38. Laws 1905, p. 130, c. 66, requiring examination of plumbers by board of examiners, held contrary to U. S. Const. Amend. 14, § 1. State v. Smith, 42 Wash. 237, 84 P. 851.

39. Ky. St. 1903, § 3637, authorizing municipalities to impose license fees on franchises, held a revenue measure, being so treated in its classification in Const. § 181, conferring legislative authority to delegate the powers, though it is classified in the statute with matters purtaining to police power. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Hopkins, 28 Ky. L. R. 846, 90 S. W. 594.

40. Municipal liquor license. Wells v. Torrey, 144 Mich. 689, 13 Det. Leg. N. 378, 108 N. W. 423.

41. License on motor vehicles. Unwen v. State [N. J. Law] 64 A. 163.

42. Producers' Oil Co. v. Stevens [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 157; Stevens v. Morning Star Oil Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 159; Southwestern Oil Co. v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 159; Texas Co. v. Stephens [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 160.

43. Gen. Laws 1905, p. 336, § 141, imposing privilege tax on railroads, held not double taxation because of ad valorem tax on franchises. State v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 909, 97 S. W. 71.

44. Franchise to operate street railroad does not exempt company from licensing power of city. Bloomington & Normal R. etc., Co. v. Bloomington, 123 Ill. App. 639.

45. Bloomington & Normal R., etc., Co. v. Bloomington, 123 Ill. App. 639.

46. Note: In Wisconsin Tel. Co. v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 104 N. W. 1009, it was held that a city having only a general police power over its streets and the right to regulate them, but without authority to grant any franchises or privileges in the use thereof, could not exact a privilege license fee of a telephone company doing business in the city and occupying its streets pursuant to legislative authority. In support of the holding that defendant city had no authority over its streets than that arising from its general police power and the right to control its streets and public places, and that it had no right to grant privileges or impose conditions, the court cited State ex rel. Wisconsin Telephone Co. v. Sheboygan, 111 Wis.

rate franchises covers the franchise to do business or operate in the municipality, such franchise cannot be subjected to an additional license tax for revenue,[47] and so also a sale of a franchise by a municipality precludes the subsequent imposition of a franchise tax,[48] since the effect in either case would be double taxation.[49] The same privilege cannot be taxed twice in the same year as against the same person,[50] and a privilege upon which a tax is imposed cannot be curtailed by constructing out of it another privilege and taxing it also;[51] but a special privilege, in order to be entitled to the protection as a part of a general privilege, must be an essential element thereof,[52] and several license taxes may be imposed on the same person acting in several capacities.[53]

23, 86 N. W. 657; Marshfield v. Wisconsin Tel. Co., 102 Wis. 604, 78 N. W. 735, 44 L. R. A. 565. And that defendant city had no power to require a license, Wisconsin Telephone Co. v. Oshkosh, 62 Wis. 32, 21 N. W. 828. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 12 A. 144, and other cases cited by defendant city, were distinguished on ground that the license fees therein involved were imposed in connection with the granting of some privilege, or the ordinances upheld merely imposed regulations and not licenses. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Milwaukee, 97 Wis. 418, 72 N. W. 1118, holding that charter of corporation does not exempt it from police regulation, was distinguished on ground that question in case at bar was not one of escape from police supervision, but whether the ordinance was within the police power. People v. Squire, 107 N. Y. 593, 14 N. E. 820, 1 Am. St. Rep. 893, involved a regulation under a statute, and power to require defendant to pay expense of placing their wires under ground was sustained. In State v. Janesville, 87 Wis. 72, 57 N. W. 970, 41 Am. St. Rep. 23, 22 L. R. A. 759, the question involved was one of regulation of electric wires and no question of license was involved. Marshfield v. Wisconsin Tel. Co., 102 Wis. 604, 78 N. W. 735, 44 L. R. A. 565, involved merely regulation as to placing of telephone poles. In Baltimore v. Baltimore, T. & G. Co., 166 U. S. 673, 41 Law. Ed. 1160, it was held that a street railroad company occupying streets with permission of municipality was subject to reasonable regulations by subsequent ordinances, and that city did not exhaust power by the exercise thereof. Ash v. People, 11 Mich. 347, 83 Am. Dec. 740, upholds power of city to license butchers and shop and stall keepers, such power being expressly conferred by charter. In Marmet v. State, 45 Ohio St. 63, 12 N. E. 463, license upheld under express legislative authority. So, also, in State v. Herod, 29 Iowa, 123. In St. Louis the title to the streets is in the city and it has right to grant privileges and express power to license, tax, and regulate telegraph companies. St. Louis v. Western U. Tel. Co., 149 U. S. 465, 37 Law. Ed. 810. None of these cases support the authority of a city without title to its streets and without power to grant privileges therein to license a telephone company having a state franchise. Power is in state to determine what occupations shall be licensed. Wisconsin Tel. Co. v. Oshkosh, 62 Wis. 32, 21 N. W. 828; State v. Sheboygan, 111 Wis. 23, 86 N. W. 657; Cooley's Const. Lim. (7th Ed.) 884. No power having been delegated to defendant city to license telephone companies, it could not exact a fee as means of raising revenues. Wisconsin Tel. Co. v. Oshkosh, 62 Wis. 32, 21 N. W. 828; State v. Sheboygan, 114 Wis. 505, 90 N. W. 441; State v. Sheboygan, 111 Wis. 23, 86 N. W. 657; Marshfield v. Wisconsin Tel. Co., 102 Wis. 604, 78 N. W. 735, 44 L. R. A. 565; Michigan Tel. Co. v. Benton Harbor, 121 Mich. 512, 80 N. W. 386, 47 L. R. A. 104. Whether defendant city in case at bar could have exacted a fee for supervision was not decided, it being decided that the license imposed was a privilege license and a revenue measure and unsustainable as such. The ordinance required telephone and telegraph companies to pay an annual license of one dollar on each pole maintained in the city, such fees to go into the general city fund, and provided for a penalty for its violation, and the fee exacted was a privilege license. Neuman v. State, 76 Wis. 112, 45 N. W. 30; Chilvers v. People, 11 Mich. 43; Home Ins. Co. v. Augusta, 50 Ga. 530. And when the court can clearly see that revenue and not regulation is the aim and not the incident, and no power is given to license the occupation, the license is void. Wisconsin Tel. Co. v. Oshkosh, 62 Wis. 32, 21 N. W. 828; State v. Sheboygan, 111 Wis. 40, 86 N. W. 657; Postal T. C. Co. v. Taylor, 192 U. S. 64, 48 Law. Ed. 342; Michigan Tel. Co. v. Benton Harbor, 121 Mich. 512, 80 N. W. 386, 47 L. R. A. 104; Mayor, etc., v. Second Ave. R. Co., 32 N. Y. 261; Memphis v. American Ex. Co. [Tenn.] 52 S. W. 172.—See Wisconsin Tel. Co. v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 104 N. W. 1009.

47. Such is effect of Ky. St. 1903, § 4077, providing for franchise tax on public service corporations. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Hopkins, 28 Ky. L. R. 846, 90 S. W. 594.

48. Telephone franchise. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Hopkins, 28 Ky. L. R. 846, 90 S. W. 594.

49. And hence in violation of Const. 171, requiring taxes to be uniform, other property not being similarly taxed. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Hopkins, 28 Ky. L. R. 846, 90 S. W. 594.

50. Constitutional grant of legislative authority to delegate authority to tax and license to municipalities does not contemplate taxing of the same privilege twice in the same year as against the same person. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Hopkins, 28 Ky. L. R. 846, 90 S. W. 594.

51. Mefford v. City Council of Sheffield [Ala.] 41 So. 970.

52. Right to sell oil at wholesale held not an essential constituent of right to main-

Interstate commerce cannot be burdened with state regulation or license taxes,[54] but when goods from other states have become a part of the general mass of property within the taxing state the exemption from state control does not apply.[55] The intrastate business of a foreign corporation may be taxed,[56] and so also the intrastate business of interstate carriers,[57] and the decision of the highest court of a state that a licensing statute does not apply to the interstate business of a foreign corporation is binding on the Federal courts.[58] Dealing in futures is not commerce.[59]

Authority to regulate and license may be delegated to municipal corporations[60] or to a board;[61] but a municipal corporation cannot delegate the authority thus delegated to it,[62] though it may commit the performance of merely ministerial duties to executive agents.[63] One who has never received or applied for a license cannot tain grocery or drug store. Mefford v. City Council of Sheffield [Ala.] 41 So. 970.

53. Corporation engaged as a dealer and also as a contractor. State v. Hartwell Co., 117 La. 144, 41 So. 444.

54. Soliciting agent or drummer selling by sample goods to be shipped from another state cannot be subjected to a license tax. Rearick v. Com., 27 S. Ct. 159; State v. Looney [Mo.] 97 S. W. 934. Fact that purchaser had right to reject goods if not equal to sample did not change rule. Rearick v. Com., 27 S. Ct. 159. Fact that goods distributed in original packages or otherwise specifically applied to the contracts were shipped to the agent did not prevent the transaction from being interstate commerce. Id. Fact that brooms which were tagged and marked to the various purchasers were tied together in bundles convenient for shipment did not render them a part of the mass of property within the state, and hence not subjects of interstate commerce. Id. Transaction held interstate commerce though goods were deliverable only upon payment of price to agent. Id.

55. License tax on all itinerant venders without distinction or discrimination against goods from other states is valid. Territory v. Russell [N. M.] 86 P. 551. Peddling goods supplied by foreign corporation from distribution warehouse within state held not interstate commerce. City of Alma v. Clow [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 836, 109 N. W. 853; following City of Muskegon v. Zeeryp, 134 Mich. 181, 96 N. W. 502. Selling oil that has become included in general mass of property in state whether sales are from original barrels or not. Standard Oil Co. v. Fredericksburg, 105 Va. 82, 52 S. E. 817. Under Act Aug. 8, 1890, c. 728, 26 St. 313, U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3177, known as the Wilson Act, a state may regulate and license sale of liquor coming in original packages from other states. Meyer, Jossen & Co. v. Mobile, 147 F. 843. Irrespective of Act Aug. 8, 1890, c. 728, 26 St. 313, U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3177, authorizing state regulation of sale of liquor coming from other states in original packages, where such packages have reached their destination a license fee may be imposed whether for regulation or for revenue. Id. Where portraits to be made in another state were ordered from soliciting agents to be delivered in frames but purchaser of portrait not being bound to purchase the frame, the subsequent delivery of the portraits and sale of the frames to such purchasers of portraits as desired to purchase frames was not interstate commerce, though sale of portraits was interstate commerce. State v. Looney [Mo.] 97 S. W. 934.

56. N. C. Pub. Laws 1903, c. 247, taxing business of meat packing, held valid as to business of foreign packer maintaining a cold storage and distributing depot within the state. Armour Packing Co. v. Lacy, 200 U. S. 226, 50 Law. Ed. 451.

57. Tax imposed on railroads by Gen. Laws 1905, p. 336, c. 141. State v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 909, 97 S. W. 71.

58. N. C. Pub. Laws 1903, c. 247, taxing meat packing business, construed. Armour Packing Co. v. Lacy, 200 U. S. 226, 50 Law. Ed. 451.

59. Ware v. Mobile County [Ala.] 41 So. 153. Fact that contracts executed in dealing in futures may sometimes result in interstate shipment does not render dealing in futures commerce. Id.

60. To regulate peddling. Ex parte Henson [Tex. Cr. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 757, 90 S. W. 874; City of Alma v. Clow [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 836, 109 N. W. 853. Pub. St. 1901, c. 124, § 1, authorizing municipal authorities to determine who are "suitable" persons to receive license as junk dealers, and Laws 1905, p. 484, c. 76, authorizing such authorities to grant such licenses to "persons deemed by them to be suitable," do not grant such authorities such arbitrary power as renders the acts unconstitutional. State v. Cohen, 73 N. H. 543, 63 A. 928.

61. Act July 1, 1905, § 4, authorizing board of dental examiners to adopt rules and regulations to establish a uniform and reasonable educational standard to be observed by dental colleges, and to determine reputability of such colleges by their conformity to such regulations, held not invalid as granting arbitrary power. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472.

62. Requirement that applicant for license as ticket broker be member of some association of ticket brokers held unwarranted delegation. Munson v. Colorado Springs [Colo.] 84 P. 683.

63. Requirement that applications for license to store gasoline be addressed to fire marshal. Cahill v. District of Columbia, 26 App. D. C. 163. Requirement that applications for license to store gasoline be passed urge the invalidity of the licensing statute or ordinance on the ground that it delegates too broad a discretion in the matter of granting and revoking licenses.[64] Authority under special charters is not necessarily revoked by subsequent constitutional[65] or statutory provisions relating to the matter of licenses.[66] Authority under a general law to license the sale of liquor is not inconsistent with authority previously granted by special charter to license inns and taverns.[67] The authority of a municipality to license may be granted in general terms,[68] or in terms applicable to particular matters only.[69] Authority to impose a license tax on all occupations upon which such a tax is imposed by the state does not necessarily authorize a municipal tax on occupations thereafter taxed by the state.[70] Authority to license cannot be implied from a mere statutory specification of matters which may be licensed,[71] or from a constitutional limitation on the amount of license assessable.[72] Authority to regulate does not include authority to suppress,[73] but authority to restrict as well as to regulate the sale of a certain article implies the power to regulate the sale of other articles adapted exclusively to the making of the former.[74] Authority to license for revenue may be implied from the terms of the authorizing statute,[75] but authority to license for regulation does not include authority to li-upon by fire marshal and building inspector held not unwarranted delegation of authority of commissioners. Id. Ordinance requiring applicants for liquor license to be recommended by citizens sustained. Wells v. Torrey, 144 Mich. 689, 13 Det. Leg. N. 378, 108 N. W. 423.

64. Statutory delegation of authority to examining board. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472. Ordinance giving city council right to grant or refuse license without hearing and to revoke for cause after hearing. Wells v. Torrey, 144 Mich. 689, 13 Det. Leg. N. 378, 108 N. W. 423.

65. Authority of cities under special charters to levy license taxes held not repealed by Const. 1904, § 117, conforming city charters to constitution, and section 168, requiring license taxes to be imposed under a general law. Standard Oil Co. v. Fredericksburg, 105 Va. 82, 52 S. E. 817.

66. Acts 1820-21, p. 133, c. 114, giving city of Fredericksburg general power to tax, held not repealed by Acts 1870-71, p. 265, c. 187, § 7, authorizing such city to levy license taxes on all matters for which state license might be required, nor by similar general provision of Code 1887, § 1042, Code 1904, p. 504. Standard Oil Co. v. Fredericksburg, 105 Va. 82, 52 S. E. 817.

67. Authority of Atlantic City under its charter of 1854, as amended by P. L. 1866, p. 314, to license inns and taverns was not repealed by P. L. 1902, p. 284, relating to government of cities, §§ 20, 21, of latter act relating to liquor licenses not being repugnant to authority under charter to license inns and taverns. Conover v. Atlantic City [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 146.

68. General power of city of Fredericksburg under its charter, Acts 1820-21, p. 133, c. 114, § 7, for purpose of raising city revenues in such manner as city authorities may deem expedient held to authorize license tax on sale of oil from tank wagons, etc. Standard Oil Co. v. Fredericksburg, 105 Va. 82, 52 S. E. 817.

69. Under Pub. Acts 1895, No. 215, p. 389, authorizing cities of fourth class to regulate and license hawkers and peddlers, such a city held to have power to license one selling by sample for future delivery. City of Alma v. Clow [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 836, 109 N. W. 853, following City of Muskegon v. Zeeryp, 134 Mich. 181, 96 N. W. 502. Under Laws 1903, c. 122, p. 208, § 134, authorizing city to impose license tax on business and callings operated within city limits, city may license express agencies transporting packages from residents of city to nonresidents thereof and vice versa. City of Topeka v. Jones [Kan.] 86 P. 162.

70. Rev. St. 1895, art. 5050, giving counties right to levy one-half of occupation tax levied by state on all occupations not otherwise exempted therein, held to confer no power to tax occupations not then taxed by state, and hence does not authorize county license tax on railroads similar to that imposed by Gen. Laws 1905, p. 336, § 141. State v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 909, 97 S. W. 71.

71. Acts 1898, No. 171, § 16, does not confer power to license upon municipalities having no such power under Acts 1898, No. 136, but merely specifies the objects upon which power to license may be exercised, although in terms it grants such power to license to "any municipal or parochial corporation in the state." Arnold v. Jones [La.] 42 So. 727.

72. Const. art. 8, § 1, providing that the occupation tax levied by any municipality shall not exceed 50% of that levied by the state, is a mere limitation and confers no authority to levy. State v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 909, 97 S. W. 71.

73. Under Comp. St. c. 14, art. 1, § 40 et seq., villages have authority at most to regulate and license billiard and pool tables but not to suppress them. State v. McMonies [Neb.] 106 N. W. 454.

74. Under power to regulate and restrict sale of cigarettes, city had power to require license for sale of cigarette papers. Kappes v. Chicago, 119 Ill. App. 436. In passing on validity of license on sale of cigarette pa-cense for revenue,[76] and the latter may be taken away by a grant of the former.[77] In determining whether authority to license for revenue is conferred, the purpose of the authorizing statute must be considered.[78] So also, in determining whether a municipal tax is for regulation or for revenue, the real purpose of the tax will control,[79] and if the license fee is so great as to plainly indicate that it is for revenue under the guise of regulation, it cannot stand as an exercise of police power.[80] The fact that civil suit is authorized for the recovery of the fee does not necessarily imply an authority to tax for revenue;[81] nor will the fact that the amount of the tax is measured by a percentage of the products of the taxpayer's business make it a property tax.[82] On the other hand, the fact that an ordinance assessing a license tax provides no penalty for failure to pay the tax does not deprive it of its regulative character where a penalty is provided by a general law.[83] State regulation and license does not necessarily preclude municipal regulation and license,[84] nor will the fact that the state imposes no tax on a certain occupation deprive a municipality of authority to do so.[85] No question of conflict between state and municpers, court will take judicial notice of the nature of cigarettes and of how they are made. Id.

75. Laws 1903, p. 558, c. 5363, § 20, giving city of Tampa power to license privileges, etc., regardless, as to amount of license, of the state revenue law, held to confer power to license for revenue. Lachman v. Walker [Fla.] 42 So. 461.

76. Placer County v. Whitney Estate Co., 2 Cal. App. 614, 84 P. 277. General welfare clause in charter did not authorize license of $1,000 on selling or delivering liquors in city. Southern Exp. Co. v. Rose Co., 124 Ga. 581, 53 S. E. 185.

77. Authority of county to license for both regulation and revenue under St. 1891, p. 306, c. 216, § 25, subd. 27, and County Gov. Act 1897, c. 277, § 25, subd. 25, taken away by implication by Pol. Code, § 3366, as amended by St. 1901, p. 635, c. 209, granting power to license for regulation only. Placer County v. Whitney Estate Co., 2 Cal. App. 614, 84 P. 277; Plumas County v. Wheeler [Cal.] 87 P. 909.

78. Tax on social clubs under Acts 1902-04, c. 148, cl. 144, held a license tax for revenue, and hence, under Code 1904, § 1042, authorizing cities to impose licenses on all matters for which state license is required, city had power to impose such a license tax on such clubs for privilege of dispensing liquors. Town of Phoebus v. Manhattan Social Club, 105 Va. 354, 52 S. E. 839.

79. License of three cents on each head of sheep herded in state imposed by county supervisors, adopted when board had power under St. 1901, p. 306, c. 216, § 25, subd. 27, and County Government Act 1897, § 25, and containing no regulatory provisions, held a revenue measure and not within power to regulate conferred by Pol. Code, § 3366, as amended by St. 1901, p. 635, c. 209. Placer County v. Whitney Estate Co., 2 Cal. App. 614, 84 P. 277. License under County Gov. Act 1897, p. 465, c. 277, § 25, subd. 25, of $10 on every hundred sheep owned or controlled by raisers, grazers, or pasturers of sheep, held, in view of title and lack of regulatory provisions, for revenue, and repealed by Pol. Code, § 3366. Wheeler v. Plumas County [Cal.] 87 P. 902.

80. Plumas County v. Wheeler [Cal.] 87 P. 909.

Note: "Where the court can clearly see that revenue and not regulation is the aim and not the incident, and no power is given to license the occupation, the ordinance is void. Wisconsin Tel. Co. v. Oshkosh, 62 Wis. 32, 21 N. W. 828; State v. Sheboygan, 111 Wis. 40, 41, 86 N. W. 657; Postal Tel. Cable v. Taylor, 192 U. S. 64, 48 Law. Ed. 342; Michigan Tel. Co. v. Benton Harbor, 121 Mich. 512, 80 N. W. 386, 47 L. R. A. 104; Mayor, etc., v. Second Ave. R. Co., 32 N. Y. 261; Memphis v. American Ex. Co., 102 Tenn. 336, 52 S. W. 172."—Wisconsin Tel. Co. v. Milwaukee [Wis.] 104 N. W. 1009.

81. Plumas County v. Wheeler [Cal.] 87 P. 909.

82. Acts 29th Leg. p. 358, c. 148, imposing on operators of oil wells a tax of certain per cent of gross products, held an occupation tax and not tax on gross products themselves. Producers' Oil Co. v. Stevens [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 157; Stephens v. Morning Star Oil Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 159; Southwestern Oil Co. v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 159; Texas Co. v. Stephens [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 160.

83. A county ordinance is a law within Pen. Code, § 435, making it a misdemeanor to transact without license any business for which license required by "law." Plumas County v. Wheeler [Cal.] 87 P. 909.

84. Hawking and peddling. Ex parte Henson [Tex. Cr. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 757, 90 S. W. 874. Ordinance of City of Philadelphia of 1902, regulating and licensing automobiles, not superseded by Act Apr. 19, 1905, P. L. 217. Brazier v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 64 A. 508. Acts 1902-04, pp. 155, 226, c. 148, cl. 144, providing for payment of certain amount to county treasurer by social clubs for privilege of dispensing liquors to members, and that such amount shall be "in lieu of all other taxes" for the privilege granted, held to apply to state taxes and not to exempt such clubs from municipal taxation. Town of Phoebus v. Manhattan Social Club, 105 Va. 144, 52 S. E. 839.

85. Norfolk, etc., Co. v. Norfolk, 105 Va. 139, 52 S. E. 851.

ipal regulation arises when the party charged under the municipal law has no state license.[86]

The necessity and reasonableness of statutory regulation are primarily legislative questions which will not be reviewed by the courts except on constitutional grounds.[87] So also, when the manner in which a municipality shall exercise its regulating authority is prescribed by statute, the question of the reasonableness of municipal regulation is not open to the courts except on constitutional grounds,[88] but where the regulating authority is conferred in general terms and the method of exercising such authority is not prescribed, the question of reasonableness is open to the courts regardless of constitutional grounds.[89] The reasonableness of a municipal regulation tax is tested by the amount probably necessary to cover the expense of the regulation and the licensing,[90] and the same test applies when the tax is imposed by the state.[91] The fact that it subsequently develops that it is somewhat in excess of the necessary amount will not invalidate it;[92] but when a municipality has no power to prohibit, a license tax may be invalid because prohibitive in amount.[93] Where, however, the tax is within the limits prescribed by law, it will be presumed to be valid until its invalidity has been established by proper evidence.[94] Disproportion between amount of fee and value of property affected is immaterial.[95]

86. City of Alma v. Clow [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 836, 109 N. W. 853.

87. Plumas County v. Wheeler [Cal.] 87 P. 909. Necessity and reasonableness of Pub. St. 1901, c. 124, § 1, as amended by Laws 1905, p. 484, c. 76, relating to junk dealers, held not reviewable by courts. State v. Cohen, 73 N. H. 543, 63 A. 928. Junk dealing may be localized. State v. Cohen, 73 N. H. 543, 63 A. 928.

88. Munson v. Colorado Springs [Colo.] 84 P. 683.

89. Mills' Ann. St. § 4403, subd. 4, authorizing city councils to fix time, terms, and manner of issuing licenses, and subd. 61, authorizing the licensing and regulation of brokers, confer only general power without prescribing mode of exercise. Munson v. Colorado Springs [Colo.] 84 P. 683. Requiring ticket broker to be member of some association of ticket brokers as condition to right to license held unreasonable. Id. Not unreasonable to limit amount of explosive fluid stored in city to 50 gallons and to require it to be stored in underground tank outside of buildings. Cahill v. District of Columbia, 26 App. D. C. 163. Ordinance requiring license of pawnbrokers and that records be kept open to police inspection, and requiring reports to police, prohibiting redemption within certain time, regulating hours of business, and providing for revocation of license for failure to comply with regulation or on conviction of violation of regulations, held not unconstitutional or unreasonable. Harrison v. People, 121 Ill. App. 189. Requirement of P. L. 1903, p. 484, that every owner of motor vehicle file declaration of competency as driver, name and address of owner, maker, number of machine and horse power, and payment of registration fee and registration by secretary of state, held not unreasonable. Unwen v. State [N. J. Law] 64 A. 163.

90. West Conshohocken Borough v. Conshohocken Elec. Light & Power Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 7; Plumas County v. Wheeler [Cal.] 87 P. 909. Ten cents per head on sheep imposed on sheep raisers, grazers, etc., held not so grossly disproportionate to regulation provided for as to render it a revenue measure. Plumas County v. Wheeler [Cal.] 87 P. 909; Sierra County v. Flanigan [Cal.] 87 P. 913. License fee of $300 on temporary stores and transient dealers held unreasonable. Uhrlaub v. Cincinnati, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 505. License of $500 on sale of liquors held not unreasonable. Wells v. Torrey, 144 Mich. 689, 13 Det. Leg. N. 378, 108 N. W. 423.

91. Registration fee of $1 on owners of automobiles held valid. Unwen v. State [N. J. Law] 64 A. 163.

92. West Conshohocken Borough v. Conshohocken Elec. Light & Power Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 7.

93. Johnson v. Fayette [Ala.] 42 So. 621. An ordinance which imposes a license fee of $300 on temporary stores and transient dealers is invalid, because prohibitive as to some classes, unreasonable as to others, and in restraint of trade. Uhrlaub v. Cincinnati, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 505. Acts 1904, p. 71, c. 76, imposing tax of $500 and an ordinance imposing tax of $250 on business of lending money on personal property, such as household goods, held to be class legislation and to be in violation of constitutional inhibitions against depriving persons of liberty or property without due process of law. Rodge v. Kelly [Miss.] 40 So. 552. A license of $500 on all saloons, without regard to whether they are for sale of intoxicating liquors, held unreasonable. Kenaston v. Riker [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 709, 109 N. W. 278.

94. Where limit was $1,000, a tax of $750 on liquor dealers in town of 700 people held not prohibitive where of the four dealers during the previous year only one went out of business and other three made net profit of from $460 to $800 respectively, and two dealers took out license for the current year at $750. Johnson v. Fayette [Ala.] 42 So. 621.

95. Fee on electric light and power poles.

When there is no conflict in the evidence, the reasonableness of a license fee is for the court.[96] A city ordinance may require a licensee to comply with state laws,[97] and the fact that such laws are unconstitutional will not render the ordinance invalid,[98] nor can the constitutionality of such laws be questioned by a party who has not paid his license and has not been called upon to comply with the state laws.[99] It is immaterial how reasonable a regulating ordinance is where it is authorized by neither charter nor statute.[1]

A licensing ordinance passed pursuant to authority to license generally need not except specific matters beyond its authority to legalize by license.[2] The amount of a license fee required by a city ordinance cannot be reduced by a mere resolution of the city council.[3] An ordinance imposing a license tax need not conform to requirements as to the enactment of ordinances granting franchises.[4] A collecting officer is personally liable when he collects a license tax which a party is under no legal obligation to pay,[5] but, in order to recover back a license tax which has been paid, it must appear that such tax was imposed without authority,[6] that it was actually paid,[7] and that the payment was involuntary.[8] All payments are presumed to be voluntary until the contrary is made to appear,[9] and the burden of proof is on the plaintiff to negative such presumption.[10] Equity will enjoin the collection of an invalid license tax[11] when there is no adequate remedy at law.[12] A suit to restrain state officers from collecting an occupation tax is a suit against the state.[13]

West Conshohocken Borough v. Conshohocken Elec. Light & Power Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 7.

96. There being no Federal question involved, the state and not Federal decisions were followed in reaching this decision. West Conshohocken Borough v. Conshohocken Elec. Light & Power Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 7.

97. Requirement that money lenders give bond required by Acts 1904, p. 79. City Council of Augusta v. Clark & Co., 124 Ga. 254, 52 S. E. 881.

98. City Council of Augusta v. Clark & Co., 124 Ga. 254, 52 S. E. 881.

99. Question of constitutionality of Acts 1904, p. 79, requiring bond of money lender prematurely raised in prosecution by city for nonpayment of license. City Council of Augusta v. Clark & Co., 124 Ga. 254, 52 S. E. 881.

1. City of Chicago v. Reinschreiber, 121 Ill. App. 114.

2. Under charter power to license and regulate saloons, etc., but not to license sale of intoxicating liquors, an ordinance providing for the licensing of "saloons" without reference to the kind held valid. Kenaston v. Riker [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 709, 109 N. W. 278, distinguishing Dewar v. People, 40 Mich. 401, 29 Am. Rep. 545, and following Kittson v. Ann Arbor, 26 Mich. 45, and Wolf v. Lansing, 53 Mich. 357, 19 N. W. 38.

3. Bloomington & Normal R., Elec. & Heating Co. v. Bloomington, 123 Ill. App. 639.

4. License not a franchise within Ky. St. 1903, § 3636, forbidding enactment of ordinance granting franchise within five days after introduction of resolution therefor. Shugars v. Hamilton, 29 Ky. L. R. 127, 92 S. W. 564.

5. Collection from party not within licensing statute. Florida Packing & Ice Co. v. Carney [Fla.] 41 So. 190.

6, 7. Town of Phoebus v. Manhattan Social Club, 105 Va. 144, 52 S. E. 839.

8. Town of Phoebus v. Manhattan Social Club, 105 Va. 144, 52 S. E. 839. Payment to secure release from arrest for failure to obtain license held not voluntary, though validity of license might have been litigated in proceedings in which arrest was made. Wheeler v. Plumas County [Cal.] 87 P. 802. Payment to county, under protest, by party to whom defendant had paid license to secure release from arrest, in order to prevent defendant's rearrest held not voluntary. Id.

9. Town of Phoebus v. Manhattan Social Club, 105 Va. 144, 52 S. E. 839.

10. Mere declaration that payment is made under protest is insufficient. Town of Phoebus v. Manhattan Social Club, 105 Va. 144, 52 S. E. 839.

11. To prevent multiplicity of suits equity jurisdiction attaches though ordinance has not been declared invalid. Kappes v. Chicago, 119 Ill. App. 436.

12. Injunction against enforcement of execution to collect invalid license tax under ordinance of City of Atlanta. City of Atlanta v. Jacobs, 125 Ga. 523, 54 S. E. 534. Injunction to restrain state treasurer, comptroller, and attorney general from enforcing Gen. Laws 1905, p. 336, c. 141, imposing privilege tax on railroads, refused on ground that the tax and penalties for nonpayment were enforceable only by legal proceedings and such a tax was not a lien on land. Stephens v. Tex. & P. R. Co. [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 918, 97 S. W. 309.

13. And cannot be maintained. Producers' Oil Co. v. Stephens [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 157; Texas Co. v. Stephens [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 160; Stephens v. Texas & P. R. Co. [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 918, 97 S. W. 309. In a suit to enjoin state officers from enforcing an occupation tax, a judgment in favor

§ 3. Issuance and revocation.—When the licensing officers are vested with judicial discretion in the matter of issuing licenses,[14] they may be compelled to act,[15] and their authority may be reviewed where they have assumed to exercise powers not conferred,[16] but their judgment in the exercise of such discretion will not be reviewed.[17] A municipal council may be compelled by mandamus to provide such regulations as are positively required by statute;[18] but mandamus will not lie to compel the granting of a license to a party whose application has been refused by the duly constituted authority for good cause;[19] nor will it lie to compel the acceptance of a license fee before it is due.[20] A state license granted under the police power is not a contract[21] and may be revoked at any time.[22] Even a privilege license, though contractual in its nature, may be revoked where authority to do so is reserved.[23] The authority of a municipal corporation to revoke a license to pursue a lawful occupation must clearly appear;[24] and will not be implied from authority to license and regulate;[25] and specific penalties provided by statute for the enforcement of municipal regulation will be deemed exclusive of the right of revocation.[26] Nor can a municipal corporation, in the absence of express authority, revoke a license on account of matters regulated exclusively by state laws.[27] But where authority to revoke is essential to efficient regulation, a reservation of such authority in granting the license is not an unreasonable condition.[28] Authority to revoke is sometimes expressly delegated to municipalities,[29] and in a proper case mandamus lies to compel the exercise of such power.[30] Mandamus lies to compel the restoraof the defendant should be in favor of the state and not of officers nominally defendant. Producers' Oil Co. v. Stephens [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 157.

14. Board of medical examiners under Sess. Laws 1899, p. 345. Raaf v. State Board of Medical Examiners, 11 Idaho, 707, 84 P. 33.

15. Raaf v. State Board of Medical Examiners, 11 Idaho, 707, 84 P. 33.

16. Action of state board of medical examiners reviewable by certiorari under Sess. Laws 1899, p. 348, § 9, and not by appeal, and scope of review is same as that on writ of review. Raaf v. State Board of Medical Examiners, 11 Idaho, 707, 84 P. 33.

17. Raaf v. State Board of Medical Examiners, 11 Idaho, 707, 84 P. 33.

18. Creation of examining and supervising board of plumbers as required by Laws 1897, p. 236, c. 163, including enactment of such ordinances and creation of such offices as are necessary to creation of such board. Caven v. Coleman [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 778, 96 S. W. 774.

19. Mandamus to compel mayor, vested with discretion to determine fitness of applicants, to grant pawnbroker's license to one who had previously violated regulations and whose license had been revoked, refused. Harrison v. People, 121 Ill. App. 189.

20. State v. McMonies [Neb.] 106 N. W. 454.

21. Liquor license. State v. Corron, 73 N. H. 434, 62 A. 1044.

22. State v. Corron, 73 N. H. 434, 62 A. 1044.

23. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 1212, it seems that state, under power of revocation therein reserved, may revoke license of railroad company for nonpayment of any portion of license fee provided for in sections 1211-1214. State v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 594.

24. United States v. MacFarland, 28 App. D. C. 552.

25. Plumbing. United States v MacFarland, 28 App. D. C. 552.

26. Acts Cong. Apr. 23, 1892, §§ 1, 2, 27 Stat. 21, c. 53, Acts June 18, 1898, §§ 1-4, 30 Stat. 477, c. 467, and ordinances of District of Columbia relating to plumbing, construed. United States v. MacFarland, 28 App. D. C. 552, distinguishing Czarra v. Medical Supervisors, 25 App. D. C. 443, on ground that in such cases the right of revocation was expressly conferred.

27. City held to have no power to revoke money lender's license on ground of usury. City Council of Augusta v. Clark & Co., 124 Ga. 254, 52 S. E. 881.

28. Revocation of license to sell milk by board of health pursuant to reserved power to revoke and for cause, sustained. Metropolitan Milk & Cream Co. v. New York, 113 App. Div. 377, 98 N. Y. S. 894. Special license to use streets for sale of lunches held revokable under authority to revoke reserved in license. Spencer v. Mahon [S. C.] 55 S. E. 321. Reservation of power to revoke liquor license for cause and after hearing held not unreasonable. Wells v. Torrey, 144 Mich. 689, 13 Det. Leg. N. 378, 108 N. W. 423.

29. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, relating to peddlers, pawnbrokers, etc. Harrison v. People, 121 Ill. App. 189. Authority of mayor under ordinance to revoke pawnbroker's license upon conviction of violation of regulations not affected by appeal from judgment of conviction. Id.

30. Certiorari is not complete remedy for refusal to revoke, since reversal of order of refusal would be barren of result except to remove possible bar to further application for revocation. State v. Curtis [Wis.] 110 N. W. 189. Revocation of liquor license under Rev. St. 1898, § 1558, for violation of a license revoked without authority,[31] but revocation of a license already expired will not be enjoined.[32]

§ 4. Interpretation of statutes and ordinances and persons subject.[33]—License laws being penal are construed strictly,[34] but not with such technicality as to defeat their purpose and the clearly expressed intention of the lawmakers.[35] Where a licensing statute is attacked as unconstitutional, it is the court's duty to so construe it as to obviate the objection if possible,[36] but where the act is plain and unambiguous a strained construction will not be adopted in order to uphold it,[37] nor will a presumption not necessary to uphold an ordinance at the time of its adoption be indulged subsequently under changed conditions giving rise to the necessity of such a presumption.[38] Contemporaneous executive construction will be considered only when the statute is ambiguous,[39] and in no case is such construction binding on the courts.[40] Such construction is not available to one who did not invoke it and who by reason thereof merely has not been called upon to pay the license fee.[41] Legislative construction of constitutional provisions is entitled to more or less weight.[42]

The scope of a classification for licensing purposes is sometimes defined by statute,[43] and interpretation clauses are generally regarded as mandatory when construing the identical act.[44] In the absence of an interpretation clause, the question of closing ordinance. Id. Complaint charging sale after closing hour held not to charge violation of ordinance requiring closing after such hour, but not so defective as to require its dismissal by municipal council. Id.

31. United States v. MacFarland, 28 App. D. C. 552.

32. Spencer v. Mahon [S. C.] 55 S. E. 321; Syfer v. Spencer, 103 Md. 66, 63 A. 256.

33. See 6 C. L. 445.

34. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472; Wilson v. District of Columbia, 26 App. D. C. 110. The words of the statute itself must indicate with reasonable certainty whether a tax is imposed on an occupation, especially where failure to pay is made a criminal offense. Wilson v. District of Columbia, 26 App. D. C. 110.

35. Act July 1, 1905 (Laws 1905, p. 320), § 3, providing that no one, unless previously licensed, "shall begin" to practice dentistry without license from board of dental examiners, does not exempt from necessity of obtaining such license one previously practicing without a license as previously required by law. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472.

36. Iowa Mut. Tornado Ins. Ass'n v. Gilbertson, 129 Iowa, 658, 106 N. W. 153. Gen. Laws 1905, p. 336, c. 141, construed in favor of its validity as imposing privilege tax on railroads and not property tax which would be contrary to Federal commerce clause. State v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 909, 97 S. W. 71. Doubt as to whether license fee imposed on beer dealers was for regulation or for revenue resolved in favor of former in order to obviate objections based on Federal commerce clause. Meyer, Jossen & Co. v. Mobile, 147 F. 843.

37. Laws 1905, pp. 372, 373, requiring license of every person who "peddles out or, after shipment to the state, canvasses and sells by sample" certain kinds of property, held not susceptible to construction that phrase "after shipment to the state" refers to persons and not property, and that only persons exempted from license are nonresidents sending agents to state. Bacon v. Locke, 42 Wash. 215, 83 P. 721.

38. Since county supervisors had power under St. 1891, p. 306, c. 216, § 25, subd. 27, and County Gov. Act, § 25, subd. 25, to license for both regulation and revenue, an ordinance enacted pursuant to such power will not be presumed, after repeal of such acts, to have been passed for regulation only so as to be sustained by the repealing act. Pol. Code, § 3366, granting power to license for regulation only. Placer County v. Whitney Estate Co., 2 Cal. App. 614, 84 P. 277.

39, 40. United States v. McFarland, 28 App. D. C. 552.

41. State v. Hartwell Co., 117 La. 144, 41 So. 444. Utmost effect, as to such parties, of such construction and resultant failure to call for payment of license, was to relieve such parties of interest and attorney's fees until from and after judicial demand. Id.

42. Fact that under two constitutions of the state the legislature for more than twenty years imposed license taxes on gas, electric, waterworks, telegraph and telephone companies, held entitled to great weight in determining whether such business constituted manufacturing within constitutional exemptions. State v. New Orleans R. & Light Co., 116 La. 144, 40 So. 597.

43. Laws 1903, c. 122, § 134, includes the business of express companies or agencies as a calling or occupation which may be licensed thereunder. City of Topeka v. Jones [Kan.] 86 P. 162.

44. Soliciting agent taking orders subject to principal's approval, and thereafter delivering the goods and making collection, held not a transient merchant or itinerant vender within Act 30th General Assembly, p.

tion as to whether a particular person or matter falls within a particular class is a matter of statutory construction,[45] and so also as to the amount of the license fee,[46]

41, c. 48, defining the word "peddler" as including all transient merchants and itinerant venders selling by samples or taking orders, whether for immediate or future delivery. State v. Bristow [Iowa] 109 N. W. 199. Ordinance defining hawking and peddling so as to include agent taking orders for future delivery. City of Alma v. Clow [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 836, 109 N. W. 853.

45. Party taking orders for medicines for future delivery by another held not a hawker or peddler of medicines within Act Feb. 26, 1902, Laws 1902, pp. 1101, 1102. State v. Ivey, 73 S. C. 282, 53 S. E. 428. Party going from house to house in wagon furnished by certain merchants and soliciting orders by sample which he subsequently filled by ordering goods from such merchants and delivering them to purchasers, collecting therefor, and remitting proceeds to said merchants less commissions, held a hawker or peddler or one who went about selling goods. City of Alma v. Clow [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 836, 109 N. W. 853, following City of Muskegon v. Zeeryp, 134 Mich. 181, 96 N. W. 502. Under Pub. Acts 1895, No. 215, p. 389, authorizing licensing of hawkers and peddlers, city had authority to license agents selling for future delivery. Id. Sale of oil from wagon to retail dealers held not peddling, though such dealer used some of the oil for manufacturing purposes. Commonwealth v. Standard Oil Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 433, 93 S. W. 613. One who delivers portraits already sold in frames which purchasers of portraits have option of buying or not as they please is guilty of peddling in selling frames to such purchasers. State v. Looney [Mo.] 97 S. W. 934, refusing to follow and disapproving of State v. Coop, 52 S. C. 508, 30 S. E. 609, 41 L. R. A. 501, and City of Laurens v. Elmore, 55 S. C. 477, 33 S. E. 560, 45 L. R. A. 249, which two cases decided that such transaction was not peddling. Seems that ordinance prohibiting peddling or in any other manner selling merchandise on certain streets will be construed as being merely prohibitive of peddling, and hence not in restraint of trade. See Ex parte Henson [Tex. Cr. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 757, 90 S. W. 874. Authority to require license of hackmen, draymen, omnibus drivers, cabmen, porters, expressmen, and all others pursuing like occupations, includes authority to license and regulate street cars operated within the city. Bloomington & Normal R. Elec. & Heating Co. v. Bloomington, 123 Ill. App. 639. Pub. St. 1901, c. 124, § 1, as amended by Laws 1905, p. 484, c. 76, requiring license of dealers in, "and persons keeping shops for purchase and sale of junk," etc., includes wholesale dealers. State v. Cohen, 73 N. H. 543, 63 A. 928. Traction engine held a motor vehicle within Laws 1905, p. 498, c. 86. Emerson Troy Granite Co. v. Pearson [N. H.] 64 A. 582. A store where bottles, both new and old, are bought and sold, is not a second-hand store within R. S. c. 24, art. 5, par. 95, authorizing cities to license and regulate "second-hand and junk stores." City of Chicago v. Reinschreiber, 121 Ill App. 114. Question as to who is a junk dealer must be determined by general character of the business and not solely from character of materials handled. Dealer who handled old iron in large quantities, not buying or selling single pieces, held not a junk dealer. City of New York v. Vanrewater, 113 App. Div. 456, 99 N. Y. S. 306. Second-hand bottles are not junk. City of Chicago v. Reinschreiber, 121 Ill. App. 114. Party selling cotton seed which must be purchased in open market in order to furnish amount sold held a cotton seed buyer and seller. Gloster Oil Works v. Buckeye Cotton Oil Co., 87 Miss. 618, 40 So. 225. Agent hiring labor for his principal on a particular occasion and for no one else held not a labor agent within Code 1904, p. 2247. Watts v. Com. [Va.] 56 S. E. 223. Brewing company maintaining brewery in city and selling at wholesale at such brewery held to maintain a storehouse or place of business in the city, and hence subject to city license under Code 1906, § 996. City of Charleston v. Charleston Brew. Co. [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 198. As to work executed by a corporation for other parties pursuant to contract with such parties, a corporation is a contractor who employs assistants within license law. State v. Hartwell Co., 117 La. 144, 41 So. 444. A building contractor is one who contracts with the owner to become his builder and erect his structure according to certain plans and for certain compensation. Wilson v. District of Columbia, 26 App. D. C. 110. Bricklayer who did not contract with owner or furnish brick held not a building contractor within Act Cong. July 1, 1902, requiring license of building contractors. Id. Acts 1898, p. 412, No. 171, § 12, imposing license tax on business of dealing in railroad or steamship tickets, includes agents for nonresident companies who sells transportation, receives price thereof, and gives orders for delivery of tickets outside of state. State v. Orfila, 116 La. 972, 41 So. 227. Party purchasing fresh meat, storing it in refrigerators and then curing it by salting, smoking, etc., and selling it in its new form, held not a dealer in fresh meat packed or refrigerated, within Laws 1903, p. 9, c. 5106, § 16. Florida Packing & Ice Co. v. Carney [Fla.] 41 So. 190. Foreign meat packing corporation whose sole busines within the state was distributing its meats, packed in another state but stored within the state, held to be engaged in a meat packing business within the state, within N. C. Pub. Laws 1903, c. 247. Armour Packing Co. v. Lacy, 200 U. S. 226, 50 Law. Ed. 451. Dealing in coco-cola by the case as part of wholesale grocery business held not maintaining coco-cola distributing depot within Acts 1904, p. 62, c. 76, § 18. Carney v. Hamilton [Miss.] 42 So. 378. Under Laws 1905, p. 30, par. 28, § 2, imposing on brewing companies and all other persons, firms or corporations engaged in sale of beer, "including all other persons, corporations, or agencies maintaining storage depots," etc., a tax in each county where they do any business, a brewing company which had paid exemptions from license,[47] person in whose name license must issue,[48] and statutory prohibitions against license.[49]

its tax as manufacturer under first section of act is not liable to tax on storage depot and agency in another county, since the act divides dealers in beer into two classes, to wit (1) brewing companies, (2) all other dealers. Whittlesey v. Acme Brew. Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 299. Tax imposed on trading cars by Laws 1904, p. 79, c. 76, § 93, held to be an occupation tax and not tax on specific car. Simon Zemurray & Co. v. Bouldin, 87 Miss. 583, 40 So. 15. License issued under such law confined to one particular route. Id. Under a license for operation of trading car certain number of miles in state, the distance is to be computed from the point where the car is opened for business and not from point where it entered the state. Id. Social club dispensing liquors to members held not liable for license tax on conducting business of drinking saloon or bar room. State v. New Orleans Chess, Checkers & Whist Club, 116 La. 46, 40 So. 526. Social club dispensing liquors to members is liable to license for conducting an establishment selling or giving away or otherwise disposing of intoxicating liquors. Id. Seems that single transaction of distributing samples for resident merchant was not engaging in business of advertising by distribution of samples, etc., especially in view of exemption in favor of resident merchants. City of Watertown v. Rodenbaugh, 112 App. Div. 723, 98 N. Y. S. 885. Under a statute authorizing city to license callings operated within city, express company not exempted because it does not receive packages from residents of city consigned to residents. City of Topeka v. Jones [Kan.] 86 P. 162. An ordinance requiring license from owners and drivers of vehicles for transportation for hire of goods, etc., "from place to place within the city," applies to a local express company engaged in taking orders for goods to be shipped to the city by freight and transferred by company's wagon to purchasers, fees or drayage being charged for such transfer." Commonwealth v. Beck [Mass.] 79 N. E. 744.

46. Social clubs dispensing liquors to members held liable to license tax only on gross sales of liquors, not including sales of other articles. State v. New Orleans Chess, Checkers & Whist Club, 116 La. 46, 40 So. 526. Under Gen. Laws 1905, p. 336, c. 141, the amount of the privilege tax on railroads is based on the gross receipts of the railroads from every source whatever in the operation of such roads in the state. State v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 909, 97 S. W. 71.

47. Electric light company not a manufacturer within exemption clause of Const. 1898, art. 229. State v. New Orleans R. & Light Co., 116 La. 144, 40 So. 597. Merely cutting leather into convenient shapes for sale is not such manufacturing as will exempt dealer from mercantile tax under an exemption applicable to manufacturers. Commonwealth v. Cover [Pa.] 64 A. 686. Cotton seed dealer not exempt from tax on buying and selling cotton seed on account of being also a cotton seed oil manufacturer. Gloster Oil Works v. Buckeye Cotton Oil Co., 87 Miss. 618, 40 So. 225. Under a proviso exempting from a mercantile license tax manufacturers who keep a store or warehouse at their own factory for the purpose of selling their own goods exclusively, a manufacturer who has two factories for the manufacture of the same kind of goods but who sells at only one of such factories is exempt. Under Acts 1846, 1868. Commonwealth v. Vetterlein, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 294, afd. 214 Pa. 21, 63 A. 192. Exemption under Const. of 1898, art. 229, in favor of persons engaged in mechanical pursuits, held not inapplicable to a corporation as such, but inapplicable to a corporation doing mechanical work for other parties under contract with such parties, such a corporation being essentially a contractor and not one personally engaged in such pursuits. State v. Hartwell Co., 117 La. 144, 41 So. 444. Mutual insurance companies not exempt from license tax imposed by Code Supp. 1902, § 1333d, under Code, § 1304, exempting the property of charitable institutions from taxation. Iowa Mut. Tornado Ins. Ass'n v. Gilbertson, 129 Iowa, 658, 106 N. W. 153. Phrase domestic machinery as used in the excepting clause of Sess. Laws 1903, p. 271, c. 16, relating to licensing of itinerant venders, does not include buggy or wagon used at purchaser's home. Territory v. Russell [N. M.] 86 P. 551. Concern having storage tank and warehouse, but no fixed place of business within city from which it sold oil, but on contrary sold it from tank wagons, held not a merchant so as to be exempt from city license tax on account of having paid state license tax on merchants. Standard Oil Co. v. Fredericksburg, 105 Va. 82, 52 S. E. 817. Exemption from license on bill-posting and distribution of samples in favor of resident merchants advertising own business may be claimed by employe of resident. City of Watertown v. Rodenbaugh, 112 App. Div. 723, 98 N. Y. S. 885. Code 1896, § 4122, subd. 55, imposing license tax on corporations not otherwise specifically required to pay tax, exempts only those corporations which have been required to pay a tax specifically applicable to them as corporations, and not those that have merely paid a tax on some particular business, such as maintaining a brewery. Spira v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 465.

Note on scope of personal exemptions: Exemption from occupation tax of persons engaged in mechanical, agricultural, and mining pursuits, under Const. 1898, art. 229, applies to corporations as well as to natural persons (State v. C. C. Hartwell Co., 117 La. 144, 41 So. 444), but not to a corporation doing the business of a contractor in such pursuits (Id.). In reaching these conclusions the court made a recapitulation of cases involving personal exemptions, of which the following is an epitome: Farmer held exempt, as one engaged in agricultural pursuits, from tax on hawkers and peddlers, though it did not appear whether he did physical labor on his farm. Roy v. Schuff, 51 La. 86, 24 So. 788. Plasterer who worked himself and also employed others held ex-

§ 5. Assessment and recovery of license fees; prosecutions for failure to pay.[50]—Jurisdiction of a suit to recover a license fee depends upon statute,[51] as does also the right of a particular officer to sue for such fee.[52] Assumpsit lies to collect an annual license fee.[53] Failure of a municipality in previous years to exercise the supervision and control for which the license fee is imposed is no defense to an action for the fee for the forthcoming year.[54] Where an ordinance imposing a license fee is not unreasonable on its face, the party alleging unreasonableness must allege and prove the facts supporting such allegation.[55] It is improper to submit the question of reasonableness to the jury with instruction to return a verdict for such a fee as they deem reasonable.[56] A license tax assessed by an ordinance which has been repealed cannot be collected.[57] A license, unless made so expressly, is not conclusive evidence of the facts therein recited;[58] and where the license fee is computed upon a return made by the licensee and issues as of course without investigation as to correctness of the return, the license is not conclusive evidence that the amount required by law has been paid,[59] even though the officer issuing the license has power to refuse it on the ground of an incorrect return.[60] Nor is the license conclusive evidence of the payment of the proper fee where the return is required to be approved by an officer acting in a merely administrative empt as one engaged in mechanical pursuits. City of New Orleans v. Bayley, 35 La. Ann. 545. Brick mason who did no manual labor himself but executed construction contracts with employed labor held liable as a master builder or mechanic who employs assistance, and not entitled to exemption as one engaged in mechanical pursuits. Theobolds v. Connor, 42 La. Ann. 787, 7 So. 689. Contractor who continuously performed labor on constructions contracted for held exempt. City of New Orleans v. Leagman & Son, 43 La. Ann. 1180, 10 So. 244. Contractor who did no manual labor held not exempt. City v. O'Neil, 43 La. Ann. 1182, 10 So. 245. Barber held to be one engaged in mechanical pursuit. State v. Dielenschneider, 44 La. Ann. 1116, 11 So. 823.

48. Under Laws 1905, p. 498, c. 86, § 2, motor vehicle owned by firm or corporation should be registered in firm or corporate name. Emerson Troy Granite Co. v. Pearson [N. H.] 64 A. 582. License to operate motor vehicle issues to operator and not to owner if they be different. Id.

49. Prohibition against keeping pool table "in any house where liquors are sold" held not to prohibit licensing of pool table "in connection with" bar room. Bailey v. Opelika [Ala.] 40 So. 968.

50. See 6 C. L. 447.

51. County court has no jurisdiction of suit against corporation to recover license fees. Commonwealth v. Central Consumers' Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 1363, 91 S. W. 711. The county court may, in a proceeding instituted in that court, list for taxation any omitted license fees or taxes, and the amount found due may be recovered in the proper court, under the prayer for general relief in an action instituted by the state revenue collector to collect unpaid license fees from a corporation. Id.

52. Under Ky. St. 1903, §§ 4241, 4260, 4263, 4267, defining powers of revenue agents, such an agent cannot, unless directed to do so by the auditor, sue for omitted license taxes or fees. Commonwealth v. Central Consumers' Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 1201, 91 S. W. 711. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 4260, revenue agent may, without direction from auditor, institute proceedings to list omitted license taxes. Id.

53. License fee imposed as condition of right to pursue occupation as distinguished from penalty for pursuing occupation without license. Bloomington & Normal R., Elec. & Heating Co. v. Bloomington, 123 Ill. App. 639.

54. Fee on electric light poles recoverable though no supervision exercised or expense incurred in connection with such poles in previous years since adoption of ordinance. West Conshohocken Borough v. Conshohocken Elec. Light & Power Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 7.

55. Allegation that fee is not based on cost of supervision not alone sufficient to raise question of reasonableness. West Conshohocken Borough v. Conshohocken Elec. Light & Power Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 7.

56. West Conshohocken Borough v. Conshohocken Elec. Light & Power Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 7.

57. Business tax accruing under ordinance after repeal of same by Pol. Code, § 3366. Sierra County v. Flanigan [Cal.] 87 P. 801. Tax under ordinance repealed by Pol. Code, § 3366, though accrued prior to such repeal. Wheeler v. Plumas County [Cal.] 87 P. 802.

58. License issued to railroad company under Laws 1860, 1878, 1898. State v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 594. Provision of Law of 1860, c. 174, p. 153, that the certificate of payment of fee should be evidence of the facts therein contained, did not make such certificate conclusive as to such facts. Id.

59. License issued to railroad company under Laws 1860, § 2, and Revision of 1878, § 1212. State v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 594.

60. As was done in State v. McFetridge, 56 Wis. 256, 14 N. W. 185; State v. McFetcapacity,[61] but it is otherwise where provision is made for contesting the truth of the return and the acceptance of the return renders it conclusive.[62]

No penalty can be imposed for failure to take out a license unless a penalty is provided for by statute or ordinance,[63] but the penalty need not be specified by the licensing statute when a penalty is provided by general law.[64] Municipal authorities cannot change the penalty where it is fixed by law.[65] Penalties are within constitutional limitations in regard to fines;[66] but no matter how harsh the penalty for violation of a licensing statute may be, the court has no right to invade the legislative domain in regard thereto, provided it does not exceed constitutional limitations,[67] and subject to such limitations a penalty for nonpayment of a property tax proper cannot, in the absence of legislative authority, be avoided upon any ground whatsoever,[68] and so also as regards a penalty under a police regulation,[69] but a penalty for nonpayment of a privilege tax, contractual in its nature,[70] will not be enforced regardless of equitable and moral considerations.[71]

Where the penalty attaches only upon conviction of a default, it can be exacted only under a judgment of court.[72] The offense charged must be specifically and ridge, 64 Wis. 130; 24 N. W. 140; State v. Harshaw, 76 Wis. 230, 45 N. W. 308; all decided under the Revision of 1878, § 1212, relating to licensing of railroads. See State v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 594. Seems probably true under the law of 1860, notwithstanding the provision requiring payment of fee based upon gross earnings as "ascertained from such report." Id.

61. Rev. St. 1898, § 1212, imposes an absolute obligation on railroads to pay license fee based on gross earnings as specified in § 1214, and other provisions of §§ 1211, 1213, 1214, including approval of railroad's return as to earnings by railroad commissioner, are merely administrative in their character. State v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 594.

62. See Act 1898, No. 171, p. 417, § 19. State v. New Orleans Chess, Checkers & Whist Club, 116 La. 46, 40 So. 526.

63. Thompson v. Atlanta [Ga.] 56 S. E. 114.

64. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 38, § 452 [Cr. Code, div. 14, § 14], authorizing imprisonment in default of payment of fine, is a general law and applies to fines for violation of Act July 1, 1905, relating to the licensing of dentists. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472.

65. Acts 1902, p. 134, c. 80, § 10, giving levee board power to levy and collect privilege taxes, fixes damages for nonpayment at 10 per cent. of the tax, and is unaffected by Acts 1904, p. 84, c. 76, § 112, relating to penalty for nonpayment of taxes generally, and levee board has no power to change such penalty. Simon Zemurray v. Bouldin, 87 Miss. 583, 40 So. 15.

66. Penalties amounting to from 100 to 4,000 per cent of the tax held unreasonable and contrary to Const. art. 1, § 13, forbidding the imposing of excessive fines. State v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 909, 97 S. W. 71. A fine of $50 to $100 per day and an additional penalty of $25 per day for violation of Act 29th Leg. p. 358, c. 148, imposing tax of 1% of gross products of oil wells, held excessive and unenforceable. Producers' Oil Co. v. Stephens [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 157; Stephens v. Morning Star Oil Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 159; Southwestern Oil Co. v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 159; Texas Co. v. Stephens [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 160.

67, 68, 69. State v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 594.

70. See ante, § 1, Definition and Nature.

71. Penalty of $10,000, imposed by Rev. St. 1898, § 1214, for failure to pay railroad license fee. State v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 594. Use of term "absolutely forfeit" in such section 1214 does not unmistakably show legislative intent to require enforcement of penalty under all circumstances. Id.

Note: "Numerous instances might be referred to, where remedial statutes to secure performance of contractual duties have been held, notwithstanding their literal sense to the contrary, to apply only to cases of failure to perform through inexcusable conduct. Schumacher v. Falter, 113 Wis. 563, 89 N. W. 485; Johnson v. Huber, 117 Wis. 58, 93 N. W. 826, are significant cases on that in this state and have established a definite rule here on the subject. * * * The basic theory of these cases is that the court will apply substantially the same rule of construction to such statutes as is applicable to stipulated forfeitures in ordinary contracts, to the extent of determining whether they were intended to apply literally or not, the presumption being indulged in that nothing absurd or unreasonable was in the legislative mind; and that when the literal sense would lead to the contrary, it should be restrained accordingly by a somewhat arbitrary assumption that the legislature had in mind defaults only of a nature in harmony with the remedial feature provided, in the absence of some clearly expressed indication to the contrary. That rule for construction may not, as said in Seeman v. Biemann, 108 Wis. 365, 84 N. W. 490, be very logical, but it is a just one and has been so firmly established that it may well be thought to be in the legislative mind in enacting laws, the same as it is presumed to be in the minds of parties in entering definitely alleged.[73] The date of the offense, however, need not be proved as laid except that the time proved must be prior to the indictment and within the period of limitations.[74] Several defaults may be charged in several counts.[75] On a prosecution for the doing of an act prohibited to be done except by licensees, the defendant has the burden of proving that he had a license,[76] and error in admitting evidence to show that defendant had no license is harmless.[77] Other ordinances relating to the licensing of similar occupations are admissible on the question of the propriety of the classification.[78] The evidence must show that the defendant is guilty of such acts as bring him within the class of which a license is required.[79] Where several acts violating a liquor law constitute a continuous offense, conviction for one of the acts will bar prosecution for the others.[80] The state cannot appeal from a judgment of acquittal.[81]

§ 6. Effect of failure to obtain.[82]—Where the statute imposing the license is a purely revenue measure, the contracts of an unlicensed party are not affected thereby.[83] The defense that plaintiff had no license must be pleaded.[84]

§ 7. Disposition of license moneys.[85]—An officer entitled to commissions on licenses "collected" by him is not entitled to commissions on licenses the collection of which is entrusted to other officers,[86] and in all cases the right to such commissions depends entirely upon statute.[87] into contractual relations."—See State v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 594.

72. Penalty fixed by Acts 1902, p. 133, c. 80, § 4, for nonpayment of privilege tax, cannot be exacted by tax collector. Simon Zemurray v. Bouldin, 87 Miss. 583, 40 So. 15.

73. Indictment under Ky. St. 1903, § 2223a, for acting as officer or agent for a corporation which had not paid its license, held insufficient under Crim. Code Prac. § 122, requiring indictments to state the charge in ordinary and concise language so as to be intelligible by person of ordinary understanding when it did not state the specific capacity in which defendant acted. Commonwealth v. Loving, 29 Ky. L. R. 175, 92 S. W. 575.

74. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472.

75. Where several counts charge practice of dentistry on several different persons, state not required to elect on which count it will proceed. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472.

76. Practicing dentistry without license. Laws 1905, p. 320, § 3. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472. Where prothonotory's record did not show that defendant was licensed, under Act May 18, 1893, P. L. 94, to practice medicine, it was not incumbent upon commonwealth to show in first instance that defendant had no license. Commonwealth v. Clymer, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 61. Where evidence failed to show that defendant had license to practice medicine as required by Act May 18, 1893, P. L. 94, it was not error for court to express opinion in favor of conviction. Id. Burden on party selling liquor to show that he is member of class exempted from license or that he has license. Commonwealth v. Wenzel, 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 467.

77. Allowing clerk of board of medical examiners to testify that he could not find defendant's name on record of such board was harmless. Commonwealth v. Clymer, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 61.

78. On prosecution for dealing in second-hand bottles without license, contrary to city ordinance, other ordinances relating to second-hand and junk stores were admissible as bearing upon reasonableness of and statutory authority for classifying defendant's business of dealing in bottles, both old and new, with the business of keeping a second-hand or junk store. City of Chicago v. Reinschreiber, 121 Ill. App. 114.

79. Held sufficient to sustain finding that defendant stored and kept gasoline for sale. Cohill v. District of Columbia, 26 App. D. C. 163.

80. Conviction of selling oil from wagon held bar to prosecution for another sale from same wagon during same license year, the license being imposed on selling from the wagon and the offense being a continuous one. Commonwealth v. Standard Oil Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 1376, 91 S. W. 1126; Standard Oil Co. v. Com., 28 Ky. L. R. 1369, 91 S. W. 1127.

81. Where circuit court on appeal from justice found that defendant was not hawker or peddler. State v. Ivey, 73 S. C. 282, 53 S. E. 428.

82. See 6 C. L. 448.

83. Right of real estate broker to recover commissions. Coates v. Locust Point Co., 102 Md. 291, 62 A. 625; Watkins Land Mortg. Co. v. Thetford [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 175, 96 S. W. 72.

84. In action by plumber for services. Margolys & Co. v. Goldstein, 96 N. Y. S. 185.

85. See 6 C. L. 449.

86. County treasurer not entitled to commissions on gaming and liquor licenses collected by sheriff during period from Laws 1901, p. 46, c. 19, and Laws 1905, p. 115, c. 60, § 11. Hubbell v. Bernalillo County Com'rs [N. M.] 86 P. 430.

87. County assessors, since Sess. Laws

LICENSES TO ENTER ON LAND.

§ 1. Nature, Creation, and Indicia of a License and Distinction from Easements and Other Estates (753).

§ 2. Rights and Liabilities of Licensees (755).

§ 1. Nature, creation, and indicia of a license and distinction from easements and other estates.[88]—A license is authority to enter upon the land of another for the purpose of doing some act thereon, without passing any estate in the land,[89] but a property interest may be acquired under a license involving a grant.[90] A license, being a mere personal privilege, is not assignable and does not run with the land,[91] and ordinarily is revocable at the will of the licensor;[92] but an executed paid license, whose execution has involved an expenditure of money or its equivalent and which in its very nature involves a continuous use is irrevocable,[93] and will continue 1901, p. 205, c. 108, was enacted, not entitled to commissions on gaming and liquor licenses collected in their respective counties. Sandoval v. Bernalillo County Com'rs [N. M.] 86 P. 427.

88. See 6 C. L. 449.

89. Driveway partly on each of two lots established by mutual consent and for mutual convenience held not a way of necessity but a mere license. Wilkinson v. Hutzel, 142 Mich. 674, 12 Det. Leg. N. 870, 106 N. W. 207. Certificate entitling purchaser of lot from springs company to privileges of grounds, etc., held mere license, having been issued subsequently to the purchase and the company, furthermore, having no charter power to deal in real estate. Stacy v. Glen Ellyn Hotel & Spring Co., 223 Ill. 546, 79 N. E. 1133. Reservation in deed of right to string wash lines from tenement house on one lot to pole on lot conveyed held an easement inuring to benefit of tenants and not a mere license for personal benefit of owner of tenement. Steiner v. Peterman [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 1102.

90. License to cut and take away timber will confer property right in timber cut. Colby-Hinkley Co. v. Jordan [Ala.] 41 So. 962.

91. License to drain water onto land. Jones v. Stover [Iowa] 108 N. W. 112.

92. Stacy v. Glen Ellyn Hotel & Springs Co., 223 Ill. 546, 79 N. E. 133. Parol license, without consideration, to drain water onto land of another. Jones v. Stover [Iowa] 108 N. W. 112. Mutual license between adjoining lot owners to use part of each lot as driveway revocable by either party. Wilkinson v. Hutzel, 142 Mich. 674, 12 Det. Leg. N. 870, 106 N. W. 207. License to attach telephone wires to building. Bunke v. New York Tel. Co., 110 App. Div. 241, 97 N. Y. S. 66. License to cut timber resulting from parol agreement to sell standing timber. Colby-Hinkley Co. v. Jordan [Ala.] 41 So. 962.

93. License to construct irrigation ditch. Stoner v. Zucker, 148 Cal. 516, 83 P. 808.

Note: Authorities are in conflict on this point. Doctrine that such license is revocable is supported by Cooley on Torts [2d Ed.] 364, but in Maxwell v. Bay City Bridge Co., 41 Mich. 453, 2 N. W. 639, Judge Cooley recognizes the injustice of the rule. A leading case denying right of revocation is Rerick v. Kern, 14 Serg. & R. [Pa.] 267, 16 Am. Dec. 497, and this decision was approved in Flickinger v. Shaw, 87 Cal. 126, 25 P. 268, 22 Am. St. Rep. 234, 11 L. R. A. 134, and followed in Smith v. Green, 109 Cal. 234, 41 P. 1024. See, also, Gould on Waters, §§ 232, 324. Rerick v. Kern, 14 Serg. & R. [Pa.] 267, 16 Am. Dec. 497, is also followed in Hepburn v. McDowell, 17 Serg. & R. [Pa.] 384; Killip v. McIlhenny, 4 Watts [Pa.] 322; Swartz v. Swartz, 4 Pa. 358; Campbell v. McCoy, 31 Pa. 263; Meigs' Appeal, 62 Pa. 34; Kay v. Penn. R. Co., 65 Pa. 269; Dark v. Johnston, 55 Pa. 164; Thompson v. McElarney, 82 Pa. 174; Hoff v. McCauley, 53 Pa. 206. This last case holding that the Pennsylvania doctrine is that the license is irrevocable only when parties cannot be restored to original status by payment of compensations. See, also, 1 Washb. on Real Prop., § 400; Big Mountain Imp. Co.'s Appeal, 54 Pa. 372. The following cases illustrate this principle, holding the license irrevocable: License to lay conduit pipes through land, Le Fevre v. Le Fevre, 4 Serg. & R. [Pa.] 341, 8 Am. Dec. 696. To flood licensor's land, McKellip v. McIlhenny, 4 Watts [Pa.] 317; Campbell v. McCoy, 31 Pa. 263. To erect structures on licensor's land, Meigs' Appeal, 62 Pa. 34. To sink oil wells, Dark v. Johnston, 55 Pa. 164. The doctrine of irrevocability is also sustained by the following: Snowden v. Wilas, 19 Ind. 10; Stephens v. Benson, 19 Ind. 367; Lane v. Miller, 27 Ind. 534; Miller v. State, 39 Ind. 267; Hodgson v. Jeffries, 52 Ind. 34; Wickersham v. Orr, 9 Iowa, 260; Beatty v. Gregory, 17 Iowa, 114; Upton v. Brozin, 17 Iowa, 157; Russell v. Hubbard, 59 Ill. 335; Stuffield v. Collier, 3 Kelly [Ga.] 82; Mayer v. Franklin, 12 Ga. 243; Cook v. Pridgen, 45 Ga. 331; Lee v. McLeod, 12 Nev. 280; Harrison v. Dillingham, 6 N. H. 9; Putney v. Day, 6 N. H. 430; Woodbury v. Parshley, 7 N. H. 237; Ameriscoggin Bridge Co. v. Bragg, 11 N. H. 108; Sanborn v. Burnside, 13 N. H. 264; Carleton v. Redington, 21 N. H. 291; Cowles v. Kidder, 24 N. H. 364; Miller v. Tobie, 41 N. H. 86; Grimshaw v. Belcher, 88 Cal. 217, 22 Am. St. Rep. 298; Raritan Water Power Co. v. Veghte, 21 N. J. Eq. 463; Hulme v. Shreve, 3 Green's Ch. [N. J.] 116; Wilson v. Calfont, 15 Ohio, 248; Hornback v. Cincinnati R. R. Co., 20 Ohio St. 81; Pope v. Henry, 24 Vt. 565. See, also, Hall v. Chaffee, 13 Vt. 157; Lowe v. Miller, 3 Grat. [Va.] 205, 46 Am. Dec. 188; Addesin v. Hock, 2 Gill [Md.] 221, 41 as long as it is natural for it to do so,[94] nor can an executed license involving a grant be revoked so as to defeat the grant.[95] Permission to enter land for the purpose of performance of a condition precedent to its conveyance creates a mere license,[96] revocable upon the nonperformance of the condition within the time specified,[97] at the will of either the licensor[98] or his grantee.[99] Failure to declare a forfeiture at the expiration of the time fixed for the performance of the condition is not a waiver of the right to revoke the license.[1] So also the grant to a street railroad company of the right to construct its track upon city streets is a mere license,[2] revocable for nonperformance of conditions,[3] unless there is sufficient excuse for such nonperformance.[4] Such a license will be construed most strongly against the grantee and in favor of the public.[5] A theatre ticket, though issued upon a consideration, is a mere license subject to revocation for breach of conditions.[6] A subsequent conveyance of the fee without reservation revokes the license,[7] and the li-Am. Dec. 421; Parkhurst v. Van Cortland, 14 Johns. [N. Y.] 15, 7 Am. Dec. 427; Dyer v. Sandford, 9 Metc. [Mass.] 395, 43 Am. Dec. 399. On the other hand there is a strong line of authority to the effect that no interest in realty can be acquired by a parol license, though executed. Prince v. Case, 10 Conn. 375, 27 Am. Dec. 675; Long v. Buchanan, 27 Md. 502, 92 Am. Dec. 653; Hays v. Richardson, 1 Gill & J. [Md.] 266; Partridge v. First Ind. Church, 39 Md. 631; Foster v. Browning, 4 R. I. 47; Stevens v. Stevens, 11 Metc. [Mass.] 248; Owen v. Field, 12 Allen [Mass.] 457; Maxwell v. Bay City Bridge Co., 41 Mich. 467; Jamieson v. Milleman, 3 Duer [N. Y.] 255; Babcock v. Utter, 1 Keyes [N. Y.] 397; Merrill v. Calkins, 73 N. Y. 584; Mamford v. Whitney, 15 Wend. [N. Y.] 381; Miller v. The Auburn & Syracuse R. R. Co., 6 Hill [N. Y.] 61; Selden v. Del. & H. Canal Co., 29 N. Y. 639; Wolfe v. Frost, 4 Sandf. Ch. [N. Y.] 77. See, also, Kamphouse v. Goffner, 73 Ind. 453; Huston v. Laffee, 46 N. H. 505; Dodge v. McClintock, 47 N. H. 386; Hazelton v. Putnam [Wis.] 54 Am. Dec. 158; Lockhart v. Gier, 54 Wis. 135. Whether a consideration is an element in determining question of revocability, see Putney v. Day, 6 N. H. 430, 25 Am. Dec. 470; Reading v. Commonwealth, 11 Pa. 196, 51 Am. Dec. 534. Doctrine of equitable estoppel cannot be invoked against city. Branson v. City of Philadelphia, 47 Pa. 329.—See Stoner v. Zucker [Cal.] 83 P. 808, and notes to Rerick v. Kern [Pa.] 16 Am. Dec. 497; Flickinger v. Shaw [Cal.] 22 Am. St. Rep. 234; Ricker v. Kelly [Me.] 10 Am. Dec. 38; Grimshaw v. Belcher [Cal.] 22 Am. St. Rep. 298; Hazelton v. Putnam [Wis.] 54 Am. Dec. 158; Long v. Buchanan [Md.] 92 Am. Dec. 653.

94. License to construct irrigation ditch on land becomes in effect an easement, continuing so long as the use of the ditch may continue. Stoner v. Zucker, 148 Cal. 516, 83 P. 808.

Note: License is not revocable to defeat a grant or interest to which it is incident. Foster v. Browning, 4 R. I. 47, 67 Am. Dec. 505; Beatty v. Gregory, 17 Iowa, 109, 85 Am. Dec. 546; Hazelton v. Putnam [Wis.] 54 Am. Dec. 166; Walsh v. Taylor, 39 Md. 599. See Long v. Buchanan [Md.] 92 Am. Dec. 653 and note thereto.

95. License to cut and carry away standing timber not revocable as to timber cut. Colby-Hinkley Co. v. Jordan [Ala.] 41 So. 962.

96. Agreement to convey railroad right of way upon building of railroad over certain route and permission to enter land to build such road. Littlejohn v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 219 Ill. 584, 76 N. E. 840. Fact that owner in subsequently granting the property traversed by the right of way to a third party granted such party a reversionary right to the right of way in the event of its abandonment by the railroad company was not such a recognition of the railroad company's rights as to confer any title upon it. Id.

97, 98, 99. Littlejohn v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 219 Ill. 584, 76 N. E. 840.

1. Littlejohn v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 219 Ill. 584, 76 N. E. 840, distinguishing Sands v. Wacover, 149 Ill. 530, 36 N. E. 960, on ground that in that case the condition had been performed before any attempt to declare a forfeiture.

2. Blocki v. People, 220 Ill. 444, 77 N. E. 172.

3. Conditions as to time of construction. Blocki v. People, 220 Ill. 444, 77 N. E. 172.

4. Injunction against construction of small and comparatively unimportant connecting line no excuse for not constructing main line. Blocki v. People, 220 Ill. 444, 77 N. E. 172.

5. Blocki v. People, 220 Ill. 444, 77 N. E. 172.

6. Collister v. Hayman, 183 N. Y. 250, 76 N. E. 20, citing Purcell v. Daly, 19 Abb. N. C. [N. Y.] 301; Wood v. Ledbitter, 3 M. & A. 838; Benton v. Scherff, 1 Allen [Mass.] 133, 79 Am. Dec. 717; McCrea v. Marsh, 12 Gray [Mass.] 211, 71 Am. Dec. 745; Greenburg v. Western Turf Ass'n, 140 Cal. 357, 73 P. 1050; 28 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law [2d Ed.] 124; Pingrey's Extraordinary Contracts, § 509; Wandell's Law of the Theatre, 221; Goddard's Bailments and Carriers, § 333. A condition that the ticket shall be invalid if resold at the sidewalk is reasonable as tending to prevent ticket speculators from selling at an advance price. Collister v. Hayman, 183 N. Y. 250, 76 N. E. 20.

7. Bunke v. New York Tel. Co., 110 App. Div. 241, 97 N. Y. S. 66. Owner of lot married owner of adjoining lot and joined in conveyance of latter to third party thereby revoking a mutual license to use part of each lot as driveway. Wilkinson v. Hutzel, censee is charged with notice of such revocation.[8] Entry and occupation after revocation constitute trespass.[9]

A license will not be presumed from the fact of entry and occupation either as against the original owner[10] or a subsequent grantee.[11] A city cannot license such a use of its streets as will amount to a public nuisance,[12] nor such as will impair the public use thereof.[13] A mere license can never ripen into title by adverse possession or prescription.[14]

§ 2. Rights and liabilities of licensees.[15]—A license must not be exercised in a manner likely to produce unnecessary damage to the licensor,[16] but a licensee is not liable in damages for failure to execute a revocable license,[17] nor will such a failure deprive him of the right to the fruits of the license so far as it has been executed.[18] The duty of the licensor to exercise care to protect the licensee from personal injury is elsewhere treated.[19]

LIENS.

§ 1. Definition and Nature (755).
§ 2. Common-Law, Equitable, and Statutory Liens (756).
A. Common-Law Liens (756).
B. Equitable Liens (756).
C. Statutory Liens (757). Construction (757).
§ 3. Rank and Priorities of Liens (758).
§ 4. Waiver, Extinguishment, Discharge, and Revival (759).
§ 5. Enforcement and Protection of Liens (760). Statutory Proceedings to Enforce or Foreclose (761). Equitable Remedies and Procedure (761).

Scope of topic.—This article treats only of liens in general, particular kinds of liens being discussed in articles devoted specifically thereto or articles devoted to the subject-matter to which the particular liens relate.[20]

§ 1. Definition and nature.[21]—A lien is a hold or claim which one person has upon the property of another as a security for some debt or charge.[22] A partnership creditor must work out his lien on the partnership property through one of the part-

142 Mich. 674, 12 Det. Leg. N. 870, 106 N. W. 207.

8. Bunke v. New York Tel. Co., 110 App. Div. 241, 97 N. Y. S. 66.

9. License to attach telephone wires to building. Bunke v. New York Tel. Co., 110 App. Div. 241, 97 N. Y. S. 66.

10. Bunke v. New York Tel. Co., 110 App. Div. 241, 97 N. Y. S. 66.

11. When telephone wires were attached to building at time of conveyance. Bunke v. New York Tel. Co., 110 App. Div. 241, 97 N. Y. S. 66. But see Denton v. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 1218, 96 S. W. 1112, where an injunction was refused because complainant did not allege that defendant's entry and occupation, of which complainant had notice at time of his purchase, was wrongful.

12. License to occupy streets with movable store. Spencer v. Mahon [S. C.] 55 S. E. 321. See Licenses, 8 C. L. 734.

13. See Municipal Corporations, 6 C. L. 715.

14. Woodbury v. Allan [Pa.] 64 A. 590; Zerbey v. Allan [Pa.] 64 A. 587. License to drain water onto land. Jones v. Stover [Iowa] 108 N. W. 112. Mutual license between adjoining lot owners to use part of each lot as driveway. Wilkinson v. Hutzel, 142 Mich. 674, 12 Det. Leg. N. 870, 106 N. W. 207. See Adverse Possession, 7 C. L. 41.

15. See 6 C. L. 451.

16. Trespass for entering plaintiff's land and laying defective water pipe not justified by license to lay good water pipe. Graham v. Redlands Heights Water Co. [Cal. App.] 86 P. 989.

17. License to cut timber arising from parol contract for sale thereof. Colby-Hinkley Co. v. Jordan [Ala.] 41 So. 962.

18. License to cut timber to be divided between parties. Colby-Hinkley Co. v. Jordan [Ala.] 41 So. 962.

19. See Negligence, 6 C. L. 748.

20. See Agency, 7 C. L. 61; Agriculture, 7 C. L. 94; Animals, 7 C. L. 120; Attachment, 7 C. L. 300; Attorneys and Counsellors, 7 C. L. 319; Auctions and Auctioneers, 7 C. L. 347; Brokers, 7 C. L. 465; Carriers, 7 C. L. 522; Corporations, 7 C. L. 862; Executions, 7 C. L. 1614; Factors, 7 C. L. 1642; Forestry and Timber, 7 C. L. 1737; Inns, Restaurants and Lodging Houses, 8 C. L. 317; Judgments, 8 C. L. 530; Landlord and Tenant, 8 C. L. 693; Mechanics' Liens, 6 C. L. 611; Mortgages, 6 C. L. 681; Pawnbrokers, 4 C. L. 955; Pledges, 6 C. L. 1065; Railroads, 6 C. L. 1194; Sales, 6 C. L. 1320; Shipping and Water Traffic, 6 C. L. 1464; Vendors and Purchasers, 6 C. L. 1781.

21. See 6 C. L. 451.

22. See 4 C. L. 434.

ners, otherwise he has no enforceable lien.[23] As a rule, recording acts are inapplicable as between the lienor and the debtor.[24]

§ 2. Common-law, equitable, and statutory liens. A. Common-law liens.[25]—A lien arises at common law in favor of one who improves by his labor or expense the chattels of another at the latter's request.[26] It is not a conversion, therefore, for a bailee for repairs to hold the property until payment for such repairs,[27] unless the property is also held upon a claim other than that based on the repairer's lien.[28] The lien of a seller of personal property is dependent upon possession,[29] and so also an artisan's lien for making an article or repairing it,[30] but where a single contract for making or repairing covers several articles, delivery of part of such articles does not discharge the lien and the balance may be retained to secure the whole amount due on all.[31] Services rendered in caring for land create no lien thereon,[32] nor is there any lien for cutting and hauling logs to a saw-mill.[33]

(§ 2) B. Equitable liens.[34]—The doctrine of equitable lien follows closely on that of subrogation, both coming under the maxim that equality is equity, and are applied only where the law fails to give relief and justice would suffer without them.[35] The lien usually rests upon the intent of the parties predicated upon their express declaration[36] or implied from their acts and agreements,[37] or resting upon both acts and expressed intention.[38] In the absence of an intent to create a lien, none will arise,[39] and the mere fact, therefore, that money is advanced for the purchase of property will not create a lien on the property in the absence of any agreement to that effect.[40] A lien arises where one party, at the request of another under legal disability, advances money to be applied and which is applied to the discharge of an obligation or debt of the latter,[41] but no such lien arises in favor of a mere volunteer, as where the money is advanced to discharge an obligation for which the

23. Merkley v. Gravel Switch Roller Mills Co.'s Assignee, 28 Ky. L. R. 1010, 90 S. W. 1059.

24. Statute relating to recording of conditional sales. Cameron & Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 131, 90 S. W. 1129.

25. See 6 C. L. 451.

26. Bergman v. Gay [Vt.] 64 A. 1106. Such a lien may be acquired on mortgaged property subject to the mortgage. Id.

27. Martin v. Houck Music Co. [Ark.] 94 S. W. 932.

28. Evidence held to show no such claim. Martin v. Houck Music Co. [Ark.] 94 S. W. 932.

29. Bank of Yolo v. Bank of Woodland [Cal. App.] 86 P. 820.

30. No lien on automobile repaired while in garage when owner exercised control over machine at all times, taking it out from time to time whenever he wanted to do so. Smith v. O'Brien, 46 Misc. 325, 94 N. Y. S. 673.

31. Solomon v. Bok, 49 Misc. 493, 98 N. Y. S. 838.

32. Morrison v. New Haven & Wilkerson Min. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 611.

33. Brackett v. Pierson, 99 N. Y. S. 770.

34. See 6 C. L. 452.

35. Capen v. Garrison, 193 Mo. 335, 92 S. W. 368.

36. Where purchaser of chattels agreed to execute mortgage on them to secure price but failed to do so. Star Drilling Mach. Co. v. McLeod, 29 Ky. L. R. 84, 92 S. W. 558. Equitable lien on horse created by promise to deliver him to lender as security for loan. Reardon v. Higgins [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 208. Where purchaser agreed to execute mortgage on chattels and real property to which same were to be attached, but refused to carry out such agreement, and equitable lien was declared on both personalty and realty. Barnard & Leas Mfg. Co. v. Smith, 77 Ark. 590, 92 S. W. 858.

37. Materialman taking assignment from contractor of funds to become due under contract has equitable lien on such fund. In re Cramond, 145 F. 966. Party advancing money to contractor and taking order on money to become due under contract held to have equitable lien on such money. Id. Agreement by adjoining owner to pay part of cost of party wall creates equitable lien on lot on which wall is built. Rugg v. Lemley [Ark.] 93 S. W. 570.

38. Equitable lien on goods in hands of commission merchant created by delivery of latter's receipts to bank and execution of note and memorandum showing intent to create lien. Smith v. Equitable Trust Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 594.

39. Assignment of profits of wheat shipments to party furnishing wheat held to create no lien on cargo where such party did not rely on assignment as creating lien but retained receipts evidencing ownership of wheat until same was practically paid for. Bank of Yolo v. Bank of Woodland [Cal. App.] 86 P. 820.

40. Sanders v. Helfrich Lumber & Mfg. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 466, 93 S. W. 54.

41. Capen v. Garrison, 193 Mo. 335, 92 S. W. 368.

owner of the property is not liable,[42] nor can the lien arise out of a mistake of law.[43] The lien of a vendor of land arises from the fact that the vendee has received from the vendor an estate for which he has not paid the full consideration and is not dependent upon the express agreement of the parties,[44] An equitable lien will not be declared where the effect would be a violation of the law.[45] A court of equity may declare an equitable lien on the estate of a bankrupt, and the lien so declared will be recognized by a court of bankruptcy.[46]

(§ 2) C. Statutory liens.[47]—For the purpose of creating liens, a statutory classification is permissible both as to those in whose favor[48] and those against whom the lien is to operate.[49] To acquire a statutory lien the terms of the statute must be complied with,[50] and a party claiming such a lien must bring himself clearly within the statute,[51] and the property upon which the lien is claimed must be definitely described.[52]

Construction.[53]—Statutes giving artisans the right to retain property made or repaired by them until payment for such services are held to be merely declaratory of the common law.[54] A special lien is not necessarily exclusive of a general lien.[55] Upon the construction of the particular statute depends the question whether the lien therein provided for applies in favor of any particular person or class[56] or against a particular person,[57] or against particular property,[58] or on account of particular services.[59] The question as to when the lien takes effect is also one of statutory construction.[60] The priority of liens as dependent upon statutory construction is treated of elsewhere.[61]

42. Money advanced to curator to discharge encumbrance on land of ward but for which ward was not liable. Capen v. Garrison, 193 Mo. 335, 92 S. W. 368.

43. Mortgage executed by curator by order of probate court to secure advance to discharge encumbrance on ward's land for which ward was not liable, parties believing curator had power to execute the mortgage. Capen v. Garrison, 193 Mo. 335, 92 S. W. 368.

44. Eubank v. Finnell, 118 Mo. App. 535, 94 S. W. 591.

45. No equitable lien arises out of contract of street railroad company to deliver bonds when they are authorized by law where such bonds are never authorized by the railroad commissioners as required by Rev. Laws, c. 109, §§ 24, 25, c. 111, § 63, c. 112, §§ 20, 23, Acts 1902, p. 285, c. 320, § 1. Augusta Trust Co. v. Federal Trust Co., 140 F. 930.

46. Crosby v. Ridout, 27 App. D. C. 481.

47. See 6 C. L. 455.

48. Mechanics and materialmen. First Nat. Bank v. Trigg Co. [Va.] 56 S. E. 158.

49. Code 1887, § 2485, Code 1904, p. 1246, giving lien for supplies furnished to mining and manufacturing corporations. First Nat. Bank v. Trigg Co. [Va.] 56 S. E. 158.

50. Filing of notice of lien necessary to creation of labor or material lien under Laws N. Y. 1897, p. 517, c. 418, §§ 5, 12, 17. In re Cramond, 145 F. 966.

51. Palin v. Cooke, 125 Ga. 442, 54 S. E. 90.

52. Description in cropper's lien that the lien is intended to cover the entire crop produced for the year held sufficient. Beckstrad v. Griffith, 11 Idaho, 738, 83 P. 764.

53. See 6 C. L. 455.

54. Laws 1897, p. 532, c. 418. Smith v. O'Brien, 46 Misc. 325, 94 N. Y. S. 673; Brackett v. Pierson, 99 N. Y. S. 770. V. S. 2279. Bergman v. Gay [Vt.] 64 A. 1106.

55. Special lien in favor of farm laborer under Civ. Code 1905, § 2793, on product of his labor, not exclusive of general lien under § 2792 upon employer's property generally. Faircloth v. Webb, 125 Ga. 230, 53 S. E. 592.

56. Livery stable keeper's lien not available to garage keeper. Smith v. O'Brien, 46 Misc. 325, 94 N. Y. S. 673. Garage keeper has no warehouseman's lien on machine controlled and taken out by owner at will. Id.

Lien for labor or material under Laws N. Y. 1897, c. 418, not available to party advancing money to contractor and taking assignment of funds to become due under the contract. In re Cramond, 145 F. 966. Artisan's lien under Laws 1897, p. 532, c. 418, does not attach to automobile on account of repairs while in garage where owner is allowed to use and operate machine at will. Smith v. O'Brien, 46 Misc. 325, 94 N. Y. S. 673.

57. Corporation manufacturing ships and equipment therefor held a manufacturing company within Code 1887, § 2485, Code 1904, p. 1246, giving lien for supplies furnished manufacturing companies. First Nat. Bank v. Trigg Co. [Va.] 56 S. E. 158.

58. Rev. St. 1898, § 3344, giving innkeepers and boarding house keepers a lien on baggage and effects of guests or boarders gives no lien on separate property of married woman living with her husband at boarding house, and, even where the wife charges her separate property with such board bill, only an equitable lien is created which is not enforceable as a statutory lien. Chickering-Chase Bros. Co. v. White, 127 Wis. 83, 106 N. W. 797. Under Sess. Laws 1899, p. 153, c. 8, § 11, giving lien in favor of laborers assisting in producing crops on "all such crop or crops," the lien is not confined merely to that part of the crop on which labor was performed. Beckstead v. Griffith, 11 Idaho, 738, 83 P. 764.

§ 3. Rank and priorities of liens.[62]—Money in the hands of an officer derived from a general lien is subject to a superior special lien.[63] No supervening equity arises from the order of assignment of purchase-money bonds executed on a sale of land by a special receiver.[64] A vendor's lien on land takes priority over a mortgage subsequently executed to secure an advance applied in part payment for the land,[65] though the vendor knew that the advance was made to enable the vendee to make such part payment, the lender also having knowledge of the vendor's lien.[66] Individual liens upon property contributed to a firm by its several members, all of such members knowing of and consenting to such liens take precedence over firm debts subsequently incurred.[67] It is not necessary for a party taking a lien on personal property by agreement with the owner to take possession of the property as against the latter's general creditors or his assignee for creditors.[68] The priority of a statutory lien is sometimes purely a matter of statutory construction,[69] and in many instances priority depends upon their being filed or recorded.[70] Where sev-

59. Artisans' lien does not cover services in cutting and hauling logs to saw-mill. Brackett v. Pierson, 99 N. Y. S. 770.

60. Landlord's special lien for rent upon crops grown on rented premises takes effect upon maturity of crop, and his special lien for supplies furnished tenant to make crop arises where supplies are furnished, and in neither case is a levy necessary to fix the lien. Civ. Code 1895, §§ 2795, 2796, 2800. Cochran v. Waits, Johnson & Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 241.

61. See post, § 3, Rank and Priorities of Liens.

62. See 6 C. L. 455.

63. Landlord's liens on crops under Civ. Code 1895, §§ 2795, 2796, 2800, superior to judgment lien. Cochran v. Waits, Johnson & Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 241.

64. Davis v. Roller [Va.] 55 S. E. 4.

65, 66. Eubank v. Finnell, 118 Mo. App. 535, 94 S. W. 591.

67. Merkley v. Gravel Switch Roller Mills Co.'s Assignee, 28 Ky. L. R. 1010, 90 S. W. 1059.

68. Party gave to bank lien on goods in hands of commission merchant and thereafter made assignment for creditors. Smith v. Equitable Trust Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 594.

69. Under Code, § 4019, the priority of liens for labor is not dependent upon the suspension of the employer's business by the legal process under which his property is seised. Anundsen v. Standard Printing Co., 129 Iowa, 200, 105 N. W. 424. Where all of debtor's property was not attached but all that was not attached had been disposed of at the time another creditor intervened, it was held that, so far as intervener was concerned, all the debtor's property had been seised so that it was not necessary to the priority of liens for labor over intervener's claim to decide whether Code, § 4019, providing for priority of labor liens "when the property" of the employer is seised under legal process, requires "all" of the employer's property to be seised. Id. For other constructions of this statute, see Goodenow v. Foster, 108 Iowa 508, 79 N. W. 288; St. Paul Co. v. Diagonal Co., 95 Iowa, 551, 64 N. W. 606; Wells v. Kelly, 121 Iowa, 557, 96 N. W. 1104; Haw v. Burch, 110 Iowa, 234, 81 N. W. 460; Stuart v. Twining, 112 Iowa, 154, 83 N. W. 891; all of which cases are cited in Anundsen v. Standard Printing Co., 129 Iowa, 200, 105 N. W. 424. Landlord's lien on crops superior to deed of trust securing advances for supplies, whether the relation of landlord and tenant arose out of simple rental contract or out of uncompleted conditional purchase under contract according to which purchaser was to become tenant on failure to pay price. Bedford v. Gartrell [Miss.] 40 So. 801.

70. Under Laws N. Y. 1897, c. 418, laborers or materialmen have liens ranking in priority according to date of filing. In re Cramond, 145 F. 966. Chattel mortgage superior to attachment levied after recording of mortgage. Crismon v. Barse Live Stock Commission Co. [Okl.] 87 P. 876. Under Laws 1903, p. 56, c. 36, § 1, a stipulation reserving title or lien to secure purchase price of personalty delivered to purchaser must be in writing and filed with register of deeds in order to create lien as against third persons having notice. Webber v. Conklin [S. D.] 104 N. W. 675. Stipulation that purchaser shall hold goods in trust to secure purchase price is neither conditional sale nor chattel mortgage, and hence when not recorded assignee for creditors not liable for sale of goods when he had no actual notice. Id. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2315, providing that a chattel mortgage shall cease to be valid as against creditors or mortgagee after two years unless, within thirty days of the expiration of the two years, the mortgagee, his agent or attorney, shall make and file an affidavit setting forth the mortgagee's interest in the property, the affidavit, when made by anyone other than mortgagee, as in case of corporate mortgagee, must state under oath that affiant is agent or attorney of mortgagee, description of affiant as "of and for" the mortgagee corporation being insufficient. Chickering-Chase Bros. Co. v. White, 127 Wis. 83, 106 N. W. 797. Where a lien is recorded and judgment of foreclosure is obtained prior to the consummation of a sale by a receiver, the purchaser from the

eral items of work or material are furnished under a single contract, the time for filing is computed from the date of the last item,[71] but it is otherwise where the items are furnished under separate contracts, the time being computed in such cases from the last item of each contract.[72] A general contract to do repair work on various articles as needed does not constitute the work done thereunder a single job,[73] nor can the debtor and creditor bring such a contract within the rule applicable to a single job by an agreement that the bill for such work shall become due only on demand.[74] An equitable lien, though unrecorded, is superior to the lien of a subsequent attachment by a general creditor.[75] A lienor may be estopped from asserting his lien as against other liens.[76] Parties to a suit to enforce a lien are bound by the determination as to priorities, as are also their privies.[77]

§ 4. Waiver, extinguishment, discharge, and revival.[78]—A statutory lien will continue until the debt has been paid or the property subjected to the lien or until the lien has been discharged in some manner provided by law.[79] Where a statute provides for the continuation of a lien for a specified period, such lien will not abate upon the death of the debtor,[80] but may abate upon his insolvency.[81] A lien may be discharged by a conveyance of the property to the lienor,[82] by a merger,[83] by lapse of time,[84] by abandonment of the contract out of which the lien arose,[85] by redemption,[86] by tender,[87] by parting with the possession of the property where the lien is dependent upon possession,[88] by asserting claims inconsistent with the lien,[89] or by receiver takes subject to the judgment of foreclosure, as where purchase was made from receiver before citation in the foreclosure suit, but price was not paid or deed delivered until after judgment of foreclosure. Cameron & Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 131, 90 S. W. 1129.

71. Code 1887, § 2485, Code 1904, p. 1246, giving lien for supplies furnished to mining and manufacturing companies. construed. First Nat. Bank v. Trigg Co. [Va.] 56 S. E. 158.

72. First Nat. Bank v. Trigg Co. [Va.] 56 S. E. 158.

73. Mechanic's lien under Civ. Code 1905, § 2805. Palin v. Cooke, 125 Ga. 442, 54 S. E. 90.

74. Palin v. Cooke, 125 Ga. 442, 54 S. E. 90.

75. Lien for purchase money of personalty held superior to lien of attachment by general creditor of purchaser. Star Drilling Mach. Co. v. McLeod, 29 Ky. L. R. 84, 92 S. W. 558.

76. Where purchase-money bond executed on sale of land under judgment and secured by vendor's lien is assigned to party to such judgment who stands as surety for payment thereof, the assignee cannot enforce his lien to prejudice of judgment creditor upon whose judgment an execution constituting a lien upon personal property of all judgment debtors has been issued. Davis v. Roller [Va.] 55 S. E. 4.

77. Parties to suit to enforce lien on personalty who failed to set up any claim thereto by reason of liens on realty to which personalty had been attached held precluded from thereafter asserting any such claim. Cameron & Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 131, 90 S. W. 1129.

78. See 6 C. L. 457.

79. Attachment. Katz v. Obenchain [Or.] 85 P. 617.

80, 81. Judgment lien under Code 1896, §§ 1920, 1922, as amended by Gen. Acts 1898-99, p. 34. Evans v. Silvey & Co., 144 Ala. 398, 42 So. 62.

82. Such conveyance good as against subsequent creditors of debtor. Sentel v. Jennings, 123 Ill. App. 469.

83. Conditional sale merged in absolute sale secured by mortgage. Anundsen v. Standard Printing Co., 129 Iowa, 200, 105 N. W. 424. Attachment lien merged in judgment lien, but lien on land not lost, since lien of judgment attaches as soon as attachment lien is merged. Katz v. Obenchain [Or.] 85 P. 617. Continuation of lien in such case not prevented by failure to record judgment on lien docket. Id.

84. The inchoate lien created by furnishing material for building ceases under mechanics' lien law after sixty days from completion of building. Provident Mut. Bldg. Loan Ass'n v. Shaffer, 2 Cal. App. 216, 83 P. 274.

85. Farm laborers' lien under Civ. Code 1905, §§ 2792, 2793, waived by abandonment of contract and submission to arbitration. Faircloth v. Webb, 125 Ga. 230, 53 S. E. 592.

86. The buyer's right under Laws 1897, p. 535, c. 418, §§ 83, 112, to redeem from lien of conditional sale by payment of amount due at any time before property is sold to satisfy the lien passes to a purchaser from the original buyer. Tweedie v. Clark, 99 N. Y. S. 856.

87. Purchase-money lien in form of reservation of title in conditional sale is discharged by valid tender of amount due. Tweedie v. Clark, 99 N. Y. S. 856.

88. Lien at common law and under Laws 1897, p. 532, c. 418, for repairs. Smith v. O'Brien, 46 Misc. 325, 94 N. Y. S. 673. Receipt of 95% of purchase money of personalty and surrender of indicia of possession and ownership held release of purchase-money lien, both at common law and under legal proceedings inconsistent with the lien.[90] The taking of a note does not amount to a waiver of a lien securing the account in the absence of any showing that such was the intention of the parties,[91] nor is the taking of additional security by way of a lien on other property inconsistent with the original lien.[92] A lien on personalty is not lost by the attaching of the personalty to realty.[93] Whether or not there has been a waiver sometimes depends upon the intent of the parties.[94] An attorney at law has no authority as such to waive his client's lien.[95] A waiver is not within the statute of frauds.[96] The mutual promises of two lienors constitute a sufficient consideration for mutual waivers of conflicting liens.[97] A mutual waiver of conflicting liens operates in praesenti and cannot be repudiated by one of the parties so as to relieve him from liability for a subsequent conversion of the property which he has released.[98] A release of a lien is not an advance to the debtor within a contract of suretyship for an advance.[99] A party cannot invoke an estoppel to assert a lien on account of acts upon which he has not relied.[1]

§ 5. Enforcement and protection of liens.[2]—A lienor may in a proper case sue for the conversion of the property;[3] and though a lienor cannot sue a trustee or receiver in bankruptcy in replevin or otherwise interfere with the possession of the

Civ. Code, §§ 2872, 2875, 2988, 3049. Bank of Yolo v. Bank of Woodland [Cal. App.] 86 P. 820.

89. Where artisan in possession of personalty fails to assert lien upon demand by owner and claims property as his own. Brackett v. Pierson, 99 N. Y. S. 770. Assertion of lien for specific work precludes lien for any other work. Id.

90. Special lien under Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. 1903, c. 3, §§ 108, 110, for pasturing stock, waived by attachment of stock. Crismon v. Barse Live Stock Com. Co. [Okl.] 87 P. 876. Party holding mechanic's lien established by state court held to have waived same by becoming party to suit in Federal court and consenting to a decree for sale of property to pay other debts and claims. Harrington v. Union Oil Co., 144 F. 235. Where a bankrupt's property is sold free from liens, a suit in trover by a lienor against the trustee in bankruptcy is a waiver of the plaintiff's lien. In re Platteville Foundry & Mach. Co., 147 F. 828.

91. Lien under Code 1887, § 2485, Code 1904, p. 1246, for supplies furnished mining and manufacturing corporations. First Nat. Bank v. Trigg Co. [Va.] 56 S. E. 158. Vendor's lien on land not waived by taking vendee's unsecured note or bond. Eubank v. Finnell, 118 Mo. App. 535, 94 S. W. 591. Vendor's lien not waived by taking vendee's unsecured note or bond in renewal of vendee's original note or bond. Id.

92. Party holding mortgage on horse took mortgage on ox for which the mortgagor had traded the horse subsequently to the recording of the mortgage thereon, the mortgagee having no notice of an unrecorded boot money lien on the ox. Holden v. Gilfeather, 78 Vt. 405, 63 A. 144.

93. Lien reserved in conditional sale. Cameron & Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 131, 90 S. W. 1129.

94. No waiver of attachment lien where attorney directed sheriff not to sell at certain time because property would not bring amount of debt, it not appearing that a waiver was intended or that attorney was authorized to waive lien. Katz v. Obenchain [Or.] 85 P. 617.

95. Attorney in attachment proceedings. Katz v. Obenchain [Or.] 85 P. 617.

96. Purchaser of horse waived lien on ox on which other party also had a lien in consideration of such other party's release of a lien on the horse. Holden v. Gilfeather, 78 Vt. 405, 63 A. 144.

97. Party who traded ox for horse waived boot money lien on ox in consideration of waiver of mortgage on horse held by party who had also, subsequently to the trade, acquired a mortgage on the ox. Holden v. Gilfeather, 78 Vt. 405, 63 A. 144.

98. Party who traded ox for mortgaged horse waived boot money lien on ox, on which mortgagee had taken a mortgage subsequently to the trade, in consideration of release of mortgage on horse, and then sold the ox under the boot money lien. Holden v. Gilfeather, 78 Vt. 405, 63 A. 144.

99. Hirsch & Co. v. Meldrim, 124 Ga. 717, 52 S. E. 813.

1. Party purchasing land on which attachment has been levied cannot invoke estoppel against attaching creditor on account of latter's attorney having directed sheriff not to sell under previous execution, where purchaser had no knowledge of such fact at time of purchase. Katz v. Obenchain [Or.] 85 P. 617.

2. See 6 C. L. 458.

3. Chattel mortgagee may maintain trover against one who converts chattels. Holden v. Gilfeather, 78 Vt. 405, 63 A. 144. Lienor's right to sue not defeated by insufficient tender. Peterman v. Henderson [Ala.] 40 So. 756. Assignee for creditors not liable to seller for conversion of goods sold to assignor under stipulation that title was to be held in trust to secure purchase price where contract was not filed with register of deeds as provided by Laws 1903, p. 56, c. 36, § 1, and assignee had no actual notice of seller's claim until after goods had been disposed of. Webber v. Conklin [S. D.] 104 N. W. 675.

court of bankruptcy,[4] he may maintain trover in a state court against such officers where the property covered by the lien has been sold free from liens.[5] A lien may sometimes be asserted as a defense to an action for the recovery of the property,[6] or to an action to foreclose another lien,[7] and in either case the burden is on the defendant to establish the lien so asserted.[8] A lien may also be asserted as a counterclaim.[9] Where the owner of personalty replevies it from a lienor rightfully in possession, he cannot justify failure to return it on the ground that it has been sold under a superior lien.[10] A surplus arising on a sale under a junior lien subject to the senior lien is applicable to the latter only in the event of a deficiency after a sale thereunder.[11] The proper method of enforcing a lien against funds in the hands of an officer is by rule to distribute.[12] A judicial lien may be foreclosed by judgment without a verdict.[13]

Statutory proceedings to enforce or foreclose.[14]—The creation of a new remedy does not necessarily take away existing remedies.[15] The rule that the pleadings and proof must correspond is especially applicable where a lien is sought to be enforced under a statute in derogation of the common law.[16] In enforcing the Georgia farm laborer's lien, the laborer must show that he complied with the contract declared on[17] and that he demanded his wages after they became due,[18] and cannot rely on an award of arbitrators after the abandonment of the contract.[19] Many matters relating to statutory proceedings to enforce liens necessarily depend upon the construction of particular statutes.[20]

Equitable remedies and procedure.[21]—Equity has jurisdiction to enforce liens

4. In re Platteville Foundry & Mach. Co., 147 F. 828.

5. In re Platteville Foundry & Mach. Co., 147 F. 828. The taking possession of the property by the bankruptcy court does not operate as a caveat or sequestration so as to make the lienor a party to the bankruptcy proceedings. Id.

6. Artisan's lien. Solomon v. Bok, 49 Misc. 493, 98 N. Y. S. 838.

7. Laborer's lien on cotton asserted in suit to foreclose mortgage thereon. McCarty v. Key, 87 Miss. 248, 39 So. 780.

8. Where it appeared prima facie that bale of cotton was covered by mortgage, burden was on laborer to show that such bale was not so covered by reason of laborer's statutory lien. McCarty v. Key, 87 Miss. 248, 39 So. 780. Where defendant asserted artisan's lien on articles sued for not only as to such articles but also as to articles delivered, he had burden of proving that all articles were covered by single contract. Solomon v. Bok, 49 Misc. 493, 98 N. Y. S. 838.

9. Though replevin sounds in tort, an equitable lien on the property arising out of promise to deliver it as security for loan may be pleaded as a counterclaim. Reardon v. Higgins, [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 208. In such case the counterclaim is connected with the cause of action within Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 353. Id.

10. Mortgagor replevied property from one to whom he had delivered it for repairs. Bergman v. Gay [Vt.] 64 A. 1106.

11. Sale under mortgage subject to vendor's lien. Eubank v. Finnell, 118 Mo. App. 535, 94 S. W. 591.

12. Cochran v. Waits, Johnson & Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 241.

13. Attachment lien. Slayden & Co. v. Palmo [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 964, 90 S. W. 908.

14. See 6 C. L. 459.

15. Remedy by attachment not taken away by V. S. 2279-2281, providing for enforcement of lien for repairs. Bergman v. Gay [Vt.] 64 A. 1106.

16. Enforcement of farm laborer's lien under Civ. Code 1895, §§ 2792, 2793. Faircloth v. Webb, 125 Ga. 230, 53 S. E. 592. Where return of execution to enforce farm laborer's liens shows levy on other property in addition to crops, it is not wholly invalid because crops are growing and hence not subject to levy, but will be upheld for enforcement of general lien on other property under Civ. Code, § 2792. Id.

17, 18, 19. Faircloth v. Webb, 125 Ga. 230, 53 S. E. 592.

20. Under Civ. Code 1905, § 2816, farm laborers' liens may be enforced at any time within year after maturity of debt, and hence execution to enforce special lien given by § 2793 is not void because issued while crops are growing, but may, under § 5425, be levied when crops mature. Faircloth v. Webb, 125 Ga. 230, 53 S. E. 592. Under Municipal Court Act, § 138 [Laws 1902, p. 1332, c. 580], providing that in action to foreclose lien on chattels "if the plaintiff is not in possession of the chattel" a warrant may issue for its seizure in like manner as a warrant of attachment, and that provisions relating to issue of attachments shall apply to issue of such warrant, grounds of attachment are not necessary to issue of warrant of seizure, only ground necessary for such warrant being that plaintiff be not in possession. Wuertz v. Braun, 113 App. Div. 459, 99 N. Y. S. 340,

21. See 6 C. L. 459.

where the lienor has no other remedy;[22] but an injunction will not issue to restrain the application of funds in the hands of an officer to an inferior lien, the remedy being by rule to distribute.[23] Payment or tender of a prior lien is not a condition precedent to a suit to enforce the junior lien.[24] That the property is in the hands of a receiver and that the lienor should intervene in the receivership suit instead of suing to foreclose is a matter of defense which is waived if not interposed in the foreclosure suit.[25] Where there are several liens, one or more of which do not cover all the property involved in the suit, the property should not be sold as a whole.[26]

LIFE ESTATES, REVERSIONS, AND REMAINDERS.

§ 1. Nature and Definitions (762).
§ 2. Mutual and Relative Rights and Remedies of Life Tenants, Future Tenants, and Their Privies (765). Taxes, Incumbrances, and Contribution (767). The Possession of the Life Tenant is Not Adverse (767). Increment to Funds (768).
§ 3. Rights and Remedies Between Third Persons and Life Tenants, Remaindermen, and Reversioners (768).

§ 1. Nature and definitions.—A life estate is a freehold limited to determine with the life or lives of particular persons, or at an uncertain period which may continue for life.[27] A life tenant must have an estate in the lands,[28] but he has no estate which passes to his heirs.[29] A life estate created in express and certain terms is not converted into a fee by a power of disposition.[30]

22. Judgment lien under Code 1896, §§ 1920, 1922, as amended by Gen. Act 1898-99, p. 34, unenforceable at law because of death of debtor. Evans v. Silvey & Co., 144 Ala. 398, 42 So. 62. Will enforce lien on lot arising out of agreement of owner to pay part of expense of party wall. Rugg v. Lemley [Ark.] 93 S. W. 570.

23. Landlord's liens on crops under Civ. Code 1895, §§ 2795, 2796, 2800, as against proceeds of sale under common-law execution. Cochran v. Waits, Johnson & Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 241. Fact that common-law executions against tenant had been levied also on personal property other than the crops upon which landlord asserted lien afforded no room for equity to interpose to consolidate the claim case with the controversy between the same parties over the funds realized from sale under such executions. Id.

24. Where attorney's lien under Code Civ. Proc. § 430, was for services rendered mortgagor in suit in which deed absolute was declared a mortgage, payment or tender of the amount of a prior mortgage was not a condition precedent to right to sue for enforcement of the lien against the property. Gilchrist v. Hore [Mont.] 87 P. 443.

25. Cameron & Co. v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 131, 90 S. W. 1129.

26. Mechanic's lien, judgment lien, and deed of trust, the last covering only part of property, and such part should have been sold separately. O'Neil v. Taylor, 59 W. Va. 370, 53 S. E. 471.

27. See 6 C. L. 460. Under Ky. St. 2345, providing that, when an estate is given to one for life and after his death to his heirs or the heirs of his body or his issue, he shall take only a life estate, a deed to one for life, without power to alienate, remainder to his bodily heirs, gives the first taker a life estate only. Jones v. Carlin, 29 Ky. L. R. 1077, 96 S. W. 885. A bequest of personalty to be invested for the benefit of a person for life, and for the benefit of his wife and children after his death, gives the legatee a life estate only, remainder to his widow and children. Illensworth v. Illensworth, 110 App. Div. 399, 97 N. Y. S. 44. Under Rev. St. (1st Ed.) p. 2, c. 1, relative to fee tail estates, a devise to one for life and to the heirs of her body gives a life estate only and on her death without descendants the estate does not vest in her heirs at law. Webb v. Sweet [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 1024. An estate to one "and to his children forever" gives a fee and not a life estate. "Children" held to mean heirs generally and not issue. This under a statute providing that a fee is created if a less estate be not limited by express words. Strawbridge v. Strawbridge, 220 Ill. 61, 77 N. E. 78. An estate to one for life remainder to her issue if any, if not to revert, creates a life estate in the first taker. West v. Vernon [Pa.] 64 A. 686. Where by a will executed in another state a testator devises land situated in Ohio to his daughter "during her natural life and at her decease to go to her lawful heirs," although under the rule prevailing in such other state such will would have conveyed a fee simple in accordance with the rule in Shelley's case, yet, under the rule prevailing in Ohio, these words created only a life estate in such Ohio lands. Hosler v. Haines, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 261. A provision for a trust fund, the income of which is to be paid to one and the principal to his heirs at his death, gives him a life estate only. Vogt v. Vogt, 26 App. D. C. 46.

28. An agreement under which a person is to take charge of a building, collect rents, pay expenses, and retain a certain weekly

A reversion is an estate remaining by operation of law in the grantor or his heirs to commence in possession after a particular estate granted out by him is determined.[31]

A remainder is an estate expressly limited to take effect in possession immediately on the expiration of a particular estate,[32] not in derogation thereof and created by the same instrument.[33] A remainder is vested if there is a present right to future enjoyment,[34] and the fact that possession and enjoyment is postponed until a future date,[35] or that it is subject to open and let in others of the class,[36] will not destroy its stipend for life, does not vest him with a life estate or any other interest. Durfee v. Meadowcroft [Mass.] 79 N. E. 268.

29. Furr v. Burns, 124 Ga. 742, 53 S. E. 201.

30. Cross v. Hendry [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 531.

31. See 6 C. L. 460. An estate to one for life remainder to the grantor if he survived the grantee, if not to his heirs, creates a reversion in the grantor and passes no estate to the heirs. Robinson v. Blankinship [Tenn.] 92 S. W. 854.

32. See 6 C. L. 460. A remainder limited to heirs at law gives no estate to an adopted daughter. Kettell v. Baxter, 50 Misc. 428, 100 N. Y. S. 529. An estate in trust to one for life remainder to her children or issue of a deceased child creates no estate in a child of the testator who died prior to the testator's death. Crapo v. Price, 190 Mass. 317, 76 N. E. 1043. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 30, converting a fee tail into a life estate, remainder in fee to the person to whom the estate tail would pass, a conveyance to one and her children, to the grantee for life, remainder to her children in fee, creates, where the grantee had two children, one of whom died in infancy and one survived her parent and died without issue, a remainder in fee in the child who survived. Dick v. Ricker, 222 Ill. 413, 78 N. E. 823. Under the express provisions of Comp. Laws Mich. 1857, pp. 858, 859, where an intestate is survived by a widow and father but no issue, the widow takes a life estate, the father a remainder. Rich v. Victoria Copper Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 380.

33. See 6 C. L. 460.

34. An estate to one "upon his becoming 21 years of age" is vested but enjoyment thereof is postponed. Hooker v. Bryan, 140 N. C. 402, 53 S. E. 130.

35. A vested remainder is one that takes effect in interest and right immediately, though possession and enjoyment may be postponed. Where created by will it must take effect on the death of the testator, though possession be postponed until after the termination of a present estate. In re Kountz's Estate, 213 Pa. 390, 62 A. 1103.

36. A bequest to one for life, remainder to his children, as a general rule creates a vested remainder in each of the children alive at the death of the testator, subject to open and let in after born children, though it is also provided that the children of a deceased child shall take its parent's share. Crapo v. Price, 190 Mass. 317, 76 N. E. 1043.

Note: In Spencer v. Wilson, L. R. 16 Eq. 501, and the following cases there cited: Batsford v. Kebbell, 3 Ves. 363; Leake v. Robinson, 2 Mer. 362; Vawdry v. Geddes, 1 Russ. & My. 203; Watson v. Hayes, 5 My. & Cr. 125; Peek's Trusts, L. R. 16 Eq. 221,—it was held that, where there are separate gifts of the income and the capital of the estate, the latter does not vest until the period of distribution. A concise rule is found in Tiffany on the Modern Law of Real Property, § 120 (b), as follows: "It is frequently stated that the capacity of a remainder to take effect immediately in possession, if the particular estate were to terminate, is the criterion of a vested, as distinguished from a contingent, remainder." In the authorities cited by the author in support of this proposition we find the following: "It is not the uncertainty of ever taking effect in possession that makes a remainder contingent; for to that, every remainder for life or in tail is and must be liable, as the remainderman may die, or die without issue before the death of the tenant for life. The present capacity of taking effect in possession, if the possession were to become vacant, and not the certainty that the possession will become vacant before the estate limited in remainder determines, universally distinguishes a vested remainder from one that is contingent." Fearne on Contingent Remainder, 216. "As distinguished from a vested remainder, a contingent remainder is an estate in remainder which is not ready, from its commencement to its end, to come into possession at any moment when the prior estate may happen to determine." Williams on Real Property, *267. "It is the uncertainty of the right of enjoyment, and not the uncertainty of its actual enjoyment, which renders a remainder contingent. The present capacity of taking effect in possession, if the possession were to become vacant, distinguishes a vested from a contingent remainder, and not the certainty that the possession will ever become vacant while the remainder continues." Quoted from 4 Kent's Commentaries, *203, note a, in Doe, Lessee of Poor v. Considine, 73 U. S. 458, 476, 18 Law. Ed. 869. "A vested remainder is one by which a present interest passes to the party, though to be enjoyed in future, and by which the estate is fixed to remain to a determinate person after the particular estate is spent. He has an immediate fixed right of future enjoyment. A remainder is contingent when it is limited to take effect on an event which may never happen till after the preceding particular estate ends, or is limited to a person not in being or not ascertained. It is the present capacity of taking effect in possession, if the possession were to become vacant, not the certainty that it will ever become vacant while the remainder continues, which distinguishes a vested from a contingent remainder. In other words in character as a vested estate. A trust limited to lives is no obstacle to the present vesting of a subsequent estate.[37] A right to enjoy the proceeds of a future sale of property is not a vested estate.[38] In some states a particular estate is not essential to support a remainder.[39] A remainder is contingent when limited to a dubious and uncertain person,[40] or to take effect on a dubious and uncertain event.[41] The vesting of an estate which is subject to be defeated by an event is not accelerated by a conveyance by the life tenant of his estate;[42] but where an estate is vested but enjoyment thereof is postponed until the owner attains majority, his death prior to attaining majority accelerates the right to enjoyment.[43]

An estate in expectancy is subject to sale.[44] Under the Real Property Laws of New York a future estate, whether it be vested or contingent, may be assigned if the uncertainty be not as to the person.[45]

The sale of future estates,[46] though contingent[47] or limited to infants, is in some

the former the enjoyment is uncertain; in the latter the right to that enjoyment." Williamson v. Field's Ex'rs, 2 Sandf. Ch. [N. Y.] 533, 552. "A vested remainder is one that takes effect in interest and right immediately on the death of the testator, although it may not take effect; indeed, if it be a remainder, it cannot take effect, in possession and enjoyment, until the death of the devisee for life, or other determination of the particular estate. A present capacity of taking effect in possession, if the possession were to become vacant before the estate limited in remainder determines, universally distinguishes a vested remainder from one that is contingent. In general, the law favors that construction which holds a remainder vested, rather than that which considers it contingent, when the question is doubtful." This is from the opinion of Chief Justice Shaw, in Brown v. Lawrence, 57 Mass. 390, 397. "A remainder is contingent when it is limited to take effect on an event which may never happen, or which may not happen until after the preceding particular estate ends, or is limited to a person not in esse or not ascertained. A present capacity of taking effect in possession, if the possession were to become vacant, and not the certainty that the possession will become vacant before the estate limited in remainder determines, universally distinguishes a vested remainder from one that is contingent. In other words, in the former the enjoyment is uncertain, in the latter the right to that enjoyment is uncertain." 1 Boone on Real Property (2d Ed.) § 173. In addition to these authorities, we find the following from Mitchell on Real Estate & Conveyancing in Pa., 227: "A vested remainder is an estate to take effect after another estate, for years, for life, or in tail, which is so limited that if the particular estate were to expire or end in any way at the present time some certain person would become thereupon entitled to the immediate enjoyment."—See In re Kountz's Estate [Pa.] 62 A. 1103.

37. Stringer v. Barker, 110 App. Div. 37, 96 N. Y. S. 1052.

38. An estate to a wife for life to be sold and the proceeds divided among children within two years after her death creates no vested estate in the children at their father's death, but only a right to the money when the land should be sold. Darst v. Swearingen, 224 Ill. 229, 79 N. E. 635.

39. Under the rule that an estate may be created to commence in the future, a future estate unsupported by a particular estate may be created to commence at a future date. O'Day v. Meadow, 194 Mo. 588, 92 S. W. 637.

40. An estate limited to take effect after the termination of a life estate to a class of persons or their children is contingent where it cannot be presently determined who will be members of such class at the time the estate will take effect in possession. Brownback v. Keister, 220 Ill. 544, 77 N. E. 75. An estate to one class for life remainder to another class 10 years after the youngest of such class should attain majority is contingent. In re Kountz's Estate, 213 Pa. 390, 62 A. 1103. An estate limited to persons of a class who shall be living after the expiration of two intermediate estates is contingent. Train v. Davis, 49 Misc. 162, 98 N. Y. S. 816.

41. An estate to one for life remainder to three, and in case of the death of one of such three prior to termination of the life estate, his interest to his children, if any, creates a contingent remainder in the second persons named. Cummings v. Hamilton [Ill.] 77 N. E. 264. An estate to a husband in trust for his wife for their joint lives and in fee if she survived her husband, and if she died under coverture to her children, gives her an equitable life estate and contingent remainder. Cherry v. Cape Fear Power Co., 142 N. C. 404, 55 S. E. 287.

42. Where one holds a remainder subject to be defeated by his death prior to the death of the life tenant, a conveyance of his estate by the life tenant does not accelerate the vesting of the remainder. Cummings v. Hamilton [Ill.] 77 N. E. 264.

43. His heirs have a right to immediate enjoyment. Hooker v. Bryan, 140 N. C. 402, 53 S. E. 130.

44. Hudson v. Hudson, 222 Ill. 527, 78 N. E. 917.

45. Stringer v. Barker, 110 App. Div. 37, 96 N. Y. S. 1052. Future income may not be. Id.

46. Civ. Code Prac. § 491, expressly provides for the sale of future estates for reinvestment. Haggin v. Rogers, 29 Ky. L. R. 1263, 97 S. W. 362. Under Civ. Code, § 490, authorizing partition sale, if the estate be in possession and incapable of division with-states authorized by statute, and future estates limited to persons not in esse may be bound by decrees in proceedings to which all persons in being, who would have taken the property if the contingency had then happened, are made parties,[48] but this rule may not be applied to defeat a vested remainder.[49] A fund raised by the sale of lands under the New Jersey statute authorizing the sale of lands limited over to infants or in contingency, where such sale would be beneficial, is substituted for the land, and the persons who had an interest in the land have a like interest in the fund.[50] The income from the fund or such part thereof as is directed to be paid to the tenant for life is payable up to the day of his death, and so much thereof as has not been paid to him must be paid to his personal representative.[51]

A merger may result where life estates and future estates are acquired by one person,[52] but no merger results where a life estate and future estates, subject to be defeated, are so acquired.[53]

§ 2. Mutual and relative rights and remedies of life tenants, future tenants, and their privies.[54]—A life tenant under a will should be required to execute a bond for the forthcoming of the estate before he is given possession,[55] but where a life tenant is entitled to manage the land and to its profits, he may not be required to give security for the protection of the remainderman.[56]

A life tenant may not commit waste,[57] hence he may not cut growing timber,[58] but where all timber on the premises is necessary to make needed repairs, he is entitled to it all as against the remainderman,[59] and where damages are paid for in-out impairing its value, a life tenant of a half of an estate may maintain partition against the fee owner in such half and the fee owner of the other half. Craddock v. Smythe [Ky.] 99 S. W. 216. Laws 1899, p. 525, c. 300, authorizing the sale of contingent estates, does not confer additional power on the courts but merely prescribes the procedure, and remaindermen's estates cannot be sold to satisfy charges on the land under the will as there can be no separation of interests of life tenant and remainderman, but the land should be mortgaged or portion of it sold. In re Kingston's Estate [Wis.] 110 N. W. 417.

47. Revisal 1905, § 1590, authorizes a sale of contingent remainders. McAfee v. Green [N. C.] 55 S. E. 828.

48. Revisal 1905, § 1591, providing that all parties not in esse who may take property in expectancy or upon a contingency, under limitations in deeds or wills, are bound by any proceedings theretofore had for the sale thereof in which all persons in being who would have taken such property, if the contingency had then happened, have been made parties, and expressly providing that the act shall not affect any vested right or estate, is valid and operates restrospectively so as to apply to contingent interests previously created. Anderson v. Wilkins, 142 N. C. 154, 55 S. E. 272. Where will gave child a fee determinable on her death without children, held that a conveyance pursuant to a decree in special proceedings for sale of land, to which all persons in being interested under the will were made parties, passed good title. Id.

49. The rule that contingent remainders limited to persons not in esse may be bound by decrees against the owners cannot be applied to divest a vested remainder. Card v. Finch, 142 N. C. 140, 54 S. E. 1009.

50. In re Dowe, 68 N. J. Eq. 11, 64 A. 803. One entitled to a dower interest in the land takes an equivalent interest in the fund. Id. In this case there was a life estate and vested remainders in fee subject to be divested. Id.

51. In re Dowe, 68 N. J. Eq. 11, 64 A. 803.

52. An estate to one for life remainder to his issue if any, if not to another in fee, gives the last taker a fee after termination of the life estate with the contingent remainders limited thereon, and where he acquired the life estate the contingent remainders were merged if not contrary to the intent of the parties. McCreary v. Coggeshall, 74 S. C. 42, 53 S. E. 978.

53. There is no merger where one acquires the interest of a life tenant and of contingent remaindermen whose estate is liable to be defeated and go to another. Brownback v. Keister, 220 Ill. 544, 77 N. E. 75.

54. See 6 C. L. 462.

55. Powell's Ex'rs v. Cosby, 29 Ky. L. R. 46, 91 S. W. 1133. But a bond should not be required of the devisee of a defeasible fee. Id. A life tenant under a will is entitled to possession on giving bond for his proper conduct satisfactory to the remainderman. In re Fleming's Estate, 102 N. Y. S. 204.

56. Vanatta v. Carr, 223 Ill. 160, 79 N. E. 86.

57. May not authorize the cutting of growing timber. Zimmerman Mfg. Co. v. Wilson [Ala.] 40 So. 515.

58. A life tenant may not cut timber from the land. Bynum v. Wicker, 141 N. C. 95, 53 S. E. 478.

59. Brugh v. Denman [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 349. Where a remainderman wrongfully cut timber during the existence of the life estate, he may not retain what he cut prior to a suit brought to restrain the cutting and removal. Id.

juries to timber, though he would have no right to cut it, he is entitled to a life estate in the fund derived because of its injury.[60] Where land on which oil and gas wells have been developed devolves upon life tenants and remaindermen, the life tenant may enjoy the use of such wells,[61] but where no such operations have been developed, he may not himself operate for such minerals,[62] and the fact that by operations on neighboring lands all the minerals will be taken before the remainderman comes into possession does not change the rule.[63]

It is the duty of the life tenant to keep up repairs.[64] On termination of the life estate all improvements go to the remainderman though made under erroneous belief as to ownership,[65] but he may not claim rents therefrom pending a determination of the question of title.[66]

Rights in future estates may not be affected by act of the life tenant,[67] nor can he prejudice or defeat the estate of the remainderman by an attempted declaration of trust of the property,[68] and if he conveys by deed purporting to convey the fee, and lapse of time will destroy the evidence of title of the remainderman, he may maintain action to quiet title though not in possession.[69] A remainderman may not enter on the premises during the existence of the life estate.[70] A mortgage executed by a life tenant as part of the transaction by which the estates were created for a portion of the purchase price binds the remainder,[71] but one subsequently executed does not where he had no power to execute it.[72] A lease executed by the life tenant may be assumed,[73] or a sale of the fee by him may be ratified by the remainderman.[74]

The estate of a life tenant is not liable to a remainderman for the value of slaves so limited, who were freed by the Emancipation Proclamation,[75] nor for other liability especially provided against.[76]

60. Kenlston v. Gorrell [N. H.] 64 A. 1101. An apportionment of such fund by paying to the life tenant the present worth of his interest therein according to the mortality tables is proper. Id.

61, 62, 63. Richmond Natural Gas Co. v. Davenport [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 525.

64. The life tenant is primarily liable for the cost of constructing a sidewalk in front of the land. Delker v. Owensboro [Ky.] 98 S. W. 1031.

65. A grantee of a life tenant may not charge the remainder with improvements though made under the false assumption that he was the owner. Robsion v. Gray, 29 Ky. L. R. 1296, 97 S. W. 347.

66. Where a grantee of the life tenant after the latter's death made valuable improvements under the assumption that he owned the fee, the remainderman could not claim rents after the death of the life tenant before he established his right to the property. Robsion v. Gray, 29 Ky. L. R. 1296, 97 S. W. 347.

67. Rev. Code 1892, § 3097, expressly provides that rights in reversion or remainder cannot be affected by partition, hence such persons need not be made parties. Lawson v. Bonner [Miss.] 40 So. 488. Remaindermen's interests cannot be taxed with costs where they are made parties. Id.

68. Anderson v. Messinger [C. C. A.] 146 F. 929.

69. Alley v. Alley, 28 Ky. L. R. 1073, 91 S. W. 291.

70. It is a trespass for a remainderman to go onto the premises and cut timber during the existence of the life estate. Brugh v. Denman [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 349.

71. Where land is conveyed to a husband in trust for his wife for life, remainder over, with power to the wife with the husband's consent to convey, a purchase money mortgage executed by husband and wife as part of the transaction is valid against the remainderman. Stump v. Warfield [Md.] 65 A. 346.

72. Where land is conveyed to a husband in trust for his wife for life, remainder over, with power in the wife to sell with the consent of her husband, a mortgage subsequently executed by them for part of the purchase price, interest, and other debts, is not valid as against remaindermen. Stump v. Warfield [Md.] 65 A. 346. A curative act validating certain mortgage foreclosure sales does not validate a sale as against a remainderman whose interest was not included in the mortgage. Id.

73. Remainderman held not to have assumed a lease which the life tenant was negotiating for at the time of her death. Train v. Davis, 49 Misc. 162, 98 N. Y. S. 816.

74. Where after termination of the life estate they take possession of other property purchased with the proceeds of the sale with full knowledge of all the facts. Hicks v. Webb [Ga.] 56 S. E. 307.

75. Estate of one to whom slaves were given for life held not liable for value thereof to remaindermen where they were freed by Emancipation Proclamation during her lifetime. Mimms v. Lawrence, 28 Ky. L. R. 1317, 91 S. W. 715.

Charges attached to an estate by the instrument by which it is created become an incumbrance upon it.[77]

Taxes, incumbrances, and contribution.[78]—It is the duty of the life tenant to pay taxes[79] and a failure to do so is waste for which the remainderman may recover any amount paid by him in satisfaction of a tax lien.[80] But it does not authorize a recovery by him of the lands held in life tenancy[81] unless specially authorized by statute.[82] A life tenant may not permit the property to be sold for taxes and himself acquire a tax title[83] either directly or from a purchaser at the tax sale,[84] nor can his wife[85] or any member of his family occupying and using the premises acquire a tax title valid against the remainderman.[86]

The possession of the life tenant is not adverse.[87]—A reversioner or remainderman has no right of entry during the existence of the life estate,[88] consequently limitations do not, ordinarily, run against them during such period,[89] but a remainderman who has full knowledge of his rights as remainderman, or who ought to have had such knowledge, and who knows or ought to know that such rights depend upon an affirmative act on his part to be performed, cannot, by standing by and refusing or failing to perform that act, postpone the time at which the statute of limitations will commence to run against him,[90] and where an estate is held in trust for both life tenant and remainderman, if the statute of limitations has barred the trustee it has also barred both life tenant and remainderman.[91]

76. Where will provided that share of life tenant should not be subject to debts, liabilities, contracts, or control of her husband, held that the turning over to her and her husband a note of the insolvent husband was not a payment to her of the amount thereof so as to make her estate liable to the remaindermen for the amount thereof. Mimms v. Lawrence, 28 Ky. L. R. 1317, 91 S. W. 715. Burden held to be on remaindermen to prove that estate of life tenant was liable for certain personalty alleged to have been distributed to her. Id.

77. A provision in a will creating a life estate that the mother of the testator should have a home on the farm makes such right an incumbrance of the life estate and the life tenant is not entitled to compensation for caring for her. Linzy v. Whitney, 110 App. Div. 462, 96 N. Y. S. 1075. Such incumbrance attaches to the fund derived from a sale of the premises. Id.

78. See 6 C. L. 463.

79. Magness v. Harris [Ark.] 98 S. W. 362. It is the duty of the life tenant to keep the premises in repair and pay the taxes. In re Sheldon's Estate, 96 N. Y. S. 225.

80. Magness v. Harris [Ark.] 98 S. W. 362. Where a remainderman pays taxes during the existence of the life estate, he is entitled to reimbursement from the life tenant. Ure v. Ure, 223 Ill. 454, 79 N. E. 153.

81. Magness v. Harris [Ark.] 98 S. W. 362.

82. Kirby's Dig. § 7132, providing for the forfeiture of a life estate for failure of the life tenant to pay taxes, applies only where there is a valid tax sale of the property, and does not apply where statutory requirements relative to the sale have not been complied with. Magness v. Harris [Ark.] 98 S. W. 362. Kirby's Dig. § 7132, providing for forfeiture of the life estate for waste in nonpayment of current taxes, supersedes the common law rule as to forfeiture for waste arising from failure of the life tenant to pay taxes. Id.

83. First Congregational Church v. Terry, 130 Iowa, 513, 107 N. W. 305.

84. Where a tax title was acquired by a third person who conveyed through another to the life tenant's wife, evidence held to show a fraudulent scheme to defeat the rights of the remainderman. First Congregational Church v. Terry, 130 Iowa, 513, 107 N. W. 305.

85. Where she was occupying the premises with her husband. First Congregational Church v. Terry, 130 Iowa, 513, 107 N. W. 305.

86. Such acquisition operates as a mere payment of the tax or redemption from the sale as trustee for the head of the family. First Congregational Church v. Terry, 130 Iowa, 513, 107 N. W. 305.

87. See 6 C. L. 463.

88. See ante, § 2, Mutual and relative rights.

89. Limitations do not run against reversioners or remaindermen during the existence of the life estate. Schroeder v. Bozarth, 224 Ill. 310, 79 N. E. 583; McMurtry v. Fairley, 194 Mo. 502, 91 S. W. 902; Glore v. Scroggins, 124 Ga. 922, 53 S. E. 690. A cause of action in a remainderman in fee to recover the estate does not accrue until the termination of the particular estate. Davis v. Dyer, 29 Ky. L. R. 430, 93 S. W. 629. Under Comp. Laws Mich. 1897, § 9716, where a parent of a decedent was entitled to land only after termination of the widow's life estate, adverse possession does not run against him during the existence of such estate. Rich v. Victoria Copper Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 380.

90. Hosler v. Haines, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 261. Where a husband and wife holding a life estate conveyed by deed purporting to pass the fee, on death of the wife, the remainderman had a right of entry at that date. Cherry v. Cape Fear Power Co., 142 N. C. 404, 55 S. E. 287.

Increment to funds.[92]—Distributions of assets among stockholders by corporations in liquidation are to be regarded as capital and not income as between life tenant and remaindermen.[93]

§ 3. Rights and remedies between third persons and life tenants, remaindermen, and reversioners.[94]—A life tenant may not recover for injury to the freehold where it appears that his estate is benefitted rather than prejudiced.[95] A lease by a life tenant terminates on his death by operation of law,[96] and where he leases for a certain term by a lease containing a covenant for quiet enjoyment, and dies before the expiration of such term, his administrator is liable for breach of the covenant.[97] A contract whereby a life tenant agrees to convey his estate is one within the statute of frauds.[98] A purchaser from a life tenant who has power to sell for the purpose of reinvestment is not required to see that the investment is made.[99] A reversioner may maintain trespass against a third person for trespass causing permanent injuries to the estate.[1] Such action must be brought within the statutory period.[2]

LIFE INSURANCE; LIGHT AND AIR, see latest topical index.

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.

§ 1. The Statutes; Validity and Application Generally (768). The Statutes do not Run Against the State (770). Limitation Is Governed by the Law of the Forum (770). Admiralty and Equity (771). The Defense of the Statute May be Waived (771).

§ 2. Classes of Actions and the Respective Periods (771).

§ 3. Accrual of Cause of Action and Beginning of Period (775). As Between Stockholder, Corporation, and Creditor (778). Mistake and Fraud (779).

§ 4. Time Tolled and Computation of the Period (779).

§ 5. What Is Commencement of Action (780).

A. In General (780).

B. Amendment of Pleading (781).

C. Nonsuit and Dismissal (782).

§ 6. Postponement, Interruption, and Revival (783).

A. General Rules (783).

B. Trusts (784).

C. Insanity and Death (785).

D. Infancy and Coverture (785).

E. Absence and Nonresidence (786).

F. A New Promise to Pay or Acknowledgment of the Obligation (786).

G. A Partial Payment (787).

§ 7. Operation and Effect of Bar (788).

A. Bar of Debt as Affecting Security (788).

B. Against Whom Available (789).

C. To Whom Available (789).

§ 8. Pleading and Evidence (789).

This title relates to general statutes of limitation and relegates to more specific titles the various special limitations (which are not purely limitation statutes) pertaining to particular actions,[3] and to those proceedings which do not fall within the meaning given to the terms "actions" and "suits."[4] The doctrine of laches is also treated elsewhere.[5]

§ 1. The statutes; validity and application generally.[6]—Reasonable statutes

91. Watkins v. Pfeiffer, 116 Ky. 593, 92 S. W. 562.

92. See 6 C. L. 464.

93. Bulkeley v. Worthington Ecclesiastical Soc., 78 Conn. 526, 63 A. 351.

94. See 6 C. L. 465.

95. A life tenant may not recover damages for the taking of a portion of the premises for a street where it appears that rental value of the property was increased and she was not put to any expense. Himes v. Pittsburg, 213 Pa. 362, 63 A. 126.

96. Bidwell v. Piercy [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 261.

97. Duker's Adm'r v. Kaelin, 28 Ky. L. R. 900, 90 S. W. 959.

98. Must be in writing under Ky. St. 1903, § 458. Miller v. Hart, 29 Ky. L. R. 73, 91 S. W. 698.

99. Whitfield v. Burke, 86 Miss. 435, 38 So. 550.

1. Cherry v. Lake Drummond Canal & Water Co., 140 N. C. 422, 53 S. E. 138.

2. An action for injuries by a canal company by throwing dirt on the premises is barred in three years under Revisal 1905, § 395. Cherry v. Lake Drummond Canal & Water Co., 140 N. C. 422, 53 S. E. 138.

3. See Estates of Decedents, § 6B, 7 C. L. 1422; Bankruptcy, § 14, 7 C. L. 416; Death by Wrongful Act, 7 C. L. 1083.

4. See Appeal and Review, 7 C. L. 128; of limitation are valid,[7] as are changes of the period of limitation, unless completed periods be reopened or existing rights of action cut off without reasonable opportunity to sue.[8] A statute saving "rights" accrued under statutes replaced saves a completed bar.[9] The underlying purpose of the statutes is to prevent the unexpected enforcement of claims concerning which persons interested have been thrown off their guard by want of prosecution,[10] and they should be construed liberally so as to attain the object for which they are enacted.[11] Statutes of limitation must not prescribe an unreasonably short period within which to bring an action,[12] and where the opportunity allowed is reasonably sufficient, there can be no just complaint that a debarred litigant was deprived of his property without due process.[13] The statutes apply to actions, not to defenses.[14] Special statutes are applicable only where specifically made to apply,[15] but in determining their applicability a reasonable interpretation will be given,[16] and they are sometimes applied by analogy.[17] A statute applicable to an action does not apply to a special proceeding,[18] and one by its terms applicable only to cases arising under it applies to no other.[19] They do

New Trial and Arrest of Judgment, 6 C. L. 796.

5. See Equity, 7 C. L. 1323.

6. See 6 C. L. 466.

7. See Constitutional Law, 7 C. L. 731, n. 69.

8. Laws 1896, p. 646, c. 568, amending Code Civ. Proc. § 1913, by permitting an action on a judgment after the lapse of 10 years, is retroactive and applies to a judgment rendered before its enactment. Peace v. Wilson [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 329. Rev. St. 1899, § 4270, providing that the statute shall not run against an action to recover land granted to a public use, etc., is not retroactive, and where the statute had commenced to run prior to its enactment, it does not apply. Hunter v. Pinnell, 193 Mo. 142, 91 S. W. 472. Ariz. Rev. St. 1901, § 2938, does not apply to suits brought between enactment of statute and time when revision of statutes took effect. Herrick v. Boquillas Land & Cattle Co., 200 U. S. 96, 50 Law. Ed. 388. Not construed as retroactive if contrary interpretation is possible. Hathaway v. Merchants' Loan & Trust Co., 218 Ill. 580, 75 N. E. 1060.

9. McKay v. Bradley, 26 App. D. C. 449.

10. This is especially true of short limitations in lien laws. Miller v. Calumet Lumber & Mfg. Co., 121 Ill. App. 56.

11. Warren v. Clemenger, 120 Ill. App. 435.

12. Not unreasonable: Six months held not an unreasonable period as applied to actions assailing a tax deed. People v. Christian, 144 Mich. 247, 13 Det. Leg. N. 222, 107 N. W. 919. Sand. & H. Dig. § 4819, prescribing a 2-year period for the recovery of land sold for taxes, is not unreasonable; actual possession being necessary, and the deed cannot be executed until the expiration of the 2-year redemption period. Ross v. Royal, 77 Ark. 324, 91 S. W. 178. Whether the fact that a statute allowed only 34 days to bring action is so unreasonable as to be void does not apply where fully one-half the time is permitted to elapse before taking proceedings to remove an obstacle to the action. Wescott v. Upham, 127 Wis. 590, 107 N. W. 2.

13. Terry v. Heisen, 115 La. 1070, 40 So. 461.

14. Affirmative relief by way of reformation of a deed set up in an action of ejectment. Williamson v. Brown, 195 Mo. 313, 93 S. W. 791.

15. Code Civ. Proc. § 16, applies to ordinary civil actions only and not to an action to collect local assessments. Mercer Co. v. Omaha [Neb.] 107 N. W. 565. The statute limiting the period for the recovery of land does not apply to an action to abate an obstruction in a street where it is provided by law that no lapse of time can abate a public nuisance which obstructs a street. McLean v. Llewellyn Iron Works, 2 Cal. App. 346, 83 P. 1082, 1085. Gen. St. 1888, § 3896, providing that liens for assessments for public improvements shall be foreclosed as tax liens, does not impose the same limitation applicable to such actions. City of Hartford v. Mechanics' Sav. Bank [Conn.] 63 A. 658. Code, § 3369, providing that the application of a survivor to have his share set off must be made within 10 years, does not apply to an action in equity for partition of a distributive share. Britt v. Gordon [Iowa] 108 N. W. 319.

16. The limitation prescribed by statute in a standard form insurance policy is one "specially prescribed by law" within another statute providing the only limitation except where otherwise specially prescribed. Bellinger v. German Ins. Co., 51 Misc. 463, 113 App. Div. 917, 100 N. Y. S. 424. The action at law for damages for fraud is governed by the statute of limitations and not by the doctrine of laches. Neibuhr v. Gage [Minn.] 108 N. W. 884.

17. By analogy to the statute of limitations relative to the lien of judgments, a petition to enforce execution of an order to sell land of a decedent to pay debts is barred after 20 years, unless good reason is shown for delay. No statute of limitations on this subject. White v. Horn, 224 Ill. 238, 79 N. E. 629.

18. Code Civ. Proc. § 1819, providing the period within which action to recover a legacy must be brought, does not apply to a proceeding in the surrogate court to compel payment of a legacy. In re Cooper, 101 N. Y. S. 283.

19. Comp. Laws 1897, § 9745, relative to the effect of partial payment by one joint not apply to actions for divorce,[20] nor to recover taxes,[21] nor to compel the performance of a continuing public duty,[22] nor to recover property given away in contravention of prohibitory law.[23]

The statutes do not run against the state[24] unless expressly so provided,[25] and all doubts as to whether it does so run are to be resolved in favor of the state.[26] This rule extends to minor municipalities created as local governmental agencies in respect to governmental affairs affecting the general public.[27] But as to matters involving private rights, they are subject to the statutes to the same extent as private individuals.[28] Where a suit is brought in the name of the state but the state has no real interest, the defense may be pleaded,[29] but if it is brought for the sole benefit of the state, the defense is not available though not brought in the name of the state.[30]

Limitation is governed by the law of the forum[31] except where otherwise provided by statute.[32] Such provisions are literally construed.[33]

debtor. Brown v. Hayes [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 875, 109 N. W. 845.

20. Cullison v. Cullison [Kan.] 85 P. 289.

21. A tax is not a debt in the sense that a statute barring actions on contract will apply to it. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Wright, 124 Ga. 596, 53 S. E. 251.

22. Does not run against a right to compel a public officer to perform a prescriptive and continuing duty. Jones v. Stokes County Com'rs [N. C.] 55 S. E. 427. Duty of county commissioners to apportion railroad taxes. Id.

23. The statute does not apply to an action by one to recover property which he has given away and not retained sufficient to support himself because the gift is void as contravening prohibitory law. Ackerman v. Larner, 116 La. 101, 40 So. 581.

24. See 6 C. L. 467. Statutes of limitation do not run against the state in respect to public rights unless the state is expressly included within the terms of the statute. Brown v. Trustees of Schools, 224 Ill. 184, 79 N. E. 579. Does not run against the state as to collection of taxes during the time the comptroller general was enjoined by the Federal court from issuing execution for the taxes. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Wright, 124 Ga. 596, 53 S. E. 251. Rev. St. 1899, § 4270, providing that limitations do not apply as to land granted to public, etc., uses, applies to an action by the state to abate a structure in the street, and § 4299, providing that limitations do run against the state, does not. State v. Vandalia, 119 Mo. App. 406, 94 S. W. 1009. Not as to debts of a personal nature or as to real estate. Eastern State Hospital v. Graves' Committee, 105 Va. 151, 52 S. E. 837.

25. State v. Vandalia, 119 Mo. App. 406, 94 S. W. 1009. The statute limiting actions to enforce a liability created by statute does not apply to suits to enforce tax liens. Whitney v. Morton County Com'rs [Kan.] 85 P. 530. Rev. St. 1899, § 4299, providing that limitations shall run against the state, does not apply to an action to abate a public nuisance. State v. Vandalia, 119 Mo. App. 406, 94 S. W. 1009.

Applicable to the state: Under Pol. Code, §§ 890, 891, the lien of the state for taxes is barred by failure to have proper entries made on the tax execution and recorded and by failure to issue tax execution within seven years. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Wright, 124 Ga. 596, 53 S. E. 251. Pol. Code 1895, §§ 890, 891, interpose a bar to the collection of taxes only after they have been placed in execution and not before. Id.

26. State v. Vandalia, 119 Mo. App. 406, 94 S. W. 1009. Civ. Code 1895, § 3777, providing a bar against the state in certain cases when a citizen would be barred, is in derogation of the common-law right of the state to collect taxes and is to be strictly construed. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Wright, 124 Ga. 596, 53 S. E. 251.

27. Counties, cities, towns, and minor municipalities. Brown v. Trustees of Schools, 224 Ill. 184, 79 N. E. 579. Under a constitutional provision that counties hold school lands and proceeds of a sale thereof in trust, the statute does not run against an action by a county to recover the purchase price of school lands, though the title of school lands is expressly exempted from limitations. Delta County v. Blackburn [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 908, 93 S. W. 419.

28. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 122, §§ 60, 61, relative to the sale by school trustees of school house sites which have become unnecessary or inadequate, the people of the state in general have no interest in the site or proceeds of a sale of it, and the statute may be pleaded in ejectment by the trustees to recover possession. Brown v. Trustees of Schools, 224 Ill. 184, 79 N. E. 579.

29. Eastern State Hospital v. Graves' Committee, 105 Va. 151, 52 S. E. 837.

30. An action by a hospital created for purely governmental purposes, and where the expense of caring for paupers is borne by the state, to collect for caring for an insane person is not barred. Eastern State Hospital v. Graves' Committee, 105 Va. 151, 52 S. E. 837.

31. See 6 C. L. 467. The limitation of the forum governs. Thomas v. Clarkson, 125 Ga. 72, 54 S. E. 77. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4818, providing that where a cause of action has arisen in another state between nonresidents, it is governed by the laws of such state, does not apply to an action on a consent judgment in this state for and against nonresidents, as such cause of action accrued here. Omaha Nat. Bank v. Lindsay, 41 Wash. 531, 84 P. 11. The fact that an action on a note was barred under the laws of Iowa before judgment thereon

Admiralty and equity[34] are not bound by statutes of limitation in suits of purely equitable cognizance,[35] but where jurisdiction in equity is concurrent with that at law, the suit if barred at law is barred in equity.[36]

The defense of the statute may be waived[37] by failure to plead it as a defense.[38] The defense is not waived by failing to set it up where the nature of the demand is not known.[39]

§ 2. Classes of actions and the respective periods.[40]—The period within which an action must be brought is expressly prescribed. The only difficulty rests in determining which statute is applicable to a particular case.[41] The form and not the cause of action determines the statute applicable.[42] Different periods are prescribed for actions for the recovery of land[43] or for injuries thereto;[44] actions on contracts,[45]

was confessed in Delaware where the contract was made does not entitle the judgment debtor to set up limitations against an action on the judgment. Cuykendall v. Doe, 129 Iowa, 453, 105 N. W. 698.

32. The laws of Kansas apply exclusively in the state except when the requirements of the statute permitting the law of another state to be applied have been complied with. Croan v. Baden [Kan.] 85 P. 532. An action to recover upon a policy of fire insurance, though transitory when brought in this state upon a cause of action arising in another state, is by Rev. St. 1905, § 4990, governed by the statute of that state. Hunter v. Niagara Fire Ins. Co., 73 Ohio St. 110, 76 N. E. 563. Code Civ. Proc. § 390, providing that when a cause of action accrues against a nonresident "the limitation of his residence" controls, means the limitation in force when the cause accrued. Utah Nat. Bank v. Jones, 109 App. Div. 526, 96 N. Y. S. 338. In an action on a note made in a foreign state it is presumed that the maker was a resident of such state when the note was given and when it matured. Id.

33. Under a statute providing that if a cause of action between nonresidents arising in another state is barred by the laws of the state where made it is barred here, a cause of action made in one state which is barred by the laws of another where a party resides is not barred by this statute. Doughty v. Funk, 15 Okl. 643, 84 P. 484.

34. See 6 C. L. 468.

35. In a case of purely equitable cognizance courts of equity are not governed by the statutes. Ferrell v. Lord [Wash.] 86 P. 1060. Equity will not interpose the bar of the statute to prevent recovery from officers and directors of a corporation of dividends paid them out of the capital stock, in fraud of the corporation and its creditors. Mills v. Hendershot [N. J. Eq.] 62 A. 542. The only remedy of a mortgagor against a mortgagee in possession is a suit in equity and is governed by the ten-year statute, Rev. Codes 1905, § 6793, and not by the twenty-year statute, §§ 6774, 6775. Nash v. Northwest Land Co. [N. D.] 108 N. W. 792.

36. Bill to cancel a mortgage for fraud and recover damages for false representations as to the value of the mortgaged property cannot be maintained as to the damages after the expiration of the period within which an action could be maintained at law. Smith v. Krueger [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 850. If barred at law it will generally be held barred in equity. Hesley v. Shaw, 120 Ill. App. 92. Where one deposited money with another who agreed to pay his debts and return the balance, and the depositor made no demand for return for twenty years, the right to recover was not within the exclusive jurisdiction of equity and was subject to limitations. Francis v. Gisborn [Utah] 83 P. 571. Where a legatee's notes to a testator are barred, the amount thereof cannot be set off from his distributive share. Hesley v. Shaw, 120 Ill. App. 92.

37. See 6 C. L. 468. The defense is a personal privilege and may be waived by a municipality where a fund for the payment of the claim has been provided. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002. The defense is waived where notes evidencing the obligation are introduced in evidence without objection and the defense not asserted until the close of the trial. Savage v. Madelia Farmers' Warehouse Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 296.

38. Croan v. Baden [Kan.] 85 P. 532; Geisenberger v. Cotton, 116 La. 651, 40 So. 929. In an action against a public officer to enforce a claim against a municipality. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002.

39. Widner v. Wilcox [Iowa] 108 N. W. 238. The defense is not waived by appearing and pleading where the summons does not give notice of the particular claim asserted. Colling v. McGregor, 144 Mich. 651, 13 Det. Leg. N. 310, 108 N. W. 87.

40. See 6 C. L. 468.

41. See, also, Contracts, 7 C. L. 761; Mortgages, 6 C. L. 681; Trespass, 6 C. L. 1721, and like topics.

42. Stringer v. Stephens' Estate [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 732, 109 N. W. 269.

43. Mills' Ann. St. §§ 2923, 2924, prescribing a five year period for the recovery of land is repealed by Laws 1893, p. 327, c. 118, prescribing a seven year period. Ballard v. Golob, 34 Colo. 417, 83 P. 376. Where one had held the legal title to land which had never been occupied by another, he was not barred from maintaining an action to quiet title after thirty years. Haarstick v. Gabriel [Mo.] 98 S. W. 760. Rev. St. 1899, § 650, authorizing suits to quiet title, does not prescribe a limitation period, and is governed by the statute relative to real actions and not that relating to personal actions. Id. Trespass to try title to recover land on payment of a vendor's lien is not equivalent to a suit for specific performance and is not barred in four years. Mason v. Bender [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 715. Rev. St. 1899, § oral[46] or written,[47] express[48] or implied;[49] on specialties;[50] on accounts[51] and for ac-

4262, prescribing the period for the recovery of lands, applies to an action to recover a homestead. Joplin Brew. Co. v. Payne, 197 Mo. 422, 94 S. W. 896. Also to recover an assignment of dower. Id. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4263, prescribing a ten year period for the recovery of land, an action by the grantor on breach of condition subsequent is barred in ten years. Hoke v. Central Tp. Farmers' Club, 194 Mo. 576, 91 S. W. 394. Ejectment by the owner to recover land sold for delinquent taxes is barred in five years from confirmation of the sale. Gavin v. Ashworth, 77 Ark. 242, 91 S. W. 303. Sand. & H. Dig. § 4819, prescribing a two year period for action to recover land sold for taxes, applies where the tax sale is absolutely void for jurisdictional defects. Ross v. Royal, 77 Ark. 324, 91 S. W. 178. The prescription of ten years applies to a petitory action. Fellman v. Succession of Guitterez, 117 La. 736, 42 So. 252. Act No. 96, p. 142, of 1896, applies only where property is taken in pursuance of a judgment of expropriation. Scoveli v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 117 La. 459, 41 So. 723. Rev. St. 1899, § 4262, prescribing a ten year period to recover real estate, applies to an action to recover mineral rights beneath the surface and a right of ingress and egress to conduct mining operations. Hudson v. Cahoon, 193 Mo. 547, 91 S. W. 72. Code Civ. Proc. § 318, barring an action to recover real property in five years, applies to one seeking to recover land she had delivered upon wrong advice and believing she was not entitled to hold it as a homestead. Daniels v. Dean, 2 Cal. App. 421, 84 P. 332. Under Rev. St. 1887, §§ 4036, 4037, an action to recover land is barred in ten years. Fountain v. Lewiston Nat. Bank, 11 Idaho, 451, 83 P. 505. 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4797, barring an action to recover land after ten years, bars an action for partition against one who has been in adverse possession for such period. Hyde v. Britton, 41 Wash. 277, 83 P. 307. Code, § 3447, limiting action for the recovery of real property to ten years, applies to an action for partition by a widow against a stranger claiming under her husband, where he has been in possession for the statutory period since the death of the husband. Britt v. Gordon [Iowa] 108 N. W. 319. There is a marked differences between an encroachment upon a part of a street and the entire occupation of the street. Where the exclusion is entire for twenty-one years, the fact that the barrier was frail and unsubstantial does not prevent the possessor from successfully asserting title, and the public loses its rights both in and to the street (Wright v. Oberlin, 3 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 242, and Morehouse v. Burgot 22 Ohio C. C. 174, questioned; Mott v. Toledo, 17 Ohio C. C. 472, approved). Seese v. Maumee, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 497. Under Rev. Laws, c. 146, § 2, providing "no claim by entry or by action to land fraudulently conveyed by the deceased shall be made unless within five years after the death of the grantor," bars a suit brought after the expiration of such period, though a premature action for the same cause has been dismissed, ch. 202, § 21, authorizing a new action on the abatement of a former one, does not apply. Tyndale v. Stanwood, 190 Mass. 513, 77 N. E. 481. The three, five, and ten years' statutes of Texas apply only to suits to recover land and not to a suit to foreclose a trust deed. Williams v. Armistead [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 381, 90 S. W. 925. The ten year statute does not apply to an action to enforce a vendor's lien. Reynolds v. Lawrence [Ala.] 40 So. 576.

44. Under Revisal 1905, § 395, the three year statute applies to an action against a canal company for injuries to a reversionary interest by throwing dirt on the land. Cherry v. Lake Drummond Canal & Water Co., 140 N. C. 422, 53 S. E. 138.

45. An action against a carrier for damage by fire to goods in transit is on contract and not barred in one year. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. v. Spann [Ala.] 40 So. 33. Where in assumpsit an alias writ is returned "not found," a pluries writ issued more than six years later is barred for want of prosecution. Ross v. Clark, 213 Pa. 617, 63 A. 364. The statute applicable to actions on contract and not the one applicable to tort actions applies to an action for compensation by one who fixed up an athletic field under a contract that he was to be paid from revenues from the ground, where the owner refused to permit use of the grounds for the purposes of revenue. Dockstader v. Young Men's Christian Ass'n [Iowa] 109 N. W. 906.

46. An action on the implied warranty of title by the seller of chattels is not on the written instrument evidencing the sale but upon an obligation not founded on a writing. Pincus v. Muntzer [Mont.] 87 P. 612. An offer of reward by publication does not become a contract in writing within Comp. Laws 1897, § 2915, by performance upon discovery. Cunningham v. Fiske [N. M.] 83 P. 789. An action for breach of an alleged warranty of the merchantableness of certain fruit trees accrued on the purchase of the trees, and is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 339, subd. 1. Brackett v. Martens [Cal. App.] 87 P. 410. An action by a depositor against a bank to recover damages for unwarranted refusal to honor a check is barred in two years under Code Civ. Proc. § 339, as an action upon an obligation not founded on a written instrument. Smith's Cash Store v. First Nat. Bank [Cal.] 84 P. 663.

47. An action in case to recover damages for breach of written contract is barred in five years. Bates v. Bates Mach. Co., 120 Ill. App. 563. An action to recover an overdraft from a depositor is based on a written instrument, the honored check. Du Brutz v. Bank of Visalia [Cal. App.] 87 P. 467. The right of action by a covenantee against the successor in title of the covenantor, upon a covenant running with the land, contained in a deed not signed by the covenantor is barred in six years. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. McKinney, 124 Ga. 929, 53 S. E. 701. Action to have a mortgage executed by a guardian adjudged a valid lien on his ward's property held governed by the three year statute prescribing the period for actions founded on written instruments, and not by the statute relative to mistake. Banks v. Stockton [Cal.] 87 P. 83. Code Civ. Proc. § 337, prescribing a three year period for actions on written instruments, applies to an action to have adjudged as a valid lien on a ward's property a mortgage executed by a guardian. Id. An action against a purchaser from the landlord for failure to repair according to the terms of a written lease is on a contract in writing and within the four year statute. Houston Saengerbund v. Dunn [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 429, 92 S. W. 429. The ten year statute of Illinois bars an action on a promissory note, though during such period the maker had lived in several jurisdictions but in none long enough to bar an action. Warren v. Clemenger, 120 Ill. App. 435. Where parties contracted to build a levee which was to be a mutual benefit to their lands and one built his portion and also the other's portion on his refusal to do so, held that an action to recover the cost of such portion was on the written contract and governed by the four year statute. Fabian v. Lammers [Cal. App.] 84 P. 432. Code Civ. Proc. § 337, barring an action on a written contract in four years, applies to an action against the sureties of a deceased executor. Hewlett v. Beede, 2 Cal. App. 561, 83 P. 1086. An action for contribution between sureties on a note is barred in six years under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4798. Caldwell v. Hurley, 41 Wash. 296, 83 P. 318. The holder of a draft who does not present it to the drawee nor take steps against the drawer is barred after five years. Wrigley v. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank [Neb.] 108 N. W. 132. A cause of action on a contract consisting of written propositions by one party accepted by the other is on a written contract and the five year statute does not apply. Bauer v. Hindley, 222 Ill. 319, 78 N. E. 626.

counting;[52] suits to enforce a statutory liability;[53] to enforce mechanic's liens;[54]

48. A provision in a conveyance imposing on the grantee the payment of the grantor's debts creates an express assumpsit and as between grantor and grantee is barred in five years. Collings v. Collings' Adm'r, 29 Ky. L. R. 51, 92 S. W. 577.

49. A claim arising on implied contract is barred in six years. In re Primmer's Estate, 49 Misc. 413, 99 N. Y. S. 830. When a plaintiff in his pleading waives a tort committed by the defendant, which consisted of the conversion of money that belonged to the plaintiff, and he sues upon an implied contract, his action is barred in six years from the time the defendant received the money, and not in four years from that time. Kirchner v. Smith, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 22. When one devised property to his son on condition that he pay certain annuities secured by a lien, an action to recover annuities in arrears without regard to the lien is on an implied contract. Stringer v. Stephens' Estate [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 732, 109 N. W. 269. Section 294, subd. 2, Burns' Ann. St. 1901, limiting suits on bonds of public officers for breach of official duty to five years, does not apply to an action against a county auditor to recover from him personally sums collected by him and wrongfully withheld. Zuelly v. Casper [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 646. An action on the implied obligation of a landlord to repair a portion of the building not under the control of the tenant is barred in two years. Houston Saengerbund v. Dunn [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 699, 92 S. W. 429. The five year statute applies to a cause of action arising on payment of the principal's debt by a guarantor. Thompson & Thompson v. Brown [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 242.

50. An action to foreclose a trust deed is not barred for twenty years. Sprague v. Lovett [S. D.] 106 N. W. 134. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 3968, limiting the period within which an action on a guardian's bond may be brought to four years after he is discharged, a guardian is discharged when his ward attains majority, though the same person is also guardian of other minors under the same order of appointment, and performance of his duties to them is secured by the same bond. Wescott v. Upham, 127 Wis. 590, 107 N. W. 2. This statute applies to a bond given in a special real estate sale proceeding under Rev. St. 1898, c. 171. Id. Code Pub. Gen. Laws 1904, art. 57, § 3, providing the limitation period within which a bill, testamentary, administration or other bond, or specialty, etc., may be presented against the estate of a decedent, does not apply to a suit by a widow to enforce against her husband's estate a claim for money advanced him during his lifetime. Cross v. Iler, 103 Md. 592, 64 A. 33.

51. Evidence held to show that an account between an employer and an employe to whom he was indebted was a mutual, open, and current account and not barred until two years after the last item was entered. Copriviza v. Rilovich [Cal. App.] 87 P. 398. Actions on accounts stated accrued at the date rendered and are not affected by Smith's Laws, p. 76, relative to accounts concerning trade of merchandise between merchants, their factors or servants. Morgan v. Lehigh Valley Coal Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 633. Where an agreed indebtedness was in fact only a part of a running account and the agreement was only to ascertain a part of the indebtedness, the last item of the account having been rendered within five years, the amount due at the time of the agreement was not barred. Hammer v. Crawford [Mo. App.] 93 S. W. 348. A mutual account within Code Civ. Proc. § 344, implies one in which there is reciprocity of dealing, whereon each party has a right of action against the other. Flynn v. Seale, 2 Cal. App. 665, 84 P. 263. When a bank credited an over draft to a life policy which it held as security, the two year statute applying to mutual accounts is not available to one who seeks to recover the amount of the policy from the bank. Du Brutz v. Bank of Visalia [Cal. App.] 87 P. 467. Evidence insufficient to show a mutual account so as to make the statute relative to actions on such accounts applicable. Brock v. Wildey, 125 Ga. 82, 54 S. E. 195.

52. Payments claimed to have been made by a partner two years before an action for accounting are barred. Flynn v. Seale, 2 Cal. App. 665, 84 P. 263.

53. N. Y. Code Civ. Proc. § 394, prescribing a three year period for suits against corporation stockholders to enforce a statutory liability, applies to an action brought in that state against a stockholder of a foreign corporation. Ramsden v. Gately, 142 to foreclose mortgages;[55] attacking a mortgage foreclosure sale;[56] on a tax lien;[57] to annul judicial sales[58] or recover property sold;[59] special proceedings;[60] on judgments;[61] to enforce a constructive trust;[62] to recover a penalty;[63] to recover personal property;[64] actions against public officers for neglect of duty;[65] actions based

F. 912. An action for the recovery of money lost in the purchase of debentures is barred by the statute of limitations if not brought within one year from the time the cause accrued. Harrington v. Halliday, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 281. A suit for damages against a municipal corporation for change of grade is subject to the four year statute. Civ. Code 1895 § 3898. City of East Rome v. Lloyd, 124 Ga. 852, 53 S. E. 103. Evidence held to show that the grade was changed within four years. Id. In a suit against stockholders to enforce individual liability for debts of a bank imposed by charter, the twenty year period applies, it being a suit under a statute within the meaning of Civ. Code 1895, § 3766. Wheatley v. Glover, 125 Ga. 710, 54 S. E. 626. Actions to recover usury are barred in one year. Ky. St. 1903, § 2517. Norman v. Warsaw Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 29 Ky. L. R. 50, 91 S. W. 695. The right to have a certificate of acknowledgment corrected is barred in four years. Kopke v. Votaw [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 316, 95 S. W. 15. Action under Act July 2, 1890, § 7, for threefold damages for injury to property or business by an unlawful combination, is an action not expressly provided for, and not an action for statute penalties or one for penalties or forfeitures, or one to recover for injuries to real or personal property. Chattanooga Foundry & Pipe Works v. Atlanta, 27 S. Ct. 65.

54. Under Laws 1895, p. 225, a suit to enforce a mechanic's lien must be brought within four months. Eisendrath Co. v. Gebhardt, 222 Ill. 113, 78 N. E. 22.

55. Rev. St. 1899, § 4277, cuts down the period, within which a suit to foreclose a mortgage securing a barred obligation may be brought, to two years. Martin v. Teasdale [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 133.

56. Rev. St. 1898, § 3543, expressly provides that no mortgage sale may be attacked for defect in notice of publication or proceedings unless action be commenced within five years from the date of sale. Coe v. Rockman, 126 Wis. 515, 106 N. W. 290.

57. Kansas City charter, art. 9, § 23, providing that a lien for taxes shall continue only one year after maturity of the last installment, etc., does not apply to a suit by the holder of a tax bill against the owner to enforce the lien. Ross v. Gates, 117 Mo. App. 237, 93 S. W. 856.

58. The three year prescription prescribed by Constitution of 1898, art. 233, against actions to annul tax sales, applies to a case where the property in question was assessed to one who was without color of title and was sold without notice to the owner. Terry v. Heisen, 115 La. 1070, 40 So. 461.

59. A statute providing that an action to recover property sold by order of a court of chancery, except within two years after possession taken by the purchaser, does not apply to a sale under order of a court which had no jurisdiction. Moores v. Flurry, 87 Miss. 707, 40 So. 226.

60. A special proceeding in the surrogate court to compel payment of a legacy is barred in twenty years. In re Cooper, 101 N. Y. S. 283. A writ of mandamus against the state to compel the refunding of taxes paid as a condition on which the relator might purchase a state bid for delinquent taxes is barred in six years. McRae v. Auditor General [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 895, 109 N. W. 1122.

61. Under Code 1904, § 3577, providing that an action may be brought on a judgment within ten years from execution issued, an execution duly attested and marked "to lie" was issued though never delivered to an officer. Davis v. Roller [Va.] 55 S. E. 4. An action under Code Civ. Proc. § 1937, providing for an action for the balance against other joint debtors after an action against one, is not on a judgment and is not barred in ten years. Hofferberth v. Nash, 50 Misc. 328, 98 N. Y. S. 684. Action on a decree against the estate of a decedent held not barred though limitations had run against an assertion of a claim against the estate. Sipe v. Taylor [Va.] 55 S. E. 542. An order requiring one to pay a sum stated for the support of a parent is a judgment and the six years' statute does not apply. Henry's Estate, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 541.

62. An action against a stockholder to recover dividends received by him in good faith without knowledge that they had been paid out of the capital is barred in six years. Mills v. Hendershot [N. J. Eq.] 62 A. 542.

63. Under Rev. St. § 3184, providing for the recovery of delinquent revenue taxes with penalty and interest, such interest is not a penalty and an action to recover it is not governed by Rev. St. § 1047, limiting actions to recover a penalty to five years. United States v. Guest [C. C. A.] 143 F. 456. A proceeding under a statute authorizing revocation of a physician's license for fraud in its procurement is not to enforce a penalty or forfeiture, and the statutes applicable to such actions do not apply. State v. Schaeffer [Wis.] 109 N. W. 522.

64. Action to recover personal property held barred. Hodges v. Wheeler, 126 Ga. 848, 56 S. E. 76. Replevin to recover a horse is barred in eleven years. Leavitt v. Shook, 47 Or. 239, 83 P. 391. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 338, prescribing a three year period for the recovery of chattels after the discovery of the facts by the aggrieved party, an action against one who administered on the estate of a person supposed to be dead, but is not, is barred in three years. Fay v. Costa, 2 Cal. App. 241, 83 P. 275.

65. A cause of action because of failure of the clerk to enter and index a judgment transcript is governed by the limitation of actions against officers for neglect, and not the statute applicable to relief on the ground of mistake. Lougee v. Reed [Iowa] 110 N. W. 165.

on tort,[66] as for damages for nuisance,[67] trespass,[68] to recover for personal injuries,[69] or fraud,[70] and an omnibus clause usually covers all actions not otherwise expressly provided for.[71]

§ 3. Accrual of cause of action and beginning of period.[72]—The statute commences to run from the accrual of a cause of action and not before.[73] A cause of action accrues when there exists a demand capable of present enforcement,[74] a suable

66. An action by one partner against another and a surety on a bond given by such other partner on having the partnership property sequestered is not an action ex delicto and the one year statute does not apply. St. Geme v. Boimare, 117 La. 232, 41 So. 557.

67. For a continuing nuisance, damages may be recovered for five years preceding the commencement of the action. Jones v. Stover [Iowa] 108 N. W. 112. For permanent nuisances two years. Brown v. Texas Cent. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 94 S. W. 134. Where a city negligently permitted a drainpipe to fill up, causing abutting property to overflow, limitations did not run from the date the drainpipe was obstructed, but damages accruing within five years from action commenced might be recovered. Town of Central Covington v. Beiser, 29 Ky. L. R. 261, 92 S. W. 973.

68. A right of action for damages caused by constructing a switch in front of premises is barred in six years. Romano v. Yazoo, etc., R. Co., 87 Miss. 721, 40 So. 150. For damages from flooding, caused by constructing an embankment across the channel of a stream, is a continuing tort and damages accruing within six years may be recovered. Lawton v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 128. An action for trespass is not barred for four years. Burns v. Herkan, 126 Ga. 161, 54 S. E. 946. The three and not the two year statute applies to an action under Laws 1895, p. 352, c. 163, § 7, to recover treble damages for willful trespass to pine timber of the state. State v. Bonness [Minn.] 109 N. W. 703.

69. Ky. St. 1903, § 2516, barring action for personal injuries in one year, bars an action by the personal representative of a decedent where more than a year elapsed between the date of death from the injury and the qualification of his administrator. Wilson's Adm'r v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 148, 92 S. W. 572.

70. Rev. St. 1898, § 4222, expressly provides that an action based on fraud, cognizable only in equity, is barred in six years after discovery of the fraud. Figge v. Bergenthal [Wis.] 109 N. W. 581. In an action based on fraud the fact that different causes of action are asserted does not affect the applicability of Rev. St. 1898, § 4222. Id. Contention in an action based on fraud that it was on an account held untenable. Id. A cause not dependent on proof of fraud but where it is involved only incidentally is not within 2 Mills' Ann. St. § 2911, prescribing a three year period. Fraudulent conveyances involved. Equitable Securities Co. v. Johnson [Colo.] 85 P. 840.

71. Mills' Ann. St. § 2912, prescribing a five year period for all actions not otherwise provided for, applies to an action to have sales of excess water rights canceled. Patterson v. Ft. Lyon Canal Co. [Colo.] 84 P. 807. Code, § 152, omnibus clause applies to a claim to have an entryman under a later grant declared a trustee. McAden v. Palmer, 140 N. C. 258, 52 S. E. 1034; Frasier v. Gibson, 140 N. C. 272, 52 S. E. 1035.

72. See 6 C. L. 471.

73. A devisee who is not made a party to a proceeding which directs the sale of the estate to pay debts is not barred from maintaining ejectment against the purchaser until limitations have run. Card v. Finch, 142 N. C. 140, 54 S. E. 1009.

74. Limitations against assessment by receiver of mutual benefit company does not begin to run from the decree declaring insolvency but only from that authorizing the assessment. Schofield v. Turner, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 177. Right of action on deficiency judgment entered after a foreclosure, under Comp. Laws 1888, § 3460, accrues where the fact of deficiency is ascertained and not at the date of the foreclosure. Howe v. Sears [Utah] 84 P. 1107. Where a school teacher quit her employment at which she was getting a weekly stipend to go to work for a relative under an implied contract that she would be paid double the amount she was there receiving, a cause of action accrued at the end of each week. Greenwood v. Judson, 109 App. Div. 398, 96 N. Y. S. 147. Sand. & H. Dig. § 4819, prescribing a two-year period for actions to recover land sold for taxes, commences to run not from date of sale but from the date possession is taken under the deed. Ross v. Royal, 77 Ark. 324, 91 S. W. 178. A cause of action by a policeman for his salary for the current month does not accrue until the first day of the following month when it becomes due. City of Paris v. Cabiness [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 549, 98 S. W. 925. Where a railroad company constructed an embankment along the side of a ditch and dirt therefrom fell into the ditch and caused it to overflow, a cause of action for injuries caused by such overflow accrues at the time the dirt fell into the ditch and not when the embankment was constructed. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. McCutchen [Ark.] 96 S. W. 1054.

On an obligation to pay when able, a cause does not accrue until the promisor is able to pay, notwithstanding a subsequent writing acknowledging the justness of the claim. Ruzeoski v. Wilrodt [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 783, 94 S. W. 142. Where a purchaser had been in adverse possession of land for 50 years and the grantor or his sole heir had made no effort to recover the land or the purchase price, an action by the heir was barred by the fifteen and thirty-year statutes. Doty v. Jameson, 29 Ky. L. R. 507, 93 S. W. 638. A cause of action against a carrier for conversion of goods delivered to it for carriage, but which were never delivered to the consignee, accrues at the time of delivery to the carrier. Hooks v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 995, 97 S. W. 516. Where a company agreed to pay a certain sum of money in case it abandoned its intention to build a railroad, evidence held to show that such intention was abandoned more than the statutory period prior to commencement of the action. Bateman v. Ward [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 933, 93 S. W. 508. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 3290, providing that a judgment is barred in 10 years, where a judgment debtor within 10 years conveyed to one who went into possession, limitations commenced to run as against the judgment lienor from the date of sale and possession given. White v. Pingenot [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 90 S. W. 672.

party against whom it may be enforced,[75] and a party who has a present right to

The action to a wife and children to recover from a concubine or bastard child property conveyed by the husband and father, authorized by Civ. Code 1902, § 2368, accrues when the wrong is discovered. Williams v. Halford, 73 S. C. 119, 53 S. E. 88. Where one fraudulently represented the value of certain shares of stock put up to secure the discount of notes under an agreement that if the notes were not paid when due the stock might be sold, a cause of action for the fraud accrued at the time of discount of the notes and acceptance of the stock as security. First Nat. Bank v. Steel [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 762, 109 N. W. 423. No cause of action for unlawful detainer accrues to a successful contestant in a land case until the homestead entry is canceled. Bilyeu v. Pilcher, 16 Okl. 228, 83 P. 546. Where a deed and bond for reconveyance were made and the bond delivered and a new one given on the grantor's borrowing more money, an action to have the deed declared a mortgage accrued when the last loan was made. Fox v. Bernard [Nev.] 85 P. 351. A mortgagee is charged with notice of a deed of the premises by the mortgagor which is duly recorded five years before the action to foreclose is commenced. California Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Muller [Cal. App.] 84 P. 453. An executor's right of action to recover from the sureties of a coexecutor assets of the estate lost by such coexecutor immediately on the death of the coexecutor. Hewlett v. Beede, 2 Cal. App. 561, 83 P. 1086.

For a reward, an allegation that the plaintiffs "discovered" the criminal for whom the reward sought to be recovered was offered, on a certain date fixes the date on which their cause of action accrued. Cunningham v. Fiske [N. M.] 83 P. 789.

Where one promised to make compensation by will, an action to recover it did not accrue until his death. Chambers v. Boyd, 101 N. Y. S. 486. Against a claim for services rendered under a promise to pay by will upon the death of the promisor. Estate of Switzer v. Gertenbach, 122 Ill. App. 26. Where one promises to compensate another by will, limitations do not run until the death of the debtor. Goodloe v. Goodloe [Tenn.] 92 S. W. 767. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1937, providing that after recovery of judgment against one joint debtor an action may be maintained against the other for the balance, such cause does not accrue until the first is terminated. Hofferberth v. Nash, 50 Misc. 328, 98 N. Y. S. 684. Where one is in possession and claiming title under a void foreclosure with the consent of the mortgagor, his possession is adverse and starts limitations against remedies of the mortgagor. Nash v. Northwest Land Co. [N. D.] 108 N. W. 792. The limitation prescribed in an insurance policy runs from the date of refusal to pay after proof of loss and not from the date the insurer gave notice before proof of loss that he would not pay. Munn v. Masonic Life Ass'n, 101 N. Y. S. 91. Comp. Laws, § 8727, limiting actions on a guardian's bond to four years from his discharge, bars an action four years after the guardian's death. Murphy v. Cady [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 412, 108 N. W. 493. Where a broker sold property giving the purchaser the right to lease it for a period with the option to purchase, his right of action for commissions did not accrue until the option was exercised. Coates v. Locust Point Co., 102 Md. 291, 62 A. 625. Evidence held to show that a cause of action for services rendered was barred. Ryan v. Canton Nat. Bank, 103 Md. 428, 63 A. 1062. Against a claim for services rendered, where there is no contract, immediately upon the performance of the services. Estate of Switzer v. Gertenbach, 122 Ill. App. 26. The removal of timber from mortgaged premises by which security is impaired starts limitations as to the mortgagee's right of action therefor, though his mortgage has not matured. This is so as to a second mortgagee. Jenks v. Hart Cedar & Lumber Co., 143 Mich., 449, 13 Det. Leg. N. 44, 106 N. W. 1119. Begins to run against the right of action in a landlord for forcible entry and detainer against a tenant at sufferance on the termination of the tenancy. Clark v. Tukey Land Co. [Neb.] 106 N. W. 328. The bar of the statute against a municipality as to the collection of a street assessment, levied prior to the Act of April 25, 1904, does not begin to run on the several instalments until each of said instalments becomes due and payable. Bell v. Norwood, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 435.

On note given for lost note: Where one executed a note for a debt evidenced by a note which he claimed he had paid and lost, and the second note was paid under the agreement that if the lost note marked paid was found the amount of the second note should be returned, an action for such return did not accrue until such note was found. Grouse v. Moody, 130 Iowa, 320, 106 N. W. 757.

75. Where the charter of a bank provides that the stockholders shall be individually liable "at the time of suits" for the payment of debts of the bank, a cause of action does not accrue against them until after suit by a creditor. Wheatley v. Glover, 125 Ga. 710, 54 S. E. 626. If one having a claim against the state cannot prosecute the same without leave of the legislature, limitations do not commence to run until such leave is given. Lancaster County v. State [Neb.] 107 N. W. 388. The statute of limitations runs in favor of a bailee only after conversion. Austin v. Van Loon [Colo.] 85 P. 183. An action in ejectment by the holder of a tax deed out of possession is not barred by the two-year statute while the land is vacant or while in the possession of tenants or agents of a nonresident owner. Gibson v. Hinchman, 72 Kan. 382, 83 P. 981. Rev. St. 1906, §§ 4976, 4981, does not commence to run against a debt based upon a contract not in enforce it.[76] If a demand is necessary to the creation of a cause of action, it does not accrue until demand is made[77] or should be made.[78] Where a liability accrues only upon the performance of a condition, the statute does not commence to run until such condition is performed[79] or performance is refused.[80] A permissive condition for accelerated maturity does not necessarily accelerate the accrual of a cause of action.[81] A cause of action does not accrue on a continuing contract until breach thereof.[82] Where a permanent nuisance is created, a cause of action for the entire damages accrues at once.[83] Where a stream is obstructed, causing intermittent overflows, a cause of action ac-writing which becomes due by reason of the decease of the debtor until the appointment of an administrator or executor of such debtor and notice thereof. Hollies v. Riddle, 74 Ohio St. 173, 78 N. E. 219.

An action for wrongful death will not lie until the appointment of the administrator has been completed, and where completion of the appointment is delayed by failure of the administrator to give bond for more than two years, the right of action is abated by the statute, which runs against the beneficiaries without interruption from the date of the decedent's death. Archdeacon v. Cincinnati Gas & Elec. Co., 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 606.

76. Where a husband abandoned his wife and the homestead was sold under execution proceedings against him, from which the wife redeemed, the statute did not run in her favor against him until she obtained a divorce. Kenady v. Gilkey [Ark.] 98 S. W. 969. Not against a right to recover dower until it has been allotted. Bartee v. Edmunds, 29 Ky. L. R. 872, 96 S. W. 535.

77. The date of delivery of an antedated note payable "on demand after date" determines the date on which a cause of action thereon accrues. Webber v. Webber [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 703, 109 N. W. 50. Where land was conveyed under an oral agreement to reconvey on demand, the statute does not commence to run against an action to recover the land or the value thereof until demand and refusal to reconvey. Cromwell v. Norton [Mass.] 79 N. E. 433. No demand for the righting of the fraud is necessary to set Rev. St. 1898, § 4222, in operation. Figge v. Bergenthal [Wis.] 109 N. W. 581.

78. Where a demand is necessary to create a cause of action, such demand must be made within a reasonable time which is to be ascertained by analogy to the statute of limitations. One who holds an elevator check stating that the grain is held subject to his order of sale on or before a certain date must demand delivery within 6 years in order to create a cause of action for conversion. Freeman v. Ingerson, 143 Mich. 7, 12 Det. Leg. N. 866, 106 N. W. 278. Where land was conveyed under an oral contract to reconvey on demand, the fact that the grantee sold part of the land and accounted for the proceeds is not such a repudiation of the agreement as to the remaining land as to start limitations against the action to recover it. Cromwell v. Norton [Mass.] 79 N. E. 433.

79. Greenley v. Greenley, 100 N. Y. S. 114. Where after issuing an execution a decree was made that no more than a certain amount be collected thereon until further order, the time between the two orders should be excluded. Davis v. Roller [Va.] 55 S. E. 4. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4274, providing that an action against a public officer for an official act is barred in three years, an action against a sheriff for conversion of the proceeds of a sale on execution does not accrue until termination of an action determining the right to the property. State v. O'Neill, 114 Mo. App. 611, 90 S. W. 410. This rule extends to determination on appeal, though no appeal bond was given. Id. Not on an escrow until performance of the conditions and delivery. Daniels v. Daniels [Cal. App.] 85 P. 134. Where one agreed to pay a grantor's debts upon the performance of certain conditions, the fact that he repudiated the contract before the conditions were performed did not set the statute in motion as to the debts he agreed to pay. Greenley v. Greenley, 100 N. Y. S. 114. An action on city warrants drawn on a particular fund is not barred if brought within three years after notice of the conversion of the fund by paying subsequent warrants. The holders of warrants not being required to take notice of the misappropriation or of the records within the time the city might collect the fund. Northwestern Lumber Co. v. Aberdeen [Wash.] 87 P. 260. Where one agreed to pay certain notes upon the performance of conditions, the fact that an action on the notes was barred was no defense to him. Greenley v. Greenley, 100 N. Y. S. 114.

80. Where a vendor agreed to make title in the vendee when the land was surveyed and divided a cause of action accrued to the vendee when it appeared that the vendor did not intend to survey and divide the land. Abercrombie v. Shapira [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 864, 94 S. W. 392.

81. Where a note was secured by a mortgage providing for foreclosure at the option of the creditor upon default in payment of interest, failure of the creditor to exercise his option does not start the operation of the statute. First Nat. Bank v. Park [Colo.] 86 P. 106. Complaint held not to show that the option had been exercised. Id.

82. A covenant to repair and renew in a deed of a right of way that the grantee is to erect and maintain a retaining wall is a continuing contract unaffected by the statute until breach thereof. Fiege v. Covington & C. El. R. & Transfer & Bridge Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 1257, 91 S. W. 738. Where one wrongfully appropriates the water rights of another for a period longer than the statute of limitations, the injured person is not precluded from maintaining action of injuries sustained within the period. Henshaw v. Salt River Valley Canal Co. [Ariz.] 84 P. 908.

crues at the date of each overflow.[84] A right of action on a mutual account does not accrue until the account is closed.[85] A cause of action in or against a remainderman or reversioner relative to the estate does not accrue during the continuance of the life estate,[86] unless by virtue of wrongful acts of the life tenant he is given a right to maintain action.[87] If the right be in possession, the statute does not run while the right of or remedy by possession is being exercised.[88] Hence, it does not run in favor of a mortgagee in possession, nor in favor of one cotenant as against another,[89] until ouster.[90] The statute does not run as between husband and wife during the existence of the marital relation,[91] unless otherwise provided by statute.[92] The right of action by a principal against an agent does not accrue until the agency is terminated.[93]

As between stockholder, corporation, and creditor.[94]—A cause of action in favor of a creditor on an unpaid subscription to stock of an insolvent corporation accrues after call[95] or insolvency of the corporation,[96] or as soon as it ceases to be a going concern,[97] or at the date prescribed by law.[99]

83. Brown v. Texas Cent. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 762, 94 S. W. 134.

84. Where a stream is obstructed by a mining company and poisonous water backed up on land, a fresh cause of action is created by each overflow and all damages accruing within five years may be recovered. Crabtree Coal Min. Co. v. Hamby's Adm'r, 28 Ky. L. R. 687, 90 S. W. 226. A cause of action for injuries to land by deposit thereon of minerals from mines further up the stream accrues when the material is deposited on the land. Day v. Louisville Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 53 S. E. 776.

85. Account between merchant and planter for the furnishing by the merchant of supplies, the planter to turn over his crop as matured to be sold. Godley v. Hopkins, 126 Ga. 178, 54 S. E. 974.

86. Not as against reversioners or remaindermen during the life of the life tenant. Schroeder v. Bozarth, 224 Ill. 310, 79 N. E. 583; McMurtry v. Fairley, 194 Mo. 502, 91 S. W. 902. Do not run against heirs for the recovery of a homestead during the occupancy of the widow. Griffin v. Dunn [Ark.] 96 S. W. 190. Limitations do not run against a purchaser at an execution sale of a remainder, subject to a preceding life estate, until the death of the life tenant. Davis v. Dyer, 29 Ky. L. R. 430, 93 S. W. 629.

87. Where a widow abandons the homestead by an ineffectual attempt to alienate it, a cause of action at once accrues to the heirs. Griffin v. Dunn [Ark.] 96 S. W. 190. Where life tenants convey the fee, the grantee's right of entry accrued at the date of the deed. Cherry v. Cape Fear Power Co., 142 N. C. 404, 55 S. E. 287. A remainderman who has full knowledge of his rights as remainderman, or who ought to have had such knowledge, and who knows or ought to know that such rights depend upon an affirmative act on his part to be performed, cannot, by standing by and refusing or failing to perform that act, postpone the time at which the statute of limitations will commence to run against him. Hosler v. Haines, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 261.

88. Does not run against an action for specific performance of a contract to sell land against a purchaser in possession. Phillips v. Jones [Ark.] 95 S. W. 164. Where a tenant purchases at tax sale, the statute does not run in favor of his claim until he repudiates his tenancy and the landlord has notice. Bryson v. Boyce [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 651, 92 S. W. 820.

89. The giving of a mortgage by one cotenant where possession was not taken under it is not an ouster so as to start the statute of limitations as to other cotenants. Scottish-American Mortg. Co. v. Bunckley [Miss.] 41 So. 502. As a general rule limitations do not run as between tenants in common. Steele v. Steele, 220 Ill. 318, 77 N. E. 232.

90. Unless one is in possession adverse to the others of which fact they are charged with notice. Steele v. Steele, 220 Ill. 318, 77 N. E. 232.

91. Does not run against a claim of a husband against his wife during the existence of the marriage relation. Bennett v. Finnegan [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 239.

92. The common-law rule of the unity of interest between husband and wife preventing the application of the statute of limitations to claims existing in favor of the wife against the husband during coverture, on grounds of public policy, has been abrogated in Ohio by statute. Liggett v. Estate of Liggett, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 518.

93. Where a purchaser at tax sale agreed to rent the premises for the owner and apply the rents on his claim, he was the owner's agent. Hall v. Semple [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 536, 91 S. W. 248. As a general rule in cases where the agency is a general and continuing one, the statute runs as to the principal's right of action from the termination of the agency, or from an accounting, or from the time the principal has demanded an accounting and the agent has refused or neglected to render it. Knowles v. Rome Tribune Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 109.

94. See 6 C. L. 474. See, also, Corporations, 7 C. L. 862.

95. The statute commences to run as to unpaid subscriptions on corporate stock where the corporation is insolvent after the call and assessment has been made for the amounts necessary to pay creditors. McCarter v. Ketcham, 72 N. J. Law, 247, 62 A. 693. Limitations run against an action to recover

Mistake and fraud.[99]—A cause of action for mistake[1] or fraud[2] accrues at the time it was or should, by the exercise of ordinary diligence, have been discovered.[3] A party is charged with notice of facts contained in public records,[4] and with notice of facts which it is impossible to conceal,[5] and of fraud which an ordinarily prudent man would have discovered.[6]

§ 4. Time tolled and computation of the period.[7]—Besides the circumstances enumerated in the statute as postponing or interrupting it,[8] the commencement of an action tolls the statute[9] and continuance of the suit continues the tolling.[10] An from a member of a mutual insurance company an assessment levied by a receiver from the date of the decree authorizing the assessment and not from the date of insolvency of the company. Schofield v. Turner, 213 Pa. 548, 62 A. 1068. Under the statutes of Ohio a cause of action for assessments against policy holders in a mutual insurance company does not accrue until such assessments are made absolute, and, where a company is adjudged insolvent, not until the assessments are decreed. Until this time the liability was contingent. Swing v. Brister, 87 Miss. 516, 40 So. 146.

96. As to a claim for unpaid stock subscriptions, the statute begins to run and a right of action accrues from the appointment of a receiver or other act of insolvency on the part of the corporation. John A. Roebling Sons Co. v. Shawnee Valley Coal & Iron Co., 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 113.

97. A right of action in a creditor to enforce the unpaid subscription of the holders of corporate stock accrues as soon as the corporation disposes of its property and ceases to be a going concern. Chilberg v. Siebenbaum, 41 Wash. 663, 84 P. 598.

98. Under Kan. Gen. St. 1868, c. 23, § 40, amended by Laws 1883, p. 88, § 46, a cause of action accrues in favor of a creditor of a corporation as against a stockholder one year after the corporation has suspended business. Ramsden v. Gately, 142 F. 912.

99. See 6 C. L. 474.

1. A cause of action to have a mistake in a deed corrected accrues when the mistake should or ought to have been discovered. Wright v. Isaacks [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 991, 95 S. W. 55. Under Revisal 1905, § 395, providing a limitation of three years from the discovery of mistake, a cause of action for shortage of land sold by the acre does not necessarily accrue at the time the deed is executed. Peacock v. Barnes, 142 N. C. 215, 55 S. E. 99. Under the rule that a cause of action for mistake does not accrue until discovery thereof, it is deemed to accrue when the mistake should by the exercise of ordinary diligence have been discovered. Id. Whether it should have been discovered before it was held a question for the jury. Id.

2. Bal. Ann. Codes & St. § 4800, prescribing a 3-year period after discovery of fraud for actions for relief on the ground of fraud, does not apply to an action by a purchaser at execution sale to set aside an alleged fraudulent certificate of redemption, though after discovery of fraud the suit was delayed by negotiations to settle and sickness of plaintiff. Carroll v. Hill Tract Imp. Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 835. Not as against an action founded on fraud until the fraud should or ought to have been discovered. Harris v. Cain [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 327, 91 S. W. 866; Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Griffin [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 332, 90 S. W. 884.

