979.

24. See 4 C. L. 1135. See, also, Public Contracts, 6 C. L. 1109.

25. Advertisements for bids for new court house held to have complied with Act April 4, 1870, P. L. 834. Commonwealth v. Brown, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 269.

26. Plans and specifications must be sufficiently definite to require competition on every material item, and should specify the quantity of work so far as practicable. Contract held illegal because specifications were too indefinite. Gage v. New York, 110 App. Div. 403, 97 N. Y. S. 157. Notice to bidders, which referred to plans and specification on file, held sufficient, though it did not state when the work was to be done, the kind of material to be used, when payments were to be made, and when proposals could be acted on. Owens v. Marion, 127 Iowa, 469, 103 N. W. 381. Where an advertisement for bids for a court house invited bids on a building in two locations, stating the amount available in each case, Pol. Code 1895, § 345, being otherwise substantially complied with, so that the public was informed as to the extent and character of the work and the terms and time of payment, the carrying out of the contract would not be enjoined. Anderson v. Newton, 123 Ga. 512, 51 S. E. 508. Greater New York charter § 419, requiring contracts to be let to the lowest bidder, is violated by a contract provision that changes in the character of the work and materials could be made, and that the city engineer was to have power to determine the additional amount to be paid therefor. Gage v. New York, 110 App. Div. 403, 97 N. Y. S. 157.

tion.[27] It is not essential that the lowest bid be accepted;[28] other matters besides the price offered may be considered.[29] An "unbalanced bid" is not per se fraudulent and unlawful.[30] Provision for payment must sometimes be made before a valid contract can be awarded.[31] A taxpayer may maintain a suit to enjoin the making of a contract.[32]

Particular contract provisions.—It has been held that under a charter providing for the designation of two or more kinds of material for paving by the board of public works, from which property owners may select the material to be used, the board has power to designate a kind of material as to which competitive bidding is impossible.[33] In New York it is held that a contract requiring the use of a material which can be obtained from only one producer is valid.[34] It is held in Indiana that a requirement that a patent paving material is to be used is inconsistent with the statute requiring contracts to be let to the lowest and best bidder.[35] Such a requirement is said to be invalid as tending to create a monopoly and preventing competition, even though the owner of the patent agrees to supply the material to any properly equipped, responsible contractor at a specified rate, and to furnish an expert to supervise preparation of the material;[36] but this rule does not exclude the use of patented material.[37]

27. Murray v. Bayonne [N. J. Law] 63 A. 81. Performance of a contract will not be enjoined upon the mere ground that the contract is inadmissible or upon general allegations of fraud or bad faith. Walter v. McClellan, 48 Misc. 215, 96 N. Y. S. 479. The action of the proper authorities in letting the contract is conclusive on property owners in the absence of collusion or fraud. City of North Yakima v. Scudder [Wash.] 82 P. 1022. Held proper to include in one contract the improvement of a street, except a part between two intersecting streets, though it appeared that if two contracts were let there would not have been as many curves and curbs. Sacramento Pav. Co. v. Anderson [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1069.

28. Lowest bid need not be accepted by aqueduct commissioners under Laws 1901, p. 231, c. 466. Walter v. McClellan, 48 Misc. 215, 96 N. Y. S. 479.

29. Fact that lowest bid was not accepted did not invalidate contract, where it appeared that material on which lowest bid was made was not known to be as good as that selected. Murray v. Bayonne [N. J. Law] 63 A. 81. Municipal authorities have discretionary powers in awarding contracts. They may consider other matters besides the contractors' financial responsibility and need not award contracts to the lowest bidders. Philadelphia v. Pemberton, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 323.

30. An "unbalanced" bid, based on nominal prices for some work and enhanced prices for other work, is not per se fraudulent or unlawful, and does not render a contract illegal where there has been no material enhancement of the gross price and the items are fairly identified. Walter v. McClellan, 48 Misc. 215, 96 N. Y. S. 479.

31. Where police jury undertakes to build a court house, for which it is necessary to incur a debt payable from the estimated surplus of the parish revenues, the contract therefor may be made upon the basis of cash realized or to be realized from certificates of parish indebtedness to the payment of which the surplus is dedicated. Dupuy v. Police Jury of Parish of Iberville [La.] 39 So. 627. Section 45a of the Municipal Code, relating to the requirement that the funds for an improvement be in the city treasury before the work is undertaken, is fairly open to two constructions, and where the auditor certifies on the advice of the city solicitor that the money is in the treasury, the contract cannot be invalidated on the ground of fraud in that the bonds which had been authorized had not yet been sold. Emmert v. Elyria, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 381.

32. One who is in fact a taxpayer is entitled to maintain a suit to enjoin the making of a contract for a public improvement, though his motive may have been the fact that he was interested in a corporation which was an unsuccessful bidder. Gage v. New York, 110 App. Div. 403, 97 N. Y. S. 157.

33. Designation of particular kind of asphalt held within power of board under Kansas City Charter, art. 9, § 2. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Field [Mo.] 86 S. W. 860. Designation of particular kind of asphalt is not an illegal interference with interstate commerce. Id.

34. Contract for construction of bridge held not illegal, though requiring a certain kind of steel which could be procured only from one producer. Gage v. New York, 110 App. Div. 403, 97 N. Y. S. 157.

35. Acts 1905, p. 281, c. 129, § 95. Monaghan v. Indianapolis [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 33; Id., 76 N. E. 424.

36. Monaghan v. Indianapolis [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 33; Id., 76 N. E. 424.

37. It is intimated that patented material may be used when the procedure adopted will avoid the objections above noted. Monaghan v. Indianapolis [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 424.

The contract should disclose what the expense is to be and must conform to the statute authorizing the work in that regard.[38] An ordinance providing that where public work involves the use of dressed stone the contract must require the work of dressing to be done within the state is not unconstitutional as interfering with interstate commerce,[39] nor is it invalid as preventing competition.[40] A municipality has power to fix a minimum wage for laborers engaged on public works.[41] To sustain an objection to an assessment on the ground that there was a clause in the specifications limiting the number of hours to constitute a day's work, it must be made to appear that such clause actually entered into the competition.[42] Contracts requiring the contractor to make repairs for a term of years,[43] and requiring a fund to be deposited by the contractor to secure the making of such repairs,[44] are valid. A paving contract requiring the contractor to keep the pavement in proper repair for a term of years requires only the making of such repairs as are rendered necessary by ordinary wear and use of the street.[45] For the making of repairs not required by the contract the contractor cannot recover from the city.[46] A city is not such a party to a paving contract made with property owners as to be liable to the contractor for negligence resulting in damage to the pavement.[47]

Performance of contract.—In the absence of an ordinance requiring completion of work within a specified time, a contract provision specifying a certain time and calling for liquidated damages for its violation does not invalidate tax bills for work not finished within the time designated, but completed within a reasonable time thereafter.[48] Where the purpose of an ordinance and contract provision requiring a deposit of a percentage of the amount of the contract is not only to furnish a fund with which to complete work left unfinished, but also to provide additional security for the performance of the contract,[49] the question of satisfactory performance of the contract is one involving the discretion of the director of public works, and mandamus will not lie to compel its repayment.[50] Officials have no power to substitute other materials for those specified in the contract.[51] Execution of a contract illegally awarded may be enjoined,[52] and in such a suit the contractors should, upon their application, be admitted as parties.[53]

38. Walter v. McClellan, 48 Misc. 215, 96 N. Y. S. 479.

39, 40. Allen v. Labsap, 188 Mo. 692, 87 S. W. 926.

41. Ordinance fixing limit of $2.25 for 8 hours' work on street improvement held valid. Gies v. Broad [Wash.] 83 P. 1025.

42. Where specifications appended to contract contained an 8 hour clause, but advertisement for bids referred to specifications on file in the department of public works, and the latter were not shown to contain such clause, the objection was not sustained. Gage v. Chicago [Ill.] 77 N. E. 145.

43. See, also, 4 C. L. 1136, notes 53, 54. A provision for repairs by the contractor for a term of years does not render the contract absolutely void. Repairs to paving for 10 years. Erie City v. Grant, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 109. Where it appears that paving laid in accordance with specifications will last 5 years without repairs, a contract provision for repairs by the contractor for that length of time does not invalidate the assessment lien. Philadelphia v. Pemberton, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 323.

44. Allen v. Labsap, 188 Mo. 692, 87 S. W. 926.

45. No obligation to repair pavement torn up by bursting of water mains. Green River Asphalt Co. v. St. Louis, 188 Mo. 576, 87 S. W. 985.

46. Green River Asphalt Co. v. St. Louis, 188 Mo. 576, 87 S. W. 985.

47. Under contract requiring maintenance of pavement for five years, contractor could not recover from city for repairs on pavement damaged by bursting of water mains. Green River Asphalt Co. v. St. Louis, 188 Mo. 576, 87 S. W. 985.

48. Allen v. Labsap, 188 Mo. 692, 87 S. W. 926. See, also, 4 C. L. 1137, notes 61, 62, 63.

49. Contract for street cleaning requiring 10% deposit so construed. Commonwealth v. Philadelphia, 211 Pa. 85, 60 A. 549.

50. Commonwealth v. Philadelphia, 211 Pa. 85, 60 A. 549.

51. Under Acts La. 1896, p. 162, No. 114, which creates a commission to provide a drainage system for New Orleans, neither the commission nor its engineer had power to substitute, for materials specified in a contract, materials of a cheaper grade; hence, unauthorized profits from such substitution may be recovered. Drainage Commission of New Orleans v. National Contracting Co., 136 F. 780.

Bonds.—In distributing the proceeds of a bond given by a contractor the United States is not entitled to priority over the claims of persons supplying labor or materials for prosecution of the work.[54] The liability of sureties on such bond is limited to the amount of the penalty specified therein, notwithstanding the two-fold obligation to the United States and to persons supplying labor and materials.[55]

§ 6. Security to laborers and materialmen.[56]—A Federal statute requires contractors for public works to execute a bond for the protection of persons furnishing labor and materials, and authorizes any such person to sue thereon in the name of the United States to his own use.[57] The provision of the statute that the action can be brought only in a court having power to require security for costs of plaintiff does not deprive a court of jurisdiction of an action by a domestic corporation.[58] Similar bonds are commonly required by local municipalities.[59] A contractor's bond which is not in the statutory form and does not expressly secure laborers and materialmen gives no right of action thereon in favor of such laborers or materialmen;[60] but a surety cannot be relieved on a bond because its conditions are more comprehensive than required by ordinance.[61] Where a contract secured by bond requires prompt payment of claims for labor and materials, subcontractors may rely on the bond for security without perfecting claims against the fund in the hands of the treasurer of a building committee.[62] A statutory lien for labor or materials is lost when the action to enforce it is not commenced within the statutory period,[63] and a lien which has expired cannot be revived by any action on the part of the municipality.[64]

In some states a sidewalk built at the expense of the abutting owner is considered a private, not a public, improvement.[65] Hence, one who supplies materials for its construction has a lien upon it, under the mechanics' lien law.[66]

§ 7. Injury to property and compensation to owners. A. In general.[67]—

52. Injunction will lie to restrain the execution of a contract for public work awarded under different specifications from those under which bids were advertised and subsequent to the time named for receiving bids. State v. Board of Education, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 345.

53. Walter v. McClellan, 48 Misc. 215, 96 N. Y. S. 479.

54. United States v. American Surety Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 78.

55. Claim that the United States could recover the full penalty notwithstanding other claims held untenable. United States v. American Surety Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 78.

56. See 4 C. L. 1138.

57. Act Cong. Aug. 13, 1894, 28 U. S. Stat. 278. Furnishing scows to a contractor for the removal of stone near the Harlem river is not supplying "labor or materials" within the meaning of U. S. Rev. St. § 3747, and one so doing cannot recover on the bond. United States v. Conkling [C. C. A.] 135 F. 508.

58. By bringing the action plaintiffs tender themselves willing to furnish proper security for costs in case judgment be for defendant, and the court requires it; hence the court has power to do so. Sayre & Fisher Co. v. Griefen [N. J. Law] 60 A. 513.

59. Plaintiffs, who supplied paving brick to contractor, could recover on bond given by him to secure payment to materialmen. City of Philadelphia v. Neill, 211 Pa. 353, 60 A. 1033. A contractor's bond under Philadelphia ordinance of March 30, 1896, conditioned to pay "any and all persons, any and all sums of money which may be due for labor and materials furnished and supplied or performed in and about said work," gives a right to sue thereon to one who furnishes materials to a subcontractor. Bowditch v. Gourley, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 342.

60. Where bond expressly provided that surety should be liable to no one except owner, it does not conform to Acts 1899, c. 182. Hardison & Co. v. Yeaman [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 1111.

61. Bowditch v. Gourley, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 342.

62. Hipwell v. National Surety Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 318.

63. Lien on money due on paving contract lost by failure to bring action within 90 days, under Gen. St. p. 2078. Borough of Rosselle Park v. Montgomery [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 954.

64. Borough of Rosselle Park v. Montgomery [N. J. Eq.] 60 A. 954.

65. Leiper v. Minnig [Ark.] 86 S. W. 407.

66. Kirby's Dig. §§ 4970, 4971, 4972. Leiper v. Minnig [Ark.] 86 S. W. 407.

67. See 4 C. L. 1139.

A city which exercises care and skill in making a public improvement is not liable for consequential damages to abutting owners;[68] but where private property is taken for public use, compensation must be made.[69] A property owner has no individual remedy in an action on the case against a contractor and public officials for damages, where by fraud and collusion an improvement other than that authorized is made and accepted.[70]

(§ 7) B. Establishment or change of grade of street.[71]—Liability for damages resulting from changes lawfully made in street grades is wholly statutory.[72] Damages must be recovered in the manner provided by the statute.[73] The right of recovery is in the owner of the property injured at the time the improvement is made, and not in his subsequent grantee.[74] A property owner who joins in a petition for the improvement is not estopped to claim damages to his property, nor does he thereby release his right to damages;[75] and the fact that the authorities have found that certain property will be benefited does not preclude a claim for damages by the owner.[76] He is entitled to a jury trial of the question.[77]

The measure of damages for a change of grade is the difference in the value before and after the change, less the special benefit to the property caused by the change;[78] but benefits for which an assessment has been or will be made cannot be set

68. If care and skill were used in grading, abutting owner could not recover damages resulting to stone wall which formed lot boundary. Davis v. Silverton [Or.] 82 P. 16.

69. See Eminent Domain, 5 C. L. 1097. Statute requiring city of Boston to build bridge and construct street held in part unconstitutional, because not providing for compensation for damages to certain lands, but this portion of the law was held separable from the remainder and did not render the whole invalid. Wheelwright v. Boston, 188 Mass. 521, 74 N. E. 937. Improvements under the Illinois drainage act resulting in the lowering of the water in the South Branch of the Chicago River and in canals connected therewith, necessitating the deepening of such canals, is damaging private property for public use, within Const. art. 2, § 13. Beidler v. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago, 211 Ill. 628, 71 N. E. 1118.

70. Gage v. Springer, 112 Ill. App. 103.

71. See 4 C. L. 1140.

72. See 4 C. L. 1140, n. 5. Change of grade held to have been merely ordinary repairs which selectmen had power to make; hence property owner could maintain petition for assessment of damages under Pub. St. 1882, c. 52, § 15. Garvey v. Revere [Mass.] 73 N. E. 664. Laws 1892, p. 1761, c. 686, § 69, authorized towns to repair and macadamize roads at their expense, but did not provide for recovery of damages for change of grade. Laws 1903, p. 1396, c. 610, giving such right of damages, is not unconstitutional as authorizing a gift, since the legislature has power to provide for such claims in the act of 1892. In re Borup, 182 N. Y. 222, 74 N. E. 838.

73. Damages for street improvement are to be determined in a proceeding before viewers. Robinson v. Norwood Borough, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 481. Trespass will not lie for injuries caused by water thrown on land by reason of the plan adopted for grading a street. Id. A petition for the assessment of damages caused by a change of grade under Pub. St. 1882, c. 52, § 15, which is taken to the office of the selectmen and handed to a member of the board in the presence of two others, though the board was not then in session, is filed properly, and it cannot affect the petitioner's rights that it was not placed on record. Garvey v. Revere [Mass.] 73 N. E. 664. Damages to property cannot be recovered in a suit in equity where the equitable relief prayed for has been denied. Suit to enjoin enforcement of assessment and for damages to property caused by grading and widening street. Injunctive relief being denied, claim for damages could not be litigated in court of equity. Davis v. Silverton [Or.] 82 P. 16.

74. Robinson v. Norwood Borough, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 481.

75. Property owners petitioned for a street improvement, "costs, damages and expenses" to be charged to their property. An ordinance, pursuant to the petition, provided that "costs and expenses" should be charged to the property. Viewers were appointed to ascertain "damages and assess costs, expenses and benefits." Held borough could not charge damages on property or claim that owners had released their rights to damages. Dunn v. Tarentum, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 332.

76. Where property is injured by a change of street grade and construction of a walk, the owner is not precluded from claiming damages because the walk was to be built by special taxation, and the authorities had found his property would be benefited. Village of Grant Park v. Trah, 115 Ill. App. 291; Id., 218 Ill. 516, 75 N. E. 1040.

77. Determination of village to construct sidewalks by special taxation does not determine question of damages. Village of Grant Park v. Trah, 218 Ill. 516, 75 N. E. 1040.

78. Evidence that change was necessary inadmissible on issue of damages. Garvey off against a claim for damages.[79] Where land and buildings thereon constitute but one piece of property, damages resulting from a change of grade can be properly ascertained only by considering the property as a whole.[79a] Impairment of the use of property for a particular purpose will not entitle the owner to damages if the market value of the property is enhanced by the improvement.[79b] The cost of adjusting the property to the new grade and the injury to trees, are proper elements of damage.[79c]

Where two improvements and assessments therefor are made under separate proceedings, damages caused by one cannot be set off against an assessment for the other.[80] While the mere passage of an ordinance providing for a change of grade does not of itself give rise to an immediate cause of action for damages,[81] yet a property owner who improves his property in accordance with an established grade, and thereafter voluntarily changes his improvements to conform to a newly established grade, before the city has done any act to conform the surface of the street to the new grade, may recover damages when the change is actually made by the city.[82] In Missouri an abutting owner whose property will be damaged by grading is entitled to damages to be ascertained by a jury or board of commissioners before the work is commenced,[83] and the prosecution of work commenced without authority and before such compensation has been determined may be enjoined.[84]

§ 8. Local assessments. A. Power and duty to make.[85]—Municipal corpora-

v. Revere [Mass.] 73 N. E. 664. Under Laws 1903, p. 1396, c. 610, authorizing recovery of damages for change of grade of highways, only actual damages, less benefits properly charged to the property, may be recovered. In re Borup, 182 N. Y. 222, 74 N. E. 838. The damages recoverable by an abutting owner for a change of grade is the difference in value of his property before and after the change. Widman Inv. Co. v. St. Joseph [Mo.] 90 S. W. 763. In determining the special benefits which may be set off against such damages in an action therefor, the cost of making the improvement is not to be considered. Under Const. art. 2, § 21. Widman Inv. Co. v. St. Joseph [Mo.] 90 S. W. 763. Under Laws Wash. 1893, p. 194, c. 84, § 15, only damages in excess of benefits conferred by the improvement on the property concerned can be allowed for a change in street grade. City of Seattle v. Board of Home Missions [C. C. A.] 138 F. 307.

79. In determining damages for a change of grade for sidewalk construction, the assessment against the property may be deducted from the benefits resulting from the improvement. Village of Grant Park v. Trah, 115 Ill. App. 291. Benefits to property from sidewalks, sewers and drains, made possible by a change of grade, cannot be set off against damages caused by the change of grade, since the property would be liable to special assessments when these improvements were made. Garvey v. Revere [Mass.] 73 N. E. 664.

79a. Evidence of benefits to lot, without regard to building, properly excluded. City of Seattle v. Board of Home Missions [C. C. A.] 138 F. 307.

79b, 79c. City of Seattle v. Board of Home Missions [C. C. A.] 138 F. 307.

80. Damages caused by widening a street cannot be set off against an assessment for paving and grading when the ordinance for widening was passed nine months after the contract for grading was awarded, and the cost of the two improvements were assessed in separate proceedings. Duquesne Borough v. Keeler [Pa.] 62 A. 1071.

81. Under Code § 785, providing for damages for change of grade. York v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 103 N. W. 790.

82. York v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 103 N. W. 790.

83. Const. art. 2, § 21. Graden v. Parkville [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 115.

84. Graden v. Parkville [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 115.

85. See 4 C. L. 1141.

NOTE. Improvements for which special assessments may be made: "The rule is well established that general taxes cannot be levied or imposed to pay the costs of a specific local improvement. The converse of this rule is also well established: that local assessments or taxes cannot be levied or imposed to pay for the cost of an improvement of a general character or one which results in a general benefit and advantage not only to the individual whose property is adjacent to or near but also to an equal extent to that individual whose property may be situated at the remotest distance from the improvement. A local assessment, therefore, is only valid or legal when levied to pay the cost of a local improvement in its restricted sense.

"Applying this rule, courts have held that a local tax or assessment cannot be levied for the construction of a court house, public market, public school house, or other buildings of a similar character, or a plant for supplying water and light to the entire municipality, or the construction and repair of large sewers, or water mains designated as the main arteries of a general system.

"On the contrary, the opening, paving or tions have no inherent power to levy special assessments. Such power exists only to the extent that it is expressly conferred by statute.[86] Statutes conferring the power are to be strictly construed against the municipality and in favor of the property owners.[87] Where conferred, the power is a continuing one and may be exercised whenever the public need demands.[88] It cannot be delegated by the legislative bodies upon which it is conferred.[89] The law in force at the time proceedings for an improvement are instituted controls.[90]

A holder of warrants issued in payment of work done may, by mandamus, compel the levy of assessments to provide for their payment;[91] but a city is not liamacadamizing, grading, curbing and guttering, sprinkling or general improvement of streets and highways, the running of water pipes and mains, or placing of hydrants. construction of viaducts, local sewers, ditches or drains, or the running of sewer pipes, the construction or repair of sidewalks, the establishment of park ways, public grounds or parks, the construction of safe harbors, landings, wharves and docks, have each been considered local improvements of such a character that the cost of their construction or making should be assessed against the property benefited in proportion to the benefits received. The general rule in regard to the construction of all the improvements noted above in the absence of special charter or statutory provisions is that the original cost of such improvement must be borne by local assessments levied upon property benefited; after such original construction the cost of making the usual and necessary repairs must, however, be paid from the general corporate funds or revenues. The power to construct local and public improvements outside of the corporate limits in the absence of an express legislature grant is universally denied. The rule applies to the opening of a street, the repairing of a highway, the grading of an avenue, or the construction of a bridge."—See Abbott. Mun. Corp. § 340, and authorities there cited.

86. Marion Trust Co. v. Indianapolis [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 834. The power to make assessments exists only when distinctly conferred by legislative authority. Blanchard v. Barre, 77 Vt. 420, 60 A. 970. A benefit assessment on abutting property may be made where a sewer channel is relocated. St. 1899, p. 496, c. 450. Atkins v. Boston, 188 Mass. 77, 74 N. E. 292. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 3845, authorizes a city to apportion the entire cost of a sidewalk built by it on the property abutting thereon. Marion Trust Co. v. Indianapolis [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 834. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 3105, cities of the second class have power to build sewers at cost of abutters. City of Covington v. W. T. Noland & Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 216. Act June 4, 1901, P. L. 364, authorizes the filing of a municipal lien for the paving of a cartway. Philadelphia v. Pemberton, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 323. Laws 1902, p. 589, c. 219, amending Port Chester Charter, tit. 5, § 4, by providing for the inauguration of improvements by the village trustees, merely supplements the charter and does not affect the provisions for local assessments to pay for such works. In re Locust Ave. in Village of Port Chester, 110 App. Div. 774, 97 N. Y. S. 508. Comp. St. 1903, c. 12a, § 101b, authorizes a special assessment on land "specifically" benefited by a park or boulevard to pay for the land appropriated or purchased. This section is not controlled by or in conflict with c. 12a, § 158, which provides generally for the assessment of damages for the taking of property for street purposes on abutting or adjacent real estate. Hart v. Omaha [Neb.] 105 N. W. 546. St. 1902, p. 439, c. 527, does not authorize two assessments for the same public work, but only one assessment for public improvements completed within six years before the day of the passage of the act. New England Hospital for Women & Children v. Boston St. Com'rs, 188 Mass. 88, 74 N. E. 294. Street improvement held not completed until ready for public use; hence, in this case, assessments were properly levied under law of 1902. Id.

87. Marion Trust Co. v. Indianapolis [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 834; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Oglesby [Ind.] 76 N. E. 165.

88. Shannon v. Omaha [Neb.] 103 N. W. 53. Thus, a city which has in good faith adopted and carried out plans for a sewerage system, approved by a competent sanitary engineer of high standing in his profession, is not chargeable with the cost of additional or substituted improvements made necessary by the growth of the city. Inadequacy of sewer held to have been brought about by large business blocks displacing residences in a certain section of the city. Id.

89. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 1498, and §§ 1495, 1496, and Acts 1893, p. 65, the power to levy and assess the cost of street improvements is vested in city councils of cities of the third class, and cannot be by them delegated to city clerks. City of Sedalia v. Donohue, 190 Mo. 407, 89 S. W. 386.

90. Where proceedings for improvement of a public road were commenced by petition, under act of March 22, 1895 (Gen. St. p. 2902), before passage of the act of April 1, 1903 (P. L. 1903, p. 145), the right to assess abutting land for 10% of the cost was not affected by the act of 1903. Haines v. Burlington County Chosen Freeholders [N. J. Law] 62 A. 186.

91. The holder of warrants of which payment is withheld, the construction of the work being unnecessarily delayed or refused, may by mandamus, compel county commissioners to proceed and provide for payment. Espy Estate Co. v. Pacific County Com'rs [Wash.] 82 P. 129. An assessment to pay such warrants may be levied, though condemnation proceedings and construction of the work have not been completed. Id.

ble upon warrants payable out of a special fund, merely because of a failure to collect taxes, where it does not appear that the assessment is invalid or that the city has been negligent in making the assessment.[92]

(§ 8) B. Constitutional and statutory limitations.—Usually, though not always,[93] special assessments can be levied only for work constituting an original improvement,[94] or a reconstruction.[95] Mere repairs must be made at the general expense.[96] Whether particular costs and expenses may be included in an assessment depends upon the statute.[97]

Equality and uniformity.[98]—Special assessments are based upon the theory that property assessed will be specially benefited.[99] Accordingly, they are not considered "taxes" within the meaning of constitutional provisions requiring equality and uniformity.[1] Absolute equality is not to be expected, and any rule of apportionment which makes assessments as nearly as possible proportionate to

Where an original ordinance and several subsequent reassessment ordinances were held void, a holder of warrants issued to pay for the improvement could compel the city to pass a proper ordinance to provide for payment by mandamus. Waldron v. Snohomish [Wash.] 83 P. 1106. Acceptance of money from the city in part payment of improvement warrants, under invalid ordinances, held not to preclude resort to mandamus to compel the authorities to make a valid reassessment. Id. Where a contractor has received a final order for the full contract price for a drain before it is completed, and while it is valueless to the public, he is not entitled to a writ of mandamus to compel a township supervisor to certify a special assessment roll. Sherwood v. Rynearson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 395, 104 N. W. 392.

92. City of Denver v. National Exch. Bank [Colo.] 82 P. 448.

93. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 3096, abutting owners are liable for the cost of sidewalks made of improved materials, whether the construction is original or a reconstruction. Mudge v. Walker [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1046.

94. Where a work of public utility has once been constructed, either by the public or at the expense of abutting owners, the latter cannot be charged with the cost of any subsequent reconstruction or change, even though this is a further benefit. Philadelphia v. Meighan, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 160. Where sewer was built on one side of a highway and charged to owners on that side, the city could not build one on the other side years later and charge the cost to owners on that side. Id. A public highway was macadamized for a width of 18 feet at the expense of property owners, under act April 21, 1882, and thereafter became a county road. In 1895 it was made a part of a city and in 1904 was graded, curbed, and paved. Held the work on the city street in 1904 was original construction and property owners were liable therefor. Heim v. Figg [Ky.] 89 S. W. 301. Macadamizing of a street by an abutting owner at his own expense, with the consent of the mayor and board of public works, was not an original construction so as to bar an assessment for a subsequent improvement by the city. City of Louisville v. Gast [Ky.] 91 S. W. 251.

95. Where evidence showed that asphalt surface was so badly worn that it could not be repaired, and street was completely resurfaced, the old concrete base being used, the work done constituted an improvement and not mere repairs. Bush v. Peoria, 215 Ill. 515, 74 N. E. 797.

96. Funds for the repair of streets which have been improved by special assessment must be provided by general taxation, special assessments not being proper for such work. Bush v. Peoria, 215 Ill. 515, 74 N. E. 797.

97. In Iowa the expense of collecting the assessment cannot be included therein. Higman v. Sioux City [Iowa] 105 N. W. 524. The cost of the necessary preliminary work or action pertaining to a street improvement, such as the cost of advertising, serving notices, etc., paid by the municipality from its general fund, may be included in the assessment and collected from the owners of property specially benefited by the improvement in order to reimburse the general fund, notwithstanding all such costs were proper charges which could enter into the aggregate charge to be assessed upon the properties benefited as part of the costs of the improvement, and no fund to pay such costs existed at the time the expenses were incurred. Adkins v. Toledo, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 433. Where a local assessment included an amount necessary to meet the expenses of making a survey, plans, specifications, and superintendence, under the express charter provisions, the fact that the sum so collected went into an improvement revolving fund largely supported by special assessments, the expenses named being in fact paid out of another fund supported by general taxation, did not render the assessment illegal as double taxation, since property owners paid no more than they should have paid and enjoyed the use and benefit of the accumulation in the revolving fund. Burns v. Duluth [Minn.] 104 N. W. 714. A special assessment for unpaid non-interest bearing vouchers cannot properly include interest on such vouchers, and an ordinance providing for an amount which includes such interest, the amount of interest and of principal not being separable on the face of the ordinance, is wholly void. Cratty v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 453, 75 N. E. 343.

98. See 4 C. L. 1141.

benefits is upheld.[2] Thus, the assessment of contiguous[3] or abutting property according to frontage[4] or area,[5] or a rule involving both frontage and depth,[6] or according to the assessed valuation,[7] is upheld, provided the amount assessed is substantially proportionate to the benefits actually conferred,[8] and the assessment is not arbitrary and unreasonable.[9] The omission of property benefited and assessable renders an assessment unjust and erroneous.[10]

99. Arnold v. Knoxville [Tenn.] 90 S. W. 469.

1. Acts 1905, p. 585, c. 278, authorizing special assessments does not violate Const. art. 2, §§ 28, 29. Arnold v. Knoxville [Tenn.] 90 S. W. 469.

Note: Arnold v. City of Knoxville [Tenn.] 90 S. W. 469, overrules Taylor, McBean & Co. v. Chandler, 9 Heisk. [Tenn.] 352, 24 Am. Rep. 308, and Reelfoot Lake Dist. v. Dawson, 97 Tenn. 151, 36 S. W. 1041, 34 L. R. A. 725, which held special assessments unconstitutional. The opinion cites and reviews many authorities, pointing out the distinction between special assessments and general taxes.

For note on Local Assessments as Taxes, see 4 C. L. 1143.

2. The fact that assessments may not be exactly proportionate to benefits in particular instances does not render the rule of apportionment invalid. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co., 197 U. S. 430, 49 Law. Ed. 819. The fact that an assessment is excessive as to particular property is not a jurisdictional defect where it is uniform as a whole and states the number and frontage of each lot assessed. Bates v. Adamson [Cal.] 84 P. 51.

3. Statute authorizing local improvements to be made by special taxation of contiguous property does not violate Const. 1870, art. 9, § 1, requiring taxes to be levied according to valuation "so that every person and corporation shall pay a tax in proportion to the value of his, her or its property." Harrigan v. Jacksonville [Ill.] 77 N. E. 85.

4. A sewer assessment at a uniform rate according to frontage does not necessarily violate a requirement that assessments must be proportionate to benefits. People v. Desmond, 97 N. Y. S. 795. Benefits from new sewer held practically confined to property in new district, all of such property being benefited, and front foot rule of apportionment held not inequitable. Shannon v. Omaha [Neb.] 103 N. W. 53. Where the boundaries of an avenue are extended for the sole purpose of providing ornamental courtyards, the benefits should be assessed according to the frontage, irrespective of whether the property is improved or not. In re City of New York, 106 App. Div. 31, 94 N. Y. S. 146.

5. Assessments according to area of abutting property for grading, curbing, and paving, do not violate the 14th amendment. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co., 197 U. S. 430, 49 Law. Ed. 819.

6. Rev. St. Ohio 1892, § 2383, provides that a part of the frontage of lots having a greater frontage than the average depth may be exempted and the deficiency charged to the entire frontage pro rata. Held, an assessing ordinance conforming to this statute is not open to the objection that it provides for an assessment which is not uniform. Cleneay v. Norwood, 137 F. 962.

7. Acts 1893, p. 102, providing that levee assessments shall be according to assessed value, is not invalid because assessments thereunder are not according to benefits. Porter v. Waterman [Ark.] 91 S. W. 754.

8. Pub. St. 1882, c. 50, § 7, provides for a fixed, uniform rate of assessment according to frontage or area or both, and that no assessment shall be made on any estate which cannot be drained until such incapacity is removed. This statute is construed as meaning that assessments shall not exceed benefits, and, as so read, is constitutional. Cheney v. Beverly, 188 Mass. 81, 74 N. E. 306. Under this statute an objection that an assessment is not made with reference to the cost of a particular sewer is untenable, since the statute provides for a fixed uniform rate based on the average cost of all sewers in the system. Id. Acts 28th Gen. Assem. p. 14, c. 29, § 1, providing that special assessments shall be in proportion to special benefits and not in excess thereof, is sufficiently definite without an ordinance, since the determination of the extent of the benefits depends upon the circumstances of each case. Stutsman v. Burlington, 127 Iowa, 563, 103 N. W. 800.

9. Assessments for street paving should be uniform and laid with relation to the benefit derived from the entire improvement, although different kinds of paving are used on different portions of the street. Where brick and asphalt were used, it was improper to impose the entire cost of each kind of paving on the property abutting thereon. Cossitt Land Co. v. Neuscheler [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1128. Assessment for widening of street for market place, whereby portions of lots were assessed an amount equal to the value of the parts taken, without reference to the different situation of the lots, and the fact that some already fronted on the market, set aside as arbitrary and unjust. Berdel v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 429, 75 N. E. 386. Assessment against relator's property, levied under front foot rule for sewers, held unjust and excessive as compared with other assessments, his property being used for residential purposes only, and other lots for business purposes. People v. Reis, 109 App. Div. 748, 96 N. Y. S. 597. Improper to assess for street paving lots having a depth of 25 feet on same basis as lots having depth of 100 feet, especially where one lot was corner property, and other lots were omitted. Cossitt Land Co. v. Neuscheler [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1128. A municipality cannot adopt as a basis for estimating the benefits accruing to abutting lots from a street improvement the depreciated value of the lots at the time of the improvement, due to the fact that the street had been used as a dump for waste

Due process of law.[11]—Notice to property owners, substantially in the manner provided by law, is essential to the validity of assessments.[12] Due process of law does not, however, require notice of each successive step leading up to the assessment.[13] Any statutory notice to the property owner which will enable him to appear before some duly constituted tribunal, where he may be heard with reference to the fairness and validity of an assessment before it becomes a fixed charge on his property, is sufficient.[14] Restricting the right of appeal from local tribunals is not a denial of due process of law.[15]

(§ 8) C. Persons, property, and districts liable, and extent of liability.[16]—Only property benefited by an improvement can be assessed for its cost,[17] and the amount of the assessment must be proportionate to the benefits.[18] Subject to the constitutional and statutory limits already noted, local authorities are vested with a broad discretion in determining what property will be benefited by an improvement,[19] and the extent of such benefit,[20] since these are questions of fact[21] in the decision of matter of all kinds and had thereby become a public nuisance from which property values suffered. Kummer v. Cincinnati, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 559.

10. Sewer assessment. People v. Reis, 109 App. Div. 748, 96 N. Y. S. 597.

11. See 4 C. L. 1144.

12. Under Middletown Charter, there can be no assessment for a local sewer unless notice of the application and time of hearing thereon is given as required by the charter. Weeks v. Middletown, 107 App. Div. 587, 95 N. Y. S. 352. Under Act May 16, 1901, pl. 224, § 29, property owner cannot be charged with cost of house connections of sewer in absence of notice to him and default in compliance with notice. Erie City v. Willis, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 459. Act May 16, 1901, pl. 224, § 35, requiring 5 days' notice of sewer assessment, is only directory, and failure to give notice for the required time does not make the assessment wholly void. Id. Where the plat and schedule showing lots, owners, amounts, etc., required by Code § 821, was filed, and the notice of assessment required by § 823 given, the fact that the assessment resolution (§ 825) did not enumerate the lots, owners. etc., did not render the assessment invalid. Higman v. Sioux City [Iowa] 105 N. W. 524. Code, § 823, provides that objections to special assessments must be filed within 20 days after first publication of the notice. Held a notice published 2 days after its date, and providing for the filing of objection within 20 days from its date, was defective but not void. Owens v. Marion, 127 Iowa, 469, 103 N. W. 381. The notice need not fix a time when objections will be heard as the statute does not so require. Id. Under the St. Paul charter a reassessment is not void because one notice was given and a meeting held to fix the assessment district, and afterwards a second notice was given and a meeting held for placing the assessment upon the specific lands within this district. State v. District Ct. of Ramsey County [Minn.] 103 N. W. 744; State v. District Ct. of Ramsey County [Minn.] 104 N. W. 553. Under Local Imp. Act § 41, requiring notice of an assessment to the persons paying taxes on the property during the last preceding year, where the record shows notice to a certain person he will be presumed to be the person who paid taxes the preceding year. Roberts v. Evanston, 218 Ill. 296, 75 N. E. 923.

13. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506.

14. Local improvement act of 1897 held valid. Citizens' Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. Chicago, 215 Ill. 174, 74 N. E. 115. Notice and opportunity to be heard at some stage prior to the assessment is due process. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 3977, relating to proceedings for construction of sidewalks, provides for notice to the landowner, and an opportunity to be heard upon the institution of the proceedings and again as to his share of the cost, and also provides for construction of the walk by the owner if he so desires. Hence it affords due process of law. Dyer v. Woods [Ind.] 76 N. W. 624.

15. Code, tit. 10, c. 2, as amended by Laws 30th Gen. Assem. p. 59, c. 67, providing that on appeal from an assessment for a drainage ditch a landowner cannot object that his land received no benefit, is not invalid for so limiting the scope of the appeal. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506. Local Imp. Act § 84, providing that property owners shall be notified of the filing of the certificate of the board of local improvements, and of the time and place of hearing the same by publication and posting of notices, that objections may be filed within a certain time, that a trial shall be had at which the court shall hear and determine the issues in a summary manner, affords due process of law though the court's decision is conclusive, no appeal being provided for. People v. Cohen, 219 Ill. 200, 76 N. E. 388.

16. See 4 C. L. 1146, 1148.

17. To justify an assessment, benefits must be direct, immediate, appreciable, and certain. Naugatuck R. Co. v. Waterbury [Conn.] 61 A. 474. Where different parts of the same street are paved and graded under separate ordinances and contracts, property abutting on one part cannot be assessed for work on the other part. Wabash Ave., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 305.

18. Where an improvement made retaining walls necessary, property owners who had already built such walls, which rendered which courts will not interfere in the absence of fraud or mistake, or some error of law.[22] But courts will pass upon the questions whether a given work is one for which a special assessment may be laid,[23] and whether a particular assessment is reasonable[24] or laid in accordance with law.[25] In determining whether benefits are others unnecessary, were entitled to credit therefor. Johnson v. Tacoma [Wash.] 82 P. 1092.

19. State v. District Ct. of Ramsey County [Minn.] 103 N. W. 744. A city has power to create a new sewer district within the limits of a larger district, and to assess the cost of a new sewer upon abutting property in the district according to benefits. Shannon v. Omaha [Neb.] 103 N. W. 53. Under Illinois sidewalk act of 1875, the determination by a village board that a sidewalk should be constructed by special taxation is a determination that the property specially taxed is benefited to the extent of the tax imposed. Harris v. People, 218 Ill. 439, 75 N. E. 1012. Under Laws 1898, p. 189, c. 84, power to apportion the cost of a street extension and to determine what property is benefited is lodged in the commissioners, hence they are not bound by action of the city council creating an assessment district, but may include as benefited property outside such district. In re Westlake Ave. [Wash.] 82 P. 279. Fixing of the boundaries of a drainage district, and classifying lands therein, is a legislative function, and Code tit. 10, c. 2, as amended by Laws 30th Assem. p. 59, c. 67, providing for commissioners to take such action, is not invalid for not providing for notice thereof to owners. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506. Whether a particular lot or tract of land is specially benefited by a park, parkway or boulevard, is ordinarily a question of fact upon which the distance of the land from the improvement would have a bearing (Hart v. City of Omaha [Neb.] 105 N. W. 546), but a court cannot say as a matter of law that land at a certain distance is not benefited (Id.) Land assessed was three-fourths of a mile from boulevard. Id.

20. State v. District Ct. of Ramsey County [Minn.] 103 N. W. 744. A property owner is not entitled to a jury trial to determine the question of benefits in cases of special taxation. Harris v. People, 218 Ill. 439, 75 N. E. 1012.

21. It cannot be said that a sewer is of no benefit merely because a sewer already existed where the old one was a temporary one only, and the new one became a permanent part of the entire sewer system and displaced the old one. People v. Desmond, 97 N. Y. S. 795. Abutting owner held under deed restricting him from building nearer than 20 feet to street line for 30 years. Held condemnation of 20 foot strip along the street to widen and beautify it was a benefit to the land. In re City of New York, 106 App. Div. 31, 94 N. Y. S. 146. Where houses fronted on one street and lots were terraced down to another from which they were sometimes reached, the improvement of the latter street was of some benefit to the property. Johnson v. Tacoma [Wash.] 82 P. 1092. An objection by an abutting owner to a sewer assessment, based upon the ground that the sewer is not available to his lots, is not sustained where the proof shows that the lots for a distance of from fifteen to fifty feet back towards their rear are on a level with the grade of the street in which the sewer is built, from which point they descend from fifty to sixty feet to a river bounding them on the rear, and the sewer is from fifteen to seventeen feet below the surface of the street, and it also appears that with respect to several of the lots the houses and improvements thereon are so built as to permit the carrying off of sewerage from cellar levels through such sewer. Hildebrand v. Toledo, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 450. A street assessment cannot be successfully resisted on the ground of lack of benefits because the traffic upon the street is too heavy for an improvement of the kind made. Herman v. Columbus, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 216.

22. The action of municipal authorities in making assessment for local improvements is not subject to review by the courts. Price v. Toledo, 4 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 57, 25 Ohio C. C. 617. The judgment of a board of public works as to what property is benefited by an improvement, and the extent of such benefit, is final and conclusive and will not be interfered with by the courts. State v. District Ct. of Ramsey County [Minn.] 103 N. W. 744. The fixing of the limits of a district to be taxed is not a judicial function, and courts will not interfere with the action of statutory authorities in the matter except to correct palpable violations of the constitution or charter. Spreading a paving assessment one block west and two blocks east of street paved held not so unreasonable or unjust as to warrant judicial interference, considering the section which would necessarily use the street. Id. Where a grass plot extended some distance down the center of a street, and the street on only one side of the plot was improved, the assessment of property on both sides of the street by the front foot was not so erroneous as to justify interference by the court on certiorari. In re Phelps, 110 App. Div. 69, 96 N. Y. S. 862. Where the assessor has determined a sewer assessment district, all property therein will be considered as benefited as least to some extent. People v. Reis, 109 App. Div. 748, 96 N. Y. S. 597.

23. Bush v. Peoria, 215 Ill. 515, 74 N. E. 797.

24. Though village board may determine what property is benefited by a special tax by providing for payment of the cost by special assessment, whether an ordinance is unreasonable or oppressive is a question upon which the courts will pass. Harris v. People, 218 Ill. 439, 75 N. E. 1012.

25. Where report of commissioners in street opening proceedings affirmatively shows that property not taken has been assessed more than one-half its value, contrary to charter of Greater New York § 980, a re-conferred by an improvement, land is to be considered in its general relations and apart from its particular use.[26] Thus, a lot used for railroad purposes may be assessed for grading, curbing, and paving.[27] Property may be benefited though it does not abut upon the street improved.[28] Whether particular property is assessable may depend upon the terms of the statute[29] or ordinance[30] as applied to the property in question.

No property benefited is exempt from assessment unless expressly made so by law,[31] and a city has no power to release a property owner from liability for future improvements.[32]

The equipment of public service corporations in streets within an assessment district, and the rights, privileges, and franchises of such corporations, under which they so use the streets, are not subject to assessment for improvements[33] in the ab-cital of the report to the contrary is not conclusive. In re City of New York, 103 App. Div. 496, 93 N. Y. S. 84.

26. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co., 197 U. S. 430, 49 Law. Ed. 819. Particular use made of property by lessee is immaterial in determining benefits from a street improvement. Assessment on land leased by defendant and used as a public resort held not in excess of benefits. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Chicago, 215 Ill. 410, 74 N. E. 449.

27. Notwithstanding a claim that it is to be used in the future for such purposes and that no benefit will result to it. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co., 197 U. S. 430, 49 Law. Ed. 819.

Contra: Railroad lands necessary for railroad purposes used exclusively for such purposes and devoted permanently thereto are not so benefited by a paving of the street upon which they abut as to justify an assessment of benefits. Naugatuck R. Co. v. Waterbury [Conn.] 61 A. 474.

28. Under Laws 1903, p. 241, c. 129, assessments for the extension of a street may be levied upon property which is not "contiguous" to the improvement. In re Westlake Ave. [Wash.] 82 P. 279. Property may be assessed for street paving, though it does not abut on the street paved, if it is presently specially benefited. Roberts v. Evanston, 218 Ill. 296, 75 N. E. 923.

29. Under Laws 1901, p. 229, c. 113, § 1, providing for the assessment of abutting property to the center of the block, where a street improved does not intersect another at right angles, and a corner lot only corners on the street improved, that portion of such lot extending to the middle of the block is nevertheless assessable. Felt v. Ballard, 38 Wash. 300, 80 P. 532. Under St. 1891, p. 204, c. 147, § 7, subds. 11, 8, 7, where two subdivision streets terminate on an improved street, the half of the improvement opposite the streets terminating upon it is properly charged to property fronting on the subdivision streets. San Francisco Pav. Co. v. Dubois [Cal. App.] 83 P. 72. An assessment does not cease to be a single assessment because made on lands including property not on the street improved. Id.

30. Where the opening of a part of a street on a new location, the widening of the existing part of the street, and the grading of the whole, were treated as one proceeding, there being but one ordinance and one contract, an assessment was properly based upon the entire improvement. In re Wilmington Ave. [Pa.] 62 A. 848.

31. City property is subject to sewer assessments. People v. Reis, 109 App. Div. 748, 96 N. Y. S. 597.

School property, not a part of section 16, nor acquired with funds derived therefrom, held subject to assessment for street improvement. Board of Education of Chicago v. People, 219 Ill. 83, 76 N. E. 75. The separation of school funds under the new school code, making it possible to distinguish the trust from the contingent fund, will not have the effect of rendering valid an assessment against school property for a street improvement where the levy was made prior to the passage of the school code, whatever may be its effect as to such levies made subsequent thereto. Board of Education of Columbus v. Bowland, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 122. School property is not rendered liable to assessment for a street improvement by reason of the fact that with knowledge that the property was not liable to assessment the school board petitioned for the improvement (Id.), but where the lien of an assessment for a street improvement has already attached, it will not be defeated by the subsequent purchase of the property by a school board (Id.).

Voluntary grantors: In New York a voluntary conveyance, in order to exempt the owner's remaining property in street opening proceedings, may be made at any time, or at least before the appointment of commissioners. Westminster Heights Co. v. Delany, 107 App. Div. 577, 95 N. Y. S. 247. An owner who has made a voluntary conveyance for a street is not entitled to have his property entirely excluded from the proceedings, since it is liable, or may be, for a share of awards that may be made for buildings taken in opening the residue of the street. In re Avenue L in City of New York, 107 App. Div. 581, 95 N. Y. S. 245. Consolidation Act § 971 exempts from assessment for a street opening lands of a donor who has given land to the city for the street. Held, lands of others not acquired from the donor are not thereby exempted. In re City of New York, 103 App. Div. 496, 93 N. Y. S. 84.

See 4 C. L. 1146, for note on applicability of exemptions to local assessments.

32. Contract whereby land was deeded to sence of statute or charter provisions imposing such liability. Street railway corporations are, however, commonly required to bear the cost of improving the portion of streets used by them,[34] and the right to do so cannot be contracted away by a municipality.[35] A statute granting to a corporation immunity from contribution to the expense of street improvements does not constitute a contract but merely a privilege revocable by subsequent legislation.[36] Such a privilege does not pass to a successor in interest of the corporation to which it was granted.[37] city for street, and city agreed to release grantor and remainder of land from liability for cost of extending or maintaining street, held ultra vires and void. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Oglesby [Ind.] 76 N. E. 165.

(§ 8) D. Procedure for authorization, levy, and confirmation of assessments.[38] —The power to levy special assessments must be exercised in the manner prescribed by law.[39] Thus, the various steps must be taken in the manner,[40] at the time,[41] and by the officers[42] designated by the law.

33. In re West Farms Road in City of New York, 47 Misc. 216, 95 N. Y. S. 894. A street railway corporation cannot be assessed for the widening of a street merely because it occupies the street with its tracks. Greater New York Charter § 980 does not authorize such assessment. In re East 133d St., 95 N. Y. S. 76. Street railway, electric light, telephone, and gas companies cannot be assessed for widening streets in which they maintain equipment. In re Anthony Ave., 46 Misc. 525, 95 N. Y. S. 77. Under Act May 16, 1891, P. L. 75, assessments for benefits can be levied only on abutting property. They cannot be levied against owners personally, or against a street railway company occupying streets or against its tracks in the streets. Harriott Ave., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 597.

34. Laws 1890, p. 1112, c. 865, § 98, as amended by Laws 1892, p. 1404, c. 676, requiring street railways to pave portion of streets used by them is an exercise of the taxing power. City of Rochester v. Rochester R. Co., 182 N. Y. 99, 74 N. E. 953. An ordinance granting a franchise and requiring the grantee, a street railway corporation, to place strips of lumber along the rails does not require it to pave such streets; hence Code § 834, requiring the corporation to pave a portion of the streets used by it, applies. Marshalltown Light, Power & R. Co. v. Marshalltown, 127 Iowa 637, 103 N. W. 1005. Under an ordinance granting a street railway franchise containing a provision that if on said street a pavement has already been laid and an assessment therefor placed on the tax duplicate, and that said company shall pay to the city such proportion of the assessment for said improvement as the space occupied by its tracks, and one foot on the outside of the outer rails thereof bears to the entire width of the improved railway, held that the railway company is bound by its contract to pay said proportion of the assessments made and levied upon the feet front of the abutting property, and cannot defend upon any of the grounds that would have been available to abutting lot owners, or to the company if not bound by such contract obligations. Urbana, M. & C. R. Co. v. Columbus, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 438. In determining the width of an improved street to determine the proportion thereof chargeable against a street railroad, where the curb on each side thereof was constructed at the same time of said improvement, the curb is a part of the improved roadway and should be computed. Urbana, M. & C. R. Co. v. Columbus, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 438. An ordinance granting a street railway company the use of certain streets, and imposing on it the cost of improving the portion of the streets occupied by it, held to apply not only to the streets enumerated in the ordinance but all streets occupied by it and thereafter improved. City of McKeesport v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 1075.

35. City of Rochester v. Rochester R. Co., 182 N. Y. 99, 74 N. E. 953.

36. City of Rochester v. Rochester R. Co., 182 N. Y. 99, 74 N. E. 953. Code § 834, requiring street railways to pave a portion of streets occupied by tracks, is not objectionable as impairing a contract obligation when applied to a corporation granted a franchise, prior to the enactment of the statute, which purported to exempt the corporation from liability for paving, since Code § 1619 makes such franchises subject to conditions. Marshalltown Light, Power & R. Co. v. Marshalltown, 127 Iowa 637, 103 N. W. 1005.

37. City of Rochester v. Rochester R. Co., 182 N. Y. 99, 74 N. E. 953.

38. See 4 C. L. 1149, 1150.

39. Where the mode of exercising the power is prescribed it must be followed, and the assessment must show on its face that it was made according to the prescribed rule. Blanchard v. Barre, 77 Vt. 420, 60 A. 970. Statutes must be strictly followed. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Oglesby [Ind.] 76 N. E. 165. Act May 15, 1901, repealing portions of Barrett law, held applicable to subsequent proceedings. Id. Local Imp. Act § 19, requiring an affidavit of the superintendent of assessments as to the making and filing of the assessment roll, its contents, etc., applies only to improvements involving the taking or damaging of property, and not to assessments for street paving. Roberts v. Evanston, 218 Ill. 296, 75 N. E. 923. Local Imp. Act § 99, provides that its terms shall control proceedings to collect instalments of an assessment made under a prior act. Section 84 requires the board to certify the cost of an improvement within 30

Assessment roll or report.[43]—The roll or report must properly describe the land assessed.[44] No plat need be filed with the report unless the statute so requires.[45] Ordinarily separate tracts of land should be separately assessed,[46] unless owned and used as one tract.[47]

Confirmation of assessments.[48]—Statutes giving courts power to pass upon disputes concerning assessments, and to correct errors and inequalities, are not unconstitutional as conferring legislative powers on the judiciary.[49] Judicial confirmation is required in some states. In Illinois the county court has jurisdiction of the proceeding, and has power therein to revise and correct the assessment roll.[50] Notice days after its completion and acceptance. Held § 84 does not apply where an improvement was completed and accepted more than 30 days before it became effective. Gage v. People, 219 Ill. 424, 76 N. E. 583.

40. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 1498, and Acts 1893, p. 65, assessment of cost must be by ordinance after completion and acceptance of work. City of Sedalia v. Donohue, 190 Mo. 407, 89 S. W. 386.

41. A tax for a drainage ditch may properly be levied before the work is done. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506. In Nebraska it is the duty of the city council to provide available funds with which to pay for street intersections before ordering a street improvement. But failure to provide such funds is not ground for enjoining assessments after the improvement is finished and street intersections paid for. Eddy v. Omaha [Neb.] 103 N. W. 692.

42. Under city act of March 24, 1897 (P. L. 1897, p. 46), § 48, clause 3, an assessment for a street improvement may be levied by the common council. Tusting v. Asbury Park [N. J. Law] 62 A. 183. It is not necessary that the officer making the assessment roll should be appointed by the court or directed by order of the court to make the assessment. Appointment by the president of the board of local improvements is sufficient. Harrigan v. Jacksonville [Ill.] 77 N. E. 85. Common council made assessment on report of city engineer without reference to city commissioners to apportion cost in proportion to benefits as required by Laws 1901, p. 534, c. 231. Held, assessment void. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Oglesby [Ind.] 76 N. E. 165. Local improvement act of 1897 is not invalid because providing for superintendent of assessments to apportion cost of improvements between city and property benefited, nor as conferring legislative powers on county courts. Citizens' Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. Chicago, 215 Ill. 174, 74 N. E. 115. That town instead of selectmen determined the portion of sewer cost to be borne by the town was not ground for setting aside the assessment where the amount was within the statute. Cheney v. Beverly, 188 Mass. 81, 74 N. E. 306.

43. See 4 C. L. 1150.

44. Failure of the engineer's report to properly describe the lands bordering on the improved street in the statutory manner invalidates the assessment as to the lands improperly described. Dunkirk Land Co. v. Zehner [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1099. Description of property in assessment roll, delinquent list, and application for judgment of sale held too indefinite to sustain a judgment of sale. People v. Colegrove, 218 Ill. 545, 75 N. E. 991.

45. No plat need be filed with an assessment roll for street paving, hence, failure of a plat unnecessarily filed to show lots of an objector is immaterial. Roberts v. Evanston, 218 Ill. 296, 75 N. E. 923.

46. Where a street extension divides a tract of land into two parcels, such parcels should be separately assessed. In re Westlake Ave. [Wash.] 82 P. 279. Where the statute requires assessments to be made separately against each tract or parcel of ground benefited, an assessment for a gross sum against two distinct tracts or parcels, each described by metes and bounds, is invalid. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Oglesby [Ind.] 76 N. E. 165. Under Code § 821, requiring the filing of a plat showing owners' names and amount assessed against each tract, and Acts 28th Gen. Assem. p. 14, c. 29, § 1, that assessments must not exceed 25% of the value of each lot or tract, lots must be separately assessed and an assessment of several as one tract is invalid, though the lots are used and owned as one tract. Stutsman v. Burlington, 127 Iowa 563, 103 N. W. 800.

47. Where a widow owned one tract of land in fee and had a dower interest in another, and occupied the two as one farm, an assessment of all the land as one parcel was not erroneous. Parsons v. Grand Rapids [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 507, 104 N. W. 730. Under Laws 1901, p. 106, § 41, providing that several lots or parts of land owned and improved as one parcel may be assessed as one parcel, it will be presumed in the absence of contrary evidence that two lots assessed as one parcel were owned and improved as one. Ottis v. Sullivan, 219 Ill. 365, 76 N. E. 487. Where four lots were described in tax bill and petition to enforce same as lots 2, 4, 6, 8, the additional averment of their total frontage was not equivalent to an allegation that they were used as one lot. Barber Asphalt Co. v. Peck, 186 Mo. 506, 85 S. W. 387. Where only one of four lots in one tract owned by the same person abutted on an improved street, that lot alone was properly assessed, there being no showing that the lots were used as one tract, the lot lines being disregarded. Id. An assessment for a street improvement is enforceable, though the amount apportioned to an entire tract was afterwards, with the consent of the owner, no injustice resulting, placed on particular lots forming a part of the tract. Bloch v. Godfrey, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 318.

48. See 4 C. L. 1150.

of application for judgment of confirmation must be given,[51] and the statutory procedure followed.[52] The objection that another proceeding for the same improvement was pending at the time a proceeding to confirm an assessment was brought is unavailable where the record shows the former proceeding was dismissed.[53] Objections to ordinances should be specific.[54] Leave to file additional objections is properly refused when no good reason for delay in filing is shown.[55] A recommendation of a board of local improvements, presented with an ordinance to a council, is prima facie proof that the preliminary steps have been taken.[56] The introduction of such recommendation in a proceeding for confirmation of an assessment places upon an objector the burden of proving want of such steps.[57] The assessment roll, if in proper form, is admissible in evidence.[58] The superintendent of assessments cannot be called to impeach his report that he had investigated the district in which the improvement was to be laid in accordance with law.[59] Opinion evidence as to the gross amount of benefits to property from the improvement is admissible.[60] Judgments confirming assessments are, by express provision of statute in Illinois, several judgments as to each piece of property.[61] Hence, alteration of the assessment roll as filed by changing the number of a lot invalidates a judgment confirming the assessment, as to the lot so improperly charged,[62] but does not invalidate the judgment of confirmation as a whole.[63] A judgment confirming an assessment against school property cannot be collaterally attacked in mandamus proceedings to compel payment by school authorities.[64] A verdict that property of objectors is not assessed more than it will be benefited, nor more than its proportionate share of the cost, is sufficient, though it does not find that the property was specially benefited.[65] In New Jersey, when the circuit court has once confirmed a report of commissioners of adjustment, it cannot subsequently modify or amend its order of confirmation.[66]

49. In re Westlake Ave. [Wash.] 82 P. 279.

50. County court has power to revise and correct the assessment roll and to change and modify the distribution of the total cost between the public and the property benefited, and on this last question its decision is conclusive. Local Imp. Act 1897, § 47. Berdel v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 429, 75 N. E. 386. The court has power to correct the description of property assessed and to confirm the assessment as corrected, no request for a re-reference of the roll to the superintendent having been made. Connecticut Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 352, 75 N. E. 365.

51. Notice is essential to give the court jurisdiction, and want of it, appearing on the face of the record, may be shown to defeat an application for judgment of sale. Phillips v. People, 218 Ill. 450, 75 N. E. 1016.

52. Local Imp. Act § 41, requires an affidavit to show compliance with the terms of that section only, not with §§ 38 and 39 as well. Conway v. Chicago, 219 Ill. 295, 76 N. E. 384. Amended affidavit, after the hearing, showing compliance with statute (Local Imp. Act § 41), held sufficient, it not being necessary for the affidavit to show compliance with §§ 38, 39. Washington Park Club v. Chicago, 219 Ill. 323, 76 N. E. 383.

53. Gage v. Chicago, 216 Ill. 107, 74 N. E. 726.

54. Where objection was that ordinance "does not specify the nature, character, locality and description" of the improvement, it was too general, but it was reviewed, no objection to it being raised. Close v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 216, 75 N. E. 479.

55. McLennan v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 62, 75 N. E. 762.

56. Guyer v. Rock Island, 215 Ill 144, 74 N. E. 105.

57. Proof held not to overcome prima facie case for validity of assessment. Guyer v. City of Rock Island, 215 Ill. 144, 74 N. E. 105. Objector must prove want of a proper notice of the public hearing. Harrigan v. Jacksonville [Ill.] 77 N. E. 85.

58. Objection to assessment roll as evidence on the ground that compliance with Local Imp. Act § 41 was not shown, properly overruled where affidavits were attached and were not shown to be insufficient. McLennon v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 62, 75 N. E. 762.

59. Washington Park Club v. Chicago, 219 Ill. 323, 76 N. E. 383.

60. Johnson v. Tacoma [Wash.] 82 P. 1092.

61. 4 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1902, p. 182, c. 24, § 56. Gage v. Chicago, 216 Ill. 107, 74 N. E. 726.

62, 63. Gage v. Chicago, 216 Ill. 107, 74 N. E. 726.

64. Board of Education of Chicago v. People, 219 Ill. 83, 76 N. E. 75.

65. Local Imp. Act § 49. McLennon v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 62, 75 N. E. 762.

66. Order of court striking out additional assessments, after its order of confirmation, held void. Borough of Rutherford v. Maginnis [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1125.

(§ 8) E. Reassessments and additional assessments.[67]—A reassessment is commonly authorized where the original assessment has been held invalid and set aside.[68] Such reassessments are legal[69] if, in the making of them, the statutory procedure is followed.[70] The purpose of such reassessment proceedings is only to supplement the original proceeding.[71] A legal reassessment is therefore effective not only to secure a valid assessment of benefits, but also to reach back and validate the warrants, so far at least as the reassessed benefits are sufficient for that purpose.[72] A reassessment district may include property not included in the original district.[73] In a proceeding for a new assessment, whether the original proceeding is still pending is a question of fact.[74] Property owners who have paid an original assessment are entitled to object to a reassessment on the ground that property formerly assessed has been arbitrarily reassessed at a lower rate,[75] and such objection, if sustained, is fatal.[76] Where an assessment has been set aside on appeal, and the original petition dismissed by the county court, the dismissal is not res judicata in a proceeding to confirm the new assessment.[77]

A supplemental assessment is sometimes provided for to cover a deficiency.[78] A commissioner's estimate of a deficiency, approved by town trustees, is prima facie proof of the amount of the deficiency.[79] The cost of collecting and disbursing assessments,[80] and interest which accrued upon vouchers in the hands of the contractor, when there was no money in the treasury to pay the vouchers or interest,[81] are proper charges for a supplemental assessment. Where an assessment is confirm-

67. See 4 C. L. 1151.

68. Where an ordinance has been held defective but not void, and a judgment confirming an assessment reversed and the petition dismissed, the assessment has been set aside and a new one may be made, under Local Imp. Act, § 46. Goodrich v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 18, 75 N. E. 805. Where an assessment was confirmed Oct. 7, 1896, and the judgment reversed April 21, 1898, a petition for a new assessment was governed by the act of 1872, and not by that of 1897. Goodrich v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 18, 75 N. E. 805.

69. A reassessment, under Portland City Charter § 400, where the original assessment has been held invalid, cannot be regarded as an effort to raise money by taxation for private purposes, that is for the contractors, in violation of Const. art. 11, § 9. Duniway v. Portland [Or.] 81 P. 945. Reassessments by the board of public works under the St. Paul charter are valid, notwithstanding jurisdictional defects in the original proceedings. The power of such board is not affected by the 1898 amendment to art. 4, § 36, of the constitution requiring a legislative body to be a feature of home rule charters. State v. District Ct. of Ramsey County [Minn.] 106 N. W. 306.

70. Failure of the city auditor to give abutting owners personal notice of a reassessment, under Charter, § 400, is not fatal to the reassessment where proper and sufficient notice is published. Duniway v. Portland [Or.] 81 P. 945. Notice need not be given or a hearing accorded abutting property owners prior to a resolution directing the city auditor to prepare a preliminary reassessment, since the charter (Portland City Charter, § 400) does not require such notice or hearing. Id. The decision of the city council that objections to a reassessment, under Portland City Charter, § 400, are invalid, is conclusive as against collateral attack, where no fraud in the proceedings is shown. Id.

71, 72. Duniway v. Portland [Or.] 81 P. 945.

73. The St. Paul board of public works has authority, in making a reassessment, under Charter, tit. 111, § 57, to establish a new district and include therein all property benefited, whether embraced in the original district or not. State v. District Ct. of Ramsey County [Minn.] 104 N. W. 553.

74. Cratty v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 453, 75 N. E. 343.

75. State v. District Ct. of Ramsey County [Minn.] 104 N. W. 553.

76. Where, after certain property owners had paid, and others had refused to pay, their assessments, a reassessment was made which excluded from the new district property on which assessments had been paid, but included that on which assessments had not been paid, and some additional property, and the new assessment on property formerly assessed was less than the old assessment by $1.25 per front foot, without regard to benefit, the deficiency being made up by assessments on the additional property, the assessment was arbitrary and void. State v. District Ct. of Ramsey County [Minn.] 104 N. W. 553.

77. Goodrich v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 18, 75 N. E. 805.

78. In the absence of contrary proof it will be presumed that an improvement ordinance was broad enough to include catch basins and extras, and that the cost thereof

ed after being reduced, but there is no finding that the property has been assessed its full proportionate share, the judgment of confirmation is not conclusive as to the right to make the supplemental levy.[82] It is not necessary that the supplemental assessment should be payable in more than one instalment.[83] A supplemental assessment payable in one payment cannot be made to draw interest, though the original assessment, payable in several instalments, provided for interest.[84] In proceedings for a supplemental assessment, objectors will not be permitted to attack the sufficiency of the ordinance for the original assessment.[85]

(§ 8) F. Maturity, obligation, and lien of assessments.[86]—Whether assessments shall be payable in instalments is for the legislative body of the municipality.[87] Interest may be required on deferred instalments,[88] the rate of which may be fixed by the legislature.[89] An assessment against a municipality for public improvements draws interest the same as assessments against private owners.[89a]

The lien of a municipal claim being statutory, its validity, duration, and extent are wholly dependent upon compliance with the statute.[90] The lien of general taxes is superior to the lien of a local assessment, though the latter is payable in instalments some of which have not matured.[91] In Indiana, if lots primarily liable for a street improvement prove insufficient to meet the assessment, the statute fixes a lien upon lots secondarily liable without a separate assessment.[92] An apportionment warrant issued by mistake against the wrong person does not create a lien.[93] Where the holder of such warrant has a right to have it corrected by the city council within a certain time, failure to take such action within the time allowed bars his rights against the true owner.[94] may properly be included in a supplemental assessment to cover a deficiency. Town of Cicero v. Skinner [Ill.] 77 N. E. 137.

79, 80, 81, 82. Town of Cicero v. Skinner [Ill.] 77 N. E. 137.

83. Conway v. Chicago, 219 Ill. 295, 76 N. E. 384.

84. Provision for interest does not, however, render entire assessment invalid. Conway v. Chicago, 219 Ill. 295, 76 N. E. 384.

85. Conway v. Chicago, 219 Ill. 295, 76 N. E. 384.

86. See 4 C. L. 1154.

87. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1893, p. 276, whether an assessment shall be payable in one or more than one installment is a question for the legislative body. Goodrich v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 18, 75 N. E. 805.

88. The personal rights of a property owner are not infringed by a statute requiring the payment of interest on deferred instalments of street improvement assessments when it is optional with him to pay the entire assessment at any time. Local Improvement Act 1897 (5 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1902, p. 175), § 42. Gage v. Chicago, 216 Ill. 107, 74 N. E. 726.

89. Local Imp. Act 1897 is not invalid because it fixes a rate of interest on instalments of assessments. Hulbert v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 286, 75 N. E. 486.

89a. Special assessment vouchers issued by a municipality in payment of a local improvement bear interest at the legal rate. City of Chicago v. People, 116 Ill. App. 564.

90. A scire facias on a municipal lien, insufficient to support a judgment because defectively served, does not continue the lien beyond the time of its expiration, hence there can be no valid judgment on an alias scire facias issued after the original lien had expired. City of Philadelphia v. Cooper, 212 Pa. 306, 61 A. 926. Contra. Id., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 552. Municipal claim for sewer is sufficient which sets out size of sewer, material, length in front of defendant's property, price per foot, length and price per foot of house connections, and title and date of approval of ordinance for work. Erie City v. Willis, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 459. Neglect of prothonotary to enter municipal lien for assessment in mechanic's lien docket, and to keep a locality index (Act May 16, 1901, P. L. 224, §§ 26, 27) does not wholly invalidate the lien. Id. The act of June 4, 1901, P. L. 364, does not apply to work commenced under an ordinance adopted prior to the statute. Act April 23, 1889, P. L. 44, applies, and under it a claim filed within 4 months after completion of the entire work is sufficient to preserve the lien, notwithstanding an interruption of 2 years in the work. Tarentum Borough v. Moorhead, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 273. Under Act June 4, 1901, P. L. 364, which repeals Act March 22, 1869, P. L. 482, municipal liens have no priority over mortgages created prior to the passage of the act. Martin v. Greenwood, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 245.

91. City of Ballard v. Ross, 38 Wash. 209, 80 P. 439.

92. Mullen v. Clifford [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1009.

93. Warrant against grantor of record owner at time of improvement created no

(§ 8) G. Payment and discharge.[95]—Where a sidewalk assessment is paid by a lot owner, who thereafter conveys, and the city then annuls the order for a walk and repays the assessment to the original owner, the grantee of the lot is not entitled to recover the amount of the assessment from the city.[96] An action to recover an assessment which has been paid and afterwards annulled by judgment of a court, under the New York statute, must be brought within six years after the accrual of the right of action.[97] In Illinois, a property owner who is entitled to a rebate on an assessment paid by him may recover the same in an action of assumpsit against the municipality which levied and collected the assessment.[97a]

(§ 8) H. Enforcement and collection.[98]—There is no personal liability for assessments unless expressly created by statute.[99] Collection is usually by enforcement of the lien of the assessment against the land.[1] An election to foreclose a lien upon property fronting on an improved street does not work an estoppel to foreclose on the backlying property, where the property fronting on the improvement sold for less than the assessment.[2]

Demand and notice.[3]—Since no proceeding to enforce such lien can be maintained until the property owner is in default,[4] it must appear that notice of delinquency[5] or a demand for payment[6] has been made in accordance with law. A regis-lien. Voris' Ex'rs. v. Gallaher, 27 Ky. L. R. 1001, 87 S. W. 775.

94. Holder's rights barred after 5 years. Voris' Ex'rs v. Gallaher, 27 Ky. L. R. 1001, 87 S. W. 775.

95. See 4 C. L. 1155.

96. Smith v. Minneapolis [Minn.] 104 N. W. 227.

97. Laws 1896, c. 910, providing for refundment of annulled assessment, and giving a right of action after a year if not refunded, does not revive a cause of action already barred. Dennison v. New York, 182 N. Y. 24, 74 N. E. 486.

97a. City of Chicago v. Singer, 116 Ill. App. 559.

98. See 4 C. L. 1156.

99. The Rochester charter makes special assessments a personal obligation and gives a right of action for their recovery in addition to other remedies. It also provides for the addition of unpaid assessments to general taxes. Held the right of action to recover assessments is not lost by adding them to the general taxes. City of Rochester v. Rochester R. Co., 109 App. Div. 638, 96 N. Y. S. 152.

1. County court has jurisdiction to confirm a special assessment or render a judgment of sale thereunder at a probate term. Local Imp. Act § 51. County Court Act § 5. People v. Brown, 218 Ill. 375, 75 N. E. 989.

2. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Porter [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 260.

3. See 4 C. L. 1158.

4. Until Local Imp. Act § 84 has been complied with by filing a certificate of cost, so that the excess of an assessment over the cost, if any, may be abated, a property owner is not in default, and an application for sale cannot be maintained. Gage v. People, 219 Ill. 634, 76 N. E. 834.

5. Clerk's report of delinquency of sidewalk assessment need not be under city seal, under act of 1875, p. 64, § 4. Marshall v. People, 219 Ill. 99, 76 N. E. 70. An ordinance requiring a village clerk to file his report of delinquent lands with the county collector by a certain date not being for the benefit of the property owner, a filing of such report at a later day is not fatal to the enforcement of the assessment. Harris v. People, 218 Ill. 439, 75 N. E. 1012. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 120, requiring copy of newspaper in which delinquent list of lands subject to special assessments is published to be filed as part of records of county court, is mandatory, and must be complied with to confer jurisdiction on court to render judgment against property assessed. Nowlin v. People, 216 Ill. 543, 75 N. E. 209. Filing such copy, with publisher's certificate, as a part of records of county clerk's office, is not a compliance with the statute. Id. The notice of an assessment required to be shown in an action to foreclose a lien (Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 3626a) may be either verbal or written, and may be given by any person interested in the claim or any officer charged with a duty in connection with the making or collection of the assessment. Ross v. Van Natta, 164 Ind. 557, 74 N. E. 10.

6. Demand for payment of warrant shown to have been publicly made on premises assessed in accordance with statute. San Francisco Pav. Co. v. Egan, 146 Cal. 635, 80 P. 1076. Where the return of a warrant is signed in behalf of the contractor, by the person who made the demand, and verified by his oath, St. 1885, p. 155, c. 153 is complied with. Id. Sending the warrant of a nonresident owner by registered letter is a sufficient demand for payment; a personal demand is not necessary. Marshall v. People, 219 Ill. 99, 76 N. E. 70. Though a tax warrant is void in so far as it authorizes the street commissioner to make the amount of the tax out of the chattels of the property owner, it is sufficient to give the commissioner authority to make a tered owner of property assessed must be given notice or be made a party.[7] An unregistered owner is bound by an otherwise valid proceeding, though he had no notice.[8]

Pleading and proof.[9]—In a proceeding to enforce the lien of an assessment, the complaint need only allege the facts necessary to make a prima facie case of liability.[10] Matters of defense must be set out in the answer.[11] If fraud is relied upon, the facts claimed to constitute it must be set out.[12]

Where the statute provides that the issuance of bonds shall be prima facie proof of the regularity of proceedings, the effect is only to change the burden of proof; it has no curative effect where the record is produced and irregularities appear therefrom.[13] Upon application for judgment and order of sale in Illinois, the collector's report with proof of publication thereof and notice of application for judgment make a prima facie case.[14] A suit on a tax bill, in Missouri, should be in the name of the state to the use of the person to whom it is issued.[15] A tax bill is prima facie proof of the regularity of the proceedings.[16]

Defenses.[17]—Mere irregularities, not shown to have been prejudicial, do not constitute a defense.[18] Partial illegality of an assessment is no defense where the il-

valid demand for payment. Id. Where no other sufficient demand has been made upon a special tax bill, bringing of suit thereon is a demand, and starts the running of the penalty for failure to pay. Under St. Louis Charter, art. 6, §§ 24, 25. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Peck, 186 Mo. 506, 85 S. W. 387.

7. Where the registered owner of property was not made a party to lien proceedings, he was not bound by a judgment against the property. Philadelphia v. Nell, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 347.

8. An owner who has not registered his title is not entitled to notice, or to be made a party to proceedings to enforce a lien if the property is sufficiently identified. A judgment and sale of the property is binding as against one who registers subsequently. Philadelphia v. Peyton, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 350.

9. See 4 C. L. 1158.

10. Where a complaint in an action to foreclose the lien of an assessment alleges the facts necessary under the statute to make a prima facie case, and these allegations are not denied, plaintiff need not make formal proof thereof. Raisch v. Hildebrandt, 146 Cal. 721, 81 P. 21. Complaint in action to foreclose assessment lien, alleging that "more than 10 days before the bringing of this suit the plaintiffs notified said defendant in writing of said assessment and the amount thereof, with interest, and where the same was payable," held to allege sufficient notice under Acts 1901, c. 170. Low v. Dallas [Ind.] 75 N. E. 822. The complaint need not set out in detail the taking of every step in the proceedings creating the lien. Thus, it need not be alleged that orders and resolutions were made a part of town records. Id. In a petition to enforce an assessment lien, a general allegation of the passage of the ordinance for the improvement is sufficient. Petition need not allege that ordinance was twice publicly read and passed at two sessions on different days, where it alleges passage by the required vote. Cabell v. Henderson [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1095.

11. Where a complaint, in an action to enforce an assessment lien, shows the assessment to be due, it need not show that defendants were given time to elect to pay in instalments. If the necessary steps to acquire the privilege of paying in instalments were taken, defendants should allege the same in their answer. Low v. Dallas [Ind.] 75 N. E. 822. Where the filing of a copy of the resolution accepting the work is alleged, and the allegation is not denied, failure to file such copy will not defeat recovery. Cabell v. Henderson [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1095.

12. In an action to enforce a special tax bill, the answer alleged that a certain person was employed by the contractor as its agent and lobbyist to procure paving contracts, and that such person had great political influence and used his time and money to influence official action. Held, fraud in procuring contract not alleged. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. v. Field [Mo.] 86 S. W. 860. An allegation that a contract was secured by reason of the undue and illegal influence of a paving company and its agents over municipal authorities held a mere conclusion, not an allegation of fact. Id.

13. Creed v. McCombs, 146 Cal. 449, 80 P. 679.

14. People v. Lyon, 218 Ill. 577, 75 N. E. 1017.

15. Under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 5992, 5986, where a city of the fourth class builds a sidewalk, the special tax bill therefor should be issued to the committee or officer in charge of the work, and suit thereon should be in the name of the city to the use of such officer or committee. City of Bevier v. Watson, 113 Mo. App. 506, 87 S. W. 612.

16. A tax bill is, in an action thereon, prima facie evidence of the regularity of the proceedings upon which it is based, and upon its introduction in evidence the burden is upon defendant to prove the omission or invalidity of any essential step.

legal portion, being capable of computation, has been properly deducted.[19] That the improvement constructed is not that authorized is a good defense[20] when properly raised[21] and proved.[22] A mere difference in the quality of material, or a slight deviation from the contract provisions, does not make the improvement a different one from that authorized within the meaning of this rule.[23] An unintentional trespass or encroachment on the property of an abutting owner in the course of the construction, in good faith, of an authorized public improvement does not invalidate the assessment;[24] and a sewer assessment will not be set aside because a statute prohibiting pollution of a stream was violated in providing for a sewer outlet.[25] Under a city charter providing for enforcement of assessments by executions, to which the owner may file affidavits of illegality denying liability in whole or in part, an owner may set up in such affidavit any defense which will extinguish liability.[26] An agreement between a property owner and contractor cannot be set up to defeat enforcement of a lien by the assignee of the contractor who completed the work.[27]

Waiver of and estoppel to urge defenses.[28]—Jurisdictional defects cannot be waived[29] nor cured by subsequent legislation;[30] but in most jurisdictions, mere ir-

City of Sedalia v. Montgomery [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 1014.

17. See 4 C. L. 1159.

18. The fact that a contract was not awarded until 5 years after the bid therefor was submitted is no defense to an action to enforce the lien of an assessment where the property owner does not show that he was prejudiced by the delay. City of Philadelphia v. Hood, 211 Pa. 189, 60 A. 721.

19. Where, in an action to foreclose a sidewalk improvement lien under the Barrett act of 1889, the court, in its conclusions, deducted the illegal portion of the assessment, it being capable of accurate computation, the property owner could not complain that the assessment was in part illegal. Ross v. Van Natta, 164 Ind. 557, 74 N. E. 10.

20. On application for judgment and order of sale it may be shown that the improvement provided for in the ordinance and for which the assessment was levied, was a different improvement from that actually constructed. People v. Lyon, 218 Ill. 577, 75 N. E. 1017. Objectors to an application for judgment of sale are entitled to show that the improvement provided for, and for which the assessment was levied, was not that actually constructed. Phillips v. People, 218 Ill. 450, 75 N. E. 1016. Where an ordinance pursuant to a petition to grade, curb and pave a street "charging costs, damages, and expenses" to abutting property, requires improvements to be made according to plans and specifications mentioned, the borough cannot charge damages to the property unless the work is completed according to the plans. Dunn v. Tarentum Borough, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 332.

21. Objections that owners were overcharged for the reason that there were not the same number of square yards or lineal feet of paving as alleged are properly stricken, as they do not amount to an objection that the improvement made was not that authorized. Phillips v. People, 218 Ill. 450, 75 N. E. 1016.

22. Whether the improvement actually constructed was that authorized by ordinance, and for which the assessment was levied, cannot be determined unless the ordinance is in evidence. People v. Lyon, 218 Ill. 577, 75 N. E. 1017.

23. That cobblestones were not of the size called for could not be urged against an application for judgment and order of sale. People v. Bridgeman, 218 Ill. 568, 75 N. E. 1057. Sidewalk held not different from the one authorized, though a few inches shorter than that called for and though some witnesses thought stone used too soft. Marshall v. People, 219 Ill. 99, 76 N. E. 70.

24. An alleged encroachment on plaintiff's property in the course of grading a street, there being no intention to widen it, held no ground to enjoin collection of an assessment. Davis v. Silverton [Or.] 82 P. 16.

25. Cleneay v. Norwood, 137 F. 962.

26. Whether it be payment, unconstitutionality of the law under which the assessment was made, or irregularity of procedure rendering the assessment illegal. City of Gainesville v. Dean [Ga.] 53 S. E. 183.

27. A property owner became surety on a contractor's note, the contractor agreeing that if he failed to pay he would credit the owner with the amount of his assessment. The surety was obliged to pay the note and the contractor assigned his rights, the assignee completing the work. Held the property owner could not set up his agreement with the original contractor to defeat enforcement of the lien by the assignee. Stitt v. Horton [Ind.] 76 N. E. 241.

28. See 4 C. L. 1160.

29. Mere silence and inaction of a street railway company, while streets traversed by its tracks are being paved, do not estop it to plead absolute want of power and jurisdiction in a city council to levy an assessment against it for the improvement. Louisiana Imp. Co. v. Baton Rouge Electric & Gas Co., 114 La. 534, 38 So. 444. This is especially true where the contract was let on the basis of payment by the city and abutters, and no benefits to the railway are regularities, not jurisdictional, are waived, in the absence of fraud,[31] or prejudice to the rights of property owners,[32] by failure to urge the proper objection in the manner and at the time duly provided for by law.[33] Conduct indicating acquiescence in shown. Id. The Iowa statute does not cover fundamental defects going to the jurisdiction of the local tribunal to entertain the proceedings. Owens v. Marion, 127 Iowa 469, 103 N. W. 381. Abutting owner not estopped from challenging the legality of a street improvement assessment by the fact that he asked for the improvement and that it be made by a certain contractor. Borger v. Columbus, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 401. The mere fact that an abutting property owner petitioned for a sewer improvement, and stood by without objection or protest and saw it built, does not estop him from thereafter contesting the validity of the assessment against his property to pay the costs thereof on the ground that his property is not specially benefited thereby. Hildebrand v. Toledo, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 450.

30. Where proceedings are void, the assessment cannot be validated by a subsequent ordinance designed to cure the jurisdictional defect. Hubbell, Son & Co. v. Bennett Bros. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 375. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 42, § 42½, designed to cure errors in drainage assessments, does not validate an assessment which a justice had no jurisdiction to authorize. Frank v. Rogers [Ill.] 77 N. E. 221.

31. Fraud is not established by proof that the city council failed to take testimony as to the value of property assessed and the amount of benefits, nor does proof of the inequitable character of an assessment show fraud. Owens v. Marion, 127 Iowa 469, 103 N. W. 381.

32. Failure to give notice of proceedings for a drainage ditch waived by an owner who appeared, by her guardian, and claimed and was allowed damages. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506. A person who files a protest against a special assessment with the board of equalization before the time fixed in the published notice for the meeting of the board thereby waives any defect in the notice. Shannon v. Omaha [Neb.] 103 N. W. 53. Failure to have the viewers' report presented to the court for confirmation nisi is immaterial where the persons objecting had notice of the filing of the report, and came into court and excepted within the proper time. In re Marshall Ave. [Pa.] 62 A. 1085. Under St. 1902, p. 439, c. 527, it is immaterial whether part of the cost of a street improvement was illegally incurred and whether the illegality, if any, was of a kind which the legislature could have authorized, provided that the assessment did not exceed half the expense or the benefits. Gardiner v. Boston Street Com'rs, 188 Mass. 223, 74 N. E. 341. Failure to file certificate of date and amount of first voucher within 30 days of its issue, as required by Local Imp. Act § 42, which provides that interest shall run from the date of the first voucher, is not prejudicial to an owner when it is not shown that he was charged with interest nor from what date it ran if charged. Gage v. People, 219 Ill. 634, 76 N. E. 834.

33. California: The objection that an assessment is excessive being one which may be raised before the city council under St. 1885, p. 156, c. 153, § 11, failure to appeal to the council bars the use of the objection as a defense against enforcement of the assessment. Bates v. Adamson [Cal. App.] 84 P. 51.

Iowa: By Code § 824, objections first raised by petition on appeal from the assessment, not having been submitted to the city council, may be stricken. Higman v. Sioux City [Iowa] 105 N. W. 524. That notice of intention to pave was not given for required length of time, and that neither it nor the resolution stated the kind of material to be used, held mere irregularities cured by failure to urge at proper time. Owens v. Marion, 127 Iowa, 469, 103 N. W. 381. A mere general objection that proceedings were irregular did not raise the question whether the council had erroneously included the space occupied by the rails in computing the area of paving required to be done by a street railway company. Marshalltown Light, Power & R. Co. v. Marshalltown, 127 Iowa, 637, 103 N. W. 1005.

Illinois: Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 24, § 66, providing that upon application for judgment of sale upon an assessment no defense or objection shall be made or heard which might have been interposed in the proceedings for the making of the assessment, and no errors in the proceedings not affecting the power of the court shall be deemed a defense, the objection that the original assessment proceedings were pending when proceedings to confirm a new assessment were begun, is not a good defense to an application for judgment of sale for the new assessment. Wagg v. People, 218 Ill. 337, 75 N. E. 977. The objection that an ordinance for paving was not preceded by a petition of property owners is not jurisdictional and cannot be successfully interposed in an action to enforce the assessment. Phillips v. People, 218 Ill. 450, 75 N. E. 1016. A property owner who appears and objects to judgment waives objections to the delinquent list and publication and certification thereof. Marshall v. People, 219 Ill. 99, 76 N. E. 70. One who appears and makes a general defense to an application for judgment and order of sale waives irregularities in the delinquent list and publication of the notice of application for sale. Ottis v. Sullivan, 219 Ill. 365, 76 N. E. 487. Revenue Act § 191 provides that errors or informalities in the assessment and collection of taxes, not affecting the substantial justice of the tax itself, shall not vitiate or affect the tax or assessment. Slight irregularities may be cured by amending the record by leave of court. Id. Where tax judgment sale and forfeiture record shows one assessment against one lot and a second against another, both having been originally assessed as one parcel, judgment of sale cannot properly be entered until the county treasurer has amended the record. Id.

the making of an improvement, and in the procedure adopted, also amounts to a waiver or estoppel.[34] In Indiana, irregularities are expressly waived by owners who are given the privilege of paying an assessment in instalments.[35]

Where the grading of a street can only be legally ordered by a city and performed at the expense of abutting owners to the extent of the excess of benefits over damages, and such excess has been, in form but not legally, ascertained, and the requisite conditions precedent to the payment thereof, in form, satisfied, payment by the property owner without protest is a waiver of all errors which might have been insisted upon to defeat the tax,[36] and such payment cannot be recovered, either by a direct action for that purpose or by any proceeding in which the relief sought will in effect accomplish such recovery.[37] Where after such payment the municipality has changed its position by paying the amount to the contractor, the property owner is estopped to urge irregularities in the proceedings.[38]

The judgment[39] must be properly signed[40] and must identify the property and Kentucky: Errors in procedure do not exempt abutting owners from payment when the work has been completed as required by the ordinance or contract. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 3100, such errors are to be corrected by the city council or courts so as to do justice to the parties concerned. City of Covington v. Noland & Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 216. In such cases the city cannot be held for the cost unless it was without power to construct the improvement at the cost of the abutting owners. Id. An objection that a sidewalk was not completed according to contract cannot be urged for the first time after completion and acceptance of the work. Mudge v. Walker [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1046.

New Jersey: A property owner who has ample notice of the proceedings for a street improvement, but delays application for a writ of certiorari until the improvement is completed and the assessment levied, will not be heard with regard to any errors in procedure prior to the assessment. Tusting v. Asbury Park [N. J. Law] 62 A. 183.

Pennsylvania: The Act of April 18, 1899 (P. L. 57), providing that where a street has been improved by municipal authority under invalid laws or ordinances the improvements shall be valid and binding, is constitutional. In re Marshall Ave. [Pa.] 62 A. 1085. The act cures failure to advertise an ordinance for grading. Id. Where a paving ordinance has been advertised and passed in the statutory manner, it is immaterial, in an action to enforce the assessment lien, whether a majority of property owners on the street signed the petition. Erie City v. Grant, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 109. Where paving was accepted and liens therefor filed by the borough, property owners could not object that a second contract was let without an attempt to get bids and without an authorizing ordinance or resolution. Tarentum Borough v. Moorhead, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 273. After acceptance of a work of paving property owners cannot escape payment of the assessment because of irregularities in the details of advertising and bids, in the absence of bad faith or fraud. Wabash Ave., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 305.

34. Where a person interested in and in charge of property joined in a petition for curbing and guttering by the city, he could not object to the assessment on the ground that he had not been given notice to do the work, and that the city would do it on his default, under Laws 1899, p. 152, c. 128. People v. Clarke, 110 App. Div. 28, 96 N. Y. S. 1051. A plaintiff who is active in promoting a street improvement, under a statute which provides that the assessment shall be by the front foot, is not entitled to relief as to the excess of the assessment over the special benefits resulting from the improvement, Murphy v. Sims, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 193. A finding that an abutting property owner signed the original petition for improvement of the street, and knew that the work was progressing and that the property would be assessed, is not sufficient to support the conclusion that he participated in the improvement of the sidewalk in accordance with a supplemental petition, but where his name appears on the supplemental petition also, the mere fact that he has no recollection of signing it does not disprove the signature in the absence of a motive on the part of any one else for placing his name there. Id.

35. Owners who have executed the statutory waiver of irregularities for the privilege of paying an assessment in instalments cannot object to an assessment on the ground that the engineer's report did not properly describe the lands. Dunkirk Land Co. v. Zehner [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1099.

36. Pabst Brewing Co. v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 105 N. W. 563. By such payment the owner admits the demand upon him and cannot thereafter urge that there was in fact no determination of the excess of benefits over damages. Id.

37. Owner cannot after such payment sue the municipality for damages to his property. Pabst Brewing Co. v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 105 N. W. 563.

38. Since before paying to the contractor the city could have protected itself by a reassessment under Rev. St. 1898, § 1210d. Pabst Brewing Co. v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 105 N. W. 563.

39. See 4 C. L. 1161.

40. Judgment and order of sale marked "O. K.," followed by initials of county judge, is not signed as required by Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 120, § 191. Gage v. People, 219 Ill. 20, 76 N. E. 56.

indicate the amount adjudged against each tract.[41] A judgment for an assessment may include instalments not due if it provides that execution therefor shall not issue until they are due.[42] Fees allowed by law may be included.[43]

The sale and redemption.[44]—In Illinois the county court has no power to order a sale for failure to pay an instalment of a special assessment after the judgment of confirmation has been reversed.[45]

(§ 8) I. Remedies by injunction or other collateral attack, and grounds therefor.[46]—Collection of a void assessment will be enjoined by a court of equity,[47] unless the invalidity is apparent on the face of the record,[48] and in such suit, owners of land assessed may join;[49] but mere irregularities, not jurisdictional, cannot be urged in a collateral attack in a suit in equity,[50] but must be raised in the tribunal and in the manner provided by law.[51] In such collateral attack, jurisdiction of the local authorities[52] and regularity of proceedings[53] will be presumed. The facts that a city is attempting to enforce two executions for assessments against two parcels of land owned by the same person, and that enforcement of a third is threatened, do not

41. Judgment of sale referred to attached schedule for amount and schedule contained no dollar mark to indicate meaning of numerals. Held, judgment insufficient. Gage v. People, 219 Ill. 20, 76 N. E. 56. A judgment may refer to the schedule showing the tracts and amounts against each and make such schedule a part of the judgment, and need not use the word "aforesaid" and follow the schedule. Gage v. People, 219 Ill. 369, 76 N. E. 498.

42. City of Rochester v. Rochester R. Co., 109 App. Div. 638, 96 N. Y. S. 152.

43. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 4290, 4297, attorneys' fees may be recovered, in an action to foreclose the lien of an assessment for street improvements, against back lying property, commenced after foreclosure against abutting property. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Porter [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 179. A judgment for "special assessments, printer's fees and costs" does not allow a double recovery of printer's fees. Gage v. People, 219 Ill. 369, 76 N. E. 498.

44. See 4 C. L. 1162.

45. Glos v. Collins, 110 Ill. App. 121.

46. See 4 C. L. 1163.

47. Hensley v. Butte [Mont.] 83 P. 481. If proceedings for the making of improvements, or for the making or collection of assessment, are void or without jurisdiction, an equitable action will lie to have them so declared, and a person affected is not bound to file objections thereto or to appeal from action taken therein. Owens v. Marion, 127 Iowa 469, 103 N. W. 381. Paving of alley above grade being without authority, enforcement of assessment would be enjoined. Hubbell, Son & Co. v. Bennett Bros. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 375. Where there has been a substantial departure from the terms of a paving contract, property owners interested may have the assessment enjoined. McCain v. Des Moines [Iowa] 103 N. W. 979.

48. Where bill was for injunction against collection of an assessment claimed to be void because of lack of a jurisdictional step in the making of the improvement, relief was refused because such defect would appear on the face of the proceedings and the property owner would have an adequate legal remedy. Blanchard v. Barre, 77 Vt. 420, 60 A. 970.

49. Coleman v. Rathbun [Wash.] 82 P. 540.

50. Owens v. Marion, 127 Iowa, 469, 103 N. W. 381. A bill in chancery to enjoin collection of a special assessment will not lie on the ground that a petition of property owners for the improvement was not filed. Village of Oak Park v. Schosenski, 215 Ill. 229, 74 N. E. 135. Where collateral attack on proceedings of a local board is made after the completion of the improvement, mere irregularities not going to the jurisdiction of the board will not vitiate its action. Dyer v. Woods [Ind.] 76 N. E. 624. Though funds to pay for street intersections should be provided for, in Nebraska, before the city council orders a street improvement, failure to provide such funds is no ground for enjoining special assessment after the improvement is completed and street intersections paid for. Eddy v. Omaha [Neb.] 103 N. W. 692. Where a street improvement was made in conformity with the requirements of the constitutional provisions of a statute, by a municipality of the class and grade specially provided for in the unconstitutional part thereof, an assessment will not be enjoined merely because the procedure was not in accordance with the requirements of the unconstitutiohal part. Adkins v. Toledo, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 433. The fact that a court divides on the question whether property has been specially benefited in the amount of the assessment does not afford ground for disturbing the assessment in the absence of some of the grounds usually invoking equitable intervention. Mechlem v. Cincinnati, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 212.

51. In Iowa, irregularities must be urged before the city council, or on appeal from its action taken under Code § 839. Owens v. Marion, 127 Iowa 469, 103 N. W. 381.

52. Where there is a collateral attack on the proceedings of a local board involving an effort to oust it of jurisdiction by the interference of a court of equity, jurisdiction of the board is presumed to exist in the absence of a contrary showing. Dyer v. Woods [Ind.] 76 N. E. 624.

53. A bill to restrain collection of a sewer constitute grounds for an injunction on the ground of multiplicity of suits, or that such executions constitute a cloud on title.[54] In a suit to restrain collection of an alleged excessive assessment, it is not error to render an unconditional judgment for plaintiff where defendant does not demand a conditional judgment for the alleged excess only, and does not demand that plaintiff keep good his tender of the amount admitted to be due.[55]

Injunction to restrain the making of an assessment is a proper remedy where the assessment is invalid.[56] A property owner has no standing in a court of equity to enjoin the making of a second assessment on the ground that the first appeared to be valid, while denying that the first was in fact valid.[57]

(§ 8) J. Appeal and other direct review.[58]—Proceedings for the review of assessment proceedings must be instituted within the time[59] and in the manner[60] provided by law.

Scope of review and of relief.—The admissibility and effect of evidence, upon an appeal, may depend upon the statute applicable.[61] On appeal from a decision of the county court in a confirmation proceeding in Illinois, only questions passed upon by the county court will be reviewed;[62] and, in Massachusetts, objections not raised at a hearing to confirm an assessment, nor on the first appeal therefrom, cannot be considered on a second appeal.[63] On appeal from the council in Washington, an ob-assessment must specifically allege want of preliminary steps, as it will be presumed such steps were taken in the absence of a contrary showing. Cleneay v. Norwood, 137 F. 962. Upon a collateral attack plaintiff should show the condition of the record in respect to the defect of which he complains, and in the absence of such a showing the presumption must be against him. Contrary not being shown, it was presumed that sidewalk resolution and notice thereof were sufficiently definite to inform property owner of location of proposed walk. Dyer v. Woods [Ind.] 76 N. E. 624. Where an abutting owner seeks to enjoin the collection of an assessment for a street improvement on the ground that the assessment exceeds the benefits, the burden is upon him to show that such is the fact, and this burden is not overcome by merely showing that the market value of the property was not enhanced by the improvement. Andrix v. Columbus, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 368.

54. City of Gainesville v. Dean [Ga.] 53 S. E. 183.

55. Coleman v. Rathbun [Wash.] 82 P. 540.

56. Arnold v. Knoxville [Tenn.] 90 S. W. 469.

57. If the first was insufficient, he could not claim that power to assess had been exhausted and thus escape all liability. Dyer v. Woods [Ind.] 76 N. E. 624.

58. See 4 C. L. 1164.

59. Denver City Charter 1893, art. 7, § 62, providing that appeals to review assessments must be commenced within 90 days after the ordinance making the final assessment, does not apply to sidewalk assessments under the charter of 1885 as amended in 1889. City of Denver v. Dunning, 33 Colo. 487, 81 P. 259. Certiorari to review an assessment must be applied for within 60 days after confirmation by the common council. Tusting v. Asbury Park [N. J. Law] 62 A. 183. Permission given by Act of May 16, 1891, (P. L. 75), and the amendment thereto of April 2, 1903 (P. L. 124), to appeal from confirmation of a report of viewers within 30 days, does not take away the right given by Act of May 19, 1897 (P. L. 67) to appeal within 6 months. In re Scranton Sewer [Pa.] 62 A. 173. Notice of a hearing on a sewer assessment held not to show that the assessment had been finally completed, and hence it was insufficient to start limitations against the right of appeal from the assessment under Sp. Laws 1893, p. 183, Act No. 113, § 4. Velhage v. Stanley [Conn.] 63 A. 347.

60. A notice of appeal from an assessment under Laws 1901, c. 118, which complies with the statute in other respects, is not objectionable because several objectors join in the appeal. Harris v. Tacoma [Wash.] 81 P. 691. Under Laws 1901, c. 118, one who appeals from an assessment must notify the city clerk and legal department of the filing in the superior court of the transcript within 3 days. Held, failure of such notice to name all the appellants is not a jurisdictional defect. Id. Nor is failure to file the required bond at the same time such transcript is filed, as required by the statute, ground for dismissal of the appeal. Id. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 24, §§ 57, 58, providing for a writ of error to review a levy under a supplemental assessment, if the affidavit required by § 96 is not filed, the writ of error will be dismissed. Stone v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 348, 75 N. E. 980.

61. On appeal from a viewer's report in proceedings under Act May 16, 1891 (P. L. 75), the report cannot be received as prima facie evidence of benefits as provided in the act of April 2, 1903 (P. L. 124). Carson v. Allegheny City [Pa.] 62 A. 1070. On trial of such appeal the contract for the improvement is inadmissible. Id.

62. Close v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 216, 75 N. E. 479.

jector may introduce evidence to support his contentions, whether or not such evidence was heard by the council.[64] Since a judgment of confirmation has, in Washington, the effect of a separate judgment upon each tract assessed, upon an appeal therefrom, the action of the appellate court affects only those who join in the appeal.[65] In New Jersey, when commissioners of adjustment have made an assessment for a public improvement, although no assessment had theretofore been imposed or attempted to be imposed, and the proceedings are removed by certiorari, it is the duty of the court to determine for what sum the property is legally liable, if at the time of adjudication an assessment can be legally levied.[66] An order setting aside an assessment brought up by certiorari, and directing a new assessment, vacates only the apportionment under review and does not determine the correctness or incorrectness of any particular assessment.[67] In New York, upon certiorari to review the action of an assessing officer, if it appears that the assessment of relator's property is unjust and unequal as compared with assessments against other property similarly located, the court may correct the assessment, though the rule or general principle upon which the assessment was made was not illegal or erroneous;[68] but the point that property in the assessment district was not at all benefited does not present a question of law unless the determination of the district was without competent proof to support it or was opposed by a decided preponderance of proof.[69]

A writ for the vacation of an assessment is not a writ of right but is issued only when it appears that substantial justice requires it.[70] A complaint in a proceeding to set aside an assessment must set out facts showing its illegality.[71] The Iowa statute, providing that no action shall be brought questioning the legality of improvement certificates or bonds unless within three months after their issuance, does not apply to bonds and certificates issued before the statute was passed.[72]

PUIS DARREIN CONTINUANCE; PURCHASE-MONEY MORTGAGES, see latest topical index.

QUESTIONS OF LAW AND FACT.

Scope of topic.—Only the general principles are here treated, with a few illus-

63. Beckett v. Chicago, 218 Ill. 97, 75 N. E. 747.

64. On appeal from action of the council on objections to an assessment roll, under Sess. Laws 1901, p. 240, c. 118, which gives the court power to correct, modify, or annul the assessment complained of, the appellant may introduce evidence to sustain his objections regardless of whether such evidence was heard by the council. Ahrens v. Seattle [Wash.] 81 P. 558. Where, on appeal to the supreme court, it appears that the superior court erroneously refused to hear such evidence, the case will be remanded for a full and proper trial and judgment. Id.

65. In re Westlake Ave. [Wash.] 82 P. 279.

66. Assessment by commissioners adopted by court. Zahn v. Rutherford [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1123.

67. Milton v. Stell [N. J. Law] 62 A. 1133.

68. People v. Reis, 109 App. Div. 748, 96 N. Y. S. 597.

69. In re Phelps, 110 App. Div. 69, 96 N. Y. S. 862. Where assessors expressly find that property on both sides of a street is benefited by a sewer, that finding is not reviewable on certiorari. People v. Desmond, 97 N. Y. S. 795.

70. Harwood v. Donovan, 188 Mass. 487, 74 N. E. 914. One who paid without objection 5 instalments of sewer assessment, and used the sewer, was not entitled to a writ vacating the assessment. Id.

71. A complaint to set aside local assessments, after describing certain premises, alleged that plaintiff owned 51 other lots in the assessment district, and that the assessment on each of which was oppressive and unlawful, but stated no facts to show the illegality. Held insufficient to justify vacation of assessments on such lots. Harriman v. Yonkers, 109 App. Div. 246, 95 N. Y. S. 816.

72. Code § 989. Citizens' State Bank v. Jess, 127 Iowa 450, 103 N. W. 471. Nor does this statute apply to a reassessment under § 980 authorizing a relevy under certain conditions. Id.

trative applications. Whether particular facts or issues are questions of law or fact is considered as germane to the particular subject involved, and is treated in the topic referring thereto.[73] The propriety of taking a case from the jury is also treated elsewhere.[74]

Province of court and jury in general.[75]—It is always the province of the jury to find whether a fact exists,[76] and, in general, all issues of fact are to be tried and determined by it;[77] always, however, with reference to the proofs and the law as given by the court.[78] The credibility of witnesses,[79] and the weight and preponderance of evidence,[80] are matters peculiarly within the province of the jury; but the legal sufficiency of proof, and the moral weight of legally sufficient proof, are very distinct in the conception of the law. The first lies within the province of the court, the last, within that of the jury.[81] Where the testimony in a case is oral, it must be submitted to the jury to determine its credibility, even when it is undisputed,[82] and in such cases it is an invasion of the province of the jury for the court to direct them that they must accept as true and act upon, the evidence of witnesses.[83] The jury must pass upon material issues of fact upon which the evidence is conflicting,[84] or is such that more than one reasonable inference may be

73. See such titles as Contracts, 5 C. L. 664; Negligence, 6 C. L. 748; Master and Servant, 6 C. L. 521; Railroads, 4 C. L. 1181; Street Railways, 4 C. L. 1556; Highways and Streets, 5 C. L. 1645; Wills, 4 C. L. 1863.

74. See Directing Verdict and Demurrer to Evidence, 5 C. L. 1004; Discontinuance, Dismissal and Nonsuit, 5 C. L. 1011.

75. See 4 C. L. 1165. Instructions invading the province of the jury, see Instructions, 6 C. L. 43.

76. Clark v. Wilson [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 627. They must clear up doubts, settle questions of credibility, draw correct inferences, and give final shape to findings of fact. Barley v. Beegle, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 635.

77. The case must go to the jury where there is any evidence which alone justifies an inference of a disputed fact (Kelton v. Fifer, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 603), or when there is any evidence to support plaintiff's case (Cohen v. Mincoff, 96 N. Y. S. 412), or where the evidence is sufficient to create more than a surmise or suspicion of the plaintiff's right to recover (Clark v. Wilson [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 627). Where the appellate court rules that the evidence is sufficient to carry the case to the jury, it becomes the law of the case. Gila Valley, G. & N. R. Co. v. Lyon [Ariz.] 80 P. 337.

78. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Straud, 114 Ill. App. 479. Unreasonableness of delay in the transportation of animals was, under the evidence, a mixed question of law and fact for the jury. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Smitha [Ala.] 40 So. 117.

79. Barley v. Beegle, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 635; Mallory v. Brademyer [Ark.] 89 S. W. 551; Sharp v. Erie R. Co. [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 923; Kelton v. Fifer, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 603; Western Maryland R. Co. v. Shivers [Md.] 61 A. 618; Southern Industrial Institute v. Hellier [Ala.] 39 So. 163; Poppers v. Schoenfeld, 110 Ill. App. 408; Pressed Steel Car Co. v. Herath, 110 Ill. App. 596; Buckley v. Acme Food Co., 113 Ill. App. 210; Chicago City R. Co. v. Matthieson, 113 Ill. App. 246; Chicago Union Traction Co. v. O'Donnell, 113 Ill. App. 259.

80. Mallory v. Brademyer [Ark.] 89 S. W. 551; Western Maryland R. Co. v. Shivers [Md.] 61 A. 618; Domenico v. El Paso Electric R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 60. Weight, as evidence, of declarations of deceased person admitted under Rev. Laws, c. 175, § 66. Nagle v. Boston & N. St. R. Co., 188 Mass. 38, 73 N. E. 1019. Under Code § 413, the weight of evidence is left entirely with the jury. Lehew v. Hewett, 138 N. C. 6, 50 S. E. 459. The court must explain the law in regard to the intensity of the proof, but the jury must finally decide what weight should be given to it in reaching a conclusion, whether it is sufficient under the rule laid down by the court to warrant a verdict. Id. And even in causes of an equitable nature, where the proof must be clear, strong, and convincing, the case must go to the jury with proper instructions as to the intensity of the proof, and the judge has no right to declare the evidence insufficient to establish the equity because he may not consider it clear, strong, and convincing. Id.

81. Campbell v. Everhart [N. C.] 52 S. E. 201. Whether certain acts are sufficient to divest title is a proper matter for the determination of a jury in an action at law. Ladd v. Powell [Ala.] 39 So. 46. An instruction that a deed was sufficient to vest title in plaintiffs was in effect a peremptory instruction in plaintiff's favor, and an invasion of the province of the jury under Code § 413. Campbell v. Everhart [N. C.] 52 S. E. 201.

82. Barnett v. Becker, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 22. There may be exceptional cases where the evidence introduced by the defendant is of such conclusive and unimpeachable nature as to justify binding instructions in his favor, but this situation can scarcely ever arise, where the defense rests on oral testimony and the credibility of the witnesses is involved. Kelton v. Fifer, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 603.

drawn therefrom,[86] even where there is no conflict in the evidence.[86] It is also for the jury to determine what a witness means when he uses language warranting distinct and opposite inferences;[87] but if the facts are undisputed, or admitted, or clearly established,[88] and such that all reasonable minds can draw but one inference from them,[89] a question of law only is presented.

Questions of law are to be determined solely by the court.[90] The existence or nonexistence of a corporation and its power to condemn property are questions of law.[91] Whether there is any evidence of a fact essential to the plaintiff's case,[92]

83. Dawson v. Wombles, 111 Mo. App. 532, 86 S. W. 271, citing numerous cases.

84. Knoxville Traction Co. v. Brown [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 319; Union Pac. R. Co. v. Lucas [C. C. A.] 136 F. 374. The rescission of a contract. Wellden v. Witt [Ala.] 40 So. 126. In an action on a building contract, the question of the date of completion of the work. Fitzgerald v. Benner, 219 Ill. 485, 76 N. E. 709. The question of whether a struggle between the parties was a friendly scuffle or an illegal assault. Nicholls v. Colwell, 113 Ill. App. 219. Where there is a controversy over the delivery of a deed and over an alleged reconveyance under a lost or destroyed deed. Drees v. Drees [Iowa] 104 N. W. 479. When there is a dispute as to the language used in an oral contract, the jury will determine the question of fact as to the words actually used, and then apply the law as given them by the court. Higbie v. Rust, 112 Ill. App. 218; Annadall v. Union Cement & Lime Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 893. Where the evidence is contradictory, the question of the existence of a nuisance is for the jury. Farver v. American Car & Foundry Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 579. Whether or not a telephone or telegraph pole placed in a public street is dangerous to the public, or a nuisance, is a question of fact for the jury to be determined under proper instructions from the court and all the circumstances of the case. City of Norwalk v. Jacobs, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 229. Where the evidence is conflicting, the question of negligence is for the jury, but the court may refer to an essential fact, which is undisputed, as an element of negligence, if it leaves the other facts to the jury. Wolf Co. v. Western Union Tel. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 129.

85. Barley v. Beegle, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 635; Campbell v. Everhart [N. C.] 52 S. E. 201; Cascade Foundry Co. v. Mueller Furnace Co., 140 F. 791. Questions of assumption of risk and contributory negligence. Annadali v. Union Cement & Lime Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 893. Where the theories of scientific works and experts differ as to the possibility of spontaneous combustion in certain substances. Sun Ins. Office v. Western Woolen Mill Co. [Kan.] 82 P. 513. The question of negligence, when there is a doubt as to the inference to be drawn from the facts, or where the measure of duty is ordinary and reasonable care, and the degree of care required, varies with the circumstances (Farr v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 332), or when, though the facts are undisputed, yet different conclusions may be drawn as to its presence or absence (Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Schwanenfeldt [Neb.] 105 N. W. 1101). It was error in the court to assume that the frightening of a horse by reason of an approaching bicycle is such an extraordinary occurrence that the township could not reasonably be expected to provide against it. Maus v. Mahoning Tp., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 624.

86. Rothrock v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 103 N. W. 475.

87. Smith v. Jackson Tp., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 234.

88. The question of what is a reasonable time. American Window Glass Co. v. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1006; Lewis, Hubbard & Co. v. Montgomery Supply Co. [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 1017. Also the question of diligence when the facts are uncontroverted. Id. Where in an action on an insurance policy, the evidence as to the value of the property is uncontradicted, is given without objection and not subjected to cross-examination, the question need not be submitted to the jury, though such evidence is general in character and the witness does not show himself qualified to testify on the subject. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Noe [Ark.] 88 S. W. 572. Where there is no dispute as to the language of the parties, whether oral or written, which it is claimed establishes a contract, the question of its existence is purely one of law. Higbie v. Rust, 112 Ill. App. 218. Where the defense is a plea in avoidance, and the evidence clearly sustains it, there being no conflict upon the point, the matter is reduced to a pure question of law. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mounce's Adm'r [Ky.] 90 S. W. 956.

89. If the evidence is direct, certain, presenting no question of credibility and leaving no sufficient ground for inconsistent inference of fact, the court may be asked to instruct the jury as to its legal effect. Barley v. Beegle, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 635. The question of negligence. Ward v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 524; Rowe v. Taylorville Elec. Co., 114 Ill. App. 535.

90. Under Code § 268, providing that material allegations in the complaint not denied by the answer shall be taken as true, the question whether certain allegations were so denied was a matter of law for the court. West v. Messick Grocery Co., 138 N. C. 166, 50 S. E. 565. Whether the rule of "Falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" applies to the consideration of the evidence in a case is primarily a question for the court and not for the jury. Pumorlo v. Merrill, 125 Wis. 1021, 102 N. W. 464.

91. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Llebel, 27 Ky. L. R. 716, 86 S. W. 549.

92. In an action for malicious prosecution, "Whether or not there is any evidence to and whether from facts in proof a particular inference can be drawn,[93] are questions for the court; but whether an inference may be drawn, and whether one inference successfully answers or defeats another, is for the jury.[94] Although the legal meaning or effect of a statute is always a question of law for the court,[95] yet where any question of fact is to be determined in the construction of a statute, the jury must determine it;[96] and where a town ordinance had been duly proved and its language was direct and needed no construction, it was not error for the court to instruct the jury to determine what the ordinance was, and whether it had been violated.[97] When there is no jury, the court makes the findings of fact as well as of law,[98] and passes upon the credibility of witnesses.[99]

A consent by the defendant to the submission of a case on evidence admitted on a former trial,[1] or a request to submit a certain matter to the jury,[2] concedes that there are questions of fact to be determined; and where both parties move the court to direct a verdict, they admit that the evidence is undisputed, so that the only question is one of law,[3] or leave both questions of fact and credibility of witnesses to the determination of the court.[4]

Particular facts or issues.[5]—The question of intent,[6] of intoxication and its extent,[7] of good faith and sufficiency of possession by the purchaser of personal property,[8] of damages,[9] the application of a description of land to its subject-matter,[10] and the reasonableness of time under the particular circumstances of the case,[11] are all questions for the jury. The computation of interest may be left submit to the jury want of probable cause in bringing the criminal prosecution" properly reserves a question of law. Scott v. Dewey, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 396.

93, 94. Seely v. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. [N. H.] 61 A. 585.

95. It was error for the court to decline to construe a statute and to leave the jury to construe and apply it as a question of fact. Winchell v. Camillus, 109 App. Div. 341, 95 N. Y. S. 688.

96. The determination of which is the "main stem" of a railroad, as distinguished from its branches, under the act of 1888 for the taxation of railroads (Gen. St. p. 3325, § 214, subd. 4), depends upon the question of which line is used for passenger traffic as distinguished from a line used for freight traffic, or when there are two lines used for both kinds of traffic, which is the one upon which the passenger traffic is mainly carried, and the question in each case is one of fact depending upon the actual use of the line at the time of assessment. Jersey City v. State Board of Assessors [N. J. Law] 63 A. 21.

97. Thomasson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 443.

98. In an action by a broker for his commission tried without a jury, the question of whether the broker had knowledge of a minor's interest in the land, which caused a failure of the sale, before he secured a purchaser, was a question of fact. O'Neil v. Printz [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 174.

99. Mora v. Thomas [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 632.

1. Rowe v. Gerry, 109 App. Div. 153, 95 N. Y. S. 857.

2. Where a party requested the court to charge that the question of the term of his employment was one for the jury, he could not afterward contend that there was no conflict as to the term of his employment. McDonald v. Ideal Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 896, 106 N. W. 279. Where counsel for appellant requested the court to submit, as a question of fact, whether appellee's intestate at the time of the accident was exercising due care for his own safety, he could not afterward contend, as a matter of law, that deceased failed to exercise such care. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. O'Donnell, 113 Ill. App. 259. In an action for personal injuries, questions of assumption of risk, of contributory negligence, and whether the injury was caused by the negligence of a fellow-servant, are deemed waived as questions of law, where the defendant causes their submission as questions of fact. Chicago City R. Co. v. Enroth, 113 Ill. App. 285.

3. McComb v. Baskerville [S. D.] 106 N. W. 300.

4. Dearman v. Marshall, 88 App. Div. 41, 84 N. Y. S. 705.

5. See 4 C. L. 1166.

6. As determining residence. Barfield v. Coker & Co. [S. C.] 53 S. E. 170.

7. Botwinis v. Allgood, 113 Ill. App. 188.

8. Schwab v. Woods, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 433.

9. The amount necessary to compensate a person for damages must be left to the jury, under proper instructions, to fix in view of all the facts and circumstances. The N. K. Fairbank Co. v. Bahre, 112 Ill. App. 290. The question of what is a proper compensation for injury to the use of property by a nuisance, and for its effect upon health and physical comfort, is for the jury. Farver v. American Car & Foundry Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 579. Damages in condemnation proceedings. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Liebel, 27 Ky. L. R. 716, 86 S. W. 549.

10. Warner v. Marshall [Ind.] 75 N. E. 582.

to the jury.[12] Where dependent on extrinsic facts or conflicting evidence, the existence of a contract,[13] the determination of its terms if oral,[14] the interpretation of the language and intention of the parties,[15] and its discharge or rescission,[16] are questions for the jury; but the construction of a written instrument,[17] or the validity of an oral contract, the terms thereof being determined,[18] is for the court. The question of whether the owner of a wharf dedicated it to the public was properly left to the jury under the evidence,[19] but whether a city ordinance operated as an abandonment of the public user was a question of law for the court;[20] and while it is for the jury to determine the facts in any given case, what constitutes probable cause is a question of law.[21] The questions of negligence,[22] and contributory negligence,[23] are ordinarily questions of fact; but when only one inference can reason-

11. Clark v. Wilson [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 627; American Window Glass Co. v. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1006.

12. Melink v. Coman, 111 Ill. App. 583, following Evans v. Murphy Varnish Co., 59 Ill. App. 583. The law is settled in Missouri that it is the province of the jury to compute the principal and interest due on a note. Dawson v. Wombles, 111 Mo. App. 532, 86 S. W. 271.

13. Whether a binding contract of insurance had been executed. Grossbaum Ceramic Art Syndicate v. German Ins. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 1107. A request to instruct, which assumes the existence of the contract in dispute, is properly refused. Frasier v. Charleston & W. C. R. Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 964.

14. Where a contract is the result of several conversations, its terms are for the jury. Pacific Export Lumber Co. v. North Pacific Lumber Co. [Or.] 80 P. 105.

15. Where the expression "word of honor" was used by parties entering into an agreement, it is a question for the jury to determine whether they intended a legal or moral obligation. Osgood v. Skinner, 111 Ill. App. 607. Whether an assessment loan was payable to the actual or to the original owner of the stock, under a resolution of the directors, held a question for the jury. Steck v. Bridgeport Water Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 188.

16. Whether notes were given to release or abrogate a precedent contract. Walkau v. Manitowoc Seating Co., 105 Ill. App. 130. Where the evidence is conflicting as to whether a contract was rescinded so as to entitle the seller to recover the property. Wellden v. Witt [Ala.] 40 So. 126.

17. Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla.] 40 So. 29; Dawson v. Wombles, 111 Mo. App. 532, 86 S. W. 271. Where the evidence to explain an ambiguity in a written contract is not conflicting, it is still the province of the court to construe the contract. Licking Rolling Mill Co. v. W. P. Snyder & Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 249.

18. Between two railroad companies for the use of each other's tracks. Looney v. Metropolitan R. Co., 24 App. D. C. 510.

19, 20. Palen v. Ocean City [N. J. Law] 62 A. 947.

21. Young v. Lindstrom, 115 Ill. App. 239.

22. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Schwanenfeldt [Neb.] 105 N. W. 1101; Knoxville Traction Co. v. Brown [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 319; Farr v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 332; Commonwealth Elec. Co. v. Melville, 110 Ill. App. 242; Central Union Bldg. Co. v. Kolander, 113 Ill. App. 305; Chicago City R. Co. v. Barnes, 114 Ill. App. 495; Nagle v. Boston & N. St. R. Co., 188 Mass. 38, 73 N. E. 1019; Chicago & W. I. R. Co. v. Newell, 113 Ill. App. 263; United R. & Elec. Co. v. Watkins [Md.] 62 A. 234; Western Maryland R. Co. v. Shivers [Md.] 61 A. 618; Commonwealth Elec. Co. v. Melville, 110 Ill. App. 242. In action for damage to stock by flooding from upper floor. Levinson v. Myers, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 481. Running an automobile in the dark without warning headlights. Wright v. Crane [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 794, 106 N. W. 71. Where the driver of a vehicle suddenly and without notice turned from one side of the road to the other, causing a collision. Hershinger v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 147. Whether a motorman was negligent in not having his car under control (Jordan v. Old Colony St. R. Co. [Mass.] 76 N. E. 909), or in not doing more to prevent the frightening of plaintiff's horse (Dulin v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Kan.] 83 P. 821). The existence or nonexistence of a defect in appliances used by an employe. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Hutchinson [Ala.] 40 So. 114. In an action for injuries to a servant the question whether the servant was operating a saw with defendant's permission. Rahn v. Standard Optical Co., 96 N. Y. S. 1080. Whether a railroad company was guilty of want of ordinary care in failing to keep its depot steps free of ice and snow. Illinois Central R. Co. v. Keegan, 112 Ill. App. 28. The existence and sufficiency of barriers to protect a street while being repaired. McMahon v. Boston [Mass.] 76 N. E. 957. When the nature and attributes of an act relied on to show negligence contributing to an injury can be correctly determined only by considering all the circumstances, it falls within the province of the jury, and the court cannot determine its quality as a matter of law. United R. & Elec. Co. v. Watkins [Md.] 62 A. 234. When it is reasonably inferable from the facts proven that the passenger was injured through some act or omission of the carrier's servant, which might have been prevented by the exercise of a high degree of care, the question of the carrier's negligence is for the jury. Gottlob v. North Jersey St. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 62 A. 1003.

23. United R. & Elec. Co. v. Watkins [Md.] 62 A. 234; Knoxville Traction Co. v. Brown [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 319; St. Louis, etc.,

ably be drawn from undisputed facts,[24] and then only, they become questions of law;[25] and whether a given state of facts constitutes negligence is generally a question of law.[26] Although the question of whether the degree of care required has been exercised is ordinarily one for the jury,[27] yet it may become a question of law when the evidence, with all the reasonable inferences to be deduced therefrom, is insufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff;[28] and it was held that the reasonableness and sufficiency of a regulation for the protection of servants engaged in blasting, requiring the giving of a certain signal in time to warn, was a question of law for the court and not of fact for the jury.[29] And what a reasonably prudent person would do for his own safety under the circumstances of any particular case is to be determined by the jury,[30] for common prudence is not measured by custom or by rule, but by the exigencies of the occasion, which is solvable by the facts.[31] Ordinarily, the relation of the alleged negligence to the injury complained of, whether proximate or remote, is a question for the jury,[32] but where it clearly appears that the damages cannot, by any fair process of reasoning, be attributed to the negligence charged, it becomes a question of law.[33] The jury are also to determine the

R. Co. v. Burgess [Kan.] 83 P. 991; Annadall v. Union Cement & Lime Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 893; McMahon v. Boston [Mass.] 76 N. E. 957; Rahn v. Standard Optical Co., 96 N. Y. S. 1080. In case of injury at a grade crossing. Toban v. Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 475. In case of a fall on an icy sidewalk. Steck v. Allegheny [Pa.] 62 A. 1115. Whether plaintiff exercised reasonable care in the use of a defective street (Brassington v. Mt. Carmel Borough, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 318; Steck v. Allegheny [Pa.] 62 A. 1115), or bridge (Smith v. Jackson Tp., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 234), or in going upon railroad tracks (Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Zapp, 110 Ill. App. 553), or in operating an electric crane (Shickle-Harrison & H. Iron Co. v. Beck, 112 Ill. App. 444). Whether the danger from the use of defective appliances was so apparent and imminent that the servant should heve declined to use them, notwithstanding a promise to repair. Leeson v. Saw Mill Phoenix [Wash.] 83 P. 891. Where, in an action for wrongful death, the undisputed facts are that the deceased, a boy of seventeen years, was killed while attempting to put a belt on a rapidly revolving wheel, the belt flying off and wrapping itself about his person; that the deceased had been employed in defendant's shop only about three weeks; that when he entered the shop he had had no experience in the kind of work upon which he was engaged; that he was asked to do the work which resulted in his death without any instruction or warning being given to him by the foreman or any one in authority at the shop, it is for the jury to say whether the danger was so open and apparent that instructions concerning it were not necessary and whether the deceased was guilty of contributory negligence. Jackson Knife & Shear Co. v. Hathaway, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 242. It is not error to leave it to the jury to say whether the facts and circumstances under which the plaintiff stepped into the open elevator shaft were such as to lull him into a sense of security by leading him to think the cab was there to receive him. Breuer v. Frank, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 581.

24. Ward v. District of Columbia, 24 App. D. C. 524, following Washington Gaslight Co. v. Poore, 3 App. D. C. 127; Adams v. Washington & G. R. Co., 9 App. D. C. 26; West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Dougherty, 110 Ill. App. 204. The facts being undisputed does not alone make the question of negligence one of law; the circumstances must be such that men of ordinary prudence and discretion cannot differ thereon. Sharp v. Erie R. Co. [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 923.

25. McAllister v. Jung, 112 Ill. App. 138; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Schwanenfeldt [Neb.] 105 N. W. 1101; Chicago City R. Co. v. Barnes, 114 Ill. App. 495. Contributory negligence of plaintiff in driving his horse against a chain closing an entrance to an enclosed lot, in plain sight and known to him. McCandless v. Phreaner, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 383.

26. Wolf Co. v. Western Union Tel. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 129.

27, 28. Rowe v. Taylorville Elec. Co., 114 Ill. App. 535.

29. Kenefick-Hammond Co. v. Rohr [Ark.] 91 S. W. 179.

30. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 110 Ill. App. 154.

31. Geldard v. Marshall [Or.] 83 P. 867.

32. Terminal Railroad Ass'n v. Larkins, 112 Ill. App. 366. Whether negligence of township in not providing guard rails on an embankment was such cause. Maus v. Mahoning Tp., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 624. Whether, in an action for damages against a saloon keeper, intoxication was the proximate cause of death. Botwinis v. Allgood, 113 Ill. App. 188. Whether damages suffered were a direct consequence of defendant's alleged injury to plaintiff's premises. Baltimore Belt R. Co. v. Sattler [Md.] 62 A. 1125. Where there is evidence of an unbroken connection and continuous operation between a disease and an injury, it is for the jury to determine whether the wrongful act that caused the injury was the proximate cause of the disease. Sallie v. New York City R. Co., 110 App. Div. 665, 97 N. Y. S. 491.

33. Terminal Railroad Ass'n v. Larkins, 112 Ill. App. 366.

questions of assumption of risk[34] and who are fellow-servants,[35] unless, by facts admitted or proven beyond dispute, so that reasonable minds can draw but one conclusion therefrom, the existence of the relation of fellow-servant is shown within the established rule.[36] Foreign laws are also matters of fact.[36a] Other illustrations of what falls within the province of the jury will be found in the notes.[37] Where a plea of the statute of limitations was interposed to an amended declaration in an action for personal injuries, and a replication to such plea was filed, a mixed question of law and fact was presented, the jury to determine when the injury occurred and the court when the suit was commenced.[38]

QUIETING TITLE.

§ 1. Chancery and statutory remedies and rights. Nature and office.[39]—The proceeding to quiet title is equitable, and to entitle the complainant to relief he must do equity.[40] A court of law has no jurisdiction.[41] If ejectment lies, a suit to quiet title will not.[42] A bill to quiet title will not lie to settle a boundary

34. Annadall v. Union Cement & Lime Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 893; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Burgess [Kan.] 83 P. 991; Rahn v. Standard Optical Co., 96 N. Y. S. 1080.

35. Shickle-Harrison & H. Iron Co. v. Beck, 112 Ill. App. 444.

36. Himrod Coal Co. v. Clingan, 114 Ill. App. 568; Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Surrells, 115 Ill. App. 615; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Mikesell, 113 Ill. App. 146; Illinois Southern R. Co. v. Marshall, 112 Ill. App. 514. In an action for an injury to a servant, it was a question for the jury under the evidence whether a rope, which broke and caused the accident, was selected by the defendant or plaintiff's fellow-servants. Geldard v. Marshall [Or.] 83 P. 867.

36a. Whether the common-law doctrine of nonliability of employers for negligence of fellow-servants prevailed in Mexico. Mexican Cent. R. Co. v. Chantry [C. C. A.] 136 F. 316.

37. In an ejectment suit, whether a line, under the evidence, was a consentable line. Dunlap v. Reardon, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 35. Where, in an action on a building contract, evidence tends to show that the architect acted under defendant's instructions in refusing to deliver a certificate of approval of work, it was a question for the jury whether vexatious and unreasonable delay in payment was occasioned by defendant's fault. Fitzgerald v. Benner, 219 Ill. 485, 76 N. E. 709. In which capacity one, who was both a special officer of a railroad company and a police officer, was acting when he attempted to arrest, without warrant, violators of the law (Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Deck [Md.] 62 A. 958), or when he shot a boy attempting to steal a ride on a freight train (Sharp v. Erie R. Co. [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 923).

38. Merchants Loan & Trust Co. v. Boucher, 115 Ill. App. 101.

39. See 4 C. L. 1168.

40. NOTE. Bill to remove vendor's lien when claim for purchase price is barred by limitations: Held that the bill can be granted only on condition that the plaintiff pay for the land. Cassell v. Lowry, 164 Ind. 1, 72 N. E. 640. It is true that equity will not as a rule allow a title otherwise unimpeachable to be clouded by a claim which can never be successfully enforced, since such a claim can result only in oppression and useless reduction of value. Steam, etc., Co. v. Jones, 21 Blatchf. [U. S.] 138. Accordingly, a disseisor who has acquired land by adverse possession for the statutory period is entitled to a decree of a court of equity making his title perfect of record. Arrington v. Liscom, 34 Cal. 365, 94 Am. Dec. 722. The fact that in Indiana the running of the statute of limitations against the debt bars also the lien which secures it would seem at first sight to bring the present case within these principles, since the plaintiff is in possession of the land with a title which no one can dispute. But though the statute limiting personal actions bars all remedies, it does not, like the statute applicable to realty, extinguish the right. Under such circumstances the court is right in denying relief till such obligation is discharged. Booth v. Hoskins, 75 Cal. 271.—18 Harv. L. R. 471.

41. A cloud consisting of an invalid ordinance and statutes authorizing the condemnation of land cannot be removed in condemnation proceedings instituted under such legislation. Roby v. South Park Com'rs, 215 Ill. 200, 74 N. E. 125.

42. A mortgagor who has paid the mortgage and thereby divested the title of the mortgagee cannot maintain the suit to quiet title against a void foreclosure. Drum v. Bryan [Ala.] 40 So. 131.

dispute,[43] nor for the sole purpose of determining a question of fraud.[44] Defendants in ejectment cannot base a bill to quiet title on matters which would constitute a defense to the action at law,[45] and during the pendency of an action in ejectment, a bill to cancel the deed under which plaintiff claims, for fraud in its procurement, and to enjoin the prosecution of the action at law, will not lie.[46] That the judgment will amount to a technical forfeiture is not a bar to the suit.[47] The pendency of a suit in a state court does not abate a suit in a Federal court to quiet title to the same land.[48]

Title and possession[49] in the complainant are essential,[50] both in the suit in equity and in the statutory equivalents,[51] except as the statutes provide for determining conflicting claims to vacant property;[52] and, unless defendants are numerous, plaintiff's title, if a legal one, must have been established at law or be founded on undisputed evidence of long continued possession.[53] An equitable title will sustain the suit.[54] The plaintiff must recover on the strength of his own title.[55]

Possession.[56]—As a general rule, possession in the complainant is essential, whether the proceeding be at common law[57] or under the statutes,[58] unless the land

43. Livingston County Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Keach, 219 Ill. 9, 76 N. E. 72.

44. Suspension of levy on land conveyed in fraud of creditors under Rev. Laws, c. 178, § 31, does not authorize the fraudulent grantee to sue to cancel the levy as a cloud, and thus procure the determination of the question of fraud. Dunbar v. Kelly [Mass.] 75 N. E. 740.

45. Murray v. Barnes [Ala.] 40 So. 348.

46. Wilson v. Miller [Ala.] 39 So. 178. See 6 Columbia L. R. 55.

47. A bill will lie to quiet title against a contract under which all rights have been lost by willful and prolonged neglect, though the relief granted amounts to a technical forfeiture. Sawyer v. Cook, 188 Mass. 163, 74 N. E. 356.

48. Slaughter v. Mallet Land & Cattle Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 282.

49. See 4 C. L. 1168.

50. Logan's Heirs v. Ward [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 398; Carpenter v. Smith [Ark.] 88 S. W. 976. Title and actual possession. Wallace v. Elm Grove Coal Co. [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 485. Title in defendant from a paramount source antedating that of plaintiff is a defense. Downing v. Haas, 33 Colo. 344, 81 P. 33. One claiming by virtue of an executory contract of sale conditioned that the vendor would make him title on payment of the purchase price which has not been paid, has not even an equitable interest. Bradley v. Bell [Ala.] 38 So. 759.

51. Facts constituting perfect legal or equitable title must be alleged and proven under Code 1892, § 500. Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742. Though the law authorizing suits to quiet title should be liberally construed, no one except the true owner can maintain the action. Weyman v. Atlanta, 122 Ga. 539, 50 S. E. 492.

52. See infra, this section.

53. Carswell v. Swindell [Md.] 62 A. 956.

54. The holder of a bond for title has an equitable title sufficient to support the suit. Norman v. Pugh [Ark.] 86 S. W. 833. The complainant must establish perfect legal or equitable title. Stevens Lumber Co. v. Hughes [Miss.] 38 So. 769. Under B. & C. Comp. § 516, the holder of a mere equitable right may maintain an action to determine conflicting claims. Holmes v. Wolfard [Or.] 81 P. 819.

55. Stevens Lumber Co. v. Hughes [Miss.] 38 So. 769; Logan's Heirs v. Ward [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 398. One claiming under a void donation deed cannot maintain the action as against one having color of title. St. Louis Refrigerator & Wooden Gutter Co. v. Thornton [Ark.] 86 S. W. 852. The suit cannot be maintained because of any defect in the defendant's title. Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742. Where one sues to quiet title held under patent from a county, the defendant may show that the county received no consideration. Wheeler v. Reynolds Land Co. [Mo.] 91 S. W. 1050.

56. See 4 C. L. 1169.

57. St. Louis Refrigerator & Wooden Gutter Co. v. Thornton [Ark.] 86 S. W. 852; Livingston County Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Keach, 219 Ill. 9, 76 N. E. 72; Drum v. Bryan [Ala.] 40 So. 131; Gunning v. Sorg, 113 Ill. App. 332. Possession is essential unless the land is unoccupied. Glos v. Kenealy [Ill.] 77 N. E. 146. Answer stating facts showing that plaintiff is not in possession states a good defense. Downing v. Haas, 33 Colo. 344, 81 P. 33. A bill to cancel a deed is bad where it alleges that the grantee is in possession of a portion of the premises. Stannard v. Aurora, E. & C. R. Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 254. Does not lie against a defendant, alleged to have possessed himself of certain of the lands, to have leased others of them and to be otherwise attempting to control all the lands. Barco v. Doyle [Fla.] 39 So. 103. A bill from which it does not appear that plaintiff is in possession is lacking in equity. Merritt v. Alabama Pyrites Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 555. Actual possession in complainant is essential. Carswell v. Swindell [Md.] 62 A. 956. If the owner is entered upon, a suit to quiet title will not lie. Logan's Heirs v. Ward [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 398.

Possession sufficient to sustain the action is shown where one went upon the land and directed another to put up a fence, though the fence was not a substantial one. Bland is wild or unoccupied,[59] or the title of the plaintiff is equitable.[60] One who has been in peaceable possession for a long period is not deprived of his right to maintain the suit because forcibly entered upon.[61] A possession acquired secretly and by unfair means will not support the action.[62] In Alabama the possession must be peaceable.[63] In California possession is not essential.[64] Ownership in fee carries with it possession sufficient for the purposes of the suit in the absence of actual adverse possession by another,[65] but actual possession of a portion of the premises will not support the suit if there be not constructive possession of the remainder.[66] Where equity has assumed jurisdiction, it may quiet title as incident to the main relief, though plaintiff is not in possession,[67] but where defendants are in possession, the fact that other equitable relief is prayed for does not authorize equity to retain jurisdiction where plaintiff is not entitled to such other relief.[68] A remainderman, though not in possession, may maintain the suit where the life tenant has conveyed the fee and lapse of time will bar him.[69] The question of possession may be waived.[70] The question as to possession is one of fact and cannot be considered on demurrer.[71]

Defenses.[72]—A suit may be barred by laches[73] or limitations,[74] if the statute is

v. Windsor, 187 Mo. 108, 86 S. W. 162. Payment of taxes and occupation by tenants of a large tract of land, including wild mountain land, is possession of the whole sufficient to support an action. Davis' Heirs v. Hinckley, 141 F. 708. In Alabama actual or constructive possession is sufficient. Foy v. Barr [Ala.] 39 So. 578. Evidence sufficient to show possession in plaintiff at the time suit was instituted. Davis v. Commonwealth Land & Lumber Co., 141 F. 711.

58. Gen. St. 1902, § 4053, authorizing suits to quiet title under certain circumstances, does not authorize suit to recover possession of one who is alleged to have entered unlawfully. Foote v. Brown [Conn.] 62 A. 667. A suit may be maintained by one in actual possession against an adverse claimant not in possession. Logan's Heirs v. Ward [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 398.

59. St. Louis Refrigerator & Wooden Gutter Co. v. Thornton [Ark.] 86 S. W. 852; Weyman v. Atlanta, 122 Ga. 539, 50 S. E. 492. One who claimed wild land under deeds purporting to convey a larger tract, and had exercised acts of ownership and paid taxes for five years, may maintain a suit to quiet title under P. L. 1901, pp. 57, 58, though the land was not "separately" assessed for taxes to her. McGrath v. Norcross [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 727. Cutting timber, etc., by an adverse claimant held not to preclude the record owner from maintaining suit to quiet title under P. L. 1901, pp. 57, 58, authorizing the record owner of wild and unoccupied land to maintain the action. Id.

60. St. Louis Refrigerator & Wooden Gutter Co. v. Thornton [Ark.] 86 S. W. 852.

61. Slaughter v. Mallet Land & Cattle Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 282.

62. Where a drift from one mining claim is surreptitiously run under the surface of another. Badger Gold Min. & Mill Co. v. Stockton Gold & Copper Min. Co., 139 F. 838.

63. Peaceable possession under a claim of ownership is essential under Code 1896, § 809. Lyon v. Arndt [Ala.] 38 So. 242; Randle v. Daughdrill [Ala.] 39 So. 162. As distinguished from disputed or scrambling. Foy v. Barr [Ala.] 39 So. 578.

64. Reiner v. Schroeder, 146 Cal. 411, 80 P. 517.

65. Mitchell v. Titus, 33 Colo. 385, 80 P. 1042. A sheriff's deed under a foreclosure decree vests in the grantee the title and possession in the absence of actual adverse possession in another, sufficient to maintain the action authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 255. Keener v. Wilkinson, 33 Colo. 445, 80 P. 1043.

66. Badger Gold Min. & Mill. Co. v. Stockton Gold & Copper Min. Co., 139 F. 838.

67. Norman v. Pugh [Ark.] 86 S. W. 833. Where equity assumes jurisdiction for the purpose of enjoining waste, it may, for the purpose of preventing a multiplicity of suits, quiet title, though plaintiff is not in possession. Big Six Development Co. v. Mitchell [C. C. A.] 138 F. 279.

68. Brownback v. Keister [Ill.] 77 N. E. 75.

69. For the purposes of this action the possession of the life tenant is the possession of the remainderman. Alley v. Alley [Ky.] 91 S. W. 291.

70. Where after a demurrer on the ground that the action would not lie against a defendant in possession was overruled, the defendant answered on the merits and obtained a verdict on the issues of fact, the objection was waived. Weatherwax Lumber Co. v. Ray, 38 Wash. 545, 80 P. 775.

71. Weatherwax Lumber Co. v. Ray, 38 Wash. 545, 80 P. 775.

72. See 4 C. L. 1170.

73. One held barred by laches from maintaining a suit to remove a cloud. Bradley v. Johnson [Idaho] 83 P. 927. Acquiescence by the owner in a tax judgment sale and deed for 25 years, though not a bar to a suit to quiet title, may be considered by the court. Morrison v. Turnbaugh [Mo.] 91 S. W. 152. One who received his deed in August, 1900, and commenced suit to quiet title against a cloud prior to his deed in January, 1901, is not guilty of laches. Bland v. Windsor, 187 Mo. 108, 86 S. W. 162.

applicable to such proceeding.[75] An agreement by plaintiff to dispose of the property is no defense where such agreement does not affect the defendant's title.[76] A defense available only to the general public cannot be asserted by a municipality.[77]

§ 2. What is a cloud or conflicting claim.[78]—A cloud is a semblance of title either legal or equitable, or a claim of interest appearing in some legal form but which is in fact unsound.[79] The test by which to determine whether a cloud exists is, would the owner in ejectment brought by the adverse claimant be required to offer evidence to defeat a recovery.[80] The claim must be such that extrinsic evidence is necessary to establish its invalidity,[81] but it is not essential that an attempt has been made to enforce it.[82] An unfounded assertion,[83] a mere fear of suit, or that another merely questions one's title,[84] is not a cloud. Relief may be granted, though the claim asserted is void on its face.[85]

§ 3. Procedure.[86] Process.[87]—The manner of service of process is regulated by statute.[88] Where one defendant files a cross petition against his co-defendant, the court may not enter judgment on such cross petition where the co-defendant had not been summoned or heard.[89]

Parties.[90]—One who claims an interest necessary to be adjudicated is a necessary

74. Code 1892. § 2731, bars a suit to quiet title in 10 years. Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742.

75. The Oregon statutes of limitation applicable to actions for the recovery of land sold for taxes do not apply to suits to quiet title. Mount v. McAulay [Or.] 83 P. 529.

76. State v. Coughran [S. D.] 103 N. W. 31.

77. In a suit against a town to determine adverse claims, defenses that the land was a highway and a public beach were properly stricken. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

78. See 4 C. L. 1070.

79. Roby v. South Park Com'rs, 215 Ill. 200, 74 N. E. 125.

Held to constitute a cloud: An outstanding forfeited mining lease. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801. The suspension of a levy of execution. Dunbar v. Kelly [Mass.] 75 N. E. 740. Undischarged mortgage where the mortgagees refused to disclaim. Flint Land Co. v. Fochtman, [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 171, 103 N. W. 813. A mortgage executed under an erroneous belief that the mortgagor had title to all land included is a cloud on the title of such portion of the land as he did not own. Pritchard v. Lewis, 125 Wis. 604, 104 N. W. 989. Under Laws 1897, p. 405, c. 414 (Village Law §§ 112, 118), an invalid assessment is a cloud where invalidity must be shown by extrinsic evidence. Trumbull v. Palmer, 104 App. Div. 51, 93 N. Y. S. 349. Where a judgment creditor of third persons assert that his debtor has an interest in a mine and has levied execution and advertised the same for sale, the fee owner may maintain a suit to quiet title against him. Spar Consol. Min. Co. v. Casserleigh [Colo.] 83 P. 1058. A claim by a municipality that the franchise of a street railway company would expire at a certain date, and an asserted purpose to resume possession on such date, is a cloud. Blair v. Chicago, 26 S. Ct. 427. Owner of part of a tract of land subject to a street improvement bond held entitled to have his title quieted against the bond. Ellis v. Witmer [Cal.] 83 P. 800. A deed wrongfully procured from the depositary in escrow is a cloud. Bales v. Roberts, 189 Mo. 49, 87 S. W. 914. Where a grantee procures a deed by fraud, the grantor is entitled to rescind and have his title quieted against the deed. Reynolds v. Rickgauer [Neb.] 106 N. W. 175. A widow in possession to whom a husband devised all his property may maintain a bill to quiet title against children who may assert that omission to mention them in the will was unintentional. Jenks v. Jenks [R. I.] 60 A. 676.

80. City of Birmingham v. McCormack [Ala.] 40 So. 111.

81. A void ordinance and statutes purporting to authorize the condemnation of land do not constitute a cloud on the title of land claimed to be subject to condemnation. Roby v. South Park Com'rs, 215 Ill. 200, 74 N. E. 125. A deed under a sale based on an invalid ordinance is not a cloud. A party claiming under such deed would have to prove the ordinance. City of Birmingham v. McCormack [Ala.] 40 So. 111.

82. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

83. An unfounded assertion by a wife of title to community property is not a cloud on the title of the husband who has absolute control of it. Newman v. Newman [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 635.

84. Merritt v. Alabama Pyrites Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 555.

85. Deed alleged to constitute a cloud. Mount v. McAulay [Or.] 83 P. 529.

86. See 4 C. L. 1171.

87. See 4 C. L. 1172.

88. In an action to quiet title to coal lands under Act June 10, 1893 (P. L. 415), the rule to show cause must be served on nonresident respondents at their residence or place of business, but such service is waived where they voluntarily file answer. Stamey v. Barkley, 211 Pa. 313, 60 A. 991.

89. Amburgy v. Burt & B. Lumber Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 680.

90. See 4 C. L. 1172.

party.[91] An action alleging the deed to defendant to be void, but which fails to join his grantor, is demurrable for nonjoinder of necessary parties.[92] In a suit to remove a cloud and have a conveyance canceled as fraudulent, the parties who executed the conveyance are indispensable, especially if the conveyance contains covenants of warranty.[93] One who appears to be a necessary party should be admitted as a party upon his motion.[94] Under a rule that a person having legal title and possession may sue, a mortgagor in possession may maintain the suit against a mortgagee asserting title.[95] The suit must be brought for relief contemplated by the statute,[96] and by a party falling within its terms.[97] A trustee under a voluntary conveyance from one heavily indebted cannot maintain a bill to cancel as a cloud a suspended levy of execution, which was sued out by a creditor who refused to participate in the trust scheme.[98] Receivers in possession of street railway property under decree of a Federal court, may, with authority from such court, maintain a bill to remove a cloud.[99]

Bill, complaint, or petition.[1]—The complaint must allege plaintiff's title[2] and possession.[3] Facts showing title in plaintiff must be alleged[4] and not left to presumption,[5] but the character of the adverse claim,[6] or that it constitutes a cloud,[7]

91. Getzelman v. Blazier, 112 Ill. App. 648.

92. Davis v. Denham [Ala.] 40 So. 277.

93. Florida Land Rock Phosphate Co. v. Anderson [Fla.] 39 So. 392.

94. Getzelman v. Blazier, 112 Ill. App. 648.

95. Sheffield v. Day [Ky.] 90 S. W. 545.

96. The holder of the record title cannot maintain a bill under Code D. C. § 111, as that statute provides only for the establishment of a title acquired by adverse possession as a record title. Harvey v. Miller, 24 App. D. C. 51.

97. P. L. 1901, pp. 57, 58, authorizing suit to quiet title by one claiming to own wild land, who has paid taxes thereon for five years, authorizes the maintenance of the action by one who "claims" to own the fee, and is not limited to actual owners of the disputed possession. McGrath v. Norcross [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 727. One in possession under a contract by which the owner agreed to will the land to him may, under Act June 10, 1893 (P. L. 415), maintain a bill to quiet title against persons to whom his vendor conveyed for life, and in remainder, and the judgment will conclude both. Smith v. Hibbs [Pa.] 62 A. 834. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 3186, one who is either the owner in fee of the premises or the owner of an incumbrance thereon may prosecute a suit to test the validity of any claim, lien, or incumbrance on such land or any part of it. Coe v. Rockman [Wis.] 106 N. W. 290. Under this statute one claiming by conveyance from a mortgagee may maintain an action to test the legality of tax deeds, although the mortgage sale has not been confirmed. Id.

98. Dunbar v. Kelly [Mass.] 75 N. E. 740.

99. Blair v. Chicago, 26 S. Ct. 427.

1. See 4 C. L. 1172.

2. Title must be clearly and directly alleged with certainty to a common intent. Corbin Oil Co. v. Searles [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 293. Bill to quiet title under Act March 8, 1870 (P. L. p. 20), held not demurrable because setting up title under a deed not properly acknowledged. Fittichauer v. Metropolitan Fireproofing Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 746. Complaint held to state a cause of action in partition, and not to determine adverse claims under the statute. Chamberlain v. Waples [Mo.] 91 S. W. 934.

3. Possession must be affirmatively alleged and proven. Carswell v. Swindell [Md.] 62 A. 956; Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742; Weyman v. Atlanta, 122 Ga. 539, 50 S. E. 492. A bill must show actual and not merely constructive possession. Carswell v. Swindell [Md.] 62 A. 956. Under Code 1896, §§ 809, 810, complainant must allege that he is in peaceable possession, or that his title is denied and no suit is pending to test the validity thereof. City of Birmingham v. McCormack [Ala.] 40 So. 111.

4. Not sufficient to state such fact as a conclusion. Weyman v. Atlanta, 122 Ga. 539, 50 S. E. 492; Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742.

5. It will not be presumed from an allegation that execution sale was made to the plaintiff that the marshal executed a deed to him. Jones v. Rogers [Miss.] 38 So. 742.

6. In an action under Mills' Ann. St. § 255, the complaint need not set out the character of the adverse claim. Mitchell v. Titus, 33 Colo. 385, 80 P. 1042. Complaint held sufficient, though allegations concerning the invalidity of the defendant's title were eliminated. Mitchell v. Pearson [Colo.] 82 P. 446. Act March 2, 1870 (P. L. p. 20), authorizing suits to quiet title against one claiming an adverse interest, does not require that the bill set forth the character of the defendant's claim. Fittichauer v. Metropolitan Fireproofing Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 746. The complaint need not show the nature of the defendant's claim nor state what it is based on. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Beales [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 551. Complaint alleging "that the defendant's claim is without right and unfounded and is a cloud upon the plaintiff's rights" is good against demurrer. Ohio Oil Co. v. Detamore [Ind.] 73 N. E. 906.

7. Chaplin v. Leapley [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 546.

need not be alleged. The allegations must be definite[8] and not inconsistent.[9] Allegations which tend to state the case more fully and plainly, though not strictly necessary, are proper.[10] A complaint does not show any cause of action against parties joined but not named or referred to therein.[11] The action cannot be maintained by the owner of an equitable estate against the owner of the legal title, under a complaint containing only the usual averments.[12] If the original bill fails to show ground for relief, plaintiff may not by supplemental bill set up matters arising after it was filed.[13]

An answer[14] denying plaintiff's title and alleging affirmative matter showing title in defendant merely raises the issue of title.[15] Repetition of defenses should be avoided.[16] Terms used will be construed as intended by the pleader.[17]

Evidence.[18]—A party suing to quiet title has the burden of the issue throughout the cause.[19] He must prove the title he asserts[20] and show that defendant claims the land;[21] but a defendant who asserts a contract to purchase the land, title to which is sought to be quieted, has the burden to establish such contract.[22] One alleging a regular chain of title from the sovereignty, and also title under several statutes of limitation, may prove either or both.[23] Where both parties claim from a common source, title need not be traced further than to such source.[24]

8. Complaint held demurrable because allegations were not sufficiently definite to enable the defendant to determine whether to admit or deny. Long v. Mechem [Ala.] 38 So. 262.

9. A bill alleging title in plaintiff and that defendant wrongfully asserted some claim, and praying that he be required to show what claim he had, and an amendment alleging that legal title was in defendant, but that he held it in trust, but containing no prayer for the enforcement of the trust, is inconsistent with itself. Long v. Mechem [Ala.] 38 So. 262.

10. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

11. Corbin Oil Co. v. Searles [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 293.

12. DeLeonis v. Hammel [Cal. App.] 82 P. 349.

13. Brownback v. Keister [Ill.] 77 N. E. 75.

14. See 4 C. L. 1173.

15. Where plaintiff alleges title which defendant denies and sets up title in himself, the affirmative matter merely raises an issue as to title and no reply is necessary. Irvine v. Irvine [Ky.] 89 S. W. 193.

16. Where defenses, repeated in the separate denials of the answer, were in substance specifications of sources of title, the court might have ordered them consolidated, but it was not error to strike out the repetition. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

17. That a pleader uses the term "reservation" in defining a right asserted will not defeat his claim when it is apparent that an "exception" is meant. Elsea v. Adkins, 164 Ind. 580, 74 N. E. 242.

18. See 4 C. L. 1174.

19. State Board of Education v. Makely, 139 N. C. 31, 51 S. E. 784. One who sues to remove a grant from the state as a cloud on the ground that the land was swamp land and not subject to grant, but belonged to the board of education, has the burden of proving that the land is swamp land. Id. Where a deed includes within the bounds of the land conveyed lands which are excepted, the grantee suing to quiet title has the burden to show that land he claims is not the land so excepted. Logan's Heirs v. Ward [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 398.

20. In an action under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1638-1650, to determine adverse claims, the plaintiff has the burden of showing that the defendant's claim is unjust. Brown v. Brown, 96 N. Y. S. 1002.

Evidence sufficient to show that testator intentionally omitted to mention certain of his children in his will, that they had no title to his property but that the sole devisee had title. Greene v. Greene [R. I.] 60 A. 675. Evidence held to show title of mining claims in the complainant. Reiner v. Schroeder, 146 Cal. 411, 80 P. 517. Where plaintiff claimed as heir of her deceased husband, evidence held sufficient to show that her husband was the grantee in a deed running from the record owner to a person of that name. Gage v. Cantwell [Mo.] 91 S. W. 119.

Evidence insufficient to warrant the relief demanded by the complainant. Coppom v. Forman [Neb.] 104 N. W. 167. In an action to quiet title against attachment proceedings, evidence held to justify a decree awarding defendant a lien to the amount of his judgment. Kurtz v. Gartner [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 439, 104 N. W. 596. Evidence held to warrant a judgment for defendant. Webber v. Ingersoll [Neb.] 104 N. W. 600. Evidence held to show that plaintiff had no title. Rausch v. Michel [Mo.] 91 S. W. 99. A warranty deed running to plaintiff executed by one in possession as owner, prior to the tax deed under which the defendant claimed, is prima facie evidence of title. Mitchell v. Titus, 33 Colo. 385, 80 P. 1042.

21. Where plaintiff claims through deeds containing exceptions, he must show that land claimed by defendant is not within the exceptions, Davis v. Commonwealth Land & Lumber Co., 141 F. 711.

22. Stamey v. Barkley, 211 Pa. 313, 60 A. 991.

Joinder of causes.—One suing to recover the value of timber taken from land may join a cause to quiet title to a portion of such land.[25]

Trial.—Under the New Jersey statute, jurisdictional questions are first tried.[26]

Jury trial.[27]—A statute authorizing a trial by jury of issues arising on legal, as distinguished from equitable, claims, is valid.[28]

Findings, decree, or judgment.[29]—The decree must conform to the issues raised and the relief prayed for.[30] It should dispose of the conflicting claim arising under the pleadings as of the date of the judgment,[31] and should protect the interests of third persons.[32] By statute in some states, where the facts upon which plaintiff's claim is based are alleged, any proper relief may be granted.[33] The object of the action is to finally determine as between the parties all conflicting claims to the property in controversy,[34] hence, a judgment of nonsuit is improper if the plaintiff establishes any legal interest, though he fails to establish that the property is free from the claim asserted by the defendant.[35] A denial of the plaintiff's title precludes an entry of judgment on the pleadings, though the answer does not set forth a valid adverse interest.[36] A decree brings to the successful party no new and independent right which he may assert against a stranger to the suit,[37] nor can the unsuccessful party be required to quitclaim to him.[38] The amount of relief to which a defendant, who files a cross petition against a co-defendant, is entitled should not be left to the commissioner.[39] A jury finding,[40] or finding at law on the question of title,[41] is binding on the court.

23. Alford Bros. v. Williams [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 636.

24. Where both parties claim from the same source, it is not necessary to trace the title further than to such source. Kendrick v. Burchett [Ky.] 89 S. W. 239. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 650, where plaintiff claimed as heir of her deceased husband and defendant under a tax deed against him, it was only necessary to prove title to the common source. Gage v. Cantwell [Mo.] 91 S. W. 119.

25. Alford Bros. v. Williams [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 636.

26. Where, in an action under Act March 2, 1870 (P. L. p. 20), the defendant denies the jurisdictional facts of peaceable possession, nonpendency of any test suit and incapacity of plaintiff to bring any test suit, the jurisdictional issues will be first tried, before the question of title is inquired into. Fitti-chauer v. Metropolitan Fireproofing Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 746. Under P. L. 1901, pp. 57, 58, providing that one claiming title in fee to wild land, who has paid taxes for five successive years, is presumed to be in possession and may sue to settle title where the existence of the statutory conditions are denied, the issues will be tried by chancery before sending the question of title to be tried at law. McGrath v. Norcross [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 727.

27. See 4 C. L. 1174.

28. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

29. See 4 C. L. 1175.

30. In a suit by the grantees of land against the grantees of timber standing thereon, decree ordering a sale of the land and division of the proceeds held not authorized under a prayer for general relief. Liston v. Chapman & Dewey Lumber Co. [Ark.] 91 S. W. 27.

31. Brown v. Hodgson [N. D.] 105 N. W. 941.

32. Under Civ. Code §§ 658, 660, a decree quieting title to land, where the ownership of timber standing thereon is in another, should protect the rights of the owner of the timber. Peterson v. Gibbs, 147 Cal. 1, 81 P. 121.

33. Code Civ. Proc. § 580, authorizing the award of any relief consistent with the case made. DeLeonis v. Hammel [Cal. App.] 82 P. 349.

34. Action under Code Civ. Proc. § 738 to determine adverse claims. Peterson v. Gibbs, 147 Cal. 1, 81 P. 121. Where it was sought to quiet title against a deed, plaintiff was held entitled to have her rights determined, whether the deed was procured by fraud or was intended as a mortgage. DeLeonis v. Hammel [Cal. App.] 82 P. 349. Under the rule that a defendant, who by his answer claims relief for a cause growing out of or connected with the bill, may have it, where a purchaser at foreclosure sale sues to quiet his title, he may be held liable for conversion of machinery on the premises which did not constitute a fixture. Humes v. Higman [Ala.] 40 So. 128.

35. Peterson v. Gibbs, 147 Cal. 1, 81 P. 121.

36. Under Laws 1901, c. 5, p. 9. Larson v. Christiansen [N. D.] 106 N. W. 51.

37. Does not transfer to the successful party the title held by the unsuccessful one. Lockwood v. Meade Land & Cattle Co. [Kan.] 81 P. 496.

38. A decree setting aside a tax deed is erroneous in requiring the defendant to quitclaim his title. Woodard v. Glos, 113 Ill. App. 353.

39. Where one defendant filed a cross petition against his co-defendant for the value

Costs.[42]—A defendant who disclaims is not liable for costs[43] if the disclaimer be absolute and unqualified.[44]

QUO WARRANTO.

§ 1. Nature, function, and occasion of the remedy.[45]—Quo warranto is an extraordinary remedy,[46] and is available only where the public, in theory at least, have some interest.[47] It is the appropriate remedy to try title to public office,[48] but cannot be used to take the place of mandamus.[49] Quo warranto will lie against a municipal corporation where it usurps the exercise of a franchise not granted by its charter or by law,[50] and within the meaning of quo warranto statutes, a municipal corporation is a "person."[51] Quo warranto is the proper remedy to test the validity of the proceedings incorporating a local governmental body[52] or a private corporation,[53] or to try title to office in a private corporation.[54] It is a proper remedy to

of certain trees. Amburgy v. Burt & B. Lumber Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 680

40. Where plaintiff claimed title and right of possession, and defendant denied such title, the issue of ownership was presented, and under Code Civ. Proc. § 580, providing that any relief consistent with the case made may be granted, the jury having found for plaintiff, the court properly rendered judgment accordingly. Reiner v. Schroeder, 146 Cal. 411, 80 P 517.

41. In a suit under Act March 2, 1870 (P. L. p. 20), if the defendant affirmatively pleads legal title either party has a right to have an issue at law for the settlement of the legal controversy, and subject to the power to order a new trial chancery is bound by the result of such issue. Fittichauer v. Metropolitan Fireproofing Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 746.

42. See 4 C. L. 1176.

43. Gen. St. 1902, § 4053, authorizing suits to quiet title under certain circumstances, expressly provides that costs cannot be adjudged against a defendant who disclaims all interest in or incumbrance on the property. Foote v. Brown [Conn.] 62 A. 667.

44. Moore v. Wallace [Okl.] 82 P. 825.

45. See 4 C. L. 1177.

Note: The historical phase of this subject is extensively presented in State v. Kent [Minn.] 104 N. W. 948.

46. A city having authority to pass an ordinance granting a telephone company the right to use the city's streets, the ordinance will not be declared void in quo warranto. State v. Nebraska Telephone Co., 127 Iowa, 194, 103 N. W. 120. Under Code 1896, § 3420 (1), quo warranto does not lie against officers of a city for a mere threatened abuse of their powers, under its charter to exact license taxes on the ground that the act extending the corporate limits to include the territory within which relators live is unconstitutional. State v. City of Ensley [Ala.] 38 So. 802. Voidable action of a board of county commissioners will not be reviewed on a proceeding in the nature of quo warranto. Review must be had by appeal. Johnston v. Savidge [Idaho] 81 P. 616.

47. Does not lie to enforce the performance of private contracts. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. Quo warranto does not lie to prevent a corporation legally organized from acting as trustee of an express trust. State v. Higby Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 382.

48. So held where a public officer sought to determine his title to an office to which he had been wrongfully promoted. People v. McAdoo, 96 N. Y. S. 362. Quo warranto is the proper remedy to try title to office. A court of chancery has no jurisdiction of a bill filed purely for that purpose. Blinn v. Riggs, 110 Ill. App. 37.

NOTE: Removal of officers by quo warranto see Officers and Public Employes, 6 C. L. 856.

49. In a proceeding in the nature of quo warranto, brought by the state to oust a foreign corporation from the exercise of corporate franchises within the state, the court will not review the action of the charter board in refusing an application made to it by respondent for permission to transact business within the state. State v. Kansas Natural Gas Co. [Kan.] 81 P. 506.

50. Code 1896, § 3420, construed. City of Uniontown v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 814.

51. Code 1896, § 3420, construed. City of Uniontown v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 814.

52. Independent school district. State v. Alexander [Iowa] 105 N. W. 1021. Information in the nature of quo warranto is the appropriate remedy to test the legality of the formation of a new school district. School Dist. No. 2, Tp. 24, R. 6 E., Butler County v. Pace, 113 Mo. App. 134, 87 S. W. 580.

53. The legality of organization of a corporation can only be attacked and judicially examined in a direct proceeding by quo warranto. Cannot be attacked in condemnation proceedings instituted by it. Eddleman v. Union County Traction & Power Co., 217 Ill. 409, 75 N. E. 510.

declare a forfeiture of the franchise of a corporation,[55] and to question the right to exercise licenses and privileges involving matters of public right on the ground that they have been granted improperly or without warrant of law, or are so held or exercised.[56] The occasion for declaring such forfeiture is treated in other topics.[57] In the absence of statutory provisions to the contrary, quo warranto lies to oust and exclude a foreign corporation doing business in a state in violation of statutory prohibition or without complying with statutory conditions precedent.[58]

An act giving a private citizen the power to redress a wrong done him by a corporation does not by implication deprive the public of the right to quo warranto for the correction of public injuries.[59]

In some states, in lieu of the ancient writ of quo warranto, there is provided a common-law action to prevent the usurpation of an office.[60]

§ 2. Parties and right to prosecute.[61]—Relator's hands must be clean,[62] and he must be free from laches.[63] The ancient writ of quo warranto, and the information in the nature of quo warranto at common law, is and always was a writ of right at the instance of the attorney general ex officio, as the representative of the crown, commonwealth or state,[64] and upon the return it is the duty of the court to try the issues of law and fact presented thereby, and to determine the same upon the merits according to the rules of law applicable thereto;[65] but trial courts generally have a judicial discretionary power to grant or refuse leave to file informations in the nature of quo warranto when applied for by individuals.[66] The court exhausts its discretion when it exercises it upon the preliminary application for leave to file the information.

54. Hayes v. Burns, 25 App. D. C. 242.

55. People v. Chicago Tel. Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 245.

56. Right to exercise telephone franchise in the streets of a city, under authority of a city ordinance. People v. Chicago Tel. Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 245.

57. See Corporations, 5 C. L. 764; Franchises, 5 C. L. 1518; Municipal Corporations, 6 C. L. 714; Waters and Water Supply, 4 C. L. 1834, etc.

58. 3 Clark & Marshall on Private Corporations, p. 2727, § 848. Kirby's Dig., § 6749, held applicable to a foreign railroad corporation operating in the state under a lease, and hence a suit can be maintained against such corporation, under § 6750, providing for the enforcement of § 6749 by information in the nature of quo warranto or other proper suit. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co. v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 559.

59. Act June 14, 1836 (P. L. 621), in regard to water companies, is not repealed or modified by Act April 29, 1874, § 34 (P. L. 93). Commonwealth v. Potter County Water Co., 212 Pa. 463, 61 A. 1099.

60. Under Civ. Code Prac. §§ 480, 483-485, a citizen and taxpayer of a city who claims no title to any of the offices cannot maintain a suit to oust members of the city council on the ground that they have failed to take the required oaths. King v. Kahne, 27 Ky. L. R. 1080, 87 S. W. 807.

61. See 4 C. L. 1178.

62. Where, on petition by a private prosecutor for quo warranto to try title to a public office, it appeared that at the connivance and in the interest of petitioner intoxicating liquor was, with some system and to a considerable extent, furnished voters while the polls were open, held writ would be denied. Pomeroy v. Kelton [Vt.] 62 A. 56.

Note: The court states that if the complaint had been preferred and prosecuted by the state's attorney other principles would be applicable and the court's duty might be different, citing State v. Harris, 52 Vt. 216. Pomeroy v. Kelton [Vt.] 62 A. 56.

63. Where an independent school district, formerly included in another district, was organized and nothing was done between the two districts except to adjust their finances and to collect taxes, held 14 months' delay did not bar quo warranto to test validity of incorporation of independent school district. State v. Alexander [Iowa] 105 N. W. 1021.

64. State v. Kent [Minn.] 104 N. W. 948; State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. The term "quo warranto" as used in the Minnesota statutes refers to an information in the nature of quo warranto as it existed at the common law. State v. Kent [Minn.] 104 N. W. 948.

Note: In the principal case (State v. Kent [Minn.] 104 N. W. 948) the history of the writ is learnedly discussed, and the Minnesota statutes and cases collected, distinguished, and discussed.

65. State v. Kent [Minn.] 104 N. W. 948.

66. District court has such power. State v. Kent [Minn.] 104 N. W. 948. Proceedings in nature of a quo warranto, as distinguished from a quo warranto ex officio, may be entertained by the court, or not, in the exercise of its judicial discretion. State v. McClain, 187 Mo. 409, 86 S. W. 135. A complaint for a quo warranto is addressed to the sound discretion of the court. Pomeroy v. Kelton [Vt.] 62 A. 56.

This presumes, however, that the court actually exercises its discretion and does not deprive it of the right to dismiss the proceedings if it subsequently appears that it acted improvidently or through inadvertence and under a misapprehension of facts.[67] Under a statute requiring a prosecuting attorney to institute quo warranto proceedings when requested by an interested citizen, a proceeding thus instituted is one in the nature of a quo warranto and not quo warranto ex officio.[68] Either quo warranto or information in the nature of quo warranto must be prosecuted by the state or some public officer representing sovereignty,[69] and proceedings will not be instituted on the relation of a private prosecutor in the absence of special injury.[70] The attorney general is the proper officer to file an information in the nature of a quo warranto to inquire into the title to public office,[71] and the responsibility for filing the same rests on him,[72] and this authority and responsibility cannot be delegated by him to any person or persons or even cast upon the court.[73] An order granting a person leave to bring quo warranto is not subject to collateral attack.[74] In Minnesota the jurisdiction of the supreme court being to a certain extent voluntary, it may decline to order the writ to issue in a case which comes within the conditions prescribed by such court, even though the district court under the same circumstances would have no right to refuse it.[75] In Arkansas, while the supreme court has jurisdiction to issue, hear, and determine the writ of quo warranto in aid of its appellate jurisdiction, the writ and information as an original proceeding are abolished.[76]

Joinder of parties.[77]—In proceedings to oust a public or municipal corporation the better opinion seems to be that where the proceedings are based upon an original lack of authority they should be against the persons who unlawfully assume to act as the corporation.[78]

67. State v. Kent [Minn.] 104 N. W. 948. NOTE. When is court's discretion exhausted? In People v. Regents, 24 Colo. 175, 49 P. 286, Mr. Justice Campbell said: "The authorities seem to be unanimous that, when once the discretion of the court in which the proceeding is brought has been exercised and the permission given to relator to file an information, such discretion is exhausted, and may not be recalled; but, on the contrary, the court must then proceed to determine the controversy the same as any other upon the law and facts." In 2 Spelling, Extr. Rem. § 1777, it is said: "Where, however, the court has in the exercise of its discretion permitted the information to be filed, its discretionary power is thereby exhausted, and the issues of fact and law as presented must at the trial be determined according to the strict rules of law as in ordinary cases." In State v. Brown, 5 R. I. 1, the court said: "The discretion to allow in such a case the filing of an information of this character is, as we apprehend, all the discretion which courts of authority justify. When the information is filed, all the discretionary power of the courts is expended." To the same effect are High, Extr. Rem. § 606; People v. Golden Rule, 114 Ill. 34, 28 N. E. 383; People v. Paisley, 81 Ill. App. 52; Place v. People, 83 Ill. App. 84; State v. Elliott, 13 Utah, 200, 44 Pac. 248; State v. Shank, 36 W. Va. 230, 14 S. E. 1001. And see Rex v. Brown, 4 Term R. 276. Mr. Justice Campbell's statement that the authorities seem to be unanimous is hardly correct, as there are cases which hold that this discretionary control remains with the court until the case is finally determined, and that where leave is improvidently given the court may, upon the hearing, refuse relief upon the same grounds upon which it might originally have refused leave to file the information. People v. Wild Cat Special Drainage Dist., 31 Ill. App. 223; People v. Hamilton, 24 Ill. App. 609; State v. Hoff, 88 Tex. 297, 31 S. W. 290; State v. Claggett, 73 Mo. 388. In support of the rule stated in the text the court cites Gilroy v. Com., 105 Pa. 484; Commonwealth v. Kistler, 149 Pa. 345, 24 A. 216.—From State v. Kent [Minn.] 104 N. W. 948.

68. State v. McClain, 187 Mo. 409, 86 S. W. 135.

69. Suit by town marshal to compel payment to himself of sums due on liquor licenses held not quo warranto, or information in the nature of it. Moody v. Lowrimore [Ark.] 86 S. W. 400.

70. Under Va. Code 1894, §§ 3022-3024, 1105e, cl. 30 and 1313a, cl. 58, a writ of quo warranto on the relation of a private prosecutor will not lie to terminate the franchises of a railroad company for failing to construct its road in the time allowed. South & W. R. Co. v. Com. [Va.] 51 S. E. 824.

71. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. It is a power incident to the office. Id.

72, 73. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

74. Quo warranto to test the legality of the incorporation of a school district. State v. Alexander [Iowa] 105 N. W. 1021.

75. State v. Kent [Minn.] 104 N. W. 948.

76. Kirby's Dig. §§ 7981, 7982, construed. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co. v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 559.

77. See 4 C. L. 1179.

§ 3. The information or complaint.[79]—In a proceeding on information in the nature of quo warranto, it is not necessary to obtain a fiat for the issuance of an alternative writ before filing the petition on information.[80] The proper practice in a proceeding in the nature of a quo warranto to inquire into the title of one to a public office is to institute the proceeding in the name of the state upon the relation of the attorney general, and the mention of relators in the information other than the attorney general, where the proceeding is instituted by the latter, is mere surplusage.[81] In a proceeding on information in the nature of a quo warranto, the filing of the petition on information is the commencement of the suit.[82]

§ 4. Answers and other pleadings, and motions to quash or dismiss.[83]—Where one is called upon to show warrant or authority for the exercise of an office, he must plead directly and positively all facts necessary to establish title to the office.[84]

§ 5. Trial and judgment.[85]—Under a statute providing that a court shall be open at all times for the trial of a proceeding on information in the nature of quo warranto, such a trial, whether held in vacation or in term time, is by the court and not by the judge.[86] In quo warranto proceedings in courts of original jurisdiction to annul, vacate, and cancel a charter or franchise, or any other property right, the right of trial by jury of issues of fact is a common-law right.[87] The burden is upon one called upon to show warrant or authority for the exercise of an office to prove his title thereto.[88] Only matters in issue will be determined.[89]

Costs.[90]

§ 6. New trial and review.[91]

RACING.[92]

The public may, on any ground of police power, regulate race tracks,[93] and may therefore declare it unlawful to deny admission to any lawful ticket holder.[94] To charge liability for an ejection it must, however, appear that the persons who did it were defendants' servants.[95]

"Riding" and "suffering" to be ridden a horse in a race on a public highway are distinct offenses in Indiana.[96] These offenses may be averred in the language

78. 23 Am. & Eng. Enc. of Law [2d Ed.], p. 622. Quo warranto attacking the legality of the organization of a school district held properly brought against the school directors as individuals. State v. McClain, 187 Mo. 409, 86 S. W. 135. Quo warranto against persons claiming to be officers of a town is the proper proceeding to test the validity of the incorporation of the town, and the town is not a necessary party. People v. Stratton, 33 Colo. 464, 81 P. 245.

79. See 4 C. L. 1179.

80. Newman v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 648.

81. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

82. Newman v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 648.

83. See 4 C. L. 1179.

84. 17 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 469. Pleas denying each and every allegation in the information, and alleging that the doing of the acts complained of was by virtue of the authority contained in a certain answer, held demurrable. Newman v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 648.

85. See 4 C. L. 1180.

86. Newman v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 648.

87. Consequently, is a constitutional right in Arkansas. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co. v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 559.

88. People v. Stratton, 33 Colo. 464, 81 P. 245.

89. In quo warranto to determine title to an office, held not necessary to consider the power of the defendant to appoint a deputy in the absence of any showing that he had attempted to exercise such power. State v. Tunstall [Ala.] 40 So. 135. Where, on petition in the nature of quo warranto to oust respondents from the position of school directors, it appeared from the petition, return, and agreed statement of facts that respondents were legally elected and that relator had voted for them, and induced one of them to become a candidate for the office, held there was no question as to respondent's right to hold the office if it existed. State v. McClain, 187 Mo. 409, 86 S. W. 135.

90, 91. See 4 C. L. 1180.

92. See, also, Betting and Gaming, 5 C. L. 417.

93. Not restricted to forbidding racial discrimination. Greenberg v. Western Turf Ass'n [Cal.] 82 P. 684.

94, 95. Greenberg v. Western Turf Ass'n [Cal.] 82 P. 684.

96. Burns' Ann St. 1901, § 2280. State v. New [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 181.

of the statute,[97] and the highway may be described by simply stating that it is in a certain county.[98]

RAILROADS.

The duties and liabilities of railroad companies as common carriers,[1] their liabilities to employes,[2] interurban electric lines,[3] and matters common to all corporations,[4] are elsewhere treated.

§ 1. Definition and general nature of railroads.—When the term railroad is used in statutes, steam railroad is meant, unless it clearly appears that some other meaning is intended.[5]

§ 2. Franchises, licenses, permits, and the like.[6]

§ 3. Route, location, termini and stations. Filing, location, profile, etc.[7]—Location of a railroad is a proceeding in the exercise of the power of eminent domain, amounting to an appropriation of the property as against all except the owner and any who have perfected a prior location thereon.[8] A location can be made only by the act of the corporation through its board of directors.[9] The mere filing of a location involves no action, municipal or otherwise, that can be reached by certiorari.[10] A survey staked out on the ground or an actual location, whether delineated on paper or not, may be a sufficient location.[11] In West Virginia a location may be perfected before the filing of a map and profile, or the commencement of condemnation proceedings.[12] As between rival railroad companies claiming the same location, priority of location in point of time gives superiority of right,[13] but a priority of location may be lost by laches.[14] If diligent and acting in good faith a railroad company may seize and hold as against another company, by location thereon, land on any part of its proposed route without having made a survey of its entire road.[15] A railway may be extended through townships not named in its articles of incorporation where such townships are located in counties which are named.[16] Railroads passing near a county seat may be required to locate its line through that municipality.[17] The incorporation of a railroad to run from one place "to" another does not require it to stop at the corporate limits of the latter place;[18] and the fact that the company built and used a depot at a certain point in its terminal city does not preclude it from extending its line to another point in such city.[19]

Alteration and changes.[20]—The statutes of some states provide that no railroad shall change its route or depot grounds after they have been designated.[21]

Compulsory maintenance of stations, sidings, etc.[22]—A railroad company is a

---

97, 98. State v. New [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 181.

1. See Carriers, 5 C. L. 507.

2. See Master and Servant, 6 C. L. 521.

3. See Street Railways, 4 C. L. 1556.

4. See Corporations, 5 C. L. 764.

5. In re Avon Beach & S. R. Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 561. Whether or not a railroad is a steam railroad, within the meaning of the statutes of Ohio, may be determined, not only by the provisions of its charter, but evidence is admissible to show how it is constructed and operated and the character of the business it is engaged in, and the mode and manner of conducting such business. And if the road is not completed and in operation, evidence is admissible to show how it is to be constructed and operated and the character of the business it is to engage in, and the contemplated mode and manner of conducting such business. Id.

6. See 4 C. L. 1184. See, also, Franchises, 5 C. L. 1518.

7. See 4 C. L. 1188.

8. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Deepwater R. Co., 57 W. Va. 641, 50 S. E. 890.

9. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Deepwater R. Co., 57 W. Va. 641, 50 S. E. 890. Evidence examined and held to show that a specified location of a railroad was a new location not adopted by corporate action. West Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. Belington & N. R. Co., 56 W. Va. 360, 49 S. E. 460.

10. P. L. 1903, p. 650, § 8. Essen v. Dickinson [N J. Law] 60 A. 1102.

11. But survey not adopted by corporation not sufficient. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Deepwater R. Co., 57 W. Va. 641, 50 S. E. 890.

12, 13. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Deepwater R. Co., 57 W. Va. 641, 50 S. E. 890.

14. West Virginia Short Line R. Co. v. Belington & N. R. Co., 56 W. Va. 360, 49 S. E. 460.

15. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Deepwater R. Co., 57 W. Va. 641, 50 S. E. 890.

16. Hayes v. Toledo R. & T. Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 281.

17. Const. § 187. State v. Mobile, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 732.

18, 19. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Union Springs & N. R. Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 473.

20. See 4 C. L. 1189.

21. Rev. St. 1895, arts. 4492, 4493. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Martin [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 25.

quasi public corporation,[23] and the public has an interest in the location of depots, and the time and place at which trains must stop for freight and passengers,[24] so that a contract whereby a railroad company is obligated to place its station or depot at a designated point, regardless of public necessity or convenience, is void as against public policy.[25] Mandamus, not injunction, is the proper remedy,[26] and private citizens will in general be left to their suits for damages.[27] Where property rights have become fixed with reference to an established railroad, only imperious necessity or consent of the railroad commission will warrant the abandonment of the line or stations.[28] In the absence of a showing that a proposed freight depot is not necessary, or could be as conveniently built elsewhere, its construction will not be enjoined for the reason that it is in a residence neighborhood,[29] but a company cannot act arbitrarily in the location of its repair and machine shops.[30] The taking up and removal of a parallel track is a public good to the extent that the burden upon the public domain is thereby relieved, and the danger at crossings reduced, and the convenience of the carrier promoted.[31] The Alabama Act of Feb. 28, 1903, does not give the railroad commission power to require a change in the location of a station.[32]

22. See 4 C. L. 1189.

23. Enid Right of Way & Townsite Co. v. Lile [Okl.] 82 P. 810.

24. State v. Mobile, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 732; Commonwealth v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 763, 86 S. W. 542. The construction of a station for passengers only is not a compliance with Kirby's Dig. § 6709. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Crandall [Ark.] 86 S. W. 855.

25. Enid Right of Way & Townsite Co. v. Lile [Okl.] 82 P. 810.

26. Jacquelin v. Erie R. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 18. State is a proper party. State v. Mobile, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 732.

27. Jacquelin v. Erie R. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 18. Measure of damages for breach of contract to maintain a given station. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Whipps, 27 Ky. L. R. 977, 87 S. W. 298.

Contra: Deed held to constitute a contract to maintain a depot at a given place. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Crandall [Ark.] 86 S. W. 855; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Martin [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 25; City of Tyler v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 173, 87 S. W. 238.

Note: In Jacquelin v. Erie R. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 18, the complainants contended: (1) That each person who uses the road for the purpose of transportation has an equitable right to compel the railroad company to maintain the station; basing this claim upon the theory that by establishing the station and thereby inducing people to settle near, the company impliedly contracted to continue it. There seems to be little foundation for such a claim inasmuch as the courts have frequently refused to enforce positive contracts with individuals to continue the maintenance of stations on the ground that it was against public policy to permit railroad companies to thus limit their power of subserving public necessity and convenience. Florida, etc., R. Co. v. State, 31 Fla. 482, 34 Am. St. Rep. 30, 20 L. R. A. 419; Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Marshall, 136 U. S. 393, 34 Law. Ed. 385. The remedy at law in an action for damages is adequate, and the court here properly refused to act. (2) The complainants further contend that the public have a legal right to the maintenance of the station, which the court of equity should protect. No rule of equity is better settled than that complainants are not in a position to ask for an injunction, when the right on which they found their claim is, as a matter of law, unsettled. Citizens Coach Co. v. Camden H. R. Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 299; Morris & Essex R. Co. v. Attorney General, 20 N. J. Eq. 530. That the courts of law, when there is no legislation on the subject, will hold it to be the duty of common carriers to maintain stations at such points as the court shall determine is by no means clear. State v. Republican Val. R. Co., 17 Neb. 647, 24 N. W. 329, 52 Am. Rep. 424; State v. Spokane St. R. Co., 19 Wash. 518, 53 P. 719, 41 L. R. A. 515, 67 Am. St. Rep. 739; Texas & Pac. R. Co. v. Marshall, 136 U. S. 393, 34 Law. Ed. 385; People v. N. Y., L. E. & W. R. Co., 104 N. Y. 58, 9 N. E. 856, 58 Am. Rep. 484. Therefore, if the legal right exists it must be enforced at law by mandamus. Nor has the court of equity power to keep the matter in statu quo pending the settlement of the legal principle, even though irreparable injury will result to the complainants ad interim. Barber v. W. J. Title & Guar. Co., 53 N. J. Eq. 158, 32 A. 222; People v. A. & V. R. R. Co., 24 N. Y. 261, 82 Am. Dec. 295. As pointed out in the present case, while the remedy at law hardly seems "adequate," if, at the time it is applied, the rights of the complainant have so suffered that there may be nothing of value left to him in the remedy, "there is, in the existing state of the law, no provision for such a situation."—4 Mich. L. R. 81.

28. State v. Mobile, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 732.

29. Walther v. Chicago & W. I. R. Co., 215 Ill. 456, 74 N. E. 461.

30. Rainey v. Red River, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 993, 89 S. W. 768.

31. Dayton & Union R. Co. v. P., C., C. & St. L. R. Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 537.

The power of the railroad commissioners to require the erection and convenient location of depots does not extend to a requirement that two separate depots be maintained in one town.[33] Statutes may require railroad companies to keep their passenger stations open, lighted, and warmed,[34] but the statutes of Kentucky do not require the keeping open and maintenance of depots at flag stations during the nighttime.[35]

§ 4. Rights of way and other lands, and acquirement thereof. Certificate of public convenience.[36]—On an application for a certificate of necessity and convenience it is the duty of the railroad commissioners to inquire into the proceedings of the alleged company to ascertain whether such company is of a legal character and entitled to receive any certificate.[37] The action of a board of railroad commissioners in granting a certificate of public convenience and necessity is subject to judicial review in New York.[38] The necessity for a lateral railroad on the route selected by petitioners is a question for the jury under proper instructions by the court.[39]

A charter authority to acquire land.[40]

Grants in highways and streets.[41]—Municipalities may grant to railroad companies a reasonable use of the streets for the construction and operation of roads for public transportation,[42] but such grants are subject to the prior easement of the public[43] and will not be permitted to injure or destroy the rights of abutters without compensation.[44] An ordinance permitting a railroad to occupy a street with its tracks is not, however, a vacation of the street so as to make it revert to the abutters.[45] A conditional grant of a right of way may be given.[46] The right to construct tracks across a city street can only be acquired by exact compliance with the authorizing ordinance.[47] Laches and implied acquiescence may estop a city from claiming a railroad company's alleged forfeiture of its rights in vacated streets,[48] or from asserting a right to the unobstructed use of a street.[49]

Consent of abutting owners.[50]—An abutter, who for a consideration has granted

32. State v. Nashville, etc., R. Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 984.

33. State v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 263.

34. Rev. St. 1895, art. 4521. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Martin [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 25.

35. Ky. St. 1903, § 784. Sandifer's Adm'r v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 528.

36. See 4 C. L. 1184.

37. People v. Board of Railroad Com'rs, 105 App. Div. 273, 93 N. Y. S. 584.

38. Projected freight switch road held not to be a public convenience or necessity. People v. State Board of Railroad Com'rs, 103 App. Div. 123, 93 N. Y. S. 58.

39. Pennsylvania Mining Co. v. Naomi Coal Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 39. That petitioners for a lateral railroad constructed a temporary road by a roundabout route does not estop them to assert the necessity of a route by the desired route. Id.

40, 41. See 4 C. L. 1184.

42. Grant to railroad company irrespective of charter powers. Bonner v. Milledgeville R. Co., 123 Ga. 115, 50 S. E. 973. The Nebraska statute declaring that all streets or parts thereof in the town of Columbus previously taken by the U. P. R. for turnouts, etc., should be vacated so long as so used, and that a perfect title should be vested in the company by that statute, to terminate on the termination of the use, has been sustained. Act Jan. 25, 1866. City of Columbus v. Union Pac. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 869.

43. People v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 217 Ill. 594, 76 N. E. 573. The board of public service is not authorized by 75 V. 115, § 8324 (Smith & Benedict, § 5), to grant to the lessee of the Cincinnati Southern Ry. Co. the right to occupy the streets of the city of Cincinnati. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 109.

44. Maintaining an embankment in a street. Coats v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 640.

45. Tonkawa Milling Co. v. Tonkawa [Okl.] 83 P. 915.

46. City of Columbus, Neb., held authorized to vacate certain streets on specified condition. City of Columbus v. Union Pac. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 869.

47. After expiration of time limit fixed by ordinance, no further tracks can be built. Chicago Terminal Transfer Co. v. Chicago [Ill.] 77 N. E. 204.

48. City of Columbus v. Union Pac. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 869. A city acquiescing in the improvement of property by a railroad company under a title acquired from the city is estopped to dispute such title. Sioux City v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 183.

49. User for 50 years and expenditure of $400,000 thereon by railroad company. People v. Rock Island, 215 Ill. 488, 74 N. E. 437.

50. See 4 C. L. 1185.

to a railroad company the right to use the street for railroad purposes, cannot, in his individual capacity, successfully maintain mandamus proceedings to compel a removal of the railroad structures.[51]

Rights in public lands.[52]—The grant by congress of a right of way is in the nature of a conditional grant, and limited to use and occupation for railway purposes only.[53] Statutes authorizing a company to condemn private property for a right of way may impliedly authorize construction over the public domain.[54] Delegated authority of state asylum trustees to contract with a railroad for tracks across the asylum grounds is exhausted by its exercise and cannot be subsequently modified.[55]

Right of eminent domain.[56]—A de facto railroad corporation may maintain condemnation proceedings.[57] Proceedings for the taking of private property must be in strict compliance with the statute.[58] In Indiana a railroad company having made payment or tender of the award may enter into and continue in possession pending litigation.[59] Unless all parties interested are joined in a condemnation proceeding, the land is acquired subject to their rights.[60] A railroad company condemning land is not the agent of the state, and condemnation does not extinguish the lien of taxes unless the state be made a party.[61] A lien holder is an owner who must be paid or secured before property can be taken.[62] Cases relative to the elements of damage are cited in the notes.[63]

Private grants.[64]—Statutes may provide that in the absence of contract relating to land through which a railroad passes it shall be presumed that land has been granted by the owner, unless he shall within a specified time apply for an assessment of value after the road has been located.[65] A general release of damages as to land taken for a right of way will be construed to embrace every injury to the entire tract necessarily resulting from the construction of the railroad as originally located, and as extended for increased traffic,[66] but does not exempt the grantee from liability for 51. People v. Rock Island, 215 Ill. 488, 74 N. E. 437.

52. See 4 C. L. 1185. See as to land grants, Tiffany Real Prop. 834.

53. Oregon Short Line R. Co. v. Quigley, 10 Idaho, 770, 80 P. 401.

54. Ayres v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 159, 88 S. W. 436.

55. State v. Toledo & O. Cent. R. Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 234.

56. See 4 C. L. 1185.

57. Detroit, etc., R. Co. v. Campbell [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 202, 103 N. W. 856. Defects in a railroad company's certificate of incorporation cannot be urged to defeat eminent domain proceedings. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Union Springs & N. R. Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 473.

58. Notice to property owner (Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Abbott, 215 Ill. 416, 74 N. E. 412), and a failure therein, will make the taking a trespass (Adams v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 991).

59. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5160. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Hayes [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 531.

60. Lien of state for taxes. State v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Neb.] 105 N. W. 983.

61, 62. State v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Neb.] 105 N. W. 983.

63. Award not excessive. St. Louis & S. R. Co. v. Smith, 216 Ill. 339, 74 N. E. 1063. Damages for discomfort from blasting and other construction operations. Gossett v. Southern R. Co. [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 737.

64. See 4 C. L. 1186.

65. City of Hickory v. Southern R. Co., 137 N. C. 189, 49 S. E. 202.

66. Davis v. Wheeling, etc., R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 364. The mere imposition of more railway tracks or their use, beyond what may originally have been thought probable, does not constitute a nuisance. Oklahoma City, etc., R. Co. v. Dunham [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 644, 88 S. W. 849. A deed of right of way for the purpose of constructing, maintaining, and operating a single or double track railroad with all necessary appurtenances and for all uses and purposes connected with its construction, etc., conveys a perpetual right of way but not the fee. Laying of more than two tracks held not an additional servitude. Walker v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 215 Ill. 610, 74 N. E. 812. Deed held to convey such rights as would have been acquired by exercise of right of eminent domain. Harman v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 689. Deeds held to confer a right to use for railway purposes, its right of way in a street restricted only by the right of the public to the reasonable use of the avenue and the right not to have a nuisance imposed. Oklahoma City, etc., R. Co. v. Dunham [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 644, 88 S. W. 849.

damages resulting from negligence, either in construction, maintenance, or operation of the road.[67] The fee owner of land subject to a railroad right of way may use it for any purposes subject to the easement,[68] a deed to a right of way giving no greater rights than would be acquired by condemnation.[69] A verbal contract giving a railroad company a right to enter upon private property and remove sand cannot be revoked by the landowner giving notice to leave the premises.[70] A contract to convey a right of way is a contract relating to real estate within the recording laws.[71]

Conditions and reservations in private grants.[72]—A grant of right of way for a term of years with a proviso that the grantee may retain the way as long thereafter as he desires, on payment of a stipulated amount, confers a mere option.[73] An agreement in consideration of a grant of right of way to erect and maintain fences along the right of way is a covenant running with the land.[74] A deed of right of way in a street, but not permitting the unlawful operation of the railroad, does not authorize a filling in of the street above the established grade so as to interfere with the grantor's ingress and egress.[75]

Enforcement of conditions.[76]—The grantor is in most cases confined to an action for damages,[77] but specific performance of an agreement to maintain passageways, which has been recognized for many years, will be decreed against a purchaser of the railroad at foreclosure.[78] After a lapse of 30 years a grantor will be presumed to have received the benefit of a condition to change a watercourse.[79] That assurances made by a railroad company as to future conduct were not fulfilled is not ground for canceling a conveyance of right of way unless it appears that they were fraudulently made.[80] An agreement by a railroad company in consideration of a right of way to pay a certain sum, and make certain wagon roads over the tracks, is severable, and the company may thereafter condemn the wagon roads for the purpose of widening its roadway.[81]

Rights as against subsequent grantees.[82]—A grant of exclusive right of way may entitle the grantee to an injunction restraining a third party purchasing with notice, from locating a railroad across the grantee's right of way.[83] In ejectment, possession of a railway roadbed will be presumed to have followed the title until dispossession by defendant, where the tracks were on the land and plaintiff claimed under a series of deeds.[84]

67. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 110 Ill. App. 626. A charter requirement to construct and maintain bridges and passages over roads does not absolve a company from responding in damages for private rights invaded in the performance of the duty thus imposed. Deed of right of way held not to release damages. Perrine v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [N. J. Law] 61 A. 87.

68. Harman v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 689.

69. Shepard v. Suffolk & C. R. Co. [N. C.] 53 S. E. 137.

70. Cox v. St Louis, etc., R. Co., 111 Mo. App. 394, 85 S. W. 989.

71. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 30, § 28. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Brubaker, 217 Ill. 462, 75 N. E. 523.

72. See 4 C. L. 1187.

73. Alderman & Sons' Co. v. Wilson, 71 S. C. 64, 50 S. E. 643.

74. Scowden v. Erie R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 15. Deed construed to require the maintenance of a passenger station on the land granted. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Crandall [Ark.] 86 S. W. 855; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Martin [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 25. Railroad company held to have no reasonable ground to believe it was authorized to remove sand under a contract for the purchase of land upon condition that a depot be maintained. Cox v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 111 Mo. App. 394, 85 S. W. 989.

75. Conners v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 320.

76. See 4 C. L. 1187.

77. Alleged breach of condition to erect bridge. Bright v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1052, 87 S. W. 780.

78. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Brubaker, 217 Ill. 462, 75 N. E. 523.

79. Bright v. Loulsville & N. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1052, 87 S. W. 780.

80. Stannard v. Aurora, E. & C. R. Co. [Ill.] 77 N E. 254.

81. Lilley v. Pittsburg, V. & C. R. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 852.

82. See 4 C. L. 1187.

83. Alderman & Sons' Co. v. Wilson, 71 S. C. 64, 50 S. E. 643.

Disposal of or use of right of way by company.[85]

Abandonment of right of way.[86]—To constitute abandonment of a right of way, intent to abandon and actual nonuser must concur.[87] Lands deeded to a railroad company in fee simple do not revert to the grantor on abandonment of the location.[88]

Adverse possession by or against railroad.[89]—Use of land for the statutory period in a manner incompatible with its use for railroad purposes may confer title by adverse possession to a part of the right of way;[90] but adverse possession cannot ripen into a right which would divert the use and occupation of a right of way granted by congress for railway purposes exclusively.[91] The maintenance and operation of a railroad over certain land may be sufficient notice to the public of the company's claim, though the deed for right of way is not recorded.[92]

Appropriation of right of way for other public use.[93]—One railroad company cannot, for right of way purposes, condemn the terminal grounds of a projected road soon to be completed;[94] but the mere acquiring and appropriation by one railroad company of certain lands to its own use will not prevent another company from taking the same lands for crossing or intersection purposes, provided such taking will not render the former use ineffectual.[95] A city condemning a street crossing over a railroad acquires only a right of way,[96] and proceedings therefor may be commenced without first attempting to secure the right of way by agreement;[97] but land owned in fee by a railroad company cannot be taken by a municipality for a street crossing without compensation.[98] Under statutes requiring a special procedure where it is sought to lay out a highway over property used for station purposes, whether property is so used is to be determined from the existing conditions.[99]

§ 5. Aids and bonuses.[1]—Public land grants to railroads[2] and municipal aid bonds are treated elsewhere.[3]

Subscriptions.[4]—A condition in a bonus note requiring the maintenance of a depot is complied with by the keeping of a freight depot.[5] The payment of a city railroad aid subscription is not contrary to a constitutional provision forbidding the lending of a city's credit for such purposes.[6] Where a railroad aid act provided that after the money had been collected the railroad company should on completing the 84. Chesapeake Beach R. Co. v. Washington, etc., R. Co., 199 U. S. 247, 50 Law. Ed. —.

85, 86. See 4 C. L. 1187.

87. Stannard v. Aurora, E. & C. R. Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 254. A railroad company does not abandon river front land conveyed to it for depot purposes by permitting its occasional use as a boat landing. Sioux City v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 183.

88. Enfield Mfg. Co. v. Ward [Mass.] 76 N. E. 1053. Evidence held to show no abandonment of title. Id. And see Property, 6 C. L. 1106.

89. See 4 C. L. 1188.

90. Harman v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 689. A user for less than the statutory period is insufficient. Davis v. Wheeling, etc., R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 364.

91. Oregon Short Line R. Co. v. Quigley, 10 Idaho, 770, 80 P. 401.

92. Harman v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 689.

93. See 4 C. L. 1188.

94. State v. Superior Ct. of Spokane County [Wash.] 82 P. 417.

95. Jennings v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 103 App. Div. 164, 93 N. Y. S. 374. One railroad company will not be enjoined from condemning a right of way over the property of another company where it appears that full redress may be had at law. South & W. R. Co. v. Virginia & S. E. R. Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 843.

96. Possibility of railroad being required to maintain an overhead crossing is not an element of damages. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Fayetteville [Ark.] 87 S. W. 1174.

97. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Fayetteville [Ark.] 87 S. W. 1174.

98. Town of Poulan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 123 Ga. 605, 51 S. E. 657.

99. Rev. St. 1883, § 29, c. 18; Rev. St. 1903, § 31, c. 23. "Station purposes" discussed. In re Atlantic & St. L. R. Co. [Me.] 62 A. 141.

1. See 4 C. L. 1183.

2. See Public Lands, 6 C. L. 1126.

3. See Municipal Bonds, 6 C. L. 704.

4. See 4 C. L. 1183.

5. Fayetteville Wagon, Wood & Lumber Co. v. Kenefick Const. Co. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1031.

6. Red River Furnace Co. v. Tennessee Cent. R. Co., 113 Tenn. 697, 87 S. W. 1016.

road be entitled to demand it, the company is not on such completion entitled to compel by mandamus the levy of a tax to raise the amount donated.[7]

§ 6. Taxes, fees, and license charges.[8]—General taxes are levied according to the statutory modes of the several states.[9] For taxation purposes in Illinois a bridge approach, consisting of elevated tracks, embankment and viaduct, located on land purchased for right of way and used exclusively for railroad purposes, is a railroad track.[10] What is the "main stem" of a railroad for purposes of taxation is a question of fact depending on the use of the line at the time of assessment.[11]

§ 7. Public control and regulation.[12] Control by railroad commissions.[13]—Railroad commissions may inquire into matters concerning public comfort and convenience, and issue orders thereon in accordance with their statutory powers.[14] A company appearing and contesting a matter before a railroad commission cannot complain that the order rendered therein deprives it of property without due process of law.[15] The Mississippi railroad commission is not a court,[16] and its judgments may be reviewed by certiorari.[17] The Connecticut board of railroad commissioners is an administrative body, and its decisions are not subject to review by the courts, the statute to the contrary being unconstitutional.[18] A failure of the commission to give notice to petitioners of a hearing on a grade crossing is not fatal.[19]

§ 8. Construction and maintenance. Private and farm crossings.[20]—In the absence of statute[21] or agreement there is no duty to maintain farm crossings for the use of the general public.[22]

Public crossings.[23]—Railroad companies are required to keep their tracks and all approaches thereto at public crossings in good repair.[24] A liability arises from 7. State v. Clinton County Com'rs [Ind.] 76 N. E. 986.

8. See 4 C. L. 1183.

9. People v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 215 Ill. 177, 74 N. E. 116.

10. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 120, §§ 40-52, 109. People v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 215 Ill. 177, 74 N. E. 116.

11. Line used mainly for passenger travel rather than one used mainly for freight is the main stem. Jersey City v. State Board of Assessors [N. J. Law] 63 A. 21.

12. See 4 C. L. 1183. Regulation of tariffs and charges, see Carriers, 5 C. L. 507. As to operation of particular regulations, see also other sections of this topic, as section 7 for regulation of location of stations, and section 11 for regulation of operation of trains.

13. See 4 C. L. 1183.

14. In some states they may designate the location of new stations in case the site selected by the railroad officials is inconvenient and inaccessible. Code 1892, § 4309. State v. Mobile, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 732. The South Carolina commission may determine whether proper passenger service is furnished, and may require specified trains to be stopped at a given station. Mandamus proper remedy. Railroad Com'rs v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 71 S. C. 130, 50 S. E. 641. The North Carolina corporation commission may require a railroad company to install track scales where the business justifies it. North Carolina Corp. Commission v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 139 N. C. 126, 51 S. E. 793. The statute creating the Texas railroad commission has been held constitutional, and to confer authority to require two railroads crossing each other to connect their tracks, though they do not cross at grade. Rev, St. 1895, art. 4562. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission [Tex.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 42, 89 S. W. 961.

15. Railroad Com'rs v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 71 S. C. 130, 50 S. E. 641.

16. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Mississippi R. Commission [C. C. A.] 138 F. 327.

17. Gulf & S. I. R. Co. v. Adams, 85 Miss. 772, 38 So. 348.

18. Gen. St. 1902, §§ 3718, 3747. Appeal of Spencer [Conn.] 61 A. 1010.

19. Appeal of Spencer [Conn.] 61 A. 1010.

20. See 4 C. L. 1189.

21. The private crossing which a railroad is required to establish on demand for one owning land on both sides of the track is such a crossing as will connect the several tracks of his land without requiring him to go to a public highway. Herrstrom v. Newton & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 436. The burden of showing that a landowner accepted a certain bridge in lieu of a private crossing is on the railroad company. Id. Finding that bridge was not accepted by landowner in lieu of a private crossing held sustained by evidence. Id. Practicability of private grade crossing at particular place, held for jury. Id. If a grade crossing is impracticable, construction of an overhead crossing may be required, though the cost exceeds the benefit to the landowner. Id.

22. Johnson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 961.

23. See 4 C. L. 1190.

24. Western R. of Ala. v. Cleghorn [Ala.] 39 So. 133. A railroad company may be failure to comply with statutes requiring companies to restore streets to their original condition.[25] Mandamus will lie to compel a railroad company to plank and grade crossings,[26] the right of municipalities to do the work and charge the railroad company with the cost not being an adequate remedy.[27] The judgment in such case should specifically direct what is to be done in the construction of the crossing.[28] As a general rule a city or town cannot bind itself by contract with a railroad company to erect and maintain crossing gates and bear the expense of a gateman,[29] but under the Massachusetts highway law such liability may be the subject of contract for a reasonable time at least.[30] Municipal regulation as to precautions at highway crossings must be reasonable, fair, impartial, and not arbitrary or oppressive.[31]

Damages from negligent construction.[32]—Authority to construct a railroad does not exempt the company from responsibility for injuries to private rights, whether resulting from negligence or otherwise,[33] and a liability arises for damages to real property resulting from the construction or operation of a railroad in close proximity,[34] though one obtaining title subsequent to the construction cannot complain.[35] In the selection of a site for its repair and machine shops a railroad cannot act arbitrarily and without reference to damage to property in the vicinity and the discomfort of persons there residing.[36] A company which acts within its authority and exercises reasonable skill and care in construction does not commit a nuisance though property be damaged thereby,[37] and is not liable in damages to one whose residence is thereby rendered uncomfortable and unhealthful.[38]

Establishment of crossings.[39]—In case of steam railroads the court, under 97 O. L. 546, may grant permission to construct a grade crossing conditional upon acquirement by the company, either by agreement with the municipal or other officers in charge of the road or street, or by condemnation, of the right to do so. Such agreement or condemnation need not precede the permission granted by the court.[40]

Abolition and prevention of grade crossings.[41]—Many states require that all liable for failure to maintain in repair a sidewalk crossing its track. Evidence held sufficient to warrant the finding as to ownership of the track. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Miller [Ind.] 74 N. E. 509.

25. Gen. St. 1901, p. 297, § 1316, subd. 4. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Townsend [Kan.] 81 P. 205.

26, 27, 28. Vandalia R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 980.

29. Old Colony R. Co. v. New Bedford, 188 Mass. 234, 74 N. E. 468.

30. Pub. St. 1882, c. 112, § 128. Old Colony R. Co. v. New Bedford, 188 Mass. 234, 74 N. E. 468.

31. Ordinance held invalid as requiring a flagman at unreasonable time. Southern Ind. R. Co. v. Bedford [Ind.] 75 N. E. 268.

32. See 4 C. L. 1190.

33. Gossett v. Southern R. Co. [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 737.

34. Measure of damages. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Trustees of Schools, 112 Ill. App. 488. Measure of damages to real property arising from construction and operation of a railroad on contiguous property. Davenport, etc., R. Co. v. Sinnet, 111 Ill. App. 75; Kuhn v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 111 Ill. App. 323. A railroad company removing the lateral support from the property of another is liable for the resulting damages. Map is admissible to show the conditions. After verdict and judgment a railroad company cannot complain for the first time that the jury did not view the property. Ruppert v. West Side Belt R. Co., 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 613.

35. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Dennison, 116 Ill. App. 1. The construction of a viaduct connecting a surface line with an elevated road does not render the company liable to an abutting owner who acquired title from the company's grantor and after conveyance to it. Bennett v. Long Island R. Co., 181 N. Y. 431, 74 N. E. 418.

36. Rev. St. 1895, arts. 4424, 4445. Rainey v. Red River, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 993, 89 S. W. 768.

37. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Dennison, 116 Ill. App. 1.

38. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Armstrong [Kan.] 80 P. 978.

39. See 4 C. L. 1191.

40. In re Avon Beach & S. R. Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 561. The law relating to the establishment of grade crossings (97 O. L. 546) relates exclusively to steam railroads, and in the case of an application to the common pleas court under this act by a railroad for permission to lay its tracks at grade over street crossings, and to prescribe what gates, signals, etc., shall be maintained, if the court find from the testimony that such railroad is not a steam railroad it is without jurisdiction in the premises. Id.

41. See 4 C. L. 1191.

crossings constructed after the enactment of the statute shall be above or below grade unless permission for a crossing at grade be secured,[42] and a preliminary injunction is proper where there is apparently to be a violation of the crossing law.[43] A city may lawfully obligate itself to bear a portion of the expense of abolishing grade crossings.[44] In Illinois a city may compel railroad companies to elevate their tracks, though because thereof certain streets must be vacated or changed.[45]

Damages for change of grade.[46]—A private property owner has an adequate remedy at law for damages alleged to result from the construction and maintenance of an embankment in a street under city ordinance.[47] An abutting property owner is in general entitled to compensation upon the change of a railroad depressed in the street to an elevated road impairing his easements of light and air, though such elevation be required by statute.[48]

Crossings with other railroads, street railroads, and canals.[49]—Upon an application to a court to define the mode in which one railroad may cross another, it is incumbent upon the petitioner to show it had lawful power to construct its road.[50] A railroad company which is under the duty of maintaining an overhead bridge has a right in equity to object to the construction of street car tracks upon the bridge.[51] Where before the service of a restraining order the defendant railroad company has perfected its crossing, and upon the service the complainant company tears up such crossing with violence, and there is doubt as to the title and possession of complainant to the locus in quo, and public interest will be subserved, the order may be dissolved unless the status quo be restored for temporary crossing.[52] The Ohio statute on crossings of two or more steam roads applies to cases where condemnation proceedings had been commenced prior to the passage of the act.[53] A turn-out or switch is within the New York statute on compulsory intersections and crossings.[54] Under the Indiana statute requiring interlockers at railroad crossings, the six months within which such apparatus must be constructed commences to run when the crossing is used as such.[55]

Duty to make transfer connections.[56]—Under the Ohio statutes, where the tracks of a railway company lie contiguous to a manufacturing establishment, and are also connected with the tracks of another railroad company, it is the duty of such first company, on request, to switch the cars arriving by said other company, consigned to such manufacturing establishment, to such contiguous tracks of its own for the purpose of unloading them, and where such company, without valid excuse, 42. P. L. 1901, p. 531. Crossing held to be within the statute. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Bogert, 209 Pa. 589, 59 A. 100.