3. A replication to a plea of limitations that the fraud was not discovered until within the statutory period must allege that it was not and could not have been discovered by the exercise of ordinary diligence. Price v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 102 Md. 683, 62 A. 1040. Petition setting up a cause of action based on fraud held not to show that the cause was barred. McGregor v. Witham, 126 Ga. 702, 56 S. E. 55. Petition in an action of fraud in the sale of land held sufficient to admit evidence on the purchaser's part that he was not negligent in failing to discover the fraud before he did. Waller v. Gray [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 194, 94 S. W. 1098.

4. Where an agent acting for a seller left the grantee's name blank and later filled in his own and sold the property at an advance, an action by the owner for the proceeds accrued when the deed was recorded. Hudson v. Cahoon, 193 Mo. 547, 91 S. W. 72. One is charged with notice of fraud in a deed from the date of the recording of the instrument. Id.

5. Where concealment of what is done is impossible, the statute is not suspended. Thornton v. Natchez [Miss.] 41 So. 498.

6. Facts held sufficient to put one on inquiry so as to take the case out of Comp. Laws, § 9739, providing for an extension of the period on a concealed cause of action. First Nat. Bank v. Steel [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 762, 109 N. W. 423. To suspend the statute as to a judgment for taxes it must appear that there was fraud in obtaining the judgment and it must have been concealed so that it could not have been ascertained by the exercise of reasonable diligence. Dunn v. Taylor [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 669, 94 S. W. 347. Evidence held to show that one defrauded in the sale of corporate stock should have discovered the fraud in time where he lived close to the plant of the corporation and knew a receiver had been appointed for the corporation. Coffin v. Barber, 101 N. Y. S. 147. As to the statute in favor of one occupying a confidential relation toward another. See Rucker v. Maddox, 114 Ga. 899, 41 S. E. 68; Brock v. Wildey, 125 Ga. 82, 54 S. E. 195.

7. See 6 C. L. 475.

8. See post, § 6.

9. Where a second assignee sues to revive a judgment and the first assignee intervenes, claiming ownership, and praying also for revival, but does not cite the defendant to appear, the suit will toll the stat-

alias writ to continue the action must issue within six years of the issue of the first.[11] It is immaterial in what jurisdiction the action is commenced if it is instituted when the creditor has a right to sue,[12] but it only tolls the statute as to parties affected by the judgment.[13] The statute is tolled during pendency of an action in which the demand is set up as a counterclaim, though such action is subsequently discontinued.[14] The statute is tolled by a valid extension agreement.[15] Where a cause of action has accrued as to an ancestor, his death does not toll the statute as to his minor heir[16] or administrator.[17] The statute is tolled where one subject to an action conceals himself.[18] It is not tolled by a proceeding which does not prevent the commencement of an action.[19]

The period commences on the date the cause of action accrues,[20] and expires with the last hour of the last day of the last year,[21] and where the last day of the period falls on Sunday, it is not extended, though it is provided by law that if a proceeding is directed by law to take place on a certain day and such day fall on Sunday, it shall take place the day following.[22]

§ 5. What is commencement of action. A. In general.[23]—An action is com-

ute as to both. Geisenberger v. Cotton, 116 La. 651, 40 So. 929. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 544, relative to attachment, the serving of a garnishee summons does not toll the statute as to the debtor, as such statute applies only where the indebtedness is admitted. Clyne v. Easton, Eldridge & Co., 148 Cal. 287, 83 P. 36.

10. Where a summons was issued within the period and returned "not found" and within the period after such return an alias summons was issued and returned "not found" and within the period a pluries summons was issued and returned found. Bovaird & Seyfang Mfg. Co. v. Ferguson [Pa.] 64 A. 513.

11. O'Neill's Estate, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 415.

12. Where the suit is brought at the domicile of the creditor and kept alive, the defendant may not complain that for ten years before issue of the pluries summons he lived in another county to the knowledge of the creditor. Bovaird & Seyfang Mfg. Co. v. Ferguson [Pa.] 64 A. 513.

13. An action by a tenant of abutting property against an elevated railway for injuries to easements does not toll the statute as to a right of action by the owner. Interests of one not affected by the conduct of the other. Goldstrom v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 100 N. Y. S. 911. Where a purchaser was not made a party in a suit to foreclose against the mortgagors, he could not assert the statute. Livingston v. New England Mortg. Sec. Co., 77 Ark. 379, 91 S. W. 752.

14. United States v. Gillies, 144 F. 991.

15. Agreement by a community survivor extending the time of payment on contracts made by her deceased husband. Dashiell v. Moody & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 843. An endorsement on a note showing payment and extension of time tolls the statute. Carter v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 701.

16. Action to recover land sold or the purchase price thereof. Doty v. Jameson, 29 Ky. L. R. 507, 93 S. W. 638.

17. Where an action had accrued to one prior to his death, the statute was not suspended until his administrator commenced action. Doty v. Jameson, 29 Ky. L. R. 507, 93 S. W. 638.

18. Under Ind. T. Ann. St. 1899, § 2969, providing that where a person by leaving the jurisdiction or concealing himself prevents the commencement of an action against him the statute does not run, a complaint in replevin which does not show the nonexistence of grounds tolling the statute, but alleges that the property was removed from the jurisdiction, shows facts tolling the statute. Gatlin v. Vaut [Ind. T.] 91 S. W. 38. Where a thief removes the stolen goods from the jurisdiction and does not start limitations against an action to recover them by returning them so the owner knows of their whereabouts, a buyer from the thief cannot tack his possession to that of the thief. Id.

19. Injunction in the settlement of a partnership held not to prevent the bringing of an action by a partner, hence the statute was not tolled. Gibbons v. Bush Co., 101 N. Y. S. 721. In Oklahoma a judgment against a city of the first class is barred unless execution is sued not within five years, and this rule is not affected by an agreement by the city to pay judgments in the order of their priority. Beadles v. Smyser [Okl.] 87 P. 292.

20. Under Ky. St. 1903, § 2516, limiting the period within which actions for personal injuries must be brought, the day of the injury is counted. Geneva Cooperage Co. v. Brown [Ky.] 98 S. W. 279. An action on a draft drawn Sept. 17, 1896, payable 90 days after date, does not accrue until December 17, 1896, as the drawer had the whole of December 16 to pay. Jocque v. McRae, 142 Mich. 370, 12 Det. Leg. N. 779, 105 N. W. 874. Where the defense of the statute is set up in trespass to try title, time should be computed from the date of the deeds under which possession was taken to the commencement of the action. Wade v. Goza [Ark.] 96 S. W. 388.

21. Breaux v. Broussard, 116 La. 215, 40 So. 639.

22. Geneva Cooperage Co. v. Brown [Ky.] 98 S. W. 279.

menced by suing out summons and delivering it to an officer for service,[24] but not by the mere issuance of summons.[25] Suit is not commenced in justice court until citation is issued.[26] A criminal prosecution is deemed commenced by the return of the indictment.[27] An assertion of a claim in one of two consolidated actions tolls the statute,[28] and where an action is commenced, the fact that it is stayed does not affect the rights of the plaintiff.[29] The commencement of action against a concern alleged to be a corporation but which is in fact a partnership does not toll the statute as to individual members of the firm.[30]

(§ 5) B. Amendment of pleading.[31]—An amendment founded on the same wrong and pleading the same substantial facts as the original complaint, but in different form,[32] or which alters the statement of a defectively stated cause of action,[33] or which merely amplifies the original complaint,[34] or sets up an additional ground

23. See 6 C. L. 475.

Note: In some states it is held that the bringing of an action in a court which has no jurisdiction does not toll the statute, Gray v. Hodge, 50 Ga. 262; Sweet v. Electric Light Co., 97 Tenn. 252; Donnell v. Getchell, 38 Me. 217; while the contrary doctrine is held elsewhere, Smith v. McNeal, 109 U. S. 426, 27 Law. Ed. 986; L. R. M. R. & T. R. Co. v. Mannes, 49 Ark. 248, 4 S. W. 778, 4 Am. St. Rep. 45; Ball v. Biggam, 6 Kan. App. 42, 49 P. 678; Blume v. New Orleans, 104 La. Ann. 345, 29 So. 106; Woods v. Houghton, 67 Mass. 580.—See Fay v. Costa [Cal. App.] 83 P. 275.

24. Dedenbach v. Detroit [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 922, 110 N. W. 60. In Michigan failure to take out a second summons for more than two months after the return day of the first interrupts the continuity of the action. Colling v. McGregor, 144 Mich. 651, 13 Det. Leg. N. 310, 108 N. W. 87.

25. An action is not commenced by the mere issuance of summons. Consists in suing out summons and delivering it to an officer with the bona fide intention of having it served. Dedenbach v. Detroit [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 922, 110 N. W. 60.

26. Hooks v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 995, 97 S. W. 516.

27. State v. Smith, 72 Kan. 244, 83 P. 882.

28. Beddow v. Wilson, 28 Ky. L. R. 661, 90 S. W. 228.

29. Grant v. Humbert, 114 App. Div. 462, 100 N. Y. S. 44.

30. Geneva Cooperage Co. v. Brown [Ky.] 98 S. W. 279.

31. See 6 C. L. 476.

32. Amendment setting forth the correct name of one killed by the alleged negligence of another held not to state a new cause of action. Walker v. Wabash R. Co., 193 Mo. 453, 92 S. W. 83. An amendment which is merely a different statement of the same cause of action relates back. Curry v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 42 So. 447. An amendment in an action by a passenger for injuries, changing "defendant" to "defendant's servant or agent acting within the line of his authority as such," relates back. Hess' v. Birmingham R. L. & P. Co. [Ala.] 42 So. 595. Amendment held not to set up a different cause of action. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Hill [Ala.] 40 So. 612. Amendment alleging that defendant negligently permitted the railroad track to become out of repair, rough, and uneven, does not state a different cause of action from the original complaint which alleged negligence in the construction of the track so that there was a sharp depression therein. Gordon v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 129 Iowa, 747, 106 N. W. 177. Where an accident happened in 1896 and action began in 1897, and in 1902 an additional count was filed which did not change the cause of action but merely alleged another way in which negligence already charged in 1897 caused the death, a demurrer to a plea of the statute of limitations will be upheld. South Chicago City R. Co. v. Kinnare, 117 Ill. App. 1. Amendment in mechanic's lien proceeding against the same premises, on the same contract, and between the same owner and contractor, and naming the same parties defendant, does not state a new cause of action. Miller v. Calumet Lumber & Mfg. Co., 121 Ill. App. 56. An amended bill in an action to enforce a mechanic's lien setting forth the same cause of action, involving the same property, building, work, price, parties, and date and amount of the architect's certificate, is allowable. Eisendrath Co. v. Gebhardt, 222 Ill. 113, 78 N. E. 22. Where on a praecipe in trespass the prothonotary issued a summons in assumpsit, it is not an amendment changing the cause of action for the court to amend its record to show an action in trespass. Wilkinson v. Northeast Borough [Pa.] 64 A. 754. A complaint in an action for negligence may be amended to allege the giving of statutory notice required by the employer's liability act and other matters essential to bring the case within the act. Miller v. Erie R. Co., 109 App. Div. 612, 96 N. Y. S. 244. A count added after the statute has run is not barred if it is based on the same transaction as those originally brought. Beasley v. Baltimore & P. R. Co., 27 App. D. C. 595.

33. Additional counts based on the same grounds of negligence are permissible though the original pleadings stated the cause of action defectively. North Chicago St. R. Co. v. Aufmann, 221 Ill. 614, 77 N. E. 1120. An amendment supplying a defect in a cause of action defectively stated is permissible. Salmon v. Libby, 219 Ill. 421, 76 N. E. 573. Original declaration held to state cause of action so that demurrer to pleas of limitations to amended declaration were properly overruled. Salmon v. Libby, 114 Ill. App. 258.

34. An amendment which merely amplifies the original allegations, or states new grounds or specifications germane to such allegations, is allowable. Gordon v. Chi-of recovery,[35] relates back to the date of filing the original complaint; but an amendment stating a cause of action requiring different evidence and the application of a different measure of damages,[36] or one changing a cause of action in trespass to one in case,[37] or one purporting to correct a void process,[38] or which otherwise sets up a new or different cause of action,[39] does not relate back, and if the bar of the statute has become complete in the interim, no relief can be had on the amendment.[40]

(§ 5) C. Nonsuit and dismissal.[41]—In many states it is provided by law that if an action fail otherwise than on the merits,[42] or is reversed on appeal,[43] a new action may be commenced within a prescribed period. Such statutes are literally construed.[44] Where the first action is prosecuted in a state court, a new action may be maintained in the Federal court.[45]

cago, etc., R. Co., 129 Iowa, 747, 106 N. W. 177.

35. In an action for injuries sustained while attempting to board a train, an amendment setting up an additional ground of negligence does not set up a new cause of action. Johnson v. Texas Cent. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 807, 93 S. W. 433.

36. Kramer v. Gille, 140 F. 682.

37. Hess v. Birmingham R. L. & P. Co. [Ala.] 42 So. 595.

38. Where in an action for money only the praecipe omitted to direct the clerk to indorse upon the summons the amount for which judgment would be taken if defendant failed to appear, and the summons issued bore no such indorsement, an amendment made by leave of court allowing such indorsement and the issuance of an alias summons, the defendant having made no appearance, does not relate back. Elmen v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Neb.] 105 N. W. 987.

39. Cause of action cannot first be stated by way of amendment after the running of limitations. Salmon v. Libby, 114 Ill. App. 258. Original bill in action to redeem from sale under a trust deed held insufficient to raise objections specifically stated by an amended bill. Cox v. American Freehold & Land Mortg. Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 739. In an action to redeem from sale under a trust deed, an amendment alleging that the sale was conducted by an unauthorized person states a new cause of action. Id. An amendment alleging a defective sidewalk to be on one street where the original complaint alleged it to be on another states a different cause of action. Gilmore v. Chicago, 224 Ill. 490, 79 N. E. 596. Plea of limitations to an amendment to a complaint which did not state a cause of action held not vulnerable to demurrer. McAndrews v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 222 Ill. 232, 78 N. E. 603. Where in an action against two defendants no cause of action was stated as to one, an amendment may not be allowed stating a cause of action against him. Klawiter v. Jones, 219 Ill. 626, 76 N. E. 673.

40. Cox v. American Freehold & Land Mortg. Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 739.

41. See 6 C. L. 477.

42. A voluntary dismissal without prejudice to a future action is a failure otherwise than upon the merits within the meaning of Kan. Civ. Code, § 23, providing that, if an action is commenced in time and plaintiff fails in it otherwise than upon the merits, a new action may be commenced within one year after the failure. Harrison v. Remington Paper Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 385. Where plaintiff took an order discontinuing the action on objection being taken to the jurisdiction of the court, it did not appear that the discontinuance was not voluntary, which is not within Code Civ. Proc. § 405. Bannister v. Michigan Mut. Life Ins. Co., 111 App. Div. 765, 97 N. Y. S. 843. A judgment of affirmance of a judgment of dismissal is not on the merits and a new action may be commenced within one year under Code Civ. Proc. § 547. Glass v. Basin & Bay State Min. Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 746. Code 1899, ch. 104, § 19, applies to a dismissal of a bill in equity setting up an account against the estate of a decedent. Hevener v. Hannah, 59 W. Va. 476, 53 S. E. 635. Code 1899, c. 104, § 19, applies in equity as well as at law. Id. Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 83, providing that if a plaintiff be nonsuited, and the time for bringing the action has expired, he may bring a new action within one year, does not apply to a voluntary nonsuit. Koch v. Sheppard, 223 Ill. 172, 79 N. E. 52. Where the court ruled that no evidence had been introduced on which a verdict could be found and plaintiff asked for an involuntary nonsuit, the nonsuit granted is a voluntary one. Id. Under Kirby's Dig. §, 5083, where plaintiff in foreclosure suffered a nonsuit, the issuance and service of summons anew is the commencement of a new action. Livingston v. New England Mortg. Sec. Co., 77 Ark. 379, 91 S. W. 752. Where on dismissal a writ of error is sued out, the statutory period of six months within which a suit which has been dismissed may be renewed so as to prevent the cause from being barred does not run while such writ is pending. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Randolph, 126 Ga. 238, 55 S. E. 47.

43. Where a cause is reversed and a new trial ordered, the plaintiff may commence a new action under Code Civ. Proc. § 405. Bellinger v. German Ins. Co., 51 Misc. 463, 113 App. Div. 917, 100 N. Y. S. 424. This rule is not abrogated by Code Civ. Proc. § 414. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 83, .25, providing for a new action if judgment for plaintiff is reversed, or if he be nonsuited, etc., and § 88 (ch. 110), providing that a finding of facts by the appellate court different from that of the court appealed from is conclusive, where the appellate court found facts different from the finding of the trial court, such finding was res judicata and § 25 does not apply. Larkins v. Terminal R. Ass'n, 221 Ill. 428, 77 N. E. 678.

44. A statute providing for a new action

§ 6. Postponement, interruption, and revival. A. General rules.[46]—Subject to the rule that time does not run against the sovereignty the statutes apply generally and in all cases where exception is not specifically made,[47] and after they have once commenced, run over all subsequent disabilities, acts, and events,[48] unless otherwise expressly provided.[49] The rule that limitations do not run against the in case of reversal on "appeal" does not apply where decree is annulled on a "writ of review." Fay v. Costa, 2 Cal. App. 241, 83 P. 275.

45. The effect of the Kansas statute is to make an exception on the general statute of limitations which is justiciable in the Federal as well as in the state courts. Harrison v. Remington Paper Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 385.

46. See 6 C. L. 477.

47. See ante, § 1. The holders of excess water rights in possession under their contracts are not trespassers so as to suspend an action to cancel such rights until the rights of such excess holders are adjudicated. Patterson v. Ft. Lyon Canal Co. [Colo.] 84 P. 807.

48. An injunction against the commencement of an action does not toll the statute, unless so provided by statute. No such statutes in Ohio or Florida. Hunter v. Niagara Fire Ins. Co., 73 Ohio St. 110, 76 N. E. 563. When proceedings to sell real estate of a decedent to pay debts were commenced in good faith, proceeds fully accounted for, and the land involved was that intended to be sold, the fact that the land sought to be sold was misdescribed did not suspend the statute as to the right of an heir to compel the estate of the administratrix to account for the proceeds. Cunningham v. Cunningham's Estate, 220 Ill. 45, 77 N. E. 95. Under the rule that a creditor of a corporation may ascertain its stockholders by an inspection of its books, mere ignorance as to the names of stockholders does not toll the statute as to a right of action to recover unpaid subscriptions. Chilberg v. Siebenbaum, 41 Wash. 663, 84 P. 598. The statutes of Missouri operate except in the case of specific exceptions, and all actions are barred in twenty-four years whether disabilities have been removed or not. De Hatre v. Edmunds [Mo.] 98 S. W. 744. When a cause of action for the recovery of land accrued on the breach of one condition, the grantor could not postpone the operation of the statute until the breach of another. Tower v. Compton Hill Imp. Co., 192 Mo. 379, 91 S. W. 104. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4262, prescribing a ten-year period for the recovery of land, where a grantor on breach of condition in a deed was entitled to recover, he was not entitled to set up an injunction brought by the grantee to prevent him from platting property contrary to his agreement for postponing the operation of the statute. Id. Under a statute that a judgment ceases to be a lien after six years and cannot be extended by direct action, such lien cannot be continued by an ancillary action brought to remove fraudulent conveyances. Meikle v. Cloquet [Wash.] 87 P. 841. The running of the statute prescribed by Pub. Acts 1899, p. 235, No. 155, limiting the time within which actions for personal injuries must be brought, is not suspended by the death of the injured person until an administrator is appointed. Comp. Laws, § 9737, providing that if a party entitled to bring action die and the cause survive, it may be commenced within two years. The act of 1899 not making an exception in favor of such actions. Colling v. McGregor, 144 Mich. 651, 13 Det. Leg. N. 310, 108 N. W. 87.

An appeal from an order of the county court in an accounting between guardian and ward does not stay institution of an action on his bond, and such time is not deducted from the period within which an action on the guardian's bond must be brought. Wescott v. Upham, 127 Wis. 590, 107 N. W. 2. Prescription running in favor of certain seizing creditors was not interrupted by a rule obtained by a third opponent or by an agreement made under the rule. Succession of Marchand, 116 La. 207, 40 So. 637.

49. Under the rule that where a cause of action is interposed as a defense, and such action is dismissed, the period of the pendency of such action is not computed in determining limitations as to the cause set up in defense where suit to quiet title was brought by the owner of tax deeds and it was set up that the tax deeds were void, and such suit was dismissed, the time of its pendency would not be reckoned in computing the period as against an action to set aside the tax deed. Preston v. Thayer, 127 Wis. 123, 106 N. W. 672. Where one brings suit which is obstructed by the pendency of another, the time of the pendency is not to be counted as it is an obstruction under Code 1899, c. 104, § 18. Hevener v. Hannah, 59 W. Va. 476, 53 S. E. 635. Statutes construed and held that if a person was under disability when a cause accrued he was entitled to three years after the removal of the disability, and if the three years did not complete the full statutory period, he was entitled to such full period. De Hatre v. Edmunds [Mo.] 98 S. W. 744. Under Ind. T. Ann. St. 1899, § 2969, providing that, if a person subject to an action by improper act prevents it, limitations do not run, where stolen property was removed from the jurisdiction, the statute did not ran until it was returned and the owner learned of its whereabouts. Gatlin v. Vaut [Ind. T.] 91 S. W. 38. Under Comp. Laws, § 9737, providing that where one liable to an action dies an action may be commenced within two years after letters of administration are granted, a ward may bring suit for an accounting against the administrator of her guardian though he was not appointed for over twenty years after the guardian's death. Murphy v. Cady [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 412, 108 N. W. 493.

"Under [any] legal disability to sue" means personal disability as distinguished from a mere obstacle to the maintenance of an action and does not apply to inability to sue during the period of accounting and settlement of a guardian's account. Wescott v. Upham, 127 Wis. 590, 107 N. W. 2.

A fraudulent concealment to be sufficient must be founded upon some affirmative acts or proof of some act of negligence so gross right to abate a public nuisance applies only where the proceeding is brought by the state.[50] The operation of the statute may be suspended by the pendency of legal proceedings which delays enforcement of the right.[51] Disabilities cannot be tacked.[52] In Kentucky it would seem that disabilities may be tacked if the period be not thereby extended beyond the thirty year statute which bars all actions.[53] Disability of an heir at the time of descent cast does not suspend the operation of the statute which had commenced to run against the ancestor.[54] Ignorance of title does not suspend the operation of the statute as to one in adverse possession in the absence of fraud, concealment or misrepresentation, or fiduciary relations.[55] One asserting suspension of the operation of the statute has the burden of proving it.[56] A statute imposing a condition or limitation on the right to maintain an action is not a statute of limitation.[57]

(§ 6) B. Trusts.[58]—The statute does not run in favor of the trustee of an express, active, or continuing trust until repudiation thereof by the trustee and notice brought home to the beneficiary,[59] but does run thereafter.[60] The statute runs as to be equivalent to intentional fraud. Cunningham v. Dougherty, 121 Ill. App. 395.

Note: Independent of a statute suspending the operation of the statute of limitations during absence of the defendant, the plaintiff's inability to prosecute a suit during the period of the defendant's absence by necessity stopped the running of the statute at common law. 19 Am. & Eng. Ency. of Law, p. 215. In United States v. Wiley, 78 U. S. 508, 20 L. Ed. 211, there being no statute to fit the case, the court held that during the continuance of the Rebellion its effect was to toll the statutes in regard to claims against citizens residing in the rebellious states. Judge Strong writing the opinion (at page 513 of 78 U. S. [20 Law. Ed. 211]) said: "It is the loss of the ability to sue rather than loss of the right that stops the running of the statute." The same judge in Braum v. Sauerwein, 77 U. S., loc. cit. 223, 19 Law. Ed. 895, after reviewing many authorities said: "It seems, therefore, to be established that the running of the statute of limitations may be suspended by causes not mentioned in the statute itself." In Amy v. Watertown, 130 U. S. 323, 32 Law. Ed. 953, this language of Judge Strong is pronounced "undoubtedly correct."—See Cobb v. Houston [Mo. App.] 94 S. W. 299.

50. Not where the name of the state is used for the benefit of a private relator. State v. Vandalia, 119 Mo. App. 406, 94 S. W. 1009.

51. Where proceedings causing delay in settlement and enforcement of a cause were brought about by acts of the defendants, a cause was held not to be barred. Sipe v. Taylor [Va.] 55 S. E. 542. Only those who are actors in procuring the injunction can, on that account, be estopped from pleading the statute. Hunter v. Niagara Fire Ins. Co., 73 Ohio St. 110, 76 N. E. 563.

52. Messinger v. Foster, 101 N. Y. S. 387. Where one entitled to maintain an action was insane at the time of her death, the disability of her divisee who was under coverture could not be tacked to that of her ancestor. De Hatre v. Edmunds [Mo.] 98 S. W. 744. Where a cause of action accrued to a married woman and she died while it existed, her minor heirs could not set up their infancy as an excuse for not bringing action. Lamberida v. Barnum [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 434, 90 S. W. 698. Under the rule that if one entitled to maintain an action dies his heirs may maintain an action after the period limited and within three years from his death, where an infant dies his infant heirs are not entitled to the benefit of the statute. Robinson v. Allison, 192 Mo. 366, 91 S. W. 115.

53. Disability of infancy and coverture tacked. Smith v. Cornett [Ky.] 98 S. W. 297.

54. De Hatre v. Edmunds [Mo.] 98 S. W. 744. See, also, ante, § 3. Where the statute has commenced to run against an ancestor before descent cast, they continue as against his heir under disability. Shaffer v. Detie, 191 Mo. 377, 90 S. W. 131. Where one dies after a cause of action accrues, the statute is not tolled as to his infant heirs. Messinger v. Foster, 101 N. Y. S. 387.

55. Steele v. Steele, 220 Ill. 318, 77 N. E. 232. The fact that the owner of land did not know he had title does not toll the statute as to one in adverse possession. Waterman Hall v. Waterman, 220 Ill. 569, 77 N. E. 142.

56. Breaux v. Broussard, 116 La. 215, 40 So. 639.

57. Rev. St. 1898, § 4222, providing that no action for personal injuries shall be maintained unless notice be given to the person charged within one year from the injury, is not a statute of limitations within the rule that a period of disability shall not be a part of the time limited. Hoffmann v. Milwaukee Elec. R. & Light Co., 127 Wis. 76, 106 N. W. 808.

58. See 6 C. L. 477.

59. Not in favor of the trustee of an express trust until termination or repudiation thereof. Andrews v. Tuttle-Smith Co., 191 Mass. 461, 78 N. E. 99; Putnam v. Lincoln Safe-Deposit Co., 49 Misc. 578, 100 N. Y. S. 101; Bateman v. Ward [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 933, 93 S. W. 508. Where one located a certificate for certain lands under an agreement for a patent in the name of another who was to hold title to a portion of the land for the locater's benefit, an express trust was created. Morris v. Unknown Heirs against implied or constructive trusts,[61] and as between a trustee and a stranger it runs as in other cases, and if the trustee is barred the beneficiary is also barred.[62]

(§ 6) C. Insanity and death.[63]—The statute does not run against an insane person during the continuance of the disability,[64] but it is extended no longer than expressly provided.[65] Death of the debtor does not suspend the statute,[66] but in such event it is generally provided that the period shall be extended.[67]

(§ 6) D. Infancy and coverture.[68]—Statutes of limitation run against minors in the absence of exemption in their favor,[69] but it is generally provided that, if

of Hamilton [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 327, 95 S. W. 66. Not against the right of a piedgor of corporate stock to recover it from the piedgee until he has notice of the repudiation of the trust and conversion of the stock. Davis v. Hardwick [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 947, 94 S. W. 359.

Where one purchases land with his wife's money and takes title in his own name, the statute does not commence to run until repudiation of the trust. Smith v. Smith [Iowa] 109 N. W. 194. Suit for breach of a trust where co-owners of a mine procured the issuance of patent without mention of another co-owner. Mills' Ann. St. § 2912, does not apply. Ballard v. Golob, 34 Colo. 417, 83 P. 376. Mills' Ann. St. § 2911, requiring bills for relief on the ground of fraud to be brought within three years after discovery of the fraud, does not apply to a suit involving an express trust. Id. Where a trustee brought suit against the beneficiary for the purpose of selling the estate and reinvesting the proceeds, a sale under such decree started limitations as against the beneficiaries from the date possession was taken by the purchaser. Watkins v. Pfeiffer, 116 Ky. 593, 92 S. W. 562.

An executor who has duly qualified and received assets for which he has not accounted is an active trustee, and the statute does not run in his favor until he has repudiated his trust. In re Ashheim's Estate, 185 N. Y. 609, 78 N. E. 1099. Where one admits by demurrer that he received rents and profits as trustee, his assertion that the claim therefor is barred is disposed of. Beckman v. Waters [Cal. App.] 86 P. 997.

Where one takes title to land, part of the purchase price of which is paid by another, and recognizes his rights, the statute does not run against the person paying the portion of the purchase price. Miller v. Saxton [S. C.] 55 S. E. 310.

Where a husband received the proceeds of a sale of his wife's property under an agreement to hold it in trust for her, limitations did not run against the wife. Bohannon v. Bohannon's Adm'x, 29 Ky. L. R. 143, 92 S. W. 597.

Not a trust: Where land deeded to a city for cemetery purposes only was abandoned for such purposes, the city is not a trustee for the purpose of limitations as to an action to recover the land. Thornton v. Natchez [Miss.] 41 So. 498. The relation of the executor or administrator to the estate does not create a continuing and subsisting trust under § 4974, Rev. St. Liggett v. Estate of Liggett, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 518. The appointment of an executor or administrator under the laws of Ohio does not suspend the operation of the statute of limitations. Id.

60. This is so whether the trust be created by power of attorney, appointment as administrator, executor, or guardian. Jolly v. Miller [Ky.] 98 S. W. 326. Where an heir conveys to an administrator all his interest in the estate, the trust relation between them terminates and the statute commences to run though there has been no final accounting. Id.

61. Hudson v. Cahoon, 193 Mo. 547, 91 S. W. 72. But as to a trustee ex maleficio, it runs from the time the wrong was committed. Putnam v. Lincoln Safe-Deposit Co., 49 Misc. 578, 100 N. Y. S. 101.

62. Waterman Hall v. Waterman, 220 Ill. 569, 77 N. E. 142. Where the right of a trustee is barred, all equitable estates dependent on the legal estate are barred though the beneficiary is an infant. Watkins v. Pfeiffer, 116 Ky. 593, 92 S. W. 562.

63. See 6 C. L. 478.

64. Not as against an incompetent as to an action accruing while he was incompetent during the period of his disability. Fowler v. Prichard [Ala.] 41 So. 667. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5156, expressly provides that proceedings to set aside a judgment against a person of unsound mind are not barred until one year after the disability is removed. Curry v. Wilson [Wash.] 87 P. 1065.

65. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 396, insanity or imprisonment does not extend the period for more than five years. Messinger v. Foster, 101 N. Y. S. 387. Rev. Laws 1905, § 4084, expressly provide that insanity shall not suspend the period for more than one year after the disability ceases. Langer v. Newmann [Minn.] 110 N. W. 68.

66. As against an action to recover money, it is not tolled by the death of the borrower. Widner v. Wilcox [Iowa] 108 N. W. 238. As to an action to foreclose a mortgage, the statute is not tolled by the death of the mortgagor unknown to the mortgagee. Fuhrman v. Power [Wash.] 86 P. 940. A right to foreclose a mortgage against the grantee of a mortgagor accrues when the debt falls due, and the statute is not tolled by the death of the mortgagor. Code Civ. Proc. § 353, applies only as to an action against the mortgagor. California Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Miller [Cal. App.] 84 P. 453.

67. Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 57, § 7, expressly provides that when a person dies and his interest in real estate is subject to his debts, because his personal estate is insufficient, limitation is suspended as to heirs and devisees for eighteen months from the date of death. Eirley v. Eirley, 102 Md. 452, 62 A. 962.

68. See 6 C. L. 478.

69. Hoffmann v. Milwaukee Elec. R. & Light Co., 127 Wis. 76, 106 N. W. 808.

infancy exists when the cause of action accrues, the time for commencing the action is extended for a period after majority is attained.[70] But if the statute has already commenced to run against the ancestor, it is not interrupted by his death and the supervening disability of his infant heirs.[71] It is generally provided that the statutes shall not run against married women during coverture.[72] This rule applies though she is living apart from her husband.[73]

(§ 6) E. Absence and nonresidence.[74]—It is generally provided that the statute shall not run during the absence[75] or nonresidence from the state of the defendant.[76] This was the rule at common law.[77] It does not apply to nonresidence of the plaintiff,[78] and is only effective as to statutes of limitation.[79]

(§ 6) F. A new promise to pay or acknowledgment of the obligation,[80] which

70. Scallon v. Manhattan R. Co., 185 N. Y. 359, 78 N. E. 284. Not against minors. Scovell v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co., 117 La. 459, 41 So. 723. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4265, providing that when one is under disability when a cause of action accrues, the period of disability shall not be counted but that an action may be brought after the time so limited and within three years after removal of the disability, but no action shall be commenced after 24 years, the period of disability though greater than the statutory period does not bar the action; if less than such period, an action may be brought within three years after removal. Robinson v. Allison, 192 Mo. 366, 91 S. W. 115. Under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4809, where a cause of action for the recovery of land accrues to an infant, the period of his infancy is not a part of the time limited for the commencement of his action. May v. Sutherlin, 41 Wash. 609, 84 P. 585. Laws 1886, p. 801, c. 572, providing that no action for negligence shall be maintained against cities having a certain population unless commenced within one year, are subject to the exception of Code Civ. Proc. § 396, providing that, if one entitled to maintain an action for negligence be an infant when the cause accrues, the period of disability shall not be computed. McKnight v. New York [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 576.

71. Under the New York statutes where an ancestor had a cause of action for injuries to his premises by the construction of a railroad in front of them, the statute was not interrupted by his death and the infancy of his heirs. Scallon v. Manhattan R. Co., 185 N. Y. 359, 78 N. E. 284. Where an administrator of the community estate of a deceased husband and wife is barred from bringing action on the community bond of the husband for devastavit committed by him, the heirs of the wife are barred, notwithstanding their minority. Belt v. Cetti [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 739, 91 S. W. 1098.

72. Not as against a married woman during coverture. Surghenor v. Taliaferro [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 411, 98 S. W. 648. Not against a married woman during coverture where the cause accrues during coverture. Bucher v. Hohl [Mo.] 97 S. W. 922. The Married Woman's Act of Missouri is prospective and where a cause accrued to a married woman prior to its enactment she could not sue until the death of her husband though he died subsequent to such enactment. Graham v. Ketchum, 192 Mo. 15, 90 S. W. 350. A married woman who acquired a right to enter possession prior to Acts 1899, p. 209, c. 78, amending Code Civ. Proc. §§ 148, 163, removing her disabilities, is not within the act. Cherry v. Cape Fear Power Co., 142 N. C. 404, 55 S. E. 287. Where one was under the disability of coverture at the time a cause of action to recover land accrued, the statute did not commence to run until the disability was removed. McMurray v. Dixon, 105 Va. 605, 54 S. E. 481.

73. The mere fact that a married woman is living apart from her husband which would authorize her to sue for possession of her real estate does not compel her to do so and thus start the operation of the statute. Graham v. Ketchum, 192 Mo. 15, 90 S. W. 350.

74. See 6 C. L. 479.

75. A resident of a foreign state is not "absent from the state" within Code Civ. Proc. § 2653a. Such exception applies only to residents who are absent from the state. Bell v. Villard, 48 Misc. 587, 110 App. Div. 916, 97 N. Y. S. 244. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 401, providing that when a cause accrues against a person "absent from the state" it may be commenced within the time limited after his return, where there is evidence that defendant was absent when the cause accrued, he has the burden of showing the time of his residence within the state. Phillips v. Lindley, 112 App. Div. 283, 98 N. Y. S. 423.

76. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4808, suspending the statute as to persons out of the state, applies to former residents who have removed, as well as to persons who have never resided here. Omaha Nat. Bank v. Lindsay, 41 Wash. 531, 84 P. 11. An allegation that at the time the cause of action accrued the defendant was and ever since has been a nonresident is sufficient to bring the case within the rule that the period of absence shall not be computed. Willis v. Rice [Ala.] 39 So. 991.

77. At common law the statute is suspended during nonresidence of the defendant. Cobb v. Houston, 117 Mo. App. 645, 94 S. W. 299.

78. Nonresidence of the plaintiff does not suspend the operation of the statute. Thornton v. Natchez [Miss.] 41 So. 498.

79. Gen. Laws 1865, p. 749, c. 191, § 31, providing that a judgment is presumed paid after 20 years, is not a statute of limitation so that absence of the debtor does not affect its operation. Cobb v. Houston, 117 Mo. App. 645, 94 S. W. 299.

is required in some states to be in writing,[81] will toll the statute or revive a barred cause. The acknowledgment must contain an unqualified and direct admission of a subsisting obligation for which there is liability and must be unaccompanied by any circumstances repelling the presumption of a promise or intention to pay.[82] There must be a clear and express promise to pay.[83] Loose declarations,[84] or a conditional acknowledgment and promise,[85] are insufficient.

(§ 6) G. A partial payment[86] tolls the statute and starts it running anew.[87] It must have been made within the statutory period[88] by authority from the debtor,[89] and on account of a debt[90] for which the action is brought,[91] and it must appear

80. See 6 C. L. 480. A judgment debt is is one ex contractu within a statute allowing causes of action ex contractu to be revived by a new promise to pay. Spilde v. Johnson [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1023.

81. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 3370, the new promise must be in writing. An oral promise is not sufficient. Wells v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1003, 93 S. W. 220.

82. Throop v. Russell [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 589, 108 N. W. 1013.

Held sufficient: A letter containing a proposition to deed land in consideration of the release of a void debt is a sufficient acknowledgment. Disney v. Healy [Kan.] 85 P. 287. Where one gives his property away in consideration of future support, the transaction is contrary to public policy and limitations as to an action to recover the property are tolled by each act acknowledging the obligation. Ackerman v. Larner, 116 La. 101, 40 So. 581. Letters written stating that the debtor desired to hold the money another year, and directing the plaintiff to send the note to the bank and have it fixed for a part payment, held a sufficient acknowledgment. Morris v. Carr, 77 Ark. 228, 91 S. W. 187. When a grantor acknowledges a barred debt secured by a mortgage and his grantee assumes it by a contract not set forth in the deed, he is liable for it. Disney v. Healy [Kan.] 85 P. 287. A sufficient acknowledgment is shown where executors appear before the county court and one of them admits that he is indebted to the other in a certain sum, which admission is entered in the court records. Hendrix's Adm'r v. Hendrix, 29 Ky. L. R. 1084, 96 S. W. 921. Evidence sufficient to show a pre-existing indebtedness where one executor acknowledged it and such admission was entered on the records of the county court. Id. An acknowledgment of an indebtedness is presumed to relate to the entire demand and the acknowledging party has the burden to show that it related to part of the demand only. Chicago Chronicle Co. v. Franklin, 119 Ill. App. 384.

Held insufficient: An action on an account cannot be taken out of the statute by evidence of a sealed instrument promising to pay interest on monthly balances. Moore v. Rush [Fla.] 42 So. 238. Letter from an assignee stating that he had not taken up the matter but assuring a square deal held not a sufficient acknowledgment to toll the statute. Sargent v. Perry, 101 Me. 527, 64 A. 888.

83, 84. McGrew's Ex'r v. O'Donnell, 28 Ky. L. R. 1366, 92 S. W. 301.

85. Where a debtor wrote stating that the fact that the notes were outlawed need not enter into the present question but that if the creditor would accept $1,000 he would endeavor to pay that amount, also stating that he "was not backing up or repudiating anything," is insufficient. Throop v. Russell [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 589, 108 N. W. 1013.

86. See 6 C. L. 481.

Held sufficient: Where one who had a running account delivered some bales of cotton thereon to be held for a rise in price, sold, and the proceeds credited, and after the account was closed a sale was made and the proceeds credited, and the debtor on learning of such fact stated that he was glad the cotton had brought so much but did not directly authorize crediting of the proceeds. Held to constitute a part payment. Nunn v. McKnight [Ark.] 96 S. W. 193. A payment made on a running account is presumed to be made to apply on the balance unpaid and is sufficient. Van Name v. Barber, 100 N. Y. S. 987. Where record of payments for services continuing over a period of twenty years was kept in a book, evidence held to show that they tolled the statute. Greenwood v. Judson, 109 App. Div. 398, 96 N. Y. S. 147. The delivery of potatoes on account is a proper item of credit to toll the statute. Green v. Dodge [Vt.] 64 A. 499. Indorsement on a note, "Received on within 26 sheep, $45.50," is sufficient. Brown v. Hayes [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 875, 109 N. W. 845.

Held insufficient: The indorsement upon a promissory note of the proceeds of a sale of collateral securities which were deposited with the note at the time it was given is not such part payment as will toll the statute. Atwood v. Lammers, 97 Minn. 214, 106 N. W. 310. Where there was a dispute between the maker and holder of a note as to the amount of credit the maker was entitled to and such amount was never adjusted, the holder could not indorse credits on the note so as to toll the statute. Reinhard v. Fluckiger, 119 Mo. App. 465, 94 S. W. 994.

87. Where interest was paid on a note for twenty-three years either by the debtor or with money supplied by him, the running of the statute was tolled where the note was all this time held by the payee. In re Clad's Estate, 214 Pa. 141, 63 A. 542.

88. In re Primmer's Estate, 49 Misc. 413, 99 N. Y. S. 830.

89. Where an officer of a corporation who was surety on its debt paid interest on its behalf, such payment held not to toll the statute as to him where the payee did not know he was such officer, or had notice that interest was being paid. Ulster County Sav. Institution v. Deyo, 101 N. Y. S. 263. Where that the payment was made as part payment of a greater debt.[92] A mere gratuity is not a payment which will toll the statute.[93] A payment by one joint debtor does not toll the statute as to another[94] but does as to himself,[95] and a payment by one secondarily liable on a negotiable instrument does not toll the statute as to the maker.[96] A payment by one partner tolls the statute as to all.[97] In Utah a partial payment will not revive a barred debt.[98] Endorsement of payment of interest on a note must, to toll the statute, be made by one having an interest therein,[99] and since such an endorsement is competent only as a declaration against interest, it must appear that it was made before the statute had run.[1] The rule that a partial payment tolls the statute applies to contracts, express or implied,[2] but not to judgments.[3] One setting up partial payment has the burden to prove that it was made on the particular debt, under circumstances showing an acknowledgment of the debt.[4]

§ 7. Operation and effect of bar. A. Bar of debt as affecting security.[5]—There is a conflict of authority as to whether the bar of the principal obligation bars

one gave money to an agent to apply on a mortgage and such agent converted it but paid interest on the mortgage, such payment tolled the statute as to the mortgage and as to an action against the agent for conversion. In re Lowerre, 48 Misc. 317, 96 N. Y. S. 764. Under B. & C. Comp. §§ 24, 25, providing that the statute runs on a note from the last payment of principal or interest, a payment by the trustee in bankruptcy of one maker tolls the statute as to all. Sheak v. Wilbur [Or.] 86 P. 375. A holder of collateral security, placed in his hands coincident with the making of the note secured, is not such an agent of the debtor as has authority to make a part payment sufficient to toll the statute, of which payment the debtor is ignorant. Wanamaker v. Plank, 117 Ill. App. 327.

90. Ryan v. Canton Nat. Bank, 103 Md. 428, 63 A. 1062. That a payment on a note will toll the statute, it must affirmatively appear that the debtor intended to make the payment on the note. Wanamaker v. Plank, 117 Ill. App. 327. The balance due on an account stated is one debt, and a payment thereon tolls the statute as to all items. Nunn v. McKnight [Ark.] 96 S. W. 193.

91. Ryan v. Canton Nat. Bank, 103 Md. 428, 63 A. 1062. Payments by a debtor of a corporation to an officer of such corporation, not expressly stated at the time to be intended to apply on the debt, and not accounted for to the corporation by the officer, do not toll the statute. In re Watkinson, 143 F. 602.

92. Ryan v. Canton Nat. Bank, 103 Md. 428, 63 A. 1062.

93. Where one was paid a certain monthly stipend which was understood to be compensation, and after quitting the place his employer understood that he was not satisfied and paid him another sum. Ryan v. Canton Nat. Bank, 103 Md. 428, 63 A. 1062.

94. Keese v. Dewey, 111 App. Div. 16, 97 N. Y. S. 519. Part payment on a promissory note by one of two joint makers does not toll the statute as to the other. Atwood v. Lammers, 97 Minn. 214, 106 N. W. 310.

Contra: A payment by one of two joint mortgagors tolls the statute where such statute contains no restriction as to the effect of a payment by one. Brown v. Hayes [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 875, 109 N. W. 845. The mere presence of a co-obligor at the time of payment of interest on a note is insufficient to keep the demand alive against him. Godde v. Marvin, 142 Mich. 518, 12 Det. Leg. N. 786, 105 N. W. 1112.

95. Where one maker of a joint and several note, after the bar of the statute is complete, gives his note in payment of interest on such barred obligation, it constitutes a new promise and revives the barred note as to himself. Medomak Nat. Bank v. Wyman, 100 Me. 556, 62 A. 658.

96. Payments by a guarantor of a negotiable note do not toll the statute in favor of the maker. Thompson v. Brown [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 242. But it tolls the statute as to himself. Id. Where a guarantor's claim against his principal for payments made is barred, he cannot revive it by making further payments after an action on the note is barred. Id.

97. A partial payment on a partnership debt, after dissolution, will suspend the statute as to other partners in favor of a creditor receiving such payment who has had dealings with the partnership and has no notice of the dissolution. Robertson Lumber Co. v. Anderson, 96 Minn. 527, 105 N. W. 972.

98. In Utah a payment will not revive a barred obligation which was twelve years barred at the time the statute, providing that part payment should toll the statute, was enacted. Francis v. Gisborn [Utah] 83 P. 571.

99. Husband of intestate payee has sufficient interest. Peters v. Rothermel, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 281.

1. Peters v. Rothermel, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 281.

2. Olson v. Dahl [Minn.] 109 N. W. 1001.

3. A judgment is not a contract within this rule. Olson v. Dahl [Minn.] 109 N. W. 1001. A cause of action becomes merged in a judgment thereon and is extinct, and a part payment after the bar is complete does not by implication revive ths original cause of action. Id.

4. Murphy v. Walsh, 99 N. Y. S. 346. Evidence sufficient to show such fact. Id.

an action to foreclose the security.[5] The weight of authority, however, seems to be that it does not.[7] In some states this rule is covered by statute,[8] but such statutes are no broader than their express terms.[9] If the principal obligation is not barred, incidents thereto are not.[10] A claim for advances made to protect the security may be barred, though an action to foreclose the security is not.[11] A lien for a debt created by statute endures no longer than the period during which an action on the debt may be maintained.[12]

(§ 7) B. Against whom available.[13]—The bar of the statute is available against all persons in privity.[14]

(§ 7) C. To whom available.[15]—The defense is available to the state[16] and to implied trustees.[17] One may be estopped to plead the defense[18] especially where the delay is occasioned by his own act.[19]

§ 8. Pleading and evidence.[20]—The statute, being one of repose only, to be available as a defense must be specially pleaded.[21] This rule applies in equity.[22]

5, 6. See 6 C. L. 482.

7. That it does not: Where suit to foreclose a mortgage but not for a deficiency judgment was not commenced within the statutory period after the claim had been rejected by an executrix. Fox v. Bernard [Nev.] 85 P. 351. The right of action on a bond given as security is not barred though the right of action on the debt itself may be. United States v. Mercantile Trust Co., 213 Pa. 411, 62 A. 1062. Under a trust deed containing a power of sale, the fact that the debt is barred does not affect the power to sell, though such plea would prevail in an action to foreclose. Williams v. Armistead [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 381, 90 S. W. 925.

That it does: Where a debt is barred the mortgage is barred. McCormick v. Perry, 29 Ky. L. R. 420, 93 S. W. 607. An action on a contractor's bond for material furnished cannot be maintained if an action against the contractor is barred. Towle v. Sweeney, 2 Cal. App. 29, 83 P. 74. Where the principal claim is barred, incidental equitable rights are also barred. Banks v. Stockton [Cal.] 87 P. 83.

8. Rev. St. 1899, § 4276, providing that no action to foreclose a mortgage shall be maintained after the debt is barred, is not retroactive. Martin v. Teasdale [Mo. App.] 92 S. W. 133.

9. Rev. St. 1899, § 4672, providing that a bar of the debt bars the security, does not apply to a suit to enforce the assignment of a life policy under an assignment thereof as security. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Kansas City Nat. Bank [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 195.

10. Interest coupons attached to a bond. First Nat. Bank v. Park [Colo.] 86 P. 106.

11. A mortgagee's claim for advances made by him to protect his security is barred in two years, though his secured claim is not barred and is continued by giving a new note. Churchill v. Woodworth, 148 Cal. 669, 84 P. 155.

12. Where a lien for an assessment is by statute made perpetual, an action to foreclose it is not barred though an action on the assessment as a debt may be. City of Hartford v. Mechanic's Sav. Bank [Conn.] 63 A. 658.

13. See 6 C. L. 482.

14. Where a judgment recovered by an administrator was barred prior to his death, it was barred as to an assignee. Doty v. Jameson, 29 Ky. L. R. 507, 93 S. W. 688.

15. See 6 C. L. 482. Where an opponent claiming the proceeds of a sale on execution allowed the statute to run against his rights against the debtor, his rights as against a creditor who received the proceeds of the sale were also barred. Succession of Marchand, 116 La. 207, 40 So. 637.

16. Claim against the state is subject to the same statute as it would be if against a private person. McRae v. Auditor General [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 895, 109 N. W. 1122. Runs in favor of the state where there is an available remedy. Claim for local assessments on state property. City of Buffalo v. State, 101 N. Y. S. 595.

17. Directors of a national bank are not technical trustees, and after they cease to be directors may plead limitations to a suit by a receiver to recover losses sustained by their negligence or malfeasance. Emerson v. Gaither, 103 Md. 564, 64 A. 26.

18. Where one agreed to credit another's account and had in fact made such application, he could not afterward assert that the claim was barred. Lowry v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 90, 94 S. W. 450. Where parties under a deed construed it to convey a life estate and remainder and such construction was acted on for a long period of years, one of them could not assert that it created estates in common. Swinebroad v. Wood, 29 Ky. L. R. 1202, 97 S. W. 25.

19. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Pratt [Kan.] 85 P. 141.

20. See 6 C. L. 483.

21. Scott v. Christenson, 46 Or. 417, 80 P. 731; Towle v. Sweeney, 2 Cal. App. 29, 83 P. 74; Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002; Croan v. Baden [Kan.] 85 P. 532; Blocker v. McClendon [Ind. T.] 98 S. W. 166. A plaintiff need not anticipate the defense of limitation and set up facts in avoidance thereof. Swinebroad v. Wood, 29 Ky. L. R. 1202, 97 S. W. 25. Must be set up by answer and not by demurrer. Hodgdon v. Haverhill [Mass.] 79 N. E. 818; Curry v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 42 So. 447; Jolly v. Miller [Ky.] 98 S. W. 326; McCormick v. Perry, 29 Ky. L. R. 420, 93 S. W. 607. Complaint in replevin to recover

Indulgence will not be granted to a party who fails in due time and proper form to invoke the protection of the statute.[23] If, however, the complaint shows on its face that the cause of action stated is barred, the defense may be set up by demurrer.[24] The plea must state facts showing the cause to be barred.[25] It is sufficient if set forth in the form of the statute.[26] The subdivision of the section relied on need not be designated,[27] but the particular statute relied upon must be.[28] A complaint for an apparently barred cause must set up facts showing that it falls within an exception,[29] and, if the statute is pleaded, such facts must be set up in the reply.[30]

Whether the statute has run is a question of law.[31] One relying on the statute stolen goods held not subject to demurrer. Gatlin v. Vaut [Ind. T.] 91 S. W. 38. Must be specially pleaded in a suit to foreclose a mortgage. Livingston v. New England Mortg. Sec. Co., 77 Ark. 379, 91 S. W. 752. Must be specially pleaded unless the complaint shows on its face that the cause stated is barred. Betz v. Wilson [Okl.] 87 P. 844. The statute must be specially pleaded unless the facts that raise it appear to be admitted. Easton Nat. Bank v. American Brick & Tile Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 917. The defense is affirmative and must be specially pleaded. Perkins v. Morgan [Colo.] 85 P. 640. In New York the statement contained in an alternative writ of mandamus is subject to the same rules as pleading, and the objection that the right to relief asked is barred must be taken in the return or by demurrer, and not by motion to dismiss. People v. Bingham, 99 N. Y. S. 593.

22. Must be pleaded in equity. Strayhorn v. McCall [Ark.] 95 S. W. 455. Must be pleaded in a suit to have a deed reformed. Swinebroad v. Wood, 29 Ky. L. R. 1202, 97 S. W. 25.

23. May not assert it on appeal. Easton Nat. Bank v. American Brick & Tile Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 917; Matlock v. Stone, 77 Ark. 195, 91 S. W. 553. Refusal of permission to amend by pleading the statute held not an abuse of discretion. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002.

24. If it appears from the complaint that the action is barred, the defense may be raised by demurrer. Fay v. Costa, 2 Cal. App. 241, 83 P. 275. The defense cannot be raised by demurrer unless the complaint shows the cause to be barred, and also the facts necessary to take it out of exceptions to the statute. Gatlin v. Vaut [Ind. T.] 91 S. W. 38.

25. Plea of the statute held sufficient where it set up that the complaint showed the cause to be barred and set out facts by which the cause was barred. Evans v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 812, 92 S. W. 47. Pleading held to insufficiently set forth the bar of the statute as a defense. Cox v. American Freehold & Land Mortg. Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 739. A plea that an amendment states "another and different cause of action" is equivalent to one that it states "a new and different cause" where the original complaint stated no cause of action. McAndrews v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 222 Ill. 232, 78 N. E. 603. How the statute of limitations may be successfully pleaded as a defense to an action to quiet title. Chambers v. Wilcox, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 269.

Held insufficient: In an action against husband and wife for supplies used in the family, an answer setting up that none of the supplies furnished within the past six years were used in the family is insufficient to show that the statute was relied upon. Perkins v. Morgan [Colo.] 85 P. 640. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 381, limiting actions on sealed instruments to ten years, an answer suggesting that the action is not on a sealed instrument is demurrable. Burstein v. Levy, 49 Misc. 469, 98 N. Y. S. 853.

26. A plea in effect the form prescribed by the Code is sufficient. Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Hill [Ala.] 40 So. 612.

27. Mullenary v. Burton [Cal. App.] 84 P. 159. It is sufficient to set up the statute. The particular section relied on need not be specified. Fay v. Costa, 2 Cal. App. 241, 83 P. 275.

28. A plea of the six year statute is not unavailing when the three year statute is applicable. Ramsden v. Gately, 142 F. 912.

29. Under the rule that an action for fraud does not accrue until discovery thereof, a complaint alleging that the fraud was not discovered until within the statutory period is not demurrable. Alexander v. Cleland [N. M.] 86 P. 425. A pleading which shows a cause of action for fraud to be barred must show that the fraud was not discovered and could not, by the exercise of ordinary diligence, have been discovered within the period. Kramer v. Gille, 140 F. 682. Where a complaint shows on its face that the cause of action stated is barred, it is not rendered sufficient as against demurrer by the fact that it is brought by a next friend, there being no allegation that complainants were under disability. Thames v. Mangum, 87 Miss. 575, 40 So. 327 The fact that the plaintiff set up that his cause of action was concealed and that he did not know of it is a conclusion and insufficient and not binding on demurrer. Thornton v. Natchez [Miss.] 41 So. 498.

30. No defense to the plea of limitations is raised by traversing it. Jolly v. Miller [Ky.] 98 S. W. 326. Disabilities must be pleaded in order to be relied upon as tolling the statute. Lamberida v. Barnum [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 434, 90 S. W. 698. Coverture is not available as a defense to the plea when it is not pleaded by reply. Lawder v. Larkin [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 809, 94 S. W. 171. One who desires to take the case out of the statute because of undiscovered fraud must plead such fact. Keese v. Dewey, 111 App. Div. 16, 97 N. Y. S. 519.

has the burden of proving that the cause is barred,[32] and one who relies on an exception to the statute must prove that the case falls within the exception.[33]

LIMITED PARTNERSHIP; LIQUIDATED DAMAGES, see latest topical index.

LIS PENDENS.

General Rule (791).
Statutory Lis Pendens (792).
Property Within the Rule (793).
Continuity of Lis Pendens (793).

General rule.[34]—The rule that a purchaser pendente lite of property in litigation takes subject to the event of the action[35] is of legal origin and does not rest on equitable doctrines of notice,[36] nor is the doctrine peculiar to courts of equity.[37] A lis pendens affects not only a purchaser from a party but also those who hold under him,[38] and applies as well to purchasers from the plaintiff as from the defendant.[39] A purchaser at a tax sale, having actual notice of the pendency of an action for possession of the property, is to be treated as a purchaser pendente lite;[40] as is a judgment creditor whose rights as an incumbrancer are acquired during the existence of the lis pendens,[41] or a purchaser of the property at a judicial sale had in execution of a judgment in favor of a person whose interests in the property sold are affected by the lis pendens.[42] A pendente lite incumbrancer cannot take advantage of

31. Munn v. Masonic Life Ass'n, 101 N. Y. S. 91. Where the statute is set up, the court must determine the issue from the facts connected with the transaction out of which the action arose, whether presented in the form of an agreed statement or by evidence. Towle v. Sweeney, 2 Cal. App. 29, 83 P. 74. The finding on an issue of limitations is a conclusion of law and does not cease to be such because found among the findings of fact. Id. Where a demurrer to a plea of the statute is sustained and no leave to plead over is obtained, there is no issue of fact as to the statute. Gilmore v. Chicago, 224 Ill. 490, 79 N. E. 596.

32. The defendant has the burden to prove his plea of limitations. Green v. Dodge [Vt.] 64 A. 499. The defendant has the burden to prove the defense when it is in issue. Van Burg v. Van Engen [Neb.] 107 N. W. 1006. Where the defense is pleaded, the plaintiff has the burden to show that the action was commenced in time. Swing v. St. Louis Refrigerator & Wooden Gutter Co. [Ark.] 93 S. W. 978.

33. Plaintiff has the burden to prove matter set up as taking the case out of the operation of the statute. Gatlin v. Vaut [Ind. T.] 91 S. W. 38. One who is sued on a promise to repay a loan "when he is able" has the burden to prove ability to pay more than the statutory period prior to the commencement of the action. Porter v. Magnetic Separator Co., 100 N. Y. S. 888. Where he shows his assets, the plaintiff is entitled to show that they were not available to pay debts. Id. Evidence held to show that an action on notes was barred. Evans v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 812, 92 S. W. 47. Where title is alleged by regular chain from the sovereign and by virtue of the statutes of limitation, either or both titles may be proven. Alford Bros. v. Williams [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 778, 91 S. W. 636. Where suit is brought for a balance due on an account and a copy of the account taken from the books of defendant does not show such relations between the parties as will afford an answer to a plea of the statute and no other evidence is afforded, the plea is properly maintained, especially where the action is against the administrator of a succession and is brought after what appears an unnecessary delay. Succession of Gragard, 116 La. 96, 40 So. 543. A plaintiff on a barred note who alleges partial payment tolling the statute has the burden to prove such payment. Scott v. Christenson, 46 Or. 417, 80 P. 731. A plaintiff who in making out his case shows his cause of action to be barred has the burden of showing facts which take it out of the statute. Ryan v. Canton Nat. Bank, 103 Md. 428, 63 A. 1062.

34. See 6 C. L. 484.

35. Latta v. Wiley [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 92 S. W. 433; Bank v. Doherty, 42 Wash. 317, 84 P. 872. Lis pendens is simply a rule to give effect to the rights ultimately established by the judgment. McVay v. Tousley [S. D.] 105 N. W. 932; Wingfield v. Neal [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 47. A purchaser pendente lite occupies no better position than his vendor. Cannot enforce specific performance of option contract when his vendor cannbt by reason of violation of the terms of the contract. Bennett v. Giles, 220 Ill. 393, 77 N. E. 214.

36. Latta v. Wiley [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 92 S. W. 433; Bridger v. Exchange Bank, 126 Ga. 821, 56 S. E. 97.

37. Latta v. Wiley [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 92 S. W. 433.

38, 39. Bridger v. Exchange Bank, 126 Ga. 821, 56 S. E. 97.

40. Hicks v. Porter [Tex. Civ. App.] 85 S. W. 437.

41, 42. Bridger v. Exchange Bank, 126 Ga. 821, 56 S. E. 97.

mere formal defects to defeat the judgment or decree.[43] While a suit is not lis pendens as to the unlitigated rights of coparties between themselves in the subject-matter[44] but only as to their united rights against the adversary,[45] yet, one who comes into the adversary's rights under the decree will prevail against the coparty's transferee.[46] The failure of the clerk of the court, when suit is filed, to enter on the file docket the object of the suit, cannot prejudice the defendant, or, as to him, affect the rule of lis pendens.[47] The burden is on those asserting the validity of a judgment over pendente lite purchaser to show that the rule lis pendens was effective.[48]

Statutory lis pendens.[49]—The notice provided by statute ordinarily takes the place of such notice as theretofore arose by operation of law,[50] being considered not as constructive notice but as affording a convenient method of enforcing the common-law doctrine of lis pendens.[51] Hence, when the action has ceased to be pending under the law of lis pendens, the statutory notice ceases to be effectual for any purpose.[52] The filing of lis pendens notice under a statute does not usually have any retroactive effect,[53] but it is held in New York that as there is no property right in a lis pendens, a law permitting cancellation of the notice may be made applicable to cases in which notices were filed prior to the taking effect of the law.[54] The decisions are inharmonious as to whether the holder of an unrecorded deed acquires title without reference to a subsequent lis pendens as to a litigant having no notice of the deed.[55] A statute making the record and filing of lis pendens notice of the

43. The fact that the sheriff, by his notice, levied on and sold the interest of defendants in lands, sought to be partitioned, for costs duly decreed on appeal in the suit, following the usual form of blank used on levy of execution, is of no avail to one taking an incumbrance on the land with full knowledge of the pendency of the suit. Barbour v. Patterson [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 605, 108 N. W. 973.

44. Mayes v. Rust [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 485, 94 S. W. 110. A suit by joint claimants against claimants adverse to both is not lis pendens as to the several rights which the joint tenants had wholly between themselves and not in litigation. Hence, a pendente lite purchaser from one of the joint claimants is not solely, by reason of a decree awarding a share severally to the other joint claimant, bound not to dispute such share. Id.

45. Mayes v. Rust [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 485, 94 S. W. 110.

46. Mayes v. Rust [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 485, 94 S. W. 110. When a decree is entered pursuant to compromise and is therefore tantamount to a conveyance by the paramount adversary to one joint claimant severally, such joint claimant acquires against his coclaimant the strength of the adversary's title. Id.

47. Latta v. Wiley [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 92 S. W. 433.

48. Humphrey v. Beaumont Irr. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 677, 93 S. W. 180.

49. See 6 C. L. 486.

50. Latta v. Wiley [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 92 S. W. 433.

51. The filing of notice under Rev. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 108, 109, it is held in South Dakota, is designed to effect the result of precluding any change in the subject-matter to the prejudice of the plaintiff during the pendency of the action, not to give constructive notice of the plaintiff's claim as does the recording of a deed or mortgage. McVay v. Tousley [S. D.] 105 N. W. 932.

52. Purchasers after suit had been dismissed without final judgment having been rendered therein held not bound as purchasers pendente lite. McVay v. Tousley [S. D.] 105 N. W. 932.

53. A vendee, under an unrecorded contract for the sale of lands entitling him to possession, who has paid only part of the purchase price before the filing of a lis pendens notice under Gen. St. 1894, § 5866, is not injuriously affected by the notice (Moulton v. Kolodzik, 97 Minn. 423, 107 N. W. 154); but when he come to pay the balance of the price, after the notice is filed and he has legal knowledge of the lis pendens, he may protect himself against a payment to the wrong party by agreement, paying the money into court or otherwise (Id.).

54. Laws 1905, p. 71, c. 60, construed. Bressel v. Browning, 109 App. Div. 588, 96 N. Y. S. 402.

55. Minnesota: The rule that the holder of an unrecorded deed acquires title without reference to a lis pendens subsequently filed is applicable to unrecorded executory contract to convey. Moulton v. Kolodzik, 97 Minn. 423, 107 N. W. 154.

Oregon: Holders of unrecorded assignment of certificate of purchase of real property held bound by decree foreclosing street grade assessment, under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4887. Wright v. Jessup [Wash.] 87. P. 930.

Texas: One claiming under an unrecorded deed at the time suit is commenced involving title to the land conveyed thereby is a pendente lite purchaser as to litigant having no liens, rights, and interests involved in the proceeding, protects costs in a partition suit,[56] even though such costs are decreed on appeal.[57] The New York statute expressly makes a notice of lis pendens binding on subsequent purchasers and incumbrancers to the same extent as if parties,[58] but this does not extend the doctrine of res judicata to persons not parties. It embraces only such matters as were actually litigated, and binds only to the extent of proceedings actually taken.[59] Hence, a purchaser or incumbrancer pendente lite is not deprived of the right to litigate any issue not raised or passed on or involved in any proceeding taken in the action.[60] A purchaser pendente lite before leaving of lis pendens notice with the clerk, as required in Virginia, is bound by the notice when it is left with the clerk prior to recording his deed.[61] When an action is brought to recover a judgment affecting the title to, or the possession, use, or enjoyment of, real property, the statutory right to file notice of lis pendens is absolute in New York.[62] Usually, actual notice obviates the necessity for statutory notice.[63] Statutes requiring the filing of notice of lis pendens in actions affecting real property do not supersede or control statutes in relation to the same subject applicable to a particular class of actions making no such requirement,[64] nor is a statute requiring the filing of lis pendens in suits brought to charge real estate, applicable in suits to enforce rights in choses in action.[65]

Property within the rule.[66]—As a general rule the doctrine does not apply to suits involving the right to personalty,[67] but, under some circumstances, the rule has been held to apply to suits involving mere choses.[68]

Continuity of lis pendens.[69]—Lis pendens does not begin until service of citation or process or such voluntary appearance as gives the court jurisdiction.[70] In notice of the existence of the deed. Bryson v. Boyce [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 651, 92 S. W. 820.

56. Comp. Laws 1897, § 8980. Barbour v. Patterson [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 605, 108 N. W. 973.

57. Barbour v. Patterson [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 605, 108 N. W. 973.

58. Code Civ. Proc. § 1671. Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. Title Guaranty & Trust Co., 50 Misc. 51, 100 N. Y. S. 299.

59, 60. Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. Title Guaranty & Trust Co., 50 Misc. 51, 100 N. Y. S. 299.

61. Code 1887, § 3566 [Va. Code 1904, p. 1903]. Breeden v. Peale [Va.] 55 S. E. 2.

62. Code Civ. Proc. § 1670. M. Linheim & Co. v. Central Nat. Realty & Const. Co., 111 App. Div. 275, 97 N. Y. S. 619.

63. Where a purchaser has notice of the pending suit or lien being asserted in it, it is the same so far as he is concerned as if the lis pendens notice had been filed. Thompson's Ex'rs v. Stiltz, 29 Ky. L. R. 1075, 96 S. W. 884.

64. May v. Sutherlin, 41 Wash. 609, 84 P. 585. Pendente lite purchaser held bound by judgment in action for recovery of real estate, notwithstanding failure to file notice of lis pendens under Code 1881, § 61, or Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 488, in view of particular application of §§ 5515, 5518, Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. Id.

65. Code 1899, c. 139, § 12, construed. Dent v. Pickens, 59 W. Va. 274, 53 S. E. 154.

66. See 6 C. L. 486.

67. It is held in South Dakota that the doctrine is inapplicable where the possession of personalty is the object of a suit capable of being aided by the usual auxiliary remedies. As claim and delivery, etc. (Calkins v. First Nat. Bank [S. D.] 107 N. W. 675), but that, while one taking a chattel mortgage on personalty pendente lite, with notice, actual or constructive, of the pendency of the action, is bound by the judgment under the statutes of that state [Rev. Civ. Code, §§ 2449-2452] (Id.), the converse is true as to an incumbrancer pendente lite without notice, actual or constructive, of the pendency of the action (Id.).

68. The rule extends to non-negotiable choses in action and funds for the subjection of which to the payment of a debt a suit in equity has been instituted. Dent v. Pickens, 59 W. Va. 274, 53 S. E. 154. Where an insurance company takes over the risks of another company and the latter fails to disclose the pendency of an action for reinstatement by a member whose risk is not reported as one to be assumed, the doctrine applies to bind the reinsurer by the decree of reinstatement. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Bolles, 120 Ill. App. 242.

69. See 6 C. L. 487.

70. Service by publication on nonresident under Rev. St. 1895, art. 1235, held insufficient to put lis pendens in force. Humphrey v. Beaumont Irr. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 677, 93 S. W. 180. Record held to show no service of process on or entry of appearance by defendant as putting lis pendens in force. Id. A sale before citation, served on the grantor, is not affected by the rule. Sparks v. Taylor [Tex.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 506, 90 S. W. 485.

Georgia the rule is applicable from the time the petition is filed and docketed when followed by the issuance and service of process and due prosecution.[71] Lis pendens operates only so long as the suit is diligently prosecuted,[72] but a purchaser pendente lite from the party charged with the prosecution of the suit cannot avoid the rule of lis pendens on the ground of his vendor's inexcusable delay,[73] nor will incorrect advice of counsel excuse an unreasonable delay.[74] Neglect to proceed entitles any person aggrieved to cancellation of notice of lis pendens, filed under the New York statute,[75] unless a defendant wrongfully prevents service of process by refusing to disclose his whereabouts or place of residence,[76] and the court may direct the cancellation of notice of lis pendens and substitute an undertaking or deposit when it is made to appear that only money damages are recoverable,[77] but not, however, when the right to relief against particular property is doubtful.[78] On a motion to cancel a lis pendens it is held in New York that the court is not authorized to look into the facts as on a trial nor search the complaint as on demurrer.[79] The right to retain the notice of pendency of actions must be determined on the allegations of the complaint or facts clearly established.[80] Notice of lis pendens when filed holds good until the determination of the case,[81] but there is a contrariety of opinion as to when lis pendens ends.[82, 83] As to the plaintiff's complaint and pleas

71. Bridger v. Exchange Bank, 126 Ga. 821, 56 S. E. 97.

72. Woodward v. Johnson, 28 Ky. L. R. 1091, 90 S. W. 1076. A similar rule would seem to apply to a cross complaint, creating a new lis pendens when filed, if there be laches on the part of the person filing it in failing to duly prosecute it. Bridger v. Exchange Bank, 126 Ga. 821, 56 S. E. 97. The protection afforded to a plaintiff under the doctrine that lis pendens is notice to all the world may be lost by a failure on his part to prosecute his action with due diligence. Id. Delay of thirty years is as matter of law fatal laches. Woodward v. Johnson, 28 Ky. L. R. 1091, 90 S. W. 1076. Gross negligence in the prosecution of a suit by which others have been permitted to acquire rights in its subject-matter estops a party to a suit as against purchasers for value to rely on lis pendens. Id. The disturbed condition of the country from 1860 to 1870 is held in Texas to be sufficient excuse for delay in the trial of a cause then pending. Humphrey v. Beaumont Irr. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 677, 93 S. W. 180. The delay which may relieve a purchaser from the rule must proceed from gross or inexcusable negligence (Latta v. Wiley [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 92 S. W. 433), and is usually one of fact and not of law (Id.). Mere lapse of time in which the party who ought to prosecute an action has failed to do so, though it may be for a considerable period, is not conclusive, but may be explained by showing a reasonable excuse for the delay. Bridger v. Exchange Bank, 126 Ga. 821, 56 S. E. 97.

73. Latta v. Wiley [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 92 S. W. 433.

74. Party erroneously advised by counsel not to purchase at judicial sale so long as squatters were in possession, because such purchase would violate champerty statute. Woodward v. Johnson, 28 Ky. L. R. 1091, 90 S. W. 1076.

75. Code Civ. Proc. § 1674. Lindheim & Co. v. Central Nat. Realty & Const. Co., 111 App. Div. 275, 97 N. Y. S. 619. Failure to follow filing of notice within 60 days by either personal service or the publication of summons entitles defendant to cancellation of the notice. Lipschitz v. Watson, 113 App. Div. 408, 99 N. Y. S. 418.

76. Levy v. Kon, 100 N. Y. S. 205.

77. Laws 1905, p. 71, c. 60, held applicable in suit for specific performance of contract for sale of realty which the complaint showed to be impossible to procure. Bressel v. Browning, 109 App. Div. 588, 96 N. Y. S. 402.

78. A doubtful right to specific performance of contract for sale of realty will not permit of a cancellation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1671, as amended by Laws 1905, p. 71, c. 60. Tishman v. Acritelli, 111 App. Div. 237, 97 N. Y. S. 668; Wolinsky v. Okun, 111 App. Div. 536, 97 N. Y. S. 943; McCrum v. Lex Realty Co., 113 App. Div. 58, 98 N. Y. S. 1021; Kennedy v. Hall, 99 N. Y. S. 162. Lis pendens notice will not be canceled where the action is for specific performance of a contract for the sale of real property prior to the determination of the issue whether the title offered was marketable. Mishkind-Feinberg Realty Co. v. Sidorsky, 100 N. Y. S. 714. Code Civ. Proc. § 1671, as amended by Laws 1905, p. 71, c. 60, held inapplicable in suit to cancel conveyance of realty and surrender lease thereof. Schenkein v. Horowitz, 99 N. Y. S. 161.

79. Lindheim & Co. v. Central Nat. Realty & Const. Co., 111 App. Div. 275, 97 N. Y. S. 619; McCrum v. Lex Realty Co., 113 App. Div. 58, 98 N. Y. S. 1021; Werner v. Jackson, 100 N. Y. S. 763.

80. Tishman v. Acritelli, 111 App. Div. 237, 97 N. Y. S. 668; Schenkein v. Horowitz, 99 N. Y. S. 161; Kennedy v. Hall, 99 N. Y. S. 162; Werner v. Jackson, 100 N. Y. S. 763.

81. Hyde v. Heaton [Wash.] 86 P. 664.

82, 83. Missouri: A suit is pending until the expiration of the time for filing a bill of exceptions. Board of Trustees of Westmins-or answers to it defensive in character and seeking merely to prevent a recovery, the lis pendens arises in favor of the defendant, as against a purchaser from the plaintiff, from the time of the commencement of the plaintiff's action,[84] but as to a cross action or cross complaint by the defendant, setting up affirmative rights and praying affirmative relief against the plaintiff, the lis pendens begins from the filing of such cross action or cross complaint.[85] The loss of the papers in a case has no effect on the operation of lis pendens,[86] nor a change of venue where made by agreement of the parties.[87] Dismissal of the main action does not interfere with the rule so as to give purchasers from defendant, whose cross bill was pending at the time of the purchase, other rights than as purchasers pendente lite.[88]

LITERARY PROPERTY; LIVERY STABLE KEEPERS; LIVE STOCK INSURANCE; LLOYD'S; LOAN AND TRUST COMPANIES; LOANS; LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS AND ASSESSMENTS; LOCAL OPTION; LOGS AND LOGGING; LOST INSTRUMENTS; LOST PROPERTY, see latest topical index.

LOTTERIES.

What constitutes.[89]—A lottery is a scheme for the distribution of property by chance among persons who have paid, or agreed to pay, a valuable consideration for the chance.[90] Chance is an essential element of a lottery or gift enterprise.[91]

Recovery back of losses.—One having a proprietary interest in a lottery cannot enforce a civil remedy against the assets of the concern provided for those who lose money in lotteries.[92]

Offenses and prosecution.—The offenses of establishing a lottery and disposing of property by lottery are distinct under the Texas Code.[93] The transaction of a ter College v. Fry, 192 Mo. 552, 91 S. W. 472.

Texas: Where writ of error is sued out within the period required by law, lis pendens continues. Bryson v. Boyce [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 651, 92 S. W. 820.

West Virginia: A suit as a lis pendens ends with final decree. Dunfee v. Childs, 59 W. Va. 225, 53 S. E. 209. Hence, a bill of review or appeal to reverse such a decree is a new lis pendens as regards purchasers claiming title under the decree. Id. One who after final decree and before an appeal is obtained purchases in good faith property which is the subject of litigation is not affected by the lis pendens rule. Wingfield v. Neal [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 47. A purchaser for value without notice after final decree is not affected by reversal thereof on a subsequent appeal restricted to operate as a mere review. Perkins v. Pfalzgraff [W. Va.] 53 S. E. 913.

84, 85. Bridger v. Exchange Bank, 126 Ga. 821, 56 S. E. 97.

86. Latta v. Wiley [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 92 S. W. 433. When the papers in a case are lost, their contents may be shown by parol to establish that a purchase was made pendente lite. Id.

87. Latta v. Wiley [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 621, 92 S. W. 433.

88. Bryson v. Boyce, 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 651, 92 S. W. 820.

89. See 6 C. L. 487.

90. See 6 C. L. 487.

Schemes held to be lotteries: Diamond distributing concern held properly denied use of mails as lottery under Rev. St. §§ 3929, 4041, as amended by Act Sept. 19, 1890, c. 908, §§ 2, 3, 26 Stat. 466. Preferred Mercantile Co. v. Hibbard, 142 F. 877. Scheme for distribution of prizes to those who procure from packages of food product on the market a set of seven animal pictures, one of which is placed in each package. United States v. McKenna, 149 F. 252. Scheme for making purported "loans" dependent on chance as to the amount and making no provision for security as repayment, Jacobs v. People, 117 Ill. App. 195.

Held not to be lottery or gift enterprise: Trading stamp scheme. City & County of Denver v. Frueauff [Colo.] 88 P. 389.

91. Trading stamp scheme held lacking in element of chance to constitute it a gift enterprise. City & County of Denver v. Frueauff [Colo.] 88 P. 389. An ordinance prohibiting gift enterprises from which the element of chance is eliminated is unauthorized by statutory and constitutional provisions prohibiting the sale of lottery and gift enterprise tickets. Id.

92. The provisions of Rev. St. § 4271, for the recovery of money lost in lotteries, are not available to a purchaser of certificates commonly called debentures where the purchaser becomes a member of the corporation issuing the debentures and a part owner thereof and participates in the profits. Harrington v. Halliday, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 281 An allegation that a plaintiff, suing for the recovery of money lost in the purchase of debentures, has shares in the distribution of the assets of the company by its receivers constitutes, if proven, a pro tanto defense, lottery business through an agent is the setting up of the lottery at the place where the agent's transactions occur.[94] One concerned as agent in managing any policy lottery is punishable under the District of Columbia statutes without regard to the place where the principal office or shop may be located.[95] The Federal statutes prohibit the carrying of lottery tickets and the like from one state to another.[96] The general rules of criminal pleading apply as to certainty of the charge.[97] As a general rule evidence is admissible though illegally obtained.[98] Evidence of the commission of a different offense from that charged is without probative force to sustain a conviction.[99]

MAIMING; MAYHEM.[1]

One may be guilty of mayhem in shooting unlawfully at a third person but wounding a bystander against whom he had no homicidal intent which would make the crime an assault with intent to kill.[2]

MALICE; MALICIOUS ABUSE OF PROCESS, see latest topical index.

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF.[3]

To constitute malicious mischief at common law, the act must have destroyed the property[4] and must have been committed with malice towards the owner.[5] Under the West Virginia statute, the extent of the injury must be such as to impair the utility or diminish the value of the property.[6] An electric street car is personalty within a statute penalizing a wanton and willful injury to the personal property of another.[7] The offense created by the Alabama statute prohibiting the injuring or defacing of public or private buildings is one against the possession only and and also states the further defensive fact that the plaintiff was a part owner of the business. Id.

93. Pen. Code, art. 373. Howard v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 696, 91 S. W. 785.

94. Jacobs v. People, 117 Ill. App. 195.

95. Code, art. 863, construed. Knoll v. U. S. 26 App. D. C. 457.

96. A scheme for the distribution of prizes to those who procure from packages of food product on the market a set of seven animal pictures, one of which is placed in each package, held violative of Rev. St. § 3929 (Act March 2, 1895, c. 191, 28 Stat. 964). United States v. McKenna, 149 F. 252.

97. Indictment for being concerned as agent in managing a policy lottery following language of Code, art. 863, held sufficiently certain. Knoll v. U. S., 26 App. D. C. 457. Where the offense of being an agent in managing a policy lottery is charged in the language of the statute and it is averred "A more particular description whereof is unknown to the grand jurors," the indictment is sufficiently certain. Id. Policy lottery, or policy, as it is sometimes called, has a common, well-understood meaning. Hence it is unnecessary to set out in indictment of agent ordinary constituent features of the game or device. Id.

98. Lottery papers taken by search warrant, even though illegally taken, are admissible on a prosecution for setting up and promoting the lottery. Jacobs v. People, 117 Ill. App. 195.

99. On a prosecution under Pen. Code, art. 373, for establishing a lottery, evidence that defendant was seen at one time with money in his hand in the house where many people were assembled and betting at the lottery has no tendency to prove the charge (Howard v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 696, 91 S. W. 785), and the same is true as to evidence that he at one time turned the policy wheel which could have been done by one of the interested parties or by any one designated by the holders of the tickets. Id. On a prosecution for establishing a lottery in violation of Pen. Code, art. 373, evidence held insufficient to warrant conviction. Id.

1. See 6 C. L. 489.

2. The wound being inflicted under circumstances which would have constituted murder or manslaughter if the man had died, defendant is guilty of violating Rev. St. 1899, § 1849, defining mayhem. State v. Mulhall [Mo.] 97 S. W. 583.

3. See 6 C. L. 489.

4, 5. State v. Martin, 141 N. C. 832, 53 S. E. 874.

6. Fraudulently remaining on a train without more not sufficient under Code 1906, c. 145, § 27. Davis v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 400.

7. Revisal 1905, § 3676. State v. Martin, 141 N. C. 832, 53 S. E. 874.

does not involve ownership.[8] One who removes a building from his own property is not guilty of willful injury to real estate.[9]

The essential facts must be charged that the property was of value and that the act was malicious,[10] but under the Georgia statute the indictment need not allege that the owner of the property injured suffered loss or damage or that the property was of any stated value.[11] An allegation of ownership is not necessary where the offense is against the possession only.[12] A statement of the value of a building alleged to have been a part of the realty and to have been injured by the accused is sufficient without alleging the value of the land.[13] An indictment is not objectionable for charging several defendants with committing the offense jointly.[14] The court is not bound to require an election between counts which are so much alike that no possible injury can result to accused from a failure to do so.[15]

Ownership of the property injured or destroyed must be proved as charged.[16] If the injured property be attached to realty, ownership will be inferred from proof of possession of the alleged owner,[17] but no possession being shown, proof of title to property so attached cannot be made by a mere oral statement of the witness that he was the owner.[18] It will be presumed that the court charged the jury fully and correctly and that the jury found all the facts necessary to constitute the crime.[19] Evidence which merely raises a suspicion of guilt is not sufficient.[20]

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION AND ABUSE OF PROCESS.

§ 1. Nature and Elements of the Wrong (797).
A. Malicious Prosecution (797).
B. Abuse of Process (798).
§ 2. Responsibility of Defendant for the Prosecution or Suit and His Participation Therein (799).
§ 3. The Prosecution of the Plaintiff (799).
§ 4. Termination of Prosecution in Plaintiff's Favor (800).
§ 5. Want of Reasonable and Probable Cause (800).
§ 6. Malice (801).
§ 7. Advice of Private Counsel, Prosecuting Attorney, or Magistrate (802).
§ 8. Damages (803).
§ 9. General Matters of Pleading and Practice (804). The Burden of Proof (805). Evidence (806).

§ 1. Nature and elements of the wrong. A. Malicious prosecution.[21]—The five (sometimes stated as three) elements of the tort are: a prosecution, the

8. Defendant cannot inquire as to whether an occupant was rightfully in possession. Code 1896, § 5620. Perry v. State [Ala.] 43 So. 18.

9. The original purchaser of land is the holder of the legal title thereto after a foreclosure of the vendor's lien thereon, but before sale under the foreclosure so that his act in removing a building therefrom is not a violation of a statute prohibiting willful injury to real estate. Price v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 713, 92 S. W. 811.

10. Indictment under Code 1858, § 4652, subsec. 14 (Shannon's Code, § 6496), for mutilating and destroying election tickets, held bad for failing to state that tickets were "valuable papers" and that conduct of accused was malicious. State v. Click, 116 Tenn. 283, 90 S. W. 855.

11. Indictment under Pen. Code 1895, § 729, punishing willful and malicious injuring or destroying public or private property. Holder v. State [Ga.] 56 S. E. 71.

12. Indictment under Code 1896, § 5620. Perry v. State [Ala.] 43 So. 18.

13. Prosecution under Pen. Code 1895, art. 791. Price v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 713, 92 S. W. 811.

14. Perry v. State [Ala.] 43 So. 18.

15. Where one count charged the cutting of a fence and one charged the cutting of a part of the fence. Henderson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 96 S. W. 37.

16, 17. Holder v. State [Ga.] 56 S. E. 71.

18. Parol statement that a fence attached to realty was "the property" of a named person should have been excluded. Holder v. State [Ga.] 56 S. E. 71.

19. Where it was claimed that the evidence tended to show that a rock was thrown by accused impulsively at the conductor of a car under the influence of a sudden passion, but so far as the record showed the jury might have found under proper instructions that it was the deliberate intention to injure the car. State v. Martin, 141 N. C. 832, 53 S. E. 874.

20. Insufficient to sustain conviction for entering and defacing a school house. Weatherford v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 91 S. W. 591.

responsibility of defendant for it, the want of probable cause, malice, and a termination in the now plaintiff's favor.[22] The necessity that each of these elements be found frequently takes expression in the rule that malice will not be presumed in law from want of probable cause, though inferable by the jury, or the rule that the two must concur.[23] These expressions are usually looked on as exceptions to the sufficiency of evidence to go to the jury.[24] There are dicta that the action for malicious prosecution is not favored in law[25] unless oppression and malice is shown,[26] but it has been held proper to refuse to instruct the jury that it is not favored.[27] Unlike abuse of process,[28] malicious prosecution does not rest on any perversion or ulterior use of legal process.[29] A valid arrest distinguishes malicious prosecution from false imprisonment,[30] and important elements of malicious prosecution are absent in false imprisonment.[31] Damage is presumed from proof of the wrong.[32]

(§ 1) B. Abuse of process.[33]—There is abuse of process where a party, under process legally and properly issued, employs it wrongfully and unlawfully and not for the purpose it is intended.[34] Willful misuse of process to the injury of plaintiff is essential.[35] There must be shown an ulterior purpose[36] and some act done in the use of the process not proper in the regular prosecution of the case,[37] but it is not necessary to show a want of probable cause[38] nor malice,[39] nor that the proceeding has terminated;[40] but a mere malicious use of legal process, otherwise within one's rights, does not amount to abuse of process,[41] nor does a mere seizure of one's prop-

21. See 6 C. L. 490. See, also, exhaustive monograph 4 C. L. 471.

22. See definition, 4 C. L. 471. See, also, dicta in Russell v. Chamberlain [Idaho] 85 P. 926; Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320; Pierce v. Doolittle, 130 Iowa, 333, 106 N. W. 751; Staples v. Johnson, 25 App. D. C. 155; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wakefield Hardware Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 422; Whitesell v. Study [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1010. Where plaintiff was a passenger on a street car and growing out of an altercation with the conductor as to payment of fare the latter made a criminal charge against plaintiff to procure his arrest, whereupon an officer took plaintiff and locked him up, it was indispensable to plaintiff's right of action against the carrier to show a termination of the criminal charge in his favor. Leonard v. St. Louis Transit Co., 115 Mo. App. 349, 91 S. W. 452.

23. Davis v. McMillan, 142 Mich. 391, 12 Det. Leg. N. 771, 105 N. W. 862; Ton v. Stetson [Wash.] 86 P. 668; Staples v. Johnson, 25 App. D. C. 155; Gaither v. Carpenter [N. C.] 55 S. E. 625; Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Stewart [Ind.] 79 N. E. 490.

24. As to that, see post, §§ 2-7, 9.

25. Hence it has been hedged about by limitations more stringent than in the case of almost any other act causing damage to another. Russell v. Chamberlain [Idaho] 85 P. 926.

26. Gaither v. Carpenter [N. C.] 55 S. E. 625.

27. Reynolds v. Dunlap [Kan.] 84 P. 720.

28. See post, § 1 B.

29. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815.

30. Ring v. Mitchell, 45 Misc. 493, 92 N. Y. S. 749. There is malicious prosecution when legal process, civil or criminal, is used out of malice and without probable cause, but only its regular execution is contemplated. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815. When arrest is under a legal warrant maliciously and without probable cause, followed by judicial investigation and discharge, malicious prosecution, rather than false imprisonment, is the tort committed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Thompson [C. C. A.] 144 F. 578.

31. The distinguishing features of false imprisonment and malicious prosecution, are that reasonable cause, absence of malice, and advice of counsel are immaterial in the former but are valid defenses in malicious prosecution. Pandjiris v. Hartman, 196 Mo. 539, 94 S. W. 270.

32. See post, § 8.

33. See 6 C. L. 490. See, also, exhaustive monograph, 4 C. L. 472, n. 95 et seq.

34. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wakefield Hardware Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 422.

35. Complaint held insufficient to charge abuse of process. McClerg v. Vielee, 102 N. Y. S. 45.

36. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815.

37. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815. In other words, a willful perversion of the process of the court to effect some collateral end and one not within the scope of the action when regularly and properly pursued. Id.

38. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wakefield Hardware Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 422, overruling a dictum in the same case in an earlier stage [138 N. C. 174, 50 S. E. 571, cited 6 C. L. 491, n. 10] to the effect that it was essential.

39. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wakefield Hardware Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 422.

40. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wakefield Hardware Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 422.

erty on execution against another, in the absence of malice, oppression, or injury in the manner, method, or hour of seizure, amount to actionable abuse of process.[42]

§ 2. Responsibility of defendant for the prosecution or suit and his participation therein.[43]—The principal is responsible for the act of his agent in beginning a prosecution,[44] hence a corporation may be liable.[45] A corporation, however, is not liable when the act of the employe is beyond the scope of his authorized employment, not authorized nor ratified by the company.[46] One committing the tort as agent is equally liable individually.[47] A levying officer, however, is not ordinarily an agent within this rule;[48] and conversely, an informer is not responsible where public officers without his procurement execute invalid process,[49] the tort, if any, being then a false arrest.[50] Affirmative ratification of the commencement of a prosecution by another is essential to charge one with malicious prosecution by such person as his agent.[51] One may be liable, though not the actual prosecutor, if he aided, abetted, and assisted in the prosecution,[52] and it is not essential that joint defendants were all active in the institution of the prosecution; they are liable if in malice and without probable cause they came in and participated.[53] Defendant is estopped to question the sufficiency of an affidavit and warrant which he himself made and on which plaintiff was arrested.[54] When plaintiff in a wrongful attachment directs a levy thereunder, he is liable with the officer making the levy as a cotrespasser.[55] It is no defense that plaintiff, through defendant's neglect, was charged with a crime different from that defendant intended.[56]

§ 3. The prosecution of the plaintiff.[57]—The now plaintiff must have been

41. Whitesell v. Study [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1010.

42. Williams v. Ellis, 101 Me. 247, 63 A. 818.

43. See 6 C. L. 491. See, also, exhaustive monograph, 4 C. L. 480. Responsibility of defendant as a jury question, see § 9.

44. Coyle v. Snellenburg, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 246.

45. A private corporation, like an individual, is liable for the acts of its agents in instituting a malicious prosecution, authorized or ratified by the corporation, or within the scope of the authority conferred. Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Stewart [Ind.] 79 N. E. 490. Where a warrant was sworn out for the arrest of a person charged with stealing from a railroad company solely on the information of one of the railroad's detectives, the detective is to be regarded as the agent of the railroad in that behalf. Evans v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 105 Va. 72, 53 S. E. 3.

46. Dobbins v. Little Rock R. & Elec. Co. [Ark.] 95 S. W. 794.

47. One charged with malicious prosecution as agent is liable therefor though the proof shows the prosecution by him was his individual act unauthorized by his principal. Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Stewart [Ind.] 79 N. E. 490. An individual is liable though in making the complaint he was acting as an officer of a corporation, and not in his private capacity. Murphy v. Eidlitz, 99 N. Y. S. 950.

48. An officer levying a writ unlawfully issued is not liable for the consequences of its issuance, as distinguished from an unlawful and oppressive levy, unless he participated in its procurement. Faroux v. Cornwell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 977, 90 S. W. 537.

49. Under Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. §§ 7010, 7012, which do not authorize the arrest of a person on a search warrant prior to its execution and finding the property sought in his possession, malicious prosecution will not lie for the arrest and imprisonment of a person on a search warrant prior to its execution where defendant as plaintiff in the search warrant proceeding neither counseled, authorized, nor approved, the illegal acts of the officers. Ton v. Stetson [Wash.] 86 P. 668.

50. Ton v. Stetson [Wash.] 86 P. 668.

51. Mere acquiescence by silence is insufficient. Shannon v. Sims [Ala.] 40 So. 574. Where the only evidence of ratification or authorization by defendant was the inference to be drawn from a conversation by plaintiff's husband with defendant soon after the arrest in which defendant remarked that plaintiff would not have been arrested had she not stolen the mortgage, it is insufficient to overcome the testimony of defendant and his alleged agent that there was no authorization or ratification. Id.

52. Baker v. Moore, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 301.

53. Russell v. Chamberlain [Idaho] 85 P. 926.

54. Rutherford v. Dyer [Ala.] 40 So. 974.

55. Goldstein v. Drysdale [Ala.] 42 So. 744.

56. Plaintiff was arrested for speaking to a crowd in a prohibitive district in a city and charged therewith but the formal complaint sworn to by the defendant charged plaintiff with the use of indecent language. Meyer v. Lally, 143 Mich. 578, 13 Det. Leg. N. 67, 107 N. W. 109.

prosecuted; damage from prosecuting another is not enough.[58] The general rule is that the malicious prosecution of an ordinary civil suit is not actionable,[59] but the malicious prosecution of bankruptcy proceedings is actionable,[60] as is a wrongful attachment.[61]

§ 4. Termination of prosecution in plaintiff's favor.[62]—The termination[63] must have been in the plaintiff's favor,[64] and as to all indictments growing out of the same alleged criminal act.[65] The action when brought on the same day the discharge is obtained is not as matter of law prematurely brought.[66]

§ 5. Want of reasonable and probable cause.[67]—Since there must have been no probable cause, proof of the commission of the offense charged is a good defense.[68] Knowledge of facts, actual or apparent, strong enough to justify a reasonable man in the belief that lawful grounds existed for the prosecution, constitutes reasonable cause.[69] Belief in the guilt of accused and reasonable cause for the belief are essential in establishing probable cause.[70] It is not necessary that the defendant

57. See 6 C. L. 491. See, also, exhaustive monograph, 4 C. L. 483, n. 14 et seq.

58. Malicious prosecution cannot arise out of a mere seizure of one's property on an execution against another. Williams v. Ellis, 101 Me. 247, 63 A. 818.

59. Motion against sheriff and sureties on bond under Sayles' Civ. St. art. 2386, for failure to levy an execution, held an ordinary civil suit within the rule. Nowotny v. Grona [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 44, 98 S. W. 416.

60. King v. Sullivan & Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 77, 92 S. W. 51. A proceeding in involuntary bankruptcy, without arrest of person or seizure of property, is nevertheless a proper predicate for an action. Wilkinson v. Goodfellow-Brooks Shoe Co., 141 F. 218.

61. When attachment is sued out wrongfully, maliciously, and without probable cause, the right of plaintiff to recover for the tort does not depend on whether the property levied on was subject to execution. Faroux v. Cornwell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 977, 90 S. W. 537.

62. See 6 C. L. 492. See, also, exhaustive monograph, 4 C. L. 485.

63. A discharge by a court or magistrate having jurisdiction to determine whether accused should be held for trial by another court is a termination of the proceeding. Shattuck v. Simonds, 191 Mass. 506, 78 N. E. 122.

64. Where a prosecution was tried before a justice of the peace and accused found guilty, and on appeal to the county court, after continuance from time to time, was dismissed and the prosecution finally terminated, the rule requiring termination of the prosecution in favor of accused was met. Evans v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 105 Va. 72, 53 S. E. 3.

65. When a plurality of indictments for different crimes are found by the grand jury against an accused based on the same transaction, he cannot maintain malicious prosecution on the termination of proceedings under one indictment in his favor while another of the indictments is pending. Gaiser v. Hurleman, 74 Ohio St. 271, 78 N. E. 372.

66. Enright v. Gibson, 119 Ill. App. 411, afd. 219 Ill. 550, 76 N. E. 689.

67. See 6 C. L. 492. See, also exhaustive monograph, 4 C. L. 489. Probable cause as a jury question, see § 9.

68. Shannon v. Sims [Ala.] 40 So. 574.

69. Rawson v. Leggett, 184 N. Y. 504, 77 N. E. 662.

70. Malich v. Josephson, 50 Misc. 315, 98 N. Y. S. 671; Moore v. First Nat. Bank, 140 N. C. 293, 52 S. E. 944; Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33; Izzo v. Viscount [N. J. Law] 64 A. 953. Where it appears, after a prudent and conscientious inquiry is made, that testimony is at hand or obtainable justifying a well founded belief that accused's guilt can be shown, there is probable cause. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33. When one prosecutes another for apparent guilt arising from circumstances which the prosecutor himself believes, there can be no liability as for malicious prosecution. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815. There must be such an appearance of guilt arising from facts and circumstances as to produce belief. Coyle v. Snellenburg, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 246. There must be such a state of facts as would lead a man of ordinary caution and prudence to believe and entertain an honest and strong suspicion that the accused is guilty. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320. The test of the propriety of commencing prosecution is whether such a state of facts was known at the time the prosecution was undertaken as could induce a person of ordinary caution and prudence to entertain an honest belief and strong suspicion of guilt. Coyle v. Snellenburg, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 246. Probable cause does not necessarily depend on the actual guilt of the accused but may rest on the prosecutor's belief in his guilt when based on reasonable grounds. Conner v. Wetmore, 110 App. Div. 440, 96 N. Y. S. 999; Hobson v. Koch, 100 N. Y. S. 893. The mere falsity of statements in an affidavit on which an arrest is made is insufficient as a basis for malicious prosecution. Izzo v. Viscount [N. J. Law] 64 A. 953. Conduct sufficient to excite a well grounded suspicion in men unskilled in technical rules of law is not the test of probable cause. Reynolds v. Dunlap [Kan.] 84 P. 720. Where a charge of crime is made under circumstances indicating it to be well founded and worthy of belief, no liability as for malicious prose-should have seen and conversed with the witnesses themselves to establish probable cause.[71] The test of probable cause is to be applied as of the time when the action complained of was taken.[72] An existing probable cause is not destroyed by advice of one in charge of an investigation of the guilt of the accused that he was not sufficiently connected with the crime.[73]

Want of probable cause cannot be inferred from malice,[74] nor from the fact alone that defendant who saw a burglary committed persisted in the belief that plaintiff was the burglar and assisted in the prosecution.[75] When probable cause exists it is an absolute defense irrespective of malice.[76] Acting in an official capacity is not necessarily an absolute defense but is to be considered in determining the question of probable cause.[77] While the finding of a true bill is prima facie proof of probable cause[78] and a conviction is conclusive,[79] a verdict or result favorable to the then defendant is not conclusive as to want of probable cause,[80] and it is the better rule that the discharge of plaintiff from the prosecution is not ground to infer that there was no probable cause, its procurement by defendant not having been shown.[81] In malicious civil prosecutions the former judgment unlike criminal proceedings is between the same parties and concludes them as to matters litigated.[82]

§ 6. Malice.[83]—Malice in law exists where there has been a wrongful act knowingly and intentionally done without just cause or excuse.[84] The specific cution arises, though it is afterwards made to appear that the charge was false. Morgan v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 117 La. 671, 42 So. 216.

Want of probable cause: Representations of a third person as to matters not tending to establish guilt of the accused do not, in the absence of further inquiry, amount to probable cause. Coyle v. Snellenburg, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 246. Commencement of a criminal prosecution to compel payment of a debt raises a presumption of want of probable cause. MacDonald v. Schroeder, 214 Pa. 411, 63 A. 1024, rvg. 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 128.

Probable cause: Possession of stolen property under circumstances warranting a conviction for the larceny thereof constitutes probable cause for instituting a prosecution. Tyson v. Bauland Co. [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 3.

71. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33.

72. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320. In ascertaining whether defendant had probable cause for alleged wrongful suing out of an attachment, only the facts which were known to him at the time he sued out the attachment will be considered. Moore v. First Nat. Bank, 140 N. C. 293, 52 S. E. 944.

73. Where plaintiff, a mail carrier, was suspected of crime and a postoffice inspector was detailed to investigate, his report of insufficient connection of plaintiff with the crime did not overcome the probable cause arising from prior and subsequent occurrences. Hobson v. Koch, 100 N. Y. S. 893.

74. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320.

75. Baker v. Moore, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 301.

76. Conner v. Wetmore, 110 App. Div. 440, 96 N. Y. S. 999.

77. Skeffington v. Eylward, 97 Minn. 244, 105 N. W. 628.

78. The finding of an indictment by the grand jury is prima facie evidence of probable cause. Jones v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 945, 96 S. W. 793. Where a committing magistrate has bound the party over or a grand jury has found a true bill, such action makes out a case of probable cause. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815.

79. Guilt of the offense, as matter of course, furnishes probable cause. East v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 364. So irrespective of the question of malice. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815.

80. A verdict of guilty which is set aside and followed by a new trial and verdict of not guilty is not conclusive evidence of probable cause. MacDonald v. Schroeder, 214 Pa. 411, 63 A. 1024, rvg. 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 128.

81. Davis v. McMillan, 142 Mich. 391, 12 Det. Leg. N. 771, 105 N. W. 862, exhaustively discussing both doctrines. A discharge by a magistrate for lack of jurisdiction has no tendency to show want of probable cause. Pierce v. Doolittle, 130 Iowa 333, 106 N. W. 751. Discharge by a magistrate on request of the prosecuting attorney is not prima facie evidence of want of probable cause. Davis v. McMillan, 142 Mich. 391, 12 Det. Leg. N. 771, 105 N. W. 862. The plaintiff in an action for malicious prosecution must prove some other facts than acquittal as tending to show want of probable cause. Jones v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 945, 96 S. W. 793.

82. A previous judgment in favor of defendant in an action on a note in which attachment was sued out is conclusive of the wrongfulness of the attachment as to such defendant. Goldstein v. Drysdale [Ala.] 42 So. 744.

83. See 6 C. L. 494. See, also, exhaustive monograph, 4 C. L. 498. Malice as a jury question, see § 9.

84. An instruction defining a malicious malice which characterizes the tort is not the same as the actual malice or personal ill will essential to a recovery of punitive damages.[85] Malice is never found as matter of law from want of probable cause; the jury, and only the jury, may infer it therefrom.[86] As to whether the existence of want of probable cause alone gives rise to an inference of malice the decisions are inharmonious, it being held in most jurisdictions, without qualification, that malice may be inferred from want of probable cause,[87] while in others it is held that though an inference of malice may be drawn from the existence of want of probable cause, the inference does not necessarily follow.[88] It is held in Washington that mere prima facie proof of want of probable cause will not justify an inference of malice,[89] and in Kentucky that when other facts besides acquittal are introduced tending to show want of probable cause, malice will be inferred.[90] Malice is presumed when a criminal prosecution is instituted to compel payment of a debt,[91] but cannot be inferred from an ordinary act of negligence,[92] nor from the fact alone that defendant, who saw a crime committed, persisted in the belief that plaintiff was the guilty person and assisted in the prosecution.[93]

§ 7. Advice of private counsel, prosecuting attorney, or magistrate.[94]—To make the defense of advice of counsel complete, it is necessary that the advice be sought and acted upon in good faith,[95] and that a full disclosure of all material facts be made to counsel.[96] Following advice of counsel in institution of prosecution react, in law, as whatever is wrongfully, vexatiously, and purposely done, held not erroneous. Rutherford v. Dyer [Ala.] 40 So. 974. Any other motive than a bona fide purpose to bring the accused to punishment as a violator of the criminal law, or associated with such bona fide purpose, is malicious. Id. To constitute malice there must have been a motive or purpose and it must have been an improper one. Jenkins v. Gilligan [Iowa] 108 N. W. 237. Plaintiff cannot complain of an instruction defining malice as a disposition to do the person prosecuted a wrong without legal excuse. Gaither v. Carpenter [N. C.] 55 S. E. 625.

85. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815. Malice in the sense of fixing responsibility need not necessarily be personal ill will, but may be said to exist where there has been a wrongful act knowingly and intentionally done without just cause or excuse. Id.

86. McCarthy v. Weir, 113 App. Div. 435, 99 N. Y. S. 372, citing Stewart v. Sonneborn, 98 U. S. 193, 25 Law. Ed. 116, and other cases.

87. Davis v. McMillan, 142 Mich. 391, 12 Det. Leg. N. 771, 105 N. W. 862; Evans v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 105 Va. 72, 53 S. E. 3; Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320; Rutherford v. Dyer [Ala.] 40 So. 974. When want of probable cause is shown, a prima facie case is made for the jury. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33.

88. Cook v. Bartlett, 100 N. Y. S. 1032; Jenkins v. Gilligan [Iowa] 108 N. W. 237; Pierce v. Doolittle, 130 Iowa, 333, 106 N. W. 751; Fetzer v. Burlew, 99 N. Y. S. 1100; Baker v. Moore, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 301.

89. Ton v. Stetson [Wash.] 86 P. 668.

90. Jones v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 945, 96 S. W. 793.

91. MacDonald v. Schroeder, 214 Pa. 411, 63 A. 1024, rvg. 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 128.

92. Malice cannot be inferred from doing an act without that ordinary prudence and discretion which persons of mature mind and sound judgment are presumed to have. Jenkins v. Gilligan [Iowa] 108 N. W. 237.

93. Baker v. Moore, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 301.

94. See 6 C. L. 494. See, also, exhaustive monograph, 4 C. L. 502, 503. Advice of counsel as a jury question, see post, § 9.

95. Davis v. McMillan, 142 Mich. 391, 12 Det. Leg. N. 771, 105 N. W. 862; Gurden v. Stevens [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 840, 109 N. W. 856. Where the facts are all consistent with the reasonable theory of the innocence of the party, and the prosecutor knows or has good reason to believe that the person is not guilty, he cannot have reasonable cause for the prosecution and would still be responsible for his actions, regardless of advice of counsel. Gurden v. Stevens [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 840, 109 N. W. 856. The advice of counsel is no protection to one who acts maliciously and knows that the party whom he is prosecuting is not guilty, and that all of the acts which the party against whom he complains has been guilty of are all consistent with the natural innocence of the accused, and if he proceeds under such circumstances, advice of counsel is no protection. Id. To fulfill the requirements of seeking and following in good faith advice of counsel, it is essential that a full and fair statement of material facts and prosecutor's knowledge of the transaction be made to counsel, and that the advice lead to the honest belief of the accused's guilt. Haas v. Powers [Wis.] 110 N. W. 205.

96. Davis v. McMillan, 142 Mich. 391, 12 Det. Leg. N. 772, 105 N. W. 862; Shannon v. Sims [Ala.] 40 So. 574; Haas v. Powers [Wis.] 110 N. W. 205.

Disclosure held insufficient: Where the actual false pretense was that plaintiff's brother told, etc., while the pretense pleaded was that plaintiff told, etc., it could not be said

buts malice.[97] Where plaintiff in attachment does not make the affidavit until advised to do so by an attorney after all the facts have been fairly submitted, he is not liable.[98]

§ 8. Damages.[99]—Proof of malicious prosecution is sufficient proof of actual damages.[1] The fact that a person arrested does not secure his release on his own recognizance does not as matter of law indicate that he attached small importance to his arrest or incarceration or deprive him of the right to damages on the ground that he does not consider himself injured.[2] Mental suffering proximately caused by the injury is an element of actual damage,[3] but damages for mental shock and distress of a parent caused by a malicious prosecution of infant children are not recoverable.[4] Hence the ill health and death of a parent in consequence of the malicious prosecution of infant children of deceased are not elements of damages in an action for the tort.[5] Plaintiff is entitled to recover as damages in malicious prosecution a reasonable attorney's fee paid by him in the case in which the prosecution was had.[6] Advice of counsel, unless such as legally recognized as a defense, is ordinarily no protection in the matter of actual damages.[7] One subjected to a malicious prosecution or abuse of process must, pursuant to the general rule, do whatever he reasonably can to improve all reasonable and proper opportunities to lessen the injury.[8] Ordinarily the general rules for the measure of damages apply.[9] As a general rule the jury are not bound as matter of law to give more than nominal damages,[10] and the amount rests largely in their discretion.[11] For the issuance and levy of a writ of attachment in the absence of statutory grounds, the plaintiff in the writ is liable in actual damages.[12] When the sureties on an attachment bond take no other part in the transaction beyond the execution of the bond, they cannot be held for anything more than actual damages in the event of the illegality

as matter of law that there had been a full and accurate statement of the facts to counsel. Davis v. McMillan, 142 Mich. 391, 12 Det. Leg. N. 771, 105 N. W. 862.

97. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wakefield Hardware Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 422.

98. Goldstein v. Drysdale [Ala.] 42 So. 744. The advice of counsel, whether private or attorney for the commonwealth in the prosecution against plaintiff, is important, if not conclusive in determining the question of malice. Baker v. Moore, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 301.

99. See 6 C. L. 495. See, also, exhaustive monograph, 4 C. L. 503.

1. Enright v. Gibson, 119 Ill. App. 411, afd. 219 Ill. 550, 76 N. E. 689.

2. Instruction held properly refused. Reynolds v. Dunlap [Kan.] 84 P. 720.

3. Shannon v. Sims [Ala.] 40 So. 574. Where plaintiff was arrested and had to give bond, mental suffering would be inferred therefrom as a natural and proximate result. Id.

4, 5. Sperier v. Ott, 116 La. 1087, 41 So. 323.

6. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815.

7. King v. Erskins, 116 La. 480, 40 So. 844. Defendants, even in the absence of actual malice, are not protected by the advice of counsel from liability for actual damages, such as expenses incurred, inconvenience suffered, and injury to feelings and character, unless it be clearly shown that all the facts were laid before counsel and that he actually gave the advice relied on. Id.

8. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wakefield Hardware Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 422. Where wrongful attachment of property is claimed, testimony of an agent of a bonding company, surety on the prosecution bond, is admissible to show the cost of a replevy bond to secure the release of the property. Id.

9. The measure of damages for the wrongful attachment of a railroad company's cars is the interest on their value, increased or diminished, as the case may be, by the difference between the deterioration in the cars if in daily use and their deterioration while wrongfully tied up, if all injury could not have been avoided by giving bond. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wakefield Hardware Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 422.

10. Instruction held erroneous as equivalent to directing a substantial verdict for plaintiff. Cook v. Bartlett, 100 N. Y. S. 1032.

11. Excessiveness: $150 held not excessive in action for malicious prosecution of a boy charged with embezzlement of money received for goods delivered C. O. D. Coyle v. Snellenburg, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 246. $550 held not excessive damages for malicious prosecution for felonious larceny, though plaintiff was not committed to jail or required to give bail. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33. $400 held not excessive compensatory damages for malicious prosecution on charge of larceny. Haas v. Powers [Wis.] 110 N. W. 205. $1,200 held not excessive damages for malicious prosecution for threatening to assault with intent to kill. Shea v. Cloquet Lumber Co., 97 Minn. 41, 105 N. W. 552.

of the attachment,[13] and the same is true of the levying officer's sureties and his indemnitors.[14] On a verdict for plaintiff in malicious prosecution, punitive or exemplary damages may be awarded by the jury,[15] but the right does not attach as a conclusion of law because the jury have found the issue of malice against the defendant.[16] Such damages cannot, however, be awarded unless there is an element of fraud, malice, gross negligence, insult, or other cause of aggravation in the act which causes the injury.[17] For maliciously and without probable cause procuring a writ of attachment to be issued, the plaintiff in the writ is liable for exemplary damages,[18] and, if levied on exempt property by order of the plaintiff, both he and a levying officer participating therein,[19] under circumstances of oppression and aggravation, would be liable for exemplary damages.[20] Malice and want of probable cause must concur to authorize a recovery for exemplary damages for wrongful issuance of a writ of attachment.[21] By statute in some states malice, actual or presumed, warrants a recovery of damages for the sake of example,[22] and in such jurisdictions punitive damages are recoverable though not so designated in the pleading.[23] The size of a verdict does not necessarily characterize the damages assessed as punitive.[24] Infants may recover exemplary damages for malicious prosecution.[25] In an action against a master for the act of his servant, exemplary damages are not recoverable for the malice of the servant.[26]

§ 9. General matters of pleading and practice.[27]—In Louisiana the prescription affecting quasi offenses applies in actions for malicious prosecution,[28] and begins to run from the time damage is sustained.[29] A complaint should with reasonable certainty set forth all the elements of the tort.[30] Ordinarily, a count containing a plurality of causes of action is subject to motion to separately state and number,[31] and under the New York Code this rule applies when the actions are false imprisonment and malicious prosecution,[32] but the motion is not well taken when the count in question is subject to the construction, in harmony with plaintiff's concession, that the cause of action is malicious prosecution only.[33] A motion to strike will not reach a count which does not aggrieve the movant, notwithstanding its irrelevancy.[34] Evidence when pleaded is ordinarily subject to be stricken out on

12, 13, 14. Faroux v. Cornwell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 977, 90 S. W. 537.

15, 16. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815.

17. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815. It is held in North Carolina that malice in reference to the question of punitive damages, unlike its meaning in fixing responsibility, means actual ill will. Id.

18, 19, 20. Faroux v. Cornwell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 977, 90 S. W. 537.

21. Petition failing to allege want of probable cause will not sustain recovery of exemplary damages. Faroux v. Cornwell [Tex. Civ. App.] 13 Tex. Ct. Rep. 977, 90 S. W. 537.

22. Civ. Code, § 4290. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33.

23. Instruction authorizing assessment of punitive damages held warranted in the absence of demand therefor in pleading. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33.

24. Verdict for $550 and $102.60 costs held not to include punitive damages. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33.

25. Sperier v. Ott, 116 La. 1037, 41 So. 323.

26. East v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 364.

27. See 6 C. L. 495. See, also, exhaustive monograph, 4 C. L. 505.

28. To charge a person with a crime without actual malice, but also without probable cause, is a quasi offense, the action to recover damages resulting from which is barred by the prescription of one year from the day on which the damage was sustained. King v. Erskins, 116 La. 480, 40 So. 844.

29. When there is an interval of time between the date on which the charge is preferred and that on which it is made known to the person so charged and to the public by the arrest of such person, the damage is sustained on and the prescription runs from the day of the arrest. King v. Erskins, 116 La. 480, 40 So. 844.

30. Complaint held sufficient as against demurrer. Russell v. Chamberlain [Idaho] 85 P. 926. Complaint held deficient to plead either malicious prosecution or abuse of process. McClerg v. Vielee, 102 N. Y. S. 45.

31. Ring v. Mitchell, 45 Misc. 493, 92 N. Y. S. 749.

32. Code Civ. Proc. § 484, construed. Ring v. Mitchell, 45 Misc. 493, 92 N. Y. S. 749.

33. Ring v. Mitchell, 45 Misc. 493, 92 N. Y. S. 749.

34. Count in action for malicious prose-motion.[35] Averments of special damages are permissible.[36] When a conspiracy is charged against several defendants to injure plaintiff by the abuse of judicial process, the failure to prove the conspiracy puts the plaintiff to his election which of defendants he will sue,[37] but a failure of defendants to move the court to require the election to be made is a waiver of the right.[38] A complaint for malicious prosecution will not be construed as one for false imprisonment unless it fairly bears that construction.[39] Under the Codes a general denial alone is the correct and scientific answer to a complaint for malicious prosecution and raises the whole issue on the complaint.[40] Advice of counsel to be available as a defense must be specially pleaded.[41]

The ordinary rule as to presumed denial of defensive matter applies.[42] Proof of wrongful attachment will not support a count for malicious prosecution of the attachment suit.[43]

The burden of proof is on the plaintiff to show want of probable cause,[44] the termination of the prosecution on which his action is based prior to its commencement,[45] and each of the elements of the action,[46] but when a criminal prosecution is instituted to compel payment of a debt, the burden of showing absence of malice and want of probable cause is shifted to defendant.[47] It is held in Montana that when the proof tends to show want of probable cause, the burden then rests on defendant to rebut the prima facie case by showing probable cause and want of malice.[48] The burden is on defendant to prove that he sought counsel with an honest purpose of being informed as to the law in order that advice of counsel shall be available as a defense,[49] that he made a full, correct, and honest disclosure to his counsel of all material facts in his knowledge bearing on the guilt of accused,[50] and that he was in good faith guided by the advice of counsel,[51] though where it is shown that defendants received advice of counsel, the presumption arises that it was relied on.[52] It is presumed that proceedings commenced, which are not shown to have been terminated, are still pending.[53] cution stating plaintiff's residence and business held not subject to motion to strike. Ring v. Mitchell, 45 Misc. 493, 92 N. Y. S. 749.

35. Count in action for malicious prosecution held merely a narration of evidence to prove malice. Ring v. Mitchell, 45 Misc. 493, 92 N. Y. S. 749.

36. Complaint setting out fact of newspaper publications of charge and arrest held not subject to motion to strike. Ring v. Mitchell, 45 Misc. 493, 92 N. Y. S. 749, discussing conflict of New York cases.

37, 38. Sehon v. Whitt, 28 Ky. L. R. 1222, 29 Ky. L. R. 691, 92 S. W. 280.

39. The allegation of a complaint that the defendant, without just or probable cause, made complaint against the plaintiff and wrongfully and unlawfully caused his arrest and imprisonment on a certain false charge is not equivalent to an averment that the warrant was illegal or improperly issued, hence a contention that the action was because of such allegation one for false imprisonment as well as malicious prosecution was untenable. Clark v. Palmer, 101 N. Y. S. 759.

40. East v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 364.

41. Sehon v. Whitt, 28 Ky. L. R. 1222, 29 Ky. L. R. 691, 92 S. W. 280.

42. Where plaintiff before the suing out of a distress warrant for the illegality of which he was suing had removed the first bail of cotton from the rented premises and sold it, and defendant alleged that it was removed and sold without his consent, plaintiff could show that by the lease he was to have the first bail, notwithstanding his failure to plead such stipulation. Morgan v. Tims [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 832.

43. Goldstein v. Drysdale [Ala] 42 So. 744.

44. Malich v. Josephson, 50 Misc. 315, 98 N. Y. S. 671; Davis v. McMillan, 142 Mich. 391, 12 Det. Leg. N. 771, 105 N. W. 862.

45. Gaiser v. Hurleman, 74 Ohio St. 271, 78 N. E. 372.

46. See ante, § 1 A. Pierce v. Doolittle, 130 Iowa, 333, 106 N. W. 751.

47. MacDonald v. Schroeder, 214 Pa. 411, 63 A. 1024, rvg. 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 128.

48. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33.

49, 50, 51. Evans v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 105 Va. 72, 53 S. E. 3.

52. Rawson v. Leggett, 184 N. Y. 504, 77 N. E. 662.

53. Where plaintiff alleges as actionable a seizure of property in his lawful possession on an execution against another, and the beginning of proceedings by plaintiff for its recovery, but not alleging their termination, it will be presumed that they are still pending. Williams v. Ellis, 101 Me. 247, 63 A. 818.

Evidence.[54]—In some jurisdictions it is held that the guilt or innocence of the plaintiff on the charge preferred is not in issue and evidence thereof is inadmissible,[55] but in Alabama this rule is not adhered to.[56] A claim of collusion with the magistrate before whom prosecution is instituted makes evidence of his good faith admissible.[57] The general reputation of the plaintiff at the time the prosecution was instituted against him is in issue,[58] and evidence of his previous bad reputation is admissible to rebut proof of want of probable cause as well as to mitigate damages,[59] but proof of particular instances of bad conduct cannot be received.[60] Plaintiff's motives and the extent of his injury are in issue and may be shown on cross-examination of himself as a witness,[61] and defendant's intent and motive are also in issue.[62] Though parol evidence is admissible to explain a receipt, one may be estopped to take advantage of the rule.[63] When defendant is not responsible for plaintiff's arrest, the sufficiency of the warrant for arrest is immaterial.[64] Defendant is not concluded from giving evidence on the question of malice because the prosecution was instituted to collect a debt.[65] Hence, it is proper to prove advice of counsel even though there is lack of probable cause on the existence as well as the degree of malice,[66] and also on probable cause and absence of malice.[67] An entry in the judgment terminating the alleged malicious prosecution, that "there seeming to be no grounds for complaint, judgment is hereby entered" against complaining witness for costs, is inadmissible as a prior adjudication of want of probable cause or as an expression of opinion by the magistrate thereon.[68] In malicious prosecution for levy of an attachment, evidence of an excessive levy is immaterial,[69] though the rule

54. See 6 C. L. 495.

55. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320. Where plaintiff had been prosecuted for embezzlement, a debtor and creditor account showing the prosecution indebted to plaintiff, of which account prosecutor had no knowledge at the time of beginning the prosecution, was inadmissible. Id. Acquittal of the charge is irrelevant on the issue of probable cause. Id.

56. In malicious prosecution for trespass, plaintiff is entitled to show possession of the premises at the time of the alleged trespass by another than defendant. Rutherford v. Dyer [Ala.] 40 So. 974. Notwithstanding the affidavit on which a warrant for arrest is based is void, defendant in malicious prosecution may show in bar that plaintiff had committed the offense which the affidavit attempted to charge. Shannon v. Sims [Ala.] 40 So. 574.

57. In an action for malicious prosecution for malicious injury to a church, wherein it was claimed that the justice before whom the prosecution was instituted and the defendant colluded to extort pay for the injury to the church and the fees of the justice, when both knew that the admitted breaking of the glass was not malicious, it was proper to show the good faith of the justice (Gurden v. Stevens [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 840, 109 N. W. 856), and the fact that in his examination as a witness he gave his opinion of plaintiff's guilt was not cause for reversal, though his opinion was not material to the issue except as made by such claim (Id.).

58. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33. As negativing probable cause of a charge of threatening to assault another with intent to kill, plaintiff was entitled to prove his general good reputation as a peaceable citizen. Shea v. Cloquet Lumber Co., 97 Minn. 41, 105 N. W. 552.

59. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33.

60. Proof of confession by plaintiff of prior larcenies held inadmissible. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33. An offer to prove particular items of prior bad conduct in rebuttal of malice must be definite. Id.

61. Gurden v. Stevens [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 840, 109 N. W. 856. In an action for malicious prosecution for malicious injury to a church, a full cross-examination of the plaintiff as to his knowledge of or connection with the injuries to the church both before and after the injury complained of was properly permitted. Id.

62. In an action for malicious prosecution for malicious injury to a church, the defendant was entitled to show the fact that for months injuries to the church had been serious and frequent as characterizing his intent and motive. Gurden v. Stevens [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 840, 109 N. W. 856.

63. Where plaintiff as an agent has, pursuant to a rule of his employer, certified at regular intervals the condition of his accounts and that there is nothing due him, and the employer has relied thereon, plaintiff is estopped to dispute the recitals thereof. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320.

64. Morgan v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 117 La. 671, 42 So. 216.

65, 66. Cook v. Bartlett, 100 N. Y. S. 1032.

67. Sehon, Blake & Stevenson v. Whitt, 28 Ky. L. R. 1222, 29 Ky. L. R. 691, 92 S. W. 280.

68. But a failure to object until after admission renders a motion to strike out such entry a discretional matter with the trial court. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33.

would be otherwise in a suit for abuse of process.[70] The wealth of a defendant may be shown for the purpose of estimating exemplary damages;[71] but in an action against two or more defendants, the pecuniary ability of one should not be considered in determining the damages to be assessed jointly.[72] The declarations of the defendant at the time he instituted the prosecution and accompanying the act are a part of the transaction and admissible,[73] and this rule applies to declarations of officers of a corporation when the corporation is defendant.[74] Defendant may also prove what was said in his presence as well as what was said to him tending to show probable cause and absence of malice.[75] Plaintiff is entitled to show a termination of the prosecution by abandonment or otherwise.[76] Defendant cannot show that some of the jury voted for conviction prior to voting for acquittal on the previous proceeding.[77]

Pursuant to general rule, mere self-serving declarations are inadmissible to establish that money retained was under claim of right and not embezzled from defendant,[78] and this is particularly true of statements in that regard made to an attorney at law,[79] and defendant cannot in this way prove his unwillingness to forward the prosecution.[80] The declarations of a party, to come within the rule admitting them in favor of the party by whom made, must accompany and explain an act done which is a fact in issue or is relevant to the issue.[81] Public acts or regulations

69, 70. Moore v. First Nat. Bank, 140 N. C. 293, 52 S. E. 944.

71. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320.

72. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320. Where there was evidence as to the wealth of one only of several defendants and that in generalizations, like the "biggest" and "wealthiest" sewing machine company in the world, it was error to instruct that the wealth, if any, of the defendants was to be considered as an element in estimating damages. Id.

73. Evidence as to what occurred between the magistrate and defendant at the time the information was sworn to charging plaintiff with crime is admissible on the question of malice. Fetzer v. Burlew, 99 N. Y. S. 1100. In an action for malicious prosecution for obstruction of a highway, evidence of defendant's statements and conduct with reference to plaintiff's fence in the alleged highway was admissible as tending to show the animus of the defendant. Skeffington v. Eylward, 97 Minn. 244, 105 N. W. 638.

74. The declarations of the manager of a corporation made to a justice of the peace at the time a warrant was procured on which plaintiff was arrested are admissible in an action against the corporation for malicious prosecution arising out of the proceedings so instituted. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815.

75. In action for malicious prosecution by search warrant proceeding, testimony of police officer detailed to investigate as to what was said by witness to the clerk of the court in presence of defendant at the time warrant was requested held admissible. Conner v. Wetmore, 110 App. Div. 440, 96 N. Y. S. 999. In an action for malicious prosecution on a charge of embezzling the proceeds of consigned goods, statements of defendant's agent to defendant on returning from plaintiff's place of business, just after effecting the deal, were admissible both as corroborative of the agent and as substantive testimony. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815.

76. Grand jury docket showing an investigation and "no bill" is good evidence of a termination of the prosecution. Shannon v. Sims [Ala.] 40 So. 574. So is also such a docket showing an investigation and that the cause had not been continued for further investigation. Id. The judgment of acquittal is admissible only to show termination of the prosecution. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320.

77. Testimony of a juror who sat in the criminal prosecution that the jury was out a considerable time, and at first stood seven for acquittal and five for conviction before acquitting, is irrelevant. Gaither v. Carpenter [N. C.] 55 S. E. 625.

78. Where plaintiff was prosecuted for embezzling from his principal, he could not show that he had disclosed to a subemploye of his own, owing no duty to report to the principal, the fact that he was withholding funds for a debt of the principal to him. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320. Nor could he show what such subemploye stated he would do in such circumstances, in the absence of any showing that the conversation was communicated to defendants. Id.

79. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320. Nor the advice of his attorney relative to an account made up by him against the prosecutor to rebut the theory of embezzlement after having repeatedly certified to prosecutor that no such claim existed. Id.

80. Defendant held not entitled to prove statement he made to justice of peace as to his desire to dismiss prosecution as to plaintiff. Rutherford v. Dyer [Ala.] 40 So. 974.

81. Declaration of plaintiff as to retention of money on account which he was prosecuted for embezzling held irrelevant.

on which the prosecution was based,[82] or papers which were the subject of the crime charged,[83] and papers in the prosecution,[84] are admissible as documents ordinarily are.

The sufficiency of evidence to prove probable cause[85] and its absence,[86] and the absence of malice,[87] has been declared in numerous cases cited in the foot notes. Though acquittal of accused is evidence of innocence in an action for malicious prosecution, it does not of itself prove malice or want of probable cause,[88] nor is a conviction, which has been reversed on appeal, conclusive as to the existence of probable cause.[89] A judgment foreclosing a distress warrant is not necessarily conclusive as to the legality of the use of the warrant.[90]

Generally the right to open and close is with defendant when the action is a counterclaim.[91]

Instructions should not be argumentative[92] nor misleading,[93] nor should they single out and make prominent particular facts,[94] and should be technically correct[95] and in harmony with the theory of the case,[96] nor should they assume as es-

Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320.

82. In an action for malicious prosecution on a charge of violating a rule of a board of health which was made an offense by statute, a certified copy of a publication containing the rules of the board was admissible. Pierce v. Doolittle, 130 Iowa, 333, 106 N. W. 751.

83. In an action for malicious prosecution on a charge of stealing a mortgage, a copy of the alleged stolen instrument is admissible when a proper predicate has been laid therefor. Shannon v. Sims [Ala.] 40 So. 574.

84. An affidavit and warrant made by defendant and on which plaintiff was arrested are competent evidence as constituting the basis of the action. Rutherford v. Dyer [Ala.] 40 So. 974.

85. Evidence held sufficient to show probable cause for instituting a prosecution for embezzlement. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Bryant, 105 Va. 403, 54 S. E. 320. Evidence held to show existence of probable cause to institute prosecution for forgery. Hobson v. Koch, 100 N. Y. S. 893. Evidence held sufficient to show probable cause for making a charge of larceny. Morgan v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 117 La. 671, 42 So. 216; Freer v. Schmitt, 101 N. Y. S. 737; Fetzer v. Burlew, 99 N. Y. S. 1100; Molich v. Josephson, 50 Misc. 315, 98 N. Y. S. 671; Rawson v. Leggett, 184 N. Y. 504, 77 N. E. 662. Evidence held sufficient to show probable cause for prosecution for obstructing track of railroad. Clark v. Palmer, 101 N. Y. S. 759. Evidence held to show probable cause for levy of attachment on a complaint charging defendant with having left the state and conveying his property with intent to defraud creditors. Moore v. First Nat. Bank, 140 N. C. 293, 52 S. E. 944.

86. Shattuck v. Simonds, 191 Mass. 506, 78 N. E. 122.

Evidence, in connection with verdict of acquittal, held sufficient to overcome presumption arising from indictments that reasonable ground for prosecution for murder and obstructing railroad track existed. Jones v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 945, 96 S. W. 793.

87. Evidence held to show that charge of larceny was not made maliciously. Morgan v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 117 La. 671, 42 So. 216; Rawson v. Leggett, 184 N. Y. 504, 77 N. E. 662. Evidence held insufficient in connection with prima facie proof of want of probable cause to warrant a finding of malice in search warrant proceeding. Ton v. Stetson [Wash.] 86 P. 668.

88. Jones v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 945, 96 S. W. 793.

89. A conviction reversed on appeal is not conclusive but strong prima facie evidence of probable cause which may be rebutted, not only by evidence tending to show that the conviction was obtained by fraud or perjury, but also by any competent evidence which satisfies the jury as to want of probable cause. Skeffington v. Eylward, 97 Minn. 244, 105 N. W. 638.

90. A judgment foreclosing a distress warrant at the suit of a landlord against his tenant is not conclusive of the legality and justification for suing out the warrant, the tenant not having reconvened therein for damages. Morgan v. Tims [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 832.

91. When malicious prosecution is made a counterclaim to another cause of action and the advice of counsel is relied on exclusively to defeat it, the right to open and close in relation thereto, considered by itself, is with defendant. Farmer v. Norton, 129 Iowa, 88, 105 N. W. 371.

92. Requested instruction as to effect of dismissal of prosecution to disprove malice. Rutherford v. Dyer [Ala.] 40 So. 974.

93. Requested instruction as to advice of counsel held properly refused. Rutherford v. Dyer [Ala.] 40 So. 974.

94. Requested instruction as to effect of dismissal of prosecution to disprove malice. Rutherford v. Dyer [Ala.] 40 So. 974. Requested instruction that "the court charges the jury that under the undisputed evidence in this case Mr. Parker advised the defendant, through Mr. Koon, that the prosecution could be maintained against" plaintiff. Id.

95. Requested instruction that malice is a formed design to unlawfully do mischief held properly refused. Rutherford v. Dyer [Ala.] 40 So. 974. Instruction on probable cause

tablished facts which are essential elements of the offense[97] but should be based on the evidence.[98] When specific instructions are desired, they must be asked for as in other cases.[99] A request for instructions will be refused when covered by the instructions given.[1] Instructions are subject to construction as a whole[2] and are to be construed as in other civil cases.[3]

Whether the alleged malicious prosecution was instituted by, or abuse of process chargeable to, defendant,[4] whether a full and fair statement of all the facts was made to counsel,[5] and whether advice of counsel was sought and acted on in good faith, are generally questions for the jury.[6] Malice is a question exclusively for the jury.[7] On the question whether the existence of probable cause should be submitted to the jury, the decisions are inharmonious, the courts, in some jurisdictions, holding that on undisputed or conceded facts the question is one of law for the

to charge embezzlement held too indefinite and uncertain. Staples v. Johnson, 25 App. D. C. 155. Instruction that just or legal cause was defense held not equivalent to charge that probable cause was defense. Sehon v. Whitt, 28 Ky. L. R. 1222, 29 Ky. L. R. 691, 92 S. W. 280. Error in omitting qualifying words "ordinarily or reasonably" preceding phrase "prudent and cautious man," in charge on reasonable and probable cause, held not ground for reversal. Jenkins v. Gilligan [Iowa] 108 N. W. 237. The jury should not be told to allow for the prejudice, partiality, and excitement of a person instituting a prosecution in which he is interested in determining liability. The standard is that which a reasonably prudent man would do. Reynolds v. Dunlap [Kan.] 84 P. 720.

96. Where advice of counsel was relied on exclusively to defeat a cause of action set up as a counterclaim, and there was no evidence of defendant's actual guilt, failure to instruct that if defendant was guilty of the crime there was sufficient probable cause was proper as in consonance with the theory of the case. Farmer v. Norton, 129 Iowa, 88, 105 N. W. 371.

97. Instruction stating that "It is sufficient that" defendant "acting maliciously and without probable cause was one of the originators of the prosecution" is bad. Baker v. Moore, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 301.

98. In an action for malicious prosecution under a city ordinance, where there was no evidence that defendant knew of the invalidity of the ordinance at the time of filing the information, it was not proper for the court to leave the fact of defendant's knowledge to the jury for determination with a view to their finding malice therefrom. Pierce v. Doolittle, 130 Iowa 333, 106 N. W. 751. Where an action is for malicious prosecution and abuse of process and there is no evidence supporting the action for abuse of process, but the testimony discloses a cause of action for malicious prosecution only, the issue of abuse of process should not be submitted. Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815.

99. Failure to instruct that proof that a prosecution was instituted for the purpose of collecting a debt imposed on defendant the burden of showing probable cause held warranted by failure to request. Buel v. Bergman, 213 Pa. 355, 62 A. 927.

1. Request for instruction as to effect of advice of counsel held properly refused. Staples v. Johnson, 25 App. D. C. 155.

2. Instructions as a whole construed and held that one to the effect that if the defendant did not make a full, fair, and honest statement of all the facts in his knowledge to his counsel and act on the advice given thereon, but did act on a fixed determination of his own, then such advice could avail him nothing, did not forbid a consideration of defendant's reliance on his own honest belief. Martin v. Corscadden [Mont.] 86 P. 33.

3. Instruction held not open to criticism that it told the jury that mere belief that plaintiff committed the offense charged was sufficient cause to make a defense. Gurden v. Stevens [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 840, 109 N. W. 856. Instruction that "if the jury find the issue in this case in favor of the plaintiff, the form of their verdict should be as follows: 'We, the jury, find the issues in favor of the plaintiff and assess his damages at —— dollars. ——, Foreman,'" held proper in action prosecuted in name of next friend of infant plaintiff. Rutherford v. Dyer [Ala.] 40 So. 974.

4. Shattuck v. Simonds, 191 Mass. 506, 78 N. E. 122; Davis v. McMillan, 142 Mich. 391, 12 Det. Leg. N. 771, 105 N. W. 862. When plaintiff in a wrongful attachment directs a levy with knowledge of all the facts, the question whether he caused the seizure is for the jury. Goldstein v. Drysdale [Ala.] 42 So. 744. See ante, §§ 1 A, 1 B.

5. In wrongful attachment. Goldstein v. Drysdale [Ala.] 42 So. 744; Haas v. Powers [Wis.] 110 N. W. 205; Staples v. Johnson, 25 App. D. C. 155. On the issue of abuse of process by an excessive attachment, when the plaintiff in attachment denies directing, advising, or encouraging the act, the question is for the jury. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wakefield Hardware Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 422.

6. Staples v. Johnson, 25 App. D. C. 155; Haas v. Powers [Wis.] 110 N. W. 205. See ante, § 7.

7. Staples v. Johnson, 25 App. D. C. 155; Fetzer v. Burlew, 99 N. Y. S. 1100; Shattuck v. Simonds, 191 Mass. 506, 78 N. E. 122; Haas v. Powers [Wis.] 110 N. W. 205; Pierce v. Doolittle, 130 Iowa 333, 106 N. W. 751; Mills v. Larrance, 217 Ill. 446, 75 N. E. 555; Stanford v. Messick Grocery Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 815; Goldstein v. Drysdale [Ala.] 42 So. 744. Other elements being present, the cause should not be taken from the jury when court;[8] though it is held that when the question is erroneously submitted to the jury and they find in accordance with the law, the error is not prejudicial,[9] but in other jurisdictions, and in some of the courts whose decisions have just been cited, the question of the existence of probable cause is held to be one for the jury.[10]

A general verdict for plaintiff cannot be harmonized with a special one that there was no malice.[11]

MANDAMUS.

§ 1. Nature and Office of Remedy in General (810). Other Adequate Remedy (813). Loss of Remedy by Limitations, Laches, Delay, Estoppel, etc. (815).
§ 2. Duties and Rights Enforceable by Mandamus (816).
A. Judicial Procedure and Process (816). The Writ of Supervisory Control (819).
B. Administrative and Legislative Functions of Public Officers (819). Duties Relating to Allowance and Payment of Claims Against Municipalities (821). Duties of Election Officers (822). Enforcement of Right to Public Office (823).
C. Quasi Public and Private Duties (824).
§ 3. Jurisdiction and Venue (825).
§ 4. Parties (825).
A. Parties Plaintiff (825).
B. Parties Defendant (826).
§ 5. Pleading and Procedure in General (826).
§ 6. Petition or Affidavit (827).
§ 7. Alternative Writ (828).
§ 8. Demurrer to Petition or Writ; Answer or Return; Subsequent Pleadings (828).
§ 9. Trial, Hearing, and Judgment (829).
A. Trial and Hearing (829).
B. Judgment (831).
§ 10. Peremptory Writ (831).
§ 11. Performance (831).
§ 12. Review (832).

§ 1. Nature and office of remedy in general.[12]—Mandamus is the counterpart of injunction, the former issuing to compel action, the latter to restrain it.[13] The writ early lost its prerogative character and no longer creates duties but merely compels performance of existing ones[14] which must be imposed by law.[15] It does there is evidence from which malice may be inferred. Meyer v. Lally, 143 Mich. 578, 13 Det. Leg. N. 67, 107 N. W. 109. See ante, § 6.

8. Rawson v. Leggett, 184 N. Y. 504, 77 N. E. 662; Tyson v. Bauland Co. [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 3; Holson v. Koch, 100 N. Y. S. 893; Malich v. Josephson, 50 Misc. 315, 98 N. Y. S. 671; Freer v. Schmitt, 101 N. Y. S. 737; Clark v. Palmer, 101 N. Y. S. 759; Moore v. First Nat. Bank, 140 N. C. 293, 52 S. E. 944. When contrary inferences may not fairly be drawn therefrom. Fetzer v. Burlew, 99 N. Y. S. 1100. When there is a dispute as to the facts, it is for the jury to determine what the true facts are, the responsibility still resting on the court of determining whether the facts as found amount to probable cause. Malich v. Josephson, 50 Misc. 315, 98 N. Y. S. 671; Staples v. Johnson, 25 App. D. C. 155.

9. Staples v. Johnson, 25 App. D. C. 155.

10. Davis v. McMillan, 142 Mich. 391, 12 Det. Leg. N. 771, 105 N. W. 862; Haas v. Powers [Wis.] 110 N. W. 205; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Wakefield Hardware Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 422; Evans v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 105 Va. 72, 53 S. E. 3; Krasnow v. Singer Mfg. Co., 100 N. Y. S. 591, contrary to other courts of the state. Coyle v. Snellenburg, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 246; MacDonald v. Schroeder, 214 Pa. 411, 63 A. 1024, rvg. 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 128; Shattuck v. Simonds, 191 Mass. 506, 78 N. E. 122. In an action for wrongfully, maliciously, and without probable cause, suing out an attachment, when plaintiff shows its wrongfulness, malice, and want of probable cause, are questions for the jury. Goldstein v. Drysdale [Ala.] 42 So. 744. See ante, § 5.

11. Finding that prosecution was without malice by corporation defendant held in irreconcilable conflict with general verdict against it and other defendants. Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Stewart [Ind.] 79 N. E. 490.

12. See 6 C. L. 496.

This section treats only of the general rules, the specific application to various duties being treated in § 2.

13. Where private rights are about to suffer from the enforcement of the result of an election on local option questions held upon insufficient petition, injunction and not mandamus is the proper remedy. Kennedy v. Warner, 51 Misc. 362, 100 N. Y. S. 616.

14. Page v. McClure [Vt.] 64 A. 451. So construed at the time of the adoption of the Minnesota Constitution. In re Lauritsen [Minn.] 109 N. W. 404.

15. The law imposes the duty on a corporation to transfer stocks on its books when sold at a private sale and mandamus will lie to enforce such transfer. Smith v. Automatic Photographic Co., 118 Ill. App. 649. The members of the board of civil authority of a town being under no duty to canvas the ballots of a local option election, do not, by assuming such duty, render themselves liable to a mandate to compel its completion. Page v. McClure [Vt.] 64 A. 451. Where the statute provides for the refunding of taxes paid under an illegal assessment upon the reduction of the same, the phraseology of not issue as a matter of right but only in the discretion of the court,[16] such discretion, however, being legal or judicial as distinguished from a personal one.[17] The relator must come with clean hands[18] and seek the enforcement of a clear legal duty,[19] having perfected his right by complying with all precedent conditions.[20] The the order directing repayment in the proceedings reducing the assessment is immaterial in mandamus to compel a refund, since the statute fixes the duty. People v. Erie County Sup'rs, 99 N. Y. S. 1062.

16. State v. Hendee [Neb.] 105 N. W. 892; Bibb v. Gaston [Ala.] 40 So. 936.

Held no abuse of discretion: To refuse a writ to compel the recorder of mortgages to cancel a lien inscribed against relator on the ground that the lien was waived, the fact being disputed. State v. Acme Lumber Co., 115 La. 893, 40 So. 301. To deny a writ to transfer a trust fund from the custody of an official whose bond is sufficient to protect it to one whose bond is insufficient, though the latter may be technically entitled to its possession. State v. Hendee [Neb.] 105 N. W. 892. To deny a writ to compel the printing of a void statute for distribution, though the provision for printing be regarded as independent and valid. Smith v. Baker [N. J. Law] 63 A. 619. Mandamus refused to compel the judge of the orphans' court to proceeding with the probating of a will pending an appeal from the probation of a later will of the testator. Bibb v. Gaston [Ala.] 40 So. 936.

17. Funk v. State [Ind.] 77 N. E. 854. In the exercise of its discretion a court cannot refuse a mandamus to compel the state auditor to permit an inspection of his records where the relator has a clear right of inspection merely because it would be an inconvenience. Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146.

18. A relator who has escaped payment of taxes for ten years is not entitled to a writ of mandamus compelling payment of a county warrant without deducting the delinquent taxes. Funk v. State [Ind.] 77 N. E. 854. Highway commissioners will not be compelled by mandamus to reimburse the road fund to the extent of moneys expended in improving a road within an incorporated village, where such improvement was made pursuant to a petition of relators and with taxes voluntarily paid by them for such illegal purpose. Lee v. People, 123 Ill. App. 520.

19. State v. Acme Lumber Co., 115 La. 893, 40 So. 301; Case v. Sullivan, 222 Ill. 56, 78 N. E. 37; People v. East St. Louis & Suburban R. Co., 122 Ill. App. 431; State v. Spinney [Ind.] 76 N. E. 971; Commonwealth v. James, 214 Pa. 319, 63 A. 743. Mandamus will not lie to compel the performance of duties imposed by a statute which has been repealed. Browne v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 407.

Properly refused for lack of clear legal duty: Mandamus to compel insurance companies to send to policy holders a different statement of nominations to fill vacancies from that required by Laws 1906, c. 326. People v. Kelsey, 100 N. Y. S. 391. Mandamus to compel the superintendent of insurance to change the list of nominations to fill vacancies in offices of a company filed with him pursuant to Laws 1906, c. 326, he having no authority so to do. Id. Mandamus to compel a railroad company to furnish passenger service between designated points, where it does not appear that the respondent has a right of trackage over the entire route. People v. St. Louis & Belleville Elec. R. Co., 122 Ill. App. 422. Mandamus to compel the issuing of improvement bonds before the board of local improvements has filed a certificate of substantial performance confirmed by the court as provided by § 84, Local Improvement Act (Hurd's Rev. St., 1903, c. 24), as amended in 1903 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 24). Case v. Sullivan, 222 Ill. 56, 78 N. E. 37. Mandamus to compel the opening of a liquor dispensary where in order to do so the court would have to set aside an election, alleged to be irregular, which decided against such opening. Wilson v. Cox, 73 S. C. 398, 53 S. E. 613. Mandamus by taxpayers to compel the county officials to pay the governmental expenses in preference to a judgment ordered paid by a prior mandate, the taxes collectible under the maximum rate law being insufficient for both. People v. Coles County, 224 Ill. 41, 79 N. E. 561. Plaintiff held to have shown no right to mandamus compelling the judge a quo to issue an injunction restraining the execution of a judgment. Beasley v. Robson, 117 La. 584, 42 So. 147.

Legal duty held sufficiently clear: A delay of ten years after default in the contract of purchase of school lands before the tender of the amount sufficient to redeem does not work a forfeiture, especially where the land has increased greatly, and mandamus will lie to compel the county treasurer to accept payment and to issue receipt for the same. True v. Brandt, 72 Kan. 502, 83 P. 826. Relator being entitled to a refund of all the excessive tax collected, the fact of a partial refund is no defense even though three years has elapsed since such payment. People v. Erie County Sup'rs, 99 N. Y. S. 1062. In mandamus to compel the refunding of taxes paid on an illegal assessment, it is no defense that the relator now relies on a case for the return of the school and highway tax which had not been decided at the time the excessive state, county, and town taxes were refunded, such case in no way changing the law. Id. Under Pub. Laws 1905, p. 105, Act No. 79, amending Comp. Laws, § 2622, authorizing the supervisors to designate a fireproof vault for the records of the surveyor and an order designating the vault of the register of deeds, a writ directing that the books, excepting field notes in use in the field, should be kept therein, held proper, the legislature, the board, and the court acting within their authority. Board of Sup'rs of Grand Traverse County v. Allyn, 144 Mich. 300, 13 Det. Leg. N. 217, 107 N. W. 1062.

20. Mandamus refused to compel the granting of permission to relator to construct subways, his plans having not been approved as required by Laws 1885, p. 852, writ will be denied where respondent has no power to act[21] and in cases of doubtful right,[22] but such doubt must be one of law and not merely one growing out of uncertainty of fact.[23] The writ will not compel an illegal[24] or prohibited act,[25] nor command the performance of an impossible one,[26] and issues only when a beneficial purpose will be served.[27] Hence, it will not lie where it will produce confusion and

c. 499, as a condition to the right. People v. Ellison, 101 N. Y. S. 55. Mandamus will lie to compel the Consolidated Telegraph & Electrical Subway Company to give an applicant space in the subway, though the relator has not obtained the consent of the commissioner of water supply, gas, and electricity to place its electrical conductors therein, such consent being a condition subsequent. In re Long Acre Elec. Light & Power Co., 101 N. Y. S. 460, afd. 102 N. Y. S. 242.

21. No power being given to the registrars to erase names improperly upon the registration books after the five days allowed for the correction of clerical errors, mandamus will not issue to compel such erasure. State v. Willett [Tenn.] 97 S. W. 299.

22. State v. Acme Lumber Co., 115 La. 959, 40 So. 301. Within the discretion of the court to refuse in case of doubtful right. Kenneally v. Chicago, 220 Ill. 485, 77 N. E. 155. Such discretion may be exercised where the original application is made to the circuit court. Id. Under Pub. Acts 1903, p. 205, No. 159, authorizing the purchase of toll roads by cities and providing that funds for the purpose shall be raised by special assessment, mandamus to compel a levy will not issue pending a suit to declare the contract of purchase and time warrants issued for the purchase price void and to enjoin payment of the latter. Detroit & B. Plank Road Co. v. Highland Park, 142 Mich. 326, 12 Det. Leg. N. 756, 105 N. W. 775. Where mandamus to compel the recorder of mortgages to cancel a lien inscribed against the relator involves a disputed question whether such lien was waived, the action should be dismissed. State v. Acme Lumber Co., 115 La. 893, 40 So. 301.

23. Especially where the statute provides for a trial of fact. Board of Jackson County Com'rs v. Branaman [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 923.

24. Supervisors will not be compelled to make an appropriation where there are no funds and taxes have been levied to the maximum amount. Board of Sup'rs of Town of Phillips v. People [Ill.] 78 N. E. 13. It is no defense to an application for a writ of mandamus to compel a town to levy a tax that the authority of the town to tax is limited unless it is also shown that the authority has been exhausted. Rose v. McKie [C. C. A.] 145 F. 584. Where, pending an appeal from an order refusing to grant a mandamus compelling the clerk of the circuit court to issue an execution on a judgment, the judgment becomes dormant, the appeal will be dismissed. Norwood v. Clem [Ala.] 42 So. 6 [Advance sheets only].

25. Under Acts 1903, p. 288, c. 233, providing that local option elections shall be held in the same year in which the petition is filed, but not within 90 days of any city, county, or general election, mandamus will not issue to compel an election at a prohibited time. State v. Raleigh [N. C.] 55 S. E. 145. Where, pending mandamus proceedings to compel the holding of a local option election, the duty of defendant to perform or the right of relator to exact performance ceases by lapse of time, relief will be denied. Id.

26. Writ compelling a recanvass refused where the ballot boxes have been left open to the public and have been tampered with. In re Burrell, 50 Misc. 261, 100 N. Y. S. 470. In mandamus to compel the treasurer of an irrigation district to pay certain interest coupons, it appearing that there was a fund created by an assessment for the payment of interest on 5 and 6 per cent bonds to which class relator's bonds belonged, there was evidence showing funds available for paying relator's interest (Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002), and it was not error to reject parol evidence showing that the purpose of the assessment was different from that declared in the resolution (Id.). Board of directors could not defeat relator's right by a transfer of the fund immediately after his demand to another purpose. Id.

27. Writs denied: Mandamus to compel the county commissioners to invest certain taxes in a sinking fund, as required by Laws 1895, p. 182, c. 131, § 2, to pay designated bonds, where such bonds have been discharged. Jones v. Stokes County Com'rs [N. C.] 55 S. E. 427. To compel a circuit judge to frame an issue in a mandamus proceeding pending before him to require a city council to approve a druggist's bond, where it appears that the sureties have withdrawn from their undertaking. Young v. Van Buren Circuit Judge [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 416, 108 N. W. 506. To compel the county treasurer to publish the delinquent tax lists and notices in the paper designated by the county commissioner where the time is too short to enable the relator to legally print the same. State v. Cronin [Neb.], 106 N. W. 986. To require the city to designate streets upon which relator might erect its telephone poles, the relator having the absolute right to use any street subject to location therein by the city. State v. Red Lodge [Mont.] 83 P. 642.

Writs allowed: In mandamus to compel the removal of a tunnel obstructing the free navigation of a river, it is no defense that there are other tunnels which will prevent navigation even if it is removed. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People, 214 Ill. 9, 73 N. E. 393. It is no defense to an application for a mandamus to compel officers of a town to perform the duties imposed upon them by statute toward providing for the payment of a judgment, that such duties do not include all the acts necessary to a full satisfaction of the judgment, as that they had power only to call a meeting to levy the tax. Rose v. McKie [C. C. A.] 145 F. 584.

disorder,[28] or impose unnecessary burdensome duties.[29] While, as a general rule, respondent must be in default,[30] the writ may in exceptional cases be invoked to command performance of a future duty.[31] A demand and refusal is usually necessary to put respondent in default,[32] especially if the duty is of a private nature.[33] While the writ will not usually issue where the same issues are involved in another case, the creation of such issues after the commencement of the latter action[34] is no defense.

Other adequate remedy.[35]—Mandamus, being an extraordinary remedy, will issue only in the absence of other adequate remedy,[36] except in Illinois.[37] Hence, it 28. Within the discretion of the court. Bibb v. Gaston [Ala.] 40 So. 936.

29. Where an application for a warrant is made to the judge as distinct from the court, mandamus will not issue to compel him to take action thereon where he would be required to leave his own county and go to another for the sole purpose of executing it. State v. Yakey [Wash.] 85 P. 990.

30. Writ denied: To compel a village treasurer to accept an occupation tax before the same is due and payable. State v. McMonies [Neb.] 106 N. W. 454. To compel a judge to proceed to try a case or to certify his disqualification, the verified answer showing that the judge was qualified and was willing to try the case as soon as it was ready and was reached on the call. Kruegel v. Morgan [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 597, 93 S. W. 1095. To compel a railroad company to switch cars on a private track properly denied where reepondent had actually resumed such switching before the filing of the petition. Mystic Milling Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 107 N. W. 943. Where a judge has until the end of the term in which to rule upon an application for change of venue because of prejudice, mandamus will not lie to compel a change where it appears he has the application under advisement and intends to make a timely ruling. State v. Goodland, 128 Wis. 57, 107 N. W. 29. Where the question involved was not the relators' right to purchase certain school lands, but the right of the commissioner to reserve the minerals therein, until the accrual of the right to demand patents relators cannot maintain mandamus to settle the issue. Thaxton v. Terrell [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 121, 91 S. W. 559.

In a proceeding to compel a judge to settle and certify certain testimony it is no defense under Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 5060, that he has certified a statement of facts which does not embody the testimony in question. State v. Superior Court for Douglas County, 41 Wash. 439, 83 P. 1027. Where, after plaintiff brought mandamus to compel a city to pay the balance due on a condemnation jndgment, the city paid the money into the court rendering judgment accompanied with a petition to refund the same, such payment constituted no defense. State v. Fairley [Wash.] 87 P. 1052. Where, prior to the application for a writ to compel payment to petitioner of a portion of a police pension fund, the defendant audited and allowed a demand greater than petitioner is entitled to under the facts pleaded, mandamus will not issue, there being nothing to show that she had ever demanded the same or why she had not received it. Burke v. San Francisco Police Relief & Pension Fund Trustees [Cal. App.] 87 P. 421.

31. Where the county clerk was not required to print the official ballot until four days before election and threatened to omit a name which properly belonged thereon, mandamus may issue before default. State v. Goff [Wis.] 109 N. W. 628.

32. The refusal of a board of supervisors to appoint the election judges legally selected by the minority members, as it is required to do by Act May 18, 1905 (Laws 1905, p. 203), § 33, and its adjournment to another date, when the judges were to be "selected," is a sufficient demand and refusal to authorize mandamus to compel appointment. People v. Edgar County Sup'rs, 223 Ill. 187, 79 N. E. 123.

33. Right to have cars switched on a private track. Mystic Milling Co. v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 107 N. W. 943.

34. Where, after the institution of mandamus proceedings to compel the payment of the balance of a judgment against a city, the defendant pays the money into the court rendering judgment accompanied with a motion to have it refunded, the pendency of such motion is no bar. State v. Fairley [Wash.] 87 P. 1052.

35. See 6 C. L. 499.

36. State v. Milwaukee Medical College [Wis.] 106 N. W. 116; Commonwealth v. James, 214 Pa. 319, 63 A. 743; State v. Acme Lumber Co., 115 La. 893, 40 So. 301. Code, § 4344. Kinzer v. Independent School Dist. Directors, 129 Iowa, 441, 105 N. W. 686. Under Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 1662; Civ. Code, § 646, mandamus will not issue where there is a plain and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law. State v. Drexel [Neb.] 107 N. W. 110. In the absence of statute, mandamus will not lie to compel a private individual to abate a nuisance as ordered by the board of health where the statute expressly provides for abatement by the board upon the refusal of the individual to act. People v. Fries, 109 App. Div. 358, 96 N. Y. S. 327. The pleading of a verdict recovered in an action involving the title to land in subsequent actions is not such an adequate remedy as to defeat mandamus to compel the entry of a judgment thereon. Texas Tram & Lumber Co. v. Hightower [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 790, 96 S. W. 1071.

37. The fact that the purchaser of corporate stock at private sale might secure the transfer of the same on the books of the company through equity or recover damages at law will not defeat an application for mandamus. Smith v. Automatic Photographic Co., 118 Ill. App. 649.

will not lie where relief may be had by proceeding in the original action,[38] by appeal,[39] writ of error,[40] certiorari,[41] quo warranto,[42] or by a suit in equity or an action

38. A motion to dissolve a preliminary injunction (Blain v. Chippewa Circuit Judge [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 394, 108 N. W. 440), and to vacate an order setting aside a default and order of reference, are prerequisite to mandamus compelling such action (Aitken v. Chippewa Circuit Judge [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 708, 109 N. W. 223). Where, in a suit commenced by capias, defendant gave special bail and pleaded former adjudication and waiver of the tort, mandamus will not lie to compel the court to vacate its order denying his motion to release him from bail and to dismiss the capias action on the ground of waiver and adjudication, the proper way of determining those issues being by proceeding in the case. Polasky v. Kalamazoo Circuit Judge [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 1010, 110 N. W. 521. Where the court has ordered the clerk to pay over the purchase money deposited with him upon the tender of a good and sufficient warranty deed, mandamus will not lie to compel such payment where a dispute exists as to the sufficiency of the deed which could be settled by a motion in the original case. State v. Brown, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 547.

39. Mandamus refused because of the right of appeal: To compel the granting of an injunction. Hanson v. Police Jury of St. Mary Parish, 116 La. 1080, 41 So. 321. To compel the county board of education to issue a teacher's certificate where, under Civ. Code 1902, § 1183, an appeal will lie to the state board of education. Greenville College for Women v. Board of Education [S. C.] 55 S. E. 132. To compel the lower court to set aside a decree dismissing a suit for injunction for lack of jurisdiction. Hitchcock v. Wayne Circuit Judge, 144 Mich. 362, 13 Det. Leg. N. 242, 107 N. W. 1123. To compel the court to proceed with a case which it has refused to do on the ground of lack of jurisdiction, it not being shown that the court was asked or refused to dismiss the case from which an appeal would lie. State v. Superior Court of Spokane County [Wash.] 87 P. 1120. To compel the vacation of an order appointing a receiver of a railroad, since an order appointng a receiver whereby possession of property is divested is appealable. Pontiac, etc., R. Co. v. Oakland Circuit Judge, 142 Mich. 257, 12 Det. Leg. N. 711, 105 N. W. 745. An order dismissing a petition filed as the commencement of condemnation proceedings is appealable, and hence not subject to review by mandamus. Detroit United R. Co. v. Oakland County Circuit Judge [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. 842, 109 N. W. 846. Mandamus will not lie to correct errors of the county board in determining the assessability of particular property, since under § 124 of the Revenue Act (Laws 1903, p. 430, c. 73; Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, § 10,523), relator has an adequate remedy by appeal. State v. Drexel [Neb.] 107 N. W. 110. Refusal to dismiss an appeal from the probate to the circuit court may be reviewed by appeal, and hence mandamus will not lie to compel the circuit judge to dismiss the same. Sharp v. Montcalm Circuit Judge, 144 Mich. 328, 13 Det. Leg. N. 149, 107 N. W. 874. The refusal of the clerk to allow any costs is a taxation of costs within Municipal Court Act, Laws 1902, p. 1589, c. 580, § 342, authorizing an appeal to the justice from a taxation by the clerk. People v. Lang, 109 App. Div. 706, 96 N. Y. S. 555. Where relatrix had an opportunity to disprove her liability in the original suit and again urged it in a suit for an injunction restraining execution of the judgment, and still has a remedy by appeal in the two cases, mandamus will not issue to compel the judge to grant the injunction. Beasley v. Robson, 117 La. 584, 42 So. 147. Mandamus will not lie to compel the judge a quo to issue an injunction restraining the execution of a judgment on the ground that the relatrix was a married woman and that the judgment debt was that of her husband, she having taken an appeal in the original case in which her defense could be presented and having also the right of appeal from the court's refusal to grant the injunction. Beasley v. Jenkins, 117 La. 577, 42 So. 145.

No adequate remedy by appeal: Laws 1901, p. 98, c. 62, § 1, authorizing an appeal from orders or decisions of the board of state land commissioners, does not authorize an appeal from an order of the public land commissioner, hence mandamus will lie to compel the latter to reinstate a lease wrongfully canceled by his order. State v. Ross, 42 Wash. 439, 85 P. 29. The presentation of a claim by an official court reporter to the judge or court for allowance is not an action or special proceeding within Code Civ. Proc. § 963, subd. 1, authorizing an appeal. Pipher v. Superior Ct. of California [Cal. App.] 86 P. 904. Where the board of county commissioners wrongfully declares the office of one commissioner vacant, mandamus will lie to compel them to recognize the excluded one and to restore him to office notwithstanding he might have appealed from the decision declaring his office vacant. Gray v. Beadle County Com'rs [S. D.] 110 N. W. 36.

40. City of Flint v. Genesee Circuit Judge [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 829, 109 N. W. 769. Mandamus will not lie compelling a circuit judge to vacate an erroneous order extending the time within which the relator might appeal from the justice court, the remedy being by writ of error. Cosgrove v. Wayne Circuit Judge, 144 Mich. 682, 13 Det. Leg. N. 311, 108 N. W. 361. An order of the circuit court dismissing an appeal taken in relator's name from the probate court, for the reason that there was not sufficient showing of authority to take the appeal, is reviewable by writ of error under Comp. Laws, § 10,484. City of Flint v. Genesee Circuit Judge [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 829, 109 N. W. 769.

41. Mandamus will lie to compel the common council to revoke a liquor license in a case where, upon complaint duly made, the facts requiring such revocation are established beyond dispute, certiorari being inadequate, since reversing the judgment of dismissal would simply remove the bar to a new proceeding. State v. Curtis [Wis.] 110 N. W. 189.

42. Where at the time of election to fill an alleged vacancy in the council the re-

at law for damages.[43] It will not ordinarily issue to enforce contract obligations,[44] although, if the duty is one clearly imposed by law and the contract is merely declaratory thereof, mandamus has been held applicable.[45] Such other remedy, however, must afford substantial relief,[46] and in Kansas must be "in the ordinary course of the law."[47] By statute in Georgia, mandamus will issue to compel a corporation to discharge a public duty irrespective of other adequate remedies.[48]

Loss of remedy by limitations, laches, delay, estoppel, etc.[49]—One invoking mandamus must act with due diligence[50] as such right may be lost by laches,[51] or be-lator could try his right to office, which was dependent upon whether a vacancy existed, by quo warranto, mandamus will not lie though at the time of filing the petition a vacanoy did exist. Commonwealth v. Jamee, 214 Pa. 319, 63 A. 743.

43. Action at law held adequate: Where a claim against the county has been passed upon and disallowed by the commissioners' court, the remedy is a suit against the county and mandamus will not lie for the purpose of collecting the same. Commissioners' Court of Chilton County v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 463. Attorneys discharged pending suit have an adequate remedy on contract or quantum meruit, and mandamus will not issue to compel the trial judge to refuse to recognize the discharge until relators are paid. Kelly v. Horsley [Ala.] 41 So. 902. A person having a contract with an irrigation company binding it to furnish water has an adequate remedy on the contract, and under Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 5756, mandamus will not lie, notwithstanding the defendant may be a common carrier of water and under a legal duty to furnish water. State v. Washington Irr. Co., 41 Wash. 283, 83 P. 308.

Action for damages held insufficient: Where the refusal of a carrier to receive goods for shipment as required by law is a continuing one. Southern Exp. Co. v. Rose Co., 124 Ga. 581, 53 S. E. 185. Where an old veteran is wrongfully discharged from municipal service, and mandamus compelling reinstatement will issue. Ranson v. Boston [Mass.] 79 N. E. 823.

44. Vandalia R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 980.

Note: For illustrations, see § 2C.

45. Duty imposed by Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5153, cl. 5, and § 5172a, requiring railroads to maintain its street crossings in a safe condition, may be enforced by mandamus, notwithstanding the same duty is imposed by the ordinance granting the right to cross. Vandalia R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 980. The fact that a railroad company has entered into an agreement with the coal shippers of a certain field fixing a basis which should be considered equitable for the distribution of cars does not deprive one of the shippers of his right to mandamus proceedings under Act March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. 62, c. 382, § 10 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3172]), to compel the company to furnish him such equitable portion of cars. United States v. Norfolk & Western R. Co. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 266. Under Const. art. 14, § 1, providing that the right of water appropriated for sale, rental, or distribution is a public trust, and Civ. Code § 552, declaring that whenever any person who is cultivating land on the line and within the flow of any ditch owned by an irrigation corporation has been furnished water he shall be entitled to the continued use of said water on the same terms as those who had purchased their land from the company, such a corporation owes a duty to supply water irrespective of contract which may be enforced by mandamus. Cozzens v. North Fork Ditch Co., 2 Cal. App. 404, 84 P. 342.

46. Appeal from appointment of curator in disregard of the minors' right of selection held not to preclude mandamus, such appeal practically destroying the right because of its delay. State v. Reynolds [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 650. The fact that relator may procure the doing of the act at his own expense and then recover from the respondent is not an adequate remedy so as to defeat mandamus. Vandalia R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 980. Express authority by relator city to grade and plank the crossings which it was the duty of respondent to make safe, and to collect the cost with a penalty from respondent, is not an adequate remedy. Id. Where after setting aside a judgment rendered against joint tort feasors as to one of them the judgment is attempted to be enforced as to the other, it is no defense to a writ for mandamus to compel the trial and disposition of the case that there is a remedy by injunction, that by mandamus being more expeditious. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 171.

47. Under Gen. St. 1901, § 5185, the adequate remedy must be "in the ordinary course of the law" which is not afforded by § 4, c. 340, p. 557, Laws 1905, conferring certain powers on the railroad commission, to a shipper who has been wrongfully refused switching service. Larabee Flour Mills Co. v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Kan.] 88 P. 72.

48. Under § 4869, Civil Code of 1895, a shipper specially interested may compel a carrier by mandamus to receive goods for shipment irrespective of other adequate remedies. Southern Exp. Co. v. Rose Co., 124 Ga. 581, 53 S. E. 185.

49. See 6 C. L. 499.

50. What constitutes due diligence is dependent upon the circumstances of the particular case. Hill v. Fitzgerald [Mass.] 79 N. E. 825. The granting of a writ of mandamus to reinstate petitioner to office being discretionary, the remedy is barred if petitioner unreasonably neglects his rights. Id.

51. Delays constituting laches: Policeman waiting six years after wrongful discharge before instituting proceedings to restore his name to the pay roll. Kenneally v. Chicago, 220 Ill. 485, 77 N. E. 155. A delay of 16 months before applying for mandamus to compel reinstatement as auditor come barred by limitations,[52] unless the duty is a continuing one.[53] In determining laches the commencement of the action dates from the filing of a valid and sufficient petition.[54] By failure to act[55] or by taking inconsistent action,[56] one may be estopped from demanding performance.

§ 2. Duties and rights enforceable by mandamus. A. Judicial procedure and process.[57]—Mandamus will lie to compel a court to act[58] where it is under a of the board of education after transfer to another department. People v. Board of Education of New York, 99 N. Y. S. 737. Delay of three years by a school teacher wrongfully discharged, the position being filled in the meantime. Harby v. Board of Education of San Francisco, 2 Cal. App. 418, 83 P. 1081.

Held not barred: A party illegally removed from office did not lose his right to mandamus for reinstatement by laches in failing to institute such suit at the time of commencing an ineffectual action at law where there was no intentional abandonment of the claim to the office. Hill v. Fitzgerald [Mass.] 79 N. E. 825. A police officer is not guilty of laches in permitting a year and a half to elapse between the time he was notified of an erroneous rating on the eligible list for promotion before commencing mandamus proceedings to compel a correction, where such time was taken up by ineffectual attempts to get redress from the police and civil service commissioners. People v. Baker, 49 Misc. 143, 97 N. Y. S. 453.

52. Where the property owners can and will successfully interpose the statute of limitation to the enforcement of an improvement assessment, the municipal authorities may interpose such defense in mandamus to compel them to make the assessment. Frye v. Mt. Vernon, 42 Wash. 268, 84 P. 864.

Held barred: Mandamus to compel the auditor general to refund money paid for a void tax title is barred by limitations where no demand is made or action brought for fourteen years. Wilkinson v. Auditor General [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 945, 110 N. W. 123. The right of a school teacher in California to be reinstated to a position from which she was wrongfully removed is afforded by Pol. Code, § 1793, and hence mandatory proceedings to compel reinstatement is barred in three years under Code Civ. Proc. § 338, subd. 1, requiring an action on a liability created by statute to be brought within such period. Harby v. Board of Education of San Francisco, 2 Cal. App. 418, 83 P. 1081. Where an assessment for a street improvement was ordered in 1890 and was adjudged void in 1893, mandamus to compel a reassessment instituted in 1904 was barred by Laws 1895, p. 270, barring an action to enforce an assessment in ten years. Frye v. Mt. Vernon, 42 Wash. 268, 84 P. 864. Where a creditor fails to have execution issued within five years on a judgment against a city of the first class and fails to revive the same within one year after it becomes dormant, mandamus will not issue to compel payment (Beadles v. Smyser [Okl.] 87 P. 292), and the fact that the city had entered into an agreement with most of its creditors to pay the judgments in the order of their rendition did not affect the running of the statute (Id.).

Not barred: Mandamus to compel commissioners to apportion and apply certain railroad taxes in conformity with Laws 1893, p. 430, c. 448, § 1, as amended by Laws 1895, p. 182, c. 131, said taxes accruing in the future, the proceedings cannot be barred by limitation. Jones v. Stokes County Com'rs [N. C.] 55 S. E. 427. Laws 1903, p. 1106, c. 482, § 6, constituting a part of the charter of Mt. Vernon, limiting the time within which "all proceedings" to vacate or reduce assessments must be commenced, has no application to mandamus proceedings to compel the formal act of canceling an assessment which has already been adjudicated void. People v. Brush, 101 N. Y. S. 312.

53. Where, because of void attempts to detach territory from an incorporated city, practically destroying its corporate existence, no officers are elected, there is a continuing right to petition for the appointment of commissioners of election, and limitation cannot run against such right. Elliott v. Pardee [Cal.] 86 P. 1087.

54. Where the original petition for mandamus fails to state a cause of action, the commencement of the action in determining laches dates from the filing of the amended petition. Kenneally v. Chicago, 220 Ill. 485, 77 N. E. 155.

55. A contractor who has agreed to accept bonds payable out of a fund to be raised by a benefit assessment is not such a party in interest to the assessment that a failure to appeal therefrom will estop him from rejecting the bonds and institute mandamus to compel the city to make a valid assessment. State v. Seattle, 42 Wash. 370, 85 P. 11.

56. A veteran wrongfully discharged from city service does not lose his right to mandamus for reinstatement by bringing an action for wages while excluded from service. Ranson v. Boston [Mass.] 79 N. E. 823. The fact that the holders of improvement warrants accepted money collected under certain assessment ordinance subsequently held void does not estop them from compelling by mandamus the taking of proper action to pay the balance due. Waldron v. Snohomish, 41 Wash. 566, 83 P. 1106.

57. See 6 C. L. 499.

58. State v. Steiner [Wash.] 87 P. 66; Taylor County Court v. Holt [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 205. The writ of mandate, as defined by Rev. St. 1898, §§ 3640, 3641, is designed to compel action where the law enjoins it and the person or tribunal refuses to act in accordance therewith. Hoffman v. Lewis [Utah] 87 P. 167. Where a ruling on a motion for a new trial is essential to complete the appeal record, mandamus will issue to compel the court to take action thereon. Bleakley v. Smart [Kan.] 87 P. 76. Proper remedy to compel a committing magistrate to take action upon a complaint duly made. State v. Yakey clear legal duty to do so,[59] and has wrongfully refused,[60] and to assume jurisdiction of a case which it has wrongfully rejected without a hearing.[61] While mandamus will not issue to control discretion or revise judicial action,[62] it will lie to compel performance of purely ministerial duties,[63] and where a court adjourns

[Wash.] 85 P. 990. Mandamus will lie to compel the judge of the district court to grant a hearing in respect to motions to dissolve writs under which movant's property has been seized, where under the law and rules of the court the parties are entitled to a hearing. Berthelot v. Hotard, 117 La. 524, 42 So. 90. Mandamus to compel a police judge to try persons charged with violations of the liquor law prohibiting sale on Sunday denied by a court divided as to its power under the constitution to issue such writ. Commonwealth v. McCann, 29 Ky. L. R. 707, 94 S. W. 645.

59. In proceedings for a writ of mandate to compel the district court to vacate an order dismissing an appeal from the justice's court, the legal duty to do so must be free from doubt. Hoffman v. Lewis [Utah] 87 P 167. A judgment of disbarment being self-executing, it cannot be superseded as a matter of right. Hence mandamus will not issue to compel the lower court to accept a supersedeas bond pending appeal. State v. Poindexter [Wash.] 86 P. 176. Under Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 6695, making it the duty of a magistrate, when a complaint is made to him of the commission of a criminal offense, to examine the complainant and to issue a warrant if the facts justify, such duty is obligatory upon him and he cannot refer the matter to the prosecuting attorney. State v. Yakey [Wash.] 85 P. 990. Mandamus will not lie to compel a trial court to order a stay or fix a bond to supersede a prohibitory injunction pending appeal. State v. Superior Ct. of Chehalis County [Wash.] 86 P. 632.

60. Dismissal of an appeal from the justice of the peace on the ground that all steps had not been taken to give the court jurisdiction is not a refusal to act. Taylor County Ct. v. Holt [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 205. Mandamus will not lie to compel the circuit court to reduce the bail of an accused, no application having been made to the court for such a reduction. Monroe v. Berry, 29 Ky. L. R. 602, 94 S. W. 38. The filing of affidavits of prejudice and bias against a common pleas judge disqualifies him, and a declaration by the judge in open court of his intention to proceed is sufficient ground for a proceeding in mandamus and injunction. State v. Dirlam, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 457.

61. Under Laws 1896, p. 874, c. 908, § 230, declaring that the surrogate shall direct the county treasurer or an appraiser to fix the value of property of persons whose estates are subject to the payment of the transfer tax, mandamus is the proper remedy to compel him to act, even though he has erroneously determined that he has no jurisdiction if such determination has not been arrived at after a due hearing. Kelsey v. Church, 112 App. Div. 408, 98 N. Y. S. 535.

62. State v. Steiner [Wash.] 87 P. 66; State v. Yakey [Wash.] 85 P. 990; Collins v. Hawkins, 77 Ark. 101, 91 S. W. 26; Taylor County Ct. v. Holt [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 205. The transfer of an accused from one jail to another in the same county is within the discretion of the court and not reviewable by mandamus. Monroe v. Berry, 29 Ky. L. R. 602, 94 S. W. 38. Where petitioners requested the board of supervisors to fix an additional water rate, the proceeds thereof to be used in the replacement of worn out pipes of the irrigation system, and the board denied the petition by an order reciting that the law made no provision for reconstruction, held that such refusal re-established the old rate, which was a clear exercising of their judgment which could not be controlled by mandamus. Berger v. Justice [Cal. App.] 88 P. 591. Where a judge is vested with a discretion in issuing an injunction, mandamus will not lie to compel him to set aside his order declining to issue an injunction nor to compel him to issue such a writ, there being no arbitrary abuse of discretion. Hanson v. Police Jury of St. Mary Parish, 116 La. 1080, 41 So. 321; Lewis v. D'Albor, 116 La. 679, 41 So. 31. Where a court in the proper exercise of its discretion refuses to permit a party to intervene in a suit, mandamus will not issue from superior court to compel it to admit the relator. Fink v. Bay Shore Terminal Co. [C. C. A.] 144 F. 837. Where a plaintiff who has suffered a nonsuit in an action for the possession of land in which a temporary injunction restraining the use thereof had been issued, it is not an abuse of discretion to refuse to proceed with the assessment of damages on the injunction bond where the plaintiff has instituted a second action to determine title, the determination of which will materially affect the amount of damages allowable. State v. Steiner [Wash.] 87 P. 66. Where a case is remanded to the chancellor with directions to "enter a decree for plaintiffs for an undivided half of the lands in controversy and for further proceedings * * * in accordance with the opinion," an amendment asking for an accounting of the timber removed during the suit by defendant does not come within the judgment of reversal, and the court's action thereon cannot be reviewed by mandamus. Collins v. Hawkins, 77 Ark. 101, 91 S. W. 26. Dismissal of appeal from the justice of the peace for lack of jurisdiction because no appeal bond was given is the exercise of a judicial function and mandamus will not lie to compel the reinstatement of the case. Taylor County Ct. v. Holt [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 205.

63. State v. Richardson [Or.] 86 P. 225.

Duties held ministerial and enforceable by mandamus: The issuing of an order by the county court as required by Laws 1905, p. 47, c. 2, § 10, declaring the result of a local option election if in favor of prohibition and prohibiting the sale of liquors. State v. Richardson [Or.] 85 P. 225. The duty imposed upon county courts by § 15 of chap. 39 of the Code of 1899, as amended by chap. 95, p. 206, of the Acts of 1901, to call an election to consider the removal of the without discharging a mandatory duty, it may be reconvened and compelled to act by such writ.[64] Though mandamus is not the proper remedy to correct judicial error,[65] it may be employed where no other remedy is applicable.[66] Such remedy is appropriate to compel an inferior court to execute the mandate of a superior tribunal[67] and to modify its decree so as to conform thereto.[68] Mandamus may be awarded to compel the granting of an appeal wrongfully refused,[69] to enforce the sending up of the papers and transcript from the justice court,[70] or to reinstate an appeal wrongfully dismissed.[71] Mandamus rather than prohibition is the proper remedy to compel the Federal circuit court to remand a case to the state court from which it came where it has no jurisdiction.[72] county seat. Mann v. Mercer County Ct., 58 W. Va. 651, 52 S. E. 776. Where a claim against a county has been audited and allowed, the duty of the judge of probate to issue a warrant therefor as required by Code 1896, § 1416. Smith v. McCutchen [Ala.] 41 So. 619. Where the sheriff's account has been allowed by the commissioners' court, the duty of the court under Code Cr. Proc. art. 1104, to order a draft drawn. Denman v. Coffee [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 29, 888, 91 S. W. 800. The duty of the county court under Rev. St. 1899, § 1110, to construct drainage ditches along railroad rights of way upon default of the railroad companies so to do. Sanders v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 116 Mo. App. 614, 92 S. W. 736. The duty of the probate court to appoint, under Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 3486, as curator the person selected by a minor over fourteen years of age, such person having been found suitable. State v. Reynolds [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 650. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 274, providing that in criminal cases the fees for reporting and transcribing when ordered by the court must be paid out of the county treasury, the allowance by the court where the fact of order and rendition is not disputed is ministerial. Pipher v. Superior Ct. of California [Cal. App.] 86 P. 904.

NOTE: Mandamus as a remedy to compel the rendition, entry, and correction of judgments, see 6 C. L. 224.

64. To order an election to consider the removal of the county seat, a sufficient petition having been presented. Such session will be considered as a part of the original term or session. Mann v. Mercer County Court, 58 W. Va. 651, 52 S. E. 776.

65. Mandamus denied to annul an order setting aside a judgment upon immaterial issues and granting a repleader. Birmingham R., Light & Power Co. v. Tanner [Ala.] 40 So. 58. Where on presentation of claim to the judge for allowance by the official reporter of fees for alleged transcriptions under order of court the judge rejected an item on the ground that such transcription was not ordered, mandamus will not lie to compel him to change the finding. Pipher v. Superior Ct. of California [Cal. App.] 86 P. 904.

66. Under § 110 of the constitution giving the court of appeals of Kentucky power to issue such writs as may be necessary to control inferior courts, mandamus will issue to compel the judge of the circuit court to set aside an order directing a stenographer to take testimony before the grand jury, said order being in violation of statute, appeal being inapplicable. Commonwealth v. Berry, 29 Ky. L. R. 234, 92 S. W. 936. The denial of a writ of mandamus by the circuit court to compel the clerk of a justice of the peace to file an appeal is reviewable by certiorari as provided by rule 12, and not by mandamus sued out in the supreme court. Graham v. Wayne Circuit Judge, 143 Mich. 360, 12 Det. Leg. N. 1017, 106 N. W. 1109.

67. While appeal lies from any attempt to pronounce a different decree, such relief is not adequate. King v. Mason [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 377. Where a cause was remanded with directions to the court below to permit K. to redeem such parts of a specified tract as he should designate, and the lower court refused to allow him to redeem certain tracts claimed by no one within the boundary lines, mandamus will lie to compel the reception and action upon his designating petition. King v. Mason [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 377. Where a case is remanded to the trial court with a mandate that judgment be entered for plaintiff and that plaintiff's rents and profits be determined, mandamus will lie to compel the entry of such judgment and to determine the rents and profits where the trial court refuses to act on the erroneous belief that jurisdiction had not been obtained of one of the parties. Nunn v. Robertson [Ark.] 97 S. W. 293.

68. There being no other available means of securing the right of the parties. Ex parte Chicago Title & Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 742.

69. Wenar v. Schwartz, 116 La. 151, 40 So. 599. Mandamus is a proper writ to review an order of the circuit court denying a special appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace. Graham v. Wayne Circuit Judge, 143 Mich. 360, 12 Det. Leg. N. 1017, 106 N. W. 1109.

70. Where a justice of the peace refuses to send up the papers and transcript to the county court on the ground that appellant had failed to make strict proof of his inability to pay cost, as required by Rev. St. 1895, art. 1401, the county court upon being satisfied with such proof may issue mandamus to compel the justice to send them up. Trapp v. Frizzell [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 525, 98 S. W. 947.

71. Where the district court, without legal cause, dismisses an appeal from a justice's court, the remedy is by mandamus under Rev. St. 1898, §§ 3640, 3641, and not by certiorari. Hoffman v. Lewis [Utah] 87 P. 167.

72. Ex parte Wisner, 27 S. Ct. 150.

The writ of supervisory control.[73]—The issuing of mandamus by the supreme court of Louisiana as provided by the constitution to control inferior courts is discretionary.[74]

(§ 2) B. Administrative and legislative functions of public officers.[75]—While the power of the judicial department to interfere with the other co-ordinate departments has been denied,[76] the more general rule seems to be that it may enforce purely ministerial duties[77] and determine whether they are acting within the scope of their authority.[78]

The court has jurisdiction in mandamus proceedings to determine the constitutionality of the statute imposing the duty,[79] and, while there is a conflict as to the right of ministerial officers to raise the question, the majority holdings seem to favor the right.[80] While mandamus may issue to compel administrative officers to discharge purely ministerial duties,[81] it will not compel them to act in a particular

73. See 6 C. L. 501.

74. Const. art. 94. State v. Summit Lumber Co., 117 La. 643, 42 So. 195.

75. See 6 C. L. 501.

76. Under the Code of Civil Procedure, authorizing mandamus in cases where it would issue at common law, it cannot issue to the executive, legislative, or judicial branches of the government, except to such inferior courts as are subject to review by the judicial branch. People v. Best [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 890.

77. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4194, defining the writ of mandamus as a writ issued in the name of the state to an inferior tribunal, a corporation, a board, or a person, commanding the performance of an act which the law specifically enjoins as a duty resulting from an office, trust, or station, and Const. art. 5, § 3, declaring that the supreme court shall have original jurisdiction in quo warranto and mandamus as to all state officers, the supreme court has jurisdiction to compel the governor to perform ministerial duties. State v. Brooks, 14 Wyo. 393, 84 P. 488. Will lie against the state auditor to compel him to permit inspection of records notwithstanding his office is a branch of the executive department. Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146. Where the state grants to the parishes power to license and regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors but withholds the power to prohibit, the exercise of the power to license so as to prohibit presents a case where the judiciary may be invoked. State v. Police Jury of Red River Parish, 116 La. 767, 41 So. 85.

78. Mandamus to reinstate an expelled pupil will lie to determine whether the rule promulgated by the school board under which the expulsion occurred was within the scope of the board's authority. Kinzer v. Marion Independent School Dist. Directors, 129 Iowa, 441, 105 N. W. 686.

79. Under a petition for a writ of mandamus to the building commissioner and board of appeals to compel them to give the petitioner a permit to erect a building, the court has jurisdiction to determine the constitutionality of the statutes under which the board justifies its refusal. Welch v. Swasey [Mass.] 79 N. E. 745.

80. Municipal authorities charged by Act 1903, p. 393, c. 186, with the duty of submitting proposed charter amendments to the voters upon a proper petition held entitled to raise its constitutionality. Hindman v. Boyd, 42 Wash. 17, 84 P. 609. The rule that a ministerial officer cannot invoke the unconstitutionality of a statute imposing a duty to defeat a mandamus proceeding held inapplicable to proceedings to compel a clerk to publish copies of a void statute creating new assembly districts. Smith v. Baker [N. J. Law] 63 A. 619.

81. Mandamus is the proper remedy to compel a city council to perform a purely ministerial duty. Caven v. Coleman [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 778, 96 S. W. 774.

Duties held ministerial and enforceable by law: Duty of the supervisors to make an appropriation for one-half of the cost of repairing a bridge, the township highway commissioners having done everything essential to obligate the county under the act in regard to roads and bridges in counties under township organization, § 19, as amended by Act June 17, 1891 (Laws 1891, p. 188). Board of Sup'rs of Phillips v. People [Ill.] 78 N. E. 13. Duty of the governor to appoint a commissioner of election upon petition of seventy-five electors of a city of the sixth class, as required by St. 1895, p. 136, c. 147, he being satisfied as to the truth of the averments. Elliott v. Pardee [Cal.] 86 P. 1087. Duty of the presiding officer of the common council to put the motion that the common council proceed to appoint the standing committees, his belief that it was ultra vires not justifying a ruling that it was out of order. People v. Brush, 110 App. Div. 720, 96 N. Y. S. 500. Duty of the board of county commissioners to convene and revoke a liquor license issued pending an appeal from the order granting the petition. Pallady v. Beatty, 15 Okl. 626, 83 P. 428. The duty of the mayor of Wilmington to sign and affix the corporate seal to a contract made by the council for the removal of garbage. State v. Fisher [Del.] 64 A. 68. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 8775, providing for the establishment of a school for colored children whenever the last enumeration of children of school age shows a specified number of negro children, mandamus will issue to compel the establishment of such school, notwithstanding the year in which the enumeration was taken is passed, there being no valid enumeration since. State v. Cartwright [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 48. It is obligatory and not discretion-manner, where they are vested with a discretion in respect thereto,[82] nor will it lie to control discretionary action generally[83] in the absence of abuse,[84] though it may be invoked to compel officers to exercise their judgment or discretion in the premises.[85] By express statute in many states, mandamus is the proper remedy to enforce duties resulting from an office.[86] The duty must be clear and plain.[87] While manary for a city coming within the provisions of Act 25th Leg., Laws 1897, p. 236, c. 163, requiring cities having underground sewerage to appoint an examining board of plumbers, to consist of the city engineer and a member of the board of health, to put itself in a position to appoint such board by creating a city engineer's office and a board of health, and mandamus will lie to compel such action. Caven v. Coleman [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 778, 96 S. W. 774. Mandamus will lie to compel the board of review to assess property which the local assessors have omitted. People v. Upham, 221 Ill. 555, 77 N. E. 931.

82. State v. Upson [Conn.] 64 A. 2. While mandamus will lie to compel the board of taxes and assessments to pass upon an application for the correction of an assessment, the board will not be compelled to act in any particular manner, there being an adequate remedy by certiorari to review an erroneous decision. People v. Wells, 110 App. Div. 336, 97 N. Y. S. 333.

83. State v. Upson [Conn.] 64 A. 2. Code § 4341. Kinzer v. Marion Independent School Dist. Directors, 129 Iowa, 441, 105 N. W. 686. Mandamus will not issue to disturb or overrule determinations of questions of fact committed to the discretion of the officer or body whose action is under review. Gleistman v. West New York [N. J. Law] 64 A. 1084. Under Act 43, p. 51, of 1902, making the decision of the board of trustees of the fireman's pension and relief fund final, mandamus will not lie to compel the granting of a pension refused upon a hearing (State v. Fireman's Pension & Relief Fund Trustees, 117 La. 1071, 42 So. 506), especially where it involves the exercise of judgment on the law and facts of the case (Id.). The discretionary power of the trustees of school townships to establish schools is not subject to control by mandamus in the absence of bad faith. State v. Black [Ind.] 76 N. E. 882. Mandamus will not issue to interfere with the body having control of the police force of a town in the management of that force. Gleistman v. West New York [N. J. Law] 64 A. 1084. Where control over boulevards has been vested in the park commissioners, the granting of a permit to a railroad to lay another track across the boulevard lies within their discretion, and mandamus will not lie to compel the issuing of such permit. People v. South Park Com'rs, 221 Ill. 522, 77 N. E. 925. Under agreement of June 4, 1891, between the United States and the Wichita Indians, and under the Act of Congress of March 2, 1895, the secretary of the interior is given authority to decide whether an applicant is entitled to an allotment on the Wichita reservation, and mandamus will not lie to control his judgment and discretion. United States v. Hitchcock, 26 App. D. C. 291. The resolution of the legislature, adopted in 1905, providing for the refunding of taxes collected from New York insurance companies under Gen. St. 1902, §§ 2450, 3606, in such sums as the insurance commission "shall determine should be so refunded under the provisions of existing laws," held to impose on the insurance commissioner the exercise of his judgment in determining the amount to be refunded. State v. Upson [Conn.] 64 A. 2. Upon the report of the surveyor the court found that the proposed road was of great public utility. An appeal was taken by a landowner from the award of damages, the award was affirmed, leaving it discretionary with the county court as to whether the expense of opening the road should be paid from the county funds. Held it was not obligatory upon the county court to open such road even if the petitioners offered to pay the expense thereof, and mandamus will not lie to compel such act. State v. McCutchan, 119 Mo. App. 69, 96 S. W. 251. Mandamus against public officers will only issue where the action to be enforced is purely ministerial and the duty to perform it in a definite way is clear. Gleistman v. West New York [N. J. Law] 64 A. 1084.

84. Mandamus and not certiorari is the appropriate remedy to correct an abuse of the discretion vested in the civil service commission in classifying an office in the competitive or noncompetitive class. Retracting and overruling People v. Collier, 175 N. Y. 196, 67 N. E. 309; People v. McWilliams, 185 N. Y. 62, 77 N. E. 785. Classification by the civil service commission of the office of battalion chief in the fire department in the competitive class held not such abuse of discretion as to authorize judicial interference. People v. McWilliams, 185 N. Y. 62, 77 N. E. 785; In re Dill, 185 N. Y. 106, 77 N. E. 789.

85. Mandamus lies to compel the reconvening of the board of supervisors of a county for the purpose of making a constitutional apportionment of the county into assembly districts. In re Timmerman, 51 Misc. 192, 100 N. Y. S. 57. Where the board of taxes and assessments refuses to hear an application to correct an assessment made under New York City Charter, Laws 1901, p. 382, § 897, as amended by Laws 1902, p. 486, c. 192, on the ground of absence from the city during the time for correction as prescribed by New York Charter, Laws 1901, p. 381, c. 466, § 895, mandamus to compel such hearing is the proper remedy. People v. Wells, 110 App. Div. 336, 97 N. Y. S. 333.

86. Mayor and councilmen receiving money as a special lobbying committee do not receive it as city officials, and hence mandamus will not lie to compel its return under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 1182, declaring that mandamus will lie to enforce a duty resulting from an office, etc. State v. Hale [Ind.] 77 N. E. 802.

87. Territory v. Yavapai County Sup'rs [Ariz.] 84 P. 519. Under Rev. St. 1901, pars. 3881, 3882, it is the plain duty of the board

damus will issue to enforce performance of a series of specific and definite acts, it will not enforce or control a general course of official duty.[88] Where the postmaster general has illegally discontinued a post office, mandamus will lie to compel its re-establishment.[89] The writ lies to compel an officer to permit books and papers belonging to his office to be inspected by a legislative committee.[90]

Duties relating to allowance and payment of claims against municipalities.[91]—Ministerial duties,[92] and in Washington discretionary duties,[93] relative to the allowance and payment of claims, may be enforced by mandamus, such as allowing the proper proofs of work done,[94] auditing and passing upon duly presented claims, etc.[95] But the officers must be under a clear legal duty to act,[96] and the law must of supervisors, upon receiving of the territorial auditor a statement of changes made in the assessment, to have noted upon the assessment roll and computed and carried out in the proper column the territorial tax at the rate fixed. Id. The fact that the city is about to take steps to acquire title to a lot for street purposes is not a valid reason for refusing a permit to the owner thereof to locate a house thereon, and mandamus will lie to compel the superintendent of buildings to approve the plans and specifications. People v. Reville, 50 Misc. 474, 100 N. Y. S. 584. Where the court stenographer refuses to transcribe and file the notes taken in felony cases as provided by Penal Code 1895, § 981, mandamus will lie at the instance of the defendant, and the fact that the jury recommended that the defendant be punished as for a misdemeanor which was granted does not relieve him of the duty to transcribe and file. Williams v. Cooley [Ga.] 55 S. E. 917. Where a school board under a contract with the state board of education permits practice schools to be held in the public school, injunction will not lie at the instance of a taxpayer to enjoin the carrying out of the contract, though mandamus will lie to compel the local board to furnish such teachers as the law intends. Lindblad v. Board of Education of Normal School Dist., 221 Ill. 261, 77 N. E. 450. In mandamus to compel a city council to submit to the voters a charter amendment upon petition of voters, a peremptory writ should not issue without proof of the validity of the petition, the answer alleging that it was not signed by the requisite number of qualified voters and that the signatures were obtained by fraud. Hindman v. Boyd, 42 Wash. 17, 84 P. 609.

88. Application for leave to file a petition for a writ to compel Mayor Dunne of Chicago to enforce the Sunday closing law denied. People v. Dunne, 219 Ill. 346, 76 N. E. 570.

89. Not objectionable as undoing an act done, the postmaster general being under a clear duty to restore it. United States v. Cortelyou, 26 App. D. C. 298.

90. Where a county dispenser refuses to permit a legislative investigating committee to examine certain papers, claiming them to be private and in no way connected with the business, neither the officer attempting to seize the papers nor the committee has the right to decide such question, but upon application the court will examine the papers, and, if found to relate to the business, issue mandamus compelling him to permit an investigation. State v. Farnum, 73 S. C. 165, 53 S. E. 83.

91. See 6 C. L. 505.

92. Mandamus will lie to compel the mayor to sign an order for payment passed by the council upon a duly allowed claim. State v. Vasaly [Minn.] 107 N. W. 818. Officers failing to comply with Acts 1895, p. 146, c. 63, providing that the county commissioners shall issue bonds the proceeds of which shall be kept as a fund for the construction of roads, and be paid to the contractor upon warrants of the auditor as directed by the commissioners, may be compelled by the contractor so to do. Board of Jackson County Com'rs v. Branaman [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 923.

93. Mandamus under the Washington statute possesses all the elements of a civil action, and it is no objection to its issuance against an officer that the act sought to be enforced is one requiring the exercise of judgment and discretion. Proceeding to compel the state auditor to issue a warrant for an amount claimed to be due petitioner for services. State v. Clausen [Wash.] 87 P. 498.

94. Mandamus will lie to compel the board of health to furnish an itemized statement or to certify to a properly itemized statement, under § 15, as amended by Pub. Acts 1903, p. 6, No. 7, of services rendered by one employed to nurse diphtheria, so as to enable such party to present it to the supervisors for allowance. Sawyer v. Manton [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 470, 108 N. W. 644. The commissioner of buildings may be compelled by mandamus to make return of the precept directing him to tear down an unsafe building, showing the cost thereof so as to enable the contractor to recover for the work done. John H. Parker Co. v. New York, 110 App. Div. 360, 97 N. Y. S. 200.

95. Commissioners' court compelled to act as required by Code 1896, § 1416, upon a duly presented claim. Commissioners' Ct. of Chilton County v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 463. Mandamus will lie to compel the county commissioners to pass upon a claim for fees in a criminal case where the defendant has been acquitted. De Soto County Com'rs v. Howell [Fla.] 40 So. 192. Mandamus will lie to compel the county commissioners to audit, approve and pay an expenditure by a county authorized by a valid law, the amount being ascertained and approved as the law directs and there being no question as to bona fides. Board of Com'rs of Escambia County v. Port of Pensacola Com'rs [Fla.] 42 So. 697.

96. Mandamus will not lie to compel the provide the means by which they can perform the same.[97] Before the writ will issue, however, the party must be without other adequate relief.[98] Where a claim is duly established, mandamus will lie to compel the payment of the same,[99] or to levy a tax for such purpose if necessary.[1] Where the original assessment for the payment of warrants or bonds is invalid, mandamus will issue to compel a reassessment.[2] A judgment at law is not essential to procuring a writ extending a tax levy where the amount due has been made certain by official act.[3] Mandamus is the appropriate remedy to compel a county treasurer to pay to the town treasurer funds belonging to the latter[4] if he has such funds in his possession.[5]

Duties of election officers.[6]—Mandamus will issue to compel election officials to act[7] and to discharge purely ministerial duties,[8] provided the duty be clear.[9] The judge of probate to draw a warrant for a claim against the county, unless the same is definite and the record shows it to have been audited and allowed as required by Code 1896, §§ 1416, 1417. Smith v. McCutchen [Ala.] 41 So. 619. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1961, mandamus will not issue to compel a county to allow and pay a claim which is not a legal charge against it. State v. Lewis and Clarke County [Mont.] 86 P. 419. Mandamus will not lie to compel payment of orders issued for pavement work under contracts apparently illegal under Greater New York Charter, Laws 1901, p. 186, c. 466, § 419, not having let after competitive bidding. People v. Grout, 111 App. Div. 924, 98 N. Y. S. 185. Where the taxing power of the city has been exhausted and its estimated revenues are not more than sufficient to meet the statutory, necessary, and usual expenses, mandamus will not lie to compel the appropriation in advance of any surplus which may result to the payment of a particular judgment. State v. City Council of New Orleans, 116 La. 851, 41 So. 115. A contract making the certificate of the engineer conclusive of the amount of work done thereunder, but not as to the legal interpretation of the terms thereof, mandamus will not lie to compel the comptroller to pay an alleged claim thereunder, there being a dispute as to the amount legally authorized to be done thereunder. In re Morris & Cummings Dredging Co., 101 N. Y. S. 726. A purchaser of construction bonds, being in no better position than the contractor, is not entitled to mandamus compelling the city to reconstruct the improvement with its general funds and to pay the bonds. Northern Trust Co. v. Wilmette, 220 Ill. 417, 77 N. E. 169. Denied to compel the township authorities to provide for the payment of a debt illegally contracted by the commissioner upon a false petition. Indiana Road Mach. Co. v. Keeney [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 976, 110 N. W. 530.

97. Territory v. Yavapai County Com'rs [Ariz.] 84 P. 519. Rev. St. 1901, p. 973, giving the supervisors general supervision over all officials charged with the collection and disbursement of revenue, held to give them authority to make changes in the assessment roll even after the duplicate has been issued to the collector. Id.

98. An action at law and not mandamus is the proper remedy to realize upon a claim against a city for the rental of land and for services of watchman in caring for property stored thereon. People v. Metz, 100 N. Y. S. 913. Where the county commissioners have passed upon a claim for witness charges in a criminal case where the defendant was acquitted, mandamus will not lie to compel them to allow a particular item, a suit against the county being the proper remedy. De Soto County Com'rs v. Howell [Fla.] 40 So. 192.

99. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085, mandamus will lie to compel the treasurer of an irrigation district to pay interest coupons on bonds issued by the district. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002.

1. Where a contract for the construction of a sewer provided for payment as soon after the completion and acceptance of the work "as the assessment for the construction of the same shall have been collected by the trustees and not before," the contractor may compel the levy and assessment by mandamus if the trustees refuse to act. Harrison v. New Brighton, 110 App. Div. 267, 97 N. Y. S. 246. A judgment creditor of a city authorized to levy a tax to pay a debt, who secures an execution which is returned "no property found" and who demands payment from the appropriate officers which is refused, may by mandamus compel the levying of a tax to pay the same. Graham v. Tuscumbia [Ala.] 42 So. 400.

2. State v. Seattle, 42 Wash. 370, 85 P. 11; Waldron v. Snohomish, 41 Wash. 566, 83 P. 1106.

3. Amount due a new school district from the old district from whose territory it had been formed fixed by statutory appraisement. School Directors of Dist. 25 v. People, 123 Ill. App. 73.

4. State v. Spinney [Ind.] 76 N. E. 971.

5. No funds a good defense. State v. Spinney [Ind.] 76 N. E. 971.

6. See 6 C. L. 505.

7. Where the inspectors of a town meeting adjourned without counting the ballots at all as required by statute, mandamus will lie to compel them to reconvene, open the box, canvass the votes, and the clerk to properly enter and file the results. People v. Armstrong, 101 N. Y. S. 712. Where it is the duty of the mayor and council to canvass election returns and to issue certificates of election, mandamus will lie to compel them to act. State v. Kendall [Wash.] 87 P. 821.

8. Where a certificate of nomination at a primary has been issued to a candidate and no steps have been taken to contest writ will also be awarded to compel inspectors to permit a qualified voter to exercise the right.[10] A discrepancy appearing between the ballot clerk's return and the tally sheet in New York, mandamus will issue to compel a recount.[11] Mandamus proceeding, however, is not the proper remedy to decide election contests involving charges of fraud and illegal voting.[12]

Enforcement of right to public office.[13]—While mandamus will not lie to try the right to a public office,[14] it will issue to compel the reinstatement of one wrongfully removed,[15] as where one entitled to a hearing under the civil service rules[16] has been peremptorily dismissed.[17] But where such a hearing has been awarded, the writ will not issue to reinstate because of errors therein so long as the hearing preserves the nature of a judicial proceeding.[18] One prima facie entitled to an office[19] may compel the delivery of the books, records, and other paraphernalia belonging thereto by mandamus.[20] The fact that the answer puts in issue the right to the office which cannot be litigated does not render it demurrable.[21]

his election, mandamus will lie to compel the county clerk to place his name on the official ballot. State v. Goff [Wis.] 109 N. W. 628. The duty of the mayor and council to canvass election returns is purely ministerial and they cannot refuse to act on the ground that the preliminary proceedings leading up to the election were irregular, especially where their own negligence caused the irregularities. State v. Mason [Wash.] 88 P. 126. Mandamus will lie to compel the clerk of the county court to print on the official ballot the name of a candidate duly nominated and entitled to be placed thereon. Robinson v. McCandless, 29 Ky. L. R. 1088, 96 S. W. 877. The duty of the governor to grant a certificate of election to state officers after the canvassing board has filed its certificate showing them to have been elected, as provided by Rev. St. 1899, § 351, is ministerial. State v. Brooks, 14 Wyo. 393, 84 P. 488. A person acting as the secretary of two rival nominating conventions of the same party will be compelled by mandamus to certify the nominations made by each convention, so as to enable the rival candidates to present their claims for determination before the election board. State v. Jonee, 74 Ohio St. 418, 78 N. E. 505.

9. Where the republican county convention nominated no county commissioner, a party designated as a "republican" in his petition or certificate signed by electors only is not entitled to go upon the ballot as the republican nominee, and mandamus will not lie. Nelson v. King [S. D.] 109 N. W. 649.

10. People v. Doe, 109 App. Div. 670, 96 N. Y. S. 389.

11. Mandamus will lie to compel a recount of ballots as provided by Election Law, Laws 1896, pp. 938, 951, c. 909, §§ 84, 103, where a discrepancy appears between the ballot clerk's return and the tally sheet. In re Hearst, 110 App. Div. 346, 96 N. Y. S. 341.

12. In re Lauritsen [Minn.] 109 N. W. 404.

13. See 6 C. L. 505.

14. State v. Hyland [Neb.] 107 N. W. 113; Briggs v. Carr, 27 R. I. 477, 63 A. 487. Especially where the office is filled by a de facto officer recognized by his associate members. Caffrey v. Caffrey, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 22. Since title to office cannot be tried by mandamus, such writ will not issue to reinstate one who has been wrongfully discharged contrary to the civil service rules, where the office has been filled by another, notwithstanding § 21 of Laws 1904, c. 697, p. 1694, providing that "every person whose rights may be in any way prejudiced contrary to any of the provisions of this section shall be entitled to a writ of mandamus." People v. Cahill, 102 N. Y. S. 325. Mandamus will not lie to compel the judge of probate to issue certificates for mileage and per diem to county commissioners where the allowance involves the determination of the right to the office in possession of other de facto commissioners. Goodwin v. Sherer [Ala.] 40 So. 279. Where a captain in the police department and a veteran who was entitled to preference were appointed to the office of inspector when only one vacancy existed, and after both qualifying the captain was directed to resume his former duties, mandamus will not lie to compel his reinstatement as an inspector. People v. McAdoo, 110 App. Div. 432, 96 N. Y. S. 362. Where four eligibles certified by the civil service commissioners are appointed as police inspectors when only two vacancies in fact existed, one of whom was a veteran, entitled to preference, and another was expressly appointed to a particular vacancy, one reduced to his former position cannot maintain mandamus to compel reinstatement. Id.

15. Hill v. Fitzgerald [Mass.] 79 N. E. 825.

16. A veteran is not entitled to a hearing before discharge under the civil service rules where the office is abolished. People v. Bermel, 51 Misc. 75, 100 N. Y. S. 728.

17. A veteran employed in the service of a city pursuant to the civil service statutes and rules of the civil service commission may compel reinstatement by mandamus if wrongfully discharged. Ransom v. Boston [Mass.] 79 N. E. 823.

18. People v. McAdoo, 110 App. Div. 894, 96 N. Y. S. 1069.

19. One who holds a certificate of election and has duly qualified by taking the required oath and giving the prescribed bond. State v. Hyland [Neb.] 107 N. W. 113.

20. State v. Hyland [Neb.] 107 N. W. 113.

21. Goodwin v. Sherer [Ala.] 40 So. 279.

(§ 2) C. Quasi public and private duties.[22]—While mandamus will not issue to enforce a penalty[23] or private contractual rights,[24] it may be invoked to compel performance of a public duty imposed by contract.[25] Mandamus is the proper remedy to enforce obedience to valid orders of the railroad commissioners,[26] but not to orders of the board of health in New York,[27] to compel a gas company to furnish gas at the statutory rate,[28] to secure indiscriminative service from a common carrier,[29] to compel the transfer of shares of stock on the corporate books, there being no dispute as to the validity of the transfer,[30] to compel corporation officials to permit stockholders to inspect corporate records[31] when the right of inspection exists,[32] to restore one to the rights and privileges of membership in a fraternal society where the same have been wrongfully denied,[33] and to compel the granting of school privileges to a child entitled thereto.[34] The legal duty of a street car company to change the location of its tracks preparatory to a street improvement may be enforced by the writ,[35] but in all cases respondent must owe a clear legal duty.[36]

22. See 6 C. L. 506.

23. The personal liability of the treasurer of an irrigation district for interest on overdue interest coupons which he wrongfully refused to pay is in effect a penalty and will not be enforced in mandamus. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002. Reaffirmed on rehearing.

24. Mandamus refused to enforce a contract of an educational corporation to grant a diploma upon the fulfillment of certain conditions by the student. State v. Milwaukee Medical College [Wis.] 106 N. W. 116. To compel the furnishing of water by an irrigation company under a contract obligation. Perrine v. San Jacinto Valley Water Co. [Cal. App.] 88 P. 293. Where a street railway assents to certain void ordinances requiring it to issue transfers in return for favors received, the right to transfers is a contractual one in favor of the individual passengers and not enforceable by mandamus. City of Newark v. North Jersey St. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 62 A. 1003.

25. Duty of a street car company to pave the streets as required by the ordinance granting it the right to occupy the streets held more than a contractual obligation. Borough of Rutherford v. Hudson River Traction Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 84.

26. State v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [Fla.] 40 So. 875.

27. Section 31 of Laws 1903, p. 883, c. 383, amendatory of Public Health Laws, Laws 1893, p. 1506, c. 661, providing that any duty "enjoined, prescribed or required by this article" may be enforced by mandamus, relates only to the duties imposed upon the board. People v. Fries, 109 App. Div. 358, 96 N. Y. S. 327.

28. Richman v. Consolidated Gas Co., 114 App. Div. 216, 100 N. Y. S. 81.

29. Where a carrier wrongfully discontinues switching service as to a disfavored shipper and discriminates against him, mandamus will lie to compel such service. Larrabee Flour Mills Co. v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Kan.] 88 P. 72.

30. State v. Consumers' Brew. Co., 116 La. 782, 40 So. 45.

31. Gavin v. Pacific Coast Marine Firemen's Union, 2 Cal. App. 638, 84 P. 270. Writ allowable under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 4194, 4197. Wyoming Coal Min. Co. v. State [Wyo.] 87 P. 984. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4194, authorizing a writ of mandamus to compel the performance of an act which the law specifically enjoins as a duty resulting from an office, trust, or station, it will lie to compel the secretary of a corporation to permit a stockholder to examine the books as provided by the by-laws, which has the effect of statutory enactments as far as entitling relator to inspect. Wyoming Coal Min. Co. v. State [Wyo.] 87 P. 337.

32. Since a corporation will be compelled to exhibit its books to a stockholder only in the protection of his stock interest, mandamus will not lie to aid him in a suit against directors of a corporation for the publication of a false report whereby he was induced to become a stockholder and incurred a loss. In re Taylor, 101 N. Y. S. 1039.

33. United Bros. v. Williams, 126 Ga. 19, 54 S. E. 907. Though removed in the manner prescribed by the constitution and by-laws of the society, there being a controversy as to the facts relied on to justify the removal. People v. Independent Order Brith Abraham, 101 N. Y. S. 866.

34. Where a school board acting without authority orders a change of text books, mandamus will lie to compel the granting of school privileges to a child not complying with such regulation. Harley v. Lindemann [Wis.] 109 N. W. 670. Where a pupil has been denied admission for failure to comply with an alleged illegal requirement, the proper remedy is mandamus to compel the authorities to admit him and not injunction to restrain the enforcement of the requirement. McCaskill v. Bower, 126 Ga. 341, 54 S. E. 942.

35. People v. Geneva, etc., Traction Co., 112 App. Div. 581, 98 N. Y. S. 719.

36. The right to compel the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company to proceed to condemn land under § 9, Act of Congress of Feb. 28, 1908 (32 Stat. at L. 909, chap. 856), relates only to land within the location selected by the company for terminal facilities within the general boundaries fixed by the act, and mandamus will not lie to compel the condemnation of land not needed, though within the general boundaries. United States v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 27 App. D. C. 105.

§ 3. Jurisdiction and venue.[37]—A state court has no power to issue a writ to control the action of a foreign body.[38] As in proceedings generally, the court must have jurisdiction of the subject-matter,[39] and must acquire jurisdiction of the respondent by service of process as required by statute.[40] The supreme court of Texas has no jurisdiction to determine issues of fact.[41] The fact that the prayer sought to have administrative officers discharge a discretionary duty in a particular manner does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to command action in the premises.[42] The supreme court of Minnesota has original jurisdiction to issue orders relative to the placing of names on election ballots.[43]

Federal courts.[44]

§ 4. Parties. A. Parties plaintiff.[45]—While mandamus proceedings can be maintained only by one interested in the right to be enforced,[46] and who will be substantially benefited,[47] which must be made to appear,[48] interest as a citizen is sufficient if the duty be a public one.[49] An officer can enforce only such duties as

37. See 6 C. L. 507.

38. To control the supreme council of a foreign assessment insurance society by mandamus. Brenizer v. Supreme Council, Royal Arcanum, 141 N. C. 409, 53 S. E. 835.

39. In mandamus to compel the commissioners' court to enter orders directing drafts to be drawn on the treasurer for claims due relator, there being no question as to the amount and validity of the claims, the district court has jurisdiction without regard to the size of the amount. Denman v. Coffee [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 29, 888, 91 S. W. 800.

40. Under Pierce's Code, § 1420, in mandamus to compel the council to canvass election returns, service upon a majority of the board is sufficient. State v. Kendall [Wash.] 87 P. 821. Under Shannon's Code, §§ 5335, 5337, providing for the presence of persons interested in mandamus, or a notice to them, names of persons improperly on the registration books will not be ordered to be stricken where such persons are not before the court. State v. Willett [Tenn.] 97 S. W. 299.

41. Edwards v. Terrell [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 755, 93 S. W. 426; Davis v. Terrell [Tex.] 99 S. W. 404.

42. Where the board of commissioners has failed to make a legal designation of newspapers to publish election notices, the court acquired jurisdiction to compel them to discharge the duty though the prayer in the mandamus proceeding asked for the designation of a particular paper. People v. Voorhis, 100 N. Y. S. 927.

43. Rev. St. 1905, § 202, giving the supreme court jurisdiction to issue orders relative to placing names on the election ballots, etc., provides a proceeding which is, in substance, mandamus, and, therefore, original jurisdiction therein could be given the supreme court. In re Lauritsen [Minn.] 109 N. W. 404.

44, 45. See 6 C. L. 508.

46. Interest held sufficient: Under Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 6695, permitting any person to make complaint that a crime has been committed, a complainant has sufficient interest in the matter to enable him to institute mandamus where the magistrate wholly refuses to act. State v. Yakey [Wash.] 85 P. 990. A wholesale liquor dealer who has been accustomed to ship liquors to the point to which a carrier refuses to receive for shipment has such a special interest as to entitle him to enforce the carriage by mandamus under § 4869, Civil Code of 1895. Southern Exp. Co. v. Rose Co., 124 Ga. 581, 53 S. E. 185. Where a parent is liable criminally for failure to send his children to school, he has such interest as to enable him to maintain an action in his own name to compel the board of education to admit his child to the public school. Cartwright v. Board of Education of Coffeyville [Kan.] 84 P. 382. An independent school district coextensive with the boundaries of a city may enforce a contract entered into between the city and one accepting a franchise to furnish water, such contract being for its benefit. Independent School Dist. v. Le Mars City Water & Light Co. [Iowa] 107 N. W. 944. Where a city is interested in the taxation of certain property, it is the proper relator to compel the assessment of the same. People v. Upham, 221 Ill. 555, 77 N. E. 931.

Insufficient interest: Acts 1869, p. 96, c. 44, and acts amendatory thereof, construed to give a railroad company no interest in a tax levied to raise money for a donation until the same was collected, and hence could not maintain mandamus to compel the collection thereof after levy. State v. Clinton County Com'rs [Ind.] 76 N. E. 986. A defendant in a criminal action who has been acquitted and discharged and who is, therefore, not liable for his witnesses' mileage, cannot be a relator to compel the county to allow the same. De Soto County Com'rs v. Howell [Fla.] 40 So. 192.

47. Mandamus refused to compel a railroad company to furnish passenger service between designated points where there is ample service by another road. People v. St. Louis & Belleville Elec. R. Co., 122 Ill. App. 422.

48. Where a defendant in a criminal case has been acquitted and is not liable for his witnesses' fees, he cannot maintain mandamus to compel the county to allow the same in the absence of a showing that he has paid such fees. De Soto County Com'rs v. Howell [Fla.] 40 So. 192.

49. State v. Yakey [Wash.] 85 P. 990. A citizen and voter of a city has a sufficient interest to apply for mandamus to compel are owed to him in his official capacity,[50] or with which he is charged with the enforcement.[51] While persons seeking the enforcement of the same duty may become corelators,[52] each must have a clear legal right with respect to the entire cause of action.[53] An application for a writ in the interest of a private party is properly instituted in the name of the state.[54]

(§ 4) B. Parties defendant.[55]—The party charged with the duty sought to be enforced is the proper party defendant.[56] In mandamus to secure reinstatement in office, the present incumbent is not a necessary party.[57] Where the mayor is ex officio the presiding officer of the city council, he is a proper party to mandamus proceedings to compel the discharge of a duty imposed on the council.[58]

§ 5. Pleading and procedure in general.[59]—Where by practice mandamus proceeding is an action at law, the ordinary rules of pleading apply,[60] and conclusions of law[61] need not be pleaded.[62] Conclusions of fact are insufficient.[63] Neither the mayor and council to canvass the returns of a municipal election. State v. Mason [Wash.] 88 P. 126. Where the commissioners of Stokes County refuse to comply with Laws 1893, p. 430, c. 448, § 1, as amended by Laws 1895, p. 182, c. 131, providing that certain railroad taxes shall be expended in a particular manner in certain townships, tax payers of the township have capacity to maintain mandamus proceedings to compel compliance. Jones v. Stokes County Com'rs [N. C.] 55 S. E. 427. Whether or not the municipal officers of a town can maintain mandamus to compel the postmaster general to reestablish a post-office, private citizens residing in the city can do so. United States v. Cortelyou, 26 App. D. C. 298.

50. Although under the dispensary act (Gen. Acts 1898-99, p. 110) it is the duty of the mayor to certify to the judge of probate the fact of vacancy in the office of dispenser, the duty of the judge to call a meeting of the court of county commissioners of his court to select the names of three qualified men, etc., is owed to the municipality, and the mayor as such cannot maintain mandamus to compel the judge to act. Rose v. Lampley [Ala.] 41 So. 521. School directors, being charged with expenditure of the school funds, are proper relators to compel the tax officials to include in the tax certificate the amount due the district. School Directors of Dist. 25 v. People, 123 Ill. App. 73.

51. The tax commissioner may invoke mandamus to compel an assessor to perform a legal duty. State v. Graybeal [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 398.

52. Two persons claiming to have been elected members of the council may unite in mandamus proceedings to compel the mayor and council to canvass the returns and issue certificates of election. State v. Kendall [Wash.] 87 P. 821.

53. Two persons cannot jointly maintain mandamus to compel the judge of probate to issue certificates of mileage and per diem as commissioners, the one having no interest in the claims of the other. Goodwin v. Sherer [Ala.] 40 So. 279.

54. State v. Superior Ct. for Douglas County, 41 Wash. 439, 83 P. 1027.

55. See 6 C. L. 508.

56. Where a janitor of a police station is removed without a hearing, in violation of Rev. Laws, c. 19, § 23, providing that no veteran employed by any city shall be removed without a discharge signed by the mayor after a hearing, mandamus to compel reinstatement should be brought against the police board who have control of the police station and not against the mayor of Boston, Sims v. Boston, 191 Mass. 382, 77 N. E. 714. The power to detail patrolmen for detective duty in the city of Buffalo and to revoke such details being vested exclusively in the superintendent of police, mandamus to the police board to compel reinstatement to detail detective duty is properly denied. In re Pritchard, 101 N. Y. S. 711.

57. People v. Ahearn, 111 App. Div. 741, 98 N. Y. S. 492.

58. Canvassing of election returns. State v. Kendall [Wash.] 87 P. 821.

59. See 6 C. L. 509.

60. Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146.

61. In mandamus to compel the restoration of a police patrolman's name to the pay rolls, allegations that the city had by ordinance authorized the appointment of a large number of policemen, and that petitioner was duly appointed, state mere conclusions. Kenneally v. Chicago, 220 Ill. 485, 77 N. E. 155. An allegation in a petition for mandamus to compel the board of civil authority of a town to canvass and count the ballots voted at a local option election, that it was the duty of the board to so act, is a mere conclusion of law. Page v. McClure [Vt.] 64 A. 451.

62. A complaint for mandamus to compel the exhibition of vouchers need not allege that they are public records, since they are such as a matter of law if at all. Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146.

63. An answer to an alternative writ to compel respondent to furnish gas at the statutory rate, alleging that such rate would give respondent very little above actual cost and would certainly not yield an adequate return, so would deprive respondent of property without due process of law and without just compensation, was insufficient. In re Rebecchi, 51 Misc. 403, 100 N. Y. S. 513. In mandamus to compel the warden of the state penitentiary to remove convicts from a leased farm to one owned by the state, averments that the board of control is not having timbered land opened as "rapidly as practicable," and that all the convicts can "easily and profitably be employed," are conclusions of law[64] nor fact[65] are admitted by demurrer. A mere conclusion of fact will be controlled by the facts pleaded.[66] The pleadings must be sufficiently definite to enable the court to direct the performance of specific acts.[67]

§ 6. Petition or affidavit.[68]—Every intendment is against the petitioner.[69] The petition must allege facts showing relator's right to the relief demanded,[70] the clear legal duty of respondent to act,[71] that he is in default,[72] and that it lies within his power to perform the act sought to be enforced.[73] While the petition must show that relator has no other adequate remedy, it need not specifically allege such fact, it appearing from the facts pleaded,[74] nor need it allege matters which the law will presume[75] or of which judicial notice is taken.[76] A fatally mere conclusions. State v. Henry, 87 Miss. 125, 40 So. 152.

64. Page v. McClure [Vt.] 64 A. 451.

65. State v. Henry, 87 Miss. 125, 40 So. 152.

66. In mandamus to compel the trustees of the police relief and pension fund to pay the relator a claim which she alleges to be due her, an allegation that defendant had more than sufficient money applicable to and with which to pay the claim is a conclusion and will be controlled by the facts alleged. Burke v. San Francisco Police Relief & Pension Fund Trustees [Cal. App.] 87 P. 421.

67. Mandamus will not lie to compel the erasure of names from the registration books where such names are not set out in the pleadings except under the general designation of "residents of the Soldiers' Home," especially where some of such inmates are qualified voters. State v. Willett [Tenn.] 97 S. W. 299.

68. See 6 C. L. 509.

69. Leatherwood v. Hill [Ariz.] 85 P. 405. An application by a corporation for a writ compelling the territorial auditor to issue his warrant for the payment of an appropriation, and setting out the act making the corporation a trustee of the money to be disbursed in a certain manner, is demurrable if it fails to show corporate capacity to so administer it. Id.

70. Where according to the terms of a contract to supply water for irrigation purposes the supply to each receiving water was to be scaled proportionately if there was insufficient water to furnish the full amount, a petition to compel respondent to furnish relator the contract amount must allege that there is a sufficient supply for all. Cozzens v. North Fork Ditch Co., 2 Cal. App. 404, 84 P. 342. An allegation that there is sufficient to supply relator is insufficient. Id. In mandamus to compel the commissioner of public works to issue a permit to construct tracks in the streets after the lapse of the time fixed by ordinance within which it was to construct the same, the petition must allege facts excusing the delay. Blocki v. People, 220 Ill. 444, 77 N. E. 172.

71. In mandamus to compel election commissioners to place names on the official ballot in a certain column and under a given device and party name, the petition must allege that the certificate of nomination designated the title of the party and the figure or device by which its candidate was to be recognized, as required by Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 6215. State v. Marshall County Com'rs [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1016. In mandamus to compel the restoration of a police patrolman's name to the pay rolls, an allegation that petitioner was appointed before the civil service act was adopted, thereafter took the examination, passed the same, and continued to be carried on the pay rolls, does not show that he ever held office under the provisions of the act so as to render him liable to discharge only for cause, etc. Kenneally v. Chicago, 220 Ill. 485, 77 N. E. 155. Under 1 Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 722, c. 24, par. 75 (City and Village Act. art. 6, § 3), providing the term of appointive offices shall not exceed two years, an allegation in mandamus to compel the certification of a policeman's name on the pay rolls that he was appointed in 1888, and continued to hold office and draw the salary until his name was dropped in 1898, is not sufficient to show that he was a de jure officer when his name was dropped. Id. In mandamus to compel the board of review to assess certain tunnels, the petition need not allege the ownership of the tunnels on the date when the assessment should have been made, since it should have been assessed irrespective of ownership. People v. Upham, 221 Ill. 555, 77 N. E. 931.

72. Dye v. State, 73 Ohio St. 231, 76 N. E. 829. In a petition for mandamus to compel an auditor to transfer a portion of lands on the tax list to the purchaser thereof, failure to allege that proper proof of the relative value of the parts was offered is fatal. Id.

73. In mandamus to compel the advisory board of a township to make an appropriation to build a school house, a complaint failing to show that there were funds from which the appropriation could be made is demurrable. Advisory Board of Harrison Tp. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 986. A petition for mandamus to compel the council of a city, as required by Act 25th Leg., Laws 1897, p. 236, c. 163, to appoint an examining board of plumbers, to consist of a member of the local board of health, the city engineer, etc., which alleged that if the city had no board of health or city engineer it had power to create and appoint them which it was its duty to do, is not subject to the objection that it failed to allege that the city had a board of health and a city engineer. Caven v. Coleman [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 778, 96 S. W. 774.

74. Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146.

75. Since under V. S. 305, the auditor is required to keep vouchers for claims presented against the state and it will be presumed that he performed his duty, a complaint for mandamus to compel him to exhibit vouchers need not allege that there are defective petition will not support a judgment granting the writ, though a demurrer thereto be stricken out.[77] Insufficiency of complaint to allege facts authorizing a recovery must be raised by a motion to quash.[78] An affidavit must be sworn to in the manner prescribed by law.[79]

§ 7. Alternative writ.[80]—The writ must show that relator is entitled to the relief demanded,[81] and that it is within respondent's power to comply therewith.[82] An alternative writ to enforce orders of statutory officers must show that the order was one within the power of the officers.[83] The mandatory clause must not command greater relief than relator is entitled to under the allegations of the petition and writ.[84] Where relator's petition entitles him to an alternative writ, the court has no power to attach a condition thereto.[85]

§ 8. Demurrer to petition or writ; answer or return; subsequent pleadings.[86]—A demurrer to a petition admits all facts well pleaded.[87] Material allegations must be directly traversed,[88] and a denial on information and belief,[89] or a call for proof,[90] admits the same, unless they are mere conclusions of law.[91] Failure to deny an allegation[92] or to frame or settle an issue in respect thereto[93] admits the fact alleged, such vouchers in his possession. Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146.

76. Complaint for mandamus to compel state auditor to exhibit certain vouchers held to sufficiently allege the duty to exhibit, though it did not expressly allege the source of such duty, such duty being a common-law duty if it exists at all of which the court will take notice. Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146.

77. Notwithstanding the demurrer thereto is stricken out. Commissioners' Ct. of Chilton County v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 463.

78. Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146. And not by a motion to dismiss. Id.

79. An affidavit of the attorney of the party applying for the writ stating that the facts set forth in the application are within his personal knowledge, sufficiently complies with § 4318, Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. 1903, specifying what the affidavit shall contain when made by an attorney. Pallady v. Beatty, 15 Okl. 626, 83 P. 428. The words, "Subscribed and sworn to before me" in the certificate of an officer taking an affidavit shows a sufficient compliance with § 4317, Wilson's Rev. & Ann. St. 1903, requiring an affidavit to be "sworn to or affirmed" before the officer and "signed in his presence." Id.

80. See 6 C. L. 510.

81. Laws 1901, p. 636, c. 466, § 1543, providing that no head of a bureau shall be removed except upon a hearing, being applicable only to bureaus established by the charter or by an official authorized by charter to create bureaus, an alternative writ for reinstatement must allege that the bureau from the head of which relator was removed without a hearing was one within the protection of the statute. People v. Ahearn, 111 App. Div. 741, 98 N. Y. S. 492.

82. In mandamus to compel an appropriation, a writ failing to show that there were funds from which an appropriation could be made is demurrable. Advisory Board of Harrison Tp. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 986.

83. Order of the railroad commissioners fixing rates. Where the alternative writ commands obedience to the order, the entire order must be within the power of the commissioners, since it must be enforced as a whole. State v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [Fla.] 40 So. 875.

84. Renders the same insufficient against a demurrer for want of facts or a motion to quash. Advisory Board of Harrison Tp. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 986.

85. Where, in mandamus to compel the reinstatement of relator to a municipal office, his petition entitled him to an alternative writ, the court had no power to attach a condition that he waive all claims for back salary in case of ultimate success. People v. Ahearn, 100 N. Y. S. 716.

86. See 6 C. L. 511.

87. Eddy v. People, 118 Ill. App. 138.

88. In mandamus to compel a gas company to furnish gas at the statutory rate, an answer denying that it "refused to supply petitioner with gas" does not put in issue its refusal to "furnish at the statutory rate." In re Rebecchi, 51 Misc. 327, 100 N. Y. S. 335. Where the answer without ambiguity or evasion responds to and denies the assertions of the petition, it is sufficient as against a general demurrer. People v. Board of Trade, 224 Ill. 370, 79 N. E. 611.

89. In re Long Acre Elec. Light & Power Co., 101 N. Y. S. 460, afd. 102 N. Y. S. 242; Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146. In mandamus to compel the payment of interest coupons on irrigation district bonds, a denial upon information and belief that the secretary ever signed the bond is insufficient. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002. Reaffirmed on a rehearing.

90. Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146.

91. An allegation that it was the duty of the auditor to exhibit certain vouchers to compel which exhibition mandamus is sought is a conclusion of law. Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146.

92. Where the respondent judge did not deny or answer the allegations of a petition for a writ that he had refused ever to try the divorce case on account of the insanity of defendant, such allegation is admitted. State v. Murphy [Nev.] 85 P. 1004.

93. Indiana Road Mach. Co. v. Keeney [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 976, 110 N. W. 530.

but no more.[94] Answering affidavits alleging conclusions of law or fact do not create issues.[95] A return cannot in a single paragraph both deny the cause of action and confess and avoid it.[96] Defenses not interposed by the return cannot be considered,[97] and municipalities must plead the statute of limitations as well as individuals.[98] In the absence of a statute allowing them to be traversed, answering affidavits are conclusive upon disputed questions of fact.[99] St. 9 Anne, c. 20, allowing pleadings subsequent to the return in mandamus to municipalities and their officers, is a part of the common law of Vermont.[1] Laches which have been made the ground of an unsuccessful motion to dismiss the alternative writ may again be interposed as a defense in the answer.[2] Where the alternative writ partakes of the nature of a complaint, the bar of limitations is not a ground for dismissal.[3] Objection to an answer on the ground of the generality of the denials must be raised by a special demurrer.[4] Affidavits replying to the answer are not allowable in New York if objected to.[5] In the permitting of amendments[6] and the striking of averments,[7] the rules applicable to actions generally apply. The evidence offered must correspond to the allegations of the pleadings.[8]

§ 9. Trial, hearing, and judgment. A. Trial and hearing.[9]—In original proceedings before the supreme court of Washington, complicated issues of fact may be certified to the superior court for findings.[10] Where relator so acts as to con-

94. Where in mandamus to compel a railroad to lower its tunnel under a river on the ground that it obstructed navigation, failure to deny an allegation that there are other tunnels as near the surface as the one in question is not an admission that it is not an obstruction. West Chicago St. R. Co., v. People, 214 Ill. 9, 73 N. E. 393.

95. In re Long Acre Elec. Light & Power Co., 101 N. Y. S. 460, afd. 102 N. Y. S. 242.

96. Vandalia R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 980. A return to mandamus proceeding to compel a railroad company to construct a highway crossing, stating facts tending to show the invalidity of the proceedings establishing the highway and setting up a contract for erecting a viaduct in lieu of a crossing, construed as a plea in confession and avoidance alone. Id.

97. Though argued in respondent's brief. State v. Yakey [Wash.] 85 P. 990.

98. Waived if not pleaded. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002.

99. People v. Bermel, 51 Misc. 75, 100 N. Y. S. 728.

1. V. S. 898. Clement v. Graham, 78 Vt. 290, 63 A. 146.

2. People v. Board of Education of New York, 99 N. Y. S. 737.

3. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2076, making the statement in the alternative writ subject to the provisions of the Code relating to complaints and authorizing a demurrer, and under § 2075, providing that the writ cannot be set aside on motion for any matter involving the merits, defense of limitations must be raised by demurrer. People v. Bingham, 99 N. Y. S. 593.

4. General demurrer insufficient. People v. Board of Trade, 224 Ill. 370, 79 N. E. 611.

5. Under Code, § 2070, requiring "that a copy of the affidavits setting forth the facts upon which the right of the relator to the writ depends must be served with the notice of motion or order to show cause," affidavits replying to the answer are not allowable if objected to. People v. Bermel, 51 Misc. 75, 100 N. Y. S. 728.

6. Where the petition for a writ to compel the treasurer of an irrigation company to pay interest on certain bonds fails to show an available fund and the answer alleges that there never was any, it is not an abuse of discretion to refuse permission to amend so as to plead the statute of limitations. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002. Where a judgment sustaining a demurrer to an alternative writ is affirmed on appeal and the order of affirmance concludes: "It is further ordered that the cause be remanded to the said court below, and that a judgment be entered and docketed in accordance therewith," the trial court may allow an amendment to the alternative writ. State v. Richardson [Or.] 85 P. 225. Under B. & C. Comp. § 612, providing that pleadings in mandamus are to be construed and amended in the same manner as pleadings in actions, etc., an amendment to the alternative writ is authorized, and the action of the court in respect thereto will not be disturbed in the absence of abuse. Id.

7. The striking out of particular averments in the answer to an alternative writ is not error where evidence of the facts therein stated was admissible under other allegations. State v. Richardson [Or.] 85 P. 225.

8. The fact that the application in mandamus to compel a reassessment alleged that the original ordinance under which the work was done was "duly" passed did not preclude the relator from showing its invalidity where it also alleged that such ordinance had been adjudged void by the superior court (Waldron v. Snohomish, 41 Wash. 566, 83 P. 1106), nor is it material that it failed to allege that such adjudication was "duly and regularly made" (Id.), nor that the ordinance was in fact void (Id.).

9. See 6 C. L. 512.

10. Application for mandamus to compel stitute an abandonement of his claim,[11] the writ will be denied. Relator may dismiss the proceedings any time before determination.[12] In mandamus proceedings, only those questions essential to the right sought to be enforced will be considered.[13]

Relator must show the clear legal duty of respondent to act,[14] though where the right sought is given generally but qualified specifically, defendant has the burden of showing that relator's case comes within the exceptions.[15] On motion for a peremptory writ, denials of the answer as to which no findings have been made on the trial of the alternative writ must be taken as true.[16]

Jury.—In Pennsylvania disputed questions of fact must be submitted to the jury,[17] but in California,[18] Idaho,[19] and Tennessee,[20] the submission lies in the discretion of the trial court. The certification of settled issues of fact from the supreme court to the circuit court with directions that they be "submitted to a jury" does not preclude the latter from directing a verdict where the evidence justifies it.[21]

Damages.—Upon reinstatement to a public office only nominal damages are recoverable, since relator becomes entitled to the accrued emoluments.[22] The New York statute allowing damages in the main action for a false return permits recovery of only such damages as were recoverable in an independent action.[23] the commissioner of public lands to deliver a deed to relator raising issues of fact as to fraud and collusion in purchasing the land. State v. Ross [Wash.] 87 P. 262.

11. Where, after filing a petition for mandamus to compel the commissioner of the general land office to accept relators' applications to purchase certain school lands without the reservation of minerals therein, relators agree to accept the land without the minerals, the petition will be refused, though the agreement of relators is filed under protest. Thaxton v. Terrell [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 121, 91 S. W. 559.

12. Dismissed after argument. People v. Bingham, 101 N. Y. S. 410. But the order should not state that it is without prejudice to a new proceeding. Id.

13. In mandamus to compel the vacation of an order extending the time within which a garnishee might move for a new trial, the court will not determine the effect of a nunc pro tunc entry of a judgment against the defendant upon a pending motion to set aside the judgment against the garnishee. Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Kent Circuit Judge, 144 Mich. 687, 13 Det. Leg. N. 279, 108 N. W. 363. In mandamus to compel the secretary of two rival nominating conventions to certify the nominations of each, the court will consider only the relator's right to the certificate and not the validity of his nomination. State v. Jones, 74 Ohio St. 418, 78 N. E. 505. In mandamus to enforce an order of the railroad commissioners, the court will not review the findings of fact supporting the order in the absence of allegations of fraud. Railroad Com'rs v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 74 S. C. 80, 54 S. E. 224.

14. In mandamus to compel the granting of an injunction, the writ will not iseue in the absence of any of the facts which were before the trial judge. Standard Import Co. v. New Orleans Import Co., 117 La. 632, 42 So. 192. Writ denied to compel the issuing of an injunction restraining the use of an alleged imitation trade mark where copies of the marks were before the respondent and not before superior court. Id.

15. Where the constitution gives to the stockholders in a corporation the right to inspect its books, except in the case of particular designated kinds of corporations, defendant in mandamus to compel a corporation to permit inspection has the burden of showing that the corporation is one of the excepted ones. Gavin v. Pacific Coast Marine Firemen's Union, 2 Cal. App. 638, 84 P. 270.

16. People v. Board of Education of New York, 99 N. Y. S. 737.

17. Where in proceedings to secure school privileges alleged to have been denied on account of color contrary to Act June 8, 1881 (P. L. 76), the evidence is conflicting as to the discrimination, the question is for the jury. Taylor v. Entriken, 214 Pa. 303, 63 A. 606.

18. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1090, it is discretionary. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002. Reaffirmed on rehearing.

19. Rev. St. 1887, § 4982, does not secure a jury trial to the litigants as a matter of right (Nelson v. Steele [Idaho] 88 P. 95), but the court may submit the same in his discretion (Id.). The seventh amendment to the Federal Constitution affording a jury trial in suits at common law is not applicable to proceedings for mandamus under a state statute. Id. The proceedings for a writ of mandate under the statute of Idaho is a special proceeding of a civil nature and not a suit at common law so as to entitle the parties to a jury as a matter of right. Id.

20. Shannon's Code, § 5336. Marler v. Wear [Tenn.] 96 S. W. 447.

21. People v. Alton, 221 Ill. 275, 77 N. E. 429.

22. Hill v. Fitzgerald [Mase.] 79 N. E. 825.

23. Code of Civ. Proc. § 2088, does not include counsel fees or other expenses of the trial. People v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 102 N. Y. S. 385.

Abatement and dismissal.[24]—Proceedings against an officer in his official capacity to enforce a continuing duty do not abate upon his resignation,[25] but his successor may be substituted[26] and service of the writ and demand upon the latter is not necessary.[27]

(§ 9) B. Judgment.[28]

Scope of relief.[29]—The judgment must not infringe upon the rights of persons not parties to the proceedings.[30] A judgment in a proceeding to compel respondent to act should not unnecessarily prescribe the manner of performance,[31] but should be specific as to what should be done.[32] Relief necessarily preliminary to that expressly sought is within the prayer.[33]

Costs[34] follow the judgment.[35] Costs may be imposed upon respondent where the writ is denied as unavailing if the respondent recklessly disregarded a plain duty.[36]

§ 10. Peremptory writ.[37]—A peremptory writ must not command inconsistent action.[38] An alternative and not a peremptory writ should issue where there is a material question of fact involved.[39]

§ 11. Performance.[40]—Facts arising subsequent to judgment rendering its modification proper are no ground for disobeying the same,[41] and it is no excuse for

24. See 6 C. L. 513.

25. Mandamus for reinstatement as principal assistant engineer. People v. Best [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 890.

26. Where pending mandamus proceedings for reinstatement as assistant engineer the defendant, commissioner of bridges, resigned, his successor should be substituted in the manner specified by Code Civil Proc. § 1930. People v. Best [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 890.

27. Waldron v. Snohomish, 41 Wash. 566, 83 P. 1106.

28. See 6 C. L. 513. A judgment directing the issuance of a peremptory writ of mandamus, which is within the authority and jurisdiction of the court to command, cannot be collaterally impeached in contempt proceedings for disobedience. State v. Giddings [Minn.] 107 N. W. 1048.

29. See 6 C. L. 513.

30. In mandamus to compel the board of county commissioners to convene and pass upon the merits of a petition to remove the county seat, the court exceeds its authority in commanding it to convene on a given date without further requiring notice to be given to the voters as provided by § 396, p. 71, Rev. Laws 1905, so that they may appear and object. Kaufer v. Ford [Minn.] 110 N. W. 364.

31. A judgment in proceedings to compel a railroad company to construct a safe street crossing is not too specific in requiring it to use planks instead of leaving choice of materials to the company. Vandalia R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 980. In mandamus to compel a city and a private concern to remove a platform built on a sidewalk, it is proper for the judgment to order the sidewalk restored to the substantial level of the street in the absence of proof that such level is not the proper one. Chicago Cold Storage Warehouse Co. v. People, 224 Ill. 287, 79 N. E. 692.

32. An order awarding a peremptory mandamus to compel the levy of a tax is not fatally defective for failure to specify the amount to be collected where it specifies that it is to collect the amount specified in a named judgment. Estill County v. Embry [C. C. A.] 144 F. 913.

33. Where the relief sought was to compel the inspectors of a town meeting to make and sign an original statement of the canvass of the votes at such meeting and the clerk to enter the result, it appearing upon trial that no count had been made, a count, being a necessary preliminary to the relief sought, is within the prayer. People v. Armstrong, 101 N. Y. S. 712.

34. See 6 C. L. 514.

35. Where the mayor and council refused to canvass election returns upon the issuing of a peremptory writ to compel them to act, costs are properly awarded against them. State v. Kendall [Wash.] 87 P. 821.

36. Where the county treasurer refused to print the delinquent tax lists in the paper designated by the commissioners, he will be taxed with costs in mandamus to compel such publication, though the writ is denied because it is too late to so publish it. State v. Cronin [Neb.] 106 N. W. 986.

37. See 6 C. L. 514.

38. A peremptory writ cannot order the probate court to allow an appeal from its refusal to appoint as curator of a minor the person designated by him, and also command such appointment, since the granting of the appeal deprives the court of jurisdiction. State v. Reynolds [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 650. The remedy commanding the appointment adopted as best suited to work substantial justice. Id.

39. A peremptory writ to compel the auditing and allowance by the city of a claim for rent of lots upon which debris from a wrecked building was piled is improperly granted where the reasonable value is made the basis of the claim. People v. Metz, 100 N. Y. S. 913.

40. See 6 C. L. 514.

41. The fact that the voters of a school failing to obey a writ which required the expenditure of money that there were no available funds, since the order of the court to do the act impliedly authorized the incurring of a debt, if necessary.[42]

§ 12. Review.[43]—If the proceedings involve a freehold[44] or relate to the revenue,[45] an appeal in Illinois may be taken directly to the supreme court. Writ of error to review cases decided by the supreme court is in New Jersey limited to those decided upon the constitutionality of a statute.[46]

The ordinary rules of appeal, such as the necessity of arguing assignments of error in the brief,[47] presumptions,[48] etc., apply. Neither partial performance[49] nor complete performance under coercion[50] destroys respondent's right of appeal from an order granting the writ, and on appeal from an order of an intermediate appellate court dismissing an appeal on the ground of performance, the court will not consider the merits of the order granting the writ.[51] An appellate court may take judicial notice of facts which it has acquired at a prior hearing.[52] Rehearing cannot be had on orders of the supreme court granting or refusing a rule nisi on an application for a mandamus to control the inferior courts.[53] Appellant is not estopped from urging on appeal a different understanding of the law from that advanced in argument below.[54] district had at a special meeting voted to retain the old site of the schoolhouse is no defense to the trustees in contempt proceedings for failure to remove to new site as ordered. State v. Giddings [Minn.] 107 N. W. 1048.

MANDATE; MARINE INSURANCE; MARITIME LIENS; MARKETS, see latest topical index.

42. In contempt for failing to remove a schoolhouse to a new site as ordered. State v. Giddings [Minn.] 107 N. W. 1048.

43. See 6 C. L. 514.

44. An order awarding mandamus compelling the proper officer to enforce a judgment and order of sale of certain lots for delinquent special assessments does not involve a freehold so as to authorize an appeal direct to the supreme court. Murphy v. People, 221 Ill. 127, 77 N. E. 439. Where, in mandamus to compel park commissioners to grant a permit to relator railroad company to lay another track across a boulevard, the relator's title to the right of way is involved, appeal direct to the supreme court lies. People v. South Park Com'rs, 221 Ill. 522, 77 N. E. 925.

45. Where, in mandamus to compel the sale of real estate under a special assessment judgment, the legality of the assessment or the amount thereof is not involved, the case relates only incidentally to the revenue, and is not appealable directly from the superior court to the supreme court under Prac. Act § 88 (Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 110, § 89), authorizing direct appeal in "all cases relating to revenue." Murphy v. People, 221 Ill. 127, 77 N. E. 439.

46. Mandamus Act 1903, § 6. Case decided upon the nonapplicability of a statute. School Dist. of Neptune Tp. v. Mannion [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 440.

47. Only points discussed and argued in the briefs will be reviewed on appeal. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002.

48. Where, in mandamus, appellant's motion included one to strike certain defenses and to require defendant to state his defenses separately, and the record shows a ruling on the former branch but not on the latter, and that the relator thereafter demurred and replied, the motion to require defendant to state his defenses separately will be deemed waived. State v. Tanner [Wash.] 88 P. 321. In mandamus to compel the treasurer of an irrigation district to pay interest on certain bonds, the failure of the court, after clearly indicating that defendant's application for leave to amend so as to plead the statute of limitations would be denied, to make any final or formal ruling, is not reversible error, as it would be assumed that the application was denied. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002.

49. Error to dismiss an appeal from an order imposing duties on election officers which continued until election, though they were complying therewith. People v. Voorhis [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 1001.

50. Appeal will not be denied to defendante in mandamus to compel submission of a proposed charter amendment to the people on the ground of the waiver of the right of appeal because of compliance, they having previously unsuccessfully applied for a supersedeas bond. Hindman v. Boyd, 42 Wash. 17, 84 P. 609.

51. People v. Voorhis [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 1001.

52. On appeal from the granting of a motion to amend an alternative writ after the case had been reversed and remanded, the appellate court may consult its record of the former case to see what disposition was ordered. State v. Richardson [Or.] 85 P. 225.

53. The ruling thereon is not a judgment entitled to a rehearing under the constitution, and Rule 12 (28 South. IV), making the ruling final, is valid. State v. Summit Lumber Co., 117 La. 643, 42 So. 195.

54. People v. Armstrong, 101 N. Y. S. 712.

MARRIAGE.

§ 1. Nature of Marriage; Capacity of Parties; Fraud and Duress (833).
§ 2. Essentials of a Contract of Marriage (833). A Common-Law Marriage (834). Evidence of Marriage (834). Competency of Witnesses (835).
§ 3. Validity and Effect (836).
§ 4. Proceedings for Annulment (837).
§ 5. Criminal Offenses and Penalties (838).

§ 1. Nature of marriage; capacity of parties; fraud and duress.[55]—While marriage is a civil contract,[56] it so directly affects the body politic that the interest of the state should always be considered in dealing with it and the status resulting therefrom.[57] A marriage entered into by one having a living undivorced[58] spouse is void.[59] However, at common law and by statute in many states, if a spouse is absent and unheard of for a specified time, a presumption of death arises and the other may remarry.[60] These statutes have no extraterritorial effect,[61] and cannot be invoked by the guilty party.[62] While the presumption of death does not arise until the expiration of the prescribed time, a marriage contracted within the period becomes valid if cohabitation continues thereafter,[63] in which case death will be presumed to have occurred prior to the marriage.[64] A statute prohibiting marriage between persons consanguineously related within specified degrees is not retroactive.[65] Interracial marriages are prohibited in many states.[66] A marriage induced by fraud or duress may be annulled,[67] unless ratified[68] or the fraud is waived.[69]

§ 2. Essentials of a contract of marriage.[70]—A ceremonial celebration is not essential unless required by statute.[71] Under the Domestic Relation Law of New

55. See 6 C. L. 515.

56. Marriage is a civil contract by which a man and a woman agree to become husband and wife and to assume the duties which the law imposes upon such relation. Topper v. Perry, 197 Mo. 531, 95 S. W. 203.

57. Willits v. Willits [Neb.] 107 N. W. 379.

58. Where a divorce judgment is pronounced, a party thereto may again marry though it has not been entered, as the rights attach upon rendition. Mock v. Chaney [Colo.] 87 P. 538.

59. See post, § 3.

60. Where the husband of plaintiff's alleged wife had been absent and unheard of for more than seven years at the time of her marriage to plaintiff, there being no direct evidence that he was living, such fact, together with the presumption that she thought he was dead, justifies a finding of a valid marriage with plaintiff. Gilroy v. Brady, 195 Mo. 205, 93 S. W. 279.

61. Code Tenn. 1858, § 2438, held to have no force in Missouri. Snuffer v. Karr, 197 Mo. 182, 94 S. W. 983.

62. Man deserted a wife in Germany and came to this country. State v. Rocker, 130 Iowa, 239, 106 N. W. 645. A husband who wrongfully deserts his wife in Tennessee and goes to Missouri and secretly remains there without communication with her cannot invoke Code Tenn. 1858, § 2438, authorizing a second marriage after a spouse has been absent and unheard of for five years. Snuffer v. Karr, 197 Mo. 182, 94 S. W. 983.

63. Smith v. Fuller [Iowa] 108 N. W. 765.

64. In re McCausland's Estate, 213 Pa. 189, 62 A. 780.

65. Laws 1893, p. 1387, c. 601, as amended by Laws 1896, p. 215, c. 272, prohibiting marriage between uncles and nieces. Weisberg v. Weisberg, 112 App. Div. 231, 98 N. Y. S. 260. The legislature has no power to declare that the law prior thereto prohibited marriage between uncles and nieces. Id. Hence a niece cannot annul a marriage with her uncle on the ground of relationship where it was valid when contracted. Id.

66. Under Ky. St. 1903, §§ 2097, 2098, a marriage between a negro and a white person is void, and their children illegitimate. Moore v. Moore [Ky.] 98 S. W. 1027.

67. Defendant's father and brother compelled plaintiff to marry defendant by threats and intimidation, being armed with deadly weapons. Marsh v. Whittington [Miss.] 40 So. 326.

68. One compelled to marry under fear of bodily harm does not ratify the marriage by taking the wife to another city where he immediately abandons her. Marsh v. Whittington [Miss.] 40 So. 326.

69. Where a husband continues to cohabit with his wife after discovering that she had a living husband at the time of marriage and who induces her to return to him after he has driven her away waives the fraud, if there was any, in bringing about the marriage by misrepresentations as to the death of her husband. Michels v. Fennell [N. D.] 107 N. W. 53.

70. See 6 C. L. 516.

71. Under the Civil Codes of 1825 and 1870 marriage must be celebrated by a priest or minister or a magistrate, in the presence of three witnesses. Johnson's Heirs v. Raphael, 117 La. 967, 42 So. 470.

York, a marriage between Indians according to Indian custom is valid.[72] Marriages among slaves in Louisiana were void unless due form of ceremony was observed.[73] Failure to procure a marriage license does not invalidate the marriage.[74]

A common-law marriage[75] is a contract by which the parties agree to be or to become husband and wife, and do so in fact,[76] and is valid in many states.[77] In order to establish a common-law marriage de praesenti, there must be a present assumption of the relation.[78] While a cohabitation meretricious in its inception will be presumed to continue as such, very slight circumstances will overcome the presumption.[79]

Evidence of marriage.[80]—Marriage may be proved without record evidence[81]

72. Where an Indian man and woman agreed to live together as husband and wife and followed it with actual cohabitation which constituted a marriage according to the custom of the Onondago Nation, the marriage was valid. People v. Rubin, 98 N. Y. S. 787.

73. While art. 182 of the Civil Code of 1825 inferentially permitted the marriage of slaves with the consent of their masters, it did not dispense with the celebration of such nuptials (Johnson's Heirs v. Raphael, 117 La. 967, 42 So. 470), as is shown by Act 1868, No. 210, p. 278, providing for their validation by a formal declaration before a notary (Id.). Where a negro man and woman "took up with each other" during slavery without any celebration of any kind, though with the consent of their master, this did not constitute a valid marriage. A slave marriage without celebration discontinued before emancipation, the parties to which were subsequently married to other persons, was not valid. Id.

74. Burks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 515, 94 S. W. 1040.

75. See 6 C. L. 516.

76. Any mutual agreement between the parties to be husband and wife in praesenti, especially if followed by cohabitation, constitutes a valid marriage. Smith v. Fuller [Iowa] 108 N. W. 765; State v. Bates, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 502. Where parties living in illicit relations agree, after the dissolution of a prior marriage of one of them, to become husband and wife, a valid marriage exists. Edelstein v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 95 S. W. 1126. Where a man and woman upon the birth of their illegitimate child agreed to become husband and wife and thereafter lived and held themselves out to the world as such, a common-law marriage is established. In re McCausland's Estate, 213 Pa. 189, 62 A. 780.

Evidence held to show a common-law marriage: Evidence that on the evening of the day set for marriage defendant came to plaintiff's house and took up cohabitation with her, telling her it was all right, that she was his wife, and that he held her out as such, despite the fact that plaintiff stated that she knew from a previous marriage that a license was necessary. Plattner v. Plattner, 116 Mo. App. 405, 91 S. W. 457. Where a man and woman cohabited together for years, holding themselves out as husband and wife, and baptizing their children in the family name, the jury may find a common-law marriage. State v. Rocker, 130 Iowa, 239, 106 N. W. 645. The fact that parties living together as husband and wife formally marry, after each had in the meantime married third parties, is not conclusive against a common-law marriage in the first instance. Smith v. Fuller [Iowa] 108 N. W. 765. Where the evidence almost conclusively established a common-law marriage, the fact that they both married again, the wife, however, waiting until the husband had been absent for seven years, is not conclusive against the common-law marriage. Id.

Evidence held insufficient: Plaintiff's evidence to establish a common-law marriage held so highly improbable, and her subsequent action so inconsistent, as not to sustain a finding in favor of the marriage, in view of affirmative evidence against it. Herrmann v. Herrmann, 98 N. Y. S. 654. Where an alleged wife by common-law marriage testified positively that they were not married, that she had a living husband, and that their relations were meretricious and adulterous, while the alleged husband testified that they were never married but intended to be, no common-law marriage was established. State v. Hancock, 28 Nev. 300, 82 P. 95. Where the alleged common-law wife testified that she had never lived with deceased as his wife and that she was never held out to the world as such, but that deceased had promised to marry her shortly before his death, no common-law marriage is established. Moore v. Flack [Neb.] 108 N. W. 143.

77. States permitting common-law marriages: Texas. Burks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 515, 94 S. W. 1040. Pennsylvania and Colorado. In re McCausland's Estate, 213 Pa. 189, 62 A. 780.

78. Topper v. Perry, 197 Mo. 531, 95 S. W. 203. Where there was no present promise on the part of the woman to become a wife but she merely consented to having marriage relations upon the man's assertion that she was as much his wife as if a ceremony had been performed, she still regarding a ceremony as necessary, no common-law marriage was entered into. Id. Where the agreement was not to assume marital relations but merely to live together as husband and wife, and was followed by illicit relations, this does not constitute a common-law marriage. Gaines v. Fidelity & Casualty Co., 111 App. Div. 386, 97 N. Y. S. 836.

79. Edelstein v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 95 S. W. 1126. Where parties living in illicit relations, after the removal of all impediments to marriage, continue to cohabit, hold themselves out as husband and wife, and execute deeds as such,

by the declarations[82] or testimony of a party thereto,[83] or of the officiating officer,[84] by facts, circumstances and conduct of the parties,[85] and by reputation in the community.[86] Generally speaking, any evidence showing that the parties conducted themselves toward each other and the public as husband and wife is admissible.[87] If the marriage certificate or a certified copy of a record is resorted to, it must be accompanied by proof of identity,[88] and evidence is admissible to show that the real name of a party thereto is not the name contained therein.[89] Hearsay evidence is inadmissible.[90] In civil actions the fact of marriage need only be proved by a fair preponderance of the evidence,[91] and, hence, a record in a civil suit is inadmissible in a criminal prosecution to establish marriage where proof beyond a reasonable doubt is required.[92]

Competency of witnesses.[93]—While one spouse is not usually a competent witness against the other to establish marriage, in prosecutions for bigamy[94] and in actions for criminal conversation[95] the disability has been quite generally removed by a finding of common-law marriage is authorized. Id.

80. See 6 C. L. 517.

81. Smith v. Fuller [Iowa] 108 N. W. 765.

82. Declarations of an alleged husband by common-law marriage made in the absence of the wife are admissible to disprove marriage after his death. Topper v. Perry, 197 Mo. 531, 95 S. W. 203.

83. State v. Thompson [Utah] 87 P. 709; State v. Rocker, 130 Iowa, 239, 106 N. W. 645. Objection that the original or certified copy of the marriage license with the entries thereon is the best evidence, held without merit. Southern R. Co. v. Brown, 126 Ga. 1, 54 S. E. 911. Testimony of a witness that she married Nelson "under the old resolution as the colored people were married then," and that she lived with him for two years as his wife, held to establish a customary slave marriage within Act 1866, rendering their children legitimate. Talbott v. Owen, 29 Ky. L. R. 550, 93 S. W. 658. The testimony of a single witness that defendant married her in 1890 and lived with her for six years is insufficient to establish the marriage where the incontestable fact is that he married plaintiff in 1895. Ingram v. Ingram, 143 Ala. 129, 42 So. 24.

84. State v. Thompson [Utah] 87 P. 709.

85. Common-law marriage. Plattner v. Plattner, 116 Mo. App. 405, 91 S. W. 457; State v. Thompson [Utah] 87 P. 709. The law presumes a marriage from acknowledgment, cohabitation, reputation, and birth of issue. Plattner v. Plattner, 116 Mo. App. 405, 91 S. W. 457. Marriage between a white man and Indian woman held established by cohabitation, admissions, and reputation, together with the presumption under Civ. Code Mont. §§ 280, 282, in favor of the legitimacy of their child. Pourier v. McKinzie, 147 F. 287. An inference of lawful marriage is justified from evidence of open cohabitation as man and wife in her father's house, and her introduction to friends and neighbors under her husband's name and as his wife. Cramsey v. Sterling, 111 App. Div. 568, 97 N. Y. S. 1082. Evidence that the parties left for the ostensible purpose of marrying, and on returning announced the marriage and lived together as husband and wife, held to establish a marriage. Smith v. Fuller [Iowa] 108 N. W. 765. Where parties cohabit as husband and wife, acknowledging themselves as such, and being so reputed and treated among friends and relatives, these facts are sufficient to establish the fact of marriage. Id. Where one who has been married is remarried, the fact that he obtained a divorce from the latter in order to marry again has no evidentiary force in proving the dissolution of the first, except possibly as showing that he thought himself validly married to the second. In re Colton's Estate, 129 Iowa, 542, 105 N. W. 1008.

86. Repute held sufficient. Ward v. Merriam [Mass.] 78 N. E. 745; Bartee v. Edmunds, 29 Ky. L. R. 872, 96 S. W. 535. Evidence held to show no such settled reputation as to support a finding of marriage. Topper v. Perry, 197 Mo. 531, 95 S. W. 203.

87. The fact that the parties joined as husband and wife in the execution of deeds is admissible in proof of marriage. Smith v. Fuller [Iowa] 108 N. W. 765.

88, 89. State v. Thompson [Utah] 87 P. 709.

90. In a contest between two women each claiming to be the widow of a decedent, declarations of the deceased are hearsay and inadmissible to establish the validity of the subsequent marriage. In re Colton's Estate, 129 Iowa, 542, 105 N. W. 1008.

91. Pooler v. Smith, 73 S. C. 102, 52 S. E. 967. To establish a common-law marriage in a civil action it is not necessary that each fact and circumstance relied on be so conclusive as to admit of no other reasonable conclusion, but it is sufficient if all the facts and circumstances are fairly sufficient to justify a finding that there was a marriage. Edelstein v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 95 S. W. 1126.

92. Records of a divorce granted on the ground that defendant had a living spouse at the time of contracting the marriage are not admissible to prove the fact of marriage in a prosecution for bigamy. State v. Sharkey [N. J. Law] 63 A. 866.

93. See 6 C. L. 517.

94. Code Pub. Gen. Laws 1904, art. 35, § 4. Richardson v. State, 103 Md. 112, 63 A. 317.

95. Revision P. L. 1900, p. 363, § 5, expressly recognizes and affirms the competency of the husband, in an action for criminal conversation, to testify to the fact statute. Statutes rendering a person incompetent to testify in his own behalf concerning transactions with a decedent disqualify an interested surviving spouse,[96] but do not prevent a party from testifying as to the conduct of the alleged husband and wife.[97]

An instruction must not mislead by the manner in which the words "legal marriage" are used,[98] or comment upon the weight of the evidence.[99]

§ 3. Validity and effect.[1]—All marriages are presumed valid,[2] hence, a second marriage raises a presumption that all bars resulting from a former one have been removed,[3] but there is no presumption that the first was illegal and void,[4] or that it has been dissolved by divorce where no grounds existed therefor.[5] Where the relation is once shown to exist, it will be presumed to continue, at least as against the immediate parties.[6] A marriage between parties, one of whom has a living spouse, is void,[7] though it may be ratified after the impediment ceases,[8] and in Colorado a void marriage becomes valid from the time the impediment ceases if the parties are cohabiting in good faith, believing they are husband and wife.[9] A marriage between Indians, valid according to tribal customs, is valid after the rights of citizenship have been conferred.[10] Slave marriages in Louisiana produced no civil effect unless ratified by continued cohabitation after emancipation or by acknowledgment under act of 1868.[11] A customary marriage among slaves is voidable only,[12] and until disaffirmed[13] has all the effects of a valid marriage.[14] of marriage. Hill v. Pomelear, 72 N. J. Law, 528, 63 A. 269.

96. A widow asserting dower rights is incompetent to testify to the fact of marriage under Code Civ. Proc. § 606. Bartee v. Edmunds, 29 Ky. L. R. 872, 96 S. W. 535. In an action by children of a deceased woman to recover her community interest, the alleged defendant husband cannot, under Rev. St. 1895, art. 2302, testify that he was never married to plaintiff's mother, and that no agreement to become husband and wife was ever made. Edelstein v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 95 S. W. 1126.

97. Do not constitute transactions with decedent within Rev. St. 1895, art. 2302. Edelstein v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 95 S. W. 1126.

98. An instruction that cohabitation meretricious in its inception is presumed to continue so unless overcome by proof of a "legal marriage" is misleading in that legal marriage and statutory marriage might be treated as synonymous. Edelstein v. Brown, [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 95 S. W. 1126.

99. An instruction that living together as husband and wife, and the holding out by each that the other is his or her lawful spouse, and the execution of deeds as husband and wife, were not in themselves proof of marriage but were facts and circumstances to be considered in connection with other evidence, and that such facts were but circumstances to be considered by the jury, was properly refused as upon the weight of the evidence. Edelstein v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 95 S. W. 1126.

1. See 6 C. L. 518.

2. State v. Rocker, 130 Iowa, 239, 106 N. W. 645. Where there are rival claimants to the rights of surviving widow of a deceased person, proof of the last marriage makes out a prima facie case of its validity. In re Colton's Estate, 129 Iowa, 542, 105 N. W. 1008.

3. Smith v. Fuller [Iowa] 108 N. W. 765. Where one marries whose spouse has not been absent for a sufficient length of time to raise a presumption of death, the presumption in favor of the second marriage will overcome the presumption that the former spouse still lives. Id.

4. The presumption of innocence attending the second will not raise a presumption of guilt as to the first. Hallums v. Hallums, 74 S. C. 407, 54 S. E. 613.

5. Where a husband deserts his wife against whom he has no ground for divorce, it will not be presumed to sustain a subsequent marriage that he procured a divorce on false testimony. In re Colton's Estate, 129 Iowa, 542, 105 N. W. 1008.

6. State v. Rocker, 130 Iowa, 239, 106 N. W. 645. Husband sought to be held for goods sold to the wife. Stoutenborough v. Rammel, 123 Ill. App. 487.

7. Burks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 515, 94 S. W. 1040. Especially where the other contracting party has knowledge. Miller v. Prelle, 122 Ill. App. 380. Under Rev. St. 1898, §§ 2349, 2330, a marriage between parties, one of whom is married, is absolutely void without legal process. In re Geith's Estate [Wis.] 109 N. W. 552.

8. Edelstein v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 95 S. W. 1126.

9. Parties, one of whom was a recent divorcee, and hence could not marry for a year, went to another state to be married and returned and cohabited for more than a year, believing themselves to be validly married. Mock v. Chaney [Colo.] 87 P. 538.

10. Therefore, a party thereto could not marry without a divorce according to law. Moore v. Nah-con-be, 72 Kan. 169, 83 P. 400.

11. Johnson's Heirs v. Raphael, 117 La. 967, 42 So. 470.

A marriage by one under the age of consent but competent at common law is voidable and not void,[15] and is valid for all civil purposes until annulled by judicial decree.[16] The Kentucky Act legitimizing the children of customary slave marriages did not legalize the marriages.[17]

§ 4. Proceedings for annulment.[18]—While divorce actions and annulment suits are distinct in that the former dissolve valid marriages while the latter merely judicially declare invalid ones void,[19] the distinction is not always observed.[20] In some states a court may award suit money to the defendant wife in annulment proceedings,[21] especially if the marriage was voidable only,[22] in which case expenditures made by the wife in behalf of the family[23] and a reasonable sum for the support of the issue,[24] as well as a counsel fee,[25] may be included in the final decree.[26] This may be allowed on a cross bill to an action by the wife for maintenance.[27] In New York a wife who was under the age of consent at the time of marriage may sue to annul her marriage.[28] An action to annul a marriage on the ground that defendant had a living spouse is not based upon fraud, though plaintiff was a victim of fraudulent representations.[29] A marriage may be annulled upon sufficient proof[30] of the impotency of a party thereto; and a motion for an order compelling defendant to submit to a physical examination is properly denied where she waives the incompetency as witness of her attending physicians who have examined her in respect thereto.[31] Evidence which was known and which was omitted as inconsistent with the defense made is not newly discovered evidence justifying a new trial.[32] A judg-

12. Middleton v. Middleton, 221 Ill. 623, 77 N. E. 1123.

13. A customary marriage legalized by statute but left voidable is not disaffirmed by cohabitation with another woman after the customary wife's death. Middleton v. Middleton, 221 Ill. 623, 77 N. E. 1123.

14. Children are legitimate until disaffirmance. Middleton v. Middleton, 221 Ill. 623, 77 N. E. 1123.

15, 16. Willits v. Willits [Neb.] 107 N. W. 379.

17. Act Ky. Feb. 14, 1866 (Pub. Acts 1865-66, p. 37, c. 556) § 2. Middleton v. Middleton, 221 Ill. 623, 77 N. E. 1123.

18. See 6 C. L. 518.

19. Rev. St. 1895, art. 1194, subd. 16, relating to the venue of divorce actions, held inapplicable to a suit to annul a marriage because of the incapacity of one of the parties thereto. Schneider v. Rabb [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1001, 97 S. W. 463. Comp. Laws, § 8628, allowing solicitor's fees to the wife in divorce actions, is inapplicable to an action under § 8618, to annul a marriage contracted while the wife had a living husband. Webb v. Wayne Circuit Judge, 144 Mich. 674, 13 Det. Leg. N. 268, 108 N. W. 358.

20. A suit to annul a marriage on the ground that plaintiff was mentally incompetent to enter into a valid contract is a divorce proceeding, and a verifying affidavit is jurisdictional. Johnson v. Johnson, 142 N. C. 462, 55 S. E. 341.

21. The power is incidental to the action and not dependent upon statute. Webb v. Wayne Circuit Judge, 144 Mich. 674, 13 Det. Leg. N. 268, 108 N. W. 358.

22. Willits v. Willits [Neb.] 107 N. W. 379.

23. Lying-in expenses allowed. Willits v. Willits [Neb.] 107 N. W. 379.

24. Under Comp. St. 1903, c. 25, § 15, a court annulling a marriage at the suit of one under the age of consent may require plaintiff to pay a reasonable sum for the support of issue. Willits v. Willits [Neb.] 107 N. W. 379.

25. Willits v. Willits [Neb.] 107 N. W. 379.

26. Lies within the discretion of the court as to time of allowance. Willits v. Willits [Neb.] 107 N. W. 379.

27. Willits v. Willits [Neb.] 107 N. W. 379.

28. She may sue under Code Civ. Proc. § 1743, and is not limited to § 1742, which is only applicable where the marriage is without the parent's consent. Wander v. Wander, 117 App. Div. 189, 97 N. Y. S. 586.

29. Not within § 2734, Rev. Codes 1899, giving the children to the innocent party where a marriage is annulled for fraud. Michels v. Fennell [N. D.] 107 N. W. 53.

30. Where, in an action to annul a marriage on the ground of impotency, it was admitted that sexual relation had never been sustained, evidence of a physician that the wife was capable of complete sexual intercourse held sufficient to sustain a finding that the husband was impotent. Hebert v. Hebert, 118 Ill. App. 448.

31. Geis v. Geis, 101 N. Y. S. 845.

32. Where, in an action to annul a marriage induced by representations that defendant had been delivered of a child of which plaintiff was the father, the defense was that the representations were true, defendant is not entitled to a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence that plaintiff was living with her during the months immediately preceding the alleged delivery and, therefore, knew that representations were false and was not deceived. Di Lorenzo v. Di Lorenzo, 111 App. Div. 920, 97 N. Y. S. 644.

ment annulling a marriage on the ground of incapacity of a party thereto cannot be set aside by consent of the parties,[33] but must be done in adversary proceedings[34] after due notice to the other party.[35] Counsel in the original action are not necessary parties,[36] and a third party whose property rights will be affected by the vacation cannot intervene.[37]

§ 5. Criminal offenses and penalties.[38]—In North Carolina a register of deeds issuing a license for the marriage of one under the age of consent, without a written consent of the parent, and without reasonable inquiry,[39] is liable to the parent for a prescribed penalty. The parent has the burden of proving lack of reasonable inquiry,[40] and where the evidence is conflicting, it is a question for the jury, but otherwise for the court.[41] Failure to place the parties examined under oath does not of itself show lack of reasonable inquiry.[42]

MARRIAGE SETTLEMENTS, see latest topical index.

MARSHALING ASSETS AND SECURITIES.

The doctrine[43] of marshaling assets is that where one creditor has recourse to two funds to one of which only other creditors may resort the former will be required to first exhaust the fund in which he has an exclusive interest where equity demands it for the protection of the latter.[44] There must be two funds to which the paramount creditor may resort for the payment of the same claim.[45] The doctrine must be so applied as not to work substantial injustice or injury to the paramount creditor or other party in interest,[46] and so as to protect, not to destroy,

33. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 53 S. E. 623.

34. On a hearing to set aside a judgment annulling a marriage the same counsel cannot appear for both parties thereto. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 53 S. E. 623.

35. Notice to counsel of record is insufficient. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 53 S. E. 623.

36. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 53 S. E. 623.

37. Johnson v. Johnson, 142 N. C. 462, 55 S. E. 341.

38. See 6 C. L. 520. See, also, Husband and Wife, 8 C. L. 122; Crimes Against Morality, see Adultery, 7 C. L. 39, and the like.

39. The register of deeds before issuing a marriage license must make such inquiry for legal objections to the marriage as a prudent business man, acting in the most important affairs of life, would make, and to exercise his duties in such respect carefully and conscientiously and not as a mere matter of form. Furr v. Johnson, 140 N. C. 157, 52 S. E. 664. Where the prospective groom, who was well known to the register of deeds as a man of good character, stated that the girl was eighteen years of age, that he had seen her age in the Bible and that she had told him that she was that old, held that the register of deeds had made reasonable inquiry. Id.

40. Action under Code 1883, p. 691, § 1816. Furr v. Johnson, 140 N. C. 157, 52 S. E. 664.

41. Furr v. Johnson, 140 N. C. 157, 52 S. E. 664. Where, in an action to recover a penalty under Revisal 1905, § 2090, it appears that after having his suspicions as to the girl's age aroused, the register of deeds accepted the statement of the bridegroom and his companion as to her age, he failed to make reasonable inquiry as a matter of law. Morrison v. Teague [N. C.] 55 S. E. 521.

42. Under Act 1877 (Acts 1877, p. 583, c. 331), now Revisal § 2067, the administering of the oath is discretionary. Furr v. Johnson, 140 N. C. 157, 52 S. E. 664.

43. See 6 C. L. 520.

44. Where a landlord has a lien on grain for advances to his tenant and a creditor attaches part of it and notifies the landlord who allows the remainder, sufficient to satisfy his claim, to be disposed of, the doctrine of marshaling assets will prevent the landlord from satisfying his claim out of the attached grain until the attachment is satisfied. Wolfe v. Houston Land & Irr. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 127, 98 S. W. 1069.

45. Doctrine did not apply where creditor had only one fund from which to satisfy his mortgage debt and one from which to satisfy an unsecured debt. Weideman v. Springfield Breweries Co., 78 Conn. 660, 63 A. 162.

46. Where the paramount creditor's primary security was disputed and a compromise offered by the debtor required such creditor to resort to the secondary fund, but before accepting the compromise the paramount creditor offered to permit the junior creditor to continue the litigation or to buy out the former's interest, held, the latter having refused either alternative, the paramount creditor could complete the settlement without becoming liable for a pro tanto portion of the securities realized by the compromise. Pope v. Baltimore Warehouse Co., 103 Md.

equities.[47] It does not apply where the senior lienor by agreement with the debtor, in good faith and without knowledge of any junior claim, applies one fund to the payment of an unsecured debt,[48] nor where a claim of exemption cannot be determined in the suit and the rule would sanction the bad faith and illegal conduct of one through whom the party who invokes it claims,[49] nor where both funds are necessary to the satisfaction of the paramount claim.[50] Where a single mortgage covers land a part of which only is owned by the real debtor, such part must be first exhausted before the interest of the other owners can be affected.[51] When a mortgage given to secure the purchase price of a homestead also covers other property of a mere surety, it must be satisfied from the homestead first.[52] One who holds collateral to secure the secondary liability of another for a debt due from a third person is not bound to realize on such collateral before receiving his share of the assets of the person primarily liable.[53]

Partnership assets.[54]

Inverse order of alienation.[55]—Where land subject to a general judgment lien is conveyed by the debtor in separate tracts to different persons, the creditor, if obliged to resort to execution, must satisfy his judgment by a sale of the land in the inverse order of alienation.[56]

MARSHALING ESTATE, see latest topical index.

9, 62 A. 1119. Mortgagee failing to record in time could not require subsequent creditor to resort to sureties on his note first in order that a large part of the creditor's property could be applied to the mortgage debt. Wardlaw v. Troy Oil Mill, 74 S. C. 368, 54 S. E. 658.

47. Where a mortgagor while insolvent paid for an assignment of a first mortgage to his daughter in fraud of his general creditors, his administrator would not be compelled to pay advancements for insurance and taxes from rents collected by him which would inure to the sole benefit of another mortgagee to the prejudice of the general creditors. Hatch v. Daugherty [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 657, 108 N. W. 986.

48. Where mortgagee as further security took an assignment of certain insurance money, and without knowledge of a subsequent mortgage and per supplemental agreement with mortgagor applied the money collected to an unsecured debt, junior mortgagee held not entitled to have the money applied in satisfaction of the senior mortgage. Weideman v. Springfield Breweries Co., 78 Conn. 660, 63 A. 162.

49. A purchaser of personalty at a junior mortgagee's sale, who had actual knowledge of the prior mortgage and notice that the seller obtained possession from the prior mortgagee by deceit and force, and who paid for the property only the amount secured by the junior mortgage, cannot defeat a replevin suit by the prior mortgagee by contending that plaintiff could have satisfied his claim out of the mortgagor's homestead on which he had another mortgage; the value of the personalty being materially in excess of both chattel mortgages. Youngberg v. Walsh, 72 Kan. 220, 83 P. 972.

50. Where defendant converted property on which plaintiff held a landlord's lien, plaintiff was not bound to apply other property received from the tenant to the satisfaction of his claim but could apply it on subsequent claims for supplies to the tenant. Cadenhead v. Rogers & Bro. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 837, 96 S. W. 952.

51. Blanchard v. Naquin, 116 La. 806, 41 So. 99. Where one of two owners assumed the debt and agreed that the other should be subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee in case he was required to pay any part of it, neither the former nor any creditor who was party to the contracts by which the titles were acquired, or who claimed under subsequent mortgages, could take any of the fund realized by the sale under the first mortgage until the second owner was reimbursed any sum paid by him on the first mortgage. Id.

52. Notwithstanding Code § 2976, providing that homestead can be sold only to satisfy any deficiency after exhausting other property pledged by the same contract. Guiher v. Huffman [Iowa] 109 N. W. 469.

53. Where corporation primarily liable became insolvent. Campbell v. Campbell Co., 117 La. 402, 41 So. 696.

54. See 6 C. L. 520.

NOTE: The rule giving the separate creditors a priority over the firm creditors in the distribution of the separate estate has not been universally adopted. Some courts * * * have held that firm creditors are entitled to share pari passu with the separate creditors in the separate estate. With one qualification, this rule is correct on principle. This qualification is that firm creditors should be compelled to first exhaust the joint estate, after which they should be admitted to share pari passu with the individual creditors in the whole of the separate estate. This rests upon the equitable doctrine of the marshaling of assets. Hultzer v. Phillips, 26 S. C. 136, 1 S. E. 502, 4 Am. St. Rep. 687; Blair v. Black, 31 S. C. 346, 9 S. E. 1033, 17 Am. St. Rep. 30, Mechem's Cases, 477; Bardwell v. Perry, 19 Vt. 292, 47 Am. Dec. 687; Adams v. Sturges, 55 Ill. 468.—From Shumaker on Partnership, p. 235.

55. See 6 C. L. 520.

56. Oliver v. Wright, 47 Or. 322, 83 P. 870.

MASTER AND SERVANT.

§ 1. The Relation; Statutory Regulations (840). Termination of the Relation (841). Actions for Wrongful Discharge (843). Remedies of Master for Breach by Servant (845). Labor Laws (845).
§ 2. The Right of the Master in Services of the Employe, and Right of Employe to Compensation; Assignments of Wages; Trade Secrets; Statutory Regulations (846). Medical Treatment (848).
§ 3. Master's Liability for Injuries to Servants (849).
A. Nature and Extent in General (849). Statutory Liability (853). The Relation of Master and Servant Must Exist (854). The Master's Negligence Must Have Been the Proximate Cause of the Servant's Injuries (857). Contractual Exemption from Liability (861).
B. Tools, Machinery, Appliances, and Places for Work (862). Temporary Appliances; Scaffolds (866). Places for Work (867). Inspection, Repairs, Knowledge of Defects (871). Statutes (876).
C. Methods of Work, Rules and Regulations (878).
D. Warning and Instructing Servant (880).
E. Fellow-Servants (884). Determination of Relation (887). Railway Employes (892). Statutory Modification of Common-Law Fellow-Servant Doctrine (893).
F. Risks Assumed by Servant (896). Nature of Defense (896). Dangers Incidental to Business (898). Known or Obvious Dangers (901). Reliance on Care of Master (907). Reliance on Orders or Assurances of Safety (909). Reliance on Promise to Repair, After Complaint (911). Risks Created by Servant (913).
G. Contributory Negligence (913). Degree of Care Required of Servant (914). Choice of Methods (920). Reliance on Master's Care (922). Disobedience of Orders and Violation of Rules (924). Emergencies (925). Discovery of Servant's Peril; Intervening Negligence (926).
H. Actions (926).
1. In General (927).
2. Parties (927).
3. Pleading and Issues (927).
4. Evidence, Burden of Proof and Presumptions (932).
5. Instructions (941).
6. Verdicts and Findings (944).
§ 4. Liability for Injury to Third Persons (944).
A. In General (944). Damages (947). Liability of Servant; Joint Liability of Master and Servant (947).
B. Procedure (948).
§ 5. Civil Liability for Interference with Relation by Third Person (949).
§ 6. Crimes and Penalties (950).

§ 1. The relation; statutory regulations.[57]—The relation of master and servant rests upon contract, express or implied, and its existence is to be determined, in general, by reference to the principles applicable to other contracts,[58] and to the facts of each particular case.[59] The relation of master and servant exists where the employer has the right to select the employe, the power to discharge or remove him, and the right to direct and control him as to the work he shall do and the manner in which he shall do it.[60] The relation of employer and independent contractor,[61] or of bailor and bailee,[62] exists where the element of control is lacking.

A contract of hiring for a year, to begin in praesenti, is not within the operation of the statute of frauds.[63]

57. See 6 C. L. 521.

58. See Contracts, 7 C. L. 761; Implied Contracts, 8 C. L. 155.

59. Where plaintiff contracted to act as salesman of powder and as manager of magazine thereafter to be erected, his contract as manager did not become operative at once, but only after the expiration of a reasonable time for the construction of the magazine. Bradner v. Rockdale Powder Co., 115 Mo. App. 102, 91 S. W. 997. Plaintiff having worked as salesman on commission for two months and having insisted on the erection of the magazine, and defendant having then refused to build such magazine, plaintiff's contract for salary became operative upon such repudiation by the defendant. Id. Where one agreed to give his entire time and attention to the business of another, a real estate broker, the compensation to be a percentage of commissions, the relation established was that of master and servant (Civ. Code, § 2009), and not principal and agent (Civ. Code, § 2295). Sumner v. Nevin [Cal. App.] 87 P. 1105.

60. McColligan v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 214 Pa. 229, 63 A. 792.

61. See Independent Contractors, 8 C. L. 176. See, also, post, § 4.

62. See Bailments, 7 C. L. 353. Railway company leased cabs to drivers at a stated sum per day and made certain requirements and conditions as to personal conduct and dress, length of drives, fares to be charged, etc., but otherwise exercised no control over drivers. Held, drivers were bailees, not servants of railroad company. McColligan v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 214 Pa. 229, 63 A. 792.

63. Hudgins v. State, 126 Ga. 639, 55 S. E. 492. See, also, Frauds, Statute of, 7 C. L. 1826.

Termination of the relation.[64]—The term for which a servant is employed must be determined by reference to the contract between the parties [65] and the construction which they themselves have placed upon it.[66] A general or indefinite hiring is prima facie a hiring at will [67] and may be terminated at any time by either party.[68] A personal contract of service which by its terms is terminable at any time by the employer is dissolved by his death.[69] A contract of employment, indefinite as to its duration but providing for a fixed monthly salary, is a hiring for one month.[70] After the expiration of the month it is terminable at will.[71] Where a person employed for a definite term continues in the employment by mutual acquiescence after expiration of the term, the presumption ordinarily is that the employment has been extended for another term,[72] but this presumption does not exist where the circumstances are inconsistent therewith.[73] If the servant is originally employed for an indefinite time, the parties may agree upon a definite term to commence at some preceding date,[74] and a continuation in the service with the master's consent after the expiration of the term so fixed constitutes a hiring for another similar term.[75]

A termination of the contract for causes specified by its terms is of course justifiable, if at the time [76] and upon the notice [77] fixed by the contract. Where a con-

64. See 6 C. L. 521.

65. Where telegram offered employment at $65 a month and stated the job would last a year, and the offer was accepted, there was a hiring for a year. King v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 140 N. C. 433, 53 S. E. 237. Evidence held to sustain finding that railway employe had been employed unconditionally for one year. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Hayden [Tenn.] 94 S. W. 940. Employment by the year may be implied from the nature of the business and a stipulation that the employe shall pay out of his commissions all expenses, including license taxes, for the ensuing year. Woods v. Shumard & Co., 114 La. 451, 38 So. 416. Where employe's contract expired on December 15th, and on the 23d he proposed a new contract for "this year," his proposal was for another year from the 15th. Whether this proposal was accepted by the employer, held a question for the jury. Embry v. Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co., 115 Mo. App. 130, 91 S. W. 170.

66. Where both parties treated a contract as a divisible one and this construction was consistent with its terms, an employe who left the service could recover for the time he actually worked. Powell v. Russell [Miss.] 41 So. 5.

67. A general or indefinte hiring is prima facie a hiring at will, and if the servant seek to make it a yearly hiring the burden is upon him to prove it. King v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 140 N. C. 433, 53 S. E. 237.

68. A hiring at so much per year, no time being specified, is a hiring at will and may be terminated at any time by either party. Summers v. Phenix Ins. Co., 50 Misc. 181, 98 N. Y. S. 226.

69. Where druggist was employed to run a drug store for a part of the profits, the administrator of the employer was under no duty to continue the relation. Campbell v. Faxon [Kan.] 86 P. 760.

70, 71. Odom v. Bush, 125 Ga. 184, 53 S. E. 1013.

72. Taber v. Trustees of State Hospital for Insane, 138 F. 865. Where there is a hiring for a year and the servant continues in the employment after the expiration of the year with the consent of the master, this effects a hiring for another year. Complaint for discharge held not demurrable for failure to allege consent of the employe as well as of the master for a continuation of services. Treffinger v. Groh's Sons, 112 App. Div. 250, 98 N. Y. S. 291. A firm employed an employe for a year at an annual salary He continued in service for several years, the firm having become a corporation, and the latter having passed into the hands of a receiver. The receiver discharged him. Held, a second corporation formed by the receiver was liable, the employe's contract having been renewed for a year. Baker v. Appleton & Co., 107 App. Div. 353, 95 N. Y. S. 125.

73. Hospital physician had been elected for several one year terms. At close of one of such terms the election was postponed, of which occupant had notice. After several postponements physician was notified of election of her successor. Held there was no presumption that she had been retained for another year, and she could not recover for services after notice to quit. Taber v. Trustees of State Hospital for Insane, 138 F. 865. Where plaintiff was originally employed for an indefinite time at so much a year, and subsequent increases were made, at the first of the year, there was no hiring for a definite term, and consequently no presumption of a continuation of a contract for any term. Summers v. Phenix Ins. Co., 50 Misc. 181, 98 N. Y. S. 226.

74. Contract was made in April, 1897, for hiring from January 1, 1897, to December 31, 1897, at a certain yearly salary, servant having previously worked for defendant. This constituted a hiring for a year from January 1st to December 31st. Treffinger v. Groh's Sons, 112 App. Div. 250, 98 N. Y. S. 291.

75. Treffinger v. Groh's Sons, 112 App. Div. 250, 98 N. Y. S. 291.

76. Contract held to provide for dismissal at the end of any month in case of dissatisfaction by the employer, though a certain monthly salary was agreed upon for six months. Watkins v. Napier [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 523, 98 S. W. 904.

77. Contract of employment provided that tract provides for dismissal by the employer whenever he is dissatisfied with the services of the employe, it is generally held that the master is the sole judge of the question whether the services are satisfactory,[78] though there is a conflict of authority upon the point.[79] It has been held that if the dissatisfaction of the employer is bona fide, this is sufficient;[80] elsewhere it is held that the employer's dissatisfaction must be reasonable.[81] Disobedience of orders,[82] failure or refusal to observe any material condition of his employment,[83] or a breach of the implied agreement on the part of the servant to serve the master diligently and faithfully and with the degree of skill required for the performance of the duties which he undertakes to perform,[84] justifies the discharge of the servant by the master. Where there is no express contract between an employer and an employe imposing upon the latter a higher degree of skill, care, diligence, and attention in the discharge of his duties, only the ordinary and reasonable skill, care, and attention implied by law can be required of him.[85] But if an employe contracts for more than the law implies, he cannot excuse a failure to perform in the manner agreed by showing if employer was dissatisfied at the end of six months he could cancel the contract by giving thirty days' notice. Held employer could give notice thirty days before the expiration of the six months' period and terminate the contract at that time. Starkweather v. Emerson Mfg. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 719. Where contract gave salesman exclusive territory and provided that either party could dissolve it on notice. The master withdrew a part of the salesman's territory. This was held notice to the salesman of a dissolution of the entire contract. White Sewing Mach. Co. v. Shadock [Ark.] 95 S. W. 143. Acceptance of the notice by the salesman created a new contract. Id. Evidence regarding term of employment considered and held an instruction to the effect that the contract was terminable by either party upon thirty days' notice was error. McDonald v. Ideal Mfg. Co., 143 Mich. 17, 12 Det. Leg. N. 896, 106 N. W. 279.

78. Watkins v. Napier [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 523, 98 S. W. 904. Where a contract provides that the employer may cancel it when he considers that its "interests are neglected or jeopardized," the employer is the sole judge of whether its interests are neglected or jeopardized, and may discharge an employe on that ground. International Harvester Co. v. Boatman, 122 Ill. App. 474.

79. NOTE. Right to discharge: Where the contract provides that the master may dismiss the servant if he is dissatisfied with his services, the authorities are not agreed as to the power of the master to determine whether the work of the servant is satisfactory. "That he has such power is supported by the following authorities: Allen v. Mutual Compress Co., 101 Ala. 574, 14 So. 362; Bush v. Koll, 2 Colo. App. 48, 29 P. 919; Rossiter v. Cooper, 23 Vt. 522; Campbell Co. v. Thorp, 36 F. 414, 1 L. R. A. 645; Singerly v. Thayer, 108 Pa. 291, 2 A. 230, 56 Am. Rep. 207; Koehler v. Buhl, 94 Mich. 496, 54 N. W. 157; McCarren v. McNulty, 7 Gray [Mass.] 139; Blaine v. Knapp & Co., 140 Mo. 241, 41 S. W. 787; Tyler v. Ames, 6 Lans. [N. Y.] 280; Gibson v. Cranage, 39 Mich. 49, 33 Am. Rep. 351; Zaleske v. Clark, 44 Conn. 218, 26 Am. Rep. 446; Brown v. Poster, 113 Mass. 136, 18 Am. Rep. 463; Machine Co. v. Smith, 50 Mich. 565, 15 N. W. 906, 45 Am. Rep. 57. In support of the proposition that he has not such power, see Manufacturing Co. v. Chico, 24 F. 893; Jones v. Transportation Co., 51 Mich. 195, 16 N. W. 393; Daggett v. Johnson, 49 Vt. 345; Manufacturing Co. v. Brush, 43 Vt. 528; Moore v. Robinson, 92 Ill. 491; Wettermulgh v. Knickerbocker Bldg. Ass'n, 2 Bosw. [N. Y.] 381. The proposition does not seem to have been decided in this state, but the principle decided in Tennant v. Fawcett, 94 Tex. 111, is quite similar to the question under consideration. * * * We think it clear that the weight of authority is that the master may terminate the contract if dissatisfied, and that he is the sole judge of whether he is dissatisfied."—From opinion in Watkins v. Napier [Tex. Civ. App.] 98 S. W. 904.

80. Contract gave an employer the right to terminate the contract after a certain period if services proved "unsatisfactory." Held, if employer was dissatisfied in good faith, this was sufficient; it was not necessary that his dissatisfaction should be shown to be reasonable. Starkweather v. Emerson Mfg. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 719.

81. Dissatisfaction with services under a contract of employment as long as the services are satisfactory, such as to justify a discharge, must be a reasonable dissatisfaction and not an arbitrary one. The good faith of the employer in claiming such services to be unsatisfactory will not alone justify the discharge if the services rendered were, in fact, such as ought to have been satisfactory to a reasonable employer. Lake Shore & Western R. Co. v. Tierney, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 521.

82. Standidge v. Lynde, 120 Ill. App. 418.

83. Hitchens v. School Dist. No. 180 [Del.] 62 A. 897. Where an employe agrees to work exclusively for one employer, a violation of that agreement by doing work for another justifies his discharge. Glaser v. National Alumni, 97 N. Y. S. 984.

84. Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills [N. C.] 55 S. E. 613. Where mill superintendent proved to be incompetent and made serious and costly mistakes, his discharge was justified. Id.

85. Hatton v. Mountford, 105 Va. 96, 52 S. E. 847.

performance in the ordinary manner implied by law.[86] Failure to perform as agreed is sufficient cause for a discharge.[87]

No precise words are necessary to constitute a discharge; any language by which an employe is notified that his services are no longer required is sufficient to operate as such.[88] Nor is an absolute refusal by the master to perform required in order that the servant may treat the contract as rescinded; any acts or language showing an intention not to perform is sufficient.[89]

Actions for wrongful discharge.[90]—A servant wrongfully discharged may either treat the contract as continuing, though broken by the master, and recover damages for the breach,[91] or he may rescind the contract and sue on a quantum meruit and recover for services actually rendered,[92] or may sue at once for breach of the contract and recover damages to the time of suit,[93] or may treat the contract as subsisting and sue at the end of each period for salary then due,[94] or may wait until the entire term has expired and recover as damages his salary for the portion of the term remaining after his discharge less what he has earned or reasonably could have earned by other employment.[95] In an action for breach of the contract, the dam-

86. Where music teacher in a ladies' school agreed to be loyal to the management, to use his best efforts to promote the school's interests in his department, and to assist in maintaining discipline, he contracted for a higher degree of care, skill, and attention than the law implied. Hatton v. Mountford, 105 Va. 96, 52 S. E. 847.

87. Teacher was negligent and offensive and caused pupils to threaten to leave. Discharge was justifiable. Hatton v. Mountford, 105 Va. 96, 52 S. E. 847.

88. Where employer told employe and his attorney to "get out of here" while they were discussing difficulties between them, whether employe was discharged was for jury. Sigmon v. Goldstone, 101 N. Y. S. 984. Where representative of defendant told plaintiff that defendant association was to consolidate with another the next day and go out of existence, and offered to settle with plaintiff for his unexpired term of service, this constituted a discharge, and an action therefor commenced thereafter but before a formal letter ending plaintiff's connection with defendant was given him next day was not premature. Shugg v. American Shoe & Leather Ass'n [Mass.] 77 N. E. 1029. Plaintiff was employed to manage defendant's business for five years. Two years later defendant leased its plant for a term longer than the balance of plaintiff's term of employment, and transferred all its rights to his services to the lessee and gave plaintiff notice thereof. Held the relation of master and servant was terminated without cause. White v. Lumiere North American Co. [Vt.] 64 A. 1121. An employe signed a contract as a boilermaker conditioned on his being found competent. He was examined and found incompetent and was told he could have other work if he desired, and performed other duties without objections. Held his contract as boilermaker had been terminated. Messerrio v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 50 Misc. 317, 98 N. Y. S. 647.

89. Spencer Medicine Co. v. Hall [Ark.] 93 S. W. 985. Where an employe was hired as a general manager of cigar stores in a certain city and the employer attempted to change not only his headquarters but the character of his work under the contract, the employe was justified in refusing to consent to the change, though the salary was to remain the same. Kramer v. Wolf Cigar Stores Co. [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 305, 91 S. W. 775.

90. See 6 C. L. 522.

91. Milage v. Woodward [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 873; Smith v. Cashie & Chowan R. & Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 26, 54 S. E. 788. Complaint alleging contract of employment and wrongful discharge that a certain amount became due as salary for unexpired term and that plaintiff was damaged in a certain sum, construed as a complaint for damages for breach of the contract and not for salary. Murray v. O'Donohue, 109 App. Div. 696, 96 N. Y. S. 335.

92. Milage v. Woodward [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 873; Smith v. Cashie & Chowan R. & Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 26, 54 S. E. 788. Where an employer fails to fulfill his obligations under the contract of service, the employe may acquiesce in the abandonment of the contract and recover for services performed under the common counts. Anglo-Wyoming Oil Fields v. Miller, 117 Ill. App. 552.

93. Smith v. Cashie & Chowan R. & Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 26, 54 S. E. 788. Only such damages as have accrued up to the time of the trial can be recovered. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Walters [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 549, 93 S. W. 496.

94. Smith v. Cashie & Chowan R. & Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 26, 54 S. E. 788.

95. Smith v. Cashie & Chowan R. & Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 26, 54 S. E. 788; Bradner v. Rockdale Powder Co., 115 Mo. App. 102, 91 S. W. 997. A wrongfully discharged employe may sue at once, or after the expiration of the contract term. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Walters [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 549, 93 S. W. 496. A discharged employe may treat the contract as absolutely and finally broken and sue for what he would have received during the balance of the term less any sum he might have earned. Semet-Solway Co. v. Wilcox [C. C. A.] 143 F. 839. The amount which a discharged employe could have earned in other employment with reasonable diligence is to be deducted from his damages. Kramer v. Wolf Cigar Stores Co. [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 305, 91 S. W. 776. Where a discharged employe engaged in business for himself, the amount to be deducted ages are prima facie the amount stipulated to be paid during the term of employment.[96] Though the discharged employe is under the duty of using reasonable diligence to procure other employment of a similar kind to reduce the damages,[97] the burden is upon the defendant to show that the discharged employe obtained, or with reasonable effort might have obtained, such other employment.[98] That the servant has obtained, or could have obtained, other employment does not bar his action for damages but only goes to the reduction of the damages recoverable.[99] An employe who is prevented by his employer from performing services called for by his contract may recover an amount retained by the employer as a guaranty of faithful performance by the employe.[1] In an action by the employe for breach of the contract by the employer, the burden is upon plaintiff to show a wrongful discharge.[2] Proof of facts from which an intent to discharge may be inferred is sufficient.[3] The burden rests in the first instance on defendant to show a legal ex-from his damages consisted not only in the amount of his cash profits but also the increased value of his business arising from his services. Kramer v. Wolf Cigar Stores Co. [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 305, 91 S. W. 775. Where an employe sues the employer for damages for his wrongful discharge, he must account to his employer for salary and profits received in other employment during the time in question. Kansas Union Life Ins. Co. v. Burman [C. C. A.] 141 F. 835.

96. Milage v. Woodward [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 873. One employed for a certain term, at a certain compensation, who is discharged without cause, may recover what he would have received under contract if he had been allowed to fully perform. Hitchens v. School Dist. No. 180 [Del.] 62 A. 897. A person who was employed as manager of a dairy at a salary and for a term fixed, and who was discharged without legal cause, was held entitled to recover the full amount of the agreed salary to the end of the contract term. Thurmond v. Skannal [La.] 42 So. 577. Where plaintiff was employed for a year as city manager of an insurance agency, and having been discharged without cause, he was entitled to recover earnings for the balance of the year, the amount recoverable being fixed on the basis of the sum guaranteed to be paid. Woods v. Shumard & Co., 114 La. 451, 38 So. 416. Wrongfully discharged employe may recover as damages agreed salary for balance of term in the absence of evidence showing he could have obtained other employment. American China Development Co. v. Boyd, 148 F. 258. Where contract of discharged salesman provided for a salary and a commission on sales up to $10,000, he could recover lost profits and salary in one action for breach of the contract. Spencer Medicine Co. v. Hall [Ark.] 93 S. W. 985. Where discharged salesman carried other lines besides those of defendant, no deduction could be made from the damages recoverable by him for saving of his time unless plaintiff obtained another line to take the place of defendants. Id.

97. Milage v. Woodward [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 873. Discharged employe is bound to use reasonable diligence to find other employment and reduce his damages. Kramer v. Wolf Cigar Stores Co. [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 305, 91 S. W. 775.

98. Where plaintiff, with his canal boat, horses, and driver, were employed for four weeks and discharged after eight days, and thereafter kept his boat moored at a public place in the city ready for other employment, where those seeking such labor would be apt to seek him, but obtained no other work, he was entitled to recover the contract compensation in the absence of any further showing by defendant. Milage v. Woodward [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 873. That damages might have been reduced by plaintiff's obtaining other employment is matter of defense. Jefferson, etc., R. Co. v. Dreeson [Tex. Civ. App.] 96 S. W. 63. The burden is on defendant to plead and prove the amount that plaintiff could have earned by reasonable diligence after his discharge. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Walters [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 549, 93 S. W. 496. Plaintiff need not show affirmatively a fruitless search for other employment during the term. Monroe v. Proctor, 100 N. Y. S. 1021.

Contra: Burden is on servant, who sues for damages for his discharge, to prove that he failed after reasonable effort, to obtain other employment, or that he did not receive as much as he would have received had he been allowed to perform his contract. Shepherd v. Gambill, 29 Ky. L. R. 1163, 96 S. W. 1104.

99. Smith v. Cashie & Chowan R. & Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 26, 54 S. E. 788.

1. One employed as designer and cutter was compelled to stay in a dark room, without work, for a large part of the time. Sigmon v. Goldstone, 101 N. Y. S. 984.

2. Evidence insufficient to prove employment for any period other than from week to week. Zahler v. Arkin, 112 App. Div. 327, 98 N. Y. S. 544. Evidence insufficient, in action for wrongful discharge, to show that plaintiff had been discharged by any one having authority to discharge him. Mozzi v. Administration Restaurant Co., 120 Mo. App. 587, 97 S. W. 947.

3. In an action for wrongful discharge, plaintiff, in order to make a case for the jury, need not prove an express and formal discharge; proof of facts from which an intent to discharge him may reasonably be inferred is sufficient. Semet-Solway Co. v. Wilcox [C. C. A.] 143 F. 839. Evidence held to show wrongful discharge of actress employed for three weeks after one week's service. Monroe v. Proctor, 100 N. Y. S. 1021. Plaintiff held to have made prima facie proof in action for damages for discharge; error to nonsuit. Freeman v. Goldstein, 99

cuse for the discharge.[4] An assent by the employe to the termination of the contract will bar an action for damages.[5] Where a servant resigns and assigns certain grounds for his resignation he cannot, in an action for breach of his contract, rely upon other grounds as the cause of his action.[6]

Remedies of master for breach by servant.[7]—For a breach by the servant the master may recover damages in an action at law.[8]

Equity will not undertake to decree specific performance of contracts for personal service.[9] The only remedy is an action at law for damages for breach of the contract where the servant refuses to perform.[10] In the absence of an express covenant on the part of the employe not to perform services for others, equity will not aid the enforcement of the contract by enjoining the performance of services for others.[11] Even where there is an express negative covenant, an injunction will not be granted save in exceptional cases where, by reason of the peculiar or extraordinary character of the promised service, a violation of the agreement will cause injury to the other party for which an action at law will afford no adequate remedy.[12]

Labor laws.[13]—An employer and employe may make such contracts relating to labor as they may agree upon, subject only to the proper exercise of the police power.[14] Hence, a statute which in effect makes it a misdemeanor for an employer to hire an employe on condition that such employe shall not become a member of a labor organization is unconstitutional.[15] The provision of the New York labor law of 1905, prohibiting any female from being employed or permitted to work in any factory after nine o'clock in the evening, is held invalid.[16] The Oregon statute

N. Y. S. 395. Petition in action for breach of contract alleged employment of plaintiff for a year beginning at a certain date, that plaintiff held himself ready to perform at all times, but that defendant refused to allow him to enter upon his duties, sufficiently show acceptance of the employment by plaintiff as against a general demurrer. International Harvester Co. v. Campbell [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 653, 96 S. W. 93. Where complaint charged that reason for discharge was to permit employment of old employes, evidence to sustain the charge was admissible. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Walters [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 549, 93 S. W. 496.

4. Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills [N. C.] 55 S. E. 613. Where defendant claimed that plaintiff had been employed on condition that he should prove competent, and that he had been discharged because of incompetency, the burden was on defendant to prove plaintiff's incompetency. Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Hayden [Tenn.] 94 S. W. 940.

5. Correspondence and other evidence considered, and held that plaintiff had not assented to a lease of a plant and a transfer of the right to his services so as to bar an action by him for his discharge. White v. Lumiere North American Co. [Vt.] 64 A. 1121.

6. Kansas Union Life Ins. Co. v. Burman [C. C. A.] 141 F. 835.

7. See 6 C. L. 524; 4 C. L. 536.

8. Public accountants were employed to check cash accounts and negligently failed to do so, whereby a cashier was enabled to embezzle certain sums of money. The accountants were held liable for the sums embezzled as damages flowing from their breach of contract. Smith v. London Assur. Corp., 109 App. Div. 882, 96 N. Y. S. 820.

9. Gossard Co. v. Crosby [Iowa] 109 N. W. 483. The general rule is that contracts for personal services will not be specifically enforced in equity, since the court cannot enforce its decree. Rabinovich v. Reith, 120 Ill. App. 409.

10. Gossard Co. v. Crosby [Iowa] 109 N. W. 483.

11. Gossard Co. v. Crosby [Iowa] 109 N. W. 483. There must be in the contract a negative provision excluding service by defendant for persons other than the complainant, to warrant relief by injunction. Rabinovich v. Reith, 120 Ill. App. 409.

12. A petition alleged that a lecturer, demonstrator, and saleslady, employed by plaintiff to advertise and sell corsets of a special make, had certain qualities desirable in such an employe in an exceptional degree, and that she refused to continue her services and instead had entered into competition with plaintiff and was lecturing upon and selling corsets upon her own account, using experience and skill acquired in the service of the plaintiff. An injunction was prayed for. Held no cause of action was stated for such extraordinary relief. Gossard Co. v. Crosby [Iowa] 109 N. W. 483. The negative enforcement of a contract by injunctive process will not be undertaken unless the services contracted for are purely intellectual, peculiar, or individual in their character. Contract of a hat trimmer is not of such a character. Rabinovich v. Reith, 120 Ill. App. 409.

13. See 6 C. L. 524.

14. People v. Marcus, 185 N. Y. 257, 77 N. E. 1073.

15. Pen. Code, § 171a, makes an employer who shall "coerce or compel" an employe to agree not to join a labor organization guilty of a misdemeanor. This is an invalid restriction of the right to contract. People v. Marcus, 185 N. Y. 257, 77 N. E. 1073, afg., 110 App. Div. 255, 97 N. Y. S. 322.

16. Labor Laws 1903, p. 439, c. 184, § 77, making it a misdemeanor to require any female to work in any factory, laundry, or mechanical establishment more than ten hours a day is held valid.[17] It is held that the Colorado statute making it a criminal offense for any officer or agent of the state or any municipality therein to require workmen on public works to labor more than eight hours a day, while invalid as an exercise of the police power,[18] is valid as an exercise by the state of its right to prescribe such conditions and rules as it sees fit for the prosecution of work of a public character to be performed for it.[19] The Montana act making eight hours a day's work in certain employments is upheld.[20] The act applies to both employers and employes,[21] but does not contemplate the punishment of persons who fail to work eight hours a day.[22] Coal miners and laborers are not subject to punishment under the Wyoming eight hour law, since the penal section applies only to owners or their lessees or agents.[23] The Pennsylvania statute requiring less educational qualification to obtain an employment certificate of minors who can furnish certain documentary evidence as to their age than of those who cannot do so is unconstitutional.[24]

§ 2. The right of the master in services of the employe, and right of employe to compensation; assignments of wages; trade secrets; statutory regulations.[25]—The right to compensation for services must rest upon contract, express[26] or implied.[27] Where there is an express contract, the amount of compensation recovera-

is an unwarranted infringement of the constitutional right to contract. People v. Williams, 101 N. Y. S. 552, afg. the decision of the court of special sessions, in 51 Misc. 333, 100 N. Y. S. 337.

17. Laws 1903, p. 148, does not violate the 14th amendment of the Federal constitution, nor Const. Or. art. 1, §§ 1, 20, that all men have equal rights and that no law shall grant any privileges not belonging equally to all citizens. State v. Muller [Or.] 85 P. 855.

18. Keefe v. People [Colo.] 87 P. 791.

19. Construing 3 Mills' Ann. St. Rev. Supp. § 2801 a, b, c. Keefe v. People [Colo.] 87 P. 791.

20. Laws 1905, p. 105, c. 50, §§ 1, 2, making eight hours a day's work on municipal work, and in ore mills, smelters, and mines, and providing for the punishment of those who violate the act, is a valid exercise of the police power, does not infringe freedom to contract, nor deny the equal protection of the laws. State v. Livingston Concrete Bldg. & Mfg. Co. [Mont.] 87 P. 980. The act is not objectionable as failing to except cases of emergency, where life or property is in danger, since courts will not review the policy of legislation. Id.

21, 22. State v. Livingston Concrete Bldg. & Mfg. Co. [Mont.] 87 P. 980.

23. Common miner is not subject to punishment for working more than eight hours. Construing Rev. St. 1899, §§ 2586, 2587, 2589. State v. Thompson [Wyo.] 87 P. 433.

24. Act May 2, 1905. Collett v. Scott, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 430.

25. See 6 C. L. 524.

26. Domestic services held to have been rendered by plaintiff to defendant's ancestor under promise and expectation of payment; hence recovery by plaintiff. Eirley v. Eirley, 102 Md. 452, 62 A. 962. Where a teacher was hired by an independent contractor to whom a department of the school had been let, the teacher had no claim against the school for pay. Coltrane v. Peacock [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 865, 91 S. W. 841. Where contract with corporation provided that it might be terminated by the corporation in case of its dissolution, the employe cannot prove a claim for salary after the corporation has become a voluntary bankrupt. In re Sweetser, Pembroke & Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 131. Bank clerk who had been employed for twenty-four years was given vacation, with pay, and was paid for part of the time that he was gone. He asked for an extension of his vacation and was discharged. Held that he was entitled to pay to the time of his discharge. Birch v. Glasgow Sav. Bank, 114 Mo. App. 711, 90 S. W. 746. Whether railroad company ratified act of station agent in engaging plaintiff's services as physician for injured employe so as to bind the company for compensation, held for jury. Hall v. New York, etc., R. Co., 27 R. I. 525, 65 A. 278. Salesman's contract provided for repayment of commissions when accounts were lost or goods returned. A release of the salesman from this agreement was a sufficient consideration for a new substituted contract. Whether such new contract was in fact made held a question for the jury. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Bryson, 129 Iowa, 645, 103 N. W. 1016, 105 N. W. 153.

27. Evidence sufficient to show that architect had been employed by decedent, and to show an implied promise to pay for services. Buckler v. Kneezell [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 800, 91 S. W. 367. An implied contract to pay for work done on leased premises does not arise from mere fact that landlord has seen men at work there. Goode v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 121 Ill. App. 161. After death of employer, employe continued to feed and exercise horses which had been in his care. Held his services were not shown to be necessary and he was a mere volunteer, and could not recover under an implied promise to pay. Mathie v. Hancock, 78 Vt. 414, 63 A. 143. Evidence sufficient to show a contract for ble depends upon its terms;[28] if the contract is implied, the reasonable value of services rendered may be recovered.[29] Where service, commenced under a written contract, continues after expiration of the term, it is presumptively upon the same terms as those expressed in the written contract.[30] The presumption is that services performed by an employe are within the contract and extra compensation beyond that stipulated cannot be recovered.[31] The amount recoverable by the servant may be reduced by valid claims in favor of the master.[32] That the servant has by his conduct forfeited his right to compensation is an affirmative defense which must be pleaded and proved.[33] That the servant actually performed no services is not a defense to an action on a valid contract, where performance was rendered compensation to defendant's cousin living as a member of his family, only after certain date. Brunner v. Mosner, 101 N. Y. S. 538. Woman was induced to believe that she was married to a man and lived with him as his wife. She later discovered that they had not in fact been married. A claim for services rendered by her to him could not be defeated on the theory that she lived as his voluntary mistress, and performed the services on that account. Mixer v. Mixer, 2 Cal. App. 227, 83 P. 273.

28. Compensation to be received by plaintiff held a question for the jury where the testimony in regard to the contract was conflicting. McCowan v. Northeastern Siberian Co., 41 Wash. 675, 84 P. 614. Contract construed and held that under it plaintiff had right to determine profits of the business and the compensation to which defendants should be entitled. Jones v. Roberts, 113 App. Div. 285, 98 N. Y. S. 873. Employe was to be paid a salary and part of profits from goods sold in his department. Thereafter part of the goods in his department were moved to another, but he refused to sign a supplemental contract. Held he was entitled to profits on goods covered by his original contract. Hearn v. Stevens & Bro., 111 App. Div. 101, 97 N. Y. S. 566. Where contract with salesman provided for salary and commissions on sales above a certain amount, whether by usage in the trade, such agreement for commissions included the solicitation of sales, communicated to the employer, which afterwards developed into sales, was a question for the jury. Schultz v. Ford Bros. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 614. Where a servant employed to run a drug store was to receive a salary and one-third the profits, he was entitled only to profits of the business, and not to profits made from a sale of the employer's lease. Actual profits only were recoverable. Boisnot v. Wilson, 109 App. Div. 569, 96 N. Y. S. 581. Where services are not rendered under any contract specifying the amount or time of payment, wages cannot be held to have accrued monthly so that each instalment would bear interest. Mixer v. Mixer, 2 Cal. App. 227, 83 P. 273.

29. Where quantum meruit is brought, the measure of recovery is the reasonable value of the services rendered. Cozad v. Elam, 115 Mo. App. 136, 91 S. W. 434.

30. Houston Ice & Brew. Co. v. Nicolini [Tex Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 663, 96 S. W. 84.

31. Nurse received regular weekly compensation. No promise to pay reasonable value of services in excess of regular rate could be implied. Lucas v. Boss, 110 App. Div. 220, 97 N. Y. S. 112. Whether pay over and above commissions was expected to be paid by parties for certain extra services, held a question for the jury. Bradner v. Rockdale Powder Co., 115 Mo. App. 102, 91 S. W. 997.

32. Contract of insurance order with soliciting agent construed, and held that note given by agent for amount overdrawn by him over his contract compensation was enforceable against him. Whitestone v. American Ins. Union [C. C. A.] 143 F. 862. A contract whereby an employe of one corporation agrees that the amount of his monthly purchases from another corporation shall be deducted from his monthly wages is valid and enforceable. Lewis v. Warren, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 890, 97 S. W. 104. Employer was to withhold part of a salesman's salary as a guaranty of faithful performance, and, on discharging the salesman, he retained the guaranty, which the salesman, in action to recover compensation, claimed. Whether plaintiff could recover was for jury. Schultz v. Ford Bros. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 614. An employe executed a written order on his employer to pay certain sums monthly to another until a certain total sum had been paid. In an action by the employe to recover wages in full, the order was not available as a set-off, when it was not shown that the employer accepted it, nor that the sums had in fact been paid. Usher v. Seaboard Air-Line R. Co., 125 Ga. 809, 54 S. E. 704. A contract requiring a minor employed for three years to make up at the end of that period all time lost during it under penalty of forfeiture of certain wages withheld includes time lost by sickness. Behney v. Stoever Foundry Co., 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 625.

33. In an action to recover wages and expenses, the defense that the right to compensation has been forfeited by dishonesty and other misconduct must be specially pleaded. Forfeiture not warranted where answer only disputed length of service and alleged payment. Spaulding v. Pepper [Mont.] 85 P. 754. In action by farm laborer for services, evidence sufficient to warrant finding for plaintiff, and did not support defense of violation of contract by plaintiff. McDonald v. Dunbar, 99 N. Y. S. 768. A mere prediction or promise by a salesman as to amount of goods he could sell held not to amount to fraud or misrepresentation so that employer could deduct a certain amount from the agreed compensation, where they could have discharged the salesman if dissatisfied. Steinbach v. La Roche, 50 Misc. 649, 98 N. Y. S. 672.

impossible by the accidental destruction of the master's plant.[34] Where services are rendered under a contract unenforceable because of the statute of frauds, and the adverse party refuses or is unable to perform, the party performing services can sue on a quantum meruit.[35] Holdings on the admissibility of evidence,[36] and on pleadings,[37] in actions for compensation, are given in the notes.

A judgment for wages will bar a subsequent action for wages due at the time the action in which the recovery was had was commenced,[38] but not an action for wages subsequently falling due.[39]

Trade secrets and inventions.[40]—An employe has a right, on leaving the service of the employer, to use the experience and skill acquired in such service for his own benefit, and such use will not be enjoined.[41] But this rule does not of course extend to trade secrets.[42] Where a person is employed in a business where a secret process is used and knows that the employer desires to keep the process secret, a confidential relation exists which raises an implied agreement by the employe not to disclose the trade secret.[43] When a trade secret has been fraudulently obtained, its use by persons so obtaining it may in a proper case be enjoined.[44] But such an injunction will not issue on the petition of a complainant who has himself been guilty of fraud and corruption in obtaining such secret from another.[45] A contract by an employe, hired for a term of years, to assign to his employer a half interest in all inventions made by him during the term of employment is not contrary to public policy.[46]

Medical treatment.[47]—Where the master collects a monthly sum from each employe for the maintenance of a hospital for the free use of employes, but does not expressly contract to furnish medical or surgical aid, the master's only duty is to use ordinary care in the expenditure of the money, and in the employment of phy-

34. Where a master agrees absolutely to pay a stipulated weekly salary for a certain period, the fact that the servant performs no services during a portion of the time, owing to the destruction of the master's plant, does not relieve the master from liability for the entire sum agreed to be paid, in the absence of a contrary stipulation providing for such an accident, and where the servant is at all times ready to perform. Magida v. Wiesen, 100 N. Y. S. 268.

35. As where consideration for services was agreement to convey land. Cozad v. Elam, 115 Mo. App. 136, 91 S. W. 434.

36. Evidence of value of services in procuring powder magazine site should have been introduced, their value not being a matter of common knowledge. Bradner v. Rockdale Powder Co., 115 Mo. App. 102, 91 S. W. 997. On issue whether a watchman was re-engaged by a mine owner after being discharged, evidence of the execution of a lease of the mine and the entry of the lessee on the day of the discharge was admissible to show that the watchman's services were no longer required. Rebecca Gold Min. Co. v. Baker [Colo.] 87 P. 1072.

37. Where action is for completed service under a contract, the complaint need not allege the details of the time of performance in anticipation of a possible defense that the services were performed out of season. Fleck v. Friedman, 49 Misc. 220, 97 N. Y. S. 231.

38. In action for wages for second month of term, a judgment barred a subsequent recovery for the third month, when wages for that month were due when first action was commenced. Smith v. Cashie & Chowan R. & Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 26, 54 S. E. 788.

39. Smith v. Cashie & Chowan R. & Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 26, 54 S. E. 788.

40. See 6 C. L. 526.

41. Gossard Co. v. Crosby [Iowa] 109 N. W. 483. Plaintiff corporation employed an engineer to design an automobile, but no patentable machine or device was produced. The engineer resigned and later designed a model for another which was sold to another corporation. It did not appear that the engineer took any tangible property of the first corporation; he simply used his skill and knowledge in producing the model. Held last corporation could not be enjoined from using and selling model so produced. New York Automobile Co. v. Franklin, 49 Misc. 8, 97 N. Y. S. 781.

42. Gossard Co. v. Crosby [Iowa] 109 N. W. 483.

43. Vulcan Detinning Co. v. American Can Co. [N. J. Eq.] 62 A. 881.

44. Vulcan Detinning Co. v. American Can Co. [N. J. Eq.] 62 A. 881. Equity will protect by injunction a trade secret obtained by an employe in connection with his duties and by him communicated to others who seek to employ it to the injury of the owner. Mahler v. Sanche, 121 Ill. App. 247.

45. Vulcan Detinning Co. v. American Can Co. [N. J. Eq.] 62 A. 881.

46. Contract construed. Wright v. Vocalion Organ Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 209.

47. See 6 C. L. 526.

sicians and surgeons in charge of the hospital.[48] He is not liable for a fee of a physician employed by an injured servant during the absence of the regular physician in charge.[49]

Assignments of wages.[50]—The assignee of wages cannot recover the amount thereof from the alleged employer without showing that the assignor was the employ of such employer and that the wages were due and unpaid.[51] The assignee of wages earned and to be earned has the right to maintain for its use an action against the debtor in the name of the creditor.[52] Injunction will not lie to restrain such assignee from suing the employer in the name of the employe from time to time as the wages accrue.[53]

Statutory regulations.[54]—A California statute gives the master the right to an accounting by the servant under certain circumstances.[55] The Indiana statute requiring mining and manufacturing corporations to pay their employes, in lawful money of the United States,[56] at least once every two weeks if demanded,[57] and providing penalties for its violation,[58] has been construed and held valid.[59] The Arkansas act prohibiting the owners or operators of coal mines, where ten or more men are employed, from screening coal before it is weighed and credited to the employes is also held valid.[60]

Statutory and other liens for services are elsewhere discussed.[61]

§ 3. Master's liability for injuries to servants. A. Nature and extent in general.[62]—The master is not an insurer of the safety of his servants; the law imposes only the duty of ordinary or reasonable care for their safety,[63] that is, that degree of care customarily used by ordinarily prudent men under similar circum-

48, 49. Miller v. Beaver Hill Coal Co. [Or.] 85 P. 502.

50. See 6 C. L. 525.

51. Wabash R. Co. v. Papin, 119 Ill. App. 99.

52, 53. Independent Credit Co. v. South Chicago City R. Co., 121 Ill. App. 595.

54. See 6 C. L. 526.

55. Where a servant of a real estate broker made sales and received commissions during the term of his employment, and the master demanded an accounting, and the contract was thereafter terminated, the master had a right to an accounting under Civ. Code, § 1986. Sumner v. Nevin [Cal. App.] 87 P. 1105.

56. A restriction on the right to contract, to the extent of requiring payment in lawful money of the United States, is constitutional. Seeleyville Coal & Min. Co. v. McGlosson [Ind.] 77 N. E. 1044.

57. Acts 1887, p. 13, § 1 (Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7065), leaves it optional with the employe to demand payment every two weeks. Seeleyville Coal & Min. Co. v. McGlosson [Ind.] 77 N. E. 1044.

58. If payment is not made within 10 days after demand, there is a penalty of $1 a day for each succeeding day of default, not to exceed twice the amount of wages due, and, if action is brought, a reasonable attorney's fee may be collected. Seeleyville Coal & Min. Co. v. McGlosson [Ind.] 77 N. E. 1044.

59. The act is not class legislation; it does not restrict the right of contract, except as to medium of payment, and the penalty exacted is not unreasonable. Seeleyville Coal & Min. Co. v. McGlosson [Ind.] 77 N. E. 1044.

60. Laws 1905, p. 558, is within the police power, as it tends to prevent the defrauding of employes. McLean v. State [Ark.] 98 S. W. 729. The act does not deny the equal protection of laws. Id.

61. See Mechanics' Liens, 6 C. L. 611; Agriculture (Crop liens), 7 C. L. 94.

62. See 6 C. L. 526.

63. McDonnell v. Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 480; Chrismer v. Bell Tel. Co., 194 Mo. 189, 92 S. W. 378; International, etc., R. Co. v. Trump [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1003, 97 S. W. 464; Schwaninger v. McNeeley & Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 514. The master is not an insurer of the servant's safety and is not bound to take better care of the servant than he does of himself. Darrow v. The Fair, 118 Ill. App. 665. Failure to light premises held not actionable negligence where injury resulted from a cause no ordinary human foresight could have anticipated and provided against. Id.

Only such telegraph stations need be established along a railroad as are necessary for operation of trains with reasonable safety to employes. Stewart v. Raleigh & A. Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 253, 53 S. E. 877. It is the master's duty to exercise ordinary care to provide and maintain a reasonably safe place and reasonably safe instrumentalities; it is not his absolute duty to provide and maintain a reasonably safe place and reasonably safe instrumentalities. Armour & Co. v. Russell [C. C. A.] 144 F. 614. Employer is not an insurer of employe's safety but is bound only to use ordinary care; hence, evidence that a bolt of a machine broke and allowed a knife to fly off a revolving shaft is not alone evidence of negligence, such an accident never before having occurred, though the machine had been used a long time. Moran v. Mulligan, 110 App. Div. 208, 97 N. Y. S. 7.

stances.[64] Thus, a master is not responsible for injuries which could not reasonably have been foreseen and guarded against.[65] The degree of care required of the master in a particular instance depends upon the nature and character of the business or employment,[66] the character of the agencies employed by the master, with and about which the employes are required to work, [67] and upon all the exigencies and cir-

64. A master is only called upon to exercise reasonable care in supplying appliances, machinery, and a place to work, the test being the ordinary usage of the business. Low v. Central Dist. Printing & Tel. Co., 140 F. 558. If standard rule of American Association of Railways permitted the running of a light engine with only an engineer and fireman on a trip like the one on which engineer was killed in collision, running the engine with such crew would not be negligence. Stewart v. Raleigh & A. Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 253, 53 S. E. 877.

65. An employer is not bound to guard against dangers of a character he cannot foresee in the exercise of ordinary care. No liability where breaking of iron derrick hook could not have been foreseen by the exercise of ordinary care. New Castle Bridge Co. v. Steele [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 208. Where the master has no reason to anticipate a particular danger, he is under no duty to guard against it; and the fact that accident did occur makes no exception to the rule. Kappes v. Brown Shoe Co., 116 Mo. App. 154, 90 S. W. 1158. Where gate to freight elevator was solidly built and had always proved adequate to keep employes out of the shaft, the fact that it could be opened from the outside when the elevator was not there did not constitute negligence in its construction. Id. The master is not negligent to fail to guard against an accident which no one could have foreseen and no prudence could have anticipated as one necessary to guard against. No negligence to have collar on revolving shaft 16 feet above floor, and no liability when employe was caught on it when working upon building. Martin v. Niles-Bement-Pond Co., 214 Pa. 616, 64 A. 370. No breach of master's duty to warn where employe, walking beside track, suddenly stepped in front of cars sent down a siding by flying switch where there was no reason to anticipate that deceased would step on the tracks as he did. Lord v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 65 A. 111. In absence of evidence that belt lace is liable to pull out, or that lace used in belt was unsuitable, or that it was put in unskillfully, it could not be found that master was negligent in failing to anticipate that a lace would pull out and cause an injury. St. Pierre v. Foster [N. H.] 64 A. 723. That an injury was caused by an accident will not relieve the master unless the accident was one which could not have been prevented by the use of ordinary care. Cahaba Southern Min. Co. v. Pratt [Ala.] 40 So. 943. The duty of the master to furnish a safe place includes the duty to exercise reasonable care to guard against such dangers as may reasonably be foreseen and guarded against. Johnson v. Terry & Tench Co., 113 App. Div. 762, 99 N. Y. S. 375. Where employe wheeled a barrow of cement on a scaffold, a plank of which sagged, causing the barrow to tip, thereby throwing plaintiff, held, no negligence in furnishing the scaffold or barrow being shown, the accident was not one the master ought reasonably to have foreseen and guarded against. Cunningham v. Peirce, 112 App. Div. 65, 98 N. Y. S. 60. Circular saw had worn a hole in the saw table and operator complained and superintendent promised to repair it "pretty soon." A nonsuit on the ground that no injury was to be apprehended was error. Tannhauser v. Uptegrove & Bro., 100 N. Y. S. 245. A lever on a printing press flew back and startled the operator who then involuntarily thrust his hand into the machinery of the press and was injured. The accident was the first of its kind in the nine years' use of the press. It was held one which the master could not reasonably have foreseen. Creswell v. United Shirt & Collar Co., 100 N. Y. S. 497. Master not liable where employe was injured by a belt in an unprecedented manner, which could not reasonably have been foreseen. Guilmartin v. Solvay Process Co., 101 N. Y. S. 118. In action for injuries caused by explosion of dust in mill, evidence insufficient to take to jury question of negligence in not providing a certain device to prevent such an accident and in allowing dust to accumulate. Sticht v. Buffalo Cereal Co., 101 N. Y. S. 905. That a derailment was caused by a washout due to an unprecedented flood would not relieve a railroad company from liability for injuries to an engineer where the company had notice of the washout in time to prevent the accident. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 790, 91 S. W. 355.

66. A higher degree of care is required of the master where the employes, miners, work underground and are exposed to unseen dangers, and have no ready means of escape, than where the employes are situated so that they can readily see and escape from danger. Williams v. Sleepy Hollow Min. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 337. Where engineer knew that fireman was at work under an attached engine, ordinary care required the use of every precaution to prevent the engine from moving. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Seeger [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 492, 98 S. W. 892. Care required of master in regard to freight elevator, which employes were allowed to ride upon in going to and from work, held not the same degree of care that is required in the case of passenger elevators. Kappes v. Brown Shoe Co., 116 Mo. App. 154, 90 S. W. 1158.

67. Electricity must be handled with care proportionate to its dangerous character. Jacksonville Elec. Co. v. Sloan [Fla.] 42 So. 516. Employers dealing with electricity must use the degree of care usually exercised by ordinarily prudent persons engaged in that business. Zentner v. Oskosh Gaslight Co., 126 Wis. 196, 105 N. W. 911. Reasonable care for the protection of employes who work with electricity and electrical appliances requires a high degree of care and prudence commensurate with the greatness and subtlety of the danger to be guarded against. Martin v. Des Moines Edi-cumstances of the particular case.[68] It follows that the question whether due care has been exercised by the master, or by those who stand in his place, in a particular instance, is usually a question of fact to be solved by the jury.[69] son Light Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 359. Dangerous character of dynamite, when used for blasting or other like purposes, imposes on the person so using it the duty to provide reasonably safe and suitable methods for its use. Pinney v. King [Minn.] 107 N. W. 1127.

68. Where, in moving anchor of ship under way at full speed, her oval deck, where work was being done, was covered with ice and snow, and two of the five seamen were incompetent, extraordinary precautions should have been taken and only safe instrumentalities used. The Luckenbach, 144 F. 980.

Employment of minors: Fact of minority of employe does not impose any greater degree of care on the master than in case of adult servants. Decatur Car Wheel & Mfg. Co. v. Terry [Ala.] 41 So. 839. It is actionable negligence for an employer to engage and place at a dangerous employment a minor, who, although instructed, lacks sufficient age and capacity to comprehend and avoid the dangers of the employment, if the employer has or should have notice of the minor's age and lack of capacity. Employer of boy under thirteen as doorkeeper in mine entry. Bare v. Crane Creek Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 907. The employer of a minor, without other notice, is charged with notice of such lack of capacity as is usual among miners of the same age, so far as the minor's age is or should be known to the employer. Id.

69. Held for jury: Whether it was negligence to order employe to oil moving machinery. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Spatts, 77 Ark. 458, 92 S. W. 249. Servant injured while washing insecurely fastened window pane. Davis v. Diamond Carriage & Livery Co., 146 Cal. 59, 79 P. 596. Fireman was killed by derailment of train at a curve, while running at a high rate, with engine going backwards. There was evidence that roadbed was rough and uneven, also that flange of wheel on tender broke at the curve, also that it was customary with other roads to run trains as this one was run. Question of negligence was for jury. Rickerd v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 905. Brakeman fell under cars when he dropped off an engine to open a switch at night. Reardon v. Toledo, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F 187. Whether to require a boy of sixteen to carry a heavy load of tools, etc., down certain icy steps, upon which he fell, was negligence. Bainum v. American Bridge Co., 141 F. 179. Boy of thirteen was injured in dangerous machine, and complaint alleged failure to warn and instruct. Defense was that boy was doing an act not required of him when injured. Issue held for jury. Valley Knitting Mills v. Anderson, 121 Ga. 909, 53 S. E. 686. Employe sent out to flag a train and turn a switch for the train, was sighting along the rails, when he was seized with a cramp or paralytic stroke, fell on the track, and was struck by the train. Talley v. Atlantic & B. R. Co., 126 Ga. 56, 54 S. E. 817. Employe injured by bottle of acid tipping owing to alleged defect in crate on which it was placed. Columbian Enameling & Stamping Co. v. O'Burke [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 409. Whether cage was negligently lowered into mine and at an excessive and prohibitive rate, Joseph Taylor Coal Co. v. Dawes, 220 Ill. 145, 77 N. E. 131. Negligence of engineer in moving train without signal from brakeman, injury to brakeman resulting. Illinois Cent R. Co. v. Cane's Adm'x, 28 Ky. L. R. 1018. 90 S. W. 1061. Whether manner in which superintendent in charge of unloading cargo lashed ladder for use of crew was negligence. Hourigan v. Boston Elevated R. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 738. Cogwheel in elevator shaft broke and a piece of it struck plaintiff. Seeger v. St. Louis Silver Co., 193 Mo. 400, 91 S. W. 1030. Where plaintiff, holding a bar used to tighten nuts on an angle iron, was injured by reason of the bar slipping, and section boss having his weight on it, whether the boss was negligent. Browning v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 449, 94 S. W. 315. Where section hand was struck by a piece of coal thrown from the tender of a train when it passed over a rough place in the track, the coal having been piled 8 or 12 inches above the rim of the tender, the accident was not, as a matter of law, one which no prudent man could reasonably have foreseen; whether there was negligence was for the jury. Dean v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. [Mo.] 97 S. W. 910. Plaintiff, girl under sixteen, was injured by plunger of tin stamping machine while removing a cup with her hands. She testified that the machine was defective in that it started of its own accord, that she had complained, and that foreman had promised to fix it, and had told her to use her hands as she did. Regling v. Lehmaier, 50 Misc. 331, 98 N. Y. S. 642. Evidence showed that elevator boy was accustomed to leave the elevator and go upon errands about the store, and that a door to the shaft was defective and was left open, and an employe walked through it and fell. Wendell v. Leo, 101 N. Y. S. 51. Boy under sixteen was employed in factory but had no certificate as required by Labor Law, §§ 70-72. He was permitted to use a circular saw and was injured while so doing. Held, whether defendant was negligent was for jury. Rahn v. Standard Optical Co., 110 App. Div. 501, 96 N. Y. S. 1080. Where cars were left without being scotched and ran down a grade into cars on which plaintiff was standing, the question of negligence of the crew which left the cars so that they would start was held for the jury. Bird v. U. S. Leather Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 727. Death caused by explosion of gas in tunnel. Gawne Co. v. Fry, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 317. Employe of natural gas company was injured while repairing pipe. Evidence held to warrant inference of negligence of company in failure to have gas shut off, and case should have gone to jury. McCoy v. Ohio Valley Gas Co., 213 Pa. 367, 62 A. 858. Negligence of coemployes who let weight of hand car fall on plaintiff as they were replacing it on the track. Texas, etc., R. Co. v. McCraw [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 368, 95 S. W. 82. Employe moving truck on defendant's premises was injured by reason of defects in the truck and a hole in the track into which a wheel went, causing the tongue to swing around and strike him. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Shivers [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 807, 92 S. W. 96. Engineer injured in collision with train ahead of him. International, etc., R. Co. v. Brice [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 408, 95 S. W. 660. Where it appeared that high currents were usually turned off while repairs on electric line were being made, but that the current was on when deceased was making repairs, he being killed by it, the negligence of defendant was for the jury. Zentner v. Oshkosh Gaslight Co., 126 Wis. 196, 105 N. W. 911. Negligence of electric company in allowing wires to be grounded, lineman having been injured. Smith v. Milwaukee Elec. R. & Light Co., 127 Wis. 253, 106 N. W. 829. To remove hub from shaft of propeller, hub was heated, and superintendent struck it with a sledge hammer, whereupon hot oil spurted out and burned an employe trying to remove it. Whether failure to ascertain the presence of the oil, and striking the hub without warning of the danger from the oil, was negligence, held a question for the jury. Creamer v. Moran Bros. Co., 41 Wash. 636, 84 P. 592.

Master held not negligent: Where engineer took signals from brakeman, standing beside the track, and backed cars down to be coupled in the usual manner, and the brakeman went in between the cars, and the engineer used every means to stop the engine but could not do so in time, the brakeman could not recover. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. Order of superintendent to put disabled car "next to cabin car" held not negligent where one coupler was broken, since conductor should have put disabled car behind cabin car, not in front, which would have avoided injury to car inspector on front platform of cabin car. Shuster v. Philadelphia, etc. R. Co. [Del.] 62 A. 689. Switchman killed trying to board a switch engine from the rear at night. Pollard's Adm'x v. Kentucky, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 97 S. W. 735. Negligence of master not established in action for injuries to servant engaged in unloading grain from cars to elevator. Casey v. Daugherty, 118 Ill. App. 134. Employe engaged in loading ship got on hatchway unnecessarily and fell through opening. Bamford v. Hammond, 191 Mass. 479, 78 N. E. 115. Where employe in freight house took a skid leaning against a pile of cotton bales, which then fell upon him, injuring him, held there was no evidence to show negligence on the part of the foreman whose duty it was to superintend the storing of freight. Cahill v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 190 Mass. 423, 76 N. E. 911. Held not negligence to allow a break in plaster in elevator shaft, only 5 or 6 inches wide, 2 1-2 inches high, and 1 to 1 1-2 inches deep, which injury to foot of operator who allowed it to project and get caught. McDonald v. Dutton, 190 Mass. 391, 76 N. E. 1055. Iron worker, nineteen years old, with some experience, was employed to construct an iron pipe railing around a gas tank, and fell while screwing a coupling in place. There was no evidence that the coupling was defective. Evidence insufficient to show negligence of the master. Sheon v. Kerr-Murray Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 699, 109 N. W. 40. Evidence insufficient to show negligence of train dispatcher as cause of a collision. Moon v. Pere Marquette R. Co., 143 Mich. 125, 12 Det. Leg. N. 932, 106 N. W. 715. Where employe was drowned while being rowed from a barge on which he had been working, owing to the fact that an oar struck a submerged cable which rested on the barge and from there sank into the stream, held no negligence shown as to place or plan of work. Chrismer v. Bell Tel. Co., 194 Mo. 189, 92 S. W. 378. Fact that oars were not loose was not negligence, the boat being otherwise safe. Id. Employe in cement mill, who had worked there two months, could not recover for injuries resulting from getting into an open conveyor, when he knew as much about the place and the danger as his employer. Riddle v. Alpha Portland Cement Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 1065. Where deceased, killed by falling into vat, was familiar with premises, intelligent, and knew as much about danger as employer, there was no recovery for his death. Gaudette v. Boston, etc., R. Co. [N. H.] 64 A. 667. Where brakeman was drowned owing to bridge giving way, company could not be found negligent when it appeared that work of construction of bridge had been entrusted to skilled and competent engineers, and bridge was weakened by unusual flood. McGuire v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 825. Train dispatcher held not negligent in holding regular train, when operator failed to report time of leaving of an extra train from his station. Mahoney's Adm'r v. Rutland R. Co., 78 Vt. 244, 62 A. 722. Held not negligence to leave a board at the entry to a mine, where a person of ordinary prudence could not have foreseen that the board would get on the track and derail a car in the manner in which it did, thereby causing an injury. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Kiser, 105 Va. 695, 54 S. E. 889.

Master held negligent: Ordering an inexperienced brakeman to do dangerous work would constitute negligence, notwithstanding his willingness to undertake it. King v. Woodstock Iron Co., 143 Ala. 632, 42 So. 27. Conductor ordered brakeman on a car to apply hand brakes at proper time, and then gave signal to stop engine before he cut the car loose, thereby causing brakeman to fall. Held conductor was negligent. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Nicholas, 165 Ind. 679, 76 N. E. 522. In action for injury resulting, complaint was not demurrable for failure to allege that conductor knew of brakeman's position on the car. Id. Finding that collision in which brakeman was injured was caused by negligence of engineers and conductors of the two trains held supported by evidence. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Baker [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 64. Section foreman struck by locomotive engine while walking on track. Christopherson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1077. Where engineer ran his engine over a bridge where he knew bridge carpenters were at work without warning, and struck and killed a carpenter, the master was liable in the absence of contributory negligence Cason's Adm'r v. Covington & C. Elevated R. & Transfer & Bridge Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 352, 93 S. W. 19. Brakeman injured while coupling air hose owing to failure of head brakeman to give proper signal to prevent cars coming together. Hartman v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 110 N. W. 102. Where superintendent moved carriage which

The common-law duties of the master to use ordinary care to provide a reasonably safe place of work,[70] reasonably safe tools and appliances,[71] and a sufficient number of reasonably competent servants to do the required work,[72] to provide suitable methods of work, and to make and promulgate reasonable rules and regulations,[73] and to warn and instruct servants,[74] are more fully discussed and illustrated in succeeding paragraphs. These duties are personal to the master and cannot be delegated so as to relieve him from liability for their nonperformance.[75]

The right to recover for injuries to a servant alleged to have been caused by negligence of the master is governed by the law of the state where the contract of employment is made and is to be performed.[76]

Statutory liability.[77]—Employers' liability acts do not usually take from servants their common-law rights, but impose additional duties on the master and provide additional remedies for the injured servant.[78] If the servant's action is at common law, statutory requirements need not be complied with.[79] But where such statutes are in derogation of the common law, they are to be strictly construed.[80] plaintiff was cleaning without finding out where plaintiff was, there was actionable negligence. Baggneski v. Mills [Mass.] 78 N. E. 852. Failure of mine owner to keep air compressor in proper repair, as result of which gas and hot air was forced into a mine, held negligence. Davis v. Holy Terror Min. Co. [S. D.] 107 N. W. 374. Where it appeared to be duty of train crew to place a man on each end of a train to guard against breaks, a failure to do so constituted actionable negligence, the train having parted. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 376, 90 S. W. 926.

70, 71. See post, § 3 B.

72. See post, § 3 E.

73. See post, § 3 C.

74. See post, § 3 D.

75. One to whom such duties are delegated is a vice-principal. See post, § 3 E. Master's duties cannot be delegated so as to relieve him from liability. Jemnienski v. Lobdell Car Wheel Co. [Del.] 63 A. 935. Duty to furnish safe track for railroad employes is nondelegable. Mississippi Cent. R. Co. v. Hardy [Miss.] 41 So. 505. Duty of ordinary care to furnish reasonably safe machinery rests on master and cannot be delegated. Cooper's Adm'r v. Oscar Daniels Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 1172, 96 S. W. 1130. Duty to warn servant of latent or extraordinary dangers known to master but not to servant is nondelegable. Bone v. Ophir Silver Min. Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 685. Railroad company owes continuing duty to employes which it cannot be relieved of by allowing negligent habits of work. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Nicholas, 165 Ind. 679, 76 N. E. 522. Master put up his own steam plant by his own agents, purchasing only a few castings from other manufacturers. He had the plant examined and tested by competent engineers. Held he was liable for injuries caused by defects, notwithstanding such inspection. Erickson v. American Steel Wire Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 761.

76. Contract made and to be performed in Indiana. Liability of employer determined by law of that state. Christiansen v. Graver Tank Works, 223 Ill. 142, 79 N. E. 97. The relative rights of the parties are fixed by the law of the state wherein the contract of service is made, in the absence of any showing that it was to be elsewhere performed. Miller v. Southern R. Co., 141 N. C. 45, 53 S. E. 726. Railway employe hired out as brakeman in one state and was promoted to be yard conductor while at work in another state, in which state the contract under which he was working when injured was made was held a question for the jury. Caldwell v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 73 S. C. 443, 53 S. E. 746. Where contract of employment, made in Indian Territory, required notice of injury within thirty days as a condition precedent to an action for injuries, such provision was to be construed with reference to the laws of Indian Territory. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Thompson [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 979, 97 S. W. 459, rvg. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 229, 93 S. W. 702. Rev. St. Tex. 1895, art. 3379, providing that no requirement as to notice shall be valid if less than ninety days are allowed, does not apply. Id.

77. See 6 C. L. 530.

78. Compliance with statutes requiring fire escapes of a certain kind and capacity will not relieve the master from his common-law duty to use ordinary care to provide means of escape in case of fire. Dakan v. Chase & Son Mercantile Co., 197 Mo. 238, 94 S. W. 944. Civ. Code, §§ 2660, 2661, 2662, providing that master must indemnify servant for loss or expense incurred in discharge of duties, or caused by master's want of ordinary care, except for such as are ordinary risks, apply to actions for personal injuries suffered by servants. Hardesty v. Largey Lumber Co. [Mont.] 86 P. 29.

79. Laws Colo. 1893, p. 129, c. 77 (Employers' Liability Act), does not take away an employe's right of action at common law, and hence, in an action not brought under the statute but at common law, the provision requiring notice of injury within sixty days does not apply. Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Norgate [C. C. A.] 141 F. 247. Sess. Laws 1905, p. 164, c. 84, does not apply where an injury complained of occurred prior to the time the act took effect, and the notice required by § 9 is not a condition precedent to the bringing of an action after the act took effect. Miller v. Union Mill Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 130.

80. O'Neil v. Karr, 110 App. Div. 571, 97 N. Y. S. 148.

Thus, the giving of a notice of a claim for injuries is a condition precedent to the right to maintain an action under a statute where such notice is required by the statute.[81] A violation of a positive statutory duty imposed upon the master for the benefit of the servant is negligence per se.[82] A violation of an ordinance or statute designed for the protection of the general public, while it may not constitute, per se, a breach of duty owed the servant,[83] may be considered with other evidence on the issue of negligence of the master.[84] Employment of a minor, in violation of a statute, is actionable negligence, rendering the master liable for injuries to the minor,[85] or is at least evidence of negligence,[86] if not conclusive.[87]

The relation of master and servant must exist.[88]—To warrant a recovery for injuries caused by an alleged breach of a master's duties, it must appear that the person injured was at the time the defendant's servant,[89] and was engaged in per-

81. Failure to give the employer notice of the time, place, and cause of injury bars right of action under Rev. Laws, c. 106, § 75. Cahill v. New England Tel. & T. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 821. To secure the benefit of the provisions of the New York act, it is held that the employe must give the notice of his claim as required by the statute. If no notice is given an employe is not entitled to the benefit of the provision that the question of assumption of risk must be presented to the jury; he will be held to have assumed obvious risks as a matter of law. O'Neil v. Karr, 110 App. Div. 571, 97 N. Y. S. 148.

82. A violation of city ordinances regulating operation of railroads within city limits is negligence per se for which another employe may recover for injuries proximately caused thereby. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. City ordinance requiring bell of locomotive to be rung within city limits is for benefit of employes as well as general public. Illinois C. R. R. Co. v. Whiteaker, 122 Ill. App. 333.

83. Trackmen are not within protection of city ordinance limiting speed of trains within city limits. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Gesswine [C. C. A.] 144 F. 56. The statute requiring train crews to take certain precautions to prevent accidents to persons on the track is for the benefit of the general public only, and, where an employe is injured, liability of the master must be determined solely by reference to the common law. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Holland [Tenn.] 96 S. W. 758. Custom of railroad company of giving signals for crossings, as required by Rev. St. Ohio 1892, §§ 3336, 3337, being for benefit of persons using the crossings, a failure to give such signals is not a breach of duty owed to a trackman. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Gesswine [C. C. A.] 144 F. 56.

84. Servant of contractor on building was struck by wheelbarrow which fell through unguarded opening in floor. Contractor's negligence held for jury. Conroy v. Acken, 110 App. Div. 48, 96 N. Y. S. 530. Failure to enclose or fence elevator opening in buildings in course of construction, as required by statute, held not negligence as a matter of law. The question is for the jury. Kiernan v. Eidlitz, 109 App. Div. 726, 96 N. Y. S. 387.

85. Employment of a child under sixteen on a machine operated by steam power is a violation of Act May 16, 1903, § 11. Swift & Co. v. Rennard, 119 Ill. App. 173. That a child has concealed his true age does not relieve the employer from liability under this statute. Id. Mine owner who employes a child in the mine contrary to § 22 of the mining act is liable for injury to the child occuring in the mine. Marquette Third Vein Coal Co. v. Dielie, 113 Ill. App. 684. Where a minor was put to work on a steam candy roller, thereby violating Rev. St. 1899, § 6434, prohibiting employment of minors between the fixed or traversing parts of any machine moved by mechanical power, the act of the master constituted negligence. Nairn v. National Biscuit Co., 120 Mo. App. 144, 96 S. W. 679. Employment of boy under sixteen on a machine containing dangerous rollers is actionable negligence, since Pub. Acts 1901, p. 157, Act No. 113, § 3, prohibits the same. Sterling v. Union Carbide Co., 142 Mich. 284, 12 Det. Leg. N. 712, 105 N. W. 755. Whether rollers of corrugating machine upon which boy under sixteen was put to work were dangerous to life or limb, within Pub. Acts 1901, p. 157, Act No. 113, § 3, prohibiting employment of children under sixteen in work dangerous to life or limb, held for the jury. Sterling v. Union Carbide Co., 142 Mich. 284, 12 Det. Leg. N. 712, 105 N. W. 755.

86. Proof of employment of child under twelve in a factory, in violation of Acts 1903, p. 819, c. 473, § 1, is evidence of negligence, the child being injured while cleaning a machine. Rolin v. Reynolds Tobacco Co., 141 N. C. 300, 53 S. E. 891. Employment of child between fourteen and sixteen without a certificate is evidence of negligence. Dragotto v. Plunkett, 113 App. Div. 648, 99 N. Y. S. 361. Employment of girl under sixteen in violation of Laws 1899, p. 353, c. 192, § 81, held evidence of negligence in action for injuries in operating a dangerous machine. Regling v. Lehmaier, 50 Misc. 331, 98 N. Y. S. 642.

87. The violation of the New York statute prohibiting the employment of minors under the age of fourteen in factories is not conclusive evidence of negligence of the master (Lee v. Sterling Silk Mfg. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 78), nor of the absence of contributory negligence of the plaintiff [Labor Laws 1897, p. 477, c. 415, § 70] (Id.).

88. See 6 C. L. 531.

89. Relation of master and servant existed between plaintiff, a bridge laborer, and defendant, after plaintiff arrived on the premises and became subject to the orders forming, in a reasonable and proper manner,[90] duties within the scope of his employment.[91] The relation of master and servant is held to continue while employes are using elevators on the master's premises, with the master's consent, while leav-

and control of the defendant's superintendent. Virginia Bridge & Iron Co. v. Jordan, 143 Ala. 603, 42 So. 73. Whether defendant corporation was engaged in building bridge as principal or as mere agent for a town, held for jury, question being its liability for injury to plaintiff. James Ramage Paper Co. v. Bulduzzi [C. C. A.] 147 F. 151. Employe was hired by one who had authority to employ men for defendants, contractors, and put to work for them. He became their servant, and the relation between them could not be affected by any undisclosed intention to consider him the employe of the owner of the building on which work was being done. State v. Trimble [Md.] 64 A. 1026. Proper to show who paid wages, on issue as to whose employe deceased was at time of injury. Id. Railroad properties and shops changed hands and new owner issued notice to employes to continue in the employment unless otherwise notified. It was not shown whether a servant who was killed had received notice. Held, if defendant was in fact operating the plant, it would be liable as undisclosed principal. McClure v. Detroit Southern R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 846, 109 N. W. 847. Evidence insufficient to show plaintiff was servant of defendant, and not of another, an independent contractor, at the time of his injury. Davis v. Martin, 111 App. Div. 411, 97 N. Y. S. 835. Where conductor told plaintiff that he could ride on the train, and was to help load and unload freight, but the conductor had no authority to so employ plaintiff, plaintiff was neither a passenger nor an employe. Vassor v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 142 N. C. 68, 54 S. E. 849. During a fire at a railway station, a bystander was called by the station agent to assist in moving cars to a place of safety. The person so called became an employe, and could recover for injuries caused by negligence of a superior agent or officer under Const. Art. 9, § 15. Jackson v. Southern R., Carolina Division, 73 S. C. 557, 54 S. E. 231. A judgment for injuries of a servant against a corporation whose general manager caused the injury is not enforceable against a corporation which has purchased the business, without assuming the seller's debts or obligations. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 91, 91 S. W. 607. Where train crew of construction train was paid by construction company, hired by railway company but worked subject to orders of the railway company's superintendent, an injury resulting from the negligence of the train crew rendered the railway company liable. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. McLaughlin [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 839, 96 S. W. 1091.

Apprentices and student employes: Apprentice nurse in charitable hospital is a servant of the corporation. Hewett v. Woman's Hospital Aid Ass'n, 73 N. H. 556, 64 A. 190. Telephone employe who was groundman, but learning duties of lineman, was sent with lineman to make repairs, and ordered by the lineman to climb a pole. He was injured by a shock from a broken wire. Held, he was performing duties as an employe and entitled to recover. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Adams, 28 Ky. L. R. 1265, 91 S. W. 739. Where fireman was also learning to be an engineer and sometimes ran the engine under the engineer's direction, the company owed him the duty to furnish him a reasonably safe place while so engaged. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Bell, 104 Va. 836, 52 S. E. 700. A student brakeman who in consideration of being permitted to ride on a railway company's freight train to observe and learn the duties of a railway brakeman, agrees to perform service on its engines, trains and cars, while learning such duties, is an employe of the company. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Fronk [Kan.] 87 P. 698. Railroad employe, working without pay until he should have learned the duties of a brakeman, was a servant and not a licensee. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Burks [Ala.] 41 So. 638. Hence, where he sued as a licensee, and proof showed he was a servant, he could not recover. Id.

90. Evidence held to show that employe was properly on footboard of engine in discharge of duties when injured. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 913, 95 S. W. 607. In an action for death of brakeman due to defect in brake, instruction held erroneous because conveying idea that brakeman was not entitled to use brake unless such use was necessary. Sanders v. Houston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 93 S. W. 139.

91. Where an employe voluntarily leaves the work for which he was engaged and engages in other work, and is injured, he cannot hold the master liable. Employe injured while operating mincemeat machine in the absence of other employes and without the consent or knowledge of the foreman could not recover, she being hired for other work. Duvall v. Armour Packing Co., 119 Mo. App. 150, 95 S. W. 978. No recovery where boy, over thirteen, tried to remove obstruction from machine at a time when he was engaged in something which it was not his duty to do. Michalofski v. Pittsburg Screw & Bolt Co., 213 Pa. 563, 62 A. 1112. Whether door boy in mine was acting outside his duty in assisting driver held for jury. Esher v. Mineral R. & Min. Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 387. Where servant employed to paint parts of a vessel as directed was injured while doing work which he had not been told to do, he could not recover therefor. Daug v. North German Lloyd S. S. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 199. Plaintiff rented four rooms for $10 a month and was allowed $3 a month for taking care of the halls and lamps. Where she was injured in one of her own rooms, while attending to the lamps, by the falling of the ceiling, the landlord was not liable as an employer for having failed to supply a safe place in which to work. Walker v. Gleason, 109 App. Div. 791, 96 N. Y. S. 843. Where section foreman was injured while assisting in unloading timbers from cars, under superintendent's orders, he was at work in a department for which he was not employed, and the relation of master and servant did not then exist. Bryan v. International, etc., ing the place of work.[92] It is usually held that the relation of master and servant exists between a railway company and an employe who is being carried to or from his place of work by the company.[93] But it is held in Missouri that a laborer employed to work on railroad tracks is a passenger when riding on a train with an employe's pass, to a place where he has been ordered to work,[94] and hence does not assume the risk of negligence of the crew of the train.[95]

A general employer does not owe the duties of a master to servants of an independant contractor,[96] but is liable for injuries caused by his own negligence.[97]

R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 455, 90 S. W. 693. Where newspaper carrier worked under orders of foreman of distribution, who had nothing to do with machinery, and was told by such foreman to take papers from a folding machine, and was injured in so doing, the boy was a volunteer and could not recover. Hatfield v. Adams, 29 Ky. L. R. 880, 96 S. W. 583. Employe in electric light plant, whose duty was to oil machinery, was killed by a shock while assisting others to put out or prevent a fire. Whether there was such an emergency as called for his presence at the place he was killed was for the jury. Mehan v. Lowell Elec. Light Corp. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 385. Where evidence showed that boy sent to get acid from a crock, and who was injured by some which splashed in his face, had been an errand boy for two weeks, a finding that he was acting within the scope of his employment was warranted. Hodde v. Attleboro Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 252. Where a member of a switch crew, acting as foreman, used a brake, in the course of work being done by him for the master, he was entitled to the same protection as any other brakeman or switchman. Sanders v. Houston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 93 S. W. 139. Operator of planer in a sawmill was acting within the scope of his employment when he stepped around to one side of his machine, to remove an obstruction from it, and stepped into a hole in the floor while so doing. Baker v. Duwamish Mill Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 167. Where an employe at a sawmill was told to "get in and do anything that he saw to be done," he was acting within the scope of his duty in coupling cars in the yard. Stark v. Port Blakely Mill Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 339. Employe was told to go to work at machine at twelve o'clock noon, and continued after one o'clock when he was injured, though he testified that he usually worked only until another employe had returned. Held, whether injured employe was at the time acting within the scope of his duties was for the jury. Byrne v. Learnard, 191 Mass. 269, 77 N. E. 316. Employe was hired to plane axletrees, but a rule of the factory required employes to do small odd jobs when requested by other workman. Held, plaintiff was not working outside the scope of his employment when planing a narrow stick of timber at the request of a fellow workman. Millsap v. Beggs [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 956. Where section foreman at work in yards passed over a side track to answer a call of nature and was struck by cars, he was not a trespasser, no closet convenient to the place having been provided; and other employes owed him the duty of ordinary care for his safety. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Turner [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 55, 91 S. W. 562. Where an employe started for a closet, but stopped between cars, he could not recover for injuries received by reason of the moving of the cars on the theory that the master had located the closet across the track and had therefore licensed him to cross. Hocker v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 842, 96 S. W. 526.

92. Where employes in shoe factory were allowed to use freight elevator in going to and from work, stairways being also provided, which some used, the employes who used the elevator did not become passengers in so doing, but remained servants; and master owed them only ordinary care to keep the elevator and shaft reasonably safe. Kappes v. Brown Shoe Co., 116 Mo. App. 154, 90 S. W. 1158. Relation of master and servant exists between saleswoman and employer while former is going up in elevator to get her street clothes on the top floor, after working hours. McDonald v. Simpson-Crawford Co., 100 N. Y. S. 269.

93. Master who furnished transportation to and from work was bound to supply reasonably safe cars. Tanner v. Hitch Lumber Co., 140 N. C. 475, 53 S. E. 287. Employe riding to and from work, free of charge, by arrangement with master, is a servant while so riding. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. O'Donnell, 114 Ill. App. 345. Railroad employe after cleaning switch boarded car, gave conductor an employe's ticket, and started to another switch to do work of the same kind. Held he was an employe of the company, not a passenger, notwithstanding a statute making unlawful any unnecessary work on Sunday. Shannon v. Union R. Co., 27 R. I. 475, 63 A. 488. Hence, was fellow-servant of negligent employe. Id. Employes traveling home from work on a hand car furnished for that purpose by the master were in the master's employ while going home. Arkadelphia Lumber Co. v. Smith [Ark.] 95 S. W. 800.

94. Authorities pro and con cited, in many jurisdictions. Haas v. St. Louis & S. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 1155.

95. Haas v. St. Louis & S. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 1155.

96. Where work is let to an independent contractor who works according to his own methods, and not under the direction of the master, those who work under the independent contractor are his servants and not the servants of the master. Dallas Mfg. Co. v. Townes [Ala.] 41 So. 988. This principle applies to one who is the general servant of the master but for the particular work becomes the servant of the contractor. Servant employed by defendant but put to work under independent contractor could not recover from defendant for injuries caused by defect in place of work. Id. Bridge builder, injured by reason of a defective tool, held

Where an owner contracts with an independent contractor to have work done with the owner's apparatus, the owner owes to servants of the independent contractor with respect to such apparatus the same duty as to an employe of his own.[98] This is the rule at common law and also by statute, in some states.[99] Where a servant is loaned by one person to another for praticular service, he becomes the servant of the latter as to the particular employment, though he remains the general servant of the former.[1] In South Carolina, a railroad company which leases its road is liable to an employe for injuries while the road is being operated by the lessee.[2]

The master's negligence must have been the proximate cause[3] of the servant's injuries.[4]—What was the proximate cause of an injury is ordinarily a question of fact to be determined by the jury, except in those few cases where the facts are undispued and are such that only one reasonable conclusion can be drawn therefrom.[5] Neglithe servant of an independent contractor employed by defendant. Hence, defendant not liable. Hargadine v. Omaha Bridge & Terminal R. Co. [Neb.] 107 N. W. 864. Whether the person operating a sawmill was an independent contractor or the manager for defendant, so as to render him liable, held a question for the jury. Erickson v. McNeeley & Co., 41 Wash. 509, 84 P. 3. A stevedore, paid so much per ton to unload coal, and who hires, discharges, and pays off the men employed, is an independent contractor, and a man hired by him is his servant, and not the servant of the ons by whom the contractor is employed. Sullivan v. New Bedford Gas & Edison Light Co., 190 Mass. 288, 76 N. E. 1048.

97. Evidence sufficient to support finding that plaintiff's injuries, sustained by falling of scaffold, were caused by negligence of defendant, and not by an independent contractor. Northrup v. Hayward [Minn.] 109 N. W. 241. Subcontractor held not liable for injuries to his employe caused by scaffold on a floor under the control of ths general contractor, with which subcontractor had nothing to do. Loehing v. Westlake Const. Co., 118 Mo. App. 163, 94 S. W. 747.

98. The contractor's servants are invited to use the owner's machinery. Sullivan v. New Bedford Gas & Edison Light Co., 190 Mass. 288, 76 N. E. 1048.

99. Rev. Laws, c. 106, § 76, affirms the common-law rule but does not enlarge it. Sullivan v. New Bedford Gas & Edison Light Co., 190 Mass. 288, 76 N. E. 1048.

1. Employe of logging company loaned to defendant as brakeman for a trip of a logging train became defendant's servant during such employment. Weist v. Coal Creek R. Co., 42 Wash. 176, 84 P. 725.

2. Acts 1902, p. 1152. Reed v. Southern R., Carolina Division [S. C.] 55 S. E. 218.

3. For discussion of doctrine of proximate cause, see Negligence, 6 C. L. 748. The proximate cause of an injury is that which, in a natural and continuous sequence, unbroken by any new, independent cause, produces the injury, and without which it would not have occurred. Lawrence v. Heidbreder Ice Co., 119 Mo. App. 316, 93 S. W. 897. A proximate cause need not be the last or sole cause but must be a concurring cause such as might have been contemplated under the circumstances. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Oram [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 624, 92 S. W. 1029. Where concurrent causes are the immediate and efficient cause of an injury, it is not competent to take one of them away from the other and say that it and not the other was the proximate cause of the accident. Ziehr v. Maumee Paper Co., 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 144.

4. See 6 C. L. 534. To warrant recovery for death of trackman by collision, a breach of duty owed the trackman must be shown to be the proximate cause of the death. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Gesswine [C. C. A.] 144 F. 56. Negligence is not actionable unless it is the proximate causs of injury. Darrow v. The Fair, 118 Ill. App. 665. Failure to have train equipped with automatic air brakes could not warrant recovery for injury not proximately caused thereby. Lyon v. Charleston, etc., R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 18. Proof that piles of cinders were left on the track where they would be in the way of brakeman held not to warrant recovery for injuries to brakeman while coupling cars, where such negligence was not shown to have been the cause of injury. Marshall v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Ark.] 94 S. W. 56. Instruction on proximate cause criticized. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Paschall [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 709, 92 S. W. 446. Error to instruct that it was master's duty to make and promulgate rules of work when it did not appear that want of rules caused injury. Griffin Wheel Co. v. Stanton, 70 Kan. 762, 79 P. 651. Instruction that defendant would not be liable if injury occurred as the direct result of an accident and not as the direct and natural result of defendant's negligence held not objectionable as warranting a finding for defendant notwithstanding defendant's negligence. De Witt's Adm'r v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 1161, 96 S. W. 1122.

5. Proximate cause held a question for jury: Where fireman was killed by derailment of train at curve, there being evidence of rough roadbed, high speed, and breaking of flange of wheel on tender. Rickerd v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 905. Whether violation of Mine & Miners Act. § 18, par. a, requiring inspection of mine for gas, was proximate cause of death of miner by an explosion held for jury. Athens Min. Co. v. Carnduff, 221 Ill. 354, 77 N. E. 571. Railway employe was removing woodwork from a bridge under foreman's orders when his footing was removed by the act of the foreman in prying loose a timber. Whether foreman's negligence caused employe's injury by falling was for the jury. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Pavey [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 529.

gence of the master will be held the proximate cause of an injury if the master, in the exercise of ordinary care, ought reasonably to have foreseen that injury might result therefrom;[6] it is not necessary that the particular injury which occurred ought to have been foreseen,[7] provided it was the natural and probable consequence

Where "small pieces of iron or steel or material" were thrown into plaintiff's eyes as he was operating an emery wheel, the court could not say as a matter of law that the failure to provide exhaust fans for the wheel, as required by statute, was not the cause of injury. Muncie Pulp Co. v. Hacker [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 770. Whether collision of trains was caused by plaintiff's (engineer's) negligence in running his train ahead of time or negligence of operatives of other train in failing to put out emergency stop signals. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Hall, 29 Ky. L. R. 584, 94 S. W. 26. Whether defective condition of derrick caused boom to fall and injure plaintiff. Butler v. New England Structural Co., 191 Mass. 397, 77 N. E. 764. Whether injury was caused by castors on truck getting into a hole in the floor causing the truck to stop and the load to tip off on plaintiff. Longree v. Jackes-Evans Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 478, 97 S. W. 272. Where engine was derailed at frog, whether a weak guard rail was a contributing cause was for the jury, it appearing that other derailments had occurred at the same place. Dunphy v. St. Joseph Stock Yards Co., 118 Mo. App. 506, 95 S. W. 301. Whether fire was communicated to trestle through pile of combustible material negligently left near trestle by the company. Root v. Kansas City Southern R. Co., 195 Mo. 348, 92 S. W. 621. Where boy under twelve was engaged in cleaning a machine, and another boy threw a plug of tobacco into it, and, as cleaner tried to take it out, started the machine which tore off the cleaner's hand, whether the coemploye's act or the negligence of the employer in hiring the boy under twelve was the proximate cause of the injury was for the jury. Rolin v. Reynolds Tobacco Co., 141 N. C. 300, 53 S. E. 891. Section hand was riding on platform of passenger coach to which flat car was attached. As conductor came out of car, section hand started to step on flat car when cars were uncoupled and he fell between them and was killed. Held, conductor was not negligent in failing to anticipate and take steps to prevent the act of the section hand. Jones v. East Carolina R. Co., 142 N. C. 207, 55 S. E. 147. Where an employe in stumbling over a block of wood falls into an unguarded machine and is injured by having his arm drawn into the machine, it is not competent to separate the occurrence into two parts and say that the block of wood was the proximate cause and the machine merely the physical agency which caused the accident, but the case should be submitted to the jury as a whole to determine whether or not under all the circumstances the defendant might have anticipated an accident of that character resulting from leaving the machine exposed. Bresewski v. Royal Brush & Broom Co., 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 457. Coupler between tender and cars would not work and brakeman went between cars, as was customary in such cases, to make a coupling. He stumbled on a clinker and fell under the tender. He had no notice of the presence of the cinders and clinkers on the track but defendant had. Held, negligence of defendant was proximate cause of injury. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Ames [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 298, 94 S. W. 1112. Whether injury was caused by improper structure of dolly-bar or its insecure position while in use by a servant constructing a smokestack. Ham v. Hayward Lumber Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 763, 96 S. W. 938. Whether negligence in furnishing unsafe laundry machine was proximate cause of injury to operator of machine. Tuckett v. American Steam & Hand Laundry [Utah] 84 P. 500. Whether engineer's death was proximately caused by failure of employes to set a switch and failure of company to provide a switch light. Southern R. Co. v. Blanford's Adm'x, 105 Va. 373, 54 S. E. 1. Whether master's negligence was cause of quarryman's death by fall of loosened rock. Black's Adm'r v. Virginia Portland Cement Co. [Va.] 55 S. E. 587. Evidence held sufficient to take to jury the issue whether plaintiff was struck by a swinging hoisting hook, and to warrant a finding that the hook was swinging violently and was being raised with negligent speed. Johnson v. St. Paul & W. Coal Co., 126 Wis. 492, 105 N. W. 1048. Whether defect in monkey wrench which employe was using to fix a machine was proximate cause of his injury by getting his hand in the gearing. Stork v. Stalker Cooperage Co., 127 Wis. 318, 106 N. W. 841.

6. Winchel v. Goodyear, 126 Wis. 271, 105 N. W. 824.

7. Winchel v. Goodyear, 126 Wis. 271, 105 N. W. 824. Where employe in sawmill was injured by coming in contact with a saw which had negligently been left unguarded, the accident having occurred by reason of the employe having slipped, and a table bed designed as a cover for the saw having tipped from it, the accident was held one which resulted proximately from the defendant's negligence, since without it the accident would not have occurred. Id. That the particular injury could not have been anticipated will not relieve the master if it ought reasonably to have been anticipated that some injury might result as a consequence of his negligence. Rice v. Dewberry [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 193, 93 S. W. 715. Master is liable if injury ought reasonably to have been anticipated from defects in track, though the particular injury which resulted was not foreseen. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 913, 95 S. W. 607. Proof that negligence of railway company caused the rear part of a train to stop suddenly, whereby a conductor was thrown to the floor of the caboose and injured, warranted a recovery, though the accident was shown to be an unusual one. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. King [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 75, 91 S. W. 622. Superintendent of blast furnace operations negligently permitted lumps of ore, which were too large, to be placed in furnace, whereby a "scaffold" was formed, which fell and caused a part of the furnace to give way, thereby allowing molten of the master's negligence.[8] If an injury would not have resulted but for negligence of the master, he is not relieved from responsibility by the fact that an independent cause for which he was not responsible concurred in producing the injury.[9] These principles are further illustrated by holdings grouped in the note.[10] ore to escape and kill an employe. Held, master liable though superintendent did not know, and ought not to have known, that such result would follow his act. Williamson Iron Co. v. McQueen, 144 Ala. 265, 40 So. 306.

8. Negligence is the proximate cause of an injury when it appears that "the injury was the natural and probable consequence of the negligence or wrongful act, and that it ought to have been foreseen in the light of attending circumstances." Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Co. v. Weeks, 72 Kan. 190, 83 P. 406.

9. Concurring negligence of a fellow-servant is no defense. See post, § 3 E. Where there are two contributing causes concurring for only one of which the master is responsible, he is liable. Godfrey v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 117 La. 1094, 42 So. 571. Instruction making defendant liable if its negligence contributed to cause injury, though other causes also contributed, held proper. Wiest v. Coal Creek R. Co., 42 Wash. 176, 84 P. 725. If negligence of mine operator in failing to provide proper ventilation for a mine was a proximate cause of a miner's death, the fact that the miner's weak physical condition contributed would not relieve the operator from liability. Faley v. Pioneer Min. & Mfg. Co., 144 Ala. 178, 40 So. 273. If an injury to or the death of an employe is caused by concurrent negligence of the master and another, either or both are liable. Where one company furnished an unseaworthy barge, and another loaded it negligently, and an employe lost his life by the capsizing of the barge as a consequence of the negligence of both, both were liable. Strauhal v. Asiatic S. S. Co. [Or.] 85 P. 230.

10. Negligence of master, or one representing him, held proximate cause of injury: Evidence sufficient to show that miner's injury was caused by the fall of a rock from the unlined part of a shaft in the mine. Monarch Min. & Development Co. v. De Voe [Colo.] 85 P. 633. Failure of mine inspector to make inspection and to mark a place of danger and to report it as required by Laws 1899, pp. 315, 317, §§ 16, 18, held proximate cause of injury to a miner by falling of a clod of earth. Henrietta Coal Co. v. Martin, 221 Ill. 460, 77 N. E. 902. Negligent piling of angle irons which fell on plaintiff who had been called to a shop to help in shearing a steel plate held the proximate cause of his injury. New Castle Bridge Co. v. Doty [Ind.] 79 N. E. 485. Defendant's negligence in improperly grounding a switchboard held cause of employe's death by electric shock. Mehan v. Lowell Elec. Light Corp. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 385. Employment of boy under sixteen on a machine with dangerous rollers held proximate cause of his injury by getting his hand caught in the rollers. Sterling v. Union Carbide Co., 142 Mich. 284, 12 Det. Leg. N. 712, 105 N. W. 755. Evidence held sufficient to show that switchman's death was caused by negligent backing of engine down upon him. Rogers v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 868. Whether dangerous construction of spur track or negligence of fellow-servant in sending cars on it unaccompanied by an engine was proximate cause of accident, held for jury. Gila Valley, etc., R. Co. v. Lyon, 27 S. Ct. 145. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that cause of employe's injury was a piece of creasote which got into his eye from timbers he was unloading. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Gill [Miss.] 40 So. 865. Where boy in elevator moved his foot because another employe stepped on it, and it was caught between the floor of the elevator and the floor of the building, the negligent construction of the elevator, and not the act of the fellow-servant, was the proximate cause of injury. Obermeyer v. Logeman Chair Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 59, 96 S. W. 673. Employe furnished a machine known to be unsafe because of a loose bar and the servant was injured in an attempt to continue the operation of the machine after the defect had hindered him. The defect was the proximate cause of his injury. Lawrence v. Heidbreder Ice Co., 119 Mo. App. 316, 93 S. W. 897. In action for injuries caused by derailment of engine, plaintiff proved that a guard rail was loose and weak, that other rails were too light, and that there were not enough ties, and that some ties were rotten. Held, this was sufficient to show a proximate cause for which defendant would be liable. Dunphy v. St. Joseph Stock Yards Co., 118 Mo. App. 506, 95 S. W. 301. Employe hauling a truck backwards fell into a hole in the floor. The proximate cause of his injury was the hole and not his failure to use a rope in hauling the truck. Burke v. Manhattan R. Co., 109 App. Div. 722, 96 N. Y. S. 516. Where coupler on flat car was defective and caused cars to come so close together that plaintiff was crushed when going between them to couple them under superintendent's orders, the defective coupler, and the superintendent's order, constituted continuing negligence which was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury. Liles v. Fosburg Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 39, 54 S. E. 795. Injuries to conductor caused by escape of train down a steep grade held to have been caused by defective brake. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bohan [Tenn.] 94 S. W. 84. Failure to properly warn operator of planing machine held proximate cause of his injury resulting from his trying to remove slivers when machine was in motion. Rice v. Dewberry [Tex. Civ. App.] 95 S. W. 1090. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that defects in truck and platform caused injury to employe where express parcels fell off the truck upon him. Wells, Fargo & Co. Exp. v. Boyle [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 350, 98 S. W. 441. Evidence held to warrant finding that failure to have a switch light at a certain switch was negligence, and that such negligence was the proximate cause of engineer's death caused by running into the switch when improperly set. Southern R. Co. v. Blanford's Adm'x, 105 Va. 373, 54 S. E. 1.

Proximate cause of injury held not to be master's negligence: Negligence of engineer in backing cars at excessive rate would not warrant recovery by brakeman who negligently went between the cars. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. Negligence in furnishing a balky mule to haul an ore car held not the proximate cause of injury, where driver got off the car when the mule balked and was injured trying to get on again later, at a time when the mule did not balk. Richards v. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 288. Cause of breaking of rope sling used in hoisting lumber held to be not the unsound condition of the rope but the catching of a heavy load on the hatch combing, for which vessel was not liable. The Fulton, 143 F. 591. Evidence sufficient to show negligence of conductor cause of brakeman's death by backing train down upon him. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Williams [Ind.] 79 N. E. 442. Miner was paid according to amount of coal delivered at mouth of mine and was himself required to push the cars out. A car was derailed, and a pit boss assisted the miner in getting it back on the track, and in so doing the miner's fingers were pinched, which became a serious injury. Held, defect in track and derailment of car were not proximate cause of the injury. Cavanaugh v. Centerville Block Coal Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 303. Lack of cup to pour powder into hole in blasting operations held not proxlmate cause of injury to employe's face by explosion, when employe could have supplied the lack with other means than the can he used, and it was not necessary to hold his face over the hole. Hilman Land & Iron Co. v. Littlejohn, 28 Ky. L. R. 983, 90 S. W. 1053. An inexperienced employe while at work as a sorter in a sawmill was directed to pile lumber in an isle, there being a shortage of help. The pile fell injuring plaintiff. Held, the insufficient number of employes was not the proximate cause of the injury. Hagglund v. St. Hilaire Lumber Co., 97 Minn. 94, 106 N. W. 91. Foreman's order to plaintiff to assist a mechanic in repairing engine was not proximate cause of injury where it resulted immediately from the mechanic's act in moving another part of the machinery, causing it to strike plaintiff. Schneider v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 117 Mo. App. 129, 94 S. W. 730. Where employes crowded about an elevator entrance and some of them stooped under a railing and opened the elevator gate and were pushed into the shaft by those behind, the employe's negligence, and not the failure of the master to have a gate which could not be opened from the outside, was the proximate cause of the falling of employes down the shaft. Kappes v. Brown Shoe Co., 116 Mo. App. 154, 90 S. W. 1158. Proximate cause of injury to operator of planer, who put his hands into rollers trying to remove a board, held to be his own negligence and not the absence of a guard which would prevent boards getting caught. Smith v. Forrester-Nace Box Co., 193 Mo. 715, 92 S. W. 394. Foreman of crew of bridge repairers assisted crew in getting material for a fire needed by them. He placed a tie on the track and a train knocked it against plaintiff. Held, foreman's negligence in placing tie on the track, and not failure to give warning of the approach of the train, was the proximate cause of the injury. Bannon v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 112 App. Div. 552, 98 N. Y. S. 770. Employe of contractor at work on a scaffold was knocked off by another employe who fell from above him The scaffold did not fall. Held, master could not be held liable on theory that he had failed to furnish a safe scaffold. Madin v. Norcross Bros. Co., 50 Misc. 173, 98 N. Y. S. 223. Conductor, guiding trolley pole of car which was being taken into the repair shops, was dragged into a pit by the sudden starting of the car by the motorman, the conductor having the trolley rope twisted about his arm. Held, the pit being a proper and necessary part of the repair works, it was the motorman's negligent act which proximately caused the injury. Dulfer v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 207. If shield for saw was a reasonable, usual, and proper protection for operator of saw, doing a certain kind of work, and a shield would have prevented a particular injury, failure to provide it would be negligence and the proximate cause of injury. Jones v. Reynolds Tobacco Co., 141 N. C. 202, 53 S. E. 849. Where loose lacing of belt caused injury, but there was no evidence from which it could be inferred that defendants ought to have anticipated that the lace would pull out, or that they could have done anything to prevent its pulling out as it did, their failure to inspect could not be found the legal cause of the accident. St. Pierre v. Foster [N. H.] 64 A. 723. Where yardmaster knew that a car inspector was at work, and nevertheless caused cars to be kicked down the track against cars at which the inspector was at work, causing his injury, negligence of the yardmaster was the proximate cause of the injury, notwithstanding a rule requiring inspectors to display blue flags, such rule not being enforced or observed. El Paso & S. R. Co. v. Darr [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 145, 93 S. W. 166. Defect in engine held not proximate cause of injury to fireman at work under an attached engine, caused by the engines moving, where the engineer could have prevented the injury by the exercise of ordinary care. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Seeger [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 492, 98 S. W. 892. Defect in engine held not proximate cause of brakeman's death by falling from a train into a river while passing over a bridge. English v. International, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 616, 98 S. W. 913. Where rules required trains to run ten minutes apart, and required crews to send back a flagman at stops only when ten minutes late, a collision caused by one train running into a preceding train in less than ten minutes after its leaving time was not due to violation of rules by the crew of the first train. International, etc., R. Co. v. Brice [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1036, 97 S. W. 461. Engineer of extra train left a station when he should have waited, and telegraph operator failed to report the time when the extra left to the dispatcher, and a collision resulted. Held, operator's negligence was a proximate cause of the collision and he was a fellow-servant. Mahoney's Adm'r v. Rutland R. Co., 78 Vt. 244, 62 A. 722. Where hook attached to rail of track, as part of tackle used to unload rails from a car, very suddenly flew up and killed an employe, such fact did not show negligence of the master as the proximate cause of the death, conceding that engine was defective, foreman incompetent, and an insufficient force of men employed. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v.

Contractual exemption from liability.[11]—The validity of a contract releasing a master from liability for negligence resulting in injuries to a servant is to be determined by the law of the place where it is made.[12] It is usually held that a contract exempting in advance a master from liability for negligence is contrary to public policy and void.[13] But it is held in some states that a contract whereby a servant agrees to accept certain benefits, in case of injury, and to waive other claims for the injury,[14] or a contract whereby it is optional with an injured employe to accept benefits from a relief department, or to bring an action for damages,[15] is valid, and an employe who has accepted benefits thereunder cannot later attack the validity of the contract and maintain an action for damages.[16] Such a contract is to be construed in connection with the by-laws of the relief department, which are made a part of it.[17] If the company violates the terms of such contract by refusing to continue benefits to an injured employe until he is cured, the employe may sue for damages, and the contract will not bar his action, though the company will be entitled to credit for the relief already given.[18] Contracts waiving liability of the McDonald's Adm'x [Va.] 55 S. E. 554. Where employe was struck by drift pin under vertical steam hammer, evidence held insufficient to sustain finding that defectiveness of machinery controlling hammer caused accident, in that it struck two blows instead of one without any manipulation of machinery for second blow. Chybowski v. Bucyrus Co., 127 Wis. 332, 106 N. W. 833. Owing to worn condition of power drill with which operator was drilling holes in certain chain belt links, the employer having refused to fix the drill, the employe made a wire hook to keep the links in place. The wire was caught and wound round the drill shaft and the operator's fingers were cut off. Held, the use of the wire hook, and not the defective condition of the machine, was the proximate cause of the injury. Stefanowski v. Chain Belt Co. [Wis.] 109 N. W. 532.

11. See 6 C. L. 536.

12. Cannaday v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 836.

13. Cannaday v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 836. A contract whereby an employe agrees to relieve his employer from all liability for injury by reason of the negligence of the employer or any of his agents or employes, is void, as against public policy. Johnston v. Fargo, 184 N. Y. 379, 77 N. E. 388. A contract whereby a student brakeman exempts the company from all liability for damages which he may sustain in consequence of the negligence of the company, its agents, servants, or employes, is against public policy and void. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Fronk [Kan.] 87 P. 698. An implied agreement by an engineer to relieve the company from liability for negligence of a conductor in charge of the train would be null and void, as Const. 1895, art. 9, § 15, makes railroad corporations liable for negligence of a superior. Wilson v. Southern R. Co., 73 S. C. 481, 53 S. E. 968. Under the statute providing that no contract limiting liability of an employer in case of the injury or death of an employe shall be valid, a contract that the surgeon of a railroad company shall be allowed to examine an employe if injured, and that a refusal to allow such examination shall bar an action for the injury, is void. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Hughes [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 537, 91 S. W. 643.

NOTE. Validity of contracts of exemption from liability: "The question of the validity of such a contract between an employer and a person in his employment as affected by public policy, it must be conceded, is a debatable one. In support of the right to make the agreement we have respectable authority in decisions of the courts of England and of the courts of Georgia. Griffiths v. Earl of Dudley, 9 Q. B. Div. 357; Western, etc., R. Co. v. Bishop, 50 Ga. 465; Same v. Strong, 52 Ga. 461. The great weight of authority in decisions of the courts of the various states, however, sustains the view that such agreements are contrary to public policy. Railway Co. v. Spangler, 44 Ohio St. 471, 8 N. E. 467, 58 Am. Rep. 833; Railway Co. v. Peavey, 29 Kan. 169, 44 Am. Rep. 630; Railway Co. v. Jones, 2 Head [Tenn.] 517; Willis v. Railway Co., 62 Me. 488; Railway Co. v. Eubanks, 48 Ark. 466, 3 S. W. 808, 3 Am. St. Rep. 245; Railway Co. v. Jones, 92 Ala. 218, 9 So. 276; Maney v. Railway Co., 49 Ill. App. 105; N. N., etc., Co. v. Eifert, 15 Ky. L. R. 575; Blanton v. Dold, 109 Mo. 64, 18 S. W. 1149; Johnson's Adm'x v. Railway Co., 86 Va. 975, 11 S. E. 829."—From opinion in Johnston v. Fargo [N. Y.] 77 N. E. 388.

14. This is the South Carolina rule, and a contract of that kind, made in South Carolina, will be enforced in North Carolina. Cannaday v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 836. Contract of employment provided that acceptance of benefits from relief department would operate as release of other claims. Id.

15. Harrison v. Alabama Midland R. Co., 144 Ala. 246, 40 So. 394. A contract whereby a railroad employe agrees to accept the benefits of the relief department and to waive and release all claims for injuries or death is valid. Pennsylvania Co. v. Chapman, 220 Ill. 428, 77 N. E. 248.

16. Harrison v. Alabama Midland R. Co, 144 Ala. 246, 40 So. 394. Where a servant has accepted benefits, he cannot thereafter maintain an action for damages. South Carolina rule enforced. Cannaday v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 836.

17. Pennsylvania Co. v. Chapman, 220 Ill. 428, 77 N. E. 248.

18. Servant was treated after an injury, but was discharged, and when his wound reopened, after he went to work, the company master for injuries, under certain circumstances, will be most strongly construed against the master.[19]

(§ 3) B. Tools, machinery, appliances, and places for work.[20]—It is the duty of the master to use ordinary care,[21] to furnish machinery, tools, and appliances which are reasonably safe and suitable [22] for the purpose for which they are intended to be used,[23] or for a use to which they are customarily put by employes, with the knowledge or acquiescence of the master.[24] Instrumentalities of the kind ordinarily used by those engaged in the same business are reasonably safe within the meaning of this rule,[25] which does not require the latest, safest, or best obtainable refused to continue relief to him. Pennsylvania Co. v. Chapman, 220 Ill. 428, 77 N. E. 248. Membership in relief organization, and acceptance of some benefits, held not to bar action for injuries. Pennsylvania Co. v. Chapman, 118 Ill. App. 201.

19. Southern R. Co. v. Holbrook, 124 Ga. 679, 53 S. E. 203.

20. See 6 C. L. 537.

21. Master is only bound to use ordinary care to see that appliances are reasonably safe. Dunn v. Nicholson, 117 Mo. App. 374, 93 S. W. 869. Master is not absolutely bound to furnish reasonably safe appliances. Bryan v. International, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 455, 90 S. W. 693. Master must use ordinary care and diligence to provide safe and suitable tools and appliances. Columbian Enameling & Stamping Co. v. O'Burke [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 409. Master under duty of reasonable care to supply safe derrick to workmen. Fallon v. Mertz, 110 App. Div. 755, 97 N. Y. S. 417.

22. Only reasonably safe appliances required. The Chico, 140 F. 568. Absolute safety of appliances is not required; only reasonable safety. McKee v. Crucible Steel Co., 213 Pa. 333, 62 A. 921; Jemnienski v. Lobdell Car Wheel Co. [Del.] 63 A. 935; Davis v. Northwestern R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 526. A master is bound to use ordinary care in furnishing machinery reasonably safe for all employes who operate it with ordinary care and skill. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Skipper, 125 Ga. 368, 54 S. E. 110. The duty owed by a railroad company to its employes with reference to its tracks and appliances is that of ordinary care to keep them in reasonably safe condition. Anderson v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 884. Master not liable where servant was injured by a piece of steel flying from a practically new, high grade steel instrument with which he was cutting rock, though a wedge was generally used. Langhorn v. Wiley, 28 Ky. L. R. 1186, 91 S. W. 255. No negligence of master shown in providing use of extension ladder for stringing wire on poles, the ladder being placed against an arm extending from the pole. Hart v. Clinton, 100 N. Y. S. 1092. Where miner was injured by a prop having been placed too close to a track, instructions as to master's duty of ordinary care to see that the place and cars were reasonably safe held proper. Cahaba Southern Min. Co. v. Pratt [Ala.] 40 So. 943. Complaint held to state a cause of action for furnishing an unsafe engine to an engineer, by reason of which defect the engineer sustained injury. Moore v. Southern R. Co., 141 N. C. 111, 53 S. E. 745.

23. It is not master's duty to furnish a scaffold reasonably safe for all purposes; he is only under the duty of providing one reasonably safe for the intended and required purposes. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Theorell, 120 Ill. App. 490. Appliances must be reasonably safe and suitable considering the work to be done and the conditions under which it is to be performed. Costello v. Frankman, 97 Minn. 522, 107 N. W. 739. A master, in the exercise of reasonable care is not required to furnish the newest, safest, and best appliances, but only such as are reasonably suited to the use the servant is required to make of them. Post v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 233. Held error to refuse charge that no particular kind of mail crane need be furnished if one supplied was reasonably safe for intended purpose. Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Burchard [Colo.] 86 P. 749. Where train was derailed and went through a bridge, the bridge not having caused the derailment, the company could be found negligent with reference to the bridge only if it was found to be defective for the ordinary purposes of railway bridges. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hill [Ark.] 94 S. W. 914. An instruction that an appliance, pile driver, was itself reasonably safe is not an instruction that the driver as stayed was reasonably safe to work with. Wilder v. Great Western Cereal Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 789.

24. Switchman uses cross piece, put on stanchions of flat car to hold lumber, in supporting himself while adjusting a coupler, and the piece gave way, causing him to fall under the train. Evidence tending to show a customary use of such cross pieces for such purpose was held admissible on the issue of negligence of the company. Wallace v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 646, 54 S. E. 399.