43. Borough of Clifton Heights v. Thomas Kent Mfg. Co., 212 Pa. 117, 61 A. 817.

44. Old Colony R. Co. v. Boston [Mass.] 75 N. E. 134. Authority of a city to agree with a railroad company for the joint erection and maintenance of a viaduct does not authorize a contract by which the city alone is to maintain the viaduct in its then form for all time. Vandalia R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 980.

45. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, p. 291, c. 24, § 62, cl. 7. People v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 217 Ill. 594, 75 N. E. 573.

46. See 4 C. L. 1192.

47. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Maegerlein, 114 Ill. App. 222.

48. Laws 1892, c. 339. Muhlker v. New York & H. R. Co., 197 U. S. 544, 49 Law. Ed. 872.

49. See 4 C. L. 1192.

50. Gen. St. p. 2717. Mercer County Traction Co. v. United New Jersey R. & Canal Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 461.

51. Act of June 19, 1871, P. L. 1360. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Parkesburg, etc., R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 159.

52. Suwannee & S. P. R. Co. v. West Coast R. Co. [Fla.] 39 So. 538.

53. 95 Ohio Laws, p. 530. Wheeling, etc., R. Co. v. Toledo R. & Terminal Co., 72 Ohio St. 368, 74 N. E. 209.

54. Laws 1890, p. 1084, c. 565. Jennings v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 103 App. Div. 164, 93 N. Y. S. 374.

55. Act March 3, 1903, p. 125, c. 59. Not postponed to final termination of litigation. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Indianapolis & N. W. Traction Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 513.

56. See 4 C. L. 1193.

refuses so to do, the performance of such duty may be enforced by mandatory injunction.[57] In Texas two railroads crossing each other may be required to connect their tracks, although they do not cross at grade.[58]

Cattle guards.[59]—In Texas a failure to maintain the statutory cattle guards renders a railroad company liable for a cattle owner's increased outlay for help.[60] A statute requiring without exception the construction of cattle guards applies in towns and in counties where the stock law is in force.[61]

Fences.[62]—The statutory requirement to fence is not designed for the protection of travelers upon the highway whose horses may become frightened.[63] In Illinois, fences need not be constructed until six months after the running of trains begins, whether for construction or other purposes.[64] Liability for failure to construct or maintain fences is considered elsewhere.[65]

Drainage and disposal of surface water.[66]—A railroad constructing a ditch which discharges surface water onto another's land is not liable for damage alone by surface water emptied into its ditch by strangers without the company's knowledge or consent.[67] The statute of limitations runs against actions for damages from the obstruction of a ditch by natural causes from the time the particular damage is done.[68]

Obstruction of watercourses.[69]—A railroad company electing to close a natural watercourse must construct an artificial channel of sufficient capacity to carry all waters then carried by the natural channel, and also all waters which may thereafter lawfully come to or be turned in to flow through the natural channel.[70] A liability arises for causing water to back upon private property by reason of the negligent construction of a track[71] or a culvert.[72]

Miscellaneous matters.[73]—At common law a railroad company owes to the adjoining owner no duty relative to Johnson grass, growing upon the right of way, except to refrain from actively conveying the noxious weed to such premises.[74] The Texas Johnson grass statute allows recovery without proof of negligence,[75] but there can be no recovery by one who permits Johnson grass communicated by a railroad to mature and go to seed.[76] To allow animals killed by a train to decay on the right of way so that the odor disturbs persons living near is a nuisance for which damages may be recovered.[77] A railroad company may in some states be

57. Rev. St. §§ 3340, 3341. Troy Wagon Works Co. v. C., H. & D. R. Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 412.

58. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission [Tex.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 42, 89 S. W. 961.

59. See 4 C. L. 1193. See post, § 10 F.

60. Rev. St. 1895, §§ 4523, 4527. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Wetz [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 373.

61. Shepard v. Suffolk & C. R. Co. [N. C.] 53 S. E. 137.

62. See 4 C. L. 1193. See post, § 10 F.

63. Wabash R. Co. v. Gaull, 116 Ill. App. 443.

64. St. Louis & S. R. Co. v. Smith, 216 Ill. 339, 74 N. E. 1063.

65. See Duty to maintain fences, § 10 F.

66. See 4 C. L. 1194.

67, 68. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Morris [Ark.] 89 S. W. 846.

69. See 4 C. L. 1194.

70. Plaintiff not limited to one action for damages and not estopped by having bid on contract. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 110 Ill. App. 626.

71. Measure of damages is loss of use of land for crops. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Roberts [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1052. Measure of damages in an action by owners of land rented on shares. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Seale [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 48, 89 S. W. 997.

72. Shores v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 699; Kirby v. Panhandle & G. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 421, 88 S. W. 281.

73. See 4 C. L. 1194.

74. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Burns [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 21.

75. Act April 18, 1901. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Burns [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 21.

76. Laws 1901, p. 283, c. 117. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Burns [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 250, 87 S. W. 1144; San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Burns [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 21.

77. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Sanders [Miss.] 40 So. 163.

liable for treble damages by committing a willful trespass in taking sand from the property of another,[78] but a taking under a claim of right cannot be converted into a willful trespass by a notice to leave the premises.[79] The Illinois Central Railroad Company is not responsible for the conduct of officers of the Illinois Central Hospital.[80] A complaint alleging that defendant railroad company had by collusion allowed another company to use its road to grade a branch, whereby defendant aided such other company to reach plaintiff's possessions which were taken by force and his crops destroyed, does not state a cause of action.[81]

Construction contracts.[82]

§ 9. Sales, leases, contracts, and consolidation. Lease or joint use of privileges.[83]—Associations for the joint use of privileges may be formed.[84] The right of a railroad company to do a freight business over the road of another company includes the right to use the main and side tracks for gathering freight.[85] A valid contract between two railroad companies, whereby one is to have the use of the other's road so long as they continue to exist as chartered corporations, is in the nature of a permanent license.[86] The rights of a railway company under a lease from a union station company are not affected by a subsequent lease executed by the station company to another railway company.[87] The Union Pacific Company must allow other railroad companies a joint use of its bridge at Omaha.[88] A stipulation in a lease of privileges on the right of way that the lessee exonerates the railroad company from damage by fire resulting from negligent operation is not against public policy.[89]

Consolidation.[90]—Consolidation defeating competition is frequently prohibited,[91] and a special statute authorizing the consolidation of specified railroads, contrary to the general laws, is unconstitutional as class legislation.[92] In determining whether roads are parallel or competing, the lines which they were authorized to construct, as well as those actually constructed, must be considered.[93]

78. Rev. St. 1899, § 4572. Cox v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 111 Mo. App. 394, 85 S. W. 989.

79. Cox v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 111 Mo. App. 394, 85 S. W. 989.

80. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Buchanan, 27 Ky. L. R. 1215, 88 S. W. 312.

81. Henry v. Nashville, etc., R. Co. [Ala.] 38 So. 361.

82, 83. See 4 C. L. 1194.

84. Pere Marquette R. Co. v. Wabash R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 466, 104 N. W. 650.

85. Dayton & U. R. Co. v. P., C., C. & St. L. R. Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 537.

86. The word "road" will be construed as a generic term, including all present and future facilities. Dayton & U. R. Co. v. P., C., C. & St. L. R. Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 537. A grant by a railroad company of the use of its road for "all trains required in the prosecution of its business" limits the licensee to the business of the grantee company, and the test as to whether the business passing over the road is that of the licensee is to be determined from the facts of the case, and not from the engines or crews used in operating the trains. Id.

87. Pere Marquette R. Co. v. Wabash R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 466, 104 N. W. 650.

88. 16 St. at L. 430. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Mason City, etc., R. Co., 199 U. S. 160, 50 Law. Ed. —.

89. Mansfield Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. [Ohio] 77 N. E. 269. An exemption from liability for injury by fire to property on the right of way covers the whole of a building partly on the right of way where the part on the right of way was ignited by the operation of the road. Id.

90. See 4 C. L. 1195.

91. Laws 1899, p. 116. Illinois State Trust Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 217 Ill. 504, 75 N. E. 562; Lone Star Salt Co. v. Texas Short Line R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 355. A trackage contract between railroad companies, whose tracks are parallel for a distance of fifteen miles and thereafter separate widely, is within the enumerated powers of railroads, and does not destroy but rather creates competition between them, and where in a contract of this character an ultra vires feature is found, which can be eliminated, the remaining portion of the contract is not rendered invalid thereby, nor is ground afforded for forfeiture of the company's charter. Dayton & U. R. Co. v. P., C., C. & St. L. R. Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 537.

92. State v. Mobile, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 732.

93. Lines held not parallel or competing. Illinois State Trust Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 217 Ill. 504, 75 N. E. 562.

Duties and liabilities after sale or lease.[94]—In general the lessor and lessee of a railway are jointly and severally liable for a negligent operation thereof,[95] but under the holdings of the Federal courts a lessor of a railroad track is not liable for the negligence of its lessee in operating its trains on such track.[96] A lessee railroad has no greater right with respect to the leased property than its lessor, and is bound to perform the duties devolving upon the lessor.[97] A railroad company in possession of a switching yard is under the same obligation with respect to the condition and safety thereof as though it owned the property,[98] and may be liable for damages for the killing of stock, though not owning the property if it is operating the road at the time of accident.[99] Ownership of stock in one railroad by another road is competent evidence to show a control and operation thereof.[1] In the absence of statute or a contractual assumption of liability for torts, a vendee is not responsible for the torts of its vendor,[2] and a purchaser at judicial sale is not liable for damages resulting from violations of the preceding company's personal contract unless so assumed or prescribed by decree or statute.[3] The lessee of a railroad line is not an agent of the railroad company on whom process can be served for it.[4] On purchase at foreclosure the successor company takes no greater rights or estate in the site of the roadbed and works than the mortgagor company had.[5]

Contracts for use of bridges.[6]

§ 10. Indebtedness, insolvency, liens, and securities. Mechanics' and materialmen's liens.[7]—To confer a lien the circumstances must fall fairly within the

94. See 4 C. L. 1195.

95. Rev. St. Ohio 1892, § 3305, applies only to liabilities growing out of duties as a carrier, and not out of duties as an employer. Beltz v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 137 F. 1016. Rev. St. Ohio 1892, § 3305. Axline v. Toledo, etc., R. Co., 138 F. 169. Injury to engineer. Southern R. Co. v. Sittasen [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 898. The lessor is liable for damages from water resulting from its improper construction of a culvert, but for a negligent alteration therein, after lease, the lessee is responsible. Shores v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 699.

Note: The appellee, a switchman in the employ of a company operating the line of the defendant railroad under a lease, was injured in the course of his duty through the negligence of the lessee in furnishing defective appliances. Suit was brought against the lessor railroad. Held that the defendant is liable. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Hart, 209 Ill. 414. The lessor railroad has often been held liable, in the absence of statutory exemptions, for torts against the public due to the negligent operation of its line by the lessee. Singleton v. Southwestern R. Co., 70 Ga. 464, 48 Am. Rep. 574. The basis of such decisions is the requirement, founded on public policy, that the common carrier be held to the proper exercise of its chartered powers and obligations with respect to the public, considering the lessee the agent of the lessor in the discharge of those duties. Between the lessee's servant and the lessor no interdependent relation such as exists between the public and the lessor is established either by charter or by voluntary contract. Consequently, most courts rightly regard the lessee as an independent contractor with the employee, and refuse to charge the lessor with the employer's negligence toward him. East Line, etc., R. Co. v. Culberson, 72 Tex. 375, 13 Am. St. Rep. 805, 3 L. R. A. 567. The principal case seems to find support only in North Carolina. Logan v. North Carolina R. Co., 116 N. C. 940. But for injuries resulting from defects in the roadbed, stations, and premises leased, the lessor is quite generally responsible to employees and to the public alike. Lee v. Southern, etc., R. Co., 116 Cal. 97, 58 Am. St. Rep. 140, 38 L. R. A. 71.—18 Harv. L. R. 152.

96. Yeates v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 137 F. 943.

97. State v. Mobile, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 732. In Mississippi a new road consolidating with an existing road to form a through line is not warranted in abandoning a portion of the existing line and constructing the through line over another route. Id.

98. Illinois Terminal R. Co. v. Thompson, 112 Ill. App. 463. Proof of possession and operation dispenses with proof of ownership. Chicago Junction R. Co. v. McAnrow, 114 Ill. App. 501.

99. Karn v. Illinois So. R. Co., 114 Mo. App. 162, 89 S. W. 346.

1. Pennsylvania Co. v. Rossett, 116 Ill. App. 342.

2. Karn v. Illinois So. R. Co., 114 Mo. App. 162, 89 S. W. 346.

3. Damages for failure to maintain depot at specified location. Hukle v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Kan.] 80 P. 603.

4. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Weber, 219 Ill. 372, 76 N. E. 489.

5. Barker v. Southern R. Co., 137 N. C. 214, 49 S. E. 115.

6, 7. See 4 C. L. 1196.

statute,[8] and the action must be commenced within the specified period.[9] In the absence of fraud or mistake a mechanic's lien once destroyed is not capable of revival even by the subsequent delivery of materials under the same original contract.[10] When that part of a right of way of a railroad company on which labor was performed supporting a lien was a part of the entire railroad system and necessary for carrying out the company's duties to the public, a personal judgment may be given against the railroad company;[11] and so where, though the road is practically completed, the company is not yet engaged in the business of a common carrier.[12] Matters of procedure are discussed in the notes.[13]

Bonds and mortgages.[14]—The ordinary rules as to bonds and the rights of holders thereof apply.[15] A railroad company may be compelled, according to its agreement, to convert its bonds into preferred stock or answer in damages to the extent of the market value of the stock[16] as well as the usual equitable rules as to laches.[17]

Property covered by mortgages.[18]—A claim for the taking of property is a lien upon the road which is not defeated by foreclosure sale unless the lienholder is made a party to the proceedings.[19]

Foreclosure of mortgages.[20]—The right of a trustee to foreclose, as authorized by the mortgage, when in his discretion he might deem it necessary, is not affected by the fact that a competing railroad has secured control of the mortgagor and prevented the payment of interest.[21] A request by a third person in possession of the requisite amount of bonds authorizes the foreclosure of a mortgage granting

8. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Love [Ark.] 86 S. W. 395. In Arkansas, one who furnishes material used in the construction of a railroad has a lien therefor regardless of whether the material was sold to the railroad or its contractor (Ozark & C. Cent. R. Co. v. Moran Bolt & Nut Mfg. Co. [Ark.] 86 S. W. 848), but one furnishing supplies to a railroad subcontractor has no lien therefor against the railroad (St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Henry [Ark.] 86 S. W. 841). The Arkansas statute does not give a lien for hire of teams or other supplies furnished a subcontractor unless they entered into or became a part of the road. Kirby's Dig. § 6661. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Love [Ark.] 86 S. W. 395. To sustain a lien under the Missouri statutes it need not be shown that the materials were actually used for railroad purposes. Rev. St. 1899, § 4239 et seq. Westinghouse Air Brake Co. v. Kansas City So. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 26. Under the Indiana statute a lien may be had by laborers employed by a subcontractor in the second degree. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7265. Pere Marquette R. Co. v. Baertz [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 51; Pere Marquette R. Co. v. Smith [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 545.

9. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Love [Ark.] 86 S. W. 395; Ozark, etc., R. Co. v. Moran Bolt & Nut Mfg. Co. [Ark.] 86 S. W. 848. The acceptance, for a debt secured by a mechanic's lien, of a promissory note which matures subsequent to the time fixed by statute for the commencement of an action to foreclose the lien estops the creditor from enforcing the lien. Westinghouse Air Brake Co. v. Kansas City S. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 26.

10. Westinghouse Air Brake Co. v. Kansas City S. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 26.

11. Pere Marquette R. Co. v. Baertz [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 51.

12. Pere Marquette R. Co. v. Smith [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 545.

13. Under the Arkansas statute a personal judgment against a nonresident subcontractor is not a prerequisite to the declaration of a lien against a railroad. Kirby's Dig. § 6661. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Love [Ark.] 86 S. W. 395. Rev. St. 1899, § 4241, requires "personal" service and does not permit of substituted service. Service must be timely. Dalton v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 71, 87 S. W. 610. To perfect a lien in Tennessee the person claiming the lien must give the statutory notice, a notice by his assignee being insufficient. Shannon's Code, § 3580. Norman & Co. v. Edington [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 744. Under a statute requiring service of lien notice on the person or corporation owning or operating the railroad, service upon a station agent is insufficient. Rev. St. 1899, § 4241. Williams v. Dittenhoefer, 188 Mo. 134, 86 S. W. 242; Dalton v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 71, 87 S. W. 610.

14. See 4 C. L. 1196.

15. Bona fide purchasers. Shellenberger v. Altoona & P. Connecting R. Co., 212 Pa. 413, 61 A. 1000.

16. Bratten v. Catawissa R. Co., 211 Pa. 21, 60 A. 319.

17. Real Estate Trust Co. v. Perry County R. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 25.

18. See 4 C. L. 1197.

19. Kentucky & I. Bridge & R. Co. v. Clemmons, 27 Ky. L. R. 875, 86 S. W. 1125.

20. See 4 C. L. 1197.

21, 22. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. New York & N. R. Co., 94 N. Y. S. 928.

to the trustee the power to foreclose when requested by "holders" of a specified amount of bonds.[22] The successor to the Union Pacific Railroad Company under a foreclosure sale of the first mortgage did not take the property free from the obligation to allow a joint use of the Omaha bridge.[23]

Receivership.[24]—A judgment against a receiver should not be against him personally, but should run against him in his official capacity and direct payment in due course of administration;[25] though a receiver pendente lite continuing in possession of the railroad after confirmation of a foreclosure sale is individually liable for a tort committed by a servant in operating the road during such continuance in possession.[26] A corporation assuming all liabilities incurred by a receiver is liable for the receiver's tort.[27] The existence of a receivership does not ipso facto divest a railway corporation of its authority to condemn land.[28]

§ 11. Duties and liabilities incident to operation of road. A. Obligation to operate and statutory regulations. Keeping stations open.[29]—Courts will not interfere with the closing of stations except in cases of abuse of a railroad company's vested discretion therein.[30] It is the duty of a railroad company to provide a suitable waiting room for passengers and to keep the place open for all trains which stop there, whether regularly or on signal.[31] A company agreeing to stop its train at a station to take on a passenger agrees to keep open its waiting room for the accommodation of the passenger while waiting for the train.[32]

Equipment of cars.[33]—A statute requiring safety couplers on each end of every freight car does not refer to locomotive tenders,[34] and a freight car, being taken to a shop for repairs, is not within a statute prohibiting a railroad company in "moving traffic" from hauling a car not equipped with automatic couplers.[35] Cars equipped with automatic couplers may, under special circumstances of convenience or necessity, be temporarily linked by other devices.[36]

Speed regulations.[37]—By statute a violation of a speed regulation may constitute negligence per se if it be the proximate cause of injury,[38] though in some states excessive speed is made only presumptive evidence of negligence.[39] That a passenger train is running 25 minutes behind schedule time does not show negligence on the part of the company.[40] An ordinance providing that it shall be unlawful for any engineer, conductor, or other "person" to run or permit to be run any train faster than a given rate of speed through a city applies to railroad corporations.[41]

Precautions at highway crossings.[42]—Under its general police powers a city

23. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Mason City, etc., R. Co., 199 U. S. 160, 50 Law. Ed. —.
24. See 4 C. L. 1198.
25. Malott v. Mapes, 111 Ill. App. 340.
26. Larsen v. United States Mortg. & Trust Co., 104 App. Div. 76, 93 N. Y. S. 610.
27. Baer v. Erie R. Co., 95 N. Y. S. 486.
28. Detroit, etc., R. Co. v. Campbell [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 202, 103 N. W. 856.
29. See 4 C. L. 1199.
30. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1087.
31. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Walker, 217 Ill. 605, 75 N. E. 520.
32. Draper v. Evansville, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 889.
33. See 4 C. L. 1199.
34. Comp. Laws 1897, § 5511. Blanchard v. Detroit & M. R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 30, 103 N. W. 170.
35. Rev. Laws, c. 111, §§ 203, 209. Taylor v. Boston & M. R. Co., 188 Mass. 390, 74 N. E. 591.
36. Whalin v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 112 Ill. App. 428.
37. See 4 C. L. 1199.
38. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Andrews, 116 Ill. App. 8; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Crose, 113 Ill. App. 547; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Martin, 113 Tenn. 266, 87 S. W. 418; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Watson [Miss.] 39 So. 69. Violation of speed ordinance held not to be proximate cause of injury. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Penny [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 196, 87 S. W. 718.
39. Sec. 24, chap. 114, R. S. Chicago & W. I. R. Co. v. Zerbe, 110 Ill. App. 171
40. Keiser v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 212 Pa. 409, 61 P. 903.
41. Southern R. Co. v. Jones, 33 Ind. App. 333, 71 N. E. 275.
42. See 4 C. L. 1200.

may require the erection of gates,[43] and the courts will not interfere with the location of the machinery required to operate the gates unless it necessarily interferes with the use of the street.[44]

Obstruction of crossings.[45]—In some states punitive damages are allowed for unlawful obstruction of crossings.[46]

Stops at railroad crossings.[47]—Failure to stop at a railroad crossing as required by statute is negligence.[48] Duties concurrent in point of time are imposed upon both steam and street railway companies at grade crossings, and a failure on the part of either company to maintain gates or take other required precautions will render such company liable for negligence in case of injuries resulting.[49] The conductor of a street car may assume that the employes of a railroad company will comply with such a regulation, he having done so.[50] Where the condition of a semaphore at the time of accident is a material question, a witness may state its condition at that time or soon after.[51]

Maintaining telegraph offices.[52]

(§ 11) B. General rules of negligence and contributory negligence.—Railway companies, in the absence of statutory limitations, are vested with a very broad discretion in the matter of locating and operating their railways and stations,[53] but the right of a railroad company to operate its trains is subject to the restrictions of reasonable prudence.[54] The duty to avoid injury to those on the train and to the train itself is paramount to the duty to avoid injury to trespassing stock upon the track.[55] As to all persons who are rightfully on or about its tracks,[56] a railroad company owes the duty of observing all statutory precautions,[57] and in addition to these, of taking every precaution dictated by reasonable prudence.[58] A railroad company is of course liable only for injuries proximately resulting[59] from negligence

43. Seibert v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 188 Mo. 657, 87 S. W. 995. A borough has power under the "general welfare" clause of the borough act to require a railroad company to erect, maintain, and operate at its own expense safety gates at street crossings. Act of April 3, 1851, P. L. 320. Pennsylvania R. Co.'s Case, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 113.

44. Seibert v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 188 Mo. 657, 87 S. W. 995.

45. See 4 C. L. 1200.

46. Tutwiler Coal, Coke & Iron Co. v. Nall, 141 Ala. 374, 37 So. 634.

47. See 4 C. L. 1200.

48. Code 1896, § 3441. Southern R. Co. v. Williams [Ala.] 38 So. 1013.

49. Kopp v. B. & O. S. W. R. Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 103.

50. For the jury, whether a street car conductor is guilty of contributory negligence going only to the middle of a crossing, whereas the statute required him to go to the opposite side. Southern R. Co. v. Jones [Ala.] 39 So. 118.

51. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Vipond, 112 Ill. App. 558.

52. See 4 C. L. 1200.

53. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. State [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1087.

54. Pyne v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 212 Pa. 143, 61 A. 817. In some states a railroad company is liable for damages for injury to any person on its tracks, whether at a public crossing or elsewhere, arising from negligent operation of the train. Ray v. Pennsylvania Casualty Co., 138 N. C. 379, 50 S. E. 762. To back a freight train along a side track in a town at dusk without lights or other warning is negligence. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Johnson [Ark.] 86 S. W. 282. Under a statute requiring signals when a person or object appears "on the road," such warning need not be given until the object is near enough to be struck by a passing train. Shannon's Code Tenn., §§ 1574, 1575. Rogers v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 573.

55. Best v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 709.

56. As to trespassers, see post, § 11 E.

57. Federal courts will follow the construction given by state courts to state statutes on railway injuries. Rogers v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 573.

58. It is negligence to operate a train at night at such a speed that it cannot be stopped within the distance that the headlight illuminates the track. Western R. of Ala. v. Stone [Ala.] 39 So. 723.

59. Fright of horse and not defective character of crossing held proximate cause of accident. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Gee [Va.] 52 S. E. 572. Whether allowing an engine to stand on a street crossing for more than five minutes was the cause of the injury to one hurt by a team which became frightened at the engine is for the jury. Burns v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 96 N. Y. S. 509. Failure to slacken speed at a crossing as required by law is not the proximate cause of injury to cattle which came suddenly on the track at a point some distance beyond for which it is responsible.[60] Persons on or about the tracks owe a correlative duty of due care and vigilance, and the ordinary rules as to imputed negligence apply;[61] but one finding himself without fault in a position of imminent peril is not negligent, though from fright he fails to act with prudence in endeavoring to extricate himself,[62] and statutes have to some extent rendered railroad companies liable for omission of prescribed precautions irrespective of contributory negligence.[63] After one is discovered to be in a position of peril, though he was placed therein by his own fault, the company must exercise reasonable care to avoid injury to him.[64]

(§ 11) C. Damage to passengers and freight.[65]

(§ 11) D. Injuries to employes.[66]

(§ 11) E. Injuries to licensees and trespassers. General rules.[67]—In general, a railroad company owes to all persons along its tracks, the duty of refraining, as to them, from active misconduct and wanton or willful injury,[68] though in some states a company owes to trespassers no duty until their peril is known.[69] It is not generally responsible for mere negligence toward trespassers,[70] though the crossing. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Duggan [Ga.] 52 S. E. 768. Fright of horse and not negligent conduct of employes at crossing held proximate cause. Courtney v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 106 N. W. 90.

60. That a railroad company uses the track of another road for switching does not make it liable for an accident on such track due entirely to defects in the roadbed. Collier v. Great Northern R. Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 935.

61. Where the parent suing for killing of infant was negligent in permitting the child to go on the track unattended, no recovery can be had except for failure to avoid injury after discovery of peril. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Cochran [Ark.] 91 S. W. 747.

62. Where one was not negligent in going on a crossing, his acts in endeavoring to escape injury after discovering that he was in imminent peril are not to be judged by standard of prudence under ordinary circumstances. Bilton v. Southern Pac. R. Co. [Cal.] 83 P. 440. One who by his negligence puts himself in peril is not within the rule as to acts in the presence of sudden danger. Hood v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 109 App. Div. 418, 96 N. Y. S. 431.

63. A statute making a railroad company liable for certain negligent acts without regard to contributory negligence does not apply where the conduct of the person injured was deliberate and reckless. Rev. Code 1892, § 3549. Plaintiff seeing a train but a few feet away attempted to cross in front of it. Sledge v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 13. Where one has not been negligent in placing himself in danger, he is not negligent in exercising poor judgment in the means taken to extricate himself. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. & Western I. R. Co. v. Eganolf, 112 Ill. App. 323. Plaintiff's conduct held not so variant from that of an ordinarily prudent person as to constitute contributory negligence as a matter of law. Plaintiff startled by sudden appearance of unannounced train and fell onto track. Morey v. Lake Superior Terminal & Transfer R. Co., 125 Wis. 148, 103 N. W. 271.

64. Engineer seeing a person 175 feet ahead and 18 feet from track need not stop. Schmidt v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo.] 90 S. W. 136. Contributory negligence is no defense where defendant's employes fail to avail themselves of the last clear chance to avert the injury. Reid v. Atlanta & C. Air Line R. Co. [N. C.] 52 S. E. 307.

65. See Carriers, 5 C. L. 507.

66. See Master and Servant, 6 C. L. 521.

67. See 4 C. L. 1200.

68. Chicago & Grand Trunk R. Co. v. McDonough, 112 Ill. App. 315; Kinnare v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 230; Seaboard & R. R. Co. v. Vaughan's Adm'x [Va.] 51 S. E. 452; Hern v. Southern Pac. Co. [Utah] 81 P. 902; Ellington v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 827; Keller v. Erie R. Co. [N. Y.] 75 N. E. 965; Williamson v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 510, 88 S. W. 279; Burns v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 824; Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Cline, 111 Ill. App. 416. Failure to signal to pedestrian on track. Reyburn v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 187 Mo. 565, 86 S. W. 174. Wanton injury inflicted by company's employe operating railroad tricycle furnished by company. Barmore v. Vicksburg, etc., R. Co., 85 Miss. 426, 38 So. 210. Negligence of defendant railroad company for the jury. Breeze v. MacKinnon Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 195, 103 N. W. 908. Evidence held to show that plaintiff, a loiterer, was a trespasser. Hern v. Southern Pac. Co. [Utah] 81 P. 902. Evidence held to show plaintiff's intestate was not a trespasser. Elgin, etc., R. Co. v. Thomas, 215 Ill. 158, 74 N. E. 109; Vicksburg, etc., R. Co. v. Barmore [Miss.] 39 So. 1013.

69. Bartlett v. Wabash R. Co., 116 Ill. App. 67; Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Hathaway's Ex'x [Ky.] 89 S. W. 724; Clemans v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 431; Yates v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 161.

70. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. McDonough, 112 Ill. App. 315. Trespasser on tracks taking no precaution cannot throw upon trainmen the entire duty of securing his safety. White v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 114 otherwise as to licensees[71] who are entitled to ordinary care.[72] In general, engineers must keep a look out for licensees,[73] but not for trespassers,[74] while in some states they are under no obligation to be on the look out for trespassers upon the track,[75] and neither violation of speed ordinance[76] nor failure to give customary signals is negligence as to a trespasser;[77] and in all states after the discovery of a trespasser on the track, ordinary care should be used to avoid injury,[78] though there be con-

La. 825, 38 So. 574. Contra, Ray v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 57 W. Va. 333, 50 S. E. 413.

71. Hutchens v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 832, 89 S. W. 24. A judgment for plaintiff will not be disturbed where it does not conclusively appear that defendant was free from negligence in the case of a turntable upon which a child was injured. Berg v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 293.

72. Elgin, etc., R. Co. v. Thomas, 115 Ill. App. 508; Hutchens v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 832, 89 S. W. 24; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 949, 89 S. W. 983. Evidence held insufficient to show that by exercise of ordinary care defendant could have stopped a train in time to prevent a derailed car from striking a licensee bill poster. Harper v. St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal Co., 187 Mo. 575, 86 S. W. 99. As to a licensee a company is under no obligation to equip its locomotive with a light. Williamson v. Southern R. Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 195. A railroad company must use reasonable care to discover and avoid injuring persons whom it may reasonably expect to be upon its tracks. Id.; Hutchens v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 832, 89 S. W. 24. A railroad whose line occupied a street must employ reasonable means and exercise reasonable care in unloading its cars to avoid injuring a person in the street. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Underwood [Ark.] 86 S. W. 804.

73. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Mayer, 112 Ill. App. 149; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 949, 89 S. W. 943; Hutchens v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 832, 89 S. W. 24. Contra. Kinnare v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 230. A railroad company owes no duty to a trespasser or licensee except to refrain from wantonly or willfully injuring him. Elements of willful negligence considered. McLaughlin v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 115 Ill. App. 262.

74. Kinnare v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 230; Yates v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 161; Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Hathaway's Ex'x [Ky.] 89 S. W. 724.

75. Flint v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1055; Ellington v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 827; Hulsey's Adm'r v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 969, 87 S. W. 302. The rule that a railroad is not bound to keep a lookout for trespassers on the track is subject to an exception in case of the operation of trains through cities (Johnson v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 91 S. W. 707), but this does not apply to operation through a stock yard (Id). The entire duty toward a trespasser on the track is to use due care to avoid injuring him after it is discovered not only that he is on the track but that he does not heed the approaching train. Copp v. Maine Cent. R. Co. [Me.] 62 A. 735; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Redmon's Adm'x [Ky.] 91 S. W. 722.

76. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Redmon's Adm'x [Ky.] 91 S. W. 722.

77. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Redmon's Adm'x [Ky.] 91 S. W. 722. That by ordinary vigilance a trespasser on the track could have been discovered in time to avert injury will not make the company liable. Barry v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. [Ark.] 91 S. W. 748.

78. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Evans [Ark.] 86 S. W. 426; Reyburn v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 187 Mo. 565, 86 S. W. 174; Hall v. Western & A. R. Co., 123 Ga. 213, 51 S. E. 311; Engelking v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 187 Mo. 158, 86 S. W. 89; Bartlett v. Wabash R. Co., 116 Ill. App. 67; Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Hathaway's Ex'x [Ky.] 89 S. W. 724. After discovery of peril every effort must be used to avoid killing a trespasser. Hulsey's Adm'r v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 969, 87 S. W. 302; Flint v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1055; Yates v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 161. Evidence held insufficient to raise the question of discovered peril. Tull v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 395, 87 S. W. 910. Evidence held not to show negligence of engineer. Burns v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 824. Evidence held sufficient to justify a finding that by the exercise of ordinary care the train could have been stopped in time to avoid injury. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hill [Ark.] 86 S. W. 303. For the jury whether trainmen were negligent after discovery of peril. Clemans v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 431. The statutory presumption of negligence from injury by the operation of a train is overcome in case of injury to a person on the track by evidence that the train was running at a moderate speed and every effort made to stop as soon as he was seen. Korter v. Gulf & S. I. R. Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 258. Where a person is seen walking on the track an alarm signal must be given at such distance as will enable him to get off on hearing it. Kelley v. Ohio River R. Co. [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 520. Blowing whistle and effort to stop held due care toward trespasser. Copp v. Maine Cent. R. Co. [Me.] 62 A. 735. Where the evidence shows that the whistle was blown as soon as a trespasser was discovered and that every effort was made to stop the train when it was seen that he did not heed the warning, there is no evidence of willful injury. Bartlett v. Wabash R. Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 96. The persons in charge of a train are not bound to stop or even slacken speed on seeing a person on the track. Copp v. Maine Cent. R. Co. [Me.] 62 A. 735. Trainmen seetributory negligence by the trespasser.[79] Failure to observe statutory regulations may be negligence[80] but does not import a wantonness or willfulness by the company's servants.[81] Contributory negligence may bar recovery,[82] but a licensee is not guilty of negligence per se in being on a railroad right of way.[83]

Employes of other roads and of independent contractors.[84]—A company must use ordinary care for the safety of a person carried gratuitously,[85] and must exercise a reasonable care to avoid injuring a railway mail clerk,[86] or an employe of another road,[87] and owes to the employes of the express company operating on its lines the duty of furnishing a reasonably safe passageway from the depot to the train.[88] A railroad company is not responsible for defects in its cars furnished to an employer of one injured by reason of such defects.[89] Contributory negligence will bar recovery.[90] One may be negligent in acting on information as to the delay of a train received one hour before.[91] A railroad owes due care to one entering its yard as an employe of an independent contractor.[92] No duty to employe of another railroad fencing a parallel track except to avoid injuring him after he is observed to be in dangerous place.[93]

Persons at stations.[94]—A passenger going to a depot and finding it locked near train time does not become a trespasser by entering the room, which is opened and ing a person walking beside the track ahead of the train are not bound to anticipate that he will go on the track. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Redmon's Adm'x [Ky.] 91 S. W. 722. Evidence in case of injury to trespasser on track held for jury. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Daniel [Ky.] 91 S. W. 691.

79. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Evans [Ark.] 86 S. W. 426; Bartlett v. Wabash R. Co., 116 Ill. App. 67.

80. Shannon's Code Tenn. §§ 1574, 1575. Rogers v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 573.

81. Failure to provide car brakes (Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Cline, 111 Ill. App. 416), and a city speed ordinance is inapplicable in favor of a trespasser injured by being struck by a train within the city limits (Clemans v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 431).

82. Yates v. Illinbis Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 161; Huber v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. [Neb.] 103 N. W. 51; Risque's Adm'r v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 730. Bicycle rider. Seaboard & R. R. Co. v. Vaughan's Adm'x [Va.] 51 S. E. 452. Where plaintiff's evidence shows circumstances of contributory negligence, defendant may take advantage thereof though the plea of contributory negligence was stricken out. Engelking v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 187 Mo. 158, 86 S. W. 89.

83. Hutchens v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 832, 89 S. W. 24. One going upon a railroad company's property in good faith for the purpose of becoming a passenger is not a trespasser. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Andrews, 116 Ill. App. 8.

84. See 4 C. L. 1202.

85. A laborer employed by a railroad company and carried gratuitously to and from his work is entitled to care required toward a servant. Riding on top of box car. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. O'Donnell, 114 Ill. App. 345.

86. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Houchins [Ky.] 89 S. W. 530.

87. Chicago & Alton R. Co. v. Vipond, 112 Ill. App. 558; Mintram v. New York, etc., R. Co., 104 App. Div. 38, 93 N. Y. S. 331. An employe of one road, lawfully upon the tracks of another under the terms of a written lease, is entitled to the exercise of ordinary care by such lessor (Loomis v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 182 N. Y. 380, 75 N. E. 228), and may assume that all of its rules will be observed in the moving of trains (Id). Complaint held to show a cause of action against each of several roads. Chicago & W. I. R. Co. v. Marshall [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 973. Servants of a company operating cars on the tracks of another under a contract may recover from the company owning the tracks for injuries resulting from negligence of its employes. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Vandenberg, 164 Ind. 470, 73 N. E. 990.

88. Harvey v. Louisiana Western R. Co., 114 La. 1065, 38 So. 859.

89. Risque's Adm'r v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 730.

90. Failure to descend from freight car and signal approaching train having the right of way. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Cummiskey [C. C. A.] 137 F. 508. Negligence and contributory negligence for the jury. Loomis v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 182 N. Y. 380, 75 N. E. 228.

91. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Cummiskey [C. C. A.] 137 F. 508.

92. Caffi v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 96 N. Y. S. 835. Failure to carry a light on an engine in the yard as is customary will sustain a finding of negligence where no substituted warning was given. Caffi v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 96 N. Y. S. 835.

93. Evidence held not to show negligence. Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Dowdy's Adm'x [Ky.] 91 S. W. 709. Person required to work on and about tracks held not guilty of contributory negligence. Sherrill v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 52 S. E. 940.

94. See 4 C. L. 1203.

lighted by one not an agent of the company.[95] A declaration against a railroad company for injuries received from the negligence of an express company occupying property leased from the former company is insufficient if it fails to show defendant's relation to the property, or the location thereof, or the reason for plaintiff's presence.[96]

Persons having relation to passenger.[97]—A railroad company owes, to one who comes to its station to receive a friend or guest, ordinary care for his safety while at the station.[98] One walking on a sidetrack of a railroad from the depot to a train on the main line in order to take passage on such train is a passenger and not a trespasser.[99]

Persons loading and unloading cars.[1]—Persons upon the right of way for the purpose of loading or unloading cars are not trespassers.[2] They must use ordinary care for their own safety but are not bound to anticipate danger,[3] and are entitled to the exercise of reasonable care and skill on the part of the railroad.[4] A railroad company is bound to have its premises to which persons resort on business with it in reasonably safe condition.[5] One entering a railroad yard on business at the invitation of the company is bound to exercise reasonable care.[6] The general rules of contributory negligence apply.[7]

Children on or near tracks.[8]—A railroad company may assume that no children are playing about its cars unless it has reasonable grounds to anticipate their presence,[9] but thereafter it cannot assume that the child will remain in or seek a place of safety.[10] The company must exercise ordinary care under the existing circumstances with reference to keeping a lookout,[11] and in stopping a train after the realization of danger.[12] It is generally for the jury to say whether a child is capable of understanding and avoiding the dangers to be encountered upon railroad tracks,[13] but walking along railroad tracks and over cattle guards is so danger-

95. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Walker, 217 Ill. 605, 75 N. E. 520.

96. Chicago & W. I. R. Co. v. Gardanier, 116 Ill. App. 619.

97. See 4 C. L. 1203.

98. Atlantic & B. R. Co. v. Owens, 123 Ga. 393, 51 S. E. 404.

99. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Proctor [Ky.] 89 S. W. 714.

1. See 4 C. L. 1203.

2. Southern R. Co. v. Goddard [Ky.] 89 S. W. 675.

3. Southern R. Co. v. Goddard [Ky.] 89 S. W. 675. A railroad company hauling rock from a quarry on a spur track owned by the quarry company is liable for injuries to an employe of the quarry company caused by defective equipment of a car. Hale v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 76 N. E. 656.

4. Hickey v. Rio Grande Western R. Co. [Utah] 82 P. 29. For the jury whether company negligent. Southern R. Co. v. Goddard [Ky.] 89 S. W. 675. Company guilty of gross negligence. Elgin, etc., R. Co. v. Thomas, 115 Ill. App. 508. A railroad company is liable for injuries to a freight handler caused by its negligence, though he is not in the employ of the railroad company. Defective brakes. Wheeling & L. E. R. Co. v. Rupp, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 273.

5. Colorado & S. R. Co. v. Sonne [Colo.] 83 P. 383.

6. Colorado & S. R. Co. v. Sonne [Colo.] 83 P. 383. One familiar with switching operations who crossed a switch track without looking or listening. Id.

7. Hickey v. Rio Grande Western R. Co. [Utah] 82 P. 29; Johnson v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 149, 103 N. W. 594; Southern R. Co. v. Goddard [Ky.] 89 S. W. 675. Person sitting on track after unloading car. Texas, etc., R. Co. v. McDonald [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 337, 88 S. W. 201.

8. See 4 C. L. 1203.

9. Ellington v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 827; Kinnare v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 230. The court will not presume a permissive license by a railroad company that its road bed be converted into a play ground for children. Huber v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Neb.] 103 N. W. 51.

10. In an action for death of a child killed in attempting to mount cars running down grade unattended, held a question for the jury whether defendant was negligent in releasing the cars. Ott v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 649.

11. Woods v. Wabash R. Co., 188 Mo. 229, 86 S. W. 1082.

12. Evidence held to sustain verdict for plaintiff. Woods v. Wabash R. Co., 188 Mo. 229, 86 S. W. 1082. Evidence held insufficient to show negligence of railroad employes. Freels v. Louisville, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 143.

13. Child of seven years, ten months.

ous that plaintiff's youth may not entirely exonerate him.[14] Contributory negligence of the parent will bar recovery.[15] It is not negligence to maintain an unlocked turntable near public grounds.[16]

Adults walking on tracks.[17]—In general one walking along the tracks of a railroad, except when necessary to cross upon some street, highway, or public place, is entitled only to the care required toward a trespasser,[18] and is in some states guilty of such negligence as to bar recovery for an injury resulting therefrom[19] unless from custom or otherwise the injured person can claim rights as a licensee,[20] or the operatives of the train saw the trespasser in time to avoid injury by the exercise of ordinary care.[21] Statutes may prohibit all persons except those connected with the railroad from walking upon its tracks at any other places than street and highway crossings,[22] and under such statutes a presumptive right to cross the tracks at a point not a street or highway crossing cannot be acquired even by long user, when it is necessary to walk along the tracks of an intersecting railroad to reach such point of crossing.[23]

Persons along or between tracks.[24]—When a track is laid along a public highway the rights of the public and the railroad company are equal,[25] and the company is charged with greater care to avoid injury to travelers.[26] A lookout must be kept for licensees along a recognized path,[27] but the engineer may assume that a pedestrian at the side of the track will remain there or step back when the train approaches.[28] Where the "locus in quo" is to be considered a public street, one injured upon the track of a railroad company cannot be deemed a trespasser,[29] nor is one a trespasser who follows a pedestrian beaten path in an attempt to board a train about to leave, though this path is some feet away from the depot.[30] Persons Kinnare & Chicago, etc., R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 230.

14. Age 15. Woods v. Wabash R. Co., 188 Mo. 229, 86 S. W. 1082.

15. Pollack v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [Pa.] 60 A. 312.

16. Walker's Adm'r v. Potomac, etc., R. Co. [Va.] 53 S. E. 113, repudiating, after extensive discussion, the doctrine of the "attractive nuisance" cases. Contra. Wheeling & L. E. R. Co. v. Harvey, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 57.

17. See 4 C. L. 1204.

18. Keller v. Erie R. Co. [N. Y.] 75 N. E. 965. Whether the maintaining of a pile of cinders along a track is negligence is for the jury. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Penny [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 196, 87 S. W. 718. Person using railroad track as a path is a trespasser and the company is bound only to refrain from wanton injury. Bartlett v. Wabash R. Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 96.

19. To walk on tracks on a dark night without attentively watching and listening is gross negligence. White v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 114 La. 825, 38 So. 574. Where plaintiff was walking on the track and did not look behind him and signals were given as soon as his presence was discovered. Williams v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 143. Trespasser failing to exercise vigilance to discover approaching trains cannot recover. Limb v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. [Kan.] 84 P. 136.

20. A person walking along the roadbed which the company has for years knowingly permitted the public to use as a walk way is a licensee and is not guilty of negligence as a matter of law in walking on the track. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 244, 88 S. W. 192. Evidence held not to show contributory negligence. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Watson [Miss.] 39 So. 69.

21. Burns v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 824; Engelking v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 187 Mo. 158, 86 S. W. 89.

22. Laws 1892, p. 1394, c. 676, § 53. Keller v. Erie R. Co. [N. Y.] 75 N. E. 965.

23. Keller v. Erie R. Co. [N. Y.] 75 N. E. 965.

24. See 4 C. L. 1205.

25. Rio Grande, etc., R. Co. v. Martinez [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 401, 87 S. W. 853.

26. Instructions on necessary care considered. Rio Grande, etc., R. Co. v. Martinez [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 401, 87 S. W. 853.

27. Negligence and contributory negligence for the jury. Hutchens v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 832, 89 S. W. 24; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 949, 89 S. W. 983.

28. Bicycle rider. Seaboard & R. R. Co. v. Vaughan's Adm'x [Va.] 51 S. E. 452. Railroad employes seeing a man lying beside the track are not negligent in failing to stop the train in anticipation that he would place his arm upon the rail before the train reached him. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Hathaway's Ex'x [Ky.] 89 S. W. 724.

29. Illinois Terminal R. Co. v. Mitchell, 116 Ill. App. 90.

walking on a railroad track are bound to be continually on the lookout for approaching trains.[31]

Persons standing, sitting, or lying on track.[32]—Sitting or lying upon a railroad track is contributory negligence,[33] and the sole duty of the company is to use all means in its power to keep from injuring a person so situated after discovery.[34]

Persons on bridges or trestles.[35]—One going upon a trestle is a trespasser,[36] and the engineer is under no duty to keep a lookout for such nor give warning of approach,[37] but the company may be liable for physical injury resulting from fright caused by failure to stop a train while crossing a bridge on which a person is known to be walking.[38] A railroad company is under no special obligation of care toward a trespassing child using a stone bridge abutment as a passway.[39] No liability exists for injury to a person arising from his misjudgment of space in driving under the company's bridge.[40] A person near a railroad crossing though having no intention of crossing the tracks, is entitled to the benefit of the statutory signals.[41]

Persons near crossings. Persons crossing tracks away from established crossings.[42]—Occasional use by the public of an enclosed right of way,[43] failure of a railroad company to proceed criminally against persons walking on its tracks, does not amount to a license;[44] but where trespassers habitually use a railroad track at a certain place, the railroad company is required to take notice of the fact and either provide for their exclusion or take precautions against injury,[45] though acquiescence in use by public of place other than public crossing imposes no duty to keep such place free from the appliances and machinery used in the operation of the road.[46] One about to cross a railroad track is bound not only to look and listen but to continue to use his eyes and ears until he has passed out of danger,[47] though in Texas it is for the jury to say whether he should look and listen, a failure to do so not being negligence per se.[48] A person having an impediment in his walk is not re-

30. Willis v. Vicksburg, etc., R. Co. [La.] 38 So. 892.

31. Copp v. Maine Cent. R. Co. [Me.] 62 A. 735.

32. See 4 C. L. 1205.

33. Ayers v. Wabash R. Co., 190 Mo. 228, 88 S. W. 608; Hall v. Western & A. R. Co., 123 Ga. 213, 51 S. E. 311; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. McDonald [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 337, 88 S. W. 201.

34. Hall v. Western & A. R. Co., 123 Ga. 213, 51 S. E. 311. Evidence held to require submission of whether injury to one killed while lying unconscious on the track could have been avoided after discovering his peril. Plemmons v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 52 S. E. 953.

35. See 4 C. L. 1206.

36. Flint v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1055. One going upon a trestle directly in front of a train is prima facie guilty of contributory negligence. International, etc., R. Co. v. De Ollos [Tex. Civ. App.] 76 S. W. 222.

37. Flint v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1055.

38. Complaint held to state a cause of action. Hendrix v. Texas & P. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 895, 89 S. W. 461.

39. Child not a licensee. Williamson v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 510, 88 S. W. 279.

40. Steele v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 123 Ga. 237, 51 S. E. 438.

41. Rev. St. 1895, § 4567. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Kilman [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1050.

42. See 4 C. L. 1206.

43. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Redmon's Adm'x [Ky.] 91 S. W. 722.

44. Copp v. Maine Cent. R. Co. [Me.] 62 A. 735.

45. Evidence held for jury. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Daniel [Ky.] 91 S. W. 691. Where a railroad company established a gate at a place where a street abuts on the right of way, and a great number of people habitually cross the tracks there, the railroad company is bound to use ordinary care to avoid injury to persons so crossing. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Simons [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 883. When the long continued and frequent use of a pathway crossing is acquiesced in by a railroad company. Person crossing tracks to reach private boat house held to be trespasser. Clark v. New York, etc., R. Co., 104 App. Div. 167, 93 N. Y. S. 525. It must exercise proper care in the operation of its trains. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 34.

46. Person crossing tripped on semaphore wire. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Fuller [Kan.] 84 P. 140.

47. Contributory negligence for the jury. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Johnson [Ark.] 86 S. W. 282.

48, 49. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Melville [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 29, 87 S. W. 863.

quired to exercise more care in looking and listening than one not so afflicted.[49] One who goes upon the right of way to pass around a train temporarily obstructing a street crossing is a trespasser,[50] but otherwise, if the crossing be blockaded for an unreasonable time and the traveler have urgent reason to cross;[51] and such a person does not necessarily become a trespasser by going straight across the tracks, after having passed around the train, instead of returning to the crossing.[52]

Persons in switch yards.[53]—Warning notices along railroad yard limits notifying all persons to keep off is sufficient notice to trespassers,[54] and no liability arises for injuries resulting from switching operations to a child playing in the yards, in the absence of evidence that the switching crew had or should have had knowledge of the presence of the child or his companions;[55] but to back an engine in yards frequented by pedestrians without maintaining a lookout is negligence.[56] An ordinance requiring a bell to ring continuously while a locomotive is in motion within city limits is applicable to railroad yards.[57] Failure to warn that cars are about to be moved is not actionable negligence when plaintiff knew without such information of the intended moving and took a position which he considered safe.[58] A liability may arise for injuries to a passenger on one road by reason of the proximity of track and cars of another company.[59]

Persons under cars.[60]—When a conductor in charge of a freight train states that he is through switching, one may assume that the car mentioned will be free from interference by the freight train,[61] and is not negligent in placing his foot on the rail while repairing the car.[62]

Persons stealing rides.[63]—A person riding on freight cars in violation of the company's rules cannot recover,[64] and the duty of the company is confined to refrain from willfully or intentionally injuring him.[65] Children fall within this rule, apparently, without regard to whether they are of sufficient discretion to be contributorily negligent.[66] Where the only negligence complained of was in the ejection of a person stealing a ride and such person was found dead from injuries causing instant death some distance from where he was ejected, no connection between ejection and death is shown.[67]

Persons using hand cars or railroad tricycles.[68]—A railroad company may be 50. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Cline, 111 Ill. App. 416.

51. Extreme coldness of weather is such an urgency. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Mayer, 112 Ill. App. 149.

52. Chicago & Alton R. Co. v. Mayer, 112 Ill. App. 149.

53. See 4 C. L. 1206.

54. Katzinski v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 356, 104 N. W. 409.

55. Hamilton v. Detroit, etc., R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 604, 105 N. W. 82; Katzinski v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 356, 104 N. W. 409.

56. Willis v. Vicksburg, etc., R. Co. [La.] 38 So. 892.

57. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Melville [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 29, 87 S. W. 863.

58. Belt R. Co. v. Manthei, 116 Ill. App. 330.

59. Instructions considered. Pittsburgh, etc., Co. v. Fitzpatrick, 112 Ill. App. 152.

60. See 4 C. L. 1206.

61, 62. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Pettit, 111 Ill. App. 172.

63. See 4 C. L. 1206.

64. Person riding in caboose. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Reed [Ark.] 88 S. W. 836. Person on foot board at rear of switch engine. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Williford [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 178.

65. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Reed [Ark.] 88 S. W. 836. Company held liable. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Kerr [Neb.] 104 N. W. 49. Evidence held to sustain a verdict for plaintiff injured by jumping from a freight train under threats by the brakeman. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Brown [Miss.] 39 So. 531. That a watchman requested an errand of a boy who thereafter played about in a place of safety for some time does not make the company liable for injury to the boy in boarding a moving train. Fitzgerald v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 118.

66. A child who does not claim that he did not know it was wrong and dangerous to climb on a moving freight car will be chargeable with contributory negligence. Fitzgerald v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 118.

67. Morgan v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Utah] 83 P. 576.

liable for negligent injury to a quasi licensee using a tricycle upon its tracks with permission.[69]

(§ 11) F. Accidents to trains.[70]—It is a complete defense, in an action by a sleeping car porter for injuries received from the explosion of a locomotive, that in his contract with the sleeping car company he released from liability for personal injuries all railroad companies over whose lines the sleeping cars traveled.[71] Where the explosion of car of burning naphtha injures persons who go into a field from curiosity to watch the conflagration, the questions of negligence and contributory negligence are for the jury.[72] A company is liable to a pedestrian at a safe distance upon the right of way injured by the breaking of the engine because of excessive speed.[73]

(§ 11) G. Accidents at crossings. 1. Care required on part of company. General rules.[74]—Travelers and railroad companies have reciprocal rights at highway crossings,[75] and each must know that the other may use the crossing at any time.[76] The care requisite at crossings is that which is commensurate with the dangers,[77] greater vigilance and care being required at street crossings in a populous city.[78] Where the view is obstructed,[79] and where a dangerous situation is apparent, the train should be stopped as soon as possible.[80] A traveler's mistake in judgment does not excuse the willful or negligent infliction of injury upon him.[81] Those in charge of a locomotive must exercise ordinary care in keeping a lookout,[82] but a fireman is not negligent in failing to keep a lookout at a crossing where he is otherwise engaged in his regular line of duty.[83] Negligent running of a train creates a liability for injuries inflicted.[84] To be actionable, the negligence complained of must of course be the proximate cause of injury.[85]

Duty to signal.[86]—Failure to give a reasonable warning of the approach of a locomotive may render the company liable.[87] Statutes may require every locomotive

68. See 4 C. L. 1207.

69. Wabash R. Co. v. Erb [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 939. Plaintiff held not to have been a trespasser. Trinity & B. V. R. Co. v. Simpson [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 23, 86 S. W. 1034.

70. See 4 C. L. 1207.

71. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Hamler, 215 Ill. 525, 74 N. E. 705.

72. Morrison v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 338.

73. Evidence held to show no contributory negligence, and that excessive speed of locomotive was proximate cause of injury. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Chiles [Miss.] 38 S. 498.

74. See 4 C. L. 1207.

75. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Glover [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 263, 88 S. W. 515.

76. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Cleaver [Ky.] 89 S. W. 494.

77. Wardner v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 1084. Reasonable and ordinary care. Christensen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Utah] 80 P. 746. A railroad company should, under the law, take proper precautions for the safety of travelers on the highway having reference to all the conditions and probabilities to be anticipated. Brooks v. Boston & M. R. Co., 188 Mass. 416, 74 N. E. 670.

78. McCabe's Adm'x v. Maysville & B. S. R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 683.

79. Bilton v. Southern Pac. Co. [Cal.] 83 P. 440. Injury at crossing where view was obstructed. Train operated at excessive speed. Id.

80. Yeaton v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 61 A. 522. Brammer's Adm'r v. Norfolk & W. R. Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 211.

81. Yeaton v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 61 A. 522. Jumping from street car to avoid apparent collision. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Vollrath [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 777, 89 S. W. 279.

82. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Sisson [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 347, 88 S. W. 371; McCabe's Adm'x v. Maysville, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 683.

83. Brammer's Adm'r v. Norfolk & W. R. Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 211.

84 Ray v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 57 W. Va. 333, 50 S. E. 413.

85. Conduct of employes at work at crossing held not negligent nor the cause of horse being frightened. Courtney v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 106 N. W. 90. That a train was unlawfully obstructing a crossing held not the proximate cause of injury to one who, mistaking a trainman's starting signal for an invitation to cross, was injured. Corbin v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [Vt.] 63 A. 138.

86. See 4 C. L. 1209.

87. Pyne v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 212 Pa. 143, 61 A. 817; Norris v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Conn.] 61 A. 1075. If a prudent rail-to be equipped with bell and whistle and that they be sounded under specified conditions,[88] and a failure to give statutory signals is negligence per se;[89] but this duty does not extend to private crossings[90] or crossings not on the same grade,[91] though persons using private crossings in the vicinity of a public crossing are entitled to the benefit of signals required to be given at the latter.[92]

Speed.[93]—In the absence of statute or ordinance a railroad company may determine the speed of its trains, but under the rules of common law must exercise its franchise with due regard to the safety of the public,[94] unless there be circumstances of peculiar hazard about a particular crossing which require a slackening of speed.[95] Excessive speed[96] may be some evidence of negligence,[97] and in some states is negligence per se,[98] but does not prevent the application of rules of contributory negligence.[99] A high rate of speed may be proper at a country crossing, although it might be considered negligence in a populous city.[1] The speed of a road company would give warning of the approach of a train to a public place, it is negligence to fail to do so. Bamberg v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 988. Private crossing. Ayers v. Wabash R. Co., 190 Mo. 228, 88 S. W. 608. Where it was customary for a train to stand at a certain place for several hours, it is negligence to run without warning, move the train over a crossing permissively used by the public during such period of time. Minot v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 61 A. 609.

88. Civ. Code § 486, requiring the sounding of a bell or whistle where a railroad crosses any street or highway, is applicable where the railroad crosses the highway on a bridge. Johnson v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 147 Cal. 624, 82 P. 306. That a train starts towards a crossing within the designated distance at which signals must be given does not excuse a failure to signal. Rev. St. 1899, § 1102. Spiller v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 112 Mo. App. 491, 87 S. W. 43.

89. Morey v. Lake Superior, etc., R. Co., 125 Wis. 148, 103 N. W. 271; Greenawaldt v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. [Ind.] 73 N. E. 910; Wilson's Adm'rs v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 778, 86 S. W. 690; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crominarity [Miss.] 38 So. 633; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Vollrath [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 777, 89 S. W. 279. When there is evidence tending to show that signals were not given at a railroad crossing by a train passing over an interlocking switch, though by the company's rules it would not be opened without signals, the court will not hold as a matter of law that signals were given. Bamberg v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 988. The only question for the jury with reference to an electric gong at a railway crossing which failed to ring is whether the defendant company had exercised ordinary care under all the circumstances to prevent the accident. C., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Sivey, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 221. Failure to give statutory signals at a crossing is negligence. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Robbins [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 804.

90. For the jury whether failure to signal was negligence. Ayers v. Wabash R. Co., 190 Mo. 228, 88 S. W. 608.

91. Lewis v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 38 So. 1023. It is only at grade crossings that the Virginia statutes require signals. Construing Code 1904, § 1294d. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Scruggs [Va.] 52 S. E. 834.

92. Wilson's Adm'rs v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 778, 86 S. W. 690.

93. See 4 C. L. 1209.

94. For the jury to determine whether speed was negligence. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Smart, 116 Ill. App. 523. Where the view is obstructed the speed of a train should be so regulated that a traveler who has stopped, looked and listened at the proper place may pass in safety. Schwarz v. Delaware, etc., R. Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 255. Whether it is negligence to run across an unguarded crossing at a speed of 40 miles an hour without giving warning is for the jury. Nelson v. Long Island R. Co., 109 App. Div. 626, 96 N. Y. S. 246. No particular rate of speed at country crossing is negligence per se. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Campbell [Colo.] 83 P. 138. 50 miles per hour. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Barnes [Ind.] 76 N. E. 629. Finding of negligence sustained, 35 miles an hour, where view was obstructed. Bilton v. Southern Pac. R. Co. [Cal.] 83 P. 440.

95. That a crossing was much used for travel does not alone make it extra hazardous. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Barnes [Ind.] 76 N. E. 629.

96. Morey v. Lake Superior, etc., R. Co., 125 Wis. 148, 103 N. W. 271.

97. Morey v. Lake Superior, etc., R. Co., 125 Wis. 148, 103 N. W. 271; Southern I. R. Co. v. Messick [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1097.

98. Southern I. R. Co. v. Messick [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1097; Borneman v. Chicago etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 208; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Pulliam, 111 Ill. App. 305. Excessive speed creates a presumption of negligence under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 114, § 87, but that presumption may be overcome. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Crose, 214 Ill. 602, 73 N. E. 865. Running train over street crossing at greater speed than ordinance allows is negligence per se. Schmidt v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo.] 90 S. W. 136.

99. Greenwood v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 3. That a train is run at a forbidden rate of speed does not excuse use of due care at crossing. Schmidt v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo.] 90 S. W. 136.

1. Southern I. R. Co. v. Messick [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1097. To run a fast passenger train in the nighttime over a country crossing at the rate of 35 miles an hour is not train should be moderated when a flagman is off duty and the gates are locked open.[2]

Gates.[3]—Failure to maintain gates at a country highway crossing is not negligence,[4] nor is the erection of gates as required by a valid municipal ordinance.[5] A railroad is not negligent in failing to maintain at street crossings gates of sufficient strength to restrain a runaway team.[6]

Flagmen.[7]—In the exercise of its police power a municipality may require a railroad company to keep a watchman at a dangerous crossing,[8] but otherwise of a crossing practically in the open country where there is no evidence to show the extent of the public use thereof.[9] Failure to place a flagman at a crossing is not negligence per se.[10] Flagman not necessary where crossing gates are properly operated from a distant tower,[11] but otherwise of failure to place a watchman at a much used city street crossing, or to take other precautions commensurate with the danger, at least during hours when numbers of people use the crossing.[12] It is a flagman's duty to know of the approach of trains and to give timely warning to all persons attempting to cross the railroad tracks.[13]

Headlights.[14]—An ordinance requiring railroad companies under penalty to light their crossings at night is to be strictly construed[15] and must be definite and specific.[16]

Switching and backing trains.[17]—It is unlawful for a railroad company to back cars over a crossing without signals.[18] An engineer backing his engine after dark over a busy street crossing, where he knows there is no watchman, should exercise care proportionate to the danger.[19]

(§ 11G) 2. Contributory negligence. General rules.[20]—One intending to cross at a highway crossing must make a reasonable use of his senses, the care required being proportionate to the dangers of the crossing.[21]

Who may be charged.[22]—Contributory negligence of a driver of private conveyance is not imputable to one riding with him as guest or companion,[23] unless the negligence. Keiser v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 212 Pa. 409, 61 A. 903.

2. Schwarz v. Delaware, etc., R. Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 255.

3. See 4 C. L. 1210.

4. Christensen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Utah] 80 P. 746.

5. Klein v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 114 Mo. App. 89, 89 S. W. 75. Injury to members of fire department by collision with machinery for operating gates. Seibert v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 188 Mo. 657, 87 S. W. 995.

6. Brooks v. Boston & M. R. Co., 188 Mass. 416, 74 N. E. 670.

7. See 4 C. L. 1210.

8, 9. Commonwealth v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 205.

10. Cowen v. Dietrick [Md.] 60 A. 282. County highway crossing. Christensen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Utah] 80 P. 746.

11. Brooks v. Boston & M. R. Co., 188 Mass. 416, 74 N. E. 670.

12. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Coley [Ky.] 89 S. W. 234. Where an engine is backed over a crossing at night, warning signals should be given and a man with a light should be stationed as lookout. Reid v. Atlanta & C. Air Line R. Co. [N. C.] 52 S. E. 307.

13. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 110 Ill. App. 154.

14. See 4 C. L. 1210.

15. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Salem [Ind.] 76 N. E. 631.

16. An ordinance requiring such light at crossings in a town as the town maintains is too indefinite. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Salem [Ind.] 76 N. E. 631.

17. See 4 C. L. 1210.

18. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Hammett, 115 Ill. App. 268. For a railroad to kick a string of detached cars over the crossing of a public street with much force and without warning is actionable negligence with respect to a pedestrian injured thereby. Chicago Terminal Transfer Co. v. Walton [Ind.] 74 N. E. 988. It is negligence for a railroad company to kick a detached standing car, driving it across a crossing without giving warning. Davis v. Michigan Cent. R. Co. [Mich.] 105 N. W. 877.

19. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Coley [Ky.] 89 S. W. 234.

20. See 4 C. L. 1210.

21. Wardner v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 1084; Armstrong v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 212 Pa. 288, 61 A. 831.

22. See 4 C. L. 1211.

23. Colorado & S. R. Co. v. Thomas, 33 Colo. 517, 81 P. 801.

injured person is able to exercise authority over the driver, or fails to exercise reasonable care under the circumstances.[24] The care required of an infant is such as may be reasonably expected of one of his age, intelligence, and experience.[25]

Acts required of traveler.[26]—The law regards a railroad crossing as a place of danger,[27] though in some states travelers and railroad companies have reciprocal rights at highway crossings.[28] All persons competent to exercise care for their own protection must use their faculties of sight and hearing,[29] and one who could have seen an approaching train but went on the crossing without looking is guilty of contributory negligence.[30] He must look and listen at a sufficient distance[31] before attempting to cross the track,[32] continue to exercise such care[33] until past the danger,[34] look both ways,[35] and exercise care proportionate to the dangerous nature of the place[36] and in view of all the circumstances.[37] One who hears a 24. Colorado & S. R. Co. v. Thomas, 33 Colo. 517, 81 P. 801. Contributory negligence of a driver may be imputed to the passenger. Dryden v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 249.

25. Christensen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Utah] 80 P. 746. A child of six years and ten months can not be charged with contributory negligence (Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Jamieson, 112 Ill. App. 69), nor can a child of less than six years (Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Eganolf, 112 Ill. App. 323).

26. See 4 C. L. 1211.

27. Seaboard & R. R. Co v. Vaughn's Adm'x [Va.] 51 S. E. 452; Marshall & Green Bay & W. R. Co., 125 Wis. 96, 103 N. W. 249; Brammer's Adm'r v. Norfolk & W. R. Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 211.

28. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Glover [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 263, 88 S. W. 515; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Cleaver [Ky.] 89 S. W. 494.

29. Marshall v. Green Bay & W. R. Co., 125 Wis. 96, 103 N. W. 249; Wardner v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 1084; Cowen v. Dietrick [Md.] 60 A. 282; Fuchs v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. [N. J. Law] 61 A. 1; Brammer's Adm'r v. Norfolk & W. R. Co. [Va.] 61 S. E. 211. Contributory negligence held for the jury. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Robbins [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 804. Negligence in going on a crossing does not contribute to injury received some time later while lawfully at work between the tracks. Elgin, J. & E. R. Co. v. Hoadley [Ill.] 77 N. E. 151.

30. Schmidt v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo.] 90 S. W. 136; Milliman v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 109 App. Div. 139, 95 N. Y. S. 1097; Carlson v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Minn.] 105 N. W. 555. One who sees the steam of an approaching train, view of the track being obstructed, and drives on the crossing in an effort to get across ahead of it, is guilty of contributory negligence, though he would have had ample time to get across had the train not been backing up. Storrs v. Grand Trunk W. R. Co. [Mich.] 105 N. W. 764.

31. Southern R. Co. v. Carroll [C. C. A.] 138 F. 638. Distance not arbitrary, but traveler must use a place reasonably calculated to afford full opportunity for seeing and hearing. Greenawaldt v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. [Ind.] 73 N. E. 910. That one driving a team stopped, looked and listened at a place where the traveling public generally stopped is strong evidence that it was a proper place. Fry v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 147. For the jury to determine whether plaintiff stopped at a proper place. Toban v. Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 475; Summers v. Bloomsburg & S. R. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 615. An instruction limiting the injury on contributory negligence to "the instant" when an accident occurred is erroneous. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Kief, 111 Ill. App. 354.

32. Pyne v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 212 Pa. 142, 61 A. 817; Anderson v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [Md.] 61 A. 575; Southern R. Co. v. Carroll [C. C. A.] 138 F. 638.

33. Blotz v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 212 Pa. 154, 61 A. 832; Southern R. Co. v. Carroll [C. C. A.] 138 F. 638. One who stops and looks 30 feet from a crossing where the view is obstructed, and continuously listens from that time, is not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law in not stopping again. Coffee v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 953. Contributory negligence held for the jury where plaintiff stopped, looked and listened when a few feet from the track. Nelson v. Long Island R. Co., 109 App. Div. 626, 96 N. Y. S. 246.

34. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hitt [Ark.] 88 S. W. 911.

35. Marshall v. Green Bay & W R. Co., 125 Wis. 96, 103 N. W. 249. Failure to look for approaching trains is negligence. Fisher v. Central Vermont R. Co., 109 App. Div. 449, 95 N. Y. S. 693. The fact that one about to drive over a railroad track looks each way and then starts his horse on a trot is not conclusive proof that he saw an approaching train. Such action is ordinarily that of a prudent man who desires to avoid any possible risk in a place well known to be dangerous. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Moloney, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 437. Though no signals were given, if the person injured could have discovered the approaching train by looking and listening and he failed to do so, he cannot recover. Cooper v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 52 S. E. 932. Must look and listen before going on crossing. Evidence held to show contributory negligence. Stokes' Adm'x v. Southern R. Co. [Va.] 52 S. E. 855.

36. Fuchs v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. [N. J. Law] 61 A. 1; Dryden v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 249.

train at a crossing where the view is obstructed, but is told by another that it is not on that track, is not guilty of contribuory negligence as a matter of law in going on the crossing without waiting to see where the train was.[38] If one listens and looks attentively before going on a crossing and discovers no appearance of danger, it cannot be said as a matter of law that he was guilty of contributory negligence in not waiting longer.[39] Many courts hold that a traveler upon a highway approaching a crossing must stop, look, and listen,[40] but the better rule seems to be that whether he must stop in addition to looking and listening, depends upon the facts of each case;[41] while in Kentucky[42] and Texas it is for the jury to say whether one should look and listen, a failure to do so not being negligence per se.[43] In Illinois a failure to look up and down the track is not negligence per se,[44] even though the crossing gates are down,[45] though otherwise, where the gates are down at a reasonable time and the flagman gives warning.[46] The traveler is bound only to exercise ordinary care and prudence,[47] and when he can neither hear nor see a train he is not guilty of contributory negligence in assuming that there is no train sufficiently near to make the crossing dangerous, when the statutory signals are not given.[48] That a traveler is hard of hearing and short sighted increases his obligation to be watchful at railroad crossings.[49] A company is not liable to one who through fright places himself in a place of danger.[50] Since a person approaching a crossing is 37. Norris v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Conn.] 61 A. 1075; Farrell v. Erie R. Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 28. Contributory negligence held for jury where person was injured at crossing where view was obstructed. Tingley v. Long Island R. Co., 109 App. Div. 793, 96 N. Y. S. 865. It is contributory negligence as a matter of law to drive on a crossing where the view is obstructed without stopping, looking and listening. State v. Western Md. R. Co. [Md.] 62 A. 754.

38. Coffee v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 953.

39. Bilton v. Southern Pac. R. Co. [Cal.] 83 P. 440.

40. Cohen v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 211 Pa. 227, 60 A. 729; Pyne v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 212 Pa. 143, 61 A. 817; Toban v. Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 475. Failure to look, when to have done so would have prevented injury and where there are no circumstances justifying such a failure, precludes recovery. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Christy, 111 Ill. App. 247. Where there is no evidence that one injured at a crossing looked or listened on approaching it, there can be no recovery. York v. New York, etc., R. Co., 108 App. Div. 126, 95 N. Y. S. 1105. Evidence held to show that person in automobile either deliberately tried to cross in front of an approaching train or that he wholly failed to keep a lookout. Turck v. New York, etc., R. Co., 108 App. Div. 142, 95 N. Y. S. 1100. Where plaintiff drove onto a crossing without looking for approaching trains, he is guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Schwanenfeldt [Neb.] 105 N. W. 1101.

41. Marshall v. Green Bay & W. R. Co., 125 Wis. 96, 103 N. W. 249; Fuchs v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. [N. J. Law] 61 A. 1; Bamberg v. Atlantic C. L. R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 988; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crominarity [Miss.] 38 So. 633; O'Connor v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 614.

42. Wilson's Adm'rs v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 778, 86 S. W. 690; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Cleaver [Ky.] 89 S. W. 494.

43. Accident to employe of defendant. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Melville [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 29, 87 S. W. 863.

44. Chicago & Alton R. Co. v. Pulliam, 111 Ill. App. 305. Duty to look and listen depends on surrounding circumstances. Chicago Junction R. Co. v. McAnrow, 114 Ill. App. 501. Whether failure to stop, look and listen is contributory negligence is for the jury. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Hammett [Ill.] 77 N. E. 72.

45. Evidence showed a custom to leave the gates down without reason. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Keegan, 112 Ill. App. 338.

46. Ludolph v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 116 Ill. App. 239.

47. Farrell v. Erie R. Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 28; International, etc., R. Co. v. Glover [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 263, 88 S. W. 515; Dougherty v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 672; Southern R. Co. v. Carroll [C. C. A.] 138 F. 638. A traveler should give way to any train in sight or hearing, and moving so rapidly as to make it doubtful whether he can cross in perfect safety. Southern R. Co. v. Carroll [C. C. A.] 138 F. 638.

48. Dougherty v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 672.

49. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Smart, 116 Ill. App. 523. Man of impaired hearing and vision driving on crossing without stopping or looking held guilty of contributory negligence. Hood v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 109 App. Div. 418, 96 N. Y. S. 431. A deaf person approaching a railroad crossing is held to a more vigilant exercise of his remaining senses than one not so affected. Toledo, P. & W. R. Co. v. Hammett [Ill.] 77 N. E. 72.

bound to the vigilant exercise of his senses, that a train was an extra does not excuse his failure to take proper precautions.[51]

Duty where view of track is obstructed.[52]—A person whose hearing[53] or vision is temporarily obstructed should take the greater care[54] and await its passing away,[55] or resort to other means to ascertain whether a train is approaching, and after passing the obstruction stop, look and listen.[56] A traveler unable to obtain a sufficient view from his carriage should go forward on foot and investigate.[57] It is not contributory negligence as a matter of law for a person to stand for a moment on a crossing near a detached and stationary car.[58]

Parallel tracks.[59]—A failure to stop, look and listen at each track may not be contributory negligence.[60] Only positive evidence that one killed at a railroad crossing did not stop, look and listen will so rebut the presumption that he did so as to take the case from the jury.[61]

Right to rely on crossing signals, stops, gates, flagmen, etc.[62]—The public may, to a reasonable extent, rely on a gateman or other person to perform his duty in giving signals of danger,[63] but a failure to perform such duty does not justify a traveler in placing himself in a position of danger,[64] nor absolve him from the use of independent observation for his own protection;[65] and that an automatic alarm at a crossing does not ring, does not as a matter of law entitle a traveler to assume that

50. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Haecker, 110 Ill. App. 102.

51. Carlson v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Minn.] 105 N. W. 555.

52. See 4 C. L. 1212.

53. Fuchs v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. [N. J. Law] 61 A. 1. Defective hearing. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Smart, 116 Ill. App. 523.

54. Cohen v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 211 Pa. 227, 60 A. 729. Defective eyesight. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Smart, 116 Ill. App. 523.

55. Keller v. Erie R. Co. [N. Y.] 75 N. E. 965. Where a temporary obstruction like a passing train obstructs the view, it is the duty of the traveler to wait until the view is clear and then look. Turck v. New York, etc., R. Co., 108 App. Div. 142, 95 N. Y. S. 1100.

56. Colorado & S. R. Co. v. Thomas, 33 Colo. 517, 81 P. 801. One approaching a crossing where the view is obstructed is not as a matter of law guilty of contributory negligence in failing to ask persons standing near the track if it was safe to cross. Coffee v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 102 N. W. 953.

57. Dryden v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 249; Blotz v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 212 Pa. 154, 61 A. 832; Brammer's Adm'r v. Norfolk & W. R. Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 211.

58. Davis v. Michigan Cent. R. Co. [Mich.] 105 N. W. 877.

59. See 4 C. L. 1212.

60. Cohen v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 211 Pa. 227, 60 A. 729; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hitt [Ark.] 88 S. W. 908. Where one who has crossed two parallel tracks, and is waiting for the passage of a train on the third, stands so near the second track that he is injured by a train thereon, the approach of which he could have seen, he is guilty of contributory negligence. Hoopes v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Kan.] 83 P. 987. Evidence that person stepped on one track to avoid a train passing on another held to show contributory negligence. Mullin v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. [Del. Super.] 63 A. 26.

61. Hanna v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 643.

62. See 4 C. L. 1212.

63. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 110 Ill. App. 154; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Connell [C. C. A.] 137 F. 8; Greenawaldt v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1081; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Olson, 113 Ill. App. 320; Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Hammett, 115 Ill. App. 268. Travelers may take into consideration the suggestions and conduct of a brakeman in a position to observe the tracks. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hitt [Ark.] 88 S. W. 990. Where a flagman beckoned to one driving to proceed across the tracks, he had a right to rely on the assurance that he would incur no danger from approaching trains (Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Fike [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 636), and one may assume that he may cross in safety where the flagman is at his post but gives no warning (Chicago Junction R. Co. v. McAnrow, 114 Ill. App. 501). Every person who would be benefited by compliance by a railroad with a speed ordinance may assume that it will not be violated. Davenport, etc., R. Co. v. De Yaeger, 112 Ill. App. 537. Failure to give statutory signals at a crossing does not excuse persons using the crossing from exercising ordinary care. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Robbins [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 804.

64. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Hammett, 115 Ill. App. 268. Failure to signal by bell or whistle does not justify a person in attempting to cross railroad tracks without looking for trains. Fisher v. Central Vt. R. Co., 109 App. Div. 449, 95 N. Y. S. 693.

65. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Olson, 113 Ill. App. 320; Wardner v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 1084; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Cleaver [Ky.] 89 S. W. 494; Cohen v.

the crossing is clear.[66] The fact that the crossing gates are up is an indication to travelers that they can safely cross the tracks,[67] but does not justify them in ignoring all the other sights and sounds indicating that they cannot safely advance,[68] but the raising of gates after the passing of a train is an invitation for travelers to cross.[69] A traveler is not required to anticipate that an approaching train would proceed at an unlawful speed[70] or at a speed dangerous in view of the relative location of the crossing and a curve.[71]

Duties as to standing, switching, and backing trains.[72]—An attempt to pass between cars blocking a city street is not necessarily contributory negligence.[73]

(§ 11) H. Injuries to persons on highway or private premises near tracks. Injuries from frightened horses.[74]—Travelers must regard railroad crossings as a place of danger.[75] A railway company is not liable for injuries from frightening horses by the ordinary operation of a train[76] or hand car,[77] though it may be for doing anything unnecessary, naturally calculated to frighten ordinarily gentle horses,[78] or for failure to sound the statutory signals,[79] or to give warning at an elevated crossing though not required by law if in fact such would be reasonable.[80] It may be negligence to give the statutory crossing signal when it will obviously increase the fright of a team,[81] and to leave a hand car on a highway is prima facie unlawful.[82] A company is not required to keep a lookout for trains on parallel highways remote from stations and crossings,[83] or on thoroughfares which are not

Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 211 Pa. 227, 60 A. 729; Larsen v. United States Mortg. & Trust Co., 105 App. Div. 631, 93 N. Y. S. 610; Brammer's Adm'r v. Norfolk & W. R. Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 211.

66. Southern I. R. Co. v. Corps [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 902.

67. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Zapp, 110 Ill. App. 553; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Olson, 113 Ill. App. 320.

68. Briggs v. Boston & M. R. Co., 188 Mass. 463, 74 N. E. 667.

69. Smith v. Michigan Cent. R. Co. [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 928.

70. Farrell v. Erie R. Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 28; Davenport, etc., R. Co. v. Yaeger, 112 Ill. App. 537.

71. Farrell v. Erie R. Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 28.

72. See 4 C. L. 1213.

73. Whether one is negligent in attempting to pass between cars by getting upon the bumpers at the invitation of the brakeman is a question for the jury. Sheridan v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [Md.] 60 A. 280. Evidence is admissible to show that train blocked the crossing for an unlawful length of time and that plaintiff was in danger of being late at his employment. Thomasson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 443.

74. See 4 C. L. 1218.

75. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Fike [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 636. Failure to look up and down track. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Vremeister, 112 Ill. App. 346.

76. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Sights [Ky.] 89 S. W. 132; Lewis v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 38 So. 1023; Foster v. East Jordan Lumber Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 426, 104 N. W. 617; Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Walkenshaw [Kan.] 81 P. 463. One driving across railroad tracks in front of an engine attached to a train assumes the risk of his horse becoming frightened at the noises made in the ordinary handling of a train, as a whistle signal to the brakeman. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Fike [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 636. A railroad company is not liable for the frightening of horses on adjacent premises by the noises incident to the ordinary movement of its trains. Wieber v. New York, etc., R. Co., 109 App. Div. 81, 96 N. Y. S. 28.

77. Failure to give warning of the approach of a hand car is not negligence per se in the absence of statute or ordinance. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Vremeister, 112 Ill. App. 346. Averment of injury by horse becoming frightened at hand car left near track demurrable unless it is alleged that the hand car was an object likely to frighten horses. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Gee [Va.] 52 S. E. 572.

78. Escaping steam. Negligence for the jury. Foster v. East Jordan Lumber Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 426, 104 N. W. 617; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 545, 88 S. W. 445; Ala. Great Southern R. Co. v. Fulton [Ala.] 39 So. 282; Hickey v. Rio Grande Western Ry. Co. [Utah] 82 P. 29; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hord [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 351, 87 S. W. 848. For the jury whether company's employés were negligent in manner of placing a hand car on track at crossing (Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Harley [Neb.] 104 N. W. 862), or whether a hand car moving at an excessive speed was the proximate cause of injury (St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Everett [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 457.

79. Johnson v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 147 Cal. 624, 82 P. 306.

80. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Sawyer, 114 Tenn. 84, 86 S. W. 386. Contra, Lewis v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 38 So. 1023.

81. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Kilman [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1050.

82. Southern I. R. Co. v. Norman [Ind.] 74 N. E. 896.

public highways, but are near the right of way,[84] nor to give warning of intention to move a train to parties near the track but having no business with the company;[85] but after discovery of the peril of a traveler, because of the fright of his mule, the company's servants must use every means at hand which a man of ordinary prudence would have used to allay the fright of the animal.[86] When the person in charge of a train sees one deliberately drive a team into immediate proximity to the track, he need not stop but may assume that the team is gentle and that the driver will use due care,[87] but he must keep watch and immediately on discovering that for any reason the driver does not or cannot avoid the danger, he must use all available means to stop the train.[88] A railroad company is liable for injuries resulting from a mule taking fright at a mail crane and mail bag suspended therefrom upon the property of the company.[89] Flagmen should give such warning of the approach of a train as will enable a traveler to stop his team where an ordinarily well broken team would not become dangerously frightened, or such warning as would give him time, if his team were not ordinarily well broken, to turn about and drive to a point of safety.[90] It is negligence to place a signal torpedo on the track so near a highway that a person on the highway is injured by explosion of the torpedo.[91] The usual rules as to contributory negligence apply.[92] Failure to stop, look and listen is immaterial in an action for injury resulting from a mule taking fright at a mail crane and mail bag.[93]

(§ 11) I. Injuries to animals on or near tracks.[94] How far liability extends.[95]—The general rules applying to injuries to licensees and trespassers extend to the live stock of such persons upon the right of way under similar conditions,[96] and a railroad company may be guilty of negligence in failing to give signals[97] independent of the statutory crossing signals,[98] or for using an inferior kind

83. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Walkenshaw [Kan.] 81 P. 463.

84. Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Fulton [Ala.] 39 So. 282.

85. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hord [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 351, 87 S. W. 848.

86. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Fulton [Ala.] 39 So. 282. Evidence of frightening of horse by escaping steam held to show that engineer stopped the steam as soon as possible after observing the horse and accordingly disclosed no negligence. Powers v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [Vt.] 63 A. 139.

87, 88. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Clinkenbeard [Kan.] 84 P. 142.

89. No defense that mail bag was for government. That driver should have seen person approaching with mail bag does not show contributory negligence. Western R. of Ala. v. Cleghorn [Ala.] 39 So. 133.

90. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Sights [Ky.] 89 S. W. 132.

91. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Schultz [Miss.] 39 So. 1005.

92. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Fulton [Ala.] 39 So. 282; St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Everett [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 890, 89 S. W. 457; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Crose, 214 Ill. 602, 73 N. E. 865; Hickey v. Rio Grande W. R. Co. [Utah] 82 P. 29. Evidence held to require submission of contributory negligence in leaving team unattended near railroad track. Habenicht v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 105 N. W. 910. It is not contributory negligence as a matter of law for a shipper to leave his team unattended near the track while he went to the freight house, the team being at the place to which he was directed by the baggageman to go. Bankman v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 105 N. W. 154. That a city employe, whose duty it was to clean street lights between the tracks at a railroad crossing, knew of the dangerous character of the crossing does not as a matter of law charge him with contributory negligence. Elgin, etc., R. Co. v. Hoadley [Ill.] 77 N. E. 151.

93. Western R. Co. v. Cleghorn [Ala.] 39 So. 133.

94. See 4 C. L. 1219.

95. See 4 C. L. 1220.

96. Acord v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 84, 87 S. W. 537; Russell v. Maine Cent. R. Co. [Me.] 61 A. 899; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Waycross Elec. L. & P. Co., 123 Ga. 613, 51 S. E. 621. Must use ordinary care. Atlanta & W. P. R. Co. v. Hudson, 123 Ga. 108, 51 S. E. 29. Conduct after discovery of animals on track. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Rodgers [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 625. Killing of horse upon depot grounds. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Harbison [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 610, 88 S. W. 414. Not bound to keep tracks in such condition that animal going thereon will not be hurt. Horse fell through bridge. Padgitt v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 67.

97. Dougherty v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 672.

98. O'Leary v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 362; Dougherty v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 672.

of locomotive headlight."[99] In some states an engineer need not keep a lookout for trespassing stock,[1] while in others he owes no duty toward trespassing stock until after discovery of their presence.[2] After the discovery of an approaching unattended team, an accident must be avoided by stopping the train, if possible in the exercise of ordinary care.[3] There is no common-law remedy for injuries to stock by railroads[4] other than the ordinary remedy for negligent injuries to stock.[5] Under the Arkansas statute providing a penalty for injuries to stock by reason of failure to maintain cattle guards, the owner cannot recover the value of the stock.[6] By statute, railroad companies may be held liable for injuries to animals running against the fence upon the right of way.[7] Statutes on injury to stock apply to companies operating railroads regardless of the ownership.[8] Where an animal goes suddenly on the track so close to an approaching train that it is impossible to stop there is no liability[9] unless the impossibility of stopping was due to the train being operated at a negligent rate of speed.[10] Evidence that by a proper lookout an animal on the track could have been seen in time to stop the train makes a case for the jury.[11] Under a statute providing that proof of injury by the operation of a train raises a presumption of negligence, a case for the jury is made by evidence that plaintiff's animal was found injured at a place some distance from the railroad and that tracks ran from such place to where hair and blood on the ties showed that an animal had been injured.[12] That an animal is killed by a train at a public crossing does not ordinarily make a prima facie case.[13]

Place of entry on right of way.[14]—The place where the animal gets upon the track and not where it is injured fixes the liability of the road.[15] A railroad company owes no duty of fencing as to the owner of stock pastured on the property of a third person which does not join the railroad location,[16] though in

99. Light showing only 90 or 100 ft. ahead. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Shannon [Ark.] 88 S. W. 851.

1. Borneman v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 208.

Contra: Must keep a lookout [Kirby's Dig. § 6607] (Prescott, etc., R. Co. v. Brown [Ark.] 86 S. W. 809), and if running through a town he must be on the alert and prepared for instant action in case stock stray upon the track (St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Kimberlain [Ark.] 88 S. W. 599).

2. Russell v. Maine Cent. R. Co. [Me.] 61 A. 899.

3. O'Leary v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 362.

4. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Busick [Ark.] 86 S. W. 674.

5. Oyler v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 375, 88 S. W. 162.

6. Kirby's Dig. §§ 6644, 6645. St. Louis etc., R. Co. v. Busick [Ark.] 86 S. W. 674.

7. Rev. St. 1899, § 1106. Hobbs v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 126, 87 S. W. 525.

8. Karn v. Illinois So. R. Co., 114 Mo. App. 162, 89 S. W. 346.

9. Mongogna v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [La.] 39 So. 699. Evidence insufficient to show negligent failure to discover animal on track. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Campbell [Colo.] 83 P. 138. That the track was straight for a great distance does not of itself, and without proof that the animals were on the track for a considerable time, warrant submission of failure to avert discovered peril. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Simpson [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 874.

10. Western R. Co. v. Stone [Ala.] 39 So. 723. An instruction exonerating the railroad company, if cattle came on the track so close to the train that it could not be stopped, is erroneous as ignoring whether the impossibility of stopping in time was due to negligent rate of speed. Id.

11. Colorado & S. R. Co. v. Charles [Colo.] 84 P. 67. Evidence held insufficient to warrant finding that animal could have been seen in time to stop. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Roberts [Colo.] 84 P. 68.

12. Johnson v. Illinois Cent. R. Co. [Miss.] 39 So. 780.

13. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Carr [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 858.

Contra: Evidence of first class equipment, vigilant lookout, and every effort to stop train insufficient to take case from jury. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Turner [Ala.] 40 So. 355.

14. See 4 C. L. 1220.

15. Acord v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 84, 87 S. W. 537. For the jury whether stock went upon right of way where fence was defective. Hobbs v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 126, 87 S. W. 525. Evidence held to show that animal entered railroad right of way through gap in defective fence. Colyer v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 457, 87 S. W. 572; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Owens [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 354, 87 S. W. 846.

16. Russell v. Maine Cent. R. Co. [Me.] 61 A. 899.

Missouri a liability exists for injury to any stock which reaches the right of way through the company's failure to erect the statutory guards or fences.[17]

Duty to maintain fences.[18]—A railroad company by common law was not required to fence its right of way,[19] but was liable for negligent injury to stock.[20] Statutes may require railroad companies to erect and maintain fences of sufficient height and strength to turn stock[21] along inclosed or cultivated fields or uninclosed lands,[22] or when necessary to prevent stock from going upon the tracks from adjoining lands,[23] and may authorize abutting owner to construct such a fence at the company's expense if it is negligent therein.[24] Where a stock law was adopted with apparent regularity, a railroad company is entitled to omit to fence its track in that precinct, though the law was not in fact legally adopted.[25] Failure to comply with the statute renders the company liable for resulting damages,[26] though in some states failure to fence as required by statute is prima facie but not conclusive evidence of negligence.[27] There is no obligation to fence a right of way across a public highway whether established by legal authority or by adverse user,[28] nor a statutory private road crossing,[29] nor at stations where to do so would hinder the proper operation of the road,[30] but otherwise as to repair shops and side tracks if practicable,[31] and in Missouri fences are not required in incorporated or platted towns.[32] The sufficiency of a fence

17. Rev. St. 1899, § 1106. Oyler v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 375, 88 S. W. 162.

18. See 4 C. L. 1221.

19. Wabash R. Co. v. Gaull, 116 Ill. App. 443; Frisch v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 228.

20. Oyler v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 375, 88 S. W. 162.

21. Code §§ 2055-2058. Titus v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 343; Ellington v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 827. Fence must be kept in reasonably safe repair. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Seitzinger. 116 Ill. App. 55. Fence constructed in accordance with Gen. St. 1894, § 2055, is sufficient. Ellington v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 827.

22. Rev. St. 1899, § 1105. Open lane is "uninclosed land." Reed v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 112 Mo. App. 575, 87 S. W. 65.

23. Laws 1890, c. 565, p. 1082; 1891, c. 367, p. 712; 1892, c. 676, p. 1382. Clarke v. New York, etc., R. Co., 104 App. Div. 167, 93 N. Y. S. 525. A company may be responsible for a failure to fence when a fence becomes necessary by reason of a raising of the level of land by natural accretions. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Hand, 113 Ill. App. 144.

24. In Indiana, if a railroad company after notice neglects to repair the fence along the right of way, the abutting owner may repair and recover the cost from the railroad [Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5323-5] (Terre Haute & L. R. Co. v. Salmon, 34 Ind. App. 564, 73 N. E. 268), and the fact that the abutting owner does not repair it until two years after giving the notice does not preclude his right to recover (Terre Haute & L. R. Co. v. Earhart [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 711).

25. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Kropp [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 819.

26. Titus v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 343. Failure to fence when required by law to do so renders the railroad company liable for killing stock irrespective of whether the train was negligently operated. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Kropp [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 819.

27. Ellington v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 827.

28. Acord v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 84, 87 S. W. 537; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Dowhower [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1070.

29. Acord v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 84, 87 S. W. 537.

30. B. & C. Comp. § 5146. Harvey v. Southern Pac. Co. [Or.] 80 P. 1061. A point on a railroad where a switch is maintained for the exclusive accommodation of certain quarries is not a station though trains sometimes stopped there to receive freight and passengers. Rev. St. 1899, § 1105. Foster v. Kansas City So. R. Co., 112 Mo. App. 67, 87 S. W. 57. Evidence held to show existence of a station. McGuire v. St. Louis etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 79, 87 S. W. 564. For jury to say what are necessary station grounds. Acord v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 84, 87 S. W. 537; McGuire v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 79, 87 S. W. 564. For the jury to say whether the existence of a switch at a place used by the public for loading and unloading cars excused a company from the obligation to fence. Wabash R. Co. v. Warren, 113 Ill. App. 172. The Michigan statute does not require the fencing of a railroad yard. Katzinski v. Grand Trunk R. Co. [Mich.] 104 N. W. 409; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Campbell [Colo.] 83 P. 138. Place a few rods from depot held not, as a matter of law, part of the depot grounds which need not be fenced. Habenicht v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 105 N. W. 910.

31. Gen. St. 1894, § 2692. Mattes v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 234.

32. Acord v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 84, 87 S. W. 537.

is a question of fact unless otherwise provided by statute.[33] The Minnesota statutes give a right of action only for animals killed upon the right of way.[34]

Gates.[35]—Ordinary care and prudence must be exercised in the construction of gates.[36] Under the New York statute, if the fences are in good repair, in the absence of some negligent or willful act a railroad is not liable for damages to domestic animals straying through an open gateway on the track.[37]

Cattle guards.[38]—Statutes may require railroad companies to maintain proper and sufficient cattle guards,[39] but they need not necessarily be maintained at a place in a pasture where for the convenience of the abutting owner a cattle crossing has been constructed.[40] The construction of a guard of the kind in general use by first class railroads is not necessarily a compliance with a statute requiring guards sufficient to turn stock.[41]

Contributory negligence of owner.[42]—Contributory negligence of the owner is a defense[43] and a question for the jury,[44] unless the facts be undisputed.[45] If a railroad company erects a fence it is not contributory negligence for the adjoining owner to permit stock to roam at large on his land, though the fence be in bad repair at places,[46] though the contrary is the law in Pennsylvania.[47] A trespasser who has suffered damage by reason of the failure of a railroad company to erect a statutory fence cannot recover unless the injury was wanton or willful.[48] That plaintiff had frequently ridden the mule injured along the track where subsequently killed is not such contributory negligence as bars recovery.[49] In an action based upon a failure to fence, it is no defense that the stock owner failed to perform his duty while in the railroad company's employ.[50]

(§ 11) J. Fires.[51]—An insurance company paying for a fire loss resulting from a railroad company's negligence may maintain an action against the negligent company therefor.[52] A railroad company is liable to the owner of lumber piled on its right of way with its consent for the loss of such lumber by fire occurring through negligent operation of trains.[53] Recovery may be had for loss by fire ignited in combustible rubbish negligently permitted to accumulate on the right of way.[54] If defendant's negligence is the proximate cause of damage, it is immaterial that the property of others lay between the railroad and plaintiff's property.[55]

33. Titus v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 343. A fence inclosing the right of way and an additional strip of land is a compliance with the Illinois statute. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tice, 111 Ill. App. 161.
34. Gen. St. 1894, §§ 2693 and 2695. Frisch v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 228.
35. See 4 C. L. 1222.
36. Sufficiency in construction and fastening a question for the jury. Titus v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 343.
37. Laws 1890, p. 1093, c. 656, § 32. Whaley v. Erie R. Co., 181 N. Y. 448, 74 N. E. 417.
38. See 4 C. L. 1222.
39. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Newsom [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 21. Under the New Hampshire statutes a railroad company owes the duty to provide cattle guards only to the owner or custodian of animals rightfully upon the adjoining land. Pub. St. 1901, c. 159, § 3. Flint v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 59 A. 938.
40. Gulf & S. I. R. Co. v. Ellis, 85 Miss. 586, 38 So. 210.
41. Act 1885, p. 224, c. 91. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Newsom [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 21.
42. See 4 C. L. 1223.
43. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Pearce [Ala.] 39 So. 72.
44. O'Leary v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 362.
45. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Pearce [Ala.] 39 So. 72.
46. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Seitzinger, 116 Ill. App. 55.
47. Scowden v. Erie R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 15.
48. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Tice, 111 Ill. App. 161.
49. Prescott, etc., R. Co. v. Brown [Ark.] 86 S. W. 809.
50. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Hand, 113 Ill. App. 144.
51. See 4 C. L. 1225. Matters not peculiar to fires by railroads, see Fires, 5 C. L. 1424.
52. German Ins. Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 361.
53. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. South Fork Coal Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 528.

Duty as to equipment and operation of engines.[56]—The law requires a high degree of care to prevent the escape of fire,[57] but the adoption and maintenance in good condition of the device generally recognized as the best for the suppression of fire is sufficient.[58] Where a railroad company equips its locomotives with the best known spark arresters,[59] keeps the locomotives in good repair,[60] and keeps its right of way clear of combustible materials, it is as a general rule not liable for fires caused by locomotive sparks.[61] It is no defense that the property destroyed was in a building belonging to the railroad company which had been leased to a third person and the lease wrongfully transferred to plaintiff without the lessor's consent.[62]

Contractual exemptions from liability.[63]—A railroad company leasing a part of its right of way is not acting as a common carrier and may stipulate an exemption from liability for loss by fire,[64] and such a stipulation will bind the assignee of the lease, but not a subtenant, as to fire negligently set by the company.[65]

Contributory negligence.[66]—An owner of lands adjoining a railroad is required to take such care of his property to protect it from fire as a man of ordinary prudence would employ under the circumstances,[67] though he may assume that the railroad company will not be guilty of negligence.[68] It is not contributory negligence to build a warehouse for storing inflammable oils immediately adjacent to a railroad right of way.[69]

Pleading.[70]—The legal owner of property is the only necessary plaintiff in an action for its destruction.[71] In New York the owner of property damaged by fire, and insurance companies who have paid losses thereon, may properly be joined as plaintiffs.[72] The sufficiency of several complaints is discussed in the foot notes.[73]

54. Elder Tp. School Dist. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 112.

55. Phillips v. Durham & C. R. Co., 138 N. C. 12, 50 S. E. 462. A railroad company setting fire on premises abutting on the right of way is liable for damages caused by its spread to adjoining premises. Phelps v. New York, etc., R. Co., 48 Misc. 27, 96 N. Y. S. 72.

56. See 4 C. L. 1226.

57. Care proportionate to the danger. German Ins. Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 361. In Iowa, railroad companies must exercise ordinary and reasonable care, which demands the use of the best known and most appropriate appliances for preventing the escape of fire. Id.

58. German Ins. Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 361. But such a defense is not made out by testimony as to the use of spark arresters where the evidence as to the origin of the fire is to the effect that it was started by sparks from the locomotive. Lake Shore & M. S. R. v. Anderson, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 17.

59. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Watkins [Va.] 51 S. E. 172; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Coombs [Ark.] 88 S. W. 595.

60. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Watkins [Va.] 51 S. E. 172; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Coombs [Ark.] 88 S. W. 595.

61. The right of way must be kept clear of combustible material liable to ignition by sparks from engines. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Watkins [Va.] 51 S. E. 172.

62. Fred England & Co. v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 111.

63. See 4 C. L. 1227.

64. Wooldridge v. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 942. Contract held to release company from liability. Blitch v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 122 Ga. 711, 50 S. E. 945.

65. Wooldridge v. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 942.

66. See 4 C. L. 1227.

67. Evidence held not to justify submission to the jury of the question of plaintiff's contributory negligence. McFarland v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 525, 88 S. W. 450.

68. Phillips v. Durham & C. R. Co., 138 N. C. 12, 50 S. E. 462.

69. Southern R. Co. v. Patterson [Va.] 52 S. E. 694.

70. See 4 C. L. 1227.

71. Conner v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 181 Mo. 397, 81 S. W. 145.

72. Code Civ. Proc. § 446. Jacobs v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 107 App. Div. 134, 94 N. Y. S. 954.

73. Allegations held sufficient as to accumulation of combustible matter, charging of negligence, and as to equipment of locomotive. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wise [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1107. Complaint held sufficient without alleging duty imposed by law on defendant as to protection against fire, or that the building was not on defendant's land, or that plaintiff was not gratui-

Burden of proof and presumptions.[74]—Fire caused by sparks from a locomotive is prima facie proof of negligence under the statutes of most states,[75] and casts upon the defendant the burden of proving its engines to have been properly equipped.[76] An injurious accident may be presumed to result from negligence if it be one not likely to occur if due care is exercised.[77]

Admissibility of evidence.[78]—That fire was the result of negligent operation may be proved by either direct or circumstantial evidence,[79] but the origin of the fire must be established by reasonable affirmative evidence and to a reasonable certainty;[80] and where there is no direct proof of the starting of the fire, it may be shown that the locomotive started other fires at or about that time[81] or emitted sparks,[82] and testimony is receivable as to similar conduct of other engines where the engine charged with the fire is not identified.[83] Expert testimony regarding locomotives is admissible[84] to show the distance to which live sparks may be thrown.[85] Where a fire is alleged to have been caused by a particular engine, evidence of negligence in the general operation of engines,[86] or defects in other locomotives, is inadmissible.[87] A dispatcher's train sheet is admissible to show the arrival and departure of trains.[88] Evidence is admissible to show the original cost of the property destroyed as well as the cost of reproduction thereof at the time of its destruction,[89] but evidence that the engineer in charge of a certain locomotive was cautious and very careful about allowing sparks to escape is irrelevant.[90]

Sufficiency of evidence.[91]—Cases in which the sufficiency of evidence has been reviewed are grouped in the notes.[92] tous licensee of building from defendant. Adriance, Platt & Co. v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 105 App. Div. 33, 93 N. Y. S. 473. In an action for recovery on account of loss by fire communicated by a locomotive, a petition is sufficient under §§ 3365-5, and 3365-6, which avers that fire and sparks were emitted by one of the defendant company's locomotives, thereby causing fire on the railroad right of way and the plaintiff's land, the plaintiff being ignorant as to whether the fire started on his own land or that of the company, and such an averment is a sufficient averment that the fire was communicated directly from the locomotive and not from some other source. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Anderson, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 17.

74. See 4 C. L. 1228.

75. Swindell & Co. v. Alabama Midland R. Co., 123 Ga. 311, 51 S. E. 386; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Coombs [Ark.] 88 S. W. 595. Evidence held not to show a rebuttal of the presumption of negligence raised by plaintiff. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Coombs [Ark.] 88 S. W. 595.

Contra: In New York the mere fact that a fire set by sparks from a locomotive is insufficient to raise a presumption of negligence. Babbitt v. Erie R. Co., 108 App. Div. 74, 95 N. Y. S. 429. That a fire started from a locomotive spark does not alone justify an inference that the fire originated on the railroad's right of way. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Watkins [Va.] 51 S. E. 172.

76. Phillips v. Durham & C. R. Co., 138 N. C. 12, 50 S. E. 462. Evidence held to show a rebuttal of prima facie case by evidence as to equipment. Toledo, St. Louis & W. R. Co. v. Needham, 116 Ill. App. 543.

77. Evidence held to raise presumption of negligence. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. South Fork Coal Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 528.

78. See 4 C. L. 1228.

79. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Coombs [Ark.] 88 S. W. 595; Shelly v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 211 Pa. 160, 60 A. 581; Babbitt v. Erie R. Co., 108 App. Div. 74, 95 N. Y. S. 429; Swindell & Co. v. Alabama Midland R. Co., 123 Ga. 311, 51 S. E. 386.

80. Wick v. Tacoma E. R. Co., [Wash.] 82 P. 711.

81. Jacobs v. New York, etc., R. Co., 107 App. Div. 134, 94 N. Y. S. 954; Hendricks v. Southern R. Co., 123 Ga. 342, 51 S. E. 415.

82. Shelly v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 211 Pa. 160, 60 A. 581; Hendricks v. Southern R. Co., 123 Ga. 342, 51 S. E. 415.

83. Shelly v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 211 Pa. 160, 60 A. 581. Evidence that the day before the fire cinders were found on the roof of the burned building is competent. Gorham Mfg. Co. v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 60 A. 638.

84. German Ins. Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 361.

85. Babbitt v. Erie R. Co., 108 App. Div. 74, 95 N. Y. S. 430.

86. Shelly v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 211 Pa. 160, 60 A. 581. Where the engine is identified and could have been the only one which caused the fire complained of, evidence of fires set by other engines is inadmissible. McFarland v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 525, 88 S. W. 450.

87. Shelly v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 211 Pa. 160, 60 A. 581.

88. Firemen's Ins. Co. v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 138 N. C. 42, 50 S. E. 452.

89. Conner v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 181 Mo. 397, 81 S. W. 145.

Instructions.[93]—Instructions are governed by the customary rules.[94]

Special findings. Damages.[95]—The measure of damages for negligent burning of fencing and ornamental trees is the diminution in the value of the premises resulting therefrom.[96] For injuring plaintiff's turf the measure of damages is the difference in value of the land before and after the fire.[97] Damages from fire to buildings, etc., on the remaining portion of a track of land appropriated by a railroad company are to be considered by a jury in determining the compensation.[98]

(§ 11) K. Actions for damages. Parties.—A railroad company and its engineer may be jointly sued for injuries caused by his failure to give signals at a crossing.[99]

Pleading.—The allegations of negligence should be specific,[1] as must also the ownership of property injured.[2] The name of the employe in charge of the train need not be alleged.[3] A declaration need not allege a duty to construct a fence at a particular point, or a duty to keep such fence in repair, where it alleges the negligent maintenance of a fence, and the proof showed that the company had then constructed and maintained a fence.[4] A plea of not guilty coupled with a plea of con-

90. McFarland v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 525, 88 S. W. 450.

91. See 4 C. L. 1229.

92. Evidence held sufficient. Jacobs v. New York, etc., R. Co., 107 App. Div. 134, 94 N. Y. S. 954; Conner v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 181 Mo. 397, 81 S. W. 145; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Prude [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1046; Elder Tp. School Dist. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 112; Fields v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 642, 88 S. W. 134; Babbitt v. Erie R. Co., 108 App. Div. 74, 95 N. Y. S. 429; Union Pac. R. Co. v. Fickenscher [Neb.] 105 N. W. 39. Evidence held insufficient. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Fickenscher [Neb.] 100 N. W. 207; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Watkins [Va.] 51 S. E. 172. Evidence held sufficient to show ownership and operation of the railroad by defendant. Kerr v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 1, 87 S. W. 596. Whether defendant was negligent in the manner of equipping its engine, held a question for the jury. Richmond v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 848. Evidence held sufficient to show that fire started by sparks from locomotive. Fred England & Co. v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 111. A jury is warranted in finding that fire upon the land of the plaintiff lying adjacent to a steam railroad originated from sparks emitted by a locomotive which had passed a short time before, where the evidence shows that the wind was blowing in the direction of the plaintiff's land with sufficient force to carry sparks thereon, and that there were no other fires in the neighborhood at the time. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Anderson, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 17. Conflicting testimony as to origin of fire. Bonner Co. v. New Orleans & N. E. R. Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 65. Evidence that large cinder was allowed to fall from engine cab held to make a case for the jury. Southern R. Co. v. Patterson [Va.] 52 S. E. 694.

93. See 4 C. L. 1229.

94. Kerr v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 1, 87 S. W. 596. An instruction that if the fire originated from sparks from defendant's engine the presumption was that the sparks were negligently emitted, held proper. Fireman's Ins. Co. v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 138 N. C. 42, 50 S. E. 452. Instruction held not erroneous as authorizing a recovery for defendant's failure to extinguish fires on its right of way regardless of their origin. Wick v. Tacoma Eastern R. Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 711.

95. See 4 C. L. 1230.

96. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Kohlruss [Ga.] 52 S. E. 166.

97. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Prude [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1046.

98. Hayes v. Toledo R. & Terminal Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 281.

99. Southern R. Co. v. Grizzle [Ga.] 53 S. E. 244.

1. Injury to stock. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Newsom [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 21; South Georgia R. Co. v. Ryals, 123 Ga. 330, 51 S. E. 428. Complaint for killing cattle held to sufficiently allege negligence. Western R. Co. v. Stone [Ala.] 39 So. 723. Complaint held to sufficiently show that negligence charged was proximate cause of injury. Greenawaldt v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1081. Petition held to sufficiently allege that the negligent acts enumerated produced the injury complained of. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Glover [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 263, 88 S. W. 515. An allegation in a complaint characterizing an act as having been "carelessly and negligently done" is sufficient against a demurrer. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Fike [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 636. An allegation that defendant "negligently and carelessly ran" its train against plaintiff at a crossing is good as against demurrer. Southern R. Co. v. Douglass [Ala.] 39 So. 268. Petition held defective on special demurrer. Kemp v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 122 Ga. 559, 50 S. E. 465. Complaint held to show that establishment of crossing below grade in violation of statute was proximate cause of accident. Southern I. R. Co. v. Corps [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 902.

2. South Georgia R. Co. v. Ryals, 123 Ga. 330, 51 S. E. 428.

3. Western R. Co. v. Stone [Ala.] 39 So. 723.

tributory negligence is not an admission of negligence.[5] The complaint must fall within the statute giving the right of action.[6] A plaintiff need not allege that he did not hear or see the approaching train,[7] and in those jurisdictions where contributory negligence is a matter of defense, freedom therefrom need not be averred.[8] One relying on a foreign statute must plead it specially and make proof of the statute.[9] Several acts of negligence may be alleged in one paragraph, and under such a pleading plaintiff may sustain his case by proof of a single negligent act if it constitute actionable negligence.[10] Evidence that an animal was injured by a train and that defendant's employes, deeming it fatally injured, killed it, is not fatally variant from an averment that the animal was killed by the train.[11]

Burden of proof.[12]—Where there are no eye witnesses to an accident it will be presumed that one killed therein exercised due care in crossing the track,[13] and stopped, looked and listened at the most advantageous place;[14] but if this presumption applies at all, where a person goes upon a railroad crossing at night knowing of danger from moving engines, it is only in the absence of testimony explanatory of his conduct.[15] The presumption is destroyed by undisputed evidence that if he had looked and listened before driving upon the crossing he must have seen and heard the train approaching.[16] As a general rule the burden is on the plaintiff not only to show negligence on the part of the defendant,[17] and that such negligence was the proximate cause of injury,[18] but also to show his own freedom from contributory negligence.[19] After a default the burden of showing plaintiff's contributory negligence is on defendant.[20] In many states, however, con-

4. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Seitzinger, 116 Ill. App. 55.

5. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Pearce [Ala.] 39 So. 72.

6. Injury to stock: Variance held immaterial. Reed v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 112 Mo. App. 575, 87 S. W. 65. In Indiana the complaint must show that the stock was killed in the county where the action is commenced. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Newsom [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 21. In Montana the complaint must allege the plaintiff's ownership or possession of the land along which the railroad ran at the point where the cattle strayed on the track. Metlen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Mont.] 81 P. 737. Under the Idaho statute the complaint must allege that at the time of killing defendant was operating a line of railroad within the state. Rev. St. Idaho 1887, § 2680. Laws 1901, p. 87. McKnight v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Mont.] 82 P. 661.

7. Bamberg v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 988. Complaint held to sufficiently show that plaintiff was ignorant of approach of train and was misled by failure to give signals. Southern I. R. Co. v. Corps [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 902.

8. Absence of contributory negligence need not be alleged in an action for wrongful death at a crossing. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Ryan, 31 Ind. App. 597, 68 N. E. 923.

9. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Ryan, 31 Ind. App. 597, 68 N. E. 923.

10. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Robbins [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 804.

11. Poindexter & Orr Live Stock Co. v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Mont.] 83 P. 886.

12. See 4 C. L. 1224, 1228.

13. Blauvelt v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 206 Pa. 141, 55 A. 857; Clarke Co. v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 251; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Reed [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 50; Davenport, etc., R. Co. v. De Yaeger, 112 Ill. App. 537. Rule does not apply where there is testimony of eye witnesses. Illinois, etc., R. Co. v. Kief, 111 Ill. App. 354. In New York it is only where the accident results in death and there are no eye witnesses of the occurrence that freedom from contributory negligence may be established by circumstantial evidence. Seidman v. Long Island R. Co., 104 App. Div. 4, 93 N. Y. S. 209.

14. Schwarz v. Delaware, etc., R. Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 255; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Reed [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 50.

15. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Chapman [C. C. A.] 140 F. 129.

16. Rollins v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 639.

17. Kearns v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 52 S. E. 131. That a witness did not notice or hear a bell ringing is not of equal weight with positive testimony that it was ringing. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. & Western I. R. Co. v. Eganolf, 112 Ill. App. 323. That a person is found dead beneath a locomotive along the right of way raises no presumption of negligence on the part of those operating the engine. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Chapman [C. C. A.] 140 F. 129.

18. Evidence held insufficient to show engineer's failure to stop train sooner was proximate cause of injury. Kearns v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 52 S. E. 131.

19. Seidman v. Long Island R. Co., 104 App. Div. 4, 93 N. Y. S. 209.

20. Norris v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Conn.] 61 A. 1075.

tributory negligence is now made a matter of defense.[21] When a person stops and listens, contributory negligence cannot be based on a mere failure to hear an approaching train.[22] By statute, proof of injury,[23] excessive speed,[24] or death caused by cars, raises a presumption of negligent operation.[25] Evidence that the locomotive causing injury is marked with the initials of defendant company is prima facie proof that it is the property of defendant and is operated by defendant's employees.[26] Where a pedestrian walking by daylight over a railroad crossing is struck by a descending semaphore, no presumption of negligence arises.[27] By statute in some states proof of the killing of stock by a train raises a presumption of negligence on the part of the railroad company[28] which must be overcome by evidence of the exercise of due care,[29] but where a notice to defendant is a requisite to this presumption, there must be a strict compliance with the statute thereon.[30] A defendant's failure to controvert the alleged value of an animal killed does not relieve plaintiff from proving such value.[31] In the absence of evidence to the contrary it will be presumed that stock came upon the road where it was killed.[32] Evidence of failure to give the statutory signals raises a prima facie case[33] and overcomes the general presumption that railroad employees performed their duty.[34]

Evidence.[35]—The evidence must be confined to the issues made,[36] but all the surrounding circumstances may be shown, though such showing involves proof of negligence not charged,[37] and under a general averment of negligence, plaintiff is not confined to a single negligent act.[38] A witness may state directly whether certain obstructions shown to exist obscured the view from a certain place.[39] Rules,[40] train orders,[41] and customs are admissible where violation thereof is

21. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 359a. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Reed [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 50. Pub. St. 1882, c. 112, § 113. Kenny v. Boston & M. R. Co., 188 Mass. 127, 74 N. E. 309.

22. Birmingham S. R. Co. v. Lintner, 141 Ala. 420, 38 So. 363.

23. Code 1896, § 3443, is applicable in an action by a husband for injury to his wife and property. Birmingham S. R. Co. v. Lintner, 141 Ala. 420, 38 So. 363.

24. Hurd's Rev. St. 1901, p. 87, c. 114. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Jamieson, 112 Ill. App. 69.

25. Kemp v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 122 Ga. 559, 50 S. E. 465.

26. East St. Louis Connecting R. Co. v. Altgen, 112 Ill. App. 471.

27. McKenna v. Alabama & V. R. Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 426.

28. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Waycross Elec. Light & Power Co., 123 Ga. 613, 51 S. E. 621; Dougherty v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 672; Atlantic & W. P. R. Co. v. Hudson, 123 Ga. 108, 51 S. E. 29; Acord v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 84, 87 S. W. 537; Atlantic & B. R. Co. v. Smith, 123 Ga. 423, 51 S. E. 344; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Shaver [Ark.] 88 S. W. 861. Code, § 2326 does not apply to injuries to animals running upon a trestle in advance of a train. Ramsbottom v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 138 N. C. 38, 50 S. E. 448.

29. Atlantic & W. P. R. Co. v. Hudson, 123 Ga. 108, 51 S. E. 29. For the jury whether presumption of negligence overcome by evidence. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Shaver [Ark.] 88 S. W. 961.

30. Rev. St. Idaho 1887, § 2680; Laws 1901, p. 87. McKnight v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Mont.] 82 P. 661.

31. Prescott, etc., R. Co. v. Brown [Ark.] 86 S. W. 809.

32. Acord v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 84, 87 S. W. 537.

33, 34. Roberts v. Wabash R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 6, 87 S. W. 601.

35. See 4 C. L. 1224, 1228.

36. Pleadings held to warrant proof of negligence by watchman at crossing. Hamilton v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 114 Mo. App. 504, 89 S. W. 893. Where plaintiff alleged that the market value of his horse was $500. admission of evidence that the horse had no market value but had an intrinsic value for purposes for which he had been trained is error. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Cooper [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 1001. Evidence as to equipment is inadmissible when the only negligence alleged is in operation. Western R. Co. v. Stone [Ala.] 39 So. 723.

37. Where it appears that a crossing was almost continuously used by the public, and that the train was moving at an excessive speed, evidence as to the absence of flagmen or gates is admissible, though the complaint does not allege negligence in failure to maintain them. Christensen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Utah] 80 P. 746.

38. Where the negligence of a railroad company is averred in general terms, plaintiff will not be confined in his evidence to any one particular act of negligence. Southern R. Co. v. Douglass [Ala.] 39 So. 268.

39. Rietveld v. Wabash R. Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 515.

40. The rule of a company requiring a charged as negligence, or to charge plaintiff if he had knowledge thereof,[42] but a practice of taking certain precautions is not admissible to show that they were taken on a particular occasion.[43] A conductor of long experience and familiar with the locality may testify as an expert on speed,[44] and his train record is admissible.[45] Cases involving sufficiency of evidence are noted below.[46] Positive evidence is of greater weight than negative as to the giving of signals.[47]

Instructions[48] should be given as to negligence[49] and contributory negligence[50] bell to be rung when an engine is about to move is admissible. Minot v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 61 A. 509.

41. Train orders are admissible to show the whereabouts of a train at a particular time. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Daniel [Ky.] 91 S. W. 691.

42. In showing a custom to leave crossing gates down without reason, evidence of such instances unknown to plaintiff is inadmissible. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Keegan, 112 Ill. App. 338.

43. The testimony of a fireman and an engineer that it was their habit and custom to give the statutory signals at a particular crossing is inadmissible. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Frank [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 236, 88 S. W. 383.

44. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Connell [C. C. A.] 137 F. 8.

45. Where conductor's train record shows a speed of 35 miles an hour, testimony that the train was running very fast but not fixing any standard is immaterial. Keiser v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 212 Pa. 409, 61 A. 903.

46. Accidents at crossings: Evidence insufficient to show negligence. Kearns v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 52 S. E. 131; Guilmont's Adm'r v. Central Vt. R. Co. [Vt.] 62 A. 54; Hintz v. Michigan Cent. R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 292, 104 N. W. 23; McCarthy v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 211 Pa. 193, 60 A. 778; Southern R. Co. v. Douglass [Ala.] 39 So. 268. As to ringing of bell. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Pulliam, 111 Ill. App. 305. Evidence of an altercation between a switchman and a watchman at crossing and refusal of one to heed signals of the other held sufficient to take the case to the jury as to defendant's negligence. Hamilton v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 114 Mo. App. 504, 89 S. W. 893. Evidence insufficient to show contributory negligence. Spiller v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 112 Mo. App. 491, 87 S. W. 43; Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Hammett, 115 Ill. App. 268; Kenny v. Boston & M. R. Co., 188 Mass. 127, 74 N. E. 309; Potter v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 175, 103 N. W. 808. Evidence did not show contributory negligence where deceased was killed at crossing by a train moving backwards without lights, on dark night. Blauvelt v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 206 Pa. 141, 55 A. 857. Evidence held to show driver guilty of contributory negligence. Seibert v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 188 Mo. 657, 87 S. W. 995; Cowen v. Dietrick [Md.] 60 A. 282; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Chapman [C. C. A.] 140 F. 129; Guilmont's Adm'r v. Central Vermont R. Co. [Vt.] 62 A. 54; Brennan v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [N. J. Law] 62 A. 177.

Injury to cattle: Evidence held to show negligence of defendant. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Rodgers [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 625; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Carlisle [Ark.] 88 S. W. 584. Evidence held insufficient to charge defendant with negligence in killing a horse upon depot grounds. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Harbison [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 610, 88 S. W. 414. Evidence held not to show negligence in operation of the train. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Dowhower [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1070; Atlantic & B. R. Co. v. Smith, 123 Ga. 423, 51 S. E. 344; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Cooper [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. R. 570, 88 S. W. 301. Evidence held to justify finding that defendant owned the railroad complained of. Oyler v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 375, 88 S. W. 162; Payne v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 609, 88 S. W. 164. That a cattle guard does not prevent stock from passing over it does not conclusively show that it is unsafe and unsuitable. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Busick [Ark.] 86 S. W. 674. The Missouri statute does not require direct evidence of the killing. Oyler v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 375, 88 S. W. 162; Payne v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 609, 88 S. W. 164.

47. Testimony of 14 witnesses that certain signals were given, and of 9 witnesses that they heard no such signals, conclusively proves the performance of those duties. Keiser v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 212 Pa. 409, 61 A. 903. Testimony that signals were not given held sufficiently positive to make a question for the jury as against testimony that they were given. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Robbins [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 804.

48. See 4 C. L. 1225, 1229.

49. Instructions as to care required in backing an engine after dark over a busy street crossing held proper. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Coley [Ky.] 89 S. W. 234. Instruction as to ringing of bell or blowing of whistle, and as to obstruction of crossing, held proper. Id. Instruction in an action for injury while passing between cars of standing train held not to impose greater burden on defendant than law required. Thomasson v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 443. Instruction placing upon the railroad company the burden of proving that its employes exercised the highest degree of care known to the law held erroneous. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Waycross Elec. Light & Power Co., 123 Ga. 613, 51 S. E. 621. Instruction as to the character of fence which defendant was required to maintain upheld. Colyer v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 457, 87 S. W. 572. A charge of court is erroneous which makes it incumbent upon a railroad company to regulate the speed of its trains at a given crossing with due regard to "all the circumstances surrounding the place and affecting the traveling public," where testimony has been introduced tend-requiring that such negligence be the proximate cause of the injury,[51] specifically applicable to the facts of the particular case,[52] and confining the jury to the issues made,[53] but not singling out particular facts[54] and instructions ignoring evidence or issues are properly refused.[55] An instruction referring to a customary pathway over the tracks as a public crossing is not harmful where the same instruction correctly defined the duties of defendant thereat.[56] An instruction that the presumption that one killed at a crossing exercised due care is overcome if from the circumstances the jury find that by due care he could have avoided injury should be given.[57]

Directing verdict; questions for jury.—Except where a particular act is declared to be negligence, either by statute or ordinance, the question as to what constitutes negligence[58] and contributory negligence are ordinarily for the jury,[59] and ing to show that the view was to some extent obstructed by trees, weeds, etc., not on the company's right of way. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Moloney, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 437. Inasmuch as the manner of giving notice of the approach of a train is prescribed by statute, it is erroneous to charge that such notice "must be given so that one approaching (the crossing) could protect himself from injury." Id.

50. Evidence held to require instructions on necessity of providing watchman at crossing and on acts of persons in imminent peril. Crowder v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 166. A charge that, if the jury should find that plaintiff's intestate saw the approaching train, was conscious of his danger, and had the time and ability to remove himself from peril but failed to do so, plaintiff could not recover is not erroneous. Griffin v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 138 N. C. 55, 50 S. E. 516.

51. Where one of the grounds of alleged negligence was a failure to ring the bell, and some evidence tended to show that the accident might have occurred regardless of the bell signal, it is error to refuse to charge that the verdict be for defendant, unless the jury find that the failure to ring the bell was the proximate cause of injury. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 172, 88 S. W. 406. Failure of instruction to require that negligence must have beeen the proximate cause of injury is harmless where there is no evidence of an intervening cause. Southern R. Co. v. Douglass [Ala.] 39 So. 268.

52. In an action for injury to one of defective hearing, an instruction that he was bound to exercise the care of an ordinarily prudent person, whose hearing was so defective, should have exercised under the circumstances, is not misleading. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Hammett, 115 Ill. App. 268. An instruction as to the presumption of negligence when an animal is "killed" by a train is not improper where the evidence shows that the animal was injured by a train and that defendant's employes, deeming the injuries fatal, killed it. Poindexter & Orr Live Stock Co. v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Mont.] 83 P. 886. Instruction in case of injury to child of tender years, authorizing engineer to assume that child would use reasonable prudence, is properly refused. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Nesbit [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 656, 88 S. W. 891. An instruction that it is not the duty of a railroad company to check the speed of its trains at crossings is properly refused where it appears that the train inflicting injury was running at an excessive speed. Davenport, etc., R. Co. v. De Yaeger, 112 Ill. App. 537.

53. Where the only negligence charged is a failure to keep a lookout and the employment of incompetent men, an instruction that evidence of failure to give crossing signals should not be considered for any purpose should be given. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Nesbit [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 656, 88 S. W. 891.

54. Instruction as to contributory negligence at crossing held not to single out certain parts of the evidence. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hitt [Ark.] 88 S. W. 909.

55. Submission of failure to fence when no evidence thereof. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Simpson [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 874. Instruction about "inferences," as to where cattle entered the right of way, refused where there was positive evidence thereon. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Owens [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 354, 87 S. W. 846.

56. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Johnson [Tex.] 90 S. W. 164.

57. Rietveld v. Wabash R. Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 515.

58. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Kimberlain [Ark.] 88 S. W. 599; Atlanta & W. P. R. Co. v. Hudson, 123 Ga. 108, 51 S. E. 29; Hobbs v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 126, 87 S. W. 525; Christensen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Utah] 80 P. 746; Lewis v. Erie R. Co., 105 App. Div. 292, 94 N. Y. S. 765; Elgin, J. & E. R. Co. v. Thomas, 215 Ill. 158, 74 N. E. 109; Greenawaldt v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 73 N. E. 910; Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Olson, 113 Ill. App. 320; McCabe's Adm'x v. Maysville, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 683; Payne v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 609, 88 S. W. 164; Yates v. New York, etc., R. Co., 95 N. Y. S. 497; Ramsbottom v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 138 N. C. 38, 50 S. E. 448; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Satterfield [Ark.] 86 S. W. 821; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Thompson, Yont & Co. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 593. Sounding of stock alarm. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Shavér [Ark.] 88 S. W. 961.

59. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Connell [C. C. A.] 137 F. 8; McCarthy v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 211 Pa. 193, 60 A. 778; Cromley v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 211 Pa. 429, 60 A.

always so on a conflict of evidence.[60] If the undisputed evidence shows the accident to have resulted from plaintiff's negligence,[61] or the evidence for the plaintiff is a mere scintilla and that for the defendant so overwhelming that no real controversy is raised, a verdict for the defendant should be directed.[62]

Special findings.[63]—A finding that intestate was guilty of contributory negligence cures error in a refusal of a prayer on that issue.[64]

Double damages and attorney's fees.[65]—By statutes, attorney fees[66] and double damages are frequently allowed for injury to stock caused by failure to fence.[67] A recovery of the statutory penalty is the only remedy open to one whose stock is killed by reason of a failure to maintain a statutory cattle guard.[68]

§ 12. Railroad corporations. Incorporation and existence.[69]—In designating the route for a proposed railway in the articles of incorporation, it is necessary that the counties, but not the townships, through which it is to pass be named. Where townships are named it is mere surplusage.[70] The Arkansas statute providing for a forfeiture of franchise and charter rights acquired by any railroad

1007; Minot v. Boston, etc., R. Co. [N. H.] 61 A. 509; Worthington v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 195; St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hitt [Ark.] 88 S. W. 908; McCabe's Adm'x v. Maysville, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 683; Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Christy, 111 Ill. App. 247; Lewis v. Erie R. Co., 105 App. Div. 292, 94 N. Y. S. 765; Christensen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Utah] 80 P. 746; Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Zapp, 110 Ill. App. 553; Chicago & Eastern I. R. Co. v. Olson, 113 Ill. App. 320; Steed v. Rio Grande Western R. Co. [Utah] 82 P. 476; Farrell v. Erie R. Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 28; Elgin, etc., R. Co. v. Thomas, 215 Ill. 158, 74 N. E. 109; Greenawaldt v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1081; Greenawaldt v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 73 N. E. 910. Whether plaintiff should have taken other precautions. Beach v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 212 Pa. 567, 61 A. 1106. Place of stopping to look and listen. Fry v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 147; Tobin v. Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 475.

60. Greenawaldt v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1031; Pyne v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 212 Pa. 143, 61 A. 817; Farrell v. Erie R. Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 28; Southern R. Co. v. Carroll [C. C. A.] 138 F. 638; Greenawaldt v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. [Ind.] 73 N. E. 910; Summers v. Bloomsburg & S. R. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 615; Potter v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 175, 103 N. W. 808; Hintz v. Michigan Cent. R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 292, 104 N. W. 23. So with a railroad and a street car company where each is negligent. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Vollrath [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 777, 89 S. W. 279. Degree of care requisite on part of traveler under special circumstances. Armstrong v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 212 Pa. 228, 61 A. 831.

61. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Purcell [C. C A.] 135 F. 499; Toledo, etc., Co. v. Christy, 111 Ill. App. 247. Held contributory negligence. Greenwood v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 3. Defendant's negligence should not be submitted to jury unless evidence of plaintiff's freedom from contributory negligence is such as to justify submission of that question. Larsen v. U. S. Mortg. & Trust Co., 104 App. Div. 76, 93 N. Y. S. 610.

62. Cromley v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 211 Pa. 429, 60 A. 1007; Patterson v. Chicago & W. I. R. Co., 111 Ill. App. 441. Testimony of plaintiff that he looked and listened will not make an issue for the jury where it appears beyond contradiction that had he done so he would have seen the train approaching. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Purcell [C. C. A.] 135 F. 499. A peremptory instruction for defendant is proper where plaintiff's case rested solely upon the statutory presumption of negligence, and the testimony of defendant's engineer conclusively showed that the accident was unavoidable. Southern R. Co. v. Murry [Miss.] 39 So. 478.

63. See 4 C. L. 1225, 1230. Special findings held not inconsistent with general verdict for plaintiff. Smith v. Michigan Cent. R. Co. [Ind. App.] 73 N. E. 928.

64. Edwards v. Carolina & N. W. R. Co. [N. C.] 52 S. E. 234.

65. See 4 C. L. 1225, 1230.

66. B. & C. Comp. § 5146. Harvey v. Southern Pac. Co. [Or.] 80 P. 1061.

67. Code § 2055. Titus v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 343. Rev. St. 1899, § 1105. Foster v. Kansas City S. R. Co., 112 Mo. App. 67, 87 S. W. 57. That plaintiff sued for twice the amount agreed upon with defendant does not preclude recovery of the agreed amount. Suit may be brought in 40 days after the date of agreement. Rev. St. 1899, §§ 1108, 1109. Keylon v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 114 Mo. App. 66, 89 S. W. 337. Double damages for failure to fence are allowed in Missouri only in case of an actual collision between the locomotive or train and the animal. Reed v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 112 Mo. App. 575, 87 S. W. 65. Rev. St. 1899, § 1105. Evidence insufficient. Logan v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 111 Mo. App. 674, 86 S. W. 565.

68. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Rowland [Ark.] 88 S. W. 994.

69. See 4 C. L. 1181.

70. Hayes v. Toledo R. & T. Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 281.

under a lease not in conformity with the statute is applicable to foreign corporations operating in the state under lease.[71]

Powers of corporation and authority of officers.[72]—Where not limited as to the kind of motive power to be used, a railroad company is required to use that which is best and most convenient for its operation, having due regard to the safety of the public.[73] A grant of power to construct a steam railroad without limiting it to surface construction authorizes the building of a viaduct across certain streets on which to lay its tracks.[74] A company authorized to manufacture lumber and other articles with "all the rights, powers, and privileges of a general transportation company" is not restricted to the carriage of its own products and does not lose its right to operate its railroad where it has ceased to have such products to carry.[75] Under the Pennsylvania statutes a railroad company may be incorporated to construct beneath city streets an underground railroad having no city access except the terminus, and such road may be operated by electricity.[76] An agreement by a railroad corporation to guarantee dividends on the bonds of a hotel to be built on its line is ultra vires,[77] and receipt of added revenue from travel due to the erection of such hotel does not estop the railroad company to assail the agreement.[78] The lack of any congressional authority in the successive grantees of a railway roadbed, lying in the District of Columbia, to extend their lines into that district could not affect their title if the original grantor had authority.[79] A railroad company duly incorporated under the general railroad laws of Ohio may construct and operate a railroad having both of its terminal points wholly within the same city.[80] Under the consolidation act the P. B. & W. R. Co. is authorized to widen its right of way beyond the 66 foot limit when necessary for the successful prosecution of its business, but the charter prohibitions on condemning land were not repealed.[81] In the absence of specific provisions in its charter to the contrary, the power of making and receiving contracts as to the right of way belongs to the president of a railroad company.[82] A charter provision that certain acts shall not be valid until "ratified by the stockholders" requires the consent of the majority only.[83]

Foreign corporations.[84]—A foreign corporation operating in Arkansas under a lease is within a statute of that state governing the form of railroad leases.[85]

§ 13. Actions by and against railroad companies.[86]—In general, suits against railroad corporations should be brought in the county where the cause of action arises,[87] but some states will enforce a right of action accruing under the statutes

71. Acts 1901, p. 368. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co. v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 559.
72. See 4 C. L. 1182.
73. Company incorporated under Act April 4, 1868, may use electricity as well as steam. Howley v. Central Valley R. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 109.
74. Bubenzer v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. [Del.] 61 A. 270.
75. Commonwealth v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 235.
76. Act April 4, 1868. Sparks v. Philadelphia & C. R. Co., 212 Pa. 105, 61 A. 881.
77, 78. Western Md. R. Co. v. Blue Ridge Hotel Co. [Md.] 62 A. 351.
79. Chesapeake Beach R. Co. v. Washington P. & C. R. Co., 199 U. S. 247, 50 Law. Ed. —.
80. Rev. St. 1892, § 3270. State v. Union Terminal R. Co., 72 Ohio St. 455, 74 N. E. 642.
81. Bubenzer v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. [Del.] 61 A. 270.
82. City of Hickory v. Southern R. Co., 137 N. C. 189, 49 S. E. 202.
83. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Jarvis, 27 Ky. L. R. 986, 87 S. W. 759.
84. See 4 C. L. 1183.
85. Acts 1901, p. 368. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co. v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 559.
86. See 4 C. L. 1182.
87. In North Carolina an action against a railroad, whether resident or foreign, must be tried in the county where the cause of action arose, or in an adjoining county, or in the county where the plaintiff resides. Propst v. Southern R. Co., 139 N. C. 397, 51 S. E. 920. Pleadings and evidence held sufficient to show that stock was killed in township where suit was brought. Payne v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 609, 88 S. W. 164. A return showing service of a writ on a railroad company's agent in the township of suit is conclusive evidence of a justice's jurisdiction. Rev. St. 1899, § 3839.

of another state if such statutes be similar to those in force at the place of venue.[88] Service of process on railroad companies whether domestic or foreign is largely controlled by statute.[89] A railroad company and its engineer, who are jointly liable for injuries caused by the latter's negligence, may be sued jointly therefor.[90] To successfully maintain an action for personal injuries it must be shown that defendant neglected to discharge some duty which it owed to plaintiff, and such duty must appear from an averment of facts from which the duty follows as a matter of law.[91]

§ 14. Offenses relating to railroads.[92]—Some states have made penal a failure of a railroad company to bulletin its trains,[93] or to give the statutory crossing signals.[94] On an indictment of a company for a nuisance for maintaining an alleged illegal crossing, the question of forfeiture of charter or its validity are not in issue.[95] An indictment under the Kentucky statute requiring the maintenance of stations must charge that the railroad commission had ordered a station at the place in question.[96] An action for the penalty for violation of the South Carolina separate coach law is barred in one year.[97] A person who throws a missile into a coach in a moving train, while standing on a platform of the coach, violates a statute making it punishable for a person to hurl any missile into a moving train.[98] An indictment for the statutory offense of shooting or throwing rocks at a railroad train need not allege that the train belonged to a chartered railroad.[99] It is for the jury whether an engine standing on a street crossing is a "willful obstruction" within a statute.[100]

RAPE.

Matters of criminal law and procedure common to other crimes,[1] and civil liability for ravishment,[2] are treated elsewhere.

§ 1. Nature and elements. A. In general.[3]—Rape is the carnal knowledge of a female forcibly and against her will.[4] Any penetration, however slight, is Kerr v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 1, 87 S. W. 596.

88. A railroad which extends into and is operated in Texas, and is there served with process, may be sued on a cause of action arising in Kansas, though it be a Kansas corporation and plaintiff be a citizen of that state. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Kellerman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 140, 87 S. W. 401.

89. One who sells tickets on commission at a place where trains are advertised to stop, and who is advertised as the proper party to purchase tickets of, is a "station agent" upon whom service may be made. Malott v. Mapes, 111 Ill. App. 340.

90. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Coley [Ky.] 89 S. W. 234. Injury to mail clerk. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Houchins [Ky.] 89 S. W. 530.

91. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Gardanier, 116 Ill. App. 619.

92. See 4 C. L. 1230.

93. Under Burns' Ann. St. § 5187, each violation of § 5186 is a separate offense. Southern R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 272.

94. Defendants are entitled to have the record show what train committed the alleged violation of the statute. Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. State [Ark.] 87 S. W. 631.

95. Commonwealth v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 235.

96. Ky. St. 1903, § 772. Commonwealth v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 763, 86 S. W. 542.

97. 23 St. at Large p. 457. Sturkie v. Southern R. Co., 71 S. C. 208, 50 S. E. 782.

98. Laws 1900, p. 141, c. 103. State v. Ray [Miss.] 39 So. 521.

99. Allen v. State, 123 Ga. 499, 51 S. E. 506.

100. Burns v. Delaware & H. Co., 96 N. Y. S. 509.

1. See Criminal Law, 5 C. L. 883, and Indictment and Prosecution, 5 C. L. 1790.

2. See Assault and Battery, 5 C. L. 269

3. See 4 C. L. 1231.

sufficient to complete the offense.[5] A husband cannot himself be guilty, as principal in the first degree, of rape upon, or of an assault with intent to commit a rape upon, his wife.[6] Force is a necessary element,[7] but this does not necessarily mean actual physical force, constructive force, as by duress or putting in fear, being sufficient.[8] The act of having intercourse with a woman who is asleep is rape since it is without her consent.[9] Consent or submission after the offense has been completed by penetration is no defense.[10] The law does not require that the woman shall do more than her age, strength, and attendant circumstances make it reasonable for her to do.[11] An outcry is not an essential of proof of the crime,[12] and a failure to make it raises no presumption of law that the prosecutrix has sworn falsely,[13] but is merely a circumstance tending to disprove the good faith of the charge, to be weighed by the jury in connection with the surrounding circumstances.[14] The same is true of delay in making complaint.[15]

(§ 1) B. Female under age of consent.[16]—It is universally provided by statute that carnal knowledge of a female under a specified age shall be rape, regardless of whether she consents or not.[17]

4. Hubert v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 276. The carnal knowledge of a woman above the age of ten years against her will. State v. Truitt [Del.] 62 A. 790. Cr. Code § 11 makes it rape for any person to have carnal knowledge of his daughter or sister forcibly and against her will. Id. § 12 makes it rape to have forcible carnal knowledge of any other woman or female child, or to have intercourse with a female child under the age of 18 years, without force and with her consent, unless she is over 15 and of previous unchaste character. Hubert v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 276. Each of these three classes of crimes is totally distinct from the other two. Id.

Principals and accessories: Defendant who called his co-defendant in to commit crime held an accessory of the latter. Barrett v. People [Ill.] 77 N. E. 224. Under Rev. St. 1889, § 2364, providing that every person who shall be a principal in the second degree in the commission of a felony may be convicted and punished as a principal in the first degree, held that where evidence showed two distinct rapes. one by third person aided by defendant, and one by defendant, he was properly tried and convicted as principal in first degree. State v. Sykes, 191 Mo. 62, 89 S. W. 851. One who stands by and witnesses a rape, and gives encouragement to the perpetrator by failing to interfere, is an accessory before the fact, though neither he nor prosecutrix knows such third person. Id.

5. Pen. Code, § 280. People v. Asteli, 94 N. Y. S. 748. Actual penetration committed forcibly and against the consent of the female is all that is necessary to be proven. Code 1896, § 5445. Posey v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 1019.

6. Not where he himself is the actual party to the intercourse. Frazier v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 86 S. W. 754.

7. Mere want of consent is insufficient. Perez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 453, 87 S. W. 350.

8. Posey v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 1019.

9. Under Rev. St. 1889, § 1837, providing for the punishment of anyone convicted of rape "by forcibly ravishing any woman." State v. Welch, 191 Mo. 179, 89 S. W. 945.

10. State v. Welch, 191 Mo. 179, 89 S. W. 945.

11, 12, 13. State v. Miller [Mo.] 90 S. W. 767.

14. State v. Miller [Mo.] 90 S. W. 767. Failure of girl of 15 to make outcry held not to entitle defendant to an acquittal, where crime was committed in unoccupied field, two miles from any dwelling, where she was in power of defendant and his accomplice. Id. Failure to make outcry or complaint must be considered in the light of the opportunity for so doing, and the conditions surrounding prosecutrix at the time. State v. Wertz [Mo.] 90 S. W. 838.

15. Fact that prosecutrix made no complaint to negroes, with whom she and defendant stayed on the night after the alleged rape, held not to entitle defendant to an acquittal, where she, a girl 15 years of age, was constantly under the surveillance of defendant and his accomplice. State v. Miller [Mo.] 90 S. W. 767. Fact that she did not complain until she told her father and the prosecuting attorney held properly submitted to the jury. Id. Effect of delay in making complaint depends upon circumstances of each particular case and is question for jury. State v. Dilts [Mo.] 90 S. W. 782. Considerable delay in failing to make disclosure of the crime is a circumstance which may be considered as bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the accused (People v. Asteli, 94 N. Y. S. 748), but this rule is to be considered in connection with opportunity, fear, or other circumstances which the court or jury can see have operated to prevent an immediate disclosure, as, in case of child of tender years, that she was afraid of being punished (Id.). Held not error to refuse to charge that failure to make prompt disclosure of crime is circumstance against prosecutrix and tends to disprove truth of her charge, where court charged that whether she did or did not make prompt disclosure was a matter for the jury to consider. People v. Asteli, 94 N. Y. S. 748.

(§ 1) C. Attempts and assaults with intent to commit rape.[18]—In order to constitute an assault with intent to commit rape there must be an assault coupled with the purpose of having intercourse with the person assaulted,[19] and the assault and the intent must concur as to time.[20] Impotency is no defense,[21] neither is drunkenness where defendant, at the time of the alleged offense, knew what he was doing, was able to appreciate the character of the act, and knew that it was wrongful and unlawful.[22]

§ 2. Indictment and prosecution. A. Indictment or information.[23]—As in other cases the indictment or information must clearly inform the accused of the nature of the accusation against him.[24] Except in the case of statutory rape, where force is not a necessary element,[25] it must be alleged that the act was done with

16. See 4 C. L. 1231.

17. Rev. St. 1892, § 2396, denouncing and punishing the crimes of ravishing a female over 10 by force, and of carnally knowing and abusing a female under 10, is not repealed by Id. § 2598, providing a punishment for anyone having intercourse with an unmarried female under 16, as amended by Laws 1901, c. 4965, p. 111, raising the age of the female to 18 and increasing the punishment. Wilson v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 471. While it is necessary, under § 2396, to allege and prove a different state of facts if female is under 10 than if she is over that age, yet in either case the crime is rape. Id. Object of § 2598, as amended, is to punish crime of intercourse with unmarried female under 18 under circumstances that do not make the crime rape, and female referred to is an unmarried one between 10 and 18. Id. Word "unlawfully," as used in Gen. St. 1901, § 2016, defining crime of carnally knowing a female under 18, is used in the sense of "without authority of law," or "not permitted by law." State v. Tinkler [Kan.] 83 P. 830. Under Cr. Code § 12, it is rape to have sexual intercourse with a female child under the age of 18 years without force and with her consent, unless she is over the age of 15 and of previous unchaste character. Hubert v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 276. The law conclusively presumes that a female under the statutory age is incapable of consent, and therefore act is by force and arms. State v. Jones, 32 Mont. 442, 80 P. 1095. Under a count charging statutory rape it is wholly immaterial whether intercourse was had with or without the consent of the prosecutrix, or with or without the use of force or threats. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 345. Fact that intercourse was against will of prosecutrix and without her consent is not a defense to an indictment under Kirby's Dig. § 2008 for carnal abuse of a female under 16. Corothers v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 585. Under Act March 29, 1889 (Laws 1889, p. 951, c. 686), making it a misdemeanor to use a female under the age of 18 for the purpose of sexual intercourse, it is immaterial whether she consents to the act or not. State v. Cunningham [Del.] 63 A. 30. In prosecution under Rev. St. 1899, § 1838, for having carnal knowledge of a female between 14 and 18, her consent does not affect defendant's criminality. State v. Day, 188 Mo. 359, 87 S. W. 465.

18. See 4 C. L. 1231.

19. In order to authorize a conviction, the jury must be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant would have been guilty of rape if he consummated his intent. State v. Truitt [Del.] 62 A. 790. Under Kirby's Dig. § 1583, defining an assault as an "unlawful attempt, coupled with present ability to commit a violent injury on the person of another," both the intention and ability to commit the crime must be shown, and defendant cannot be convicted of assault with intent to rape where he never attempted to have intercourse or asked for it, or to do any act without which it could not take place, and released prosecutrix when she expressed a desire to go back from where they had come. Anderson v. State [Ark.] 90 S. W. 846. Must be a taking hold of the person for the purpose of committing the rape, even in the case of a girl under 15, it not being enough that her mind is humiliated in some way, or that she suffers some disagreeable emotions of the mind. Hudson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 177. Instruction that "the injury intended may be either bodily pain, constraint, or sense of shame, or other disagreeable emotion of the mind," held erroneous. Id. Fewox v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 178.

20. Hudson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 177.

21. State v. Bartlett, 127 Iowa 689, 104 N. W. 285.

22. State v. Truitt [Del.] 62 A. 790.

23. See 4 C. L. 1232.

24. Information charging rape of female under the age of 16 years, to wit, of the age of 14 years and upwards, held not confusing as to the meaning of the language employed. State v. Jones, 32 Mont. 442, 80 P. 1095. Indictment held to have properly charged an assault on a female under 15 by the use of force. Herbert v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 653.

25. Charge of assault in information under Gen. St. 1901, § 2016, for carnally knowing female under 18, held mere surplusage, and failure to prove it was not a variance. State v. Tinkler [Kan.] 83 P. 830. Where information charges that crime was committed upon a female child under the age of 16, further allegation that it was against her consent is mere surplusage, since law presumes that she is incapable of giving consent, and hence but one offense is charged. State v. Jones, 32 Mont. 442, 80 P. 1095.

force and against the will or consent of the prosecutrix.[26] It is sufficient if the crime is charged substantially in the words of the statute.[27] In prosecutions for statutory rape the age of the prosecutrix[28] and that of defendant, if material, must be alleged.[29] So must the previous chastity of prosecutrix, if material.[30] It has been held sufficient if the facts that prosecutrix is a female,[31] and was not defendant's wife, appear by necessary implication.[32] An indictment for an attempt to commit rape must aver the intent and the overt act constituting the attempt.[33]

A felony and a misdemeanor cannot be blended in one count.[34] In case two or more distinct crimes are alleged, the state will be required to elect between them.[35] Where the statute provides that the crime may be committed in different ways or by different means, the act constitutes but a single offense, whether one or all of such ways and means be employed in its commission, and it is proper to charge its commission in one of the ways or by one of the means, or in all such ways or by all such means conjunctively.[36] As a general rule there is no variance if another day than that alleged in the indictment be proven, provided it be prior to the indictment and within the statute of limitations,[37] but the indictment must on

26. Information under first clause of Cr. Code § 12. Hubert v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 276.

27. Information not rendered bad because defendant was charged with having "unlawfully" committed the offense without stating facts showing that it was done unlawfully. State v. Tinkler [Kan.] 83 P. 830.

28. Information under second clause of Cr. Code § 12 must charge that person upon whom offense was committed is a female child under 18 years of age. Hubert v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 276.

29. On prosecution under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 38, § 237, making it rape for male of 16 and upwards to have carnal knowledge of female under 14, either with or without her consent, indictment must allege that defendant was over 16. Schramm v. People [Ill.] 77 N. E. 117. Information under second clause of Cr. Code § 12 must charge that accused is a male person of 18 years or over. Hubert v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 276.

30. In prosecution under second clause of Cr. Code § 12, previous chastity must be alleged if she is over 15. Hubert v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 276.

31. Indictment charging that defendant "her, the said M., then and there unlawfully, forcibly, and against her will, feloniously did ravish," etc., is sufficient, though it does not specifically charge that prosecutrix was a female. State v. Miller [Mo.] 90 S. W. 767.

32. Indictment for statutory rape alleging that the prosecuting witness was under 16, and that defendant did unlawfully and feloniously have carnal knowledge of her, held to sufficiently negative the idea that they were man and wife, though that fact was not specifically alleged. Hust v. State [Ark.] 91 S. W. 8.

33. Indictment held fatally defective in failing to allege overt act, and conviction thereunder arrested. Hogan v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 464.

34. Indictment charging attempt to rape female over the age of 10, which is a felony, Rev. St. 1892, § 2396, and attempt to rape female under 18, which is misdemeanor under Laws 1901, c. 4695, p. 111, in one count held defective. Hogan v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 464.

35. Where indictment contained count for rape on girl under 15 and count for rape by fraud and threats, held proper to allow state to elect to prosecute on first count. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 345. Where indictment contained count for rape on girl under 15 and count for rape by force, threats, and fraud, held within province of court to submit only the first count, and his action in so doing amounted to an election. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 345. Proof that defendant has committed two or more similar crimes to which the information may relate does not render such information, if otherwise sufficient, insufficient to sustain a conviction of any one of such crimes, nor does proof that two distinct crimes have been committed render the proofs insufficient to sustain a conviction for either of them, the only effect in such cases being to render it uncertain as to which of such crimes the information was intended to apply, which uncertainty is properly removed by requiring the state to elect. State v. Osborne [Wash.] 81 P. 1096.

36. Under Bal. Ann. Codes & St. providing that person shall be guilty of rape who (1) shall forcibly ravish any female of the age of 18 years or more; (3) shall carnally know any female child under the age of 18 years, held that on information alleging that defendant did "forcibly and against her will ravish and carnally know" the prosecutrix, "a female child under the age of 18 years," charged but one offense. State v. Adams [Wash.] 83 P. 1108.

37. Whatley v. State [Fla.] 35 So. 80. Under Bal. Ann. Codes & St. § 6845, allegation of time is immaterial, otherwise than that indictment or information must show on its face that prosecution is not barred by limitations, and hence information charging that crime was committed on certain date does not confine state to proof of crime committed its face charge a crime sufficiently definite to enable the court to impose the proper sentence, and, in determining its sufficiency in this respect, the date alleged must be taken as true.[38]

Defendant may ordinarily be convicted of a lesser offense necessarily included in that charged provided the evidence authorizes it.[39] By statute in some states, however, he cannot be convicted of an assault with intent to commit the crime, or of an attempt to commit it, where it appears that the crime was fully consummated.[40]

(§ 2) B. Evidence. 1. Admissibility.[41]—The general rules of criminal evidence of course apply.[42] Admissions and confessions of the accused,[43] the clothing on such date, but an act committed at any time within three years next preceding the filing of the information may be shown and conviction therefor will be sustained thereby. State v. Osborne [Wash.] 81 P. 1096.

38. Whatley v. State [Fla.] 35 So. 80. Indictment charging the particulars of the offense of having carnal intercourse with an unmarried female under 16, under Rev. St. 1892, § 2598, as it stood prior to the amendment thereof by Acts 1901, c. 4695, p. 111, making it an offense to have such intercourse with unmarried female under 18, but alleging the time of its commission as a day subsequent to the amendment, will not support a conviction for an offense committed prior to the amendment. Whatley v. State [Fla.] 35 So. 80. Under Const. 1885, art. 3, § 32, original statute remains in force as to crimes committed before amendment becomes effective. Id.

39. One indicted for raping "a female under the age of 16 years, forcibly and against her will," may be convicted of carnal abuse of a female under 16 years (Kirby's Dig. § 2008), in view of Kirby's Dig. § 2413, authorizing conviction of any offense included in that charged. Henson v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 965. Assault and battery held included in averments of indictment for assault with intent. Anderson v. State [Ark.] 90 S. W. 846. Assault with intent to ravish includes in its commission a single assault where the evidence shows a continuous, violent assault by defendant upon prosecutrix, and defendant may, under proper instructions, be convicted of the lesser crime, though the evidence is sufficient to sustain a conviction for the greater. People v. Green [Cal. App.] 82 P. 544. Verdict of simple assault against one indicted for assault with intent to ravish will only be interfered with on appeal where there is no evidence showing that an assault was committed. Id. Defendant may be convicted of an attempt to commit rape on an information charging rape on a female under 16 years, though force or want of consent is not alleged, under Pen. Code § 1159, providing that defendant may be convicted of an offense necessarily involved in that charge, or of an attempt to commit the offense. People v. Ah Lung [Cal. App.] 83 P. 296. Pen. Code § 288, protecting children from lewd or lascivious acts not constituting other crimes, does not affect the rule, since it clearly excludes such offense. Id. Since proof of defendant's guilt of the crime of rape necessarily includes that of every included offense, he cannot complain of a conviction of one of such lesser offenses, unless it appears that in order to arrive at such a verdict the jury must have absolutely rejected the evidence of the witnesses of the state. State v. Barkley [Iowa] 105 N. W. 506. Held that defendant could not object to conviction for assault with intent where it appeared that a portion of prosecutrix's story might have been rejected and the rest accepted as true. Id. The offense of assault and battery is included in an indictment for rape. Id. Under an indictment for assault with intent to rape, any character of an assault upon a female by a man may be proven. Conviction of aggravated assault may be had though indictment does not charge defendant as being an adult male, and the assaulted party a female. Kearse v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 628, 88 S. W. 363.

40. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 2361, providing that no person shall be convicted of an assault with intent to commit a crime, or of any other attempt to commit any offense when it shall appear that the crime intended or offense attempted was perpetrated by such person at the time of such an assault or in pursuance of such an attempt, defendant cannot be tried or convicted of an assault with intent to commit rape where the testimony of prosecutrix, if credited, shows that the crime of rape was fully consummated, notwithstanding Id. §§ 2369, 2370, authorizing conviction of a lower offense than that charged necessarily involved in it. State v. Bell [Mo.] 91 S. W. 898.

41. See 4 C. L. 1232.

42. Evidence held admissible: As to understanding as to room defendant was to occupy, it being competent to show that he was to occupy a room found locked on the occasion of witness' visit. People v. Ah Lung [Cal. App.] 83 P. 296. Where prosecutrix testified that she never had any communication with defendant after the alleged rape, held error to exclude testimony that she was seen playing with him shortly thereafter. State v. Shouse, 188 Mo. 473, 87 S. W. 480. Where defendant and third person ravished prosecutrix pursuant to a common purpose, held that fact that third person first assaulted her while defendant looked on, and that defendant immediately afterwards also assaulted her, did not make two distinct offenses, and evidence of the whole transaction was admissible on trial of defendant. State v. Sykes, 191 Mo. 62, 89 S. W. 851.

Other offenses: Held not error to admit worn by the accused if sufficiently identified,[44] that he fled to escape arrest[45] but written confession of defendant, admitting intercourse with prosecutrix and another girl, where portion relating to the latter could not be separated, and jury were instructed to disregard all evidence of other offenses. Wistrand v. People, 218 Ill. 323, 75 N. E. 891. Proof by other girls that they had been at defendant's house many times, and that it was in the county mentioned held an improper method of proving venue, but not prejudicial where there was nothing in the evidence tending to show that defendant bad had improper relations with them. Id. Testimony of chief of police that upon a certain occasion there were other girls at police headquarters making charges against defendant held admissible for purpose of precluding inference that his failure to take down the evidence of prosecution in writing was due to a want of belief in its truthfulness, though it was not admissible for the purpose of showing that defendant had been guilty of other similar crimes. State v. Hummer [N. J. Law] 62 A. 388.

Evidence held inadmissible: In prosecution for statutory rape on defendant's stepdaughter, testimony of a witness that he had visited defendant's house and saw nothing incriminating. Hust v. State [Ark.] 91 W. 8. Penetration not being an element of the crime of an attempt to commit rape, its admission is harmless where defendant is convicted of that offense. People v. Ah Lung [Cal. App.] 83 P. 296. In prosecution for using female under 18 for purpose of sexual intercourse, where evidence showed that offense was committed early in June, evidence tending to show that it could not have been committed on the day in that month alleged in the indictment, since the state was not bound to establish that it was committed on that day. State v. Cunningham [Del.] 63 A. 30. In prosecution for rape on stepdaughter, petition for divorce filed against defendant by his wife on other grounds. State v. Shouse, 188 Mo. 473, 87 S. W. 480. Testimony of witness that he had kissed defendant, particularly where it did not appear that defendant was present. Kearse v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 628, 88 S. W. 363. Conversation between prosecutrix and her grandmother after she had driven home with defendant, a distance of five miles. Id. That before birth of prosecutrix's child defendant offered to furnish witness a woman with whom he could have intercourse, but refused to divulge her name unless witness would agree to have intercourse with her, being in no way connected with prosecutrix. Shults v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 91 S. W. 786. Testimony of prosecutrix that one H. had proposed marriage to her without previously having made love to her, and that defendant had, in her presence, stated that he would give H. a span of mules when he married her, no connection between defendant and H. in regard to the matter being shown. Id. Evidence that a companion of defendant on a previous occasion had been convicted of seducing another girl. Neill v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 91 S. W. 791. Evidence that prosecutrix's mother was an opium fiend in absence of anything to show connection of that fact with the case. Id. In prosecution for statutory rape, held proper to refuse to allow defendant to show by prosecutrix on cross-examination, as bearing on her credibility as a witness and as tending to show a motive for charging defendant with the crime, that she had had intercourse with many different men ever since she was 12 years old and down to the time in question. State v. Stimpson [Vt.] 62 A. 14.

43. Declarations of third person in presence of accused and his conduct in relation thereto held relevant and competent under Code Civ. Proc. § 1870, subd. 3, and Pen. Code § 1102. People v. Ah Lung [Cal. App.] 83 P. 296. Letter written by defendant after his arrest which was manifestly an attempt to fabricate evidence and suborn perjury, though never delivered. Dickey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 776. On prosecution for having carnal knowledge of a female between 14 and 18, of previous chaste character, letters written by defendant to her expressing his affection for her and speaking of their intention of living together, as tending to corroborate her testimony and as being in the nature of an admission of his criminal conduct. State v. Kelley [Mo.] 90 S. W. 834. Instruction authorizing their consideration held proper. Id. Statements by defendant to third persons that prosecutrix had told her story all right at the preliminary examination, except as to the choking and that she had fought at first. State v. Wertz [Mo.] 90 S. W. 838. Cross-examination of defendant in regard to such admissions held proper. Id. Statement made by defendant to witness with reference to tree under which crime was alleged to have been committed. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 345. State should not, however, be permitted to introduce evidence of acts of accused and statements alleged to have been made by him, which do not tend to corroborate the evidence of prosecutrix, or impeach or discredit his own testimony. Hubert v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 276. Prejudicial error to allow introduction of evidence of certain acts of defendant, such as the purchase of drinks for the officer arresting him, and statements made by him to such officer. Id.

44. Shirt and trousers claimed to have been worn by the accused when offense was committed held sufficiently identified. Roszczyniala v. State, 125 Wis. 414, 104 N. W. 113.

45. State may show defendant's disappearance from home immediately after commission of the crime, and the search that was instituted for him, as tending to show flight. Dickey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 776. The fact that defendant fled from the county to avoid arrest and trial for the offense charged may be considered. State v. Kelley [Mo.] 90 S. W. 834. Evidence that when warrant was issued officers could not find defendant, but that they finally located him in another county, held admissible as tending to show that he was concealing himself to escape arrest until he and prosecutrix could flee the country, as the evidence showed they intended to do. Id.

not that his co-conspirator did so,[46] evidence as to the relations existing between him and prosecutrix,[47] and evidence of the age of the prosecutrix, though there is no question that she is over the age of consent,[48] are admissible. In a prosecution for statutory rape a child born to the prosecutrix may be exhibited to the jury.[49] Declarations of the prosecutrix inconsistent with her testimony are not admissible as original evidence.[50] There is a conflict of authority as to the admissibility of evidence of other acts of intercourse.[51]

Evidence that prosecutrix made complaint soon after the alleged offense is admissible,[52] but the particulars of her complaint cannot be shown unless they are part of the res gestae.[53] As a general rule, evidence as to whom she charged with 40. Evidence of flight of co-conspirator held irrelevant and immaterial. State v. Sykes, 191 Mo. 62, 89 S. W. 851. Its admission held harmless. Id.

47. As to the actions of defendant and his association with prosecutrix. People v. Ah Lung [Cal. App.] 83 P. 296. In prosecution for raping defendant's daughter under the age of consent, admission of evidence showing the relation existing between defendant and prosecutrix and his disposition towards her, extending over several years, held not prejudicial error. State v. Norris, 127 Iowa 683, 104 N. W. 282.

48. Evidence of age of prosecutrix, a child slightly over 10 years old. Dickey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 776.

49. As evidence tending to establish the fact of birth and prior unlawful intercourse. State v. Danforth [N. H.] 60 A. 839. In such case counsel for the state may call attention to the peculiarities in the features of the child and the defendant, and to a general resemblance between them. Id. The ground of the relevancy of such evidence is the same whether comparison is made to determine whether there is a difference of race as when it is a comparison between individuals, though greater weight may be given such evidence in the former case. Id. An objection resting upon the immaturity of the child goes merely to the definiteness of the proof, and whether its features are sufficiently developed to authorize its use as evidence by comparison with the alleged parent is purely a question of fact. Id. Objection that defendant was compelled to furnish evidence against himself held without foundation, it not appearing that he was required to do anything or that he did not testify. Will be presumed that he offered himself as a witness and made himself the subject of cross-examination and comment. Id.

50. Admissions made by child are incompetent, there being no privity between her and the state. State v. Hummer [N. J. Law] 62 A. 388.

51. Colorado: Evidence of other acts of intercourse with the prosecuting witness committed within the period of the statute of limitations is admissible as explanatory or corroboratory of the act charged. Schuette v. People, 33 Colo. 325, 80 P. 890. Jury should, however, be instructed, on request, that it is admissible for that purpose only, and that defendant can only be found guilty of the offense charged. Id. State must also elect on which offense it will rely. Id.

Kansas: Even though it is not proper to show subsequent acts of intercourse between defendant and prosecutrix, held that judgment of conviction would not be reversed because testimony of that character was brought out incidentally during examination upon another matter, particularly where it did not clearly appear that such evidence related to a subsequent and not to a prior transaction. State v. Oswalt [Kan.] 82 P. 586.

Michigan: Evidence of subsequent acts of intercourse with defendant is inadmissible on prosecution for statutory rape. People v. Brown [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 852, 106 N. W. 149.

New York: Where evidence of subsequent offenses was first brought out by defendant on cross-examination of prosecutrix, and no objection to such evidence was made at the trial, held that defendant could not complain of its admission. People v. Astell, 94 N. Y. S. 748.

Ohio: On trial of one indicted under Rev. St. 1905, § 6816, for carnally knowing and abusing female under 16 with her consent, confessions and admissions of defendant of acts of intercourse more than two years after the offense charged, and after prosecutrix had attained age of 16, held inadmissible. State v. Lawrence [Ohio] 77 N. E. 266.

Texas: On prosecution for statutory rape, state cannot examine prosecutrix as to other acts of intercourse between herself and defendant, and, even where defendant opens the way for such evidence, details of such other acts are inadmissible. Shults v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 91 S. W. 786.

Vermont: On prosecution for statutory rape evidence of acts of intercourse on different days both before and after the one charged is admissible. State v. Willett [Vt.] 62 A. 48.

52. Posey v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 1019; Dickey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 776. The voluntary complaints of the prosecutrix. State v. Andrews [Iowa] 105 N. W. 215. Testimony of prosecutrix that she made complaint to her husband and others soon after the occurrence. State v. Stines, 138 N. C. 686, 50 S. E. 851. Held that no error was committed in receiving testimony that complaint was made several months after the offense, and the explanation of the delay, the jury having been properly instructed on the subject. Donaldson v. People, 33 Colo. 333, 80 P. 906.

53. State v. Andrews [Iowa] 105 N. W. 215; Dickey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 776. The the offense is inadmissible,[54] though there seems to be some conflict of authority in this regard.[55] Evidence as to her mental condition immediately after the alleged offense is admissible,[56] but the person to whom she made complaint cannot give her opinion that she had been mistreated.[57]

On a trial for rape by force, defendant may show his general reputation for peace, but where the crime charged is statutory rape, only repute for chastity and morality is admissible.[58] Such evidence must be confined to reputation in the community where the accused resides[59] and as it existed before the commission of the alleged offense.[60] Where previous chastity of the prosecutrix is a necessary element, general reputation is not admissible.[61]

(§ 2B) 2. Weight and sufficiency.[62]—Chastity is presumed until the contrary is shown.[63] Evidence of previous good character may be considered in connection with all the other evidence in determining defendant's guilt or innocence,[64] but it is never conclusive in favor of the accused, nor does it raise a presumption in his favor.[65]

In some states corroboration of prosecutrix is required by statute.[66] There is a conflict of authority as to its necessity in the absence of statute.[67] rule permitting the declarations of prosecutrix to be given limits such statements to the mere complaint, and prohibits the giving of the details of the offense, the name of the assailant, or the place where the assault was committed. Donaldson v. People, 33 Colo. 333, 80 P. 906. Objection that details of complaint were not admissible held waived by failing to make proper objection at the trial. Id. Held error to admit evidence that prosecutrix stated that accused had torn her clothes. State v. Barkley [Iowa] 105 N. W. 506. Where the prosecutrix is a very young child this rule is not applied with the same degree of strictness as when she is an adult, or has reached such an age as to have an understanding of such matters. Evidence held admissible. State v. Andrews [Iowa] 105 N. W. 215.

54. Donaldson v. People, 33 Colo. 333, 80 P. 906. Is confined to bare fact of complaint, and details of the occurrence, or the identity of the person accused, are inadmissible. Posey v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 1019. Where there was no question of defendant's identity, or of the fact that the parties had intercourse, admission of such evidence held harmless. Dickey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 776. In prosecution for statutory rape where state's attorney, in attempting to prove a complaint, cautioned witness not to name the person complained of, answer that "she said he had insulted her" held not objectionable as in effect naming the respondent, the most he was entitled to being an instruction as to the proper use of the answer. State v. Willett [Vt.] 62 A. 48.

55. It is proper to show complaints made by the prosecutrix as to who her assailant was and as to what he did to her. State v. Andrews' [Iowa] 105 N. W. 215. Statement which was in effect that defendant had had intercourse with her forcibly, held admissible. State v. Barkley [Iowa] 105 N. W. 506.

56. On prosecution for assault with intent. Kearse v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 628, 88 S. W. 363.

57. Held improper to allow witness to testify that, from her general appearance, she "would be inclined to think" that she had been mistreated. State v. Wertz [Mo.] 90 S. W. 838.

58. Evidence of defendant's general reputation as a peaceable and quiet citizen held irrelevant. Wistrand v. People, 218 Ill. 323, 75 N. E. 891.

59. Evidence of defendant's reputation for morality in another state several years before the alleged offense held inadmissible. State v. Shouse, 188 Mo. 473, 87 S. W. 480.

60. On an issue as to defendant's good character prior to the alleged offense, state may, on cross-examination of witnesses who have testified to his general reputation, inquire of specific instances in which his character was reflected upon, provided the inquiry does not extend to discussions reflecting upon his reputation occurring after the preferring of the charge in the information, general reputation after that time being admissible only for the purpose of impeaching his credibility as a witness. State v. Wertz [Mo.] 90 S. W. 838.

61. On prosecution for having carnal knowledge of a female between 14 and 18 of previous chaste character. State v. Kelley [Mo.] 90 S. W. 834. Evidence of prosecutrix's general reputation in the community for morality and chastity subsequent to the time of defendant's arrest, when it was self evident that she had been debauched, held inadmissible. State v. Day, 188 Mo. 359, 87 S. W. 465.

62. See 4 C. L. 1233.

63. State v. Kelley [Mo.] 90 S. W. 834.

64. State v. Jones, 32 Mont. 442, 80 P. 1095.

65. Instruction held erroneous. State v. Jones, 32 Mont. 442, 80 P. 1095.

66. Code § 5488 requires that prosecutrix be corroborated by other evidence tending to connect defendant with the commission of the act. State v. Norris, 127 Iowa, 683, 104 N. W. 282. Assault with intent to commit. State v. Bartlett, 127 Iowa, 689, 104 N. W. 285. The statutory requirement is

Cases dealing with the sufficiency of the evidence in particular cases will be found in the note.[68]

(§ 2) C. Instructions.[69]—As in other cases, instructions should be clear,[70] and should not be misleading[71] or argumentative,[72] nor should they give undue met if there is some evidence tending to strengthen and corroborate the prosecutrix in connecting the defendant with the commission of the offense. State v. Norris, 127 Iowa, 683, 104 N. W. 282. Evidence of stains on clothing of prosecutrix held some corroboration where evidence tended to show that they were caused by seminal emissions and that no one but defendant had an opportunity to produce them. Id. Evidence of opportunity made by defendant's deliberate act, in connection with evidence that he was doing the things usually leading to sexual intercourse, tends to connect defendant with the crime. Id. Corroboration is only necessary for the purpose of connecting defendant with the commission of the crime, and the fact that the crime charged has been committed may be proved by the testimony of the prosecutrix alone. State v. Bartlett, 127 Iowa, 689, 104 N. W. 285. The sufficiency of corroborating evidence is for the jury. State v. Norris, 127 Iowa, 683, 104 N. W. 282.

67. California: In prosecution for statutory rape the corroborative evidence need not tend directly to connect defendant with the offense charged. People v. Ah Lung [Cal. App.] 83 P. 296. In such cases there is no absolute rule requiring corroboration, and it is only when testimony of prosecutrix is uncorroborated and so inherently improbable as to warrant the belief that verdict was the result of prejudice, that judgment of conviction will be reversed. Id. Appellate court will not interfere, though evidence of prosecutrix is contradictory and corroboration is slight, unless preponderance of evidence is against the verdict. Id.

Kansas: No corroboration necessary to sustain conviction under Gen. St. 1901, § 2016, for carnally knowing female under 18. State v. Tinkler [Kan.] 83 P. 830.

Montana: No additional evidence than that of prosecutrix is necessary. State v. Jones, 32 Mont. 442, 80 P. 1095.

Missouri: No rule requiring corroboration. State v. Dilts [Mo.] 90 S. W. 782; State v. Welch, 191 Mo. 179, 89 S. W. 945. Not necessary either in criminal prosecution or civil action for damages. Champagne v. Hamey, 189 Mo. 709, 88 S. W. 92. In prosecution under Rev. St. 1899, § 1838, for having carnal knowledge of a female between ages of 14 and 18. State v. Day, 188 Mo. 359, 87 S. W. 465.

Texas: Corroboration not necessary where female is under age of consent. Wallace v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1029, 89 S. W. 827.

68. Evidence held to have no tendency to show a conspiracy to convict defendant by unlawful means. Donaldson v. People, 33 Colo. 333, 80 P. 906. In prosecution under statute making it rape for male of 16 and upwards to have carnal knowledge of female under 14, evidence held not to authorize conviction where it showed that defendant was under 16. Schramm v. People [Ill.] 77 N. E. 117. Evidence held to make a case for the jury, and demurrer thereto properly overruled. State v. Wertz [Mo.] 90 S. W. 838.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a conviction. Barrett v. People [Ill.] 77 N. E. 224; Dickey v. State [Miss.] 38 So. 776; State v. Sykes, 191 Mo. 62, 89 S. W. 851; State v. Welch, 191 Mo. 179, 89 S. W. 945; State v. Miller [Mo.] 90 S. W. 767; State v. Dilts [Mo.] 90 S. W. 782; Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 89, 87 S. W. 159; Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 345.

Statutory rape. State v. Tinkler [Kan.] 83 P. 830; State v. Day, 188 Mo. 359, 87 S. W. 465; State v. Jones, 32 Mont. 442, 80 P. 1095; Wallace v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1029, 89 S. W. 827.

Assault with intent. State v. Bartlett, 127 Iowa, 689, 104 N. W. 285; State v. Urspruch [Mo.] 90 S. W. 451; Castle v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 32. To show force and intent. Castle v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 32.

Corroboration. People v. Astell, 94 N. Y. S. 748. Corroboration on prosecution for assault with intent. State v. Bartlett, 127 Iowa, 689, 104 N. W. 285. To sustain conviction of an attempt. People v. Ah Lung [Cal. App.] 83 P. 296.

Identification. Roszczyniala v. State, 125 Wis. 414, 104 N. W. 113. Evidence of penetration. State v. Andrews [Iowa] 105 N. W. 215. Penetration in prosecution for statutory rape. Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 89, 87 S. W. 159. Evidence held to justify inference of a conspiracy between defendant and third person to commit rape. State v. Sykes, 191 Mo. 62, 89 S. W. 851. On prosecution for having carnal knowledge of a female between 14 and 18, of previous chaste character, evidence held sufficient to show such chaste character. State v. Kelley [Mo.] 90 S. W. 834.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain conviction: Statutory rape under second clause of Cr. Code § 12. Hubert v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 276.

Assault with intent. Anderson v. State [Ark.] 90 S. W. 846; State v. Hahn, 189 Mo. 241, 87 S. W. 1006; Dusek v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 89 S. W. 271.

69. See 4 C. L. 1234.

70. Instruction as to what would constitute an assault with intent held not sufficiently clear. Hudson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 177.

71. Where there was no evidence of threats of violence by accused before the act, but there was evidence that immediately thereafter he told her that he would kill her father if she told him, instruction that force did not mean exclusively physical force, but that force was used if prosecutrix was made to yield through threats of violence or injury then made, held misleading and prejudicial error. Darrell v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1060.

prominence to a part of the evidence,[73] comment on the evidence,[74] made the province of the jury,[75] or assume the guilt or innocence of the accused.[76]

The court should charge as to every offense involved in the charge made by the indictment of which the accused might lawfully be convicted under any view of the evidence.[77] Defendant's theory of the case should be given if supported by the evidence.[78] It is not necessary to charge as to immaterial matters.[79]

Holdings as to the necessity, propriety, and correctness of instructions defining the crime,[80] and defining accessories[81] as to lesser offenses,[82] the degree of force re-

72. Charge that jury might consider in whose power woman alleged to have been assaulted was at time of alleged assault, held not so argumentative as to require a reversal. Sutton v. State, 123 Ga. 125, 51 S. E. 316. Instruction held improper. People v. Brown [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 852, 106 N. W. 149.

73. Instruction in prosecution for assault with intent held not objectionable as giving undue prominence to the fact that defendant induced prosecutrix to enter his buggy under a promise to take her home. Donovan v. People, 215 Ill. 520, 74 N. E. 772. Requested instruction as to reasonable doubt held objectionable as singling out certain elements of the offense. State v. Wertz [Mo.] 90 S. W. 838.

74. Instruction as to impeachment of prosecutrix held not objectionable. State v. Kelley [Mo.] 90 S. W. 834.

75. Charge that there was no evidence of a conspiracy to convict defendant by unlawful means, and that jury should disregard statement of counsel that such evidence would be introduced, held proper. Donaldson v. People, 33 Colo. 333, 80 P. 906. Instruction that statement of accused did not amount to a confession properly refused. its effect being for the jury. Roszczyniala v. State, 125 Wis. 414, 104 N. W. 113.

76. Instruction not objectionable as assuming, by use of words "his object," that he had a criminal intent. Donovan v. People, 215 Ill. 520, 74 N. E. 772.

77. On trial of indictment for assault with intent to commit rape, where there was evidence authorizing a finding that assault was committed with intent of gaining woman's consent to intercourse, but without any intent to commit rape, held error to fail to charge on law of assault and assault and battery. Sutton v. State, 123 Ga. 125, 51 S. E. 316. Where evidence is such that defendant might be found guilty of assault and battery, it is prejudicial error not to submit the question of his guilt of that crime, even though the issue of his guilt of a simple assault is submitted. State v. Barkley [Iowa] 105 N. W. 506. Charges of assault and of assault with intent held eliminated from the case where girl's evidence showed the completed offense, defendant denied the whole transaction, and evidence showed that girl consented, and hence failure to submit those issues was not error. Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 89, 87 S. W. 159. Where case was rape if state's testimony was true, and defendant denied that act was committed at all, held not necessary to charge as to the law of aggravated assault, or assault with intent to commit rape. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 345. Held error to instruct as to assault with intent, there being no evidence suggesting that defendant was guilty of that offense. Dusek v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 89 S. W. 271. Evidence held to raise issue of aggravated assault and to require a charge that defendant would only be guilty of that offense if he did not use all the force necessary to overcome resistance. Fewox v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 178. Where testimony of prosecutrix, in a prosecution for assault with intent, showed that defendant's unquestioned purpose was to have intercourse with her, and he denied that he made the attempt at all, held that court was not required to charge on aggravated assault. Herbert v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 653. Fact that state's evidence makes out rape, and defendant's an assault, held not to preclude court from charging on aggravated assault. Neill v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 91 S. W. 791.

78. Refusal of instruction that if defendant kissed and hugged prosecutrix, thinking that she would not object, there would be no assault, held error in view of evidence as to intimacy between them. Kearse v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 628, 88 S. W. 363. Where res gestae statements of prosecutrix were to the effect that she and defendant had been fighting, held error to fail to charge on that theory. Hudson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 177. Evidence held not to require a charge on impotency. Herbert v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 653. Where defendant admitted his presence with prosecutrix, held that there was no necessity for a charge on alibi. Id. Where evidence strongly tended to show that prosecutrix consented, charge authorizing conviction of aggravated assault held not objectionable as eliminating issue of consent and self-defense raised by testimony. Neill v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 91 S. W. 791. Instruction that defense was an alibi held not objectionable because defense was more than that where evidence established beyond question that crime was committed. Roszczyniala v. State, 125 Wis. 414, 104 N. W. 113.

79. Where only the first count of the indictment charging statutory rape was submitted to the jury, held not error to refuse to charge with reference to question of force and want of consent. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 345.

80. Instruction as to what constitutes carnal abuse held not prejudicial, even if erroneous. State v. Hummer [N. J. Law] 62 A. 388.

81. Where evidence tended to show concert and agreement between defendants and quired,[83] the failure to make outcry and complaint,[84] previous good character,[85] corroboration,[86] flight,[87] reasonable doubt,[88] the law of circumstantial evidence,[89] the weight of prosecutrix's testimony,[90] impeachment,[91] will be found in the notes.

(§ 2) D. Trial and punishment.[92]—As in other cases the verdict must be responsive to and cover the offense charged in the indictment.[93]

Cases dealing with the propriety of the punishment inflicted in particular instances will be found in the note.[94]

RATIFICATION, see latest topical index.

REAL ACTIONS.[95]

The owner of land is not obliged to begin an action for its recovery as soon as another to commit the crime, instruction held properly given. Barrett v. People [Ill.] 77 N. E. 224.

82. Instructions as to simple assault approved. People v. Green [Cal. App.] 82 P. 544. Instruction as to assault held harmless where defendant was convicted of an attempt to commit. People v. Ah Lung [Cal. App.] 83 P. 296.

83. Where prosecutrix testified that she was unconscious for a part of the time, held proper to charge that force need not have been actual physical force, but it was sufficient if it was constructive force, such as duress, or being put in fear. Posey v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 1019. Requested instructions making physical force necessary to conviction held properly refused. Id. Requested instruction that jury must be convinced beyond reasonable doubt that defendant had sexual intercourse with prosecutrix by force held properly refused, penetration being sufficient. Id. Instruction not objectionable for using other words instead of "penetration," or for requiring jury to find that prosecutrix manifested the utmost reluctance, particularly in view of instructions given at defendant's request. State v. Dilts [Mo.] 90 S. W. 782. In view of the evidence, held error to refuse to instruct that consent on part of prosecutrix would be presumed until state proved beyond reasonable doubt that she used every means within her power to prevent intercourse, and that more must be shown than a mere want of consent, and it must appear that she used every exertion within her power to prevent it. Perez v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 453, 87 S. W. 350.

84. Instruction held objectionable in form. State v. Wertz [Mo.] 90 S. W. 838. In prosecution for statutory rape, where force was not charged, held not material error to refuse special instruction that, in weighing evidence of prosecutrix, who was 17 years old, jury might consider that she made no complaint immediately after the offense was alleged to have been committed. State v. Oswalt [Kan.] 82 P. 586.

85. Approved. State v. Kelley [Mo.] 90 S. W. 834. Instruction, though objectionable, held not reversible error when taken in connection with other instructions. State v. Wertz [Mo.] 90 S. W. 838. Instruction that if from all the evidence the jury believed defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt they should so declare, notwithstanding the fact that they might believe that he was a man of good reputation and character before the commission of the offense, held proper. State v. Jones, 32 Mont. 442, 80 P. 1095.

86. Instruction held not objectionable as permitting jury to find that stains on the garments of the prosecutrix were alone sufficient, regardless of how they were produced or who produced them. State v. Norris, 127 Iowa, 683, 104 N. W. 282.

87. Instruction approved. State v. Kelley [Mo.] 90 S. W. 834.

88. Charge held not objectionable. Roszczynlala v. State, 125 Wis. 414, 104 N. W. 113.

89. Where prosecutrix testified fully as to the intercourse and all the attending circumstances, held not necessary to submit law of circumstantial evidence. Ricks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 466, 87 S. W. 345.

90. Instruction that prosecutrix had no interest in the case other than that of a witness, and that her evidence should be weighed like that of any other witness, held not prejudicial when considered in connection with other instructions. State v. Sykes, 191 Mo. 62, 89 S. W. 851.

91. Instruction as to impeachment of prosecutrix properly refused. State v. Kelley [Mo.] 90 S. W. 834.

92. See 4 C. L. 1234.

93. Donovon v. People, 215 Ill. 520, 74 N. E. 772. Verdict finding defendant guilty of the crime of an intent to commit rape in manner and form as charged does not authorize judgment of conviction of an assault with intent to commit rape. Id.

94. Punishment held not excessive: Imprisonment for 20 years where defendant was convicted of assault with intent to rape daughter under age of 15 years. State v. Bartlett, 127 Iowa, 689, 104 N. W. 285. Discretion of court in inflicting punishment of life imprisonment on one convicted of raping child eight years old will not be interfered with. State v. Andrews [Iowa] 105 N. W. 215. Punishment of 65 years imprisonment for assault with intent. Castle v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 32. Imprisonment for 99 years for rape on girl under 15. Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 89, 87 S. W. 159.

Punishment held excessive: Imprisonment for five years for carnal abuse of female under 16 reduced to 2 years. Henson he is aware of the defendant's occupation,[98] and the fact that the owner does not make objection until the suit is commenced does not bar his claim for rents and profits, they being duly demanded in the action.[97]

REAL COVENANTS, see latest topical index.

REAL PROPERTY.

This topic is restricted to definitions and to such infrequently invoked rules and doctrines as do not lend themselves to a separate topical treatment. Ordinarily the law of a branch or division of real property will be topically treated.[98]

Definitions and nature of real property.[99]—Real estate includes those interests in land which partake of its immobility, hence, minerals in place and the right to mine them are realty.[1] A separate estate from the surface may be created therein.[2] A meteorite is realty being regarded as any natural accretion to the soil until severed from its place,[3] and a severance will not be conjecturally inferred from its use in Indian tribal rites.[4] A riparian right is of itself property.[5] The right to have a ditch maintained in its location may be appurtenant.[6] The conveyance of appurtenant water rights to a corporation taking back a right in the aggregate water supply thus made does not destroy its appurtenant character.[7] Shares in the company, which was thereby bound to irrigate the holder's land, are also appurtenant to the land,[8] and a later statute respecting such corporations does not undo this result.[9]

The rule in Shelley's case[10] applies when the word heirs is used as a word of limitation in an estate to one with remainder to heirs.[11] It does not apply if one estate be legal and one equitable.[12]

Restraints on alienation.—An absolute restraint on alienation is void as against public policy, and opposed in sense to ownership.[13] A reasonable restraint on alienation is valid in Kentucky,[14] though the weight of authority is otherwise.

v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 965. Sentence for life on conviction of defendant for raping his own daughter reduced to 20 years. State v. Norris, 127 Iowa, 683, 104 N. W. 282.

95. See Ejectment, etc., 5 C. L. 1056; Quieting Title, 6 C. L. 1183; Trespass (including trespass to try title), 4 C. L. 1698. See, also, Petitory Actions, 6 C. L. 1007.

96, 97. Cote v. Leterneau [Me.] 62 A. 734.

98. See latest topical index for real property headings.

99. See 4 C. L. 1235.

1. Marble and granite. Hudson v. Cahoon [Mo.] 91 S. W. 72. Coal Brand v. Consolidated Coal Co., 219 Ill. 543, 76 N. E. 849. Oil is a mineral. Isom v. Rex Crude Oil Co., 147 Cal. 659, 82 P. 317.

2. Brand v. Consolidated Coal Co., 219 Ill. 543, 76 N. E. 849; Smoot v. Consolidated Coal Co., 114 Ill. App. 512.

3, 4. Oregon Iron Co. v. Hughes [Or.] 81 P. 572. See note in Property, 6 C. L. 1107.

5. Waterford Electric Light, Heat & Power Co. v. Reed, 94 N. Y. S. 551.

6. Candelaria v. Vallejos [N. M.] 81 P. 589.

7, 8, 9. In re Thomas' Estate, 147 Cal. 236, 81 P. 539.

10. See 4 C. L. 1236.

11. To her and "her heirs and assigns" forever, but in part over if she remarried, carries fee. Rissman v. Wierth [Ill.] 77 N. E. 108. A clause that grantee should not sell but should retain the land "for herself and her children forever" is not within the rule. Hubbird v. Goin [C. C. A.] 137 F. 822. "Lawful" heirs is not outside the rule. Wool v. Fleetwood, 136 N. C. 460, 48 S. E. 785.

12. Trust for a woman till a certain age, then to take the property for life with remainder in fee to her lawful issue. Slater v. Rudderforth, 25 App. D. C. 497. The trust held an active one not executed by the statute of uses. Id. Not when first taken holds under a trust. Johnson v. Buck [Ill.] 77 N. E. 163.

13. Wool v. Fleetwood, 136 N. C. 460, 48 S. E. 785. Limitation on manner of enjoyment of absolute estate void for repugnancy. Clark v. Clark, 99 Md. 356, 58 A. 24.

14. During life of middle aged widow.

Present and future estates.—A present estate requires living parties, but one in futuro may be given to persons not yet in esse.[15] Lien of an execution levied upon an indeterminate estate is lost by a conveyance by deed executed after the estate vested.[16]

Charges.—In Pennsylvania there is a statutory presumption of payment of a charge after 21 years,[17] and an incumbrance for dower is within it.[18] At law, but not necessarily in equity, a charge on land is merged in the estate when the latter comes to the person favored by the charge.[19]

Common lands.—By allotment the common lands of a town cease to be common.[20]

Entails[21] are commonly now regarded as fees simple.[22] In Rhode Island the "actual seisin" necessary to a tenant in tail in order to bar the entail is required only in legal estates,[23] and the owner of an equitable entail need not be seised if he would bar it,[24] but the statute of that state enabling one to bar equitable entails does not retroact.[25]

Covenants running with the land[26] have been held to include party wall agreements,[27] covenants to pay rent in a perpetual lease,[28] an agreement in consideration of a grant of way to fence the same,[29] but not a grantee's promise to pay an incumbrance.[30]

Possession[31] follows the legal title in the absence of actual possession.[32] Actual possession of any part extends to the whole area claimed.[33] A mere possession is superior to strangers.[34] A distinction has been claimed between constructive possession and seisin in law.[35] Possessory rights of the locator of a mining claim not patented are property.[36]

Merger[37] is the annihilation of a lesser estate by union with a greater in the same person or right.[38] It depends on intention at the time of the union of estates.[39] By merger of a life estate the tenant's power in gross is extinguished.[40]

Lawson v. Lightfoot, 27 Ky. L. R. 217, 84 S. W. 739.

15. Hall v. Wright, 27 Ky. L. R. 1185, 87 S. W. 1129.

16. Swerer v. Trustees of the Ohio Wesleyan University, 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 333.

17, 18. DeHaven's Estate, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 507.

19. Charge for owelties held not to merge when surety purchased land. Van Ormer's Estate, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 234.

20. Evidence held to show allotment. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

21. See 4 C. L. 1237.

22. Estates tail abolished. Merrill v. American Baptist Missionary Union [N. H.] 62 A. 647. To daughter but over if she die without heirs, held to create fee tail changed by Act April 27, 1855, P. L. 368, to a fee. Corrin v. Elliott, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 449.

23, 24, 25. Paine v. Sackett [R. I.] 61 A. 753.

26. See 4 C. L. 1237. See, also, Covenants for Title, 5 C. L. 875; Landlord and Tenant, 6 C. L. 345; Buildings, etc., 5 C. L. 487; Easements, 5 C. L. 1048.

27. Party wall agreement binding heirs and assigns and covenanting to pay when wall used. Southworth v. Perring [Kan.] 81 P. 481.

28. A devisee of land subject to a perpetual lease is an assignee of the lessor, and as such may, where the lease contains an express covenant to pay rent, sue the lessee or his representatives for breach of the covenant. Under Ohio Code Civ. Proc. Broadwell v. Banks, 134 F. 470. The death of a lessee in a lease containing a covenant to pay rent, and renewable forever, does not convert the term into a life estate. Id.

29. Scowden v. Erie R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 15.

30. Scholten v. Barber, 217 Ill. 148, 75 N. E. 460.

31. See 4 C. L. 1237.

32. King v. Davis, 137 F. 222; Kreamer v. Voneida, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 347; Mitchell v. Titus, 33 Colo. 385, 80 P. 1042; State v. Harman, 57 W. Va. 447, 50 S. E. 828; Lindsay v. Austin, 139 N. C. 463, 51 S. E. 990.

33. Jones v. Goss [La.] 40 So. 357.

34. Backman v. Oskaloosa [Iowa] 104 N. W. 347.

35. King v. Davis, 137 F. 222.

36. O'Connell v. Pinnacle Gold Mines Co., 140 F. 854.

37. See 4 C. L. 1237.

38. Van Ormer's Estate, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 234. Curtesy is merged if title comes into the husband. Berger v. Waldbaum, 46 Misc. 4, 93 N. Y. S. 352.

39. Life lease held merged in the fee. In re Stafford, 105 App. Div. 46, 94 N. Y. S. 194.

40. Rosier v. Nichols, 123 Ga. 20, 50 S. E. 988.

Persons having a possible future estate may convey to one holding a conditional estate and thus make his title absolute.[41]

Abandonment[42] of an easement may divest title but will not affect that which is held in fee.[43] An entryman's or locator's rights in public lands can be abandoned but not the title after patent.[44] There must be adverse possession for the full period.[45]

REASONABLE DOUBT; RECEIPTORS, see latest topical index.

RECEIVERS.

Rules peculiar to receivers of foreign[46] or domestic[47] corporations, and to those appointed in mortgage foreclosure[48] or supplementary[49] proceedings, are treated elsewhere.

§ 1. Nature, grounds, and subjects of receivership.[50]—Proceedings for the appointment of a receiver are ancillary in nature; and, as a general rule, the appointment will not be granted in a suit brought solely for that purpose,[51] hence, the appointment must be predicated upon some pleading praying affirmative relief. A mere petition is not such a pleading nor is an answer not made a cross bill.[52] The appointment of a receiver is not a matter of right[53] but rests in the sound judicial discretion of the court,[54] the power being a chancery one.[55] The propriety of the 41. Devisees over to devisee on condition. Cheek v. Walker, 138 N. C. 446, 50 S. E. 863.

42. See 4 C. L. 1238.
43. Railroad right of way. Enfield Mfg. Co. v. Ward [Mass.] 76 N. E. 1053.
44. Kreamer v. Voneida, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 347.
45. Kreamer v. Voneida [Pa.] 62 A. 518.
46. See Foreign Corporations, 5 C. L. 1470, also see particular corporate articles such as Railroads, 6 C. L. 1194; Street Railways, 4 C. L. 1556, etc.
47. See Corporations, 5 C. L. 764, also particular corporate articles such as Railroads, 6 C. L. 1194; Street Railways, 4 C. L. 1556, etc.
48. See Foreclosure of Mortgages, etc., 5 C. L. 1441.
49. See Supplementary Proceedings, 4 C. L. 1591.
50. See 4 C. L. 1239.
51. If the action fails the appointment will be denied. Benepe-Owenhouse Co. v. Scheldegger, 32 Mont. 424, 80 P. 1024. In an action on an illegal note, plaintiff cannot have a receiver appointed to take possession of the property for which it was given, sell it, and pay the note. Town of Wadley v. Lancaster [Ga.] 52 S. E. 335. The appointment of a receiver is merely auxiliary to the ultimate relief, and if, for want of proper pleading, no ultimate relief can be decreed, the appointment of receiver is useless. Ruprecht v. Henrici, 113 Ill. App. 398; Ruprecht v. Henrici, 116 Ill. App. 583. A receiver may only be appointed in a pending case. Baltimore Bargain House v. St. Clair [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 660. This is also true as to appointments in vacation. Id. In Colorado, courts of equity have no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver except in an action pending. People v. District Ct. of Denver, 33 Colo. 293, 80 P. 908. See note on this subject, 4 C. L. 1239, et seq.
52. Ruprecht v. Henrici, 113 Ill. App. 398.
53. Baltimore Bargain House v. St. Clair [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 660.
54. Baltimore Bargain House v. St. Clair appointment can only be considered on an appeal from the order of appointment,[56] and an exercise of the power will not be reviewed unless abusive of the court's discretion.[57] Statutes authorizing the appointment of receivers should be strictly construed.[58] There should be a reasonable probability that the party asking for the appointment will ultimately prevail in the cause.[59] The remedy being an extraordinary one, it is to be resorted to only in cases of emergency,[60] and the appointment will not be made unless necessary as a protective measure,[61] and this necessity must be clear where the proceeding is opposed by the owner of the property.[62] Insolvency is generally a sufficient,[63] and, except where the title to property alone is involved,[64] an essential[65] element. A person is insolvent when he is unable to pay

[W. Va.] 52 S. E. 660; Ford v. Taylor, 137 F. 149.

55. Garrett v. London & L. Fire Ins. Co. [Okl.] 81 P. 421. See post, next section.

56. Cannot be considered in action for a writ of prohibition. Dupoyster v. Clarke [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1.

57. Suit to foreclose a trust deed. Garrett v. Simpson, 115 Ill. App. 62.

58. Bartlett v. Fourton [La.] 38 So. 882.

59. Ruprecht v. Henrici, 113 Ill. App. 398.

60. Benepe-Owenhouse Co. v. Scheidegger, 32 Mont. 424, 80 P. 1024; Baltimore Bargain House v. St. Clair [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 660; Ford v. Taylor, 137 F. 149. The effect of appointing a receiver being to take the property of a corporation out of the control of the officers selected by the shareholders, the courts should proceed with extreme caution. Bartlett v. Fourton [La.] 38 So. 882.

61. Ford v. Taylor, 137 F. 149. Where debtor had made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, and a bill for the removal of the trustee and the appointment of a receiver did not allege that the trustee was insolvent, that the debtor was a nonresident or was absconding, or any emergency, held relief would not be granted. Baltimore Bargain House v. St. Clair [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 660. When in a suit in equity the title to personal property of such character as renders sale thereof necessary for the adequate protection of the rights of the parties interested is involved, the court in which such suit is pending may properly appoint a receiver to take charge of it and make sale thereof. Nutter v. Brown [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 88. A bill for the appointment of a receiver in ejectment to take charge of rents and profits averring that plaintiff has a good legal title to the land, that defendant is insolvent, and that there is probable danger that the rents will be lost, is sufficient. Baker v. Starling [Ala.] 39 So. 775. Mortgagee held not entitled to a receiver to collect rents and profits in the absence of an allegation that his security was insufficient or that the mortgage was discharged or the property released therefrom, the mortgage being an express charge on the rents. De Barrera v. Frost [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 593, 88 S. W. 476. Bill by stockholder in banking corporation alleging wrongful conversion of the corporate assets, the necessity of a receiver to trace and preserve the same, that the principal offending officer has been discharged in bankruptcy, that the complainant stockholder has been paid nothing on account of his investment, and that no account has been made with her or her fellow stockholders, makes a proper case for the appointment of a receiver. Chandler Mortgage Co. v. Loring, 113 Ill. App. 423. A receiver should not be appointed in a foreclosure proceeding where it does not appear that the trust deed provides for the appointment of a receiver and that the mortgaged premises are insufficient security for the debt. Ruprecht v. Henrici, 113 Ill. App. 398. The fact that a foreclosure sale resulted in a deficiency is, in the absence of special circumstances, ground for the appointment of a receiver, notwithstanding that there are no express words in the mortgage giving a lien on the rents and profits. Walker v. Kersten, 115 Ill. App. 130. Where the decree in a foreclosure sale provides that possession shall not be surrendered to the purchaser until after 15 months after the sale, it is proper to appoint a receiver, though the trust deed provides that in case of default the trustee may take possession of the premises, file a bill, and after a sale "pay all rents that may be collected before the time of redemption expires to the purchaser at such sale." Id. If mortgaged premises are inadequate security, the debtor insolvent, and the person in possession committing waste, or if other equitable grounds are shown and any part of the foreclosure decree is not satisfied by the sale, the court in which the foreclosure suit was pending might, through a receiver, appropriate the rents, issues and profits arising from the premises during the period of redemption to pay the deficiency. Schaeppl v. Bartholomae, 217 Ill. 105, 75 N. E. 447. A receiver may be appointed to take charge of, care for, put in marketable condition, and sell timber belonging to a decedent's estate lying on the lands of a stranger subject to his purchase-money lien at the instance of creditors, when the personal representative refuses to do so. Buskirk Bros. v. Peck, 57 W. Va. 360, 50 S. E. 432. See Foreclosure of Mortgages, etc., 5 C. L. 1441; Estates of Decedents, 5 C. L. 1183.

62. DeLeonis v. Walsh [Cal.] 82 P. 1047.

63. Petition held sufficient to authorize appointment of receiver for insolvent firm and granting of a permanent injunction restraining its members from disposing of its assets. Boston Mercantile Co. v. Ould-Carter Co., 123 Ga. 458, 51 S. E. 466.

64. Nutter v. Brown [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 88.

65. So held in a suit by holders of less than one-fourth of the stock of the corporation, the fraud alleged being denied and his debts.[66] In Louisiana a resolution by the board of directors of a corporation that the corporation is insolvent and that a receiver is necessary is prima facie evidence of the necessity of the appointment.[67] When necessary to preserve the property a mortgagee may secure the appointment of a receiver without waiting until there has been a default, either in the payment of the principal or of interest on the indebtedness secured.[68] That a mortgagee has the right to collect rents and profits,[69] or may proceed by sequestration proceedings,[70] will not prevent the appointment.

In all cases in which a receiver of property is applied for the showing must be made either that the applicant has an actual interest in the property or a lien thereon, or else the property constitutes a fund out of which he is entitled to the satisfaction of his claim,[71] hence, except in those states where the trust fund doctrine still prevails,[72] or the rule is changed by statute,[73] a general creditor cannot successfully apply for a receiver of the property of an insolvent corporation.

The appointment of a receiver pendente lite[74] will only be made, as against one in possession, in a case showing an immediate necessity for preserving some particular property.[75] Mere statement of a cause of action is of itself insufficient,[76] and something beyond the mere unsupported statement of the plaintiff made on information and belief in the general allegation of a complaint should appear where the allegations are explicitly denied.[77]

Liability for wrongful appointment.[78]—One procuring the wrongful appointment of a receiver is liable for the latter's compensation.[79]

unsupported by evidence. Stokes v. Knickerbocker Inv. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 736. A solvent corporation cannot be placed in receivership to enable a stockholder, who has deposited his stock as collateral for a debt, to have an account of its assets. Huet v. Piedmont Springs Lumber Co., 138 N. C. 443, 50 S. E. 846. Mere refusal of corporation to pay its debts is not ground for appointment of a receiver, even though it consents thereto. Brenton v. Peck [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 214, 87 S. W. 898. Where executor of a decedent appealed from an order admitting a subsequent will of the decedent to probate, held receiver would not be appointed on application of executor under the last will alleging that the first executor had wasted a portion of the estate and had failed to make a true inventory, it not being alleged that further waste was threatened or that the executor or his surety was insolvent. Floor's Ex'r v. Floor, 27 Ky. L. R. 894, 87 S. W. 272.

66. Brenton v. Peck [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 214, 87 S. W. 898. Evidence held insufficient to show insolvency of corporation or imminent danger of its insolvency. Id. See Insolvency, 6 C. L. 38. As to when one is insolvent within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act. See Bankruptcy, 5 C. L. 367.

67. Oil City Iron Works v. Pelican Oil & Pipe Line Co. [La.] 38 So. 987.

68. Mortgagee had legal title. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Meridian Waterworks Co., 139 F. 661. A United States court, in the exercise of its chancery jurisdiction and in the absence of statutory power, on a proper showing by a proper party on due notice and in the exercise of a sound judicial discretion, may appoint a receiver over a railway where default in the payment of mortgage indebtedness is imminent by reason of insolvency. Cole v. Philadelphia & E. R. Co., 140 F. 944. Receiver appointed. Bill alleging insolvency, danger of default, and that valuable results would accrue to creditors and stockholders by continuing it as a going concern. Id.

69. Suit by mortgagee need not allege that tenants are insolvent or colluded with plaintiff. De Barrera v. Frost [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 593, 88 S. W. 476, afg. 33 Tex. Civ. App. 580, 77 S. W. 637. See 2 C. L. 1465, n. 50.

70. De Barrera v. Frost [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 593, 88 S. W. 476, afg. 33 Tex. Civ. App. 580, 77 S. W. 637. See 2 C. L. 1465, n. 50.

71. Brenton v. Peck [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 214, 87 S. W. 898. A mortgage being a lien on the land and the rents and profits thereof, the fact that it is discharged as to the land does not prevent the appointment of a receiver for the rents and profits. De Barrera v. Frost [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 593, 88 S. W. 476.

Evidence held insufficient to show sufficient interest in petitioner to warrant appointing a receiver. Chemung Min. Co. v. Hanley [Idaho] 81 P. 619.

72. Texas. Brenton v. Peck [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 214, 87 S. W. 898.

73. Louisiana: The applicant need not be a judgment creditor of the corporation. Oil City Iron Works v. Pelican Oil & Pipe Line Co. [La.] 38 So. 987.

74. See 4 C. L. 1241.

75. Refusal to appoint a receiver pendente lite held proper where property was not of a perishable nature and it did not appear that any loss would result by failure to so do. Sarasohn v. Kamarky, 110 App. Div. 713, 97 N. Y. S. 529.

76, 77. Weber v. Wallerstein, 97 N. Y. S. 852.

78. See 4 C. L. 1241.

§ 2. Appointment, qualification, and tenure of receivers. A. Proceedings for appointment and qualifications.[80]—The appointment of a receiver is an exercise of chancery power[81] and ordinarily cannot be conferred upon nor exercised by probate courts.[82] The power is frequently denied appellate courts,[83] though under constitutional or statutory provisions giving a court authority to issue all writs necessary or proper to the complete exercise of its jurisdiction, the court has authority to appoint a receiver pendente lite.[84] In the absence of a permissive statute, courts of equity have no power to dissolve a going business corporation, and, to that end, appoint a receiver for the sequestration of the corporate property,[85] but even though such court has no jurisdiction to dissolve a corporation, yet it may, in a proceeding by a stockholder against the corporation and its officers for fraudulent mismanagement, appoint a receiver to preserve the res.[86] Courts,[87] and consequently special judges,[88] generally have the power to appoint receivers in vacation. The appointment of a receiver by a judge on his own motion without an application by either party is error.[89] Except in cases of great emergency, notice of the application must be given,[90] and unless necessary, a receiver should not be appointed before answer is made.[91] When an ex parte application is made the proper practice is to make an order requiring the defendant to appear and show cause why the application should not be granted, and, if a proper showing is made as to the necessity or emergency

79. Bank held liable where directors wrongfully secured appointment, all parties acquiescing therein for 10 years. Tabor v. Bank of Leadville [Colo.] 83 P. 1060.

80. See 4 C. L. 1242.

81, 82. Garrett v. London & L. Fire Ins. Co. [Okl.] 81 P. 421.

83. Court of appeals has only appellate jurisdiction and cannot appoint a receiver. Dupoyster v. Ft. Jefferson Imp. Co.'s Receiver [Ky.] 89 S. W. 509.

84. Supreme court of Idaho has such power. Const. § 9 construed. Chemung Min. Co. v. Hanley [Idaho] 81 P. 619.

85. People v. District Ct. of Denver, 33 Colo. 293, 80 P. 908. This power is not given by Code § 163, subds 1 and 3, the power to appoint receivers over domestic corporations having been specially legislated on in Code § 164. Id. Mills' Ann. St. § 497, which in substance provides that if a corporation does an act subjecting it to forfeiture of its franchise, or allows an execution to remain unsatisfied or be returned "No property found," or dissolves or ceases doing business, leaving debts unpaid, a court of equity shall have power to dissolve the corporation and appoint a receiver, does not give a court of equity power to dissolve a corporation or appoint a receiver at the suit of an individual stockholder who complains of fraud in the management. Id.

Note: The statute last referred to was copied almost literally from Illinois, and the construction put upon it there in repeated decisions is that the statute was intended merely to afford a remedy in the nature of a creditors' bill. Coquard v. Nat. Linseed Oil Co., 171 Ill. 480, 49 N. E. 563; Hunt v. La Grand Roller Rink Co., 143 Ill. 118, 32 N. E. 525; Wheeler v. Pullman I. & S. Co., 143 Ill. 197, 32 N. E. 420, 17 L. R. A. 818.—From People v. District Ct. of Denver, 33 Colo. 293, 80 P. 908.

86. Chandler Mortg. Co. v. Loring, 113 Ill. App. 423.

87. Circuit court of Jefferson county has such jurisdiction. Ensley Development Co. v. Powell [Ala.] 40 So. 137.

88. Dupoyster v. Clarke [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1.

89. White v. Britton [S. C.] 51 S. E. 547.

90. Ensley Development Co. v. Powell [Ala.] 40 So. 137; Baltimore Bargain House v. St. Clair [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 660. Code 1896, § 799. Walker County Coal & Mineral Land Co. v. Long [Ala.] 39 So. 770. That the directors of a corporation for which a receiver was asked might, pending the appointment of a receiver, adjust a certain claim and issue negotiable paper of the company, held not ground for the appointment of a receiver without notice where the court on the date on which the receiver would have been appointed issued an injunction restraining all the parties from taking any action toward the settlement of the claim in question. Id.

Evidence of notice: Letter from the vice-president of the corporation to an attorney stating that the appointment of a certain person as receiver would be satisfactory held not to show notice, it not appearing whether the letter was written before or after the appointment of the receiver, and the letter not being signed by the vice-president in his official capacity. Ensley Development Co. v. Powell [Ala.] 40 So. 137.

91. A receiver is not usually appointed before an answer is put in unless fraud is clearly proved by affidavit, or when it is shown that imminent danger would ensue if the property is not taken under the care of the court. Larson v. West, 110 Ill. App. 150. Code, § 164, contemplates that when the appointment of a receiver is asked for by a party to a pending action, his adversary should have notice, and, if in court, the absolute right to file an answer to the petition therefor, putting in issue the matters therein set up, and evidence to determine the issues joined should be heard before deof such an appointment, to appoint a temporary receiver until the day for the hearing on the rule to show cause, in order to afford the plaintiff the necessary protection.[92] A distinction is made between real and personal property and the appointment of a receiver for the latter in vacation and without notice is voidable merely.[93] The owner of the property alone is entitled to notice.[94] Creditors and third persons are not entitled to notice,[95] nor are they entitled, after the order of appointment has been made, to a rehearing or a reopening of the case in order to resist the application.[96] The law looks, so far as third persons are concerned, to action on the application first and objections or complaints afterwards.[97] A statute providing for the appointment of a receiver ex parte, in certain cases the burden is on the applicant to show that such an exigency exists,[98] and when the case is brought before a court of review, such showing must affirmatively appear upon the record.[99] The application or the affidavits supporting it must set out the particular facts and circumstances rendering the appointment of the receiver[1] and summary action[2] necessary. An ex parte order appointing a receiver cannot be based on the complaint alone, unless the latter is supported by affidavits which have evidentiary value.[3] Verification by an attorney is generally sufficient.[4] In Louisiana the delay fixed by the statute in which the defendant is required to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed is in the interest of the insolvent and may be waived by it.[5] One may stipulate away his right to a receiver.[6] A receiver dying, a successor will not be appointed unless necessary and a proper showing is made.[7] Objections to the proceedings which require the introduction of evidence to support them have to be made on motion to vacate the appointment and not by appeal.[8] Where at an interlocutory hearing of a petition for injunction and receiver, to which a demurrer has been filed, the whole case is heard together on the petition, demurrer, answer, and evidence, it is not error to refuse to allow the defendant to open and conclude the argument on the demurrer.[9] One recognizing the authority of a receiver cannot attack his appointment for irregularities.[10] cision is made. People v. District Ct. of Denver, 33 Colo. 293, 80 P. 908.

92. Ford v. Taylor, 137 F. 149.

93. Nutter v. Brown [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 88. A receiver of personal property may be appointed in vacation, without notice of the application, before service of process in the suit in cases where to require notice would be unreasonable or would probably defeat the purpose for which a receiver is necessary, and in cases of great emergency. Baltimore Bargain House v. St. Clair [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 660.

94. Act No. 159, p. 312 of 1898 construed. Oil City Iron Works v. Pelican Oil & Pipe Line Co. [La.] 38 So. 987.

95, 96, 97. Oil City Iron Works v. Pelican Oil & Pipe Line Co. [La.] 38 So. 987.

98, 99. Code Civ. Proc. § 951 construed. Benepe-Owenhouse Co. v. Scheidegger, 32 Mont. 424, 80 P. 1024.

1. Baltimore Bargain House v. St. Clair [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 660.

2. Larson v. West, 110 Ill. App. 150. A mere statement of opinion as to such necessity, even though made under oath, will not warrant a departure from the general rule requiring notice. Id. Must set out the grounds which excuse failure to give notice. Baltimore Bargain House v. St. Clair [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 660.

3. Code Civ. Proc., §§ 951, 3100, 3104, 3320, considered. Benepe-Owenhouse Co. v. Scheidegger, 32 Mont. 424, 80 P. 1024. A verification upon "knowledge, information and belief," under Code Civ. Proc. § 731, is insufficient. Id.

4. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 4966, if the attorney for the petitioner makes a positive affidavit that of his own knowledge the facts alleged in the petition are true, the verification is sufficient. Boston Mercantile Co. v. Ould-Carter Co., 123 Ga. 458, 51 S. E. 466.

5. Oil City Iron Works v. Pelican Oil & Pipe Line Co. [La.] 38 So. 987.

6. Where plaintiff filed a petition for the immediate appointment of a receiver, and subsequently stipulated that the application should not be urged and that no receiver should be appointed, held he was not precluded from obtaining a receiver after a hearing of the cause on the merits of his bill. Baker v. Sterling [Ala.] 39 So. 775.

7. Mere fact of death of former receiver is insufficient. DeLeonis v. Walsh [Cal.] 82 P. 1047. But see 4 C. L. p. 1243, n. 71.

8. Oil City Iron Works v. Pelican Oil & Pipe Line Co. [La.] 38 So. 987.

9. Boston Mercantile Co. v. Ould-Carter Co., 123 Ga. 458, 51 S. E. 466.

10. Nutter v. Brown [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 88.

The court need not render two distinct judgments, the first recognizing the necessity for the appointment, and the second making the appointment, but the two orders must be read together as constituting one judgment,[11] and the time for taking an appeal runs from the order appointing the receiver.[12] The decree of appointment must be based on findings of fact.[13] Both an order of appointment[14] and an order refusing to appoint a receiver[15] are appealable, hence, mandamus will not lie to compel the vacation of such order.[16] One who is interested in lands sought to be foreclosed, and who is a party to the suit in which such foreclosure is sought, may appeal from an order appointing a receiver in such suit.[17] In Louisiana it is no ground for dismissing an appeal taken by a third person that the order or judgment was under a confession of judgment by the defendant.[18]

Bonds.—Where a receiver is appointed, the complainant should, in the absence of a special showing, be required to give a bond to the adverse party,[19] but a failure to require such a bond is not reversible error, the appointment being proper.[20] An irregularity in the bond cannot be taken advantage of collaterally[21] and may be corrected nunc pro tunc.[22]

(§ 2) B. Who may be appointed.[23]—Neither a clerk of the court[24] nor an attorney or other person interested in the action[25] is eligible.

(§ 2) C. Tenure of receiver.[26]—It is not essential that the decree limit the term of the receivership.[27] The possession of a receiver pendente lite terminates upon the confirmation of the judicial sale.[28] Where there are numerous creditors, the mere payment of the claim of the creditors securing the appointment will not dispose of the receiver's right to the property for the benefit of the other creditors.[29] In the absence of bad faith the fact that the receiver continued the business at a loss does not call for his removal.[30] A corporate stockholder securing the appointment of a receiver for the corporation cannot complain of the receiver's manner of conducting the corporate business when the creditors do not complain and no injury or loss will result to the company or stockholders.[31] Where a receiver has accounted for all the property of the estate and has reduced it to cash, there is no occasion for his removal for misconduct and the appointment of another.[32]

11, 12. Oil City Ironworks v. Pelican Oil & Pipe Line Co. [La.] 38 So. 987.

13. Jones v. Weir [Pa.] 62 A. 643.

14. Pontiac, etc., R. Co. v. Oakland Circuit Judge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 711, 105 N. W. 745. Where subject-matter was personal property. Baltimore Bargain House v. St. Clair [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 660. Contra. See 4 C. L. 1243, n. 75.

15. Receiver for estate of decedent. Floor's Ex'r v. Floor, 27 Ky. L. R. 894, 87 S. W. 272. Under Const. § 9, art. 5, an order or decision of a district court or judge. Chemung Min. Co. v. Hanley [Idaho] 81 P. 619.

16. Pontiac, etc., R. Co. v. Oakland Circuit Judge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 711, 105 N. W. 745.

17. Ruprecht v. Henrici, 113 Ill. App. 398.

18. Act No. 159, p. 312 of 1898, construed. Oil City Iron Works v. Pelican Oil & Pipe Line Co. [La.] 38 So. 987.

19, 20. Walker v. Kersten, 115 Ill. App. 130.

21. Boynton v. Sprague, 100 App. Div. 443, 91 N. Y. S. 839.

22. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 723, the court may amend nunc pro tunc a provision of the order of appointment requiring the receiver to file the bond with a certain officer, another officer being intended and the bond being actually filed with him. Boynton v. Sprague, 100 App. Div. 443, 91 N. Y. S. 839.

23. See 4 C. L. 1243.

24. White v. Britton [S. C.] 51 S. E. 547.

25. Kirby's Dig. § 6355. Cook v. Martin [Ark.] 87 S. W. 625.

26. See 4 C. L. 1243.

27. Receiver for property mortgaged by husband and wife. De Barrera v. Frost [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 593, 88 S. W. 476.

28. Larsen v. U. S. Mortg. & Trust Co., 104 App. Div. 76, 93 N. Y. S. 610. Where a receiver of a railroad pendeate lite continued in possession of the property after confirmation of a foreclosure sale, held individually liable for tort committed by a servant in operating the road during such continuance in possession. Id.

29. So held as to a receiver appointed under a judgment sequestrating all the insolvent's property and requiring the receiver to distribute the proceeds thereof to the creditors. Offer was not to pay the claim of the creditor securing the receivership

An order discharging a receiver being entered in vacation, the court has jurisdiction at the following regular term to set aside the order and retain the receiver.[33]

§ 3. Title and rights in and possession of the property. A. Title in general.[34]—A receiver is merely a custodian for those who may be found entitled to the property. He is entitled to possession but his appointment extinguishes no titles.[35] He takes no title to the property[36] and his possession is that of the court appointing him.[37] When a corporation is voluntarily dissolved and a receiver appointed the corporate property vests in him.[38] No action can be brought which will interfere with the receiver's custody or control of the property unless he be made a party thereto.[39]

A simple discharge of a receiver of a dissolved corporation does not divest him of the property of the corporation which vested in him on his appointment.[40]

(§ 3) B. Rights as between receivers, claimants, or lienors.[41]—As before stated the appointment of a receiver in no way affects the title to the property,[42] the status of the property and all interests and liens thereon being preserved as of the date of the appointment,[43] the receiver's rights being similar to those of a levying creditor.[44] Where there is a controversy between a foreign receiver and an attaching creditor who resides in the state where the attachment proceeding is instituted, the courts of the latter state will protect its own citizen.[45] Failure to intervene in the receivership proceedings does not preclude the lienor from subsequently maintaining a separate suit to enforce his lien,[46] though while the property is in the possession of the receiver the right to enforce existing liens thereon is suspended,[47] unless the permission of the appointing court is obtained;[48] though it should be but to pay the amount thereof into court. Raymond v. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co., 101 App. Div. 546, 91 N. Y. S. 1041.

30, 31, 32. Jordan v. Electrical Supply Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 160.

33. Reardon v. White [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 365.

34. See 4 C. L. 1244. See, also, Abatement and Revival, 5 C. L. 1.

35. Polk v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 634; Dow v. Nealis, 93 N. Y. S. 379.

36. Dow v. Nealis, 93 N. Y. S. 379.

37. Polk v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 634. See infra, subdivision C. Dow v. Nealis, 93 N. Y. S. 379.

38. Michel v. Betz, 108 App. Div. 241, 95 N. Y. S. 844.

39. A receiver in actual possession of the property of a traction company is a necessary party to a proceeding to compel it to accept a certain fare in exchange for carriage. Chicago City R. Co. v. People, 116 Ill. App. 633.

40. Michel v. Betz, 108 App. Div. 241, 95 N. Y. S. 844. Held a necessary party to a suit by a stockholder to compel a director who purchased the property at foreclosure sale to account. Id.

41. See 4 C. L. 1244.

42. See ante subd. A, this section.

43. Commonwealth Roofing Co. v. North American Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 984. Attachment liens. Beardslee v. Ingraham, 106 App. Div. 506, 94 N. Y. S. 937. Lien of steamship company for freight, on money remitted by consignee to receiver of consignor. Michigan S. S. Co. v. Thornton [C. C. A.] 136 F. 134. Right of pledgee to recover possession of stock certificates agreed to be assigned as collateral security for a loan. Kirkpatrick v. Eastern Milling & Export Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 387, modifying 135 F. 146. As against the receiver of a consignee a consignor of merchandise is entitled to recover the same where it was sent to be sold on commission. Williamson & Co. v. Prairie Queen Milling Co., 111 Ill. App. 373. A seller of goods if he acts promptly may rescind a fraudulent sale and recover the goods or the proceeds thereof in the hands of the buyer's receiver. Seeley v. Seeley-Howe-Le Van Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 380. An assignment of claims against an insurance company for loss sustained made by a solvent corporation to a creditor, who took the same as a bona fide purchaser, there being no intention to give him a preference, held valid against a receiver of the corporation subsequently appointed. Voss v. Smith, 110 App. Div. 104, 97 N. Y. S. 3. Receiver in foreclosure held not bound by an oral agreement between the mortgagor and the tenant of the premises. Dow v. Nealis, 93 N. Y. S. 379.

44. Duplex Printing Press Co. v. Clipper Pub. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 841.

45. Choctaw Coal & Min. Co. v. Williams-Echols Dry Goods Co. [Ark.] 87 S. W. 632.

46. Cameron & Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 1129.

47. Under Pub. St. N. H. 1901, c. 141, contractor held entitled to attach property to secure mechanic's lien after expiration of statutory period. Commonwealth Roofing Co. v. North American Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 984.

48. Beardslee v. Ingraham, 106 App. Div. 506, 94 N. Y. S. 937.

remembered that, even while the property is under the control of the chancellor, unless relief is prayed for promptly the progress of the estate may have so developed that an equitable estoppel will have arisen.[49] If a lienor attempts to proceed without obtaining the leave or direction of the court, he is guilty of a contempt,[50] and no title to the property can be acquired even though the execution were enforced by a sale.[51] The receivership proceeding does not prevent the foreclosure of a mortgage on the property, but if foreclosure becomes necessary the mortgagee can file a cross bill for foreclosure in the receivership suit, and an independent foreclosure suit may be consolidated with such suit.[52] In Minnesota, where a duly certified copy of an order appointing a receiver of an insolvent is filed in the office of the register of deeds, it is notice of the fact of the receivership to all parties who thereafter deal with lands of the insolvent situated in the county.[53]

(§ 3) C. Possession and restitution.[54]—A receiver is an officer of the court appointing him,[55] his possession being deemed that of the court,[56] and any unauthorized attempt to interfere therewith constitutes a contempt of court.[57] Unless inequitable, a receiver is entitled to possession of property of the insolvent though there is a prior attachment lien thereon.[58] Where the receiver obtains possession of property not belonging to the insolvent, the owner not being indebted to the insolvent, it should be returned to him without expense,[59] and the owner presenting a claim therefor, the receiver should file an affidavit stating whether or not the petitioner is indebted to the insolvent.[60] Under a statute authorizing a reconveyance by the receiver when the insolvent's debts have been paid or "provided for," a mere extension of the time of payment is insufficient to authorize reconveyance.[61]

§ 4. Administration and management of the property. A. Authority and powers in general.[62]—Primarily the receiver represents the court,[63] though in a qualified sense he may be said to represent the insolvent, his creditors, and, if a corporation, stockholders.[64] A receiver is an officer or agent of the court appointing him[65] and has only such authority or powers as are conferred upon him by

49. Commonwealth Roofing Co. v. North American Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 984.

50, 51. Beardslee v. Ingraham, 106 App. Div. 506, 94 N. Y. S. 937.

52. Cole v. Philadelphia & E. R. Co., 140 F. 944.

53. Noyes v. American Freehold Land Mortg. Co. [Minn.] 105 N. W. 1126. Gen. St. 1894, § 4228, is a registry law. Id.

54. See 4 C. L. 1245.

55. Ruprecht v. Henrici, 113 Ill. App. 398; McKenzie v. Coslett [Nev.] 80 P. 1070; McGregor v. Third Nat. Bank [Ga.] 53 S. E. 93.

56. Polk v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 634; Gunning v. Sorg, 113 Ill. App. 332; Ruprecht v. Henrici, 113 Ill. App. 398.

57. Gunning v. Sorg, 113 Ill. App. 332; Beardslee v. Ingraham, 106 App. Div. 506, 94 N. Y. S. 937.

58. Injunction will lie to restrain a sale under the attachment. Beardslee v. Ingraham, 106 App. Div. 506, 94 N. Y. S. 937. Such relief cannot be granted by motion in an action to which the persons sought to be restrained are not parties. Strickland v. National Salt Co., 105 App. Div. 640, 94 N. Y. S. 936.

59. Bowker v. Haight & Freese Co., 140 F. 796. Where the receiver of a hotel building was directed to collect from the tenants in possession or other persons liable therefor all rents due, and it did not appear that the plaintiff company, the then tenant, was at the time it surrendered possession indebted for rent, the receiver was liable for money collected by him which was due plaintiff from former guests. St. Paul Hotel Co. v. Segrave, 48 Misc. 657, 96 N. Y. S. 308.

60. Bowker v. Haight & Freese Co., 140 F. 795.

61. P. L. 1896, p. 300, § 69, construed. Fleming v. Fleming Hotel Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 739. Held not an abuse of receiver's discretion to refuse to adjourn sale at the request of counsel, representing 97 per cent of the creditors and all the stockholders, on the ground that an agreement had been made by a large part of the creditors for an extension of the time of payment. Id.

62. See 4 C. L. 1245.

63. Chicago City R. Co. v. People, 116 Ill. App. 633.

64. McGregor v. Third Nat. Bank [Ga.] 53 S. E. 93.

65. Polk v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 634; Choctaw Coal & Min. Co. v. Williams-Echols Dry Goods Co. [Ark.] 87 S. W. 632; Ruprecht v. Henrici, 113 Ill. App. 398; McKenzie v. Coslett [Nev.] 80 P. 1070; McGregor v. Third Nat. Bank [Ga.] 53 S. E. 93.

such court,[66] and, except as recognized upon considerations of comity,[67] the exercise of such powers is limited by the jurisdiction of the court.[68] The court may from time to time give the receiver such directions as will prevent a sacrifice of the rights of the parties,[69] and it is his duty to yield prompt and unquestioned obedience to all its lawful decrees,[70] and he must excuse any failure to do so.[71] In the absence of proof to the contrary the receiver's powers will be presumed to be such as are ordinarily conferred on similar receivers.[72] The mere institution of a suit to enjoin the enforcement of an order of a Federal court directed to its receiver does not constitute an act of contempt against the Federal court,[73] though it is otherwise if there is an actual physical interference with the execution of such order.[74] While a receiver is an officer of the court, he is also a quasi trustee and occupies a fiduciary relation towards the parties to the action in which he is appointed, and, entirely independent of any question of fraud,[75] he will not be permitted to deal with or purchase the trust property for his individual benefit or for that of any third party.[76] Where property is placed in the hands of a receiver its administration should be conducted in the same way and the same rules of prudence and economy should be observed by the receiver that obtain in the management and control of the private interests of individuals.[77] He may deposit the funds of an insolvent estate coming into his hands as such in a bank of good standing and repute.[78] In determining the character of the bank, that degree of prudence and care is exacted which is ordinarily exercised by reasonably cautious men in transacting their own business of like importance,[79] and the same rule obtains with reference to continuing the deposit.[80] That the bank is a creditor of the estate does not render it an illegal depository of the funds of the estate.[81] It cannot apply the receiver's funds on its claims nor plead said claims as an offset to his demands for the deposit, at least not in excess of the amount previously ordered by the court to be paid thereon.[82] In some states a receiver is by statute required to deposit the funds of the estate in state banks.[83] A receiver in charge

66. Dow v. Nealis, 93 N. Y. S. 379. Authority depends almost entirely on the purpose of the appointment and the extent of the powers conferred by the decree of appointment. Duplex Printing Press Co. v. Clipper Pub. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 841.

An order appointing one a receiver of "all of the copartnership property * * * of every description or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy plaintiff's judgment," makes it the duty of the receiver to reduce to his possession enough property to pay the plaintiff's claim as it should eventually be established. Adams v. Elwood, 104 App. Div. 138, 93 N. Y. S. 327.

67, 68. Choctaw Coal & Min. Co. v. Williams-Echols Dry Goods Co. [Ark.] 87 S. W. 632.

69. Dupoyster v. Clarke [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1.

70. Lyle v. Sarvey [Va.] 51 S. E. 228; Polk v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 634.

71. Persistent disobedience of orders of the court and neglect to settle accounts for three years by a receiver of a corporation held not excused because at the time the receiver was engrossed with public duties as state senator, and the fact that the president and manager of the company was absent from the state. Lyle v. Sarvey [Va.] 51 S. E. 228.

72. Receiver in foreclosure suit. Dow v. Nealis, 93 N. Y. S. 379.

73. Royal Trust Co. v. Washburn, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 865.

74. So held where receiver was ordered to tear up railroad track and his agents and employes were arrested. Royal Trust Co. v. Washburn, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 865.

75. Cook v. Martin [Ark.] 87 S. W. 625.

76. Cook v. Martin [Ark.] 87 S. W. 625. Where a receiver in a creditors' suit purchased for his wife a portion of the trust property from one who claimed under an execution sale, whereby a title had been acquired good as against plaintiffs in the creditors' suit, held that the wife was not entitled to hold such property, though the receiver had been acting as counsel for the judgment creditor and though the counsel of plaintiffs in the creditors' suit knew of the title existing under the execution and refused to buy it in for the creditors. Id.

77. Drey v. Watson [C. C. A.] 138 F. 792.

78, 79, 80, 81. State v. Corning State Sav. Bank [Iowa] 105 N. W. 159.

82. State v. Corning State Sav. Bank [Iowa] 105 N. W. 159. See Banking and Finance, 5 C. L. 347.

83. Civ. Code, art. 1150, requiring all moneys collected by syndics, as soon as the same shall come into their hands, to be deposited in a chartered bank of the state allowing interest on deposits, under a pen-of the property of a corporation has no authority to carry on the business of the corporation unless he be so authorized and directed by the court.[84] When deemed advisable the court may order the receiver to continue the business.[85] A receiver of a bank has no power or authority to receive or hold money for the purpose of meeting obligations maturing at the bank,[86] and as to funds that come into his possession as receiver, he has no authority to appropriate any of them to the payment of obligations maturing at the bank.[87] While one having an executory contract with an insolvent may treat the same as abandoned upon the appointment of a receiver,[88] he is entitled to a reasonable time before electing to do so for the purpose of ascertaining what may be done by the parties in interest or the receiver with respect to such contract.[89] Where a receiver declines to recognize and enforce an assigned lease which is not otherwise enforceable as against him, the court will not generally interfere with his discretion.[90] A receiver not adopting an executory contract the other party is only entitled to a just compensation for the actual expenditure of labor and money by him in fulfillment of his contract, subject to deduction of all sums paid him thereunder.[91] Upon an application for an order directing the receiver to turn over certain property, collateral issues cannot be inquired into.[92] A judgment directing a receiver to pay over certain moneys in his hands cannot be entered in vacation.[93] The propriety of an order directing the receiver to take charge of the property can only be inquired into on appeal from the order.[94] Being a mere agent of the court the receiver has no authority to appeal from orders made by it in the pending proceeding except as it may authorize him to do so.[95] He may, however, appeal in all matters relating to his official conduct or his accounts and credits.[96]

(§ 4) B. Payment of claims against receiver or property.[97]—A receiver has no discretion, speaking generally, as to the application of funds which are in his hands by virtue of the receivership. He holds them strictly subject to the order of the court to be disposed of as the court may direct.[98] It is for the court appointing the receiver to determine whether it has in its possession, or the receiver alty of 20 per cent interest per annum on the amount not deposited or withdrawn, is imperative and leaves no discretion in the courts to reduce the prescribed rate of interest. Conery v. His Creditors, 113 La. 420, 37 So. 14.

84. Dalliba v. Riggs [Idaho] 82 P. 107.

85. Where hotel corporation was hopelessly insolvent and during the delay necessary to properly advertise and dispose of it as a going concern it was run by the receiver at a loss, held proper for the court not to continue to manage the business. Fleming v. Fleming Hotel Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 739.

86. Schlesinger v. Schultz, 96 N. Y. S. 383.

87. Note so maturing need not be presented to receiver for payment. Schlesinger v. Schultz, 96 N. Y. S. 383.

88. Building contract. Commonwealth Roofing Co. v. North American Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 984.

89. Building contract. Commonwealth Roofing Co. v. North American Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 984.

90. In re Witte, 45 Misc. 336, 90 N. Y. S. 444.

91. A receiver not adopting an executory contract but acquiescing in its repudiation made a few days before his appointment, held damages for the breach thereof would not be allowed. Tennis Bros. Co. v. Wetzel & T. R. Co., 140 F. 193, following Griffith v. Blackwater Boom & Lumber Co., 46 W. Va. 56, 33 S. E. 125.

92. On an application for an order requiring receivers of an insolvent corporation to deliver certain certificates of the corporation's stock to a pledgee of bonds given as collateral security for a loan to enable the pledgee to make a tender of the same to the subscribers of an underwriting agreement in support of a suit thereon, the court cannot consider any defenses which the underwriters may have. Kirkpatrick v. Eastern Milling & Export Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 387, modifying 135 F. 146.

93. Dupoyster v. Clarke [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1.

94. Cannot be considered in an action for a writ of prohibition. Dupoyster v. Clarke [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1.

95. Polk v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 634.

96. In these cases he occupies the position of a party to a suit. Polk v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 634.

97. See 4 C. L. 1247.

98. Polk v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 634.

has assets under his control, or that he would be entitled to control, for settling the liabilities of claims not previously provided for,[99] hence, where a judgment is rendered in a state court against a Federal receiver, it is proper to certify the judgment to the Federal court to be disposed of as that court sees fit.[1] A creditor may in behalf of himself and other persons in interest intervene in the receivership proceedings praying leave to effect a settlement with the receiver of a valid claim held against the insolvent,[2] and the receiver being called upon to show cause why the offered settlement should not be made, he becomes a party defendant to the action and is entitled to urge any defensive matter which the creditors or other persons interested in the proper administration of the affairs of the insolvent if they had been made parties defendant,[3] and judgment being rendered against him he may, if dissatisfied therewith, sue out a writ of error.[4] If he fails to show cause, upon being cited to do so, why the proposed settlement should not be authorized, the court may in its discretion order him to accept the terms of the settlement offered in order to avoid long and expensive litigation.[5] In a suit by a receiver of an insolvent bank against a debtor of the bank, defendant cannot set off a claim against the bank acquired after the bank became insolvent.[6] In some states claims for services are preferred.[7]

Debts created by receiver and expenses of administration.[8]—The allowance of costs and expenses is largely discretionary with the appointing court,[9] and is upon appeal treated as presumptively correct.[10] Expenses incurred in the administration of the trust are payable out of the fund.[11] Expenses of litigation by which the fund is created or preserved is chargeable against it,[12] but the rule is otherwise where the object of the litigation is to diminish or destroy the fund.[13] Where expenditures are for the benefit of all the creditors they cannot be charged against one individually.[14] Allowances of expenses and compensation of receivers, either as between the receiver and the fund in court and parties, or as between party and party, are not discretionary,[15] and a decree respecting such costs is appealable.[16] Such allowances of expenses and compensation may in a proper case be provisionally allowed the receiver out of the fund, and ultimately decreed to be paid to the party entitled to the fund by his adversary.[17] The payment of broker-

99, 1. Reardon v. White [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 365.

2, 3, 4, 5. McGregor v. Third Nat. Bank [Ga.] 53 S. E. 93.

6. Schlesinger v. Goldberg, 93 N. Y. S. 592.

7. Where all parties connected with the management of a corporation treated as a nullity a resolution of stockholders to the effect that certain stockholders should receive nothing for their services, unless the corporation should earn such sums over all expenses, such stockholders held entitled to have their claims for services preferred under Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. §§ 5919-5923. Cors v. Ballard Iron Works [Wash.] 83 P. 900. Under Sess. Laws 1897, p. 55, c. 43, laborers are entitled to a prior lien upon the property of a corporation in the hands of a receiver. Nisbet v. Great Northern Clay Co. [Wash.] 83 P. 15.

8. See 4 C. L. 1247.

9. Expenses of litigation beneficial to estate. Myers v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 31.

10. Myers v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 31.

11. Myers v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 31. Where the receiver is appointed at the instance and for the benefit of lien creditors, and charged with the duty of operating the property for their advantage, all proper charges, expenses and liabilities incurred incident to the receivership are held to be a first charge, not only upon the current earnings but also the corpus of the estate. People's Nat. Bank v. Virginia Textile Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 155.

12. Myers v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 31.

13. Myers v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 31. Trust fund is not chargeable although the result of the litigation is to establish a rule by which similar claims were expeditiously settled without litigation. Id.

14. Mortgagee of property held not liable for money spent by receiver in preserving the property, though the sale thereof did not realize sufficient to pay the mortgage. Cunningham v. Alryan Woolen Mills [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 372.

15. Nutter v. Brown [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 88.

16. Nutter v. Brown [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 88.

age for procuring the receiver's bond is not a lawful charge as an expense of the receivership.[18] A receiver is not guilty of wrongdoing, necessarily, because he incurs expense in the collection or conservation of a liability validly hypothecated by the insolvent as security for a debt owing by him, because he has no reason to expect such hypothecation to yield a surplus for the trust fund.[19] One furnishing money to a receiver for gathering a crop planted by a tenant has no lien on other crops grown on the leased premises, but the matter must be settled by the receiver and accounted for in his settlement of accounts.[20] Courts of equity have the power and authority to appoint receivers of property and direct them to care for, protect, and preserve the property, and decree the charges and expenses therefor as prior and preferred liens to that of all other liens, mortgages or incumbrances and to direct the sale of the property to pay the same;[21] but, except in the case of a public service corporation, it has no authority to direct the receiver to carry on the business of the insolvent and charge the expenses of the business and operations as a prior and preferred lien against property over that of prior recorded mortgages and incumbrances on the same property.[22] A decree directing the payment of debts and expenses incurred by a receiver should set forth specifically the amount of each claim and the date from which interest is to be computed.[23]

A receiver's certificate[24] does not acquire priority because it fails to recite the existence of prior certificates.[25] One whose right to relief is based on a receiver's certificate is in no position to contest the validity of such certificate.[26]

Counsel fees.[27]—Reasonable[28] fees for attorney's services rendered the receiver[29] and not constituting a part of his duties[30] are proper items of expense allowable to the receiver,[31] and generally may be taxed as costs.[32] Where an attorney employed by creditors recovers and turns over to the receiver a part of the trust fund, he is entitled to a preferred claim on the fund for the reasonable value of

Even though such costs are provisionally allowed receiver out of the fund and are ultimately decreed to be paid to the party entitled to the fund by his adversary. Id.

17. Nutter v. Brown [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 88.

18. Is not a sum paid to his surety under Code Civ. Proc. § 3320. Adams v. Elwood, 104 App. Div. 138, 93 N. Y. S. 327.

19. Harrigan v. Gilchrist, 121 Wis. 127, 99 N. W. 909.

20. Goodwin v. Mitchell [Miss.] 38 So. 657.

21. Dalliba v. Riggs [Idaho] 82 P. 107.

22. Held to have no authority to authorize receiver in charge of placer mines to carry on a general mining business and give expenses preference. Dalliba v. Riggs [Idaho] 82 P. 107. Where a corporation is not engaged in any public service a court will not authorize the receiver appointed in foreclosure proceedings to issue certificates of indebtedness to raise money to put its plant in a condition to run, and make such certificates prior in lien to the mortgage. Wiggins v. Neversink Light & Power Co., 93 N. Y. S. 853.

23. People's Nat. Bank v. Virginia Textile Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 155.

24. See 4 C. L. 1247.

25. Held not to thereby acquire priority over a former certificate for an actual cash loan and which was declared by order of court to be a prior lien. Nisbet v. Great Northern Clay Co. [Wash.] 83 P. 15.

26. Nisbet v. Great Northern Clay Co. [Wash.] 83 P. 15.

27. See 4 C. L. 1247.

28. Allowances made attorney held excessive. Drey v. Watson [C. C. A.] 138 F. 792.

29. Services rendered by an attorney who successfully attacked a receivership fund in afterwards aiding the receiver by explaining the effect of the court's decision to persons sent him by the receiver, and advising them to settle their claims in accordance with such decision, is not ground for an allowance of compensation to the attorney from the receivership fund. Myers v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 31.

30. Attorney's services constituting a part of the duties of the receiver the charge is a personal expenditure and should be borne by the receiver individually. Dalliba v. Riggs [Idaho] 82 P. 107. A receiver is not entitled to allowance for fees paid attorneys for making his reports, narrating his acts, receipts and expenditures as receiver, and prosecuting claims against the estate he represents for his own compensation and for the allowance of such attorney's fees. Id.

31. State v. Active Bldg. & Loan Ass'n No. 2, 102 Mo. App. 675, 77 S. W. 171.

32. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 755. State v. Active Bldg. & Loan Ass'n No. 2, 102 Mo. App. 675, 77 S. W. 171. So held as to counsel fees paid by a receiver pursuant to an order of court. Adams v. Elwood, 104 App. Div. 138, 93 N. Y. S. 327.

his services, whether such fund is recovered before or after the appointment of the receiver,[33] and such claim need not be presented to the court for allowance by the employing creditors or by the attorney.[34] The allowance of fees incurred in litigation beneficial to the trust estate is largely discretionary with the lower court, and is upon appeal treated as presumptively correct.[35] An appellate court cannot reverse the trial court's action in refusing an allowance of attorney's fees to an attorney who attacked the trust fund on the ground of a previous oral agreement between the trial judge and the attorney to allow such fees.[36] An order supplemental to the judgment in an action directing further proceedings by the receiver in the collection of the judgment is not a final order in a special proceeding and cannot include an extra allowance of fees in lieu of costs to the attorney for the receiver.[37]

(§ 4) C. Sales by receivers.[38]—The court may revoke ex proprio motu an order improvidently granted,[39] as for instance, where a sale has been ordered to be made on a credit when it should have been for cash.[40] It is erroneous to order the sale of property on credit to pay a debt which is due and exigible.[41] When advisable the property may be sold in bulk.[42] Statutory provisions as to notice must be complied with,[43] and it appearing that no higher sum could have been realized, the sale will not be set aside because the petitioning creditor did not have actual notice thereof.[44] The sale is made under the direction of the court as a court of equity, and it should be presumed that the court and its officers will make an honest effort to realize the greatest sum possible for the assets of the trust.[45] Mere, as distinguished from gross,[46] inadequacy of price is insufficient to warrant a refusal to confirm the sale.[47] A creditor acting in good faith and with the approval of the court may purchase from a receiver his debtor's equity of redemption at an agreed price.[48] A purchase by a receiver at his own sale through a third person, while irregular and voidable, is not void nor subject to collateral attack.[49] It is proper to permit a purchaser holding receiver's certificates which are prior liens on the property to turn them in as part of the purchase money.[50] A purchaser may by stipulation estop himself from off-setting against the purchase price claims held by him against the estate.[51] The debtor has an interest author-

33, 34. Butler v. Conwell [Wyo.] 82 P. 950.

35, 36. Myers v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 31.

37. Adams v. Elwood, 104 App. Div. 138, 93 N. Y. S. 327.

38. See 4 C. L. 1248.

39, 40, 41. Fitzner v. Noullet, 114 La. 400, 38 So. 398.

42. Sale in bulk held proper where the assets of a hotel corporation consisted largely of household goods, a stock of liquors, cigars, etc., and an unexpired leasehold, and it did not appear that a greater sum would have been realized if the articles had been sold separately. Fleming v. Fleming Hotel Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 739.

43. Where a notice of a receiver's sale of an interest in a contingent remainder was not published for the 10 days required by rule 77 of the rules of general practice, and there was nothing in the notice indicating what was to be sold or the extent of the interest of the remaindermen, it was insufficient. Rawolle v. Kalbfleisch, 94 N. Y. S. 16.

44. Order of confirmation will not be set aside. Nisbet v. Great Northern Clay Co. [Wash.] 83 P. 15.

45. Nisbet v. Great Northern Clay Co. [Wash.] 83 P. 15.

46. Gross inadequacy of price is sufficient ground for setting aside a receiver's sale. Rawolle v. Kalbfleisch, 94 N. Y. S. 16.

47. Receiver's sale of assets appraised at $7,500 for $6,000 confirmed, though on the hearing a purchaser was tendered who was then willing to bid $8,000 and give security for the performance of the offer. Fleming v. Fleming Hotel Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 739.

48. Pitzele v. Cohn, 217 Ill. 30, 75 N. E. 392.

49. Groeltz v. Cole [Iowa] 103 N. W. 977.

50. Nisbet v. Great Northern Clay Co. [Wash.] 83 P. 15.

51. Where the terms of sale are one-half cash and one-half in thirty days, and the purchaser gives a note for part of the purchase price and stipulates therein that claims were to be paid out of proceeds in receiver's hands, he cannot claim in a suit upon the note that he should be allowed izing his moving the court to set aside the sale by his receiver, though intervening the sale and motion the property is sold under a mortgage by him, where he disputes the validity of such mortgage sale.[52] Title does not pass until the sale is confirmed.[53] A sale by the receiver passes a good title against the insolvent irrespective of the purchaser's status as a creditor either with or without notice.[54] The interest conveyed[55] and the property sold[56] largely depends upon the decree of sale. A receiver's itemized inventory is admissible to show what is included in the term "assets" as used in the order of sale.[57] An order of sale being reversed on appeal and after the sale, the disposition of the property held by the purchaser and of proceeds of a sale of a portion of such property cannot be determined in litigation to which the insolvent is not a party.[58]

(§ 4) D. Actions by and against receivers.[59]—Generally, where it is desired that a receiver shall bring suit, application is made to the court of his appointment setting out the grounds for suit, and upon proper showing the court passes an order giving direction to the receiver.[60] The court, however, is not bound as a matter of course to direct a receiver to bring suit upon a claim in his hands but is invested with some discretion in determining whether such a suit would be profitable to the estate or not.[61] Thus, if the debtor be insolvent the court is not required to diminish the assets by the incurring of useless costs.[62] Ordinarily the receiver of a corporation is the proper party to bring suit against offending officials,[63] but when the receiver is himself charged with having been one of the officials guilty of the wrongdoing, an equitable proceeding may be maintained by the stockholders, the receiver and corporation both being made parties defendant.[64] In credit for claims which he had against the receiver's corporation, and that the plaintiff should file an account before pressing for judgment. Kidney v. Beemer, 27 Pa. Super Ct. 558.

52. Rawolle v. Kalbfleisch, 95 N. Y. S. 540.

53. Purchaser held to take subject to judgment rendered in mortgage foreclosure suit before confirmation. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 1129.

54. Duplex Printing Press Co. v. Clipper Pub. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 841. Purchaser of ship sold subject to maritime liens, held estate had no interest in money paid by purchaser to lien claimants. In re Red River Line [La.] 40 So. 250. An answer in an action by a railroad company to remove a cloud on its title to a part of its road equipment and appurtenances, which alleges that the property was placed in the hands of a receiver and sold by order of court, that defendant became the purchaser at the receiver's sale and that title vested in him by reason of the sale, held sufficient as against demurrer. Harle v. Texas Southern R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 86 S. W. 1048.

55. Under decree giving purchasers title free of all claims and liens of creditors and parties, held to take free from judgments of property owners for damages for taking of property under the power of eminent domain. Settegast v. Houston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 197.

56. Sale of partnership property by a receiver held not to include property not inventoried. Crawford v. Stainback [Ark.] 88 S. W. 991. Plaintiff was injured by the negligence of the servants of a receiver. Before an action for damages was commenced the property of the insolvent was sold, the sale confirmed, and the receiver discharged by an order directing him to convey to the purchaser all property of every description belonging to the corporation, including all property rights, contracts, and choses in action. After the commencement of the action the court vacated the order of discharge pending the action. Held such order showed that the sale and confirmation thereof did not pass title to an accident policy held by the receiver and hence a contract by which plaintiff released the property of the corporation from liability for any judgment against the receiver did not preclude a judgment against him. Reardon v. White [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 365.

57. Illinois Steel Co. v. Prehle Mach. Works Co., 219 Ill. 403, 76 N. E. 574, afg. 116 Ill. App. 268.

58. Lutey v. Clark [Mont.] 84 P. 73, denying motion for a rehearing, original opinion 31 Mont. 45, 77 P. 305.

59. See 4 C. L. 1249.

60, 61. Sterling Elec. Co. v. Augusta Telephone & Elec. Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 541.

62. Sterling Elec. Co. v. Augusta Telephone & Elec. Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 541. Where the court ordered a receiver to bring suit "if upon investigation it appears that there is a reasonable prospect of realizing on any judgment that may be obtained," it will not be reversed on appeal in the absence of evidence showing what evidence was before the trial court, the solvency of the debtor, or the probability of realizing on a judgment if obtained. Id.

63. Weslosky v. Quarterman, 123 Ga. 312, 51 S. E. 426.

such a case it is unnecessary to allege a demand upon the receiver to sue.[65] In the absence of some conveyance or statute vesting the property of the debtor in the receiver he cannot sue in courts of a foreign jurisdiction upon the order of the court which appointed him to recover the property of the debtor,[66] and this is true though the receiver is authorized to institute the suit in the name of the corporation;[67] but where a receiver has title to the property he may, through comity, be allowed to maintain a suit in a foreign jurisdiction where such course will not conflict with local policy or the rights of creditors in such jurisdiction.[68]

Where it is sought to bring an action against a receiver as such, leave of the court appointing the receiver must first be obtained. The granting of such leave is discretionary with the court.[69] The commencement of an action against a receiver without leave does not affect the jurisdiction of the court[70] but raises purely a question of contempt.[71] The court on motion may set aside or stay the proceeding commenced without its sanction, but until the court interferes the action is regular.[72] The complaint need not allege that permission to sue the receiver has been granted.[73] A court will not entertain an action to recover property in the possession of a defendant as receiver of another court unless leave to sue its receiver has been obtained from that court,[74] and the want of power in the Federal courts to entertain such a suit is held to be jurisdictional.[75] It is essential, however, that the receiver be made a party defendant.[76] The beneficiaries of a trust fund under the control of a receiver may, by permission of the court to whom the latter is accountable, maintain an action against him to compel him to perform his duty.[77] The function of an action against a Federal receiver in his official capacity, brought without leave of the court appointing him, to recover damages for an alleged tort committed by him while acting in such capacity is to establish the amount of the plaintiff's claim, but in nowise to interfere with the custody, control, and disposition by the court of the property involved in the receivership proceedings.[78] Execution upon a judgment recovered in such an action cannot be enforced or legally issue against the property in custodia legis,[79] and, consequently, the receiver as such should not be joined with others against whom the judgment would constitute a personal liability to be enforced by execution at law.[80] A court having property in custody through its receiver may, in a proper case, direct that receiver to turn over the property to the Federal court in aid of the enforcement of its writ.[81] A foreign receiver appearing generally in an action brought

64. Weslosky v. Quarterman, 123 Ga. 312, 51 S. E. 426. To allow such a proceeding does not bring about a multiplicity of suits. Id. Remedy of complainants is not to apply for the appointment of another receiver. Id.

65. Weslosky v. Quarterman, 123 Ga. 312, 51 S. E. 426.

66. Great Western Min. & Mfg. Co. v. Harris, 198 U. S. 561, 49 Law. Ed. 1163; Fowler v. Osgood [C. C. A.] 141 F. 20; Edwards v. National Window Glass Jobbers' Ass'n, 139 F. 795; Leman v. MacLennan, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 205.

67. Great Western Min. & Mfg. Co. v. Harris, 198 U. S. 561. 49 Law. Ed. 1163. See, also, Leman v. MacLennan, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 205.

68. See Edwards v. National Window Glass Jobbers' Ass'n, 139 F. 795.

69. McGregor v. Third Nat. Bank [Ga.] 53 S. E. 93. Where a person claims the right to the possession of real estate which is held by a receiver, it rests in the discretion of the appointing court to allow such claimant to bring an independent action against such receiver or to compel him to proceed against such receiver in the action in which he was appointed. Gunning v. Sorg, 113 Ill. App. 332.

70, 71, 72. Pruyn v. McCreary, 105 App. Div. 302, 93 N. Y. S. 995.

73. Hutchinson v. Blen, 46 Misc. 302, 93 N. Y. S. 189.

74, 75. See Isom v. Rex Crude Oil Co., 147 Cal. 663, 82 P. 319 and cases cited.

76. Not being made a party defendant, court has jurisdiction. Isom v. Rex Crude Oil Co., 147 Cal. 663, 82 P. 319.

77. Harrigan v. Gilchrist, 121 Wis. 127, 99 N. W. 909.

78, 79, 80. Western New York & P. R. Co. v. Penn Refining Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 343.

by a citizen of the state of the forum to cancel a contract for fraud, the court acquires jurisdiction, even though the contract related to lands in a foreign country.[82]

The general rules as to continuance and postponement apply.[83]

A personal judgment and execution cannot properly be awarded against a receiver, but it should be against him in his official capacity to be paid in due course of the administration of his trust.[84] In some states an affirmative judgment on a counterclaim cannot be rendered in an action by a receiver.[85]

§ 5. Accounting by receivers.[86]—The court may in its discretion postpone all questions of accounting until the filing of the final account.[87] It is proper in order to determine the amount and correctness of debts alleged to have been incurred by a receiver to refer the same to a commissioner.[88] Creditors who fail to object to the fee returned and claimed by an auditor of the receiver's account may be concluded from enjoining the receiver from paying it though in excess of the legal fee.[89] A receiver stating that the corporation is solvent but refusing to account may be held liable for all indebtedness proved,[90] and, in Virginia, he is not entitled in such a case to have his deposition considered at final hearing for the purpose of extenuating his conduct and reducing his liability.[91] Confirmation of the account concludes the receiver and creditors as to the sales, distribution of the proceeds, and all items on the account.[92] A receiver may appeal in all matters relating to his official conduct or his accounts and credits.[93]

§ 6. Compensation of receivers.[94]—The amount of the receiver's compensation is to be determined by equitable and not by legal principles.[95] It should be proportionate to the amounts involved[96] and he is entitled to commissions on the total value of the property acquired by him in endeavoring to discharge his duty in good faith, although that property proves to be more than sufficient to accomplish

81. Isom v. Rex Crude Oil Co., 147 Cal. 663, 82 P. 319. Held improper to so order where, after appeal from a judgment for plaintiff in a suit to cancel a lease, and the filing of a supersedeas, and the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the property, plaintiff brought a similar suit for the same relief in the federal court in which she recovered a judgment by default and the court issued a writ of assistance. Id.

82. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 421, 1780, construed. Pruyn v. McCreary, 105 App. Div. 302, 93 N. Y. S. 995.

83. Where in an action against receivers counsel for defendants asked leave to file a plea, setting up a discharge of defendants as receivers, but stated that he did not propose to show that the discharge occurred since a former trial, there was no abuse of discretion in refusing to stop the trial and wait for counsel to prepare the plea. McGhee v. Cashin [Ala.] 40 So. 63.

84. Malott v. Howell, 111 Ill. App. 233; Malott v. Mapes, 111 Ill. App. 340.

85. So held under Laws 1902, p. 1539, c. 580 (Municipal Court Act), § 152, subd. 3. Schlesinger v. Rachmil, 94 N. Y. S. 12.

86. See 4 C. L. 1251.

87. Where a receiver filed a provisional account and the court decreed a distribution of the assets on hand among the privileged creditors, reserving the right of all creditors not paid to demand of the receiver a full and complete account of his administration, held that all questions of accounting should be postponed until the filing of the final account. In re Red River Line [La.] 40 So. 250.

88. People's Nat. Bank v. Virginia Textile Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 155.

89. McHenry v. Finletter, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 636.

90. Where the receiver of a corporation stated in the pleadings prepared by himself as counsel and in a letter to counsel for the creditors that the corporation was solvent but persistently disobeyed orders of the court and neglected to settle his account before its commissioners, a commissioners' report requiring him to pay all the indebtedness proved against the corporation was proper. Lyle v. Sarvey [Va.] 51 S. E. 228.

91. So held where receiver of a corporation neglected, without good cause, to settle his accounts for three years. Va. Code 1904, p. 1778, § 3362, construed. Lyle v. Sarvey [Va.] 51 S. E. 228.

92. Where syndic charged himself with proceeds of sale as cash to be distributed, held he could not show that he had not collected the money. Conery v. His Creditors, 113 La. 420, 37 So. 14.

93. In these cases he occupies the position of a party to the suit. Polk v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 634.

94. See 4 C. L. 1251.

95. Nutter v. Brown [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 88.

96. Where a receiver of property which the purposes of the receivership.[97] He is not entitled to compensation for incidental services which the insolvent was under contract to render free of charge.[98] A receiver being an officer of the court appointing him, and being accountable to it, any compensation to be allowed him as costs on appeal must be allowed by such court and not by the appellate court.[99] In New York the court is not prohibited from granting fees to a receiver of a corporation in process of dissolution except upon an accounting.[1] Misconduct by a receiver will deprive the receiver of his right to compensation,[2] but mere irregularities in his appointment acquiesced in by the parties will not deprive him of his compensation,[3] nor the successful party of a decree over against his adversary for the amount thereof when it has been allowed out of a fund belonging to the party so prevailing.[4] If the receiver be improperly appointed the party procuring his appointment is liable for his compensation.[5] The owner of the property may except to and appeal from a judgment awarding a retiring receiver a portion of the fund and directing his successor to pay the same,[6] and on such an appeal the receiver's successor is not a necessary party.[7]

§ 7. Liabilities and actions on receivership bonds.[8]—A receiver is personally liable for interest when he has funds in his hands on which he could by proper management have collected interest,[9] and where by neglect or misconduct he fails to pay over sums which came into his hands.[10] A sale of the receivership property upon the condition that the purchaser assume all liabilities does not bar the continuation of suits against the receiver for negligent acts of servants, his order of discharge providing that it should not prevent him from defending actions then pending.[11]

§ 8. Foreign and ancillary receivers.[12]—A Federal court has power, upon sold for $271,000 served for 29 months, during which time he did not physically manage the property and the principal service rendered by him was 125 days spent in various cities, for which he received $15 a day as expenses, an allowance of $15,000 exclusive of such expense allowance, held sufficient. $24,022.84 held excessive. Drey v. Watson [C. C. A.] 138 F. 792.

97. So held where an order appointing a receiver directed him to reduce to his possession enough property to pay plaintiff's claim as it should eventually be established. Adams v. Elwood, 104 App. Div. 138, 93 N. Y. S. 327.

98. So held where receiver continued insolvent's business. Rosenthal v. McGraw [C. C. A.] 138 F. 721.

99. Receiver appointed under Civ. Prac. Act § 146 (Comp. Laws § 3241). McKenzie v. Coslett [Nev.] 80 P. 1070.

1. People v. Anglo-American Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 94 N. Y. S. 1113. Where receiver was only prevented from rendering a final account by the pendency of two actions against him, and the attorney-general made no request for an accounting before the payment of the allowance and merely objected to an order making it, held proper for court to allow receiver commissions on money received and disbursed by him subject to inquiry on his next accounting. Id.

2. Where a receiver has failed to keep correct accounts, has made overcharges and false charges, has been reckless in expenditures and in employing servants, and has shown a general disregard for the trust he has assumed, he is not entitled to any salary or compensation for his services. Dalliba v. Riggs [Idaho] 82 P. 107. Where after object of receivership was fulfilled the receiver, by agreement between himself and the debtor, retained possession of the property as receiver until a debt owing him was paid, held the court would not allow him any compensation. Davis v. Atkinson [Ark.] 87 S. W. 432.

3, 4. Nutter v. Brown [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 88.

5. Bank held liable where directors wrongfully secured appointment, all parties acquiescing therein for 10 years. Tabor v. Bank of Leadville [Colo.] 83 P. 1060.

6. Owner is a party to the judgment though not named therein. Polk v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 634.

7. Polk v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 634.

8. See 4 C. L. 1252. Liability of railroad receivers, see Railroads, 6 C. L. 1194. Validity of bonds, see ante, § 2 A.

9. Rosenthal v. McGraw [C. C. A.] 138 F. 721.

10. Rosenthal v. McGraw [C. C. A.] 138 F. 721. Held liable for interest on sums withheld by him from the time of their receipt until he paid the same into court and asked for directions as to their distribution. Id.

11. Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Gunning, 33 Colo. 280, 80 P. 727.

12. See 2 C. L. 1480. Suits by and against exhibition to it of proceedings in a state court wherein a receiver has been appointed,[13] to appoint an ancillary receiver of assets of an insolvent corporation within its jurisdiction in aid of a primary appointment by a state court of another state.[14]

RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS.

§ 1. Nature and elements; other crimes distinguished.[15]

§ 2. Indictment and prosecution. Indictment.[16]—An indictment in the language of the statute is sufficient.[17] The property stolen must be described with as much certainty as the circumstances of the case will permit and must be sufficient to apprise defendant of the property charged to have been stolen,[18] but it is not necessary to so describe the property as to identify it from other property of the same class.[19] A description of the property as "two cases containing thirty-five pairs of shoes" charges defendant with receiving the shoes as well as the cases.[20]

An indictment for receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen is not fatally defective for failing to charge the name of the thief or stating that his name was unknown to the grand jury,[21] nor is it necessary to allege that the defendant knew that they were stolen from a particular person, and if it contains such an allegation it may be disregarded as surplusage and need not be proven.[22] Where the name of the person from whom defendant received the property is known to, or by the exercise of reasonable diligence could be ascertained by, the grand jury, an indictment alleging that the name is "unknown" to the grand jury, is insufficient.[23] The fact that an indictment charged receiving a certain number of ounces of silver, while the proof showed the receipt of certain spoon, fork, and knife blanks, is no ground for arrest of judgment.[24] The buying or receiving of stolen property, knowing it to have been stolen, implies a felonious intent.[25]

Evidence.[26]—To convict of the crime of receiving stolen goods it is necessary to prove that defendant had knowledge of the fact that they were stolen property,[27] and any circumstance or fact which tends to prove such guilty knowledge is admissible[28] though they may prove another distinct crime.[29] Where the facts and cir-foreign and ancillary receivers, see ante § 4 D.

13, 14. Scaife v. Scannon Inv. & Sav. Ass'n [Kan.] 80 P. 957.

15, 16. See 4 C. L. 1253.

17. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 1916, making it a crime to "buy or in any way receive" stolen goods, etc., an information charging that defendant did "buy, have, receive and take into his possession" certain goods, knowing them to be stolen, does not charge two distinct offenses. State v. Kosby [Mo.] 90 S. W. 454. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 1916, an information following the exact language of the statute sufficiently apprises defendant of the cause and nature of the accusation against him. Id. Where the statute does not make "intent" an element of the crime, it need not be alleged that defendant received the property with intent to deprive the owner thereof. State v. Sakowski [Mo.] 90 S. W. 435.

18. An indictment describing the property as "1,200 cigars, of the value of $42," is sufficient. State v. Kosky [Mo.] 90 S. W. 454. Describing spoon, fork, and knife "blanks" as so many ounces of silver is insufficient. State v. Nelson [R. I.] 60 A. 589.

19. An indictment describing the property as brass of a certain value of the personal property of a designated person is sufficient. Miller v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 245.

20. State v. Sakowski [Mo.] 90 S. W. 435.

21. Buechert v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 111.

22. State v. Sakowski [Mo.] 90 S. W. 435.

23. McKay v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 653.

24. State v. Nelson [R. I.] 60 A. 589.

25. State v. Levich [Iowa] 104 N. W. 334.

26. See 4 C. L. 1253.

27. Code § 4845. State v. Levich [Iowa] 104 N. W. 334.

28. Evidence of other stolen goods found in defendant's possession at the time and cumstances attending the receipt of the goods imply a guilty knowledge, the question of guilt is for the jury.[30]

In an action for receiving stolen goods the theft may be proved by the testimony of the person who stole it,[31] but a confession by such person made under circumstances which would render it inadmissible as against him under a charge of larceny is inadmissible.[32] It is held to be no error to refuse to require the person from whom the goods were stolen to state who, besides himself, handled and sold the kind of property stolen.[33] In a prosecution for receiving stolen goods, where the value is material,[34] the market value is the proper criterion,[35] but where the jury fails to fix the value of the goods and hence it cannot be entered as costs, any error in admitting or excluding evidence bearing upon the value is harmless.[36]

Instructions.[37]—The charge of the court must be relevant to the issues and applicable to the evidence.[38] In charging the necessity of a stealing the constituents of larceny need not be technically set out.[39]

Review.—In an appeal from a conviction for receiving stolen property, under an indictment containing other counts, only errors relating to the count charging receipt of stolen goods will be considered.[40] A prosecution for receiving stolen goods is barred by the statute of limitation if not brought within three years.[41]

RECITALS, see latest topical index.

RECOGNIZANCES.[42]

Under a statute which prescribes no particular form for a recognizance it is not necessary that it be in the precise language of the statute.[43] A recognizance, though taken in a court of inferior jurisdiction, need not state jurisdictional facts, and at most this is but an irregularity which under the statutes of Kansas does not invalidate the recognizance.[44] Where the name of the principal is properly spelled in a recognizance wherein he is recited as appearing to enter into the prior to the receiving is admissible. Buechert v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 111.

29. Evidence that defendant had received other property stolen from the same person but by another employe, which property he had concealed, is admissible. State v. Levich [Iowa] 104 N. W. 334.

30. State v. Brown [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1117.

31. Miller v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 245.

32. Watson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 568, 87 S. W. 1158.

33. State v. Levich [Iowa] 104 N. W. 334.

34. Under Cr. Code 1896, § 5052, the value of the goods is authorized to be entered as costs if the goods be not returned and paid to the owner. Moss v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 830.

35. Evidence of cost and the retail price is admissible as bearing upon the market value. Moss v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 830.

36. Moss v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 830. An instruction that if defendant received the property from a third person, not knowing where he got it, he is not guilty, is erroneous as he may still know that it was stolen. Id. Where the indictment charges burglary and receiving stolen property, an instruction ignoring the charge of burglary is properly refused. Id.

37. See 4 C. L. 1253.

38. Where the evidence shows that the goods were received from the thief it is not error to refuse to instruct as to receiving goods from one other than the thief. Buechert v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 111. An instruction that if defendant or his wife purchased the goods in good faith from one having possession thereof without knowledge that they were stolen, the defendant must be acquitted, is sufficiently favorable to defendant. State v. Sakowski [Mo.] 90 S. W. 435.

39. State v. Sakowski [Mo.] 90 S. W. 435.

40. Moss v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 830.

41. McKay v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 653.

42. See 4 C. L. 1253.

43. It is sufficient if it comes within the terms of the statute. People v. Tidmarsh, 113 Ill. App. 163.

44. Section 5596, Gen. St. 1901. Lies v. State [Kan.] 80 P. 949.

same, the fact that his name is improperly spelled subsequently does not invalidate the recognizance.[45]

The principal must be regularly called and fail to appear as conditioned before there can be a legal forfeiture of the recognizance declared,[46] but when there has been such a forfeiture declared, it is not then necessary to enter a default as to the surety.[47] An order as follows: "And now it is by the court ordered that recognizance herein be and is now forfeited," is a sufficient declaration of forfeiture.[48]

RECORDARI; RECORDING DEEDS AND MORTGAGES, see latest topical index.

RECORDS AND FILES.

This topic is confined to the nature and characteristics of public records. The form and requisites of particular instruments in order to entitle them to record,[49] and the doctrine of notice,[50] are treated elsewhere, as is also the restoration of lost records.[51]

§ 1. What are records.[52]—A public record is a written memorial drawn up, under authority of law, by a proper public officer and designed to remain as a memorial or permanent evidence of the matters to which it relates.[53] Documents and papers prepared by a private party may become public records upon being filed in a public office.[54] A copy of a judgment being recorded upon the minutes of the court is a part of the records of the court if certified to by the clerk of the court,[55] or if the minutes are signed by the judge at the conclusion of the term as required by statute;[56] and the fact that the clerk's certificate is attached to the minute entry does not make that entry any less a record entry.[57] It is the duty of officials having authority to record documents or to make entries in the records of which they have custody, in the course of their official duty, to note on such records the date upon which they record such instruments or make such entries, which notes become part of such record,[58] and the dates specified therein are to be taken as prima facie correct.[59]

45, 46, 47, 48. People v. Tidmarsh, 113 Ill. App. 153.

49. See Notice and Record of Title (deeds and real estate mortgages), 6 C. L. 814; Wills, 4 C. L. 1863; Chattel Mortgages, 5 C. L. 574; Sales, 4 C. L. 1318.

50. See Notice and Record of Title, 6 C. L. 814.

51. See Restoring Instruments and Records, 4 C. L. 1294.

52. See 4 C. L. 1254.

53. See 20 Am. & Eng. Ency. of Law, 474. Death certificate is a public record. National Council of the Knights & Ladies of Security v. O'Brien, 112 Ill. App. 40. Report of a commissioner appointed to supply the burned records under the Act of 1882 held of no weight, the court not having confirmed it or ordered the deed recorded. Alley v. Alley [Ky.] 91 S. W. 291. Entry of improperly acknowledged deed is void. Simmons v. Hewitt [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 188. V. S. 305 provides that the state auditor shall require all bills presented to him for allowance to be fully itemized and accompanied as far as possible with vouchers which shall be kept in his office. Held that the term "bill" includes all claims and accounts which by law may be presented to the auditor for allowance, and the term "vouchers" includes all books, papers, receipts and receipted bills and documents which serve to prove the truth of the claims and accounts presented. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146. See Notice and Record of Title, 6 C. L. 814; Wills, 4 C. L. 1863; Chattel Mortgages, 5 C. L. 574; Sales, 4 C. L. 1318.

54. Under V. S. 305, bills against the state and vouchers accompanying the same on being filed in the auditor's office become public documents. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146.

Stenographic reports and minutes of proceedings before a grand jury are not official statements which in themselves constitute proof of the facts reported, but are merely memoranda to refresh the recollection.[60]

An injunction will lie to prevent the erroneous placing of one's picture in a rogues' gallery.[61]

§ 2. Keeping and custody.[62]—The law presumes that all officers intrusted with the custody of public files and records will perform their official duty by keeping them safely in their offices.[63] Statutes requiring probated wills to be filed and remain in the office of the clerk of the court are frequently construed as being for the benefit of the heirs and devisees of the testator,[64] and when so construed a violation of the statute is immaterial so far as third persons are concerned.[65] If a judge acts corruptly and falsifies his record he is answerable both civilly and criminally.[66] The liability of a register of deeds for negligently permitting the wrongful cancellation of a recorded mortgage is one of indemnity,[67] and hence the measure of damages cannot exceed the amount due on the mortgage at the date of the entry of satisfaction.[68] One participating in the wrong cannot recover damages from the officer.[69] A court has the inherent power to correct its records at any time.[70] In the absence of statutory provisions a court has the exclusive right to keep its records free from immaterial or improper matter.[71]

§ 3. Publicity and access.[72]—At common law and under the statutes of most states, when not detrimental to the public interests,[73] all interested parties[74] have the right to inspect the public records.[75] The right must, however, be exercised by each individual in a reasonable and orderly manner, at reasonable hours and times, and with due regard to the official rights of the officer in charge and to the performance by him of his official duties and to the reasonable exercise by the

55, 56, 57, 58, 59. Mansfield v. Johnson [Fla.] 40 So. 196.

60. Havenor v. State, 125 Wis. 444, 104 N. W. 116.

61. Itzkovitch v. Whitaker [La.] 39 So. 499; Schulman v. Whitaker [La.] 39 So. 737. See contra, Molineux v. Collins, 177 N. Y. 395, 69 N. E. 727.

62. See 4 C. L. 1255.

63. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146.

64, 65. Pasch. Dig. art. 1236, so construed. Hymer v. Holyfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 201, 87 S. W. 722.

66. Justice of the peace. Reddish v. Shaw, 111 Ill. App. 337.

67. Suit on bond. Damages must be shown. State v. Green [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 403.

68. Suit on bond. State v. Green [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 403.

69. State v. Green [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 403.

70. See Judgments, 6 C. L. 214, 227.

71. The court of appeals has no power to review an order of a county court denying a motion of a board of supervisors to set aside a presentment of the grand jury censuring them for their neglect in the keeping of the records of the minutes of their proceedings. Appellate Division had affirmed order. In re Jones, 181 N. Y. 389, 74 N. E. 226.

72. See 4 C. L. 1255.

73. One accused of crime is not entitled to inspect before trial the records of the grand jury relating to testimony given by him before such body concerning the transaction involved upon the trial in order to enable him to prepare for trial, and to lay the foundation for the impeachment of witnesses who may testify differently on trial than when before the grand jury. Havenor v. State, 125 Wis. 444, 104 N. W. 116. Laws 1903, p. 136, c. 90, providing for a reporter for grand juries, does not remove the obligation of secrecy concerning grand jury proceedings or authorize inspection thereof as a public record by a member of the public and their use as evidence upon the trial of causes. Id.

74. A citizen and taxpayer of the state desiring to examine bills and vouchers on file in the office of the state auditor for the purpose of ascertaining alleged irregularities in the allowance and payment of claims against the state, in order that reforms may be inaugurated, has sufficient interest to entitle him to such inspection as a matter of right. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146.

75. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146. V. S. 320, as amended by Laws 1904, p. 25, No. 21, providing for an inspection of claims and vouchers in auditor's office by committee on claims of the general assembly, does not alter rule. Id. Under a statute providing that the records shall always be open to the public generally, any persons or firm rest of the public of the same co-ordinate rights.[76] The officer in charge of such records is not entitled to a fee for permitting the examination thereof.[77] Mandamus lies to compel permission to examine and inspect public records,[78] even though they are in an office forming a part of the executive department of the government.[79] The complaint is sufficient if it shows the official character of the defendant and his duty to keep the records.[80] It need not allege that the officer has or had the records in his possession[81] or that the records are public ones.[82]

§ 4. Proof of records and use in evidence.[83]—The contents of a public record may be proved by a certified copy,[84] the production of the original being dispensed with on account of the inconvenience which would result from the frequent removal of public documents,[85] and consequently the absence of the original affords no presumption of fraud.[86] The custodian of a record, having authority to certify a transcript thereof, has authority to specify in his certificate the particular record from which the transcript is taken, and such certificate is at least prima facie evidence of the facts certified.[87]

Public records legal in form and substance are competent evidence of the facts recorded,[88] but a record void as such may be admissible to prove facts other than those recorded.[89] The record of a court[90] or quasi judicial body[91] imports verity and cannot be questioned collaterally, nor can it be contradicted, impeached, varied or explained by evidence dehors the record.[92] If the record does not state the truth, application should be made to the trial court to correct the record,[93] for when it is once made up it is conclusive upon all parties until altered or set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, and all questions relating to the time when it was in fact made, or in regard to the authority on which it was made, or in respect to the truthfulness of its recitals, must be settled by reference to the who may be engaged in compiling abstract books have the continuous right, by themselves or their agents, to inspect and make abstracts from any and all public records. State v. McMillan [Fla.] 38 So. 666.

76. State v. McMillan [Fla.] 38 So. 666.

77. Where inspection and extracting is done by the parties themselves or by their agents or assistants, without any service or assistance of the official in charge or his deputies other than their general supervision and watchfulness, such officer is not entitled to any fees or compensation for such inspection and extracting. Clerk of court. State v. McMillan [Fla.] 38 So. 666.

78. Vouchers in state auditor's office. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146. Relief granted citizen taxpayer who had no adequate remedy at law. Id.

79. Vouchers in state auditor's office. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146.

80. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146.

81. Law presumes that he will perform his duty. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146.

82. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146.

83. See 4 C. L. 1256. See, also, Evidence, 5 C. L. 1301.

84. Mansfield v. Johnson [Fla.] 40 So. 196; Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146. Death certificate. National Council of the Knights & Ladies of Security v. O'Brien, 112 Ill. App. 40. A certified copy of a chattel mortgage is competent to show how the mortgage read when entered and recorded. Kimball Co. v. Piper, 111 Ill. App. 82. So held as regards copy of certified entry of judgment on minutes of court. Mansfield v. Johnson [Fla.] 40 So. 196. Copy of original execution returned to court from which it issued. Id.

85. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146; Mansfield v. Johnson [Fla.] 40 So. 196.

86. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146.

87. Mansfield v. Johnson [Fla.] 40 So. 196.

88. See Evidence, 5 C. L. 1349.

89. Void deed record held evidence that a deed alleged to be lost was made. Simmons v. Hewitt [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 188.

90. Cannot be questioned on habeas corpus. Hanley v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 149.

91. The record of a board of county commissioners. Brooks v. Morgan [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 331.

92. Record of justice of the peace. Reddish v. Shaw, 111 Ill. App. 337. Entries required to be made in the record proper of a trial cannot be contradicted by the bill of exceptions. Hanley v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 149.

Records cannot be modified or changed by parol evidence where no such relief is sought by the pleadings. Welsiger v. Mills [Ky.] 91 S. W. 689.

93. Hanley v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 149.

record alone.[94] Statutory records are prima facie evidence of the contents of the instrument.[95]

A record having been destroyed parol evidence is admissible to show its contents.[96] Where the record of a suit is destroyed it will be presumed that the record contained evidence justifying the judgment.[97] A clerk's certificate on a will is sufficient to show recordation of will, the records having been destroyed.[98]

§ 5. Crimes relating to records.[99]—If a judge acts corruptly and falsifies his record he is answerable both civilly and criminally.[100]

REDEMPTION; RE-EXCHANGE, see latest topical index.

REFERENCE.

§ 1. Definitions and distinctions, master and referee, referee and umpire or arbitrator.[1]—The reference here meant is the Code analogue of the reference to a master in chancery[2] and the reference to state an account allowed in actions at law. Referees and references so called are provided by statute in certain proceedings[3] and in bankruptcy.[4] Under the Indiana Code a reference to one, by agreement, to examine into all the issues, take evidence thereon and report his findings of fact and the evidence heard by him and his rulings thereon, is a reference to a master commissioner.[5]

§ 2. Occasion for reference.[6]—References under special statutes are governed

94. Reddish v. Shaw, 111 Ill. App. 337.

95. When the original will is lost and a certified copy of the record of said will in a foreign jurisdiction is offered in evidence, and it further appears that said original record contains a marginal item and that a part of said marginal item as recorded was below the signature of the testator, the presumption is that said record is a true copy and a true reproduction in form of the will as originally signed by said testator, and unless this presumption is overcome by evidence, such will is by reason of said marginal item, invalid in Ohio to pass title to property in Ohio. Hosler v. Haines, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 261.

96. On a plea of res judicata, the pleadings in the former cause being destroyed and the issues involved not appearing in the entry of judgment, parol evidence is admissible to show such issues. Holford v. James [C. C. A.] 136 F. 553, afg. [Ind. T.] 76 S. W. 261.

97. Judgment awarding dower, held it would be presumed that husband was dead, and that widow had a claim to unassigned dower. Bloom v. Sawyer [Ky.] 89 S. W. 204.

98. Hymer v. Holyfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 201, 87 S. W. 722.

99. See 4 C. L. 1257.

100. Justice of the peace. Reddish v. Shaw, 111 Ill. App. 337.

1. See 4 C. L. 1257.

2. See Masters and Commissioners, 6 C. L. 607. Arbitrators are sometimes called "referees." See Arbitration and Award, 5 C. L. 250.

3. For reference in particular proceedings see such topics as Garnishment, 5 C. L. 1574; Supplementary Proceedings, 4 C. L. 1591; Estates of Decedents, 5 C. L. 1183; Divorce, 5 C. L. 1026, etc.

4. See Bankruptcy, 5 C. L. 367.

5. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 1462, et seq., and not to a referee under §§ 565-567. St. Joseph Mfg. Co. v. Hubbard [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 17.

by the terms thereof and the code reference analogous to that in chancery is governed by principles similar to those of chancery.[7] In chancery the order is discretionary and not appealable.[8] A reference is generally authorized when the examination of a long account is necessary.[9] In actions by attorneys against clients the trend of the decisions is against ordering a reference, and one should only be ordered in cases where it is apparent that from the complicated nature of the issues it is "practically impossible" for a jury to determine them.[10]

§ 3. Time and stage of proceedings.[11]—A reference cannot be ordered until the cause is ready for a hearing.[12] Where an accounting is made the basis of the demand, complainant must make out his case and prove the charges of his bill showing that he has the right to demand an account,[13] and an interlocutory judgment providing for an accounting must be entered.[14] The premature entry of an order of reference is harmless where no account is taken thereunder.[15]

§ 4. Motion and order for reference, and stipulations or consents on voluntary reference.[16]—Jurisdiction to order a reference cannot be conferred by consent of parties.[17] No special notice of an order of reference is necessary in an equity case.[18] A motion for a continuance being denied and the court giving complainant his election to proceed to trial or consent to a reference, a consent to a reference is not made under duress.[19] One appearing before a referee without objection cannot complain that the reference was made without his consent.[20] Under the Code of Alaska an order of reference need not require that the witnesses who testify before the referee shall read over and subscribe their testimony.[21] An objection to the form of the order should be taken at the time of the introduction of evidence.[22] The parties having consented to the reference and proceeded therewith, the order therefor may be entered nunc pro tunc, the first order being void because of the disqualification of the justice making it.[23]

6. See 4 C. L. 1258.

7. Compare Masters and Commissioners, 6 C. L. 607.

8. Lockwood v. Lockwood [S. C.] 53 S. E. 87. See Masters and Commissioners, 6 C. L. 607.

9. Properly referred where case stated cause of action on contract and trial involved examination of account of several hundred items. Starin v. Fonda, 107 App. Div. 539, 95 N. Y. S. 379.

10. Hoff v. Reid & Co., 110 App. Div. 95, 97 N. Y. S. 107. Reference denied where only two items were disputed. Id. Controversy about propriety of consolidating several causes of action held not to take case out of general rule. Moyer v. Nelliston, 96 N. Y. S. 485.

11. See 4 C. L. 1259.

12. Reference refused where several defendants had not been served nor appeared, and case was not dismissed as to them, and no replication had been filed to answers filed. Macfarlane v. Hills [Fla.] 39 So. 994.

13. Reager's Adm'r v. Chappelear [Va.] 51 S. E. 170.

14. Gibson v. Widman, 106 App. Div. 388, 94 N. Y. S. 593.

15. Reager's Adm'r v. Chappelear [Va.] 51 S. E. 170.

16. See 4 C. L. 1259.

17. Parties to an action cannot by consent confer upon a justice of the appellate division jurisdiction to hold a special term for the hearing of motions and to enter an order of reference on a motion there pending. Owasco Lake Cemetery v. Teller, 96 N. Y. S. 985.

18. Lockwood v. Lockwood [S. C.] 53 S. E. 87. Where calendar No. 2 is being called at intervals during the trial of cases on calendar No. 1, on motion in open court after trial of a case on calendar No. 1 an order of reference may be made in a case on calendar No. 2 without further notice, one counsel of record being in court and the other not being present and having no notice of the motion. Brookshire v. Farmers' Alliance Exch., 71 S. C. 451, 51 S. E. 442. See Masters and Commissioners, 6 C. L. 607.

19. Copper River Min. Co. v. McClellan [C. C. A.] 138 F. 333.

20. Gulf Lumber Co. v. Walsh [Fla.] 38 So. 831.

21. Copper River Min. Co. v. McClellan [C. C. A.] 138 F. 333.

22. Objection that order did not require witnesses to read and subscribe testimony. Copper River Min. Co. v. McClellan [C. C. A.] 138 F. 333.

23. Where the referee had been previously agreed upon between the parties and they had gone to trial before him and his deci-

§ 5. Selection and qualifications of the referee; his oath and induction into office. Removals and substitutions.[24]—A referee may be removed for discussing facts of case with a witness in the absence of counsel.[25] Within the meaning of statutory provisions the resignation of a referee is a "refusal to serve."[26]

§ 6. General scope of reference and powers of referees or masters.[27]—Where the principal issues presented are questions of law not involving or involved in an accounting, the court should merely refer the taking of any necessary account,[28] but where the primary purpose of the action is accounting and the account is a long one, the court has authority to refer the whole case and submit to the referee all incidental questions of law arising therein,[29] and this rule applies to suits in equity.[30] The powers of the referee are limited by the order of appointment.[31] A cause being referred without any conditions or limitations a referee has full power to decide all questions arising both of law and fact.[32]

A referee has power to act outside the county where sits the court appointing him,[33] and by appearing before the referee one may become estopped to question this power.[34] The referee may exercise this power where to do so will greatly expedite the taking of evidence.[35] A referee has power to employ a bailiff when necessary for the preservation of many, some of them valuable, exhibits.[36]

§ 7. Appearance before referee, hearing and adjournments, trial and practice thereon.[37]—A party is entitled to notice of the hearing.[38] As a general rule an auditor or referee is authorized to allow amendments to pleadings.[39] A party sion had been rendered on the assumption by the parties that the order of reference was valid. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 721-724, construed. Owasco Lake Cemetery v. Teller, 96 N. Y. S. 985.

24. See 4 C. L. 1259.

25. Smith v. Dunn, 91 App. Div. 200, 86 N. Y. S. 307.

26. Within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1011, requiring the court to appoint another referee where the referee named in the stipulation refuses to serve. Brooklyn Heights R. Co. v. Brooklyn City R. Co., 105 App. Div. 88, 93 N. Y. S. 849.

27. See 4 C. L. 1259.

28. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2864. Winnebago County v. Dodge County, 125 Wis. 42, 103 N. W. 255.

29. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2864. Winnebago County v. Dodge County, 125 Wis. 42, 103 N. W. 255.

30. Winnebago County v. Dodge County, 125 Wis. 42, 103 N. W. 255.

31. Referee appointed to report the facts in a suit on a contract for the sale of land to recover the unpaid purchase price held justified in reporting what portion of the price was still due. Dunn v. Stowers [Va.] 51 S. E. 366. Where a referee is appointed to hear, try and determine the issues raised by the pleadings in a certain case, he has no power to review preliminary order denying defendant's motion to dismiss the complaint because of the refusal of plaintiff's attorney to testify as an adverse witness. Eastern R. Co. v. Tuteur [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1067. Royalties upon any device found to come within a contract of sale held within the scope of a reference to an auditor to state the account under a decree declaring in general terms the right of complainant to royalties upon all devices manufactured by defendant and embodying the inventions made in the contract, although the bill and decree specifically mentioned but a single decree. Eclipse Bicycle Co. v. Farrow, 26 S. Ct. 150, rvg. 24 App. D. C. 311.

32. Piscataquis Sav. Bank v. Herrick [Me.] 62 A. 214.

33. Winnebago County v. Dodge County, 125 Wis. 42, 103 N. W. 255.

34. Where upon agreement of counsel an order is made by the circuit court referring a cause to a practicing attorney for trial as referee, and the parties appear before such referee and take testimony in a county other than the one in which the cause is pending, one of such parties cannot afterwards be heard to complain that the reference was not made with his consent or that the referee was without authority to hear and determine the cause in the county where the testimony was taken. Gulf Lumber Co. v. Walsh [Fla.] 38 So. 831.

35. Where the reference involved the inspection of numbers of exhibits, including books, correspondence files, and machinery not situated in the county where the referee was appointed and resided, it was proper for the referee to hold sittings at the place where the evidence was located. Winnebago County v. Dodge County, 125 Wis. 42, 103 N. W. 255.

36. Winnebago County v. Dodge County, 125 Wis. 42, 103 N. W. 255.

37. See 4 C. L. 1259.

38. See 4 C. L. 1259, n. 59. Held not necessary to give notice of the hearing to an infant not a party to the action. Jewett v. Schmidt, 108 App. Div. 322, 95 N. Y. S. 631.

may, after the hearing has been concluded, but before the auditor has made his report, so amend his pleadings as to make the same conform to the evidence admitted on the hearing without objection, but he cannot, as matter of right, then insist upon being afforded an opportunity to offer evidence to sustain an amendment which introduces new and distinct issues of fact.[40] In Alabama it is the statutory duty of a register to allow the introduction of viva voce testimony without previous notice.[41] The rulings of the referee on the admissibility of evidence will be settled on the hearing of his report.[42] Where a referee overrules an objection to the admission of evidence, and the evidence is received subject to a motion to strike it out, the evidence remains in the case, unless a motion to strike it out is made, and the referee has no right, after the case has been tried and submitted, to conclude on his own motion to strike the evidence on the ground that it is subject to the objection originally made against it.[43] If insufficient time to take all the evidence is allowed by the order of the court an application for further time must be made before the expiration of the time fixed in the order.[44] A reference being ordered upon consent and proceeding without objection, any constitutional right of the parties to trial by jury is waived.[45] A mistake of counsel may warrant the reopening of the hearing.[46]

§ 8. The report, its form, requisites and contents, and return and filing.[47]—The report must comply with statutory requirements. Failing to do so it is ineffectual.[48] In New York the report must state separately the facts found and the conclusions of law.[49] A temporary removal of the report from the clerk's office will not destroy the effect of a filing.[50]

§ 9. Revision of report before the court. Objections and exceptions.[51]—Exceptions should go to what the auditor reported, not to what he did not report.[52] If an auditor's report fails to find all the facts or to cover all the issues, advantage should be taken by motion to recommit.[53] An objection to a portion of the evidence on which an auditor has based his conclusion cannot be taken as a matter of right except by motion to recommit the report to the auditor before the trial.[54] One cannot except to a mere statement in the report.[55] In view of the complicated

39. So held under Civ. Code 1895, § 4583. First State Bank v. Avera, 123 Ga. 598, 51 S. E. 665.

40. First State Bank v. Avera, 123 Ga. 598, 51 S. E. 665.

41. So held under Code 1896, § 743, subd. 3. Brady v. Brady [Ala.] 39 So. 237.

42. Court will not determine the materiality of evidence on an application for instructions to the commissioner. State v. Standard Oil Co. [Mo.] 91 S. W. 1062.

43. Gottlieb v. Dole, 109 App. Div. 583, 96 N. Y. S. 329.

44. Copper River Min. Co. v. McClellan [C. C. A.] 138 F. 333.

45. Brooklyn Heights R. Co. v. Brooklyn City R. Co., 105 App. Div. 88, 93 N. Y. S 849.

46. Mistake of counsel in presuming that disputed item in account was admitted held sufficient to warrant reopening of hearing and the allowance of proof of such item. Gottlieb v. Dole, 109 App. Div. 583, 96 N. Y. S. 329.

47. See 4 C. L. 1260.

48. Report which fails to state separately the conclusions of law and facts found is not a report within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1019 requiring the referee's report to be filed within a designated time. Lederer v. Lederer, 108 App. Div. 228, 95 N. Y. S. 623.

49. Code Civ. Proc. § 1022. A report containing numbered paragraphs but not stating anywhere that the referee has found any facts as such or any conclusions of law will not sustain a judgment. Lederer v. Lederer, 108 App. Div. 228, 95 N. Y. S. 623.

50. So held where report was marked "Filed" and removed for binding. Poole v. Poindexter [Kan.] 83 P. 126.

51. See 4 C. L. 1261.

52. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co., 123 Ga. 830, 51 S. E. 666.

53. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co., 123 Ga. 830, 51 S. E. 666. The error cannot be attacked by an "exception of law as to matters not appearing on the face of the record." Id.; Fricker v. Americus Mfg. & Imp. Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 65.

54. Allwright v. Skillings, 188 Mass. 538, 74 N. E. 944.

55. A statement by an auditor that a personal inspection of the premises involved character of cases generally referred to auditors, and the length of the resulting record, there are specially strong reasons for requiring the strictest compliance with statutory provisions requiring exceptions to clearly and distinctly specify the errors complained of.[56] The exception should contain all facts and rulings necessary to show harmful error.[57] It should state the ruling complained of, the evidence on the point, and state of what and wherein the error consisted.[58] The neglect of a party excepting to an auditor's report on matters of fact or on matters of law dependent for their decision upon the evidence, to point out by appropriate reference to the auditor's brief of the evidence or to attach as exhibits to his exceptions those portions of the evidence relied on to support the exceptions, is a sufficient reason in an equity case for refusing to approve the exceptions of fact and for overruling the exceptions of law.[59] The time for filing exceptions is largely statutory and may generally be extended by the court.[60] The time for filing exceptions runs from the filing of the report and not from the time of filing a sup-had considerable influence on his mind, and that "in his opinion much of the evidence and practically all of the objections to the introduction thereof play a very unimportant part in a proper adjudication of the question submitted" is not a finding by the auditor and cannot be excepted to as such. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co., 123 Ga. 830, 51 S. E. 666.

56. Armstrong v. Winter, 122 Ga. 869, 50 S. E. 997. General exceptions are insufficient. Fricker v. Americus Mfg. & Imp. Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 65. General exception to report of master commissioner under Indiana Code held insufficient. St. Joseph Mfg. Co. v. Hubbard [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 17. Exceptions held too general to be considered on appeal. Waggaman v. Earle, 25 App. D. C. 582. Where an auditor found a particular portion of the premises in dispute in favor of the plaintiff and described it by metes and bounds, an exception to such finding upon the ground that "one of his boundary lines is indefinite, uncertain and impossible to locate," without indicating which boundary line was referred to, is not properly made. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co., 123 Ga. 830, 51 S. E. 666.

57. Armstrong v. Winter, 122 Ga. 869, 50 S. E. 997.

58. Armstrong v. Winter, 122 Ga. 869, 50 S. E. 997. It ought not to refer the court from one part of the record to another to discover what was ruled, and to other and various parts of the record to search for evidence relating to that particular point. Id. It is incumbent upon a party excepting to the report of an auditor in an equity case, when the exceptions thereto involve a consideration of the evidence on which the auditor based his findings, to set forth in connection with each exception of law or of fact the evidence necessary to be considered in passing thereon, or to attach thereto as an exhibit so much of the evidence as is pertinent, or to at least point out to the court where such evidence is to be found in the brief of the evidence prepared and filed by the auditor. First State Bank v. Avera, 123 Ga. 598, 51 S. E. 665. An exception of law to an auditor's report does not properly present any question for determination by the court when it complains of the admission or rejection of evidence, whether the same be oral or documentary, and fails to disclose upon its face or by an exhibit attached to the exception and referred to therein what the substance of such evidence was, or to point out where in the auditor's brief of evidence the same may be found. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co., 123 Ga. 830, 51 S. E. 666. The same rule obtains in an equity case in reference to an exception of law or of fact to a finding of the auditor which involves a consideration of the evidence upon which such finding was based. Id. When assignments of error are sought to be made upon rulings of an auditor as to the admissibility of the testimony of an agent of an interested party, the evidence admitted or rejected must be set forth in the exceptions filed to the auditor's report. Not incompetent to testify as to all matters merely because case defended by representatives of a deceased party. Code 1895, § 5269. Murphey v. Bush, 122 Ga. 715, 50 S. E. 1004.

Note: The decision in the case of White v. Reviere, 57 Ga. 386, was made with reference to the procedure which obtained prior to the passage of the act of December 18, 1894 (Laws 1894, p. 123), which outlines the practice now to be observed in excepting to an auditor's report in such cases. First State Bank v. Avera [Ga.] 51 S. E. 665.

59. Armstrong v. Winter, 122 Ga. 869, 50 S. E. 997.

60. Under Code Proc. § 195 the court may in its discretion allow exceptions to referee's report to be filed after 10 days from notice of filing. Brown v. Rogers, 71 S. C. 512, 51 S. E. 257. The marking of a case "heard" by the judge on the calendar in open court is not an agreement in writing not to require exceptions to referee's report to be filed within 10 days, nor was it a memorandum of such agreement noted by the presiding judge with the consent of plaintiff's attorney under rule 14 of the circuit court. Id.

plemental report.[61] Objections for fraud, prejudice, or mistake on the part of the referee should be made when the report is offered for acceptance.[62] Exceptions not appearing to have been in writing will be presumed on appeal to have been oral.[63]

§ 10. Decree or judgment on the report; confirmation or overruling, recommittal or additional findings, modification, conformity of judgment with report.[64]—The report of the referee is merely advisory and the court may upon the hearing add evidence to it.[65] As a general rule the report is prima facie correct.[66] A cause being referred by agreement of parties without condition or limitation, the referee's decision is final in the absence of fraud, prejudice or mistake on his part,[67] and the parties agreeing that his findings of fact shall have the same force and effect as the verdict of a jury, they cannot be reviewed on exceptions.[68] A finding upon the general question of liability may furnish the evidence of facts which are involved in, and may be inferred from, the general finding.[69] In Georgia the auditor must now report not only his conclusions but the evidence upon which he based the same, and while his report is yet treated as prima facie true, the excepting party is at liberty to overcome this presumption of its correctness by directing the attention of the court by way of proper exceptions to the fact that the evidence reported by the auditor does not sustain his findings.[70] If it be doubtful, when the testimony is meager or conflicting, whether a particular finding of fact was warranted, the court, in the exercise of a broad discretion, may order a jury trial on that or other similar issues, but the trial is to be had only upon such evidence as was adduced before the auditor, and such newly-discovered evidence as could not have been procured and submitted on the hearing before him.[71] On exception being made, clerical errors and obvious mistakes should be corrected.[72]

A motion to recommit is addressed to the discretion of the presiding judge and his ruling is not subject to exception.[73] A motion to recommit must assign the reasons therefor.[74] Recommittal is the proper remedy to supply the omission

61. Brown v. Rogers, 71 S. C. 512, 51 S. E. 257.

62. Piscataquis Sav. Bank v. Herrick [Me.] 62 A. 214.

63. Report of master commissioner under Indiana Code. St. Joseph Mfg. Co. v. Hubbard [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 17.

64. See 4 C. L. 1262.

65. Whether a plaintiff makes out a case on the facts found by the auditor, apart from the additional facts put in evidence at the trial, is immaterial, and a ruling that plaintiff is not entitled to recover on the facts and evidence stated by the auditor is properly refused. Paul v. Wilbur [Mass.] 75 N. E. 63.

66. First State Bank v. Avera, 123 Ga. 598, 51 S. E. 665. So held under Rev. Laws, c. 165, § 55. Carroll v. Carroll, 188 Mass. 558, 74 N. E. 913. Where an item allowed by the auditor in an accounting is not on its face unreasonable it is incumbent upon the party objecting to show the impropriety of its allowance. Waggaman v. Earle, 25 App. D. C. 582.

67. Piscataquis Sav. Bank v. Herrick [Me.] 62 A. 214. Report being accepted, an appeal from a final decree entered in accordance therewith cannot be sustained. Id.

68. Campbell v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 130 F. 786.

69. Finding of liability of co-tenant for use and occupancy of estate held to justify a finding that he agreed to pay therefor. Carroll v. Carroll, 188 Mass. 558, 74 N. E. 913.

70, 71. First State Bank v. Avera, 123 Ga. 598, 51 S. E. 665.

72. When an auditor appointed to take an accounting between partners omits to include in his calculations an item which the undisputed evidence shows should be entered to the credit of one of the partners, and he takes proper exceptions to this omission, the exception should be sustained by the court as a matter of course. Murphey v. Bush, 122 Ga. 715, 50 S. E. 1004.

73. Allwright v. Skillings, 188 Mass. 538, 74 N. E. 944.

Note: An exception to this rule has been made where the rule to the auditor provides that his findings on matters of fact are to be final. Tripp v. Macomber, 187 Mass. 109, 72 N. E. 361.—From Allwright v. Skillings [Mass.] 74 N. E. 944.

74. Report of master commissioner under Indiana Code. St. Joseph Mfg. Co. v. Hubbard [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 17.

of a material fact,[75] and to remedy a breach of a stipulation as to the time for filing briefs.[76]

§ 11. Appellate review.[77]—A refusal to recommit is not appealable.[78] A referee's finding of fact will not be disturbed on appeal unless clearly erroneous,[79] but where the referee alone heard the witnesses his findings are not binding on an appellate court in the sense that they would be if the trial court whose judgment is reviewed had seen the witnesses and heard them testify.[80] The finding of a referee cannot be reviewed in the absence of a part of the evidence.[81] Exceptions not appearing to have been in writing will be presumed on appeal to have been oral.[82] In New York, on appeal to the appellate division from a judgment on a referee's report, no exception to the report or decision is prerequisite to a review of the facts.[83] An appellant may bring exceptions to the report in his bill of exceptions rather than in the transcript of the record so long as they are duly certified by the trial judge who overruled them.[84] The report of a master to whom reference is made to take evidence and report the same and his findings thereon, to be part of the record, must be made so by bill of exceptions or order of the court.[85] In Georgia, where an auditor files, as a part of the brief of the evidence accompanying his report, a stenographic report of the testimony, it becomes a part of the record and can be specified and brought into the appellate court as such, and the bill of exceptions will not be dismissed because there is no condensed and narrative brief.[86] The appeal is from the decision of the trial court and hence it is no ground of exception thereto that the amount of the recovery therein is less than the evidence before the auditor authorized.[87]

§ 12. Compensation, fees, and costs.[88]—The amount of the referee's fees is generally discretionary with the court.[89] A referee's recovery of fees should be limited to the actual hearings before the referee and to such adjourned days as the parties met and further adjourned, whether evidence was taken or not.[90] Where a referee is appointed by stipulation between the parties and both parties have the benefit of his services, they are both responsible for his fees.[91] Where the parties themselves terminate the action by stipulation and enter a judgment

75. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co., 123 Ga. 830, 51 S. E. 666. The error cannot be attacked by an "exception of law as to matters not appearing on the face of the record." Id.; Fricker v. Americus Mfg. & Imp. Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 65.

76. Where unknown to the referee the attorneys for the parties by stipulation fix the time for filing briefs, and before the expiration of such time the referee files his report and judgment is entered thereon, defendant not having filed his brief held entitled to have the case referred back with direction to consider defendant's brief and make a new report. Mercantile Nat. Bank v. Sire, 100 App. Div. 491, 91 N. Y. S. 419.

77. See 4 C. L. 1263.

78. Allwright v. Skillings, 188 Mass. 538, 74 N. E. 944. See, also, 4 C. L. 1263, n. 30.

79. Piersol's Estate, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 204; Consaul v. Cummings, 24 App. D. C. 36; Waggaman v. Earle, 25 App. D. C. 582; Lambertson v. Vann, 134 N. C. 108, 46 S. E. 10; Eastern R. Co. v. Tuteur [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1067. Complicated accounting. Jackson v. Smyth, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 545.

80. La Jara Creamery & Live Stock Ass'n v. Hansen [Colo.] 83 P. 644.

81. Poole v. Poindexter [Kan.] 83 P. 126.

82. Report of master commissioner under Indiana Code. St. Joseph Mfg. Co. v. Hubbard [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 17.

83. In re Mosher's Estate, 103 App. Div. 459, 93 N. Y. S. 123.

84. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co., 123 Ga. 830, 51 S. E. 666. The court says that while the practice may be open to objections the writ of error will not be dismissed on that account. Id.

85. Master commissioner under Indiana Code. St. Joseph Mfg. Co. v. Hubbard [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 17.

86. Fricker v. Americus Mfg. & Imp. Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 65.

87. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co., 123 Ga. 830, 51 S. E. 666.

88. See 4 C. L. 1264.

89. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2930, the trial court has a broad discretion as to the fees. Winnebago County v. Dodge County, 125 Wis. 42, 103 N. W. 255.

without the knowledge or consent of the referee, and the plaintiff is the prevailing party, the referee's cause of action for fees can then be enforced against him without the filing or delivery of the report.[92] A statutory provision that the fees shall be taxed upon the coming in of the report does not prevent allowance of the fees of a referee who died pending the hearing and made no report, but such fees are taxable upon the coming in of his successor's report.[93] A referee dying pending the hearing the expense of the extension of the reporter's notes taken before the deceased referee is properly allowed as an item of costs.[94] Traveling expenses are generally chargeable as costs.[95] The employment of a referee by attorneys under stipulation is sufficient to raise a presumption on the part of the attorney's clients to pay for his services.[96]

REFORMATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

§ 1. The remedy. A. Nature and office.[1]—The remedy is not corrective of the agreement but only of the written instrument evidencing the actual agreement.[2]

(§ 1) B. Right to remedy.[3]—A contract made without fraud or mistake will not be reformed by a court of equity to give either party a better bargain.[4] Where, however, a written instrument fails through mistake of fact to express the real agreement of the parties it will be reformed,[5] as between the parties and persons

90, 91, 92. Keeler v. Bell, 95 N. Y. S. 841.

93, 94. Winnebago County v. Dodge County, 125 Wis. 42, 103 N. W. 255.

95. Where a reference involved the inspection of numbers of exhibits, including books, correspondence files, and machinery not situated in the county where the referee was appointed and resided, it was proper for the referee to hold sittings at the place where the evidence was located, and his traveling and hotel expenses for this purpose were chargeable as costs. Winnebago County v. Dodge County, 125 Wis. 42, 103 N. W. 255.

96. Keeler v. Bell, 95 N. Y. S. 841.

1. See 4 C. L. 1264.

2. Plaintiff applied to defendant for insurance on a certain building but gave a misleading description. As a consequence the agent looked at the wrong building and wrote the insurance on it. Plaintiff now seeks to reform the policy so as to cover the building that he intended to insure. Cannot be reformed as there was no agreement for insurance on that building. Boyce v. Hamburg-Bremen Fire Ins. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 589. Where a contract has been completed and a mistake is made in reducing it to writing, the writing will be reformed. King v. Hobbs, 139 N. C. 170, 51 S. E. 911.

3. See 4 C. L. 1265.

4. After all had attained their majority a contract of distribution was fairly entered into between distributees who now seek to reform on the ground that the distribution was grossly inequitable. Burnes v. Burnes [C. C. A.] 137 F. 781.

5. Policy was issued on lumber in the name of the president instead of in name of corporation. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 917. Where a contract to convey provided that the R. R. Co. was to stop all its accommodation trains at a certain point, and the deed executed in fulfillment of the contract contained the further provision that the property was to revert if the company failed to fulfill its undertakings, the deed will not be reformed unless it be proved that the provision was added by mistake. Gray v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 337. Defendant had acquired title to a piece of land through a mortgage foreclosure. He offered to sell this land to plaintiff, but in reducing the agreement to writing more land was included than was intended by either party. Reformed. Benesh v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [N. D.] 103 N. W. 405.

Scrivener's mistake. Sicher v. Rambousek [Mo.] 91 S. W. 68. City of Jackson leased certain manufacturing buildings to Christy, including the heating plant, but Christy was to furnish such power and heat as was necessary to supply unleased buildings, providing it did not require more than one-half, city to pay for the amount used. Subsequently a new contract was substituted in which, through mistake of the scrivener, city was to pay for amount used in excess of one-half. Reformed. Bronk v. Standard Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 626, 105 N. W. 33. Plaintiffs sold land to the defendant, reserving all pine timber, excepting claiming under any of them with notice,[6] but not against innocent third persons.[7] The mistake, as a general rule, must be mutual,[8] not unilateral,[9] unless the other party be guilty of fraud or other unconscionable conduct,[10] and mutuality of the mistake relates to the time of the execution and does not mean that both parties must agree at the time of trial.[11] A mutual mistake in the basis of the contract is ground for reformation although the written instrument apparently expressed the intent of the parties at the time of execution.[12] The fact that a lease by a city is required to be in writing and must be authorized by action of the council does not bar relief by reformation where a mistake is made in reducing the contract authorized to writing.[13] While reformation for mistake of law is ordinarily de-such as would be necessary for a clearing for a residence. By mistake of the scrivener the plaintiffs were to clear all that was necessary for improvements without defining the nature of the improvements. Reformed. Jacobs v. Parodi [Fla.] 39 So. 833. Complainant traded his farm for a stock of goods of defendant's. By agreement, complainant was to retain possession of farm until Jan. 1st next, and to have rents of the current year. By mistake of scrivener this reservation was omitted from both the written contract and from the deed. Carrell v. McMurray, 136 F. 661.

Deed not including the intended land or all of it. Abbott v. Flint's Adm'r [Vt.] 62 A. 721; Penn v. Rodriguez [La.] 38 So. 955. Defendant agreed to convey to plaintiff the Keywood Place. The deed described the land as a certain portion of a certain government subdivision. This description did not include a small strip which both regarded as a part of the Keywood Place. Reformed. Perry v. Sadler [Ark.] 88 S. W. 832. Deed reformed at instance of grantee in possession where by mistake in transcribing six inches of another's land was included and six inches of grantor's left out. Brennan v. Thompson, 46 Misc 317, 94 N. Y. S. 684.

6. Sicher v. Rambousek [Mo.] 91 S. W. 68. Smith sold to plaintiff forty acres off the S. W. corner of his farm but the deed did not convey full forty acres. Remainder of the farm sold to defendant, who was told that forty acres had been sold to plaintiff. Plaintiff was also in actual possession of a portion of such land. Deed corrected so as to convey full forty acres. Thalheimer v. Lockhart [Ark.] 88 S. W. 591.

7. Austin v. Brown [Neb.] 106 N. W. 30. Graham agreed to replat and convey to Tillotson lots 19 & 20 according to new plat. Deeded lots 19 & 20 according to original plat. Lots 19 & 20 under new plat would include a part of lot 21 of the old plat. Lot 21 sold to innocent purchaser. Deed cannot be reformed. Boone v. Graham, 215 Ill. 511, 74 N. E. 559.

8. Huber Mfg. Co. v. Clandel [Kan.] 80 P. 960; Ranalli v. Zeppetelli, 94 N. Y. S. 561; Koch v. Streuter, 218 Ill. 546, 75 N. E. 1049. Plaintiff applied to the defendant for a certain kind of insurance policy which defendant undertook to furnish. By mistake a different kind of policy was delivered and accepted. Reformed. Gray v. Merchants Ins. Co., 113 Ill. App. 537. One Graham deeded a portion of two lots to Tillotson according to the original plat. Prior to this it was agreed that the property was to be replatted and Tillotson was to receive under the new plat. Same lot in the new plat would include more. Not mutual mistake. Boone v. Graham, 215 Ill. 511, 74 N. E. 559. Deed contained clause that it was not to be delivered until after the death of the grantor. Clause inserted by the scrivener but was read over to the grantor. No mutuality of mistake in inserting. Griffin v. Miller, 188 Mo. 327, 87 S. W. 455.

9. Plaintiff applied to defendant for insurance and gave a misleading description of the property to be insured. Defendant looked at and wrote up a policy on the wrong property. There was no mutual mistake. Boyce v. Hamburg-Bremen Fire Ins. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 589.

10. Guardian applied to court to lease a certain tract known as the "Wilson Tract," and decree so made. In the lease, through fraud, the tract was described as bounded by a certain road which left a strip unleased, the lessee believing that he was getting the whole tract. Reformed. Le Comte v. Freshwater, 56 W. Va. 336, 49 S. E. 238. City of Philadelphia furnished plaintiff with an estimate of the amount of filling necessary to grade a street. Plaintiff bid on that estimate at 49c per yard. City resurveyed and reduced estimate about one-third, which was concealed from plaintiff. Bid accepted at 49c per yard but was not to exceed $26,000, which was 49c per yard on the last estimate. Plaintiff did not discover this. Reformed so as to allow 49c per yard on original estimate. McManus v. Philadelphia, 211 Pa. 394, 60 A. 1001.

11. Matthews v. Whitethorn [Ill.] 77 N. E. 89.

12. A dissolving partnership had an accounting made by the bookkeeper which was erroneously done. One then agreed to purchase the other's interest and this accounting was used to determine how much was due. It being the intent to pay according to the actual interest, contract will be reformed to correct the error. House v. Wechsler, 104 App. Div. 124, 93 N. Y. S. 593.

13. Bronk v. Standard Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 626, 105 N. W. 33.

nied, yet it is proper if only one of the parties is mistaken as to the legal effect, and the other fraudulently conceals the truth[14] or knows that the other is mistaken.[15]

A court of equity will not, as a general rule, reform an instrument at the instance of a mere volunteer who is not a party to the instrument,[16] nor will it lend its aid where the party has an adequate remedy at law.[17]

Reformation will not be granted at the instance of one who was guilty of negligence, but the fact that one does not examine before signing is not such negligence if some reasonable excuse exists for not reading,[18] nor will it be granted to one guilty of laches, but where the action is brought within a year after the discovery of the fraud there is no laches.[19] Mere failure to avail one's self of the 14. Complainant executed a deed of his farm to defendant. It was agreed that the current rent should be reserved to the grantor, but such reservation was not inserted in the deed, the complainant believing it to be unnecessary. Defendant knew from advice of counsel the true legal effect of the deed but concealed it from grantor. Carrell v. McMurray, 136 F. 661. A warranty deed excepted the "rental for 1902." When deed was offered to the grantee it was expressly stated by the grantor that the estate was subject to an unsigned lease from Mar. 1st, 1902, to Nov. 1st, 1903, and that this lease was excepted. Grantee took deed to an attorney and was informed that it did not except this lease. On returning he accepted deed, saying that he would hold the grantor strictly to its terms. Reformed. Jones & Co. v. New England Mortg. Co., 38 Wash. 637, 80 P. 796.

Mistake as to the effect of a policy constitutes an exception where induced by representations of the other party, or even when such representations were made of the policy which was renewed by the one at bar. A policy may be reformed to cover the property intended to be insured though the agent stated it did in effect cover it. Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Boyett [Ark.] 90 S. W. 284.

Note: Equity will not relieve against a mere mistake of law (Hunt v. Rhodes, 1 Pet. [U. S.] 1, 7 Law. Ed. 27; 2 Columbia L. R. 420); but the courts in upholding this rule have been ready to limit it by exceptions (Stedwell v. Anderson, 21 Conn. 139, 142; 2 Pomeroy Eq. Jur. § 842), and have generally held that where an instrument fails to express the settled intention of the parties it will be reformed, though the failure was caused by a mistake as to the legal effect of the terms used (Pitcher v. Hennesy, 48 N. Y. 415; Bonbright v. Bonbright, 123 Iowa, 305; Jacobs v. Parodi [Fla.] 39 So. 833; 2 Pomeroy Specific Perf. § 234. Contra. Fowler v. Black, 136 Ill. 363). The court in the principal case bases its decision mainly on the fact that there was reliance upon the superior knowledge of the adverse party. Though this has been considered as a distinct ground for relief in a few cases, where, however, the misrepresentation was more active (Snell v. Ins. Co., 98 U. S. 85; 25 Law. Ed. 52; Lawrence Co. Bank v. Arndt, 69 Ark. 406) it is usually treated merely as an additional circumstance (Woodbury Sav. Bank v. Charter Oak Ins. Co., 31 Conn. 517; Griswald v. Hazard, 141 U. S. 260, 35 Law. Ed. 678).—From 6 Col. L. R. 362.

15. Civ. Code § 3399. Chapin v. Ross [Cal. App.] 84 P. 53. Sayles entered into a contract to sell Keeley 83 acres. A deed was prepared by Keeley which included some 10.87 acres. This deed was signed by Sayles in ignorance of the fact that it contained more than was agreed upon, which fact was fraudulently concealed from him. Reformed. Keeley v. Sayles, 217 Ill. 589, 75 N. E. 567. Both parties intended to convey only two-thirds of the land, but the plaintiff was induced by defendant to believe that only that amount was conveyed by the written instrument, which conveyed more than was intended. Reformed. Bourland v. Schulz [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 423, 87 S. W. 1167.

16. Husband entered into a contract which purported to relinquish all of his interest in wife's property. After her death a controversy arose between the husband and a niece of the wife in which the latter seeks to reform the contract so as to release his interest. Refused as the niece was a mere volunteer. McWorter v. O'Neal, 123 Ga. 247, 51 S. E. 288.

17. Petitioner contracted to do a certain amount of plumbing at a maximum cost of $11,000. Now seeks to have the contract reformed so as to read that defendant will agree to pay $11,000. Courts of law will so interpret it as it now stands. Dismissed. Flitcroft v. Allenhurst Club [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 82.

18. The deed was prepared by an attorney, who stated to the complainant that it conformed to the agreement of the parties. Acting on this statement complainant signed without reading. Reformed. Shields v. Mongollon Exploration Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 539. Where the party seeking to have an instrument reformed could not read or write the English language, his failure to have it read to him was not such negligence as to preclude him where the instrument was drawn up by his cousin in whom he reposed confidence. Nichols & Shepard Co. v. Berning [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 776.

19. The deed conveyed more than was intended by plaintiff, which mistake was means of knowledge does not bar relief from mistake provided there is no neglect of a legal duty.[20]

A right of action to reform a written instrument arises when the party seeking the relief first discovers the mistake,[21] and in Indiana if not brought to reform a deed within the time limited by statute for the recovery of real property, the right will be barred.[22] The contrary is held in Iowa where an action to reform a deed so as to convey only the amount intended to be conveyed is not an action to recover real estate;[23] but the statute of limitations does not operate against a grantee in possession to have his deed reformed to conform with the true intent of the parties.[24] Relief should not be made conditional on the doing of a useless thing.[25]

(§ 1) C. Instruments reformable.[26]—A deed of a sheriff for land sold under execution, void on its face, can not be reformed where the execution and proceedings thereunder contain the same defect,[27] nor will a deed of voluntary conveyance be reformed by a court of equity;[28] but a deed to the wife of a grantor through a third person to provide against any reversal which may occur in his business has such a meritorious consideration as between them and the heirs as will support a reformation of the deed on the ground of mistake.[29] Construction contracts may be reformed for fraud, accident, or mistake, though required to be in writing.[30]

§ 2. Procedure. A. Jurisdiction and form of proceeding.[31]—Reformation lies exclusively within equitable jurisdiction,[32] and the equitable jurisdiction of the due to fraud on the part of defendant. Action was commenced within a year after discovering the mistake. No laches. Keeley v. Sayles, 217 Ill. 589, 75 N. E. 567.

20. Benesh v. Travelers' Ins. Co. [N. D.] 103 N. W. 405.

21. Plaintiff deeded certain premises to defendant, which deed included more than was intended to be conveyed. The mistake was discovered about six months after the deed was executed. A cause of action to reform then accrued. Garst v. Brutsche [Iowa] 105 N. W. 452.

22. Plaintiff's deed to defendant conveyed more than either party intended, but the plaintiff delayed for sixteen years after discovering his mistake before seeking to have it reformed. Statute provided that actions to recover real property or actions founded on written contracts (Code §§ 3447, 3448) must be brought within ten years after right accrues. Garst v. Brutsche [Iowa] 105 N. W. 452.

23. By decree of court administrator was authorized to sell twelve acres. By the description in the deed he sold thirty-nine. The mistake in description was mutual. Five years later this action to reform the deed was commenced. Statute provided that no action shall be brought to recover lands sold by an administrator unless within five years. Case not within the statute. Pierce v. Vansell [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 554.

24. By mistake in the description of the land the deed did not convey the property intended. Plaintiff took possession. Action brought after period of limitation had expired if it operated at all. Did not run. Reformed. Brennan v. Thompson, 46 Misc. 317, 94 N. Y. S. 684.

25. In a suit to foreclose mortgage and reform it as to description of land, in which a mistake had been made, it appeared that the mortgagor owned only a fractional undivided interest in the land. Held error to deny reformation except on condition that mortgage as reformed should show mortgagor's real interest, since foreclosure could in any case transfer only such interest as he in fact owned. Jenkins v. Bailey [Ark.] 87 S. W. 1180.

26. See 4 C. L. 1267.

27. Plaintiff sued one Langdon and secured judgment against C. M. Langdon, doing business as C. M. Langdon Milling Co. Execution was issued against the C. M. Langdon Milling Co., property sold, and deed given under that name. Deed recited the facts. Records also show the defects. Not reformed. Langdon v. Morris [Ark.] 86 S. W. 672. "It is doubted whether a court of equity will under any circumstances * * * reform a deed of conveyance executed pursuant to a power conferred by statute and not pursuant to a voluntary agreement." Id.

28. A mother executed a deed of voluntary conveyance to her son. Through error of the scrivener the deed did not correctly describe the property. Henry v. Henry, 215 Ill. 205, 74 N. E. 126.

29. Crawley v. Crafton [Mo.] 91 S. W. 1027.

30. Plaintiff entered into contract with city of Philadelphia to do certain street grading. Through mistake or fraud on the part of the city he was induced to sign a contract which was not according to the bid, which he did not know at the time. McManus v. Philadelphia, 211 Pa. 394, 60 A. 1001.

31. See 4 C. L. 1267.

county and probate courts does not include the power to grant such relief.[33] Under statute in many states a contract can be reformed and enforced in the same action,[34] and defendant in such an action need not demand a reformation as a condition precedent to a prayer in his cross bill for reformation on the ground of mistake or fraud.[35]

(§ 2) B. Parties.[36]—A party who has or claims to have any interest which will be affected by the reformation is a necessary party[37] and should be admitted as a party on motion.[38] In an action to reform a lease with regard to a provision giving the lessee an option to purchase at a certain price, the lessee who has assigned the lease is a proper person to join as party defendant.[39]

(§ 2) C. Pleading and evidence.[40]—A bill for relief on the ground of mistake must state with precision the facts constituting the mistake,[41] but a bill which alleges that certain provisions of the true agreement were omitted when such agreement was reduced to writing, specifying what those provisions were, is sufficient.[42] An allegation of mistake in a petition to reform a written instrument is insufficient if it does not allege that the mistake was mutual.[43] Where a bill for reformation states the real agreement of the parties, and alleges a mistake not due to negligence of complainant in reducing it to writing, it is not demurrable.[44] Also a bill which alleges that a mistake occurred in drawing the contract and states wherein such mistake consists is not demurrable because it does not state that the mistake was mutual, the allegation of mistake being broad enough to admit evidence that it was mutual.[45] The bill must show that the mistake did not occur

32. Cannot bring premature suit at law on note asking reformation. Tautphoeus v. Harbor & S. Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n, 104 App. Div. 451, 93 N. Y. S. 916. Suit on a membership certificate, and defendant sets up a release from liability. In reply, complainant alleges that the release was obtained under duress. The action being at law the reply was insufficient. Miller v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 113 Ill. App. 481.

33. Defendant's intestate executed a warranty deed to plaintiff. A paramount title being asserted, plaintiff files claim against estate. Defendant answered contending that the intention of the parties was to release only the interest that the intestate might have. Probate court has no jurisdiction to reform. Rook v. Rook, 111 Ill. App. 398.

34. Chapin v. Ross [Cal. App.] 84 P. 53. Plaintiff brought an action to enforce a written contract. Defendant filed a cross-answer, asking to have the contract reformed to correct a mutual mistake. It was competent for the court to reform and enforce it in the same action. Huber Mfg. Co. v. Claudel [Kan.] 80 P. 960. A policy was issued upon property in a certain building, but by mistake or fraud it was described as being in another building. Loss having occurred, suit was commenced to recover, the petition setting up facts showing mistake or fraud. Can be reformed in same action. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Brannon [Tex.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 208, 89 S. W. 1057.

35. Nichols & Shepard Co. v. Berning [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 776.

36. See 4 C. L. 1268.

37. Action brought to remove a cloud on the title and to reform a deed. Wife claimed an interest. Complainants alleged that she released all interest by an antenuptial agreement. In reply she alleged fraud. A necessary party. Getzelman v. Blazier, 112 Ill. App. 648.

38. Getzelman v. Blazier, 112 Ill. App. 648.

39. Hackett v. View, 109 App. Div. 351, 95 N. Y. S. 675.

40. See 4 C. L. 1268.

41. Bill alleging that the note was given for interest supposed to be due on a certain mortgage, "but it was a mistake, as there was not due that amount of interest," insufficient as it does not state wherein the mistake occurred. Pearson v. Dancy [Ala.] 39 So. 474. Where the bill does not set out clearly the mistake complained of, it is good upon demurrer but subject to a motion to make more specific. Nichols & Shepard Co. v. Berning [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 776.

42. By agreement defendant was appointed agent of plaintiff to sell stocks with certain restrictions. In reducing the agreement to writing these restrictions were omitted. Bill alleges that certain provisions of the true agreement were omitted in reducing it to writing, specifying what they were. Sufficient. Woolf v. Barnes, 46 Misc. 169, 93 N. Y. S. 219.

43. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Brannon [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 614.

44. Jacobs v. Parodi [Fla.] 39 So. 833.

45. Koch v. Streuter, 218 Ill. 546, 75 N. E. 1049.

through the negligence of the party seeking relief.[46] In a suit to enforce a contract, a petition which alleges a mistake or fraud sufficiently is not defective because it fails to pray for a reformation, and evidence of mistake or fraud is admissible,[47] as a court may always reform a written instrument where the issues and proof justify such relief, although reformation is not specifically prayed for,[48] but if the issue tendered fails to direct the inquiry to the mutuality of the mistake, it is properly rejected.[49]

Where a written contract is set up as a defense to a complaint, it is competent to allege mistake and pray for reformation in the reply.[50]

Equity will reform a written instrument only on clear and convincing evidence.[51] A mere preponderance of evidence is not sufficient.[52] This, however,

46. Bill alleging that note sued upon was by mistake given for interest not then due, but not showing that complainant was not negligent, insufficient. Pearson v. Dancy [Ala.] 39 So. 474.

47. Plaintiff insured with defendant company certain goods, but by mistake or fraud they were described as being in another building. After loss, plaintiff brought action to recover, alleging mistake in the description of the building, but petition contained no prayer for reformation. Not defective. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Brannon [Tex.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 208, 89 S. W. 1057.

48. Plaintiff sought to recover certain lands and for trespass. Defendant in answer alleged that a certain deed executed by him to grantor of plaintiff by mistake included property in question, but no appropriate issue of mistake was submitted. Error to admit evidence of mistake. Gwyn-Harper Mfg. Co. v. Cloer [N. C.] 52 S. E. 305. May reform where cancellation is demanded. Hardy v. Ladow [Kan.] 83 P. 401.

49. Plaintiff brought suit to enforce specific performance of a deed, and defendant set up the defense that the land was included through mistake, but an issue tendered by defendant failed to direct the inquiry to the mutuality of the mistake, and was hence properly refused. Kelly v. Johnson, 135 N. C. 650, 47 S. E. 672.

50. Plaintiff delivered some cattle to defendant for shipment to Chicago, via St. Louis. Written contract omitted to state over what road the cattle were to be shipped. Plaintiff sues for damages because of shipment over a longer road which caused a delay. Defendant sets up the written contract and plaintiff alleges mistake in reply. Competent. Turner v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 391.

51. Gray v. Merchants Ins. Co., 113 Ill. App. 557; Abbott v. Flint's Adm'r [Vt.] 62 A. 721; Heffron v. Fogel [Wash.] 82 P. 1003. Evidence held not "clear and satisfying." Hackett v. View, 109 App. Div. 351, 95 N. Y. S. 675. Instruction that the evidence must be "clear, precise, and convincing," correct. Snyder v. Phillips, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 648. Proof of the mistake and of the real contract must be full and satisfactory, as the writing will be deemed to contain the agreement of the parties until the contrary is shown beyond reasonable controversy. Jacobs v. Parodi [Fla.] 39 So. 833.

Evidence sufficient: Plaintiff orally arranged with defendant to ship cattle to Chicago, via St. Louis, over latter's road, and was led to believe that the written contract so provided by an indorsement on the back, which, however, did not have that effect. When plaintiff applied to defendant to have it reformed, defendant answered by letter in which it admitted the mistake. Turner v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 391. Plaintiff sold defendant land, reserving all of the pine timber excepting such as would be necessary for a clearing about the residence. By mistake of the scrivener complainant was to clear all that was necessary for improvements without defining what improvements. Jacobs v. Parodi [Fla.] 39 So. 833. One Coblentz executed a bond to deed a certain forty acres to one Perry. By mistake, Perry took possession of adjoining forty. When mistake was discovered Coblentz told him that it would be all right, that he would execute a deed to piece in his possession. Deed executed as called for by the bond. Evidence sufficient to show that parties agreed to deed land in possession of Perry. Black v. Baskins [Ark.] 87 S. W. 647. Testimony of persons who knew contents of title bond that it ran to widow and heirs, and recitals in deed to same effect held sufficient as against prima facie case made by record that it ran to widow alone, so as to warrant reformation of administrator's deed to make it run to widow and heirs. Franklin v. Cunningham, 187 Mo. 184, 86 S. W. 79.

A deed was executed which contained a provision that it should not be delivered until after death of the grantor. Clause was inserted by scrivener but was read by grantor. Not sufficient evidence that mistake was mutual. Griffin v. Miller, 188 Mo. 327, 87 S. W. 455. Plaintiff's testator conveyed to defendant his interest in a piece of land which had been sold in execution, and claims that defendant agreed to redeem and to reconvey 160 acres, which provision was omitted by mistake from the deed. Evidence contradictory. Clutter v. Strange [Wash.] 82 P. 1028. Reformation of compensation clause of land broker's contract refused because proof of alleged mis-does not mean that the evidence must be so clear and convincing as to leave no doubt in the minds of the jurors, it is said to be sufficient if there be evidence to satisfy an unprejudiced mind beyond a reasonable doubt.[53] In a suit for reformation of a promissory note, where it is claimed wrong dates have been inserted for maturity of different instalments, it is not necessary to show the mistake by other evidence than that afforded by the note itself if an inspection of the note clearly establishes that a mistake has been made.[54]

Where a written instrument imposes an obligation upon the party seeking to reform, he must show by a fair preponderance of evidence that he has complied with the terms,[55] but where a deed contains, through mistake, more than was intended, the grantor need not offer to put grantee in statu quo before seeking to reform it.[56] A statement by the agent that the policy was all right is admissible as bearing upon the question of plaintiff's negligence in not reading the policy.[57] Extrinsic evidence concerning the subject matter, the relations of the parties, and the facts and circumstances at the time of execution of the instrument is admissible to show the real agreement.[58]

(§ 2) D. Trial and judgment.[59]—The question whether there was a mutual mistake is one for the court or jury to be determined on the weight of the testimony.[60] Injunction may issue ancillary to a bill to reform.[61] take of scrivener was not "clear and satisfactory." Wilcox v. Swecker [Iowa] 105 N. W. 392.

Where a deed by mistake was made to run to a widow alone, instead of to the widow and legal heirs of the purchaser, the effect of the reformation of the deed is to vest in all the grantees, as of the date of the deed, an equal undivided interest as tenants in common.[62] Where one brings an action to reform a written instrument against one defendant, and judgment is rendered against him, the judgment is conclusive against his right to maintain an action for the same relief against one who subsequently acquires a right under the defendant.[63]

REFORMATORIES; REGISTERS OF DEEDS; REGISTRATION; REHEARING; REJOINDERS, see latest topical index.

52. Complainant sold to defendant the timber on a vast tract of land. The contract was originally oral, but was reduced to writing. Complainant seeks to reform written contract by inserting clause permitting him to clear 320 acres per year if not cut by defendant after twelve months' notice. Two reliable witnesses on each side. Evidence insufficient to reform. Goerke v. Rodgers [Ark.] 86 S. W. 837.

53. Snyder v. Phillips, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 648.

54. Reep v. Lyman, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 113.

55. A deed containing a defective description was executed in consideration of $1, and the maintenance during life of grantor and his wife will not be reformed until grantee has shown that he has complied with its terms. Williams v. Husky [Mo.] 90 S. W. 425.

56. By mistake a deed contained more than was intended, a consideration being paid for the correct amount. Not necessary to offer to put the grantee in statu quo before seeking reformation. Keeley v. Sayles, 217 Ill. 589, 75 N. E. 567.

57. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Brannon [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 614.

58. Jacobs v. Parodi [Fla.] 39 So. 833. Parol evidence is competent to show mutual mistake of fact. Gray v. Merchants Ins. Co., 113 Ill. App. 537. Parol evidence is admissible to prove the real contract of the parties in an action to reform a written contract. Nichols & Shepard Co. v. Berning [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 776.

59. See 4 C. L. 1270.

60. Not necessary that the evidence of plaintiff and defendant agree. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Brannon [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 614.

61. Plaintiff placed some stocks in defendants' hands for sale, agreeing that if they put the corporation on a sound basis within five years they were to have 65% of the unsold stock then remaining, otherwise to have no compensation. Defendants fraudulently induced plaintiff to sign a written instrument representing that it conformed to the oral contract, but which gave a much larger compensation. Temporary injunction granted restraining sale of stock pending

RELEASES.

This topic includes only formal releases, excluding settlements and the effect of a release as an accord and satisfaction.[64]

§ 1. Nature, form, and requisites.[65]—A release is the discharging of a right of action which one person has against another.[66] It must be executed[67] and be supported by legal and sufficient consideration.[68]

§ 2. Parties to release.[69]—A release may be executed by a person having capacity to contract or his agent,[70] but the release of a demand by a stranger is no defense to an action.[71] Releases executed by releasor in his own proper person in one name and accepted as such operate upon transactions conducted by releasor under a different name.[72]

§ 3. Interpretation, construction, and effect.[73]—Releases absolute and unequivocal in their terms must be construed according to the language which the parties have seen fit to use,[74] and general words are to be limited and restrained to the particular words in the recital.[75] A release of damage incident to certain acts suit for reformation and other relief. Woolf v. Barnes, 104 App. Div. 620, 93 N. Y. S. 961.

62. Franklin v. Cunningham, 187 Mo. 184, 86 S. W. 79.

63. Plaintiffs brought suit against their grantee and one Anderson, a subsequent grantee, to correct the description in the deed, and judgment was rendered for the defendants. Now they seek to maintain an action for the same relief against Anderson's subsequent grantee. Judgment conclusive. William v. Husky [Mo.] 90 S. W. 425.

64. See Accord and Satisfaction, 5 C. L. 14.

65. See 4 C. L. 1270.

66. A cause of action already accrued, released by a subsequent written contract. Fountain v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 393.

67. What is execution. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Demsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 961, 89 S. W. 786.

68. Fountain v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 393. Release of breach of previous contract to furnish cars held without consideration. Id.

69. See 4 C. L. 1271.

70. The agent's name appeared in the body of the instrument, but it was signed by the agent in his representative capacity. Hicks v. Kenan, 139 N. C. 337, 51 S. E. 941.

71. Flynn v. Butler [Mass.] 75 N. E. 730. A landlord executed a release which his tenants sought to avail themselves of. Hirschfield v. Alsberg, 93 N. Y. S. 617.

72. Releasor executed general releases under a fictitious name, which were held to include transactions conducted by him under his own name, because his rights attached to his personality and not to his name. Klopot v. Metropolitan Stock Exch., 188 Mass. 335, 74 N. E. 596.

73. See 4 C. L. 1271. Release reciting "given under our hands and seals" signed by one of two parties held release of both parties. Rockwell v. Capital Traction Co., 25 App. D. C. 98.

74. General releases held to include demands not contemplated by the parties. Klopot v. Metropolitan Stock Exch., 188 Mass. 335, 74 N. E. 596.

75. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Dashiell, 198 U. S. 521, 49 Law. Ed. 1150. A general release construed. Kelly v. Pioneer Press Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 330.

Estoppel: A release by a legatee does not estop releasor from participating in property not covered by the will. In re St. John, 104 App. Div. 622, 93 N. Y. S. 840. Release of damages held to cover damage for location of sewerage works as well as for diversion of stream. Evans v. Boston [Mass.] 76 N. E. 905.

Note: Plaintiff was injured in a railway accident, and for thirty dollars signed a paper which recited certain specific injuries, and then released the defendant in general terms from "all claims, demands, damages and liabilities, of any and every kind or character whatsoever, for or on account of the injuries sustained * * * in the manner or upon the occasion aforesaid, and arising or accruing, or hereafter arising or accruing in any way therefrom." The plaintiff now sues for injuries subsequently developing and unknown at the time of the release. Held the general terms in the release are limited to the specific injuries in the recital, because the plaintiff being ignorant of the injuries cannot be said to have intended to release them. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Dashiell, 198 U. S. 521, 49 Law. Ed. 1150. The principle is well settled that general words in a release are limited applies only to injury then contemplated.[76] However, a release reserving demands cannot be set up in bar to a subsequent action brought thereon,[77] nor is the release of a stranger a defense.[78] Where releasor had two accounts, one in his own name and one in an assumed name, a general release in the assumed name released both.[79] For a release of one joint tort feasor to enure to the others, satisfaction must be intended and received as in full.[80] So it has been held that when tort feasors are not jointly liable the release of part does not release all.[81] By statute in some jurisdictions one joint debtor may be released without releasing the others.[82]

§ 4. Defenses to, or avoidance of, releases.[83]—Like all other contracts a release is invalid if procured by fraud[84] or made under mistake,[85] or where releasor was incompetent to contract;[86] but misrepresentation as to collateral facts will not avoid a release in an action at law,[87] nor will fraud regarding the value of the consideration,[88] and a person failing to use ordinary care in ascertaining the character of a release is bound thereby,[89] as when the releasee acted in good faith

by the specifications of the recital (2 Rolle Ab. 409; Thorpe v. Thorpe, 1 Ld. Raym. 235; Jackson v. Stackhouse, 1 Cowen [N. Y.] 122; Railroad v. Artist, 60 F. 365), as the intention is taken to be to release only the claims recited (Lumley v. Railway Co. 76 F. 66). But it would seem a release as to injuries may reserve rights as to claims not mentioned or yet accrued. Bliss v. Railway Co., 160 Mass. 447, 39 Am. St. Rep. 504. Under a general release containing no specific recital, the one releasing is held to take "the chances of future development" (Railway Co. v. McCarty, 94 Tex. 298, 86 Am. St. Rep. 854, 53 L. R. A. 507), though such a release may be set aside in equity for fraud or mistake (Blair v. Railway Co., 89 Mo. 383). The principal case accords with the weight of authority, but see for an opposite holding on a similar release, Quebe v. Railway Co., 98 Tex. 6, 81 S. W. 20.—5 Columbia L. R. 552.

76. A deed granting land to a railroad contained a release "from all inconvenience and damage, incident to the construction and use of said railroad." Improvements upon the railroad necessitated a change of grade of the adjacent highway. Perrine v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [N. J. Law] 61 A. 87.

77. A release of all demands "except forest timber which may have been damaged." Morgan v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 111 Mo. App. 721, 86 S. W. 590.

78. A landlord executed a release which his tenants sought to avail themselves of. Hirschfield v. Alsberg, 93 N. Y. S. 617.

79. Klopot v. Metropolitan Stock Exch., 188 Mass. 335, 74 N. E. 596.

80. Bailey v. Delta Elec. Light, Power & Mfg. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 354. The release of one joint tort feasor, with a reservation of the right to sue the other, does not release the joint feasor. Hirschfield v. Alberg, 93 N. Y. S. 617.

81. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Lovelady [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 176, 87 S. W. 710. Release of one guilty of distinct acts of negligence does not operate as release under joint tort feasor rule. Chapman v. Pittsburg R. Co., 140 F. 784.

82. Symmes v. Cauble [S. C.] 51 S. E. 862.

83. See 4 C. L. 1273.

84. Good faith on the part of the releasee and full understanding of his rights by the releasor are essential. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Chiles [Miss.] 38 So. 498. Misrepresentations must be intentionally and knowingly false. Kelly v. Pioneer Press Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 330. Evidence held insufficient to show fraud in promising job for life to releasor. Southwestern Tel. & T. Co. v. James [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 654. Release signed under representation that it was a receipt for a small gratuity held invalid. Austin v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 450. Release of life insurance policy by widow for nominal consideration on claim that policy was void, held fraudulent. Rauen v. Prudential Ins. Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 198. False statements of physician employed by releasee. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Huyett [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 124, 89 S. W. 1118. A release of life insurance policies obtained from a sick woman by misrepresentation. Clark v. Lehigh Val. R. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 609.

85. A railroad employee, believing he was but slightly injured, when in fact he was seriously injured, signed a release, relying upon the statement of releasee's physician. Great Northern R. Co. v. Fowler [C. C. A.] 136 F. 118; Great Northern R. Co. v. Fowler [C. C. A.] 136 F. 118.

86. Evidence held to sustain finding that releasor was incompetent. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Green [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 380. And see Incompetency, 5 C. L. 1775.

87. Miller v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 113 Ill. App. 481.

88. Mattoon Gas Light & Coke Co. v. Dolan, 111 Ill. App. 333.

89. Release signed by a person able to read. Hartley v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 116 Ill. App. 277. Release sought to be avoided without excuse for not reading without any showing of mental incapacity, disability, or misreading. Hoerger v. Citizens' St. R. Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 328; Hartley v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 116 Ill. App. 277. Failure to request that a release be read before signing held to prevent avoidance for misrepresentation as to nature of instrument. Hicks v. Harbison-Walker Co., 212 Pa. 437, 61 A. 958.

and parted with consideration while the releasor clothed a person committing fraud with apparent authority to act,[90] and one seeking to repudiate a release for fraud must promptly disavow it.[91] The decisions are in hopeless conflict as to whether the return of the consideration for a release is necessary before action brought to avoid a release.[92] Tender need not be made of indebtedness incurred but not yet paid by releasee, amount not known.[93]

§ 5. Pleading, proof, and practice.[94]—Fraud is ordinarily pleaded by replication to the plea of release[95] which must allege rescission,[96] and should conclude with a verification rather than to the country.[97] Fraud may be proved under plea non est factum.[98]

The burden of proof is upon one claiming that a release was obtained by fraud or without consideration.[99] The equitable rule of evidence in reforming or abrogating instruments does not apply in a court of law when the execution of a release under seal is admitted,[1] and testimony to contradict, vary, or add to a written release is incompetent.[2] The evidence conflicting, whether a release was legally obtained, is a question of fact for the jury,[3] but where there is no evidence, the question should not be submitted to the jury.[4] What constitutes fraud or mistake, as well as the admissibility[5] and sufficiency of evidence,[6] are more fully treated elsewhere.[7]

RELIEF FUNDS AND ASSOCIATIONS, see latest topical index.

90. Releasor's attorney fraudulently procured a release, which was accepted by releasee in good faith. Belheumer v. Thomas [Vt.] 62 A. 719.

91. What is ratification: Ratification of a release as a matter of law is not shown by the appropriation of the consideration therefor when releasor labored under a mistake. Rockwell v. Capital Traction Co., 25 App. D. C. 98. Use of a small part of the consideration for a release procured by fraud does not constitute ratification where repudiation and tender were made as soon as releasor was apprised of his rights. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Helm [Ky.] 89 S. W. 709.

92. Not necessary. Rockwell v. Capital Traction Co., 25 App. D. C. 98; Zuelly v. Casper [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 646. Contra. Savory v. North East Borough, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 1. Must tender consideration in order to repudiate release. Harrison v. Alabama Midland R. Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 394. Evidence held not sufficient to warrant an instruction that there could be no recovery without a return or offer to return the money paid for a release. Clark v. Lehigh Val. R. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 609. Money given as present. Release written over receipt. Need not tender. Ingram v. Covington, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 541. Tender need not include interest. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Helm [Ky.] 89 S. W. 709. Compensation for board and nursing furnished by employer of his own motion before release and not included in stated consideration need not be tendered. Id. Where the stated consideration in the release did not include certain items, and releasee on the repudiation of the release did not ask that it be returned, evidence as to such items is inadmissible. Id.

93. Glisson v. Paducah Ry. & Light Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 965, 87 S. W. 305.

94. See 4 C. L. 1274.

95. Mistake avoiding a release cannot be urged by replication in an action at law. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Jennings, 114 Ill. App. 622.

96. Demurrer to a replication sustained. Hoerger v. Citizens' St. R. Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 328.

97. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Jennings, 114 Ill. App. 622.

98. Michigan Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Vierra, 116 Ill. App. 476.

99. St. Louis & Belleville Elec. R. Co. v. Erlinger, 112 Ill. App. 506; Davis v. Weatherly, 119 Ill. App. 238.

1. Clark v. Lehigh Val. R. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 609.

2. Instrument held a release and not a mere receipt. Lanham v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 772, 86 S. W. 680. Assignment of claim with power to release cannot operate as a release, nor can it be shown by parol to be one. Flynn v. Butler [Mass.] 75 N. E. 730.

3. Spring Valley Coal Co. v. Buzis, 115 Ill. App. 196; Hot Springs R. Co. v. McMillan [Ark.] 88 S. W. 846; Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Chiles [Miss.] 38 So. 498; Sargent Co. v. Baublis, 215 Ill. 428, 74 N. E. 455; Glisson v. Paducah R. & Light Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 965, 87 S. W. 305; Sargent Co. v. Baublis, 215 Ill. 428, 74 N. E. 455; Clark v. Lehigh Val. R. Co., 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 609; Rockwell v. Capital Traction Co., 25 App. D. C. 98. Evidence held to sustain finding of fraud. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Helm [Ky.] 89 S. W. 709; Erickson v. Northwest Paper Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 291.

4. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Demsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 961, 89 S. W. 786.

5. Acts and declarations of agent procur-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETIES.

§ 1. Organization as a corporation, and status of society.[8]—Under a statute providing that land conveyed to religious societies shall vest in the trustees thereof, the wardens and vestry of a parish are a body corporate;[9] but the statutes of New York, authorizing trusts of real and personal estate for the benefit of the Shaker society and vesting the title of all its property in the trustees, do not make that society a religious corporation.[10] Laws permitting the incorporation of religious associations are an implied part of the association agreement and members impliedly agree that it may avail itself of such law at any future time.[11] If the steps leading up to such incorporation conform to the statute, the association becomes thereby incorporated, whether the subsequent administration of the corporation be regular or not, and whether the by-laws adopted be reasonable or unreasonable;[12] nor is it necessary that such corporation should bear the same name as the original association, the incorporators being at liberty to choose such appropriate name as seems best to them.[13] A minority faction of such association, which continues to meet in the church building, proceeding regularly and without fraud, may incorporate and hold possession of the property of the association.[14] Notice of intention to submit the question of amendment of the charter of a church is necessary to the validity of such action at any meeting.[15]

§ 2. Membership and meetings.[16]—Every member of a voluntary religious society has an absolute right to have its property controlled and administered according to its organic plan and to participate in its affairs.[17] The court will not pass upon the membership or spiritual status of persons belonging or claiming to belong to religious societies.[18] A meeting held at the regular time and ing release before and after the release, held admissible. Glisson v. Paducah R. & Light Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 965, 87 S. W. 305. Evidence of plaintiff's attorney that he did not know of release, inadmissible. Wojtylak v. Kansas & T. Coal Co., 188 Mo. 260, 87 S. W. 506. Evidence that recitals of consideration were not true admissible. Proof of custom to pay wages of disabled employe, such wages being part of consideration stated. Hot Springs R. Co. v. McMillan [Ark.] 88 S. W. 846.

6. Evidence held to show that release was signed under belief that it was receipt for small gratuity. Austin v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 450. Evidence held to show that release of damage was procured by false statement that it was a receipt for a small payment for expenses of delay. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Jennings, 217 Ill. 494, 75 N. E. 560.

7. See Fraud and Undue Influence, 5 C. L. 1541; Mistake, etc., 6 C. L. 678.

8. See 4 C. L. 1275.

9. Code, § 3665. St. James Parish v. Bagley, 138 N. C. 384, 50 S. E. 841.

10. Laws 1839, p. 146, c. 174; Laws 1849, p. 527, c. 373; Laws 1852, p. 275, c. 203. Hence an order of the supreme court is not necessary to render a conveyance of its real estate valid. Feiner v. Reiss, 98 App. Div. 40, 90 N. Y. S. 568.

11, 12. Spiritual & Philosophical Temple v. Vincent [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1026.

13. Rev. St. 1898, § 1991. Spiritual & Philosophical Temple v. Vincent [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1026.

14. A meeting held at the regular time and at the regular church edifice, of which due public notice was given and which all members were free to attend, was a "stated" meeting at which the required notice of incorporation could be given under Rev. St. 1898, § 1990. Spiritual & Philosophical Temple v. Vincent [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1026.

15. Where the charter of a church could be amended only by a vote of two-thirds of the male members thereof, such amendment submitted without any previous notice or debate and not voted upon in the usual parliamentary manner, although agreed to by the required two-thirds and subsequently signed by more than that number, could not be sustained. African M. E. Union Church, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 193.

16. See 4 C. L. 1275.

17. Spiritual & Philosophical Temple v. Vincent [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1026.

18. Bonacum v. Murphy [Neb.] 104 N. W. 180.

place, which was publicly called and which every member was free to attend, was a "stated" meeting at which the required notice of incorporation could be given.[19]

§ 3. Ministers.[20]—The pastor of a church is a factor in the promotion of the religious purposes thereof,[21] and the church is bound to pay his salary.[22] By continued services, payment of salary and the common understanding of all parties, one may, without formal call or installation, become pastor of a church congregational in polity and having authority to employ its own pastor.[23] In the absence of any law of a religious denomination regulating the appointment and dismissal of priests, the board of trustees of a religious society incorporated under the statutes of a state, which is vested by the by-laws with the control and direction of the association and church, has the power of appointing or dismissing a priest.[24]

§ 4. Powers and liabilities of society in general.[25]—It is an inherent right of a church society, which is congregational in polity, to manage its own affairs.[26] Where the constitution of a religious corporation, adopted by the members by unanimous consent, provided for a determination of all controversies by a majority vote, the fact that it also provided that the management of its affairs should be by "the congregation as a whole" did not require the assent of every member to every vote,[27] but that phrase referred to action at a meeting which all the members were entitled and had an opportunity to attend.[28] Although in some states the doctrine prevails that a gift to a voluntary charitable or religious society is a gift in trust for the uses and purposes of such society,[29] yet it was held that a bequest of funds in New York to acquire lands and erect a church within a diocese located in Utah and Idaho, no such corporation as the one named as beneficiary existing, was void in the absence of any showing that such doctrine prevailed in Utah and Idaho, and under the presumption that the common-law doctrine was in force.[30]

§ 5. Property and funds.[31]—When the members of a religious congregation divide into factions and separate, the title to the property of the congregation will remain in that division which adheres to the tenets and doctrines originally taught by the congregation to whose use the property was originally dedicated.[32]

19. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 1990. Spiritual & Philosophical Temple v. Vincent [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1026.

20. See 4 C. L. 1276.

21. Kelsey v. Jackson, 123 Ga. 113, 50 S. E. 951.

22. If the divine law does not prompt the members to pay such a debt, human law will enforce it. Kelsey v. Jackson, 123 Ga. 113, 50 S. E. 951.

23. A German Evangelical Lutheran church. Duessel v. Proch [Conn.] 62 A. 152.

24. Papaliou v. Manusos, 113 Ill. App. 316.

25. See 4 C. L. 1276.

26. It can affiliate itself with any synod or council of its denomination and change its affiliation from time to time by a majority vote of its members. Duessel v. Proch [Conn.] 62 A. 152, citing Lutheran Congregation v. St. Michael's Evangelical Church, 48 Pa. 20.

27, 28. Duessel v. Proch [Conn.] 62 A. 152.

29. A conveyance of land to the trustees of an unincorporated religious society is not void for want of a grantee, it being in the nature of a charitable trust and all the members of the congregation being beneficiaries. Christian Church of Sand Creek v. Church of Christ of Sand Creek, 219 Ill. 503, 76 N. E. 703. Such property, upon the incorporation of the society, vests in the corporation (Id.) especially where the law at the time of the organization of the society makes provision for the incorporation of such voluntary associations (Spiritual & Philosophical Temple v. Vincent [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1026). Where such a society had had uninterrupted possession and use of land for at least 30 years under a lost deed, it was presumed, since the society was incapable of taking title in itself, that the title was legally conveyed to trustees for its benefit. Penny v. Central Coal & Coke Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 769.

30. The bequest could not be saved by Laws 1893, p. 1748, c. 701, authorizing the organization of a corporation in such cases, nor by the amendment of 1901 which was enacted after testatrix's death, nor by the authority of courts to administer a gift so as most effectually to accomplish the donor's will when a literal compliance is impracticable, for that can be done only after the lapse of 25 years from the time of the gift. Mount v. Tuttle [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 873.

31. See 4 C. L. 1276.

32. Christian Church of Sand Creek v.

Even a minority faction of a voluntary religious society, which continues to meet in the regular church edifice, can, by proceeding regularly and without fraud, under a statute providing for incorporation of such bodies, organize as a corporation and hold the property of the association as against a seceding majority faction that meets at a private residence.[33] When land was conveyed to trustees of a certain Lutheran church and to their successors and assigns, "to them and their own proper use and behoof," such church being congregational and having power to manage its own affairs, the use of such property by a corporation subsequently organized from the old congregation, of the same ecclesiastical character, was lawful;[34] and a bill of complaint based on such use of the property was properly dismissed, it not presenting a case of the use of a trust estate for purposes foreign to the trust.[35] A voluntary, unincorporated religious society may by statute obtain the corporate power to have property held by trustees in perpetual succession.[36] It having ever been the policy of a state to refrain from taxing property held for religious and charitable purposes, a legislative intent to impose such taxes will not be presumed in the absence of language clearly expressing it.[37]

§ 6. Jurisdiction of courts.[38]—The right of civil courts to interfere in ecclesiastical matters exists only where there are conflicting claims to church property or funds, or the use of them,[39] or where civil rights are involved.[40]

§ 7. Actions by or against society or members.[41]—In order that a church may sue or be sued as an entity it must either be incorporated or must file the certificate required by law;[42] but where it has not been incorporated and has not filed such certificate, a proceeding to subject its trust property to a debt for which the church is liable may be brought against the trustees who are the only necessary

Church of Christ of Sand Creek, 219 Ill. 503, 76 N. E. 703.

33. Rev. St. 1898, § 1990, provides for such incorporation. Spiritual & Philosophical Temple v. Vincent [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1026.

34, 35. Duessel v. Proch [Conn.] 62 A. 152.

36. Laws 1839, p. 246, c. 174; Laws 1849, p. 527, c. 373; Laws 1852, p. 275, c. 203, authorize trusts of real and personal estate for the benefit of the Shaker society and vest in the trustees thereof the legal title to all its property. Feiner v. Reiss, 98 App. Div. 40, 90 N. Y. S. 568. Such statutes vest the legal title in the trustees, and the "Covenant" of the society vests the fee of all lands in the trustees, expressly surrendering any rights or claim of the members thereto. Id. A conveyance of real estate by the society approved by the ministry and elders as required by the "Covenant" is valid without all the members joining. Id. Where it has been the uniform practice of the society on a sale of real estate to manifest such approval verbally, in informal consultation among its trustees, ministry and elders, such approval is sufficient. Id. A quitclaim deed executed by the trustees and approved by the ministry and elders in writing conveyed a marketable title. Id.

37. A mortgage held for the use of a Catholic congregation "solely for the same objects of religion and purely public charity" is not subject to the personal property tax imposed in Pennsylvania by Act June 8, 1891 (P. L. 229). Mattern v. Canevin [Pa.] 63 A. 131.

38. See 4 C. L. 1276.

39. The courts will not review the process or proceedings of church tribunals to decide whether they are regular or within their ecclesiastical jurisdiction, nor attempt to decide upon the membership or spiritual status of persons belonging or claiming to belong to religious societies. Bonacum v. Murphy [Neb.] 104 N. W. 180, reversing 98 N. W. 1030. The courts have no concern with questions of church doctrines or policies. All such questions must be left to the determination of the congregation. Christian Church of Sand Creek v. Church of Christ of Sand Creek, 219 Ill. 503, 76 N. E. 703. But where the members of a religious congregation divide into factions, organize separate corporations, and both claim ownership of the church property, the courts can pass upon the differences between the factions so far as necessary to determine property rights. Id.

40. Every participant in a voluntary religious organization has the absolute right, which the courts will protect, to have its property controlled and administered according to its organic plan and to participate in its affairs in harmony therewith. Spiritual & Philosophical Temple v. Vincent [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1026. Where the pleadings disclose no question of property or civil rights at issue, but only questions of church discipline, it will be dismissed. Bonacum v. Murphy [Neb.] 104 N. W. 180, reversing 98 N. W. 1030.

41. See 4 C. L. 1277.

42. It may be incorporated under § 2351, or file the certificate under § 2355, Civil Code. Kelsey v. Jackson, 123 Ga. 113, 50 S. E. 951.

parties.[43] Where an unincorporated religious society consisted of many members, its trustees were entitled to sue for an injury to its freehold without joining all the members of the congregation.[44] Where a church corporation had authority to depose its pastor by a majority vote, being congregational in its character and independent of any compulsory affiliation with any superior body, a pastor so deposed could not maintain an equitable action to prevent the use of the church building by any other pastor than himself, and to secure its use for services conducted by himself.[45] An allegation in a complaint in an action against church trustees that the contract sued on had been executed by a committee appointed for that purpose, on behalf of the church, was not supported by proof of subsequent ratification of the contract instead of prior authorization.[46]

REMAINDERS; REMEDY AT LAW; REMITTITUR, see latest topical index.

REMOVAL OF CAUSES.

While the rule that a cause to be removable from state to Federal court must be within the jurisdiction of the Federal courts is here treated, the nature and extent of that jurisdiction pertains to another topic.[47]

§ 1. Right to remove from state to Federal court.[48]—No civil suit or criminal proceeding in a state court can be removed into a Federal court unless warrant therefor be found in some act of congress.[49] The right of removal is given wholly to the defendant without any reference to the plaintiff or his wishes.[50] A nonresident heir, given leave to intervene in the matter of a contested claim, does not, as against an administrator pro tem. representing the estate, become such a party to the suit as to give him the right to remove the cause to the Federal court.[51]

§ 2. What is a "suit" or "action" so removable.[52]—To be removable, suits must be within the original jurisdiction of the circuit court.[53] Where the statutes of a state provide that one may proceed against a nonresident of the state on a simple contract debt or claim for unliquidated damages, by suing out an attachment which gives him a lien from the time of levy, and then filing a bill in equity to establish the claim and enforce the lien, such a suit is one to enforce a lien previously acquired, within the jurisdiction of a Federal court and removable for

43. Civil Code 1895, § 3202. Debt due to pastor for his salary. The church edifice and site may be subjected to the payment of such debt under Civ. Code 1895, § 2361. Kelsay v. Jackson, 123 Ga. 113, 50 S. E. 951.

44. Under Sand. & H. Dig. Ark. § 5632, providing for suits by one or more for the benefit of all in certain cases. Penny v. Central Coal & Coke Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 769.

45. Duessel v. Proch [Conn.] 62 A. 152.

46. Ashley v. Henderson [Ind.] 76 N. E. 985.

47. See Jurisdiction, 6 C. L. 267.

48. See 4 C. L. 1278.

49. Commonwealth of Kentucky v. Powers, 26 S. Ct. 387.

50. Morris v. Clark Const. Co., 140 F. 756.

51. Mayer v. Schneider, 112 Ill. App. 628.

52. See 4 C. L. 1278.

53. Cochran v. Montgomery County, 199 U. S. 260, 50 Law. Ed. —.

diversity of citizenship.[54] A proceeding to condemn lands for a railroad right of way under the South Dakota statutes is a civil suit within the meaning of the Federal judiciary act,[55] and is a removable cause, although the proceeding is an exercise by the state of its sovereign right of eminent domain and can be maintained only as authorized by the laws of the state, and could not in the first instance be brought in the Federal court;[56] but an application for mandamus, not in aid of a jurisdiction previously acquired, is not a suit "of a civil nature at law or in equity" within the meaning of the removal act[57] and an action begun in what was supposed to be a legally constituted court, but was subsequently determined to have no legal existence, is not such a "suit" or "action" as can be removed.[58]

§ 3. Nature of controversy or subject-matter, and existence of Federal question.[59]—A Federal question which will warrant the removal of a case must be one of law and not of fact.[60] A case cannot be removed as one arising under the constitution or laws or treaties of the United States unless such fact appears from plaintiff's statement of his claim,[61] but for the purpose of removal the Federal court will take judicial notice that a defendant is a corporation created by a law of the United States, even though such fact does not appear in plaintiff's declaration.[62] A cause cannot be removed on the ground that it is a suit arising under the constitution or laws of the United States where the cause of action is joint and not separable, as for a joint tort, except on a petition in which all the defendants join.[63] Where the daughter of a deceased homestead settler brings suit to establish her title under the operation of the state laws as against the widow, to whom the patent has been issued under the provisions of the Federal statutes, a Federal question is involved.[64]

§ 4. Diversity of citizenship and alienage of party.[65]—When it is sought to remove a case on account of diverse citizenship, it is necessary only to show that fact and that the jurisdictional amount is involved in order to secure a removal,[66] although neither party is a citizen or resident of the state where the action is brought.[67] The state court can only determine as matter of law whether, on the face of the record, a right to removal is shown; if so, its jurisdiction ends and it can proceed no further.[68] The allegations of the petition alone can be looked

54. Code W. Va. 1899, c. 106. Craddock v. Fulton, 140 F. 426.

55. Act Mar. 3, 1887, c. 373, § 1, 24 Stat. 552; Act Aug. 13, 1888, c. 866, § 1, 25 Stat. 433 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 508]. South Dakota Cent. R. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 578.

56. Notwithstanding the right is one that appertains to sovereignty, yet, when the sovereign power attaches conditions to its exercise, the inquiry whether the conditions have been observed is a proper matter for judicial cognizance and, if that inquiry takes the form of a proceeding before the courts between the parties, there is a controversy which is subject to the ordinary incidents of a civil suit, and its determination derogates in no respect from the sovereignty of the state. South Dakota Cent. R. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 578.

57. Act Aug. 13, 1888, c. 866, § 2, 25 Stat. 434 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 509]. Western Union Tel. Co. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 100.

58. Hence the Federal court could neither entertain the case nor remand it, but struck it from the docket. Crowley v. Southern R. Co., 139 F. 851. Delay on the part of defendants in making objection in the Federal court could not operate as a waiver. Id.

59. See 4 C. L. 1278. See, also, Jurisdiction, 6 C. L. 267.

60. The mere assertion in the complaint of the fact that defendant was engaged in interstate commerce, there being no controversy as to the construction of the law, is not sufficient to justify removal. Myrtle v. Nevada, etc., R. Co., 137 F. 193.

61. If it does not so appear, the want cannot be supplied by any statement in the petition for removal or in the subsequent pleadings. Mitchell Engineering & Machinery Co. v. Worthington, 140 F. 947.

62. Heffelfinger v. Choctaw, etc., R. Co., 140 F. 75.

63. Under Act Mar. 3, 1887, c. 372, § 1, 24 Stat. 552 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 509]. Heffelfinger v. Choctaw, etc., R. Co., 140 F. 75.

64. U. S. Rev. Stat. § 2291, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 1390, 1394. McCune v. Essig, 199 U. S. 382, 50 Law. Ed. —.

65. See 4 C. L. 1278.

66. Parker v. Vanderbilt, 136 F. 246.

67. Robert v. Pineland Club, 139 F. 1001.

68. A petition alleging diverse citizenship of plaintiff and the principal defendant, no cause of action against the resident defend-to by the state court in determining the right of removal for diversity of citizenship,[69] and where the cause is not removable under the allegations of plaintiff's pleadings and the petition, the Federal court acquires no jurisdiction and its orders therein are void,[70] and plaintiff's appearance and motion to remand and participation in the trial after the overruling of his motion do not confer jurisdiction;[71] but an amendment to a complaint in the state court, which transforms a nonremovable case into a removable one, allows its removal if the defendant acts promptly.[72] The diversity of citizenship on which the right of removal must be predicated is that of the parties to the suit[73] at the time of the filing of the petition for removal;[74] but a party who has been improperly joined as a defendant is to be disregarded,[75] and a case may be removed without regard to the technical position occupied by the parties in the pleadings as plaintiffs and defendants, the court regarding the real interests of the several parties and realigning them to determine diversity of citizenship.[76] Neither a state,[77] nor a joint stock company,[78] nor a citizen of one of the territories of the United States,[79] is a citi-ant and joinder merely to defeat removal, is sufficient to require removal. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Eastin [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 440. The right of removal, so far as concerns the action of the state court, depends upon the condition of the record in the state court at the time the removal is sought. Texarkana Tel. Co. v. Bridges [Ark.] 86 S. W. 841.

69. Texarkana Tel. Co. v. Bridges [Ark.] 86 S. W. 841. Where it is alleged in the petition for removal that plaintiff's averments, on which the joint action against resident defendants depends, are false and were fraudulently made so as to defeat removal, the state court must accept the allegations and sustain the petition, the truth of such allegations being determinable on a motion to remand. Southern R. Co. v. Sittasen [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 898; Pooser v. Western Union Tel. Co., 137 F. 1001.

70. Pierce's Adm'r v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 801, 86 S. W. 703; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Coley [Ky.] 89 S. W. 234. The absence of sufficient averments or of facts in the record showing such required diversity of citizenship is fatal and cannot be overlooked by the court, even if the parties fail to call attention to the defect or consent to waive it. An allegation that a corporation is a citizen of a certain state is not enough, it should be shown that it was created by the laws of that state. Knight v. Lutcher & M. Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 404.

71. Pierce's Adm'r v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 801, 86 S. W. 703.

72. Myrtle v. Nevada, etc., R. Co., 137 F. 193.

73. Although the law of New York (Code of Civil Procedure, § 1919), where a joint stock company was organized, authorizes actions by and against its president (Saunders v. Adams Exp. Co., 136 F. 494), such officer, who was a citizen of Ohio, could not enter his appearance in behalf of such company in a case pending in New Jersey, wherein full jurisdiction of defendant had been obtained under the laws of New Jersey, and obtain a removal of the case on the ground of his diversity of citizenship (Id.).

74. Where, at the time of the commencement and of the removal of an action, defendants were citizens of another state than that of plaintiff, the fact of the removal of one of the defendants into plaintiff's state afterward did not deprive the Federal court of jurisdiction. Lebensberger v. Scofield [C. C. A.] 139 F. 380.

75. The employe of a foreign railroad company in an action for personal injury improperly joined the lessor of the railroad, a domestic railroad company. Axline v. Toledo, etc., R. Co., 138 F. 169. In such cases, in the absence of any state statute on the subject, the Federal court is not bound by the decisions of the highest state court as to the joint liability of the lessor and lessee, but, on the question of removal, will follow the rule established by Federal decisions. The lessee being a corporation of a state other than that of plaintiff, case held removable. Curtis v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 140 F. 777. In an action for personal injuries against three defendants, the complaint alleged that two were foreign corporations but made no allegation of the incorporation of the other. The two alleged foreign corporations petitioned for removal, alleging that the other defendant was not a corporation but the trade name of one of two persons, neither of whom had been served with process or was a party to the action. Held that the trial court should have accepted the petition and proceeded no further in the suit. Texarkana Tel. Co. v Bridges [Ark.] 86 S. W. 841.

76. Held that the joining of a domestic corporation as defendant, but whose interests were really with complainants, did not prevent the removal of the cause. Lucas v. Milliken, 139 F. 816.

77. An action between a state, in which it is the real party in interest, and a citizen or corporation of another state, cannot be removed solely on the ground of diverse citizenship. Southern R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 272. In an action in the name of the state by a prosecuting attorney, against a railroad company to recover penalties for violation of Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 5186, 5187, the state is the real party in interest, notwithstanding part of the penalties are payable to the prosecuting attorney. Id.

78. A joint stock company, although a legal entity, is not a corporation and canzen of another state, within the meaning of the constitution and judiciary acts.

It is necessary that all the parties on one side of the controversy shall be citizens of a different state or states from all the parties on the other side,[80] and all the defendants must join in the removal;[81] but when a resident of the state where the suit is brought has been joined, the right of removal then depends upon the question as to whether there is a separable controversy between the parties,[82] in which case the removal may be effected "by one or more of the defendants."[83] The question whether there is a separable controversy in a suit in equity, within the meaning of the removal statute, must be determined from the allegations of the bill,[84] and in an action at law from the facts set out in the declaration;[85] and the mere fact that a suit might be brought against each defendant separately or against them jointly does not determine the question.[86] In order that a separable controversy may exist, the whole subject-matter of the suit must be capable of being finally determined as between the parties on each side and complete relief afforded as to the separate cause of action without the presence of other parties originally brought in.[87] An action against several defendants for a joint tort cannot be held to involve a separable controversy.[88] Where the resident defend-not be deemed to have citizenship. Saunders v Adams Exp. Co., 136 F. 494.

79. An action by a citizen of Indian Territory against a citizen of a state is not removable for diversity of citizenship. Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. McGinty [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1001.

80. Axline v. Toledo, etc., R. Co., 138 F. 169. The party to the suit on one side, whether consisting of one or more persons, must have a citizenship different from that of the party on the other side, whether consisting of one or more persons. Knight v. Lutcher & M. Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 404.

81. New England Waterworks Co. v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 521.

82. Parker v. Vanderbilt, 136 F. 246.

83. New England Waterworks Co. v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 521.

84. Act Mar. 3, 1887, c. 373, 24 Stat. 552, § 2, as corrected by Act Aug. 13, 1888, c. 866, 25 Stat. 433 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 509]. Such allegations are to be taken as confessed, independent of the allegations of the petition for removal or of answers filed after the removal. Elkins v. Howell, 140 F. 157.

85. Statement of facts in suit for personal injuries against two railroad companies held to show a separable controversy. Yeates v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 137 F. 943.

86. Yeates v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 137 F. 943. Nor do the allegations of the declaration that the act was the joint and concurrent act of the defendants add anything to the plaintiff's position. Id.

87. Perkins v. Lake Superior & S. E. R. Co., 140 F. 906, citing cases. In a suit for an undivided one-half interest in a single tract of land, alleged to be wrongfully held by two defendants, there is no separable controversy. Knight v. Lutcher & M. Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 404. In a suit by the purchaser of lands to enforce specific performance of the contract of sale, brought against the owner and grantees to whom he conveyed the land before the recording of complainant's contract, there is a separable controversy with the grantees as to their right to hold the land as against complainant. Elkins v. Howell, 140 F. 157. Where, within a suit against several defendants for the foreclosure of a mortgage, there is a controversy between the complainant and a defendant corporation, citizen of another state, standing apart from the other questions and parties involved, as to whether the mortgage covers certain property, such controversy is a separable controversy. New England Waterworks Co. v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 521. The question of whether a new pumping station with its connecting mains were covered by a mortgage as after-acquired property was such a controversy. Id. In condemnation proceedings by a railroad company, under a state statute, against numerous property owners, and where only the single question of petitioner's right to condemn as against all the parties joined as defendants is presented, the mere fact that one defendant is the owner of part of the lands in severalty does not create a separable controversy. Perkins v. Lake Superior & S. E. R. Co., 140 F. 906. But where one defendant, a citizen of another state, is the exclusive owner of a strip of land lying within the right of way sought to be condemned, and is alone entitled to the entire compensation for its taking, there is a separable controversy as to such defendant. South Dakota Cent. R. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 578.

88. Heffelfinger v. Choctaw, etc., R. Co., 140 F. 75. It cannot be removed except on a petition in which all the defendants join, even on the ground that it is a suit arising under the constitution or laws of the United States. Act Mar. 3, 1887, c. 372, § 1, 24 Stat. 552 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 509]. Id. No separable controversy is stated where the complaint, in an action to recover for death by wrongful act, charges that it ant is not an indispensable party to the controversy with the nonresident defendant, the latter is entitled to remove the cause to the Federal court,[89] but not so where the resident defendant is an indispensable and necessary party.[90] Where the state law makes a corporation and its servants and agents jointly liable for injury or death caused by negligence, an action brought against a nonresident corporation and its resident servants is not removable, even though the servants were joined solely to prevent removal,[91] and though such joinder be not proper,[92] unless the plaintiff's petition fails to show a cause of action against the servant.[93] If, however, the plaintiff trifles with the court and joins a resident defendant fraudulently to prevent a removal, the state court should, as soon as such fact becomes apparent on the trial, dismiss the action as to the resident defendant and remove the cause.[94]

§ 5. Prejudice and local influence and denial of civil rights.[95]—The right of removal on account of prejudice or local influence is based on different grounds from that of removal on account of diverse citizenship. It must not only appear that defendant is a nonresident and that the jurisdictional amount is involved, but also that defendant cannot secure a fair and impartial trial in the state court because of prejudice or local influence.[96] The cases removable on these grounds are those in which there is a controversy between a citizen or citizens of the state in which the suit is pending and a citizen or citizens of another or other states,[97] and not cases wherein the controversy is partly between citizens of the same state.[98] was caused by acts of the servants of a nonresident railroad company, committed in the course of their employment, although not by express order or in presence of any officer of the company, yet negligently, willfully, recklessly, and maliciously. Davenport v. Southern R. Co. [C. C. A.] 135 F. 960, rvg. 124 F. 983.

89. In a suit for the specific performance of a contract to convey to complainants their share of certain railroad securities, the bank named to receive payment and make delivery was held not to be an indispensable party to the principal controversy. Cella v. Brown, 136 F. 439. In a suit for the specific performance of a contract for the sale and delivery of the issued stock of a corporation, the latter is not an indispensable party (Lucas v. Milliken, 139 F. 816), but it might be otherwise if there were an allegation of the insolvency of the other defendants, making it necessary to enjoin a transfer of the stock to prevent its being put beyond the control of the defendants or of the court (Id.).

90. Paulk v. Ensign-Oskamp Co., 123 Ga. 467, 51 S. E. 344.

91. Pierce's Adm'r v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 801, 86 S. W. 703; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Coley [Ky.] 89 S. W. 234; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Houchins [Ky.] 89 S. W. 530; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Proctor [Ky.] 89 S. W. 714; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Leisure's Adm'r [Ky.] 90 S. W. 269; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cane's Adm'x [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1061; Southern R. Co. v. Grizzle [Ga.] 53 S. E. 244. An action by a resident for personal injuries, against a foreign railroad corporation and a domestic corporation and others who were employed to keep the railroad and equipments in order, was not removable on the ground of diversity of citizenship. Ayles v. Southern R. Co. [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1048. In an action against a master for the willful tort of his servant in the scope of his employment, the servant is a proper party, and if a nonresident the cause cannot be removed on the theory that he is a sham defendant. Able v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 962.

92. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Thompson, 200 U. S. 206, 50 Law. Ed. — . See note 19 Harv. L. Rev. 470. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Bohon, 200 U. S. 221, 50 Law. Ed. — .

93. No cause of action shown against the trainmaster joined as defendant. Slaughter v. Nashville, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 91 S. W. 744.

94. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Coley [Ky.] 89 S. W. 234.

95. See 4 C. L. 1280.

96. Parker v. Vanderbilt, 136 F. 246. No defendant who is a nonresident should be compelled to try his case in the state court when it is made to satisfactorily appear that he cannot obtain a fair and impartial trial in that court, in view of the fact that his case can be tried in another forum, which possesses every facility for giving both plaintiff and defendant a fair and impartial trial, a court which is presided over by a resident of the state, and before a jury selected by a jury commission, the members of which are also residents of the state and belong to different political parties, and who are charged with selecting true and lawful men, regardless of local or political influence. Parker v. Vanderbilt, 136 F. 246.

97. Cochran v. Montgomery County, 199 U. S. 260, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

98. To hold otherwise brings the language of the clause into conflict with the rule that a suit, to be removable, must be within the original juridiction of the circuit court,

Where a change of venue for prejudice or local influence is, under the law of the state, a matter resting in the discretion of the trial judge, a defendant seeking removal on that ground is not required to show that he could not obtain justice in any county of the state.[99] A removal for denial of civil rights can be had only when the party complainant cannot enforce rights secured to him by the law providing for equal civil rights of the citizens of the United States in a judicial tribunal of the state by reason of some enactment or constitutional provision of the state.[1]

§ 6. Amount in controversy.[2]—A cause is not removable on account of diversity of citizenship, prejudice, and local influence, or a Federal question involved, unless it clearly appears that the jurisdictional amount of $2,000 is involved, exclusive of interest and costs.[3] To determine the amount in controversy the trial court must look not only to the averments of the petition for removal but also to the complaint,[4] but this rule does not require the court to shut its eyes to the reality, and if it appears that the plaintiff has but one cause of action, the question of removal cannot be affected by the fact that he has alleged two separate causes.[5] Under the Kentucky statute relative to amendments, an amended petition, reducing the claim against a nonresident defendant from $5,000 to $1,999, filed in vacation and without notice to defendant, deprived it of the right of removal;[6] but after a cause has been removed on pleadings of the plaintiff, showing that the amount in controversy and claimed by him is sufficient to give the Federal court jurisdiction, he cannot defeat the removal by changing his position or the amount of his claim.[7]

§ 7. Procedure to obtain and effect the removal.[8]—No notice to the other party is required in removal proceedings.[9] The filing of a petition for removal departs from the settled former construction and ignores the main purpose of the act of 1887 (Act Mar. 3, 1887, as corrected by Act Aug. 13, 1888), which was to restrict the jurisdiction of the circuit court. Cochran v. Montgomery County, 199 U. S. 260, 50 Law. Ed. —.

99. Parker v. Vanderbilt, 136 F. 246.

1. A failure to obtain trial of an action resulting from inability to secure an attorney and because plaintiff had been able to secure postponements against defendant's protests, are not a good cause for removal under Rev. St. § 641 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 520], for denial of civil rights. Scott v. Kinney & Co., 137 F. 1009. The denial of any equal civil rights secured by the Federal constitution or laws, in the summoning or impaneling of jurors in a criminal prosecution, does not give the right of removal under Rev. St. § 641, unless such denial is authorized by the state constitution or laws as interpreted by its highest tribunal (Commonwealth of Kentucky v. Powers, 26 S. Ct. 387. rvg. 139 F. 452), nor does the nonrecognition by the state court of the validity of a pardon pleaded in bar by the defendant make a case for removal on account of denial of civil rights (Id.). The statute of New Jersey relative to grand jurors considered, and held that neither the statute nor any interpretation thereof by the highest court of the state denies or prevents the enforcement of any civil right of the petitioners. State v. Corrigan, 139 F. 758.

2. See 4 C. L. 1280. See, also, Jurisdiction, 6 C. L. 267.

3. The petition was based on all three grounds, but the case was remanded as the amount allowed by B. & C. Comp. Or. § 5672, as an attorney fee in certain cases could not be added to make up the jurisdictional amount. Swofford v. Cornucopia Mines of Oregon, 140 F. 957.

4. Where each paragraph of the complaint averred damages in the sum of $5,000, but demanded judgment for less than $2,000, and there was nothing in the record to show that the demand for damages was in excess of $2,000, the petition for removal was properly denied. Springer v. Bricker [Ind.] 76 N. E. 114.

5. Complaint stated two causes of action, each below the jurisdictional amount, but both together above that amount, one for nondelivery of a telegram to "Mr. F. M. Pooser" and one to "Mrs. F. M. Pooser." Held to be but one cause of action and case remanded for want of jurisdiction in Federal court. Pooser v. Western Union Tel. Co., 137 F. 1001.

6. Rev. St. 1895, § 1118. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Campbell [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 312.

7. Johnson v. Computing Scale Co., 139 F. 339.

8. See 4 C. L. 1281.

9. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. American Bridge Co., 137 F. 284.

amounts to a special appearance only,[10] but the general appearance of a defendant in a state court does not operate as a waiver of his right to remove to a Federal court,[11] nor is his appearance and hearing upon preliminary motions a waiver[12] or estoppel.[13] While the petitioner for removal on account of diversity of citizenship may expressly waive his right of objecting to the further jurisdiction of the state court after the refusal of his petition,[14] he does not do so by moving for a continuance for the purpose of making another corporation a party and in seeking and receiving relief against it;[15] but a defendant corporation, by filing a petition for removal, waives its privilege of being sued in the state of its residence.[16] The filing of the requisite petition and bond for removal instantly transfers the case,[17] even if the state court makes an order refusing the application for removal,[18] and it is the duty of the state court to proceed no further.[19] These must be filed at or before the time the defendant is required to answer or plead to the declaration,[20] and an amended petition for removal filed after the statutory limit for filing answers is too late,[21] but the time within which the proceedings to remove shall be taken is not jurisdictional and may be waived, as by stipulation of the parties.[22] Where the petition to remove is filed as soon as a case becomes a removable

10. Defendant after removal may move to dismiss the suit for want of jurisdiction of defendant's person, either in the state or Federal court. Motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction of defendant should have been granted. International Text-Book Co. v. Heartt [C. C. A.] 136 F. 129.

11. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. American Bridge Co., 137 F. 284.

12. Motions regarding injunctions, attachments, and other provisional remedies. Cella v. Brown, 136 F. 439.

13. A defendant is not estopped by moving in the state court to set aside service of process upon him (Johnson v. Computing Scale Co., 139 F. 339), nor because, on the day after the right appeared, it successfully argued a motion in the state court to stay proceedings pending an appeal from an order denying a motion to set aside service of summons (Remington v. Central P. R. Co., 198 U. S. 95, 49 Law. Ed. 959).

14, 15. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Eastin [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 440.

16. The plaintiff was an alien, defendant an Illinois corporation, and the court a Federal court in South Carolina. Motion to remand for want of jurisdiction in the Federal court denied. Morris v. Clark Const. Co., 140 F. 756.

17. All that the removal act requires is that the party entitled to remove the cause shall make and file a petition in such suit in the state court, and make and file therewith a bond with good and sufficient surety conditioned as named. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. American Bridge Co., 137 F. 284. Should the court arbitrarily refuse to approve a surety, it cannot be doubted that the removing party would have the right to file the bond and petition, procure the filing of the record on removal, and proceed in the Federal court. Id. The remedy of the plaintiff in such a case would be to move to remand and show the insufficiency of the surety and that the judge of the state court was justified in refusing to approve the bond. Id.

18. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. American Bridge Co., 137 F. 284.

19. Upon the filing of a proper petition in the state court, that court at once loses its jurisdiction, although any bail given therein is continued in force. State of New Jersey v. Corrigan, 139 F. 758.

20. A petition for removal, filed before the time fixed by the statutes or court rules for the filing of an answer to a bill, is timely. Cella v. Brown, 136 F. 439. Where a summons served September 16 required defendant to appear and plead within 20 days exclusive of the day of service, a petition for removal filed October 6 was in time. South Dakota Cent. R. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 578. By rule of the court of common pleas of Philadelphia county, Pa., defendant is allowed four days from service of statement on him to file any dilatory plea, and by the procedure act 15 days to file affidavit of defense. Held that a petition for removal must be filed within four days. First Nat. Bank v. Appleyard & Co., 138 F. 939. Where the trustees of an unincorporated association were brought into an action affecting the title of real estate, by service on them of an amended complaint, the cause was removable on a petition filed by them in apt time after service on them, although the time for answer by the association was past. Robert v. Pineland Club, 139 F. 1001.

21. Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. McGinty [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1001.

22. Stipulation to extend time of pleading held extension of time to institute removal proceedings. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. American Bridge Co., 137 F. 284. It is well settled in the second circuit that an extension of time to answer by an order entered in the state court extends the time for filing a petition for removal. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. American Bridge Co., 137 F. 284, citing Lord v. Lehigh Val. R. Co., 104 F. 929, which cites numerous cases. Where the rules of the state court provide that the time for answering may be one it is in time, although defendant may be in default in the state court for failure to answer in time.[22] The provision of the statute authorizing the removal of causes on account of prejudice and local influence, that the case may be removed at any time before trial, must be construed to mean that the petition should be filed before the trial machinery is put in motion.[24] A petition to remove a cause from a state court to a Federal court is collateral and foreign to the merits of the case.[25] It is not insufficient, because the allegation that the time had not arrived at which the defendant was required to answer or plead was an allegation of a conclusion of law.[26] A petition for removal on account of diversity of citizenship need not be verified,[27] but a petition for removal on account of prejudice or local influence, or the denial of equal civil rights, or in case of prosecutions against revenue officers is required by the statute to be verified.[28] An allegation in a petition for removal that defendant was, at the time of the commencement of the suit, and still is, a citizen of another state than that where the suit was begun, and of no other state, is a sufficient allegation of nonresidence in the state where sued;[29] but an allegation that a corporation is a citizen of a certain state is not enough, it should be shown that it was created by the laws of that state.[30] Where the petition for removal alleges that certain defendants were joined to prevent removal, it concedes their residence, and an answer affirmatively alleging such residence is immaterial.[31] Where the petition expressly states that the amount in controversy exceeds the sum of $2,000 exclusive of interest and costs, it is sufficient, although there may be no proof on the trial to sustain it.[32] It is sufficient if the petition and bond for removal are presented to the judge at chambers, and after approval filed with the clerk of the court.[33] A removal bond signed by a surety is not defective because it was not signed by the defendant and because the penalty was limited to $500.[34] Where the state court refused to remove a cause, defendant's act in filing a certiextended by stipulation, a petition for removal may be filed within such extended time. Sanderlin v. People's Bank of Buffalo, 140 F. 191.

Contra: It is firmly settled that the time within which the removal may be had cannot be enlarged by continuances, demurrers, motions to set aside service of process, pleas in abatement, or by stipulations of the parties, or by orders of the court extending the time to answer. This doctrine rests upon the solid foundation that the statute is mandatory and that the right of removal ceases to exist when the time limited therefor has elapsed. First Nat. Bank v. Appleyard & Co., 138 F. 939.

23. The New York Code of Civil Procedure, § 418, does not require an answer to be filed within 20 days of service of summons when no complaint or notice of amount of claim has been served on defendant. Remington v. Central P. R. Co., 198 U. S. 95, 49 Law. Ed. 959.

24. Held that it does not require the filing of the petition at or before the term at which the case could first be tried. Parker v. Vanderbilt, 136 F. 246.

25. The denial of such petition is not reviewable, unless assigned as a reason for a new trial, where there has been a trial in the state court. Southern R. Co. v. Sittasen [Ind.] 76 N. E. 973.

26. Allegations which involve such conclusions import that the facts which justify them are true, and many such allegations are permitted to avoid an intolerable prolixity on matters not likely to be controverted. Remington v. Central P. R. Co., 198 U. S. 95, 49 Law. Ed. 959.

27. Hence such a petition, the verification of which was not signed but was certified by the notary as having been sworn to, was not defective. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. American Bridge Co., 137 F. 284.

28. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. American Bridge Co., 137 F. 284. Petition for removal on account of prejudice or local influence verified by the duly constituted agent of the defendant and supported by affidavits of parties who said they were thoroughly conversant with the facts alleged, held sufficient. Parker v. Vanderbilt, 136 F. 246.

29. Parker v. Vanderbilt, 136 F. 246.

30. Knight v. Lutcher & M. Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 404.

31. Pierce's Adm'r v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 801, 86 S. W. 703.

32. South Dakota Cent. R. Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 578.

33. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. American Bridge Co., 137 F. 284; Johnson v. Computing Scale Co., 139 F. 339; Remington v. Central P. R. Co., 198 U. S. 95, 49 Law. Ed. 959.

34. Removal Act Aug. 13, 1888, c. 866, § 3, 25 Stat. 435 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 510], does not require such signature nor fied copy of the record in the Federal court does not make it a pending action there.[35] In a partition suit in North Carolina, in which the clerk of the court is authorized by law to make all necessary orders and enter judgment, he can make an order for the removal of the suit on a petition properly filed.[36] The removal statutes cannot be used to oust the jurisdiction of the state court and then obtain a dismissal of the action in the Federal court for want of such jurisdiction.[37]

§ 8. Transfer of jurisdiction and other consequences of removal.[38]—When a suit begun by attachment is removed pending a motion to dissolve the attachment, both the principal suit and the attachment proceeding are transferred to the Federal court.[39] Where the cause is one in which the state court could grant either legal or equitable relief, the plaintiff may proceed in the Federal court either at law or in equity, but is bound by his election.[40]

§ 9. Practice and procedure after removal; remand or dismissal.[41]—Although the statute for removal gives the petitioner until the first day of the next term in which to produce and file in the Federal court a copy of the proceedings,[42] yet that court meanwhile has jurisdiction, and the nonpetitioning party may file such copy before the next term and move to remand the case.[43] By reason of diversity of citizenship and compliance with the removal statutes, the Federal court acquires the right to determine the question of jurisdiction of the state court on a motion to dismiss for lack of such jurisdiction, and to act accordingly.[44] It is not bound to remand the case and let the state court determine the question.[45] After the transfer of a cause it may be dismissed and renewed in the state court, and it is not material that the second action was begun before the dismissal of the original action in the Federal court, provided the dismissal occurs before trial of the second action.[46] All issues of fact raised on the petition for removal are triable in the Federal court on a motion to remand,[47] and where a cause has been removed on the ground of local prejudice, it devolves on the plaintiff, on a motion to remand, to show that such prejudice as is alleged in the petition does not exist.[48] The allegations of the bill in a suit in equity for the purpose of a motion to remand are an unlimited penalty. Groton Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. American Bridge Co., 137 F. 284.

35. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Curd [Ky.] 89 S. W. 140.

36. Sanderlin v. People's Bank of Buffalo, 140 F. 191.

37. Where in attachment proceedings against a citizen of another state, plaintiff was proceeding to obtain substituted service according to the statutes of the state where the suit was pending, and defendant appeared specially to obtain a removal, and so prevented the full notice contemplated by the state law, he gave the Federal court jurisdiction of his person and could not obtain a dismissal of the case for want of jurisdiction. Wells v. Clark, 136 F. 462.

38. See 4 C. L. 1282.

39. The Federal court, upon the filing of the transcript and the docketing of the cause, is as fully possessed of the case as if it had been begun there. Act Mar. 3, 1875, c. 137, 18 Stat. 470, § 4 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 511]. Lebensberger v. Scofield [C. C. A.] 139 F. 380.

40. Plaintiff having elected to proceed in equity and having failed to make a case for equitable relief, his bill was properly dismissed. Union Stockyards Co. v. Nashville Packing Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 701.

41. See 4 C. L. 1282.

42. Rev. St. § 641 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 520]. State v. Corrigan, 139 F. 758.

43. State v. Corrigan, 139 F. 758.

44. Courtney v. Pradt, 135 F. 818.

45. Suit dismissed on defendant's motion for lack of jurisdiction in the state court, and plaintiff's motion to remand overruled. Courtney v. Pradt, 135 F. 818.

46. Dana & Co. v. Blackburn [Ky.] 90 S. W. 237.

47. Texarkana Tel. Co. v. Bridges [Ark.] 86 S. W. 841. Where it is charged in the petition that plaintiff's averments of facts, upon which the joint action against resident defendants depends, are false and were fraudulently made to prevent removal, the truth of the issue of fraud can be tried in the Federal court on a motion to remand (Southern R. Co. v. Sittasen [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 898); and where the petition for removal charges that a resident defendant was fraudulently joined to prevent removal, such issue is triable only in the Federal court (Texas & P. R. Co. v. Eastin [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 440).

48. The court is then called upon to find as a question of fact whether local prejudice taken as confessed, independent of any allegations in the petition for removal or of answers filed after removal,[49] and regardless of any amendments made to a bill after the filing of the petition for removal.[50] Allegations of fact in a petition for removal, not denied in any way by the plaintiff, are to be taken as true on a motion to remand or any other proceeding challenging the right of the Federal court to entertain the case.[51]

§ 10. Transfers between courts of the same jurisdiction.[52]—Where it is apparent that the plaintiff is entitled to some remedy, the mere fact that he has invoked the aid of the wrong tribunal is not sufficient cause for the dismissal of his suit, but it should be removed to the proper court.[53] Where the applicant for a transfer of a criminal case to some other justice of the court, on account of alleged bias of the justice against him, could, on appeal, have a hearing on every question affecting the fairness and impartiality of his trial, his application for a special appeal from the order refusing to make the transfer was denied.[54] Under an act authorizing the removal of a cause from the municipal court to the city court of New York city, where the damages exceeded $250, a bond and order for removal were tendered too late after a motion had been granted permitting the plaintiff to reduce his demand from $500 to $200.[55] Where a justice of the municipal court made an order on defendant's motion removing an action to the supreme court, under a statute which had been repealed, plaintiff's remedy was to move the supreme court to remand the case, and not to apply to the municipal court to vacate the order.[56] Under a statute of Indiana, providing that, upon the overruling of a petition for rehearing by a losing party in the appellate court, he may apply for a transfer of the cause to the supreme court on certain grounds,[57] where a judgment for plaintiff was reversed by the appellate court with a mandate for a new trial, a defendant who merely moved to modify such mandate so as to direct the lower court to enter judgment for it, could not be considered the "losing party" within the meaning of the statute.[58]

Rendition of Judgment; Repleader; Replegiando, see latest topical index.

REPLEVIN.

§ 1. Nature and form of action—Distinctions.[59]—The action of replevin is exists to such an extent as to prevent defendant from securing a fair and impartial trial. Parker v. Vanderbilt, 136 F. 246.

49. Elkins v. Howell, 140 F. 157.

50. Cella v. Brown, 136 F. 439.

51. Commonwealth of Kentucky v. Powers, 139 F. 452. Case remanded for want of jurisdiction in Federal court. Myrtle v. Nevada, etc., R. Co., 137 F. 193.

52. See 4 C. L. 1283.

53. Under the express provisions of Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 26, § 44, and art. 75, § 113. Safe Deposit & Trust Co. v. Cahn [Md.] 62 A. 819.

54. In re Gassenheimer, 24 App. D. C. 312.

55. Bunke v. New York Tel. Co., 110 App. Div. 241, 97 N. Y. S. 66.

56. Order made under Laws 1902, c. 580, p. 1490, § 3, which was expressly repealed by Laws 1904, pp. 1429, 1430, c. 598, §§ 1, 4.

an action to recover the possession of specific personal property;[60] its object being to recover possession, the issue is which of the parties is entitled to the possession, and the action will lie upon proof of unlawful detention, though the taking be not wrongful.[61] Where the wrongful withholding of possession originated in a disturbance of possession, either replevin, or trespass,[62] or trover,[63] or assumpsit, may lie,[64] but when one remedy has been pursued to a judgment, the others are barred.[65]

§ 2. Right of action and defenses.[66]—Replevin, being an action to recover the possession of specific personal property, can be maintained only when the plaintiff has an immediate right to the possession,[67] and if plaintiff's right to the possession has terminated before the commencement of the action, the suit will not lie.[68] An action must be brought while the defendant is in possession of the property, and cannot be maintained if he has disposed of it before the commencement of the suit,[69] unless the disposal was wrongful.[70] A surety in a bond given to release an attachment of goods, by virtue of the suretyship, does not get any property right in the goods such as to enable him to maintain replevin against a vendee of his principal.[71] Where defendant took the property from the possession of the plaintiff, such possession will sustain an action of replevin unless defendant can prove a superior right of possession.[72] Where chattels of one have been seized and sold under execution issued against another, the owner may maintain an action of replevin against the person in possession,[73] and such action will lie against the sheriff or officer if he sells after notice of the plaintiff's interest, but is still in possession under his writ,[74] and where the officer justifies under a writ issued against another on the ground that such party had fraudulently conveyed the property to the plaintiff to defeat his creditors, he must show that the relation of debtor and creditor exists

Volkommer v. Columbia Paper Bag Co., 105 App. Div. 57, 93 N. Y. S. 771.

57. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7337j. Standard Pottery Co. v. Moudy, 164 Ind. 656, 74 N. E. 242.

58. Standard Pottery Co. v. Moudy, 164 Ind. 656, 74 N. E. 242.

59. See 4 C. L. 1284.

60. King v. Morris [N. J. Law] 62 A. 1006.

61. Miller v. Hackbarth [Wis.] 105 N. W. 311.

62. Palmer v. People, 111 Ill. App. 381.

63. Harris v. Nelson, 113 Ill. App. 487.

64. Fisher v. Brown, 111 Ill. App. 486.

65. See Former Adjudication, 5 C. L. 1502; Election and Waiver, 5 C. L. 1078. Fisher v. Brown, 111 Ill. App. 486; Palmer v. People, 111 Ill. App. 381; Harris v. Nelson, 113 Ill. App. 487.

66. See 4 C. L. 1285.

67. Where a bailee sells the property which is the subject of the bailment, the bailment is ended, and the bailor has such a right to possession as will support an action of replevin to recover the property. United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Holt, 185 Mass. 97, 69 N. E. 1056. Where a sale of property has been induced by fraud, the seller is not entitled to possession until the sale has been rescinded. McGuire v. Bradley, 118 Ill. App. 59. And see Baker v. McDonald [Neb.] 104 N. W. 923. The action will lie upon proof of unlawful detention, although unlawful taking and detention are both alleged. Miller v. Hackbarth [Wis.] 105 N. W. 311. Where property has been delivered unconditionally by the seller to the purchaser, and he has transferred his legal title to another, a receiver of the original seller can not maintain an action of replevin on the theory that the conditions of the sale have not been complied with. Gilroy v. Everson, Hickok Co., 103 App. Div. 574, 93 N. Y. S. 132. One who holds property as security for a loan can maintain an action of replevin against one who has no right of possession. Equitable Trust Co. v. Burley, 110 Ill. App. 538.

68. Casto v. Murray [Or.] 81 P. 883.

69. Longerbeam v. Huston [S. D.] 105 N. W. 743.

70. Hitchcock v. Wimpleberg, 103 App. Div. 53, 92 N. Y. S. 997.

71. Schultz v. Grimwood [R. I.] 60 A. 1065.

72. Cheeseman v. Fenton, 13 Wyo. 436, 80 P. 823. One rightfully in possession of property under a transaction untainted by fraud must prevail over a replevin plaintiff who can show no superior title. Koehler v. King, 119 Ill. App. 6. Where property is taken from the possession of a stranger under a writ of attachment, when sued in replevin by such person, the officer must not only prove that the writ is valid on its face, but that the attachment proceedings are regular, and until he does this he can not question the plaintiff's right to possession. Cheeseman v. Fenton, 13 Wyo. 436, 80 P. 823.

73, 74. Mitchell v. McLeod, 127 Iowa, 733, 104 N. W. 349.

between the attaching creditor and such third party.[75] If property be seized under a writ of attachment bond upon an insufficient petition, it may be recovered in replevin.[76] The appointment of an administrator gives a title which dates back to the death of the intestate and may be pleaded in defense to an action of replevin commenced before appointment if the administrator came into possession lawfully, but not otherwise.[77]

When the defendant has lawfully come into the possession of the property sought to be replevied, a demand is essential to the maintenance of the action,[78] unless expressly waived;[79] but the Iowa statute which requires an officer to levy upon any personal property in the possession of the defendant, unless he has received notice in writing from some other person that such property belongs to him, does not require the owner to give notice before bringing replevin.[80] Where the statute requires that a notice setting forth certain facts must be given before an action of replevin will lie against an officer who has seized the property under attachment, the notice given must conform to the statutory requirement.[81] A notice served upon the husband, where by statute he is made the manager of the personal community property, is sufficient in an action of replevin against the husband and wife to recover community property.[82]

The action of replevin may be barred by the statute of limitations if not brought within the time prescribed,[83] but where the property is wrongfully taken from the possession of the owner and removed from the state or concealed, the statute does not commence to run until the property is brought back into the vicinity or is openly held so that the owner may reasonably know of its whereabouts.[84]

§ 3. Jurisdiction and venue.[85]—In those states where the statute provides that all actions except certain specific ones must be brought in the county where the defendants or one of them reside, an action of replevin in the absence of other provisions for its venue cannot be brought in the county where the goods are located, unless that is the county where defendant resides.[86] The jurisdiction of inferior courts, being courts of limited jurisdiction, in replevin actions is dependent upon the value of the property sought to be recovered.[87]

75. Dunn v. Overton [Okl.] 83 P. 715.

76. Upp v. Neuhring, 127 Iowa, 713, 104 N. W. 350.

77. Casto v. Murray [Or.] 81 P. 883.

78. Where the real owner of property permits it to remain in the possession of another, thus making him the ostensible owner, and the property is sold to a third party who has no notice of owner's interest, a demand must be made before an action of replevin will lie. Rosenbaum v. King, 114 Ill. App. 648.

79. Under a conditional sale contract which gives the seller the right to take possession of the property upon condition broken without notice, no demand is necessary. Standard Furniture Co. v. Anderson, 38 Wash. 582, 80 P. 813. Where an officer levies execution upon property in the possession of the defendant in the execution, and another party claims the goods, the party claiming must make demand on the officer before bringing replevin, unless the officer had notice at the time of taking. Greenberg v. Stevens, 114 Ill. App. 483.

80. Code, §§ 3991, 3906. Upp v. Neuhring, 127 Iowa, 713, 104 N. W. 350.

81. Where the statute requires the notice to set forth the nature of claimant's interest in the property, how and from whom acquired, and the consideration paid, a notice which fails to disclose the consideration is insufficient. Shaw v. Tyrrell [Iowa] 105 N. W. 1006. Where a verified notice is required, an unverified notice is insufficient. Id.

82. Standard Furniture Co. v. Anderson, 38 Wash. 582, 80 P. 813.

83. Where the property has been in the possession of the defendant and his vendor under a claim of ownership in good faith for nine years, the action of replevin is barred. Leavitt v. Shook [Or.] 83 P. 391.

84. See 6 C. L. 471. Gatlin v. Vaut [Ind. T.] 91 S. W. 38.

85. See 4 C. L. 1288.

86. Under § 314, Burns' Ann. St. 1901, the action must be brought in the county where the defendants or one of them resides. Fry v. Shafor, 164 Ind. 699, 74 N. E. 503.

87. Justice of peace in Illinois has jurisdiction of all replevin actions where the property sought to be replevied does not exceed $200. Rice v. Travis, 117 Ill. App. 644.

§ 4. The affidavit.[88]—An insufficient affidavit may be amended and does not deprive the court of its jurisdiction of the case.[89] An affidavit for a writ of replevin which states, as required by the statutes of many states, that the property has "not been taken for a tax assessment, or fine," is not conclusive of the facts so stated, and they may be set up as a defense.[90] Those statutes which require an affidavit for a writ of replevin to state that the property was not taken for any tax, assessment, or fine, do not preclude a person from maintaining an action of replevin against the purchaser at a sale under a tax warrant directed against another person than the owner and wrongfully levied on the property in question.[91]

§ 5. Plaintiff's bond.[92]—The purpose of the replevin bond is to provide security to the defendant, if he prevails, for the return of the property, and to indemnify him for such damages and costs as he may be entitled to recover.[93] In those states where a bond is required by statute, the property can not be lawfully delivered to the plaintiff until such bond is executed,[94] and such delivery renders the original taking unlawful and the officer liable in trespass or trover, and furnishes evidence of trover sufficient to sustain the action without proof of a previous demand.[95] The acceptance and approval of plaintiff's bond must be done in the manner prescribed by statute.[96] An officer in taking a replevin bond is required to use the best means of forming a correct estimate of the value of the property, and the law requiring him to do this clothes him with all reasonable and necessary power to do so, and if he neglects this duty,[97] or takes a bond with insufficient sureties, he is liable to the obligee for any damage which may result from such negligence,[98] but such right of action does not accrue until a breach of the conditions of the bond has occurred.[99]

A bond duly executed and delivered to the replevying officer is valid and binding upon the principal and sureties though not approved,[1] and where an officer refuses to execute a replevin writ for insufficiency of the bond, and a new bond is thereupon executed and delivered, by virtue of which the property is taken, such bond is valid though no order was issued by the court for a new bond.[2] Where an officer's return in a replevin suit cites that a bond has been taken without further describing it, a prima facie presumption arises that a proper statutory bond is meant.[3] The assignment of a judgment in replevin operates as an assignment of the bond, and the assignee being the real party in interest can maintain an action upon it.[4] Sureties on a replevin bond have such an interest as will enable them after death of principal to maintain an action to set aside an erroneous judgment or one im-

88. See 4 C. L. 1288.

89. Where an affidavit is defective in that it states that the goods were not taken for any tax, etc., against the "affiant," instead of "plaintiffs," there being more than one, may be amended and the defect does not deprive the court of its jurisdiction. Fisher v. Brown, 111 Ill. App. 486.

90, 91. Rev. St. 1898, § 2718. Wisconsin Oak Lumber Co. v. Laursen [Wis.] 105 N. W. 906.

92. See 4 C. L. 1288.

93. Parker v. Young, 188 Mass. 600, 75 N. E. 98.

94. Under Rev. Laws, c. 190, § 9, an officer may seize and remove the property replevied, but he cannot lawfully deliver it to the plaintiff until the customary bond is executed. Parker v. Young, 188 Mass. 600, 75 N. E. 98.

95. Parker v. Young, 188 Mass. 600, 75 N. E. 98.

96. Where the statute provides that the approval of the bond may be referred to a certain magistrate and a notice given to the defendant of the time and place of approval and the names of the proposed sureties, such notice must be given or the approval is a nullity. Parker v. Young, 188 Mass. 600, 75 N. E. 98.

97. Officer has no right to rely on the statement of value in the complaint and writ. Pickett v. People, 114 Ill. App. 188.

98, 99, 1. Parker v. Young, 188 Mass. 600, 75 N. E. 98.

2. Stafford v. Baker [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 393, 104 N. W. 321.

3. Parker v. Young, 188 Mass. 600, 75 N. E. 98.

4. Odell v. Petty [S. D.] 104 N. W. 249.

peachable for fraud or irregularity not apparent on the face of the record,[5] but where the sureties have or have had an adequate remedy at law to correct or set aside an erroneous judgment, a court of equity will not enjoin the plaintiff in an action upon the replevin bond from prosecuting the suit.[6]

§ 6. The writ and its execution.[7]

§ 7. Custody and delivery of property; forthcoming bond.[8]—Under statutes authorizing defendant to retain possession of the property upon executing a forthcoming bond, conditioned that he will deliver the property to plaintiff if plaintiff prevails, a tender of the property by the sureties relieves them from liability,[9] and where plaintiff elects to take a money judgment in lieu of the return of the property, he waives the condition in the forthcoming bond for the return of the property and releases the sureties from that condition.[10] Where plaintiff prevails, the measure of damages in a suit on the forthcoming bond is the value of the property at the time and place where taken under the writ,[11] but no suit can be maintained on a forthcoming bond until after final judgment.[12]

§ 8. The pleadings and parties to the action.[13]—Replevin, being an action to recover possession of personal property, the complaint must allege ownership or right to the possession[14] at the time of the commencement of the action,[15] but where plaintiff claims absolute title to the property sued for, it is sufficient to allege title generally, and the right to immediate possession, and the answer may be equally general in its denials;[16] but where plaintiff claims possession under a special ownership, he must set forth facts upon which such special ownership is based, and the defendant, in order to put in issue the allegations of such special ownership, must deny specifically the allegation of facts upon which the plaintiff claims ownership.[17] In an action of replevin it is not permissible to declare in trover.[18] Where the statute requires the giving of a notice setting out plaintiff's interest in the

5. Where the principal dies before the action is prosecuted, and the court renders a default judgment, not knowing of his death, the sureties may bring action to set aside the judgment. McBrayer v. Jordan [Neb.] 103 N. W. 50.

6. McBrayer v. Jordan [Neb.] 103 N. W. 50.

7. See 4 C. L. 1288.

8. See 2 C. L. 1519.

9, 10. Gerlaugh v. Ryan, 127 Iowa 226, 103 N. W. 128.

11. Defendant had cut trees and enhanced their value by hauling to point of market where it was levied upon. Defendant not entitled to enhanced value. Little v. Cornett [Ky.] 91 S. W. 272.

12. Ind. T. Ann. St. 1899, § 3552. Where suit has terminated in favor of defendant, and on appeal is reversed and remanded for a new trial, the sureties are not liable for the costs of the appeal if the action is dismissed by the plaintiff on remand to trial court. Spencer v. Davidson [Ind. T.] 82 S. W. 731.

13. See 4 C. L. 1289.

14. A complaint alleging that defendant at various times prior to and within a year from a certain date wrongfully took certain described property from plaintiff's possession, and "that on March 10, 1902 plaintiff was, ever since has been, and now is the owner of (description of property)," that on March 10, 1902, he made demand of defendant, and that defendant still unlawfully retains property, is sufficient. McGregor v. Lang, 32 Mont. 568, 81 P. 343.

15. A complaint which bases plaintiff's right to possession upon a contract which covered a definite period of time within which the action was commenced, and which alleges that prior to the expiration of the period defendant unlawfully took possession of the property, is a sufficient allegation of right to possession. Casto v. Murray [Or.] 81 P. 883. A complaint which alleges that plaintiff was the owner on March 21, 1903, and that on that day it was wrongfully taken from her possession, which complaint was filed on April 16, 1903, is defective in that it does not allege that plaintiff was entitled to possession at the time of the commencement of the action, and this is not cured by the allegation that defendant still unlawfully withholds and detains it. Chan v. Slater [Mont.] 82 P. 657.

16. Perry County Bank v. Rankin, 73 Ark. 589, 86 S. W. 279, 84 S. W. 725.

17. Where plaintiff alleged special ownership of property under a mortgage which he alleged was assigned to him for a valuable consideration, and defendant denied generally the ownership of the plaintiff and alleged payment of the note, he did not put in issue the assignment. Perry County Bank v. Rankin, 73 Ark. 589, 86 S. W. 279. A complaint alleging title will not sustain proof of a special property. Baker v. McDonald [Neb.] 104 N. W. 923.

18. King v. Morris [N. J. Law] 62 A. 1006.

property, before an action of replevin can be maintained against an officer who has levied an attachment or execution upon it, the giving of the prescribed notice must be alleged.[19] Where a trustee under a trust deed sued out replevin by an affidavit in his own name without adding the word "trustee," this does not prevent him from showing that he held as trustee, and an amendment, if necessary, was properly allowed.[20] A seizure by statutory distress warrant against one in possession of property must in order to be a defense as against the true owner be pleaded as in all respects conformable to the statute,[21] and when not well pleaded the defendant cannot question the sufficiency of a notice given by plaintiff to protect his property against distraint of the possessor's goods.[22] Under a statute which provides that a warehouseman shall not be made defendant in a replevin suit, where he shall have made known to the claimant the name and address of the depositor, he must plead his exemption by way of answer.[23]

A general denial to a complaint in replevin which counts in the detinet puts in issue not only the wrongful detention but the plaintiff's title.[24] Where, after personal service in an action of replevin, a default judgment is entered, on a petition to vacate the judgment on the ground that the complaint was insufficient, the courts will not exact the same strict particularity of pleading as would be required upon a demurrer.[25] A complaint in replevin which bases plaintiff's right upon a certain contract, averments which explain the means whereby plaintiff came into possession and which led up to the making of the contract are matters of inducement and immaterial.[26] Where plaintiff demands judgment for the possession of the "said watch, or for the sum of $75 in case possession thereof cannot be had, and for $75 damages," the allegation of damages will be construed to mean such damages as plaintiff is entitled to recover for the detention of the property.[27] A denial of plaintiff's ownership in the language of the complaint has been held to be sufficient.[28]

A mortgagor and a mortgagee may join as parties plaintiff in an action to recover the property mortgaged, though the possessory right is in only the mortgagor.[29] Where the property of one has been seized and sold under execution against another, the officer having been given notice by the owner of his rights before the sale, there is no misjoinder in making both the sheriff and the execution purchaser parties defendant in an action to recover the property.[30] It is not necessary to join as defendants those who claim an interest or right in the property but do not have possession, their interposition being provided for by statute.[31] In an action of replevin against a state constable to recover mules and wagon which had been seized because hauling contraband liquor, the state is not a necessary party.[32] Where in equitable replevin the bill is retained for the assessment of damages, the property having been shipped out of the state, and the defendant consents to the making of others parties de-

19. Shaw v. Tyrrell [Iowa] 105 N. W. 1006.

20. McCarty v. Key [Miss.] 39 So. 780.

21, 22. Ramsdell v. Seybert, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 133.

23. Hazlett v. Hamilton Storage & Warehouse Co., 94 N. Y. S. 580.

24. Title may be shown in a third party. Stearns v. Early, 96 N. Y. S. 837.

25. Where the petition states the facts which entitle the plaintiff to the possession, but does not allege that he is the owner or entitled to the immediate possession, it will be sustained upon a motion to set aside a default judgment where the defendant had personal service. Thompson v. Caddo County Bank [Okl.] 82 P. 927.

26. Casto v. Murray [Or.] 81 P. 883.

27. Hitchcock v. Wimpleberg, 103 App. Div. 53, 92 N. Y. S. 997.

28. Mills Novelty Co. v. Dunbar [Idaho] 83 P. 932.

29. Longerbeam v. Huston [S. D.] 105 N. W. 743.

30. Mitchell v. McLeod, 127 Iowa, 733, 104 N. W. 349.

31. Hazlett v. Hamilton Storage & Warehouse Co., 94 N. Y. S. 580.

32. Jaro v. Holstein [S. C.] 52 S. E. 870.

fendant, it is too late after the evidence is in to object that they can not be held jointly.[33]

§ 9. Evidence.[33a]—The evidence must be sufficient to identify the property which is the subject matter of the suit.[34] Anything which shows a title carrying immediate possession is admissible for plaintiff.[35] On an issue whether title to bailed property has passed to the bailee, a letter from the bailor to the bailee referring to it as "your" property, is admissible.[36] In an action of replevin to recover goods taken by a sheriff as the property of a third person, where plaintiff claims under a bill of sale from the person from whom the property was taken, and introduces a check in evidence given in payment, dated before the judgment against the third person but not paid until after the levy was made, evidence on the part of the defendant, who claimed that the sale was fraudulent, as to how long it takes a check deposited as this one was to go through the clearing house is admissible.[37]

§ 10. Trial.[38]—Under a statute which provides that in case of transfer of interest the action may be continued by the original parties, unless the court orders the transferee substituted, it is error to dismiss the complaint on proof of appointment of a receiver in another action since the commencement of the action.[39] Where the agent in actual possession of property is made defendant in a replevin suit, and the action is properly brought in the county where he holds the possession, a summons will issue and service may be had in another county upon one who as principal claims the possession as against plaintiff.[40] Where three of four defendants answer and while disclaiming any title or interest in the property themselves allege that they hold possession for the fourth defendant whom they allege to be the true owner, the answer inures to the benefit of the fourth and a default judgment cannot be rendered against him.[41] In a replevin suit to recover property which has been taken from plaintiff's possession, it is only incumbent upon plaintiff to establish his case in chief to prove ownership, the taking and detention of the property by defendant against his consent, and any justification must be established by the defendant.[42] Where in replevin defendant is in possession of the property under a claim of right, the burden is upon plaintiff to establish his right to possession,[43] but where a prima facie right to the property under a trust deed is made out by the plaintiff, it is not error to throw the burden on the defendant to show that it is not embraced in the deed.[44] Where issue is joined on a plea of non detinet in an action of replevin, the burden is on the plaintiff to prove his right of possession.[45]

33. United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Holt, 185 Mass. 97, 69 N. E. 1056.

33a. See 4 C. L. 1290.

34. St. Paul Boom Co. v. Kemp, 125 Wis. 138, 103 N. W. 259.

Evidence sufficient: Where the evidence shows that most of the timber was cut on lands other than defendant's, that plaintiff incurred the expense of cutting, hauling, and sawing, and placed it on the land of defendant which was deeded to plaintiff's wife, the court properly adjudged the title to be in plaintiff. Graham v. Strawsburg [Ky.] 91 S. W. 737.

35. Illustration: Title of seller of beer to kegs is provable against buyer's assignee by showing invoice of sale making such reservation. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Grimmon [Nev.] 81 P. 43.

36. Cox v. Burdett, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 346.

37. Runsdorf v. Coriell [N. J. Law] 63 A. 24.

38. See 4 C. L. 1290.

39. Stearns v. Early, 96 N. Y. S. 837.

40. Central Nat. Bank v. Brooke [Kan.] 81 P. 498.

41. Carpenter v. Ingram [Ark.] 91 S. W. 24.

42. Osmers v. Furey, 32 Mont. 581, 81 P. 345.

43. Defendant was in possession of certain logs which he cut under a claim of right. Plaintiff claimed under a bill of sale from defendant but on trial failed to prove the genuineness of the bill of sale. Judgment rightly entered for defendant without further evidence. Metropolitan Lumber Co. v. McColeman [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 172, 103 N. W. 809. When the plaintiff's right to possession is based upon a title obtained under a mortgage he must show that the mortgagor had title to the property. Martin Bros. & Co. v. Lesan [Iowa] 105 N. W. 996.

44. Where plaintiff claimed the property

In an action in replevin where defendant claims title under a sale by plaintiff, and plaintiff claims that such sale was conditional, the burden is on plaintiff to prove such conditional sale, and the question is one for the jury.[46] Also, the question whether the property belonged to plaintiff and defendant as partners or to plaintiff as an individual is one for the jury,[47] as is the question whether a bailment has been cancelled by agreement and the title vested in the bailee.[48] The fact whether a sale contract has been disaffirmed, thus vesting the title to the goods in the seller, is one for the jury.[49]

Verdict.[50]—A general verdict in replevin implies a finding on every material issue involved in the action.[51] A verdict which does not conform to the instruction of the court is erroneous and will be set aside.[52] A verdict for defendant should be a general finding for the defendant and for damages for the detention on which a proper judgment pro retorno habendo and for damages will issue.[53] Under a statute which provides that in a replevin suit where the jury finds for the party not in possession of the chattels replevied, the jury must fix the value of the property at the time of trial, the verdict must conform to the requirements of the statute,[54] and must be based upon evidence of its value at such time.[55]

§ 11. Judgment and award of damages.[56]—Where the court directs the jury to find who was entitled to the possession of the property, and, if they found plaintiff to be entitled to it, to find its value, a verdict for plaintiff for a specific sum of money is sufficient to sustain an alternative judgment.[57] A judgment which gives the possession of the property to the plaintiff and also awards damages for its value is irregular.[58] A judgment which provides that plaintiff shall return the property to defendant or in lieu thereof pay to defendant a specific sum of money gives the plaintiff an option between returning the property or paying the money and having paid the defendant, the defendant cannot subsequently maintain replevin.[59] The property replevied must be sufficiently described in the judgment as to be identi-

under a trust deed and it was prima facie shown that it was embraced in the trust deed, not error to require a laborer, who claims under a laborer's lien, to prove that it was not embraced in the deed. McCarty v. Key [Miss.] 39 So. 780.

45. Where plaintiff relies for title to the property on a mortgage executed by a third person, and no evidence is introduced to show that the mortgagor had any title or that defendant's possession is in any way connected with the mortgagor, plaintiff cannot recover. Beal v. McKee [Ala.] 39 So. 664.

46. Schenck v. Griffith [Ark.] 86 S. W. 850.

47. Calderwood v. Robertson, 112 Mo. App. 103, 86 S. W. 879.

48. "Lease" of mill to purchaser and alleged breach, followed by transfer of title by consent. Cox v. Burdett, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 346.

49. Cincinnati Punch & Shear Co. v. Thompson [Kan.] 83 P. 998.

50. See 4 C. L. 1291.

51. Not necessary to expressly find that plaintiff was the owner. McGregor v. Lang, 32 Mont. 568, 81 P. 343.

52. Where the court instructs the jury that plaintiff cannot recover the value of a horse which had died in defendant's possession unless defendant's negligence was the cause of its death, a verdict which awarded plaintiff damages for the death of the horse but found that the defendant was guilty of no negligence is erroneous. Burke v. Graham, 106 App. Div. 108, 94 N. Y. S. 559.