25. The master is required to provide only such facilities and conveniences for the use and operation of machinery by his employes as are in common and general use. Central Granaries Co. v. Ault [Neb.] 106 N. W. 418. Street railway companies are not bound to supply every possible appliance to insure safety of carmen, but need only adopt those which the standard of good railroading show to be reasonably safe. Mayer v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 142 Mich. 459, 12 Det. Leg. N. 843, 105 N. W. 883. Master not liable for chipping of hand hammer, a machine made one, when it appeared that was the kind generally used, though a hand made hammer would not have chipped. Paul v. Westinghouse, Church & Kerr Co., 113 App. Div. 515, 99 N. Y. S. 356. Railroad company not liable for bursting of water gauge of locomotive engine when the gauge guard was of the

to be provided.[26] Failure to conform with general usage is not negligence as a matter of law; it is merely evidence to be considered by the jury.[27] Whether due care in this respect has been exercised in a given case is ordinarily a question of fact.[28] kind generally used, even though experts considered another kind safer. Healy v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 111 App. Div. 618, 97 N. Y. S. 801. Failure to provide a guard or covering for a saw, when such guard or cover is a reasonable protection in general use, is negligence. Jones v. Reynolds Tobacco Co., 141 N. C. 202, 53 S. E. 849. To show that a shield for a certain kind of saw is in general use, plaintiff may prove a general custom or show that a large number of factories and mills used such a shield in similar work, from which the jury could infer a general custom. Id. Employes of labor on railways or in plants where complicated machinery is used, especially where such machinery is driven by mechanical power, are bound to use ordinary care to supply a reasonably safe place to work and reasonably safe and suitable machines and appliances, such as are approved and in general use in places of like kind and character. Fearington v. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co., 141 N. C. 80, 53 S. E. 662. Finding of negligence of railroad company warranted where proof showed that a brakeman was required to use a link and pin between an engine and car more dangerous than the link and pin ordinarily used. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Craig [Ark.] 95 S. W. 168.

26. The Fulton, 143 F. 591; Law v. Central Dist. Printing & Tel. Co., 140 F. 558; Monsen v. Crane [Minn.] 108 N. W. 933; Blust v. Pacific States Tel. Co. [Or.] 84 P. 847; Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Bell, 104 Va. 836, 52 S. E. 700. Evidence insufficient to show ladder furnished plaintiff was unsafe or unsuitable. McDonnell v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 548. Master who furnishes a ripsaw to be used in his work is bound to maintain it in a reasonably safe condition, but is not bound to use the latest improvements or only such as have been tested and found efficient in reducing danger. Dow Wire Works Co. v. Morgan, 29 Ky. L. R. 854, 96 S. W. 530. No particular make or type of machinery need be used. Imhoof v. Northwestern Lumber Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 650. Whether an appliance furnished by the master is reasonably safe is to be determined by its actual condition and not conclusively by comparing it with other appliances used by others for the same work. Monsen v. Crane [Minn.] 108 N. W. 933. What appliances are generally used, and the comparative safety of different appliances, may be shown, but it cannot be shown that appliances used by a particular employe are better and safer than those used by defendant. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Bell, 104 Va. 836, 52 S. E. 700.

27. Monsen v. Crane [Minn.] 108 N. W. 933. Held error to instruct jury that if a certain described condition existed in a machine the defendant was negligent as a matter of law if such condition could have been remedied by the adoption of devices or apparatus or improvements which were recognized as proper improvements on such machine. Id.

28. Question of negligence held one for jury: Existence of defect in stationary engine for jury where evidence showed hanging up of governor, and consequent action of engine, and a promise of a master mechanic to make repairs on being informed of a defect. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Hutchinson, 144 Ala. 221, 40 So. 114. Whether locomotive engine was defective in that it would start of itself. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Fisher [Ark.] 97 S. W. 279. Whether furnishing a hand car without a brake with which to haul ties was negligence. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Stroble [Ark.] 96 S. W. 116. Whether failure to box revolving wheel was negligence as to employe sitting in window who was caught in wheel. Michigan Headlining & Hoop Co. v. Wheeler [C. C. A.] 141 F. 61. Whether semaphore wires running along and across tracks were properly constructed for safety of employes. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Snedaker, 223 Ill. 395, 79 N. E. 169. Whether sheet metal cutting machine was out of order and whether employes knew of the defect. United States Wind Engine & Pump Co. v. Butcher, 223 Ill. 638, 79 N. E. 304. Whether master knew or should have known of defect in basket of washing machine which caused it to break. McGuinness v. Lehan [Mass.] 79 N. E. 265. Whether platform made of loose sleepers, and provided for workmen by defendant's superintendent, was reasonably safe. White v. Perry Co., 190 Mass. 99, 76 N. E. 512. Where treadle of machine broke, whether it was due to defect which defendant should have discovered was for jury. Hannan v. American Steel & Wire Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 749. Whether failure to guard wire cutting machine which scattered pieces of wire was negligence. Thein v. Brecht Butchers' Supply Co., 116 Mo. App. 1, 91 S. W. 953. Whether truck furnished to haul sheet iron over a rough floor was reasonably safe. Longree v. Jackes-Evans Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 478, 97 S. W. 272. Negligent construction of elevator for jury, where employe had foot caught between floor of elevator and strips nailed to beams of floor. Obermeyer v. Logeman Chair Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 59, 96 S. W. 673. It is not necessarily negligence to fail to wholly enclose an elevator. Id. The mere fact that a chain on which plaintiff and other workmen were pulling broke while being used for its intended purpose, and that it had previously broken and been repaired, was not alone sufficient to show conclusively that it was not reasonably safe and suitable. Standard Distilling & Distributing Co. v. Harris [Neb.] 106 N. W. 582. Whether failure to furnish employe who removed snow from elevated road a wooden instead of an iron shovel, or some other appliance which would protect him against a shock from the third rail, held for jury. Smith v. Manhattan R. Co., 112 App. Div. 202, 98 N. Y. S. 1. Whether wood-cutting machine, with knives revolving toward instead of from the operator, who was struck by a piece of wood thrown from the knives, was reasonably safe. Swarts v.

Wilson Mfg. Co., 100 N. Y. S. 1054. Whether failure to install a certain block system was negligence. Stewart v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 141 N. C. 253, 53 S. E. 877. Defendant not entitled to nonsuit where plaintiff claimed the guard of his machine was defective and there was evidence tending to show that the machine was of standard make without defects. Hicks v. Naomi Falls Mfg. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 411. Plaintiff was injured by falling from top of repair car, the grab iron having pulled out. There was evidence that the iron was fastened with screws that were too small and in rotten wood. McIsaac v. South Jersey Gas, Elec. & Traction Co. [N. J. Law] 64 A. 976. Instruction held to properly submit to jury the question of defendant's negligence as to a handhold on a box car which gave way when plaintiff took hold of it in descending from a car. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Box [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 998, 93 S. W. 134. Employe injured while operating defective laundry machine. Tuckett v. American Steam & Hand Laundry [Utah] 84 P. 500. Where gallows frame used to move heavy bridge girders, which fell and injured plaintiff, was reasonably safe in its construction. Farney v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Utah] 87 P. 440. Whether defendant was negligent in supplying a defective engine to engineer. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Cash's Adm'r, 105 Va. 570, 54 S. E. 472. Where a wedge in a girder, which was being hoisted to its place, fell through and struck plaintiff who was holding a stay rope, and it appeared that the wedge was too small and that it had been selected by the foreman, the case was for the jury. Sullivan v. Wood & Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 629. Proof of certain defects in machine held sufficient to take question of negligence to jury where machine acted abnormally and caused an injury. Montanye v. Northern Elec. Mfg. Co., 127 Wis. 22, 105 N. W. 1043.

Master held not negligent: Where derrick hook broke after two years' use, and there was no evidence of negligence in inspection and such hooks ordinarily lasted twelve or fifteen years, the master was not liable for the resulting injury. New Castle Bridge Co. v. Steele [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 208. Evidence insufficient to show that torch used to light fuses was defective, where injury was caused by premature explosion of blast in a mine. Breckenridge v. American Eagle Consol. Min. Co., 42 Wash. 279, 84 P. 858. Absence of cover over revolving cylinder with knives held not negligence (where employe was injured by a knife flying off), the purpose of the cover when used being to keep sawdust and shavings off the machine and not to protect employes. Moran v. Mulligan, 110 App. Div. 208, 97 N. Y. S. 7. Uee of perpendicular instead of horizontal handhold on car held not negligence. Worceeter v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 548, 91 S. W. 339. Evidence insufficient to show coal board of engine defective Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Hanson [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 415, 90 S. W. 1122. Evidence insufficient to show negligence in not providing a guard for a brass rolling machine. Anderson v. Chicago Brass Co., 127 Wis. 273, 106 N. W. 1077.

Master held negligent: Evidence held sufficient to show that company failed to supply proper reverse lever on street car and that such failure caused plaintiff's injury. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Sawusch, 119 Ill. App. 349. Fastenings by which machinery was secured to joists of ceiling held insufficient and unsafe. Stagg Co. v. Brightwell, 28 Ky. L. R. 1220, 92 S. W. 8. Master liable where chain which held tail board of wagon broke allowing tail board to fall and injure driver. Gomez v. Tracey, 115 La. 824, 40 So. 234. Where exposed shaft could have been boxed with little expense or trouble and thereby made safe, failure to box it was negligence as to a servant caught and injured by it. Foreman v. Eagle Rice Mill Co., 117 La. 227, 41 So. 555. Printing press started of its own accord injuring operator, and there was evidence that belt had been improperly repaired. Byrne v. Boston Woven Hose & Rubber Co., 191 Mass. 40, 77 N. E. 696. Evidence held to warrant finding that unguarded planer was unsafe and improper for use of inexperienced employe. Silva v. Davis, 191 Mass. 47, 77 N. E. 525. Where telephone exchange operator was injured by electric shock, evidence held to warrant finding that injury was caused by negligence of company. Cahill v. New England Tel. & T. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 821. Where chain used to lift trusses had not been annealed for six months, and a link in it became crystallized and broke, dropping a truss on plaintiff, such evidence warranted a finding of negligence on part of defendant. Ford v. Eastern Bridge & Structural Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 771. Evidence held to show that jointing machine was not properly adjusted nor in good condition when employe was put to work. Frazier v. Lloyd Mfg. Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 819. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that ironing mangle was defective in not having guard over rollers to protect employes while putting covers on them. Carlin v. Kennedy, 97 Minn. 141, 106 N. W. 340. Stone quarry employe was caught up by hoisting apparatus while attaching hooks to load of stone owing to fact that a cable became wound round the drum when it should not have been. Milton v. Biesanz Stone Co. [Minn.] 109 N. W. 999. Where hooks and hinge gate in pulley block were liable to become unfastened and loose in the course of the work in which it was used, it was not a reasonably safe appliance, even though it could have been made safe by tying or mousing. Costello v. Frankman, 97 Minn. 522, 107 N. W. 739. Evidence held sufficient to justify finding that death of brakeman was caused by his being struck by an improperly constructed overhead bridge. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Thomas, 87 Miss. 600. 40 So. 257. Steam shovel apparatus held defective and master liable for consequent injury. Southern R. Co. v. Wiley [Miss.] 41 So. 511. Negligence of employer in failing to keep blast furnace in proper repair held cause of injuries to servant from gas escaping from such furnace. Stenger v. Buffalo Union Furnace Co. [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 1068. Where a chain by which a heavy piece of iron was being raised suddenly broke, and it appeared defendant had failed to have the chain properly annealed at proper times so as to preserve its fibre and toughness, defendant was negligent as a matter of law. Isley v. Virginia Bridge & Iron Co., 141 N. C. 220, 53 S. E. 841. Failure of a manufacturing company which owned and operated a railroad twelve to fourteen miles long to

The master, having provided reasonably safe and suitable machines or appliances, is not liable for injuries resulting from their negligent use by an employe,[29] or from failure to use them,[30] or from their use for a purpose for which they were not intended,[31] or from the selection by an employe of such as are defective, others, reasonably safe, having been provided.[32]

equip its cars with automatic couplers held negligence. Hairston v. U. S. Leather Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 847. Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that boiler had not been made reasonably safe before test was applied which caused it to burst, injuring plaintiff. Green v. Washington Oil Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 877. Maintenance of exposed cogwheels near place of work of employes, when such cogs can be guarded readily at slight expense, constitutes negligence. Williams v. Ballard Lumber Co., 41 Wash. 338, 83 P. 323. Evidence sufficient to show that crane which fell and injured plaintiff was negligently secured. Sorenson v. Case Threshing Mach. Co. [Wis.] 109 N. W. 84. Where death of servant was caused by explosion of paper pulp digester, evidence held to support finding that explosion was caused by defective and leaky condition of digester, that superintendent had knowledge of the defect, and had failed to have it repaired. Horr v. Howard Co., 126 Wis. 160, 105 N. W. 668.

29. Ft. Wayne Iron & Steel Co. v. Parsell [Ind.] 79 N. E. 439. It is the masters' duty to use ordinary care to provide reasonably safe instrumentalities and a reasonably safe place to work. Having performed this duty, it becomes the duty of the servant to so use the instrumentalities and place that they will not become dangerous by reason of the use to which they are put. American Bridge Co. v. Seeds [C. C. A.] 144 F. 605. The master may assume that servants will perform this duty which rests upon them. Id. Winch which injured plaintiff held reasonably safe within the rule that an appliance is reasonably safe if it can be used by the servant in the course of his employment without danger to himself by exercising ordinary care. The Chico, 140 F. 568. Where hooks and marline furnished to support cable while it was being put up were safe and suitable, the employer was not liable for an injury caused by failure to put supports close enough together. Blust v. Pacific States Tel. Co. [Or.] 84 P. 847. Where master had provided proper means to support a feed pipe in an ore reduction plant, but during the work the lower part of it was pushed or dropped on plaintiff by a fellow-servant, the master was not liable. Colorado-Philadelphia Reduction Co. v. Fretz, 34 Colo. 472, 83 P. 631. Where block light system was shown to be reasonably safe when properly used, and an accident was caused by failure of a motorman to turn on the light, there could be no recovery on the ground of negligence of the company. Berg v. Seattle, etc., R. Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 34. If master furnishes a safe derrick he is not liable for injuries resulting from negligence of servants in moving or setting it up, this being a part of their ordinary duties. Fallon v. Mertz, 110 App. Div. 755, 97 N. Y. S. 417. Where it appeared that injury to employe while unloading timbers was caused by unsafe method employed, it was not error to refuse to submit question of master's negligence.

Bryan v. International, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 455, 90 S. W. 693. But the mere fact that an employe was injured because he was operating a defective machine in a manner different from that intended by the master will not alone, regardless of the employe's knowledge or diligence, defeat a recovery. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Skipper, 125 Ga. 368, 54 S. E. 110.

30. If shield for saw was provided and operator refused to use it and was injured, he could not recover. Jones v. Reynolds Tobacco Co., 141 N. C. 202, 53 S. E. 849. Where master lighted plant with electric lights and also furnished torches to be used when necessary, a failure of the employes to use the lights furnished did not render the master liable. Livingstone v. Saginaw Plate Glass Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 873, 109 N. W. 431. Where master provided sheathing for servant digging trench to use to prevent cave-ins or slides, and servant failed to use it, master was not liable for resulting injury. Rocco v. Gillespie Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 117. Where employes in repair shop had been accustomed to use "scrap" to block wheels on a track and a workman had been sent for something to use for this purpose, but others did not wait and wheels started and caused an injury, the superintendent was not negligent in failing to provide blocks. Duffy v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 77 N. E. 1031.

31. Employes must use their own judgment in the use of tools and appliances, and, if they use them for purposes for which they were not intended or subject them to a strain too great, the master is not liable for resulting injury. Standard Distilling & Distributing Co. v. Harris [Neb.] 106 N. W. 582. Master not liable where servant put too great a load on appliances connected with mail chutes used to load mail. Salisbury v. Press Pub. Co. [Neb.] 108 N. W. 136. Railing along viaduct was intended merely to indicate the edges of the platform, but employe sat on it, and it gave way. Master not liable. Kelley v. Lawrence, 195 Mo. 75, 92 S. W. 1158. Where injury was caused by sliver from hammer being used by another servant, the complaint alleging that the master had supplied an unsafe hammer, was defective in failing to state that it was being used by a servant acting in the line of his duty. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Gillen [Ind.] 76 N. E. 1058. Street car employe changing sign on car fell because of a band giving way. The band was not intended to support a man so engaged. Company not liable. Carroll v. Union R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 745.

32. Where servant selected a defective plank to be used in a gangway for his truck in unloading a car, and was injured by reason of such defect, the master was not liable. Fewell v. Southern R. Co., 105 Va. 1, 52 S. E. 689. If duty of selecting appliances furnished is delegated to servants, master is not liable for a negligent selection; he is liable

The master is not generally liable for injuries to a servant who is using appliances which the master neither owns nor controls.[33] But ownership or control of appliances is not always the test. The master owes the duty of ordinary care with respect to all appliances used in his business under his direction or authority, though such appliances are owned by others.[34] Thus, appliances owned by another but used by a master in his business may be such, in their character and use, as to impose the duty of inspection.[35] If the master is not in a position to inspect such appliances, he must refrain from ordering his servants to use them whereby their safety will be imperilled.[36] It is held that the only duty owed by railroad companies to employes with reference to foreign cars is the duty of reasonable inspection.[37] For injuries caused by defects in such cars not known to the company, and not discoverable by a reasonable inspection, the company will not be held liable.[38]

Temporary appliances; scaffolds.[39]—In regard to temporary structures, such as scaffolds, built and used by the employes in the course of their ordinary duties, the master fully performs his duty by supplying a sufficient quantity of suitable material,[40] and he is not liable for injuries caused by negligent construction or failure to use the suitable material supplied.[41] But if the master undertakes to furnish a completed structure, he owes the servant the same degree of care as in respect to other appliances.[42]

if he makes the selection himself. Whether master selected rope or delegated its selection held a question for the jury. Geldard v. Marshall, 47 Or. 271, 83 P. 867, 84 P. 803.

33. De Maries v. Jameson [Minn.] 108 N. W. 830.

34. De Maries v. Jameson [Minn.] 108 N. W. 830. The fact that a tool which caused an injury was not owned by defendant would not relieve it from liability if it knew that it was being used by employes and that it was defective. Mergenthaler-Horton Basket Co. v. Taylor, 28 Ky. L. R. 923, 90 S. W. 968. Duty of railroad company to have cross piece used to secure lumber on flat cars securely fastened was not affected by fact that it was put on by shipper of lumber. Wallace v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 646, 54 S. E. 399. That a car was furnished by a railroad company held not to relieve master who used it of ordinary care to see that it was reasonably safe. New Ohio Washed Coal Co. v. Hindman, 119 Ill. App. 287. Where lumber company used a logging road owned by a railroad company and furnished its employes a hand car to use in getting home, the lumber company owed such employes the duty of ordinary care to have the road reasonably safe for such purpose. Arkadelphia Lumber Co. v. Smith [Ark.] 95 S. W. 800. Where defendant employed a servant to work on top of oil tanks, it owed him the duty of ordinary care to see that the tanks were reasonably safe for the performance of his work, though they were furnished by another company. Yellow Pine Oil Co. v. Noble [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 750, 97 S. W. 332.

35. De Maries v. Jameson [Minn.] 108 N. W. 830.

36. Principles applied where servant was sent to deliver baled hay and was told to use a hoisting appliance owned by the customer, a rope of which broke, injuring the servant. De Maries v. Jameson [Minn.] 108 N. W. 830.

37. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Parish [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 334, 93 S. W. 682. That a car which had a defective coupler was owned by another company did not relieve defendant where the car was taken on a train at a place where defendant had a car inspector and repairer. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Snedaker, 122 Ill. App. 262.

38. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Parish [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 334, 93 S. W. 682.

39. See 6 C. L. 540.

40. If a servant be directed to build a scaffold, it is the master's duty to supply materials which are reasonably safe and suitable, and servant is not chargeable with contributory negligence unless he uses materials which he knows are unsafe. Madden v. Hughes, 185 N. Y. 466, 78 N. E. 167.

41. Where master furnished suitable lumber for a scaffold, he was not liable for the negligent selection of poor material by an employe. Forbes v. Dunnavant, 198 Mo. 193, 95 S. W. 934. Rev. St. 1899, § 6447, requiring scaffolds to be well and safely supported, and of sufficient width, and so secured as to insure safety of persons working on or about them, does not make the master liable for selection of poor material by a servant when proper material has been supplied. Id Where master furnished plenty of good rope to use in hanging skid from side of vessel and foreman selected a defective piece, which broke, master was not liable. Agresta v. Stevenson, 112 App. Div. 367, 98 N. Y. S. 594.

42. Where scaffold was built for workmen building an oil tank, and it fell, owing to its negligent and faulty construction, master was liable. National Refining Co. v. Willis [C. C. A.] 143 F. 107. Where telephone company furnished swinging platforms for use of employes in splicing cables, it was its duty to furnish ropes which were reasonably safe. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Metzger's Adm'r, 29 Ky. L. R. 1024, 97 S. W. 35. Evidence, in action for injuries to painter caused by breaking of extension ladder used by three painters as staging, that they had used the ladder before in the same way, was not enough to warrant a finding that the

In New York a statute requires a person who procures work to be done to provide a scaffold, or similar contrivance needed for such work, which is safe.[43]

Places for work.[44]—It is the duty of the master to use ordinary care to provide a place of work which is reasonably safe [45] considering the nature of the business and the character of the work [46] and the intended uses and purposes of the places provided.[47] Whether due care has been exercised by the master in this respect is same men had used the same ladder in this way, to defendant's knowledge. Jacobson v. Favor [Mass.] 78 N. E. 763.

43. Construction of New York statute: New York Labor Law, Laws 1897, p. 467, c. 415, § 18, provides that a person employing another to perform labor in the erection of a house shall not furnish or erect scaffolding which is unsafe and not so constructed as to give proper protection to the employe. Scaffolding built for erection of temporary partition in a store to protect goods from dust held not within the act. Sutherland v. Ammann, 112 App. Div. 332, 98 N. Y. S. 574. Scaffold act does not apply to platform of loose planks placed on horses and used by janitor to wash walls. Stokes v. New York Life Ins. Co., 112 App. Div. 77, 98 N. Y. S. 135. Freight elevator used by men to stand on while cutting a hole in a wall held a scaffold within the meaning of the act. Croce v. Buckley, 100 N. Y. S. 898. The fact that the elevator could be moved by anyone from any one of four floors rendered it defective. Id. An agreement between the owner of the building and a contractor that the elevator should be used by the workmen exclusively was not a sufficient discharge of the master's duty. Id. Where scaffold was built by employes under direction of one who was a superintendent (Laws 1902, p. 1748, c. 600, § 1, subd. 2), it was "furnished" by the master within the meaning of Laws 1897, p. 467, c. 415, § 18. Berthelson v. Gabler, 111 App. Div. 142, 97 N. Y. S. 421. Duty of master to furnish a safe scaffold is a continuing one. Hence, where a scaffold was originally safe, but was weakened by the removal of part of a building which helped support it, this being done under direction of a superintendent, the master was liable for a resulting injury. Id. Owner of premises not liable where servant of an independent contractor made a scaffold with materials supplied by the owner, and used the scaffold after the owner had warned him that it was unsafe. Antes v. Watkins, 112 App. Div. 860, 98 N. Y. S. 519. Scaffold held "safe," though a plank sagged on engine when a wheel barrow load of cement was placed on it. Cunningham v. Peirce, 112 App. Div. 65, 98 N. Y. S. 60. The mere fact that one end of a scaffold descended was no evidence of its defectiveness where it was a swinging scaffold and it was part of the employe's duties to adjust by the ropes which sustained it. Andrews v. Reiners, 112 App. Div. 378, 98 N. Y. S. 658. Instruction on duty to provide safe scaffold held not misleading or erroneous. Madden v. Hughes, 185 N. Y. 466, 78 N. E. 167.

44. See 6 C. L. 541.

45. Bates-Rogers Const. Co. v. Dunn, 29 Ky. L. R. 428, 93 S. W. 1032; Low Moor Iron Co. v. La Bianca's Adm'r [Va.] 55 S. E. 532. It is not the rule that master must furnish "a safe place." Bionski v. American Enameled Brick & Tile Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 909. Master is not an insurer of the safety of the place of work, but need only make and keep it reasonably safe. Herren v. Tuscaloosa Waterworks Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 55; Cudahy Packing Co. v. Wesolowski [Neb.] 106 N. W. 1007. The law requires the master to furnish the servant a reasonably safe place to work, that is, a place where he can, with the exercise of ordinary care, perform his work with safety, subject only to such risks as are necessary and incidental to the employment. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460. The duty of the master to provide a safe place has reference to latent as well as patent dangers and to dangers which threaten from outside sources as well as those originating within the place. Williams v. Sleepy Hollow Min. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 337. Where a mine owner was told that an adjoining mine was flooded, it was his duty to exercise reasonable care to prevent the water breaking through into his mine, and to investigate the walls intervening between drifts of the two mines. Id. An instruction that it is a master's duty to furnish a reasonably safe place to work, and to use the reasonable care and diligence which an ordinarily careful and prudent person would use under the circumstances, was not erroneous as warranting the inference that the master insures the absolute safety of the place. Martin v. Des Moines Edison Light Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 359.

46. The test generally is, not whether this or that kind of means have been adopted, but whether, with the method of construction, kind of device, or appliance, employed, the place, under all the circumstances of the case, is reasonably safe for a performance of the duties of the employment. Grand Trunk Western R. Co. v. Melrose [Ind.] 78 N. E. 190. Railroad company could not be held negligent for failing to keep in repair a safety device to keep cars on a side track, if other suitable means were employed for that purpose. Id. Place of work need only be "safe" according to the usage, custom, and risk of the business. Welch v. Carlucci Stone Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 392. Where servant in brick factory was struck by car, which transported brick around the factory, held, that the master had a right to build the track with a grade such as was necessary or convenient for the work, and that he did so did not constitute negligence. Bionski v. American Enameled Brick & Tile Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 909. Where servant was employed to cut weeds on slanting right of way, an instruction warranting recovery for negligence as to the place of work was error. Post v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 233. Master was not relieved from the duty of ordinary care to maintain a safe place though employes in electric power plant were engaged in making alterations in a switchboard. Martin v. Des Moines Edison Light Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 359.

47. If a passing track at a station is reasonably safe for the intended purpose, usually a question of fact.[48] The "place of work," within the meaning of the rule being discussed, means not only the place where servants are directed or expected proof that it is not safe for trains passing over it at a high rate of speed does not alone show negligence. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Bishard [C. C. A.] 147 F. 496. Where trestle was used only for logging trains, evidence as to its safety for use of passenger trains was irrelevant. Bundy v. Sierra Lumber Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 622. Master bound only to use ordinary care to make and keep floor over which trucks of sheet iron were hauled reasonably safe for that purpose. Longree v. Jackes-Evans Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 478, 97 S. W. 272. Instruction as to duty of employer with respect to trestle used for logging trains held proper. Bundy v. Sierra Lumber Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 622. Whether maintenance of an insecure balustrade, intended only to warn persons of an opening, was negligence would depend on whether it suggested that its intended purpose was to support persons. Bennett v. Himmelberger, 117 Mo. App. 58, 93 S. W. 823.

Application of rule to roadbed, right of way, and premises of railroad companies: Railroad company owes employes duty of ordinary care to give reasonably safe track and run trains with some care. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Doughty, 77 Ark. 1, 91 S. W. 768. Declaration held to state a cause of action for injury to railroad employe by reason of defective construction of switch. Mississippi Cent. R. Co. v. Hardy [Miss.] 41 So. 505. The mere fact that a fire was liable to be communicated to trestle through a pile of combustible material, that such result was within the range of possibility, would not be proof of negligence in allowing the material to accumulate. Root v. Kansas City Southern R. Co., 195 Mo. 348, 92 S. W. 621. Railroad company must see that track on which employes are required to work is reasonably safe and maintained in that condition, but the duty to repair does not extend to tracks which it has ceased to use. McAuley v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 111 App. Div. 117, 97 N. Y. S. 631. Railroad company is bound to provide suitable and safe place of work for employes, and a bridge is a place within the meaning of this rule, and a fireman injured by the giving way of a bridge which was defective may recover. McCabe & Steen Const. Co. v. Wilson [Okl.] 87 P. 320. Where a defect in a roadbed arises from the character of the material used, the company must show that it used ordinary care in the construction and that the defect which arose could not have been discovered and avoided by the use of ordinary care. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Roberts [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 671, 91 S. W. 375. Railroad company owes employes duty of ordinary care in the original construction of the track and roadbed to make them reasonably safe, and where a defect in construction is charged, that it was not discoverable by ordinary care is no defense. Id. Where rule required cars on sidings to be coupled, the duty to see that it was complied with, so as to make the tops of the cars a safe place of work for brakemen, was that of the master, and was nondelegable. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Pape [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 32, 97 S. W. 534. Instructions as to master's duty to use ordinary care to keep tracks and roadbed in reasonably safe condition approved. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 376, 90 S. W. 926.

48. Whether master was negligent as to providing place of work held for jury: Whether the master is guilty of negligence in providing a safe place to work is usually a question of fact for the jury. Central Granaries Co. v. Ault [Neb.] 106 N. W. 418. Omission to place whipping straps on a low bridge under which defendant's trains passed. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Alexander, 144 Ala. 257, 40 So. 424. Track employe killed by train. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Jackson [Ark.] 93 S. W. 746. Whether trestle through which logging train went was reasonably safe in the manner of construction. Bowen v. Sierra Lumber Co. [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1010. Where locomotive fireman was killed by being struck by a mail crane located nearer the track than was necessary, whether the company was negligent in placing the crane where it was. Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Burchard [Colo.] 86 P. 749. Where water from an adjoining flooded mine broke through into defendant's mine and killed an employe, the defendant having been informed of the flooded condition of the nearby mine. Williams v. Sleepy Hollow Min. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 337. Whether master was negligent in furnishing a place of work, for the jury, where a piece of lumber fell through a hole in a platform upon plaintiff, a lumber inspector, working below. Ingram v. Hilton & Doge Lumber Co., 125 Ga. 658, 54 S. E. 648. Whether place was unsafe by reason of stacks of lumber which fell, and whether master knew it. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Zakzewski, 220 Ill. 522, 77 N. E. 147. Miner injured by fall of part of roof. Cook v. Smith-Lome Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 798. Employe at work in a well was injured by fall of timber placed at top to support machinery. Martin v. South Covington & C. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 148, 92 S. W. 571. Whether failure to build a platform over coal shovelers wide enough to protect them from falling coal and parts of machinery was negligence. Buffalo Creek Coal Min. Co. v. Hodges [Ky.] 98 S. W. 274. Employe engaged in grading and digging injured by caving of bank of earth. Chiappini v. Fitzgerald, 191 Mass. 598, 77 N. E. 1030. Whether defendant was negligent in not guarding a trench in which plaintiff was at work and where he was injured by a horse falling into it. Johnson v. St. Paul Gas Light Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 816. Brakeman killed by reason of unblocked switches. McManus v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 152, 94 S. W. 743. Injury to switchman caused by unblocked switch. Lee v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 195 Mo. 490, 92 S. W. 614. Whether railroad company was negligent in allowing combustible material to accumulate near a trestle, through which a fire was communicated to the trestle. Root v. Kansas City Southern R. Co., 195 Mo. 348, 92 S. W. 621. Building, being torn down under supervision of a superior, fell on plaintiff. Bloomfield v. Worster Const. Co., 118 Mo. App. 254, 94 S. W. 304. Employe at work in sewer trench injured by fall of

to perform their labors[49] but also such portions of the master's premises as are used by the employes for necessary purposes of their own, with the consent or bulkhead. Kielty v. Buehler-Cooney Const. Co. [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 998. Whether maintenance of a water crane, to supply water to passenger trains, so near the track as to be eighteen and one-half to twenty-three and one-half inches from the sides of freight cars, held a question for jury in action for death of brakeman, struck by the crane. Charlton v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 529. City employe fell down unguarded shaft in police station. Wilcox v. Rochester, 99 N. Y. S. 1020. Employe while going to dark place to oil machinery was caught on set screw of revolving shaft, it appearing that another employe had been injured there. Walker v. Newton Falls Paper Co., 111 App. Div. 19, 97 N. Y. S. 521. Negligence in furnishing unsafe place for jury where superintendent directed employes to attach a valve on a six-inch gas main while gas was turned on without providing a rubber bag as usual to prevent the escape of gas. Cadigan v. Glens Falls Gas & Elec. Light Co., 112 App. Div. 751, 98 N. Y. S. 954. Where employe was drawn into the leg of a grain elevator by grain which moved from a pile near it, whether the master was negligent in failing to provide means to prevent such an accident, was for the jury. Lynch v. American Linseed Co., 113 App. Div. 502, 99 N. Y. S. 260. Whether railroad company was negligent in maintaining switch rod too close to track. Kinney v. Rutland R. Co., 99 N. Y. S. 800. Plaintiff was moving ice on runway and slipped, falling on a rail which broke, allowing him to fall to the ground. The question of negligence depended upon what the rail was for, and this question was for the jury. Smith v. Mountain Ice Co. [N. J. Law] 64 A. 956. Negligence of railroad company for jury where brakeman was struck by telegraph pole while alighting from freight car to turn a switch, pole being only fifteen inches from track. Kaylor v. Cornwall R. Co. [Pa.] 65 A. 65. Whether defendant ought to have known of dangerous condition of rock in quarry. Black's Adm'r v. Virginia Portland Cement Co. [Va.] 55 S. E. 587. Hole in floor of sawmill near planer was concealed by shavings and sawdust and employe was set to work at planer without any warning as to the existence of the hole, and was injured by stepping into the hole. Held master was not free from negligence as a matter of law. Baker v. Duwamish Mill Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 167.

Master held negligent: Negligence in failing to provide handguards for mangle held for jury on conflicting evidence as to whether such guards were customary. Greenan v. Eggeling, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 253. Heavy door detached from its fastenings left unsecured by direction of foreman three days before accident. Delaney v. Penn Steel Casting & Mach. Co., 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 387. Evidence held for jury as to whether spur track was improperly constructed because so overhung by tramway that brakes could not be set until train was dangerously near end of spur. Gila Valley, etc., R. Co. v. Lyon, 27 S. Ct. 145. If a train dispatcher, having knowledge that his orders which would have averted collision have been disobeyed, fails to issue other possible orders to avert the same, there is a failure to furnish safe places and appliances. Santa Fe Pac. R. Co. v. Holmes, 202 U. S. 438, 50 Law Ed. 1094. Where dispatcher knew that train had passed a certain station ahead of time and failed to issue orders to hold it at the next station, the company is liable for a collision caused by the train being ahead of time. Id. Negligence held for jury where machinery was started during noon hour while plaintiff was repairing belt. Wessel v. Jones & Laughlin Steel Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 332. Defects in track held cause of derailment resulting in switchman's death. Wallis v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 77 Ark. 556, 95 S. W. 446. Evidence sufficient in action for death of employe caused by excessive current in electric light wire to show that defendant had notice of the dangerous condition a sufficient length of time before the accident to have prevented such excessive current on its wires inside the building. Goddard v. Enzler, 222 Ill. 462, 78 N. E. 805. Employe, injured by coming in contact with obstruction in street, while exercising due care, has cause of action against company for placing obstruction where it was. South Side El. R. Co. & Cosmopolitan Elec. Co. v. Nesvig, 114 Ill. App. 355. Master liable where plank in platform on which plaintiff was at work broke. Godfrey v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 117 La. 1094, 42 So. 571. Defendant held negligent in not keeping power turned off third rail at night when employes were engaged in repairing tracks. Keeley v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 490. Where employe was killed by electric shock from an iron post in an electric light plant, evidence held sufficient to show negligence in method used to ground wires. Mehan v. Lowell Elec. Light Corp. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 385. Plaintiff was struck by a falling pile of timber and knocked to a lower floor of the building in which he worked. Robertson v. Fuller Const. Co., 115 Mo. App. 456, 92 S. W. 130. Evidence sufficient to show negligence of defendant in not having runways between joists where plaintiff fell between joists. Robertson v. Hammond Packing Co., 115 Mo. App. 520, 91 S. W. 161. Negligence to leave hole in floor over which employes passed in course of their work. Burke v. Manhattan R. Co., 109 App. Div. 722, 96 N. Y. S. 516. Domestic servant was injured by falling into depression in pathway leading to house, having entered at night through an unfastened gate. Master held negligent in not fastening gate or giving warning. Battle v. Robinson, 27 R. I. 588, 65 A. 273.

Master held not negligent: Workman struck by iron which fell from balcony above him. Barsalou v. Pierce, 109 App. Div. 506, 96 N. Y. S. 538. Failure to gravel switchyard held not negligence as to switchman injured when attempting to board a moving train. Worcester v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 548, 91 S. W. 339. "Testing room" of firearm manufacturer, which was low, had a bulkhead at one end to fire into, and was some distance from other buildings, held reasonably safe. Servant who was injured while looking in at window could not recover. Church v. Winchester Repeating Arms Co., 73 Conn. 720, 53 A. 510.

49. If servant was called through a pass-acquiescence of the master.[50] An employer is not liable for injuries to an employe caused by a defect in a place of work owned and controlled by a third person,[51] but if the place of work is owned by or under the control of the master, the duty to use ordinary care to keep it reasonably safe is personal and nondelegable.[52]

The rule that it is the master's duty to use ordinary care to provide a reasonably safe place does not apply where the very nature of the work itself renders it dangerous,[53] as where a dangerous place is being made safe,[54] nor where the danger is transitory or temporary, and arises during the progress of the work,[55] nor where ageway in the course of his duties, or if he used it as a result of failure of the master to instruct him, it was the master's duty to make it a reasonably safe place, or to warn the servant of the dangers. Barrett v. Banner Shingle Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 919. A platform built on piling at the edge of a lake, upon which workmen are directed to carry on the work of unloading logging cars, is an appliance or place within the rule requiring a master to furnish a reasonably safe place for his employes to carry on their work. Bailey v. Swallow [Minn.] 107 N. W. 727. Defendant railway company allowed another company to build a bridge over its tracks, and continued to run trains under the bridge. A defect in the bridge would be a defect in defendant's "ways." Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Alexander, 144 Ala. 257, 40 So. 424.

50. Servant had right to use a bridge over a trench on defendant's premises when going for a drink of water regardless of who furnished the water, and it was master's duty to keep bridge reasonably safe. Birmingham Rolling Mill Co. v. Rockhold, 143 Ala. 115, 42 So. 96. Employes of boiler room customarily went into a yard adjoining to wash and eat their lunches, and the custom was of long standing and known to the master. There was a tub of water and a tank of boiling water. The tank burst and an employe was killed while washing out his clothes in the tub. Held, the duty of the master extended to the place where the accident occurred, and the employe was entitled to protection at the time. Muller v. Oakes Mfg. Co., 99 N. Y. S. 923.

51. Deceased was required to go to premises of trolley company to repair cars, defendant having no control over such premises. Long v. Stephenson Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 910. City not liable for injury to an employe on premises not under its control. Dalton v. Towanda Borough [Pa.] 64 A. 547. Duty to provide safe place held not to extend to stairway leading to bridge across which tool boy must go in course of his errands. Hence, no liability for injury to boy by slipping on stairs on premises owned by third party. American Bridge Co. v. Bainum [C. C. A.] 146 F. 367. Conductor of logging train, employed by lumber company, was injured by reason of a defective bridge giving way. The roadway and bridge belonged to a railway company, which allowed the lumber company to use it, and the latter had no control or supervision over the track or bridge or knowledge of its condition. The lumber company was held not liable. Hamilton v. Louisiana, etc., R. Co., 117 La. 243, 41 So. 560.

52. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Zakzemski, 121 Ill. App. 26. Duty of mine operator to provide reasonably safe place of work cannot be delegated. Smith v. Dayton Coal & Iron Co., 115 Tenn. 543, 92 S. W. 62. Where defendant knew of a defect in its premises which caused an injury, the fact that by a contract with another the latter was under the duty of keeping the place in repair would not relieve defendant from liability. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Shivers [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 807, 92 S. W. 46.

53. As where linemen are employed to move wires from old to new poles and must climb the old poles to do so. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Holtby, 29 Ky. L. R. 523, 93 S. W. 652. Where employe was engaged in excavating under a rock, which fell and injured him, master could not be held liable on theory that he failed to provide a safe place to work. Welch v. Carlucci Stone Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 392.

54. Where mine employes were sent into a room to make it safe, the rule requiring the employer to furnish a reasonably safe place to work did not apply. Kellyville Coal Co. v. Bruzas, 223 Ill. 595, 79 N. E. 309. Where evidence was conflicting as to whether a servant when killed was engaged in making a dangerous place in a mine safe, and plaintiff's evidence tended to show that the dangers of the place were not obvious, it was proper to charge that the doctrine of the master's duty as to the place of work applied to the case made by plaintiff. Cripple Creek Min. Co. v. Brabant [Colo.] 87 P. 794.

55. Bloomfield v. Worster Const. Co., 118 Mo. App. 254, 94 S. W. 304. Rule requiring master to use ordinary care to provide a safe place does not apply where the work produces constant changes and gives rise to temporary dangers, and work could not be done without making the place somewhat dangerous. Utica Hydraulic Cement Co. v. Whalen, Adm'x, 117 Ill. App. 23. Rule as to providing a safe place held not to apply where employe was injured by the fall of a pile of lumber while engaged in constructing a building, and carrying lumber to it. Hardesty v. Largey Lumber Co. [Mont.] 86 P. 29. Where concrete mixer was injured by stepping on a nail in a board thrown down by other employes in course of clearing up rubbish, the danger was held a transitory one, not arising from the master's plan or method, and master was not liable. Armour & Co. v. Dumas [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 47, 95 S. W. 710. The safe place rule does not apply where the danger is temporary and arises from the progress of the work and is known to the servant. But this exception was held not applicable where a pile of lumber became dangerous and fell upon an employe who was ordered to get a piece of lumber from it. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460.

the injured servant was engaged at the time of his injury in making a place of work,[56] nor where the conditions are constantly changing and the safety of the servant depends upon the exercise of due care by himself.[57] In these cases the dangers are incidental to the work and are assumed risks.[58] But even in such cases if the master has a representative present directing the work, and taking precautions for the servant's safety, the law requires the exercise of ordinary care to take such precautions as will make the place reasonably safe, considering the conditions and nature of the work.[59] There can be no recovery for failure of the master to maintain the place of work in a reasonably safe condition when that duty devolved on the injured employe,[60] or when the place was made unsafe by the negligence of a fellow-servant.[61]

Inspection, repairs, knowledge of defects.[62]—The master's duty is not fully performed by providing reasonably safe tools and appliances and a reasonably safe place of work; he must use ordinary care to maintain them in such condition,[63] and the duty of maintenance necessarily includes that of reasonable inspection[64] and

56. Rule as to furnishing safe place not to apply where miner was injured while assisting in making a chamber in a mine. Friel v. Kimberly-Montana Gold Min. Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 734. Where servant is making his own place of work which constantly changes, as where he is digging a trench, the master performs his whole duty by providing means which servant may use to keep the place safe, as by keeping sheathing on hand to be used to prevent slides or cave-ins. Rocco v. Gillespie Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 117. A gallery was being built on a vertical cylindrical boiler for the use of firemen and engineers, and a servant was on it constructing a hand rail. Held, the gallery was not a place of work furnished by the master but was part of the structure then being built, and for an injury caused by defective work of another employe the master was not responsible. McDonough v. Clonbrock Steam Boiler Co., 113 App. Div. 432, 99 N. Y. S. 263.

57. Bloomfield v. Worster Const. Co., 118 Mo. App. 254, 94 S. W. 304. Rule as to safe place inapplicable to a sandpile from which plaintiff was taking and wheeling sand, since the conditions constantly changed. Livingstone v. Saginaw Plate Glass Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 873, 109 N. W. 431. Rule as to supplying a safe place has a very limited application where a building is being torn down. Walaszewski v. Schoknecht, 127 Wis. 376, 106 N. W. 1070. Whether conditions in mine were constantly changing, and were being made safe by employes, so that rule as to master's duty with reference to the place of work did not apply, held for the jury. Bird v. Utica Gold Min. Co., 2 Cal. App. 674, 84 P. 256.

58. Bloomfield v. Worster Const. Co., 118 Mo. App. 254, 94 S. W. 304.

59. Rule applied where building was being torn down, and foreman caused certain joists to be left to support the building, and the building fell. Bloomfield v. Worster Const. Co., 118 Mo. App. 254, 94 S. W. 304. Foreman arranged place of work so that it became dangerous and directed servant to work there without warning him. Held, master liable. Brown v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 142 F. 911. The rule that the master is under no duty to provide a safe place, when the very nature of the work renders it unsafe, does not relieve the master from liability for a false assurance of safety, by a mine superintendent in regard to a blast which had not been discharged. Allen v. Bell, 32 Mont. 69, 79 P. 582.

60. Where the character of the place of work changes with the progress of the work, it is the duty of the employe to see that it is kept reasonably safe. American Bridge Co. v. Leeds [C. C. A.] 144 F. 605. Where the work consists in making a reasonably safe place dangerous, or an obviously dangerous place safe, the duty to care for the safety of the place is the servant's, not the master's. Id. Where miner stood in main slope of a mine while working a room off from it, the part of the slope where he stood was his place of work, and he was required to keep it free from loose rock and debris, and master was not liable for injuries resulting from his failure to do so. Rolla v. McAlester Coal Min. Co. [Ind. T.] 98 S. W. 141.

61. Where place was safe but was made unsafe by the negligent act of a fellow-servant, the master was not liable. Brust v. Perkins Co., 113 App. Div. 633, 99 N. Y. S. 212.

62. See 6 C. L. 544.

63. Mergenthaler-Horton Basket Co. v. Taylor, 28 Ky. L. R. 923, 90 S. W. 968. When a reasonably safe place has been furnished by the master, it becomes his duty to use ordinary care to maintain it in such condition. Howard v. Peldenville Lumber Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 48. It is not only the duty of the master to exercise ordinary care and diligence to provide a reasonably safe place in which the servant is to work, but to use ordinary care and diligence to keep it safe. Jacksonville Elec. Co. v. Sloan [Fla.] 42 So. 516. Duty to furnish safe scaffold is continuing one; finding of negligence supported where evidence showed that scaffold originally safe, was weakened by an act of a vice-president. Berthelson v. Gabler, 111 App. Div. 142, 97 N. Y. S. 421. Instructions construed and held to state properly the railroad company's duty to use ordinary care to furnish a reasonably safe place of work for its employes and to maintain it in such condition by reasonable inspection. Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Warring [Colo.] 86 P. 305.

64. Duty to furnish reasonably safe appliances includes duty of reasonable inspection, and this duty cannot be delegated.

repair.[65] Whether due care in this respect has been used in a given instance is ordinarily a question of fact [66] to be determined by reference to the nature of the work, the character of the place and appliances, and the use to which they are put.[67] A system of inspection such as is customarily used in prudently managed businesses of the same kind is sufficient.[68] The duty of inspection is personal and nondelegable.[69]

Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Sawusch, 119 Ill. App. 349. A rule requiring trainmen to inspect cars and appliances does not relieve a company from liability for failure to discover by proper inspection a defect which an inspection by an employe, with the means at his command, would not have disclosed. Martin v. Wabash R. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 650. Grab iron on box car was mashed flat against the car at the time the car was placed in a train and a slight inspection would have disclosed its condition. There was no evidence that an inspection had been made. Held jury was warranted in inferring that no inspection had been made. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Johnson [Kan.] 86 P. 156. Where declaration alleges failure to maintain quarry in a reasonably safe condition, plaintiff may show failure to make proper inspection prior to accident. Black's Adm'r v. Virginia Portland Cement Co. [Va.] 55 S. E. 587. Machine became dangerous from pin gradually working out. Weller v. Aberfoyle Mfg. Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 102.

65. Montanye v. Northern Elec. Mfg. Co., 127 Wis. 22, 105 N. W. 1043. Master must use reasonable care to discover and repair defects. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Andrews [Ark.] 96 S. W. 183. The employer is under legal obligation to furnish safe appliances to his workmen, and by proper inspection and repair to keep them in safe condition. Gomez v. Tracey, 115 La. 824, 40 So. 234. Telephone company is under duty of ordinary care not only to furnish reasonably safe apparatus but also to keep it in a state of repair so that it can be used with safety. Cahill v. New England Tel. & T. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 821.

66. Whether weak condition of bridge over trench should have been discovered and remedied by master. Birmingham Rolling Mill Co. v. Rockhold, 143 Ala. 115, 42 So. 96. Brakeman killed while coupling cars, having stepped down on bumper of one of them. Whether company owed him duty of inspecting bumper to see that it was reaeonably safe for such purpose held a question for jury. Lyle v. Alabama, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 145 F. 611. Where lineman received a shock from two service wire ends left sticking out, uninsulated, whether it was the duty of the master to insulate such wires, or the duty of the lineman to make an inspection for himself and guard against the danger, held for jury. New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. v. Rombold [Neb.] 106 N. W. 213. Conductor was injured by tripping over semaphore wires while going between cars to uncouple them, one having a defective coupler. This car had been placed in the train at night at a station where the company had a car inspector. Question of negligence in inspection was for jury. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Snedaker, 223 Ill. 395, 79 N. E. 169. Fireman was injured in a wreck caused by a washout and it appeared that another train had passed the place before without the washout being discovered. The question of negligence in the matter of inspection was held, nevertheless, for the jury. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Garrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 616, 98 S. W. 932. Where employe was killed by reason of his train striking a stone that had rolled on the track, the company's negligence was for the jury where the last inspection had been at 5:30 p. m. and the accident was at 11:30 p. m. the same day. Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Warring [Colo.] 86 P. 305. Whether railroad company was negligent in failing to discover by inspection that a cross piece nailed on stanchions of a flat car to secure a load of lumber was reasonably secure for use of brakemen to support them while adjusting couplers, such use being customary. Wallace v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 646, 54 S. E. 399.

67. Evidence held sufficient to ehow negligence in inspection of handhold on box cars, where wood appeared to be rotten, allowing screws to pull out. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Box [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 998, 93 S. W. 134. Where defect in floor had existed sometime before it caused the injury complained of, whether the master was negligent in failing to discover and repair it, held for jury. Kremer v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 247, 96 S. W. 726. Where it appeared that an inspection of a trestle had been made two weeks before it gave way under a logging train, evidence was admissible to ehow that the method of inspection used, sounding, was not proper, and that timbers should have been bored into. Bowen v. Sierra Lumber Co. [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1010.

68. Where bursting of pulley was very unusual, held an inspection every three months by the master was sufficient to relieve him from liability. Clark v. Goldie [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 759, 109 N. W. 1044. Inspection and tests of air hose such as are customarily used by other prudently managed railway companies are sufficient; it is not necessary to apply tests not ordinarily used. Instructions as to inspection approved. Shandrew v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 320. An inspection of railroad cars such as is ordinarily made by well regulated and prudently conducted railroads, and which is the only kind that can be made without interfering with the operation of the road, is sufficient. Shankweiler v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 195. Where brake rod was out of sight, so that a visual inspection would not disclose a defect in it, the mere fact that it was not disclosed was not proof of negligence in inspecting. Id.

69. Where railway company had regular inspectors who inspected a track, a failure by them to do their duty properly and to discover a defective rail would make the master liable, even though the defect was

A master is not liable for injuries resulting from defects of which he had no notice,[70] and which ordinary care and a reasonable inspection would not have disclosed,[71] but the master is chargeable with notice of defects which ordinary care on his part would have disclosed,[72] and in such case the absence of actual notice not observable by other employes in the course of their duty exercising ordinary care. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Hagan [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 325, 93 S. W. 1014. That a mine operator has employed a licensed mine examiner does not relieve the operator from liability if the examiner fails to make a proper examination and mark dangerous places as required by the statute. Kellyville Coal Co. v. Strine, 117 Ill. App. 115.

70. Master held not to have had actual notice of defect in pulley which caused it to break. Clark v. Goldie [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 759, 109 N. W. 1044.

71. If defect in hand car was not discoverable by use of ordinary care by section master, the master would not be liable for an injury caused by it to the section master. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Byland, 50 Fla. 190, 40 So. 24. In action for injuries to operator of machine, instructions held not to have omitted element that defendant would be liable if it knew or ought to have known of the defect alleged. Cotton v. Highland Park Mfg. Co., 142 N. C. 528, 55 S. E. 358. No negligence of defendant shown where railroad employe was injured by breaking of rotten round in wooden ladder on water tank, the defect not being visible, and the customary inspection of it having been made six months before. Nichols v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 623, 108 N. W. 1016. Where a reasonable inspection would have disclosed no defect in an emery wheel which broke, the master was not liable for the resulting injury. Saxe v. Walworth Mfg. Co., 191 Mass. 338, 77 N. E. 883. The master is not liable where he neither created the danger nor in the exercise of ordinary care has had knowledge or means of knowledge of the danger. Brennan v. Elec. Installation Co., 120 Ill. App. 461. Where master has used utmost diligence to procure reasonably save machinery, and it contains a latent defect not discoverable by the use of ordinary care, he is relieved from liability. Osner v. Zadek, 120 Ill. App. 444. Where a cable splicer was sent to repair cable, and upon climbing a pole took hold of a guy wire which was charged by a light wire which sagged against it, and was injured in a fall caused thereby, held the defect was not one discoverable by ordinary inspection, and, the construction being of the usual type, defendant was not negligent. Law v. Central Dist. Printing & Tel. Co., 140 F. 558. Where hand bar of hand car broke in the iron socket, thereby causing an employe upon the car to fall and sustain injury, it was held not negligence in the company to fail to discover the hidden defect in the bar by inspection. Alves v. New York, etc., R. Co., 27 R. I. 581, 65 A. 261. Evidence of the abnormal action of a machine is not alone sufficient to support an inference of negligence causing an injury, where there is not also proof of defects discoverable by the master by the use of ordinary care. Montanye v. Northern Elec. Mfg. Co., 127 Wis. 22, 105 N. W. 1043. Company liable for death of engineer caused by rotten tie only if the rotten tie could have been discovered by the use of ordinary care. Hach v. St. Louis, etc., R Co., 117 Mo. App. 11, 93 S. W. 825. Where fireman was injured in a wreck caused by a washout, an instruction relieving the master from liability if the washout was caused by an unprecedented rainfall and could not reasonably have been anticipated, or if the master had not been negligent in failing to discover and remedy the defect, was not erroneous. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Garrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 616, 98 S. W. 932. Defendant used ordinary care in selecting spurs furnished to lumbermen to climb trees, and its blacksmith used care and skill in reconstructing them. Defendant held not liable for a defect in them not discoverable by the use of ordinary care. Bennett v. Himmelberger-Harrison Lumber Co., 116 Mo. App. 699, 94 S. W. 808. Where third round of ladder broke, injuring plaintiff, evidence held insufficient to show that master knew or ought to have known of defect, though it appeared that two bottom rounds were badly worn. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Andrews [Ark.] 96 S. W. 183. The master's duty is a continuous one, and he is required to use ordinary care to seek out latent and hidden defects, though he is not liable for latent defects not discoverable by the use of such care. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460.

72. Fall of engineer held to have been proximately caused by a defect in a step which a reasonable inspection by the master would have disclosed. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Stevens [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 977, 94 S. W. 395. Where defective nut and bolt used to fasten hand-hold were originally defective, the fact that the defects were concealed by paint would constitute no defense to the master. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 150, 93 S W. 184. Master is liable for injuries caused by defects in appliances or place of work if he knew or in the exercise of ordinary care ought to have known of the existence of such defects. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Adams, 28 Ky. L. R. 1265, 91 S. W. 739. Railroad company not chargeable with knowledge of defect in water gauge on locomotive when neither engineer nor engine inspector reported any defect. Healy v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 111 App. Div. 618, 97 N. Y. S. 801. Master is chargeable with knowledge that place of work is unsafe if the conditions are such that the exercise of ordinary care would have disclosed the danger. Black's Adm'r v. Virginia Portland Cement Co. [Va.] 55 S. E. 587. Where a defective rail was used in constructing a logging railroad, a lumber company which used it was chargeable with notice of the defect and was liable for injuries caused by a derailment of a hand car resulting from such defect. Arkadelphia Lumber Co. v. Smith [Ark.] 95 S. W. 800. Instruction holding master liable for injury caused by defective step on engine if it "could have known of its exist-will not relieve him from liability.[73] But neither actual nor implied notice will render the master liable unless he has had a reasonable time thereafter to warn the servant or make repairs.[74] In the case of simple and common tools, no liability rests on the master for the ordinary perils resulting from their use, nor for those latent and usual defects or weaknesses which by reason of the common, usual character of the appliance are presumed to be known to all men alike.[75] This exemption from liability is based upon the condition that the defect and peril are such that no superiority of knowledge in the master over the employe exists or can be ence by the exercise of ordinary care," approved. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Stevens [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 977, 94 S. W. 395. Evidence held sufficient to warrant finding that automatic couplers were defective and would not couple and that master could have discovered defect by simple inspection. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Pape [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 32, 97 S. W. 534. Where defendant was informed of a defect that demanded an inspection, it was chargeable with knowledge of all defects which a proper inspection would have disclosed. Libby v. Cook, 222 Ill. 206, 78 N. E. 599. The duty of the master with reference to providing a safe place extends not only to known dangers and defects but also to such as he ought to know of in the exercise of ordinary care. City of Waukegan v. Sturm, 118 Ill. App. 479. Where engine was derailed, and it appeared that rails and ties were defective and that derailments had previously taken place at the same spot, the question of defendant's knowledge of the defective condition was for the jury. Dunphy v. St. Joseph Stockyards Co., 118 Mo. App. 506, 95 S. W. 301. Whether defects in floor, over which trucks loaded with sheet iron had to be hauled, had existed so long that master was charged with notice and was negligent in failing to make repairs. Longree v. Jackes-Evans Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 478, 97 S. W. 272. Where engineer was injured by a fall caused by a defective step, his testimony describing the step, showing that it could have fallen only by working loose, that a reasonably careful inspection would have disclosed the defect, and that the company had engine inspectors, made a prima facie case. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Cherry [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 505, 98 S. W. 898. Knowledge of a defect in an appliance by a foreman of a department of a packing house is knowledge of the corporation; hence, an admission of notice by such fireman may be shown. Cudahy Packing Co. v. Hays [Kan.] 85 P. 811.

73. Where servant is injured by being caught in an unguarded belt or pulley, he need not prove that the master or some representative had actual notice of the defect, even if the servant had notice and did not report it. Knowledge of such a defect is presumed. Johnson v. Onondaga Paper Co., 112 App. Div. 667, 98 N. Y. S. 602. Where injury to fireman was claimed to have been caused by an original defect in a handhold, knowledge of the master of the defect at any time before the injury would be sufficient to make it liable regardless of knowledge at the time of the last inspection. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 150, 93 S. W. 184.

74. Railroad company held not negligent in failing to repair track where it gave timely notice to employes of the defect so that they could avoid danger. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Mize [Ark.] 95 S. W. 488. Where break in shaft could have been discovered by timely inspection so as to prevent injury, a finding for plaintiff was warranted. Reinhardt v. Central Lard Co. [N. J. Law] 64 A. 990. Where employe was injured by loose lace in belt, through which he put his hand to oil a machine, evidence held insufficient to prove that master could have discovered defect in time to prevent injury. St. Pierre v. Foster [N. H.] 64 A. 723. If the place becomes unsafe during the course of the employment and a servant receives an injury thereby before the master has knowledge of the existence of the danger or has reasonable opportunity to obtain such knowledge and remedy the defect, the master is not liable. Howard v. Beldenville Lumber Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 48.

75. Such as monkey wrench. Stork v. Stolper Cooperage Co., 127 Wis. 318, 106 N. W. 841. No duty rests upon an employer to inspect simple and common tools to discover defects which arise from the ordinary use of such instruments. Rule applied to common sledge hammer in good condition when furnished to employes. Koschman v. Ash [Minn.] 108 N. W. 514.

NOTE. Inspection of common tools: "The master is under no duty to inspect simple or common tools, or to discover or remedy defects arising necessarily from the ordinary use of such instruments. Miller v. Erie R. Co., 21 App. Div. 45, 47 N. Y. S. 285 (a pushpole by which an engine on one track was able to move a car on an adjacent track); Marsh v. Chickering, 101 N. Y. 396, 5 N. E. 56 (ladder); Cahill v. Hilton, 106 N. Y. 512, 518, 13 N. E. 339 (ladder); Webster Mfg. Co. v. Nisbett, 205 Ill. 273, 68 N. E. 936 (hammer); Meador v. R. Co., 138 Ind. 290, 37 N. E. 721, 46 Am. St. Rep. 384 (ladder); Wachsmuth v. Elec. Crane Co., 118 Mich. 275, 76 N. W. 497 (snap-hammer); Dompier v. Lewis, 131 Mich. 144, 91 N. W. 152 (hammer); O'Brien v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 36 Tex. Civ. App. 528, 82 S. W. 319 (wrench); Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Larkin [Tex.] 82 S. W. 1026 (defective globe on a lantern); Lynn v. Sugar Ref. Co., 128 Iowa, 501, 104 N. W. 577 (hammer of soft steel with which to break lumps of coal); Garragan v. Iron Works, 158 Mass. 596, 33 N. E. 652; Martin v. Highland Co., 128 N. C. 264, 38 S. E. 876, 83 Am. St. Rep. 671; R. Co. v. Brooks, 84 Ala. 138, 4 So. 289; Georgia R. Co. v. Nelms, 83 Ga. 70, 9 S. E. 1049, 20 Am. St. Rep. 308; Power Co. v. Murphy, 115 Ind. 566, 18 N. E. 30; Labatt, Master & Servant, § 154."—From opinion in Koschman v. Ash [Minn.] 108 N. W. 514.

presumed.[78] But this exemption from liability has no application to a defect of which the master is actually cognizant, and which is of a character such that injury from the use of the appliance ought reasonably to be apprehended, where the employe has no actual notice of the defect and is not charged with notice from having used it.[77]

Ordinarily, the servant is under no duty to make an inspection of the place or appliances,[78] but may rely on the assumption that the master has performed his duty with respect thereto.[79] But this is not the rule with respect to simple and common tools used by the servant in the ordinary discharge of his duties,[80] nor does the rule apply where the duty of inspection rests upon the servant.[81] The 76. Stork v. Stolper Cooperage Co., 127 Wis. 318, 106 N. W. 841.

77. Since master is liable if he knowingly exposes an employe to a danger unknown to the employe. Stork v. Stolper Cooperage Co., 127 Wis. 318, 106 N. W. 841.

78. Columbian Enameling & Stamping Co. v. O'Burke [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 409; Mergenthaler-Horton Basket Co. v. Taylor, 28 Ky. L. R. 923, 90 S. W. 968. Employe who does not know of danger in the place of work may rely on master's care, unless danger is patent and obvious, and is not obliged to make an inspection. Wallace v. Bach [Ky.] 97 S. W. 418. Defendant liable for injury caused by defective appliance to remove steel plates from anvil, the defect being one which employe could have discovered only by special investigation. McKee v. Crucible Steel Co., 213 Pa. 333, 62 A. 921.

79. Employe held to have had a right to rely on superintendent's care in making platform, and was under no duty to inspect it to see if sleepers were fastened. White v. Perry Co., 190 Mass. 99, 76 N. E. 512. Express company's servant was not bound to inspect truck or platform to assume that they were reasonably safe. Wells, Fargo & Co. Exp. v. Boyle [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 350, 98 S. W. 441. The servant may rely fully on the assumption that the master has performed his several duties, and need not inspect to ascertain if these duties have been in fact performed. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Udalle [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 668, 91 S. W. 330. Telephone cable splicer held to be under no duty to test and inspect ropes and swinging platform supplied by company, since he had a right to assume that the company had performed its duty with respect to such appliances. Cumberland Tel. & T. Co. v. Metzger's Adm'r, 29 Ky. L. R. 1024, 97 S. W. 35. Const., § 193, provides that knowledge of railroad employes of defects in appliances shall constitute no defense to an action for injuries, except in the case of conductors or engineers in charge of dangerous cars or engines voluntarily operated by them. A section foreman in charge of a hand car is not a conductor within the meaning of this provision. Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Parker [Miss.] 40 So. 746. If such foreman was guilty of reckless negligence, he could not recover; but such question is always one for the jury. Id.

80. Stork v. Stolper Cooperage Co., 127 Wis. 318, 106 N. W. 841; Koschman v. Ash [Minn.] 108 N. W. 514. In the case of simple tools and appliances, the master is under no duty to inspect in order to ascertain defects developing in the course of their use, since the servant has the same or a better opportunity to observe them as the master. As in case of monkey wrench. Stork v. Stolper Cooperage Co., 127 Wis. 318, 106 N. W. 841. Ladder used by employe was broken and a piece of plank nailed on during his absence. On his return he inspected it before using it and did not report any defect in it. Master held not liable for an injury caused by breaking off of plank nailed on it. Graham v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 211, 91 S. W. 1081. Employe was struck by piece of steel while engaged in cutting steel rail with coldchisel. The accident was one occurring in ordinary use of simple tool and was not one which the master ought reasonably to have apprehended. Hence, no liability. Fasini v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 109 App. Div. 404, 96 N. Y. S. 415. Where an ordinary ladder is sound and in good condition when supplied to the servant, no duty rests upon the master thereafter to inspect it for defects arising from ordinary use, at least as to a servant thoroughly familiar with such appliance. Dessecker v. Phoenix Mills Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 516. Where rope sling was used every day, it was duty of employes to inspect it and make needed repairs, the master having supplied plenty of sound material for the purpose. Hence, the act of an employe in using an unsafe sling would not render the master liable for a resulting injury to another employe. The Fulton, 143 F. 591. Wooden ladder on railroad watertank, used only occasionally by employes, held not a simple or common tool which employes were bound to inspect in their ordinary use. Nichols v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 623, 108 N. W. 1016.

81. Mergenthaler-Horton Basket Co. v. Taylor, 28 Ky. L. R. 923, 90 S. W. 968. The duty to inspect machinery to see that it is safe cannot be delegated, but the duty to inspect to see if it is in good working order can be delegated. Clark v. Goldie [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 759, 109 N. W. 1044. Railway employes who put in switch reported to station agent and it was then his duty to inspect the work. He could not, therefore, recover for injuries caused by falling into an excavation which he would have discovered had he made such inspection. Wood v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 184 N. Y. 290, 77 N. E. 27.

Duty of inspection held not to rest on servant: Evidence sufficient to sustain finding that employes themselves were not delegated to make repairs on a platform on which they worked. Bailey v. Swallow [Minn.] 107 N. W. 727. Where hooks and hinge gate in pulley block were loosened, the moving of them was not a duty resting servant cannot recover for an injury caused by a defect or condition discoverable by him by the use of ordinary care in the performance of his usual duties,[82] or which was actually known to him and which he failed to report[83] to a proper person.[84]

Statutes.[85]—Decisions under the Federal automatic coupler act and under various state laws relating to appliances and places of work are collected in the note.[86]

on an unskilled workman who had no knowledge of the facts. Costello v. Frankman, 97 Minn. 522, 107 N. W. 739. Where a pole was hollow and defective when put in, the company could not escape liability for an injury caused by its breaking owing to such original defect on the ground that linemen, fellow-servants of injured employe, were under duty of inspecting the pole, where it was not shown that linemen had such duties at the time the pole was set. Livingway v. Houghton County St. R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 534, 108 N. W. 662.

82. Servant's duty extends only to the observation of defects which are open, visible, and apparent. Columbian Enameling & Stamping Co. v. O'Burke [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 409. Where defect in derrick hook was discoverable by a reasonable inspection, master was not liable for injury caused thereby. New Castle Bridge Co. v. Steele [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 208. The servant is not bound to inspect his appliances or place of work upon entering upon his employment, but cannot close his eyes to obvious dangers or dangers which would be apparent to a man of ordinary care. Price v. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 151, 90 S. W. 717. Where telephone lineman, employed to dismantle old poles and move wires, was not assured that appliances he would use were safe or would be inspected, and he himself had better opportunities of knowing dangers connected with his work than the company, he could not recover for an injury caused by defective insulation on the ground of the company's failure to inspect. Evansville Gas & Elec. Light Co. v. Raley [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 549. A section master in temporary charge of a hand car, is under the duty of noting such defects in it as are discoverable by the use of ordinary care, and of refusing to use it if it is obviously unsafe. If he fails in this duty and is injured by reason of a discoverable defect, he cannot recover. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Byland, 50 Fla. 190, 40 So. 24. Servant held not to have actual or implied knowledge of defect in wrench. Mergenthaler-Horton Basket Co. v. Taylor, 28 Ky. L. R. 923, 90 S. W. 968.

83. The Alabama statute makes it the duty of a miner to report defects to the master or employer or to some person superior to himself engaged in the service or employment of the master, and not to some person entrusted with the duty of seeing that ways, works, etc., are safe. Cahaba Southern Min. Co. v. Pratt [Ala.] 40 So. 943. Rev. Laws, c. 106, § 77, barring an action based on a defect of which a servant had notice and which he failed to report does not apply to a defect of which the servant had no knowledge. Thus, failure to report the dangerous condition of a walk from ice and snow was held not to bar an action for an injury thereby caused. Urquhart v. Smith & Anthony Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 410.

84. Fireman on engine was under no duty to report defect in coupler of helping engine to any other person than the engineers and conductor of the train. Doyle v. Great Northern R. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 861. Where conductor and engineers in charge of a train had notice of defects in a coupler of a helping engine, which caused it to break away and delay a train in a tunnel, it would be presumed that they reported to the company in the absence of contrary evidence. Id.

85. See 6 C. L. 547.

86. Federal automatic coupler act requires couplers which will couple automatically by impact without the necessity of men going between the cars. Chicago & Alton R. Co. v. Walters, 120 Ill. App. 152. The automatic coupler act requires couplers which can be coupled as well as uncoupled without requiring employes to go between the cars. Southern R. Co. v. Simmons, 105 Va. 651, 55 S. E. 459. Cars loaded with rails had been kept at a point several days, in readiness to be sent where needed. An employe was getting them ready to move and was injured. Held, cars were not then engaged in interstate traffic, and automatic coupler act, cutting off defense of assumption of risk, did not apply. Coley v. Kansas City Southern R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 738, 95 S. W. 96.

Arkansas: 26 Stat. U. S. 1104, requiring ventilation of mines, is sufficiently complied with where the portions used are properly ventilated, and danger signals put up to warn miners away from portions not so ventilated and not intended to be used. Central Coal & Coke Co. v. Gregory [Ark.] 93 S. W. 56.

California: St. 1893, p. 82, c. 74, §§ 1-5, regulating operation of mines, construed, and held not to impose a personal obligation on mine operators to lash long poles to cable of skip when they cannot be carried inside. Manning v. App Consol. Gold Min. Co. [Cal.] 84 P. 657.

Illinois: Evidence held sufficient to show proper examination of mines as required by Miners' Act. New Virginia Coal Co. v. Gower 119 Ill. App. 1. Evidence sufficient to show willful violation of mine's law by failing to supply props and make required inspection of mines. Henrietta Coal Co. v. Martin, 221 Ill. 460, 77 N. E. 902. Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, c. 93, p. 1260, providing that no one shall be allowed to enter a mine except under direction of the inspector, does not require an inspector to personally accompany men sent into a room to make it safe. Kellyville Coal Co. v. Bruzas, 223 Ill. 595, 79 N. E. 309. A conscious failure to comply with Mine & Miners' Act, § 18, par. "a," requiring an inspection for gas before miners are allowed to enter a mine, is a willful violation of the act though there is no evil intent. Athens Min. Co. v. Carnduff, 221 Ill. 354, 77 N. E. 571. Mine owner is not relieved from liability for injury resulting from violation of laws 1899, pp. 315, 317, §§ 16, 18, by reason of having to employ a manager and examiner who must have certificates issued by the state. Henrietta Coal Co. v. Martin, 221 Ill. 460, 77 N. E. 902.

Indiana: A shop maintained by a street railway company for the making of repairs on cars and appliances is a "workshop" within the meaning of Acts 1899, p. 234, c. 142, relating to the safety of employes in certain kinds of establishments where men are employed for hire. Hoffmeyer v. State [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 372. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7087, requiring "vats, pans, saws, planers, cogs, gearing, belting, set screws, and machinery of every description therein" to be guarded, does not apply to a machine consisting of rollers and knives revolving at great speed, set just below an opening in the floor, and used to mix sawdust, damp clay, and dirt thrown in from above. National Fire Proofing Co. v. Roper [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 370. Failure of employer to provide exhaust fans to carry off dust from emery wheels, as required by statute, is a breach of duty to employes. Muncie Pulp Co. v. Hacker [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 770. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7478, providing that doors used in assisting or directing ventilation in mines when coal is being hauled through shall be opened and closed by persons designated for that duty, is designed solely to secure proper ventilation and not to protect drivers; hence, a driver who strikes his head going through a door which he tries to keep open has no right of action thereunder, though § 7473 gives a right of action for any injury caused by a violation of the act. Indiana & Chicago Coal Co. v. Neal [Ind.] 77 N. E. 850.

Massachusetts: Plank walk leading from factory to privy held a part of the "ways, works," etc., under Employers' Liability Act, § 77. Evidence that several days before plaintiff's injury snow and ice had become packed into a rough, uneven surface thereon, was evidence of negligence. Urquhart v. Smith & Anthony Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 410. That a hatchway in a vessel that was being loaded was left uncovered did not constitute a defect in "ways, works or machinery." Bamford v. Hammond Co., 191 Mass. 479, 78 N. E. 115. Piles of cotton in warehouse alleged to have been negligently arranged held not a part of the "ways, works, and machinery." Cahill v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 190 Mass. 423, 76 N. E. 911. Rev. Laws, c. 104, § 27, requiring elevators to be equipped with a certain safety device, held not to apply to an elevator temporarily used as a part of the ways, works, and machinery, used in construction of a building. Rippucci v. Com. Const. Co., 190 Mass. 518, 77 N. E. 478.

Michigan: Pub. Acts 1901, No. 113, § 5, requires the owner or lessee of any manufacturing plant where hoisting shafts or well holes are used to guard them. This imposes a duty on employers to protect employes from falling into elevator shafts inside the building. Murphy v. Grand Rapids Veneer Works, 142 Mich. 677, 12 Det. Leg. N. 868, 106 N. W. 211.

Mississippi: No liability of railroad company for negligence in furnishing ways, works, or machinery, where cause of conductor's death was his own negligence in hitching a caboose to an engine with a chain, leaving several feet of slack. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Emerson [Miss.] 40 So. 818.

Missouri: Rev. St. 1899, § 6433, requiring belting, shafting, gearing and drums in factories to be guarded when possible, applies to a vertical belt and horizontal shaft rotating near the floor of a factory, exposed to limbs and clothing of employes. Morgan v. Hager & Sons Hinge Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 590, 97 S. W. 638. Rev. St. 1899, § 6433, requiring belting, shafting, gearing, and drums, when situated where dangerous to employes, to be guarded held not to require a planer to be hooded. Smith v. Forrester-Nace Box Co., 193 Mo. 715, 92 S. W. 394. Whether vertical belt and horizontal shaft could have been guarded without making use of it impossible, held a question for jury. Morgan v. Hager & Sons Hinge Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 590, 97 S. W. 638. Rev. St. 1899, § 6433, requiring dangerous shafting to be guarded when possible, and a notice to be posted when guarding is not possible, makes failure to guard negligence, if guarding is possible, even though a notice is posted, and if guarding is not possible, failure to post a notice is negligence. Millsap v. Beggs [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 956. Violation of the statute is negligence per se. Id. To an action based on a violation of the statute it is no defense that the unguarded machine is reasonably safe. Id. Rev. St. 1899, § 6433, requiring shafting to be guarded, applies to a horizontal metal shaft with steel knives fastened on it, and operated as a planer. Millsap v. Beggs [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 956. Rev. St. 1899, c. 91, art. 17, § 6435, requires guards to be placed before elevator openings in certain buildings, which are to be closed, except when in actual use. This statute is not designed for the protection of elevator operators. Lataple-Vignaux v. Askew Saddlery Co., 193 Mo. 1, 91 S. W. 496. An elevator operator who falls into the shaft while attempting to operate the elevator cannot recover for his injuries, since such a case would come within the exception of the statute. Id. Rev. St. 1899, § 8822, providing that mine operators shall have on hand a sufficient supply of props, etc., requires such props to be kept and to be furnished to miners upon their request without unnecessary delay. McKinnon v. Western Coal & Min. Co., 120 Mo. App. 148, 96 S. W. 485. The statute applies to miners working at a fixed price per bushel mined, as well as those who work for wages. Id. Statute requiring inspection of coal mines to determine presence of gas does not apply to mines where no gas is generated. Id.

New York: Whether it was practicable to guard a particular belt and pulley as required by Labor Law 1892, p. 1375, c. 673, § 8, held a question for jury. Johnson v. Onondaga Paper Co., 112 App. Div. 667, 98 N. Y. S. 602.

Ohio: Manufacturing corporation which maintains tracks and a switch engine in its yards to shift freight cars is not "a railroad corporation operating a railroad or a part of a railroad" within 93 Ohio Laws, p. 342, requiring such corporations to block frogs. Taggart v. Republic Iron & Steel Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 910.

Pennsylvania: Failure to provide guard rail for dangerous platform as required by Act June 2, 1891. Gulla v. Lehigh Valley Coal Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 11.

Washington: Whether revolving knives of a log chipper in a sawmill could have been guarded advantageously held a question for the jury, the evidence being conflicting. Rec-

(§ 3) C. Methods of work, rules and regulations.[87]—If the master provides or adopts a mode of work which is not reasonably safe,[88] and an injury results therefrom,[89] he is liable. Whether a method adopted or provided is reasonably safe depends upon the nature of the work and the danger to be apprehended,[90] and this question is usually one for the jury to decide.[91]

When the business in which the master is engaged is complicated or dangerous,[92] or where the employes work in different departments or at different sorts of works, and the safety of one depends upon the performance of the duties of another at stated times or in a particular manner,[93] it is the duty of the master to provide and enforce suitable rules and regulations governing their conduct and that of the business.[94] But when the duties to be performed by the servant are simple and the appliances easily understood rules are not required.[95] A failure to promulgate particular rules will not constitute actionable negligence, unless it is made tor v. Bryant Lumber & Shingle Mill Co., 41 Wash. 556, 84 P. 7. Whether circular saw could have been advantageously guarded held for jury. Erickson v. McNeeley & Co., 41 Wash. 509, 84 P. 3.

87. See 6 C. L. 548.

88. Directing or ordering the servant to do work in a certain manner may constitute negligence and when it does the servant obeying such order or direction, and injured as a proximate result thereof, may recover from the master. Tuckett v. American Steam & Hand Laundry [Utah] 84 P. 500. While a heavy machine was being moved from a car, defendant's general manager arrived and took charge of the work. Held, any defect or danger in the method already chosen of doing the work, discoverable by a man of ordinary prudence, became negligence chargeable to the master. Hamann v. Milwaukee Bridge Co., 127 Wis. 550, 106 N. W. 1081. When young employe was told by foreman to get instructions from a machinist as to how to grind tools and machinist told him to grind them on the side of the wheel, and the employe was injured while doing as he was told, he could recover though the method was wrong. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Archambault [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 293, 94 S. W. 1108.

89. Where a derrick tipped because the boom was directed to be swung round before it was fastened at the base, the master was liable for a resulting injury, a negligent mode of operation having been adopted. Ball v. Megrath [Wash.] 86 P. 382. Failure to maintain a lookout on the flat car of a construction train, consisting of an engine and two cars, held not negligence as to a member of the crew who was injured by the train running into him without warning. Burrman v. Grand Trunk Western R. Co., 143 Mich. 689, 13 Det. Leg. N. 111, 107 N. W. 709. Where there was evidence that a foreman told employe to use her hands to unclog the machine, the fact that a stick had been supplied for that purpose would not absolve the master from the charge of negligence. Regling v. Lehmaier, 50 Misc. 331, 98 N. Y. S. 642. That a superintendent allowed men to unload rock in a certain manner did not make the master liable where the injury complained of was caused by failure to follow his instructions as to warnings. Martin v. Mason-Hage Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 1333, 91 S. W. 1146.

90. Master is under duty of controlling appliances so as not to subject employes to unnecessary dangers. Leighton & Howard Steel Co. v. Snell, 119 Ill. App. 199. For mine owner to permit heavily loaded cars to be sent down the incline in a mine without light or attendant, or brake or signal, and with nothing to retard speed except sprags in the wheels, is gross negligence. Spring Valley Coal Co. v. Chiaventone, 115 Ill. App. 558. In action for injuries caused by falling of a wheel upon plaintiff while he and another were attempting to move it from one shop to another, evidence held insufficient to prove negligence of the master in failing to provide a reasonably safe method or sufficient number of men. Beardsley v. Murray Iron Works Co., 129 Iowa, 675, 106 N. W. 180. Manner of removing snow and ice from tracks by flangers, plows, and shovels, according to condition of tracks, held not negligent. Neagle v. Syracuse R. Co., 185 N. Y. 270, 77 N. E. 1064.

91. Whether method employed by defendant's manager to move machine from car was negligent. Hamann v. Milwaukee Bridge Co., 127 Wis. 550, 106 N. W. 1081. Plaintiff was injured while unloading casks from a car. Held, whether he was ordered to do the work in a dangerous manner, or was allowed insufficient help, were questions for the jury. Kirk & Co. v. Jajko, 224 Ill. 338, 79 N. E. 577.

92. It is duty of railroad company to make and enforce definite and reasonable rules and regulations for the government and protection of its employes. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Shanklin [C. C. A.] 148 F. 342. Complaint held to state a cause of action in that defendant failed to provide a system of rules and signals governing the works of sending logs down a chute, without which such work was extremely dangerous, and owing to the lack of which plaintiff was injured. Lindsay v. Grande Ronde Lumber Co. [Or.] 87 P. 145. In action for death of brakeman while coupling cars in railroad yards, evidence held sufficient to show that a rule regulating work in the yards should have been adopted, it appearing that such a rule would have been practicable, that a similar one was in use in other yards, and that the necessity of it was obvious. Freemont v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 111 App. Div. 831, 98 N. Y. S. 179.

93, 94. Blust v. Pacific States Tel. Co. [Or.] 84 P. 847.

95. No rules required to govern work of putting up telephone cables, the appliances to appear that such rules would be practicable,[96] and would, if adopted, have prevented the injury complained of,[97] or that the necessity for such rules ought reasonably to have been foreseen.[98] The necessity for rules is ordinarily a question of fact.[99] The reasonableness or sufficiency of rules promulgated depends upon the nature of the work,[1] and this question also is usually one of fact,[2] but may become a question of law.[3] The construction of rules is for the court, if they are ambiguous and open to construction [4] but the application of a rule to a particular situation may be a question of fact.[5]

It is the duty of the master not only to formulate and promulgate rules, where the nature of the work requires them, but also to use ordinary care to see that they are enforced,[6] but he is not an insurer of their observance.[7] Where a rule is customarily or habitually violated by servants, to the knowledge of the master, or a vice-principal,[8] or for so long a time and so frequently and openly that the master being simple and understood by the employes. Blust v. Pacific States Tel. Co. [Or.] 84 P. 847.

96. Failure to provide rules as to position in train of disabled cars, and prohibiting car inspectors from riding on trains held not negligent, because such rules would be impracticable. Shuster v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. [Del.] 62 A. 689.

97. Decedent was killed by electric shock while repairing wires owing to a mistake in the transmission of order to turn off the power "after ten minutes," the order transmitted being understood as one to turn off power "for ten minutes." A rule would not have prevented such a mistake. Van Alstine v. Standard Light, Heat & Power Co., 101 N. Y. S. 696. Employe picking up coal in yards was struck by coal car kicked onto a siding. Evidence did not show probable efficiency of a rule requiring cars to be under control in yards, so as to prevent such accidents, nor that such a rule was customary. Held, negligence was not shown. Kascsak v. Central R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 211.

98. Failure to make rules regarding flying switches held not a breach of duty as to an employe who stepped on track in front of cars, his act being one which could not reasonably have been foreseen. Lord v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 65 A. 111. When necessity for rule whereby railroad employes could be warned of presence of cinders on the track ought reasonably to have been foreseen by defendant in the exercise of ordinary care, failure to promulgate such rule was negligence. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Ames [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 298, 94 S. W. 1112.

99. Held not necessary to make and promulgate rules for running cars on private railroad. Jemnienski v. Lobdell Car Wheel Co. [Del.] 63 A. 935. Railroad company is not bound absolutely to promulgate rules for instruction of student brakemen. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Vincent [Tenn.] 95 S. W. 179. Slabs were hauled by tram cars out of mill basement, up a grade and blocked and when two cars were up they were hauled away. Two such cars broke away and ran back into the mill killing an employe. Whether promulgation of rules for the operation of the cars was necessary was for the jury. Johnson v. Smith Lumber Co. [Minn.] 109 N. W. 810. Whether railroad company was negligent in not promulgating a written rule governing the giving of signals by men under engines, engaged in cleaning them out, so that hostlers would not move engines until the cleaners had reached a place of safety. McCoy v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 185 N. Y. 276, 77 N. E. 1174.

1. Railroad rule prohibiting employes from going between moving cars to couple or uncouple them held reasonable. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. Rules of railroad company held insufficient to inform employes of freight train that another train was running in sections. Ryan v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 99 N. Y. S. 794. Defendant's rules required care in coupling and shifting cars to avoid injury to train men, limited speed to six miles an hour when crossing switches, and made engineers conductors when running engines alone. Held, these rules were sufficient as to a switch inspector struck by an engine crossing a switch at an excessive rate, and master was not liable. Keating v. Manhattan R. Co., 110 App. Div. 108, 97 N. Y. S. 137.

2. Whether code of signals used in operation of construction train was sufficient. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. McLaughlin [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 839, 96 S. W. 1091.

3. Whether a given rule or regulation is reasonable and sufficient is a question of law. Rule requiring signals in blasting. Kenefick-Hammond Co. v. Rohr, 77 Ark. 290, 91 S. W. 179.

4. A railroad rule requiring conductors to see that brakes are set on cars left on sidings, and that when a siding is on grade, cars left thereon shall be coupled, was held free from ambiguity and not open to construction. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Pape [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 32, 97 S. W. 534.

5. Whether a siding was "on grade" within the meaning of a rule requiring cars on such sidings to be coupled together held a question for the jury. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Pape [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 32, 97 S. W. 534.

6, 7. Lane Bros. Co. v. Seakford [Va.] 55 S. E. 556.

8. Knowledge by conductors of habitual violation of a rule of the company held knowledge of the company. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Caraway, 77 Ark. 405, 91 S. W. 749.

is charged with knowledge of its violation,[9] it is deemed abrogated.[10] A rule may also be abrogated by other rules of the master inconsistent therewith.[11] Nonobservance by a servant of a rule which has been abrogated does not constitute contributory negligence.[12]

A master cannot by the promulgation or rules relieve himself of a duty imposed by law [13] nor delegate personal duties to a servant, so as to absolve him from liability.[14]

(§ 3) D. Warning and instructing servant.[15]—It is the duty of the master to properly warn and instruct young and inexperienced employes [16] in regard to dan-

9. Knowledge of the master may be implied from the notoriety of the custom of the employes in disregarding the rule. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Caraway, 77 Ark. 405, 91 S. W. 749. Customary violation of a rule prohibiting employes from going between cars would be binding on the company only if such violation was known to the company and acquiesced in, or if it had prevailed for so long that it was charged with notice. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856.

10. Biles v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 512. Rule of railroad company prohibiting employes from jumping on or off trains in motion held to have no effect where evidence showed that it had been habitually violated by employes in the manner in which plaintiff violated it. Worcester v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 548, 91 S W. 339. Rule requiring firemen to clean engines at end of each trip held abrogated by general custom, acquiesced in by company, of cleaning engines sometimes in the daytime, and when the engine was in motion. Kane v. Erie R. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 682. Evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding that a rule governing the positions of trainmen on trains at certain times had been abrogated by a customary violation of it by employes. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Caraway, 77 Ark. 405, 91 S. W. 749. Whether rules requiring trains to stop at switches under certain conditions had been abrogated by habitual violation of it and by making of schedules rendering observance of it impossible, held a question for the jury. Haynes v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 516.

11. Certain evidence admissible to show that rule requiring trains to stop at switch under certain conditions had been abrogated by the promulgation of a schedule making its observance impossible. Haynes v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 516.

12. Biles v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 512. Where a rule has been abrogated by its open violation for a time so long that the master must be charged with knowledge of the facts, nonobservance of it by a servant does not constitute contributary negligence. Haynes v. North Carolina R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 516.

13. Railway company cannot by the promulgation of rules for the government of its employes relieve itself from liability for failure to comply with automatic coupler act. Chicago & Alton R. Co. v. Walters, 120 Ill. App. 152.

14. Master cannot by rules for the regulation of his employes delegate personal duties to a servant. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Sawusch, 119 Ill. App. 349.

15. See 6 C. L. 550.

16. Failure to warn and instruct inexperienced employe sent out on scow to lighter a stranded steamer, whereby he was injured by a traveling crane on the scow, held negligence. The Buffalo, 147 F. 304. Complaint held to state a cause of action for putting a boy of thirteen to work on a dangerous machine without warning or instructing him. Ft. Valley Knitting Mills v. Anderson, 124 Ga. 909, 53 S. E. 686. Master's duty to warn inexperienced employes as to dangers of the employment, unless such dangers are obvious. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Daugaard, 118 Ill. App. 67. Where inexperienced employe is put to work at a dangerous machine, it is master's duty to see that he is fully warned and instructed. Cohankus Mfg. Co. v. Rogers' Guardian, 29 Ky. L. R. 747, 96 S. W. 437. Boy of nineteen was sent to dip acid out of a crock without warning or instruction as to character of liquid of which he was ignorant. The dipper slipped and acid splashed into his eyes. Held, evidence warranted a finding of negligence on part of master. Hodde v. Attleboro Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 252. Person using dynamite for blasting and like purposes is under duty of warning and instructing inexperienced employes of its character and the proper method of handling it with safety. Pinney v. King [Minn.] 107 N. W. 1127. Employer could be found negligent in directing inexperienced employe to assist in putting covers on rollers of ironing mangle, without instructing or warning her. Carlin v. Kennedy, 97 Minn. 141, 106 N. W. 340. Master held negligent in failing to instruct young and inexperienced operator of brick pressing machine. Hagerty v. St. Paul Brick Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 278. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding of negligence of master where young employe had not been instructed as to danger from tram cars, used to haul slabs out of mill, running back into the mill. Johnson v. Smith Lumber Co. [Minn.] 109 N. W. 810. Injury to operator of mangle in laundry held result of failure of master to properly instruct her in the operation of the machine. Ludwig v. Spicer [Minn.] 109 N. W. 832. Evidence sufficient to sustain charge of negligence on the part of the master in not warning an inexperienced employe of the danger, or instructing him with reference to the adjustment of the table gauge, condition of revolving knives, and use of guard for the knives of a jointing machine. Frazier v. Lloyd Mfg. Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 819. Hospital corporation owes inexperienced nurse duty to inform her when she is assigned to care of contagious case. Hewett v. Woman's Hospital Aid Ass'n, 73 N. H. 556, 64 A. 190. Instruction on duty to warn gers of their employment of which they have no knowledge or appreciation.[17] It is also his duty to warn or instruct his employes as to special or unusual risks arising during the course of the employment,[18] and as to hidden or latent dangers, known, or which ought to be known, to the master [19] and unknown to the servant.[20] operator as to difference between old and new machine, at which he was put to work, approved. Hicks v. Naomi Falls Mfg. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 411. Foreman of planing mill held negligent in failing to warn inexperienced employe of dangers of removing sliver from near knives when the machine was in motion. Rice v. Dewberry [Tex. Civ. App.] 95 S. W. 1090. An inexperienced adult, such as an inexperienced electric lineman, may be entitled to instruction as well as a child. Sias v. Consolidated Lighting Co. [Vt.] 64 A. 1104. Boy of seventeen was told to do anything he saw to be done, and was injured while coupling cars, no instructions having been given him. Master held negligent. Stark v. Port Blakely Mill Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 339. If one method of doing the work at which a servant is set is dangerous, an inexperienced servant should be warned. Operation of laundry mangle. Greenan v. Eggeling, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 253.

17. Rice v. Dewberry [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 193, 93 S. W. 715. It is the duty of the master to warn and instruct a young or inexperienced employe concerning dangers not obvious to ordinary inspection to which the nature of the work to be done will expose him. Vohs v. Shorthill & Co., 130 Iowa, 538, 107 N. W. 417.

18. Master liable where section hand was killed by train when removing hand car from track under foreman's orders, no warning having been given. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Mathis, 76 Ark. 184, 91 S. W. 763. Evidence sufficient to show that it was duty of foreman of gang employed in loading cars with cinders, in track construction, to warn employes of the approach of cars, and also to show that he failed to give a warning as a result of which an employe was injured. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Kimmel, 221 Ill. 547, 77 N. E. 936. Telephone company foreman held negligent in failing to inform lineman that current was turned on certain wires at four o'clock instead of five, as had been the previous custom. East Tennessee Tel. Co. v. Carmine, 29 Ky. L. R. 479, 93 S. W. 933. Evidence sufficient to show negligence of conductor in sending cars down a track where a car checker was at work without any warning, such as it was customary to give. Meadowcroft v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 266. Superintendent of track gang negligent in failing to give employes warning of approach of train. Dunphy v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 479. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that master was negligent in failing to provide means to warn employes of opening in floor, or to provide for barriers to place before it when opening was used. Falardeau v. Hoar [Mass.] 78 N. E. 456. Plaintiff at work on coal dock could recover for injury caused by engineer backing train against him, if engineer failed to give reasonable warning. Lanning v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 196 Mo. 647, 94 S. W. 491. Duty of foreman, before starting machinery, to see that employes were not in danger, and to give warning. Carlson v. United Engineering Co., 113 App. Div. 371, 98 N. Y. S. 1036. If the place of work became dangerous by reason of perils not arising from the particular work, it is the duty of the master to give such warning as will enable the servant in the exercise of reasonable care to avoid or guard against such additional dngers. Johnson v. Terry & Tench Co., 113 App. Div. 762, 99 N. Y. S. 375. Workman was thrown from hanging scaffold attached to elevated road by a collision between a truck and the scaffold, and it appeared that no watchman had been provided to give warning of vehicles. Held, master liable. Sheridan v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 100 N. Y. S. 821. Where a servant in the prosecution of the work of his employer is obliged to take a position which is not necessarily dangerous, but may be rendered dangerous by the employer putting in motion a force or machine, it is the duty of the employer to notify the servant of his intention in time for him to avoid the consequences, and this must be done each and every time such machine or force against which the servant cannot protect himself is put in motion. Haun v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 379. Failure to give statutory signals at a railroad crossing is negligence as to a watchman employed at the crossing. Betchman v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 140. If a railroad watchman was seen at a crossing by an engineer, failure of the engineer to see whether or not the watchman would get out of the way or to give any warning would constitute negligence. Id. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that foreman failed to warn a railroad employe of cars which struck cars on which he was at work. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Burns [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 72, 91 S. W. 618.

19. The law imputes a knowledge of dangers the existence of which ordinary care would disclose. Vohs v. Shorthill & Co., 130 Iowa, 538, 107 N. W. 417. If there are latent defects in machinery or dangers incident to the employment unknown to the servant, of which the master knows or ought to know, he must give the servant warning in respect thereto. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Skipper, 125 Ga. 368, 54 S. E. 110. Failure to warn switchman of danger from switch, located so close to track that handle would strike steps of passing cars, held negligence. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Riley [C. C. A.] 145 F. 137.

20. Jackson Knife & Shear Co. v. Hathaway, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 242. It is the master's duty to inform the servant of latent or extraordinary dangers or risks which are known to the master but unknown to the servant. Applied where miner was injured by explosion of charge of powder of which he had no knowledge. Bone v. Ophir Silver Min. Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 685. Where employe working on waste in an ore chute did not know, and could not with ordinary care ascertain that the waste was liable to go down, and the master knew or ought to

Proper instruction should be given an employe who is sent to perform services outside the regular scope of the duties for which he was employed.[21]

No instruction or warning is necessary as to incidental risks, assumed by the contract of employment,[22] nor as to obvious dangers,[23] fully known to the employe[24] or as well known to him as to his employer,[25] or which ought to have been known to him by reason of his experience and capacity,[26] or by the exercise of ordihave known, it was his duty to warn the employe. Low Moor Iron Co. v. La Bianca's Adm'r [Va.] 55 S. E. 532.

21. Finding of negligence warranted where employe was called from his regular work to assist in unloading timbers without being warned as to danger from creosote getting into his eyes. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Gill [Miss.] 40 So. 865. Servant was killed while assisting in repair of a car in railroad yards, and evidence showed that he was a repair man and also was sent out at times with a wrecking crew. Held, jury were improperly allowed to find that he had been ordered to do work outside the scope of his employment without instructions or warning. McClure v. Detroit Southern R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 846, 109 N. W. 847.

22. There would be a duty to warn railroad employes of the presence of a mail crane only if it was unnecessarily close to the track. Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Burchard [Colo.] 86 P. 749.

23. Special warning to brakeman eighteen years old not required when he attempted to stop cars on a side track, to prevent a collision with other cars, the danger being obvious. King v. Woodstock Iron Co., 143 Ala. 632, 42 So. 27. The duty to warn employe directed to assist in chipping steel rolls of danger from flying bits of steel, that danger being obvious. Cripple Creek Sampling & Ore Co. v. Souza [Colo.] 86 P. 1005. No duty to warn employe in repair shop of railway of danger of allowing heavy wheels to start on a track and to catch him between them and a wall of the shop, when the danger was obvious and an injury caused in such manner was not reasonably to be anticipated. Duffy v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 77 N. E. 1031. No duty to warn girl of sixteen as to danger from open, moving, visible cogwheels near which she worked. Stevens v. Gair, 109 App. Div. 621, 96 N. Y. S. 303. Dangers of which it is duty of master to give warning to employe are not those that are subjects of common knowledge or apparent to ordinary observation. Eisenberg v. Fraim [Pa.] 64 A. 793. While it is not the master's duty to warn concerning obvious dangers, the servant may assume that appliances are reasonably safe. McCarley v. Glenn-Lowry Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 1.

24. No duty to warn employe engaged in loading vessel when he already knew all that anyone could tell him about dangers to be avoided. Bamford v. Hammond & Co., 191 Mass. 479, 78 N. E. 115. Where rules required miners to leave their places of work before twelve o'clock noon, and provided that blasts would be discharged after twelve o'clock and this was known to an employe, there was no duty to warn him. El Paso Gold Min. Co. v. Ewing [Colo.] 86 P. 119.

25. No warning required concerning a chisel the defects of which were as well known to plaintiff as to defendant. Banks v. Schofield's Sons Co., 126 Ga. 667, 55 S. E. 939. Where operator of mangle showed that she knew as much about the danger of operating it in a certain way as the master could have told her, failure to instruct her in regard thereto was not negligence. Lynch v. Shanley Co., 112 App. Div. 305, 98 N. Y. S. 406. Servant was told to put a new belt on a machine, and in doing so a rivet in the belt broke, and the end of the belt struck him in the eye. Held, no duty to warn, as the danger was as well known to employe as to master. Radley v. Shopiro, 99 N. Y. S. 1077.

26. Minor employe who says he understands the duties of his position, and who has reached years of discretion, need not be given instructions. King v. Woodstock Iron Co., 143 Ala. 632, 42 So. 27. No duty to warn experienced machinist's helper of danger from flying steel chips when steel is being cut with a chisel. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Weikal [Kan.] 84 P. 720. No duty to warn boy of seventeen who had worked on a cleaning machine several months of danger of cleaning an endless bicycle chain, the machine being a simple one. Lennon v. Goodrich [Mass.] 78 N. E. 421. Employer of painters held not negligent in failing to warn them not to use an extension ladder as staging, where one who was injured had had twenty years experience, and three of them used it at once. Jacobson v. Favor [Mass.] 78 N. E. 763. Intelligent boy of seventeen had worked on slitting machine three weeks. Machine was simple and easily understood. The belt frequently came off, and when replaced had to be covered by a box. Boy was injured by getting his hand in rollers when replacing box. Held, no breach of duty by failure to instruct. Hess v. Escanaba Woodenware Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 857, 109 N. W. 1058. A master is not required to give warning of danger apparent and readily comprehensible to a servant of ordinary intelligence and years of discretion. No warning necessary that frozen crust of sand pile was liable to fall when undermined. Livingstone v. Saginaw Plate Glass Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 873, 109 N. W. 431. Danger of putting one's hands into back rollers of a planer held so obvious to a man of plaintiff's age and experience that failure to warn him was not negligence. Smith v. Forrester-Nace Box Co., 193 Mo. 715, 92 S. W. 394. A servant who from the length or character of previous service or experience may be presumed to know the ordinary hazards attending the proper conduct of a certain business is not entitled, as an absolute right, to the same or similar notice of dangers incident to the employment as if he was ignorant or inexperienced, and this rule applies to infants as well as adults. Central Granaries Co. v. Ault [Neb.] 106 N. W. 418.

nary care.[27] It is not negligence to fail to give warning of a danger not reasonably to be apprehended.[28]

Whether warnings or instruction should have been given in a particular instance,[29] and whether warnings or instructions given were sufficient,[30] are usually

27. No duty to instruct nineteen-year-old driver of ore car how to get on the car without slipping on account of the mud. Richards v. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 288. Railway employe in freight yards who has had ample opportunity to observe location of culvert under track cannot allege negligence of the master in failing to warn him of the culvert. Price v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 124 Ga. 899, 53 S. E. 455. Foreman's failure to warn common laborer in sawmill of danger of putting his hand through a slit in a table in which a saw was operating held not a ground of recovery. Mathis v. Magnolia Mfg. Co., 140 N. C. 530, 53 S. E. 349.

28. Sommers v. Standard Min. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 697, 109 N. W. 30. No duty to warn employs that a knife might fly off the revolving shaft of a machine, when such an accident had not occurred during a long use of the machine. Moran v. Mulligan, 110 App. Div. 208, 97 N. Y. S. 7. No duty to warn servant who went to work on beams sixteen feet above floor that he might be caught on collar of revolving shaft. Martin v. Niles-Bement-Pond Co., 214 Pa. 616, 64 A. 370. Employe of a city went into a culvert with lighted torch to look for leaks and was injured by explosion of certain sand which had been poured into it from a factory without knowledge of city authorities. City not liable. Dalton v. Towanda Borough [Pa.] 64 A. 547. Where employe was injured by an explosion of varnish, which was eight feet from a stove, held the liability of such accident was not such that the master should have anticipated and warned against it. Siegel v. United Elec. Heating Co., 143 Mich. 484, 13 Det. Leg. N. 45, 106 N. W. 1127.

29. Whether master was negligent held a question for jury: Whether brakeman's superior was negligent in failing to signal engineer to stop when he saw brakeman between cars. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. Whether duties of boy of sixteen in rolling mill were such as to require warning and instruction held for jury. Decatur Car Wheel & Mfg. Co. v. Terry [Ala.] 41 So. 839. Where there was proof that a polishing wheel was defective and that the operator had not been warned of the danger. Sheehan v. Hammond, 2 Cal. App. 371, 84 P. 340. Unskilled and unexperienced workman was told to assist in unlacing belt which was off the pulleys but hung on revolving shaft. Belt caught on set screw, wound up, and injured him. Held, whether failure to warn and instruct him was negligence was for jury; also question whether projecting screw was defect Remington & Sherman Co. v. Blazosseck [C. C. A.] 146 F. 363. Whether master was negligent in failing to warn against dangers from pieces of flying steel when hard steel is to be cut was properly submitted to jury. Vohs v. Shorthill & Co., 130 Iowa, 538, 107 N. W. 417. Whether failure to warn and instruct employe properly as to manner of feeding suet into chopping machine was negligence. Byrne v. Learnard, 191 Mass. 269, 77 N. E. 316. Whether boy of fourteen should have been warned of danger of putting his hands between rolls of sanding machine. Kolodziejski v. Seestadt, 143 Mich. 38, 12 Det. Leg. N. 918, 106 N. W. 557. Where negligence charged was premature discharge of blast, without warning plaintiff, who was injured by the explosion. Hjelm v. Western Granite Contracting Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 803. Whether electric company was negligent in failing to warn lineman of current of electricity in light wires over which he was to string other wires. Snyer v. New York & N. J. Tel. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 122. Whether nurse should have been warned when she was assigned to take care of contagious case by hospital authorities. Hewett v. Woman's Hospital Aid Ass'n, 73 N. H. 556, 64 A. 190. Where plaintiff was struck by a train while at work changing tracks, whether master was negligent in failing to provide a watchman to give warning was for jury. Johnson v. Terry & Tench Co., 113 App. Div. 762, 99 N. Y. S. 375. Whether master was negligent in failing to warn boy of danger from rollers of paper making machine. Makin v. Pettibone Cataract Paper Co., 111 App. Div. 726, 97 N. Y. S. 894. Whether failure to warn employe engaged in removing snow from elevated road of danger from shock from third rail was negligence. Smith v. Manhattan R. Co., 112 App. Div. 202, 98 N. Y. S. 1. Whether failure to warn employe working on elevated, of danger from wire on which insulation was broken was negligence. Carey v. Manhattan R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 631. Whether instructions should have been given a boy of seventeen employed on machine three weeks. Jackson Knife & Shear Co. v. Hathaway, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 242. Whether master was negligent in putting inexperienced employe at once on machine having unguarded cogs without warning. Strickland v. Capital City Mills, 74 S. C. 16, 54 S. E. 220. Where servant was put to work on exhaust pipe, and engineer was not notified, and servant was scalded by steam forced through, the engineer having started the engine. Smith v. Buffalo Oil Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 682, 91 S. W. 383. A blast was fired in a room, where an inexperienced miner was employed, during his absence. Whether it was foreman's duty to warn the servant of the changed conditions and the danger from loosened coal, after his return, was held a question for the jury. Pocahontas Collieries Co. v. Williams, 105 Va. 708, 54 S. E. 868. Where employs was injured by sudden starting of logging engine, whether the master had made sufficient provision for warning employes. Conins v. Olympia Logging Co., 42 Wash. 53, 84 P. 407. Employe feeding brass sheets into a roiling machine was injured by getting glove caught on a sliver of a sheet of brass. Whether the master was negligent in failing to warn employe was for jury. Anderson v. Chicago Brass Co., 127 Wis. 273, 106 N. W. 1077.

30. Evidence held to show operator of questions of fact to be determined by reference to the character of the risk or danger in issue, and the age, capacity and experience of the employe concerned.[31]

(§ 3) E. Fellow-servants.[32]—The master is charged with the duty of exercising ordinary care to employ and retain in his service only such servants as are reasonably competent to perform their intended duties.[33] He is accordingly liable for injuries to a servant resulting approximately from the incompetency of a fellow-servant,[34] if he had actual or implied knowledge of such incompetency[35] and failed to warn the injured employe.[36] Notice to a foremen who has power to discharge for incompetency is notice to the master.[37] If the master has provided reasonably competent servants to perform certain duties, he is not liable for the selection of an incompetent servant by one not a vice-principal.[38]

saw was properly warned. Davis v. Queen City Furniture Mfg. Co., 116 La. 1070, 41 So. 318.

31. Whether it is incumbent on a master to warn his servant of the hazards attending the business in which he is engaged must be determined from the facts and circumstances shown to exist. Central Granaries Co. v. Ault [Neb.] 106 N. W. 418. Warning to beware of knives and slitters in slitting machine was not sufficient to warn girl of fifteen of danger from set screws which could not be seen when machine was moving. Van de Bogart v. Marinette & Menominee Paper Co., 127 Wis. 104, 106 N. W. 805. Instruction given operator of elevator held sufficient performance of master's duty. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. of the U. S. v. Tolbert [C. C. A.] 145 F. 338.

32. See 6 C. L. 553.

33. Master owes same degree of care as to original selection and as to retention of employes. Staunton Coal Co. v. Bub, 119 Ill. App. 278.

Incompetency means want of ability suitable to the task, either as regards natural qualities or experience, or deficiency of disposition to use one's abilities and experience properly. Hamann v. Milwaukee Bridge Co., 127 Wis. 550, 106 N. W. 1081. Foreman, in service two years, had had general experience with machinery and with moving it, but had never before moved a machine like the one in question. No accidents had previously occurred while work was being done under his direction. Held, evidence did not show him to be incompetent. Id. Evidence held sufficient to prove incompetency and habitual carelessness of an employe engaged in raising hoisting hooks. Johnson v. St. Paul & W. Coal Co., 126 Wis. 492, 105 N. W. 1048. Whether engineer and brakemen, who caused conductor's death, were incompetent, held a question for jury. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Wyatt's Adm'r, 29 Ky. L. R. 437, 93 S. W. 601. Where fellow-servants pushed a car against a ladder on which plaintiff was standing notwithstanding warning cries, which, being in English, they could not understand, the master was held not negligent, since an accident from their inability to understand English was not reasonably to have been foreseen. Date v. New York Glucose Co., 100 N. Y. S. 171. An allegation of negligence in employing an incompetent servant is not sustained by proof of the one negligent act of the servant which resulted in the injury complained of. The Elton [C. C. A.] 142 F. 367. Whether master used ordinary care in selecting servant to haul lumber on a truck, held a question for the jury, where a piece of lumber was dropped down upon plaintiff. Ingram v. Hilton & Dodge Lumber Co., 125 Ga. 658, 54 S. E. 648. Whether company was negligent in putting inexperienced man in charge of train as engineer, held a question for jury. Russ v. Central Vermont R. Co., 78 Vt. 424, 63 A. 134.

34. If person in charge of blasting, who directed plaintiff to clean out a hole in which there remained an unexploded charge, was incompetent and unfit for such work, and master was negligent in employing him, plaintiff could recover. Ramage Paper Co. v. Bulduzzi [C. C. A.] 147 F. 151. Evidence insufficient to show that lack of strength of a fellow-servant of plaintiff, who helped him move a wheel, contributed to produce an injury caused by the falling of the wheel. Beardsley v. Murray Iron Works Co., 129 Iowa, 675, 106 N. W. 180. Officers and agents of ship company were intoxicated and operated loaded apparatus recklessly and without regard to employes in the hold. Company was liable for an injury caused by lowering freight at too great a speed, whereby employe's leg was crushed, he having no warning and being engaged in performing his duties. Melse v. Alaska Commercial Co., 42 Wash. 356, 84 P. 1127.

35. Evidence insufficient to charge master with actual or implied knowledge of alleged incompetency of a fellow-servant, who struck plaintiff. Andrews v. Reiners, 111 App. Div. 435, 97 N. Y. S. 674. Railroad company's rules made it the duty of the yardmaster to call out crews for trains and to see that only competent brakemen were put on. A complaint by a conductor to the yardmaster of the incompetency of brakemen was notice to the company, and a promise by the yardmaster to call out competent men for the next trip, relied on by the conductor, relieved him from the assumption of the risk. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Wyatt's Adm'r, 29 Ky. L. R. 437, 93 S. W. 601.

36. Where employers were chargeable with knowledge that blacksmith's helper had been drinking to excess and that when in that condition was likely to be unsafe as a helper, it was their duty to so inform the blacksmith. Curtis v. Laconia Car Co. Works, 73 N. H. 516, 63 A. 400.

37. Johnson v. St. Paul & W. Coal Co., 126 Wis. 492, 105 N. W. 1048.

38. Master not liable where, in foreman's absence, an incompetent oarsman was substituted to row plaintiff from his place of

When employes, as a condition of accepting employment, insist upon the employer's yielding to them and to the labor unions to which they belong the right to select workmen for a particular piece of work and to superintend the performance thereof, the employer is not liable for injuries resulting from the incompetency or negligent acts of workmen so employed.[39]

The master is not liable for an injury inflicted upon one of his employes by the tortious act of another outside the course of his employment,[40] and this it true though the co-employes are not fellow-servants.[41] It is held in Kentucky that an employe can recover for injuries caused by the act of a superior only upon proof that such superior was guilty of gross negligence.[42] It is held in Washington that when a foreman or superintendent, without the knowledge of other workmen, negligently sets in motion an agency fraught with danger, he renders the master responsible for the results of such negligence.[43] A Tennessee statute compels mine owners to employ certificated mine foremen and penalizes a failure to do so, but the control of the mine foreman in respect to the duties set out in the act is taken from the mine owner and the foreman's faithful discharge of his duties under the act secured by the imposition of penalties. It is held that a mine owner is not liable for the negligence of such a mine foreman in the discharge of duties required by the act to be performed.[44]

A master who has used due care in the selection and retention of employes is not, at common law,[45] liable to servants for injuries resulting from the negligence of fellow-servants,[46] such negligence being an assumed risk.[47] work, a competent man having been furnished by the master. Chrismer v. Bell Tel. Co., 194 Mo. 189, 92 S. W. 378.

39. Farmer v. Kearney, 115 La. 722, 39 So. 967.

40. Master not liable where one employe threw oil on a kiln fire burning another who was on the side of the kiln. Younkin v. Rocheford [Neb.] 107 N. W. 853. An employe was injured, but foreman refused to allow him to quit, and promised to give him lighter work. The employe continued, and was given heavier work and was injured further. Held the master was not liable for the additional injury, since the foreman had acted beyond the scope of his authority. Hasty v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 97 S. W. 433.

41. Younkin v. Rocheford [Neb.] 107 N. W. 853.

42. Mere fact that train stopped with a jerk, injuring a brakeman in the caboose, held not proof of gross negligence. Groves v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 725, 96 S. W. 439.

43. To loosen a hub from the shaft of a propeller it was heated, and the superintendent then struck it with a sledge and hot oil spurted out and burned an employe assisting in the work. The act of the superintendent was held one for which the master was responsible. Creamer v. Moran Bros. Co., 41 Wash. 636, 84 P. 592.

44. Construing Acts 1903, c. 237. Sale Creek Coal & Coke Co. v. Priddy [Tenn.] 96 S. W. 610.

45. For modification of common-law doctrine. See post, Fellow-servant statutes.

46. Shuster v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. [Del.] 62 A. 689; Gawne Co. v. Fry, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 317; Groves v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 1291, 97 S. W. 340. If master has exercised ordinary care in the selection of employes, he is not liable to an employe for injuries caused by negligence of fellow-servant. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Wyatt's Adm'r, 29 Ky. L. R. 437, 93 S. W. 601. Fall of elevator held to have been caused solely by negligent act of fellow-servant. Latting v. Owasso Mfg. Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 369. Longshoreman was killed by falling of hatch cover which had been improperly placed by fellow employes. No recovery. McDonnell v. Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 480. No liability for acts of fellow-servant in the absence of negligence in employing one who is incompetent. Smith v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 141 F. 192. Master not liable where grating in floor was removed by fellow-servant of one who fell through. Horrigan v. Boston El. R. Co., 190 Mass. 577, 77 N. E. 634. No recovery for injury caused by falling of angle iron during building construction through negligence of fellow-servants. Marshall v. Norcross, 191 Mass. 568, 77 N. E. 1151. Servant employed to take lumber from rollers in rear of gang saw in a saw mill was struck by a board on the rollers which was pushed against him solely by reason of the gang sawyer's failure to stop the cart. Held no recovery, the negligence which caused the injury being that of fellow-servant. Vik v. Red Cliff Lumber Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 469. Where employe was engaged in clearing away broken ice under an ice chute used to load ice on cars, and was injured by block of ice pushed down upon him by a fellow-servant, there was no liability of the master at common law. Beleal v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [N. D.] 108 N. W. 33. Master not liable for death caused by falling of iron negligently piled by fellow-servant of decedent. Barsa-

Negligence of a fellow-servant will not, however, defeat a recovery, unless it was the sole cause of the injury.[48] If negligence of the master concurred with negligence of a fellow-servant in producing the injury, so that the injury would not have resulted had the master exercised due care, he is liable.[49]

lou v. Pierce, 109 App. Div. 506, 96 N. Y. S. 538. Where death of engineer in collision was caused by violation of company's rules by fellow-servants of the engineer, the company was not liable. Spangler v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 213 Pa. 320, 62 A. 919. When working portion of mine was properly ventilated, in accordance with the Federal statute, and danger signals put up to keep employes out of parts not ventilated, an explosion caused by a fellow-servant going beyond the "dead line" with a lamp would not make the mine operator liable. Central Coal & Coke Co. v. Gregory [Ark.] 93 S. W. 56. The civil law doctrine that a master, without fault, is liable for negligence of a fellow-servant is not recognized by the Civil Code or jurisprudence of Louisiana. By Rev. Civ. Code, art. 2320, masters are only responsible when they might have prevented the act and have not done it. Weaver v. Goulden Logging Co., 116 La. 468, 40 So. 798. In departing from the letter of this restriction as not applicable to corporations, the supreme court has adopted the common-law fellow-servant doctrine in a modified form. Id.

47. The occasional negligence of a fellow-servant is one of the ordinary risks assumed by the contract of employment. Hamann v. Milwaukee Bridge Co., 127 Wis. 550, 106 N. W. 1081. The servant assumes the risk of the negligence of his superior fellow-servant in the direction of the men and of the work to the same extent that he assumes the risk of negligence of the fellow laborer performing work at his side. American Bridge Co. v. Seeds [C. C. A.] 144 F. 605.

48. The Hamilton [C. C. A.] 146 F. 724. In order that a master may claim exemption from liability for injuries to a servant on the ground that the negligent act was that of a fellow-servant the master must have exercised reasonable care to prevent injury. Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Co. v. Weeks, 72 Kan. 190, 83 P. 406.

49. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Doughty, 77 Ark. 1, 91 S. W. 768; The Luckenbach, 144 F. 980; Kraft v. Neunkirchen, 119 Ill. App. 369; Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460; Root v. Kansas City Southern R. Co., 195 Mo. 348, 92 S. W. 621; Howard v. Beldenville Lumber Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 48. Master liable where negligence of vice-principal concurred with that of fellow-servants to produce injury. Archer Foster Const. Co. v. Vaughn [Ark.] 94 S. W. 717; New Ohio Washed Coal Co. v. Hindman, 119 Ill. App. 287; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Kimmel, 221 Ill. 547, 77 N. E. 936. Where negligence of the master is made to appear, he is not relieved from liability by reason of the fact that negligence of a fellow-servant cooperated to produce the injury complained of. Gordon v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 129 Iowa, 747, 106 N. W. 177. Negligence of fellow-servants in failing to observe a rule to keep floors free from loose articles will not excuse the master for an injury caused by an article falling through an opening in the floor negligently left unguarded by the master. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475. Nor would fact that fellow-servants negligently loosened such article and caused it to fall excuse the master. Id. Where master negligently failed to take measures to protect, by proper rules, workmen employed in killing pens, the fact that negligence of a fellow-servant was the immediate cause of an injury did not relieve the master. Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Co. v. Weeks, 72 Kan. 190, 83 P. 406. If injury is produced by combined negligence of a fellow-servant and of the master in failing to provide a reasonably safe place or appliances, the master is liable. Johnson v. Christie, 117 La. 911, 42 So. 421. In case of fellow-servants, the master is liable when his own negligence contributed to the injury, as where an employe in a sawmill carelessly pitched a shovel, which, rebounding, struck and released an unsafe wooden latch holding the lever which controlled the operation of a carriage. Payne v. Georgetown Lumber Co., 117 La. 983, 42 So. 475. Where evidence warranted a finding that defective derrick was proximate cause of injury, whether negligence of fellow-servant contributed to produce injury was immaterial. Butler v. New England Structural Co., 191 Mass. 397, 77 N. E. 764. Where derailment was caused by defective rail, the fact that motorman, conductor's fellow-servant, ran the car at an excessive speed, conductor not being responsible for this, would not relieve the company from liability for conductor's injuries. Moore v. St. Louis Transit Co., 193 Mo. 411, 91 S. W. 1060. Where railroad company was negligent in not promulgating certain rules for the government of crews of trains passing each other, negligence of servants in not heeding certain signals did not relieve the master. Ryan v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 99 N. Y. S. 794. If master supplied unsafe place, negligence of fellow-servant concurring to produce injury was no defense. Cadigan v. Glens Falls Gas & Elec. Light Co., 112 App. Div. 751, 98 N. Y. S. 954. Where foreman negligently failed to inform an inexperienced miner that a blast had been fired during his absence, rendering the room dangerous, the master was liable for an injury caused by falling coal, though the act of a fellow-servant was the immediate cause of the fall of the coal. Pocabontas Collieries Co. v. Williams, 105 Va. 708, 54 S. E. 868. Where negligence of the master in failing to make the place of work secure by providing a system of signals to announce the starting of a logging engine contributed to produce an employe's injury, concurring negligence of a fellow-servant was no defense. Conine v. Olympia Logging Co., 42 Wash. 50, 84 P. 407. Where master negligently maintained exposed cog wheels, negligence of a fellow-servant in suddenly starting the machine, concurring with the master's negligence to produce injury, did not relieve the master from liability. Williams v. Ballard Lumber Co., 41 Wash. 338, 83 P. 323. The task

Determination of relation. Common-law rules.[50]—What facts are essential to the existence of the fellow-servant relation between two or more employes is a question of law; the existence of such facts in a particular case is a question of fact.[51]

It is essential to the existence of the fellow-servant relation that the employes have a common master.[52] It is commonly held that employes of a common master, working together in a common enterprise,[53] or performing duties tending to the

of moving a heavy iron wheel is not of such peculiar danger that the master, having directed three experienced employes to perform it, is required to supervise the work and guard against the negligence of one of them. Whitley v. Evans, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 41.

50. See 6 C. L. 555.

51. While in certain cases it may be a question of law and entirely for the court to determine as to whether the negligent employe was the superior of the injured one, the rule is still in force in Ohio that the question whether one servant is the superior of another should be determined by the evidence presented in each case. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Burtscher, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 137. Whether employe at work in trench was fellow-servant of foreman who directed him to tamp back the earth in the trench. Johnson v. St. Paul Gas Light Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 816. In Illinois the existence of the fellow-servant relation is a question of fact, except where the facts are conceded and show beyond question that the relation does or does not exist. Illinois Steel Co. v. Ziemkowski, 220 Ill. 324, 77 N. E. 190. Jury should be instructed to find if relation existed; they should not be told to find whether two employes so co-operated or associated that they exercised an influence over each other promotive of caution. Id.

52. Servants of an independent contractor are not fellow-servants of the general employer's servants, though all are engaged in common employment. Lookout Mountain Iron Co. v. Lea, 144 Ala. 169, 39 So. 1017. Subordinate officers and crew of vessel held not fellow-servants of master who represented owner of vessel. The Hamilton [C. C. A.] 146 F. 724. Owner of hod elevator furnished it, in charge of his own engineer, to a building contractor for an agreed price. The engineer was not a fellow-servant of a servant of the contractor in charge of the building. McDonough v. Pelham Hod Elevating Co., 111 App. Div. 585, 98 N. Y. S. 90. A switchman of a company owning yards was killed by the negligence of servants of another company, engaged in switching. The deceased and the negligent men were not fellow-servants, since they were employed by different companies, even though the yardmaster directed the place where cars were to be placed. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Bovard, 223 Ill. 176, 79 N. E. 128. Plaintiff, employed by owner of building, and another, employed by a contractor engaged in doing different work on same building, were not fellow-servants. Fisher v. Minegaux [N. J. Law] 63 A. 902. Employe hired by station agent to work about the depot was not the fellow-servant of a porter of a passenger train hired by others. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Nichols [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 742, 92 S. W. 411. The employment of a physician by a railroad company to care for injured employes and passengers does not make the physician and operatives of a train fellow-servants when the physician was going to attend a patient of his own. Tingley v. Long Island R. Co., 109 App. Div. 793, 96 N. Y. S. 865. An apprentice is a fellow-servant of employes with whom he is engaged in a common employment, though he receives no pecuniary compensation for his services. "Student brakeman" held fellow-servant of other employes operating freight train. Weisser v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 148 Cal. 426, 83 P. 439.

53. Locomotive wiper and mechanic were fellow-servants while assisting each other in making repairs on an engine. Schneider v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 117 Mo. App. 129, 94 S. W. 730. Employes who were fellow-servants in their ordinary work continued to be such when going to and from their work together. Kappes v. Brown Shoe Co., 116 Mo. App. 154, 90 S. W. 1158. Foreman and member of repair crew in railroad shops held fellow-servants where foreman ordered car raised without placing more supports under it and ordered employe to do work under the car, which fell upon him. McClure v. Detroit Southern R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 846, 109 N. W. 847. Gang sawyer and man engaged in taking lumber from rollers back of the saw in a saw mill held fellow-servants. Vik v. Red Cliff Lumber Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 469. Servant engaged in excavating trench and foreman directing work and actively engaging therein were fellow-servants engaged in common employment. Rocco v. Gillespie Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 117. Lineman, foreman, and driver of repair wagon, were upon wagon while repairs were being made on wires. Foreman told driver to turn wagon, and driver turned too short, overturning wagon and injuring lineman. Held all three were fellow-servants. Hayes v. Jersey City, etc., R. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 119. Concrete mixer held fellow-servant of carpenters and employes engaged in sweeping rubbish into basement, all being engaged in common work of construction of building. Armour & Co. v. Dumas [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 47, 95 S. W. 710. Plaintiff, with others, was trying to move a rock with crow bars when the rock, or a bar, slipped, and plaintiff's bar was pushed against his leg, injuring him. Held master not liable, since injury resulted from act of fellow-servant. Pitts v. Centers [Ky.] 98 S. W. 300. Servant engaged in hauling and unloading rock allowed one to roll down the hill and strike plaintiff who was engaged in taking rock so rolled down and placing them in position. The two were fellow-servants. Martin v. Mason-Hoge Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 1333, 91 S. W. 1146. Where bystander was called in by station agent to assist in moving cars during a fire in the station, the person so called became a fellow- servant of a section hand engaged in the same work, and for the latter's negliaccomplishment of the same general end or purpose,[54] are fellow-servants, though not at the time in question engaged in the same operation or on the same particular piece of work.[55]

The rule most frequently applied is that it is not the rank of an employe, nor the authority he exercises over the employes, but the nature of the duty or service he performs, which determines whether he is a vice-principal or a fellow-servant.[56]

gence, the former could not recover from the company. Jackson v. Southern R. Co., 73 S. C. 557, 54 S. E. 231. Servant discharging blasts held fellow-servant of one who hauled away debris; former's negligence did not render employer liable to latter. McMahon v. Bangs [Del.] 62 A. 1098. Where unloading of vessel was under control and direction of a master stevedore employed by the consignee of the cargo, and winchmen of the vessel worked with employes of the stevedore, winchmen and stevedores were fellow-servants, being engaged in common employment under same direction and control. The Elton [C. C. A.] 142 F. 367. Z. was one of a gang of laborers employed by the railroad company to remove in wheelbarrows a large pile of iron ore. The men were paid by the ton, and the pay of the boss was taken out of the proceeds of the work and pro rated among the men. The boss, after endeavoring for some time to loosen a mass of frozen ore, abandoned the effort, and a short time thereafter the mass fell and Z. was injured. Held that no liability on account of the accident attached to the company for which the work was being done. Zarembski v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 185.

54. Where employes are in the service and subject to the general control and direction of a common master, and the labor of such conduces to the accomplishment of the same general purpose for which they were employed, they are fellow-servants. Ingram v. Hilton & Dodge Lumber Co., 125 Ga. 685, 54 S. E. 648. Employe on construction cars, shovelling dirt between cars, which is pushed there by a plow attached by cable to an engine, held a fellow-servant of the engineer. No recovery for injury caused by sudden starting of engine when such shoveler was assisting in adjusting the plow. Bradford Const. Co. v. Heflin [Miss.] 42 So. 174.

55. Mate and floatman belonging to same crew, having same employer, and engaged in common object, though of different rank, and working on different lines to accomplish the undertaking are fellow-servants, and floatman cannot recover for injuries caused by mate's negligence. Smith v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 141 F. 192. Employe in brick factory, struck by car which another employe had failed to block, held fellow-servant of latter. Blonski v. American Enameled Brick Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 909. Errand boy held fellow-servant of man employed to test firearms. Church v. Winchester Repeating Arms Co., 78 Conn. 720, 63 A. 510. Engineer in charge of engine and derrick used to hoist girders, and employe whose duty it is to place girders on pillars, held fellow-servants. Cooper's Adm'r v. Daniels Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 1172, 96 S. W. 1100. Member of railroad construction gang was injured by construction train running into him without warning. Foreman, who gave the order to move the cars, did not control the machinery by which cars were moved, nor did it appear that he knew of plaintiff's dangerous position. Held, failure to give warning was negligence of the engine man, who was plaintiff's fellow-servant. Burrman v. Grand Trunk Western R. Co., 143 Mich. 689, 13 Det. Leg. N. 111, 107 N. W. 709. Boatman employed to row employes to and from a barge used in connection with work of repairing a cable was not a vice-principal and his act of allowing an incompetent oarsman to row would not make master liable. Chrismer v. Bell Tel. Co., 194 Mo. 189, 92 S. W. 378. Servant was injured while riding on a car from one switch to another, being engaged in cleaning switches, and having given an employe's ticket to the conductor. Held he was a fellow-servant of negligent operator of car and could not recover for injuries received while on it. Shannon v. Union R. Co., 27 R. I. 475, 63 A. 488. Fact that work was done on Sunday, contrary to statute, did not charge master for negligent servant's act. Id. Motormen of two freight electric cars, used to haul beer, the two cars being operated on no fixed schedule but according to arrangements made between the motormen, were fellow-servants. Grimm v. Olympia Light & Power Co., 42 Wash. 119, 84 P. 635. Motorman and conductor of one street car are fellow-servants of motorman and conductor of another car on the same line where both cars are run on a regular schedule and pass each other by the use of the block light system; hence, failure of one motorman to turn on a light, and of his conductor to fail to see that it was on, is negligence of a fellow-servant for which a motorman on the other car cannot recover. Berg v. Seattle, etc., R. Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 34. Servant engaged in pouring vitriol from carboy held fellow-servant of superintendent of bleaching department. Bryan v. Gaffney Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 9.

56. The true test is the character of the act from which injury results. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460. The character of the duty entrusted to the negligent servant, and not whether he is a superior of the injured employe, or is in charge of a separate department, determines whether he is a vice-principal or fellow-servant. Ricker v. Central R. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 1068. The question does not depend upon the rank or grade of the negligent servant but upon the nature or character of the act in the performance of which the injury was caused. Gereg v. Milwaukee Gas Light Co., 128 Wis. 35, 107 N. W. 289. A foreman under whom workmen are employed is a fellow-servant with the workmen when engaged in accomplishing with them the common task or object, but when discharging or assuming to discharge the duties toward the workmen which the law imposes on the

The duty of the master to use ordinary care for the safety of his employes being personal and nondelegable,[57] any person charged with, or engaged in the performance of, any part of that duty is a vice-principal for whose negligence in the performance of such duty the master is liable.[58] Thus, persons charged with, or engaged in the performance of, the duty of the master to provide a reasonably safe place of work,[59] or reasonably safe appliances,[60] or to direct the mode of work,[61] or to warn[62] or to properly instruct[63] employes, or to inspect[64] and keep in repair[65] master, is a vice-principal. Christ v. Wichita Gas, Elec. Light & Power Co., 72 Kan. 135, 83 P. 199.

Contra: The rule that a servant is a vice-principal of his master only when executing the absolute and nonassignable duties of the master has not been established in Georgia. Moore v. King Mfg. Co., 124 Ga. 576, 53 S. E. 107.

57. Duty to provide a reasonably safe place is personal to the master and cannot be delegated. Gereg v. Milwaukee Gas Light Co., 128 Wis. 35, 107 N. W. 289; Johnson v. Terry & Tench Co., 113 App. Div. 762, 99 N. Y. S. 375. Duty to warn and instruct, where it exists, cannot be delegated. Vohs v. Shorthill & Co., 130 Iowa, 538, 107 N. W. 417. Acts 1881, p. 238, c. 170, § 8, requiring mine operators to hire competent mine bosses to look after safety of men does not relieve the master from liability for negligence of a boss. Smith v. Dayton Coal & Iron Co., 115 Tenn. 543, 92 S. W. 62.

58. Haun v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 379. If the negligent servant is at the time discharging one of the personal duties of the master, he is a vice-principal. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460. Mine manager and examiner charged with certain duties for the protection of miners by Laws 1899, pp. 315, 317, §§ 16, 18, are vice-principals, and owner is liable for injuries caused by their failure to perform such duties. Henrietta Coal Co. v. Martin, 221 Ill. 460, 77 N. E. 902. Electric lineman went out with foreman to make repairs and foreman telephoned to have current turned off and told lineman " all right go ahead." Lineman received a shock and was killed. Held the foreman was a vice-principal, discharging a duty of the master as to the employe's place of work. Christ v. Wichita Gas, Elec. Light & Power Co., 72 Kan. 135, 83 P. 199.

59. Quarry foreman whose duty it was to see that quarry was reasonably safe was vice-principal. Black's Adm'r v. Virginia Portland Cement Co. [Va.] 55 S. E. 587. The furnishing of a place to work is a part of the master's duty, and in the discharge of that duty he is responsible for the negligence of any of his employes. Neagle v. Syracuse, etc., R. Co., 185 N. Y. 270, 77 N. E. 1064. An employe whose duty it is to keep a passageway cleared and safe represents the master. Beardsley v. Murray Iron Works Co., 129 Iowa, 675, 106 N. W. 180.

60. Where negligence complained of concerns master's duty to provide reasonably safe appliances, the fellow-servant doctrine does not apply. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Sawusch, 119 Ill. App. 349. Duty to properly load cars on which servant was furnished transportation to and from work was part of master's duty to servant; hence, master liable for negligence of a servant in performance of it. Tanner v. Hitch Lumber Co., 140 N. C. 475, 53 S. E. 287. A superintendent who is directed to put up a pile driver for use of employes the next day is a vice-principal, and for his negligence in staying the appliance the master is responsible. Wilder v. Great Western Cereal Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 789.

61. Where foreman directed a derrick boom to be swung round before the derrick was fastened, so that it tipped over, the negligence was that of a vice-principal directing the mode of the work, and his act in making the place of work unsafe made the master responsible. Ball v. Megrath [Wash.] 86 P. 382. Master liable where mill foreman caused machinery to run at excessive speed, causing a wheel to burst, injuring plaintiff. Stecher Cooperage Works v. Steadman [Ark.] 94 S. W. 41.

62. Foreman whose duty it was to warn employe of latent dangers in work of blasting with dynamite was a vice-principal. Archer Foster Const. Co. v. Vaughn [Ark.] 94 S. W. 717. Foreman of section crew, whose duty it was to warn crew of approach of train, was a vice-principal. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Mathis, 76 Ark. 184, 91 S. W. 763. Servant to whom duty to warn when steel blowing operation reached dangerous stage was delegated held vice-principal. Illinois Steel Co. v. Ziemkowski, 220 Ill. 324, 77 N. E. 190. Negligence of night watchman in failing to discover and give warning of fire held imputable to the master. Dakan v. Chase & Son Mercantile Co., 197 Mo. 238, 94 S. W. 944. Duty of engineer in a sawmill to give a signal before starting machinery is a duty of the master, and his failure to give it, whereby a saw filer was injured, was the act of a vice-principal. Comrade v. Atlas Lumber & Shingle Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 517. Where duty to warn employe that place where he was working was unsafe devolved on his foreman, he being the highest in authority on the ground, the foreman, as to such duty, was a vice-principal, not the fellow-servant of the employe. Low Moor Iron Co. v. La Bianca's Adm'r [Va.] 55 S. E. 532.

63. See 6 C. L. 558, n. 98.

64. Negligence of foreman in failing to inspect a hand car held negligence of the master. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Wilhoit [Ind. T.] 98 S. W. 341. Negligence of chief engineer in failing to discover the presence of water in a motor, which exploded injuring plaintiff, who had been called by the chief to assist in a test, was negligence of a representative of the master, not of a fellow-servant. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Brinkman [C. C. A.] 146 F. 712.

65. Where repairs on elevator required special skill and knowledge, and were not made as a part of the duty of the man using it but was duty of the master, the man who the place and appliances supplied, or to promulgate and enforce reasonable rules and regulations,[66] have been held vice-principals for whose failure to perform the duties entrusted to them, or for whose negligence in the performance thereof, the master has been held responsible. On the other hand, when a master has performed his duties, he may properly entrust the details of his work to employes,[67] and if the act or omission complained of does not pertain to any duty of the master, but is a mere detail of the work which it is the duty of employes to perform, it is the act or omission of a fellow-servant,[68] regardless of the rank or authority of the employe charged therewith.[69] made repairs represented the master in so doing. Hatch v. Pike Mfg. Co., 73 N. H. 521, 63 A. 306.

66. See 6 C. L. 558, n. 2.

67. Where the place itself is reasonably safe but is liable to be rendered unsafe by the sudden approach of cars, the duty to foresee and provide against danger from cars is one which may be delegated. Gereg v. Milwaukee Gas Light Co., 128 Wis. 35, 107 N. W. 289. Foreman of gang of laborers engaged in digging a trench for gas mains held fellow-servant of laborers, and master was not liable for an injury caused by his failure to give warning of approach of a car. Id. In the conduct of the work, except as modified by the employer's liability act, the master is responsible only for his own negligence and that of his alter ego, and not for negligence of a co-servant. Neagle v. Syracuse, etc., R. Co., 185 N. Y. 270, 77 N. E. 1064.

68. Duty to keep in place a plate used between car and platform in unloading cars was duty of gang boss, and not a personal duty of the master. Hence, an injury resulting from failure to replace it was due to negligence of a fellow-servant. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Brown [C. C. A.] 146 F. 24. If master provided barriers to be used when trap door was open, and servants failed to make use of them, whereby an employe fell through, the master would not be liable, the negligence being that of fellow-servants in a detail of the work. Falardeau v. Hoar [Mass.] 78 N. E. 456. A wreck on one track did not obstruct the parallel track. A flagman sent to warn trains coming on the parallel track of the presence of a wrecker on the other track neglected to warn a train when a crane from the wrecker extended over the other track. The flagman was not performing a duty of the master relating to the place of work, but was a fellow-servant of the trainmen. McAuley v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 111 App. Div. 117, 97 N. Y. S. 631. Master is not liable for the manner in which employes remove snow and ice from the track, this having relation to the conduct of the work. The removal of ice from the track before running a snow plow over it is a mere detail of such work. Neagle v. Syracuse, etc., R. Co., 185 N. Y. 270, 77 N. E. 1064. Hence, negligence of a track walker whose duty it was to notify the crew of the presence of ice on the track, would be negligence of a fellow-servant for which master would not be responsible to a fireman on the engine behind the plow. Id. Where master owed no duty to instruct an operator of a mangle, since she was fully apprised of the danger of negligent direction of a foreman as to the manner of doing certain work was negligence in a mere detail of the work for which the master was not liable, in an action at common law. Lynch v. Shanley Co., 112 App. Div. 305, 98 N. Y. S. 406.

69. Servant who had powers of foreman was a fellow-servant of employes with whom he was engaged in the common employment of filling and tamping dynamite into holes for blasting. Archer Foster Const. Co. v. Vaughn [Ark.] 94 S. W. 717. A mere foreman or gang boss is a fellow-servant of men working under and with him. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Brown [C. C. A.] 146 F. 24. Where brick kiln was defective in construction and fell upon plaintiff who was at work upon it, it was held that the act of a "boss," who worked with plaintiff and others on the kiln, which rendered it unsafe, was the act of a fellow-servant, and plaintiff could not recover. Chenall v. Palmer Brick Co., 125 Ga. 671, 54 S. E. 663. The mere fact that one of several servants engaged in common employment has power to control and direct the work of the others does not make him a vice-principal as to all his acts. If an act of his which causes injury relates to his duties as a colaborer, the common master is not liable. Anderson v. Higgins, 122 Ill. App. 454. Pit boss in a mine was not a vice-principal of a miner while assisting him to get his car back on the track after a derailment. Cavanaugh v. Centerville Block Coal Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 303. Foreman not a vice-principal when sent to haul logs out of river with other men. Godfrey v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 117 La. 1094, 42 So. 571. The mere fact that one of several employes working together in the same employment for a common master has authority to direct the movements of the others does not, of itself, constitute such employe a vice-principal. Where pressman and helper were running a press, they were fellow-servants, though the pressman directed the helper and was also foreman of all the employes in the pressroom. Doerr v. Daily News Pub. Co. [Minn.] 106 N. W. 1044. If employe is acting as a mere laborer and engaging in the common employment with other servants, he is a fellow-servant. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460. Assistant superintendent of retail store is fellow-servant of a saleswoman. McDonald v. Simpson-Crawford Co., 100 N. Y. S. 269. Where foreman was assisting plaintiff to untangle a belt and in so doing severed it, whereby plaintiff was injured, the foreman's act was that of a fellow-servant and not of a superintendent. Guilmartin v. Solvay Process Co., 101 N. Y. S. 118. Person who held a ladder upon which plaintiff was at work, and did so negligently, allowing it to fall, was

But the authority conferred upon and exercised by employes is often applied as a test by which to determine whether they are vice-principals.[70] Thus, employes who are placed in the absolute control or management of an entire business, or of a distinct department of the business,[71] or who have charge of a particular piece of work with authority to control and direct the men engaged thereon,[72] are held to represent the master. One who is thus made a representative of the master does not lose his representative character by engaging occasionally in work as a common or ordinary employe.[73] plaintiff's fellow-servant, though he might ordinarily have acted as a superintendent. Korber v. Ottman Lithographing Co., 49 Misc. 462, 97 N. Y. S. 1044. Foreman engaged with a crew in moving a machine from a car, and in planning the method of doing the work and warning the employes of the dangers, is a fellow-servant engaged with the others in details of a common employment. Hamann v. Milwaukee Bridge Co., 127 Wis. 550, 106 N. W. 1081.

70. Where a foreman selected and adjusted a wedge for a girder and the wedge fell through, being too small, and injured plaintiff, the act of the foreman was one for which the master was responsible, even though the act might have been done by a fellow-servant. Sullivan v. Wood & Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 629.

71. Division superintendent held vice-principal as to car inspector. Shuster v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. [Del.] 62 A. 689. One employed as general manager of a business is a vice-principal. Hamann v. Milwaukee Bridge Co., 127 Wis. 550, 106 N. W. 1081. General manager and foreman in charge of local camp and logging operations held vice-principals. Bailey v. Swallow [Minn.] 107 N. W. 727. General superintendent of mine held a vice-principal, and his act in telling a miner that a blast, which injured him, had been discharged, made the master liable. Allen v. Bell, 32 Mont. 69, 79 P. 582. One who had general supervision of men in repair shops, and complete control therein, the shops being a separate and distinct part of defendant's business, was a vice-principal as to a man employed therein. Green v. Washington Oil Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 877. General manager of corporation, with general authority over conduct of business and direction of servants, is a vice-principal as to employes who do the actual labor of the business, though he has no power to employ or discharge. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 91, 91 S. W. 607.

72. Molders held vice-principals as to helpers who were under the molders' orders. Leighton & Howard Steel Co. v. Snell, 119 Ill. App. 199. One who was placed in full control of blasting operations carried on with dynamite, and of the method of preparing and handling the dynamite, and of the employes, was a vice-principal. Pinney v. King [Minn.] 107 N. W. 1127. Declaration charged that plaintiff was standing on a bridge where his chief told him to stand and was struck by pieces projecting from a passing car which had been improperly loaded under direction of the same chief. Held, negligence of a superintendent, and not of a fellow-servant, was charged. Morris v. Brookhaven, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 41 So. 267. Steel blower, whose duties were to superintend and direct other employes in making of steel, and to give warning by a whistle when a blast was to be blown, was not the fellow-servant of one whose duties were only to look after stoppers of receptacles of molten metal. Illinois Steel Co. v. Ziemkowski, 220 Ill. 324, 77 N. E. 190. One who was in complete charge of the work of timbering in a mine, and of the timbermen, was not the fellow-servant of one working under him. Cripple Creek Min. Co. v. Brabant [Colo.] 87 P. 794. Foreman of railroad construction crew engaged in preparing road bed and unloading cinders from cars had power to hire and discharge laborers and to direct movements of train crew engaged in moving cars and placing them. Held such foreman was a vice-principal and not a fellow-servant of a member of the gang. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Kimmel, 221 Ill. 547, 77 N. E. 936. Evidence that employe of street railway company asked for more help in certain work at the barns, and was told to go ahead and help would be furnished, warrants an instruction that one who is empowered to direct workmen and take charge of them is a vice-principal. North Chicago St. R. Co. v. Aufmann, 221 Ill. 614, 77 N. E. 1120. Where defendant's general manager came and took charge of moving of a heavy machine from a car, and failed to order any change in the method adapted, or to warn the employes, the defendant could not escape liability on the theory that a resulting injury was caused by negligence of a fellow-servant. Hamann v. Milwaukee Bridge Co., 127 Wis. 550, 106 N. W. 1081.

73. A foreman who has authority to employ, direct, and discharge employes, renders the master liable if he fails in a duty owed to an employe, though he occasionally engages in work as an ordinary employe. Hollweg v. Bell Tel. Co., 195 Mo. 149, 93 S. W. 262. A foreman operated a saw a short time and left a block of wood lying near it. The regular operator was injured by reason of the block being thrown by the saw. Held foreman was a vice-principal, and, if negligent, the master was liable. Id. A shop foreman, who employed plaintiff and who superintended the employes and work in the shop, was a vice-principal, and he did not become a fellow-servant by occasionally working for a short time on a machine. Moore v. King Mfg. Co., 124 Ga. 576, 53 S. E. 107. Where a foreman, while acting as a mere colaborer, pulled out a plank and made a pile of lumber dangerous and then, as vice-principal, ordered an employe to go to the pile for other lumber, and the pile of lumber fell and injured the employe, the negligent order was the proximate cause of

In some jurisdictions the test applied is the extent to which employes associate in the performance of their usual duties.[74] Thus, it is held that employes engaged in different departments of a business are not fellow-servants.[75] In Illinois the rule is that the relation of fellow-servant must be mutual[76] and that it exists only where the servants are brought into such personal relation either by co-operating in the same work at the time of the injury, or by their usual duties, that they may exercise upon each other an influence promotive of caution.[77] injury and the master was liable. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460.

Railway employes.[78]—Holdings as to the relation existing between railroad employes are collected in the note.[79]

74. Employes in sawmill, not coassociated in the same work, are not fellow-servants. Payne v. Georgetown Lumber Co., 117 La. 983, 42 So. 475. Persons employed by the same master to accomplish one common object and so related in their labors as ordinarily to be exposed to injuries, caused by each other's negligence are fellow-servants. Kenefick-Hammond Co. v. Rohr, 77 Ark. 290, 91 S. W. 179. The coassociation rule has not been adopted in Ohio, and the separate department principle only to a limited extent and in such a manner that it is interwoven with the superior servant doctrine. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Burtscher, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 137.

75. The departmental rule obtains in Missouri. Track laborer held not the fellow-servant of crew of train on which he was riding to work on an employe's pass. Haas v. St. Louis & S. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 90 S. W. 1155. See opinion for many authorities in Missouri and elsewhere.—Ed.

Railway company employe working at a coal dock, under orders of a foreman, held not fellow-servant of locomotive engineer working under yardmaster who hauled coal cars back and forth. Lanning v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 196 Mo. 647, 94 S. W. 491.

76. National Enameling & Stamping Co. v. McCorkle, 219 Ill. 557, 76 N. E. 843. Mere fact that servant injured by crank running on a track knew of the presence of the craneman, and the manner in which he did his work, did not make the two fellow-servants, where it did not appear that the craneman knew of the position and manner of work of the injured man. Id.

77. National Enameling & Stamping Co. v. McCorkle, 219 Ill. 557, 76 N. E. 843; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. White, 209 Ill. 124, 70 N. E. 588; Illinois Steel Co. v. Ziemkowski, 220 Ill. 324, 77 N. E. 190; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Mikesell, 113 Ill. App. 146; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Bovard, 121 Ill. App. 49. Operating crews of two trains on the same road under the same general management may be fellow-servants. Illinois C. R. Co. v. Ring, 119 Ill. App. 294. Skilled workman, at work in a separate room, held not fellow-servant of a common laborer in another room, where they were not so associated as to exercise on each other an influence promotive of caution. Schneider & Co. v. Carlin, 120 Ill. App. 538. Porter and conductor of sleeping car are fellow-servants so far as their duties to watch the car at night are concerned, each serving as watchman a portion of the night. The Pullman Co. v. Woodfolk, 121 Ill. App. 321. One engaged in shoveling snow, under direction of engineer, is not as a matter of law the fellow-servant of a section foreman or his helper, engaged in throwing ties off a train. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Mikesell, 113 Ill. App. 146.

78. See 6 C. L. 562.

79. Yardmaster, brakeman, and conductor held fellow-servants of car inspector who was riding on train which was carrying a car to the repair tracks. Shuster v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. [Del.] 62 A. 689. Head and rear brakemen of train held fellow-servants while engaged in switching. Higgins v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 70 Kan. 814, 79 P. 679. Hostler, in charge of an engine in the yards, held superior of brakeman, assisting in moving a car so that engine could pass. Howard v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 891, 90 S. W. 950. Railroad yard foreman, who gave orders to brakeman and directed him in his work, was not a fellow-servant of the brakeman. Howard v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 891, 90 S. W. 950. Train dispatcher of railroad company who issues orders for movement of trains on a single track road, in the name of the superintendent, and must see to their proper transmission, is not a fellow-servant of a fireman on a locomotive. Ricker v. Central R. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 1068. Engineer and fireman are fellow-servants and latter cannot recover for injury caused by former's failure to inspect water gauge. Healy v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 111 App. Div. 618, 97 N. Y. S. 801. Engineer, running engine from one track to another at an excessive rate, held fellow-servant of switch inspector struck by engine. Keating v. Manhattan R. Co., 110 App. Div. 108, 97 N. Y. S. 137. Within a limited area the duties of a towerman are analogous to those of a train dispatcher, and under the current of authority he stands in the position of superior of an engineer, and where the negligence charged by an injured engineer was in the signals given by the towerman, a verdict supporting that contention will not be disturbed on the ground that they were fellow-servants. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Burtscher, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 137. In Tennessee, an engineer and brakeman on the same train are fellow-servants. Hence, where engineer was not in charge of the train, the brakeman could not recover for an injury in that state caused by the engineers' negligence. Carman's Adm'r v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 280, 92 S. W. 954. Brakeman who signalled to move cars held fellow-servant of another brakeman who was between two cars attaching the air hose. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Vincent [Tenn.] 95 S. W. 179. Fireman being brakeman's fellow-servant, latter could not re-

Statutory modification of common-law fellow-servant doctrine.[80]—The operation of the common-law rule that there can be no recovery for negligence of a fellow-servant has been limited by statute in many states, the limitation being frequently confined to employes of railroad corporations. Such statutes are generally held valid.[81] Other statutes supply tests by which it may be determined whether an employe charged with negligence is the fellow-servant or vice-principal of the injured employe. Decisions under such statutes are grouped in the note.[82] To cover if former's negligence caused injury. Johnson v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 78 Vt. 344, 62 A. 1021.

80. See 6 C. L. 562.

81. As to validity of statutes making railroad companies liable for injuries caused by negligence of fellow-servants, see Beleal v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [N. D.] 108 N. W. 33. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7083, making employes in the service of railroad companies, and having charge of any signal, telegraph office, switchyard, shop, roundhouse, locomotive engine, or train upon a railway, vice-principals, is held valid. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. The Colorado fellow-servant statute (Sess. Laws 1901, p. 161) which in effect renders the employer liable for damages resulting from injuries to or death of an employe caused by negligence of a coemploye in the same manner and to the same extent as if the negligence causing the accident was that of the employer is held valid. Vindicator Consol. Gold Min. Co. v. Firstbrook [Colo.] 86 P. 313. By depriving employers of the defense that the injury was caused by negligence of a fellow-servant, the act does not violate the fourteenth amendment, prohibiting deprivation of property without due process. Id. Const. 1890, § 193, partially abrogating fellow-servant rule in the case of railroad corporations, when construed as excluding railroads operated as adjuncts to the main business of a corporation, rather than as common carriers, does not violate the fourteenth amendment. Bradford Const. Co. v. Heflin [Miss.] 42 So. 174. Laws 1898, p. 85, c. 66, § 1, which partially abrogates the fellow-servant rule as to the employe of "any corporation," is unconstitutional because it applies to all corporations without regard to the nature of the business and the hazards connected therewith, and does not apply to natural persons. Id.

82. Alabama: Code 1896, § 1749, subd. 2, makes a master liable for a personal injury to a servant caused by negligence of any person in the master's service who has any superintendence intrusted to him, while in the exercise of such superintendence. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Holloway, 144 Ala. 280, 40 So. 211. Master liable where superintendent intrusted with superintendence of construction of scaffold failed to personally supervise and inspect it, and the scaffold fell by reason of negligence in its construction by other servants, though competent men were selected, and proper materials supplied, and proper instruction given. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Holloway, 144 Ala. 280, 40 So. 211. To create a liability under Code 1896, § 1749, subd. 2, it must appear that the negligent act relied upon was done while the person entrusted with superintendence was exercising superintendence. Where a foreman was taking the place of a common laborer, and while so engaged caused an injury, the master was held not liable. Smith v. Pioneer Min. & Mfg. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 475. Where engineer took signals from a brakeman and not from a superintendent, whom he did not see, and the brakeman was caught between the cars, there could be no recovery on the theory that the superintendent was negligent as to signals. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. One exercising general superintendence at night over all employes operating a blast furnace, held a superintendent. Williamson Iron Co. v. McQueen, 144 Ala. 265, 40 So. 306. One in charge of gang of men engaged in breaking iron ore into lumps of a size suitable to go into a blast furnace held a superintendent. Williamson Iron Co. v. McQueen, 144 Ala. 265, 40 So. 306.

Arkansas: Train dispatcher and conductor held not fellow-servants of fireman on freight train. Sand. & H. Dig. § 6248. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Doughty, 77 Ark. 1, 91 S. W. 768.

Colorado: Laws 1901, p. 161, is valid. Vindicator Consol. Gold Min. Co. v. Firstbrook [Colo.] 86 P. 313.

Florida: Contributory negligence is a defense under the Florida act. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Byland, 50 Fla. 190, 40 So. 24.

Georgia: Railway employe has right to rely on exercise of ordinary care by coemployes and failure to exercise such care gives right of action. Collins v. Southern R. Co., 124 Ga. 853, 53 S. E. 388.

Indiana: Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7083, makes railroad corporations liable for injuries to employes of such corporations, exercising due care if the injuries are caused by negligence of any person in the service of such corporations having charge of any signal telegraph office, switchyard, shop, roundhouse, locomotive engine, or train upon a railway, etc. The class of vice-principals previously existing is enlarged by this statute. The act is constitutional. It does not impair the obligation of contracts, though applied in the case of an injury to a servant who was employed before the act went into effect. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1036. The act applies to all corporations, companies, partnerships, or persons, engaged in operating railroads, and hence does not deny the equal protection of law. Id. It is not objectionable as a deprivation of property without due process of law, nor as abridging privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States. Id. The defense of assumed risk is not available in an action under the statute. Id. An engineer who was standing between tracks of the defendant waiting for the engine of his train to back down to him, and who was struck by another engine and car, was engaged in defendant's service, and entitled to recover under the statute, if in the exercise of due care. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Foreman ordered railway employe to go upon a bridge pier and remove woodwork, directing the employe specifically how to do it. The foreman then pried a timber loose, to assist in the work, without warning the employe, and caused the employe to fall. Held, the employe was acting under an order, within Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7083, subd. 2. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Pavey [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 529. Where action was under Employers' Liability Act 1893 to recover for negligence of an engineer in charge of the locomotive on which plaintiff worked as fireman, it was proper to refuse to instruct that the engineer and fireman were fellow-servants. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Osborn [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 248. Brakeman may recover for injuries caused by collision owing to negligence of engineers and conductors if himself without fault. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Baker [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 64. Where conductor of train ordered brakeman to go on a car and set a hand-brake at the proper time after car was cut loose, and then negligently failed to cut the car loose, but stopped the engine suddenly, causing the brakeman to fall, the latter was acting under orders of a superior to which he was subject and bound to conform. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Nicholas, 165 Ind. 679, 76 N. E. 522.

Iowa: The ordinary work of a section gang, employed on the track, not connected with any control of a train, is not within the protection of Code, § 2071, making railroad companies liable for negligence of employes in the "use and operation" of the road. Dunn v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 130 Iowa, 580, 107 N. W. 616. Section hand was struck by a crow bar knocked against him by a passing train, the bar having been negligently left too near the track by another section hand. Id.

Massachusetts: St. 1887, c. 270. The act of a person in charge of unloading of schooner in selecting a piece of rope with which to lash a ladder was an act of superintendence. Hourigan v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 738. Employe who was paid more than other men, directed them when to begin and when to stop, and did manual work only when he pleased, was properly found to be a superintendent, no other person being shown to have been in charge of work unloading a cargo. Id. Where engineer placed a ladder against a boiler and told a helper to go up and turn off the steam, the engineer's act was a mere act of assistance and not an act of superintendence, and helper could not rely on engineer's act without investigating ladder to see if it was properly placed. McDonnell v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 548. One who was directed to get in a load of lumber, and who selected servants for this work and directed them therein, was while so engaged a superintendent. Sampson v. Holbrook [Mass.] 78 N. E. 127. Employe's injury due to improper instruction on manner of feeding chopping machine, given by one who was a superintendent, and failure of such person to warn the employe of danger from the knives, rendered the master liable at common law and under Rev. St. c. 106, § 71. Byrne v. Learnard, 191 Mass. 269, 77 N. E. 316.

Mississippi: Const. 1890, § 193, which partially abrogates the fellow-servant rules as to employes of "any railroad corporation," does not apply to a construction company, authorized to own, but not to operate, a railroad. Bradford Const. Co. v. Heflin [Miss.] 42 So. 174. That the constitutional provision authorizes the legislature to extend the provision to other classes of employes does not extend the application of the constitutional provision itself. Id. Section 193 applies only when the danger is one of the hazards connected with the operation of railroad trains. Id. Const. 1890, § 193, is held not to violate the fourteenth amendment. But Laws 1898, p. 85, c. 66, § 1, if applied to roads used as adjuncts of another business, and not simply to common carriers, would be unconstitutional. Id.

Missouri: Rev. St. 1899, § 2873, makes railroad corporations liable for injuries to employes engaged in operating a railroad caused by negligence of other employes. An employe injured while trucking freight from warehouse to a freight car is entitled to the protection of the act. Orendorff v. Terminal R. Ass'n, 116 Mo. App. 348, 92 S. W. 148. Negligence of switch tender in lining switches caused cornering of cars, whereby brakeman was injured. Master liable under Rev. St. 1899, § 2873. Phippin v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 196 Mo. 321, 93 S. W. 410.

Montana: Mont. Laws 1903, p. 156, c. 83, makes railroad corporations liable for injuries caused by negligence of dispatchers, telegraph operators, superintendents, engineers, or any employe having superintendence of any stationary or hand signal. Reinke v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 145 F. 988. This statute does not permit recovery for injury to an employe caused by negligence of the engineer of a stationary engine used to haul a plow over cars of gravel, to unload them. The "engineers" referred to by the act are engineers of locomotives only. Id.

North Carolina: Revisal 1905, § 2646, applies to logging railroads. Liles v. Fosburg Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 39, 54 S. E. 795. Priv. Laws 1897, p. 83, c. 56, applies to a manufacturing corporation which owns and operates a railroad in connection with its manufacturing. Bird v. U. S. Leather Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 727; Hairston v. U. S. Leather Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 847. Priv. Act 1897, p. 83, c. 56, makes all coemployes of railroad companies agents and vice-principals of the company, for whose negligence the company is responsible, whether such employes are in superior, equal, or subordinate positions. Company held liable to employe injured by negligence of helpers shoveling coal from car into tender. Fitzgerald v. Southern R. Co., 141 N. C. 530, 54 S. E. 391. Laws 1903, c. 131, p. 178, making railroad companies liable to an employe for injuries caused by negligence of a coemploye, applies only to those employes engaged in operating railroads, and so exposed to the peculiar dangers attending that business. Beleal v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [N. C.] 108 N. W. 33. Statute held not to apply where servants were engaged in gathering and loading on cars ice for the company; plaintiff, working under ice chute, being injured by a block of ice pushed down upon him by a coemploye. Id.

New York: No recovery under N. Y. Laws 1902, p. 1784, c. 600, for death of longshoreman caused by falling of hatchcover improperly placed by other employes, where it was not shown that negligent servant was a "superintendent," nor that effect was due to negligence of master himself. Mc-Donnell v. Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 480. Foreman in charge of work being done held a superintendent, though there was also a general superintendent; and foreman's act of ordering an engine started without warning plaintiff, who was in a dangerous position, was an act of superintendence. Carlson v. United Engineering Co., 113 App. Div. 371, 98 N. Y. S. 1036. Foreman of crew of bridge repairers assisted them in getting material for a fire to thaw out material to repair a culvert. He put a tie on the track which was struck by a train and thrown against plaintiff. The act of the foreman was that of a fellow-servant, not of a superintendent. Bannon v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 112 App. Div. 552, 98 N. Y. S. 770. "Pusher" in charge of gang of five or six structural ironworkers, whose work was the same as theirs except that he saw that they all worked to advantage, was not a superintendent. Abrahamson v. General Supply & Const. Co., 112 App. Div. 318, 98 N. Y. S. 596. Where action was based on alleged negligence of a superintendent, under the employers' liability act, an instruction allowing a recovery for negligence of defendant was not objectionable as permitting a recovery for negligence of a fellow-servant. Harris v. Baltimore Mach. & El. Co., 112 App. Div. 389, 98 N. Y. S. 440. Where one exercising superintendence directed removal of pier which weakened scaffold, fellow-servant defense was not available. Berthelson v. Gabler, 111 App. Div. 142, 97 N. Y. S. 421.

Ohio: 87 Ohio Laws, p. 150, § 3, provides that every person in the employ of a railroad company, actually having power or authority to direct any other employe of such company, is not a fellow-servant but a superior of such other employe. Also, that every person in the employ of such a company, having charge or control of employes in any separate branch or department, shall be held to be the superior and not the fellow-servant of employes in any other branch or department who have no power to direct or control in the branch or department in which they are employed. Separate trains are held separate branches or departments within the meaning of this statute. Kane v. Erie R. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 682. Hence, where fireman of one train is killed by reason of negligence of engineer of another train, who has control of his own fireman, but is himself under control of the conductor of the train, the company is liable, such engineer being a "superior" as to the fireman who was killed. Id.

Pennsylvania: Act April 4, 1868, § 1 (P. L. 58), provides that when any person shall sustain injury while lawfully engaged or employed on or about the roads, works, depots and premises of a railroad company, or in or about any train or car therein or thereon, of which such person is not an employe, the right of action and recovery in all such cases against the company shall be such only as would exist if such person were an employe. Provided, that the act does not apply to one who is a passenger. Under this act, a news agent and fruit vendor on trains, by contract between company and news company, is employed thereon, and is not a passenger, and the company is not liable for his death caused by negligence of its employes. Smallwood v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 732. Where cars were being operated on siding built for sole use of coal company, and employe of coal company was injured while repairing a car belonging to the railroad company, held deceased was fellow-servant of trainmen, under Act April 4, 1868 (P. L. 58). Miller v. Northern Cent. R. Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 924.

South Carolina: Const. art. 9, § 15, provides that "every employe of any railroad corporation shall have the same rights and remedies for any injury suffered by him from the acts or omissions of said corporations or its employes as are allowed by law to other persons not employes, when the injury results from the negligence of a superior agent or officer, or of a person having a right to control or direct the services of a party injured, and also when the injury results from the negligence of a fellow-servant, engaged in another department of labor from that of the party injured, or of a fellow-servant of another train of cars, or one engaged about another piece of work. A watchman at a railroad crossing is engaged in another department from employes running trains. Betchman v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 140. Where railroad employe was killed as result of conductor's negligence his personal representative had the same remedies as others, not employes, would have. Reed v. Southern R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 218. Flagman was told to obey instructions of conductor and engineer, the conductor being in charge of the train. Engineer and flagman were fellow-servants, and flagman could not recover for negligence of the engineer. Lyon v. Charleston, etc., R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 18. Where a conductor was placed in charge of a train as a special pilot, the company was liable to its engineer for negligence of the conductor. Wilson v. Southern R. Co., 73 S. C. 481, 53 S. E. 968.

Texas: Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4560f, allows a recovery by an employe engaged in operating railroad cars for injuries caused by negligence of a fellow-employe. A servant of a lumber company, which operated a private railroad, injured while working on a train load of telephone poles, unloading poles at proper places, was entitled to the protection of the statute. Mounce v. Lodwick Lumber Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 944, 91 S. W. 240. Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4560h, provides that persons engaged in the common service of a corporation controlling or operating a railroad and employed in the same grade of employment and doing the same character of work or service and working together at the same time and place and at the same piece of work and to a common purpose are fellow-servants. Employes not within these provisions are not. Clerk and warehouseman, working under orders of station agent, and brakeman, working under orders of the conductor of a train, were not fellow-servants, and for the negligence of the brakeman the clerk could recover. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Mohrmann [Tex. Civ App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 649, 93 S. W. 1090. A helper was sent by his foreman to assist the operator of a machine, and placed under the orders of such operator, and in obeying his orders was injured. Held, the operator was a vice-principal of the helper, under Rev. St. 1895, arts. 4560f, 4560g. Sherman v. Texas, etc., R. Co. [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 127, 91 S. W. 561. Where brakeman was injured in collision maintain an action under such a statute notice of the claim for injuries must be given, when the statute so requires.[83] Whether a particular case is within the operation of a fellow-servant statute is a question of law for the court where the facts are undisputed.[84] In Massachusetts there is a statute providing that where an employe of a railroad corporation is killed under such circumstances as would have entitled him to maintain an action for damages if death had not resulted, the corporation shall be liable in the same manner and to the same extent as it would have been if the deceased had not been an employe.[85] Another statute makes a master liable for negligence of one entrusted with and exercising superintendence.[86] It is held that in a case brought under the former, the provisions of the latter cannot be invoked to bar the defense that the death was caused by negligence of a fellow-servant.[87]

(§ 3) F. Risks assumed by servant. Nature of defense.[88]—Assumption of risk is a matter of contract; contributory negligence is a question of conduct.[89]

between engine and water car and rest of train, and evidence showed that he gave proper signals, which were not obeyed or observed by the engineer or fireman a recovery by him was warranted. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Fanning [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 344. Brakeman, lighting lamps in caboose, which was being switched to his train, was engaged in "operating the railroad," within the Missouri statute. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 376, 90 S. W. 926. Gang of railroad employes who use hand car in going to and from work, are engaged in operating a car within the meaning of the statute, while they are putting it on the track, preparatory to going home. Texas, etc., R. Co. v. McCraw [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 368, 95 S. W. 82.

Wisconsin: Where fireman alleged that he was injured just after assisting the engineer to take water on the engine, having stepped from the engine to the track, when the engine was backed down upon him, and that he was working under the engineer's orders, it sufficiently appeared that he was engaged in "operating, running, riding upon, or switching, engines or cars" within Rev. St. 1898, § 1816, entitling him to recover for negligence of the engineer. Gaffney v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 127 Wis. 113, 106 N. W. 810. Finding of jury held to show that he was "riding" on the engine at the time of injury, so as to be entitled to recover. Id.

83. Where a fellow-servant statute of a sister state requires the service of a notice of the claim for injuries on the master, the statute cannot be made the ground of recovery in Illinois unless the required notice has been given. The Pullman Co. v. Woodfolk, 121 Ill. App. 321. Notice of injuries by reason of negligence of coemployes required to be served on railroad companies by Laws 1903, p. 599, c. 393, may be served on the company's ticket agent. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Burgess, 72 Kan. 454, 83 P. 991. Laws 1902, p. 1749, c. 600, § 2, requires notice within one hundred and twenty days. Chisholm v. Manhattan R. Co. 101 N. Y. S. 622. The service of a complaint stating only a cause of action at common law is not sufficient as a notice to entitle plaintiff to maintain an action under the statute for alleged negligence of a superintendent. Id.

84. As where section hand was struck by a crow bar which was knocked against him by a passing train, the bar having been negligently left near the rail by another section hand, the statute was held not to apply. Dunn v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 130 Iowa, 580, 107 N. W. 616.

85. Rev. Laws, c. 111, § 267. Vecchioni v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 191 Mass. 9, 77 N. E. 306.

86. Rev. Laws, c. 106, § 71, cl. 2. Vecchioni v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 191 Mass. 9, 77 N. E. 306.

87. Vecchioni v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 191 Mass. 9, 77 N. E. 306.

88. See 6 C. L. 565.

89. Montgomery v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 73 S. C. 503, 53 S. E. 987. Distinctions between contributory negligence and assumption of risk, as defenses, discussed. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Wilhoit [Ind. T.] 98 S. W. 341. Assumption of risk rests upon contract; contributory negligence arises out of negligence of the servant. Obermeyer v. Logeman Chair Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 59, 96 S. W. 673. The defense of assumed risk rests upon contract, generally implied from the circumstances of the case. It comes within the principle "volenti non fit injuria." Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 77 Ark. 367, 92 S. W. 244. The owner of a building in course of construction requested an independent contractor to hire a man to do certain work, the man being paid by defendant. Held, the relation existing between defendant and the servant so employed was such that defendant was entitled to assert the defense of assumption of risk. Rooney v. Brogan Const. Co., 113 App. Div. 813, 99 N. Y. S. 939. The defense of contributory negligence rests on some fault or omission on the part of the plaintiff and is maintainable when, though defendant has been guilty of negligence, yet, the direct or proximate cause of the injury is the negligence of plaintiff, but for which the injury would not have happened. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 77 Ark. 367, 92 S. W. 244. An instruction that a miner assumes risk of injury by falling of stone from mine roof if he continues to work after learning of the presence of the stone without reporting it as provided by statute is properly refused, since these facts would bear on question of contributory negligence rather than assumption of risk. Diamond Block Coal Co. v.

While the two defenses are separate and distinct, they are not necessarily incompatible,[90] both are frequently available in the same case and under the same state of facts,[91] as where the danger is not only known or obvious, but injury therefrom is so imminent that no person of ordinary prudence would assume the risk.[92] It is said that the defense of assumed risk does not admit negligence of the defendant, as the plea of contributory negligence does, because no right of action can arise where the injury is the result of an assumed risk.[93] But courts do not agree on the question of the real nature of the defense of assumed risk.[94] Thus, it is held in some states that assumption of risk is a form of contributory negligence.[95]

It is usually held that the defense of the assumption of risk is not available where the negligence charged is a violation of a positive statutory duty,[96] and some statutes expressly exclude the defense.[97] Under some statutes, however, the de-

Cuthbertson [Ind.] 76 N. E. 1060. Employe did not assume risk of negligent construction of elevator by continuing in the employment with knowledge of the defect, though he might have been guilty of contributory negligence if the danger was such that an ordinarily prudent person would not have remained and encountered it. Obermeyer v. Logeman Chair Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 59, 96 S. W. 673.

90. While assumption of risk and contributory negligence rest upon different grounds and are separate and distinct defenses, they are not necessarily incompatible, but may and sometimes do arise out of the same facts. Chicago Great Western R. Co. v. Crotty [C. C. A.] 141 F. 913.

91. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 77 Ark. 367, 92 S. W. 244.

92. Chicago Great Western R. Co. v. Crotty [C. C. A.] 141 F. 913.

93. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 77 Ark. 367, 92 S. W. 244.

94. See notes in 6 C. L. 565, and 4 C. L. 568.

95. Wisconsin rule. Johnson v. St. Paul & W. Coal Co., 126 Wis. 492, 105 N. W. 1048. A general question submitted to the jury covering contributory negligence logically includes also assumption of risk, in the absence of a special question covering that phase of contributory negligence. Id. Instruction on assumed risk, without explaining that this was a form of contributory negligence, held erroneous. Anderson v. Chicago Brass Co., 127 Wis. 273, 106 N. W. 1077. A general finding of an absence of contributory negligence is inconsistent with a special finding that the employe knew and understood the danger, where there was no instruction limiting the special interrogatory to contributory negligence. Id.

96. Defense of assumed risk not available where willful violation of mining law was charged. Joseph Taylor Coal Co. v. Dawes, 122 Ill. App. 389. Where a servant under sixteen is employed at extra hazardous work, in violation of the statute, the defense of assumed risk is not available. Helmbacher Forge & Rolling Mills Co. v. Garrett, 119 Ill. App. 166. The doctrine of assumed risk does not apply to relieve a person from the consequence of a breach of a specific statutory duty. Switchman did not assume risk of injury caused by violation of ordinance requiring switch engines to carry lights. Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lawrence [Ind.] 79 N. E. 363. The defense of assumed risk is not available in an action under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7083, making certain railroad employes vice-principals. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Risk of operating emery wheel not provided with exhaust fan to carry off dust as provided by statute not assumed as matter of law. Muncie Pulp Co. v. Hacker [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 770. Risk of injury arising from employer's violation of mining law is not assumed. Diamond Block Coal Co. v. Cuthbertson [Ind.] 76 N. E. 1060. A servant does not assume the risk of a violation of a statutory duty of the master. Violation of statute requiring elevator shafts to be guarded not an assumed risk. Murphy v. Grand Rapids Veneer Works, 142 Mich. 677, 12 Det. Leg. N. 868, 106 N. W. 211. Boy under sixteen employed to run a dangerous machine contrary to Pub. Acts 1901, p. 156, act No. 113, § 3, does not assume the risk of injury from the machine. Sterling v. Union Carbide Co., 142 Mich. 284, 12 Det. Leg. N. 712, 105 N. W. 755. Where a master violated Rev. St. 1899, § 6434, by putting a minor to work on a steam candy roller, the master assumed all risk of injury to the minor while so employed. Nairn v. National Biscuit Co., 120 Mo. App. 144, 96 S. W. 679. It is held in Washington that a failure or refusal to comply with the provisions of the factory act deprives the master of the defense of assumption of risk. Johnston v. Northern Lumber Co., 42 Wash. 230, 84 P. 627. Where master fails to guard a saw, when practicable, as required by Laws 1903, p. 40, c. 37, he cannot assert the assumption of the risk as a defense. Thomson v. Issaquash Shingle Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 588; Miller v. Union Mill Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 130. Sess. Laws 1903, p. 40, c. 37, being in force at the time of an injury governs the right to a recovery, hence, its repeal before trial does not restore the master's right to plead assumption of the risk. Miller v. Union Mill Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 130. Servant held not to have assumed risk from large unguarded circular saw, failure to guard it being a violation of Laws 1903, p. 40, c. 37. Erickson v. McNeeley & Co., 41 Wash. 509, 84 P. 3. If master failed to guard knives of a log chipper, which could be advantageously guarded as required by Laws 1903, p. 40, c. 37, the defense of assumed risk was not open to him. Rector v. Bryant Lumber & Shingle Mill Co., 41 Wash. 556, 84 P. 7.

97. Defense of assumed risk not available where violation of automatic coupler act is charged. Chicago & Alton R. Co. v. Walters, 120 Ill. App. 152. Employe on railroad does fense is available.[98] It may be interposed in cases where the statute does not make the master an insurer of the servant's safety, and where he has made a bona fide effort to comply with its provisions, and has taken adequate precautions against all dangers which an ordinarily prudent person would anticipate.[99]

Dangers incidental to business.[1]—The servant assumes the risk ordinarily incident to the employment in which he engages,[2] and this is so though the employment is necessarily dangerous.[3] Ordinary risks are such as arise from the pernot assume the risk of working with cars not equipped with automatic couplers unless his conduct amounts to recklessness. Hairston v. U. S. Leather Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 847. Brakeman was thrown from pilot of engine because of lack of bar to hold on to, not knowing of the defect when he got on the pilot, and not having had previous opportunity to discover it. He could not be charged with assumption of risk, since Priv. Laws 1897, p. 83, c. 56, §§ 1, 2, giving a right of action, provide that no agreement waiving the benefits of the act shall be valid. Biles v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 512. Revisal 1905, § 2646, which deprives railroad companies operating in the state of the defense of assumption of risk of any defect in the machinery, ways or appliances, applies to logging railroads. Hemphill v. Buck Creek Lumber Co., 141 N. C. 487, 54 S. E. 420. Instruction held to charge in substance Const. art. 9, § 16, that knowledge by an employe injured of the defective or unsafe condition of machinery shall be no defense. Davis v. Northwestern R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 526. By the constitution and statutes of Virginia it is provided that knowledge by a railroad employe of the defective or unsafe character of the ways, shall not of itself bar an action for injuries. Const. 1902, § 162, and Va. Code 1904, § 1294k. Southern R. Co. v. Blanford's Adm'x, 105 Va. 373, 54 S. E. 1. In that state the defense of assumption is to that extent abolished. Knowledge by engineer of fact that no switch light was used would not bar recovery for injuries caused by such defect. Id.

98. Danger from unguarded cog, which was obvious, assumed, notwithstanding failure of master to guard the cogs as required by statute. Stevens v. Gair, 109 App. Div. 621, 96 N. Y. S. 303. Laws Colo. 1897, p. 258, c. 69, requiring railroad companies to block frogs and switch rails, does not take away the defense of assumption of risk. Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Norgate [C. C. A.] 141 F. 247. Under Code Iowa 1897, § 2071, the fellow-servant defense is not available in injuries arising in the use and operation of railways. But where a brakeman undertakes an act, "staking" a car, known to him to be dangerous, the defense of assumption of the risk is available, even though there was prior negligence of a fellow-servant in selecting the mode of switching. Chicago Great Western R. Co. v. Crotty [C. C. A.] 141 F. 913. Under Laws 1902, p. 1750, c. 600, § 3, the question of assumption of risk must be submitted to the jury, even where the negligence alleged is violation of a statutory duty. Failure to guard elevator shaft. Kiernan v. Eidlitz, 100 N. Y. S. 731. Defense of assumption of risk is not precluded by Civ. Code, § 2662, making an employer liable for losses of an employe caused by the former's want of ordinary care. Coulter v. Union Laundry Co. [Mont.] 87 P. 973.

99. Laws 1903, p. 40, c. 37, relating to the guarding of machinery, does not make the master an insurer. Johnston v. Northern Lumber Co., 42 Wash. 230, 84 P. 627. Master held not liable when a machine had been safely operated with guard furnished for three years, and injury was unusual and one which could not reasonably have been foreseen. Id.

1. See 6 C. L. 567.

2. McMahon v. Bangs [Del.] 62 A. 1098. A servant assumes the ordinary risks of his employment and is bound to use his own skill and diligence to protect himself. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Skipper, 125 Ga. 368, 54 S. E. 110. Minor assumes incidental risks the same as an adult. Decatur Car Wheel & Mfg. Co. v. Terry [Ala.] 41 So. 839. Employes who used freight elevator in going to and from work, instead of stairways, assumed the incidental risks. Kappes v. Brown Shoe Co., 116 Mo. App. 154, 90 S. W. 1158. Trackman assumes risks incident to his work and the operation of trains in the usual way. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Gesswine [C. C. A.] 144 F. 56. The jolting of cars which are being uncoupled is a risk assumed by brakemen, though caused by defective coupler. Clark v. New York, etc., R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 96. Servant struck by switch engine while at work on track assumed the risk. Rich v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 112 App. Div. 818, 98 N. Y. S. 678. Concrete mixer engaged on building in course of construction stepped on a nail in board which had been thrown down by other employe. He assumed the risk. Armour & Co. v. Dumas [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 47, 95 S. W. 710. Instruction that brakeman assumed all ordinary risks of his employment approved. De Witt's Adm'r v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 1161, 96 S. W. 1122. Error to refuse to instruct the jury that plaintiff assumed the risk of such injuries from accident as are incident to the nature of the work in which he was engaged, and against which the defendant could not by the exercise of ordinary care have protected him. Gawne Co. v. Fry, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 317. Instruction that "obvious and ordinary" risks are assumed proper, where trial was on theory that risk was an ordinary one. Thomas v. Boston & Montana Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co. [Mont.] 87 P. 972. Boiler maker's helper went inside boiler and another employe, on the outside, struck at a plug they were trying to remove, and a sliver from the plug flew into the helper's eye. The risk was incident to the nature of the work and assumed. Illinois Cent. R. Co v. Young [Ky.] 97 S. W. 1115. Whether a particular risk is usual and ordinary is ordinarily a question of fact. Wabash R. Co. v. Thomas, 117 Ill. App. 110.

3. Ordinary, incidental, risks assumed by entering employment, even if dangerous.

manent, open, visible conditions of the master's business,[4] and which are presumed Graboski v. New Castle Leather Co. [Del.] 64 A. 74. A servant may enter upon employment which is hazardous, and if he does he assumes the necessary known risks. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Holtby, 29 Ky. L. R. 523, 93 S. W. 652. An employe who voluntarily undertakes a dangerous employment with which he is familiar assumes the risks naturally incident thereto. Boy of eighteen assumed risk of operating machine with knives, when he could see the knives and had worked on similar machines. Danisch v. Amer, 214 Pa. 105, 63 A. 416. Employes sent to make a dangerous room in a mine safe assume the risk of injury while so engaged. Kellyville Coal Co. v. Bruzas, 223 Ill. 595, 79 N. E. 309. Miner held to have assumed risk attendant upon making a chamber in a mine. Friel v. Kimberly-Montana Gold Min. Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 734. A servant engaged in a hazardous occupation assumes the risk of injury to himself from all its obvious dangers. Anderson v. Union Stock Yard Co. [Neb.] 109 N. W. 171. Railway switchman assumed risk of injury from obvious defects in roadbed and track. Id. Expert miner assumed risk of working voluntarily in a mine without an air shaft where safety of drill holes could not be tested by squib shots during working hours. Knorpp v. Wagner, 195 Mo. 637, 93 S. W. 961. "Trouble finder" for telephone company was killed by fall caused by shock received from guy wire which he touched as he climbed a cable pole to ascertain what was wrong with a telephone. Held he assumed the risk. Bell Tel. Co. v. Detharding [C. C. A.] 148 F. 371.

4. If a servant, knowing the hazards of the employment and the manner in which the business is conducted, is injured while employed in such business, he cannot maintain an action against the master on account of such injury merely because he may be able to show that there was a safer mode in which the business could have been conducted, and that if it had been conducted in that manner he would not have been injured. Williams v. Sleepy Hollow Min. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 337. Boy of sixteen, sent to carry tools, fell on icy stairway leading to bridge and was injured. Danger was held an assumed risk incident to his employment. American Bridge Co. v. Bainum [C. C. A.] 146 F. 367. Where company used system of ditches in tracks to drain the yards, and switch tender had worked in yards four or five years and knew of these ditches, he could not recover for an injury caused by stepping in a ditch and falling on a rail, having assumed the risk. Haggerty v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 966. Recovery cannot be had for injury resulting from peril with which servant was familiar and which he was bound to incur in his employment. Eckhart & Swan Mill. Co. v. Schaefer, 118 Ill. App. 21. Master having used ordinary care, servant assumes obvious and apparent dangers still remaining in performance of his work. Velzandt v. Friedman Mfg. Co., 118 Ill. App. 339. A railroad employe by entering the employment assumes the risk of all obvious dangers existing at the time he becomes an employe. McLeod v. New York, etc., R. Co., 191 Mass. 389, 77 N. E. 715. Thus he assumes the risk of permanent structures near the track (Id.), even if such structures are unusually near the track (Id.). Danger from building two feet and seven or eight inches from the rail assumed, when deceased had passed it six times prior to his injury and on the same day. Id. Elevator operator assumed risk of elevator shaft being plastered instead of boarded up. McDonald v. Dutton, 190 Mass. 391, 76 N. E. 1055. Servant employed by contractor to unload coal with apparatus of owner assumes risk of using machinery as he finds it; owner is not bound to supply machinery of a better or safer type. Sullivan v. New Bedford Gas & Edison Light Co., 190 Mass. 288, 76 N. E. 1048. Where repairs to cable necessitated use of barge to and from which the employes were conveyed by boat, an employe engaged in such work, and who knew the plan and helped arrange the barge, etc., assumed the risks incident to being rowed from his work on the barge. Chrismer v. Bell Tel. Co., 194 Mo. 189, 92 S. W. 378. Usual, incidental dangers, remaining after the master has exercised due care, are assumed by the servant. Charlton v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 529. Employe of one engaged in blasting operations assumes the obvious risks as they exist at the time or with which he becomes familiar by continuing in the service. Master is not bound to use most approved methods. O'Neil v. Karr, 110 App. Div. 671, 97 N. Y. S. 148. All risks, whether plain or obscure and uncertain, which are incident to the work and cannot be avoided by the exercise of reasonable care by the master, are assumed by the servant, in the absence of an express assumption of them by the master. Lynch v. American Linseed Co., 113 App. Div. 502, 99 N. Y. S. 260. Experienced repairman sent to do work in cab of engine held to have assumed risks. Politowski v. Burnham, 214 Pa. 165, 63 A. 459. Where there was no evidence that railroad employes habitually sent cars down a siding at excessive speed, a section foreman at work in the yards could not be held to have assumed the risk of injury from cars, running at an excessive rate, which struck him. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Turner [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 55, 91 S. W. 562; Id. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 817, 92 S. W. 1074. A servant who is employed to load and unload freight and who assists in devising means to be used in such work, assumes the risk attendant upon such work. Grandin v. Southern Pac. Co. [Utah] 85 P. 357. Section men who work upon the tracks of railroads assume the risk of the running of all trains, regular, special and "wild," including the running of a train at a particular place at an unusually high rate of speed and at a rate violating a city ordinance. Ives v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co., 128 Wis. 357, 107 N. W. 462. Flagman sent out to give warning to train of a crew at work on the track assumed risk of train running into him, without other warning than the usual noise made by a train and the customary signals. Vaundry v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Wis.] 109 N. W. 926. Plaintiff was digging and wheeling sand from a pile which had a frozen crust, and the top, being undermined, fell. He assumed the risk. Livingston v. Saginaw Plate Glass Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 873, 109 N. W. 431.

NOTE. Assumption of risk of landslides or cave-ins: "In Indiana it has been held that to be known and undertaken by the servant when he enters into the employment.[5] The occasional negligence of fellow-servants is an assumed risk within the meaning of this rule,[6] negligence of the master,[7] or of a vice-principal,[8] or of a co-employe for whose acts or negligence the master is made responsible by statute,[9] are not una laborer working in a gravel pit assumes the risk arising from the liability of sand and gravel falling during the process of excavation. Swanson v. Lafayette, 134 Ind. 625, 33 N. E. 1033. Also that a servant who was injured while undermining a bank of gravel and clay below a stratum of earth which fell upon him cannot recover. Railsback v. Wayne County Turnpike Co., 10 Ind. App. 622, 38 N. E. 221; Griffin v. O. & M. R. Co., 124 Ind. 326, 24 N. E. 888. In Missouri, that a laborer engaged in excavating a bank of iron ore assumes the risk incident thereto. Albridge's Adm'r v. Midland Blast Furnace Co., 78 Mo. 559. In Texas, that an employe assumes the risk in going above an overhanging gravel ledge and digging a ditch for the purpose of dislodging the ledge. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Spellman [Tex. Civ. App.] 34 S. W. 298. In Minnesota, that an employer is not liable in a case where the employe was put to work on a hill from which the employer was removing gravel, and while loosening the material while performing his work received injuries. Swanson v. Great Northern R. Co., 68 Minn. 184, 70 N. W. 978. To the same effect. Kletschka v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co., 80 Minn. 238, 83 N. W. 133; Pederson v. Rushford City, 41 Minn. 289, 42 N. W. 1063. In Utah, that a laborer cannot recover for injuries caused by fall of bank caused by undermining the same for the purpose of removing it. Allen v. Logan City, 10 Utah, 279, 37 P. 496. In Wisconsin, that a workman of ordinary intelligence, whether experienced or not, is presumed to know that when a bank of earth is undermined by removing its foundation, it is liable to fall. Naylor v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 53 Wis. 661, 11 N. W. 24. In Tennessee, that an ignorant and illiterate negro laborer must be taken to understand that the sides of a ditch dug in soil which is composed of cinders is liable to fall. Brown v. Chattanooga Elec. R. Co., 101 Tenn. 252, 47 S. W. 415, 70 Am. St. Rep. 666." —From opinion in Welch v. Carlucci Stone Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 392, 394.

5. The servant upon entering the service of the master, impliedly assumes by his contract of hire, for the same compensation, the hazards which result from such risks as are ordinarily incident to the employment. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460. The servant is presumed to know the ordinary risks. It is his duty to inform himself of them, and if he negligently fails to do so he will still be held to have assumed them. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 77 Ark. 367, 92 S. W. 244. Open, apparent, obvious dangers, and dangers which the servant knows, or ought to know, are necessarily incident to his employment, are assumed. Williams v. Ballard Lumber Co., 41 Wash. 338, 83 P. 323; Creamer v. Moran Bros. Co., 41 Wash. 636, 84 P. 592.

6. See, also, ante, § 3 E. Employe was injured by explosion of concealed dynamite cartridge, knowing the danger from cartridges so concealed, which was incident to the work of blasting, and was created by the act of a fellow-servant. He assumed the risk. Dawkins v. Keystone Granite Co., 74 S. C. 419, 54 S. E. 604.

7. See post, Reliance on Care of Master. Negligence on the part of the master is not an assumed risk. Jensen v. Kyer, 101 Me. 106, 63 A. 389; Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Co. v. Weeks, 72 Kan. 190, 83 P. 406. Risk of master's falure to supply reasonably safe place and appliances is not assumed. Jemnienski v. Lobdell Car Wheel Co. [Del.] 63 A 935. Railroad employe assumes ordinary risks, but not risks arising from negligence of the company with reference to the track, unless he knew of the defect. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 790, 91 S. W. 355. Where gallow's frame was built by railroad company and carried from place to place as needed in bridge work and plaintiff assisted only in setting it up, he did not assume the risks of defects in its construction and plan. Farney v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Utah] 87 P. 440.

8. Negligence of vice-principal not assumed. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 91, 91 S. W. 607. Servant held not to have assumed risk of failure of another to give the usual warning when a heat was to be blown through molten metal in process of steel making. Illinois Steel Co. v. Ziemkowski, 220 Ill. 324, 77 N. E. 190. The servant did not assume the risk of the place being suddenly made dangerous by the foreman directing a derrick to be operated in a negligent and unsafe manner. Ball v. Megrath [Wash.] 86 P. 382. Several servants were holding a heavy wheel they had rolled on a flat car and foreman told them to let go. An employe could not get out of the way and was injured. The risk was not incident to his employment. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Metcalf, 29 Ky. L. R. 870, 96 S. W. 525.

9. Negligence of switchtender not assumed by brakeman, under fellow-servant act, Rev. St. 1899, § 2873. Phippin v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 196 Mo. 321, 93 S. W. 410. Miner was killed by a fellow-servant's raising certain guard rails of a shaft before a cage in which he was riding had reached a level, this being contrary to the custom. Held deceased assumed the risk of the manner in which the guard rails were built, but not the risk of their neglient operation (decided under fellow-servant statute). Vindicator Consol. Gold Min. Co. v. Firstbrook [Colo.] 86 P. 313. Negligence of a "superintendent" is not an assumed risk. Baggneski v. Mills [Mass.] 78 N. E. 852. Where section foreman was not connected with work of switching cars, he did not assume the risk of injury by reason of negligence of employes engaged in switching. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Turner [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 55, 91 S. W. 562; Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Turner [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 817, 92 S. W. 1074. While a switchman assumes ordinary risks incident to the boarding of trains in motion, he does not assume the risk of a sudden jerk of the usual or extraordinary risks[10] which the exercise of ordinary care on the part of the master would have obviated,[11] or which are encountered outside the service which the employe was hired to perform,[12] and which ordinary care in the performance of his duties would not disclose,[13] are not assumed. Risks arising from latent defects, not discoverable by the use of ordinary care on the part of the master, and unknown to him, are assumed, though no knowledge of the defect or appreciation of the danger by the servant is shown, such risks being classed as incidental.[14] train, as he is about to board it, caused by negligence of the crew of the train. Worcester v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 548, 91 S. W. 339. Stone mason, at work on railroad culvert, did not assume risk of negligence of a member of a pile driver crew which was at work on a nearby trestle. International, etc., R. Co. v. Muschamp [Tex. Civ. App.] 90 S. W. 706.

Known or obvious dangers.[15]—Risks which are actually known to the servant,[16]

10. Electric linemen assume ordinary risks but not unusual or extraordinary dangers. Zentner v. Oshkosh Gaslight Co., 126 Wis. 196, 105 N. W. 911. Telephone exchange operator assumed ordinary risks of nervous annoyance and irritation that might be reasonably connected with the performance of her duties, but not the risk of dangerous shocks arising from a want of proper repair. Cahill v. New England Tel. & T. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 821. Section hand does not assume risk of being struck by a piece of coal thrown from the tender of a passenger train owing to the tender passing over bad rails. Dean v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. [Mo.] 97 S. W. 910. Where wires become crossed outside the building where deceased was at work, thereby causing a powerful electric current to be diverted and brought into the building on wires not intended to carry such a current, the danger therefrom was not an assumed risk. Belvidere Gas & Elec. Co. v. Boyer, 122 Ill. App. 117. Risk of pile of lumber falling is not an ordinary and incidental risk assumed by an employe in a lumber yard. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Zakzewski, 121 Ill. App. 26. Employe feeding brass sheets into a rolling machine did not as matter of law assume risk of getting hand caught on sliver of a sheet of brass. Anderson v. Chicago Brass Co., 127 Wis. 273, 106 N. W. 1077.

11. Risks assumed are only those incidental and necessary risks which remain after master has exercised due care for the servant's safety. Hinchcliff v. Robinson, 118 Ill. App. 450; Chicago & A R. Co. v. Seevers, 122 Ill. App. 558. Railroad employes assume ordinary risks, but not those arising from master's failure to use ordinary care to inspect and keep safe the place of work. Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Warring [Colo.] 86 P. 305. Risks which can be avoided by the exercise of reasonable care by the master are not assumed by the servant unless they are so plain and certain that it can be said, as a matter of law, that the servant assumed them by working in the face of them. Lynch v. American Linseed Co., 113 App. Div. 502, 99 N. Y. S. 260.