53. Whitehill v. Schwartz, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 526.

54. A verdict "we find for the plaintiff in full" is irregular and must be set aside under Municipal Court Act, Laws 1902, p. 1529, § 120. O'Reilly v. Erlanger, 108 App. Div. 318, 95 N. Y. S. 760.

55. Where such value is based upon plaintiff's affidavit filed 27 months before the trial, it is erroneous. Gilroy v. Everson, Hickok Co., 103 App. Div. 574, 93 N. Y. S. 132.

56. See 4 C. L. 1291, 1292.

The measure of damages is treated in the topic Damages, 5 C. L. 904.

57. Hitchcock v. Wimpleberg, 103 App. Div. 53, 92 N. Y. S. 997.

58. Where the judgment is that the plaintiff "retain the property replevied by virtue of the writ of replevin issued," and also awards damages for the value of the property, and the record shows that no property was replevied under the writ, the first part of the judgment is a nullity, and the judgment is valid. Greenberg v. Stevens, 114 Ill. App. 483.

59. Walters v. Walters, 116 Ill. App. 24.

fied.[60] The amount of damages that plaintiff can claim in an action of replevin where possession cannot be had is the market value of the property at the time it was taken or at the time the wrongful detention began,[61] and in determining the market value of property in replevin it is competent to take into consideration the cost price, but such price is simply one of the facts tending to show the market value and is not conclusive,[62] but where possession cannot be had, damages for the wrongful detention may be had, which is the legal rate of interest on the market value where the property has no value except for consumption, but where the property has a usable value which is in excess of the legal rate of interest on its value, the measure of damages is the value of such use during the time detained.[63] In replevin the defendant on recovering damages is entitled to recover the value of the use of the property during period of detention under writ without deduction for its increase in value.[64] The person maliciously procuring replevin to be sued out in order to extort money may be liable for injury to defendant's feelings as well as for taking the property,[65] but not for expense of caring for goods after judgment in the action awarded them to the owner.[66] Defendant may recover exemplary damages from plaintiff where there are circumstances of aggravation,[67] but punitive damages cannot be recovered in South Carolina in an action of claim and delivery.[68]

§ 12. Costs.[69]

§ 13. Review.[70]—Where an issue as to damages is separable from the other issues of the case, a new trial of that issue alone will be ordered where it is incorrect.[71]

§ 14. Liability of plaintiff or his bond, and of receiptors, etc.[72]—In an action of debt on a replevin bond the question of damages is for the jury,[73] and the statement contained in the affidavit for replevin as to the value of the property is prima facie evidence of its value.[74] Where the property has no market value, proof may be made of such facts as tend to show the value or to aid the jury in estimating it,[75] but where the suit was prosecuted to judgment, the amount of the alternative judgment in case the goods be not returned is conclusive measure of damages in a subsequent suit upon plaintiff's bond.[76] In a suit upon a replevin bond the judgment in the replevin action is conclusive upon the question whether or not property was delivered under it.[77]

A plaintiff in replevin action is liable for goods of a third person taken under the writ if he disposes of them after learning of such person's interest.[78] The fact that the principal in a recognizance bond is cited as attorney for the plaintiff in 60. A judgment describing the property as "Twenty-six steers branded 11-11 on the left side, and fish or dove-tail ear-marks, * * * * ten heifers, branded 11-11 on the left side, with fish or dove-tail earmarks," sufficiently describes the property. McGregor v. Lang, 32 Mont. 568, 81 P. 343.

61, 62. Osmers v. Furey, 32 Mont. 581, 81 P. 345.

63. Smith v. Stevens, 33 Colo. 427, 81 P. 35.

64. McGrath v. Wilder, 77 Vt. 431, 60 A. 801.

65, 66. Harris v. Thomas [Mich.] 12 Det Leg. N. 239, 103 N. W. 863.

67. Cox v. Burdett, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 346.

68. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 283 and 299. Tittle v. Kennedy, 71 S. C. 1, 50 S. E. 544.

69, 70. See 4 C. L. 1293.

71. Osmers v. Furey, 32 Mont. 581, 81 P. 345.

72. See 4 C. L. 1293.

The measure of damages recoverable of defendant is treated in Damages, 5 C. L. 904, and such topics as Conversion as Tort, 5 C. L. 753, etc.

73, 74. Farson v. Gilbert, 114 Ill. App. 17.

75. As the cost of manufacturing, transporting it to market, etc. Farson v. Gilbert, 114 Ill. App. 17.

76. Martin v. Hertz, 118 Ill. App. 297.

77. In a suit upon a replevin bond the defendant set up the defense that the property was never delivered to his principal, and, therefore, plaintiff has not been damaged and can not maintain a suit on the bond. Judgment in the replevin action conclusive upon this point. Stafford v. Baker [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 393, 104 N. W. 321.

78. Barley v. Beegle, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 635.

the replevin suit does not make the latter the principal nor relieve the attorney from his liability to indemnify the surety.[79] In an action upon a replevin bond the burden of proof is upon the defendant to prove his title to the goods.[80] The failure to prosecute the action of replevin is a breach of the bond and gives the defendant a right of action to recover at least nominal damages.[81] In an action on a replevin bond by one who had only a lien upon the property, the defense that the lien has been satisfied, and hence the defendant released on his bond, must be specifically pleaded.[82] The sureties on a replevin bond when sued may set up as an absolute and complete defense that the court rendering judgment had no jurisdiction, or that the judgment was obtained by fraud.[83] A statute which provides for an undertaking to answer for "the payment to the defendant of any sum which the judgment awards to him against the plaintiff" has reference to damages relating to the right of possession of the chattel.[84] Where a bond is given to the sheriff to indemnify from claims which may be made against him by separate parties, he may bring one action on the bond for the benefit of all.[85]

In an action on a replevin bond by one claiming title by attachment, where all the evidence is directed to the title at the time of the attachment, an instruction that the "burden is upon defendant to prove title" is not erroneous because it does not state that he must prove title at the time of attachment.[86]

REPLICATION; REPORTED QUESTIONS; REPORTS; REPRESENTATIONS; RES ADJUDICATA; RESCISSION; RESCUE; RES GESTAE; RESIDENCE; RESPONDENTIA; RESTITUTION, see latest topical index.

RESTORING INSTRUMENTS AND RECORDS.

§ 1. Evidence and proof of loss and of contents.[87]—One who relies upon a lost deed to sustain his title must establish its execution, loss, and material parts by clear, satisfactory, and convincing evidence.[88] In an action on a lost note and mortgage the record of a mortgage collateral thereto, admitting the execution of the note to plaintiff's intestate, is admissible, without other evidence of decedent's

79. Hayes v. Bronson [Conn.] 61 A. 549.
80. Fabian v. Traeger, 117 Ill. App. 176.
81. Parker v. Young, 188 Mass. 600, 75 N. E. 98.
82. Where a mortgagee defendant in a replevin suit prevails and brings an action on the replevin bond, the defense that his lien has been satisfied can not be interposed under the general issue. Stafford v. Baker [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 393, 104 Mo. 321.
83. McBrayer v. Jordan [Neb.] 103 N. W. 50.
84. Does not include damages arising out of counterclaims. Dickson v. Bickershoff, 48 Misc. 353, 95 N. Y. S. 585.
85. Koehler v. King, 119 Ill. App. 6.
86. Fabian v. Traeger, 215 Ill. 220, 74 N. E. 131.
87. See 4 C. L. 1294.
88. The findings of the court that the deed was executed, but lost before record and that there were no subsequent purchasers or mortgagees of the land in good faith, were sustained by the evidence. Lloyd v. Simons [Minn.] 105 N. W. 902. The record of a deed which is void because of the improper acknowledgment of the instrument is nevertheless admissible to prove the existence of the deed after its loss (Simmons v. Hewitt [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 188), and a curative deed subsequently executed and properly executed is also admissible. (Id.). To prove the execution of a lost deed, evidence that grantee bought and paid grantor for the land; that the deed which had been destroyed by fire was signed and acknowledged by grantor and wife; that the wife was examined separate and apart from her husband; that the deed was explained to her and she signed it willingly, was admissible (Garrett v. Spradling [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 293), and ownership at the time of his death.[89] In such action it will not be presumed that the note was payable in a bank of the state, nor that the payee intentionally parted with title or possession.[90] An affidavit that the note sued on is lost or destroyed, but plaintiff does not know which, but believes it is one or the other, is a sufficient compliance with the statute relative to actions on lost instruments.[91] Where a will was duly probated in 1854 and the records of the probate court were destroyed by fire in 1889, it was presumed that the clerk of the court duly recorded the will and probate thereof as required by the law in force at that time.[92]

§ 2. Proceedings in equity or otherwise to restore lost papers or instruments.[93]—Originally there was no relief at common law or in equity to decree the re-execution of a deed except as an ancillary remedy to some other relief, as ejectment or to enjoin a recovery and the like,[94] but relief has been provided by statutory enactments.[95] A bill asking to have a lost or destroyed deed restored, and for a record of the decree for complainant's protection, presents a case within a well recognized head of equitable jurisprudence.[96] Where a decree directed the payment of a lost check upon the tendering to defendants of an indemnity bond, the tender of a bond to one of them was not a compliance with the decree.[97]

§ 3. Procedure in equity or under the burnt records act to restore records.[98]

RETRAXIT; RETURNABLE PACKAGE LAWS; RETURNS; REVENUE LAWS; REVERSIONS; REVIEW; REVIVAL OF JUDGMENTS; REVIVOR OF SUITS; REVOCATION, see latest topical index.

REWARDS.

§ 1. Nature and definition.[99]

§ 2. The offer.[1]—An offer by publication of a reward for the discovery of parties concerned in the commission of an offense becomes a valid contract between the testimony of a lawyer that plaintiff consulted him about the title of a tract of land; that deed was given him for examination, which may have been the deed in question, and that he considered the acknowledgment proper, was admissible, and its weight as evidence was for the jury (Id.). The report of a commissioner, appointed under 2 Acts 1881-82, p. 143, c. 821, to supply burned records as to a certain deed was not admissible to show the interest conveyed to the grantee where such report had not been confirmed by the county court or the deed ordered recorded. Alley v. Alley [Ky.] 91 S. W. 291. To establish title under a lost deed, whose existence has been proved by circumstantial evidence, it is sufficient to show possession of part of the land conveyed by it and asserted ownership of the whole. Simmons v. Hewitt [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 188.

89. Embree v. Emmerson [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 44. Evidence held to justify a finding that the note and mortgage were lost and that no part of the indebtedness had been paid. Id.

90. Evidence fairly warranted the conclusion that the note was lost and out of circulation. Embree v. Emmerson [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1110.

91. Rev. St. 1899, § 3854. Hogan v. Kaiser, 113 Mo. App. 711, 88 S. W. 1128. The note being described in the statement to which the affidavit was attached and to which it referred, it was sufficient. Id.

92. Laws 1848, p. 236, c. 157, § 3 (Pasch. Dig., art. 1262). Hymer v. Holyfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 201, 87 S. W. 722.

93. See 4 C. L. 1295.

94. Jones v. Ballou [N. C.] 52 S. E. 254.

95. Chapter 6, p. 37, Pub. Laws 1893, gives the right to bring an action to prevent a cloud upon title, and plaintiff is entitled to this additional relief besides the decree for setting up and recording the deed, whether such relief is prayed for or not (Clark's Code [3d Ed.] § 233 [3]), the remedy before the clerk in case of a lost deed, given by Code § 56, being an additional and not an exclusive remedy. Jones v. Ballou [N. C.] 52 S. E. 254.

96. Comp. Laws 1897, § 448, conferring jurisdiction on chancery courts in proceedings to quiet title does not restrict their jurisdiction in matters before cognizable by them. Blackford v. Olmstead [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 286, 104 N. W. 47.

97. Moore v. Durnan [N. J. Eq.] 62 A. 327.

98. See 4 C. L. 1295.

99. See 2 C. L. 1521.

the offerers and the acceptors by performance upon the discovery contemplated,[2] but it does not become a "contract in writing" in the statutory sense.[3] Where a statute authorized the county court to offer a reward for apprehension and arrest, but prohibited payment until final conviction, and the court offered a reward for "apprehension and conviction," the statute and offer construed together were an offer to pay a reward after conviction for the apprehension of the felon.[4] The statute of Mississippi, providing for the payment of a reward to any person who arrests any one who has killed another and is fleeing, contemplates its payment only upon the allowance by the circuit court and by the board of supervisors, and the circuit court cannot order it paid without allowance by the board.[5] A resolution of a county board of supervisors which offered a reward for information or evidence to convict persons guilty of crimes committed before its adoption, but offered no reward for the conviction of persons committing offenses afterward, was invalid and not binding.[6]

§ 3. Earning reward.[7]—To entitle one to recover a reward he must show a rendition of the services required in the offer, after knowledge of, and with a view of obtaining, the reward,[8] and one who apprehends a felon before the offer of a reward, and delivers him to the proper authorities without any knowledge of or reliance on a reward, is not entitled to it.[9] Where, under statutory authority, a reward was offered for the "apprehension and conviction" of a felon, a claimant who made the apprehension on his own initiative, at his own expense and hazard, put the party in the hands of the proper officer and gave evidence at the trial from which conviction resulted,[10] was entitled to the reward. Where the reward offered was for the discovery of the persons who committed a certain crime, the right to the reward accrued at the time of their actual discovery without regard to their conviction.[11] A constable is not entitled to the reward provided for by the act for the apprehension of horse thieves,[12] but a policeman of a municipality in one state is not precluded from claiming a reward offered by authorities of another state for the apprehension of a fugitive from justice.[13]

RIGHT OF PRIVACY; RIGHT OF PROPERTY, see latest topical index.

RIOT.[14]

The word "riot" as used in statutes making a municipality liable for damages to property is construed to mean a riot as defined at common law and not as defined by the Penal Code.[15] Under such statutes a municipality is liable only for the damages which might have been prevented by proper diligence.[16] An in-

1. See 4 C. L. 1309.
2. Cunningham v. Fiske [N. M.] 83 P. 789.
3. Within the meaning of Comp. Laws 1897, § 2915. Cunningham v. Fiske [N. M.] 83 P. 789.
4. Rev. St. 1899, § 2474. Smith v. Vernon County, 188 Mo. 501, 87 S. W. 949.
5. Code 1892, § 1387. Tate County v. Moore [Miss.] 39 So. 781.
6. People v. Brower, 97 N. Y. S. 349.
7. See 4 C. L. 1310.
8. Couch v. State [N. D.] 103 N. W. 942. He must establish his substantial compliance with all the conditions of the offer of reward. Smith v. Vernon County, 188 Mo. 501, 87 S. W. 949.
9. Smith v. Vernon County, 188 Mo. 501, 87 S. W. 949.
10. Rev. St. 1899, § 2474. The fact that he was paid witness fees did not preclude him from recovering the reward. Smith v. Vernon County, 188 Mo. 501, 87 S. W. 949.
11. Cunningham v. Fiske [N. M.] 83 P. 789.
12. He is a public officer and bound to execute criminal process. The act applies to persons under no special obligation to arrest the thief. Commonwealth v. Lane, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 149.
13. Smith v. Vernon County, 188 Mo. 501, 87 S. W. 949.
14. See 4 C. L. 1310.
15. General Municipal Law, Laws 1892, p. 1740, c. 685, § 21. Adamson v. New York, 110 App. Div. 58, 96 N. Y. S. 907.
16. Where the police quelled all disturbdictment charging the offense of riot in the language of the statute is sufficient.[17] In a prosecution for the crime of riot, evidence which tends to show the conduct of the defendant,[18] and the resultant terror of the people,[19] is admissible. An acquittal on a charge of assault with intent to kill is a bar to a subsequent prosecution on a charge of riot based upon the same facts.[20]

RIPARIAN OWNERS.

Scope of title.—This topic includes matters relating to ownership and use of soil bordering on and under water, accretion and reliction, and rights incidental thereto. Matters relating to water, navigable or otherwise, are treated elsewhere.[21]

§ 1. Persons who are riparian owners, and title to lands under water.[22]—The ownership of the bed of tidal rivers is vested in the state so far as the tide ebbs and flows.[23] That a river is a tidal stream is a fact of which the court will take judicial notice.[24] At common law the title to soil under navigable water was in the crown and was held for the benefit of all the public for commerce, navigation, and fishery.[25] The shore owner at common law took to high water mark on navigable waters,[26] but above tide water he took to center of the stream.[27] While most states[28] have abandoned the common-law test of navigability, they still retain the common-law rules as to questions of boundary and ownership.[29] As between itself and riparian owners each state must decide for itself the ownership of the beds of navigable streams.[30] They widely diverge, however, in the solution of this question.[31] A grantor may separate flats from uplands and convey the one and retain ances as soon as they were notified, and the city had no reason to anticipate such a riot there is no liability. Adamson v. New York 110 App. Div. 58, 96 N. Y. S. 907.

17. Penal Code 1895, § 354. Lock v. State, 122 Ga. 730, 50 S. E. 932.

18. Where the riot consisted of throwing stones, etc., against the house of the prosecutor, a sack of stones picked up about the house after the riot is admissible. Johnson v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 880.

19. That the wife of prosecutor fainted. Johnson v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 880.

20. Lock v. State, 122 Ga. 730, 50 S. E. 932.

21. See Waters and Water Supply, 4 C. L. 1824; Navigable Waters, 6 C. L. 742.

22. See 4 C. L. 1311.

23. McCarter v. Hudson County Water Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 710.

24. McCarter v. Hudson County Water Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 710; Mobile Docks Co. v. Mobile [Ala.] 40 So. 205.

25. Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill. 108, 75 N. E. 783.

26. Navigable waters at common law were those in which the tide ebbed and flowed. Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill. 108, 75 N. E. 783.

27. Streams above tide water were not navigable at common law. Id.

28, 29. Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill. 108, 75 N. E. 783. In Illinois the common-law test of navigability will not apply, and waters which are navigable in fact are navigable in law. Id. The question of where fresh and salt water meet, or whether the water is impregnated with salt, is not considered in determining the fact of navigable waters, McCarter v. Hudson County Water Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 710.

30. Kinkead v. Turgeon [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1061.

31. In Kinkead v. Turgeon [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1063, Oldham, C., says: "It is plain that we stand at the parting of ways in regard to the decisions of the state courts of this country on the question of title to river beds of the class in dispute. It is also apparent that each of these two divergent lines of authority start from a basis both sound and sane, and that the result of each of these lines of decisions have been sanctioned and approved by the Supreme Court of the U. S." Kinkead v. Turgeon [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1061. In Nebraska the title to the bed of fresh water navigable streams is in the state, and the right of riparian owners is bounded by the banks of the stream. Id. In New York riparian owners hold only to the high water mark. In re Driveway in New York, 46 Misc. 157, 93 N. Y. S. 1107. Consequently it was proper for the commissioners to refuse to award damages for land under water taken for speedway, or for land filled in by the city lying below high water mark. Id. Under the colonial ordinance of Massachusetts of 1641-47, the owner of upland adjoining tide water prima facie owns to low water mark, and does so in fact unless the presumption is rebutted by proof to the contrary. Whitmore v. Brown [Me.] 61 A. 985. Under the laws of Pennsylvania the riparian owner has an absolute title in fee only to the high water mark, and a title between high and low water mark qualified by the right of the public to navigate; consequently, in an action to recover for land condemned for railway purposes, the riparian owner could recover for his land to low water mark. McGunnegle v. Pittsburg & L. E. R. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 988. It was not error to refuse to permit the amendment of description of land condemned after trial had proceeded to an advanced stage without objection, especially when the jury was instructed that they should give damages only for land actually owned by riparian proprietors. Id. In Missouri the riparian proprietor owns only to low water mark. Frank v. Goddin [Mo.] 91 S. W. 1057.

the other,[32] hence it has always been held that the description "to the shore and then by the shore" unqualified excludes the shore, which is the flats between high and low water mark,[33] but a conveyance by an individual who owns a tideway, who bounds his deed upon the river, is presumed to include the tideway.[34] Not so if the same conveyance were made by a municipality, in which case the opposite presumption prevails and express words are necessary to convey the tideway.[35] One may obtain title to flats by adverse possession.[36] So where a city in a previous action, as co-defendant with the railway company, defended on the ground of dedication to public use and conveyance to the railway company of property abutting on a river,[37] and where it has permitted the railway company in reliance upon its title from the city to expend vast sums of money in the improvement of the land, the city is estopped from asserting title thereto.[38] However, an occasional use of a river front by the public for the landing of boats is not inconsistent with the title thereto of a railroad company or its use otherwise for railroad purposes.[39] A grant of lands described by metes and bounds carries with it lands under water within those bounds.[40] Land fronting on a small cove of a river does not front on the river onto which the cove opens.[41] Barren islands of no utility in the waters of a great pond are public,[42] and title to them rests in the state, unless previously conveyed away, if the pond is owned by the state.[43]

§ 2. Rights attendant on change in bed of stream or in shore line.[44]—Each state may settle for itself the title to lands formed by accretions within its boundaries.[45] Accretions or relictions in tide water rivers belonged to riparian owners at common law.[46] Now, all accreted or reclaimed land goes with the fee to which it is attached.[47] An accretion to the mainland bordering on a river but separated

32. Whitmore v. Brown [Me.] 61 A. 985.

33. This may be qualified by phrases in the deed. Whitmore v. Brown [Me.] 61 A. 985. Words, "to the head of Gilpatrick's Cove," construed to mean to the high water mark. Id.

34. In re New York, 182 N. Y. 361, 75 N. E. 156.

35. In 1686, the King conveyed tideway lands on the eastern bank of the Hudson to the City of New York. In 1701 the city deeded a tract of land abutting on the river and tideway to De Kay. Held that his successors did not take the tideway under a deed calling for the river as a boundary. In re New York, 182 N. Y. 361, 75 N. E. 156.

36. Held no adverse possession shown. Whitmore v. Brown [Me.] 61 A. 985.

37, 38. Sioux City v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 183.

39. A strip of river front, conveyed to the railroad and used by them for railroad purposes, with an occasional permissive use to the public for landing boats, was claimed by the city of Sioux City to have been diverted to such public use as to constitute a public levee, although the actual public levee was on the opposite side of the river. Sioux City v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 183.

40. The Andros Patent of 1677 construed to carry with it the grant of lands under Oyster Bay. Coudert v. Underhill, 107 App. Div. 335, 95 N. Y. S. 134.

41. Plaintiff sues for closing a small cove off a river on which her premises are situated, claiming her riparian rights in the river were injured. Held that her riparian rights were restricted to the cove. The only right in the river was the right of access through the waters of the cove to the river from the land or vice versa. Richards v. New York, etc., R. Co., 77 Conn. 501, 60 A. 295.

42, 43. Attorney-General v. Herrick [Mass.] 76 N. E. 1045.

44. See 4 C. L. 1312.

45. Frank v. Goddin [Mo.] 91 S. W. 1057.

46. Kinkead v. Turgeon [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1061.

47. Sioux City v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 183.

by a small creek belongs nevertheless to the original mainland,[48] but accretions in the stream and not connected with the shore do not.[49] However, in case of avulsion or any sudden, violent, and visible cause of change, the former thread of the stream continues to mark the limits of riparian lands,[50] nor does the doctrine of accretion apply to land reclaimed by human agencies.[51] The essential point is that the accretion or submergence[52] must be gradual and imperceptible.[53] In states where the water line is the boundary, it remains so no matter how far it shifts or what may be its relation to former boundaries, subject only to be reshifted to its former location by accretion or recession.[54] Islands springing up in navigable streams do not belong to riparian owners.[55] The isolation as well as the emergence of land to make an island must be permanent and not like a mere sand bar,[56] and depends on the stability of the soil and the size and permanence of the channels around it.[57] Accretions belong to the owner of the abutting soil. He may sell the upland and reserve the accretions.[58] Although an island, in a patent thereto, is conveyed by description, yet when the plain import of the document is to convey the entire island it will be held to include accessions and relictions.[59]

§ 3. Rights incidental to riparian ownership.[60]—The "shore" and soil under water are entirely separate and distinct from "riparian rights,"[61] and the two must not be confused. Riparian rights originate in and are dependent upon the ownership of upland contiguous to and attingent on water,[62] whether stream, lake, or ocean, and cannot extend beyond the original survey as granted by the government.[63]

48. A river before receding left alluvial deposits. A creek which flowed into it flowed over part of the deposits. The part thus separated from the mainland nevertheless belonged to it. Dowdle v. Wheeler [Ark.] 89 S. W. 1002.

49. Evidence held sufficient to show that bar formed in the stream and was not an accretion to the shore. Mallory v. Brademyer [Ark.] 89 S. W. 551.

50. McBride v. Steinweden [Kan.] 83 P. 822. Where a man owns to the water's edge and there is a sudden or marked change in the shore line or the course of a stream, the adjoining owner is not thereby divested of his title. Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill. 108, 75 N. E. 783.

51. In re Driveway in New York, 46 Misc. 157, 93 N. Y. S. 1107. Where land was filled in for speedway purposes, it is not accretion in law. Id.

52. If a man's title is to the water's edge and the water by gradual and imperceptible degrees encroaches upon a man's land, it changes his boundaries accordingly. Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill. 108, 75 N. E. 783.

53. Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill. 108, 75 N. E. 783. Where a man's land was submerged by artificial means, such as the opening of a canal and the putting in of a lock so as to raise the level of the water in a swamp 4 or 5 ft., the submergence did not deprive owner of his title to the lands. Id.

54. Frank v. Goddin [Mo.] 91 S. W. 1057. Where by a shift in the channel of the Missouri river covering a period of 50 years, which extended the Kansas boundaries 2 miles, the center of the main channel continued to be the boundary of the states and the estates of riparian proprietors. McBride v. Steinweden [Kan.] 83 P. 822. If in the void space, created by the action of a stream, new land formations spring up and become attached to the old survey by accretions, they belong to it, but if they remain islands, they do not. Frank v. Goddin [Mo.] 91 S. W. 1057.

55. Frank v. Goddin [Mo.] 91 S. W. 1057. In Missouri under article 6, c. 122, Rev. St. 1899, islands formed by alluvial deposits in navigable streams belong to the respective counties in which they appear, and are subject to disposition as swamp lands for the benefit of the public schools. Id.

56. Instruction sustained. McBride v. Steinweden [Kan.] 83 P. 822. Whether emerged land in a stream is an island or a bar is for the jury. Id.

57. McBride v. Steinweden [Kan.] 83 P. 822. Evidence held sufficient to show that land was a bar and not an island. Id.

58. Minor's Heirs v. New Orleans [La.] 38 So. 999.

59. Frank v. Goddin [Mo.] 91 S. W. 1057.

60. See 4 C. L. 1314.

61. Hence an act which dealt with the fee of lands but whose title mentioned only "riparian rights" was unconstitutional. Mobile Docks Co. v. Mobile [Ala.] 40 So. 205. The phrase "riparian rights" cannot be separated into its component parts so as to give the word "rights" a broader meaning. It cannot be made to include the right or title to the shore and soil. Id.

62. Mobile Docks Co. v. Mobile [Ala.] 40 So. 205; Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 848.

63. Watkins Land Co. v. Clements, 98 Tex. 578, 86 S. W. 733. A "shore" as used in this connection has been defined to be the land on the margin of the sea or lake or river; the space between high and low water mark; that space alternately covered and uncovered by the flood and ebb of the tide.

They attach to and are appurtenant to the upland and not to the soil under water.[84] They are private property and pass inferentially by the grant of the land unless previously sold or expressly reserved.[65] All jurisdictions protect them from any invasion or appropriation for private purposes or for any purpose save that of navigation.[66] Even the government cannot interfere with them for purposes other than navigation except upon due compensation,[67] consequently, when the land of a riparian owner is taken for any purpose there is a liability,[68] but if the invasion for purposes of navigation affects only the rights, then there is no liability.[69] Riparian owners on a cove have the right of access by water to and from their uplands,[70] the right to wharf out in their front,[71] and the right of reclamation or accretion.[72] Courts differ on the question as to whether the right of access to or from a river can be destroyed by the state without compensation.[73] By statute[74] in Alabama a riparian owner on a bay may plant oysters and make such use of the waters as is needed to raise and market them,[75] but this will not imply an exclusive use for all purposes, and a co-riparian owner may use a channel for ingress and egress from the bay.[76] The common law recognized the exclusive right to fish in the owner of the subaqueous soil.[77] In Illinois the common law prevails as to the right to hunt and fish.[78] The rights to hunt and fish are concomitant.[79] The owner of the land has no right to put any structure or filling into a navigable stream beyond low water mark.[80] The riparian owner has no property in the water except that which he has abstracted.[81] The rights of riparian owners on a navigable water are subordinate to rights of navigation.[82] The owner of upland has no right to trespass upon the property of another to reach navigable water,[83] but if the land intervening between the upland and the navigable waters belong to the state, the upland owner may use them to reach the water.[84] A state has the same rights as riparian owner that an individual has.[85]

It is synonymous with "beach." Mobile Docks Co. v. Mobile [Ala.] 40 So. 205.

64. Mobile Docks Co. v. Mobile [Ala.] 40 So. 205.

65, 66, 67, 68. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 848.

69. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 855.

70. Richards v. New York, etc., R. Co., 77 Conn. 501, 60 A. 295.

71. Richards v. New York, etc., R. Co., 77 Conn. 501, 60 A. 295. Although a riparian owner's land is situated on a cove opposite its mouth, this gives him no right to wharf out to and reclaim in the river, as it would be inconsistent with the rights of other riparian owners of the cove. Id.

72. Within the cove. Richards v. New York, etc., R. Co., 77 Conn. 501, 60 A. 295. In this case the railroad company built an embankment across a part of the mouth of the cove which interfered to a considerable degree with the access to river by riparian owners of cove, but their enumerated rights in cove were not invaded. Held that they had no cause of action. Id. The right of access in case of riparian proprietors on a cove to and from river, is a private right distinguished from the public right to navigate the cove. Id.

73. Richards v. New York, etc., R. Co., 77 Conn. 501, 60 A. 295.

74, 75. Code 1896, c. 84. The riparian proprietor may plant oysters 600 yards in front of his land. Cain & Simonson [Ala.] 39 So. 571.

76. Such owner may not ride over any part of the bay, except over the general channel to and from his own premises. Cain v. Simonson [Ala.] 39 So. 571.

77. Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill. 108, 75 N. E. 783.

78. In Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill. 108, 75 N. E. 783, a man's soil was inundated by the flooding of swamp lands through a canal. Held he retained the sole and exclusive right to hunt and fish on the waters over his own soil subject to the public's easement of navigation, and such regulation as the state may provide.

79. Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill. 108, 75 N. E. 783.

80. McGunnegle v. Pittsburg & L. E. R. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 988.

81. McCarter v. Hudson County Water Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 710.

82. See Navigable Waters, 6 C. L. 742.

83. An upland owner cannot build a dock from his land across the land of the town to a stream. Coudert v. Underhill, 107 App. Div. 335, 95 N. Y. S. 134.

84. Coudert v. Underhill, 107 App. Div. 335, 95 N. Y. S. 134.

85. McCarter v. Hudson County Water Co. [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 710.

§ 4. Subjection to public easements.[86]—A person owning land abutting upon a navigable stream holds his rights in the stream subject to the servitude of the government to improve said stream for purposes of navigation and commerce,[87] since the public has an easement of navigation in all waters deep enough for useful commerce.[88] There is no natural or necessary connection between the easement of navigation, which is of the same character as a public highway, and the right to hunt and fish, where such easement exists.[89] In Louisiana, battures formed within the limits of incorporated towns or cities are subject to a public easement to the extent necessary to commerce, navigation, public highways and streets.[90]

§ 5. Action for protection of riparian rights.[91]—Riparian owners may sue at any time for loss of riparian rights, even after selling the abutting land.[92] Where it is evident that a commission erred in matters of law in awarding damages for the taking of riparian rights and lands, their report must be set aside.[93] Prescription will not run against a batture used by the city for public easements.[94] By statute,[95] it is the duty of the courts in Louisiana to determine what parts of a batture are and are not necessary for public use.[96] Where injury is caused to a riparian owner's rights by the action of several mine owners acting independently, and in an action against one of them there is no effort to prove the amount contributed by the other mines to the injury, or to show the jury the actual injury for which the defendant alone is responsible, the jury cannot be required to divide the amount of the injury equally among them, and return a verdict against the defendant for only its aliquot part thereof.[97]

ROBBERY.

§ 1. Nature and elements.[98]—Robbery consists of the unlawful and felonious[99] taking and asportation of the personal property of another by violence or

86. See 4 C. L. 1316.

87. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 848.

88. In Illinois the ownership of the soil is immaterial where waters are insufficiently deep to afford a channel for useful commerce. Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill. 108, 75 N. E. 783.

89. Schulte v. Warren, 218 Ill. 108, 75 N. E. 783.

90. This does not, however, include a public servitude in favor of railroads. Minor's Heirs v. New Orleans [La.] 38 So. 999.

91. See 4 C. L. 1316.

92. Held that one who sold after the filing of notice of condemnation proceedings was presumptively injured in the selling price of the land and hence entitled to damages. Waterford Electric Light, Heat & Power Co. v. Reed, 94 N. Y. S. 551.

93. A commission awarded damages of only $100 to a riparian owner for depriving him wholly of his riparian rights, under the erroneous instruction of their counsel that the riparian owner was not deprived of the fee in the land condemned, nor of access to the land, and secondly, that the riparian proprietor had lost his interest in the question of damages through the sale of his land. Waterford Electric Light, Heat & Power Co. v. Reed, 94 N. Y. S. 551.

94. New Orleans held certain accretions for public uses for a number of years. No prescriptive rights against the lawful heirs arose. Minor's Heirs v. New Orleans [La.] 38 So. 999.

95. Section 318, Rev. Stat. 1870.

96. Minor's Heirs v. New Orleans [La.] 38 So. 999.

97. Upson Coal & Mining Co. v. Williams, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 293. The measure of damages to a riparian owner, caused by the wash from mines poured into the stream above him, is the difference in the value of the land before and after the injury occurred, and not the depreciated rental value from the date of the occurrence of the injury, and it is consequently competent for a plaintiff in such a case to prove the nature and extent of the injuries complained of and the amount of loss sustained. Id.

98. See 4 C. L. 1317.

99. Unlawful taking of property from the person or presence of another by force or fear amounts to robbery only when done with a felonious intent, and intent is not as a matter of law presumed from such taking. State v. O'Malley [N. D.] 103 N. W. 421. Where one takes his own property by force or fear from another who has the legal right to the possession, under a mistaken belief that he has a right to the possession, by putting him in fear.[1] The statutory crime of robbery by assault with intent to kill, if resisted, supersedes the common-law robbery[2] and the statutory crime of "felonious assault" with a dangerous weapon with intent to rob does not include robbery.[3] In those states where the common-law crime of robbery has been superseded by a statutory crime, a finding and commitment to the effect that one has been convicted of robbery does not describe a crime known to law.[4] A rubber hose loaded with lead is construed to be a dangerous weapon within the meaning of those statutes which make an assault with a dangerous weapon an element of the first degree of robbery.[5]

While the taking must be against the will and without the consent of the victim, the fact that a person, anticipating that he might be robbed, marks the property so as to be able to detect the robber is not such consent as to absolve the person so robbing from criminality.[6]

Whether an attempt to commit a crime has been made is determined solely by the condition of the actor's mind and his conduct in the attempted consummation.[7]

Defense.—Though officers may use force in searching a prisoner, and may lawfully remove valuables from his person for safe keeping, it is robbery if the search is made with the intent to take the valuables for their own use and use force to obtain the same.[8]

§ 2. Indictment and prosecution. A. Indictment.[9]—All the elements of the crime must be averred with certainty.[10] Substantial conformity to statutory forms ordinarily suffices,[11] even though they do not embody common-law averments such as ownership of property,[12] and asportation may be omitted if the statutory definition of the crime does not include it.[13] Responsibility of accused for the force or fear cannot be eked out by intendment or inference.[14] It is not necessary to allege he is not guilty of robbery, there being no felonious intent. Triplett v. Com. [Ky.] 91 S. W. 281. And see Tones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 722, 88 S. W. 217, as to intent to steal by officers searching a prisoner.

1. Triplett v. Com. [Ky.] 91 S. W. 281; State v. Stebbens, 188 Mo. 387, 87 S. W. 460. Where, after making the arrest and taking the prisoner to jail, the officers, without his consent, backed him up against the wall and held his hands up while one of them extracted money from his pocket, sufficient force was used to constitute robbery. Tones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 722, 88 S. W. 217.

2, 3. People v. Scofield [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 654, 105 N. W. 610.

4. People v. Powler [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 656, 105 N. W. 611.

5. People v. Du Veau, 105 App. Div. 381, 94 N. Y. S. 225.

6. Tones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 722, 88 S. W. 217.

7. Where defendant suggested the crime, which if consummated would have clearly been robbery, furnished his accomplice with the means of carrying out the plans, and was present to receive the results, he is guilty of an attempt to commit robbery where the crime is not consummated because of some outside force. People v. Du Veau, 105 App. Div. 381, 94 N. Y. S. 225.

8. Tones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 722, 88 S. W. 217.

9. See 4 C. L. 1317.

10. Held sufficient: An indictment charging that on a certain date, and other days before and since, within 12 months last past, "in the county aforesaid," defendant did feloniously, etc., steal one diamond pin, of the personal property of V., of the value of $35, stolen and carried away by defendant from the person of V., without his consent and by putting him in fear. Commonwealth v. Finn, 27 Ky. L. R. 771, 86 S. W. 693.

11. An indictment which charges the accused "with having feloniously taken five bills of the denomination of $5 each of the lawful money of the United States of America, the property of A. B., from his person and against his will, by violence to his person, or by putting him in such fear as unwillingly to part with the same," is sufficient. Toliver v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 801.

12. Under B. & C. Comp. § 1305, which prescribes the form of stating the crime as "feloniously took a gold watch (or as the case may be) from the person of C. D., and against his will, by violence to his person," an indictment need not state the name of the owner of the property taken. State v. Eddy [Or.] 81 P. 941.

13. An information for robbery, following the language of the statute and charging that the accused did "forcibly and feloniously take from the person" of the prosecuting witness, is not defective in that it does not allege that the accused "carried away" the property. State v. Smith [Wash.] 82 P. 918.

14. The indictment, after alleging that defendants took certain described property the means whereby the victim was put in fear.[15] The description in the indictment of the property is sufficient if it enables the jury to determine whether the property proved to have been taken is the property described in the indictment,[16] and to enable the court to judicially know that the property could have been the subject-matter of the offense charged.[17] Under an information charging robbery, the accused may be convicted of pocket picking,[18] and in a prosecution under a statute imposing a penalty for robbery where the robber is armed with a dangerous weapon and has an intent to kill if resisted, the accused may be convicted of an assault with intent to rob,[19] but not of common-law robbery.[20] Proof that the robbery was accomplished by both force and fear is no variance from an indictment which alleges that it was accomplished by fear,[21] and where it is alleged that the accused committed the robbery by force and by putting the person robbed in fear, the offence is complete if either allegation is proven;[22] but under an indictment for robbery by force or intimidation, a conviction cannot be had for statutory robbery by sudden taking from the person.[23]

(§ 2) B. Evidence.[24]—In order to convict of robbery it is not necessary to prove the taking of all the property alleged in the indictment to have been taken, proof that any portion was taken being sufficient.[25] It is sufficient if the substance of the allegations be proven.[26] Evidence is admissible to prove that the accused was in possession of the means alleged to have been used to commit the robbery.[27] While it is necessary that the property taken have value, it is not necessary to prove that a "nickel" is lawful current coin or its value. The court will take judicial notice of those facts.[28]

Evidence that the prosecuting witness stated prior to the trial that it was his brother that was robbed and that he had not lost any money is not substantive evidence, but is admissible as affecting the credibility of the prosecuting witness.[29] Where the robbery is alleged to have been committed by putting the victim in fear, actual fear need not be strictly and precisely proved, as the law will presume fear where there appears to be just grounds for it.[30] Evidence of willful and unlawful withholding by officers of money taken from a prisoner under the right to search is competent to prove a present intent to appropriate it, and if obtained through force or fear, amounts to robbery.[31]

"wrongfully and feloniously" from the person of one William Dompire, continued: "That the said money was unlawfully and feloniously taken from the person of said Dompire, against his will and by violence to his person and by putting him in fear of force and violence." Insufficient, does not state that defendants put him in fear. State v. Eddy [Or.] 81 P. 941.

15, 16, 17. State v. Sanders [N. D.] 103 N. W. 419.

18. State v. Miller [Kan.] 80 P. 947.

19. People v. Powler [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 656, 105 N. W. 611.

20. People v. Scofield [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 654, 105 N. W. 610.

21. State v. Sanders [N. D.] 103 N. W. 419.

22. Tones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 722, 88 S. W. 217.

23. Pride v. State [Ga.] 53 S. E. 192.

24. See 4 C. L. 1318.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain conviction where the prosecuting witness was shot and robbed. Lewis v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 928.

25. Where the indictment for robbery alleged the taking of a dime and two nickels, and the proof, supplemented by judicial knowledge, was sufficient with respect to the nickels, it was not indispensable to make proof with regard to the dime. Barddell v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 975; State v. Sanders [N. D.] 103 N. W. 419.

26. Information charged the accused with taking personal property of the prosecuting witness. Evidence showed him to be the owner of only a part of the property. Sufficient to sustain the conviction. State v. Smith [Wash.] 82 P. 918.

27. Where robbery was accomplished by putting the party robbed in fear by exhibiting a revolver, it is competent to show that the accused was in possession of a revolver a few days after the crime. State v. Gordon [La.] 39 So. 625.

28, 29. Barddell v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 975.

30, 31. Tones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 722, 88 S. W. 217.

(§ 2) C. Instructions.[32]—As in other crimes the instructions should conform to the issues raised by the pleadings and evidence.[33] The mere reiteration of the statute defining the crime of robbery does not sufficiently charge that the taking must be "fraudulent."[34]

RULES OF COURT; SAFE DEPOSITS, see latest topical index.

SALES.

§ 1. Definition; distinction from other transactions.[35]—A sale is a transmutation of property, or a right, from one person to another in consideration of a sum of money[36] as opposed to barters, exchanges, and gifts.[37] As used in this topic

32. See 4 C. L. 1318.

33. Under an indictment charging robbery by assault, it is not necessary for the court to define assault and battery in its instructions, it being sufficient to define assault. Bollen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 148, 86 S. W. 1025. The defense having been made that accused laid hands on the prosecuting witness intending to protect him from accused's companion, the charge should have been specific on the question of intent. Id.

34. Bollen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 148, 86 S. W. 1025.

35. See 4 C. L. 1319.

36. Lucas v. County Recorder of Cass County [Neb.] 106 N. W. 217. "Sale" in its broadest sense comprehends any contract for the transfer of property from one person to another for a valuable consideration. James v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 295. A sale is a contract by which for a consideration one transfers to another property or an interest therein. Yick Sung v. Herman [Cal. App.] 83 P. 1089. Consideration or price is an essential element. First Nat. Bank v. McIntosh & Peters Live Stock & Commission Co. [Kan.] 84 P. 535. Where the owner of cattle delivers them to another under an express agreement that such person's interest is what he may put on the cattle, held a bailment and not a sale. Id.

37. See Exchange of Property, 5 C. L. 1382, and Gifts, 5 C. L. 1587.

the term is limited to cases wherein the subject-matter is personalty.[38] The intent of the parties as expressed in the contract governs in determining the character of the transaction.[39] In ascertaining this intent the court must look at the entire transaction[40] and will not be bound by the name given it by the parties.[41] The contract being ambiguous and uncertain, parol evidence of surrounding circumstances,[42] of other similar transactions between the parties,[43] and of the acts of the parties under the transaction in question,[44] may be considered. Where provisions must be interpretated in the light of surrounding circumstances, the intent of the parties is for the jury.[45] When the question is presented in the Federal courts the character of the contract is to be determined by the local law.[46] That the goods are billed as if sold,[47] that the consignee is to sell upon terms fixed by himself and is bound to pay the consignor a fixed price,[48] are often deemed indicative of a sale. Transition of title either present or contemplated is an essential element of a sale,[49] consequently, a provision that title shall not pass, being unnecessary if the transaction is not a sale, is often deemed of importance in determining the intent of the parties.[50]

A sale should be distinguished from a bailment,[51] option,[52] lease,[53] loan,[54]

38. Electricity is personal property. Civ. Code §§ 654, 655, 663, construed. Terrace Water Co. v. San Antonio Light & Power Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 562. Sales of realty, see Vendors and Purchasers, 4 C. L. 1769.

39. First Nat. Bank v. McIntosh & Peters Live Stock & Commission Co. [Kan.] 84 P. 535.

40. D. A. Tompkins Co. v. Monticello Cotton Oil Co., 137 F. 625.

41. In re Wells, 140 F. 752. Where defendant proposed to sell plaintiffs an unlimited quantity of bolts at 80 per cent off, f. o. b. seller's place of business, at 5 per cent commission, which bolts he was to get under a contract which he had with nonresident manufacturers, and plaintiffs replied accepting the offer and requesting that defendant place the order with the factory and advise plaintiffs how soon they could look for shipment, held defendant was a seller of the bolts and not plaintiffs' agent to buy the same. Kelley, Maus & Co. v. Sibley [C. C. A.] 137 F. 586.

42. A written order purporting to be part of a continuing transaction in which the writer stated that he had not been able to sell much up to that time but thought that he would do better in the future, and then authorized plaintiff to ship to him at once 2,000 pounds of white lead, if possible "at five cents," held not a definite contract of sale and parol evidence was admissible to explain its nature. Weir v. Long [Ala.] 39 So. 974.

43. Where question was whether defendant was a buyer or a factor, evidence of defendant's employe, who had taken the order in question and had been connected with other transactions between the parties, that he did not know of any goods being bought on commission, held admissible. Weir v. Long [Ala.] 39 So. 974. Defendant claiming to be a factor, held error to exclude evidence in regard to the defendant's payment of previous bills for goods alleged to have been similarly sold. Id.

44. American Seeding Mach. Co. v. Stearns, 109 App. Div. 192, 95 N. Y. S. 830. So held where contract in the form of one of sale provided that "good purchasers' notes, indorsed by agents * * * will be accepted in settlement." Id.

45. Weir v. Long [Ala.] 39 So. 974. Where acts of parties under contract are considered, interpretation is a mixed question of law and fact. American Seeding Mach. Co. v. Stearns, 109 App. Div. 192, 95 N. Y. S. 830.

46. In re Tice, 139 F. 52. As to whether contract is lease or conditional sale, bankruptcy court will follow state law. In re Sheets Printing & Mfg. Co., 136 F. 989.

47. While not conclusive, is of more or less persuasive force. In re Wood, 140 F. 964.

48. In re Wells, 140 F. 752. Where buyer had a running account with seller but fell behind in her payments, and it was agreed between the parties that thereafter goods should be "consigned" to her, and that the goods on hand should be invoiced and credited on her general indebtedness and charged to her on "consigned account." She was to report monthly the goods on hand and the amount sold, paying for the latter at the regular wholesale prices at which the goods were billed to her. It was further agreed that the title should not pass. No restriction was made as to the manner of sale or prices and she kept no separate account. Held as to her creditors the transaction was a sale. Id.

49. Bankers receiving goods bought under mercantile letters of credit issued by them, and delivering the goods to the merchant, receiving a "trust receipt" therefor, held to retain title to the goods. Moors v. Bird [Mass.] 77 N. E. 643.

50. In re Wells, 140 F. 752.

51. Where dealer sent for goods out of season to be exhibited at a fair, and they were shipped and billed to him as sold "subject to next spring's terms," and no demand was made for the goods for over six months

mortgage,[55] or contracts of agency.[56] An agreement by a person to sell, in the future, articles which he habitually makes and which are not made or finished at the time is a contract of sale and not a contract for labor.[57] Sales are executed or executory,[58] absolute or conditional.[59] In determining the amount of damages for a breach, contracts of sale are again divided into manufacturing and other similar contracts.[60] A contract of "sale and return" exists where title passes to the party to whom the goods are delivered, subject to the option of returning them if he so desires.[61]

§ 2. Contract requisites of a sale.[62]—The sale being a contract, it must contain all the requisites thereof relative to parties, consideration,[63] mutuality,[64] and and until bankruptcy was imminent, held a sale and not a bailment. In re Wood, 140 F. 964. Contract for the sale and installing of machinery, payment to be made in three instalments, one on delivery, another when the machinery was installed, and the final payment on completion of test, the buyer to keep the machinery insured for the seller's benefit, held on delivery of machinery and payment of first instalment there was a completed sale and not a bailment. William R. Trigg Co. v. Bucyrus Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 174. Machinery was delivered to one under a contract requiring him to pay certain various sums at irregular intervals as rent for the same, and that on a final small payment he should be entitled to a bill of sale. There was no provision for the return of the machinery aside from one giving the privilege of retaking it on default in making any of the payments. Held a conditional sale and not a bailment. In re Tice, 139 F. 52.

52. Where payment made was denominated rent and "buyer" was to give a chattel mortgage and note for the article provided it proved satisfactory, held a sale and not a mere option. Star Drilling Mach. Co. v. McLeod [Ky.] 92 S. W. 558. A sale of cattle to be delivered by seller on notice from buyer within a few days after Sept. 1st is not an option nor a conditional sale, but an outright purchase. Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544. Contract declared on, held to be an agreement to buy stock in a commercial enterprise and not a mere option to buy. Edwards v. Capps, 122 Ga. 827, 50 S. E. 943.

53. A contract leasing a machine for a term of three years, designated sums to be paid as "rent" and the lessee to have the option to purchase at any time within three years for a designated sum less the rentals paid, held a conditional sale within Bates' Ann. St. Ohio, p. 2306, § 1, and not a lease. In re Sheets Printing & Mfg. Co., 136 F. 989.

54. Payments by plaintiff to furniture dealers of the price of furniture bought by defendants of such dealers, defendants to repay plaintiff in instalments a greater amount, is a loan and not a sale. Zussman v. Woodbridge, 97 N. Y. S. 973. Where one took up a debt of a corporation, secured by some of the corporate stock, taking a note signed by the incorporators individually, and stock was thereafter reissued to him without his knowledge, held transaction amounted to a loan for the corporation's benefit and not to a purchase of the stock. In re McLean-Bowman Co., 138 F. 181.

55. Bill of sale absolute in form but given under an oral agreement that it shall be held as security for the seller's indebtedness is a mortgage. Clark v. Williams [Mass.] 76 N. E. 723. Where contract of sale provided that title should remain in the seller, and upon failure to execute the notes or make the payments specified the seller could take possession, and, after 30 days advertisement, sell the property, paying the buyer any surplus and collecting from him any deficiency, held an equitable mortgage and not a conditional sale. D. A. Tompkins Co. v. Monticello Cotton Oil Co., 137 F. 625.

56. Where goods were shipped to be sold on commission for not less than certain specified prices, the consignee to insure the goods and be liable for damage thereto, and the contract expressly provided as to what warranties should be given and entitled claimant to require the goods to be returned, title to remain in consignor, held contract was one of agency and not a conditional sale. John Deere Plow Co. v. McDavid [C. C. A.] 137 F. 802. Evidence that goods were sent to defendant on agreement to pay not less than a certain market price held to establish a sale and not a contract of sale on commission. Brockman Commission & Cold Storage Co. v. Pound [Ark.] 91 S. W. 183.

57. James H. Rice Co. v. Penn Plate Glass Co., 117 Ill. App. 356.

58. An "executed contract of sale" is one wherein the title has passed; an "executory contract of sale" is one wherein the title has not passed. Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797. Written order of tobacco when accepted held to constitute an executory contract of purchase and sale. Drucklieb v. Universal Tobacco Co., 106 App. Div. 470, 94 N. Y. S. 777. Contract providing for delivery of chattel, payment of purchase price in instalments and retention of title in the seller until purchase price is paid, held executory. Bunday v. Columbus Mach. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 902, 106 N. W. 397.

59. See post, § 14, Conditional sales.

60. See post, § 12, Damages for breach of sale and warranty.

61. In re Wells, 140 F. 752.

62. See 4 C. L. 1320. See, also, Contracts, 5 C. L. 664.

63. Must be a valuable consideration. Contract reciting that the first party had freedom from fraud.[65] The minds of the parties must meet,[66] and hence all the terms of the contract must be agreed upon or be capable of ascertainment,[67] but sold to the second party from 1,000 to 1,500 tons of coal at a certain price, to be shipped as ordered within a certain time, held valid. Smokeless Fuel Co. v. W. E. Seaton & Sons [Va.] 52 S. E. 829. The capital stock of a corporation constitutes a good consideration for the transfer of property. Gardner v. Haines [S. D.] 104 N. W. 244. Antecedent indebtedness is a sufficient consideration for the transfer of corporate stock. Thaxter v. Thain, 100 App. Div. 488, 91 N. Y. S. 729. The prospective commission is a sufficient consideration for an agent's agreement to keep repairs on hand as an inducement to purchaser to buy a machine. Tyson v. Jackson Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 930. Where a party repudiates an agreement to extend credit to another because of false and fraudulent representations, and the agreement is then changed so as to eliminate the provision for credit and require cash on delivery, the second agreement is not a mere modification of the first but is a new and independent agreement, and no new or further consideration is necessary to support it. Omaha Feed Co. v. Rushforth [Neb.] 106 N. W. 25. Where a contract for the sale of corporate stock was made on the condition that the buyer should obtain control of the corporation, and realize from the property or from a mine thereon a specified sum within four years, the execution of a new agreement before the expiration of the four years, whereby the buyer agreed to pay for the stock whenever he secured the specified sum from the sale of the property, or from the mine thereon, was supported by a sufficient consideration, as it gave the buyer the right to continue to possess the stock and the right to extend his opportunity to make a sale of the property or work a mine thereon. Kennedy v. Lee, 147 Cal. 596, 82 P. 257.

64. Contract to send what pails buyer may want at certain prices held unenforceable. Higbie v. Rust, 112 Ill. App. 218. Contract void where amount to be bought or sold and price were omitted. Id. Simple order with no agreement to deliver. Mayo v. Koller, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 91. A contract by which one party agrees to buy, but the other party does not agree to sell, is unilateral and cannot be enforced. Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Komp, 118 Ill. App. 566. Contract for the sale of corporate stock to be paid for out of dividends and earnings and from other sources at option of buyer held not void for want of mutuality. White v. C. & G. Cooper Co., 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 114. Plea alleging that at the time of the purchase the seller agreed to give the buyer the exclusive sale of the goods so long as he pushed the same held demurrable as alleging a unilateral contract. Mountain City Mill Co. v. Cobb [Ga.] 53 S. E. 458. Contract of purchase of stock, with agreement not to sell it without first giving vendor ample opportunity to purchase the same, held not void for indefiniteness and not unilateral. Cothran v. Witham, 123 Ga. 190. 51 S. E. 285. A contract reciting that the first party had sold to the second party from 1,000 to 1,500 tons of coal at a certain price, to be shipped as ordered within a specified time, is mutual. Smokeless Fuel Co. v. W. E. Seaton & Sons [Va.] 52 S. E. 829. Where the buyer agrees to purchase and the seller agrees to sell a definite quantity of specified articles, the contract does not lack mutuality because of a provision requiring the purchaser to specify the sizes and styles wanted. George Delker Co. v. Hess Spring & Axle Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 647.

65. Fraud which will relieve a party who can read must be fraud which prevents him from reading. Stoddard Mfg. Co. v. Adams, 122 Ga. 802, 50 S. E. 915. The mere fact that one is busy, that the other party expressly states that the contract is as claimed, that he had previously dealt with the parties and relied on their honesty, and that the contract was long, is insufficient. Id. So held where contract was printed in a booklet covering 10 or 12 printed pages, controversy was only over words describing articles bought, and which were written in blank spaces. Id. That one signing order for books did not read it owing to his haste, but relied on agent's statement that he wanted to get an indorsement of the books, held insufficient to relieve him from liability. Williams v. Leisen [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1096. To constitute a defense the false representations must have been relied upon. Loveland v. Gravel [Minn.] 103 N. W. 721. Evidence held insufficient to show fraud in size of coat sold, the coat having been tried on, approved, and paid for. Wolf v. Halliburton & Son [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 467. Evidence held insufficient to show fraud or misrepresentation on the part of seller. Main v. Radney [Ala.] 39 So. 981. See Fraud and Undue Influence, 5 C. L. 1541. See, also, post, § 10 A and § 11 A.

66. Where buyer thought he was buying gold rolled rings and seller was selling electro-plated rings, held not to constitute a contract. Wilentshik v. Messler, 48 Misc. 362, 95 N. Y. S. 500. Held no contract of sale where seller wrongly supposed buyer, the C. Coal Company, was a corporation. Fifer v. Clearfield & Cambria Coal & Coke Co. [Md.] 62 A. 1122. Where seller telegraphed that he could not accept offer to buy but would try and ship four cars of potatoes, and buyer wrote for an explanation and seller answered that he confirmed a shipment of four cars, held to constitute a contract for the sale of four cars of potatoes. William & Co. v. Alabama Brokerage Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 102. Evidence held not to show a complete offer and acceptance for contract for sale of scrap copper. San Antonio Gas & Elec. Co. v. Marx [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 442, 87 S. W. 1166. If one makes a contract of sale with one party, believing it to be another, the sale is voidable. Place of business is not part of identity of firms. Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648.

67. Where one who manufactured different styles of automobiles at different prices agreed to fill "specified orders," an order for the mere fact that the firm with which one is dealing has its office or factory at a different place than was supposed will not vitiate the sale.[68] In the absence of fraud, misrepresentations, or disability, failure to read an order is no defense.[69] An offer to sell or to buy is revocable at any time before acceptance[70] in the manner provided in the contract,[71] and the acceptance to create a valid contract of sale must be an unconditional[72] acceptance of all the terms of the offer, and must be made within the time specified therein, or, if no time is specified, within a reasonable time.[73] The amount being optional with the buyer, a partial order constitutes an acceptance pro tanto.[74] All conditions precedent must be pera certain number of machines, without specification of style, was too indefinite for enforcement, though accepted by the seller. Wheaton v. Cadillac Automobile Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 867, 106 N. W. 399. An agreement to pay the purchase price or deliver the goods on demand, or on so many days' notice, is not bad for indefiniteness. Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544. A contract reading that plaintiff "contracts and agrees to ship to the order of" defendant "5,000 or more stoves" within a year, is a binding contract on one to ship and on the other to receive 5,000 stoves (Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797), and it is not void for indefiniteness when on a basis of 10 years' experience the character of the trade of buyer is known and his needs as to size, quality, and style of stove can be ascertained therefrom with reasonable and approximate certainty (Id.).

68. A firm having office in Chicago but factory in Iowa City, Ia. Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648.

69. Main v. Rodney [Ala.] 39 So. 981.

70. Atlanta Buggy Co. v. Hess Spring & Axle Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 613. Offerer is not bound until the offer is accepted as provided in the offer. Robinson & Co. v. Ralph [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1044. An order to an agent does not become binding upon the offerer until accepted by the principal, even though it expressly provides that it shall not be subject to countermand. Mayo v. Koller, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 91. A countermand must be received before goods are shipped according to order to prevent recovery of purchase price. Evidence not sufficient to sustain a verdict for defendant in an action for the purchase price. W. F. Main & Co. v. Tracey [Ark.] 88 S. W. 981. Acceptance at seller's place of business as required by the contract held to have taken place after revocation. Minneapolis Threshing Mach. Co. v. Evans, 139 F. 860.

71. Where contract provided that it was not binding unless signed by one of the officers of the seller, held signature by an agent did not render contract binding. Atlanta Buggy Co. v. Hess Spring & Axle Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 613. Where the contract called for delivery to railroad company as delivery to purchaser, such delivery if made not in accordance with terms would avoid the sale. Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648.

72. Kelley, Maus & Co. v. Sibley [C. C. A.] 137 F. 586; Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648; West Point Cotton Mills v. Blythe, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 642; Philip Wolf & Co. v. King [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1055; Ennis Brown Co. v. Hurst [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1056. In accepting offer to sell, a statement of the dates of shipment held not to render the acceptance conditional. Ennis Brown Co. v. Hurst [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1056. Where offer was to sell "choice" potatoes, held an acceptance requiring potatoes to be "strictly choice" did not constitute a variance, it being shown that they meant the same grade. Id. Order containing words "Kindly acknowledge acceptance of above order and conditions," held not to become binding contract until accepted. Wilentshik v. Messler, 48 Misc. 362, 95 N. Y. S. 500. Where offer to buy was accepted upon condition and this new offer was accepted, there being enclosed with the "acceptance" a form of agreement for signature embodying other provisions not referred to in the correspondence, and the seller refused to sign this agreement, held no contract. Philip Wolf & Co. v. King [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1055. Where defendant's offer to sell was accepted conditionally and defendant replied without referring to the condition, that he would simply furnish the articles if he could purchase them, held insufficient to constitute a contract binding defendant to furnish the articles in any event. Kelley, Maus & Co. v. Sibley [C. C. A.] 137 F. 586. The buyer may reject goods and refuse payment wherever the acceptance is not according to the terms of the offer. Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648. Plaintiff was not bound to recognize a qualified acceptance of an order to his broker to sell so as to entitle the latter to set off damages resulting because he was obliged to supply his customer from other sources. West Point Cotton Mills v. Blythe, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 642.

73. Where offer arrived in the town of the buyer's residence after business hours on Saturday, and was received by the buyer Monday morning, an acceptance sent by telegram and mail Monday evening held within a reasonable time. James E. Mitchell & Co. v. Wallace, 27 Ky. L. R. 967, 87 S. W. 303.

74. Where offer was not accepted as required the fact that the offerer, who was the buyer, specified the part of articles desired, held not to render the contract binding except as to the accepted specification. Atlanta Buggy Co. v. Hess Spring & Axle Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 613. The buyer having an option to demand more than a designated quantity up to a maximum quantity, each order given above the minimum quantity constitutes an acceptance pro tanto. Connersville Wagon Co. v. McFarlan Carriage Co. [Ind.] 76 N. E. 294.

formed.[75] Where the parties to an executory agreement for the sale of goods agree that the price to be paid for the property shall be fixed by valuers nominated in the agreement, there is no contract of sale if the persons appointed as valuers fail or refuse to act as such,[76] and this is true even though one of the parties to the agreement is the cause of such failure or refusal.[77] An offer being accepted in the manner stated, a contract is formed[78] and is deemed made at the place of acceptance.[79] In this connection the solicitation of an offer to buy must be distinguished from an offer to sell.[80] Acceptance may be shown by acts performed under the contract.[81] An acceptance being conditional it amounts to a new offer.[82] In determining whether or not an acceptance is conditional, requests and conditions should be distinguished,[83] the question being generally one for the court,[84] and the matter being doubtful, the court may look to the surrounding circumstances and subsequent conduct of the parties.[85] Any question as to the identity of the parties is for the jury.[86]

A contract made by a duly authorized agent or representative[87] as such[88] is

75. Sale upon the condition that the seller have an "immediate" wire routing is not performed by the sending of a telegram after a day's delay. Van Camp Packing Co. v. Smith [Md.] 61 A. 284.

76. Elberton Hardware Co. v. Hawes, 122 Ga. 858, 50 S. E. 964.

77. Elberton Hardware Co. v. Hawes, 122 Ga. 858, 50 S. E. 964.

NOTE: Where the agreement has been fully executed by the delivery of the goods, and the purchaser has done any act which prevents their valuation being fixed as their agreement provides, the vendor is entitled in a proper action to recover the value of the goods estimated by the jury. 1 Benj., Sales, § 87; Beach on Sales, § 213; Clerke v. Westrope, 18 C. B. 765; Humaston v. American Telegraph Co., 20 Wall. [U. S.] 20, 22 Law. Ed. 279; Smyth v. Craig, 3 Watts & S. [Pa.] 14.—From Elberton Hardware Co. v. Hawes [Ga.] 50 S. E. 964.

78. Where seller forwarded unsigned and unexecuted contract to buyer with a letter stating that if the same was satisfactory it should sign and return the same and the seller would then do the same, held upon signature by buyer a complete contract was made. Noel Const. Co. v. Atlas Portland Cement Co. [Md.] 63 A. 384. An instrument which might merely be an order or offer signed by the purchaser becomes a contract when signed by the seller also. Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648.

79. Order taken subject to approval is governed by the law of the state where approved and accepted. P. J. Bowlin Liquor Co. v. Brandenburg [Iowa] 106 N. W. 497. See Conflict of Laws, 5 C. L. 610.

80. Where solicitation of offer to buy, sent to brokers, stated that if price was satisfactory samples would be sent, and brokers telegraphed that they would accept the articles, that plaintiff was the proposed buyer and that samples should be expressed, and the brokers also wrote that there was no question but that if the corn was good standard it would be approved, held not to amount to a contract. Jobst-Bethard Co. v. Glenwood Canning Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 385.

81. Where an offer to buy is accepted conditionally, acceptance may be shown by acceptance of deliveries thereunder. H. Gaus & Sons Mfg. Co. v. Chicago Lumber & Coal Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 121. The filling of an order within a specified or reasonable time is a sufficient acceptance and notice to bind the proposed buyer. Minneapolis Threshing Machine Co. v. Zemanek [Iowa] 106 N. W. 512. A delivery in compliance with the terms of the offer is an acceptance and passes title to the purchaser. Baird Bros v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648. Evidence held insufficient to show acceptance. Wilentshik v. Messler, 48 Misc. 362, 95 N. Y. S. 500.

82. Kelley, Maus & Co. v. Sibley [C. C. A.] 137 F. 586.

83. An acceptance of an offer to sell bolts held not rendered conditional by an expression in the buyers' letter of acceptance that it was not of so much importance to have such bolts put up in packages but that they would like at least the smaller sizes that way if possible. Kelley, Maus & Co. v. Sibley [C. C. A.] 137 F. 586. Any form of expression showing clearly an intention to accept on the terms proposed, i. e. a consent to the same subject-matter in the same sense, is sufficient if not coupled with some new condition or new term implying a new condition. Ennis Brown Co. v. Hurst [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1056.

84. Ennis Brown Co. v. Hurst [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1056; Philip Wolf & Co. v. King [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1055.

85. Ennis Brown Co. v. Hurst [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1056.

86. Whether shares of stock were sold by defendant to plaintiff held a question for the jury. Shreve v. Crosby [N. J. Err. & App.] 63 A. 333.

87. An agent for the sale of property has no implied power to accept an order for his principal. Mayo v. Koller, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 91. Evidence held to justify verdict that agent was within apparent scope of his employment in the purchase of certain goods. Brockman Commission & Cold Storage Co. v. Pound [Ark.] 91 S. W. 183. Evidence held to show that it was within the apparent authority of agent to sell on terms providing valid and binding. So also, a contract of sale may be valid and binding upon the purchaser although made by him in the name of another.[89] Ratification merely confirms a contract as made,[90] neither anterior authority of an agent nor subsequent ratification will operate to change the terms of the written contract without the knowledge or consent of the other party and adversely to him.[91]

One is liable for goods furnished, received, and appropriated,[92] even though not ordered, and this is especially true where he subsequently promises to pay for them.[93] The mere delivery of goods by one person to another, however, is not of itself sufficient to create a liability for their value. The delivery to and an acceptance by the intended purchaser must have occurred under such circumstances that the law will imply a promise to pay for them.[94]

The contract of sale must not be in restraint of trade.[95] An executory Sunday contract of sale is unenforceable unless subsequently confirmed or ratified by the parties.[96] It is legally possible for the buyer to agree to resell the property to the seller at a higher price payable in the future. If such be the actual transaction the law will enforce it.[97] It is, however, in such cases frequently difficult to determine whether the transaction is a sale or a device to evade the usury laws. The transaction being lawful on its face, the party asserting its illegality must prove it,[98] the question being generally one for the jury.[99] One of several exceptions to the general rule that no court will lend its aid to enforce a claim based upon an illegal or immoral contract is where the party complaining can exhibit his case without relying upon the illegal transaction.[1] for payment after sale of goods by vendee. Patton-Worsham Drug Co. v. Stark [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 979, 89 S. W. 799. In an action for a balance due upon a sale of furniture, plaintiff proved by defendant that the latter had received the goods and had made payments thereon. It was also shown that the goods were selected by defendant in company with his wife, and that the agreement of sale, which was afterwards signed by defendant's wife was not signed by defendant merely because he was unable to go to plaintiff's place of business. Held error to dismiss the bill on the merits. Monahan v. Campion, 96 N. Y. S. 1019.

88. Seller's agent simply signing order with buyer's name without the buyer's request held merely an order subject to the approval of the seller before becoming a contract. Braly v. Krause [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 702, 105 N. W. 149.

89. O. M. Cockrum Co. v. Klein [Ind.] 74 N. E. 529.

90. Where contract secured by an agent provided that it should not be binding until signed by one of the seller's officers, held ratification without such signing could not render the contract valid. Atlanta Buggy Co. v. Hess Spring & Axle Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 613. If a sale is approved by a principal it must be taken to be an approval of the terms as actually made. Patton-Worsham Drug Co. v. Stark [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 979, 89 S. W. 799. Though a principal has reserved the right to reject an order solicited by an agent if unsatisfactory, the contract cannot be annulled after delivery of goods because of the wrong of the agent. Soliciting an order on unsatisfactory terms and then erasing the terms from the contract. Id.

91. Atlanta Buggy Co. v. Hess Spring & Axle Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 613.

92. Certain goods shipped by the plaintiff to a bankrupt were stopped in transit. An order upon the carrier was then given by the plaintiff's agent to the defendant, whereby the defendant obtained the goods and used them in his business. Held that under the circumstances there was an implied contract upon his part to pay to plaintiff the fair market value of the goods which could be enforced by an action on the contract. Teetzel v. Davidson Bros. Marble Co. [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1068. See Implied Contracts, 5 C. L. 1756.

93. Instruction held proper. Reynolds v. Blake, 111 Ill. App. 53.

94. Smith v. Perham [Mont.] 83 P. 492.

95. A sale is not void under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 3312g, unless made between persons or corporations "who control the output." Over v. Byran Foundry Co. [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 302. Sale of sash weights held not void. Id. See Contracts, 5 C. L. 664.

96. P. J. Bowlin Liquor Co. v. Brandenburg [Iowa] 106 N. W. 497. See Contracts, 5 C. L. 664, and Sunday, 4 C. L. 1589.

97. Rogers v. Bluenstein [Ga.] 52 S. E. 617.

98, 99. Rogers v. Bluenstein [Ga.] 52 S. E. 617. Errors in charge, if any, held harmless. Id.

1. Packard & Field v. Byrd [S. C.] 51 S. E. 678. A contract being severable the fact that the consideration of a separate part is illegal will not prevent the enforcement of the rest. Where contract for exclusive selling agency was assumed void as against public policy, held the purchaser was liable for goods subsequently sold under the original agreement where the seller could establish the sale without relying on the illegal portion of the original contract. Id.

Whenever required by the statute of frauds the contract must be in writing.[2] In the absence of statutory provisions to the contrary it is immaterial in what part of the instrument the signature is affixed, providing it is placed there with the intention that all parts of the instrument constitute a part of the contract which is being signed.[3]

§ 3. Modification, rescission, and revival.[4]—While one of the parties cannot, without the consent of the other, modify or change the contract in any way,[5] still both parties may by mutual consent,[6] expressed by themselves or their duly authorized agents,[7] change the contract in any way without additional consideration.[8] A variation from the terms of a preliminary agreement made in drawing up the final agreement does not bind one not consenting thereto.[9]

Except where the contract is rendered voidable by fraud, breach of warranty or other similar cause,[10] the contract can only be rescinded by mutual consent[11]

2. See Frauds, Statute of, 5 C. L. 1550.

3. B. F. Bonewell & Co. v. Jacobson [Iowa] 106 N. W. 614. See Contracts, 5 C. L. 664; Names, Signatures and Seals, 6 C. L. 739.

4. See 4 C. L. 1323.

5. Statement on seller's billhead that all claims must be made within 10 days after receipt of goods held not binding on purchaser. Doddato v. Gratti-McQuade Co., 97 N. Y. S. 972. An absolute acceptance of a seller's offer to sell bolts, held not affected by a subsequent communication informing the buyer that he assumed no responsibility in the sale but simply procured the bolts for the buyer provided he could purchase them as he had been assured he could do, which statement was not assented to by the buyer. Kelley, Maus & Co. v. Sibley [C. C. A.] 137 F. 586. Where the acceptance of an offer to sell did not stipulate for a contract under seal and the sellers accepted the buyer's executed draft of the contract without objection that it was not under seal, held it was no objection to the validity of the contract that, though it concluded with the words "Witness our hands and seals," it was only signed and not sealed by the buyers. Noel Const. Co. v. Atlas Portland Cement Co. [Md.] 63 A. 384. Where defendant was bound to accept and pay for tobacco sold at fixed prices, the fact that plaintiff thereafter offered to reduce the price in order to induce defendant to accept and pay for the tobacco did not create a new contract or defeat defendant's liability for the price fixed. Drucklieb v. Universal Tobacco Co., 106 App. Div. 470, 94 N. Y. S. 777.

6. Welden v. Witt [Ala.] 40 So. 126. Where buyer, an individual, requested the seller to transfer the account and contract to a company as buyer, held contract became the obligation of the company. Vulcan Ironworks v. Burrell Const. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 836. Where buyer's agent requested of seller's agent a modification of date of delivery as specified in the contract, and shipments were made apparently in compliance with such request and were acquiesced in by the buyer for over a month, held to show modification. Birkett v. Nichols [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 374, rvg. 98 App. Div. 631, 90 N. Y. S. 257. Evidence held to show that contract for the sale of stone had been modified. Farrell v. Ryan, 94 N. Y. S. 850. Evidence held insufficient to show a new agreement made after the sale that the buyer should make, at the seller's expense, such repairs, additions, and changes as he might find necessary. Callahan v. O'Rourke, 96 N. Y. S. 1010. Evidence held to establish that vendee never authorized a change in terms of sale. Erasure of "Pay for when sold" from order blank. Patton-Worsham Drug Co. v. Stark [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 979, 89 S. W. 799.

7. In an action to recover for shortage in weights, the contract providing that if the buyer was dissatisfied with the weights the seller should have the right to reweigh, and it is shown that the broker of the seller consented to the buyer using the cotton before notice to the seller of the objection to the weights, so that it could not be reweighed, plaintiff can show that such broker had no authority to grant such permission. Revolution Cotton Mills v. Union Cotton Mills [S. C.] 52 S. E. 674.

8. Welden v. Witt [Ala.] 40 So. 126. It is not necessary to allege a consideration for the modification of an executory contract. Warren & Lanier v. Cash [Ala.] 39 So. 124.

9. Where preliminary agreement provided for joint ownership of the article purchased, held a party thereto was not liable for any of the purchase price, he not being present when the final contract was entered into and the other buyers at such time forming a partnership which took title to the horse. Dunham, Fletcher & Coleman v. Crawford [Iowa] 106 N. W. 930. Verbal order of time of delivery held not legally changed by written order given at practically the same time, the seller's attention not being specifically called to the intended change. Kiley v. Lee Canning Co., 105 App. Div. 633, 93 N. Y. S. 986.

10. See post, §§ 10 A, 11 A.

11. Contract for the sale of corporate stock to be paid for out of dividends and earnings and from other sources at option of buyer held to show an executed contract, and it would not be rescinded at the option of one of the parties without the other's consent. White v. C. & G. Cooper Co., 7 Ohio expressed by the parties or their duly authorized agents.[12] No implied authority to rescind a sale can be inferred from the mere fact that an agent has authority to sell.[13] Rescission terminates the contract and the rights of the parties thereunder,[14] and upon an unconditional proposal to cancel by one party, the other may assume that all the legal consequences of unreserved cancellation were contemplated.[15]

§ 4. General rules of interpretation and construction.[16]—The interpretation of the contract is governed by the law of the state where made.[17] The construction of the contract, whether committed to writing, contained in correspondence or merely verbal, is a matter of law,[18] and the meaning of its terms, if precise and explicit, is a question for the court,[19] but if such meaning is doubtful or uncertain,[20] or in case the terms of a verbal contract are disputed,[21] it may be submitted to the jury under proper instructions. The general rule that the court will give effect to the intention of the parties applies,[22] and this intention may be ascertained from the customs and usages of the trade,[23] the circumstances of the case,[24] and from the practical construction of the contract by the parties,[25] and such construction while not conclusive[26] is entitled to great weight.[27] In order for a custom

C. C. (N. S.) 114. Where price was to be paid in instalments, the seller to retain possession of the goods until payment was completed, held the contract containing no stipulation for forfeiture on default, that where the buyer defaulted and the seller, after extending the time for payment to no avail, resold the goods, that there was a mutual rescission. Pierce v. Staub [Conn.] 62 A. 760.

12. Brokers acting as such, to the knowledge of both parties, in negotiating sale, held to have no authority to annul contract and authorize the buyer to sell the goods for the account of the seller. Jones v. Bloomgarden [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1019, 106 N. W. 891.

13. Whether salesman had authority to rescind contract of sale held question for jury. Mange-Wiener Co. v. Worsham Drug Co. 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 315.

14. After rejection of goods and rescission of contract the buyer cannot without the assent of the seller take the goods. Gardiner v. McDonogh, 147 Cal. 313, 81 P. 964.

15. Waives right to damages for prior breach. Alabama Oil & Pipe Line Co. v. Sun Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 202.

16. See 4 C. L. 1324.

17. See Conflict of Laws, 5 C. L. 610.

18. R. T. Wilson & Co. v. Levi Cotton Mills [N. C.] 52 S. E. 250; Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla.] 40 So. 29; Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797. Defendant not entitled to finding of jury as to whether there was a warranty. Young v. Van Natta, 113 Mo. App. 550, 88 S. W. 123.

19, 20. R. T. Wilson & Co. v. Levi Cotton Mills [N. C.] 52 S. E. 250.

21. R. T. Wilson & Co. v. Levi Cotton Mills [N. C.] 52 S. E. 250. Evidence being conflicting as to whether seller's agent agreed that his principal should pay the freight, held the question was for the jury. Robert Buist Co. v. Lancaster Mercantile Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 789.

22. Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797.

23. The regular and established method of conducting a business is of significance in construing a contract relating to it. Sale of coal for future delivery. Luhrig Coal Co. v. Jones & Adams Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 617.

24. Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797.

25. William R. Trigg Co. v. Bucyrus Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 174; Kennedy v. Lee, 147 Cal. 596, 82 P. 257. Evidence that defendant construed the agreement as plaintiff did, held admissible. Id. Is strong evidence of the meaning of equivocal terms. Baldwin v. Napa & Sonoma Wine Co. [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1037. Where contract for the sale of wines entered into in March provided that a certain quantity should be taken annually before September 1st, held that where parties acquiesced in a pro rata taking for the months from March to the first of September, the seller could not claim breach of contract for failure of the buyer to take the full yearly amount for such period. Id. Instruction held erroneous. Id. Where seller furnished cars, held bound by construction placed on contract. Davis v. Alpha Portland Cement Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 74, afg. 134 F. 274. Under such construction buyer of hops held to have the right to inspect the entire crop and make his selection therefrom. Mitau v. Roddan [Cal.] 84 P. 145.

26. The fact that a purchaser accepts a part of a bill of goods and pays the freight thereon does not estop him to deny his liability to pay freight on the balance of the bill. Robert Buist Co. v. Lancaster Mercantile Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 789. Where a contract for the sale of lumber provided for delivery f. o. b. point of shipment, the fact that the seller submitted to a deduction for alleged shortage on a single car, based on a tally made on arrival of the car at destination, and thereafter offered to deliver the lumber at destination on condition that an advance payment be made for the balance, did not preclude it from insisting that a delivery to the carrier at the point of shipment constituted a compliance with its contract as to the balance. Murphy v. Sagola Lumber Co., 125 Wis. 363, 103 N. W. 1113.

to be regarded as part of a contract, it must have been actually or constructively known and be consistent with the contract.[28] The courts will take notice of the fact that trade of a certain kind does not vary very much from year to year, making it possible to ascertain with reasonable certainty the meaning of a contract to supply a gross amount of certain merchandise not specified.[29] In a "bought" memorandum drawn by a broker the essentials are expressly stated and the rest left to reasonable implication, from what is thus stated, when considered in the light of the situation of the parties and the circumstances known to both.[30] The test is what would a reasonable man infer on reading the contract in the light of that situation and those circumstances if the facts ultimately developed occurred to him as possible or likely to happen.[31] In construing the contract for the purpose of ascertaining the intention of the parties, resort must be had to the instrument as a whole and effect must be given to every part thereof when it can be done without violence.[32] Evidence of prior[33] or contemporaneous[34] parol agreements is inadmissible to vary, alter, or add to the terms of a complete[35] written contract of sale,[36] though it may be admitted to explain ambiguous terms in the instrument[37] and to render it complete,[38] or to show that the contract was obtained

27. Baldwin v. Napa & Sonoma Wine Co. [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1037.

28. Denton Bros. v. Gill [Md.] 62 A. 627. Where a contract for the sale of corn provided "Any deficiency on the bill of lading weights to be paid for by the seller," the contract could not be varied by the evidence of a custom whereby, in sales and purchases of corn, the shipping weights taken at port of shipment, as stated in the bill of lading, are final. Id. A custom cannot control the express provisions of a contract. Delaware & Hudson Canal Co. v. Mitchell, 113 Ill. App. 429. See Customs and Usages, 5 C. L. 894.

29. An order for 5,000 stoves, variety, size, etc., not specified. Held that an average of previous orders for 10 years past would be a proper criterion of the orders under the contract in measuring damages. Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797.

30. M. & E. Solomon Tobacco Co. v. Cohen [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 257, rvg. 95 App. Div. 297, 88 N. Y. S. 641. See 4 C. L. 1326, n 22.

31. M. & E. Solomon Tobacco Co. v. Cohen [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 257, rvg. 95 App. Div. 297, 88 N. Y. S. 641. See 4 C. L. 1326, n. 22. A bought memorandum contained a stipulation that the buyer should pay the duty, expressed as follows: "Terms: Duty Cash 70c if appraised at less diffice to be allowed." Held the buyer could recover excessive duties paid by him and recovered by the seller on the ground that the appraisement was illegal. Id.

32. Williams v. Gridley, 96 N. Y. S. 978; Kennedy v. Lee, 147 Cal. 596, 82 P. 257.

33. Statements made during negotiations held inadmissible. Contract provided that verbal agreements would not be recognized or allowed. Buffalo Pitts Co. v. Shriner [Wash.] 82 P. 1016. It was not error to reject all testimony of a prior verbal understanding where the written contract disclaimed that any verbal understanding existed. Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648.

34. Evidence of parol, contemporaneous agreement, giving defendant exclusive right to goods in his town, held inadmissible. Main v. Rodney [Ala.] 39 So. 981.

35. When the written agreement of the parties is complete in itself, the conclusive, legal presumption is that it embodies the entire engagement of the parties and the manner and extent of their obligations, and parol evidence of other terms relating to the same subject-matter is inadmissible to extend, modify, or contradict it. Davis Calyx Drill Co. v. Mallory [C. C. A.] 137 F. 332. A contract of sale reciting the purchase of "500 sax Bayo, more or less, at $3.50 per 100; 500 sax peas, more or less, at $2.95 per 100; 350 sax pinks, more or less, at $2.70 per 100; net on bank of river," held complete and parol evidence was inadmissible to show that sale was by sample. Gardiner v. McDonogh, 147 Cal. 313, 81 P. 964.

36. Where seller's broker quoted price by telegram, and the buyer ordered goods, held a memorandum made out and signed by the broker a copy which was given both parties constituted a contract. Day Leather Co. v. Michigan Leather Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 548, 104 N. W. 797. A letter of confirmation written by the seller and accepted in writing by the buyer held to constitute written contract of sale. Midland Linseed Co. v. Remington Drug Co. [Wis.] 106 N. W. 115.

37. Sholl v. Prince Line, 109 App. Div. 591, 96 N. Y. S. 368. "Terms: Dryer, net 60 da." Hagen Co. v. Greenwood, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 239. Terms "Same as last" interpreted to refer to last sale or order, not to next to last or to any other previous similar contract. Licking Rolling Mill Co. v. W. P. Synder & Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 249. Merchandise "to be invoiced as per the following cost mark:" Webb v. Steiner, 113 Mo. App. 482, 87 S. W. 618. Where the goods are to be delivered through fraud,[39] but the evidence of such improper influences must be clear and satisfactory.[40] A mistake in the written contract may be shown by oral evidence.[41] Where there is an express contract of sale, nothing is implied.[42] Whether an agreement contains language importing a complete contract is a question of law for the court and is to be determined from an inspection of the face of the agreement.[43] A covenant to purchase may be implied.[44] As to whether printed matter on paper is a part of the contract is a question of intention.[45] The acceptance of a submitted estimate does not bind the seller to deliver the goods regardless of the buyer's ability to pay.[46] The construction placed upon words and phrases in particular contracts are stated in the notes.[47] on a certain day "or as soon as possible," there is no ambiguity. Williams v. Gridley, 96 N. Y. S. 978. Parol evidence held admissible to explain ambiguous clauses referring to description of property. Young v. Guess [La.] 38 So. 975. Order of macaroni "without time limit," held parol evidence was admissible to show whether phrase referred only to the colder season of the fall and winter following the making of the contract or not. Sholl v. Prince Line, 109 App. Div. 591, 96 N. Y. S. 368. Where contract of sale recited the purchase of "500 sax Bayo, more or less, at $3.50 per 100," held parol evidence was admissible to show that "Bayo" meant a variety of beans known as "Bayous," and that "per 100" meant "per hundred pounds." Gardiner v. McDonogh, 147 Cal. 313, 81 P. 964.

38. Niles v. Sire, 46 Misc. 321, 94 N. Y. S. 586. Where advertising contract was to apply on hat order, for hats for a dramatic production at $22 per hat, held parol evidence was admissible to show number of hats, terms of payment, etc. Id. Where written communications are insufficient to create a contract, parol evidence is admissible to prove terms not mentioned. Correspondence as to prices of machines held not a complete contract so as to preclude parol evidence. Goodwin Mfg. Co. v. Arthur Fritsch Foundry Co. [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 911.

39. Buffalo Pitts Co. v. Shriner [Wash.] 82 P. 1016; Golightly v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 26. Parol evidence is admissible to show that one of the parties was induced to sign by fraud and that the written contract did not represent the agreement of the parties. Lilienthal v. Herren [Wash.] 84 P. 829.

40. Buffalo Pitts Co. v. Shriner [Wash.] 82 P. 1016. Where instrument contained, to plaintiff's knowledge, a provision that no verbal agreements would be recognized or allowed and the answer to an action for the price alleged a warranty, held proper to refuse to permit an amendment alleging that the agent of the seller made false and fraudulent representations as to the machinery and represented that the seller would warrant it. Id.

41. Golightly v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 26. Evidence held to show that oral contract should include option of rescission, and on nonrescission, right of fulfilling it at a later date. Walker v. Kirwan [Ky.] 90 S. W. 244.

42. Where an offer of sale is made by letter and the buyer wires acceptance, there is an express contract excluding any contract by implication. Beggs v. James Hanley Brewing Co. [R. I.] 62 A. 373.

43. Gardiner v. McDonogh, 147 Cal. 313, 81 P. 964.

Receipt in following words: "August 24, 1903. Received from George L. Tait nine hundred and 00-100 dollars. In payment on sale of Los Gatos Hotel and contents. J. S. McInnes," held not to show that sale was complete and unconditional. Tait v. McInnes [Cal. App.] 84 P. 674.

Note: The question whether a given writing is or is not a complete contract is for the court. Beck v. West, 87 Ala. 213; Ry. Co. v. Wynn, 88 Tenn. 321; Thompson v. Libby, 34 Minn. 374, 26 N. W. 1; Seitz v. Brewers' Refrigerating Co., 141 U. S. 510, 35 Law. Ed. 837. On the question whether or not a memorandum of sale constitutes a complete contract which may not be varied by parol evidence, the authorities are in conflict. The stricter view is upheld in Harrison v. McCormick, 89 Cal. 327, 26 P. 830; Wiener v. Whipple, 53 Wis. 298, 40 Am. Rep. 775 (relying on Meyer v. Everth, 4 Camp. 22; Gardiner v. Gray, 4 Camp. 144). Shaw, J., with whom concur Van Dyke and McFarland, JJ., in the principal case, dissents from this view, and his opinion is supported by Hersom v. Henderson, 21 N. H. 224, 53 Am. Dec. 185; Perrine v. Cooley, 39 N. J. Law 449; Neal v. Flint, 88 Me. 72, 33 A. 669. —From 4 Mich. L. R. 81.

44. So held where contract provided all the terms of sale and was signed by both parties. King-Keystone Oil Co. v. San Francisco Brick Co. [Cal.] 82 P. 849.

45. Where memorandum of purchase by lumber dealer was written upon the face of a printed blank intended only for use in sales by the dealer to his customers, held the printing was no part of the contract. Patch v. Smith, 105 App. Div. 208, 94 N. Y. S. 692.

46. Submission of an estimate by a contractor to a materialman for materials desired for a building. Oldenburg & Kelley v. Dorsey [Md.] 62 A. 576.

47. The words "this day sold" mean a present sale. Yick Sung v. Herman [Cal. App.] 83 P. 1089. Terms "same as last" interpreted to refer to last sale or order. Licking Rolling Mill Co. v. W. P. Synder & Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 249. Sale of wines, a certain portion to be taken yearly, held not to require buyer to take a proportionate share of each kind yearly. Baldwin v. Napa & Sonoma Wine Co. [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1037. Instruction held erroneous. Id. The word

The entirety or separability of a contract depends primarily upon the intention of the parties rather than upon the divisibility of the subject, although the latter aids in determining the intention.[48]

§ 5. Property sold. Amount, kind, nonexistence, and failure of consideration.[49]—Any kind of property can be sold,[50] although a government concession or franchise provides that it cannot be transferred without previous authority of the government, the concessionary can sell an undivided part interest in the concession, subject to the contingency of the government refusing the right of the buyer,[51] and such a sale conveys a valuable equitable interest such as to provide a consideration for a promise to pay money as the price thereof.[52]

"land" when used in a contract of sale without limitation is broad enough to include a piece of real property described as a block in a townsite. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Mickley [Kan.] 83 P. 970. So held where buyer was to have the right to countermand the order if he bought "land." Id. It has been held that a contract to supply the requirements of a party means to supply what his business may need and not merely what he may chose to take. Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797. Where a contract for the sale of coal for future delivery provided that if the seller failed to secure sufficient cars it should deliver to the buyer a proportionate amount of the coal mined, and it was known by both parties that the seller had no storage facilities and there was evidence that the buyer understood that the seller had other contracts to fill, held the contract required the seller in case of a lack of cars to give the buyer its proportionate share of the coal produced and shipped without discrimination in favor of any other contract. Luhrig Coal Co. v. Jones & Adams Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 617. Defendant, while continuously operating a carriage factory consuming tire steel daily, and requiring a large amount of such steel to be kept constantly on hand, contracted to buy of plaintiff "all the tire steel," not to exceed 14,000 sets, that should be used in its works prior to September 1, 1899, at terms and prices specified. At the time the contract was made both parties knew that steel could not be furnished on the day of the contract and that the tire steel must be used from the stock on hand. Held that plaintiff was bound to furnish steel up to 14,000 sets as ordered, during the year, necessary to replace the steel used and to keep the stock unimpaired during such period. Staver Carriage Co. v. Park Steel Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 174. A contract by an insurance company to transfer its good will and a list of its policies to another company, which recited that the seller was about to discontinue its business and to wind up its affairs, was not broken by the insolvency of the seller within a few months after the making of the contract and the appointment of a receiver for its assets, especially where, prior to the judicial declaration of the seller's insolvency, the buyer had obtained all the benefit which could accrue to it under the contract. Bowers v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corp., 110 App. Div. 691, 97 N. Y. S. 485.

48. Packard & Fleld v. Byrd [S. C.] 51 S. E. 678. The sale at one time of different articles at different prices creates a several contract as to each article, unless acceptance of the whole is made necessary by the nature of the property or agreement of parties. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills Co. v. Spring, 116 Ill. App. 27. A simultaneous purchase of different chattels at different prices constitutes a several contract as to each chattel, unless impracticable from the nature of the subject-matter or unless the parties have agreed to the contrary. Id. Where pending sale of machine bolts the seller offered to sell also some carriage bolts, and, after negotiating for a while, the buyer bought the machine bolts and offered to buy the carriage bolts, which offer was accepted conditionally, held transactions were several. Kelley, Maus & Co. v. Sibley [C. C. A.] 137 F. 586. A contract for a set of books to be delivered one volume at a time and to pay at a certain rate per volume on delivery is an entire contract, though performance is several. Barrie v. Jerome, 112 Ill. App. 329. Where plaintiffs sold defendants an assortment of toilet articles and a counter showcase, the contract was an entire one. Walter Pratt & Co. v. Frasier & Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 983. Where a contract for the sale and removal by the buyer of five buildings bound the buyer to complete the removal within 15 days, and to start within 24 hours' notice, a notice given the buyer to take possession of and remove three buildings was ineffective. Lippman v. Hauben, 94 N. Y. S. 520. Where one buys goods by items separately listed, each item being bought by sample and warranty, the contract is severable. Perfumes itemized and each perfume bought on its own sample and warranty. S. M. Duffie & Co. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 842. The fact that a contract guarantees a profit on all the goods sold does not render an otherwise severable contract an entire contract. Contract for itemized bill of perfumes guaranteed a profit of 33% on entire order. Id.

49. See 4 C. L. 1326.

50. An interest in the capital stock of a corporation constitutes a property right which may be transferred and affords a consideration for a contract of sale, although no certificates have been delivered. McGue v. Rommel [Cal.] 83 P. 1000. Electricity is personal property. Civ. Code §§ 654, 655, 663, construed. Terrace Water Co. v. San Antonio Light & Power Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 562.

The kind and quality, the identity, the title,[53] and the quantity[54] of property purchased depends upon the terms of the contract. Only those things will be considered appurtenances and necessaries to a ship which are really necessary to it in carrying on its accepted business, and there is no implied warranty that duplicates shall be furnished.[55] One buying a specific collected mass of articles, the questions of quantity and quality are immaterial.[56] There being a dispute as to the quantity and kind of property sold, evidence of the value of the property claimed to have been purchased and of the price paid is admissible,[57] as is the check given in payment and the receipt given therefor, they containing recitals defining the kind and quantity of property sold.[58]

Failure of title only constitutes a cause of action where there is an actual want of title and the failure to have title is the cause of a loss.[59]

§ 6. Transition of title.[60]—The transition of title in order to determine the locus of a crime as in the sale of inhibited articles is largely treated elsewhere.[61]

Meaning and effect of contract.[62]—The time when title passes depends upon the intention of the parties,[63] and this intention is a question of fact for the jury[64] to be gathered from the terms and purposes of the contract, the nature, condition, and situation of the property, and the circumstances surrounding the parties when made.[65] An executed contract for the sale of a chattel vests the title at once, but

51. McGue v. Rommel [Cal.] 83 P. 1000. In an action on a note given in consideration of a transfer of an interest in government concessions, evidence of a forfeiture of the concessions by the government long after the date fixed in the contract for the transfer, and long after a tender of conveyance by plaintiff to defendants, did not show a partial failure of consideration. Id.

52. McGue v. Rommel [Cal.] 83 P. 1000.

53. The following contained in catalogues and bills for books sold rendered to the purchasers for sale at retail, "Copyrighted net books published after May 1, 1901, and copyrighted fiction published after February 1, 1902, are sold on condition that prices be maintained as provided by the regulations of the American Publishers' Association," does not constitute a limitation or restriction of the title to the books. Scribner v. Straus, 139 F. 193. Where the publishers of a copyrighted book printed a notice on the page following the fly leaf that the price of the book at retail was $1 net, and that no dealer was licensed to sell it at a less price, and the sale at a less price would be treated as an infringement of the copyright, such notice did not purport to reserve to the publisher any interest in the book or any right to control it or the action of its owner in the use and disposition thereof, and was insufficient to constitute a license agreement or contract restricting or modifying the absolute title acquired by purchasers. Bobbs-Merrill Co. v. Straus, 139 F. 155.

54. Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that a model typewriter was included in an auction sale of unassembled parts of typewriters. Scharndorf v. Alten, 96 N. Y. S. 452. Evidence by plaintiff's agent that an order for 6,000 butter boxes was correctly read and delivered to, and signed and returned by, defendant's agent, and opposing testimony by the latter that he did not read it and that it was read to him 2,000 boxes, together with wavering testimony of another, that it was read 2,000 boxes, held insufficient to vary the written order. Lenz v. Spencer, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 31.

55. Gazzam v. Moe [Wash.] 82 P. 912. Bill of sale of a ship reading: "The whole of the said screw steamer or vessel, together with the whole of the masts, sails, boats, anchors, cables, tackle and all other necessaries thereunto appertaining and belonging, * * * to have and to hold the said screw steamer * * * and appurtances thereunto belonging," etc., held not to include an old crank shaft removed from the boat and replaced by another and a rudder made before the sale from a measurement of the rudder on the boat but not placed therein. Id.

56. Pile of lumber. Patch v. Smith, 105 App. Div. 208, 94 N. Y. S. 692. Evidence held sufficient to show that lumber was so bought. Id.

57, 58. Dimmack v. Wheeling Traction Co. [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 101.

59. First Nat. Bank v. Columbus Sav. & T. Co., 2 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 525.

60. See 4 C. L. 1327.

61. See Intoxicating Liquors, 6 C. L. 165, etc.

62. See 4 C. L. 1327.

63. O'Keefe v. Leistikow [N. D.] 104 N. W. 515; Hamilton v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 438; St. Anthony & D. Elevator Co. v. Cass County [N. D.] 106 N. W. 41.

64. Jones v. Minnesota & M. R. Co. [Minn.] 106 N. W. 1048; Hamilton v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 438.

65. Where property was delivered to contractor to put in premises of a third person, held to show intent to pass title to such third person, for any lien on or ownership of the chattels in the seller would be antagonistic to the main purpose. Milicie v. Pearson, 110 App. Div. 770, 97 N. Y.

an executory contract always leaves something to be done before the title to the property will vest in the purchaser.[66] When, however, the act is performed, the sale is complete and the title to the property passes.[67] Where there is an agreement to sell and to buy a specified article, the title passes to the purchaser at once, unless the terms of the contract indicate an intention to have it otherwise.[68] Where it would be illegal, title will not be deemed to have passed.[69] That the sale is fraudulent will not prevent the passage of title.[70] In a purchase of property with an option to return it within a certain time, title passes subject to the right to return,[71] and if this right is not exercised at the time named, the sale is complete and a promise to pay the purchase price becomes absolute.[72] The words "this day sold" mean a present sale.[73] In a sale by description title passes to the purchaser on delivery,[74] but in a sale by sample it seems that title does not pass until there has been an opportunity for inspection.[75] A bill of sale is not necessary

S. 431. Where books loaned were to be paid for out of a fund created by the royalties of a book to be published, which book was never completed, no title passed. Gilbert Book Co. v. Sheridan, 114 Mo. App. 332, 89 S. W. 555. Where testator in his lifetime agreed to deliver farm produce to defendant when it was ready for market, and latter was to reimburse himself from proceeds for advances made on the strength of the agreement, held that title remained in testator, and where, after his death, his executrix delivered the produce to defendant without knowledge of the agreement, defendant acquired no rights therein as against the estate, and the executrix could recover the amounts withheld by him on account of advances. Schermerhorn v. Gardenier, 46 Misc. 280, 94 N. Y. S. 253. Contract for the sale and installing of machinery, payment to be made in three instalments, one on delivery, another when machinery was installed, and the final payment on completion of test, the buyer to keep the machinery insured for the seller's benefit, held on delivery of machinery and payment of first instalment there was a completed sale. William R. Trigg Co. v. Bucyrus Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 174. A buyer of cattle under contract binding him to pay only for such as were delivered to him at the place of delivery, held he was the owner of all the cattle that were transported to the place of delivery except such as might die en route. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 611. An oral sale of personal property without actual or constructive delivery or payment of any part of the price, and without any special agreement as to immediate delivery or change of title, is not a completed sale and title does not pass to the purchaser. St. Anthony & D. Elevator Co. v. Cass County [N. D.] 106 N. W. 41.

66. Conard v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [Pa.] 63 A. 424; Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797. As between buyer and seller the buyer's title to shares of corporate stock attaches the moment the contract of sale is fully consummated between them. Westminster Nat. Bank v. New England Electrical Works [N. H.] 62 A. 971. Present sale; delivery to buyer at place designated; title passes. Yick Sung v. Herman [Cal. App.] 83 P. 1089. Weighing by vendor, title held not to pass. Gibson v. Ray [Ky.] 89 S. W. 474. A sale of corporate stock to be paid for out of dividends and earnings and from other sources at the option of the buyer held a valid sale vesting good title in the purchaser. White v. C. & G. Cooper Co., 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 114. Seller is not liable for damage occurring after inspection. Jones v. Bloomgarden [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1019, 106 N. W. 891. As to what contracts are executory see ante, § 1, Definitions and distinctions, and infra, the next three subdivisions of this section.

67. Conard v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [Pa.] 63 A. 424.

68. Julius Kessler & Co. v. Velo [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 790, 106 N. W. 73.

69. Under Code 1892, § 850, expressly forbidding the payment of subscriptions to corporate stock with notes, held where a note was given for a subscription to corporate stock and the stock was held by the corporation as security for the note, no title to the stock passed to the subscriber and he was not entitled to possession of a stock dividend. Headley Lumber Co. v. Cranford [Miss.] 38 So. 548.

70. McGuire v. Bradley, 118 Ill. App. 59.

71. Guss v. Nelson, 26 S. Ct. 260.

72. Guss v. Nelson, 26 S. Ct. 260. Contract for the transfer of corporate stock for a part payment "to be considered an option" construed and held to confer an option to return and not an option to purchase. Id.

73. Yick Sung v. Herman [Cal. App.] 83 P. 1089.

74. Gardiner v. McDonogh, 147 Cal. 313, 81 P. 964.

NOTE: In a sale by description title passes, in the absence of other stipulation, immediately upon the completion of the contract. Wade v. Moffett, 21 Ill. 110, 74 Am. Dec. 79; Wing v. Clark, 24 Me. 366; Cleveland v. Williams, 29 Tex. 204, 94 Am. Dec. 274; Rail v. Little Falls Lumber Co., 47 Minn. 422, 50 N. W. 471. In a sale where the quality of goods is expressly or impliedly warranted, title does not pass, however, until acceptance by the vendee. Bach v. Levy, 101 N. Y. 511, 5 N. E. 345; Aultman v. Clifford, 55 Minn. 159, 56 N. W. 593.—From 4 Mich. L. R. 81.

75. Gardiner v. McDonogh, 147 Cal. 313, 81 P. 964.

to transfer title where possession is taken by the vendee at the time of the purchase and by him retained.[76]

Separation and designation of the goods.[77]—In the absence of evidence showing an intent to the contrary, title does not pass where there is no selection or identification out of a common mass,[78] though a seeming exception is made in the case of a sale of part of a mass of grain of one grade and quality.[79] As soon, however, as the purchaser makes a selection of a particular part of the property in pursuance of his contract, and his act is approved by the vendor, the sale is complete and the title of the vendor is divested.[80] Measurement and weighing, when necessary to determine the purchase price, is frequently deemed a condition precedent to the passage of title.[81]

Payment.[82]—In the absence of an unwaived condition to the contrary,[83] payment is not essential to the passage of title in any sale[84] other than one for cash.[85]

Delivery and acceptance.[86]—While delivery is often important as bearing on the question of intent,[87] many cases hold that, unless made a condition precedent by the contract,[88] as between the parties[89] neither actual[90] nor "constructive"[91] delivery is essential, and symbolical delivery certainly suffices,[92] complete manual tradition being unnecessary;[93] but in the absence of either actual or symbolical delivery, it would seem essential that there be a "constructive" delivery. That is to say such an intention to complete the buyer's title that the seller's subsequent possession if any is regarded by them as merely that of a bailee or lienor. The contract providing for delivery f. o. b. point of shipment, title passes on goods being loaded on cars.[94] In the absence of any stipulation or agreement as to the 76. Klinger v. Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co., 115 Ill. App. 358.

77. See 4 C. L. 1327.

78. Conard v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [Pa.] 63 A. 424. Sale of mortgaged cattle held not to pass title, there being no separation from the herd of which they were part. Martin Bros. & Co. v. Lesan [Iowa] 105 N. W. 996.

79. If the parties so intend. O'Keefe v. Leistikow [N. D.] 104 N. W. 515; St. Anthony & D. Elevator Co. v. Cass County [N. D.] 106 N. W. 41.

80. Conard v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [Pa.] 63 A. 424.

81. Where a contract for the sale of a crop of tobacco in the barn of the seller fixed the price per pound and the time for delivery, held title did not pass, the number of pounds not being ascertained. Tingle v. Kelly [Ky.] 92 S. W. 303.

82. See 4 C. L. 1328.

83. Commonwealth v. Adair [Ky.] 89 S. W. 1130.

84. Baker v. McDonald [Neb.] 104 N. W. 923; Ettien v. Drum, 32 Mont. 311, 80 P. 369; Commonwealth v. Adair [Ky.] 89 S. W. 1130.

85. See 4 C. L. 1328, n. 63.

86. See 4 C. L. 1328.

87. Hamilton v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 438.

88. Commonwealth v. Adair [Ky.] 89 S. W. 1130. Where the bill of lading of goods shipped provided for delivery "at ship's tackle," held a similar provision in the contract of sale of such goods while in transit did not constitute a condition precedent to the passage of title. Sweeney v. Frank Waterhouse & Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 1005.

89. Delivery as essential to pass title as to third persons, see Fraudulent Conveyances, 6 C. L. 1556.

90. Ettien v. Drum, 32 Mont. 311, 80 P. 369; Baker v. McDonald [Neb.] 104 N. W. 923. Actual delivery. Julius Kessler & Co. v. Veio [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 790, 106 N. W. 73; Hamilton v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 438. The fact that the seller retains the property under his control is not inconsistent with the transfer of title. Id. Where property was described and separated, a price agreed upon and a warehouse receipt, reciting that the buyer assumed the risk of loss, given the buyer, held there was a completed sale, though goods were in the seller's warehouse. Julius Kessler & Co. v. Manhein, 114 La. 619, 38 So. 473. Under Civ. Code § 1140, title passes as between the parties to the sale, though there is no immediate delivery where there is proper identification. Gardiner v. McDonogh, 147 Cal. 313, 81 P. 964. Where a holder of matured stock in a building and loan association agreed to sell it to the association, the price to be paid in instalments, held retention of the stock by the seller while evidentiary of ownership in him was not inconsistent with the existence of a consummated sale to the association. Rogers v. Ogden Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n [Utah] 83 P. 754.

91. Hamilton v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 438.

92. Delivery of warehouse receipts is sufficient. So held as to sale of whisky to be reduced to "95 proof." Julius Kessler & Co. v. Veio [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 790, 106 N. W. 73.

93. See ante, cases holding actual delivery to be unnecessary.

place of delivery,[95] the sale is complete upon delivery to a common carrier for transportation to the buyer.[96] The effect of a bill of lading issued by a carrier on the title to the property as between the consignor and consignee is a question of fact depending not only on the terms of the paper itself but on the intention of the parties as expressed by their dealings with each other.[97] The fact that when shipping the goods the seller takes the bill of lading in his own name as consignee,[98] or forwards the bill of lading with draft on the buyer attached to a bank for collection before delivering possession to the buyer,[99] is prima facie evidence that title has not passed. As already stated, however, the question, in its last analysis, is one of intention, and this prima facie conclusion may be rebutted by proof that in so doing the seller acted as agent for the buyer and did not intend to retain control of the property, and it is for the jury to determine as a question of fact what the real intention was.[1] The bill of lading being forwarded with draft attached, the buyer obtains no right to possession by tender of less than the amount called for by the draft, even though such amount is in excess of the contract price,[2] and if the goods are destroyed before payment, the buyer cannot, by afterwards paying the draft and taking the bill of lading, obtain a title which will relate back so as to authorize him to sue for the destruction of the goods.[3] A sale of the bill of lading with draft attached will pass title to the goods represented thereby.[4] The place of delivery is often of importance in determining the intent of the parties and when disputed raises a question for the jury.[5] Cases dealing with the sufficiency of delivery to pass title are shown in the notes.[6]

94. Buyer is liable for amount loaded as distinguished from amount received at destination; refusing to pay for the same is a breach of the contract. Murphy v. Sagola Lumber Co., 125 Wis. 363, 103 N. W. 1113.

95. Where goods are sold, the seller to have the privilege of returning all goods not resold by him, he is liable for goods lost by a common carrier on returning them, he having selected the carrier in the performance of his agreement to make delivery to the consignee. Conn v. Reed, Dawson & Co. [N. J. Law] 62 A. 271.

96. Burns v. Goddard [S. C.] 51 S. E. 915. Where a firm employed complainant to purchase goods for it in England, complainant agreeing to repay freight, insurance, and other charges for a specified commission, held, as against a retiring partner, title to the goods passed to defendant firm on delivery of the goods to a common carrier for transportation to such firm. Easton v. George Wostenholm & Son [C. C. A.] 137 F. 524. A written order for goods sent C. O. D. constitutes a sale at the point of shipment and not of destination. Keller v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 264, 87 S. W. 669; Golightly v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 90 S. W. 26. Vendee is in duty bound to pay whether he receives and accepts goods or not, or whether he intended to or not. Id. In case of loss of goods or failure to deliver, the consignee has remedy against the express company. Id. If goods were such as the contract called for when shipped and were shipped in good condition, the seller is not liable for any damage subsequently occurring. Jones v. Bloomgarden [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1019, 106 N. W. 891.

97. Greenwood Grocery Co. v. Canadian County Mill & Elevator Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 191.

98. Hamilton v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 438; American Nat. Bank v. Lee [Ga.] 53 S. E. 268.

99. Vaughn v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 61 A. 695; Greenwood Grocery Co. v. Canadian County Mill & Elevator Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 191.

1. Benjamin on Sales, p. 333; Hamilton v. Jos Schlitz Brewing Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 438. Where goods were shipped with bill of lading and drafts attached and were wrongfully taken by the consignee without taking up the drafts, held railroad company having purchased claims of shippers had title to the property. Erie R. Co. v. Dial [C. C. A.] 140 F. 689.

2. Greenwood Grocery Co. v. Canadian County Mill & Elevator Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 191.

3. Vaughn v. New York, etc., R. Co. [R. I.] 61 A. 695.

4. So held where goods were shipped to the order of the consignor and he subsequently sold the bill of lading with draft on the original "purchaser" to a third person. American Nat. Bank v. Lee [Ga.] 53 S. E. 268.

5. Burns v. Goddard [S. C.] 51 S. E. 915.

6. Where coffee was sold but left with the seller to roast and the seller set the amount sold aside in separate piles and placed the buyer's name and address on each pile, held delivery was good as against an execution creditor. Riggs v. Bair [Pa.] 62 A. 1086.

How proved.[7]—A bill of sale may constitute prima facie evidence of ownership.[8]

Revesting of title.[9]—After goods have been received and accepted a subsequent return of them is no defense to an action for the purchase price.[10]

§ 7. Delivery and acceptance under the terms of the contract. A. Construction and operation of contract. Necessity, time, place, amount, etc.[11]—Unless delivery according to terms be waived,[12] it is ineffectual unless it corresponds to the terms of the contract respecting place,[13] amount,[14] and time, when of the essence of the contract;[15] but no time being specified[16] or delivery being required "immediately"[17] or "about" a specified date[18] or on a specified date "or as soon as possible,"[19] a reasonable time is implied. What is a reasonable time is a mixed question of law and fact[20] and except where the facts are few, simple and undisputed and where only one inference can be drawn, or except where the time is so short or so long that the court can declare it reasonable or unreasonable it should be left to the jury.[21] Parol evidence of the facts and circumstances attending the sale are admissible to determine what is a reasonable time.[22] No time for delivery being fixed and a shipment not being in accord with the contract a redelivery may be

7. See 2 C. L. 1539.

8. Where record proof that a bill of sale executed by a corporation was authorized was excluded on objection, it was sufficiently proved by proof of its due execution to be admissible in evidence, and, together with proof of payment of the consideration for the property and its delivery by those having the management of the corporation's affairs, establishes the purchaser's title prima facie. Lingle v. Dalzell [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 465, 104 N. W. 665.

9. See 4 C. L. 1330.

10. Return of 2-3 of order. Lenz v. Spencer, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 31.

11. See 4 C. L. 1330. Delivery to pass title, see ante, § 6.

12. Where cotton was sold to be delivered in April, May, or June at buyer's option, an order given by the buyer to sell if July cotton reached a certain price operated to extend the time of delivery until the last day of July. R. T. Wilson & Co. v. Levi Cotton Mills [N. C.] 52 S. E. 250.

13. Where billposters were ordered for delivery f. o. b. New York and they were delivered to a bill posting company of Brooklyn, held delivery was insufficient in the absence of proof of authority to so deliver. Sackett & Wilhelms Lithographing & Printing Co. v. Tilyou, 97 N. Y. S. 749. Contract considered and place of delivery held properly determined by the trial court. American Bridge Co. v. Duquesne Steel Foundry Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 479.

14. Seller should deliver all he promises to deliver. Young v. Guess [La.] 38 So. 975. Where a contract of sale binds the seller to transfer his "rights, title and interest" in a corporation which has issued no certificate of stock and in government concessions, he is required only to tender a deed or assignment transferring and conveying all his right, title and interest in the property in question and he need not tender a perfect legal title to some specific undivided part of the concession for certificates of stock in the corporation. McGue v. Rommel [Col.] 83 P. 1000.

15. Where plaintiffs unconditionally accepted a special order for ice cans requiring delivery within thirty days, and plaintiffs knew that the cans were for a special use in the making of defendant's product and of the importance to defendant of prompt delivery and that the loss would follow delay, the time of performance is a condition precedent. Wall v. St. Joseph Artesian Ice & Cold Storage Co., 112 Mo. App. 659, 87 S. W. 574. Evidence held insufficient to show a failure to deliver within the contract time. Crusel v. Hermitage Planting & Mfg. Co., 114 La. 920, 38 So. 648.

16. Aikman v. Wahnetah Silk Co., 110 App. Div. 191, 96 N. Y. S. 1067; Long v. Abeles & Co. [Ark.] 91 S. W. 29; McGinnis v. R. K. Johnson Co. [Neb.] 104 N. W. 869. Where coal was ordered in December for winter trade held a delivery the last of March was unreasonably delayed. McGinnis v. R. K. Johnson Co. [Neb.] 104 N. W. 869. An order not specifying time of delivery or intimating need of haste if filled in due course of business within a reasonable time is such delivery as will bind purchaser. An order for hoop-iron given Feb. 21, 1903, filled by delivery to railroad company March 27, 1903, and received April 28, 1903. Hardesty v. Pittsburg Steel Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 260.

17. Claus-Shear Co. v. E. Lee Hardware House [N. C.] 53 S. E. 433.

18. Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544.

19. Williams v. Gridley, 96 N. Y. S. 978.

20. Claus-Shear Co. v. E. Lee Hardware House [N. C.] 53 S. E. 433.

21. Where time was 30 days held a question for the jury. Claus-Shear Co. v. E. Lee Hardware House [N. C.] 53 S. E. 433. Except where there are circumstances of doubt or dispute as to the terms of the contract or where facts are testified to which, if believed by the jury, might excuse the delay in delivery, the question of whether or not delivery was made within a reasonable time is for the court. Id.

22. Walter Pratt & Co. v. Frasier & Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 983.

made.[23] The determination of questions arising from stipulations relating to time of performance rests entirely upon the intention of the parties to be collected from the language used and the circumstances.[24] Where the contract is by its terms to be performed on a day named, both parties have the whole of the business day in which to tender performance.[25] The intention of the parties as to the place of delivery is for the jury.[26] In the absence of fraud or of provisions to the contrary, the determination of inspectors, appointed and acting under the terms of the contract, as to the quality and quantity delivered, is conclusive.[27] Ordinarily, and in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, the seller is under no obligation to send or carry to the buyer the goods sold. His duty is fulfilled by so placing them at the disposal of the buyer that they can be removed by him.[28] In the absence of any stipulation or agreement as to the place of delivery, delivery to a common carrier for transportation to the buyer is delivery to the latter,[29] but if the seller is named as consignee and does not deliver the bill of lading to the buyer there is no delivery.[30]

The courts will take judicial notice that "f. o. b." means "free on board."[31] A contract of sale for the delivery of perishable goods in car loads f. o. b. shipping point, where the car is loaded by the seller and not by the common carrier, requires that the seller shall properly load and deliver the car in good condition to the railroad company. There the responsibility of the seller ends; but if he should fail in any particular in properly loading the car and delivering it to the railroad company in proper condition, and by reason of such failure the goods are injured or destroyed in transit, the buyer is not bound to receive the same, nor does the property in the goods pass to him until the obligation of the shipper is discharged with reasonable care and diligence.[32] The law of such contracts requires that the seller shall do the thing which is right and reasonable for the protection of perishable property to be delivered f. o. b. at shipping point, and the question as to what is right and reasonable is a question for the jury, and evidence of the general custom of

23. Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648.

24. Wall v. St. Joseph Artesian Ice & Cold Storage Co., 112 Mo. App. 659, 87 S. W. 574.

25. Brauer v. Macbeth [C. C. A.] 138 F. 977.

26. Burns v. Goddard [S. C.] 51 S. E. 915.

27. Strother v. McMullen Lumber Co., 110 Mo. App. 552, 85 S. W. 650. Contract held to imply conclusive inspection. Electric Fireproofing Co.'s Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 307. Where lumber was inspected at the contractor's plant before subjected to fireproofing process and after passing defendant's inspection was treated by the process, delivered and accepted, the inspection was final as to quality and dimensions and precluded a second inspection. Id. Where the amount to be paid is to be determined by measurement of the property to be made by the parties a measurement which is grossly unfair, as the result of fraud or mistake, is not binding, and a tender based thereon does not entitle the purchaser to possession. Baker v. McDonald [Neb.] 104 N. W. 923. See, also, post, § 9.

28. Am. & Eng. Ency. of Law [2d Ed.] vol. 24, p. 1068. Williams v. Wilson & McNeal Co., 97 N. Y. S. 731. Court's finding that goods were not delivered though demanded does not show that the seller was under any obligation to deliver them, or that he violated his contract. Id.

29. Burns v. Goddard [S. C.] 51 S. E. 915. The contract providing that the goods shall be shipped f. o. b. at a certain place and addressed to the buyers, a delivery of the goods to the carrier free on board the car at the place designated, addressed to the buyers as provided for in the contract, with notice of shipment to them, held a delivery to the buyers. Kilmer v. Moneyweight Scale Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 271. Where seller of coal agreed to sell and furnish the buyer specified quantities of coal from its mines and on cars at its mines held cars of coal which were loaded by the seller at its mines and billed to the purchaser in its shipping orders to the railroad company, but which the railroad company appropriated to its own use, were to be considered, as between the parties to the contract, as having been delivered to the buyer. Luhrig Coal Co. v. Jones & Adams Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 617. See ante, § 6, Transition of title.

30. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Martin [Ala.] 39 So. 722.

31. Kilmer v. Moneyweight Scale Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 271.

the trade in handling such perishable property is competent for the purpose of showing what is reasonably necessary under such circumstances.[33]

All questions of fact are for the jury,[34] the general rules of evidence applying.[35]

(§ 7) B. Sufficiency of delivery; actual, symbolical.[36]—A tender of the necessary transfer papers should be made to the buyer personally.[37]

(§ 7) C. Acceptance; necessity; time; what is.[38]—The seller performing his part of the contract, the buyer is in duty bound to accept,[39] but the contract being entire, failure of the seller to ship an essential article authorizes the buyer to refuse to accept the part shipped.[40] Although notice of readiness to receive goods is necessary as a condition precedent to the right of the buyer to demand a tender, it is not a condition as to his liability ultimately to take and pay for the chattels.[41] A provision in the contract that none of the articles should be returned except in exchange for the other articles does not bar the purchaser from refusing to accept the articles because not conforming to description.[42] After being put in default an offer to accept is too late.[43] Any intentional[44] dealing with the property in such a manner as would be unlawful if it were the property of another constitutes an acceptance of the goods,[45] the question being frequently one for the jury.[46] Receipt and use of article sold on trial does not constitute an acceptance.[47] An attempted sale of the salable part of the goods while awaiting adjustment of claim

32, 33. Fruit Dispatch Co. v. Sturges, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 445.

34. Evidence being conflicting question of whether or not there was a delivery according to the contract held for the jury. Jones v. Minnesota & M. R. Co. [Minn.] 106 N. W. 1048. As to whether letter by alleged "buyer" disavowing agent's order constituted an implied acknowledgment that goods were delivered according to contract held a question for the jury. Sackett & Wilhelms Lithographing & Printing Co. v. Tilyou, 97 N. Y. S. 749.

35. Where conflict was as to whether delivery of peas was made on a certain date evidence that seller's son requested permission of his employer to be excused on a certain date to help his father held harmless. Kiley v. Lee Canning Co., 105 App. Div. 633, 93 N. Y. S. 986. Where conflict was as to on which of two dates delivery was made and it was admitted that the seller's son made the delivery, testimony of the son's employer that the son worked for him on one of the dates and not on the other held competent. Id.

36. See 4 C. L. 1332.

37. Where the seller tendered the necessary papers of transfer at the buyer's house and failing to see the purchaser personally put the papers in the bank and notified the purchaser, held tender was insufficient. Tait v. McInnes [Cal. App.] 84 P. 674.

38. See 4 C. L. 1332.

39. Where contract provides that delivery will be made as soon as possible after a certain date, the buyer must accept if the condition is fulfilled. Widman v. Straukamp, 94 N. Y. S. 18. Quality, quantity, and price answering terms of contract, the buyer must accept. Drucklieb v. Universal Tobacco Co., 106 App. Div. 470, 94 N. Y. S. 777.

40. Walter Pratt & Co. v. Frasier & Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 983. Where plaintiffs sold defendants an assortment of toilet articles and a counter showcase, the contract was an entire one and a failure to redeliver the showcase excused defendants from accepting the goods. Id.

41. Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544.

42. Puritan Mfg. Co. v. Westermire [Or.] 84 P. 797.

43. Woodstock Iron Works v. Standard Pulley Mfg. Co. [La.] 40 So. 236.

44. Where a vendor refuses to accept a return of defective goods and a vendee inadvertently sells part of such goods with no intention to treat them as his own, he is liable only for the goods sold. Such instruction should have been given. Walter Pratt & Co. v. W. C. Morris & Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1035, 87 S. W. 783.

45. Kupfer v. Michigan Clothing Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 433, 104 N. W. 582. Where buyer returned goods but subsequently retook possession held an acceptance. Id. Examining and testing ice machine for two months and then using it for remainder of season held to constitute an acceptance. Callahan v. O'Rourke, 96 N. Y. S. 1010. Where tobacco was imported and placed in a bonded warehouse, samples were delivered and the buyer received and retained, without objection, for two months a part of the tobacco and warehouse delivery orders for the balance, held to show an acceptance. Drucklieb v. Universal Tobacco Co., 106 App. Div. 470, 94 N. Y. S. 777. Continued use of property purchased is evidence of acceptance. Borden & Selleck Co. v. Fraser, 118 Ill. App. 655.

46. So held where evidence was conflicting. Jones v. Minnesota & M. R. Co. [Minn.] 106 N. W. 1048.

47. Where a contract to manufacture a boiler for a tug provided that it should be satisfactory to the engineer, the fact that the boiler was received by him and put in the tug does not necessarily constitute an acceptance. The Nimrod, 141 F. 215.

does not constitute an acceptance of all the goods.[48] Unless acceptance of the whole is made necessary by the nature of the property or the agreement of the parties, the buyer may accept part and reject part of a several contract.[49] Rejection should be prompt and within the time specified in the contract.[50] Notice of refusal to accept being given the buyer need not return the goods;[51] it is sufficient in such case if the seller be given an opportunity to retake possession,[52] and if he fails to retake possession the purchaser may dispose of them at the best price obtainable and interpose in an action for the contract price the defense of the seller's noncompliance with the contract.[53]

(§ 7) D. Excuses for and waiver of breach.[54]—In order that failure to deliver may constitute a breach of the contract the seller must be in duty bound to deliver.[55] Delivery[56] or acceptance[57] will be excused if the buyer or seller has failed to perform all conditions precedent. So, also, delivery under the terms of the contract will be excused if prevented[58] or rendered futile[59] by the acts of the buyer. In the absence of agreement for credit or delay, delivery and payment are each a condition of the other.[60] Refusal to accept is equivalent to actual production and tender.[61] Where one part of a severable contract is breached, it will not

48. Such an attempt while waiting adjustment of claim that shoes were not equal to sample held not to constitute an acceptance of the entire lot. Woolfe Bros. Shoe Co. v. Bishop [Kan.] 84 P. 133.

49. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills Co. v. Spring, 116 Ill. App. 27.

50. Contract of sale providing that the buyer should have 60 days in which to keep or reject the property the rule that he is bound to exercise his option within a reasonable time is inapplicable. Allyn v. Burns [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 636.

51. Where machine was sold on trial mere acquiescence in allowing it to remain on premises after notice of refusal to accept held not to constitute an acceptance. Allyn v. Burns [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 636.

52. If articles delivered are not those ordered and the seller is notified thereof and is in substance also notified that the buyer refuses to accept them and the seller has an opportunity to retake possession there can be no recovery for the purchase price. Perkins Windmill Co. v. Kelly [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 533, 104 N. W. 668.

53. So held where seller insisted that he had fully performed the contract. Jones v. Bloomgarden [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1019, 106 N. W. 891.

54. See 4 C. L. 1333.

55. Where the seller has an option to refuse to continue to deliver, an exercise of the option does not constitute a breach of the contract. Over v. Byram Foundry Co. [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 302.

56. Failure to pay on date required by terms of contract held to authorize subsequent refusal to deliver. Bennett v. Taylor [Kan.] 84 P. 533. Where the contract provides for delivery as ordered it is incumbent on the buyer to demand delivery as a condition to putting the seller in default for failure to deliver. Smokeless Fuel Co. v. W. E. Seaton & Sons [Va.] 52 S. E. 829. Where a party agreed to give notice of readiness to receive within a few days after Sept. 1, and he never gave it, held he had rendered a reasonable tender impossible, and hence had waived. Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544.

57. Where plaintiff contracted for one-half of defendant's tar, its failure to remove the tar or send cars for that purpose held not a default in the absence of notice from defendant that there was tar to be removed under the contract. National Coal Tar Co. v. Malden & Melrose Gaslight Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 625. Evidence held insufficient to show performance by seller of condition of contract requiring him to give the buyer notice of the time of delivery. B. F. Boneweil & Co. v. Jacobson [Iowa] 106 N. W. 614.

58. Held proper to allow plaintiff to show that defendant's foreman prevented plaintiff's teamsters from delivering brick. McAvoy & McMichael v. Com. Title Ins. & Trust Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 271.

59. Where the contract called for the delivery of cattle at a certain time and place and the buyer absented himself from the place at the time and had no representative there, the seller was under no obligation to attempt a self-evident futile delivery. Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544.

60. Williams v. Wilson & McNeal Co., 97 N. Y. S. 731. Where a seller put prices on goods and the buyer ordered them from time to time but no credit was extended, there was not such an entire contract that the seller was not entitled to recover for the goods first sold and delivered till he should have delivered goods subsequently ordered by the buyer. Id. Where the time of payment is not fixed by the contract of sale, the law presumes a cash sale, and, while title may have passed to the buyer, he is not entitled to possession until the full purchase price has been paid or tendered. Baker v. McDonald [Neb.] 104 N. W. 923.

61. Levis v. Royal Packing & Drying Co. [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1086; R. T. Wilson & Co. v. Levi Cotton Mills [N. C.] 52 S. E. 250; Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544. Where the purchaser rejects part of the goods when tendered, stating that he does not care for justify the disregard by the other party of the entire contract and suing on quantum meruit.[62] Unless provided for by the contract, the seller has no right to impose additional conditions as a condition precedent to deliver.[63] Whether conditions precedent have been performed is a question for the jury.[64] The seller agreeing to a postponement of the time of delivery there is no breach of the contract.[65] Refusal to accept cannot be based on an unlawful or false calculation.[66]

Failure to deliver on a certain date may be excused under a provision in the contract that it is subject to delays or nondelivery for any reason beyond the control of the seller.[67] The contract binding the seller to use every possible effort towards completing the contract but providing that delivery is subject to strikes beyond the seller's control binds the seller to deliver unless there is a strike so far beyond its control as to render performance impossible.[68] Whether such a strike exists is a question for the jury.[69] The burden is on the seller to show that delivery was excused under strike or car-shortage clauses.[70]

Waiver is a question of intention[71] for the jury.[72] In the absence of prejudice, silence on the part of the seller will not waive a breach by the buyer.[73] As a general rule acceptance without objection[74] or based upon specific objections[75] waives all objections not made. There is a conflict as to whether acceptance of more, further tender on the part of the seller is excused. Kiley v. Lee Canning Co., 105 App. Div. 633, 93 N. Y. S. 986. Contract for the sale and purchase of axles and springs requiring purchaser to specify styles and sizes, and providing that a refusal to accept on the part of the buyer shall entitle the seller to regard the articles as specified or, at his option, treat the same as a lawful tender of all undelivered goods, held to merely dispense with the necessity of a tender and not to render an election by the seller necessary. George Delker Co. v. Hess Spring & Axle Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 647.

62. Contract for lumber, certain items specified, certain other items not, latter provisions breached; did not justify suing for lumber furnished under other items on quantum meruit in disregard of contract price. Magnolia Compress Co. v. Smith [Ark.] 88 S. W. 563.

63. Held to have no right to demand an indemnity bond. Smokeless Fuel Co. v. W. E. Seaton & Sons [Va.] 52 S. E. 829.

64. As to whether delivery was demanded. Smokeless Fuel Co. v. W. E. Seaton & Sons [Va.] 52 S. E. 829.

65. Wood v. Planters' Oil Mill [Ark.] 90 S. W. 18. Postponement of delivery at the buyer's request, until further notice does not start the running of the statute of limitations. Woodstock Iron Works v. Standard Pulley Mfg. Co. [La.] 40 So. 236.

66. Where contract called for 500,000 ft. of oak logs, the fact that oak rafts which with the admixture of 30% of poplar logs to make them float measured about 500,000 ft. in gross, but only 378,000 ft. of actual oak logs, refusal of oak logs could not be based on having received contractual amount. Walker v. Kirwan [Ky.] 90 S. W. 244.

67. Widman v. Straukamp, 94 N. Y. S. 18. In an action for breach of contract to furnish wheels, an answer predicating a defense on a provision making "unavoidable cause" an excuse for failure to perform is not sufficient to bar the action, where it alleges that the failure was caused by the giving way of the foundation of the engine, the delay of plaintiff in giving orders, and the extraordinary demand for material necessary to manufacture the wheels, all of which was without fault of defendant, and that defendant in good faith complied with the contract, except in so far as it was prevented from doing so by such unavoidable causes. Connersville Wagon Co. v. McFarlan Carriage Co. [Ind.] 76 N. E. 294.

68, 69, 70. Smokeless Fuel Co. v. W. E. Seaton & Sons [Va.] 52 S. E. 829.

71. Murmann v. Wissler [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 355. Settlement of suit in November held not to bar suit for refusal to accept balance of fruit in December. Willson v. Gregory [Cal. App.] 84 P. 356.

72. So held where the evidence was conflicting. Jones v. Minnesota & M. R. Co. [Minn.] 106 N. W. 1048.

73. Wood v. Planters' Oil Mill [Ark.] 90 S. W. 18.

74. Where defendant at no time during the negotiations with reference to the sale of tobacco assumed to reject the same absolutely, or made any suggestion that more tobacco had been tendered than complied with the terms of the contract, or more than defendant was required to take, it was estopped to defend an action for the price on the ground that the tender was excessive. Drucklieb v. Universal Tobacco Co., 106 App. Div. 470, 94 N. Y. S. 777.

75. Where buyer refused coal on the ground that it was not the kind purchased held he could not subsequently justify refusal on the ground that the coal was not of merchantable quality. Ginn v. W. C. Clark Coal Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 240, 106 N. W. 867. Refusal on ground that prices had not been wired. Held vendee could not afterward object to time of performance or quality. Olcese v. Mobile Fruit & Trading Co., 112 Ill. App. 281.

delivery after the stipulated times waives the breach.[76] It would seem, however, that waiver being a question of intent, the question is one for the jury under the circumstances of the case.[77] Such acceptance has been considered prima facie evidence of waiver.[78] As one court states it: "When time of performance is made an essential element of the contract, such stipulation is regarded as being in the nature of a warranty that the goods will be delivered in the time agreed, and in case of failure of the seller to so deliver the buyer has the option to either rescind the contract and refuse to accept the goods, or to receive them and recover from the seller his damages."[79] This latter right is not waived by urging the seller to fill the order after default is made.[80] If, after breach of contract, the parties mutually agree to an unconditional rescission, the effect is to waive the right to recover damages for the breach[81] unless expressly reserved,[82] and no consideration in addition to mutual consent to rescind contract is necessary to support such waiver.[83] After breach the other party may abandon the contract without waiving his right to damages.[84] One acquiescing in rejection of all the goods because part are not up to sample waives his right to insist that the contract is severable.[85]

§ 8. Warranties and conditions. A. In general. Nature and distinctions. Descriptions and representations.[86]—A warranty is a collateral agreement,[87] and while not a necessary constituent element of the sale,[88] it must enter into or become collateral to the contract of sale.[89] No particular form of words is necessary to constitute a warranty.[90] An intention to warrant must, however, be apparent,[91] and the court or jury will not be bound by the fact that the parties have named an agreement a warranty, it not being such in fact.[92] Representations of past or existing material facts[93] as distinguished from mere expressions of opinion,[94] if

76. Waives breach. E. T. Burrowes Co. v. Rapid Safety Filter Co., 97 N. Y. S. 1048; Lucile Min. Co. v. Fairbanks, Morse & Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1100, 87 S. W. 1121 (By divided court). Right to damages for failure to deliver at time specified is not waived by accepting goods after such time. Murmann v. Wissler [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 355.

77, 78. Murmann v. Wissler [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 355.

79, 80. Wall v. St. Joseph Artesian Ice & Cold Storage Co., 112 Mo. App. 659, 87 S. W. 574.

81, 82, 83. Alabama Oil & Pipe Line Co. v. Sun Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 202.

84. Alabama Oil & Pipe Line Co. v. Sun Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 202. After the breach by the buyer, the seller may change his position so as to be unable to perform his part of the contract without affecting his right to damages. So held where one contracting to sell milk went out of business after the buyer defaulted. Brazell v. Cohn, 32 Mont. 556, 81 P. 339.

85. Gardiner v. McDonogh, 147 Cal. 313, 81 P. 964.

86. See 4 C. L. 1334.

87, 88. Simonson v. Jenson [N. D.] 104 N. W. 513.

89. San Antonio Machine & Supply Co. v. Josey [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 598. Where agent in trying to induce sale made warranties, and ten days later defendant ordered artiele, held warranties were part of the contract of sale. Id.

90. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978; McAllister v. Morgan, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 476. Warranty as to the quality or soundness of chattels. Shuman v. Heater [Neb.] 106 N. W. 1042. The assurance by the seller that the buyer will have the right to remove the property until a certain day amounts to a warranty that up to that time the seller will have authority to convey a title. Sale by government of shacks, etc., after war of 1898. Houser's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 508.

91. Hartin Commission Co. v. Pelt [Ark.] 88 S. W. 929.

92. Privilege of exchange: Portion of contract reading as follows: "Warranty. Any jewelry in this assortment failing to wear satisfactorily will be replaced by new articles free of charge, if returned to us within five years," held not to constitute a warranty so as to exclude implied warranties. Elgin Jewelry Co. v. Estes, 122 Ga. 807, 50 S. E. 939.

93. J. H. Clark Co. v. Rice [Wis.] 106 N. W. 231. Any form of words whereby the seller, for the purpose of inducing the sale, makes affirmation pending the negotiations that the subject-matter of the sale is of a particular quality or fitness, will constitute a warranty when relied upon by the purchaser. Evidence held sufficient to show warranty. Shuman v. Heater [Neb.] 106 N. W. 1042; Kell v. Trenchard [C. C. A.] 142 F. 16, mod. 127 F. 596.

94. The mere expression of an opinion not amounting to an affirmation and not showing an intention to warrant, will not constitute a warranty. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978; J. H. Clark Co. v. Rice [Wis.] 106 N. W. 231. A mere expression of opinion or made at the time or as a part of the sale,[95] may constitute warranties as to all facts covered thereby, and it is for the jury[96] to determine from all the circumstances of the sale[97] whether or not a warranty is to be inferred from the representations made. The mere fact that a statement takes the form of an expression of opinion, however, is not always conclusive.[98] Whatever representation is made by the seller at the time of the sale as to the quality[99] or suitableness[1] of the article is an express warranty. The seller or his agent falsely asserting a material fact to be true of his own knowledge, he is liable for damages to the purchaser, though not knowing the statement to be false.[2] The buyer must have relied upon the representations and must not have been negligent in so doing.[3] Ordinarily a buyer is not justified in relying upon the seller's statement of value,[4] but the buyer has a right under certain circumstances to rely upon the seller's representations as to extrinsic facts affecting the value.[5] Misrepresentations made by an agent in connec-

"trade talk" cannot be construed into a false representation. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Halverson [Iowa] 105 N. W. 108. Praising goods does not impliedly warrant against defects ascertainable by ordinary inspection. Moore v. Koger, 113 Mo. App. 423, 87 S. W. 602. Expressions of opinion by seller of mining stock as to the value of the mining property, together with predictions as to future operations, profits, and dividends, held no defense to an action for the purchase money. Crosby v. Emerson [C. C. A.] 142 F. 713. Where sellers of timber assured the buyers that they had had the timber carefully estimated and that such estimate showed certain quantities such representations were not mere matters of opinion. May v. Loomis [N. C.] 52 S. E. 728. "Nice books, books that children would love to read" did not constitute false representations. Barrie v. Jerome, 112 Ill. App. 329. Representations that engine was practically as good as new, that it would steam well and was of sufficient power to drive defendant's threshing machine, held mere expressions of opinion. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Halvorson [Iowa] 105 N. W. 108. Where on a sale of the business and assets of a life insurance company a list of agents' balances was made and shown the buyer, and in reply to an inquiry the seller's secretary stated that they had charged off the bad accounts and that those remaining were "better than the ordinary," held merely an expression of opinion and not a representation as to the solvency of the persons charged or the collectibility of the accounts. Pittsburg Life & Trust Co. v. Northern Cent. Life Ins. Co., 140 F. 888. Assurance that article will be fit for purpose is but an expression of an opinion when it is followed by a written contract, complete in itself, which is silent on the subject. Davis Calyx Drill Co. v. Mallory [C. C. A.] 137 F. 332.

95. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978; San Antonio Machine & Supply Co. v. Josey [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 598.

96. The question must be determined by the jury or court. J. N. Clark Co. v. Rice [Wis.] 106 N. W. 231. Where defendant on buying a horse said "she looked colicky" and plaintiff replied that he had known her ever since she was a colt and had never known her to be sick a day, held question as to existence of warranty was for the jury. Beasley v. Surles [N. C.] 53 S. E. 360.

97. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978. Where offer of sale of machinery stated that prompt acceptance would be necessary so that apparatus could be installed the next Sunday, and that part of the work might have to go over until the next Sunday, but that there would be no delay in the operation of the plant, held there was no warranty that after the apparatus was installed there would never be any delay in the operation of the plant because of it. Beggs v. James Hanley Brewing Co. [R. I.] 62 A. 373.

98. J. H. Clark Co. v. Rice [Wis.] 106 N. W. 231.

99. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978.

1. Representations that a chattel is suitable for the purpose for which bought, reasonably relied upon by the buyer, are equivalent to an express warranty of suitability for such purpose though there are no formal words of warranty. Young v. Van Natta, 113 Mo. App. 550, 88 S. W. 123. A counterclaim by a buyer, alleging that the articles were furnished for a specified use and purpose, which was known to the seller when making the sale, and that the sale was made on special solicitation by the agent of the seller, on the representation and warranty that the article so sold was adapted for said use and purpose, and that in purchasing the goods from plaintiff the defendant relied on such representation or warranty, set up only an express warranty. B. P. Ducas Co. v. American Silk Dyeing & Finishing Co., 48 Misc. 411, 95 N. Y. S. 590.

2. John Gund Brewing Co. v. Peterson [Iowa] 106 N. W. 741.

3. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978; Shuman v. Heater [Neb.] 106 N. W. 1042; Kell v. Trenchard [C. C. A.] 142 F. 16, mod. 127 F. 596. A buyer who fails to inspect goods purchased when he has the opportunity cannot complain of defects ascertainable by reasonable examination. Moore v. Koger, 113 Mo. App. 423, 87 S. W. 602. Where a prospective purchaser undertakes to make and does make an investigation of his own of the property and the seller does nothing to prevent it from being as full as is desired, the purchaser cannot afterwards be heard to say that the seller made representations which he relied upon to his injury. Pittsburg Life & Trust Co. v. Northern Cent. Life Ins. Co., 140 F. 888.

tion with an authorized sale are binding upon the principal, although the agent had no express authority to make them,[6] but such representations must be limited to the article sold.[7] A seller ratifying the sale is bound by a warranty made by the agent who made the sale, although the agent had no actual authority to make the warranty and the seller had no knowledge of the warranty as made.[8] The naked averment of a fact is neither a warranty nor evidence of it.[9] The jury must be satisfied from the whole case that the seller actually, and not constructively, consented to be bound for the truth of his representation.[10] Where the evidence is conflicting as to the fact of a warranty or as to the authority of the party making it, the question should be left to the jury.[11]

(§ 8) B. Express and implied warranties and fulfillment or breach thereof.[12]—The doctrine of caveat emptor does not apply to cases of actual fraud,[13] or where the seller expressly warrants the soundness of animals and the vendee in good faith relies thereon after reasonable examination.[14] One who relies on an express warranty must prove that it was made at or before the sale, and that it was broken when made,[15] though an instrument of warranty given after a sale merely to correct one made prior thereto relates back to the time of the first warranty and is binding upon the parties.[16]

4. Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290.

5. Damages may be recovered for false statements as to fertility of land if circumstances warrant a reliance thereon. Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290.

6. John Gund Brewing Co. v. Peterson [Iowa] 106 N. W. 741. Seller is liable for false representations of agent. Kell v. Trenchard [C. C. A.] 142 F. 16, mod. 127 F. 596.

7. An agent having authority to sell pumps has no apparent authority; sufficient to bind his principal, that a boiler in possession of buyer is capable of doing its present work and running the pump to be purchased in addition. Lucile Min. Co. v. Fairbanks, Morse & Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1100, 87 S. W. 1121.

8. Holman v. Calhoun [Ala.] 40 So. 356; Phillips-Buttorff Mfg. Co. v. Wild Bros. [Ala.] 39 So. 359. A vendor is bound by the representations of his agent if he accepts an order and profits by it. Rheinstrom v. Elk Brewing Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 519. Evidence of buyer as to warranty held admissible. Holman v. Calhoun [Ala.] 40 So. 356.

9. The naked averment of a fact is neither a warranty nor evidence of it. The jury must be satisfied from the whole that the vendor actually, and not constructively, consented to be bound for the truth of his representation. McAllister v. Morgan, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 476.

10. McAllister v. Morgan, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 476.

11. Held error to instruct for defendant when plaintiff sought to recover the purchase price of a horse. McAllister v. Morgan, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 476.

12. See 4 C. L. 1335.

13. Kell v. Trenchard [C. C. A.] 142 F. 16, mod. 127 F. 596.

14. Narr v. Norman, 113 Mo. App. 533, 88 S. W. 122.

NOTE: Caveat emptor is the principle applicable, in general, to sales in which the question of quality is involved. There are, however, many exceptions to the rule. One of these is that where a sale of goods is executory, and with no inspection by the buyer there is an implied warranty that the goods shall be merchantable. Blackwood v. Cutting Packing Co., 76 Cal. 212, 18 P. 248, 9 Am. St. Rep. 199; Hood v. Bloch, 29 W. Va. 244; Fogel v. Brubaker, 122 Pa. St. 7; Chicago Pack. & Prov. Co. v. Tilton, 87 Ill. 547; Russell v. Critchfield, 75 Iowa 69. The term, merchantable, as thus employed, does not imply that the goods shall measure up to any particular standard of fineness nor that they shall be of the best grade; but it means that the goods shall not be of a quality so inferior as that there shall be no average market for them among those who deal in the particular commodity. Or as it is sometimes expressed, "the article shall not have any remarkable defect." McClung v. Kelley, 21 Iowa, 508; Howard & Ryckman v. Hoey, 23 Wend. [N. Y.] 350, 35 Am. Dec. 572. Apparently, the only state which has adopted the civil law rule, caveat venditor, is South Carolina. Timrod v. Shoolbred, 1 Bay [S. C.] 324, 1 Am. Dec. 620; Smith v. McCall, 1 McCord [S. C.] 143, 10 Am. Dec. 666; Bulwinkle & Co. v. Cramer & Blohme, 27 S. C. 376, 3 S. E. 776, 13 Am. St. Rep. 645. If a general, indefinite term is employed in an executory contract, it is proper that the jury be instructed that the word has a broader meaning than is expressed by its mere dictionary definition and means an article that is merchantable. There will be no performance of the contract if a merchantable article be not supplied. Murchie v. Cornell, 155 Mass. 60, 29 N. E. 207, 31 Am. St. Rep. 526, 14 L. R. A. 492; Sweet v. Shumway, 102 Mass. 365, 3 Am. Rep. 471.—3 Mich. L. R. 402.

15. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978.

16. Barton Bros. v. Chicago Fire Proof Covering Co., 113 Mo. App. 462, 87 S. W. 599.

As a general rule an express warranty,[17] or a refusal to make an express warranty,[18] excludes an implied warranty. A written warranty cannot be added to or changed by parol,[19] or by previous writings not made a part of the agreement.[20] There is a conflict as to whether or not a warranty will be implied in an instrument of sale containing no warranties.[21] In some states in the absence of an express warranty or provisions negativing implied warranties, the statute raises certain implied warranties.[22]

Except in those states where implied warranties are prohibited by statute, a manufacturer impliedly warrants that the article sold is merchantable,[23] free from latent defects arising from the manner in which the article was manufactured and not discoverable upon ordinary examination,[24] and, if ordered for a special purpose, that it is reasonably fit for such purpose,[25] unless the article is known, described, and defined,[26] and the same general rule applies where the article is, to the buyer's knowledge, to be manufactured for the seller.[27] The extent of the implied warranty in such a case is that the machine, tool, or article shall correspond with the description or exem-

17. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Hodges [Ky.] 90 S. W. 580. An express warranty of workmanship and material excludes an implied warranty of fitness. La Crosse Plow Co. v. Helgeson [Wis.] 106 N. W. 1094. An express warranty of one of the qualities of an article excludes an implied warranty of other qualities of a similar nature. Reynolds v. General Electric Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 551.

18. Hartin Commission Co. v. Pelt [Ark.] 88 S. W. 929.

19. Otto v. Braman [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 699, 105 N. W. 601; Houghton Implement Co. v. Doughty [N. D.] 104 N. W. 516. Evidence of prior or contemporaneous agreements or representations are inadmissible. So held where written contract of sale referred to catalogue for terms of the warranty. Buchanan v. Laber [Wash.] 81 P. 911. Previous conversations between the parties are inadmissible. So held as to broker's memorandum of sale. Day Leather Co. v. Michigan Leather Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 548, 104 N. W. 797.

20. In a warranty of paint plaintiff held not bound by a prior pamphlet warning against its use on a green surface. Barton Bros. v. Chicago Fire Proof Covering Co., 113 Mo. App. 462, 87 S. W. 599.

21. Where written contract contains no warranty, none will be implied by law. Walker v. Johnson, 116 Ill. App. 145. A written order which neither contains nor excludes a written warranty does not preclude the establishment of parol warranty. Florence Wagon Works v. Trinidad Asphalt Mfg. Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 49. Warranty that machine will work as well as others can be introduced by express contract only, and parol evidence of it is excluded by a written contract of sale which is silent on the subject. Davis Calyx Drill Co. v. Mallory [C. C. A.] 137 F. 332.

22. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 3555, in the absence of express warranty or provisions negativing the statute, the law raises an implied warranty of title, right to sell, merchantability, suitableness and lack of knowledge of undisclosed latent defects. Elgin Jewelry Co. v. Estes, 122 Ga. 807, 50 S. E. 939.

23. Material and workmanship must be good. The Nimrod, 141 F. 215. Sale of window screens to be made according to specifications. E. T. Burrowes Co. v. Rapid Safety Filter Co., 97 N. Y. S. 1048.

24. The Nimrod, 141 F. 215. Manufacturer is held presumptively to a knowledge of the qualities of the things he sells. George v. Shreveport Cotton Oil Co., 114 La. 498, 38 So. 432. On a sale by a manufacturer of window screens made according to specifications held only implied warranty was that the article should be merchantable and free from any defect arising from the process of manufacture or the use of defective materials not discoverable by ordinary inspection and tests. E. T. Burrowes Co. v. Rapid Safety Filter Co., 97 N. Y. S. 1048.

25. The Nimrod, 141 F. 215; Davis Calyx Drill Co. v. Mallory [C. C. A.] 137 F. 332.

26. Davis Calyx Drill Co. v. Mallory [C. C. A.] 137 F. 332. Cream separators. La Crosse Plow Co. v. Helgeson [Wis.] 106 N. W. 1094; H. McCormick Lumber Co. v. Winans [Wis.] 105 N. W. 945; Beggs v. James Hanley Brewing Co. [R. I.] 62 A. 373. Where there was a sale of known and described grates and blowers held evidence that plaintiff knew that defendant desired the apparatus to produce as much steam as was produced before held inadmissible. Beggs v. James Hanley Brewing Co. [R. I.] 62 A. 373. Manufacturer and seller warranting certain metallic shells to "finish sound" and the buyer knowing more of the purpose for which the shells were intended than the seller held there was no implied warranty that they should be suitable for such use. H. H. Franklin Mfg. Co. v. Lamson & Goodnow Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 624. Where one buys of a dealer a definite machine of known manufacture, which has been, or is to be, made by one other than the seller, and the buyer knows this fact, there is no implied warranty by the dealer, either against latent defects or that the machine or article will be suitable for the purposes for which such articles are commonly used. Reynolds v. General Electric Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 551.

27. A contract by a dealer to furnish to a purchaser a definite pump of a known manu-

plar and that it shall be suitable to perform the ordinary work which the described machine is made to do.[28] A distinction is drawn by the courts between a sale of articles to answer a certain description, and a sale of certain specific articles, then in the hands of the seller and described to be of a certain grade and quality.[29] In the former case there is, until acceptance by the purchaser, a warranty that the article shall answer the description, whereas in the latter case no warranty is implied unless an intention to warrant clearly appears.[30] There is no implied warranty of quality by a vendor who is not a manufacturer.[31] An importer does not warrant against latent defects.[32] The buyer disclosing to the seller his intention to use an article for a special purpose, a sale impliedly warrants against hidden defects impairing its usefulness for such purpose, although the seller is ignorant of the existence of such defects.[33] In the sale of provisions by one dealer to another in the course of general commercial transactions, the maxim "caveat emptor" applies,[34] and there is no implied warranty or representation of quality or fitness.[35] But when articles of human food are sold to the consumer for immediate use, there is an implied warranty or representation that they are sound and fit for food.[36] If the seller is in possession there is an implied warranty of title.[37] If goods sold by sample correspond to the sample, it is sufficient.[38] In order to constitute a sale by sample it must appear that the parties contracted solely in reference to the sample exhibited and mutually understood that they were dealing with it as an agreement or understanding that the bulk of the commodity corresponded with it.[39] One selling an article with a warranty that it is safe has a right to assume, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that it will be used in a lawful manner.[40] Where the buyer and seller each has equal knowledge or means of knowledge, and each relies on his own judgment and observation, there is no warranty either express or implied.[41] Custom will not be permitted to set aside an express contract of warranty, and in the absence of an express warranty, in order to be enforceable, a customary warranty must be so general and so known as to justify the presumption that the parties knew it and contracted in reference to it.[42] The vendor of a chattel in possession sold for a fair price is liable to his vendee on an implied warranty of title.[43] "Full value" in the sale of a chattel, as affecting an implied facture, having a designated capacity, which has been selected by the purchaser and is to be built by the manufacturer, is not a warranty of the efficiency, performance or endurance of the machine, but a description of the pump, like the name it bears, and is limited in its effect as a warranty to the quality of size. Reynolds v. General Electric Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 551.

28. Davis Calyx Drill Co. v. Mallory [C. C. A.] 137 F. 332. Articles being sold by description there is an implied condition that the articles delivered shall substantially correspond in their entirety to the representations of the seller. Puritan Mfg. Co. v. Westermire [Or.] 84 P. 797. Where goods are sold by description not for identification but for character and quality, there is a warranty of such description and it is construed to be an express warranty. Hartin Commission Co. v. Pelt [Ark.] 88 S. W. 929.

29. Hartin Commission Co. v. Pelt [Ark.] 88 S. W. 929.

30. A seller of cotton having on hand three kinds of cotton, but refusing to warrant the grade. Hartin Commission Co. v. Pelt [Ark.] 88 S. W. 929.

31. Plaintiff was not bound to furnish new fly wheel for Corliss engine. Borden & Selleck Co. v. Fraser & Chalmers, 118 Ill. App. 655.

32. B. P. Ducas Co. v. American Silk Dyeing & Finishing Co., 48 Misc. 411, 95 N. Y. S. 590.

33. Sale of seed grain. Moore v. Koger, 113 Mo. App. 423, 87 S. W. 602.

34, 35, 36. Nelson v. Armour Packing Co. [Ark.] 90 S. W. 288.

37. Houser's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 508.

38. Kupfer v. Michigan Clothing Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 433, 104 N. W. 582.

39. E. T. Burrowes Co. v. Rapid Safety Filter Co., 97 N. Y. S. 1048.

40. Razey v. J. B. Colt Co., 106 App. Div. 103, 94 N. Y. S. 59.

41. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978.

42. Florence Wagon Works v. Trindad Asphalt Mfg. Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 49. Where there was an express warranty that asphalt roofing was first class held evidence of a customary warranty of such roofing for three years and that the seller would repair defects within such time was inadmissible. Id.

warranty of title, does not mean exact value, but no such inadequacy in price as would put a prudent buyer on suspicion.[44]

A warranty will be limited to the matters[45] imported by its terms,[46] and, in the absence of fraud, does not cover obvious defects.[47] An implied warranty of the fitness of a machine to do a particular work does not include a warranty that it will do the work as rapidly or economically as some other specified machine.[48] One who warrants to deliver the best procurable article of a certain kind does not fulfill his warranty by using reasonable care to obtain the article warranted, even though he acted in good faith.[49] Representations of soundness imply a warranty against defects known to the seller but not discernible by the buyer upon ordinary inspection.[50] A warranty of the soundness of cattle is broken where the cattle are, at the time of the sale, infected with the germs of a disease which afterwards developed, though the fact was not known to the seller.[51] As to whether a warranty is broken is for the jury.[52] Cases dealing with the sufficiency of the evidence to show breach of warranty are shown in the notes.[53] A warranty does not run with the property.[54] Each vendor can resort, as a general rule, only to his immediate vendor,[55] for there is no privity of contract between the vendor in one sale and the vendees of the same property in subsequent sales.[56]

43, 44. Shultis v. Rice, 114 Mo. App. 274, 89 S. W. 357.

45. See 4 C. L. 1337.

46. That a horse was lame and diseased in feet and legs held breach of warranty of soundness. Devine v. Ryan, 115 Ill. App. 498. Contract for merchandise to be invoiced "as per the following cost-mark" held to justify refusal to instruct that this was a warranty that the goods cost what they were marked. Webb v. Steiner, 113 Mo. App. 482, 87 S. W. 618. Where a letter in which plaintiff offered to install certain grates and blowers under defendant's boilers stated that the apparatus was "adapted to the burning of fine anthracite fuel," held there was no warranty that the apparatus would, with the use of such fuel, produce as much steam as the boilers previously produced, nor enough steam to run defendant's plant. Beggs v. James Hanley Brewing Co. [R. I.] 62 A. 373. Warranty that certain metallic shells would "finish sound," held to mean that when finished they would be free from cracks and air holes, both obvious and hidden. H. H. Franklin Mfg. Co. v. Lamson & Goodnow Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 624. It is error in an action on a note for the purchase price of a stallion sold with a warranty that he was serviceably sound, to give an instruction relieving defendant from liability if the horse was merely diseased at the time of sale. Otto v. Braman [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 699, 105 N. W. 601. Where stallion was guaranteed to be a satisfactory breeder providing he had proper care and exercise and the horse when delivered was worthless as a breeder held warranty was broken irrespective of whether he had proper care and exercise. Rosenthal v. Rambo [Ind.] 76 N. E. 404.

47. A charge of court to the effect that warranty of soundness would cover the condition of the shoulders, where the vendor had said of the thin shoulders that they were all right, was erroneous, unless it appeared that the fact that the horse was sweenied was not obvious to those who examined him. Palmer & Son v. Cowie, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 46.

48. Davis Calyx Drill Co. v. Mallory [C. C. A.] 137 F. 332.

49. George Lawley & Son Corp. v. Park [C. C. A.] 138 F. 31.

50. Moore v. Koger, 113 Mo. App. 423, 87 S. W. 602.

51. Mitchell v. Pinckney, 127 Iowa, 696, 104 N. W. 286. See, also, Rosenthal v. Rambo [Ind.] 76 N. E. 404.

52. Whether engine complied with warranty, question for the jury. Buchanan v. Laber [Wash.] 81 P. 911.

53. Evidence held sufficient: To show a defect in the quality of cotton seed furnished. Gloster Oil Works v. Buckeye Cotton Oil Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 225. To show that buyer got compound lard instead of pure leaf lard as warranted. German-American Provision Co. v. Jones Bros. & Co. [Miss.] 39 So. 521. To show that quality of potatoes was in accordance with terms of contract. Yick Sung v. Herman [Cal. App.] 83 P. 1089. To show that apples were not merchantable nor similar to samples shown the buyer as required by the contract. Jones v. Emerson [Wash.] 82 P. 1017. In an action for the price of certain grates and blowers installed by plaintiff under defendant's boilers, evidence held to show that the apparatus was "adapted to the burning of fine anthracite fuel," as represented. Beggs v. James Hanley Brewing Co. [R. I.] 62 A. 373.

Evidence held insufficient to show breach of warranties as to workmanship, construction, material, aptitude of the details for the 1010.

purpose intended, and capacity of ice machine. Callahan v. O'Rourke, 96 N. Y. S.

54. Nelson v. Armour Packing Co. [Ark.] 90 S. W. 288. Held that no warranty as to fitness of canned foods exists between packer and vender of retail merchant. Id.

55. Where plaintiff, a purchaser of can-

(§ 8) C. Conditions and fulfillment or breach.[57]—Conditions must be substantially complied with,[58] but a technical compliance will be required where necessary to protect the rights of the parties.[59] A contract provision that written notice must be "mailed" to either party is not performed where the letter is wrongly addressed,[60] or where the sender by affirmative act controls the circumstances of actual delivery to the addressee and by such act prevents actual delivery.[61] Where an article is sold upon the condition that it be satisfactory to the buyer, the entire control and determination of the matter is left with the latter.[62] A condition that a machine shall operate to the satisfaction of the purchaser has reference to the production of a marketable commodity when the machine is properly operated,[63] and this implies an adequate test in good faith under suitable conditions by a competent operator.[64] The purchaser cannot omit such test and arbitrarily declare the machine unsatisfactory.[65] Property being sold subject to inspection by a third person, such inspection is conclusive in the absence of collusion.[66] Where the contract provides that the machine sold shall be operated and tested under instructions of the seller, the buyer cannot arbitrarily refuse such instructions.[67] Where an animal is sold upon the condition that he might be returned if unsatisfactory provided he is in as sound and healthy condition as when delivered, the fact that diseases incipient in the animal at the time of the contract, and of which neither buyer nor seller had knowledge, have fully developed, will not bar a return.[68] A trial period starts to run from the first day the purchaser has exclusive control of the use of the article.[69] Interpretations given ned meats, was poisoned thereby, he cannot resort to the wholesale or packing plant, but to his immediate vendor only. Nelson v. Armour Packing Co. [Ark.] 90 S. W. 288.

56. Nelson v. Armour Packing Co. [Ark.] 90 S. W. 288.

57. See 4 C. L. 1338.

58. Where the contract gave the seller right to rescind if the buyer did not have "identical" contracts with others, held the existence of contracts with such other persons "substantially" identical with the contract in question, constituted a compliance with such provision. Bernard v. Sloan [Cal. App.] 84 P. 232. Evidence held to show that other contracts were substantially identical. Id. Where a seller of cattle agreed to furnish registration papers and failed to do so within a reasonable time, there is a breach of the contract entitling the seller to damages. Miller v. Mosely [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 648.

59. Where contract of purchase of grain for foreign shipment required that notice of the shipment must be given the buyer within five days from date of bill of lading, held time was of the essence of the contract and compliance by the seller was essential to compel acceptance. Steinhardt v. Bingham, 182 N. Y. 326, 75 N. E. 403, afg. 90 App. Div. 149, 85 N. Y. S. 1044.

60, 61. Wrongly addressed registered letter. Price v. New York, 104 App. Div. 198, 93 N. Y. S. 967.

62. Bialy v. Krause [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 702, 105 N. W. 149. A contract for the purchase of a threshing outfit provided that the buyer could reject it if not "satisfactory." Held buyer could reject the outfit without giving his reasons. Reeves & Co. v. Chandler, 113 Ill. App. 167. An agreement at the time of the sale that, if the article is not satisfactory, the buyer may return it and receive his money back, permits the buyer to decide for himself, whether after reasonable trial the article is satisfactory. Sale of a horse. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978. When by the terms of the contract the property is to "prove satisfactory" to the buyer it is not sufficient to show that he ought to be satisfied with it; the contract requires satisfaction on his part. Delahunty Dyeing Machine Co. v. Pennsylvania Knitting Mills, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 433. But see Kupfer v. Michigan Clothing Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 433, 104 N. W. 582, where it is held that under an offer allowing the buyer to return any unsatisfactory goods the buyer is only entitled to return the goods when they are unsatisfactory and are rejected for a reasonable cause. Compare this case with Bialy v. Krause [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 702, 105 N. W. 149.

63, 64. Delahunty Dyeing Machine Co. v. Pennsylvania Knitting Mills, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 433.

65. Held it was for jury to find real contract and whether defendant refused plaintiff's instructions. Delahunty Dyeing Machine Co. v. Pennsylvania Knitting Mills, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 433.

66. American Bridge Co. v. Duquesne Steel Foundry Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 479.

67. Delahunty Dyeing Machine Co. v. Pennsylvania Knitting Mills, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 433.

68. Rosenthal v. Rambo [Ind.] 76 N. E. 404. See, also, Mitchell v. Pinckney, 127 Iowa, 696, 104 N. W. 286.

69. Sale of a machine; time counted from first day purchaser operated machine after the expert had set it up and left it in his charge. Shearer v. Gaar, Scott & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 684.

particular conditions are stated in the notes.[70] Where the sale is made through an agent, the latter may personally make and become liable on conditions thereof.[71]

(§ 8) D. Conditions on a warranty.[72]—Conditions attached to a warranty are to be strictly construed against the party in whose interest they are made.[73] Under a condition in a warranty to replace defective parts of machine, notice of such defect must be given and the warrantor has a reasonable time within which to make the repairs or replacement.[74] Breach of the warranty rendering compliance with a condition futile it is unnecessary.[75] As a general rule the contract requiring notice without specifying the kind, actual or personal notice must be given.[76] A denial of liability may be equivalent to a refusal to comply.[77]

(§ 8) E. Waiver of warranties and conditions; excuse for breach.[78]—The waiver of a warranty may be express or implied.[79] An express warranty survives acceptance[80] notwithstanding the fact that the buyer had previously inspected the goods[81] or samples thereof,[82] but the buyer must within a reasonable time ascertain the defects and notify the seller thereof or he waives his right to damages.[83] Breach

70. Covenants that the financial condition of the company at the time of the delivery of the stock in goods, accounts and merchandise shall aggregate $40,000 plus any profits that may have accrued since the commencement of the business less the legitimate expenses of the company, and that it has either the goods, moneys, or accounts representing the full amount of moneys paid in for stock, or $40,000, less current expenses paid and plus any profits that may have accrued since the commencement of the company's business, are not to the effect that the property represented by the corporation should equal $40,000. Issenhuth v. Riegel [S. D.] 106 N. W. 58. The right of a seller of corporate stock under contract stipulating that the sale was made on condition that the buyer should control the corporation, to recover the purchase price, was unaffected by the manner in which the buyer used the stock or manipulated other stock to obtain control of the corporation, where the rights of third persons were not involved. Kennedy v. Lee, 147 Cal. 596, 82 P. 257.

71. Where agents selling on commission promise personally to keep repairs on hand as an inducement to procure a sale, the counterclaim for failure to keep such repairs in a suit for the purchase price, is against the agents and not against the company. Tyson v. Jackson Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 930.

72. See 4 C. L. 1338.

73. First Nat. Bank v. Dutcher [Iowa] 104 N. W. 497.

Particular condition interpreted: A cow and a young calf were purchased by plaintiff for breeding purposes under a catalogue reciting that a cow and calf should be treated as one animal, and under a warranty that all animals of breeding age were guarantied breeders, snd that, in case of a failure to breed, after a satisfactory trial, the animal might be returned, with the reserved right to the seller for the period of six months to try the animal and return her to the buyer if she proved a breeder, held plaintiff was not bound to return the calf as a condition to his right to return the cow as a nonbreeder under the contract. White v. Miller [Iowa] 105 N. W. 993.

74. Lucile Min. Co. v. Fairbanks, Morse & Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1100, 87 S. W. 1121. And no action will lie unless such notice was given and a failure to comply with the warranty within a reasonable time. Id.

75. On the sale of an animal his death being caused by a disease constituting a breach of warranty, the buyer need not comply with the terms of the sale as to returning him to the place of delivery. Otto v. Braman [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 699, 105 N. W. 601.

76. So held where contract of purchase of grain for foreign shipment required notice of time of shipment. Steinhardt v. Bingham, 182 N. Y. 326, 75 N. E. 403, afg. 90 App. Div. 149, 85 N. Y. S. 1044.

77. It is equivalent to a refusal by sellers of a horse to give another in his place to the purchaser, as allowed by the contract of sale, where, knowing of the horse's death and without a request to defendant to take another, they bring an action on the note for the purchase price, denying liability on their warranty. Otto v. Braman [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 699, 105 N. W. 601.

78. See 4 C. L. 1338.

79. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Hodges [Ky.] 90 S. W. 580.

80. Callahan v. O'Rourke, 96 N. Y. S. 1010. Acceptance of property warranted does not waive the right to defend on a breach of warranty in an action for the price. Daily v. Smith-Hippen Co., 111 Ill. App. 319.

81. Sale of brooms warranted to be of certain weight and tight in handle. Purchaser looked at them hurriedly without close examination. Woods v. Thompson, 114 Mo. App. 38, 88 S. W. 1126.

82. That buyer examined only samples does not bar his claiming that the goods when received were not merchantable, they being warranted. Jones v. Emerson [Wash.] 82 P. 1017.

83. Acceptance and use of logs without objection held to waive breach of warranty as to size. Diechmann v. Boyd, 98 N. Y. S. 202. Under a warranty of fitness, a pur-of warranty may be waived by taking advantage of an exchange privilege.[84] As a general rule an implied warranty is waived by acceptance,[85] except where the defects are latent,[86] though it being possible to return the goods, retention or payment after discovery will waive the latter.[87] An implied warranty survives acceptance until inspection or until a reasonable time has elapsed therefor.[88] It is the buyer's duty to make a prompt inspection and such as is customary and sufficient to determine the character of the goods,[89] and if he makes such inspection and latent defects subsequently appear, the seller can only recover on a quantum meruit.[90] What is a reasonable time for inspection depends upon the circumstances of the case and is usually a question of fact for the jury.[91] This reasonable time depends more or less upon the character of the goods shipped and the opportunity for inspection.[92] A more prompt inspection of perishable goods is required than of nonperishable goods.[93] Under an agreement by the vendee to inspect the goods and notify the vendor of any defects within a certain time or waive all objections to them, the fact that the inspection cannot be made within such time is no defense to an action for the purchase price in the absence of fraud.[94] But if plaintiff in such case knows that the inspection cannot be made within the given time and knowingly sends inferior goods for the purpose of defrauding the vendee, he cannot recover the purchase price.[95] A purchaser has a reasonable length of time in which to test a machine. Gaar, Scott & Co., v. Hodges [Ky.] 90 S. W. 580. A purchaser of a chattel with a warranty has a reasonable time in which to examine and use the property to ascertain whether it is as warranted. Devine v. Ryan, 115 Ill. App. 498. Retention of machine for five days after seller's agents ceased to try to remedy defects held not an unreasonable time. First Nat. Bank v. Dutcher [Iowa] 104 N. W. 497. A purchaser of an article sold under warranty of fitness is not justified after demonstration of its unfitness, in not only using up what he had first bought, but in going on and buying and using the article indefinitely, but by so doing he waives the warranty. B. P. Ducas Co. v. American Silk Dyeing & Finishing Co., 48 Misc. 411, 95 N. Y. S. 590.

NOTE. Waiver of right: Whether a legal right has been waived is a question of fact for the jury. Fox v. Harding, 7 Cush. [Mass.] 516. Since a warranty is a collateral agreement (Fairbank Canning Co. v. Metzger, 118 N. Y. 260), which, being broken, gives the right to retain the goods and sue for damages (Underhill v. Wolf, 131 Ill. 425), and this without any notice to the seller, of the defect (Tacoma Coal Co. v. Bradley, 2 Wash. 600), it would seem that the continued use of the first lot of goods in the principal case would not constitute a waiver. See Burlington & Missouri R. Co. v. Boestler, 15 Iowa, 555. Although the ordering of the second lot might constitute a waiver by estoppel (Royal v. Aultman & Taylor Co., 116 Ind. 424, 427), yet the court should have sent the question to the jury.—6 Columbia L. R. 280.

84. Where the buyer returned the article and exchanged it for other property held to waive right to damages for breach of warranty. Smith v. Newberry [N. C.] 53 S. E. 234.

85. Acceptance waives all defects except breach of specific warranties. Callahan v. O'Rourke, 96 N. Y. S. 1010.

86. Where a contract to manufacture a boiler for a tug provided that it should be satisfactory to the engineer, the fact that the boiler was received by him and put in the tug does not necessarily constitute an acceptance, nor exclude the implied warranty of fitness by the manufacturer with respect to defects which were discoverable only by actual use. The Nimrod, 141 F. 215.

87. A voluntary payment of the amount due on the goods, less an agreed deduction, after discovery of defects held to bar recovery of money so paid. Altschul v. Koven, 94 N. Y. S. 558.

88. In the absence of an express warranty the buyer, on receipt of the goods, must act promptly after an opportunity to inspect and must reject them within a reasonable time. Day Leather Co. v. Michigan Leather Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 548, 104 N. W. 797. Where a purchaser of lumber accepted it and made no complaint as to quality for eight months thereafter, he waived any defects and was liable for the purchase price. H. McCormick Lumber Co. v. Winans [Wis.] 105 N. W. 945.

89. Jones v. Bloomgarden [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1019, 106 N. W. 891. The fact that such an inspection will take a few hours' time is no defense. Id.

90, 91, 92. Jones v. Bloomgarden [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1019, 106 N. W. 891.

93. Jones v. Bloomgarden [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1019, 106 N. W. 891. Two days' delay in inspecting shipment of beans held unreasonable. Id.

94. Notice within 5 days after receipt of part of the goods of defects in another part received more than 5 days before the notice held insufficient. Walter Pratt & Co. v. Morris & Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1035, 87 S. W. 783.

95. If buyer within reasonable time offered to return the goods. Walter Pratt & Co. v. Morris & Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1035, 87 S. W. 783.

chaser of goods for a certain purpose cannot keep them without paying for them merely because they are unfit for such purpose if they are of value for some purpose.[96] Acceptance does not bar a purchaser in a sale by sample from keeping the goods and suing for damages.[97] A privilege of changing the goods if unsatisfactory will not bar the purchaser from setting up breach of the implied warranty of suitableness in an action for the price.[98]

Unless waived,[99] failure to comply with the terms of the conditions of the warranty will waive a breach of the latter.[1] Notice of the kind required by the contract must be given within the time stipulated therein; but the seller waives his right to a notice in the manner prescribed, by acting on the notice received.[2] As to whether there is a waiver of a provision requiring notification of defects is a question for the jury.[3] The waiver of one condition does not necessarily affect others.[4] Neglect on the part of the buyer to perform any of the above stated duties may be waived.[5]

Conditions.[6]—In the absence of fraud, acceptance after an opportunity to inspect[7] or a reasonable time thereafter[8] and without an offer to return[9] is generally

96. Instruction erroneous that if goods were of no value for the purpose for which sold verdict should be for defendant. Walter Pratt & Co. v. W. C. Morris & Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1035, 87 S. W. 783.

97. So held where goods, at buyer's request, were sent to a mill and breach was not discovered until returned by the latter. Hamilton v. Pelonsky, 48 Misc. 554, 96 N. Y. S. 216.

98. Elgin Jewelry Co. v. Estes, 122 Ga. 807, 50 S. E. 939.

99. Where seller tried to remedy defects after expiration of the time limit set by the contract for notice thereof held to amount to a waiver of such provision. First Nat. Bank v. Dutcher [Iowa] 104 N. W. 497.

1. Failed to give notice and return machine. Shearer v. Gaar, Scott & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 684. Where engine if not satisfactory at the end of 30 days' trial was to be delivered on board cars at a certain place, failure to so deliver waives breach. Charter Gas & Engine Co. v. Barton [Ala.] 39 So. 985. Notice to be given within 5 days of receipt of perfume, goods not up to sample but no notice given. S. M. Duffie & Co. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 842. Contract provided for itemized notice of failure to come up to samples within 5 days after receipt of goods. Failure to give such notice construed as waiver. Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648. Where there was no notice of breach of warranty, according to terms of contract, evidence of breach was inadmissible and there was no question for the jury thereon. Id. Payment cannot be refused on the ground of breach of warranty in case of waiver of breach by failure to give the contractual notice. Id. Where warranty provided that notice of and opportunity to remedy defects should be given and buyer refused to allow an opportunity to remedy the defect, held not to show a breach of the warranty, the defect being remedial. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Halverson [Iowa] 105 N. W. 108.

2. Siebe v. Hellman Mach. Works [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 300.

3. Buchanan v. Laber [Wash.] 81 P. 911.

4. Where warranty required that notice of defects be given, that after such notice the seller be allowed a reasonable time to remedy the same and if he fail to do so the buyer could then return the machine, held waiver of notice had no effect upon stipulation for a return, but that the buyer had a reasonable time after seller ceased to try and remedy defects within which to return the machine. First Nat. Bank v. Dutcher [Iowa] 104 N. W. 497.

5. Letters of advice and extension of time held a waiver of delay in returning animal for breach of warranty. White v. Miller [Iowa] 105 N. W. 993. Failure to return horse within a reasonable time after discovery of breach of warranty held not to absolve seller of duty to recompense buyer, the seller having extended the time for testing and the horse having died during such extended time from the disease constituting the breach of warranty. Otto v. Braman [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 699, 105 N. W. 601.

6. See 4 C. L. 1340.

7. E. T. Burrowes Co. v. Rapid Safety Filter Co., 97 N. Y. S. 1048. An acceptance of goods sold after a full and fair opportunity to inspect them waives a subsequent objection to plain and visible defects. Objection to the seams and rivets of pipe held waived after 30 days. McLeod v. Andrews & Johnson Co., 116 Ill. App. 646.

8. Goods of a certain quality and price being ordered, the buyer is bound to determine compliance with the contract within a reasonable time after opportunity for inspection. Drucklieb v. Universal Tobacco Co., 106 App. Div. 470, 94 N. Y. S. 777. Remedy in the absence of a warranty is to refuse to accept the goods when delivered or to return them within a reasonable time after the departure from the terms of the contract is discovered. American Theater Co. v. Siegel-Cooper & Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 588.

9. E. T. Burrowes Co. v. Rapid Safety Filter Co., 97 N. Y. S. 1048. The article not complying with the contract, the buyer cannot retain the property and claim damages or refuse to pay therefor. Id. The buyer receiving and using goods below grade must pay their value. Gilmore & Maginnis v. Meek-held to waive nonconformity with the contract. Mere complaint that goods do not conform to contract does not amount to a rejection or an offer to return the goods.[10] Buyers of goods, who neglect to inspect the same on delivery and who assume ownership and consign the goods to others, cannot obtain relief against their vendors because of a patent defect, which the most superficial examination would have disclosed.[11] An agreement that goods sold shall prove satisfactory necessarily implies a reasonably prompt inspection where no period of time is specified,[12] and if the buyer refuses the goods he must be prepared to show that the goods rejected were legally unsatisfactory.[13] He cannot establish his right to refuse acceptance by showing merely that other goods received under similar orders were unsatisfactory.[14] It is no excuse for the breach of an unconditional condition that the buyer could have prevented the breach.[15] Acquiescence may waive breach.[16] Objections not made are deemed waived.[17] Conditions for the benefit of one of the parties alone may be waived by him.[18] An agent having power and authority to sell a machine under a contract which contains conditions for the benefit of the seller has authority to bind his principal by a waiver of such conditions,[19] and, the principal being a corporation, this is true though the contract contains a clause providing that "no person has any authority to add to, abridge or change this warranty in any manner."[20]

(§ 8) F. Remedies[21] on the warranty and breach of condition have been reserved for other parts of this title[22] together with damages for breach,[23] and rights of assignees and subsequent purchasers.[24]

er [La.] 40 So. 244. A buyer who accepts and retains goods and consumes them by use without objection admits by so doing that they are satisfactorily in compliance with the terms of his purchase as respects character and quality. Cohen v. Hawkins [Neb.] 104 N. W. 179. Where after sellers discover a breach of the contract authorizing rescission they treat the contract as a valid, vital obligation, they waive their right to rescind. Bernard v. Sloan [Cal. App.] 84 P. 232. A buyer cannot receive goods under a contract, appropriate them to his own use and then defeat an action for the purchase price on the ground that the goods are not of the exact quality or description called for by the contract. American Theater Co. v. Siegel-Cooper & Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 588. Where orders for bags were subject to cancellation in case plaintiff did not furnish defendant a certain machine by a certain date and plaintiff failed to do so but subsequently delivered the bags and they were retained for five months, held a waiver of the condition. Root & McBride Co. v. Walton Salt Ass'n [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 193, 103 N. W. 844.

10. E. T. Burrowes Co. v. Rapid Safety Filter Co., 97 N. Y. S. 1048.

11. W. L. Watkins & Co. v. Guthrie & Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 370. So held where buyers of corn shipped to them paid the draft and received the bill of lading therefor and on the same day, without inspection, though having ample opportunity therefor, and without breaking the seal of the car, forwarded the goods to their customers. Id.

12, 13, 14. Kupfer v. Michigan Clothing Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 433, 104 N. W. 582.

15. Sale of cattle; held breach of agreement to furnish registration papers could not be justified on the ground that the purchaser should have procured the papers from other sources. Miller v. Mosely [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 648. The breach of an unconditional agreement to keep extras for repairs on hand gives rise to a set-off against an action for the purchase price regardless of the cause of the breakages. Tyson v. Jackson Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 930.

16. Where a written contract provided for an official grading of corn and a subsequent letter from purchaser gave a different grading acquiesced in by seller, the original grading was waived. Flanagan Mills & Elevator Co. v. Geo. A. Adams Grain Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 1035.

17. Where the seller of a horse, which he had agreed to take back if unsatisfactory, objected to taking him back, on the ground that he was in bad condition, an objection that the tender back was premature is waived. Rosenthal v. Rambo [Ind.] 76 N. E. 404.

18. Where defendant agreed to sell and plaintiff agreed to buy provided he could get a certain lease, held condition could be waived by plaintiff. Kubillus v. Ewert [Wash.] 82 P. 147. Where contract provided that if seller found that identical contracts did not exist between the buyer and others, the contract should become void held that such provision was for the sole benefit of the seller and the breach thereof only rendered the contract void at the seller's election. Bernard v. Sloan [Cal. App.] 84 P. 232.

19, 20. First Nat. Bank v. Dutcher [Iowa] 104 N. W. 497.

21. See 4 C. L. 1341.

22. See post, § 10, Remedies of the seller; § 11, Remedies of the purchaser.

23. See post, § 12.

24. See post, § 13.

§ 9. Payment, tender, and price as terms of the contract.[25]—In the absence of agreement for credit or delay, delivery and payment are each a condition of the other,[26] though this condition may be waived by the seller or his agent.[27] Where the parties to an executory contract of sale agree that the price shall be fixed by valuers nominated in the agreement, and one of the valuers nominated refuses to act, the other has no power, without the consent of both parties to the agreement, to select a third person to act as valuer in the place of the person so refusing.[28] The consent of one of the parties to the agreement to such an arrangement cannot be implied from his failure to answer notices of the refusal of a valuer to act and stating that on his failing to select another valuer the valuer willing to act would make a selection,[29] and the fact that such party is the cause of the refusal of the one valuer to act does not estop him from denying that he is bound by a valuation made otherwise than as provided in the agreement.[30] A person who buys goods upon credit thereby impliedly, if not expressly, represents that he intends to pay for them,[31] and one obtaining goods as upon an implied contract is liable for their fair market value.[32] The buyer agreeing to pay a third party the latter may sue to enforce the contract,[33] and the promise being unconditional, it is immaterial whether such third person executes a release to the seller or not.[34] The retirement of a partner constitutes a "discontinuance of the business," even though the other partners take in a new partner and continue to carry on the business.[35] Where the price to be paid is to be determined by measurement or estimate of the parties or third persons, the conclusion reached is conclusive in the absence of fraud, mistake, or express provision to the contrary.[36]

§ 10. Remedies of the seller. A. Rescission and retaking of goods or action for conversion. Rescission.[37]—A sale being induced by fraud[38] or undue influence[39]

25. See 4 C. L. 1342. Payment as necessary to pass title, see ante, § 6. Conditional sales, see post § 14.

26. Williams v. Wilson & McNeal Co., 97 N. Y. S. 731. Where a seller put prices on goods and the buyer ordered them from time to time, but no credit was extended, there was not such an entire contract that the seller was not entitled to recover for the goods first sold and delivered, till he should have delivered goods subsequently ordered by the buyer. Id. Where the time of payment is not fixed by the contract of sale, the law presumes a cash sale. Baker v. McDonald [Neb.] 104 N. W. 923.

27. Where the seller forwards the bills of lading with drafts attached to a bank, the fact that the buyer obtains the bills of lading without paying the drafts does not constitute a breach of contract by the buyer. So held where bank delivered bills of lading upon the buyer accepting the draft. John E. Hall Commission Co. v. R. L. Crook & Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 20.

28, 29, 30. Elberton Hardware Co. v. Hawes, 122 Ga. 858, 50 S. E. 964.

31. Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla.] 40 So. 29.

32. Teetzel v. Davidson Bros. Marble Co. [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1068.

33. Civ. Code § 1559. Peters v. George [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1117. Where the buyer assumes and agrees to pay as the purchase price, or a part of it, an indebtedness of the seller to a third person, the creditor may enforce the obligation by a suit at law against both parties to the agreement. Butler v. E. E. Bruce & Co. [Neb.] 106 N. W. 445.

34. Peters v. George [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1117.

35. Warren & Lainer v. Cash [Ala.] 39 So. 124.

36. Where the amount to be paid is to be determined by measurement of the property by the parties, a measurement which is grossly unfair, as the result of fraud or mistake, is not binding. Baker v. McDonald [Neb.] 104 N. W. 923. Where a contract for the delivery of coal in instalments provided for the making of payments in instalments, according to estimates and certificates of the buyer's engineer, the estimates and certificates of the engineer were conclusive on the parties in the absence of any claim of fraud or mistake as to the quantity or value of the coal delivered. Price v. New York, 104 App. Div. 198, 93 N. Y. S. 967. See, also, ante, § 7 A.

37. See 4 C. L. 1343.

38. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift, 123 Ga. 804, 51 S. E. 748; Shevlin v. Shevlin [Minn.] 105 N. W. 257; Fisher v. Brown, 111 Ill. App. 486. So held where sale was induced by fraudulent representations of insolvent buyer made with intent not to pay for the goods. Seeley v. Seeley-Howe-Le Van Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 380. Executory contract. Fraudulent misrepresentations as to paid up capital. Omaha Feed Co. v. Rushforth [Neb.] 106 N. W. 25. Sale of goods sold corporation on the faith of a false return of its assets and liabilities made under Pub. St. 1882, c. 106, § 54, may be rescinded and the goods recovered in replevin. Steel v. Webster, 188 Mass. 478, 74 N. E. 686. A bill of sale, giv-

the seller may rescind and reclaim his property or so much of it as is still in the possession of the purchaser,[40] or his receiver.[41] It is not necessary that the vendor consent to the rescission.[42] If the seller elects to rescind he must give notice to the purchaser of such election and of his determination to reclaim the goods sold,[43] and if he has received anything in payment, he must return it or tender it to the purchaser.[44] If the buyer has sold or disposed of some of the property so as to put it beyond the seller's reach, the latter may reclaim all the property that can be recovered,[45] but cannot recover that the identity of which has been lost.[46] As to that which he cannot recover, he may have a right of action against the purchaser, not upon the contract but based upon the theory of the conversion of the goods not found, or an action based upon the contract implied by law where a vendee has disposed of the goods for money and the seller has waived the tort.[47] He cannot, however, proceed both under the contract of sale and against it.[48] The wrongdoer cannot make extreme vigilance and promptitude conditions of the affirmative disapproval by the party wronged,[49] but the duty to commence proceedings arises only upon discovery,[50] and, in the absence of special circumstances, mere acquiescence will not take away the right of action unless continued for the period of limitations.[51] Any unequivocal act whereby the seller with knowledge of the fraud elects to treat the sale as valid, whether made in court or not, is a sufficient election to prevent him from subsequently rescinding the sale,[52] and such election is conclusive en to prevent a lawful levy upon certain chattels, is a voluntary act and not open to rescission. Lewter v. Lindley [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 784. Where a company is practically insolvent and it buys property on credit and turns it over to a retiring stockholder in liquidation of his interests, the transaction may be considered fraudulent as to the vendor entitling him to rescind. Howell v. Crawford [Ark.] 89 S. W. 1046. A tradesman who knowingly makes false statements to a commercial agency to procure credit is liable to an action for rescission and for damages to anyone who extends credit on the faith of such statement and who suffers injury thereby although the representations were not made to him personally and although there was no specific intent on the tradesman's part to defraud his creditors by the statements made by him. Mills v. Brill, 105 App. Div. 389, 94 N. Y. S. 163.

39. Shevlin v. Shevlin [Minn.] 105 N. W. 257. Where younger brother was a drunkard and was ignorant of value of stock sold, held elder brother exercised undue influence in buying same. Id.

40. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift, 123 Ga. 804, 51 S. E. 748.

41. So held where sale was induced by fraudulent representations of insolvent buyer made with intent not to pay for the goods. Seeley v. Seeley-Howe-Le Van Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 380.

42. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift, 123 Ga. 804, 51 S. E. 748.

43. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift, 123 Ga. 804, 51 S. E. 748. Party relying on rescission must show what he rescinded promptly and this implies some notice to the other party of such determination. McGue v. Rommel [Cal.] 83 P. 1000.

44. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift, 123 Ga. 804, 51 S. E. 748; Welden v. Witt [Ala.] 40 So. 126. Before demanding return of property must tender purchase price paid. German-American Provision Co. v. Jones Bros. & Co. [Miss.] 39 So. 521. Where a note was given for the purchase price and the seller, claiming rescission by mutual consent, sought to recover the chattel sold, his offer to return the note made at the time of the trial is sufficient. Welden v. Witt [Ala.] 40 So. 126. One being induced by fraud to sell personal property, replevin will not lie to recover it without a rescission prior to commencing the action and a placing, or offer to place, the vendee in statu quo. McGuire v. Bradley, 118 Ill. App. 59. Plaintiff sold defendant corporate stock and the latter agreed to pay the corporate debts and did, and he also agreed, but failed, to change the corporate name. Held that plaintiff could not rescind the sale because of such failure and recover the stock without returning the price paid. Donovan v. McDermott, 108 Mo. App. 533, 84 S. W. 153.

45. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift, 123 Ga. 804, 51 S. E. 748.

46. A seller of lumber which was used by the purchasers, together with other lumber, in the construction of barges, cannot acquire any right or title to such barges by an attempted rescission of the sale. American Lumber Co. v. Taylor [C. C. A.] 137 F. 321.

47. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift, 123 Ga. 804, 51 S. E. 748.

48. Cannot take back such of the goods as remain on hand as part payment of the indebtedness arising from the contract of sale and retain a claim or seek payment for the balance of the purchase price. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift, 123 Ga. 804, 51 S. E. 748.

49. Shevlin v. Shevlin [Minn.] 105 N. W. 257.

50. Shevlin v. Shevlin [Minn.] 105 N. W. 257. Must act promptly. McGue v. Rommel [Cal.] 83 P. 1000.

upon him though no injury has been done by reason thereof or would result from setting it aside.[53] A person who buys goods upon credit thereby impliedly, if not expressly, represents that he intends to pay for them.[54] If, therefore, he has no such intention, and a fortiori if he has then a present intention not to pay for them and conceals this fact from the seller, there is such a misrepresentation of a material fact as will entitle the seller to avoid the sale.[55] This intention must be one existing at the time of the sale and not merely one formed after the sale.[56] It may be inferred from circumstances.[57] Undue influence is especially a ground for rescission where the parties occupy a fiduciary relation towards each other,[58] and in such case the burden is on the defendant to show that he exercised no undue advantage.[59] The seller must have had a right to rely[60] and must have relied[61] on the false representations. As to whether the purchaser must have intended to deceive there is a conflict.[62] The question of rescission being one of intent is frequently for the jury.[63]

Recovery of chattel; replevin.[64]—Where by fraud or mistake the tender of the purchaser is insufficient, the seller may recover possession by an action in replevin on the ground of special ownership and right of possession,[65] but he cannot maintain such action under the claim of absolute ownership without rescinding the contract of sale and tendering back the amount paid.[66] Plaintiff having rescinded he must prove the fact.[67] The rights of innocent third parties will be protected.[68] In an

51. Shevlin v. Shevlin [Minn.] 105 N. W. 257.

52. Seeley v. Seeley-Howe-Le Van Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 380. An attempt to collect the purchase price held to constitute an election to treat the sale valid. Id. This is especially true where he treated his account as an entire one without separating his claim into one arising on contract so far as it related to the goods sold, and into one arising in tort so far as it related to the goods undisposed of. Id. To establish a ratification it must be shown that the person ratifying acted with full knowledge of all material particulars and circumstances. Imperfect and incomplete information is insufficient. Shevlin v. Shevlin [Minn.] 105 N. W. 257. Where sale was between brothers, held finding that the younger brother was mentally sound and fully competent and had full and accurate knowledge of all facts relative thereto, held not sustained by the evidence. Id. Where after sellers discover a breach of the contract authorizing rescission they treat the contract as a valid, vital obligation, they waive their right to rescind. Bernard v. Sloan [Cal. App.] 84 P. 232.

53. Seeley v. Seeley-Howe-Le Van Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 380.

54, 55, 56. Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla.] 40 So. 29.

57. Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla] 40 So. 29.

58. Where one brother was a drunkard, held evidence showed that a fiduciary relation existed between the brothers. Shevlin v. Shevlin [Minn.] 105 N. W. 257.

59. Shevlin v. Shevlin [Minn.] 105 N. W. 257. Evidence held insufficient to show that such influence was not exercised where $70,000 was paid for stock alleged to be worth more than $140,000 and which the trial court found to be worth $95,000. Id.

60. Where seller was well acquainted with buyer's agents and contract was long and involved, held he had a right to rely on their representations that it embodied the agreement between the parties. Lilienthal v. Herren [Wash.] 84 P. 829. Where report of mercantile agency stated that figures were 2½ years old and could not be corroborated, held sufficient to put plaintiff on his guard. Beacon Falls Rubber Shoe Co. v. Pratte [Mass.] 76 N. E. 285.

61. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift, 123 Ga. 804, 51 S. E. 748; Beacon Falls Rubber Shoe Co. v. Pratte [Mass.] 76 N. E. 285. Where defendant had been told the truth and offered to sell, slight misrepresentations contained in letter received after such offer held insufficient to avoid the sale. Sadallah v. Mandour, 94 N. Y. S. 562.

62. That he need not. Mills v. Brill, 105 App. Div. 389, 94 N. Y. S. 163.

That he must have: Affidavit of defense to an action by a bankrupt buyer to recover property held insufficient. American Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Taylor [C. C. A.] 137 F. 321.

63. Evidence being conflicting question of rescission is for the jury. Wellden v. Witt [Ala.] 40 So. 126. That the alleged rescission was accomplished by agreement between the parties may be submitted to the jury to aid them in determining whether or not the transaction was a rescission or a preference in bankruptcy. John Silvey & Co. v. Tift, 123 Ga. 804, 51 S. E. 748. Where first shipment was rejected defendant wrote plaintiff that it was out of the question to meet the latter's requirements and therefore thought it best to cancel the order, and requested plaintiff to supply its wants from some other source, held to amount to a rescission. H. Gans & Sons Mfg. Co. v. Chicago Lumber & Coal Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 121.

64. See 4 C. L. 1344.

65, 66. Baker v. McDonald [Neb.] 104 N. W. 923.

67. Must show that he relied on representations and had a right to rely on them. Beacon Falls Rubber Shoe Co. v. Pratte [Mass.] 76 N. E. 285.

action to recover property under an alleged bill of sale, claimed by vendor to be a mortgage, evidence of previous lack of good faith on part of vendee is admissible.[69]

(§ 10) B. Stoppage in transitu.[70]—As between buyer and seller of personal property, the right of stoppage in transitu arises upon the insolvency of the buyer and continues until an actual delivery of the property by the carrier to the buyer, or upon his order, or to a bona fide indorsee of the bill of lading from the buyer.[71] So far as the right is concerned the general rule is that the destination of the goods is that contemplated by the contract of sale or understood between the buyer and seller at the time of shipment.[72] Deliveries to local delivery companies are generally regarded as exceptions to the general rule that delivery to an agent is delivery to the buyer, and the right of stoppage exists until they deliver the goods.[73] The right of stoppage in transitu is not defeated by the fact that an invoice or bill of lading is made out and delivered to the consignee,[74] nor by the fact that the vendor had previously brought suit for the purchase price under a mistaken belief that the goods had been delivered.[75] Neither a mere resale by the buyer of goods without actual delivery or assignment of the bill of lading,[76] nor the fact that an innocent purchaser wrongfully obtained possession of the goods,[77] will defeat the right.

(§ 10) C. Lien.[78]—As a general rule an unpaid vendor has a lien upon the goods so long as they remain in his possession, but, in the absence of an express or implied contract to the contrary,[79] this lien is divested by a voluntary delivery[80] and is inconsistent with a claim of title to the property itself.[81] Such lien being retained is good, though unrecorded, against subsequent general attaching creditors.[82] The lien being lost by delivery the property is nevertheless subject to execution issued on a judgment in favor of the vendor for the purchase money.[83]

A vendor's privilege[84] (recognized in Louisiana) on a steamboat must be enforced within six months from the date of the sale, although a note payable at a distant date is given for the credit portion of the purchase price.[85] Such note, however, being received as cash, the debt is novated and the vendor's lien waived.[86]

68. Where in replevin by a seller of lumber the evidence justified a verdict against the fraudulent buyer, and a third person who obtained possession upon paying simply the freight charges, held seller must repay freight in order to have judgment in his favor. Kulzer v. Simonton [Wash.] 84 P. 582.

69. Lewter v. Lindley [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 784.

70. See 4 C. L. 1344.

71. Delta Bag Co. v. Kearns, 112 Ill. App. 269.

72. Right held to exist where goods were addressed to buyer's store street number, were received by local transfer company, and were stored by it owing to the closing of the buyer's store for insolvency. In re M. Burke & Co., 140 F. 971.

73. Right held to exist where local transfer company had a general order from the buyers to receive goods on their behalf, took goods, but owing to closing of buyer's store by reason of insolvency had to store same. The goods were addressed to the street number of the buyer's store. In re M. Burke & Co., 140 F. 971.

74, 75, 76. Delta Bag Co. v. Kearns, 112 Ill. App. 269.

77. Where the goods were not actually received by the consignee and the bill of lading was returned unindorsed to the consignor, the right to stop in transit was not defeated though an innocent purchaser from the consignee had obtained possession of the goods by replevin without an order from the consignee. Delta Bag Co. v. Kearns, 112 Ill. App. 269.

78. See 4 C. L. 1344.

79. Under a contract for the sale of a drilling machine whereby the buyer agreed to give notes and a chattel mortgage for the unpaid portion of the price, which he failed to do, the seller has a lien for the unpaid portion. Star Drilling Mach. Co. v. McLeod [Ky.] 92 S. W. 558.

80. Howell v. Crawford [Ark.] 89 S. W. 1046.

81. Attempt to convert an action for the purchase money into an action to try title and right to possession of property. Neal v. Cone [Ark.] 88 S. W. 952.

82. Star Drilling Mach. Co. v. McLeod [Ky.] 92 S. W. 558.

83. This, however, creates no lien. Howell v. Crawford [Ark.] 89 S. W. 1046.

84. See 4 C. L. 1345.

85. The privilege preempts or dies at the end of six months, and in such a case no plea of prescription is necessary. In re Red River Line [La.] 40 So. 250.

86. In re Red River Line [La.] 40 So. 250.

(§ 10) D. Resale.[87]—Where payment of the purchase price is made a condition precedent or contemporaneous with delivery, and the buyer fails to make payment, the seller has the right to dispose of the gooods to the best advantage and hold the buyer for any loss entailed by his default,[88] and in order to recover for such loss it is not essential that the buyer have express notice of the seller's intention to resell,[89] such notice being intended merely to give the buyer another opportunity of complying with his contract or to protect himself against fraudulent or collusive sales by the seller at less than the actual market value.[90] It is not absolutely necessary that the sales should be made at auction or that notice should be given the defaulting purchaser,[91] yet it is essential that the sale must be fair and such as is most likely to produce most nearly the full and fair value of the article,[92] and the sale being a private one, the question as to the manner in which the sale was conducted and the reasonableness of the efforts made to obtain a fair price should be submitted to the jury.[93] The resale being fairly made and express notice thereof given the buyer, no inquiry is permitted into what was the actual value of the commodity at the time of the resale.[94] The sale may be made at the place of delivery even though a higher price could be obtained elsewhere.[95] It is not the duty of the seller to resell until there has been an actual breach of contract,[96] and a vendee cannot complain of a failure to make sale at a time previous to actual breach and a sale at the time of request for it by the vendee.[97] Under an executed contract of sale a vendor in making a resale acts as agent of the vendee.[98]

(§ 10) E. Action for the price or on quantum valebat. Right of action and conditions precedent.[99]—There being an express contract the action must be based thereon and not on a quantum valebat,[1] and having performed all conditions precedent on his part, the plaintiff can recover the contract price unless the contract has been unambiguously repudiated by the purchaser before such performance.[2] The

87. See 2 C. L. 1557; 4 C. L. 1360. See, also, post, § 12 C.

88. McDonald Cotton Co. v. Mayo [Miss.] 38 So. 372; Penn Plate Glass Co. v. James H. Rice Co., 216 Ill. 567, 75 N. E. 246, afg. 88 Ill. App. 407; Olcese v. Mobile Fruit & Trading Co., 112 Ill. App. 281; Fox v. Woods, 96 N. Y. S. 117. In an action for breach of a contract to purchase a lease of a house and furniture therein, plaintiff was entitled to recover the difference between the contract price of the furniture and what she was able to obtain therefor on a resale fairly conducted, and the pro rata amount of rent she was compelled to pay, less any amount she received for the rent of rooms in the house during such period, together with certain expenses to which she was placed in packing articles in the house. Id.

89. McDonald Cotton Co. v. Mayo [Miss.] 38 So. 372. Notice held sufficient where bill of lading was sent with draft attached and buyer was notified to protect draft, but, instead of doing so, asked for further time. Id.

90. McDonald Cotton Co. v. Mayo [Miss.] 38 So. 372.

91. Fox v. Woods, 96 N. Y. S. 117.

92. Fox v. Woods, 96 N. Y. S. 117. Evidence held insufficient to show that resale was at highest market price. Willson v. Gregory [Cal. App.] 84 P. 356.

93. Fox v. Woods, 96 N. Y. S. 117.

94. See McDonald Cotton Co. v. Mayo [Miss.] 38 So. 372 [dicta]; Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797. If properly made it is binding on both vendor and vendee. Id.

95. Where the purchaser of coal refused to receive it at his place of business, the seller had a right to resell it in that market for the best price obtainable, and was not bound to carry the coal back to the place of shipment, though the price was greater there. Ginn v. W. C. Clark Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1012, 106 N. W. 867. Under Civ. Code § 3353, the value of the property is to be deemed the price which the seller could have obtained therefor in the market nearest to the place at which the property should have been accepted by the buyer, and at such time after the breach of the contract as would have sufficed with reasonable diligence for the seller to effect a resale. Willson v. Gregory [Cal. App.] 84 P. 356.

96. A request not to send cotton seed at present, not a breach. Wood v. Planters' Oil Mill [Ark.] 90 S. W. 18.

97. Wood v. Planters' Oil Mill [Ark.] 90 S W. 18.

98. Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797.

99. See 4 C. L. 1345.

1. Over v. Byram Foundry Co. [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 302.

2. Fountain City Drill Co. v. Peterson [Wis.] 106 N. W. 17.

cause of action accrues when the price becomes due.[3] The plaintiff must prove that all conditions precedent on his part have been complied with[4] or that he was at all times ready to perform the same, but that performance was excused.[5] A buyer cannot complain of the act of the seller in making an unnecessary delivery after the buyer's refusal to accept the goods, nor can he obtain any benefit thereby.[6] Where the buyer requested postponement of shipments until further notice, a written notice from the seller putting the buyer in default is sufficient.[7] A buyer seeking to repudiate the contract of sale before delivery and thereby limit his liability to breach of the contract must, to effect a repudiation, give the seller notice thereof, which must be so clear as to wholly absolve the seller from the duty of completing the contract.[8] An action for the purchase price of goods sold by an agent should be brought in the name of the principal and not in that of the agent,[9] but a defect in this regard is generally amendable even after verdict.[10]

Abandonment.—Removal of the chattel by the seller after the commencement of the action will be deemed an abandonment thereof.[11]

Defenses and election between them.[12]—Failure of consideration,[13] and breach of warranty,[14] constitute defenses to the action. False representations may be set up as a defense where at the time of the discovery of fraud it would not have been possible to have placed the parties in statu quo if the contract had been rescinded,[15] and though the written contract of sale contains a provision that no agent of the seller has a right to make a representation modifying the agreement, the buyer may show that the contract was obtained by the false and fraudulent representations of the seller's agent.[16] It is a fundamental and elementary rule of the common law that the courts will not enforce illegal contracts, or contracts which are contrary

3. Where credit is given unconditionally and was not obtained by fraud or based upon a consideration which has failed or has not been waived, an action will not lie on the contract for the purchase price until the expiration of the term of credit. Tatum v. Ackerman [Cal.] 83 P. 151. An action not brought until after October 1st held not prematurely brought where, by the terms of the contract, spring sales were to be settled by October 1st, and the article involved was to be shipped February 1st and had come into defendant's possession in June or July. American Seeding Mach. Co. v. Stearns, 109 App. Div. 192, 95 N. Y. S. 830.

4. Sale of hotel business, tender of lease required by contract must be proved. Tait v. McInnes [Cal. App.] 84 P. 674. Must deliver according to agreement. Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544. The promise to accept and the agreement to deliver being concurrent and mutual, neither party can recover without alleging and proving performance or tender of performance on his part. Armstrong v. Heide, 94 N. Y. S. 434.

5. Gilmore & Maginnis v. Meeker [La.] 40 So. 244. Buyer refusing to accept before the expiration of the time of delivery the sellers are excused from making a tender and delivery (R. T. Wilson & Co. v. Levi Cotton Mills [N. C.] 52 S. E. 250), and may recover the purchase price if they were ready, willing, and able to deliver and to otherwise comply with their contract (Id.). A seller may recover by averring readiness to tender when the making of the tender is dependent on a prior act by buyer. Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544. Excuses for nondelivery, see ante, § 7 D.

6. R. T. Wilson & Co. v. Levi Cotton Mills [N. C.] 52 S. E. 250.

7. Woodstock Iron Works v. Standard Pulley Mfg. Co. [La.] 40 So. 236.

8. Fountain City Drill Co. v. Peterson [Wis.] 106 N. W. 17. Notice by one of two joint buyers that he would not be bound held insufficient. Id.

9, 10. Fay v. Walsh [Mass.] 77 N. E. 44. See Agency, 5 C. L. 64.

11. Roesch v. Young, 111 Ill. App. 34.

12. See 4 C L. 1346.

13. So held where machine was practically useless by reason of plaintiff's failure to furnish iron wheels as agreed. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Hill, 113 Mo. App. 10, 87 S. W. 609. The fact that a machine known and understood by a previous inspection of one of like character was purchased upon trial, and in that trial developed structural defects which could not be remedied and that the machine was thereby rendered worthless for the purpose for which it was bought, is a good defense to an action for the purchase price. Hagen v. Greenwood, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 239.

14. Erie City Iron Works v. Tatum [Cal. App.] 82 P. 92. So held where buyer gave promissory notes for the price and suit was on such notes. Pratt v. Johnson [Me.] 62 A. 242.

15. So held where an option was sold and fraud was not discovered until after the expiration of the option. Rumsey v. Shaw, 212 Pa. 576, 61 A. 1109.

16. B. F. Bonewell & Co. v. Jacobson [Iowa] 106 N. W. 614.

to public policy or which are in contravention of the positive legislation of the state,[17] consequently, independent of any statute, the courts of a state will not enforce a contract in behalf of a vendor to recover the purchase price of goods sold by him, if he not only had knowledge of the illegal purpose of the purchaser to sell them in violation of the laws of the state to which they were to be transported, but, as well, did some act in furtherance of this illegal purpose.[18] Unless retroactive, a statute prohibiting the maintenance of an action for the price of intoxicating liquors bought in another state with the intention of selling the same in violation of law is constitutional.[19] That the seller has failed to pay a license or privilege tax may constitute a defense.[20] Under statutes providing that impurity or adulteration of goods shall be a defense to an action for the purchase price, it must be shown that such impurity or adulteration was such as to impair the quality or value of the goods.[21] A seller who fails to perform his contract in full may recover compensation for the part performed, less the damage occasioned by his failure.[22]

The complaint.[23]—The complaint must be sufficiently specific to apprise defendant of the source and character of the claim presented.[24] In order to charge the defendant the complaint must set forth an express contract, or a request, expressed or implied, on the part of the defendant for the goods, or the delivery of the goods by the plaintiff, and a promise, expressed or implied, on the part of the defendant to pay therefor.[25] It is not necessary to allege that the purchase price is due and unpaid.[26] A complaint on a note given in consideration of a sale need not allege the agreement of sale and a compliance with its conditions.[27]

Answer, counterclaim, and reply.[28]—Frequently defendant is by statute authorized to set forth by answer as many defenses and counterclaims as he may have, whether legal or equitable.[29] The answer setting up fraud, it must show that the false representations were relied on by defendant,[30] and if the contract is written, that he can-

17. Corbin v. Houlehan [Me.] 61 A. 131. See Contracts, 5 C. L. 664; Conflict of Laws, 5 C. L. 610.

18. Sale of intoxicating liquors. Corbin v. Houlehan [Me.] 61 A. 131.

19. Corbin v. Houlehan [Me.] 61 A. 131.

20. In an action for breach by the buyer of a contract for the sale of cotton seed, allegations showing that plaintiff was a cotton seed buyer and that it had never paid the privilege tax required of such buyers, state a defense. Gloster Oil Works v. Buckeye Cotton Oil Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 225.

21. Affidavit that liquor was impure, vitiated, and adulterated, without more, held insufficient. Act Mar. 29, 1860, P. L. 346. Spellman v. Kelly, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 39.

22. McAvoy & McMichael v. Commonwealth Title, Ins. & Trust Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 271. Where books are delivered at stated times at a certain price per volume payable on delivery, delivery of the entire set of books ordered is not a condition precedent to a recovery for those delivered. Barrie v. Jerome, 112 Ill. App. 329.

23. See 4 C. L. 1347.

24. Complaint for lumber sold held too general to require defense. Altoona Concrete Const., etc., Co. v. Knickerbocker Contracting Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 512.

25. Smith v. Perham [Mont.] 83 P. 492. A complaint alleging that during a time specified plaintiff furnished and delivered to defendant certain goods of a specified value, that defendant received the same and used them for his own use, and that he has not paid therefor, states no cause of action; its allegations not being inconsistent with a gift. Id. Where the averment of the complaint is a sale and delivery of specified articles at a certain price, the words "at his request" may be omitted. Kamber v. Becker, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 266. Complaint for goods sold and delivered held sufficient which alleged a sale and delivery of the goods at a certain amount, and that this sum was justly due and unpaid where a copy of the book account was annexed, though there was no averment of a sale at regular market prices, or that defendant agreed to pay the price charged, or on what time the goods were sold. Id.

26. Hutchinson v. Bien, 46 Misc. 302, 93 N. Y. S. 189.

27. McGue v. Rommel [Cal.] 83 P. 1000.

28. See 4 C. L. 1348.

29. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2657, so authorizing defendant, in an action on notes given for the price of a patent right, may by counterclaim seek damages for false representations by which he was induced to enter into the contract of sale and also tender back all rights acquired under the contract and ask for rescission of the same. J. H. Clark Co. v. Rice [Wis.] 106 N. W. 231.

30. Loveland v. Gravel [Minn.] 103 N. W. 721. Held proper to exclude evidence tending to show fraud. Id.

not read it[31] or was not afforded a full and fair opportunity to do so.[32] A defendant who desires to show illegality of contract as being in violation of a statute or public policy, or would show failure of title or consideration, must affirmatively allege such defense.[33] Failure to do so will only be excused where the illegality or failure of title or consideration appears from the complaint.[34] An option to pay other than by cash must be pleaded.[35] Pleas alleging a warranty and the breach thereof need not allege whether the warranty was written or parol,[36] nor need they allege evidentiary facts.[37] The general rules as to amendments of pleadings apply.[38] Sufficiency of affidavits of defense[39] and particular averments[40] are shown in the notes.

The claim or damage to be recouped must be a valid cause of action for which a separate suit could be maintained against plaintiff and must not have occurred through the fault or negligence of the defendant.[41] Although damages for breach of a condition are unliquidated, they may nevertheless be set up against a note for purchase price,[42] but the vendee cannot set off unliquidated damages arising from breach of a contract unconnected with plaintiff's suit.[43]

Variance.[44]—The proof must sustain the allegations of the pleadings as to parties.[45] In an action for goods sold on quantum meruit, plaintiff proving a written contract, he can recover the agreed price.[46] Failure to allege waived conditions of a warranty is not fatal.[47]

31, 32. Loveland v. Gravel [Minn.] 103 N. W. 721.

33. Miller v. Donovan [Idaho] 83 P. 608. Evidence of illegality and failure of title held inadmissible under answer denying purchasing or receiving property. Id.

34. Miller v. Donovan [Idaho] 83 P. 608.

35. Payment by note. Hirschberg v. Marx, 94 N. Y. S. 342.

36, 37. Warren & Lanier v. Cash [Ala.] 39 So. 124.

38. Where the proof showed a contract for the sale of coal by a firm of the same name as plaintiffs, who were their predecessors, held the court should have permitted an amendment of the answer to plead as a defense to the action the breach of the contract under which the coal was purchased. Piper v. Seager, 97 N. Y. S. 634.

39. Affidavit of defense held sufficient which showed that the tobacco was sold by sample, that it did not conform to the sample, wherein it was lacking, prompt notice to plaintiff, and the amount of loss. Straus v. Welsh, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 437. Affidavit of defense that the goods were not first class and up to date as represented by the seller and that defendant was injured in his business held insufficient. Fuhrman v. Stackman, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 154.

40. Averment that defendant notified plaintiff of defective material and workmanship in the machinery is not a sufficient averment that parts of the machinery were defective and that notice thereof was given. Lucile Min. Co. v. Fairbanks, Morse & Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1100, 87 S. W. 1121.

41. Edgemoor Iron Co. v. Brown Hoisting Mach. Co. [Del.] 62 A. 1054. In an action for the price of a traveling crane, defendant cannot recoup damages alleged to have been suffered through having paid, without suit, a claim for damages on account of the death of a servant killed by the overturning of the crane because of its alleged negligent construction. Id. Damages resulting from articles not being up to contract may be set off. Yick Sung v. Herman [Cal. App.] 83 P. 1089. In an action for materials furnished, the purchaser is entitled to offset loss of rent by delay in furnishing such materials according to contract. Not entitled to offset extra expense in retaining labor. Long v. Abeles & Co. [Ark.] 91 S. W. 29. Defendant could not set off, as against the purchase price of machinery, an amount paid by him for repairs done pursuant to an agreement between him and the manufacturer and merely delivered by the plaintiff. Borden & Selleck Co. v. Fraser, 118 Ill. App. 655.

42. Tyson v. Jackson Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 930.

43. Breach of subsequent contract. Higble v. Rust, 112 Ill. App. 218.

44. See 4 C. L. 1349.

45. A complaint by P. and son constituting the firm of P. & Co., alleging a sale of coal to defendant, is not supported by evidence of a contract for the sale of coal by P. & Co. composed of P. and L., the predecessors of the plaintiffs, and a delivery of the coal by plaintiffs. Piper v. Seager, 97 N. Y. S. 634. Evidence showing the existence of a contract for the sale of goods by plaintiff to another and the subsequent adoption, without assignment, of that contract by defendant as its own, is not a variance, or at least not a material variance, from a complaint alleging the sale and delivery of the goods to defendant. Vulcan Ironworks v. Burrell Const. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 836.

46. Niles v. Sire, 46 Misc. 321, 94 N. Y. S. 586.

47. Failure of the notice, filed with the plea of the general issue under circuit court rule 7c in an action on a note given for the purchase price of a stallion, to set forth with the warranty, in the contract of sale, of his being serviceably sound and the breach thereof, the duty imposed by such contract of returning the horse for trade and the subsequent waiver of the provision

Presumptions and burden of proof.[48]—Plaintiff must show that he performed or was ready to perform his part of the contract.[49] The burden is upon a vendee who has accepted the goods to show that the quality does conform to the contract.[50] In some states a consideration is presumed in favor of a written contract.[51] Where the seller's agent in making the sale makes representations, agreements, or guaranties as a part of the contract of sale, and suit is brought by the seller, he is bound by the agreement of the agent.[52] In such case it is the duty of the seller to ascertain, and not the duty of the buyer to inform him, what representations have been made by the agent.[53] The buyer setting up breach of warranty by way of recoupment must prove the breach.[54]

Evidence; admissibility and sufficiency.[55]—As the familiar rules of evidence[56] determine the questions of relevancy and competency, illustrations only are given.[57] Parol evidence may be introduced to show the true consideration.[58] Where the sale is denied, correspondence between the parties referring to sales between them is admissible,[59] it being for the jury to determine whether the reference was to the sale in question or not.[60] In order that a receipt may be admissible in evidence the authority of the signer must be shown.[61] An itemized statement of account being admissible in evidence it is not objectionable for indefiniteness because of trade terms and abbreviations well understood in the trade, showing the number and kind of articles shipped and the catalogue numbers, price per dozen and discounts allowed on each.[62] In an action for purchase price and defense of inferior quality, samples of the goods will not be permitted to be shown in evidence by defendant unless fully identified.[63] The proof must be admissible under the pleadings.[64] therefor does not create a fatal variance. Otto v. Braman [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 699, 105 N. W. 601.

48. See 4 C. L. 1349.

49. American Label Co. v. Kander, 93 N. Y. S. 1108; Gilmore & Maginnis v. Meeker [La.] 40 So. 244; Tait v. McInnes [Cal. App.] 84 P. 674; Armstrong v. Helde, 94 N. Y. S. 434.

50. Olcese v. Mobile Fruit & Trading Co., 112 Ill. App. 281.

51. Under Civ. Code § 1614. Kennedy v. Lee, 147 Cal. 596, 82 P. 257.

52. See ante, § 8 A.

53. Phillips-Buttorff Mfg. Co. v. Wild Bros. [Ala.] 39 So. 359.

54. H. H. Franklyn Mfg. Co. v. Lamson & Goodnow Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 624.

55. See 4 C. L. 1349.

56. See Evidence, 5 C. L. 1301.

57. Where telegraphic notice of rescission required an answer, held competent to require defendant to state as a witness whether he answered it. Lipschutz v. Weatherly & Twiddy [N. C.] 53 S. E. 132. Where plaintiff in his replication alleged that defendant was estopped from denying the indebtedness because he paid the freight and kept the goods, held it was competent for plaintiff to prove such fact by defendant on his cross-examination, when introduced as a witness in his own behalf. Equitable Mfg. Co. v. Martin [Ala.] 39 So. 769. Defense being breach of warranty the books of the buyer are inadmissible to show loss or gain to buyer. German-American Provision Co. v. Jones Bros. & Co. [Miss.] 39 So. 521. Where the facts show that a vendee was not warranted in relying on, or did not rely on, statements as to the fertility of land, evidence of such statements should have been excluded. Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290. Testimony of value though immaterial on any issue may be introduced in rebuttal. Id. It was not error to exclude testimony of an oral warranty that a machine was adapted to a required purpose when its defects were due to breaches of warranties in the written contract. Shearer v. Gaar, Scott & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 684. On an issue as to whether the seller of goods contracted to pay the freight, evidence of a decline in the market, subject to which the order was taken, is admissible. Robert Buist Co. v. Lancaster Mercantile Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 789. On an issue whether an order for goods was given or not, the salesman who is claimed to have taken the order may not testify that he took an order of the same kind from another company managed by the alleged purchaser, and that such order was accepted. Id. Proof of the sale and delivery of personal property may be made by the books of the agent of the purchaser. Forbes Co. v. Leonard, 119 Ill. App. 629. Where in an action for the price of wheat defendant claims the wheat was of inferior quality, evidence of the quality of other wheat sold by plaintiff about the same time is competent. Daily v. Smith-Hippen Co., 111 Ill. App. 319.

58. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Hill, 113 Mo. App. 10, 87 S. W. 609.

59. Swindell Bros. v. J. L. Gilbert & Bro., 100 Md. 399, 60 A. 102.

60. So held where defendant wrote plaintiff referring to "our patronage." Swindell Bros. v. J. L. Gilbert & Bro., 100 Md. 399, 60 A. 102.

61. Brinn v. Levine, 97 N. Y. S. 966.

The evidence must preponderate[65] to establish the sale between the parties,[66] its terms,[67] the performance or breach thereof,[68] the cases cited being illustrative of this rule and plaintiff's right to recover.[69]

Trial and instructions.[70]—The general principles of trials[71] and instructions[72] are treated elsewhere. Particular cases hereinunder discuss the applicability of the instructions to the cases as defined by its issues,[73] and their sufficiency to fairly present such issues[74] without misleading the jury.[75] Instructions should not be on the

62. Claus-Shear Co. v. E. Lee Hardware House [N. C.] 53 S. E. 433.

63. Whaley v. Vannatta [Ark.] 91 S. W. 191.

64. Matters of counterclaim or recoupment are not admissible under a general denial. So held where it was sought to show overpayments on former deliveries. Strother v. McMullen Lumber Co., 110 Mo. App. 552, 85 S. W. 650. The complaint alleging that the account sued on was due at the commencement of the action, and the plea being but a denial of such fact, proof that its becoming due at such time was conditional is admissible without further pleadings. A reply pleading such condition is unnecessary. Warren & Lainer v. Cash [Ala.] 39 So. 124. The notice filed with the plea of the general issue under circuit rule 7c, in an action on a note for the purchase price of a stallion, stating that the horse was purchased on the assurance that he was serviceably sound when he was not, but was afflicted with a certain disease, which rendered him sterile and ultimately caused his death, is broad enough to permit recoupment of any damages resulting from the breach of warranty of his being serviceably sound. Otto v. Braman [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 699, 105 N. W. 601.

65. See 4 C. L. 1350.

66. Evidence held to justify submission to jury of question whether sale was to corporation or its manager as an individual. O. M. Cockrum Co. v. Klein [Ind.] 74 N. E. 529. Where there was evidence that duly authorized agent ordered coal, and that janitress receipted for the same, also evidence of the price and amount of coal, held plaintiffs were entitled to judgment. Muller v. Greenwald, 94 N. Y. S. 427.

67. In an action to recover the purchase price of logs, held finding that parties did not agree that the scale of logs by the surveyor general should be conclusive was sustained by the evidence. Nelson v. Charles Betcher Lumber Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 833.

68. In an action to recover a balance due on goods sold and delivered by plaintiff to defendant, evidence held to show the existence of the balance claimed by plaintiffs to be due. Armstrong v. Rorick [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 618, 105 N. W. 29.

69. In an action for the price of timber sold, where the court found that plaintiff did not own the timber when defendant purchased it, and there was no finding that he subsequently became the owner of the proceeds of the sale, and the evidence was in conflict as to whether he was entitled to the amount due for the timber, held that a judgment for plaintiff for that amount was erroneous. Bovo v. D. M. Fulmer Lumber Co., 123 Wis. 614, 101 N. W. 1098.

70. See 4 C. L. 1351.

71. See Trial, 4 C. L. 1703.

72. See Instructions, 6 C. L. 43.

73. In an action for the price of a windmill sold on trial, there being no evidence that the buyer agreed to return the mill if unsatisfactory, an instruction so charging is properly refused. Allyn v. Burns [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 636. Sale of option on corporate stock. Defendant pleaded misrepresentations as to net earnings of corporation but made no allegations as to any misrepresentations as to plant of corporation. Held error to instruct that if defendant had inspected the plant or had full knowledge thereof he could not recover. Rumsey v. Shaw, 212 Pa. 576, 61 A. 1109.

74. Instruction as to rights of parties if article was ordered on buyer's risk, or upon the condition that it be satisfactory to the buyer, held not argumentative or unfair. Bialy v. Krause [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 702, 105 N. W. 149. In an action for the price of goods, issues submitting to the jury whether defendant refused to perform its part of the contract and what damage, if any, plaintiff had sustained, were broad enough to permit defendant to present in every phase the defense of plaintiff's failure to deliver within the time fixed by the contract. R. T. Wilson & Co. v. Levi Cotton Mills [N. C.] 52 S. E. 250.

75. Defense being breach of warranty, charge that if the defense was made out the jury must believe that defendant had paid plaintiff the value of the articles, or they must return a verdict for plaintiff, held misleading. Holman v. Calhoun [Ala.] 40 So. 356. Where court clearly charged as to effect of use after expiration of trial period as well as effect of acceptance, held jury could not have been misled by instructions which did not submit the inference which might be drawn from defendant's exercise of dominion inconsistent with ownership in plaintiff after expiration of trial period. Allyn v. Burns [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 636. Where, in an action for the price of certain building materials, it was proved that plaintiff contracted to furnish materials to the "contractor" as rapidly as wanted, and that all the defendants, including the contractor, were to be liable for the amount, a requested instruction that if plaintiff contracted to furnish the materials to the "owners" as rapidly as wanted and failed to do so then the owners were entitled to offset against plaintiff's claim, such sum as the jury found "the defendants" lost by reason of such delay, held properly refused. Oldenburg & Kelley v. Dorsey [Md.] 62 A. 576.

weight of the evidence.[76] In Indiana it is not proper to submit questions calling for a finding upon some items of evidence.[77]

Fraud is generally a question for the jury.[78]

If possible the findings must be construed so as to be consistent.[79]

(§ 10) F. Action for breach.[80]—Plaintiff must allege and prove performance or tender of performance on his part.[81] An allegation that defendant refused to carry out the terms of his agreement is a mere legal conclusion[82] and does not relieve plaintiff of the obligation of alleging and proving performance on his part.[83] Facts should be alleged.[84] Where it is sought to establish the market value of merchandise at a certain time, the evidence must be of sales at such time, of like merchandise, in like quantities and condition as that involved in the litigation.[85] If a buyer removes himself or is so removed involuntarily that demand cannot be made of him, the law presumes that he would pay the price or deliver the goods without demand.[86] Instructions must be applicable to the issues,[87] must fairly present them,[88] and must not be vague or indefinite.[89] Findings should be construed together.[90]

(§ 10) G. Action for damages for goods not accepted.[91]—The sale being on

76. On an issue of warranty a charge that the testimony of a witness who was claimed to have made the warranty, in that he did not recollect making the warranty and did not deny making it, held on the weight of the evidence. Holman v. Calhoun [Ala.] 40 So. 356.

77. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 555, where issue was whether goods were sold to corporation or its manager as an individual, held proper to refuse to submit an interrogatory as to whether any of the goods were ordered otherwise than by letters written by the manager and signed with his individual name. O. M. Cockrum Co. v. Klein [Ind.] 74 N. E. 529.

78. Perkins Windmill Co. v. Kelly [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 533, 104 N. W. 663.

79. Complaint alleging sale of goods to the value of $999.65, which with interest amounted to $1,015.70, and that only $300 had been paid, leaving a balance of $715.70, and the findings were that the goods were of the value of $715.95 and that by reason of defects defendant was entitled to a credit of $178.25, leaving a balance of $537.70, held that the finding as to the value of the goods sold must be construed as referring to the amount alleged to be due after the payment of the $300. Wiestner v. California Coke & Gas Co. [Cal. App.] 83 P. 461.

80. See 4 C. L. 1352.

81. Brazell v. Cohn, 32 Mont. 556, 81 P. 339. Complaint alleging that plaintiff was then and there able, ready, and willing, and offered to perform all the terms and conditions of the contract to be performed by him during the term of the contract, and was and would be during the entire continuance of the contract able, ready, and willing to perform the same and had offered to do so, etc., held sufficient. Id. Where promise to accept and the agreement to deliver are concurrent and mutual. Armstrong v. Heide, 94 N. Y. S. 434. In an action for breach of contract to purchase it is incumbent upon plaintiff to show a tender of goods of the description called for in the contract. Armour v. Produce Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 524. Delivery being a condition precedent, the seller must not only be able but must actually offer to comply with its terms unless excused by buyer. Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544.

82, 83. Armstrong v. Heide, 94 N. Y. S. 434.

84. Plea that contract was part of a "scheme" devised by defendant to monopolize the trade and was contrary to public policy, held insufficient to raise the defense that the contract was void as against public policy. Bernard v. Sloan [Cal. App.] 84 P. 232. Answer alleging that plaintiff by mistake or with intent to deceive defendant inserted in the written contract certain provisions not contained in the agreement, and thereby increased defendant's liability, held sufficient. Lilienthal v. Herren [Wash.] 84 P. 829.

85. James H. Rice Co. v. Penn Plate Glass Co., 117 Ill. App. 356.

86. Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544.

87. Where there is no evidence of a waiver of breach by silence, an instruction on the point is erroneous. Wood v. Planter's Oil Mill [Ark.] 90 S. W. 18.

88. Alleged sale and incomplete performance held issues as to existence of contract as alleged, performance and value of lumber tendered were sufficient. Coxe v. Singleton, 139 N. C. 361, 51 S. E. 1019.

89. Requested instruction that the jury in fixing damages for future nonperformance should make allowance for uncertainties which affect all conclusions depending on future events, and that only such evidence as was reasonably certain to extend to future events should be considered in fixing damages for nonperformance, held vague and indefinite. Brazell v. Cohn, 32 Mont. 556, 81 P. 339.

90. Where jury found failure of performance on part of plaintiff, a further finding that the lumber tendered by him was less than the value required by the contract held to render the first finding conclusive. Coxe v. Singleton, 139 N. C. 361, 51 S. E. 1019.

trial or on condition precedent, the "buyer" is only liable for loss or damage to the property caused by his negligence during the time it was in his possession on trial.[92]

(§ 10) H. Choice and election of remedies.[93]—The buyer refusing to make instalment payments as required by the contract, the seller may terminate the contract and recover for part performance.[94]

§ 11. Remedies of purchaser. A. Rescission.[95]—Fraud[96] or false material representations,[97] by the seller or his agent,[98] constituting an inducement to the contract of purchase, and the buyer relying thereon[99] without negligence,[1] is ground for the rescission of the contract, in equity,[2] and that too though the party making the representation may have been ignorant as to its truth or falsity[3] and had no fraudulent intent;[4] the real inquiry being not whether the seller knew the representation to be false, but whether the buyer believed it to be true and was misled by it in entering into the contract.[5] Negligence in relying on representations is no defense where artifice is used to induce the buyer to forbear making inquiries.[6] Nonconformity with the contract[7] and partial failure of the consideration of an entire contract[8] warrants rescission, so also the coming into effect of a condition expressly entitling one to rescind warrants the use of the remedy,[9] but not a mistake in the statement of the term of credit in the invoice, such mistake being corrected.[10] As to whether

91. Liability for goods not returned when contract is rescinded, see post, § 11 A, Rescission.

92. Allyn v. Burns [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 636. Where "buyer" refused to keep machine and gave the seller notice, held he was not liable for damage caused by himself three months after the giving of such notice. Id.

93. See 4 C. L. 1352. The right of resale has been treated in § 10 D. See, also, Election and Waiver, 5 C. L. 1078.

94. Price v. New York, 104 App. Div. 198, 93 N. Y. S. 967.

95. See 4 C. L. 1353.

96. Ward v. Marvin [Vt.] 62 A. 46; May v. Loomis [N. C.] 52 S. E. 728; Rose v. Merchants' Trust Co., 96 N. Y. S. 946. Elderly lady without business experience being induced by her attorney and agent to buy mining stock for $1 per share held entitled to rescind the stock at the time selling for $.50 a share and plaintiff not knowing that she was buying stock owned by defendant. Landis v. Wintermute [Wash.] 82 P. 1000. Where in inducing one to become a party to an underwriting agreement a pledgee of bonds concealed the fact that the bonds were held as security for a loan and represented that a sale of the bonds at par had practically been closed, held fraud justifying rescission. Rose v. Merchants' Trust Co., 96 N. Y. S. 946.

97. Kell v. Trenchard [C. C. A.] 142 F. 16, mod. 127 F. 596.

98. Brounfield v. Denton [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 378.

99. Statements made by the seller out of the buyer's hearing held inadmissible. J. H. Clark Co. v. Rice [Wis.] 106 N. W. 231. Newspaper articles, circulars, pamphlets, etc., many of which were never seen by defendant and some of which were not in print at the time of the sale held inadmissible. Id.

1. Kell v. Trenchard [C. C. A.] 142 F. 16, mod. 127 F. 596. Purchaser of logs having lived near land on which logs were situated, having been on such land and having had an opportunity to examine them before buying held he could not rescind the contract of sale for false representations of the seller as to the number and quality of logs. Hulet v. Achey [Wash.] 80 P. 1105.

2, 3. Kell v. Trenchard [C. C. A.] 142 F. 16, mod. 127 F. 596.

4. See J. H. Clark Co. v. Rice [Wis.] 106 N. W. 231. Statements made by the seller out of the buyer's hearing are inadmissible to prove bad faith and an intent to deceive on his part. Id.

5. Kell v. Trenchard [C. C. A.] 142 F. 16, mod. 127 F. 596.

6. May v. Loomis [N. C.] 52 S. E. 728.

7. Seller delivering inferior goods, buyer may reject and sue for damages, or he may pay the contract price, take the goods and recover the difference between their value and the value of goods of the quality named in the contract. John E. Hall Commission Co. v. R. L. Crook & Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 20. Machine delivered not being the one contracted for, the buyer may disaffirm the contract and return or hold the machine subject to the order of his seller. Cincinnati Punch & Shear Co. v. Thompson [Kan.] 83 P. 988.

8. Walter Pratt & Co. v. Frasier & Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 983. Where plaintiffs sold to defendants an assortment of toilet articles and a counter showcase, the contract was an entire one, and a failure to deliver the showcase excused defendants from accepting the goods. Id.

9. Where contract for the sale and demolition of buildings provided that if the seller did not acquire title by a certain date the contract should be void and the consideration paid by the buyer should be restored held the seller not acquiring title by the specified date the buyer could on such date, or at least within a reasonable time thereafter, elect to rescind and recover the consideration paid. Lippman v. Hauben, 94 N. Y. S. 520.

10. Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648.

breach of warranty is a ground for rescission there is a conflict, some courts holding that the right only exists while the contract is executory[11] while others extend the right to both executory and executed contracts.[12] In those states where the former rule prevails, the buyer's remedy is one at law for damages,[13] though of course the parties may by express agreement to the contrary retain the right of rescission.[14] A purchaser from a partner having authority to sell cannot rescind because at the time of purchase he did not know that another partner had an interest.[15] Rescission being merely the choice of two or more remedies,[16] it must be voluntary.[17] Damage must have resulted,[18] and by the great weight of authority this damage must be an actual pecuniary damage as distinguished from a nominal or theoretical injury.[19]

In order to rescind, notice thereof must be given the seller[20] with as much promptitude and dispatch as the circumstances of the case will admit.[21] The law does not require the buyer to act upon the appearance of the first indication of fraud, but allows him a fair opportunity to ascertain the extent of the false representations and to test the quality of the article falsely put upon him.[22] All the law requires is that he shall act within a reasonable time after the discovery of all the essential elements of the fraud.[23] Any delay in doing so, or the continued employment, use, and occupation of the property received under the contract, will be deemed an election to affirm it[24] and a waiver of the right to rescind[25] though the presumption is

11. Does not apply to executed contracts. Hulet v. Achey [Wash.] 80 P. 1105; Simonson v. Jenson [N. D.] 104 N. W. 513.

12. Erie City Iron Works v. Tatum [Cal. App.] 82 P. 92. Warranty of soundness. Palmer & Son v. Cowie, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 46. Where machine was warranted to be of good material and well made and on delivery appeared to be old, out of order and put together in a bungling manner held buyers were justified in refusing to accept the same and in rescinding the entire contract. Baskerville v. Johnson [S. D.] 104 N. W. 913.

13. Hulet v. Achey [Wash.] 80 P. 1105; Simonson v. Jenson [N. D.] 104 N. W. 513.

14. Kugel v. McEnroe, 115 Ill. App. 419; Cook v. Lantz, 116 Ill. App. 472; Simonson v. Jenson [N. D.] 104 N. W. 513. Where contract of warranty provided that the buyer could return the animals and recover the purchase price upon breach of warranty, held the buyer, on breach of warranty, was entitled as a matter of contract to return the animals and recover the purchase money on compliance with or waiver of the conditions specified. White v. Miller [Iowa] 105 N. W. 993.

15. Webb v. Steiner, 113 Mo. App. 482, 87 S. W. 618.

16. See infra subd. H, Choice and election of remedies.

17. Held in suit to recover purchase price for breach of warranty, court could not order plaintiff to rescind. McCarthy v. Eilers, 94 N. Y. S. 1109.

18, 19. Jackway v. Proudfit [Neb.] 106 N. W. 1039.

20. McGue v. Rommel [Cal.] 83 P. 1000; Olson v. Brison [Iowa] 106 N. W. 14.

21. Ward v. Marvin [Vt.] 62 A. 46; Rose v. Merchants' Trust Co., 96 N. Y. S. 946; Goodwin Mfg. Co. v. Arthur Fritsch Foundry & Machine Co. [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 911; Armour v. Produce Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 524; Rumsey v. Shaw, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 386; Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978. Three weeks delay in returning horse after discovery of breach of warranty held unreasonable. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978. Where inspection of beans sold was insufficient held notice of rescission given two days after receipt of beans held unreasonably delayed. Jones v. Bloomgarden [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1019, 106 N. W. 891. A refusal to accept and offer to rescind made within three days after the receipt of goods was made within a reasonable time. Woods v. Thompson, 114 Mo. App. 38, 88 S. W. 1126.

22, 23. Ward v. Marvin [Vt.] 62 A. 46.

24. Rose v. Merchants' Trust Co., 96 N. Y. S. 946. Where one was induced by fraud to become a party to an underwriting agreement, held payment, on discovery of fraud, of amount due by buyer on the bonds to the "syndicate manager" and tender of the bonds to the seller did not amount to a ratification. Id. A purchaser of corporate stock held not estopped to maintain an action to rescind by attending and participating in a stockholders' meeting after the commencement of the action, where she had tendered the stock to the seller prior to the commencement of the action and demanded a return of the purchase money which had been refused. Landis v. Wintermute [Wash.] 82 P. 1000. In an action to rescind a contract for the purchase of a machine evidence considered and held not such as to have warranted a direction to the jury to find for defendant on the ground that the machine had been accepted. Goodwin Mfg. Co. v. Arthur Fritsch Foundry & Machine Co. [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 911. Where a commodity has been sold to be delivered in certain instalments, the vendee is not relieved by defective deliveries which would ordinarily entitle him to rescind if he has accepted and retained them with knowledge only a prima facie one.[26] What constitutes a reasonable time within which such offer shall be made is a question for the court,[27] but whether such a reasonable time has elapsed before it was made is a question for the jury.[28] The seller may waive an unreasonable and unwarranted delay,[29] and whether he has done so is generally a question for the jury.[30] Retention upon the seller's promise to "make matters right" bars the remedy.[31] But for the necessity of a tender, the commencement of the action for the consideration paid would be a sufficiently definite disaffirmance of the contract and an election to rescind.[32] The institution by the buyer, with full knowledge or reasonable means of knowledge of the facts, and without returning or offering to return the chattel sold or rescind the sale, of a suit for breach of warranty, is an affirmance of the sale and precludes the repudiation of the contract for fraud[33] even though he subsequently amends his complaint so as to set up a different cause of action,[34] and though no damages are recovered in such action.[35] Unless the article be entirely worthless,[36] or it is plainly evident that a tender will not be accepted,[37] rescission involves the obligation to return the property to the seller.[38] The place of purchase and the seller's residence being different it is proper for the buyer to ask the seller for shipping directions.[39] Where it is impossible to return all the parts without injury to the buyer's property, he should return what he can and allow a deduction for those not returned.[40] An animal being purchased for

of the fact. Harding, Whitman & Co. v. York Knitting Mills, 142 F. 228.

Note: The buyer could of course refuse to accept inferior goods and compel the seller to furnish that which was up to the standard and if this is not done he is entitled to damages. But the contract being entire it cannot be abrogated after there has been a partial, even though a defective, performance, of which the defendants knowingly accepted the benefits.—From Harding, Whitman & Co. v. York Knitting Mills, 142 F. 228.

25. Ward v. Marvin [Vt.] 62 A. 46.

26. Goodwin Mfg. Co. v. Arthur Fritsch Foundry & Machine Co. [Mo. App.] 89 S. W. 911. An instruction that the use of a machine and payment for it created a presumption of acceptance precluding recovery, and that the burden of proving nonacceptance was on plaintiff, held proper. Id.

27. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978; Ward v. Marvin [Vt.] 62 A. 46; Woods v. Thompson, 114 Mo. App. 38, 88 S. W. 1126.

28. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978. But when disputed facts, involving questions of excuse, discovery of fraud and like matters, are to be passed upon, the question is a mixed one of law and fact and is for the the jury. Ward v. Marvin [Vt.] 62 A. 46. Whether buyer rescinded with due promptness after discovery of fraud held a question for the jury. Shreve v. Crosby [N. J. Err. & App.] 63 A. 333.

29. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978. Three weeks delay after discovery of breach of warranty in sale of a horse held not unreasonable if induced by the seller's request to keep the horse a while longer. Id. Prompt rescission is not required by the vendee where the vendor has misled him into believing that such rescission will not be insisted upon. Defective machine. Rheinstrom v. Elk Brewing Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 519. Delay in instituting proceedings to rescind on the ground of abuse of confidential relations by the seller does not constitute a waiver of the right where it is induced by temporary alleviation of suspicions and ignorance and inexperience. Landis v. Wintermute [Wash.] 82 P. 1000.

30. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978.

31. Where the buyer of a horse, after discovering fraud of the seller, and after being assured by the seller that if the horse was not as represented, he would make it right, continued to use the horse as his own, he thereby elected to affirm the contract and waived his right to rescind. Ward v. Marvin [Vt.] 62 A. 46.

32. Olson v. Brison [Iowa] 106 N. W. 14.

33, 34, 35. Davis v. Schmidt [Wis.] 106 N. W. 119.

36. Rumsey v. Shaw, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 386.

37. Woods v. Thompson, 114 Mo. App. 38, 88 S. W. 1126.

38. Erie City Iron Works v. Tatum [Cal. App.] 82 P. 92; May v. Loomis [N. C.] 52 S. E. 728; Olson v. Brison [Iowa] 106 N. W. 14; Rumsey v. Shaw, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 386; Palmer & Son v. Cowie, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 46. The buyer disaffirming the contract for a breach thereof he cannot hold the article sold to satisfy a claim for damages. Cincinnati Punch & Shear Co. v. Thompson [Kan.] 83 P. 988. The buyer retaining any part of the goods can only recover damages for breach of warranty. McCarthy v. Ellers, 94 N. Y. S. 1109. Where one bought a horse, carriage, and equipment for a lump sum and the horse died causing a breach of warranty, held buyer could not recover price unless he tendered back the carriage and equipment. Id.

39. White v. Miller [Iowa] 105 N. W. 993.

40. Where the evidence showed that part of a heating plant could not be removed from the building without great injury. These parts were disconnected from the other portions of the plant. Defendant placed them in the building in executing his con-breeding purposes while in "show condition" and the contract providing for a return in "good condition" the latter phrase refers to good breeding condition.[41] The offer to rescind being properly made and upon sufficient grounds and refused it is as effectual as if accepted.[42] The purchaser may in such case retain possession, and if he does so he becomes merely a bailee of the seller.[43] Questions of disaffirmance[44] and affirmance[45] are for the jury.

Generally the action for rescission need only be against the party practicing the fraud.[46]

(§ 11) B. Action to recover purchase money paid or to reduce price.[47]—The seller removing the property[48] or failing to deliver property in conformity with the terms of the contract,[49] the buyer may recover back so much of the price as he has paid in advance, and the seller having put it out of his power to deliver the goods sold, no demand therefor is necessary to the maintenance of an action to recover purchase money paid in advance.[50] Upon rescission being promptly and properly made, the buyer is entitled to recover the purchase money paid,[51] and it seems that the rescission having become executed a demand for such price is not essential.[52] In the absence of a contract, express or implied, that money paid shall be forfeited, the buyer may, upon mutual rescission, recover purchase money paid even though the rescission was induced by his own default.[53] A buyer wrongfully refusing to carry out his contract cannot recover earnest money.[54] Money paid under a mistake of fact may be recovered back in an action for money had and received where the money is paid in consequence of a mutual mistake as to facts which if known would have prevented the payment.[55] An error of fact takes place either when something which really exists tract to install the plant. Held that plaintiff was not bound to return such parts in order to recover the price paid for the plant minus the value of such parts. Olson v. Brison [Iowa] 106 N. W. 14.

41. White v. Miller [Iowa] 105 N. W. 993.

42. Exchange of property. Hayes v. Woodham [Ala.] 40 So. 511.

43. Where subject of contract was a horse, use thereof occasionally after offer to return does not bar right. Hayes v. Woodham [Ala.] 40 So. 511.

44. Cincinnati Punch & Shear Co. v. Thompson [Kan.] 83 P. 988. Whether or not the redelivery is an absolute one is a question for the jury. Dougherty v. Neville, 108 App. Div. 89, 95 N. Y. S. 806.

45. Whether plaintiff affirmed sale with knowledge of fraud held a question for the jury. Shreve v. Crosby [N. J. Err. & App.] 63 A. 333. Where buyer and seller occupied a confidential relation and the latter was ill held that whether a letter written by plaintiff's representative to the defendant shortly after discovery of the fraud containing the words "I want to sell you my stock; what will you give me for it," should be treated as an affirmance of the purchase, with knowledge of the fraud, or as a polite intimation that the defendant should take back the stock and return the money because of the fraud, was a question for the jury. Id.

46. In action for rescission of a contract for the underwriting of certain bonds held maintainable against the party practicing the fraud, and neither the "syndicate manager" nor the corporation issuing the bonds was a necessary party. Rose v. Merchants' Trust Co., 96 N. Y. S. 946.

47. See 4 C. L. 1355.

48. Removal on defendant's refusal to pay balance because of breach of warranty. Roesch v. Young, 111 Ill. App. 34.

49. Where buyer ordered goods of a certain kind and weight. Altschul v. Koven, 94 N. Y. S. 558.

50. Fay v. Fitzpatrick [Iowa] 105 N. W. 398. Where property is sold to be delivered at once after payment and the seller fails to make such delivery, notice of suit to recover the payment made is a sufficient demand. Id.

51. Dougherty v. Neville, 108 App. Div. 89, 95 N. Y. S. 806. One is entitled to recover the price paid upon a breach of a warranty of soundness with an agreement that the purchaser can return the property if found unsound. Kugel v. McEnroe, 115 Ill. App. 419. What constitutes a rescission see ante, this section, subd. A, also § 3.

52. Dougherty v. Neville, 108 App. Div. 89, 95 N. Y. S. 806.

53. Pierce v. Staub [Conn.] 62 A. 760. What constitutes rescission see ante, § 3, also, ante this section, subd. A.

NOTE: Proper procedure to protect vendor: It has been said by high authority that the better remedy of the vendor, and in some instances his only safe remedy, is to institute proceedings in the proper court to foreclose the equity of the purchaser where partial payments or valuable improvements have been made. Hansbrough v. Peck, 72 U. S. 497, 18 Law. Ed. 520.—From Pierce v. Staub [Conn.] 62 A. 760.

54. Webb v. Steiner, 113 Mo. App. 482, 87 S. W. 618.

55. So held where apple waste was bought is unknown, or some fact is supposed to exist which really does not exist,[56] and the action will lie unless the mistake results from inexcusable neglect by the party paying, and there was no legal or moral obligation on his part to pay, or the payment was made intentionally, without reference to the state of facts under which it was made.[57] In a suit to recover for a deficiency in the amount delivered, subsequent purchasers from the original buyer are not necessary parties.[58] In such a case the burden is on the buyer to show the deficiency,[59] and the contract containing the method of measurement, it is admissible in evidence.[60] On the question as to whether representations of title were false and fraudulent, the testimony of an attorney as to the result of an examination of the record is admissible.[61] In a joint action against two defendants to recover the purchase price of stock, a guarantee of the value of the stock, made by one of the defendants only, cannot be considered.[62] The evidence showing that a tender would have been of no avail, the fact that the petition contains no allegations with respect to a tender is immaterial.[63]

While in Louisiana a vendee who has sold the things purchased has disabled himself from bringing a redhibitory action, he may still have relief in an action quanti minoris,[64] and in such an action he can claim and recover damages from his vendor, if the latter knew of the defects in the things sold but omitted to declare them.[65] He is, however, controlled as to such demand by the conditions, rules, and limitations of the action quanti minoris.[66] Special statutes of limitation govern.[67]

(§ 11) C. Actions for breach of contract.[68]—Except where the seller notifies the buyer of his inability to perform and cancels the contract,[69] plaintiff must show that he was ready and willing to perform his part of the contract as required by the terms of the latter,[70] and he cannot recover if performance is prevented by the act of his agent,[71] and whether or not it was so prevented is generally a question for the jury.[72] The right of the vendee to recover from the vendor for breach of contract is based solely upon the contract between the two.[73] A buyer may sue upon a contract by sample and by mistake wrong car was sampled. De Wolff v. Howe, 98 N. Y. S. 262.

56, 57. De Wolff v. Howe, 98 N. Y. S. 262.

58, 59. In an action on a written contract for the purchase of hay, the contract price to be paid for a stipulated number of tons as estimated, and on ascertainment of the true tonnage any deficiency to be made good at the contract price. Reed v. McDonald [Cal. App.] 82 P. 639.

60. Action on a written contract for the purchase of hay, the contract price to be paid for a stipulated number of tons as estimated, and on ascertainment of the true tonnage any deficiency to be made good at the contract price, held error to exclude the contract from evidence it containing the manner in which the tonnage was to be determined. Reed v. McDonald [Cal. App.] 82 P. 639.

61. Testimony of an attorney that he had, since the representations, examined the records and failed to find any evidence of title to the lands in the company except certain leases held admissible as tending to show what knowledge the seller possessed at the time he made the representations. Shreve v. Crosby [N. J. Err. & App.] 63 A. 333.

62. Moore v. Adams, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 239.

63. Olson v. Brlson [Iowa] 106 N. W. 14.

64, 65, 66. George v. Shreveport Cotton Oil Co., 114 La. 498, 38 So. 432.

67. An action quanti minoris, which by reason of its facts, falls under the provisions of article 2545 of the Civil Code, is governed by the special rule as to prescription which is laid down in that article. George v. Shreveport Cotton Oil Co., 114 La. 498, 38 So. 432. Under articles 2534, 2544, 2554, where the seller knew of the vice but did not disclose it, the action must be commenced within a year after discovery by the buyer. Discovery is not presumed but must be proved by the seller. Id.

68. See 4 C. L. 1355.

69. Ennis Brown Co. v. Hurst [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1056.

70. Hughes v. Knott [N. C.] 53 S. E. 361.

71. Brauer v. Macbeth [C. C. A.] 138 F. 977.

72. So held where plaintiff was to transfer "unexpired insurance fully paid" and there was a dispute as to whether plaintiff's agent refused to accept equivalent new insurance or not. Brauer v. Macbeth [C. C. A.] 138 F. 977.

73. Where there was a shortage in the shipment of grain held vendee might recover of his vendor without first having reimbursed his subvendee for the shortage. Denton Bros. v. Gill [Md.] 62 A. 627. Whether defendant's local office notified witness, who was his agent, that defendant could not make any more deliveries under the contract, under instructions from another corporation, until witness had settled his account, made by its agent though the seller was without knowledge of the agency.[74] Though refusal to accept is based on error or misrepresentation, it will defeat recovery for breach of the contract.[75]

Pleading.[76]—Formal pleadings not being required, as before a justice of the peace, it is sufficient if the allegations of the petition show an acceptance of the offer inferentially.[77] Defendant relying upon a condition in the contract must plead the existence of the condition in order to have the advantage thereof.[78]

Proof.[79]—Facts admitted by the answer need not be proven.[80] Damages which necessarily result from the act complained of are denominated "general damages" and may be proved under the ad damnum clause.[81] Where the seller fails to deliver and in an action for damages the buyer proves the contract and the market price of the cattle, no further burden rests on him.[82] The general rules as to the admissibility of evidence apply.[83] A witness can state in a single answer the entire profit which would have been made on the articles had they been delivered pursuant to contract, the answer not being based upon speculation.[84]

Questions for the jury and instructions thereon.[85]—Instructions should not be misleading[86] and must be construed together.[87]

Findings.—It is essential that the findings show a contract actually made between the parties[88] and conform to the admissions in the complaint.[89] and with reference to what amounts witness had been credited was irrevelant. Armour Packing Co. v. Vletch-Young Produce Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 680.

74. Noel Const. Co. v. Atlas Portland Cement Co. [Md.] 63 A. 384. See Agency, 5 C. L. 64.

75. False calculations as to whether contractual amount of lumber had been delivered. Walker v. Kirwan [Ky.] 90 S. W. 244.

76. See 4 C. L. 1356.

77. H. Gans & Sons Mfg. Co. v. Chicago Lumber & Coal Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 121.

78. Omaha Feed Co. v. Rushford [Neb.] 106 N. W. 25.

79. See 4 C. L. 1356.

80. Where defendant in his answer set out the contract, held plaintiff need not prove it. King-Keystone Oil Co. v. San Francisco Brick Co. [Cal.] 82 P. 849.

81. Terrace Water Co. v. San Antonio Light & Power Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 562.

82. McKay v. Elder [Tex. Civ. App.] 92 S. W. 268.

83. In an action to recover the price paid for property which the seller failed to deliver, in which there was evidence that the sale was made by an agent, evidence that demand for the property was made on the agent was admissible. Fay v. Fitzpatrick [Iowa] 105 N. W. 398. In an action to recover for breach of a contract to deliver cattle, admissions of defendant as to having sold the cattle to plaintiff and declarations of plaintiff as to such sale, made in defendant's presence, were admissible. McKay v. Elder [Tex. Civ. App.] 92 S. W. 268. Evidence that a third person with whom the buyer had agreed to sell the same goods retained a specified sum to cover his damages by reason of the failure to deliver is inadmissible. Tingle v. Kelly [Ky.] 92 S. W. 303. Where, in an action for breach of contract to sell a crop of tobacco, the amount thereof was in issue, a forthcoming bond executed by the seller in a prior unsuccessful attachment suit brought by the buyer for the recovery of the tobacco and which stated the amount of the tobacco held admissible against the seller, since, under Civ. Code Proc. §§ 215, 258, he could have availed himself of an appraisement before giving the bond. Id. In an action by a buyer of a machine to recover damages for nondelivery, letters from the agent who made the contract sued on, to plaintiff, written a year or more after the transaction, held admissible to discredit the agent as a witness, but the testimony should have been so limited. Fred W. Wolf Co. v. Galbraith [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 390.

84. Armeny v. Madson & Buck Co., 111 Ill. App. 621.

85. See 4 C. L. 1356.

86. Instruction held misleading as tending to instruct that plaintiff could not recover unless it first made inquiry concerning agent's authority, notwithstanding existence in fact of the requisite authority. Armour Packing Co. v. Vietch-Young Produce Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 680. So held as to instruction that if certain facts existed there was an agency, there being evidence of an agency. Id. Instruction as to agency, reliance on agent's representations of authority, duty to inquire, etc., held properly refused as involved, confused and misleading. Id.

87. Sale of 21 head of cattle; breach of agreement to furnish registration papers in that such papers were furnished for only 3 head, held an instruction that if defendant sold 21 head and agreed to furnish registration papers and failed so to do the verdict should be for plaintiff held correct the jury being instructed as to the proper measure of damages. Miller v. Mosely [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 648.

88. H. Gaus & Sons Mfg. Co. v. Chicago Lumber & Coal Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 121.

89. In an action involving a contract for (§ 11) D. Action for breach of warranty.[90]—The cause of action accrues upon breach of the warranty[91] and cannot be maintained prior to the transition of title.[92] The warranty need not be the sole inducement to the purchase in order to give the purchaser a right of action for its breach, but it must have been operative in causing the sale.[93] Where causes of action for breach of warranty and deceit arise out of the same transaction, they may be joined in one action.[94]

Pleading and issues.[95]—The promise to accept and the agreement to deliver being concurrent and mutual, neither party can recover without alleging and proving performance or tender of performance on his part.[96] An allegation that defendant refused to carry out the terms of his agreement is a mere legal conclusion[97] and does not relieve plaintiff of the obligation of alleging and proving performance on his part.[98] In case, upon a false warranty, scienter need not be alleged or proved.[99] Complaint stating cause of damage and amount of damage is sufficient as against a general demurrer.[1] Where under the allegations of the complaint plaintiff is entitled to recover some amount, although merely nominal, the complaint is not demurrable.[2] A complaint in a justice's court alleging that defendant guaranteed the health and soundness of animals, well knowing they were sick, is sufficient.[3] The word "inferior" when used in the complaint means less important or less valuable.[4] Where the warranty is general in its character or nature the breach or failure may be shown by a general negation of said warranty.[5]

Evidence and trial.[6]—Except where the knowledge, notice, or intent of a party is material, the rule is that no evidence of similar transactions with third persons can be given.[7] Proof of reliance on the warranty need not be made by the positive testimony of the buyer, but it is sufficient if it appears from the circumstances.[8] Proof of value must refer to the time the property was delivered under and pursuant to the warranty.[9] Plaintiff must show by a preponderance of the evidence that there was a contract of warranty,[10] that such contract was broken,[11] and the damages sustained by reason of such breach,[12] and such damages must not be speculative.[13] In a suit on the sale of hops for several sucessive years and claiming a breach in a certain year and admitting a credit for such year, and defendant claimed that the credit should apply on the year previous and the court so found, held defendant could not complain of the court's finding an entire breach for the year claimed as contrary to the admission in the complaint. Mitau v. Roddan [Cal.] 84 P. 145.

90. See 4 C. L. 1356.

91. Right of action for damages held to accrue upon delivery of inferior goods and payment of agreed price. John E. Hall Commission Co. v. R. L. Crook & Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 20.

92. Bunday v. Columbus Mach. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 902, 106 N. W. 397.

93. Mitchell v. Pinckney, 127 Iowa, 696, 104 N. W. 286.

94. Smith v. Newberry [N. C.] 53 S. E. 234.

95. See 4 C. L. 1357.

96, 97, 98. Armstrong v. Heide, 94 N. Y. S. 434.

99. Wallace v. Tanner, 118 Ill. App. 639.

1. Complaint alleging warranty of seed wheat, that wheat furnished was inferior to kind warranted to be sold, and produced an inferior crop to plaintiff's damage in the sum of $1,000, held sufficient. Moody v. Peirano [Cal. App.] 84 P. 783.

2. Moody v. Peirano [Cal. App.] 84 P. 783.

3. Narr v. Norman, 113 Mo. App. 533, 88 S. W. 122.

4. Moody v. Peirano [Cal. App.] 84 P. 783.

5. Where horses were warranted free from disease, an allegation that they were not healthy and sound but were diseased, because of which one of them died a few days after the purchase and the other became and remained lame and was of no value, held not demurrable. Warman-Black-Chamberlain Co. v. Indianapolis Mortar & Fuel Co. [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 672.

6. See 4 C. L. 1357.

7. Evidence of similar warranties in other sales to third persons held inadmissible. Moody v. Peirano [Cal. App.] 84 P. 783.

8. Mitchell v. Pinckney, 127 Iowa, 696, 104 N. W. 286.

9. Houghton Implement Co. v. Doughty [N. D.] 104 N. W. 516.

10, 11. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978; Wallace v. Douglas [W. Va.] 51 S. E. 869.

12. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978. Damages could not be recovered because hogs were in fact sick but recovered. Narr v. Norman, 113 Mo. App. 533, 88 S. W. 122.

13. Where the proven price of 10 hogs was based on the weight of the lot and 8 died, damages could not be recovered without proof of the weight of the hogs that died.

a warranty given by an agent the burden is on the plaintiff to show that the agent had authority to make the warranty, either by direct proof or by proof of a general custom to that effect.[14] The general rules as to expert testimony,[15] the competency,[16] materiality,[17] and admissibility[18] of evidence, apply. The evidence being conflicting the question is for the jury.[19] Cases dealing with the sufficiency of the evidence are shown in the notes.[20]

Questions for jury and instructions; findings.[21]—Where the buyer claims to have mailed notice of breach and seller denies receiving it, the question is for the jury.[22] Instructions may state warranties according to their substance and effect instead of as alleged in the petition.[23] Instructions must be confined to the issues[24] and conform to the evidence.[25] Directions of findings must conform to the issues.[26] The findings need not show the evidentiary facts.[27]

(§ 11) E. Recovery of chattel; replevin or conversion.[28]—If a contract transfers title at once the purchaser may sue for possession of the property.[29]

(§ 11) F. Lien for price paid.[30]

Narr v. Norman, 113 Mo. App. 533, 88 S. W. 122.

14. Phillips-Buttorff Mfg. Co. v. Wild Bros. [Ala.] 39 So. 359.

15. As to whether certain holes and cracks in an iron front to a building furnished to plaintiffs, affected its strength was a proper question for expert testimony. Fraternal Const. Co. v. Jackson Foundry & Machine Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 265.

16. On the issue whether apples were delivered in a merchantable condition, evidence of a fruit expert that, if the apples were in a merchantable condition at the place of sale at the time of shipment, they could not have arrived at the place of destination when they did in the condition in which they did arrive, was competent. Jones v. Emerson [Wash.] 82 P. 1017.

17. Where in an action for breach of warranty in the sale of seed wheat, warranted to be "White Australian," defendant testified that he sold wheat to M. from the same lot from which he sold plaintiff, evidence of M. that he bought wheat of defendant near the time when plaintiff bought his wheat, and that when the crop was grown it proved not to be "White Australian," held relevant and material. Moody v. Peirano [Cal. App.] 84 P. 783.

18. In an action for the price of potatoes sold, in which the defense was breach of warranty where there was evidence that all the land from which they were taken was of the same quality and the potatoes were all about the same, testimony of a witness that he had seen the seller digging and sacking potatoes and that the potatoes he saw were in good condition, held admissible. Yick Sung v. Herman [Cal. App.] 83 P. 1089. On an issue as to whether shoes sold were equal to sample held not error to permit the buyer to produce one of the shoes and point out the defects. Wolfe Bros. Shoe Co. v. Bishop [Kan.] 84 P. 133.

19. There being a conflict in the evidence as to whether the material used was the "best procurable" as required by the contract, held question was for the jury. George Lawley & Son Corp. v. Park [C. C. A.] 138 F. 31.

20. Evidence held to show a sale to plaintiff (Stanhope v. Agnew, 27 Ky. L. R. 1018, 87 S. W. 758; Shuman v. Heater [Neb.] 106 N. W. 1042) to show warranty (Id.) and breach of warranty (Id.). Evidence held insufficient to sustain a verdict that an engine purchased under a written warranty was worthless. Houghton Implement Co. v. Doughty [N. D.] 104 N. W. 516.

21. See 2 C. L. 1575.

22. Siebe v. Heilman Mach. Works [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 300.

23. San Antonio Machine & Supply Co. v. Josey [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 598.

24. Where in an action for breach of warranty on the sale of cattle there was no claim that there was any breach, save that the animals had a certain disease, and no other breach was shown to the jury, an instruction that if there was a warranty of any or all of the cattle and it had been broken plaintiff was entitled to damages, held not erroneous on the theory that it did not limit the jury to the particular breach relied on. Mitchell v. Pinckney, 127 Iowa, 696, 104 N. W. 286.

25. Where the evidence shows only a breach, if any, of part of the warranty, instruction limiting plaintiff's recovery to such part held correct, though pleadings claimed breach of entire warranty. Strueb-ing v. Stevenson [Iowa] 105 N. W. 341.

26. In an action for a breach of warranty of paint, it was error to direct a finding for defendant if the paint was applied to a green surface without defendant's consent, where it was not contended that defendant consented, and the case depended on whether plaintiff was bound by a certain pamphlet. Barton Bros. v. Chicago Fire Proof Covering Co., 113 Mo. App. 462, 87 S. W. 599.

27. Findings showing sale, warranty, breach, and damage, held sufficient to support judgment for amount of damage without a finding of the evidentiary facts showing such damage. Moody v. Peirano [Cal. App.] 84 P. 783.

28. See 4 C. L. 1357.

29. Tingle v. Kelly [Ky.] 92 S. W. 303. A crop of tobacco to be delivered at some future time. Gibson v. Ray [Ky.] 89 S. W. 474.

(§ 11) G. Recoupment and counterclaim.[31]—Ratification of the sale does not bar the purchaser from setting up his damages as a counterclaim in a suit for the price.[32] All matters of defense and recoupment in actions for the purchase price have been previously treated.[33]

(§ 11) H. Choice and election of remedies.[34]—Repudiation is the proper remedy before the passage of title,[35] rescission being the remedy thereafter.[36] One contracting for a machine for a particular purpose, which, upon delivery, he finds is not the machine contracted for, may either affirm the contract and keep the machine and recoup his damages,[37] or disaffirm the contract and return or hold the machine subject to the order of his vendor.[38] On discovering the breach of warranty the buyer may either return the goods and rescind the contract,[39] or he may retain the goods and bring an action for breach of warranty,[40] or plead the breach as an offset in an action for the purchase price,[41] but this rule does not hold where the parties have made an express stipulation in the matter.[42] When a person has been induced to buy goods by the fraudulent misrepresentations of the seller, he is entitled either to sue the seller for fraud[43] or he may, on discovering the fraud, rescind the contract, and, if he has paid the purchase price, recover it under a count for money had and received to his use, provided he can restore the article purchased in the same state as that in which he received it.[44] Either case or assumpsit lies for a false warranty in the sale of goods.[45] Where goods are sold to be delivered and paid for in instalments, and the vendor refuses to deliver an instalment, it is a breach of the entire contract for which the vendee may immediately recover his damages,[46] or he may wait until the time for the delivery of the goods has expired and then recover,[47] but he cannot maintain successive actions to recover for breach on delivery of each instalment and a judgment for damages for nondelivery of a part of the goods is a bar to an action for failure to deliver the balance.[48] Where a declaration contains a count for breach of warranty, and one on the theory of a rescission of the contract for false representations, plaintiff must elect, the measure of damages being different.[49]

30. See 2 C. L. 1576.

31. See 4 C. L. 1357. See, also, ante, § 10 E.

32. May v. Loomis [N. C.] 52 S. E. 728.

33. See § 10 E.

34. See 4 C. L. 1357.

35. Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648.

36. Baird Bros. v. Walter Pratt & Co. [Ind. T.] 89 S. W. 648. See post, §§ 10, 11.

37, 38. Cincinnati Punch & Shear Co. v. Thompson [Kan.] 83 P. 988.

39. Erie City Iron Works v. Tatum [Cal. App.] 82 P. 92; Palmer & Son v. Cowle, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 46; Cook v. Lantz, 116 Ill. App. 472; Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Hodges [Ky.] 90 S. W. 580. An aggrieved buyer may rescind sale and sue for the price instead of suing on the warranty. Shultis v. Rice, 114 Mo. App. 274, 89 S. W. 357.

40. Erie City Iron Works v. Tatum [Cal. App.] 82 P. 92; Palmer & Son v. Cowie, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 46; Devine v. Ryan, 115 Ill. App. 498; Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Hodges [Ky.] 90 S. W. 580. Though contract expressly gives him right to rescind. Cook v. Lantz, 116 Ill. App. 472.

41. Erie City Iron Works v. Tatum [Cal. App.] 82 P. 92.

42. Gaar, Scott & Co. v. Hodges [Ky.] 90 S. W. 580. It is presumed that when parties agree that on breach of warranty or failure of condition the contract is to be rescinded, and this remedy alone is provided, that the consideration was regulated by this provision and no damages were expected. Id.

43. Ward v. Marvin [Vt.] 62 A. 46. Material false representations, though unintentional but inducing a purchase, are actionable. Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290. The misrepresentations having been intentionally and fraudulently made the buyer has a right of action for deceit. Pittsburg Life & Trust Co. v. Northern Cent. Life Ins. Co., 140 F. 888. See Deceit, 5 C. L. 953. Rose v. Merchants' Trust Co., 96 N. Y. S. 946.

44. Ward v. Marvin [Vt.] 62 A. 46; Rose v. Merchants' Trust Co., 96 N. Y. S. 946.

45. Wallace v. Tanner, 118 Ill. App. 639.

46, 47. Pakas v. Hollingshead [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 40, afg. 86 N. Y. S. 560; Id., 99 App. Div. 472, 91 N. Y. S. 1105.

48. Pakas v. Hollingshead [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 40, afg. 86 N. Y. S. 560; Id., 99 App. Div. 472, 91 N. Y. S. 1105. See Judgments, 6 C. L. 214.

49. Snore v. Hammond [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 222, 103 N. W. 834. In such a case where there was no election, held error for the court to instruct that the verdict if for § 12. Damages for breach of sale and warranty. A. General rules.[50]—Damages to be recoverable must be the natural and necessary consequence of the breach and must flow directly and naturally and in the due course of things from the breach, and the expression is often used that they must be such as were within the contemplation of the parties.[51] No damages can be recovered for breach of contract except such as are clearly ascertainable in both their nature and origin.[52] The party who voluntarily and wrongfully puts an end to a contract and prevents the other party from performing it is estopped from denying that the injured party has not been damaged to the extent of his actual loss and his outlay fairly incurred.[53] Damages recoverable are limited to what the plaintiff by using reasonable precautions could have reduced them to.[54] The performance of a condition for valuation being prevented by the act of the buyer, the price of the article sold is to be fixed by the jury on a quantum valebat,[55] and in the absence of proof of the value only nominal damages can be recovered.[56] A rescission to operate as a discharge must be supported by a valuable consideration, which may be either a payment in money, something of value, or by a release of mutual obligations incurred in making the contract.[57] The contract being so rescinded neither party can maintain an action thereon for damages sustained prior to the breach.[58]

(§ 12) B. Breach by seller. On the seller's failure to deliver,[59] the measure of damages is the difference between the contract price and the market value at the time and place of delivery[60] less any expense which the buyer, if the contract had been performed, would have been put to in delivering the goods at such place;[61] or if the plaintiff should be for the amount of the purchase price. Id.

50. See 4 C. L. 1358.

51. Alabama Chemical Co. v. Geiss [Ala.] 39 So. 255.

52. Civ. Code, § 4301, so provides. Such section held not to authorize an instruction that the jury in fixing damages for future nonperformance should make allowance for the uncertainties which affect all conclusions depending on future events and that only such evidence as was reasonably certain to extend to future events should be considered. Brazell v. Cohn, 32 Mont. 556, 81 P. 339.

53. Terrace Water Co. v. San Antonio Light & Power Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 562.

54. Miller v. Mosely [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 648.

55. So held where test was to be made and if plant was found superior to one already possessed by the seller he was to pay more for it. Hopedale Electric Co. v. Electric Storage Battery Co. [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 394, afg. 96 App. Div. 344, 89 N. Y. S. 325.

Note: This case is to be distinguished from those wherein the test is for the benefit of the buyer, as where he is entitled to reject the goods or have a reduction of the price if the goods fail to stand the prescribed test, and so when he fails or refuses to make the test he thereby evinces his willingness to pay the stipulated purchase price and is held liable therefor. Waters Heater Co. v. Mansfield, 48 Vt. 378; Thomson-Houston Elec. Co. v. Brush-Swan Elec. L. & P. Co., 31 F. 535. The case of Humaston v. Telegraph Co., 20 Wall. [U. S.] 20, 22 Law. Ed. 279, is analogous to the principal case.—From Hopedale Electric Co. v. Electric Storage Battery Co. [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 394.

56. Hopedale Electric Co. v. Electric Storage Battery Co. [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 394, afg. 96 App. Div. 344, 89 N. Y. S. 325.

57. Where buyer consented to rescission to obtain further shipments held rescission was based on sufficient consideration. Lipschutz v. Weatherly [N. C.] 53 S. E. 132.

58. Lipschutz v. Weatherly [N. C.] 53 S. E. 132.

59. See 4 C. L. 1358.

60. National Coal Tar Co. v. Malden & Melrose Gaslight Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 625; Connersville Wagon Co. v. McFarlan Carriage Co. [Ind.] 76 N. E. 294; Sanders, Swan & Co. v. Allen [Ga.] 52 S. E. 884; Cresent Hosiery Co. v. Mobile Cotton Mills [N. C.] 53 S. E. 140; Alabama Chemical Co. v. Geiss [Ala.] 39 So. 255; McKay v. Elder [Tex. Civ. App.] 92 S. W. 268; Armeny v. Madson & Buck Co., 111 Ill. App. 621. So held where goods were to be ordered during specified period and would have been delivered a certain time after ordering. Aikman v. Wahnetah Silk Co., 110 App. Div. 191, 96 N. Y. S. 1067. Such market value must be proved. Id. Breach of contract to sell electricity measure of damages is difference between contract price and cost of procuring electricity from another. Civ. Code § 3308, construed. Terrace Water Co. v. San Antonio Light & Power Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 562.

61. National Coal Tar Co. v. Malden & Melrose Gaslight Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 625. Where a party in a distant place sells and agrees to deliver goods at a designated point where he knows they are to be sold by the vendee, the measure of damages is the difference between the purchase price at the place of purchase and the market value at the point to which they are to be shipped and where they are to be sold, less cost of transportation and necessary handling and sales expenses. Lilly v. Lilly, Bogardus & Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 852.

there be no market at the place of delivery, then the value in the nearest and most available market to which the buyer must resort in order to supply himself, with the cost of transportation and compensation for the time, trouble, and expense of making the repurchase added.[62] And where, by the terms of the contract, the goods are to be delivered by instalments or at stated periods, the time for delivery will be the date for the delivery of each instalment successively; the damage being the aggregate of these differences estimated as of these respective dates,[63] and interest where allowed.[64] Of course if by consent of the parties the time of delivery has been postponed, the damages will be estimated as of such postponed date.[65] It is the duty of the buyer to exercise reasonable diligence to obtain the goods elsewhere and to act throughout as a reasonable man of business.[66] The basic principle to be followed in the measurement of damage in this class of cases is the awarding of full compensation for the actual loss sustained at the time and place of delivery,[67] hence the above rule does not apply where it fails to afford full redress as where the buyer is unable to purchase the article, in such cases actual loss measures the recovery.[68] Assurances by the seller that he will deliver do not change the measure of damages.[69] Of course the parties may by agreement fix the measure of damages.[70]

Special damages[71] may be recovered where they are the usual and proximate result of the breach, and such as may be reasonably supposed to have been within the contemplation of the parties at the time they made the contract.[72] As a general rule unearned profits[73] and damages resulting from consequent breach of the contracts entered into by the buyer[74] cannot be allowed, though they may be recovered where

62. National Coal Tar Co. v. Malden & Melrose Gaslight Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 625.

63. Cresent Hoslery Co. v. Mobile Cotton Mills [N. C.] 53 S. E. 140. Where contract entitles a purchaser to call for provisions from time to time and the seller refuses to deliver, the buyer may obtain his supply from time to time on the market, and so fix the measure of damages. Buyer was not compelled to purchase entire supply of coal at one time on the market. Delaware & Hudson Canal Co. v. Mitchell, 113 Ill. App. 429.

64, 65. Cresent Hoslery Co. v. Mobile Cotton Mills [N. C.] 53 S. E. 140.

66. Armeny v. Madson & Buck Co., 111 Ill. App. 621.

67. Wall v. St. Joseph Artesian Ice & Cold Storage Co., 112 Mo. App. 659, 87 S. W. 574.

68. Where article sold was to be made by the vendor for a particular purpose and could not be had elsewhere or where the purchase price was paid in advance the buyer ought to receive full compensation. Murmann v. Wissler [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 355. Sale of ice cans, held measure of defendants' damage was extra cost, over the cost of manufacture, they were put to to buy ice for customers. Wall v. St. Joseph Artesian Ice & Cold Storage Co., 112 Mo. App. 659, 87 S. W. 574. An allegation that a buyer of lumber could not, on the seller's failure to deliver, obtain lumber of the quality and dimensions contracted for in the city where the same should have been delivered, is not an allegation that it could not have been obtained in the open market and hence does not affect the measure of damages for the breach. Alabama Chemical Co. v. Geiss [Ala.] 39 So. 255.

69. Alabama Chemical Co. v. Gelss [Ala.] 39 So. 255.

70. Where seller agreed to pay buyer "15c per barrel as liquidated damages for each and every barrel short of 200,000 barrels; and we agree to make all shipments to you within ten days after receipt of orders," held such clause furnished the only measure of the damages recoverable by the purchaser for nondelivery, whatever might be the rule of damages were the claim merely for delay in filling orders afterwards shipped. Davis v. Alpha Portland Cement Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 74, afg. 134 F. 274.

71. See 4 C. L. 1359.

72. Union Foundry Works v. Columbia Iron & Steel Co., 112 Ill. App. 183. Buyer of lumber for erection of manufacturing plant cannot on the seller's failure to perform recover the losses sustained by being compelled to excuse its contractor from a forfeiture for failure to complete the plant within the time stipulated and by being hindered in his business, though the seller knew that the lumber was to be used for the erection of the plant, and the buyer could not obtain the lumber in the city where the plant was erected; the parties only having in mind an ordinary sale of lumber. Alabama Chemical Co. v. Geiss [Ala.] 39 So. 255. In an action for damages from a defective iron front to a building furnished by defendant as a result of which the building fell, the measure of damages is the reasonable cost of replacing building. Fraternal Const. Co. v. Jackson Foundry & Machine Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 265.

to the seller's knowledge, at the time of the making of the contract of sale,[75] the goods were purchased to fill a particular contract.[76] The buyer being entitled to recover profits is only entitled to recover net profits.[77]

For breach of other conditions[78] the buyer is entitled to recover actual damages,[79] unless too remote and speculative to be capable of ascertainment.[80] Nominal damages may be recovered.[81]

In an action for deceit, the measure of damages is the actual loss to the buyer, or, in other words, the difference between the actual value and the price he was induced to pay,[82] and the sale being a single transaction, though embracing different kinds of property, there can be no recovery unless it is shown that the property obtained as a whole is worth less than was paid for it.[83] This rule excludes all speculative profits.[84]

All the above rules are subject to the qualification that the buyer must use all reasonable means to mitigate the damages,[85] but the fact that they could have been but were not mitigated will not bar a partial recovery.[86]

73. In an action for breach of contract to furnish wheels for the manufacture of vehicles, a complaint seeking to recover loss resulting from inability to run plaintiff's factory to its full capacity because of failure to deliver the wheels held to involve contingent and unearned profits. Connersville Wagon Co. v. McFarlan Carriage Co. [Ind.] 76 N. E. 294. Losses sustained by the purchaser by reason of his failure to realize profits on contracts which he entered into on the faith of receiving the personal property bought are too remote, conjectural and speculative to be recovered. Alabama Chemical Co. v. Geiss [Ala.] 39 So. 255.

74. Where seller fails to deliver the goods the buyer cannot claim damages resulting from his having resold the goods where his vendor had no notice of such resale. Sanders, Swan & Co. v. Allen [Ga.] 52 S. E. 884.

75. Subsequent notice not sufficient to render vendor liable. Union Foundry Works v. Columbia Iron & Steel Co., 112 Ill. App. 183.

76. Cannot be recovered in the absence of such a showing. Walker v. Johnson, 116 Ill. App. 145. Seller having knowledge that buyer must deliver the goods to another under an agreement providing penalties for delay beyond the time fixed in the seller's contract he is liable, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, for such penalty if he defaults. Whether such agreement existed held, under the facts, for the jury. Sutton v. Wanamaker, 95 N. Y. S. 525. Special damages cannot be recovered for failure of the vendor to deliver goods unless the vendor had notice of the circumstances from which they arose. Claim to set-off in action for price of steel beams where defendant had contract to build for third party. Union Foundry Works v. Columbia Iron & Steel Co., 112 Ill. App. 183.

77. Armeny v. Madson & Buck Co., 111 Ill. App. 621; Fred W. Wolf Co. v. Galbraith [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 390. Where it appeared that the purchase price was to be paid partly on shipment of the machine, partly on its installation and the remainder in 12 months from shipment with interest held that in arriving at the net lost profits the interest on the investment, or at least the year's interest on the deferred payment, together with all necessary expenses, including insurance, provided for in the contract, should be taken into account. Id.

78. See 4 C. L. 1360.

79. Where the seller of cattle agrees to deliver registration papers for each head and fails to do so, the measure of damages is the difference in the reasonable market value of cattle delivered without registration papers and the market value accompanied by registration papers. Miller v. Mosely [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 648. Where defendant purchased certain sewing machines under an agreement that the seller should furnish work, out of the profits of which the buyer could pay for the machines, the measure of damages for breach of the contract which could be set-off against the price of the machines was the profit which defendant might have made together with the expense of maintaining the plant, caused by the neglect of plaintiff to furnish the work. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Christian, 211 Pa. 534, 60 A. 1087.

80. Where in reliance on promise to give the buyer the exclusive sale of the goods the buyer built up a trade therein, and the seller broke this promise and sold the goods to the buyer's competitor, held damages were too remote and speculative to be capable of ascertainment. Mountain City Mill Co. v. Cobb [Ga.] 53 S. E. 458.

81. Where the seller of cattle failed to deliver registration papers as agreed, the purchaser was entitled to nominal damages, though the cattle were worth as much unregistered as registered. Miller v. Mosely [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 648.

82. Pittsburg Life & Trust Co. v. Northern Cent. Life Ins. Co., 140 F. 888; Kell v. Trenchard [C. C. A.] 142 F. 16, mod. 127 F. 596; May v. Loomis [N. C.] 52 S. E. 728. See Damages, 5 C. L. 904.

83. Pittsburg Life & Trust Co. v. Northern Cent. Life Ins. Co., 140 F. 888. See Deceit, 5 C. L. 953.

84. Kell v. Trenchard [C. C. A.] 142 F. 16, mod. 127 F. 596.

85. Sale of cattle, a petition alleging an agreement to furnish registration papers for cattle, breach thereof and consequent depreciation in value of cattle held not demurrable in that it did not show that the damages were actual or irrevocable. Miller v. Mosely [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 648.

The amount of damages as measured by the above rules is for the jury.[87] When the measure of damages for nondelivery of goods is the difference between the contract price and the price of resale, both such prices must be proven.[88]

(§ 12) C. Breach by purchaser.[89]—There being a complete performance the seller is entitled to recover the contract price.[90]

For nonacceptance.[91]—The contract being repudiated, and the goods rejected by a vendee in toto, it is violated in every part and he becomes liable for all actual damages suffered by the vendor.[92] Except where the article has no market value,[93] the measure of damages for the refusal to receive goods is the difference between the contract price and the market value at the time and place of breach.[94] In the case of manufacturing contracts,[95] there being no specific determinate chattel in esse, and the purchaser having refused to accept performance, the measure of damages is the profit which the manufacturer would have made if he had been permitted to comply with his contract.[96] Where the buyer refuses to receive the property furnished the seller may resell the goods and recover the difference between the contract price and the amount received upon resale,[97] plus necessary expenses in making such resale,[98] providing the resale is properly made,[99] and a claim for damages is not made

86. There being a breach of an agreement to furnish registration papers for cattle sold, an instruction that if the buyer had signed a certain paper the registration papers would have been procured, held properly refused as ignoring the damages which might have accrued to plaintiff before the papers were presented. Miller v. Mosely [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 648.

87. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Christian, 211 Pa. 534, 60 A. 1087.

88. Armeny v. Madson & Buck Co., 111 Ill. App. 621.

89. See 4 C. L. 1360.

90. An instruction that if defendant's agent agreed to pay the market price not below a fixed sum it was a valid sale and rendered defendant liable for the agreed price, whereas if he merely agreed to sell the goods on commission for plaintiff the defendant was not liable for more than he received, properly submits issues of liability of the defendant. Brockman Commission & Cold Storage Co. v. Pound [Ark.] 91 S. W. 183.

91. See 4 C. L. 1360.

92. Moody v. McTaggart, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 465.

93. See 4 C. L. 1360, n. 63.

94. Brazell v. Cohn, 32 Mont. 556, 81 P. 339; Levis v. Royal Packing & Drying Co. [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1086; Woodstock Iron Works v. Standard Pulley Mfg. Co. [La.] 40 So. 236; Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797; Bell v. Hatfield [Ky.] 89 S. W. 544; Kiley v. Lee Canning Co., 105 App. Div. 633, 93 N. Y. S. 986.

95. Contracts by which plaintiff, who was a manufacturer of vehicle axles and springs, agreed to sell and deliver to defendant within a year certain quantities of springs and axles, the styles and sizes to be specified by defendant from time to time, provided that strikes of workmen should excuse performance on the part of plaintiff, and that in consideration of the purchase by plaintiff of the steel for their manufacture defendant should take the full quantity of springs and axles covered by the contract, without rebate in price in the event of a decline in the market, held manufacturing contracts. George Delker Co. v. Hess Spring & Axle Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 647.

96. Gardner v. Deeds [Tenn.] 92 S. W. 518. Is the difference between the cost of manufacture and delivery and the contract price. George Delker Co. v. Hess Spring & Axle Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 647.

97. Where the purchaser refuses to accept the property and it is agreed that the vendor shall sell to other parties the measure of damages is the difference between the sum remaining due on the contract price and the sum realized on the sale pursuant to such agreement. James H. Rice Co. v. Penn Plate Glass Co., 117 Ill. App. 356. When property is wrongfully refused by a consignee and the shipper thereupon sells it to other parties, the shipper is not bound to sue the consignee for the entire purchase price. He may sue for the difference between the original selling price and the amount actually realized, deducting freight and charges. Moody v. McTaggart, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 465. Where buyer refused to perform his part and the goods were resold and judgment was rendered for the difference between the contract price and the market price as stated by the buyer, held the latter could not complain, the market price as so stated being higher than the resale price. McDonald Cotton Co. v. Mayo [Miss.] 38 So. 372. See ante, § 10 D, Resale.

98. When damages for breach of contract have been liquidated by resale, the right of action is to recover these damages and expenses incurred in effecting the liquidation. Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797. In an action for breach of a contract to purchase, plaintiff's measure of damages in case the property had not been resold in the manner prescribed by Civ. Code § 3049, was the excess if any of the amount due from the buyer under the contract over the value to the seller together with the excess, if any, of the expense properly incurred in carrying the property to market over those which would have been incurred prior thereto.[1] To recover the damages for breach of contract liquidated by resale, one must sue for them as such and not sue for general damages.[2] Interest will be allowed plaintiff as a part of his damages where an amount of the purchase price conceded to be due is unreasonably withheld by the defendant.[3] So far as he can reasonably do so it is the seller's duty to mitigate the damages,[4] but he is not obliged to change the character of his business in order to do so.[5] The amount of damages as estimated by the above rules is for the jury.[6] Of course, stipulations between the parties govern.[7]

(§ 12) D. Breach of warranty.[8]—The purpose of the law of damages for breach of warranties is to make full compensation to the aggrieved party for all losses thereby sustained.[9] On retention of the property the measure of damages is the difference between the actual value of the chattel and its value as warranted[10] at the time and place of delivery,[11] though its value as warranted exceeded the contract price,[12] but in case the vendee paid more for the article than its reasonable market value, his recovery is controlled by the purchase price rather than by the market value.[13] In some cases the buyer has been permitted to recover the cost of making the article comply with the requirements of the warranty.[14] for the carriage thereof if the buyer had accepted it. Willson v. Gregory [Cal. App.] 84 P. 356.

99. So held where resale was ineffectual owing to improper notice. Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797. See ante, § 10 D, Resale.

1. But where a bill for damages is filed before making resale, recovery must be on proof of evidence showing actual market value at time and place of delivery, which may or may not include the price received at the resale. Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797.

2. Hardwick v. American Can Co. [Tenn.] 88 S. W. 797.

3. So held where withheld for the mere purpose of forcing a settlement of the amount in dispute. Borden & Sellack Co. v. Fraser, 118 Ill. App. 655. A stockholder in a building and loan association who, on the maturity of his stock, sold it to the association according to agreement in the usual course of business of the association, was entitled on failure of the association to pay for the stock to recover the amount of his claim with interest from the time it was due. Rogers v. Ogden Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n [Utah] 83 P. 754.

4. Penn Plate Glass Co. v. James H. Rice Co., 216 Ill. 567, 75 N. E. 246, afg. 88 Ill. App. 407.

5. Where defendants broke a contract to purchase all of plaintiff's milk at wholesale for a specified price and time, plaintiff was not thereafter required to change the character of his business and sell his milk at retail in order to reduce his damages. Brazell v. Cohn, 32 Mont. 556, 81 P. 339.

6. Reasonableness of expense of packing furniture sold, held for the jury. Fox v. Woods, 96 N. Y. S. 117. On the breach of a contract to buy certain household furniture and lease, held error for the court to direct a verdict for plaintiff for expenses incurred in getting ready to remove unsold furniture and to withdraw from the jury the other items of damage. Id.

7. In an action for the price of cotton the loss in weight of the cotton should not be deducted in assessing the damages where the allowance of such a loss was agreed upon in the correspondence constituting the contract of sale. R. T. Wilson & Co. v. Levi Cotton Mills [N. C.] 52 S. E. 250.

8. See 4 C. L. 1362.

9. Shultis v. Rice, 114 Mo. App. 274, 89 S. W. 357. For breach of warranty of a bull the buyer could recover interest and for medical treatment and shipping. Young v. Van Natta, 113 Mo. App. 530, 88 S. W. 123.

10. Collins v. Tigner [Del.] 60 A. 978; The Nimrod, 141 F. 215; Birdsinger v. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 611, afg. 95 App. Div. 621, 88 N. Y. S. 1092; McCarthy v. Ellers, 94 N. Y. S. 1109; John E. Hall Commission Co. v. R. L. Crook & Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 20; Devine v. Ryan, 115 Ill. App. 498. Warranty as to character and quality of rooming house. Walsh v. Meyer [Wash.] 82 P. 938. Warranty as to quality or variety of seeds sold for planting is the difference between the value of the crop produced and the value of the crop that would have been produced had there been no breach of warranty. Moody v. Peirano [Cal. App.] 84 P. 783.

11. Houghton Implement Co. v. Doughty [N. D.] 104 N. W. 516.

12. Narr v. Norman, 113 Mo. App. 533, 88 S. W. 122. Instruction proper. Young v. Van Natta, 113 Mo. App. 550, 88 S. W. 123. In an action on a warranty of the quality, the measure of damages is not limited by the price paid, but is the difference between what the article was worth in its actual condition when delivered to buyer and what would have been its value if as warranted. Shultis v. Rice, 114 Mo. App. 274, 89 S. W. 357.

13. Narr v. Norman, 113 Mo. App. 533, 88 S. W. 122.

14. Boiler for tug. The Nimrod, 141 F. 215. The measure of damages for breach of a warranty that materials are first class is the actual proximate injury sustained, in-

SALES—Cont'd.

The buyer is also entitled to recover all special, proximate damages which were within the contemplation of the parties at the time the contract was made,[15] and which the buyer by the use of ordinary care could not have prevented,[16] and such damages may be recovered without being especially pleaded.[17] In an action for damages for breach of warranty as to the character and quality of a rooming house sold by defendant to plaintiff, damages for humiliation and mental agony resulting to plaintiff are not recoverable.[18] Breach being waived, consequential damages cannot be recovered.[19]

The authorities are in conflict as to the measure of damages in case of the breach of a warranty, express or implied, of title, one line holding the proper measure in such case to be the value of the property—according to some at the date of the sale, to others at the date of the vendor's dispossession—while another line holds the proper measure to be the purchase price with interest thereon,[20] and, whichever rule has been adopted, the courts have as a general rule extended it to both real and personal property.[21] It being the duty of a vendee of property to defend the title warranted by the vendor,[22] he is entitled to recover, as a part of his damages, the expense of counsel necessarily incurred in such defense.[23] Different courts look upon the purchase money sometimes as the minimum measure of damages to be received by the buyer, and sometimes as the maximum to be paid by the seller.[24] The words "value" and "price" are used indiscriminately in actions on warranty of title.[25] If several articles are sold and title to a part fails, recovery is proportionate.[26] cluding such expense as is reasonably necessary to repair the materials or put them in the condition they would have been in if there had been no defects. Florence Wagon Works v. Trinidad Asphalt Mfg. Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 49.

15. San Antonio Machine & Supply Co. v. Josey [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 598; Erie City Iron Works v. Tatum [Cal. App.] 82 P. 92. The right to recover consequential damages depends upon the terms of the warranty considered in connection with the character of the articles sold. Birdsinger v. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 611, afg. 95 App. Div. 621, 88 N. Y. S. 1092. Corn husker and shredder being warranted to do good work, to be well made, of good material, and to be durable, if used with proper care, held not to insure against injury to the buyer in consequence of the breaking down of the machine. Id. Sale of boiler for tug, loss of use of tug during time of repairs, allowed. The Nimrod, 141 F. 215. Where breach of warranty resulted in breaking of rope used for well drilling purposes, held cost of recovering tools dropped in well as a result of the breaking, rent of drilling outfit during loss of time and loss of plaintiff's time, not remote. San Antonio Machine & Supply Co. v. Josey [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 598. In an action for breach of warranty of soundness on the sale of cattle, an instruction that plaintiff was entitled to fair and reasonable compensation for loss sustained to his other cattle as the direct and natural consequence of the diseased condition of the cattle purchased from defendant, if such disease was communicated to plaintiff's other cattle, held correct. Mitchell v. Pinckney, 127 Iowa, 696, 104 N. W. 286. Where the property is returned and an action is brought for a false warranty, special damages such as feeding or care may be recovered if properly pleaded and proved. Wallace v. Tanner, 118 Ill. App. 639.

16. One cannot recover consequential damages to which his own negligence contributed. Razey v. J. B. Colt Co., 106 App. Div. 103, 94 N. Y. S. 59.

17. Shultis v. Rice, 114 Mo. App. 274, 89 S. W. 357.

18. Walsh v. Meyer [Wash.] 82 P. 938.

19. Shearer v. Gaar, Scott & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 684.

20. Morgan v. Hendrie Bros. [Colo.] 81 P. 700; Shultis v. Rice, 114 Mo. App. 274, 89 S. W. 357.

21. Morgan v. Hendrie Bros. [Colo.] 81 P. 700.

22. Houser's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 508.

23. Houser's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 508; Shultis v. Rice, 114 Mo. App. 274, 89 S. W. 357.

24. In an action on implied warranty of title. Shultis v. Rice, 114 Mo. App. 274, 89 S. W. 357. Where a purchaser was sued in conversion by the real owner of goods bought, he was entitled to recover from his vendor the value of the goods not to exceed the judgment rendered against him and in favor of the true owner. Id.

25, 26. Shultis v. Rice, 114 Mo. App. 274, 89 S. W. 357.

The buyer reselling a warranted article under the same warranty, and suit being brought against him by his vendee for breach thereof, he is not entitled to claim as damages from the original vendor the costs[27] and attorney's fees[28] incurred in such suit or interest on his claim against his vendee.[29] The seller removing the property cannot recover for parts which he is unable to remove without destruction of the buyer's property.[30]

The parties may by stipulation limit the amount of damages.[31] The right to damages may be waived by settlement between the parties.[32] Amount recoverable is a question for the jury.[33]

(§ 12) E. Evidence as to damages.[34]—Cases dealing with the sufficiency of the evidence are shown in the notes.[35] An offer by a buyer to show that by the breach he sustained damages under an "arrangement" that he had with a third party is insufficient.[36] General rules as to the competency and admissibility of evidence apply.[37]

§ 13. Rights of bona fide purchasers and other third persons.[38]—On a sale of property obtained through theft, the original owner may recover the same from any taker[39] without regard to his innocence or good faith,[40] and in the case of money it is not essential to trace the identical money into such third person's possession; it is sufficient to show that it went into his bank account.[41] In such a case a promise to repay the money to the rightful owner is implied and the latter may maintain an action for money had and received.[42] Such purchaser cannot tack the thief's possession to his own so as to bar recovery in replevin by the statute of limitations.[43] Ordinarily the purchaser of property must ascertain facts relating to its title or right or

27, 28, 29. Erie City Iron Works v. Tatum [Cal. App.] 82 P. 92.

30. Parts of furnace. Roesch v. Young, 111 Ill. App. 34.

31. Where a contract for the sale of breeding cattle provided that, if the animal proved barren, the purchase price, with legal interest from the date of the sale, would be refunded, the measure of damages in an action for the breach of such warranty was the purchase price and interest, independent of any depreciation in the value of the animal not being a breeder. White v. Miller [Iowa] 105 N. W. 993.

32. Where after discovering breach of warranty the buyer returned the chattel and received in exchange another of the full value of the consideration paid for the first chattel, he can recover only nominal damages. Smith v. Newberry [N. C.] 53 S. E. 234. Where after breach of warranty in engine was discovered the seller supplied a new governor and granted a credit in the belief that such governor would remedy all defects, but it failed to so do, held the granting of such credit did not relieve the seller from liability for future damages resulting from an effort to use the engine. Erie City Iron Works v. Tatum [Cal. App.] 82 P. 92.

33. John E. Hall Commission Co. v. R. L. Crook & Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 20. Where a stallion is sold with a warranty of being serviceably sound, and after the purchaser has had him for a year he dies of a disease, constituting a breach of warranty, the purchaser cannot be said to have received no consideration and the amount of his damages is for the jury. Otto v. Braman [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 699, 105 N. W. 601.

34. See 4 C. L. 1363.

35. In an action by the seller of coal against the purchaser, who had refused to accept a shipment, a telegram from the seller to his agent authorizing a resale at a certain price held not evidence that the coal was of an inferior quality. Ginn v. W. C. Clark Coal Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1012, 106 N. W. 867. In an action for damages for breach of a contract to buy all of the milk defendant's dairy would produce during a certain period, evidence of the number of cows defendant could maintain on his ranch held competent. Brazell v. Cohn, 32 Mont. 556, 81 P. 339.

36. The "arrangement" if legal must have been embodied in a contract which should have been offered. American Theater Co. v. Siegel, Cooper & Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 588.

37. Where buyer refused to accept, evidence held sufficient to show market value. Kiley v. Lee Canning Co., 105 App. Div. 633, 93 N. Y. S. 986. In an action for damages for failure to deliver an ice machine, evidence that the buyer, to the seller's knowledge, had contracts to sell a certain quantity of ice, that delivery of the machine was called for on a certain date, but failing to show how long it would be before the machine could have been installed, held insufficient to support an award of damages for loss of sales. Fred W. Wolf Co. v. Galbraith [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 390.

38. See 4 C. L. 1363.

39. Where employe misappropriated his employer's money and used it to pay a note. Porter v. Roseman [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1105.

40, 41, 42. Porter v. Roseman [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1105.

43. Gatlin v. Vaut [Ind. T.] 91 S. W. 38.

he buys at his peril,[44] but the owner permitting another to display the ordinary indicia of ownership, he will be estopped from denying title in an innocent third person who, for value, acquires possession on the faith of the apparent ownership.[45] An estoppel may arise by statements that one has no title or interest in the property.[46] In such case the seller's intent is immaterial.[47] One taking a bill of sale as a sham acquires no title as against a subsequent purchaser.[48] A bona fide purchaser takes free from liens of which he had no notice,[49] also he takes free from certain statutory "vendor's liens," even though he has notice that the purchase price has not been paid.[50] To become a bona fide purchaser one must have parted with value[51] or become irrevocably bound to pay the purchase price[52] before obtaining knowledge of the fraud or facts sufficient to put him on inquiry.[53] One buying from one having the absolute title to the property by purchase takes, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, free from any restrictions placed upon the sale of the article by the original vendor.[54] In some states it is a crime to fraudulently dispose of goods bought on credit,[55] in others a sale in bulk is deemed fraudulent unless attended with certain formalities.[56] One who sells an article, knowing it to be dangerous by reason of concealed defects, is guilty of a wrong, without regard to the contract, and is liable in damages to any person, including one not in privity of contract with him, who suffers an injury by reason of his willful and fraudulent deceit and concealment.[57]

44. One purchasing from the assignee for the benefit of creditors of a saloonkeeper, held not to take title to the beer kegs, the saloonkeeper having only a right to use the same. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. v. Grimmon [Nev.] 81 P. 43.

45. Seller allowing buyer to retain possession after rescission of sale, held he could not assert ownership against innocent purchasers of such buyer. Gardiner v. McDonogh, 147 Cal. 313, 81 P. 964. Where a sale of cattle was not accompanied by such a change of possession as to give third persons notice of the buyer's claim to the cattle, a mortgage on the cattle given by the buyer to plaintiff was not, even though recorded, constructive notice to purchasers or subsequent incumbrancers of the cattle covered thereby. Martin Bros. & Co. v. Lesan [Iowa] 105 N. W. 996.

Note: In support of the text see McNeil v. National Bank, 46 N. Y. 325, 7 Am. Rep. 341; Commercial Bank v. Armsby, 120 Ga. 74, 65 L. R. A. 443; Third Nat. Bank v. Smith, 107 Mo. App. 178, 81 S. W. 215.—4 Mich. L. R. 81.

46. Statement by one holding a bill of sale that it was a sham, that there was no sale, being relied on by a subsequent purchaser, will bar the one making such statement from claiming title as against such purchaser. Chandler Bros. v. Higgins [Ala.] 39 So. 576. Exclusion of evidence of such statement held reversible error. Id. Where either the seller under a conditional sale, or a seller having a lien or interest on the goods for his unpaid purchase price, makes a statement and thereby induces another acting as a reasonably prudent man to rely thereon and advance money to the buyer, his right is superior to that of the seller. C. E. Slayton & Co. v. Horsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 799.

47. C. E. Slayton & Co. v. Horsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 799.

48. Chandler Bros. v. Higgins [Ala.] 39 So. 576.

49. Laborer's lien. Cotton. Sheeks-Stephens Store Co. v. Richardson [Ark.] 88 S. W. 983.

50. Kirby's Dig. §§ 4966, 4967, gives the vendor the right to seize property only while in the hands of the vendee, and not after it has passed into the hands of third persons purchasing for value, even though with notice that purchase price is not paid. Neal v. Cone [Ark.] 88 S. W. 952.

51. Nebraska Moline Plow Co. v. Blackburn [Neb.] 104 N. W. 178. Where certain goods are given in payment of past due obligations, the buyer is not a bona fide purchaser. 2 loads of cotton. Sheeks-Stephens Store Co. v. Richardson [Ark.] 88 S. W. 983.

52. Nebraska Moline Plow Co. v. Blackburn [Neb.] 104 N. W. 178.

53. Where defendant had been in complainant's employment long enough to know that the necessities of complainant's business in selling and redeeming trading stamps required that such stamps should not be dealt in by the public generally, he was not an innocent purchaser without notice in purchasing issued stamps for resale. Sperry & Hutchinson Co. v. Temple, 137 F. 992.

54. Restriction as to price at which books could be sold. Scribner v. Straus, 139 F. 193.

55. See False Pretenses and Cheats, 5 C. L. 1416.

56. See Fraudulent Conveyances, 5 C. L. 1556.

57. Kuelling v. Roderick Lean Mfg. Co. [N. Y.] 75 N. E. 1098, rvg. 94 App. Div. 613, 88 N. Y. S. 1105. A manufacturer of a land roller who constructed the tongue of cross-grained wood with a knot in it and a knot-hole and plugged up the hole, and by means of paint and putty concealed the defects, held

An assignee of the contract of sale takes the rights of his assignor.[58]

§ 14. Conditional sales. Definition, validity, and formation.[59]—In a conditional sale the transfer of title to the purchaser or the retention of it by him depends upon the performance of some condition.[60] While technically distinct from chattel mortgages,[61] loans,[62] agreements to sell,[63] and contracts of agency,[64] the liable for damages for injuries sustained by reason of the defects by one purchasing from the manufacturer's vendee. Id.

NOTE. Concealed defects in manufactured article: Where the manufacturer has been simply negligent, not being shown to have had actual knowledge of the defect, his liability has not in general been extended to third persons on the ground that such a rule would unduly burden the business of manufacturing. Losee v. Clute, 51 N. Y. 494, 10 Am. Rep. 638; Curtin v. Somerset, 140 Pa. 70, 23 Am. St. Rep. 220, 12 L. R. A. 322; Heizer v. K. & D. Mfg. Co., 110 Mo. 605, 15 L. R. A. 821; see, also, Necker v. Harvey, 49 Mich. 517. An exception is made, however, where the article manufactured or sold is inherently dangerous. Thomas v. Winchester, 6 N. Y. 397, 57 Am. Dec. 455; Norton v. Sewall, 106 Mass. 143, 8 Am. Rep. 298; and see Devlin v. Smith, 89 N. Y. 470, 42 Am. Rep. 311. But where the manufacturer has knowledge of the defect, as in the principal case, he is liable for injury to a third person on the ground of fraud. Woodward v. Miller, 119 Ga. 618, 100 Am. St. Rep. 188, 64 L. R. A. 932; Schubert v. J. R. Clark Co., 49 Minn. 331, 51 N. W. 1103, 32 Am. St. Rep. 559, 15 L. R. A. 818. Where one knowingly sells a defective article, not inherently dangerous, as sound, liability should be enhanced instead of diminished. Lewis v. Terry, 111 Cal. 39, 43 P. 398, 52 Am. St. Rep. 146, 31 L. R. A. 220. It only remains for the courts to extend the manufacturer's liability to cases of negligence in the manufacture and sale of articles not inherently dangerous in order to afford all innocent third persons a complete remedy. This, it would seem, might be done on the ground of constructive fraud, or better, of the duty of every manufacturer to use reasonable care in guarding against defects. Such a duty with respect to third persons has been held to exist in the case of a shipowner by whose negligence a stevedore, working for a contractor, was injured (Coughlin v. The Pheola, 19 F. 926), and where defective staging, erected by defendant company, resulted in the death of an employee of another company (Bright v. Barnett & Record Co., 88 Wis. 299, 60 N. W. 418, 26 L. R. A. 524; Coughtry v. Globe Woolen Co., 56 N. Y. 124). —4 Mich. L. R. 400.

58. St. Regis Paper Co. v. Watson Page Lumber Co., 97 N. Y. S. 636. See Assignments, 5 C. L. 279.

59. See 4 C. L. 1364.

60. Pringle v. Canfield [S. D.] 104 N. W. 223; O'Neil v. Rogers, 110 Ill. App. 622. Until performance of conditions precedent, risk of loss generally remains in the seller. American Soda Fountain Co. v. Blue [Ala.] 40 So. 218. Where title was reserved, held contract was one of conditional sale. Barton v. Groseclose [Idaho] 81 P. 623.

ILLUSTRATIONS. Contracts held conditional sales: "Rent" of a safe, title to pass upon payment of a certain sum. In re Poore, 139 F. 862. A written instrument denominated a "lease" acknowledging the receipt of $50 and providing for further payments of $10 per month with interest until a certain sum was paid, after which the leased personalty was to become the property of the lessee. Pringle v. Canfield [S. D.] 104 N. W. 223. Where a supplemental agreement attached to a note, given for the price of certain live stock, recited that the stock was to be the property of the seller until the note was paid. Townsend v. Melvin [Del.] 63 A. 330. Where one "sells" another property on the condition that the buyer pays him a certain sum and the buyer agrees to buy such property and pay such sum upon the happening of certain conditions, the buyer to have possession of the property. Kennedy v. Lee, 147 Cal. 596, 82 P. 257. A contract leasing a machine for a term of three years, designated sums to be paid as "rent" and the lessee to have the option to purchase at any time within three years for a designated sum less the rentals paid, held a conditional sale within Bates' Ann. St. Ohio, p. 2306, § 1, and not a lease. In re Sheets Printing & Mfg. Co., 136 F. 989. Machinery was delivered to one under a contract requiring him to pay certain various sums at irregular intervals as rent for the same, and that on a final small payment he should be entitled to a bill of sale. There was no provision for the return of the machinery aside from one giving the privilege of retaking on default of making any of the payments. In re Tice, 139 F. 52. Where buyer contracted absolutely to pay for article and gave notes for the unpaid purchase price, and the contract expressly provided that title should remain in the vendor until the chattel was fully paid for, and that it might be taken upon legal process on a default in any payment. National Cash Register Co. v. Zangs, 127 Iowa, 710, 104 N. W. 360.

Contracts held not conditional sales: A contract of sale which stipulates that the chattels shall be held in trust by the buyer as security for the price is not a conditional sale but a mere personal agreement of the buyer. Webber v. Conklin [S. D.] 104 N. W. 675. Where property was delivered to a contractor to put in premises of a third person, and the seller wrote the third person requesting him to pay the contractor direct, held to waive any ownership or lien the seller had in or on the chattels. Milicie v. Pearson, 110 App. Div. 770, 97 N. Y. S. 431. A contract by the United States with a shipbuilding company, whereby all parts of machinery paid for by the United States under a specified system of partial payments become thereby the sole property of the United States, is not a contract of conditional sale. William R. Trigg Co. v. Bucyrus Co. [Va.] 51 S. E. 174.

61. In some states all conditional sales classification of a given transaction is often difficult, there being a conflict as to whether the question is one of law[65] or of fact.[66] The court must look at the entire transaction and ascertain what was the true intent of the parties.[67] As to whether the contract is a conditional sale the Federal courts will follow the state law.[68] An agreement that a buyer was not to sell goods until paid for is not tantamount to a retention of title in the seller.[69] The buyer by giving a purchase-money mortgage on the property to the seller estops himself from subsequently claiming that the sale was a conditional one.[70] A contract of conditional sale, giving the possession and use of the goods to the buyer while title remains in the seller until full payment, affords a sufficient consideration for the buyer's absolute promise to pay the agreed price.[71] A conditional contract of sale may be merged into an actual sale by the taking of notes secured by a mortgage on the property.[72]

Rights of parties to the contract.[73]—The security retained by the seller in a conditional sale is not a vendor's lien but is a reservation of title and right to pursue the property in specie[74] after default.[75] Upon default the seller has the option to demand a return of the goods[76] or sue for the unpaid purchase price,[77] are by statute deemed chattel mortgages. See Chattel Mortgages, 5 C. L. 574. Where contract of sale provided that title should remain in the seller, and upon failure to execute the notes or make the payments specified the seller could take possession and, after 30 days' advertisement, sell the property, paying the buyer any surplus and collecting from him any deficiency, held an equitable mortgage and not a conditional sale. D. A. Tompkins Co. v. Monticello Cotton Oil Co., 137 F. 625.

62. The fact that in a loan there were provisions for a future sale did not constitute a conditional sale in praesenti. Gilbert Book Co. v. Sheridan, 114 Mo. App. 332, 89 S. W. 555. Where books were loaned to a person to be used in editing a book, title not to pass until the proposed book was written and published, when the books loaned were to be paid for out of royalties of the proposed work, no conditional sale within § 3412, Rev. St. 1899, was made. Id.

63. Where title to machine was not to pass until full settlement, and machine was warranted, held not to constitute an immediate sale but only an agreement for sale with a warranty and right of inspection and rescission for a breach of contract. Rev. Civ. Code §§ 1299, 1301, considered. Baskerville v. Johnson [S. D.] 104 N. W. 913.

64. Where goods were shipped to be sold on commission for not less than certain specified prices, the consignee to insure the goods and be liable for damage thereto, and the contract expressly provided as to what warranties should be given and entitled claimant to require the goods to be returned, title was to remain in consignor, held contract was one of agency and not a conditional sale. John Deere Plow Co. v. McDavid [C. C. A.] 137 F. 802.

65. The question whether a particular instrument shows a conditional sale or not is one of law to be decided by the court. Instrument held conditional sale under guise of a lease. Rosenbaum v. King, 114 Ill. App. 648.

66. As to whether parties intended sale to be conditional held for the jury. Ward Land & Stock Co. v. Mapes, 147 Cal. 747, 82 P. 426. So held where evidence showed that the buyer should pay a sum in cash and execute his note for the balance but this was never done and the buyer remained in possession for two years and had performed work in value to liquidate the purchase price. C. E. Slayton & Co. v. Horsey [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 799.

Note: This last case would seem to have overlooked the fact that in Texas all "conditional sales" are chattel mortgages.

67. D. A. Tompkins Co. v. Monticello Cotton Oil Co., 137 F. 625.

68. Bankruptcy court. In re Sheets Printing & Mfg. Co., 136 F. 989.

69. Agreed that timber made into staves not to be sold until timber was paid for. Neal v. Cone [Ark.] 88 S. W. 952.

70. American Soda Fountain Co. v. Blue [Ala.] 40 So. 218.

71. Kilmer v. Moneyweight Scale Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 271.

72. Where this was done, held seller could not assert title as against labor claimants of buyer. Anundsen v. Standard Printing Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 424.

73. See 4 C. L. 1365.

74. Barton v. Groseclose [Idaho] 81 P. 623.

75. Seller cannot maintain detinue until default. Mere fact that note given for the purchase price failed to contain a provision for interest is not ground for action. Weilden v. Witt [Ala.] 40 So. 126.

76. Kilmer v. Moneyweight Scale Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 271; O'Neil v. Rogers, 110 Ill. App. 622. Upon default in payment on a conditional sale contract, the vendor may retake and sell the property and devote the proceeds to the payment of his debt. Little Rock Vehicle & Implement Co. v. Robinson [Ark.] 87 S. W. 1029. In an action by the vendee against the vendor for reselling the property, it was error to refuse to instruct the jury that if plaintiff had agreed to pay the price within a certain time and failed defendant could sell. Id.

77. Kilmer v. Moneyweight Scale Co. [Ind.

the rights of third parties not having intervened.[78] Neither the seller nor his assignee can, upon failure of the purchaser to make payments, have an attachment against the property of the purchaser to secure the payment of the purchase price until the property sold has become exhausted.[79] A seller under a conditional sale having received the purchase price cannot accept a rescission of the sale and a redelivery of the goods without repaying such price.[80] Where the purchaser in a conditional sale makes default, the seller must pursue his remedy within a reasonable time.[81] A removal of the property from the state where sold does not constitute a breach of a provision in the contract prohibiting the buyer from selling or disposing of the property,[82] but a sale of the property, in the state to which it is removed, without the vendor's consent is wrongful[83] and conveys to the purchaser no title other than that owned by his vendor.[84] There is a conflict as to whether there can be a recovery for property sold and delivered on condition that the title shall not pass until full payment therefor has been made when, without the fault of the purchaser, the property is destroyed before the price falls due.[85] The property being destroyed in transit and the parties agreeing that the buyer shall sue for its value, a judgment recovered by the buyer stands in the place of the property.[86] Suit by the seller to recover the purchase price does not divest his title, the judgment recovered therein not being paid.[87] The seller may waive his rights.[88]

The purchaser has a mortgageable interest in the property.[89] Where a mortgage covers after-acquired property, such property acquired under a conditional sale comes under the mortgage subject to the terms of the sale,[90] and if the mortgage is foreclosed the seller is entitled to receive from the proceeds of the foreclosure sale

App.] 76 N. E. 271; Cambridge Soc. v. Elliot, 98 N. Y. S. 232.

78. See post next subdivision.

79. Barton v. Groseclose [Idaho] 81 P. 623.

80. Dougherty v. Neville, 108 App. Div. 89, 95 N. Y. S. 806.

81. Must proceed at least by the second term of court after the default, and where he neglects to claim the goods for four years after default he is estopped from recovering them as against an execution creditor of the buyer or a bona fide purchaser. Townsend v. Melvin [Del.] 63 A. 330.

82, 83, 84. Studebaker Bros. Co. v. Mau [Wyo.] 82 P. 2, denying petition for rehearing. Former opinion, 13 Wyo. 358, 80 P. 151.

85. That he can. Lavalley v. Ravenna [Vt.] 62 A. 47.

NOTE. Conditional sale; destruction of property: The question whether the vendee, in a conditional contract for the sale of personalty, who has possession but does not hold the legal title, must bear the loss in case of the accidental destruction of the property has been diversely decided. One line of cases holds strictly to what would seem the logical doctrine (1 Mechem Sales, § 634), that "the loss follows the title," or relieves the vendee from further liability on the ground that the consideration for his promise has failed, or that he is a bailee (Bishop v. Minderhout, 128 Ala. 162, 29 So. 11, 86 Am. St. Rep. 134, 52 L. R. A. 395; Swallow v. Emery, 111 Mass. 355; Randle v. Stone, 77 Ga. 501). See, also, Arthur v. Blackman, 63 F. 536. The other view makes the vendee liable upon his absolute promise, considering that possession and use of the chattel is sufficient consideration to support such promise, or, looking at the situation from the standpoint of equity, regards the vendee as holding the actual title and as standing in the relation of mortgagor to the seller. Burnley v. Tufts, 66 Miss. 48, 5 So. 627; Tufts v. Griffin, 107 N. C. 47, 12 S. E. 68, 22 Am. St. Rep. 863, 10 L. R. A. 526; Tufts v. Wynne, 45 Mo. App. 42; Osborn v. South Shore Lumber Co., 91 Wis. 526, 65 N. W. 184. —4 Mich. L. R. 317.

86. Seller has superior right over assignee of buyer. T. L. Murphy & Co. v. American Soda Fountain Co. [Miss.] 39 So. 100.

87. E. E. Forbes Piano Co. v. Wilson [Ala.] 39 So. 645. Overruling dictum in Davis v. Millings, 141 Ala. 378, 37 So. 737.

88. Where wife purchased property and was in default in making payments, and her husband, as her agent, made a substitute agreement providing for the payment of the unpaid purchase price, held seller did not waive right to property. Lane v. Dreger [Minn.] 103 N. W. 710. Suit to recover unpaid instalments of the purchase price before the last instalment matures, the buyer's property being attached and judgment being taken by default, held an election to treat the buyer as the absolute owner of the property. Whitney v. Abbott [Mass.] 77 N. E. 524.

the amount still due on the price.[91] In some states one buying property upon the instalment plan may upon default recover back payments made; such an action is one for money had and received.[92] This right may be waived by provisions in the contract of sale.[93] The buyer's remedy for breach of contract is an action for damages.[94]

Rights of third persons. Notice, record, and filing.[95]—Except in those states where recordation is required,[96] the original seller may recover the property even from a bona fide purchaser,[97] and the contract providing for the retaking of possession on default, no demand is necessary to entitle the seller to recover the property from a subsequent vendee.[98] In Illinois a purchaser without notice from a vendee who has not complied with the terms of a conditional sale is entitled to possession of the property as against such vendee and may enforce his right provided he does so before the rights of innocent third parties intervene,[99] but so long as the property remains in the possession of the original vendee, the title of the purchaser is liable to be defeated by another purchaser without notice or by a creditor who may obtain a lien or levy upon the property as belonging to the party in possession,[1] and in such case the original vendor and the purchaser without notice from his vendee have equal rights in the property still remaining in the possession of the vendee,[2] and the party who first reduces such property to actual possession has the better right.[3] It follows that a vendor in a conditional sale cannot recover possession of the property from an innocent third person who purchased without notice of the vendor's lien.[4] In Pennsylvania a conditional sale is void as against the creditors of the buyer if he be in possession.[5] The fact that a conditional sale contract is not recorded does not render it void as against an assignee in bankruptcy.[6] Under the statutes of some states conditional sales of household goods or furniture need not be record-

89, 90, 91. Washington Trust Co. v. Morse Iron Works & Dry Dock Co., 106 App. Div. 195, 94 N. Y. S. 495.

92. Laws 1897, p. 541, c. 418, § 116, as amended by Laws 1900, p. 1624, c. 762, so construed, and action held not within jurisdiction of municipal court as provided by Municipal Court Act § 139 (Laws 1902, p. 1533, c. 580). Woodman v. Needham Piano & Organ Co., 94 N. Y. S. 371.

93. Right held waived where contract provided that in case of default all payments made should be in full for the use of the article. Woodman v. Needham Piano & Organ Co., 94 N. Y. S. 371.

94. Gibson v. Ray [Ky.] 89 S. W. 474.

95. See 4 C. L. 1367.

96. Alabama: Code 1896, § 1017, as amended by Acts 1898-99, p. 1120, relating to the recordation of conditional sales, does not apply to Montgomery and Jefferson counties. Worthington v. A. G. Rhodes & Son Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 614.

Georgia: Under Code Ga. 1895, §§ 2776, 2777, a conditional sale cannot be recorded unless executed and attested in the same manner as chattel mortgages, and if recorded do not operate as constructive notice. General Fire Extinguisher Co. v. Lanar [C. C. A.] 141 F. 353.

Missouri: Conditional sales are void as to subsequent purchasers in good faith and as to all subsequent creditors unless recorded as provided; hence notice of a conditional sale of books would not preclude the lien of a subsequent mortgagee. Gilbert Book Co. v. Sheridan, 114 Mo. App. 332, 89 S. W. 555.

Oklahoma: A promissory note or instrument in writing evidencing the conditional sale of personal property, when executed in the manner in which such instruments are authorized to be executed, is entitled to be deposited and filed with the register of deeds and need not be witnessed or acknowledged to entitle it to registration and to make it constructive notice when so filed. Shafer v. National Cash Register Co. [Okl.] 82 P. 646.

South Dakota: Laws 1893, p. 56, c. 36, § 1, as re-enacted as § 1315 of the Revised Civil Code of 1893, held not affected by the repealing act of Feb. 25, 1903. Pringle v. Canfield [S. D.] 104 N. W. 223.

97. See 4 C. L. 1367, n. 64.

98. Worthington v. A. G. Rhodes & Son Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 614.

99, 1. O'Neil v. Rogers, 110 Ill. App. 622.

2. A vendor in a conditional sale may repossess himself of the property sold after he has notice that his vendee has sold it to an innocent third party. O'Neil v. Rogers, 110 Ill. App. 622.

3. Plaintiff purchased from vendee in conditional sale after condition broken. Held he could not recover the property from defendant, the original vendor, who had repossessed himself while vendee still had possession. O'Neil v. Rogers, 110 Ill. App. 622.

4. Rosenbaum v. King, 114 Ill. App. 648.

5. In re Tice, 139 F. 52; In re Poore, 139 F. 862. Conditional sale held not convertible into a bailment so as to defeat the rights of creditors. Pennsylvania law considered. Id.

6. Vendor could retake. York Mfg. Co. v. Cassell, 26 S. Ct. 481.

ed,[7] and in determining the character of the article sold as household goods or furniture there is a conflict, arising partly from the wording of the different statutes, as to whether or not the use to which the article is put is material.[8] Statutes providing that unless a conditional sale be in writing and recorded title shall vest in the buyer as to third persons are not unconstitutional as depriving one of property without due process of law.[9] A state legislature has power to enact a law requiring instruments of conditional sale affecting property brought into the state from a foreign jurisdiction to be recorded within a reasonable time,[10] but such power has not been generally exercised.[11] The requirement of registration and the manner of making and solemnizing a contract in another state or country, relative to personal property located in that state or country at the time of the making of the contract, cannot be inquired into in construing the contract further than to determine whether or not the contract is valid under the laws of such other state or country.[12] The conditional sale being made in the state where the parties reside and where the property is situated and delivered, and without any agreement or intention that the property is to be removed to another state, upon such removal the lex loci contractus still governs the rights of the buyer,[13] and the seller or his legal representatives may follow the property into the jurisdiction where removed, and, in the absence of statutes to the contrary, may, without complying with the registration laws of such jurisdiction, enforce his lien against subsequent bona fide purchasers or incumbrancers from the buyer,[14] but this rule does not apply where the seller consents to the removal and the conditional sale notes are so changed as to make them obligations of the state to which the property is removed, and payable in such state.[15]

An assignment of the contract by the seller carries with it the legal title to the property[16] and gives to the assignee all the rights and remedies enjoyed by his assignor.[17]

SALVAGE; SATISFACTION AND DISCHARGE, see latest topical index.

7. Linoleum, which is an article customarily used as a floor covering in dwellings, is, though it is knowingly sold to cover the floor of a store, household furniture within the meaning of Gen. St. 1902, § 4864. Boston Furniture Co. v. Thoms [Conn.] 61 A. 949. Piano, kept for use in the buyer's family, is an article of "household goods" within the meaning of Pub. St. 1901, p. 448, c. 140, § 23. Lamb v. King [N. H.] 62 A. 493.

8. Linoleum, though knowingly sold to cover the floor of a store, is "household furniture" within the meaning of Gen. St. 1902, § 4864. Boston Furniture Co. v. Thoms [Conn.] 61 A. 949. Piano, so long as kept for use in the buyer's family, is an article of "household goods" within the meaning of Pub. St. 1901, p. 448, c. 140, § 23. Lamb v. King [N. H.] 62 A. 493.

9. Pringle v. Canfield [S. D.] 104 N. W. 223.

10. Studebaker Bros. Co. v. Mau [Wyo.] 82 P. 2, denying petition for rehearing. Former opinion 13 Wyo. 358, 80 P. 151.

11. Rev. St. 1899, § 2837, does not apply to a conditional sale, made in another state, of property located in that state and not intended to be removed therefrom. Studebaker Bros. Co. v. Mau [Wyo.] 82 P. 2, denying petition for rehearing. Former opinion, 13 Wyo. 358, 80 P. 151. One purchasing from the buyer under a conditional sale prohibiting a resale held only to take the title of his vendor, though property had been removed from state where originally sold and contract was not recorded in state to which the property was removed. Id.

12, 13. Studebaker Bros. Co. v. Mau [Wyo.] 82 P. 2, denying petition for rehearing. Former opinion, 13 Wyo. 358, 80 P. 151.

14. Studebaker Bros. Co. v. Mau [Wyo.] 82 P. 2, denying petition for rehearing. Former opinion, 13 Wyo. 358, 80 P. 151.

Note: There appears to be but one case contra to the doctrine stated in the text, that is the case of Sanger v. Piano Co., 21 Tex. Civ. App. 523, 52 S. W. 621. The rule stated in the text does not apply where it was contemplated at the time of the sale that the property should be removed to the state of the forum. See Wharton, in his latest edition on the Conflict of Law (§ 355b). —From Studebaker Bros. Co. v. Mau [Wyo.] 82 P. 2.

15. National Cash Register Co. v. Paulson [Okl.] 83 P. 793.

16, 17. Barton v. Groseclose [Idaho] 81 P. 623.

SAVING QUESTIONS FOR REVIEW.

Scope of title.—This title covers the things that must be done in the lower or trial court in order to save matters complained of for review. It does not, however, cover bills of exceptions, statements of case, or any of the formal steps incidental to the transmission of the case to the appellate court,[1] nor does it cover the manner of objecting to pleadings.[2] Objections to jurisdiction and waiver thereof are more fully treated elsewhere.[3]

§ 1. Inviting error.[4]—A party cannot complain of error which he invites or in which he participates.[5] Thus, a party cannot object to an instruction given at his own request,[6] or which is in effect the same as one which he himself has requested,[7] or which is in conformity with his own theory of the case as advanced by him,[8] or which is too long, the greater part having been given at his own request,[9] or

1. See Appeal and Review, 5 C. L. 121.
2. See Pleading, 6 C. L. 1008.
3. See Jurisdiction, 6 C. L. 267.
4. See 4 C. L. 1368.
5. Bailey v. Kansas City, 189 Mo. 503, 87 S. W. 1182; Simons v. Wittmann, 113 Mo. App. 357, 88 S. W. 791; City of North Yakima v. Scudder [Wash.] 82 P. 1022. But the reason of this rule does not apply to the case where the losing party does not invite the error, but yields, under protest to the theory of the trial court, and thereafter tries as best he may to save himself from injury by reason of the adverse ruling of the court. Bailey v. Kansas City, 189 Mo. 503, 87 S. W. 1182. But see post, § 10, Waiver of objections and exceptions taken. Ruling predicated on statement of appellant's counsel cannot be complained of. Hayward v. Scott, 11 Ill. App. 531. An error induced by appellant's objection cannot be complained of. American Ins. Co. v. Meyers, 118 Ill. App. 484. Overruling of motion at request of movant not available. Brecher v. Chicago Junction R. Co., 119 Ill. App. 554.
6. Haxton v. Kansas City, 190 Mo. 53, 88 S. W. 714; Nordquist v. Hall [Kan.] 80 P. 952; Hale's Adm'rs v. Gilbert [Ky.] 91 S. W. 721; Muren Coal & Ice Co. v. Howell, 119 Ill. App. 209; Werckmann v. Taylor, 112 Mo. App. 365, 87 S. W. 44. Although it embodies an erroneous theory or contains bad law. Davis v. Johnson [Minn.] 104 N. W. 766.
7. Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Ct. 503, 88 S. W. 290; W. W. Kimball Co. v. Piper, 111 Ill. App. 82; City of Pana v. Broadman, 117 Ill. App. 139; West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Vale, 117 Ill. App. 155; Cleveland, etc., Ry. Co. v. Ricker, 116 Ill. App. 428; Seibert Bros. & Co. v. Germania Fire Ins. Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 507; City of Rock Island v. Gingles, 118 Ill. App. 410; Louisville Water Co. v. Phillip's Adm'r [Ky.] 89 S. W. 700; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Troyer [Neb.] 103 N. W. 680; Lyons v. Slaughter [Tex. Civ. App., 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1, 87 S. W. 182; American Bonding Co. v. Regents of University of Idaho [Idaho], 81 P. 604; Galveston, etc., Ry. Co. v. Vollrath [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 777, 89 S. W. 279; Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 89 S. W. 29. Where a charge given at the plaintiff's request is in substance a modification of the charge as already given, the plaintiff will be bound by the whole charge. Viemeister v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 182 N. Y. 307, 74 N. E. 831. A party cannot complain that an instruction is inaccurately drawn and that the words employed are inaptly chosen, where a similar instruction has been given at his own request. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Williams [Miss.] 39 So. 489; Bryce v. Burlington, etc., R. Co. [Iowa[104 N. W. 483.
8. Defendant held estopped to claim that the court should not have charged that a certain contract showed upon its face that it applied to services rendered prior to its date. Levin v. New Britain Knitting Co. [Conn.] 61 A. 1073; Tyng v. Corporation Trust Co., 104 App. Div. 486, 93 N. Y. S. 928. One offering instructions based on certain theory cannot claim it was not in the case. Chicago City R. Co. v. Fetzer, 113 Ill. App. 280; Smith v. Forrester-Nace Co. [Mo.] 92 S. W. 394. Refusal to charge on a theory not made by pleadings and disavowed in argument. Fogarty v. Rutland St. R. Co., 77 Vt. 438, 60 A. 801; Scott v. Scott, 111 Ill. App. 220. Where, in an action of trover, the plaintiff put a certain sale in evidence on cross-examination and the court inwhich would have been corrected but for his objection,[10] or which merely limits the effect of evidence improperly introduced by him;[11] and the appellate court will be disposed to overlook trivial errors in instructions where counsel complaining thereof presented a great number of requests.[12] Nor can a party complain of the effect of evidence which he himself introduces,[13] or which is admitted upon his own suggestion,[14] or for which he opens the way,[15] or which is admitted by his agreement,[16] or which he himself brings out,[17] nor of the absence of evidence excluded on his objection;[18] and where a party objects to the admission of evidence which would cure an error in the admission of other evidence, he cannot complain of such error on appeal[19] nor can he take advantage of defects in the pleadings for which he is responsible.[20] A party cannot challenge a jurisdiction which he himself has invoked,[21] nor complain of the joinder of a party whom he recognized as properly joined,[22] or structed the jury as to the effect of such sale, although the defendant did not make any claim based thereon. Parke v. Nixon [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 413, 104 N. W. 597.

9. Heman v. Hartman, 189 Mo. 20, 87 S. W. 947.

10. Where a party offers an instruction which corrects an error in another instruction already given at his request, and such instruction is refused upon the objection of the other party. Barnes v. F. Weikel Chair Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 222.

11. Where a record offered by the defendant is admitted over the plaintiff's objection without proper authentication, and without limitation as to its relevancy, the defendant cannot complain of a subsequent instruction limiting the relevancy. Feeney v. York Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 733.

12. Chicago City R. Co. v. Enroth, 113 Ill. App. 285.

13. Plaintiff objected that the defendant was allowed to prove matter in the nature of res judicata under a plea of payment, but all the evidence in this respect was introduced by plaintiff. Calhoun v. Texas Quarry & Mfg. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 671. Incompetent evidence elicited by objector. City of Philadelphia v. Neill, 211 Pa. 353, 60 A. 1033.

14. Stipulation as to the testimony given in another suit. Interurban Const. Co. v. Hayes, 191 Mo. 248, 89 S. W. 927.

15. In action by employment agency for libel, publication subsequent to the one complained of and in regard to other agencies erroneously admitted first for plaintiff and then for the defendant. Ott v. Press Pub. Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 403. A party cannot object to the admission of immaterial testimony which is introduced in rebuttal of testimony which he himself has introduced. Oneal v. Welsman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Quinn [Ala.] 39 So. 616; Warren Live Stock Co. v. Farr [C. C. A.] 142 F. 116; Cincinnati, L. & A. Elec. St. R. Co. v. Stahle [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 363. Testimony on behalf of the plaintiff in action for personal injuries as to plaintiffs having consulted a physician and of statements made by plaintiff to the physician is not a waiver of the right to object to the competency of the physician as professional witness for the defendant. Indianapolis & M. Rapid Transit Co. v. Hall [Ind.] 76 N. E. 242. An objection to testimony in rebuttal will not be considered where practically the same testimony was given by a witness for the other party on cross-examination. Dryden v. Barnes [Md.] 61 A. 342. A party who merely brings a book of entries into court and submits to cross-examination thereon does not thereby waive his right to object to the introduction of the book without proper foundation being laid. Hoogewerff v. Flack [Md.] 61 A. 184.

16. Children of divorced parents examined privately by the court upon an issue as to the custody of the children. Dawson v. Dawson [Wash.] 82 P. 937.

17. Gadsden Grocery & Feed Co. v. McMahen [Ala.] 40 So. 87. On cross-examination. Johnson v. Walker [Miss.] 39 So. 49. Incompetent testimony elicited on cross-examination. Schonbachler's Adm'r v. Mischell [Ky.] 89 S. W. 525. A party cannot complain of a cross-examination as to matters which he himself has brought out on the chief examination. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Quinn [Ala.] 39 So. 616.

18. Frenchi v. New York City R. Co., 46 Misc. 612, 92 N. Y. S. 771; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Walker, 118 Ill. App. 397; Home Building & Loan Ass'n v. McKay, 118 Ill. App. 586; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Teeters [Ind.] 77 N. E. 599; Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. Doughty [Ark.] 91 S. W. 768.

19. In an action against carrier for injury to stock, plaintiff introduced evidence as to value of the stock at an intermediate point, and thereafter offered to prove the value at the point of destination to which defendant objected. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Snyder [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 1119.

20. Where defendant fails to file answer and no default is taken against him, but he goes to trial, he cannot on appeal complain that no issue was formed. Parscouta v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 970.

21. A party at whose instance a suit is transferred to the chancery court cannot challenge the jurisdiction of such court. Deidrich v. Simmons [Ark.] 87 S. W. 649. See post, § 4, Jurisdiction. Where the defendant made both a motion for a new trial and in arrest of judgment after the judgment of the referee was filed, but within the time allowed by statute for making such motions, brought the same on for hearing and had a ruling thereon he cannot complain, in appellate court, o such action of the referee in considering and entertaining the motions. Reynolds v. Smith [Fla.] 38 So. 903

22. Cannot claim that libellants had wholly separate interests after having obtained orto whose absence he objected.[23] No complaint can be made by movant that in passing on a motion the court did not give relief not moved for.[24]

§ 2. Acquiescing in error.[25]—Where a court has jurisdiction there can be no such thing as error except upon denial of an asserted right.[26] Only such questions, therefore, as are raised in the trial court will be considered on appeal,[27] and in passing on the questions which were properly saved for review, the appellate court will consider only the grounds urged below.[28] This rule has been applied to the performance of conditions precedent to right of action,[29] election of remedies,[30] disqualification of the judge,[31] the authority of a prosecuting attorney to institute proceed-der on them to take proof jointly because joint in interest. The Oregon, 133 F. 609.

23. Demurrants for want of necessary party cannot complain that he has no litigable interest. Harrington v. Gordon [Wash.] 80 P. 187.

24. Carmichael v. John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co., 97 N. Y. S. 976.

25. See 4 C. L. 1371.

26. Creditors of a decedent who do not appear and object to a report of the administrator have no standing on an appeal by a creditor who did appear, object, and except. In re Lund's Estate [Iowa] 104 N. W. 1139. Lack of jurisdiction of subject-matter may be raised any time. Peabody v. Long Acre Square Bldg. Co., 98 N. Y. S. 242.

27. Goodwin v. Mitchell [Miss.] 38 So. 657; Lee v. Livingston [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 922, 106 N. W. 713; Demmer v. American Ins. Co., 110 Ill. 580; Coles v. Interurban St. R. Co., 97 N. Y. S. 289; Georgetown & T. R. Co. v. Smith, 25 App. D. C. 259; De Rodriguez v. Vivoni, 26 S. Ct. 475; A. H. George & Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 486; Lund v. Ozanne [N. M.] 84 P. 710; Miller v. Donovan [Idaho] 83 P. 608; McGregor v. J. A. Ware Const. Co., 188 Mo. 611, 87 S. W. 981; Fenn v. Georgia R. & Elec. Co., 122 Ga. 280, 50 S. E. 103; Brumley v. Nichols & Shepherd Co. [Ky.] 92 S. W. 548; Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla.] 40 So. 29; O'Donnell v. Weiler [N. J. Law] 59 A. 1055; McCarthy v. Dedham, 188 Mass. 204, 74 N. E. 319. Questions not raised by the pleadings. Masonic Fraternity Temple Ass'n v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 58, 75 N. E. 439. The appellate court will not pass upon a question not raised by the pleadings, even though counsel for both parties assumed below that the question was raised. Weicker v. Stavely [N. D.] 103 N. W. 753. No motion for a directed verdict was made, nor was the question as to whether the accident was caused by a fellow-servant raised in the trial court in any manner whatever. Coal Belt Elect. Co. v. Kays, 217 Ill. 340, 75 N. E. 498. Plaintiff relying in the trial court on an estoppel arising from defendant's admissions in his answer in a former action, he cannot claim for the first time on appeal that the judgment in such action was res judicata of the facts upon which the alleged estoppel was based. Flannery v. Campbell, 30 Mont. 172, 75 P. 1109. Where no objection is made before the register to sufficiency of objection to allowance of claims against an insolvent bank filed under the provision of Code 1896, § 4164, and based on Const. § 250, giving a preference to the holders of bank notes and the depositors who have not stipulated for interest, such objection cannot be raised on appeal. Taylor v. Hutchinson [Ala.] 40 So. 108. Where no objection or exceptions are taken on a trial without a jury and no propositions presented, only the sufficiency of the evidence treating it all as competent is open to review. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank v. Pontiac, 112 Ill. App. 545.

On an appeal from an intermediate appellate court, only such errors as were assigned in such court will be considered. Chicago City R. Co. v. Schmidt, 217 Ill. 396, 75 N. E. 383; Penn Plate Glass Co. v. James H. Rice Co., 216 Ill. 567, 75 N. E. 246.

28. The denial of a motion to direct a verdict will not be reviewed on other grounds than those on which the motion was based below. Earl v. Cedar Rapids, 126 Iowa, 361, 102 N. W. 140. A party who appears specially before a justice and moves to dismiss on specific grounds for want of jurisdiction of the person waives the right on appeal to urge any grounds not presented to the justice People v. Court of Appeals, 33 Colo. 258, 79 P. 1017. Where a motion in arrest of judgment is sustained on the ground that the law on which it is based is void, the only question on appeal is the validity of the law. State v. Briggs, 45 Or. 366, 78 P. 361. Reasons why damages should not be awarded property holder for change of street grade. City of Detroit v. C. H. Little Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 589, 104 N. W. 1108. On appeal from an order denying a motion, only those objections which were grounds of the motion can be heard. Wisman v. Meagher [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 448.

29. Notice of claim for injury against city was not duly served. Seliger v. New York, 88 N. Y. S. 1074. Insufficiency of notice, to tenant before bringing summary proceedings must be objected to below. Peabody v. Long Acre Square Bldg. Co., 98 N. Y. S. 242. Rev. St. 1899, § 1575. Harrison v. Lakenan, 189 Mo. 581, 88 S. W. 53. An objection that no demand for the subject-matter of the suit was made prior to the bringing in the suit as waived, unless it is expressly set up in the answer or replication. In an action for injury to live stock during transportation, the defendant, by going to trial on an answer which set up a defense based on the failure to give notice, but relied on denial of the injury, waived the defense of lack of timely notice. Keyes-Marshall Bros. Livery Co. v. St. Louis & H. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 144, 87 S. W. 553.

30. That plaintiff should have elected as to his remedy in enorcing a judgment. Sanger Bros. v. Corsicana Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 737.

31. Waived by moving for continuances. Hutchinson v. Manchester St. R. Co. [N. H.] 60 A. 1011.

ings in behalf of the state,[32] misjoinder of plaintiffs,[33] reinstatement at trial of a dismissed plaintiff,[34] validity of assignment to plaintiff of instrument in suit,[35] interest of certain plaintiffs,[36] that a verdict is excessive,[37] sufficiency of the complaint [38] or the answer,[39] allowance of an amendment,[40] absence of a bill of particulars [41] or the sufficiency thereof,[42] the jurisdiction of an intermediate appellate court,[43] transfer of case to an equity docket,[44] disqualification of juror for a matter which might have been ascertained on his voir dire examination,[45] that the action is frivolous and vexatious [46] or premature,[47] or that plaintiff has mistaken his action,[48] misconduct of the jury,[49] the admission,[50] exclusion,[51] and sufficiency of evidence,[52] competency of witnesses,[53] variance between the pleading and the proof,[54]

32. Proceedings under Pub. Acts 1899, p. 409, No. 225, § 1, to restrain combination in restraint of trade. Hunt v. Riverside Co.-op. Club [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 264, 104 N. W. 40.

33. Walker v. Baldwin [Md.] 63 A. 362.

34. Dalton v. Moore [C. C. A.] 141 F. 311.

35. Murphy v. Smith, 112 Ill. App. 404.

36. United Breweries Co. v. O'Donnell [Ill.] 77 N. E. 547.

37. Hubbard v. State Life Ins. Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 332; Daggs v. Smith [Mo.] 91 S. W. 1043. Granting or refusal of new trial on ground of excessive damages. English v. Minneapolis & St. P. Surburban R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 886.

38. Where a complaint is not objected to by demurrer or motion to dismiss on the ground that it does not state a cause of action, the question will not be considered on appeal. Weidner v. Olivit, 108 App. Div. 122, 96 N. Y. S. 37. But see post, § 4, to pleadings. Answering cross-complaint without objection. Power v. Fairbanks, 16 Cal. 611, 80 P. 1075. Duplicity in information for contempt. O'Neil v. People, 113 Ill. App. 195. Unless wholly insufficient to sustain judgment, complaint cannot be first attacked on appeal. Southern R. Co. v. Roach [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 606; Scott v. Collier [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 666. Objection that court erred in sustaining demurrer to complaint when defendant had tendered a certain sum to defendant. Mitchell v. Pearson [Colo.] 82 P. 447. Error in denying motion to strike out amended petition waived by answering to the merits. Castleman v. Castleman, 184 Mo. 432; 83 S. W. 757.

39. The insufficiency of the answer is immaterial on appeal where during the progress of the trial an amended complaint setting up an entirely new cause of action was substituted and the trial proceeded as though it had been met with a general denial. American Shawl Co. v. Waldman, 92 N. Y. S. 367.

40. Westminster Nat. Bank v. New England Electrical Works [N. H.] 62 A. 971. No objection or request for postponement on granting amendment. Devery v. Winton Motor Carriage Co., 97 N. Y. S. 392.

41. Want of bill of particulars accompanying a plea of set-off is waived by a plaintiff who goes to trial upon such plea without it. Muller v. Ocala Foundry & Machine Works [Fla.] 38 So. 64.

42. A party cannot ignore an insufficient bill of particulars and at the trial have evidence excluded as though no bill had been served. Davis v. Johnson [Minn.] 104 N. W. 766.

43. That appeal was prematurely entered. Corsiglia v. Burnham [Mass.] 75 N. E. 253. Defects in appeal to intermediate court cannot be urged for first time in court of last resort. Griswold v. Smith [Ill.] 77 N. E. 551. Where a court on appeal has jurisdiction of the subject-matter and of the parties, any objection to the manner in which it reaches the court will be waived by the parties appearing and pleading without objection. Chicago Portrait Co. v. Chicago Crayon Co., 217 Ill. 200, 75 N. E. 473.

44. Kessner v. Phillips, 189 Mo. 515, 88 S. W. 66.

45. Objection that juror had been convicted of felony. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934.

46. Fishburne v. Minott [S. C.] 52 S. E. 648.

47. Enright v. Gibson, 119 Ill. App. 411; Byrne v. Morrison, 25 App. D. C. 72.

48. Conroy v. Equitable Acc. Co. [R. I.] 63 A. 356. Pleading to the merits and trial without objection waives claim that plaintiff has mistaken his remedy. People v. Chicago Tel. Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 245.

49. When a party regards the conduct of the jury as improper and prejudicial to his rights, he should call the matter to the attention of the court, and if he does not and goes on with the trial, objection on the ground of such conduct is waived. Lyman v. Brown [N. H.] 62 A. 650.

50. Where the averments of a complaint stand admitted, no error can be predicted upon the admission or exclusion of evidence to prove such averments. Medocino County v. Peters [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1122.

51. Where all the parties acquiesce in a ruling excluding certain evidence, no one can thereafter complain of the ruling. Davis v. Johnson [Minn.] 104 N. W. 766.

52. Keller v. Schwartz, 93 N. Y. S. 620; Warth v. L. Loewenstein & Sons, 219 Ill. 222, 76 N. E. 379. In an action for wrongful attachment, objection that the attachment proceedings were not fully shown because the bond was not introduced cannot be first made on appeal. C. M. Carrier & Son v. Poulas [Miss.] 40 So. 164. Where the question as to the sufficiency of evidence was not raised in the trial court in some proper manner, as by motion to direct verdict, request for instructions or motion for a new trial, such question will not be considered on appeal. Mitchell v. Pinckney, 127 Iowa, 696, 104 N. W. 286; Jennings v. Edgefield Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 113.

53. Millard v. Millard [Ill.] 77 N. E. 595.

54. Spencer v. Wilson [Neb.] 104 N. W. 930; Elder Tp. School Dist. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 112; Hinton v. Ring, 111 Ill. App. 369; Olcese v. Mobile Frult & Trading Co., 112 Ill. App. 281; Illinois Ter-that a judgment is not technically accurate [55] or does not conform to the pleadings [56] or the proof,[57] or the verdict.[58]. Absence of necessary parties is not waived by failure to raise it by answer or demurrer.[59]

Under the same rules, issues not made below will not be considered on appeal,[60] nor can a party set up claims [61] or defenses not urged below,[62] but where a constitutional question is necessarily involved, the fact that it was not raised in the trial court will not prevent its consideration on appeal.[63] So also, an appellee may minal R. Co. v. Thompson, 112 Ill. App. 463; Dowie v. Priddle, 116 Ill. App. 184; Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis R. Co. of Illinois v. Alderson, 116 Ill. App. 441; Adams v. Connelly, 118 Ill. App. 441; Alton Ry., Gas & Elec. Co. v. Webb, 119 Ill. App. 75; Richardson v. Nelson [Ill.] 77 N. E. 583; Kalispell Liquor & Tobacco Co. v. McGovern [Mont.] 84 P. 709; Ingwersen v. St. Louis & H. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 357; Thomas v. Murphy, 87 Minn. 358, 91 N. W. 1097; Coley v. Tallman, 107 App. Div. 445, 95 N. Y. S. 339; Remey v. Detroit United R. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 368, 104 N. W. 420; Stecher v. People, 217 Ill. 348, 75 N. E. 501; Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Newmiller, 215 Ill. 383, 74 N. E. 410; Ensley Mercantile Co. v. Otwell [Ala.] 38 So. 839; Alton Ry., Gas & Electric Co. v. Webb, 219 Ill. 563, 76 N. E. 687; Freund v. S. H. Greene & Sons Corporation, 139 F. 703. Objection to evidence on ground that it was not pleaded. Langley v. Rouss, 106 App. Div. 225, 94 N. Y. S. 108. Variance, in an action for injury to crops, as to description of part of the land upon which the crops were grown. Williamson v. Missouri K. & T. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 401. Where evidence covering plaintiff's whole case was received below without objection as to the pleadings, the court on appeal will not assume that an amendment would have been refused, but will consider the whole case. McKernan v. Detroit Citizens' St. R. Co. [Mich.] 101 N. W. 812.

In Missouri the party complaining of the variance must file an affidavit in the trial court alleging that he has been misled by the variance. Rev. St. 1899, § 655; Harrison v. Lakenan, 189 Mo. 581, 88 S. W. 53.

55. Inaccuracy in awarding execution jointly and severally. Sanger Bros. v. Corsicana Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 737. Amendable defects in the judgment cannot be first urged on appeal. C. M. Carrier & Son v. Poulas [Miss.] 40 So. 164.

56. Contention that judgment was for greater amount than that prayed for in the complaint. Bruce v. Wanzer [S. D.] 105 N. W. 282. That the judgment exceeds the amount of the ad damnum of the declaration. Leathe v. Thomas, 218 Ill. 246, 75 N. E. 810.

57. Suit for reformation of deed. Thalheimer v. Lockhart [Ark.] 86 S. W. 591. Objection that injunction against nuisance was too sweeping. Grantham v. Gibson [Wash.] 83 P. 14.

58. Elmer v. Levin, 95 N. Y. S. 537.

59. Mitau v. Roddan [Cal.] 84 P. 145.

60. Kunkle v. Utah Lumber Co. [Utah] 81 P. 897. That certain articles did not constitute baggage, no evidence being offered or instructions requested in regard thereto. Hubbard v. Mobile & O. R. Co., 112 Mo. App. 459, 87 S. W. 52. Right to recover for loss of earnings in action for injuries. Rev. St. 1899, § 864; Caplin v. St. Louis Transit Co., 114 Mo. App. 256, 89 S. W. 338. That a bond given for a sale of realty in attachment proceedings was invalid. Williams v. Bennett [Ark.] 88 S. W. 600. Question as to corporate entity. Armour Packing Co. of Louisiana v. Vietch-Young Produce Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 680. That plaintiff, in an action to enforce a mechanic's lien, having alleged and proved substantial compliance with his contract, did not allege and prove the actual cost of completing the building, it appearing, however, that the amount allowed to the defendant for this purpose was adequate. Rowe v. Gerry, 109 App. Div. 153, 95 N. Y. S. 857.

61. When no evidence is introduced under an allegation of damage in a complaint, recovery upon such allegation is waived. Watson v. Colusa-Parrot Mining & Smelting Co., 31 Mont. 513, 79 P. 14. Necessity of tendering consideration on avoiding release not raised below in any manner. Robertson v. George A. Fuller Const. Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 130.

62. That plaintiff's testator was guilty of contributory negligence. Penna v. Interurban St. R. Co., 48 Misc. 647, 96 N. Y. S. 208. Limitations. Matlock v. Stone [Ark.] 91 S. W. 553; Grace v. Moseley, 112 Ill. App. 100. That negligence complained of was of a fellow-servant. St. Louis & Belleville Elec. R. Co. v. Erlinger, 112 Ill. App. 506. Matter of abatement waived by failure to plead it. Nonjoinder of necessary plaintiff. H. E. Mueller & Co. v. Kinkead, 113 Ill. App. 132. Failure of plaintiff in suit to enforce vendor's lien to tender deed with complaint. Lillar v. Clayton [Ark.] 88 S. W. 972.

Defense against insurance policy. Billmeyer v. Hamberg-Bremen Fire Ins. Co., 57 W. Va. 42, 49 S. E. 901. Defense that a fire insurance policy was assigned without the knowledge and consent of the company, and that the iron safe clause was not complied with. Planters' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Hamilton [Ark.] 90 S. W. 283.

63. Carmody v. St. Louis Transit Co., 188 Mo. 572, 87 S. W. 913. But when no constitutional question is necessarily involved, a specific constitutional guaranty must have been invoked in and denied by the trial court. An exception that an instruction is insufficient where it does not point out any constitutional provision violated by the instruction is insufficient. Id. Where no evidence of facts on which a constitutional question, first raised in a motion for a new trial, is based is presented at the hearing, the question is not sufficiently raised for a ruling thereon and will not be considered on appeal. Love v. Central Life Ins. Co., 92 Mo. App. 192. Where a party desires to challenge the validity of the constitutional amendment he should specifically point out the reason why such amendment should have been recognized. Amendment to Const. Mo., art. 2 plead in the appellate court that since the appeal was taken a judgment has been rendered in another suit settling the rights of the parties involved in the appeal,[64] and failure of the clerk in recording a judgment to certify that certain of the defendants are sureties is reversible error, though not presented to the trial court.[65] Failure to make up issue out of chancery,[66] that motion was heard at time other than that named in notice,[67] or that a motion granted below was not sufficiently specific will not be considered unless urged below.[68]

A party cannot complaint of error which he could have avoided,[69] and in some cases his participation in the proceedings after the commission of the alleged error will estop him from complaining on account thereof,[70] a fortiori is a party estopped to predicate error upon matters to which he has expressly consented.[71]

§ 28, adopted November, 1900, authorizing three-fourths of the jury to render a verdict. Carmody v. St. Louis Transit Co., 188 Mo. 572, 7 S. W. 913.

64. The pendency of the first action might have been pleaded as a bar to the second, but not having been so pleaded the judgment in the second action operates as a bar of all defense either legal or equitable which were interposed or which should not be interposed in such action. Church v. Gallic [Ark.] 88 S. W. 979.

65. Escritt v. Michaeleson [Neb.] 103 N. W. 300, citing Blaco v. State, 58 Neb. 557.

66. Godfrey v. Phillips, 209 Ill. 584, 71 N. E. 19.

67. Thompson v. American Percheron Horse Breeders' & Importers' Ass'n, 114 Ill. App. 131.

68. Guess & Glover v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 53 S. E. 421.

69. Counsel objected to the declaration which contained counts to which demurrers had been sustained going to the jury room, but refused, upon being offered the opportunity, to have the objectionable counts removed from the declaration. Elgin, A. & S. Traction Co. v. Wilson, 217 Ill. 47, 75 N. E. 436. Where a paper writing with a pencil memorandum on the back thereof is introduced by a party, and such party obtains a ruling that the memorandum should be excluded, if he allows the paper to go to the jury without erasing the memorandum he cannot thereafter complain. Warth v. L. Loewenstein & Sons, 219 Ill. 222, 76 N. E. 379.

70. An objection that an action is prematurely brought must be raised by plea in abatement and is waived by answer to the merits. McClung v. McPherson [Or.] 82 P. 13. Where a party participates in the proceedings without objection he cannot afterwards be heard to say that he was entitled to additional time to prepare his case. Owens v. Waddell [Miss.] 39 So. 459. Defendant took no exception to the order changing the venue, and made no motion to strike the case from the docket in the county to which it was transferred, but on the contrary appeared in the court to which the transfer was made and submitted to its jurisdiction without objection. See Rev. St. 1899, § 882; Haxton v. Kansas City, 190 Mo. 53, 88 S. W. 714. A party who appears and takes part in a cause after the same has been reinstated waives his right to except to the order of reinstatement. Grand Pacific Hotel Co. v. Pinkerton, 217 Ill. 61, 75 N. E. 427. Joinder in proceedings to take depositions and the filing of cross interrogatories constitutes a waiver of objection to commission. Palatine Ins. Co., Limited, v. Santa Fe Mercantile Co. [N. M.] 82 P. 363. Where an amendment changing a suit in equity to an action at law is allowed upon condition of the payment of the costs within a certain time, the acceptance by the defendant's attorney of the costs and the retention thereof, with full knowledge that they were not paid within the required time, and the subsequent filing of a general appearance and an answer to the declaration at law, constitutes a waiver of objection on account of the plaintiff's failure to pay the costs within the time required. Crossman v. Griggs, 188 Mass. 156, 74 N. E. 358. Where the defendant elects to proceed with the trial after an amendment of the complaint to conform to the proof has been allowed, his statutory right to a postponement of the trial and to have the amendment written out is waived. Bovee v. International Paper Co., 108 App. Div. 94, 95 N. Y. S. 426.

71. Submission of matters on affidavit that should be submitted on answer. Berman v. Cosgrove [Minn.] 104 N. W. 534. Procedure expressly agreed to below. Pike v. Pike, 112 Ill. App. 243. Where counsel expressly declares that he has no objection to certain proof. Chicago City R. Co. v. Lowitz, 119 Ill. App. 360. Acquiescence in statement by court that a point was not disputed preclude attack for failure of proof thereon. Burke v. Baker, 97 N. Y. S. 768. By consenting to direction of verdict without reserving leave to make a motion to go to the jury on a question of fact should the verdict be directed against him. Bernhein v. Bloch, 45 Misc. 581, 91 N. Y. S. 40. After trial and disagreement of jury parties agreed to submit the case to the court without any agreement to save the exceptions and objections made on the trial before the jury. Grunsky v. Field [Cal. App.] 82 P. 979. Stipulation that court might make sale of the corporation's property without objection that complaint did not state a cause of action. Bank of Visalia v. Dillonwood Lumber Co. [Cal.] 82 P. 374. Agreement that the court might enter the same judgment in an action as might be entered in another action was waiver of defects in complaint in the action in which the agreement was made, the judgment in such action being a judgment by consent. Pacific Pav. Co. v. Vizelich [Cal. App.] 82 P. 82. Where a party consents to the final hearing of the cause, he cannot thereafter object on the ground that such hearing was had before the determination of the rule

Exception to conclusion of law admit, for the purposes of the exceptions, the correctness of the findings of fact,[72] and where special findings recite the facts and an exception is taken to the conclusion of law upon such facts, the appellate court will deem it unnecessary to pass upon the sufficiency of the pleading, such question being waived by the exceptions taken.[73]

Change of theory.[74]—The appellate court will determine the case upon the same theory as upon which it was tried below,[75] although such theory is not covered by the pleadings[76] or is even contrary thereto.[77] When, therefore, the parties have placed a certain construction upon their pleadings, they cannot, on appeal, urge a different construction.[78] They cannot contend that the issues, not against the other party for violation of a temporary injunction awarded in the cause. Pence v. Carne [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 702. Consent to submission of case upon evidence erroneously admitted in a former trial admits that there are questions of fact to be determined. Rowe v. Gerry, 109 App. Div. 153, 95 N. Y. S. 857. Stipulation that verdict might be received by clerk in the absence of the presiding judge. Dubuc Lazell, Dalley & Co., 182 N. Y. 482, 75 N. E. 401. When counsel for both sides acquiesce, against the advice of the court, in submitting the case to the jury without argument. Tenzer v. Gilmore, 114 Mo. App. 210, 89 S. W. 341. Where the parties to an action stipulate that a certain party, if present, would testify to certain facts amounting to a disclaimer by such party, the parties cannot claim on appeal that the absent party is a necessary party to the suit on account of his interest in the subject-matter. Suit to quiet title. Karren v. Rainey [Utah] 83 P. 333.

72. Halstead v. Sigler [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 257; Western Indiana Coal Co. v. Brown [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1027; Home Nat. Bank v. Hill [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1086.

73. Ray v. Baker [Ind.] 74 N. E. 619; Union Inv. Co. v McKinney [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1001; Ross v. Van Natta, 164 Ind. App. 557, 74 N. E. 10.

74. See 4 C. L. 1374.

75. Overhouser v. American Cereal Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 113; York v. New York, O. & W. R. Co., 108 App. Div. 126, 95 N. Y. S. 1105; McDermott v. Mahoney [Iowa] 106 N. W. 925; Kath v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co., 121 Wis. 503, 99 N. W. 217; McGregor v. J. A. Ware Const. Co., 188 Mo. 611, 87 S. W. 981; Mystic Workers of the World v. I. S. Troutman, 113 Ill. App. 84; Spellman v. Rhode [Mont.] 81 P. 395. Tried on theory that all defendants or none were liable. Joint judgment cannot be objected to on appeal. Nishkian v. Chisholm [Cal. App.] 84 P. 312. Theory that defendant owed the plaintiff the duty to exercise ordinary care in the operation of its cars. Sack v. St. Louis Car Co., 112 Mo. App. 476, 87 S. W. 79. As to scope of accident policy. James v. United States Casualty Co., 113 Mo. App. 622, 88 S. W. 125. A mere demand for discovery and accounting for rents, in a bill expressly denying the title of the lessor and the validity of the lease, does not amount to a ratification or adoption of the lease. McNeely v. South Penn Oil Co. [W. Va.] 52 S. 480. Where counsel, upon a motion to dismiss a complaint, admit the allegations of the complaint, upon appeal the case will be considered as upon a demurrer for want of statement of sufficient facts. Knieriem v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 109 App. Div. 709, 96 N. Y. S. 602. Objection that parties had elected to take under will and could not contest it cannot be first made on appeal. In re Pederson's Estate [Minn.] 106 N. W. 958.

76. Where, in condemnation proceedings, the defendant sought to defeat the plaintiff's right to condemnation on the ground that the plaintiff had power to construct only a street railroad, and that hence the line of its road was restricted to the highway, and the plaintiff refused to so frame its petition so as to show that it did not intend to use steam, and the court submitted the case to the jury on the theory that the plaintiff had the right to use steam or any other motive power it wished, thus enhancing the defendant's damages, the plaintiff could not complain. St. Louis & S. R. Co. v. Smith, 216 Ill. 339, 74 N. E. 1063. Where evidence was introduced by both parties without objection on issues outside the pleadings, a verdict passing on the issues as tried cannot be assailed. Quarles v. Frederick [Wash.] 84 P. 634. A reviewing court will not regard an objection to the hearing and submission of evidence to the jury on an issue not made in the pleadings where the objection was first made in the petition in error, nor will it assume that there was error in the matter of the opening and close to the jury where such error does not affirmatively appear from the record; nor a claim of error in the matter of burden of proof where it does not appear that the party objecting was prejudiced thereby. Minzey v. Marcy Mfg. Co. 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 593. A defendant in a chancery suit who submits to the jurisdiction of the court when the bill shows any ground of equitable jurisdiction cannot for the first time in a court of review contend that there was an adequate remedy at law. Whalon v. Billings, 104 Ill. App. 281.

77. Theory that insured did not become a member of the defendant insurance company until after a certain date adopted by the supreme court, though contrary to an allegation of the complaint, such allegation being immaterial when made, but becoming material thereafter by reason of allegations in defendant's answer. Arrison v. Supreme Council of Mystic Toilers [Iowa] 105 N. W. 580.

78. Southern R. Co. v. Jones, 33 Ind. App. 333, 71 N. E. 275. Where a complaint does not indicate whether ordinary negligence or willful wrong was intended to be charged, but both parties treated it as charging only ordinary negligence. Morey v. Lake Superior Terminal & Transfer R. Co., 125 Wis. 148, 103 N. W. 271; Cramer v. Springfield Traction Co., 112 Mo. App. 350, 87 S. W. 24.

jurisdictional upon which the case was tried, were not raised by the pleadings,[79] or that the judgment upon such issues is not authorized by the pleadings,[80] or that the pleadings upon the issue raised are not responsive to some other pleading;[81] and when a party bases his right to recover upon particular grounds, he will not be heard to insist on other grounds on appeal;[82] so also where a party bases his defense on a particular ground.[83] But the fact that a defendant treats the complaint as stating a cause of action will not preclude the objection on appeal that the complaint does not state a cause of action,[84] nor will failure to object to the submission of an equitable action to a jury constitute an election to treat the case as an action at law.[85] Complaints as to instructions in conformity with the issues adopted by parties below will not be considered on appeal.[86] Thus, where both parties single out the same fact, and ask an instruction upon it, neither party can complain that the instruction given singled out such fact,[87] and where a party

A demurrer will be treated as to the amended petition when so treated by all parties and the court below, though no order is shown disposing of the amendment. Williston Seminary v. Easthampton Spinning Co., 186 Mass. 484, 72 N. E. 67. Party estopped to urge that the complaint did not authorize submission upon certain theory. Weidner v. Olivit, 108 App. Div. 122, 96 N. Y. S. 37. Complaint construed to be for forcible entry under statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 2080), but was more properly applicable to ejectment. Spellman v. Rhode [Mont.] 81 P. 395. Plaintiff tried case on theory that it was action on contract and could not insist on appeal that it was in tort. Nielsen v. Northwestern Siberian Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 292. Where a case is tried on the theory that an answer was in, the objection cannot be raised on appeal that there was no answer. State Bank v. Citizens' Nat. Bank [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 123. Objection that defendant who was sued individually filed cross-complaint as administrator. Kraft v. Moore [Ark.] 89 S. W. 51. Reasonable cost of building, in action on building contract. Simons v. Wittmann, 113 Mo. App. 357, 88 S. W. 791. Plaintiff in suit to quiet title joined issue on a counterclaim involving more land than that described in complaint. Karren v. Rainey [Utah] 83 P. 333. Issue of dedication in an action to enjoin a city from opening alley. Incorporated Town of Hope v. Shiver [Ark.] 90 S. W. 1003. Where the party treated the complaint as seeking a redemption from tax sale, tendered issue as to the right to redeem and did not object to the proof being all directed to that issue, he could not object on appeal that the prayer for relief did not cover such issue. Waterman v. Irby [Ark.] 89 S. W. 844. As against a general objection the submission of the question of notice in an action of unlawful entry and detainer is not error where it appears that the parties took issue upon such question, although notice was alleged in the complaint and was not denied by the answer. McElvaney v. Smith [Ark.] 88 S. W. 981.

79. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126 Iowa, 481, 102 N. W. 424; Morrill v. McNeill [Neb.] 104 N. W. 195; Cramer v. Springfield Traction Co., 112 Mo. App. 350, 87 S. W. 24; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 702. Not waiver by asking instruction on improper issues forced on objector. Arnold v. Maryville, 110 Mo. App. 254 85 S. W. 107.

80. Judgment exceeded the amount claimed in the pleadings but the issues and proof supported such judgment. Layne v. Layne [Ky.] 90 S. W. 555.

81. Where the theory was that a certain sum was due for use of an engine at so much per thousand feet of lumber hauled, a contention that the findings were not responsive on the theory that the money was due as the reasonable value of the use of the engine would not be considered. Bank of Visalia v. Dillonwood Lumber Co. [Cal.] 82 P. 374.

82. Though such other grounds are stated in the complaint. Metlen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Mont.] 81 P. 737. Plaintiff, in opposition to a motion for a new trial, expressly based his right of action on a particular ground. Maguth v. Board of Chosen Freeholders of Passaic County [N. J. Err. & App.] 62 A. 679. Plaintiff, in personal injury action, abandoned, in open court, allegations of negligence in original petition and relied on acts alleged in amendment. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Dukes, 121 Ga. 787, 49 S. E. 788.

83. Suit to enforce mechanic's lien. Objection that complaint contained no allegation that materials were used in building, waived. Mandary v. Smartt [Cal. App.] 82 P. 561. Failure of plaintiff in suit to foreclose vendor's lien to tender a deed with his complaint, waived. Tillar v. Clayton [Ark.] 88 S. W. 972. In considering the sufficiency of complaint on appeal from judgment dismissing same on demurrer, only the questions raised by the demurrer will be considered. Hammock v. Tacoma [Wash.] 82 P. 893.

84. Trott v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 716. A complaint dismissed after issue joined for failure to state a cause of action will be considered as though demurred to on the same grounds. Hinds v. Fishkill & Matteawan Equitable Gas Co., 96 App. Div. 14, 88 N. Y. S. 954. See post, § 4, Necessity of objection to pleadings.

85. So as to preclude the party from insisting that the verdict is not binding on the court. McCelland v. Bullis [Colo.] 81 P. 771.

86. Smith v. Corrigan [Neb.] 101 N. W. 331. If such instruction is ever to be questioned, it ought to be only in cases where manifest injustice results therefrom. Carpenter v. Lancaster, 212 Pa. 581, 61 A. 1113.

87. That an expert had preconceived opinion and was, therefore, disqualified as an ap-adopts a certain theory in a requested instruction he cannot complain that the same theory is adopted by the court in the instructions given at the request of the other party.[88] So also, where a party requests a charge upon a certain theory he cannot, on appeal, raise objections based on a contrary theory.[89] Where one party asks for a directed verdict, thus admitting that the case presents merely a question of law, he cannot complain that the court directs a verdict for the other party unless the verdict directed be against the evidence,[90] and so, on the other hand, where a party declines to join in a motion for a directed verdict, he cannot, on appeal, be heard to say that the case should have been disposed of as matter of law,[91] nor can a party appealing from an order granting a new trial complain of the action of the court in refusing to submit matters to the jury.[92] A party who offers evidence for a specific purpose cannot sustain an exception to its rejection on the ground that it was admissible for some other purpose.[93] So also a party who offers evidence without stating the purpose for which it is offered, and the other party objects upon a specific ground, such objection should be ruled upon as if the evidence were offered solely for the purpose indicated by the objection,[94] and where a party questions a witness in hopes of receiving favorable testimony, he will not be heard on a motion to strike it out.[95] Where evidence is regarded or stipulated by counsel as being in the case, the contention that it was not really introduced will not be considered,[96] nor can one upon whose objection competent evidence to prove a fact is excluded afterwards say that the fact was not proved.[97] Resistance of a motion on the merits precludes technical objections on appeal.[98]

§ 3. Mode of objection, whether by objection, motion, or request.[99]—Objection for want of proper parties must be made by demurrer or answer,[1] for misjoinder of causes of action by motion to elect,[2] to an oral instruction by exception,[3] to an auditor's report on account of insufficiency by motion to recommit,[4] to failure praiser of fire insurance loss. National Fire Ins. Co. v. O'Bryan [Ark.] 87 S. W. 129.

88. Dodge v. Knapp, 112 Mo. App. 513, 87 S. W. 47.

89. Plaintiff based his right to recover upon title claimed by him, but having introduced evidence of adverse possession, the court gave instructions upon this point at the defendant's request. Love v. Turner, 71 S. C. 322, 51 S. E. 101.

90. Gray v. Central Minnesota Immigration Co., 127 Iowa, 560, 103 N. W. 792. Contra. Minahan v. Grand Trunk Western R. Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 37.

91. Grogan v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 107 App. Div. 254, 95 N. Y. S. 23.

92. Thrush v. Graybill [Iowa] 104 N. W. 472.

93. Deitrich v. Kettering, 212 Pa. 356, 61 A. 927.

94. Burns v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [Pa.] 62 A. 845.

95. O'Brien v. Knotts [Ind.] 75 N. E. 594.

96. Contract sued on. Telluride Power Transmission Co. v. Crane Co., 208 Ill. 218, 70 N. E. 319. Facts assumed by both parties throughout the trial cannot be questioned on appeal. Brown v. Gurney, 26 S. Ct. 509. Plat treated as in evidence for all purposes by both parties during the trial. Rabberman v. Com'rs of Highways of Alhambra, 116 Ill. App. 26. Contract regarded as in the case but not formally offered in evidence. Shelyer v. Pinkerton Const. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 59 A. 462.

97. In proceedings to improve highway, evidence as to necessity of the improvement. Spaulding v. Mott [Ind.] 76 N. E. 620.

98. Sauer v. Eagle Brewing Co. [Cal. App.] 84 P. 425. Where all technical objections to a motion are expressly waived and it is heard on its merits, the objection that a party in default was not joined cannot be raised. Nichols v. Riley, 98 N. Y. S. 346.

99. See 4 C. L. 1375.

1. Not by motion for nonsuit. Delleney v. Winnsboro Granite Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 531. The question of proper parties cannot be saved by a motion for a new trial. Lamb v. Hall, 147 Cal. 37, 81 P. 286.

2. Civ. Code Prac. §§ 85, 86. Thompson v. Randall [Ky.] 90 S. W. 251.

3. And not by motion to exclude the objectionable part. Armour Packing Co. v. Vietch-Young Produce Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 680.

4. And not by exceptions. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co., 123 Ga. 830, 51 S. E. 666; Fricker v. Americus Mfg. & Imp. Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 65. An objection to a portion of the evidence upon which the auditor has based his conclusions cannot be taken as a matter of right except by motion to recommit the report to the auditor before the trial. Allwright v. Skillings, 188 Mass. 538, 74 N. E. 944.

to try the issues of the case by motion to correct the record of the judgment roll,[5] to erroneous conclusion of law by request for instruction,[6] or by exception.[7]

A variance should be brought to the attention of the court by an objection to the evidence when offered, or by a motion to strike out the evidence after it is admitted, or by a request for a peremptory instruction based on the variance.[8]

An objection to the conduct of the jury in condemnation proceedings may be taken by objection to the confirmation of the verdict.[9]

Objections to evidence must be made by objection to its admission or by motion to strike.[10] An objection to a question must be made before the question is answered,[11] but the answer may be reached by motion to strike,[12] as where the answer is not responsive,[13] or where the question itself is not objectionable.[14] So, when testimony was properly admitted in the first instance, but becomes inadmissible by reason of subsequent disclosures, such evidence may be reached by motion to strike.[15] An objection to the answer of a witness given in a deposition should be made by objection to the reading of such answer to the jury, and by a motion to exclude, coupled with a request that the jury be directed not to consider it.[16] In an action for taxes any objection to the manner in which the tax rolls have been prepared should be made to the introduction of such rolls in evidence, and not to the testimony of the assessor identifying evidence as the records of his office.[17]

Improper pleadings may be reached by motion to strike out or expunge.[18] The necessity of objections and exceptions cannot be obviated by setting out the errors complained of in a motion for a new trial.[19]

§ 4. Necessity of objection. In general.[20]—A timely objection in the trial court is essential to the preservation of any question for review.[21] In the absence of such an objection the appellate court will not consider the propriety of argument

5. And not by exceptions to the findings of fact and conclusions of law. Keyes v. Smith [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 473.

6. And not by a motion for a new trial. Mauch v. Hornback, 109 Mo. App. 624, 83 S. W. 536.

7. And not by a motion to modify by reducing the judgment. Such a motion is based upon the assumption that the conclusions of law depend upon the judgment, whereas the judgment really depends upon the findings of fact and the conclusions of law. Halstead v. Sigler [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 257.

8. An instruction held not to raise question of variance. Alton Ry., Gas & Elec. Co. v. Webb, 219 Ill. 563, 76 N. E. 687.

9. Detroit, etc., R. Co. v. Campbell [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 202, 103 N. W. 856.

10. An objection in the form of a request for an instruction comes too late. St. Louis & S. W. R. Co. v. Foster [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 450; Flanagan Mills & Elevator Co. v. Geo. A. Adams Grain Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 1035. See post, § 4, Time of objection.

11. Swygart v. Willard [Ind.] 76 N. E. 755; Hebert v. Hebert [S. D.] 104 N. W. 911; Waddell v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 680, 88 S. W. 765. Hearsay. Hagins v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 683. See post, § 4, Time of objection.

12. Swygart v. Willard [Ind.] 76 N. E. 755. After question answered remedy is motion to strike and objection is unavailing. Blake v. Meyer, 110 App. Div. 734, 97 N. Y. S. 424. In the absence of an objection to evidence a party cannot have it stricken out as a matter of right, even though it is irrelevant. Ard v. Crittenden [Ala.] 39 So. 675.

13. Hebert v. Hebert [S. D.] 104 N. W. 911; Snedecor v. Pope [Ala.] 39 So. 318. The usual practice in objecting to unresponsive or improper answers is by motion to strike out such answer. Waddell v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 680, 88 S. W. 765. But such a motion is a mere form of objection and an objection to an answer on the ground that it is irrelevant, incompetent, and immaterial, may take the place of a motion to strike. Id.

14. Boland v. New York City R. Co., 48 Misc. 523, 96 N. Y. S. 262.

15. Brown v. Moosic Mountain Coal Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 76.

16. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 949, 89 S. W. 983.

17. City of Houston v. Stewart [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 49.

18. The court may expunge a pleading of its own motion. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. The appellate court will not reverse a judgment on account of the refusal to strike portions of the pleadings where the matter might have been remedied by objection to testimony and by requesting proper charges. Snedecor v. Pope [Ala.] 39 So. 318.

19. Bird v. Bird, 218 Ill. 158, 75 N. E. 760.

20. See 4 C. L. 1376.

21. Perry v. Potsdam, 106 App. Div. 297, 94 N. Y. S. 683; Hooper v. Fletcher, 145 Cal. 375, 79 P. 418; Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla.] 40 So. 29; People v. Court of Appeals, 33 Colo. 258, 79 P. 1017; Taylor v. Hutchinson [Ala.] 40 So. 108. See ante, § 2, Acquiescing in error.

and remarks of counsel,[22] or remarks of the trial judge,[23] or the competency of the trial judge to try the case,[24] or erroneous instructions,[25] or the time of the service of a notice of a motion for a new trial,[26] or to a master's report for failure to sign.[27]

A motion for a new trial cannot take the place of objections in the trial, and unless the record shows that the errors complained of were properly saved by such objections, they will not be considered on appeal though urged as grounds for a new trial.[28] By submitting to a trial of an appeal on the merits, the party so submitting waives all objections to defects in the appeal not prior thereto properly brought to the attention of the appellate court;[29] nor will objections to the appeal bond be considered when not made below,[30] nor objections to the statements of the case.[31] Where no objection was made to the reservation of decision on a motion until after verdict an exception to the granting of the motion did not raise the right to so reserve decision.[32]

The rule that objections not made below will not be considered on appeal is based on a waiver of the objections or an acquiescence in the error.[33]

To jurisdiction.[34]—Objections to the jurisdiction of the person is waived if not properly taken in the lower court;[35] nor can the objection that a complainant in equity had an adequate remedy at law be raised for the first time on appeal;[36] nor can a party object to the jurisdiction of a court of equity where he makes no objection to the transfer of the case to the equity docket.[37] Where objection is not made to the hearing of a petition in vacation, no objection can thereafter be made of this account,[38] nor can a party object on appeal from an intermediate appellate court, to the manner in which the case reached such court, where no such objection was made in such court;[39] but where the court has no jurisdiction

22. Champagne v. Hamey, 189 Mo. 709, 88 S. W. 92; Joyce v. Chicago, 111 Ill. App. 443; Chicago & Joliet Elec. R. Co. v. Spence, 115 Ill. App. 465. Discussing extraneous issues and irrelevant facts and insinuating erroneous views of the law. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Field [C. C. A.] 137 F. 14. Comments upon records introduced for the consideration of the court alone. Sprinkle v. Wellborn [N. C.] 52 S. E. 666.

23. Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla.] 40 So. 29; Belt R. Co. v. Confrey, 111 Ill. App. 473.

24. Unless his incompetency affirmatively appears from the record. Dupoyster v. Ft. Jefferson Imp. Co.'s Receiver [Ky.] 89 S. W. 509. The right of a special judge to try the cause. Perry v. Pernet [Ind.] 74 N. E. 609.

25. Jewell v. Jewell's Estate [Mich.] 102 N. W. 1059. Inadvertent statement that ten years constituted adverse possession, the proper rule, however, having been previously stated. Love v. Turner, 71 S. C. 322, 51 S. C. 101. Misstatements in instructions should be promptly called to the attention of the court. Pooler v. Smith [S. C.] 52 S. E. 967. Objection to an instruction made for the first time on appeal is too late. Crult v. Owen, 21 App. D. C. 378.

26. Where no objection is made to the time of the service of a notice of intention to move for a new trial at the time the service is made or at the time the bill of exceptions reciting due notice is settled, the objection is waived. Mendocino County v. Peters [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1122.

27. Dearlove v. Hayward, 113 Ill. App. 326.

28. Bird v. Bird, 218 Ill. 158, 75 N. E. 760.

29. Appeal to intermediate appellate court. Charmley v. Charmley, 125 Wis. 297, 103 N. W. 1106.

30. Objection that names of some of the sureties had been erased. First Nat. Bank v. Coles [Wash.] 82 P. 892.

31. Objection that statement was not prepared and presented in time. Perry v. J. Noonan Loan Co. [Cal. App.] 82 P. 623.

32. Antes v. Watkins, 98 N. Y. S. 519.

33. See ante, § 2, Acquiescence in error.

34. See 4 C. L. 1380.

35. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 346, an objection that the action as to the defendant was brought in the wrong county is waived if not taken by answer or demurrer. Chicago & W. I. R. Co. v. Marshall [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 973. Objection that substituted defendant was a foreign corporation of which the court had no jurisdiction. Reichardt v. American Platinum Works, 94 N. Y. S. 384. Right of ancillary administrator to sue a ersident of the state of the domiciliary administration who happens to be in the jurisdiction of ancillary administration cannot be raised for the first time on appeal. Such objection relates to the jurisdiction over the situs of the debt and may be waived (Kraft v. Moore [Ark.] 89 S. W. 51), but a party does not waive the question of jurisdiction or validate a void judgment by a general appearance in support of a motion to set the judgment aside (Bennett v. Supreme Tent of Knights of Maccabees of the World [Wash.] 82 P. 744). See Process, 4 C. L. 1070.

36. Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. v. Talbot, 123 Ga. 378, 51 S. E. 401.

37. City of Jacksonville v. Massey Business College [Fla.] 36 So. 432.

38. Owens v. Waddell [Miss.] 39 So. 459.

39. Corsiglia v. Burnham [Mass.] 75 N. E. 253; Chicago Portrait Co. v. Chicago Crayon Co., 217 Ill. 200, 75 N. E. 473.

of the subject-matter, jurisdiction cannot be conferred by appearance and failure to object,[40] nor is it necessary to object below to the jurisdiction of the proceedings.[41]

To parties.[42]—Objection cannot be made for the first time on appeal to the misjoinder,[43] nonjoinder,[44] or the substitution of parties,[45] but where the parties are indispensable, the appellate court will notice the failure to join them, on its own motion, where such defect plainly appears from the record.[46]

To pleadings.[47]—Where a party fails to object to the sufficiency of a pleading, he thereby waives objection thereto.[48] An objection that a pleading is not sufficiently specific cannot be made for the first time on appeal,[49] nor that the facts relied on are defectively stated,[50] nor that the court permitted plaintiff to plead new matter in reply to the surprise and prejudice of defendant,[51] nor that a pleading is filed out of time,[52] nor that there is a misjoinder of causes of action,[53] nor that a pleading is not properly verified,[54] nor that the prayer for relief is insufficient;[55] but failure of the complaint to state cause of action is not waived by failure to object below.[56] In such case, however, the complaint will be held

40. The fact that the appellant took an appeal to the appellate court from a judgment which was not final did not estop him from raising objection to the jurisdiction of such court on appeal therefrom to the supreme court. Chicago Portrait Co. v. Chicago Crayon Co., 217 Ill. 200, 75 N. E. 473.

41. South & W. R. Co. v. Com. [Va.] 51 S. E. 824. But see Reichardt v. American Platinum Works, 94 N. Y. S. 384, where it was held that an objection that the action of which the municipal court had no jurisdiction could not be raised for the first time on appeal.

42. See 4 C. L. 1380.

43. Especially where the interest of the absent party was known to all the parties before trial. Cramer v. Munkres [Wyo.] 83 P. 374. That plaintiffs joined in a suit when they were not partners nor joint owners. Williamson v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 401.

44. Objection that stockholders were not made parties to an action against the corporation, the corporation, however, having been dissolved since the decree below and a receiver appointed. Sparrow v. E. Bement & Sons [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 798, 105 N. W. 881.

45. By failure to appeal from an order substituting a plaintiff and proceeding with the trial before a referee, defendant waives any defect in the papers on which the substitution was made. Rogers v. Ingersoll, 103 App. Div. 490, 93 N. Y. S. 140.

46. Florida Land Rock Phosphate Co. v. Anderson [Fla.] 39 So. 392.

47. See 4 C. L. 1380.

48. Under Code Pub. Gen. Laws, 1904, art. 75, § 9, failure of the declaration in an action on contract to allege the consideration is waived by failure to demur. Dryden v. Barnes [Md.] 61 A. 342; Plano Mfg. Co. v. Schell, 114 Tenn. 410, 84 S. W. 807. Bill of particulars. Davis v. Johnson [Minn.] 104 N. W. 766; Muller v. Ocala Foundry & Machine Works [Fla.] 38 So. 64. Objection to ruling sustaining demurrer to complaint. Mitchell v. Pearson [Colo.] 82 P. 447. Objection to refusal to strike amended petition. Castleman v. Castleman, 184 Mo. 432, 83 S. W. 757. If a cause is tried on an insufficient or immaterial plea or replication without objection, it is too late to complain of such matters on appeal. Equitable Mfg. Co. v. Martin [Ala.] 39 So. 769. Variation between bill and master's report. Armstrong v. Stebbins, 218 Ill. 641, 75 N. E. 1081. That amended bill makes new issue. Verble v. Dillow, 218 Ill. 537, 75 N. E. 1046.

49. Such objections should be raised by the demurrer or motion. Patterson v. Fleenor [Ky.] 89 S. W. 705.

50. Sufficiency of complaint in action to enforce lien for materials furnished for construction of well, to show defendant's interest in the land, and also to show whether the claim came within Code Civ. Proc. § 1183, relating to lien for material and labor furnished for construction of wells. Park & Lacy Co. v. Inter Nos Oil & Development Co., 147 Cal. 490, 82 P. 51.

51. Allen v. Labsap, 188 Mo. 692 87 S. W. 926.

52. Hinrichs v. Interurban St. R. Co., 43 Misc. 654, 88 N. Y. S. 193.

53. Tort and contract. See Civ. Code Prac. §§ 85, 86. Thompson v. Randall [Ky.] 90 S. W. 251. Objection that two causes of action were blended contrary to Code Civ. Proc. § 672. Ayotte v. Nadeau, 32 Mont. 498, 81 P. 145.

54. That counter affidavit offered on a motion to change venue was not verified properly cannot be urged for the first time on appeal. Wadleigh v. Phelps, 147 Cal. 541, 82 P. 200.

55. Waterman v. Irby [Ark.] 89 S W. 844.

56. See Code Civ. Proc. § 434. Bell v. Thompson, 147 Cal. 689, 82 P. 327. Foreclosure proceedings. Horn v. United States Min. Co. [Or.] 81 P. 1009. Though the complaint as a whole, however many paragraphs it may contain, may be attacked by assignment of error for want of sufficient facts, such initial attack cannot be made upon the paragraphs severally of a complaint containing a number of paragraphs. Ellison v. Towne, 3 Ind. App. 22, 72 N. E. 270. But see Weidner v. Olivit, 108 App. Div. 122, 96 N. Y. S. 37, when it was held that where the complaint is not challenged by demurrer or motion to dismiss on the ground that it does not state a cause of action, such question will not be considered on appeal.

sufficient on appeal if it is sufficient to bar another action.[57] A petition assailed for the first time on appeal will be liberally construed.[58]

To evidence.[59]—The admission of evidence will not be reviewed on appeal where no objection was made below,[60] nor can a party object for the first time on appeal to an instruction based on evidence not objected to by him,[61] nor to depositions not objected to below,[62] but the court may, of its own motion, exclude evidence, though not objected to;[63] and in suits in chancery formal objections to the evidence admitted are not necessary to preserve the question for review, the verdict of the jury in such cases being merely advisory,[64] nor will failure to object to evidence on a first trial necessarily preclude on objection on the second,[65] nor is a party required to object to the introduction of documentary evidence where 57. Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators & Paperhangers v. Moore [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 262; Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Beales [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 551; Griffin v. Miller [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 598.

58. First Nat. Bank v. Thompkins [Neb.] 94 N. W. 717.

59. See 4 C. L. 1377.

60. Featherstone Foundry & Machine Co. v. Criswell [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 30; American Ins. Co. v. Walston, 111 Ill. App. 133; Bragg v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo.] 91 S. W. 527; Moore v. Kersey [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1073; Forrester v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 401; In re Arnold's Estate, 147 Cal. 583, 82 P. 252; Hagins v. Aetna Life Ins. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 683; Shores v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 699; Armour Packing Co. v. Vietch-Young Produce Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 680; E. Rose & Co. v. Woods [Ala.] 39 So. 581; Howell v. Commercial Bank [Fla.] 40 So. 76; MacFeat v. Philadelphia, W. & B. R. Co. [Del.] 62 A. 898; Berry v. Evans [Ky.] 89 S. W. 12. Where tax proceedings are admitted in evidence in support of a title, and no objection is made to their admission, they will be presumed to be regular. Blake v. Grondin [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 353, 104 N. W. 423. Evidence of expenses incurred by plaintiff, who was a minor, in the medical treatment of the injury sued for. Andrews v. Chicago & G. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 404. Where no objection was made to an invoice being admitted in evidence, no question could be raised on appeal as to the admissibility of any part of such invoice. Lundvick v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 429. Parol evidence. Wagner v. Ellis, 85 Miss. 422, 37 So. 959. Objection to evidence in defense of written instrument sued on. First Nat. Bank v. Carter [Mich.] 101 N. W. 585. Objection to evidence of alteration of written contract by a parol agreement on ground that the agreement was not executed. Barton v. Koon [S. D.] 104 N. W. 521. Evidence outside the issues must be objected to or the appellate court will consider the pleadings amended so as to admit it. Coe v. Rockman [Wis.] 106 N. W. 290, and see Maul v. Steele [Minn.] 104 N. W. 4; Union Pac. R. Co. v. Thompson [Neb.] 106 N. W. 598. Evidence admitted without objection should go to the jury though outside the issues. Capital Lumber Co. v. Barth [Mont.] 81 P. 994. Objection that testimony in chancery was not signed by witness cannot be first made on appeal. Tyler v. Toph [Fla.] 40 So. 624. Where in an action upon a justice's judgment a copy of the execution issued by the justice, which was attached to the justice's deposition, was admitted without objection, if there was any difference between such copy and the original it was competent for the officer who executed it to explain such difference. Peeples v. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 61. Opinion of witness as to whether land was formed by accretion. Mallory v. Brademyer [Ark.] 89 S. W. 551. Opinion of witnesses as to damages in condemnation proceedings. Shirley v. Southern R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 124. Estimate of a city council as to the number of feet of paving that a street railroad should pay for while the proceedings were pending before the council. Marshalltown, Light Power & R. Co. v. Marshalltown, 127 Iowa, 637, 103 N. W. 1005. Objection to the certificate of acknowledgment to a deed. Kane v. Sholars [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 937. That the answer of a witness is not responsive. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bath [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 55. Hearsay. Ehrlich v. Weber, 114 Tenn. 711, 88 S. W. 188. Where defendant's motion for a continuance was overruled on the condition that his affidavit might be read as the deposition of an absent witness, to which the plaintiff made no objection at the time. Humboldt Bldg. Ass'n v. Ducker's Adm'r, 27 Ky. L. R. 1007, 87 S. W. 766. Objection to question as being too broad. Witness was asked as to the financial condition of a person during a certain year, and the evidence was pertinent to such condition during a part of such year only, but no objection was made to the question as being too broad. Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla.] 40 So. 29.

61. Instruction that jury might consider the expenses incurred by the plaintiff, who was a minor, in the treatment of the injury sued for. Andrews v. Chicago & G. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 404.

62. Reading of depositions. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 949, 89 S. W. 983. A party who is present at the taking of a deposition cannot object for the first time on the trial that the deposition was in narrative form. Paterson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 621.

63. See Code Civ. Proc. § 125, Subd. 1-5. Boyer v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Cal. App.] 81 P. 671.

64. Bird v. Bird, 218 Ill. 158, 75 N. E. 760.

65. The fact that a portion of a witness' testimony, though incompetent, was admitted without objection on a former trial, does not preclude an objection to such incompetent part of the testimony at a subsequent he is not aware of the purpose for which it is introduced.[66] Failure to object to testimony when offered does not preclude objection at trial for variance.[67]

Failure to object to the sufficiency of evidence admits its sufficiency,[68] but failure to object to the admission of evidence does not admit its legal sufficiency for the purpose for which it is introduced.[69]

Time of objection.[70]—Objections to the competency of a witness which are made for the first time after the witness has testified are too late.[71] Likewise, an objection to a question should be made before the question is answered,[72] but where the question is unobjectionable and the vice in the answer is that it is unresponsive, an objection immediately following the answer is in proper time,[73] such an objection being equivalent to a motion to exclude,[74] but a motion to exclude after the conclusion of the examination of the witness comes too late.[75] An objection to the admission of evidence which is made by a request for an instruction comes too late.[76] So also, objection to introduction of documentary evidence must be made and determined before final submission of the case,[77] except where the purpose for which the evidence is offered does not appear.[78] Objection for variance between the pleadings and proof need not be made by objection to the evidence, but may be taken by motion to dismiss at the close of the plaintiff's case,[79] nor can an objection that evidence tends to vary a written contract be raised before the writing is in evidence.[80]

Where no objection to a plea is made on account of its not being verified, objections to the evidence under such plea will not be considered.[81] An objection to a juror on account of his having been convicted of a felony should be made before the trial.[82] Objection to remarks or argument of counsel must be made at the time.[83]

While the usual practice in moving for the denial of a motion for a new trial on the ground of laches is to make the motion when the motion for a new trial comes up for disposition, it is not necessary to wait for such time and the motion may be made at any time.[84] An objection that a proposed statement has not been presented to the judge in time must be urged when the statement is presented for settlement, and, if the objection is overruled, the party must have his objection in trial after the death of the witness. Meekins v. Norfolk & S. R. Co, 136 N. C. 1, 48 S. E. 501.

66. Swainson v. Scott [Tenn.] 76 S. W. 909.

67. Kalispell Liquor & Tobacco Co. v. McGovern [Mont.] 84 P. 709.

68. Keller v. Schwartz, 93 N. Y. S. 620; Warth v. L. Loewenstein & Sons, 219 Ill. 222, 76 N. E. 379; Mitchell v. Pinckney, 127 Iowa, 696, 104 N. W. 286; Jennings v. Edgefield Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 113; Bankers' Union of the World v. Nabors, 36 Tex. Civ. App. 38, 81 S. W. 91. Failure of proof of connection between admitted facts. Clinberg v. Interurban St. R. Co., 92 N. Y. S. 1.

69. Failure to object to notice to quit admits the authority of the attorney who signed it, but not the sufficiency of the notice. McClung v. McPherson [Or.] 82 P. 13.

70. See 4 C. L. 1381.

71. Davis v. Hall [Iowa] 105 N. W. 122.

72. Hebert v. Hebert [S. D.] 104 N. W. 911; Dunnett & Slack v. Gibson [Vt.] 63 A. 141; Poindexter & Orr Live Stock Co. v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Mont.] 83 P. 886; Waddell v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 680, 88 S. W. 765.

73. Waddell v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 680, 88 S. W. 765; Brown v. Brown, 96 N. Y. S. 1002.

74. Waddell v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 113 Mo. App. 680, 88 S. W. 765. See ante, § 3. Mode of objection, whether by objection, motion, or request.

75. Franklin v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 979.

76. Flanagan Mills & Elevator Co. v. Geo. A. Adams Grain Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 1035; St. Louis & S. W. R. Co. v. Foster [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 450.

77. Kirby's Dig. §§ 2743, 3190. Boynton v. Ashabraner [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1011.

78. Swainson v. Scott [Tenn.] 76 S. W. 909.

79. Fiorito v. Interurban St. R. Co., 95 N. Y. S. 528.

80. Mason v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 71 S. C. 150, 50 S. E. 781.

81. Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290.

82. Turley v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 934.

83. Champagne v. Hamey, 189 Mo. 709, 88 S. W. 92. Objections which are not made until after the case has been decided by the jury are too late. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Martin [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 387.

84. Ryer v. Rio Land & Imp. Co., 147 Cal. 462, 82 P. 62.

support of it incorporated in the statement so as to avail himself of it as a reason why a motion for a new trial should be denied, or in order to present the question on appeal from the order granting or overruling the motion for a new trial,[85] but this rule applies only to objections urged at the time the proposed statement comes up for settlement, and has no application to objections or motions made subsequent to the order settling the statement and which are urged at the time the statement is presented for certification.[86]

§ 5. Necessity of motion or request. In general.[87]—Where no motion is made in an intermediate appellate court to dismiss an appeal as prematurely entered, the question of jurisdiction cannot be raised on appeal to a higher court.[88] Variance in name of defendant between pleadings and default judgment must be raised by motion to set aside.[89] Failure to prove conspiracy between defendants jointly sued must be saved by motion to require election between defendants.[90] One petitioning for opening of default and trial of issues waives jury trial by not demanding it when petition is filed.[91] Inspection of exhibit refused by counsel must be requested of court to save right.[92]

Motion for judgment or nonsuit, or direction of verdict.[93]—In order to preserve the question of the sufficiency of the evidence a motion must be made at the close of all the evidence for a directed verdict, and an exception taken to the action of the court in overruling such motion.[94] Where testimony properly admitted in the first instance becomes inadmissible by reason of subsequent disclosures, it is the duty of counsel to move to strike it out, and not for the court to strike it out of its own motion,[95] and where a motion for a directed verdict is based on particular grounds, no other grounds will be considered on appeal;[96] but failure to move for eventual dismissal for failure of proof to sustain a certain finding will not confer jurisdiction to make another finding to support which there is no evidence at all.[97]

85. Ryer v. Rio Land & Imp. Co., 147 Cal. 462, 82 P. 62. See Appeal and Review, 5 C. L. 121.

86. Ryer v. Rio Land & Imp. Co., 147 Cal. 462, 82 P. 62.

87. See 4 C. L. 1382.

88. On appeal from superior court to supreme court. Corsiglia v. Burnham [Mass.] 75 N. E. 253. See ante, § 4, Necessity of objection. Jurisdiction.

89. Edwards v. Warner, 111 Ill. App. 32.

90. Sehon, Blake & Stevenson v. Whitt [Ky.] 92 S. W. 280.

91. Acts 1888-9, p. 997. Baker v. Jackson [Ala.] 40 So. 348.

92. Tull v. Nash [C. C. A.] 141 F. 557.

93. See 4 C. L. 1383.

94. Earp v. Lilly, 217 Ill. 582, 75 N. E. 552; Streator Independent Tel. Co. v. Continental Tel. Const. Co., 217 Ill. 577, 75 N. E. 546. A request for a directed verdict is necessary to preserve the question of the sufficiency of the evidence. Perry v. Potsdam, 106 App. Div. 297, 94 N. Y. S. 683. In order to have the sufficiency of the evidence ruled upon so as to preserve it for review, a motion to direct a verdict, or to exclude the evidence or a demurrer to the evidence should be interposed. Where none of these steps are taken, the question is not raised by a motion for a new trial. Warth v. L. Loewenstein & Sons, 219 Ill. 222, 76 N. E. 379. Sufficiency of evidence must be presented as a question of law. American Food Co. v. Halstead [Ind.] 76 N. E. 251. A statute requiring the court to render such judgment as, on inspection of the whole record, it shall appear ought to be rendered, does not apply so as to permit a reversal of a judgment for defendant as against the evidence where the objection that there was no evidence was not raised before verdict by a prayer for instructions. Code § 957. Such defect does not arise in the record as distinguished from the case proper. Babcock Printing Press Mfg. Co. v. Herbert, 137 N. C. 317, 49 S. E. 349. Ground urged in support of judgment considered though not made ground of motion to direct verdict upon which it was entered in view of the practice in trial court whereby defendant, after his motion to direct a verdict is overruled, is permitted to introduce evidence and ask a submission of all the issues raised thereby under appropriate instructions. Brown v. Commercial Fire Ins. Co., 21 App. D. C. 325. As to the necessity of repetition of a motion at the close of the plaintiff's case, see post, § 10, Waiver of objections and exceptions taken.

95. On motion for new trial. Testimony which, when offered on preliminary examination, did not appear to be privileged communication, but subsequent testimony showed that it was privileged. Brown v. Moosic Mountain Coal Co. [Pa.] 61 A. 76.

96. Contributory negligence not included in defendant's motion. Borneman v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 208; Globe Mut. Life Ins. Ass'n v. March, 118 Ill. App. 261.

97. Herald Square Cloak & Suit Co. v. Rocca, 48 Misc. 650, 96 N. Y. S. 189.

Motion to strike out.[98]—Where no motion to strike evidence that has been improperly admitted is made, the point is lost,[99] but where objection to a question is overruled, no motion need be made to strike a responsive answer.[1] The motion should be made at or about the time the evidence is given,[2] and should point out with reasonable certainty the particular matter to which it is addressed,[3] but the court may, of its own motion, expunge improper pleadings, although the right to have them expunged has been waived by the parties.[4]

Motion for new trial.[5]—A motion for a new trial is necessary to save any questions which must be brought into the record by a bill of exceptions.[6] Under this rule a motion for a new trial is necessary to save any question as to instructions,[7] or admission of evidence,[8] or the exclusion of evidence,[9] or the sufficiency of evidence,[10] or the action of the court in striking out parts of the evidence,[11] or

98. See 4 C. L. 1383.

99. MacFeat v. Philadelphia, W. & B. R. Co. [Del.] 62 A. 898; Hagins v. Aetna Ins. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 683; Snedecor v. Pope [Ala.] 39 So. 318.

1. Tracey v. Reid, 97 N. Y. S. 1074.

2. MacFeat v. Philadelphia, W. & B. R. Co. [Del.] 62 A. 898. Where evidence is admitted on condition, motion to strike out must be made if the condition is not performed. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Schiavone, 116 Ill. App. 335; Chicago City R. Co. v. Hyndshaw, 116 Ill. App. 367.

3. O'Brien v. Knotts [Ind.] 75 N. E. 594. Where a motion is made to strike out a portion of the testimony of a witness, the part of the testimony desired to be stricken must be specifically pointed out. Vale v. Suiter [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 313; Woodstock Iron Works v. Stockdale [Ala.] 39 So. 335. Motion to strike out all of witness' testimony properly overruled if any part is admissible. Ventresca v. Beckwith, 98 N. Y. S. 134; City of Spokane v. Costello [Wash.] 84 P. 652. A motion to strike the testimony of two witnesses is properly denied where the testimony of the one is competent for some purposes. Dorais v. Doll [Mont.] 83 P. 884.

4. See Prac. Book §§ 185, 186; Gen. St. 1902, § 614. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

5. See 4 C. L. 1384.

6. Such as errors in the admission and exclusion of evidence in regard to instructions on account of insufficiency of evidence. Memphis St. R. Co. v. Johnson, 114 Tenn. 632, 88 S. W. 169; Watson v. Molden, 10 Idaho, 570, 79 P. 503. Compare City of Austin v. Forbis [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 818, 89 S. W. 405, and see post this section and subdivision as to the necessity of motion for new trial in order to preserve questions as to evidence.

Where case tried by court: It seems that a motion for a new trial is necessary in order to save questions which do not appear upon the record proper, even where the case is tried by the court without the intervention of the jury. Memphis St. R. Co. v. Johnson, 114 Tenn. 632, 88 S. W. 169. But see Bessie v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [N. D.] 105 N. W. 936, as to sufficiency of evidence.

Specification of error in a motion for a new trial may be made by reference to the bill of exceptions. See Rev. St. 1895, at 1371; District & County Court Rules, 67, 68 (67 S. W. xxv). City of Austin v. Forbis [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 618, 89 S. W. 405. New ground for a motion for a new trial cannot be added after the judgment overruling the motion has been affirmed. Benning v. Horkan, 123 Ga. 454, 51 S. E. 333.

7. Llewellyn v. Spangler, 109 Mo. App. 396, 88 S. W. 1021. Ruling of the trial court in giving or refusing instructions. Louisville Water Co. v. Phillip's Adm'r [Ky.] 89 S. W. 700. Giving of peremptory instruction. State v. Turner, 113 Mo. App. 53, 87 S. W. 464. Refusal to give instructions. French v. French, 215 Ill. 470, 74 N. E. 403. Where the refusal of the court to give instructions was not included in the defendant's writtten specification of grounds for a new trial. Odin Coal Co. v. Tadlock, 216 Ill. 624, 75 N. E. 332. Refusal of the lower court to direct a verdict and to give certain instructions was not specified as a ground for a new trial in a written motion specifying the grounds for a new trial. Id. Where an objection is made in gross to two instructions, and the objection as to one is waived by omitting it from a motion for a new trial, the appellate court will not consider the other. Carpenter v. Jones [Ark.] 88 S. W. 871.

8. Planters' Mut. Ins. Co. v. Hamilton [Ark.] 90 S. W. 283; Barton v. Koon [S. D.] 104 N. W. 521. Even in equity where the facts are submitted to a jury. Johnson v. Forrell, 215 Ill. 542, 74 N. E. 760. But see City of Austin v. Forbis [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 818, 89 S. W. 405, where it is held that no specification o error in a motion for a new trial is necessary in order to preserve the question as to the admissibility of evidence. Where a mtion for a new trial, on the ground that certain evidence was improperly admitted because the rules of law applicable to the introduction of such evidence were not complied with, fails to state the evidence complained of and does not show that the ground of objection was urged at the time the evidence was tendered, the appellate court will not consider the question. Bennett & Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank [Ga.] 52 S. E. 330.

9. A ground of motion for a new trial cannot be considered on appeal where it alleges error in the exclusion of a written transfer but does not state what the rejected evidence was. Screws v. Anderson [Ga.] 52 S. E. 429.

10. W. F. Main & Co. v. Galloway [Ala.] 39 So. 770; Dean v. Cate [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 234. Even in equity where facts were submitted to pay. Johnson v. Farrell 215 Ill. 542, 74 N. E. 760. Preponderance of the evidence. Jaeger v. German-American Ins.

the question as to whether the verdict is contrary to the law,[12] or the question of excessiveness,[13] or inadequacy [14] of recovery, or a contention that the court erred in rendering personal judgment,[15] or the denial of a trial by jury,[16] or the refusal of a continuance,[17] or the denial of a motion to remove to the Federal court; [18] but a motion for a new trial is not necessary in order to save questions which appear on the face of the record.[19] A motion for a new trial presents only rulings made during the progress of the trial, rulings made prior to the trial being presented by appeal from the judgment; [20] but where the sufficiency of the pleadings are challenged during the progress of the trial by objection to the introduction of evidence or by other appropriate method, the sufficiency of the pleadings will be considered on appeal from the ruling on a motion for a new trial.[21] The necessity of objections and exceptions cannot be obviated by setting out the errors complained of in a motion for a new trial where the record does not show that they were otherwise raised in the lower court.[22] Failure to file written points specifying grounds for a new trial does not preclude a party from review where the adversary takes no step to require the filing of such points.[23] Where motion is required it must be timely filed,[24] and the ground of objection must be specifically stated therein.[25] Motion to set aside verdict is equivalent to motion for new trial for

Co. 94 N. Y. S. 310. Evidence of tender of freight in an action for injury to cattle. Red River, etc., R. Co. v. Eastin [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 660, 88 S. W. 530. Failure of proof of a material averment of the complaint. City of Jeffersonville v. Gray [Ind.] 74 N. E. 611. Statement on motion or a new trial held to sufficiently specify the particulars in which the evidence was insufficient to justify the decision. Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106, 76 P. 976.

Where an action at law is tried by the court without a jury, the evidence may be reviewed on appeal, though no motion for a new trial was made below. Rev. Codes 1899, § 5627. Bessie v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [N. D.] 105 N. W. 936. Compare Memphis St. R. Co. v. Johnson, 114 Tenn. 632, 88 S. W. 169. Not necessary to review denial of motion to direct verdict. Satterlee v. Modern Brotherhood of America [N. D.] 106 N. W. 561.

11. Capital Nat. Bank v. Wilkerson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 258.

12. The motion must definitely point out wherein the law was disregarded. Ard v. Crittenden [Ala.] 39 So. 675.

13. See Kirby's Dig. § 6215. Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. Short [Ark.] 87 S. W. 640.

14. Recovery of part only of chattels in replevin and omission of judgment for defendant as to others must be challenged by motion for new trial or in arrest. Beatty v. Clarkson, 110 Mo. App. 1, 83 S. W. 1033.

15. Hot Springs R. Co. v. McMillan [Ark.] 8 S. W. 846.

16, 17. Hanson v. Nathan [Neb.] 104 N. W. 175.

18. Southern R. Co. v. Sittasen [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 898; Southern R. Co. v. Roach [Ind.] 77 N. E. 606.

19. Such as rulings on motions, demurrers, etc. Memphis St. R. Co. v. Johnson, 114 Tenn. 632, 88 S. W. 169. A motion for a new trial is not necessary to save the question as to whether the court erred in dismissing garnishment proceedings and ruling that the funds garnished were not subject to garnishment proceedings, and in not allowing the plaintiff judgment against the garnishee where there were exceptions to the action of the court in overruling plaintiff's motion for judgment and dismissing the writ of garnishment. Smith v. Marker [Ind. T.] 90 S. W. 611. A motion for a new trial is not necessary in order to obtain a review of the judgment of the district court on the hearing of an appeal from an order of the license board granting or refusing license to sell intoxicating liquors. Lee v. Brittain [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1076.

20. Ayotte v. Nadeau, 32 Mont. 498, 81 P. 145. Unless an order denying or granting a new trial made after judgment is appealed from either alone or in connection with an appeal from the judgment, the sufficiency of the evidence will not be considered on an appeal from the judgment alone. Contra, where the order is made before judgment. Foss v. Van Wagenen [S. D.] 104 N. W. 605.

21. Ayotte v. Nadeau, 32 Mont. 498, 81 P. 145.

22. Bird v. Bird, 218 Ill. 158, 75 N. E. 760. A motion for a new trial does not present or preserve for appeal the question of proper parties. Lamb v. Hall, 147 Cal. 37, 81 P. 286. See ante, § 4, Necessity of objection, and post, § 7, Necessity of exception.

23. Streator Independent Tel. Co. v. Continental Tel. Const. Co., 118 Ill. App. 14.

24. Widman v. American Cent. Ins. Co. [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 1003.

25. Miller v. Nuckolls [Ark.] 91 S. W. 759. A ground of motion for new trial complaining of the admission of evidence which does not show that the objections set out in the motion were raised at the time the evidence was offered will not be considered. Pool v. Warren County, 123 Ga. 205, 51 S. E. 328. A motion for a new trial in an action for breach of contract to supply electric current, on the ground that the jury visited defendant's power plant and were probably influenced by what they saw, is too vague to require consideration on appeal. Wofford & Rathbone v. Buchel Power & Irr. Co., 35 Tex. Civ. App. 531, 80 S. W. 1078. That verdict is 'contrary to law' is an inadequate specification in motion for new trial to permit re-purposes of review.[26] To review denial of new trial request must be made for filing of reasons for such denial.[27]

Request for instructions.[28]—In some states the law of the case must be given to the jury even though no request for instructions is made,[29] but failure to give instructions will not be considered on appeal where none were asked.[30] The fact that the court should have given a fuller charge cannot be taken advantage of by excepting to instructions which were correct and pertinent so far as they went,[31] and where a party desires an instruction upon any particular matter, he must make a request therefor.[32] In the absence of such a request the appellate court will not consider the failure of the trial court to modify instructions given,[33] or to submit the case upon a particular theory,[34] or to submit particular issues to the jury,[35] or to instruct in regard to a particular defense,[36] or to instruct in regard to the pleadings,[37] or the evidence,[38] but if the court intimate an opinion that view of instructions. Daitz v. Lensinger [Ark.] 91 S. W. 755.

26. Morgan v. Keller [Mo.] 92 S. W. 75.

27. Moore v. Hartford Life Ins. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 13, 106 N. W. 1116.

28. See 4 C. L. 1386.

29. Overhouser v. American Cereal Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 113.

30. Borneman v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 208; Oneal v. Weisman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 503, 88 S. W. 290; Freeman v. Slay [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 664, 88 S. W. 404. In suit relating to boundaries. Berry v. Evans [Ky.] 89 S. W. 12.

31. Georgia F. & A. R. Co. v. Lasseter [Ga.] 51 S. E. 15.

32. Court failed to explain doctrine of res ipsa loquitur. Lyles v. Brannon Carbonating Co. [N. C.] 52 S. E. 233. Failure to instruct on burden of proof and credibility of witnesses. Carpenter v. Jones [Ark.] 88 S. W. 871. Measure of damages in action for injuries to passenger. Louisville R. Co. v. Blum [Ky.] 89 S. W. 186.

33. McCarthy v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 96 N. Y. S. 140; Jennings v. Edgefield Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 113. Where an instruction is correct except that it singles out a particular fact, a party desiring to save an objection on this account should request a modification of the instruction. National Fire Ins. Co. v. O'Bryan [Ark.] 87 S. W. 129.

34. York v. New York, O. & W. R. Co., 108 App. Div. 126, 95 N. Y. S. 1105.

35. Jennings v. Edgefield Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 113; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Holyfield [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 353; Raum v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 92 S. W. 426; Smith v. Newberry [N. C.] 53 S. E. 234; Goodwin v. Mitchell [Miss.] 38 So. 657. Circumstances under which the violation of a speed ordinance might be the proximate cause of injury to a licensee. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Penny [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 196, 87 S. W. 718. Assumption of risk by servant. Smith v. Fordyce, 190 Mo. 1, 88 S. W. 679. Issue of punitive damages and sufficiency of evidence to sustain a finding therefor. Roundtree v. Charleston & W. C. R. Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 231; Jennings v. Edgefield Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 113. Issue in proceedings to compel railroad company to construct overhead crossing as to whether a grade crossing would not be sufficient. Herrstrom v. Newton & N. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 436. The trial court cannot, after the case has been tried and a judgment entered on a special verdict, make findings covering issues tendered on the trial but which the parties fail to have submitted to the jury. Coke & Reardon v. Ikard [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 232, 87 S. W. 869. Failure to submit an issue will not be a ground for reversal unless its submission is requested in writing by the party complaining in the judgment. Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 1331. Mecaskey v. Morris [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 1085.

Sufficiency of request to raise issue: A request limiting the plaintiff's damages to the sum paid by him for the transmission and delivery of a telegram was sufficient to raise the question as to the right of the plaintiff to recover for mental suffering. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Haley [Ala.] 39 So. 386. A request for a ruling that there was no sufficient evidence to authorize a finding that the proper statutory notice of injury was given to the defendant town within the time required by the statute did not raise the question of the form of the notice where the record showed that the defendant intended merely to raise the question of the time. McCarthy v. Dedham, 188 Mass. 204, 74 N. E. 319.

36. Hubbard v. Mobile & O. R. Co., 112 Mo. App. 459, 87 S. W. 52. An objection that the instructions do not include all of the defenses urged by defendant must be raised by a request. Metropolitan St. R. Co. v. Wishert [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 799, 89 S. W. 460. In an action against the carrier for injury to live stock, the court instructed the jury that unless they believed there was an agreement as to the freight rates to be paid before the cars were placed and loaded the plaintiff would not be entitled to recover anything because of such charges, but failed to instruct as to the effect of a written contract, set up by the defendant, upon an oral contract set up by the plaintiff. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Miller [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 587, 88 S. W. 499.

37. Georgia, F. & A. R. Co. v. Lasseter [Ga.] 51 S. E. 15. Where a prayer was based on the evidence without making any reference to the pleadings, the appellate court cannot consider the pleadings for the purpose of determining its correctness. Home Friendly Soc. v. Roberson, 100 Md. 85, 59 A. 279.

38. Objection that certain items were omitted from courts summary of evidence.

there is no evidence on a certain issue, the party is relieved of making a formal request for its submission.[39] Nor can a party, in the absence of a proper request, complain that an instruction is not sufficiently specific,[40] or explicit,[41] or full,[42] or is too technical,[43] or failure to properly explain or define words or terms used in the instructions given,[44] or that any such word or term is misleading.[45]

Where a party wishes a written instruction he must request it,[46] and where a party requests two special instructions upon the same issue, he cannot complain if the court fails to select and give the one most favorable to him.[47]

Request for findings.[48]—Where no request for findings are made, failure to make them cannot be urged on appeal.[49] So also, where a cause is tried by the court without the intervention of a jury, its judgment is not subject to review where no special findings of facts are requested or made.[50] Requests for findings of law are necessary in order to preserve any question in regard to the same.[51]

Requests for findings must be made in proper time.[52] On court trial no errors of law are presented unless propositions were submitted.[53]

Horr v. C. W. Howard Paper Co. [Wis.] 105 N. W. 668. Instruction to support which there was no evidence. Davis v. Richardson [Ark.] 89 S. W. 318. Where evidence is competent for any purpose the court, in the absence of a request, is not bound to limit its effect, but where the court of its own motion makes an erroneous charge as to the effect of the evidence, the party injured may justly complain, though he made no request covering the subject. Lundvick v. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. [Iowa] 104 N. W. 429.

39. Beasley v. Surles [N. C.] 53 S. E. 360.

40. Failure to apply law to facts of case. Georgia, F. & R. Co. v. Lasseter [Ga.] 51 S. E. 15; Great Falls Meat Co. v. Jenkins [Mont.] 84 P. 74. Instruction correct in itself cannot be attacked for generality if no request made. Ramm v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 92 S. W. 426.

41. Mitchell v. Pinckney, 127 Iowa, 696, 104 N. W. 286. As to elements of damage. Smith v. Ferdyce, 190 Mo. 1, 88 S. W. 679. As to degree of danger to which plaintiff must have been subjected by defendant's negligence to justify him in jumping from trestle. Texas Midland R. R. v. Byrd [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 185.

42. Forrester v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 401; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Paschall [Tex. Civ. App.] 92 S. W. 446; Van De Bogart v. Marinette & Menominee Paper Co. [Wis.] 106 N. W. 805.

43. Equitable Loan & Security Co. v. Lewman [Ga.] 52 S. E. 599.

44. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 89 S. W. 29. Ordinary care. Western Coal & Mining Co. v. Jones [Ark.] 87 S. W. 440. "If they were negligent in their conduct;" "proper care." Dysart-Cook Mule Co. v. Reed, 114 Mo. App. 296, 89 S. W. 591.

45. Instruction submitting to the jury the question as to whether the defendant "accepted" certain plans from the plaintiff. Hight v. Klingensmith [Ark.] 87 S. W. 138.

46. The court verbally instructs the jury not to consider remarks of counsel. American Cotton Co. v. Simmons [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 343, 87 S. W. 842.

47. Cane Belt R. Co. v. Crosson [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 123, 87 S. W. 867.

48. See 4 C. L. 1387.

49. Slayton v. Felt [Wash.] 82 P. 173. In action at law tried by court it must on its own motion make findings on all material issues pleaded. Jennings v. Frazier [Or.] 80 P. 1011. The failure of the court to cover all the issues by its special findings. Else v. Freeman [Kan.] 83 P. 409. Findings on issues made outside pleadings must be requested. Jennings v. Frazier [Or.] 80 P. 1011. A judgment will not be reversed for failure of the court to make a particular finding when no request therefor was made, and the findings made support the judgment. State v. Coughran [S. D.] 103 N. W. 31; Loyd v. Oates [Ala.] 38 So. 1022. The question of limitations cannot be considered on appeal where there is no finding or request to find, though the question is raised by the answer. Wallber v. Wilmanns, 116 Wis. 246, 93 N. W. 47.

Under Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 5029, providing that the trial court must make findings of fact and conclusions of law, a request for findings of fact in favor of a particular party is insufficient to sustain an exception to the failure of the court to make any findings at a as required by the statute. Slayton v. Felt [Wash.] 82 P. 173.

50. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Turner [Ala.] 39 So. 30; Daniels v. Crane [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 547, 104 N. W. 736. But see McClung v. McPherson [Or.] 81 P. 567, where it was held that the submission of a case to the court alone for trial is equivalent to a demand for special verdict, and no requests for findings on the issues is necessary.

51. Gibson v. Bailey Co., 114 Mo. App. 350, 89 S. W. 597. Failure to find certain facts not available unless additional findings were requested. Veatch v. Gray [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 324. Where the case is tried before the court without a jury in order to present a question of law to the appellate court, the parties should present propositions of law to the trial court See Prac. Act § 42, Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, p. 1405. Grand Pacific Hotel Co. v. Pinkerton, 217 Ill. 61, 75 N. E. 427.