An unusual risk which ordinary care on the part of the master would not have prevented is assumed. Where loaded coal cars were supposed to be started and driven only by drivers, a miner who was struck by a car coming out of a gallery, having been started by an intermeddler, assumed the risk, such an accident having never before occurred. Sommers v. Standard Min. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 697, 109 N. W. 30.

12. The servant does not assume risks which he could not reasonably expect to encounter because outside the scope of his duties. Lyon v. Charleston, etc., R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 18. But to render this rule applicable, it must be shown that the servant was transferred to essentially new duties and that the order under which he acted was negligent. Id. Plaintiff was employed to pile iron and load and unload cars in the yard of a bridge factory, but was called to the shop to help shear a steel plate and was there injured by the falling of a pile of angle irons. He did not assume the risk having been called to do work outside the scope of that which he was employed to do. New Castle Bridge Co. v. Doty [Ind.] 79 N. E. 485. Risks encountered by conductor of train while performing duties outside those for which he is employed, such duties devolving on him on account of a brakeman's illness, are not assumed by the conductor. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Snedaker, 122 Ill. App. 262.

13. See 6 C. L. 568, n. 56.

14. Incidental dangers are assumed even though not open to observation. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Helm [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 460, 93 S. W. 697. Servant assumes risks not discoverable by master by the use of ordinary care. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460. Planing mill employe assumed risk of knife flying off revolving cylinder of machine. Moran v. Mulligan, 110 App. Div. 208, 97 N. Y. S. 7.

15. See 6 C. L. 568.

16. City Water Works v. Lane, 122 Ill. App. 427. Servant assumes not only risks ordinarily incident to his employment, but also such unusual and extraordinary risks as he knows and comprehends. Johnson v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 78 Vt. 344, 62 A. 1021. Servant assumes ordinary risks and those of which he knows or as to which he has been instructed. Dow Wire Works Co. v. Morgan, 29 Ky. L. R. 854, 96 S. W. 530. Experienced employe assumed risk of known defect in handle bar. Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Beasley, 119 Ill. App. 18. Employe who went to work on steam power punching machine, knowing that cogs were unguarded and that the floor near it was greasy and slippery, assumed the risk of such defects. Christiansen v. Graver Tank Works, 223 Ill. 142, 79 N. E. 97. Servant injured by breaking of bottle from which he was pouring vitriol, knowing the danger of using an uncased bottle, assumed the risk though he did not know the thickness of the glass in the or which are so obvious [17] tha ta person of the same age, capacity, and experience, bottle. Bryant v. Gaffney Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 9. Sawmill employe assumed risk of being struck by a cart which he saw coming to a machine, and which he knew was too short to be handled by the machine where he failed to get out of the way of it. Imhoof v. Northwestern Lumber Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 650. Brakeman knew of low bridge and of condition of engine causing leakage of steam. Hence he assumed risks and could not recover for injury caused by raising his head while enveloped in cloud of steam and smoke while passing under bridge. Johnson v. Boston, etc. R. Co., 78 Vt. 344, 62 A. 1021. Where brakeman was coupling a car which he knew was defective and which was to be hauled to a repair shop, he assumed the risk of injury from its defective condition. Marshall v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Ark.] 94 S. W. 56. Does not assume risk arising from defective condition of machinery unless he knows of the defect. Vicious mule. Esher v. Mineral R. & Min. Co., 28 Pa. Super Ct. 387. Complaint of an employe because a machine did not do good work does not show such knowledge of danger as to indicate assumption of risk. Greenan v. Eggeling, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 253.

17. Risks held obvious and assumed: Bates-Rogers Const. Co. v. Dunn, 29 Ky. L. R. 428, 93 S. W. 1032; Utica Hydraulic Cement Co. v. Whalen, 117 Ill. App. 23. Narrowness of steps and low railing in building, being obvious dangers, were assumed risks. Herren v. Tuscaloosa Waterworks Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 55. Where plaintiff had worked in mill four years and knew about an unguarded drum used to operate a cable, which was an open and obvious danger, and recognized generally as dangerous, he assumed the risk. American Linseed Co. v. Heins [C. C. A.] 141 F. 45. Where workman, ordered to work on an iron beam, was told to climb up to a scaffold in a certain way, and in doing so was injured by a traveling crane, he assumed the risk of injury, which was obvious. American Tin Plate Co. v. Smith [C. C. A.] 143 F. 281. Machinist, employed to keep machinery in repair, held to have assumed risk of injury while repairing a tight pulley. Wade v. Thomson Press Co., 144 F. 305. Section foreman in charge of hand car and crew assumed risk of obvious defects in the car which caused it to leave the track, thereby injuring him. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Byland, 50 Fla. 190, 40 So. 24. Plaintiff assumed risk where he had worked in the place a number of months and was thoroughly familiar with it. International Packing Co. v. Kretowicz, 119 Ill. App. 488. Boy of eighteen held to have assumed risk of coming in contact with circular saw which he knew was in motion. Creamery Package Co. v. Daniels, 72 Kan. 418, 83 P. 986. Plaintiff, a carpenter of six years' experience, hired himself for constructive mill work and was injured while operating a "dolly" on a narrow runway. Held, he assumed all the obvious risks of his employment and could recover only on affirmative proof that planks furnished were defective in quality or dimensions. Harris v. Tremont Lumber Co., 115 La. 973, 40 So. 374. Experienced carpenter and handler of timber assumed risk of a timber falling while being handled with derrick. Sampson v. Holbrook [Mass.] 78 N. E. 127. Boy of seventeen, who had worked machine several months, assumed risk of cleaning endless bicycle chain on the cleaner. Lennon v. Goodrich [Mass.] 78 N. E. 421. Servant assumed risk of allowing heavy car wheels in repair shop to start moving and to catch him between them and a wall, conditions being open and visible and danger obvious. Duffy v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 77 N. E. 1031. Employe digging in trench under frozen ground, without shoring, assumed obvious risk of cave-in. Hodgson v. Michigan Cent. R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 890, 109 N. W. 1125. Plaintiff was required to exercise care to prevent falling from the place where he was at work; he assumed the risk. Shoen v. Kerr-Murray Mfg. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 699, 109 N. W. 40. Where employe wanted lacing to repair a belt but was told to use rivets, as they were out of lacings, and employe did so, and the belt so fixed separated and injured him, he assumed the risk as a matter of law. Eligh v. Goldie, 143 Mich. 596, 13 Det. Leg. N. 96, 107 N. W. 316. If motorman who had had usual training, and who knew the uses of sand in going down hill, had sand on his car and failed to use it, he assumed the risk, notwithstanding a statement of the superintendent that automatic sand boxes were not necessary and that he could take a car down the hill in question without the use of sand. Mayer v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 142 Mich. 459, 12 Det. Leg. N. 843, 105 N. W. 888. Experienced dredge engineer, who assisted in making repairs, placed a casting in such a position that it slid down a skid upon him. He assumed the risk. Schneider v. Wolverine Portland Cement Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 694, 108 N. W. 1113. Brakeman was crushed between a cattle chute and a car while directing the movement of cars. He was familiar with the location of the chute and could see the conditions and was free to choose his position. He assumed the risk, whether or not he knew the ordinary distance between a car and such chute. Wilson v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 571, 108 N. W. 1021. Where employe was directed to pile lumber in an aisle in a sawmill, and the pile he made fell and injured him, he assumed the risk, which was obvious and one he himself voluntarily took. Hagglund v. St. Hilaire Lumber Co., 97 Minn. 94, 106 N. W. 91. Operator of mangle assumed risk of patent defects. Coulter v. Union Laundry Co. [Mont.] 87 P. 973. Telephone employe assumed risk of method and appliances used to support a cable which was being raised. Blust v. Pac. States Tel. Co. [Or.] 84 P. 847. Crane near which employe worked had been defective for three months, its condition being apparent. No recovery for injury resulting therefrom. Lindberg v. National Tube Co., 213 Pa. 545, 62 A. 985. Experienced log truck driver, who had driven truck in question three or four times, assumed risk incident to its use, which was apparent to him. Zeilmann v. McCullough, 214 Pa. 27, 63 A. 368. Employe excavating under a rock assumed obvious risk of its falling when undermined. Welch v. Carlucci Stone Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 392. Fireman held to have assumed risk of absence of wheel or nut from brake staff when he had exercising ordinary care, would have known of them, [18] are also assumed by a servant who continues in the employment with such actual or implied knowledge of the danger.[19] But mere knowledge of a defective condition will not alone charge a servant with the assumption of a risk; it must also appear that he knew and appre-

worked with it several hours. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Hanson [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 415, 90 S. W. 1122. Section foreman held to have assumed risk of unloading timber from cars with gang of Mexican laborers. Bryan v. International, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 455, 90 S. W. 693. One employed to load and unload freight assisted in fixing up a platform and incline to be used in unloading battery houses from cars and had assisted in unloading five before he was injured. He assumed the risk arising from the insufficiency of the means employed. Grandin v. Southern Pac. Co. [Utah] 85 P. 357. Where operator of mangle in laundry got her hand caught by putting it over the guard to smooth out wrinkles in a sheet, she assumed the risk, though not warned not to do so, the danger being apparent. Kranich v. Knapp [Wash.] 86 P. 207. Servant employed to wheel away brick from a brick and wooden building which was being torn down assumed the risk of being struck by a falling board. Walaszewski v. Schoknecht, 127 Wis. 376, 106 N. W. 1070.

18. Risks discoverable by ordinary care are assumed. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Haltby, 29 Ky. L. R. 523, 93 S. W. 652. An employe assumes risks discoverable by the use of ordinary care on his part. Evansville Gas & Elec. Light Co. v. Raley [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 548. Telephone lineman employed to move wires from old poles assumed risk of slipping on an old pole and of catching hold of a poorly insulated wire in an endeavor to save himself. The defects were such as he would have discovered by the use of ordinary care in performance of his duty. Id. Servant is charged with full consequences of what he ought to have known in the exercise of ordinary care and prudence. Jensen v. Kyer, 101 Me. 106, 63 A. 389. A minor assumes the risks of all such apparent dangers as he is capable of comprehending and avoiding. Bare v. Crane Creek Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 907. A minor employe assumes such risks of the business as a person of his apparent age, experience, and capacity would discover and appreciate. Moss v. Mosley [Ala.] 41 So. 1012. Employe eighteen years old presumptively assumes same risks as an adult would assume, and burden is on plaintiff to show his inexperience and need of instruction. King v. Woodstock Iron Co., 143 Ala. 632, 42 So. 27. Employe who was as familiar with peril as any employe whom master could have selected to remove or guard against it, he assumed the risk. Crown Coal & Tow Co. v. Koenig, 119 Ill. App. 192. Where defect is so plain and obvious that an employe ought to have knowledge of it by exercising ordinary care, he assumes the risk, in the absence of any promise to repair. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Theorell, 120 Ill. App. 490. Where the defect is obvious and the danger would have been known and appreciated by an ordinarily prudent person of the same age and experience, a servant cannot be heard to say that he did not appreciate the danger. Blust v. Pac. States Tel. Co. [Or.] 84 P. 847. An open and obvious defect is one which is manifest to the sense of observation, open and readily discernable, whether it arises from the nature of the business, the particular manner in which it is conducted, or the use of defective and unsafe appliances. New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. v. Rombold [Neb.] 106 N. W. 213. Where scaffold fell, owing to defective joist, injuring plaintiff, he could not recover if he knew, or, in the exercise of ordinary care, ought to have known, of the defect. Covington & Co. Bridge Co. v. Hull, 28 Ky. L. R. 1038, 90 S. W. 1065. An unskilled workman will be charged with the assumption of a risk only when the peril is so obvious that an ordinarily prudent and intelligent person would have appreciated it. Bailey v. Mukilteo Lumber Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 819. Instruction in effect that servant did not assume risk unless it was one which would have been apparent to a person of ordinary prudence with the same experience and knowledge under similar conditions, approved. Sullivan v. Wood & Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 629.

19. An employe may assume risks by continuing in the employment with knowledge of danger. Rooney v. Brogan Const. Co., 113 App. Div. 813, 99 N. Y. S. 939. Employe assumed risk of danger from flying bits of steel, where he voluntarily continued in the work of chipping with knowledge of the danger. Cripple Creek Sampling & Ore Co. v. Souza [Colo.] 86 P. 1005. Where teamster complained of loose tire on wagon and foreman said they would have to have it fixed, and teamster kept on using the wagon, he assumed the risk. Thorne v. Minneapolis General Elec. Co., 97 Minn. 329, 106 N. W. 253. If servant continues in employment having means of knowing risks, such risks are assumed. Evidence insufficient to show that employe did not know that stacks of lumber were liable to fall, which made his place of work unsafe. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Zakzewski, 220 Ill. 522, 77 N. E. 147. Where operator of steel shearing machine complained of a defect, and the foreman put in a new screw but the defect was not remedied, as the operator well knew, the risk of using the machine in this condition was assumed. Goga v. American Car & Foundry Co., 142 Mich. 340, 12 Det. Leg. N. 761, 105 N. W. 859. Servant assumes risks arising and becoming known in course of employment such as machine getting out of repair while he is using it. Andrecsik v. New Jersey Tube Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 63 A. 719. Risk of running emery wheel without a guard assumed when wheel was unguarded when plaintiff began work. Master was under no duty of changing it. Saxe v. Walworth Mfg. Co., 191 Mass. 338, 77 N. E. 883. Plaintiff was both fireman and brakeman. He got off the engine and in attempting to board the train to perform duties as brakeman he fell, as the train was moving too fast and passengers

ciated the danger arising from the defect.[20] Knowledge of the danger will, however, be implied from knowledge of the defect, if the danger would be apparent to a person of ordinary intelligence.[21] Dangers which are as well known to the servant as to the master, or which the servant has an equal opportunity with the master to observe, are assumed.[22] Risks which are unknown to the servant, and which due care on his part would not have disclosed, and which are not among those risks which are classed as incidental are not assumed.[23] Whether a particular risk was on the steps of the car prevented his boarding it. He had done this each day. Held he assumed the risk. Griffith v. Lexington Terminal R. Co., 124 Ga. 553, 53 S. E. 97. Workman on building in course of construction who knew of absence of flooring between two stories (such flooring being required by St. 1901, p. 105, c. 166), assumed the risk. Marshall v. Norcross, 191 Mass. 568, 77 N. E. 1151.

20. To assume the risk of a defect the servant must both know of the defect and appreciate the danger. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Daugaard, 118 Ill. App. 67. To assume a risk a servant must know and appreciate the danger, or be charged with such knowledge, as well as the condition of the instrumentality supplied him. Hendrickson v. Ash [Minn.] 109 N. W. 830. Employe did not assume risk of working in building which had insufficient means of escape in case of fire unless she knew and appreciated the danger. Dakan v. Chase & Son Mercantile Co., 197 Mo. 238, 94 S. W. 944. Fireman did not assume risk of injury from defective condition of the apron between the cab and tender when he did not discover it until he had removed coal from it during the trip and did not then appreciate the danger. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Dumas [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 538, 93 S. W. 493. Though operator of laundry machine knew it did not run right, she did not as a matter of law assume the risk of injury unless she appreciated the danger. Tuckett v. American Steam & Hand Laundry [Utah] 84 P. 500. Employe operating machine had noticed an external defect in machine and reported it. The defect was not remedied. The employe did not know of or appreciate the danger of continuing to run the machine. Held he did not assume the risk. Libbey v. Cook, 222 Ill. 206, 78 N. E. 599.

21. Servant is charged with knowledge of a danger obvious to a person of ordinary intelligence. International Packing Co. v. Kretowicz, 119 Ill. App. 488. Actual knowledge need not be shown, if the defect and danger would be apparent to an ordinarily prudent person under the same circumstances. Anderson v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 884. To assume the risk of a defect a servant must know and appreciate the danger arising therefrom, but if the danger is so obvious as to be apparent to a person of ordinary prudence, the servant is chargeable with a knowledge thereof. Christiansen v. Graver Tank Works, 223 Ill. 142, 79 N. E. 97. An employe who worked near a dynamite magazine, knowing it was a dangerous place, assumed the risk of an accidental explosion, though he did not fully appreciate all the danger or anticipate just the accident which occurred. He assumed the result of what might reasonably have been expected to occur. Davis v. Somers-Cambridge Co. [Ohio] 79 N. E. 233.

22. Dangers as obvious to employes as to master are assumed. Ramm v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 866, 92 S. W. 426. Where telephone lineman inspected old pole before climbing it and did not rely on an inspection by the master, he assumed the risk of the pole falling with him. Adams v. Central Indiana R. Co. [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 687. Experienced employe assumed risk of injury from sliver from steel punch which had become worn and battered, the tool being a simple one, and his knowledge of the danger equal to the master's. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Phinney [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 296. Duty of inspecting drill holes was delegated to an expert drillman, and he was to see that no accidental explosions occurred. Held he could not complain of the method of inspection used, having adopted and used it. Knorpp v. Wagner, 195 Mo. 637, 93 S. W. 961.

23. Risks held not assumed: Danger from defects in hand car not assumed unless known. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Plumlee [Ark.] 95 S. W. 442. Servant does not assume risks unknown to him and known to the master, or which the master ought to know in the exercise of ordinary care. Archer Foster Const. Co. v. Vaughn [Ark.] 94 S. W. 717; Minor, inexperienced employe, unacquainted with ordinary risks of his employment, does not assume the same, in the absence of any warning or instruction by the master. Arkadelphia Lumber Co. v. Whitted [Ark.] 98 S. W. 697. Switchman held not to have assumed risk of locating switch too near track whereby his hand was crushed by the switch handle striking the step of a car. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Riley [C. C. A.] 145 F. 137. Employe did not assume risk of injury from cars "kicked" down siding when he did not know of the existence of the custom of handling cars in this manner. Pennsylvania Co. v. Chapman, 118 Ill. App. 201. Defects in traveling crane consisting of certain irregularities in the track from which it was suspended and of insufficient bracing, by reason of which it fell, held not so obvious to an ordinary servant employed in the shop that he assumed the risk as a matter of law. Hamner v. Janowitz [Iowa] 108 N. W. 109. Where uninstructed and inexperienced employe was sent to roll a heavy wheel from one shop to another with the assistance of fellow-servant, he did not assume the risk of the wheel falling upon him owing to the improper way in which he went about it. Beardsley v. Murray Iron Works Co., 129 Iowa, 675, 106 N. W. 180. Servant was required to pass between revolving fly wheels in the dark being unfamiliar with the premises, and was caught by nuts and bolts on shafting which he did not see. He did not assume the risk. Bates-Rogers Const. Co. v. Dunn, 29 Ky. L. R. 428, 93 S. W. 1032. Inexperienced employe nine-known or ought to have been known to the servant, within the meaning of these rules is ordinarily a question of fact [24] to be determined by reference to the age, teen years old held not to have assumed risk of operating a rip saw which was not as carefully guarded as it might have been, no instructions or warning having been given him. Dow Wire Works Co. v. Morgan, 29 Ky. L. R. 854, 96 S. W. 530. A servant assumes only such risks as he is informed of or that he ought to have discovered in the exercise of ordinary care. Johnson v. Christie, 117 La. 911, 42 So. 421. Printing press started of its own accord while plaintiff was running it for the first time, so that he had no knowledge of any defect, and no defect was apparent. He did not assume the risk. Byrne v. Boston Woven Hose & Rubber Co., 191 Mass. 40, 77 N. E. 696. Boy sent to dip out acid, without knowledge of character of liquid, and unwarned, did not assume risk of splashing acid in his eyes. Hadde v. Attleboro Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 262. Where employe who had never run a "buzz planer" was put to work on it without instruction, he did not assume the risk of a board slipping because of lack of a guard, causing his hands to go into the knives, though he knew the machine was dangerous. Silva v. Davis, 191 Mass. 47, 77 N. E. 525. Employe who did not know that heavy sleepers in platform were not spiked did not assume the risk of danger arising therefrom. White v. St. Perry Co., 190 Mass. 99, 76 N. E. 512. Servant was sent to deliver baled hay and told to use hoisting appliance owned by customer, a rope of which broke, injuring him. Held the appliance was not so simple or the defect so obvious that he was charged with the assumption of the risk as a matter of law. De Maries v. Jameson [Minn.] 108 N. W. 830. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that uninstructed, inexperienced employe did not assume risk of putting covers on unguarded rollers of mangle. Carlin v. Kennedy, 97 Minn. 141, 106 N. W. 340. Inexperienced employe eighteen years old held not to have assumed risk of method used to heat dynamite, as a matter of law, though there was evidence that he was afraid. Pinney v. King [Minn.] 107 N. W 1127. Defect in steam shovel apparatus, not obvious and arising from neglect of the master, held not assumed. Southern R. Co. v. Wiley [Miss.] 41 So. 511. Freight brakeman had worked only a few days and had passed over a certain trestle six times. He did not assume the risk of a fire from combustible material near the trestle of the presence of which he had no actual knowledge. Root v. Kansas City Southern R. Co., 195 Mo. 348, 92 S. W. 621. Carpenter, at work in power house, was not required to assume that electric current would be turned on trolley wire when there was no necessity for it. Cessna v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 659, 95 S. W. 277. Where the danger from a falling pile of lumber was created by defendant's superintendent, and the injured employe had no knowledge of it until it fell, he did not assume the risk. Robertson v. Fuller Const. Co., 116 Mo. App. 456, 92 S. W. 130. Servant did not assume risk of being caught on set screw of revolving shaft of which he had no knowledge, the shaft being in a dark place. Walker v. Newton Falls Paper Co., 111 App. Div. 19, 97 N. Y. S. 521. Risk of falling into hole in floor not assumed by employe who was hauling a truck and walking backwards, when he did not know of the hole. Burke v. Manhattan R. Co., 109 App. Div. 722, 96 N. Y. S. 516. Danger of electric shock to employe engaged in removing snow from elevated road, using an iron shovel, which came in contact with third rail, held not obvious to such employe who was not an expert and not instructed. Smith v. Manhattan R. Co., 112 App. Div. 202, 98 N. Y. S. 1. Evidence insufficient to show that engineer assumed risk of derailment caused by defect in track owing to washout. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 790, 91 S. W. 355. Evidence held to sustain finding that fireman did not know, and was not chargeable with knowledge, that iron apron between engine and tender was smooth and curved, and therefore defective and dangerous to walk on as fireman was obliged to do. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Udalle [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 668, 91 S. W. 330. Servant held not to have assumed risk of defect in a runway of which he had no knowledge and which was not obvious. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Allen [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 131. Defects in track in lumber yard held not so obvious that employe riding on footboard of engine in course of his duties assumed the risk. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 913, 95 S. W. 607. Where employe in quarry was killed by falling rock, and defendant's inspector testified that the seam in the rock, indicating danger that it might fall, could not be seen from where deceased had worked, and that he, the inspector, had not seen it and had not supposed the rock was dangerous, deceased was held not to have assumed the risk. Black' Adm'r v. Virginia Portland Cement Co. [Va.] 55 S. E. 587. In going down the shaft of a mine in a skip, the clothing of a miner was caught on a projection in the shaft and he was thrown against plaintiff, who was performing his duties on the upper deck of the skip. Held plaintiff did not assume the risk of injury in this manner. Pearson v. Federal Min. & Smelting Co., 42 Wash. 90, 84 P. 632. Servant does not assume risks that are not open and obvious, and which he does not know and has no reason to know are incident to his employment. Williams v. Ballard Lumber Co., 41 Wash. 338, 83 P. 323. Risk of hoisting hook being raised with unusual speed, causing it to swing violently, not assumed, as matter of law, where employe has no knowledge that it is to be raised in that manner. Johnson v. St. Paul & W. Coal Co., 126 Wis. 492, 106 N. W. 1048. Girl of fifteen employed on slitting machine of paper company, who did not know that set screws were used to fasten slitters on the shaft and could not see them when the machine was going, did not as a matter of law assume the risk of getting her hair caught on a screw. Van De Bogart v. Marinette & Menominee Paper Co., 127 Wis. 104, 106 N. W. 805.

24. The question of assumption of the risk of a defect in machinery and appreciation of the danger is ordinarily one of fact and is not to be decided arbitrarily by rules of capacity, experience, and intelligence of the employe,[25] and the facts and circumstances of the case.[26] law, but by proper submission to the jury. Atlas v. National Biscuit Co. [Minn.] 110 N. W. 250. Charge erroneous as taking issue of assumption of risk from jury where employe's hand was run over by a crane. Wynkoop v. Ludlow Valve Mfg. Co., 112 App. Div. 729, 98 N. Y. S. 1076.

25. A servant's age and experience may properly be considered on the issue of his knowledge of danger and assumption of a risk. Wilder v. Great Western Cereal Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 789.

26. Whether risk was assumed held for jury: Whether brakeman assumed risk of using certain link and pin to couple car and engine. Choctaw O. & G. R. Co. v. Craig [Ark.] 95 S. W. 168. Whether miner knew of and assumed risk of water breaking through from an adjoining drift of another mine. Williams v. Sleepy Hollow Min. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 337. Fireman's head struck by mail crane located beside track. Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Burchard [Colo.] 86 P. 749. Whether employe, who was caught in wheel while sitting in open window, assumed the risk. Michigan Headlining & Hoop Co. v. Wheeler [C. C. A.] 141 F. 61. Where railroad fireman was killed by derailment of train on regular run, whether he assumed risk was for jury, where it appeared engine was being run backwards and train was going round a curve at an unusually high rate of speed, and flange of the tender broke at the curve. Rickerd v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 905. Employe injured by traveling crane while working on partition in factory. National Enameling & Stamping Co. v. McCorkle, 219 Ill. 557, 76 N. E. 843. Whether conductor, from his familiarity with the condition of a track and semaphore wires assumed the risk of tripping over wires while going between cars to uncouple them. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Snedaker, 223 Ill. 395, 79 N. E. 169. Whether risk of working with insecurely fastened pile driver was assumed. Wilder v. Great Western Cereal Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 789. Servant digging ditch injured by cave-in. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Burgess, 72 Kan. 454, 83 P. 991. Inexperienced employe put to work on meat chopping machine without warning or instruction did not assume risk of getting hands in knives, as matter of law. Byrne v. Learnard, 191 Mass. 269, 77 N. E. 316. Where telephone exchange operator had noticed something wrong and had reported previous slight shocks, whether she appreciated the danger of continuing in the work, so that she assumed the risk of a shock which produced a serious injury, was for the jury. Cahill v. New England Tel. & T. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 821. Car repair man held not to have assumed risk of working under a car which had been negligently jacked up by a foreman, as a matter of law. McClure v. Detroit Southern R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 846, 109 N. W. 847. Whether employe on chain carrier in sawmill assumed risk. Hendrickson v. Ash [Minn.] 109 N. W. 830. Whether employe at work in a trench, and injured by a horse falling in, assumed the risk of a lack of guards and warning signals. Johnson v. St. Paul Gas Light Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 816. Evidence held not to show conclusively that operator of jointing machine was experienced and understood machine so that he assumed the risk of running it. Frazier v. Lloyd Mfg. Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 819. A minor employe, with limited experience, operated an unguarded machine for three months. He used a piece of burlap to grease pans coveyed to and carried from him by the machine. The cloth caught in a sprocket wheel and his hand was drawn in and a finger crushed. Atlas v. National Biscuit Co. [Minn.] 110 N. W. 250. Whether stationary engineer assumed risk of defect in apparatus used to move cars, a hook becoming loosened and striking him. O'Neal v. Refuge Cotton Oil Co. [Miss.] 41 So. 67. Whether switchman knew and assumed the risk of absence of blocks from switches in railroad yards so that he assumed the risk. Lee v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 195 Mo. 400, 92 S. W. 614. Whether carpenter in power house assumed the risk of coming in contact with an overhead trolley wire, when there was no necessity for having a current on the wire. Cessna v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 659, 95 S. W. 277. Whether brakeman assumed risk of being struck by water crane maintained by railroad company near the track. Charlton v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 529. Whether employe in factory assumed, by continuing in the employment, the risk of a pile of lumber falling upon him. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460. Boy of thirteen injured by piece of wire which flew off an unguarded wire cutting machine. Thein v. Brecht Butchers' Supply Co., 116 Mo. App. 1, 91 S. W. 953. Whether coal miner assumed risk of slate falling on him from roof. Dodge v. Manufacturers' Coal & Coke Co., 115 Mo. App. 501, 91 S. W. 1007. Whether employe had such knowledge of the manner in which lumber was piled, and the danger of its falling, that he assumed the risk of injury when working near it, under orders. Hardesty v. Largey Lumber Co. [Mont.] 86 P. 29. Where brakeman, struck by a low bridge when on a car on a spur track, testified that he had never been on this track before and did not know of the bridge, whether he assumed the risk was for the jury. Anderson v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 884. Whether lineman assumed risk of injury from uninsulated wires. New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. v. Rombold [Neb.] 106 N. W. 213. Whether lineman assumed risk of contract with charged wires when he had a few days before found them harmless and employer had not informed him that other company had commenced to use wires in day time. Snyer v. New York & N. J. Tel. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 122. Whether servant who was told to put a valve on a six-inch gas main, while gas was turned on, an explosion resulting, ought to have known the danger, and whether he assumed the risk, held for jury in view of Laws 1902, p. 1748, c. 600. Cadigan v. Glens Falls Gas & Elec. Light Co., 112 App. Div. 751, 98 N. Y. S. 954. Where servant fell into an unguarded shaft, having tripped over sleepers, the floor being in an unfinished and rough condition, the issue of assumed risk was for the jury, though he knew of the un-

Reliance on care of master.[27]—In the absence of knowledge to the contrary, the servant has a right to rely on the assumption that the master has properly performed the various duties imposed on him by law [28] and need not make an indepen-guarded shaft, since the jury should have passed on question whether he appreciated the danger arising from the condition of the floor. Rooney v. Brogan Const. Co., 113 App. Div. 813, 99 N. Y. S. 939. Whether employe assumed risk of being drawn by grain into the leg of a grain elevator. Lynch v. American Linseed Co., 113 App. Div. 502, 99 N. Y. S. 260. Where brakeman was injured by being struck by switchrod as he passed a switch, the question of assumption of risk was for the jury, plaintiff having given the notice required by Laws 1902, p. 1748, c. 600. Kinney v. Rutland R. Co., 99 N. Y. S. 800. Boy under sixteen injured while using circular saw. Rahn v. Standard Optical Co., 110 App. Div. 501, 96 N. Y. S. 1080. Employe removing snow from elevated road with iron shovel received shock from third rail. Smith v. Manhattan R. Co., 112 App. Div. 202, 98 N. Y. S. 1. Assumption of risk by brakeman killed in yards while coupling cars held for jury in action under employer's liability act. Freemont v. Boston & M. R. Co., 111 App. Div. 831, 98 N. Y. S. 179. Boy's hand drawn into roller of machine used to make paper. Makin v. Pettibone Cataract Paper Co., 111 App. Div. 726, 97 N. Y. S. 894. Whether fireman assumed risk of running engine on bridge after being assured by foreman of construction crew, after repairs were made, that it was safe. McCabe & Steen Const. Co. v. Wilson [Okl.] 87 P. 320. Whether servant assumed risk of injury by defective machine when oiling it. McCarley v. Glenn-Lowry Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 1. Whether engineer knew or ought to have known of defects in lubricator, the explosion of which caused his injury, held for jury. Wysong v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 74 S. C. 1, 54 S. E. 214. Employe in mill injured while using ladder after stairway had been put in, and employes ordered not to use the ladder. Evidence showed continued use of ladder with knowledge of foreman, and tended to show want of notice or orders by plaintiff. Pipkin v. Hayward Lumber Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 157, 94 S. W. 1068. Whether minor, inexperienced employe, assumed risk of grinding a tool on the side of an emery wheel as instructed. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Archambault [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 293, 94 S. W. 1108. Employe hauling clay was struck by girder in clay shed above him. Titterington v. Harry [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 840. Laundry employe was injured while operating machine according to directions of foreman, and it appeared she knew it did not work as it should. Tuckett v. American Steam & Hand Laundry [Utah] 84 P. 500. Fireman on engine was overcome by gas while train was stalled in a tunnel, by reason of the helping engine having broken away, owing to a defective coupler. He knew that something was the matter with the coupler, also that a poorer grade of coal than usual was being used. Held he did not assume the risk as a matter of law. Doyle v. Great Northern R. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 861. Whether servant assumed risk when he put his hands into unguarded cogs, of whose presence he knew but had forgotten when the machine was suddenly started by a fellow-servant. Williams v. Ballard Lumber Co., 41 Wash. 338, 83 P. 323. Operator of planer in sawmill did not as a matter of law assume the risk of stepping into a hole in the floor, which was concealed by shavings and sawdust, and of which he had no notice. Baker v. Duwamish Mill Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 167. Whether minor, sixteen years old, assumed risk of injury from a saw the danger from which was open and obvious. Kirby v. Wheeler-Osgood Co., 42 Wash. 610, 85 P. 62. Where hub was heated to get it off the shaft of a propeller, and the superintendent struck it with a sledge hammer and oil spurted out and burned an employe assisting in removing it, whether employe should have known of the presence of oil and the danger therefrom held for jury. Creamer v. Moran Bros. Co., 41 Wash. 636, 84 P. 592. Where electric lineman making repairs had a right to suppose that current would be turned off as usual, he did not as a matter of law assume the risk of being killed by a shock. Zentner v. Oshkosh Gaslight Co., 126 Wis. 196, 105 N. W. 911. Whether danger of moving machine from car by method adopted was obvious. Hamann v. Milwaukee Bridge Co., 127 Wis. 550, 106 N. W. 1081.

27. See 6 C. L. 572.

28. Servant may rely on presumption that master has performed his duty of providing a reasonably safe place. Bird v. Utica Gold Min. Co., 2 Cal. App. 674, 84 P. 256. Employe in lumber yard may assume that his place of work is reasonably safe. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Zaksewski, 121 Ill. App. 26. Coal miner may assume in absence of knowledge to the contrary that place to which he is sent to work is reasonably safe. Diamond Block Coal Co. v. Cuthbertson [Ind.] 76 N. E. 1060. Servant may assume that machinery and appliances are reasonably safe. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 150, 93 S. W. 184. A servant has a right to assume that the master has supplied reasonably safe tools and appliances. Columbian Enameling & Stamping Co. v. O'Burke [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 409. Servants cannot assume that appliances are safe, only that ordinary care has been used to make them reasonably safe. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Von Hoesen [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 463, 91 S. W. 604. A servant has the right to assume that the master has performed his duty by the exercise of that reasonable care for the servant's safety which the law requires, until he is warned or notified of danger, or until the danger becomes so obvious that a reasonably prudent servant, under the circumstances, would observe it. Dunne v. Jersey City Galvanizing Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 1076. Where a foreman selected a wedge to be used in a girder which was being raised, and it was too small and fell through and struck plaintiff, plaintiff did not assume the risk as a matter of law, since he had a right to rely on the exercise of ordinary care by the master. Sullivan v. Wood & Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 629. Skilled employe had right to as-dent inspection or examination of his appliances or place of work.[29] In other words, negligence of the master, or of his representatives, is not one of the ordinary risks which a servant assumes,[30] ordinary or incidental risks being only those which due care on the part of the master would not have obviated.[31] But this rule is usually limited in its application to breaches of the master's duty unknown to the servant.[32] If a neglect of duty by the master is known to the servant,[33] or is discoverable by the use of ordinary care in the performance of his own duties,[34] and sume that master would perform his duty of instructing an inexperienced employe so that latter would not cause injury by reason of his ignorance. Schneider & Co. v. Carlin, 120 Ill. App. 538.

29. Servant may assume that master has provided reasonably safe place and need not make independent investigation. Wiest v. Coal Creek R. Co., 42 Wash. 176, 84 P. 725. Employe who was ordered to excavate in a bank of earth and stone had a right to assume he could work with reasonable safety and was not under duty to make careful inspection. Chiappini v. Fitzgerald, 191 Mass. 598, 77 N. E. 1030.

30. As a general rule, the employe does not assume the risk of dangers growing out of the employe's negligence or the negligence of those for whom the master is responsible, however habitual it may be. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Turner [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 55, 91 S. W. 562. Railroad employe does not assume risk arising from defective condition of coupling apparatus and failure of brakeman to use ordinary care in coupling cars. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Barnes [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 524, 95 S. W. 714. Employe engaged in railroad construction work did not assume risk of negligence of conductor in charge of construction train in failing to adjust switches on moving the train from a side track to the main track. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Boyles [Ark.] 95 S. W. 783. Negligence of master in furnishing a truck unsafe to be be run over a rough floor is not an assumed risk. Longree v. Jackes-Evans Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 478, 97 S. W. 272. Risk of going between cars was not assumed by brakeman if he went there in course of duty owed to his employer. McManus v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 152, 94 S. W. 743. Superintendent in a gypum mine ordered miners into a "company room" just before a shot was discharged, and the wall of this room was blown in, causing death of an employe, the wall being thinner than the superintendent supposed. Held, there being a violation of the duty of the master, the risk was not assumed. Electric Plaster Co. v. Reedy [Kan.] 85 P. 824. An employe was ordered to work on a scaffold, which fell by reason of its faulty construction. The risk was not assumed, though the servant was engaged in taking the scaffold down. Liedke v. Moran Bros. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 646. Stationary engineer was called by chief engineer to assist in test of electric motor, and during the test the motor exploded owing to presence of water, and stationary engineer, plaintiff, was injured. Held he did not assume the risk since he had a right to assume that the motor had been inspected and was reasonably safe. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Brinkman [C. C. A.] 146 F. 712. Where servant knew of existence of safety device on side track, he did not assume risk of its getting out of repair and remaining in such condition without actual or implied notice to him. Grand Trunk Western R. Co. v. Melrose [Ind.] 78 N. E. 190. Though brakemen knew that certain cars were uncoupled, he did not assume the risk of walking on them where the separation of them and his fall between them was caused by a sudden stopping of the train, by reason of the engineer's negligence. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Pape [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 32, 97 S. W. 534. If telephone lineman failed to inspect pole which he climbed because he relied on the foreman's inspection and on his order to climb it, he did not assume the risk. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Holtby, 29 Ky. L. R. 523, 93 S. W. 652.

31. Risks arising from the master's negligence, in addition to the incidental risks are not assumed. Yellow Pine Oil Co. v. Noble [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 750, 97 S. W. 332.

32. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Pape [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 32, 97 S. W. 534. Master's negligence in failing to provide a reasonably safe place or reasonably safe appliances is not assumed risk unless known. Smith v. Buffalo Oil Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 682, 91 S. W. 383. Plaintiff, injured by falling of parcels from a truck, held not to have assumed risk of the injury, which arose from a defect in the truck and in the platform over which he was hauling it. Wells, Fargo & Co. Exp. v. Boyle [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 350, 98 S. W. 441. The servant assumes no risk arising from negligence of the master unless he knew and appreciated the danger, or, in the discharge of his duties, while in the exercise of ordinary care, he must necessarily have acquired such knowledge. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Udalle [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 668, 91 S. W. 330. It is sometimes said that negligence of the master is never an assumed risk, but a servant assumes the risk of defects of which he knows and the danger of which he appreciates. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460. Risks which are not incidental, but which arise by reason of the master's negligence after the service has commenced, are not assumed unless the servant knew of the defect and appreciated the danger. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 77 Ark. 367, 92 S. W. 244. Risks arising from negligence of the master are not assumed unless discoverable by the use of ordinary care, or made known to the servant. Martin v. Des Moines Edison Light Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 359. Servant, furnished transportation to work, did not assume risk arising from defect in car unless it was obvious. Tanner v. Hitch Lumber Co., 140 N. C. 475, 53 S. E. 287. Inexperienced employe put to work at a pump of a barge did not assume the risk of the barge overturning owing to her unsafe con-

he continues in the employment without complaint,[35] he assumes the risk of so doing, notwithstanding the want of due care by the master [36] unless he was justified in believing that he could continue with safety, by exercising due care,[37] the danger not being so obvious and imminent that an ordinarily prudent person would not have encountered it.[38]

The servant may also assume that work will be done in the customary manner and that rules will not be violated.[39]

Reliance on orders or assurances of safety.[40]—A servant may rely to a reasonable extent upon the superior knowledge of the master or a superior,[41] and may assume that he will not be subjected to unusual or unnecessary danger.[42] Hence, he does not assume the risk of executing an order of a superior [43] or of continuing dition and the negligent manner of unloading, where he had no knowledge or appreciation of the defects or danger. Strauhal v. Asiatic S. S. Co. [Or.] 85 P. 230.

33. Where work was customarily done in negligent manner which caused injury, to servant's knowledge, he assumed the risk. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Huyett [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 502, 92 S. W. 454. Servant assumes risk of master's negligence if he knows of it and voluntarily faces the danger. Wisenger, Adm'x v. Donk Bros. Coal & Coke Co., 119 Ill. App. 298.

34. Servant may assume that master has performed his duty, but must exercise ordinary care for his own safety, and if, in the performance of his duties, he discovers, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have discovered, a defective condition and the attendant danger, he assumes the risk of injury proximately resulting therefrom. Price v. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 151, 90 S. W. 717. An employe may assume that the master has properly performed his duty and does not assume the risk of a violation of it, unless the defect is so apparent that he ought to have observed it and appreciated the danger, in the exercise of ordinary care. Tuckett v. American Steam & Hand Laundry [Utah] 84 P. 500.

35. Besides the risks incidental to the employment, a servant assumes risks arising from defects in his place of work or appliances, if he continues in the service without complaint, after he has knowledge of such defects, provided he appreciates the dangers arising therefrom. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460.

36. A servant entering or continuing in the employment of a master with knowledge of the defective appliances used by him or of the imperfect methods of work used, without objection or complaint, assumes the risk arising therefrom. Blust v. Pacific States Tel. Co. [Or.] 84 P. 847.

37. Mere knowledge of a defect will not charge an employe with the assumption of the risk if he was justified in believing that he could continue without injury by exercising ordinary care. Lee v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 195 Mo. 400, 92 S. W. 614.

38. Robertson v. Hammond Packing Co., 115 Mo. App. 520, 91 S. W. 161. It is only when it becomes apparent to any reasonable man that the master has failed in his duty and that the safety of the servant is imminently endangered that the law requires him to refuse to work in the dangerous place, if he would be held blameless. Dodge v. Manufacturers' Coal & Coke Co., 115 Mo. App. 501, 91 S. W. 1007. Use of a machine known to be defective will not bar a recovery unless the danger was so obvious and imminent that a person of ordinary prudence would not have used it. Lawrence v. Heidbreder Ice Co., 119 Mo. App. 316, 93 S. W. 897. An employe does not assume the risk of a known defect if under the circumstances an ordinarily prudent person would have continued in the employment. Cooper's Adm'r v. Daniels Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 1172, 96 S. W. 1100.

39. Car checker had a right to rely on custom of giving warning when cars were kicked down side track, and did not as a matter of law assume the risk of being struck by a car while engaged in his work. Meadowcroft v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 266.

40. See 6 C. L. 576.

41. Hunley v. Patterson & Co., 116 La. 736, 41 So. 54.

42. Where employe was ordered to get a piece of lumber from a pile, he had a right to assume that the foreman would not order him into a place of danger, and he did not assume the risk of the pile falling on him. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460. Brakeman does not assume risk of being subjected to sudden and unexpected danger while executing an order of the conductor; risk of sudden stopping of engine without cutting off car which brakeman was put on to control by hand brake. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Nicholas, 165 Ind. 679, 76 N. E. 522.

43. Where a servant is injured while complying with a command of a superior, the master cannot relieve himself on the theory that the defect was one in respect to a simple and ordinary appliance as to which the servant had full knowledge. Kraft v. Neunkirchen, 119 Ill. App. 369. Where the master or his representative orders or requests the servant to engage in an employment outside the scope of the duties which the servant has contracted to perform, which employment is attended with dangers unknown to the servant and not open to his observation, and which are not discoverable by him by means of such an inspection as he has time and opportunity to make, and gives him no instructions with respect to such dangers, and he is injured in consequence of so entering upon the new service, he is not deemed to have accepted the risk his work after an assurance of safety by a superior,[44] unless the danger is known and appreciated by the servant,[45] or is obvious and imminent and such that an ordinarily prudent person would not have encountered it under the circumstances.[46] The question is ordinarily one of fact.[47] of such dangers, and the master is liable in damages for the injury. Jacksonville Elec. Co. v. Sloan [Fla.] 42 So. 516.

44. Employe did not assume risk of shock from third rail while engaged in repairs on track at night, having been told the power was off. Keeley v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 490.

45. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Spotts, 77 Ark. 458, 92 S. W. 249. Where work is being done under orders of a superior, the risk of injury is assumed only when the danger is known and appreciated. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 77 Ark. 367, 92 S. W. 244. Even though an employer performs work under orders, and unwillingly, no physical compulsion being used, he may assume the risk if he knows and appreciates the danger. Id. After an expert drillman had inspected a hole and found it unsafe, he had no right to rely on an assurance of safety by a superintendent who knew less about it than he did, and he assumed the risk though he went to work under a command of the superintendent. Knorpp v. Wagner, 195 Mo. 637, 93 S. W. 961. Though employe was injured while oiling a machine under orders of a superintendent, and requested that the machine be stopped, which was refused, yet if he knew and appreciated the danger of oiling it when in motion he would have assumed the risk. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Spotts, 77 Ark. 458, 92 S. W. 249. Where servant knew that mangle was unsafe, even though it had a guard, and was afraid of it, but nevertheless consented to operate it, she assumed the risk of getting caught in the rollers, notwithstanding foreman's assurances of safety, since she was not misled thereby. Burke v. Davis, 191 Mass. 20, 76 N. E. 1039. Section foreman who went on a railroad velocipede by direct order of a superior nevertheless assumed the risk, since his knowledge of the danger from trains was equal to that of his superior. Ives v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co., 128 Wis. 357, 107 N. W. 452.

46. Tuckett v. American Steam & Hand Laundry [Utah] 84 P. 500; American Brake Shoe & Foundry Co. v. Jankus, 121 Ill. App. 267. Where master furnished unsafe scaffold and ordered servant to use it, he could not set up defense of assumed risk, unless danger was so apparent that a man of ordinary prudence would not have incurred it. Hinchliff v. Robinson, 118 Ill. App. 450. Where a servant is injured while complying with a command of a superior coupled with a threat of dismissal in case of disobedience, he does not assume the risk unless an ordinarily prudent person would not have incurred the danger under the same circumstances. Kraft v. Neunkirchen, 119 Ill. App. 369. Where miner requested mine manager to inspect and ascertain if a room was going in the right direction, and was assured by the manager that it was all right, he did not assume the risk of injury by a blast through a wall which was thinner than specifications required, unless the danger was so plain that none but a reckless person would have encountered it. Consolidated Coal Co. v. Shepherd, 220 Ill. 123, 77 N. E. 133. The servant has the right to rely on the superior knowledge of the master, and when acting under his orders will not be held to have assumed a risk, unless it was so evident that no prudent person in his place would have obeyed the order. Hunley v. Patterson & Co., 116 La. 736, 41 So. 54. Where servant acts under express orders and is exposed to unusual danger and is injured, the master is liable unless the servant realized the danger, or unless it was so obvious and imminent that a man of ordinary prudence would not have undertaken it. Ross-Paris Co. v. Brown, 28 Ky. L. R. 813, 90 S. W. 568. Evidence held to show that employe in laundry did not appreciate the risk of operating a laundry mangle. Id.

Risk held to have been assumed: Section hand assumed risk of using obviously defective hand car, even though he was acting under direct orders of his superior. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Byland, 50 Fla. 190, 40 So. 24. Employe who drove his team, hitched to a scraper, down a steep bank, assumed the risk, though defendant's agent told him to do so, assuring him it was safe. Lindsay v. Hollerback & May Contract Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 68, 92 S. W. 294. Where a peril which can be easily apprehended attaches to the operation of a machine that is in good order, and it appears that the operator understood the danger, the fact that his foreman on a previous occasion, when the machine may have been running at a different rate of speed and at work on different material, expressed ths opinion that the work was safe, does not render the master liable for an injury to the operator from the apprehended danger, and the taking of a case from the jury under such circumstances does not constitute error (Van Dusen Gas Co. v. Schelies, 61 Ohio St. 298, distinguished). Marshka v. Republic Iron & Steel Co., 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 137. The fact that a servant undertakes an act under the direction of a superior does not relieve him from the assumption of the risk if the danger is obvious and known and appreciated by him. Brakeman assumed risk of being crushed between cars which crew were "staking," though conductor directed him to act as he did. Chicago Great Western R. Co. v. Crotty [C. C. A.] 141 F. 913.

47. Risk of explosion not assumed as matter of law by quarryman who was ordered to clean out a blast hole which he was told had been discharged. McKane v. Marr [Vt.] 63 A. 944. Whether driver of sprinkling cart assumed risk of driving into barn while seated on it (being struck by door), when employer told him to do so, and that it was all right. Jensen v. Kyer, 101 Me. 106, 63 A. 389. There is no absolute rule applicable to all cases by which to determine the question of the master's liability where the servant is injured in the performance of a duty which he was ordered or requested by the master or his representative to perform. The question depends on

Reliance on promise to repair, after complaint.[48]—Where the servant has complained of a defective condition, and the master or his representative has promised to make it safe by proper repairs, the servant may continue in the employment, without assuming the risk,[49] for such length of time as is reasonably necessary for the making of the required repairs,[50] unless the appreciated danger is so imminent that a man of ordinary prudence would refuse to encounter it.[51] To bring a case the circumstances of each case. Jacksonville Elec. Co. v. Sloan [Fla.] 42 So. 516. Specific orders of the master and his assurances of safety are to be considered as part of circumtances in determining whether a risk was assumed. Jensen v. Kyer, 101 Me. 106, 63 A. 389. Where a young, inexperienced helper, under the orders of an operator of a machine, was injured by lifting a heavy piece of iron, under the operator's order, and would have been discharged had he not obeyed, he did not assume the risk as a matter of law. Sherman v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 127, 91 S. W. 561. Where employe objected to going down a stack on a swing board, and foreman told him to go ahead that it would be all right with weight on it, and the board caught on a rivet and tipped throwing plaintiff to the bottom of the stack, he did not assume the risk as a matter of law. Springfield Boiler & Mfg. Co. v. Parks, 222 Ill. 355, 78 N. E. 809.

48. See 6 C. L. 577.

49. Citrone v. O'Rourke Engineering Co., 113 App. Div. 518, 99 N. Y. S. 241; Chicago Tel. Co. v. Schulz, 121 Ill. App. 573. A promise to repair after complaint relieves the servant of the assumption of the risk. Bates-Rogers Const. Co. v. Dunn, 29 Ky. L. R. 428, 93 S. W. 1032. The master by promising to amend a defect complained of by the servant as an inducement to the servant to continue, forthwith takes from the servant the risk, and thereafter, and during the period for repair, assumes it. Andrecsik v. New Jersey Tube Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 63 A. 719. Plaintiff, working near coal chute, complained that overhead platform was not wide enough to protect employes from falling coal and parts of machinery, and foreman promised to have it extended, but before he did so plaintiff was injured by a falling weight. He did not assume the risk. Buffalo Creek Coal Min. Co. v. Hodges [Ky.] 98 S. W. 274. Miner noticed that shaft was dangerous, being untimbered, and complained to superintendent two days before he was injured by the fall of a rock down the shaft. The superintendent promised to have the shaft timbered right away. The miner did not assume the risk. Monarch Min. & Development Co. v. De Voe [Colo.] 85 P. 633. Plaintiff complained that trench in which he was to work was unsafe, and foreman told him to go to work and after dinner he would fix it. Plaintiff was injured during the forenoon. Held risk was assumed by master. Citrone v. O'Rourke Engineering Co., 113 App. Div. 518, 99 N. Y. S. 241.

50. Servant complained of machine on Monday and master promised to repair the following Saturday. Servant did not assume risk of injury on Thursday. Swarts v. Wilson Mfg. Co., 100 N. Y. S. 1054. Servant assumes risks known to him when he goes to work, unless master promises to make repairs, in which case he may continue a reasonable time after the promise without assuming the risk. Louisville Belt & Iron Co. v. Hart, 29 Ky. L. R. 310, 92 S. W. 951. Where employe operating a machine complained that it was in a dangerous condition and received promise that it would be fixed, he had a right to continue working for a reasonable time without assuming the risk, the danger not being so imminent that a person of ordinary prudence would not have incurred it. Antletz v. Smith, 97 Minn. 217, 106 N. W. 517. If a promise to repair is not fulfilled in such time as would ordinarily and reasonably be required to fulfill it, the servant, remaining after such time, assumes the risk. Parker v. Drakesboro Coke & Coal Min. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 825, 96 S. W. 575. Servant employed around the mouth of a mining shaft threatened to leave unless barriers were built, but remained seven days thereafter and was then injured, though no barrier had been built. Such safeguard could have been made in half a day by an unskilled workman. Held, risk assumed. Heathcock v. Milwaukee-Platteville Lead Zinc Min. Co. [Wis.] 107 N. W. 463

Question of fact: For how long a time the servant may continue to work after a promise to remove a danger has been made is ordinarily a question of fact to be solved in view of all the facts and circumstances. Victor Coal Co. v. Dunbar, 120 Ill. App. 288. Where miner continued to work after superintendent promised to timber a dangerous shaft right away, and was injured two days later, whether he was negligent in continuing to work was for the jury. Monarch Min. & Development Co. v. De Voe [Colo.] 85 P. 633. Where, on complaint, master promised to repair a circular saw machine "pretty soon," whether it was negligent to continue work two days in reliance on the promise was for the jury. Tannhauser v. Uptegrove & Bro., 100 N. Y. S. 245. Employe was told on November 5th that openings in floors would be rendered safe. November 9th he saw lumber to be used for the purpose. On November 14th he was struck by a piece of gas pipe which fell through. Whether he reassumed the risk of injury from the defect complained of was for the jury. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475. Where operator of circular saw complained of lack of guard, and foreman promised several times to have it fixed, and some days later the employe was injured, whether he assumed the risk was for the jury. Eligh v. Goldie, 143 Mich. 596, 13 Det. Leg. N. 96, 107 N. W. 316.

51. Where employe complained of lack of runways between joists on which he had to work, and foreman said they would have them made, the employe did not assume the risk of falling through unless the danger was glaring and obvious and such that he would be in danger, notwithstanding the exercise of ordinary care by himself. Robertson v. Hammond Packing Co., 115 Mo. App. 520, 91 S. W. 161. Where employe asked within the operation of this rule, it must appear that the servant who made the complaint apprehended danger to himself and desired the repairs to be made for his own protection.[52] A complaint as to dangerous premises which plainly conveys the idea that a defect exists and that the employe desires it to be removed is sufficient.[53] The complaint need not be made to the master personally; it is sufficient if it be made to a representative of the master having authority in the premises,[54] or to one whose duty it is to communicate such complaints to the master.[55] The promise to repair must be made by the master or some one standing in his place.[56] The promise of a mere fellow-servant is without effect, unless it appears that he made it by authority from the master.[57] It must further appear that the servant relied upon the promise.[58] A foreman may be justified in relying upon a promise to repair, made upon a complaint by him, as well as an ordinary servant,[59] where it sufficiently appears that his complaint was made, in part at least, because of apprehension of personal danger to himself.[60] The promise to repair need not be express but may be implied from what was said at the time complaint was made.[61] Where the promise is general and indefinite, the master's undertaking runs for a reasonable time.[62] Where the promise is to repair at a fixed time, it runs only until the termination of the time fixed.[63] The rule under discussion does not apply for assistance in moving cars and was promised help, he did not assume the risk of proceeding in the work without such help, unless the danger was so imminent that no man of ordinary prudence would continue. North Chicago St. R. Co. v. Aufmann, 221 Ill. 614, 77 N. E. 1120. Where master promised to repair appliance being used by plaintiff as soon as the job on which he was engaged was finished, and plaintiff continued and was injured before completing the job, whether the danger was so imminent that he assumed the risk was for the jury. Leeson v. Sawmill Phoenix, 41 Wash. 423, 83 P. 891.

52. Complaints as to openings in floors of works through which objects might fall on those below held to indicate sufficiently that plaintiff desired the defect remedied for his own protection while going about the plant. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475. Where a depot employe requested the removal of snow from the platform, and the station agent promised to have it done, but the complaint was not based on any apprehension of danger but on a desire to make himself and passengers more comfortable, he was not relieved from the assumption of the risk. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Nichols [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 742, 92 S. W. 411.

53. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475.

54. Complaint of opening in floors of works through which objects might fall, made to a night superintendent in charge at the time, who had under him foremen controlling three hundred and fifty to four hundred men, was made to a proper person so as to bind the master. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475. Whether employe to whom plaintiff complained of defects had authority to make repairs held a question for the jury, in view of evidence. Burch v. Southern Pac. Co., 145 F. 443.

55. Odin Coal Co. v. Tadlock, 119 Ill. App. 310.

56. Spencer v. Haines [N. J. Law] 64 A. 970. General manager and foreman in charge of a local camp and logging operations were vice-principals, and a promise by them to repair was binding on the master. Bailey v. Swallow [Minn.] 107 N. W. 727.

57. Where engineer who had care of machinery in hotel told operator of mangle in laundry that he would repair it, the promise did not relieve the employe of the assumption of risk, there being nothing to show actual or implied authority of the engineer to bind the master. Spencer v. Haines [N. J. Law] 64 A. 970.

58. Evidence held not to show conclusively that injured employe and his fellow-servants did not rely on a foreman's promise to repair a platform on which they work or that they themselves had undertaken to make such repairs. Bailey v. Swallow [Minn.] 107 N. W. 727.

59. Viou v. Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 891.

60. Foreman complained that tram cars kept running off a bridge over a ravine because a curve was too short. He occasionally rode across on cars himself. The superintendent promised to have the defect fixed. Held the foreman did not assume the risk of injury from a tram car falling upon him while at work in the ravine getting out cars which had previously gone over. Viou v. Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 891.

61. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475. Promise of superintendent that "he would see to it and have it fixed" held sufficient. Id.

62. Andrecsik v. New Jersey Tube Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 63 A. 719. What is a reasonable time may be for the jury, but if the servant continues longer than such a time without any repairs being made, he assumes the risk thereafter. Id.

63. There is in such case no question for the jury as to when servant reassumes the risk. Andrecsik v. New Jersey Tube Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 63 A. 719. Workman complained of machine at 10 o'clock in forenoon and superintendent told him to go ahead, that work must be rushed and that where the complaint and promise to repair have reference to a simple tool or appliance.[64]

Risks created by servant.[65]—A servant who unnecessarily adopts a dangerous method of doing work, when another method less dangerous is open to him, assumes the risk.[66]

(§ 3) G. Contributory negligence. Nature of defense.[67]—Contributory negligence is a want of ordinary care on the part of the servant injured, which, concurring and combining with negligence of the master, produced the injury as a proximate cause [68] without which the injury would not have occurred.[69] When found to

he would have it fixed at the "noon hour." The promise to repair was held specific, and the machine not having been repaired, and the workman having been injured at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, it was held he could not recover. Id.

64. The rule that a servant is relieved from the assumption of a risk by a promise to replace a defective with a safe tool does not apply where the tool is a simple one. Bowen v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 117 Ill. App. 9. Where the defective appliance is simple, such as a box used to stand on, the servant cannot relieve himself of the assumption of the risk by setting up an alleged promise to repair. International Packing Co. v. Kretowicz, 119 Ill. App. 488.

65. See 6 C. L. 578.

66. Conductor assumed risk of hitching caboose to tender with a chain, leaving several feet of slack. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Emerson [Miss.] 40 So. 818. Where manner of work was chosen by servant himself, without orders, the defense of assumed risk was available. Reeves v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 498, 98 S. W. 929. Servant who walked on elevated road on a place which was obviously dangerous on account of trains, there being another safer walk, assumed the risk of being struck. McLaughlin v. Manhattan R. Co., 111 App. Div. 254, 97 N. Y. S. 719. Where a servant abandons the usual and safe mode of doing his work and tries a new way, which is liable to become dangerous at any time, he assumes the risk. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Arnold, 122 Ill. App. 278. Employe who had worked with sheet metal cutting machine, and who used his hands to remove the metal because the construction of the machine made another method less convenient, assumed the risk. United States Wind Engine & Pump Co. v. Butcher, 223 Ill. 638, 79 N. E. 304. Switchman assumed risk of going between cars to uncouple them when he could have done the work without going between them. Suttle v. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 144 F. 668. Where servant knew that clutch of machine was defective and that machine could be stopped only by shutting off the power, he assumed the risk of trying to get rubber out of the rollers without stopping. Roche v. India Rubber & Gutta Percha Insulating Co., 100 N. Y. S. 1009. Coal miner assumed risk of falling coal when he knew of the danger and neglected to take certain precautions to protect himself. Cranes Nest Coal & Coke Co. v. Mace, 105 Va. 624, 54 S. E. 479.

67. See 6 C. L. 579.

68. Wilson v. Southern R. Co., 73 S. C. 481, 53 S. E. 968. Proximate connection between plaintiff's want of ordinary care and the injury must be made to appear. Sorensen v. Case Threshing Mach. Co. [Wis.] 109 N. W. 84. Negligence of servant in oiling machinery from an inconvenient place would not bar recovery for an injury unless it proximately contributed to produce the injury. McCarley v. Glenn-Lowry Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 1.

69. Wilson v. Southern R. Co., 73 S. C. 481, 53 S. E. 968. Negligence of servant must contribute directly to produce the injury. Browning v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 449, 94 S. W. 315; Betchman v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 140. That a servant was in a particular position of danger, as to which he had been warned, would not prevent a recovery where the cause of injury was the act of a superintendent. Reiter-Conley Mfg. Co. v. Hamlin, 144 Ala. 192, 40 So. 280. Where schedule time of street car required a speed in excess of that allowed by ordinance, the company could not claim that a violation of the ordinance constituted contributory negligence where car was derailed owing to a defective rail. Moore v. St. Louis Transit Co., 193 Mo. 411, 91 S. W. 1060. Where switchman turned the wrong switch, thereby causing a collision and his own death, and an inspection of the rails which he was required to make, would have disclosed his mistake and given him a chance to avoid the accident, his own negligence, and not the lack of switch lights, was held the proximate cause of his death. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mounce's Adm'r, 28 Ky. L. R. 933, 90 S. W. 956. If servant fell asleep while riding on a logging train, and was thrown off by a sudden jerk caused by lack of brakes on the cars, and the servant's negligence concurred with the master's to produce the injury, the servant could not recover. Sledge v. Weldon Lumber Co., 140 N. C. 459, 53 S. E. 295. Where viaduct was reasonably safe for intended purpose, travel between two buildings, servant's negligence in sitting on a railing not intended for such purpose was the proximate cause of his injury by reason of the railing giving way. Kelley v. Lawrence, 195 Mo. 75, 92 S. W. 1158. Where trackman assumed, without reason, that no torpedoes had been set out, though he saw a standing train and knew that a rule required torpedoes to be set out and a man left with them, he could not recover for injuries caused by the explosion of a torpedo left by a conductor who did not remain with it. Murphy v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 606, 96 S. W. 940. Where a person learning the duties of a brakeman had been warned and instructed not to go between cars, the conductor and engineer were not negligent in failing to as-exist, it bars a recovery in most jurisdictions,[70] though in some it goes only to a reduction of the damages recoverable.[71] The defense of contributory negligence is usually held available, though the action is based upon the violation of a statutory duty of the master,[72] unless expressly excluded by the statute,—but there are authorities to the contrary.[73] Contributory negligence is held not a defense to an action based on a willful violation of a statute,[74] or where gross negligence [75] or wanton or reckless conduct [76] on the part of the defendant is alleged and proved.

The distinctions between the defenses of assumed risk and contributory negligence have already been referred to.[77]

Degree of care required of servant.[78]—Only ordinary care is required,[79] that is, certain his presence there before starting a part of the train. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Vincent [Tenn.] 95 S. W. 179.

70. Graboski v. New Castle Leather Co. [Del.] 64 A. 74. Negligence of plaintiff, which in any degree contributes to produce injury, bars recovery. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Wray [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 676, 96 S. W. 74. Boy of fifteen, fully instructed as to use of machine, who was injured by failure to use care and operate as directed, could not recover. Essenberg v. Fralm [Pa.] 64 A. 793. Where sheeting in an excavation was put in under agreement with city by decedent and under his direction, there was no cause of action against the city for decedent's death caused by the sheeting giving way. Salwedel v. Adrian [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 418, 108 N. W. 701. If brakeman knew that cars were being backed down a track where he went between cars to couple them and failed to exercise reasonable care in so doing, and his failure contributed proximately to cause his injury, he could not recover. Southern R. Co. v. Simmons, 105 Va. 651, 55 S. E. 459. Though railroad conductor was transferred from repair to wrecking department of railroad, his contributory negligence in hitching a caboose to the tender with a chain, leaving several feet of slack, barred a recovery for injuries caused by a collision. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Emerson [Miss.] 40 So. 818.

71. See 6 C. L. 679, n. 13.

72. Contributory negligence is a defense to an action under Laws 1887, p. 117, c. 3744, and Laws 1891, p. 113, c. 4071, authorizing recovery by one railroad employe for negligence of another in running locomotives, cars, or machinery. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Byland, 60 Fla. 190, 40 So. 24. Contributory negligence is a defense to an action based on a violation of Rev. St. 1899, § 6433, requiring shafting to be guarded when possible. Millsap v. Beggs [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 956. Defense of contributory negligence is available in action under Laws 1902, p. 1748, c. 600. Chisholm v. Manhattan R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 622. Defense of contributory negligence is available in an action based on employment of boy under fourteen to run a dangerous machine in violation of Laws 1897, p. 477, c. 415, § 17. Lee v. Sterling Silk Mfg. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 78. The provision of 94 O. L. 42, making it negligence for a master to permit the use of certain machinery without guards over it for the protection of operatives, does not make it possible for an operative to recover for an injury received in such machinery, notwithstanding his own negligence at the time of the accident. Ziehr v. Maumee Paper Co., 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 144. If contributory negligence of the servant was the proximate cause of his injury, he cannot recover though he proves a violation of a statute requiring machinery to be guarded. Hunter v. Washington Pipe & Foundry Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 171. Where it was the duty of a servant to keep the floor clean around a machine, and as he was engaged in cleaning up some oil on the floor he slipped and threw his hand into the machine and was injured, and it appeared that if the machine had been guarded he would have had to remove the guard to do his work, and that he could have stopped the machine, it was held his own negligence and not the failure to guard the machine was the cause of injury. Id.

73. Where servant under sixteen is employed on extra hazardous work, in violation of the statute, the defense of contributory negligence is not available. Helmbacher Forge & Rolling Mills Co. v. Garrett, 119 Ill. App. 166. Railroad employe is not negligent in working on cars not equipped with automatic couplers unless his conduct was reckless. Halrston v. U. S. Leather Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 847.

74. Contributory negligence is no defense to an alleged willful violation of the Miners' Act. Kellyville Coal Co. v. Strine, 117 Ill. App. 115. In an action under Laws 1899, pp. 316, 317, §§ 16, 18, for a willful violation thereof by a failure to inspect and to provide props for a miner, whereby he was injured, contributory negligence is not a defense. Henrietta Coal Co. v. Martin, 221 Ill. 460, 77 N. E. 902.

75. Gross negligence being shown, mere contributory negligence on the part of the injured servant is no defense. Where brakeman was guilty of gross negligence in leaving a switch open, contributory negligence on part of engineer, in jumping, to avoid injury in a collision was no defense. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Block, 86 Miss. 426, 38 So. 372.

76. Whether engineer of train purposely and wantonly increased speed of train after seeing switchman go between cars. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Preston [Ala.] 40 So. 337. Violation of rules by a switchman who went between cars would not prevent a recovery for injuries if engineer purposely and wantonly increased the speed of the train after he saw the switchman go between the cars. Id.

77. See ante, § 3 F.

78. See 6 C. L. 580.

79. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Ames [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 298, 94 S. W. 1112.

such care as ordinarily prudent persons would exercise under the same circumstances.[80] Whether that degree of care was exercised in a particular instance is Only reasonable care can be required of a servant in selecting a path through works where he was employed on a necessary errand. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475. Switchman's failure to use ordinary care as a consequence of having used intoxicants held to bar a recovery by him irrespective of a rule prohibiting use of liquor while on duty. Worcester v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 548, 91 S. W. 339. Instruction to effect that servant must use his ordinary senses in places of danger proper where servant was injured going down an unattached ladder in the dark. Thomas v. Boston & M. Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co. [Mont.] 87 P. 972.

80. Morgan v. Hager & Sons Hinge Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 690, 97 S. W. 638. Degree of care depends on danger to which person is knowingly exposed. City Water Works v. Lane, 122 Ill. App. 427. The care required of a conductor going down unlighted steps of depot platform was held such care as an ordinarily prudent person would exercise under like circumstances, not such care as he thought was necessary to protect himself. Beard v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 56 S. E. 505. Engineer was injured while waiting for his engine, standing between two main tracks, being struck by a mail car. An instruction that he was required to exercise such care as persons of ordinary care and prudence would exercise under the same circumstances was proper. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lighthelser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Electric linemen, liable to come in contact with electric currents, must use such care as is reasonably commensurate with the usual and ordinary dangers to be expected under such circumstances, that is, such care as ordinarily careful and prudent persons usually exercise under the same circumstances. Zentner v. Oshkosh Gaslight Co., 126 Wis. 196, 105 N. W. 911. Where employe was killed by molten iron from a blast furnace, a part of which gave way as a result of a superintendent having put lumps of ore of improper size into it, instructions held to have properly presented issue of contributory negligence. Williamson Iron Co. v. McQueen, 144 Ala. 265, 40 So. 306.

Servant held not guilty of contributory negligence: Where fireman was found dead at his post after a collision, and there was no proof of his failure to keep a lookout, he was not shown to have been guilty of contributory negligence. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Doughty, 77 Ark. 1, 91 S. W. 768. Miner, killed by gas explosion, gas having accumulated because a door was left open, held not negligent in going in through the open door, nor did it appear that he himself left the door open. Western Coal & Min. Co. v. Douglass [Ark.] 96 S. W. 994. Workman employed to sew bags carried strings tied round his waist, and strings caught in exposed shaft and he was injured. He had been at work only a few hours and had not been warned. Foreman v. Eagle Rice Mill Co., 117 La. 227, 41 So. 555. Employe of railroad company held not negligent in putting his head over a gate to ascertain cause of noise and see if anything was wrong, since it was his duty to exercise great care for safety of passengers. South Side El. R. Co. & Cosmopolitan Elec. Co. v. Nesvig, 114 Ill. App. 355. Servant held not negligent as matter of law in using scaffold. Hinchliff v. Robinson, 118 Ill. App. 450. Where plaintiff was injured by particles of matter being thrown into his eyes as he was operating an emery wheel, and the evidence supported a finding that he could not work it from one side, he could not be held negligent for having stood in front of it. Muncie Pulp Co. v. Hacker [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 770. Employe injured by wheel which servants dropped, under order of foreman, held not negligent as a matter of law. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Metcalf, 29 Ky. L. R. 870, 96 S. W. 525. Plaintiff, working on a platform while handling logs in river, fell by reason of a plank breaking. Godfrey v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 117 La. 1094, 42 So. 571. Boy sent to dip out acid without knowledge of its dangerous character, and unwarned, was not negligent in getting some of the acid in his eyes. Hodde v. Attleboro Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 252. Plaintiff injured by sudden starting of printing press which had been properly stopped by him, and which he was running for the first time. Byrne v. Boston Woven Hose & Rubber Co., 191 Mass. 40, 77 N. E. 696. Evidence sufficient to warrant finding that employe was not negligent in walking into opening in the floor (trap door was left open), when he had always found it safe before. Falardeau v. Hoar [Mass.] 78 N. E. 456. Where foreman, at work in a ravine getting out cars which had gone over a bridge, was injured by another car going over, the evidence was held to warrant a finding that he was not negligent. Viou v. Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co., 99 Minn. 97, 108 N. W. 891. Evidence sufficient to support finding that inexperienced employe was not negligent in putting covers on rollers of mangle. Carlin v. Kennedy, 97 Minn. 141, 106 N. W. 340. Minor operating a steam candy roller put starch on rollers to remove candy which was stuck on them and got his fingers caught in the rollers. Rev. St. 1899, § 6434, was violated in putting him to work on the machine. He was not guilty of contributory negligence. Nairn v. National Biscuit Co., 120 Mo. App. 144, 96 S. W. 679. Held not negligence for brakeman to mount a train while in motion to resume his duties. Charlton v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 529. Employe not negligent in continuing to work on defective steam shovel apparatus where he had no knowledge, or means of knowledge, of the defect. Southern R. Co. v. Wiley [Miss.] 41 So. 511. Where plaintiff was at work on cars and was injured by other cars running into them, the evidence was held to sustain a finding that he was not guilty of contributory negligence. Bird v. U. S. Leather Co. [N. C.] 56 S. E. 727. Mine employes, discovering gas and foul air, signaled for hoist and were taken to the 18 foot level where the bucket stopped. They waited 20 minutes and then started to climb, and plaintiff was overcome and fell back. Held he was not guilty of contributory negligence. Davis v. Holy Terror Min. Co. [S. D.] 107 N. W. 374. Where brakeman failed to place lights on the end of a train, but gave proper and timely signals to engineer and fireman to prevent the engine and water car from colliding with the rest of the train, a finding that he was not guilty of contributory negligence was justified. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Fanning [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 344. Employe holding guide rope on girder which was being hoisted was struck by a wedge which fell through the girder. He was not negligent as a matter of law for not watching all the time he was holding the rope. Sullivan v. Wood & Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 629.

Servant held guilty of contributory negligence: Where plaintiff dumped a car before he received orders to do so and while the car was still moving, thereby violating his instructions, and caused a derailment of the car. Redus v. Milner Coal & R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 634. Declaration alleged negligence of a superintendent in allowing or causing plaintiff's hand to be caught in cog wheels, and also defects in machinery. Proof that he negligently stood on a stool to start the machine, and took hold of the cogs to support himself, did not warrant a recovery, but showed that his own negligence caused his injury. King v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 639. Employe engaged in striking chisel to chip steel allowed a fellow-servant to strike for him to show him how and took a position behind him, where he was struck by a sliver of steel. He was held negligent. Cripple Creek Sampling & Ore Co. v. Souza [Colo.] 86 P. 1005. Where employe left the place where he was at work to a roadway where several persons were gathered near a live wire which had rendered two others unconscious, and took hold of wire, notwithstanding warning cries, he was negligent and there could be no recovery for his resulting death. Kennedy v. Scovill Mfg. Co. [Conn.] 65 A. 131. Cable repairer who climbed pole and took hold of guy wire without noticing that an electric light wire rested against it was negligent. Law v. Central Dist. Printing & Tel. Co., 140 F. 558. Servant is guilty of contributory negligence where conditions producing his injury were created solely by himself. Darrow v. The Fair, 118 Ill. App. 665. Section hand, warned of approach of a train, stepped on another track without looking to see if a train was coming, though he knew about twenty-five trains a day passed on that track in a certain direction. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. McMinn, 72 Kan. 681, 84 P. 134. Experienced wool worker held guilty of negligence where wood being bent by him sprung back and struck him, when a bolt broke. Cotton v. Owensboro Wheel Co. [Ky.] 97 S. W. 763. Conductor held negligent in connecting power of street car before motorman had placed the controller in position, causing the car to start suddenly and run into him. Nassauer v. New Orleans & C. R. Light & Power Co., 116 La. 475, 40 So. 842. Evidence held to show that operator of saw was injured by reason of his own act and not on account of any defect in the machine he was operating. Davis v. Queen City Furniture Mfg. Co., 116 La. 1070, 41 So. 318. Electric light company employe knew the kind of steps used on poles and that they frequently became loosened, and it was his duty to report the fact when he discovered that a step became loosened. Held he was negligent in placing his weight on a step without first inspecting it. Little v. Hyde Park Elec. Light Co., 191 Mass. 386, 77 N. E. 716. Deceased, engaged in work on a railroad track, knew the foreman had left and knew the dangers to be guarded against. Hence, he had no right to assume that warning of a train would be given, but it was his duty to keep a lookout. No recovery for death caused by regular train. Vecchioni v. New York Cent. & H. R. Co., 191 Mass. 9, 77 N. E. 306. Employe injured by fall of curbstones was guilty of contributory negligence when he had been piling such stones two years and had the same opportunity to observe dangers in the piles or in the dunnage between them as anyone else. Regan v. Lombard [Mass.] 78 N. E. 476. Engineer's helper injured by slipping of ladder placed against boiler for him should have examined it to see if it was properly placed and safe. McDonnell v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 548. Brakeman was caught between a moving car and a pile of rattan piled in railroad yards. Rattan was commonly stored there, plaintiff could see the pile which injured him, could have stepped off the car in time to avoid injury, and had been warned that the car was extra wide. He was held guilty of contributory negligence. Flansberg v. Heywood Bros. & Wakefield Co., 190 Mass. 125, 76 N. E. 599; Wilson v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. [Mich.] 108 N. W. 1021. Where girl of sixteen stood with one foot protruding into elevator shaft and was caught by elevator as it came down, she was guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Roberts v. Sanitas Nut Food Co., 142 Mich. 589, 12 Det. Leg. N. 788, 106 N. W. 68. Conductor held guilty of negligence in hitching a caboose to an engine tender with a chain leaving several feet of slack, as a result of which, when the engine was stopped suddenly, the caboose collided with the tender and he was killed. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Emerson [Miss.] 40 So. 818. Boy fourteen years old was employed in guiding pans on an endless chain running on sprockets. Some of the pans had holes in the bottom and he had been warned not to put his fingers through into the chain. He did so, through lack of attention, and was injured. Held he was guilty of negligence. Coonce v National Biscuit Co., 115 Mo. App. 629, 92 S. W. 352. Failure of servant to test balustrade before leaning on it held negligence. Bennett v. Himmelberger, 117 Mo. App. 58, 93 S. W. 823. Where track repairer failed to heed warnings of other employes, he was guilty of negligence as matter of law. McGrath v. St. Louis Transit Co., 197 Mo. 97, 94 S. W. 872. Experienced railroad employe, switch inspector, struck by engine, held negligent, where situated where he could have seen and avoided danger. Keating v. Manhattan R. Co., 110 App. Div. 103, 97 N. Y. S. 137. Servant at work on track struck by switch engine which he ought to have seen and avoided. Rich v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 112 App. Div. 818, 98 N. Y. S. 678. Injury to station agent by falling into excavation held to have been caused by his own failure to inspect. Wood v. New York, etc., R. Co., 184 N. Y. 290, 77 N. E. 27. Servant in factory stopped freight elevator at a certain floor and got out, but the elevator continued to go up owing to some defect. The employe returned and walked into the open shaft which was plainly visible. Fink v. Hartog & Beinhauer Candy Co., 112 App.

ordinarily a question of fact for the jury,[81] to be determined with reference to all

Div. 387, 98 N. Y. S. 393. Employe, walking beside a track which had been in use, to his knowledge, stepped on it in front of cars and was killed. No recovery. Lord v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 65 A. 111. Failure of engineer to heed signals to stop, when he saw or ought to have seen the signals, held to constitute contributory negligence. Stewart v. Raleigh & A. Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 253, 53 S. E. 877. Engineer negligent in running into station without keeping a lookout for a train on the track. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1005, 97 S. W. 461. Brakeman held negligent in not watching for switch engine while crossing tracks in railroad yards. Anson v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 1058. Plaintiff guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to drive between curb and a van being backed up to the curb. Roe v. Standard Furniture Co., 41 Wash. 546, 83 P. 1109. Wagon was dumped by shafting and a chain and a wrench flew off the shafting and struck plaintiff. He was negligent in standing where he did and in leaving the wrench on the shaft. Trudeau v. American Mill Co., 41 Wash. 465, 83 P. 725. Experienced saw operator held negligent in trying to remove obstruction from a chute, the obstruction giving way suddenly and throwing his arm against the saw, this danger being obvious and imminent. Laidley v. Musser Lumber & Mfg. Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 124. Where employe could have avoided injury by the use of appliances at hand, he could not recover. Bailey v. Mukilteo Lumber Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 819. Section hand sent out on velocipede to flag a train was struck by it at a place where he could see ahead 600 or 800 feet. Vaundry v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. [Wis.] 109 N. W. 926.

81. Contributory negligence held a question for the jury: Where driver of horse car tried to stop the car to avert a collision and was injured. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Smith [Ala.] 40 So. 91. Plaintiff was injured by reason of tripping over a scantling lying on steps in the building. He testified that he relied on a promise of another employe that the scantling would be removed that day. Herren v. Tuscaloosa Waterworks Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 55. It is not negligence per se for a brakeman to climb down the side of a box car. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Caraway, 77 Ark. 405, 91 S. W. 749. Common laborer injured in mine by fall of earth and rock, timbering being in charge of underground manager, and the place where the accident occurred being untimbered. Bird v. Utica Gold Min. Co., 2 Cal. App. 674, 84 P. 256. Miner fell down a shaft, guard rails having been negligently raised by a fellow-servant. Vindicator Consol. Gold Min. Co. v. Firstbrook [Colo.] 86 P. 313. Brakeman killed while coupling cars, having stepped down upon bumper of one of them. Lyle v. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. [C. C. A.] 145 F. 611. Whether employe was negligent in sitting in window of factory near unboxed revolving wheel in which she was caught. Michigan Headlining & Hoop Co. v. Wheeler [C. C. A.] 141 F. 61. Where brakeman was injured in making a coupling with a link and pin, used by the company in violation of the automatic coupler act of Congress, the mere fact of injury was not presumptive evidence of contributory negligence. Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Arrighi [C. C. A.] 141 F. 67. Where switchman in yards of defendant stepped between cars to uncouple them, the automatic coupler having failed to work, and got his foot caught in a frog, whether he was negligent was for jury, there being evidence that he had worked twelve days, that many couplers did not work, and that it was customary to uncouple cars as he had tried to do it. Taggart v. Republic Iron & Steel Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 910. Where plaintiff was directed to clean out hole containing unexploded charge. James Ramage Paper Co. v. Bulduzzi [C. C. A.] 147 F. 151. Where brakeman fell under cars as he dropped off an engine to open a switch at night. Reardon v. Toledo, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 187. Fireman was killed in wreck caused by train going over a passing track at a station at a high rate of speed, main track being blocked. Evidence conflicting as to lights which it was fireman's duty to watch for. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Bishard [C. C. A.] 147 F. 496. Where railroad employe was at work on the repair track and was struck and injured by an engine. Collins v. Southern R. Co., 124 Ga. 853, 53 S. E. 388. Order clerk, sent on errand across tracks, struck by switch engine. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Harper, 124 Ga. 836, 53 S. E. 391. Employe sent to flag a train and turn a switch for it sighted along the rails, while waiting, and when so engaged was seized with a cramp or paralytic stroke and fell on the track and was struck by the train. He knew he was subject to such attacks when overheated. Talley v. Atlantic & B. R. Co., 126 Ga. 56, 54 S. E. 817. Operator of sheet metal cutting machine got hand caught. United States Wind Engine & Pump Co. v. Butcher, 223 Ill. 638, 79 N. E. 304. Servant working on partition in factory injured by traveling crane. National Enameling & Stamping Co. v. McCorkle, 219 Ill. 557, 76 N. E. 843. Where employe went down a stack on a swing board, after an assurance of safety by his foreman, facing the center of the stack instead of the walls, and the board caught on a rivet and threw him off. Springfield Boiler & Mfg. Co. v. Parks, 222 Ill. 355, 78 N. E. 809. Engineer waiting for engine, and standing between two main tracks, was struck by a mail car. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Employe attempted to adjust unguarded machine while in motion. Stephens v. American Car & Foundry Co. [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 335. Engineer knew that side track had safety device to keep cars off the main track and had no notice that the device was out of repair. Held he was not negligent as a matter of law in failing to watch for cars from the side track, during a storm, in which he passed the place. Grand Trunk Western R. Co. v. Melrose [Ind.] 78 N. E. 190. Employe injured by tipping of bottle of acid owing to alleged defect in crate on which it was placed. Columbian Enameling & Stamping Co. v. O'Burke [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 409. Stone fell from mine roof injuring a miner. It appeared another stone near had been removed a short time before, but evidence was conflicting as to whether this caused the second to fall or whether the miner knew of the danger from the second. Diamond Block Coal Co. v. Cuthbertson [Ind.] 76 N. E. 1060. Miner injured by fall of part of roof. Cook v. Smith-Lowe Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 798. Servant digging ditch injured by a cave-in. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Burgess, 72 Kan. 454, 83 P. 991. Brakeman killed in course of switching operations. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cane's Adm'x, 28 Ky. L. R. 1018, 90 S. W. 1061. Bridge carpenter, in going to work on bridge, had to watch carefully in order not to step between the ties. Whether he was negligent in failing to discover the approach of an engine held for the jury. Cason's Adm'r v. Covington & C. El. R. & Transfer & Bridge Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 352, 93 S. W. 19. Employe engaged in grading and digging injured by caving of bank of earth. Chiappini v. Fitzgerald, 191 Mass. 598, 77 N. E. 1030. Whether employe was negligent in using an icy walk to a privy when there was another way. Urquhart v. Smith & Anthony Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 410. Treadle of machine broke while operator was jumping on it with both feet to stop the machine and save it from injury. Hannan v. American Steel & Wire Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 749. Boy of sixteen injured by moving of carriage which he was engaged in cleaning. Baggneski v. Mills [Mass.] 78 N. E. 852. Rim of basket on washing machine broke, injuring operator of machine. McGuinness v. Lehan [Mass.] 79 N. E. 265. Whether defect in ladder on water tank should have been discovered by employe using it, defect being a rotten round not visible. Nichols v. Pere Marquette R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 623, 108 N. W. 1016. Whether lineman was negligent in the manner of stringing a feed wire, or in putting too great a strain upon a pole. Livingway v. Houghton County St. R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 534, 108 N. W. 662. Employe fell into shaft while loading a truck on the elevator. Murphy v. Grand Rapids Veneer Works, 142 Mich. 677, 12 Det. Leg. N. 868, 106 N. W. 211. Whether boy under sixteen who was injured in rollers of corrugating machine was negligent. Sterling v. Union Carbide Co., 142 Mich. 284, 12 Det. Leg. N. 712, 105 N. W. 755. Boy of sixteen was caught by hoisting apparatus while attaching hooks to load of stone, and dropped after being carried up thirty feet. Milton v. Biesanz Stone Co. [Minn.] 109 N. W. 999. Saw mill employe at work on chain carrier injured. Hendrickson v. Ash [Minn.] 109 N. W. 830. Whether employe at work in a trench and injured by a horse falling in was negligent in continuing to work without guards or warning signals. Johnson v. St. Paul Gas Light Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 816. Whether brakeman, struck by overhead bridge, was negligent in unnecessarily exposing himself to danger held a question for jury. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Thomas, 87 Miss. 600, 40 So. 257. Switchman injured by reason of unblocked switch. Lee v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 195 Mo. 400, 92 S. W. 614. Building being torn down, under direction of foreman, fell on plaintiff. Broomfield v. Worster Const. Co., 118 Mo. App. 254, 94 S. W. 304. Whether brakeman went between cars to uncouple them or to detach air hose. McManus v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 152, 94 S. W. 743. Carpenter in power house came in contact with charged trolley wire. Cessna v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 659, 95 S. W. 277. Plaintiff injured by derailment while riding on switch engine held not negligent as a matter of law by reason of having taken a position on the front of the engine with one foot on the draw bar instead of standing on foot board. Dunphy v. St. Joseph Stockyards Co., 118 Mo. App. 506, 95 S. W. 301. Employe at work in sewer trench injured by fall of bulkhead. Kielty v. Buehler-Cooney Const. Co. [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 998. Brakeman killed while climbing side of car being struck by water crane maintained beside the track. Charlton v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 529. Whether boy of fourteen was negligent held for jury, where he moved his foot, which another boy had stepped on, in an elevator, and placed it where it was caught between floor of elevator and floor of building. Obermeyer v. Logeman Chair Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 59, 96 S. W. 673. Lineman injured by contact with uninsulated service wires. New Omaha Thomson-Houston Elec. Light Co. v. Romhold [Neb.] 106 N. W. 213. Employe hauling a truck out under direction of foreman and walking backwards fell over a hole in the floor of which he had no knowledge. Burke v. Manhattan R. Co., 109 App. Div. 722, 96 N. Y. S. 516. Employe fell into elevator opening in building in course of construction, the opening being unguarded. Kiernan v. Eidlitz, 109 App. Div. 726, 96 N. Y. S. 387. Where employe was injured by the fall of a scaffold which had been weakened by the removal of a pier of a building which had helped to support it, evidence of his knowledge of that act being conflicting, the issue of contributory negligence was for the jury. Laws 1902, p. 1750, c. 600, § 3. Berthelson v. Gabler, 111 App. Div. 142, 97 N. Y. S. 421. Employe removing snow from elevated road with iron shovel received shock from third rail. Smith v. Manhattan R. Co., 112 App. Div. 202, 98 N. Y. S. 1. Plaintiff was injured when building scaffold by fall of bricks from a wall on which he stepped, these bricks having been laid the day before. Meehan v. Hogan, 100 N. Y. S. 1008. Employe, after going up an elevator, stepped out after some card board, and returning stepped into shaft and fell, the elevator having gone on up. There were no lights and the accident occurred after dark. Graham v. Williams, 101 N. Y. S. 77. Where plaintiff was operating a moveable steam derrick, and seeing that it began to tip and that an emergency had arisen, left his place of work to ascertain what the trouble was, he was not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Redhead v. Dunbar & Sullivan Dredging Co., 101 N. Y. S. 301. Servant working on elevated with iron tool accidentally broke insulation on wire and received a shock. He had not been warned and had no knowledge of danger. Carey v. Manhattan R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 631. Where a contractor building a depot, was required to be on or to cross the track often, and he looked both ways and listened for a train, and then stepped upon a track and was struck without warning, he was not negligent as a matter of law. The issue was for the jury. Sherrill v. Southern R. Co., 140 N. C. 252, 52 S. E. 940. Whether boy under twelve was guilty of contributory negligence, where injured by starting of machine he was cleaning, held for jury, considering the boy's age, experience, and intelligence. Rolin v. Reynolds Tobacco Co., 141 N. C. 300, 53 S. E. 891. Brakeman, standing on pilot of engine, the facts and circumstances of the case,[82] including the age, experience, and capacity

according to instruction and custom, and thrown off because he had no bar to hold on to, was not negligent as a matter of law. Biles v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 512. Switchman, in adjusting coupler on car, took hold of a cross piece nailed to stanchions of car to secure lumber, and piece gave way throwing him under the train. Wallace v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 646, 54 S. E. 399. Contributory negligence was not shown as a matter of law where plaintiff was injured while cleaning a machine by hand, where he alleged and testified that he had no knowledge of the defect which caused the injury. Hicks v. Naomi Falls Mfg. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 411. Conductor fell down steps of depot platform at night while going to his train. Beard v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 505. Where engineer ran his engine on a bridge and, seeing that it was giving way, ran it off again, whereupon repairs were made by a construction crew, the superintendent of which assured him that the bridge was then safe, and relying thereon the engineer and fireman ran on the bridge and went through, the question of contributory negligence was for the jury. McCabe & Steen Const. Co. v. Wilson [Okl.] 87 P. 320. Inexperienced employe caught in unguarded cogs of picker machine. Strickland v. Capital City Mills, 74 S. C. 16, 54 S. E. 220. Whether conductor was negligent, his train having escaped down a grade owing to defect in brakes. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bohan [Tenn.] 94 S. W. 84. Whether engineer was negligent in failing to discover that a step on the locomotive was defective. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Cherry [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 505, 98 S. W. 898. Employe claimed he had not heard of orders not to use ladder after stairway had been built, and employes customarily used the ladder with foreman's knowledge. Plaintiff, injured while on ladder, was not negligent in using it as a matter of law. Pipkin v. Hayward Lumber Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 157, 94 S. W. 1068. Man hauling clay was struck by girder above him as he drove into clay shed. Titterington v. Harry [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 840. Whether employe at work on track had a right to assume engine crew would look out for him, and whether he was negligent. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Cotts [Tex. Civ. App.] 95 S. W. 602. Whether coupling pin was defective held properly submitted to jury on issue whether brakeman was negligent in remaining between moving cars. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Green [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 133, 95 S. W. 694. Engineer injured in collision with train which preceded his. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 408, 95 S. W. 660. Laundry employe was injured while running a laundry machine under foreman's directions, and it appeared she knew there was something the matter with it. Tuckett v. American Steam & Hand Laundry [Utah] 84 P. 500. Engineer, who knew of lack of switch light, was killed by running into switch improperly set. Southern R. Co. v. Blonford's Adm'x, 105 Va. 373, 54 S. E. 1. Engineer injured by reason of failure of reverse bar to work, a collision resulting. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Cash's Adm'r, 105 Va. 570, 54 S. E. 472. Quarryman killed by falling rock, loosened by seam of water. Black's Adm'r v. Virginia Portland Cement Co. [Va.] 55 S. E. 587. Lineman was not negligent as matter of law in failing to test and inspect pole before climbing it, where it appeared that he was inexperienced and was relying on instructions of experienced man with whom he was working. Sias v. Consolidated Lighting Co. [Vt.] 64 A. 1104. Employe in sawmill fell on unguarded circular saw. Erickson v. McNeeley & Co., 41 Wash. 509, 84 P. 3. Employe assisting in removing hub from shaft of propeller was burned by oil spurting out as superintendent struck it with a sledge to loosen it. Creamer v. Moran Bros. Co., 41 Wash. 636, 84 P. 592. Operator of planer in sawmill stepped into a hole in floor as he went to remove an obstruction from the machine. He knew of other holes but not of this one, which was concealed by shavings and sawdust. He was not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Baker v. Duwamish Mill Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 167. Knot sawyer injured by unguarded saw. Thomson v. Issaquoh Shingle Co. [Utah] 86 P. 588. Where saw broke, a piece striking plaintiff and there appeared to have been a mistake in the signals given to control operation of the machinery, the question of contributory negligence was for the jury. Smith v. Michigan Lumber Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 652. Whether saw filer was negligent in the position he took to file a saw, or in failing to loosen the belt, for jury, he being injured by reason of the sudden starting of the machinery of the mill. Comrade v. Atlas Lumber & Shingle Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 517. Boy of sixteen, thinking he had been called to another place in a shingle mill, started to go there and fell on a saw in trying to avoid certain beams in a passageway which he used. Whether, in view of his age and inexperience, he had reason to suppose he was expected to use the passageway was for the jury. Barrett v. Banner Shingle Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 919. Whether lineman ought to have known that electricity was turned on while he was making repairs so that he should have guarded against contact with wires. Zentner v. Oshkosh Gaslight Co., 126 Wis. 196, 105 N. W. 911. Whether employe was negligent in not watching for a hoisting hook as it was being raised, and in not steadying it so as to prevent its swinging and striking him. Johnson v. St. Paul & W. Coal Co., 126 Wis. 492, 105 N. W. 1048. Whether girl of fifteen should have discovered set screws on shaft of slitting machine and avoided getting her hair caught. Van de Bogart v. Marinette & Menominee Paper Co., 127 Wis. 104, 106 N. W. 805.

82. In passing upon the issue of contributory negligence, all the facts and circumstances of the case should be considered. Instruction predicating negligence on only a part of the facts held erroneous. Southern R. Co. v. Blonford's Adm'x, 105 Va. 373, 54 S. E. 1. Though master has promised to repair a defect, after complaint, the servant must use care commensurate with the danger. Trudeau v. American Mill Co., 41 Wash. 465, 83 P. 725.

of the servant,[83] and the respective duties of the master and the servant.[84] Mere knowledge of a defective condition does not charge a servant with negligence as a matter of law,[85] unless the danger was obvious and imminent.[86] Momentary forgetfulness of a known danger does not of itself, as a matter of law, constitute contributory negligence.[87]

There can be no recovery for the injury or death of an employe who was engaged at the time in an unlawful act.[88]

Choice of methods.[89]—Needless exposure to a known danger is negligence;[90] hence, a voluntary choice of an obviously dangerous way of doing work, when a rea-

83. The degree of care to be required of a minor depends upon his age, maturity of judgment, experience, and emotional control, and the question is one for the jury. Longree v. Jacks-Evans Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 478, 97 S. W. 272. Boy under sixteen injured using circular saw. Rahn v. Standard Optical Co., 110 App. Div. 601, 96 N. Y. S. 1080. Boy of thirteen injured by pieces of wire flying from unguarded wire cutting machine. Thein v. Brecht Butchers' Supply Co., 116 Mo. App. 1, 91 S. W. 953. Where boy of sixteen was injured while feeding sheets of brass into rolling machine, an instruction that it was his duty to exercise such care as boys of the same age, intelligence, and experience usually exercise under similar circumstances was proper. Anderson v. Chicago Brass Co., 127 Wis. 273, 106 N. W. 1077.

84. Where it was plaintiff's duty to keep a passageway clean, he could not complain of the presence of shavings and iron scraps therein which contributed to produce an injury by the falling of a wheel upon him which he and another were rolling from one shop to another. Beardsley v. Murray Iron Works Co., 129 Iowa, 675, 106 N. W. 180. Rev. St. 1905, § 6871, requires a miner to securely prop the roof of a mining place or room under his control. Failure of a miner to do so, whereby he is injured by the roof falling, is not excused by the impracticability of propping the roof while working with machines, since there is no exception to that effect in the statute. Morris Coal Co. v. Donley, 73 Ohio St. 298, 76 N. E. 945. Miner was not negligent in sitting down under a mass of rock to allow a car to pass unless he was negligent in working at all in the place. Dodge v. Manufacturers' Coal & Coke Co., 115 Mo. App. 601, 91 S. W. 1007. The "look and listen" rule applied to person about to cross railroad tracks does not apply to employes obliged to be on or near the tracks. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Where it is employe's duty to work on the track where trains are being run in the work of repair, he is not negligent as a matter of law in not keeping a constant lookout. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Jackson [Ark.] 93 S. W. 746. The rule that a railroad employe, whose duty requires him to be at or near the track, need not keep a strict lookout for trains does not apply to one who merely crosses the track in order to get to points where his work requires him to be. Dyerson v. Union Pac. R. Co. [Kan.] 87 P. 680. Such an employe is under the duty of looking in both directions for trains before crossing the tracks. Id. The fact that the company has previously run trains only in one direction on a certain track, and has changed the custom without notice to him, does not relieve him from this duty. Id.

85. Mere knowledge that a pile of lumber was dangerous would not alone charge a servant ordered to get a piece of lumber from it with contributory negligence where the pile fell and injured him. All the surrounding facts and circumstances are to be considered. Rigsby v. Oil Well Supply Co., 115 Mo. App. 297, 91 S. W. 460. A servant is not necessarily guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law simply because he had previous knowledge of the defect which caused his injury. Where servant forgetting that revolving knives of a log chipper were just over his head, put his fingers into them when giving a signal, the question of contributory negligence was for the jury. Rector v. Bryant Lumber & Shingle Mill Co., 41 Wash. 556, 84 P. 7. Fireman, overcome by coal gas when his train was stalled in a tunnel, was not negligent as a matter of law in staying on the engine, though he knew that poor coal was being used and that something was the matter with the coupler of the helping engine which caused the delay. Dayle v. Great Northern R. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 861.

86. Brakeman is not negligent as a matter of law in going between cars on unblocked switches, the danger from the absence of blocking not being obvious. McManus v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 152, 94 S. W. 743. Where it did not appear that switchman knew or ought to have known of defects in a track causing a derailment, it could not be held that he was negligent. Wallis v. St. Louis, etc. R. Co., 77 Ark. 556, 95 S. W. 446. Where locomotive fireman did not discover that the apron extending from the cab to the tender was defective until he had moved coal which covered it, having started on his trip, he was not guilty of negligence in not at once abandoning the engine, the danger not appearing to be imminent. Missouri, etc. R. Co. v. Dumas [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 538, 93 S. W. 493.

87. Applied where employe got caught in cog wheels suddenly started. Williams v. Ballard Lumber Co., 41 Wash. 338, 83 P. 323.

88. No recovery for death of elevator operator who was running elevator at a speed greater than that allowed by statute. Malloy v. American Hide & Leather Co., 148 F. 482.

89. See 6 C. L. 583.

90. Servant who rode on dangerous place on engine, after being warned, was negligent. Jemnienski v. Lobdell Car Wheel Co. [Del.] 63 A. 936. Plea of contributory negligence showing a brakeman attempted to stop a car after entering a switch held not sonably safe way is available, is negligence,[91] notwithstanding the customary use of demurrable. King v. Woodstock Iron Co., 143 Ala. 632, 42 So. 27. Where man engaged in structural work unnecessarily put his fingers over a rail above him to steady himself, and had them cut off by a car, he could not recover. McNeil v. Clairton Steel Co., 213 Pa. 331, 62 A. 923. Railroad employe walked on inside narrow walk of elevated road instead of taking the outer, safer path, and failed to look out for trains and was struck and killed. He was held negligent. McLaughlin v. Manhattan R. Co., 111 App. Div. 254, 97 N. Y. S. 719. Employe, struck by car while walking on elevated road in course of his duties in installing telephone line, held negligent in walking too close to the track, there being no necessity therefor. Chisholm v. Manhattan R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 622. Where, notwithstanding warning notice not to use tram cars, deceased got on the front of one to ride up to his place of work, and stood outside with one foot on the bumper and the other on the cable, and fell to the track and was run over, he was negligent, and there could be no recovery for his death. Union Coal & Coke Co. v. Sundberg [Colo.] 85 P. 319. Approaching and entering elevator shaft in the dark held contributory negligence. Darrow v. The Fair, 118 Ill. App. 665. If switchman, who knew frogs were unlocked, went between moving cars at a frog and got his foot caught, knowing the cars would continue to move, he would be guilty of negligence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Oram [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 624, 92 S. W. 1029. Where manner of work was chosen by servant himself without orders, the defense of contributory negligence was available. Reeves v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 498, 98 S. W. 929. A servant who unnecessarily exposes himself to a known danger cannot excuse his negligent act by the claim that unknown negligence of the master made the danger greater than he supposed it. Employe jumped over a drum instead of using a platform built over it. His act was not excusable by reason of the fact that loose strands of the cable, which he did not know about caught him. American Linseed Co. v. Heins [C. C. A.] 141 F. 45. Where blasting foreman, shortly after a missed shot which he observed, cleaned out the hole and poured powder into it, holding his face over the hole while doing so, and an explosion resulted, burning his face, was guilty of contributory negligence. Hilman Land & Iron Co. v. Littlejohn, 28 Ky. L. R. 983, 90 S. W. 1053.

91. Where servant has two ways to do work and selects an obviously dangerous one, the other being safe, cannot recover for resulting injuries. Johnson v. Malette [Mont.] 87 P. 447. Brakeman negligent in going between cars to uncouple them when he could have used a lever and avoided going between them. McManus v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 152, 94 S. W. 743. If brakeman could have coupled cars without going between them, it was negligence to go between them. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. Where brakeman atempted to uncouple cars in a dangerous manner instead of using the device in as safe a manner as was possible, he could not recover for resulting injury. Lyon v. Charleston & W. C. R. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 18. An employe who has the choice of two methods of doing a given piece of work, the one safe and the other dangerous, is under a duty to his employer to select the former, and if, instead of so doing, he voluntarily selects the latter, when he knows or ought in the exercise of due care to know of the danger, he cannot recover of the employer for injuries thus sustained. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Skipper, 125 Ga. 368, 54 S. E. 110. Servant who jumped over a drum and was caught by the cable, his leg being crushed, when he might have gone safely over a platform built over it, could not recover. American Linseed Co. v. Heins [C. C. A.] 141 F. 45. No recovery by employe who rode on a car loaded with logs and was injured by its derailment when he might have ridden on a flat car with other employes, none of whom were injured. Tower Lumber Co. v. Brandvold [C. C. A.] 141 F. 919. Plaintiff, ordered to cross a track on which cars were standing, crawled under the cars instead of climbing over, and was injured by starting of train. No recovery. Slota v. Albert Lewis Lumber & Mfg. Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 632. If electric light company employe could have lifted and lowered lamps by using steps provided so as not to touch an iron awning, and so that he would have been insulated, he would be guilty of negligence in failing to use them whereby he received a shock. Horne v. Consol. R., Light & Power Co., 141 N. C. 50, 53 S. E. 658. Where operator of shingle machine was injured because he tried to remove a block while the machine was in motion instead of waiting until he had stopped it, as he might have done, he could not recover. Cawood v. Chattahoochee Lumber Co., 126 Ga. 159, 54 S. E. 944. Evidence is admissible to show that employe had a safe way to do his work, and that he would have escaped injury, had he used this safe way. Reiter-Conley Mfg. Co. v. Hamlin, 144 Ala. 192, 40 So. 280. Attempting to remove an obstruction from a moving machine, which operator could easily have stopped, held negligence. Smith v. Forrester-Nace Box Co., 193 Mo. 715, 92 S. W. 394. Evidence of death of servant from electric shock in coupling electric wires which were insulated except at the ends held insufficient because as consistent with the theory that he needlessly took hold of the uninsulated wire as with the theory that the insulation was defective. Looney v. Metropolitan R. Co., 200 U. S. 480, 50 Law Ed. 564. Servant who had to cross tracks, obstructed by a train, attempted to climb through between them, and was injured by the starting of the train. Southern R. Co. v. Thomas, 29 Ky. L. R. 79, 92 S. W. 578. An inexperienced servant is not necessarily guilty of contributory negligence in adopting an improper method of work when he has not been instructed otherwise. Wessel v. Jones & Laughlin Steel Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 332. Where a servant for whom proper appliances have been provided voluntarily uses an improper appliance and in an unusual manner, he cannot recover. Meyers v. Moorehead Bros. & Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 503.

such method by other employes,[92] though the existence of such a custom may be considered on the issue.[93] Failure to use the least dangerous method is not necessarily negligence,[94] and whether choice of a particular method constitutes negligence depends upon the knowledge of the servant, actual or implied, of the danger,[95] and the conditions attending the doing of the work at the time of the injury.[96]

Reliance on master's care.[97]—A servant is not negligent in relying, to a reasonable extent, on the assumption that the master has performed his duties with respect to his employes,[98] unless he has actual or implied knowledge to the contrary.[99] He may also rely on an assurance of safety by a superior,[1] and may as-

92. That other employes are accustomed to do work in a dangerous manner is no excuse for an employe who is injured while doing work in such manner. Cawood v. Chattahoochee Lumber Co., 126 Ga. 159, 54 S. E. 944. That an act is customarily done by other employes does not relieve it of its negligent character, nor relieve a negligent employe of the consequences of his act. American Linseed Co. v. Heins [C. C. A.] 141 F. 45. That it was customary for planer operators to remove obstructions with their hands would not relieve plaintiff from the charge of contributory negligence. Smith v. Forrester-Nace Box Co., 193 Mo. 715, 92 S. W. 394.

93. Where fireman was on pilot of engine cleaning it, while it was moving, and was killed in collision, whether he was negligent was for jury, there being evidence of a general custom among firemen of doing as he did. Kane v. Erie R. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 682.

94. A servant is not necessarily negligent by failing to use the least dangerous method of doing his work. Moss v. Mosley [Ala.] 41 So. 1012.

95. Where an employe had no knowledge of a defect in a passageway, he was not negligent in using it, though another was available. Kremer v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 247, 96 S. W. 726. Where servant fell into a depression in a pathway leading from a gate to the house, she was not guilty of negligence, the way chosen being shorter and more convenient, and she having no knowledge that it was not as safe. Battle v. Robinson, 27 R. I. 588, 65 A. 273. Whether servant knew he was doing work on machine in a manner more dangerous than other ways of which he knew held for jury. Lawrence v. Heidbreder Ice Co., 119 Mo. App. 316, 93 S. W. 897. Servant was directed to do certain work about an elevator and went on the elevator to do it, this not being necessary, and was injured in consequence. Whether he ought to have known and avoided the danger was held for the jury. Johnson v. Maiette [Mont.] 87 P. 447. Whether the position chosen by an employe before a bed plate of a cloth press at which he was directing a battering ram was so obviously dangerous that no ordinarily prudent person would have chosen it, held a question for the jury. Shaw v. Highland Park Mfg. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 433.

96. Brakeman, struck by water crane maintained beside the track, cannot be held negligent in having mounted on the wrong side of the car, while the train was moving. Charlton v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 529. Where seaman, ordered to paint funnel, tried an iron pulley to rig up an appliance from which to work, and found it too rusty and then tried a wooden pulley and a rope which appeared sound, and the rope broke and he was injured, he was not negligent as a matter of law. The Lowlands, 142 F. 888.

97. See 6 C. L. 584.

98. Servant may rely on master's care to a reasonable extent. Foreman v. Eagle Rice Mill Co., 117 La. 227, 41 So. 555. Servant may assume that master will maintain scaffold in safe condition. Berthelson v. Gabler, 111 App. Div. 142, 97 N. Y. S. 421. Employe, injured by tripping on elevation of floor in passageway, had the right to rely on the assumption that the master had exercised reasonable care in inspecting the place of work and in repairing defects therein. Kremer v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 247, 96 S. W. 726. Where servant was directed to use a block and tackle device to hoist bales of hay, he was not guilty of negligence as a matter of law in using the guide rope without first inspecting it. De Maries v. Jameson [Minn.] 108 N. W. 830. Employe engaged in relaying track at night was not negligent in placing chisel on the third rail, receiving a shock when he understood power was off. Keeley v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 490. Where servant was called through a certain passageway in a mill, he had a right to assume it was reasonably safe without making an examination of it. Barrett v. Banner Shingle Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 919. Code 1896, § 2914, requiring operators of mines to provide ample means of ventilation, imposes a positive duty upon operators which a miner may assume has been performed. Foley v. Pioneer Min. & Mfg. Co., 144 Ala. 178, 40 So. 273. Instruction that servant has a right to rely on the assumption that the master has exercised reasonable care for his safety approved where injury was alleged to have been caused by falling of scaffold placed on a car, by reason of the moving of the car. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Meyers [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 779, 94 S. W. 140.

99. Failure of railway company to have steps of depot platform well lighted at night would not relieve conductor, going to his train, of the duty of exercising ordinary care for his own safety. Beards v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 505.

1. Miner had a right to rely on assurance of mine superintendent that a blast had been discharged, and was not negligent in going to work on the assumption that it had been exploded. Allen v. Bell, 32 Mont. 69, 79. P. 582. The fact that work of the servand is being done in the presence and under the immediate direction of representative of the master is equivalent to an assurance of sume that execution of an order given by a superior will not expose him to any unusual danger,[2] unless he has knowledge of the danger involved, and such known danger is one which an ordinarily prudent person would not have encountered under the same circumstances.[3] Similarly, the servant may rely to a reasonable ex-safety. Wilson v. Southern R. Co., 73 S. C. 481, 53 S. E. 968. Quarryman not negligent as matter of law in using hammer to clean out blast hole which foreman had told him had been exploded. McKane v. Marr [Vt.] 63 A. 944. Superintendent of gang working on track saw plaintiff looking up and said "all right." Held plaintiff was justified in assuming that superintendent was looking out for trains. Dunphy v. Boston El. R. Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 479. Orders and assurances of safety are immaterial unless they are the operating influence which induces the servant to do the act that is the immediate cause of his injury. Jensen v. Kyer, 101 Me. 106, 63 A. 389.

2. Employe has a right to rely, within reasonable limits, on his master's superior knowledge, skill, and ability and is not bound to set his judgment against that of his superior. Hence, specific orders and assurances of safety by the master are to be considered as part of the attendant circumstances in determining question of employe's negligence. Jensen v. Kyer, 101 Me. 106, 63 A. 389. That foreman told a young employe to use her hands to unclog a machine instead of a stick could be considered on the issue of her contributory negligence. Regling v. Lehmaier, 50 Misc. 331, 98 N. Y. S. 642. A servant obeying the instructions of a representative of the master on the spot is not guilty of negligence. Wilson v. Southern R. Co., 73 S. C. 481, 53 S. E. 968. That foreman ordered employe to do certain work may be shown on issue of contributory negligence. Fearington v. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co., 141 N. C. 80, 53 S. E. 662. That an employe had been generally instructed not to go between cars to couple them would not necessarily relieve him from the duty of obeying an express order of superintendent to make a coupling in that manner. Liles v. Fosburg Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 39, 54 S. E. 795. Section hand, engaged in moving hand car from track, was not negligent when acting under foreman's orders and relying on his vigilance to avoid danger. St. Louis & N. A. R. Co. v. Mathis, 76 Ark. 184, 91 S. W. 763. Brakeman held not negligent in using link and pin coupler where he was directed to use it and had used it successfully on the same trip. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Craig [Ark.] 95 S. W. 168. Where employe was injured while trying to remove choke from a machine, and not while trying to clean it, and was following directions at the time, whether or not there was a sign forbidding the cleaning of machines while in motion was immaterial. Creachen v. Bromley Bros. Carpet Co., 214 Pa. 15, 63 A. 195. Where boy of thirteen was directed by superintendent of cotton mill to remove cotton from a cog wheel, and attempted to do so and was injured, he could recover, notwithstanding placards prohibiting cleaning of machinery when in danger. Dougherty v. Dobson, 214 Pa. 252, 63 A. 748. Obedience to a direct order of a superior is not negligence unless the danger is so obvious and imminent that no prudent man would have done the act commanded. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Wray [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 676, 96 S. W. 74. Engineer of switch engine, ordered to run his engine backward on the main track, held not negligent as a matter of law in doing so, relying upon switchman on front of engine for signals, where he ran into a train and was injured. Id.

To constitute an order it is not necessary that the language used should be of a formally imperative character. Jury could find that employer's direction to plaintiff to stay on sprinkler cart while driving into barn was an order on which he had a right to act. Jensen v. Kyer, 101 Me. 106, 63 A. 389. Where rules prohibited brakemen going between cars, an order to couple cars was not an order to go between cars. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856.

3. If danger is so patent and serious that no prudent man would incur it, the servant cannot plead an order of assurance of safety of the master as justification for placing himself in danger. Jensen v. Kyer, 101 Me. 106, 63 A. 389. Actual knowledge of a defect need not be shown if it is such that the danger would be apparent to an ordinary careful man under the circumstances. Anderson v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 884. Though the servant was acting pursuant to an order or direction, he may still be found negligent if the danger involved was apparent and such that no reasonably prudent man would have encountered it under the same circumstances. Tuckett v. American Steam & Hand Laundry [Utah] 84 P. 500. Though a servant has some knowledge of danger involved in obeying a command of a superior, he is not negligent if he acts as an ordinarily prudent person would act under the same circumstances. City of Waukegan v. Sturm, 118 Ill. App. 479. Whether plaintiff was negligent in going between cars to couple them, under orders of superintendent, held to depend on whether a reasonably prudent man would have done as he did under the circumstances. Liles v. Fosburg Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 39, 54 S. E. 795. A servant is guilty of contributory negligence in undertaking an act the danger of which he knows and appreciates and which is so imminent that no prudent person would incur it, even though a superior directs him to undertake the act in question. Brakeman held negligent in holding post between cars where one was being "staked" on sidetrack by an engine and car on another track, and the danger of his position must have been fully known to him, even though he worked under the direction of the conductor of the train. Chicago Great Western R. Co. v. Crotty [C. C. A.] 141 F. 913. Motorman, who had right of way over a single track, left a place of safety and took the track, under direction of his conductor and according to rules of the company, though he saw a car coming on the single track from the other direction and took no steps to avoid a collision until the other car, which was being run in violation of the rules, was too close. Held he tent on the assumption that work will be done in the customary manner,[4] and in accordance with the rules of the master,[5] and that other employes, for whose conduct the master is responsible, will perform their duties in an ordinarily careful manner.[6]

Disobedience of orders and violation of rules.[7]—It is the duty of the employe to obey and observe the reasonable rules and regulations of his employer with reference to the conduct of the business,[8] and a failure to do so will ordinarily be held negligence,[9] which will bar recovery for injuries proximately caused thereby.[10] was guilty of contributory negligence. Mason v. Post, 105 Va. 494, 54 S. E. 311.

Contributory negligence held a question for jury: Where driver of sprinkling cart drove into barn seated on the cart and was struck by the door, employer having told him to do so and that it was all right. Jensen v. Kyer, 101 Me. 106, 63 A. 389. Whether employe was negligent in obeying order of superintendent to oil moving machinery. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Spotts, 77 Ark. 458, 92 S. W. 249. Whether employe assisting in taking a wooden structure down under orders of a superior was negligent in continuing at work, a dangerous method of work being adopted, held a question for the jury. Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 77 Ark. 367, 92 S. W. 244. Whether employe engaged in building construction was negligent in walking over girders and joists connected in places by boards but having wide spaces between them. Butz v. Murch Bros. Const. Co. [Mo.] 97 S. W. 895. Miner held not negligent as a matter of law in working without props in the mine, though he knew props had not been supplied where the danger was not obvious and imminent. McKinnon v. Western Coal & Min. Co., 120 Mo. App. 148, 96 S. W. 485. Where a servant is injured while endeavoring to execute an order involving obvious danger to himself, the question whether or not he was justified in obeying the instructions given him by the master is one which should be left to the jury. Crockett v. Michael, 9 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 15.

4. Car checker, struck by cars kicked down a track where he was engaged in his work, no warning being given, was not negligent as a matter of law, since he had a right to assume that the customary warning would be given. Meadowcroft v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 266. Section foreman walking on track had right to rely on the operation of trains in the usual and proper manner, and was not negligent as matter of law where struck by a locomotive without warning. Christopherson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1077. Employe whose duties frequently called him to place where fellow-servants were shoveling coal from cars to a bin was under no duty to give them warning of his presence, since they had reason to apprehend that he might be there at any time, and there was a custom of giving a warning cry whenever they threw large lumps of coal into the bin. Ranford v. Southern R. Co., 126 Ga. 452, 55 S. E. 183. Brakeman not negligent where he was injured while coupling air hose by reason of failure of head brakeman to give proper signal to prevent cars coming together. Hartman v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co. [Minn.] 110 N. W. 102.

5. Brakeman may assume that company will conform to its rules and exercise reasonable care for his safety. Southern R. Co. v. Simmons, 105 Va. 651, 55 S. E. 459. Brakeman had a right to assume, when walking on cars on a siding, that they would be coupled in accordance with rules of the company. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Pope [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 32, 97 S. W. 534. Where engineer was sent out under a special pilot, the conductor, and the latter disregarded rules, the former was not responsible. Wilson v. Southern R. Co., 73 S. C. 481, 53 S. E. 968.

6. Where the master's representative is present directing the work of tearing down a building, an employe may rely on the assumption that ordinary care will be exercised to make the place reasonably safe. Broomfield v. Worster Const. Co., 118 Mo. App. 254, 94 S. W. 304. Brakeman had right to rely on faithful discharge by engineer of his duty not to move a train without a signal from the brakeman. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cane's Adm'x, 28 Ky. L. R. 1018, 90 S. W. 1061. Where fireman was fixing headlight of engine, and engineer knew it, the latter was bound to use ordinary care not to cause injury to the former, and the fireman was under no duty to anticipate negligence on the part of the engineer. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Cade [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 66, 93 S. W. 124. If telephone lineman relied on inspection of his foreman who ordered him to climb a pole, he was not negligent in climbing it without making an independent inspection. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Holtby, 29 Ky. L. R. 523, 93 S. W. 652. Where a servant is at work in a proper place and in the customary manner, he need not anticipate a negligent act on the part of his coemployes. Bird v. U. S. Leather Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 727.

7. See 6 C. L. 586.

8. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Shanklin [C. C. A.] 148 F. 342; Brown v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 1053. A rule prohibited trainmen from attempting to work with apparatus which they have discovered to be defective so as to render their work dangerous, and required them to report the defect at once to the conductor or superior servant in charge. A reasonable construction of such rule was held to be that after reporting a defect the servant was to act under orders of the superior. Southern R. Co. v. Holbrook, 124 Ga. 679, 53 S. E. 203.

9. In action for injuries to brakeman, the plea set up contributory negligence by reason of plaintiff's going between cars to couple them, in violation of his contract not to do so. The plea was held good. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. Where rules required miners to leave their places ten minutes before noon, and that blasts would be discharged after twelve noon, a

But the fact that the servant injured violated a rule will not be available as a defense if it appears that the rule in question had been in effect abrogated by failure of the master to enforce it,[11] or by the promulgation of other rules or orders inconsistent therewith.[12] A violation of a rule is not negligence per se; the question must be determined with reference to other circumstances of the case as well.[13]

Emergencies.[14]—A servant suddenly confronted with an emergency,[15] or with servant who did not leave his place until after twelve and was injured by an explosion was guilty of contributory negligence. El Paso Gold Min. Co. v. Ewing [Colo.] 86 P. 119. Failure of section master in charge of a crew on a hand car to cause them to run it in a safe manner is contributory negligence which will bar a recovery for injuries to him resulting from operation of the car in a negligent manner. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Byland, 50 Fla. 190, 40 So. 24. Where railroad rule required employes to provide themselves with lanterns when necessary in their work, failure of a brakeman to get a light, when he could have done so, the company having provided them, was a violation of the rule, and an injury caused by want of light did not warrant recovery. Howard v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 891, 90 S. W. 950. If employe required to work on top of oil tanks had been forbidden to go there alone and warned of the danger, there could be no recovery for his death, if it resulted from his disobedience of such warnings. Yellow Pine Oil Co. v. Noble [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 750, 97 S. W. 332. Engineer held negligent when a rule required trains to be at least ten minutes apart, and he, knowing of the time of departure of a preceding train and his own, ran into it in less than ten minutes after its leaving time. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1005, 97 S. W. 461. Car repairer who failed to observe the rules by neglecting to set out a signal while working between cars, this being the only way to protect himself, as he knew, could not recover for injuries caused by the cars being moved by a locomotive while he was between them. Losnes v. Le Roy [Wash.] 87 P. 502. Sawmill employe who failed to observe rules and directions and got in the way of a cart unnecessarily was guilty of negligence. Imhoof v. Northwestern Lumber Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 650.

The rule that violation of a rule promulgated for the protection of the servant is negligence per se does not apply to a rule made for the benefit of the master. Whether violation of a rule of the latter kind is negligence per se not decided. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Caraway, 77 Ark. 405, 91 S. W. 749.

10. That an engineer is off his engine, in violation of a rule of the company, when injured, will not preclude a recovery by him unless it proximately caused his injury. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Rules of company required brakeman, when his train went on a siding, to lock the switch and remain within ten feet of it. Instead, he went into the caboose and failed to lock the switch. Held he was guilty of negligence which was the proximate cause of his death by another train colliding with the caboose. Holland v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 835. No recovery where engineer was killed in a collision in yards caused by his failure to have his engine under control as required by the rules. Brown v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 1053.

11. Car inspector was not negligent in failing to observe a rule requiring him to display a blue flag while at work when such rule had not been enforced. El Paso & S. R. Co. v. Darr [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 145, 93 S. W. 166. Where car provided by defendant to take servants to and from work left the track, killing a servant, the fact that a rule of the company prohibited employes from riding on the car was not available as a defense. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Dilworth [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 257, 94 S. W. 352.

12. If compliance by the servant with a general rule is rendered impossible by other and inconsistent orders and duties imposed by the master, negligence cannot be imputed to the servant for not following the general rule. Maehren v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 107 N. W. 951. Engineer was injured by jumping before rear end collision occurred. A general rule required him to have his train under control at the place in question, but he had orders to make up time and was not given the schedule of a train ahead. The test of his conduct was whether he used ordinary care to have his train under control at the time, and this question was held one for the jury. Id.

13. Disobedience of railroad rules by employe is not negligence per se. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Cotts [Tex. Civ. App.] 95 S. W. 602; Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Parrott [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 879, 96 S. W. 950. Breach of a rule is not negligent per se unless the act is one which no prudent person would have done. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Cherry [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 505, 98 S. W. 898. Where a rule prohibiting brakemen from going between cars was habitually violated, a violation of it by a brakeman was only a circumstance to be considered on the issue of contributory negligence. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Thompson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 229, 93 S. W. 702. It is the duty of employes to observe the master's rules. But where they are oral, proof of them is difficult, and the question of contributory negligence for nonobservance of them should go to the jury. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Shanklin [C. C. A.] 148 F. 342. As where foreman was injured while riding on front of hand car seated on a box. Id.

14. See 6 C. L. 586.

15. Where an emergency occurs in the master's business, the serious nature of which calls a servant from his regular employment, and he is injured in an effort to relieve the situation, in consequence of some defect or danger imputable to the negligence of the master, the servant is not as a matter of law to be charged with contributory negligence, though but for the existence of an unexpected danger,[16] is not required to act with the same deliberation and foresight that might properly be expected of him under ordinary circumstances.[17]

Discovery of servant's peril; intervening negligence.[18]—Though a servant has been negligent in placing himself in a position of peril, the master will be liable for a want of ordinary care to avoid injuring him,[19] after discovery of his peril.[20] But this rule, the last clear chance doctrine, does not apply where both parties are negligent at the very time of the injury.[21]

(§ 3). H. Actions. 1. In general.[22]—Only questions of procedure peculiar to actions to recover for personal injuries to servants are here treated. The general principles which control procedure in all actions of this nature are elsewhere discussed.[23] the emergency he would be barred from recovering on the ground of being a volunteer and of having accepted the risk. Jacksonville Elec. Co. v. Sloan [Fla.] 42 So. 516. Where brakeman was trying to release a brake at the time he was struck by a low bridge, the existence of the emergency, the train having started suddenly before the brake was released, and the fact that the brakeman was engrossed in his labors, would excuse his forgetfulness of the danger. Anderson v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 884. Boy of thirteen, suddenly ordered to remove cotton from cog wheel, is not negligent as matter of law, though placards prohibited cleaning of machines while in motion, and though the act he was told to do was not a proper part of his duties. Dougherty v. Dobson, 214 Pa. 252, 63 A. 748.

16. Brakeman riding on engine, and seeing a burning trestle so close at hand that engine could not be stopped before running into it, was not negligent in jumping just before it was reached. Root v. Kansas City Southern R. Co., 195 Mo. 348, 92 S. W. 621. Where one is placed in danger by negligence of another, his attempt to escape, even by doing an act which is also dangerous and from which injury results, is not contributory negligence, if the attempt was one such as a person acting with ordinary prudence might make under the circumstances. Cudahy Packing Co. v. Wesolowski [Neb.] 106 N. W. 1007. Foreman of switching crew, on switch engine, jumped in order to avoid injury in a collision with a passenger engine. Whether he was negligent was for the jury. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Houlihan [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 559, 93 S. W. 495. Planer was suddenly started, and employe, startled, put his hand into cog wheels, having momentarily forgotten about them. Whether he was negligent was for the jury. Williams v. Ballard Lumber Co., 41 Wash. 338, 83 P. 323. A sudden cry of warning given by a superintendent when he saw telephone poles about to fall from a train while not an act of negligence, could be considered on the issue of contributory negligence of an employe who jumped from the train and was injured. Mounce v. Lodwick Lumber Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 944, 91 S. W. 240.

17. American Brake Shoe & Foundry Co. v. Jankus, 121 Ill. App. 267.

18. See 6 C. L. 587.

19. After discovery of the perilous position of an employe, the master is bound to use ordinary care to avoid injury, regardless of whether the servant assumed the risk or was guilty of negligence in getting into danger. Raasch v. Elite Laundry Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 477. Train crew saw section hand on the track and rang the locomotive bell, but it was apparent that he did not hear it. It was held negligence to fail to sound the whistle. Mills v. Missouri Pac. R. Co. [Mo.] 94 S. W. 973. If injury to minor servant was caused by negligent failure to avoid injuring him after discovering him in a position of peril, the parent's consent to his employment in dangerous work would constitute no defense. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Blasengame [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 203, 93 S. W. 187. Complaint alleging that foreman of section crew ordered crew to take hand car off the track seeing a train coming, that employes started to do so, but that the train was run down upon them at a reckless rate of speed, though there was time to have stopped it, held to state a cause of action. Allen v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 1009. Operator of mangle got her fingers caught in rollers and a representative of the master, called to the place, started the machine, and the employe's hand was drawn in. Whether the vice-principal was negligent was for the jury. If he was, the employe was entitled to recover. Raasch v. Elite Laundry Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 477. Where brakeman fell between cars but was not injured until he had crawled or been carried forty feet, he could recover notwithstanding his previous contributory negligence in getting into a place of danger, provided the employes in charge could with ordinary care have prevented his injury after discovering his position. Dale v. Colfax Consol. Coal Co. [Iowa] 107 N. W. 1096.

20. Where an employe was injured while standing between cars, the mere fact that one of the train crew saw him near the cars did not charge them with notice that he was in a place of danger. Hacker v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 842, 96 S. W. 526.

21. A plaintiff who has received an injury occasioned by negligence of defendant but who could have avoided it by the exercise of ordinary care on his own part cannot recover damages therefor, though the defendant ought to have discovered plaintiff's peril in time to avoid injury, but did not in fact do so, plaintiff's negligence having continued to the very time of injury. Dyerson v. Union Pac. R. Co. [Kan.] 87 P. 680.

22. See 6 C. L. 587.

23. See Damages, 7 C. L. 1029; Evidence, 7 C. L. 1511; Parties, 6 C. L. 888; Pleading, 6 C. L. 1008; Instructions, 8 C. L. 333; Trial,

(§ 3 H) 2. Parties.[24]—The law as to parties to the action is the same as in other actions for death or injuries, and not to be here discussed.[25]

(§ 3 H) 3. Pleading and issues. The complaint or petition.[26]—Must show the existence of the relation of master and servant[27] and the existence and breach of some duty owed by the master to the servant at the time of the injury.[28] A mere allegation of duty is insufficient; facts showing a duty to exist must be alleged.[29] Allegations of negligence must be sufficiently certain and specific to inform the defendant of the nature of plaintiff's claim,[30] but a general allegation

6 C. L. 1731; Verdicts and Findings, 6 C. L. 1814; Venue and Place of Trial, 6 C. L. 1806, etc.

24. See 6 C. L. 587.

25. See Parties, 6 C. L. 888; Death by Wrongful Act. 7 C. L. 1083.

26. See 6 C. L. 587.

27. Complaint alleging negligence in the use of certain machinery in the mill in which plaintiff was employed held to show that the relation of master and servant existed between plaintiff and defendant. Hay v. Bash [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 644. Error to strike paragraph of complaint containing only allegation that negligent man was in defendant's employ. Schneider v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 117 Mo. App. 129, 94 S. W. 730.

28. Complaint held to show sufficiently that when servant was injured on a trestle he was in the discharge of duties as servant. Virginia B. & I. Co. v. Jordan, 143 Ala. 603, 42 So. 73. Where complaint in action for death of minor alleged that the relation of master and servant existed and that the minor was acting under orders when injured, it was not defective for failing to allege that he was in the discharge of his duties when killed. Moss v. Mosley [Ala.] 41 So. 1012. Complaint alleging failure to warn employe engaged in loading car of approach of another car, and an injury to the employe as a result of such negligence, held to state a cause of action. Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Kimmel, 221 Ill. 547, 77 N. E. 936. In action for injuries to brakeman on logging train, a complaint alleging failure to warn and instruct plaintiff, who was without experience, negligence in track construction and in furnishing a defective engine, and in overloading the train, whereby the train got beyond control of the crew on a steep grade and was wrecked, and that plaintiff jumped and was injured, stated a cause of action. Wiest v. Coal Creek R. Co., 42 Wash. 176, 84 P. 725. A complaint alleging the injury in plain and concise language, that it resulted from the carelessness and negligence of defendant in the construction and operation of its sawmill and appliances thereto, and that plaintiff was in no way guilty of contributory negligence, and used ordinary care in the performance of his duties in the performance of which he was injured, is not demurrable. Crawford v. Boners Ferry Lumber Co. [Idaho] 87 P. 998. Complaint alleging that plaintiff was an employe of defendant, engaged in operating a hoisting engine, stating master's duty to use ordinary care to furnish a safe place, and alleging that unskilled servants placed dynamite near the place where plaintiff was working, which caught fire and exploded and injured him, held to state a cause of action. Lane Bros. Co. v. Seakford [Va.] 55 S. E. 556. Complaint alleging that while plaintiff was standing on a car defendant suddenly, violently, and negligently moved it with a jerk, without notice or warning, alleges negligence in the manner of moving the car and also in failing to give notice. Houston v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 464, 94 S. W. 560. Complaint alleging defects in machines and building whereby a machine was out of alignment with a pulley, causing the belt to shift and start the machine while plaintiff was cleaning it, thus injuring him, held not demurrable. Standard Cotton Mills v. Cheatham, 125 Ga. 649, 54 S. E. 650. Petition in action for injuries to employe in lumber yard received while riding on footboard of engine alleged that it was customary and necessary for him to ride on the footboard in the performance of his duties. Petition held to show that plaintiff was properly on the footboard. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 913, 95 S. W. 607.

29. Where a complaint is based on the theory that the master has failed to supply a reasonably safe place and alleges facts to show how it could be made safe a further allegation that a certain duty rested upon the master with reference to such place was a mere conclusion of law. Long v. John Stephenson Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 910.

30. The facts must be stated with sufficient certainty to be understood by the defendant, the jury, and the court. Lane Bros. Co. v. Seakford [Va.] 55 S. E. 556. Complaint alleging that a bridge over a trench gave way by reason of a defect, held not defective for failure to describe the defect specifically. Birmingham Rolling Mill Co. v. Rockhold, 143 Ala. 115, 42 So. 96. A complaint alleging that an engine was defective sufficiently particularized the part of the ways, works, machinery, or plant was defective without stating the particular part of the engine claimed to be defective. Sloss-Sheffield S. & I. Co. v. Hutchinson, 144 Ala. 221, 40 So. 114. Complaint for injuries caused by falling of a pole which was being lowered into a mine shaft held to show that the pole which fell was one which was being lowered without having been lashed, negligence in the manner of lowering poles having been alleged. Manning v. App Consol. Gold Min. Co. [Cal.] 84 P. 657. The specific act or omission relied upon as constituting the breach of duty must be stated in the declaration. In action against a corporation and its foreman, declaration alleging that plaintiff was required to do certain work in which an insufficient number of men were employed was demurrable as against the foreman. Klawiter v. Jones, 219 Ill. 626, 76 N. E. 673. Complaint alleged that a miner went to work in a certain part of the mine under direction of his mine boss and while working there in the line of his duty the roof fell, injuring him.

of negligence is usually held sufficient as against a demurrer,[31] if the facts alleged disclose a legal duty and a violation thereof.[32] Knowledge by the master, actual or constructive, of the defective or dangerous condition, alleged to have caused the injury, must be made to appear.[33] A complaint is demurrable if it shows on its face, conclusively and as a matter of law, that the servant assumed the risk[34] or Motion to make more specific and show particular kind of work plaintiff was doing was properly denied. Diamond Block Coal Co. v. Cuthbertson [Ind.] 76 N. E. 1060. Complaint held defective for failure to allege expressly that the fly wheel which broke, causing the injury, was defective. Hay v. Bash [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 644. Where complaint alleged negligence whereby a young, inexperienced employe had his hand caught and injured in cotton cards, a motion to make more definite by giving number of employes present, their names, etc., was properly denied. Shaver v. Grendel Mills, 74 S. C. 430, 54 S. E. 610. If a petition in an action for injuries caused by defective appliances points out the appliance or apparatus claimed to be defective, this is sufficient without specifying defects. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Barnes [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 524, 95 S. W. 714. Complaint alleging that plaintiff was at work on a scaffold on a car, and that it was thrown down by the car moving, held to allege sufficiently that the scaffold was unsafe. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Meyers [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 779, 94 S. W. 140.

31. Complaint alleging death of a servant proximately caused by negligence of defendant in failing to provide safe machinery and to keep it in that condition states a cause of action. If greater detail is desired the remedy is by motion to make more specific. Burton v. Anderson Phosphate & Oil Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 217.

32. That the place of work is constantly changing in character, so that it is not the master's duty to keep it safe, is a matter of defense, and a complaint charging negligence in providing a place of work need not allege the character of the work being done at the time. Bird v. Utica Gold Min. Co., 2 Cal. App. 674, 84 P. 266.

33. Complaint alleging negligence in failing to warn operator of machine of dangerous character of gas generated by the machine held not demurrable for failure to show that master knew or ought to have known of the danger. Blount Carriage & Buggy Co. v. Ware, 125 Ga. 571, 54 S. E. 637. Where a complaint alleges negligence in maintaining a side track in an unsafe condition, an allegation that defendant knew of all the matters and things alleged in the premises is sufficient without a specific averment of knowledge as to each matter charged. Grand Trunk Western R. Co. v. Melrose [Ind.] 78 N. E. 190. In an action for injuries caused by defective brake rod, a complaint alleging that the defect was known to defendant, or could have been known by the exercise of ordinary care, was sufficient without alleging that defendant knew of the defect a sufficient length of time before the accident to have made repairs. Kentucky & I. Bridge & R. Co. v. Moran [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 213. Allegations of negligence held to state by inference that the defect complained of, loose slate in coal mine, and defendant's knowledge of it, had both existed for a time sufficient for the master to have remedied it in the exercise of ordinary care, and hence a direct averment to that effect was unnecessary. Dodge v. Manufacturers' Coal & Coke Co., 115 Mo. App. 501, 91 S. W. 1007. Where evidence showed knowledge by engineer of position of coal dock employe, plaintiff could recover for injuries caused by want of warning, though knowledge of engineer was not specifically alleged. Lanning v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 196 Mo. 647, 94 S. W. 491. Where complaint showed that defect in machine which caused injury was patent, it was not objectionable for failing to allege that the master had knowledge of it. Coulter v. Union Laundry Co. [Mont.] 87 P. 973. Where the facts alleged to constitute negligence are explicitly stated the complaint need not allege in terms that defendant knew or in the exercise of ordinary care ought to have known of the defective condition which caused the injury. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Udalle [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 668, 91 S. W. 330.

34. Complaint alleging that mine was unsafe by reason of the roof being soft and loose and because the master furnished no props held not objectionable as showing that dangers were patent to plaintiff. Bird v. Utica Gold Min. Co., 2 Cal. App. 674, 84 P. 266. Where a declaration shows on its face that the defects in a hand car, alleged to have caused the injury complained of, would have been discoverable by use of ordinary care by plaintiff, who was in charge of the car, it is demurrable, though it alleges that the defects were unknown to plaintiff. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Byland, 50 Fla. 190, 40 So. 24. Complaint alleging negligence in failing to warn operator of machine of dangerous character of gas generated by it held not demurrable as disclosing that the operator knew or ought to have known of the danger, it being alleged that the operator was inexperienced and the danger unusual. Blount Carriage & Buggy Co. v. Ware, 125 Ga. 571, 54 S. E. 637. Complaint in action for injuries to brakeman caused by his attempting to board a moving train held demurrable because it disclosed that he voluntarily assumed the risk. Griffith v. Lexington Terminal R. Co., 124 Ga. 553, 53 S. E. 97. Where complaint alleging injuries caused by defective appliance disclosed that plaintiff had at least equal opportunities with defendant of discovering the defect complained of, it was demurrable. Lee v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 125 Ga. 655, 54 S. E. 678. Complaint for injury caused by piece of steel flying from chisel being used by plaintiff held demurrable because it showed that plaintiff had same knowledge, or means of knowledge, of the defect as the master. Banks v. Schofield's Sons Co., 126 Ga. 667, 55 S. E. 939. Where a complaint does not show that defects complained of were open and obvious, it is not objectionable as showing an assumed risk. Monongahela River Consol. Coal & Coke Co. v. Hardsaw [Ind. App.]

was guilty of contributory negligence,[35] or that the act of a fellow-servant caused the injury.[36] There is a conflict as to the necessity of positive averments of want of contributory negligence[37] and non-assumption of risk. Thus, in some states, an allegation by plaintiff of want of knowledge of a defect causing an injury is unnecessary;[38] in others, such an allegation is essential.[39] A general allegation of lack of knowledge by plaintiff negatives constructive as well as actual notice.[40] It appear from the pleading that the negligence alleged was the proximate cause of the injury.[41]

77 N. E. 363. A complaint in an action for injuries by a miner alleged that the employer knew the dangerous condition which caused the injury and that the plaintiff did not. The complaint was not objectionable as showing an assumed risk, though it did not allege that plaintiff had no means or opportunity of learning of such dangerous condition. Diamond Block Coal Co. v. Cuthbertson [Ind.] 76 N. E. 1060. Complaint in action for death of brakeman, which alleged that he was required to work with cars on a high trestle without guard rails, did not show an assumption of the risk. Brown's Adm'r v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 146, 92 S. W. 583. Where petition alleged a promise to repair a defect, but failed to allege that a reasonable time for the making of such repairs had not expired at the time of the injury, it was demurrable. Parker v. Drakesboro Coke & Coal Min. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 825, 96 S. W. 575.

35. Complaint in action for death of switchman caught between engine and car alleged that decedent did not know of the near approach of the engine to the car. Held freedom from contributory negligence was sufficiently alleged. Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lawrence [Ind.] 79 N. E. 363.

36. The complaint should show that the negligence charged was not that of a fellow-servant. Allegations insufficient because they failed to state what agents or agent of corporation defendant ran engine against cars upon which plaintiff was at work. Brown v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 142 F. 909. Complaint in action by porter held not to state a cause of action where injury was alleged to have been caused by conductor, and no breach of duty by company was alleged, and it was not alleged that conductor and porter were not fellow-servants. The Pullman Co. v. Woodfolk, 121 Ill. App. 321. A complaint which alleged negligence of a foreman in switching a car on a track on which plaintiff was working, without warning plaintiff, did not state a cause of action at common law, since it alleged negligence of a fellow-servant. Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lain [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 547. Where a complaint alleged an injury to an employe while engaged in cleaning out a boiler, but it appeared the injury was caused by a negligent use of appliances by a fellow-servant, the complaint was insufficient to state a cause of action at common law. Ft. Wayne Iron & Steel Co. v. Parsell [Ind.] 79 N. E. 439. Where declaration charged only negligence of the engineer in running the engine at a reckless rate of speed over a rough piece of track as the cause of the fireman's death, it failed to state a cause of action against defendant. Hyatt v. Southern R. Co. [Miss.] 41 So. 3. A petition which merely alleges that one servant was injured by the negligent act of another servant, while both were engaged in the same work under a common employment, does not state a cause of action against the master. If the negligence was in fact that of a superior or vice-principal, the petition should so state. Weaver v. Goulden Logging Co., 116 La. 468, 40 So. 798. A complaint alleging that a collision of trains was caused by "negligence and carelessness of the agents and servants of said defendant company" held sufficient, as against a demurrer, to show that the collision was caused by servants for whose negligence the company would be responsible. Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. Doughty, 77 Ark. 1, 91 S. W. 768. The proper remedy, if greater certainty be desired as to the acts complained of, and the servants charged to have been negligent, would be by motion to make move definite and certain. Id.

37. See, also, post, The Answer. Complaint alleging that plaintiff was injured by reason of negligence of defendants and their servants held demurrable for not showing that plaintiff himself was not the negligent servant responsible for the injury. Schreiner v. Grant Bros. [Cal. App.] 86 P. 912.

38. See 6 C. L. 689, n. 67.

39. Complaint in action for injuries caused by unguarded circular saw held insufficient at common law because failing to allege that unsafe condition of saw was unknown to the employe. Kintz v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 533.

40. Notice on the part of the master of defects in machinery or appliances and want of notice on the part of the servant may be alleged in general terms, and such allegation will include both actual and constructive knowledge. Allegation that servant did not know of defects is sufficient to rebut constructive or implied knowledge. Columbian Enameling & Stamping Co. v. O'Burke [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 409. Where complaint alleged that plaintiff had no knowledge of the defects or dangers which caused his injury, it need not allege want of means or opportunity to discover such defects or dangers. Monongahela River Consol. Coal & Coke Co. v. Hardsaw [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 363. Complaint alleging that dangerous condition of mangle was known to the master but not to the servant held sufficient without negativing implied knowledge by the servant. Ross-Paris Co. v. Brown, 28 Ky. L. R. 813, 90 S. W. 568.

41. Declaration demurrable because not showing negligence alleged to have been proximate cause of injury. Wright v. Illinois C. R. Co., 119 Ill. App. 132. Where complaint alleged defects in a track and then alleged that an engine jumped the track as it "approached" the defective place in the track, it did not appear that the defect in the track caused the engine to leave the

If a complaint contains a sufficiently definite statement of the negligence of defendant relied upon, it is not demurrable for stating two causes of action in a single count.[42] Counts of a declaration charging wantonness or willfulness, and also setting out facts showing only simple negligence, are demurrable.[43] Where a complaint makes reference to the rules and regulations of a railroad company, it is sufficient to allege their legal effect without setting them out in full.[44]

Pleading statutory causes of action.[45]—A party who relies on a statutory cause of action must show by the facts alleged that the action falls within the particular statutory provision relied upon,[46] though particular reference to the statute is unnecessary.[47] Decisions as to pleadings in actions based upon statutes are given in the note.[48] track; hence no cause of action was stated. Southern R. Co. v. Sittasen [Ind.] 76 N. E. 973. Petition held to show sufficiently that defective condition of brake staff was proximate cause of fireman's injury. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Hanson [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 415, 90 S. W. 1122. Where petition alleged that, by reason of negligence in the construction of the roadbed and in furnishing couplings for cars, two sections of a train became uncoupled and then collided, injuring plaintiff, the causal connection between the injury and the negligence alleged was sufficiently made to appear. Gordon v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 129 Iowa, 747, 106 N. W. 177.

42. Complaint alleging that switch was left open and that defendant failed to furnish a safe track in that no switch light was used held not demurrable. Southern R. Co. v. Blanford's Adm'x, 105 Va. 373, 54 S. E. 1.

43. Herren v. Tuscaloosa Waterworks Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 55.

44. Southern R. Co. v. Simmons, 105 Va. 651, 55 S. E. 459.

45, 46. See 6 C. L. 590.

47. A complaint in an action for injuries caused by the fall of a scaffold which alleged that the scaffold was built of unsafe materials and unsafely constructed is sufficient without pleading the statute which forbids the furnishing of an unsafe scaffold. Riley v. McNulty, 100 N. Y. S. 985. Where a complaint alleged the giving of a notice of the time, place, and cause of plaintiff's injuries, signed by plaintiff, and alleged failure to properly guard tools and machinery. Held complaint stated a cause of action under the statute, though it did not specifically refer thereto. Severson v. Hill-Warner-Fitch Co., 101 N. Y. S. 808.

48. Alabama: To state a cause of action under Code 1896, § 1749, subd. 3, making a master liable for negligence of a fellow-servant, the name of the alleged negligent servant should be stated, or it should be alleged that the name of such servant is unknown. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. v. Clements [Ala.] 40 So. 971. Where a count alleges injury as a result of an order of a superior it should allege that the order was negligently given. Id. Where count alleges that orders of a superintendent were negligently given, it is not necessary to state in what particular the order was negligent. Reiter-Conley Mfg. Co. v. Hamlin, 144 Ala. 192, 40 So. 280. Complaint alleging in substance that a person exercising superintendence ordered a chain to be slackened, thereby causing a block to fall on a servant, held to state a cause of action under Code 1896, § 1749, subd. 2. Id. Where complaint alleged that inexperienced minor employe was killed while performing orders of superior, to which he was bound to conform, it was not defective for failure to allege lack of warning or instruction, or that dangers were not obvious. Moss v. Mosley [Ala.] 41 So. 1014. Where negligence of a superintendent was relied on, an allegation that such superior knew that an employe was an inexperienced boy was a material allegation which plaintiff was bound to prove. Id. Where complaint alleged relation of master and servant and that minor inexperienced employe was put to work by superior at the dangerous work of cleaning near dangerous machinery, it was held not defective for failing to allege that minor was in discharge of duties when killed nor defective as too indefinite in its allegations of negligence. Id. Complaint alleging that a superintendent caused a chain attached to a block under which deceased stood to be loosened, whereby the block fell and caused death of deceased, held to contain sufficient allegation of negligence. Reiter-Conley Mfg. Co. v. Hamlin, 144 Ala. 192, 40 So. 280. That name of person whose act caused the accident, and who, it was alleged, acted under orders of one exercising superintendence, was not stated, did not render the complaint objectionable. Id. Where reply to plea, setting up a violation of a rule and contract as the cause of injury, failed to show that person who gave order pursuant to which the rule was violated had authority to give such an order, the reply was demurrable. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. Where complaint alleged that bridge over a trench on defendant's premises gave way, owing to its defective condition, and by reason of a defect in the "ways, works, etc.," held not demurrable for failure to show that bridge was a part of the "ways, works, etc." Birmingham Rolling Mill Co. v. Rockhold, 143 Ala. 115, 42 So. 96.

Indiana: In an action for injuries to operator of circular saw, a complaint alleging that defendant failed to place any guard or protection over or about the saw sufficiently stated a violation of Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7087i. Kintz v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 533. A complaint under this statute must show that the saw could have been properly guarded without destroying its usefulness; allegations held insufficient for this purpose. Id. A complaint based on a failure to guard machinery as required by statute must allege the practicability of guarding

The answer.[49]—The fellow-servant defense,[50] and the defenses of assumed risk[51] and contributory negligence,[52] must be specially pleaded, to be available to defendant, unless they are affirmatively disclosed by plaintiff's pleadings or proof.[53] Some courts hold that it is only the assumption of risks arising from neg-

the machine in question without interfering with its usefulness. Complaint under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7087l. National Fire Proofing Co. v. Roper [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 370. Complaint alleged that master failed to provide exhaust fan for emery wheel to carry off dust from the wheel and to properly guard the wheel, and that the wheel was dangerous and that it could have been guarded by exhaust fans. Held it stated a cause of action under the statute requiring exhaust fans to be provided for emery wheels. Muncie Pulp Co. v. Hacker [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 770. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7083, subd. 2, makes the employer liable where injury results from the negligence of a person in the master's employ to whose order or direction the servant injured was bound to conform. A complaint under the statute must allege the negligence of such person; merely alleging that the injured servant was at the time obeying an order of a person authorized to give it is not enough. Ft. Wayne Iron & Steel Co. v. Parsell [Ind.] 79 N. E. 439. A complaint under subd. 4 of § 7083 is insufficient if it does not allege that the negligence charged was that of a person at the time acting in the place and performing the duty of the master. Id. Where complaint alleged negligence of a foreman who switched cars down a track upon which plaintiff was at work, without warning, but failed to allege that the foreman knew of plaintiff's dangerous position, did not show negligence of one whose orders plaintiff was bound to obey, etc. Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lain [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 547. Complaint alleging that death of brakeman, engaged at the time in the line of his duty as an employe of a railroad corporation, was caused by negligence of the conductor in the service of the corporation and at the time in charge of a train, held sufficient. Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. Williams [Ind.] 79 N. E. 442. Complaint alleging negligence of an engineer in charge of locomotive on which plaintiff was working held to allege with sufficient directness that the engineer was in charge of the train. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Osborn [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 248. Complaint in action for injuries to brakeman sustained in collision alleged that the trains were in charge of engineers and conductors, employes of defendants. These allegations were sufficient to show that trains were in charge of engineers and conductors at the time of the collision. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Baker [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 64. Complaint held sufficient to state a cause of action based on a violation of an ordinance requiring lights to be carried on the ends of trains engaged in switching, alleged to have caused injuries to a switchman. Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lawrence [Ind.] 79 N. E. 363.

New York: An allegation that the acts were all and each without any fault or negligence on the part of the plaintiff is a sufficient allegation of plaintiff's freedom from negligence under the employer's liability act. Redhead v. Dunbar & Sullivan Dredging Co., 101 N. Y. S. 301. Complaint alleging that plaintiff was directed to use an elevator which was defective by reason of the negligent manner in which the cable was fastened to the car held to state cause of action for negligence of a superintendent, though it did not allege specially that superintendent directed plaintiff to use the elevator. Harris v. Baltimore Mach. & El. Co., 112 App. Div. 389, 98 N. Y. S. 440.

49. See 6 C. L. 590.

50. Complaint alleged that injury was caused by explosion of charge left in a mine, of which the employe had no knowledge, but which was known to the master. Answer did not deny knowledge by the master but alleged the servant knew of it. Held, whether the servant's foreman was his fellow-servant was not in issue. Bone v. Ophir Silver Min. Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 685.

51. Defense of assumed risk must be pleaded. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Wilhoit [Ind. T.] 98 S. W. 341; Price v. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 151, 90 S. W. 717; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Parish [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 334, 93 S. W. 682. Assumption of risk is an affirmative defense which must be specially pleaded. Montgomery v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 73 S. C. 503, 53 S. E. 987. Answer referred to various allegations of negligence in complaint and alleged that if plaintiff's injuries were caused by negligence alleged, the facts were known to plaintiff and each of such risks assumed. The answer was held sufficiently clear and certain. Bryan v. International & G. N. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 455, 90 S. W. 693.

52. Defense of contributory negligence must be pleaded. Betchman v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 140; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Parish [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 334, 93 S. W. 682. Contributory negligence is an affirmative defense. Mississippi Cent. R. Co. v. Hardy [Miss.] 41 So. 505. Plea demurrable because not alleging that plaintiff's conduct was negligent. Foley v. Pioneer Min. & Mfg. Co., 144 Ala. 178, 40 So. 273. Where complaint alleged injuries as a result of plaintiff's trying to stop a car so as to avert a collision with another car standing on the track, a plea that "plaintiff negligently failed to properly drive or operate the car of which he had charge as driver, and as a proximate consequence whereof he was injured," was demurrable because too general. Sloss-Sheffield S. & I. Co. v. Smith [Ala.] 40 So. 91. Answer, construed with petition, held to allege with sufficient definiteness that deceased was negligent in use of rope and plank used to move a pump, defects being obvious. Ramm v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 866, 92 S. W. 426. In action for death of miner by noxious gases, a plea alleging contributory negligence in that plaintiff failed to turn on a fan was held demurrable because not showing that any duty rested on plaintiff to see that the fan was operated. Foley v. Pioneer Min. & Mfg. Co., 144 Ala. 178, 40 So. 273.

53. Where plaintiff's evidence shows contributory negligence without controversy, ligence of the master, after the employment has commenced, that must be specially pleaded,[54] and that the assumption of ordinary incidental risks may be proved under a general denial [55] without being specially pleaded.[56]

Issues, proof, variance.[57]—Negligence must be proved as alleged.[58] There can be no recovery for negligence other than that alleged,[59] and proof of negligence not alleged is inadmissable.[60] If several acts of negligence are alleged, plaintiff is entitled to recover upon proof of any one or more of the acts alleged as the proximate cause of the injury complained of.[61] Where there is a general allegation of negligence followed by a specific allegation, plaintiff will be confined to proof of the latter.[62] Where the action is based upon a statute, there cannot be a recovery under the common law.[63]

(§ 3 H) 4. Evidence, burden of proof and presumptions.[64]—The burden is upon plaintiff to prove negligence of the master, as alleged,[65] and that such negthe court may direct a verdict though the defense is not specially pleaded. Kappes v. Brown Shoe Co., 116 Mo. App. 154, 90 S. W. 158.

54. Martin v. Des Moines Edison Light Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 359; Vohs v. Shorthill & Co., 130 Iowa, 538, 107 N. W. 417. The master may show, without pleading the facts as a defense, that an injury occurred as the direct and proximate result of an ordinary risk, as such risks are presumed to have been in contemplation of the parties when they entered into the contract, and testimony to that effect tends directly to refute the allegation of negligence. Betchman v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 140. But if defendant relies on facts occurring after the parties had entered into the agreement to show that plaintiff had, by his conduct, assumed the risk which caused the injury, such facts must be set forth as defense, as they are in the nature of a plea of confession and avoidance. Id. This distinction was made by Gary, A. J., who wrote the opinion; Jones and Woods, J. J., concurred, saying only that "assumption of risk by an employe is not available unless pleaded as a defense." Id.

55. Master may prove under a general denial that injury resulted from a risk incidental to the business. Dakan v. Chase & Son Mercantile Co., 197 Mo. 238, 94 S. W. 944.

56. Vohs v. Shorthill & Co., 130 Iowa, 538, 107 N. W. 417; Betchman v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 140. Such as servant is presumed to have considered upon entering the employment and to have assumed by his contract. Martin v. Des Moines Edison Light Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 359.

57. See 6 C. L. 591.

58. Allegations that slate, rock, stones, and other debris had been allowed to accumulate on a track in a mine, causing car to run off the track, and injure plaintiff, held to have been sustained by the proof. Western Coal & Min. Co. v. Honaker [Ark.] 96 S. W. 361. An allegation that plaintiff was ordered to do certain work is proved by evidence that plaintiff and another were told to do it without specifying which one did it. Cessna v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 659, 95 S. W. 277.

59. Instruction erroneous because permitting recovery on grounds not alleged. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Green [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 133, 95 S. W. 694. Instruction construed and held to limit recovery to negligence charged. Martin v. Des Moines Edison Light Co. [Iowa] 106 N. W. 359. Where complaint alleged negligence of an engineer and of the master, in that the place of work was dark, and evidence showed that negligence of a yard master in failing to give signals was the proximate cause of injury, there could be no recovery. Howard v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 891, 90 S. W. 950.

60. Where declaration charged negligence in failing to equip cars with automatic sand boxes and sand, whether or not a car which ran away had a pail of sand and a shovel was immaterial. Mayer v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 142 Mich. 459, 12 Det. Leg. N. 843, 105 N. W. 888.

61. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Where more than one act of negligence is charged, proof of one warrants recovery. Ingram v. Hilton & Dodge Lumber Co., 125 Ga. 658, 54 S. E. 648. Where injury to engineer caused by derailment was charged to be due to a washout on a dark night, and to fact that headlight was defective, he could recover if he proved negligence in connection with the condition of the track, even though he could not recover on account of the defective headlight because he had knowledge of it. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 790, 91 S. W. 355.

62. Rule applied where there was a general allegation of negligence in running cars, followed by specific allegation of negligence and incompetency of engineer. Grissamore v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 387, 94 S. W. 306. Evidence of negligence of car inspector held inadmissible. Id. Specific acts of negligence being alleged, recovery can be had only upon proof thereof. McGrath v. St. Louis Transit Co., 197 Mo. 97, 94 S. W. 872.

63. Where plaintiff's petition and instructions use the terms of Rev. St. 1899, c. 91, art. 17, § 6435, requiring elevator openings in manufacturing, mechanical, or mercantile buildings, the action is based on its violation and plaintiff must recover, if at all, by proving negligence thereunder, and cannot recover at common law. Latapie-Vignaux v. Askew Saddlery Co., 193 Mo. 1, 91 S. W. 496.

64. See 6 C. L. 592.

65. Graboski v. New Castle Leather Co.

[Del.] 64 A. 74; Adams v. Central Indiana R. Co. [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 687; Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. McDonald's Adm'x [Va.] 55 S. E. 554. Burden on plaintiff to prove negligence alleged. Harris v. Tremont Lumber Co., 115 La. 973, 40 So. 374. Negligence is not presumed; plaintiff must prove it. Jemnienski v. Lobdell Car Wheel Co. [Del.] 63 A. 935. Burden of plaintiff to show defect in "ways, works, etc.," due to negligence for which master would be responsible. Birmingham Rolling Mill Co. v. Rockhold, 143 Ala. 115, 42 So. 96. In action for death of brakeman struck by an overhead bridge, plaintiff must prove that death was caused by brakeman's being struck by an improperly constructed bridge. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Thomas, 87 Miss. 600, 40 So. 257.

Burden does not shift: The burden of proving the negligence alleged by a preponderance of the evidence rests at all times throughout the progress of the case on the plaintiff. Klunk v. Hocking Valley R. Co., 74 Ohio St. 125, 77 N. E. 752. Proof of facts which, by statute, create a prima facie case does not shift the burden to defendant, so as to require him to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that he was not negligent. Id. In action against railroad, where proof of facts sufficient to make a prima facie case under the statute is made, it is error to instruct that the defendant must prove by a preponderance of evidence that he was not guilty of negligence; defendant is only required to meet the prima facie case so made. Id. 87 Ohio Laws, p. 149, provides that in an action against a railroad company proof of a defect in a car, locomotive, or machinery shall be prima facie proof of negligence. This statute does not shift the burden of proof, the burden is still on plaintiff to prove negligence by a preponderance of all the evidence. Shankweiler v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 195.

Contra: Where a trainman is trying to fasten parts of a train with chains, the drawhead of a car having pulled out, and the front part of the train is moved down upon him, he is engaged in "running a train" within the meaning of Civ. Code 1895, § 2321; hence, on proof thereon, burden of proof shifted to defendant. Southern R. Co. v. Holbrook, 124 Ga. 679, 53 S. E. 203.

Knowledge of defect by master must be shown: In action for injuries caused by fall of trestle, plaintiff must show that company knew of defective condition of trestle or that a reasonable inspection would have disclosed it. Bundy v. Sierra Lumber Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 622. Burden on plaintiff to prove that master ought to have discovered and repaired a defect in the floor which caused his injury. Kremer v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 247, 96 S. W. 726. Where injury was alleged to have been caused by a defective stirrup on a car, the burden was on plaintiff to show that the railway company had knowledge of the defect, or that it was such that ordinary care would have disclosed it. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Parish [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 334, 93 S. W. 682. In action for injuries caused by a want of care by the master it must be made to appear that the master knew or ought to have known of the defect complained of. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Skipper, 125 Ga. 368, 54 S. E. 110. Before railroad employe can recover from company for injuries resulting from defective appliance on a locomotive, he must show that the company had notice of the defect long enough before the injury to have made repairs. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Dorr [Kan.] 85 P. 533. To recover on the ground that place of work was unsafe, plaintiff must show that the place where he was directed to work was unsafe, that the master would have known of its condition in the exercise of ordinary care, and that plaintiff did not know of the danger and did not have equal means with the master of finding it out. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Zakzewski, 220 Ill. 522, 77 N. E. 147.

Sufficiency of evidence: Evidence insufficient to show that cogs of machine were broken as alleged. Barbieri v. Gandolfo-Ghio Ohio Mfg. Co., 118 Mo. App. 218, 94 S. W. 828. Where electric lamp trimmer was killed, evidence held insufficient to establish any defect in appliances. Gardner v. Schenectady R. Co., 113 App. Div. 133, 98 N. Y. S. 1034. Peremptory instruction proper where there was no evidence tending to establish charges of negligence made in declaration. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Friend, 119 Ill. App. 306. Where servant was killed while making repairs on a track at night, evidence held insufficient to prove that warning signals were not given. McGrath v. St. Louis Transit Co., 197 Mo. 97, 94 S. W. 872. Where certain defects in a machine did not reasonably explain its abnormal action, the court should have given a requested instruction that proof thereof did not warrant a finding of negligence on the part of the master. Montanye v. Northern Elec. Mfg. Co., 127 Wis. 22, 105 N. W. 1043. That a hose which burst was spliced is not alone proof that it was defective where there was evidence that spliced air hose is not weakened. Shandrew v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 320. Where injury was caused by fall of elevator, but evidence failed entirely to show the cause of its fall, the master could not be held liable. Casterton v. American Blower Co., 142 Mich. 407, 12 Det. Leg. N. 751, 106 N. W. 61. Where injury was caused by bursting of steam main in factory, plaintiff was not under duty of proving the exact defect which caused the injury; it was enough to show facts from which jury could infer negligence in some particular which caused the accident. Erickson v. American S. & W. Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 761. Where telephone exchange operator was injured by electric shock while working at exchange, she was only required to prove that injury must have been the result of some defect in the apparatus of which company had actual or implied knowledge without showing the exact defect which produced the shock. Cahill v. New England Tel. & T. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 821. Where defendant has submitted the question of negligence to the jury, as one of fact, he is estopped to claim there was no proof of negligence. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Schiavone, 116 Ill. App. 335. Where the evidence produced is equally consistent with the existence or nonexistence of negligence of the master, recovery cannot be had; negligence must be made to appear by a preponderance of evidence. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Kiser, 105 Va. 695, 54 S. E. 889. Instruction requiring negligence to be a reasonable, logical, and necessary conclusion from facts and circumstances shown held erroneous, a preponderance of evidence is sufficient. Dakan v. Chase & Son Mercantile Co., 197 Mo. 238, 94 S. W. 944.

ligence was the proximate cause of the injury or damage suffered,[66] and that the relation of master and servant existed at the time.[67] It is held by most courts that mere proof of the occurrence of an accident does not alone raise a presumption of negligence on the part of the master,[68] and that the doctrine res ipsa loquitur is inapplicable in an action by a servant against the master to recover for personal injuries.[69] Proof of the fact of injury may, however, be sufficient to take the issue of negligence to the jury,[70] though it does not relieve plaintiff of the burden of proof or raise any presumption in his favor. Negligence may, as in other cases, be inferred from the fact of injury taken in connection with other surrounding facts and circumstances,[71] but where the facts are such as to warrant a reasonable infer-

66. Dunphy v. St. Joseph Stockyards Co., 118 Mo. App. 506, 95 S. W. 301. Breach of duty owed servant by master must be shown, also that such breach caused injury. Loehring v. Westlake Const. Co., 118 Mo. App. 163, 94 S. W. 747. Plaintiff must show by fair preponderance of evidence that master was negligent and that his negligence, and no other cause, produced the injury. Saxe v. Walworth Mfg. Co., 191 Mass. 338, 77 N. E. 883. Plaintiff must not only show defects but must prove a causal connection between such defects and his injury. While he may do this by direct or circumstantial evidence, he must show it by a preponderance of evidence; it is not enough to show that such connection is consistent with plaintiff's theory. O'Connor v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 129 Iowa, 636, 106 N. W. 161. Evidence held insufficient to show defects in freight car as cause of plaintiff's injury so as to require submission of the case to the jury. Id. Chains in elevator used to hoist beer kegs suddenly slackened and caused a keg to fall on plaintiff. No defect which could have caused the accident was shown. Master not liable. Muhlmeyer v. Koehler & Co., 99 N. Y. S. 814. Where plaintiff claimed that a handhold gave way because a nut was too large for a bolt used to hold it, and defendant claimed there might have been a latent defect in the nut which caused it to come off; the burden was on the plaintiff to show that cause alleged in fact produced the injury. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex.] 98 S. W. 240. Evidence held sufficient. Id. Evidence insufficient to show that use of unsafe appliance for tamping powder caused an explosion. Caudle v. Kirkbridge, 117 Mo. App. 412, 93 S. W. 868. Where operator of saw was injured, the burden was on him to prove the absence of a proper brace or guard and that want of it caused the accident. Davis v. Queen City Furniture Mfg. Co., 116 La. 1070, 41 So. 318.

67. See 6 C. L. 592.

Contra: Where it appeared defendant was operating a factory and that he hired and discharged the men, it was incumbent upon him to prove an allegation that he operated it for others and that he was not responsible for a defect therein causing an injury. Sheehan v. Hammond, 2 Cal. App. 371, 84 P. 340.

68. Mere fact that a wreck has occurred and an employe has been injured does not raise a presumption of negligence on part of railroad company. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Hill [Ark.] 94 S. W. 914. Burden is on plaintiff to show negligence, which cannot be inferred from mere fact that accident happened. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Andrews [Ark.] 96 S. W. 183. Mere fact that elevator fell injuring plaintiff did not give rise to presumption of negligence on part of master. Latting v. Owasso Mfg. Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 369. Mere happening of accident (where longshoreman fell through hatch which had been improperly placed by other servants), held not evidence of master's negligence. McDonnell v. Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 480. Mere fact of collision and resulting injury to brakeman held not to raise presumption of negligence. Southern Indiana R. Co. v. Baker [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 64. Proof that derrick fell is not alone presumptive evidence of master's negligence. Fallon v. Mertz, 110 App. Div. 755, 97 N. Y. S. 417. Mere proof of accident and injury to plaintiff from poorly insulated electric wire held not sufficient proof of defendant's negligence. Carey v. Manhattan R. Co., 50 Misc. 335, 98 N. Y. S. 668. Where injury was caused by the slipping and falling of a gang plank, and the evidence showed the gangway was properly constructed and in good condition just before the accident, the mere fact of the accident raised no presumption of negligence. Shaw v. Highland Park Mfg. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 433. Mere fact that battle-pole which plaintiff was assisting in raising fell, held not to raise a presumption of negligence in the absence of proof that it was negligently secured. Green v. Catawba Power Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 125.

69. The maxim res ipsa loquitur has no application as between master and servant. Mere fact that air brake hose burst was not proof of negligence of railway company. Shandrew v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 320. Res ipsa loquitur doctrine has no application as between master and servant. Chicago Tel. Co. v. Schulz, 121 Ill. App. 573.

70. No presumption of negligence arises from the simple fact that an accident has occurred, but the fact of the accident may properly go to the jury as evidence bearing on the issue. Isley v. Virginia B. & I. Co., 141 N. C. 220, 53 S. E. 841. Where employe was injured by truck being knocked against him while carrying freight on a freight elevator, the circumstances were held such as to take the issue of negligence to the jury. Fearington v. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co., 141 N. C. 80, 53 S. E. 662.

71. Where the circumstances surrounding a collision were such that it could have been caused only by negligence of a conductor or train dispatcher, proof of such circumstances and the facts of the collision and injury raised a presumption of negligence of the company. Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. Doughty, 77 Ark. 1, 91 S. W. 768. Presumption of negligence held to arise in favor of ence that the injury was produced by a cause other than defendant's negligence, the maxim res ipsa loquitur does not apply.[72] Where an injury may have resulted from any one of several causes, the burden is upon plaintiff to show that it in fact resulted from a cause for which the master would be responsible,[73] and this must be shown with reasonable certainty;[74] if the real cause of an injury is left a matter of conjecture, there can be no recovery.[75]

servant where pile of lumber fell without being touched by anyone. McCormick H. M. Co. v. Zakzewski, 121 Ill. App. 26. Maxim res ipsa loquitur held applicable where a piece of gas pipe fell and struck plaintiff, and it appeared that it must have come through an opening in a floor above and could not have been thrown by an unseen assailant. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475. Where treadle broke down while operator was attempting to stop the machine, this fact was some evidence of a defect and of negligence of the defendant. Hannan v. American S. & W. Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 749. In action for injuries to a pressman caused by sudden starting of machine, the fact that the machine started of itself, unexplained, held some evidence of a defect in the machine and so negligence of the master. Byrne v. Boston Woven Hose & Rubber Co., 191 Mass. 40, 77 N. E. 696. Where a vice-principal directed lumber to be piled and the manner of doing it, and ordered an injured employe to work near it and it fell and injured him, such facts warranted an inference of negligence on the part of the master. Hardesty v. Largey Lumber Co. [Mont.] 86 P. 29. Where employe was injured by sudden starting of freight elevator used as a scaffold, proof of the sudden starting was sufficient to show the defectiveness of the scaffold and to warrant a recovery, though the cause of its starting was not made to appear. Croce v. Buckley, 100 N. Y. S. 898. Where floor of elevator caught on the sides of the shaft and was torn out, negligence of the master could be inferred by the jury, though there was some evidence that a truck on the elevator projected and was caught. Samuels v. McKesson, 113 App. Div. 497, 90 N. Y. S. 294. Proof of collision of freight train and light engine in the daytime is presumptive evidence of negligence. Stewart v. Raleigh & A. Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 253, 53 S. E. 877. Railroad employe was at work between a coal car and a tender and helpers were shoveling coal from the car into the tender and knew of the presence of the plaintiff. A piece of coal fell and injured plaintiff. Held the maxim res ipsa loquitur applied and warranted jury in finding a want of due care by the coal shovelers. Fitzgerald v. Southern R. Co., 141 N. C. 530, 54 S. E. 391. Presumption of negligence on part of railroad company arises where a brakeman is injured by reason of a derailment. Hemphill v. Buck Creek Lumber Co., 141 N. C. 487, 54 S. E. 420. Where miner was killed by the bucket being dropped back into the shaft, and this was caused by the cable running off the drum because the pulley and cable were out of alignment, such facts warranted an inference of negligence. Texas & P. Coal Co. v. Daves [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 745, 92 S. W. 275.

72. McGrath v. St. Louis Transit Co., 197 Mo. 97, 94 S. W. 872. Fact of injury by derailment of car was not evidence of negligence where plaintiff disobeyed instructions and dumped the car too soon, and this act caused the derailment and his injury. Redus v. Milner Coal & R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 634.

73. Where an injury may have resulted from any one of several causes for only one of which the master would be liable, plaintiff must show that this particular cause produced the injury. Caudle v. Kirkbridge, 117 Mo. App. 412, 93 S. W. 868. Where it was employe's duty to remove rails from an intersection of tracks, and a passing train knocked a rail against him, it was for him to show the proximate cause of this injury, since the jury could have believed it was caused by his own negligence in failing to remove the rail. Gardner v. Porter [Wash.] 88 P. 121.

74. An employe in a sawmill testified that as he went to remove an obstruction from a planer which he was operating he stepped into a hole at the left of the machine with his left foot and threw out his left hand and got it caught in the machine. His testimony was not so improbable as to require its withdrawal from the jury. Baker v. Dunwamish Mill Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 167. Where plaintiff proved that he called attention of superintendent to wheel which was throwing off sparks and making a screeching sound, and that superintendent told him to go ahead and work, that there was no danger and that he would have it fixed, and that the wheel broke, injuring plaintiff, he was entitled to recover though he did not prove exactly how the accident occurred. Hughes v. Fayette Mfg. Co., 214 Pa. 282, 63 A. 692. Where it sufficiently appears that an injury resulted from a defect in machinery existing by reason of the master's negligence, the servant may recover therefor without showing the precise defect which caused the injury. Tuckett v. American S. & H. Laundry [Utah] 84 P. 500.

75. Plaintiff suing for death of employe while engaged in moving a machine in the way adopted by manager of defendant, must show with reasonable distinctness how and why the accident occurred. A verdict cannot rest upon conjecture. Hamann v. Milwaukee Bridge Co., 127 Wis. 550, 106 N. W. 1081. Where it appeared that a pit into which plaintiff put his foot (pit contained hot oil and water) was visible, and there was no proof of how the accident occurred, nor of any defect in the place, plaintiff could not recover. Sheridan v. Gray's Ferry Abattoir Co., 214 Pa. 115, 63 A. 418. Plaintiff, ordinary laborer in molding room, was injured, but failed to prove cause of injury so that jury would have to guess at cause. Held no recovery could be had. Sandt v. North Wales Foundry Co., 214 Pa. 215, 63 A. 596. Where there are concurrent causes which may have operated, in combination or singly, to produce an accident, the fact that the machine at which the plaintiff

It is usually held that contributory negligence is an affirmative defense which must be alleged and proved by defendant,[76] though some courts hold that plaintiff must show that the person injured or killed was in the exercise of due care.[77] The presumption arising from the instinct of self-preservation is sufficient in the absence of any other evidence to sustain the burden of proof in the first instance that an employe was not guilty of contributory negligence.[78] By some courts it is held that the burden is upon the defendant to prove that the employe knew or ought to have known of the danger,[79] and that assumption of risk is an affirmative defense.[80] By others, it is held that plaintiff must show a want of actual or implied knowledge of the defect which caused the injury.[81] That the injury was caused by the act of a fellow-servant must be proved by defendant.[82] The burden of proving that a minor employe had greater than the usual capacity of minors of the same age rests upon the employer; the burden of proving that he had less than such usual capacity rests upon the minor or one seeking to recover damages for his death.[83] was working was out of repair does not furnish a sufficient basis upon which to ground a verdict in his favor, where the injury occurred in such a manner as to render it mere guess work to say the accident would not have occurred had the machine been in order. Ziehr v. Maumee Paper Co., 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 144. Instruction to find for defendant if it was doubtful whether cause of brakeman's death was negligence alleged, or some other cause, held proper. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Thomas, 87 Miss. 600, 40 So. 257.

76. Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. Doughty, 77 Ark. 1, 91 S. W. 768; Wallis v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 77 Ark. 556, 95 S. W. 446; Nord v. Boston & M. Consol. C. & S. Min. Co. [Mont.] 84 P. 1116; Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lawrence [Ind.] 79 N. E. 363. Burden of proving contributory negligence is on defendant under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 359a. Diamond Block Coal Co. v. Cuthbertson [Ind.] 76 N. E. 1060. Burden is on defendant to prove by a fair preponderance of all the evidence that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence. New Castle Bridge Co. v. Doty [Ind.] 79 N. E. 485. Proof of the absence of contributory negligence on the part of deceased is not essential to the right to recover for wrongful death. Contributory negligence in such a case is an affirmative defense and the burden of proving it rests on the defendant. Jackson Knife & Shear Co. v. Hathaway, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 242. Where engineer was killed in collision, burden was on defendant to overcome presumption that engineer used due care and to prove that he was guilty of contributory negligence. Stewart v. Raleigh & A. Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 253, 53 S. E. 877. When the complaint sufficiently alleges the injury and negligence of defendant and that plaintiff was in the exercise of due care, and a demurrer to the complaint has been overruled and defendant has answered, setting up its defense, the burden of proving contributory negligence is on defendant. Crawford v. Bonners Ferry Lumber Co. [Idaho] 87 P. 998.

77. In New York, plaintiff must show affirmatively that he was free from contributory negligence. Evidence insufficient to show want of contributory negligence where employe fell off a platform alleged to have been insufficiently lighted. Bauer v. Empire State Dairy Co., 100 N. Y. S. 553. Where an engineer was found dead in the engine room with his skull cut off and there was absolutely no evidence to show he was in the exercise of due care at the time of the accident, there could be no recovery for his death. McCarthy v. Clinton Gaslight Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 739.

78. Section foreman struck by engine while walking on the track. Christopherson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1077.

79. Applied where miner was drowned by water breaking through from an adjoining mine. Williams v. Sleepy Hollow Min. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 37. Burden of proving risk obvious on defendant in action for death of brakeman while coupling cars. Freemont v. Boston & M. R. Co., 111 App. Div. 831, 98 N. Y. S. 179. The burden of proving that a servant knew of a defect and failed to report it is upon defendant, since such proof constituted a defense under Rev. Laws, c. 106, § 77. Urquhart v. Smith & Anthony Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 410.

80. Nord v. Boston & M. Consol. C. & S. Min. Co. [Mont.] 84 P. 1116.

81. Servant must prove that he had neither actual nor imputed knowledge of alleged defective condition which caused the accident. Instructions on contributory negligence held misleading. Grand Trunk Western R. Co. v. Melrose [Ind.] 78 N. E. 190. Employe, plaintiff, has burden of proving risk which caused injury was not assumed. Evansville Gas & Elec. Light Co. v. Raley [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 548. Plaintiff must show that the servant injured did not know, and had not equal means of knowing, of such defect, and could not have known of it by the exercise of ordinary care, Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Skipper, 125 Ga. 368, 54 S. E. 110. Under Georgia Code, a servant must affirmatively show that he could not have known of the defects complained of by the exercise of ordinary care. Wysong v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 74 S. C. 1, 54 S. E. 214.

82. Burden is on defendant to show fellow-servant relation as a defense. Chicago, P. & St. L. R. Co. v. Mikesell, 113 Ill. App. 146.

83. Bare v. Crane Creek Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 907.

Admissibility in general.[84]—Holdings as to the relevancy of evidence on the issues of negligence of the master,[85] contributory negligence of the employe,[86] and

84. See 6 C. L. 596.

85. Held admissible: Where petition charged that it was the duty of employe to observe the company's rules, such rules were admissible in evidence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Fanning [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 344. Evidence that rip saw which injured operator could have been made reasonably safe by guards held admissible. Dow Wire Works Co. v. Morgan, 29 Ky. L. R. 854, 96 S. W. 530. Where oil tanks were alleged to be defective in that it was necessary to go on top of them in order to gauge the oil, evidence that there was no float or gauge with which to do the work was admissible. Yellow Pine Oil Co. v. Noble [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 750, 97 S. W. 332. In action for death of brakeman caused by being struck by a water crane beside the track, testimony of a former brakeman that the crane had brushed his arm when he had passed it on the side of a car was held admissible as tending to show whether the crane was a proper distance from the track. Charlton v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 529. In action for death of brakeman caused by being struck by water crane located close to track, evidence that another crane was maintained at another station, where freight trains usually took water, and that latter crane was farther from the track was admissible. Charlton v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 529. In action for injuries caused by railroad wreck, rules of company were admissible though not pleaded. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Garrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 616, 98 S. W. 932. Where complaint alleged negligence in providing fastenings for handhold on locomotive, in that they were allowed to become loose and insecure, evidence of the original defectiveness of a nut and bolt used to secure the handhold was admissible. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 150, 93 S. W. 184. Where theory of case in action for injuries caused by fall of trestle, was that trestle was improperly constructed or had been allowed to fall into disrepair, evidence of the proper construction of trestles as a whole was admissible. Bundy v. Sierra Lumber Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 622. On issue of negligence of master in failing to repair defective trestle, evidence that an expert trestle builder had called the managers' attention to the defects prior to the accident was admissible. Id. Where death of engineer was caused by collision, train sheets for day and time tables were admissible to show movement of trains. Stewart v. Raleigh & A. Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 253, 53 S. E. 877. Negligence charged being failure to maintain a switch light at the misplaced switch where an engineer was killed, evidence that defendant used such lights at other points on its road and that other roads also used them was admissible, though not to fix the legal standard of care. Southern R. Co. v. Blanford's Adm'x, 105 Va. 373, 54 S. E. 1. Where it was alleged that a machine was out of alignment with a pulley owing to unevenness of the floor, evidence tending to show that other machines were also out of alignment was admissible. Standard Cotton Mills v. Cheatham, 125 Ga. 649, 54 S. E. 650. When complaint alleged that cars were equipped with defective brakes and that only one brake could be used on each car, questions concerning the respects in which the brakes were defective were proper. Wiest v. Coal Creek R. Co., 42 Wash. 176, 84 P. 725. In action for death of miner caused by water breaking through from adjoining mine, evidence of a lack of ladders and bulkheads was admissible, there being some evidence that the presence of water in the adjoining mine was known to the owner of the mine where deceased worked. Williams v. Sleepy Hollow Min. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 337. Declaration by master mechanic of repair shops to defendant, at the time defendant became the owner of the works, as to the incompetency of a foreman in the shop, held competent to show notice of such incompetency, but not as substantive evidence of incompetency. McClure v. Detroit Southern R. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 846, 109 N. W. 847. Where evidence failed to disclose the immediate cause of the fall of an elevator which produced the injury complained of, evidence to show that the elevator had previously worked irregularly and spasmodically should have been admitted. Casterton v. American Blower Co., 142 Mich. 407, 12 Det. Leg. N. 751, 106 N. W. 61. Evidence that blacksmith's helper talked faster than usual on day of accident, that he acted this way when he had been drinking, and that he had used liquor to excess for many years, admissible to show knowledge by employers of his condition. Curtis v. Laconia Car. Co. Works, 73 N. H. 516, 63 A. 400. Where quarryman was injured by an explosion from a blast hole which he had been told had been exploded, when ordered to clean it out, evidence was admissible to show that foreman under whose orders he worked had knowledge as to the situation superior to his. McKane v. Marr [Vt.] 63 A. 944. In action for injuries to painter working in elevator shaft, evidence as to what was said to painter by employe at the time he was sent to work, and what precautions were taken to prevent injury by stopping the elevator above him, was admissible. State v. Thimble [M. D.] 64 A. 1026.

Held inadmissible: Where action was based on negligence in furnishing an unsafe handhold on a locomotive, which gave way while a fireman was hanging on to it and leaning out of the cab, evidence that the fireman was in a dangerous position was irrelevant. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Smith [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 150, 93 S. W. 184. Evidence of negligence in allowing repairs to be made on a side track instead of on the repair track inadmissible when such negligence was not pleaded. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Breeding [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 659, 91 S. W. 877. Complaint alleged injuries were caused by unevenness of a platform, but did not allege negligent construction, and it appeared that the unevenness was caused by permanent skids fastened to the floor. It did not appear from the complaint that these skids were unnecessary or unusual. Held evidence of negligent construction was inadmissible. Imhoof v. Northwestern Lumber Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 650. Where servant was injured while passing through a passageway assumption of risk,[87] are given in the notes. On the issue of negligence of the master, proof of previous similar accidents may be admissible to show notice.[88] The fact that no previous injury had resulted from the alleged defective condition in a mill, evidence of custom in the mill to exclude men from the passage was inadmissible when it appeared the servant was sent into it by a vice-principal, and knowledge of the custom by the servant was not shown. Barrett v. Banner Shingle Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 919. Evidence of manner in which shifting rods were used in well regulated mills inadmissible where negligence charged was failure to have countershaft aligned with main shaft. Fitzgerald v. Langley Mfg. Co., 74 S. S. 232, 54 S. E. 373. Where a rope broke, injuring plaintiff, at a time when the employer was present personally directing the work, evidence of a custom whereby the selection of the rope for use was left to servants was inadmissible. Geldard v. Marshall, 47 Or. 271, 83 P. 867, 84 P. 803. Laws 1905, p. 164, c. 84, requires the labor commissioner to issue a certificate where the factory act has been complied with, and provides that the certificate shall be prima facie evidence of compliance with the statute, in an action thereunder, but that the certificate shall be inadmissible in an action at common law. Held, where the statute took effect between the time of injury and the time of trial, the certificate was inadmissible. Tergeson v. Robinson Mfg. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 578. Error to admit testimony regarding the use of rubber gloves as a means of avoiding danger while stringing wires, where there was no specific allegation that the defendent was negligent in failing to provide the intestate with rubber gloves, and there was no general allegation opening the door to such evidence. City & Suburban Tel. Ass'n v. Kelly, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 342. Whether rules should have been adopted to prevent leaving wheels near vat into which servant fell, immaterial when presence of wheels was not shown to have contributed to produce the injury. Gaudette v. Boston & M. R. R. [N. H.] 64 A. 667. Whether defendant contractors carried casualty insurance on work being done was immaterial in action for injuries to employe. State v. Trimble [Md.] 64 A. 1026.

86. Testimony by plaintiff as to why he put his hands into a machine to remove a sliver held inadmissible. Rice v. Dewberry [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 193, 93 S. W. 715. Testimony of person who was in the cab of an engine with the fireman when he fell on the iron apron between the cab and the tender, that he did not notice the worn and defective condition of the apron, held admissible on issue whether fireman knew of its condition. Galveston, etc. R. Co. v. Udalle [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 668, 91 S. W. 330. Where switchman was injured trying to board a train, evidence, including a rule of the company, tending to show that it was his duty to see that his signal to slow up had been seen and obeyed before attempting to board it, was admissible. Worcester v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 548, 91 S. W. 339. Proper to allow superintendent to testify that he told brakeman not to go between cars and called his attention to a rule forbidding it, where brakeman went between cars and was there injured. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. Evidence as to age, experience, size, and appearance, and length of service of boy, and character of regular duties, admissible in action for his death where it was claimed he was inexperienced and was assigned to dangerous work by a superior. Moss v. Mosley [Ala.] 41 So. 1012. Evidence to show why operator of machine to cut sheet metal used his hand to remove the metal instead of another method, admissible where his hand was caught. United States Wind Engine & Pump Co. v. Butcher, 223 Ill. 638, 79 N. E. 304. Conversation between lineman and superintendent of electric company, showing that latter told former current would be turned off while employe was at work was admissible on issue of contributory negligence. Smith v. Milwaukee Elec. R. & Light Co., 127 Wis. 253, 106 N. W. 829. Employe was killed by explosion in brewery caused by tampering of some unknown person with steam appliances. Held error to admit evidence that deceased had tampered with such appliances without connecting his act with the accident which caused his death. Veit v. Class & Nachod Brew. Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 871.

Habits of care of deceased may be shown where there were no eye witnesses to accident. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Whiteaker, 122 Ill. App. 333; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Seevers, 122 Ill. App. 558; Wisenger v. Donk Brothers Coal & Coke Co., 119 Ill. App. 298. On issue whether violation of a rule by a railroad employe constituted negligence, evidence that he had habitually violated rules, and that such violation had previously resulted in accidents, was inadmissible. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Parrott [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 879, 96 S. W. 950.

87. Plaintiff may testify that he relied on a promise to repair a defect. To rebut a contention of assumed risk. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475. On issue of assumed risk, evidence was admissible to show that plaintiff, molder's helper, was subject to molder's orders; evidence regarding their relations was also admissible. Leighton & Howard Steel Co. v. Snell, 119 Ill. App. 199.

88. Where set screw caused injury, evidence of a prior accident similarly caused was admissible. Walker v. Newton Falls Paper Co., 111 App. Div. 19, 97 N. Y. S. 521. Where servant was killed by falling from a material car, evidence that other employes had been present on other occasions when the car had left the track and had discussed means of preventing such accidents was admissible to show notice of defendant. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Dilworth [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 257, 94 S. W. 352. In action for injuries to motorman caused by car running away down a hill; evidence of other similar accidents from similar causes, lack of sand in proper appliance, would be competent to show notice on the part of the master. Mayer v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 142 Mich. 459, 12 Det. Leg. N. 843, 105 N. W. 888. But an offer to show whether witness knew of other similar accidents, without showing that they occurred in the same manner or from the same cause, was properly excluded.

cannot be shown.[89] Proof of the condition of the machine or appliance or place alleged to have caused the injury must be confined closely to the time of the injury,[90] unless there is other evidence showing that there has been no change.[91] What is customarily done by others in the same business as defendant may be shown on the issue of negligence,[92] but the practice or usage of particular persons or employers cannot be proved.[93] Proof of repairs or precautions taken to prevent other accidents, subsequent to an injury, is usually excluded.[94] But where the

Id. Evidence that engineer in charge of cage in mine had lowered it at an excessive rate on occasions prior to the time in issue was admissible to prove knowledge by the engineer, which was chargeable to the company. Joseph Taylor Coal Co. v. Dawes, 220 Ill. 145, 77 N. E. 131. In action for death of employe by excessive current of electricity in light wire in building, evidence that another employe received a slight shock in the morning, and evidence as to the condition of the wire after the accident, was inadmissible, since it did not tend to show any excuse for the dangerous condition or defendant's failure to give warning. Goddard v. Enzler, 222 Ill. 462, 78 N. E. 805.

89. In action for injuries to operator of polishing wheel, evidence that defendant had never had any trouble of the kind and that no similar injury had ever occurred was inadmissible. Sheehan v. Hammond, 2 Cal. App. 371, 84 P. 340.

90. Evidence concerning conditions at place of injury a few days before and after it held admissible. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475. Where it was alleged that injured employe had been sent to oil machinery at the time he was injured, evidence of the condition of the machinery one and one-half hours after the accident, as to oil, and that the oil can could not be found, was admissible. McCarley v. Glenn-Lowry Mfg. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 1. Evidence of presence of gas in a mine thirteen hours after death of a miner held admissible where it appeared that the presence of such gas was caused by a blast which occurred before the accident. Foley v. Pioneer Min. & Mfg. Co., 144 Ala. 178, 40 So. 273. Testimony as to condition of certain car couplings admissible, cars being identified as those between which brakeman was injured. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. Where brakeman was injured by catching his foot between a spike and bolt in a track, it was proper to allow a witness to testify to measurements of a spike long after the accident without showing the condition of the track to be the same as at the time of the accident. Culver v. South Haven & E. R. Co., 144 Mich. 254, 13 Det. Leg. N. 719, 109 N. W. 256, rvg. on rehearing Id., 144 Mich. 254, 13 Det. Leg. N. 185, 107 N. W. 908. Where bursting of wheel, which caused injury, was alleged to have been caused by running machinery at excessive and unusual speed, evidence that the machine could be heard at a much greater distance than such machines could usually be heard was inadmissible when not shown to be confined to the time of the injury or near it. Stecher Cooperage Works v. Steadman [Ark.] 94 S. W. 41.

91. Evidence of conditions after accident inadmissible without a showing that there had been no change. Hodde v. Attleboro Mfg. Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 252. Derailment occurred in September, 1903, and witness examined track in March, 1905. Held he could not testify to conditions which he then found without proof that they were the same as at the time of the derailment. Redus v. Milner C. & R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 634. Witness who does not know conditions existing at time of injury cannot testify to conditions existing prior thereto. Swift & Co. v. Rennard, 119 Ill. App. 173. Where section man was struck by piece of coal thrown from tender of passenger train, evidence of condition of track six months before the injury was not too remote where there was also proof that condition remained unchanged. Dean v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co. [Mo.] 97 S. W. 910.

92. Where lumber stack fell owing to unsafe foundation, evidence of the kind of foundations in customary use by experienced millmen was admissible, though master was only bound to use ordinary care to make and keep such foundations reasonably safe. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Dickerson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 611, 94 S. W. 153. Evidence of an experienced foundryman as to a universal custom in regard to certain work held admissible. Louisville Belt & Iron Co. v. Hart, 29 Ky. L. R. 310, 92 S. W. 951. Where defect charged was negligent fastening of a pile driver, evidence of the usual and customary method of fastening such pile drivers was admissible. Wilder v. Great Western Cereal Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 789. Where failure to guard a saw as required by law is alleged, proof of customs in other mills whereby such saws are guarded is admissible, though not specially pleaded. Thomson v. Issaquah Shingle Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 588. Evidence of the customary location of mail cranes is admissible where negligence charged is that a crane was placed too close to the track. Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Burchard [Colo.] 86 P. 749.

93. Where injury was caused by unblocked switch, evidence of a general custom of well regulated railroads to have switches blocked was admissible but evidence as to the practice of two particular companies was inadmissible. Lee v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 195 Mo. 400, 92 S. W. 614.

94. That guard was put on a planer the day after an accident and thereafter used inadmissible. Silva v. Davis, 191 Mass. 47, 77 N. E. 525., Where fireman was injured in a collision owing to the failure to stop a train at a station, evidence of the method adopted to stop a train at that station after such collision was inadmissible. Moon v. Pere Marquette R. Co., 143 Mich. 125, 12 Det. Leg. N. 932, 106 N. W. 715. In action for injuries to employe while unloading telephone poles, evidence that after the accident the method of unloading was changed was inadmissible. Fitter v. Iowa Tel. Co., 129 Iowa, 610, 106 N. W. 7. The general rule is that negligence charged is failure to properly guard a machine, evidence that other similar machines were guarded,[95] or that the machine in question was guarded after the injury,[96] may be admitted not as an admission of negligence but to show the practicability of guarding the machine.

Expert and opinion evidence.[97]—If witnesses are shown to be properly qualified,[98] they may testify as experts in regard to matters requiring special skill and knowledge.[99] But expert and opinion evidence is inadmissible upon ultimate issues where the facts can be ascertained and made intelligible to the jury.[1]

Questions of law and fact.[2]—Unless the evidence is conclusive or the facts undisputed and such that only one reasonable conclusion can be drawn therefrom, the issues of negligence of the master,[3] contributory negligence of the servant,[4] as-the taking of precautions against the future is not to be construed as an admission of responsibility in the past, and, hence, evidence of what has been done since the occurrence of an accident is inadmissible. Erickson v. McNeeley & Co., 41 Wash. 509, 84 P. 3. Admission of evidence that repairs were made on a hand car after an accident and that witness supposed they were made because the car was not considered safe held prejudicial error. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Plumlee [Ark.] 95 S. W. 442.

95. Applied where death of employe in sawmill was caused by his falling on an unguarded saw. Erickson v. McNeeley & Co., 41 Wash. 509, 84 P. 3.

96. Changes made in a saw which had been unguarded, immediately after an injury, could be shown on the issue of the practicability of guarding the saw. Thomson v. Issaquah Shingle Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 588.

97. See 6 C. L. 599.

98. Foreman brakeman was competent to prove duties of brakemen as to keeping trespassers off trains by telling what brakemen usually did. Charlton v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 529. Held proper to exclude customary mode of testing steam plants where inquiry was not plainly relevant and witness was not fully shown to be qualified. Erickson v. American Steel & Wire Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 761. Testimony of experienced railroad yard employe as to reasonableness and practicability of rule regulating work in the yards held competent. Freemont v. Boston & M. R. Co., 111 App. Div. 831, 98 N. Y. S. 179.

99. Expert opinion admissible on question whether machine with revolving knives would have been safer if the knives revolved in the opposite direction. Swarts v. Wilson Mfg. Co., 100 N. Y. S. 1054. Expert may testify as to usual manner of attaching counterpoise to movable steam derrick. Redhead v. Dunbar & Sullivan Dredging Co., 101 N. Y. S. 301. Properly qualified witness may testify as to necessity of timbering mine to make it safe. Bird v. Utica Gold Min. Co., 2 Cal. App. 674, 84 P. 256. Evidence of expert as to proper method of trestle construction admissible in action for death caused by logging train going through a trestle. Bowen v. Sierra Lumber Co. [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1010. Expert opinion competent on trestle construction. Bundy v. Sierra Lumber Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 622. What constitutes train crew generally and what is proper crew for light engine is proper subject of expert testimony. Stewart v. Raleigh & A. Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 253, 53 S. E. 877. Railroad man may give opinion as to what cars may be coupled without going between them. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. Expert opinion held competent on question whether use of cast iron in certain parts of steam plant was dangerous, and whether such use caused an explosion. Erickson v. American Steel & Wire Co. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 761. Expert testimony held competent to show proper way to put coverings on rollers of ironing mangle, and whether such rollers could have been guarded. Carlin v. Kennedy, 97 Minn. 141, 106 N. W. 340. Where servant was injured by falling of track of traveling crane, held proper to allow expert to describe construction of track and tell what he considered a safe and proper method of construction. Hamner v. Janowitz [Iowa] 108 N. W. 109.

1. Testimony of employe that it would be a "good idea" to establish a certain rule held incompetent. McLaughlin v. Manhattan R. Co., 111 App. Div. 254, 97 N. Y. S. 719. Opinion evidence is incompetent on question whether the method employed to move a heavy machine from a car was proper. Hamann v. Milwaukee Bridge Co., 127 Wis. 550, 106 N. W. 1081. Whether a brass rolling machine was a dangerous machine to put boys to work at is not a subject of expert testimony. Anderson v. Chicago Brass Co., 127 Wis. 273, 106 N. W. 1077. Whether vertical belt and horizontal shaft were adequately guarded was held not a proper subject for expert evidence. Morgan v. Hager & Sons Hinge Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 590, 97 S. W. 638. Expert opinion inadmissible to explain railroad rules which were in ordinary language and easily understood. Stewart v. Raleigh & A. Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 253, 53 S. E. 877.

2. See 6 C. L. 600; also, ante, §§ 3a-3g.

3. Where the facts are undisputed and only one inference can be drawn therefrom, the issue of negligence is for the court. Isley v. Virginia Bridge & Iron Co., 141 N. C. 220, 53 S. E. 841. Negligence becomes a question of law only when the act causing damage to another is in violation of statute or when the undisputed evidence admits of the inference only that the commission of the act was negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Wray [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 676, 96 S. W. 74. The question whether the master has exercised ordinary care under the circumstances is for the jury, except where the facts are undisputed and such that only one reasonable conclusion can be drawn therefrom. Williams v. Sleepy Holsumption of risk,[5] and proximate cause,[6] are for the jury. What facts are essential to the existence of the fellow-servant relation is a question of law; the existence of such facts is for the jury.[7] This question may, therefore, be said to be a mixed question of law and fact.[8]

(§ 3 H) 5. Instructions. —Only a few illustrative holdings are here given, the general principles governing the giving of instructions being elsewhere fully treated.[10]

The instructions should be confined to the issues raised by the pleadings[11] and the evidence.[12] All the acts of negligence relied on by plaintiff and supported by evidence should be submitted,[13] and all the defenses relied on by defendant low Min. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 337. In action for injuries to carriage rider in sawmill caused by breaking of rod which controlled the carriage, evidence held sufficient to take the issue of defendant's negligence to the jury. Gomulak v. Smith Lumber Co. [Minn.] 107 N. W. 542. Where several witnesses, unimpeached, testified positively that a warning was given, testimony of others that they did not hear it was insufficient to make an issue for the jury. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Baldwin [C. C. A.] 144 F. 53. Location of switch stand in yards between two tracks, so close to one that the handle of a switch would strike the step of a passing car, was a part of the engineering scheme in the construction of the road, and, in the absence of defects patent to an ordinary observer, did not present a question of negligence to be passed on by the jury. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Riley [C. C. A.] 145 F. 137. The reasonable safety of a railroad and of couplings on cars is a question for the jury, even though engineering problems are involved. Gordon v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 129 Iowa, 747, 106 N. W. 177.

4. Williams v. Ballard Lumber Co., 41 Wash. 338, 83 P. 323; Belvidere Gas & Elec. Co. v. Boyer, 122 Ill. App. 116. Contributory negligence is for the jury when the facts are such that more than one reasonable conclusion can be drawn therefrom. Christ v. Wichita Gas, Elec. Light & Power Co., 72 Kan. 135, 83 P. 199. Where brakeman jumped to avoid a train coming from the rear, and testified that he gave proper signals, the issue whether such signals were given was for the jury, though other witnesses testified that none were given. Kentucky & I. B. & R. Co. v. Nuttall, 29 Ky. L. R. 1167, 96 S. W. 1131.

5. Assumption of risk for jury where reasonable minds may differ. Pearson v. Federal M. & S. Co., 42 Wash. 90, 84 P. 632.

6. See ante, § 3a, for illustrative cases.

7. Hinchliff v. Robinson, 118 Ill. App. 450; Wabash R. Co. v. Thomas, 117 Ill. App. 110; Chicago, P. & St. L. R. Co. v. Mikesell, 113 Ill. App. 146. Where all the facts regarding relation of servants are made known without dispute or controversy, and are so conclusive that only one reasonable conclusion can be drawn therefrom, the question is one of law. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Ring, 119 Ill. App. 294.

8. Relation of fellow-servants is a mixed question of law and fact and an instruction making it a pure question of law is error. Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Sawusch, 119 Ill. App. 349. Where evidence was conflicting as to whether contract of employment was made in South Carolina or another state, it was proper for the court to charge on the fellow-servant law of both states and leave to the jury the question whether a brakeman, engineer, and yard conductor were fellow-servants. Caldwell v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 73 S. C. 443, 53 S. E. 746.

9. See 6 C. L. 600.

10. See Instructions, 8 C. L. 333.

11. Instructions should submit all the issues raised by the pleadings and evidence, but should be confined to issues so raised. Moss v. Mosley [Ala.] 41 So. 1012. Willful violation of the coal mine law being necessary to sustain a recovery, an instruction on negligence is error in an action based on the statute. Consolidated Coal Co. v. Stein, 122 Ill. App. 310. Instruction authorizing recovery on ground of negligence not pleaded held erroneous. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co. v. Breeding [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 659, 91 S. W. 877. Error to instruct on duty of master to use ordinary care to employ and retain only competent servants, that not being an issue in the case. Ft. Valley Knitting Mills v. Anderson, 124 Ga. 909, 53 S. E. 686. Charge on ordinary care in selection and retention of servants error when there was no such issue in the case. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Skipper, 125 Ga. 368, 54 S. E. 110. Where the only issue submitted is whether the injury to plaintiff could have been prevented by the exercise of ordinary care after discovery of his dangerous position, failure to instruct on contributory negligence or assumed risk is not error. Dale v. Colfax Consol. Coal Co. [Iowa] 107 N. W. 1096.

12. Not error to refuse instruction as to non-applicability of factory act where jury had not been advised of the existence of such act. Schwaninger v. McNeeley & Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 514. Where it appeared that fireman was called to assist in adjusting a belt, and was injured while so engaged, an instruction as to the master's duty when a servant is called away from his regular duties was not prejudicial error. Id.

13. Instruction erroneous because ignoring two counts of complaint and not confined to third. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Smith [Ala.] 40 So. 91. Where complaint charged negligence in construction of brake, and instruction charged only on duty to inspect, it was erroneous. Sanders v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 93 S. W. 139. Instruction on defendant's alleged negligence erroneous because making no reference to conduct of superintendent who was charged with negligence. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Smith [Ala.] 40 So. 91. Where evidence raised the question should also be submitted when sustained by proof.[14] Thus, the defendant is entitled to proper instructions on the issues of contributory negligence,[15] assumption of risk,[16] and the existence and effect of the fellow-servant relation,[17] when these defenses are relied on and supported by proof.[18] The instructions given must be warranted by the evidence.[19] They should not assume as proved facts in

of the sufficiency of inspection of a telephone pole, by the fall of which an employe was injured, a requested instruction confining the question of negligence to the guying of the pole was properly refused. Southwestern Tel. & T. Co. v. Tucker [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 598, 98 S. W. 909.

14. Defendant held entitled to a charge that if chain which broke had not crystallized as alleged, owing to lack of annealing, the jury should find for defendant on the issue of negligence. Isley v. Virginia Bridge & Iron Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 416.

15. Instruction erroneous because ignoring defense of contributory negligence. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Blasengame [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 203, 93 S. W. 187. Requested particular instruction on contributory negligence was warranted by evidence and should have been given. Chicago Folding Box Co. v. Schallawitz, 118 Ill. App. 9. Duty of miner to use ordinary care to look out for his own safety held sufficiently covered by instructions. Cook v. Smith-Lowe Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 798. Engineer was injured by a collision between his engine and a train on a spur track, and the evidence showed contributory negligence in not observing that the switch was properly set, and afterwards. Failure to charge on contributory negligence after his engine was placed on the spur track held reversible error. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Parrott [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 157, 91 S. W. 601.

16. Refusal of charge on assumed risk not error in view of charge given. James Ramage Paper Co. v. Bulduzzi [C. C. A.] 147 F. 151. Instruction ignoring defense of assumed risk held erroneous. Edmunds Mfg. Co. v. McFarland, 118 Ill. App. 256. Where a count on which a case was submitted stated facts which, if true, showed plaintiff did not assume the risk of injury, an instruction that plaintiff could recover if he proved his case as alleged was not objectionable as ignoring the defense of assumed risk. Springfield Boiler & Mfg. Co. v. Parks, 222 Ill. 355, 78 N. E. 809. Where the allegations of each count of a declaration clearly negatived the assumption of the risk, instructions to find for plaintiff if he proved his case as alleged in any count, was not erroneous as ignoring the defense of assumed risk. James S. Kirk & Co. v. Jajko, 224 Ill. 338, 79 N. E. 577. No special instruction on assumption of ordinary risks necessary when defendant relied on assumption of risk of a defect charged, and such instruction was not requested. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475.

17. Where, in action for injuries to lineman, it appeared plaintiff was working with an experienced man and under his direction, and defendant claimed plaintiff had experience and that he was the fellow-servant of the employe he was with, the fellow-servant defense should have been presented to the jury. Sias v. Consolidated Lighting Co. [Vt.] 64 A. 1104. The court should instruct who are fellow-servants. Instruction held too vague and indefinite. Kenefick-Hammond Co. v. Rohr, 77 Ark. 290, 91 S. W. 179.

18. Instruction on assumed risk properly refused when the defense was not interposed at the trial. Springfield Elec. Light & P. Co. v. Mott, 120 Ill. App. 39. Evidence held not to warrant instruction that plaintiff assumed risk of breaking of a rope if he knew of its defective condition. Geldard v. Marshall, 47 Or. 271, 83 P. 867, 84 P. 803. No error to refuse instructions on fellow-servant doctrine where injury was not proximately caused by the act of another employe. Schwaninger v. McNeeley & Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 514. Charge on fellow-servants properly refused, no such issue having been raised. Standard Cotton Mills v. Cheatham, 125 Ga. 649, 54 S. E. 650. Instruction that if foreman did an act which it was ordinarily the duty of a fellow-servant to perform, he was a fellow-servant of plaintiff while doing it held improper, where evidence did not tend to show that foreman did such an act. Moore v. King Mfg. Co., 124 Ga. 576, 53 S. E. 107. Where there was no evidence that a shop foreman was assisting plaintiff in repairing and adjusting a gang saw, it was error to instruct that he was plaintiff's fellow-servant if so engaged at the time of injury. Id. Instruction that where a dangerous and a safe method are open, servant is under duty of using safe method, and cannot recover for injuries caused by use of dangerous method held justified by evidence where servant was injured while getting a saw ready to cut certain lumber. Id.

19. Where a miner was injured by reason of a prop having been placed too close to a track, certain requested instructions held properly refused on issue of contributory negligence because not applicable to the evidence, and instructions given held proper. Cahaba Southern Min. Co. v. Pratt [Ala.] 40 So. 943. Instruction predicated on a finding either way on the issue whether an engineer stopped his train held erroneous when there was no evidence that he did stop it. Southern R. Co. v. Scanlon's Adm'r, 29 Ky. L. R. 268, 92 S. W. 927. Instruction on duty to prescribe method of work erroneous where method used was not shown, except that it appeared that work was being done in the usual manner. Browning v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 449, 94 S. W. 315. Instruction erroneous because not applicable to evidence and allowing a finding of negligence on an erroneous theory. Hall v. Cayuga Lake Cement Co., 111 App. Div. 801, 97 N. Y. S. 955. Instruction practically following § 18 of Miner's Act held not erroneous as applied to facts of case. Henrietta Coal Co. v. Martin, 122 Ill. App. 354. Evidence sufficient to warrant submission to jury of question whether there was a safer block system in general use on railroads of like character than that used by defendant company. Stewart v. Raleigh & A. Air Line R. Co., 141 N. C. 253, 53 S. E. 877. Where evidence showed that injured motorman had issue.[20] Decisions as to particular instructions on various issues are cited in the note.[21] Generally, the court should not charge that certain specified facts would constitute negligence,[22] except where, under the operation of a statute or ordinance, certain acts constitute negligence per se.[23] In Georgia, where the evidence warrants such an instruction, it is better practice to instruct that contributory negligence will not defeat a recovery but may be considered in reduction of damages,[24] but a failure to so instruct is not reversible error where plaintiff claims full damages, and alleges that he was without fault, and no request for such an instruction is made.[25] had the usual training and experience before being placed in charge of a car, an instruction in substance that he was the only motorman without any training other than in the stopping and starting of cars was erroneous. Mayer v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 142 Mich. 459, 12 Det. Leg. N. 843, 105 N. W. 888.

20. Instruction on plaintiff's conduct erroneous because assuming that it proximately contributed to his injury. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Smith [Ala.] 40 So. 91. Where negligence charged was the existence of a low place in the track, and that fact was in issue, an instruction assuming the charge to be true was error. Atlantic & B. R. Co. v. Hattaway, 126 Ga. 333, 55 S. E. 21. It being disputed as to whether a foreman was acting within the scope of his employment, the question as to whether the duty was an implied one should have been submitted to the jury. Gawne Co. v. Fry, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 317.

21. Instructions on master's duties approved: Shandrew v. Chicago, St. P., M. & O. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 320. Instructions as to degree of care criticized. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Trump [Tex. Civ. App.] 94 S. W. 903. Instructions construed as a whole held not to require more than ordinary care of employes to avoid injuring a brakeman. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hays [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 605, 98 S. W. 911. Instruction held proper as requiring only reasonable care of master in discharge of his various duties. Lane Bros. Co. v. Seakford [Va.] 55 S. E. 556. An instruction authorizing a recovery for injuries caused by latent defects in machinery condemned because it made the master an insurer of the servant's safety. Harris Lumber Co. v. Morris [Ark.] 96 S. W. 1067. Instruction construed and held proper as requiring only ordinary care to furnish a reasonably safe place. Kielty v. Buehler-Cooney Const. Co. [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 998. Where employe was injured while piling lumber owing to the foundation of the stack giving, an instruction which in effect placed on the master the absolute duty of providing a safe foundation for lumber stacks was erroneous. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Dickerson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 611, 94 S. W. 153. Error to instruct jury that railroad company owed to employe riding on a train in the course of his employment a "high degree to care" in the construction and maintenance of its roadbed and tracks. Van Blarcom v. Central R. Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 111. An instruction that ordinary care is such care as the great mass of mankind would have exercised "under the same circumstances" is sufficiently accurate without adding "engaged in a similar employment." Johnson v. St. Paul & W. Coal Co., 126 Wis. 492, 105 N. W. 1048. When an issue of "ordinary care" or "reasonable care" is submitted to the jury, the court when requested should define those terms. Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Norgate [C. C. A.] 141 F. 247. Instruction permitting recovery if negligence of defendant was found to be "the" proximate cause of injury held not objectionable as ignoring defense of contributory negligence. Virginia Bridge & Iron Co. v. Jordan, 143 Ala. 603, 42 So. 73. Instruction that plaintiff could recover if defendant's violation of statute "proximately contributed," instead of "proximately caused," the death of a miner, held not error. Athens Min. Co. v. Carnduff, 221 Ill. 354, 77 N. E. 571. Instruction erroneous because omitting element of proximate cause. Huggins v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 856. Instruction that plaintiff could recover unless he was guilty of contributory negligence "and" assumed the risk held reversible error. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Von Hoesen [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 463, 91 S. W. 604. Instruction on contributory negligence held to furnish a standard for the jury. Huggard v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 475. Requested instruction on contributory negligence properly refused where hypothesized conduct of plaintiff would not necessarily be proximate cause of the injury. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Hutchinson, 144 Ala. 221, 40 So. 114. Instruction on contributory negligence held not erroneous as failing to state that acts of servants relied on must have proximately caused his injury. Worcester v. Galveston, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 548, 91 S. W. 339. An instruction that plaintiff could not recover if he failed to exercise ordinary care "at the very time of the injury" was held correct but possibly too narrowly limited. Beardsley v. Murray Iron Works Co., 129 Iowa, 675, 106 N. W. 180. Instruction on plaintiff's conduct erroneous because failing to hypothesize it as negligent. Sloss-Sheffield Steel & Iron Co. v. Smith [Ala.] 40 So. 91. Instruction requiring "due care" of plaintiff held not erroneous for not also requiring "diligence." Southern Ind. R. Co. v. Osborn [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 248.

22. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Skipper, 125 Ga. 368, 54 S. E. 110. Instruction should not undertake to state to jury what acts constitute negligence. Illinois Central R. Co v. Hicks, 122 Ill. App. 349. Instruction that a certain omission would be negligence condemned. Manning v. App Consol. Gold Min. Co. [Cal.] 84 P. 657. Error to instruct jury that it was defendant's duty to promulgate rules and regulations for the operation of factory and machinery, without instructing as to what particular rule should have been, especially where the evidence did not disclose what, if any, rule would have been

(§ 3 H) 6. Verdicts and findings.[26]—A general verdict will be disregarded if inconsistent with special findings.[27].

§ 4. Liability for injury to third persons. A. In general.[28]—The master is liable for the acts of his servant within the general scope of his employment, while about his master's business,[29] though the act be negligent, wanton, willful, or malicious,[30] and though the servant exceeds his actual authority or violates express efficient and practicable. Severson v. Hill-Warner-Fitch Co., 101 N. Y. S. 808.

23, 24, 25. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Skipper, 125 Ga. 368, 54 S. E. 110.

26. See 6 C. L. 602.

27. In action for death of switchman, special verdict held not to show contributory negligence so as to make it inconsistent with general verdict for plaintiff. Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lawrence [Ind.] 79 N. E. 363. In action for injuries to girl who got her hair caught on set screws, special finding held sufficient to show that negligence of defendant was proximate cause of injury. Van de Bogart v. Marinette & Menominee Paper Co., 127 Wis. 104, 106 N. W. 805.

28. See 6 C. L. 602.

29. The expression "in the course of his employment" means, in contemplation of law, "while engaged in the service of the master," it is not synonymous with "during the period of his employment." Slater v. Advance Thresher Co., 97 Minn. 305, 107 N. W. 133. The law makes the master liable to third persons for negligence of his servants while acting within the scope of their employment, regardless of whether or not the servant in a particular case would be liable to the master. Star Brew. Co. v. Houck, 222 Ill. 348, 78 N. E. 827. Negligence of servant held negligence of his employer, defendant corporation. Lookout Mountain Iron Co. v. Lea, 144 Ala. 169, 39 So. 1017. Street railway company is liable for negligence of motorman in charge of car. Garrett v. People's R. Co. [Del.] 64 A. 254. Owner of building not liable for negligent act of his elevator operator in moving elevator at request of person repairing the same. Sherwood v. Warner, 27 App. D. C. 64. Negligence by driver of vehicle employed by owner is negligence of such owner. Robinson v. Huber [Del.] 63 A. 873. Acts of chauffeur when running automobile within scope of his employment, are acts of servant for which employer is liable. Hannigan v. Wright [Del.] 63 A. 234. Proprietor of hotel held liable for assault on a guest by the manager of the hotel in the cause of the discharge of his duties. Morris Hotel Co. v. Henley [Ala.] 40 So. 52. To render the master liable for negligent acts of a servant, such acts must be within the scope of the servant's employment and must be done in the conduct of the master's business. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Harvey [C. C. A.] 144 F. 806. Telephone employe went on defendant's premises to do certain work in an elevator shaft. Held, the operator of the elevator was acting within the scope of his employment in promising not to operate the elevator while the telephone employe was at work. Rink v. Lowry [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 967. A watchman, empowered to eject from fishing club grounds persons who were on them without authority, had an altercation with plaintiff whom he found on the ground and who claimed to have been granted a privilege, and then assaulted him. The assault was held to have been committed by the servant while in the discharge of his duties. New Ellerslie Fishing Club v. Stewart, 29 Ky. L. R. 414, 93 S. W. 598. Where plaintiff claimed that he had a privilege evidence that the servant had formerly allowed him to fish on the ground without objection was admissible. Id. Master, except in case of fellow-servants, is answerable for damage occasioned by servants and overseers in the exercise of functions in which they are employed. Payne v. Georgetown Lumber Co., 117 La. 983, 42 So. 475. Telegraph company is liable for damages caused a third person by the forging of a telegram by its agent. Usher v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Mo. App.] 98 S. W. 84. Defendant maintained a telegraph office at a railway station, and agent, employed and paid by railroad company, took messages for transmission and turned the charges over to the telegraph company. Held, he was an employe of the telegraph company so that the forging of a telegram not connected with railroad business by him made defendant liable. Id. Where bridge tender in employ of state was not performing his regular duties when he did a negligent act which caused injury to another, the state was not liable for his act. Spencer v. State, 110 App. Div. 585, 97 N. Y. S. 154. Where servant driving master's private sleigh struck a boy, who had jumped on the runner, with the butt of his whip, stunning him and giving him a severe cut, it was held a finding that the servant was acting within the scope of his employment and used unnecessary means, and that master was liable, was justified. Dealy v. Coble, 112 App. Div. 296, 98 N. Y. S. 452. Act of servants, laying tracks in streets, of striking a third person with a tie, held to make master liable. Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co. v. Klute, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 409. Servant of restaurant keeper became abusive to patron, and patron started to leave, whereupon the servant assaulted him. Held, where jury found that the assault was committed in the course of the servant's employment, to compel the patron to pay what the servant thought he ought to, the master was liable. Goodwin v. Greenwood, 16 Okl. 489, 85 P. 1115. Defendant liable for water taken by its servant, if latter acted within scope of employment and was entrusted with determination of amount of water to be taken. Tyler Ice Co. v. Tyler Water Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 114, 95 S. W. 649. Servant was holding a compressed air hose to be used in case a fire should break out in oil which was leaking, and turned the hose on a bystander, killing him. Master was held liable. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Currie [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 18, 91 S. W. 1100.

30. It is within the scope of employment of the conductor of a trolley car to control and manage the car and to eject a passenger when necessary to preserve peace and order orders or instructions.[31] The master is not liable for unauthorized acts, outside the scope of the servant's employment.[32] Thus, for an act of the servant in the prosecution of some private purpose of his own, unconnected with the business of the in the car, and, where in so doing a malicious assault is committed, the company is liable therefor. Scioto Valley Traction Co. v. Graybill, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 469. Where servant is employed to keep trespassers off land, and in doing so commits an assault, the master is liable even if the assault was wanton or vindictive; but if the assault was committed for a private purpose of the servant, the master would not be liable. Schmidt v. Vanderveer, 110 App. Div. 758, 97 N. Y. S. 441.

31. A master is liable for the tort of his servant committed in direct disobedience of his orders if the tort occurs about something in the scope of the servant's duty. Houck v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 116 Mo. App. 559, 92 S. W. 738. Where engineer in charge of engine room, whose duty it was to keep people, especially children out, invited a boy in to help him start the machinery and the boy was injured by negligence of the engineer, the master could not defend on the ground that the engineer had no authority to invite the boy into the room. Id. Where servant was employed to retake a machine which had not been paid for, his employer was liable for an assault committed by the servant while retaking the machine, though the employer had instructed him not to use force. Grant v. Singer Mfg. Co., 190 Mass. 489, 77 N. E. 480. If a servant, while acting within the general scope of his employment, disregards his master's orders, or exceeds his powers, the master is nevertheless responsible for his conduct. Sharp v. Erie R. Co., 184 N. Y. 100, 76 N. E. 923. Defendant's servants negligently set out a fire in order to protect defendant's property from accidental fire, and the fire spread, got beyond their control, and destroyed property of plaintiff. Defendant held liable though servant's act was unauthorized and unlawful. Paraffine Oil Co. v. Berry [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 715, 93 S. W. 1089.

32. In an action for the statutory penalty (Code 1896, § 4137) for willfully and knowingly cutting the trees of another, where the cutting was done by defendant's employe without defendant's knowledge, or consent, or authorization, defendant was not liable. Alabama Mineral Land Co. v. Lathrop-Hatton Lumber Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 952. Act of bartender in setting fire to the foot of a patron asleep in the saloon was outside the scope of his employment. Peter Anderson & Co. v. Diaz, 77 Ark. 606, 92 S. W. 861. Duties of servant employed by steamship company were confined to engineering department, with supervision of motive power. Held he did not represent the company while on a steamship which was being changed from coal to oil burner, merely to see that company got what it paid for. McGill v. Michigan S. S. Co. [C. C. A.] 144 F. 788. Railroad company is not liable for act of brakeman, acting without authority, in ejecting a trespasser from a train. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Moran, 117 Ill. App. 42. Stenographer and chief clerk in railway office had a dispute over railroad business, and clerk thereafter procured stenographer's discharge. Three days later the clerk met the stenographer on the depot platform and struck him. The railroad company was not liable for the assault. Alabama & V. R. Co. v. Harz [Miss.] 42 So. 201. Acts of telegraph operator in procuring money on forged check and telegrams held outside scope of employment and company not liable. Usher v. Western Union Tel. Co. [Mo. App.] 98 S. W. 84. Employe of newspaper company, delivering papers to venders, became engaged in an altercation with a vender, and aimed a blow at him, which was dodged, and the blow fell upon plaintiff. Master held not liable. Froomkin v. Brooklyn Daily Eagle Co., 113 App. Div. 443, 99 N. Y. S. 300. Where owner of hod elevator rented it, in charge of his own engineer, to a contractor, the fact that the engineer allowed servants of the contractor to ride in it did not preclude the owner from showing that the engineer was acting outside the scope of his authority and employment in so doing. McDonough v. Pelham Hod El. Co., 111 App. Div. 585, 98 N. Y. S. 90. Yardmaster and employe of railroad quarreled about an alleged mistake made by the employe in performing his duties, and a little later the yardmaster assaulted the other employe. Whether defendant was liable depended upon whether the act was within the scope of the yardmaster's employment, in the course of the master's business, and not whether the yardmaster was on duty at the time. Roberts v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 509. It appearing that the assault occurred after the yardmaster had corrected the employe, and that incident was closed, and that the assault grew out of the quarrel between the two, a verdict for defendant was proper. Id. Railway company held not liable where employe in roundhouse, who was using a compressed air hose while discharging his duties, turned it in sport on a subordinate and caused his death. Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Currie [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 870, 96 S. W. 1073. Foreman of construction crew held not to have had authority over train crew so that his negligence would not render defendant liable for death of boy killed by the train Forge v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 386, 90 S. W. 1118. Where a driver of a wagon invited children to ride, and one was killed when getting off, and the driver had never been expressly nor impliedly authorized to invite children to ride and his act was not within the scope of his employment, hauling stone, the employer was not liable. Foster-Herbert Cut Stone Co. v. Pugh, 115 Tenn. 688, 91 S. W. 199. Driver of ice wagon gave boy permission to take a piece of ice and then when boy climbed upon wagon to take it seized him and threw him off, injuring him. Act of servant was held beyond the scope of his authority and master was held not liable. Kiernan v. New Jersey Ice Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 998.

Note: In the following cases, also, the servant was held not to be acting within the scope of his authority, in extending invitations, and the master was held not liable for injuries to the invited person; servant extending unauthorized invitation to person to master, the latter is not liable,[33] although the servant may be using the instrumentalities furnished by the master.[34]

The doctrine of respondeat superior is of course inapplicable unless the relation of master and servant existed at the time between the defendant and the person charged with the wrongful act or omission.[35] Thus, an employer is not liable ride on a dump-cart. Driscoll v. Scanlon, 165 Mass. 348, 43 N. E. 100, 52 Am. St. Rep. 523; Morris v. Brown, 111 N. Y. 318, 18 N. E. 722, 7 Am. St. Rep. 751. To ride on a hand car. Haar v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 70 Me. 65, 35 Am. St. Rep. 299. To child to ride on trolley car. Finley v. Hudson Elec. R. Co., 64 Hun [N. Y.] 373, 19 N. Y. S. 621. To ride on gravel train or freight car. Flower v. Penna. R. Co., 69 Pa. 210, 8 Am. Rep. 251; Keating v. Mich. Cent. R. Co., 97 Mich. 154, 56 N. W. 346, 37 Am. St. Rep. 328; Smith v. Louisville R. Co., 124 Ind. 394, 24 N. E. 753.—From Kiernan v. New Jersey Ice Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 998.

33. The master is not liable for injuries occasioned to a third person by the negligence of his servant while the latter is engaged in some act beyond the scope of his employment, for his own, or the purposes of another. Slater v. Advance Thresher Co., 97 Minn. 305, 107 N. W. 133. If a servant acts maliciously or for some purpose of his own, the master is not responsible. Sharp v. Erie R. Co., 184 N. Y. 100, 76 N. E. 923. If a servant step aside from the business of his master for ever so short a time to do an act that is not a part of that business, the relation of master and servant is for the time suspended, and the acts of the servant during this interval are not the master's but his own. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Harvey [C. C. A.] 144 F. 806. Workmen took a hand car and operated it after working hours and contrary to rules of company, without a light, and the car collided with another car on which a gang was taking sick workmen to town. Held, the acts of the first gang were outside the scope of their employment, and the master was not liable. Id. A groom and stableman, not employed as a driver took out his master's horse and buggy contrary to orders, and in the master's absence, and wholly for his own pleasure, and ran into and killed a boy while driving recklessly. Master held not liable. Brenner v. Ford, 116 La. 550, 40 So. 894.

34. Two general state agents for defendant took an automobile furnished by defendant for the use of one of such agents in its business, and drove to a neighboring city for a purpose purely personal to themselves, and wholly unconnected with business of defendant. Held, defendant was not liable for their negligence in operating the machine whereby a team was frightened and damage caused. Slater v. Advance Thresher Co., 97 Minn. 305, 107 N. W. 133. Master is not answerable for acts of his servant committed outside the line of his duty, and not connected with his master's business, but done in pursuit of some independent purpose of his own, although the particular injury could not have occurred without facilities afforded by the relation of master and servant. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Gillen [Ind.] 76 N. E. 1058.

35. Relation of master and servant held to exist: Evidence sufficient to show that man charged with assault had been employed by an authorized agent of defendant. Grant v. Singer Mfg. Co., 190 Mass. 489, 77 N. E. 480. Master and servant relation exists between board of education and persons employed by it to inspect school buildings. Wahrman v. City of New York, 111 App. Div. 345, 97 N. Y. S. 1066. Evidence sufficient to go to the jury on the question of whether the driver of an express wagon that ran over plaintiff was defendant's agent. Banks v. Southern Express Co., 73 S. C. 211, 53 S. E. 166. Where foreman in employe of state acquiesced in the act of a bridge tender who removed a plank for purposes of his own, whereby a third person was injured, the state was liable. Spencer v. State, 110 App. Div. 585, 97 N. Y. S. 154. Where in trespass action for injuries to building it was proved that work which caused injury was done under direction of an engineer employed by defendant, such proof made a prima facie case against defendant. American Horse Exch. Co. v. Naughton Co., 97 N. Y. S. 384. A contract gave plaintiff right to use defendant's tracks in a certain city, provided that certain employes, including flagmen, should be hired and controlled by defendant, though paid in part by plaintiff, and that each party should be responsible for acts of employes acting in its behalf. Held, that a crossing flagman acted for both, and that for damages caused by his negligence, plaintiff could not recover from defendant. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 265, 93 S. W. 4.

Relation of master and servant held not to exist: Evidence held to show that chauffeur, whose act caused injury, was servant of a third person and not of defendant. Titus v. Tangeman, 101 N. Y. S. 1000. Evidence insufficient to show that one who caused a sign to fall was defendant's servant, or was acting as such at the time. Bowden v. Mott Iron Works, 113 App. Div. 738, 99 N. Y. S. 209. Where elevator operator was not appointed by nor responsible to defendant county or city, such defendants were not liable for injuries to a third person caused by the operator's negligence. Moest v. City of Buffalo & County of Erie, 101 N. Y. S. 996. Consignee unloaded vessel, under his contract, employing a master stevedore for that purpose. Vessel's winchmen were used, according to contract, who worked under stevedore's control and direction. Held, if master was free from negligence in employing winchmen who were competent, vessel was not liable for injuries caused by winchman's negligent act to a workman of the master stevedore. The Elton [C. C. A.] 142 F. 367. Where the owner of a building sold it to another, the latter and his agents were not the servants of the vendor in moving the house so as to render the vendor liable for their acts. Wilmot v. McPadden [Conn.] 65 A. 157. A. bought threshing engine from B., defendant, and B. agreed to supply a new one, the first proving unsatisfactory. B. furnished A. with men to move the new engine, A. agreeing to pay them. The men caused a for the acts of an independent contractor,[36] nor for the acts of one not subject to his control or direction at the time though in his general employ.[37] Where an employe in the general employ of one person is hired to another for certain special service, there is a conflict of authority as to whether the general or special employer is liable for the negligence of the employe, while engaged in the special service.[38]

Public charitable institutions are exempt from the operation of the doctrine of respondeat superior.[39]

Damages.[40]—In an action against a master for a tort of his servant, punitive damages cannot be recovered for the malice of the servant.[41]

Liability of servant; joint liability of master and servant.[42]—There are two classes of cases falling under the doctrine of respondeat superior: First, where the master is held liable for the nonfeasance or negligent failure of the servant to perform a duty; second, where the master is held liable for the misfeasance or negligent performance of a duty by the servant.[43] In the first class of cases the servant is not liable to third parties, though the master is, under the rule of respondeat superior;[44] in the second class, both are liable to third parties.[45] In either case the fire when moving the engine, sparks being thrown out, and plaintiff's property was destroyed. Held B. was not liable, the men operating the engine being A.'s employes. McComb v. Baskerville [S. D.] 106 N. W. 300. Defendants requested the appointment of a special officer for their store, under New York City Charter, Laws 1897, p. 109, c. 378, § 308, and paid for his services, but he was subject to orders from the chief of police, and had all the powers and duties of a regular policeman. Defendants were not liable for an arrest made by him in which they did not personally participate. Samuel v. Wanamaker, 107 App. Div. 443, 95 N. Y. S. 270. Contract between drivers of cabs, owned by railroad company, and company, construed, and held driver was bailee and not servant of company and latter was not liable for an injury caused by driver's negligence. McColligan v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 214 Pa. 229, 63 A. 792.

36. Railroad company not liable for trespass committed by independent contractor during construction of road. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Gillihan, 77 Ark. 551, 92 S. W. 793. An independent contractor is one who prosecutes work according to his own methods, being responsible to his employer only as to the result. Id. Where complaint charged negligence of defendant's agent and proof showed negligent person to be independent contractor employed to do the work, it was proper to direct a verdict for defendant. Huntt v. McNamee [C. C. A.] 141 F. 293.

37. Evidence insufficient to prove defendant's responsibility for negligent act of a servant of a truck company employed by defendant as an independent contractor. Cohen v. Western Elec. Co., 50 Misc. 660, 99 N. Y. S. 525. Defendant's locomotive, and a crew employed by defendant, were permanently engaged in switching in the yards of a third person and under the direction and control of the third person's foreman. Held, defendant was not liable for an injury caused by the negligence of the crew while so engaged. Sexton v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 99 N. Y. S. 1111.

38. Houseman v. Philadelphia Transp. & L. Co., 141 F. 385. Where A. employed, paid and had right to discharge a servant, and hired him to B. to unload poles, negligence of the servant while unloading poles under B.'s direction and control was held not chargeable to A. Id.

39. Parks v. Northwestern University, 121 Ill. App. 512. The trustees of a charitable institution, the advantages of which are free, and the trustees of which serve without any compensation, having exercised ordinary care in the selection of servants and agents are not liable for their negligence. No liability for injuries to servant caused by negligence of another servant. Farrigan v. Pevear [Mass.] 78 N. E. 855.

40. See 6 C. L. 605.

41. Action for illegal arrest. East v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 364.

42. See 6 C. L. 605.

43. McGinnis v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 590.

44. McGinnis v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 590. If a servant neglects a duty owed by the master to third persons, the remedy is against the master alone (Scheller v. Silbermintz, 50 Misc. 175, 98 N. Y. S. 230), unless the servant is guilty of actual misfeasance or tort he cannot be held liable with the master. Applied where husband was agent or manager for his wife. Husband held not liable where roof over sidewalk fell injuring plaintiff. Scheller v. Silbermintz, 50 Misc. 175, 98 N. Y. S. 230.

45. The servant because he actually does the wrongful act; the master under the doctrine of respondeat superior. McGinnis v. Chicago, etc. R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 590. Failure of the servant to exercise ordinary care in the performance of his duties renders him liable to a third person for injuries proximately caused thereby. Southern R. Co. v. Reynolds, 126 Ga. 657, 55 S. E. 1039. For a tort of the servant committed within the scope of his employment, a joint action may be maintained against master and servant. New Ellerslie Fishing Club v. Stewart, 29 Ky. L. R. 414, 93 S. W. 598. Master and servant are jointly liable for the willful tort of the servant committed in the scope of his employment while in the master's service. Able v. Southern R. Co., 73 S. C. 173, 52 S. E.

master has recourse upon the servant as for a breach of duty to the master.[46] In a joint action against master and servant, where the master is sought to be held liable solely under the doctrine of respondeat superior, the negligence alleged being that of the servant alone, a finding that the servant was free from negligence relieves the master also from liability.[47]

(§ 4) B. Procedure.[48]—The complaint must show that the person charged with negligence or wrongdoing was defendant's servant,[49] and that he was acting within the scope of his employment at the time,[50] and the burden rests upon plaintiff to prove these facts,[51] as well as the negligence or wrongful act alleged.[52] The questions of negligence,[53] whether the relation of master and servant existed be-

962. Where, in an office occupied by a railroad company, a telegraph company and an express compahy, their joint agent is provided by them with a revolver for the protection of the property entrusted to his care, and while thus armed and acting in the line of duty shoots at and wounds one entering the building on lawful business, his mistake of judgment must be charged against his employers, and an action for damages on account of the injury suffered will lie against the companies and agent jointly. Blakely v. Greer, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 169. For an injury caused by negligence of an employe acting within the scope of his employment, the employer and employe may be sued jointly, or each may be sued separately. Whalen v. Pennsylvania R. Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 993. Where a complaint against a carrier and its employe alleged that "defendants" failed to use reasonable care, etc., and so negligently operated a boat that it collided with a pier, injuring plaintiff, states a cause of action against defendants jointly, though it also alleges that the boat was under the control of the employe. Id.

Contra: In Washington a master and servant may be sued jointly for injuries alleged to have been caused by their negligence whether the negligence of the servant is alleged to be nonfeasance or misfeasance. Thomas v. Great Northern R. Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 83. The wrongful death of a servant, due to the misfeasance of the superintendent under whom he was employed, does not afford ground for a joint action against the superintendent and the master, but may be made the basis of an action against the superintendent for his negligent act or against the master under the doctrine of respondeat superior, and, where the action has been brought against both jointly, the plaintiff may be required to elect against which one the cause shall proceed. French v. Central Const. Co., 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 425.

46. McGinnis v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 590.

47. Verdict against master is inconsistent with finding for servant. McGinnis v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 590. Judgment releasing agents from liability for negligence held to bar subsequent suit against principal on the ground of respondeat superior. Hayes v. Chicago Tel. Co., 218 Ill. 414, 75 N. E. 1003.

48. See 6 C. L. 606.

49. Complaint which charged that a certain person employed by defendants to break up machinery, wrongfully and carelessly used dynamite, and that defendants knew, and connived in this method and directed the work, did not show that the person employed was an independent contractor. Falender v. Blackwell [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 393.

50. Count for injury to third person held insufficient for not alleging that defendant's servants were acting within the scope of their employment. Daniels v. Carney [Ala.] 42 So. 452.

51. Plaintiff alleged an assault by a servant who was a watchman of fishing club grounds, while acting in the line of his employment, and that he (plaintiff) was on the premises under a privilege granted by the owner. The owner denied the granting of the privilege and also that watchman committed the assault while acting within the scope of his duties. The burden of proof was on plaintiff. New Ellerslie Fishing Club v. Stewart, 29 Ky. L. R. 414, 93 S. W. 598. Plaintiff was injured by some object dropping down upon him from upper floors of a building in course of construction, but failed to sustain the burden which was upon him of showing that the object was dropped by defendant's servants. Halsch v. J. B. & J. M. Cornell Co., 49 Misc. 525, 97 N. Y. S. 983.

Contra: Where injuries to lands were caused in course of construction of railroad, the burden was on the company to show that wrongful acts were done by an independent contractor. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Davenport [Ark.] 96 S. W. 994.

52. Where defendant's engineer, in charge of steam roller, caused the engine to whistle and puff after noticing that plaintiff's horse was frightened and failed to take measures to prevent a runaway, he was guilty of negligence. Phelan v. Granite Bituminous Pav. Co., 115 Mo. App. 423, 91 S. W. 440. Plaintiff and defendant's driver were engaged in unloading a truck, and the load fell on plaintiff as the driver unfastened a rope which held it. No negligence on the part of the driver was shown. Rogers v. Jones, 100 N. Y. S. 1013. Intoxication of servant driving a beer wagon may be considered on the issue of his negligence in driving and loading the wagon. Cooke Brew. Co. v. Ryan, 223 Ill. 382, 79 N. E. 132. Competent mechanic, sent to install machinery sold, by an error of judgment, caused the machine to break, thereby causing damage. No negligence being proved, the seller was not liable. Lombard Water-Wheel Governor Co. v. Great Northern Paper Co., 101 Me. 114, 63 A. 555.

53. In action for injuries caused by being struck by runaway team, driven by defendant's servant, issues of negligence and proximate cause held to have been properly submitted to the jury. Warren v. Porter, 144 Mich. 699, 13 Det. Leg. N. 406, 108 N. W. 435. Where plaintiff was injured by a beer keg tween defendant and the person charged with wrongdoing,[54] and whether the latter, if a servant of defendant, was acting within the scope of his employment,[55] are questions of fact to be submitted to the jury, unless the evidence admits of but one reasonable conclusion.

§ 5. Civil liability for interference with relation by third person.[56]—It is the right of every man to engage in such lawful business or occupation as he may choose free from hindrance or obstruction by his fellow men save such as may result from the exercise of equal or superior rights on their part.[57] Hence, whoever intentionally and without legal justification or excuse procures an employer to discharge his employe, to the damage of the latter, is liable to an action for damages at the suit of the employe,[58] and this, although there was no binding contract of employment.[59] Thus, one who deprives a workman of his employment by threatening and intimidating his employer is liable to the workman in damages in a civil action.[60] Where a conspiracy to deprive the workman of his employment is alleged, the gist of the action is not the conspiracy, but the wrongful act, in procuring the plaintiff's discharge and the injury thereby caused.[61] In such action a verdict against joint defendants is sustained by evidence that defendants were joint tort feasors in procuring plaintiff's discharge.[62] Proof that one of defendants procured plaintiff's discharge warrants a verdict against that one alone where the act is made unlawful by statute.[63] Malice may be implied by law from the unlawful act.[64] Punitive damages are recoverable in such action in a proper case.[65]

One who maliciously entices a servant in actual service of a master to desert and quit his service is liable to an action for damages.[66] Such action lies though which fell from a wagon driven by defendant's servant, whether the servant was driving in a negligent manner, and had loaded the wagon improperly, was for the jury. Cooke Brew. Co. v. Ryan, 223 Ill. 382, 79 N. E. 132.

54. Instruction held proper as submitting to jury question whether person accused of wrongful act was defendant's servant at the time. Foote v. Kelley, 126 Ga. 799, 55 S. E. 1045. Whether person employed to break up old machinery, who used dynamite and caused death of a person, was a servant of defendants or an independent contractor. Falender v. Blackwell [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 393.

55. Whether brakeman who kicked a piece of ice from a platform of a caboose on a crossing, injuring a boy standing there, was acting within the scope of his employment. Willis v. Maysville & B. S. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 178, 92 S. W. 604. Whether one who had a police commission from the state and was also employed by railway company as special officer was acting in the scope of his employment by the company when he shot plaintiff, who was stealing a ride on a train, held for jury. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Deck, 102 Md. 669, 62 A. 958. Whether employer was liable for act of watchman in shooting a trespasser on defendant employer's land held to depend on whether watchman was at the time acting within the scope of his employment, and this question was for the jury. Magar v. Hammond, 183 N. Y. 387, 76 N. E. 474. Where it appeared that plaintiff was assaulted by a servant of defendant who was on the master's premises after working hours, when plaintiff was trying to take a key to a closet from the defendant, whether the latter was acting within the scope of his authority to protect his master's property was for the jury. Collins v. Wise, 190 Mass. 206, 76 N. E. 657. Detective employed by railroad company was also public officer. He pursued a boy whom he saw jumping off a train out of the yards and there shot him. Whether he was acting in the scope of his employment by the company, or as public officer, held for jury. Sharp v. Erie R. Co., 184 N. Y. 100, 76 N. E. 923.

56. See 6 C. L. 606.

57. Brennan v. United Hatters of North America [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 165.

58. Action sustainable where union fined a member without justification and forced his employer to discharge him for not paying the fine. Brennan v. United Hatters of North America [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 165.

59. Brennan v. United Hatters of North America [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 165.

60, 61. Wyeman v. Deady [Conn.] 65 A. 129.

62. Held that labor union and its walking delegate were both liable where delegate's acts were known to and authorized by the union. Wyeman v. Deady [Conn.] 65 A. 129.

63. Gen. St. 1902, § 760. Wyeman v. Deady [Conn.] 65 A. 129.

64. There need be no other proof, even if malice is alleged. Wyeman v. Deady [Conn.] 65 A. 129.

65. Such damages recoverable against walking delegate and labor union where latter authorized or ratified former's unlawful acts. Wyeman v. Deady [Conn.] 65 A. 129.

66. Thacker Coal & Coke Co. v. Burke, 59 W. A. 253, 53 S. E. 161.

the contract is terminable at will by either party, if the relation of master and servant actually exists at the time.[67] That the act of interference was to advance the interests of the third party, is no defense.[68] A complaint alleging such a wrongful act should specify the servant who was enticed away.[69] A statute prohibiting any person or combination of persons from preventing others from working by force, or threats, or intimidation, but allowing the use of moral suasion or lawful argument to induce persons not to work does not render legal the malicious act of a person inducing an employe to break an existing contract of employment.[70]

Employes may organize for their own protection, may strike, and may persuade and induce others to join them by lawful means.[71] But they have no right to interfere with the relation existing between an employer and his lawful employes by unlawful means, such as bribery, intimidation, or coercion, of such employes,[72] and a molestation of the business of an employer by such unlawful means will be enjoined.[73]

§ 6. Crimes and penalties.[74]—Holdings under the Georgia [75] and Louisiana [76] acts making it illegal to procure an advancement on a contract for services, with in-

67. That no definite term of service has been fixed is immaterial. Thacker Coal & Coke Co. v. Burke, 59 W. Va. 253, 53 S. E. 161.

68, 69. Thacker Coal & Coke Co. v. Burke, 59 W. Va. 253, 53 S. E. 161.

70. Code 1899, p. 1053, § 14, construed. Thacker Coal & Coke Co. v. Burke, 59 W. Va. 253, 53 S. E. 161.

71, 72. Everett Waddey Co. v. Richmond Typographical Union No. 90, 105 Va. 188, 53 S. E. 273.

73. Evidence insufficient to prove charges of bribery or intimidation whereby employes were induced to join union and quit plaintiff's service. Everett Waddey Co. v. Richmond Typographical Union No. 90, 105 Va. 188, 53 S. E. 273.

74. See 6 C. L. 607.

75. Elements of offense denounced by Georgia Laws 1903, p. 90. To sustain a conviction under the statute it must appear that accused contracted to perform the labor or service himself, not merely to furnish and pay for the labor and that he has, without good or sufficient cause, failed and refused to carry out his contract. Johnson v. State, 125 Ga. 243, 54 S. E. 184. Loss by or damage to the person contracted with, and from whom money or other things of value are procured, is a necessary element in the offense. Millinder v. State, 124 Ga. 452, 52 S. E. 760. The gravamen of the offense is the fraudulent intent which exists at the time of the advance, not to perform the services contracted for. Sterling v. State, 126 Ga. 92, 54 S. E. 921. The presumption of a fraudulent intent arising from a failure to perform may be overcome by proof of another cause for the employe's nonperformance. As where evidence showed a disagreement as to the work to be done, threats of violence by the hirer, and a quitting by the employe in consequence thereof. Id. Where proof showed that accused was a minor and that he was forced to leave the employment because his father demanded it in order to have him perform services under a contract made by the father, the presumption of a fraudulent intent was rebutted, and a conviction was illegal. Howard v. State, 126 Ga. 538, 55 S. E. 239. Proof that a minor left the service of his employer in obedience to parental authority will suffice to rebut all presumption of fraudulent intent. Anthony v. State, 126 Ga. 632, 55 S. E. 479. But the bare fact that the minor told his employer that he had yielded to the command of a stranger to go to work for him can afford the minor no excuse, in the absence of a satisfactory showing that he did so under fear of duress, rather than voluntarily and with the purpose of defrauding his employer in accordance with a previously formed intent. Id. The statute has reference only to contracts creating the relation of hirer and person hired. Young v. State, 124 Ga. 788, 53 S. E. 101. It does not apply where persons occupy the relation of landlord and tenant, and a tenant is not subject to prosecution, though as part of a contract of rental he agrees to clear up certain land. Id. The statute relates to transactions where money or other things of value are procured with fraudulent intent, either contemporaneously or subsequently to the contract of service. Bridges v. State, 126 Ga. 91, 54 S. E. 916. Where an employe agrees to pay an existing debt due his employer by rendering to him further service, and fails to perform the service contracted for and omits to pay the debt, his failure does not constitute the offense defined by the act. Id.

The accusation: An accusation in a city court charging one with the offense of violating the provisions of Acts 1903, p. 90, which fails to set forth in substance a contract definite and certain as to its terms and duration, is subject to demurrer on the ground that "there are no facts showing any valid contract between prosecutor and defendant nor consideration nor duration of said contract." Pressley v. State, 124 Ga. 446, 52 S. E. 750. Contract alleged held too indefinite and uncertain to support a conviction. Taylor v. State, 124 Ga. 798, 53 S. E. 320. An accusation showing on its face that the hirer has sustained no loss or damage is demurrable. Braughner v. State, 125 Ga. 629, 54 S. E. 653. Accusation held fatally defective for failure to allege when tent to defraud, under the Mississippi [77] and Georgia [78] statutes making it a crime to entice away the servant of another, and under the Washington [79] act making violation of the eight-hour law a misdemeanor, are treated in the notes.

MASTERS AND COMMISSIONERS.[80]

§ 1. Office, Eligibility, Appointment, and Compensation (951).
§ 2. Powers and Duties in General, and Subjects of Reference (952).
§ 3. Proceedings on Reference and Hearing by Master (952).
§ 4. Report of Master, Exceptions and Objections (953).
§ 5. Powers of Court and Proceedings on Review (953).
§ 6. Re-reference (954).

§ 1. Office, eligibility, appointment, and compensation.[81]—When a cause is on the calendar subject to call at intervals during the trial of other causes and one opposing counsel is in court, an order of reference may be made on motion in open court without further notice.[82]

It is proper for the court to allow a master a reasonable fee for his services.[83] When it is claimed that the master retains a greater sum than is allowable under the reference, an application for an order requiring him to pay over the balance is properly continued until the costs are adjusted.[84] In New York a referee who services were to commence, or for what time they were to continue, or that the prosecutor contracted and agreed to pay any amount whatever to defendant for services to be rendered. Watson v. State, 124 Ga. 454, 52 S. E. 751. It is unnecessary to allege that the term of service had expired before the indictment was preferred. Millinder v. State, 124 Ga. 452, 52 S. E. 760.

Evidence and proof: The burden is upon the state to show that loss or damage was actually sustained by the hirer. Where it appears that advances were made, and that accused performed some services, and the value of the services does not appear, the burden of proof is not sustained. Abrams v. State, 126 Ga. 591, 55 S. E. 497. Proof held not to show contract alleged in accusation; variance fatal. Taylor v. State, 124 Ga. 798, 53 S. E. 320. Proof of a failure to perform services contracted for, and failure to return the money or other things of value advanced, even during the term of service contracted for, is sufficient to establish prima facie the intent to defraud. Millinder v. State, 124 Ga. 452, 52 S. E. 760. An allegation that defendant obtained from prosecutor an advance of a sum of money is not sustained by proof that prosecutor paid to a third person the amount of defendant's debt to such third person, secured by mortgage, took a transfer of the mortgage, and subsequently, as transferee, foreclosed the same. Abrams v. State, 126 Ga. 591, 55 S. E. 497.

70. A Louisiana statute makes violation of a contract of labor, upon the faith of which money or goods have been advanced a criminal offense, punishable by fine or imprisonment. One who obtains an advance on representing that he will stay and work and immediately leaves, violates act No. 50, p. 71, of 1892. State v. Murray, 116 La. 655, 40 So. 930. The statute is held not to contravene the Federal act abolishing peonage. [Rev. St. U. S. §§ 1990, 5526], (State v. Murray, 116 La. 655, 40 So. 930), nor the constitutional provisions against involuntary servitude, or the deprivation of life, liberty, or property, or the denying of equal protection of laws. Id.

77. Evidence held sufficient to show that defendant had knowingly enticed away a laborer under contract, contrary to Laws 1900, p. 140, c. 102. Gregory v. State [Miss.] 42 So. 168.

78. Pen. Code 1895, § 122, makes it a crime to entice away a servant of another, with knowledge of his contract with such other. An accusation alleging that the enticing was after the employe "had actually entered the service of his employer" was held sufficient, as against a motion in arrest of judgment, and the objection that it did not show a contract of hiring, nor whether it was verbal or written. Hudgins v. State, 126 Ga. 639, 55 S. E. 492.

79. Complaint before a justice held sufficient to charge a violation of Sess. Laws 1899, p. 163, c. 101, making it a misdemeanor for a contractor employed by the state or any subdivision thereof to compel employes to work more than eight hours a day. State v. Davis [Wash.] 86 P. 201.

80. This article includes all matters relating to masters in chancery and court commissioners. Analogous matter may be found in the titles Reference, 6 C. L. 1272; Restoring Instruments and Records (examiners of title under burnt record acts), 6 C. L. 1310; Notice and Record of Title (referees under Torrens Act), 6 C. L. 814; and Partition, 6 C. L. 897. See, also, Arbitration and Award, 7 C. L. 254; and Depositions, 7 C. L. 1129.

For a full discussion of the law and practice on this subject, see Fletcher, Eq. Pl. & Pr. §§ 582-614.

81. See 6 C. L. 607.

82. Where cause was on calendar No. 2 subject to call during trial of causes on Calendar No. 1. Brookshire v. Farmers' Alliance Exch., 71 S. C. 451, 51 S. E. 442.

83. $75 properly allowed under R. S. c. 53, § 20, authorizing such compensation as court may deem just. Touhy v. McCagg, 121 Ill. App. 93.

makes a sale in partition is entitled to a fee to be computed on the price the property brings.[85]

In order that one may be held liable as court commissioner, he must have qualified and acted as such.[86] Special masters, commissioners and receivers are not "officers" subject to prosecution for embezzlement in Ohio.[87]

§ 2. Powers and duties in general, and subjects of reference.[88]—In cases of a complicated character involving matters of accounts,[89] justice cannot well be done without a reference and the chancellor ought to refer the subject to a master.[90] This should be done in other cases also where such procedure would be most conducive to justice.[91] The making of an order of reference is ordinarily discretionary with the court, however,[92] and hence is not appealable unless it is assailed on jurisdictional grounds or operates to deny a mode of trial to which a litigant is entitled by law.[93] An action at law in the United States circuit court falls under the last exception, the trial judge having no power even by consent of the parties to order a trial before a special master authorized to hear and determine the issues of fact and report his findings to the court.[94] The state practice will not be followed in such cases under the conformity act.[95] In suits against infants the proper practice is to refer the cause to a master even though the guardian ad litem admits the allegations of the bill.[96]

§ 3. Proceedings on reference and hearing by master.[97]—All parties in interest must have notice of proceedings before the master.[98] Testimony taken before a former master is not admissible against persons not parties in the former proceedings.[99] If a commissioner is clothed with full authority to determine all objections to testimony sought to be introduced before him, the court of reference will not interfere in such matters prior to the coming in of his report.[1] Ordinarily, a witness whose testimony is being taken orally before an examiner in a Federal

84. Where master was ordered to sell land and pay proceeds less expenses to an executrix. Lockwood v. Lockwood, 73 S. C. 18, 52 S. E. 735.

85. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 3297, 3307. Duffy v. Muller, 102 N. Y. S. 296.

86. Where two persons were appointed commissioners to sell land but only one gave bond and acted, the fact that the other received a part of the proceeds did not render him liable as commissioner. Pope v. Prince's Adm'r, 105 Va. 209, 52 S. E. 1009.

87. State v. Fabin, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 288.

88. See 6 C. L. 609.

89. After a decree for complainants in a suit to establish a trust in lands in favor of several persons, the cause should be referred to a master to take an account of rents and profits pursuant to the averments and prayer of the bill. Stahl v. Stahl, 220 Ill. 188, 77 N. E. 67.

90. Fletcher, Eq. Pl. & Pr. § 583.

91. Motion to set aside service in a Federal court on ground that defendant is an inhabitant of another district will not be determined alone on defendant's affidavit where intention is involved, nor on plea or answer where defendant is under arrest; but will be referred to a master who will take testimony subject to the right of cross-examination. Canadian Pac. R. Co. v. Wenham, 146 F. 206.

92. Brookshire v. Farmers' Alliance Exch., 71 S. C. 451, 51 S. E. 442. Allowance or disallowance of motion, after a second hearing for appointment of a commissioner to report the evidence taken at such hearing held discretionary with trial judge. Manning v. Mulrey [Mass.] 78 N. E. 551.

93. Order of reference calling in creditors to prove claims against a corporation held not of this character. Brookshire v. Farmers' Alliance Exch., 71 S. C. 451, 51 S. E. 442. An order of reference in an equity case, though made without special notice on call of the calendar, is within the discretion of the judge and not appealable. Lockwood v. Lockwood, 73 S. C. 198, 53 S. E. 87.

94. Issues of fact must be tried by jury or the court, except in equity, admiralty or bankruptcy. Swift & Co. v. Jones [C. C. A.] 145 F. 489. Rev. St. §§ 648, 700 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 525, 570).

95. Swift & Co. v. Jones [C. C. A.] 145 F. 489.

96. Mote v. Morton [Fla.] 41 So. 607.

97. See 6 C. L. 609.

98. Infant defendants represented by guardian ad litem should have had notice in suit to foreclose mortgages. Mote v. Morton [Fla.] 41 So. 607.

99. Not admissable against minors who were newly made parties before second master. Mote v. Morton [Fla.] 41 So. 607.

1. Will not be determined on application to commissioner, especially where he acts within his authority. Original proceeding in supreme court. State v. Standard Oil Co., 194 Mo., 124, 91 S. W. 1062.

court cannot refuse to answer on the ground that the evidence called for is immaterial or irrelevant.[2] The master is not bound to re-open a cause for evidence which is merely cumulative and not conclusive.[3]

§ 4. Report of master, exceptions and objections.[4]—While it is better practice for the master to report all the facts upon which his ultimate findings are based, it is not legal error for him to omit to do so even though the findings be conclusions resulting from mixed questions of law and fact.[5] A report of the evidence has been held not necessary if not called for by the rule submitting the cause,[6] but the contrary has also been held.[7] Unless requested to do so a master is not bound to state his decisions in admitting or rejecting evidence but may treat the objection as waived.[8] No proper objections or exceptions being made to the report, it is conclusive as to all matters of fact.[9] Exceptions to the reports of masters in chancery are in the nature of special demurrers and errors must be specifically pointed out,[10] and where an objection is based upon particular evidence, it should refer to the place in the record where such evidence may be found.[11] Formal exceptions may, however, be dispensed with if the court makes an order directing that objections filed with the master shall stand as exceptions before the court.[12] A report of a master is not subject to exceptions where it simply follows the decree directing the reference and is based on findings contained in that decree.[13] The sufficiency of a notice by the master of the time and place for filing and hearing objections to the report is not affected by the fact that a party has no attorney and does not know that the filing of objections is necessary.[14]

§ 5. Powers of court and proceedings on review.[15]—The master's findings, while prima facie correct, are only advisory to the chancellor and should be disregarded by him when found to be erroneous.[16] Where a master is required to report merely the proofs without his conclusions, either party may offer further evidence

2. Examination under equity rule 67. New England Phonograph Co. v. National Phonograph Co., 148 F. 324. It is not the duty of an auxiliary court or judge who takes testimony in a suit pending in the court of another district to determine the competency, materiality or relevancy of the evidence which one of the parties seeks to elicit. Dowaglac Mfg. Co. v. Lochren [C. C. A.] 143 F. 211. The court or judge should compel the production of the evidence although it deems it incompetent, irrelevant, or immaterial, unless the witness or the evidence is privileged, or it clearly and affirmatively appears that the evidence cannot be competent, material, or relevant, and that it would be an abuse of process to compel its production. Id. This rule prevails in the taking of testimony before a commissioner or examiner under rules 67, 68, in equity, before a master empowered to determine the admissibility of evidence under rules 74, 77, 78, 79 and 82 in equity, and in the taking of evidence in actions at law under §§ 863, 868 and 869. Rev. St. (1 U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 661, 664, 665 Id.).

3. Matthews v. Whitethorn, 220 Ill. 36, 77 N. E. 89.

4. See 6 C. L. 609.

5. Allen's Adm'rs v. Allen's Adm'rs [Vt.] 64 A. 1110.

6. Gurley v. Reed, 190 Mass. 509, 77 N. E. 642.

7. The report should show the basis of the master's findings of fact (Mote v. Morton [Fla.] 41 So. 607), and the evidence adduced at the hearing should be taken down and filed with the report (Id.).

8. U. S. 939. Allen's Adm'rs v. Allen's Adm'rs [Vt.] 64 A. 1110. Where objections were properly considered as waived, they could not be considered on appeal. Id.

9. General Fire Extinguisher v. Lamar [C. C. A.] 141 F. 353; Fordyce v. Omaha, etc., R. Co., 145 F. 544; Lies v. Klaner, 121 Ill. App. 332; Matthews v. Whitethorn, 220 Ill. 36, 77 N. E. 89. Rule that improper decree will be reversed, though no exceptions to the master's report is filed, applies only to cases where findings though true do not sustain the decree. Matthews v. Whitethorn, 220 Ill. 36, 77 N. E. 89.

10. Otherwise parts not excepted to will be taken as admitted. General Fire Extinguisher Co. v. Lamar [C. C. A.] 141 F. 353; First Nat. Bank v. Trigg Co. [Va.] 56 S. E. 158; Fordyce v. Omaha, etc., R. Co., 145 F. 544.

11. Fordyce v. Omaha, etc., R. Co., 145 F. 544.

12. Appeal could be considered. Ryan v. Desmond, 118 Ill. App. 186.

13. Error if any is in original decree. Young v. Rose [Ark.] 98 S. W. 370.

14. Matthews v. Whitethorn, 220 Ill. 36, 77 N. E. 89.

15. See 6 C. L. 610.

16. Master's findings held sustained by greater weight of evidence and should not have been disturbed by the court. Thomas v. Ellis, 121 Ill. App. 612.

before the chancellor,[17] but this should be done in apt time or some reason should be given for any delay.[18] Where there is evidence to sustain them, a master's findings of fact will not be reviewed on appeal unless fraud or corruption is shown,[19] and a decree based on a master's report will not be reviewed where no exceptions appear to have been filed to the report, though the decree recites that exceptions were filed,[20] but where the decree recites that the case was heard upon exceptions to the report, the cause will be treated as if exceptions had been filed, although such filing does not distinctly appear from the record.[21]

§ 6. Re-reference.[22]—The recommittal of a master's report is within the discretion of the chancellor [23] and will not be reviewed unless abuse of discretion appears.[24] A motion for a re-reference on the ground of newly-discovered evidence must set out the character of such evidence.[25]

MASTERS OF VESSELS, see latest topical index.

MECHANICS' LIENS.

§ 1. Nature of Lien and Right to it in General (954).
§ 2. Services, Materials and Claims for Which Liens May Be Had (955).
§ 3. Properties and Estates Therein Which May Be Subjected to the Lien (957).
§ 4. The Contract Supporting the Lien and the Privity of the Land-Owner Thereto (958).
A. In General (958).
B. Contracts by Vendors, Purchasers, Lessors, and Lessees (961).
C. Subcontractors and Materialmen (961).
§ 5. Acts and Proceedings Necessary to Acquire Lien (961).
A. Notice and Demand, Statement to Acquire Lien (961).
B. Filing and Recording Claim and Statement Thereof (964).
§ 6. Amount of Lien and Priority Thereof (965).
§ 7. Assignment or Transfer of Lien (966).
§ 8. Waiver, Loss, or Forfeiture of Lien, or Right to Acquire it (966).
§ 9. Discharge and Satisfaction (967).
§ 10. Remedies and Procedure to Enforce Lien (968).
A. Remedies (968).
B. Parties (969).
C. Pleading, Practice and Evidence (969).
D. Judgments, Costs, and Attorney's Fees (971).
§ 11. Indemnification Against Liens (972).

§ 1. Nature of lien and right to it in general.[26]—The right to a mechanic's lien is only statutory and exists only in the instances prescribed by the statute,[27] and cannot be acquired unless statutory requirements are complied with.[28] But

17,.18. Griswold v. Griswold, 111 Ill. App. 269.

19. Allen's Adm'rs v. Allen's Adm'rs [Vt.] 64 A. 1110.

20. Beck v. Stoddard, 118 Ill. App. 370.

21. Croissant v. Beers, 118 Ill. App. 502.

22. See 6 C. L. 611.

23. Allen's Adm'rs v. Allen's Adm'rs [Vt.] 64 A. 1110.

24. Allen's Adm'rs v. Allen's Adm'rs [Vt.] 64 A. 1110. A motion to recommit a master's report is addressed to the discretion of the court, whose action will not be disturbed in the absence of abuse. Gurley v. Reed, 190 Mass. 509, 77 N. E. 642.

25. Matthews v. Whitethorn, 220 Ill. 36, 17 N. E. 89.

26. See 6 C. L. 611.

27. Under a statute providing that liens shall exist in favor of any person who shall furnish material, upon the building and land upon which it stands, it exists only upon such property in favor of one who furnishes material. Manatee Light & Traction Co. v. Tampa Plumbing & Supply Co. [Fla.] 42 So. 703. A decree finding that only a portion of the material was used in the building, but fixing a lien for the whole amount, is erroneous. Id. A bank to which a municipal contract assigns an amount due him from the city may not file a lien on such fund under laws N. Y. 1897, p. 514, c. 418, providing for a lien on such fund to laborers and material-men. In re Cramond, 145 F. 966. Const. art. 16, § 37, and Sayle's Rev. Clv. St., art. 3294, providing for mechanic's liens, does not give a lien on a railroad for material used in its construction or repair. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Mexican Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 212. Under Kirby's Dig. § 4970, providing for a lien where a material-man complies with the provisions of the act, such compliance establishes a prima facie right to the lien, and the owner has the burden to show the contrary. Long v. Abeles & Co., 77 Ark. 156, 93 S. W. 67. Under Code 1897, § 3102, providing that subcontractors shall have a claim against any public corporation constructing the building which shall have priority in the order in which they are filed, a subcontractor acquires no lien on the money due on the building, though to the extent he may acquire priority in the distribution of his claim is in the nature of a lien. Thompson v. Stephens [Iowa] 107 N. W. 1095.

28. Eccles Lumber Co. v. Martin [Utah] 87 P. 713. Evidence insufficient to show a right to a lien upon a particular building, where the statute requires certain things to be done to acquire the lien, it must be substantially complied with.[29] But where it requires certain things to be done in case certain conditions exist, then before the statute is operative it must appear that the conditions are in fact present.[30] Statutes allowing mechanics' liens are in derogation of the common law and are to be strictly construed,[31] and should not be extended to cases not falling within the language of the statute though within its reason.[32] The entire act relative to mechanics' liens must be construed in connection with any section of it.[33] A lien law repealing all former inconsistent ones but saving "unaffected" rights under existing laws leaves the former law in force as to liens having their inception in work already begun.[34] Mechanics' lien laws are generally held constitutional.[35] The absence of intention at the time material is furnished to assert a lien, does not preclude enforcement of a lien afterwards.[36] The lien is to be distinguished from the lien of one in possession of personal property for work and labor expended upon it[37] or other liens existing by virtue of equitable[38] or common-law rights.[39] In some states the fund due a public contractor is subject to a lien for labor and materials furnished him.[40]

§ 2. Services, materials and claims for which liens may be had.[41]—As a general rule a lien may be had for services and materials furnished[42] or delivered on Central Planing Mill & Lumber Co. v. Betz, 29 Ky. L. R. 252, 92 S. W. 591. Where a contract provides that the first payment shall be made beyond a year from completion of the work, the contractors are not entitled to a lien under Hurd's Rev. St. 1891, c. 82. Provost v. Shirk, 223 Ill. 468, 79 N. E. 178.

29. Eccles Lumber Co. v. Martin [Utah] 87 P. 713. It is essential that all statutory requirements be substantially complied with. United States Blowpipe Co. v. Spencer [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 345.

30. Eccles Lumber Co. v. Martin [Utah] 87 P. 713.

31. Eisendrath Co. v. Gebhardt, 222 Ill. 113, 78 N. E. 22. Lien Laws, Laws 1897, p. 526, c. 418, § 30, providing for a lien for materials furnished or for work done in building or equipping a vessel, is in derogation of the common law and is to be strictly construed. In re Froment, 110 App. Div. 72, 96 N. Y. S. 1061.

32. Provost v. Shirk, 223 Ill. 468, 79 N. E. 178.

33. Eccles Lumber Co. v. Martin [Utah] 87 P. 713. Rev. St. 1898, tit. 39, c. 1, creating mechanic's liens and providing the method by which they may be secured and enforced, must be construed on the theory that some of the provisions are for the benefit of the owners and some for the claimants. Id.

34. Act June 4, 1901, P. L. 431; Orr v. Rogers, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 175.

35. The Mechanic's Lien Law of Georgia is constitutional and does not violate the due process clause or the provision which guarantees impartial and complete protection of property. Prince v. Neal-Millard Co., 124 Ga. 884, 53 S. E. 761.

36. Knudson-Jacob Co. v. Brandt [Wash.] 87 P. 43. In such case he must clearly show what materials were used in the building and the amount due therefor. Id.

37. Civ. Code, §§ 3051, 3052, providing for a lien to one who repairs personal property, gives the lien to one who has possession as a bailee, and not to one who has possession as a servant. Michaelson v. Fish, 1 Cal. App. 116, 81 P. 661.

38. Where a parent places his child in possession of land under promise to deed it to her and she improves it, but the deed is not forthcoming, the child is entitled to a lien for the value of the improvements. Burk's Adm'r v. Lane Lumber Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 545, 89 S. W. 686.

39. Where a municipal contractor who subsequently became bankrupt assigned amounts due him under his contract to material-men, held that though they filed their lien as authorized by Laws N. Y. 1897, p. 517, c. 418, § 5, they were entitled to liens on the fund by virtue of their assignment. In re Cramond, 145 F. 966.

40. A county which lets a contract for the construction of a court house is a "municipality" within 2 Gen. St. p. 2078, providing for a lien to a person who furnishes labor or material for any public improvement under contract with a city, town, or other "municipality," on the moneys due under the contract. Herman v. Board of Chosen Freeholders [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 742.

See, also, Public Works and Improvements, 6 C. L. 1143.

41. See 6 C. L. 612.

42. Where material required for the erection of a building is specially prepared for it at the shop of the contractor with the consent of the owner the material deemed to have been furnished on the premises. Berger v. Turnblad [Minn.] 107 N. W. 543. Evidence sufficient to show that materials were furnished and actually used in the construction of a building so as to give a lien thereon under Ball. Ann. Code and St. § 5900. Seattle Lumber Co. v. Sweeney [Wash.] 85 P. 677. Under Pierce's Code, § 6210, a materialman's lien cannot be established where it does not appear that the materials were used in the building or delivered on the premises on which the lien is claimed. Fuller & Co. v. Ryan [Wash.] 87 P. 485.

the premises[43] under contract with the owner or his authorized agent,[44] or with his consent,[45] and actually used in the particular building.[46] In Pennsylvania, any material for the construction of some integral and essential part of a "mill" will support a lien.[47] The labor done or material furnished must be within the contemplation of the statute under which the lien is asserted.[48] Where materials furnished were not all used on the building but a partial payment has been made, the

43. Evidence insufficient to show actual delivery of the materials for use in the building. Knudson-Jacob Co. v. Brandt [Wash.] 87 P. 43.

44. See post, § 4. Held a question for the jury as to whether certain screens were furnished under the original contract or under an independent contract. Fish Co. v. Young, 127 Wis. 149, 106 N. W. 795.

45. Though it is stipulated that a claimant did no work personally within the statutory period, it is competent to show that he had furnished labor, with the consent of the owner, within such period. Wera v. Bowerman, 191 Mass. 458, 78 N. E. 102. Where a contract between an owner and a contractor impliedly authorizes the contractor to employ sub-contractors, work performed by such sub-contractor is with the consent of the owner within the mechanic's lien statute. McCormack v. Butland, 191 Mass. 424, 77 N. E. 761. Under Pub. St. c. 191, § 1, providing for a lien where labor is performed or furnished with the consent of the owner, it is not necessary that work should have been performed personally by the claimant, it is sufficient if it is performed by his employes. Wera v. Bowerman, 191 Mass. 458, 78 N. E. 102.

46. Evidence insufficient to show what amount if any should be charged against the building. Knudson-Jacob Co. v. Brandt [Wash.] 87 P. 43. Under Laws 1897, p. 526, c. 418, § 30, which gives a lien for work done or materials furnished in connection with building vessels, one who furnishes material is not entitled to a lien unless the material actually went into the vessel. In re Froment, 110 App. Div. 72, 96 N. Y. S. 1061. A lien cannot be enforced for materials not used in the building. North v. Globe Fence Co., 144 Mich. 557, 13 Det. Leg. N. 305, 108 N. W. 285. A lien allowable only for materials "actually used" will not cover such as, though furnished, were not used in the building. Bricks sold for building and resold without notice to seller. Wardlaw v. Troy Oil Mill, 74 S. C. 368, 54 S. E. 658.

47. Bricks for a boiler setting in an ice factory. Supplementary act of April 21, 1856 (P. L. 496). Kountz Bros. Co. v. Consolidated Ice Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 266.

48. Mechanics' liens under the West Virginia Statute considered and adjudicated. In re Hobbs & Co., 145 F. 211.

Held entitled to a lien: Hose and racks held to constitute fixtures for which a lien might be had. Crane Co. v. Epworth Hotel Construction & Real Estate Co. [Mo. App.] 98 Ill. 795. A lien may include an item for a drain pipe from the house to the sewer in the street. It is a part of the house. O'Neil v. Taylor, 59 W. Va. 370, 53 S. E. 471. The price of a coal house and sample room constructed as appurtenant to the building may be included. Id. Walks and fences may be included. Id. Under Revisal 1905, § 2016, one who erects gutters, spouts, and outlets under an indivisible contract for labor and materials is entitled to a lien for the whole amount due. Isler v. Dixon, 140 N. C. 529, 53 S. E. 348. The drilling and casing of a well is an improvement for which a lien may be had within Code Civ. Proc. § 696. Rolewitch v. Harrington [S. D.] 107 N. W. 207. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 3314, giving a lien for materials or labor furnished in the repair or construction of a building or appurtenance, window and door screens made for and fitted into a building, are an appurtenance and subject of a lien, though detachable without injury. Fish Co. v. Young, 127 Wis. 149, 106 N. W. 795. A lien may be had for materials for a heating plant furnished as part of the building. Siegmund v. Kellogg-Mackey-Cameron Co. [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 1096. Act June 15, 1897 (P. L. 155), extending the mechanic's lien privilege to cover a debt for gas fixtures, is not retroactive and does not give lien for fixtures contracted for but not delivered until after the law took effect. Horn & Brannen Mfg. Co. v. Steelman [Pa.] 64 A. 409, rvg. 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 544. Subcontractors who furnish an apparatus for opening and closing windows and make a lump charge for the apparatus installed are entitled to a lien by stop notice under Mechanics' Lien Law (P. L. 1898, p. 538). McNab & Harlin Mfg. Co. v. Paterson Bldg. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 709.

Held not entitled to a lien: The simple preparation of plans and specifications for a building gives no lien under the laws of New York. Thompson-Starrett Co. v. Brooklyn Heights Realty Co., 111 App. Div. 358, 98 N. Y. S. 128. An architect is not entitled to a lien for services in preparing plans and specifications for a contemplated building upon the building actually constructed on a different plan after abandonment of the plans drawn. Buckingham v. Flummerfelt [N. D.] 106 N. W. 403. Services rendered in surveying and marking the site for a building, and drawing a contract for the construction of the building are not labor for which a lien may be claimed. Id. Where a statute gives no lien to an architect for preparing plans and specifications, he has no lien under an entire contract including such work and the supervising of the work of construction. Libbey v. Tidden [Mass.] 78 N. E. 313. An independent contractor engaged to fix a cellar is not a laborer within Mechanics' Lien Law, § 3 (P. L. 1898, p. 538), giving laborers a lien. McNab & Harlin Mfg. Co. v. Peterson Bldg. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 709. A mill superintendent is not a laborer within the North Carolina statute. Moore v. American Industrial Co., 138 N. C. 304, 50 S. E. 687, citing many cases defining the word "laborer."

Coal, oil, and tools are not materials within Sayles' Rev. Civ. St. art. 3294, giving a material-man may, in the absence of direction how to apply it, apply it to such items as will not support a lien, and equity will do the same for him.[49]

§ 3. Properties and estates therein which may be subjected to the lien.[50]—As a general rule the lien attaches to the improvement and the parcel of land on which it stands [51] against all who made or authorized or assented to the making of the contract,[52] but under some circumstances it attaches only to the improvement.[53] It is generally provided that only the land necessary to the beneficial use of the improvement is subject to the lien,[54] but the owner may be precluded from objecting that more land than was necessary was subjected.[55] Where an improvement is made by a lessee, the estate of the lessor is not subject to the lien,[56] and this is so though the lease contains an option to purchase,[57] but the estate of a lessor may be subjected to the lien if the improvement becomes a part of the realty,[58] especially in a long term lease,[59] and this rule is not affected by an agreement between lessor and lessee that the improvement might be removed.[60] The right to a lien may be pre-lien for materials furnished for the construction of a railroad. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. U. S. & Mexican Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 212. One who furnishes iron and solder to a manufacturer which is made into guttering and spouting and delivered to the contractor is not a materialman. Berger Mfg. Co. v. Lloyd [Mo. App.] 91 S. W. 468. One who fails to remove ladders and other appliances may not enforce a lien for them where permission to remove them is refused. Gates v. O'Gara [Ala.] 39 So. 729. The tearing down of a building gives no lien. Thompson-Starrett Co. v. Brooklyn Heights Realty Co., 111 App. Div. 358, 98 N. Y. S. 128.

49. Wardlaw v. Troy Oil Mill, 74 S. C. 368, 54 S. E. 658.

50. See 6 C. L. 612.

51. Under Rev. St. 1895, arts. 3294, 3299, 3300, where three buildings are erected under one contract on three lots, one of which is separated from the others, a lien for all does not extend to each lot. Guaranty Sav. Loan & Inv. Co. v. Cash [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 53, 91 S. W. 781. The lien of a materialman does not extend to the homestead as a whole but is restricted to the building constructed or repaired and the lot on which the structure stands. People's Independent Rice Mill Co. v. Benoit, 117 La. 999, 42 So. 480.

52. Hughes v. McCasland, 122 Ill. App. 365.

53. Under Const. art. 20, § 15, and Code Civ. Proc. tit. 4, and § 1185, providing for a lien on the building and also upon the land upon which it is constructed if it belongs to the person who caused the building to be constructed, where one furnishes material to one who falsely represents himself to be the owner of the land, he is entitled to a lien on the building. Linck v. Meikeljohn, 2 Cal. App. 506, 84 P. 309. Under the statutes of Michigan when one who had no title to land contracted for the erection of a building thereon, and his wife did not sign the contract, he was entitled to a lien on the building though the premises constituted a homestead. Holliday v. Mathewson [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 816, 109 N. W. 669.

54. Where buildings on which a materialman's lien was claimed were constructed wholly on one of two contiguous lots and the lot on which no buildings were constructed was not necessary for the use of the buildings, it was not subject to the lien. Fulton v. Parlett [Md.] 64 A. 58.

55. Where in foreclosure proceedings the owner made no objection to entry of a decree directing sale of the premises, until boundaries of land necessary for the use of the building had been established, he could not thereafter object that a sale of more land than was necessary was decreed. Fulton v. Parlett [Md.] 64 A. 58.

56. Where a lessee erects a building under contract whereby he retains the title to it, and has a right to remove it, the land of the lessor may not be subjected to the lien. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Shiver, 125 Ga. 218, 53 S. E. 610. No lien can be enforced against the estate of a lessor where work and labor was furnished to one in possession of mining property as a mere lessee. Williams v. Eldora-Enterprise Gold Min. Co. [Colo.] 83 P. 780.

57. Where a mining lease contained an option to purchase but did not require the lessee to do any work, a lien for labor furnished him could not be enforced against the lessor, on the ground that he was in possession under a contract of sale. Williams v. Eldora-Enterprise Gold Min. Co. [Colo.] 83 P. 780.

58. In an action to enforce a lien for work done for a tenant, whether materials were so affixed to the building as to become a part thereof was a question of fact. Stevenson v. Woodward [Cal. App.] 86 P. 990. Where a tenant constructs an ice wareroom, it is permissible to show that a door was cut through the side of the building as showing the nature of the improvement, though no lien was claimed for the work. Id.

59. A provision in a 99 years' lease that the lessor's interest and lien on the lessee's interest and lien on the lessee's estate for the payment of rent should not be affected by a mechanic's lien does not prevent the lessor's interest from being subjected to a lien. Provost v. Shirk, 223 Ill. 468, 79 N. E. 178.

60. Where an improvement is made under contract with a tenant in such manner as to become a fixture, and the laborer has no information that it will be regarded cluded by facts of which a claimant is charged with notice.[61] Land of a married woman may be subjected to a lien for improvements made under contract with her husband of which she has notice,[62] and a homestead is subject to a lien where so provided.[63] The interest of a vendor may be subjected to the lien if he fails to comply with the statutory requirements.[64] A tract is not divided by the mere unaccepted laying out of a street so as to prevent an apportionment of a lien among numerous lots covered by one contract.[65]

§ 4. The contract supporting the lien and the privity of the land-owner thereto. A. In general.[66]—In most states it is essential that the lien rest on contract made with the owner [67] or his authorized agent,[68] or that the labor or material be furnished with the consent of the owner,[69] and one who furnishes material to a sub-otherwise than as a fixture, the right of lien attaching to the land cannot be defeated by an agreement between tenant and owner that the improvement might be removed. Stevenson v. Woodward [Cal. App.] 86 P. 990.

61. Where land is held in trust for life under a recorded will providing that the trustee may make improvements only out of the income, no lien on the real estate can be acquired by one who furnishes material for an improvement. Hall v. Bullock's Trustee, 29 Ky. L. R. 1254, 97 S. W. 351. But he has a lien on the material and may require payment of the trustee in instalments out of the income. Id.

62. Where improvements are made on land of a married woman under contract with her husband and with her knowledge, there is a lien therefor under the express provisions of the statute. McGeever v. Harris & Sons [Ala.] 41 So. 930. Where a wife is the exclusive owner of the premises and the husband contracts for material to be used in the erection of a building thereon, the materialman has a lien on the premises. Limerick v. Ketcham [Okl.] 87 P. 605.

63. A bill of particulars furnished in filing a lien as so many feet of gutters at a certain price does not show that the lien is only for materials so as to entitle the owner to set up his homestead exemption which does not exempt work done. Isler v. Dixon, 140 N. C. 529, 53 S. E. 348.

64. One cotenant who authorizes a vendee to enter for the purpose of making improvements, without posting notice as required by Laws 1899, p. 267, c. 118, § 5, cannot avoid liability for the value of improvements. Seely v. Neill [Colo.] 86 P. 334.

65. Where the apportionment was decreed before the street was accepted, it was good. Fleck v. Collins, 28 Pa. Super. Ct.

66. See 6 C. L. 613.

67. Under Rev. St. 1898, tit. 39, c. 1, a mechanic's lien attaches to land, and unless the person for whom the improvement is made has an estate, no lien attaches. Eccles Lumber Co. v. Martin [Utah] 87 P. 713. The contract must have been made with the owner or his authorized agent. Id. A material man in order to be entitled to a lien must contract with the owner or his authorized agent. Meade Plumbing, Heating & Lighting Co. v. Irwin [Neb.] 109 N. W. 391. Evidence sufficient to show an oral contract under which labor and materials were to be furnished, to be superceded by a "uniform contract" which was executed about four months later. Libbey v. Tidden [Mass.] 78 N. E. 313. Evidence sufficient to show that the subsequent oral contract was a continuation of the written one and not a substitute for it, though it contained terms not provided in the former. Id.

68. Where an owner contracts with a builder to furnish labor and material, he constitutes such contractor his agent and his property is subject to liens for labor and material contracted for by such contractor. Mineah v. Scotts, 130 Iowa, 530, 107 N. W. 425. Where a husband as agent for his wife contracted for materials, her property is subject to the lien regardless of whether she consented to the repairs or not. Saunders v. Tuscumbia Roofing & Plumbing Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 982. Where there was no direct proof that the husband acted as agent for the wife, evidence tending to show such agency is admissible. Id. Where materials were furnished to a contractor on orders given by the architect before the contract was let and extras were furnished while the contractor was still in charge, and also after he had absconded and the owner was in charge, held to have been furnished to the owner's agents authorized to purchase. Seattle Lumber Co. v. Sweeney [Wash.] 85 P. 677. Evidence sufficient to show that the wife was estopped to deny the agency of her husband when mechanic's lien notes against the homestead were sought to be enforced. Roane v. Murphy [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 24, 96 S. W. 782. Under B. & C. Comp. § 5640, declaring a contractor or subcontractor in charge of construction the agent of the owner for the purpose of binding the property with a lien, he is not the agent for the purpose of determining the value of labor or material furnished, and an arbitration of the value between contractor and subcontractor is not binding upon him. Quackenbush v. Artesian Land Co., 47 Or. 303, 83 P. 787.

69. A lessor in a lease binding the lessee to keep machinery in repairs "at his own cost" "consents" to work done by a third person under contract with the lessee within Laws 1897, p. 516, c. 418, § 3. Tinsley v. Smith, 101 N. Y. S. 382. Where an owner sells under an agreement by which the vendee is to construct a building on the premises, and after the foundation was completed the vendee defaulted, held that the work on such foundation was with the consent of the owner. Barnard v. Lantry, 101 N. Y. S. 502. Where a lumber dealer required from a tenant, desiring to purchase lumber on credit, an order from the owner, and the owner wrote him "it is O. K. with contractor who has no contractual relation with the owner does not acquire a lien on the property improved,[70] though some states give him a "direct" lien,[71] but the fact that all materials are not furnished under the same contract is not ground for denying the lien as to materials for which a lien may be had.[72] The contract must be for labor or materials for which a lien may be had.[73] It must be definite and certain as to time of completion in Illinois,[74] and at any rate must be susceptible of identification and ascertainment,[75] and, where the material is furnished for improving the homestead, the contract must be signed by both husband and wife.[76] As a general rule, extras are regarded as furnished under the contract,[77] unless otherwise expressly provided by its terms.[78] There is no right to a lien until the contract has been substantially performed,[79] and a contractor who abandons his contract without excuse is not entitled to a lien.[80] me as for Mr. O. having the lumber," held not to entitle the seller to a lien on the premises. Oregon Lumber Co. v. Beckleen, 130 Iowa, 42, 106 N. W. 260. Laws 1897, p. 516, c. 418, § 3, giving a lien to one who furnishes labor or material with the consent or at the request of the owner, where an owner sold under a contract providing that he should complete a building in process of construction, the buyer impliedly consented that the contractors proceed with the work and hence the contractors were entitled to a lien. Pope v. Heckscher, 109 App. Div. 495, 96 N. Y. S. 533.

70. General Supply Co. v. Hunn, 126 Ga. 615, 55 S. E. 957. A complaint showing such fact is demurrable. Id.

71. See post, § 4 C.

72. Crane Co. v. Epworth Hotel Const. & Real Estate Co. [Mo. App.] 98 S. W. 795.

73. An entire contract for preparing plans for which a lien cannot be had, and for supervising construction, completion of which was prevented by the owner, is not within Rev. Laws, c. 197, § 16, giving a lien in such case for reasonable compensation, as such section applies only where a lien would exist if the contract had been completed. Libbey v. Tidden [Mass.] 78 N. E. 313. A contract for preparing plans and for supervising the construction of a building is not within Rev. Laws, c. 197, § 2, providing that under an entire contract for labor and materials a lien for the labor can be enforced if its value can be shown. Id. In a suit to enforce a lien an owner is not estopped by the final certificate of the architect to show that there was no basis for the lien for extra work done. Barbee v. Morris, 221 Ill. 382, 77 N. E. 589.

74. A contract for construction of a building providing for its completion on a certain date and final payment to be made within thirty days thereafter is definite as to the time of payment, though payment is to be made on the certificate of the architect who was authorized to make alterations and find the balance due. Eisendrath Co. v. Gebhardt, 222 Ill. 113, 78 N. E. 22. A contract to do work in "about" twenty-four days fixes a time for completion within one year. Ryan v. Desmond, 118 Ill. App. 186.

75. Where the lien declared or stated that the contract was to furnish all materials to be used in the building to be paid for at market rates, and it appeared that after the list of materials required had been furnished it was figured up at current market rates, held that the fact that the aggregate market value was so ascertained did not show a contract other than the one relied on. San Pedro Lumber Co. v. West [Cal. App.] 86 P. 993. Where in an action to enforce a lien the claimant testified that the contract called for brown stone, and the only evidence that any other kind of stone was required consisted of testimony as to some talk of blue stone, a finding that the contract called for blue stone was unwarranted. Miller v. Isear, 99 N. Y. S. 869.

76. It is necessary for one furnishing material for improvement of a homestead to contract therefor in writing with both husband and wife, if they are both living, not divorced, in order to obtain a lien. Rowley v. Varnum, 15 Okl. 612, 84 P. 487. If no such contract is entered into no lien attaches by reason of the filing of a lien thereon. Id.

77. A claim for extras may properly be included in the claim for the amount due under the contract. Baldwin v. Spear Bros. [Vt.] 64 A. 235.

A lien may be had for extras supplied under the contract, though the original contract price independent of the extras has been paid. Zollars v. Snyder [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 203, 94 S. W. 1096.

78. Under a contract providing that alterations should be made by direction of the architect only by written agreement with the principal contractor, a subcontractor may not recover for extras in the absence of such agreement. Ponti v. Eckels [Wis.] 108 N. W. 62.

79. He must comply with specifications as to methods of construction, materials and workmanship, and may not substitute materials or methods of workmanship which in his opinion are just as good. Easthampton Lumber & Coal Co. v. Worthington [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 323. Principal contractor who undertakes to complete the work on default of a subcontractor does not make himself personally liable for materials furnished the subcontractor, but his action only preserves the right of the material man to a lien on any surplus due the subcontractor after deducting the cost of completing the work. Martin v. Flahive, 112 App. Div. 347, 98 N. Y. S. 577. When a subcontractor defaulted and the principal contractor with the consent of the owner and materialman who had furnished the material to the subcontractor completed the work, the lien of the materialman on the sum coming due under the contract to the principal contractor continued as if the subcontractor had completed the work. Id. Nor was it affected by the fact that where the principal contractor failed to complete the work, the owner did so himself. Id.

Payments and offsets.—An owner who in good faith pays the contractor the full contract price is not liable to a sub-contractor whom he permitted to continue the work,[81] When a contractor defaults in the performance of his contract, the owner is entitled to credit for the amount he expends in completing it,[82] and also for payments made for material which the contractor was bound to furnish,[83] and offsets connected with the contract.[84] Where the statute provides against the allowance of credit for advance payments or payments made for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of the statute,[85] an owner who makes payments has the burden to show that they were made pursuant to statutory requirements.[86]

Substantially performed: Where contractors notified the owner of their abandonment of the contract, but he refused to consent thereto and arranged to pay them day wages until completion, evidence held to show substantial compliance with the contract and that the owner could not object to the validity of mechanic's lien notes. Roane v. Murphy [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 24, 96 S. W. 782. Where the contractor agreed to install a patented heating system and furnish a license to use it, but failed to furnish the license and was under order of court to do so, there was substantial performance. Hankee v. Arundel Realty Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 842. Where a contract to furnish all materials necessary for the construction of a building was relied upon, and the notice showed delivery of certain articles, evidence that the contractor purchased some articles elsewhere does not show that the contract was not carried out. San Pedro Lumber Co. v. West [Cal. App.] 86 P. 993. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1101, providing that trivial imperfection in the work will not preclude a lien, failure to place windows in alignment is a trivial imperfection. Schindler v. Green [Cal.] 87 P. 626.

Not performed: In a suit to enforce a lien, evidence held to show that the claimant had done his work in such an unskillful manner as to damage the owner and was not entitled to lien. McLaughlin v. Sayle, 190 Mass. 583, 77 N. E. 639. Evidence insufficient to show substantial performance of the contract entitling a contractor to a lien. Easthampton Lumber & Coal Co. v. Worthington [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 323.

80. Rochford v. Rochford [Mass.] 78 N. E. 454. But where the answer in an action to enforce the lien is inconsistent with abandonment, a decree may be rendered for him. Id.

81. Drall v. Gordon, 101 N. Y. S. 171. Evidence insufficient to show that payment was not made in good faith. Id. Evidence sufficient to show that when an owner made payments to a contractor she had no notice that one seeking to establish a lien was furnishing materials. Chicago Lumber & Coal Co. v. Garmer [Iowa] 109 N. W. 780.

82. Where a contract provided for payment when the work was completed and on abandonment by contractor the owner completed it, lien claimants for materials furnished the contractor could share in the amount in the hands of the owner after deducting from the contract price the cost of completion and the sums paid for materials before abandonment or notice of lien. Fall v. Nichols [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 748, 97 S. W. 145. Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 1183, providing that mechanics' and materialmens' liens shall extend to the entire contract price, an owner may deduct from a completion payment damages for the contractor's failure to complete the work within the prescribed time, and also an amount paid by him for materials which the contractor agreed to but did not furnish. Hampton v. Christensen, 148 Cal. 729, 84 P. 200. But he may not deduct an excess from the final payment. Id.

83. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1184, providing that no payment by owner to contractor prior to maturity thereof shall be valid against lienors does not invalidate a payment for material which the owner guaranteed when the contractor was unable to secure credit, and made after completion of the building when no lien had been filed or notice thereof served. Hampton v. Christensen, 148 Cal. 729, 84 P. 200.

84. Code Civ. Proc. § 1184, providing that as to liens, except that of the contractor, the contract price shall not be diminished by any offset in favor of the owner against the contractor, refers to offsets not arising under the contract of which laborers and materialmen could have no notice. Hampton v. Christensen, 148 Cal. 729, 84 P. 200.

85. Laws 1897, p. 517, c. 418, § 7, providing that a payment made by the owner to the contractor before due for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of the lien statute shall be of no effect against a lien, applies only where made for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of the statute. Behrer v. City & Suburban Homes Co., 114 App. Div. 450, 100 N. Y. S. 35; Tommasi v. Bolger, 100 N. Y. S. 367. Where an owner makes advance payments to a contractor prior to the filing of liens by the subcontractor, in order that the work may advance, failure to notify such subsequent lienors of such fact does not show a purpose to avoid the provisions of the act. Tommasi v. Bolger, 100 N. Y. S. 367. Laws 1897, p. 1405, c. 635, § 15, requiring orders drawn by a contractor or subcontractor on an owner for money payable on the contract to be filed, does not apply to payments made by the owner on account of labor or material, and failure of the contractor to file orders given by the owner for the cancellation of their lien does not show an intent to deceive subsequent lienors. Id. Evidence insufficient to show that advance payments were made for the purpose of avoiding the provisions of Laws 1897, p. 517, c. 418, § 7. Id.

86. An owner who sets up payments to the contractor to defeat the lien of one who

(§ 4) B. Contracts by vendors, purchasers, lessors, and lessees.[87]—The rights of persons in privity with claimant depend on the nature of their interests in the land and their relation to the owner.[88]

(§ 4) C. Subcontractors and materialmen.[89]—The right of a sub-contractor to a lien rests in the terms of the statute.[90] A sub-contract need not necessarily, require completion when the principal one does.[91] In Iowa, a sub-contractor must enforce his lien in subordination to the original contract and his right is dependent on the existence of an indebtedness on the part of the owner to the original contractor.[92] In North Dakota, sub-contractors have a direct lien [93] not dependent on subrogation to the rights of the principal contractor [94] and hence not dependent on the existence of a sum remaining due him.[95] In Pennsylvania the materials for an essential part of a building need not be furnished to a contractor for the whole building.[96] The price stipulated in the original contract on which liens are based may not be diminished by secret understanding.[97] The lien of a sub-contractor is limited to the amount due him from the contractor.[98]

§ 5. Acts and proceedings necessary to acquire lien. A. Notice and demand, statement to acquire lien.[99]—Notice of the kind appropriate to the lien claimed must be given.[1] In Pennsylvania not only notice but a sworn statement must be served.[2] As a general rule the notice or statement or claim of lien must be verified.[3] It must be in substantial compliance with the statute.[4] It must set forth the name furnished materials to him, must show that such payments have been made pursuant to statutory requirements. Prince v. Neal-Millard Co., 124 Ga. 884, 53 S. E. 761. Where an owner before making payment to the principal contractor did not require him to furnish a sworn statement required by Comp. Laws 1897, § 10,713, as to amounts due subcontractors and the payments were not distributed pro rata among subcontractors, materialmen, etc., the owner was not entitled to credit for such payment as against subcontractors, materialmen, etc. Greilick Co. v. Rogers, 144 Mich. 313, 13 Det. Leg. N. 16, 107 N. W. 885.

87. See 6 C. L. 614.

88. See ante, § 3, also see Vendor and Purchaser, 6 ch. 1781; Landlord and Tenant, 8 C. L. 656, and like titles.

89. See 6 C. L. 615.

90. Under Mechanics' Lien Law (P. L. 1898, p. 538), the remedy by stop notice is open to a party who, under employment by or contract with the contractor, has installed fixtures and other materials in his building, and his claim may include the work of installation as a part of the cost of materials in situ. Beckhard v. Rudolph, 68 N. J. Eq. 740, 63 A. 705. A subcontractor is not deprived of his lien expressly conferred by 2 Gen. St. p. 2078, § 1, by § 14 of the same act. Herman v. Board of Chosen Freeholders [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 742.

91. Miller v. Calumet Lumber & Mfg. Co., 121 Ill. App. 56.

92. Where a contract discontinued for inability to complete the work, provided that in such case the contractor should be liable if it cost more to finish the work than the contract price, of which fact the certificate of the architect should be conclusive, a subcontractor has the burden to show the architect's certificate. Chicago Lumber & Coal Co. v. Garmer [Iowa] 109 N. W. 780.

93, 94, 95. Rev. Codes 1899, § 4788. Robertson Lumber Co. v. State Bank [N. D.] 105 N. W. 719.

96. Brick to contractor for boiler foundation. Kountz Bros. Co. v. Consol. Ice Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 266.

97. Under Laws 1897, p. 521, c. 418, § 4, limiting liability of the owner to a sum not greater than the contract price unpaid at the time the liens were filed, and providing that a copy of the contract shall be furnished by the owner on demand, it is no defense in an action to enforce a lien that by secret understanding between the owner and contractor, the contract price was to be less than therein stated. Hitchings v. Teague, 113 App. Div. 670, 99 N. Y. S. 967.

98. For materials furnished a subcontractor a lien can be enforced only for the amount due him from the contractor. Wright v. Schoharie Valley R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 801.

99. See 6 C. L. 615.

1. The notice required to fix a lien for new work will not suffice for work of repair or restoration. Rebuilding exterior walls of a building on same lines with slight changes held repairs. Porter v. Weightman, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 488.

2. Wolf Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 439.

3. Under the rule that the statement must be verified by claimant or one having knowledge of the facts a verification by one partner of a firm which claimed a lien is sufficient, though it did not aver that he had knowledge of the facts. McGeever v. Harris & Sons [Ala.] 41 So. 930. Sess. Laws 1899, p. 270, c. 118, § 8, requiring statements to be sworn to by claimant or some one in his behalf "to the best knowledge, information, and belief of affiant" held complied with. Gutshall v. Kornaley [Colo.] 88 P. 158.

4. Statutory requirements as to notice or other like requirements must be substantially complied with. A subcontractor who of the owner if known,[5] the amount of the lien,[6] and generally, if a lien is asserted against more than one building, it must specify the amount claimed against each,[7] unless all the improvements were made under a single contract.[8] It must describe the property against which the lien is asserted,[9] but inaccuracy in the description will not invalidate it.[10] The terms of the statute control the necessity that the

does not give the notice to the owner or furnish a statement of account and obtain a settlement thereof with the owner, as required by Mansf. Dig. art. §§ 4402, 4421, does not secure a lien by furnishing and filing a statement of his own account. Cameron & Co. v. Campbell, 141 F. 32. A memorandum signed by the claimant, alleging that a lien was asserted the amount claimed, the person to whom it is due specifying the building into which the materials went, and the owner of it, is sufficient. Baldwin v. Spear Bros. [Vt.] 64 A. 235. In Pennsylvania a lien showing on its face that the claimant contracted with one other than the owner must state when and how notice of intention to file was given to such owner, also the statement served with the notice must set forth the contract under which he claims. Collins v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 547.

5. Ky. St. 1903, § 2468, requires claimant's statement to contain the name of the owner only in case it is known and one does not lose his right to a lien because the name is incorrectly stated. Mivelaz v. Johnson [Ky.] 98 S. W. 1020. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4207, requiring a contractor to file a verified account with the name of the owner, if known, an affidavit on information and belief as to who is the owner is sufficient. Crane Co. v. Epworth Hotel Const. & Real Estate Co. [Mo. App.] 98 S. W. 795. Under B. & C. Comp. § 5644, requiring a claim of lien to state the name of the person to whom material or labor is furnished, a claim is insufficient which does not show to whom the labor or material was furnished, or that labor or material was furnished in connection with the building sought to be impressed. Barton v. Rose [Or.] 85 P. 1009. The word "owner" in Rev. St. 1899, § 2893, requiring the statement to state the name of the owner considered in connection with §§ 2889, 2894, means the owner at the time the statement is filed. Davis v. Big Horn Lumber Co., 14 Wyo. 517, 85 P. 980. The name of the owner of the property against which a mechanic's lien is filed must be given if known but substantial compliance with the statute in this respect is all that is required. United States Blowpipe Co. v. Spencer [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 345.

6. A notice of lien for over $5,000 is insufficient, though the amount is not willfully exaggerated where the value is in fact only about one-half such amount. Finn v. Smith [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 714. Evidence sufficient to show that the amount claimed in the notice was willfully and intentionally exaggerated, rendering the notice void. Hecla Iron Works v. Hall, 100 N. Y. S. 696. Under a statute requiring the statement to contain a just and true account of the demands, one containing an excessive demand is insufficient. Where material was furnished to a contractor who was building four houses for different owners, and as statement as to one was excessive and such excess was not explained. Greilick Co. v. Taylor, 143 Mich. 704, 13 Det. Leg. N. 92, 107 N. W. 712. Where the lien is claimed for labor and material in a lump sum, the statement is not fatally defective for failure to specify the amount claimed for each. Baldwin v. Spear Bros. [Vt.] 64 A. 235.

7. Under Gen. Laws 1896, c. 206, providing that any building together with the land shall stand pledged for materials of buildings constructed, where disconnected buildings are constructed under one contract, the contractor must, in order to obtain a lien, present a separate account for materials furnished for each building. McElroy v. Kelly, 27 R. I. 474, 63 A. 238.

8. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1188, providing that where a claim is filed against two or more buildings at the same time, the claimant must designate the amount due him on each, where materials were furnished on a single contract for three houses, with nothing to show how much went into each, the claim need not state how much is due on each of the buildings. Southern California Lumber Co. v. Peters [Cal. App.] 86 P. 816. Under Comp. Laws 1888, § 3812, requiring a claim against two or more buildings to state the amount due on each, otherwise the lien is postponed. Rev. St. 1898, § 1387, provides that a lien against two or more buildings may be included in one claim if it designates the amount due on each. Held that under the former law the court was required to enforce the penalty where the statement was omitted whether equities required it or not, and under the latter the court was at liberty to enforce it as the equities required. Eccles Lumber Co. v. Martin [Utah] 87 P. 713. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 1386, provides for a statement of demand after deducting credits and offsets, § 1387, provides that, where a lien is claimed against two or more buildings, the statement shall designate the amount claimed on each. Held that the former statute is to acquire a lien and the latter to protect claimants among themselves, and a statement under the first section on two buildings on one lot is sufficient, though it does not set forth the amount due on each building. Id. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 1387, requiring a statement against two or more buildings to designate the amount due on each when a contract required the construction of two buildings on one parcel of land, and the construction is treated as an entirety, a statement is sufficient, though it does not designate the amount due on each. Id.

9. Where a statement covered but one lot, an amendment to the complaint to include a portion of another lot was ineffective to amend the statement, and the lien covered only the lot described in the original statement. Perkins v. Boyd [Colo.] 86 P. 1045.

10. Inaccuracy in the description in a statement does not invalidate the lien, under Ky. St. 1903, § 2468, requiring such statement to contain a description sufficiently accurate to identify the property. Mivelaz v. Johnson [Ky.] 98 S. W. 1020.

notice and statement served recite that claimants intended to assert a lien,[11] or the date of completion of the contract or when the amount became true,[12] or the particulars of the contract,[13] or that materials were furnished in accordance with the terms of the contract.[14] It is said that the certainty of such notice and statement

11. Under Code 1904, art. 63, § 10, providing that where building is erected on land of a married woman by her husband, no lien shall attach unless sixty days notice thereof be given to the married woman, the notice need not recite that claimants "intended" to claim a lien. Fulton v. Parlett [Md.] 64 A. 58. Under Code 1904, art. 63, § 11, requiring a materialman to give notice within sixty days of his intention to claim a lien a notice that claimants claimed and should forthwith file their claim of a lien in the office of the clerk of court is not fatally defective for failure to recite that they "intended" to claim such lien. Id. Unless the statute requires it, an averment is not necessary that the notice was given of intention to file a lien. Acts June 16, 1836 (P. L. 695); May 1, 1861 (P. L. 550); May 18, 1887 (P. L. 118), do not require such averment. Winton v. Benore, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 27.

12. Unless so required by statute, a statement is not fatally defective for failure to allege the date the work was completed or when the amount became due. Baldwin v. Spear Bros. [Vt.] 64 A. 235. Need not state "when material was to be delivered," or that there was any fixed time for delivery or when payments were to be made. Miller v. Calumet Lumber & Mfg. Co., 121 Ill. App. 56.

13. St. c. 109, requiring the claimant to file a written memorandum, does not require that the statement contain the particulars of the contract or items of the account. Baldwin v. Spear Bros. [Vt.] 64 A. 235. A statement need not specify that the contract under which the labor was performed or materials furnished was written. Id.

14. A notice and statement of lien provided for by the Act of June 4, 1901 (P. L. 431), set forth in a contract and specifications as to materials furnished avering the kind of materials, the amount due, date when last material was furnished is sufficient without alleging that they were furnished in accordance with the contract. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Alexandria Water Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 683.

Notice held sufficient: A stop notice, which declares that certain materials were furnished to the contractor for and in the "erection" of a building, sufficiently shows that the materials were actually used in the building. Beckhard v. Rudoplh, 68 N. J. Eq. 740, 63 A. 705. Mechanics' Lien Law (P. L. 1898, p. 538), giving materialmen a lien by stop notice on funds in the hands of the owner, and requiring the stop notice to state the amount due, that demand has been made and payment refused, a notice stating that material was sold to the contractor, but not stating that it was actually used in the building is sufficient. McNab & Harlin Mfg. Co. v. Peterson Bldg. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 709. An assignment by the contractor to the materialman of a certain sum of the amount due from the owner to the contractor taken together with the notice, held sufficient as to the lienable portion of the debt, though the notice incorrectly stated that the materials were used by the owner instead of by the contractor, but the assignment correctly stating the matter. Id. Mechanics' Lien Law (P. L. 1898, p. 538), giving the materialmen a lien by stop notice of funds in the hands of the owner, where the lien on the building has been cut off by the filing of the contract, should be liberally construed as to liability of the debt and sufficiency of the notice. Id. A stop notice, which sets forth that a certain sum of money is due from the contractor for materials used in a building, and that the contractor has refused to pay the money so due, need not more explicitly state that payment has been demanded of the contractor. "Refusal" imports prior demand or request. Beckhard v. Rudolph, 68 N. J. Eq. 740, 63 A. 705. Where a husband employed contractors to construct a building on land of his wife, a notice of materialmen of their intent to claim a lien is not defective for failing to recite that the contractors who claimed the lien are the contractors employed by the husband. Fulton v. Parlett [Md.] 64 A. 58. A notice given to and lien recorded in the name of "Home Brewing Co." instead of "Home Brewing Company of Grafton" as alleged, is an immaterial variance. Grafton Grocery Co. v. Home Brew. Co. [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 349. Where repairs and improvements are male under contract with the owner, dates when the several items of work or material were furnished are not material except that it must appear that the last item was furnished within the statutory period. O'Neil v. Taylor, 59 W. Va. 370, 53 S. E. 471. The West Virginia statute does not require of a contractor who contracts with the owner an itemized statement of work done and material furnished, but requires only that the account show the amount due, describe the property and give the name of the owner. Id. A general statement showing the nature of the claim, the amount due after deducting credits, is sufficient. Id. A finding that a notice claimed a lien on a frame house and the land upon which it stood implies a finding that the house and land are properly identified in the notice. Big Horn Lumber Co. v. Davis, 14 Wyo. 455, 84 P. 900, 85 P. 1048. A notice of lien by a materialman in terms under the subcontractor's contract and against him as subcontractor not alleging that the subcontractor defaulted, that the principal contractor undertook to complete the work or that on his default the owner completed it, is sufficient. Martin v. Flahive, 112 App. Div. 347, 98 N. Y. S. 577. A signature to a notice of claim of a lien signed in the name of claimant by his attorney is sufficient. Siegmund v. Kellogg-Mackay-Cameron Co. [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 1096. A notice of claim for materials furnished for a heating plant, "for work and labor done and materials furnished in the erection and construction of said house," is sufficient. Id.

Held insufficient: A statement of claim indorsed by the architect "this bill is O. K. except the last item" does not comply with a

are not tested as by the rule of variance,[15] but the words, "A verbal contract," are not a setting forth of the contract,[16] nor does "on or about" a day certain set out "the date when" the last work was done or material furnished.[17] In a printed blank the filling in of which shows a lien for materials only, failure to strike out the word labor is not a defect.[18]

Service of notice.[19]—The notice must be served on the owner or his agent having authority to accept notice,[20] unless in the cases provided by statute a substitute for service may be had.[21]

(§ 5) B. Filing and recording claim and statement thereof.[22]—It is generally required that the statement be filed in the public records within a certain period after the last item was furnished,[23] and when so filed it binds the property.[24] Where liens are filed only against the owner of the premises, no claim can be as-provision in the contract requiring an architect's certificate. Provost v. Shirk, 223 Ill. 468, 79 N. E. 178. Where a contract provided that the work should be done under supervision of the architect whose decision should be final, a contractor who seeks to enforce a lien should procure such certificate. Id. Statement held insufficient to charge the estate of a lessor with a lien. Id.

15. The doctrine of variance in pleadings does not apply to notice in mechanics' liens. All that is required in such notice is that it be true, and it is immaterial that the notice states that material of the value of $132 was furnished, none of which was paid when in fact $212 was furnished and $80 paid. Star Mill & Lumber Co. v. Porter [Cal. App.] 88 P. 497.

16. Collins v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 547.

17. Wolf Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 439.

18. Buess v. Pugh & Co., 46 Misc. 414, 92 N. Y. S. 359.

19. See 6 C. L. 616.

20. Under Comp. Laws 1897, § 10715, authorizing service on an agent having charge of the premises, a service of a statement on an owner's wife in his absence is sufficient, though the premises are in charge of an agent who testified that the wife's orders concerning the premises were obeyed. Greilick Co. v. Rogers, 144 Mich. 313, 13 Det. Leg. N. 161, 107 N. W. 885.

21. Rev. St. 1898, § 3315, requires notice to be given to the owner or his agent if he can be found in the county, if not it may be filed with the clerk of court. Ponti v. Eckels [Wis.] 108 N. W. 62. Evidence sufficient to show that the agent of the owner was in the county and a subcontractor was not excused from serving him with the notice. Id.

22. See 6 C. L. 617.

23. Laws 1895, p. 1405, c. 635, requiring notices of lien to be filed in the city clerk's office as well as in the office of the county clerk, violate the constitutional provision against a private or local bill embracing more than one subject. Tommasi v. Bolger, 100 N. Y. S. 367. Laws 1895, p. 1405, c. 635, tit. 12, § 3, requiring the filing of lien notices in the office of the city clerk, does not repeal the general lien which provides for a filing in the office of the county clerk but requires an additional filing. Id. Time within which the lien may be filed runs from the date the last material was furnished on the premises, and when material furnished to a contractor was never taken to the premises, the period does not run from such date. North v. Globe Fence Co., 144 Mich. 557, 13 Det. Leg. N. 305, 108 N. W. 285. Under Laws 1893, p. 318, c. 117, § 3, requiring materialmen's liens to be filed within thirty days after completion of the contract, and that cessation of work for thirty days shall be equivalent to completion, a statement filed within thirty days after cessation of work is in time. Perkins v. Boyd [Colo.] 86 P. 1045. Where a contractor undertakes to make repairs, additions, and improvements without a contract price as to the whole work, but in the course of the work it is agreed that a certain item shall be done for a certain price, such item is part of the general account, though furnished more than sixty days before filing the lien. O'Neil v. Taylor, 59 W. Va. 370, 53 S. E. 471. Rev. St. 1899, § 2893, providing that a statement of lien must be filed within ninety days after the indebtedness accrues, the indebtedness is deemed to have accrued at the date of furnishing the last item in the original count and not at the date of the last item which remains unpaid. Big Horn Lumber Co. v. Davis, 14 Wyo. 466, 84 P. 900, 85 P. 1048. Under §§ 10713, 10714, providing that the original contractor shall furnish the owner with a statement of claims due subcontractors, and also providing that a lien claimant shall file a statement in the office of the register of deeds, a claim of lien is not invalid because filed before statement is served. Holliday v. Mathewson [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 816, 109 N. W. 669. In an action to enforce a lien, an objection that the notice of lien was not filed within the statutory period after the materials were furnished is untenable where it appeared that goods furnished within the period, though not within the contract, yet were a portion of one entire improvement. Siegmund v. Kellogg-Mackay-Cameron Co. [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 1096. A subcontractor's lien must be filed within ninety days to hold against bona fide subsequent purchasers and incumbrances. Robertson Lumber Co. v. State Bank [N. D.] 105 N. W. 719.

24. Under ch. 5143, p. 78, acts 1903, when a contractor assigns the balance due him on an uncompleted contract and the owner accepts the assignment on condition that the assignee will complete the house, and before completion a lien is filed for materials furnished the original contractor, the lien binds the property for an amount not greater

serted against a mortgagee.[25] By statute a lien filed after time may be good as to the owner save in so far as he has made payments after the regular time to file and before actual filing.[26]

§ 6. Amount of lien and priority thereof.[27]—As a general rule the amount of the lien is governed by the price specified in the contract,[28] and, where the contract is abandoned, excess in cost of completion above such price may be deducted.[29] An owner who seeks to defeat a lien on the ground that the contract was abandoned, and that it cost more than the contract price to complete the building, must show that the advanced cost was necessary to complete the building.[30]

As a general rule a mechanics' lien is made superior to any other lien attaching subsequent to commencement of work on the improvement,[31] or to the time than the amount unpaid at the time of service of the notice. Carter v. Brady [Fla.] 41 So. 539.

25. Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. Title Guaranty & Trust Co., 50 Misc. 51, 100 N. Y. S. 299.

26. So in North Dakota. Robertson Lumber Co. v. State Bank [N. D.] 105 N. W. 719.

27. See 6 C. L. 618.

28. Under Code W. Va. 1899, c. 75, § 5, requiring an owner in order to limit his liability of lien holders to the contract price to record his contract, such contract need not be acknowledged to be entitled to record. In re Hobbs & Co., 145 F. 211. Where a contractor abandoned the contract and the owner completed the work at an advanced cost in determining whether one had a lien for material furnished under the contract, no credit should be given the owner for payments made after the abandonment which were used in paying claims which accrued under the contract. Long v. Abeles & Co., 77 Ark. 156, 93 S. W. 67. Where one is employed to get out logs and employs others to assist him and pays them for their services and delivers the logs to a mill which saws them and sells the lumber to one who has notice of the claim of the person who cut the logs, he has a lien for his own labor. Valley Pine Lumber Co. v. Hodgens [Ark.] 97 S. W. 682.

29. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 3310, where a contractor abandoned his contract, lien holders may recover from the owner only the amount remaining due after deducting the excess in cost of completing the building. Slade v. Amarillo Lumber Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 437, 93 S. W. 475. Under Laws 1897, p. 516, c. 418, § 4, providing that the lien for labor or materials furnished a contractor shall not be for more than the amount due at the time notice is filed, and any sum thereafter earned where a contractor had abandoned his contract and his workman had filed liens if there was any surplus after completion of the work, the liens will attach. Murphy v. City of Watertown, 112 App. Div. 670, 99 N. Y. S. 6. Where an owner as authorized by the contract performed work which the contractor failed to perform, the contractor could enforce a lien for the contract price less the cost of such work. Sweatt v. Hunt, 42 Wash. 96, 84 P. 1.

30. Long v. Abeles & Co., 77 Ark. 156, 93 S. W. 67.

31. Where mortgage liens are involved in the foreclosure of mechanic's and materialmen's liens, the date when the building was commenced or the labor begun is to be taken into consideration in determining the priority of the liens over the mortgage. Pacific States Sav., Loan & Bldg. Co. v. Dubois, 11 Idaho, 319, 83 P. 513. A mechanic's or materialmen's lien, duly and timely filed, takes priority over a mortgage subsequently executed by the owner. Hahn v. Bonacum [Neb.] 107 N. W. 1001. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 1384, a mechanic's lien timely filed is prior to equities intervening after date work is commenced or materials furnished. Sanford v. Kunkel, 30 Utah, 379, 85 P. 363. Under acts 1895, p. 217, No. 146, the lien of a laborer who assists in raising a crop is superior to a mortgage given before the crop is produced. Sheeks-Stephens Store Co. v. Richardson, 76 Ark. 282, 88 S. W. 983. Under Laws N. Y. 1897, p. 517, c. 418, § 5, providing for a lien for labor and materials furnished a public contractor on the amount due him from the municipality, one who performed labor for a contractor who subsequently became bankrupt, but filed no notice of lien, has none, but is entitled to priority over general creditors under the National Bankruptcy Act. In re Cramond, 145 F. 966. Where one not an owner entered into a contract for the construction of a building on a lot which he afterwards purchased and gave back a mortgage but the deed and mortgage were not delivered at the same time, in order to render the seisin instantaneous and prevent liens from attaching before the mortgage, deed and mortgage must have been part of the same transaction. Libbey v. Tidden [Mass.] 78 N. E. 313. Evidence sufficient to show that deed and mortgage were not part of the same transaction. Id. The contractors were entitled to a mechanic's lien which was superior to the mortgage. Id. Where an owner in a contract to erect a building impliedly authorized the contractor to employ subcontractors, and subsequently conveyed the premises and took a mortgage back at a time when he knew that a third person was performing work on the building, the laborer's lien was superior to his mortgage. McCormack v. Butland, 191 Mass. 424, 77 N. E. 761. Where one cotenant sells and takes a deed of trust for a portion of the purchase price for the benefit of all the cotenants, his interest in the deed is superior to mechanic's liens acquired in the construction of improvements by the purchaser. Seely v. Neill [Colo.] 86 P. 334. The interests of cotenants not shown to have had notice that improvements were being made are superior to such liens. Id. The validity of a lien may not be questioned by a mortgagee who has recognized it and did not attack it until he excepted to ratifica-

the contract was made,[32] but is inferior to a mortgage executed before work was commenced.[33] In some states lienors stand on an equal footing as between themselves,[34] and in other states they are classified as to priority.[35] Where sale of property subject to the lien is ordered in receivership proceedings, the court should protect the claimant's lien on the fund entitling him to priority over general creditors.[36] After a service by a sub-contractor or material-man the owner must reserve from the contract price a sufficient sum to satisfy the claim,[37] but no greater sum.[38] The lienor may be estopped to assert priority.[39] By analogy to the rule of marshalling assets, a prior mortgage released as to land not subject to the mechanics' lien and which was ample security becomes junior as to the doubly incumbered land.[40]

§ 7. Assignment or transfer of lien.[41]

§ 8. Waiver, loss, or forfeiture of lien, or right to acquire it.[42]—A builder may waive his right to a lien by a provision to such effect in the contract,[43] and by tion of the auditor's account for distribution of the fund derived from the sale. Title Guaranty & Trust Co. v. Burdette [Md.] 65 A. 341. A building loan agreement filed under Laws 1897, p. 525, c. 418, § 21, did not contain a provision that a mortgage executed simultaneously should be a first lien. Held that, by using part of the money to pay off a first mortgage, it subjected its interest in the property to the lien of a materialman who relied on the agreement that the entire building loan should be devoted to the building under construction. Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. Title Guaranty & Trust Co., 50 Misc. 51, 100 N. Y. S. 299. Where a mortgagee of chattels permits the mortgagor to have possession and use them, authority is impliedly conferred on him to have necessary repairs made, and the lien of the artificer for repairs is prior to the lien of the mortgage, though duly recorded. Ruppert v. Zang [N. J. Law] 62 A. 998.

32. Hughes v. McCasland, 122 Ill. App. 365.

33. The lien for materials furnished for the construction of a railroad given by Sayles Rev. Civ. St. acts 3294-3301, is inferior to a mortgage which existed when the materials were furnished, unless such material was used for the betterment of the road and increased the security of the mortgage. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. U. S. & Mexican Trust Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 212. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1186, providing that the lien shall have priority over any lien attaching after the building is commenced, it is not prior to a mortgage executed prior to the commencement of work to secure advances with which to do it, though no advances were made before work was commenced. Valley Lumber Co. v. Wright, 2 Cal. App. 288, 84 P. 58. Where a materialman elects to seize and sell a homestead embracing twenty acres of land, the sale will be void if the price of adjudication is less than the amount of a special mortgage covering the entire property. People's Independent Rice Mill Co. v. Benoit, 117 La. 999, 42 So. 480.

34. Under the Lien Laws of Arkansas, all liens stand on an equal footing and if they exceed the contract price must be discharged pro rata. Long v. Abeles & Co., 77 Ark. 156, 93 S. W. 67.

35. In adjusting the rights of lien holders under Sess. Laws 1899, p. 148, where the owner employed different men to do the different kinds of work and the entire contract was not let to one party, the court must declare the class of the liens in accordance with the provisions of the statute, and where a mortgage attached prior to the commencement of any class of work it constitutes a prior lien. Pacific States Sav., Loan & Bldg. Co. v. Dubois, 11 Idaho, 319, 83 P. 513.

36. Baldwin v. Spear Bros. [Vt.] 64 A. 235.

37. After service of notice of lien as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1184, the owner is bound to withhold from the contract price enough to pay the claim and $100 attorney's fees, and may not charge subsequent payments against such sum. Hampton v. Christensen, 148 Cal. 729, 84 P. 200. Where payments were due on the certificate of the certificate of the architect, a stop notice served on the owner on the day after the last certificate was given was insufficient to give priority over other persons holding orders of the contractor on the owner. Edge v. McClay [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 969. Code Civ. Proc. § 1184, providing that one who furnishes material to a contractor may give notice to the owner who is required to withhold from the contract price sufficient money to pay the claims authorizes the interception of money due the contractor from the owner but not that due a material man from the contractor. Kruse v. Wilson [Cal. App.] 84 P. 442.

38. One who furnishes material does not, by virtue of notice to the owner to withhold money due the contractor, become entitled to a personal judgment against the owner for a sum due him in excess of the amount due the contractor. Hughes Bros. v. Hoover [Cal. App.] 84 P. 681.

39. By representing to subsequent incumbrancer that there was no lien. Hughes v. McCasland, 122 Ill. App. 365.

40. McCarthy v. Miller, 122 Ill. App. 299.

41, 42. See 6 C. L. 618.

43. A provision in a subcontract by which the subcontractor was to keep the premises free from mechanics' liens is a waiver of the right to a lien, both as to the subcontractor and his assign. Security Nat. Bank v. St. Croix Power Co., 126 Wis. 370, 105 N. W. 914. The waiver inured to the benefit of the original contractor and the owner. Id. A waiver of all right, title, and interest in any privilege of lien for labor, materials, and stock furnished, held a waiver as to all claims arising between date of statute the filing of a contract stipulating against liens may put persons on notice and prevent such liens attaching on behalf of sub-contractors or material-men.[44] A lien is not lost by removal of the building from the land on which it was constructed.[45] A lien claimant is not deprived of his right by an assignment by the contractor of the balance due under his contract.[46] Where materials were furnished for three buildings on land belonging to the same owner, and it was impossible to know what materials were intended for each building, failure to distribute the materials among the several buildings does not invalidate the lien.[47] A manufacturer entitled to a lien on articles in his possession does not lose it by delivering part of such articles.[48]

§ 9. Discharge and satisfaction.[49]—The lien is not discharged by the taking of a promissory note,[50] nor by an unexecuted agreement to accept a mortgage.[51] Where one employed to get out logs hires laborers to do it and pays them, such payment operates as an extinguishment of their lien and not as an assignment of it.[52] The lien is discharged by foreclosure and sale to the lien claimant,[53] and while his waiver and execution of a mortgage. Weinberg v. Valente [Conn.] 64 A. 337. Though a contract contain no provision for the release of liens, it having been modified by indorsement and acceptance of orders by the owner, the release of such liens become a condition precedent to the right of the contractor to recover any balance due on completion of the contract. Grimwood Co. v. Capitol Hill Bldg. & Const. Co. [R. I.] 65 A. 304.

44. If a modified contract stipulating against liens is made and filed and before furnishing or contracting to furnish materials the claimant had actual notice, he is not entitled in Pennsylvania to a lien. Lee v. Williams, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 349. A party furnishing materials after the filing of a contract containing a stipulation against liens is bound thereby, although a prior contract without such stipulation had been filed which was canceled by the filing of the second contract. Act of June 26, 1895, P. L. 369. Lee v. Williams, 26 Pa. Super. Ct. 405. In Pennsylvania a field contract providing that the contractor will not permit anyone to file a lien against the premises nor file any lien himself, deprives a subcontractor of power to file a lien. Under Act June 4, 1901 (P. L. 431), as amended by Act April 24, 1903 (P. L. 297), providing that if the legal effect of the contract is that no claim shall be filed by any one such provision shall be binding. Glassport Lumber Co. v. Wolf, 213 Pa. 407, 62 A. 1074.

45. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 1372, providing for a lien on which labor is performed or material furnished, and § 1379, providing for a lien on the land on which a building is constructed, a building removed from land on which it is built without the consent of the owner or lienors is not released from the lien for a deficiency on sale of the land. Sanford v. Kunkel, 30 Utah, 379, 85 P. 863. Such building may be sold on foreclosure of the lien, and, if great injury would thereby result to the land to which it is removed, such land may be sold. Id. Sanford v. Kunkel, 30 Utah, 379, 85 P. 1012.

46. Under Ch. 5143, p. 78, Acts 1903, an assignment by a contractor of the balance to become due under his contract will not defeat a materialman's lien served before completion of the house, and before the owner has paid the balance to the assignee, the balance due being in excess of the lien. Carter v. Brady [Fla.] 41 So. 539.

47. Its only effect is to postpone the claim to liens of other creditors as provided by Code 1904, art. 63, § 31. Fulton v. Parlett [Md.] 64 A. 58.

48. The lien given by Laws 1897, p. 532, c. 418, § 70, to one who repairs, etc. personal property while it remains in his possession, is not lost by the delivery of a portion of articles manufactured under one entire contract. Solomon v. Bok, 49 Misc. 493, 98 N. Y. S. 838. Where a lien for the entire price is sought to be enforced against the articles remaining, the artisan has the burden to prove that the contract was entire. Id. Evidence insufficient to show that the contract was entire. Id.

49. See 6 C. L. 619.

50. That a subcontractor accepts a note from the principal contractor does not preclude his right to a lien. Mivelaz v. Johnson [Ky.] 98 S. W. 1020. The taking of a promisory note for the amount due will not in the absence of agreement extinguish the lien when the note is paid. Belmont Farm v. Dobbs Hardware Co., 124 Ga. 827, 53 S. E. 312.

51. An unexecuted agreement to accept a mortgage as security for payment for work done is not a taking of security within Code Civ. Proc. § 695, precluding the right to a lien where collateral security is taken. Rolewitch v. Harrington [S. D.] 107 N. W. 207.

52. Valley Pine Lumber Co. v. Hodgens [Ark.] 97 S. W. 682.

53. Where property is sold to a lien claimant on foreclosure of the lien and is not redeemed, the property is freed from the lien and the claimant's rights are those of a purchaser only. Van Buskirk v. Summitville Min. Co. [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 208. A materialman who files notice of a lien under Laws 1897, p. 525, c. 418, § 21, against the holder of a building loan mortgage, a second mortgagee and the owner after filing of lis pendens in an action to foreclose the second mortgage, though not a party to the foreclosure proceeding, is bound by the judgment to the extent of all proceedings taken after the lis pendens was filed, as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 7671, and the judgment bars him from foreclosing his lien against the prop-title relates back to the date the lien became effective he is precluded by the doctrine of caveat emptor from recovering damages for injuries to the property by the owner between date of filing the lien and date of sale.[54]

The purpose of a statute providing that one having an interest in property upon which a lien is claimed may have the same dissolved by giving bond, is to allow one who has an interest to free his title from such an incumbrance.[55] In the execution of such bond, statutory requirements must be complied with,[56] and if not complied with the lien claimant is not estopped to assert the invalidity as against a purchaser of the interest who does not show that the lien claimant prior to the purchase informed him that the lien did not attach,[57] nor is he estopped by the fact that the bond was recorded and received by his attorney where it does not appear that the purchaser took, believing the property free from the interest and where he is not shown to have been misled.[58]

§ 10. Remedies and procedure to enforce lien. A. Remedies.[59]—The jurisdiction of a justice of the peace of proceedings to enforce a mechanics' lien is wholly statutory.[60] In Illinois the remedy assimilates to one in chancery.[61] The statutes should be so construed as to admit of the application of the remedy.[62] The suit to foreclose may be the proper subject of a reference.[63] To avoid circuity of action a material-man may sue directly on a contractor's bond conditioned to pay for all material used, though he has a right to enforce a lien.[64] Where property subject to the lien is in the hands of a receiver, granting permission in a suit to foreclose to join the receiver does not authorize sale of the property in such proceedings.[65] In Georgia there can be no foreclosure of lien for materials furnished to a contractor, against the land on which the materials were used in the absence of a valid judgment in his favor against the contractor.[66] The fact that a deed of trust is superior to the lien on the interests of certain co-tenants does not deprive the lien claimants of the right to have the premises sold subject to such trust deed.[67]

Time of bringing action.[68]—As a general rule it is required that action be brought within a specified time after the lien is filed [69] or payment under the conerty. Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. Title Guaranty & Trust Co., 50 Misc. 51, 100 N. Y. S. 299.

54. Van Buskirk v. Summitville Min. Co. [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 208.

55. Rev. Laws, c. 197, § 28. Rockwell v. Kelly, 190 Mass. 439, 77 N. E. 490. Laws 1897, p. 523, c. 418, § 18, provides that a lien shall be discharged if action is not brought within one year from filing of notice, also that it may be discharged by giving bond. Code Civ. Proc. § 3417, provides that it shall be discharged if the lienor does not commence action to enforce it within a specified time after notice given. Held, where it is once discharged by bond, it cannot within one year be again discharged and liability on the bond terminated by notice to sue. Uris v. Brackett Realty Co., 114 App. Div. 29, 99 N. Y. S. 642.

56. Rev. Laws, c. 197, § 28, requires the bond to be approved by a justice or judge, and where the magistrate who approves the bond does not pass on the value of the interest, the bond is void. Rockwell v. Kelly, 190 Mass. 439, 77 N. E. 490.

57, 58. Rockwell v. Kelly, 190 Mass. 439, 77 N. E. 490.

59. See 6 C. L. 619.

60. Under Code 1896, § 2733, a justice has no jurisdiction if the amount exceeds $50. Tolbert v. Falkenberry [Ala.] 40 So. 120. Failure of a petition before a justice to allege that plaintiff had filed notice showing before what justice he would institute the suit, as required by Rev. St. 1899, § 3893, is cured by a recital in the judgment that such notice had been filed. Wissman v. Meagher, 115 Mo. App. 82, 91 S. W. 448.

61, 62. Miller v. Calumet Lumber & Mfg. Co., 121 Ill. App. 56.

63. A suit to enforce a mechanic's lien may be the proper subject of a reference under § 155 of the Practice Act (P. L. 1903, p. 579). New York Metal Ceiling Co. v. Kiernan [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 444.

64. Where a complaint on such bond states a direct and primary cause of action, further allegations attempting to set up a cause by assignment of the bond may be ignored if insufficient. Ochs v. Carnahan Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 788.

65. Baldwin v. Spear Bros. [Vt.] 64 A. 235.

66. Mauck v. Rosser, 126 Ga. 268, 55 S. E. 32.

67. Seely v. Neill [Colo.] 86 P. 334.

68. See 6 C. L. 619.

69. Code Civ. Proc. § 1190, providing that a mechanic's lien shall not be binding for more than ninety days, does not apply only to liens based directly on contract with the owner but to all liens on the property.

tract becomes due.[70] Where an original bill to enforce a lien is filed in time, an amendment filed after expiration of the limitation stating the same cause of action relates back.[71] The statutes allowing the lien which is in force on the date the contract for construction is made, governs as to the right to the lien, and the time for bringing action to enforce it.[72]

(§ 10) B. Parties.[73]—Contractors as well as the owners are proper parties [74] and a guarantor of the proper performance of the contract may be joined,[75] but a sub-contractor who is guarantor of the surety on the contractor's bond conditioned to protect his own liens cannot enforce a lien in a suit which the surety defends.[76]

(§ 10) C. Pleading, practice and evidence. Pleading.[77]—The complaint must conform to statutory requirements [78] and state facts constituting a cause of action under the statute.[79] A complaint need not allege in detail the facts recited

Hughes Bros. v. Hoover [Cal. App.] 84 P. 681. Under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5908, providing that a lien shall not be binding for longer than eight months after the claim is filed, unless action be commenced, an action is not commenced until complaint is filed, under § 4807, though summons is served within such period. Service v. McMahon, 42 Wash. 452, 85 P. 33. Where a contractor defaulted and the owner completed the work as he was authorized to do by the contract, the ninety days' limitation within which to commence action to enforce the lien runs from thirty-five days after completion of the work as provided by the contract and not from the date of abandonment by the contractor. Hughes Bros. v. Hoover [Cal. App.] 84 P. 681. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1190, providing that actions to enforce liens must be commenced within ninety days after completion of the work, where a materialman was to be paid in instalments, the last instalment to fall due thirty-five days after completion of the work, an action commenced within ninety days after maturity of the last payment is in time. Id.

70. Under Laws 1895, p. 225, it is essential that suit be brought or claim filed within four months from the date final payment becomes due under the contract. Eisendrath Co. v. Gebhardt, 222 Ill. 113, 78 N. E. 22. Under a contract providing that work should be complete by July 1, that payments should be made on certificates of the architect, final payment to be made within thirty days after completion of the work, authorizing the architect to make alterations and find balance due, where the certificate of the architect was given October 5, a bill to enforce a lien could be filed within four months thereafter. Id.

71. Eisendrath Co. v. Gebhardt, 222 Ill. 113, 78 N. E. 22. If an amended petition seeks the same lien on the same premises and on the same contract, it is not barred as on a new cause of action. Miller v. Calumet Lumber & Mfg. Co., 121 Ill. App. 56.

72. Eisendrath Co. v. Gebhardt, 222 Ill. 113, 78 N. E. 22.

73. See 6 C. L. 620.

74. Slade v. Amarillo Lumber Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 437, 93 S. W. 475. Under the statutes of South Dakota relative to parties to actions to enforce lines, a nonresident principal contractor is not a necessary party to the enforcement of a subcontractor's lien. Burgi v. Rudgers [S. D.] 108 N. W. 253.

75. In an action to enforce a lien under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 484 and 3399, one liable on the debt as a guarantor of the performance of the contract may be joined. Whisten v. Kellogg, 50 Misc. 409, 100 N. Y. S. 526.

76. Todd v. Franzvog [Wash.] 87 P. 831.

77. See 6 C. L. 620.

78. Complaint held sufficient independent of § 5 of Sess. Laws 1899, p. 261, c. 118, and the constitutionality of such section was not involved. Gutshall v. Kornaley [Colo.] 88 P. 158. A lien under Act June 4, 1901 (P. L. 431), is not defective on the ground that the bill of particulars does not set forth the kind of materials furnished where such fact is shown by other papers in the cause. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Alexandria Water Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 683. An unaccepted order on the owner given by the principal contractor to the materialman is not an assignment of the contract between the owner and contractor and does not need to be filed with the pleadings in an action to enforce a lien. Siegmund v. Kellogg-Mackay-Cameron Co. [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 1096.

79. A statement in a notice of lien filed with and made part of the complaint that a certain amount is due under the contract is insufficient as an allegation of nonpayment. It refers to the time of filing the lien and not to the time of commencing action. McPherson v. Hattich [Ariz.] 85 P. 731. A materialman who attempts to intercept money due the contractor from the owner, as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1184, must allege that he gave the owner notice of his claim. Kruse v. Wilson [Cal. App.] 84 P. 442. In an action on a materialman's lien for materials furnished the subcontractor, who defaulted, an allegation that the principal contractor completed the work is sufficient without alleging that the principal contractor also defaulted and that the owner completed the work, the essential fact being the completion of the work. Martin v. Flahive, 112 App. Div. 347, 98 N. Y. S. 577. Where a complaint to foreclose a lien was in two counts and one contained correct allegations as to the ownership of the property, a demurrer to the entire pleading was properly overruled. Burgi v. Rudgers [S. D.] 108 N. W. 253. In a suit to enforce a lien by a subcontractor's assignee, he pleaded a claim for extras as an amount due from the contractor and not from the owner. Held he was not entitled to recover from the owner on the theory that the work was done and materials furnished at request of the owner engineer. Security Nat. Bank v. St. Croix Power Co., 126 Wis. 370, 105 N. W. 914. A lien exin the statement filed,[80] nor set it out by copy,[81] but must allege facts showing for what the lien is claimed [82] and the validity of the contract upon which it is based.[83] A bill of particulars annexed to the lien statement and filed with it is a part of it.[84] Where the sub-contractor's lien is direct and not worked out by subrogation, he need not allege a balance due to the contractor.[85] Notice by the owner that materials were furnished by a sub-contractor should be pleaded as a fact.[86] Payment is a matter of defense to be made by answer.[87]

Evidence and burden of proof.[88]—The evidence introduced must conform to the pleadings [89] and be competent to establish the issues thereby made.[90] It is competent for the owner to introduce facts showing that the claimant was not entitled to a lien.[91] Notwithstanding a statutory rule that lien laws are to be liberally construed, a lienor has the burden to show that there is a sum to which his lien may attach and that he substantially performed his contract.[92] The owner has the burden of proving damages off-set against the lien.[93]

pressly alleging that materials set forth in a bill of particulars were furnished under a contract is not open to the objection that it does not allege that the material was shipped in accordance with the specifications. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Alexandria Water Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 683. A complaint in an action to enforce a lien which alleges that material was furnished in the construction of buildings on the land need not allege that the land sought to be subjected to the lien was necessary for the convenient use of the buildings. Seely v. Neill [Colo.] 86 P. 334.

80. McGeever v. Harris & Sons [Ala.] 41 So. 930.

81. Under Act June 4, 1901 (P. L. 431), an averment of the date when and the manner in which a notice to the owner is served is sufficient without setting out a copy of the notice in the claim itself. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Alexandria Water Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 683.

82. One seeking to enforce a contractor's lien who does not allege that he is entitled to a lien as materialman may not enforce a lien for materials used in constructing a scaffold. Gates v. O'Gara [Ala.] 39 So. 729. One seeking to enforce a lien may not recover on an allegation of full performance if any material part of it remains unfinished. Id.

83. A complaint alleging that materials were furnished in pursuance of a contract with defendant through and by her husband sufficiently alleges the agency of the husband. McGeever v. Harris & Sons [Ala.] 41 So. 930.

84. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Alexandria Water Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 683.

85. Robertson Lumber Co. v. State Bank [N. D.] 105 N. W. 719.

86. An allegation that a materialman had by registered letter notified the owner that "said materials" (they being elsewhere pleaded) had been furnished is not objectionable as a conclusion that the owner had notice. Robertson Lumber Co. v. State Bank [N. D.] 105 N. W. 719.

87. Robertson Lumber Co. v. State Bank [N. D.] 105 N. W. 719.

88. See 6 C. L. 621.

89. Under a complaint alleging due performance of the contract, an answer claiming damages for delay in performance, and a reply setting up that the delay was because of obstructions by the owner, it is not competent for the claimant to introduce evidence of excuses for delay. Hecla Iron Works v. Hall, 100 N. Y. S. 696. Under a complaint which does not allege that the principal contractor promised to pay the subcontractor's workman, nor facts on which such a promise could be based, it is not permissible to introduce evidence of such promise. Murphy v. City of Watertown, 112 App. Div. 670, 99 N. Y. S. 6. On a complaint to enforce a lien against one in possession as ostensible owner, it is not permissible to introduce a record of claim against his wife as owner. Jennings, Gresham & Co. v. Huggins, 125 Ga. 338, 54 S. E. 169. Nor can such action be converted into one against the wife by an amendment that her husband acted as her agent. Id.

90. In proceedings to enforce a materialman's lien under § 7101, Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, a general denial of the lien puts the lien claimant on proof of the amount actually due. Lee v. Storz Brewing Co. [Neb.] 106 N. W. 220. An answer in an action to enforce a lien alleging that on demand by defendant for a statement of the amount due a partial statement was furnished, but not alleging that defendant was thereby misled to her injury, does not present an issue of estoppel to claim the full amount due. Big Horn Lumber Co. v. Davis, 14 Wyo. 455, 84 P. 900, 85 P. 1048.

91. Where a contractor was required to furnish materials, the owner may show that he had paid for materials furnished in order to save his property from liens. Gates v. O'Gara [Ala.] 39 So. 729. Where pay for material above what was embraced in the contract is claimed, it was not error to ask the claimant if he was not to furnish such material. Id.

92. Brandt v. Burke, 110 App. Div. 396, 97 N. Y. S. 280. A materialman who seeks to enforce a lien for materials furnished a subcontractor against the principal contractor, who undertook to complete the work, and the owner who completed on default by the principal contractor, has the burden to show the cost of completing the contract. Martin v. Flahive, 112 App. Div. 347, 98 N. Y. S. 577. Under a contract providing that if the contractor failed to perform the owner might finish the work and deduct the expense from the contract price, when the

Questions of law and fact.[94]—

(§ 10) D. Judgments, costs and attorney's fees.[95]—As a general rule the proceeding to enforce a lien is one in rem, but in some states it is provided that a personal judgment may be rendered,[96] but where there is no lien there can be no personal judgment,[97] and where a sub-contractor is seeking to enforce his lien against a contractor, a personal judgment against the owner is not proper.[98] The judgement must be predicated on a finding on all the material issues [99] and must be within the jurisdiction of the court by which it is rendered.[1] The decree need not join a contractor who is beyond the jurisdiction.[2] Relief will not be denied because of a trifling omission in the performance of the contract where it has been substantially performed.[3] A judgment may be had in some cases though the valid-owner did so, the evidence was held to show that there was nothing due the contractor when his lien was filed. Condon v. Church of St. Augustine, 112 App. Div. 168, 98 N. Y. S. 253. Where defects in the work were the result of the owner's negligence, and on his refusal to stand the expense of repairing it the contractor abandoned his work and asserted a lien for what he had done and alleged that the abandonment was because of the owner's refusal to make payments when due, and not that it was because he had refused to stand such expense, the contractor could not recover where the owner successfully proved that the work had not been substantially performed. Brandt v. Burke, 110 App. Div. 396, 97 N. Y. S. 280. A materialman seeking to enforce a lien has the burden of proof and his account must be so kept that it can be clearly ascertained what is chargeable against the building. Knudson-Jacob Co. v. Brandt [Wash.] 87 P. 43. A laborer who claims a lien on a bale of cotton has the burden to show that such bale was not included in a trust deed sought to be foreclosed. McCarty v. Key, 87 Miss. 248, 39 So. 780. In a suit to enforce a lien, findings that the contractor did not fully perform his contract and making deduction therefor, that the labor and materials furnished were worth a certain amount, are not inconsistent with findings that the contractor attempted in good faith to perform and had done so substantially. Bergfors v. Caron, 190 Mass. 168, 76 N. E. 655. In a suit for an accounting and to enforce a lien for railroad construction work, the complainant was held entitled to a discovery of books in defendant's possession necessary to establish his cause of action. Utah Const. Co. v. Montana R. Co., 145 F. 981.

93. Miller v. Calumet Lumber & Mfg. Co., 121 Ill. App. 56.

94. Whether numerous buildings were built under two distinct contracts or under an original and a modified contract held a question of fact. Fleck v. Collins, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 443. On undisputed facts it is a law question what work is new and what repairing. Porter v. Weightman, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 488.

95. See 6 C. L. 621.

96. Under Comp. Laws, § 10723, authorizing a personal decree only when a portion of the lien remains unpaid, a defendant in a suit to enforce a lien may maintain a cross-bill for damages for failure to perform the contract according to its terms. Koch v. Sumner [Mich.] 3 Det. Leg. N. 487, 108 N. W. 725. Code 1896, § 2739, expressly provides that where the evidence shows a personal liability a judgment both in personam and in rem is to be rendered. McGeever v. Harris & Sons [Ala.] 41 So. 930.

97. Under a contract requiring an architect's certificate as a condition precedent to the contractor's right to payment, the contractor cannot recover a personal judgment in an action to enforce a lien without proof that he had obtained the certificate. Thompson-Starrett Co. v. Brooklyn Heights Realty Co., 111 App. Div. 358, 98 N. Y. S. 128. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 3412, providing that if a lienor fails to prove his lien he may have judgment for an amount found due him, a personal judgment is not authorized where the claimant never could have had a lien. Id. Code Civ. Proc. § 3412, expressly provides that a personal judgment may be had against the contractor only where a valid lien is not established. Murphy v. City of Watertown, 112 App. Div. 670, 99 N. Y. S. 6.

98. Ponti v. Eckels [Wis.] 108 N. W. 62.

99. Where in a suit to foreclose a lien the answer put in issue the material allegations, and a cross complaint for damages for failure to complete the contract was filed, and the jury brought in a general verdict for the plaintiff which the court set aside and entered, judgment without making further findings, held that as the jury did not find on all material issues the judgment must be set aside. Sandstrom v. Smith [Idaho] 86 P. 416. Decree held to have found the amount due the contractor. Miller v. Calumet Lumber & Mfg. Co., 121 Ill. App. 56.

1. Municipal Court Act, Laws 1902, p. 1488, c. 580, § 1, gives such court no power to adjudge priority of liens nor to permit another lienor to be made a party and establish his lien. Drall v. Gordon, 101 N. Y. S. 171. Under Laws 1902, p. 1488, c. 580, § 1, a municipal court may render judgment for the amount due and declare it a valid lien, but may not render judgment for foreclosure and sale. Id.

2. Statute construed. Miller v. Calumet Lumber & Mfg. Co., 121 Ill. App. 56.

3. Hahn v. Bonacum [Neb.] 107 N. W. 1001. Evidence sufficient to show substantial performance. Id. In a suit to enforce a lien, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding in favor of the claimant for an amount greater than found by the trial court. Id. Where a contractor intended in good faith to fulfill his contract but by inadvertence failed to furnish articles and work which could be remedied for a small amount, he is entitled to recover the contract price less such amount. Burgi v. Rud-

ity of the lien is not established.[4] In a suit to sell land to satisfy mechanics' and judgment liens, and also a subsequent trust lien which covers a part only of the land, it is error to decree a sale of the property as a whole,[5] and in an action against the owner and the contractor of property subject to mechanics' liens, it is error to decree to one who had no lien a charge on the "residue" of proceeds of the property after paying liens.[6] An order striking off a lien is a final disposition of a scire facias on the lien.[7]

Where the amount of the claim depends on reasonable value and cannot be ascertained by mere mathematical calculation, it is unliquidated and does not bear interest.[8]

Costs and attorney's fees.[9]—The fees of an attorney of one who institutes foreclosure proceedings may not be allowed out of the fund where claims of other lien holders are antagonistic and are represented by other attorneys.[10] Excessive attorney's fees should not be awarded.[11] An additional allowance for attorney's fees will not be made by the supreme court on appeal in an action to foreclose a lien.[12] In awarding costs the discretion of the court should be exercised fairly.[13]

§ 11. Indemnification against liens.[14]—A surety for the performance of the conditions of a contract is liable where the contractor defaults and the county for which the work was being done pays liens of laborers and material-men.[15]

MEDICINE AND SURGERY

§ 1. Public Regulation of the Business of Treating Disease (972). Revocation of License or Professional Status (974). Expulsion from Society (975). Prosecutions for Violations of Regulative Acts (975).
§ 2. Malpractice (977). Negligence by Nurses (977). Damages (978). Malpractice by Nonmedical Practitioners (978). Remedies and Procedure (978).
§ 3. Recovery of Compensation (979).
§ 4. Negligent Homicide by Physician (980).
§ 5. Regulation of the Keeping and Sale of Drugs and Medicines (980).
§ 6. Tort Liability of Druggists (980).

§ 1. Public regulation of the business of treating disease[15a] by legislation properly enacted[16] and consonant with the organic plan of the state[17] and its in-gers [S. D.] 108 N. W. 253. Where a claim arose from construction of improvements on one lot and a portion of an adjoining one, but the statement only claimed a lien on one lot, the lienor was entitled to have his entire claim paid out of such lot. Perkins v. Boyd [Colo.] 86 P. 1045.

4. Rev. St. 1898, § 3324, expressly provides that where plaintiff in an action to establish a lien fails to do so but establishes a right to recover, he may have judgment against the party liable. Ponti v. Eckels [Wis.] 108 N. W. 62. Where the owner tenders a sum less than is claimed, he admits the validity of the lien to that extent, and enforcement should be so decreed though it is adjudged that the lien is invalid. Cameron & Co. v. Campbell [C. C. A.] 141 F. 32.

5. O'Neil v. Taylor, 59 W. Va. 370, 63 S. E. 471.

6. Where a materialman filed no lien, he has no claim against the owner and a judgment to be satisfied out of the "residue" after sale of the property is erroneous. Hampton v. Christensen, 148 Cal. 729, 84 P. 200.

7. Orr v. Rogers, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 175.

8. Fox v. Davidson, 111 App. Div. 174, 97 N. Y. S. 603.

9. See 6 C. L. 621.

10. Title Guaranty & Trust Co. v. Burdette [Md.] 66 A. 341.

11. It is error to decree as part of plaintiff's costs $300 attorney's fees. O'Neil v. Taylor, 59 W. Va. 370, 53 S. E. 471.

12. Sweatt v. Hunt, 42 Wash. 96, 84 P. 1.

13. Though it is within the discretion of the court to award costs to the prevailing party, it is an abuse of discretion to tax the entire costs against subcontractors who were merely standing on their legal rights, where the main controversy was between the owner and principal contractor. Condon v. Church of St. Augustine, 112 App. Div. 168, 98 N. Y. S. 253.

14. See 6 C. L. 621.

15. Allen County v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 356, 93 S. W. 44.

15a. See 6 C. L. 622.

16. Statute regulating the practice of medicine and surgery is sufficient to uphold the provision making violations punishable as misdemeanors. Act May 18, 1893, P. L. 94. Commonwealth v. Clymer, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 61. Sess. Acts 1897, p. 166, construed. State v. Doerring, 194 Mo. 398, 92 S. W. 489.

17. Does not confer judicial power on administrative body. Spurgeon v. Rhodes [Ind.] 78 N. E. 228. The Dentistry Act is not an infringement on the judiciary. State v. Doerring, 194 Mo. 398, 92 S. W. 489.

ternal policy as laid down in the constitution [18] is within the recognized police power,[19] and, as such, the revocation of a license may be "due process" though not accomplished judicially,[20] and though there is no provision for judicial appeal.[21] The matters committed to a state board must be couched in terms of such definiteness and certainty as constitute an ordained limit to their discretion.[22] Their power is to execute the legislative will as defined, and the making of rules thereto is not legislation.[23] Such regulative power extends only to such matters as concern public welfare; it does not reach internal management of professional schools.[24] Hence, it cannot control rates of tuition or forbid rebates of same or forbid matriculants from making up any deficiencies in their entrance qualifications,[25] and the practice of allowing matriculants to make up deficiencies during their early schooling being a common one and not being forbidden in a statute fixing qualifications is impliedly approved.[26] A law forbidding physicians to solicit patients through paid agents, is valid.[27]

The state board in Alabama has full authority to prescribe rules and regulations governing the issuance of certificates to practitioners,[28] and countersignature by a particular officer of the state board required by their rule is a condition precedent to the validity of a certificate or license to practice.[29] The Kentucky Dentistry act of 1904 does not require a dentist who prior to its passage had received his certificate and had it registered in the county of his residence, to again have it registered in the county or counties in which he practices,[30] A "reputable" college is one worthy of good repute and not merely esteemed so,[31] and reputability is distinct from and in addition to the requisites, of such a college and of its instruction.[32] The right to practice medicine is, like the right to practice any other profession, a valuable property right in which one is entitled to be protected and secured.[33] One having practiced in a state before removing therefrom does not thereby secure a vested right to practice therein whenever he may see proper [34] but is bound to conform to the laws in force at the time he undertakes to engage in the practice.[35] The mere fact that the remedies prescribed by a person in the state are sent from another

18. Comp. St. 1903, c. 65, art. 1, § 14, not void in that fees payable thereby are not required to be turned into state treasury. Munk v. Frink [Neb.] 106 N. W. 425.

19. Statutes prescribing the qualifications of practitioners and otherwise regulating the practice. Spurgeon v. Rhodes [Ind.] 78 N. E. 228. Code, §§ 2579, 2580. State v. Wilhite [Iowa] 109 N. W. 730; Thompson v. Van Lear, 77 Ark. 506, 92 S. W. 773; State v. Kendig [Iowa] 110 N. W. 463. Act of May 18, 1893 (P. L. 94), is constitutional. Commonwealth v. Densten, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 631. The practice of dental surgery is a profession or calling requiring special skill within the rule. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472. The Dentistry Act is not invalid as a deprivation of property without due process of law. State v. Doerring, 194 Mo. 398, 92 S. W. 489. Dentistry Law does not grant special privileges or immunities. Act July 1, 1905 (Laws 1905, p. 321), §§ 3, 5, construed. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472.

20. Pub. Acts 1899, p. 372, No. 237, § 3, subd. 6. Kennedy v. State Board, etc., in Medicine [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 431, 108 N. W. 730. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 7322. Spurgeon v. Rhodes [Ind.] 78 N. E. 229, citing 2 C. L. 887, 888. It does not become judicial merely because an appeal is given. Spurgeon v. Rhodes [Ind.] 78 N. E. 228.

21. All that is necessary is that remedy in court be given for the infraction of a guaranteed right, but the statute need not give this. It exists even when the statute is silent. Kennedy v. State Board, etc., in Medicine [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 431, 108 N. W. 730.

22. Hewitt v. State Board of Medical Exam'rs, 148 Cal. 590, 84 P. 39.

23, 24, 25, 26. State v. Chittenden, 127 Wis. 468, 107 N. W. 500.

27. Acts 1903, p. 342, held valid. Thompson v. Van Lear, 77 Ark. 506, 92 S. W. 773.

28. Code 1896, §§ 3262, 5333, construed. Brooks v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 156.

29. Rule of State Medical Board held valid under Code 1896, §§ 3262, 5333. Brooks v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 156.

30. Registration in the county of practice is required of all subsequent thereto. Commonwealth v. Nevill, 29 Ky. L. R. 108, 92 S. W. 550. The law on the subject of practicing dentistry in Kentucky is to be determined from four different acts, namely, Act April 8, 1878 (1 Acts 1877-1878, p. 97, c. 847), May 10, 1886 (2 Acts 1885-1886, p. 523, c. 1017), May 1, 1893 (Ky. St. 1903, § 2636), and March 17, 1904 (Acts 1904, p. 92, c. 32). Id.

31, 32. State v. Chittenden, 127 Wis. 468, 107 N. W. 500.

33. Hewitt v. State Board of Medical Exam'rs, 148 Cal. 590, 84 P. 39.

34, 35. State v. Davis, 194 Mo. 485, 92 S. W. 484.

state does not negative the idea that the person prescribing was practicing or attempting to practice in the state.[36]

Revocation of license or professional status.[37]—To warrant revocation of license misconduct must be in some respect inimicial to the health, safety, or morals, of the public.[38] Felonious or grossly immoral conduct [39] and advertising of fraudulent, improbable, or misleading kind,[40] are among the grounds. The Wisconsin statute is retroactive on licenses antedating the law but procured by fraud,[41] and being not in respect to crime, is not objectionable as ex post facto,[42] but as to causes arising subsequently there must be a preordained ground of some certainty of meaning.[43] Where the unprofessional conduct must have been of a character likely to deceive and defraud the public, the proof must show that it had such likelihood.[44] Statutes of limitation of actions for penalties and forfeitures have no application to proceedings for revocation of licenses to practice when the ground of revocation is fraud in procurement thereof,[45] and in Wisconsin there is no bar to such action.[46] Revocation proceedings, though grounded on misconduct amounting to crime, are not criminal, and the guaranties pertinent to prosecutions for crime are inapplicable.[47] If the revocation is effected by action in the name of the state, the state board is not a proper party.[48] On its own motion or on petition of a college of which it has jurisdiction, the state dental board of Wisconsin may determine reputability of a college,[49] and, when so determined, the status of the college as a "reputable" one presumptively continues.[50] When action is taken destructive of an accredited standing, notice should first be given though the statute is silent in that regard.[51] The complaint should apprise the licensee of the nature of the charge and of the particular misdoing on which it is founded.[52] Thus, a complaint charging a licensee in words denominating a crime and particularizing the acts done by him as such crime is sufficient. Ordinarily injunction does not lie to prevent action of the state board toward revoking a license pursuant to the power conferred.[53] An injunction if proper in such case will not issue unless the imminence, illegality, and irreparability, of a threatened revocation are clearly shown by the evidence,[54] and the fact that the 36. Under Sess. Acts 1901, pp. 207-208, §§ 1, 4, 5. State v. Davis, 194 Mo. 485, 92 S. W. 484.

37. See 6 C. L. 625.

38. Hewitt v. State Board of Medical Exam'rs, 148 Cal. 590, 84 P. 39.

39. Statutes providing for revocation when the holder has been guilty of felony or gross immorality are valid. Spurgeon v. Rhodes [Ind.] 78 N. E. 228.

40. Under Pub. Acts 1899, p. 372, No. 237, § 3, subd. 6. Kennedy v. State Board, etc., in Medicine [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 431, 108 N. W. 730. A statutory provision declaring all advertising of medical business in which grossly improbable statements are made to constitute unprofessional conduct, without defining "grossly improbable statements," is void for uncertainty. Hewitt v. State Board of Medical Exam'rs, 148 Cal. 590, 84 P. 39.

41. Laws 1905, p. 726, c. 422, held to authorize a revocation of license issued prior to its passage for fraud in its procurement. State v. Schaeffer [Wis.] 109 N. W. 522.

42. State v. Schaeffer [Wis.] 109 N. W. 522.

43. The power to revoke a license when conferred on a board must be declared with such certainty and definiteness as to the grounds that the practitioner may know before hand what they are. Provision of St. 1901, p. 56, c. 51, held void in part for uncertainty in making the publication of "grossly improbable statements" a ground. Hewitt v. State Board of Medical Exam'rs, 148 Cal. 590, 84 P. 39.

44. Evidence held insufficient to show that advertisements of "Electric cure" were fraudulent and false. Macomber v. State Board of Health [R. I.] 65 A. 263.

45, 46. State v. Schaeffer [Wis.] 109 N. W. 522.

47. Jury trial compulsory process for witnesses and indictment not essential. Spurgeon v. Rhodes [Ind.] 78 N. E. 228.

48. State v. Schaeffer [Wis.] 109 N. W. 522.

49, 50. State v. Chittenden, 127 Wis. 468, 107 N. W. 500.

51. Ruling that college is no longer reputable. State v. Chittenden, 127 Wis. 468, 107 N. W. 500.

52. Charge was of procuring an "abortion," the particulars whereof were then given. Munk v. Frink [Neb.] 106 N. W. 425.

53. Spurgeon v. Rhodes [Ind.] 78 N. E. 228.

54. Verified bill on "information and belief" not enough even though hearing was on notice to defendants, they presenting affidavits that they were unprejudical. Spurgeon v. Rhodes [Ind.] 78 N. E. 228. Statements made by attorney of board as to what the board would do on trial of charges is not competent against them. Id.

evidence was procured by one secretly in the service of the state board,[55] which person has absented himself and will be absent at the hearing,[56] will not invoke such relief. While medical boards which proceed on accusation and hearing to revoke licenses may belong to the executive branch, their action has a "judicial" character making it reviewable as such[57] and the same is true of their other decisions of fact,[58] but prohibition will not issue to such a board.[59] A dental college though not a record party to a proceeding to license one of its graduates is directly aggrieved and may bring certiorari to a decision denying such college further recognition as reputable.[60] Such certiorari will reach neither the merits of a ruling within the jurisdiction nor a ruling which is wholly a usurpation.[61] The decision of the state dental board of Wisconsin acting fairly and reasonably and on evidence is conclusive on the merits of the matters committed to it.[62] On a certiorari an applicant who has been refused a license for failure to make the required grade cannot have his papers reexamined and regraded.[63] The reviewing courts cannot on a silent record take judicial notice of the falsity of extravagant claims for inventions or discoveries.[64]

Expulsion from society.—A society of professional persons may legally expel members thereof for unprofessional conduct,[65] and such expulsion is irremediable in the courts when the authority of the society is not transcended and no fraud or bad faith is shown,[66] the question of what constitutes unprofessional conduct being one for the society to determine;[67] nor is it essential that the evidence on which charges are based shall be submitted to the whole society.[68]

Prosecutions for violations of regulative acts.[69]—The criminal "practice of medicine" without license means the practice of it as commonly understood,[70] and a corporate charter to teach a system of healing but limiting acts thereunder to be done in accordance with law is no shield for an individual practicing medicine without a license, even though the charter purports to authorize such practice as pertains to his school.[71] A statute providing a penalty for any person practicing unless previously registered or licensed to practice in the state applies to the case of one unlawfully practicing prior to and at the time of its taking effect who thereafter practices in violation thereof.[72] A license must have every legal requisite to constitute a defense[73] and one asserting previous registration within an excepting clause must show registration at the time to which the exception applies.[74] Wrongful

55, 56. Spurgeon v. Rhodes [Ind.] 78 N. E. 228.

57. Code Civ. Proc. § 580, allows error to district court. Munk v. Frink [Neb.] 106 N. W. 425. Hence, a provision for certiorari [writ of review] as the exclusive remedy for an adverse decision by the board is warranted. Act March 3, 1899 (Sess. Laws 1899, p. 345), construed. Raaf v. State Board of Medical Exam'rs, 11 Idaho, 707, 84 P. 33. The authority of the Wisconsin Dentistry board under Laws 1903, p. 664, c. 411, to pass on the reputability of colleges, is neither legislative nor judicial, but quasi-judicial. State v. Chittenden, 127 Wis. 468, 107 N. W. 500.

58. Annulment of standing of dental college. State v. Chittenden, 127 Wis. 468, 107 N. W. 500.

59. It is not a judicial body or tribunal. State v. Goodier [Mo.] 93 S. W. 928.

60, 61, 62. State v. Chittenden, 127 Wis. 468, 107 N. W. 500.

63. Raaf v. State Board of Medical Exam'rs, 11 Idaho, 707, 84 P. 33.

64. Hence, when a charge of gross unprofessional conduct or conduct likely to defraud the public is based on such claims, evidence must be adduced to show their falsity or deceptive character. Macomber v. State Board of Health [R. I.] 65 A. 263.

65, 66. Bryant v. District of Columbia Dental Soc., 26 App. D. C. 461.

67. Charges based on falsely writing about and making charges of unprofessional conduct against his fellow members. Bryant v. District of Columbia Dental Soc., 26 App. D. C. 461.

68. Bryant v. District of Columbia Dental Soc., 26 App. D. C. 461.

69. See 6 C. L. 625.

70. State v. Heffernan [R. I.] 65 A. 284. Evidence held to show practice by one unlearned in medicine who gave treatments free but charged for a "nerve food" and for "massage." Id.

71. State v. Heffernan [R. I.] 65 A. 284.

72. Act July 1, 1905 (Laws 1905, p. 320), § 3, construed. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472.

73. Lacked countersignature. Brooks v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 156.

74. Registration under the Pennsylvania Act of June 8, 1891, was by the act expressly required to be made prior to March 1, 1894.

refusal of the board of examiners to issue a license to practice is no defense to a prosecution for practicing without a license,[75] nor is the fact that others are equally guilty.[76] One who has had no certificate or license to practice cannot attack the validity of a law on the ground that it confers an unlimited right of discretion to a particular body in granting and revoking licenses.[77]

A regulation penalizing the failure of physicians in charge of contagious disease cases to report the same to the board of health within a limited time does not apply when the physician merely diagnoses and refuses to treat.[78]

The indictment must be particular and certain enough to give accused notice of what will be produced against him at the trial.[79] If the statute defines the offense, its words may be used.[80] The indictment need not set forth the names of the accused's patients [81] nor aver that accused was not within a class excepted from the operation of the statute,[82] nor need a practicing on or prescribing for human beings be averred as contradistinguished from furnishing medicine for domestic animals.[83] The rule against charging several distinct and separate offenses in a single count does not prevent charging contemporaneous acts which together constitute the offense.[84] The burden is on accused to show in defense that he had a license.[85] As to medical matters of judicial knowledge, the court may use standard books as an aid to memory.[86] What amounts to practicing is not the subject of expert testimony.[87] On the issue of no license it is irrelevant that accused had a diploma,[88] or that he had practiced for a long time,[89] or that others practiced without license fully authenticated.[90] When defendant takes the stand he may be required to state the ingredients of a lotion administered by him,[91] and this is true even though the lotion is a secret compound and accused's own private property.[92] The evidence must show a "practicing." [93]

Instructions must not assume as true disputed facts as to whether the substance sold or administered was a drug.[94] The general law for commitment for nonpayment of fines applies in Illinois to fines for practicing dentistry without license.[95]

Registration in 1897 held unavailing. Commonwealth v. Densten, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 631.

75. State v. Doerring, 194 Mo. 398, 92 S. W. 489.

76. State v. Wilhite [Iowa] 109 N. W. 730; Brooks v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 156.

77. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472.

78. Charitable dispensary physician held not in charge of a contagious disease case brought to him for diagnosis and treatment at the dispensary, within Act Cong. Dec. 20, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 691, c. 25). Johnson v. District of Columbia, 27 App. D. C. 259.

79. State v. Wilson [Vt.] 65 A. 88.

80. Indictment for practicing medicine without a license in violation of Code, §§ 2579, 2580, held sufficiently certain. State v. Wilhite [Iowa] 109 N. W. 730; State v. Kendig [Iowa] 110 N. W. 463. Charge that accused "did hold himself out to the public as a practicing physician in this state," held to state no crime under the Vermont statutes. State v. Wilson [Vt.] 65 A. 88.

81. State v. Doerring, 194 Mo. 398, 92 S. W. 489.

82. State v. Doerring, 194 Mo. 398, 92 S. W. 489; State v. Kendig [Iowa] 110 N. W. 463.

83. Under Code, §§ 2579, 2580. State v. Kendig [Iowa] 110 N. W. 463.

84. Indictment for practicing medicine without a license held sufficient. State v. Wilhite [Iowa] 109 N. W. 730.

85. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472. Hence, error cannot be predicated on the admission of parol evidence to prove the state of the registration record. Commonwealth v. Clymer, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 61.

86. A standard medical dictionary is proper for this purpose on a prosecution for practicing medicine without a license, as an aid to the memory and understanding of the court. State v. Wilhite [Iowa] 109 N. W. 730.

87. State v. Heffernan [R. I.] 65 A. 284.

88, 89. Brooks v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 156.

90. Could not show that other physicians were practicing in violation of the rule requiring certificates to be countersigned by a member of the board. Brooks v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 156.

91, 92. State v. Heffernan [R. I.] 65 A. 284.

93. Held sufficient. State v. Kendig [Iowa] 110 N. W. 463. Evidence held to show a practicing of medicine within Code, § 2580, forbidding practice without a license. State v. Wilhite [Iowa] 109 N. W. 730. To show that accused had engaged in the practice of medicine within Gen. Laws 1896, c. 165, as amended by c. 926, p. 336, Public Laws 1900-1901. State v. Heffernan [R. I.] 65 A. 284.

94. Charge that a person who uses neither drugs, medicine, or surgery, cannot be said to engage in the practice of medicine, was properly refused as assuming that a certain lotion was not a medicine. State v. Heffernan [R. I.] 65 A. 284.

95. Cr. Code, § 14, div. 14. Kettles v. People, 221 Ill. 221, 77 N. E. 472.

§ 2. Malpractice.[96]—In the absence of special contract, a practitioner is only required to exercise such reasonable and ordinary skill and diligence as are ordinarily exercised by the average of the members of the profession in good standing, in similar localities, and in the same general line of practice, regard being had to the state of medical science at the time.[97, 98] He is not required to use the highest degree of skill and diligence possible,[99] and is never considered as warranting a cure in the absence of a special contract for that purpose,[1] and is not liable for an error of judgment [2] unless it is so gross as to be inconsistent with that degree of skill which it is the duty of a practitioner to possess.[3] Ordinarily, consent of a patient or some one authorized to act in his behalf must be obtained as a prerequisite to the legal right of a practitioner to perform an operation [4] but exceptions to the rule have been suggested,[5] and the absence of the father's consent to an operation on an infant, killed by the anaesthetic, has been held not to give a cause of action for death in favor of the infant's estate.[6] Persons who, pretending to be a corporation not eligible to license, engage in dentistry are personally liable for malpractice by a servant.[7]

Negligence by nurses.—The lessor of a sanitarium who had relinquished his interest prior to a negligent act of a nurse therein cannot be held for the damage caused thereby, though the patient injured had been admitted prior to the execution of the lease,[8] but the lessee in charge at the time of the negligent act is responsible.[9] The management of a sanitarium is responsible for the negligence of a nurse furnished for attention to a patient admitted for treatment by an outside physician.[10] A physician is not liable for the negligence of a nurse employed by a patient resulting in injury to the patient unless with knowledge of the negligent act he fails to protect the patient.[11]

A medical witness who through negligence injures the cause of his employer is liable for the damage caused thereby.[12]

96. See 6 C. L. 626.

97, 98. Dye v. Corbin, 59 W. Va. 266, 53 S. E. 147. The standard of skill and learning required is limited to that ordinarily possessed by those practicing in similar localities. Ferrell v. Ellis, 129 Iowa, 614, 105 N. W. 993. Instruction in action against surgeon for malpractice in setting dislocated arm omitting limitation as to locality, held prejudicial from fact that surgeons from towns and cities ranging in population from 690 to 5,000 testified while the town wherein defendant practiced was too small to find place in the same census enumeration. Id.

99. Dye v. Corbin, 59 W. Va. 266, 53 S. E. 147.

1. Champion v. Kieth [Okl.] 87 P. 845. In action for malpractice the success of the operation is not the criterion of defendant's liability, but the real standard is the exercise of proper care. Awde v. Cole [Minn.] 109 N. W. 812. Failure to effect a cure does not alone raise a presumption of want of skill or negligence on the part of the practitioner. Dye v. Corbin, 59 W. Va. 266, 53 S. E. 147. The exercise of a reasonable degree of skill and care exonerates the practitioner, irrespective of results. Peterson v. Wells, 41 Wash. 693, 84 P. 608. A physician in setting a broken limb does not undertake to effect a cure or restore the limb to its normal condition. Id.

2. Where a practitioner exercises ordinary skill and diligence, keeping within recognized and approved methods, he is not liable for the result of a mere mistake of judgment. Dye v. Corbin, 59 W. Va. 266, 53 S. E. 147.

3. Dye v. Corbin, 59 W. Va. 266, 53 S. E. 147.

4. Evidence held insufficient to raise an implication of consent to the removal of plaintiff's uterus. Pratt v. Davis, 224 Ill. 300, 79 N. E. 562, afg. 118 Ill. App. 161.

5. As where the patient desires or consents that an operation be performed and unexpected conditions develop or are discovered in the course of the operation (Pratt v. Davis, 224 Ill. 300, 79 N. E. 562, afg. 118 Ill. App. 161), or in cases of emergencies, when action must be taken immediately for the preservation of life or health and it is impracticable to obtain consent (Id.).

6. Where a surgical operation is undertaken to be performed on an infant without the express consent of the father and the infant dies as the result of the preliminary administration of an anaesthetic, no cause of action necessarily arises in favor of the deceased's administrator for the death so caused under the Michigan Death Act, there being no want of skill disclosed. Bakker v. Welsh, 144 Mich. 632, 13 Det. Leg. N. 372, 108 N. W. 94.

7. Mandeville v. Courtright [C. C. A.] 142 F. 97.

8, 9, 10. Stanley v. Shumpert, 117 La. 255, 41 So. 565.

11. As where a nurse placed a hot stone under the patient's legs and burnt them. Awde v. Cole [Minn.] 109 N. W. 812.

12. Hence, such negligence is defensive

Damages.[13]—A physician's liability for malpractice in the treatment of an injury caused by the negligence of a third person is not necessarily less than that of the first tort feasor.[14] In suing for permanent injury from the negligent setting of a bone, matters relating to a resection to give plaintiff better results are not within the issues.[15] Since the law infers pain and suffering from personal injury, direct proof of pain and suffering is not required to warrant assessment of actual damages in an action for removal of an important organ of the body without consent of the patient.[16] Pain is ordinarily an element of damages, but it must be within the issues.[17] Exemplary damages are recoverable for a proved trespass to the person, as by performing an operation and removing an important bodily organ without the patient's consent,[18] or when a reckless disregard of consequences is shown to have existed.[19] As in other cases the amount of damages is largely for the jury.[20] A patient at a sanitarium who through the mistake of a nurse in charge is caused intense suffering is entitled to nominal damages therefor, though the suffering was only momentary and resulted in no other injury.[21] For an operation performed without consent of the patient, it is immaterial in Illinois that the form of action adopted is trespass on the case rather than trespass.[22]

Malpractice by nonmedical practitioners.[23] Remedies and procedure.—The general rule as to the sufficiency of an allegation of negligence obtains in actions for malpractice.[24] The burden is on plaintiff to prove negligence [25] by sufficient [26] evidence, and on defendant to show binding consent to an operation.[27] A court cannot say as a matter of common knowledge that a dentist's negligence in allowing an matter in an action for compensation. Coyne v. Baker, 2 Cal. App. 640, 84 P. 269.

13. See generally, Damages, 7 C. L. 1029.

14. Froman v. Ayars, 42 Wash. 385, 85 P. 14.

15. Evidence as to cost of resection held inadmissible. Albertson v. Lewis [Iowa] 109 N. W. 705. Instruction permitting recovery for expense of resection operation held erroneous. Id.

16. As to removal of the uterus and ovaries. Pratt v. Davis, 224 Ill. 300, 79 N. E. 562, afg. 118 Ill. App. 161.

17. In an action for malpractice in setting a bone, where the only matter appearing on which a charge of negligence could be sustained was the imperfect opposition and no evidence that any pain suffered or to be suffered might be due to that, the matter of a possible future operation not being in the case, no recovery could be had for pain and suffering. Albertson v. Lewis [Iowa] 109 N. W. 705.

18. Pratt v. Davis, 224 Ill. 300, 79 N. E. 562, afg. 118 Ill. App. 161.

19. Where an unlicensed dentist extracted from plaintiff's jaw what he supposed to be a root or process, but what was, in fact, a portion of the jaw bone, a verdict for $4,000 including $1,500 exemplary damages was warranted. Mandeville v. Courtright [C. C. A.] 142 F. 97.

20. Five thousand dollars held not excessive damages for amputation of left leg of one classifiable as a common laborer whose life expectancy was twenty-six years. Froman v. Ayars, 42 Wash. 385, 85 P. 14.

21. As by the use of pure alcohol for dropping in the eye, when the prescription called for a weak solution. Stanley v. Schumpert, 117 La. 255, 41 So. 565.

22. Under statutes abolishing the distinction between trespass on the case and trespass. Pratt v. Davis, 118 Ill. App. 161, afd. 224 Ill. 300, 79 N. E. 562.

23. See 6 C. L. 627.

24. Complaint for dentist's negligently permitting an extracted tooth to get into plaintiff's lung held sufficient. McGehee v. Schiffman [Cal. App.] 87 P. 290.

25. The burden is on plaintiff to prove negligence or want of skill in action for malpractice. Dye v. Corbin, 59 W. Va. 266, 53 S. E. 147.

26. Held sufficient to sustain a finding of negligence on the part of a dentist in allowing a tooth to drop into his patient's lung. McGehee v. Schiffman [Cal. App.] 87 P. 290. Whether negligence was shown in the treatment of a broken limb held a question for the jury. Peterson v. Wells, 41 Wash. 693, 84 P. 608; Froman v. Ayars, 42 Wash. 385, 85 P. 14.

Held insufficient to show gross error of judgment in the treatment of an ankle for dislocation instead of fracture. Dye v. Corbin, 59 W. Va. 266, 53 S. E. 147. Treatment of a patient's hip for dislocation instead of fracture of the surgical neck of the femur. Champion v. Kieth [Okl.] 87 P. 845.

27. In an action for removing without plaintiff's consent an important organ of her body in an operation performed by defendant, when defendant relies on the consent of another as a defense, the burden is on him to show mental incapacity of the plaintiff or consent of such other person (Pratt v. Davis, 224 Ill. 300, 79 N. E. 562, afg. 118 Ill. App. 161), and failure to prove the first alternative renders proof of the second futile, even though it be the patient's husband (Id.).

Evidence held to have no tendency to show husband's consent to operation on his wife for removal of uterus. Pratt v. Davis, 224 Ill. 300, 79 N. E. 562, afg. 118 Ill. App. 161.

extracted tooth to drop into the patient's lung was impossible without some other agency acting upon it.[28]

§ 3. Recovery of compensation.[29]—The request of the patient for treatment and a promise of reasonable compensation therefor may be implied from the circumstances of the case.[30] When one is hurt through the negligence of a common carrier and requires prompt medical attendance, and no surgeon of the company is obtainable, the representative of the company in authority at the time and place of accident has a right to employ a physician, and thus, for the time being at least, to bind the company to pay for his reasonable services.[31] The superintendent of such a corporation has power to bind the company.[32] Authority of an agent to employ a physician may be supplied by ratification.[33] Slight acts of ratification of employment by a subordinate employe are sufficient to bind the corporation.[34] But where the surgeon so called is required to notify superior officers and fails to do so it does not deprive him of his right to compensation for such reasonable length of time as would have been required for notice and further instructions,[35] though in the absence of a waiver of the rule [36] no further compensation can be recovered in such cases.[37] An express contract for compensation is not defeated by the falsity of a mere opinion by the physician as to the probable duration of treatment.[38] Where the price for services is not agreed on at the time of employment, the physician may, in an action for compensation, show that he was busily engaged in the pratice of his profession,[39] especially where the nature of the services performed makes the possession of certain qualifications constitute an important element in the value of the services.[40] Fees for medical attention rendered in cases of infectious and dangerous communicable diseases,[41] or to paupers or persons without means,[42] are often required to be paid by the municipality in which the services are rendered, and a

28. McGehee v. Schiffman [Cal. App.] 87 P. 290.

29. See 6 C. L. 627.

30. Evidence that plaintiff's testator had performed an operation for pay on a patient shortly prior to the operation for which compensation was sought, that the last operation was absolutely necessary "on the chance" to save the patient's life, and that the patient was operated on, warrants an inference of a request on the part of the patient to have the operation performed with an understanding that a reasonable compensation would be paid. Pryor v. Milburn, 101 N. Y. S. 34.

31, 32. Chicago Consol. Traction Co. v. Mathews, 117 Ill. App. 174.

33. Ratification held a question for the jury. Hall v. New York, etc., R. Co., 27 R. I. 525, 65 A. 278. When a street railway company injures a stranger and then requests a physician to care for him, or with knowledge of the facts ratifies the act of its conductor in employing him, or with knowledge fails and neglects to countermand such employment, the company is liable to such physician in a reasonable sum for his services. Chicago Consol. Traction Co. v. Mathews, 117 Ill. App. 174.

34. Where superintendent in answer to question as to continuation of services made no other reply than that he would send out one of the surgeons of the company, ratification could be inferred. Chicago Consol. Traction Co. v. Mathews, 117 Ill. App. 174.

35. Hays v. Wabash R. Co., 119 Mo. App. 439, 95 S. W. 299.

36. Waiver held not established by proof of statement of claim agent having no authority in personal injury cases. Hays v. Wabash R. Co., 119 Mo. App. 439, 95 S. W. 299.

37. Hays v. Wabash R. Co., 119 Mo. App. 439, 95 S. W. 299.

38. The statement by a physician that treatment in a given case might continue six, seven, or eight, weeks was not a representation that the case would take any definite time, but merely the expression of opinion. Denenholz v. Kelly, 97 N. Y. S. 389.

39. Sills v. Cochems [Colo.] 85 P. 1007.

40. As where the plaintiff was called because of peculiar skill as a diagnostician. Sills v. Cochems [Colo.] 85 P. 1007.

41. Act No. 7, p. 6 (Pub. Acts 1903). Dawe v. Board of Health of Monroe [Mich.] 12 Det. Leg. N. 741, 109 N. W. 433. Under Act No. 7, p. 6 (Pub. Acts 1903), the local board of health is required to keep an itemized and separate statement of expenses and render the same to the board of supervisors by filing the same with the county clerk (Id.), whereupon the entire responsibility rests on the board of supervisors to pass on the necessity for such expenses (Id.), the services performed (Id.), the justice and reasonableness thereof (Id.), and to allow such parts thereof as the board shall deem just (Id.), nor is the action of the board of health affected by a change in the personnel of its members (Id.); and when the employment is denied, an issue of fact is presented for the determination of the board of supervisors (Id.), and it is the duty of the latter to determine whether the board of health made a contract for the claimant's services (Id.).

42. Rev. St. 1903, p. 1369, § 4. Dieffenbacher v. County of Mason, 117 Ill. App. 103.

statute of this kind cannot be nullified by a rule of the municipality unreasonably limiting the amount collectible.[43] The question of the reasonableness of a rule of a municipality, limiting the amount collectible from it as fees for medical attention to persons whose duty it is to furnish same, is one of law for the court.[44]

Negligence of a medical witness in giving testimony injurious to his employer's cause is a defense to an action for compensation.[45]

§ 4. Negligent homicide by physician.[46]

§ 5. Regulation of the keeping and sale of drugs and medicines.[47]—The regulation of the drug trade is a proper police function within constitutional limitations.[48] The distribution by an agent of separate packages of drugs shipped from another state on orders taken by a different agent is interstate traffic not subject to regulation.[49] A law has been held valid and based on proper classification which required dispensation by "registered pharmacists" in larger towns but permitted "assistant registered pharmacists" in the smaller towns.[50] On a prosecution for violating such act, it is immaterial whether druggists think the classification wise.[51] Whether it interferes with the "practice" of a physician prosecuted for leaving an unqualified person in charge of his drug store is irrelevant to a defense that an exception allowed a physician to dispense "his own medicines or supply his patients."[52] In Texas the statute makes criminal the prescribing of certain drugs to habitual users unless to treat and cure the habit,[53] and the indictment must negative every part of such exception.[54] Licensed druggists are subject to prosecution under the Missouri dramshop act for unlawful sales of intoxicating liquor.[55] An instruction as to the criminal sale of drugs must be restricted to the time since when a sale like that charged was unlawful.[56]

Individual members of a board which illegally refuses to issue a license are not civilly liable therefor, having acted in good faith and without malice.[57]

§ 6. Tort liability of druggists.[58]—The care required of druggists in compounding prescriptions is to be measured by the danger that is manifest,[59] but druggists in compounding prescriptions are not absolute insurers[60] and are bound only

43. Rule limiting fee to $1 per visit held void for unreasonableness. Dieffenbacher v. County of Mason, 117 Ill. App. 103. To hold a municipality liable for fees for medical attention rendered under the Pauper Act (Rev. St. 1903, p. 1369, § 24) on an implied contract, it is essential to show that the overseer had notice of the necessity therefor (Id.), and that he refused or neglected to act in the premises (Id.), or, when the question of notice is out of the case, that either the overseer or the board, with full knowledge of the facts, subsequently recognized the liability of the municipality therefor (Id.).

44. Submission of question to jury as one of fact held error. Dieffenbacher v. County of Mason, 117 Ill. App. 103.

45. Coyne v. Baker, 2 Cal. App. 640, 84 P. 269.

46. See 4 C. L. 639.

47. See 6 C. L. 628.

48. State v. Kumpfert, 115 La. 950, 40 So. 365. Does not prohibit the freedom of contract, nor deny equal protection of the laws, or transgress due process of law. Id.

Title of the Louisiana Pharmacy Law is sufficient to sustain its validity. Act No. 66, p. 74, § 1888, construed. State v. Kumpfert, 115 La. 950, 40 So. 365.

49. Revisal 1905, §§ 5150, 5151, construed. State v. Trotman, 142 N. C. 662, 55 S. E. 599.

50. Rev. St. 1898, § 1409g. State v. Evans [Wis.] 110 N. W. 241. The fact that it provides no method of ascertaining or proving the prescribed population of the towns and cities where it applies does not affect its validity. Id. Said law is not ex post facto. Id. An amendment, if void because it allowed persons unregistered but of a prescribed experience to dispense, held not to carry with it said act. Id.

51. Opinions of druggists are inadmissible to show absence of reason for making the discrimination. State v. Evans [Wis.] 110 N. W. 241.

52. State v. Evans [Wis.] 110 N. W. 241.

53, 54. "Did not prescribe for the use of" said user is bad as a negation of a prescription, etc., to treat or cure the habit. Blair v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 702, 96 S. W. 23; Blair v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 171, 97 S. W. 89.

55. State v. Heibel, 116 Mo. App. 43, 90 S. W. 758.

56. Sale of cocaine without prescription. Brendecke v. People, 118 Ill. App. 42.

57. Monnier v. Godbold, 116 La. 165, 40 So. 604.

58. See 6 C. L. 628.

59, 60. Faulkner v. Birch, 120 Ill. App. 281.

to the exercise of ordinary care.[61] Defendant is entitled to show the care exercised by him in compounding a prescription when sued for alleged negligence in the compounding.[62] Mere ignorance of a druggist of the explosiveness of an article sold is insufficient as a predicate for negligence but it must be shown that the ignorance arose from the absence of due care.[63] The proof should show that the plaintiff was the one to whom defendant undertook the duty,[64] but a variance in this respect was waived by general objection when the one dealing with the druggist acted for plaintiff.[65] It is a fact question whether the erroneous substitution of a similar but dangerous drug is negligence,[66] and it is not as matter of law due care to rely on the warranty of genuineness by him who sold the drug to defendant,[67] but it is not proper practice to single out facts showing such mistake in charging the jury.[68]

MERCANTILE AGENCIES.[69]

MERGER IN JUDGMENT; MERGER OF CONTRACTS; MERGER OF ESTATES, see latest topical index.

MILITARY AND NAVAL LAW.

§ 1. Military and Naval Organization, Maintenance and Enlistment (981).
A. Regular Army and Navy and Marine Corps (981). Pay and Subsistence (982). Traveling Expenses and Mileage (983). Compensation for Lost Equipment (983). Relief from Liability for Lost Property (983). Commutation for Quarters (983).
B. Militia (983).
§ 2. Regulations and Discipline; Promotion and Discharge (983).
§ 3. Military and Naval Tribunals (984).
§ 4. Civil Status, Rights and Liabilities of the Military and Navy and of Military and Naval Reservations (984).
§ 5. Martial Law (985).
§ 6. Soldiers' Homes and Indigent Soldiers (985).

1. Military and naval organization, maintenance, and enlistment. A. Regular army and navy and marine corps.[70]—Enlistment of a minor under eighteen years of age in the navy without parental consent is voidable,[71] while in the marine corps, which is held to be in this respect governed by army rather than navy regulations, such consent is needful as to all minors.[72] Habeas corpus will lie at the instance of

61. Ordinary care in making the distinction between codiene and atropine requires a very great degree of care. Faulkner v. Birch, 120 Ill. App. 281.

62. Where atropine was used instead of codiene, defendant's testimony was admissible to describe the appearance of the drug which he used (Faulkner v. Birch, 120 Ill. App. 281), to show whether there was a general similarity in appearance to the naked eye between them (Id.), whether by the naked eye he could distinguish atropine from codeine (Id.), and whether he had ever handled any codeine that had same appearance to the naked eye as the drug he had used (Id.), and he was entitled to show by other druggists in what forms atropine and codeine were received by druggists (Id.), their color, shape, process of manufacture, similarity, how distinguished and the like (Id.).

63. Evidence held insufficient to establish negligence in the sale of sparklet bottle and carbonic acid capsules for use therein in aerating liquids. Bruckel v. Milhau's Son, 102 N. Y. S. 395. Instruction held erroneous as eliminating the element of due care. Id.

64. Where the complaint alleged a hiring of defendant by plaintiff to fill a prescription, and the proof showed that the prescription was filled for another person, there was a variance. Faulkner v. Birch, 120 Ill. App. 281.

65. Failure to make more than a general objection to evidence held a waiver of variance. Faulkner v. Birch, 120 Ill. App. 281.

66. Use of atropine in a prescription calling for codeine. Faulkner v. Birch, 120 Ill. App. 281.

67. Faulkner v. Birch, 120 Ill. App. 281.

68. Where plaintiff sued for injury by use of wrong drug in prescription, a charge that proof that the defendant did not use the drug specified in the prescription in compounding the same and was mistaken as to the real nature of the drug he did use is not evidence of negligence on his part was properly refused. Faulkner v. Birch, 120 Ill. App. 281.