52. Requests made before judgment is entered on findings already made are in time where the case is tried by the court without a jury. B. & C. Comp. § 134, requiring requests to be made at close of evidence, not being applicable to such case. McClung v. McPherson [Or.] 81 P. 567.

53. Burch v. Goodenough, 110 Ill. App 603; Brown v. Rouse, 116 Ill. App. 513; Mil-

§ 6. Necessity of ruling.[54]—Questions not raised by rulings in the lower court will not be reviewed on appeal.[55] Thus, an objection made in the absence of the judge of the court room and not renewed on his return is unavailing,[56] and in the absence of a ruling by the lower court the appellate court will not consider the sufficiency of the pleadings,[57] or the question of necessary parties,[58] argument of counsel,[59] or the admissibility of evidence.[60] An exception to the last ruling preserves the question though there was a previous ruling to the contrary.[61] A bare ruling excepted to is not available if advantage is not taken of it.[62] The ruling need not be formal,[63] and where the court declares that it will exclude all evidence of a certain class, an exception to such ruling will present the correctness thereof.[64]

§ 7. Necessity and time of exception.[65]—As a general rule an exception must be taken to the ruling of the court in order to save the question involved therein for review.[66] Exceptions to rulings are required in chancery the same as in law where issues in chancery are tried to a jury,[67] but not otherwise.[68] An exception must be taken to the refusal to grant a continuance,[69] to refusal to allow an amendment,[70] to refusal of leave to file additional count,[71] to transfer of a case from the ler v. Cobden Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 119 Ill. App, 39.

54. See 4 C. L. 1388.

55. Masonic Fraternity Temple Ass'n v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 58. 75 N. E. 439; Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla.] 40 So. 29; Howell v. Commercial Bank [Fla.] 40 So. 76; Calhoun v. Texas Quarry & Mfg. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 671; Sanger Bros. v. Corsicana Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 737. Laches. Vollenweider v. Vollenweider, 216 Ill. 197, 74 N. E. 795. Authority of trustees to make sale. Lawler v. French [Va.] 51 S. E. 180. Sufficiency of the description of the land in a title bond. Strickland v. Hutchinson, 123 Ga. 396, 51 S. E. 348. Constitutionality of Act 1904, p. 332, relating to schools. Clark v. Cline, 123 Ga. 856, 51 S. E. 617. Constitutionality of statute. Hass v. Leverton [Iowa] 102 N. W. 811. Objection as to sufficiency in the matter of description of ordinance authorizing a local improvement. Close v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 216, 75 N. E. 479. Where there was no hearing or evidence on the subject of the apportionment of the costs of widening a street between the property owners and the public. West Chicago Masonic Ass'n v. Chicago, 215 Ill. 278, 74 N. E. 159.

56. Objection to argument of counsel. Wells v. O'Hara, 110 Ill. App. 7.

57. Defects in declaration which are not specifically pointed out and passed upon by the trial court will not be considered on appeal, though they would have been fatal if properly objected to. Oulighan v. Butler [Mass.] 75 N. E. 726. Where the record shows no ruling by the lower court upon a demurrer, it will be presumed that the demurrer was withdrawn or was not insisted upon, and the appellate court will not consider it. Henderson v. Berry Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 662; Troy v. Elyton Land Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 589. A demurrer relating to formal defects only should be disposed of by the common pleas division. Keeler v. Lederer Realty Corp., 26 R. I. 524, 59 A. 855.

58. An objection to the ruling of the court in holding that a certain person was not a necessary party to the suit which was presented only by a special exception to the petition, and upon which no action was taken by, the court, must be considered as waived. Guarantee Savings Loan & Inv. Co. v. Cash [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 749.

59. Whaley v. Vanatta [Ark.] 91 S. W. 191.

60. Armour Packing Co. v. Vietch-Young Produce Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 680; Summerville v. Penn Drilling Co., 119 Ill. App. 152. When the trial court reserves its ruling on evidence and is not again requested to rule no question thereon is presented for review. Naas v. Welter, 92 Minn. 404, 100 N. W. 211.

61. Objection to evidence sustained, but court stated during argument that evidence was in. Steltemeier v. Barrett [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 56.

62. Evidence withdrawn on objection though objection was overruled. Bird v. Utica Gold Min. Co. [Cal. App.] 84 P. 256.

63. Gregg v. Barnes Co, 110 Ill. App. 238.

64. Corrigan v. Funk, 109 App. Div. 846, 96 N. Y. S. 910.

65. See 4 C.L. 1388.

66. In re Moebus [N. H.] 62 A. 170; White v. Western State Bank, 119 Ill. App. 354; Axelson v. Anderson [Colo.] 83 P. 626. Rulings on evidence and instructions not reviewed. Cutter v. Pierson, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 10; Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla.] 40 So. 29; Selesky v. Vollmer, 107 App. Div. 300, 95 N. Y. S. 130; Perry v. Potsdam, 106 App. Div. 297, 94 N. Y. S. 683.

A motion for a new trial cannot take the place of exceptions taken on the trial. Bird v. Bird, 218 Ill. 158, 75 N. E. 760; Featherstone Foundry & Mach. Co. v. Criswell [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 30. Grounds not included waived. Variance by motion to exclude evidence on other specific grounds. City of Ottawa v. Hayne, 114 Ill. App. 21.

67. Henline v. Brady, 110 Ill. App. 75.

68. Wittmann v. Wittmann, 110 Ill. App. 201.

69. Reynolds v. Smith [Fla.] 38 So. 903.

70. Sanks v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 112 Ill. App. 385.

71. Kinnare v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 114 Ill. App. 230.

law to the equity docket,[72] to the admission,[73] or exclusion of evidence,[74], to refusal to strike out evidence,[75] to remarks of the trial judge,[76] to improper remarks or argument of counsel,[77] the giving or refusing of instructions,[78] to the report of a referee or master,[79] to an order denying motion for judgemnt on pleadings,[80] to direction of [81] or refusal to direct a verdict,[82] to the findings of fact,[83] or rulings

72. Kessner v. Phillips, 189 Mo. 515, 88 S. W. 66.

73. German v. Browne [Ala.] 39 So. 742; Harnish v. Miles, 111 Ill. App. 105; Fabian v. Traeger, 117 Ill. App. 176; Schloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Hutchinson [Ala.] 40 So. 114; Asher v. Kentucky Union Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1102, 87 S. W. 1087; Levison v. Davis, 212 Pa. 148, 61 A. 819; Marcy v. Parker [Vt.] 62 A. 19. Even though the admission of the evidence was stated as ground for a new trial. Featherstone Foundry & Mach. Co. v. Criswell [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 30.

In suits in chancery exceptions to the ruling of the court in admitting evidence in a trial before a jury over objection are not necessary to preserve the question of the admission of the evidence for review. Bird v. Bird, 218 Ill. 158, 75 N. E. 760. But under Sup. Ct. Rule 67, assignments of error to ruling on evidence in an equity suit cannot be received on appeal, unless exceptions are filed either to the ruling or to the court's finding of fact and conclusion of law. Swope v. Snyder, 209 Pa. 352, 58 A. 669.

74. But where the evidence to sustain the verdict is very unsatisfactory, failure to except to the exclusion of competent evidence will not preclude a reversal on account of such conclusion. Evidence excluded under Code Civ. Proc. § 829, relating to evidence of transactions with decedents. Bernstein v. Cahen, 48 Misc. 639, 96 N. Y. S. 209.

75. Stauber v. Ellett [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 156, 103 N. W. 606.

76. Upchurch v. Mizell [Fla.] 40 So. 29; Gardner v. Pitcher, 109 App. Div. 106, 95 N. Y. S. 678.

77. Champagne v. Hamey, 189 Mo. 709, 88 S. W. 92; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Campbell, 116 Ill. App. 356; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Moore, 110 Ill. App. 304; Champagne v. Hamey, 189 Mo. 709, 88 S. W. 92.

78. Wheaton v. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 850; Zipkie v. Chicago, 117 Ill. App. 418; Hales' Adm'rs v. Gilbert [Ky.] 91 S. W. 721; Alft v. Clintonville [Wis.] 105 N. W. 561; Borneman v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [S. D.] 104 N. W. 208; Mitchell v. Pinckney, 127 Iowa, 696, 104 N. W. 286; State v. Kirkpatrick [Iowa] 105 N. W. 121; Kunkel v. Utah Lumber Co. [Utah] 81 P. 897; Dyer v. Middle Kittitas Irr. Dist. [Wash.] 82 P. 301; York v. New York, O. & W. R. Co., 108 App. Div. 126, 95 N. Y. S. 1105; Davis v. Alexander, 99 Me. 40, 58 A. 55; Palmer v. Coyle, 187 Mass. 136, 72 N. E. 844. Oral charge. Armour Packing Co. v. Vietch-Young Produce Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 680. Instruction submitting issues to jury. Sharpton v. Augusta & A. R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 553. Failure to submit certain question to jury. Twaddell v. Weidler, 109 App. Div. 444, 96 N. Y. S. 90. Answer to request for instructions will not be considered where no exception was taken to the ruling. Sibley v. Robertson, 212 Pa. 24, 61 A. 426. No objection made below that the instruction was misleading or was not supported by the evidence. Turrittin v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 104 N. W. 225. A statute requiring the court to render such judgment as, on inspection of the whole record, it shall appear ought to be rendered, does not apply so as to permit a reversal of a judgment as against the evidence where the charge was not excepted to. Code § 957. Alleged defect does not arise in the record as distinguished from the case proper. Babcock Printing Press Mfg. Co. v. Herbert, 137 N. C. 317, 9 S. E. 349.

Where the trial judge charges as requested, and afterwards charges erroneously, the latter charge must be excepted to and not the charge given on request as modified by the later charge. Sharpton v. Augusta & A. R. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 553.

79. McGregor v. J. A. Ware Const. Co., 188 Mo. 611, 87 S. W. 981. No objections to master's report not embraced by exceptions filed thereto. Hess v. Peck, 111 Ill. App. 111; Johnson's Estate, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 255; Houston v. Polk [Ga.] 52 S. E. 83.

80. Burrowes Co. v. Rapid Safety Filter Co., 97 N. Y. S. 1048.

81. Wood v. Rairden, 97 N. Y. S. 735; Beckwith v. Dierks Lumber & Coal Co. [Neb.] 106 N. W. 442.

82. Such an exception is necessary to the review of the sufficiency of the evidence. Earp v. Lilly, 217 Ill. 582, 75 N. E. 552. Denial of motion for directed verdict need not be excepted to (Satterlee v. Modern Brotherhood of America [N. D.] 106 N. W. 561); but the sufficiency of evidence is presented on appeal from an order denying a new trial, though there is no sufficient exception to the refusal to direct a verdict (Weizinger v. Erie R. Co., 106 App. Div. 411, 94 N. Y. S. 869).

83. Cartsens v. Alaska S. S. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 691; Fleer v. Reagan, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 170; Grand Pacific Hotel Co. v. Pinkerton, 118 Ill. App. 89; Adams v. Casey [Wash.] 80 P. 853; Empire Realty Corp. v. Sayre, 107 App. Div. 415, 95 N. Y. S. 371. Where no exception is taken to a statement of fact in a finding, such statement will be held on appeal as conclusive. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101. Where no exception below, findings of referee and decree thereon will not be reviewed. Lockhaven Trust & Safe Deposit Co. v. U. S. Mortg. & Trust Co. [Colo.] 81 P. 804. The statement will not be striken for failure to except to the findings but will be held for the sole purpose of reviewing that portion thereof which has to do with the exclusion of evidence by appellants. Bringgold v. Bringgold [Wash.] 82 P. 179.

When rule inapplicable: No exception to findings of fact made by the court without a jury is necessary to a review of such questions on appeal to the appellate division. Henderson v. Dougherty, 95 App. Div. 346, 88 N. Y. S. 665. See, also, Sutherland v. St. Lawrence County, 103 App. Div. 597, 93 N. Y. S. 958. Where the judgment is excepted to and the record contains a statement of the on propositions of law submitted [84] to order for judgment,[85] to an order discharging rule for judgment,[86] to the judgment of the trial court,[87] and to denial of new trial;[88] but inadvertent omission of exceptions from the printed case will not preclude a review;[89] nor will a party be precluded by failure to take exceptions where it was impossible for him to do so;[90] nor where there is a mutual understanding between court and counsel that no exceptions need be taken in order to preserve a certain question,[91] and where justice requires it, the court may disregard the failure to take exception;[92] and judgment based on a reservation of a point of law which is not properly made will be reversed whether an exception has been taken or not.[93] Errors apparent on the face of the record will be reviewed though not excepted to,[94] and the trial court may grant new trial for errors not excepted to.[95] Specification in motion for new trial does not cure failure to except.[96]

Time of taking exceptions.[97]—Where it does not affirmatively appear from the bill of exceptions that exception was taken in due time, the writ of error will be dismissed.[98] Exceptions may be taken at any time before verdict.[99] Exceptions facts, the findings may be assailed although no exceptions to them has been taken. Brenton v. Peck [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 214, 87 S. W. 898. Though there be no exceptions to the findings, the court will examine rulings as to the exclusion of evidence where proper exceptions were taken to same. Smith v. Glenn [Wash.] 82 P. 605. Where the findings of fact are not filed until after the appeal has been perfected, the failure of the appellant to except to such findings will not preclude him from objecting to them in the appellate court. Brenton v. Peck [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 214, 87 S. W. 898. Conclusion of law. Adams v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. [Ind.] 74 N. E. 991. Where the trial court upon request states separately its conclusion of law and fact, there must be an exception to the conclusions of law. A motion for a new trial in the absence of such exception will not cure the omission. Providence Washington Ins. Co. v. Paducah Towing Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 722.

84. Gratiot St. Warehouse Co. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 675.

85. Miller v. Cambria County, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 591.

86. Chambers v. McLean, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 551.

87. Gadsden Distilling Co. v. Keddedy Stave & Cooperage Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 622. Judgment for cost. Keene v. Sappington [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 144. Order of court setting aside report of commissioners in condemnation proceedings and appointing a new commission. City of St. Louis v. Lawton, 189 Mo. 474, 88 S. W. 80. An exception to the judgment is necessary in order to save any question as to the findings of the trial judge. Wallace v. North Alabama Traction Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 89.

88. Wallace v. North Ala. Traction Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 89; Hawley v. Huth, 114 Ill. App. 29; Moore v. Hartford Life Ins. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 13, 106 N. W. 1116; Sicher v. Rambousek [Mo.] 91 S. W. 68; Kiesewetter v. Supreme Tent of the Knights of the Maccabees of the World, 112 Ill. App. 48; Jacksonville Elec. Co. v. Adams [Fla.] 39 So. 183. A party cannot raise objection to the judgment in the absence of an exception to overruling the motion for a new trial. Reedy Elevator Mfg. Co. v. Mertz, 107 Mo. App. 28, 80 S. W. 684.

89. Where the trial court in granting plaintiff's motion for the direction of a verdict remarked that the motion was granted "subject to the exceptions as taken by the defendant," the appellate court will presume either that exceptions were taken and inadvertently omitted, or that there was a mutual understanding between court and counsel that no exceptions need be taken. Hamilton v. Pelonsky, 48 Misc. 554, 96 N. Y. S. 216.

90. Where a motion or nonsuit is decided after conclusion of the trial and evidenced by an order formally entered, and there was no opportunity to except, the appellate division will review the order as though exception was taken. Sutherland v. St. Lawrence County, 103 App. Div. 597, 93 N. Y. S. 958. See, also, Brenton v. Peck [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 214, 87 S. W. 898. Objections and exceptions by the party in default, are not required to review proceedings on inquest of damages. Chicago & M. Elec. R. Co. v. Krempel, 116 Ill. App. 253.

91. Hamilton v. Pelonsky, 48 Misc. 554, 96 N. Y. S. 216; Odell v. Petty [S. D.] 104 N. W. 249. A certificate of the trial to the effect that an exception is deemed to be taken to each of his rulings without the formality of an exception really being taken is insufficient to preserve the question for review unless such exceptions are incorporated in a bill of exceptions. McLennon v. Fenner [S. D.] 104 N. W. 218.

92. To send the petitioner to the superior court merely or the purpose of representing the questions in a formal manner is usually considered unnecessary when the questions are so presented that they can be fairly considered. In re Moebus [N. H.] 62 A. 170.

93. Cover v. Hoffman [Pa.] 62 A. 836.

94. Elliott v. Elliott [Colo.] 83 P. 630.

95. Nagle v. Laxton [Mass.] 77 N. E. 719.

96. Zipkie v. Chicago, 117 Ill. App. 418.

97. See 4 C. L. 1391.

98. Gray Lumber Co. v. Gaskin, 122 Ga. 342, 50 S. E. 164.

99. But when not taken until after the jury have returned ready to render their verdict, it will receive a strict construction by the appellate court. Twaddell v. Weidler, 109 App. Div. 444, 96 N. Y. S. 90. An exception to the submission of the case on special issues and the refusal of a requested general charge covering all issues must be taken before the verdict. Bouriand v. Schulz to instructions may in some states be taken at any time during the term.[1] An exception to the taxation of cost must be made at the term at which the judgment is rendered.[2] An exception to an order setting aside the report of commissioner cannot be made for the first time after the report of the new commissioner has been filed.[3] An exception to the overruling of plea of privilege should be taken at the time, and cannot be taken by a motion after judgment for reconsideration of such ruling.[4]

§ 8. Form and sufficiency of objection.[5]—The prime essential of an objection is that it must point out specifically the matter objected to,[6] but care should be exercised, in pointing out the specific objections, to include all grounds of objection which the party wishes to urge on appeal, for ordinarily the court will confine itself to the particular objections urged below.[7] Where a general objection is overruled, specific grounds of objection cannot be urged on appeal.[8]

To evidence.[9]—An objection to evidence must specify the ground of the objection with sufficient particularity to enable the court to ascertain the precise ground of the objection and to what portion of the evidence it applies.[10] An objection of [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 423, 87 S. W. 1167. Irregularity in summoning jury must be excepted to before verdict. Code 1887, § 3156, as amended by Feb. 27, 1894. Exceptions to charge must be taken at trial. Nagle v. Laxton [Mass.] 77 N. E. 719. Exception to charge must be noted before verdict. Leonard v. Leslie, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 63. Exception to ruling on evidence must be taken at the trial and one subsequently allowed is unavailing. Annans v. Sewell [Or.] 84 P. 395. If leave is granted, objection to charge may be made after jury retire. Dalton v. Moore [C. C. A.] 141 F. 311.

1. But if the instructions are oral they may be excepted to when filed, opportunity for excepting to them as written instructions being given by requiring filing with the clerk at least one full day before the close of the term. See Acts 1903, p. 338, c. 193, § 1. Strong v. Ross [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 291.

2. Keene v. Sappington [Mo. App.] 88 S. W. 144.

3. In condemnation proceedings. City of St. Louis v. Lawton, 189 Mo. 474, 88 S. W. 80.

4. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Dawson [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 65.

5. See 4 C. L. 1392.

6. An objection that the proceedings of a city council levying paving taxes were irregular, invalid, and without authority of law, was insufficient to raise any question as to the correctness of the council's estimate as to the number of square feet chargeable to the taxpayer. Marshalltown Light, Power & R. Co. v. Marshalltown, 127 Iowa, 637, 103 N. W. 1005. An objection that an ordinance authorizing a local improvement does not specify the nature, character, locality and description of the proposed improvement is not sufficiently specific. Close v. Chicago, 217 Ill. 216, 75 N. E. 479. But in such case it is the duty of the court to require the objection to be made more specific, and if this is not done the generality of the objection will not prevent a review on appeal. Id. Objection to pleadings. Oulighan v. Butler [Mass.] 75 N. E. 726. Defects of substance in a declaration may be raised by a request for a ruling that proof of all the allegations pleaded does not entitle the plaintiff to recover. In action for death. Id.

7. Where a demurrer averred want of jurisdiction generally, denying the power of the court to entertain a petition, not because the hearing was in vacation but by reason of a lack of power to grant relief prayed for, such demurrer did not raise any objection to the jurisdiction on account of the hearing being in vacation. Owens v. Waddell [Miss.] 39 So. 459. The authority of an attorney to appear for a party cannot be raised by an objection that there is no evidence in the case legally sufficient to entitle plaintiff to recover. Fowler v. State, 99 Md. 594, 58 A. 444. An objection that the widening of a street was a public improvement and a public benefit is insufficient to raise the question of the apportionment of the costs of the improvement between the property owners and the public. West Chicago Masonic Ass'n v. Chicago, 215 Ill. 278, 74 N. E. 159. Even though the lower court be found in error in sustaining a demurrer upon one of the grounds assigned, if there were other grounds assigned which should have been sustained, the judgment will be affirmed. Gaynor v. Bauer [Ala.] 39 So. 749. Where a statute forbids the trial of cases involving contested issues at special session of court, except where a certain notice of the session has been given, unless upon written agreement of parties an objection to the assignment of a case wherein the statutory requirements have not been complied with, filed by counsel, the defendant not appearing, and written exceptions filed, constitute a sufficient objection to save the point, it being, moreover, the duty of the court to ascertain whether the statute had been complied with before proceeding with the case. See Gen. St. 1902, § 454. O'Keefe v. Scoville Mfg. Co. [Conn.] 61 A. 961. Must not falsely assume facts as predicate for objection. Carhart v. Oddenkirk [Colo. App.] 79 P. 303.

8. Alabama Great So. R. Co. v. Sanders [Ala.] 40 So. 402.

9. See 4 C. L. 1392.

10. Senterfelt v. Shealy, 71 S. C. 259, 51 S. E. 142; Pooler v. Smith [S. C.] 52 S. E. 967; Davidson S. S. Co. v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 315; Western & A. R. Co. v. Branan, 123 Ga. 692, 51 S. E. 650. Where the objection to the admission of a record did not specify as a ground of objection that the preliminary irrelevancy is not sufficient to raise the question of competency.[11] So also, a general objection for incompetency not specifying in what particulars the evidence is incompetent is not sufficient, unless the evidence is not competent for any purpose whatever.[12,13] So also, an objection to evidence collectively is insufficient where any of the evidence is admissible.[14]. A general request for a ruling that the plaintiff cannot recover does not sufficiently call the attention of the trial judge to the fact proof was not sufficient. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Brubaker, 217 Ill. 462, 75 N. E. 523. Objection to evidence must state the precise ground and raises only the stated ground. Conklin v. Yates [Okl.] 83 P. 910. A motion to strike out the testimony of a witness because the witness testified partly from his own memoranda and partly from a copy thereof could not be sustained. If the movant wished to prevent the witness from testifying from the copy he should have interposed a proper objection. Southern R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 272. Where a witness was testifying to the value of a horse, an objection in general form, as "I object," without specifying the ground. Vagt v. Utman, 125 Wis. 265, 104 N. W. 88. Where there is anything in a stipulation relating to the facts of the case which limits its use to a former trial, such matters should be pointed out by the court on a second trial. Mugge v. Jackson [Fla.] 39 So. 157. In an action against a city for injuries caused by a defective sidewalk an objection to evidence of subsequent repairs by the city on the ground that such evidence related to a time subsequent to the injury, is sufficiently specific. Bailey v. Kansas City, 189 Mo. 503, 87 S. W. 1182.

11. Competency of secondary evidence. Michigan Paper Co. v. Kalamazoo Valley Elec. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 32, 104 N. W. 387.

12, 13. Mugge v. Jackson [Fla.] 39 So. 157; Summerville v. Penn Drilling Co., 119 Ill. App. 152; Indiana, etc., R. Co. v. Otstot, 113 Ill. App. 37; Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Hutchinson [Ala.] 40 So. 114. General objection to slightly inaccurate hypothetical question. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Wise, 206 Ill. 453, 69 N. E. 500. General objection to introduction of deed will not raise deficiencies in description. Preston v. Davis, 112 Ill. App. 636. General objection to evidence will not raise a technical ground. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Burke, 112 Ill. App. 415. General objection insufficient to question as to what was reasonable value because it had not been shown that there was not customary value. Maneaty v. Steele, 112 Ill. App. 19.

"Incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial" insufficient. Shandrew v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 320; Maul v. Steele [Minn.] 104 N. W. 4. That it is "obnoxious to the provisions of section 829 of the code" suffices to challenge competency of testimony as to transactions with deceased persons, etc. Russell v. Hitchcock, 93 N. Y. S. 950. Objection to proof of a change in a contract that it was immaterial and irrelevant and tended to vary the contract executed does not raise the objection that there was no consideration for such change. Gurski v. Doscher, 98 N. Y. S. 588. "Irrelevant, immaterial, and incompetent under the pleadings" Seestadt [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 918, 106 N. W. 1127. Objection that testimony "incompetend" insufficient to present claim that it is secondary and no foundation laid. Smith v. Hubbell [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 860, 106 N. W. 547. "Incompetent and not matter of expert knowledge" does not raise objection that ultimate issue for jury was submitted. Bragg v. Metropolitan St. R. Co. [Mo.] 91 S. W. 527. An objection to evidence as "incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial," and that it "throws no light on the issues of the case," is too indefinite and uncertain and general to present any question on appeal. Hicks v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 641. An objection that the question was illegal, irrelevant and immaterial, and an attempt to impeach the witness on an immaterial matter, is insufficient where the answer of the witness is responsive to the question, and a portion of such answer relates to material matters. Alabama Great So. R. Co. v. Bonner [Ala.] 39 So. 619. Objections to the testimony that it is immaterial, irrelevant and inadmissible is so general as to furnish a very weak basis for reversal, and in order to test their force it would be necessary for the appellate court to be advised as to the condition of the entire evidence. State v. Farrier, 114 La. 579, 38 So. 460. Objection to sheriff's deed for irregularity will not reach misdescription. Kenner v. Wilkinson, 33 Colo. 445, 80 P. 1043. To hypothetical question as not containing all the facts must point out the omission. Riverton Coal Co. v. Shepherd, 111 Ill. App. 294; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Becker, 119 Ill. App. 221.

14. Barnewell v. Stephens [Ala.] 38 So. 662; Dolan v. Meehan [Tex. Civ. App.] 80 S. W. 99; St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Frazier [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 400; Logan v. Field [Mo.] 90 S. W. 127. Where part of a question and answer is proper, a motion to strike out the whole is properly denied. Einolf v. Thompson [Minn.] 103 N. W. 1026. An objection to the whole of the witness' answer will not be sustained against a portion of such answer as a conclusion of the witness. Field v. Field [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 726. An objection to the whole correspondence between the parties where a part is admissible. Julius Kessler & Co. v. Ellis, 27 Ky. L. R. 1042, 87 S. W. 798. Part of declaration res gestae and part not. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Tullis [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 317. An objection to a question calling on the witness to repeat a conversation goes to the whole of such conversation. Tracey v. Reid, 97 N. Y. S. 1074. Where an answer is responsive to the question and contains statements both relevant and irrelevant. Alabama Great So. R. Co. v. Bonner [Ala.] 39 So. 619. An objection to the admission of a letter on the ground that the facts contained therein are not competent evidence cannot be sustained if any of the facts contained in such letter are competent. Louisville & N. R. Co. v.

that a variance between the pleading and evidence is relied on,[15] nor is a general objection jointly by several parties sufficient where the evidence is admissible as to any one of them,[16] but where the evidence is absolutely incompetent, a general objection that it is wholly incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, is sufficient.[17]

An objection, however, may be too specific, or rather too narrow, for the appellate court will confine its consideration to the particular grounds urged below.[18] Thus an objection to the competency of the evidence will not reach the competency of the witness,[19] nor will an objection for incompetency reach a variance,[20] but where the incompetency of evidence is clearly apparent, it is error to overrule an objection though based on the ground of irrelevancy.[21]

An objection that the evidence is insufficient as to any particular matter will raise no question as to its sufficiency to sustain some other matter.[22]

Where a question is objected to and the court puts the question to the witness in a different form, whereupon the objecting counsel excepts, the objection is properly saved.[23]

Britton [Ala.] 39 So. 585. An objection to "any testimony" as to an assignment is too broad to raise objection to parol proof of a written assignment. Dorais v. Doll [Mont.] 83 P. 884. Upon an issue to the effect of a diversion of water upon the healthfulness of the plaintiff's premises, the plaintiff was asked whether his wife had been sick during a certain period, and if so, what was his opinion as a physician as to the cause of such sickness, and whether he had suffered in mental anxiety on this account. The part of the question relating to the sickness of the plaintiff's wife was admissible. Woodstock Iron Works v. Stockdale [Ala.] 39 So. 335. Where a book is offered as a whole, a general objection should be sustained if any part is inadmissible. The person offering it should make his offer specific, and not having done so cannot assert that the objection was not specific. Geneva Mineral Spring Co. v. Steele, 97 N. Y. S. 996. Where evidence is in part admissible against a party in his individual right, an objection to the whole evidence will not raise any question as to its admissibility against such party in an official capacity. Evidence admissible against individual but inadmissible against guardian under Rev. St. 1895, art. 2302. Field v. Field [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 726.

15. Garfield v. Peerless Motor Car Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 695.

16. Fox v. Erbe, 100 App. Div. 33, 91 N. Y. S. 832.

17. Mugge v. Jackson [Fla.] 39 So. 157; Bailey v. Kansas City, 19 Mo. 503, 87 S. W. 1182. Evidence inadmissible under Code Civ. Proc. § 1881, relating to communications between husband and wife. Humphrey v. Pope [Cal. App.] 82 P. 223.

18. Bennett & Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank [Ga.] 52 S. E. 330; Henry v. Brown [Ala.] 39 So. 325; Sanitary Dist. v. Alderman, 113 Ill. App. 23; Michigan Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Vierra, 116 Ill. App. 476. Motion to strike evidence as not being proper for impeachment denied on ground that evidence was admissible for other purposes. Devencenzi v. Cassinelli [Nev.] 81 P. 449. An objection on the ground that the testimony as to the market value of cattle if in good condition, based on the ground that such testimony was opinion evidence, should not be sustained on appeal on the ground that the defendant was not responsible for the depreciation in weight on the cattle naturally resulting from transportation. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Russell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 691, 88 S. W. 379. In an action against a beneficial association, an objection that the means used by a doctor to secure an affidavit from the plaintiff which the defendant attempted to use in its defense was not competent to be proved for the reason that it was not shown that the doctor was the agent of the defendant did not raise the question as to the right of the court to inquire into the validity of the release. Fraternal Army of America v. Evans, 216 Ill. 629, 74 N. E. 689. An objection on the ground that defendants are not bound by any statement by an employe long after the accident, or by statements between two agents, raises the question as to whether the declarations of mere agents made after the accident are admissible. City of Austin v. Forbis [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 818, 89 S. W. 405.

19. Competency of witness under Rev. St. 1898, § 4069, relating to testimony as to transactions with decedents. Wells v. Chase [Wis.] 105 N. W. 799.

20. Reed v. Spear, 9 N. Y. S. 1007.

21. Gearty v. City of New York [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 12.

22. Where a case is submitted to the jury upon two issues, either of which is sufficient to sustain a recovery, an objection that the evidence is insufficient to sustain one of the issues will not be considered on appeal where no objection is made to the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the other issue. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Ratley [Tex. Civ. App.] 87 S. W. 407. Objection that evidence was insufficient to show that the failure to furnish lights at the defendant's station was the proximate cause of the injury not sufficient as against sufficiency to establish fact that failure to furnish lights was negligence. Id. Objection that evidence is insufficient to support a judgment as to one party cannot be urged as an objection to its sufficiency as to another antagonistic party. McNinch v. Crawford, 30 Mont. 297, 76 P. 693.

23. Chicago City R. Co. v. Henry, 218 Ill. 92, 75 N. E. 758.

To exclusion of evidence.[24]—Where it does not appear from the issues that the exclusion of evidence was improper, such exclusion will not be held erroneous in the absence of any showing, by offer of proof or otherwise, as to what the evidence was that was excluded.[25] Thus, where an offer of evidence is unconditional, no question is raised as to the admissibility of the evidence for a specific purpose.[26] So also, where a question itself does not suggest the materiality and competency of the expected answer, an objection that the question was overruled will not be considered on appeal where there is nothing in the record showing an offer to prove what facts were expected to be established by the question.[27] Where, therefore, a party desires to save an objection to the refusal to allow certain questions to be asked, he must show or offer to show the purpose of the question and what it is intended to elicit.[28] Where a party offers several writings in evidence they should be separated so as to give the opposite party an opportunity for inspection and objection.[29] Likewise, a party offering evidence should separate the relevant and competent from the irrelevant and incompetent, otherwise he cannot object if the whole is excluded.[30] An offer of evidence must, furthermore, state its purpose with sufficient certainty to show its relevancy,[31] and where a party desires to cross-examine a witness upon apparently irrelevant matters, he must show the court wherein the proposed examination is relevant;[32] but where it is clearly understood by the trial court what certain testimony is intended to prove, the failure to state the answer which the witness is expected to give will not preclude a review of the ruling sustaining an objection to the testimony.[33]

To instructions.[34]

To report of referees, etc.[35]—Where a large number of objections are presented to the confirmation of a special assessment, it is proper for the court to require the objector to specify which ones he relies on, and in such case the others on appeal will be deemed waived.[36]

24. See 4 C. L. 1395.

25. Judy v. Buck [Kan.] 82 P. 1104. If there is no reversible error in excluding the evidence for the purpose for which it was offered, the appellate court will not consider that it might have been admissible for some other purpose. Owen v. Portage Tel. Co. [Wis.] 105 N. W. 924. On motion for new trial. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

26. Hart v. Brierley [Mass.] 76 N. E. 286.

27. Regan v. Jones [N. D.] 105 N. W. 613; Judy v. Buck [Kan.] 82 P. 1104.

28. Snedecor v. Pope [Ala.] 39 So. 318; McLeod v. Andrews & Johnson Co., 116 Ill. App. 646; Geringer v. Novak, 117 Ill. App. 160; Weske v. Chicago Union Traction Co., 117 Ill. App. 298; Baker v. Moore, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 301; Southern R. Co. v. Cunningham, 123 Ga. 90, 50 S. E. 979; City of Macon v. Humphries, 122 Ga. 800, 50 S. E. 986; Moore v. Mobley, 123 Ga. 424, 51 S. E. 351; Franklin v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 979; Indianapolis & M. Rapid Transit Co. v. Hall [Ind.] 76 N. E. 242; Long v. Red River, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1048. Expected answer need not be shown on objection to cross question. Long v. Red River, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 1048.

29. But the collective tender and admission of such writings is not fatal error where it appears that all the papers were admissible and that the opposite party was given full opportunity to urge his objection to each instrument. Lee v. Giles [Ga.] 52 S. E. 806.

30. Ledger offered in evidence without specification of any particular account. Armour Packing Co. v. Vietch-Young Produce Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 680; Indianapolis & M. Rapid Transit Co. v. Hall [Md.] 76 N. E. 242. Where stenographer reads from his notes testimony given by certain witnesses on former trial, an offer to show all their testimony was rejected as too general, the relevancy of the remainder not being made to appear. Flohr v. Territory, 14 Okl. 477, 78 P. 565.

31. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Santa Fe Mercantile Co. [N. M.] 82 P. 363. The facts which are expected to be elicited by a question must be stated specifically. Id. An offer to prove a seller's lien upon goods which had been delivered was properly rejected where there was no offer to prove an agreement that the lien should continue after delivery. Meyers v. McAllister, 94 Minn. 510, 103 N. W. 564.

32. Sister testified as to age of prosecutrix in rape case, and counsel for defendant desired to cross-examine as to ages of other children in family. People v. Colbath [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 446, 104 N. W. 633.

33. Robinson v. Old Colony St. R. Co. [Mass.] 76 N. E. 190.

34. See 4 C. L. 1395.

35. See 4 C. L. 1396.

36. Clark v. Chicago, 214 Ill. 318, 73 N. E. 358.

§ 9. Sufficiency of exception.[37]—A mere speculative exception will not be considered.[38] Where a pleading contains several paragraphs an exception to the ruling of the court upon a demurrer to the several paragraphs, without specifying the paragraph as to which the ruling is claimed to be erroneous, is a joint exception and cannot be sustained unless all the ruling is incorrect as to all the paragraphs.[39]

Exceptions to the admission of evidence must state the grounds upon which the exception is based,[40] and also what the testimony was.[41] Where a number of letters are admitted, and an exception is taken to the admission of the whole lot, it is insufficient if any of the letters are admissible.[42] A record statement that the defendant then and there "accepted the ruling" of the court upon a motion to exclude evidence does not show any exception to such ruling.[43] Where a party excepts to the exclusion of evidence, he must inform the trial judge of what was expected to be proved.[44] Exceptions to report of master in chancery must be specific.[45]

Under a statute requiring that where there are exceptions an appeal to the circuit court from the judgment of the county court in condemnation proceedings shall be tried de novo, such an appeal must be tried de novo, although the exceptions taken relate to only a part of the damages.[46]

To instructions.[47]—The exception must specify the grounds thereof, otherwise it is too general.[48] Thus a specific exception is necessary to save any question as to the form of instructions,[49] or as to the submission issues not raised by the

37. See 4 C. L. 1396.

38. After verdict in favor of plaintiff, plaintiff excepted to an order transferring the cause to the legal calendar for the purpose of trying a plea of adverse possession set up in the answer. Brock v. Kirkpatrick [S. C.] 52 S. E. 592.

39. Hoerger v. Citizens' St. R. Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 328. But in Berry-Matthews-Buskirk Stone Co. v. Speer [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1114, it was held that such an exception is sufficient to raise the correctness of the ruling on each paragraph. If the court had made a separate entry of its ruling upon the first paragraph of the complaint and appellant had thereupon excepted to such ruling, and if the court had thereafter made and entered its ruling upon the demurrer to the second paragraph, the appellant again reserving an exception, etc., it would have then been the duty of the appellate court to examine each paragraph of the complaint under the separate assignments of error made. Shryer v. Louisville & S. I. Traction Co. [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 902.

40. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co., 123 Ga. 830 51 S. E. 666; Jennings v. Edgefield Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 52 S. E. 113.

41. Phillips v. Collinsville Granite Co., 123 Ga. 830, 51 S. E. 666.

42. Fricker v. Americus Mfg. & Imp. Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 65.

43. Bondman v. State [Ala.] 40 So. 85.

44. Screws v. Anderson [Ga.] 52 S. E. 429.

45. General Fire Extinguisher v. Lamar [C. C. A.] 141 F. 353. An exception to a referee's report that the referee failed to find that a certain claim set up by the defendant as an offset had been adjudicated in favor of the plaintiff, is too general to raise the question of res adjudicata. Leathe v. Thomas, 218 Ill. 246, 75 N. E. 810.

46. Shirley v. Southern R. Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 124.

47. See 4 C. L. 1397.

48. It is insufficient to merely quote the portion excepted to. Tinsley v. Western Union Tel. Co. [S. C.] 51 S. E. 913. A general complaint as to the correctness of instructions, made in a motion for a new trial is not sufficient to preserve the question of the correctness of the instructions. State v. Kirkpatrick [Iowa] 105 N. W. 121. An exception that the court erred in instructing that if the party from whom defendant obtained certain notes for the possession of which the suit was brought, in the manner claimed by the plaintiff, defendant acquired no title, did not raise the question as to the courts failure to the bona fides of the defendant in obtaining the notes. Twaddell v. Weidler, 109 App. Div. 444, 96 N. Y. S. 90. A general exception to a charge on the ground that the law was not correctly presented is not well taken unless the charge contains a single proposition which is objectionable for that reason, or, if it contains several distinct propositions, none of them contains a correct statement of law. Georgia, F. & A. R. Co. v. Lasseter [Ga.] 51 S. E. 15. Such an exception does not raise any question as to whether the charge was as full and explicit as the objecting party had a right to expect. Georgia F. & A. R. Co. v. Lasseter [Ga.] 51 S. E. 15.

49. Assuming facts which are properly for the jury. Church v. Gallic [Ark.] 88 S. W. 979. That an instruction in action for assault was susceptible of the conclusion that it allowed defendant's wealth to be considered in computing both punitive and actual damages, instead of punitive alone. Davis v. Richardson [Ark.] 89 S. W. 318.

pleadings,[50] or as to whether an instruction is contrary to a constitutional provision.[51]

An exception to several instructions should not be in gross, but an exception should be taken to each instruction separately, unless all are erroneous,[52] but where it is evident that the court fully understood the exception and had in mind the charge to which the exception was taken at the time such exception was taken, the exception will be deemed sufficient.[53] An exception should not be taken to an instruction which is modified and given of the court's own motion, but should be taken to the refusal to give the instruction requested and which was modified.[54]

In some states the manner in which exceptions to instructions may be taken is defined by statute.[55] Thus, in Indiana it is provided that exceptions to instructions may be either orally and entered of record,[56] or by memorandum in writing, signed and dated, made by counsel at the close of the instruction.[57]

To the findings and judgment.[58]—A general exception to findings is insufficient.[59] The exceptions must specify the grounds upon which they are based.[60] Thus, where there is some evidence to support the findings an exception that the findings are not supported by the evidence raises no question of law.[61] So also, where a constitutional question is the basis of the exception, it should be specifically stated.[62] Findings must be separately excepted to,[63] and exceptions to findings must, moreover, show the particular findings the refusal to make which is excepted to.[64]

A general exception to a judgment confirming the report of the referee is insuf-

50. Where notice was alleged in complaint in unlawful entry and detainer and was not denied in the answer. McElvaney v. Smith [Ark.] 88 S. W. 981.

51. Carmody v. St. Louis Transit Co., 188 Mo. 572, 87 S. W. 913.

52. Acts 1903, p. 338, c. 193, § 1. Inland Steel Co. v. Smith [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 852; Abbott v. Milwaukee Light, Heat & Traction Co. [Wis.] 106 N. W. 523; Dowell v. Schisler [Ark.] 88 S. W. 966. An exception that the defendant "duly, severally and separately excepted" was insufficient. Southern R. Co. v. Bradford [Ala.] 40 So. 100.

53. Colloquy between court and counsel showed that court understood the exception. Burns v. Delaware & H. Co., 96 N. Y. S. 509. Where unnumbered oral instructions are given as a continuous whole, a general exception to each proposition or charge without the designation of any particular one cannot be taken. The portion excepted to must be particularized by number. See Acts 1903, p. 338, c. 193, § 1. Strong v. Ross [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 291. An exception "to the underscored parts of the charge" is sufficient. Meyer v. Home Ins. Co. [Wis.] 106 N. W. 1087.

54. See Acts 1903, p. 338, c. 193, § 1. Inland Steel Co. v. Smith [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 852.

55. See Acts 1903, p. 338, c. 193, § 1. Strong v. Ross [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 291.

56. Acts 1903, p. 338, c. 193, § 9, providing that no provision of the act shall be so construed as to preclude any matter from being made a part of the record by bill of exceptions, does not abrogate the method previously provided by the statute for taking exceptions to oral instructions. Strong v. Ross [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 291.

57. Strong v. Ross [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 291. An exception to an instruction taken by memorandum in writing at the close of the instruction should be dated as well as signed. Acts 1903, p. 338, c. 193, § 1. Inland Steel Co. v. Smith [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 852.

58. See 4 C. L. 1398.

59. Horrell v. California, Or. & Wash. Homebuilders' Ass'n [Wash.] 82 P. 889.

60. Smith v. Glenn [Wash.] 82 P. 605. A general exception that rulings and findings are erroneous under the pleadings and evidence is insufficient. Exceptions to auditor's report. Fricker v. Americus Mfg. & Imp. Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 65. A general exception to the findings of the court in a suit to enforce a mechanic's lien is unavailable to raise the question as to the correctness of a finding that the notice of lien was filed and complied with the law. Gilmour v. Colcord [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 273.

61. Winnipiseogee Lake Cotton & Woolen Mfg. Co. v. Laconia [N. H.] 61 A. 676.

Where a case is tried by the court without a jury, and there is no conflict in the evidence, an exception to the conclusion of the court upon the evidence and a request for other findings is sufficient to preserve the point. McClung v. McPherson [Or.] 81 P. 567.

62. An exception to the finding of the trial court that the complainants were lawfully appointed members of the board of health of a city is sufficient to cover the constitutionality of the appointment so as to raise such point in the court of appeals where the constitutional question was the only one discussed in the appellate division, though the exception in the trial court did not specifically mention the constitutional point. People v. Houghton, 182 N. Y. 301, 74 N. E. 830.

63. Franklin Tp. Overseers v. Rayburn Tp. Overseers, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 522.

64. Mere general conversation between court and counsel will not cure the defect where the exception is too general. See Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5052 Bringgold v. Bringgold [Wash.] 82 P. 179.

ficient.[65] An exception to the dismissal of a petition for a new trial does not necessarily raise any question of law where the ground of the dismissal is not stated.[66]

§ 10. Waiver of objections and exceptions taken.[67]—A party may not only waive error by acquiescing in it,[68] or by failing to object,[69] or by failing to except,[70] but he may also waive errors to which due and proper objections and exceptions have been taken,[71] as where a party fails to take advantage of opportunity offered by the court for the correction of the error,[72] or subsequently makes an agreement, through his counsel, which is inconsistent with the objection taken,[73] or by compliance with the order of the court,[74] or by failure to assign it as error,[75] or to urge in argument or brief in the appellate court.[76]

By cross-examination as to the matter objected to a party may waive the objection.[77] He is not obliged, however, to rest his fate upon unavailing objections to improper evidence, and after all his objections have been overruled he may introduce evidence to meet that improperly admitted for his adversary without

65. See practice rule No. 27, 35 S. E. 7. Rutherford County Com'rs v. Erwin [N. C.] 52 S. E. 785.

66. The petition was under Pub. St. 1901, c. 230, § 1, providing for new trials on account of accident or mistake, and the petition alleged newly-discovered evidence. Barton v. Rowell [N. H.] 61 A. 589.

67. See 4 C. L. 1398.

68. See ante, § 2, Acquiescing in error.

69. See ante, § 4, Necessity of objection.

70. See ante, § 7, Necessity of exception.

71. Where an instruction is given on the first trial of the case, it is the duty of the appellant to point out any error therein, and if he fails to do so he cannot make any objection on account of such error on a second appeal. Lexington R. Co. v. Fain [Ky.] 90 S. W. 574. Where no demurrers are filed to pleas as amended, and the record does not show what the amendments are, the appellate court will not consider the pertinency of the demurrers to the pleas before amendment. Phillips-Buttorff Mfg. Co. v. Wild Bros. [Ala.] 39 So. 359. Where an objection to the complaint was waived on a prior appeal, and the case was retried after reversal without amendment of the complaint, its sufficiency will not be considered. Southern Ind. R. Co. v. Moore [Ind. App.] 71 N. E. 516. Cross assignments will not be considered where they were not filed in the lower court and no copy of the appellee's brief containing them was filed in such court, as required by district and county court rule 101. City of Austin v. Cahill [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 536.

72. After exception for refusal to charge, the court offered to recall the jury and give the charges, to which offer counsel made no reply and the charges were not given. Drucklieb v. Universal Tabacco Co., 106 App. Div. 470, 94 N. Y. S. 777. Objection saved to introduction of evidence waived by objection to withdrawal. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Pettit, 111 Ill. App. 172. An exception is not waived by declining to prepare on suggestion of the court a special instruction to disregard. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. McClerran [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 653.

73. Objections and exceptions taken on a trial before a jury are waived by an agreement to submit the case to the court for retrial, the jury having disagreed without any agreement that such objections and exceptions should be preserved. Grunsky v. Field [Cal. App.] 82 P. 979. Where a party consents to submit the case upon evidence erroneously admitted, over his objection, in a former trial of the case, he cannot question the judgment because it is based on such evidence. Rowe v. Gerry, 109 App. Div. 153, 95 N. Y. S. 857.

74. Order to produce paper to be used as evidence complied with under protest. City of Macon v. Humphries, 122 Ga. 800, 50 S. E. 986.

75. See Appeal and Review, 5 C. L. 121.

76. Ball v. Hartman [Ariz.] 83 P. 358; Lewis v. City and County of San Francisco [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1106; Stohr v. Stohr [Cal.] 82 P. 777; Humphrey v. Pope [Cal. App.] 82 P. 223; Sayre v. Johnson [Mont.] 81 P. 389; Riley v. Allen [Kan.] 81 P. 186; In re Antoldi's Estate [Cal.] 81 P. 278; Jones v. Ballou, 139 N. C. 526, 52 S. E. 254; Southern R. Co. v. Bradford [Ala.] 40 So. 100; Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Randolph [Ala.] 39 So. 920; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Britton [Ala.] 39 So. 585; Greely-Barnham Grocery Co. v. Cottingham [Ala.] 39 So. 567; Western R. Co. v. Russell [Ala.] 37 So. 311; Coolidge v. Hallauer [Wis.] 105 N. W. 568; Cochran v. Cochran [Minn.] 105 N. W. 183; American Woolen Co. v. Boston & M. R. Co. [Mass.] 76 N. E. 658; American Food Co. v. Halstead [Ind.] 76 N. E. 251; Springer v. Bricker [Ind.] 76 N. E. 114; Glos v. Davis, 216 Ill. 532, 75 N. E. 208; Major v. Miller [Ind.] 75 N. E. 159; Wright v. Perry, 188 Mass. 268, 74 N. E. 328; Swain v. Boston Elevated R. Co., 188 Mass. 405, 74 N. E. 672. Exception to instruction. See Sup. Ct. Rule 22, subd. 5. Garrigue v. Kellar, 164 Ind. 676, 74 N. E. 523. Sufficiency of a pleading. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Willis [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 560; Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Cox [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 290; Western Union Tel. Co. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 100. Admissibility of evidence. Mahan v. Newton & B. St. R. Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 59; Johnson v. Farrell, 215 Ill. 542, 74 N. E. 760; Carroll v. Metropolitan Coal Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 84; Benett & Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank [Ga.] 52 S. E. 330; McClendon v. McKissack [Ala.] 38 So. 1020; Baxley v. Baxley, 123 Ga. 686, 51 S. E. 591; Smith v. Smith [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1008; Capital Nat. Bank v. Wilkerson [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 28; Indianapolis & M. Rapid Transit Co. v. Reeder [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 816.

77. Morristown Mfg. Co. v. Bryson [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1016.

thereby waiving his objection,[78] nor does a party waive exceptions and objections duly taken to the admission of evidence by making use of such evidence by way of rebuttal,[79] nor by failure to except to the direction of a verdict,[80] nor by failing to accept to the final judgment;[81] but objection and exceptions to the admission of evidence are waived by failure to object to the subsequent admission of similar evidence,[82] or by failure to repeat the objection to evidence admitted conditionally,[83] or by failure to move to strike,[84] or to except to so much of the charge as is based on such evidence.[85] Asking instruction assuming competency of evidence, however, waives objection to its admission.[86] One who calls a witness as his own and does not ask him as to matters upon which cross-examination had been retricted, waives exceptions to the restriction.[87] Motion to open a judgment by confession on the merits waives defects in procedure,[88] but trial on merits does not waive objection saved to jurisdiction,[89] a fortiori is a party estopped to urge an objection to evidence where he has expressly waived it,[90] nor can a party complain of the exclusion of evidence where he withdraws his objection.[91] An objection to the sufficiency of the evidence is waived by failure to except to the final judgment.[92] So also, where the defendant proceeds with testimony after the rejection of his motion to take the case from the jury at the conclusion of the plaintiff's

78. Bailey v. Kansas City, 189 Mo. 503, 87 S. W. 1182. Especially where the objection is reviewed by a request to exclude. Plaintiff in action for damages tried to enlarge issues by proving speed of defendant's train. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Wheeler [Kan.] 83 P. 27.

79. Where one party introduces a book of entries, over the objection of the other party, without laying the proper foundation, the latter party may use the entries in the book by way of rebuttal without waiving the error in admitting the book (Hoogewerff v. Flack [Md.] 61 A. 184), nor by failure to repeat the objection when the same kind of evidence is subsequently admitted (Fethergill v. Fethergill [Iowa] 105 N. W. 377; Bailey v. Kansas City, 189 Mo. 503, 87 S. W. 1182). Need not be repeated upon immediate repetition of question. Davis v. Reflex Camera Co., 105 App. Div. 96, 93 N. Y. S. 844.

80. Benedict v. Pincus, 109 App. Div. 20, 95 N. Y. S. 1042.

81. Grand Pacific Hotel Co. v. Pinkerton, 217 Ill. 61, 75 N. E. 427.

82. McFarland v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 525, 88 S. W. 450.

83. Expert testimony admitted on promise to connect. Dorr Cattle Co. v. Chicago & G. W. R. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 1003. Evidence was received on counsel's statement that he would connect it and the connection was not made, but no motion to strike was made by the other party. Lundvick v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 970. Where, upon objection being made to the admission of evidence, the party offering such evidence states that he will subsequently supply the defect in the preliminary proof necessary for its admission, it is not for the judge of his own motion to determine whether such defect has been supplied and to rule out the evidence without a request to that effect from the other party. Hix v. Gulley [Ga.] 52 S. E. 890. Where upon objection being made to the admission of a will the court, in order to enlighten itself, orders the will to be read, and no further objection of exception was taken, the objection was waived. Admission of will in evidence. Love v. Turner, 71 S. C. 322, 51 S. E. 101.

84. But where the evidence is admissible upon any conceivable showing, a party who has objected to its introduction and moved to strike it out after it was admitted does not waive the objection by failing to repeat the motion to strike at the close of all the evidence. Bryce v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 497.

85. Where evidence as to certain elements of damage was excluded and exception taken, plaintiff need not except to so much of the charge as defined the measure of damages. Rudomin v. Interurban St. R. Co., 98 N. Y. S. 506.

86. Shannon v. Potts, 117 Ill. App. 80.

87. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Andrews, 116 Ill. App. 8.

88. Treasurer of Division No. 168, A. A. of S. R. E. of A. v. Keller, 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 135.

89. State Bank of Chicago v. Thweatt, 111 Ill. App. 599.

90. Where, after an objection to testimony has been overruled, the objecting counsel says that if the testimony does not go any further he does not care, whereupon the examination along the line objected to is discounted, the objection to the testimony already admitted is waived. Chicago City R. Co. v. McCaughna, 216 Ill. 202, 74 N. E. 819.

91. Ordinarily, when an objection is sustained by the court, and objection is then withdrawn, and the party against whom the ruling is made does not propound the question again, the matter will be treated as having been waived by the party excepting. But the obvious meaning of the statement made by the court with respect to the matter was that the court was satisfied with the ruling and would not allow a renewal of the question by the plaintiffs, and that, notwithstanding the withdrawal of the objection by the defendant, the ruling of the court must stand, the general rule does not apply. Main v. Radney [Ala.] 39 So. 981.

92. Grand Pacific Hotel Co. v. Pinkerton, 217 Ill. 61, 75 N. E. 427.

testimony and does not repeat his motion at the close of all the evidence, he thereby waives any exception to such refusal;[93] and an objection on account of refusal to nonsuit the plaintiff at the close of his evidence is waived where the defendant introduces evidence;[94] and a motion to dismiss at the close of plaintiff's case is waived by failure to renew it at the conclusion of the evidence.[95] But where, after the defendant's motion for a directed verdict is overruled, the defendant asks for and receives instructions submitting the case to the jury, he does not thereby waive his right to have the action of the court reviewed with respect to its refusal to direct a verdict.[96] Nor will the reopening case after refusal to direct a verdict and the taking of immaterial testimony necessitate renewal of motion,[97] and a previous denied request for directed verdict does not preclude a party from asking that the case be submitted to the jury.[98] An objection to doubtful, but not plainly improper, remarks of counsel will not be considered when, after the objection is overruled, no motion is made to exclude the remarks and comments upon facts not in evidence.[99] Where a party moves for a new trial specifically stating the grounds of the motion all errors not specified are waived.[100]

SAVINGS BANKS; SCANDAL AND IMPERTINENCE; SCHOOL LANDS, see latest topical index.

SCHOOLS AND EDUCATION.

§ 1. The school system in general.[1]—The term "public schools" is a comprehensive one and it should be narrowed or restricted in its meaning, which fre-

93. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. State [Md.] 61 A. 189; Bernheimer Bros. v. Becker [Md.] 62 A. 526. A motion at the close of the plaintiff's evidence is insufficient where the defendant introduces evidence and does not repeat his motion at the close of all the evidence. Streator Independent Tel. Co. v. Continental Tel. Const., 217 Ill. 577, 75 N. E. 546. Motion for directed verdict. Streator Independent Tel. Co. v. Continental Tel. Const. Co., 217 Ill. 577, 75 N. E. 546.

94. Milhiser & Co. v. Leatherwood [N. C.] 52 S. E. 782. Demurrer to evidence waived by introducing proof after it is overruled. Dowie v. Priddle, 116 Ill. App. 184; Conine v. Olympia Logging Co. [Wash.] 84 P. 407.

95. Biogioni v. Eglee Bunting Co., 98 N. Y. S. 591.

96. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Schiavone, 216 Ill. 275, 74 N. E. 1048.

97. Where, after both parties rested, defendant moved for directed verdict, which was refused, the defendant excepting, and the case was subsequently reopened and a few unimportant questions were asked, one witness being recalled for each party, the failure to renew the motion for the verdict was not a waiver. Weizinger v. Erie R. Co., 106 App. Div. 411, 94 N. Y. S. 869.

98. Seddon v. Tagliabue, 98 N. Y. S. 236.

99. Fuller v. Stevens [Ala.] 39 So. 623. The court ruled that certain argument was proper, and it was not necessary to repeat the objection to the argument along the line objected to after the ruling had been made. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Lauth, 216 Ill. 176, 74 N. E. 738.

100. Haden v. Bamford Bros. Silk Mfg. Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 7; Brillow v. Oziemkowski, 112 Ill. App. 165; Town of Cicero v. Bartelme.

quently must be ascertained from the context, being sometimes synonymous with common or primary schools and sometimes far more comprehensive.[2] The public policy generally is opposed to sectarian influences in the public schools,[3] but the offering of a prayer which in neither form nor substance represented any peculiar dogma of any sect or denomination, or taught it, or detracted from that of any other, at the opening of a public school, did not make such school a "sectarian school" within the meaning of the constitution;[4] nor does the reading, without comment, of passages of the King James version of the Bible and the offering of such a prayer make the school "a place of worship" and its teachers "ministers of religion" within the contemplation of the constitution.[5] The legislature has general control of the educational system of the state and may adopt such measures as it deems necessary to secure to the people the advantages of education,[6] except so far as constitutional provisions prescribe them,[7] and has authority to locate the state institutions of learning or to remove them to some other place in the state, as it may deem best for the interests of the state.[8] In California the general laws passed by the legislature under the constitution regarding the public schools are paramount and any provisions of a city charter conflicting therewith must give way;[9] but municipal charters may make additional provisions, or provide for 114 Ill. App. 9; Chicago City R. Co. v. O'Donnell, 114 Ill. App. 359; Peoria Star Co. v. Lambert, 115 Ill. App. 319; Koehler v. King, 119 Ill. App. 6; Nishkian v. Chisholm [Cal. App.] 84 P. 312. Remarks of judge. Miller v. Nuckolls [Ark.] 91 S. W. 759; Carpenter v. Roth [Mo.] 91 S. W. 540; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Norman [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 594. Assessment of damages on dissolution of injunction. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 1129. Where the motion for a new trial refers only to proceedings on a second trial, it preserves no error respecting the first. White v. Madison [Okl.] 83 P. 798.

1. See 4 C. L. 1401.

2. Meaning as used in Const. art. 3, § 25. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

3. That policy is evidenced in New York by Const. art. 9, § 4, and a regulation by the superintendent of public instruction prohibiting teachers from wearing distinctive religious garbs is in accord with such policy. O'Connor v. Hendrick [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 612, affg. 109 App. Div. 361, 96 N. Y. S. 161.

4. Const. § 189, prohibiting the appropriation of educational funds in aid of such schools. Hackett v. Brooksville Graded School Dist., 27 Ky. L. R. 1021, 87 S. W. 792.

5. Const. § 5, providing that no one shall be compelled to attend such place or to contribute to the support of such persons. Hackett v. Brooksville Graded School Dist., 27 Ky. L. R. 1021, 87 S. W. 792. The King James translation of the Bible, or any edition thereof, is not a sectarian book, and the reading of it without comment in the public schools is not sectarian instruction within the meaning of Ky. St. 1903, § 4368, prohibiting the use of sectarian books or the teaching of sectarian doctrine therein. Id.

6. Chapter 5384 of the Laws of 1905, creating a board of control and vesting it with the management of the several state institutions of learning, is constitutional and valid. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. It does not conflict with Act Cong. July 2, 1862, c. 130, 12 Stat. 503, donating lands for the endowment of agricultural colleges, etc. and Laws 1870, c. 1766, p. 45, and acts amendatory thereof, accepting the said donation. Id. Nor is it unconstitutional as a delegation of legislative powers in authorizing the state board of education and the state board of control jointly to locate the university and the female college of the state. Id. Laws 1903, p. 290, is a restatement of the entire law on the subject of redistricting public schools and in regard to the management and control of the same, intended to set up a new system, so that whatever power any school officer may have must be derived from that act. Gibson v. Mabrey [Ala.] 40 So. 297. The general school law of New Jersey, of Oct. 19, 1903 (P. L. 1903, Sp. Sess. p. 5), construed. Wolley v. Hendrickson [N. J. Law] 62 A. 278.

7. Chapter 5384, Laws of 1905, in providing for a colored normal school and for a normal department to the state university of Florida and in conferring on the state boards of education and control to establish a normal department in the female college, sufficiently complies with Const. art. 12, § 14, relative to normal schools. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

8. Even if the trustees of the Florida agricultural college made a specific contract with certain donors of lands and money for the location thereof at Lake City, the legislature was not precluded from removing the college to some other place. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

9. The requirement of the charter of San Francisco that all charges against teachers shall be preferred by the superintendent does not prevent the board from acting under the general law (Pol. Code, §§ 1791, 1793) and investigating charges not preferred by that officer. McKenzie v. Board of Education [Cal. App.] 82 P. 392. Const. art. 11, § 6, makes city charters subject to general laws except in municipal affairs. Art. 21, § 25, subd. 27, prohibits the passage of local laws for the management of common schools, and art. 9, § 5, requires the legislature to provide for a system of common schools. Los Angeles School Dist. v. Longden [Cal.] 83 P.

matters not enumerated in the general law, if not in conflict with such law.[10] In Kansas, laws providing for the organization, maintenance, and control of common schools may be either general or special.[11] The New York state superintendent of public instruction has the power to make such regulations as to the management of public schools as are consonant with the general school laws and not inconsistent with the laws of the state.[12]

§ 2. Right, privilege, and duty of attendance.[13]—The taxes levied by a school district are for the education of the children of that district,[14] and the trustees of a graded common school district cannot arbitrarily expel a pupil or refuse him the privilege of attending school.[15] When the question of residence and right to admission is raised, the board of directors of the district is to determine it, and the board's action, being quasi judicial, cannot be reviewed by a court and jury.[16] The legislature of California cannot confer on boards of county supervisors the power to admit, generally, to a city high school district, for high school purposes, and with the consequent burden of taxation upon it, an adjacent school district lying entirely outside the city and not being a part thereof,[17] but the statute providing for the admission of the pupils of one district to the schools of another contemplates only a qualified admission upon such terms as may be proper.[18]

246. The charter provisions of Los Angeles for the issue of bonds for school purposes do not supersede the provisions of Pol. Code, §§ 1880-1887, for the issue of bonds by a school district, although the city and district are coterminous in territorial limits. Id. Pol. Code, §§ 1617, 1662, 1663, which make provisions for kindergartens in cities and towns, when construed as not to entitle them to share in the state school fund, and conceding that they apply only to cities and towns, do not conflict with Const. art. 4, § 25, subd. 27, prohibiting the passage of local or special laws for the management of common schools. Los Angeles County v. Kirk [Cal.] 83 P. 250.

10. It is the duty of the courts to harmonize such provisions with the general law if possible. McKenzie v. Board of Education [Cal. App.] 82 P. 392.

11. But such laws are not of a general nature under Const. art. 2, § 17, and may therefore be amended by a special act. Richardson v. Board of Education [Kan.] 84 P. 538. Chapter 414, p. 676, Laws 1905, a special act amendatory of Gen. St. 1901, § 6290, is not in violation of any constitutional provision. Id.

12. Although such authority is not expressly conferred by Consolidated School Law, Laws 1894, p. 1181, c. 556. O'Connor v. Hendrick [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 612, affg. 109 App. Div. 361, 96 N. Y. S. 161. A regulation prohibiting the wearing of a distinctively religious garb, as the dress of the "Sisterhood of St. Joseph," is reasonable and valid, and accords with the nonsectarian policy of the state as declared in Const. art. 9, § 4. Id.

13. See 4 C. L. 1401.

14. The residents of one district are not entitled to free admission to and education in schools of an adjoining district. Commonwealth v. Wenner [Pa.] 61 A. 247. Where the children of defendant township attended the schools of plaintiff township, after notice given to one of defendant's directors that tuition based on the cost per pupil of maintaining the school attended would be charged, an implied contract was created to pay the same. Town District of Hardwick v. Wolcott [Vt.] 61 A. 471. Acts 1900, p. 18, No. 23, providing for an appeal by either board in case of disagreement as to tuition in such cases to the examiner of teachers, whose decision shall be final, does not apply where the question of liability to pay is based on an implied contract. Id.

15. No such power is conferred by Ky. St. 1903, §§ 4364, 4367, 4373. Cross v. Walton Graded Common School Dist. Trustees [Ky.] 89 S. W. 506. In proceedings by mandamus to compel the trustees to permit a pupil to attend school, it will be presumed that he was of the color properly admissible to the school, and a complaint is not objectionable for failure to state his color. Id. The father with whom a minor child is living may maintain an action of mandamus to compel a board of education to admit his child to the public school. Cartwright v. Board of Education [Kan.] 84 P. 382. Mandamus lies, at the relation of a foster parent, to compel a schoolboard to admit to the public schools a child of legal age and a resident of the district without the payment of tuition (McNish v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 186); and it is not necessary that the foster parent shall have legally adopted the child (Id.).

16. Commonwealth v. Wenner [Pa.] 61 A. 247.

17. Contrary to the constitutional provision prohibiting taxation without representation. Mooney v. Tulare County Sup'rs [Cal. App.] 83 P. 165.

18. An agreement for admission of pupils upon payment of tuition in advance at a rate fixed by the board of the receiving district and not if detrimental to the interests of the school is lawful. Mooney v. Tulare County Sup'rs [Cal. App.] 83 P. 165. The legislature having seen fit to condition the admission of an adjacent school district to become a part of an existing high school district upon such terms and conditions as the two districts may agree upon, the board of supervisors can make an order of admission

Separate schools for races.[19]—The establishment of separate schools for white and colored pupils is not a discrimination to the prejudice of either race, where equal facilities are provided for both,[20] but a board of education in the absence of statutory authority cannot establish separate schools for white and colored children.[21]

Vaccination of pupils.[22]

Duty to furnish school facilities.[23]—The failure to provide transportation for children living remote from the school house is not such a failure to provide "suitable school facilities and accommodations," as to justify the county superintendent of schools in transmitting an order to the custodian of school moneys to withhold from the district its share of the state school funds.[24] The statute which requires a town to maintain a high school or furnish instruction for advanced pupils in a high school or academy in the same or another town vests a discretion in the board of directors as to which method it will adopt.[25] Under the terms of an act providing for the payment of the tuition of a pupil desirous of taking a high school course, by a town not maintaining a free high school,[26] a minor who made no contract in his own behalf respecting tuition, personally incurred no legal indebtedness, made no expenditure, and sustained no loss, could not sue to recover from the town the tuition voluntarily paid for him by his father.[27]

§ 3. School districts, sites, and schools.[28]—A school district is a quasi municipal corporation, and although its territorial limits may be coterminous with those of a city, the identity of the district as a corporation is not lost in that of the city,[29] but in Kentucky, where the census enumerators of a city school district made false reports, whereby the city and its schools received and expended moneys only on such terms, and the courts cannot dispense with such conditions. People v. Hanford Union High School Dist. [Cal.] 84 P. 193. But an agreement by the trustees of the admitted district that such district would pay its pro rata share of the taxes for the maintenance of the high school district and the liquidation of the bonded indebtedness thereof, as a condition of its admission, could not become binding on the district without the assent of two-thirds of the qualified voters thereof, under Const. art. 11, § 18, and without such assent was ineffectual. Id.

19. See 4 C. L. 1402.

20. Although Laws 1905, p. 30, c. 11, establishing a graded school in Kernersville, uses the term "graded school" in the singular, it must be construed as directing the establishment of one school in which the children of each race are to be taught in separate buildings and by separate teachers, and when so construed does not violate Const. art. 9, § 2, prohibiting discrimination. Lowery v. Board of Graded School Trustees [N. C.] 52 S. E. 267. The erection of a necessary school building for a large number of white pupils is not a discrimination against a small number of colored pupils where they are amply provided for. Id. But section 7 of said act providing for an allowance of school funds per capita to the white children of school age violates the constitution, though it does not avoid the rest of the act. Id. Section 8 of said act, providing that the property of the public schools for white children shall be the property of the board of trustees, to be disposed of in their discretion for the use of the graded school did not authorize them to take the school building provided for colored children and use it for the whites. Id.

21. So held in the case of second class cities in Kansas. Cartwright v. Board of Education [Kan.] 84 P. 382.

22, 23. See 4 C. L. 1402.

24. As contemplated in § 126 of the school law. P. L. 1904, p. 48. Board of Education of Frelinghuysen Tp. v. Atwood [N. J. Law] 62 A. 1130.

25. Acts 1904, No. 37, p. 61. The board cannot be compelled by mandamus after adopting one method to select the other. Samson v. Grand Isle [Vt.] 63 A. 180. The act of a town in accepting a gift to purchase a building for a "graded school," in making the purchase, equipping the building, opening a school, and maintaining such school by taxation for two years, did not vest in the inhabitants of the town a right to have high school instruction so continued. Id.

26. Rev. St. c. 15, § 63. Goodwin v. Inhabitants of Charleston [Me.] 62 A. 606.

27. Goodwin v. Inhabitants of Charleston [Me.] 62 A. 606.

28. See 4 C. L. 1402.

29. The authority of the district to issue bonds under Pol. Code, §§ 1880-1887, is not affected by the charter authority of Los Angeles to issue bonds for school purposes. Los Angeles City School Dist. v. Longden [Cal.] 83 P. 246, citing numerous cases. In Missouri, school districts are declared to be bodies corporate possessing the usual powers of corporations, and are required to organize by electing a board of directors within 15 days after formation, hence, quo warranto is the proper remedy to test the legality of its formation. School Dist. No. 2, Tp. 240, v. Pace, 113 Mo. App. 134, 87 S. W. 580.

in excess of the amount to which it was entitled, the board of education and the enumerators being the agents of the city, the state could recover the excess from the city.[30]

Formation, alteration, consolidation, and dissolution of districts.[31]—It will be presumed that the legislature in creating school district corporations intended to impose upon them not only the duties expressly named in the statutes, but also those necessary to carry out the objects of the statutes,[32] and in creating these corporations the legislature did not contemplate, in defining their duties, to prevent them from being just, or to take away from them the power to do right when an innocent mistake has been made.[33] A special act of the legislature in creating a new school district and giving to it the property within its limits formerly belonging to the districts from which it was created[34] is not invalid as a taking of property without due process of law, or as an impairment of contract obligations, within the meaning of the Federal constitution;[35] nor is such action incompatible with the republican form of government guaranteed by that constitution, even assuming that such provisions apply to the creation, powers, or property of the subordinate municipalities of a state.[36] Where by special act a town is made a public school district, such district is confined to the limits prescribed;[37] but in Indiana a school district has no fixed boundaries, being composed of the persons residing in the township who have been enumerated and attached to the district,[38] although under the statutes providing for the transfer of children of school age from one school corporation to another,[39] the parent, guardian, or custodian of a pupil as transferred does not become a legal voter in the district to which the transfer is made.[40] Where territory is duly annexed to a city which constitutes a school district, it is annexed for public school as well as other purposes.[41] Like other statutes those affecting the organization of school districts are construed prospectively rather than retrospectively.[42] Statutory requirements must generally

30. Construing together Acts 1873, p. 39, c. 25, establishing a public school system, and Acts 1885 (Ex. Sess.), p. 48, c. 8, to reduce the acts incorporating Knoxville and amendments to one act. State v. Knoxville [Tenn.] 90 S. W. 289.

31. See 4 C. L. 1402.

32. Ky. St. 1903, §§ 4464, 4469, 4470, 4481, 4482, relative to graded common school districts, etc., must be liberally construed to effectuate their purposes. Churchill v. Highland Park Graded School Trustees [Ky.] 89 S. W. 122.

33. Board of trustees of a graded common school district compelled by mandamus to levy a tax to pay judgment for taxes levied by mistake on property outside of its taxing district and paid by plaintiff. Churchill v. Highland Park Graded School Trustees [Ky.] 89 S. W. 122.

34. Local Acts, Mich., 1901, No. 315. Attorney General of Michigan v. Lowrey, 199 U. S. 233, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

35. Attorney General of Michigan v. Lowrey, 199 U. S. 233, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

36. Const. U. S. art. 4, § 4. Attorney General of Michigan v. Lowrey, 199 U. S. 233, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

37. Acts 1905, p. 30, c. 11, to establish a graded school in Kernersville, cannot be made to include contiguous territory for the colored schools. Lowrey v. Board of Graded School Trustees [N. C.] 52 S. E. 267. The territory of the borough of Bradley Beach was constituted a separate school district by the general school act of Oct. 19, 1903 (P. L. 1904, p. 5), and was not consolidated with the township of Neptune by the supplement to that law passed March 28, 1904 (P. L. 1904, p. 272). McCarter v. Board of Education [N. J. Law] 63 A. 93.

38. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5958 (Acts 1895, p. 127, c. 54), all taxpayers residing in the township and attached to a school district are legal voters at the school meetings therein. Ireland v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 872.

39. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 5959a-5959e. Ireland v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 872.

40. Ireland v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 872. Since persons may be legal voters at all school meetings in the district (Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5958), yet not entitled to vote for township trustee, an allegation that such trustee abandoned a school district without the written consent of a majority of the legal voters was not an allegation that he did not have the written consent of a majority of the voters entitled to vote for township trustee, requisite for the abandonment of a district (Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5920f). Id.

41. Trustees of Schools v. Board of School Inspectors, 115 Ill. App. 479, Phelps v. Peoria School Inspectors [Ill.] 73 N. E. 412.

42. Act of Feb. 5, 1903, P. L. 4, relating to school districts, etc., is not to be given a retrospective effect so as to abolish two school districts that had existed more than three years, restoring the original district be strictly complied with in the formation or alteration of school districts,[42] but the requirement in the Iowa code that the election on the question of consolidation of districts shall be held on the same day and time in the several districts is merely directory, and a failure to observe it does not invalidate the proceedings in the absence of any showing of prejudice.[44] Where a statute provides that no school district shall contain less than four sections of land, unless it can support six months' school per year, the county superintendent and commissioners determine that question and their determination is final.[45] Under statutes authorizing townships to abolish school districts and to constitute themselves single consolidated districts, assuming the property of the districts and becoming liable for their debts,[46] upon such action, the township becomes absolutely liable for the debts of the districts, although there has been no equitable adjustment of property rights and liabilities as provided by law.[47] In Missouri any common school district may be organized into a village district with the special privileges appertaining thereto,[48] notwithstanding the village is not incorporated and the plat thereof may be defective.[49] In Ohio, territory in a special school district is not open to be taken in whole or in part to form a new special school district,[50] nor when the schools of a township have been centralized can any part of the territory be taken to form a special district,[51] and the legislature cannot validate the organization of special school districts created under an act declared unconstitutional.[52] In South Dakota, commissioners appointed for the formation of a school district from the parts of two or more counties may detach adjacent territory from an independent district in one county and attach it to a district in another county.[53] In Washington the county superintendent, in forming a new school district, is not restricted to the boundaries described in the petition, but may in the exercise of his judgment modify such proposed boundaries.[54]

Lapse of time and public recognition as a school district will bar any collateral and incidentally annulling a judgment obtained by one against the other. Old Forge School District, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 586.

43. Where the petition for the formation of a new school district, contemplated in Rev. St. 1899, § 9742, was not presented to the clerks of the districts affected, an election held on the question was void. School Dist. No. 2, Tp. 24, R 6 E. v. Pace, 113 Mo. App. 134, 87 S. W. 580. The provision that where the assent of the districts to be divided in the formation of a new district is not given, the matter may be referred to the county commissioner and appealed to a board of arbitrators, whose decision shall be transmitted to the clerks of the districts interested and entered in the record of the district divided, implies that the judgment of the board shall be reduced to writing, so that where no such decision was written or filed no new district was created. State v. Cummins, 114 Mo. App. 93, 89 S. W. 74.

44. Code, § 2749. Molyneaux v. Molyneaux [Iowa] 106 N. W. 370.

45. Under Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 2277. Wilsey v. Cornwall [Wash.] 82 P. 303. Where there is no showing to the contrary it will be presumed that the superintendent and commissioners found that the district could support a school for that time per year. Id.

46. Gen. St. 1888, §§ 2193, 2198. Winsted Sav. Bank v. New Hartford [Conn.] 62 A. 81.

47. Gen. St. 1888, §§ 2198, 2206. Such provisions being mere details of the consolidation and not conditions precedent. Winsted Sav. Bank v. New Hartford [Conn.] 62 A. 81. The fact that the township neglected to make such adjustment did not entitle it to object, upon returning to the district system, to the payment of the stipulated interest, during the time of the consolidation on the indebtedness of one district, on the ground that it would be inequitable as against the taxpayers of other districts. Id.

48. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 9861. State v. Gill, 190 Mo. 79, 88 S. W. 628.

49. When once the directors have received a proper petition for an election on the question and have ordered an election and given notice thereof, a majority of the board cannot withdraw the notice, their duty being mandatory and ministerial. State v. Gill, 190 Mo. 79, 88 S. W. 628.

50. By order of the probate court under Rev. St. § 3929. Scott v. McCullough [Ohio] 75 N. E. 52.

51. Fulks v. Wright, 72 Ohio St. 547, 75 N. E. 55.

52. Rev. St. § 3891 and §§ 3891, 3928, as amended and supplemented by Act Apr. 25, 1904 (97 Ohio Laws, p. 334), are unconstitutional and void. Bartlett v. State [Ohio] 75 N. E. 939.

53. Rev. Pol. Code, §§ 2327, 2410, as amd. by Laws 1903, p. 150, c. 133. Independent School Dist. No. 2 v. District No. 37 [S. D.] 106 N. W. 302.

54. Wilsey v. Cornwall [Wash.] 82 P. 303.

attack on the validity of its organization,[55] and private individuals by participation in the proceedings to consolidate districts may be estopped to question their validity.[56] The appeal to the county superintendent, authorized by the Iowa code for testing the legality of the incorporation of a school district, is not the exclusive remedy.[57]

Division of property on change of district.[58]—The act passed for the adjustment of indebtedness and property rights between township districts and borough districts carved out of them is applicable only where the districts cannot agree, and does not prevent a mutual adjustment between themselves.[59] The statute providing a method of distribution of the state appropriation to common schools was intended only for that purpose and has no application to a division of funds upon the creation of a borough district out of a township.[60]

Establishment of high schools.[61]

Sites.[62]—Lands for school house sites may be taken under the rights of eminent domain.[63] In Alabama the matter of the location of schools in the several districts rests with the county board of education and not with the district trustees.[64] The statutes of Connecticut requiring a two-thirds vote to fix or change a school house site, do not apply to consolidated town school systems.[65] Under the

55. Where a district had been recognized by both state and county for several years, the validity of its organization could not be questioned in a collateral proceeding by another district to compel a county clerk to extend certain taxes over the land therein in which proceeding the district attached was not a party. State v. Miller, 113 Mo. App. 665, 88 S. W. 637. And a taxpayer was barred by laches from obtaining mandamus to contest the validity of the organization. Id.

56. Where all the electors of a school district are present and vote on a proposition of consolidation of districts, they are estopped to question the validity of the proceedings because the petition and notice of election failed to describe the territory to be consolidated. Molyneaux v. Molyneaux [Iowa] 106 N. W. 370. Where a meeting of the electors of a consolidated district was duly called and held, and plaintiffs appeared and voted for new directors without any objection to the validity of the consolidation, they were estopped to deny the validity of the proceedings afterward. Id.

57. Code, § 2818. Quo warranto and not certiorari is the proper remedy to test the validity of the proceedings incorporating an independent school district composed of a town in a township formerly constituting a district. State v. Alexander [Iowa] 105 N. W. 1021. Where an independent district was formed from another, but nothing further was done except to adjust finances and collect taxes, one who took no part in the formation of the new district and had not recognized it except to pay taxes under compulsion, 14 months after the incorporation, was not barred by laches from instituting quo warranto to test the validity of the incorporation. Id.

58. See 4 C. L. 1404.

59. Act July 24, 1895, P. L. 259. Rouseville Boro. School Dist. v. Cornplanter Tp. School Dist., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 214.

60. Act July 15, 1897, P. L. 271. Rouseville Boro. School Dist. v. Cornplanter Tp. School Dist., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 214.

61, 62. See 4 C. L. 1404.

63. 3 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 3661, c. 122, art, 3. § 41, empowers boards of education of township high schools to perform the duties of directors for school districts, and hence, under §§ 31, 32 of the school law, they can acquire school house sites by condemnation (Thompson v. Trustees of Schools for Rio Tp., 218 Ill. 540, 75 N. E. 1048), and an affirmative vote of the electors in favor of a site, under art. 9, § 4 of the school law, authorizes the board to procure the site by either purchase or condemnation (Id.). Under Code Civ. Proc. § 3371, providing for the confirmation or setting aside of the commissioners' report in the condemnation of lands, where their award is general, being a gross sum for compensation for the value of the land taken for a school house site, it will be presumed that they acted within the law and that their award is supported by the facts which came within their inquiry, and should be confirmed. Mead v. Conger, 97 N. Y. S. 526. The Pennsylvania statute for condemnation of land for the use of state normal schools does not authorize the condemnation for a campus of streets and alleys dedicated to public use. In re Southwestern State Normal School [Pa.] 62 A. 908.

64. Laws 1903, p. 292, § 11. Gibson v. Mabrey [Ala.] 40 So. 297.

65. Gen. St. 1902, §§ 2209, 2212, as construed in the light of the course of legislation. Pub. Acts 1841, p. 52, c. 40; Pub. Acts 1856, p. 39, c. 41; Pub. Acts 1865, p. 107, c. 112; Pub. Acts 1868, p. 202, c. 102; Pub. Acts 1878, p. 338, c. 124. Benham v. Potter, 77 Conn. 186, 58 A. 735. A warning of a town meeting specified the purpose of taking action as to the purchase of a site and building a new school house, but the action taken contemplated the expenditure of a certain sum "in addition to what the present school property may be sold for." Held that, if a sale was authorized and was invalid as not contemplated in the warning, such sale was not so incorporated in or made a condition of the vote as to invalidate and defeat the entire action and render void the authorization of provisions of the North Dakota statute the voters of a school district are required to select the site of a new school house by a general designation only,[66] and the school board is required to locate and fix the boundaries of the site upon the land indicated by the general designation of the voters, being vested with discretion as to the precise limits of the site and the amount of the land taken.[67] In Illinois, the law not requiring a specification of the proposed site in the notice of an election to vote on a proposition to build a high school building and it being within the province of the voters to select it,[68] the specification of two sites in the notice is surplusage,[69] and in that state it is not essential that an expression of the will of the voters be taken at an election held to select a school house site as to the amount to be expended in purchasing the site or constructing the building, or as to the area of the site, those matters being left to the discretion of the board of education.[70] Although the law of Oklahoma prohibits the designation of a site more than one-half mile from the center of the district,[71] yet, where a change in boundaries caused by detaching territory leaves the site more than one-half mile from the center, it is not necessary before erecting a new school house that the designation of the site should be submitted to the people;[72] and when a school house site has been once selected and a building erected thereon, it can be changed and the building removed only by authority of the people of the district expressed as provided by law;[73] and when the erection of a new school house is ordered and no change made in the site by vote of the people, the board is not required before the erection of the building to submit the question of a site to a vote of the people.[74] In Washington a board of school directors has power to purchase a site for a school house,[75] and even if a board exceeds its authority in making such purchase, the action may be ratified subsequently by the electors.[76]

Schools.[77]—In California, kindergartens, notwithstanding their legislative designation as "primary" schools, are not "primary and grammar schools" within the constitutional and statutory provisions for the distribution of the state school fund.[78]

Use of building for other purposes.[79]

§ 4. Organization, meetings, and officers.[80]—The officers of school districts are generally held to be public officers,[81] and the title to a school office in case of expenditure for the purposes mentioned in the warning. Id.

66. Rev. Codes 1899, § 701. Location held sufficiently definite. Petersburg School Dist. of Nelson County v. Peterson [N. D.] 103 N. W. 756.

67. Petersburg School Dist. v. Peterson [N. D.] 103 N. W. 756.

68. School Law (3 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 3689, c. 122) art. 5, § 31, prohibits the purchase or location of sites without an election held as required by art. 9, § 4. Thompson v. Trustees of Schools for Rio Tp., 218 Ill. 540, 75 N. E. 1048.

69. The electors could vote for the selection of any other site. Thompson v. Trustees of Schools for Rio Tp., 218 Ill. 540, 75 N. E. 1048.

70. Thompson v. Trustees of Schools for Rio Tp., 218 Ill. 540, 75 N. E. 1048.

71. Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. 1903, § 6154. Stayton v. Butchee [Okl.] 82 P. 726.

72. Stayton v. Butchee [Okl.] 82 P. 726.

73. Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. 1903, § 6154. Stayton v. Butchee [Okl.] 82 P. 726.

74. Stayton v. Butchee [Okl.] 82 P. 726.

75. Code of Education (3 Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 2367). Nichols v. Pierce County Directors [Wash.] 81 P. 325.

76. A vote instructing the directors to build a school house on such site operates as a ratification. Nichols v. Pierce County Directors [Wash.] 81 P. 325.

77. See 4 C. L. 1404.

78. Const. art. 9, §§ 5, 6. Los Angeles County v. Kirk [Cal.] 83 P. 250. Pol. Code, §§ 1617, 1662, 1663, which make provision in cities and towns for the establishment of kindergartens, when so construed as not to entitle them to participate in the distribution of the state school fund, do not conflict with Const. art. 9, §§ 5, 6. Id.

79, 80. See 4 C. L. 1404.

81. In California the superintendent of schools is a county officer whose duties are prescribed by general laws (Pol. Code, § 1543), so that he could not be charged by the charter of San Francisco with the additional duty of preferring charges against teachers. McKenzie v. Board of Education [Cal. App.] 82 P. 392. In Louisiana the parish superintendent of public education is a public officer and a member of the house of representatives is ineligible to election as such, under Const. 1898, prohibitory art. 27. State v. Theus, 114 La. 1097, 38 So. 870. A treasurer of a school district is a public officer within the meaning of the Missouri statute contest as in other cases must be tried by quo warranto;[82] and in case of a conflict between a city school committee and the mayor, council, and superintendent of streets, over the right to care for the public school houses, the latter officers could not be prevented by mandamus from performing the duty until their right to do so had been settled by quo warranto proceedings.[83] In Iowa a school director is prohibited from acting in any way as agent for or dealer in school text books and supplies.[84] An election of trustees of a graded school district was not invalidated because the order for the election called for the election of six trustees when only five could be chosen, the five having the greatest number of votes being deemed elected;[85] nor was the election invalidated because a few taxpayers and voters were improperly included in the boundaries of the district, it appearing that they did not vote and could not have affected the result if they had voted.[86] Although the statute of Kentucky provides that the trustees of graded common school districts shall be classified to hold office for one, two, and three years respectively, or until the election and qualification of their successors,[87] where, owing to failure to hold elections the terms of all had expired, the election of an entire board at once was lawful, although the statute provides for the election of but two trustees annually.[88] The resignation of a member of a board of school trustees to take effect on a specified date cannot be withdrawn after acceptance.[89]

A board of education can legally act only when a quorum is assembled[90] after due notice.[91] Where the statute requires a record of the annual school meeting and election of directors to be kept, but does not make such record the sole and conclusive evidence thereof, parol evidence of such election is admissible in the absence of such record.[92] Such records and proceedings should not be given a narrow and technical construction, but so as to give effect to the manifest intention limiting the time for the commencement of civil actions against public officers (Rev. St. 1899, § 4274; Rev. St. 1889, § 6776), and an action on a school district treasurer's bond was barred after three years. State v. Harter, 188 Mo. 516, 87 S. W. 941. The office of school director is an office within the meaning of the Missouri constitution conferring exclusive appellate jurisdiction on the supreme court in cases involving the title to an office under the state. State v. Fasse, 189 Mo. 532, 88 S. W. 1.

82. Neither certiorari from the decision of the state superintendent of public instruction, who is authorized in New Jersey to decide controversies as to the election of members of municipal boards of election (Du Four v. State Superintendent of Public Instruction [N. J. Law] 61 A. 258), nor mandamus against a person actually in the office in favor of one claiming it is available. (Caffrey v. Caffrey, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 22).

83. Fowler v. Brooks, 188 Mass. 64, 74 N. E. 291.

84. Code § 2834 prohibits it and does not merely prohibit directors from acting as agents of the board, as provided in § 2824, to keep books and supplies and sell them at cost. State v. Wick [Iowa] 106 N. W. 268.

85. Election held under Acts 1894, p. 22, c. 15. Williams v. Lovelace [Ky.] 90 S. W. 983.

86. Williams v. Lovelace [Ky.] 90 S. W. 983.

87. Ky. St. 1903, § 4471. Lee v. Trustees of Shepherdsville Graded Common School Dist. No. 4 [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1071.

88. Lee v. Trustees of Shepherdsville Graded Common School Dist. No. 4 [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1071. The board so elected had authority to issue a notice of an election on the question of issuing bonds. Id.

89. And his subsequent appointment as a member of the board at a meeting at which no quorum was present was ineffectual. Saunders v. O'Bannon, 27 Ky. L. R. 1166, 87 S. W. 1105.

90. The appointment of a member to fill a vacancy when there is no quorum present is of no effect. Saunders v. O'Bannon, 27 Ky. L. R. 1166, 87 S. W. 1105.

91. A request to the chairman of a board signed by three members to call a meeting at a specified time and place is not a notice to him of a meeting at such time and place. Saunders v. O'Bannon, 27 Ky. L. R. 1166, 87 S. W. 1105. Where it was found that due notice had been given to all the members and that a quorum was present, the business transacted at the meeting was sustained. Akron Sav. Bank v. School Tp. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 968. Where the district meetings had been held for many years in an academy building which was used for district school purposes also, a notice in the warrant for a school meeting to see how much money the district would raise to establish a lighting plant for the academy was sufficiently specific. Brooks v. School Dist. of Franconia [N. H.] 61 A. 127.

92. Conceded for the purpose of this case that Code § 2751 requires such record. State v. Cahill [Iowa] 105 N. W. 691.

of the voters if it can be ascertained therefrom,[93] and the board cannot delegate its discretionary powers.[94]

Selection of officers.[95]—The municipal corporation act of California confers on cities the power of employing a superintendent of schools,[96] and also, where the school board of a city is vested by the charter with "the government" of the school district, it has the power of appointing such superintendent.[97] In Michigan the appointment of county school examiners by the board of supervisors as provided by law is the transaction of ordinary business, within the statutory provision that such business may be transacted by a majority of the members present,[98] and a person who received ten votes to his opponent's nine, the board consisting of twenty-one members, was entitled to the office.[99] The fact that a board of education appointed a person treasurer, in consideration of his promise to pay interest on the funds in his hands, does not avoid the appointment nor avail his sureties as a defense to an action on his bond.[1]

Qualification of officers.[2]—In Missouri it is not required that a school director be a resident taxpayer of the district in which he is elected,[3] but it is sufficient if he has paid state and county taxes in another county, from which he removed, within a year preceding his election.[4] In Iowa the election of an unqualified person as director in a school subdistrict and his failure to qualify does not constitute a failure to elect but a failure to qualify, and the director for the previous year is entitled to qualify as a hold over within ten days after the March meeting of the directors.[5]

Tenure of office.[6]—In Iowa the term of office of a director in a school subdistrict begins and ends on the third Monday in March, when the regular meeting of directors is held, and not on the first Monday when the annual meeting and election is held.[7]

Removal from office.[8]—Under a statute providing for the removal of county officers for willful neglect of duty, one month's absence from the state is not in itself such neglect on the part of a county superintendent of schools;[9] neither is the fact that no one was left in charge of the office during the absence.[10]

93. Resolutions held sufficient to authorize sale by the officers of the district of the school house and the building of a new one on the same site. Quisenberry v. School Dist. No. 6 [Neb.] 105 N. W. 982.

94. A contract between a board of education, authorized to manage the common schools of the district, employ and discharge teachers and fix their salaries (3 Priv. Laws 1867, p. 321), and the state board of education, permitting the state normal university to furnish teachers without legal qualifications for certain classes, and the joint employment of "critic teachers" to be paid in part by the school district, is void as a delegation by the school district board of its discretionary powers to the state board. Lindblad v. Board of Education of Normal School Dist. [Ill.] 77 N. E. 450.

95. See 4 C. L. 1405.

96. This power has been in effect affirmed in Pol. Code, §§ 1533, 1550, 1560, 1616, 1617 1714, 1788, 1858, 1874, and St. 1903, p. 388, c. 270, §§ 3, 5, 8. Davidson v. Baldwin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 238. A decision that such authority was conferred by Pol. Code § 1793, as amended in 1891, held res judicata. Id.

97. St. 1905, p. 918, c. 11 amending the charter of San Diego by providing generally for a school system for the city and for a board of education for the government of the school district, is sufficient to authorize the employment of a superintendent whose salary may be fixed as authorized by Pol. Code, § 1793. Davidson v. Baldwin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 238.

98. Pub. Acts 1901, p. 65, No. 43, and Comp. Laws, § 2476, respectively. Howland v. Prentice [Mich.] 106 N. W. 1105.

99. Howland v. Prentice [Mich.] 106 N. W. 1105.

1. Board of Education v. Brown [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 796, 105 N. W. 1118.

2. See 4 C. L. 1405.

3. Under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 9759, 5760, declaring that he must be a resident taxpayer and qualified voter of the district. State v. Fasse, 189 Mo. 532, 88 S. W. 1.

4. State v. Fasse, 189 Mo. 532, 88 S. W. 1.

5. Under Code, §§ 2751, 2757, 2758, and 1275, construed together. State v. Cahill [Iowa] 105 N. W. 691.

6. See 4 C. L. 1405.

7. Under Code, §§ 2751, 2757, 2758, construed together. State v. Cahill [Iowa] 105 N. W. 691.

8. See 1 C. L. 548.

9. Rev. Pol. Code § 1806. A general allegation of willful neglect in a complaint for removal from office without stating the facts constituting the neglect is not sufficient. Bon Homme County v. McLouth [S. D.] 104 N. W. 256.

10. The fact that there was no official

Salaries.[11]—In California the salary of a superintendent of schools appointed under the general provisions of a city charter for the government of the city school district may be fixed as authorized by the general law.[12]

§ 5. Property and contracts.[13]—The board of education of the city of Omaha may authorize its president to sign a petition on behalf of the board for the repaving of a street, and such signing will bind the district.[14] Where land has been conveyed to a school district on condition that it shall be used for school purposes only, with right of re-entry reserved to the grantor, his heirs or representatives, a mere temporary removal of the school to another school house, by a vote of the school board not taken in the manner provided by law, is not a breach of the condition.[15] School property is not rendered liable to assessment for a street improvement by reason of the fact that with knowledge that the property was not liable to assessment the school board petitioned for the improvement,[16] but where the lien of an assessment for a street improvement has already attached, it will not be defeated by the subsequent purchase of the property by a school board.[17]

School lands.[18]—A county can dispose of the fee in its school lands only by sale.[19] In Texas the county commissioners' courts, in leasing county school lands, have power to give lessees a preference in the purchase of the lands should the county wish to sell, and such contracts are not contrary to public policy.[20] Under the laws of Kansas, after void proceedings to forfeit school land contracts for default in payment and before other proceedings have been taken, no rights of third parties having intervened, the purchasers under the contracts may tender payment in full and demand receipts therefor.[21] The act of Nebraska for the registration and disposal of the educational lands is valid.[22] In Texas, applicants to purchase school lands upon the market, by complying with all the requirements of the statute, fix their rights as purchasers with all the rights and incidents conferred by the statute for the sale of such lands, and are entitled to make their payments, perfect their titles, and demand patents without any reservation whatever.[23] Where the Texas land commissioner awarded school lands, classified as dry grazing lands, at $1 per acre, but canceled the award for mistake in classification, the lands being in fact dry agricultural land, the first act was destroyed by the latter duty performed in the office does not imply willful neglect, as there may have been no duty to perform. Bon Homme County v. McLouth [S. D.] 104 N. W. 256.

11. See 4 C. L. 1405.

12. St. 1905, p. 918, c. 11, amending the charter of San Diego, and Pol. Code, § 1793. Davidson v. Baldwin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 238.

13. See 4 C. L. 1406.

14. Eddy v. Omaha [Neb.] 103 N. W. 692.

15. Act of Apr. 11, 1862, P. L. 471, requires a vote of a majority of the entire board to abandon or change the location of a school house. Birmingham Public School Dist. v. Sharpless, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 630.

16, 17. Board of Education v. Bowland, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 122.

18. See 4 C. L. 1406.

19. It cannot be deprived of any of its school lands by any supposed agreement as to boundary lines, as the doctrine of agreed boundary is founded on the idea of an agreement inferred mainly from acquiescence for a long time, and a county cannot be bound by such acquiescence. Atascosa County v. Alderman [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 846. And no agreement which would undertake to divest a county's title would have any effect unless made by the commissioner's court, which would be a matter of record. Id.

20. Slaughter v. Mallet Land & Cattle Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 282.

21. In case of the county treasurer's refusal to receive the payment and to issue the duplicate receipts as provided by law, mandamus will issue to compel him to do so. True v. Brandt [Kan.] 83 P. 826. In proceedings to forfeit school land contracts for default, under Laws 1879, p. 288, c. 161, § 2 (Gen. St. 1901, § 6356), a sheriff's return of service of notice of forfeiture that he "found no one in possession" of the land is not a return that no one was in possession and forfeiture cannot be based thereon. Id.

22. Act of April 1, 1899 (Laws 1899, p 300, c. 69); re-enacted. § 28 is in force. State v. Sams [Neb.] 99 N. W. 544.

23. But they cannot raise the question of the right of the commission of the general land office to reserve the minerals in the sale of the land, by mandamus, prior to their right to demand a patent. Thaxton v. Terrell [Tex.] 91 S. W. 559. Mandamus to compel commission to accept applications without reservation of minerals refused. Id.

and the presumption of the regularity of an official act attaches to the cancellation and not to he award.[24]

Validity of contracts in general.[25]—As in the case of other contracts there must be an unqualified acceptance of a bid by a school district, communicated to the bidder, to constitute a completed contract,[26] and there must be a concurrence of the parties upon the terms of the contract.[27] Where a contract for building a school house was let and fully completed, the fact that the contractor purchased the lumber required from a corporation in which one of the school trustees was a stockholder and assigned the orders drawn therefor to such corporation did not avoid the contract.[28] A contract for a school building entered into beyond the legal limit of indebtedness is valid to an amount within such limit.[29] A countermand of a valid order for the purchase of supplies must be promptly made to be effective.[30] Neither the board of school trustees nor the commissioners can bind the District of Columbia as a municipality by a contract for services as assistant engineer and night janitor rendered to the public schools in the absence of authority and an appropriation therefor by act of congress.[31] In Kentucky the concurrence of a majority of the members of a city board of education, on a call of the yeas and nays, is indispensable to the valid execution of a contract by the board, and the record of the meeting of the board must show that the concurrence was so given.[32] In Indiana, when a township trustee finds it necessary to erect a new school house, it is his duty to sign a contract with the party whose bid is approved by the advisory board.[33]

Proposals.[34]

Contracts for text books.[35]

Ratification of action of officers.[36]—The electors of a school district, acting with full knowledge thereof, may ratify an action in excess of its authority by a school board in the purchase of a school house site,[37] or by the board of trustees of a town library in the execution of contracts and payments thereon;[38] but a 24. Smithers v. Lowrance [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 606.

25. See 4 C. L. 1406.

26. Where bids for the erection of a school building were opened and a motion carried to let the contract to the lowest bidder, a telegram "You are low bidder. Come on morning train," is not a sufficient acceptance. Cedar Rapids Lumber Co. v. Fisher [Iowa] 105 N. W. 595.

27. A contract could not be considered complete where a bidder after a notice merely that he was "low bidder" desired to correct an error in the footing of his bill and the board expressed a desire to make some changes in the specifications. Cedar Rapids Lumber Co. v. Fisher [Iowa] 105 N. W. 595. Under such circumstances the board could not declare the bidder's deposit forfeited on the ground of refusal on the part of the bidder to enter into a contract. Id. Nor could the board, under the provisions of Code, § 2779, permitting the rejection of all bids and the re-advertising for bids, on the refusal of the lowest bidder to enter into a contract, let the contract to a nonbidding party and then recover of the lowest bidder the difference between such contract price and his bid. Id.

28. Under Pol. Code, § 1876 prohibiting any school trustee from being interested in any contract made by the school board. Escondido Lumber, Hay & Grain Co. v. Baldwin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 284.

29. People v. Peoria & E. R. Co., 216 Ill. 221, 74 N. E. 734.

30. Where on conflicting evidence the finding was that due notice of a meeting was given and the facts of the purchase of certain maps was generally known and a warrant issued, but no steps were taken to countermand the order or repudiate the sale for four or five months, the maps meanwhile being received and distributed among the schools, the district was liable therefor. Akron Sav. Bank v. School Tp. [Iowa] 103 N. W. 968.

31. Construing acts of Congress of June 25, 1864, 13 Stat. at L. 187, c. 156, and of June 11, 1878, 20 Stat. at L. 103, c. 180. Myers v. District of Columbia, 25 App. D. C. 132.

32. Ky. St. 1903, § 3212. Board of Education of Newport v. Newport Nat. Bank [Ky.] 90 S. W. 569.

33. Under Burns' Ann. St. § 8085i, relative to advisory boards of townships. Lincoln School Tp. v. Union Trust Co. [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 272.

34, 35. See 4 C. L. 1407.

36. See 4 C. L. 1408.

37. Nichols v. Pierce County Directors [Wash.] 81 P. 325.

38. The contracts having been made in good faith and ratified, the fund when paid over should be charged with a trust to indemnify the trustees against any loss by reason of personal liability on the contracts. Nelson v. Georgetown [Mass.] 76 N. E. 606.

contract of employment of a teacher, made without any action of the board of directors authorizing it, was not rectified by being recorded by the clerk of the board.[39]

Officers are not personally liable.[40]

Contractors' bonds.[41]

§ 6. Funds, revenues, and taxes.[42]—In the absence of any prohibitory or conflicting constitutional provisions, the state legislature has full discretionary power as to the manner in which the funds, derived from the sale of public lands and donated by act of congress to the state for the maintenance of at least one college for instruction in agriculture and mechanic arts, shall be applied to that purpose.[43] Under the laws of Kentucky the tax on foreign insurance companies of $2 on each $100 of premiums is no part of the 22 cents on each $100 of valuation of property required to be assessed for taxation for the school fund,[44] nor is it fine, forfeiture or license, so as to require the payment of a portion of it into the school fund.[45] Under the constitutional provisions of Montana, for the investment of the funds of state institutions of learning, as soon as the state treasurer receives any money from the sale of normal school lands or timber he is required to invest the same and to apply only the interest therefrom and the rents from leased lands for the maintenance of the school.[46] In Washington the constitutional provisions for the investment of the state school funds not only prohibit their investment in private securities but define the character of public securities in which they may be invested.[47] In Ohio the board of commissioners of the sinking fund of a school district [48] is entitled to the management and control of said fund for the payment of debts and investment of the surplus without dictation, but is not entitled to the custody or possession thereof,[49] and orders drawn on said fund must be drawn by the president and clerk of the board of education in favor of the person entitled

39. Rev. St. 1899, § 9766. Pugh v. School Dist. No. 5 in Tp. No. 59 [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 471.

40, 41, 42. See 4 C. L. 1408.

43. It may prescribe what college or colleges shall receive the funds or may bestow them upon a university of the state; it may withdraw them from any such institution and found another for the purpose of receiving them; it may prescribe proper educational qualifications for admission to such institutions, and provide for the management and control of the institutions and change such provisions at will. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. Laws of 1905, c. 5384, No. 13, abolishing several state educational institutions and creating a state board of control, etc., does not conflict with Act Cong. July 2, 1862, c. 130, 12 Stat. 503, donating lands for the maintenance of a college to teach agriculture and mechanic arts, etc. Id.

44. By Ky. St. 1903, § 4370, subd. 5. Fuqua v. Hager, 27 Ky. L. R. 46, 84 S. W. 325.

45. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 4370, subd. 6. Fuqua v. Hager, 27 Ky. L. R. 46, 84 S. W. 325.

46. Const. art. 11, § 12. State v. Rice [Mont.] 83 P. 874. Laws 1905, p. 5, § 5 in providing for the payment of the interest and principal of bonds, issued for the equipment of a state normal school, out of moneys derived from the sale of lands or timber on lands granted in aid of such school, contravenes Const. art. 11, § 12, requiring normal school funds so obtained to be invested and the income therefrom to be used for the maintenance of the school. Id. The provisions of Const. art. 11, § 12, refer only to the control of the funds arising from the sale and rent of the lands and hence do not conflict with Act Cong. Feb. 22, 1889, granting the normal school lands to the state, which refer only to the management and disposition of the lands themselves. Id.

47. Const. art. 16, § 5, as amended in 1894. State v. Clausen [Wash.] 82 P. 187. Bonds of a city indebted to its constitutional limit, issued under the express provisions of Laws 1901, p. 177, c. 85, for a waterworks plant and payable only out of a special fund arising out of the receipts of the plant, without pledging the credit of the city, are not such municipal bonds as are contemplated in the constitutional provision for the investment of state school funds. Id.

48. Appointed under Rev. St. §§ 3971, 3972. State v. Board of Education of Findlay, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 401.

49. State v. Board of Education of Findlay, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 401. Inasmuch as the primary purpose of § 3968, providing for the designation of an official depository for school funds, is to obtain a revenue from the idle monies of school boards, the provision of the act that the depository shall give a good and sufficient bond "of some approved surety company" is incidental merely, and indicates a purpose to require a good and sufficient lawful bond and nothing more. State v. Rehfuss, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 179. It follows, therefore, that the objectional provision of the act is directory only and that the act is constitutional. Id.

thereto upon requisition made upon them by said board therefor.[50] The separation of school funds under the new school code of Ohio, making it possible to distinguish the trust from the contingent fund, will not have the effect of rendering valid an assessment against school property for a street improvement where the levy was made prior to the passage of the school code, whatever may be its effect as to such levies made subsequent thereto.[51] Though a county treasurer in Indiana is not the agent of the county with respect to money of a school city collected by him, and the board of county commissioners occupies no relation of trust as to such funds, the county is nevertheless liable for funds of a school city received by it in compromise of a defaulting treasurer's shortage and turned into the general fund of the county.[52] Where the taxpayers have voluntarily paid taxes for school purposes they should not be diverted from their proper channel by technical objections to the manner of levy.[53]

Tuition and incidental fees.[54]—A foster child, resident of a district although not legally adopted, cannot be charged tuition.[55] Where the children of one town district attended the schools of another, after notice that tuition would be charged had been given by the latter district to the other, an implied contract to pay the same was created.[56] An agreement to pay tuition in advance at a rate fixed by the receiving district is a valid condition for the admission of the pupils of one district to the high schools of another.[57]

Debt limit.[58]—A contract beyond the legal limit of indebtedness may be valid to an amount within such limit.[59] In California the assumption of a pro rata share of taxes to maintain and liquidate the bonded indebtedness of a high school district, as a condition of the admission of an adjacent district to such high school district, is the incurring of indebtedness within the purview of the constitutional inhibition of the incurring of certain indebtedness without the assent of two-thirds of the electors.[60]

Levy and collection of taxes.[61]—The power to conduct a school carries with it the power to meet those obligations which are justly incurred in conducting it,[62] and school district authorities are generally empowered by statute under certain conditions to levy and collect taxes therefor,[63] and they may make levies within the statutory limit for such purpose,[64] but statutes authorizing the imposition of 50. Rev. St. §§ 3970-74, 4047. State v. Board of Education of Findlay, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 401.

51. Board of Education of Columbus v. Bowland, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 122.

52. Demarest v. Holdeman, 34 Ind. App. 685, 73 N. E. 714.

53. Trustees of Schools v. School Inspectors, 115 Ill. App. 479.

54. See 4 C. L. 1408.

55. McNish v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 186.

56. Town District of Hardwick v. Wolcott [Vt.] 61 A. 471.

57. Mooney v. Tulare County Sup'rs [Cal. App.] 83 P. 165.

58. See 4 C. L. 1409.

59. People v. Peoria & E. R. Co., 216 Ill. 221, 74 N. E. 734.

60. Const. art. 11, § 18. People v. Hanford Union High School Dist. [Cal.] 84 P. 193.

61. See 4 C. L. 1409.

62. Churchill v. Highland Park Graded School Trustees [Ky.] 89 S. W. 122.

63. Although the power of school township trustees as to the removal of school houses and the abandonment of school districts is limited by Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 5920a-5920g, yet § 5920, authorizing them to establish schools and build school houses therefor, has not been changed. State v. Black [Ind.] 76 N. E. 882. Under the statutes of Illinois, where a school district has issued bonds for part of the cost of a school house, it may thereafter levy an annual tax, not to exceed two and one-half per cent. of the taxable valuation of the district for the payment of interest on the bonds and to create a sinking fund to pay the bonds [4 Starr & C. Ann. St. pp. 1168, 1169, § 1] (People v. Peoria & E. R. Co., 216 Ill. 221, 74 N. E. 734), and where a school building has been authorized the directors may, from time to time, levy taxes to build it as directed by the vote, or as they may determine, in case the price and character of the building were not determined by vote (Id.).

64. People v. Peoria & E. R. Co., 216 Ill. 221, 74 N. E. 734. A levy for building purposes within such limit, if otherwise valid, will not be invalidated by the letting of a contract beyond the constitutional limit. Id. In Kentucky under Ky. St. 1903, § 4440, school district trustees are authorized to levy a capitation tax for erecting or furnish-taxes for the support of schools contemplate their levy only on property within the boundaries of the district.[65] Where a private academy has been voted funds by a school district for erecting a school building for the town district, such building becomes for all practical purposes its school house,[66] and the district may lawfully expend money for repairs and improvements thereon.[67] In Kentucky it is not necessary for a fourth class city to comply with the statute for the acceptance of the graded school law [68] before it can hold an election for the mere levying of an increased ad valorem tax for the maintenance of public schools and the erection of buildings.[69] In South Dakota the county treasurer is the collector of taxes and must pay over to the school district all moneys received by him and belonging to the district.[70] It is no defense to the collection of a school tax that it is proposed to divert the tax when collected to a different purpose from that for which it was levied.[71] Taxes and assessments for school purposes, levied and imposed under acts subsequently declared unconstitutional, may be validated by the legislature.[72]

School bonds.[73]—Where the general law provides for the issue of bonds by districts, the power of a school district to issue them is distinct from that of a city whose charter authorizes the issue of bonds for school purposes, even though the district and city are identical in territorial limits.[74] Where, through inadvertence, no tax was levied for the payment of school district bonds, the action of the district in liquidating the bonds by issuing refunding bonds as provided by statute [75] was sustained, though the effect of the action was to postpone payment more than 20 years from the contracting of the debt.[76] In Washington the action of the board of school directors as a canvassing board, at a special election called to vote on a proposed bond issue in the absence of any showing of fraud, failure in ing a school house, not exceeding a certain limit. Trustees of Common School Dist. No. 32 v. Thomas Kane & Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 983, 87 S. W. 321. Such tax may be levied, although not assented to by the people and although no tax is actually levied by the school trustees for the year, notwithstanding the prohibition in Const. § 157, of any municipality becoming indebted to an amount exceeding in any year the income provided without the assent of two-thirds of the voters. Id.

65. Ky. St. 1903, § 4482. Restitution of taxes levied by mistake on property outside of district and paid by owner. Churchill v. Highland Park Graded School Trustees [Ky.] 89 S. W. 122.

66. The fact that certain rooms only were used by the district and the rest by the academy was presumably a convenient arrangement for the use of the building and not an absolute division, curtailing the rights of the town district pupils in the use of the entire building. Brooks v. School Dist. of Franconia [N. H.] 61 A. 127.

67. The mere fact that the academy may incidentally derive a benefit therefrom is immaterial. Brooks v. School Dist. of Franconia [N. H.] 61 A. 127.

68. Ky. St. 1903, § 4489, specifying the conditions of acceptance. Bowman v. Middlesboro [Ky.] 91 S. W. 726.

69. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 3490, subd. 2, as amended by Act March 24, 1904, for the levy of an additional ad valorem tax for school purposes. Bowman v. Middlesboro [Ky.] 91 S. W. 726. The board of education of a fourth class city being charged by Ky. St. 1903, § 3588, with the conduct of the common schools and the control of the school funds, its approval of the action of the city in the matter of an election for the levy of an increased ad valorem tax for school purposes, under Ky. St. 1903, § 3490, subd. 2, as amended by Act March 24, 1904, was proper and could not affect the validity of the bonds issued. Id.

70. Laws 1897, p. 60, c. 28, §§ 79, 95. Mineral School Dist. No. 10 v. Pennington County [S. D.] 104 N. W. 270. He cannot retain any part of such taxes as the school district's portion of the cost of defending an injunction suit, to prevent the collection of the taxes, brought in the Federal court. Id.

71. People v. Peoria & E. R. Co., 216 Ill. 221, 74 N. E. 734.

72. Act Oct. 19, 1903 (P. L. 1903, Sp. Sess. p. 96), to validate such taxes, etc., declared constitutional and effectual to make valid all appropriations, taxes and assessments made under the general school laws of 1900 and 1902, which were held unconstitutional. Woolley v. Hendrickson [N. J. Law] 62 A. 278.

73. See 4 C. L. 1409.

74. Los Angeles School Dist. v. Longden [Cal.] 83 P. 246.

75. Rev. St. 1899, § 5157, as amended by Acts 1901, p. 52, authorizing districts to refund indebtedness at a lower interest rate by issuing bonds payable in not less than five nor more than thirty years from date. State v. Walber [Mo.] 92 S. W. 69.

76. Const. art. 10, § 12, provides for the collection of an annual tax by school districts to pay interest on such indebtedness and to create a sinking fund for payment of the principal within twenty years from the date of contracting the debt. State v. Walker [Mo.] 92 S. W. 69.

duty, or malfeasance, is final, no provision being made by statute for any contest.[77] Equity will relieve the holders of void school district bonds, under the doctrine that equity follows a fund, where the proceeds have been excessively used in procuring a lot, school house, and furniture.[78]

Orders and warrants for payment of claims.[79]—Where school orders were intended to be continuing obligations for loans and a separate agreement for the payment of interest was made, the orders bore interest as stipulated until payment was demanded, suit brought, or payment made.[80] An order drawn for the payment for lumber used in the construction of a school house is not void, because the lumber was bought of a corporation in which one of the school trustees was a stockholder and because the order was subsequently assigned to the corporation.[81] A school warrant issued in violation of positive statutory provisions is void.[82]

Apportionment of funds.[83]—In Georgia the apportionment of school funds is made according to school population and not according to the number actually attending the schools;[84] and the citizens and taxpayers of a county outside of a town or city, patrons of the county schools, may proceed by application for an injunction to prevent the payment to such town or city of a greater proportion of the county school funds than it is entitled to.[85] In North Carolina a special tax for the establishment of a graded school in a town cannot be apportioned between the white and colored races per capita.[86]

§ 7. Teachers and instruction.[87]—A diploma of the State Normal School of New York, until revoked or annulled, conclusively establishes the holder's fitness and qualifications as a teacher and cannot be limited in the absence of clear statutory authority.[88] A county superintendent of schools is estopped to attack collaterally a certificate issued by him by showing that it was issued without due examination;[89] and where the law provides that he may at his option renew teachers' certificates at their expiration by indorsement, they can be renewed only in that manner, and the issue of a new certificate cannot be deemed a renewal.[90] The

77. Nichols v. Pierce County Directors [Wash.] 81 P. 325. Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. §§ 2398-2405, being a special act for ratifying certain illegal school indebtedness, do not apply to an election to determine whether bonds shall be issued to construct a high school building. Id.

78. Bonds issued without a vote of the legal voters and void under Const. § 157. Board of Trustees of Fordsville v. Postel [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1065. Ky. St. 1903, § 2353, providing that when a deed is made to one and the consideration is paid by another no trust shall result, but not applying when the deed is so made without the consent of the payer, does not affect the doctrine that equity follows the fund and compels restitution when it can be identified. Id. The holders of such void bonds stand in the place of the original purchasers and may pursue the equitable remedy. Id.

79. See 4 C. L. 1410.

80. Winsted Sav. Bank v. New Hartford [Conn.] 62 A. 81.

81. Under Pol. Code, § 1876, prohibiting any trustee from being interested in any contract made with the board. Escondido Lumber, Hay & Grain Co. v. Baldwin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 284.

82. Rev. Pol. Code, § 2366, declares no contract binding on a school district unless made by the school board, acting as such at a regular meeting or a special meeting regularly called, except contracts employing teachers, and a warrant issued in payment of a contract otherwise made was held void. Rochford v. School Dist. No. 6, Lyman County [S. D.] 103 N. W. 763.

83. See 4 C. L. 1410.

84. The school population includes all children between six and eighteen years of age. Clark v. Cline, 123 Ga. 856, 51 S. E. 617.

85. Clark v. Cline, 123 Ga. 856, 51 S. E. 617. Where a county contains a town or city entitled to direct apportionments, the amount paid it is determined by the proportion of its school population to that of the county, as shown by the last school census. Id. Children of school age resident in the county but attending the public schools of a town or city are to be counted in the school population of the latter and their share of the county fund is to be paid to the proper officer of the municipal school board. Id.

86. Acts 1905, p. 31, c. 11, § 6, establishing a graded school in Kernersville. The school term must be of the same length during the year for each race. Lowery v. Board of Graded School Trustees [N. C.] 52 S. E. 267.

87. See 4 C. L. 1410.

88. Bogart v. Board of Education, 106 App. Div. 56, 94 N. Y. S. 180, arg. 44 Misc. 10, 89 N. Y. S. 737; Shaul v. Board of Education, 108 App. Div. 19, 95 N. Y. S. 479.

89, 90. Van Dorn v. Anderson, 219 Ill. 321, 76 N. E. 53.

provision of the charter of Greater New York that at the close of the third year of continuous successful service of a teacher the city superintendent may make a temporary license permanent is not mandatory,[91] nor is the issue of a special license to one who has taught three years under a temporary license a determination by the superintendent that the teacher is entitled to a permanent license.[92] A teacher in a town annexed to the city of Greater New York, holding a school commissioner's certificate, was not thereby entitled to become a member of the permanent teaching force in the city,[93] nor was her status as a member of that force affected by the issue to her subsequently of a first grade school commissioner's certificate.[94] The statute of New York making Saturday afternoon a public half-holiday does not prohibit a city board of school examiners from continuing examinations beyond noon of that day;[95] nor is a person who observes Saturday as a day of worship deprived of the equal protection of the law or discriminated against by being denied a special examination on some other day, in the absence of any statute requiring it.[96]

Contracts of employment.[97]—A board of directors of a school district can make a valid contract for the employment of a teacher only at a regular or special meeting as a board,[98] and the fact that such contract is regular on its face and is duly signed and attested is not conclusive of its legality. The validity of such a contract may depend upon the construction of the statute authorizing it.[99] A provision in a teacher's contract for the winter term agreeing to teach the spring term, "providing satisfaction is given the school board," authorizes the board to dispense with the teacher's services for the spring term, if dissatisfied, upon notice given before the commencement of the spring term.[1] In Alabama, district trustees are not deprived of the right to employ teachers by the provision of law rquiring the approval of the county board of education.[2] A contract between the school trustees and the teacher of a common school is, by implication, subject to the power of the proper authority to make reasonable regulations as to the management of the schools,[3] and a refusal to comply with such regulations, on the teacher's part, works a forfeiture of the contract.[4]

91. Laws 1901, p. 1774, c. 718 (Revised & Amended Greater New York Charter, § 1089). People v. Board of Education, 106 App. Div. 101, 94 N. Y. S. 61.

92, 93, 94. People v. Board of Education, 106 App. Div. 101, 94 N. Y. S. 61.

95. Laws 1892, p. 1485, c. 677, § 24 (Statutory Construction Law), and by Laws 1897, p. 759, c. 614, § 1, does not prevent a public officer from voluntarily performing an official act on holidays nor render such act void or voidable. Cohn v. Townsend, 94 N. Y. S. 817.

96. Cohn v. Townsend, 94 N. Y. S. 817.

97. See 4 C. L. 1410.

98. Rev. St. 1899, § 9766. A contract signed by the president and attested by the clerk, in the absence of any authority of the board, is not valid. Pugh v. School Dist. No. 5 [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 471. A contract made with a teacher, at a meeting of which all the members of the school committee had notice and at which a majority was present, is valid and binding. Hitchens v. School Dist. No. 180 [Del.] 62 A. 897. Where the minutes of the meeting of a school board show that "all members answered the roll-call" and that a committee report recommending the employment of certain teachers was adopted, "all members voting in the affirmative," that was a substantial compliance with the spirit of an act requiring a record of the names of the members voting. Act April 11, 1862, P. L. 471, § 4. Burke v. Wilkes-Barre Tp. School Dist., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 16.

99. In Pennsylvania, under Act June 25, 1885, P. L. 175, a local school board of a township may elect a properly qualified teacher for an ordinary common school for three successive school terms. Burke v. Wilkes-Barre Tp. School Dist., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 16. In the expression "public high and state normal schools," in said act, the word "public" will not be construed as qualifying simply the word "high." Id.

1. Kingston v. School Dist. No. 5 [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 263, 104 N. W. 28.

2. Laws 1903, p. 292, § 10, authorizes district trustees to employ teachers subject to the approval of the board, and § 11 prescribes the powers and duties of the board. Gibson v. Mabrey [Ala.] 40 So. 297.

3. The state superintendent of public instruction has such power in New York. O'Connor v. Hendrick [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 612, afg. 109 App. Div. 361, 96 N. Y. S. 161.

4. The regulation of the New York state superintendent of public instruction prohibiting the wearing of a distinctively religious garb. O'Connor v. Hendrick [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 612, afg. 109 App. Div. 361, 96 N. Y. S. 161.

Dismissal, suspension, and reassignment.[5]—In California a board of education can hear testimony against a teacher, although no formal charges have been presented against her by the county superintendent,[6] the statutory provision of that state protecting teachers holding city certificates from removal without cause, applying only to holders of general certificates, while those holding special certificates for the teaching of special studies only are removable at the will of the board.[7] The right of a teacher to a writ of mandamus to compel her reinstatement to a position from which she has been summarily removed by the board depends upon this statute and is lost after three years both by laches and the limitation of actions on statutory liabilities.[8] Where the law provides that a board may remove a teacher upon notice in writing, giving, when required, the reasons for dismissal, a letter merely notifying the teacher that the trustees believed it for the best interests of the school that her services be dispensed with was not a sufficient compliance with the law.[9]

Breach of contract.[10]—Where a teacher is wrongfully discharged before the end of his term he can recover the stipulated compensation for the remainder of the term;[11] and where one is wrongfully prevented from retaining his position as a regular teacher, he can recover his salary for the term, less any sum he may have meanwhile earned as a substitute.[12] Where a teacher wrongfully discharged is unable to obtain other employment, the fact that the school board employed another teacher in her place does not prevent her recovery of the stipulated wages.[13]

Payment of salary.[14]—In Ohio the statutory provision for the payment to teachers in the public schools of any county where a county institute is held, of their regular salary for the week of their attendance at the institute, applies alike to those who have been engaged to teach for the ensuing school year, but whose schools do not open until after the holding of the institute, and to those who have not yet been employed but are thereafter employed for a term beginning within three months after the close of the institute.[15]

5. See 4 C. L. 1411.

6. Pol. Code, §§ 1791, 1793, authorizes such boards to dismiss teachers for certain causes; § 1543 imposes no duty on the superintendent to prefer such charges; and the provisions of the San Francisco charter imposing that duty being in conflict with the general school law, are of no effect. McKenzie v. Board of Education [Cal. App.] 82 P. 392, 394.

7. Pol. Code, § 1793. Bradley v. Board of Education [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1036.

8. Code Civ. Proc. § 338, subd. 1, bars such actions in three years. Harby v. Board of Education [Cal. App.] 83 P. 1081.

9. Code Pub. Gen. Laws 1904, art. 77, § 53. Underwood v. Prince George's County School Com'rs [Md.] 63 A. 221.

10. See 4 C. L. 1411.

11. Hitchens v. School Dist. No. 180 [Del.] 62 A. 897. Plaintiff's testator, holding a state certificate, was employed by a school board for an indefinite term to teach a particular school, and taught until prevented from doing so by the New York city superintendent of schools, the district having been incorporated within that city. Held that he could recover for breach of contract. Shaul v. Board of Education, 108 App. Div. 19, 95 N. Y. S. 479.

12. He was employed as a teacher in the city of Brooklyn when it became a part of New York city and was continued in the same position by Laws 1897, pp. 403, 404, c. 378, §§ 1114, 1117, until removed for cause after trial, but was prevented from teaching by the city superintendent of schools. Bogert v. Board of Education, 44 Misc. 10, 89 N. Y. S. 737, affd. 106 App. Div. 56, 94 N. Y. S. 180. Such teacher was not a person holding office for a definite term, within New York city charter, § 1117 (p. 404), providing for their retention for the remainder of their terms only, but he was continued as a teacher under § 1117 and could be removed only after trial under § 1114, p. 403. Bogert v. Board of Education, 106 App. Div. 56, 94 N. Y. S. 180, afg. 44 Misc. 10, 89 N. Y. S. 737.

13. A letter to the board announcing her intention to marry, but that she would continue to teach until the end of the year, followed by another near the close of the year that she would teach another year under her contract if satisfactory to the board, did not constitute a resignation which the board could accept as such. Underwood v. Prince George's County School Com'rs [Md.] 63 A. 221.

14. See 4 C. L. 1411.

15. Rev. St. § 4091. Board of Education of the Bowling Green City School Dist. v. Beverstock, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 373.

Instruction.[16]

§ 8. Control and discipline of scholars, and regulation of attendance.[17]—The enforcement of wholesome and reasonable discipline is important to the upholding and maintenance of the common school system in its integrity.[18] In Iowa, under the authority conferred on school boards to adopt regulations for the conduct of pupils, a board could prohibit pupils from playing football in a game purporting to be played under the auspices of the school, by a team purporting to represent the school, though the game was not played in school hours or near the school grounds.[19]

Corporal punishment.[20]—A teacher, standing in loco parentis and exercising the parent's delegated authority, may administer reasonable chastisement to a child to the same extent as the parent himself.[21]

§ 9. Torts and liability for the same.[22]—The duty of providing public education at the public expense by building and maintaining school houses and conducting schools is purely a public or governmental duty, in the discharge of which school districts act as representatives of the state.[23] The statutory liability imposed on "owners" or "possessors" of premises for damages resulting from unlawful excavations thereon [24] does not apply to boards of education holding title to lots for school and school building purposes.[25]

§ 10. Decisions, rulings, and orders of school officers, and review of the same.[26]—Generally the exercise of the judgment and discretion reposed in the officers of school districts is reviewable only in the manner provided by law,[27] and the courts will not interfere with them while acting within their legal province, except in case of abuse of their powers.[28] A taxpayer may have an injunction to

16, 17. See 4 C. L. 1412.

18. This high duty is cast upon the trustees and the courts will not interfere with them while acting within their legal province, except in case of abuse. Cross v. Walton Graded Common School Dist. Trustees [Ky.] 89 S. W. 506.

19. Code, §§ 2743, 2745, 2772. Kinzer v. Directors of Independent School Dist. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 686.

20. See 4 C. L. 1412.

21. To make the act criminal it must be done immoderately and malo animo, or else some permanent injury must be inflicted. Holmes v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 569.

22. See 4 C. L. 1413.

23. Hence a city is not liable for injury to a pupil from a defect in a building furnished by it for a public school. Clark v. Nicholasville, 27 Ky. L. R. 974, 87 S. W. 300.

24. Rev. St. § 2676. Limiting excavations to nine feet. Board of Education of Cincinnati v. Volk, 72 Ohio St. 469, 74 N. E. 646.

25. Board held not liable in its corporate capacity for damages to the foundation and walls on an adjoining lot, resulting from excavations below the statutory depth, for the foundations of a school building. Board of Education of Cincinnati v. Volk, 72 Ohio St. 469, 74 N. E. 646.

26. See 4 C. L. 1413.

27. In Idaho the remedy for review of the action of a board of county commissioners is by appeal from the order or act complained of, under Rev. St. 1887, § 1776 (Amended Sess. Laws 1899, p. 248). Equity will not interfere in such case. School Dist. No. 25, Shoshone County v. Rice [Idaho] 81 P. 155. In New York under Laws 1902, p. 1343, c. 560; Laws 1894, p. 1278, c. 556 (modified by Laws 1904, p. 94, c. 40), and Code Civ. Proc. § 2122, the determination of a board of education, in a second class city, removing a principal of schools can be reviewed only by appeal to the commissioner of education and certiorari will not lie. People v. O'Brien, 97 N. Y. S. 1115. The determination by boards of supervisors in California, under Pol. Code, § 1670, subd. 22, of the questions involved, in acting on petitions for the admission of pupils in one district to the high school of another on terms, is conclusive. Mooney v. Tulare County Sup'rs [Cal. App.] 83 P. 165. In Washington the action of the county superintendent in organizing a new school district may be reviewed on appeal to the county commissioners, whose decision is final, unless there is a want or an exceeding of jurisdiction. Wilsey v. Cornwall [Wash.] 82 P. 303. In South Dakota an appeal lies to the circuit court from the action of commissioners appointed to organize a school district from territory lying in two adjacent counties under Rev. Pol. Code, § 2410, as amended Laws 1903, p. 150, c. 133 (Independent School Dist. No. 2 v. District No. 37 [S. D.] 106 N. W. 302), and when the circuit court tries an appeal de novo and adjudicates the matter of the division of the property of the districts, it is not necessary to determine whether the proceedings of the committee in the premises was or was not properly made (Id.).

28. In Alabama the county board of education is a deliberative body, charged under Laws 1903, p. 292, § 11, with the duty of determining whether the employment of a teacher by the district trustees should be approved, and their reasons for approving or disapproving cannot be inquired into.

prevent the misappropriation of school funds by an unlawful contract,[29] and mandamus will lie against a superintendent of schools to compel the performance of a merely ministerial duty,[30] but will not be issued to interfere with the exercise of his discretionary powers, of a judicial nature, except in case of their gross abuse.[31] Where the statutes providing for the formation, etc., of districts provided for an appeal to the superior court, giving the court the same powers to act on the application as the town had in the first instance,[32] on an appeal from a rescission of a consolidation of two districts, the reversal or modification of the action of the township was within the court's discretion,[33] and the provision of the statute that the action of the county board confirming or rejecting the action of the district school trustees shall be final, makes it final only so far as the trustees are concerned and does not interfere with the power of the state board of education to direct the

Gibson v. Mabrey [Ala.] 40 So. 297. Courts will not interfere with trustees of school districts while acting within their legal province in the enforcement of wholesome discipline except in case of the exercise of arbitrary power, the exercise of arbitrary power being forbidden by the constitution of Kentucky to any man or set of men. (Cross v. Walton Graded Common School Dist. Trustees [Ky.] 89 S. W. 506); nor control the exercise of the judgment and discretion reposed by law in a board of school examiners as to fixing the day for holding teachers' examinations (Cohn v. Townsend, 94 N. Y. S. 817); nor coerce by mandamus the discretion vested in a board of education as to the adjustment and payment of amounts claimed under contracts, by Acts 1874, Colo., p. 234, § 14 (Keefe Mfg. & Inv. Co. v. Board of Education, 33 Colo. 513, 81 P. 257). Where the statutes provide for appeals from decisions of township trustees in school matters to the county superintendent, the discretion of the trustees in establishing districts and locating and building new school houses, if exercised in good faith, cannot be reviewed by the courts in mandamus proceedings. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6028, authorizes such appeals. State v. Black [Ind.] 76 N. E. 882. In the absence of any showing of fraud in the settlement, the court of common pleas cannot allow an appeal nunc pro tunc from a settlement of a school district treasurer's accounts by borough auditors four months after the thirty days allowed for appeal. Act April 15, 1834, P. L. 537. Dunmore Borough School Dist. v. Wahlers, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 39. Where the statute, Code, § 2774, provides for the furnishing of school facilities for any ten children in the district and a remedy for the board's failure to do so, the fact that pupils may be deprived of such privileges by a consolidation of districts is no ground for a review of the proceedings of consolidation by certiorari. Molyneaux v. Molyneaux [Iowa] 106 N. W. 370. In Georgia the county board of education constitutes a tribunal to determine matters of local controversy under the school law, but this does not oust a court of equity of its lawful jurisdiction. The unlawful payment of county school funds to a municipal school system will be enjoined. Clark v. Cline, 123 Ga. 856, 51 S. E. 617. Although in Iowa, under Code, § 2818, the proper remedy for a review of the proceedings of a school board, either as to law by fact in a matter resting within its discretion is by appeal to the county superintendent of schools [Code, § 2818] (Kinzer v. Directors of Independent School Dist. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 686), yet the question of whether regulations for the conduct of pupils, for violation of which one has been expelled, reasonably fall within the authority conferred by Code §§ 2743, 2745, 2772, 2782, is reviewable by the courts but will not be interfered with except in case of abuse of discretion (Id.). Findings by the board that a pupil had violated a regulation prohibiting the playing of foot ball in a game purporting to be played under the auspices of the school by a team purporting to represent the school, though the game was not played in school hours or near the school grounds, and that his apology tendered was insufficient to purge his offense, were reviewable only on appeal to the county superintendent under Code § 2818. Kinzer v. Directors of Independent School Dist. [Iowa] 105 N. W. 686.

29. A contract between the district board and the state board of education for the employment by the latter of "critic teachers" to be paid in part by the district (Lindblad v. Board of Education [Ill.] 77 N. E. 450), but so far as such contract relates to the manner of conducting the schools in the district it causes no injury to a taxpayer and does not entitle him to an injunction to prevent its enforcement (Id.), although he might have a remedy at law by mandamus to compel the district board to provide such teachers for his children as the law intends (Id.).

30. To correct a certificate issued to a qualified teacher and illegally antedated so as to conform to the facts. Van Dorn v. Anderson, 117 Ill. App. 618, afd. Van Dorn v. Anderson, 219 Ill. 32, 76 N. E. 53.

31. He exercises discretionary powers in determining the qualifications of an applicant for a certificate. Van Dorn v. Anderson, 117 Ill. App. 618, afd. Van Dorn v. Anderson, 219 Ill. 32, 76 N. E. 53.

32. Gen. St. 1902, §§ 2175, 2181, 2182. First School Dist. of Groton v. Eighth School Dist. [Conn.] 61 A. 234.

33. Although the court found that a consolidation on certain conditions would be beneficial, yet it did not appear that the court abused its discretion in dismissing the appeal and refusing to enforce the consolidation, the sentiment of the town being pronouncedly against it. First School Dist. of Groton v. Eighth School Dist. [Conn.] 61 A 234.

county board as to the intent and meaning of the law.[34] Where an election held on the question of forming a new school district is void, any action had on appeal therefrom is also void.[35]

§ 11. Actions and litigation.[36]—In New York, by express constitutional and statutory provisions, a school district may sue in its corporate capacity,[37] but it cannot as a corporation, or as a representative of the taxpayers, have an injunction to restrain a village within the district from separating therefrom in the manner provided by law.[38] In Kansas, in case of the breach of any condition in a school district treasurer's bond, if the director neglects or refuses to prosecute, any householder of the district may cause a prosecution to be instituted in the name of the district and prosecute it to judgment.[39] Where after the issue of bonds a portion of the district was cut off and annexed to a city without any adjustment of bonded indebtedness, plaintiff in an action on the bonds is not obliged to make the city a party to the litigation.[40] Where the constitution of Louisiana directed the payment of certain city public school certificates out of the proceeds of the sale of constitutional bonds of an issue authorized for the liquidation of the city debt, and all the bonds authorized had been disposed of, mandamus did not lie to compel the issue and sale of additional bonds to pay belated certificates issued after the exhaustion of the bond issue.[41] In mandamus proceedings to compel the advisory board of a township to make an appropriation to build a school house, a complaint and alternative writ which failed to show that there were any available funds were demurrable.[42] A petition for a writ of mandamus to compel a township treasurer to credit a school district with the amount of taxes collected should allege that the district has not received the full amount of such taxes to which it is entitled, and that the treasurer holds sufficient funds to make such credit.[43]

§ 12. Libraries, reading rooms, and other auxiliary educational institutions.[44]—A gift of a library to "the inhabitants of the town of Georgetown" is a gift to the town in its corporate capacity,[45] and the fund donated for library purposes should be in the custody of the town to be drawn upon by the action of the trustees of the library as needed from time to time.[46]

§ 13. Private schools.[47]—A university corporation organized by the legislature of Kentucky took its powers, like all other corporations, subject to the reserved rights of the state to alter or repeal its charter.[48] The consolidation of two such institutions was authorized by the statutes of the state and was not a diversion of the purpose of the original incorporators or of those furnishing the means for

34. Code Pub. Gen. Laws 1904, art. 77, § 11, conferring such power and authority on the state board of education, is a valid exercise of legislative power and confers visitorial powers on such board over school matters in the state. Underwood v. Prince George's County School Com'rs [Md.] 63 A. 221.

35. An election under Rev. St. 1899, § 9742, being void for irregularity, the action of the county commissioner and board of arbitration, provided for in said section, held void. School Dist. No. 2, Tp. 24, v. Pace, 113 Mo. App. 134, 87 S. W. 580.

36. See 4 C. L. 1414.

37. Const. art. 8, § 3, and Laws 1892, p. 1801, c. 687, § 3. Union Free School Dist. No. 1 v. Glen Park, 109 App. Div. 414, 96 N. Y. S. 428.

38. Laws 1903, c. 125, p. 299. Union Free School Dist. No. 1 v. Glen Park, 109 App. Div. 414, 96 N. Y. S. 428.

39. Under Gen. St. 1901, § 6174. School Dist. No. 9 v. Brand [Kan.] 81 P. 473.

40. Southold Sav. Bank v. Board of Education, 44 Misc. 74, 89 N. Y. S. 714.

41. The remedy of the certificate holders in such case was legislative and not judicial. State v. Board of Liquidation of City Debt [La.] 39 So. 448.

42. Advisory Board of Harrison Tp. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 986.

43. People v. Helt, 116 Ill. App. 391.

44. See 4 C. L. 1414.

45. Construction of the terms of the gift as to the erection of a new building, selection of site, and cost of building. Nelson v. Georgetown [Mass.] 76 N. E. 606.

46. Nelson v. Georgetown [Mass.] 76 N. E. 606.

47. See 4 C. L. 1415.

48. Reserved in the general law of 1856. Central University of Kentucky v. Walter's Ex'rs [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1066.

establishing them,[49] and its effect was to continue in the new corporation all the property rights of the constituent corporations, subject to the terms of their acquirement.[50] A teacher employed by an independent contractor, to whom the proprietor of a private school has let a department, has no claim against the proprietor for her services.[51] Where a teacher was sick and his wife taught for him without being employed by the school, it was a question for the jury to determine whether the wife's services were accepted in lieu of her husband's and he was entitled to compensation therefor.[52]

SCIRE FACIAS.[53]

After the severance of such plaintiffs in error as refuse to assign errors, scire facias will lie on behalf of the other plaintiff to obtain a hearing upon their assignment of errors.[54] Where a scire facias sur municipal lien is insufficient to obtain a judgment thereon because of defective service, it does not continue the lien so as to give validity to a judgment on an alias scire facias sued out after the expiration of the lien of the original claim.[55] A scire facias proceeding to revive a default judgment in ejectment in the Federal courts of Virginia is matured at rules.[56]

Service.[57]—In serving a scire facias sur municipal lien the statute must be strictly followed.[58]

A return[59] which does not show sufficient service may be amended as against defendant on scire facias to revive a default judgment against such defendant.[60]

Procedure.[61]—Under a statute authorizing a defendant to plead as many matters as he may think necessary, repugnant pleas may be interposed on scire facias to revive a judgment.[62] Where a party is brought in as defendant after judgment by scire facias under section nine of the practice act, he may set up any defense that he might have interposed had he been originally made a party to the suit,[63] and his pleadings should be directed to the declaration and not to the writ.[64] It is unnecessary to allege in a writ of scire facias to revive a judgment matters which sufficiently appear in the judgment roll,[65] and especially will a writ be held sufficient where by immemorial practice such facts have been omitted.[66] A writ in the usual form to revive a judgment alleging that "execution for the debt, etc., still remains to be made" sufficiently alleges that the judgment has not been satisfied.[67]

In a proceeding scire facias to revive a judgment it is no defense that the judg-

49. Ky. St. 1903, § 555. The consolidation of a college and a university owned by the northern and southern Presbyterian churches respectively was valid. Central University of Kentucky v. Walter's Ex'rs [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1066.

50. The consideration of a note given to endow a chair in one of the institutions did not fail because of the consolidation and the removal of it from the residence city of the maker, no condition appearing in the note. Central University of Kentucky v. Walter's Ex'rs [Ky.] 90 S. W. 1066.

51. Coltrane v. Peacock [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 841.

52. Southern Industrial Institute v. Hellier [Ala.] 39 So. 163.

53. See 4 C. L. 1415. Devlin v. McAdoo, 96 N. Y. S. 425.

54. Fraser v. Fraser, 110 Ill. App. 619.

55. City of Philadelphia v. Cooper, 212 Pa. 306, 61 A. 926, rvg. 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 552.

56. King v. Davis, 137 F. 198.

57. See 4 C. L. 1415.

58. Where the statute requires an affidavit to be filed, where personal service cannot be had, stating that the registered land owner is a nonresident, to be followed by a posting and publication, a failure to follow the statute results in a void service. Act June 10, 1881 (P. L. 91). City of Philadelphia v. Cooper, 212 Pa. 306, 61 A. 926.

59. See 4 C. L. 1415.

60. King v. Davis, 137 F. 198.

61. See 4 C. L. 1416.

62. Pleas denying service of process, declaration, and notices in the manner and at the time and places stated in the returns and alleging service by an unauthorized person are not objectionable. King v. Davis, 137 F. 198.

63, 64. Lasman v. Harts, 112 Ill. App. 82.

65. Where the proceeding is by the judgment plaintiff it is not necessary to negative assignment of the judgment. Starkweather v. West End Nat. Bank, 21 App. D. C. 281.

66, 67. Starkweather v. West End Nat. Bank, 21 App. D. C. 281.

ment was obtained through fraud,[68] nor is it a defense to a scire facias proceeding to revive a judgment in ejectment that defendant's only interest in the property was under a lease which has been surrendered to the landlord.[69]

Where, on scire facias to revive a default judgment, the record shows that the return of service in the original action was insufficient to show a valid service, the judgment will be vacated under either a motion to vacate or a plea of nul tul record, but subject to the right to amend the return of service.[70] Oyer of a recognizance and of the record of a criminal proceeding may be demanded in a scire facias procedure on a recognizance given in the proceedings.[71]

Appeal.[72]—An appeal in a scire facias proceeding will lie only from a final order or finding.[73]

SEALS; SEAMEN, see latest topical index.

SEARCH AND SEIZURE.

§ 1. What is an unreasonable search and seizure.[74]—No house can be entered or searched except under a warrant issued by a magistrate on sufficient cause proved before him on oath,[75] and a forcible entry by an officer without a warrant though on suspicion that a crime is being committed therein, is trespass and will be restrained.[76] In New York it is provided by statute that only after notice of authority and refusal of admittance may an officer break doors to enter.[77] A search by an officer of the person of one suspected of having stolen money in his possession, without any warrant having been issued or complaint entered, is illegal,[78] and the search is no less so because after arrest the person expressed himself as being willing to be searched.[79] A statute authorizing an officer to arrest without a warrant a person committing a misdemeanor in his presence is not an unreasonable seizure of his person,[80] nor is an act compelling a person to permit certain specified books or papers in his possession to be inspected by the assessor for the purpose of discovering whether some third person has listed all his property for taxation, an unreasonable

68, 69, 70. King v. Davis, 137 F. 198.

71. State v. Dorr [W. Va.] 53 S. E. 120.

72. See 4 C. L. 1416.

73. An order overruling a demurrer to a writ of scire facias is not appealable unless an appeal is specially allowed. Starkweather v. West End Nat. Bank, 21 App. D. C. 281.

74. See 4 C. L. 1416. For seizure of property used or sold in violation of law see Betting and Gaming, 5 C. L. 417, and Intoxicating Liquors, 6 C. L. 165.

75. A charter empowering the police to enter any house if two householders report in writing to the police commission that there are good grounds for believing that it is a gambling house is unconstitutional. Greater New York, Charter, § 318. Phelps v. McAdoo, 94 N. Y. S. 265. A charter empowering the police to observe and inspect all gambling houses does not give the police the power to enter and search a house without a warrant on suspicion that it is a gambling house. Greater New York Charter § 315. Id.

76, 77. Phelps v. McAdoo, 94 N. Y. S. 265.

Note: Except in the cases where arrest may be made for crime without warrant (see 5 Columbia L. R. 612; 2 Hawkins P. C. c. 14; 2 Hale P. C. 92; Arrest and Binding Over, 5 C. L. 264), and in those cases where a stranger was sought by civil process in a house (5 Columbia L. R. 611), it is said to be a general rule that no one might break doors save pursuant to warrant issued by a justice of the peace on probable cause and supported by oath (McLennon v. Richardson, 15 Gray [Mass.] 74, 77 Am. Dec. 353. Even with a warrant he must have first demanded and been refused entrance (Semayre's Case, 5 Coke Rep. 91; 1 Smith's Lead. Cas. [8th ed.] 238; but see Hawkins v. Com., 14 B. Mon. [Ky.] 395, 61 Am. Dec. 147), disclosure of the contents of the warrant (2 Hale P. C. 116; Dremon v. People, 10 Mich. 169), some proof of the officer being such (State v. Green, 66 Mo. 361), and in the case of an unknown officer production of the warrant (2 Hawkins P. C. c. 13, § 28; State v. Curtis, 11 Hayw. [N. C.] 471).—From 5 Columbia L. R. 611. See, also, note to Semayre's Case, 1 Smith's Lead. Cas. [8th ed.] 238.

78, 79. Regan v. Harkey [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 494, 87 S. W. 1164.

80. Cr. Code 1902, §§ 26, 590, not offensive to Const. art. 1, § 16. State v. Byrd [S. C.] 51 S. E. 542.

search within the constitutional prohibition.[81] The examination of books and papers of a public officer by an authorized committee is not an unreasonable search and seizure.[82] An officer searching premises under a writ must not make a more extensive search or seizure than authorized by the writ.[83]

A corporation is protected under the Federal constitution against unlawful searches and seizures,[84] and a subpoena duces tecum requiring a corporation to produce generally all papers, letters, communications of the corporation, is an unreasonable search and seizure [85] unless it be shown that all such papers, etc., are necessary, and in that case the subpoena must specify with particularity the papers, etc., required.[86] A law for the seizure of property must in due process of law provide for its judicial disposal when seized.[87] A warrant issued under an invalid law is no protection to the officer. [88]

§ 2. Procedure for issuance and execution of search warrants.[89]— Under a constitutional provision that no warrant to search any place or seize any person or thing shall issue without a special designation of the place to be searched, a warrant describing more than one place owned by different persons, is invalid.[90] A search warrant must show upon its face a cause in which such a warrant can lawfully issue,[91] and it must not be shown alternatively or left to several inferences.[92] All the requirements of the statute relative to the issuance of a search warrant must be strictly observed.[93] It is not a search under warrant if admittance to premises be gained by offer to produce a warrant, it being declined.[94]

SECRET BALLOT; SECURITY FOR COSTS, see latest topical index.

81. Act 1901, p. 109, c. 71. Washington Nat. Bank v. Daily [Ind.] 77 N. E. 53.

82. A committee duly authorized by the state legislature may examine the books of a county dispenser. State v. Farnum [S. C.] 53 S. E. 83.

83. Under a search warrant authorizing the officer to search plaintiff's premises and to seize and remove any liquor found therein together with the casks in which it is contained, he has no authority to seize a locked safe in the absence of evidence that it contained liquors. Blackman v. Nickerson, 188 Mass. 399, 74 N. E. 932.

84. Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

85. Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 50 Law. Ed. ——; In re Hale, 139 F. 496.

86. Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

87. Beavers v. Goodwin [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 930.

Note: The act makes no provision for the disposition of liquors seized nor does it allow the offender a hearing before a judicial tribunal. Otherwise, it might be competent under the police power of the state. It has been quite generally held that if the property cannot be used except in violation of law statutes authorizing its destruction are valid. See Collins v. Lean, 68 Cal. 284, 9 Pac. 173-175, with reference to lottery tickets; Board of Police Com'rs v. Wagner, 93 Md. 182, 48 A. 455, 86 Am. St. Rep. 423, 52 L. R. A. 775, allowing the seizure of slot machine. Frost v. People, 193 Ill. 635, 61 N. E. 1054, 86 Am. St. Rep. 352, regarding seizure of gambling apparatus. Such statutes are upheld on the theory that a thing which can be used only in violation of law is not property in the sense that it is entitled to the protection of the law. But here, the property seized might have been subjected to a perfectly legitimate use and was, therefore, entitled to protection. Hence its owner could not be deprived of it without due process of law and its disposition should not be left to a ministerial officer. See Cooley's Const. Lim. [7th ed.] p. 431, and Lowry v. Rainwater, 70 Mo. 152, 35 Am. Rep. 420. Also, Sullivan v. Oneida, 61 Ill. 242, and Darst v. State, 51 Ill. 286, 2 Am. Rep. 301, holding that the power to destroy property could be exercised only by some judicial instrumentality. As was said by Speer, J., in the principal case: "Due course of the law of the land may not always mean a trial by jury, but it at least does mean that the citizen's property shall not be taken from him permanently without notice, and the opportunity of being heard before a judicial tribunal." See Daniels v. Homer, 139 N. C. 219, 51 S. E. 992, commented on 4 Mich. L. R. 294.—From 4 Mich. L. R. 551.

88. Beavers v. Goodwin [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 930.

89. See 4 C. L. 1417.

90. State v. Duane [Me.] 62 A. 80.

91. Under a statute which provides that a search warrant can only issue for gambling apparatus in a gaming house, a writ which fails to state that the house to be searched is a gaming house is void. Early v. People, 117 Ill. App. 608.

92. A warrant which may issue only on complaint of an officer or citizen must show in which capacity complaint was made. If officially the office must appear. Casselini v. Booth, 77 Vt. 255, 59 A. 833.

93. Under a statute requiring the search warrant to command the officer serving it to bring the person in possession of the seized property before the court, a writ failing so to direct is void. Early v. People, 117 Ill. App. 608. A search warrant which com-

SEDUCTION.

§ 1. Nature and elements of the tort.[95]

§ 2. Civil remedies and procedure.[96] Pleading.—In a complaint charging seduction it is sufficient to allege that the defendant "seduced, debauched, and carnally knew" plaintiff, without alleging the means or specific acts employed to accomplish the purpose.[97]

Evidence.[98]—In a civil action by the seduced where the birth of a child is alleged in aggravation of damages, evidence is admissible of intercourse with other men during the period when conception may have taken place,[99] which period may be shown by expert testimony where there is evidence of intercourse with another man.[1] In an action for seduction the question whether sexual intercourse for the first time in a top buggy with the top up by persons of usual weight and height would result in conception is not a subject of expert testimony,[2] but whether pregnancy would be likely to result from a woman's first act of intercourse is.[3]

To justify a court in directing a verdict the evidence must be undisputed or so certain and convincing that no reasonable mind could come to any but one conclusion.[4]

§ 3. The crime [5] consists generally in inducing an unmarried woman of chaste character [6] to have sexual intercourse by promise of marriage,[7] or by artifice or other seductive means.[8] The words "virtuous" or "chaste" means physical not moral chastity,[9] but a woman who has once surrendered her chastity may reform and, if chaste at the time, comes within the protection of the statutes defining seduction.[10] Where the only means used by the defendant to induce the prosecutrix to submit to sexual intercourse was a promise of marriage, the prosecutrix must have relied on and been induced by it alone.[11] One who has sexual intercourse with a virtuous female under a promise of marriage is guilty of seduction if he refuses to marry her though the promise was made in good faith at the time of the intercourse.[12]

mands the officer to bring the property before the officer issuing it, or "to some other judge or justice of the peace of the court," is void under a statute requiring the articles to be brought to the judge or justice of the peace who issues the warrant or to some other judge or justice of the peace or court having cognizance of the case. Id.

94. Articles so acquired are not compulsorily produced to be used in evidence. Commonwealth v. Tucker [Mass.] 76 N. E. 127. As to the rule against self-crimination, see Witnesses, 4 C. L. 1943.

95. See 2 C. L. 1620.

96. See 4 C. L. 1418.

97. The charge that defendant "seduced" plaintiff is tantamount to an allegation that artifice and deceit were employed. Peterson v. Crosier [Utah] 81 P. 860.

98. See 4 C. L. 1419.

99. Where child was born Jan. 14, 1904, testimony of a witness that he had intercourse with the plaintiff during the latter part of May and first part of June, 1903, is admissible. Kesselring v. Hummer [Iowa] 106 N. W. 501. It is proper to ask the plaintiff whether or not she had indulged in sexual intercourse with a certain other man during a period when under the laws of gestation it was possible the child was begotten. Id.

1, 2, 3. Kesselring v. Hummer [Iowa] 106 N. W. 501.

4. Evidence not sufficient: Evidence in an action of seduction which is confined to the testimony of the plaintiff who stated that she knew nothing of the intercourse until months afterwards when her memory was restored by hypnotism is not sufficient to justify the court in directing a verdict of guilty. Austin v. Baker, 96 N. Y. S. 814.

5. See 4 C. L. 1418.

6. Evidence held insufficient as to the chastity. Garlas v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 690, 88 S. W. 345.

7. Evidence held sufficient to sustain a conviction of seduction under a promise of marriage. State v. Drake [Iowa] 105 N. W. 54.

8. Neary v. People, 115 Ill. App. 157.

9. Washington v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 910.

10. Weaver v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 341.

11. Where the prosecutrix was moved partly by lust or fear and partly by the promise of marriage to submit to the intercourse, there is no crime of seduction. Nolen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 735, 88 S. W. 242.

12. Rucker v. State [Ark.] 90 S. W. 151.

§ 4 Indictment and prosecution.[13]—An indictment for seduction need not allege the previous chastity of the female seduced, her unchastity being a defense to be interposed by defendant.[14] It is not ground for a new trial that the woman seduced was permitted to remain in the presence of the jury during the argument of the prosecuting attorney, though manifesting great feeling and emotion, where no objection was made by defendant's attorney.[15]

Suspension of prosecution by marriage.[16]—A statute which provides that if the accused marries the seduced woman such marriage shall suspend a pending prosecution for seduction, and also provides that if the accused subsequently wrongfully abandons her the prosecution shall revive, is not unconstitutional as tending to deny a speedy trial where the defendant makes no demand for a continuance of the trial,[17] nor does the suspension of the trial before verdict, with defendant's consent, and a subsequent trial after desertion, put the accused twice in jeopardy of his liberty,[18] and if no objection is made to the continuance his consent will be presumed.[19] Under statutes which provide that the marriage of the defendant and the prosecutrix will suspend the prosecution, some states hold that an offer by defendant to marry though not accepted by the prosecutrix will suspend the action,[20] but it constitutes no defense in Arkansas.[21] Where the statute requires the marriage to be consummated before final judgment, this provision must be complied with.[22] Under a statute which makes a subsequent offer of marriage a bar to an action for seduction, the offer must be made directly to the prosecuting witness.[23]

Burden of proof and evidence.[24]—Every woman is presumed to be of a chaste character and the burden is upon the defendant to overcome this presumption when he interposes a defense of unchastity,[25] and the jury cannot infer unchastity from the fact that no evidence was introduced to prove chastity.[26]

Evidence which tends to show that the prosecutrix was unchaste at the time of the seduction is admissible.[27] While it is no defense that the prosecutrix subsequently became a prostitute if she was chaste at the time of the intercourse with defendant, yet, if her conduct is such as indicates general prostitution, evidence of it is admissible as bearing upon the question whether she was chaste at the time of the alleged seduction,[28] while no particular amount of improper conduct or indecent familiarity with men, exclusive of sexual intercourse, is conclusive of an unchaste character,[29] yet proof of lascivious conduct is conclusive of it.[30] In rebuttal of evidence tending to prove specific acts of unchastity, the reputation of prosecutrix for sexual virtue is admissable, but not her general reputation for morality.[31] Prosecutrix's age is admissible as bearing upon her susceptibility to the artifices employed.[32] Prosecutor may testify directly as to the motive which caused her to yield to the sexual intercourse.[33] Evidence that prior to the trial the prosecutrix stated that

13. See 4 C. L. 1419.
14. Rucker v. State [Ark.] 90 S. W. 151.
15. Washington v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 910.
16. See 4 C. L. 1419.
17, 18, 19. Burnett v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 956.
20. Stat. 1893, § 1214. Commonwealth v. Akers [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1108.
21. Carrens v. State [Ark.] 91 S. W. 30.
22. A marriage or offer to marry after verdict but before the entry of the final judgment is sufficient. Commonwealth v. Akers [Ky.] 88 S. W. 1108.
23. Not sufficient if made to the father though the prosecuting witness is a minor. Nolen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 735, 88 S. W. 242.
24. See 4 C. L. 1419.
25. Evidence held insufficient to overcome the presumption of chastity. State v. Drake [Iowa] 105 N. W. 54.
26. Weaver v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 341.
27. Letters written by the prosecutrix to third persons showing a vulgar and lascivious mind are admissible. Nolen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 735, 88 S. W. 242. Evidence of acts of prosecutrix subsequent to the alleged intercourse, showing illicit relations with others, is admissible as tending to show that she was unchaste at the time of the sexual intercourse with defendant. Id.
28. Nolen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 735, 88 S. W. 242.
29, 30, 31. State v. Hummer [Iowa] 104 N. W. 722.
32. Whatley v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 1014.
33. Not objectionable as opinion testi-defendant had raped her is admissible to impeach her testimony.[34] Oral or written admissions of defendant are admissible,[35] as is evidence that defendant was not seen in the community after the woman's condition became known as tending to show that defendant realized his danger.[36] Where seduction by promise of marriage is claimed, conversations naturally characteristic of betrothed persons, such as expressions and manifestations of affection,[37] and declarations as to a previous marriage and divorce of defendant, are admissible.[38]

The woman seduced is not an accomplice to the act within the meaning of those statutes which require an accomplice's testimony to be corroborated before it will support a conviction,[39] but in many states her testimony is required by statute to be corroborated.[40] Under these statutes it must be corroborated on every material fact testified to.[41] Evidence of prosecutrix as to sexual intercourse is sufficiently corroborated if evidence be introduced which tends to show acts of sexual intercourse provided they be subsequent to the time of the promise of marriage.[42]

Instructions.[43]—Where the statute requires the evidence of the prosecutrix to be corroborated, it is not reversable error for the court to neglect to define the word "corroborate" if no request is made by defendant's counsel.[44] A charge upon the necessity of evidence to corroborate the evidence of the proscutrix must not be so worded, as to assume the truth of prosecutrix testimony,[45] or to amount in effect to a comment upon the weight of the evidence of the prosecutrix or defendant.[46]

SENTENCE; SEPARATE PROPERTY; SEPARATE TRIALS; SEPARATION, see latest topical index.

SEQUESTRATION.[47]

In Texas.[48]—Where sequestered property is retained under a replevin bond the liability of the surcties on such bond continues until the judgment is finally affirmed on appeal,[49] and on one taking possession of land under sequestration promony for the prosecutrix to testify that her love for the accused induced her to yield to the sexual intercourse. Washington v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 910.

34. Nolen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 735, 88 S. W. 242.

35. Conversation had by defendant with a third person in regard to promise to marry admissible. Whatley v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 1014. Letter written by defendant to prosecuting witness containing admissions of a criminating character is admissible. Id. Letters which have been identified as in defendant's handwriting, tending to show the relation of the defendant and the prosecutrix and which contained acknowledgments that he had done wrong and alluded to his previous promise to marry, are admissible though written after the seduction. Weaver v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 341.

36. Weaver v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 341.

37. The testimony of a brother of the prosecuting witness that he heard the defendant tell the prosecutrix that he loved her, and of prosecutrix to such declarations, are competent as tending to show that defendant was leading the girl to believe that he was going to marry her. Weaver v. State [Ala.] 49 So. 341. Association and apparent affection. Whatley v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 1014.

38. Whatley v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 1014.

39. Penal Code 1895, § 991. Washington v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 910.

40. Rucker v. State [Ark.] 90 S. W. 151.

41. Burnett v. State [Ark.] 88 S. W. 956. Where the seduction was accomplished by a promise of marriage, she must be corroborated both as to the promise and the sexual intercourse. Carrens v. State [Ark.] 91 S. W. 30; Rucker v. State [Ark.] 90 S. W. 151. Evidence of admissions by defendant that he had promised to marry prosecutrix is corroborative. State v. Sublett [Mo.] 90 S. W. 374. Letters alleged to have been written by defendant which are only identified and proved to be letters of defendant by the prosecutrix do not corroborate. Carrens v. State [Ark.] 91 S. W. 30. Evidence as to time of the birth of the child is admissible as tending to corroborate the mother as to the time of the sexual intercourse. Whatley v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 1014.

42. Rucker v. State [Ark.] 90 S. W. 151.

43. See 4 C. L. 1420.

44. State v. Sublett [Mo.] 90 S. W. 374.

45. Garlas v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 690, 88 S. W. 345.

46. State v. Sublett [Mo.] 90 S. W. 374.

47. See 4 C. L. 1420.

48. See 4 C. L. 1421.

49. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Texas Land & Mortgage Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 197. Where vendor had rescinded the executory ceedings, and judgment being finally rendered against him, the principal and sureties on the replevin bond are liable for rents collected after taking possession.[50]

Damages for wrongful sequestration[51] cannot be offset in another action unless wrongfulness was proved.[52]

In Louisiana.[53]—Where necessary the trial court has jurisdiction, after appeal, to order the sequestration of property which is the subject of litigation,[54] but in such case it must confine its rulings to subsequent conditions and cannot decide issues brought up by the appeal;[55] and the writ of sequestration will not issue in a suit after final judgment,[56] nor at the instance of one co-owner against another except as incident to other proceedings.[57] When issued the appellate court will not consider the matter of the release of a sequestration on bond or of increasing the amount of the bond in the absence of full information of conditions existing at the trial.[58] Where the necessity for a writ of sequestration is put in issue it is incumbent upon the applicant to produce evidence in support of his affidavit.[59] A sequestration based on mutual mistake will be dissolved.[60] Property whose character will not admit of division so as to admit of partial sequestration may be so sequestered by express agreement of the parties.[61] A money judgment in terms maintaining a writ of sequestration is equivalent to a decree restoring the property to satisfy the judgment.[62]

SERVICE, see latest topical index.

SET-OFF AND COUNTERCLAIM.

§ 1. Nature and extent of right in general.[63] Equitable set-off.—A court of equity will take cognizance of cross claims between litigants though wholly disconnected and wanting in mutuality, and set off one against the other whenever it becomes necessary to effect a clear equity or prevent irremediable injury.[64] In-contract of sale and sued the purchaser's widow individually, and as administratrix to recover the land, and sequestered the property, the surety on the replevin bond of the widow were held liable for rents pending her appeal. Id. In such case the vendor may recover the rental value of the property without regard to the amount actually collected by the widow or her care in managing the land. Id.

50. Flynt v. Taylor [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 864.

51. See 4 C. L. 1421.

52. A plaintiff who secures a judgment for the recovery of property with defendant's privilege to purchase is not bound to credit defendant for damages arising because plaintiff sequestered the property in the absence of proof that the sequestration was wrongful. Held error to charge plaintiff with rents on defendant electing to purchase. Moore v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 89 S. W. 310.

53. See 4 C. L. 1421.

54, 55. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate v. Houssiere-Latreille Oil Co., 114 La. 573, 38 So. 458.

56. Martel v. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate [La.] 39 So. 441.

57. Held not proper where one co-owner denied the possessory rights of the other except as incident to a suit in partition: Martel v. Jennings Heywood Oil Syndicate [La.] 39 So. 441.

58. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate v. Houssiere-Latreille Oil Co., 114 La. 573, 38 So. 458.

59. Young v. Guess [La.] 38 So. 975.

60. Pharr v. Shadel [La.] 38 So. 914.

61. Martel v. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate [La.] 39 So. 441.

62. Perret v. Coleman [La.] 40 So. 176. In such a case a surety on the release bond cannot defend on the ground that the judgment fails to recognize the plaintiff as owner of the property or entitled to a privilege thereon. Id.

63. See 4 C. L. 1421.

64. Porter v. Roseman [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1105. Defendant, a resident of Indiana, owed plain-solvency [65] and nonresidence [66] of one of the parties are grounds for the application of this principle.

Statutory set-off and counterclaim.—Under the codes, and subject to the code limitations, a counterclaim includes well-nigh every kind of cross demand existing in favor of defendant and against plaintiff in the same right, whether said demand be of a legal or equitable nature.[67] It is broader in meaning than set-off, recoupment, or cross action, and includes them all and secures to defendant the full relief which a separate action at law, or bill in chancery, or a cross bill, would have secured on the same state of facts.[68] The right of set-off given by statute is not subject to or defeated by other statutory provisions relating to exemptions.[69] Thus, where cross demands exist which, under the set-off statutes, must be deemed compensated so far as they equal each other, one of the claimants is not entitled to an allowance of the amount of the claim against him on a claim of exemption, though, under the exemption statute, he would be entitled to hold such amount.[70] The statute of the state wherein an action is brought controls as to the nature of tiff, resident of New York, for goods sold. An employe of defendant misappropriated money of defendant, and took up his notes to plaintiff, which plaintiff had given a bank for collection. Held, defendant could, in equity, set off his claim for the money so received by plaintiff against plaintiff's demand. Id. Where two wards sue a third to avoid a sale by the guardian to defendant, and judgment is for plaintiffs but they are charged with their share of the cost of improvements made by defendant while in possession, plaintiffs may set off against the claim for improvements their share of the rents and profits, less their share of taxes, insurance and repairs, but such set-off cannot under Rev. Laws, c. 179, §§ 23, 24, exceed the sum with which they are charged for improvements. Sunter v. Sunter [Mass.] 77 N. E. 497.

65. Renfro v. Yarbrough [Ala.] 39 So. 660. A bank deposit was attached by the depositor's creditor. Thereafter, without knowledge of an assignment by the debtor for creditors, the bank and the attaching creditor made an agreement whereby the creditor was allowed to draw on the bank on the faith of the attachment. The bank assigned, and the attachment debtor's assignee assigned the deposit to the attaching creditor. Held, in equity, the deposit could be set off against the amounts received from the bank. Id.

66. Principle applied where resident of New York came into Indiana to sue on a demand. Porter v. Roseman [Ind.] 74 N. E. 1105.

NOTE. Grounds for equitable set-off: Where debts are not mutual, insolvency alone has been held insufficient, even in a case of positive indebtedness, to authorize an equitable set-off (Lockwood v. Beckwith, 6 Mich. 169, 72 Am. Dec. 69; Hale v. Holmes, 8 Mich. 37; Watts v. Sayre, 76 Ala. 397), but the adjustment of demands by counterclaim or set-off rather than by independent suit is favored and encouraged by the law to avoid circuity of action. Hence, the insolvency of the party against whom a set-off is claimed is a sufficient ground for equitable interference. North Chicago Rolling Mill Co. v. St. Louis, etc., Steel Co., 152 U. S. 596, 38 Law. Ed. 565; Scott v. Armstrong, 146 U. S. 499, 36 Law. Ed. 1059; Robbins v. Holley, 1 T. B. Mon. [Ky.] 191; Nashville Trust Co. v. Bank, 91 Tenn. 336, 347; Laybourn v. Scymour, 53 Minn. 105, 39 Am. St. Rep. 579; Bemis v. Smith, 10 Met. [Mass.] 194; Marshall v. Cooper, 43 Md. 46; Levy v. Steinbach, 43 Md. 212; Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Haines, 78 Md. 454; Becker v. Northway, 44 Minn. 61, 20 Am. St. Rep. 543; White v. Wiggins, 32 Ala. 424; Farris v. Houston, 78 Ala. 250; Coffin v. McLean, 80 N. Y. 560; Davidson v. Alfaro, 80 N. Y. 660; Ainslie v. Boynton, 2 Barb. [N. Y.] 258; Lindsay v. Jackson, 2 Paige [N. Y.] 581; Conroy v. Dunlap, 104 Cal. 133. Nonresidence of the party against whom set-off is prayed is also ground therefor in some jurisdiction. North Chicago Rolling Mill Co. v. St. Louis, etc., Steel Co., 152 U. S. 596, 38 Law. Ed. 565; Robbins v. Holley, 1 T. B. Mon. [Ky.] 191. Cross demands and counterclaims, whether arising out of the same or wholly disconnected transactions, and whether liquidated or unliquidated, may be enforced by way of set-off whenever the circumstances are such as to warrant the interference of equity to prevent wrong and injustice. North Chicago Rolling Mill Co. v. St. Louis, etc., Steel Co., 152 U. S. 596, 615, 38 Law. Ed. 565. The impossibility of obtaining the benefit of a set-off in an ordinary suit at law also authorizes a court of equity to enforce it. Ainslie v. Boynton, 2 Barb. [N. Y.] 258, 263. If, however, the demand against which the set-off is urged has been assigned, it must appear that the insolvency or removal from the state occurred before the assignment. Robbins v. Holley, 1 T. B. Mon. [Ky.] 191. Cross demands, though unliquidated by judgment, and although not within the statute of set-off, will, after the insolvency of one of the parties, the set off in equity against one another, if, from the situation of the parties, justice cannot otherwise be done. Davidson v. Alfaro, 80 N. Y. 660.—Note St. Paul, etc., Trust Co. v. Leck [Minn.] 47 Am. St. Rep. 579.

67, 68. R. L. Smith & Co. v. French [N. C.] 53 S. E. 435.

69. Serhant v. Haker [Ohio] 76 N. E. 943.

70. Under Rev. St. 1905, §§ 5066-5077, one judgment may be offset against another notwithstanding the exemption statute would ordinarily apply. Serhant v. Haker [Ohio] 76 N. E. 943.

demands which may be pleaded as set-off.[71] Thus, where the statute permits demands upon simple contracts to be offset against judgments, such a demand may be offset against a foreign judgment, regardless of the statute of the state wherein such judgment was rendered.[72]

Statutes commonly provide, in substance, that a counterclaim must be (1) a cause of action arising out of the contract or transaction set forth in the complaint as the foundation of the plaintiff's claim,[73] or connected with the subject of the action;[74] (2) in an action on contract, any other cause of action, arising also on contract, and existing at the commencement of the action.[75] In an action on a contract a cause of action in tort may be counterclaimed if it comes within the first subdivision of the statute,[76] though the damages claimed are unliquidated.[77] Unliquidated damages arising from breach of a contract, unconnected with the subject-matter of plaintiff's suit, cannot, in Illinois, be offset.[78] In an action ex delicto, neither a cause of action in tort,[79] nor a debt,[80] can be counterclaimed, when not connected with the subject-matter of plaintiff's action.[81] A debt or the dam-

71. Leathe v. Thomas, 218 Ill. 246, 75 N. E. 810.

72. In action on Missouri judgment, in Illinois, simple contract demand may be offset under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 110, § 19. Leathe v. Thomas, 218 Ill. 246, 75 N. E. 810.

73. Transaction: In a suit for an injunction to compel defendant, claimed to be a servant, to leave plaintiff's house, defendant claiming to be plaintiff's wife, defendant may by a cross complaint sue for the value of services rendered, since the cause of action therefor arose out of the same "transaction" as was the subject of plaintiff's action. Mixer v. Mixer [Cal. App.] 83 P. 273. In a claim and delivery action for furniture of a lessee taken by the lessor under an alleged lien for rent, the "transaction" on which the complaint was based was the wrongful taking of the property. Hence, claims for water rent and repairs, and for damage to the building, could not be counterclaimed. Osmers v. Furey, 32 Mont. 581, 81 P. 345.

74. The words subject of the action denote plaintiff's principal, primary right, to enforce which the action is brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 501. Steinmetz v. Cosmopolitan Range Co., 47 Misc. 611, 94 N. Y. S. 456. In an action by the assignee of a legatee to enforce payment of the legacy out of general assets of the estate, a claim that plaintiff's assignor had converted a portion of the assets was not "connected with the subject of the action" under Code Civ. Proc. § 501, and was not a good counterclaim. Lechleuter v. Shano, 96 N. Y. S. 716.

75. In an action on a note liability upon which is admitted, a claim against plaintiff as indorser of another note cannot be set off where the indorsement was simply to pass title to defendant and was without consideration. Peabody v. Munson, 113 Ill. App. 296.

76. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 501, subd. 1, in an action on contract, a counterclaim need not be on contract if it arises out of the same transaction, a cause of action in tort may be counterclaimed. Kneeland v. Pennell, 96 N. Y. S. 403. In an action on a note given in the course of a transaction in the sale of wheat on margins by plaintiff for defendant, a claim for damages arising out of plaintiff's misconduct in handling the business arises out of the same transaction and constitutes a valid counterclaim. Id. Counterclaims for conversion of securities by plaintiff, in that they were sold without notice to defendant, held also within Code Civ. Prac. § 501, subd. 1. Id. Under Rev. Codes 1899, § 5274, subd. 1, a mortgagor of chattels may counterclaim for their conversion by the mortgagee when sued on the note secured by the mortgage. Hanson v. Skogman [N. D.] 105 N. W. 90. In an action to enforce a mortgage lien on land given to secure notes, the answer alleged conversion of other mortgaged property by sale under a void judgment on the notes. Held the answer constituted a counterclaim, the cause of action being connected with or arising out of the transaction or cause of action sued on (Civ. Code Prac. § 96), and also a defense. Aultman & Taylor Co. v. Meade [Ky.] 89 S. W. 137. In an action on contract, if a claim of defendant be based upon matters directly connected with, and injuries growing out of, the contract sued on, it can be asserted as an offset. Under Code 1887, § 3299, in an action on account growing out of a lease contract of hotel premises, defendant may offset damages for acts of trespass by plaintiff and disregard of defendant's rights, injuring his business. Newport News & O. P. Ry. & Elec. Co. v. Bickford [Va.] 52 S. E. 1011. In an action of assumpsit defendant may set off the value of goods belonging to him which have been converted by plaintiff. Under Code 1904, § 3298, providing that in an action of debt defendant may prove any payment or set-off. Tidewater Quarry Co. v. Scott [Va.] 52 S. E. 835.

77. Newport News & O. P. R. & Elec. Co. v. Bickford [Va.] 52 S. E. 1011. If a counterclaim arises out of the same transaction as plaintiff's cause of action, it is not objectionable as seeking unliquidated damages. Tyson v. Jackson Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 930.

78. Higbie v. Rust, 112 Ill. App. 218.

79. In a tort action, another cause of action in tort cannot be counterclaimed under Code Civ. Proc. 1902, § 171. Roberts v. Jones, 71 S. C. 404, 51 S. E. 240.

80. A debt cannot be set off against a claim for unliquidated damages arising out of tort. Sayles' Civ. St. 1897, art. 754. Baldwin v. Richardson [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 189, 87 S. W. 746.

81. A cause of action cannot be pleaded as a counterclaim to an action ex delicto ages which can be set off as an independent counterclaim must be such as a jury can find and liquidate in the ordinary way.[82] Where the right of defendant is only to call plaintiff to an account, and this demand is such as must be settled in an action of account rendered, or by bill in equity for an account, it is not a proper set-off.[83]. In Alabama, any demand, not sounding in damages merely, may be set off against any other demand, not sounding in damages merely, whether the cause of action and the demand sought to be set off against it arose out of a contract or tort.[84]

Recoupment.[85]—A defendant may not set up a claim by way of recoupment unless it would be just and practicable to adjust it in the plaintiff's action.[86] In an action on a contract, unliquidated damages arising out of a tort independent of and disconnected with the transaction sued on cannot be recouped by way of equitable defense.[87] In Mississippi, in an action for the price of goods sold, a claim for damages for breach of warranty is properly pleaded in recoupment but not as a set-off.[88]

§ 2. To be available as a set-off or counterclaim, a demand must, ordinarily, have been a vested and subsisting cause of action at the time of the commencement of plaintiff's suit,[89] but, in North Carolina, "a cause of action arising out of the contract or transaction set forth in the complaint as the foundation for plaintiff's claim, or connected with the subject of the action," may be pleaded as a counterclaim if it matures before answer filed or trial had. It is not essential that a claim within this provision of the statute should exist at the commencement of the action.[90] A claim or demand not due and enforceable at the time of the transfer or assignment of the claim sued on is not available as a counterclaim.[91]

unless it arises out of the transaction set forth in the complaint or is connected with the subject-matter of the action. Gen. St. §§ 94, 5237. Hanson v. Byrnes [Minn.] 104 N. W. 762. In action for damages to land caused by diversion of surface water, a claim for damages caused by plaintiff's diversion of certain other water was not connected with the subject-matter of plaintiff's action. Crabtree Coal Min. Co. v. Hamby's Adm'r [Ky.] 90 S. W. 226.

82. Appleby v. Barrett, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 349. Unliquidated damages arising ex contractu may be set off under the defalcation act of 1705, 1 Gen. Laws 49, whenever they are capable of liquidation by any known legal standard. Wanamaker v. Quinn, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 288. Where purchaser of furniture loses a tenant by reason of the delay in delivery, he may set off the rent lost against the price of the furniture. Id.

83. An unascertained balance alleged to be due one member of a firm from another cannot be set off in an action by one upon the individual note of the other. Appleby v. Barrett, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 349.

84. Under Code 1896, § 3728, a claim for conversion by plaintiff of a stated amount of cotton of a certain value, mortgaged to defendant by a third person, defendant's lien being thereby impaired, may be set off against a claim for a balance due on account between plaintiff and defendant. Debter v. Henry [Ala.] 39 So. 72.

85. See 4 C. L. 1422.

86. In an action for the price of a traveling crane, defendant cannot recoup damages paid, without suit, to the widow of a servant killed by reason of the negligent construction of the crane, since the issues of negligence involved cannot properly be tried in the action for the price. Edgemoor Iron Co. v. Brown Hoisting Mach. Co. [Del.] 62 A. 1054. In an action for the price of a wagon under a contract warranting soundness of the wagon, damages resulting from injuries caused by defects in the wagon cannot be recouped. S. W. Rodes & Son v. Arney, 115 Ill. App. 629.

87. In suit on notes given for interest in firm, the claim that plaintiff tortiously took possession of the business and property cannot be used by way of recoupment, since the tort is not connected with the transaction sued on. Roth v. Reiter [Pa.] 62 A. 1063.

88. W. T. Adams Mach. Co. v. Thomas [Miss.] 39 So. 810.

89. See 4 C. L. 1422. Under Code § 3570, a cause of action not held by defendant at the time action is instituted against him by plaintiff cannot be interposed as a counterclaim in that action. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Rimerman, 127 Iowa, 719, 104 N. W. 279. Pleading insufficient as counterclaim because not setting forth a "present, subsisting" cause of action against plaintiff in favor of defendant. Portland Co. v. Hall, 95 N. Y. S. 36.

90. Construing Revisal 1905, § 481. R. L. Smith & Co. v. French [N. C.] 53 S. E. 435. In claim and delivery for property covered by a chattel mortgage, wherein the property is taken under process and turned over to plaintiff, an answer admitting plaintiff's right to possession, but alleging that the value of the property taken was greatly in excess of the debt, and that plaintiff had taken and wasted the property, and demanding judg-

§ 3. Demands must be mutual[92] and the parties must stand in the same right and capacity.[93]—A claim against a third person cannot be used as a set-off.[94] In an action against defendants as partners, they may use as a counterclaim a judgment against plaintiff, on a right of action which accrued to the firm and was sued upon by them as partners.[95] A trustee who borrows for himself and others may plead usury as a counterclaim for himself and beneficiaries.[96] In a suit against a principal and his surety, the surety may set off a demand due from the plaintiff to the principal.[97] In New York, in an action by a receiver, defendant can counterclaim only to the extent of plaintiff's demand.[98]

Statutes providing that, in case of an assignment of a chose in action, the action by the assignee shall be without prejudice to any set-off or other defense existing at the time of or before notice of the assignment are for the sole benefit of the debtor.[99] They do not apply in actions by an assignee against a person to whom the debtor has paid the claim.[1]

§ 4. To admit of set-off or counterclaim the main action must be similar in form and remedy to that required for the other.[2]—A claim for a money judgment ment for the value of the property in excess of the debt, constitutes a good counterclaim. Id.

91. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1909, relative to assignments, and § 502, sub. 1, relative to counterclaims, note given by plaintiff's assignor of claim sued on to defendant, but not due at time of assignment, was not available as a counterclaim. Michigan Sav. Bank v. Miller, 96 N. Y. S. 568.

92. In an action by agents who sold machinery on commission against a purchaser, an answer setting up a counterclaim and alleging that defendant was induced to buy by plaintiffs becoming personally liable on defendant's obligation, and that note sued on was therefor given, and that plaintiffs personally agreed to keep extras on hand, stated a cause of action against plaintiffs and not against their principal. Tyson v. Jackson Bros. [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 930. Grantor warranted right to cut timber from land conveyed, and grantee conveyed to another, who cut timber and thereby suffered judgment for a statutory penalty for wrongful cutting of timber. Held original grantee could not set off amount of penalty against purchase price, not being a party to the judgment for the penalty. Turner v. Lawson [Ala.] 39 So. 755. Notwithstanding Code § 3887, providing that a defendant in an attachment suit may interpose a claim for damages on the bond, such counterclaim is not available if his right of action therefor has not accrued from damages which he has suffered, but has been acquired by assignment from another to whom such right accrued by reason of a levy or the attachment in such suit. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Rimerman, 127 Iowa, 719, 104 N. W. 279. Husband and wife executed a bond, secured by mortgage on the wife's property, to an association which issued certificate to husband entitling him to participate in a fund. Held, in suit to foreclose mortgage, husband could set off a claim under the certificate against any deficiency judgment which might be rendered against him. American Guild of Virginia v. Damon, 94 N. Y. S. 985.

93. See 4 C. L. 1422.

94. In an action on a renewal note, the fact that the original note, given to a third person, was for a patent right but failed to express the consideration, as required by Laws 1903, p. 723, c. 438, thereby subjecting such third person to the penalty, equal to the face of the note, under such statute, did not give defendant a right of counterclaim against plaintiff, since the penalty was a claim against the third person only. Kipp v. Gates [Wis.] 105 N. W. 947. Certain persons doing business under a name afterwards used as the name of a corporation formed by them agreed to pay an employe $50 per month. A bank paid vouchers drawn in such business name and continued to do so after the corporation was formed. Held, in an action against the corporation for salary due the employe, amounts advanced by the association prior to incorporation could not be counterclaimed. Davis v. Bakersfield Oil & Stock Exch. [Cal. App.] 83 P. 260. In action by seller for price of machine, an amount spent by defendant for repairs under an arrangement with the manufacturer, which agreed to bear such expense, could not be set off. Borden & Selleck Co. v. Fraser, 118 Ill. App. 655.

95. Butler v. Delafield [Cal. App.] 82 P. 260.

96. Earle v. Owings [S. C.] 51 S. E. 980.

97. Marcy v. Whallon, 115 Ill. App. 435.

98. Laws 1902, c. 580, § 152, subd. 3, provides that if plaintiff is a trustee for another or has no actual interest in the suit brought in his name demand against plaintiff cannot be counterclaimed, but that a demand against the person represented by plaintiff or for whom the action is brought may be allowed to satisfy plaintiff's demand. Held, in an action by a receiver, affirmative relief cannot be rendered for defendant. He can counterclaim only to the extent of plaintiff's demand. Schlesinger v. Rachmil, 94 N. Y. S. 12.

99. Quigley v. Welter [Minn.] 104 N. Y. 236.

1. Where laborer assigned claim for wages and debtor thereafter, in garnishment proceedings, paid a creditor of the laborer, under an invalid judgment, Gen. St. 1894, § 5157, did not apply to a suit by the assignee to recover the money. Quigley v. Welter [Minn.] 104 N. W. 236.

2. See 4 C. L. 1425.

cannot be interposed as a counterclaim in an action for the recovery of the possession of property or its value.[3] In an action on a contract, on which defendant elects to stand, he cannot sustain a counterclaim on the theory of quantum meruit.[4] In an action for damages for the wrongful death of an employe, the master cannot set off damages for injury to his property caused by negligence of the deceased.[5] In an action on a contractor's bond by a city to the use of a material man, the contractor cannot set off a claim for damages arising out of negligence of a servant of the use plaintiff.[6] Pleas of offset may be filed in a proceeding by motion under the Virginia statute, such proceeding being an action at law.[7]

§ 5. Pleading and practice.[8]—In some jurisdictions no averments in a pleading will be treated as constituting a counterclaim unless they are so designated in the answer and unless it contains a proper prayer for judgment.[9] Elsewhere it is held that while merely calling a claim a "counterclaim" when pleaded responsively does not warrant affirmative relief,[10] yet where it distinctly appears from the relief demanded that matter set up in the answer is intended as a counterclaim, it is immaterial that it is not expressly so denominated.[11] Under code provisions permitting a defendant to plead all the counterclaims or defenses he may have, whether legal or equitable or both, facts which if true simply defeat plaintiff's action may be set up as a defense alone,[12] but facts which call for affirmative relief in favor of defendant before plaintiff's action can be defeated must be set up by counterclaim.[13] Under this provision a counterclaim may be joined with a defense.[14] Where a paragraph of an answer is called a counterclaim by the pleader, on demurrer it will be tested as a counterclaim, and its sufficiency as a defense cannot be urged.[15] A demurrer to a counterclaim on the ground that it is not of the character specified in the code is sufficiently specific.[16]

To constitute a valid counterclaim, every fact must be set forth which is necessary to uphold an original petition founded on the same cause of action.[17] A plea of equitable set off must be sufficiently definite and certain to present an

3. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 691, providing that a counterclaim must tend to diminish or defeat plaintiff's recovery. Osmers v. Furey, 32 Mont. 581, 81 P. 345. In replevin to recover cattle, the issue being the ownership and right to possession of the cattle, damages for trespass by the cattle cannot be counterclaimed, even though Ky. St. 1903, § 4646, gives a lien on trespassing cattle to the one injured, which must be enforced by an action. Linn v. Hagan's Adm'r [Ky.] 92 S. W. 11.

4. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Kansas City & I. Air Line Co., 189 Mo. 538, 88 S. W. 3. In action to recover for work done under contract to protect defendant's right of way, which was occupied also by plaintiff's tracks defendant could not sustain a counterclaim for other work done by it, on a part of the right of way not covered by the contract, on the theory that such work was of incidental benefit to plaintiff. Id.

5. Under Code 1896, § 27, railway company cannot set off claims for damages to its cars in action for death of engineer. Western Ry. v. Russell [Ala.] 39 So. 311.

6. City of Philadelphia v. Pierson, 211 Pa. 388, 60 A. 999.

7. Newport News & O. P. R. & Elec. Co. v. Bickford [Va.] 52 S. E. 1011.

8. See 4 C. L. 1427.

9. State v. Coughran [S. D.] 103 N. W. 31.

10. American Guild of Virginia v. Damon, 94 N. Y. S. 985.

11. So held in divorce action. Mason v. Mason, 46 Misc. 361, 94 N. Y. S. 868.

12. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. McKeigue [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1030.

13. Construing Rev. St. 1898, § 2657. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. McKeigue [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1030.

14. In action on notes for patent rights, defendant may claim damages for false representations and also ask for rescission of the contract, tendering back rights acquired thereunder. J. H. Clark Co. v. Rice [Wis.] 106 N. W. 231.

15. Rogers v. Morton, 46 Misc. 494, 95 N. Y. S. 49.

16. Kneeland v. Pennell, 96 N. Y. S. 403.

17. Crabtree Coal Min. Co. v. Hamby's Adm'r [Ky.] 90 S. W. 226. In action on a note by an indorsee, a paragraph of the answer reaffirmed all the allegations of the defenses, and alleged that plaintiff fraudulently diverted the note and converted it, whereby the railroad company for whose benefit it was given became insolvent, to defendants' damage. Held the paragraph was insufficient for want of facts to state a distinct cause of action, so as to constitute a valid counterclaim. Rogers v. Morton, 46 Misc. 494, 95 N. Y. S. 49. In suit to set aside probate of will, the answer set up due probate of the will, that it was deceased's last will, and prayed that the probate be confirmed and the will established. Held such allegations did not constitute a counterclaim issue of fact for the settlement of the court.[18] A plaintiff is entitled to have a plea in reconvention show whether or not the claim or any part of it is barred by limitations.[19] In Illinois, a defendant cannot make a defense under a special plea and then prove a set-off under a notice of special matter.[20] In Pennsylvania the averments of a set-off in an affidavit of defense must be set forth with the same clearness and particularity that are required of a plaintiff in his statement.[21] In Virginia the particulars of a claim relied on as a set-off need not be set out with the formality and precision of a declaration or plea but only in such manner as to notify the adverse party of the nature of the claim.[22] Where, in New York, an answer in a divorce action contains a general denial and also allegations of cruel and inhuman treatment and failure to support, the latter allegations constitute a "counterclaim." [23] In Alabama a plea of set-off does not entitle the pleader to judgment for any excess.[24]

Evidence.—The general rules regarding the admissibility of evidence under a counterclaim are the same as those regulating evidence under a complaint or declaration.[25] The burden of proving a counterclaim [26] or set-off [27] is on defendant.

Instructions on the amount which a plaintiff may recover, which ignore a plea of set-off by defendant, are erroneous.[28]

Limitations.—A counterclaim for usury is available as long as a right of action exists on the principal sum.[29] The statute of limitations as to an action for a penalty or forfeiture has no application.[30]

SETTLEMENT OF CASE; SETTLEMENTS; SEVERANCE OF ACTIONS, see latest topical index.

SEWERS AND DRAINS.

§ 1. State and municipal authority and control.[31]—Laws providing for the construction and repair of public drainage ditches are within the police power.[32] The reclamation, by construction of drains, of lands rendered useless by surface for affirmative relief, and it was error for the court, after plaintiff had dismissed, to render judgment for defendant. Davis v. Preston [Iowa] 106 N. W. 151.

18. Plea held too vague and uncertain. State v. Alexander [Tenn.] 90 S. W. 20.

19. City of Houston v. Stewart [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 49.

20. Berry v. Kingsbaker, 118 Ill. App. 198.

21. Appleby v. Barrett, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 349. The rule that affidavits of defense must set forth matters of defense specifically and clearly, leaving nothing to inference, applies where a set-off is asserted. Allegations held insufficient to show liability of an indorser on a note. Caven-Williamson Ammonia Co. v. Ice Mfg. Co., 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 381.

22. Set-off for conversion, in action of assumpsit, which gave an itemized account of goods claimed to have been converted held sufficient under Code 1887, § 3249. Tidewater Quarry Co. v. Scott [Va.] 52 S. E. 835.

23. Code Civ. Proc. § 1770. Mason v. Mason, 46 Misc. 361, 94 N. Y. S. 868.

24. Riddle v. McLester-Van Hoose Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 101.

25. Where answer contained general denial and counterclaim, it was error to exclude evidence offered to contradict evidence given in support of counterclaim. Blaut v. Gross, 94 N. Y. S. 324.

26. Evidence held insufficient. Simonoff v. Horwitz, 95 N. Y. S. 522.

27. Fuller v. Stevens [Ala.] 39 So. 623.

28. Instructions should include direction to set off amounts found due the respective parties and render verdict for the party found to be entitled to a balance. Carlin & Co. v. Fraser [Va.] 53 S. E. 145.

29, 30. Earle v. Owings [S. C.] 51 S. E. 980.

31. See 4 C. L. 1429.

32. Taylor v. Crawford, 72 Ohio St. 560, 74 N. E. 1065.

water is of public benefit,[33] and the legislature may properly so declare [34] and may authorize the taking of private property for the construction of drains.[35] The legislature may properly delegate its powers with reference to drainage to local municipalities,[36] and the exercise by them of discretionary powers so conferred is not subject to review by the courts unless an abuse of discretion appears.[37] It is 33, 34. Sisson v. Buena Vista County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 454.

35. Sisson v. Buena Vista County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 454. The North Carolina drainage laws are not unconstitutional as authorizing the taking of land for a private purpose. Porter v. Armstrong, 139 N. C. 179, 51 S. E. 926.

NOTE. Drains as public works: In Hagar v. Reclamation District, 111 U. S. 701, 28 Law. Ed. 569, it was held that it was within the discretion of the California legislature to prescribe a system for reclaiming swamp lands when essential to the health and prosperity of the community, and to lay the burden of doing it upon the districts and persons benefited. And in Re Madera Irr. Dist., 92 Cal. 296, 28 Pa. 272, 27 Am. St. Rep. 106, 14 L. R. A. 755, the court said: "Whether the reclamation of the land be from excessive moisture to a condition suitable for cultivation, or from excessive aridity to the same condition, the right of the legislature to authorize such reclamation must be upheld upon the same principle, viz., the welfare of the public within the district affected by the means adopted for such reclamation." So, also, in the very recent case of Laguna Drainage Dist. v. Charles Martin Co., 144 Cal. 209, 77 P. 933, Justice Lorigan, in sustaining the public character of the use of land for drainage purposes, said: "It is to the interest of every state, and hence conducive to the public good that all its lands should be utilized and made productive, and this end attained in any particular locality or localities is a benefit to the entire state." And continuing, he said: "And not only is drainage legislation suported as being, from a material point of view, conducive to the public good, but it is equally sustained as being within the exercise of the police power of the state—in the interest of public health." In fact, in some of the states, drainage lawe are upheld upon the ground of being an exercise of the public power. Cribbs v. Benedict, 64 Ark. 555, 44 S. W. 707; Winslow v. Winslow, 95 N. C. 24; Bryant v. Robbins, 70 Wis. 258, 35 N. W. 545; State v. McNay, 90 Wis. 104, 62 N. W. 917. The court, in Lien v. Norman County, 80 Minn. 58, 82 N. W. 1094, in drawing the distinction when drainage was an exercise of eminent domain, and when an exercise of the police power, said: "Where the laws have for their object the reclamation of large tracts of wet and swamp lands for agricultural purposes, they are sustained under the right of eminent domain. The fact that large tracts of otherwise waste lands may be thus reclaimed and made suitable for agricultural purposes is deemed and held to constitute a public benefit. When the object is to drain such lands in the interest of the public health and welfare, such laws are sustained and upheld as a proper exercise of the police power." Citing Wurts v. Hoagland, 114 U. S. 606, 29 Law. Ed. 229.

The necessity for drains to be for the public interest was also stated in Chaplin v. Wheatland Highway Com'rs, 129 Ill. 651, 22 N. E. 484; Collins v. Rupe, 109 Ind. 340, 10 N. E. 91; Darst v. Griffin, 31 Neb. 668, 48 N. W. 819; Fleming v. Hull, 73 Iowa, 598, 35 N. W. 673; Reeves v. Wood County Treas. 8 Ohio St. 333.

The drainage of swamps, marshes, or other wet lands giving rise to malaria or other unhealthful results is generally upheld as being either within the right of eminent domain or the police power, on the ground that such drainage conduces toward the public health. Springer v. Walters, 139 Ill. 419, 28 N. E. 761; Coolman v. Fleming, 82 Ind. 117; Hull v. Baird, 73 Iowa, 528, 35 N. W. 613; Duke v. O'Bryan, 100 Ky. 710, 39 S. W. 444, 824; Kinnie v. Bare, 68 Mich. 625, 36 N. W. 672; In re Ryers, 72 N. Y. 1, 28 Am. Rep. 88; People v. Henion, 64 Hun, 471, 19 N. Y. S. 488.

The right of way for a drainage ditch cannot be taken where the ditch is solely for private benefit. Fleming v. Hull, 73 Iowa, 598, 35 N. W. 573; Duke v. O'Bryan, 100 Ky. 710, 39 S. W. 444, 824; Coster v. Tide Water Co., 18 N. J. Eq. 54. But it is not necessary in order that a drain may be regarded as of a public use that the whole community or any large portion of it particlpate in its use. If the drain be of public benefit, the fact that some individuals may be specially benefited above others affected by it will not deprive it of its public character. Poundstone v. Baldwin, 145 Ind. 139, 44 N. E. 191; Heffner v. Cass & Morgan Counties, 193 Ill. 439, 62 N. E. 201, 58 L. R. A. 353; Talbot v. Hudson, 16 Gray, 423. But in Quillen v. Hatton, 42 Ohio St. 202, it was held that the fact that a proposed ditch by draining a farm would thereby enable the owners to raise more corn or better crops was not sufficient to make said ditch constitute a public use. The same ruling was also made in Anderson v. Kerns Draining Co., 14 Ind. 199, 77 Am. Dec. 63.—Note Zircle v. Southern R. Co. [Va.] 102 Am. St. Rep. 832, 833, 834.

36. See § 2, Independent Organizations. Pub. Acts 1903, No. 237, p. 390, delegating to county supervisors certain legislative and administrative powers with reference to the construction of drains, is valid, under Const. art. 4, § 38. Albert v. Gibson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 642, 105 N. W. 19.

37. The exercise of discretionary powers conferred on commissioners of a drainage district by statute will not be interfered with by the courts in the absence of an abuse of discretion. Bromwell v. Flowers, 217 Ill. 174, 75 N. E. 466. Mandamus will not issue to compel commissioners to raise additional funds (none being available) to clear out a lateral drain, when they have exercised their judgment and declined to join in a petition for such a proceeding. Id. Under Pol. Code tit. 8, c. 2, county supervisors have power to determine questions of fact relative to the organization and division or eclamation districts. Hence, court will not enjoin action on application for formation of a district on ground that lands have been reclaimed. Glide v. Superior Court of Yolo County, 14 Cal. Sup. 21, 81 P. 225. Upon petition for division of a

held in Michigan that neither the drain commissioner nor persons interested in the construction of drains have any contractual or vested rights which are violated by a statute modifying, amending, and supplementing the general law as applicable to a certain county.[38]

Cities have only such powers with reference to the construction of sewers as are expressly conferred by statute or charter. General power to construct and maintain streets includes power to construct storm sewers,[39] and such sewers may, in the discretion of the city authorities, be built over private property by agreement with the owners.[40] A statute authorizing borough authorities to construct sewers does not confer power to contract with a private corporation for the exclusive right to provide and maintain a sewer system.[41] A grant of permission to use the streets of a city for a sewer system does not constitute a contract nor confer any exclusive right upon the corporation to which it is granted,[42] hence the corporation is not entitled to damages when the city exercises its right to construct a sewer system.[43] The exercise of discretionary powers by city authorities, as in determining the necessity for and character of a sewer, is not subject to judicial review[44] in the absence of unreasonable or arbitrary action.[45]

§ 2. Independent organizations controlling drainage, reclamation, and sanitation.[46]—The construction of drains to reclaim waste lands and to conserve the public health is commonly intrusted to local organizations known as drainage, reclamation or sanitation districts. Drainage districts are public, governmental agencies, and in no sense private corporations.[47] In Illinois a drainage district is said to be a voluntary quasi corporation organized for a special and limited purpose.[48]

Organization and officers.—Where there is no order of record finding a drainage district duly established as provided by law in Illinois, the defect cannot be remedied at a subsequent term by an order nunc pro tunc.[49] The method of appointing or electing officers is statutory.[50] In Indiana, viewers of a county have a right to resign and their resignations may be legally accepted by the county ap-reclamation district, under Pol. Code Cal. §§ 3446-3493 1-2, the question whether lands have been reclaimed so as to warrant division is for the supervisors, and a court of equity will not decide that question and enjoin proceedings. Rico v. Snider, 134 F. 953. In a proceeding to provide for repairs to a ditch, the questions whether the ditch will promote the 'public health, convenience and welfare will not again be considered. These questions are settled when a ditch is originally constructed. Taylor v. Crawford, 72 Ohio St. 560, 74 N. E. 1065.

38. Rice v. Ionia Probate Judge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 645, 105 N. W. 17.

39. Parsons v. Grand Rapids [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 507, 104 N. W. 730.

40. Construction of storm drain in natural ravine owned by private persons, upheld. Kramer v. Los Angeles, 147 Cal. 668, 82 P. 334.

41, 42, 43. Olyphant Sewage Drainage Co. v. Olyphant Borough [Pa.] 61 A. 72.

44. Power to construct street improvements held to include power to provide for storm sewers in connection therewith, and the necessity therefor determined by council would not be reviewed by the court in a suit to set aside the assessment. Parsons v. Grand Rapids [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 507, 104 N. W. 730. The fact that a municipality owning lands abutting on a stream has not taken wholly effective measures in all cases to prevent the pollution of the water thereof, which goes into its waterworks system, will not hinder or prevent it from taking measures, such as the building of a sewer, to divert the sewerage to another course, nor will such fact prevent the collection of an assessment levied against the property specially benefited by such sewer to pay the cost thereof. Hildebrand v. Toledo, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 450.

45. An ordinance for sewer construction requiring house slants every 25 feet is not unreasonable or arbitrary. Washington Park Club v. Chicago, 219 Ill. 323, 76 N. E. 383.

46. See 4 C. L. 1431.

47. Rev. St. 1899, § 8213, and Act April 8, 1905, § 8253. State v. Chariton Drainage Dist., No. 1 [Mo.] 90 S. W. 722.

48. Barton v. Minnie Creek Drainage Dist., 112 Ill. App. 640.

49. Mack v. Polecat Drainage Dist., 216 Ill. 56, 74 N. E. 691.

50. A drain commissioner elected in Berrien county under Loc. Acts 1903, p. 489, No. 448, is entitled to the office as against an appointee of supervisors under the Laws of 1897, p. 351, No. 254, as amended by Laws 1899, p. 459, No. 272. Attorney General v. Stryker [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 518, 104 N. W. 737.

pointing them, though such county is not the one in which the proceeding originated.[51] Property owners who have no notice of the original proceeding for a public ditch, but who are first brought in and their lands assessed in a proceeding for an additional assessment, may at such time object to the qualifications of commissioners on the ground of kinship to parties interested.[52] The Kansas statute requiring directors of drainage districts to be freeholders elected by resident taxpayers does not violate the provision of the bill of rights of that state that no property qualification shall be required for any office of public trust or for any vote at any election.[53] In Michigan a county drain commissioner is individually liable for damage to property of a township caused by the unlawful enlargement of an artificial drain.[54]

Limits of districts and changes therein.—In Illinois a drainage district may be enlarged without including all the lands benefited, provided the petitioners still include a majority of owners or represent one-third of the affected area.[55] In a proceeding to have lands alleged to be benefited by a ditch added to the district, a complaint signed by a majority of the commissioners is sufficient to confer jurisdiction.[56] In such proceeding the true issue is whether each particular tract of each objector is benefited as a whole.[57] Under the Illinois farm drainage act, commissioners of a district have no power to enlarge it by adding streets and alleys of a village which has connected its drains with those of the district, or to levy assessments against the village or streets for drainage.[58] Commissioners who attempt to do so act beyond their jurisdiction and the village concerned waives no rights by appearing to object or by failing to raise certain objections, or to appeal.[59]

Combined systems.—The amount to be paid by a drainage district which connects with the ditch of another district is to be determined solely by the benefits accruing to lands in the connecting district by reason of the connection.[60] A connecting district is estopped to deny that some benefit results.[61] Liability of the connecting district for such benefits is not affected by the fact that the outlet ditch is not completed when the connection is made, the plans of the two districts having been adopted at the same time and in contemplation of each other.[62] The fact that an assessment for a ditch upon lands benefited has been levied and paid does not preclude recovery from a connecting district in its corporate capacity.[63] The relative volume of the water carried by two ditches and the relative acreage of the two districts is competent evidence on the issue of benefits from connection with a ditch.[64] A connecting district is not liable for the cost of an enlargement and extension of an outlet ditch built solely for the benefit of the undertaking district.[65]

Mandamus lies to compel payment of a judgment by a drainage district where it appears that there are funds available[66] and a sufficient demand for payment has been made.[67]

51. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5677. State v. Popejoy [Ind.] 74 N. E. 994.

52. Small v. Buchanan [Ind.] 76 N. E. 167.

53. Such provision refers only to officers and elections contemplated by the constitution. State v. Monahan [Kan.] 84 P. 130.

54. Merritt Tp. v. Harp [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 417, 104 N. W. 587.

55. Hull v. Sangamon River Drainage Dist., 219 Ill. 454, 76 N. E. 701.

56. Levee and Drainage Act of May 29, 1879, § 58. Perdue v. Big Four Drainage Dist., 117 Ill. App. 600.

57. Perdue v. Big Four Drainage Dist., 117 Ill. App. 600.

58, 59. Drainage Com'rs of Dist. No. 1 v. Cerro Gordo, 217 Ill. 488, 75 N. E. 516.

60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65. Drainage Com'rs Dist. No. 2 v. Drainage Com'rs Dist. No. 3, 113 Ill. App. 114.

66. Lewis v. Drainage Com'rs of Union Drainage Dist. No. 1, 111 Ill. App. 222.

67. A demand for payment and a refusal to pay is sufficient to warrant mandamus, whether or not the creditor has knowledge that there are, or are not, funds available. Lewis v. Drainage Com'rs of Union Drainage Dist. No. 1, 111 Ill. App. 222.

The statute of limitations cannot be successfully relied on by commissioners in mandamus proceedings to compel them to alter and repair a drainage system, when it appears that they have, by their conduct, recognized their obligations within the time relied on as a bar.[68]

§ 3. Procedure in authorization and construction of sewers and drains.—The mode of procedure is largely discretionary with the legislature, and any mode prescribed will be upheld by the courts if it affords due process of law[69] and does not unjustly discriminate between classes of land owners.[70] Proceedings for construction of a ditch commenced under an invalid statute may be validated by a subsequent curative act made applicable to such proceedings.[71]

Due process of law; notice.—Notice of each step of the proceeding is not required; notice and an opportunity to be heard at some stage previous to the time when the assessment becomes a fixed charged on land liable is sufficient.[72] Denying the right of appeal from action of the local authorities, or limiting the scope of an appeal, is not a denial of due process.[73] The fact that a particular landowner had no notice of proceedings to establish a drainage ditch does not invalidate proceedings as to other owners properly notified.[74] A statute which grants an appeal to a court of equity from an order establishing a drainage district does not deprive an owner of property without due process of law, though he is not allowed a jury trial of the question whether his land will be benefited by the proposed drain.[75]

Petition or application.—The petition for a drain must conform to the statute[76] where the latter is capable of enforcement.[77] It must be signed by the required number of owners of land in the district.[78] In Illinois, signers of a petition may withdraw their names at any time before the county court has acquired general jurisdiction of the proceedings.[79] An order of the county court finding that a petition was signed by the required number of owners is not conclusive where it appears that the court erroneously refused to allow certain signers to withdraw.[80]

Remonstrances.—Qualified parties may join in a remonstrance if it is of a general nature and such that, if upheld, it will defeat the work as an entirety.[81]

Report of viewers or commissioners.—In proceedings in Indiana for the construction of a ditch in two or more counties, the viewers appointed in the several counties act jointly, and a report in favor of a ditch must be signed by a majority;[82]

68. Kreiling v. Northrup, 116 Ill. App. 448.

69. Act April 15, 1902, § 3, providing for the cleaning out and repair of ditches and drains, provides for due process of law in the hearings and notice given, since parties interested have a right to appeal to the courts from findings of the officers concerned. Taylor v. Crawford, 72 Ohio St. 560, 74 N. E. 1065.

70. Act April 15, 1902, which requires a bond from certain classes of applicants for repairs to ditches, but does not require such bond from other classes, is not invalid, as discriminative, these matters being within the discretion of the legislature. Taylor v. Crawford, 72 Ohio St. 560, 74 N. E. 1065.

71, 72, 73, 74. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506.

75. Sisson v. Buena Vista County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 454.

76. Petition in drain proceedings held to have complied with statute in giving names and addresses of nonresident landowners. Stack v. People, 217 Ill. 220, 75 N. E. 347.

77. The Michigan general drain law requires an application for a drain to be signed by not less than 10 freeholders, 5 or more of whom shall be owners of land liable to an assessment for the drain. Held, this requires 5 signers to be persons who may be assessed for benefits and is capable of enforcement. Albert v. Gibson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 642, 105 N. W. 19. Local Acts 1903, No. 495, p. 607, requires an application for a drain in a certain county to be signed by not less than one-third of the freeholders "of the land to be drained thereby and to be assessed therefor," but fails to provide what lands are to be drained or assessed. Held the statute is inoperative and cannot be enforced. Id.

78. Signature of life tenant and four-sixths of remaindermen held sufficient. Hull v. Sangamon River Drainage Dist., 219 Ill. 454, 76 N. E. 701.

79. Error to refuse to allow withdrawal before court had determined sufficiency petition. Mack v. Polecat Drainage Dist., 216 Ill. 56, 74 N. E. 691.

80. Mack v. Polecat Drainage Dist., 216 Ill. 56, 74 N. E. 691.

81. Beery v. Driver [Ind.] 76 N. E. 967.

82, 83. Whirledge v. Shoup [Ind.] 75 N. E. 871.

hence, where viewers are evenly divided, a notice of a hearing by an auditor is without authority and the petition for the ditch should be dismissed.[83] Where in North Carolina a court finds that two commissioners have been guilty of gross indiscretion, its action in setting aside the report of the commissioners because it does not conform to the statute will not be disturbed.[84] Where the report of commissioners is set aside and new commissioners are directed to be appointed, the court should not instruct the new officers as to their duties.[85] In Pennsylvania an order merely setting aside a report of viewers for a legal reason, apparent on its face, is not appealable.[86]

Order, ordinance, or resolution for work.—An order for the establishment of a ditch must describe its location with accuracy.[87] Where a board of commissioners has made a final order for the establishment and construction of a public ditch, its jurisdiction is at an end and it has no power thereafter to vacate its order and annul proceedings already taken.[88] There should be no variance between a preliminary resolution and the ordinance providing for a city sewer.[89]

Waiver of irregularities.—One who files a claim for damages to his property caused by the location of a ditch waives irregularities in the proceedings to establish the ditch,[90] such as lack of notice.[91] Objections to the sufficiency of a petition for a drainage ditch are waived where the proper parties are notified and appear and fail to object until after the final order for the construction of the ditch.[92]

Collateral attack.—A suit to enjoin construction of a drain is a collateral attack on action of the commissioners and cannot be maintained unless it is shown that they were without jurisdiction.[93]

Costs.—In Indiana the petitioners are liable for costs of proceedings, when unsuccessful, under certain circumstances.[94]

§ 4. Compensation to property owners for land taken or damaged. For what allowed.—Damages are allowed, usually, only for the taking, injuring or destroying of property.[95] A statute providing only for repairs to a ditch already esablished is not invalid because not providing for compensation to landowners.[96] In Texas a flowage of land caused by the negligent construction of a county ditch does not constitute a taking of or an injury to private property for which the county is liable.[97]

84. Porter v. Armstrong, 139 N. C. 179, 51 S. E. 926.

85. They are to be guided by the statute (Code § 30), and their acts may be reviewed when their report is presented. Porter v. Armstrong, 139 N. C. 179, 51 S. E. 926.

86. It is not a final order affecting the rights of parties interested. Barnett's Case, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 361.

87. Order of county supervisors held void because not accurately locating proposed ditch. State v. Lindig [Minn.] 105 N. W. 186.

88. Plew v. Jones [Ind.] 74 N. E. 618.

89. There is no substantial variance between an ordinance describing a sewer improvement as a system of "brick vitrified tile pipe sewers" and a resolution describing it as a "brick and vitrified tile-pipe sewer." Washington Park Club v. Chicago, 219 Ill. 323, 76 N. E. 383.

90. Gutschow v. Washington County [Neb.] 105 N. W. 548.

91. An owner who appears and procures the allowance of a claim for damages waives lack of notice as required by statute. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506.

92. Plew v. Jones [Ind.] 74 N. E. 618.

93. Evidence and record held not to show want of notice or jurisdiction. Brooks v. Morgan [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 331.

94. A remonstrance was filed against construction of a public ditch, the petition sustained, and a commissioner appointed. An appeal to the state supreme court was dismissed. An injunction was then granted by the federal court. Held the petitioners were not liable, under the Indiana statutes for the cost of the proceedings already taken. Board of Com'rs of Lake County v. Jarnecke, 164 Ind. 658, 74 N. E. 520.

95. Act of May 16, 1891 (P. L. 75), provides only for the recovery of damages for the taking, injuring or destroying of property in sewer construction. A corporation which has begun work under a permission to use the streets, but not under a contract granting any exclusive right, cannot recover damages by reason of loss from competition with a borough sewer system. Olyphant Sewage Drainage Co. v. Olyphant Borough [Pa.] 61 A. 72.

96. Taylor v. Crawford, 72 Ohio St. 560, 74 N. E. 1065.

97. Siewerssen v. Harris County [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 333.

Amount and ascertainment thereof.—Where an assessment to the amount of special benefits received from a ditch has already been made, the value of such benefits should not be deducted from damages to land not actually taken for the proposed ditch.[98] In Illinois the statutory methods of ascertaining damages and benefits resulting from a drainage ditch have been held unconstitutional,[99] and the only legal method of assessing damages for land taken is by a jury duly selected, impanelled, and sworn, and acting under the direction of a court of competent jurisdiction:[1] hence a report of commissioners, appointed under the statute, as to damages, cannot deprive owners of the right to a jury trial of the question,[2] and is not conclusive as to the amount of damages in a hearing before a jury.[3] In assessing damages for the taking or injuring of property in Illinois, the provisions of the drainage act, and not of the general eminent domain act, must be followed.[4] A petition by property owners for the establishment of a district does not confer on the court jurisdiction to proceed under the eminent domain act.[5] Only a petition by the district warrants procedure under the latter act.[6]

Appeals.—The method of perfecting appeals from awards of damages is statutory.[7]

§ 5. Provision for cost.[8] Bonds.—An issue of bonds is ordinarily governed by the statute under which the work was done.[9] Drainage bonds payable out of future instalments of special assessments do not amount to a loan of public credit to persons primarily liable for the cost of a drain.[10] A drainage district is not liable upon a bond duly issued by it where the property in the district has been once assessed to pay it, and the assessment paid to the proper officials and expended by them for other purposes.[11] The remedy of the holder of the bond is upon the bonds of the officers who misappropriated the funds raised to pay the bond.[12]

Local assessments.[13]—This subject is given a general and more extended treatment elsewhere.[14] Only decisions peculiarly applicable to the subject in hand are here retained.

Power to assess and property liable.—Power to levy special assessments exists only when expressly conferred,[15] and may be exercised only for the purposes named[16] and in the mode prescribed by the charter or statute conferring it.[17]

98. Gutschow v. Washington County [Neb.] 105 N. W. 548.

99. See cases cited in Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Spring Creek Drainage Dist., 215 Ill. 501, 74 N. E. 696; Hull v. Sangamon River Drainage Dist., 219 Ill. 454, 76 N. E. 701. Act May 29, 1879, § 37, is invalid so far as it authorizes the assessment by commissioners, in lieu of a jury, of damages for the taking or damaging of land for a drain. Stack v. People, 217 Ill. 220, 75 N. E. 347; Hutchins v. Vandalia Levee & Drainage Dist., 217 Ill. 561, 75 N. E. 354.

1. As provided by the constitution, the requirement of which is self executing. Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Spring Creek Drainage Dist., 215 Ill. 501, 74 N. E. 696; Hull v. Sangamon River Drainage Dist., 219 Ill. 454, 76 N. E. 701.

2. Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Spring Creek Drainage Dist., 215 Ill. 501, 74 N. E. 696.

3, 4, 5, 6. Hutchins v. Vandalia Levee & Drainage Dist., 217 Ill. 561, 75 N. E. 354.

7. In Iowa an appeal may be taken from an award of damages in 20 days after the order of the commissioners establishing the drain. Henderson v. Calhoun County [Iowa] 105 N. W. 383. Notice of an appeal from an award of damages must, in Iowa, be served on the petitioners for the ditch. Id.

8. See 4 C. L. 1432.

9. Rev. St. 1899, § 8259, was repealed by Acts 1905, p. 207, § 8263q, but under a proviso in the latter act it is held that where proceedings begun under the old act are complete, except as to the issue of bonds payable out of the tax to be levied, the old act may be followed and such bonds executed and delivered thereunder. State v. Chariton Drainage Dist. No. 1 [Mo.] 90 S. W. 722.

10. Sisson v. Buena Vista County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 454.

11, 12. Barton v. Minnie Creek Drainage Dist., 112 Ill. App. 640.

13. See 4 C. L. 1433.

14. See Public Works and Improvements, 6 C. L. 1143.

15. Cities of second class in Kentucky may build sewers at cost of abutting owners by Ky. St. 1903, § 3105. City of Covington v. W. T. Noland & Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 216.

16. Act May 16, 1891, P. L. 75, does not confer authority to assess benefited property to pay damages sustained by other owners. Barnett's Case, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 361.

17. See post, Procedure.

Assessments can be laid only when the work has been done in the manner prescribed by law.[18] Where a sewer has been built at the expense of abutting property the latter cannot be charged for any reconstruction or change even though benefited thereby.[19]

All lands benefited should be included in a drainage district,[20] and lands not benefited should be excluded.[21] Where a statute forbids assessments in excess of benefits it will be assumed that such provision will not be violated.[22] An assessment roll prepared by a jury who viewed the land is prima facie evidence that the land is benefited to the extent of the amounts assessed [23] but is not conclusive.[24] Where land is included in a drainage district by fraud on the part of the drain commissioner, equity will grant the owner proper relief.[25]

Procedure.—The statute in force at the time of institution of proceedings for a sewer or drain ordinarily controls as to the manner of making an assessment.[26] That an assessment may be valid, the tribunal before which proceedings are instituted must have jurisdiction of the subject-matter,[27] and proper notice must be given as required.[28] Jurisdictional defects cannot be cured.[29] An assessment may

18. An ordinance provided for the construction of sewers on certain streets, and the city engineer changed the map showing the location of sewers proposed, erasing certain streets, and the sewers were made according to the altered map. Held assessments for the sewer were invalid. In re Scranton Sewer [Pa.] 62 A. 173.

19. Where a sewer was built on one side of a street at the cost of property on that side, the city could not, years after, build another on the other side at the cost of property on that side. Philadelphia v. Meighan, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 160.

20. Hudlemyer v. Dickinson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1000, 106 N. W. 885. An objection by an abutting owner to a sewer assessment, based upon the ground that the sewer is not available to his lots, is not sustained where the proof shows that the lots for a distance of from fifteen to fifty feet back towards their rear are on a level with the grade of the street in which the sewer is built, from which point they descend from fifty to sixty feet to a river bounding them on the rear, and the sewer is from fifteen to seventeen feet below the surface of the street, and it also appears that with respect to several of the lots the houses and improvements thereon are so built as to permit the carrying off of sewerage from cellar levels through such sewer. Hildebrand v. Toledo, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 450. Lots are not provided with adequate local drainage, such as will exempt them from paying their share of an assessment, levied to pay the cost of a sewer improvement, unless the right exists to dispose of sewerage as it is at the time being disposed of, and the right to continue so to do is one that cannot be interfered with—that is, the present right must include not only permanency of structure but also of control. Hence a claim of adequate local drainage, based upon the right to allow sewerage to drain into a natural watercourse running through a municipality, is not sustained where such drainage will pollute the stream and create a nuisance and imperil the health of other riparian owners. Id.

21. Hudlemyer v. Dickinson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1000, 106 N. W. 885. The mere fact that an abutting property owner petitioned for a sewer improvement, and stood by without objection or protest and saw it built, does not estop him from thereafter contesting the validity of the assessment against his property to pay the costs thereof on the ground that his property is not specially benefited thereby. Hildebrand v. Toledo, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 450.

22. Sisson v. Buena Vista County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 454.

23. Wathen v. Allison Ditch Dist. No. 2, 213 Ill. 138, 72 N. E. 781.

24. Evidence held to show assessments for a drainage ditch grossly excessive. Wathen v. Allison Ditch Dist. No. 2, 213 Ill. 138, 72 N. E. 781.

25. Proceedings set aside and inclusion of land in district enjoined where fraud was established. Hudlemyer v. Dickinson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1000, 106 N. W. 885.

26. By Burns' Ann. St. 1894, § 5646, which repeals the drainage acts of 1881 and 1883, where proceedings have been commenced under the earlier acts, the work is to be completed and assessments laid and collected under their provisions. Ellison v. Branstrator, 34 Ind. App. 410, 73 N. E. 146.

27. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 42, § 48, a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction to authorize the levy of additional assessments for drainage work to cost more than $2,500. Frank v. Rogers [Ind.] 77 N. E. 221.

28. Where charter required notice of pendency of application for local sewer to be paid for by special assessment, no valid assessment could be made without such notice. Weeks v. Middletown, 107 App. Div. 587, 95 N. Y. S. 352. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 42, § 37, a justice has no jurisdiction to authorize a levy of additional drainage assessments, unless he has given the notice required by § 3, and unless an itemized statement of previous expenditures and description of the proposed work has been filed as required by the act. Frank v. Rogers [Ill.] 77 N. E. 221. A notice of a proceeding for an additional assessment, under § 37 of the act of May 29, 1879, must be given in the manner provided by § 3 of the act, but need run only for two weeks. Notice of revision of assessment held to comply with law. Stack v. People, 217 Ill. 220, 75 N. E. 347.

29. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 42, § 34½, debe levied before the work is done.[30] In Ohio an assessment for a county ditch is not made by the county commissioners until it is ordered by them to be placed on the duplicate against the lot, lands, corporations or railroad assessed.[31]

Waiver or correction of irregularities.—A statutory provision allowing taxpayers who waive objections to pay an assessment in instalments does not deny equal protection of the laws.[32] Where there is no objection to the substantial justice of a drainage tax, mere irregularities in the proceedings to levy or collect the tax may, in Illinois, be corrected or supplied in the discretion of the court.[33]

Review of assessment proceedings.[34]—Where fraudulent conduct on the part of a drain commissioner is charged in an appeal to a board of review, it is error for the board to allow the commissioner a private hearing in regard to the matter.[35] An appeal or writ of error from the final order confirming an assessment roll brings up for review the order of the court declaring the district duly organized.[36] The recitals of a judgment confirming a special assessment that statutory requirements as to notice have been complied with are not overcome by a defective notice or certificate of publication found in the record.[37]

Collection by a municipality of an assessment to pay the cost of a sewer to carry off sewage which would otherwise pollute a stream will not be enjoined merely because the municipality has also emptied sewage into the stream.[38]

§ 6. Management and operation; duty to properly construct, maintain, and repair works, and provide drainage.[39]—Where a statute imposes upon a city the public duty of constructing and maintaining sewers, it is not liable for negligence of its agents in the performance of that duty;[40] but if a city voluntarily accepts and exercises powers to construct and own sewers, it is liable for injuries to persons and property caused by a negligent performance of such powers,[41] and such liability cannot be escaped by delegation of the performance of such powers to agents.[42] Thus, negligence in the construction or maintenance of a drain or sewer, when shown to exist,[43] renders a city liable in damages,[44] even though an act of God signed to cure irregularities in drainage assessments, cannot cure irregularities depriving a justice of the peace of jurisdiction to proceed. Frank v. Rogers [Ill.] 77 N. E. 221.

30. Ross v. Wright County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 506.

31. Under Rev. St. 1906, § 4479. Cattell v. Putman [Ohio] 76 N. E. 390.

32. Sisson v. Buena Vista County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 454.

33. People v. Prust, 219 Ill. 116, 76 N. E. 68. Where delinquent list recited that it contained lands reported for 1904, and did not state that the taxes were due in March, 1905, the error was not fatal, especially since the drainage treasurer's report contained the omitted statement. Id. Where the treasurer's report identifies assessments as a special drainage tax for a certain district, failure of the county collector's return to show what the assessments were for, and to whom payable, was immaterial. Id. Description of delinquent lands in drainage district treasurer's return by section, township and range, without naming state or county, held not fatally insufficient. Id. That treasurer's report is not sworn to is not fatal. Defect may be cured on application for judgment. Id.

34. See 4 C. L. 1435.

35. Hudlemyer v. Dickinson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1000, 106 N. W. 885.

36. Mack v. Polecat Drainage Dist., 216 Ill. 56, 74 N. E. 691.

37. Stack v. People, 217 Ill. 220, 75 N. E. 347.

38. The municipal riparian owner is not estopped to exercise its right to prevent pollution of the stream merely because it has been guilty of the same offense. Hildebrand v. Toledo, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 450.

39. See 4 C. L. 1438.

40. St. 1886, p. 309, c. 331, requiring the city of Worcester to build a sewer system, imposes a public duty on the city. Rome v. Worcester, 188 Mass. 307, 74 N. E. 370.

41. As where power is conferred and accepted to build sewers by special assessment for use of property owners. Lockwood v. Dover [N. H.] 61 A. 32. Complaint for damages for death caused by negligent maintenance of sewers and water pipes held not demurrable. Id.

42. Statute giving board charge of construction and maintenance of sewers did not relieve city of liability, power to construct and maintain sewers being conferred on it. Lockwood v. Dover [N. H.] 61 A. 32.

43. In action for damage caused by obstruction in drain, evidence held insufficient to show how obstruction got into drain, and hence verdict for plaintiff could not be sustained. Newborg v. Boston [Mass.] 77 N. E. 486. Evidence held to sustain finding that storm sewer was not built strong enough to withstand pressure to which it was subjected on plaintiff's premises. Kramer v. Los co-operated to produce injury.[45] A municipality is not, however, liable for damages resulting solely from defects in the original plan of construction of a sewer,[46] since the due adoption of a plan requires the exercise by the governing body of a city of discretionary authority of a quasi judicial nature;[47] but if a city constructs a sewage system without any plan, or according to a plan not duly adopted, it is liable for damages resulting therefrom.[48] It is also liable if it has knowledge of defects in a plan duly adopted and executed and fails to use ordinary care to prevent injury by correcting such defects.[49] The fact that injury would not have resulted if there had been no private drain connected with the city's sewer is no defense to the city.[50]

Authority conferred upon a city to use a creek as an outlet for its sewerage system, and to improve and deepen the stream, does not impose upon the city an absolute, ministerial duty to so restrain the waters of the stream as to prevent damage to property by overflows, but merely vests the city with discretionary power to act in the matter;[51] hence the city is not liable for damage resulting from an overflow caused by an extraordinary and unusual flood, though its use of the stream as a part of its sewerage system contributed to the result, and though the stream had been made a public highway by statute;[52] but a municipality Angeles, 147 Cal. 668, 82 P. 334. Evidence sufficient to support finding that city negligently allowed outlet of sewer to become clogged, thus increasing pressure and causing pipe to burst. Id. Evidence held not to warrant finding of negligence by borough in allowing sewer channel to become clogged where it was shown that the inlets in question were cleaned five days before the injuries complained of occurred, and that they remained clear during the time intervening. Siegfried v. South Bethlehem Borough, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 456.

Notice of a defect must be shown to establish negligence. In action for personal injury caused by defective drain, plaintiff was bound to prove notice of defect by officers of town or that reasonable care would have given them notice of defect and of its dangerous character. Fitzgerald v. Concord [N. C.] 52 S. E. 309. City had sufficient notice of defective condition of sewer where, after a storm which burst a pipe on plaintiff's premises, he notified the city engineer, the street department and the council when in session, and a second storm occurred resulting in most of the damage of which plaintiff complained. Kramer v. Los Angeles, 147 Cal. 668, 82 P. 334.

Admissibility of evidence: Condition of sewer outlet immediately after storm could be shown in order to prove negligence of the city in allowing it to become clogged. Kramer v. Los Angeles, 147 Cal. 668, 82 P. 334. Where in action for damage caused by obstruction in drain the evidence did not show how drains were jointed, evidence of the usual manner of making joints was inadmissible. Newborg v. Boston [Mass.] 77 N. E. 486.

44. Under Code § 3803, a town is bound to use ordinary care to maintain culverts in streets in a reasonably safe condition. Fitzgerald v. Concord [N. C.] 52 S. E. 309. The construction of a drain by a municipality in such a manner as to obstruct the flow of water through it is negligence on account of which a property owner can recover for damages sustained. City of Cincinnati v. Johnson, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 167. While provision for drainage of surface water by a municipality is a duty purely judicial in its nature, for the breach of which it has been held no liability attaches, the duty of keeping a sewer in proper condition is of a ministerial character, and where the sewer is inadequate to carry off the refuse and filth, which under certain conditions are backed onto the property of an abutting owner, the municipality is chargeable with the damages resulting. City of Cincinnati v. Frey, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 627.

45. If negligence of a city in the maintenance of its sewers co-operates with an act of God to cause injury, the city is liable. City of McCook v. McAdams [Neb.] 106 N. W. 988.

46. Adoption of plan involves judicial or legislative, not merely ministerial powers. Keeley v. Portland [Me.] 61 A. 180. A city having by its governing body duly adopted a plan for a sewerage system and executed the same, it is not liable for injuries caused thereby to private property, not involving an unconstitutional taking thereof, produced by defects in such plan. Hart v. Neillsville, 125 Wis. 546, 104 N. W. 699. A municipality is not liable for damages resulting from an error of judgment with respect to the location or direction of a sewer or its sufficiency for the purpose designed. Siegfried v. South Bethlehem Borough, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 456.

47, 48. Hart v. Neillsville, 125 Wis. 546, 104 N. W. 699.

49. Hart v. Neillsville, 125 Wis. 546, 104 N. W. 699. Where private property was connected with a sewer by means of an opening left for that purpose, and by reason of a defective plan, of which the city had notice but the property owner had not, the cellar was flooded, the city was liable. Id.

50. Such private connections being contemplated and intended. Hart v. Neillsville, 125 Wis. 546, 104 N. W. 699.

51. O'Donnell v. Syracuse [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 738.

52. O'Donnell v. Syracuse [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 738, rvg. Id., 102 App. Div. 80, 92 N. Y. S. 555. See 4 C. L. 1440.

which adopts a natural watercourse as an open sewer must keep the channel open and prevent accumulation of filth, or answer in damages to riparian owners for failure to do so.[53] The fact that a town has repaired the manhole of a private drain under a public highway does not show adoption of it as a part of the drainage system.[54]

The authorities of one township may not lawfully deepen existing waterways or drains so as to cast greater quantities of water upon the highways, bridges and culverts of an adjoining township to the latter's damage.[55] The fact that natural depressions and channels are used in part does not render waterways natural rather than artificial.[56]

In Indiana it is the duty of land owners to whom portions of a ditch have been alloted for repairs and maintenance to remove obstruction therefrom annually at their own expense, regardless of action by the town trustee,[57] and an owner who has negligently allowed a ditch over his land to become out of repair and inefficient is not entitled to have required work done at the general expense.[58]

§ 7. Private and combined drainage.[59]—A property owner who is required to drain his lot and to do so lays a sewer in the street with the permission of the authorities is entitled to the exclusive use of the sewer.[60] If improved city property is so situated that connection with an adequate sewer system can be had, such connection of water spouts and gutters will be required when necessary to avoid injury to adjacent property by the throwing of water upon it.[61]

In Illinois a drain constructed by mutual license, consent or agreement of the owners of adjacent lands, exists for the benefit of the lands affected and cannot be used for a purpose other than that for which it was built without the consent of the owners.[62] Thus, where such a drain is made and for many years used only to drain low lands, it cannot be used for sewerage purposes,[63] and a court of equity will enjoin such use, though it did not constitute a nuisance, in order to prevent the acquisition of a right by user.[64]

§ 8. Obstruction of drains.[65]—Obstruction of a drainage ditch may be enjoined in a proper case.[66] In a prosecution for obstructing a ditch it is error to receive in evidence an order for the establishment of the ditch which is void for uncertainty in the description.[67]

SHAM PLEADINGS; SHELLEY'S CASE, see latest topical index.

53. Glasgow v. Altoona, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 55. The liability of a municipality is confined to injuries due to interference with the natural flow of water, faulty construction, and failure to maintain a sewer in proper condition, and the rule is the same whether the drainage is by a natural watercourse or artificial channel. Siegfried v. South Bethlehem Borough, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 456.

54. It was but an incident to the repair of the highway. Matlack v. Callahan, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 454.

55, 56. Merritt Tp. v. Harp [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 417, 104 N. W. 587.

57, 58. Beery v. Driver [Ind.] 76 N. E. 967.

59. See 4 C. L. 1441.

60. Other owners have no right to use it. Carroll v. Connor, 93 N. Y. S. 1077.

61. Defendant held liable for damages caused by water thrown from roof of building. Ginter v. Rector, etc., of St. Mark's Church [Minn.] 103 N. W. 738.

62. Ditch built by owners under a statute subsequently held unconstitutional, held within Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 42, § 187. Kenilworth Sanitarium v. Kenilworth [Ill.] 77 N. E. 226.

63. Use of drain as sewer by sanitarium enjoined, though sewage was first filtered, the filtration being uncertain and dependant upon the manner of operating the plant. Kenilworth Sanitarium v. Kenilworth [Ill.] 77 N. E. 226.

64. Kenilworth Sanitarium v. Kenilworth [Ill.] 77 N. E. 226.

65. See 4 C. L. 1441.

66. Where plaintiffs and their predecessors had maintained a ditch under an adverse claim for fifty years, when defendant obstructed it by a driveway, they were entitled to an injunction, though the damage already done was slight and though the ditch was dry in dry seasons of the year. Robertson v. Lewis, 77 Conn. 345, 59 A. 409.

67. State v. Lindig [Minn.] 105 N. W. 186.

SHERIFFS AND CONSTABLES.

§ 1. The office; election or appointment.[68]—Proof that a person acts as a sheriff, prima facie, shows that he is such officer.[69] Where the affect of a statute is to authorize one constable instead of two, the offices of both will be deemed to have been abolished and a new one established as far as the right to hold over is concerned.[70] The term continues for the statutory period and ordinarily the incumbent holds over till the qualification of the successor,[71] but where a constable abandons his office at the end of his term to one holding a certificate of election, he cannot thereafter claim that he is holding over when such person's election is held void.[72] An appointment to a post-election vacancy "till the next general election" will continue for the unexpired term and full term intervening thereafter,[73] and the power of appointment to the office is exhausted when once exercised. A deputy sheriff appointed pursuant to a statute to serve processes in his section of the county is an officer within the meaning of the constitution prohibiting any person to hold more than one office,[74] and where a constable accepts such appointment, his office becomes ipso facto vacant.[75]

§ 2. Powers, duties, and privileges.[76]—A sheriff's power to complete the execution of process begun continues after his term.[77] A constable's power is coextensive with the county where the statute authorizes the clerk of the county or district court to direct process to the "sheriff or any constable," [78] and within such limits he has the same power as a sheriff in regard to the service of process.[79] In Pennsylvania a constable cannot be compelled to serve a subpœna issued from the office of the prothonotary or by the clerk of the court at quarter sessions for the attendance of witnesses,[80] but when he does so he is entitled to the same fees as the sheriff.[81] Where a sheriff receives from the governor an extradition warrant, it is his duty to arrest the person named therein and to take him before a judge of one of the courts designated by law.[82]

68. See 4 C. L. 1442.

69. Earl v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 78.

70. County Government Act, § 56, as amended by St. 1901, p. 685, c. 234, providing that townships of six thousand or less shall have but one constable, abolishes the two existing offices so that neither incumbent can hold over. People v. Davidson [Cal. App.] 83 P. 159.

71. See Officers and Public Employes, 6 C. L. 841.

72. Abandonment may be established by surrendering his badge, pistol, handcuffs, etc. People v. Davidson [Cal. App.] 83 P. 159. Certificate of appointment as deputy may be shown as evidence of abandonment of office though it erroneously describes the oath. Id.

73. Where the statute provides that an appointee shall hold until the "next general election," one appointed to fill an unexpired term of a sheriff who has been re-elected, but not yet qualified, will continue for the unexpired and for the new term. State v. Vincent [S. D.] 104 N. W. 914.

74. Shannon's Code, § 448. And such office is a lucrative one whether he receives pay under contract with the sheriff or fees under the law. State v. Slagle [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 326.

75. State v. Slagle [Tenn.] 89 S. W. 326.

76. See 4 C. L. 1442.

77. A sale under execution of property by a sheriff after the expiration of his term is not void where he had begun to execute the writ during his term. Gen. St., p. 3118, § 35, requiring a sheriff to turn over all writs to his successor, applies only to writs upon which nothing has been done Ayers v. Casey [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 452.

78, 79. Medlin v. Seideman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 439, 88 S. W. 250.

80, 81. Kottcamp v. York County, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 96.

82. Probate judge has no jurisdiction to release on a writ of habeas corpus. Thomas v. Evans [Ohio] 76 N. E. 862.

The service of a venire does not come within the meaning of the term "civil process" as used in a statute requiring a constable to give a bond before serving a civil process.[83]

By special act a sheriff in Indiana may recover moneys rightfully belonging to him which are paid into the treasury under mistake of law.[84]

Constabulary power[85] includes the power of police departments and officers as conservators of the peace. Policemen may patrol a place of public thoroughfare and accost and turn back persons because of the disorderly nature of the locality though one's business near by is injured,[86] but they may not warn people away from one's business place when there is no violation of law there.[87] In such case injunction will not issue, it being not appropriate to enforcement of criminal law,[88] but an action for damages will lie or a criminal prosecution unless there is a continuing and irreparable trespass.[89]

§ 3. Compensation.[90]—Compensation is determined by statute,[91] the fees for a particular act being so fixed.[92]

A constable is entitled to receive the same fee for receiving a prisoner from jail and taking him before a magistrate for a hearing as on a commitment, as well as mileage and other expenses.[93] Any allowance to a sheriff which is intended as a reimbursement and not as compensation is outside a prohibition as to changing compensation during term.[94] Whether several acts done simultaneously are each to be paid or carry only one fee depends on the terms of the statute.[95] Fees are not chargeable for acts lawfully done by other officers or persons.[96] If compensation is by fees chargeable to parties the right to look to the state is wholly statutory.[97]

83. Rev. Laws, c. 25, § 88. Commonwealth v. Tucker [Mass.] 76 N. E. 127.

84. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7913. Board of Com'rs of Morgan County v. Crone [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 826.

85. See 4 C. L. 1443.

86. Entrance from street to enclosed court within the block. Pon v. Wittman, 147 Cal. 280, 81 P. 984.

87. Craushaw v. McAdoo, 47 Misc. 420, 94 N. Y. S. 386; Cleary v. McAdoo, 99 N. Y. S. 60; Cullen v. Bourke, 93 N. Y. S. 1085.

88. Delaney v. Flood [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 209. Contra, as to inapplicability of injunction. Pon v. Wittman, 147 Cal. 280, 81 P. 984; Adams v. Chesapeake Oyster & Fish Co. [Colo.] 82 P. 528.

89. McGorie v. McAdoo, 99 N. Y. S. 47; Burns v. McAdoo, 99 N. Y. S. 51.

90. See 4 C. L. 1444.

91. Power v. Douglas County [Neb.] 106 N. W. 782.

92. Expenses incurred in taking prisoners to the penitentiary authorized by Act of July 11, 1901, P. L. 663. Peeling v. York County, 212 Pa. 245, 61 A. 911. Act of July 11, 1901, P. L. 663, repeals fee bill of April 2, 1868, P. L. 3. Lenhart v. Cambria County, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 350; Kottcamp v. York County, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 96. Under Civ. Code 1902, § 1030, providing that a magistrate may appoint a constable who shall receive a stated amount, or he may have the sheriff serve the papers for which he will receive the fees allowed to a constable, the compensation refered to is that of a regular constable. Mullins v. Marion County [S. C.] 51 S. E 535.

93. May tax hack hire. Peeling v. York County, 212 Pa. 25, 61 A. 911. Under a statute providing that the sheriff shall be allowed the expenses necessarily incurred in serving criminal processes, he can recover for car fare, livery hire, and hotel bills paid while serving such processes. Bybee v. Marion County [Iowa] 105 N. W. 118.

94. As mileage for taking prisoners to a state institution. Scharrenbroich v. Lewis & Clark County [Mont.] 83 P. 482. Not protected by the constitutional prohibition against an increase or diminution of salary during term of office. Id.

95. Where sheriff has commitments for several persons to serve at the same time, he is entitled to charge mileage for each commitment. Act of July 11, 1901, P. L. 663. Lenhart v. Cambria County, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 350. Sheriff is entitled to charge six cents per mile for the transportation of each prisoner, in addition to "necessary help and expenses." Act July 11, 1901, P. L. 663. "Necessary help and expenses" means the reasonable help and expenses necessarily incurred and is a question of fact for the jury. Id.

96. Act of July 11, 1901, P. L. 663, fixing sheriff's fees for serving subpoenas does not confer any exclusive right (O'Leary v. Northumberland County, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 24), and he is not entitled to the fee where service is made by another. Immaterial that sheriff offered to serve the subpoena. O'Leary v. Northumberland County, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 24.

97. A county is not liable to its sheriff for costs allowed by Pen. Code 1895, § 1107, for conducting prisoners before a judge or court, to and from jail but these costs must be collected from the prisoners after conviction. Hall County v. Gilmer, 123 Ga. 173, 51 S. E. 307.

Where the statute allows ten cents per mile "actually and necessarily traveled," recovery is not limited to mileage one way.[98]

Under a statute which gives the sheriff poundage upon the value of the property attached, but not to exceed the sum at which settlement is made if settled, he is entitled to poundage where the attachment was dismissed without consideration.[99] A sheriff is not entitled to poundage for a levy upon property where there has been no sale, unless the debt has been extinguished or compromised.[1]

Where the statute imposes a duty upon municipalities to provide lodging and board for prisoners arrested, a sheriff may recover where they are lodged in the county jail.[2] When sheriff's salary and that of his deputies are to be paid out of a particular fund, that fund alone must be looked to.[3] The word "fees" as used in statutes, providing that fees collected by the sheriff shall belong to the county and constitute a fund for the payment of his salary, has reference to compensation paid by individuals for official service,[4] and any fee directed by statute to be paid by the county belongs to the sheriff and is in addition to his salary.[5]

The plaintiff is primarily liable to the sheriff for his costs and the court has jurisdiction to compel him to pay such costs or give bond.[6] Where a statute prescribes the manner of allowing sheriff's fees and costs, a sheriff cannot maintain an action until steps have been taken under the statute.[7]

Where a statute provides that the commissioners' court shall issue an order for a draft in favor of the sheriff upon allowing his account, an order directing his account to be credited upon an indebtedness is a sufficient allowance to entitle the sheriff to a draft,[8] and a mandamus suit will lie to compel the court to issue an order for a draft.[9]

§ 4. Deputies, undersheriffs, and bailiffs.[10]—Where there is authority to depute one and specially to a particular court, no other deputy can act.[11] Persons summoned by the sheriff, under his authority to summon the power of the county, are not deputies.[12] Whether one is a deputy sheriff may be proved by showing that he acts as such,[13] and such is not secondary evidence in a collateral proceeding.[14] Under a statute authorizing the court to appoint a special bailiff to summon

98. July 11, 1901, P. L. 663. Kottcamp v. York County, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 96; Lenhart v. Cambria County, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 350; Peeling v. York County, 212 Pa. 245, 61 A. 911.

99. Poundage to be determined upon the value of the property not exceeding value specified in warranty. Miller v. Miller, 108 App. Div. 310, 95 N. Y. S. 763.

1. Act July 11, 1901, P. L. 663. Where plaintiff receives payment by an assignment of the mortgage to a third person, and the money does not pass through the sheriff's hands, he is entitled to no poundage. Larzelere v. Fisher, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 194.

2. Act of Feb. 28, 1897, § 7 (Acts 1897, p. 93, c. 59), amended by Acts 1901, p. 24, c. 18. City of Kokomo v. Harness [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 270.

3. Section 42, c. 28, Comp. St. 1905. County not liable if that fund is insufficient. Power v. Douglas County [Neb.] 106 N. W. 782.

4. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6528. Does not include fees paid by the county. Starr v. Delaware County Com'rs [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1025. The allowance per diem for attendance of the sheriff upon sessions of the superior courts is not to be regarded as fees collected under the fee and salary act, but his private property. Board of Com'rs of Morgan County v. Crone [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 826.

5. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6528, providing a fee of twenty-five cents to be paid by the county to the sheriff for each prisoner received and discharged from jail. Starr v. Delaware County Com'rs [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1025.

6. Not material that by the decree the defendant is ordered to pay costs in the actions. Martel v. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate [La.] 39 So. 705; Houssiere-Latreille Oil Co. v. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate [La.] 40 So. 727.

7. Gen. Laws 1896, c. 247, § 17, c. 295, §§ 13, 15. Gerardi v. Caruolo [R. I.] 61 A. 599.

8. Code Cr. Proc. arts. 1103, 1104. Denman v. Coffee [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 800.

9. County can not credit upon a debt due. Denman v. Coffee [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 800.

10. See 4 C. L. 1445.

11. McCalla v. Verdell, 122 Ga. 801, 50 S. E. 943.

12. Power v. Douglas County [Neb.] 106 N. W. 782.

13, 14. Under Van Epps' Code Supp. §§ 6097-6103, an inspector of roads and bridges who has been sworn in as a deputy sheriff may arrest for the violation of the jurors but not providing who shall be appointed, the court may appoint a constable [15] and allow such compensation as will reasonably indemnify him for his time and expenses.[16]

§ 5. Liabilities and rights. A. Liability in general.[17]—In a suit against a sheriff for the destruction of property in his possession under attachment levy, he cannot object to a judgment which awards the entire damages to the debtor.[18] Where the law protects an officer unless a written notice of an adverse claim is served on the officer, the claim must contain a statement full in every particular specified by statute [19] and verified as required.[20]

(§ 5) B. Failure to execute process or insufficient execution.[21]—Where it is alleged in a petition for a rule against an officer that he has levied the plaintiff's fi. fa. and that he has had sufficient time in which to "make such money and has not done so," a general denial is sufficient.[22]

(§ 5) C. Failure to return process and false return.[23]

(§ 5) D. Failure to take security.[24]—If a sheriff accepts a bond with insufficient sureties when by the exercise of reasonable discretion he would have discovered their irresponsibility, he is liable in damages for his negligence,[25] whether his approval is in writing or without doing so he executes the process,[26] but if he delivers the property to the plaintiff without a sufficient bond, his taking becomes wrongful and trover or trespass will lie.[27]

(§ 5) E. Wrongful levy or sale.[28]—A sheriff is liable if he levies upon property exempted.[29]

Where property is taken by a sheriff from the possession of the owner under a writ of execution issued against a third party, the taking is wrongful,[30] and replevin will lie against the sheriff if the property is still in his possession although sold, providing a notice of ownership was given before the sale.[31] Where property is seized by a sheriff under a writ of attachment, a written statement of a mortgagee of the amount due which is insufficient to work a release does not make criminal laws of this state as other deputy sheriffs. Earl v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 78.

15. Hurd's Rev. Stat. 1903, p. 1145. Carroll County v. Durham, 219 Ill. 64, 26 N. E. 78.

16. Not entitled to the fees allowed by law to the sheriff where those fees simply constitute a fund out of which the sheriff is paid and do not belong to him personally. Carroll County v. Durham, 219 Ill. 64, 76 N. E. 78.

17. See 4 C. L. 1445.

18. Especially where the creditor has been made a party and is bound by the judgment. Fields v. Vallance, 27 Ky. L. R. 992, 87 S. W. 770.

19. Code §§ 3906, 3991.

20. Shaw v. Tyrell [Iowa] 105 N. W. 1006.

21. See 4 C. L. 1446.

22. Sanders v. Carter [Ga.] 52 S. E. 887.

23. See 4 C. L. 1446.

24. See 2 C. L. 1645.

25. Trover is not appropriate. Parker v. Young, 188 Mass. 600, 75 N. E. 98.

26. Parker v. Young, 188 Mass. 600, 75 N. E. 98.

27. Parker v. Young, 188 Mass. 600, 75 N. E. 98. Where an officer delivers property to plaintiff without sufficient bond, the delivery is sufficient to sustain an action of conversion without proof of previous demand. Id.

28. See 4 C. L. 1447.

29. An indorsement on a fi. fa. made by the prothonotary at the request of the plaintiff that the exemption is waived, or a recital in a judgment of a justice, does not relieve sheriff from liability. Schock v. Waidelich, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 215. One may prove the full value of exempt chattels in a suit for wrongful levy up to the value alleged, though he also pleaded as exempt some things which were not. Wiser v. Thomas [Wash.] 80 P. 854. An action cannot be maintained against a constable for refusing the benefits of the exemption act in a suit commenced by an attachment in which no execution was ever issued. Blakeley v. Smith, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 583.

30. No demand need be made to maintain conversion. Beaman v. Stewart [Colo.] 83 P. 629. To constitute a conversion of chattels by levying thereon pursuant to a writ of execution, it is not essential that the officer take them into his possession provided there be an assertion of dominion over them and an interference with the owner's right of possession. Kloos v. Gatz [Minn.] 105 N. W. 639. Whether permission to thresh grain held by levy overcame refusal to release levy, held for jury. Id. The sheriff is liable in conversion for the sale of chattels under execution where the judgment debtor had no interest, though the purchaser has not removed the property. Hill v. Page, 108 App. Div. 71, 95 N. Y. S. 465.

31. Not necessary to bring action on the the sheriff liable in conversion.[32] Where a sheriff takes property under a writ, in an action of trover by the person who was in possession, the burden is on the sheriff to show that the property was covered by the writ and that the execution debtor had a superior title.[33]

A warrant issued under an invalid law is no protection to an officer making a levy,[34] and when he attempts to justify under any writ he must allege all the jurisdictional facts.[35] The presumption in favor of the legality of the proceedings of officers does not apply where the constable is acting as an agent of an individual.[36]

Where a sheriff, having possession of property under a levy, dies during a suit of replevin, his successor in office should be substituted as defendant.[37]

A constable who wrongfully levies upon goods may be guilty of larceny.[38]

(§ 5) F. Missappropriation of proceeds.[39]—Under statutes authorizing the sheriff to collect credits of the defendant and directing him to pay them to the defendant if he prevails, the defendant is entitled to such proceeds if the attachment is dismissed.[40] The summary proceedings authorized by statute for failure by the sheriff to pay over proceeds in his possession to one entitled to them will lie only when such refusal is willful.[41]

(§ 5) G. Rights of levying officers.[42]—Speaking generally the officer may recover from a claimant or the debtor who gave a forthcoming bond or took the goods as bailee and was afterwards defeated.[43] If a claimant induces a constable to deliver goods to him either by threats or by promises to hold harmless, he is liable for all damages which result from such delivery.[44] By statute in some states an indemnity bond irregularly drawn will sustain a judgment where it has had the effect of a validly executed bond.[45] Where the statute provides that a constable who has levied execution upon property shall, if another asserts a claim to it, taking an indemnity bond before proceeding to sell, it is immaterial as affecting the right to take a bond that the property was in custodia legis at the time of levy,[46] and such bond may be taken in a special execution levy.[47] While a formal notice to the party liable upon an indemnity bond is necessary to make the judgment in the suit against the sheriff res adjudicata, such notice may be waived.[48] indemnity bond. Mitchell v. McLeod, 127 Iowa, 733, 104 N. W. 349. Where the attachment was rightful, the fact that plaintiff has since become entitled to the possession does not create a liability where no proper demand is made. Cousins v. O'Brien, 188 Mass. 146, 74 N. E. 289.

32. Statement of mortgage debt inaccurate. Cousins v. O'Brien, 188 Mass. 146, 74 N. E. 289.

33. Marcy v. Parker [Vt.] 62 A. 19. See, also, Conversion as Tort, 5 C. L. 753.

34. Beaver v. Goodwin [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 930.

35. Beckstead v. Griffith [Idaho] 83 P. 764.

36. A constable who destrains under a landlord's warrant is not acting as a public officer, and where he attempts to justify under the warrant he must show conformity to all the statutory requirements. Ramsdell v. Seybert, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 133.

37. Mugge v. Jackson [Fla.] 39 So. 157.

38. Where a constable selzes property under a writ of execution based upon a judgment fraudulently entered, and then conceals himself and property under circumstances which show a felonious intent to deprive the owner of the property, he is guilty of larceny. Luddy v. People, 219 Ill. 413, 76 N. E. 581.

39. See 4 C. L. 1448.

40. Michener v. Fransham [Mont.] 81 P. 953.

41. Where there is a dispute between a special and general administrator as to who is entitled to the proceedings, and the sheriff in good faith pays to one, he is not liable under this procedure upon failure to pay to the other. Roche v. Dunn [Minn.] 106 N. W. 965.

42. See 4 C. L. 1448.

43. See Attachment, 5 C. L. 302; Executions, 5 C. L. 1384.

44. See release of property on forthcoming bonds, 5 C. L. 1390. Turner v. Woodward, 123 Ga. 866, 51 S. E. 762.

45. Code 1892, § 946. A bond issued pursuant to a section authorizing it to one who is about to levy upon property, where a doubt exists as to whether it belongs to the defendant, is sufficient to cover property exempt where both intended for that purpose. Bank of Gulfport v. O'Neal [Miss.] 38 So. 630.

46. Smith v. Rogers [Mo.] 90 S. W. 1150. Where an indemnifying bond recites that the constable has levied the execution, the bondsmen are estopped to assert that there was no levy as the property was in custodia legis. Id.

47. As where the execution issued only against property in custodia legis. Smith v. Rogers [Mo.] 90 S. W. 1150.

48. Where the complaint is turned over to the attorneys of such party and they come

A mistake in an indemnity bond as to the name of the engine levied on will not invalidate the bond if as a matter of fact there was only one engine involved and the bond was intended to cover that engine.[49]

A sheriff who pays out money under a mistake can not be reimbursed by the auditor or treasurer.[50]

§ 6. Liability on bonds.[51]—In the absence of statutory provisions the liability of the obligors on the official bond of a constable is controlled by the terms of the bond, which are to be given a reasonable interpretation with view to the purpose of such bonds.[52] The contract of sureties upon such a bond is strictly construed, and the sureties are only liable for breach of official duty.[53]

Under statute in some states an action may be brought by any person injured by the official misconduct of a sheriff,[54] and the principal and sureties may be sued in the same action.[55]

Where a sheriff held two terms of office and had two sets of sureties, the time of the actual defalcation and not the technical breach determines which set is liable,[56] and the burden is upon the plaintiff to prove when the defalcation occurred.[57]

The statute of limitations in an action upon a sheriff's official bond for conversion of the proceeds of an execution sale of property claimed by a third person does not begin to run until the termination of the action determining such person's interest,[58] and not then unless there has been a violation of his official duty.[59]

SHERIFF'S SALES, see latest topical index.

SHIPPING AND WATER TRAFFIC.

---

in and defend without objection from such party, deemed waived. Audley v. Townsend, 96 N. Y. S. 439.

49. Smith v. Rogers [Mo.] 90 S. W. 1150.

50. Court issued an order directing sheriff to pay a deficit in the jury fund, which was done, but the order as issued by the clerk was to the auditor. Held that the auditor could not reimburse. Gibony v. Com. [Ky.] 91 S. W. 732.

51. See 4 C. L. 1448.

52. A bond conditioned that the constable shall "diligently and faithfully perform the duties of his office as prescribed by law" does not make the sureties liable for fees collected from the county in excess of the amount allowed by law, although the constable is required by law to make out an accurate statement of his fees. Jennings v. Bobe [Fla.] 40 So. 194.

53. Not liable for assault committed while levying a writ of fieri facias. State v. Dayton [Md.] 61 A. 624. If a constable in executing a valid search warrant exceeds his authority and commits trespass by causing one to be imprisoned, his sureties are responsible. Gomez v. Scanlan [Cal. App.] 84 P. 50.

54. Pol. Code 1895, § 12. McCain v. Bonner, 122 Ga. 842, 51 S. E. 36.

55. McCain v. Bonner, 122 Ga. 842, 51 S. E. 36.

56. State v. O'Neill [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 410.

57. But it may be proven by reasonable inferences from facts established by the defendant. State v. O'Neill [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 410.

58. Where appeal is taken in such suit, it is immaterial that no supersedeas bond was filed. State v. O'Neill [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 410.

59. Where a statute requires the proceeds to be paid into court or otherwise disposed of as the court may order, no cause of action arises in favor of attaching plaintiff until the sheriff has failed to comply with a mandate of the court. State v. O'Neill [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 410. A failure to turn over the proceeds upon the expiration of his term of office does not ipso facto constitute a breach of official duty. Id.

Matters relating to the jurisdiction of courts of admiralty and the practice and procedure therein,[60] and to the obstruction of navigable waters, are treated elsewhere.[61]

§ 1. Public control and regulation; extent of state jurisdiction.[62]—The territorial sovereignty of a state extends to its vessels upon the high seas, they being deemed a part of the territory of the state to which they belong.[63]

Inspection.[64]—The master and owners of a steam vessel, and the vessel itself are liable for the full amount of damage sustained by a passenger or his baggage through violation of the inspection laws.[65]

§ 2. Nationality, registration, and enrollment.[66]

§ 3. Master and officers.[67]—Masters of vessels are not entitled to liens for their wages.[68] The attempted abandonment of a vessel to the insurers after her stranding, which they refuse to accept, does not operate to render them liable for the subsequent wages of the master, whom they do not employ, whether sufficient in law to vest the ownership in them or not.[69] The master in such case having been employed by the owners and having been instructed by them to assist the insurers in the work of salving the vessel, and after she was temporarily repaired, having loaded a cargo and proceeded on the voyage without notice of such attempted abandonment until he reached his destination, may recover his wages from such owners.[70]

The master of a vessel is responsible to the owner for damages which the latter is required to pay because of a collision resulting from the master's negligence.[71]

A mate may be discharged or disrated for incompetency and neglect of duty.[72]

§ 4. Seamen. Shipping articles.[73]—Masters of vessels of the burden of fifty tons or upward, engaged in the coastwise trade, are required, before proceeding on voyages, to enter into a written contract with every seaman on board declaring the voyage or term of time for which such seaman shall be shipped.[74] Shipments of 60. See Admiralty, 5 C. L. 35.

61. See Navigable Waters, 6 C. L. 742.
62. See 4 C. L. 1450.
63. State statute creating a liability or authorizing a recovery for consequences of a tortious act operates as efficiently upon a vessel of a state when beyond its boundaries as it does when physically within the state. La Bourgogne [C. C. A.] 139 F. 433, rvg. 117 F. 261.
64. See 4 C. L. 1451.
65. Rev. St. § 4493, does not apply to vessels of other countries. Rev. St. § 4400. La Bourgogne [C. C. A.] 139 F. 433, rvg. 117 F. 261.
66, 67. See 4 C. L. 1451.
68. Masters assuming designation of pilots for purpose of avoiding law. The Pauline, 136 F. 815. Persons not performing duties of masters, but engaged solely in the navigation of the vessels, held pilots. The Pauline, 138 F. 271.
69, 70. Frenz v. Hume, 141 F. 481.
71. Master of overtaking vessel held guilty of negligence in running into overtaken vessel. Gaffner v. Johnson [Wash.] 81 P. 859. Limitations do not begin to run against the owner in such case until he is compelled to pay the party injured. Under 2 Bal. Ann. Codes & St. § 4805, has two years after such payment. Id.
72. Reduction of wages of mate on coasting vessel after completion of the voyage for incompetency and neglect of duty will not be approved where master had an opportunity to discharge or disrate him before completion of voyage but did not do so. The Sadie C. Sumner, 142 F. 611.
73. See 4 C. L. 1452.
74. Rev. St. § 4520, 6 Fed. St. Ann. p. 859. The Elihu Thompson, 139 F. 89; Commonwealth v. Bartlett [Mass.] 76 N. E. 607. The articles must be signed by both the master and the seamen in order to be binding.

seamen without signing such shipping articles are void and they may leave the service at any time,[75] and may recover the highest rate of wages paid at the port of departure for the time of their actual service.[76]

Wages and subsistence.[77]—The Federal statutes provide that a seaman who has signed an agreement and is afterwards discharged before the commencement of the voyage or before one month's wages are earned, without just cause and without his consent, may recover a month's wages in addition to the amount actually earned by him.[78] This provision has, however, been held not to apply to seamen in the coastwise trade not shipped by a shipping commissioner.[79]

A seaman engaged in the coasting trade is entitled to payment of his wages immediately at the time of his discharge, or within two days after the termination of the agreement under which he was shipped.[80] Every master or owner who refuses or neglects to make such payment without sufficient cause is made liable for one day's wages for each day's delay.[81]

In case the wages of a seaman are not paid within ten days after they become due, the statutes provide for the summoning of the master before the district judge of the district where the vessel is, or any magistrate, to show cause why process should not issue against the vessel,[82] and that if the master fails to appear, or fails to show that the wages have been paid or forfeited, and the matter be not settled forthwith, such judge or magistrate shall then certify that there is sufficient ground on which to issue process in rem against the ship.[83] This statute has, however, been held to be permissive only, and a seaman is not required to institute the proceedings therein provided for but may in the first instance institute a proceeding in rem against the vessel.[84]

The Federal statutes prohibit, under penalty, the payment of advance wages to seamen, and provide that such payment shall not preclude the recovery by a seaman of the full amount earned by him.[85] This statute is made equally applicable to foreign vessels in the absence of treaty provisions to the contrary.[86]

Commonwealth v. Bartlett [Mass.] 76 N. E. 607.

75. Rev. St. § 4523, 6 Fed. St. Ann. 862. Commonwealth v. Bartlett [Mass.] 76 N. E. 607. Hence, where articles have not been signed by the master at the time a seaman is induced to leave the vessel, the parties so inducing him cannot be convicted under a state statute prohibiting the enticing and persuading and aiding and assisting a member of the crew of a vessel about to sail to desert before the expiration of his term of service therein. Cannot be convicted under Rev. Laws, c. 66, § 2. Id.

76. Rev. Stat. §§ 4521, 4523, 6 Fed. St. Ann. pp. 860, 862. The Elihu Thompson, 139 F. 89. Held that court would take judicial notice of intimate commercial relations existing between port of destination and departure, and, in absence of proof to contrary, would infer that highest rate of wages at latter port was not less than usual rate at former. Id.

77. See 4 C. L. 1452.

78. Rev. St. § 4527, 6 Fed. St. Ann. 864. The George B. Ferguson, 140 F. 955. Seamen held bound by settlement made by their attorney with the master after their discharge, and hence not entitled to recover additional wages upon claim that their service lasted longer than time agreed upon on such settlement. Id.

79. The George B. Ferguson, 140 F. 955.

80. Rev. St. § 4529, 6 Fed. St. Ann. 866. The Elihu Thompson, 139 F. 89.

81. Rev. St. § 4529. The Sadie C. Sumner, 142 F. 611. There is a sufficient cause where there is a fair question for controversy as to the right to reduce mate's wages for incompetency and neglect of duty. Id.

82, 83. Rev. St. § 4546, 6 Fed. St. Ann. 879. The Elihu Thompson, 139 F. 89.

84. Is useless proceeding in any case in which the right to wages, or the amount of the balance due, is in dispute. The Elihu Thompson, 139 F. 89.

85. Act Dec. 21, 1898, c. 28, § 24, subd. a, 30 St. L. 763, 6 Fed. St. Ann. 871. The Neck, 138 F. 144. Contract made in violation of this provision is void and seaman may quit the service of the vessel without forfeiting his right to wages earned. Id.

86. Act Dec. 21, 1898, c. 28, § 24, subd. f. Are subject to same restrictions as domestic vessels in matter of hiring seamen in ports of the United States. The Neck, 138 F. 144. Treaty of Dec. 11, 1871, with Germany (17 St. 928), art. 13, giving consular officers jurisdiction to determine differences between officers and seamen, does not exempt German vessels from operation of this act. Id. Contract in violation of this provision is void, and seaman is not to be deemed a member of the crew of a German ship so as to be obliged to submit differences respecting his right to wages to German consular officers under treaty above quoted. Id. If seaman is citizen of United States he cannot by treaty be deprived of his right to invoke ad-

Punishment of seamen.[87]—Seamen may be fined for refusal to work when able to do so,[88] but no deduction for misconduct will ordinarily be allowed unless the master makes an entry of the offense in the ship's log book on the day it is committed and reads the same over to the seaman.[89]

Care of injured seamen.[90]—The vessel and her owners are bound to furnish seamen injured in the service with prompt medical and surgical aid and are liable in damages for a failure to do so.[91] Whether the captain is bound to put into the nearest port for that purpose depends upon the circumstances of each particular case, he being only required to exercise a reasonable judgment in the matter.[92] So, too, the vessel or her owners are liable to a seaman injured in her service to the extent of his maintenance and cure.[93] Such liability does not necessarily terminate with the voyage,[94] but a seaman who is permanently disabled is not entitled to maintenance after the accomplishment of such cure as is possible.[95]

§ 5. Mortgages, bottomry, maritime and other liens on the vessel, craft, or cargo.[96]—A pledge for loans made for the purpose of directly aiding the prosecution of current voyages, and upon the faith of the freights to be earned, as a part of the contract, gives the pledgee a maritime lien on such freights.[97] A mortgagee who, on taking possession of the vessel, in good faith pays off arrears of wages due the crew in order to prevent the filing of libels therefor, is entitled to enforce the preferred lien of the seamen therefor on distribution of the proceeds of a sale miralty jurisdiction of Federal courts to recover wages earned in employment commencing and terminating within the United States. Id.

87. See 4 C. L. 1453.

88. Where seaman laid off for five days in port claiming that he was incapacitated because of illness, but surgeon refused to give him a certificate of illness and he was logged and given a copy of the log entry, held that he could not recover wages for such time in the absence of proof that he was in fact too ill to work. The St. Louis, 137 F. 972.

89. Rev. St. § 4597, 6 Fed. St. Ann. 914, requiring reading of log entry to seamen who are fined, held sufficiently complied with by giving him a copy of such entry. The St. Louis, 137 F. 972.

90. See 4 C. L. 1454. For liability of vessel for injuries to seamen, see § 18, post.

91. Ship liable in damages for negligence in failing to leave seaman, whose hand was injured, at first port of call in accordance with his request, and in failing to follow directions of physician as to proper treatment, as a result of which his hand became permanently disabled. The Sarnia, 137 F. 952. Seaman awarded $1,500 for permanent crippling of his right hand through failure of ship to furnish proper treatment. Id. Evidence held insufficient to show that master was negligent in diagnosing or treating injury. The Kenilworth, 137 F. 1003. Evidence held insufficient to show actionable neglect on the part of the master to afford seaman reasonable treatment for the cure of frostbite. Johnson v. Holmes, 188 Mass. 170, 74 N. E. 364. Action of master in requiring seaman, whose hand had been forstbitten, to work at shoveling ice held reasonable and proper under the circumstances, the vessel being short-handed and in a position of peril. Id.

92. Failure to do so held not negligence in view of the character of the injury. The Kenilworth, 137 F. 1003. Master held not chargeable with negligence in failing to deviate from his course and put into an intermediate port to procure aid for seaman whose leg was bitten off by a shark, it appearing that he was not caused any additional permanent injury by reason thereof. The Margharita [C. C. A.] 140 F. 820.

93. The Henry B. Fiske, 141 F. 188. A seaman injured while in the service of the ship is entitled to the expenses of his maintenance and cure, at least so long as the voyage lasts. The Kenilworth, 137 F. 1003. Item for medical and surgical treatment disregarded in absence of evidence that he had incurred, or was likely to incur, any such expense. Id. Item for board and lodging after reaching port held not to clearly appear to be an expense of maintenance during cure, and further testimony permitted to be taken in regard to it. Id. Though tug was not liable for injuries to fireman, held that she was liable for the expense of his cure and for his maintenance during his disability. The Mars, 138 F. 941. Seaman injured in course of his duty, though through his own negligence, is entitled to recover the amount expended by him for hospital charges and medical services in effecting a cure. The Chico, 140 F. 568.

94. Held entitled to expenses incurred, after his discharge from hospital, it appearing that his cure was not then complete so far as could he effected by ordinary medical means. The Henry B. Fiske, 141 F. 188.

95. The Kenilworth, 137 F. 1003. Not after ordinary medical and surgical means can do nothing more for him, even if liable at all after termination of voyage. The Kenilworth, 139 F. 59.

96. See 4 C. L. 1455. For liens for repairs and supplies, see § 12, post.

97. As where charterer procures advances from bank on the credit of the freights of particular vessels assigning to it the charters and insurance policies. Bank of British of the vessel under proceedings instituted by other lien claimants.[98] He is not, however, entitled to recover the value of their services rendered under a contract with him after he takes possession.[99] One advancing money to pay off a lien for salvage on a vessel under an agreement that he shall have an assignment of such lien and a lien on the vessel for the amount so advanced is subrogated to all the rights of the assignor, and, on a subsequent sale of the vessel in admiralty, is entitled to priority over prior judgments in personam against the owners.[1]

A maritime lien attaches not only to the original subject of the lien but also to whatever is substituted for it, and the lienholder may follow the proceeds wherever he can distinctly trace them,[2] and may assert his lien thereon in a court of admiralty by an action in rem, though he may also have an equitable lien enforceable in a court of equity.[3]

The duration of a lien created by contract depends, of course, upon the terms of such contract.[4] In Louisiana a vendor's lien or privilege on a vessel must be enforced within six months from the date of the sale.[5]

A state court can only sell the right of the shipowner subject to maritime liens, and the purchaser of a vessel at a receiver's sale takes subject to them.[6]

§ 6. Charter party.[7]—One chartering a part interest in the vessel acquires a special interest therein as against the original owner,[8] and in such case the master's possession is as much for the benefit of the charterer as for the owner.[9]

A charter party gives the charterer the whole and exclusive use of the vessel, whether or not there be a demise of the ship.[10] If the vessel be let so that there is a transfer or relinquishment to the charterer of the entire command, possession, and subsequent control, he will be treated as owner for the voyage or particular event stipulated for;[11] but if the charter is merely an agreement or covenant for the use of the vessel or some designated part thereof, the general owner at the same time retaining command, possession, and control over its navigation, the charterer must be regarded as a contractor for a designated or specific service only,

North America v. Freights [C. C. A.] 137 F. 534, affg. 127 F. 859.

98, 99. The Pauline, 136 F. 815.

1. The Dredge No. 1, 137 F. 110.

2. Lien created by maritime pledge of freights follows freights through all their transmutations and wherever they can be found. Bank of British North America v. Freights [C. C. A.] 137 F. 534, affg. 127 F. 859.

3. Bank of British North America v. Freights [C. C. A.] 137 F. 534, affg. 127 F. 859. Fact that pledgee permitted charterer to deposit proceeds in his general account and to draw checks against such account for other purposes than paying advances held not a waiver of the lien, it not appearing that pledgee had any reason to believe that such checks were not drawn against charterer's own part of the fund. Id. Where charterer depleted such account, before accounting for advances, by a check drawn for other purposes, which was not, however, shown to have been delivered until after he made a deposit of his own money to the credit of such account, held that he would be regarded as having drawn out his own funds rather than the trust money, and the deposit would be deposited pro tanto in payment of the check, leaving the balance to be applied on the advances. Id.

4. In view of previous course of dealing between the parties, held that lien created by pledge of freights did not terminate when charterer collected and deposited them, though he mingled them with his own funds. Bank of British North America v. Freights [C. C. A.] 137 F. 534, affg. 127 F. 859.

5. Rev. Civ. Code, art. 3227. Though note has been given for part of purchase price, prescription begins to run from date of contract and not from maturity of the debt. In re Red River Line [La.] 40 So. 250. Privilege perempts or dies at the end of six months, and in such case no plea of prescription is necessary. Id. The receipt of such a note as cash works a novation and is a waiver of the lien. Id.

6. Lien for salvage. In re Red River Line [La.] 40 So. 250. Where purchaser paid a certain sum to lien claimants who had filed a libel against the vessel, held that insolvent estate had no ownership or equity in the amount so paid, and lien claimants, who were also creditors of the insolvent, could not be compelled to account for the same in the receivership proceedings. Id.

7. See 4 C. L. 1456.

8. Original owner disclaiming as to this item, and it appearing that charterer paid him insurance after the seizure of the vessel, charterer of an eighth interest in vessel is entitled to one-eighth of the indemnity awarded under law relative to French spoliation claims. Brig Maria, 39 Ct. Cl. 39.

9. Brig Maria, 39 Ct. Cl. 39.

10. The Arizonan, 136 F. 1016.

11. Grimberg v. Columbia Packers' Ass'n [Or.] 83 P. 194. The fact that the owner and the duties and responsibilities of the owner are not altered.[12] The question is one of intention to be d...ved from the language used.[13] There is, however, a presumption against a demise, and the contract is to be construed as one for an affreightment unless the terms show a clear intendment to the contrary,[14] any doubt being resolved in favor of a contract of affreightment,[15] and the burden of showing a demise being on the party relying thereon.[16]

The owner must provide proper fittings and equipment for the service in which the vessel is to be engaged,[17] and is generally required to furnish a vessel which is staunch, strong, and in every way fitted for such service.[18] There is an implied warranty of seaworthiness at the inception of the voyage on which the charterer is entitled to rely,[19] unless he examines and accepts the vessel with knowledge of her unseaworthy condition.[20] A carrier contracting to carry a cargo by water, who charters a vessel belonging to a third person to transport it a part of the distance, is the shipper as to such vessel and may maintain a suit in rem against her for damages to such cargo due to unseaworthiness, even in the absence of evidence of subrogation to the rights of the cargo owner.[21]

In the absence of a provision therein to the contrary, delay in reaching the port of loading does not put and end to the charter where it does not defeat its object.[22] Where the charter fixes no time within which the vessel is to arrive and agrees to pay the wages of the crew does not prevent its being a demise. Auten v. Bennett [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 609.

12. Charterer is not in such case liable for injuries to seaman due to defective rigging. Grimberg v. Columbia Packers' Ass'n [Or.] 83 P. 194. If the charter party is a demise the charterer has possession with the incidental right of use, but if less than a demise, he has no right to possession but only an exclusive right of use. The Arizonan, 136 F. 1016.

13. Grimberg v. Columbia Packers' Ass'n [Or.] 83 P. 194. Charter party containing no technical words of grant or demise, and not in terms letting the vessel to hire, held mere contract of affreightment, so that charterer was not liable for death of seaman due to defective rigging. Id. Provisions that vessel shall be kept well fitted, tight, etc., during voyage, that whole vessel shall be at disposal of charterers, and that no goods shall be loaded otherwise than for them, held to indicate that contract was one of affreightment. Id. Words "freighting" and "chartering" in provision that first party "does covenant and agree on the freighting and chartering" of the vessel for one voyage held consistent with contract of affreightment. Id. Provisions whereby charterer covenants to "charter and hire" vessel and to pay for charter, including captain's salary, a specified sum on the "acceptance" of the vessel and a specified sum per month until she was discharged of her cargo, that charterer should "employ" the vessel only in lawful trade, that charter should "commence" when vessel was "delivered" in manner designated, held not inconsistent with such a contract. Id. Charter held not tantamount to a demise where owner agreed to furnish charterer "with the services of the tug boat, fully manned and equipped," and paid the crew for their services. The Arizonan, 136 F. 1016. Fact that crew were selected in whole or in part from charterer's night crew held not to change the rule, they being the servants of the owner. Id. Contract held not to make transportation line delivering freight to canal boat for transportation her owner pro hac vice, but to be a mere contract of affreightmen so that boat was not a mere bailee for hire. The Presque Isle, 140 F. 202.

14. Grimberg v. Columbia Packers' Ass'n [Or.] 83 P. 194. Will not be considered as a lease or demise for the time being unless the intention to transfer possession and ownership to the charterer is unequivocally manifested by the contract. Is presumption that ownership continues in general owner. Auten v. Bennett [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 609. Charter party on its face, and purposes for which it was executed, held to show that there was a demise of a yacht so as to render defendant liable for failure to return it in as good condition as he received it. Id.

15, 16. Grimberg v. Columbia Packers' Ass'n [Or.] 83 P. 194.

17. Owner is liable for cost of lining vessel where, owing to her construction, it was necessary in order to render her seaworthy for carrying a cargo of asphalt in contemplation when the charter was made, and also for removing such lining at the expiration of the charter. Tweedie Trading Co. v. Dene Steam Shipping Co., 140 F. 779.

18. Evidence insufficient to show that vessel was not "tight, staunch, strong and in every way fitted for the service," as required by charter, by reason of foulness of her bottom. Glasgow Shipowners' Co. v. Bacon [C. C. A.] 139 F. 541, affg. 132 F. 881.

19. The Presque Isle, 140 F. 202.

20. Must be actual knowledge, the mere fact that stevedores employed by him had some opportunity to observe vessel's condition being insufficient. The Presque Isle, 140 F. 202.

21. Lake carrier contracting to carry cargo from New York to Chicago and chartering canal boat to carry it through Erie canal. The Presque Isle, 140 F. 202.

22. Delay of sixty days held not to have done so where she was loaded by charterer on her arrival and carried and delivered her cargo as contemplated, and in such case receive her cargo, she is only bound to make reasonable efforts to enter as speedily as practicable upon the performance of the voyage named in the charter,[23] and, having made such efforts, the owner is not responsible for any loss sustained by the charterer by reason of the fact that she is delayed without fault on his part or that of the crew in reaching the port of loading.[24]

In the absence of an express provision to the contrary the charterer is bound to have the cargo ready for loading at the proper place so as to give the vessel reasonable dispatch.[25] The fact that the vessel is delayed in reaching the port through no fault of her own does not excuse the charterer in this regard provided it is not so long as to frustrate the object of the contemplated voyage.[26]

In the absence of any speed warranty or provision in the charter for docking or cleaning, the charterer is not entitled to a deduction because the speed of the vessel is retarded on account of the foul condition of her bottom, of which he knew when the contract was made, or should have expected from the circumstances.[27] Though the vessel is so disabled by stranding as to render her unfit to perform the service for which she is engaged, so that, under the terms of the charter there can be no recovery of hire for the remainder of the voyage, the owner is nevertheless entitled to recover hire for the time occupied in discharging at the port of destination, it appearing that the accident did not affect the actual ability of the vessel to discharge, though there was some delay owing to the condition of the cargo as a result of such stranding.[28]

As in the case of any other bailee for hire, the charterer of a vessel is bound to exercise the diligence of a prudent man with respect to it, and is responsible to the owner for any default.[29] He is not, however, liable for loss due to inevitable owner is entitled to recover freight at charter rate. Schooner Mahukona Co. v. Chas. Nelson Co., 142 F. 615.

23. Schooner Mahukona Co. v. Chas. Nelson Co., 142 F. 615.

24. Charterer not entitled to set off damages due to delay caused by storm. Schooner Mahukona Co. v. Chas. Nelson Co., 142 F. 615. The owner is not liable to the charterer for delay in delivery due to repairs made necessary by the stranding of the vessel on the way to the port of delivery, where he exercises good faith and reasonable diligence in the prosecution of the work. Charterer not entitled to demurrage exacted by the owner from contractor making the repairs for delay in completing the work. Tweedie Trading Co. v. Dene Steam Shipping Co., 140 F. 779.

25. Charterer held liable for demurrage for delay in loading vessel, though cargo intended for her had been forwarded by another vessel and it was necessary to manufacture another one, which was done with reasonable diligence, where charter contained no provision as to time when vessel should arrive, nor for lay days, nor for her loading at any particular dock or place. Schooner Mahukona Co. v. One Hundred and Eighty Thousand Feet of Lumber, 142 F. 578. Evidence held insufficient to show that charter was modified so as to provide that vessel should wait thirty days before commencing to load, and should thereafter receive cargo only so fast as the same was manufactured at the mill. Id.

26. Schooner Mahukona Co. v. One Hundred and Eighty Thousand Feet of Lumber, 142 F. 578.

27. Charterer of vessel by time charter held not entitled to deduction where charter contained no guaranty of speed, and clause in printed charter providing for docking and cleaning was stricken out, and charterer knew that she had not been docked for several months during which time she had been in tropical waters. Glasgow Shipowners' Co. v. Bacon [C. C. A.] 139 F. 541, affg. 132 F. 881. In any event not entitled to recover where evidence does not show how much of loss of speed was due to foul bottom and how much to other causes, and it does not appear definitely to what extent bottom was covered with barnacles, etc. Id.

28. There being no valid claim against the ship for damage to the cargo through the stranding under the charter and the Harter act. Lake Steam Shipping Co. v. Bacon, 137 F. 961.

29. City hiring scow under verbal charter held insufficient to establish that injury to libelant's barge was caused by her being struck by one of respondent's tugs, she being under charter to respondent and lying at its dock when struck. Blakeslee v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 239. Hirer of a vessel notified owner that he had sent it to latter's dock, but it did not reach there and was found elsewhere by the and leaving it in exposed place held liable for its loss by being crushed by floating ice. Bleakley v. New York, 139 F. 807. Evidence owner in a damaged condition. Held that, even if, under the contract of hiring, he was not under the ordinary obligation of a bailee to return it, he assumed that obligation by such notice and thereby made himself liable for at least the cost of towage to owner's accident,[30] or the fault of the owners.[31] Lessees of a boat who, at the expiration of the lease, undertake to deliver it to the lessor at a port other than that named in the lease, although at the owner's request and without charge, are bound to exercise such maritime skill and care as is reasonable under the conditions existing at the time, and are liable for any tort committed by them during the towage growing out of their negligence.[32] The lessor cannot recover as for a total loss on the ground that the damage cannot be repaired without the expenditure of an amount exceeding half the vessel's value after the repairs, in the absence of an abandonment of the vessel to the lessee.[33]

As a general rule the owner rather than the charterer is entitled to salvage awards for services rendered by a vessel, unless the charter amounts to a demise or there is an agreement to the contrary.[34] The charterer is, however, entitled to recover any damage resulting from delay and to recover payments for unearned services made under mistake of fact.[35] The fact that the owner accepted the per diem compensation for the time occupied by the salvage service does not estop him from claiming the award in the absence of a showing that there was any controversy in that regard between the parties, or that the owner asserted in terms that the vessel was in the charterer's service during such time.[36]

A charter party is to be construed in the same manner as any other contract.[37] The intention of the parties controls,[38] and their rights and obligations are to be determined from the language used.[39] They will be deemed to have contracted with reference to the usages of the port where the charter is made.[40] The construction of particular charter provisions with reference to the docking and cleaning of the vessel,[41] the time when she is required to sail,[42] liability for improper stowage,[43] dock. Swenson v. Ward, 48 Misc. 534, 96 N. Y. S. 175.

30. No accident can be regarded as inevitable which could, with the exercise of proper care, have been foreseen and provided against. Damage to scow lying on northerly side of pier due to drifting ice held not the result of inevitable accident. Bleakley v. New York, 139 F. 807.

31. The bailee of a barge is not responsible for a loss caused by the manner of its loading, when such loading is under the direction and control of the master of the barge, who is kept on board by the bailors and vested by them with such direction and control. Under such circumstances defendant would not be liable for taking barge to sea, though manner of loading was such as to make danger of doing so obvious. Dunwoody v. Saunders [Fla.] 39 So. 965.

32. Lessees of houseboat held negligent in attempting to tow boat by placing it between two loaded scows, and in attempting to tow it at all in the then condition of wind and sea. Cotton v. Almy [C. C. A.] 141 F. 358.

33. Even if rule applied in marine insurance is applicable. Cotton v. Almy [C. C. A.] 141 F. 358.

34, 35, 36. The Arizonan, 136 F. 1016.

37. Auten v. Bennett [N. Y.] 76 N. E. 609.

38. Rosasco v. Pitch Pine Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 25, affg. 121 F. 437.

39. Depend upon stipulations of the contract as to liability for delay in unloading. Adamson & Mail v. 4,300 Tons Pyrites Ore, 137 F. 998.

40. One permitting his vessel to be chartered by brokers at a port where a usage exists for shipbrokers to execute charters without reference to the master of the vessel will be regarded as having contracted with reference to such usage. Richard J. Biggs & Co. v. Langhammer & Son [Md.] 63 A. 198.

41. Under provision that charter might require vessel to be docked and cleaned once every six months, hire to be suspended until she was again in a proper condition for service, but requiring charterer to send her to United States port where there were docking facilities, and that charterer should pay for all time lost in shifting ports for that purpose, held that he was liable for hire during month spent in waiting for repair of docks, during which time she was subject to his orders and could have been sent elsewhere. Albis Co. v. Munson [C. C. A.] 139 F. 234, affg. 130 F. 32. Rule that it is the duty of the party injured by breach of contract to use reasonable means to minimize damages held not applicable so as to have required owner to have sent her to another port and thus lessen delay, since loss was one accruing to charterer, and charterer could and should have himself sent her to another port. Id.

42. Provision that loading port was to be named before vessel left Venice, "but vessel to sail 48 hours after orders are given," held to apply to orders given after vessel was loaded and not to time she was required to sail from Venice after the naming of the port of loading. Rosasco v. Pitch Pine Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 25, affg. 121 F. 437. Provision requiring vessel to sail in ballast for port of loading within 48 hours after notice designating such port held not a condition precedent, a breach of which entitled the place of delivery of the cargo and the risks incident thereto,[44] and liability for loss of goods after they are unloaded,[45] will be found in the notes.

The usual rules as to the rescission [46] and modification of the contract apply.[47] The justifiable abandonment of the vessel because of perils of the sea authorizes the cargo owners to treat the contract as at an end and to refuse to go on with the voyage, at least where the master does not rejoin the ship before anyone else takes possession, or does not get it back from the salvors before the cargo owners have been heard from.[48]

Charter parties and similar contracts which do not call for the exercise of any personal skill, and can be performed equally well by anyone, may be assigned by the charterer without the consent of the owners.[49] The burden of the obligations imposed thereby cannot, however, be assigned without such consent.[50] The indorsement and transfer of the contract to the assignee transfers to him all the assignor's rights thereunder,[51] but there is an implied contract on the part of the assignee to the assignor that he will carry out such contract, and he is liable for all damages resulting to the latter from his failure to do so.[52]

The damages recoverable for breach of a charter are of the character contemplated by the parties at the time of making the contract, or such as might reasonably have been expected to follow its breach.[53] The measure of damages for breach by failure to carry the full amount of merchandise agreed to be carried is the market value of the quantity not delivered at the port where it is agreed to be the charterer to cancel the contract, in view of a subsequent provision that charter should be canceled if she did not arrive at port of loading before a specified day, and fact that she did so arrive. Id.

43. Ship held responsible for bad stowage though stevedores were selected by charterer, as charter provided that they might be, where it was further provided that they should be under the direction of the master and that owners should be responsible for all risks of loading and stowage. Corsar v. J. D. Spreckels & Bros. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 260, rvg. 125 F. 786.

44. Where vessel is equipped and chartered for purpose of supplying troops with water, and agrees to deliver it at such places as ordered, held that it would be presumed that parties mutually intended that water should be supplied to soldiers whenever or wherever they might be at sea, if necessity required. Donald's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 357. Under charter of boat for purpose of furnishing troops with water, providing that owners are to bear marine risk and charterers the war risk, injury to vessel due to furnishing water to transports during rough weather is not a war risk. Id. Injuries to water boat in delivering water to transport held not attributable to charterers under provision requiring them to make such repairs as are the result of their own fault. Id. Where charter contains no provision that water shall only be delivered in calm sea or harbors, it will be presumed that it was designedly omitted and that water is to be delivered where wanted, though attended with risks. Id.

45. Where charter gave charterers absolute right to select place for unloading, provided only that steamer should always lie safely afloat at any stage of tide, and contained further provision that charterers would indemnify owners from any liability that might arise from captain's signing bills of lading or otherwise complying with the same, held that charterers and not owners were liable for damage to plaintiff's goods caused by collapse of pier on which they had been unloaded. Rosenstein v. Vogemann [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 625, affg. 102 App. Div. 39, 92 N. Y. S. 86.

46. Charter held not to have been rescinded by mutual consent. Schooner Mahukona Co. v. Chas. Nelson Co., 142 F. 615.

47. Local quartermaster held to have no authority to settle claim for damages to water boat chartered by government resulting from a risk which government did not assume under charter. Donald's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 357.

48. Is a breach of the contract amounting to a renunciation which authorizes the other party to rescind. The Eliza Lines, 26 S. Ct. 8, rvg. [C. C. A.] 114 F. 307 [C. C. A.] 132 F. 242.

49. Charter and contract whereby owners agreed to furnish charterers with cargo of lumber at specified price per thousand in addition to freight. Frese v. Moore [Cal. App.] 82 P. 542.

50. Civ. Code 1457. Charterer, in such case, becomes surety to secure performance by assignee. Frese v. Moore [Cal. App.] 82 P. 542.

51. Civ. Code § 1459. Release of owners by assignee is conclusive on assignor. Frese v. Moore [Cal. App.] 82 P. 542.

52. Where plaintiff assigned charter and contract to defendant at a higher rate than that which he was required to pay, and defendant released owners without plaintiff's consent, held that he was liable to plaintiff for all the benefits he would have received if contract had been performed as contemplated. Frese v. Moore [Cal. App.] 82 P. 542.

53. The A. Denicke [C. C. A.] 138 F. 645.

delivered at the time it was to be delivered, less its value at the port where the vessel agreed to receive it and the freight agreed to be paid.[54]

§ 7. Navigation and collision. A. Rules for navigation and their operation in general.[55]—A fault of navigation imposing legal liability for a collision must be one which was clearly, at the time, bad seamanship, irrespective of its results.[56] Faults which do not cause or materially affect the collision are immaterial.[57] Errors of judgment in extremis will not ordinarily be regarded as faults.[58] There is no legal liability for a collision due to inevitable accident,[59] but a vessel is not excused because of her inability to maneuver immediately before the collision where she has deliberately placed herself in a position where she will not be free to do so.[60] The question in collision cases is not what the colliding vessels do when they get close together, but what maneuver they were bound to adopt, and what one they actually did adopt, when they were still far enough apart to maneuver in safety.[61]

A vessel violating the navigation rules is presumably in fault for an ensuing collision,[62] and has the burden of showing that such disregard could not have been one of the causes thereof,[63] but where it appears that she has not violated any such regulation, but has only neglected the usual and proper measures of precaution, the burden resting on her to show that the collision was not owing to her

54. For failure to carry full amount of lumber. The A. Denicke [C. C. A.] 138 F. 645. Liability of barge for failure to carry full amount of lumber is not necessarily the same as liability of charterer to one to whom he has sold the lumber for failure to deliver the full amount. Id.
It not appearing that lumber was sold by charterer at port where it was to be received by barge at less than the market price, and there being a presumption that such price, with freight added, would at least have equaled price at which he had agreed to sell it at port of delivery, held that he was only entitled to nominal damages. Id.

55. See 4 C. L. 1459.

56. Liability does not necessarily follow from acts or omissions without which collision would not have occurred. The Jumna, 140 F. 743.

57. Collision held to have been brought about by failure to properly locate lookout. The Vendamore [C. C. A.] 137 F. 844, affg. 131 F. 154. Signals of vessels held immaterial, even if improper, where they were not misled thereby. The City of Lowell, 139 F. 901. Fact that schooner exhibited false and misleading light in the extremity of the collision held not to require division of damages, it being doubtful whether it contributed to the collision, which was fully accounted for by the plain fault of the steamer with which she collided. The Furnessia, 137 F. 955. Dumping scow which broke from tow in high wind and drifted against yacht held not responsible for injuries to latter, by reason of absence of anchor chain or cable, where evidence showed that anchor, if it could have been used, would not have prevented collision because of the wind. The Scow No. 51 H, 140 F. 70. Where the privileged vessel keeps her course until collision, as she is bound to do, it is not material to inquire whether or not there was any incompetency on the part of her lookout. The Fannie Hayden, 137 F. 280.

58. The Jumna, 140 F. 743. A vessel will not be held liable for errors of seamanship committed when confronted with great peril into which she has been brought by the action of another vessel. Brigham v. Luckenbach, 140 F. 322.

59. Collision between steamer being towed by three tugs and another tug with three tows caused by the breaking of a hawser by which steamer was being towed, held the result of inevitable accident. The Jumna, 140 F. 743. Jamming of tug's wheel, claimed to have prevented her from avoiding collision, held not an unavoidable accident relieving her from responsibility where it was due to the suddenness with which it was turned, which would not have been necessary had she had a more vigilant lookout and thus seen the approaching schooner earlier. Brigham v. Luckenbach, 140 F. 322. Evidence held insufficient to show that yacht was caused to break loose by being fouled by another yacht which dragged her anchors, though reasonable provision had been made to secure her, but that the injuries to both were due to the extraordinary severity of the storm and were the result of inevitable accident. The Kentonia, 141 F. 384.

60, 61. The Transfer No. 10, 137 F. 666.

62. Vessel on wrong side of East river. The Transfer No. 10, 137 F. 666. Vessel navigating East river in violation of narrow-channel rule requiring vessels to keep to the right, and of state statute requiring vessels on that river to keep as near the center of the stream as possible, held in fault for collision. Id.

63. The Fannie Hayden, 137 F. 280. A vessel which has been found guilty of a palpable violation of a statutory requirement relative to navigation, sufficient in itself to cause, and which in the judgment of the court did cause, the collision, cannot escape liability by merely throwing doubt on the conduct of the other vessel, but must clearly and conclusively establish that the collision was caused by the fault of such vessel. Baltimore Steam Packet Co. v. Coastwise Transp. Co., 139 F. 777.

neglect as the efficient cause is only the ordinary one.[64] Violation of such rules is not excused because it may result in easier navigation, or because it is customary to violate them under certain tidal conditions,[65] and they are equally applicable to passenger steamers running regularly on an established route on schedule time.[66]

(§ 7) B. Lights, signals, and lookouts. Lights.[67]—Vessels must show the prescribed lights in the prescribed manner.[68] Unfinished breakwaters and like structures should be properly lighted at night.[69]

Signals.[70]—The passing[71] and fog signals required by the navigation rules must be given.[72] The burden is upon the libelant to show that fog signals were not given.[73]

Lookouts.[74]—Every vessel is required to have a competent and efficient lookout[75] who should be stationed at the point best suited for the purpose alike of 64. Privileged vessel not in fault even if there was incompetency on part of lookout where she kept her course. The Fannie Hayden, 137 F. 280.

65. Vessel on wrong side of channel in East river. The Transfer No. 10, 137 F. 666.

66. Are liable for damages for collision resulting from excessive speed in harbor during fog. The Bellingham, 138 F. 619. Steamer held not to be regarded as ferryboat making regular trips across harbor so as to be entitled to peculiar privileges. Id.

67. See 4 C. L. 1461.

68. Evidence held to show that schooner's lights were properly set and burning at the time of the collision. Brigham v. Luckenbach, 140 F. 322; The Fannie Hayden, 137 F. 280.

Vessel moored at end of wharf in navigable part of narrow stream constantly traversed by vessels held in fault for failure to carry a light so that she could not recover damages for collision. Even if Act June 7, 1897, c. 4, art. 11, 30 St. 98, and rule of board of supervising inspectors adopted Feb. 8, 1899, relating to lights on moored vessels, did not apply, "special circumstances" required her to carry lights under art. 29 of the Act of 1897. The Millville, 137 F. 974. Schooner held not in fault for failing to show a flare-up light to a tug approaching from forward of her beam, since showing such a light would have been a fault (Art. 10, sailing rules) while vessels were approaching, and it was too late to do so when damages became apparent (Art. 12). Brigham v. Luckenbach, 140 F. 322. Evidence held not to show that schooner was a vessel being overtaken by another so as to make her in fault for failing to show a white or flare-up light. The Fannie Hayden, 137 F. 280.

Catboat in fault for collision with tug for failure to have lantern with green glass on one side and red on the other, as required by Act Aug. 19, 1890, c. 802, art. 7, § 35, 23 St. 322. The Our Friend, 142 F. 274.

69. Use of white light by government to mark end of unfinished breakwater in Great Lakes, instead of red one, such as is used by lighthouse board to mark finished structures, held not misleading so as to exonerate master of vessel from charge of negligent navigation in running into it, it appearing that it had been the custom to so mark such structure for many years, and that master had received notice warning him of such structure to which he paid no attention. Davidson S. S. Co. v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 315. Evidence held sufficient to sustain verdict holding owner liable for damage to breakwater. Id.

70. See 4 C. L. 1461.

71. The one of two meeting steam vessels having the other on her starboard side is required to indicate by one blast of her whistle her intention to direct her course to starboard, and by two blasts her intention to direct her course to port, to which the other vessel shall promptly respond. The New Hampshire [C. C. A.] 136 F. 769. If one of the meeting vessels does not intend to acquiesce in the passing signals of the other, it is her duty to sound alarms for the purpose of notifying the latter of that fact. The Transfer No. 10, 137 F. 666. In case the pilot of either of two vessels approaching each other fails to understand the course or intention of the other, he is required to signify the same by proper signals, and, in such case, if the vessels have approached within half a mile of each other, both must slow down until the proper signals are given, answered, and understood, or until they have passed each other. Rule 3 of board of supervising inspectors. The Atlantic City, 136 F. 996. Both vessels held in fault for failure to observe this rule. Id.

72. Evidence held to sustain finding that fog was not so thick as to render the ordinary rules of navigation inapplicable, or to render vessel in fault for failure to give fog signals. The New Hampshire [C. C. A.] 136 F. 769.

Skiffs and the like navigating on waters emptying into the Gulf of Mexico are required to sound fog horns in a fog. Pilot rules adopted March 1, 1897. U. S. Rev. St. § 4233, rule 15 D., 2 Fed. St. Ann. 189. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825. Failure to do so is contributory negligence. Id. Noise made by patent rowlocks on skiff held not equivalent to fog horn. Id.

Vessels lying at anchor in a fog must give the required fog signals. Schooner lying at anchor held solely in fault for failure to sound fog signals required by art. 15d of navigation rules. Baltimore Steam Packet Co. v. Coastwise Transp. Co., 139 F. 777. Evidence held sufficient to establish fact that there was a fog. Id.

73. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825.

74. See 4 C. L. 1462.

75. When the only two men on deck are engaged in taking down sail in the nighttime, there is no proper lookout. Schooner held in fault for collision with another one having the right of way. The Fannie Hayden, 137 F. 280. A seaman whose duty it is hearing and observing the approach of all objects likely to be brought into collision with the vessel.[76]

(§ 7) C. Steering and sailing rules.[77]—As a general rule vessels approaching each other head on, or nearly so, are required to pass port to port.[78] When two steam vessels are crossing so as to involve risk of collision, the one having the other on her starboard side is required to keep out of the way of the other.[79]

When a steam vessel and a sailing vessel are proceeding in such directions as to involve risk of collision, the former must keep out of the way of the latter.[80] So, too, an overtaking vessel must keep out of the way of the overtaken one.[81]

to watch, but who goes aft into the cabin to rake the stove, is not at the time a competent and proper watch. Id. The services of a proper lookout, suitably located, cannot be dispensed with because some officer of the ship, engaged in other duties, may or may not have observed the approaching vessel or heard its signals. Failure to have lookout in bow not excused because officer who was there, arranging to lower anchor, did not hear fog signals of approaching vessel, or observe her. The Vendamore [C. C. A.] 137 F. 844, affg. 131 F. 154. Assignment as to want of proper lookout held unavailable, it appearing that there was a lookout at his proper station and that he could not see skiff before it was run down owing to the dense fog. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825. Steamer in fault for collision in fog. The Furnessia, 137 F. 955. Tug navigating in nighttime in place frequented by vessels held in fault for collision with schooner by reason of inattention and lack of vigilance of person stationed in her pilot house who was undertaking to act as lookout. Brigham v. Luckenbach, 140 F. 322. Steamer in fault for not having lookout, it appearing that had she had one he could have seen the danger in time to have avoided it by enabling her to stop and reverse. The Northman, 139 F. 692. Tug with tows and barge about to anchor held both in fault for collision because neither had an efficient lookout. The Violetta, 141 F. 690. Tug with car floats on each side projecting ahead of her so as to shut off view of pilot held in fault for running into rowboat, for failing to have a lookout, to give warning signal, and to slacken speed. Klutt v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 394, rvg. 133 F. 1003. Tug in fault for collision with catboat for failure to station lookout on dark night. The Our Friend, 142 F. 274. Steamer colliding with hawser stretched across slip held not in fault for failing to have lookout forward, it appearing that presence of a watchful person there would not have averted the accident. The Roma, 138 F. 218. Lookouts on steamer and ferryboat held sufficient. The City of Lowell, 139 F. 901.

76. The Vendamore [C. C. A.] 137 F. 844, affg. 131 F. 154. Large ocean going steamer held in fault for collision with schooner on Chesapeake Bay in night in foggy weather where lookout was stationed in crow's nest, sixty feet above deck and one hundred feet from the stem, where he could not see and hear objects in front of the vessel, particularly small deeply laden vessels of the character usually navigating such bay, and it appeared that he did not hear schooner's fog horn, though regularly sounded, until immediately before the collision. Id. Fact that it was impractical, because of large number of sheep on deck, to have lookout stationed in bow, held no excuse. Id.

77. See 4 C. L. 1462.

78. The Transfer No. 10, 137 F. 666. Meeting vessels are only permitted to pass starboard to starboard when they are approaching each other on lines each of which is so far to starboard of the other as to justify an exception to the general rule. Id. Evidence held to show that tug and steam lighter were approaching each other in such a manner that they should have passed port to port, and that lighter was in fault for misunderstanding tug's signals to so pass and in sheering to port. The Tug No. 32, 140 F. 87. Held that there was not such a bend in the river at the place where the collision occurred as to render the starboard hand rule inapplicable. The New Hampshire [C. C. A.] 136 F. 769. Tug in fault for attempting to pass by going to the left in violation of rule 1, art. 18, Inland Nav. Rules. The Northman, 139 F. 692. Agreement to pass port to port made between vessels at mouth of Detroit river, held to be construed with reference to custom of vessels to pass between Bar Point Light and gas buoy and to have required each vessel to keep to the starboard side of the channel betwen them, so that incoming vessel was in fault for collision for being on wrong side. Lake Erie Transp. Co. v. Gilchrist Transp. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 89. Locality being known as one where usual custom would require vessels to turn before their courses would cross, rule in regard to crossing courses did not apply. Id.

79. Act June 7, 1897, c. 4, 30 St. 96, art. 21, 2 Fed. St. Ann. 180. The New Hampshire [C. C. A.] 136 F. 769. Steamer having another on her starboard hand held solely in fault for collision in failing to keep out of the way after latter had refused to assent to her signal of two blasts, assent of both vessels being necessary to change the rule. The Cygnus [C. C. A.] 142 F. 85.

80. Act Aug. 19, 1890, c. 802, art. 20, 26 St. 327. The Our Friend, 142 F. 274. Act Feb. 8, 1895, c. 64, rule 19, 28 St. L. 648, 2 Fed. St. Ann. 172. Declaration in action for damages held sufficient. Chicago Transit Co. v. Campbell, 110 Ill. App. 366. No presumption of negligence on the part of the steamer arises from the mere fact that a collision occurs, but it must also appear that it did not keep out of the way of the sailing vessel. Instruction held erroneous for failure to submit question whether steamer did keep out of the way. Id. Held error to refuse instruction placing burden on plaintiff of establishing her case by a preponderance of the evidence. Id.

81. Where they are running on parallel courses. Gaffner v. Johnson [Wash.] 81 P.

The privileged vessel must hold her course and speed,[82] and the burdened one must, if the circumstances permit, avoid crossing ahead of her.[83] The privileged vessel will not be held in fault for maintaining her course and speed as long as it is possible for the other to avoid her by porting, at least in the absence of some distinct indication that she is about to fail in her duty.[84]

In narrow channels every steam vessel, when safe and practicable to do so, is required to keep to that side of the fairway or midchannel which lies on the starboard side of such vessel.[85] The entire body of navigable water in a bay, which is also a port or harbor, is not to be considered a single narrow channel within this rule where several channels, running substantially parallel with each other and in the same general direction as the main flow of the tide or current, have been officially designated therein.[86] Vessels navigating the East river are required to keep as near the center of the stream as possible.[87]

It is the duty of a vessel approaching another so as to involve risk of collision to slacken speed, or stop or reverse if necessary,[88] but this rule does not apply to a situation which is perfectly safe if no departure is made from settled principles of navigation, whether imposed by law or custom.[89] In such case it is only when it becomes or ought to become apparent that the approaching vessel has begun to depart from her duty and disregard her obligation that a reasonably prudent navigator becomes charged with notice of risk of collision.[90]

859. Libelant's vessel held the overtaking one and in fault for collision with another sailing vessel on a clear day in failing to keep out of the way. The Horace P. Shares, 139 F. 809. Overtaking vessel held in fault for collision with tow for persisting in attempting to pass between vessel with tow and another vessel after danger of such a course should have been apparent. Lake Shore Transit Co. v. Corrigan [C. C. A.] 137 F. 484.

82. Act June 7, 1897, c. 4, 30 St. 96, art. 19, 2 Fed. St. Ann. 180. The New Hampshire [C. C. A.] 136 F. 769. Under starboard hand rule privileged vessel must keep her course and speed, unless both vessels have, by a timely interchange of signals, affected an agreement to undertake to navigate in a manner different from that provided by the rule. The Cygnus [C. C. A.] 142 F. 85. Overtaking vessel should keep her course. One of two vessels overtaking a third with a tow held in fault for crowding in when other was attempting to pass between her and the tow. Lake Shore Transit Co. v. Corrigan [C. C. A.] 137 F. 484. Tug held solely in fault for collision with ferry boat in failing to keep her course and speed as required by the starboard hand rule. The John Fleming, 136 F. 917.

83. Act June 7, 1897, c. 4, 30 St. 96, art. 22, 2 Fed. St. Ann. 180. The New Hampshire [C. C. A.] 136 F. 769. Collision between steamboat and tug with car floats held due to fault of former in failing to observe starboard hand rule, and to keep out of the way by stopping and reversing until tug and tow had passed in accordance with latter's signal. Id.

84. Privileged vessel held not in fault for maintaining course and speed after refusing to assent to signal of two blasts. The Cygnus [C. C. A.] 142 F. 85. Privileged schooner held not in fault for collision for holding her course as required by rules in the absence of a clear showing of special circumstances requiring her to change it. Brigham v. Luckenbach, 140 F. 322.

85. Laws 1885, c. 354, 23 St. 442. The Atlantic City, 136 F. 996. Rule held not applicable in Delaware river where channel was two thousand feet wide. Id. See, also, International Nav. Rules, art. 25 (Act Aug. 19, 1890, c. 802, 30 St. L. 327), and regulations applicable to rivers, harbors, etc., art. 25 (Act June 7, 1897, c. 4, 30 St. L. 101). Steamer in fault for running into dredge anchored in channel of river for failing to keep on right hand side of channel and to allow for tide. The City of Birmingham [C. C. A.] 138 F. 555, rvg. 125 F. 506. Tug with car floats in tow alongside held solely in fault for collision between one of the floats and a meeting schooner in tow on a hawser, because unnecessarily on the wrong side of the channel and because she did not give the other vessels sufficient room to pass after giving passing signals. The Transfer No. 10, 138 F. 221. Tug held solely in fault for collision between one of her tows and a meeting steamer for failure to keep to right of channel after agreeing by signal to pass by keeping to the right, though she was compelled to keep near center on account of shallow water. The S. S. Wyckoff, 138 F. 418.

86. Upper New York Bay held not such a channel. The Bee [C. C. A.] 138 F. 303, affg. 127 F. 453.

87. Steamer navigating East river in dense fog held in fault for being near Manhattan shore instead of in middle of river. The City of Lowell, 139 F. 901.

88, 89. Lake Erie Transp. Co. v. Gilchrist Transp. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 89.

90. Vessel which in all respects complied with passing agreement held not in fault for not anticipating risk of collision sooner. Lake Erie Transp. Co. v. Gilchrist Transp. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 89. One of two vessels approaching each other is not bound to anticipate that the other will not act lawfully and, comply with her passing agreement, but

At all times no steamer has a right to navigate at such a rate of speed that it is impossible for her to prevent damage, taking all precautions at the moment she sees possible danger.[91] Vessels should proceed slowly when entering their slips.[92] The navigators of a steamer are bound to exercise reasonable care to prevent her swells from causing injury to other vessels, and are chargeable with knowledge of the consequences naturally resulting from her customary navigation.[93] It is no defense in such case that no injury has previously resulted therefrom, or that injury could have been prevented by the exercise of a higher degree of care on the part of the injured vessel than the law requires.[94]

Neither a steamer or a sailing vessel is ordinarily required to change her speed or course to avoid small craft, such as yawls or skiffs, but she has a right to presume, until the contrary appears, that they will keep out of her way.[95] This right is, however, relative and contingent and not absolute,[96] and the vessel has no right to maintain a speed or course which is dangerous to the safety of smaller craft which can be seen ahead.[97]

Ferryboats are entitled to the space requisite for proper maneuvers in entering and leaving their slips.[98] Such boats have a right to navigate prudently and maintain steerageway even in a fog.[99]

In obeying and construing the navigation rules, due regard is to be had to all dangers of navigation and collision and to any special circumstances which may render a departure from them necessary in order to avoid immediate danger.[1]

Vessels stretching hawsers across slips in the nighttime without adequate warning are responsible for the damages caused thereby to careful navigators.[2]

In a fog all vessels are required to go at a moderate speed [3] and to exercise may act on the assumption that she will proceed properly so long as there is apparent reasonable opportunity for her to do so. Id.

91. Applies whether fog or clear, or light or dark. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825.

92. A steamer colliding with hawser stretched across slip held not in fault for excessive speed. The Roma, 138 F. 218.

93. Steamer navigating New York Harbor at such speed that her swells caused sinking of vessel a mile away, by striking her against dock at which she was discharging, held liable for resulting damage, it appearing to be generally known that she caused dangerous swells. The Asbury Park, 138 F. 925. Steamer held liable for damage caused by one of two scows in tow being thrown against the other by her swells, it appearing that when steamer's speed was properly reduced and she passed at a proper distance from a tow she produced no injurious swell, and therefore that she was not navigated with proper care. The Asbury Park, 138 F. 617.

94. The Asbury Park, 138 F. 925.

95, 96, 97. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825.

98. Starboard hand rule held not applicable to ferry boat nearing her slip in a fog. The City of Lowell, 139 F. 901. Tug with car floats alongside held not in fault for being on west side of channel in East river, it being necessary and customary for her to be there in order to make her landing safely on the Brooklyn side in the then state of the tide. The New Hampshire [C. C. A.] 136 F. 769.

99. Ferry boat held not in fault for collision with steamer. The City of Lowell, 139 F. 901.

1. Act Aug. 19, 1890, c. 802, art. 27, 26 St. 327, 2 Fed. St. Ann. 163. The Our Friend, 142 F. 274. Circumstances held such as to require catboat, which had right of way, to luff up in the wind so as to avoid collision. Id.

2. Ship held negligent in failing to place light on hawser or otherwise notifying steamer accustomed to use slip in time to prevent her running into it, and was liable for resulting damage. The Roma, 138 F. 218.

3. Act Aug. 19, 1890, c. 802, art. 16, 26 St. L. 326, 2 Fed. St. Ann. 160. Steamer must reduce her speed to such a rate as will enable her to stop in time to avoid collision after an approaching vessel comes in sight, providing the latter is herself going at the moderate speed required by law. Evidence held to support finding that steamer was in fault for collision because of excessive speed in dense fog. La Bourgoyne [C. C. A.] 139 F. 433, rvg. 117 F. 261, on other grounds. On rivers entering the Gulf of Mexico. Rev. St. § 4233, rule 21. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825. Every vessel should be navigated cautiously in foggy weather and its movements governed with respect to all the conditions known to exist. The Bellingham, 138 F. 619. Vessel with tow in fault for collision with passenger steamer in harbor in fog for failing to take warning of latter's approach and to wait for her passage before proceeding on her course. Id. Passenger steamer held in fault for collision with vessel and tow because of excessive speed of ten knots in fog in harbor. Id.

extraordinary care and watchfulness, particularly when navigating inland waters where numerous small craft are liable to be encountered.[4] Moderate speed means a prudent rate of speed under the circumstances.[5] In a fog a steam vessel hearing, apparently forward of her beam, the fog signal of a vessel whose position is not ascertained, is required, so far as the circumstances of the case permit, to stop her engines and then to navigate with caution until danger of collision is over.[6] Meeting vessels attempting to cross courses in a fog, when neither can see the other in time to avoid a collision, are both in fault.[7]

(§ 7) D. Vessels anchored, drifting, grounded.[8]—Care, diligence, and observance of the rights of others are demanded of the owners of vessels at docks and at anchor,[9] and vessels entering slips must be careful to avoid collision with vessels lying at adjacent piers.[10]

Moving vessels must keep out of the way of vessels anchored within recognized anchorage grounds.[11] Vessels anchoring must exercise good seamanship in selecting proper anchorage grounds and in paying out sufficient chain.[12]

Vessels are prohibited from tying up or anchoring in navigable channels in such a manner as to prevent or obstruct the passage of other vessels or craft.[13] The statutes of New York prohibit any vessel from lying at the end of any wharf in the North and East rivers, and provide that any vessel doing so shall not be en-

4. Is not justified in relying on her fog signals alone. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825.

5. Time, place and circumstances rather than the swiftness of the vessel over her course, determine whether the actual speed was immoderate. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825. Speed of seven and one-half to nine miles an hour going up Mississippi near New Orleans in a dense fog held immoderate and owners of tug held liable for damages for death of passenger on skiff which was run down. Id. Speed of six knots while approaching New York at night in a fog held excessive. The Furnessia, 137 F. 955. Evidence held to show that steamer was not proceeding at excessive speed when collision occurred. Baltimore Steam Packet Co. v. Coastwise Transp. Co., 139 F. 777. Steamer held in fault for excessive speed and for not reversing in time. The City of Lowell, 139 F. 901.

6. Int. Nav. Rules Act, Aug. 19, 1890, c. 802, art. 16, 26 St. L. 326, 2 Fed. St. Ann. 160. The Admiral Schley [C. C. A.] 142 F. 64, affg. 131 F. 433. Both colliding vessels held in fault for violation of this rule. Id.

7. Meeting ferry steamers held both in fault for collision for attempting to cross courses in dense fog when neither could see the other in time to avoid collision, one for signaling that she would do so, and the other for assenting thereto. The San Rafael [C. C. A.] 141 F. 270.

8. See 4 C. L. 1465.

9. Where owner of yacht fastened her to anchored buoy near shipyard under agreement with owner of latter that he would pull her out and store her for the winter, held that owner of yard was agent of owner of yacht and latter's negligence in not removing her or seeing that she was safely anchored, in view of the condition of the weather, rendered yacht liable for damage to libelant's boat caused by collision due to yacht's dragging anchor during high wind. The Nellie, 139 F. 753. Injury to schooner's bowsprit as she lay in a slip held due to chafing by bows of scow tied a few feet away, which, owing to insufficient fastening, drifted close to schooner during a high wind. The Mallay, 136 F. 992. Steamer lying at end of pier held in fault for collision with another steamer for backing while latter was landing. The Rosedale, 141 F. 1001.

10. Tug held in fault for injury to canal boat by bringing barge, which she was attempting to warp into slip, into collision with such canal boat which was lying at the end of adjacent pier. The Chauncey M. Depew [C. C. A.] 139 F. 236, rvg. 130 F. 59.

11. Tug with tow of thirty-three boats held solely in fault for allowing them to collide, on a clear night, with steamer properly anchored within anchorage grounds and with proper lights. Lind v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 233. Anchor watch held not in fault for not paying out more chain. Id.

12. Vessel which dragged anchors and collided with another held solely in fault for want of good seamanship in anchoring a second time in immediate vicinity of former anchorage, which had proven insecure, and so near other vessels that sufficient length of chain could not be given starboard anchor to secure a holding, in not examining port anchor before second anchorage, and in not paying out more cable to both anchors. The Rickmers [C. C. A.] 142 F. 305. Anchored vessel held not in fault for collision with another vessel which dragged her anchor. Id.

13. Act March 3, 1899, c. 425, 30 St. 1152. The City of Birmingham [C. C. A.] 138 F. 555, rvg. 125 F. 506. Dredge held in fault for anchoring at night within two hundred feet of center line of narrow channel when she could have anchored in a place of safety entirely outside of it, both under this statute and irrespective of it. Id.

titled to recover damages for injuries caused by any vessel entering or leaving any adjacent pier.[14]

One negligently casting a vessel adrift in a storm is liable for the resulting damage.[15]

One inviting vessels to his wharf is bound to exercise reasonable care with respect to the place where they are moored,[16] and this rule is equally applicable to one to whom a vessel is delivered for the purpose of unloading it,[17] and to a consignee upon whom is imposed the duty of discharging a vessel.[18] He does not guarantee the vessel's safety in coming to or lying at his wharf, but is bound to exercise diligence in ascertaining the condition of the dock and berths and to give notice of any obstruction or danger,[19] and this obligation to furnish a safe dock applies to all the conditions in which the vessel is placed, and to all dangers to which she is exposed in effecting the discharge of her cargo.[20] The master of the vessel, in such case, has a right to assume that the invitation to his vessel to come to a proper place of discharge is an assurance of safety, and to assume that special assurances of safety are made with due knowledge of the premises.[21] One not a party to a contract for building piers and wharves and dredging cannot, however, maintain an action in tort in respect of the breach of a duty arising solely out of the contract.[22]

(§ 7) E. Tugs and tows, pilot boats, fishing vessels, etc.[23]—The tug is not an insurer of the safety of the tow but is liable only in case of negligent management of the tug or in the handling of the tow,[24] negligence in such case being the want of ordinary skill in navigation, and of the exercise of such care and diligence in handling the tow as a man of ordinary prudence would exercise in the preservation of his own property.[25] If the water is rough it is the duty of the tug to

14. Laws 1897, c. 378, p. 314, § 879. The Chauncey M. Depew [C. C. A.] 139 F. 236, rvg. 130 F. 59. Purpose of act was merely to prevent prosecution of claims for damages in state courts, and not to attempt to regulate procedure in Federal courts. Id. Canal boat held in fault for collision resulting from violation of this act and damages divided. Id. Steamer held in fault for collision with vessel entering dock for violation of this statute, though she only intended to remain at end of dock for few minutes. The Rosedale, 141 F. 1001.

15. In action for damages to dock and boats caused by scow which collided with them, evidence held to sustain finding of negligence of the part of an employe of defendant, who had possession of the scow under contract to transport and unload it, in casting it adrift during storm. Dooley v. Booth, 96 N. Y. S. 253.

16. Conklin v. Staats, 70 N. J. Law, 771, 59 A. 144. A dock owner who either expressly or impliedly invites a vessel thereto is bound to use reasonable diligence to have the place safe and proper for a vessel to lie there. Dock owner held responsible for injuries due to grounding of barge, he having assured her master, who had never been there before, that there was sufficient depth of water. The Electra, 139 F. 858. Master held entitled to rely upon representations of dock owner as to depth of water and condition of bottom, and not in fault for failing to take soundings, it appearing that he was prevented from doing so for at least a part of the time by ice. Id.

17. Defendant held not liable for injury to scow and cargo resulting from its being let down onto a submerged pile by falling tide. Conklin v. Staats, 70 N. J. Law, 771, 59 A. 144.

18. Is bound to designate a suitable place for her to lie while discharging, and to know, as far as by reasonable effort he can ascertain, that such place is reasonably safe. Not necessary to prove actual knowledge on his part, but is sufficient if his agent had means of knowledge. Look v. Portsmouth, K. & Y. St. R. Co., 141 F. 182.

19. Look v. Portsmouth, K. & Y. St. R. Co., 141 F. 182.

20. Look v. Portsmouth, K. & Y. St. R. Co., 141 F. 182. Consignee held chargeable with knowledge of danger to vessel from electric wires on its dock used in operating its railway, though its agent had no actual knowledge thereof, and to be liable for injuries resulting from vessel being set on fire by its chains coming in contact with such wires. Id.

21. Captain held entitled to rely on assurances of consignee's agent that there was no danger to the vessel from electric wires on the dock, which were used in operating the consignee's railway, it not being his duty to know the danger. Look v. Portsmouth, K. & Y. St. R. Co., 141 F. 182.

22. One whose contract requires him to remove submerged piles is not liable to third person whose scow is damaged and cargo lost by running onto one not so removed. Conklin v. R. P. & H. H. Staats, 70 N. J. Law, 771, 59 A. 144.

23. See 4 C. L. 1467.

24. The Samuel E. Bouker, 141 F. 480.

25. Loss of scows held not due to negligence of tug, nor was it negligent in search-exercise such a degree of care as the conditions require to prevent injury to the tow.[26] It is the duty of the tug to see that the tow is properly constructed,[27] not to start on the voyage when the weather conditions are such as to render it imprudent to do so,[28] and to leave the tow in a place of safety.[29] She is entitled to rely on the statement of the master of the tow as to her draught, and, if such a statement is made, is not required to examine the boat for draught marks or to rely upon them if found.[30]

As in the case of other bailees for hire, there is a presumption of negligence against a tug when it appears that the tow has been injured or destroyed while in its custody by an accident such as in the ordinary course of things would not have happened had the tug used due care.[31] In determining the condition of the sea during a towage service, the pleadings and the observations of witnesses who were on the water should control rather than a record condition of the wind noted by the weather bureau at a point several miles distant and at a considerable altitude above the water.[32]

Under ordinary circumstances the relation between a tug and her tow is that of independent contractor rather than that of principal or agent, so that the tow is not responsible for the acts of the tug.[33] Thus, if the tow collides with some other vessel during the voyage, she is not liable for the resulting damage unless some negligence contributing to the collision is proven against her, or unless her ing for them so as to render it liable for amount of salvage awarded another tug picking them up. The Samuel E. Bouker, 141 F. 480. Tug not in fault for not sending assistance to barges which broke loose during storm, in consequence of which one of them collided with a yacht, where she could not see that they had broken loose, and neither she nor her helpers could have safely left the remaining boats to go to their relief. The Scow No. 51 H, 140 F. 70. Tug held not in fault for capsizing of one of four tows by striking some floating object, probably a submerged log, though lookout was not attending strictly to his duties, the lookout on the tug assisting her in the towing, which was only thirty feet away, having failed to see the object. The Knickerbocker, 138 F. 148. Tugs held solely in fault for injury to canal boat by pushing her through heavy ice, considering the kind of boat and fact that master of canal boat inquired in each case what ice was likely to be encountered and informed master of tug that he did not wish to be towed if there was such danger, and was informed that there was not. The R. G. Townsend, 140 F. 217.

26. Tug held liable for injury to tow alongside by pounding against her side, due to improper arrangement of tow. The Winnie, 137 F. 166.

27. Owners of tug held liable for damage to house boat. Cotton v. Almy [C. C. A.] 141 F. 358.

28. Weather held not such as to render it imprudent for tug to start out with tow so as to render it in fault for collision between one of the barges, which broke loose in subsequent storm, and a yacht. The Scow No. 51 H, 140 F. 70. Tug held in fault, and liable for loss of one scow and expense of rescuing another, on the ground that the master was imprudent in undertaking the towage service under the weather conditions then existing, he having had no experience outside the harbor, and the tug not having been previously used in such towing. The E. T. Williams [C. C. A.] 139 F. 231, affg. 126 F. 871. Evidence held not to warrant finding that hawser connecting the two scows was cut by the orders or on the suggestion of anyone on the tug. Id.

29. Libelant's vessel having been loaded Saturday night, respondent had her towed out into the river on Sunday, where she was injured by drifting ice. Held that respondent was chargeable with negligence and liable for the resulting damages, the evidence not showing any contributory fault on the part of libelant. Roney v. New York S. & W. R. Co., 132 F. 321. Tug casting two barges, having neither motive power nor signaling apparatus, adrift in Hudson river in fog, while delivering third, held solely in fault for collision between one of them and a steamship. The Etruria, 139 F. 925. Custom of so casting tows adrift, even if established, would be no excuse. Id.

30. Tug held not liable for grounding of tow in shallow creek where evidence showed that master of barge represented her draught to be seven feet, and depth of water was over nine feet. The Royal, 138 F. 416. Contention of claimant that it was flood tide when tow grounded held sustained by the evidence. Id. Evidence held to show that depth of water was nine feet. Id.

31. The Gennessee [C. C. A.] 138 F. 549. Tug with several tows which lay to outside of another tow at a dock held responsible for loss of one of them, which was overrun and sunk by scow in tier behind it owing to influence of wind and tide, the accident being one which tug should have anticipated and guarded against, and there being no evidence of any effort on her part to do so. Id.

32. The Winnie, 137 F. 166.

33. Tug is not the servant or employe of the tow, and owners of latter do not necessarily constitute the master and crew of the tug their agents in performing the service. The De Gama, 140 F. 755.

officers are directing the navigation.[34] If the tow is towing at the end of a hawser, the liability is upon the tug if the tow steers properly.[35] A tug towing vessels on long hawsers in a narrow and crowded channel is bound to exercise a high degree of care to prevent collisions, but such method of towing being usual and not illegal, she is not liable for a collision simply because such a long tow is inherently more unmanageable than a shorter one.[36] Tugs towing scows, having neither steering gear nor men to operate it, on long hawsers, are bound to use the most extreme care in the interests of common safety.[37] A tug with tows should not loiter in front of the entrance to a harbor in a fog.[38]

(§ 7) F. Sole or divided liability, and division of damages.[39]—In case a collision is due to the fault of two or more vessels, the damages and costs will be divided between them,[40] but the fault of one of the colliding vessels having been clearly established, she is not entitled to a division of damages except upon clear proof of some fault upon the part of the latter, not made in extremis.[41]

Under the American rule, where two vessels are equally in fault, cargo owners may recover their full damages from either,[42] while under the English rule, only half the damages may be recovered from either.[43] The question of which rule is applicable in the case of a collision between two British vessels on the high seas is one of rights and not merely of remedies, and hence the law of the flag applies.[44]

(§ 7) G. Ascertainment and measure of damages.[45]—In collision cases where repairs are practicable, the measure of damages is such sum as will be sufficient to restore the injured vessel to the condition in which she was at the time the collision occurred.[46] If, however, the injuries are of such a character that they cannot be repaired at reasonable cost, an allowance may be made for actual or permanent depre-

34. The De Gama, 140 F. 755. Tow without power and passively in control of tug, and not chargeable with any negligence contributing to a collision between herself and another vessel, is not liable therefor with tug on theory that entire tow constitutes one vessel. The Violetta, 141 F. 690.

35. The De Gama, 140 F. 755.

36. Tug with three tows on two long hawsers held not in fault for collision between them and another vessel solely on account of manner in which tow was made up. The Jumna, 140 F. 743. Evidence held not to establish undue delay on part of one of three tugs towing steamer in getting into position. Id. Evidence held to show that hawser with which tug was towing steamer was a good one. Id. Tug towing steamer held not in fault for manner in which she was taken out from pier, or in not waiting for slack water, or in turning her when they did. Id. Tugs with steamer and tug with tow held to have properly attempted to pass starboard to starboard. Id. Tug with three scows in tow on line held solely in fault for collision in Harlem river between last one and car float in tow alongside transfer tug for being too far to the eastward, and in failing to properly estimate distance between her tow, which was not kept in line, and the other one. The Mattie, 141 F. 701.

37. Tugs with such tows meeting in New York Bay held both in fault for collision between tows in failing to leave sufficient clearance, and one of them also in fault for straightening out on her course before tows had passed. The Bee [C. C. A.] 138 F. 303, affg. 127 F. 453.

38. Tug with tows in fault because her tows were without necessity and in a fog, strung across the usual course of vessels leaving harbor. The Admiral Schley [C. C. A.] 142 F. 64, affg. 131 F. 433.

39. See 4 C. L. 1470.

40. The Atlantic City, 136 F. 996; The Chauncey M. Depew [C. C. A.] 139 F. 236, rvg. 130 F. 59; The Our Friend, 142 F. 274. Each of two overtaking vessels held in fault for injury to tow of overtaken vessel, and damages divided equally. Lake Shore Transit Co. v. Corrigan [C. C. A.] 137 F. 484. Damages and costs equally apportioned between steamer and dredge. The City of Birmingham [C. C. A.] 138 F. 555, rvg. 125 F. 506. Passenger steamer held liable for one-half of the damages, and steamer with tow, both belonging to same owner, for other half resulting from collision in fog, including damages for injury to anchored vessel struck by passenger steamer in consequence of collision. The Bellingham, 138 F. 619.

41. Reasonable doubts should be resolved in favor of latter. Lake Erie Transp. Co. v. Gilchrist Transp. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 89. Collision between steamer and schooner held two well accounted for by former's plain faults to allow division of damages. The Furnessia, 137 F. 955.

42, 43. The Eagle Point [C. C. A.] 142 F. 453, rvg. 136 F. 1010.

44. British rule will be applied in such case in American admiralty court. The Eagle Point [C. C. A.] 142 F. 453, rvg. 136 F. 1010.

45. See 4 C. L. 1471. For limitation of liability in collision cases, see § 14, post.

46. The Rickmers [C. C. A.] 142 F. 305. Allowance of commissioner for repairs confirmed. The Sovereign of the Seas, 139 F. 812. Allowance of damages in collision case

ciation, subject to the general rule that damages which are uncertain, contingent, or speculative, cannot be recovered.[47] The fact that the repairs put the vessel in a better condition than she was before cannot be taken advantage of by the vessel responsible for the injury.[48] The reasonable cost of raising the injured vessel,[49] demurrage,[50] the costs of survey and protest, and tonnage charges, are proper elements of damage.[51] The allowance of interest is discretionary.[52]

§ 8. Carriage of passengers.[53]—A common carrier of passengers by water is not an insurer, but is required so far as it is capable by human care and foresight to carry them safely, and is responsible for all injuries to them resulting from even the slightest negligence on its part.[54] In very bad weather it is the ordinary duty of the vessel to keep passengers below deck for the sake of protection.[55] The breaking of a deck, resulting in injury to a passenger rightfully there, is prima facie evidence of negligence.[56] It is not, however, conclusive, but may be overthrown or explained by evidence showing that defendant exercised proper care.[57] The passenger is not negligent in remaining there after general orders have been issued to the passengers who are there to go below, where he does not hear them, and has no information that they have been given.[58]

A passenger injured while on board a vessel is entitled to the same degree of care thereafter as a seaman, and the owner's duty is not fulfilled by giving him that reasonable care which an ordinary person would have bestowed upon him under the circumstances.[59] held not excessive. The City of Birmingham [C. C. A.] 138 F. 555, rvg. 125 F. 506, on other grounds.

47. To recover such damages their nature must be clearly established and not be left to speculation or uncertainty. The Rickmers [C. C. A.] 142 F. 305. Evidence held not to sufficiently establish permanent injury to warrant recovery on that ground. Id.

48. New bowsprit where old one was injured by scow. The Mallay, 136 F. 992.

49. The owner of a scow sunk in collision who raised her, can only recover a reasonable sum for doing the work. Award held not excessive. The Bee [C. C. A.] 138 F. 303, affg. 127 F. 453. Fact that work could have been done cheaper by dumping contents of scow on bottom of channel held immaterial, owner not being obligated to take risk of prosecution under Federal statute for dumping in the harbor. Id.

50. See § 10, post.

51. Allowance of commissioner for costs of survey and protest and for towage charges confirmed. The Sovereign of the Seas, 139 F. 812.

52. Allowance from date when schooner was repaired and reloaded held proper. The Rickmers [C. C. A.] 142 F. 305. Interest and demurrage held properly allowed as elements of damage in collision case. The City of Birmingham [C. C. A.] 138 F. 555, rvg. 125 F. 506, on other grounds. Interest on loss of profits not allowed. The North Star, 140 F. 263. Interest may be allowed cargo owners as part of the damages recoverable by them for loss due to a collision on the high seas. The Eagle Point, 136 F. 1010, rvd. on other grounds [C. C. A.] 142 F. 453.

53. See 4 C. L. 1472. For limitation of liability for injury to passengers, see § 14, post.

54. Instruction held erroneous. Evers v. Wiggins Ferry Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 118. Is bound to exercise the utmost vigilance and care in maintaining order, and in guarding them against violence from whatever source arising which might reasonably have been anticipated or naturally expected to occur, in view of all the existing circumstances, and of the number and character of the persons on board. Owner held liable to passenger who, without his fault or negligence, was injured through officers permitting negligent and careless shooting on board. Northern Commercial Co. v. Nestor [C. C. A.] 138 F. 383. Instructions approved. Id. Instructions as to measure of damages held proper. Id. In action for damages for injuries to passenger on ferry boat operated by railroad, caused by collision between boat and bulkhead, question of defendant's negligence held for the jury. Prethrow v. West Jersey & S. R. Co. [Pa.] 63 A. 415.

55. Steamer held negligent in requiring steerage passengers to come on deck for their food during stormy weather, and liable for injuries received by one of them who was thrown to the deck by a wave. The Princess Irene, 139 F. 810.

56. Instruction approved. Evers v. Wiggins Ferry Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 118. Passenger directed by collector of fares to go upon hurricane deck, who goes there, where he finds many other passengers, is not ordered below and fails to hear general orders to passengers to go below, is rightfully there, though it is not constructed or designed for the accommodation of passengers. Id.

57. Instruction held erroneous. Evers v. Wiggins Ferry Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 118.

58. Evers v. Wiggins Ferry Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 118.

59. Requested instruction as to degree of care required in case of injury to passenger through permitting reckless shooting on board, held properly refused. Northern Commercial Co. v. Nestor [C. C. A.] 138 F. 383.

The carrier is responsible for the personal baggage of a passenger unless the loss is caused by the act of God or of public enemies,[60] and is liable as a carrier for baggage which it places in storage for its own temporary convenience.[61]

As in the case of other carriers, a carrier of passengers by water must serve the public without discrimination, and sell its tickets and accommodations in the order of application.[62] The carrier is also liable for failure to furnish a passenger on a boat running at night with a berth where he applies for one when purchasing his ticket, unless it then informs him that none can be had.[63] A single ticket sold by a railroad company for the whole of a journey calling for transportation on both land and water, and not on its face indicating that part of the transportation is to be by means of another carrier, imports on its face that such company owns or operates all the means of transportation between the points named.[64]

§ 9. Carriage of goods.[65]—As in other cases, a vessel owner who expressly and publicly offers to carry for all persons indifferently, or by its conduct and the manner of conducting its business, holds itself out as ready to carry for all on such trip as the boat is then making, is a common carrier and liable as an insurer for loss of goods in transit,[66] but if it acts in each case in consequence of a special enployment, it is not a common carrier and is not liable except for negligence.[67] The carrier retains his character as such, with the attendant liability as insurer until the goods have been actually or constructively delivered to the consignee.[68] To constitute a constructive delivery there must be a notice of the arrival of the vessel at the place of docking and a reasonable time thereafter given for the removal of the goods by the consignee.[69] If he then fails to remove them, the carrier's responsibility as such ceases,[70] and it is thereafter liable only for the ordinary care required of a wharfinger or warehouseman.[71] It has, however, been held that in the case of the great trans-

Failure to call attention of jury to claim for neglect after injury occurred held not prejudicial to defendant. Id.

60. Hart v. North German Lloyd S. S. Co., 108 App. Div. 279, 95 N. Y. S. 733, affg. 46 Misc. 426, 92 N. Y. S. 338. Even if it was negligence on the part of a passenger not to close porthole and not to lock his door, held that it would not defeat recovery for articles lost after steward visited stateroom, it being the latter's duty to shut the porthole and lock the door if necessary to do so to secure passenger's baggage. Id.

61. Transatlantic steamship company held liable as carrier for baggage sent to it by prospective passenger, pursuant to advice of its agent, several days before time of sailing, which was kept by it on its docks for its own convenience and was there destroyed by fire. North German Lloyd S. S. Co. v. Bullen, 111 Ill. App. 426.

62. Patterson v. Old Dominion S. S. Co. [N. C.] 53 S. E. 224. Where there was evidence that other parties were furnished berths after defendant's refusal to furnish one to plaintiff, and that plaintiff was compelled to sit up all night, granting of nonsuit held error. Id. It is liable in damages for a breach of such duty, and a passenger may also recover for the indignity, vexation and disgrace resulting therefrom. Id.

63. Cannot withhold information as to lack of sufficient accommodations until ticket is paid for and passenger has embarked. Patterson v. Old Dominion S. S. Co. [N. C.] 53 S. E. 224.

64. Passenger injured on ferry need not show that railroad company operated it. Prethrow v. West Jersey & S. R. Co. [Pa.] 63 A. 415.

65. See 4 C. L. 1474. For limitation of liability for loss of, or damage to, goods, see § 14, post.

66. For loss of cargo of brick by sinking of vessel. Bassett & Stone v. Aberdeen Coal & Min. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1122, 88 S. W. 318. Whether defendant had assumed the character of a common carrier held, under the evidence, to be a question for the jury. Id.

67. Bassett & Stone v. Aberdeen Coal & Min. Co., 27 Ky. L. R. 1122, 88 S. W. 318.

68. Rosenstein v. Vogemann [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 625, affg. 102 App. Div. 39, 92 N. Y. S. 86. Evidence held to sustain finding that sufficient notice was not given. Id.

69. Rosenstein v. Vogemann [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 625, affg. 102 App. Div. 39, 92 N. Y. S. 86.

70. If he fails to remove them after having been notified of their arrival and given ample time and opportunity to do so. As where consignee was notified, paid freight, and commenced to remove goods, and, so far as appeared, had been given ample time and opportunity to remove them. Stone & Co. v. Clyde S. S. Co., 139 N. C. 193, 51 S. E. 894. Carrier may put them in a place of safety for storage, giving notice thereof, and thus be relieved from further liability with reference thereto. Rosenstein v. Vogemann [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 625, afg. 102 App. Div. 39, 92 N. Y. S. 86.

71. Carrier not guilty of negligence in placing goods on its open platform in accordance with local usage, where plaintiffs, after notice, paid freight and commenced to remove goods without any protest on that atlantic steamers engaged in carrying passengers and light freight, which ply between specified ports and run upon schedule time, no notice to the consignee of the arrival of the goods other than posted upon the custom house bulletin board is required.[72]

In the absence of an express provision to the contrary, an implied warranty of seaworthiness of the ship at the time of commencing the voyage accompanies every contract of affreightment,[73] and this includes not only a ship seaworthy in hull and equipment, but also seaworthy in respect to the storage of the cargo.[74] A vessel is unseaworthy unless she is structurally fit and properly equipped to safely and securely carry the cargo she has undertaken to transport.[75]

A bill of lading is prima facie evidence of the receipt of the merchandise and its condition at the time of delivery.[76] As in the case of other written contracts it cannot be varied or altered by prior conversations.[77] An affreightment contract modifying or qualifying the carrier's common-law liability will be strictly construed, and doubts or ambiguities therein will be resolved against the carrier.[78]

It is the duty of one making delivery of logs by means of a raft, to be attached to the ship's side until the logs can be hauled aboard, to so make up the raft, that, under ordinary conditions of weather, it will remain intact until the ship, using due diligence, can get the logs aboard.[79] Where the cargo is loaded by the vessel it is responsible for the adoption of a proper method.[80]

In the absence of a clear intention as to when a vessel for hire shall proceed from the port of loading, the general rule is that she is to deliver the goods carried or fulfill her engagement with ordinary promptitude and within a reasonable time.[81] What constitutes a reasonable time depend upon the conditions and attendant circumstances.[82] If after making the contract and loading the vessel the owner, on account of unforeseen difficulties, is unable to depart within a reasonable time, as anticipated, it is his duty to notify the shippers and either obtain a modification of the contract or reship the goods to the end that the agreement may be fulfilled with the least possible injury and delay.[83]

Bills of lading generally exempt the vessel from liability for loss due to peril of the seas.[84] After delivery to the vessel the burden is on her to show sufficient stress ground. Stone & Co. v. Clyde S. S. Co., 139 N. C. 193, 51 S. E. 894.

72. Ship held not within this exception. Rosenstein v. Vogemann [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 625, affg 102 App. Div. 39, 92 N. Y. S. 86.

73. Corsor v. J. D. Spreckels Bros. & Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 260, rvg. 125 F. 786.

74. Corsor v. J. D. Spreckels Bros. & Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 260, rvg. 125 F. 786. Evidence held to show that vessel was unseaworthy in respect to storage or cargo of cement for voyage undertaken at the time of entering upon it. Id.

75. Injury to oats held due to unseaworthy condition of vessel owing to leaky condition of her decks, etc. The Gordon Campbell, 141 F. 435. Evidence held not to show that cargo was injured by being loaded in rainy weather. Id.

76, 77. The Presque Isle, 140 F. 202.

78. Rosenstein v. Vogemann [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 625, affg. 102 App. Div. 39, 92 N. Y. S. 86. Bill of lading containing no provision as to notice to consignee, but providing that goods were to be taken from ship by consignee directly as they came to hand in discharging, and that carrier's responsibility was to seize package by package immediately the goods left the ship's deck or tackle, and that if not taken from along side by consignee they would be landed and deposited on the dock or in the warehouse at consignee's expense and at his risk, held not to relieve carrier from duty to give notice, and where no such notice was given, he was liable for loss due to collapse of dock, whether they were guilty of negligence or not. Id.

79. Vessel held not liable for value of logs which broke away, there being no evidence of negligence on her part. Munson S. S. Line v. E. Steiger & Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 772, affg. 132 F. 160.

80. Vessel held liable for damage due to breaking of bags of cement by negligent handling. The D. Harvey, 139 F. 755. In action to recover for damage to cargo by leakage of vessel, evidence that agents were notified previous to the loading to use dunnage in placing the cargo is admissible. Donaldson v. J. W. Perry Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 643.

81, 82, 83. The Gordon Campbell, 141 F. 435.

84. Such a provision held to exempt vessel from liability for loss of logs rafted to it for loading if loss was due to abnormal condi-

of weather to make out a case of peril of the seas.[85] If a jettison of a cargo, or damage thereto, is rendered necessary or is caused by any fault or breach of contract of the master or owners of the vessel, it must be attributed to such fault or breach of contract rather than to perils of the sea, though such perils may be present and enter into the case.[86]

As in the case of other carriers a vessel owner receiving merchandise in good condition for transportation and delivering it in damaged condition has the burden of showing that the damage was caused by a risk excepted in the bill of lading.[87]

The construction of particular provisions with reference to responsibility for weight, quality, and loose bales,[88] will be found in the notes.

A provision requiring a written claim for loss to be made within a specified time as a condition precedent to liability is valid.[89]

The Harter Act.[90]—Under the Harter Act the owners, agents, and charterers of a vessel, and the vessel itself, are exempted from liability for loss or damage resulting from faults or errors in navigation or in the management of the vessel, provided the owner has exercised due diligence to make her in all respects seaworthy and properly manned, equipped, and supplied.[91] The act also makes it un-tion of wind and water. Munson S. S. Line v. E. Steiger & Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 772, affg. 132 F. 160.

85. Munson S. S. Line v. E. Steiger & Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 772, affg. 132 F. 160.

86. Corsar v. J. D. Spreckles & Bros. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 260, rvg. 125 F. 786.

87. In absence of satisfactory proof that it was so caused, court may find for libelant, even if cause does not plainly appear. The Presque Isle, 140 F. 202. Vessel held liable for damage due to musty and discolored condition of fiber. La Kroma, 138 F. 936. Vessel held liable for damage to cargo of cement which was received in good condition but was lumpy and set when delivered, due to its having been wet, in absence of any explanation as to manner in which it became so. The D. Harvey, 139 F. 755. The burden is on the vessel to show that she was seaworthy and in good condition at the beginning of the voyage. Vessel held liable for injury to cargo of oats which became wet and heated. The Gordon Campbell, 141 F. 435.

88. Under bill of lading providing "not responsible for weight, nor quality, nor for loose bales," ship held not liable for shortage in weight of shipment of vegetable fiber in bales where it is shown that all the bales shipped were delivered. La Kroma, 138 F. 936. Word "quality" means commercial quality of fiber shipped, and provision does not relieve vessel from liability for damaged condition of fiber delivered where evidence shows it was in good condition when shipped. Id.

89. Letter sent by proctor of cargo owner to carrier stating that he held claim for damage to cargo for collection held sufficient compliance where both parties had actual notice of claimed damage at time of discharge. The D. Harvey, 139 F. 755.

90. See 4 C. L. 1477.

91. Act Feb. 13, 1893, c. 105, § 3, 27 St. L. 445, 4 Fed. St. Ann. 857.

Seaworthiness: In suit to recover for damage to cargo carried in tank used for cargo or water ballast, by the entry of sea water through leaky sea valve and obstructed tank valve, held that whether spindle controlling valve closing pipe leading from distribution box in pump room into such tank was disconnected was immaterial since it appeared that when the spindle was so disconnected the valve became a nonreturn valve which would prevent the entry of water from the distribution box, and hence ship would not be unseaworthy even if it was disconnected. The Brilliant, 138 F. 743. Held further that evidence showed that tank valve was disconnected en route, if at all, and hence ship could not be held on account of such disconnection. Id. Evidence held to show that owners did all that was required of them as to the sea valve. Id. Failure to place rose or screen on bottom of pipe used to pump out tank, so as to prevent entrance of stick which obstructed valve, held a failure to exercise due diligence to render ship seaworthy at beginning of voyage. Id. Shipowner must show that a due and proper inspection had been had, and that vessel had been found to be in all respects seaworthy and fit to carry the cargo which she had undertaken to transport, or that due diligence to that end had been used. McCahan Sugar Ref. Co. v. The Wildcroft, 26 S. Ct. 467, afg. [C. C. A.] 130 F. 521. Evidence held sufficient to sustain finding that an inspection was had and that everything was found in good order at the beginning of, as well as during, the voyage, and that ship was in all respects seaworthy at the beginning of the voyage, and that damage resulted from careless opening of valves shortly before it occurred. Id. If a vessel starts on her voyage with a port negligently left open, causing damage, her owners are liable for failure to provide a ship seaworthy at the beginning of the voyage, though they furnished proper appliances for closing them. Omission of officers to keep them closed or to discover that they had been tampered with held not merely a fault in management or navigation so as to relieve owners from liability under Harter Act, § 3 (Act Feb. 13, 1893, c. 105). The Tenedos, 137 F. 443. To escape liability as a common carrier for injury to cargo, the vessel must be staunch, strong, and fitted for the lawful to insert in the bill of lading any provision exempting the vessel from liability for damages arising from negligence, fault, or failure in proper loading, stowage, custody, care, or proper delivery of merchandise or other property, and declares that any such provision shall be void,[92] or to insert any provision whereby the obligation of the owners to exercise due diligence to properly equip, man, provision, and outfit the vessel and to make her seaworthy and capable of performing her intended voyage, or whereby the obligations of the master, officers, agents, or servants to carefully handle and stow her cargo, and to care for and properly deliver the same, shall in any wise be lessened, weakened, or avoided.[93] The effect of the act is to hold the ship responsible for loss or damage arising from negligence, fault, or failure in the proper custody, care, or delivery of the cargo, and to exonerate her from damage or loss arising from faults or errors in navigation or in the management of the vessel where due diligence has been exercised to properly man, equip, and supply her, and to make her in all respects seaworthy.[94] The burden of proving that the vessel was seaworthy when she sailed, or that due diligence was exercised to make her so, is on the owner, even if there is no evidence to the contrary.[95] The act does not, either expressly or by implication, render valid a contract entitling the owner to share in a general average in case of a loss resulting from negligent navigation.[96] service for which she is engaged. The Presque Isle, 140 F. 202. Evidence held to clearly show that damage to coffee was caused by leakage in the deck of transporting canal boat, which rendered her unseaworthy for carrying freight of the class mentioned in the bill of lading, and not by rain at time of loading. Id.

Due diligence: The owner is bound to exercise the utmost care and diligence to see that the vessel is seaworthy before starting on the voyage (The Tenedos, 137 F. 443), and special attention is required at those points where the likelihood or possibility of unseaworthiness is most obvious (Id.). The ports should be inspected the last thing before the hatches are closed or the voyage begun, particularly where they are so located as to be submerged when the vessel is fully loaded. Failure to so inspect held lack of due diligence in making vessel seaworthy, so that owners were liable for resulting damage to cargo. The Tenedos, 137 F. 443. Fact that shipowners are not in the habit of using precautions which would demonstrate unseaworthiness is immaterial. Id.

Navigation or management: Change of course so as to go by way of Cape of Good Hope and Australia instead of Cape Horn, on account of bad weather, and failure to put in for repairs, held matters pertaining to the "navigation and management of the vessel." Corsar v. J. D. Spreckels & Bros. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 260, rvg. 125 F. 786. Damage to cargo caused by barge springing a leak while being unloaded in usual manner, which caused an uneven keel for a few hours, held not the result of "faults or errors in navigation or in the management of" the barge. Donaldson v. J. W. Perry Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 643.

92. Act Feb. 13, 1893, c. 105, § 1, 27 St. L. 445, 4 Fed. St. Ann. 854. Donaldson v. J. W. Perry Co. [C. C. A.] 138 F. 643. Damage to cargo caused by barge springing a leak while being unloaded in usual manner, which caused an uneven keel for a few hours, held due to negligence, etc., within meaning of this section, and vessel was liable therefor. Id. Ship cannot exempt herself from liability for damage to cargo by entry of sea water on ground that it is peril of the sea, where water entered because of obstruction of tank valve by stick due to the failure to exercise due diligence in placing rose or screen over intake pipe, The Brilliant, 138 F. 743.

93. Act Feb. 13, 1893, c. 105, § 2, 27 St. L. 445, 4 Fed. St. Ann. 856. Though fault of error in navigation may result in injury to "custody, care, and delivery" of the cargo, vessel cannot be held for incidental damage to cargo if owner has complied with requirements of § 3. Corsar v. J. D. Spreckels & Bros. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 260, rvg. 125 F. 786.

94. Provisions must be so read as to give effect to each if possible. Corsar v. J. D. Spreckels & Bros. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 260, rvg. 125 F. 786.

95. Doubts will be resolved in favor of the shipper. W. J. McCahan Sugar Refining Co. v. The Wildcroft, 26 S. Ct. 467, affg. [C. C. A.] 130 F. 521. 'There is no presumption, in case of damage due to negligent navigation, that the owners exercised due diligence in manning the ship, but the burden is on them to show that they did so, and they cannot escape liability in the absence of affirmative proof to that effect. Vessel held liable for loss of cargo by stranding on well known reef through negligence of master where owners failed to show exercise of such diligence in his selection. The Fri, 140 F. 123. Unseaworthiness at the time of starting on the voyage being established, the burden is on the owners to show that they exercised due diligence to make her seaworthy. The Tenedos, 137 F. 443.

96. Such a contract is void. New York & C. Mail S. S. Co. v. Ansonia Clock Co., 139 F. 894.

§ 10. Freight and demurrage. Freight.[97]—In the absence of an express provision to the contrary, the law presumes that freight is only to be paid on the cargo actually delivered,[98] but where the charter provides that a cargo of not less than a certain number of tons, at so much per ton, shall be shipped, and that amount paid upon delivery of the cargo, the owners are entitled to recover the minimum amount stipulated for upon delivery of the cargo as shipped by the charterers.[99] The delivery of cargo to one claiming to own it will support a promise on his part to pay the freight.[1] The construction of charter and contract provisions with regard to freight will be found in the note.[2]

Demurrage.[3]—The owner of a vessel is entitled to recover the loss of profits or of the use of the vessel, pending repairs or other detention arising from a collision or other maritime tort, provided such profits have actually been, or may reasonably be supposed to have been, lost, and the amount thereof is proven with reasonable certainty,[4] and it is immaterial in such case that he might have substituted another vessel and did not do so.[5] There can, however, be no recovery of demurrage in the absence of a showing of the market value of the use of the vessel during her detention, or of her net earnings.[6] The charterer is not liable for demurrage for delay due to the acts of the owner,[7] nor is a libelant proceeding in rem against a vessel in good faith and under advice of counsel liable for damages caused by the attachment and detention of the vessel beyond the taxable costs in the suit.[8]

Charters frequently provide that no days shall count as lay days during which delays or hindrances may result from the intervention of constituted authorities[9] or from any causes whatsoever beyond the control of the charterers,[10] and exempt

97. See 4 C. L. 1478.

98. Donaldson v. Severn River Glass Sand Co., 138 F. 691.

99. Though without vessel's fault, less than minimum amount is loaded. Donaldson v. Severn River Glass Sand Co., 138 F. 691. Evidence held to show that whole cargo shipped was delivered. Id.

1. In action to recover freight on cargo of coal, evidence held sufficient to support finding that on or about a certain day plaintiff delivered coal to defendant at his special instance and request in consideration of his promise to pay the freight money thereon. Doe v. Allen [Cal. App.] 82 P. 568.

2. Charter provided that freight should be payable in cash on delivery of each cargo, and that ship should have lien for freight money though cargo had been delivered. Consignee paid the entire amount due for the cargo and freight to the shipper, leaving the latter to settle for the freight. The day before such a remittance was received the shipper went into the hands of a receiver. Held that the money so received by the receivers was impressed with a trust in favor of the shipowner for the amount of the freight. Michigan S. S. Co. v. Thornton [C. C. A.] 136 F. 134. Contract for shipment of lime held one for payment of bonus above freight rate, which was not discharged by payment of freight at usual rate by consignor and its acceptance by the carrier. Henry Cowell Lime & Cement Co. v. Globe Nav. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 12. Contract to pay bonus held not to depend on lime being shipped on a particular vessel, or on loading being commenced at a particular time where contingencies arose which caused delay. Id.

3. See 4 C. L. 1478.

4. Demurrage allowed. The North Star, 140 F. 263. Allowance of demurrage for delay due to collision held proper. The Rickmers [C. C. A.] 142 F. 305. Rate of demurrage fixed by commissioner in collision case held proper. The Sovereign of The Seas, 139 F. 812. Demurrage allowed by commissioner for time consumed in repairing barge after collision reduced, where amount allowed was largely in excess of cost of repairs, and it appeared that repairs could have been made in much less time. Id. Fact that award of demurrage by commissioner was less than amount claimed held not to entitle libelant to more favorable consideration thereof where his claim was clearly excessive and exhorbitant. Id.

5. The North Star, 140 F. 263.

6. Vessel injured through negligent operation of drawbridge. City of Chicago v. Hawgood & Avery Transit Co., 110 Ill. App. 34.

7. Not for delay in unloading coal from barge's hold after arrival at place of loading, owing to inadequacy of charterer's facilities, where coal was taken on under contract with third party after the charter and without consulting the charterer. Donaldson v. Severn River Glass Sand Co., 138 F. 691.

8. The Alcalde, 132 F. 576.

9. Charterers held not liable for demurrage for delay in loading at pier belonging to town in foreign port, where port authorities refused to permit vessel to berth in her turn on ground that she would project beyond the pier. Adamson & Mail v. 4,300 Tons Pyrites Ore, 137 F. 998.

10. Charterers not liable for delay due to the charterer from liability for demurrage for delay due to strikes[11] or other causes or accidents beyond his control.[12] The allowance of interest upon demurrage is discretionary with the court.[13] Where the charter provides that the time for discharging shall commence when the vessel is ready to unload and written notice is given, whether in berth or not, the lay days for discharging commence to run when the vessel gives such notice and is actually ready.[14]

§ 11. Pilotage, towage, wharfage.[15]—Congress may permit the several states to adopt pilotage regulations.[16] The Federal statutes prohibit the adoption by any state of any regulation or provision discriminating in the rate of pilotage or half-pilotage between vessels sailing between the ports of one state and those sailing between the ports of different states, or any discrimination between vessels propelled in whole or in part by steam, or against national vessels of the United States, and annul and abrogate all existing provisions or regulations making any such discrimination.[17] They also provide that the master of any vessel coming into or going out of any port situate upon waters which are the boundary between two states may employ any pilot duly licensed or authorized by either to pilot the vessel to or from such port.[18]

Pilots are entitled to a lien for their wages.[19]

§ 12. Repairs, supplies, and like expenses.[20]—In order to raise a lien on a vessel for repairs furnished at a foreign port it must appear that there was an understanding or contract that they should be made on the credit of the vessel.[21] The manner in which the books are kept and the bills rendered is some evidence whether the person doing the work relies on the credit of the vessel or of the owner, but it is not conclusive and will not defeat the right to a lien when an agreement therefor is shown.[22] The fact that the repairer first sues the owner in personam does not estop him from subsequently enforcing his lien.[23] intervention of port authorities. Adamson & Mail v. 4,300 Tons Pyrites Ore, 137 F. 998.

11. Coal strike resulting in large quantities of coal being brought to this country from abroad held not the proximate cause of delay in unloading vessel due to arrival of large number of vessels loaded with coal at same port at same time, and the requirement of the consignees that they be unloaded at certain railroad docks to facilitate shipment. W. K. Niver Coal Co. v. Cheronea S. S. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 402, afg. 124 F. 937.

12. Delay due to arrival of large number of vessels at same port at same time each under separate charter to same party held not excused by this provision. W. K. Niver Coal Co. v. Cheronea S. S. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 402, affg. 124 F. 937.

13. Interest on demurrage awarded for time consumed in repairing vessel after collision allowed only as of the entry decree in view of delay in prosecuting suit. The Sovereign of The Seas, 139 F. 812. Allowance of interest held proper. W. K. Niver Coal Co. v. Cheronea S. S. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 402, afg. 124 F. 937.

14. Whether at her designated berth or not. W. K. Niver Coal Co. v. Cheronea S. S. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 402, afg. 124 F. 937.

15. See 4 C. L. 1480.

16. Va. Code 1887, §§ 1900, 1963, 1965, 1966, 1978, imposing compulsory pilotage on certain vessels inward or outward bound through the capes, does not violate U. S. Const. art. 1, § 9, providing that no preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one state over those of another. Thompson v. Darden, 198 U. S. 310, 49 Law. Ed. 1064.

17. Rev. St. § 4237, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 749. Thompson v. Darden, 198 U. S. 310, 49 Law. Ed. 1064. Virginia compulsory pilotage law (Code 1887, §§ 1963 et seq.) is not, in and of itself, discriminatory since it imposes a like compulsory pilotage charge upon all vessels bound in and bound out. Id. The fact that compulsory pilotage does not prevail in all the inland waters of the state is immaterial. Id. Courts cannot consider fact that regulations may be unwise or unjust. Id.

18. Rev. St. § 4236, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 749. Thompson v. Darden, 198 U. S. 310, 49 Law. Ed. 1064. Contention that Virginia compulsory pilotage law violates this section not sustained, where contention was not raised below, and it did not appear that state of Maryland had ever attempted to regulate pilotage between the capes of Virginia, to which the Virginia statute relates, or that any Maryland pilot offered his services in the case at bar. Id.

19. Persons not performing the duties of masters but engaged solely in the navigation of the vessels held pilots. The Pauline, 138 F. 271. But masters assuming designation of pilots for purpose of acquiring lien are not entitled to one. The Pauline, 136 F. 815.

20. See 4 C. L. 1481.

21. The Grand Republic, 138 F. 615.

22. The fact that an account for repairs is kept in the name of the owner and that the bill is sent to him. Evidence held to

By common law, materialmen furnishing repairs to a domestic ship have no maritime lien upon the ship itself for their demand,[24] hence, the right to a lien for repairs and necessaries furnished in the port or state to which the vessel belongs is governed entirely by local law,[25] which must be complied with before a lien can be acquired.[26] One having acquired possession of a vessel for the purpose of repairing the engine has a lien thereon therefor and is entitled to retain possession until paid,[27] but such lien is lost by a voluntary surrender of the possession,[28] and is not revived by subsequently again acquiring possession for a different purpose.[29] A vessel owner who fails to pay for an engine installed therein cannot, however, recover possession of it from the builder, to whom it has been returned for repairs, until he pays the purchase price.[30]

Contracts for the building of ships or for furnishing materials for their construction are not maritime in their nature, nor are liens given upon them while in course of construction maritime liens,[31] hence state statutes creating liens of this character and conferring upon their own courts power to enforce them are not invalid as derogating from the jurisdiction of the Federal admiralty courts,[32] and show that repairs were made on credit of the ship. The Grand Republic, 138 F. 615.

23. The Grand Republic, 138 F. 615.

24. Shipwright who takes domestic vessel into possession to repair it is not bound to part with possession until paid, but if he does so, or if he works upon it without taking possession, he has no claim upon the ship itself. The Sue, 137 F. 133.

25. No lien implied unless by that law. The Sue, 137 F. 133.

26. Liens not filed in accordance wth state law dismissed. The Sue, 137 F. 133.

27. Downey v. Lozier Motor Co., 138 F. 173.

28. Lien claimed on yacht for purchase price of gasoline engine installed. Downey v. Lozier Motor Co., 138 F. 173.

29. By acquiring possession of yacht for purpose of repairing engine. Downey v. Lozier Motor Co., 138 F. 173.

30. Owner of yacht who has gas engine installed therein and fails to pay for it as agreed cannot recover possession of it from the builder, to whom he has returned it for repairs, until he pays the purchase price. Downey v. Lozier Motor Co., 138 F. 173. Engine furnished held all that owner was entitled to, and his objections thereto unreasonable. Id.

31. The Winnebago [C. C. A.] 141 F. 945; Delaney Forge & Iron Co. v. Iroquois Transp. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 691, 105 N. W. 527.

32. The Winnebago [C. C. A.] 141 F. 945. Comp. Laws 1897, § 10,789, does not violate provision of Federal constitution conferring exclusive admiralty jurisdiction on Federal courts. Delaney Forge & Iron Co. v. Iroquois Transp. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 691, 105 N. W. 527.

Construction of state statutes: Under Mich. Comp. Laws 1897, § 10,789, lien is given for labor or materials furnished for the purpose of being used in the construction of a particular vessel, and it is not necessary to its enforcement to prove that they were in fact so used. The Winnebago [C. C. A.] 141 F. 945. It is immaterial whether credit is given to the vessel or to the owner personally, and lien exists in either case unless waived, the burden of showing waiver being on the party alleging it. Id. Lien attaches by operation of law and as an incident to the contract. Delaney Forge & Iron Co. v. Iroquois Transp. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 691,105 N. W. 527. Giving of notes by owner of vessel to materialman for arbitrary amounts to be used by him in raising funds, which notes were not paid and were afterwards returned, held not payments depriving materialman of his right to a lien, there being no agreement that they should be so considered. The Winnebago [C. C. A.] 141 F. 945; Delaney Forge & Iron Co. v. Iroquois Transp. Co., [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 691, 105 N. W. 527. In proceedings to establish materialman's lien on vessel held error, on reversing judgment for petitioners, to dismiss the proceeding instead of granting new trial, where decision was based on findings of ref-referee showing that all but two items of the claim were barred by limitations and that those two were not for materials used in the construction of the vessel, since such findings rested in part at least on oral evidence which might be changed on another trial. In re Froment [N. Y.6 77 N. E. 9, modifying 110 App. Div. 72, 96 N. Y. S. 1061. Lien for work done or materials furnished for or toward the building, repairing, or equipping of a vessel, by Laws 1897, p. 526, c. 418, § 30, exists only when the materials have actually gone into the construction, repair, or equipping of the vessel. In re Froment, 110 App. Div. 72, 96 N. Y. S. 1061, modified on other grounds [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 9. Statute, being in derogation of the common law, should be strictly construed and is not affected by Id. § 22, providing for a liberal construction of the provisions in regard to mechanic's liens. Id. A suit to enforce a lien for materials furnished in the construction of a vessel, given by Pub. St. 1882, c. 192, §§ 14-17 (Rev. Laws, c. 198, § 14-17), is a proceeding in rem in which the jurisdiction of the court to enter a judgment depends upon jurisdiction of the property, and the only judgment which can be entered is one against the property, to be enforced by an order of sale. Merriman v. Currier [Mass.] 77 N. E. 708. Without the process of attachment provided for by § 17, and an effectual service thereof, the court can never make an effectual order for the sale of the vessel and a disposition of this is true whether the vessel is intended to be used wholly in state waters or elsewhere as well.[33] A ship launched, but still in course of construction, does not become subject to maritime law until she is put into use as an agency of commerce, or, at least, until she is fitted for that purpose.[34] The fact that the vessel against which proceedings have been begun in the state court has been enrolled and engaged in interstate commerce, and may therefore become subject to superior maritime liens enforceable in a court of admiralty, does not deprive the state court of jurisdiction in such cases.[35] The title to a vessel constructed under a contract with certain individuals who are to form a corporation, to which the completed vessel is to be transferred, is in the builder until such transfer takes place, and therefore one furnishing materials to him is not a subcontractor.[36]

§ 13. Salvage.[37]—In order that a service may be regarded as a salvage one, it must involve some element of danger to persons or property, and must be extraordinary in its nature.[38] One raising a sunken vessel may, however, recover a reasonable compensation therefor though the service is in no sense a salvage one.[39]

The United States is liable on an implied contract for salvage services rendered to government vessels.[40] The government, being liable to refund customs duties on imported merchandise destroyed while in custody of the customs officers, has an interest in goods on a vessel on which such duties have been paid and which the proceeds. Id. Where petition for enforcement of lien was inserted in a writ of original summons and attachment, in which the order was to attach the goods of defendants to a specified value and to summon the defendants to appear and answer, no reference being made to the vessel, and return showed an ordinary attachment of the vessel to be held as security for such judgment as should be recovered against them, and subsequently vessel was attached under a special precept as in actions in personam, held that court acquired no jurisdiction. Id. Such proceedure does not give jurisdiction to proceed in personam, since statute only permits a proceeding in rem. Id. Neither does personal service on defendants. Id. Order of attachment which is to accompany writ of original summons, and be included in it, is order for attachment of vessel as res, the same as when petition is filed in court. Id. Provision of § 15, as amended by St. 1896, p. 355, c. 404, Rev. Laws, c. 198, § 15, does not imply that lien can be enforced without an attachment of the vessel within the jurisdiction. Id. The attachments being wholly inapplicable to the case, held that bond given to dissolve the last of them, which did not in any way recognize its validity, did not in any way change their character. Id. Defect in proceeding held one of substance and not of form, so that decision of superior court on motion to dismiss was not final under Rev. Laws, c. 173, § 76. Id.

33. The Winnebago [C. C. A.] 141 F. 945. Lien given by Comp. Laws 1897, § 10,789, applies to vessel actually navigating in state waters, though she also navigates elsewhere. Delaney Forge & Iron Co. v. Iroquois Transp. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 691, 105 N. W. 527.

34. Mere fact that she rests in the water does not operate to deprive one thereafter furnishing materials to be used in her construction of lien given by state statute. The Winnebago [C. C. A.] 141 F. 945; Delaney Forge & Iron Co. v. Iroquois Transp. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 691, 105 N. W. 527.

35. The Winnebago [C. C. A.] 141 F. 945. If law creating lien is valid, seizure may be made after vessel is enrolled and licensed, and while she is engaged in interstate commerce. Delaney Forge & Iron Co. v. Iroquois Transp. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 691, 105 N. W. 527.

36. Is not barred from enforcing lien given by Comp. Laws 1897, § 10,789, on ground that he is a subcontractor only and there is nothing due from principal contractor. Delaney Forge & Iron Co. v. Iroquois Transp. Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 691, 105 N. W. 527; The Winnebago [C. C. A.] 141 F. 945.

37. See 4 C. L. 1484.

38. Raising of dredge sunk in shallow water held not a salvage service, there being no element of danger to person or property and no extraordinary means required or employed. Merritt & Chapman D. & W. Co. v. Morris & Cummings Dredging Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 780, rvg. 132 F. 154. Evidence held to show that tug rendered salvage services in towing car float from burning pier. The Car Float No. 19, 138 F. 435. Aiding in putting out fire on government vessel loaded with ammunition for warship held salvage services. Hartford & N. Y. Transp. Co. v. U. S. 138 F. 618.

39. Allowance of $4,000 for raising sunken dredge affirmed, work being in no sense a salvage service. Merritt & Chapman D. & W. Co. v. Morris & Cummings Dredging Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 780, rvg. 132 F. 154. In suit to recover for services for raising sunken dredge, held that, in view of long delay in prosecuting suit, the fact that the claim was excessive and the difficulty experienced by respondent in obtaining proof of value of libelant's services owing to fact that latter had monopoly of such work, neither costs or interest would be allowed. Id.

40. Under provisions of Tucker Act (Act March 3, 1887, c. 359, 24 St. 505). Hartford & N. Y. Transp. Co. v. U. S., 138 F. 618.

are still in the custody of such officers, and salvors are entitled to an award against it on the basis of the amount thus put at risk.[41]

The law does not fix any maximum or minimum percentage to be allowed salvors,[42] but they should be allowed a fair share of what they save, each case being judged with reference to its peculiar facts.[43] The danger to the salved vessel,[44] the value of the two vessels,[45] the effectiveness of the services rendered,[46] and the risk of the salvors, will be considered.[47] The vessel rendering the salvage service should also be reimbursed for expenses and losses actually incurred.[48]

A certain proportion of the award is generally divided among the officers and crew rendering the services.[49]

§ 14. Loss and expense and limitation of liability therefor.[50]—In the absence of specific proof it is presumed that the cargo on board a vessel at the time of its loss was the equivalent of its carrying capacity.[51] It cannot be assumed that the proceeds of the outward bound voyage were invested in the return cargo.[52]

Limitation of liability.[53]—The Federal statutes provide that the liability of the owner of any vessel for any embezzlement, loss, or destruction, by any person, of any property, goods, or merchandise, shipped or put aboard such vessel, or for any loss, damage, or injury by collision, or for any act, matter, or thing lost, 41. United States v. Cornell Steamboat Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 455, afg. 130 F. 480. U. S. Rev. St. § 2984, providing for refund in such cases, is mandatory. Id. The Federal district courts have jurisdiction to entertain a petition for a salvage award against the United States for services in saving a cargo in which the government is interested. Under Tucker Act (Act March 3, 1887, c. 359, 24 St. 505. 1 Supp. Rev. St. 559). Id.

42. The South Bay, 139 F. 273. Award in derelict cases is not necessarily a moity but depends upon circumstances. The Edith L. Allen, 139 F. 888. While rescued schooner was not a derelict in the strict sense, held that she might justly be considered one for salvage purposes. Id. Would be manifestly unjust to allow half in derelict cases, where there is a large salved value, and small risk to the salving vessel. Id.

43. The South Bay, 139 F. 273.

Awards in particular cases: Nine thousand dollars awarded tug worth $20,000 for putting out fire on tank steamer worth, with its cargo of crude petroleum, $221,000. The Toledo, 136 F. 959. Tug worth $25,000 allowed $1,000 for towing car float worth $22,000 from burning pier. The Car Float No. 19, 138 F. 435. Award of $500 to tug aiding in putting out fire on United States vessel loaded with ammunition. Hartford & N. Y. Transp. Co. v. U. S., 138 F. 618. Award of $2,000 to owners and crew of tug for towing into port steamer worth $50,000, which had struck stonework at entrance of harbor and was in peril but not in imminent danger, the service not requiring exposure to extraordinary peril, or the endurance of special hardships. The South Bay, 139 F. 273. Steamer worth $300,000 awarded $8,000 for towing into port a schooner, whose salved value with her cargo and freight was $25,000, and which could justly be considered a derelict for salvage purposes. The Edith L. Allen, 139 F. 888. Award of $250 to tug for towing two mudscows which had broken loose in a fog, the service being the lowest order of salvage. Scows Nos. 1 and 10, 141 F. 477.

44. The Toledo, 136 F. 959; The South Bay, 139 F. 273. Drifting scows held in some danger. Scows Nos. 1 and 10, 141 F. 477. Fact that lives of crew of salved vessel were probably saved from an essential ingredient in considering question of compensation. The Edith L. Allen, 139 F. 888.

45. The Toledo, 136 F. 959. Value of property salved. The South Bay, 139 F. 273.

46. The effectiveness of the services rather than the time consumed in rendering them is of importance. The Toledo, 136 F. 959.

47. No danger to rescuing boat or her crew. Scows Nos. 1 and 10, 141 F. 477. Value of services increased where human life is involved. The Toledo, 136 F. 959. Fact that they were not exposed to extraordinary peril or required to endure special hardships. The South Bay, 139 F. 273. If there is danger in towing vessel the risk should be terminated as soon as possible, and fact that this was not done should be considered. The Edith L. Allen, 139 F. 888.

48. Claims for value of hawser and for towage charges held proper. The Edith L. Allen, 139 F. 888.

49. Salvage divided between owner and crew in the proportions of seventy-five and twenty-five per cent., the crews share being divided according to their wages, the master and those going on board the rescued schooner to steer her receiving double shares, and engineer who cut anchor chain on schooner one and a half shares. The Edith L. Allen, 139 F. 888. One-third of salvage award given to master and crew in proportion to their wages, master receiving a double portion. The Toledo, 136 F. 959.

50. See 4 C. L. 1486.

51. Burden is on owner to show as against claim of charterer of an eighth interest in the vessel that it was less. Brig Maria, 39 Ct. Cl. 39.

52. Can be no recovery of value of return cargo captured by French privateer where there is no evidence by which its value can be estimated. Brig Maria, 39 Ct. Cl. 39.

53. See 4 C. L. 1487.

damage, or forfeiture done, occasioned or incurred, without the privity or knowledge of such owner or owners, shall in no case exceed the amount or value of the interest of such owner in such vessel, and her freight then pending,[54] and that whenever the whole value of the vessel and the freight for the voyage is not sufficient to compensate all persons suffering loss, it shall be divided pro rata between them, for which purpose appropriate proceedings may be had in any court.[55] The 54. Rev. St. § 4283, 4 Fed. St. Ann. 839.

Vessels which may take advantage of the act: Mudscow navigating Boston Harbor may maintain proceeding for limitation of liability for collision under Rev. St. §§ 4283-4289, as amended by Act June 19, 1886, c. 421, § 4, 24 St. 80. In re Eastern Dredging Co., 138 F. 942. Is immaterial that it is not engaged in business of carrying merchandise, or passengers or both, or that it is engaged in purely local trade and is not run on any particular route. Id. It is also immaterial that there is never any freight pending on its voyages, if such is the fact. Id.

Liability for removal of wreck from harbor: Where vessel is lost without privity or knowledge of owner, he is only liable to the extent of his interest therein and cannot be held personally responsible for expenses incurred by local authorities in removing the wrecked vessel from their harbor. Va. Code, § 2011, as amended by Acts 1889-90, p. 624, c. 371, is invalid in so far as it authorizes removal at owner's expense. Hagan v. Richmond [Va.] 52 S. E. 385.

Damages for loss of life may be proved against the fund paid in in proceedings by the owner of a foreign vessel for limitation of liability for claims arising out of the loss of the vessel in collision, for which the vessel is held in fault, where the law of the country to which the vessel belongs authorizes such a recovery in such cases. La Bourgogne [C. C. A.] 139 F. 433, rvg. 117 F. 261.

Freight pending: "Freight pending" and "freight for the voyage" mean the earnings of the voyage, whether from the carriage of passengers or merchandise. La Bourgogne [C. C. A.] 139 F. 433, rvg. 117 F. 261. Passage or freight money collected under contracts making it the absolute property of the shipowner, whether voyage is completed or not, must be regarded as earned though vessel is lost, and hence must be surrendered. Id. Does not include any part of subsidy paid to company by French government in consideration of maintaining weekly steamer service between Havre and New York, transporting mails, etc., it being impossible to determine what part thereof is to be considered compensation to any particular steamer for transporting mails on any particular trip. Id.

Insurance moneys need not be surrendered. In re Knickerbocker Steamboat Co., 136 F. 956.

Privity or knowledge: Evidence held insufficient to show that officers of steamship company knowingly tolerated or encouraged the running of its steamers at excessive speed in fogs, or were negligent in failing to enforce the rules in this regard so as to prevent limitation of liability for collision while vessel was running at excessive speed in fog, on ground that collision occurred with company's privity or knowledge. La Bourgogne [C. C. A.] 139 F. 433, rvg. 117 F. 261, on other grounds. Rules as to speed in fog held sufficient. Id. Evidence insufficient to show that vessel was in actual violation of statutory provisions as to life boats, etc. (R. S. §§ 4488, 4489). Id. An owner who, after a general inspection, purchases a vessel from a shipbuilder of recognized standing and reputation, who equips her with machinery, means, and appliances which are suitable and sufficient if properly used, may limit his liability for damage occasioned by their negligent use by his employes. For injuries to stevedores caused by unloading coal in such a manner as to put heavy pressure on defective bulkheads. The Harry Hudson Smith [C. C. A.] 142 F. 724.

Collision cases: Where both vessels are held to be in fault for a collision, and each is condemned to pay half the damage, the claims of outside claimants are entitled to priority over any claim of the owner or charterer of either vessel for injuries thereto against the other vessel. The Mauch Chunk, 139 F. 747. In such case underwriters stand by subrogation in the shoes of the owners and their rights are subordinate to those of the damage claimants who must first be paid in full. Id. Cost of raising one of two vessels, both of which were held in fault for collision, held a proper claim against the fund, though exceeding the value of the raised vessel, where she was an obstruction to navigation, and it was also necessary to raise her in order to determine her true condition and value. Id. Sinking of ferry boat in collision held not to have prevented owner of pier from using it so as to entitle him to damages. Id. It is a condition precedent to the limitation of liability that the party seeking it surrender each and every vessel owned by him participating in the tort. Where petition is for limitation as owner of vessel sunk in collision, but it appears that petitioner also owned the other vessel concerned, which was equally at fault, both must be surrendered or proceedings will be dismissed. The San Rafael [C. C. A.] 141 F. 270, rvg. 134 F. 749.

Pleading and practice: Petition for limitation of liability sufficient to give court jurisdiction. In re Eastern Dredging Co., 138 F. 942. Questions whether collision could not have occurred without petitioner's privity or knowledge, and whether scow was negligent in failing to have proper lights, will be left to be determined at the trial, where petition denies such knowledge and negligence and will not be decided on special plea to the jurisdiction. Id. In a proceeding for limitation of liability, interrogatories which are merely for the purpose of finding assets of the petitioner are inadmissible. In re Knickerbocker Steamboat Co., 136 F. 956.

55. Rev. St. § 4284, 4 Fed. St. Ann. 49. Effect of this section is to make every admissible claim a statutory lien on the fund, and entitled to share therein pro rata, except as affected by equitable rights between the parties. The Mauch Chunk, 139 F. 747.

Freight for the "voyage" means the particular voyage which exposes the property transfer by the owner of his interest in the vessel and freight to a trustee, to be appointed by any court of competent jurisdiction, is made a sufficient compliance with the statute.[56] For the purpose of such proceeding a charterer of a vessel, who mans, victuals, and navigates her at his own expense, or by his own procurement, is to be deemed her owner, and the vessel is liable in the same manner as if navigated by the owner thereof.[57] It is further provided that the individual liability of an owner shall be limited to the proportion of any or all debts and liabilities that his individual share of the vessel bears to the whole, and that the aggregate liabilities of all the owners of a vessel on account of the same shall not exceed the value of such vessel and freight pending.[58]

§ 15. General average.[59]—The Harter Act does not, either expressly or by implication, render valid a contract entitling the owner to share in a general average in case of a loss resulting from negligent navigation.[60]

§ 16. Wreck.[61]

§ 17. Marine insurance.[62]—The word "collision," when used alone in a policy, means the coming in contact of two navigable things.[63] A provision that a deduction of one-third shall be made from all partial loss claims after two years from the date of the vessel's original custom house survey is valid.[64]

A policy of insurance on a vessel engaged in navigation is a maritime contract, though it insures her against fire risks only, and a court of admiralty has jurisdiction of an action in personam to enforce the same.[65]

§ 18. Maritime torts and crimes.[66]—A ship is liable for the torts of the master and crew, though committed without the knowledge or consent of the owners.[67] The lien for a maritime tort accompanies the vessel even into the hands of a bona fide purchaser.[68] to risk, and, in the case of an Atlantic liner making regular trips between the United States and Europe, each trip or crossing is such a voyage. Hence, where French ship is sunk on her way from New York to Havre, owner is not bound to surrender earnings of previous trip from Havre to New York. La Bourgogne [C. C. A.] 139 F. 433, rvg. 117 F. 261.

Claims for injuries and loss of life are within this and the next section. The Mauch Chunk, 139 F. 747. Funeral expenses of persons killed are recoverable where the law imposes upon the relatives for whose benefit the claim is made the obligation to bear them. Id.

56. Rev. St. § 4285, 4 Fed. St. Ann. 850. The Mauch Chunk, 139 F. 747.

57. Rev. St. § 4286, 4 Fed. St. Ann. 851. The Mauch Chunk, 139 F. 747.

58. Act June 26, 1884, c. 121, § 18, 23 St. L. 57, 4 Fed. St. Ann. 852. Act is to be construed in connection with Rev. St. § 4283, 4 Fed. St. Ann. 839, limiting owner's liability in case of loss by embezzlement, collision, etc. Rudolf v. Brown, 137 F. 106.

Contracts for supplies: Does not apply to personal contracts for supplies so as to relieve a part owner from full liability therefor, particularly where they are purchased by his authority or with his consent. Rudolph v. Brown, 137 F. 106.

59. See 4 C. L. 1487.

60. Such a contract is void. New York & C. Mail S. S. Co. v. Ansonia Clock Co., 139 F. 894.

61. See 4 C. L. 1487.

62. See 4 C. L. 1488.

63. Hence policy insuring against collision does not cover a loss due to striking a wrecked vessel sunk several hours previously and never raised, and which could only have been raised at a cost exceeding her value when raised. Burnham v. China Mut. Ins. Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 74. Policies covering "the risk of collision sustained" and "loss sustained by collision with another vessel" mean the same thing, namely, collision with another vessel. Id.

64. Claim for repairs. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Paducah Towing Co. [Ky.] 89 S. W. 722. Such provision held to be in addition to that whereby insurer undertook to be liable for only two-thirds of the loss in the first instance, that is, defendant was entitled to deduct from two-thirds of the amount of the loss one-third thereof. Id.

65. Relation of insurance to hull or cargo, in maritime service, and not the particular terms of the policy controls. North German Fire Ins. Co. v. Adams [C. C. A.] 142 F. 439.

66. See 4 C. L. 1454, 1491. See, also, Master and Servant, 6 C. L. 521; Negligence, 6 C. L. 748.

67. For blowing off boiler while lying next to another vessel, thereby destroying a part of the latter's paint. The Bulley, 138 F. 170.

NOTE. Liability of ship for unauthorized tort of seamen: American admiralty courts disregard the common-law limitations on the doctrine of respondent superior in torts and

The owner is bound to exercise ordinary and reasonable care to provide reasonably safe appliances, machinery and working places, and to keep them in a reasonably safe condition of repair.[69] Seamen are bound to use ordinary care in the use of such appliances[70] and assume the risk of the ordinary perils of navigation.[71] Neither the vessel nor its owner is liable for injuries to a seaman caused by the negligence of his fellow-servants, in the absence of evidence showing that the owner was negligent in selecting them.[72] The crew of a vessel and the crew of a lighter into which she is engaged in unloading are engaged in a common undertaking, and therefore each owes to the other the duty of exercising ordinary care and prudence.[73] One deliberately choosing a dangerous method of doing his part of the work, rather than a safe one equally practicable, is guilty of negligence making him liable for the resulting injuries to the other party.[74]

In order that the owner may be held liable for injuries to a stevedore it must appear that he had control and supervision of the work of loading the vessel, or that he furnished the instrumentalities for doing so and was negligent in furnish-permit an action in rem against the vessel for the unauthorized, willful acts of its crew. This conception, that the ship itself is the wrongdoer, originated in the commercial customs of the middle ages (The China, 7 Wall. [U. S.] 53, 68, 19 Law. Ed. 67), and in the efforts of the courts to insure indemnity to the injured party (The United States v. Brig Malek Adhel, 2 How. [U. S.] 210, 233, 11 Law. Ed. 239). The English decisions, however, more nearly approach the common-law doctrine (Abbott on Shipping [6th Am. Ed.] 228, Carver on Carriage by Sea, § 707), one case even holding that the liability of the ship and the responsibility of the owner are convertible terms (The Druid, 1 W. Robinson, 391, 399). The weight of American authority, however, favors the decision in the Bulley, above cited. Schooner Little Charles, 1 Brock, 347, 354.—5 Columbia L. R. 545.

68. One purchasing vessel during pendency of proceedings for limitation of liability held not bona fide purchaser. The San Rafael [C. C. A.] 141 F. 270, rvg. 134 F. 749.

69. See 4 C. L. 1454. Vessel held liable for injury to seaman caused by breaking of rope fastening pulley to top of funnel. The Lowlands, 142 F. 888. The owner is only bound to furnish machinery and appliances which are reasonably safe and fit. Need not furnish the very best which can be procured or those which are absolutely the most convenient or most safe (The Chico, 140 F. 568), but they must be such as can be used by the servant in the course of his employment without danger to himself by exercising ordinary care (Id.). Owner held not negligent in installing and continuing in use a winch in which cogwheels were not protected where it could be safely used by exercise of reasonable care, and not liable for injuries to seaman whose fingers were caught therein. The Chico, 140 F. 568. Liability on the part of the vessel to a seaman for injuries resulting from the breaking of an appliance is incurred only when those who represent her have failed to exercise reasonable care to make it safe, and arises only out of such defects as reasonable care on her part would have discovered and remedied. Owners and vessel held not liable to seaman struck by anchor chain which ran out suddenly, owing to breaking of patent spring rider. The Henry B. Fiske, 141 F. 188. Held not negligence on master's part to order him, or to permit mate to order him, to work in chain locker where he was injured by sudden running out of anchor chain due to breaking of patent spring rider, there being no reason to apprehend unusual danger. Id. Tug held not liable for injuries received by fireman while tightening nuts on valve of stuffing box, the work being such as he was familiar with, and it appearing that machinery was in general good repair. The Mars, 138 F. 941. Evidence held sufficient to show that owners were not negligent in furnishing too small a tug for the service (Smith v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 141 F. 192), or because pilot house was too low to permit captain to see libelant while at work on deck of float, this ground not having been assigned in the libel as a matter of negligence (Id.).

70. Seaman held not guilty of contributory negligence in running line used to fasten boatswain's chair for painting funnel through wooden pulley fastened by rope instead of iron one, where he tried latter and found that it was rusted and would not work. The Lowlands, 142 F. 888.

71. Evidence held to show that injury to seaman was due to the ordinary perils of navigation and not to the negligent manner in which yardarm was fastened, so that vessel was not liable therefor. The Margharita [C. C. A.] 140 F. 820.

72. Mate and floatman belonging to same crew, having the same employer, and being engaged in a common object, though of different rank, and working on different lines to accomplish the undertaking, are fellow-servants. Smith v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 141 F. 192.

73. Carlson v. White Star S. S. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 838.

74. Ship's servants held guilty of negligence in failing to use winches in unloading timber onto lighter. Carlson, v. White Star S. S. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 838. Fact that lighterage company was also negligent in failing to provide a sufficient number of men held not to relieve vessel owners from results of their negligence. Id. Crew of lighter held not guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

ing defective ones.[75] He is bound to provide a safe place on the vessel for them to work,[76] but is not liable for the consequences of the negligence of an independent contractor who undertakes to load the vessel and to furnish the necessary labor and appliances for so doing,[77] nor for the consequences of contributory negligence on the part of the injured person.[78] The ship is bound to furnish loading tackle that will support loads with which men of usual skill and prudence in the business will burden it,[79] but it is the duty of the contracting stevedore to see that only such loads are hoisted, and to use proper judgment in their selection, and the ship is not responsible for injuries to his employes resulting from his failure to do so.[80] If the vessel is bound to furnish to the stevedore winches and winchmen to be used in unloading, its whole duty is performed when it furnishes properly constructed winches in good order, and winchmen selected and employed with due and reasonable care as to their skill and competence.[81]

The first officer of a vessel sunk in collision is not chargeable with negligence because of improper navigation where he acted in all that he did under the orders of the master.[82] So too, the members of the crew are not chargeable with the vessel's faults, and the fact that both vessels are held in fault and the damages divided does not preclude their representatives from recovering full damages for their deaths.[83] Negligence in failing to provide a fog horn for a skiff, or negligence of the oarsman in failing to use a fog signal, or negligent navigation on his part, is not imputed to a mere passenger having no control over the skiff or its management,[84] nor is the act of the passenger in attempting to cross the river without seeing that there is such a horn such an act of known danger and recklessness on his part as will charge him with personal contributory negligence, it appearing that it was not customary for such boats to carry such horns.[85]

The question of the contributory negligence of one run down by a tug while crossing a river in a row boat is ordinarily for the jury.[86] Contributory negligence

75. In action for injuries to stevedore by breaking of rope, held not to show that rope was furnished by vessel, and nonsuit properly granted. West v. Brakelow S. S. Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 888.

76. Where bulkhead in coal barge was faulty, and defects could have been readily discovered by master by inspection, but he directed one bin to be unloaded before the other, in consequence of which bulkhead collapsed under the pressure of the coal in the full bin and injured stevedores, held that such injuries were attributable to negligence of master, for which owner was responsible, in absence of contributory negligence. The Harry Hudson Smith [C. C. A.] 142 F. 724. Vessel being under no obligation to light that section of the hold where libelant was injured until its representatives were notified that men unloading ore were ready to go to work there, held that she was not guilty of negligence, it not appearing that there was any unreasonable delay in furnishing lights after they were called for. The Santiago [C. C. A.] 137 F. 323, rvg. 131 F. 383. Claimant held not negligent in failing to provide a safe place for laborer unloading ore to work, it not appearing that latter was bound to go into the hold until customary lights were furnished, and the evidence showing that if he was ordered to do so it was by his foreman and not by anyone representing the vessel. Id.

77. See, also, Independent Contractors, 5 C. L. 1782. West v. Brakelow S. S. Co. [Ga.] 52 S. E. 888.

78. Longshoreman's contributory negligence in needlessly and recklessly climbing about on ore piles in hold of vessel while waiting for lights held the proximate cause of his injury. The Santiago [C. C. A.] 137 F. 323, rvg. 131 F. 383.

79. Carlson v. Comeric Co., 140 F. 109.

80. Carlson v. Comeric Co., 140 F. 109. Vessel held not liable for death of employe in charge of tackle due to breaking of hook from overloading, it not appearing that it resulted from any negligence of the owners in supplying and maintaining tackle. Id.

81. The Elton [C. C. A.] 142 F. 367, rvg. 131 F. 562. Where winchman so furnished acted under immediate orders of master stevedore, held that he was a fellow-servant of a stevedore, and ship was not responsible for injury to latter due to winchman's negligence. Id. Evidence held to show due care in selection of winchman. Id.

82. Will not preclude recovery for his death where he was not personally negligent. The Saginaw, 139 F. 906.

83. Are not precluded from recovering more than half the damages otherwise recoverable. The Saginaw, 139 F. 906.

84. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825.

85. Act of passenger in so doing held not a proximate contributing cause of her death resulting from collision with tug running at immoderate speed. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825.

86. Direction of verdict for defendant held error. Klutt v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 394, rvg. 133 F. 1002.

on the part of plaintiff is no defense if defendant discovered, or by the exercise of ordinary care might have discovered, the exposed situation of plaintiff in time, by the exercise of ordinary care and diligence, to have averted the effect of plaintiff's negligence and avoided the injury which happened.[87]

The exercise of a reasonable care by a wharf owner toward those who come upon the structure by his implied invitation demands the use on his part of appliances which shall not be so defective as to be dangerous to such visitors.[88] The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur applies where one who has entered on the wharf with the sanction of a steamship company is injured by the breaking of a hawser used by the company's servants in bringing a vessel alongside the wharf.[89] One who, in going upon a vessel, unnecessarily uses a temporary gangway, used in unloading cargo, instead of a passenger gangway of which he has knowledge, assumes the risk, and the vessel cannot be held liable for injury received by him in falling into the water.[90]

The only right of action for death due to collision is that given by state statutes,[91] which must be applied in admiralty in the same manner as in suits in the state courts, and any defense is available which would be a bar in such courts.[92] The Federal courts will be governed in the measure of damages by analogy to the decisions of the highest state court under similar circumstances.[93] Mortality tables prepared for life insurance purposes are of little value in determining the duration of life in such cases.[94]

In a suit in personam for damages for tort, ownership of the vessel must, of course, be proved.[95]

In enforcing a lien given by the general maritime law, courts of admiralty are not governed by limitations prescribed by state statutes giving similar liens.[96]

87. Held question for jury whether, by employing proper lookout, defendant's tug could have discovered rowboat in time to have avoided running it down. Klutt v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 394, rvg. 133 F. 1003.

88, 89. Duhme v. Hamburg-American Packet Co., 94 N. Y. S. 1102.

90. Tally clerk who did not go upon ship for any purpose connected with such gangway. The Marie, 137 F. 448.

91. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825. State laws giving right of action for death by wrongful act controls, where negligent act occurs on great lakes within jurisdiction of a state. Chicago Transit Co. v. Campbell, 110 Ill. App. 366.

92. Contributory negligence a good defense in action based on La. Civ. Code, art. 2315. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825.

93. In case of death of one of her citizens on river within her borders. $4,000 allowed. Quinette v. Bisso [C. C. A.] 136 F. 825. This rule requires only that measure of damages should be determined by the law of the place, and while admiralty courts will follow ordinary methods in assessing damages which they would instruct a jury to adopt, verdicts of juries in particular cases cannot be regarded as precedents. The Saginaw, 139 F. 906. Damages recoverable for death of various members of crew in collision determined. Id. Claim for damages in name of administratrix, but based on state statute giving right of recovery to widow, held sufficient to properly present the claims where it appeared that she was also widow, and amendment making claim in that capacity properly allowed. Id. Damages for death in collision increased. The San Rafael [C. C. A.] 141 F. 270.

94. Held error for commissioner to accept them absolutely, particularly where deceased was a colored person. The Saginaw, 139 F. 906.

95. In suit for injuries to lighters resulting from negligence in unloading vessel, evidence held to establish prima facie case of ownership in defendant. Carlson v. White Star S. S. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 838. Variance as to word "The" in defendant's corporate name held not to warrant reversal. Id. A copy of the last enrollment of a vessel, duly certified by the collector of customs, is prima facie evidence of ownership. Vincent v. Soper Lumber Co., 113 Ill. App. 463. Proof of ownership shifts the burden of proving that the vessel was not under the control of those shown to be its owners when the injury complained of occurred. Action for death by wrongful act of one shoveling coal on a barge. Id. In action for damages to canal boat caused by alleged negligence of captain of a barge claimed to belong to defendants, evidence held insufficient to show that he was the owner and employed the captain, it being merely to the effect that it was owned by the "S. Transportation Co." Warn v. Starin, 95 N. Y. S. 550.

96. Limitation of one year prescribed by Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 813, held not applicable to libel for personal injuries due to collision. The San Rafael [C. C. A.] 141 F. 270, rvg. 134 F. 749.

Where there is nothing exceptional in the case, they will, however, be governed by the analogies of common-law limitation.[97]

SIGNATURES; SIMILITER; SIMULTANEOUS ACTIONS, see latest topical index.

SLAVES.

The condition of peonage [98] is one of compulsory service based on the indebtedness of the peon to the master,[99] and the 13th amendment forbids such service, whether created by contract, criminal force, municipal ordinance, state law, or otherwise.[1] Under a statute making it an offense to hold, arrest, or return, etc., any person to peonage, a master who arrests a former servant on a criminal charge for the purpose of releasing him on condition that he returns to him and works out a debt, and thus procures his return, is guilty of peonage.[2] Laws punishing the obtaining of money or property on a fraudulent promise to perform labor do not contravene the peonage act.[3]

Slave marriages, their offspring, and inheritance.[4]—In North Carolina the statute merely legitimatizes slave children [5] enabling them to inherit from both parents [6] but not from collaterals,[7] nor can a legitimatized child inherit through an illegitimate mother from lineals or collaterals.[8] The provision that illegitimates shall be considered as legitimates as between themselves and their estates shall descend accordingly does not apply except when they have the same mother.[9] Under a statute legitimatizing slave marriages continued after the war and until the act took effect, the fact that the slave had left another slave wife prior to the subsequent marriage does not effect the legitimacy of the offspring of the marriage so legitimatized,[10] nor was the legitimacy affected by the fact that the man left the woman after the act took effect,[11] and the secret intention of one of the parties at the beginning of the new relation is not material.[12] A legitimatized child of one of the parents of an illegitimate slave child cannot inherit from such child.[13] Under a statute legitimatizing the issue of customary marriages of negroes, the evidence of the marriage, though slight, will be held sufficient after a long lapse of time,[14] and the marriage is not invalidated because of failure to appear before the clerk of the county court and make declaration as required by the statute.[15]

SLEEPING CARS; SOCIETIES, see latest topical index.

97. Two years' period of limitation, prescribed by Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 339, for actions for personal injuries. The San Rafael [C. C. A.] 141 F. 270, rvg. 134 F. 749. Libelant held not guilty of laches. Id.

98. See 4 C. L. 1494.

99, 1. In re Peonage Charge, 138 F. 686.

2. Sections 1990, 5526, Rev. St. (Comp. St. 1901, pp. 1666, 3715). In re Peonage Charge, 138 F. 686.

3. And a party charged and held under such law is not entitled to release on habeas corpus. Towsend v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 293. Act approved Aug. 15, 1903 (Acts 1903, p. 90), held not to contravene art. 1, § 1, p. 17, of the constitution of Georgia, or to violate the constitution of the United States. Id.

4. See 4 C. L. 1494.

5, 6, 7, 8, 9. Code § 1281, rules 9, 10, 13. Legitimized child held not entitled to inherit from the son of her father's illegitimate slave sister. Bettis v. Avery [N. C.] 52 S. E. 584.

10. Act March 10, 1866 (Laws 1866, p. 99, c. 40). Nelson v. Hunter [N. C.] 53 S. E. 439.

11. Nelson v. Hunter [N. C.] 53 S. E. 439. 439.

12. Evidence as to intention held properly excluded on question of inheritance of property. Nelson v. Hunter [N. C.] 53 S. E. 439.

13. Slaves had child before the war. Mother died. Father had child by another slave which child was subsequently legitimatized. Latter could not inherit. Johnson v. Shepherd [Ala.] 39 So. 223.

14. Under Act Feb. 14, 1866 (Meyer's Supp. p. 734), evidence was held sufficient that some time in the 50's the marriage was announced and that witness afterwards saw the parties act as husband and wife, although other members of the family did not regard plaintiff as kinsman. Hardin v. Hardin, 27 Ky. L. R. 899, 87 S. W. 284.

15. Hardin v. Hardin, 27 Ky. L. R. 899, 87 S. W. 284.

SODOMY.[16]

Inducing a seven year old boy to insert his privates in the mouth of the accused is the crime against nature and not the crime of taking improper liberties with the privates of a minor.[17] An information, not in the language of the statute, must charge facts which plainly and unequivocally show the nature of the crime committed,[18] and the evidence must show in proof of bestiality that there was a copulation with the beast.[19] An averment that defendant copulated with a "sow" sufficiently describes the character of the animal.[20]

Spanish Land Grants; Special Interrogatories to Jury; Special Jury; Special Verdict, see latest topical index.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

§ 1. Nature and propriety of remedy in general.[21]—The remedy of specific performance is strictly equitable. It is not a matter of right.[22] The granting or withholding of it is a matter of discretion to be exercised upon a consideration of the circumstances of each particular case,[23] but a chancellor has no arbitrary discretion to deny the relief,[24] and where all the elements which justify the relief are made to appear, it should be awarded as a matter of right.[25] The specific performance of an unconscionable contract,[26] or one procured by fraud,[27] deceit, or trickery,[28] unless ratified,[29] or one made by an incompetent party,[30] will not be decreed, but that the contract imposed a greater burden on the defendant than he anticipated

16. See 4 C. L. 1494.

17. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 4591, 4591a. Means v. State, 125 Wis. 650, 104 N. W. 815.

18. An information charging that defendant did "commit the crime against nature with and upon one Frank Derby by having carnal knowledge of the body of said Frank Derby" does not charge a crime in that it fails to allege that Frank Derby was a male. People v. Carroll [Cal. App.] 81 P. 680.

19. Evidence held insufficient to show copulation. Langford v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 11, 89 S. W. 830.

20. Langford v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 11, 89 S. W. 830.

21. See 4 C. L. 1495.

22. Thomas v. Gottlieb Bauern Schmidt Strans Brewing Co. [Md.] 62 A. 633. Dulaney v. Devries [Md.] 62 A. 743. Where the right to the remedy is doubtful, Rev. Prob. Code § 259, provides that the probate court shall dismiss the suit without prejudice to the right to proceed in the circuit court. Hartshorn v. Smith [S. D.] 104 N. W. 467.

23. Somerville v. Coppage [Md.] 61 A. 318; Sutton v. Miller, 219 Ill. 462, 76 N. E. 838; Jones v. Barnes, 105 App. Div. 287, 94 N. Y. S. 695. Silberschmidt v. Silberschmidt, 112 Ill. App. 58. The right of a purchaser of land to a specific performance against the vendor depends in each case on the facts peculiar to such case. Gibson v. Honnett, 72 Ark. 412, 82 S. W. 838.

24. He may exercise his discretion only where the facts are doubtful or the contract or its terms are so uncertain that injustice may arise. Ullsperger v. Meyer, 217 Ill. 262, 75 N. E. 482.

25. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Brubaker, 217 Ill. 462, 75 N. E. 523.

26. Jennings v. Bethel, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 245.

27. A fraudulent contract for the sale of land will not be enforced. Wolford v. Steele, 27 Ky. L. R. 1177, 87 S. W. 1071.

28. Representation not in itself fraudulent but dependent for its accomplishment on bad faith. Miller v. Fulmer, 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 106.

29. A contract ratified after discovery of fraud inducing it may be specifically enforced. Urbansky v. Shirmer, 97 N. Y. S. 577.

30. The grace of the court which prompts enforcement of specific performance of a contract should not be extended, when in addition to inadequacy of consideration there appears to have been a delusion on the part of the seller with reference to property values, and the circumstances compel the belief that at the time of the transaction he was not of sound mind. Stroppel v. Plageman, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 501.

does not preclude the relief.[31] Specific performance will not be decreed of a contract which on account of mistake does not accurately express the terms agreed upon,[32] or one which a party did not intend to make and would not have entered into had he understood its true effect.[33] A contract which is fair and just and certain in its terms, and for the nonperformance of which it would be impossible to estimate money damages, may be specifically enforced,[34] and the fact that a contract stipulates liquidated damages in case of failure to perform does not preclude the remedy if such provision is intended merely to secure performance.[35] The relief may be granted to avoid multiplicity of suits which would be vexatious, expensive, and would not furnish adequate relief.[36] The remedy will be denied if it would work great injury to one party and do the other comparatively little good,[37] and will not be decreed where the complainant has parted with nothing and no irreparable damage is suffered and no fraud is inflicted upon him, and he is in statu quo at the commencement of the suit,[38] or where the party against whom it is sought is incapable of performing,[39] or where it is impossible to comply with the

31. Where one conveyed his interest in land which had been sold under execution under an agreement that the purchaser should redeem, pay the seller an annuity, and reconvey a part when the income paid incumbrances, the purchaser was not relieved of his obligation to reconvey such part because he was compelled to purchase an outstanding title of which he had no notice. Clutter v. Strange [Wash.] 82 P. 1028.

32. Contract to convey land. Somerville v. Coppage [Md.] 61 A. 318. It may be shown by parol that through a mistake of either or both of the parties that a writing does not express the real agreement or that the agreement was entered into through mistake as to its subject-matter or terms. Somerville v. Coppage [Md.] 61 A. 318. Not a contract entered into through misrepresentation of one party or misapprehension of the other. Cowan v. Curran, 216 Ill. 598, 75 N. E. 322. That one through an honest mistake not attributable to his own negligence thought he was buying more land than his agreement covers, is a defense. Cawley v. Jean [Mass.] 75 N. E. 614. A contract for the sale of land entered into under a mutual misapprehension as to the title will not be. Hay v. Kirk, 116 Ill. App. 45. Evidence sufficient to show that there was no mistake in the execution of a contract. Clutten v. Strange [Wash.] 82 P. 1028. Evidence insufficient to show that a stipulation in a lease giving the lessee an option to purchase was inserted through mistake. Thomas v. Gottlieb Bauern Schmidt Straus Brewing Co. [Md.] 62 A. 633. A reviewing court will not disturb a finding involving specific performance unless it is made to appear that the finding was based upon an error or misapprehension. Stroppel v. Plageman, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 501.

33. Somerville v. Coppage [Md.] 61 A. 318. Thomas v. Gottlieb Bauern-Schmidt Straus Brewing Co. [Md.] 62 A. 633.

34. Contracts held enforceable: Agreement in a deed of a right of way to repair and renew a retaining wall, along the line of the grantor's lot. Flege v. Covington & Elevated Ry. & Transfer & Bridge Co. [Ky.] 91 S. W. 738. An executory contract for the conveyance of land. Lighton v. Syracuse, 48 Misc. 134, 96 N. Y. S. 692. Where a contract is definite and complete and the vendee could have compelled performance, the vendor may compel the acceptance of his deed and payment of the purchase price. Migatz v. Stieglitz [Ind.] 77 N. E. 400.

A contract by a city for the purchase of land properly executed pursuant to a resolution of the council is specifically enforceable against the city. Lighton v. Syracuse, 48 Misc. 134, 96 N. Y. S. 692. A contract by which one agreed, in consideration of a commission and the extinguishment of a liability, to purchase for another certain land and take title for him, is enforceable at the election of the beneficiary though the purchase was at an excessive price. Kelly v. Keith [Ark.] 90 S. W. 150. One who purchases an interest in the profits of a real estate transaction and receives as the only evidence of his interest a receipt, may compel a formal assignment of his share though there can be no severance until twenty-five years later when the contract is closed. Dilworth v. Nicola [Pa.] 62 A. 909. Complaint for performance of a contract to sell land setting up a wholly complete contract duly executed by the plaintiff's agents is good. Campbell v. Lombardo [Ala.] 39 So. 573. A contract for the sale of land selected in lieu of land within a forest reservation is capable of specific enforcement, the selection having an inchoate, equitable right which would ripen into good title on the approval of the commissioner of the land office. Farnum v. Clarke [Cal.] 84 P. 166.

35. Koch v. Streuter, 218 Ill. 546, 75 N. E. 1049.

36. Contract by a lessee railroad company to run its trains over the roads of the lessor for a term of nine hundred and ninty-nine years and pay rental on a wheelage basis, held enforceable in equity. Grand Trunk W. R. Co. v. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 785.

37. Where to compel a telephone company to comply with the terms of an ordinance requiring it to furnish service at specified rates would force it into bankruptcy. Maryland Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Charles Simons' Sons Co. [Md.] 63 A. 314.

38. Howes v. Barmon [Idaho] 81 P. 48.

39. An agreement by the owner of a city block to replat it so as to leave more room controlling inducement of the contract though such fact was not referred to in the contract,[40] but the mere fact that the contract is improvident is not ground for denying the relief.[41] The basis of equitable interference is the lack of a complete and adequate remedy at law,[42] and if the remedy at law is adequate,[43] or if the legal remedy of damages is all that can be decreed,[44] it will not lie, but that a purchaser may have an action at law for the purchase money does not preclude the remedy.[45] Specific performance may be enforced by injunction,[46] though it does not appear that complainant will suffer damage by reason of the breach.[47] A bill for an injunction, the purpose of which is to enforce performance of a contract, is governed by the rules applicable to a bill for specific performance.[48] If time is of the essence of the contract,[49] or if the parties have expressly so treated it, it will not be specifically enforced regardless of the time limit,[50] but where time is not of the essence it may be enforced after the time prescribed if failure to do so within such period is the fault of the defendant.[51] Where a party elects to pursue his remedy at law for damages he cannot thereafter sue for specific performance,[52] but that complainant brings an action for damages which he had no right to bring for a street cannot be enforced after he has parted with his title to a part of the land. Boone v. Graham, 215 Ill. 511, 74 N. E. 559.

40. Where immediate possession was the controlling inducement and it was subsequently found that possession could not be had for a year. Somerville v. Coppage [Md.] 61 A. 318.

41. Specific performance of a contract to convey a mine cannot be defeated on the ground that the purchaser made but slight improvements, where he did considerable work and discovered valuable veins of ore in a short time, because the seller had spent a fortune without developing ore in paying quantities. Finlen v. Heinze, 32 Mont. 354, 80 P. 918.

42. Contention that plaintiff had an adequate remedy at law held without foundation. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 137 F. 435. Complaint in a suit for the enforcement of a contract for the sale of corporate stock which would give complainant control of the corporation held to show that there was no adequate remedy at law. Sherwood v. Wallin [Cal. App.] 82 P. 566. A finding that defendant had not surrendered certain shares of corporate stock evidenced by a certain certificate is sustained where it appears that defendant has the same stock evidenced by a different certificate. Sherwood v. Wallin [Cal. App.] 82 P. 566.

43. Where the sole purpose of the bill is to have the contract performed and the defendant is solvent. Hazelton v. Miller, 25 App. D. C. 337. Where the breach can be compensated by damages and the amount of such damages is readily ascertainable. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Texas Short Line R. Co. [Tex.] 90 S. W. 863. An agreement not to assert a money demand and not to plead limitations as to another in consideration of a devise of property is not specifically enforceable. Flood v. Templeton [Cal.] 83 P. 148.

44. Where a purchaser of land, knowing that the vendor has no title and can not convey one, brings an action for specific performance and prays that in case specific performance cannot be had that he have damages, a judgment dismissing the action is proper, since the want of an adequate remedy at law is the basis of the equity jurisdiction for specific performance. Peters v. Van Horn, 37 Wash. 550, 79 P. 1110.

45. Migatz v. Stieglitz [Ind.] 77 N. E. 400.

46. By enjoining the removal by a railroad of its offices and shops from a place where it has contracted to maintain them. City of Tyler v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. [Tex.] 91 S. W. 1. The violation of a contract not to engage in a certain business, deliberately entered into, will be enjoined. Camors-McConnell Co. v. McConnell, 140 F. 412.

47. Contract not to engage in a particular business for a limited time. Andrews v. Kingsbury, 112 Ill. App. 518.

48. Bill to enforce a telephone company, by restraining it from charging higher rates, to comply with an ordinance specifying rates to be charged and to enjoin it from refusing service so long as the ordinance rate was paid or tendered. Maryland Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Charles Simons' Sons Co. [Md.] 63 A. 314.

49. Where an option contract for one year specified that the vendor might incumber the property, the vendee was bound to take subject to the incumbrance within the time specified. Bennett v. Giles [Ill.] 77 N. E. 214.

50. Vendor who was not able to perform within the time limit held not entitled to specific performance. North Ave. Land Co. v. Baltimore [Md.] 63 A. 115.

51. Vendor failed to perfect his title within the time prescribed for paying the balance of the purchase money. Hobart v. Frederiksen [S. D.] 105 N. W. 168.

52. When a vendee objected to the abstracts and after several attempts by the vendor to cure defects stated that he would not accept a conveyance and requested payment of liquidated damages, stipulated for credit to be given the vendor for rent while possession was had. Sutton v. Miller, 219 Ill. 462, 76 N. E. 838. An action for damages and a bill for performance cannot be maintained at the same time or successively. Pyle v. Crebs, 112 Ill. App. 480.

is not an election of remedies barring a suit for specific performance.[53] The right to the remedy may be waived [54] or lost by laches.[55] Long delay is only excused by clear proof that the contract existed and where other rights have not intervened.[56] A contract under seal is enforceable only against the parties to it.[57] A grantee of the premises who takes subsequent to and with notice of a contract to convey to another may be compelled to perform by executing a deed to the person entitled,[58] and he may be required to perform the conditions of a contract relative to the premises of which he had notice.[59] This rule applies to one who takes by operation of law.[60] Specific performance of a contract relating to land cannot be had against a subsequent bona fide grantee not a party to the contract.[61] In New York it will not be decreed against the assignee of a vendee.[62]

§ 2. Subject-matter of enforceable contract.[63]—A contract relative to personal property having no quoted or ascertainable value and of peculiar value to the person entitled to it will be specifically enforced,[64] but not if the breach can be fully compensated in damages.[65] A contract for a continuing personal service

53. Wilson v. Knapp [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 917, 106 N. W. 695.

54. Where after the making of a contract for the conveyance of land it develops that the vendor's title is defective and the purchaser with full knowledge of all the facts unconditionally refuses to take the only title the seller can convey, he is precluded from thereafter seeking the remedy. Riley v. Allen [Kan.] 81 P. 186. That defendant assents to a trial by a referee is not a waiver of his right to raise the question that there exists an adequate remedy at law. Butler v. Wright, 103 App. Div. 463, 93 N. Y. S. 113.

55. In the absence of other circumstances a suit is not barred by laches if brought within the period of limitation. Cantwell v. Crawley [Mo.] 86 S. W. 251. Evidence insufficient to show as a matter of law that complainant had forfeited his right to the remedy by delay and conduct. Brownson v. Perry [Kan.] 87 P. 197. Where one did not seek enforcement of a contract by which a railroad company agreed to build a depot on his land for sixteen years, during the greater part of which period a depot had been maintained a short distance away and had become an important shipping point, relief was denied. Thurmond v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 697.

56. A contract by which a mother agreed to convey land to her son but which he did not attempt to enforce will be enforced at the suit of his widow only on clear proof that he was entitled to a conveyance and that his possession of the land excused his laches and was such as to constitute notice to third persons. Sayer v. Humphrey, 216 Ill. 426, 75 N. E. 170.

57. Not as against the real party who had procured another to take the legal title for him. Van Allen v. Peabody, 97 N. Y. S. 1119.

58. A complaint is not objectionable as failing to state a cause of action because showing that the land had been conveyed to another where it appears that such grantee took with notice and is made a party to the suit. Meaney v. Way, 108 App. Div. 290, 95 N. Y. S. 745.

59. An agreement whereby a railway company acquired a right of way over lands on the condition that certain crossings should be maintained, which has been recognized and complied with for fifty years, will be enforced as against a purchaser at foreclosure sale of the road. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Brubaker, 217 Ill. 462, 75 N. E. 523. A provision in a deed for a passageway between premises conveyed and reserved, one-half on the land of each, is enforceable against a grantee with notice of the servient tenament by the owner of the dominant tenament. Bailey v. Agawam Nat. Bank [Mass.] 76 N. E. 449.

60. One who takes by operation of law real property subject to an executed oral contract for a sale of all the sand thereon may be compelled to convey the right held under such contract. Brandon v. West [Nev.] 83 P. 327.

61. An agreement by the owner of a block on selling lots to replat the block so as to leave more ground for a street will not be enforced against a grantee of an intervening lot. Boone v. Graham, 215 Ill. 511, 74 N. E. 559.

62. The court says that the principle of the decision is that the acceptance of the assignment does not place him in privity of contract as to the assignor's promise to perform. Forbes v. Reynard, 46 Misc. 154, 93 N. Y. S. 1097.

63. See 4 C. L. 1497.

64. Where an owner of corporate stock sells it with an option to repurchase. Eichbaum v. Sample [Pa.] 62 A. 837.

65. Specific delivery of chattels will not be decreed unless it appears that they are of peculiar value and character, the loss of which cannot be compensated in damages. Graham v. Herlong [Fla.] 39 So. 111. A contract to sell corporate stock which complainant has no special interest in acquiring will not be specifically enforced simply because such stock is not listed on the market so that its value may not be readily established. Clements v. Sherwood-Dunn, 108 App. Div. 327, 95 N. Y. S. 766. A contract relative to corporate stock will not be specifically enforced merely because it is not listed or offered for sale so that the market value may be readily established if the value can be otherwise ascertained. Ehrich v. Grant, 97 N. Y. S. 600. The mere fact that corporate stock which is the subject of the contract has no market value is not sufficient to give equity jurisdiction. Butler v. Wright, 103 App. Div. 463, 93 N. Y. S. 113.

cannot be enforced.[66] A contract to pledge [67] or mortgage property to secure a debt [68] may be enforced, though the Alabama court says that to warrant such relief it must appear that the debtor is insolvent or that there are other circumstances of equitable cognizance.[69] An agreement to make a testamentary disposition of property [70] in consideration of services may be enforced [71] providing the services are fully performed and cannot be compensated in money.[72]

§ 3. Requisites of contract. A. Necessity of contract.[73]—To entitle one to specific performance a completed contract must exist,[74] hence an unaccepted offer cannot be enforced,[75] nor can a contract made by an agent without authority,[76] nor one not based on a consideration.[77] Where a contract contemplated ratification by the court and was set aside by it, the vendor cannot subsequently compel specific performance on the ground that ratification was unnecessary.[78]

(§ 3) B. Mutuality of contract.[79]—A contract in order to be capable of specific enforcement must be mutually binding on the parties,[80] and the burden is on one seeking specific performance to show such fact.[81] A contract for the sale

66. No mutuality of remedy. Taussig v. Corbin [C. C. A.] 142 F. 660.

67. An agreement by one to pledge his estate to a trustee to secure certain creditors will be. Morris v. McCutcheon [Pa.] 62 A. 982.

68. Where one pays the debt of another on faith of his promise to execute a mortgage to secure the amount so paid, equity will enforce performance of the promise. Lowe v. Walker [Ark.] 91 S. W. 22.

69. A contract to give a mortgage on real estate will not be specifically enforced unless it appear that the debtor is insolvent or that there are other circumstances of equitable cognizance or that the remedy at law is inadequate. Brown v. E. Van Winkle Gin & Machine Works [Ala.] 39 So. 243.

70. An agreement to dispose by will of a definite part or the whole of the promisor's estate in a particular manner may be. Schaadt v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. [Cal. App.] 84 P. 249.