69. No cases have been found for this subject since the last article. See 2 C. L. 890.

70. See 6 C. L. 638.

71. Rev. St. §§ 1418, 1419 (Comp. St. 1901, p. 1007) construed. Ex parte Lisk, 145 F. 860.

72. It is now held, contrary to previous decisions, by a different process of reasoning, that the naval regulations do not of their own operation cover enlistments in the marine corps (McCalla v. Facer [C. C. A.] 144 F. 61. See 6 C. L. 638, n. 58), but that as the secretary of the navy has and exercises the authority to prescribe regulations for enlistment therein (McCalla v.

the father of such infant,[73] and it is no answer to the writ that the naval authorities held the minor for trial for fraudulent enlistment;[74] but arrest for a military offense, committed before the enlistment was rescinded by the parent, authorizes detention.[75]

Pay and subsistence.[76]—Though charged therefor on their clothing account, soldiers in the regular army receive but a qualified interest in clothing issued to them,[77] and such clothing is within a statute making it a criminal offense to purchase or receive in pledge any public property from a person not having the right to sell or pledge the same.[78] Officers of volunteer regiments are by statute entitled on muster out to two months extra pay [79] at the rate to which they were entitled when mustered out,[80] and the act provides for officers resigning after muster out of their regiments is ordered.[81] The navy personnel act provides for pay at a higher rate for sea duty than for shore duty,[82] but allows extra pay for shore service in foreign lands; [83] but service in remote places being incidental to the Revenue Cutter service, the officers thereof are not entitled to the extra pay for service beyond the limits of the United States.[84] The rate of pay to which one is entitled while sick is governed by the duty on which he was engaged at the time he was ordered on sick leave.[85] An officer detained for special service on the grant of a furlough to his regiment before mustering it out, and who is promoted during such furlough, is entitled to extra pay only of the rank he held when detained.[86] An officer ordered to a command beyond his rank in forces operating against the enemy [87] is entitled to additional compensation, though such command would have devolved on him by seniority without an order.[88] The right of one appointed to the navy from civil life to five years' constructive service [89] does not apply to one appointed for temporary service.[90] Under a statute providing that if militia regiments enlist as a body their officers shall continue officers of the Facer [C. C. A.] 144 F. 61), and having prescribed that the regulations for the recruiting service of the army be applied to the recruiting service of the marine corps (Id.), a minor can not be lawfully enlisted in the marine corps under the army regulations promulgated September 15, 1904 (Id.).

73. Ex parte Lisk, 145 F. 860.

74. Rev. St. § 1624, art. 22 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1112), and act March 3, 1893, c. 212, 27 Stat. 716 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1006) construed. Ex parte Lisk, 145 F. 860.

75. The court in deciding submits with apparent reluctance to the higher authority of the circuit court of appeals in United States v. Reaves [C. C. A.] 126 F. 127. In re Carver, 142 F. 623.

76. See 6 C. L. 638.

77. Such as caps, gloves, shoes, and coats. United States v. Hart, 146 F. 202.

78. Rev. St. § 5438 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3674) construed. United States v. Hart, 146 F. 202.

79. The act of May 26, 1900, relating to extra pay on muster out of officers of volunteer regiments is not limited to the Spanish War. Repetti v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 240. Withdrawing dicta in Daggett v. U. S., 39 Ct. Cl. 209. Heirs of regular officer killed in battle while serving by permission in volunteer regiment are entitled to two months' extra pay. Wallace v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 352.

80. One detached and ordered to his home and immediately afterwards discharged i on being allowed two months' extra pay entitled to sea pay, not waiting orders pay. Hite v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 256.

81. An officer who resigns after a general order for the muster out of volunteer regiments in the Phillipines, but before special order for the muster out of his regiment is within a statute making certain allowances to officers resigning after the muster out of their organization is ordered. Bishop v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 151.

82. An officer having also shore duty and living on shore is not entitled to sea pay because assigned to command of a training ship in addition to his shore duty. Mahan v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 36.

83. The provision of the navy personnel act relating to extra pay on shore service in foreign lands applies to all navy officers, though added as a proviso to an act relative only to officers of the line, etc. Prindle v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 8.

84. Wiley v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 406.

85. Whether officer in hospital for treatment is entitled to sea pay depends on whether he was on sea duty when ordered to hospital. Ackley v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 216. The status of a sick soldier during the time his regiment is on furlough depends on whether he was unfit for duty when the furlough was granted. Legg v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 115.

86. Terrell v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 78.

87. A regiment at instruction camp in the interior of the United States during the Spanish War is operating against the enemy. Mitchell v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 36.

88. Mitchell v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 36.

89. Assistant civil engineer in navy appointed from civil life is entitled to the five years' constructive longevity provided by act Mar. 3rd, 1899. Thurber v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 489.

90. Nelson v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 157.

same grade in the regiment, when received into the Federal service,[91] an assistant surgeon of militia holding the grade of captain continues in such grade, though in the regular army assistant surgeons rank only as lieutenants.[92] And mistake in assignment of rank does not deprive a volunteer officer of pay to which he was entitled.[93] A naval officer assigned to duty as flag lieutenant on the personal staff of an admiral is an "aid" and entitled to $200 a year extra.[94] Right of soldiers enlisted during Spanish war to compensation runs from enrollment and not from mustering in.[95] Many of the volunteers having been paid by their states for the period between enrollment and muster in, and the states having been reimbursed by the Federal government, it was at first held that soldiers so paid could not recover from the United States pay for such period,[96] but, it appearing that many claims for such compensation had been allowed by the comptroller, it was later decided in the interest of uniformity that all should be allowed.[97] In a later case, it appearing that the policy of the comptroller had changed, the court of claims reverted to its original holding.[98] The appointment of a retired naval officer, who has been restored to the active list in time of war as meteorologist at a navy yard with his salary as meteorologist payable from such fund, entitles such officer to draw salary both as retired naval officer and meteorologist, but not to pay at the rate for such officers on the active list.[99]

Traveling expenses and mileage.[1]—An officer traveling under orders without troops held entitled to mileage less cost of transportation furnished him.[2] Approval by the secretary of war of an oral order directing travel entitles to mileage.[3] One seeking to recover travel pay and allowances based on discharge in 1865 must rebut presumption that he was furnished transportation in kind.[4]

Compensation for lost equipment.[5]—The accounting officers had authority to reduce the valuation approved by the secretary of war on property claimed for under the act to reimburse officers and crew for property destroyed in the loss of the Charleston.[6]

Relief from liability for lost property.—A disbursing officer, who allows a messenger carrying a large sum of money out of his sight and does not examine the package supposed to contain such money for several hours after it is returned, is guilty of negligence precluding relief.[7]

Commutation for quarters.[8]—The rights to rent quarters and obtain commutation of quarters when those assigned are inadequate can only be exercised with the approval of the secretary of war.[9] A paymaster ordered to his home to settle his accounts and await orders is entitled to commutation for quarters during the time allowed for settling his accounts.[10] An officer detailed at his own request to act as professor of military science at a college is not entitled to commutation for quarters.[11]

(§ 1) B. Militia.[12]

§ 2. Regulations and discipline; promotion and discharge.[13]—A cadet in the naval academy is not an officer within Rev. St. § 1624, providing that no officer

91. Act April 22, 1898.
92. Hawkins v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 110.
93. Nutt v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 368.
94. Miller v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 400.
95, 96. Burnham v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 166.
97. New Jersey v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 493; Hovey v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 39.
98. Boyd v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 438.
99. Hayden v. U. S., 38 Ct. Cl. 39.
1. See 6 C. L. 641.
2. Sutherland v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 209.
3. Mueller v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 240.
4. Sanderson v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 230.
5. See 6 C. L. 641. Act of Mar. 3, 1885, does not impair right of officers to reimbursement for horses killed in service. Cox v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 86.
6. Little v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 408.
7. Stevens v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 344.
8. See 6 C. L. 641.
9. Moses v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 27.
10. Colhoun v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 31.
11. Spencer v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 430.
12, 13. See 6 C. L. 642.

shall be dismissed except on sentence of court martial;[14] but midshipmen at the naval academy who were called into active service in the Civil War are "officers who served in the Civil War" and are entitled to be retired with the rank of the next higher grade.[15]

§ 3. Military and naval tribunals.[16]—An officer of the regular army though temporarily attached to a volunteer command, is not eligible as a member of a court martial to try a volunteer officer.[17] In the absence of provision for review the decisions of military tribunals created by congress are not reviewable.[18] Where the decisions of a military tribunal are subject to the approval or disapproval of the president, they are, in effect his acts,[19] and it will not be presumed that congress intended that the decisions of the president, when called on to exercise judgment and discretion in the performance of official duties should be reviewable.[20] A statute making punishable as a misdemeanor the willful refusal of a civilian witness to appear, produce documents or testify at a court martial of the army, does not apply to a refusal based on self-incrimination,[21] nor does the failure of a witness to there produce documents on a subpoena duces tecum render him punishable under the act when it is made to appear that the witness had destroyed the document before the service of the subpoena,[22] nor does a statute authorizing a court martial to punish in its decretion any person who, in the presence of the court, uses menacing words, signs, or gestures, or who disturbs its proceedings by any riot or disorder, apply to a witness' mere refusal to testify.[23] Though the acts of congress touching army and navy courts martial in the United States are constitutional,[24] and, though the decisions of a military court martial cannot as a general rule be set aside or reviewed by the civil courts,[25] yet the decision of such court that questions propounded were answerable without subjecting an objecting civilian witness to incrimination is not conclusive as to an order of the court adjudging the witness guilty of contempt for refusing to answer.[26]

§ 4. Civil status, rights and liabilities of the military and navy and of military and naval reservations.[27]—In some states sureties in a recognizance are entitled to discharge when surrender of their principal is prevented by the act of the state or Federal government,[28] but a voluntary enlistment of the principal in the navy without the knowledge of the sureties and departure beyond their reach is not ground for discharging the sureties.[29] The use of land as a reservation does not of itself transmute that character to the land so occupied when the proper legal steps have not been taken to establish the same by law.[30] A person arrested by the military officers of a state as an insurrectionist, and detained with a view to a speedier termination of an existing insurrection and to turning him over to the civil au-

14. Weller v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 324.

15. Navy Personnel Act (30 St. L. 1007). Jasper v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 76.

16. See 6 C. L. 642.

17. Brown v. U. S., 41 Ct. Cl. 275.

18. The decisions of the board of examiners appointed by the president under the act of congress of October 1, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. § 562, c. 1241 [U. S. Comp. St. p. 849]) relating to promotion and indirectly to retirement of officers of the navy are not reviewable on certiorari after approval by the president. Reaves v. Ainsworth, 28 App. D. C. 157.

19, 20. Reaves v. Ainsworth, 28 App. D. C. 157.

21. Act Cong. March 2, 1901, c. 809, 31 Stat. 950, 951 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 965) construed. United States v. Praeger, 149 F. 474.

22. United States v. Praeger, 149 F. 474.

23. Rev. St. § 1342, 86th Article of War (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 964) construed. United States v. Praeger, 149 F. 474.

24, 25, 26. United States v. Praeger, 149 F. 474.

27. See 6 C. L. 643.

28. Pub. St. 1901, c. 252, § 30. Lamphire v. State, 73 N. H. 463, 62 A. 786.

29. Pub. St. 1901, c. 252, § 30, construed. Lamphire v. State, 73 N. H. 463, 62 A. 786.

30. Federal courts held to have no jurisdiction to try person for homicide committed on the E. 1-2 of section 36 adjoining the Ft. Missoula Military Reservation. United States v. Tully, 140 F. 899.

thorities at the conclusion of hostilities to be tried for any crime he may have committed, is not illegally restrained of his liberty.[31]

§ 5. Martial law.[32]—The existence of insurrection warranting the use of the militia in suppressing the same, when declared by proclamation of the governor of a state, is not issuable,[33] and when insurrection exists the military officers may legally arrest and detain any one, whom they have reasonable ground to believe was engaged therein,[34] nor are such officers liable civilly for an unintentional error.[35]

§ 6. Soldiers' homes and indigent soldiers.[36]

MILITIA, see latest topical index.

MILLS.[37]

MINES AND MINERALS.

§ 1. General Common-Law Principles (985).
A. Public Ownership (985).
B. Private Ownership; Rights of Freehold Tenants of Less than Fee (985).
§ 2. Acquisition of Mining Rights in Public Lands (986).
A. What Lands May Be Located (986).
B. Who May Locate (987).
§ 3. Mode of Locating and Acquiring Patent (987).
A. Making and Perfecting Location (987).
B. Maintaining Location; Forfeiture, Loss or Abandonment (990).
C. Relocation (992).
D. Proceedings to Obtain Patent; Adverse Claims (992). Suits to Determine Adverse Claims (993).
§ 4. Ownership or Estate Obtained by Claim, Location, and Patent; Apex and Extralateral Rights (994). Apex and Extralateral Rights (995). Boundary Lines and Monuments (996).
§ 5. Right to Mine on Private Land Thrown Open to the Public (997).
§ 6. Private Conveyances or Grants of Mineral Rights in Land (997). Rights as Between Surface and Subterranean Owners (1001).
§ 7. Leases (1001). Essentials and Validity (1001). Estate or Interest Created (1002). Interpretation and Effect in General (1002). Rights, Duties, and Liabilities of the Parties (1004). Rents and Royalties (1008). Assignments (1009). Eviction (1010). Forfeiture, Rescission, Cancellation, and Abandonment (1010). Reinstatement (1012).
§ 8. Working Contracts (1012).
§ 9. Mining Partnerships and Corporations (1013).
§ 10. Public Mining Regulations (1013).
§ 11. Statutory Liens and Charges (1014).
§ 12. Mining Torts (1016).
§ 13. Remedies and Procedure Peculiar to Mining Rights (1016).

§ 1. General common-law principles. A. Public ownership [38] seldom arises as a live question in respect of lands in the public domain.[38]

(§ 1) B. Private ownership; rights of freehold tenants of less than fee.[40]—Minerals in place in the earth are realty,[41] but when severed therefrom by artificial causes become personalty.[42] Oil and natural gas are minerals within this rule and

31. Hence he is not entitled to release on habeas corpus before the end of the insurrection. In re Moyer [Colo.] 85 P. 190.

32. See 6 C. L. 643.

33. Moyer v. Peabody, 148 F. 870; In re Moyer [Colo.] 85 P. 190.

34, 35. Moyer v. Peabody, 148 F. 870.

36. See 6 C. L. 643.

37. No cases have been found for this subject since the last article. See 6 C. L. 643.

38. See 6 C. L. 644.

39. See Barringer & Adams on Mines, p. 178 et seq.

40. See 6 C. L. 644.

41. Coal. Brand v. Consolidated Coal Co., 219 Ill. 543, 76 N. E. 849. Coal in its natural state, and foreclosure and execution sales thereof are subject to redemption. Traer v. Fowler [C. C. A.] 144 F. 810. Bill lies to quiet title to coal and other minerals under and upon land, they being "lands" within meaning of Code 1896, § 809. Gulf Coal & Coke Co. v. Alabama Coal & Coke Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 397. Reservation of mineral, marble, and granite, and right to mine same, to grantor of land, held an interest in real estate and also an easement within meaning of Rev. St. 1899, § 4262, authorizing action to recover interest in real estate to be brought within ten years after cause of action accrues. Hudson v. Cahoon, 193 Mo. 547, 91 S. W. 72.

42. Iron ore mined under lease and removed to wharf for shipment held personalty and the absolute property of lessee, though credit was extended to lessee therefor and though lease was subsequently forfeited. Russell v. Howe, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 591. Ore having been stored on wharf on lessor's land under some arrangement with him, held that his grantee acquired no title thereto. Id. Neither did grantee have right of stoppage in transitu, he having no interest in ore and grantee of lessee owing him nothing therefor. Id.

become personalty only when reduced to possession.[43] Owing to their fugitive character, however, they are not subject to ownership in their natural state in the strict sense of the term.[44] A perpetual tunnel right is an easement in lands.[45]

The products derived from the ordinary and reasonable operation of opened mines, quarries, oil wells, and the like, constitute the rents and profits thereof and not the body of the property, and hence belong to the owners of the former rather than the owners of the latter.[46]

§ 2. Acquisition of mining rights in public lands. A. What lands may be located.[47]—Only unappropriated government land is subject to location under the federal mining laws.[48] Land once located may become unappropriated by forfeiture or abandonment,[49] and land attempted to be located is unappropriated if the attempted location is invalid.[50]

43. Gas and oil in its natural state is realty, and hence one having vested right thereto under so-called lease has interest in land which cannot, under statute of frauds, be surrendered by parol. Ramage v. Wilson [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 368. Release by agent is conveyance of realty within statute requiring written power of attorney, etc. Id. Oil brought to the surface through a well becomes personalty. Nonamaker v. Amos, 73 Ohio St. 163, 76 N. E. 949. Parol modification of oil lease in regard to amount of oil which was to go to lessor as rent or royalty held contract relating to personalty, and not one relating to realty or an interest therein or concerning same, and hence not within statute of frauds. Id.

44. Are not subject to sale and conveyance until diverted from natural paths into artificial receptacles. New American Oil & Min. Co. v. Troyer [Ind.] 77 N. E. 739.

45. Perpetual right in one tenant in common to use common tunnel to convey ore from an outside claim and an oral agreement giving him such right is within statute of frauds, and in order to take it out of operation of statute it must be supported by clear, definite, and conclusive proof. Laesch v. Morton [Colo.] 87 P. 1081. Evidence held insufficient to show agreement. Id.

46. Rule does not apply to mines and deposits which have never been opened or operated. Traer v. Fowler [C. C. A.] 144 F. 810. Rule is equally applicable in cases in which rights of judgment debtors, mortgagors, and purchasers during period of redemption are concerned. Id. Hence judgment creditor redeeming from foreclosure sale of mortgaged coal in an open mine, under Statutes of Illinois, is not entitled to recover damages from receiver in foreclosure suit for his extraction of coal from mine by ordinary and reasonable mining operations during period of redemption. Id.

47. See 6 C. L. 645.

48. Discovery on unoccupied and unappropriated mineral land of U. S. is prerequisite to valid location. Lockhart v. Farrell [Utah] 86 P. 1077. Attempted location on land previously located in conformity to law and on which required work had been done held to confer no rights. Anderson v. Caughey [Cal. App.] 84 P. 223. A location based upon a discovery within the limits of an existing and valid location is void. Sierra Blanca Min. & R. Co. v. Winchell [Colo.] 83 P. 628. Is void, not only as against prior locator but as against all the world, relocation not being permissible until original location has been forfeited or abandoned. Lockhart v. Farrell [Utah] 86 P. 1077. In suit in support of adverse claim, showing by defendant that plaintiff's location was made upon ground embraced within prior, valid, subsisting location is bar to plaintiff's recovery. Hoban v. Boyer [Colo.] 85 P. 837. Valid subsisting location prevents subsequent one until abandoned so as to render premises a part of unappropriated public domain. Sharkey v. Candiani [Or.] 85 P. 219. In action to recover possession of unsurveyed mining property, judgment giving plaintiffs possession of so much of the property as they had been in actual possession of held not objectionable as depriving defendants of right to contest plaintiff's right of entry before land department when question should there arise, and to be as favorable to them as facts warranted. Davis v. Dennis [Wash.] 85 P. 1079.

49. See § 3 C. post.

50. If defendant's location was invalid because of absence of discovery cut and expiration of legal time for making it, at time of plaintiff's peaceable entry, held that territory within boundaries of defendant's claim was then open to location, and plaintiff could lawfully initiate his location within such boundaries and was not a trespasser, irrespective of his belief as to whether such territory was unoccupied and unappropriated, and though he knew that defendant's claim had been surveyed for patent, the situs of such claim, that boundaries had been marked on ground, and that defendant had posted patent plats and notices. Instruction held prejudicially erroneous. Walsh v. Henry [Colo.] 88 P. 449.

51. Act Cong. March 3, 1875, c. 152, 18 St. 482, providing for railroad rights of way through public lands, and U. S. Rev. St. § 2322, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 13, giving locators exclusive right to possession of surface included within lines of their location, construed, and held that former statute only conferred right of way over such lands as were not disposed of when railroads were located, and hence lands covered by right of way map were open to mineral location until such map of definite location was filed with and approved by secretary of interior as required by § 4 of the act. Southern California R. Co. v. O'Donnell [Cal. App.] 85 P. 932. In action to determine adverse interests in mining property, finding that defendant ever since 1883 was and has been owner and in possession of certain portion of premises held an implied finding that loca-

The Federal statute granting rights of way to railroads across public lands does not operate to withdraw any such land from mineral location until the location map of a railroad company seeking to take advantage of its provisions has been filed and approved.[51]

(§ 2) B. Who may locate.[52]—Claims may be located by citizens of the United States or those who have declared their intention of becoming such.[53] A location by an alien is voidable only and cannot be attacked by anyone except the government.[54]

§ 3. Mode of locating and acquiring patent. A. Making and perfecting location.[55]—A discovery of mineral within the boundaries of a claim is essential to its location,[56] but the fact that it follows instead of precedes the other steps required to make a valid location does not invalidate the title of the locator, in the absence of intervening rights.[57] The discovery must be such as would justify a man of ordinary prudence in the further expenditure of his labor and means in the development of the property with reasonable prospects of success,[58] the rule respecting its suftion was made in 1883 as alleged, that land was mineral, that claim was properly monumented, that annual work was done and that claim was not abandoned. Id.

52. See 6 C. L. 646.

53. In view of U. S. Rev. St. § 2321, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 13, providing that proof of citizenship may, in the case of a corporation, be made by filing copy of charter or certificate of incorporation, and practice in Federal land department, held that where in an action on an adverse claim it was alleged in complaint and admitted by answer that plaintiff was a corporation duly organized and existing under laws of the state, it was unnecessary to allege or prove citizenship of its members. Jackson v. White Cloud Gold Min. & Mill Co. [Colo.] 85 P. 639.

54. In action for sole purpose of recovering possession of mineral lands not yet subject to entry, complaint need not allege that complainants are over age of twenty-one, that question being immaterial. Davis v. Dennis [Wash.] 85 P. 1079. Rule not changed by fact that defendants were in possession and plaintiffs seeking to oust them, plaintiffs having been in possession for several years and defendants having taken possession during their temporary absence. Id. Objection that locators through whom applicant claims were aliens may properly be made in action based on adverse, it being in right and on behalf of the government. Matlock v. Stone, 77 Ark. 195, 91 S. W. 553.

55. See 6 C. L. 646.

56. U. S. Rev. St. § 2320, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 8. Ambergris Min. Co. v. Day [Idaho] 85 P. 109. Location without discovery confers no rights. Healey v. Rupp [Colo.] 86 P. 1015; Uinta Tunnel, Min. & Transp. Co. v. Ajax Gold Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 563. Evidence held to show discovery. Daggett v. Yreka Min. & Mill Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 968. Discovery as essential to location of placer claim as to location of lode claim. Steele v. Tanana Mines R. Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 678. Where validity of location had remained unchallenged for five years and up to time of commencement of action of ejectment to recover property, held that certificate of location created presumption of discovery of mineral and valid location, particularly on application for injunction pendente lite, and where subsequent locator attacks title of prior one. Vogel v. Warsing [C. C. A.] 146 F. 949.

57. Discovery made after staking and record will inure to benefit of locator as of date of such discovery, provided others have not previously acquired rights to premises on which it is made. Healey v. Rupp [Colo.] 86 P. 1015. Fact that it follows posting of notice and marking of boundaries does not invalidate title of locator, provided discovery is made before another locates the claim. Uinta Tunnel, Min. & Transp. Co. v. Ajax Gold Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 563. Stipulation that plaintiff's lode claims were "located in compliance with law" at dates anterior to location of defendant's tunnel site, etc., held to use word "located" in restricted sense of marking boundaries, posting notices, etc., excluding discovery, so that it did not estop defendant from litigating issue relative to discovery of mineral rock in place in plaintiff's claims prior to location of tunnel site. Id. Word "location" may mean all acts, including discovery, requisite to perfect right of possession, or the placing of the claims, the posting of notice, and the marking of boundaries, excluding the discovery. Id. Discovery after posting of notices required by state statutes validates prior location which was insufficient for absence of discovery, provided no adverse rights have been acquired in meantime. Sharkey v. Candiani [Or.] 85 P. 219. B. & C. Comp. §§ 3975, 3984, require locator to post notice stating, among other things, number of linear feet claimed along vein or lode with width on each side thereof, and general course or strike of vein or lode as near as may be, and to mark boundaries upon surface so that they may be readily traced, and declare void attempted locations not complying therewith. Id. Statute held to be designed only as guide to determine rights of conflicting claimants and to permit proper marking of location at any time before adverse rights attach. Id.

58. Steele v. Tanana Mines R. Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 678. Is essential to the validity of placer location that discovery of mineral thereon be such that an ordinarily prudent man, not necessarily a miner, would be justified in expending his time and labor ficiency being more strictly applied in the case of a controversy between a mineral claimant and one seeking to make an entry under the agricultural or other land laws than in case of a controversy between two mineral claimants.[59]

The location must be distinctly marked on the ground so that its boundaries may be readily traced,[60] Where the location is crosswise of the vein, the side lines will be regarded as the end lines.[61] The Federal statutes do not require a notice of location to be posted or recorded,[62] but provide that all records of mining claims must contain the name or names of the locators,[63] the date of the location,[64] and such a description of the claim or claims located by reference to some natural object or permanent monuments as will identify the claim.[65] Statutes in some states rethereon in the development of the property. Cascaden v. Bartolis [C. C. A.] 146 F. 739. Instruction that it was necessary to show with reasonable clearness that for labor and capital expended in working ground it would yield reasonable profit held erroneous and in conflict with correct rule previously given in instructions. Id. Not necessary that gold should have been found in paying quantities, but must be such a discovery as gives reasonable evidence of fact that ground is valuable for placer mining. Lange v. Robinson [C. C. A.] 148 F. 799. Question of discovery is one of fact to be decided not only with reference to gold actually found within limits of claim located but also in view of its situation with reference to other lands known to contain valuable deposits, character and formation of soil and rock, and fact that object of requiring discovery is to prevent fraud. Id. Discovery of gold held sufficient. Id. Evidence held to show that there was no vein or deposit of ore sufficient to justify location. Mutchmor v. McCarty [Cal.] 87 P. 85. Locator of lode claim has made discovery when he finds rock in place containing mineral in sufficient quantities to justify him in expending time and money in prospecting and developing claim whether rock or earth assays high or low, provided that definition of vein or lode must always have special reference to formation and characteristics of district where it is found. Fox v. Myers [Nev.] 86 P. 793. Evidence of discovery held sufficient to justify denial of nonsuit. Id.

59. Steele v. Tanana Mines R. Co. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 678. Where land is sought to be taken out of catagory of agricultural lands, evidence of its mineral character should be reasonably clear. Id. Evidence that colors of gold had been found which were fairly good prospects held insufficient as against prior entry under homestead law and right of railway to appropriate it as right of way. Id. Rule more liberal in controversy between mineral claimants. Lange v. Robinson [C. C. A.] 148 F. 799; Fox v. Myers [Nev.] 86 P. 793. As between prior and subsequent locators of same ground as lode claim, courts will view evidence tending to establish senior locator's discovery in most favorable light such evidence will reasonably justify. Ambergris Min. Co. v. Day [Idaho] 85 P. 109.

60. U. S. Rev. St. § 2324, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 19. Whether claim was properly marked presents pure question of fact. Finding held sustained by the evidence. Smith v. Cascaden [C. C. A.] 148 F. 792. Evidence held insufficient to show that boundaries were so marked. Mutchmor v. McCarty [Cal.] 87 P. 85. Locators must not only mark location at time it is made, but use reasonable diligence in preserving and restoring boundary monuments as occasion may require. Daggett v. Yreka Min. & Mill Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 968.

61. Location is valid, but rights of locator will be restricted to area within side lines 300 feet on each side of vein or lode. Southern Cal. R. Co. v. O'Donnell [Cal. App.] 85 P. 932.

62. Those steps are not necessary unless local custom and rules of the miners of the district require them. Anderson v. Caughey [Cal. App.] 84 P. 223. In absence of proof as to custom of miners it will be presumed that Federal law governed when location was made. Id. There being no statute in force in 1884 requiring posting or recording and no evidence of any local law requiring it held that notices posted and recorded at that time did not constitute in themselves a location or any part of a legal location, and were of no value except as acts in pais, to be considered in connection with well known customs and practices of prospectors as item of evidence upon question of compliance with law, especially as to marking of boundaries. Daggett v. Yreka Min. & Mill Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 968.

63. Rev. St. § 2324, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 19.

64. Rev. St. § 2324, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 19. Rights of locator are defined by fact of location of which date given in notice is at most evidence, and hence error in notice in that regard must give way to proved fact. Webb v. Carlon, 148 Cal. 555, 83 P. 998. Location by defendant's grantor having been in fact made before plaintiff's entry on the land, and notice being there visible and boundaries marked, held that defendant's rights were not affected by fact that recorded notice, by mistake, showed location at later date than that made by plaintiffs. Id.

65. R. S. § 2324, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 19. Notice containing no such description held invalid. Mutchmor v. McCarty [Cal.] 87 P. 85. Any reference furnishing means by which claim may be identified is sufficient. Londonderry Min. Co. v. United Gold Mines Co. [Colo.] 88 P. 455. Certificate is sufficient in this regard if, by a reasonable construction, language descriptive of situs of claim, aided or unaided by testimony aliunde, will give notice to subsequent locators. Id. Whether or not there is such a reference to a natural object or permanent monument as will satisfy the law is a question of fact, unless there is no reference at all, or the reference is so indefinite that it can be told from an inspection of the certificate that quire the posting of the location notice at the point of discovery,[66] and the recording within a specified time [67] of a notice or certificate of location, or the like, describing the claim, and giving the dimensions and location of the discovery shaft or cut,[69] and the length of the vein each way from the center of the discovery shaft.[70] The notice is sometimes required to state that the claim is located as forfeited or abandoned property when such is the fact.[71] Recitals in notices are not prima facie evidence of the claim cannot be identified thereby. Id. The reference in the certificate is not conclusive that the law has been complied with, but it may be such as to require testimony aliunde to determine whether or not there has been a prima facie compliance. Id. Reference to another patented or unpatented claim is prima facie sufficient, there being a presumption that it is a well known natural object or permanent monument until contrary appears. Id. Statement that corner number one of claim joined corner number four of another named claimed held prima facie a sufficient reference to permanent monument, so that exclusion of certificate was error. Id. Error held not cured by subsequent exclusion of evidence offered to show that reference was not such as would serve to identify claim. Id. Held that, under instructions and evidence, jury might have found that plaintiff's location was good as against defendant's because former had discovered mineral prior to date of filing of valid certificate by latter, and hence exclusion of certificate could not be regarded as harmless on theory that in finding verdict for plaintiff jury must have found that no valid discovery was made on defendant's claim prior to the discovery on plaintiff's claim. Id. On issue as to sufficiency of recorded notice, question is whether, in view of customary mode of describing claims in district, a person with information given thereby could find location of particular claim on the ground with reasonable certainty by going to natural and permanent objects referred to. Smith v. Cascaden [C. C. A.] 148 F. 792. In absence of evidence that claim referred to in recorded notice was not a well known and clearly defined mining claim, held that it would be presumed that it was, and therefore a natural object or permanent monument. Id. Description in recorded notice of location held sufficient. Id. Location notice held to sufficiently refer to natural object, at least to prevent preliminary injunction on ground that it did not. Vogel v. Warsing [C. C. A.] 146 F. 949.

66. Under Comp. Laws, § 208, requiring notice of location to be posted "at the point of discovery," proof of the posting of a notice at a certain point establishes that at that point the locator claims a discovery. Fox v. Myers [Nev.] 86 P. 793. Where conflicting claimants had both posted notice at same point, held that such showing that both claimed discovery at same point would warrant presumption, in absence of showing to contrary, that both based claim of discovery on same natural conditions, and, on motion for nonsuit, that such discovery existed. Id.

67. Failure to record certificate of location within sixty days from date of location as required by statute does not vitiate it but merely prevents it from affecting intervening rights. Slothower v. Hunter [Wyo.] 88 P. 36.

68. Under Gen. St. 1883, § 2400, Mills' Ann. St. § 3151, must contain such a description as shall identify the claim with reasonable certainty. Londonderry Min. Co. v. United Gold Mines Co. [Colo.] 88 P. 455. Rev. St. 1899, § 2546, requires location certificate to contain description of claim by such designation of natural or fixed objects, or if upon ground surveyed by U. S. system of land survey by reference to section or quarter section corners, as shall identify the claim beyond question. Slothower v. Hunter [Wyo.] 88 P. 36. Survey referred to means completed survey by the proper authority, and not to one not yet approved. Id. Existence of natural or fixed object within meaning of statute, and sufficiency of description of location with reference thereto, are questions of fact. Id. Mining claim is a permanent monument and when mentioned in certificate will be so considered unless contrary appears. Id. Description held prima facie sufficient. Id.

69. Declaratory statement required to be filed by Pol. Code, § 3612, must show dimensions and location of discovery shaft or equivalent cut or tunnel required by § 3611. Dolan v. Passmore [Mont.] 85 P. 1034. Statement held insufficient in that it did not show that vein or lode was cut by tunnel ten feet below surface, and hence location was invalid. Id. Statement of dimensions must be such as to leave at least an inference that excavation cut vein at depth or for length required by § 3611. Helena Gold & Iron Co. v. Baggaley [Mont.] 87 P. 455. Statement held insufficient under said sections as amended by Sess. Laws 1901, p. 140, in that it only gave one dimension, viz, the depth, instead of all. Id. Provision as to contents of statement is mandatory and must be complied with. Dolan v. Passmore [Mont.] 85 P. 1034; Helena Gold & Iron Co. v. Baggaley [Mont.] 87 P. 455.

70. Failure of certificate to give length of claim as required by Rev. St. 1899, § 2546, or to mention discovery shaft at all, renders certificate void under Id. § 2547. Slothower v. Hunter [Wyo.] 88 P. 36.

71. Notice held void. Matko v. Daley [Ariz.] 85 P. 721. Where locators remained on claim until after twelve o'clock midnight of Dec. 31, and posted notice, and on next day set stakes at northeast and southwest corners of claim, and immediately left claim and never did anything further in connection therewith, held that they never proceeded far enough to acquire any rights which could be lost by abandonment, and hence claim was not an abandoned one within meaning of Act 1899, p. 71, c. 45, § 8, requiring in case of relocation, that certificate shall state whether whole or any part of new location is located on abandoned property. Paragon Min. & Development Co.

the facts stated where the statute does not require such statement,[72] but copies of recorded notice are sometimes received as evidence on the question of the location of boundaries though posting and recording is not required.[73] The filing of an amended certificate of location cannot affect intervening rights of third parties.[74] Since a location must be good when made,[75] one making a location on lands already covered by a valid subsisting location acquires no rights by reason of the forfeiture or abandonment of such prior location,[76] but this rule does not apply to the area in conflict between two adjoining locations.[77]

(§ 3) B. Maintaining location; forfeiture, loss or abandonment.[78]—Under the Federal statutes in order to hold his claim, the locator is required to perform one hundred dollars worth of labor or make one hundred dollars worth of improvements thereon each year until a patent is issued.[79] The period within which the work is to be done commences on the first day of January next succeeding the date of the

v. Stevens County Exploration Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 1068.

72. Since statute does not require notice to declare that discovery has been made, recital of discovery therein held not prima facie evidence of that fact. Fox v. Myers [Nev.] 86 P. 793. Copy of record of notice recorded pursuant to St. 1875-76, p. 853, c. 562, held to prove nothing except the bare fact that notice had been recorded, neither that notice was posted, nor that location was properly marked on ground, nor that boundaries included apex of a lode or any valuable deposit, nor that assessment work had been done. Mutchmor v. McCarty [Cal.] 87 P. 85.

73. Copies of recorded notices, though notices not required to be posted or recorded, held to be considered as evidence in case on question of location of boundaries when received without objection. Daggett v. Yreka Min. & Mill Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 968. Notice claiming 1,500 feet of this vein or lode held to show that notice as posted on ground was placed on croppings of lode or in close proximity thereto. Id.

74. Does not cure defect arising from fact that land was not part of public domain at time of original location, where rights of third parties have intervened. Brown v. Gurney, 26 S. Ct. 509.

75. Location must be good when made, and each claimant must stand on his own location and can only take what it will give him under the law. Lockhart v. Farrell [Utah] 86 P. 1077.

76. Since a location based on discovery within limits of existing valid location is void as to all the world, one who locates claim within boundaries of valid subsisting location does not succeed to rights of prior locators on forfeiture or abandonment of prior location, and subsequent locator in suit on adverse may show and rely on fact that applicant's location was invalid when made because within subsisting location belonging to third person. Lockhart v. Farrell [Utah] 86 P. 1077. Since a location notice properly made and posted upon a valid location of mineral is an appropriation of the territory therein specified for the sixty-day period allowed for doing statutory discovery work, during such period no one can initiate title thereto which would be rendered valid by mere failure of first appropriator to perform the necessary discovery work within the time prescribed by law. Sierra Blanca Min. & R. Co. v. Winchell [Colo.] 83 P. 628.

77. Forfeiture of location or forfeiture or abandonment of right acquired by posting notice required by Pol. Code, § 3610, through failure of declaratory statement to comply with § 3612, held not to cause area covered by it, in so far as in conflict with junior right, to revert absolutely to public domain but to inure to benefit of junior locator. Helena Gold & Iron Co. v. Baggaley [Mont.] 87 P. 455.

78. See 6 C. L. 648.

79. Rev. St. § 2324, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 19. If work was actually done in good faith for purpose of developing mine, a strict compliance with requisites of the statute is established, and a court will not be permitted to substitute its own judgment as to the wisdom and expediency of the method employed for developing the mine in place of that of the owner. Gear v. Ford [Cal. App.] 88 P. 600. Whether work was done for the purpose of working the claim in controversy, or was adapted to that purpose, are questions of fact. Id. Money expended for watchman held not a compliance with statute under the circumstances, the suspension of actual work not being temporary or with the intention of renewing it within a reasonable time, etc. Id. Evidence held to sustain finding that required work was not done during certain year and that defendant did not resume work, or make any improvements during next year and prior to plaintiff's location. Id. Question is not what it cost to do work but whether it was worth $100, and hence it is immaterial whether whole or any part of it was done gratuitously by one having no interest. Anderson v. Coughey [Cal. App.] 84 P. 223. Evidence held to sustain finding that required work for certain year was done. Id. Evidence insufficient to show doing of work. Mutchmor v. McCarty [Cal.] 87 P. 85. Evidence held to support finding that work for certain year was performed. Smith v. Mountain Gulch Min. & Mill. Co. [Idaho] 85 P. 918. Where in ejectment defendant claimed forfeiture for failure of plaintiff, a co-owner, to pay for her share of assessment work, held that requested instruction that, in determining amount of work done for purpose of representation, test was reasonable value of work, and not what was paid for it or contract price, was properly refused, it appearing that defendant himself did work. McKay v. Neussler [C. C. A.] 148 F. 86.

location of the claim.[80] If a co-owner fails or refuses to contribute his proportion of the cost of the required work after a personal notice or notice by publication to do so, his interest becomes the property of his co-owners who have made the required expenditures.[81] Statutes in some states require the locator to sink a discovery shaft or to do other equivalent work within a specified time.[82]

After a valid location has been made the locator need not keep actual possession of the claim but his right of possession continues until he has in fact abandoned it, or has forfeited it by failure to do the requisite amount of work within the prescribed time.[83]

A forfeiture [84] can only be established by clear and convincing evidence.[85] One who prevents the doing of the required assessment work cannot take advantage of its nonperformance.[86] Whether a prior location was forfeited as against another adverse location is a question of fact.[87]

An abandonment [88] takes place where the locator of a claim leaves it without any intention of returning and having no regard for what may become of it or who may appropriate it.[89]

80. One locating claim in 1900 held to have whole of 1901 in which to do work. Anderson v. Caughey [Cal. App.] 84 P. 223.

81. U. S. Rev. St. § 2324, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 20. Ballard v. Golob, 34 Colo. 417, 83 P. 376. Published notice held insufficient to divest interest of co-owner whose name did not appear therein. Id. Notice cannot be given by manager of corporation co-owner in his own name. Dye v. Crary [N. M.] 85 P. 1038. Burden of proving that party giving notice was actual owner is on party asserting forfeiture. Id. One buying an interest in unpatented mining claim at a void judicial sale and paying the amount due from the judgment debtor, as co-tenant, for assessment work before the time to redeem has fully expired, taking a receipt therefor only, held not subrogated to rights of judgment creditor who was seeking forfeiture for failure to contribute to assessment work, but his payment and its acceptance prevented forfeiture as against judgment debtor. Id. Where defendant claimed forfeiture of plaintiff's interest for failure to pay for her share of alleged work, bona fides of defendant's attempt to comply with law held to have no part in questions to be considered by jury in aid of proof that he did required work or otherwise. McKay v. Neussler [C. C. A.] 148 F. 86. Evidence held insufficient to show that defendants had done assessment work required by Rev. St. 1878, § 2324, on claims located prior to 1872, so that verdict was properly directed in favor of plaintiffs claiming under subsequent location. First Nat. Gold Min. Co. v. Alvater [C. C. A.] 149 F. 393.

82. Under Pol. Code, § 3611, locators must within ninety days after discovery sink shaft on lode or claim at least ten feet or as much deeper as may be necessary to show well-defined crevice or valuable deposit, or in lieu thereof a cut or tunnel cutting lode at depth of ten feet below surface, or open cut for at least ten feet along lode from point of discovery. Dolan v. Passmore [Mont.] 85 P. 1034. Under § 3611, as amended by Sess. Laws 1901, p. 140, must do work within sixty days after posting required notice. Helena Gold & Iron Co. v. Baggaley [Mont.] 87 P. 455. Evidence held to show compliance with Acts 1899, p. 71, c. 45, § 2, providing that before filing location notice for record discoverer shall locate claim by sinking discovery shaft upon lode to depth of ten feet. Paragon Min. & Development Co. v. Stevens County Exploration Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 1068.

83. Gear v. Ford [Cal. App.] 88 P. 600. Actual presence on the property is not necessary to constitute possession as against a stranger entering without right. Davis v. Dennis [Wash.] 85 P. 1079.

84. See 6 C. L. 649.

85. Upon clear and convincing proof of the failure of the former owner to have performed the labor to the amount required by law. Gear v. Ford [Cal. App.] 88 P. 600.

86. Garvey v. Elder [S. D.] 109 N. W. 508. Where plaintiff prevented defendant's servant from doing required work by threats to have him arrested, held that claim was not subject to relocation by him on ground that work had not been done. Id.

87. Gear v. Ford [Cal. App.] 88 P. 600.

88. See 6 C. L. 649.

89. Leaving with intent to return is not abandonment. Davis v. Dennis [Wash.] 85 P. 1079. Evidence held to show that there was not an abandonment. Id. Though an abandonment results from a mere exercise of the will and, so far as it relates to a vested estate in realty, is ineffectual to transfer title, the possible fluctuations in value of mining claims demands a different rule, and necessitates an immediate assertion of inchoate rights therein, when, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, the locators could have discovered that their rights were being invaded. Scharkey v. Candiani [Or.] 85 P. 219. Experienced miners familiar with method generally adopted in marking boundaries of which defendants were ignorant, held, by their failure to object, and by acts and conduct, to have abandoned right to premises in conflict, and to be estopped from asserting it, the means of information to the respective parties not being equal. Id. Co-tenant, as superintendent and managing partner, held to have possessed sufficient authority to bind all his cotenants by his negligence in permitting defendants to take, hold possession of, and improve their property for so long a time. Id. Where owners

(§ 3) C. Relocation.[90]—On forfeiture or abandonment,[91] a claim is open to relocation in the same manner as though never located.[92] A relocation impliedly admits a valid prior location,[93] and one whose application for a patent is based on a relocation cannot rely on rights acquired by the original location.[94]

(§ 3) D. Proceedings to obtain patent; adverse claims.[95]—A transfer of title by an applicant for a patent during the pendency of the application makes him a trustee, and, as such, he holds the title only for the purposes of such application, and, when patent is issued, the title immediately vests in his grantee.[96] A patent is conclusive of all facts necessary to establish the validity of the patentee's title as against a party claiming adverse rights.[97] It raises a conclusive presumption that there is the apex of a vien within the patented ground, but not that it is the apex of any particular vein.[98] When the claim to a tunnel site has been located before the entry of conflicting lode claims which have subsequently passed to patents, the question whether discoveries of mineral were made within the lode claims before the location of the claim to the tunnel site is open to determination by evidence de hors the patents.[99] Rulings of the land department as to the ground covered by a lode location are not subject to collateral attack where final entry has been made, though patent has not been issued.[1] of three-fourths of claim abandoned same by permitting defendant to enter and locate another claim thereon, held that act of owner of other fourth in subsequently ratifying abandonment and consenting thereto was equivalent to an abandonment at time when other owner abandoned, and subsequent locator could not complain that entire interest was not abandoned at time defendant made his location and that he was mere trespasser. Oberto v. Smith [Colo.] 86 P. 86. Land department refused to issue patent for entire claim on ground that it was divided into two parts by patented placer claim, but gave applicant privilege to apply for patent on either of the segregated tracts and directed that, in default of election or appeal within sixty days, south tract should be deemed abandoned. Claimant did not appeal, but instituted proceedings in land department to secure title to vein which it was alleged passed through placer claim which conflicted with his location, but was unsuccessful. Thereafter, and after expiration of sixty days, claimant filed written election to retain and patent north tract. Held that south tract did not revert to and become part of public domain subject to relocation until filing of election to take north tract, original order being suspended pending contest. Brown v. Gurney, 201 U. S. 184, 50 Law. Ed. 717. Election filed in land office took effect eo instanti as voluntary abandonment of south tract, though entry as to it was not canceled until subsequently. Id.

90. See 6 C. L. 650.

91. As to what constitutes a forfeiture or abandonment, see § 3 B, ante.

92. On forfeiture provided original locators or their heirs, assigns, or legal representatives, have not resumed work in meantime. Lockhart v. Farrell [Utah] 86 P. 1077.

93. Recital in certificate that location was relocation of abandoned claim. Slothower v. Hunter [Wyo.] 88 P. 36.

94. S. located G. D. claim, and subsequently with one R. made and recorded an amended certificate of location. Thereafter N. relocated claim as the B. D., recording certificate which recited that it was a relocation of such claim which had been abandoned, using and appropriating the stakes and survey thereof. S. thereafter purchased N.'s rights, and applied for patent for B. D. claim. Held that S. thereby adopted N.'s certificate as basis and inception of his title, and while location certificates of the G. D. were admissible in adverse suit as showing boundaries of B. D. by reference, they could not operate to establish title antedating location of the latter. Slothower v. Hunter [Wyo.] 88 P. 36. Recital in certificate that location was relocation of G. D. claim abandoned was admission that latter once had legal existence, and possessory title conveyed by N. to S. was antagonistic to and destructive of any former title held by latter. Id.

95. See 6 C. L. 650.

96. Slothower v. Hunter [Wyo.] 88 P. 36, is not such a parting of title as to deprive him of right to defend suit on adverse claim. Id. Admission of deed transferring his interest held error, but harmless in view of the decree. Id.

97. Sharkey v. Candiani [Or.] 85 P. 219.

98. Grand Cent. Min. Co. v. Mammoth Min. Co., 29 Utah, 490, 83 P. 648. Where defendant claimed ore under plaintiff's adjoining claim by virtue of alleged extralateral rights, held that presumption was equally applicable to claims of both parties, and did not shift burden of proof as to apex and continuity of vein and ore in controversy from defendant to plaintiff. Id.

99. Entries and patents of lode claims, in proceedings to which claimant of tunnel site located across them prior to the entries was not, and was not required to be, a party, will not estop him from establishing by testimony of witnesses who know and by other customary evidence the fact that no discoveries of mineral in rock in place had been made in lode claims before claim for tunnel site was located across them. Uinta Tunnel Min. & Transp. Co. v. Ajax Gold Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 563.

1. Brown v. Gurney, 201 U. S. 184, 50 Law. Ed. 717.

Suits to determine adverse claims.[2]—Under the Federal statute adverse claims must be filed in the land office within the sixty day period within which the notice of the application for a patent is required to be published,[3] and the person filing such a claim must, within thirty days thereafter, commence proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction to determine his right to possession of the land in controversy.[4] The statute applies only to adverse claims arising out of independent conflicting locations of the same ground, and not to controversies between persons claiming under the same location,[5] but under the rules and practice of the land department an owner of an interest in a claim who has been excluded by his co-owner from an application for a patent may adverse or protest such application and maintain an action in support thereof.[6]

No particular form of action is provided for, the matter being entirely regulated by state statutes relating to the recovery of possession of, or the quieting of title to, realty.[7] The purpose of the action is to determine for the information of the land department which, if either, of the parties is entitled to be vesetd with the fee of the premises in dispute by purchase from the government.[8] Each party is practically a plaintiff and must show his title.[9] While in a contest between them the court may indulge the presumption that the location prior in time has, prima facie, the better right, the parties are not concluded by the mere fact of priority,[10] such presumption operating merely to cast on the junior locator the burden of rebutting it and to show the invalidity of the apparently prior location, or other facts giving him the better right to the ground in dispute.[11] The notices required to be given of the application are, in effect, a summons to all adverse claimants to appear and assert their rights by filing an adverse within the time prescribed[12] and hence the rights of an adverse claimant must be limited to those existing at the time of filing his adverse.[13] If title is not established by either party, judgment must be rendered accordingly.[14] The usual rules of practice[15] and pleading[16] apply in the absence of special statutory provisions on the subject.[17]

2. See 6 C. L. 652.

3. Sixty-day period during which notice must be published as required by U. S. Rev. St. § 2325, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 31, commences to run from date of first publication. Helbert v. Tatem [Mont.] 85 P. 733. Complaint held to sufficiently show that adverse claim was filed before expiration of sixty-day period, it not appearing that first publication was made on day that application was filed. Id.

4. U. S. Rev. St. § 2325, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 31.

5. Davidson v. Fraser [Colo.] 84 P. 695.

6. In view of practice of land office to await result of such action before issuing patent, and Code Civ. Proc. § 275, permitting action for possession of interest in realty to be brought by a tenant in common against his cotenant, where latter has actually ousted him or done some act amounting to denial of his right as cotenant. Davidson v. Fraser [Colo.] 84 P. 695.

7. Action pursuant to adverse to determine title to ground in conflict held suit in equity. Kirby v. Higgins, 33 Mont. 518, 85 P. 275.

8. Healey v. Rupp [Colo.] 86 P. 1015.

9. Brown v. Gurney, 201 U. S. 184, 50 Law. Ed. 717; Lockhart v. Farrell [Utah] 86 P. 1077. Each party must show affirmatively his title, both the right of possession as between the parties and also the sufficiency of the showing by the party adversed to entitles him to a patent being in issue. Slothower v. Hunter [Wyo.] 88 P. 36. Failure of court to find upon issue of possession and right to patent of balance of claim, after determining that one party was entitled to possession of part of it, held error. Id. Trial de novo on such issue held not necessary where there was no conflict in evidence, and possession and right to patent was supported by evidence. Id. Objection that the locators, through whom the applicant claims, were aliens may properly be made in an action based on an adverse, it being in right and on behalf of the government. Matlock v. Stone, 77 Ark. 195, 91 S. W. 553.

10. Lockhart v. Farrell [Utah] 86 P. 1077.

11. Lockhart v. Farrell [Utah] 86 P. 1077. May show that location was invalid because on land covered by valid subsisting location by third person, though latter has forfeited his rights and fails to adverse. Id.

12. Within sixty-day period of publication prescribed by U. S. Rev. St. § 2325, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 31. Healey v. Rupp [Colo.] 86 P. 1015.

13. Cannot base rights on subsequent discovery. Healey v. Rupp [Colo.] 86 P. 1015. In suit in support of an adverse, defendants held not precluded from objecting to judgment in favor of plaintiff on ground that it was based on discovery made after he filed his adverse because jury found that there had been no discovery on their claim. Id.

14. Act March 3, 1881, 21 St. L. 505, c. 140. Applicant must prove claim of title before

§ 4. Ownership or estate obtained by claim, location, and patent; apex and extralateral rights.[18]—Mere occupancy of the public land and the making of improvements thereon creates no vested right therein as against the United States or any purchaser from it.[19] One making a valid location of mineral land without obtaining a patent acquires the possessory title thereto as against all the world, and against the government so long as he performs the required annual assessment work thereon.[20] Such title passes to his grantee [21] or by descent to his heirs on his death.[22]

Under the Federal statutes where a vein or lode is known to exist within the boundaries of a placer claim, an application for a patent for such placer claim which does not include an application for the vein or lode claim is to be construed as a conclusive declaration that the applicant has no right of possession of the vein or lode claim,[23] but where the existence of a vein or lode in a placer claim is not known, a patent for the placer claim conveys all the valuable mineral and other deposits within its boundaries.[24]

he is entitled to patent. Brown v. Gurney, 201 U. S. 184, 50 Law. Ed. 717. Federal government is quasi party to suit on adverse, and, in proper case, it is incumbent on court to render judgment that neither party is entitled to patent. Helena Gold & Iron Co. v. Baggaley [Mont.] 87 P. 455.

15. Stipulation in adverse suit waiving all other issues and submitting case on sole issue as to whether plaintiffs had resumed work after forfeiture before making of location under which defendant claimed title, held valid and binding, and to have rendered proof of any other matter unnecessary, whether Federal land officers would accept judgment based on issue so limited being question for them to decide. Gibberson v. Wilson [Ark.] 96 S. W. 137.

16. In action of ejectment brought by plaintiff against cotenant in support of adverse on application of latter for patent in his own name, amended complaint held not to set up different cause of action from original, the cause alleged in both being plaintiff's interest and his exclusion therefrom by defendant, though facts pleaded to show interest were somewhat different. Davidson v. Fraser [Colo.] 84 P. 695. Amended complaint, though inartificial, held not open to objection that, while original complaint only embraced parts of claim not in conflict with another, it limited ground in controversy to conflict between the two claims. Id.

17. Complaint in action on adverse held sufficient under Mills' Ann. Code, § 267, providing that if plaintiff claims legal right to occupy and possess premises under local mining laws or rules, or those of U. S. or the state, or otherwise, complaint shall contain brief statement of such possessory claim, and whether right claimed is by pre-emption or purchase, or by right of actual prior possession on public domain. Jackson v. McFall [Colo.] 85 P. 638.

18. See 6 C. L. 654.

19. Helstrom v. Rodes, 30 Utah, 122, 83 P. 730. One making improvements upon public land, knowing that it is open to exploration and sale for its minerals, who makes no effort to secure title thereto or the right of possession, has no valid claim of possession or for compensation for his improvements as an adverse holder in good faith as against one obtaining a patent from the government. Id.

20. Reed v. Munn [C. C. A.] 148 F. 737. Location notice properly made and posted upon a valid location of mineral is an appropriation of the territory therein specified for the period of sixty days allowed locator to do discovery work required by statute. Sierra Blanca Min. & R. Co. v. Winchell [Colo.] 83 P. 628. Failure to give requested instruction held error in view of evidence. Id. Locator of claim who has complied with all requirements of law with reference to location has freehold estate within statute relating to appeals to supreme court, though he has not obtained patent. White Star Min. Co. v. Hultberg [Ill.] 77 N. E. 327.

21. Grantee, as the apparent owner, holds it against the unrecorded equitable claim of another of which he has no notice. Claimant under trust agreement. Reed v. Munn [C. C. A.] 148 F. 737. Between such a grantee without notice and the claimant of a prior equitable interest, the former has the prior equity. Id.

22. Possessory rights of locator who has not applied for patent or paid purchase price therefor, and has done nothing to perfect his title except to do annual assessment work required by law, is property which on his death passes to his heirs by descent, and not as designated donees or beneficiaries of the United States, and hence it may be administered upon and sold by his administrator as other property. R. S. § 2322. O'Connell v. Pinnacle Gold Mines Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 854, afg. 131 F. 106.

23. R. S. § 2333, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 45. Vein known to exist and not included in application may be located by adverse claimant after issuance of patent. Mutchmor v. McCarty [Cal.] 87 P. 85. Vein is known to exist when it is known to placer claimant, when its existence is generally known, or when any examination of ground sufficient to enable placer claimant to make oath that it is subject to location as such would necessarily disclose its existence. Id. Evidence held to show that existence of veins was known. Id. Quartz vein containing so small a percentage of mineral as to be of no value for mining purposes is not known vein within meaning of statute. Id. Evidence held to show that veins were valueless. Id.

24. R. S. § 2333, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 45. Mutchmor v. McCarty [Cal.] 87 P. 85.

A locator is entitled to protection in the possession of his claim, and cannot be deprived of his rights by the tortious acts of others; nor can an intruder or trespasser initiate any rights which will defeat those of the prior locator.[25] A lessee of a claim who has contracted to do an amount of work thereon which would be a sufficient compliance with the legal requirements in respect of development, and also to notify the lessor of any intention to surrender or abandon the lease, cannot, upon failing to perform his obligations, secretly relocate the claim and so secure and hold for himself the title,[26] and a patent obtained under such circumstances will be decreed to be held in trust for the lessor.[27] So too, one co-tenant will not be permitted to act in hostility to the others in reference to the joint estate, and a distinct title acquired by one will inure to the benefit of all.[28] One tenant in common of a claim has no right to use a common tunnel driven thereon to convey ore from an outside claim.[29]

Apex and extralateral rights.[30]—The owner of a mining claim has a right to follow, between vertical planes drawn downward through the end lines of the location, a vein having its apex within the limits of such claim on its dip to the deep, though such vein may so far depart from a perpendicular on its course downward as to extend outside of the vertical side lines of the surface location.[31] The definition of a vein or lode must always have special reference to the formation and peculiar characteristics of the particular district in which it is found.[32] The essen-

25. Garvey v. Elder [S. D.] 109 N. W. 505.

26. Stewart v. Westlake [C. C. A.] 148 F. 349. Evidence held to show that no notice of intention to surrender or abandon tenancy was ever given to lessor. Id. Fact that lessor had, before executing lease in his own name, conveyed claim to a corporation of which he was lessor and manager, and of which he owned all the stock, with authority to make contracts in its name, held not to enable lessees to avoid consequences of their own fraud, the circumstances being such as to estop corporation from repudiating lease. Id.

27. Stewart v. Westlake [C. C. A.] 148 F. 349.

28. Where published notice to contribute to expense of assessment work was insufficient to deprive plaintiff of his interest as cotenant, held that he was not deprived of his interest by act of Federal officials in issuing patent to cotenants, but patentees took title subject to his rights and became trustees to extent of his interest. Ballard v. Golob, 34 Colo. 417, 83 P. 376. Payment of taxes by patentees held to be regarded as payment for plaintiff to the extent of his interest, and hence not to be basis for claim of adverse possession. Id. Obtaining patent was not purchase of outstanding adverse title as to plaintiff, and hence could not be made basis of claim of adverse possession as to him. Id. Mills' Ann. St. §§ 2923, 2924, providing that persons in possession of property under color and claim of title made in good faith who have paid taxes thereon for five years, or persons who under color and claim of title made in good faith have paid taxes on unoccupied land for five years, shall be adjudged owners thereof, held repealed by Laws 1893, p. 327, c. 118. Id. Even if applicable, held that complaint was not demurrable, since it did not appear therefrom that taxes had been paid for five years by persons having or claiming property under color of title. Id. Mills' Ann. St. § 2911, requiring actions for relief on ground of fraud to be brought within three years after discovery of fraud, held not to apply to frauds perpetrated by one in fiduciary capacity, and hence not to an action to recover interest in mining claim of which plaintiff was deprived by fraud of co-owners. Id. Trust created by taking of patent by one co-owner in his own name is an express and continuing one, and hence cause of action does not accrue until trust is repudiated and notice of repudiation brought home to cestui que trust. Id. Complaint held not to show that five-year limitation prescribed by Mills' Ann. St. § 2912, was applicable. Id. Where cross-complaint alleged that at time patent was issued patentees well knew the interest of the cross-complainants in the claim as cotenants, and that grantees of patentees also had notice and knowledge of the facts, and that patentees held the interest of cross-complainants as trustees, held that cross-complaint was improperly dismissed on demurrer, any attempted forfeiture proceedings as to cross-complainants being ineffectual. Stephens v. Golob, 34 Colo. 429, 83 P. 381.

29. Laesch v. Morton [Colo.] 87 P. 1081.

30. See 6 C. L. 655.

31. U. S. Rev. St. § 2322, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 13. Grand Cent. Min. Co. v. Mammoth Min. Co., 29 Utah, 490, 83 P. 648. Evidence held to sustain finding as to direction of vein on its strike and as to place where it left defendant's claim. Id. Evidence held to sustain finding that no dip of vein had been shown which could extend from apex in defendant's claim north of plaintiff's south end line extended and intercept ore bodies in dispute. Id. Evidence held to sustain finding that ore bodies in dispute were on strike of vein and not on its dip, and hence belonged to plaintiff who was surface owner. Id.

32. Grand Cent. Min. Co. v. Mammoth Min. Co., 29 Utah, 490, 83 P. 648; Fox v. Myers [Nev.] 86 P. 793.

tial elements of a vein are mineral or mineral bearing rock and boundaries.[33] When one of these elements exist, very slight evidence may be accepted as to the existence of the other.[34] One claiming extralateral rights because of a vein existing and apexing in his ground, but which has no well-defined boundaries, must, in order to exercise them when disputed, show a ledge or body of mineral or mineral bearing rock of such value as will distinguish it from the country rock, or from the general mass of the mountain.[35] There is no fixed standard as to the value which the mineral or mineral bearing rock must have, but it necessarily depends upon the characteristics of the surrounding country, and upon the character, as to boundaries, of the vein itself.[36] What may constitute a sufficient discovery to warrant a location may be wholly inadequate to show an apex justifying the locator in claiming extralateral rights, the law being more rigidly construed in the latter case than the former.[37]

Under the Federal statutes now in force, in order to entitle a locator to extralateral rights, the end lines of his surface location must be parallel,[38] but this rule does not apply to locations made under former statutes.[39]

Boundary lines and monuments.[40]—Where the monuments are found upon the ground or their position or location can be determined with certainty, they govern rather than the location certificate,[41] but where the course and distances are not with certainty defined by monuments or stakes, the calls in the location notice must govern and control.[42] Surveys made and monuments erected after location cannot operate to change the rights of the locator, or the position, location, or boundaries of the claim except in so far as they may show an abandonment of parts of the the claim not included therein, there being no new location.[43] A map purporting to show the lines of a location is of no probative value unless supported by the evi-

33. Grand Cent. Min. Co. v. Mammoth Min. Co., 29 Utah, 490, 83 P. 648. Evidence held insufficient to show existence of vein satisfying demands of law within a certain part of defendant's claim. Id.

34. Grand Cent. Min. Co. v. Mammoth Min. Co., 29 Utah, 490, 83 P. 648.

35. Grand Cent. Min. Co. v. Mammoth Min. Co., 29 Utah, 490, 83 P. 648. Material must in texture and value be such as to show existence of vein, and mere proof of fact that rock is broken, shattered and fissured and mixed with calcareous substance, though it may show a conglomerate mass, is insufficient for that purpose. Id. When, however, the walls or boundaries are well defined, the vein differentiated from the surrounding country, and the kind of material mentioned constitutes the filling, evidence of slight value in mineral is sufficient. Id. An occassional vugg or fragment of ore disconnected from any ore body, and so intermingled with and surrounded by country rock that it cannot be regarded as continuous, is insufficient to mark the line of a vein or lode. Id. Evidence as to mineralization held insufficient. Id.

36. Values of filling of vein must be considered with special reference to the district where vein or lode is found. Grand Cent. Min. Co. v. Mammoth Min. Co., 29 Utah, 490, 83 P. 648. If surrounding country is barren, slight values are sufficient, but if rock generally carries values and boundaries are not well defined, values should be in excess of those of country rock. Id.

37. Grand Cent. Min. Co. v. Mammoth Min. Co., 29 Utah, 490, 83 P. 648. Mere fact that miner sees gangue and vein matter which he can follow with a reasonable expectation of finding ore is insufficient. Id.

38. Rev. St. § 2320, 5 Fed. St. Ann. 8. Daggett v. Yreka Min. & Mill. Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 968. Evidence held insufficient to show that end lines of claim as marked on ground were parallel. Id.

39. This requirement of Act of May 10, 1872, c. 152 (R. S. § 2320) does not apply to case where locations were made and patent applied for before passage of act, though patent was not issued until after it went into effect, in view of provisions in § 3 (R. S. § 2322), and §§ 9, 12, 16, against impairment of existing rights. East Cent. Eureka Min. Co. v. Central Eureka Min. Co., 27 S. Ct. 258, afg. 146 Cal. 147, 79 P. 834. Fact that patent granted rights that would have been acquired by location under act of 1872 as well as those acquired under act of 1866, held not to import election on part of grantee to abandon latter. Id.

40. See 6 C. L. 657.

41, 42. Treadwell v. Marrs [Ariz.] 83 P. 350.

43. On adverse to application for patent, held that, in order to make survey by plaintiffs and evidence of their surveyor as to conflict between their claim and that of defendant admissible, it was incumbent on them to prove that their claim as originally located was in accord with such survey to extent of conflict claimed. Treadwell v. Marrs [Ariz.] 83 P. 350. Evidence held insufficient to show that alleged conflict was based upon a survey or plat of claim having course or distances or area of plaintiff's claim, and hence evidence of survey was inadmissible. Id.

dence of some one knowing the position of the monuments supporting such lines.[44] Cases fixing the monuments and boundaries of particular claims will be found in the note.[45]

§ 5. Right to mine on private land thrown open to the public.[46]—By statute in Missouri the owner or lessee of mining land, platting it into lots and permitting others than his agents or employes to mine thereon, may post rules and regulations to govern their mining operations, and specify the time during which the right to mine shall continue.[47] In case no time is specified in the rules so posted, the right is limited to a period of three years from the date of the permit.[48]

§ 6. Private conveyances or grants of mineral rights in land.[49]—A grant of a mere easement in the surface carries no right to the underlying minerals,[50] The effect of a statutory dedication of a street in this regard depends on the terms of the statute under which it is made.[51] The usual rules as to the acquisition of title by adverse possession apply.[52]

A reservation is something reserved or created out of the thing granted that was not in existence before, while an exception must be a part of the thing granted.[53] Whether the languge of a deed creates a reservation or an exception from the grant depends upon the intention of the parties as evinced by a construction of the whole instrument in the light of the circumstances of each case.[54] Deeds which are silent as to mining rights severed by the original grantor will be construed as

44. Daggett v. Yreka Min. & Mill. Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 968.

45. Evidence held insufficient to support findings as to location of boundaries and monuments. Meyer-Clarke-Rowe Mines Co. v. Steinfeld [Ariz.] 85 P. 1067. Evidence held to establish that end lines as marked on ground did not give plaintiff extralateral rights in ore mined by defendant. Daggett v. Yreka Min. & Mill. Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 968. Evidence held insufficient to identify ground claimed by plaintiff, and hence insufficient, to support verdict in his favor. Kirby v. Higgins, 33 Mont. 518, 85 P. 275. Certain monument held northwest corner of claim instead of northwest center end. Sharkey v. Candiani [Or.] 85 P. 219. In suit on adverse evidence held to support finding as to boundaries of certain claims. Slothower v. Hunter [Wyo.] 88 P. 36.

46. See 6 C. L. 657.

47. Rev. St. 1899, § 8766. Arbuthnot v. Eclipse Land & Min. Co., 115 Mo. App. 600, 92 S. W. 170.

48. Rev. St. 1899, § 8767. Arbuthnot v. Eclipse Land & Min. Co., 115 Mo. App. 600, 92 S. W. 170. Rights acquired under oral contract with lessee and assigned to plaintiffs, though contract provided right should continue until lease expired. Id.

49. See 6 C. L. 657.

50. Contract granting right of way to railroad held to give it merely an easement, so that it had no right to grant right to take oil and gas to another. South Penn. Oil Co. v. Calf Creek O. & G. Co., 140 F. 507. Grantor held estopped by conduct from denying right of lessee of railroad. Id. Dedication of street held insufficient as a statutory dedication so that city did not acquire fee, but only an easement, and was not entitled to enjoin mining under street which did not interfere with such easement. City of Leadville v. Coronado Min. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 1034.

51. Under Gen. Laws 1877, c. 100, § 6, statutory dedication held to give city entire title to streets as such for public use, but not for profit or emolument of city, and hence it was entitled to only so much of property as was reasonably necessary for that purpose, such being plainly the intention of the dedicator, and not to underlying ores, mining of which did not interfere with use of street. City of Leadville v. Bohn Min. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 1038.

52. Hostile acts relied upon to initiate adverse possession must be such as to carry with them a presumption that they would be observed by the owner, were he to visit the premises. Castello v. Muheim [Ariz.] 84 P. 906. Actual, visible and continuous possession of mine may not be held to have been initiated and maintained by one sinking shaft of unstated depth six or ten feet deeper, who thereafter does no other act upon property for seven years, in absence of proof that such act would naturally attract attention of owner, should he visit premises. Id. Action to recover possession of unpatented mining property from one who had been in adverse, open, and notorious possession thereof, claiming right to possession under a deed purporting to convey the title to it, for more than five years, held barred by Rev. St. 1887, § 4036. Bradley v. Johnson, 11 Idaho, 689, 83 P. 927. Statute applies to unpatented mining claims. Id.

53. Moore v. Griffin, 72 Kan. 164, 83 P. 395. Provision in deed reserving to grantors all rights, etc., under certain oil and gas lease and all oil and gas privileges in and to the premises, held to constitute an exception, and not a reservation. Id.

54. Use of words "reserve," or "reserving," or of other words of similar import does not necessarily create a technical reservation. Gill v. Fletcher, 74 Ohio St. 295, 78 N. E. 433. Language and circumstances held to show an intention to except from grant of lands an absolute and inheritable estate in the one-half of the plaster beneath the surface. Id.

conveying only such rights as his grantees had.[55] Purchasers take with constructive notice of reservations in recorded deeds.[56] There can be no conditional delivery, or delivery in escrow, by the grantor to the grantee in a deed.[57]

It is the duty of the court to construe contracts for the sale of mineral land as they are made by the parties thereto, and to give full force and effect to the language used, when it is clear, plain, and unambiguous.[58] Customs and usages in the light of which such contracts are made enter into and form a part of them as fully as though incorporated therein.[59] Where the contract is ambiguous, the construction placed upon it by the parties will be considered in determining their intention.[60] Whether an assignment is absolute or conditional is a question of intention.[61] Courts of equity enforce specific performance of contracts for the sale of realty according to the true intent and meaning of parties as disclosed by the contract considered as a whole, and do not hold themselves bound by all technical rules applicable to deeds passing title.[62] While in a naked option for the purchase of mining property, time is ordinarily of the essence of the contract, and failure of the holder to comply with the times fixed, without legal excuse, ordinarily results in a loss of his rights, yet where there has been a part performance and a reasonable excuse for a failure to fully perform, equity will not decree a forfeiture, but will compel specific performance, where it is within the power of the defaulting party, at the time of the trial, to make the other party whole.[63] The Federal supreme court will follow the highest state court in a holding as to the construction and effect of a conveyance of mineral land between private parties.[64] Cases construing particular instruments as to the property included [65] or reserved,[66] and provisions as to the

55. Gill v. Fletcher, 74 Ohio St. 295, 78 N. E. 433.

56. Deed excepted all oil and gas privileges in premises. Grantee conveyed by general warranty deed to another, without any reservation or exception. Held that, all the deeds being of record, subsequent purchaser took with constructive notice and had no interest in oil or gas. Moore v. Griffin, 72 Kan. 164, 83 P. 395.

57. Larsh v. Boyle [Colo.] 86 P. 1000. Evidence held to show delivery of deed of assignment of interest in mine, parties having treated it as perfected and delivered instrument. Id.

58. Griffin v. Fairmont Coal Co., 59 W. Va. 480, 53 S. E. 24. It is only where language is ambiguous, uncertain, and susceptible of more than one construction that court may, under well established rules of construction, interfere to reach a proper construction, and make certain that which in itself is uncertain. Id.

59. Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. v. East Itasca Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 232. Parties, by arranging for exploration of land without critically defining how it was to be done, held to have adopted the usual and customary explorations of the region. Id.

60. Whether evidenced by contemporaneous acts or circumstances, or subsequent acts or circumstances, or formal expression. Powers v. World's Fair Min. Co. [Ariz.] 86 P. 15. Instructions to bank with which deeds were placed in escrow, though executed several months after contract. Id. Cross-complaint with copy of instructions held inadmissible, no foundation for introduction of secondary evidence having been laid. Id.

61. Evidence held to support finding that assignment of option on mining claims was absolute and obligated defendant to pay purchase price immediately on its execution. Hunner v. Mulcahy [Wash.] 88 P. 521.

62. Armstrong v. Ross [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 895. Rule that grantor cannot by subsequent clause in deed destroy or nullify grant made in prior clause does not apply to executory contracts. Id.

63. Certain defendants holding option on mine assigned to plaintiff and another a part interest in consideration of their paying part of purchase price as it became due, and parties then formed mining partnership. Fund for second payment was, by agreement, raised by giving of joint notes of all the parties. Held that failure of plaintiff to pay his share of notes did not entitle defendants to forfeit his interest, but he was entitled to recover his interest and to an accounting in suit in which he offered to fully perform. Larsh v. Boyle [Colo.] 86 P. 1000.

64. That quitclaim deed of adjoining land did not purport to convey part of underlying vein apexing in grantor's claim. East Cent. Eureka Min. Co. v. Central Eureka Min. Co., 27 S. Ct. 258.

65. Mortgage described land covered thereby as "the mineral lands" described in a specified deed. Deed did not designate lands conveyed or any portion of them as "mineral" lands. Held that mortgage was not void for indefinite description, but would be regarded as covering lands described in deed which were in fact mineral, and could be aided in that respect by evidence aliunde. Smith v. Vary [Ala.] 41 So. 941. Bill to foreclose held not demurrable for failure to show what part of lands were mineral and what part were not, that being a matter of evidence not required to be pleaded. Id. One having deed of S. mine and deed of J. mine, right of access,[67] the right to sink ventilating shafts,[67] and payment,[69] will be found in the notes.

In order to acquire any interest under an assignment of an option to purchase, the assignee must perform all the conditions imposed on him thereby.[70] Contract rights may be lost by their abandonment or surrender.[71] One who voluntarily puts it out of his power to perform thereby commits a breach and is liable generally therefor.[72] To work a release, a refusal to perform must be distinct, unequivocal and absolute, and must be acted upon as such by the other party.[73]

the boundaries of which coincided, executed mortgage on the "J. mining claim, being the property located by W." on a certain date and described in certain deed from B. to mortgagor. Location of J. claim by W. was void and deed by B. conveyed nothing. Held that mortgage covered mortgagor's interest in S. mine, it not being intended that it should embrace only such interests as mortgagor acquired through B.'s deed or W.'s location. Wemple v. Yosemite Gold Min. Co. [Cal. App.] 87 P. 280. Contract of sale, when read in connection with deeds and other writings referred to therein, held to show on its face that subject of sale was portion of certain vein of coal lying under certain tract of land, the existence and location of which was known to parties, and not to include other veins in said land not so known to them. Armstrong v. Ross [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 895. Pursuant to compromise of adverse suit, locator of one of two conflicting claims executed bond whereby he agreed to obtain patent for his claim including land in controversy and then to convey a certain described part thereof to locator of other claim "together with all the mineral therein contained." Pursuant to decree of specific performance, plaintiff, which had acquired rights of first mentioned locator, executed deed to defendant, which had acquired rights of second, conveying tract described in bond "together with all the mineral therein contained," together with "all the dips, spurs, and angles," etc. Held that deed passed all minerals below surface of tract, including part of undiscovered vein apexing on remaining part of plaintiff's claim. Montana Min. Co. v. St. Louis Min. & Mill. Co., 27 S. Ct. 254; Id. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 897.

66. Where deed contained exception of all rights under certain oil and gas lease and all oil and gas privileges in and to the premises, held that subsequent cancellation of lease referred to did not affect rights of grantor in oil and gas, nor vest same in grantee. Moore v. Griffin, 72 Kan. 164, 83 P. 395. Reservation of "mineral" in deed held not to include natural gas. Silver v. Bush, 213 Pa. 195, 62 A. 832. Deed held to convey entire fee for all purposes except only right to mine or take reserved minerals or interfering with grantor's reserved right to do so. Id. Deed conveyed a part of grantee's interest in oil in certain land "except the well that is now producing on said land." Subsequently well referred to ceased to produce, and was deepened by a lessee thereof to a different sand rock, and produced oil from it. Held that oil so produced was excepted from operation of deed. Ammons v. Toothman, 59 W. Va. 165, 53 S. E. 13.

67. Deed conveying mineral rights providing that grantee should have "free access to said land from any direction by roads and other passways or means of exit and entrance," held to give grantee right to construct such roads, etc., as might be necessary to get out the mineral, having due regard to interests of grantor as owner of soil, and not inflicting upon him any unnecessary damage. Duncan v. American Standard Asphalt Co. [Ky.] 97 S. W. 392. Construction of necessary tramway held not to entitle grantor to damages. Id. Deed granting underlying coal with right of way for purpose of mining and removing same, held not to give grantee right to construct and maintain railroad thereon for purpose of transporting coal from shaft on adjoining land to main line of railroad. Farrar v. Pittsburg, etc., Coal Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 280.

68. Deed of coal underlying certain tract giving right "to exercise the usual and ordinary privileges of ventilation," etc., "and to transport other coal through underground entries made or to be made in the coal so granted," held to give grantee right to sink shaft for purpose of ventilating workings, both in that and adjoining tracts. Cubbage v. Pittsburg Coal Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 341.

69. In contract for sale of mine providing for development by vendee and application of proceeds, less certain deductions, to payment of purchase price, provision for certain deduction held ambiguous and, unaided by extrinsic evidence, not to authorize defendant to withhold $12 per ton for ore shipped to smelter, and not milled, concentrated, or leached on the grounds. Powers v. World's Fair Min. Co. [Ariz.] 86 P. 15.

70. Where persons holding naked option to purchase mine assigned part interest to plaintiff, subject to certain conditions, held that, if he failed to perform covenants under deed of assignment, he acquired no interest, and hence it could not be contended that his conduct was parol abandonment insufficient to deprive him of his interest under statute of frauds. Larsh v. Boyle [Colo.] 86 P. 1000. Evidence held to show that assignees of part interest in mine on which certain of the defendants held an option made payments to owner in such a way as to comply with obligations resting upon them under conditions of deed of assignment. Id.

71. Finding that defendant did not surrender option to purchase mining claims, and that plaintiff did not accept surrender by going into possession, held contrary to the evidence. K. P. Min. Co. v. Jacobson, 30 Utah, 115, 83 P. 728. Evidence held insufficient to show that plaintiff abandoned or surrendered his rights under assignment of part interest in mine. Larsh v. Boyle [Colo.] 86 P. 1000.

72. Cannot escape liability by putting it out of his power to perform in way contem-

Sales of mineral land may be set aside or rescinded for fraud [74] on restoration of the status quo.[75] In the absence of fraud or deceit, the assignee of an option to purchase will be held to have contracted with reference to facts apparent on the face of the instrument and cannot subsequently rely on them to avoid his contract for failure of consideration.[76]

The owner of land containing minerals may separate it into two or more estates and convey the surface to one person and the minerals to another, or may reserve either to himself and convey the other.[77] After a severance the owners of the respective estates hold them as separate and distinct estates in land, each being subject to the ordinary incidents of other like estates.[78] Title to the underlying minerals may in such case be acquired by adverse possession,[79] but possession and occupancy plated by contract. Teachenor v. Tibbals [Utah] 86 P. 483. Contract for sale of mine providing for payment of part of purchase price out of first net profits derived from sale of ores extracted therefrom, said sum not to be paid otherwise, held to contemplate sale of ores as extracted without unreasonable delay, so that one who bought interest from purchaser subject to contract could not escape liability by stacking ore extracted and selling it and mine for lump sum. Id. Evidence held to show that sufficient ore had been extracted to pay balance of purchase price of mine had it been sold and proceeds used for that purpose as contemplated by contract of sale. Id.

73. Armstrong v. Ross [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 895. Refusal of vendee of certain coal in place to perform contract according to true interpretation thereof, accompanied by offer to perform in accordance with his own erroneous interpretation, held not to entitle vendor to rescind. Id.

74. Mather v. Barnes, 146 F. 1000. Sale of coal lands rescinded because of fraud and false representations of vendor's agent. Id. Representations as to underlying coal, accompanied by statement of vendors that had never been over property or examined it, held mere commendatory or trade talk not amounting to fraud. Id.

75. Substantial restoration is all that is required, it being sufficient that one party gets back what he parted with and other gives up what he got. Mather v. Barnes, 146 F. 1000. Fact that defendants would be compelled to take back land instead of options which they originally held, and to pay back entire purchase price, a part of which had gone to original owners, held not to prevent rescission of sale of coal lands. Id. On rescission of sale of coal lands for fraud vendees, upon reconveyance, held entitled to have restored to them the purchase money with interest, and amount paid for legal services in examining titles and drawing deeds, and recording fees, taxes, etc., but not amounts paid for preliminary examination by experts, nor expenses of organizing corporation, nor of taking steps looking to construction of coke plant and branch railroad, etc., which did not directly benefit property. Id.

76. Assignee of option to purchase mine held not entitled to defeat recovery of purchase price on ground that option contract was a nullity because it did not sufficiently describe the property and had expired by its own limitation at the time of the assignment, those facts being apparent on the face of the instrument at the time of the purchase, and there being no showing of fraud or deceit. Hunner v. Mulcahy [Wash.] 88 P. 521.

77. Coal in place may be severed from the surface, and the title thereto may be in one person while the title to the surface is in another. Brand v. Consol. Coal Co., 219 Ill. 643, 76 N. E. 849. Surface and underlying minerals may belong to different owners, and severance may be accomplished by conveyance of minerals or by reservation or exception thereof from grant. Gill v. Fletcher, 74 Ohio St. 295, 78 N. E. 433. Ownership of coal or other underlying minerals may be separated from surface by a deed of record, and thereafter there will be two estates in same land. Interstate Coal & Iron Co. v. Clintwood Coal & Timber Co., 105 Va. 574, 54 S. E. 593. Severed coal may run in its own different line of title without reference to that of surface. Gallagher v. Hicks [Pa.] 65 A. 623.

78. Each may be conveyed by deed or devised by will, or may pass to heir under statutes of descent. Brand v. Consol. Coal Co., 219 Ill. 643, 76 N. E. 849. Owner of surface and owner of minerals are not joint tenants or tenants in common, but are owners of distinct subjects of entirely different natures. Interstate Coal & Iron Co. v. Clintwood Coal & Timber Co., 105 Va. 574, 54 S. E. 593. Owner may convey surface estate in fee, and reserve to himself an estate in fee in minerals or any particular species of them, in which case vendor holds a distinct and separate estate in minerals, which is subject to law of descent, devise and conveyance. Moore v. Griffin, 72 Kan. 164, 83 P. 395. Exception in deed by which grantor carved out and retained right to oil and gas held to carve out separate estate in oil and gas from estate in surface, so that title and ownership thereof remained in grantor. Id.

79. Can take place only when possession is actual, continuous, open, notorious and hostile, and cannot be accomplished by secret trespass on owner's rights. Gill v. Fletcher, 74 Ohio St. 295, 78 N. E. 433. Constructive possession under color of recorded deeds conveying land, but which are silent as to excepted minerals, held not to amount to adverse possession or notice of adverse claim. Id. As in other cases, tenant in common cannot assert title by adverse possession against his cotenant unless he shows a definite and continuous assertion of adverse right by overt acts of unequivocal character clearly indicating an assertion of ownership of premises to exclusion of cotenant. Id. Actual possession of the surface and constructive possession of minerals of the surface in such case is insufficient.[80] The owner of the minerals does not lose his rights by mere non user.[81]

Rights as between surface and subterranean owners.[82]—The underlying or mineral estate owes a servitude of sufficient support to the upper or superincumbent strata,[83] unless the same is waived.[84] There is a conflict of authority as to whether a grant of all the underlying mineral with the right to remove the same constitutes such a waiver.[85] Aside from such servitude, the operator has the right to mine and remove the underlying minerals in a proper manner according to the approved methods of mining without liability for such injuries as incidentally result to the superincumbent strata.[86]

§ 7. Leases.[87]—Statutes in some states provide for the leasing of mineral lands belonging to the state.[88]

Essentials and validity.—As in the case of other contracts, mutuality,[89] a valuable consideration,[90] and definiteness and certainty of terms,[91] are essential to the under color of deeds is insufficient, but there must be an actual interference with plaintiff's seisin with denial of his title. Id.

80. Gill v. Fletcher, 74 Ohio St. 295, 78 N. E. 433.

81. Title can be defeated only by acts which actually take the mineral out of his possession. Gill v. Fletcher, 74 Ohio St. 295, 78 N. E. 433.

82. See 6 C. L. 661.

83. Weaver v. Berwind-White Coal Co. [Pa.] 65 A. 545.

84. Surface owner may waive or part with his right to support. Griffin v. Fairmont Coal Co., 59 W. Va. 480, 53 S. E. 24. Preliminary injunction to prevent removal of surface support refused, where lease provided that lessee should not be liable for damages due to subsidence of surface. Miles v. Pennsylvania Coal Co., 214 Pa. 544, 63 A. 1032.

85. Pennsylvania: Grant of all merchantable coal underlying the premises, together with necessary mining rights to mine and remove same, does not amount to waiver by implication. Weaver v. Berwind-White Coal Co. [Pa.] 65 A. 545. Reservation of specified number of acres underlying buildings and spring held not to show intention to waive surface support to balance. Id.

West Virginia: Where a deed conveys the coal under a tract of land with the right to enter upon, and under said land, and to mine excavate, and remove all of it, there is no implied reservation that the grantee must leave enough coal to support the surface in its original position, and he may remove all of it without liability for damages resulting from the consequent subsidence of the surface. Griffin v. Fairmont Coal Co., 59 W. Va. 480, 53 S. E. 24. Deeds conveying coal with rights of removal should be construed in the same way as other written instruments, and the intention of the parties as manifest by the language used in the deed itself should govern. Id.

86. Can be no recovery for destruction of springs where there has been no disturbance of superincumbent strata and no subsidence of surface, or where it appears that they were not destroyed by failure to provide surface support. Weaver v. Berwind-White Coal Co. [Pa.] 65 A. 545. Whether destruction was due to failure to provide sufficient support held for jury on conflicting evidence. Id.

87. See 6 C. L. 662.

88. Laws 1889, p. 68, c. 22, and amendments thereto, providing for issuance of mineral leases and contracts does not authorize sale of any school or swamp lands of state within meaning of Const. art. 8, § 2, prohibiting sale of such lands except at public sale, and is not unconstitutional. State v. Evans [Minn.] 108 N. W. 958.

89. Though option to purchase contained in lease was originally nudum pactum because not signed by lessee, held that it became enforceable contract of sale on payment of whole or part of purchase price. Williams v. Eldora-Enterprise Gold Min. Co. [Colo.] 83 P. 780. Gas lease held not lacking in mutuality. Ringle v. Quigg [Kan.] 87 P. 724. Lease imposing on lessees unconditional obligation to sink one or more wells within eighteen months, and to commence work on first one within six months, and giving lessor option to forfeit lease in case of failure to commence work within time specified, held not to be unilateral but to be supported by sufficient consideration and enforceable, since, unless lessor exercised option to cancel, lessees could be held at all events to compliance with obligation to do specified work. Great Western Oil Co. v. Carpenter [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 970, 95 S. W. 57. Further provision that lessees might prevent cancellation and continue lease in force for another year by paying certain sum per acre per annum as rental held not to change rule, such right becoming effective only in event lessor exercised right to cancel, and hence in no way affecting right of latter to demand compliance at all events. Id. Immaterial that lessee could not be compelled specifically to do work, or that remedy by way of action for damages would be inadequate because damages could not be measured. Id. Lease upon consideration of one dollar paid at the time is not wanting in mutuality, merely because it reserves to one party option to terminate it which it withholds from other. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801.

90. Consideration of one dollar recited in oil and gas leases as paid, and in fact paid, held merely nominal and insufficient to support the contracts. Great Western Oil Co. v. Carpenter [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 970, 95 S. W. 57. Release of all of lessee's rights under second lease held sufficient consideration for contract of lessor to convey validity of mining and oil and gas leases. The lessor is estopped to deny the receipt of a consideration which the lease recites has been received as against an assignee for value without notice that it has not in fact been paid.[92] An option to do something in the future is not void merely because the person making the agreement is unable to perform at once.[93] In Louisiana a potestative condition in a lease renders it void.[94]

Estate or interest created.[95]—In Pennsylvania an instrument, which in terms is a demise of all the coal in, under and upon certain land, with the unqualified right to mine and remove the same, is a sale of the mineral in place, whether the purchase money is a lump sum or depends on the amount mined, and though a term is created within which the coal is required to be taken out.[96] So called oil and gas leases are generally held not to be leases in the ordinary sense of the term.[97] There is a conflict of authority as to the interest acquired by the lessee thereunder.[98] certain part of land to lessee in fee, and to pay certain sum in cash out of proceeds of first fifty acres of balance sold to others. Id. Release of part of land covered by lease before accrual of right of lessor to cancel lease for failure to do prescribed development work held sufficient consideration to support lease imposing no express obligation on lessee to do any work. Id. Mere inadequacy of consideration, or other inequality in terms of lease, does not alone constitute ground for avoiding it in equity. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801. The civil law requires that the consideration for a contract be serious, and not out of all proportion with the value of the contract. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489. In contract of more than $100 in value, consideration of one dollar is insufficient, and same is true of two dollars for privilege of retiring therefrom at any time. Id. Hence in oil and gas lease obligation of lessee to complete one well within one year will be held to be purely potestative, and as such to entail nullity of contract, where he retains right to retire from contract at any time on payment of two dollars, though consideration of contract is stated to be one dollar cash in hand paid, receipt whereof is acknowledged. Id.

Interpretation and effect in general.[99]—As in the case of other contracts, leases

91. Lease is not void for ambiguity when intention of parties can be clearly and certainly ascertained therefrom. Ringle v. Quigg [Kan.] 87 P. 724. Oil and gas lease held void for uncertainty in description of premises. South Penn. Oil Co. v. Calf Creek Oil & Gas Co., 140 F. 507.

92. Receipt of recited consideration of one dollar. Dill v. Fraze [Ind.] 79 N. E. 971, rvg. 77 N. E. 1147.

93. Gas lease held not to be void merely because lessee stipulates therein that at end of five years he shall have option to keep lease in force by laying pipes to lessor's premises and furnishing him gas, which he has no right to do at the time the lease is executed. Ringle v. Quigg [Kan.] 87 P. 724.

94. Provision in oil and gas lease authorizing rescission by lessee at any time on payment of two dollars held a potestative one rendering lease void, consideration not being a serious one. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489.

95. See 6 C. L. 662.

96. Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931.

97. Owing to fugitive character of oil and gas and speculative and uncertain character of business of mining them, so called oil and gas leases are not ordinary leases nor within purview of statute concerning relation of landlord and tenant. New American Oil & Min. Co. v. Troyer [Ind.] 77 N. E. 739. Contract held not a lease. Dill v. Fraze [Ind.] 79 N. E. 971. Provision that lessee may at any time reconvey grant whereupon lease shall become null and void held not to render contract voidable at will of lessor. New American Oil & Min. Co. v. Troyer [Ind.] 77 N. E. 739.

98. Indiana: Fugitive character precludes ownership of oil and gas in natural state, and are not subject to sale and conveyance until diverted from natural paths into artificial receptacles. New American Oil & Min. Co. v. Troyer [Ind.] 77 N. E. 739. So called lease granting oil and gas under specified tract held to import a sale thereof to lessee, and to give him vested interest in realty. Ramage v. Wilson [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 368.

Pennsylvania: The grant of the exclusive right to mine for and produce oil is not a sale of the oil that may afterwards be discovered, but merely gives the grantee the right to produce and sever it from the soil. Kelly v. Keys, 213 Pa. 295, 62 A. 911. So much as is thus severed belongs to parties entitled under terms of grant as a chattel, only so much as is produced and severed passing under grant, and there being no change of property as to oil not produced. Id. Grant of exclusive right to go on land and prospect for and produce oil and gas, grantor to receive part of product, does not vest in grantee any estate in land or oil and gas, but is merely a license or grant of an incorporeal hereditament and hence he cannot maintain ejectment against subsequent grantee, even though latter is in possession and producing oil in paying quantities. Id.

West Virginia: Oil and gas lease giving lessee for term of years right to mine and operate for oil and gas is not sale of oil and gas in place, but a lease and lessee has no vested estate therein until it is discovered, but, when found, right to produce becomes vested right, and, when extracted, title vests in lessee, and consideration or royalty paid for privilege of search and production is rent for leased premises. Headley v. Hoopengarner [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 744.

99. See 6 C. L. 663.

and contracts in relation thereto are to be interpreted so as to give effect to the intention of the parties[1] to be derived from the entire instrument.[2] The contract should, if possible, be so construed as to give it effect rather than to defeat it,[3] and each of its provisions so as to give effect to all of them.[4] Where the written contract is unequivocal, its meaning cannot be sought for beyond the instrument itself.[5] When ambiguous the language employed must be construed in the light of the subject-matter and circumstances surrounding the parties when the contract was made.[6] In case of doubt, the practical construction given to the contract by the parties, while engaged in its performance and before any controversy arises, will be adopted.[7] Contracts whereby the owner of land surrenders a part of his rights with respect to the oil and gas therein, generally called leases, require and are given treatment peculiar to themselves.[8] Language of doubtful import will be construed more favorably to the lessor, or at least the court will incline away from a construction which would compel him, on condition of receiving some small periodical payment, to remain inactive while his oil is drained away through wells sunk on neighboring lands.[9] When practicable an interpretation which would make against the development of the resources of the property involved will be avoided.[10] A lease for a definite and permissible term, but which reserves to the lessee an option to terminate it sooner, does not create a mere tenancy at will.[11] Before a custom or usage can govern the rights of the parties to an oil and gas lease, it must be so certain, uniform, and notorious, as probably to be known to and understood by the parties thereto.[12] Whatever is necessary to the accomplishment of that which is ex-

1. Assignment of lease. Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. v. East Itasca Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 232.

2. Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. v. East Itasca Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 232.

3. Compromise agreement amendatory of lease of coal mine. Cranes Nest Coal & Coke Co. v. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co., 105 Va. 785, 54 S. E. 884.

4. Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. v. East Itasca Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 232.

5. Compromise agreement amendatory of coal lease. Cranes Nest Coal & Coke Co. v. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co., 105 Va. 785, 54 S. E. 884.

6. Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. v. East Itasca Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 232; Ramage v. Wilson [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 368.

7. As to exploration of property which was covered by leases to be assigned. Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. v. East Itasca Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 232. Provision that lessee might cancel and annul contract at any time held ambiguous. Ramage v. Wilson [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 368. Lease provided that lessee should drill three wells within specified time or pay one dollar per day for each day's delay over that time, and also that it might cancel lease at any time. Only two wells were drilled. In action to recover penalty for delay in drilling third well, held that answer alleging that parties agreed when lease was executed, and construed it to mean that lessee should be relieved from drilling more than one well by cancelling contract for six and two-thirds acres for each well not drilled, and that notice of cancellation as to six and two-thirds acres was duly given, was insufficient to overcome provisions of lease, it not being alleged from what part of the tract the six and two-thirds acres were to be taken, or that parties ever agreed upon any division of premises for such purpose, etc. Id. Lease requiring completion of well within specified time or payment of quarterly rental until completion held ambiguous as to what should constitute a completed well, so that conduct of parties in treating completion of unproductive well as sufficient to give lessee right to make further explorations, without additional payment, was conclusive upon them under principal of practical construction. Smith v. South Penn. Oil Co., 59 W. Va. 204, 53 S. E. 152. Hence where, after drilling one unproductive well, and paying commutation money until its completion, lessee was permitted to drill another without making further payments, and without notice that any compensation would be demanded for further use and occupation of premises, none could be recovered. Id.

8, 9. Federal Betterment Co. v. Blaes [Kan.] 88 P. 555.

10. Federal Betterment Co. v. Blaes [Kan.] 88 P. 555. Contracts relating to oil and gas to be construed with reference to known characteristics of the business. Dill v. Fraze [Ind.] 79 N. E. 971, rvg. 77 N. E 1147. Object of contract granting right to operate for oil and gas held to be exploration for oil and gas, and development of it if circumstances warranted, so that it was to be construed in light of that fact. Id.

11. Not within rule that estate at will of one party is equally at will of other. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801.

12. Requested charge as to custom permitting lessee to erect building to be occupied by employes held defective in failing to specify territory referred to, and time when custom began, and to whom and where it was known, and as referring to custom in existence at time of trial instead of when contract was made. Prigg v. Pres-

pressly contracted to be done is part and parcel of the contract though not expressed.[13] Implied provisions are as effectual as those expressed.[14] Written provisions control printed ones.[15] Conditions subsequent are not favored, and unexpressed terms will not be imported into them on which to claim a breach.[16] Where the obligation of one party to a lease is indivisible, the corresponding obligation of the other party is necessarily so likewise.[7]

Rights, duties, and liabilities of the parties.[18]—What property is covered by the lease,[19] its duration,[20] the purposes for which the leased premises may be used,[21] the right to move machinery and buildings from place to place thereon,[22] and the right to transport minerals from adjoining mines across the land,[23] and to make underground connections with such mines for that purpose,[24] depend of course on the terms of the contract. The lessee is frequently required to keep entries in the mine [25] and escape ways open and unobstructed,[26] to keep all buildings on the prem-ton, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 272. Evidence on part of lessor that he and other farmers in vicinity never heard of alleged custom held properly admitted. Id. Instructions as to custom approved. Id.

13. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801.

14. Covenant arising by necessary implication. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801. Implication is merely another word for intention, and if it arises from language of lease when considered in its entirety, and is not gathered from mere expectations of parties, it is controlling. Id.

15. Clauses of lease as to compensation for gas, particularly in view of contemporaneous construction by parties, etc. McArthur v. Tionesta Gas Co., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 568.

16. Condition in coal lease held not to require railroad to be built by grantee nor along any particular line, and to have been sufficiently complied with. Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931. Provision that so-called lease should be null and void unless railroad was built within specified time held condition subsequent. Id.

17. Obligation of lessee to drill well within year being indivisible, corresponding obligation of lessor to deliver land is also indivisible. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489.

18. See 6 C. L. 663, 666.

19. Demised premises held to include all veins outcropping or having apexes within surface lines of certain part of claim. Isabella Gold Min. Co. v. Glenn [Colo.] 86 P. 349. Lease held not to authorize lessee to mine coal from other than demised premises, so that mining in adjacent property was violation of its items. Junction Min. Co. v. Springfield Junction Coal Co., 222 Ill. 600, 78 N. E. 902, afg. 122 Ill. App. 574.

20. Oil and gas lease held to have terminated by its express terms when gas ceased to be used generally for manufacturing purposes. Diamond Plate Glass Co. v. Knote [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 954. Lease gave lessee certain rights for term of twelve years and so long thereafter as oil or gas could be produced in paying quantities, "or" the annual payments thereinafter provided for in case of delay in commencing operations were made. Held that word "or" should be construed to mean "and," so that lease expired at end of twelve years, unless oil or gas was produced in paying quantities in the meantime. American Window Glass Co. v. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1006.

21. Oil and gas lease held to contain implied reservation of right to use, and possession of land for other than oil and gas operations, and to restrict rights of lessee to such use as might be reasonably necessary for such operations. Instruction approved. Prigg v. Preston, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 272. Evidence held insufficient to show agreement between lessor and lessee permitting latter to erect house and barn on leased premises. Id.

22. Lessee held to have authority to remove machinery, etc., from old hoisting shaft, which was defective by reason of age, etc., to new one, and not to be required at end of term to return it to original location, particularly where it did not appear that reinstatement was necessary to effect purpose of lease, or that lessor suffered any damage by failure, and there was no substantial evidence on which to predicate damages if any. Junction Min. Co. v. Springfield Junction Coal Co., 222 Ill. 600, 78 N. E. 902, afg. 122 Ill. App. 574.

23. Compromise agreement amendatory of lease of coal mine held to give lessor present use of three haulways, to be designated by him to transport coal from his adjoining mine, which were to be used jointly with lessee. Cranes Nest Coal & Coke Co. v. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co., 105 Va. 785, 54 S. E. 884. Provision that use of haulways was not to injuriously interfere with the operations of the lessee held to have been intended to protect lessee against abuse of lessor's rights, but not to deprive lessor of fair exercise and enjoyment thereof. Id.

24. Lease prohibited excavations within sixty feet of dividing line between leased premises and adjoining land of lessor, without latter's consent. Supplemental agreement gave lessor right to use three haulways to transport coal from adjoining premises. Held that driving cross entries over dividing line by lessor was not a violation of the lease. Cranes Nest Coal & Coke Co. v. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co., 105 Va. 785, 54 S. E. 884.

25. Lease held not to require lessee to keep open and unobstructed entries in mine which had been worked out at time of execution of lease or which were opened and worked out by it during its tenancy except such as afforded access to coal not mined, and hence lessor was not entitled to damages for failure to do so, particularly where there was insufficient evidence on which to base an award. Junction Min. Co. v. Springfield Junction Coal Co., 222 Ill. 600, 78 N. E. 902, afg. 122 Ill. App. 574.

26. Lessor held only entitled to cost of ises in good condition,[27] and to return the premises at the end of the term in good condition as an entire mining property.[28] The lessor is sometimes required to reimburse him for necessary permanent improvements.[29] The lessor is not entitled to damages for a breach consisting in mining on adjoining property belonging to him, where he accepts royalty on mineral so mined with knowledge of its source.[30] The ordinary oil and gas lease, giving the lessee merely an estate for years with a reversion to the lessor, contains an implied covenant for good title and quiet enjoyment during the term.[31]

Leases in which the compensation of the lessor is made to depend on the output are generally held to contain an implied covenant to operate with reasonable diligence.[32] This is particularly true in the case of oil and gas leases,[33] and where the lessee agrees to drill a well within a specified time, or to thereafter pay a periodical rental until a well is drilled, it is generally held that the law will imply a provision requiring the drilling of a well within a reasonable time at the option of the landowner.[34] The acceptance by the lessor of the stipulated rental is, however, a waiver of performance in developing the property during the time it is paid and opening up escape way obstructed by lessee's negligence, and not to cost of purchasing right of way for escape way over adjoining land. Junction Min. Co. v. Springfield Junction Coal Co., 200 Ill. 600, 78 N. E. 902, afg. 122 Ill. App. 574.

27. Stipulation requiring lessee to return buildings, etc., in as good condition as when received, ordinary wear and tear excepted, held not to require it to replace worthless buildings burned without its negligence. Junction Min. Co. v. Springfield Junction Coal Co., 222 Ill. 600, 78 N. E. 902, afg. 122 Ill. App. 574.

28. Stipulation held not to require replacing of burned buildings, it not appearing that they were necessary to constitute the premises such a property (Junction Min. Co. v. Springfield Junction Coal Co., 222 Ill. 600, 78 N. E. 902, afg. 122 Ill. App. 574), or surrender of shaft sunk by it on adjoining property not belonging to lessor (Id.). Lessor held not entitled to both an escapement shaft and escape way connected with adjoining mine in order to constitute premises an entire mining property in view of statute regulating matter. Id.

29. Lease of coal mining property held to contemplate that some of the personalty and fixtures on premises would be worn out during term by use and decay, and that lessee would be required to replace them and provide additional ones and made permanent improvements necessary for proper operation of mine, for all of which lessor was required to pay at end of term. Junction Min. Co. v. Springfield Junction Coal Co., 222 Ill. 600, 78 N. E. 902, afg. 122 Ill. App. 574.

30. Lessor held not entitled to damages for such breach, where owner of adjacent property was one of its stockholders and officers, and it accepted royalty on coal mined thereon with knowledge of its source. Junction Min. Co. v. Springfield Junction Coal Co., 222 Ill. 600, 78 N. E. 902, afg. 122 Ill. App. 574.

31. Lease for years containing word "grant," "demise," or "lease." Headley v. Hoopengarner [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 744.

32. Conveyance of coal with right to mine providing for payment of royalty on output, though fixing no minimum quantity. Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931. Lease mentioning no specific term but providing for payment of a percentage of net proceeds, that payments should not exceed six in number, should be semi-annual, and should begin on or before six months from its date, held to contain implied covenant that lessee would proceed with mining operations with reasonable diligence, and delay of year and a half to operate under lease, and failure to make semi-annual payments during that time, warranted plaintiff in rescinding and entitled him to a cancellation. McIntosh v. Robb [Cal. App.] 88 P. 517.

33. Promise of royalties on oil and gas produced held to have been controlling inducement to grant so that lease would be construed as containing an implied covenant, that, if oil or gas was found in paying quantities during five years allowed for development and exploration, lessor would thereafter continue work of development and production with reasonable diligence, that is along lines reasonably calculated to make production of mutual advantage. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801. Where object of lease is to obtain benefit or profit to both lessor and lessee, neither is, in absence of stipulation to that effect, the arbiter of extent to which, or diligence with which operation shall proceed but both are bound by what, in the circumstances, would be reasonably expected of operators of ordinary prudence, having regard to interests of both. Id. Prolonged failure of lessee to continue work of development and production held, under circumstances, a plain and substantial breach of implied covenant and condition in respect of exercise of reasonable diligence which entitled lessor to terminate lease, though due to mistaken view of obligations imposed. Id. Provision that failure to comply with "any of the above conditions" should render lease void held to apply to implied covenant to continue with reasonable diligence the work of development and production after expiration of five year period if oil or gas was found during that time, and that implied covenant was a condition, breach of which would entitle lessor to avoid lease. Id.

34. Indiana Rolling Mill Co. v. Gas Supply Min. Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 640. Fluctuating and uncertain character and value of oil and gas renders it necessary for accepted,[35] and if, after accepting such payments, the lessor desires to insist on the drilling of a well, he must notify the lessee to that effect, and cannot forfeit the lease until the latter has had a reasonable time in which to perform.[36] What is a reasonable time is ordinarily a question of fact depending on the circumstances of the particular case.[37] Where, however, the lease expressly defines the measure of diligence which the lessee is bound to exercise in the exploration and development of the premises, the lessor cannot avoid it for his failure to do more.[38] protection of lessor that leased property be developed as speedily as possible, and lessee will not be permitted to hold land for an unreasonable length of time for a mere nominal rent, when a royalty on the product is the chief object for execution of lease. Monarch Oil, Gas & Coal Co. v. Richardson [Ky.] 99 S. W. 668. Where oil and gas lease provides that lessee shall complete well within a year, "or pay at the rate of four dollars quarterly in advance for each additional three months, such completion is delayed;" and that the contract is made "for the sole and exclusive purpose of mining and operating for oil and gas," and it otherwise appears from whole contract that it was intention that lessee should be bound to complete well within a year, obligation to make quarterly payments will be held to be mere penal clause and not an alternative obligation, and making of payments not a fulfillment of principal contract, but merely payment of liquidated damages. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489.

35. Indiana Rolling Mill Co. v. Gas Supply Min. Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 640. Lease held not to lay upon lessees absolute duty of drilling well within fixed period, but to give them option either to do so or to pay a rental of free gas for domestic purposes until well was drilled, and so long as they continued to furnish gas and lessor accepted it, latter could not arbitrarily say that lease had expired or that it had been forfeited. Id. Voluntary severance by lessor of service pipes, through which gas was furnished them from lessees mains, held not to have affected the latter's rights under the contract. Id. Where lease was terminable at the end of twelve years, unless oil or gas was found in paying quantities, acceptance of rentals and giving of a receipt reciting that payment continued lease for another term, did not extend it for a term of twelve years, but did operate as waiver of right to claim forfeiture at end of twelve year period, and was effective to require notice to lessee and reasonable time thereafter to comply with lease before forfeiture. American Window Glass Co. v. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1006.

36. Where lessee waived right to declare forfeiture at end of twelve year term, during which lease was to run unless oil or gas was discovered in paying quantities in mean time, held that he could not declare forfeiture until he had given lessee reasonable time in which to develop lands after notice of such intention. American Window Glass Co. v. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1006. Evidence held not to show notice of intention to terminate prior to execution of new leases to others by lessor. Id. Second lessee held not to have been bona fide lessee for value without notice of rights of prior lessee, and hence to occupy no better position that its lessor. Id. Contract recited consideration of one dollar and provided that it should continue for five years and as long as oil and gas were found in paying quantities, or rental was paid, that it should be void if well was not completed in sixty days, unless second party should pay forty dollars for each year commencement was delayed, and that second party could cancel it at any time on payment of one dollar. Held that while, on payment of first year's compensation for delay operator would be entitled to postpone beginning of operations, owner could, by appropriate action, prevent him from holding right granted in land, without exploration or development for contract period. Dill v. Fraze [Ind.] 79 N. E. 971, rvg. [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 1147. Lease provided that it was to run for twenty years, or so long as oil, gas, or other minerals were to be found in paying quantities, for payment to lessor of certain part of oil or minerals produced, and certain rental for each producing well, and that lessee should commence well within a year or pay annual rental of sixteen dollars. Held that object of lease was development of premises, and hence lessor had right at end of any rental period to refuse to accept rent for next year and notify lessee to proceed with development of property, and in case of latter's failure to do so within a year, lessor could, at expiration of that time, have lease forfeited. Monarch Oil, Gas & Coal Co. v. Richardson [Ky.] 99 S. W. 668. Unconditional acceptance of rent, however, satisfied demands of contract to date, and lessor could not have lease canceled until expiration of year from giving notice to lessee to proceed with development. Id.

37. American Window Glass Co. v. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1006. Delay by lessee in beginning or prosecution of work after execution of new lease to other parties by lessor held not to affect lessee's rights. Id.

38. Lease on three tracts giving lessee two years within which to drill well on premises and providing for extension of time by payment of annual rental until well was drilled, and that lease should be void if no well was drilled within five years, held to expressly define measure of diligence which lessee was bound to exercise in exploration and development during first five years, and well having been drilled on one tract during fifth year and rental paid from end of second year until that time, lease could not be avoided because other wells were not drilled during five year period. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801. Gas lease held not void or subject to cancellation merely because lessor expected lessee to perform at once where lease permitted him to delay performance for five years. Ringle v. Quigg [Kan.] 87 P. 724. Though obtaining royalty may be of essence of lease, time when operations shall com-

Leases often contain express covenants for diligence in development of the land and in marketing of the product,[39] the lessee to do a specified amount of work per month,[40] what constitutes reasonable diligence in such a case being a question of fact for the jury.[41]

Failure to drill additional wells is not ground for terminating a lease, where it has been satisfactorily shown that the territory is light and the production would not warrant the sinking of more wells.[42] As to wells already in existence, on land under lease so long as oil or gas shall be found in paying quantities, it is for the lessee to say whether the production will warrant their further operation, and the fact that, for some reasons which seem to be sufficient, he has failed to pump the wells for some time, is not ground for the cancellation of the lease, if in his judgment he can still make some profit from the operation of the wells.[43] What constitutes a well, within the meaning of a provision that if a specified period shall elapse after the drilling of a well without the lessor having received any revenue therefrom and without any further drilling being done by the lessee, the lease shall be deemed abandoned, depends upon the intention of the parties as expressed in the lease.[44] The receipt of a quarterly payment of rental within such period does not commit the lessor to the position that a well has not been drilled where such payments are required to be made until a well is completed, which has not been done.[45] A provision that on failure of the lessee to drill any one of a specified number of wells within the time specified he shall surrender the right to drill on all of the premises except ten acres for each well drilled is not so indefinite as to render the whole contract void, but does not entitle the lessor to quiet title to the whole or any mence is proper subject of agreement between parties, and, in absence of imposition, fraud, or mistake, provisions of contract in that regard should be upheld. Id. Demurrer to petition for cancellation of lease held properly sustained, where no facts indicating fraud, imposition, or mistake, or that interests of lessor were being or would be injuriously affected by any of provisions of lease, were alleged. Id.

39. Where an oil and gas lease covering lands located in a field, which is being actively developed, is given for a term of two years, and contains a provision that, in case oil or gas is found on the premises, the lease may be continued in force by the lessee so long as he diligently develops the land and markets the product, the failure of the lessee to use reasonable diligence in the respects named will cause the lease to lapse. Buffalo Valley Oil & Gas Co. v. Jones [Kan.] 88 P. 537.

40. Lease of mine requiring lessee to conduct work in miner-like manner and so as to take out greatest amount of ore possible, and to mine steadily and continuously, with provision that failure to do certain amount of work per month would be violation of covenant, and providing for payment monthly of graded royalty based on amount of ore extracted, held not to render it optional with lessee whether he would comply with requirements as to working and developing property or to limit remedy of lessor in case of a failure to do so to a forfeiture of the lease, but lessee's failure rendered him liable for such damages as he could show that he had suffered by reason thereof. Macon v. Trowbridge [Colo.] 87 P. 1147. Measure of damages in such case would depend upon amount of ore which could have been mined if reasonable diligence had been exercised, and its value, question being whether premises could have been operated at such profit, after deducting royalties, as would be regarded as fair and reasonable. Id. In action on promissory note against lessor, averments of answer and cross complaint setting up lease and breach thereof, and damages, held sufficient to warrant proof of amount of ore which could have been extracted and its value. Id.

41. Buffalo Valley Oil & Gas Co. v. Jones [Kan.] 88 P. 537. Evidence held to support finding of lack of reasonable diligence. Id.

42, 43. Zeller v. Book, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 429.

44. Oil lease provided that if well was not completed within six months it could be kept in force by quarterly payment of ten dollars until one was completed, and that if, at any time after well was drilled, six months should elapse without any revenue being received therefrom or any further drilling being done, lease should be deemed abandoned. Attempt was made to drill well, but casing was pulled out, and hole plugged. No further drilling was done, and more than six months thereafter lessor sued for cancellation of lease on ground of abandonment. Held that there being evidence from which it might be inferred that drilling showed oil in sufficient quantity to warrant shooting, which was not attempted, court was justified in finding that operations amounted to drilling of a well, and that cessation of operations thereafter was an abandonment of lease. Federal Betterment Co. v. Blaes [Kan.] 88 P. 555.

45. Federal Betterment Co. v. Blaes [Kan.] 88 P. 555.

part of the tract on failure of the lessee to drill the required number of wells.[46] Provision is sometimes made for the arbitration of disputes and for the determination of specified questions by a board of engineers selected for that purpose.[47] The lessor cannot recover damages for breach of a provision requiring the lessee to explore for oil and gas by drilling wells, in the absence of an allegation that there was oil and gas in the leased premises.[48]

The lessor has no right to destroy or convert to his own use property of the lessee remaining on the leased premises after the termination of the lease, and is liable in damages for so doing.[49] The lessor cannot in such case set up as a counterclaim damages for failure of the lessee to bore for oil as required by the lease.[50]

Rents and royalties.[51]—Coal leases often provide for the payment of a certain royalty per ton for all coal mined and accepted by the lessee as merchantable,[52] and for the payment of royalty on a minimum number of tons whether mined or not,[53] unless mining is prevented by unforeseen faults in the strata.[54] Faults in the strata in land covered by one lease will not excuse payment of the minimum royalty provided for in another lease covering a different tract.[55] The lessee is sometimes required to pay a certain fixed sum at specified times regardless of all other con-

46. Contract contemplated drilling of eight wells and provided that on failure to drill any of them within time specified lessee should surrender right to drill on all of the grant excepting ten acres for each well drilled. Grantee had power of selection. Jones v. Mount [Ind.] 77 N. E. 1089, afg. 74 N. E. 1032. Hence, where only one well was drilled, grantor could not have title quieted to whole tract or to all of it except specific ten acres in square form surrounding the well drilled, provision being so far uncertain that it could not be said that failure to drill other seven wells entitled him to all or any particular portion of the realty. Id.

47. Provision for arbitration in case of disagreement held inapplicable to further provision for determination by three engineers of question whether all coal capable of being mined had been paid for. Henry v. Lehigh Valley Coal Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 635. Agreement for arbitration of disputes held revocable by either party. Id.

48. Duff v. Bailey [Ky.] 29 Ky. L. R. 919, 96 S. W. 577.

49. Oil and gas lease provided that lessee should begin work within three months and diligently prosecute same, and that he might abandon lease at any time, and when contract was terminated might remove all buildings and machinery from leased premises. Lessee placed buildings and machinery on premises, but did nothing further. After more than a year, lessor made buildings into stove wood and sold machinery. Held that he was liable to lessee for its value. Duff v. Bailey [Ky.] 29 Ky. L. R. 919, 96 S. W. 577.

50. Does not grow out of, and is not connected with, plaintiff's cause of action. Duff v. Bailey [Ky.] 29 Ky. L. R. 919, 96 S. W. 577.

51. See 6 C. L. 665.

52. Where lease so provided, and also that any culm not so accepted should be the property of the lessor, held that lessee by mingling culm with that from other mines, taking unqualified possession thereof, and exercising full and exclusive dominion over it, and removing it beyond power of lessor to assert his ownership of culm mined on her lands, exercised its option in favor of taking all the material mined as merchantable coal under the contract, and lessor was entitled to royalty therefor. Genet v. President, etc., of Delaware & H. Canal Co. [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 437.

53. Where lease provided for payment of minimum royalty, held that further provision "that in the end no more coal shall be paid for than is actually mined" did not become operative in the absence of proof that lessee had paid royalty for all coal that could be mined, and overpayment for coal actually mined did not relieve it from payment of minimum royalty so long as it remained in possession. Pennsylvania Coal & Coke Co. v. Witherow [Pa.] 64 A. 535.

54. Coal lease provided for payment of royalty on minimum number of tons whether mined or not, unless prevented by unforeseen faults in strata. Lessee attempted to reach coal from adjoining mine, but was prevented by faults. Made no effort during first year to mine on leased premises, but it appeared that thereafter coal was without difficulty reached by opening thereon. Held, that lease contemplated effort on leased premises to reach coal and faults contemplated were such as might there be encountered, and lessor was entitled to recover minimum royalty for first year. Troxell v. Anderson Coal Min. Co., 213 Pa. 475, 62 A. 1083.

55. Two coal leases between same parties, made at different times and covering different adjoining tracts, each contained provision for payment of minimum royalty unless mining was prevented by faults in strata, etc. Second lease provided for sinking a second shaft, but this was not done on land covered thereby. Second shaft was, however, sunk on land covered by first lease and faults discovered in coal. Held, that each lease was dependent alone on condition of coal in land covered thereby, and faults in strata in land covered by first lease did not excuse payment of minimum royalty provided for by second. Dorris v. Morrisdale Coal Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 855. Evidence held not so clear, precise, and indubitable as to warrant submission of question of reformation of ditions.[56] Where the lessor has a continuing interest in the land, his right to royalties passes under a conveyance, pursuant to an execution sale, of all his right, title, and interest in the property.[57]

Provisions in oil and gas leases to the effect that they shall be forfeited on failure to complete a well or wells within a specified time, unless the lessee shall make certain specified periodical payments, do not ordinarily impose any absolute obligation on him to make such payments, but merely provide a means for postponing a forfeiture.[58] Where, however, the lease requires the drilling of additional wells after the completion of the first, and provides that upon failure to do so the lessee shall pay a specified sum for each well not drilled, he cannot, by abandoning his lease after completing one well, escape liability.[59] The sum so required to be paid is not a penalty, but liquidated damages.[60] The lessee is sometimes made absolutely liable for a specified rental, the amount of which is reduced on the completion of each of a specified number of wells.[61] Whether such payments must be made in advance depends on the terms of the contract.[62] Deposit of the rental in a specified bank to the lessor's credit is sometimes provided for.[63] One executing a division order whereby he agrees to accept a certain part of the oil produced as his share of the royalty is estopped to contend, as against other parties thereto and those claiming under them, that he is entitled to a larger share under the lease.[64]

Assignments.[65]—The consideration to be paid for the assignment of leases is frequently made to depend on the amount of ore in the premises, to be estimated from the result of certain exploration work.[66] contract on ground of fraud, accident, or mistake, to the jury. Id.

56. Supplemental agreement. Pennsylvania Coal & Coke Co. v. Witherow [Pa.] 64 A. 535.

57. Lessor held to have continuing interest. Gallagher v. Hicks [Pa.] 65 A. 623.

58. Held to merely give it privilege of extending lease by periodical payments of amount specified. Smith v. South Penn. Oil Co., 59 W. Va. 204, 53 S. E. 152. Where lease provided that it should terminate if a well was not completed within three months unless lessee should thereafter pay $500 per month for each month's delay, each payment to extend time for completion for one month, held that provision for monthly payment was not a covenant to pay rental at specified rate until well was completed or lease surrendered and canceled, but payment was only condition precedent necessary to maintaining vitality of lease after three months and a means whereby right to forfeit could be postponed. Hays v. Forest Oil Co., 213 Pa. 556, 62 A. 1072. Where lessor treated well as completed and accepted royalties for more than two years, held that he could not thereafter contend that it was not completed in accordance with the terms of the lease. Id.

59. Crown Oil Co. v. Probert, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 489.

60. Provision that after completion of first well lessee should drill two additional wells at intervals of ninety days, and upon failure to drill said wells or any one of them should forfeit and pay to lessor $100 for each well not drilled. Crown Oil Co. v. Probert, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 489.

61. Oil and gas lease providing for quarterly payments of rental to be reduced one-third on completion of first and second wells respectively, and to cease on payment of third, construed and held that on completion of two wells lessees acquired right to hold two-thirds of entire tract without possibility of forfeiture, in consideration of which they were bound to pay rental which lease required to be paid after completion of second well. Jackson v. American Natural Gas Co., 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 408.

62. Contract providing for forfeiture if well was not completed in sixty days unless certain sum was thereafter paid for each year completion was delayed, and authorizing grantee to cancel it at any time on payment of one dollar, held to require payment in advance. Dill v. Fraze [Ind.] 79 N. E. 971, rvg. [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 1147. Hence, owner was entitled to declare forfeiture at end of sixty days where well had not been drilled and payment was not then made. Id.

63. Where lease provided that deposit should constitute payment, bank's acceptance of deposit without notice from lessor not to do so constituted payment to lessor. American Window Glass Co. v. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1006.

64. Headley v. Hoopengarner [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 744.

65. See 6 C. L. 665.

66. Contract for assignment of mining leases held to require plaintiff to pay defendant within specified time certain price per ton of iron ore of certain quality, found as result of exploration work of usual and customary kind, conducted with reasonable diligence during that period, and not to require ascertainment of actual quantity and quality of ore in premises. Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. v. East Itasca Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 232. Provision requiring plaintiff to furnish defendant a true report, showing the "substance encountered" in drilling, held not to mean absolutely true showing, but only a showing as disclosed by the kind of

Eviction.[67]—Any act of the lessor whereby his tenant is deprived of the enjoyment of the whole or a material part of the demised premises, or which shows an intent upon the part of the lessor permanently to deprive or seriously to obstruct or interfere with the tenant's quiet and peaceable enjoyment thereof, amounts to an eviction [68] for which the lessee has an action for damages.[69] A mere trespass does not amount to an eviction, though accompanied by such acts and committed in such circumstances as to be equivalent thereto.[70] A provision whereby the lessee waives all claims for damages against the lessees of adjoining land for trespass has no application to a claim against the lessor for breach of covenant for quiet enjoyment because of an eviction resulting from the acts of such adjoining lessees with the connivance of the lessor.[71]

Forfeiture, rescission, cancellation, and abandonment.[72]—As in other cases, a lease or an assignment thereof may be rescinded for fraud or material misrepresentations.[73] On breach of the contract by the lessee, the lessor may either claim rescission or damages.[74] Only in the latter event is it necessary to put the obligor in default before bringing suit.[76] An offer of performance after notice of rescission is too late.[78] In a suit to rescind the obligor may, under proper circumstances, be granted further time in which to perform.[77] The party having the right to rescind must do so within a reasonable time after the discovery of the facts giving him such right.[78] A decree of rescission should put the parties in statu quo, by requiring exploration and development adopted by the parties to test it. Id. Where explorations were conducted by usual and customary methods, there being no other methods provided for, and payment made based on results thereof, held that if, notwithstanding accurate calculations and computations, it turned out that customary assumptions as to character and quantity of ore in area surrounding drill holes, or any other assumption connected with exploration, was false, overpayment made in consequence thereof could not be recovered on theory of mistake of fact. Id.

67. See Landlord & Tenant, 8 C. L. 656.

68. Isabella Gold Min. Co. v. Glenn [Colo.] 86 P. 349. Evidence held to show possession by lessees and their eviction by lessor. Id.

69. Action by evicted lessee against lessor for damages held one for breach of implied covenant for quiet enjoyment, and not one for trespass. Isabella Gold Min. Co. v. Glenn [Colo.] 86 P. 349. As to right, in action for damages by lessee for wrongful eviction, to recover, in addition to net value of ore which lessee would have extracted had it not been for lessor's wrong, a sum equal to legal interest thereon, see Id.

70, 71. Isabella Gold Min. Co. v. Glenn [Colo.] 86 P. 349.

72. See 6 C. L. 667.

73. Owing to the peculiar nature of oil and gas, both the quantity and location of land covered by an oil and gas lease are elements going to the substance and essence of a contract of sale of such lease, obligating the vendee to develop the property by drilling a well thereon and to deliver to the vendor a part of the product thereof, free of cost or expense, and a gross misrepresentation as to either, even if innocently made, relied on by the vendee under the belief that it is true, is ground for rescission of the contract. Bruner & McCoach v. Miller, 59 W. Va. 36, 52 S. E. 995. Assignment canceled where it was made to call for a specific quantity of land and to include land not covered by lease under a misapprehension as to meaning of latter instrument. Id. Where lease gave lessee at least six months in which to drill well, held that lessor could not have it set aside for fraud because entered into in reliance on false statement of agent of lessee that it had drill loaded on cars for the purpose of bringing it to the field, such misrepresentation not being material in view of fact that oral negotiations were merged in written lease (Ruggles v. Spindle Bottom Oil & Gas Co., 72 Kan. 662, 83 P. 399), nor because agent falsely represented that drill would be in operation within thirty days, since failure to do a thing at time promised in future does not relate back and make promise fraudulent, particularly when subsequent written contract provides later time for performance (Id.).

74. Petition alleging that defendant contracted to complete well within a year, and that at time of commencing suit, four years after date of contract, he had not even made preparations for commencing well, and praying that contract be avoided, held to set forth action for rescission. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489.

75. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489.

76. Putting up derrick held insignificant. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489.

77. Further time in which to fulfill provision of oil and gas lease requiring drilling of well within a year refused because in such a contract time is always more or less of essence, and lessee failed to offer any excuse for delay. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489.

78. Delay after knowledge, and receipt of royalties not offered to be returned, held to preclude avoidance of lease by lessor for fraud. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801.

each to restore to the other what he obtained by virtue of the contract.[79] Money paid as rental to the landowner for delay in drilling a well under a lease held by assignment, in accordance with obligations imposed by the lease and assumed by the assignee, may be recovered back on rescission, where the contract of sale does not bind the vendee to drill, but extends to him the right to pay such rental in lieu of drilling.[80] Payments made by way of liquidated damages for delay in performance need not be returned in a suit for rescission for nonperformance.[81]

A condition subsequent is reserved for the benefit of the grantor and his privies in blood, who, in the absence of a provision to the contrary, can alone take advantage of its breach.[82] The usual means of taking advantage of a breach is by entry for condition broken, but it may be by any equally significant act.[83]

Except in cases of fraud, accident, or mistake, equity will not relieve against a forfeiture where the damages occasioned by a breach cannot be ascertained with reasonable precision,[84] or where the forfeiture is of the essence of the contract, and equity will be promoted thereby.[85] Though equity will not ordinarily enforce a forfeiture, this rule is not inflexible, and it may do so where such a course is more consonant with principles of right, justice, and morality, than to withhold equitable relief.[86] If the obligations of the lessee depend on the performance of conditions precedent by the lessor, the latter must show compliance on his part before he will be entitled to a forfeiture.[87] As a general rule a forfeiture cannot arise from an honest mistake.[88] A failure to pay the full amount of royalty will not ordinarily result in a forfeiture where the lessee acts in good faith, relying on his construction of the contract, and the lessor has a remedy by pecuniary reimbursement which he is seeking to enforce.[89] A lessor who sells part of the leased land cannot enforce a forfeiture as to the land sold for a subsequent breach of condition.[90]

A grant of mineral and mining rights may be lost by abandonment, even though

79. Contract assigning oil and gas lease. Bruner v. Miller, 59 W. Va. 36, 52 S. E. 995.

80. Bruner v. Miller, 59 W. Va. 36, 52 S. E. 995.

81. Quarterly payments on delay in drilling well under oil and gas lease. Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1023, 42 So. 489.

82. That lease shall be null and void unless railroad is built within specified time (Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931), cannot be taken advantage of by executors or subsequent grantees (Id.).

83. Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931. Execution and recording of second deed to same mineral, grantee taking possession and mining thereunder, is effectual to do so. Id. Rule does not, however, apply where subsequent conveyance is expressly declared to be subject to prior lease. Id. Fact that, subsequent to or contemporaneously with reconveyance purporting to convey fee, grantor assigned to grantee all his rights under former lease held not to change rule. Id.

84. Breach of implied covenant for reasonable diligence in development, etc., held not one compensable in damages, and hence equity would not relieve against forfeiture therefor. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801.

85. Held that equity would not relieve against forfeiture contemplated by contract for failure to drill well within stipulated time or pay rental in advance. Dill v. Fraze [Ind.] 79 N. E. 971, rvg. 77 N. E. 1147.

86. Suit to establish forfeiture of lease as matter of record and to cancel lease held one to aid in enforcement of forfeiture. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801. Bill held to state case calling for measure of relief not attainable at law and which entitled lessor to decree giving effect to forfeiture of oil and gas lease by its establishment as a matter of record and by cancellation of lease as cloud on title. Id.

87. Failure to furnish gas for domestic use held not ground for forfeiture, where it was not alleged that lessor laid and maintained requisite pipes as required by lease. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801.

88. Where lease required defendant to mine and remove sufficient coal to keep face of mine on leased premises even with face of coal on his adjoining land and to make surveys, etc., held that it was no defense to action of ejectment to enforce forfeiture for breach of conditions of lease that defendant did not know that he was mining on leased premises, particularly where mistake was not an honest one based on fair survey. Brooks v. Gaffin, 192 Mo. 228, 90 S. W. 808.

89. Royalty reserved in deed of oil and gas by guardian. Headley v. Hoopengarner [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 744.

90. Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. [C. C. A.] 140 F. 801.

it vests the grantee with a legal estate.[91] Where an oil and gas lease gives the lessee a vested interest in the realty, his rights cannot ordinarily be released by parol.[92]

Reinstatement.[93]—A lessee who has forfeited his rights by failure to complete a well within the time stipulated or pay rent cannot renew them by subsequently completing a well without the consent of the lessor.[94]

§ 8. Working contracts.[95]—A trust results in favor of one for whose joint benefit another has agreed to locate a claim, where the latter subsequently makes such location in his own name alone.[96] So too one, who acquires mining property pursuant to an agreement whereby he is to furnish the funds and another his skill and services as an expert, and both are to share in the profits, will be held to be a trustee as to the latter's share and compelled to account to him therefor.[97]

As in other cases a contract to mine in order to be enforceable must be free from fraud,[98] and must be supported by a valuable consideration.[99] Whether a new

91. Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931. Rights under coal leases held lost by abandonment. Id.

92. Oil and gas lease held to import sale of oil and gas under specified tract to lessee, and to give him vested interest in realty so that parol release thereof was void. Ramage v. Wilson [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 368.

93. See 6 C. L. 670.

94. Lease provided that if well was not completed within thirty days it should become void unless lessee should pay certain rental. Time for completing well was postponed by a payment and within period of extension lessee sunk a well which it abandoned as worthless. After expiration of extension and death of lessor, and without making any further payments, lessee sunk another well which produced oil in paying quantities. Held, that lessee's rights had terminated before he sunk second well, and executors of lessor were entitled to decree quieting title in them. Zeigler v. Dailey [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 819. Lessee's rights having terminated by abandonment of dry well and failure to pay rental, held that subsequent acts and statements of lessor's executors could not operate to revive lease or waive default thereunder. Id.

95. See 6 C. L. 670.

96. Where one who has himself discovered a mine, but has not located it, discloses it to another in consideration of and reliance upon an agreement or understanding that mine when located shall be joint property of both, and pursuant thereto, the further agreement is then made that latter will locate mine in their joint names or for benefit of both, and latter subsequently locates it in his own name alone, without consent of former. Stewart v. Douglass, 148 Cal. 511, 83 P. 699. Complaint held to state cause of action to enforce resulting trust and for accounting of proceeds of property embraced therein. Id. Plaintiff's husband and another located claim and afterwards sold a part of it to defendant's grantor. Prior to conveyance to defendant, assessment work not having been done, plaintiff relocated claim and obtained patent therefor. Held that, in absence of evidence that plaintiff located claim for benefit of anyone but herself, or under agreement to convey any part thereof to defendant or his grantor, or of any evidence of fraud, finding that plaintiff held any portion of claim in trust for defendant was erroneous. Helstrom v Rodes, 30 Utah, 122, 83 P. 730.

97. In action to have defendant declared trustee of plaintiff as to one-third of certain mining stock held by him and for an accounting, evidence held to sustain finding that defendant acquired stock pursuant to an agreement whereby plaintiff and defendant were to purchase mining properties, plaintiff to furnish his skill and service as an expert, and defendant the necessary capital, and plaintiff to have a third of the profits after defendant was reimbursed for his expenditures. Rutan v. Huck, 30 Utah, 217, 83 P. 833. Terms of contract as alleged in complaint held sufficiently broad to include oral contract, though made previously to date alleged, conceding that written contract of that date related to different subject matter. Id. Evidence held to support finding that plaintiff was faithful to best interests of defendant in the transactions leading up to the purchase of property for which stock was subsequently issued by corporation organized for purpose of taking it over (Id.), and that he did not receive commissions from vendor of property for obtaining purchaser for certain other property belonging to him (Id.). In any event receipt of such commissions would not have operated as fraud on defendant since he never purchased any interest in such other property and never intended to, and did not affect terms of purchase which he did make. Id. Receipt and retention by plaintiff of letter and check sent him by defendant and others held not to show settlement between them, particularly as no settlement was pleaded (Id.), nor to be conclusive admission by plaintiff that purchase was not made pursuant to contract relied on (Id.). Defendant held not entitled to object that assignment by plaintiff to his co-plaintiff of an interest in the contract relied on was without consideration. Id. Where defendant, being unable to meet assessment on stock, sold part of it to his wife, held that he should not, on accounting, be charged with more than the amount received therefor, in absence of evidence that it was less than its then market value, or that he acted in bad faith. Id.

98. Evidence held insufficient to show that contract for mining coal, superseding one sued on, was procured through fraud or misrepresentation. Proctor Coal Co. v. Strunk, 29 Ky. L. R. 995, 96 S. W. 603.

99. Second contract for mining coal, which superseded former one, held supported by sufficient consideration, both parties contract has been substituted for a former one is a question of intention.[1] Persons who are to receive a certain price per ton for ore mined are not deprived of their right to compensation by reason of the fact that it becomes impossible to hoist the ore mined to the surface.[2] Where the owner recognizes persons as working under such a contract, he is liable to them for compensation at the contract rate.[3] Where the owner of mining property knowingly accepts the services of another in caring for the same, the law implies a promise on his part to pay the reasonable value thereof.[4]

§ 9. Mining partnerships and corporations.[5]—The receiver of a mining corporation has only such powers as are conferred upon him by the order appointing him,[6] and persons dealing with him are presumed to know whether he possesses the powers he assumes to exercise.[7] One who improperly secures the appointment of a receiver is liable for the legitimate expenses of the receivership.[8] As a general rule allowances to a receiver for the expenses of the receivership should be made to the receiver himself, and not to those who furnish supplies to, or perform labor for, him, the award being in the nature of costs in his favor with a proper direction for distribution.[9] Expenses incurred in doing unauthorized acts cannot be taxed as costs of the receivership,[10] nor can the liability of the plaintiff, or of any other party to the suit therefor, be litigated in the original action in which the receiver is appointed.[11]

A corporation quarrying slate from an open quarry is engaged in mining within the meaning of the bankruptcy act.[12]

§ 10. Public mining regulations.[13]—Matters relating to the liability of mine owners for injuries to their employes, including statutory provisions as to applihaving derived benefit therefrom. Proctor Coal Co. v. Strunk, 29 Ky. L. R. 995, 96 S. W. 603. Plaintiff, having signed second contract and operated under it for nearly a year, held that he could not thereafter contend that it did not take place of first. Id.

1. Evidence held to show second contract for mining coal was intended to supersede former one between same parties. Proctor Coal Co. v. Strunk, 29 Ky. L. R. 995, 96 S. W. 603.

2. Where plaintiffs were to receive certain price per ton for ore mined and deposited in chutes ready for hoisting, held that further provision that payment was to be made on 10th of month for ore hoisted the preceding month, the quantity to be ascertained from number of tons hoisted, did not show that plaintiffs were to receive no pay unless ore was hoisted, nor precluded them from showing by other means the amount mined where hoisting was prevented by water in mine. Ward v. Eastwood [Cal. App.] 86 P. 742. Where it appeared that plaintiffs did not assume risk of defendant's ability to hoist ore, or agree that they should only be paid for amount of ore hoisted, they were not deprived of right to compensation, regardless of whether high water was due to unavoidable causes or not. Id. Evidence held to support finding as to amount of ore mined. Id.

3. Evidence held to support finding that defendant recognized all of the plaintiffs as working under contract alleged. Ward v. Eastwood [Cal. App.] 86 P. 742.

4. Plaintiff held entitled to recover reasonable value of services in paying taxes, keeping off trespassers, etc., rendered while acting as defendant's agent, without alleging or proving special contract. Morrison v. New Haven & Wilkerson Min. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 611.

5. See 6 C. L. 671.

6. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. Co. v. Parry [Colo.] 86 P. 113. Order appointing receiver of mining corporation "with all the powers usual in receivership cases" held not to purport to give him power to work mines. Id. Mills' Ann. St. § 497, held not to authorize court appointing receiver for mining corporation to empower him to work mines owned by it. Id.

7, 8. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. Co. v. Parry [Colo.] 86 P. 113.

9. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. Co. v. Parry [Colo.] 86 P. 113. Creditors of receiver may not intervene in original action in which he was appointed and litigate against plaintiff therein the question of his liability for expenses of receivership, where receiver is still in office and plaintiff objects. Id.

10. Expenses for supplies and labor furnished in working mines, where receiver was not authorized to work them. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. Co. v. Parry [Colo.] 86 P. 113.

11. Cannot in such action try question of plaintiff's liability on ground that it approved illegal acts of receiver and that receiver was appointed as result of fraudulent conspiracy to which it was a party, particularly where sole right of recovery alleged in pleadings was that plaintiff wrongfully had receiver appointed. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. Co. v. Parry [Colo.] 86 P. 113.

12. Word "mining" as used in Bankruptcy Act, § 4 B, as amended. In re Mathews Consol. Slate Co., 144 F. 724, afd. Burdick v. Dillon [C. C. A.] 144 F. 737.

13. See 6 C. L. 671.

ances and the like, are treated elsewhere.[14] In some states anthracite coal miners are required to obtain a certificate of qualification from an examining board and to be registered.[15] In others operators of coal mines who elect to pay miners according to the coal produced are prohibited from screening the coal or otherwise taking any part from the value thereof until the same shall have been weighed and credited to the employe producing it.[16] It is sometimes provided that at least two available openings to the surface must be maintained from each seam or stratum of coal worked when required by the chief mining inspector.[17] Statutes in some states forbid excavations in any mine or shaft within five feet of the dividing line of other property without the written consent of the owner of the latter.[18] Abandoned oil wells are sometimes required to be plugged in a specified manner.[19]

The condemnation of rights of way for aerial bucket lines for the transportation of ore from mines is authorized in some states.[20]

§ 11. Statutory liens and charges.[21]—Statutes in many states give liens to persons furnishing labor or material used in the development of mining claims.[22] As against an innocent purchaser, an agent is not entitled to a lien for services in paying taxes on mining property, listing it, keeping off trespassers, and the like.[23]

As a general rule a lien will not attach to the interest of the owner for work done or material furnished to a lessee, unless it appears that it was done or furnished pursuant to some authority emanating from him.[24] Statutes in some states

14. See Master and Servant, 8 C. L. 840.

15. Act July 15, 1897 (P. L. 287), making it a misdemeanor for anyone to engage as a miner in any anthracite coal mine, unless he first obtains certificate, etc., construed and held to require two years' experience in anthracite coal mines of the state as qualification for examination and registration, and hence not to be in conflict with Federal constitution as abridging privileges and immunities of citizens. Commonwealth v. Shaleen [Pa.] 64 A. 797, afg. Id., 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 1.

16. Acts 1895, p. 558, applying to mines employing ten or more men underground, where miners are employed at quantity-rates, is within police power, its object being to protect miners from fraud. McLean v. State [Ark.] 98 S. W. 729. Is valid exercise of power to compel conformity to uniform system of weights and measures. Id. Does not contravene Const. §§ 2, 3, 8, or U. S. Const. Amend. 14, securing to all persons liberty and equality of rights under the law, because applying only to mines where ten or more men are employed. Id. May be upheld as to foreign corporation under state's power to prescribe conditions on which such corporations may do business in state. Id.

17. One ground opening divided up by plank partition into two compartments, the mouths of which are separated only by thin wooden partition, held not a compliance with Code 1896, § 2921. Howells Min. Co. v. Gray [Ala.] 42 So. 448.

18. Va. Code 1904, § 2570. Cranes Nest Coal & Coke Co. v. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co., 105 Va. 785, 54 S. E. 884. Where agreement amendatory to lease of coal mine gave lessor right to use three haulways for purpose of transporting coal from adjoining lands through leased premises, held that the driving of cross entries over the dividing line was not a violation of the statute, the right to do so being an essential incident of the right to use the haulways, and hence a necessary inference from the contract. Id.

19. Act June 10, 1881, P. L. 110, requiring plugging, being a penal statute, is to be reasonably construed, and cannot be extended by implication to cases not included within the clear and obvious import of its language. Dawson v. Shaw, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 563. Statute held not to require plugging of well unless there was a third sand or oil bearing rock, whether there was or not being a question for the jury. Id. Nor will penalty be imposed where it is physical impossibility, under all reasonable and known means, to pull casing and place two seasoned plugs as required by act, whether it was impossible in particular case being also for the jury. Id. Evidence held to show that defendant was owner or operator of wells within meaning of act. Id.

20. Utah Rev. St. 1898, § 3588, which, as construed by supreme court of that state, authorizes condemnation of right of way for aerial bucket line for transporting ore from mines, is not in violation of fourteenth amendment to U. S. Const. as a taking for private use, particularly where line is dedicated to carrying for whatever portion of public may desire to use it. Strickley v. Highland Boy Gold Min. Co., 200 U. S. 527, 50 Law. Ed. 581, afg. 28 Utah, 215, 78 P. 296.

21. See 6 C. L. 671.

22. Eighty acre tract in process of development as an oil mine held a mining claim within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1183-1187, and hence persons furnishing labor and material to lessee in development thereof were entitled to lien on whole of his interest. Berentz v. Belmont Oil Min. Co., 148 Cal. 577, 84 P. 47, rvg. [Cal. App.] 84 P. 45.

23. Morrison v. New Haven & Wilkerson Min. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 611.

24. A lien will not attach to the interests of an owner of a mine for work done or material furnished in working, or developing the same at the instance of, or under contract with, one whose only interest is that make anyone having charge of any mining on the land the agent of the owner for this purpose.[25] Where a vendee is in possession under a contract of sale requiring him to make certain improvements as a part of the consideration therefor, both the title of the vendor and that of the vendee is subject to a lien for labor performed and materials furnished in the erection of such improvements by the vendee.[20] But the contrary has been held as to a purchaser in possession under a contract requiring him to work the property and apply a certain part of the proceeds on the purchase price.[27]

In some states persons furnishing labor or materials to a contractor have a lien on the property for the value thereof unless the contract between the owner and the contractor, if in excess of a certain amount, is in writing and recorded, in which case the lien extends to the contract price only.[28] Where the contract is void because oral, payment by the owner to the contractor is no defense to a claim of a laborer's lien.[29] The land should not be charged with a lien for a larger amount than the demand stated in the summons.[30] The right to a personal judgment ordinarily depends on privity of contract.[31] of a lessee. Lessee held to occupy no other relation to mine, with respect to working of it, than that of lessee, though lease contained agreement to purchase enforceable against vendor. Williams v. Eldora-Enterprise Gold Min. Co. [Colo.] 83 P. 780. Complaint in action to foreclose lien against owner for work done for lessee held insufficient in absence of allegation that lessee had authority to develop the mine, or that the lessor knew that the work was being done. Berentz v. Belmont Oil Min. Co., 148 Cal. 577, 84 P. 47, afg. 84 P. 45. In action to foreclose mechanic's lien for labor in drilling oil well on leased land held that in order to sustain judgment foreclosing fee title it was necessary for plaintiff to show not only the ownership of the premises, the drilling of the well, and the performance of the labor, but also that well was drilled pursuant to some authority emanating from owner of land or his agent. Littler v. Robinson [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 1145. Evidence held not to show that plaintiff's employer had such authority. Id. Where it did not appear that defendant H., who was alleged to have let contract for drilling well to plaintiff's employers, had succeeded to any of the interests or rights of one to whom owner of premises had given lease, or that he had any interest in such premises, or that he employed or in any manner authorized plaintiff's employers to construct well about which plaintiff was employed, or had notice or knowledge that it was being constructed at time plaintiff was being employed thereon, held that judgment of foreclosure against him was unauthorized. Littler v. Friend [Ind.] 78 N. E. 238. Even if it appeared that H. was lessee of owner and had authorized construction of well, held that lien would only extend to and affect his leasehold interest, and hence judgment of foreclosure against owner was improper, no contract on his part being shown. Id. Code, § 3105, giving lien to coal miners and laborers in certain cases, held not to provide for lien on mining property of an owner in favor of employes of an operating lessee. Caster v. McClellan [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1020.

25. Lessee under lease requiring it to forthwith begin and continually prosecute work of exploring, developing and mining upon premises, and to pay lessor certain part of net profits, held the person in charge of mining within Code Civ. Proc. § 1183, and hence to be deemed agent of owner, so that one performing labor for lessee was entitled to lien as against owner. Higgins v. Carlotta Gold Min. Co., 148 Cal. 700, 84 P. 758. Under said section prior to its amendment by St. 1903, p. 84, c. 76, interest of owner held liable for liens whether for work done exclusively in extraction of ores, or in development of mine, or both. Id.

26. Rule held not to apply where one was in possession under lease at a stipulated rent in nature of a royalty and for sole purpose of working and developing the mine, though lease also contained an option to purchase, converted into an enforceable contract of sale by payments thereunder, there being no requirement in latter contract that vendee should make any improvements, and possession not having been given thereunder. Williams v. Eldora-Enterprise Gold Min. Co. [Colo.] 83 P. 780.

27. Owner contracted to sell mine, purchase price to be paid in installments, and deed to remain in escrow until full amount was paid, purchaser being required to work property and to apply certain part of the proceeds on purchase price. Purchaser assigned contract, and assignee went into possession. Held that assignee was not agent of owner, and hence person performing work for assignee was not entitled to lien as against interest of owner, though latter knew that work was being done and acquiesced therein, but only against interest of assignee. Bogan v. Roy & Titcomb [Ariz.] 86 P. 13.

28. Overruling special demurrer directed to fact that complaint failed to allege that unrecorded contract between lessee and contractor, under which work was done, was in writing, or that it was for more than $1,000, held harmless where those facts were clearly proved and were found by the court. Berentz v. Belmont Oil Min. Co., 148 Cal. 577, 84 P. 47.

29. Berentz v. Belmont Oil Min. Co., 148 Cal. 577, 84 P. 47.

30. Berentz v. Belmont Oil Min. Co., 148 Cal. 577, 84 P. 47, afg. 84 P. 45.

31. Complaint in action to recover for

In many states a reasonable attorney's fee is allowed on foreclosure.[32]

§ 12. Mining torts.[33]—One leasing land for oil and gas purposes has a right of action against the lessee for damages for injury to the land caused by the escape of gas from a well drilled thereon and abandoned by the latter.[34] The one mining the property has the burden of having a survey to determine the lines underground.[35] A lessor is not ordinarily liable for the trespass of his lessee unless he participates therein or shares in the profits.[36]

By statute in some states any owner or person operating a mine who, without permission takes coal from adjoining lands, is made liable in double damages therefor, and for all expenses caused thereby.[37]

The measure of damages for permanent and irremedial injuries to land by failure to give surface support is the depreciation in the value thereof.[38] Only damages for subsidences which have taken place when the action is brought may be recovered.[39]

§ 13. Remedies and procedure peculiar to mining rights.[40]—Rescission of contracts affecting any estate or interest in land on the ground of fraud or mistake belongs to the exclusive jurisdiction of courts of equity.[41] Equity has jurisdiction of a bill to remove a cloud on the title to realty, though the legal title is involved and has not been previously established by an action at law, where there is no adequate legal remedy.[42]

Minerals are land within the meaning of statutes providing for suits to quiet labor in drilling well and to foreclose lien on land proceeding upon theory that L. owned land, that H., operating under lease from L., contracted with C. to drill well upon said land, and that C. employed plaintiff to do certain work upon said well, held not to authorize personal judgment against L. or H. Littler v. Robinson [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 1145.

32. Amount prayed for as reasonable attorney's fee, taxable as costs under B. & C. Comp. Or. § 5672, in suits to enforce miners' liens, cannot be added to amount of lien in ascertaining amount in controversy for purpose of determining jurisdiction of Federal court. Swofford v. Cornucopia Mines of Oregon, 140 F. 957.

33. See 6 C. L. 673.

34. Complaint held to state cause of action at common law, even if not under statute requiring plugging of wells, whether lessee was tenant for years or mere licensee. Talbott v. Southern Oil Co. [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 1009.

35. Lessee. Orphan Belle Min. & Mill. Co. v. Pinto Min. Co. [Colo.] 85 P. 323.

36. Lessor held not to have participated in trespass of its lessee or shared in profits thereof, where, at time it received royalty on ores taken from adjoining claim, it had no knowledge that trespass had been committed. Orphan Bell Min. & Mill. Co. v. Pinto Min. Co. [Colo.] 85 P. 323. Language of lessor's manager held not an instigation or a request by lessor corporation to lessee to commit trespass complained of. Id. Is not within scope of general authority of manager of mining corporation to instigate or request commission of trespass by its lessee so as to make such trespass the act of the corporation, and thereby make it liable as a willful trespasser. Id. In absence of proof to contrary, will not be presumed that he had such authority. Id.

37. Code, § 2485, is not unconstitutional as depriving owner of his property without due process of law (Mier v. Phillips Fuel Co., 130 Iowa, 570, 107 N. W. 621), nor as being class legislation (Id.). Damages contemplated are all those resulting from taking of coal, including those caused to surface (Id.). In action to recover double damages for removal of coal from under plaintiff's land, question whether coal had been taken held, under the evidence, for the jury. Id.

38. Difference in market value before and after injury. Weaver v. Berwind-White Coal Co. [Pa.] 65 A. 545. Value of springs destroyed cannot be shown as separate and independent item not connected with general value of land, but their value may be considered as element in estimating value of land, and destruction of them in determining depreciation. Id. Preliminary questions for purpose of determining competency of witness to express opinion as to depreciation held proper. Id.

39. Catlin Coal Co. v. Lloyd, 124 Ill. App. 394.

40. See 6 C. L. 673.

41. Bruner v. Miller, 59 W. Va. 36, 52 S. E. 995. Courts of law have jurisdiction and power to afford relief in such cases by judgment for money or property, under some circumstances, when a right to rescind exists and has been properly claimed; but remedy at law is incomplete and inadequate because of lack of power to affect rescission by a direct adjudication thereof. Id.

42. Complainant in possession held entitled to maintain bill in Federal court to remove cloud consisting of invalid coal leases, outstanding and actively asserted by several actions at law. Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931. Actions in state court to which complainant was not party, and which involved only a part of the leases, held not to deprive court of jurisdiction. Id.

title.[43] Possession is generally necessary to enable one to sue to determine adverse claims to realty.[44] Ejectment will lie to recover leased land where the lease provides for a forfeiture for breach of its essential conditions and a breach is shown.[45] The remedy for breach of an implied covenant to mine with reasonable diligence is not a bill to forfeit or avoid but an action at law for damages, or, possibly, an action of ejectment, based on a right of entry, for nonperformance.[46] Tenants in common of mineral beneath the soil which has been severed from the surface are entitled to a partition, but they must be tenants in common to have that right.[47] The granting or withholding of a preliminary injunction in an action to recover mineral lands rests in the sound discretion of the court.[48]

Persons in joint possession of property may be sued jointly in an action to recover possession.[49]

Suits to recover an interest in mining property must be brought promptly.[50] In case payment is made to depend on the happening of a contingency, an action will not lie until it has happened.[51]

Waiver or release of damages for wrongful eviction of a lessee must be specially

43. Bill lies to quiet title to coal and other minerals under and upon land, they being "lands" within meaning of Code 1896, § 809. Gulf Coal & Coke Co. v. Alabama Coal & Coke Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 397.

44. Locator of mining claims living in tent on one of them who had begun to sink shaft thereon held to have sufficient possession to entitle him to sue under Act June 6, 1900, § 475 (31 St. 410, c. 786), relating to government of Alaska, and providing that any person in possession may sue to determine adverse claims to realty, slight acts of dominion being sufficient in case of one claiming under valid location of mining claims. Lange v. Robinson [C. C. A.] 148 F. 799.

45. Coal lease providing for forfeiture and giving right of re-entry. Brooks v. Gaffin, 196 Mo. 351, 95 S. W. 418. Where coal lease provided that lessee's rights should be forfeited and lessor should have right to re-enter on breach of any of its provisions, and lessee failed to remove coal from leased premises, or to mine and remove sufficient coal to keep face of mine on leased premises even with face of coal on his own adjoining premises, or to weigh or keep account of coal mined, or to pay or offer to pay royalty, as required by lease, held that lessor was entitled to declare lease forfeited and recover possession. Brooks v. Gaffin, 192 Mo. 228, 90 S. W. 808.

46. In absence of express stipulation or reservation of right of re-entry. Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931.

47. Coal. Brand v. Consol. Coal Co., 219 Ill. 543, 76 N. E. 849. Bill alleging that complainant was owner in fee of certain lands, and conveyed to defendant's grantors right to mine and remove three-fourths of the underlying coal, and that defendant had mined and removed a portion of the underlying coal, the amount of which and area from which it had been taken being unknown to complainant, and that for purposes of partition she elected to sever her fourth from the surface, held insufficient to entitle complainant to partition, it not appearing that any of the three-fourths belonging to defendant remained in place, and hence that anything remained to be partitioned. Id.

48. Refusal held not abuse of discretion. Vogel v. Warsing [C. C. A.] 146 F. 949.

49. Evidence held to show joint possession by defendants so that suit to recover possession was properly brought against them jointly. Davis v. Dennis [Wash.] 85 P. 1079.

50. Action to recover interest in claim to which plaintiff's co-owners obtained patent in own name. Ballard v. Golob, 34 Colo. 417, 83 P. 376. Plaintiff in suit to quiet title held not guilty of laches as against defendant, who had been in possession for less than three years, by reason of his failure to pay taxes or list property for taxation for eleven years, and fact that defendant, holding under void tax deed, had paid taxes for that time and had expended certain sum in improvements within three years. Costello v. Muheim [Ariz.] 84 P. 906. Defendant executed mining deed of unpatented mining property to secure indebtedness to plaintiff, and it and the note for the debt were placed in escrow to be delivered to defendant if he paid note when due, but if he did not, the deed to be delivered to plaintiff. Defendant notified plaintiff, before note became due, that he could not pay it, and did not demand deed or offer to pay note for twelve years after it became due, during which time plaintiff and one to whom he had conveyed a part interest had done assessment work and a large amount of development work. Held that defendant's rights were barred by laches. Bradley v. Johnson, 11 Idaho, 689, 83 P. 927. Mining property being speculative in character, claims therefor must be pressed at earliest possible time. Hudson v. Cahoon, 193 Mo. 547, 91 S. W. 72. Complaint in action to interest in land secretly purchased from plaintiff by his agent held not to show laches barring recovery, it not appearing that delay had injured defendant. Id.

51. Where in consideration of release of lessees' rights under oil and gas lease, lessor agreed to pay lessee certain sum out of proceeds of sale of first fifty acres of land covered thereby, held that lessee could not recover such sum until land had been sold as provided. Great Western Oil Co. v. Carpenter [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 970, 95 S. W. 57.

pleaded if relied on.[52] The defense of laches must be raised by answer.[53] A description of the surface of a claim and an allegation of entry and trespass on said premises have been held to authorize proof of trespass on plaintiff's extralateral rights.[54]

The burden of proving a forfeiture for failure to do the required assessment work is on the party asserting it.[55] Since the owner of the surface is presumed to own all the underlying ore,[56] the burden is on one claiming any part thereof by virtue of extralateral rights to show by a preponderance of the evidence the existence of all facts necessary to give him such rights.[57] So, too, the burden is upon him who is interested to prove that there has been a severance by a deed of record, or by proof of such facts and circumstances brought home to the party charged as will affect his conscience with notice of adverse rights, or will serve to put him upon inquiry which will lead to such knowledge.[58] In an action for damages for the wrongful eviction of a lessee and the subsequent extraction of ore from the demised premises by the lessor, the burden is on the latter to show the amount and value of the ores so removed during the term of the lease.[59] One suing for a breach of an alleged oral contract to develop mines has the burden of proving the existence of the contract and its breach.[60]

The usual rules of evidence apply in actions affecting mining rights.[61] Parol evidence is inadmissible to vary or contradict the terms of a written contract, but

52. Isabella Gold Min. Co. v. Glenn [Colo.] 86 P. 349.

53. Cannot be raised by demurrer. Ballard v. Golob, 34 Colo. 417, 83 P. 376.

54. In action for trespass on extralateral dip of vein having apex in plaintiff's claim, it is not necessary for plaintiff to allege the existence of vein having apex within his surface boundaries, but departing from his side lines on its dip, and that his end lines are parallel, though it is better pleading to do so. Daggett v. Yreka Min. & Mill. Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 968.

55. Gear v. Ford [Cal. App.] 88 P. 600.

56. The owner of a claim is presumed to own all the ore within planes drawn vertically downward to the deep through the boundary lines of such claim, as well as the surface, until some one else shows by a preponderance of testimony that such deposits belong to another lode having its top and apex elsewhere. Grand Cent. Min. Co. v. Mammoth Min. Co., 29 Utah, 490, 83 P. 648.

57. Has burden of showing by satisfactory evidence the continuity of the vein between its apex within his lines and the point at which it is claimed such rights have been interfered with, but an actual tracing is not necessary to show trespass. Daggett v. Yreka Min. & Mill. Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 968. Evidence of lode identity held sufficient. Id. Has burden of showing by preponderance of evidence not only that apex and strike of vein were in his claim, but also that between planes drawn vertically downward through end line and certain parallel line, the vein from its apex on its dip was continuous, that its continuity extended to and through plaintiff's ground, and that ore bodies in question formed a part of the vein. Grand Cent. Min. Co. v. Mammoth Min. Co., 29 Utah, 490, 83 P. 648. One defending action of trespass for taking ore underlying surface of another's claim, on ground that he was properly following on its dip a vein apexing wholly within surface of his claims, held to have burden of proving location of the vein and its apex in his claim on its strike at such a point that on its dip it would include ore taken. Red Wing Gold Min. Co. v. Clays, 30 Utah, 242, 83 P. 841. Finding as to course of vein held supported by evidence. Id.

58. Interstate Coal & Iron Co. v. Clintwood Coal & Timber Co., 105 Va. 574, 54 S. E. 593. Compromise agreement, which was never executed and to which defendant's grantor was not a party and with knowledge of which he was not chargeable, held not admissible to show severance. Id. Where at date of suit defendant and his grantor had acquired title to land including mineral by adverse possession, instruction that fact that person from whom grantor acquired title did not claim half underlying coal for sometime before sale held proper. Id. Where defendant and its grantor had acquired title by adverse possession since certain dates, questions relative to title prior to that time were immaterial. Id.

59. Isabella Gold Min. Co. v. Glenn [Colo.] 86 P. 349. Verdict for plaintiff held sustained by evidence as to amount of damages. Id.

60. Where defendant in action to recover on alleged oral contract for development of mining property relied wholly on alleged written contract and release of liability thereunder, held that instruction placing on plaintiff burden of proving oral contract and its breach, and that it was independent of written one, and did not refer to same property, and on defendant burden of showing that written contract was only one between parties, and that release was a release of all claims thereunder, held proper in view of other instruction. Lindblom v. Fallet [C. C. A.] 145 F. 805.

61. Payrolls of mining company introduced for purpose of showing that certain persons alleged to have done assessment work for plaintiff were employed by it at the is admissible to explain ambiguities therein.[62] Failure of a party to produce evidence under his control warrants the presumption that it would be unfavorable to him.[63] Oral evidence which is admissible, except as against the objection that it is not the best evidence, goes into the case for all purposes when such objection is not made.[64] Evidence of indications successfully followed in the same district and on contiguous ground is admissible on the issue of a valid discovery by one attempting to locate a lode claim on similar indications;[65] but a litigant may not introduce for comparison evidence of indications found on a particular property leading to an ore body over which he has absolute control, unless he permits his adversary to inspect such property.[66] In an action for damages for removal of coal underlying the lands of another, evidence of the discovery of coal on adjoining land, and as to the existence of cracks in such land similar to those on plaintiff's land alleged to have been caused by such removal, is admissible.[67] Evidence as to the thickness of coal on other lands is inadmissible in the absence of a showing that the conditions are similar.[68] Inquiry as to the price of coal lands in the vicinity must be limited to similar lands similarly situated.[69] Evidence of similar trespasses on other lands is inadmissible.[70] In an action to recover royalties on coal actually mined under a lease, evidence comparing the output of another mine is inadmissible unless similarity of all the material conditions and methods is shown.[71]

The premises may be viewed by the jury only for the purpose of better applying the evidence introduced in the course of the trial.[72] time, and hence could not have done it, held inadmissible for reason that signatures of such persons thereto were not sufficiently identified (Matko v. Daley [Ariz.] 85 P. 721), and also as being hearsay (Id.). In action to recover royalties on coal mined under lease, statements claimed to have been given witness by agent of railroad company, together with evidence as to what certain agents told him, held inadmissible. Missouri & Ill. Coal Co. v. Reichert, 119 Ill. App. 148.

MINISTERS OF STATE; MINUTES; MISJOINDER, see latest topical index.

62. Contract held one for sale of particular veln of coal, and not to be ambiguous on its face, nor was latent ambiguity disclosed by discovery, in application thereof to subject-matter, that there were other veins in land. Armstrong v. Ross [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 895. Fact, as disclosed by terms of contract, that area and location of coal covered thereby was known, held a part of written description thereof, to be observed in applying contract to subject-matter, and, for incorporation thereof into contract, as an element within intent of parties, parol evidence was not necessary. Id. Contract whereby plaintiff was employed to develop certain mining property held ambiguous as to whether it included four claims owned by defendants or only two, so that parol evidence was admissible to show that only two specified ones were referred to, and that there was subsequent oral contract as to others. Lindblom v. Fallet [C. C. A.] 145 F. 805.

63. On issue as to description of leased property, failure of lessor to produce office map referred to in lease held to warrant presumption that intention of parties coincided with lessee's contention. Isabella Gold Min. Co. v. Glenn [Colo.] 86 P. 349.

64. In suit on adverse, decree adjudged title to be in the three original locators and a fourth person who was a stranger to record title. Oral evidence to effect that there was a mining partnership existing between such four persons and that claims in controversy were owned by it, was admitted without objection. Held that oral evidence being admissible, except as against objection that it was not best evidence, and no such objection having been made, it went into case for all purposes, and was sufficient to support the decree. Slothower v. Hunter [Wyo.] 88 P. 36.

65. Ambergris Min. Co. v. Day [Idaho] 85 P. 109.

66. So as to enable him to introduce rebuttal evidence, and new trial will be granted where such evidence is admitted and examination is denied. Ambergris Min. Co. v. Day [Idaho] 85 P. 109.

67. As tending to show that plaintiff's land contained coal, and as bearing on question whether coal had been removed therefrom. Mier v. Phillips Fuel Co., 130 Iowa, 570, 107 N. W. 621.

68. Evidence as to thickness of coal in mine one and one-half miles distant. Mier v. Phillips Fuel Co., 130 Iowa, 570, 107 N. W. 621.

69, 70. Mier v. Phillips Fuel Co., 130 Iowa, 570, 107 N. W. 621.

71. Missouri & Ill. Coal Co. v. Reichert, 119 Ill. App. 148.

72. Motion for view in action for damages for removing coal under plaintiff's land held properly denied, where mine was in such condition that it could not be entered and examination of land was unnecessary to apply evidence, and could only have aided jury in determining whether there were cracks in land and their extent which would have been improper, evidence being conflicting in that regard. Mier v. Phillips Fuel Co., 130 Iowa, 570, 107 N. . 621.

MISTAKE AND ACCIDENT.

§ 1. Definition; Elements (1020).
§ 2. Effect of Mistake and Relief Against It (1021).
§ 3. Procedure to Obtain Relief or Make Defense (1021).

§ 1. Definition; elements.[74]—Mistake must be mutual,[75] or else conjoined with fraud, misrepresentation or other inequitable conduct on the part of the adverse party,[76] and to be remediable, the injury must flow from the mistake; hence, where consequences in regard to which relief is sought were brought about by the gross negligence of complainant, they are not caused by mistake.[77] Ignorance of the terms of an instrument is not therefore mistake as to one who passed by an opportunity to know by reading.[78] Especially is this true where a person signing an instrument knows the nature of the instrument which he signs,[79] but one may escape this rule whose capacity or situation warranted him in relying on the other [80] or where the other practiced fraud in this regard.[81] Neither an unfounded belief,[82] nor an unrealized expectation,[83] amounts to mistake in the legal sense. An exception to the rule that the mistake must be mutual is where the mistake of one party is caused by the fraud of the other.[84] Misrepresentations which come short of fraud because unintentional may mislead the other party into mistake.[85] A mistake of a private legal right rather than a general law is a mistake of fact and not a mistake of law.[86] Thus a mistake between the grantees by which they took a tenancy by the entirety, the grantor being indifferent, is not one of law in the irremediable sense.[87] Mistake may go to the parties,[88] to the subject-matter,[89] or the consideration.[90]

73. Cross references: Money paid by mistake, see Implied Contracts, 8 C. L. 155; Correction of Judgments, see Judgments, 8 C. L. 543.

74. See 6 C. L. 678.

75. The mere fact that one party believed that contract contained certain provisions does not authorize relief, unless it is shown that the other party to the contract shared in the mistake. East Jellico Coal Co. v. Carter [Ky.] 97 S. W. 768. Public contract omitted provision contained in notice inviting proposals, but there was no evidence that it was not as intended by public authorities. United States v. Milliken Imprinting Co., 202 U. S. 168, 50 Law. Ed. 980.

76. See post this section.

77. Forfeiture of lease for failure of tenant to pay taxes, which under lease he agreed to pay. Kann v. King, 27 S. Ct. 213.

78. One becoming party to a contract is bound by its terms, though unread by him. Restrictions upon carrier's liability contained in bill of lading. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Dexter, 50 Fla. 180, 39 So. 634. Person signing a written instrument without reading it is bound thereby where he had an opportunity to do so and his signature was not procured by fraud or other trick or device. Pratt & Co. v. Metzger [Ark.] 95 S. W. 451; Curry v. Greffet, 115 Mo. App. 364, 90 S. W. 1166.

79. Release. Schenfeld v. Hochman, 100 N. Y. S. 1020.

80. An assurance that the only changes from a previous contract were those indicated by a certain letter does not warrant an assumption that everything in such letter was included. United States v. Milliken Imprinting Co., 202 U. S. 168, 50 Law. Ed. 980. Evidence that one illiterate in English signed a contract of suretyship without having it read to him, but which had been drawn up after he gave directions to limit his liability to one only of several debts, held to show mistake. Nichols & Shepard Co. v. Berning [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 776.

81. See 6 C. L. 679.

82. A mere belief on a purchaser's part that a description of land included certain property outside of it is not mistake. Kinyon v. Cunningham [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 806, 109 N. W. 765.

83. A discrepancy between estimate and eventual facts is not mistake where due solely to the uncertainty and fallible character of the data from which the estimates were computed, the fallibility being mutually known but having been greater than hoped. Computations of royalties for mining based on exploration by drilling the soil at intervals. Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. v. East Itasca Min. Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 232.

84. Agent of carrier in checking cases received for shipment made an error of six cases in his count. Upon applying to the consignor as to the number of cases, he was informed that his count was correct and thereupon issued a bill of lading for six cases more than were received. Cohen Bros. v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 121, 98 S. W. 437.

85. Showing a prospective buyer the wrong property which was better than that really offered. Silverman v. Minsky, 109 App. Div. 1, 95 N. Y. S. 661.

86. Where husband and wife procured a deed to be issued to them in such form that it conveyed an estate by entirety, when each supposed and desired that the property should be held by them in common, the deed was reformed on the ground of mistake of fact. Marshall v. Lane, 27 App. D. C. 276.

87. Marshall v. Lane, 27 App. D. C. 276.

88. Contract with one doing business under a name importing incorporation, and in

§ 2. Effect of mistake and relief against it.[91]—Where on account of mistake there is no meeting of minds as to all of the essential elements of a contract, there is no binding obligation,[92] but unless artifice or fraud is practiced to induce a party to sign a contract, he cannot avoid same by denying that he knew its contents or that it expressed the real agreement of the parties.[93] In a conveyance not only it but also the warranties are vitiated as to a mistakenly included tract.[94] In the case of a bill of lading parol evidence of mistake will vary it so far as it constitutes a receipt.[95] As a general rule a mistake of law is not ground for relief, but in some states by statute a mistake of law entering into the consent avoids a contract,[96] but the mistake must be mutual or known to one of the parties and not rectified by him.[97] Under a like statute, relief is given where gross injustice to one and unconscionable advantage to the other is wrought.[98] No relief will be given in equity for mistake which vigilance would have avoided,[99] or against an innocent person who will unjustly be put to hazard.[1] Equity may decree a rescission on the ground of a unilateral mistake, but not as against a party who is innocent and who will obtain no unconscionable advantage thereby.[2] As a general rule where there has been no fraud or imposition, equity will not grant relief for mistake as to the legal effect of language used in a contract, but an exception is where the mistake exclusively concerns private rights.[3] Reformation is proper to correct a mistake in description.[4]

§ 3. Procedure to obtain relief or make defense.[5]—Law courts which have no equity powers may entertain a defensive plea of mistake.[6] The remedy is at the supposition that in fact he was agent for an existing corporation, held rescindable for mistake. Fifer v. Clearfield & C. Coal & Coke Co., 103 Md. 1, 62 A. 1122.

89. Evidence held to show that a purchaser, who knew of an alley did not intend that it should be included in the description of the lot conveyed to him and that the scrivener by mistake included it. Fitch v. Vatter, 143 Mich. 568, 13 Det. Leg. N. 68, 107 N. W. 106. Inclusion in description more than the parcel of land mutually intended to be conveyed. Cullison v. Connor, 222 Ill. 135, 78 N. E. 14.

90. Bidding by items which aggregated $800 and tendering offer by letter for $700 as "per estimates." Adkins & Co. v. Campbell [Del.] 64 A. 628.

91. See 6 C. L. 678.

92. Mistake as to terms of sale. Curry v. Greffett, 115 Mo. App. 364, 90 S. W. 1166. See, also, ante, § 1. Special plea setting up mistake in description in bill of lading held good. Cohen Bros. v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 121, 98 S. W. 437.

93. Order for goods. Paris Mfg. & Importing Co. v. Carle, 116 Mo. App. 581, 92 S. W. 748.

94. Laufer v. Moppins [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 109.

95. Cohen Bros. v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 121, 98 S. W. 437.

96. Rev. Codes N. D. 1905, § 5299. Silander v. Gronna [N. D.] 108 N. W. 544. Rev. Civ. Codes S. D. §§ 1283, 1285. Griffing v. Gislason [S. D.] 109 N. W. 646.

97. Widow was induced to sign an agreement to share with distributees under a void will equally under a mistake as to her legal rights in the estate of her deceased husband, such distributees knowing that she was entitled to a one-third interest, but making no effort to rectify her misapprehension of the law, it was held that, having exercised due diligence upon discovering the mistake, she was entitled to a rescission. Griffing v. Gislason [S. D.] 109 N. W. 646.

98. Relief granted where renewal note was given on false representations by seller's agent, the circumstances having technically defeated the plea of failure of consideration, and a paper which had been given to protect the maker being legally insufficient to do so. Dolvin v. American Harrow Co., 125 Ga. 699, 54 S. E. 706.

99. Failure to examine title records before making deed containing warranty. Bidder v. Carville, 101 Me. 59, 63 A. 303. Denied to a tenant who suffered taxes to become delinquent and who was forfeited in consequence. Kann v. King, 27 S. Ct. 213. See, also, ante, § 1.

1. Where tenant under lease agreed to pay all taxes, relief was refused against a forfeiture for failure to pay same on the ground that such failure was occasioned by accident and mistake, where relief sought could not be afforded without subjecting the lessor to the peril of contesting the validity of an outstanding prima facie irredeemable tax title. Kann v. King, 27 S. Ct. 213.

2. Rescission was refused where grantor conveyed land which he did not own under the mistaken impression that he was the owner of same, notwithstanding fact that he offered to return consideration paid, and such further sum as equity in justice might require, there being no fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the grantee. Bidder v. Carville, 101 Me. 59, 63 A. 303.

3. Marshall v. Lane, 27 App. D. C. 276.

4. Laufer v. Moppins [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 109.

5. See 6 C. L. 681.

6. City Court in Georgia. Burnett v. Davis & Co., 124 Ga. 541, 52 S. E. 927.

law and not by bill where plaintiff through ignorance gave a false answer to a warranty in a fire policy, but the same did not constitute a defense.[7] Where contract by mistake fails to express the real intent of the parties, the mistake may be set up in an action at law, unless the contract must be reformed before relief can be had.[8] The court of claims has jurisdiction to reform a contract with the United States and to allow damages thereon.[9] If cancellation is prayed in the bill, but the facts warrant reformation, defendant must pray the same by cross bill or answer.[10] Where specific performance is prayed to include a strip mistakenly omitted, respecting which the vendor has brought ejectment, it suffices to reform and permanently restrain the ejectment suit.[11] The statutes requiring the filing or exhibition of a written instrument sued on do not apply to a cross complaint setting up mistake and praying reformation of one filed with the complaint.[12] A plea of mistake in amount of a note when contradictory in amount must be attacked by special, not general, demurrer.[13] Mistake may sometimes be shown under a general denial of the contract, though fraud also is pleaded.[14] Mistake must be proved by clear and satisfactory evidence.[15] Unless the seller knew that the land was purchased for a particular purpose, it is immaterial that property supposed to be included and essential to such purpose, was excluded by the description.[16] Parol evidence is admissible to show that by mistake the terms in a contract are not as they were in fact agreed to.[17] As pertinent to a defense of mistake on one side, fraud should be submitted to the jury if there is any evidence.[18]

MISTRIAL; MONEY COUNTS; MONEY LENT; MONEY PAID; MONEY RECEIVED; MONOPOLIES; MORTALITY TABLES, see latest topical index.

MORTGAGES.

§ 1. Nature and Elements of Mortgages (1023).
§ 2. General Requisites and Validity (1023).
§ 3. Absolute Deed as Mortgage (1026).
§ 4. Equitable Mortgages (1029).
§ 5. Nature and Incidents of Trust Deeds as Mortgages (1029).
§ 6. Construction and Effect of Mortgages in General (1030).
§ 7. Title and Rights of the Parties (1032).
§ 8. Lien and Priorities (1035).
§ 9. Assignments of Mortgages (1036).
§ 10. Transfer of Title of Mortgagor and Assumption of the Debt (1037).
§ 11. Transfer of Premises to Mortgagee and Merger (1038).
§ 12. Payment, Release or Satisfaction (1039).
§ 13. Redemption (1041).
§ 14. Subrogation (1042).

Scope of topic.—This article is devoted to the mortgage as an instrument and the substantive rights growing from it. The procedure by which mortgages are

7. Rupert v. Patron's Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 568, 108 N. W. 968.

8. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Pendleton, 29 Ky. L. R. 721, 96 S. W. 434.

9. United States v. Milliken Imprinting Co., 202 U. S. 168, 50 Law. Ed. 980.

10. Cullison v. Connor, 222 Ill. 135, 78 N. E. 14.

11. Rundle v. Bohrer, 222 Ill. 475, 78 N. E. 831.

12. Nichols & Shepard Co. v. Berning [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 776.

13. Burnett v. Davis & Co., 124 Ga. 541, 52 S. E. 927.

14. Action against a carrier for nondelivery of six cases of shoes. The bill of lading showed that fifty-five cases had been delivered to the carrier for shipment, but it was claimed that, by mistake in checking, six cases had been counted twice and that only forty-nine cases had been received. Held mistake could be shown under general denial. Cohen Bros. v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 121, 98 S. W. 437.

15. Mistake in drafting deed. Kinyon v. Cunningham [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 806, 109 N. W. 675.

Evidence considered: Description of land in contract to convey held to have been two rods short in depth, either because of mutual mistake as to whether boundary was on or in the street, or because of such mistake on one side and fraud on the other. Rundle v. Bohrer, 222 Ill. 475, 78 N. E. 831. Declarations to scrivener by grantor in absence of grantees held insufficient to show mistake in reciting the wrong consideration. Graham v. Strawsburg, 28 Ky. L. R. 1204, 91 S. W. 737. Evidence held to show that description by mistake included certain land which parties knew and did not intend to convey. Laufer v. Moppins [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 109. Held insufficient to show making of foreclosed [19] has been fully treated in an earlier topic. The doctrine of notice and record of title,[20] the application of the statute of frauds,[21] the effect of a mortgage as an incumbrance,[22] and the purchase of land subject to a mortgage,[23] are elsewhere treated. Mortgage within this topic means only those of land or interests therein.[24]

§ 1. Nature and elements of mortgages.[25]—Mortgage is a conveyance by way of pledge [26] to secure the payment of a debt or the performance of an obligation.[27] It is a mere incident of the debt.[28] In most states it creates a mere lien and does not pass an estate.[29] It creates no lien unless the note secured evidences a debt.[30] Mortgages are taxable.[31]

§ 2. General requisites and validity.[32]—The general requisites of contracts[33] and of deeds of conveyance [34] are necessary also in mortgages. A mortgage is a conveyance by way of pledge and must be evidenced by writing,[35] though it has been held that an equitable mortgage may result from a parol agreement to give one.[36] No particular form is necessary.[37] There must be a debt.[38] There must be con-mistake as to amount due at time of settlement. Crabtree v. Sisk [Ky.] 99 S. W. 268. Held to show mistake if not fraud in that more was due the grantor than grantee represented. Allen v. Bryant [Cal. App.] 88 P. 294. To show that contract was intended to create partnership and did not. Stein v. Phillips, 47 Or. 545, 84 P. 793. Held insufficient to show mutual mistake as to terms of a contract. United States v. Milliken Imprinting Co., 202 U. S. 168, 50 Law. Ed. 980.

16. Kinyon v. Cunningham [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 806, 109 N. W. 765.

17. Nichols & Shepard Co. v. Berning [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 776.

18. Paris Mfg. & Importing Co. v. Carle, 116 Mo. App. 581, 92 S. W. 748.

19. See Foreclosure of Mortgages on Land, 7 C. L. 1678.

20. See Notice and Record of Title, 6 C. L. 814.

21. See Frauds, Statute of, 7 C. L. 1826.

22. See Covenants for Title, 7 C. L. 1004; Vendors and Purchasers, 6 C. L. 1781.

23. See Vendors and Purchasers, 6 C. L. 1781. See, also, post, § 10.

24. See Chattel Mortgages, 7 C. L. 634; railroad mortgages, see Railroads, 6 C. L. 1194; Street Railways, 6 C. L. 1556.

25. See 6 C. L. 682.

26. It is the conveyance of an estate by way of pledge and must be in writing. Poarch v. Duncan [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 644, 91 S. W. 1110.

27. A mortgage is not a conveyance within the meaning of a statute providing that, when a conveyance is made to one upon consideration paid by another, no use or trust shall result in favor of the latter, but the title shall vest in the former. Hanrion v. Hanrion [Kan.] 84 P. 381.

28. Where a mortgage is unenforceable as security for the note sued on, the creditor need not attempt to enforce the security before suing on the debt. Mantle v. Dabney [Wash.] 87 P. 122.

29. A mortgage only creates a lien. Neither the legal nor equitable title passes until foreclosure. Gillett v. Romig [Okl.] 87 P. 325. A provision in an insurance policy that the premises should not be transferred, etc., is violated where the owner conveys and takes a mortgage back. Jump v. North British & Mercantile Ins. Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 928. It is mere security; the beneficial title is regarded as in the mortgagor. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Broecker [Ind.] 77 N. E. 1092. Under the rule that mortgagor is the legal owner except as against the mortgagee after condition broken, the grantor in a deed of trust is the legal owner as against the world including the beneficiary prior to condition broken. Smith v. Forbes [Miss.] 42 So. 382. A mortgagee's interest in the land is personal estate and upon his death passes into his estate as personal property. Wilson v. Rehm, 117 Ill. App. 473.

30. McCourt v. Peppard, 126 Wis. 326, 105 N. W. 809.

31. Laws 1905, p. 2059, c. 729, providing for taxation of mortgages does not deny equal protection of the laws because applicable only to mortgages recorded after a certain future date. People v. Ronner, 185 N. Y. 285, 77 N. E. 1061. Nor does it deny due process, the tax being fixed on the amount stated in the mortgage or as to the amount actually found secured. Id. A statute prescribing a tax on all mortgages recorded after a certain date does not deny equal protection of the laws. People v. Ronner, 110 App. Div. 816, 97 N. Y. S. 550. The Mortgage Tax Law of New York is not unconstitutional. Id.

32. See 6 C. L. 683. The sale of an equity in mortgaged premises belonging to an intestate, under the license of the probate court, does not establish the validity of the mortgage. Marsh v. Marsh, 78 Vt. 399, 63 A. 159.

33. See 7 C. L. 761.

34. See 7 C. L. 1103.

35. In Texas a parol agreement to give a mortgage cannot be foreclosed as a mortgage. Poarch v. Duncan [Tex. Civ. App.] 91 S. W. 1110.

See, also, Frauds, Statute of, 7 C. L. 1826.

36. See 6 C. L. 688, n. 69.

37. An instrument by which one conveys land to a trustee to secure a note to a third person containing a provision for foreclosure, and reconveyance at the expense of the grantor on payment of the debt, is a mortgage. McVay v. Tousley [S. D.] 105 N. W. 932. Agreement and supplemental agreement by the owner of heavily incumbered premises, whereby another loan was secured, held to constitute a junior mortgage on the premises. Marquam v. Ross, 47 Or. 374, 78 P. 698, 83 P. 852, 86 P. 1. An instru-tracting parties.[39] It must be executed by one who has some interest [40] or apparent interest in the property,[41] or who subsequently acquires an interest,[42] or has authority to mortgage.[43] A mortgagor may be estopped to assert the invalidity of a mortgage.[44] A mortgage is not void as being testamentary which runs to the lender and is payable to his heirs after the lender's death.[45]

Description.[46]—The mortgage must contain a description sufficient to identify the premises.[47] Parol evidence is not admissible in aid of a description as part of a certain section in a certain county where range or township is not given.[48]

The consideration.[49]—Like other contracts a mortgage must be based on a consideration,[50] and such consideration must be legal.[51] The consideration need not ment in form a deed but containing a clause that, should the grantor pay the grantee a certain sum by a given date, it should be void, is a mortgage. Scott v. Hughes, 124 Ga. 1000, 53 S. E. 453. A conveyance of property to be held by the grantee until it could be sold when the proceeds were to be applied on the payment of debts and the balance returned to the grantor is a mortgage. Robinson v. Gassoway [Ala.] 39 So. 1023. When a settler on unsurveyed public lands purchased fruit trees and bound himself, heirs, assigns, and grantees to pay therefor, and subsequently became owner of certain land not that described, the contract was held not a mortgage. Stark Bros. v. Royce [Wash.] 87 P. 340.

38. Kerting v. Hatcher, 117 Ill. App. 647.

39. Brumby v. Jones [C. C. A.] 141 F. 318.

40. A mortgage by one who holds under a void deed is of no effect. Williams v. Ketcham [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 285. Where a mortgagee has notice before the loan was made that the mortgagor's deed was a forged one, a prior statement by the owner that he had conveyed to the mortgagor could not have been relied upon and the owner was not estopped to deny the validity of the mortgage. Id. Where a will operated to convert real estate devised to an heir into personalty as of the date of the death of the testator, a mortgage subsequently executed by an heir on her interest in such realty created no lien thereon. Stake v. Mobley, 102 Md. 408, 62 A. 963.

41. A fraudulent grantee may give a valid mortgage to an innocent mortgagee. Gilcreast v. Bartlett [N. H.] 64 A. 767.

42. Where after a decree adjudging that a will conveyed an estate to one for life remainder to others in fee, the guardian of infant remaindermen under order of court executed a mortgage on their interest, held it created a valid lien. Ure v. Ure, 223 Ill. 454, 79 N. E. 153. Where a mortgagor had no title when he executed the mortgage, one subsequently acquired inured to the benefit of the mortgagee. New England Mortg. Sec. Co. v. Fry, 143 Ala. 637, 42 So. 57.

43. Evidence held to show that the owner of property authorized others to mortgage it. Pellerin v. Sanders, 116 La. 616, 40 So. 917. One who takes a mortgage from a guardian on property of his ward, and such guardian had no power to execute such mortgage, has not an equitable lien. Capen v. Garrison, 193 Mo. 335, 92 S. W. 368.

44. A mortgagor who has received and retained the benefits of the mortgage cannot assert its invalidity on the ground that the mortgagee is a foreign corporation which has failed to comply with statutory requirements. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Cushman, 130 Iowa, 378, 106 N. W. 934.

45. Hellig v. Hellig, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 396.

46. See 6 C. L. 684. See, also, Deeds of Conveyance, 7 C. L. 1103.

47. Description in the mortgage of a mine held sufficient to cover a certain interest. Wemple v. Yosemite Gold Min. Co. [Cal. App.] 87 P. 280. A description "the mineral lands described" in a certain deed construed to mean lands described in such deed as were in fact mineral. Smith v. Vary [Ala.] 41 So. 941. Description as part of a certain section in a certain county without designating the township or range is too indefinite. Martin v. Kitchen, 195 Mo. 477, 93 S. W. 780.

48. Martin v. Kitchen, 195 Mo. 477, 93 S. W. 780.

49. See 6 C. L. 684.

50. See, also, Contracts, 7 C. L. 761.

Held a sufficient consideration: The subsisting liability of a surety is a sufficient consideration for the mortgage to him by the principal. Griffis v. First Nat. Bank [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 230.

A mortgage to a trustee to pay certain debts is supported by a sufficient consideration where the mortgagee executes a deed of trust declaring the purpose for which the mortgage was given. American Mortg. Co. v. Merrick Const. Co., 50 Misc. 464, 100 N. Y. S. 561. An agreement to extend time on an indebtedness, though not in the form of an enforceable contract for a definite period, is a sufficient consideration. Muir v. Greene, 100 N. Y. S. 722. Where a mortgage is given in consideration of extension of time and future advances, refusal of the mortgagee to make future advancements does not invalidate it. Id. A mortgage signed by both husband and wife to secure a note upon sufficient consideration running to the husband alone is valid against the wife without any consideration moving to her separately. Bastin v. Schafer, 15 Okl. 607, 85 P. 349. Where a corporation transferred stock in consideration of a mortgage by the buyer to a third person to whom the corporation was indebted for a mine, the fact that the mine was worthless did not render the mortgage without consideration, as the consideration for it was its acceptance by the corporation in payment for its stock. Smith v. Krueger [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 850. Evidence insufficient to show that a mortgage lacked consideration. Lefmann v. Brill [C. C. A.] 142 F. 44.

Partial failure of consideration may be set up in an action to enforce the mortgage. Otis v. McCaskill [Fla.] 41 So. 458. Evimove from the payee of the mortgage debt to the mortgagor.[52] It is presumed that the consideration recited in a mortgage is the amount of the debt.[53] But when the mortgagee admits that it is not, but that it was given to secure an unascertained indebtedness, he has the burden to show what the amount was.[54]

Execution.[55]—A mortgage must be executed by persons competent to contract.[56] The transaction must be free from fraud,[57] though fraud as to collateral matters will not avoid it.[58] It must be signed by the mortgagor[59] or under his authority.[60] If the mortgagor is a married man, his wife must join in order that her dower rights may be shut off,[61] and, if the mortgagor is a married woman, the husband must join.[62] The fact that a mortgage runs to a third person will not preclude the real creditor from asserting his rights under it.[63] A seal is not necessary,[64] nor is attestation.[65] It must be delivered,[66] but actual manual delivery is not essential.[67] A mortgage for a sum payable to "heirs" of named persons is dedence sufficient to show partial failure of consideration. Id. Where a purchaser from a corporation which has not power to execute a deed gives back a purchase money mortgage and goes into possession, he may without eviction defend an action to foreclose the mortgage on the ground of lack of consideration. Lafferty v. Evans [Okl.] 87 P. 304. To cancel a deed of trust on the ground that it was given for a contemplated loan which was never made, oral proof that the loan was never made must be clear and convincing. Brown v. Click, 59 W. Va. 172, 53 S. E. 16.

51. A mortgage based on an illegal consideration is unenforceable (Dierkes v. Wideman, 143 Mich. 181, 12 Det. Leg. N. 921, 106 N. W. 735), and not subject to ratification (Henry v. State Bank of Laurens [Iowa] 107 N. W. 1034).

52. Sufficient where parents lent money and took mortgage payable to their "heirs." Heilig v. Heilig, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 396.

53. Cady v. Burgess, 144 Mich. 523, 13 Det. Leg. N. 324, 108 N. W. 414.

54. Cady v. Burgess, 144 Mich. 523, 13 Det. Leg. N. 324, 108 N. W. 414. Where in a suit to have a deed declared a mortgage it appeared that at the time the instrument was executed the amount of the debt was not ascertained, and that the mortgagor was old and infirm and under the influence of the mortgagee, who sustained a confidential relation toward her, he has the burden to show the amount and that transactions were fair and honest. Id.

55. See 6 C. L. 684.

56. A mortgage given by a lunatic for debt previously created is void. Smith's Committee v. Forsythe, 28 Ky. L. R. 1034, 90 S. W. 1075. Where a lunatic executed a mortgage at the instigation of his business manager who received the lion's share of the proceeds, the mortgage is void. Id.

57. Evidence held to show that execution of a mortgage was procured by duress. Long v. Branham [Ky.] 99 S. W. 271. A mortgagor cannot assert invalidity of the mortgage on the ground that he did not know of certain provisions contained in the mortgage when he signed it in the absence of fraud or mistake. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 350, 92 S. W. 1003. Such ignorance is no defense unless it appears that the mortgagee had notice of it. Id. Evidence insufficient to show fraud in the giving of a mortgage. Emerson-Newton Imp. Co. v. Cupps [N. D.] 108 N. W. 796.

58. That a note and mortgage was made to run to a nonresident for the purpose of evading taxation thereon does not affect its validity. Waterbury v. McKinnon [C. C. A.] 146 F. 737.

59. Where the mortgage is not signed with the signature of the alleged maker nor attested, but purports to be signed by his mark, the production of such mortgage is not available against the plea of non est factum. Clark v. Clark, 28 Ky. L. R. 1069, 91 S. W. 284. It may be shown by parol that a wife signed a mortgage as surety for her husband. Gibson v. Wallace [Ala.] 41 So. 960. Evidence held to show that a wife was the principal debtor and not merely surety for her husband. Id.

60. A husband may sign his wife's name to a mortgage where it is done in her presence and at her express request and direction. Hawes v. Glover, 126 Ga. 305, 55 S. E. 62.

61. A mortgage is enforceable except as against a dower right though the wife does not join. Lowe v. Walker, 77 Ark. 103, 91 S. W. 22.

62. Burn's Ann. St. 1901, § 6962, expressly prohibits a married woman from mortgaging her separate estate unless her husband joins in the mortgage. Starkey v. Starkey [Ind.] 76 N. E. 876.

63. Where one lends his own money upon the notes of borrowers secured by mortgages, which notes and mortgages he retains possession of, the fact that they are made payable to a third person does not prevent them from being treated as assets of his estate. Hanrion v. Hanrion [Kan.] 84 P. 381.

64, 65. Hawes v. Glover, 126 Ga. 305, 55 S. E. 62.

66. Brumby v. Jones [C. C. A.] 141 F. 318.

67. Fryer v. Fryer [Neb.] 109 N. W. 175. It is sufficient if the mortgagor with intention to give it effect place it on record pursuant to agreement between the parties. Acknowledgement of a bond and recitation thereof in a mortgage duly acknowledged and recorded is evidence that the instruments were executed and delivered. Ward v. Ward, 144 F. 308.

livered in law to the mortgagees when delivered to the named ancestors.[68] It must be accepted.[69]

Recordation[70] is not necessary as between the parties.[71] An unrecorded mortgage is an incumbrance within the provision of an insurance policy declaring it to be void in case the premises were incumbered.[72] An absolute deed intended as a mortgage must be recorded in the mortgage book.[73]

§ 3. Absolute deed as mortgage.[74]—An absolute deed intended by both parties as security for a debt is a mortgage.[75] It must have been intended as a mortgage at its inception,[76] and the relation of debtor and creditor must exist.[77] There must be a reciprocal right to redeem and to foreclose.[78] In some states it is provided 68. The named persons are in effect holding trustees. Heilig v. Heilig, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 396.