71. A contract by which a decedent agreed to purchase a house and lot to belong to another at his death if he would live there and make a home for decedent during his life will be enforced after his death where there has been a compliance with its terms. Ayers v. Short [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 783, 105 N. W. 1115.

72. An agreement to make a testamentary disposition of property in consideration for services will not be enforced until the services are fully performed, and not then if they can be compensated in money. Hayden v. Collins [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1120.

73. See 4 C. L. 1500.

74. See Contracts, 5 C. L. 664. Where one's relation to a contract is in his capacity as agent, no contractual relation exists after the termination of his agency. Taussig v. Corbin [C. C. A.] 142 F. 660. An offer by the holder of an option to purchase on terms different from those stated in the option will not be enforced though he has paid a portion of the price and subsequently offers to meet the terms of the option. Henry v. Black [Pa.] 63 A. 250.

75. Evidence insufficient to show that a contract for an option had been entered into. Couch v. McCoy, 138 F. 696.

76. A contract for the sale of real estate made by an agent without authority will not be. Trau v. Sloan [Pa.] 62 A. 984. Where the contract was made by an agent, his authority must clearly appear. Fay v. Sullins [Okl.] 81 P. 426.

77. Schaadt v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. [Cal. App.] 84 P. 249. A contract to give attorneys one-half of certain land to conduct litigation for its recovery and a subsequent contract to give them the other half in case it was recovered. Lipscomb v. Adams [Mo.] 91 S. W. 1046. Contract for the sale of real estate showing that $500 had been paid, held to be based on a good and sufficient consideration. Winch v. Edmunds [Colo.] 83 P. 632.

78. North Avenue Land Co. v. Baltimore [Md.] 63 A. 115.

79. See 4 C. L. 1501.

80. A naked promise from which the promisor received no benefit will not be enforced though he encouraged the promisee to make expenditures for his own benefit. Swan Oil Co. v. Linder, 123 Ga. 550, 51 S. E. 622. A written statement that an unaccepted agreement to convey land by the signer and two other persons did not mean what it stated will not be specifically enforced. Marvel v. Fralinger [N. J. Err. & App.] 63 A. 166. Not by a purchaser whose identity was concealed when the contract was not binding between the nominal parties and was rescinded by the vendor before he was appraised of the purchaser's claims. Cowan v. Curran, 216 Ill. 598, 75 N. E. 322. A written instrument certifying that the owner of land has agreed to sell it to a certain person for a certain price and containing a statement that "it is further noted" that such person is to pay the price, the time of conveyance and payment being fixed, is a mutually binding contract (Brownson v. Perry [Kan.] 81 P. 197), and where the person named as purchaser accepts and acts upon it, his omission to sign it is immaterial. The acceptance constitutes an execution (Brownson v. Perry [Kan.] 81 P. 197). Contract for the sale of real estate upon which $500 had been paid, balance payable in thirty days at delivery of deed or execution of a mortgage to secure it, or on failure to do so the $500 to be forfeited as liquidated damages, is not a unilateral contract. Winch v. Edmonds [Colo.] 83 P. 632.

81. One who seeks to compel legatees to release the charge of their legacy on certain property alleging that it belonged to him unof land is mutual though verbally accepted by the vendee.[82] On acceptance of an option within the time specified the contract becomes mutual.[83] A vendor may enforce a contract, though he did not have title at the time it was made, where such fact is known to both parties and he acquires title before the time for performance arrives.[84] A complainant by tendering performance and commencing suit for specific performance estops himself from claiming that he is not bound,[85] but the institution of a suit for specific performance does not ratify and make binding on the vendor a contract entered into by an agent of the vendee who had no authority to act in the premises.[86] A contract to sell by one who holds the legal title in trust for another is not mutual,[87] but becomes mutual if the contract is signed by the equitable owner.[88] An option to a lessee to purchase is enforceable by him after he accepts,[89] and when he takes possession under the lease he may enforce it though not signed by him.[90]

(§ 3) C. Definiteness of contract.[91]—A contract to be capable of specific enforcement must be definite and certain in its terms,[92] as to its subject-matter[93] der a parol contract. Haberman v. Kaufer [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 976.

82. Ullsperger v. Meyer, 127 Ill. 262, 75 N. E. 482.

83. Jones v. Barnes, 105 App. Div. 287, 94 N. Y. S. 695. Where a party seeking enforcement of an option contract has performed all terms required to be performed by him, specific performance cannot be refused on the ground of want of mutuality. Finlen v. Heinze, 32 Mont. 354, 80 P. 918.

84. Day v. Mountin [C. C. A.] 137 F. 756.

NOTE. Upon the question of mutuality of remedy at the time a contract is executed there is some apparent conflict of authority. In some of the text books statements may be found to the effect that, unless there is mutuality of remedy at the time the contract is made, specific performance will not be decreed. Fry on Specific Performance of Contracts, 214; Bisp. Eq. 437; Eaton, Eq. 548. And it has been so held in several cases. Boucher v. Vanbuskirk, 2 A. K. Marsh [Ky.] Hutchinson v. McNutt, 1 Ohio, 14; State v. Baum, 6 Ohio, 383; Cabeen v. Gordon, 1 Hill, Eq. [S. C.] 51; Norris v. Fox, 46 F. 406; Farrer v. Nash, 35 Beav. [N. C.] 167; Bronson v. Cahill, Fed. Cas. No. 1,926.

The reason given for the rule in most of these cases is that such a transaction will not be sanctioned by a court of equity because it is a mere speculation, and one who speculates upon that for which he has no contract, or the means of acquiring it, is not a bona fide contractor. In Eaton's Eq. 58, it is said: "But if the vendor had no title at the time the contract was executed, equity will not interfere to compel specific performance of the contract, even if the vendor subsequently acquires a title. Such a transaction is speculative, and the vendor is not a bona fide contractor." Other courts have seemingly adopted the rule that a contract for the sale of real estate which the vendor does not own is enforceable by specific performance whenever, at the time the contract is to be performed, there is a mutuality of remedy. Easton v. Montgomery, 90 Cal. 307, 27 P. 280, 25 Am. St. Rep. 123; Burks v. Davies, 85 Cal. 114, 24 P. 613, 20 Am. St. Rep. 213; 1 Chit. Cont. (11th Am. Ed.) 431; Dresel v. Jordan, 104 Mass. 407; Townshend v. Goodfellow, 40 Minn. 312, 41 N. W. 1056, 12 Am. St. Rep. 736, 3 L. R. A. 739; Smith v. Cansler, 83 Ky. 371; Hepburn v. Auld, 9 U. S. 262, 3 Law. Ed. 96. An examination of the cases last cited will show that in many if not all of them the vendor's title was defective only and that he had some interest in the lands sought to be conveyed, though he had not good title at the time the contract was executed.—See Day v. Mountin [C. C. A.] 137 F. 756.

85. Jones v. Barnes, 105 App. Div. 287, 94 N. Y. S. 695.

86. Cowan v. Curran, 216 Ill. 598, 75 N. E. 322.

87, 88. Kuhn v. Eppstein, 219 Ill. 154, 76 N. E. 145.

89. After a lessee notifies his lessor of his intention to avail himself of an option in the lease to purchase, the stipulation granting the option becomes binding on both. Thomas v. Gottleib Bauern-Schmidt Straus Brewing Co. [Md.] 62 A. 633.

90. After a lessee goes in possession under a lease giving him an option to purchase, he may enforce the option though he did not sign the lease. White v. Weaver [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 25.

91. See 4 C. L. 1502.

92. Dulaney v. Devries [Md.] 62 A. 743. Contract to dispose by will of the promisor's estate. Schaadt v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. [Cal. App.] 84 P. 249. A provision in a lease that if the party of the first part should conclude to sell the second party should have the first chance to buy is too indefinite, no price or method of ascertaining it being fixed. Folsom v. Harr, 218 Ill. 369, 75 N. E. 987. Specific performance of a contract whereby one advanced money to the trustees of a lunatic to be repaid out of the proceeds of a sale of his lands can be had only on a clear showing that the contract was made; that the contract would have been authorized by the court, and that money was advanced under it. Dulaney v. Devries [Md.] 62 A. 743. Contract held too indefinite and uncertain in the amount to be paid to warrant a decree for performance. Reymond v. Laboudigue [Cal.] 84 P. 189. Contract to form a corporation cannot be enforced where the parties are hostile and the by-laws agreed upon at the time the contract was made do not clearly show the details and terms of the proposed and time of performance,[94] but it is not essential that the time for its completion be specified,[95] nor that terms as to details be incorporated.[96] An immaterial difference between the quantity of land mentioned in the contract and that contained in the tract will not defeat the action when the contract was for a sale of the land in gross.[97] In contracts for the sale of land the description is sufficiently definite if the premises can be identified by the aid of parol evidence.[98]

(§ 3) D. Legality and fairness of contract.[99]—In order to preclude the enforcement of a contract, on the ground that it is in restraint of trade, it must appear to be directly and not merely collaterally connected with such unlawful purpose.[1] A contract in excess of legal right will be enforced where public interests are involved as long as such interests demand it.[2] The contract must be fair, equal, and just in its terms,[3] founded upon an adequate consideration, and free from suspicion as to its bona fides[4] and made by persons of sufficient understanding,[5] and for an act not inhibited by law.[6] Under the rule that it is not available incorporation. Rudiger v. Coleman, 98 N. Y. S. 461. It must be shown by satisfactory proof to be clear, certain, and unambiguous in its terms. Sprague v. Jessup [Or.] 84 P. 802.

93. Where land was not described by section township or range, nor streets by which it was bound, nor could it be located from evidence given by witnesses. Kirkpatrick v. Pettis, 127 Iowa, 611, 103 N. W. 956. Where it is doubtful whether a contract contemplated a sale of a fee or an easement, the conveyance of a fee will not be decreed. Brandon v. West [Nev.] 83 P. 327.

94. Contract not void for indefiniteness as to time of performance. Veum v. Sheeran [Minn.] 104 N. W. 135. A memorandum of a contract for the sale of land which contemplates a partial cash payment, balance on credit but containing no stipulations as to terms of credit or time of making deferred payments, is too indefinite. Buck v. Pond [Wis.] 105 N. W. 909.

95. Where not specified it is not of the essence of the contract and a reasonable time will be presumed. Ullsperger v. Meyer, 217 Ill. 262, 75 N. E. 482.

96. Where all the terms the parties saw fit to incorporate into an agreement are made out by clear and unambiguous proof, specific performance may be decreed though other terms might properly have been incorporated in it. Finlen v. Heinze, 32 Mont. 354, 80 P. 918.

97. Lighton v. Syracuse, 48 Misc. 134, 96 N. Y. S. 632.

98. Description sufficient: Sprague v. Jessup [Or.] 84 P. 802. A description of the land is not too indefinite if it can be made certain by the introduction of parol evidence which does not vary the terms of the contract. Farmer v. Sellers [Ala.] 39 So. 772. If the description is sufficiently definite that the court may by extrinsic evidence determine with certainty what property was intended to be conveyed, the contract may be enforced. Warner v. Marshall [Ind.] 75 N. E. 582. Contract and deed construed in the light of surrounding circumstances held sufficiently clear, definite, and certain to be specifically enforced. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Brubaker, 217 Ill. 462, 75 N. E. 523. Description "a certain fruit farm known as the 'I Fruit Farm' and containing about 199 1-2 acres situated about one and a quarter miles northwest of" a certain town is prima facie a sufficient description. Koch v. Streuter, 218 Ill. 546, 75 N. E. 1049. If the land may be determined from the contract the description is sufficient. McFarland v. Stansifer [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 124. A contract for the sale of land situated on a certain street is presumed to be in the city where the contract is made. Levin v. Dietz, 48 Misc. 593, 96 N. Y. S. 468. Parol evidence is admissible to show the location of each parcel where a contract is for the sale of a tract of land owned by different persons. Morrison v. Hazzard [Tex.] 92 S. W. 33.

Description insufficient: Will not be decreed of a written option to purchase land where the land is so vaguely described that the writing furnishes no key to its identification. Tippins v. Phillips, 123 Ga. 415, 51 S. E. 410.

99. See 4 C. L. 1502.

1. Camors-McConnell Co. v. McConnell, 140 F. 412.

2. Contract by a corporation in violation of its franchise. Seattle Elec. Co. v. Snoqualmie Falls Power Co. [Wash.] 82 P. 713.

Note: Equity will not decree the specific performance of a contract which will compel the doing of or which will assist or give effect to an illegal act (Hanson v. Powers, 8 Dana [Ky.] 91, Pratt v. Adams, 7 Paige [N. Y.] 615, 653), and a contract but partly legal, if inseparable, is on the same footing (Ewing v. Obaldiston 2 Myl. & Cr. 53). But equity will enforce the legal portion of an illegal contract if the contract is severable. Knowles v. Haughton, 8 Ves. 168. In the principal case the illegal stipulation not to serve others would be separable from the agreement to serve the plaintiff (Stewart v. Railway, 39 N. J. Law, 505; Trent on Potteries Co. v. Oliphant, 58 N. J. Eq. 507), and the proper result was reached, particularly as the defendant was a public service corporation but the reasoning of the court seems unsound.—See 6 Col. L. R. 363.

3. Silberschmidt v. Silberschmidt, 112 Ill. App. 58.

4. Thomas v. Gottlieb Bauern-Schmidt Straus Brewing Co. [Md.] 62 A. 633. In the absence of a showing that the consideration agreed upon is inequitable, it is presumed reasonable. Ullsperger v. Meyer, 217 Ill. 262, 75 N. E. 482.

5. A contract by one mentally incapable of contracting with discretion will not be enforced where the vendee took advantage of against one who has not received an adequate consideration, or as to whom the contract is not just, the complainant must show that such conditions did not exist.[7]

(§ 3) E. Necessity of written contract.[8]—A contract within the statute of frauds must be in writing,[9] or evidenced by a memorandum sufficient to satisfy the statute,[10] and that a vendee in a parol contract believed the land to be hers and acted upon such belief until a claim for services rendered in consideration was barred does not entitle her to specific performance.[11] Specific performance of an oral contract to convey[12] or make a gift of land[13] may be decreed if there has been sufficient part performance to withdraw the case from the statute of frauds. Part performance relied upon must be founded on and referable solely to the spe-his condition, especially where payments made under the contract had been returned. Miller v. Tjexhus [S. D.] 104 N. W. 519.

6. Objection that under Civ. Code § 3390, subds. 4, 5, providing that a contract to do an act which the party has no power to lawfully do and an agreement to procure the act or consent of a third person cannot be specifically enforced, held without merit in a proceeding to enforce a contract to locate public lands and procure title for plaintiff. Farnum v. Clarke [Cal.] 84 P. 166.

7. Contract to devise land in consideration of a forbearance to assert a money demand or plead limitations cannot be enforced in the absence of a showing of what the land was worth or that the promisor gained any advantage. Flood v. Templeton [Cal.] 83 P. 148.

8. See 4 C. L. 1503.

9. Must not be within the inhibition of the statute of frauds. Ruff Brewing Co. v. Schanz, 114 Ill. App. 508. Under the rule that a written contract can be altered only by a writing or executed oral contract,—specific performance of a written contract as modified by a subsequent parol agreement, where such subsequent agreement changes the terms of the written contract, cannot be decreed where there has been no part performance. Cughan v. Larson, 13 N. D. 373, 100 N. W. 1088.

10. A memorandum "Received rom A. $100 on said purchase of the property, No. 1031 Milwaukee Ave., at the price of $14,000" may be specifically enforced. Ullsperger v. Meyer, 217 Ill. 262, 75 N. E. 482. Letters and memorandum taken together held to satisfy the statute of frauds. Levin v. Dietz, 48 Misc. 593, 96 N. Y. S. 468.

11. Terry v. Craft [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 396, 87 S. W. 844.

12. Sufficient performance is shown where the vendee goes into possession, makes valuable improvements, and manages the land as if it were his own. White v. Poole [N. H.] 62 A. 494. A parol contract whereby a testator purchased certain land valuable as a stone quarry on specified terms, paid part of the purchase price, and quarried stone the value of which cannot be ascertained, will be. In re Fay's Estate [Pa.] 62 A. 991. Where a portion of the purchase price is paid and the purchaser takes possession. McFarland v. Stansifer [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 124. Possession by the vendee with consent of the vendor is sufficient part performance without improvements or payment of the purchase price. Jomsland v. Wallace [Wash.] 81 P. 1094. Possession under the contract, partial payment, improvement of the land, and preparing it for cultivation. Cross v. Johnston [Ark.] 88 S. W. 945. Where complainant has been in possession, made valuable improvements, and paid a portion of the purchase price, and the parties cannot be placed in statu quo. Wilson v. Knapp [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 917, 106 N. W. 695. Possession of the premises together with payment of a portion of the purchase price and tender of the balance. Sprague v. Jessup [Or.] 83 P. 145. Defendant's ancestor having taken possession of land under a contract binding plaintiff to convey the same, and having made improvements and continued in possession for many years with plaintiff's acquiescense, held that it would be inequitable to refuse specific performance of the contract at the instance of defendants. Neece v. Neece [Va.] 51 S. E. 739. If sufficient part performance of a verbal contract for the sale of land is clearly shown it may be enforced. Jomsland v. Wallace [Wash.] 81 P. 1094. Evidence sufficient to show part performance sufficient to take a parol contract for the sale of land out of the statute of frauds. Veum v. Sheeran [Minn.] 104 N. W. 135.

Contract to devise land in consideration of support is shown where the plaintiff has been in possession under the contract and has fulfilled her part of the agreement. Cherry v. Whalen, 25 App. D. C. 537. An oral contract by a father to convey land to his son in consideration of support is not enforceable unless the son has taken possession under the contract. Reel v. Reel [W. Va.] 52 S. E. 1023. A parol contract to leave property to another in consideration of support which has been fully performed by the party agreeing to furnish the support may be enforced. Russell v. Sharp [Mo.] 91 S. W. 134.

Insufficient performance: Mere possession without making improvements does not entitle a donee, by parol, of land to specific performance. West v. Webster [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 6, 87 S. W. 196. Where pursuant to a parol promise to convey land in consideration of services to be rendered the promisee performs the services and enters into possession of the land, there is no such part performance as will entitle the promisee to specific performance. Terry v. Craft [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 396, 87 S. W. 844. There must be clear proof of a fair contract in order to enforce a parol contract to convey land. Thompson v. Jones [Ala.] 39 So. 983. Part performance not shown. Pence v. Life [Va.] 52 S. E. 257.

13. A parol gift of land when followed by possession and the making of improvements may be enforced. Karren v. Rainey [Utah] 83 P. 333.

cific terms of the agreement.[14] Where possession is relied upon as part performance, it must be notorious, exclusive, continuous, and in pursuance of the contract.[15]

§ 4. Performance by complainant.[16]—One seeking specific performance must show that he has performed or is able and willing to perform all the terms of the contract incumbent on him to perform,[17] and that he has done so within the time prescribed.[18] He must be able to convey the title called for by the contract,[19] and if for sale of a thing it must be merchantable[20] and free from incumbrances if so specified,[21] but where the vendor cannot convey free from incumbrances according to the terms of the contract, the purchaser may have specific performance with a deduction from the purchase price.[22] Mere captious objections to the title will not defeat the suit.[23] In an option contract time is necessarily of the essence of the agreement and a tender of performance must be made within the time specified.[24] Tender of the purchase price is not a condition precedent if the vendor has given

14. Howes v. Barmon [Idaho] 81 P. 48. In order for possession to constitute part performance, it must be shown to have been taken under the contract. Lay v. Lay [Ark.] 87 S. W. 1026.

15. Baldwin v. Baldwin [Kan.] 84 P. 568.

16. See 4 C. L. 1504.

17. A contract for the conveyance of several tracts, all of said tracts to be in one body, will not be enforced at the suit of the vendor who is unable to convey the whole. North Avenue Land Co. v. Baltimore [Md.] 63 A. 115. Where an owner of one of several tracts which a city had an option to purchase knew that it was not the intention of the city to purchase unless the entire tract could be secured, he is not entitled to specific performance as to his tract. Vickers v. Baltimore [Md.] 63 A. 120. The assignee of a contract for electrical power who has failed to procure the equipment required by the terms of the contract cannot enforce it, though the contract required the electric company to keep available for use a specified amount of energy and a covenant to pay for the amount kept available. Hudson River Water Power Co. v. Glens Falls Portland Cement Co., 107 App. Div. 548, 95 N. Y. S. 421. Specific performance of a contract to execute a mortgage to secure the cost of erecting a building will not be decreed where it appears that the building did not conform to the contract but that substantial and structural defects pervaded the work. Flanders v. Rosoff, 97 N. Y. S. 514. Contract by which plaintiff employed defendant to locate government land for him held sufficiently performed by plaintiff to entitle him to maintain the proceeding. Farnum v. Clarke [Cal.] 84 P. 166. One who seeks specific performance on allegations of full performance on his part has the burden of showing that he has fully performed. Flanders v. Rosoff, 97 N. Y. S. 514.

18. Time is not of the essence of a contract for the sale of land under which a considerable portion of the price has been paid and improvements made, and delay can be compensated by payment of interest. McWhorter v. Stein [Ala.] 39 So. 617.

19. A contract for the conveyance of a fee will not be enforced at the suit of the vendor where the only title he has is a government entry without final proofs. Day v. Mountin [C. C. A.] 137 F. 756. Evidence insufficient to show title in the plaintiff. Cawley v. Jean [Mass.] 75 N. E. 614. A vendor cannot compel the vendee to accept a tax title where the statutory requirements as to the sale have not been complied with. Hewitt v. Parsley [Md.] 60 A. 619.

20. Will not be decreed against a vendee where the title is not free from reasonable doubt and all the parties who have a right to be heard on the question are not before the court. Where executors contract to sell and it is doubtful whetner they have power to sell, and the remaindermen who could question the sale are not parties. Salisbury v. Ryaon, 105 App. Div. 445, 94 N. Y. S. 352. A defect in title arising from a question of law involved in the construction of a wil is sufficiently cured by a decision in favor of the validity of such title. Davidson v. Jones, 98 N. Y. S. 265. Where a city was the only person having a legal right to question the title, and action by it was improbable, the title was held marketable. Empire-Realty Corp. v. Sayre, 107 App. Div. 415, 95 N. Y. S. 371.

21. A provision in the deed to the vendor reserving in favor of an adjoining lot the right to keep windows open precludes him from enforcing a contract to sell free from all incumbrances, though a house had been built on the adjoining lot without any windows facing the lot in controversy. Remsen v. Wingert 98 N. Y. S. 388. A purchaser cannot be compelled to perform where the premises are burdened with a restrictive covenant of which he had no notice. Scudder v. Watt, 98 App. Div. 228, 90 N. Y. S. 605. Evidence sufficient to show that a deed of the premises executed by defendant to another before the contract was made was void. Reynolds v. Condon, 110 App. Div. 542, 97 N. Y. S. 1. One who purchases free from incumbrances cannot be compelled to accept a title burdened with an easement. Howell v. Northampton R. Co., 211 Pa. 284, 60 A. 793.

22. Kuhn v. Eppstein, 219 Ill. 154, 76 N. E. 145.

23. Jordan v. Jackson [Neb.] 106 N. W. 999. A vendor who has title by adverse possession may enforce a contract for a sale of the land. Watkins v. Pfeiffer [Ky.] 92 S. W. 562.

24. Evidence sufficient to show a tender within the statute where defendant was absent. Herman v. Winter [S. D.] 105 N. W. 457.

notice that he will not accept it.[25] A vendor may compel performance where he perfects title pending suit.[26] A vendee once released because of the vendor's inability to perform within the time limit cannot be compelled to perform when the vendor subsequently becomes able to.[27]

§ 5. Actions. Jurisdiction.[28]—An action to compel performance of a contract to convey land is one in personam and may be tried wherever jurisdiction of the person of the defendant can be acquired.[29] Where necessary parties are subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal court in an action to compel performance of right of way contracts, it is immaterial that a portion of the property affected is beyond the court's territorial jurisdiction.[30]

Parties.[31]—Only parties to the contract are necessary parties to the suit.[32] All owners are properly made parties to an action to enforce a contract to sell a tract of land owned by different persons.[33]

Defenses.[34]—That defendant is responsible and plaintiff has an adequate remedy at law is no defense,[35] but that the plaintiff has abandoned the contract is.[36] Mere inadequacy of consideration is no defense.[37] Where the vendee agrees to accept subject to the inchoate right of dower in the vendor's wife, her refusal to sign is no defense.[38] Basing a refusal to perform on a specific ground is a waiver of all other grounds.[39] That a vendor who contracted to sell land which he had a contract to purchase, had not paid the entire purchase price is no defense to an action by him against his vendee.[40] The rescission of a resolution of a city council authorizing the purchase of land is no defense to an action to enforce a contract entered into by virtue of it.[41] That a decree for specific performance will require the constant supervision of the court for its enforcement is no reason for denying the relief.[42] Defensive matter stated in a pleading not properly before

Whiteside v. Winans, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 244.

26. A vendor may compel specific performance if tendered a good title, though he perfect title pending the suit. Finnegan v. Summers [Ky.] 91 S. W. 261.

27. North Avenue Land Co. v. Baltimore [Md.] 63 A. 115.

28. See 4 C. L. 1506.

29. Timma v. Timma [Kan.] 82 P. 481.

NOTE: Courts having personal jurisdiction of the parties have frequently exercised jurisdiction to enforce specific performance of contracts by a vendor to convey land in another state or country on the ground that the decree in such cases is in personam and not in rem, and that the vendor may be compelled by process against the person to execute a conveyance which shall be sufficient according to the law of the place where the land is situated to pass title. Montgomery v. U. S., 36 F. 4; Smith v. Davis, 90 Cal. 25; Winn v. Strickland, 34 Fla. 610; Cloud v. Greasley, 125 Ill. 313; Bethell v. Bethell, 92 Ind. 318; Brown v. Desmond, 100 Mass. 267; Davis v. Headley, 22 N. J. Eq. 115; Potter v. Hollister, 45 N. J. Eq. 208; Lindley v. O'Reilly, 50 N. J. L. 636; Sutphen v. Fowler, 9 Palge [N. Y.] 280; Newton v. Bronson, 13 N. Y. 587; Burnley v. Stephenson, 24 Ohio St. 474; Morris v. Hand, 70 Tex. 481. So also, a purchaser may be compelled to perform his contract though the land is situated abroad and the contract was made and was to be performed abroad and the plaintiff is a nonresident. Cleveland v. Burrill, 25 Barb. [N. Y.] 532.—See note to Proctor v. Proctor [Ill.] 69 L. R. A. 681.

30. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 137 F. 435.

31. See 4 C. L. 1507.

32. Lucas v. Milliken, 139 F. 816.

33. Morrison v. Hazzard [Tex.] 92 S. W. 33.

34. See 4 C. L. 1508.

35. Jones v. Barnes, 105 App. Div. 287, 94 N. Y. S. 695.

36. An abandonment of the contract by the vendee is a bar to the remedy as to him. May v. Getty [N. C.] 53 S. E. 75.

37. Ullsperger v. Meyer, 217 Ill. 262, 75 N. E. 482. A contract to convey property in consideration of a promise to care for the grantor during his life may be enforced where the complainant has fully performed, though the services rendered did not equal the value of the land. Warren v. Marshall [Ind.] 75 N. E. 582.

38. Jones v. Barnes, 105 App. Div. 287, 94 N. Y. S. 695.

39. A defendant, who alleges that he refused to accept a tender on the ground that the money was not derived from a certain source, waives any claim that it was not good because conditional. Rankin v. Rankin, 216 Ill. 132, 74 N. E. 763.

40. The decree could require a sufficient portion of the purchase price to be paid the seller's vendor to satisfy his contract. May v. Getty [N. C.] 53 S. E. 75.

41. Lighton v. Syracuse, 48 Misc. 134, 96 N. Y. S. 692.

42. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Texas Short Line R. Co. [Tex.] 90 S. W. 863.

the court cannot be considered.[43] Where plaintiff's title depends on a decree in a tax sale, an answer putting in issue his title by reason of defects in a lien under which he bought states no defense.[44]

Pleading.[45]—The bill must be framed for the appropriate relief.[46] The proceeding being equitable, the rules of equity pleading control.[47] Upon demurrer a bill is good if by any reasonable construction of its language a case is stated entitling complainant to the relief sought.[48] The statute of frauds must be pleaded if relied on as a defense.[49] In a suit by a vendee it is not necessary to allege tender of a deed for execution by the vendor unless under the terms of the contract preparation of the deed devolved on the vendee.[50] Tender of the purchase price need not be alleged where it appears that defendant has denied the contract and would have refused it. It is sufficient to allege readiness to comply with the contract.[51] A complaint may be amended by correcting a misdescription of the land set forth,[52] or so as to allege the contract more definitely,[53] or to ask for a quitclaim deed where it appears that a warranty deed was asked for by mistake.[54] A denial of an allegation that plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law raises the issue and no affirmative allegation is necessary.[55]

Evidence.[56]—The contract sought to be enforced must be clearly and unequivocally proved,[57] and as proved, its terms as to subject-matter, consideration, and all other essentials, must be explicit and unambiguous.[58] Proof of a parol contract

43. Where one sues in ejectment but trial is had on defendant's counterclaim for specific performance, the answer in ejectment is not before the court and cannot affect defendant's right to specific performance. Finlen v. Heinze, 32 Mont. 354, 80 P. 918.

44. Finnegan v. Summers [Ky.] 91 S. W. 261.

45. See 4 C. L. 1509.

46. Steele v. Steele, 112 Ill. App. 409.

47. See Equity, 5 C. L. 1144.

48. A bill alleging that defendant "offered to give," etc., held good against demurrer, "offered to give" being construed as an agreement to convey. Shipley v. Fink [Md.] 62 A. 360.

Complaint to enforce performance of a contract to convey land held sufficient as against objection made at the trial. Herman v. Winter [S. D.] 105 N. W. 457.

49. A contract merely voidable because in violation of the statute of frauds will be enforced unless the statute is pleaded as a defense. Koenig v. Dohn, 209 Ill. 468, 70 N. E. 1061.

50. Wellmaker v. Wheatley, 123 Ga. 201, 51 S. E. 436.

51. Finlen v. Heinze, 32 Mont. 354, 80 P. 918.

52. Does not add a new cause of action. Sweat v. Hendley, 123 Ga. 332, 51 S. E. 331.

53. Bill to compel specific performance of an oral contract to convey land. White v. Poole [N. H.] 62 A. 494.

54. Whiteside v. Winans, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 244.

55. Butler v. Wright, 103 App. Div. 463, 93 N. Y. S. 113.

56. See 4 C. L. 1510.

57. Evidence insufficient to prove a contract to transfer a patent. Pressed Steel Car Co. v. Hansen [C. C. A.] 137 F. 403. Hayden v. Collins [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1120. Correspondence held insufficient to establish for the sale of certain mining stock. Laybourn v. Zinns [Minn.] 103 N. W. 563. Evidence insufficient to show a contract after 50 years. Gum v. Isaacs [Ky.] 90 S. W. 963. Oral contemporaneous agreement "was not proven by that clear and convincing evidence required by the equity rule." Guaranty Safe Deposit & Trust Co. v. Liebold, 207 Pa 399, 56 A. 951. Evidence insufficient to show a contract whereby one advanced money to trustees of a lunatic to be repaid out of a sale of his real estate. Dulaney v. Devries [Md.] 62 A. 743. The facts relied upon in an action for specific performance of a parol contract to convey land must be established by clear and satisfactory proof. Baldwin v. Baldwin [Kan.] 84 P. 568. An instruction that a parol contract for the sale of land must be established by evidence so clear and unequivocal as to satisfy your minds to a reasonable certainty that the contract was made is proper. Warren v. Gay, 123 Ga. 243, 51 S. E. 302. A judgment in mandamus to compel the mayor of a city to execute a contract authorized by resolution is res judicata as to the legality and sufficiency in form of the contract in an action to enforce it where the mandamus proceeding was defended by the city attorney. Lighton v. Syracuse, 48 Misc. 134, 96 N. Y. S. 692. In an action to recover a payment on a contract to convey land where the defendant filed a contract for specific performance, a general finding in favor of the cross petitioner will sustain a decree. Jordan v. Jackson [Neb.] 106 N. W. 999. Mental condition of the party against whom performance is sought is to be considered in determining the circumstances attending the making of the contract to discredit the transaction. Sprague v. Jessup [Or.] 83 P. 145. The fact that during one's possession of a mine under a contract to purchase the seller's foreman visited the mine and at one time gave orders is not inconsistent with the purchaser's exclusive possession so as to bar specific performance. Finlen v. Heinze, 32 Mont. 354, 80 P 918.

58. Pressed Steel Car Co. v. Hansen [C. C.

to leave land in consideration of support must be so clear, cogent, and convincing as to the existence of the contract and certainty of its terms as to leave no reasonable doubt.[59] If entered into by an agent his authority must be established.[60] A defendant vendor who alleges that the land in his homestead,[61] or who asserts a mistake not attributable to his negligence as a defense,[62] has the burden of proving it. Interpleaders who allege that they purchased the land without notice of the contract have the burden of proving such fact.[63]

The relief granted.[64]—The relief to which a party shows himself entitled may be decreed,[65] but no other.[66] If the proceeding is in effect one at law, the relief will be limited to what is legal.[67] Damages may be awarded in lieu of specific performance.[68] Though a contract is such that a court cannot decree specific performance, it may interfere by injunction,[69] unless otherwise provided by statute.[70] A vendor can be compelled to convey the title he has if he has not the title he contracted to convey,[71] and he may be required to convey an after acquired title,[72] but this rule does not apply to a contract which expressly provides that it shall be

A.] 137 F. 403. To warrant a decree for performance of a contract to sell or devise land. McGarahan v. Sheridan, 106 App. Div. 532, 94 N. Y. S. 708.

Evidence held to show that a parol contract for the sale of land was entered into. Shipley v. Fink [Md.] 62 A. 360. Evidence insufficient to establish a parol contract by a father to give his son land in consideration of services. Lay v. Lay [Ark.] 87 S. W. 1026.

Evidence sufficient to show that plaintiff had not rescinded her contract to purchase defendant's land and was entitled to specific performance. Cotton v. Butterfield [N. D.] 105 N. W. 236. Evidence sufficient to show a complete oral agreement for the sale of a mine. Finlen v. Heinze, 32 Mont. 354, 80 P. 918. Evidence insufficient to show an agreement by an incompetent to deed or will property in consideration for services. Hayden v. Collins [Cal. App.] 81 P. 1120. Evidence sufficient to establish a parol contract for the sale of land. Sprague v. Jessup [Or.] 83 P. 145. Evidence held to show that a parol contract for the sale of land was entered into. Veum v. Sheeran [Minn.] 104 N. W. 135.

59. Russell v. Sharp [Mo.] 91 S. W. 134. Evidence insufficient. Id. Evidence insufficient to establish an oral contract by parents to give their child certain real estate at their death in consideration for services rendered. Haberman v. Kaufer [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 976.

60. Where it is sought to enforce a contract to sell land entered into on behalf of a corporation by certain of its officers, the complainant must show that the corporation either authorized or ratified the contract. Parmele v. Heenan [Neb.] 106 N. W. 662.

61. Evidence insufficient. Steele v. Robertson [Ark.] 87 S. W. 117.

62. As to the area of land purchased. Cawley v. Jean [Mass.] 75 N. E. 614.

63. When two interpleaders took part in the purchase it was necessary to show that neither had notice of the prior contract. Steele v. Robertson [Ark.] 87 S. W. 117.

64. See 4 C. L. 1510.

65. Where the complaint alleged a contract for the sale of the fee but the proof showed a contract for an easement, to prevent a multiplicity of suits, the complainant will be decreed the relief to which he is entitled. Brandon v. West [Nev.] 83 P. 327

66. There can be no recovery upon a quantum meruit for work done without proof of its value where it is shown that the plaintiff has performed his part so defectively as not to be entitled to a decree for specific performance. Flanders v. Rosoff, 97 N. Y. S. 514.

67. A suit brought in equity to compel the payment of a sum of money then due under an agreement between husband and wife for a periodical sum is in effect an action at law on the contract brought in equity because of the relations of the parties, and a supplemental decree will not issue to compel the defendant to do more than the original decree required. Buttlar v. Buttlar [N. J. Eq.] 61 A. 11.

68. Damages in lieu of specific performance may be awarded by a court of equity where such a course becomes necessary in order to do full justice between the parties and confer complete relief in one judicial proceeding, but in such a case the damages awarded will not include speculative or accidental profits and will be limited to saving the parties from loss. Trustees Cincinnati Southern R. v. Hooker, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 357.

69. Where one contracted to purchase electric current at a specified rate for a term of years exclusively from another, he will be enjoined from purchasing from any other. Beck v. Indianapolis Light & Power Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 312.

70. By the express provisions of Civ. Code 3423, if a contract cannot be specifically enforced its breach cannot be enjoined. Farnum v. Clarke [Cal.] 84 P. 166.

71. A vendee may procure specific performance with an abatement for defects in the title though he knew of the defects when he commenced suit. White v. Weaver [N. J. Err. & App.] 61 A. 25.

72. A provision in a contract for the sale of land, title of which was in litigation, that if the vendor failed to make good title he would return the consideration paid, does not preclude the remedy though the vendor was adjudged to have no title, when he afterwards acquires it. Showwalter v. Sorenson [Wash.] 81 P. 1054.

void in case the title of the vendor fails.[73] One to whom the defendant conveyed prior to the contract cannot be compelled to join in the deed of performance though his deed is void.[74] A preliminary injunction should not be granted where the contract is disputed or uncertain in its terms or the plaintiff's right is doubtful, nor where it does not appear that there is danger of loss which cannot be compensated in damages.[75] The defendant, on specific performance being decreed against him, is not entitled to interest on purchase money because of delay occasioned by himself.[76] A plaintiff who has had the use of the land after tender of the purchase price and has not paid such price into court is chargeable with interest on the amount.[77] Where a vendor is awarded a decree and has used the land after the time when the conveyance should take effect, the value of such use will be deducted from the purchase price remaining unpaid.[78]

A decree[79] must conform to the theory upon which the case was tried and the issues made,[80] and to the terms of the contract.[81] If the conveyance of property upon the payment of a specified sum is decreed, a definite time within which payment should be made should be prescribed.[82] A decree should not be refused where complainants are entitled to relief, because after filing the bill, but before hearing, the defendant takes measures to perform.[83]

SPENDTHRIFTS, see latest topical index.

STARE DECISIS.

§ 1. The doctrine and its application.[84]—In the civil law each case is decided according to the natural and moral rights involved,[85] but it is a general rule among courts administering the common law system that a point which has been settled by judicial decision becomes a precedent which will be followed in subsequent cases before the same court.[86] Where the highest court of a state has decided that a cer-

73. Schwab v. Baremore [Minn.] 104 N. W. 10.

74. Reynolds v. Condon, 110 App. Div. 542, 97 N. Y. S. 1.

75. Lucas v. Milliken, 139 F. 816. Where defendant holds the legal title to corporate stock, a contract for the sale of which is sought to be enforced, a preliminary injunction should not be granted on an ex parte showing which would deprive defendant of his right to possession and to vote the stock. Lucas v. Milliken, 139 F. 816.

76. Under Civ. Code § 4280. Finlen v. Heinze, 32 Mont. 354, 80 P. 918.

77. Rankin v. Rankin, 216 Ill. 132, 74 N. E. 763.

78. Cotton v. Butterfield [N. D.] 105 N. W. 236.

79. See 4 C. L. 1511.

80. Theall v. Port Chester, 110 App. Div. 776, 97 N. Y. S. 442. Decree held to be in accordance with the pleadings and proof where defendants set up a counterclaim and brought in cross parties. Franklin v. Burris [Colo.] 84 P. 809.

81. Purchaser should be given the privilege of executing a deed of trust to secure the price, as authorized by the contract. Pence v. Life [Va.] 52 S. E. 257. The court cannot make a different contract for the parties. Bennett v. Giles, 111 Ill. App. 428. The decree cannot add to the contract a promise not made. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Texas Short Line R. Co [Tex.] 90 S. W. 863.

82. Lawrence v. Halversen [Wash.] 83 P. 889.

83. Gray v. Citizens' Gas Co., 212 Pa. 473, 61 A. 1004.

Note: The principle that an injunction will issue to prevent threatened waste by a tenant, though he asserts that he does not intend to commit waste again (Attorney General v. Burrows, 1 Dick. 128; Packington v. Packington, 1 Dick. 101; Lowerby v. Fryer L. R. 8 Eq. 417), would seem to apply to the case of continuing contracts.—See 6 Columbia L. R. 203.

84. See 4 C. L. 1512.

85. State v. Manford [Minn.] 106 N. W. 907.

86. See State v. Manford [Minn.] 106 N. W. 907, discussing the doctrine at length

tain rule of law should not be applied under given circumstances, this decision will be followed in a subsequent case presenting like facts even though the very application of the rule rest in the discretion of the court.[87] A ruling of the supreme court, upon questions certified from the court below, that a certain contract does not violate an act, is conclusive that the contract is not in violation of an act narrower in scope.[88] The doctrine of stare decisis is not a fixed rule applicable to all cases and is not observed or enforced where the prior decision is palpably wrong, or is in conflict with positive law, or where a further adherence thereto would amount to judicial legislation.[89]

Former decisions construing a statute.—The magnitude of the interests at stake and the fact that the last decision was by a divided court are sufficient reasons for re-examining the question,[90] and the court should be convinced not merely that the case was erroneously decided but that less injury will result from overruling than from following it.[91]

The various judges who, exercising co-ordinate jurisdiction, sit in the same court should not, except for the most cogent reasons, attempt to overrule the decisions of each other, especially upon questions involving rules of property and of practice.[92] This rule does not, however, deprive the aggrieved party of the right to review and reverse a ruling which follows an erroneous decision of another judge, but it leaves the case in the same situation in which it would have been if the judge who rendered the first decision had made the rulings which followed it.[93] The rule of stare decisis has no application to matters of defense or evidence not before the court in a prior decision.[94]

In applying the law of a foreign state the judicial decisions of its courts are to be taken as a part thereof.[95] The statutes and judicial decisions of the jurisdiction, where a contract was made and is to be performed, control in determining its validity.[96]

Law of the case.[97]—What has been finally decided in a case will not be re-examined, but ruling on demurrer need not be followed on a final hearing on the merits,[98] nor does the overruling of a demurrer on the ground that it is not the proper remedy conclude the court on the trial as to the sufficiency of the pleading.[99]

An expression of opinion by an appellate court on granting a writ of error looking to a fuller consideration of the point on a hearing is not the law of the case.[1] The law of the case as determined in former appeals is treated elsewhere.[2]

§ 2. Decisions and obiter dicta.[3]—General expressions in an opinion, which are not essential to dispose of the case, cannot control the judgment in subsequent

87. Petition to recover money paid under a judgment which was afterwards reversed. Horton v. Hayden [Neb.] 104 N. W. 757.

88. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 88 S. W. 370.

89. City of Sedalia v. Donohue, 190 Mo. 407, 89 S. W. 386.

90. Injunction to prevent removal of county seat. Hand v. Stapleton [Ala.] 39 So. 651.

91. Ejectment by city to recover streets. City of Wahoo v. Netheway [Neb.] 102 N. W. 86.

92. Replevin. See, also, Boatmen's Bank v. Fritzlen [C. C. A.] 135 F. 650; Plattner Implement Co. v. International Harv. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 376.

93. Plattner Implement Co. v. International Harv. Co. [C. C. A.] 133 F. 376.

94. Action as to infringement of patent. Bragg Mfg. Co. v. New York, 141 F. 118.

95. Decisions of another state cannot be received in an appellate court to establish the law of such state. Mercantile Guaranty Co. v. Hilton [Mass.] 77 N. E. 312.

96. No distinction between statutes and decisions. Studebaker Bros. Co. v. Mau [Wyo.] 82 P. 2.

97. See 4 C. L. 1513.

98. Order overruling demurrer to complaint in action to settle title to land. Gerard v. Ives [Conn.] 62 A. 607.

99. Dawson v. Orange [Conn.] 61 A. 101.

1. Expression of opinion that the evidence before city council was not sufficient to justify judgment of removal from office. Riggins v. Waco [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 657.

2. See Appeal and Review, 5 C. L. 121.

3. See 4 C. L. 1513.

suits,[4] but whenever a question fairly arises in the course of a trial, and there is a distinct decision thereon, such ruling cannot be called mere dictum.[5] A judgment of affirmance by a divided court is not a precedent under the law of Florida.[6] A decision is not a precedent as to points not brought to the attention of, or considered by, the court,[7] except perhaps those involving the jurisdiction,[8] but the determination of a matter which is involved in the litigation and discussed at the bar is not to be regarded as mere dictum, because this point is only indirectly involved in the decision of the question upon which the case turns.[9] Views expressed on the merits by a minority of the court in a case where the court declines jurisdiction are not binding.[10]

§ 3. Rules of property.[11]—Decisions which have become rules of property will not be lightly disturbed.[12] Where there is a diversity of state decisions which declare rules of property and in reliance upon which rights have been acquired by contract, the first decision in time may constitute the obligation of the contract and the measure of rights under it.[13] Thus, a state court has no power to reverse nor to modify its decisions which declare rules of property, where the exercise of such power would take away rights acquired, by contract, under and in reliance upon these decisions and which have come under the protection of the Federal constitution.[14] A course of decisions that abutters on a street have easements therein of light, air, and access, which cannot be taken away by construction of an elevated railway, are a rule of property as to one who took while they stood as law.[15]

§ 4. Courts of different jurisdictions. A. Inferior and appellate.[16]—The latest expression of opinion by the appellate court is controlling on the inferior courts.[17] Prior decisions of inferior courts cannot form a basis for the application of the doctrine in the appellate court.[18] The rule that judges sitting in the same

4. Harriman v. Northern Securities Co., 197 U. S. 244, 49 Law. Ed. 739.

5. Where a case presents two grounds, upon either of which the judgment of the trial court can be rested, and the appellate court sustains both, the ruling on each point is authoritative although only one was considered below. Union Pac. R. Co. v Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 199 U. S. 160, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

6. Where the judges of the supreme court, sitting in bank, are equally divided in opinion as to whether or not a judgment should be reversed, and there is no prospect of an immediate change in the personnel of the court, it becomes the duty of those who favor reversal to vote with those who favor affirmance and thereby affirm the judgment of the lower court. In such cases, while the judgment is a bar to another action for the same cause, yet, as no matters of law are decided so far as the question upon which the court stands equally divided is concerned, the judgment possesses no dignity or force as a judicial precedent regarding such matters. State v. McClung [Fla.] 37 So. 51.

7. Mandamus to compel issuance of certificate of election. Atwood v. Sault Ste. Marie [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 403, 104 N. W. 649.

8. Since want of jurisdiction will be raised by an appellate court of its own motion, decision of the merits amounts to a holding that there is jurisdiction though the question was not argued. State v. Louisiana, B. G. & A. Gravel Road Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 153.

9. Objections to personal tax assessment overruled by county board of equalization. Lancaster County v. McDonald [Neb.] 103 N. W. 78.

10. State v. Louisiana, B. G. & A. Gravel Road Co. [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 153.

11. See 4 C. L. 1514.

12. Decisions construing homestead laws. Schoonover v. Birnbaum [Cal.] 83 P. 999. The word "heirs" construed to mean "widows and children" only and not including widower. Johnson v. Seattle Electric Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 705.

13. Muhlker v. New York & H. R. Co., 197 U. S. 544, 49 Law. Ed. 872.

14. Muhlker v. New York & H. R. Co., 197 U. S. 544, 49 Law. Ed. 872. One acquiring property abutting on street after state courts have decided that such property owners have easement of light and air and access secured by contract cannot be deprived thereof by the elevation of railroad tracks at the command of the legislature without payment of compensation. Id.

15. Muhlker v. New York, etc., R. Co., 197 U. S. 544, 49 Law. Ed. 872. In a note in 19 Harvard L. R. 67, it is said that this extends this doctrine to a new class of rights.

16. See 4 C. L. 1514.

17. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Nesbit [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 656, 88 S. W. 891.

18. City of Sedalia v. Donohue, 190 Mo. 407, 89 S. W. 386. A decision of the Kansas City court of appeals, construing a statute, is not binding as a precedent on the Missouri supreme court, although contracts have been entered into in reliance upon it. Action on a special tax bill. Id.

court and exercising co-ordinate jurisdiction should not attempt to overrule the decisions of each other, has no application in an appellate court, whose duty it is to review the decisions of the questions of law which were rendered by the inferior courts and to decide them according to the law and the facts.[19]

(§ 4) B. Federal and state courts. When Federal courts follow state decisions.[20]—The Federal courts are bound by decisions of the highest court of a state on matters of purely local law,[21] even in the determination of a case therein pending at the time the decision of the state court was rendered[22] but not in matters involving a Federal question,[23] or, in the determination of questions of general law.[24] Great weight as a precedent, however, will be given to the decision of a state court in a case between the same parties on the same facts.[25] They will ordinarily follow the construction put upon a local constitution or statute by the highest court of the state,[26] but are not bound to disregard the substance of a statute for

19. Plattner Implement Co. v. International Harv. Co., 133 F. 376.

20. See 4 C. L. 1514.

21. Decisions of the highest court of a state, which affect the title to real property situated within that state. As to application of rule in Shelley's Case. Hubbird v. Goin [C. C. A.] 137 F. 822.

22. Bill in equity to enjoin city from constructing waterworks system. City of Sioux Falls v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 721.

23. In a suit to decide whether the change of decision of a state court is an unconstitutional impairment of a contract, the United States supreme court will determine for themselves the existence and extent of such contract. Suit to enjoin the use of an elevated railroad structure in front of a dwelling house because the easements of light, air, and access to these premises were thereby impaired. Muhlker v. New York & H. R. Co., 197 U. S. 544, 49 Law. Ed. 872. As a general rule the holder of a vested right, acquired under and by virtue of a state constitution or statute, is entitled to the independent judgment of the Federal courts upon the construction of such constitutional provision or statute. Bill in equity to enjoin city from constructing waterworks system. City of Sioux Falls v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 721. In an action in the Federal court construing a patent, although a decision of the state court has already construed it, the Federal court is not bound by that decision where the plaintiff himself sueing in a state court would not be estopped, on the ground that he was not a party to the prior state action. Davis v. Commonwealth Land & Lumber Co., 141 F. 711. The decision of a state court cannot extend, limit or define the powers of the Federal government to the exclusion of the jurisdiction of its own courts. United States v. Tully, 140 F. 899. The courts of a state cannot by their decisions settle the jurisdiction of the Federal courts, not even in the construction of their own constitution or laws. Id.

24. Hence where on question of liability for negligence a different rule of general law exists in each court, and the case is removed from state to Federal courts, the rule of law prevalent in the latter courts will govern the determination of the case. Curtis v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 140 F. 777. Under the holdings of the Federal courts a lessor of a railroad track is not liable for the negligence of its lessee in operating trains on such track, and a Federal court is not controlled thereon by state decisions. Question whether declaration disclosed a severable controversy. Yeates v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 137 F. 943. Whether a creditor of a bankrupt is entitled to a preference, on the ground that his claim is based upon the bankrupt's misappropriation of trust moneys coming into his hands under a factorage contract with the creditor, does not depend upon a construction of this contract between the parties but on a rule of preference in equity as to which the Federal decisions and not those of the state where the contract was made must control (John Deere Plow Co. v. McDavid [C. C. A.] 137 F. 802), but decisions of state courts in so far as they express opinions on general principles, law of contracts (City of Mankato v. Barber Asphalt Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 329), or on the evidential value of facts are not binding on the Federal courts (Id.).

25. Where an action against a carrier for damages for personal injuries has been dismissed pursuant to the unanimous opinion of the highest state court, and the questions of negligence presented by the case are not questions as to which the Federal and state courts are at variance, comity requires that such decision be followed by the Federal courts in a subsequent action therein by the same parties for the same cause, though such opinion is not controlling upon the Federal court. Mearns v. Central R. R. [C. C. A.] 139 F. 543. Even where a Federal court will not follow a state court, it has been said to be the duty of the former to treat the opinion of the latter with respect, to examine deeply into its reasonings, and weigh it carefully. Davis v. Commonwealth Land & Lumber Co., 141 F. 711.

26. City of Mankato v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 329; Love v Busch [C. C. A.] 142 F. 429; City of Sioux Falls v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 721. Statutes of Iowa held in case of death after six days to give cause of action for death only and not for pain and suffering before death also. Jacobs v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co., 140 F. 766. Where the supreme court of a state sustains the validity of a statute from which a contract is claimed, the Federal courts will follow that decision in determining whether subsequent legislation has violated the contract. Powers v. Detroit, that purpose.[27] It makes no difference that the suit in the state court was a case of friendly litigation for no purpose other than to have the local law interpreted by the state court,[28] but where a decision of a state court is apparently collusive and expressly designed to forestall a decision in the Federal courts, the latter will not be bound.[29] Where the rights of a party accrued before the state decision, it is not binding upon the Federal courts even in the construction of a local statute.[30] In the case of a question of local law, which has never been determined by the state tribunals, they may adopt their own interpretation, and rights accruing under such decision will not be disturbed although subsequently a different interpretation is adopted by the state court.[31]

When state courts follow Federal decisions.[32]—State courts are bound by the construction placed upon the Federal constitution and statutes by the Federal courts.[33] It has been held that upon general propositions of law, unaffected by

G. H. & M. R. Co., 201 U. S. 53, 50 Law. Ed. ——. In the absence of any question of general or commercial law or of right under the United States constitution, and this rule obtains notwithstanding the fact that courts of other states have interpreted such constitution differently. Suit against stockholder by creditor of corporation. Harrison v. Remington Paper Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 365. A vested right acquired under and by virtue of the constitution or statute of a state, prior to a state decision, will entitle the holder of such right to the independent judgment of the Federal court upon the construction of a constitutional provision, or the statute of a state. Rights, although vested prior to a state decision, but without especial reference to the existing state of the law, not so favored. City of Sioux Falls v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 731. Construction put upon a mechanic's lien act. In re Grissler [C. C. A.] 136 F. 754. Interpretation of statutes under which a corporation was organized. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. v. Quinby [C. C. A.] 137 F. 882. Statute as legislative change of grade of street for its full width. Mead v. City of Portland, 200 U. S. 148, 50 Law. Ed. ——. Decision that state statutes do not conflict with its constitution is conclusive on the Federal supreme court. Carstairs v. Cochran, 193 U. S. 10, 48 Law. Ed. 596; Hughes v. Pflanz [C. C. A.] 138 F. 980. Construction put upon the constitution by the state supreme court at the time the statute was passed. Rees v. Olmsted [C. C. A.] 135 F. 296. Denial by a state court of mandamus to compel a corporation to do certain acts does not conclude the Federal courts as to the charter duties of the corporation, where, under the decision of the state court, mandamus will not lie against corporations of that kind. Wiemer v. Louisville Water Co., 130 F. 251. The decision of an intermediate appellate state court as to the construction or effect of a state statute is not binding on a Federal court. So held as to the Missouri court of appeals. State Trust Co. v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 129 F. 455.

27. A Federal court of bankruptcy, in determining whether a state imposition is a tax within § 64a, U. S. Bankruptcy Act, requiring priority of payment thereof, will not disregard the substance of the action and blindly follow a decision of the courts of that state holding such imposition to be a tax. In bankruptcy. In re Cosmopolitan Power Co. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 858.

28. City of Sioux Falls v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 136 F. 721.

29. Construction of a land grant. Davis v. Commonwealth Land & Lumber Co., 141 F. 711.

30. City of Mankato v. Barber Asphalt Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 329.

31. Julian v. Central Trust Co., 193 U. S. 93, 48 Law. Ed. 629. Determination by state court that property covered by mortgage of all the property and franchises of a railway company remains liable, after a sale under a Federal court decree of foreclosure, for debts thereafter accruing against the mortgagor, because of the purchaser's failure to organize a domestic corporation, held not conclusive on Federal supreme court, since Federal decree would be thereby virtually set aside. Id.

32. See 4 C. L. 1516.

33. Holding that fire insurance is not interstate commerce. State v. Insurance Co. [Neb.] 106 N. W. 767. The Federal constitution is within the scope of its provisions, the supreme law of the land, and state courts and legislatures are bound by it as well as by the interpretation put upon its provisions by the Federal court of last resort. Information charging violation of anti-trust laws. State v. Cudahy Packing Co. [Mont.] 82 P. 833. By decision of the Federal supreme court that, under the Federal statutes, state courts are forbidden to issue an attachment against a national bank. Merchants' Laclede Nat. Bank v. Troy Grocery Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 476. Removal statutes. Western Union Tel. Co. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 100. By decision of Federal supreme court that state statute is in conflict with interstate commerce act. Spratlin v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Ark.] 88 S. W. 836. On an issue involving a railroad company's rights in certain public lands under a congressional grant, trial court based a finding that the company had no rights in the land on certain Federal decisions. Subsequently to the trial court's finding the Federal supreme court rendered a decision holding that the company and the government were tenants in common in a large tract which included the land in controversy, and this opinion was held available, on appeal to the state supreme court, as a conclusive authority that such finding of the trial court was errone-legislative enactments, the supreme court of a territory will adopt the law as enunciated by the supreme court of the United States.[34]

(§ 4) C. Different Federal courts.[35]

(§ 4) D. Different state courts.[36]

STATE LANDS; STATEMENT OF CLAIM; STATEMENT OF FACTS, see latest topical index.

STATES.

§ 1. Boundaries and jurisdiction. Boundaries.[37]—Where a navigable stream forms the boundary line between two states, the thread of the main channel is the boundary,[38] and if the river changes its course by accretive process, the boundary line follows the river.[39] State boundaries are defined by the act of congress by which they are admitted into the Union,[40] and on the admission of a state, congress has no power to give it territory belonging to another state.[41] A state may lose its sovereignty and jurisdiction over its territory by prescription and acquiescence whenever such facts are clearly established.[42] A board created for the purpose of auditing claims for taxes paid on lands on which no taxes are due has no power to determine that lands sold for taxes are not within the state.[43]

The jurisdiction[44] of a state is co-extensive with its territorial boundaries.[45]

ous. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Lipman [Cal.] 83 P. 445. Whenever the question before a state court is what title to land, which had been the property of the United States, has passed to one claiming under the government, that question must be resolved by the Federal statutes, and Federal decisions on the question are controlling. Rights of surviving husband or wife with reference to homestead entry under Federal land law. Cunningham v. Krutz [Wash.] 83 P. 109. Similarly, whether or not a state statute of limitations runs against a settler on public lands, belonging to the government prior to the issuance of a patent to him, is a Federal question which must be answered even by the state courts in conformity with the decisions of the Federal supreme court. Action by railroad company to recover right of way. Slagt v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 1062.

34. As to fellow-servant rule. Mollhoff v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Okl.] 82 P. 733.

35, 36. See 4 C. L. 1516.

37. See 4 C. L. 1516.

38. An island between the thread of the stream and the shore belongs to the state in which it is located. McBride v. Steinweden [Kan.] 83 P. 822. Evidence sufficient to show that Island No. 76 in the Mississippi river was on the Mississippi side of the channel when Arkansas and Mississippi were admitted, and hence within the boundaries of Mississippi. Moore & McFerrin v. McGuire, 142 F. 787.

39. McBride v. Steinweden [Kan.] 83 P. 822.

40. Boundary between Iowa and Illinois decreed to be the center of the main navigable channel of the Mississippi river. State of Iowa v. State of Illinois, 26 S. Ct. 571, 50 Law. Ed. ——. Boundary between Louisiana and Mississippi, under the Act of April 8, 1812, admitting Louisiana into the Union defined. Louisiana v. Mississippi, 26 S. Ct. 408, 50 Law. Ed. ——. Boundary line between Mississippi and Louisiana decreed. State of Louisiana v. State of Mississippi, 26 S. Ct. 571. The western boundary of Mississippi is the center of the main channel of the Mississippi river. Act March 1, 1817, admitting the state into the Union, construed. Moore & McFerrin v. McGuire, 142 F. 787.

41. Louisiana v. Mississippi, 26 S. Ct. 408, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

42. Evidence held to show that Mississippi has not lost to Arkansas Island No. 76 in the Mississippi river. Moore & McFerrin v. McGuire, 142 F. 787. A boundary between states may be established by long acquiescence. Louisiana v. Mississippi, 26 S. Ct. 408, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

43. Its action in refunding an amount paid is not conclusive of such question on the state. Moore & McFerrin v. McGuire, 142 F. 787.

44. See 4 C. L. 1517.

45. NOTE. Concurrent jurisdiction: The plaintiff sued in Kentucky on a judgment obtained in Indiana. The defendant pleaded the invalidity of the service of summons in the first instance, contending that under the Virginia compact of 1789, and the Act of Congress Feb. 4, 1791, c. 4, 1 Stat. 189, Indiana courts had no jurisdiction over the Ohio river, the defendant being on the river when served. Held the service was valid and the judgment of the Indiana court was entitled to full faith and credit in the courts of Kentucky. Wedding v. Meyler, 192 U. S. 573, 48 Law. Ed. 570. The compact provided that "the respective jurisdictions * * * of

§ 2. Property.[46]—On a simple contract claim, no steps to enforce which have been taken until a receiver is appointed, a state has no preference over other creditors of an insolvent.[47] The exemption of a state from taxation extends no further than the attributes of sovereignty.[48] A state may prohibit the use of the national flag,[49] or of its arms or seal,[50] for advertising or commercial purposes. It is a legislative prerogative to deal with and dispose of state property.[51]

§ 3. Contracts.[52]—A provision in a contract that, if because of legislative action, it became impossible to fully execute it the contractor should have no claim for damages, absolves the state from liability when the condition arises.[53]

§ 4. Officers and employes.[54]—Public officers are to be appointed[55] and vacancies filled in the manner prescribed by law.[56] The legislature may not add to the qualifications required of legislators by the constitution nor impose other restrictions upon the candidates or voters.[57] Where the time of commencement, termination, and duration of a term of office are fixed by statute, and provision is made for filling vacancies but without provision as to the duration or authority of the person appointed or elected, he is entitled to serve the unexpired term only[58]

the proposed state (Kentucky) * * * shall be concurrent only with the states which may possess the opposite shores of the said (Ohio) river." The Kentucky court ruled that the contract contemplated a limitation, not a future grant, that, unless there is an express stipulation to the contrary, the jurisdiction of all states is limited to their territorial boundaries, and that whatever concurrent jurisdiction Indiana had was legislative for regulating navigation. The supreme court reached a different conclusion as to all the points, following in this holding prior decisions by state courts, and provision of the Indiana state constitution. Ind. State Const. art. 14, § 2; State v. Plants, 25 W. Va. 119, 52 Am. Rep. 211; Carlisle v. State, 32 Ind. 55. The case of Mississippi, etc., R. Co. v. Ward, 2 Black, 485, is distinguished on the ground that jurisdiction on the river does not extend to permanent structures attached to the river bed and within the boundary of one or the other state.—5 Columbia L. R. 59.

46. See 4 C. L. 1517.

47. State v. Williams [Md.] 61 A. 297.

Note: By the common law the crown was a preferred creditor. King v. Cotton, par. 112. Its right of priority, however, was not absolute. It could not be enforced against assets the title to which the debtor had transferred to another before the suing out of the writ of extent. King v. Lee, 6 Price, 369. A lien, too, obtained by a third person was secure (King v. Watson, 3 Price, 6), but a mere change of custody was of no effect (In re Henley & Co., 9 Ch. D. 469). In this country there has developed a divergence of opinion in the state courts, some holding that the states as successors to the sovereignty of the king became invested with his right of priority (Robinson v. Bank of Darien, 18 Ga. 65), and others repudiating the whole doctrine as inconsistent with our altered political conditions (Freeholders of Middlesex Co. v. State Bank, 30 N. J. Eq. 311). The states which do hold to the rule of state priority subject it to the restriction that it is liable to be defeated pro tanto by prior legal interests vested in third persons. Thus we find that the leading case on the subject in this country denies the state's claim to preference after an assignment in trust for creditors. State of Maryland v. Bank of Maryland, 6 Gill & J. [Md.] 205.—See 19 Harv. L. R. 292.

48. The buying and selling of intoxicating liquors for a profit under a dispensary system is of a commercial character as well as a police regulation and subject to taxation by the Federal government. State of South Carolina's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 257.

49. Such power does not belong exclusively to the Federal congress. Halter v. State [Neb.] 105 N. W. 298.

50. Commonwealth v. R. I. Sherman Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 75 N. E. 71.

51. It may do so without the aid of the courts. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

52. See 4 C. L. 1517. See, also, Public Contracts, 6 C. L. 1109.

53. Contract for convict labor. F. H. Mills Co. v. State, 110 App. Div. 843, 97 N. Y. S. 676.

54. See 4 C. L. 1517. See, also, Officers and Public Employes, 6 C. L. 841.

55. Laws 1905, c. 5384, providing for the appointment of members of the state board of control, is not void. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. Qualifications of members of the board of control mentioned in chapter 5384, Laws 1905, do not relate to classes of persons but to place and length of residence, and do not make appointment to the office a legislative one, but it is required to be made by the governor. Id.

56. The duties to be performed by the board of control created by Laws 1905, chapter 5384, are governmental. The office is continuous and remains to be filled though the incumbents may die or resign. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

57. A constitutional provision that one is eligible for the office of senator or representative, who has resided in the district for two years, is violated by a statute limiting the number of nominees. People v. Chicago Election Com'rs [Ill.] 77 N. E. 321.

58. Under Const. art. 4, § 11; art. 6, § 5; art. 4, § 7, Sess. Laws 1890-91, p. 237, a person appointed to fill the office of state treasurer, who is afterward elected at a general election held before the term of his predecessor would have expired, is entitled to

Under the constitution of Colorado the president pro tem of the senate does not become lieutenant governor de jure when the lieutenant governor becomes governor on the resignation of that official,[59] and since he is prohibited by the constitution from becoming lieutenant governor de jure, he could not become such by estoppel from acts of the party entitled to the office.[60] Under a rule that the governor may appoint certain officers with the advice and consent of the senate, an appointment is not completed on the transmission of a nomination to the senate and a confirmation thereof.[61] A public officer has no property right in his office[62] and may be removed without notice or hearing[63] in the manner prescribed by law.[64] Members of the legislature are generally prohibited by law from holding any other civil office during the period for which they are elected,[65] and a legislator cannot render himself eligible by resigning his legislative membership.[66] Salary or emolument is merely an incident to the office and is not an element in determining its character as a civil office.[67] The power of a legislature to expel a member will not be limited by implication.[68] Members of the legislature who have been expelled in the manner prescribed by the constitution are not deprived of the right to office without due process.[69] A house of the legislature has power to adopt any procedure and change it at any time without notice and cannot tie its own hands by establishing unchangeable rules.[70] A resolution resulting in the expulsion of a member is not a bill of attainder.[71] The legislature cannot reinstate an expelled member except when lawfully in session.[72] After a legislature has adjourned sine die, it is a thing of the past and cannot be reconvened upon the mandate of judicial power.[73] The acts of public officers are subject to investigation[74] in the manner prescribed by law.[75] An officer is not rendered personally responsible by misappropriating hold the office only for the remainder of his predecessor's term. State v. Brooks [Wyo.] 84 P. 488.

59. Where at the close of the regular session of the legislature another senator was elected president pro tem, the right to the office of lieutenant governor passed to him. People v. Cornforth [Colo.] 81 P. 871. A statutory provision that whenever by resignation of the governor the powers and duties of his office shall devolve upon the lieutenant governor, the governor's salary shall cease, does not show that it was the intention of the framers of the constitution that the president pro tem of the senate should become lieutenant governor de jure. Id.

60. People v. Cornforth [Colo.] 81 P. 871.

61. Until the commission is issued the appointment is not completed and the governor may refuse to issue it after the nomination is confirmed. Harrington v. Pardee [Cal. App.] 82 P. 83.

62. He is not deprived of property without due process where removed by the appointing power who has filed a reason for removal with the secretary of state. State v. Grant [Wyo.] 81 P. 795.

63. State v. Grant [Wyo.] 81 P. 795.

64. Under the constitution and statutes of Wyoming a state superintendent of a water district appointed by the governor is removable for maladministration by the governor and is not an officer removable by impeachment only. State v. Grant [Wyo.] 81 P. 795. He is not a judicial officer who must be impeached. State v. Grant [Wyo.] 82 P. 2. If the governor should wish to remove a member of the board of control established by Laws 1905, c. 5384, it is presumed that he would do so in the manner prescribed by law. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

65. The constitution of Florida prohibits them from holding any civil office during the time for which they were elected. In re Members of Legislature [Fla.] 39 So. 63.

66. In re Members of Legislature [Fla.] 39 So. 63.

67. That no salary or emolument is attached to the office of the members of the board of control does not make it any less a civil office which a member of the legislature may not hold during his term. In re Members of Legislature [Fla.] 39 So. 63.

68. Not by a constitutional provision that a member who is convicted of being influenced by bribery shall be forever prohibited from holding any office of public trust. French v. State Senate, 146 Cal. 604, 80 P. 1031.

69, 70, 71, 72. French v. State Senate, 146 Cal. 604, 80 P. 1031.

73. French v. State Senate, 146 Cal. 604, 80 P. 1031. A court cannot make process, to compel a house of the legislature to reinstate expelled members, effective where prior to the issuance thereof the legislature has adjourned sine die and will be composed of different members when it reconvenes. Id.

74. Laws 1899, p. 797, c. 370, § 6, subd. 3, authorizes the right of investigation by the civil service commission of the action of any person in the public service and is not limited to an investigation of collusion between an examiner and subordinate of the commission and persons in the public service. People v. Milliken, 110 App. Div. 579, 97 N. Y. S. 223.

75. In proceedings by the state civil service commission to investigate the acts of a state officer, the title of the papers "In the matter of the alleged violation of section 24 the fund provided for the payment of the clerks of his office.[76] One department of the state government may exercise power properly belonging to another,[77] hence the action of the legislature in expelling a member is not subject to revision by the courts.[78]

§ 5. Fiscal management.[79]—No money can be paid out of the state treasury except upon statutory authorization,[80] and as a general rule auditors are forbidden to draw their warrant for a claim unless an appropriation is made for its payment.[81] Appropriations cannot be made for a private purpose,[82] and the fact that reliance has been placed upon such appropriation will not create an obligation against the state.[83] A suit to enjoin the unlawful disbursement of state funds must be brought against the officer charged with the duty of making the disbursement.[84] The state of the civil service law in the department of the fiscal supervisor of state charities" does not indicate that the commission was seeking to exceed their powers granted by Laws 1899, p. 797, c. 370, § 6. People v. Milliken, 110 App. Div. 579, 97 N. Y. S. 223.

76. That the state auditor misappropriates the fund provided for the payment of clerks does not render him personally liable for a clerk's salary. Shuck v. Coulter [Ky.] 90 S. W. 271.

77. The department of the legislature with power of impeachment may not, for the sole purpose of vindicating the governor whose term would expire before he could be impeached or tried, appoint a committee to sit during vacation and investigate charges against him. Such power is in the judicial department alone. Ex parte Caldwell, 138 F. 487. Such committee being appointed and acting without authority of law has no power to incarcerate a witness for refusing to obey its subpoena. Id. The exercise of the option to retire state bonds under Acts 1896, p. 30, c. 34, § 7, is a legislative and not an executive power. Colbert v. State [Miss.] 39 So. 65.

78. Under the rule 'that one department shall not exercise the functions of another. French v. State Senate, 146 Cal. 604, 80 P. 1031.

79. See 4 C. L. 1519.

80. Gibony v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 91 S. W. 732. The auditor cannot be compelled to draw his warrant where the funds appropriated for the purpose had been expended and no agreement on his part to do so would be binding on the state. Hager v. Shuck, 27 Ky. L. R. 957, 87 S. W. 300. While Ky. St. 1903, § 4001a, subsec. 4, authorizes the auditor of public accounts to employ an additional clerk at a salary not to exceed $1,200 per year, payable out of the state treasury, on account of the merger of the land office into the auditor's office, it is not intended thereby to restrict the expenditures on account of services that may be required in the land office department to $1,200 annually. Id. Under Const. §§ 63, 64, 68, 69, 73, in the absence of an appropriation to pay state bond issued under Acts 1896, p. 27, c. 34, the governor has no power to order such bonds paid out of other money in the treasury. Colbert v. State [Miss.] 39 So. 65. Gen. Acts 1903, p. 50, § 1, subd. 36, making an appropriation for the department of archives and history, implied, repealed Acts 1900-01, making an appropriation for the same purpose. Owen v. Beale [Ala.] 39 So. 907. Appropriation for educational purposes held not invalid in view of prior appropriations and the apparent intention of the constitutional convention. Agricultural & Mechanical College v. Hager, 27 Ky. L. R. 1178, 87 S. W. 1125. The act of May 10, 1902, creating a bureau of inspection of public officers, etc., is not rendered unconstitutional by the provision that the expense of maintaining the bureau shall be paid by the counties out of the general county fund in proportion to their population, nor by the provision that each taxing body shall be chargeable with the expense of auditing the accounts under its jurisdiction. State v. Shumate, 72 Ohio St. 487, 74 N. E. 588.

81. Laws 1905, p. 192, c. 99, prescribing the method of paying certain state officers, did not repeal B. & C. Comp. § 2398, providing that no warrant shall be drawn in payment of any claim unless an appropriation has first been made therefor. Calbreath v. Dunbar [Or.] 81 P. 366. Acts 1896, p. 30, c. 34, § 7, providing for the issuance of state bonds and giving the state an option after five years to retire them, did not constitute an appropriation for their payment. Colbert v. State [Miss.] 39 So. 65. Under the rule that no warrants shall be drawn unless an appropriation has been provided to meet it, the auditor properly refuses to draw a warrant in excess of an appropriation. Crouter v. Bennet [Colo.] 81 P. 761.

82. To pay materialmen who furnished material to a contractor who was paid by the state but who became bankrupt without paying them. State v. Houser, 125 Wis. 256, 104 N. W. 77. Laws 1895, c. 1, p. 57, to provide for the encouragement of the manufacture of sugar and chicory, and to provide a compensation therefor, is void. Oxnard Beet Sugar Co. v. State [Neb.] 105 N. W. 716. A provision for the erection of a public building at the joint expense of the state and a parish is not a violation of the rule that appropriations shall not be made for private use and forbidding the state to engage in private enterprise. Benedict v. New Orleans [La.] 39 So. 792.

83. Where manufacturers, for whose benefit the appropriation is made, pay larger prices for their material relying on the appropriation for remuneration. Oxnard Beet Sugar Co. v. State [Neb.] 105 N. W. 716.

84. Not against the superintendent of the penitentiary who is not authorized to disburse state funds and where no money can be paid out except on warrants of the secretary of state. Sears v. James [Or.] 82 P. 14.

and not an individual taxpayer may sue to recover funds already misapplied.[85] Appropriations must be drawn out within the time prescribed,[86] but appropriations for specified purposes are not forfeited because not drawn during the fiscal year for which they were made, unless such is the plain intent of the legislature.[87] The constitution of Kansas prohibits the state from being a party in carrying on any work of internal improvement.[88] Under a rule that no money shall be paid out except upon warrant of the auditor drawn upon the treasurer, and by check of the treasurer upon a depositary, the mailing of a check to the proper address constitutes a payment.[89]

§ 6. Claims.[90]—Claims must be properly itemized and accompanied by vouchers.[91]

§ 7. Actions by and against.[92]—That the governor is the chief executive and it is his duty to see that all laws are faithfully executed does not give him power to sue in the name of the state.[93] In Indiana the state may maintain an action for possession and to quiet title to its lands.[94] A state cannot be sued in its own courts[95] except with its consent clearly conferred by legislative act.[96] Federal

85. Sears v. James [Or.] 82 P. 14.

86. Because an appropriation is required to be drawn out only as necessity for its use arises, and is not required to be spent within two years, it is not obnoxious to a provision that no appropriation shall be made for a longer period than two years. Benedict v. New Orleans [La.] 39 So. 792.

87. A per annum appropriation for the support of an agricultural college. Maryland Agricultural College v. Atkinson [Md.] 62 A. 1035.

88. The construction, operation, and maintenance of an oil refinery for the purpose of receiving, storing, and manufacturing crude and refined oil and its by-products and marketing the same is a work of internal improvement. State v. Kelly [Kan.] 81 P. 450. An appropriation to pay interest on "other state indebtedness" held to include bonds issued under Acts 1896, p. 27, c. 34, and to disclose an intention that such bonds should remain outstanding. Colbert v. State [Miss.] 39 So. 65.

89. Gibony v. Commonwealth [Ky.] 91 S. W. 732. If the check is not received the payee may, by executing an indemnity bond and proving loss of the check, receive a duplicate Id.

90. See 4 C. L. 1520.

91. A statute requiring the state auditor to require all bills presented to be itemized and accompanied by vouchers applies to all claims which may by law be presented for allowance, and "vouchers" means all written evidence which serve to prove the truth of the claims and accounts presented. Clement v. Graham [Vt.] 63 A. 146.

92. See 4 C. L. 1521.

93. Henry v. State [Miss.] 39 So. 856, Const. art. 5, defining executive powers, supersedes any inherent common-law power of the governor to sue in the name of the state. Id.

NOTE. The governor's right to sue: As a general rule the governor is confined to his granted powers and denied any inherent rights. Logan v. Pennsylvania Rd. Co., 132 Pa. St. 403. He has been allowed to sue on bonds payable to the governor on behalf of the state on the theory that he is a corporation sole. Gov. v. Allen, 8 Humph. [Tenn.] 176. Again for the purposes of suits between states he represents the state, and by rule of the Federal supreme court, service is to be made upon him and the attorney-general. Grayson v. Virginia, 3 Dall. [U. S.] 320. A few states expressly authorize the governor to engage other counsel under certain disabilities of the attorney-general (Orton v. State, 12 Wis. 509; Alexander v. State, 56 Ga. 478; State v. Dubaclet, 25 La. Ann. 161), but under the general duty to execute the laws he has no right to execute them himself (Shields v. Bennett, 8 W. Va. 74; In re Fire, etc., Com'rs, 19 Colo. 482; In re Neagle, 135 U. S. 1, 34 Law. Ed. 55; Cahill v. State Auditors, 127 Mich. 487). See 19 Harv. L. R. 524.

94. Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 7164, when construed in connection with the whole of Acts 1883, p. 170, c. 24, relative to procedure when possession of its lands is unlawfully withheld, does not apply where the question of title is involved. McCaslin v. State [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 844.

95. State v. Appleton [Kan.] 84 P. 753. There is no statute authorizing a suit to have deeds executed to the state by the comptroller on sale of land for delinquent taxes declared void. Sanders v. Saxton, 182 N. Y. 477, 75 N. E. 529. The state may grant the right to bring suit against it and at any time take that right away without impairing the obligation of its contracts. Wheeler v. Board of Control of State Public School [Mich.] 100 N. W. 394. Eleemosynary institutions maintained by the state cannot be sued for injuries occasioned by an inmate or employe though subject to be sued in other matters. Leavell v. Western Kentucky Asylum for Insane [Ky.] 91 S. W. 671. Mandamus to compel public officers to levy a tax to pay bonds is not a suit against the state because such officers have no authority to exercise such power. Graham v. Folsom, 200 U. S. 248, 50 Law. Ed. ——. Ancillary relief in a Federal court by way of injunction in aid of a decree in a suit over state taxation in which the state has consented to be sued is not a suit against the state. Gunter v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 200 U. S. 273, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

96. Consent to be sued is given where the courts are forbidden by the 11th amendment of the Federal constitution to assume jurisdiction of actions against a state,[97] but this provision cannot be applied to nullify the power of congress to regulate interstate commerce by barring judicial investigation of state action.[98] The Federal supreme court has original jurisdiction of a dispute between states in their sovereign capacity.[99] Limitations do not run against actions in favor of the state,[1] but a claim against the state is barred by the same limitations which would bar it as between private citizens.[2] The state may waive the defense of limitations.[3] In the absence of statutory authority,[4] costs cannot be awarded against the state in a civil action.[5] attorney general is authorized to defend on behalf of the state a suit to enjoin the collection of taxes in which the state is interested. Gunter v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 200 U. S. 273, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

STATUTES.

97. A suit in equity against state officers to restrain them from initiating judicial proceedings in the courts of the state to enforce a statute alleged to be unconstitutional is in reality a suit against the state of which the Federal courts are prohibited by the eleventh amendment of the Federal constitution to exercise jurisdiction. Hutchinson v. Smith, 140 F. 982.

98. Does not prevent an action by a citizen of another state to restrain the state railroad commission from enforcing an order affecting interstate commerce. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Mississippi Railroad Commission [C. C. A.] 138 F. 327.

99. A controversy between state authorities which involves a dispute respecting the boundary. State of Louisiana v. State of Mississippi, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

1. In Indiana since 1881 the common-law rule has prevailed. McCaslin v. State [Ind. App.] 75 N. E. 844.

2. Action by a county to recover a sum which should have been paid as taxes but which was lost because the state exempted certain railroad lands in the county from taxation. People v. Miller, 181 N. Y. 439, 74 N. E. 477. A creditor of the state for the payment of whose claim the law makes no provision is not required to file such claim within two years after its accrual with the auditor for adjustment and allowance, and failure to do so will not bar an action thereon. Lancaster County v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 187, following State v. Moore, 40 Neb. 854, 59 N. W. 755.

3. A resolution of the state senate passed in accordance with the provisions of Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 4768, authorizes a claimant to maintain action against the state on a statute barred claim. Lancaster County v. State [Neb.] 104 N. W. 187.

4. A state is liable for costs and disbursements in civil actions brought by it, but not in criminal prosecutions. State v. Buckman [Minn.] 104 N. W. 289.

5. State v. Williams [Md.] 61 A. 297.

§ 1. Enactment.[6]—Constitutional provisions for the government of the legislative department in the enactment of laws are mandatory,[7] and the courts will take judicial notice of the course of legislation so required;[8] but in Texas the courts will not, for the purpose of invalidating a law, go into an investigation to determine whether, as a matter of fact, the legislature in enacting it failed to observe some rule of procedure prescribed by the constitution.[9] Such provisions should receive a reasonable interpretation, and only such legislative acts as offend their spirit and meaning should be overthrown.[10] Under a constitutional provision requiring three several readings before the passage of a bill, an amendment which does not materially change the bill may be made after the second reading.[11] From the unanimous passage of a bill it will be presumed that dispensing with the reading thereof in full was authorized by a two-thirds vote.[12] A constitutional provision that no bill shall be passed unless it shall have been printed and placed in final form upon the desks of the members at least three calendar legislative days prior to its final passage is sufficiently complied with where the bill as it originated in one house, with all the amendments there made, had been printed and placed on each member's desk for the requisite time.[13] Some bills are required to be passed by a two-thirds vote,[14] but, under a constitutional provision requiring a two-thirds vote to appropriate money, except in specified cases, including defraying the "necessary" expenses of government,[15] the legislature is the judge of what expenses are necessary, and its determination cannot be reviewed by the courts.[16] In some states bills after their passage must be signed by the presiding officers in the presence of their respective houses.[17]

6. See 4 C. L. 1522.

7. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. Requirement that every bill enacted shall be signed by the presiding officers of both houses of the legislature. Lynch v. Hutchinson, 219 Ill. 193, 76 N. E. 370.

8. Fortune v. Buncombe County Com'rs [N. C.] 52 S. E. 950.

9. The validity of an act passed at a special session was assailed on the ground that the governor had not called the attention of the legislature to such legislation. Sp. Laws 27th Leg. (1st Called Sess.), p. 1. State v. Larkin [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 912. The validity of the statute was further assailed on the ground that it was special legislation of which no previous notice had been given, but the court declined to look into the matter. Id.

10. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

11. Const. art. 2, § 14. An amendment was made to a bill authorizing a county bond issue by striking out a provision as to the purchase of the bonds before maturity, since such amendment did not increase the amount of bonds or tax, or make any material change in the original bill. Chatham County Com'rs v. Stafford, 138 N. C. 453, 50 S. E. 862.

12. Under a constitutional provision that the reading of bills at length may be dispensed with by a two-thirds vote of the quorum present, which fact shall be entered on the journal. Const. § 66. City of Uniontown v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 814.

13. Const. art. 3, § 15. Tax Law, Laws 1905, pp. 474-477, c. 241, §§ 315-324, valid. People v. Reardon, 110 App. Div. 821, 97 N. Y. S. 535.

14. The Medical College of Alabama is not an educational institution under the absolute control of the state, and an act appropriating money for it without the requisite two-thirds vote was void under Const. § 73. State v. Sowell [Ala.] 39 So. 246. Laws 1891, p. 483, c. 259, creating a corporation to maintain a public waterway from a point on the Niagara river and supply water to villages and their inhabitants, did not require a two-thirds vote for its passage, under Const. art. 3, § 20, as an appropriation of public property to private use; the state having no property in the river did not appropriate any. Niagara County Irr. & Water Supply Co. v. College Heights Land Co., 98 N. Y. S. 4. Mortgage Tax Law, Laws 1905, p. 2059, c. 729, amending Tax Law, Laws 1896, p. 795, c. 908, did not require the assent of two-thirds of the members of each house for its passage, under Const. art. 3, § 20, because it provided for the payment of one-half of the tax into the general fund of the county, for the money so disposed of is not the public money of the state. People v. Ronner, 110 App. Div. 816, 97 N. Y. S. 550.

15. Const. art. 5, § 31. State v. Moore [Ark.] 88 S. W. 881.

16. Act app. Mar. 17, 1905, appropriating money to promote the efficiency of the state guard, was valid, though passed by a majority vote. State v. Moore [Ark.] 88 S. W. 881.

17. Such a constitutional requirement is mandatory. Lynch v. Hutchinson, 219 Ill.

Under a constitutional provision prohibiting the introduction of any new bill after the fiftieth day of the session, the validity of a substitute for a bill, after such limit, depends upon whether the subject-matter thereof is germane to that of the original bill.[18]

In the absence of any fixed rule the day on which a bill is presented to the governor is to be excluded in determining the time within which he is required to act,[19] except when the legislature, by adjournment, prevents its return, in which case it shall be a law, unless returned within three days after the beginning of the next session,[20] and full days of twenty-four hours each are contemplated.[21]

A statute need not be unconditional and of immediate effect.[22] The time when statutes not given immediate effect shall become operative is generally prescribed by constitutional provisions[23] or general law,[24] and a statute may be held in abeyance by the indirect effect of a constitutional provision.[25] Under a constitutional provision for the taking effect of a general law 40 days after its passage, unless it shall state that the public welfare requires that it shall take effect sooner,[26] it has been held that the legislature may, by the terms of the act itself, postpone its taking effect to a later period.[27]

Special sessions.[28]—The constitution of Texas prohibits legislation at a called session on any subject not recommended by the governor, but the courts will not look into the matter for the purpose of invalidating an act passed.[29]

The journals.[30]—Legislative journals may be looked into for the purpose of ascertaining whether a law was properly enacted,[31] but in California, where the indorsements on a bill show that it was properly enrolled, authenticated, and depos-193, 76 N. E. 370. Journal record held to show a sufficient compliance with Const. 1901, § 66, in this respect. Mitchell v. Gadsden [Ala.] 40 So. 350.

18. A bill to provide for the election of drain commissioners in Berrien county (Local Act 448, 1903) was germane to the subject-matter of a bill to amend § 1, c. 2, Act 254, Pub. Acts 1897 (the general drain law), being an amendment of that law by implication. Attorney General v. Stryker [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 518, 104 N. W. 737.

19. Carter v. Henry [Miss.] 39 So. 690.

20. The bill having been sent to the governor March 16, March 20 being Sunday, and the legislature adjourning March 22 at 12:45 p. m., he sent his return message to the senate on that day, but his secretary delivered the bill to the secretary of state, who included it with the Acts of 1904. Held that the bill (Laws 1904, p. 47, c. 57) did not become a law that session, the full five days not having expired before adjournment. Carter v. Henry [Miss.] 39 So. 690.

21. Const. § 72. Carter v. Henry [Miss.] 39 So. 690.

22. Const. art. 4, § 16, prescribing the procedure for the enactment of a law, does not have any bearing on the time of its taking effect. Harrison v. Colgan [Cal.] 82 P. 674. It may be conditional and made to depend upon a subsequent event. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. An act may provide upon its face that the duty of compliance with its provisions may depend upon the happening of a condition or contingency. Wright v. Cunningham [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 293.

23. St. 1905, p. 224, c. 249, amending Pol. Code § 736, by raising the salaries of certain judges, having been passed without an emergency clause, was of no force until 60 days after its passage, under Pol. Code § 323. Harrison v. Colgan [Cal.] 82 P. 674.

24. Act Mar. 20, 1905 (St. 1905, p. 422, c. 354), regulating chattel loans, prescribed no time for taking effect, and therefore did not take effect until 60 days after passage, under Pol. Code § 323, i. e. May 19, 1905. Ex parte Sohncke [Cal.] 82 P. 956.

25. St. 1905, p. 224, c. 249, amending Pol. Code § 736, raising the salaries of certain judicial officers, was not operative as to judges in office when it was passed, under Const. art. 6, § 17, prohibiting the increase or decrease of a judge's salary during his term of office. Harrison v. Colgan [Cal.] 82 P. 674.

26. Const. art. 2, § 20. Wright v. Cunningham [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 293. The expression, "This act shall be in full force and effect" was held to give an act immediate operation as to certain matters for the regulation of which there seemed to be urgent need. Laws 1905, p. 856, c. 703, so far as it imposed certain duties on the auditor of the county, which office was created by the act, went into effect July 1, 1905, the beginning of such officer's term. Fortune v. Buncombe County Com'rs [N. C.] 52 S. E. 950.

27. Wright v. Cunningham [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 293.

28. See 4 C. L. 1524.

29. State v. Larkin [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 912.

30. See 4 C. L. 1524.

31. When the certificates of passage provided for by Laws 1892, p. 1676, c. 682, § 40, as amended by Laws 1894, p. 123, c. 53, fail to show the presence of three-fifths of the members on the passage of a tax bill, as required by Const. art. 3, § 25, the journals may be consulted. In re Week's Estate, 109 App. Div. 859, 96 N. Y. S. 876. That act, in ited with the secretary of state as having been passed, the journal of either house cannot be looked into to rebut the presumption of its proper passage.[32] The silence of the journals upon any step in the enactment of a law is not affirmative evidence to the courts that such step was or was not taken, except in those respects where the constitution mandatorily requires the journals to show the action taken.[33] Under a constitutional provision requiring amendments to bills, with the names of those voting for or against them to be entered on the journal, and also requiring a vote to be taken and the names of those voting for or against concurring in amendments made by the other house to be entered on the journal,[34] such concurrence was sufficiently recorded where the names of the members voting were entered, though the amendment was not set forth in the journal of the house concurring.[35]

Submission to popular vote.[36]—While the legislative power cannot be delegated,[37] yet the enactment of a law to become locally applicable upon vote of the people or of a local board or body is valid;[38] but a different rule prevails in Tennessee, and, under its constitution, no legislative act can be so framed that it must derive its efficacy from a popular vote.[39] In California the governor has power to cause the constitutional publication to be made of a statute submitting a bonding proposition to the people, even though the statute makes no provision or publication.[40] Under an act authorizing cities to issue bonds, requiring an election on the subject and providing for a contest of such election, it will be presumed, on a collateral attack and in the absence of any contest, that the election was duly held and it will not be invalidated for failure of the council proceedings to show the appointment or election of returning officers.[41]

Presumptions and evidence as to passage.[42]—In California the indorsements on a bill of enrollment, authentication, and deposit with the secretary of state as having been passed are presumptive of proper passage and cannot be contradicted by the journals.[43]

Publication.[44]

§ 2. Special or local laws.[45] In general.—A law of a general nature is one whose subject-matter is common to all the people of the state.[46] Under the Ohio so far as it assumes to make such certificates conclusive evidence of the passage of the bill, is unconstitutional. In re Stickney's Estate, 110 App. Div. 294, 97 N. Y. S. 336. The speaker of the assembly cannot, of his own motion, after the expiration of his term and the life of the assembly, amend his original certificate of the passage of a bill. Id. The constitutional provision, relative to the passage of tax laws, applies to the passage of collateral inheritance or transfer tax laws. Id.

32. Sacramento Pav. Co. v. Anderson [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1069.

33. As, for example, the entry of the ayes and noes upon the final passage of a bill. West v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 412.

34. Const. 1901, § 64. State v. Porter [Ala.] 40 So. 144.

35. State v. Porter [Ala.] 40 Sa. 144.

36. See 4 C. L. 1524.

37. Wright v. Cunningham [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 293. Shannon's Code, § 7423, which fixes no schedule of credits for good conduct of prisoners in the county work house, but leaves the whole matter to the board of commissioners, is an unconstitutional delegation of legislative power. Fite v. State, 114 Tenn. 646, 88 S. W. 941.

38. The power delegated in such case is not a law "making" power. Sandys v. Williams [Or.] 80 P. 642; Fouts v. Hood River [Or.] 81 P. 370; Childers v. Shepherd [Ala.] 39 So. 235.

39. Acts 1905, p. 670, c. 316, amending Acts 1903, p. 408, c. 177, relative to the running at large of small stock so as to make it effective only in such counties as may adopt it by majority vote, is unconstitutional. Wright v. Cunningham [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 293.

40. Const. art. 16, prohibits the creation of a state debt exceeding $300,000 without such submission, and requires a statute proposing it to be published in each county. Held that the governor's duty to execute the laws (Const. art. 5, §§ 1, 7) empowered him to direct the secretary of state to make the required publication. Spear v. Reeves [Cal.] 83 P. 432. Such publication was not rendered insufficient by the secretary of state's failure to accompany the statute with a certificate of its authenticity. Id.

41. Acts 1903, p. 59. Blakey v. City Council of Montgomery [Ala.] 39 So. 745.

42. See 4 C. L. 1524.

43. Sacramento Pav. Co. v. Anderson [Cal. App.] 82 P. 1069.

44. See 4 C. L. 1524.

45. See 4 C. L. 1525.

46. Richardson v. Board of Education [Kan.] 84 P. 538.

constitution all such laws must have uniform operation throughout the state [47] upon all persons similarly situated,[48] but a statute making an exception of certain counties should be distinguished from one which limits the operation of the law throughout the state.[49] General laws are those which apply to and operate uniformly upon all members of any class of persons, places, or things requiring legislation peculiar to themselves in the matters covered by the laws,[50] the difference between laws of a general nature and general laws being that the subject-matter of the former must be one common to the people of the entire state, while all that is required of the latter is uniformity of operation.[51] In Alabama, under the wording of its constitutional provisions,[52] a law which is general in its terms and is in good faith so framed that all parts of the state may come within the circle of its operation is a general law, notwithstanding there may be localities where there are no objects for its present operation, or where there are special laws which must be repealed before the general law could become operative there.[53] The terms "general law" and "public law" are not equivalent.[54]

A local law presumably was passed to meet local and exceptional conditions.[55] In Alabama, within the meaning of the constitution, a law is local if it applies to less than the whole state, although its purpose may have an indirect bearing on the whole state;[56] but in Louisiana a statute requiring a certain parish to build a court house, to the erection of which the state contributed, was held not to be a local act, the constitution and legislation having treated the question of a court house as one

47. Section 1230b, Rev. St., providing for the fees of sheriffs in all counties having a population of 22,500 or over. In taxing poundage sheriffs must be governed by § 1230. Childs v. Perry, 26 Ohio C. C. 543, 5 Ohio C. C. (U. S.) 33.

Lacking in uniformity: That part of the new school code found in 97 O. L. p. 334 recreating and legalizing special school districts. State of Ohio v. Hickman, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 175, 27 Ohio C. C. 216. That part of original § 2267 (repealed 96 O. L., 96; see 1536-221), which provided that no public improvement, except sidewalks and sewers, should be made by cities of the third grade of the first class until the majority of the owners of the property to be assessed therefor had petitioned the council for the improvement, etc., was legislation upon a subject of a general nature and was unconstitutional. Adkins v. Toledo, 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 433. The amendments to Rev. St. §§ 3437, 3439, relating to street railway grants. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Urbana B. & N. R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 583, 26 Ohio C. C. 180. Provision in Ohio Municipal Code limiting its operation with reference to market house commissioners for an indefinite time in the city of Cleveland. Slatmyer v. Springborn, 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 89, 26 Ohio C. C. 100.

48. A statute is not invalid for lack of uniform operation because it applies to railroads only and to a particular class of employes. Ignatius Froelich v. Toledo & Ohio Cent. R. Co., 5 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 6, 24 Ohio C. C. 359.

49. The statutory exceptions which have been made relative to the compensation of prosecuting attorneys in different counties, the provision for the appointment of assistants in certain counties, and the further provision that in counties not having a county solicitor the prosecuting attorney shall act as the legal adviser of the county commissioners, who shall fix his compensation, are not unconstitutional. State v. Taylor, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 505. Act Sept. 12, 1881 (Acts 1880-81, p. 608), prohibiting the sale of spirituous liquors in Jefferson County, is unconstitutional as special legislation. Edwards v. State, 123 Ga. 542, 51 S. E. 630, following Papworth v. State, 103 Ga. 36, 31 S. E. 402.

50. Richardson v. Board of Education [Kan.] 84 P. 538.

51. An act for the organization, maintenance, and control of common schools may be a general or a special law, but it is not a law of a general nature, for its subject-matter is not one of a general nature. Richardson v. Board of Education [Kan.] 84 P. 538. Art. 10, c. 92, Gen. St. 1901, for the organization, etc., of high schools in cities of the first class, is a general law but not a law of a general nature. Id.

52. Const. § 110, defining general and local laws. State v. Thompson [Ala.] 38 So. 679.

53. Acts 1903, p. 438, relative to general elections, including county superintendents of education, is a general law, although Act Feb. 7, 1899 (Acts 1898-99, p. 676), makes different provisions for the election of those officers in Montgomery county. State v. Thompson [Ala.] 38 So. 679.

54. Every general law is necessarily a public law, but every public law is not a general law. State v. Sayre [Fla.] 39 So. 240. Any law affecting the public within the limits of a county or community would be a public law though not a general law. Id.

55. Nissley v. Lancaster County, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 405.

56. Const. § 110. Acts 1903, p. 488, creating the 15th judicial circuit, composed of counties formerly belonging to other circuits under the general law, is local. State v. Sayre [Fla.] 39 So. 240.

in which the whole state is interested.[57] The fact that a local act adopts some of the provisions of a general law does not make it any less a local law.[58] Special or local legislation is prohibited, with more or less stringency, by many state constitutions.[59] Curative acts applying to all places, things, or subjects which are affected by the conditions to be remedied are not special acts within the constitutional prohibition,[60] nor does the reservation of existing rights and privileges in a general act render the act objectionable.[61] Where the constitution prohibits the passage of local or special laws in certain enumerated cases and in all other cases where a general law can be made applicable,[62] the general provision is addressed to the discretion of the legislature,[63] while in the enumerated cases a rule is established which cannot be evaded.[64] In Missouri the organization of a criminal court in a county having more than 50,000 population is not objectionable as special legislation, though a general law can be made applicable.[65]

57. Acts 1904, No. 96, p. 214, and amendatory Act 1904, No. 179, p. 369. Benedict v. New Orleans [La.] 39 So. 792.

58. Acts 1896-97, p. 265, § 6, establishing the Tuscaloosa county law and equity court, is a local law, though it incorporated provisions of the general law for the drawing of juries, etc. Green v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 362. And that being a local law, Loc. Acts 1903, p. 309, amending it, is not subject to the objection of enacting a local act by the partial repeal of a general law, under Const. 105. Id.

59. Laws 1905, p. 1160, c. 501, which became a law before the census of 1905 was taken, is not a special act within Const. art. 12, § 2, because it provides, with some exceptions, that its provisions shall not apply to a city that becomes one of the second class under that census until 1908, it relating to no particular city but to all of the third class. Koster v. Coyne, 110 App. Div. 742, 97 N. Y. S. 433. Act Feb. 20, 1902 (23 St. at Large, p. 1168), to organize a union station company, does not violate Const. art. 9, § 2, prohibiting the amendment of charters by special acts, in that it grants powers to several railroad companies where it was passed under a concurrent resolution as provided in the said section. Riley v. Charleston Union Station Co., 71 S. C. 457, 51 S. E. 485. Pol. Code §§ 1617, 1662, 1663, providing for kindergartens in cities and towns, do not, as construed, violate Const. art. 4, § 25, prohibiting the passage of local or special laws for the management of common schools. Los Angeles County v. Kirk [Cal.] 83 P. 250. Laws 1905, c. 5384, reorganizing the government of the several state educational institutions, is not unconstitutional as special legislation relative to certain institutions under Const. art. 3, § 25 (State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929), nor is it special legislation on account of its incorporation of the state board of control, since that is not an "educational, etc., company or association," but is a subordinate public agency established in aid of a public purpose (Id.). Acts 1903, p. 255, c. 145, for improvement of highways at cost of property benefited, excluding lands not within 2 miles, as construed, is not local or special legislation. Spaulding v. Mott [Ind.] 76 N. E. 620. Act No. 202, p. 391, of 1902, relative to the powers of police juries throughout the state (Orleans parish excepted), is not a local or special law in the sense of Const. art. 48. Blanchard v. Abraham [La.] 40 So. 379. Laws 1901, c. 101, p. 107, limiting the number of liquor licenses in places bordering on the patrol limits in cities of 50,000 population, is void as aimed at a special contingency and not expected to apply equally to all cities of the class. State v. Schraps [Minn.] 106 N. W. 106. Under Acts 1898, c. 80, p. 95, and Code 1892, § 3587, both prohibiting parallel or competing railroads from consolidating, the legislature could not pass a special act granting two such railroads power to consolidate without violating Const. § 87, forbidding the suspension of a general law for the benefit of any individual, private corporation, or association. State v. Mobile, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 38 So. 732. Pub. Laws 1905, p. 407, which attempt to validate proceeding by cities, being limited to those "heretofore voting," is special legislation. Murphy v. Long Branch [N. J. Law] 61 A. 593. A navigable stream is not a highway within the meaning of a constitutional provision prohibiting local or special legislation "to lay out, open, alter or work roads or highways." Const. South Carolina, art. 3, § 34. Manigault v. Springs, 199 U. S. 473, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

60. Gen. Laws 1905, cc. 76, 77, pp. 93, 94, legalizing school bonds heretofore voted upon by cities under Gen. Laws 1893, c. 204, p. 333 and amendatory acts, are curative acts. State v. Brown [Minn.] 106 N. W. 477.

61. Certain vested rights of corporations were reserved in the repeal of prior acts by the act concerning trust companies (Revision of 1899, P. L. 1899, p. 461). State v. Twining [N. J. Law] 62 A. 402.

62. Const. art. 4, § 22. People v. Chicago Election Com'rs [Ill.] 77 N. E. 321.

63. People v. Chicago Election Com'rs [Ill.] 77 N. E. 321. The legislature is the exclusive judge whether its object may be obtained by a law general in form or by a special law. Richardson v. Board of Education [Kan.] 84 P. 538.

64. People v. Chicago Election Com'rs [Ill.] 77 N. E. 321.

65. Const. art. 6, § 1, recognizes such courts in vesting the judicial power of the state and § 31 prohibiting their establishment "except in counties having a population exceeding 50,000," fully recognizes the general assembly's power to establish them in such counties State v. Etchman, 189 Mo. 648, 88 S. W. 643. The power to establish

Some state constitutions require notice of intention to apply for the enactment of special or local legislation, stating the substance thereof, to be given and published,[66] proof of which notice and its due publication must be entered on the journal,[67] and any essential change from the substance of the bill noticed, made by the legislature in its passage, will render the act void for insufficient notice.[68] This such courts carries with it the power to provide for the necessary incidents of the court. Id. It is not necessary to include every such county in the state in organizing such courts, and Rev. St. 1899, p. 2568, § 1, organizing a criminal court in Buchanan county, is not void as special legislation under Const. art. 4, § 53, subd. 32. Id.

66. Const. § 106. Law v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 798. In case of local laws passed under the old constitution, constitutional notices are presumed to have been given. Norvell v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 357.

Notice required: Act. Sept. 26, 1903 (Acts 1903, p. 369), for removal of causes from a city court to other courts in the county, is a local law. Dudley v. Fitzpatrick [Ala.] 39 So. 384.

Notice not required: Acts 1903, p. 438, relative to general elections, even if § 106 of the act is intended to except localities having special election laws. State v. Thompson [Ala.] 38 So. 679. Acts 1903, p. 59, authorizing cities and towns to issue bonds for certain purposes, does not become a local act requiring previous notice, under Const. § 106, by reason of the exemption of two cities from its provisions, such exemption being provided for in Const. § 225. Blakey v. City Council of Montgomery [Ala.] 39 So. 745. Acts 1903, p. 117, providing for the change of county seats, being a general law. State v. Porter [Ala.] 40 So. 144. Act No. 96 of 1904, p. 214, requiring Orleans parish to erect a court house, to which the state contributed, and amendatory Act No. 179, p 369, of 1904, did not require notice under Const. art. 50, the project being one in which the whole state was interested. Benedict v. New Orleans [La.] 39 So. 792.

Requisites of notice: The word "substance," as employed in Const. § 106, cannot be said to be synonymous with subject or mere purpose, but means the essential or material part, essence, abstract, compendium, meaning. Ex parte Black [Ala.] 40 So. 133. Discussion of the meaning of "substance" in this provision. State v. Tunstall [Ala.] 40 So. 135. It is not necessary for the notice of a local act amending an existing act to state whether the new amendment shall be in the form of an act amending a section of the original act or not, that not being a matter of substance Id. Notice of Act Sept. 26, 1903 (Acts 1903, p. 369), for removal of causes from a city court to other courts, was not insufficient for failure to refer to details of procedure for such removal, or to name the particular courts named in the act as passed. Dudley v. Fitzpatrick [Ala.] 39 So. 384. The published notice of intention need not be signed. Id.

Sufficient notice: Of an act to create a new county out of portions of Henry, Dale, and Geneva counties, sufficient statement of the substance of the proposed act, under Const. § 106. Law v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 798. Of Act Sept. 26, 1903 (Loc. Acts 1903, p. 352), prohibiting sale of liquors in a certain locality. State v. Williams [Ala.] 39 So. 276. Substance of Loc. Acts 1903, p. 5, establishing a liquor dispensary in Uniontown, sufficiently indicated. City of Uniontown v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 814. Of Act Sept. 26, 1903 (Acts 1903, p. 369), for removal of causes from a city court to other courts. Dudley v. Fitzpatrick [Ala.] 39 So. 384. Of Loc. Acts 1903, p 40, creating an inferior court of record in Geneva county. Ex parte Black [Ala.] 40 So. 133. Of Loc. Acts 1903, p. 625, creating the office of solicitor of Calhoun county. State v. Tunstall [Ala.] 40 So. 135. Of Local Acts 1903, p. 379, establishing inferior courts in a certain county. State v. Abernathy [Ala.] 40 So. 353.

Insufficient notice: Of Local Acts 1903, p. 482, for the establishment of an inferior court in lieu of justices' courts in precinct 38, Jefferson county, under Const. art. 4, § 106. Tillman v. Porter [Ala.] 38 So. 647. Of Act Sept. 25, 1903 (Loc. Acts 1903, p. 316), prohibiting the liquor traffic in Coffee county. Town of Elba v. Rhodes [Ala.] 38 So. 807. Of Act Sept. 26, 1903 (Loc. Acts 1903, p. 365), partially repealing an act which prohibited the sale of intoxicants within 8 miles of the court house of the town of Linden. Brame v. State [Ala.] 38 So. 1031. Of Act Mar. 6, 1903 (Loc. Acts 1903, p. 101), to repeal the Walker county law and equity court, insufficient to cover particular provisions for the disposition of pending cases. Norvell v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 357. The legislature cannot pass a special act when the notice of intention to apply therefor, required by Const. § 106, shows that the act, if enacted in accordance therewith, would be unconstitutional. Held that Local Act of 1903, to establish an inferior civil court in Mobile county in lieu of justices' courts, was void for defective notice. Alford v. Hicks [Ala.] 38 So. 752.

Notice of amendments: Where a notice is given of an intention to apply for numerous amendments to a local act, and the notice as to each amendment proposed is independent of all of the others, an alleged insufficiency as to one will not affect the notice as to another. Green v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 362. An amendment of Acts 1896-97, p. 265, contained in Loc. Acts 1903, p. 309, as to the Tuscaloosa county law and equity court, not affected by an alleged insufficiency of notice as to other amendments. Id.

67. Sufficiency of affidavit of publication and entry on journal considered. Childers v. Shepherd [Ala.] 39 So. 235; Dudley v. Fitzpatrick [Ala.] 39 So. 384; Ex parte Black [Ala.] 40 So. 133; Jacobs v. State [Ala.] 40 So. 572. Sufficient journal entry of Act Mar. 3, 1903 (Loc. Acts 1903, p. 137), authorizing towns and cities in Walker county to establish dispensaries for sale of liquors, etc. Childers v. Shepherd [Ala.] 39 So. 235.

68. The notice of Act Sept. 14, 1903 (p. 239, Local Acts 1903), included a provision for transfer of misdemeanor cases to "a law and equity court," but the act provided for such transfer to the circuit court. Act held invalid. State v. Speake [Ala.] 39 So. 224.

provision is plain and mandatory, and prohibits the passage of any local act without the prescribed notice,[69] but in Texas the legislature can pass local laws for the maintenance of public roads and highways, without the notice required for local and special acts.[70] Noncompliance with mere statutory formalities prescribed for the introduction of private bills in the legislature does not nullify the act passed.[71]

Classification.[72]—The power of the legislature to classify municipalities and to legislate for each class separately is too well settled,[73] and an act which applies alike to all the persons or things within a legitimate class to which it is alone addressed does not violate a constitutional provision requiring uniformity of operation, nor is it local or special legislation.[74] Such classification is primarily a matter for the legislature and should be controlled by the courts only when it is apparent that the legislature has abused its discretion.[75] The classification must be founded upon legitimate differences in situation, population, or inherent condition, and the basis must be sufficiently broad to include all subjects whose conditions and wants render such legislation equally appropriate.[76] The distinction between classes must be based on something more substantial than mere caprice.[77] In Texas the exception of counties containing a second class city from the general rule making the sheriff ex officio a member of the county board of election commissioners, and substituting the circuit court clerk instead, was held to define a class arbitrarily and unreasonably.[78] Courts will take judicial notice of the fact that a county is within a statutory classification.[79]

Based on population.[80]—There can be no proper classification of cities except by population. The moment geographical distinctions are resorted to it becomes special legislation.[81] Legislation based on the classification of cities according to population is limited to the organization and administration of the city government, to the regulation of municipal affairs and matters under municipal control, to the number, character, powers and duties of officers employed in such affairs and to the exercise generally of the corporate powers vested in the municipality.[82] If it relates to subjects not included in the purposes of classification or excludes any city

Loc. Acts 1903, p. 392, regulating the license and sale of liquor in a certain county, and providing for no elections, could not be passed under a notice of a bill to prohibit the sale of liquors "outside of incorporated towns" in that county, except pursuant to an election on the question of sale or no sale. Hudgins v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 717.

69. Acts 1903, p. 488, creating the fifteenth judicial circuit, out of counties in other circuits, is a local law and void for lack of previous notice. State v. Sayre [Fla.] 39 So. 240. Act app. Mar. 6, 1903 (Acts 1903, p 88), creating the fourteenth circuit, is void for the same reason. Walker v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 242.

70. Const. art. 8, § 9. The word "maintenance" construed to include the laying out and constructing of roads, and hence Acts 24th Leg. (Laws 1895), p. 213, c. 132, creating a road system in Dallas county, is valid. Dallas County v. Plowman [Tex.] 91 S. W. 221.

71. Rev. St. South Carolina, 1893, prescribing certain formalities to be observed by those desiring special legislation, was a mere statute which could be repealed, amended, or disregarded by the legislature. Manigault v. Springs, 199 U. S. 473, 50 Law. Ed. ——.

72. See 4 C. L. 1527.

73. Cities. Beltz v. Pittsburg, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 66; Johnson v. Gunn [Cal.] 84 P. 665. School districts. Old Forge School District, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 586.

74. Ex parte Sohncke [Cal.] 82 P. 956. County Government Act (St. 1897, p. 538, c. 277) § 184, subd. 13, as amended by St. 1901, p. 750, c. 234, regulating compensation for justices in townships of counties of 27th class, etc., is not local or special legislation in violation of Const. art. 11, § 5. Johnson v. Gunn [Cal.] 84 P. 665.

75. State v. Brown [Minn.] 106 N. W. 477.

76. State v. Brown [Minn.] 106 N. W. 477; Bingham v. Milwaukee County Sup'rs [Wis.] 106 N. W. 1071; Ex parte Sohncke [Cal.] 82 P. 956; Johnson v. Gunn [Cal.] 84 P. 665.

77. Johnson v. Gunn [Cal. App.] 84 P. 370.

78. Acts 1904, p. 197, c. 93, amending Ky. St. 1903, § 1596a. subsec. 2, held repugnant to Const. § 59, as special legislation where a general law could be applied, and as special legislation regulating elections. Droege v. McInerney, 27 Ky. L. R. 1137, 87 S. W. 1085.

79. Alameda County v. Dalton [Cal.] 82 P. 1050.

80. See 4 C. L. 1528.

81. Act authorizing consolidation of contiguous cities of the first class where there were but two in the state. Sample v. Pittsburg [Pa.] 62 A. 201.

82, 83. Beltz v. Pittsburg, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 66.

within the class mentioned, it falls within the constitutional prohibition of local or special legislation and is void.[83] Legislation guarding the public health by establishing or promoting sanitary conditions is also within the purposes for which the classification of cities is permitted.[84] Classification of counties by population is proper and reasonable for legislation relating to the construction of bridges, viaducts, and public improvements.[85] A bona fide classification based on a real and substantial difference in population is generally held valid,[86] even though there may be but one city [87] or county [88] in a particular class, but the classification must not be unreasonably minute.[89] The legislature may prescribe any reasonable method for determining whether or not a county has the requisite population,[90] but the same method must be applied uniformly to all municipalities.[91]

Other classifications.[92]—Some other grounds of classification have been sustained.[93] The legislature may classify political parties with reference to differences in party conditions and numerical strength, for purposes of primary election legislation.[94] Foreign corporations constitute a class distinct from domestic corporations, and necessarily require laws of a different character,[95] but there is no warrant, in the legislation providing for intra and extra urban railways, for the theory of classification of municipal and interurban passengers on any basis which would discriminate in favor of one as against the other with respect to rights of transfer on railways within the city limits; on the contrary, within the city limits urban and interurban passengers have precisely the same rights as to transportation.[96]

84. Act June 7, 1901, P. L. 493, regulating plumbing or house drainage, is constitutional. Beltz v. Pittsburg, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 66.

85. Laws 1903, p. 731, c. 444, valid. Bingham v. Milwaukee County Sup'rs [Wis.] 106 N. W. 1071.

86. State v. Brown [Minn.] 106 N. W. 477. Laws 1903, c. 333, p. 577, fixing and regulating the collection and disposition of the fees of clerks of district courts in counties having, or which may hereafter have, 200,000 population, as amd. by Laws 1905, c. 171, p. 221, is valid. State v. Rogers [Minn.] 106 N. W. 345. The special regulations in the primary election law (Laws 1905, p. 211) for holding such elections in Cook county cannot be supported on any reasonable basis of classification on account of substantial differences in situation and needs arising out of population. People v. Chicago Election Com'rs [Ill.] 77 N. E. 321.

87. The provision of Sess. Laws 1905, p. 200, c. 16, § 12, for an election of city aldermen on the first Tuesday of June, 1905, is not special legislation because only one city comes under the law. State v. Malone [Neb.] 105 N. W. 893. Laws 1903, c. 289, p. 459, relative to school inspectors in cities having 10,000 inhabitants or less, not special legislation though applicable to only one city. State v. Henderson [Minn.] 106 N. W. 348.

88. Johnson v. Fulton [Ky.] 89 S. W. 672. Laws 1903, p. 731, c. 444, authorizing supervisors in counties of 150,000 population to construct certain viaducts or bridges, not special legislation because only one county came under it when passed. Bingham v. Milwaukee County Sup'rs [Wis.] 106 N. W. 1071.

89. Act relating to consolidation of cities with population between 6,000 and 7,000 held unreasonable. Town of Longview v. Crawfordsville, 164 Ind. 117, 73 N. E. 78.

90. A provision that reference shall be had only to the last Federal census is reasonable and valid. State v. Rogers [Minn.] 106 N. W. 345.

91. County Government Act § 184, subd. 13, as amended by St. 1901, p. 750, c. 234, which discriminated among townships, to determine population to fix the compensation of justices, was void as local or special legislation, under Const. art. 4, § 25. Johnson v. Gunn [Cal. App.] 84 P. 370.

92. See 4 C. L. 1527.

93. Acts 1904, p. 43, c. 11, regulating the holding of circuit courts in counties having towns more than 17 miles from the county seat, and having more population than the county seat, is not special legislation in violation of Const. § 59. Johnson v. Fulton [Ky.] 89 S. W. 672. St. 1901, p. 646, c. 214, authorizing suits against the state on claims for coyote bounties authorized by St. 1891, p. 280, c. 198, was not objectionable as special legislation, such claimants constituting a class characterized by substantial qualities and attributes for purposes of appropriate legislation. Beckerdike v. State, 144 Cal. 681, 78 P. 270.

94. State v. Drexel [Neb.] 105 N. W. 174.

95. St. 1871-72, p. 826, c. 566, and St. 1899, p. 111, c. 94, in relation to foreign corporations, apply uniformly to all such corporations. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080.

96. City of Cincinnati v. Cincinnati Street R. Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 489.

Local option laws[97] are generally held not to be within the objection of being local or special.[98] The local option law of Oregon was held to be a general act, the operation of which merely was conditioned on the vote of the people in the several counties or subdivisions thereof,[99] and therefore not in violation of the constitutional provision against the passage of any law, the taking effect of which is made to depend upon any authority except as provided in the constitution,[1] but in Tennessee no act can be so framed as to derive its efficacy from a popular vote.[2]

County and township affairs.[3]—Some constitutions prohibit special legislation regulating county or township affairs.[4]

Municipalities.[5]—Special acts regulating municipal affairs are prohibited in some states.[6] In Kansas such legislation is not permissible,[7] and a general statute which attempts to confer upon special laws subsequently passed the effect of changing the boundaries of cities is unconstitutional.[8] In Virginia, cities and towns not in existence when the constitution went into effect can be incorporated under general laws, and special acts therefor are prohibited,[9] which prohibition is self-executing,[10] but special legislation as to municipal corporations is not within the inhibition of the Tennessee constitution.[11] The legislature of Idaho has power to annul a special

97. See 4 C. L. 1528.

98, 99. Laws 1905, p. 41. Fouts v. Hood River [Or.] 81 P. 370.

1. Const. art. 1, § 21. Fouts v. Hood River [Or.] 81 P. 370.

2. Acts 1905, p. 670, c. 316, which amended Acts 1903, p. 408, c. 177, relative to the running at large of small stock, so as to make it effective only in such counties as adopted it by a majority vote, was held unconstitutional. Wright v. Cunningham [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 293.

3. See 4 C. L. 1525.

4. Primary election law (Laws 1905, p. 211), which contains special provisions for Cook county, conflicts with Const. art. 4, § 22, as a special act for regulation of county affairs. People v. Chicago Election Com'rs [Ill.] 77 N. E 321. Chapter 69, p. 78, Laws 1903, is a special law for the alteration of county boundaries and therefore conflicts with Const. § 167. State v. Stark County [N. D.] 103 N. W. 913. County Government Act, § 184, subd. 13, as amended by St. 1901, which discriminates among townships in different counties in fixing compensation of justices according to population, is void as local or special legislation regulating county and township affairs, under Const. art. 4, § 25. Johnson v. Gunn [Cal. App.] 84 P. 370. Act May 10, 1901 (Sess. Laws 1901, pp. 253-256), authorizing authorities of certain towns to issue bonds in certain cases, and to provide for taxation to pay the principal and interest thereof, is void under Const. 1870, art. 4, § 22, as a regulation of township affairs, by special or local act referring only to one town. Pettibone v. West Chicago Park Com'rs, 215 Ill. 304, 74 N. E. 387.

5. See 4 C. L. 1525.

6. Act Apr. 20, 1905 (P. L. 221), for the annexation of smaller to larger cities, is a local act regulating the affairs of cities in violation of Const. art. 3, § 7. Sample v. Pittsburg [Pa.] 62 A. 201. The supplementary act of Mar. 30, 1905, to the Act app. May 2, 1885, to remove the fire and police departments of cities from political control, is invalid as a special act to regulate the internal affairs of cities. State v. Nealon [N. J. Law] 62 A. 182. Laws 1905, p. 2053 c. 729, providing for a mortgage tax, does not violate the constitutional principle of home rule (Const. art. 10, § 2) by withdrawing from local assessors the right of assessing and taxing tangible property (People v. Ronner, 95 N. Y. S. 518), nor are Laws 1905, cc. 629, 630, 631, pp. 1533, 1548, 1550, taking the control of streets and power of granting street railway franchises in New York city from the board of aldermen and giving it to the board of estimate and apportionment, repugnant to the home rule provision of the constitution; nor to Const. art. 3, §§ 26, 27, relative to aldermen and supervisors in a city including an entire county, and to the conferring of local legislative powers upon supervisors (Wilcox v. McClellan, 47 Misc. 465, 95 N. Y. S. 941). Laws 1905, cc. 629, 630, 631, pp. 1533, 1548, 1550, giving control of streets and the conferring of street railway franchises in New York city to the board of estimate and apportionment, is not repugnant to Const. art. 3, § 18, prohibiting local bills for street railroads without consent of the proper local authorities. Wilcox v. McClellan, 47 Misc. 465, 95 N. Y. S. 941.

7. Const. art. 12, §§ 1, 5. Laws 1903, c. 529, § 109, p. 804, a special act purporting to withdraw a tract of land from the city of Wilson, is void. Levitt v. Wilson [Kan.] 83 P. 397.

8. Const. art. 12, § 1. Gen. St. 1901 (§ 2, c. 66, p. 92, Laws 1893), relative to vacation of town sites in certain cases, has such effect. Davenport v. Ham [Kan.] 83 P. 398.

9. Const. art. 8, § 117 (Va. Code 1904, p. ccxxxviii), regardless of what special acts may be passed under art 4 (Va. Code 1904, p. ccxvii). Campbell v. Bryant [Va] 52 S. E. 638.

10. Acts 1904, p. 283, c. 167, incorporating a town under special provisions, is void. Campbell v. Bryant [Va.] 52 S. E. 638.

11. Const. 1870, art. 11, § 8. Red River Furnace Co. v. Tennessee Cent. R. Co., 113 Tenn. 697, 87 S. W. 1016. Laws 1903, p. 796, c. 276, not invalid as a partial suspension of general laws for the benefit of city of Clarksville. Id.

municipal charter, which was passed before the adoption of the constitution and was continued in force with other existing legislation by the constitution.[12] In Louisiana the general assembly may legislate as to municipalities of over 2,500 population by general or special statutes,[13] and the general act authorizing such cities to amend their charters, with the approval of the governor and attorney general, is valid.[14] A constitutional provision authorizing the legislature to pass general "laws" empowering municipalities to issue bonds does not require the passage of more than one law to authorize such an issue.[15]

Taxation.[16]

Courts.[17]—Special laws regulating the practice in courts are sometimes prohibited.[18]

Special privileges.[19]—Laws granting special privileges or immunities are void.[20]

Police power.[21]—The true purpose of the police power is the preservation of the health, the morals and the safety of the community,[22] and the state may enact such laws notwithstanding the fourteenth amendment to the Federal constitution, although they operate to restrict the liberty of citizens of the United States,[23] but whether legislation thus operating is in fact calculated to promote the public welfare is a proper subject of inquiry by the courts when its constitutionality is questioned.[24] The legislature may, under the police power, fix by statute the times, 12. Construing Const. art. 3, § 19; art. 11, § 2; art. 12, § 1. Butler v. Lewiston [Idaho] 83 P. 234.

13. Const. art. 48, as construed. City of Lake Charles v. Roy [La.] 40 So. 362.

14. Act No. 136, p. 224, of 1898, relative to the creation and government of municipal corporations (Lawrason act). City of Lake Charles v. Roy [La.] 40 So. 362.

15. Const. § 222. Blakey v. City Council of Montgomery [Ala.] 39 So. 745.

16, 17. See 4 C. L. 1525.

18. St. 1871-72, p. 826, c. 566, in relation to foreign corporations, and St. 1899, p. 111, c. 94, amendatory thereof, are not special laws regulating practice in courts. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080. That part of Code Civ. Proc. § 204, which provides for the selection of a panel of jurors in certain cases, is not objectionable as a special act regulating the practice of courts, the same provisions being older than the constitution and retained in force by Const. art. 22, § 11. People v. Richards [Cal. App.] 82 P. 691. Laws 1903, p. 148, No. 92, even if not permitting redemption from tax sales as is allowed in execution sales, etc., does not contravene the organic law of the territory (Rev. St. 1901, p. 85, § 63) prohibiting local or special laws regulating practice in courts. Wallapai Mining & Development Co. v. Territory [Ariz.] 84 P 85. Act Mar. 2, 1903 (St. 1903, p. 67, c. 61), amending Pol. Code § 3443, to provide a special proceeding in courts for determining questions as to validity of proceedings for purchase of public lands, is not a special law regulating practice in courts, all the ordinary rules as to practice, etc., being recognized therein. Boggs v. Gancard [Cal.] 8 P. 195.

19. See C. L. 1528.

20. Act Oct. 1, 1903 (Loc. Acts 1903, p. 443), for the establishment of a dispensary in the town of Elba for the sale of liquors, etc., is unconstitutional as a grant of a special privilege to the commissioners. Town of Elba v. Rhodes [Ala.] 38 So. 807. Act Mar. 20, 1905 (St. 1905, p. 422, c. 354), relative to interest on chattel mortgages, is void for granting privileges and immunities to a certain class of citizens. In re Sohncke [Cal.] 82 P. 956. Act Mar. 3, 1903 (Loc. Acts 1903, p. 137), authorizing towns and cities in Walker county to establish liquor dispensaries, is not invalid as granting exclusive privileges. Childers v. Shepherd [Ala.] 39 So. 235. Laws 1903, p. 68, c. 55, prohibiting carrying on the business of barbering on Sunday, does not grant special privileges or immunities to one class above another. State v. Bergfeldt [Wash.] 83 P. 177. St. 1871-2, p. 826, c. 566, in relation to foreign corporations, and St. 1899, p. 111, c. 94, amendatory thereof, do not grant special and exclusive rights, privileges, and immunities to any corporation. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080.

21. See 4 C. L. 1529.

22. City of Chicago v. Gunning System, 114 Ill. App. 377. Laws 1903, pp. 301, 302, regulating speed of automobiles in public streets, etc., a valid exercise of police power. Christy v. Elliott, 216 Ill. 31, 74 N. E. 1035.

23. Halter v. State [Neb.] 105 N. W. 298.

24. Laws 1903, c. 139, p. 644 (Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 2375g et seq.), to prevent and punish the desecration of the United States flag, being calculated to foster sentiments of patriotism, is not vulnerable to the objection that it is not promotive of the welfare of society. Halter v. State [Neb.] 105 N. W. 298. Laws 1905, c. 538, § 5, to prevent dealing in futures, and making certain things prima facie evidence that a contract is a wagering one under Laws 1889, p. 233, c. 221, and § 7 excepting certain persons, is not void for discrimination, since prescribing when and under what circumstances and as to what offenses certain acts shall be prima facie evidence is a legislative discretion under the police power. State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50.

places, and manner of killing animals by their owner to be used for food without any infringement of property rights.[25]

§ 3. Subjects and titles.[26] In general.—It is generally provided by state constitutions that a law shall embrace but one subject, which must be expressed in its title.[27] The purpose of the clause was to prevent surreptitious legislation,[28] by the

25. State v. Davis [N. J. Law] 61 A. 2.

26. See 4 C. L. 1529.

27. The purpose and effect of this provision discussed. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

Held to violate: Act July 9, 1897, P. L. 233, for the destruction of wild cats, etc., and payment of bounties by counties; also Act Apr. 11, 1899, P. L. 43, amendatory of the title of the act of 1897. Bennett v. Sullivan County, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 120, distinguishing Hays v. Cumberland, 5 Pa. Super. Ct. 159, 186 Pa. 109, 40 A. 282. Act June 26, 1895 (P. L. 317), prohibiting adulteration of foods. Commonwealth v. Kehort, 212 Pa. 289, 61 A. 895. Comp. Laws §§ 1642-1645, providing for the removal of officers, being entitled "An act relating to elections," violates Const. art. 4, § 17. Bell v. First Judicial Dist. Court [Nev.] 81 P. 875. Sess. Laws 1903, p. 230, c. 123, relating to prostitution, is void under Const. art. 2, § 51, so far as it makes it unlawful for a male person to live with a prostitute. State v. Poole [Wash.] 84 P. 727. Act Sept. 28, 1903 (Loc. Acts 1903, p. 391), fixing the holding of courts in the fourteenth circuit, void under Const. § 45. Walker v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 242. Title of Laws 27th Leg. p. 283, c. 117, to prohibit railroad companies from permitting Johnson grass or Russian thistles from going to seed on their right of way and fixing a penalty, held not to cover provisions for recovery of private damages therefrom. Gulf, etc., Co. v Stokes [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 328. Title of Act Mar. 23, 1900, p. 89, c. 29, to amend and re-enact act app. Mar. 19, 1898 (Acts 1898, p. 96, c. 38), concerning assessment of corporate franchises for taxation by cities of the first and second classes, does not warrant the provision extending the provisions of the act of 1898 to cities of the third class. Henderson Bridge Co. v. Alves [Ky.] 90 S. W. 995. Acts 1866-67, p. 307, granting to the city of Mobile the riparian rights to the river front and giving the city the "shore and soil" under the river within the city limits, embraces more than one subject, contrary to Const. art. 4, § 2. Mobile Docks Co. v. Mobile [Ala.] 40 So. 205.

Held not to violate: Act Apr. 23, 1903, P. L. 274, defining certain powers of courts of quarter sessions of the peace. Commonwealth v. Fisher, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 175, afd. [Pa.] 62 A. 198. Act May 29, 1901, P. L. 327, relating to sale of oleomargarine. Commonwealth v. Caulfield, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 279. Act app. Apr. 12, 1904, P. L. p. 515, protecting pigeons, etc. State v. Davis [N. J. Law] 61 A. 2. Acts 1892, p. 662, c. 469, amending charter of Writing Telegraph Company of Baltimore City, etc. Brown v. Maryland Tel. & T. Co. [Md.] 61 A. 338. Section 77 of act concerning trust companies (Revision of 1899; P. L. 1899, p. 461). State v. Twining [N. J. Law] 62 A. 402. Sess. Laws 1903, pp. 301, 302, regulating speed of automobiles on public streets, etc. Christy v. Elliott, 216 Ill. 31, 74 N. E. 1035. Laws 1893, p. 136, to compel custodians of public funds to account for interest thereon. City of Chicago v. Wolf [Ill.] 77 N. E. 414. Laws 1903, c. 126, p. 170, to reorganize the state agricultural society and state fair, etc. Berman v. Cosgrove [Minn.] 104 N. W. 534. Acts 30th Gen. Assem. p. 61, c. 68, for drainage of lands of state. Sisson v. Buena Vista County Sup'rs [Iowa] 104 N. W. 454. Laws 1901, c. 93, p. 493, providing penalties for blackmail, extortion, etc. In re Algoe [Neb.] 104 N. W. 751. Local Acts 1905, No. 364, to provide for locating and establishing drains in a particular county. Rice v. Ionia Probate Judge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 645, 105 N. W. 17. Gen. Laws 1905, c. 346, p. 626. State v. Braun [Minn.] 105 N. W. 975, following State v. Bates [Minn.] 104 N. W. 7090. St. 1871-72, p. 826, c. 566, in relation to foreign corporations, and St. 1899, p. 111, c. 94, amendatory thereof. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080. Sess. Laws 1902, p. 43, c. 3, in relation to the public revenue. American Smelting & Refining Co. v. People [Colo.] 82 P. 531. Laws 1903, p. 328, c. 156, § 12, relating to the public schools and defining certain offenses. State v. Packenham [Wash.] 82 P. 597. Sess. Laws 1905, p. 376, c. 180, prohibiting the unauthorized sale of railroad transportation. In re O'Neill [Wash.] 83 P. 104. Laws 1903, p. 68, c. 55, prohibiting barbering on Sunday. State v. Bergfeldt [Wash.] 83 P. 177. Act app. Mar. 9, 1903 (Sess. Laws 1903, p. 105), amending the special charter of city of Lewiston. Butler v. Lewiston [Idaho] 83 P. 234. Laws 1903, p. 150, relative to irrigation. Nampa & M. Irr. Dist. v. Brose [Idaho] 83 P. 499. Laws 1901, p. 416, c. 232, relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors. State v. Kleinfield [Kan.] 83 P. 831. The title of Laws 1881, p. 96 (Gen. St. 1883, c. 23), covers the provisions of § 7, p. 98, which is numbered § 50 and amended by Laws 1885, p. 162. Paterson v. Watson [Colo.] 83 P. 958. Laws 1888, p. 146, to incorporate the Milledgeville & Asylum Dummy railroad company and define its powers, etc. Bonner v. Milledgeville R. Co., 123 Ga. 115, 50 S. E. 973. Act app. Aug. 4, 1904, to amend the charter of Poulan and conferring power to condemn private property for streets. Town of Poulan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 123 Ga. 605, 51 S. E. 657. Act of 1903 (Laws 1903, p. 90), relative to procuring money, etc., on a contract to perform services with intent to defraud. Banks v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 74. Act Dec. 10, 1903 (Acts 1902-03, p. 626, c. 410), vesting certain powers in circuit courts. Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401. Act Mar. 17, 1906, to amend and re-enact chapter 23 of the Code, re-enacting in terms an act of Dec. 10, 1903 (Acts 1902-03-04, p. 610, c. 388), and validating assessments made under it. Id. Laws 1903, c. 5106, p. 3, imposing licenses and other taxes. Schiller v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 706. The inheritance tax law of Louisiana approved June 28, 1904, falls within the requirements of Const. art.

insertion in an act of incongruous matter, having no connection or relation with the general subject as expressed in the title.[29] These constitutional provisions re-

31. Succession of Levy [La.] 39 So. 37. Acts 1903, c. 5197, p. 139, an act amendatory of Laws of Florida, c. 4001, § 720, Rev. St., relative to contracting territorial limits of cities and towns, does not conflict with Const. art. 3, § 16, as to title. Town of Ormond v. Shaw [Fla.] 39 So. 108. Laws 1901, c. 4930, p. 58, relative to the liquor traffic. Caesar v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 470. Act Feb. 23, 1903 (Acts 1903, p. 64), to prohibit sale of liquor on Sunday, does not violate Const. art. 4, § 45, as to title. Borck v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 580. Laws 1905, c. 5384, providing for the management and control of state educational institutions of Florida. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. Act No. 66, p. 74, of 1888, known as the "Pharmacy Law." State v. Kumpfert [La.] 40 So. 365. Laws 1903, p. 796, c. 276, validating certain railroad stock subscriptions. Red River Furnace Co. v. Tennessee Cent. R. Co., 113 Tenn. 697, 87 S. W. 1016. Acts 1904, p. 43, c. 11, regulating the holding of circuit courts in counties having towns over 17 miles from the county seat and having more population than the county seat. Johnson v. Fulton [Ky.] 89 S. W. 672. Acts 1905 (29th Leg.), p. 372, c. 153, to prevent the use of buildings, etc., for gaming. Ex parte Allison [Tex.] 90 S. W. 870. Laws 1901 (1st Called Sess.), p. 32, to amend art. 386c., Rev. St. 1895, relating to cities and towns and validating certain defective incorporations of cities. State v. Larkin [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 912. Acts 1897, p. 166, regulating the practice of dentistry. State v. Doerring [Mo.] 92 S. W. 489. Acts of 1859, 1861, and 1865, relative to horse railways in Chicago. Blair v. Chicago, 26 S. Ct. 427. Laws 1897, p. 159, c. 114, amending art. 397, c. 2, title 18, Rev. St. 1895, relating to vacancies in city offices, does not violate Const. art. 3, § 35, relative to titles. State v. Larkin [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 912. Act Feb. 26, 1877 (Acts 1877, p. 335), prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors on the Island of St. Simons. James v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 295. The word "prohibit" in the title is sufficiently broad to authorize legislation making penal the sale which is prohibited by the act. Id. Title of Gen. Laws 1899, p. 40, c. 33, to create corporation courts in cities, is broad enough to include a provision that the county attorney shall not be entitled to fees for prosecuting cases in such courts. Howth v. Greer [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 211. Acts 1891, p. 57, c. 51, § 3 (Rev. St. 1895, art. 4562), establishing a railroad commission, as construed, does not embrace matter outside of its title. International, etc., R. Co. v. Railroad Commission [Tex.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 42, 189 S. W. 561. Loc. Acts 1903, p. 379, establishing inferior courts in certain precincts of a county, complies with Const. art. 4, § 45, as to titles of acts. State v. Abernathy [Ala.] 40 So. 353. Act Feb. 8, 1901, defined the jurisdiction of the county court, and Acts 1903, p. 398, amending the act of 1901, further defined the jurisdiction and restored the jurisdiction of justices over misdemeanors as provided by Cr. Code 1896, art. 4, c. 142. Held that the latter act did not embrace two distinct subjects. Blue v. Everett [Ala.] 40 So. 203. Acts 1903, p. 59, to authorize cities and towns to issue bonds for certain purposes, does not violate Const. art. 4, § 45, relative to titles, because it provides for an election on such question. Blakey v. City Council of Montgomery [Ala.] 39 So. 745. Title to Acts 1894-95, p. 498, limiting the criminal jurisdiction of justices of the peace and notaries public in certain places, as construed, covers the provisions of the act. Lee v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 366. Act Feb. 20, 1902 (23 St. at Large, p. 1168), incorporating the Charleston Union Station company, does not violate Const. art. 3, § 17, because it authorizes railroad companies to subscribe for stock or guaranty its bonds. Riley v. Charleston Union Station Co., 71 S. C. 457, 51 S. E. 485. The title of Act Mar. 6, 1901 (Laws 1901, p. 67, c. 55), relating to the taxation of inheritances, is not confined to the strict technical meaning of "inheritances," but is broad enough to include the imposition of a tax on property which passes by will or otherwise than by operation of law. In re White's Estate [Wash.] 84 P. 831. St. 1901, p. 647, c. 215, adding, re-enacting, amending, and repealing certain sections of the Political Code, relating to the revenue and taxes, does not violate Const. art. 4, § 24, as to titles of acts. Murphy v. Bondshu [Cal. App.] 83 P. 278. Laws 1905, p. 1080, c. 476, to authorize city of Elmira to issue bonds to construct a bridge or reconstruct an existing bridge, does not violate Const. art. 3, § 16, providing that no local or private bill shall embrace more than one subject which shall be expressed in its title. City of Elmira v. Seymour, 97 N. Y. S. 623. Acts 1905 (House Enrolled Act 70), amending the charter of Battle Creek, does not violate this provision by discontinuing justice courts, establishing a municipal court, and regulating the office of constable. Attorney General v. Loomis [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 553, 105 N. W. 4. Title of Act 31, Pub. Acts 1903, p. 37, to regulate the method of procedure and practice of law in Wayne county circuit court, covers provisions for drawing juries in body of act. Fornia v. Frazer [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 259, 104 N. W. 147. Title of Act 171, Pub. Acts 1903, p. 230, "for the incorporation of associations not for pecuniary profit," sufficiently comprehensive to include its provisions. American Matinee Ass'n v. Secretary of State [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 262, 104 N. W. 141. Section 193 of the act to regulate elections (P. L. 1898, p. 323) is within the title of the act. State v. Johnson [N. J. Law] 63 A. 12. Act May 16, 1891, P. L. 75, sufficiently comprehensive to cover provisions of act. Nicholson Borough, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 570. Supplement to Gen. Railroad Law, app. Mar. 28, 1902 (P. L. p. 214), now § 23, Revised Railroad Act 1903 (P. L. p. 657), not invalid as bringing condemnation of tunnel rights within the range of the eminent domain act of 1900 (P. L. p. 79) without indicating such intention in title. McEwan v. Pennsylvania, etc., R. Co. [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1130. The title of Acts 1900, p. 345, to establish a new charter for Milledgeville, etc., contains only one subject-matter, to which all the incidental powers mentioned are germane, but a certain provision in § 65, continuing other laws in force, is broader than the title and void. Bass v. Lawrence [Ga.] 52 S. E. 296.

28. In re Algoe [Neb.] 104 N. W. 751.

29. Sisson v. Buena Vista County Sup'rs

fer to the title as enacted by the legislature and not to headlines inserted in a code for convenience in indicating the subject-matter of a chapter,[30] and the constitution also contemplates the presence of a sufficient title at the time the statute is enacted, so that a subsequent amendment of the title will not validate an act with a defective title.[31] The title need not be an index to the provisions of the act,[32] although it is made by the constitution the conclusive index to the legislative intent as to what shall have operation.[33] The title should state in a brief and comprehensive form the purpose of the act and the subject-matter to be dealt with,[34] and it is sufficient if the subject and purpose of the proposed legislation is manifest from the language of the title.[35] Even if the title does not in express terms give the subject of the act but contains brief mention of all its provisions, all of which provisions relate to one subject and matters properly connected therewith, it will be sufficient.[36] The fact that the title is restrictive is not objectionable when the body of the act is correspondingly restricted.[37] Although general titles to acts must be construed liberally and in a common sense way, and it is sufficient if a general title is not made a cloak for legislating upon dissimilar matters,[38] yet when the title is restrictive, carving out for consideration a part only of a general subject, legislation under it must be confined within the same limits, and all provisions of the act outside of such limits are unconstitutional,[39] even though such provisions might have been included in the act under a broader title;[40] and even where the legislature gives a meaning to terms different from that which attaches to them in the common understanding, the title of the act must express such special meaning clearly enough to put readers upon their inquiry.[41]

While the legislature may not include in one act two different and unconnected subjects,[42] yet provisions on one subject and matters properly connected therewith may be embraced in one act[43] without being expressed in the title.[44] Including a

[Iowa] 104 N. W. 454; Blair v. Chicago, 26 S. Ct. 427; State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929; State v. Doerring [Mo.] 92 S. W. 489.

30. The words "Forgery and Offenses Against the Currency," inserted as a chapter heading, do not form the title of an act so as to render Cr. Code 1902, § 373, void for discrepancy between the title and body. State v. Murray [S. C.] 52 S. E. 189.

31. Amendatory Act Apr. 11, 1899, P. L. 43, did not avail to validate Act July 9, 1897, P. L. 233, whose title was defective. Bennett v. Sullivan County, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 120.

32. Commonwealth v. Fisher, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 175, afd. [Pa.] 62 A. 198; State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. A literal recital in detail of the subject of legislation is not required. Alperson v. Whalen [Neb.] 105 N. W. 474; Banks v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 74.

33. Megins v. Duluth [Minn.] 106 N. W. 89.

34. Banks v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 74; Schiller v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 706.

35. Alperson v. Whalen [Neb.] 105 N. W. 474; State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. If the title to an act is sufficiently comprehensive to indicate the matters actually embraced therein, it cannot be said to violate this provision. In re Algoe [Neb.] 104 N. W. 751; Blair v. Chicago, 26 S. Ct. 427.

36. The title to Laws 1905, c. 5384, providing a system of management and control of the state educational institutions, is very prolix, cumbersome, and awkwardly worded, but does not conflict with Const. art. 3, § 16, as to titles of acts. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

37. There is no discrepancy between the title and body of Act of 1905 to prohibit certain games and sports on Sunday. West v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 412.

38. Megins v. Duluth [Minn.] 106 N. W. 89; State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

39. Megins v. Duluth [Minn.] 106 N. W. 89. Such restriction in the title confines the body of the act to such phase of the subject as is indicated by the title. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

40. Laws 1897, c. 248, p. 459, is restricted to the recovery from municipalities of injuries to the person only. Megins v. Duluth [Minn.] 106 N. W. 89.

41. Commonwealth v. Kebort, 212 Pa. 289, 61 A. 895.

42. Schiller v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 706. Any thing included in a statute which is not germane to the general purpose expressed in the title brings the statute within this constitutional provision. Fornia v. Frazer [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 259, 104 N. W. 147.

43. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. In an act imposing licenses and other taxes, provisions for the payment of such licenses, penalties for doing business without licenses, and penalties for failure to comply with the act, may be included. Schiller v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 706. In a liquor license act, provisions that if the licensee sells liquor at a particular time, or violates the restrictions and limitations of his license, he shall be deemed guilty of selling without a license, are germane to the subject of the act. Id. Under the title of Acts 1884-85, p. 30, pro-penal clause in a general statute embracing a given subject, which simply provides punishment for the violation of the provisions of that act, is not an introduction into the act of things having no relation to its subject-matter.[45] The repeal of a statute on a given subject is properly connected with the subject-matter of a new statute on the same subject, and a repealing clause is valid, though not mentioned in the title,[46] and repeals by implication are not covered by provisions requiring the subject of an act to be expressed in its title.[47] Provisions relative to the time when an act shall go into effect are always germane not only to the title but to all the contents of an act.[48] In Georgia the words "and for other purposes" in a title are sufficient to cover provisions in the body of the act germane to the general subject-matter,[49] but when those words are omitted the matter in the body of the act is limited by the title,[50] although, if those words are omitted, a penalty for the violation of the act is nevertheless held germane to a statute prohibiting the sale of liquors.[51] The title of an amendatory act is sufficient if it recites the title or substance of the act amended, provided the amendment is germane to the subject of the original act and is embraced within the title of that act.[52]

Partial invalidity.[53]—An entire act is not necessarily unconstitutional because the title fails to give notice of some particular matter contained therein.[54] The viding for the correct return of property for purposes of taxation and for other purposes, provisions could be included making certain objects personal property for purposes of taxation. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Wright [Ga.] 53 S. E. 251. Provisions of Act Dec. 5, 1900 (Acts 1900-01, p. 107), conferring jurisdiction of cases formerly triable in county court of Walker county upon the newly created law and equity court, were germane to the title. Morvell v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 357. Under the title of an act in relation to embezzlement (Laws 1903, p. 96, c. 5160), may be embraced a class of persons of equal moral guilt with those formerly included, and rules of pleading for indictments. Teston v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 787. Act Mar. 21, 1905 (Laws 1905, p. 131), to prohibit book-making and pool-selling, is not violative of Const. 4, § 28, for including subjects not germane. State v. Delmar Jockey Club [Mo.] 92 S. W. 185. Provisions for an election on the question of a bond issue are clearly cognate to the general purpose of Acts 1903, p. 59, authorizing cities and towns to issue bonds for certain purposes. Blakey v. City Council of Montgomery [Ala.] 39 So. 745. A statute which defines certain powers of a court, providing that certain things may be done and the manner of their performance, may also provide that certain powers shall not be exercised without in any sense introducing another subject of legislation or going outside of the scope of its title (Act Apr. 23, 1903, P. L. 274, defining certain powers of courts of quarter sessions of the peace). Commonwealth v. Fisher, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 175, afd. [Pa.] 62 A. 198.

44. Schiller v. State [Fla.] 38 So. 706.

45. Penal § 17, of the act concerning trust companies (Revision of 1899; P. L. 1899, p. 461). State v. Twining [N. J. Law] 62 A. 402.

46. State v. Larkin [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 912. The repealing section (§ 3) of Act July 22, 1897, P. L. 305, is so germane to the act as to be embraced within the title, though no reference is made to repeal in the title. Phillips v. Barnhart, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 26.

47. Const. art. 2, § 19. Coleman v. Cravens [Wash.] 82 P. 1005.

48. Wright v. Cunningham [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 293.

49. Banks v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 74.

50. Edwards v. Atlanta [Ga.] 52 S. E. 297.

51. James v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 295.

52. The amendment of Acts 1903, p. 408, c. 177, prohibiting the running at large of small stock in certain cases, into a county local option law, by Acts 1905, p. 670, c. 316, was germane to the original title. Wright v. Cunningham [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 293. Laws 1905, p. 194, amending Act July 1, 1874 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 89), relating to divorce, does not introduce a subject outside of the original title. Olsen v. People, 219 Ill. 40, 76 N. E. 89. The fact that the titles of the several acts organizing the Chicago street railway companies referred only to "horse railways" did not prevent the exercise of the power to amend the authority conferred by the amendatory act of Feb. 6, 1865, so as to authorize the use of cable or electricity. Blair v. Chicago, 26 S. Ct. 427. Act Feb. 18, 1895, amendatory of an act to incorporate the town of Geneva, introduced a provision not within the scope of the original act and is void. Black v. State [Ala.] 40 So. 611. Act Apr. 1, 1901, to amend § 19, c. 10, Comp. Stat. 1899 (Sess. Laws, p. 63, c. 11), is void on account of introducing matter not germane to the title of the original. Knight v. Lancaster County [Neb.] 103 N. W. 1064. An act to amend an act incorporating a named town is sufficiently broad to cover any enactment germane to the general subject of incorporating a town. Town of Poulan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 123 Ga. 605, 51 S. E. 657. Provisions validating former assessments made under a law held germane to an act amending and re-enacting such law. Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401.

53. See 4 C. L. 1532.

54. Commonwealth v. Caulfield, 27 Pa.

general rule has been to sustain the portion of which the title gives notice[55] if it can be separated and treated as an independent proposition, without doing violence to the apparent purpose of the legislature,[56] and hence, under the constitutional provisions relative to the title, an act may be good in part and void in part, or the act may be absolutely invalid.[57] If both the title and the body of the act contain separate and distinct subject-matters, the act will be void in its entirety, since it would be impossible to tell what particular object, rather than another of those referred to, the legislation was intended to accomplish,[58] but, if only one subject-matter is covered by the title, the act will be operative as to the provisions covered by the title if the legislative scheme will not be defeated by the rejection of the extraneous matter.[59] The constitution of Texas expressly provides that only so much of an act shall be void as is not expressed in its title.[60]

§ 4. Amendments and revisions. Amendments.[61]—A general law may be amended or repealed by a general or special act if its subject-matter is not of a general nature.[62] If the provisions of a new statute are independent and complete in themselves, it will be valid although it purports to amend a statute that has been repealed.[63] An act of the legislature amendatory or supplementary to an unconstitutional act is void.[64] Where an amendatory statute is declared void, the original statute remains in force.[65]

Reference to act amended.[66]—It is generally provided that an act cannot be amended by reference to its title only,[67] but the act or section amended, or the substance of it, must be recited in the amendment,[68] but this provision has no application to an independent enactment, though it impliedly modifies a former statute.[69] A statutory provision long operative, the explicit language of which remains un-

Super. Ct. 279; State v. Davis [N. J. Law] 61 A. 2. Acts 1900, p. 345, to establish a new charter for Milledgeville, is not entirely void, though the provisions of § 65 are broader than the title and ineffective. Bass v. Lawrence [Ga.] 52 S. E. 296.

55. Commonwealth v. Caulfield, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 279; State v. Davis [N. J. Law] 61 A. 2.

56. State v. Dow [Conn.] 60 A. 1063.

57. Bass v. Lawrence [Ga.] 52 S. E. 296.

58. Bass v. Lawrence [Ga.] 52 S. E. 296; Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401.

59. Bass v. Lawrence [Ga.] 52 S. E. 296. If the part of Act Dec. 5, 1900 (Acts 1900-01, p. 107), which abolishes the Walker county court, is not included in the title, that part creating the law and equity court will nevertheless be operative. Norvell v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 357.

60. Const. art. 3, § 35. McLaury v. Watelsky [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 404, 87 S. W. 1045. The contention that the liquor dealers' act "to regulate the sale of intoxicants" is void because undertaking to regulate the gift of intoxicants cannot be sustained. Id.

61. See 4 C. L. 1532.

62. Laws 1905, c. 414, p. 676, relating to the public schools of Kansas City, Kansas, is a special act amending Gen. St. 1901, § 6290, and does not violate Const. art. 2, § 17. Richardson v. Board of Education [Kan.] 84 P. 538.

63. Attorney General v. Stryker [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 518, 104 N. W. 737.

64. Laws 1887, c. 14, p. 308, amending and supplementing Laws 1885, c. 14, p. 148, relating to second-class cities, held unconstitutional, is void. City of Plattsmouth v. Murphy [Neb.] 105 N. W. 293.

65. Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401.

66. See 4 C. L. 1532.

67. Act app. Aug. 4, 1904, to amend the charter of Poulan, etc., is not unconstitutional as amending an act by reference to its title only (Civ. Code 1895, § 5779). Town of Poulan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 123 Ga. 605, 51 S. E. 657. Primary Election Law, § 2 (Laws 1905, p. 213), attempts to amend the ballot law by reference to title only. People v. Chicago Election Com'rs [Ill.] 77 N. E. 321.

68. Sections of the original act not amended need not be republished, under Const. art. 4, § 25. People v. Shuler, 136 Mich. 161, 98 N. W. 986. Only such sections as are amended need to be set forth. State v. Lawson [Wash.] 82 P. 750; State v. Bergfeldt [Wash.] 83 P. 177.

69. Act June 17, 1887, P. L. 409, giving a lien for labor on improvements on leased ground, in providing for proceedings thereunder as "now provided by law in case of mechanics' liens," does not violate Const. art. 3, § 6, relative to amendatory statutes. James Smith Woolen Mach. Co. v. Browne, 206 Pa. 543, 56 A. 43. Pub. Acts 31, 1903, p. 37, relative to practice and procedure in the Wayne county circuit court, does not expressly amend any prior act but repeals all inconsistent acts and parts of acts, and does not conflict with this provision. Fornia v. Frazer [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 259, 104 N. W. 147. Act Apr. 24, 1905 (Acts 1905, p. 480), changing the boundaries of a levee district without reference to Act Mar. 16, 1893 (Acts 1893, p. 102), creating the district, does not violate Const. art. 5, § 22, relative to reference to acts amended. Porter v. Waterman [Ark.] 91 S. W. 754. Local Acts 1905, No. 364, changed, will not be modified by an amendment of another law relating to a different subject-matter unless the legislative intent to alter is unmistakable.[70] The intent of a legislature in enacting a statute which declares and preserves existing laws and rights is to dispel doubts and to prevent the modification or disregard of such laws and rights, hence such statutes are not nugatory as modifying existing laws because their true purpose and effect are to prevent such modification.[71] A mere reference to local statutes to indicate the procedure necessary in taking property for public streets and places in a certain city is not repugnant to a constitutional provision against making any existing law or part thereof applicable except by inserting it in the later act.[72]

Effect.[73]—A statute amends a prior law on the same subject to the extent that the acts are in conflict, though the latter is not mentioned in the former.[74] When a statute is amended, it is to be afterward understood as if it had read from the beginning as it does amended.[75] An act intended to become applicable locally upon determination of the propriety thereof by local authorities does not necessarily supersede former legislation but may simply modify it.[76] The change of a statute from an operative one to one effective only upon its being adopted by the vote of the counties, where the body of the original act remains virtually the same, is an amendment and not a repeal.[77]

Identification.—The amendment of a section or article takes the place and number of the original, and a reference thereto by such number, in a subsequent amendment, is sufficient.[78]

Revisions.[79]

§ 5. Interpretation. A. Occasion for interpretation.[80] Unambiguous statutes.[81]—Construction and interpretation have no place where the language of a stat-providing for drains in Ionia county, does not attempt to revise, alter, or amend the general drain law so as to require publishing at length. Rice v. Ionia Probate Judge [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 645, 105 N. W. 17. Acts 1905 (House Enrolled Act 70), by establishing a municipal court, discontinuing justices' courts, and making special provisions as to constables, does not amend the general laws of the state on those subjects so as to require publishing at length. Attorney General v. Loomis [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 553, 105 N. W. 4. Acts 1905 (House Enrolled Act 70), which sets forth sections of Battle Creek charter actually amended, is sufficient although it does not contain at length those amended by implication. Id. Laws 1905, c. 5384, providing for the government and control of the state educational institutions, is not a revision of all the statutes of the state on the subjects of the various schools and colleges above the grade of common schools, and therefore unconstitutional for not publishing those laws at length, but it is an independent statute on a general and comprehensive subject. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

70. Laws 1898, p. 941, c. 319, adopted in lieu of Code Civ. Proc. § 2732, subd. 12, does not affect subd. 3. In re Hardin's Estate, 97 App. Div. 493, 89 N. Y. S. 978.

71. The purpose of Bankr. Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 8a, 30 Stat. 549 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3425], is to give the bankrupt's widow the dower rights granted by the state laws. In re McKenzie [C. C. A.] 142 F. 383.

72. Const. art. 3, § 17. Laws 1896, p. 887, c. 727, § 2, making such reference, held valid. In re City of New York, 95 App. Div. 552, 89 N. Y. S. 6. Section 33 of the primary election law supplement (P. L. 1903, p. 628) is not void in the matter of reference to an existing law. State v. Johnson [N. J. Law] 63 A. 12.

73. See 4 C. L. 1533.

74. Porter v. Waterman [Ark.] 91 S. W. 754.

75. The extension of corporate existence granted by the amendatory act of Illinois, Feb. 6, 1865, to the street railway corporation created by act of Feb. 14, 1859, § 1, must be read into the charter of the street railway company created by § 10. Blair v. Chicago, 26 S. Ct. 427. A designated mode of prosecuting error to all judgments entered in pursuance of an act applies to a proceeding brought under an amended section thereof. Wiler v. Logan Natural Gas & Fuel Co., 6 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 206.

76. Liquor laws of a general nature not superseded by local option act. Sandys v. Williams [Or.] 80 P. 642.

77. Acts 1905, p. 670, c. 316, so changed Acts 1903, p. 408, c. 177, prohibiting the running at large of small stock in certain cases. Wright v. Cunningham [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 293.

78. Art. 386c, Rev. St. 1895, was amended in 1897 (Laws 1897, p. 6, c. 7), which amendment became art. 386c, the amendment of 1901 (1st Called Sess.), p. 32, referring to art. 386c, contemplated the article as amended in 1897. State v. Larkin [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 912.

79. See 4 C. L. 1533.

80. See 4 C. L. 1533. See, also, Constitutional Law, 5 C. L. 621.

81. See 4 C. L. 1533; 2 C. L. 1724.

ute is unambiguous and its meaning is evident,[82] and its only construction must be given to it.[83]

Who may invoke interpretation.[84]

(§ 5) B. General rules.[85]—The doctrine of equitable interpretation of statutes has been abandoned,[86] but they should have a rational, sensible, interpretation.[87] They are to be construed, if reasonably possible, so as to render them valid,[88] and, if not obnoxious to constitutional provisions, so as to give them full force and effect.[89] Statutes must be construed with reference to constitutional provisions, and, if susceptible of more than one construction, that must be adoped which renders them constitutional,[90] but it is not proper to ascribe to a statute a meaning at variance with its plain import so as to conform it either to constitutionality or wisdom.[91]

Intention to be reached.[92]—The only purpose of construction and interpretation is to ascertain the intention of the legislature,[93] which is to be sought in the words employed to express it, and when found should be made to govern.[94] That which is clearly not within the intention of a statute, although within the letter of it, is held not to be within the statute.[95] If a statute is so incomplete that it cannot be complied with, courts cannot supply provisions that are not indicated in the act itself, so as to make it valid and enforceable.[96] The use of inapt, inaccurate or improper terms or phrases, will not invalidate a statute, provided the real meaning of the legislature can be gathered from the context or from the general

82. United States v. Ninety-nine Diamonds [C. C. A.] 139 F. 961; Fremont, etc., R. Co. v. Pennington County [S. D.] 105 N. W. 929; State v. Henry [Miss.] 40 So. 152. The rule of contemporaneous construction has no application where there is no ambiguity. Eddy v. Morgan, 216 Ill. 437, 75 N. E. 174.

83. Holden v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 318.

84. See 2 C. L. 1723.

85. See 4 C. L. 1533 et seq.

86. State v. Woodside, 112 Mo. App. 451, 87 S. W. 8.

87. United States v. Ninety-nine Diamonds [C. C. A.] 139 F. 961. Laws 1903, p. 9, c. 5106, § 19, licensing "lung testers, striking machines, weighing machines, chewing gum stands, automatic penny in the slot machines," etc., cannot, under a constitution prohibiting lotteries (art. 3, § 23), be construed to license the operation of a machine in which the element of chance largely predominates. State v. Vasquez, [Fla.] 38 So. 830.

88. Sauter v. Anderson, 112 Ill. App. 580.

89. The general drain law of Michigan, as construed, is not invalid as being inoperative, but Local Acts 1903, No. 495, p. 607, for the establishment of drains in Saginaw county, is inoperative because of impossibility of enforcement. Albert v. Gibson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 642, 105 N. W. 19.

90. Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401; Callaghan v. McGown [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 319; Jiha v. Barry, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 65; Albert v. Gibson [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 642, 105 N. W. 19. Act 1905, to establish a graded school in Kernersville (Laws 1905, p. 30, c. 11), as construed, does not discriminate in favor of, or prejudicial to, either white or colored citizens in violation of Const. art. 9, § 2. Lowery v. Kernersville Graded School Trustees [N. C.] 52 S. E. 267.

91. City of Austin v. Cahill [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 321, 88 S. W. 542.

92. See 4 C. L. 1533.

93. United States v. Ninety-nine Diamonds [C. C. A.] 139 F. 961; Struthers v. People, 116 Ill. App. 481; State v. Drexel [Neb.] 106 N. W. 791; McNeill v. Durham & C. R. Co., 138 N. C. 1, 50 S. E. 458; Goode v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 461; Wilson v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 471.

94. Maryland Agricultural College v. Atkinson [Md.] 62 A. 1035; State v. Cudahy Packing Co. [Mont.] 82 P. 833; Propst v. Southern R. Co., 139 N. C. 397, 51 S. E. 920. An act must be construed with reference to its general scope and the intent of the legislature in enacting it. Fortune v. Buncombe County Com'rs [N. C.] 52 S. E. 950.

95. Sexton v. Sexton [Iowa] 105 N. W. 314; Medlin v. Seideman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 439, 88 S. W. 250. To adhere to a technical and literal construction, manifestly contrary to the intention and meaning of the legislature, would be to legislate and not to construe. State v. Drexel [Neb.] 106 N. W. 791. Courts are not authorized to legislate or read into statutes constructions that will do violence to the language thereof, but in all cases where a reasonable construction can be placed upon a statute, when a literal construction would lead to absurd and unreasonable results, that construction should be favored. Medlin v. Seideman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 439, 88 S. W. 250.

96. Laws 1905, c. 176, p. 659, purporting to prescribe the method of selecting juries in counties of less than 30,000 population, is invalid, because the method provided is impossible of execution (State v. Reneau [Neb.] 106 N. W. 451), but clerical errors or misprisions which, if not corrected, would render the statute unmeaning or incapable of reasonable construction, or would defeat or impair its intended operation, will not necessarily vitiate the act, for they will be corrected if practicable (Fortune v. Buncombe County Com'rs [N. C.] 52 S. E. 950). One "third" used by inadvertence for one "fourth," in Laws 1896, p. 888, c. 727, § 4. In re City of New York, 95 App. Div. 552, 89 N. Y. S. 6.

purpose and tenor;[97] nor will inadvertences or omissions vitiate an act if they can be supplied by reference to the context or to other statutes, and the true reading made obvious and the real meaning made apparent.[98] An ambiguous or meaningless clause in a statute may be rejected, or words supplied by intendment to express the obvious intention of the legislature.[99] The maxim that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another is to be applied only when it appears to point to the legislative intent, and never to defeat the plainly indicated purpose of the law-making body.[1]

Whole act to be considered.[2]—The intention of the law givers is to be deduced from the whole statute taken and compared together,[3] for the presumption is that the legislature intends its acts and every part of them to be valid and capable of being carried into effect.[4] All parts of a statute must be made to harmonize,[5] and apparent inconsistencies and conflicts reconciled, if possible.[6] Separate sections of a code must be construed, if possible, so as to harmonize and effectuate each.[7]

All language to be effectuated.[8]—In order that the true meaning of the legislature may be determined and carried out, every word, phrase, term, and provision of an act must be considered,[9] and none should be considered as unmeaning if a construction can be found which will give it effect.[10]

Avoiding hardship or absurdity.[11]—A construction is not to be put upon a statute which would manifestly effectuate injustice, if it is susceptible of a different construction,[12] for considerations of what is reasonable always have a potent influence, and statutes will be construed in such a manner as to prevent absurdity, hardship, or injustice, and to favor public convenience.[13]

Presumption of legislative knowledge of the law.[14]—In the construction of statutes the legislature is presumed to have known its constitutional limitations,[15] and, in enacting a subsequent statute on the same subject, the legislature is presumed to have known of a prior statute.[16]

97, 98. Fortune v. Buncombe County Com'rs [N. C.] 52 S. E. 950.

99. Form of ballots prescribed to be used for and against the local adoption of a law held to be ambiguous and corrected, in Acts 1905, p. 670, c. 316, amending the stock law (Acts 1903, p. 408, c. 177). Wright v. Cunningham [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 293.

1. Swick v. Coleman, 218 Ill. 33, 75 N. E. 807

2. See 4 C. L. 1535.

3. Laws 1905, c. 72, p. 371; Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 9069. State v. Drexel [Neb.] 106 N. W. 791. Intention to be gathered from the context of the entire act as showing its general purpose. City of Houston v. Potter [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 389. Every part must be given effect if possible. Hoover v. Saunders [Va.] 52 S. E. 657; State v. Fink [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1059; State v. Harter, 188 Mo. 516, 87 S. W. 941; United States v. Ninety-nine Diamonds [C. C. A.] 139 F. 961.

4. Hoover v. Saunders [Va.] 52 S. E. 657.

5. Code 1904, § 3385, relative to signing of bills of exceptions, construed and harmonized. Hoover v. Saunders [Va.] 52 S. E. 657; Fortune v. Buncombe County Com'rs [N. C.] 52 S. E. 950; Goode v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 461.

6. State v. Houghton [Ala.] 38 So. 761.

7. Code §§ 192, 194. Propst v. Southern R. Co., 139 N. C. 397, 51 S. E. 920. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 1712, 1713, relative to "recognizances" on appeals from justices in criminal cases, made clear and plain in meaning by § 1714. Cain v. State [Ind. App.] 74 N. E. 1102.

8. See 4 C. L. 1535.

9. Eddy v. People, 118 Ill. App. 138; United States v. Ninety-nine Diamonds [C. C. A.] 139 F. 961; Fortune v. Buncombe County Com'rs [N. C.] 52 S. E. 950; State v. Fink [Neb.] 104 N. W. 1059; Hawkins v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 293; Goode v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 46.

10. Act Jan. 23, 1905, prohibiting corporations engaged in any trust agreement from doing business in the state, construed so as to effectuate the phrase "in this state and elsewhere." Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 42.

11. See 4 C. L. 1536.

12. Sexton v. Sexton [Iowa] 105 N. W. 314; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Jarvis, 27 Ky. L. R. 986, 87 S. W. 759. Rev. St. 1895, art. 1867, which provides that the rights, powers, and duties of executors and administrators shall be governed by the common law where no statutes apply, cannot be so interpreted as to abolish the common law as to administration of partnership estates and result in serious and embarrassing consequences. Altgelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank, 98 Tex. 252, 83 S. W. 6.

13. Medlin v. Seideman [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 39, 88 S. W. 250.

14. See 4 C. L. 1536.

15. City of Austin v. Cahill [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 321, 88 S. W. 542.

16. Town of Benton v. Willis [Ark.] 88 S. W. 1000

General and particular provisions.[17]—General provisions in statutes yield to special ones so far as necessary to effectuate the particular purposes of the latter,[18] hence, where a specific provision of a municipal incorporation act confers a certain power, such power cannot be enlarged by general language found elsewhere in the act.[19]

(§ 5) C. Aids to interpretation. The title.[20]—The title of an act is made by the constitution a conclusive index to the legislative intent as to what shall have operation.[21]

Marginal notes.[22]

Legislative history.[23]—In construing statutes the courts will not be guided by the debates of the legislature which enacted it.[24]

Contemporaneous interpretation.[25]—Due regard should be given to contemporaneous construction, and if that construction was generally received and acquiesced in, it will not be disturbed except for weighty reasons,[26] but the rule of contemporaneous construction has no application unless it can be said that the statute is ambiguous or of doubtful meaning.[27]

Official construction.[28]—The uniform and contemporaneous construction of a statute by officers charged with its execution should not be disregarded,[29] and a doubt as to the construction of a statute will be resolved in favor of such practical interpretation.[30] A practical construction by the legislature of its powers and long prevailing custom is a matter entitled to consideration by the courts.[31]

Surrounding conditions.[32]—If the words of the statute seem to be of doubtful import it may be necessary to look beyond them to ascertain the legislative intent, the circumstances under which the act was passed, what evil, if any, was meant to be redressed, what was the leading object of the law, and what the subordinate and relatively unimportant objects,[33] and the court will adopt that interpretation most in accord with the manifest purpose of the statute.[34] An erroneous description in a statute may be helped out by extraneous evidence.[35] The courts will resort to

17. See 4 C. L. 1535.

18. City of Austin v. Cahill [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 321, 88 S. W. 542; Callaghan v. McGown [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 319.

19. City of Chicago v The Gunning System, 114 Ill. App. 377.

20. See 4 C. L. 1534.

21. Megins v. Duluth [Minn.] 106 N. W. 89.

22. See 2 C. L. 1723.

23. See 4 C. L. 1534.

24. Lenhart v. Cambria County, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 350.

25. See 4 C. L. 1534, 1535; 2 C. L. 1723.

26. Eddy v. People, 118 Ill. App. 138. A contemporaneous exposition of statutory provisions not clear in themselves, and a well-established practice accordingly, universally acquiesced in and followed for many years, precludes a construction by the court which would impose a penalty for conduct consistent with such exposition and practice. State v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Minn.] 103 N. W. 731. The fact that, for twenty-five years, agents of domestic insurance companies were not required to procure licenses, they not being referred to in the acts, is a binding, contemporaneous construction of Ky. St. 1903, §§ 634, 681, 694, 753, 761, on that subject. Commonwealth v. Gregory [Ky.] 89 S. W. 168.

27. The fact that a police board for five years erroneously construed Laws 1899, p. 101, a police pension act, as retrospective, did not estop it from withdrawing a pension. Eddy v. Morgan, 216 Ill. 437, 75 N. E. 174.

28. See 4 C. L. 1534.

29. Galm's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 55. Practice and acquiescence in the machinery for the selection of jurors for many years, sanctioned by the courts, furnishes an almost irresistible reason for not overturning it. People v. Richards [Cal. App.] 82 P. 691.

30. Action of the territorial board of equalization in increasing or diminishing the valuation of property in counties by classes. Copper Queen Consol. Min. Co. v. Territorial Board of Equalization [Ariz.] 84 P. 511.

31. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

32. See 4 C. L. 1535.

33. Maryland Agricultural College v. Atkinson [Md.] 62 A. 1035; State v. Maloney [La.] 39 So. 539; Prowell v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 164; United States v. Ninety-nine Diamonds [C. C. A.] 139 F. 961; Eddy v. People, 118 Ill. App. 138; State v. Henry [Miss.] 40 So. 152; Holden v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 318.

34. Smith v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co. [Wash.] 81 P. 840; State v. Maloney [La.] 39 So. 539.

35. A reference in Laws 1905, p. 856, c. 703, § 12, to "section 74 of the public laws of 1905," in view of the passage of the bill through the legislature, held to mean § 74 of c. 590, although such chapter was not referred to. Fortune v. Buncombe County Com'rs [N. C.] 52 S. E. 950.

the common knowledge of the public at large on conditions which led to the adoption of a statute.[36] They may, and, when the statute is not clear, must take cognizance of the trend of public events which make the "history of the times" in so far as the same touches or furnishes the moving cause for the statute under review.[37]

Prior acts [38] on the same subject may be taken into consideration to ascertain the legislative intent,[39] to solve, but not to create, an ambiguity,[40] and the legislative policy may be looked to as persuasive in a matter of doubtful construction.[41] Before a statute will be construed as radically departing from the settled policy of the state, it must be made to appear by some language not ambiguous and susceptible to two constructions.[42]

Original act.[43] Re-enactment statutes.[44]—The legislature, in re-enacting a statute, will be held to have adopted the prior construction put upon it by the courts.[45]

Statutes adopted from other states are presumed to have been enacted with reference to the previous construction there given to them,[46] unless some change of phraseology has been made necessitating a change of construction;[47] and before this rule will be discarded a court must find some more potent reason than its own conviction of the unwisdom of such legislation as construed by the courts of the state of its origin,[48] but this rule is subject to the qualification that the judicial construction of the statute in the state of its origin does not contravene the well established policy prevailing on the subject in the adopting state.[49] The rule is applied in Texas to its statute of frauds, which was copied from the English statute, holding it to have been adopted with the construction previously put upon it by the English courts.[50]

State statutes in Federal courts.[51]—Federal courts follow the construction placed upon constitutional provisions or statutes by the courts of last resort of the state by which they are enacted.[52]

Enforcement.[53]—The fact that a penal statute has been on the statute books for more than 40 years, and no attempt has been made to enforce it in a particular manner, has no weight as to the construction of the meaning and operation of the statute.[54]

36. State v. Maloney [La.] 39 So. 539.
37. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. State [Ark.] 89 S. W. 42.
38. See 4 C. L. 1535.
39. Struthers v. People, 116 Ill. App. 481; Fortune v. Buncombe County Com'rs [N. C.] 52 S. E. 950.
40. Holden v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 318.
41. City of Austin v. Cahill [Tex.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 321, 88 S. W. 542.
42. Tax deeds having been made prima facie evidence of the regularity of proceedings, by statutory provisions for many years, the policy of the state in relation thereto was not changed by implication by Acts 7 and 11 of 1882, supplementing and repealing respectively the tax law of 1869. Hoffman v. H. M. Loud & Sons' Lumber Co. [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 356, 104 N. W. 424.
43. See 4 C. L. 1535.
44. See 4 C. L. 1537.
45. By carrying bodily into Rev. St. 1881, §§ 978, 980, the provisions of Rev. St. 1852, p. 485, pt. 4, c. 3, §§ 1, 3, relating to bastardy, adopted their prior construction. Evans v. State [Ind.] 75 N. E. 651. Shannon's Code, §§ 4146, 4147, relative to widow's dissent from provisions of will in lieu of dower. Walker v. Bobbitt, 114 Tenn. 700, 88 S. W. 327.
46. Sess. Laws 1905, p. 483, Act No. 309, adopted verbatim et literatim from Indiana. Preston Nat. Bank v. Brooke [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 708, 105 N. W. 757.
47. Rev. St. Arizona 1901, par. 3880, compared with par. 2282, Gen. Laws Colorado 1877, and construed. Copper Queen Consol. Min. Co. v. Territorial Board of Equalization [Ariz.] 84 P. 511.
48. Preston Nat. Bank v. Brooke [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 708, 105 N. W. 757.
49. The construction of Acts 1881, p. 238, c. 170, § 8, relative to the employment of competent coal mine bosses, by the courts of Pennsylvania, held contrary to the policy of the laws of Tennessee. Smith v. Dayton Coal & Iron Co. [Tenn.] 92 S. W. 62.
50. The members of the congress of the Republic of Texas, which enacted the statute, are presumed to have been advised of the English construction of it. City of Tyler v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. [Tex.] 91 S. W. 1.
51. See 4 C. L. 1535.
52. Duffy v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co., 141 F. 206.
53. See 4 C. L. 1534, n. 25; 2 C. L. 1725.
54. A poolroom held to be a gaming house, punishable as a nuisance under B. &

Laws in pari materia.[55]—Laws in pari materia must be read together and effect given to each if possible,[56] but in construing statutes by the aid of others in pari materia, the courts are not restricted to legislation enacted on the same day or at the same session, nor is it necessary that one statute construed by the aid of another should expressly refer to it.[57]

Acts of same date.[58]

Acts of same session.[59]

(§ 5) D. Words, punctuation, and grammar.[60] Words.[61]—The words of a statute are to be construed according to their ordinary and popular meaning in connection with the subject-matter to which they relate,[62] but the precise meaning of particular words will yield to an intent obvious from the whole act.[63] The right of the legislature to define the terms it uses is beyond question,[64] but in construing

C. Comp. § 1930, although that section had not been applied to gaming houses before State v. Nease [Or.] 80 P. 897.

55. See 4 C. L. 1535.

56. Struthers v. People, 116 Ill. App. 481; Swift & Co. Newport News [Va.] 52 S. E. 821. Statutes relating to the same subject enacted at different dates, the later having in view the earlier and intended to be amendatory or supplementary thereto, are in pari materia. State v. Kiley [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 184. Rev. St. 1881, § 5318; Act June 28, 1895 (Burns' Ann. St. 1901), §§ 7283b, 7283k and Act 1897 (Burns' Ann. St. 1901), § 7283, amending Rev. St. 1881, § 5318, all regulating the liquor traffic, constitute one system, having but one subject-matter and but one purpose, and must be construed together. Cahill v. State [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 182; State v. Kiley [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 184.

57. Familiar illustrations are found in the interpretation and construction of progressive statutes relating to the rights of married women, or the regulation of the liquor traffic. Indianapolis Northern Traction Co. v. Ramer [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 808. Statutes for the condemnation of lands for steam railroads and electric railways so construed. Id. All statutes upon the same general subject are to be regarded as part of one system, later statutes being considered supplementary or complementary to the preceding ones. State v. Omaha Elevator Co. [Neb.] 106 N. W. 979. The laws to suppress "pool rooms" and "turf exchanges" are on the same subject, and what is clear in one statute may be called in aid to explain what is doubtful in another (Civ. Code, art. 17). State v. Maloney [La.] 39 So. 539.

58. See 4 C. L. 1535, n. 40 et seq.; 2 C. L. 1726.

59. See 2 C. L. 1726.

60. See 4 C. L. 1535, 1536.

61. See 4 C. L. 1536.

62. Swift & Co. v. Newport News [Va.] 52 S. E. 821; Cameron v. Sexton, 110 Ill. App. 381. Particular words are to be taken in the sense in which, looking to the entire act they appear to have been used, rather than according to their accepted lexicographic definition. City of Houston v. Potter [Tex. Civ App.] 91 S. W. 389. In the statutes of Ohio, when the term "railroad" is used, steam railroad is meant, unless it clearly appears that some other meaning is intended. In re Avon Beach & Southern R. Co., 3 Ohio N. P (N. S.) 561. "Pool-room" interpreted. State v. Maloney [La.] 39 So. 539. The words "conviction" and "judgment" being interchangeable in common parlance, an indictment referring to two former "judgments" against defendant for burglary was sufficient, although the statute used the word "convictions." State v. Smith [Iowa] 106 N. W. 187. The word "railroad" in Rev. St. 1883, c. 6, § 42, as amd. by c. 145, p. 160, Pub. Laws 1901, includes the equipment, roadbed, depot sites, warehouses, and real estate used in the business, and the words "line or system" cannot be disconnected therefrom. State v. Canadian Pac. R. Co. [Me.] 60 A. 901 Free transportation of customers of a store across a river and back held to be in effect a "transportation for hire" and a keeping of a "ferry," in violation of Rev. St. 1883, c. 20, §§ 1, 2. Inhabitants of Peru v. Barrett [Me.] 60 A. 968. "Land" and "property" in eminent domain act of 1900, P. L. p. 79, include such rights and easements as are necessary for constructing tunnels. McEwan v. Pennsylvania, etc., R. Co. [N. J. Law] 60 A. 1130. The words "false" and "falsity" in statutes which impose forfeitures generally imply culpable negligence or wrong. United States v. Ninety-Nine Diamonds [C. C. A.] 139 F. 961. In act Apr. 8, 1885 (Laws 1885, p. 151, c. 48), relative to telegraph and telephone companies, "discrimination," "partiality," and "transmission," construed. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Braxtan [Ind.] 74 N. E. 985. The terms "embezzle" and "fraudulently convert to his own use" are synonymous or kindred phrases. Teston v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 787.

63. Sexton v. Sexton [Iowa] 105 N. W. 314. Less regard is to be paid to the words used than the policy which dictated the act. Goode v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 461. Executors are "assigns" within the meaning of Laws 1891, § 110, c. 100, p. 271, authorizing the issue of a tax deed to "the purchaser, his heirs or assigns." Blakemore v. Cooper [N. D.] 106 N. W. 566. The word "inheritances" in the title to the Inheritance Tax Law of Mar. 6, 1901 (Laws 1901, p. 67, c. 55), is not strictly technical in its meaning but broad enough to include a tax on property passing by will, or otherwise than by operation of law. In re White's Estate [Wash.] 84 P. 831. In an act prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors the word "sale" is to be construed in its broad and comprehensive sense, and therefore includes what is commonly known as barter and exchange. James v. State [Ga.] 52 S. E. 295.

64. Commonwealth v. Kebort, 212 Pa. 289, 61 A. 895.

statutes, a word is not to be given a limited or specialized meaning until such meaning is made by legislative enactment.[65] General words in a statute, following a specific enumeration, include only cases of the same kind enumerated.[66]

Punctuation.[67]—In the construction of statutes courts will, for the purpose of arriving at the real meaning and intention of the lawmakers, disregard the punctuation or repunctuate, if need be.[68]

Grammar.[69]—Grammatical rules of construction are not rules of law,[70] and while statutes are to be construed first in acordance with the ordinary rule of grammar, yet the grammatical sense must in all cases yield to the clearly disclosed legislative intent.[71]

(§ 5) E. Exceptions, provisos, conditions, and saving clauses.[72] Things excepted.[73]—An exception to the provisions of a statute, not suggested by any of its terms, cannot be introduced by construction from considerations of mere convenicnce.[74]

The proviso.[75]—The general office of a proviso is either to except something from the enacting clause or to qualify or restrain its generality, or to exclude some possible ground of misinterpretation of it,[76] and usually it is not permitted to enlarge the meaning of the enactment so as itself to operate as a substantive enactment,[77] although it will have that effect if such is the plain intention of the lawmakers.[78] It is a general rule that a proviso relates only to the paragraph which immediately precedes it, but that rule has no application where it clearly appears that the proviso was intended to apply to the whole statute.[79] The meaning of a proviso must generally be ascertained from the language in it.[80]

(§ 5) F. Mandatory or directory acts.[81]—Whether a statute is permissive or mandatory depends upon the intent of the legislature.[82] The most satisfactory and conclusive test of the mandatory or directory character of a statute is whether the prescribed mode of action is of the essence of the thing to be accomplished, or whether it relates to immaterial matter, or matter of convenience.[83] Generally, statutes which confer upon public officers power to act, for the sake of justice or concerning public interests or the rights of third persons, though permissive in form, are mandatory, and impose a positive duty to act when the conditions calling for the exercise of the power are present.[84]

65. Venable v. Schafer, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 337.

66. Struthers v. People, 116 Ill. App. 481.

67. See 4 C. L. 1536.

68. Lorenz v. U. S., 24 App. D. C. 337.

69. See 4 C. L. 1535, 1536.

70. Fremont, etc., R. Co. v. Pennington County [S. D.] 105 N. W. 929.

71. State v. Scaffer [Minn.] 104 N. W. 139; Fremont, etc., R. Co. v. Pennington County [S. D.] 105 N. W. 929.

72. See 4 C. L. 1537, and Special Article, 4 C. L. 1543.

73. See 2 C. L. 1728.

74. A failure to prop the roof of a working place in a mine, as provided by § 6871 Rev. St. 1905, cannot be excused because the presence of props might render mining inconvenient or impracticable. Morris Coal Co. v. Donley [Ohio] 76 N. E. 945.

75. See 4 C. L. 1537.

76, 77. Propst v. Southern R. Co., 139 N. C. 397, 51 S. E. 920; State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

78. The proviso to Code § 192, added by Acts 1905, p. 398, c. 367, given a broad interpretation so as to apply to all railroad companies, both foreign and domestic. Propst v. Southern R. Co., 139 N. C. 397, 51 S. E. 920.

79. Last proviso of Laws 1895, c. 306, p. 720, applies to whole statute. State v. Webber [Minn.] 105 N. W. 68.

80. Propst v. Southern R. Co., 139 N. C. 397, 51 S. E. 920.

81. See 4 C. L. 1536.

82. State v. Barry [N. D.] 103 N. W. 637. Code § 530, relative to interest on judgments, is directory only so far as it provides that the judgment must itself state that it shall bear interest from its date until paid, the intent of the legislature being to allow interest on judgments. McNeill v. Durham & C. R. Co. 138 N. C. 1, 50 S. E. 458.

83. Appeal of Spencer [Conn.] 61 A. 1010. The code provisions as to selecting jurors are directory and are to be given a liberal construction, a substantial compliance therewith is all that is necessary. People v. Richards [Cal. App.] 82 P. 691. The requirement of Rev. St. 1901, p. 3864, requiring the assessor to attach his certificate to the assessment roll, is directory. Wallapai Mining & Development Co. v. Territory [Ariz.] 84 P. 85.

84. That part of § 8246, Rev. Codes 1899,

(§ 5) G. Strict or liberal constructions.[85]—The rule of strict construction when applicable is subordinate only to that cardinal rule in the construction of all statutes that the true intention of the lawmakers should be ascertained and carried out.[88]

Statutes changing the common law.[87]—Statutes in derogation of the common law must be strictly construed,[88] and are not presumed to change or alter it further than is expressly declared by the terms thereof.[89] The common law is not to be deemed abrogated by statute unless it clearly appears that such was the legislative intent.[90]

Penal statutes.[91]—Penal statutes are to be strictly construed,[92] and persons, matters, and things which are not clearly included cannot be brought within their operation by mere construction,[93] but the rule should not be so applied as to thwart the manifest intention of the legislature.[94] The only exception to the rule requiring strict construction of statutes which are in their nature penal is in the case of those which provide for more than actual compensation, such as double or treble recovery.[95] In California all the provisions of the penal code are to be construed according to the fair import of their terms, to effect its object, and promote justice.[96]

Various other strict constructions.[97]—The general rule is that statutes granting authority to levy special assessments against private property must be strictly construed and the mode of procedure prescribed closely followed in all essential details.[98] Statutes granting special and exclusive privileges are to be strictly construed, the presumption being that the state has granted in express terms all that relative to action of judges when juries impose higher or lower punishments than authorized by law, is mandatory. State v. Barry [N. D.] 103 N. W. 637. In the determination of the question as to whether or not a provision as to the proceedings of a public officer is of the essence of the thing to be accomplished, the cases agree that significance is to be attached to the nature of the act, and also the language and form in which the provision is couched, as, for instance, whether or not it is, on the one hand, affirmative and such as would naturally be chosen to prescribe directions for an orderly and proper dispatch of business, or, on the other, negative or prohibitive, or expressive of a condition precedent, or appropriate to the creation of a limitation of power. Appeal of Spencer [Conn.] 61 A. 1010.

85. See 4 C. L. 1537.

86. Casey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 419.

87. See 4 C. L. 1537.

88. McNemar v. Cohn, 115 Ill. App. 31; Brown v. Rouse, 116 Ill App. 513, Hay v. Baraboo [Wis.] 105 N. W. 654. Civ. Code 1895, § 3777, providing that certain limitations of actions shall run against the state in tax matters. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Wright [Ga.] 53 S. E. 251. The "Civil Rights Act," Starr & Curtis' Rev. St. § 84, c. 38, p. 1247, creates a new liability unknown to the common law. Grace v. Moseley, 112 Ill. App. 100. Rev. St. 1899, § 2864, for the forfeiture of $5,000 for wrongful death through negligence of corporations, is in derogation of the common law. Casey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 419.

89. Brown v. Rouse, 116 Ill. App. 513.

90. McNemar v. Cohn, 115 Ill. App. 31.

91. See 4 C. L. 1537.

92. Field v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 6; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. People, 217 Ill. 164, 75 N. E. 368. Code, §§ 2125, 2129, 2130, prohibiting combinations by common carriers to prevent continuous shipments, are penal in character. Clark v. American Express Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 642. Rev. St. 1899, § 2864, for the forfeiture of $5,000 for wrongful death through negligence of corporations, is a penal statute. Casey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 419. Laws 1897, c. 384, p. 313, § 30, requiring annual reports from corporations and making directors personally liable, must be strictly construed in favor of the directors. Hoboken Beef Co. v. Hand, 104 App. Div. 390, 93 N. Y. S. 834.

93. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. People, 217 Ill. 164, 75 N. E. 368. The officer of a bankrupt corporation, who is not and has not been a bankrupt cannot be punished under § 29b, Bankrupt Law of July 1, 1898, c. 541, 30 St. 554 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3433), for concealing the property of the corporation from its trustee. Field v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 137 F. 6. Rev. St. 1899, § 1255, relative to the receipt and dispatch of messages by telephone and telegraph companies, is penal, and any party sought to be punished under it must be brought strictly within its penal provisions. Pollard v. Missouri & K. Tel. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 121.

94. State v. Kiley [Ind. App.]76 N. E. 184.

95. Casey v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 419.

96. Pen. Code § 4. And this rule applies to penal statutes not a part of the Code; Act Mar. 12, 1887 (St. 1886-87, p. 112, c. 95), § 8, relative to the exploding of explosives in certain places. In re Mitchell [Cal. App.] 82 P. 347.

97. See 4 C. L. 1537.

98. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Oglesby [Ind.] 76 N. E. 165.

it designed to grant at all,[99] and any ambiguity in the terms of the grant must be resolved against the grantee and in favor of the public.[1]

Remedial statutes.[2]—While the rule is that remedial statutes are to be liberally construed,[3] the rule is never carried to the extent of giving the act retrospective effect, unless such an intent appears in the act.[4]

Revisions.[5]

Other liberal constructions.[6]

(§ 5) H. Partial invalidity.[7]—If the unconstitutional provisions of a statute are not essentially and inseparably connected with the valid portions, so that they may be disregarded and the legislative purpose may be accomplished independently of them, it is the duty of the court to give effect to so much of the act as is good,[8] but where the unconstitutional portions of the act were obviously the principal, if not the sole inducement for the passage of the act,[9] or are of such import that the other parts without them would cause results not contemplated or desired by the legislature, then the entire act must be held inoperative;[10] and if a particular provision is unconstitutional, it cannot be given effect in part if the result would be to accomplish a purpose which the lawmaking power never intended, or where the

99, 1. Blair v. Chicago, 26 S. Ct. 427.

2. See 4 C. L. 1538.

3. Revenue Act (Acts 1901, p. 373, c. 174) § 81, is remedial in its nature and broadly constructed. State v. Kelly, 111 Tenn. 583, 82 S. W. 311.

4. Eddy v. Morgan, 216 Ill. 437, 75 N. E. 174.

5. See 4 C. L. 1536.

6, 7. See 4 C. L. 1538.

8. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. Where the first section of a statute conforms to the obvious policy and intent of the legislature, it is not rendered inoperative by inconsistent provisions in a later section which do not so conform, but such later provisions are nugatory and will be disregarded. State v. Bates [Minn.] 104 N. W. 709. The question whether the latter part of Pen. Code 1895, art. 402, as amended by Gen. Laws 1903, p. 55, c. 40, is unconstitutional and vitiates the entire article as amended held immaterial, the prosecution being sustainable under the article as it stood before amendment. Uloth v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 521. 87 S. W. 822.

Acts partially valid: The invalidity of part of V. S. 4663, relative to sale of drugs by dealers in general merchandise, does not affect the part relating to the sale by medical practitioners, wholesale dealers, etc. State v. Abraham [Vt.] 61 A. 766. Shannon's Code, § 7423, workhouse law § 18, is unconstitutional as a delegation of legislative power, but is so independent of the rest of the act as not to affect it. Fite v. State, 114 Tenn. 646, 88 S. W. 941. The provision of Loc. Acts 1905, No. 392, p. 128, relative to salary of mayor, is valid notwithstanding the invalid part relative to courts. City of Battle Creek v. Barnes [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 1034, 106 N. W. 1119. Unconstitutional provisions in Sess. Laws 1905, p. 325, c. 66, held not to affect the rest of the act. State v. Drexel [Neb.] 105 N. W. 174. Acts 1902, p. 98, No. 90, regulating traffic in intoxicating liquors, is not entirely void by reason of the invalidity of § 21, excepting certain sales. State v. Hazelton [Vt.] 63 A. 305. Laws 1893, p. 136, requiring custodians of public funds to account for interest thereon, though void as to state officers, is otherwise valid City of Chicago v. Wolf [Ill.] 77 N. E. 414 Acts 1905, p. 30, c. 11, to establish a graded school in Kernersville, is not entirely invalid on account of the provisions in § 7 illegally discriminating between the white and colored races. Lowery v. Kernersville Graded School Trustees [N. C.] 52 S. E. 267. Unconstitutional portion of St. 1903, p. 350, c. 381, for construction of bridge by city of Boston, separable from valid part. Wheelwright v. Boston, 188 Mass. 521, 74 N. E. 937. Conceding that the provisions of Sess. Laws 1905, c. 16, p. 200, §§ 12, 13, relating to election of police judge, are invalid, the rest of the act is not affected thereby. State v. Malone [Neb.] 105 N. W. 893. Sess. Laws 1905, p. 377, c. 180, prohibiting unauthorized sale of railroad transportation, is not invalidated by provisions of § 5, conceding their invalidity. In re O'Neill [Wash.] 83 P. 104. Certain provisions in Laws 1905, c. 5384, relative to the management of the state educational institutions of Florida, even if invalid, could not avoid the entire act. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929.

9. State v. Galusha [Neb.] 104 N. W. 197. Held to govern in case of a scheme of legislation for a particular purpose where the law, specially enacted to create it and referring to other laws required for a complete plan, is unconstitutional and was the inducement to the rest of the scheme. Huber v. Martin [Wis.] 105 N. W. 1031.

10. State v. Patterson [Fla.] 39 So. 398.

Entirely void: The biennial election law (H. R. 235, Sess. Laws 1905) held entirely void. State v. Galusha [Neb.] 104 N. W. 197. Pen. Code § 321, prohibiting combinations, etc., being inseparably connected with § 325, which is unconstitutional under Const. U. S. amdt. 14, is invalid. State v. Cudahy Packing Co. [Mont.] 82 P. 833. In Acts 1905 (House Enrolled Act 70), amending the charter of Battle Creek, a provision that the associate judge of the municipal court created shall exercise his powers subject to the discretion of the judge vitiates the entire act. Attorney General v. Loomis [Mich.] 12 Det.

legislative intent is doubtful.[11] Invalid provisions of an act, not operating to avoid the whole, cannot be relied on to excuse the performance of a duty enjoined by the valid portions of the act.[12]

§ 6. Retrospective effect.[13]—Retrospective legislation impairing vested rights or obligation of contracts is elsewhere treated.[14]

In general.[15]—All statutes are to be construed prospectively only, unless the language used clearly requires a retrospective construction,[16] and the rule applies to repeals and revisions of the revenue laws,[17] but in some instances, in the application of remedial statutes, the rule is applied with less strictness.[18] Courts, however, do not look with favor upon retroactive or retrospective legislation.[19]

Retrospective legislation is not invalid unless prohibited by the constitution,[20] or unless they partake of the nature of ex post facto laws,[21] impair the obligation of contracts,[22] deprive a citizen of property without due process of law,[23] or disturb Leg. N. 553, 105 N. W. 4. Acts 1905, c. 5420, discriminating between white and colored pasengers on street cars, held entirely void under Const. U. S. 11th amdt. § 1. State v. Patterson [Fla.] 39 So. 398.

11. In the San Francisco Freeholders' Charter, § 2, providing for certain concurrent jurisdiction by the police court with the superior court, rendering the section invalid, the provision as to such concurrence of jurisdiction cannot be separated so as to give the police court an exclusive jurisdiction. Robert v. Police Court of City & County of San Francisco [Cal.] 82 P. 838.

12. State v. Malone [Neb.] 105 N. W. 893.

13. See 4 C. L. 1539.

14. See Constitutional Law, 5 C. L. 619.

15. See 4 C. L. 1539.

16. Atwood v. Buckingham [Conn.] 62 A. 616; Greenwood v. Trigg, Dobbs & Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 361; Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401; Swift & Co. v. Newport News [Va.] 52 S. E. 821; Old Forge School District, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 586; United States v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 142 F. 176. The fact that the legislature incorporates the original act in an amendment and then adds new provisions does not show a legislative intent to give the new matter a retrospective effect, but is simply a compliance with the constitutional requirement as to setting forth the law amended. Eddy v. Morgan, 216 Ill. 437, 75 N. E. 174. Code § 1898, relating to computation on foreclosure by a building association, is, by the express provisions of Acts 27th Gen. Assem. p. 32, c. 48, applicable to contracts made prior to the taking effect of the Code. Iowa Cent. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Klock [Iowa] 104 N. W. 352.

Held not retrospective: Laws 1899, p. 101, amending Laws Apr. 29, 1887 (Laws 1887, p. 122), a police pension act. Eddy v. Morgan, 216 Ill. 437, 75 N. E. 174. Laws 1905, p. 194, amending Act July 1, 1874 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 89), relating to divorce as construed. Olsen v. People, 219 Ill. 40, 76 N. E. 89. Act Feb. 5, 1903, P. L. 4, relating to school districts in townships and boroughs erected therefrom. Old Forge School District, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 586. Act Feb. 19, 1903, § 3 (32 Stat. 848, c. 708 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1905, p. 600]), known as the "Elkins Act." United States v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 142 F. 176. Laws 1893, p. 1387, c. 601, as amended by Laws 1896, p 215, c. 272, prohibiting marriage, between uncles and nieces, did not invalidate a prior marriage between such relatives. Weisberg v. Weisberg, 98 N. Y. S. 260. Act Feb. 23, 1899 (Acts 1898-99, p. 34), amending Code 1896, §§ 1920-1922, as to filing judgments in probate office, etc., is prospective and does not cure a defective certificate previously filed. Greenwood v. Trigg, Dobbs & Co. [Ala.] 39 So. 361. Under Act June 4, 1901, P. L. 364, municipal liens have no priority over mortgages executed prior thereto. Martin v. Greenwood, 27 Pa. Super. Ct. 245.

Held retrospective: Act July 6, 1905 (Pub. Acts 1905, p. 413, c. 217), relative to the recovery of forfeitures in actions pending under Gen. St. 1902, § 324, when that section was repealed, is retroactive. Atwood v. Buckingham [Conn.] 62 A. 616.

17. Rev. Codes 1895; Laws 1897, c. 126, p. 256, and Laws 1901, c. 166, p. 221, relating to redemption from tax sales, do not apply to certificates issued under former law. Blakemore v. Cooper [N. D.] 106 N. W. 566.

18. Laws 1899, p. 101, amending Laws Apr. 29, 1887 (Laws 1887, p. 122), the police pension act, is not a remedial act within the rule giving such acts retrospective effect. Eddy v. Morgan, 216 Ill. 437, 75 N. E. 174.

19. Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401.

20. There is no such prohibition in the Connecticut constitution. Atwood v. Buckingham [Conn.] 62 A. 616. Sess. Laws 1902, p. 73, c. 3, § 65, imposing an annual state license tax on the stock of foreign corporations, is not an ex post facto or retrospective law, within the prohibition of Const. art. 2, § 11, because Sess. Laws 1897, p. 157, c. 51, and Sess. Laws 1901, p. 116, c. 52, required the payment of certain fees before doing business in the state. American Smelting & Refining Co. v. People [Colo.] 82 P. 531.

21. Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401. Laws 1901, c. 4930, § 4, p. 59, which was expressly repealed by Laws 1903, c. 5187, p. 131, held to be in force and effect as to defendant to prevent the repealing act from being ex post facto legislation. Goode v. State [Fla.] 39 So. 461.

22. Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401. Act Mar. 2, 1903 (St. 1903, p. 67, c. 61), amending Pol. Code § 3443, so as to provide an additional method of contesting the right to purchase public land, etc., though retroactive, impairs no obligation of contract as it merely gives a new remedy. Boggs v. Ganeard [Cal.] 84 P. 195.

23. Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401.

vested rights.[24] As long as vested rights are not impaired, retrospective laws giving new and additional remedies for existing rights, or giving a remedy at law where one previously existed in equity only, or vice versa, are valid;[25] and a statute respecting practice passed during the pendency of proceedings in the lower court and remaining in force will be applied in the final disposition of the case,[26] but a judgment correct at the time it was rendered and properly affirmed by the supreme court cannot be affected on a rehearing by a statutory change in practice made after the decision on appeal.[27] Statutes are not to be construed so as to interfere with vested rights if their terms admit of any other reasonable construction.[28]

Curative acts.[29]—A curative act can be effectual to do that only which the legislature would have been competent to provide for and require to be done by a law prospective in its operation.[30] The legislature can no more validate an election carried by a corrupt use of money, or by the votes of infamous persons, than it could authorize such proceedings by prior action.[31] The idea implied in the ratification of an act performed without previous legislative authority is that it communicates authority which relates back to, and restrospectively vivifies and legalizes, the act as if the power had been previously given.[32] Curative acts applying to all places, things, or subjects affected by the conditions remedial are not objectionable as special legislation.[33] While the legislature of Texas cannot, under the constitution, by special act create a municipal corporation having a population of 10,000 or less, yet it can, by special act, pass a curative act legalizing the defective incorporation of a city already in existence under the general laws.[34] The effect of a curative act is not destroyed by its subsequent repeal.[35]

§ 7. Repeal. A. In general.[36]—There must appear to have been an intention of the legislature to repeal.[37] An act is not repealed or superseded by a sub-

24. The inheritance tax law of Louisiana, approved June 28, 1904, even if retroactive, is not unconstitutional as an interference with vested rights. Succession of Levy [La.] 39 So. 37.

25. Boggs v. Ganeard [Cal.] 84 P. 195. An act making broader the right of joinder may be made applicable to pending actions in which judgment has not yet been rendered. Gibson v. Miller, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 96.

26. New provisions concerning appeals in street opening cases incorporated in the Greater New York charter. In re Commissioner of Public Works, 97 N. Y. S. 503.

27. Act app. Feb. 25, 1905, p. 33, c. 21, purporting to amend Civil Practice Act, § 197. Powell v. Nevada C. & O. R. Co. [Nev.] 82 P. 96.

28. Jersey City v. North Jersey St. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 61 A. 95.

29. See 2 C. L. 1732.

30. Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401. Laws 1903, p. 148, No. 92, providing a remedy and procedure for collection of taxes due, even if retrospective, is so only in validating proceedings which might have been authorized in advance. Walapai Mining & Development Co. v. Territory [Ariz.] 84 P. 85. Under Const. art. 8, § 10, providing that no municipality shall give any money or property or loan its money or credit to any individual, Laws 1903, p. 1182, c. 515, validating any bona fide payment by a county treasurer to a supervisor of the taxes from railroad corporations in the town, did not validate such a payment wrongfully made prior to the passage of the act. Town of Walton v. Adair, 97 N. Y. S. 868. Act Mar. 17, 1906, to amend and re-enact chapter 23 of the Code as previously amended, and to validate assessments made under such chapter as amended, held valid as curative legislation. Whitlock v. Hawkins [Va.] 53 S. E. 401. Act Apr. 8, 1899 (P. L. 57), known as the "Curative Act" validating street improvements made under invalid laws or ordinances, is constitutional. In re Marshall Avenue [Pa.] 62 A. 1085.

31. Red River Furnace Co. v. Tennessee Cent. R. Co., 113 Tenn. 697, 87 S. W. 1016.

32. Acts 1903, p. 796, c. 276, validated a railroad stock subscription. Red River Furnace Co. v. Tennessee Cent. R. Co., 113 Tenn. 697, 87 S. W. 1016.

33. Gen. Laws 1905, cc. 76, 77, pp. 93, 94, legalizing school bonds voted on by cities, under Gen. Laws 1893, c. 204, p. 333, and amendatory acts, are valid. State v. Brown [Minn.] 106 N. W. 477.

34. Sp. Laws 27th Leg. (1st Called Sess.), p. 1, held valid. State v. Larkin [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 912.

35. Act of Illinois, June 9, 1897, ratifying grants to street railway companies of permission to use cable, electric, or other motive power. Blair v. Chicago, 26 S. Ct. 427.

36. See 4 C. L. 1540.

37. Struthen v. People, 116 Ill. App. 481. Where a street railway company was already in existence and had acquired the right to make alterations in its charter, etc., as provided in Act Mar. 20, 1903 (Acts 1903, p. 114, sequent unconstitutional act.[38] The words "all other acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act," in a repealing section, add nothing to the legal effect of the act.[39] A statute which is operative is not repealed by being changed to one that is effective only upon adoption by vote of the people of a county, but such a change is an amendment.[40] Statutes existing when a new constitution is adopted, and inconsistent with its provisions, are nullified by such constitution.[41]

Effect on vested rights.[42]—Vested rights secured by the constitution cannot be disturbed by the legislature,[43] nor the obligation of a legislative contract impaired.[44] The right of the general government to an income tax which had attached to an officer's pay was not taken away by a repealing act.[45]

Effect on penalties.[46]—Pending prosecutions are not affected by the repeal of statutes when excepted by saving clauses.[47]

Repeal of repealing statutes.[48]

Effect on pending actions.[49]—A general saving clause whether in the repealing act or in the general statutes, providing that the repeal of a statute shall not affect accrued rights or pending causes, protects such rights or causes,[50] but in the absence of such saving clause or statute, the right to bring suit to recover a penalty or forfeiture falls with the act providing for it,[51] although in Indiana, where a statute, under which a liability has accrued has been repealed, and the repealing act does not provide for the extinguishment of such liability, the repealed statute amending Code § 1283, its right to do so was saved from repeal by the reserving clause of Act Ala. Oct. 2, 1903, p. 326, § 47. Montgomery Amusement Co. v. Montgomery Traction Co., 139 F. 353.

38. Gen. Acts 1903, p. 566, fixing the time for holding the circuit court in Washington county, being unconstitutional, the terms of that court remained as fixed in act approved Feb. 21, 1899, Acts 1898-99, p. 1345 Yellow Pine Lumber Co. v. Randall [Ala.] 39 So. 565.

39. Struthers v. People, 116 Ill. App. 481. Although such a clause has the form of an express repeal, yet in legal effect it expresses nothing more than a legislative intention of repealing all prior acts and parts of acts conflicting with the provisions found in the body of the new act. State v. Drexel [Neb.] 105 N. W. 174.

40. Acts 1903, p. 408, c. 177, prohibiting the running at large of small stock in certain cases, was so changed by Acts 1905, p. 670, c. 316. Wright v. Cunningham [Tenn.] 91 S. W. 293.

41. Swift & Co. v. Newport News [Va.] 52 S. E. 821.

42. See 4 C. L. 1540.

43. Laws 1901, p. 966, c. 354, § 30, limiting to 6 months the right of action against officers of a corporation failing to file annual reports, affected only the remedy and did not interfere with any vested rights in any person entitled to recover. Davidson v. Witthaus, 106 App. Div. 182, 94 N. Y. S. 428.

44. The assurance held out by the state at tax sales by the revenue laws of 1890, as amended in 1891, that tax certificates and deeds would be prima facie evidence of regularity, constituted a substantial inducement to the purchase and the contract with the state, which could not be taken away by subsequent legislation without impairment of contract obligations. Blakemore v. Cooper [N. D.] 106 N. W. 566, following and approving Fisher v. Betts, 12 N. D. 197, 96 N. W. 132. The repeal of the coyote bounty act (St. 1891, p. 280, c. 198) did not destroy the effect of certificates as to claims already accrued. Bickerdike v. State, 144 Cal. 681, 78 P. 270. Laws 1905, c. 5384 repealing various acts relative to the state educational institutions and providing a new system of government for the same, does not violate the obligation of any contracts. State v. Bryan [Fla.] 39 So. 929. The repeal of the Illinois act of June 9, 1897, ratifying grants to street railway companies of permission to use cable, electric, or other motive power, could not affect contracts, already in existence and validated by it. Blair v. Chicago, 26 S. Ct. 427.

45. Repealing Act 14th July, 1870 (16 Stat. L. p. 261, § 17). Galm's Case, 39 Ct. Cl. 55.

46. See 2 C. L. 1733.

47. Under Acts 1905, p. 757, c. 169, § 699, relating to public offenses and providing for the continuance of pending prosecutions under existing laws, such prosecutions were governed as to procedure by the former law. Miller v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 245.

48. See 2 C. L. 1733.

49. See 4 C. L. 1541.

50. Under Gen. St. 1902, § 1, saving actions pending for the recovery of penalties or forfeitures, the repeal of § 324 for the recovery of penalties from administrators did not affect pending actions. Atwood v. Buckingham [Conn.] 62 A. 616. The right to redeem from a tax sale made under Laws 1890, c. 132, p. 376, was a "right accrued" perpetuated by the saving clause in Rev. Codes 1895, § 2686, notwithstanding the repeal of the 1890 revenue laws by Rev. Codes 1895. Blakemore v. Cooper [N. D.] 106 N. W. 566.

51. Atwood v. Buckingham [Conn.] 62 A. 616. The provisions of Laws 1890, c. 132, p. 376, requiring service of notice to terminate right of redemption from tax sales, is still in force as to sales made thereunder. Blakemore v. Cooper [N. D.] 106 N. W. 566.

will be treated as still in force for the purpose of sustaining any proper action for the enforcement of such liability.[52]