69. A delivery to the husband of the mortgagee is presumed accepted by the wife who is mortgagee. Rhea v. Planters' Mut. Ins. Ass'n, 77 Ark. 57, 90 S. W. 850.

70. See 6 C. L. 685. See, also, Notice and Record of Title, 6 C. L. 814. Where a deed to secure a debt was never recorded and innocent third person acquired interests in the property, the mortgage may not after a long period of years assert and enforce his lien. Sturdivant v. Cook [Ark.] 98 S. W. 964.

71. Rhea v. Planters' Mut. Ins. Ass'n, 77 Ark. 57, 90 S. W. 850. Recordation is not essential as between the parties. Rogers v. Page [C. C. A.] 140 F. 596; Hawes v. Glover, 126 Ga. 305, 55 S. E. 62.

72. Rhea v. Planters' Mut. Ins. Ass'n, 77 Ark. 57, 90 S. W. 850.

73. Under the statutes of Michigan requiring deeds and mortgages to be recorded in separate books, an absolute deed intended as a mortgage which is recorded in the deed book and not in the mortgage book is void as against a bona fide purchaser. Grand Rapids Nat. Bank v. Ford, 143 Mich. 402, 13 Det. Leg. N. 10, 107 N. W. 76.

74. See 6 C. L. 685.

75. An absolute deed intended as a mortgage merely creates a lien on the premises. Flynn v. Holmes [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 448, 108 N. W. 685; Wilson v. Rehm, 117 Ill. App. 473. If so intended a deed absolute will be treated as a mortgage. Hill's Guardian v. Hill, 29 Ky. L. R. 201, 92 S. W. 924. Pleading held not to allege that a deed was intended as a mortgage. Jacoby v. Funkhouser [Ala.] 40 So. 291. A deed intended as a mortgage always remains such. Ferguson v. Boyd [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 549.

Held a mortgage: A deed absolute accompanied by a contract for reconveyance separately executed, will be held to constitute a mortgage, if such appears from the surrounding circumstances to have been the intention of the parties. Keeline v. Clark [Iowa] 106 N. W. 257. Evidence sufficient to show that such a transaction was intended as a mortgage. Id. Where one as agent is authorized to foreclose a mortgage and instead takes a conveyance in the name of his principal under an agreement to apply the rents and profits on the debt and to recovery when the debt is paid. De Bartlett v. De Wilson [Fla.] 42 So. 189. Where one procured another to pay a debt for him and executed a deed to him as security for repayment under an agreement that he should have a right to redeem. Shreve v. McGowin, 143 Ala. 665, 42 So. 94. Where one gave a deed to secure a debt and while the grantor was in possession the grantee conveyed to his wife. Prefumo v. Russell, 148 Cal. 451, 83 P. 810. Where a wife had made extensive advances to her husband and, just prior to the maturity of an obligation against him, took a conveyance of all his real estate, held not fraudulent as to his creditors, but enforceable as a mortgage having priority of a judgment on the obligation. Knickerbocker Trust Co. v. Carhart [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 756. An instrument purporting to be a deed but given as security and not accompanied by a bond for reconveyance as required by Ga. Civ. Code 1895, § 2771, nor a transfer of possession, and which contains a power of sale, constitutes a common-law mortgage and will be enforced in the Federal courts as a lien only. In re Moore, 146 F. 187. The grantee from one who has received the property on like terms, who sells the land and is paid his debt, becomes trustee as to the surplus for the grantors as their interests may appear. Wilson v. Rehm, 117 Ill. App. 473.

76. The intention of the parties at the time the instrument was executed in controlling. Fridley v. Somerville [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 502. Where land has been conveyed by deed absolute in payment of mortgage liens existing thereon, a subsequent parol promise to reconvey to the grantor without consideration will not sustain a proceeding to have such deed declared a mortgage. Samuelson v. Mickey [Neb.] 106 N. W. 461. Where a contract, other instruments and a deed executed contemporaneously, show that the deed was intended as a mortgage, it will be so considered. Ferguson v. Boyd [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 549.

77. Fridley v. Somerville [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 502. Deed and option to repurchase held not a mortgage. Jones v. Hubbard, 193 Mo. 147, 90 S. W. 1137. Where it did not appear that there was an existing debt or contract for future advance, evidence held insufficient to show that a deed was intended as a mortgage. Jacoby v. Funkhouser [Ala.] 40 So. 291. It must appear that a debt existed at the time of the transaction. Jones v. Jones [S. D.] 108 N. W. 23. Under a statute providing that a deed given as security is a mortgage, a deed given to secure a debt which the grantor was to pay whenever he is able to is not as there is no right to foreclose. Caraway v. Sly, 222 Ill. 203, 78 N. E. 588.

78. Where the grantor is to pay the debt whenever he is able, there is no right to foreclose. Caraway v. Sly, 222 Ill. 203, 78 N. E. 588.

by statute that an absolute deed intended as a mortgage must be accompanied by a written defeasance,[78] and such defeasance be recorded,[80] but, though statutory requirements are not complied with, a forfeiture will not be decreed.[81] Such statutes are not merely recording acts but prescribe the mode of evidencing a defeasance which is otherwise invalid.[82] A statute requiring deeds of trust to be executed like deeds of conveyance has no application to a purchase at execution sale on agreement to hold as security for the land owner.[83]

Mortgage or conditional sale.[84]—A deed absolute and contract to reconvey on payment of a specified sum is prima facie a deed.[85] A transfer to enable the grantee to recover judgment quieting title in him is a deed.[86]

The proceeding to establish a mortgage is equitable,[87] but when reformation of the instrument is not necessary, the fact may be shown in an action at law.[88] The proceeding is usually a suit to establish the mortgage and to redeem and in that phase is hereafter discussed.[89] Actions for all relief to which a party is entitled may be joined,[90] and several instruments may be declared to be mortgages in a single suit.[91] One who has no real interest in the outcome of the proceeding is not a necessary party.[92] Tender of the amount of the debt may not be essential.[93]

79. Under the rule that a deed absolute cannot be decreed a mortgage, unless a written defeasance is executed and recorded, where statutory requirements are not complied with, the grantee cannot be declared a trustee ex maleficio in the absence of fraud. O'Donnell v. Vandersaal, 213 Pa. 551, 63 A. 60.

80. General creditors are not within the provisions of a statute requiring written defeasance of an absolute deed to be recorded. Valley v. First Nat. Bank [N. D.] 106 N. W. 127. Where it is required by statute that a written defeasance be recorded, an instrument will be held to be what it purports to be if such statute is not complied with, as to one taking a mortgage from the grantee. Patnode v. Deschenes [N. D.] 106 N. W. 573.

81. Where an absolute deed is given to secure a debt and time fixed for repayment is not of the essence of the transaction, and the tender can be compensated at any time by payment of the loan, a forfeiture will not be permitted. In re King's Estate [Pa.] 64 A. 324.

82. Rockhill's Estate, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 28.

83. Code, § 2918, so providing does not preclude a showing that a purchaser at execution sale had agreed to purchase and hold the land as security. McElroy v. Allfree [Iowa] 108 N. W. 116.

84. See 6 C. L. 685.

85. Johnson v. Scrimshire [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 949, 93 S. W. 712. Deed and contract to reconvey on payment of the consideration and interest within a specified time held a conditional sale and not a mortgage. Goodbar & Co. v. Bloom [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 765, 96 S. W. 657. Where one sold land to be paid for in instalments represented by notes, title to be conveyed on payment of the notes, and subsequently assigned such notes a collateral and executed a deed of the land to the assignee, held that, so long as the vendee's contract is in force, such deed cannot be considered as a mortgage, but the legal title passed in trust. First Nat. Bank v. State Bank [N. D.] 109 N. W. 61.

86. Renton v. Gibson, 148 Cal. 650, 84 P. 186.

87. See 6 C. L. 686.

88. Barchent v. Snyder, 128 Wis. 423, 107 N. W. 329.

89. See post, § 13.

90. An action to have a deed declared a mortgage, to have a judgment for possession of the premises in favor of the mortgagee canceled, and to have a mortgage executed by him on the premises adjudged fraudulent, may be joined. Gustin v. Crockett [Wash.] 87 P. 839. Where one as owner and as agent executed separate deeds as security for a single indebtedness, and the grantee was not required to accept partial payment or partial surrender of securities, a single suit could be maintained to have all the deeds declared mortgages, and to redeem. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

91. Where one acting for himself and as agent for another conveys property held by them in severalty as security, both agent and principal were entitled to join in an action to have the deeds declared mortgages, though it is provided by statute that, if there is more than one mortgage or person claiming under him, any of whom are not entitled to redeem, any one who is entitled may redeem a divided or undivided part. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93. Where a complaint to have deeds declared mortgages alleged that they were given to secure a certain sum, an amendment that one of such deeds was also given to secure another sum does not detract from the effect of the original complaint. Id.

92. An agent to whom a deed runs is not the real party in interest and is not a necessary party to an action to have it declared a mortgage. Churchill v. Woodworth, 148 Cal. 669, 84 P. 155.

93. Where one gave an absolute deed which was intended as a mortgage under the understanding that he was not to be disturbed in his possession, and the grantee fraudulently procured a judgment for possession, tender of the debt is not essential to an action to have the deed declared a mortgage, where it did not show that the grantees were in possession as mortgagees. Gustin v. Crockett [Wash.] 87 P. 839.

Evidence.[94]—The burden of proving an absolute deed to be in fact a mortgage is on the party who asserts it.[95] As a general rule and excepting those states which prescribe a written formal defeasance,[96] such fact may be established by parol evidence[97] including letters or memoranda[98] in an appropriate proceeding.[99] The rule is for the purpose of preventing fraud[1] and does not violate the statute of frauds,[2] but it does not authorize contradiction of the terms of the instrument.[3] In Kentucky, however, it is held that such evidence is not admissible in the absence of fraud or mistake,[4] but is admissible when it appears that the written instrument does not contain the entire contract.[5] The fact is to be determined from all the circumstances surrounding the transaction.[6] The evidence must be clear and convincing.[7] The presence of what are termed "indicia of a mortgage," arising from

94. See 6 C. L. 687.

95. The burden of proving the fact is on the party alleging it. Fridley v. Somerville [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 502.

96. See ante this section.

97. Alexander v. Grover, 190 Mass. 462, 77 N. E. 487; Alexander v. Cleland [N. M.] 86 P. 425; Reynolds v. Blanks [Ark.] 94 S. W. 694. It may be shown by parol that one loaned money to another with which to purchase land and took title in his own name as security. Krebs v. Lauser [Iowa] 110 N. W. 443. Parol evidence is admissible to show that a debt existed when the instrument was executed and that it was intended as a mortgage. Shreve v. McGowin, 143 Ala. 665, 42 So. 94.

98. Letters exchanged between grantor and grantee concerning the transaction were admissible. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93. Memorandum found wrapped around quitclaim deed from grantee to grantor, after former's death, but not shown to have been seen or assented to by grantor, held not admissible to show terms on which deed was made so as to exclude parol evidence to show that deed was really a mortgage. Id.

99. Where one conveyed by deed absolute his interest as devisee, to his brother in payment of a debt, parol evidence is not admissible in an action for accounting to show that a mortgage was intended. Nevius v. Nevius, 101 N. Y. S. 1091.

1. This rule is for the purpose of preventing fraud and imposition. De Bartlett v. De Wilson [Fla.] 42 So. 189.

2. It is not a contract for the sale of any interest in land. De Bartlett v. De Wilson [Fla.] 42 So. 189. The statute of frauds does not apply to such case. Shreve v. McGowin, 143 Ala. 665, 42 So. 94.

3. A statutory provision that a transfer as security is deemed to be a mortgage does not authorize parol evidence of the intent of the parties in executing an absolute deed without qualification or limitation, as to the interest intended to be conveyed. Bernardy v. Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co. [S. D.] 105 N. W. 737.

4, 5. Crockett's Guardian v. Waller, 29 Ky. L. R. 1155, 96 S. W. 860.

6. It is for the court to determine the intention of the parties from all the evidence introduced. Fridley v. Somerville [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 502. The relations existing between the parties at the time of the transaction may be considered in determining the intention. De Bartlett v. De Wilson [Fla.] 42 So. 189. Where a deed is treated by the parties as a mortgage, they are bound by their construction. Ferguson v. Boyd [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 549.

7. Proof must be clear and satisfactory. Irvin v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 343, 98 S. W. 405; Krebs v. Lauser [Iowa] 110 N. W. 443; Goodbar & Co. v. Bloom [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 765, 96 S. W. 657; Reynolds v. Blanks [Ark.] 94 S. W. 694. Evidence sufficient. Reynolds v. Blanks [Ark.] 94 S. W. 694; Reynolds v. Reynolds, 42 Wash. 107, 84 P. 579; Renton v. Gibson, 148 Cal. 650, 84 P. 186; Jones v. Jones [S. D.] 108 N. W. 23. The fact that a deed is referred to as collateral security will not conclusively stamp the transaction as a mortgage. Wisner v. Field [N. D.] 106 N. W. 38. It is presumed to be what it purports to be until shown otherwise by reasonably clear and satisfactory proof Betts v. Betts [Iowa] 106 N. W. 928.

Evidence insufficient to show that a deed and ground rent were intended as a mortgage in an action brought 40 years after the instruments were executed. Rosenstock v. Keyser [Md.] 65 A. 37. Where a purchaser at foreclosure sale subsequently took a quitclaim deed from the mortgagor, evidence held insufficient to show that such quitclaim deed was intended as a mortgage. Pankau v. Morrissey, 224 Ill. 177, 79 N. E. 643. Evidence insufficient to show that a deed was intended as a mortgage. Betts v. Betts [Iowa] 106 N. W. 928. Evidence sufficient to show that a deed was what it purported to be and not a mortgage. Jones v. Jones [S. D.] 108 N. W. 23. Evidence insufficient. Renton v. Gibson, 148 Cal. 650, 84 P. 186; Krebs v. Lauser [Iowa] 110 N. W. 443. Where a son never held legal title to property but the deed from the vendor ran directly to his father who agreed to sell it to the son and gave a bond for a deed, and the son gave his note for the price, evidence held insufficient to show that the deed to the father was a mortgage, and that the son had in fact paid most of the purchase price. Reynolds v. Reynolds, 42 Wash. 107, 84 P. 579. Evidence insufficient to show that a deed was intended as a mortgage. Hamilton v. Holmes [Or.] 87 P. 154.

Evidence sufficient to show that an absolute deed was intended as a mortgage. Patnode v. Deschenes [N. D.] 106 N. W. 573; McElroy v. Allfree [Iowa] 108 N. W. 116; Cady v. Burgess, 144 Mich. 523, 13 Det. Leg. N. 324, 108 N. W. 414; Meeker v. Shuster [Cal. App.] 87 P. 1102. Finding that absolute deed was intended as mortgage sustained. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93. Evidence sufficient where it appeared that circumstances attending the transaction, does not prevent consideration of other evidence on the question of intent.[8] Such evidence may be so potent and convincing as to overcome the weight to be given indicia of a mortgage.[9] The rule that clear and convincing proof is required does not require that the record on appeal contain evidence clear and convincing to the reviewing court.[10]

§ 4. Equitable mortgages.[11]—An equitable mortgage is a transaction to which equity attaches the character of a mortgage.[12] The transfer, however, must have been intended as security.[13] It may result from an agreement to give a mortgage, a defectively executed mortgage, an imperfect attempt to create a mortgage or appropriate specific property to the payment of a particular debt.[14] Improvements made pending ejectment suits do not put plaintiffs on inquiry of the source of the money to make them; hence, no equitable lien for their value arises in favor of the mortgagee to the unsuccessful defendants and especially when they had at least some knowledge of a dispute of their mortgagors' title.[15]

§ 5. Nature and incidents of trust deeds as mortgages.[16]—A deed of trust for the purposes of the trust vests legal title in the trustee until the debt is paid.[17] He is entitled to reimbursement for necessary expenditures in connection with his trust.[18] His duties and obligations are to be determined from the provisions of the deed.[19] He is bound at his peril to know that the debt is paid before he executes a release.[20] The power granted to the beneficiary of appointing a substitute trustee is a power coupled with an interest.[21] Authority to appoint a substitute trustee cannot be delegated.[22] It must be executed in the manner prescribed,[23] but is subject a debt existed, that a deed was executed to prevent foreclosure, and no other consideration was shown. De Bartlett v. De Wilson [Fla.] 42 So. 189.

8, 9. Fridley v. Somerville [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 502.

10. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

11. See 6 C. L. 687.

12. An instrument executed to secure a loan will be regarded in equity as a mortgage, whatever its form. Marquam v. Ross, 47 Or. 374, 78 P. 698, 83 P. 852, 86 P. 1.

13. To create an equitable mortgage for the payment of a debt, an intention must be manifest as distinguished from an intention to apply to the payment of the debt the proceeds of a sale of the property. Smith v. Rainey [Ariz.] 83 P. 463.

14. Smith v. Rainey [Ariz.] 83 P. 463. Defectively executed, not attested or acknowledged. Markham v. Wallace [Ala.] 41 So. 304. Where a bankrupt executed a deed to his wife one month prior to making a voluntary assignment, the deed is valid only as an equitable mortgage to secure actual indebtedness to the wife at the date of execution. Treseder v. Burgor [Wis.] 109 N. W. 957. Where one borrowed money to pay a usurious debt and procured an assignment of the mortgage securing the same to the person advancing the money and agreed to execute a new mortgage but failed to do so, the assigned mortgage would be regarded as the new one, notwithstanding it was void for usury. Lowe v. Walker, 77 Ark. 103, 91 S. W. 22. An agreement to give a mortgage to one who paid a debt for another on faith of his promise to do so may be specifically enforced. Id.

15. Armstrong v. Ashley, 27 S. Ct. 270.

16. See 6 C. L. 689.

17. Weber v. McCleverty [Cal.] 86 P. 706. Under the statutes of California a deed of trust of a homestead given to secure a debt is not a lien or incumbrance, and the holder of the debt secured need not present it for allowance against the estate of the grantor as a condition of the right to foreclose. Id. Where one was vested with the title to premises at the time she executed a trust deed thereon, a deed by the trustee pursuant to the terms of the trust vested title in the purchaser. Stockton Sav. & Loan Soc. v. Saddlemire [Cal. App.] 86 P. 723.

18. Under a statute providing that a trustee is entitled to repayment of all expenses actually incurred, he is entitled to attorney's fees in a necessary action, though no provision was made therefor in the deed. Mitau v. Roddan [Cal.] 84 P. 145.

19. A mortgagor, at the time the mortgage was made, deeded the property under under an agreement that the latter should take possession and collect rents and profits and apply them to interest, taxes, expenses, etc. The deed obligated the trustee to make specific advances, interest on the mortgage not being specifically mentioned, and recited that it might become necessary for the trustee to make other advances, in which case it should be entitled to a lien on the property therefor. Held trustee was not bound to make advances to pay interest on the mortgage to prevent foreclosure. Marquam v. Ross, 47 Or. 374, 78 P. 698, 83 P. 852, 86 P. 1. Evidence held insufficient to show that foreclosure of mortgage was caused by trustee's failure to apply net income to interest. Id.

20. If he unwarrantably executes a release, he is liable for resulting damages. Lennartz v. Estate of Peter Popp, 118 Ill. App. 31.

21. Frank v. Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co., 86 Miss. 103, 38 So. 340.

22. A power given in a deed of trust to appoint a substituted trustee is personal and cannot be delegated to an attorney in fact. Watson v. Perkins [Miss.] 40 So. 643.

23. Where a trust deed required the ap-to the rules governing the execution of other instruments.[24] An order appointing a substituted trustee should not contain recitals which could be construed as an adjudication of a disputed question.[25] A trustee appointed pursuant to a stipulation in the deed, to make the sale, is not a substituted trustee.[26]

Sale of premises[27] by a trustee is a foreclosure in legal consequence and is fully treated as such in another topic.[28] The power of sale vested in the trustee is a power coupled with an interest[29] and is not revoked by the death of the grantor,[30] except pending administration of his estate.[31] There is a conflict of authority as to whether a sale by a trustee acting under a void appointment is absolutely void.[32] A trustee will not be permitted to purchase the mortgaged property for his own benefit, at foreclosure sale,[33] unless his trusteeship has been terminated.[34]

§ 6. Construction and effect of mortgages in general.[35]—A mortgage is to be construed as other written instruments are.[36] A mortgage and other instruments executed at the same time and relative to the same subject-matter are to be construed together.[37] In a mortgage to the "heirs" of husband and wife, the word heirs is not a word of limitation.[38] Recitals as to the property mortgaged are not conclusive.[39] A stipulation conferring a power of sale in case of default gives a remedy which must be exercised agreeably to the statutes relating thereto, in force pointment of a substituted trustee to be made "under his name and seal" an appointment not under seal is void. Watson v. Perkins [Miss.] 40 So. 643.

24. The appointment of a substituted trustee need not be signed by the owner of the deed if he is very feeble; it is sufficient if it is signed by his express direction in his presence. Watkins v. McDonald [Miss.] 41 So. 376. The appointment of a substituted trustee may be made on a separate paper where the deed is full. Id. Deed of trust construed and held to show that it was intended to appoint the "acting sheriff" of a certain county as substituted trustee in case of death or disqualification of the trustee appointed. Killgore v. Cranmer [Colo.] 84 P. 70.

25. Should not recite that the applicant for the order was the owner of the bonds secured where his ownership was disputed. In re Radam Microbe Killer Co., 114 App. Div. 199, 99 N. Y. S. 925.

26. His sale is not vitiated because of failure to comply with statutory requirements relative to recording his appointment. Searles v. Kelley, Simmons & Co. [Miss.] 40 So. 484.

27. See 6 C. L. 690.

28. See Foreclosure of Mortgages on Land, 7 C. L. 1678.

29, 30. Frank v. Colonial & U. S. Mortg. Co., 86 Miss. 103, 38 So. 340.

31. A power of sale in a trust deed is revoked by the death of the owner of the equity pending administration of his estate. Williams v. Armistead [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 381, 90 S. W. 925.

32. A sale by a substituted trustee under a void appointment is void. Watson v. Perkins [Miss.] 40 So. 643. A sale by a substituted trustee whose appointment is void, is voidable only. Haggart v. Wilczinski [C. C. A.] 143 F. 22.

33. Marquam v. Ross, 47 Or. 374, 78 P. 698, 83 P. 852, 86 P. 1.

34. A trustee managing the property under an agreement which is terminated at foreclosure may purchase at the sale to protect its subsequent lien for advances. Marquam v. Ross, 47 Or. 374, 78 P. 698, 83 P. 852, 86 P. 1.

35. See 6 C. L. 690.

36. Mortgage construed and held not to give a holder of a certain class of claims less than a majority of such class the right to direct foreclosure, unless holders of a majority of such claims joined in the demand. Allen v. Pierson, 113 App. Div. 586, 100 N. Y. S. 451. Where a mortgage was made to secure loans at five and one per cent and two notes were made, one for the amount of the loan at five per cent and the other for one per cent of the amount at eight per cent, the words "five and one per cent" were construed to mean six per cent. Citizens' State Bank v. Chambers, 129 Iowa, 414, 105 N. W. 692. Where a mortgage was executed to secure certain money advanced to a corporation and another, it was held to constitute a primary security for the repayment of such money and of the value of certain stock transferred on faith of it and not a mere surety obligation. Clambey v. Corliss, 41 Wash. 327, 83 P. 422.

See particularly Deeds, etc., 7 C. L. 1103.

37. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Ellsworth [Wis.] 109 N. W. 125. A note, deed, and defeasance executed at the same time and relative to the same subject-matter, should be construed together as one instrument. Bartels v. Davis [Mont.] 85 P. 1027. The note and mortgage are to be construed together to determine the intent and purpose of the parties. San Gabriel Valley Bank v. Lake View Town Co. [Cal. App.] 86 P. 727. Note and mortgage should be construed together. Spesard v. Spesard [Kan.] 88 P. 576. A mortgage given to secure the payment of a note, though executed long after the date of the note, will, if so intended, become a part of the contract from date of delivery, the same as if both instruments had been executed at the same time. Id.

38. Heilig v. Heilig, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 396.

39. A recital that the land mortgaged did not include a homestead is not conclusive. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 350, 92 S. W. 1003.

when the remedy is invoked.[40] A provision that the mortgagor could sell from time to time certain of the mortgaged lots, and the mortgagor would release as to such lots on receipt of a certain sum "during the life of this agreement" applies only prior to default in payment of the mortgage debt at maturity.[41] A stipulation, that for failure of the mortgagors to pay taxes when due, the entire debt should become due, is valid.[42] A provision that it is optional with the mortgagee to declare the entire debt due on default in payment of an instalment gives him the right to execute a power of sale,[43] or foreclose on default;[44] but a stipulation that a receiver may be appointed in case of default does not require the appointment of a receiver if it would be inequitable.[45] Under a stipulation that failure to pay taxes when due shall mature the debt, limitations commence to run against the holder of the mortgage on breach of the condition.[46] A provision that the deed shall not be foreclosed until the last note secured is due does not prevent action to have matured notes declared a lien.[47] A condition that the maker and her administrator shall support the obligee for life is not breached by the death of the maker, since the duty then devolved on her administrator.[48] All provisions in the instrument should be definite and certain.[49] The date of maturity may be extended by parol agreement.[50] A provision that the mortgagor might extend it for a year from the expiration of the term includes the notes secured.[51]

Property and interests conveyed.[52]—A mortgage, describing the property by metes and bounds only, covers all fixtures on the property.[53] A mortgage covering certain described land and all other lands owned by the grantor in the county covers only lands owned by him at the time the mortgage was executed,[54] but if it was so intended, a mortgage will cover after-acquired property.[55] A mortgagee who has notice that his mortgagor has only an estate on condition subsequent takes a lien only on the mortgagor's estate, though he has no notice of the breach of the con-

40. Orvik v. Casselman [N. D.] 105 N. W. 1105. Under B. & C. Comp. § 423, providing that liens other than judgment shall be foreclosed by suit, a power of sale in a trust deed does not authorize sale other than under decree. Marquam v. Ross, 47 Or. 374, 78 P. 698, 83 P. 852, 86 P. 1.

41. Bartels v. Davis [Mont.] 85 P. 1027.

42. Spesard v. Spesard [Kan.] 88 P. 576.

43. Moody v. Atkins [Ala.] 40 So. 305.

44. A provision that interest not paid when due should become part of the principal, but, if default was made in the payment of interest for thirty days, the whole sum should become due at the option of the holder, held that the mortgage might be foreclosed for the entire amount due thirty days after default. San Gabriel Valley Bank v. Lake View Town Co. [Cal. App.] 86 P. 727. The filing of a complaint seeking to recover the entire amount is notice of an election to claim the entire amount due. Id.

45. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Broecker [Ind.] 77 N. E. 1092.

46. Spesard v. Spesard [Kan.] 88 P. 576. And where the land is sold for taxes, the fact that the mortgagor redeems does not toll the statute. Id.

47. Arnold v. McBride [Ark.] 93 S. W. 989.

48. Pattee v. Boynton, 73 N. H. 525, 63 A. 787.

49. A provision that for every certain sum paid one acre should be released is void for indefiniteness of description (McCormick v. Parsons, 195 Mo. 91, 92 S. W. 1162), and cannot be aided by the demand of the parties that a certain portion of the tract be released (Id.).

50. Moody v. Atkins [Ala.] 40 So. 305. Evidence held sufficient to show an agreement extending the time of payment of the secured debt, precluding the right to foreclose according to the terms of the mortgage and note. Arnot v. Union Salt Co. [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 719. The holder of notes secured by a mortgage containing the pact de non alienando does not lose his mortgage by consenting with the mortgagor and maker of the notes without consulting with the grantee of the property to an extension of time. Blanchard v. Naquin, 116 La. 806, 41 So. 99.

51. Corson v. McDonald [Cal. App.] 85 P. 861. It is not necessary that the mortgagor's decision to extend it be expressed in writing. Id.

52. See 6 C. L. 692.

53. Factory and machinery therein. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Guild [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 694. A sawmill and machinery intended to be used permanently on the premises and not adopted to any other use are fixtures. Humes v. Higman [Ala.] 40 So. 128.

54. Ross v. Lafferty [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 161, 95 S. W. 18.

55. A mortgage covering buildings and improvements to be put on during the term of the mortgagor's lease and all tools and machinery covers after-acquired machinery which become a fixture. McClung v. Quincy Carriage & Wagon Co. [Tenn.] 96 S. W. 960.

dition.[56] A clause pledging the rents and profits during pendency of foreclosure proceedings and period of redemption is valid.[57]

Debts secured.[58]—A mortgage secures all debts it was intended to secure[59] but no others,[60] unless by way of estoppel.[61] Parol evidence is admissible to show the real consideration.[62] In interpreting a clause describing the indebtedness, the note actually secured should be construed with it and, if true, control the description thereof in the mortgage.[63] A mortgagee may pay taxes on the premises if the mortgagor fails to do so and add it to the amount of his debt.[64]

§ 7. Title and rights of the parties.[65]—The equity of redemption remaining is an estate in the land itself,[66] and, though by express stipulation, the legal title may be conveyed to the mortgagee, yet the mortgagor's equity may not be cut off except by judicial foreclosure.[67] In consequence of the title remaining in the mortgagor, he is the proper party to all actions pertaining to ownership or possession and the mortgagee is not,[68] excepting such cases as those where his security is impaired.[69] He may maintain action for damages against one who intentionally im-

56. Gall v. Gall, 126 Wis. 390, 105 N. W. 953.

57. Schaeppi v. Bartholomae, 118 Ill. App. 316.

58. See 6 C. L. 692.

59. When the notes secured were reduced by payments and new notes executed for the balance due, such new notes did not evidence a new debt, but were evidence of the original obligation, and were secured. Pollard v. Pittman [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 293. Where a principal executes an indemnity mortgage to his surety, containing a provision, "the mortgagors hereby agree to pay all sums above secured," etc., such mortgage is available to the creditor. Griffis v. First Nat. Bank [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 230. A provision in the note for attorney's fees is part of the debt secured and on foreclosure is properly made a lien on the premises. Corson v. McDonald [Cal. App.] 85 P. 861. In Georgia a provision for attorney's fees must be read in the light of Civ. Code 1895, § 3667, which provides that they shall not be allowed unless the defendant files a plea and fails to sustain it. Booth v. Rosier, 124 Ga. 154, 52 S. E. 327. Where a deed was made to an agent to secure a debt to his principal and the agent made a mortgage on the premises to pay off other liens, the grantor was not entitled to have the mortgage cancelled after the principal's claims for advances to pay off prior liens had become barred. Churchill v. Woodworth, 148 Cal. 669, 84 P. 155. Deed construed and held to secure certain items of indebtedness. Miles v. Coleman Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 84 S. W. 284.

60. Where mining claims mortgaged were in possession of the mortgagee under an agreement that he might operate them and apply net profits on the debt, and he contracted with one to manage and look to the mines for money expended and salary, the amount due such manager was no part of the debt secured. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93. Where a mortgage is given by husband and wife to secure a certain note signed by the husband and such note is paid in full, the husband may not without the consent of the wife agree that the mortgage shall stand security for another debt. Mantle v. Dabney [Wash.] 87 P. 122. Under Gen. Acts 1900-1901, p. 164, amending Code 1896, § 2630, if a debt draws a usurious rate of interest, no interest need be paid. Barclift v. Fields [Ala.] 41 So. 84.

61. Where a mortgagor procures a mortgagee to make certain payment, knowing that the mortgage is relied on as security therefor, he is estopped to assert that it is not. Mausert v. Christian Feigenspan, 68 N. J. Eq. 671, 63 A. 610, 64 A. 801.

62. That a mortgage, reciting that it was given to secure a certain note, was also to indemnify the mortgagee against loss on other obligations and future advances. Ladd v. Lookout Distilling Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 610.

63. Bastin v. Schafer, 15 Okl. 607, 85 P. 349. Where a note signed by husband and wife purported to be the one secured, but evidence showed that the note in contemplation of the parties when the mortgage was executed and the one really secured was signed by the husband alone, it was proper to decree reformation and foreclosure. Id.

64. Lidster v. Poole, 122 Ill. App. 227.

65. See 6 C. L. 693.

66. An equity of redemption is an equitable estate in the property capable of being enlarged into completed legal title by discharging the liens and not a mere right to the difference between value and incumbrance, and in such case the interest of the owner, subject to a mechanic's lien under section 3 of chapter 75 of the Code of 1899, is such equitable estate. Grant v. Cumberland Valley Cement Co., 58 W. Va. 162, 52 S. E. 36.

67. Kirkendall v. Weatherley [Neb.] 109 N. W. 757.

68. A mortgagee has but a lien and not being in possession cannot maintain action against a third person for trespass. Jackson v. Brandon Realty Co., 100 N. Y. S. 1005. The holder of the debt has no such interest as entitles him to notice of condemnation proceedings. So even though he is senior to the proceeding. Martin v. District of Columbia, 26 App. D. C. 146.

69. Where a receiver of a mortgagor commits waste, the mortgagee may recover damages measured by the diminution in value of the property, determined by the value before and after the waste was committed. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Guild [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 694. A second mortgagee may maintain an action for waste which impairs his security, though his mortgage has not matured. Repairs his security by removing part of the realty.[70] A mortgagor may recover damages for premature foreclosure.[71] A mortgagor may recover from the mortgagee, by a suit in equity, rents collected by him.[72] A mortgagee is not a necessary party to an action against the fee owner to foreclose a tax lien.[73] Under a statute providing that where an action to foreclose is pending, no action shall be commenced to recover any part of the debt without leave of court, leave will not be denied merely because the obligor claims to have a defense to the action.[74] A mortgagee who has negotiated for a purchase of the equity has not such a possessory title as will enable him to maintain a petition for assessment of damages in condemnation proceedings,[75] and, if he is entitled to do so as mortgagee, he must not attempt to do so as owner.[76]

The obligation of the mortgagor is not to pay the amount of the note absolutely but only the balance after security is exhausted.[77] Consequently, if the mortgagee releases the mortgage, he cannot hold the mortgagor personally liable.[78] Where mortgaged premises insured for the benefit of the mortgagee are injured prior to the maturity of the debt and the amount of the loss paid to the mortgagee, he is not entitled to apply it to the payment of his debt but must hold it and apply it when the debt matures.[79]

The fact that the debt is barred by the statute of limitations does not affect rights under the mortgage.[80] A mortgagee's claim for advances made to protect his security may be barred, though the principal debt is continued by renewal.[81] A mortgagor does not hold adversely to the mortgagee until he renounces his rights and he has notice thereof,[82] but one who acquires an interest in the premises under a tax deed may invoke the statute of limitations against the mortgagee, though it is moval of timber from the land. Jenks v. Hart Cedar & Lumber Co., 143 Mich. 449, 13 Det. Leg. N. 44, 106 N. W. 1119. A mortgagee is not liable in damages for permitting a stranger to remove timber from the premises. Tucker v. Benedict, 116 La. 968, 41 So. 226.

70. Jackson v. Brandon Realty Co., 100 N. Y. S. 1005. One, who knowingly impairs mortgage security by removing part of the realty, is chargeable with an intent to effect such object, though his leading motive may be his own gain. Id.

71. In such case the measure of damages is the difference between the value of the property and the amount of the debt. Missouri Real Estate Syndicate v. Sims [Mo. App.] 98 S. W. 783.

72. Where a mortgagee collects rents and the mortgagor pays the full amount of the debt, he can recover the rents from the mortgagee by suit in equity. No adequate remedy at law. Thomas v. Livingston [Ala.] 40 So. 504.

73. Hall v. Moore [Neb.] 106 N. W. 785.

74. Whether such defense is valid should be litigated in the action. La Grave v. Hellinger, 109 App. Div. 515, 96 N. Y. S. 564.

75. A mortgagee, who has not taken possession but who has taken stone from the premises under license from the mortgagor and has negotiated for a purchase of the equity of redemption, has not such a possessory title as entitles him to maintain a petition for assessment of damages when the property is taken in condemnation proceedings. Taber v. Boston, 190 Mass. 101, 76 N. E. 727.

76. Under the Massachusetts statutes, relative to the taking of mortgaged property for public use, a mortgagee cannot recover damages where he alleges that he is owner of an unincumbered fee of the premises. Taber v. Boston, 190 Mass. 101, 76 N. E. 727.

77. Where three persons sign a note and mortgage and, unbeknown to one, the mortgagee releases enough of the property to pay the debt, an action may not be maintained on the note against the party who had no notice of such release. Cooper v. Burch [Cal. App.] 86 P. 719.

78. A mortgagee who releases to the mortgagor's grantee without the consent of the mortgagor cannot hold him personally liable. Crisman v. Lanterman [Cal.] 87 P. 89. Where a mortgagee releases a portion of the premises from the lien of the mortgage without the knowledge of the mortgagor, the mortgagor is not liable for a deficiency on foreclosure. This is so where prior to such release the mortgagor had sold the premises with covenant against incumbrances. Meigs v. Tunnicliffe, 214 Pa. 495, 63 A. 1019.

79. Thorp v. Croto [Vt.] 65 A. 562.

80. See in this connection, Foreclosure of Mortgages on Land, 7 C. L. 1678; also Limitation of Actions, 8 C. L. 788. That the debt is barred by limitations does not affect the power of the trustee to sell. Williams v. Armistead [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 381, 90 S. W. 925. Where a claim against an estate secured by mortgage was barred, it was not a debt payable by the executor but an incumbrance, subject to which the land mortgaged should be sold to pay debts. Robinson v. Cogswell [Mass.] 78 N. E. 389.

81. Such advances not having been included in the renewal notes. Churchill v. Woodworth, 148 Cal. 669, 84 P. 155.

82. New England Mortg. Sec. Co. v. Fry, 143 Ala. 637, 42 So. 57. Where a mortgagor conveys and records his deed, the recordanot available to the mortgagor.[83] Payments by one joint mortgagor do not toll the statute of limitations as to the other.[84]

Right of possession.[85]—As a general rule a mortgagee has no right to possession,[86] unless the equities of the parties demand it.[87] In Mississippi a mortgagee may maintain ejectment to recover the mortgaged premises as a means of enforcing his security.[88]

Accounting.[89]—A mortgagee who has agreed to account may be required to do so if he refuses.[90] Only parties interested in the accounting need be joined.[91] A mortgagor is entitled to have rents and profits accrued during the possession of the mortgagee applied on the mortgage debt.[92] A mortgagee who pays taxes on the premises may recover only the legal rate of interest thereon against the mortgagor,[93] or such rate as is specially prescribed by law.[94]

Assumption of possession by the mortgagee.[95]—A mortgagee in possession [96] may exercise all rights of ownership.[97] He must account for rents and profits [98] actually received,[99] and is entitled to reimbursement for expenditures necessarily made in the care of property,[1] but not to compensation for personal services in con-tion is not notice of adverse holding by the mortgagor as the record is not notice to prior incumbrancers. Id.

83. Graves v. Seifried [Utah] 87 P. 674. The fact that the tax deed under which one claims an interest in mortgaged premises is so defective as to be inoperative does not prevent him from pleading limitations against the mortgagee. Id.

84. Keese v. Dewey, 111 App. Div. 16, 97 N. Y. S. 519.

85. See 6 C. L. 693.

86. Under a statutory provision that a mortgage is not to be deemed a conveyance so as to enable the mortgagee to recover possession prior to foreclosure and sale, a mortgagee has no right to possession before or after condition broken until after foreclosure and sale. Moncrieff v. Hare [Colo.] 87 P. 1082.

87. This rule, however, does not preclude the appointment of a receiver after filing suit to foreclose to collect rents and profits pledged as part of the security, and which were inadequate, where the mortgagor is insolvent. Moncrieff v. Hare [Colo.] 87 P. 1082.

88. Haggart v. Wilczinski [C. C. A.] 143 F. 22.

89. See 6 C. L. 694.

90. One who takes title as security under an agreement to account for rents and profits and reconvey when the debt is paid may be required to account on his refusal to do so. Holliday v. Perry [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 877.

91. Where after the discharge of the mortgage the mortgagor sues the mortgagee for an accounting, his wife and mother, owner of a life estate in part of the premises, are not necessary parties. Their interests are not in litigation. Bullis v. Farmers' State Bank, 143 Mich. 632, 13 Det. Leg. N. 85, 107 N. W. 700.

92. Gillett v. Romig [Okl.] 87 P. 325. Where land was conveyed to a wife to be held by her until it could be sold by her husband who was to sell it and pay a debt to himself out of the proceeds, it is presumed that rent was not to be paid, where the property was in the joint occupancy of the parties. Robinson v. Gassoway [Ala.] 39 So. 1023. Where a mortgagee agreed to apply the proceeds of the mortgage to the payment of a debt of a third person which was secured by a chattel mortgage and failed to do so, and the chattel mortgage was foreclosed, the mortgagee must account for the amount of indebtedness. Bullis v. Farmers' State Bank, 143 Mich. 632, 13 Det. Leg. N. 85, 107 N. W. 700.

93. Not the statutory rate on delinquent taxes. Fuhrman v. Power [Wash.] 86 P. 940.

94. In an accounting between mortgagor and mortgagee in an action to redeem from a void foreclosure, the mortgagee is entitled to interest on taxes paid by him while in possession under such foreclosure at twelve per cent. as prescribed by Gen. St. 1895, § 8423. Nelso v. Norton [Kan.] 87 P. 184.

95. See 6 C. L. 694.

96. A purchaser under a void foreclosure sale is a mortgagee in possession. Haggart v. Wilczinski [C. C. A.] 143 F. 22. And in Mississippi is entitled to retain possession until the debt is paid. Id. A mortgagee who does not take actual possession on void foreclosure is not a mortgagee in possession with rights as such though he pays the taxes. Fuhrman v. Power [Wash.] 86 P. 940. A grantee from a purchaser at a void foreclosure sale who takes possession, being an equitable assignee of the mortgage, is deemed a mortgagee in possession. Nash v. Northwest Land Co. [N. D.] 108 N. W. 792.

97. A mortgagor in possession as the owner of the estate may exercise all rights of ownership and even commit waste, provided he does not diminish the security or render it insufficient. Fidelity Trust Co. v. Hoboken & M. R. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 273.

98. This is true of one who stands in his shoes. Gillett v. Romig [Okl.] 87 P. 325. A mortgagee in possession under an agreement making it optional with him to work the premises or not or to lease portions of them is bound to pay running expenses and apply the net profits on the debt. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

99. A mortgagee in possession because of default of the mortgagor is liable to account only for the rents and profits actually received. Wateon v. Perkins [Miss.] 40 So. 643.

1. A mortgagee in possession should be allowed cost of necessary and reasonable improvements and repairs, and for permanent improvements made with the consent of the nection with the property [2] in the absence of a contract therefor.[3] A mortgagee who has taken possession peaceably cannot be evicted until the debt is paid.[4] The only remedy by a mortgagor against a mortgagee in possession while the relation continues is a suit in equity.[5] A mortgagee in possession may hold adversely to the mortgagor,[6] but not so long as he holds with the consent of the mortgagor and under an agreement to apply profits on the debt [7] or the relation of mortgagee and mortgagor exists.[8]

§ 8. Lien and priorities.[9]—The liens of mortgages take priority according to the date of recordation [10] order on the register,[11] or lis pendens,[12] or in case of actual notice according to date of execution,[13] unless otherwise agreed upon.[14] A mortgagor. Gillett v. Romig [Okl.] 87 P. 325. A second mortgagee in possession is entitled to recover the amount advanced by him, together with taxes paid, repairs, and interest on other incumbrances, less rents and profits. Keeline v. Clark [Iowa] 106 N. W. 257. Where pursuant to agreement a mortgagee took possession and management of the mortgagor's business and applied the proceeds to the payment of his debt, he was entitled to interest paid by him and interest on his debt. Pomeroy v. Noud [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 401, 108 N. W. 498. Also on sums advanced by him in the conduct of the business. Id.

2. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93. A mortgagee in possession, collecting the rents and profits and applying them on the debt, is not entitled to compensation in the absence of contract. Gilluly v. Shumway, 144 Mich. 661, 13 Det. Leg. N. 316, 108 N. W. 88.

3. Where a mortgagee took possession and assumed management of the mortgagor's business and applied the proceeds to the payment of the debt, the fact that he furnished statements showing that he was charging for his services, and after the death of the mortgagor such statements were allowed by the administratrix, does not show an agreement to pay for such services. Pomeroy v. Noud [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 401, 108 N. W. 498. Held also that the mortgagee was not entitled to compensation after the death of the debtor. Id.

4. A mortgagee who enters peaceably under foreclosure proceeding cannot be dispossessed so long as the mortgage remains unsatisfied. Gillett v. Romig [Okl.] 87 P. 325. One who purchases from the purchaser at the sale stands in his shoes. Id. One in possession under a security deed cannot be evicted until the debt is paid. Hamilton v. Rogers [Ga.] 54 S. E. 926. A quiet and peaceable entry into possession of unoccupied land and the continued possession thereof by the mortgagee after condition broken is defense to ejectment by the mortgagor until the mortgage has been satisfied. Walters v. Chance [Kan.] 85 P. 779.

5. Nash v. Northwest Land Co. [N. D.] 108 N. W. 792.

6. Nash v. Northwest Land Co. [N. D.] 108 N. W. 792. Where one, who in good faith claims title under a void foreclosure sale, takes possession of the mortgaged premises under such claim with the consent of the mortgagor, although he is deemed a mortgagee in possession, his possession is adverse to the mortgagor. Id. Such adverse possession starts limitations against the remedies of the mortgagor. Id.

7. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

8. Gillett v. Romig [Okl.] 87 P. 325.

9. See 6 C. L. 695.

10. The legal fiction that there are no portions of a day does not preclude a determination of priority of mortgages executed and filed the same day. New England Mortg. Sec. Co. v. Fry, 143 Ala. 637, 42 So. 57.

11. Where two mortgages on the same land executed to different mortgagees are filed for record at the same time by the same person, priority is determined by order of number by the register. Edmonston v. Wilbur [Minn.] 110 N. W. 3, following Wolf v. Edmonston, 109 N. W. 233. The fact that one mortgage is dated several days before the other and is for a greater amount, and the other covers an additional tract of land, does not show that it was intended to make it prior to the other. Edmonston v. Wilbur [Minn.] 110 N. W. 3.

12. A lis pendens filed at the beginning of the suit makes a judgment in such suit prior to a mortgage subsequently executed. Barbour v. Patterson [Mich.] 108 N. W. 973.

13. Mortgage by heirs of a decedent held subject to his debts, whether they constituted valid judgment liens or not, especially where the mortgagee had notice of their existence. Lyons Nat. Bank v. Shuler, 101 N. Y. S. 62. One who takes a mortgage with notice that a prior one has not been regularly satisfied takes subsequent to such prior mortgage. Bank v. Doherty, 42 Wash. 317, 84 P. 872. Where a first mortgage does not constitute a lien on the homestead, but a second one does, it takes priority as to the homestead, though it recites that it is subject to the first mortgage. Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. McKay, 118 Ill. App. 586.

14. A trust deed executed by a cotenant to secure money to pay off vendor's liens on the land which had existed prior to the creation of the estate in common, and which provided that such liens were continued for further security, the lien so continued was superior to the lien of the grantor's cotenant on the grantor's share of the rents and profits which such cotenant had converted. Flach v. Zanderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 540, 91 S. W. 348. Where the owner of two tracts incumbered by a mortgage executed a second mortgage on one of such tracts and covenanted in effect to discharge the first mortgage, held, as between the parties, the mortgagee acquired the equitable right to have the burden of the first mortgage cast on the other tract. Jamaica Sav. Bank v. Butler [Vt.] 65 A. 92. After a decree adjudging that a will devised land to two persons in fee, the devisees partitioned and one conveyed to the other. The decree was subsequently reversed and the devisee mortgage takes precedence over the claims of general creditors whether created prior or subsequent to the execution of the mortgage.[15] One who furnishes money to redeem land from execution sale, and takes a mortgage on the premises under an agreement that he is to have a first lien, has a lien superior to that of the mortgagee inuring to him by reason of redemption.[16] The lien is extinguished by foreclosure sale and is not revived by redemption.[17] A mechanic's lien duly filed takes precedence over a mortgage subsequently executed by the owner.[18] Otherwise, if statutory requirements are not complied with,[19] the lien becomes subject to a mechanic's lien where the lien of the mortgage covers other property which is released after the mechanic's liens attach, though the released property is insufficient to satisfy the mortgage.[20]

§ 9. Assignments of mortgages.[21]—A mortgage may be assigned by mere delivery,[22] and an equitable assignment may result from a void foreclosure[23] or other transaction from which an intent to assign may be inferred.[24] An intention to who sold was adjudged to have only a life estate. Held that the lien of the grantee for the purchase price paid was subsequent to a mortgage executed by the grantor on his interest. Ure v. Ure, 223 Ill. 454, 79 N. E. 153. The holders of notes secured by a trust deed may by agreement and without consent of the maker postpone the lien thereof to an otherwise subsequent lien. Jackson v. Grosser, 121 Ill. App. 363.

15. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 125 Ga. 463, 54 S. E. 138.

16. New England Mortg. Sec. Co. v. Fry, 143 Ala. 637, 42 So. 57. But one who acquires rights under him must apply rents and profits to the payment of his debt. Id.

17. Barry v. Harnesberger [C. C. A.] 148 F. 346.

18. Hahn v. Bonacum [Neb.] 107 N. W. 1001. Where one contracted for the erection of a building on a lot which he did not own but afterwards purchased, and a deed to him and mortgage back were delivered simultaneously in order to prevent a mechanic's lien from attaching, his seisin must have been instantaneous and the deed and mortgage must have been part of the same transaction. Libbey v. Tidden [Mass.] 78 N. E. 313. Evidence sufficient to show that they were not parts of the same transaction. Id. Where one contracted for the erection of a building on land which he did not own, but which he subsequently purchased, and gave a mortgage back, and his seisin was not instantaneous in law, the lien of mechanics for the erection of the building was prior to the mortgage, though the contract for the erection of the building was not ratified by the purchaser. Id. Where an owner contracted for the erection of a building on his premises and subsequently sold them, taking a mortgage back, and at the time of the sale he knew that work was being done under the contract by subcontractors, the lien of the mortgage was held subject to mechanics' liens. McCormack v. Butland, 191 Mass. 424, 77 N. E. 761. Where a building loan agreement did not provide that a mortgage executed at the same time should constitute a first lien, when part of the loan was used to pay off a first mortgage, the interest of the mortgagee was liable for the lien of materialmen who relied on the agreement that the entire loan should be used in the completion of the building under construction. Pennsylvania Steel Co. v. Title Guaranty & Trust Co., 50 Misc. 51, 100 N. Y. S. 299. Contract for the sale of building in process of construction, whereby the purchaser was required to advance funds to complete the building, held not a building loan agreement within Laws 1897, p. 525, c. 418, § 21, which it is necessary to file in order to give it priority over mechanic's lien notice. Id.

19. Where one cotenant sold the land and took a mortgage to secure part of the purchase price for the benefit of all cotenants, and failed to post the statutory notice prior to the erection of building by the vendee, his interest in the mortgage was subject to the lien of mechanics acquired in the construction of such buildings. Seely v. Neill [Colo.] 86 P. 334. The lien of other cotenants who had no notice of the construction of such buildings was not. Id.

20. McCarthy v. Miller, 122 Ill. App. 299.

21. See 6 C. L. 695.

22. Laws 1899, p. 340, c. 168, relative to recording assignments of mortgages, does not prevent transfer and assignment by delivery. Anthony v. Brennan [Kan.] 87 P. 1136.

23. A sale under a void foreclosure, where the premises have been bid in for the full amount of the debt, operates as an equitable assignment of the mortgage. Nash v. Northwest Land Co. [N. D.] 108 N. W. 792.

24. Where one advanced money to a debtor to take up a trust deed and took no security from such debtor but made the advancement for the purpose of taking an assignment of the security, held to vest him with an equitable title to the security, though the note and mortgage were by mistake marked "paid" by the original owner. Sprague v. Lovett [S. D.] 106 N. W. 134. The execution of a satisfaction piece and delivery of the mortgage is sufficient to transfer title, and the rights of an assignee who has notice of such facts and of a prior agreement to deliver are subject to the rights of him to whom the satisfaction piece is delivered. Urbansky v. Shirmer, 111 App. Div. 50, 97 N. Y. S. 577. Where heirs of an intestate paid a mortgage on the family residence of their ancestor and had the note and mortgage assigned to their sister, they became equitable assignees of the note and mortgage. In re Heeney's Estate [Cal. App.] 86 P. 842.

transfer it is essential.[25] A deed by a purchaser at a void foreclosure sale and subsequent deeds by his grantee operates as an assignment of the mortgage,[26] but a conveyance of the mortgaged premises by the mortgagee to a third person does not operate as an assignment as against third persons.[27] The assignment must be made by one with power to assign.[28] An assignment of the mortgage must be recorded to protect the assignee.[29] A mortgage is not a negotiable instrument and an assignee takes subject to equitable defenses available to the maker,[30] especially when the assignee has notice of such defenses.[31] A mortgagee may by agreement fix the rights of his assignees of the notes secured to the mortgage security, and such agreement may be inferred from circumstances surrounding the transfer.[32] The assignment of a void mortgage to an innocent purchaser does not give it validity,[33] but a mortgage which constitutes a mere scroll may be enforceable by an assignee.[34] Where an assignee of the mortgage takes it as collateral and forecloses it, he holds the mortgagor's title for his own benefit and not as trustee for the mortgagee.[35] The pledgee of a mortgage note has the same rights of enforcement that the pledgor had.[36]

§ 10. Transfer of title of mortgagor and assumption of the debt.[37]—As a general rule a subsequent purchaser or lessee of mortgaged property takes subject to the mortgage,[38] yet, if the mortgage authorizes the mortgagor to make such sale or lease for the benefit of the mortgagee, such sale or lease is binding on the mortgagee and those claiming under him.[39]

Assumption of the mortgage.[40]—A purchaser who does not assume the mortgage does not become personally liable for the debt.[41] Where one purchases land incumbered with three mortgages and two record judgments and agrees to pay such

25. Where after sale under a trust deed and cancellation of the note secured one purchased the note, he acquired no title to the deed of trust entitling him to participate in the proceeds of a second sale after the first was set aside. Polliham v. Reveley [Mo. App.] 93 S. W. 829.

26. Nash v. Northwest Land Co. [N. D.] 108 N. W. 792. One who purchases a mortgage after maturity from the original mortgagee after a void foreclosure sale acquires no rights as against one in possession of the premises who by virtue of purchase from a purchaser at the foreclosure sale is an equitable assignee of the mortgage. Id.

27. This is the rule in jurisdictions where a mortgage creates only a lien. Noble v. Watkins [Or.] 87 P. 771.

28. A transfer of a mortgage loan by a building and loan association to another association is ultra vires. Cobe v. Lovan, 193 Mo. 235, 92 S. W. 93.

29. Where before an assignment was recorded the premises were sold and the mortgagee gave a release and defaulted, the assignee was without remedy against the purchaser, though the release was not recorded before the assignment was. Marling v. Nommensen, 127 Wis. 363, 106 N. W. 844. An assignee who fails to record his assignment may not recover from a purchaser of the premises who pays the debt to his assignor. Barry v. Stover [S. D.] 107 N. W. 672.

30. Gen. St. p. 2108, § 31, expressly provides that the assignee of a bond and mortgage takes subject to the equities of the mortgagor. Black v. Thurston [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 999. The assignee of a non-negotiable note cannot enforce it if the mortgage by which it is secured is based on an illegal consideration. Henry v. State Bank of Laurens [Iowa] 107 N. W. 1034. The assignee takes subject to equitable defenses available against his assignor prior to notice of the assignment. This is the rule prescribed by Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 81. Barry v. Stover [S. D.] 107 N. W. 672.

31. An assignee of a mortgage who takes with notice that it has been satisfied acquires no rights. Black v. Thurston [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 999.

32. Preston v. Morsman [Neb.] 106 N. W. 320.

33. Lowe v. Walker, 77 Ark. 103, 91 S. W. 22.

34. A mortgage delivered to one for the purpose of raising money for the mortgagor becomes valid in the hands of the assignee of the person to whom it is given, although the money received for it is not turned over to the mortgagor. Bogert v. Stevens [N. J. Err. & App.] 63 A. 246.

35. Anderson v. Messinger [C. C. A.] 146 F. 929.

36. Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Johnston, 117 La. 880, 42 So. 357. See, also, Pledges, 6 C. L. 1065.

37. See 6 C. L. 697.

38, 39. Sammons v. Kearney Power & Irr. Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 308.

40. See 6 C. L. 697.

41. Rabb v. Texas Loan & Inv. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 618, 96 S. W. 77. Where a contract for the sale of the mortgaged premises recited the amount of the mortgage and that the grantee agreed to pay it as part of the purchase price, where he elected to pay the entire purchase price in cash as between himself and the vendor, he never became liable for the mortgage. Marling v. Nommensen, 127 Wis. 363, 106 N. W. 844.

incumbrances as part of the purchase price, and does pay off one mortgage, he is not entitled to enjoin a sheriff's sale under the judgments to be made subject to the two unpaid mortgages only,[42] nor is he entitled to have the paid mortgage which has been satisfied of record revived for his protection, nor is he entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee thereunder.[43] A purchaser who assumes the mortgage is bound by all facts concerning it of which he is charged with notice.[44]

Status of the mortgagor as surety.[45]—A purchaser who assumes the mortgage becomes principal debtor, the mortgagor a surety.[46]

§ 11. Transfer of premises to mortgagee and merger.[47]—A contract by which the mortgagor agrees to sell his equity to the mortgagee must be definite and certain[48] and be based on a sufficient consideration.[49] Such agreements are viewed with distrust[50] and will not be effective if the consideration is grossly inadequate, or it appears that advantage was taken of the mortgagor.[51] Where by express stipulation the legal title is conveyed to the trustee in a trust mortgage, the trustee may, with the consent of the mortgagor, convey such title to the mortgagee in satisfaction of the debt.[52] A provision in an insurance policy on mortgaged premises, that the mortgagee shall notify the insurance company of any change of ownership, does not contemplate a quit claim deed to the mortgagee.[53]

Where the holder of a mortgage acquires title to the mortgaged premises, a merger results.[54] The question of merger is one of intention,[55] and will take place

42. Kuhn v. Nat. Bank of Holton [Kan.] 87 P. 551.

43. Kuhn v. Nat. Bank of Holton [Kan.] 87 P. 551. This is so whether or not he had actual knowledge of the existence of the judgments at the time he purchased or paid the mortgage, as he is charged with notice by the records. Id.

44. Where the record showed the rate of interest the secured notes ordinarily drew, a purchaser of the mortgaged premises who assumed the mortgage was liable on a provision for increased interest after maturity and for interest on overdue interest payments, though such provision was not recorded. Hinricks v. Brady [S. D.] 108 N. W. 332.

45. See 6 C. L. 698.

46. Wonderly v. Giessler, 118 Mo. App. 708, 93 S. W. 1130.

47. See 6 C. L. 698.

48. Evidence of an agreement between mortgagor and mortgagee for a deed to the mortgage on his expressing a desire to take stone from the premises and of other acts held insufficient to show an oral agreement for the purchase of the mortgagor's equity prior to the time a bond for a deed was executed. Taber v. City of Boston, 190 Mass. 101, 76 N. E. 727. Evidence of conversations between mortgagors and mortgagee, relative to a transfer of the property to the mortgagee, held insufficient to show a completed contract cutting of the right to redeem. Ferguson v. Boyd [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 549. A consent decree that one has an equity to redeem, and in case of failure to do so within a specified time he should stand disbarred, is not a contract for the purchase of the equity of redemption. Bunn v. Braswell, 142 N. C. 113, 55 S. E. 85.

49. Where it appeared that a mortgagor was entitled to credits nearly sufficient to discharge the mortgage debt, an agreement to surrender his right to redeem for a release of the mortgage was without consideration. Ferguson v. Boyd [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 549.

50. Collins v. Denny Clay Co., 41 Wash. 136, 82 P. 1012.

51. Collins v. Denny Clay Co., 41 Wash. 136, 82 P. 1012. A mortgagor surrendered his equity of redemption valued at $27,000 for a debt of $3,000. Id.

52. Kirkendall v. Weatherley [Neb.] 109 N. W. 757.

53. Fort Scott Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Palatine Ins. Co. [Kan.] 86 P. 142.

54. Wonderly v. Giessler, 118 Mo. App. 708, 93 S. W. 1130. Where the mortgagee becomes owner of the mortgaged premises, a merger results unless a contrary intention is apparent. Evidence held to show a merger. Townsend v. Provident Realty Co., 110 App. Div. 226, 96 N. Y. S. 1091. A statement by a mortgagee after he acquired title that a second mortgage was the only one on the premises is admissible. Id. Where the holder of two mortgages forecloses the senior one and purchases the property at the sale and does nothing to protect his rights under the junior one, the lien of such mortgagor is extinguished. Henry v. Maack [Iowa] 110 N. W. 469. And where the mortgagor quitclaims to one who redeems from such sale, such grantee may rely on his quitclaim deed to protect him against the lien of such second mortgage, though he has orally agreed with the mortgagor to pay it. Id.

55. Whether a merger results where a deed of trust is executed to the mortgagee securing the mortgage debt and other indebtedness, depends on the intention of the parties. Crisman v. Lanterman [Cal.] 87 P. 89. The conveyance by a mortgagor to the mortgagee does not operate as a merger unless so intended. Moffet v. Farwell, 222 Ill 543, 78 N. E. 925. There can be no merger where the intention to keep the two estates separate can be inferred or has been expressed. Topliff v. Richardson [Neb.] 107 N. W. 114.

as the mortgagee may desire or his interests require.[56] It is presumed that a merger was not intended when the mortgage is essential to the security of the mortgagee as against intervening liens.[57]

§ 12. Payment, release or satisfaction.[58]—Payment of the debt extinguishes the mortgage without surrender thereof.[59] An unconditional tender on the day the debt falls due discharges the lien of the mortgage.[60] What will constitute payment sometimes rests in the terms of the mortgage.[61] Whether or not the debt has been paid may be a question of fact.[62] One may be estopped to deny payment.[63] Payment may be made to the agent of the holder of the mortgage,[64] but the debtor

56. Fort Scott Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Palatine Ins. Co., Ltd. [Kan.] 86 P. 142. An intention that no merger shall take place may be inferred from the fact that it would be to the interest of the mortgagee that it should not. Townsend v. Provident Realty Co., 110 App. Div. 226, 96 N. Y. S. 1091. Where a mortgagee is secured in part by an insurance policy issued to the mortgagor, and the mortgagee acquires title and holds it as security, the mortgage is not merged in the fee so as to relieve the insurance company from liability. Fort Scott Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Palatine Ins. Co., Ltd. [Kan.] 86 P. 142. Where a grantee of mortgaged premises executed a deed of trust to the mortgagor to secure the mortgage debt and other indebtedness, which provided that in case a sale of such premises did not bring enough to pay the debts the creditor might enforce his rights as if the deed had not been executed and the mortgagor consented to the giving of such deed, the mortgage was not merged in the deed. Crisman v. Lanterman [Cal.] 87 P. 89. A deed under which one does not claim title will not merge a security deed held by him. Hamilton v. Rogers [Ga.] 54 S. E. 926.

57. Such presumption is not overcome by the fact that the mortgagee surrenders and cancels the note and mortgage. Moffet v. Farwell, 222 Ill. 543, 78 N. E. 925. There is no merger where the property subject to a subsequent attachment lien is transferred to the mortgagee through a third person. Katz v. Obenchain [Or.] 85 P. 617.

58. See 6 C. L. 699.

59. Where a conveyance given to secure a loan provided for reconveyance by the trustee on payment of such loan, a satisfaction of such debt duly recorded by the trustee discharges the lien, though the mortgage was not surrendered, and an assignee is estopped to assert a lien. McVay v. Tousley [S. D.] 105 N. W. 932.

60. Dickerson v. Simmone, 141 N. C. 325, 53 S. E. 850.

61. Where one taking an insurance agency executed a mortgage to secure advances from the company, such advances to be repaid out of commissions, and not to constitute a personal liability, the agent made a reasonable effort to conduct the business. The agency contract did not state when it was to terminate. The agent resigned leaving the mortgage unpaid. Held the obligation to pay not being absolute and the discretion to resign having been reasonably exercised, the resignation discharged the mortgage. Security Trust & Life Ins. Co. v. Ellsworth [Wis.] 109 N. W. 125. Where a mortgage to husband and wife provided for payment to the mortgagees, their heirs or assigns, and also for payment within five years after the death of the mortgagees, payment to be made to the heirs equally on the death of the wife, the husband satisfied the mortgage, held valid as against the heirs. Heilig v. Heilig [Pa.] 64 A. 442. Where a mortgage is past due at a time suit is brought to compel satisfaction thereof on payment of an alleged balance, which was found as claimed, it was improper to give judgment requiring satisfaction on payment of such amount into court without fixing the time of payment. Frutig v. Trafton, 2 Cal. App. 47, 83 P. 70.

62. Evidence sufficient to show that the debt had not been paid, though many years overdue and no interest had ever been paid and no steps ever taken to foreclose it. Edmonston v. Wilbur [Minn.] 110 N. W. 3. Evidence held to show that a mortgage debt had not been entirely paid and that there was a balance due. Ladd v. Lookout Distilling Co. [Ala.] 40 So. 610. Evidence insufficient to show that a mortgage debt had been paid. Becker v. Bluemel [Wis.] 109 N. W. 534. Evidence insufficient to show that a mortgage debt had been paid. Lefmann v. Brill. 142 F. 44. In a suit for accounting between a mortgagee as to transactions with the deceased mortgagor, evidence held insufficient to show that a mortgage debt had been paid by a subsequent mortgage (Morris v. Anderson, 142 Mich. 279, 12 Det. Leg. N. 709, 105 N. W. 773), or to show that certain alleged payments were made by the mortgagor (Id.). The fact that the instrument is in the possession of the maker after the death of the payee raises no presumption of payment where it appears that he is the prospective administrator of the payee and took possession of his papers immediately after his death. Ward v. Ward, 144 F. 308.

63. An owner who represents that a mortgage has been paid for the purpose of misleading another is estopped to assert that it is not paid. Deering v. Schreyer, 110 App. Div. 200, 97 N. Y. S. 14. A mortgagee who subsequently took a trust deed on the same property to secure the mortgage debt and other indebtedness and who sold the property for sufficient to pay all the debts, and released the mortgage, is estopped to deny the validity of the release where he applied part of the proceeds to the payment of other debts. Crisman v. Lanterman [Cal.] 87 P. 89

64. A payment to one authorized by power of attorney to receive money that may become due to him as trustee and guardian is sufficient, though the power of attorney gives other powers that cannot be delegated and the mortgagor was not required to see that the amount was properly applied. Forbes v. Reynard, 49 Misc. 154, 98 N. Y. S. 708. Payment to mortgagee after he had assigned the mortgage and recorded the assignment held sufficient under the circumstances of this should satisfy himself that he has authority to receive payment.[65] Payments made in good faith and not disaffirmed may be binding, though not made to an agent empowered to receive them,[66] and especially so when by taking a judgment the principal estops himself.[67] In the case of a mortgage to the "heirs" of husband and wife, the children alone can release the debt; the surviving husband has no such power.[68] A tender by a stranger does not affect the lien or priority of the mortgage,[69] nor is it satisfied by a mere promise.[70] A morgtage is not discharged by the adjudication and discharge in bankruptcy of the mortgagor.[71] The application of payments may be made as the debtor directs.[72]

A release is to be construed as other written instruments are.[73] A release procured by misrepresentation may be annulled.[74] Under some circumstances the discharge of a mortgage may be ineffectual.[75] It is presumed after a considerable lapse of time that marginal entries of the satisfaction of mortgages were made in compliance with law.[76] A third encumbrancee who redeems from the first mortgage need not take any assignment thereof in order to protect his rights against one with notice.[77] A mortgage lien may be released by the bar of limitations.[78]

Penalties for failure to release.[79]—To entitle a mortgagor to recover the statutory penalty for failure to discharge the mortgage of record, he must show that it has been fully paid.[80] case. Bettle v. Fiedgen [Neb.] 110 N. W. 548.

65. Payment to one who had previously been the mortgagor's agent, but who at the time did not have the securities, held not to constitute payment. Hughes v. Clifton [Ala.] 41 So. 998.

66, 67. In judicially canceling an assignment by mortgagee's agent for his private use, the interest paid to the agent should be accounted and the mortgagor joined, else on foreclosure such interest cannot be recovered. Union Trust Co. v. Cain, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 189; Union Trust Co. v. Cain, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 197.

68. Heilig v. Heilig, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 396.

69. Where a court authorized a lunatic's money to be invested in a first mortgage, but the committee invested in a second mortgage, a tender by the sureties of the committee of the amount of the first mortgage does not extinguish the lien or affect its priority. Graffiin v. State, 103 Md. 171, 63 A. 373.

70. A mere promise by a creditor to a husband who is sole debtor and holder of title to a mortgaged homestead that the former will forbear for a term of years to enforce past due obligations if the latter promptly pays semi-annual instalments of interest at a greater rate than that reserved does not operate to discharge the lien of the mortgage. McKinley-Lanning Loan & Trust Co. v. Johnson [Neb.] 105 N. W. 899.

71. Security Sav. Bank v. Scott [Cal. App.] 86 P. 903. Where a mortgagor's wife signs a mortgage containing an express agreement on her part to pay the debt, she is not discharged by his adjudication and discharge as a bankrupt. Id.

72. Where a mortgagor assigned a claim to a mortgage under an agreement that it was to be applied on the mortgage, which agreement was later modified so that it should be applied on a general indebtedness, the mortgagee was not estopped as against a subsequent mortgagee from applying the proceeds according to the modified agreement on the grounds that the representation was not made to the subsequent mortgagee and was merely a promissory statement. Weidemann v. Springfield Breweries Co., 78 Conn. 660, 63 A. 162. Where the money was applied on the general indebtedness without notice to the mortgagor of other mortgages, a second mortgagee was not entitled to have it otherwise applied. Id.

73. Where a mortgage covered two lots and the mortgagor sold one with an appurtenant right of way over the other, a release by the mortgagee of the mortgage on the lot conveyed, together with "appurtenances" thereto belonging, does not extend the easement over his legal estate in the other lot. Hazeldine v. McVey, 67 N. J. Eq. 275, 63 A. 165.

74. Where some of several mortgagors paid the debt and over their objection the mortgage was released on the claim that it would have no effect, such parties may have the release annulled. Where cotenants gave a mortgage. Parsons v. Urie [Md.] 64 A. 927.

75. Where payment is accepted by an agent in a manner in which he had no authority to accept, and subsequent mortgagees have notice that in fact the first mortgage is not paid. Becker v. Bluemel [Wis.] 109 N. W. 534. Mortgage held not satisfied by payment of the debt. Pellerin v. Sanders, 116 La. 616, 40 So. 917.

76. Metz v. Wright, 116 Mo. App. 631, 92 S. W. 1125.

77. Malmberg v. Peterson [S. D.] 108 N. W. 339.

78. Where a judgment lienor's lien is barred and suits to revive it were void, he has no interest in the property and need not be joined in an action to set aside a release of the mortgage. Lawrence County Bank v. Lambert, 116 Mo. App. 620, 92 S. W. 755.

79. See 6 C. L. 701.

80. That there is a balance due, however small, is a defense. Smith v. Bank of En-

§ 13. Redemption[81] from the mortgage should not be confused with redemption from the sale on foreclosure.[82] The right is incident to a mortgage[83] and exists till it is foreclosed,[84] and it extends beyond the mortgagor to all who claim under or through him.[85] A cotenant in the equity of redemption has the same right to redeem that his grantor has.[86] Creditors of a fraudulent grantor may redeem from an innocent mortgagee of the fraudulent grantee.[87] As to the mortgagor, the right to redeem is the right to pay the mortgage debt as soon as it is due and thus to relieve his land from the lien of the mortgage.[88] The mortgagor's wife, when made a party to foreclosure during her husband's life time, may redeem pendente lite.[89] A dowress may redeem before assignment of dower.[90] So far as concerns the strict right of redemption, the interests of heirs not made parties by a dowress seeking redemption need not be considered,[91] but a dowress cannot be subjected to mortgages or debts which did not bind her interest.[92] Laches[93] will bar the right, and the right to redeem and the right to foreclose being reciprocal, when the latter is barred by limitations, the former is also barred;[94] but when a mortgagor is not made a party to a foreclosure proceeding, his right to redeem is not limited to the statutory period,[95] nor is it so limited where the foreclosure was void.[96] Where the mortgagee is in possession with the consent of the mortgagor, the statute does not begin to run in favor of the mortgagee until he has asserted an adverse claim.[97] Redemption from a deed absolute is not a suit specially limited as one to "enforce a contract to convey."[98] If the property has appreciated after a foreclosure which omitted one entitled to redeem, the redemptor may be subjected to such conditions as make equity;[99] but a deficiency resulting from foreclosure of other lands cannot be charged against him.[1]

Procedure to redeem.[2]—The only function of an action to redeem is to adjust the equities of the parties.[3] Where it appears that the deed was intended as a mortgage, equity will decree a reconveyance on accounting and settlement.[4] A judgment terprise [Ala.] 42 So. 551. Nonpayment of the recording fee which he had agreed to pay is a defense. Id.

81. See 6 C. L. 701.

82. See Foreclosure of Mortgages on Land, 7 C. L. 1678.

83. MacKenna v. Fidelity Trust Co., 184 N. Y. 411, 77 N. E. 721.

84. In suit to redeem, evidence held not to sustain defense that mortgage had been foreclosed by sale under power of sale. Zimmerman Mfg. Co. v. Pugh [Ala.] 39 So. 989.

85. To wife of owner. MacKenna v. Fidelity Trust Co., 184 N. Y. 411, 77 N. E. 721.

86. Dickerson v. Simmons, 141 N. C. 325, 53 S. E. 850.

87. Gilcreast v. Bartlett [N. H.] 64 A. 767.

88, 89. MacKenna v. Fidelity Trust Co., 184 N. Y. 411, 77 N. E. 721.

90, 91. Hays v. Cretin, 102 Md. 695, 62 A. 1028.

92. Second mortgages in which she did not join and simple contract debts due the paramount mortgagee. Hays v. Cretin, 102 Md. 695, 62 A. 1028.

93. Suit to redeem from mortgage by deed absolute held not barred by laches. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

94. Rule applied to suit to declare a deed absolute a mortgage and to redeem, the right to foreclose being barred under Hurd's Stat. c. 83, § 11, on account of the fact that the debt was barred. Caraway v. Sly, 122 Ill. App. 648.

95. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Stryker [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 245.

96. Ann. Code 1892, § 2732, providing that an action to recover from a mortgagee in possession after default must be brought within ten years, does not apply to one in possession under a void foreclosure sale. Woods v. Campbell, 87 Miss. 782, 40 So. 874.

97. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93; Hunter v. Coffman [Kan.] 86 P. 451. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 346, suit against mortgagee in possession may be brought at any time unless mortgagee has had five years' adverse possession. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

98. Suit to redeem from mortgage by deed absolute after death of grantee not barred by Code Civ. Proc. § 1597, relating to contracts to convey where there was no written contract to reconvey. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

99. Dowress was allowed to choose between taking her dower and taking the value thereof with the right to full redemption if the foreclosure purchaser refused to do either. MacKenna v. Fidelity Trust Co., 184 N. Y. 411, 77 N. E. 721.

1. MacKenna v. Fidelity Trust Co., 184 N. Y. 411, 77 N. E. 721.

2. See 6 C. L. 701.

3. The holder of a judgment lien on the premises is not a necessary party. Kelso v. Norton [Kan.] 87 P. 184.

4. De Bartlett v. De Wilson [Fla.] 42 So. 189. Where a deed is declared a mortgage in a suit in which the mortgagee denied that it was so intended, the mortgagee was entitled to interest on the amount found due decreeing a deed to be a mortgage and directing reconveyance on payment of the debt is not defective for failing to fix the time of payment.[5] In an action to redeem from a void foreclosure, the equities of the parties will be adjusted as if no foreclosure had ever taken place.[6] Where the mortgagor's wife is not made a party, she may enforce her right to redeem, after foreclosure and sale, by a suit in equity.[7] The suit must be for total redemption,[8] but the owner of only a portion of the redeemable premises may sue to redeem.[9] Where, therefore, separate properties owned by separate parties are mortgaged to secure the same debt, all of such parties may join in a suit to reedeem.[10] The suit is not one on a "claim" making the mortgagor an incompetent witness against the mortgagee's personal representative.[11] A decree in a suit to redeem that there has been no sale, and that complainant is entitled to redeem, is final so as to be appealable, though a reference is ordered to ascertain the amount due.[12] A tender into court on an offer to redeem is not necessary unless so required by statute.[13] But the debtor must be able and willing to pay,[14] and he is required to pay interest to the day of tender on the amount decreed to be due,[15] but not personal expenses of a mortgagee in possession,[16] or compensation of the mortgagee's agent.[17] The tender under a security deed absolute may be conditioned upon a reconveyance.[18] On redeeming from such a mortgage, a grantee who sells the premises is not chargeable with a sum in excess of what he received on the ground of dereliction of duty.[19]

§ 14. Subrogation[20] exists only where the payer has an equity to reimbursement from the land.[21] If the mortgagor fails to redeem, anyone claiming under him may redeem and thus be subrogated to his rights,[22] the subrogation in such case being treated as an assignment to the extent that may be necessary for the ade-less costs awarded to plaintiff from date of judgment to date of tender or foreclosure. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

5. The court still has control of the case and can protect the rights of the parties. Crockett's Guardian v. Waller [Ky.] 29 Ky. L. R. 1155, 96 S. W. 860.

6. Kelso v. Norton [Kan.] 87 P. 184. In a suit by a mortgagor to redeem from the mortgagee where he had not been made a party to foreclosure proceedings, he is entitled to have determined between himself, the mortgagee, and purchaser at the sale, an issue as to taxes, rents, and improvements. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Stryker [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 245.

7. MacKenna v. Fidelity Trust Co., 184 N. Y. 411, 77 N. E. 721, afg. 90 N. Y. S. 493.

8, 9. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

10. Redemption from mortgage by deed absolute. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93. This rule was not changed by Code Civ. Proc. § 347, relating to the case where there was more than one mortgagor or more than one claiming under a mortgagor "some of whom are not entitled," etc. Id.

11. Code Civ. Proc. § 1880, rendering plaintiff, in an action upon certain "claims" against the estate of a decedent, incompetent to testify as to transactions occurring during decedent's life, does not apply to a suit to redeem from a mortgage by deed absolute. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

12. Zimmerman Mfg. Co. v. Pugh [Ala.] 39 So. 989.

13. Dickerson v. Simmons, 141 N. C. 325, 53 S. E. 850.

14. Dickerson v. Simmons, 141 N. C. 325, 53 S. E. 850. Whether a tender of the mortgage debt was made and kept good on an offer to redeem held a question for the jury. Id.

15. Upon redemption being allowed, defendant is entitled to interest on the amount adjudged to be due, less costs allowed plaintiff from date of judgment to payment or tender thereor. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

16. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

17. Where the mortgagee in possession makes, with authority of mortgagor, an agreement with a third party to manage the property, compensation for such management to be chargeable solely to the property, the amount of such compensation need not be included in a tender, but the property may be redeemed subject to the claim for such compensation. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

18. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

19. Sengel v. Patrick [Ark.] 97 S. W. 448.

20. See 6 C. L. 702. See, also, Subrogation, 6 C. L. 1581.

21. Where the purchase price has been used in the payment of pre-existing mortgages, which were extinguished and canceled on the record, such payment gives no right of subrogation to the purchaser or his assigns, since the price thus used was the money of the vendor. Abbeville Rice Mill v. Shambaugh, 115 La. 1047, 40 So. 453.

22. MacKenna v. Fidelity Trust Co., 184 N. Y. 411, 77 N. E. 721. Any person having the right to redeem and who actually does redeem is subrogated to the lien of the mortgage and may hold the land until he is reimbursed to the extent of the amount paid in redemption. Hays v. Cretin, 102 Md. 695, 62 A. 1028.

quate protection of the redemptioner's rights and interests,[23] hence, a junior encumbrancer who redeems from the senior mortgage is subrogated to all the rights of the prior lien holder.[24] One who pays off and has discharged an incumbrance is not entitled to subrogation,[25] and one who insists on the execution of a void mortgage in satisfaction of an existing one is not subrogated to rights under the latter.[26] A purchaser at a void foreclosure sale who pays the amount of the debt becomes subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee.[27] One who in good faith assumes a mortgage on land to which he has no title, but in good faith believes that he has, becomes equitable owner of the mortgage and the same constitutes a lien on the land.[28] Where cotenants give a mortgage and it is satisfied by one, he is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee.[29] Where a receiver was appointed to collect rents and profits and apply them to the payment of mortgage debts, one who had paid interest to prevent foreclosure was entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee and receive interest.[30]

MOTIONS AND ORDERS.

Making, submitting and filing motion.[32]—It is essential that a motion proper be made; the entry of an order cannot be considered as the making of a motion.[33]

Notice [34] is generally required,[35] especially where the applicant is a stranger to the action.[36] An order to show cause may be granted for the purpose of bringing a motion before the courts more speedily than it could be done by ordinary notice,[37] and the propriety of dispensing with the usual notice is a discretionary matter [38] and must be determined on the applicant's ex parte showing.[39] When a motion is brought before the court by an order to show cause, and the opposing party appears, and opposes the motion on the merits without making any claim that he has not had sufficient time to prepare for the hearing, it is improper to deny the motion on the ground that the order to show cause was improvidently issued.[40] The manner of giving notice is largely statutory.[41]

Hearing and rehearing and relief.[42]—The conduct of hearing on motions is largely within the judicial discretion.[43] The court may require a motion involving

23. MacKenna v. Fidelity Trust Co., 184 N. Y. 411, 77 N. E. 721.
24. Rev. Civ. Code, § 2035. Malmberg v. Peterson [S. D.] 108 N. W. 339.
25. Ramoneda Bros. v. Loggins [Miss.] 42 So. 669.
26. Where an unauthorized mortgage was executed by a guardian to secure money to pay off a prior incumbrance, the mortgagee who insisted on a new mortgage was not entitled to subrogation to the rights of the prior mortgagee. Chapin v. Garrison, 193 Mo. 92, 92 S. W. 368.
27. Hamilton v. Rogers [Ga.] 54 S. E. 926. One who purchases on foreclosure of a deed of trust is subrogated to the rights of the grantee in such deed as against other incumbrances. Ramoneda Bros. v. Loggins [Miss.] 39 So. 1007.
28. Taylor v. Roniger [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 994, 110 N. W. 503.
29. Parsons v. Urie [Md.] 64 A. 927.
30. Sampers v. Conolly, 100 N. Y. S. 806.
31. This topic does not treat of particular motions, but only of matters common to all. See New Trial and Arrest of Judgment, 6 C. L. 796; Pleadings, 6 C. L. 1008; Process, 6 C. L. 1078, etc.
32. See 6 C. L. 702.
33. So held that where a party's attorney, supposing that a motion or a new trial had been made, caused an order denying such motion to be entered. Koeppel v. Koeppel, 49 Misc. 218, 97 N. Y. S. 401.
34. See 6 C. L. 702.
35. After defendants have appeared and filed and served their answers, no order allowing an amendment of a complaint can be granted, except upon notice to the defendants. Luckey v. Mockridge, 112 App. Div. 199, 98 N. Y. S. 335.
36. A stranger to an action cannot procure an ex parte order. Order to obtain is void. Kerns v. Morgan, 11 Idaho, 572, 83 P. 954.
37, 38, 39, 40. Gilbreath v. Teufel [N. D.] 107 N. W. 49.
41. Code Civ. Proc. § 797, providing for service of notice or other papers through the post office, directed to the person to be served at his place of residence according to the best information to be obtained concerning the same, has no application to service on a nonresident of the state. Gottlieb v. Kurlander, 101 N. Y. S. 751.
42. See 6 C. L. 703.
43. Goodwin v. Blanchard, 73 N. H. 550, 64 A. 22.

an issue of fact to be heard upon affidavits only, and its ruling will not be set aside unless it is clear that in the particular case it abused its discretion.[44] It may require the moving party to present his whole case at once and decline to receive affidavits or other proof in rebuttal of counter affidavits.[45] It may cause persons who have made ex parte affidavits in support of a motion to be brought before it and examined orally with respect to statements made in their affidavits and how they came to give them, for the purpose of testing their knowledge or credibility,[46] though it would seem that the practice, commonly recognized and frequently fixed by rule of court of only receiving affidavits, should not be departed from unless it be in exceptional cases and to avoid a miscarriage of justice.[47] It is not within the trial court's power to require persons who have made ex parte affidavits, either in support or in opposition to a motion, to give additional affidavits.[48] Counter affidavits on the merits cannot be received on a motion to open a default.[49] The postponement of the hearing on the motion is largely discretionary with the court.[50] Discontinuance of a motion is waived by proceeding to a hearing on the merits.[51]

Renewals.[52]—A motion, once made on notice and denied by the court, may not be renewed without leave of the court, either upon the same papers, or upon additional facts existing at the time the prior motion was made, or upon substantially the same facts.[53] A motion, however, based upon facts subsequently arising, or upon the ground that the former order was obtained by fraud or collusion, may be made as a matter of right without leave of court.[54] Leave to renew on the ground of surprise is properly denied, no objection or claim of surprise having been made on the first hearing.[55]

The order.[56]—An "order" has been defined to be any direction of the court or judge made or entered in writing and not included in a judgment.[57] An order at chambers as distinguished from one by the court should be signed by the judge by name and not initial.[58] Orders should be filed as soon as rendered and made a part of the files of the case,[59] and in the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that an order was made on the date it was filed.[60] An order allowing the amendment of a summons and complaint should have annexed to it a copy of the amended pleading.[61] While generally an order does not become effective until signed, attested, and filed,[62] still in some states an order appearing on the clerk's minutes is valid without a formal order signed by the judge.[63] Where an order is duly made and a copy filed with the clerk for entry, failure to enter it does not affect the validity of acts done thereunder.[64]

44, 45. See Goodwin v. Blanchard, 73 N. H. 550, 64 A. 22, and cases cited.

46, 47. Goodwin v. Blanchard, 73 N. H. 550, 64 A. 22.

48. See Goodwin v. Blanchard, 73 N. H. 550, 64 A. 22, and cases cited.

49. American Mail Order Co. v. Marsh, 118 Ill. App. 248.

50. De Wandelaer v. Sawdey, 78 Conn. 654, 63 A. 446. Refusal to postpone hearing of a motion of an attorney to restore a cause to the docket on the ground that it had been settled and dismissed for the purpose of defrauding applicant of his fees and disbursements, in order to allow applicant to introduce evidence supporting averment of motion held properly refused. Id.

51. Birmingham Ry., L. & P. Co. v. Hinton [Ala.] 40 So. 988.

52. See 6 C. L. 703.

53. Haskell v. Moran, 102 N. Y. S. 388.

54. Application to amend so as to bring in new party defendant. Haskell v. Moran, 102 N. Y. S. 388.

55. Cannon v. McKenzie [Cal. App.] 85 P. 130.

56. See 6 C. L. 703.

57. Rev. St. 1887, § 4880. Dahlstrom v. Portland Min. Co. [Idaho] 85 P. 916.

58. Order by "W. B. S." held bad. Conery v. His Creditors, 116 La. 535, 40 So. 173.

59, 60. Sandstrom v. Smith, 11 Idaho, 779, 84 P. 1060.

61. Luckey v. Mockridge, 112 App. Div. 199, 98 N. Y. S. 335.

62. So held under Rev. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 316, 317. Stephens v. Faus [S. D.] 106 N. W. 56.

63. Order granting extra allowance of cost. Harris v. Baltimore Mach. & El. Co., 112 App. Div. 389, 98 N. Y. S. 440.

64. Commissioner's court; Texas. Slaughter v. Mallet Land & Cattle Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 282.

The record should merely show the filing of the motion and the ruling of the court upon it.[65]

Operation and effect of orders.[66]—Orders in particular proceedings may have the force and effect of judgments especially as regards collateral attack.[67] A void order is not made valid by lapse of time but ever remains without effect as completely as if never entered.[68] The file mark of the clerk of court will not countervail a recital by the court itself as to the filing of the paper upon which the order containing the recital is based.[69]

Nunc pro tunc orders.[70]—Except where broadened by statute, nunc pro tunc orders supply only the record and not the order.[71] An irregular order cannot be confirmed nunc pro tunc.[72] The court has no power to direct that an order made at one term be entered nunc pro tunc as of a previous term.[73] Satisfactory parol evidence of an order omitted from the record is sufficient to authorize a nunc pro tunc [74] order. The right to entry nunc pro tunc may be barred by limitations.[75]

An order operates as conclusive only according to the fair import of its terms.[76]—A decision on a motion is not res judicata to the same extent as a judgment.[77] The denial of motion is conclusive though erroneous.[78]

Amendment and vacation.[79]—A void order may be vacated at any time,[80] but one merely erroneous cannot be vacated after the term.[81] An interlocutory order or ruling may be reversed and vacated at a subsequent term by the same court and by the successor of the judge rendering the order,[82] without compliance with statutory provisions relating to the vacation and modification of judgments and final orders at a term subsequent to that in which rendered,[83] and, in the absence of abuse of discretion, an appellate court will not interfere.[84] A final order may be vacated after term providing the proceedings are still in fieri.[85] The motion to vacate should be made in court of rendition.[86] The nature of the order assailed governs the sufficiency of the motion to annul and the proceedings thereunder.[87] Where the order

65. Held not necessary or proper to copy motion, notice, and affidavit of service into the record. Daggs v. Smith, 183 Mo. 494, 91 S. W. 1043.

66. See 6 C. L. 703.

67. So held as to order confirming settlement of guardian of insane person. Nelson v. Cowling, 77 Ark. 351, 91 S. W. 773.

68. Kelner v. Cowden [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 649.

69. Stokes v. Hardy [N. J. Law] 62 A. 1002. Order directing discharge of debtor. Id.

70. See 6 C. L. 703.

71. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 721-724, held proper to enter an order of reference nunc pro tunc, the first order having been acted under and being void by reason of the disqualification of the judge making it. Owasco Lake Cemetery v. Teller, 110 App. Div. 450, 96 N. Y. S. 985.

72. Ex parte order allowing amendment of complaint and summons. Luckey v. Mockridge, 112 App. Div. 199, 98 N. Y. S. 335. An order authorizing service of an "amended and supplemental complaint" is irregular, because no such pleading as an "amended and supplemental complaint" is known to the Code. Id.

73. Mertz v. Mehlhop, 117 Ill. App. 77.

74. Liddell v. Bodenheimer, Landau & Co. [Ark.] 95 S. W. 475.

75. An application for a nunc pro tunc entry of an order made eight years before held not barred by limitation. Liddell v. Bodenheimer, Landau & Co. [Ark.] 95 S. W. 475.

76. See 4 C. L. 705. Denial of a motion for an order requiring plaintiff to separately state and number his two causes of action, on the ground that there was but one cause of action, held not to conclude defendants from demurring to the complaint for misjoinder of causes. O'Connor v. Virginia Passenger & Power Co., 184 N. Y. 46, 76 N. E. 1082.

77. Haskell v. Moran, 102 N. Y. S. 388.

78. Barber v. Barnum, 101 N. Y. S. 1065.

79. See 6 C. L. 704.

80. Void order can be vacated more than six months after adjournment of term. Rev. St. 1887, § 4229, does not apply. Kerns v. Morgan, 11 Idaho, 572, 83 P. 954.

81. Krieger v. Krieger, 121 Ill. App. 11.

82. An order granting leave to answer after the expiration of the statutory period is administrative and not final, and not involving the merits. A succeeding judge may modify it by allowing an answer after a second failure to answer. Kaylor v. Hiller, 72 S. C. 433, 52 S. E. 120.

83, 84. Godfrey v. Cunningham [Neb.] 109 N. W. 765.

85. So held that where application was made during term of rendition and continued to the next term. Hews v. Hews [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 482, 108 N. W. 694.

86. People v. Anglo-American Sav. & L. Ass'n, 101 N. Y. S. 270.

87. Godfrey v. Cunningham [Neb.] 109 N. W. 765.

assailed was not based upon evidence, but was the natural sequence of the court proceedings, the motion assailing needs to set forth only such irregularities as would prima facie show a meritorious reason why the order should be set aside.[88] Where the order requires evidence on the merits to sustain it, the motion or petition assailing it must allege, and the evidence in support thereof must prove not only the irregularities complained of but facts relative to the merits which show a prima facie cause of action or defense.[89] The trial court may of its own motion correct errors in the order.[90] Cases dealing with the propriety of amendments are shown in the notes.[91]

Review.—An order must be reviewed by an appeal, not by a co-ordinate court.[92]

MULTIFARIOUSNESS; MULTIPLICITY; MUNICIPAL AIDS AND RELIEFS, see latest topical index.

MUNICIPAL BONDS.

§ 1. Power to Issue (1046).
§ 2. Conditions Precedent; Submission to Vote; Provision for Payment (1049).
§ 3. Execution (1051).
§ 4. Form and Requisites (1051).
§ 5. Issue and Sale (1052).
§ 6. Rights and Liabilities Arising Out of Illegal Issue (1052).
§ 7. Transfer (1053).
§ 8. Payment (1054).
§ 9. Scaling Overissue (1056).
§ 10. Enforcement of Improvement Bonds Against Abutters (1056).

"Municipal bonds" includes all public bonds, but not warrants for the payment of public money.[94]

§ 1. Power to issue.[95]—Municipalities derive their power to issue bonds either from the constitution or from valid statutes.[96] Such statutes must conform to the

88. So held as to order confirming judicial sale. Godfrey v. Cunningham [Neb.] 109 N. W. 765.

89. Godfrey v. Cunningham [Neb.] 109 N. W. 765.

90. So held where order signed did not correspond to order orally indicated. State v. Krahmer [Minn.] 108 N. W. 1119.

91. Held proper to amend order erroneously stating that motion was made by defendant's attorney. Raymond v. Tiffany, 100 N. Y. S. 807. Affidavit of attorney held to warrant amendment of order so as to show that it was not entered on default. Wollowitz v. New York City R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 830.

92. One special term has no power to review an order made by another special term. In re Cullinan, 109 App. Div. 816, 96 N. Y. S. 751. See Appeal and Review, 7. C. L. 128.

93. See Abbott Mun. Corp. §§ 169-225.

94. See Municipal Corporations, 6 C. L. 714; Counties, 7 C. L. 976, etc.

95. See 6 C. L. 704.

96. A municipality can incur no indebtedness for objects not within the powers granted by its charter. White River Sav. Bank v. Superior [C. C. A.] 148 F. 1. The act of May 11, 1905, authorizing park commissioners to issue bonds for the maintenance of parks, applied only to boards which had a bonded indebtedness at the time of its passage. Bonds were issued by a town and delivered to its park commissioners to be sold. They bore the signature of the officers of the board and the money was used by it for park purposes. Held, the indebtedness was that of the park commissioners, and they were therefore authorized to issue further bonds. Kucera v. West Chicago Park Com'rs, 221 Ill. 488, 77 N. E. 912. Under Const. art. 20, the city of Denver has power to provide by charter for the erection of an auditorium and to issue bonds to discharge the cost thereof. City & County of Denver v. Hallett, 34 Colo. 393, 83 P. 1066. Under 2 Mill's Ann. St. § 4403, subds. 6, 70, 72, 73, and Mill's Ann. St. Rev. Supp. §§ 4430a-4430c, a town or city is authorized to issue bonds for the purchase of water rights to secure water for its inhabitants. City of Cripple Creek v. Adams [Colo.] 85 P. 184. Where a city voted bonds for erecting an electric light plant and improving its gas works, and subsequently the legislature authorized the city to own and operate electric light plants and gas works for the purpose of supplying the city and its inhabitants with light, the city could issue the bonds voted and use the proceeds thereof not only for the purpose of lighting its streets and public places but also for the purpose of supplying its inhabitants with light in their homes and places of business. Baker v. Cartersville [Ga.] 56 S. E. 249. The city of Stockton has no power to establish an electric light plant for the purpose of supplying light to the inhabitants, and bonds issued for that purpose are unauthorized. Hyatt v. Williams, 148 Cal. 585, 84 P. 41. The bond act (St. 1901, p. 27, c. 32) merely gives power to issue bonds for the construction or maintenance of public utilities, where by other laws the power to build and operate such enterprises may be conferred. Id. The city charter of Oneida (Laws 1904, p. 563, c. 273, § 59, subd. 25) providing that whenever the common council shall resolve that an extraordinary expenditure ought to be made "for the benefit of the city," it may provide constitution as regards title [97] and special legislation,[98] and will also be strictly construed.[99] Hence, mere authority to incur an indebtedness does not confer power to issue negotiable bonds,[1] though power to issue bonds for the construction or purchase of needful buildings for a city includes power to raise funds with which to procure a site for any such building.[2] A city may be authorized by statute to issue bonds for the creation of a general fund for contemplated future improvements from which the city may draw without special legislation for each improvement.[3] Where a county complies with a statute requiring it to issue bonds, it cannot afterwards defeat the bonds on the ground that they were issued under a mandatory statute, irrespective of the will of the county.[4] A special school district is not a "municipality" within the meaning of a constitutional provision prohibiting any municipality from issuing any interest bearing evidence of indebtedness.[5]

Refunding bonds.[6]—If the municipality had power to create the original indebtedness, the fact that the particular evidences of it were unauthorized does not render invalid the refunding bonds,[7] neither does the legality of such bonds depend upon the regularity or sufficiency of the notice calling in the outstanding ones.[8] for the issue of bonds, does not authorize an issue of bonds to pay valid assessments previously made on property holders for the construction of a sewer. City of Oneida v. King, 101 N. Y. S. 239. Charter of town of Salem held legally passed so as to authorize issue of bonds thereunder. Board of Com'rs of Town of Salem v. Wachovia Loan & Trust Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 442. Act 1898, c. 123, was designed to continue in effect previous acts authorizing a $5,000,000 bond issue by the city of Baltimore and did not authorize an additional issue in that sum beyond that previously sanctioned. City of Baltimore v. Bond [Md.] 65 A. 318.

97. The title of act March 7, 1867, authorizes townships to issue bonds only for the purpose of "building bridges," though the body of the act confers power to issue bonds generally when authorized by two-thirds of the voters. Bonds issued for the purpose of "constructing and improving roads and bridges" are not authorized. Clagett v. Duluth Tp. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 824. Gen. St. 1878, being a mere private compilation, the act of 1867 is referred to for the purpose of ascertaining the authority of the township to issue the bonds. Id. Bonds not within curative act of 1903, p. 387, c. 267. Id.

98. Laws 1905, pp. 334, 340, authorizing every board of park commissioners in the state, after submission of the question to the municipality, to issue bonds to establish, improve, or maintain parks, do not violate Const. art. 4, § 22, prohibiting special laws regulating county and township affairs. Kucera v. West Chicago Park Com'rs, 221 Ill. 488, 77 N. E. 912. Do not authorize taking of property without due process. Id. Sess. Laws 1905, c. 101, p. 137, entitled "An act authorizing certain cities to issue bonds for natural gas, water, light and heating purposes" is a general law of uniform operation throughout the state, valid as to title and constitutional. City of Belleville [Kan.] 88 P. 47.

99. Authority to issue bonds beyond a certain per cent for the purpose of "purchasing or constructing" waterworks or electric light plants does not include power to issue bonds for the purpose of "erecting, constructing, maintaining and operating" a plant. State v. Wilder [Mo.] 98 S. W. 465.

1. Under acts 19 Gen. Assem. p. 123, c. 133, authorizing cities to procure land and donate it to a railroad company for depot grounds, etc., but not authorizing the levy of any tax or creation of any fund to pay therefor, the city could pay for the site only with warrants upon its general or incidental funds. Swanson v. Ottumwa [Iowa] 106 N. W. 9. The bonds being unauthorized, the fact that a municipality could have refunded the debt under the statute or could have issued warrants in payment does not operate to validate them (Id.), neither can recovery be had on them as non-negotiable papers (Id.).

2. Power conferred by § 195 of Omaha charter, where construction of the building was provided for as part of the same proposition. Linn v. Omaha [Neb.] 107 N. W. 983.

3. It was not the legislative intent that there should be separate legislation by the city providing for an issue of bonds to pay the city's share of each of contemplated future improvements made. A fund raised for such a purpose is a general fund from which the city may draw from time to time as occasion arises to pay its share of such improvements, wherever they may be located within the boundaries of the city, and in providing for this fund, it is not necessary to wait until legislation with respect to a particular improvement has gone forward to the point where an assessment has actually been levied. Heffner v. Toledo, 9 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 1.

4. Territory v. Vail [Ariz.] 85 P. 652.

5. Schmutz v. Special School Dist. of Little Rock [Ark.] 95 S. W. 438.

6. See 6 C. L. 705.

7. Village of Bradford v. Cameron [C. C. A.] 145 F. 21. Ohio village held to have had authority to improve its corporation building and electric light plant. Id. If any irregularity existed in creating the original indebtedness, the village was estopped as against a bona fide purchaser to show it under the circumstances and recitals in the bonds. Id.

8. Under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 1719-1724, authorizing the issuance of refunding bonds by an incorporated city or town and requir-

A constitutional requirement, that at the time of issuing bonds a municipality shall provide for a tax for their discharge within a certain period, does not necessarily prohibit a refunding of such bonds pursuant to statute, though the effect is to defer payment beyond such period.[9] New bonds issued for the purpose of extending the time for the payment of old ones are, like the originals, only evidences of the indebtedness, and the rights of a holder of the new bonds must be determined as of the date of the creation of the debt.[10]

Railroad aid bonds.[11]—Statutes authorizing municipalities to extend aid to public utilities must be legally passed,[12] and the rule of strict construction is particularly applicable.[13] A statutory provision authorizing semi-annual interest may be waived by the railroad company.[14] A delivery of aid bonds before the doing of any work by the railroad company in violation of the statute under which they are issued does not necessarily render them void.[15] A county may be estopped by judgment from contesting the validity of railroad aid bonds in proceedings to compel the levy of a tax to pay them.[16]

Where a township has expended money in payment of railroad aid bonds, the legislature may direct that the county taxes derived from the railroad property in the township shall be expended therein until the township shall have been fully reimbursed;[17] but a statute requiring the county commissioners to maintain a sinking fund for the payment of the bonds at maturity cannot be enforced by the taxpayers after the bonds have been paid.[18]

Limitation of indebtedness.[19]—The amount of indebtedness, which a municipality may legally incur, is often limited to a certain percentage of its taxable property,[20] and constitutional limitations in this regard render invalid legislation in con-ing notice of the redemption of outstanding bonds to be given as provided by law or ordinance. Diefenderfer v. State, 14 Wyo. 302, 83 P. 591.

9. Where by inadvertance no tax was levied issuance of refunding bonds by a school district under Rev. St. 1899, § 5157, held not unconstitutional. State v. Walker, 193 Mo. 693, 92 S. W. 69.

10. Graham v. Tuscumbia [Ala.] 42 So. 400.

11. See 6 C. L. 705.

12. Where House Journal showed that Laws N. C. 1885, p. 439, c. 233, incorporating a railroad and authorizing the issuance of county aid bonds, was passed by "Ayes 94, nays —; total —," it was presumed that there was no negative vote cast and the record was a sufficient compliance with Const. N. C., art. 2, § 14, requiring the ayes and nays to be entered on the journal. Board of Com'rs of Onslow County v. Tollman [C. C. A.] 145 F. 753.

13. Chapter 67, p. 96, Laws 1886 (Gen. St. 1901, §§ 5907-5912) does not authorize a city of the first or second class to vote aid and issue bonds to purchase lands for a right of way depot grounds, etc., for a railroad company whose line is confined within the corporate limits of the city. Water, Light & Gas Co. v. Hutchinson Interurban R. Co. [Kan.] 87 P. 883.

14. That bonds provided for annual interest payments did not render them invalid. Board of Com'rs of Onslow County v. Tollman [C. C. A.] 145 F. 753.

15. That bonds were delivered contrary to 1 Acts Ky. 1887-88, pp. 913-919, c. 449. Estill County, Ky. v. Embry [C. C. A.] 144 F. 913.

16. Where a county contested the legality of proceedings for the issuance of railroad aid bonds first in the state court in a suit to compel their issue and again in the Federal court in a suit to recover on the coupons and the bonds were declared valid. Estill County, Ky. v. Embry [C. C. A.] 144 F. 913.

17. Laws 1893, p. 430, c. 448, § 1, and Laws 1895, p. 182, c. 131, not unconstitutional as interfering with uniformity and equality of taxation. Jones v. Com'rs of Stokes County [N. C.] 55 S. E. 427. Taxpayers could maintain mandamus to compel compliance with the act. Id. Duty of county commissioners being continuing and prospective, action was not barred by limitations. Id.

18. Taxpayers could not compel performance of Laws 1895, p. 182, c. 131, § 2, requiring commissioners to invest the county taxes derived from the railroad property in a certain township, as a sinking fund for payment of aid bonds issued by the township. Jones v. Com'rs of Stokes County [N. C.] 55 S. E. 427.

19. See 6 C. L. 706.

20. The limitations of section 100 of the Municipal Code and Longworth Bond Act, which is in effect a part of that section, are controlling upon city and village councils in the issue of bonds to pay the corporation's share of street and sewer improvements and intersections, provided for in section 53 of the municipal code. Unless authorized by the electorate, therefore, such issues must be restricted for any one fiscal year to one per cent of the amount of taxable property within the corporation and on the tax duplicate. Smith v. Village of Rockford, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 513; Smith v. Village of Rockford, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 477.

flict therewith.[21] The issuance of bonds is an increase of indebtedness, though they can be paid only out of a special tax and the income from the improvement contemplated.[22] Money in the sinking fund of a city and applicable only to the payment of its bonded indebtedness should be deducted in determining the amount of its debt.[23] It will be presumed in support of the validity of an act authorizing a bond issue that a city's debt limit had not been reached.[24]

Curative acts.[25]—A curative act is inapplicable to bonds excepted from its provisions.[26]

§ 2. Conditions precedent; submission to vote; provision for payment.[27]—A statute requiring the treasurer of a county to file an additional bond within a specified time after it has been determined to issue county bonds is merely directory as to time and need not be literally complied with.[28] Meetings for the purpose of taking action in regard to issuing bonds must be legally called.[29] Statutes usually designate the vote required for the passage of ordinances.[30] Where a board is authorized to execute bonds, no formal resolution is always necessary.[31]

A school district may not issue bonds to pay outstanding warrants where the bonds in addition to the indebtedness of the district at the time of their issuance raise the indebtedness above the constitutional limit. State v. Ross [Wash.] 86 P. 675. Where the constitution provided that a city could not become indebted in an amount exceeding five per cent of its taxable property, except that it might become indebted in an amount not exceeding an additional five per cent for waterworks and light plants, and the debt of a city including the cost of waterworks and light plants already exceeded five per cent of the value of its property, such cost could not be deducted so as to authorize the city to issue further bonds for sewers. State v. Wilder, 197 Mo. 1, 94 S. W. 495. The amount of bonds which cities may issue under c. 101, p. 137, Sess. Laws 1905, for gas, water, heat, and lighting purposes is not controlled by any limitations of previous acts, said act repealing all previous acts inconsistent therewith. City of Belleville v. Wells [Kan.] 88 P. 47. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 926-11, conferring generally upon cities having special charters the power to issue bonds for the construction of school buildings without limit as to amount, repealed Priv. & Loc. Laws 1861, p. 301, c. 295, in so far as it limited the power of the city of Madison to issue bonds therefor to the sum of $10,000. Hall v. Madison, 128 Wis. 132, 107 N. W. 31. Cities of the second class and villages, in Nebraska, have the option to vote bonds to the amount of five per cent of the assessed valuation of their taxable property to establish a heating or lighting system under §§ 8504-8508 Cobbey's Ann. St. 1903, or limit the amount to two and one-half per cent by proceeding under c. 33, p. 264, Laws 1905. State v. Searle [Neb.] 107 N. W. 588. Electric light bonds, to the amount of five per cent of assessed valuation which record fairly showed were voted and issued under the act of 1903, held valid and entitled to registration. Id.

21. Const. art. 9, § 12, prohibiting a municipality from becoming indebted for any purpose in an amount exceeding five per cent of the value of its taxable property, is a limitation of the power of the legislature to authorize indebtedness and renders invalid legislation in conflict therewith regardless of its purpose. Village of East Moline v. Pope, 224 Ill. 386, 79 N. E. 587.

22. Where city had already reached debt limit, an ordinance providing for issuance of waterworks bonds to be paid out of an annual tax and the income from the waterworks constituted an increase in the city's debt and was void. Village of East Moline v. Pope, 224 Ill. 386, 79 N. E. 587.

23. Williamson v. Aldrich [S. D.] 108 N. W. 1063.

24. Where bonds could not be issued without providing for a sinking fund unless city had not reached debt limit. City of Rome v. Whitestown Waterworks Co., 113 App. Div. 547, 100 N. Y. S. 357.

25. See 6 C. L. 706.

26. Laws 1903, p. 387, c. 267, excepting bonds involved in any pending suit or which have been questioned in any court, does not include bonds involved in a pending suit by a taxpayer to restrain a township from paying them. Clagett v. Duluth Tp. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 824.

27. See 6 C. L. 707.

28. Laws 1903, p. 731, c. 444, requiring the county treasurer to execute an additional bond within thirty days after it has been determined to issue bonds for county improvements, is merely directory as to time and filing the treasurer's bond before his duties began constituted a substantial compliance with the statute. Bingham v. Milwaukee County Sup'rs, 127 Wis. 344, 106 N. W. 1071.

29. Testimony of clerk of school board that all directors were present except a certain one and that he had been "notified by mail three days previous" held sufficient to show that all directors were notified. Schmutz v. Special School Dist. of Little Rock [Ark.] 95 S. W. 438.

30. Where seven commissioners were elected as prescribed by the charter but one had resigned, the passage of an ordinance for the issuance of bonds by a vote of five members of the board was a sufficient compliance with the charter (Acts 1891, p. 746, c. 40, § 70), requiring the passage of such ordinances by a three-fourths vote of the "entire board." Board of Com'rs of Town of Salem v. Wachovia Loan & Trust Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 442.

31. Where records of county commissioners did not show a formal resolution direct-

Assent of voters or taxpayers.[32]—The issuance of bonds is frequently prohibited except by consent of a certain majority of the voters or "electors" of the municipality,[33] the manner of calling and conducting elections being usually provided by statute.[34] They must be lawfully conducted,[35] and the proposition must be properly presented to the voters,[36] care being taken that it is not dual in character or stated in the alternative.[37] Whether a majority of all the voters is required or only a majority of those voting on the particular proposition depends upon the statute under which the question is submitted.[38] An election having been held in compliance with the law, the return thereof, showing the proposition to have prevailed by a lawful majority, cannot be collaterally attacked for errors or fraud in registration or in the conduct of the election.[39] The bonds issued must be responsive to the question submitted.[40] In Wisconsin women may vote on the question of issuing bonds for the construction of a school building.[41] A constitutional provision intended to prevent the creation of a new debt without the assent of the voters does ing the execution of certain railroad aid bonds, but it was shown that the bonds were executed at a meeting convened for that purpose, and a majority of the members were present during the intire session, the bonds were properly executed by the board. Board of Com'rs of Onslow County v. Tollman [C. C. A.] 145 F. 753.

32. See 6 C. L. 707.

33. The word "elector" in Code 1892, § 3016, providing that municipal bonds shall not be issued unless authorized by a majority of the electors means voters who have registered so as to be entitled to vote at any election, held under the constitution and laws of the state. Greene v. Rienzi, 87 Miss. 463, 40 So. 17.

34. Under its charter, the city council of Omaha may provide by ordinance a manner not inconsistent with statutory provisions, for calling and conducting a special election for the purpose of voting upon a proposition to issue such bonds of the city as are authorized by law. Linn v. Omaha [Neb.] 107 N. W. 983.

35. That city council delegated to persons not members thereof the ministerial duty of assisting the clerk in tabulating the election returns did not invalidate the election in the absence of fraud or mistake. Linn v. Omaha [Neb.] 107 N. W. 983.

36. Inscription on ballot label of voting machine, "Shall the city issue $60,000 fire engine house bonds to run twenty years at four per cent?" held a sufficient statement of proposition to issue bonds for constructing two engine houses and procuring a site. Linn v. Omaha [Neb.] 107 N. W. 983.

37. Ordinance providing for election to vote bonds for the purpose of erecting "a waterworks and electric light plant" held to provide for but a single plant and the proposition was not dual. State v. Wilder [Mo.] 98 S. W. 465. Question whether bonds for the construction of engine houses should be issued held to contain only one proposition, though it included two engine houses and the purchase of a site. Linn v. Omaha [Neb.] 107 N. W. 983.

38. The constitution required the consent of three-fifths of the voters voting at an election to be held for the purpose of deciding upon the issue of bonds in excess of a certain per cent of the taxable property of a city. The charter required the consent of three-fifths of the voters voting at a general or special election. Held the consent of three-fifths of the voters voting on the proposition at a general election was sufficient, and it did not require three-fifths of all the votes cast at the election. Fox v. Seattle [Wash.] 86 P. 379. Under Acts 1899, c. 624, p. 1371, § 11, requiring a plan for additional water supply for the city to be approved "by a majority of the voters of the corporation tax district" as a condition precedent to the expenditure of money therefor, the adoption of the ordinance by a majority of the electors voting thereon as distinguished from a majority of qualified voters was sufficient. City of Rome v. Whitestown Waterworks Co., 113 App. Div. 547, 100 N. Y. S. 357. Where the constitution requires the incurrence of a debt to be concurred in by a majority of the electors of the municipality, a favorable vote of less than such majority, though constituting a majority of those voting, is insufficient. Under Const. art. 13, § 4, prohibiting the incurrence of a debt by a city unless authorized by "a vote in favor thereof by a majority of the electors of the city." Williamson v. Aldrich [S. D.] 108 N. W. 1063.

39. Suit to restrain issue. Phoenix Water Co. v. City Council of Phoenix [Ariz.] 84 P. 1095.

40. Where the question of the issuance of bonds was "Shall the city issue bonds bearing four per cent and maturing in not less than fifteen years nor more than thirty years, the principal to be payable in equal annual instalments?" the bonds proposed by an ordinance providing for bonds "payable at the option of the city and county fifteen years after date and absolutely due and payable twenty-five years after date," were not responsive to the question submitted. City & County of Denver v. Hallett, 34 Colo. 393, 83 P. 1066. Bonds maturing in fifteen years after date providing for the payment of one-fifteenth of the principal in annual instalments, or bonds maturing each year through the period of fifteen years so that one-fifteenth of the entire debt would be extinguished each year, would be responsive. Id.

41. Rev. St. 1898, § 428a, and § 943, as amended by laws 1903, p. 486, c. 312. Hall v. Madison, 128 Wis. 132, 107 N. W. 31.

not prevent the renewal of bonds to refund an existing indebtedness without submission to vote.[42]

Notice of election.[43]—Under an ordinance requiring the publication of a "previous notice," the publication need not continue up to and including election day.[44]

Providing for payment of bonds.[45]—Municipalities are often required at the time of issuing bonds to make provision for the payment of principal and interest.[46]

§ 3. Execution.[47]—The bonds must be legally signed[48] and delivered by the proper officers.[49] A statute requiring the bonds to be issued by certain officers does not require that they be executed by such officers.[50] Parol evidence is admissible to show facts concerning the execution of county bonds.[51]

§ 4. Form and requisites.[52]—The nonobservance of a mere directory provision as to denominations will not invalidate the issue.[53] Bonds issued under the

42. Issuance of bonds to refund indebtedness of water company which city was authorized to control by virtue of act March 6, 1906, held not within Const. § 157. Gaulbert v. Louisville [Ky.] 97 S. W. 342.

43. See 6 C. L. 708.

44. Where an ordinance providing for an election to determine the advisability of issuing bonds required that at least fifteen days "previous notice" should be given in a specified daily newspaper, a publication for seventeen consecutive issues, continuing until and including January 25, was sufficient, though it did not continue up to the day of election which occurred January 29. State v. Wilder [Mo.] 98 S. W. 465.

45. See 6 C. L. 708.

46. Under Const. art. 11, § 3, providing that municipalities at the time of incurring an indebtedness shall provide for an annual tax for the payment of the principal and interest, a resolution of the board of supervisors of a county levying on all taxable property in the county in each of twenty years a certain tax for the payment of the principal of bonds for the construction of a viaduct and a specified amount for interest, was not objectionable on the ground that the board could not levy taxes beyond the current year. Bingham v. Milwaukee County Sup'rs, 127 Wis. 344, 106 N. W. 1071. The levies so provided being sufficient to meet all instalments of principal and interest, it was immaterial that some of the taxes might not be paid until after sale, and therefore that the entire amount might not be on hand at the time of the maturity of the annual instalments. Id. Under Const. art. 11, § 8, providing that no city shall contract any debt except by ordinance providing for tax sufficient to pay the annual interest and extinguish the principal within fifteen but not less than ten years from the creation thereof, a city may issue bonds maturing in fifteen years after date and providing for payment in fifteen annual instalments or bonds maturing each year through the period of fifteen years so that one-fifteenth of the entire debt will be extinguished each year. City & County of Denver v. Hallett, 34 Colo. 393, 83 P. 1066. Bonds for water rights for the purpose of supplying water to the inhabitants of a municipality are not within 2 Mill's Ann. St. §§4447, 4449, providing that no expense shall be incurred unless an appropriation shall have been previously made. Passage of appropriation ordinance before issuance of bonds held not necessary. City of Cripple Creek v. Adams [Colo.] 85 P. 184. The provision of the New York constitution, requiring an act authorizing a municipal corporation to issue bonds to provide for a sinking fund, does not apply where a city has not reached its constitutional debt limit. City of Rome v. Whitestown Waterworks Co., 113 App. Div. 547, 100 N. Y. S. 357.

47. See 6 C. L. 708.

48. The lithographic signatures of the secretary of an irrigation district adopted by him and appearing on the interest coupons of bonds issued by the district are sufficient evidence of his signature to such bonds. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002. Prior to Laws 1905, p. 145, c. 94, requiring the city or town clerk to sign the certificate of legality required by the constitution to be endorsed on bonds issued by a county, township, etc., a city or town issuing bonds under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 1719-1724, had power to provide by ordinance what officer should sign the certificate. Diefenderfer v. State, 14 Wyo. 302, 83 P. 591. A municipal ordinance providing what officer shall sign the certificate of legality to be endorsed on municipal bonds issued under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 1719-1724, is a "provision of law" within a constitutional requirement that such certificate shall be signed by the county auditor or other officer "authorized by law." Id.

49. Requirement of act N. C. 1885, p. 439, c. 233, § 14, that certain county railroad aid bonds be delivered by a board of trustees held directory merely and delivery by county commissioners held not to invalidate the bonds. Board of Com'rs of Onslow County v. Tollman [C. C. A.] 145 F. 753.

50. Act N. C. 1885, p. 445, c. 233, § 14, providing for the "issuance" of county railroad aid bonds by a board of trustees did not require the bonds to be "executed" by the trustees. Board of Com'rs of Onslow County v. Tollman [C. C. A.] 145 F. 753. The statute being silent on the subject of execution, the bonds were properly executed by the board of commissioners. Id.

51. To show that railroad aid bonds were properly executed by board of county commissioners. Board of Com'rs of Onslow County v. Tollman [C. C. A.] 145 F. 753.

52. See 6 C. L. 709.

53. Laws 1903, p. 731, c. 444, providing that bonds for county improvements shall be in denominations $1,000, $500, and $100 each, the number of each denomination to be fixed by the county board, is directory only, and the validity of the issue was not direction of a city, but payable solely out of a special fund created by it and for the payment of which its general credit is not bound, are not municipal bonds within a constitutional provision authorizing the investment of the state school fund in municipal bonds.[54]

Validation of proceedings.[55]—A judgment validating an issue of bonds by a municipality is conclusive that the city had the legal right to incur the debt,[56] and judgment on a bond concludes the question of its validity in the absence of fraud.[57]

§ 5. Issue and sale.[58]—The acts of de facto officers in proceeding to issue bonds are valid and binding.[59] Taxpayers may restrain by injunction the issue of bonds for an unlawful purpose,[60] or the misappropriation of the proceeds of bonds.[61] While a municipality may sell its bonds at whatever premium it can, it has no power to antedate them and thus exceed the debt limit by selling interest as well as principal.[62] A statute prohibiting a sale of bonds at less than par does not require a sale at par net to the municipality.[63]

§ 6. Rights and liabilities arising out of illegal issue.[64]—Where a municipal corporation acts within its powers in borrowing and using money for an authorized purpose, the fact that without authority it issues negotiable bonds therefor will not preclude a recovery by the lender in an action for money had and received,[65] and limitations will not run in such case so long as the municipality recognizes its express obligation by paying interest on the bonds.[66] A railroad company, whose agent expressly warrants the validity of railroad aid bonds as an inducement to their sale, is liable for the consideration paid if the bonds prove unauthorized.[67] Defendant not having been benefited, there can be no recovery on a quantum affected because no $100 bonds were issued. Bingham v. Board of Sup'rs of Milwaukee County, 127 Wis. 344, 106 N. W. 1071.

54. State v. Clausen, 40 Wash. 95, 82 P. 187.

55. See 6 C. L. 709.

56. Conclusive of right to incur debt of amount and for purposes indicated in notice of election, that the assent of the voters had been obtained and upon all other questions required to be determined. Baker v. Cartersville [Ga.] 56 S. E. 249.

57. Graham v. Tuscumbia [Ala.] 42 So. 400.

58. See 6 C. L. 709.

59. Greene v. Rienzi, 87 Miss. 463, 40 So. 17.

60. Though preliminary proceedings are regular on their face and show a lawful purpose, if it is the intent to issue bonds in pursuance of a conspiracy to use the money to pay bonuses to industries, a taxpayer may restrain such action. Bates v. Hastings [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 626, 108 N. W. 1005. Bill alleging that city officials had openly avowed their purpose to issue bonds under regular proceedings, but to use the money for paying bonuses to industries, held to charge facts raising a fair inference of fraud. Id. Objection that motives of council could not be inquired into held untenable. Id. Bill held not premature. Id. Evidence tending to show the purpose of the municipal agents held admissible, though it was inconsistent with their records. Id. Allegation that "the bonds will be immediately disposed of to innocent persons as your orators are informed and believe" held not a mere allegation of information and belief but an allegation of fact based on information and belief, and hence admitted by demurrer. Id. Under c. 334, p. 550, Laws 1905, a taxpayer may enjoin any board or body from entering into any contract or doing any act not authorized by law which might result in the creation of a public burden. Water, Light & Gas Co. v. Hutchinson Interurban R. Co. [Kan.] 87 P. 883.

61. Where a private waterworks company in a city was a taxpayer, it could sue to restrain misappropriation of funds raised by taxation for the purpose of erecting a waterworks system regardless of its real purpose to prevent the erection thereof. Owensboro Waterworks Co. v. Owensboro [Ky.] 29 Ky. L. R. 1118, 96 S. W. 867.

62. Owensboro Waterworks Co. v. Owensboro [Ky.] 29 Ky. L. R. 1118, 96 S. W. 867. Where a city on the sale of water bonds received a sum of money in excess of the face of the bonds for interest coupons which were left attached, such sum should be set apart from the water bond fund to the payment of the coupons. Id. Mandatory injunction held proper remedy to compel application. Id.

63. Where refunding bonds of a town were sold at face value the trustees could pay the broker a commission under Mill's Ann. St. § 4548b. Town of Manitou v. First Nat. Bank [Colo.] 86 P. 75.

64. See 6 C. L. 710.

65, 66. Incorporated Town of Gilman v. Fernald [C. C. A.] 141 F. 941.

67. Statements of an officer held an express warranty that bonds had a valid legal existence. Union Bank of Richmond v. Oxford & C. L. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 143 P. 193.

meruit.[68] Equity may afford relief to the holders of void bonds on a showing that the proceeds can be directly traced to specific benefits.[69]

§ 7. Transfer.[70]—A bona fide purchaser of a negotiable municipal bond is entitled to transfer all his rights therein to another and such right is one of contract which cannot be destroyed or impaired by subsequent state legislation.[71] Municipal bonds issued under authority of law have the attributes of commercial paper and are not subject to equities in the hands of bona fide holders;[72] but purchasers are charged with notice of the power of the municipality to issue them as conferred by the statute under which the bonds were issued.[73]

Recitals.[74]—Where a statement of legislative authority to issue a bond appears upon its face, a holder may rest, at least primarily, upon the presumptions arising from the recitals,[75] and, where want of authority may be shown, the burden is on the defendant.[76]

Estoppel.[77]—Where a municipality is vested with authority to issue certain bonds, it is generally held estopped by recitals therein concerning their validity as against bona fide holders.[78] The estoppel of a county to assert the invalidity of bonds issued to take up warrants for the payment of which the people of a city in such county are not responsible extends to the people of the whole county;[79] and an innocent holder of the bonds cannot be deprived of his right to receive taxes levied and in the process of collection for their payment at the suit of the people of the city to which he is not a party,[80] but the taxes are properly levied upon all the property in the county, including the city property.[81]

68. Where a city donated negotiable bonds void for want of power to issue them to a railroad company to reimburse it for money paid out for depot grounds, subsequent holders could not recover against the city on quantum meruit. Swanson v. Ottumwa [Iowa] 106 N. W. 9.

69. Where school bonds were issued without the required vote and proceeds were used exclusively in procuring a school house, lot, and furniture. Board of Trustees v. Postell, 28 Ky. L. R. 37, 88 S. W. 1065.

70. See 6 C. L. 710.

71. Gamble v. Rural Independent School Dist. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 113. Transferer of bona fide holder of school bonds held not affected by statute, providing that, if negotiable paper had been procured by fraud, the holder should recover only the sum paid therefor, though such transferer purchased for less than face value and with knowledge of the fraud, and hence he was entitled to recover the full face value. Id.

72. Failure of consideration by reason of failure of title to water rights for which bonds were issued held not to affect purchaser for value without notice before maturity. City of Cripple Creek v. Adams [Colo.] 85 P. 184. Bona fide holders of municipal bonds relying on the face of the record will be protected against informalities or irregularities in the proceedings authorizing the issuance of the bonds, or from mistakes or lack of wisdom on the part of the authorities. This rule cannot apply, however, where it is sought to restrain their issuance. Greene v. Rienze, 87 Miss. 463, 40 So. 17.

73. Swanson v. Ottumwa [Iowa] 106 N. W. 9. A purchaser of the bonds of a city is chargeable with notice of its charter powers, when the purpose for which the bonds were issued is fully disclosed in their recitals. White River Sav. Bank v. Superior [C. C. A.] 148 F. 1.

74. See 6 C. L. 711. See Bronson on Recitals in Municipal Bonds, 4 C. L. 717.

75, 76. Northwestern Sav. Bank v. Centreville Station [C. C. A.] 143 F. 81.

77. See 6 C. L. 711.

78. Where bonds to procure water works were authorized by law and recited a valuable consideration and the performance of all acts required by law, failure of consideration was not available as against an innocent holder. City of Cripple Creek v. Adams [Colo.] 85 P. 184. Where a town is vested with legislative authority to issue bonds for the purpose recited therein, it is bound by such recital as against a bona fide purchaser (Northwestern Sav. Bank v. Centreville Station [C. C. A.] 143 F. 81), and it is no defense as to him that the money was expended for a purpose not strictly within the meaning of the legislative act (Id.). Though purchaser is chargeable with notice of terms of act under which bonds were issued, he is not bound to ascertain the regularity of municipal action thereunder despite recitals conclusively purporting that action was properly taken. Id. Where a city was authorized to insert in sewerage bonds "such other provisions as the council may think proper," it was estopped by a recital that the law had been duly complied with in the issuance of the bonds and by a pledge of its faith and credit for their payment to defend on the ground that it had not provided funds for their payment as required by law. Superior v. Marble Sav. Bank [C. C. A.] 148 F. 7.

79. Slutts v. Dana [Iowa] 109 N. W. 794.

80. Injunction should not be granted where it would jeopardize the rights of the

§ 8. Payment.[82]—A municipality may be compelled by mandamus to levy a tax for the payment of its bonds.[83] Funds collected for the payment of bonds are impressed with a trust for that purpose,[84] and resort may be had to equity to compel their application where the remedy is inadequate at law.[85] A writ of mandate will lie to compel the treasurer of an irrigation district to pay interest coupons on bonds issued by the district.[86] The fact that a municipality has been enjoined at the suit of a taxpayer from paying certain bonds issued by it is not in itself a defense to an action on the bonds by a holder who was not a party to such suit.[87] In an action in a Federal court, decisions of state courts rendered subsequent to the sale of the bond cannot govern the rights of a bona fide holder who was not a party in the state courts.[88] Upon the subdivision of the territory of a municipality into new and distinct corporations, a suit by a bondholder of the old corporation to enforce payment by the new ones is within the equity jurisdiction of a Federal court.[89] A new school district may agree to assume and pay the bonded indebtedness of an old one out of which it was carved, in consideration of its receiving an undue proportion of the school property.[90] The fact that money raised by taxation for the purpose of paying the interest and principal of municipal bonds is misappropriated for general expenses does not authorize the setting apart of an equal amount from the proceeds of the bonds for the purpose of paying the principal and interest, the bonds being issued for a particular purpose,[91] neither can money taken from the general fund of a city to pay the brokers be deducted from the proceeds.[92] Under a bondholder. Slutts v. Dana [Iowa] 109 N. W. 794. That bondholder if made a party might have consented to a decree restraining collection did not authorize such decree. Id.

81. Slutts v. Dana [Iowa.] 109 N. W. 794.

82. See 6 C. L. 712.

83. Under 1 Acts Ky. 1887-1888, pp. 913-319, c. 449, directing Estill county to levy a tax to pay certain railroad aid bonds and requiring the company to commence operations and do a certain amount of work each year, the county's liability to levy a tax did not depend on whether the conditions had been complied with by the company but whether the bonds had been issued so as to bind the county. Estill County v. Embry [C. C. A.] 144 F. 913. Where an order, awarding a peremptory mandamus against a county to compel the levy of a tax to pay railroad aid bonds, specifically declared that it was for the amount specified in the judgment on the bonds which was referred to, failure to specify the amount to be collected was not fatal. Id. Where a judgment was obtained against a city on a debt which arose prior to the constitution of 1875, pursuant to a statute authorizing the city to levy taxes to pay the debt, on refusal of the city to make such levy, the judgment creditor is entitled to mandamus. Graham v. Tuscumbia [Ala.] 42 So. 400.

84. Where taxes were levied and collected to pay coupons on county railroad aid bonds, the fund was impressed with a trust in the hands of the county treasurer for the benefit of the owner of the coupon. Board of Com'rs of Onslow County v. Tollman [C. C. A.] 145 F. 753.

85. Where county had instituted proceedings to restrain its treasurer from paying railroad aid bonds on ground that they were void. Board of Com'rs of Onslow County v. Tollman [C. C. A.] 145 F. 753.

86. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085. Hewel v. Hogin [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002. Evidence held to show that defendant had in his hands available funds. Id. Where the bonds and interest coupons had not been refunded, the directors could not defeat plaintiff's claim immediately after his demand by transferring the money to the fund applicable to the payment of refunded bonds. Id. Plaintiff was not entitled to interest on his overdue coupons where no provision was made therefor by the district. Id. The personal liability, if any, of the treasurer of the district resulting from his failure to pay the coupons when presented, could not be enforced by writ of mandate. Id.

87. Clagett v. Duluth Tp. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 824.

88. Where state decisions held bonds invalid. Northwestern Sav. Bank v. Centerville Station [C. C. A.] 143 F. 81; Board of Com'rs of Onslow County v. Tollman [C. C. A.] 145 F. 753. A purchaser is entitled to the same rights though he bought after rendition of the decisions. Board of Com'rs of Onslow County v. Tollman [C. C. A.] 145 F. 753.

89. Under Code Iowa 1873, § 1715, providing for the division of the liabilities of an old school district between new ones created therefrom. Gamble v. Rural Independent School Dist. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 113.

90. Act April 11, 1862 (P. L. 471) not repealed or suspended by Act June 24, 1895 (P. L. 259). Everson Borough, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 170. Upon such agreement being submitted to the court, a decree may be entered in accordance therewith without the necessity of hearing any testimony. Id.

91, 92. Owensboro Waterworks Co. v. Owensboro [Ky.] 29 Ky. L. R. 1118, 96 S. W. 867.

statute allowing interest on any instrument in writing, unpaid coupons on municipal bonds draw interest after maturity.[93]

The power of the legislature to alter or destroy subordinate municipalities cannot be so exercised as to impair the obligation of valid bonds previously issued,[94] but the legislature has power to provide for the payment of such debts by another issue of bonds when the corporate existence of a municipality is thus destroyed.[95] The legislature has power to readjust the burden of taxation to meet outstanding bonds by substituting a more equitable plan if such plan could have been adopted in the first instance.[96] The fact that a state has contracted to accept state bonds in payment for lands does not deprive it of the right to provide for payment of such bonds in money.[97] A statute, requiring the holders of past due outstanding state bonds to present them for payment within a specified time on penalty of having them declared invalid, is not unconstitutional if the time and conditions are reasonable.[98]

Payment from special fund or tax.[99]—Where municipal improvement bonds are payable only out of a fund created by special assessment, the municipality has no power to appropriate money for the payment of interest or the purchase of such bonds in case the assessments prove insufficient.[1] Where the duty of levying and collecting taxes for the payment of street improvement bonds is purely a statutory one, imposed upon certain officers of a municipality, and the municipality itself is given no control of the improvement proceedings, it cannot be charged as a voluntary trustee with respect to the levy and collection of such taxes so as to prevent the running of limitations against a suit for an accounting and to compel a levy;[2] but laches may defeat the right to compel a levy, even in cases where the municipality is considered a trustee.[3] The legislature cannot reduce or destroy a fund pledged for the payment of bonds as required by statute.[4] Where an act in effect

93. Mills' Ann. St. § 2252. City of Cripple Creek v. Adams [Colo.] 85 P. 184.

94. Const. 1895, art. 7, § 11, as amended by Act Feb. 23, 1903 (24 St. at L. p. 3) is inoperative as against previous valid bonds. Smith v. Walker, 74 S. C. 519, 54 S. E. 779.

95. Act Feb. 21, 1906 (25 St. at L. p. 309), authorizing the board of county commissioners to provide for the payment of the bonded debt of certain townships whose corporate existence was destroyed by Act Feb. 23, 1903, is constitutional. Smith v. alker, 74 S. C. 519, 54 S. E. 779.

96. Under Act 1890 (Acts 1889-1890, p. 674, c. 1491), providing that one-half of the cost of the construction of certain turnpikes should be paid by abutting owners and one-half by general taxation, one not an abutter acquired no vested rights which were violated by the act of March 14, 1906, providing for payment for the turnpikes by general county taxation. Durrett v. Davidson, 29 Ky. L. R. 401, 93 S. W. 25. Act of 1906 not void though retrospective in operation. Id.

97. Kirby's Dig. § 4866, providing that state bonds shall be received in payment for real estate bank lands having been enacted in 1879, did not become a part of bonds issued in 1870. Tipton v. Smythe [Ark.] 94 S. W. 678. But conceding that it did, the act of May 3, 1901, providing for the payment of past due bonds in money within a specified time, did not impair the obligation of contract, there being no higher method of discharging a debt than by payment in money. Id. Act of 1901 impliedly repealed Kirby's Dig. § 4866. Id.

98. Act May 3, 1901, fixing six months is not unreasonable and does not deprive holders of property without due process. Tipton v. Smythe [Ark.] 94 S. W. 678. The notice to holders provided for by the statute, and to be filed with certain stock exchanges held not inadequate, though a holder resided outside the United States. Id. The fact that ths treasurer is required to pay only valid bonds did not render the law invalid since his adverse decision as to validity is not conclusive, but holder may appeal to courts. Id. Does not impair obligation of contract, though when bonds were issued, thers was no authority for calling them in. Id.

99. See 6 C. L. 712.

1. City of Chicago v. Brede, 121 Ill. App. 662.

2. City held not a voluntary trustee. Eddy v. City & County of San Francisco, 148 F. 272.

3. Suit for equitable relief barred by laches whers bondholder waited over twenty years from first breach and eight years after maturity of bonds. Eddy v. City & County of San Francisco, 148 F. 272.

4. Where bonds for the construction of a subway pledged the tolls for the payment of principal and interest as required by St. 1897, p. 498, c. 500, a statute reducing the tolls was unconstitutional as impairing the obligation of contracts. In re Opinion of the Justices, 190 Mass. 605, 77 N. E. 1038. Though the bonds, as required by statute, provided that authorizes a municipality to pledge a certain fund for the payment of its bonds, recitals in the bonds pledging the revenues of the municipality are not repugnant to the statute.[5]

§ 9. Scaling overissue.[6]

§ 10. Enforcement of improvement bonds against abutters.[7]—Street improvement bonds containing recitals showing that they are chargeable against the abutting property cannot be enforced against the municipality as a general liability,[8] in the absence of provisions showing such intent.[9]

MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.

§ 1. Nature, Attributes and Elements (1057).
§ 2. Creation and Corporate Existence (1057).
A. Creation and Organization (1057).
B. Consolidation, Succession and Dissolution (1058).
C. Classes and Classification (1058).
D. Attack on Corporate Existence; Quo Warranto (1058).
§ 3. The Charter; Adoption, Amendment, Repeal and Abrogation (1059).
§ 4. The Territory (1059). Annexations (1060). Severances (1060). Plats (1060).
§ 5. Officers and Employes (1060).
§ 6. Municipal Records and Their Custody and Examination (1062).
§ 7. Authority and Power of Municipality (1062). Judicial Control Over Exercise of Powers (1063).
§ 8. Legislative Functions of Municipalities and Their Exercise (1064).
A. Nature and Extent of Legislative Power (1064).
B. Meetings, Votes, Rules, and Procedure (1064).
C. Records and Journals (1065).
D. Titles and Ordaining Clauses (1065).
E. Passage, Adoption, Amendment, and Repeal of Ordinances and Resolutions (1065). Publication (1066).
F. Construction and Operation of Ordinances (1066).
G. Pleading and Proving Ordinances and Proceedings (1067).
H. The Remedy Against Invalid Legislation (1067).
§ 9. Administrative Functions, Their Scope and Exercise (1067).
§ 10. Police Power and Public Regulations (1068).
A. In General (1068).
B. For Public Protection (1069).
C. Health and Sanitation (1069).
D. Regulation and Inspection of Business (1070).
E. Control of Streets and Public Places (1070).
F. Definition of Offenses and Regulation of Criminal Procedure (1072).
§ 11. Property and Public Places (1073).
§ 12. Contracts (1074).
§ 13. Fiscal Affairs and Management (1076). Funds and Appropriations (1076). Warrants (1077). Limitation of Indebtedness (1077).
§ 14. Torts and Crimes (1078).
§ 15. Claims and Demands (1080).
§ 16. Actions by and Against (1081).

Scope of article.—This article is designed to treat, as strictly as may be proper, the law of municipalities as distinguished from that of streets and other public ways,[10] parks and public grounds,[11] bridges,[12] public utilities, works and improvements,[13] health and sanitation,[14] buildings and injuries therein and building regu-the whole amount of the tolls should be pledged, the intent of the statute was accomplished on the city retaining as security the whole amount less a reasonable allowance to the railway company for collection, since the law contemplated such collection and suggested compensation therefor. Id.

5. Act 1905, p. 154, providing that the evidences of indebtedness of the special school district of Little Rock shall be paid out of the building fund in the order therein provided, in effect pledges such fund, and recitals in the bonds pledging the revenues of the district were not repugnant thereto. Schmutz v. Special School Dist. of Little Rock [Ark.] 95 S. W. 438. But even if the directors exceeded their power in thus pledging the revenues, it would not be ground for enjoining the issuance of the bonds at the suit of a taxpayer for it would not estop the district or bind the successors in office of the directors who issued the bonds. Id.

6, 7. See 6 C. L. 713.

8. Such enforcement not authorized by charter of city of Superior, Wis. (Laws 1889, pp. 407-413, c. 152, subchap. 16, §§ 139-167). White River Sav. Bank v. Superior [C. C. A.] 148 F. 1.

9. Sewerage bonds of city of Superior, Wis., held general obligations, where, though charter provided that they should specify that they were chargeable only to particular lots, it also authorized the council to insert such other provisions as it deemed proper, and to pay the bonds and reimburse the city by a tax on the lots. Superior v. Marble Sav. Bank [C. C. A.] 148 F. 7.

10. See Highways and Streets, 8 C. L. 40.

11. See Parks and Public Grounds, 6 C. L. 885.

12. See Bridges, 7 C. L. 460.

13. See Public Works and Improvements, 6 C. L. 1143.

14. See Health, 8 C. L. 36.

lations,[15] the local taxing power,[16] local and special assessments,[17] licenses and licensing,[18] the granting of franchises,[19] and the law of public officers generally.[20] The particular applications of the general law of municipalities to these several enumerated subjects should be sought in the titles cited. The body of laws relating to each of these largely involves powers and duties of counties, towns, and of the public generally, as well as powers of municipalities. All this has been brought together into titles relating to the subject-matter of such powers and duties.

§ 1. Nature, attributes and elements.[21]—The term municipal corporation as ordinarily applied includes all corporations created for the local exercise of delegated governmental functions.[22] They are the auxiliaries, or the convenient instrumentalities, of the general government of the state for the purpose of municipal rule.[23] The powers of a municipal corporation are wholly delegated,[24] but in the exercise of its powers so conferred, it is subject only to constitutional limitations.[25] Its functions are of two classes, governmental and private, the distinction being chiefly important in determining liability for tort.[26]

§ 2. Creation and corporate existence. A. Creation and organization.[27]—The creation of municipal corporations by special act being prohibited by the constitutions of most states,[28] the usual method of incorporation is for inhabitants of the locality desiring to incorporate to avail themselves of the provisions of a general law, which laws ordinarily provide conditions precedent of population, area, or physical characteristics.[29] Acceptance thereof is usually signified by an election[30] ordered by the proper officials. The official, or board to whom the petition is presented, on determining that it is sufficient in point of contents and signatures,[31] which determination is usually held to be final,[32] orders the election, prescribing the time and place of holding the same. In some states, incorporation may be by an order of court in a special proceeding designed for the purpose.[33] Judicial notice will be taken of a municipality regularly created.[34]

15. See Buildings and Building Restrictions, 7 C. L. 507.
16. See Taxes, 6 C. L. 1502.
17. See Public Works and Improvements, 6 C. L. 1143.
18. See Licenses, 6 C. L. 436.
19. See Franchises, 7 C. L. 1771.
20. See Officers and Public Employes, 6 C. L. 841.
21. See 6 C. L. 714. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 1-8.
22. The word "town" is generic and includes cities. City of Smithville v. Dispensary Com'rs of Lee County, 125 Ga. 559, 54 S. E. 539. A "township" held to be a municipality for certain statutory purposes. Hanson v. Cresco [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1109. The water commissioners of Erie, Pa., as a board are wholly independent of the city. Saltsman v. Olds [Pa.] 64 A. 652.

Note: The term "municipality" has sometimes been limited by definition to include only municipal corporations in the proper and strict sense. Briegel v. Philadelphia, 135 Pa. 451, 19 A. 1038, 20 Am. St. Rep. 885; In re Werner, 129 Cal. 567, 62 P. 97; Memphis Trust Co. v. Board of Directors, 69 Ark. 284, 62 S. W. 902. But the term is also used by good authority in a broader sense to include public and political corporations which are not strictly municipal. Spalding Lumber Co. v. Brown, 171 Ill. 487, 49 N. E. 725; State v. Elliott, 158 Ind. 168, 63 N. E. 222; Brown v. Board of Education, 108 Ky. 783, 57 S. W. 612; Commissioners v. Fell, 52 N. J. Eq. 689, 29 A. 816; Miller v. Town of Jacobs, 70 Wis. 122, 35 N. W. 324, and see cases collected in 5 Words and Phrases Judicially Defined, 4630.
23. MacMullen v. Middleton [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 863.
24. See post, § 7.
25. See post, §§ 7, 9, 10.
26. See post, § 14.
27. See 6 C. L. 715. And see Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 9-20.
28. See post, § 3.
29. Insufficient number of actual residents. State v. Clark [Neb.] 106 N. W. 971. The prospective expansion of a town may be taken into consideration in determining the intention of electors as to what area is to be incorporated. Merritt v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 925, 94 S. W. 372.
30. In Illinois a proposition to incorporate must receive two-thirds of all the votes cast at the election. People v. Weber, 222 Ill. 180, 78 N. E. 55.
31. Under the Wash. statute, Oct., 1903, c. 186, the determination of sufficiency vests in the first instance with the city council. Hindman v. Boyd, 42 Wash. 17, 84 P. 609.
32. Annexation of territory. People v. Ontario, 148 Cal. 625, 84 P. 205.
33. See 4 C. L. 721, n. 71. A final order incorporating a village in a special proceeding for the incorporation thereof is appealable. In re Salter, 127 Wis. 677, 106 N. W. 684.
34. City of Brownsville v. Arbuckle [Ky.] 99 S. W. 239. See, also, 6 C. L. 717, n. 43.

(§ 2) B. Consolidation, succession and dissolution.[35]—Consolidation of municipal corporations is permissible only by legislative authority, and special laws authorizing consolidation are as a rule prohibited by the several state constitutions.[36] It is usually effected by a special election initiated and held in a manner similar to those for incorporation.[37] The power to divide or dissolve municipalities is likewise a legislative power,[38] to which is incident the power to prescribe the rule for the division of property,[39] the apportionment of debts,[40] and the devolution of office.[41] Alteration or dissolution of a municipal corporation does not impair existing municipal contracts.[42] The order of a board vacating streets, lots, and alleys disannexed from a city being a judicial act, an appeal lies,[43] and where a municipality had allowed its government to lapse and seventy-five electors had petitioned the governor under the statute to appoint election commissioners, his refusal was open to review in mandamus proceedings.[44]

(§ 2) C. Classes and classification.[45]—Municipalities may be classified for purposes of legislation,[46] provided such classification is reasonable[47] and based on real and substantial differences of population or situation.[48]

(§ 2) D. Attack on corporate existence; quo warranto.[49]—The validity of the organization and existence of a municipal corporation cannot be questioned except in a direct proceeding,[50] and at the instance of the state.[51] Quo warranto is the proper remedy.[52]

35. See 6 C. L. 716. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 33, 34.

36. See 6 C. L. 716, n. 12.

37. See 6 C. L. 716, n. 13.

38. The Ohio Act of 1902 (Rev. St. 1905, §§ 1536-1560), providing for detaching farm lands from cities and villages, held constitutional. Incorporated Village of Fairview v. Giffee, 73 Ohio St. 183, 76 N. E. 865. Suspension of municipal functions and failure to elect officers does not work a dissolution. Hill v. Anderson, 28 Ky. L. R. 1032, 90 S. W. 1071. A municipal corporation does not lose its existence by nonuser of its franchise. Elliott v. Pardee [Cal.] 86 P. 1087.

39. The doctrine upon which the division of property is founded is an equitable one, resting upon the relative rights of the municipalities, the character of the property to be divided, and legislative regulation upon the subject. Washburn Waterworks Co. v. Washburn [Wis.] 108 N. W. 194.

40. Galloway v. Memphis [Tenn.] 94 S. W. 75. A special indebtedness for a street improvement created by an illegally organized corporation cannot after its legal creation be ratified so as to convert the liability from a special to a general one. State v. Moss [Wash.] 86 P. 1129.

41. The consolidation of two boroughs under Pennsylvania Act of 1893, P. L. 335, created no vacancy in the office of councilman. Lilly v. Krause, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 412. The provisions of Denver charter, adopted March 29, 1904, increasing the number of county officers and changing the time of their election, held unconstitutional. County judge. People v. Johnson, 34 Colo. 143, 86 P. 233. County assessor. People v. Alexander, 34 Colo. 193, 86 P. 249. Coroner. People v. Horan, 34 Colo. 304, 86 P. 252. City and county attorney. People v. Lindsley [Colo.] 86 P. 352.

42. Washburn Waterworks Co. v. Washburn [Wis.] 108 N. W. 194; Graham v. Folsom, 200 U. S. 248, 50 Law. Ed. 464, 15 Yale L. R. 363.

43. MacGinnitie v. Silvers [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1013.

44. Elliott v. Pardee [Cal.] 86 P. 1087.

45. See 6 C. L. 716. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. § 94.

46. Classification for purpose of building restrictions. Welch v. Swasey [Mass.] 79 N. E. 745. Rules for classification stated. Village of Bloomer v. Bloomer, 128 Wis. 297, 107 N. W. 974.

47. In incorporating a certain class of cities it is competent to enact that the treasurer of the county in which the only city of that class is situated shall be ex officio treasurer of the city. Cathers v. Hennings [Neb.] 107 N. W. 586. Sec. 124, chap. 62, N. Dak. Laws 1905, is invalid to the extent that it requires county treasurer to pay to cities the interest and penalties on city and city school taxes. State v. Mayo [N. D.] 108 N. W. 36.

48. Classification according to population sustained. Smith v. Burlington [Wis.] 109 N. W. 79.

49. See 6 C. L. 716. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 32, 34.

50. People v. Pederson, 220 Ill. 554, 77 N. E. 251; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Lyon County Com'rs, 72 Kan. 13, 82 P. 519, 84 P. 1031.

51. The existence and authority of a municipal corporation acting under color of law cannot be questioned collaterally by private suitors. Ward v. Gradin [N. D.] 109 N. W. 57.

52. The only mode by which the legality of a de facto municipal corporation can be inquired into is by information in the nature of quo warranto. People v. Pederson, 220 Ill. 554, 77 N. E. 251. A municipality is a "person," subject to quo warranto for usurping a franchise. City of Uniontown v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 814.

§ 3. The charter; adoption, amendment, repeal and abrogation.[53]—Municipal charters, like all other legislative acts, are subject to constitutional limitations,[54] such as the prohibition placed upon the delegation of legislative functions,[55] the requirement of uniformity in taxation,[56] and those relating to the subjects of titles and acts.[57] Special charters are now quite generally prohibited by the constitutions of the several states.[58] Where cities are governed by general act, amendments must be within the constitutional limitation as to special acts.[59] A revision or amendment of a general law becomes operative upon all cities previously organized under the general law without any action by such cities,[60] but the provisions of the general incorporation act have no application to a city chartered under a special act.[61] Statutory provisions with respect to the amendment of charters, such as the petition therefor of a percentage of qualified voters,[62] the publication of the proposed amendment,[63] must be complied with. Since all powers of a municipality are derived from its charter, no ordinance or by-law can enlarge, diminish, or vary its powers.[64] San Francisco freeholders charter, when approved by statute, became the organic law of the city by express terms of the constitution, and superseded the existing charter.[65]

§ 4. The territory.[66]—The creation of a municipal corporation involves the fixing of its boundaries, the determination of which rests with the legislature in the absence of constitutional restrictions.[67] Where a line has been treated for more

53. See 6 C. L. 716. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 22-31.

54. Salem incorporation act held constitutional. Murphy v. Salem [Or.] 87 P. 532. Avondale city charter (Acts 1894-5, p. 139) does not violate Alabama constitution 1901, § 223. Harton v. Avondale [Ala.] 41 So. 934.

55. The provision in an enactment of the state legislature that the final operation thereof may be made to depend upon some contingency as the vote of the electors of a given territory within which the law is to operate is not the delegation of legislative functions to electors or to corporate officials of the municipality. Act relating to "criminal court of Cook County" sustained. Chicago Terminal Transfer R. Co. v. Greer, 223 Ill. 104, 79 N. E. 46.

56. The fact that a license tax imposed by a city upon dealers in intoxicating liquors is higher than the tax upon dealers in other commodities does not render the tax invalid because discriminative. Lachman v. Walker [Fla.] 42 So. 461.

57. Title of act to amend city charter held to express the subject. City of Ensley v. Cohn [Ala.] 42 So. 827.

58. Wash. Const. art. 2, § 28, prohibiting the legislature from enacting special laws granting corporate powers, applies equally to municipal and private corporations. Terry v. King County [Wash.] 86 P. 210. Kentucky Act of 1906, empowering cities of the first class to construct a system of sewerage and providing for a sewerage commission, is not special legislation within the constitution of that state. Miller v. Louisville [Ky.] 99 S. W. 284. New Jersey Act (P. L. 1894), conferring powers upon cities located on or near the ocean to lay out parks, is not special legislation regulating internal affairs of cities, and is constitutional. Seaside Realty & Imp. Co. v. Atlantic City [N. J. Law] 64 A. 1081. In Alabama, city boundaries may be altered by special act. Const. 1903, § 104, sub. 18. City of Ensley v. Cohn [Ala.] 42 So. 827. Notice of intention to apply for special act altering city boundaries held to express the substance thereof. Id. See 6 C. L. 716, n. 28.

59. Art. 48 of the Louisiana constitution of 1898, in prohibiting the amendment by special laws of the charters of municipalities, with the exception of those having a population of not less than 2,500, did not abridge the power of the general assembly to enact general laws affecting the charters of the class of municipalities excepted. City of Lake Charles v. Roy, 115 La. 939, 40 So. 362. Alabama L. A. 1903, p. 512, repealing Act of March 4, 1901, does not amend the charter of Troy within the constitutional provision that the legislature shall not pass a special, private, or local law amending the charter of a municipal corporation. State v. Hubbard [Ala.] 41 So. 903. See 6 C. L. 717, n. 34.

60. State v. Mayo [N. D.] 108 N. W. 36.

61. City of Ensley v. Cohn [Ala.] 42 So. 827.

62. Under Washington Act 1903, p. 393, it lies with the city council in the first instance to pass on the qualification of signers of a petition for amendment of a city charter. Hindman v. Boyd, 42 Wash. 17, 84 P. 609. Registration held not to be a necessary element in the qualification of a voter. Id.

63. Publication in daily newspaper held sufficient. Wolfe v. Moorhead [Minn.] 107 N. W. 728.

64. Annex Improvement Commission of Baltimore. City of Baltimore v. Flack [Md.] 64 A. 702.

65. Burke v. Board of Trustees [Cal. App.] 87 P. 421.

66. See 6 C. L. 717. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 35-51, 55-65.

67. The lands under the navigable waters of the Bay of San Francisco below the line of low tide, in front of the Oakland water front, belong to the state and are not with-than fifty years as the correct line between towns, such line must be regarded as the true one although it may differ from the calls of the charter.[68] The boundaries of a city established by public statute will be judicially noticed.[69]

Annexations[70] must be authorized by the legislature either directly[71] or by conferring the power upon electors themselves.[72] The extent and manner of such annexation is a question of legislative discretion;[73] a chancery court cannot pass upon the right of a municipality to acquire lands outside of its territorial limits.[74]

Severances.[75]—The corporate limits of a city having been prescribed by the act of incorporation they may not be contracted by mere acquiescence of the municipal officers, even for a period of thirty years.[76] Tacitly submitting to the inclusion of unplatted lands in the incorporated limits of a town does not estop the owner from proceeding under the statute to have it disconnected therefrom.[77] A judgment of a court detaching territory will not be impeached upon appeal in the absence of a showing that the trial judge committed an important mistake of fact or made an erroneous inference of fact or of law.[78]

Plats.[79]—The entire subject of platting being fully covered by general statute, a municipality may not impose additional requirements.[80] A street bounded on one side by a river extends to the center of the river, notwithstanding a plat gives the width thereof.[81] Mandamus lies to compel approval of plat of a subdivision where the withholding of approval is arbitrary and unlawful.[82]

§ 5. Officers and employes.[83]—This subject is fully treated in another topic.[84] But speaking generally, the state having power to create municipal corporations, it may designate the various municipal offices,[85] prescribe the tenure of office,[86] define in the boundaries of the town of Oakland. Southern Pac. Co. v. Western Pac. R. Co., 144 F. 160.

68. Town of Bath v. Haverhill, 73 N. H. 511, 63 A. 307.

69. But the court cannot take judicial notice that an alley between two designated streets is within the territorial boundaries of the city. City of Topeka v. Cook, 72 Kan. 595, 84 P. 376.

70. See 6 C. L. 717.

71. Local Act No. 627, Mich. 1905, providing for annexation of certain territory to city of Detroit (Attorney-General v. Springwells Tp., 143 Mich. 523, 13 Det. Leg. N. 80, 107 N. W. 87), and Virginia Act 1904, providing for the extension of corporate limits of cities, held constitutional (Henrico County v. Richmond [Va.] 55 S. E. 683). The statutes of Kansas empower a city lying in one county to extend its boundaries into another. Portsmouth Sav. Bank v. Smith [Kan.] 86 P. 462.

72. People v. Ontario, 148 Cal. 625, 84 P. 205. Under California St. 1889, p. 358, providing that trustees of a town on receiving the petition provided for shall submit the question of annexation to popular vote, record of the determination of the board as to the sufficiency of the petition need not be made. Id. Even if it were necessary for the record to show that the board passed on the sufficiency of the petition, a recital in the order calling the election that the petition was signed by requisite number of voters would be sufficient. Id. New Jersey P. L. 1905, p. 131, requires that the application to the mayor for a resubdivision shall proceed from fifty per cent. or more of the governing body of the city acting in their official capacity and not as individuals. Rutten v. Paterson [N. J. Law] 64 A. 573.

73. Elliott v. Louisville, 28 Ky. L. R. 967, 90 S. W. 990. Ordinance extending boundaries sustained. New Orleans & N. W. R. Co. v. Vidalia, 117 La. 561, 42 So. 139. Kansas Gen. Stat. 1901, § 1172, authorizing county commissioners to make an order enlarging the boundaries of a city, is to be interpreted as intended to confer upon the commissioners the legislative power to determine whether such change shall be made. Nash v. Glen Elder [Kan.] 88 P. 62.

74. State v. Inhabitants of Trenton [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 897.

75. See 6 C. L. 718.

76. Martin v. Gainesville, 126 Ga. 577, 55 S. E. 499.

77. Barber v. Franklin [Neb.] 108 N. W. 146.

78. Gregory v. Franklin [Neb.] 108 N. W. 147, following and approving Michaelson v. Tilden [Neb.] 101 N. W. 1026. See 4 C. L. 724, n. 18.

79. See 6 C. L. 719.

80. Burroughs v. Cherokee [Iowa] 109 N. W. 876.

81. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. People, 222 Ill. 427, 78 N. E. 790.

82. People v. Board of Trustees, 122 Ill. App. 449.

83. See 6 C. L. 719. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 596-716.

84. See Officers and Public Employes, 6 C. L. 841.

85. Act authorizing the constitution of a sewerage commission in cities of the first class in Kentucky sustained. Miller v. Louisville [Ky.] 99 S. W. 284. The inhibition against the holding of other public office or employment, found in section 120 of the municipal code (Rev. St. §§ 1536-1613) relating to the qualifications of councilmen, is not limited to other office or employment by the the powers and duties,[87] and fix the compensation [88] of the incumbents. The office may be filled by election [89] or appointment,[90] and in proper cases the duties may be performed by a deputy.[91] In the absence of prohibitive charter provisions, a municipality may reimburse its officers for expenses and attorney's fees.[92] The acts of officers of a de facto municipal corporation are binding when such acts would be within the power of such officers if the corporation were one de jure.[93] Failure to exact a bond of the contractors, as required by statute, renders the councilmen individually liable to material men.[94] Unauthorized acts of officials will not estop a municipal corporation,[95] but it has been held that a city is estopped to deny au-municipality, but extends to all public office and employment. State v. Gard, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 599. Treasurer of county may be ex officio treasurer of a city. Cathers v. Hennings [Neb.] 107 N. W. 586.

86. Pennsylvania Act June 1, 1883 (P. L. 54), relating to term of office of councilmen, held to apply to boroughs divided into wards. Hayes v. Sturges [Pa.] 64 A. 828. Under the charter of Taunton, Mass., the council had authority to pass ordinance prescribing one year as the term of office of members of police department. Lahar v. Eldridge, 190 Mass. 504, 77 N. E. 635.

87. Commissioner of public works held to have authority to agree to pay for overtime of employe without approval of common council. Gadd v. Detroit, 142 Mich. 683, 12 Det. Leg. N. 900, 106 N. W. 210. By the statutes of Rhode Island a warden is vested with the powers and duties of a justice of the peace. Rose v. McKie [C. C. A.] 145 F. 584. Under Massachusetts Rev. Laws, c. 50. § 11, street commissioners have no authority to bind city by contract giving up betterments assessable on laying out street. Whitcomb v. Boston [Mass.] 78 N. E. 407. A superintendent of a municipal electric light plant has, in the absence of authority to deal with public on behalf of the municipality, no implied power to accept for it a shipment of electric apparatus not consigned to him or the municipality. Southern Exp. Co. v. B. R. Elec. Co., 126 Ga. 472, 55 S. E. 254. The armory board of the city of New York has no authority to bind the city for architect's fees until the board is authorized by resolution to incur the indebtedness. Horgan v. New York, 100 N. Y. S. 68. The discretionary powers of a comptroller in cities of the first and second class in Pennsylvania do not extend to the revision of lawful contracts made by other departments within their proper sphere (Commonwealth v. Larkin [Pa.] 64 A. 908), nor to the confession of judgment (Valentine Clark Co. v. Allegheny City, 143 F. 644).

88. Sutherland v. Rochester, 112 App. Div. 712, 98 N. Y. S. 970; In re Babcock, 101 N. Y. S. 90. The mayor in Ohio cities is not entitled to fees in prosecutions for violations of penal ordinances. Smallwood v. Cambridge [Ohio] 79 N. E. 755. Corporation counsel of Detroit held not entitled to extra compensation for prosecuting proceedings on behalf of board of education. Tarsney v. Board of Education [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 1021, 110 N. W. 1093. Until regularly removed an officer is entitled to the salary affixed to the office. People v. Sipple, 109 App. Div. 788, 96 N. Y. S. 897. Under a provision that claim for services of a public official must be presented to board of estimates, nonsuit must be granted in absence of a showing of such presentation. Lyons v. Syracuse, 101 N. Y. S. 247. Whether a municipal officer may bind the city by assigning his salary prior to the issue of a warrant therefor, quaere. Gordon v. Omaha [Neb.] 110 N. W. 313.

89. Erroneous description of length of term in order of council calling for an election to fill vacancy is a mere irregularity. Koster v. Coyne, 184 N. Y. 494, 77 N. E. 983. Aldermen in cities of the second class in Colorado are to be elected by wards and not by such cities at large. Dunton v. People [Colo.] 87 P. 540. Where one is elected to council who is already serving in the office of school examiner and is further employed as superintendent of a public school, the election is a nullity by reason of his ineligibility, and council has the right to so determine without notice to the one so affected or the taking of any proceedings against him, and may proceed to fill the vacancy forthwith. State v. Gard, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 599.

90. A charter provision granting council authority to appoint policemen and prescribe their duties and compensation is self-executing and requires no resolution or ordinance to make it effective. City of Paris v. Cabiness [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 549, 98 S. W. 925. Power in aldermen to appoint necessary officers authorizes appointment of policeman. Early v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 78, 97 S. W. 82.

91. In Louisiana, record evidence must be kept that because of absence of the officer in chief the deputy acted. State v. Briede, 117 La. 183, 41 So. 487.

92. Greater New York Charter, Laws 1901, c. 466, § 231, authorizing allowance by city of expenses of city officers in contesting removal from office proceedings, held valid. Kane v. McClellan, 110 App. Div. 44, 96 N. Y. S. 806. But a municipality is not bound to reimburse an officer for a judgment procured against him in a suit for unauthorized acts. Gormly v. Mt. Vernon [Iowa] 108 N. W. 465. In Newton v. Hamden [Conn.] 64 A. 229, the rule is stated to be that an officer or agent of a municipal corporation may be indemnified when he has in good faith acted in the discharge of a duty imposed or authorized by law in a matter in which the municipality has an interest. See 4 C. L. 730, n. 14; p. 737, n. 16, 17.

93. People v. Pederson, 220 Ill. 554, 77 N. E. 251.

94. Smith v. Hubbell, 142 Mich. 637, 12 Det. Leg. N. 860, 106 N. W. 547.

95. The levy and collection of taxes will not estop city from asserting title to the property for the benefit of the public. Board of Park Com'rs v. Taylor [Iowa] 108 N. W. 927.

thority of city attorney to stipulate discontinuance of a suit.[96] An officer judicially ousted for misconduct cannot be reinstated in the office by re-election,[97] and failure to pay debts is in California a sufficient reason for dismissal.[98] Mandamus will not issue to compel approval of druggist's bond, where, pending action by the council, three of the four sureties thereon withdraw from their obligation,[99] nor does it lie to compel members of council committee to repay money illegally received by them.[1]

§ 6. Municipal records and their custody and examination.[2]

§ 7. Authority and power of municipality.[3]—Municipalities being creatures of the state, with powers defined by the legislature of the state,[4] they possess and can exercise only such powers as are expressly granted,[5] those necessarily or fairly implied in or incident to the powers expressly granted,[6] and those essential to the declared objects and purposes of the municipality, not simply convenient but indispensable.[7] Any fair or reasonable doubt concerning the existence of the power is resolved by the courts against the municipality.[8] The power to contract,[9] to legislate

96. State v. Spokane [Wash.] 87 P. 944.

97. State v. Rose [Kan.] 86 P. 296.

98. Cleu v. Police Com'rs [Cal. App.] 84 P. 672.

99. Young v. Van Buren Circuit Judge [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 416, 108 N. W. 506.

1. State v. Hale [Ind.] 77 N. E. 802.

2. See 6 C. L. 720. See, also Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 591-595.

3. See 6 C. L. 720. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 108-114.

4. That the city of Denver was created by constitutional amendment adopted by direct vote of the people with power to frame its own charter did not change its relation to the state nor exempt it from state control. Keefe v. People [Colo.] 87 P. 791. It is competent for the legislature to provide that liability for breach of duty to remove snow and ice from the sidewalk be conditioned upon notice in writing being given to the city. MacMullen v. Middleton [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 863. The legislature may authorize or require cities or towns to construct armories for militia companies stationed therein. Hodgdon v. Haverhill [Mass.] 79 N. E. 830.

5. There is an entire absence of express power either in the municipal code or previous statutory provisions whereby a municipality may grant to a lighting company the right to jointly use municipal poles, nor can such power be implied from authority to sell either real or personal property, and to treat such pole rights as a mere license might easily result in confiscation to a degree which would exclude the city from larger use demanded by future growth. City of Columbus v. Columbus Public Service Co., 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 329.

6. To contract for waterworks system is within the incidental powers of a city. City of Gadsden v. Mitchell [Ala.] 40 So. 557. A legislative grant of power to the city of Baltimore to lay out additions and alterations to be made to the public wharves and docks held to include power to enlarge the facilities of that part by making entirely new ones. Dyer v. Baltimore, 140 F. 880. Authority to contract a debt carries power to tax for its payment. Rose v. McKie [C. C. A.] 145 F. 584. Power to borrow money does not belong to a municipal corporation as an incident of its creation. White River Sav. Bank v. Superior [C. C. A.] 148 F. 1. Power in a charter provision to require abutting owners to construct sidewalks carries power to require the repair or reconstruction thereof. Walker v. Detroit, 143 Mich. 427, 106 N. W. 1123. Charter power to define privileges of pawnbrokers does not confer power to allow pawnbrokers to charge usury. Lockwood v. Muhlberg, 124 Ga. 660, 53 S. E. 92. Municipality held to have no implied authority to supply water to another municipality. Farwell v. Seattle [Wash.] 86 P. 217. The exclusive control of streets conferred by sec. 77, D. C. Rev. Stat., does not imply power to narrow their width. Walter v. Macfarland, 27 App. D. C. 182.

7. It has been held that no authority exists in a town to conduct an amusement park (Bloomsburg Land Imp. Co. v. Bloomsburg [Pa.] 64 A. 602), but it is within the power of the city and county of Denver to provide by charter for the erection of an auditorium and to purchase a site therefor (City and County of Denver v. Hallett, 34 Colo. 393, 83 P. 1066). City of Greenville, Ala., had no authority to pledge general revenues for payment of furniture to fit up one of its schools. Cleveland School Furniture Co. v. Greenville [Ala.] 41 So. 862. A charter provision conferring power to regulate the erection of lights in the streets does not warrant the establishment of an electric light plant to supply light to the inhabitants. Hyatt v. Williams, 148 Cal. 585, 84 P. 41.

8. While a strict construction should be applied to the grant of powers to municipalities, and especially those which result in public burdens, yet the construction must nevertheless be sensible and based upon the entire context. Lachman v. Walker [Fla.] 42 So. 461. A city has no power to create and appropriate for what is styled a bond improvement fund. City of Chicago v. Brede, 121 Ill. App. 562. Imposition by municipality of requirement, in addition to provisions of general statutes relative to conditions precedent to recording of plats, held unauthorized. Burroughs v. Cherokee [Iowa] 109 N. W. 876. Ordinance prohibiting any city official to serve as a member of a standing committee of any political party declared invalid. City of Richmond v. Lynch [Va.] 56 S. E. 139. Borough, under Pennsylvania Act 1851 (P. L. 320), cannot require railroad company at its own expense to maintain safety gates. In re Pennsylvania R. Co., 213 Pa. 373, 62 A. 986. Power in a board to provide against danger from falling building does with reference to streets and sidewalks,[10] and subjects within the police power,[11] are hereinafter referred to. In addition to the foregoing, municipalities are almost universally invested with power to supply their inhabitants with water,[12] and with gas [13] and electric lighting,[14] either through the medium of a system owned and maintained by the municipality,[15] or by contract with third parties.[16] It has been held, however, that a city may not engage in a commercial enterprise, thereby entering into competition with private individuals.[17] The powers of a municipal corporation are restricted in operation to the municipal limits,[18] and power once exercised is exhausted and may not be invoked again.[19] But where an abutting owner was permitted to pave street in front of his premises, this was not an original paving so as to preclude city from causing it to be done again at expense of adjoining owner.[20]

Judicial control over exercise of powers.[21]—The acts of municipal officers in the exercise of administrative or legislative discretion [22] are not subject to judicial review;[23] but if the authority which a municipality assumes to exercise is granted in general terms, it seems to be universally conceded that the grant is subject to not confer power to contract for storage of wreckage. People v. Metz, 100 N. Y. S. 913.

9. See post, § 12.

10. See post, § 10 E.

11. See post, § 10.

12. City of Gadsden v. Mitchell [Ala.] 40 So. 557. A city exercises its business or proprietary power when it purchases waterworks or contracts for their construction or operation. Omaha Water Co. v. Omaha, 147 F. 1. Kirby's Dig. of Arkansas, §§ 5442-5448, grants express authority to cities to contract for water plant. Lackey v. Fayetteville Water Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 622.

13. Statutory power to construct and establish gas works is broad enough to include natural gas, though when authority was granted natural gas was unknown as an available product. City of Indianapolis v. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 144 F. 640.

14. Potsdam Electric L. & P. Co. v. Potsdam, 49 Misc. 18, 97 N. Y. S. 190; Baker v. Cartersville [Ga.] 56 S. E. 249.

15. Hyatt v. Williams, 148 Cal. 585, 84 P. 41. Purchase of private water plant by city. Revere Water Co. v. Winthrop [Mass.] 78 N. E. 497. S. C. Civ. Code 1902, § 2021, providing for the enlargement, extension and establishment of waterworks, includes purchase of waterworks. Dick v. Scarborough, 73 S. C. 150, 53 S. E. 86. Purchase by a city of waterworks system under contract giving city the right so to do. Galena Water Co. v. Galena [Kan.] 87 P. 735. The existence of a contract between a city and a water company does not preclude the city from constructing a water system on its own account in the absence of a contract stipulation to that effect. City of Meridian v. Farmers' L. & T. Co. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 67. To the same effect is the case of Knoxville Water Co. v. Knoxville, 200 U. S. 22, 50 Law. Ed. 353. See 19 Harv. L. R. 380; 4 Mich. L. R. 561.

16. A city may provide for public safety against fires by contracting for water supply (Dyer v. Newport, 29 Ky. L. R. 656, 94 S. W. 25), but a contract for exclusive service of water, gas, and electricity, held void for want of legislative authority (Water, Light & Gas Co. v. Hutchinson, 144 F. 256). An ordinance under which a corporation is to supply water to a city held to constitute a contract. Lackey v. Fayettville Water Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 622.

17. Buying and selling coal. Baker v. Grand Rapids, 142 Mich. 687, 12 Det. Leg. N. 879, 106 N. W. 208.

18. Exercise of right of eminent domain beyond corporate limits denied. City of Puyallup v. Lacey [Wash.] 86 P. 215. Municipality held to have no authority to supply water to another municipality (Farwell v. Seattle (Wash.) 86 P. 217), nor to individuals beyond corporate limits (Stauffer v. East Stroudsburg Borough [Pa.] 64 A. 411). While a city may not extend its water system to an adjoining city, it may sell the excess of its product to nonresidents. Dyer v. Newport, 29 Ky. L. R. 656, 94 S. W. 25. City of Jersey City held to have no authority to supply water to borough of East Newark because of noncontiguity, the charter permission applying only to contiguous territory. Rehill v. East Newark [N. J. Law] 63 A. 81. Municipal police officers have no jurisdiction to arrest offenders outside of city limits. State v. Stobie, 194 Mo. 14, 92 S. W. 191. See 6 C. L. 720, n. 89.

19. Contract for paving street by railway company. City of Chicago v. Newberry Library, 224 Ill. 330, 79 N. E. 666.

20. City of Louisville v. Gast, 28 Ky. L. R. 1256, 91 S. W. 251. And a vote of a town meeting rejecting proposition to buy water plant does not exhaust the town's right to vote upon the proposition again. Revere Water Co. v. Winthrop [Mass.] 78 N. E. 497.

21. See 6 C. L. 721.

22. Enders v. Friday [Neb.] 111 N. W. 140. Yet if, after an ordinance becomes an accomplished fact, attempt is made to apply it to injury of a citizen, he may complain. In re Twenty-first Street [Mo.] 96 S. W. 201. Exercise of a legislative power clearly delegated can only be reviewed for collusion or fraud. Vacation of streets. Mottman v. Olympia [Wash.] 88 P. 579.

23. Municipal governments are clothed with a very broad discretion over questions of policy, such as purchasing public utilities, which under all ordinary circumstances will better promote the legal welfare than opinions of courts formed under the serious limitations upon their means of ascertaining judicial construction,[24] and matters purely ministerial,[25] or wherein there has been an abuse of power,[26] affecting some particular person or case,[27] or in case of collusion or fraud,[28] may be judicially controlled. A municipal corporation may be adjudged guilty of contempt of court.[29]

§ 8. Legislative functions of municipalities and their exercise. A. Nature and extent of legislative power.[30]—Inasmuch as a municipal corporation is purely a creature of the state,[31] it has only such legislative power as has been granted to it. The extent to which the people of a municipality shall be allowed to directly participate in the governmental function of legislating therefor in local or municipal affairs is purely a question of state policy, in the determination of which the state is not restricted by any provision of the Federal constitution.[32] In practice the legislative power is confined chiefly to the enactment of police regulations,[33] the functions of the legislative department in the initiation of public contracts and improvements,[34] and in the fiscal management of the municipality,[35] being largely of an administrative character. Since the legislative powers exercised by a municipal corporation are derived from the state, it is a general rule that it cannot delegate them to any person or body;[36] neither may a municipality by contract, ordinance, or by-law cede away, limit, or control its legislative or governmental powers, nor disable itself from performing its public duties.[37] Ministerial powers, however, may be delegated.[38]

(§ 8) B. Meetings, votes, rules, and procedure.[39]—A municipal council is a continuous body though its members and officers may change from time to time.[40] It has power by ordinance to establish and adopt suitable rules for its government in matters of procedure,[41] and such rules when adopted will not be set aside unless directly or by necessary implication in conflict with some charter or statutory proand appreciating all the elements involved. Connor v. Marshfield, 128 Wis. 280, 107 N. W. 639.

24. New Orleans & N. W. R. Co. v. Vidalia, 117 La. 561, 42 So. 139.

25. Mandamus lies against a common council where the duty imposed by law is purely ministerial. Mandamus to compel council to appoint an examining board of plumbers. Caven v. Coleman [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 778, 96 S. W. 774.

26. Ordinance for paving. Gardner v. Chicago, 224 Ill. 254, 79 N. E. 624. Employment of city engineer. City of Decatur v. McKean [Ind.] 78 N. E. 982.

27. Collins Hotel Co. v. Collins [Cal. App.] 88 P. 292. The action of a municipal council clearly in the interest of the taxpayers will not be set aside upon a doubtful point of procedure at the suit of a prosecutor who has suffered no special injuries of which he can be heard to complain. Atlantic Gas & Water Co. v. Atlantic City [N. J.] 63 A. 997.

28. Issue of bonds restrained at suit of taxpayer on showing of conspiracy of officers to use proceeds for unlawful purpose. Bates v. Hastings [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 626, 108 N. W. 1085.

29. Marson v. Rochester, 185 N. Y. 602, 78 N. E. 1106, afg. 112 App. Div. 51, 97 N. Y. S. 881.

30. See 6 C. L. 721. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 109, 110; Id. §§ 496-567.

31. Water, Light & Gas Co. v. Hutchinson, 144 F. 256.

32. "Initiative and referendum" provision of Los Angeles charter sustained. In re Pfahler [Cal.] 88 P. 270.

33. See post, § 10.

34. See post, § 12; also Public Contracts, 6 C. L. 1109, and Public Works and Improvements, 6 C. L. 1143.

35. See post, § 13.

36. Determination of material to be used in street paving. City of Baltimore v. Gahan [Md.] 64 A. 716. City council may not delegate to city attorney authority to employ assistants at his discretion. City of Bowling Green v. Gaines, 29 Ky. L. R. 1013, 96 S. W. 852.

37. Contract by city with railroad company for maintenance of viaduct by city set aside. Vandalia R. Co. v. State [Ind.] 76 N. E. 980.

38. The preparation by the board of public service of plans, estimates, specifications, and profiles for a new municipal waterworks system, in accordance with a determining ordinance by council, is not an exercise of legislative power, and authority so to do is conferred upon such board and may be exercised by it, notwithstanding section 127 of the Municipal Code which provides that all power unless otherwise provided is to be exercised by council. Yaryan v. Toledo, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 1.

39. See 6 C. L. 722. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 496-567.

40. Proceedings begun before one council may be continued before succeeding councils. Taintor v. Thurston [Mass.] 78 N. E. 545.

41, 42. State v. Dunn [Neb.] 107 N. W. 236.

vision.[42] Meetings of the council must be held at the time [43] and place [44] fixed, due notice being given of special meetings.[45] A quorum must be present.[46]

(§ 8) C. Records and journals.[47]—Since a council can only speak by its records, these, when properly read and signed, are the only evidence of its action.[48] Failure of clerk to copy ordinance into record book correctly does not invalidate the ordinance.[49] Amendments showing action actually taken may be made nunc pro tunc.[50]

(§ 8) D. Titles and ordaining clauses.[51]—While the constitutional provisions relating to the titles of statutes have no application to ordinances, similar provisions are usually contained in the charter, and are given the same interpretation, viz., that all parts of an ordinance must be germane to the subject-matter,[52] that there must be but one subject [53] which must be expressed with reasonable certainty in the title.[54] It has been held, however, that a title is not essential to the validity of an ordinance.[55]

(§ 8) E. Passage, adoption, amendment, and repeal of ordinances and resolutions.[56]—Ordinances must be uniform [57] and definite.[58] Statutory or charter directions as to the procedure to be observed in the enactment of ordinances and resolutions must be followed.[59] It is not fatal to an ordinance that it was taken up and 43, 44. Shugars v. Hamilton, 29 Ky. L. R. 127, 92 S. W. 564.

45. In the absence of a showing to the contrary, a presumption exists that a special meeting was regularly called and held. City of Rome v. Whitestown Waterworks Co., 113 App. Div. 547, 100 N. Y. S. 357.

46. State v. Briede, 117 La. 183, 41 So. 487. The mayor though entitled to vote in case of a tie is not to be counted in making up a quorum. McLean v. East St. Louis, 222 Ill. 510, 78 N. E. 815. Otherwise of a member of the council chosen mayor pro tem. Shugars v. Hamilton, 29 Ky. L. R. 127, 92 S. W. 564. Three members of the board of police commissioners of Newark city held to constitute a quorum of the board. McManus v. Police Com'rs of Newark [N. J. Law] 62 A. 997.

47. See 6 C. L. 723. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 496-567.

48. Town of Mt. Pleasant v. Eversole, 29 Ky. L. R. 830, 96 S. W. 478. Authentication by acting mayor and acting recorder held sufficient. Lackey v. Fayetteville Water Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 622.

49. Kenaston v. Riker [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 709, 109 N. W. 278.

50. Fleener v. Johnson [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 366.

51. See 6 C. L. 723.

52. City of Paducah v. Ragsdale, 28 Ky. L. R. 1057, 92 S. W. 13.

53. An ordinance providing that all offenses made misdemeanors under the state laws shall be violations of the municipal laws contains only one subject. Winfield v. Jackson [Miss.] 42 So. 183. An ordinance providing for an issue of seventy-five bonds of $1,000 each to meet the city's part of thirty-two sewer and street improvements, which are not more particularly named, is not violative of the requirement of section 1694, Revised Statutes, because containing more than one subject not clearly expressed in the title; on the contrary, such an ordinance contains but one subject, and that is the subject embraced in section 1536-213. Heffner v. Toledo, 9 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 1.

54. Title of saloon ordinance held sufficient. State v. Calloway, 11 Idaho, 719, 84 P. 27.

55. Scanlon v. Denver [Colo.] 88 P. 156.

56. See 6 C. L. 723.

57. Ordinance prohibiting owners of waterworks systems from permitting pipes to remain in leaky condition for more than two days at a time sustained. Crumpler v. Vicksburg [Miss.] 42 So. 673.

58. An ordinance for a street pavement must give such description of the improvement that an intelligent and correct estimate of its cost can be made, and in order to do this the ordinance must either upon its face or by reference to some other ordinance, plat for specifications, indicate the grade of the street. Lindblad v. Normal, 224 Ill. 362, 79 N. E. 675. Ordinance for pavement sustained. Uhlich's Estate v. Chicago, 224 Ill. 402, 79 N. E. 598. Ordinance providing for the construction of sidewalks held sufficiently definite with respect to grade. Gage v. Chicago, 223 Ill. 602, 79 N. E. 294. An insufficient description of boundaries in an ordinance extending fire limits cannot be aided by extrinsic evidence that a street commonly bears a name other than that given in a plat. Lamm v. Danville, 221 Ill. 119, 77 N. E. 422. Ordinance requiring railroad to light street grade crossings with such lights as the city maintains on streets held uncertain as to character of light to be furnished. Chicago I. & L. R. Co. v. Salem [Ind.] 76 N. E. 631.

59. Under Atlantic City charter, ten days' notice only is required of the introduction of an ordinance. Bye v. Atlantic City [N. J. Law] 64 A. 1056. But in Kentucky previous notice is not necessary. City of Paducah v. Ragsdale, 28 Ky. L. R. 1057, 92 S. W. 13. Resolution delivered to mayor's clerk on July 3 but not brought to attention of the mayor until July 6 held to have been "presented" on the 6th and therefore returned within prescribed time. Farwell v. Boston [Mass.] 78 N. E. 303. Requirement that ordinance granting a franchise shall not be passed on day of its introduction held not to apply to ordinance imposing an occupation tax. Shugars v. Hamilton, 29 Ky. L. R. 127, 92 S. W.

considered before being printed as required by charter.[60] An ordinance when put on its final passage should be the same in substance as that introduced at a previous meeting.[61] A majority vote of those present at a council meeting is usually made sufficient,[62] the yeas and nays being taken when required.[63] Where more ballots are cast than there are persons voting in a city council, the fact that one is a blank ballot does not repel the inference of fraud or mistake.[64] The veto power of a mayor should not be anticipated by mandamus proceedings,[65] but a veto containing no statement of objections is of no effect.[66] An ordinance cannot be amended, repealed, or suspended by resolution,[67] but may be corrected by the adoption of a subsequent ordinance.[68] An ordinance may be given immediate effect.[69] Resolutions may be rescinded.[70] In South Dakota a city council has no power to submit resolution for lighting contract to vote of people, since the power resides in the city auditor.[71]

Publication.[72]—In the absence of charter provision, an authorized ordinance is effective from its enactment, neither publication nor promulgation being necessary to its validity.[73] Where a statute of the state provided for publication by two insertions in two newspapers and the city charter provided for publishing an ordinance for two weeks, compliance with the statute was sufficient.[74]

(§ 8) F. Construction and operation of ordinances.[75]—An ordinance may be valid though it does not include the entire corporate limits of a city,[76] and though void in part may be valid as to the remainder.[77] If to enforce the valid provisions of an ordinance, invalid in part, will not carry out the general scheme of the ordinance, the whole ordinance will be declared inoperative.[78] An ordinance is presumptively valid,[79] but the mere fact that an ordinance is reasonable does not determine its validity.[80] The motives of a municipal legislative body are not the sub-

564. Indorsement of recommendation by board of public works held not essential to ordinance for improvement of boulevard. Jaicks v. Merrill [Mo.] 98 S. W. 753.

60. Hallock v. Lebanon [Pa.] 64 A. 362.

61. South Jersey Tel. Co. v. Woodbury [N. J. Law] 63 A. 4.

62. Majority held to mean majority of whole council irrespective of vacancies caused by death. Nalle v. Austin [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 660, 93 S. W. 141. Contra, Board of Com'rs of Salem v. Wachovia L. & T. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 442. In Michigan, ordinance requiring saloonists to pay license does not provide for a tax the imposition of which requires a two-thirds vote. Wells v. Torrey, 144 Mich. 689, 13 Det. Leg. N. 378, 108 N. W. 423; Kenaston v. Riker [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 709, 109 N. W. 278. A proviso that city council may by a two-thirds vote put an ordinance upon its final passage at the same meeting at which it was introduced, or materially amended, is not complied with by the mere passage of such ordinance by a two-thirds vote. South Jersey Tel. Co. v. Woodbury [N. J. Law] 63 A. 4.

63. Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, of Illinois, c. 24, § 41, requires that the yeas and nays be taken on the passage of all ordinances. McLean v. East St. Louis, 222 Ill. 510, 78 N. E. 815.

64. Appointment of city surveyor. State v. Starr, 78 Conn. 636, 63 A. 512.

65. Smith v. Buffalo, 99 N. Y. S. 986.

66. Mayor of Lowell v. Dadman, 191 Mass. 370, 77 N. E. 717.

67. Hearst's Chicago American v. Spiss, 117 Ill. App. 436. Resolution of council suspending ordinance regulating speed of automobiles in order to permit speed contest held invalid. Johnson v. New York [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 715.

68. Ordinance directing issuance of tax bills. City of Fayette v. Rich [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 8.

69. City of Paducah v. Ragsdale, 28 Ky. L. R. 1057, 92 S. W. 13.

70. Resolution held not to create contract relations so as to prevent its being rescinded at a subsequent meeting. Harrison v. New Brighton, 110 App. Div. 267, 97 N. Y. S. 246.

71. Rev. Pol. Code, §§ 1214-1228. Sioux Falls Elec. L. & P. Co. v. Sioux Falls [S. D.] 108 N. W. 488.

72. See 6 C. L. 723.

73. Greer v. Jackson [Ga.] 56 S. E. 73.

74. Croker v. Excise Com'rs of Camden [N. J. Law] 63 A. 901.

75. See 6 C. L. 724.

76. Ex parte Glass [Tex. Cr. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 877, 90 S. W. 1108.

77. City of Gadsden v. Mitchell [Ala.] 40 So. 557; Lackey v. Fayetteville Water Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 622. Where a portion of an ordinance is valid, the addition of matter invalid because punishable only by state laws will not prevent the conviction of one violating the valid portion. Fichtenberg v. Atlanta, 126 Ga. 62, 54 S. E. 933. See 6 C. L. 726, n. 89.

78. Town of Blackshear v. Strickland, 126 Ga. 492, 54 S. E. 966.

79. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Averill, 224 Ill. 516, 79 N. E. 654.

80. City of Chicago v. Reinschreiber, 121 Ill. App. 114.

ject of judicial inquiry,[81] the rule, however, being sometimes relaxed, particularly if fraud can be established.[82] An ordinance which contains terms that can only be made effective by infringing on private rights will be set aside.[83]

(§ 8) G. Pleading and proving ordinances and proceedings.[84]—A printed compilation of ordinances purporting by its title page to have been issued by authority of the council is admissible.[85] State courts cannot take judicial notice of municipal ordinances and regulations; these must be proved as other facts.[86] In actions for injuries growing out of a violation of ordinance provisions, such ordinance and its violation are admissible not as substantive and sufficient proof of a defendant's negligence but as evidence of municipal expression of opinion in regard to an apparent or positive danger.[87]

(§ 8) H. The remedy against invalid legislation.[88]—While the courts are without power to review the exercise of legislative discretion,[89] invalidity resulting from violation of constitutional or charter limitations,[90] or when there is question of fraud,[91] will warrant judicial interposition. Only total want of power in the legislative body will be ground for quo warranto [92] or prohibition,[93] while certiorari will lie for total invalidity,[94] and only in case of irreparable injury, or to avoid multiplicity of proceedings,[95] is injunction available.[96] A taxpayer may maintain suit to restrain a municipal corporation from transcending its legislative powers,[97] and an alderman may in his individual capacity join with other taxpayers for this purpose.[98] So a private water company may join with other taxpayers to restrain the construction of a waterworks system, even though its real purpose be the advantage that may accrue to itself.[99] The officers of a municipal corporation are proper parties defendant and the municipality a necessary party, in a suit to restrain the perpetration of ultra vires acts.[1]

§ 9. Administrative functions, their scope and exercise.[2]—In their adminis-

81. Wiesenthal v. Atlantic City [N. J. Law] 63 A. 759; City of Burlinghame v. Thompson [Kan.] 86 P. 449; People v. Gardner, 143 Mich. 104, 12 Det. Leg. N. 936, 106 N. W. 541.

82. In re Twenty-first St. [Mo.] 96 S. W. 201.

83. Ocean City Land Co. v. Ocean City [N. J. Law] 63 A. 1112.

84. See 6 C. L. 724.

85. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Whiteaker, 122 Ill. App. 333; Hinchliff v. Robinson, 118 Ill. App. 450. See 6 C. L. 724, n. 59.

86. Town of Canton v. Madden, 120 Mo. App. 404, 96 S. W. 699; Texarkana & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Frugia [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 724, 95 S. W. 563. See 6 C. L. 724, n. 55.

87. Shaffer v. Roesch [Pa.] 64 A. 511.

88. See 6 C. L. 724. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. § 560.

89. See ante, § 7. Judicial Control Over Exercise of Powers.

90. Anderson v. Fuller [Fla.] 41 So. 684; Dyer v. Newport, 29 Ky. L. R. 656, 94 S. W. 25.

91. In re Twenty-first Street [Mo.] 96 S. W. 201; Lackey v. Fayetteville Water Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 622.

92. See 6 C. L. 725, n. 65.

93. See 6 C. L. 725, n. 66.

94. Rehill v. East Newark [N. J. Law] 63 A. 81. New Jersey P. L. 1899, § 71, providing that no certiorari shall be allowed to set aside any ordinance for any improvement after the contract therefor shall have been awarded, does not apply to an ordinance to build a fire house. Lockwood v. East Orange [N. J. Law] 64 A. 144. A municipal ordinance which is not entirely void cannot be questioned on certiorari by a person not shown to be affected by any of its provisions. Morwitz v. Atlantic City [N. J. Law] 62 A. 996. See 6 C. L. 725, nn. 69, 70.

95. For the purpose of preventing a multiplicity of suits, an injunction lies to restrain the enforcement of an ordinance not previously declared invalid. Kappes v. Chicago, 119 Ill. App. 436.

96. Smith v. Burlington [Wis.] 109 N. W. 79; Potsdam Elec. L. & P. Co. v. Potsdam, 49 Misc. 18, 97 N. Y. S. 190. The right of a taxpayer to bring an action to enjoin a threatened abuse of corporate power was not created by the municipal code, nor is it restricted to property owners in cities, but, when occasion arises, is equally available to one owning property in a village. Smith v. Rockford, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 513. Bond issue enjoined for fraud. Bates v. Hastings [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 626, 108 N. W. 1005.

97. Dyer v. Newport, 29 Ky. L. R. 656, 94 S. W. 25; Potsdam Elec. L. & P. Co. v. Potsdam, 49 Misc. 18, 97 N. Y. S. 190. But only on showing that he has exhausted all means to bring about action by the city. Merrimon v. Southern Pav. & Const. Co., 142 N. C. 539, 55 S. E. 366.

98. Gillespie v. Gibbs [Ala.] 41 So. 868.

99. Owensboro Waterworks Co. v. Owensboro, 29 Ky. L. R. 1118, 96 S. W. 867. Cf. 6 C. L. 721, n. 1.

1. Gillespie v. Gibbs [Ala.] 41 So. 868.

2. See 6 C. L. 725. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 568-581.

trative functions municipal officers, so long as they act within the charter and in good faith, exercise a discretion [3] which is not subject to judicial control,[4] nor do their acts in the administration of public duties give rise to liability in tort on the part of the municipality.[5] A municipal council may determine to pave a highway with a patented material when the price at which any one may obtain the material is definitely fixed and obtainable by all at such price before the bids are asked for.[6] In designating an official newspaper a city council must act in the manner and upon the evidence required by the city's charter.[7] The obligation assumed by an owner who connects his premises with the city system for the purpose of acquiring light or water is to maintain and pay for the same in accordance with the prescribed rules and regulations of the city upon the theory of implied contract.[8] A city may order the laying of a sidewalk by an abutting owner and in default lay the walk and collect the cost thereof.[9]

§ 10. Police power and public regulations.[10]—This section deals only with matters peculiar to municipal police power, general rules as to the extent and exercise of police power being treated in topics descriptive of the subjects thereof.[11]

(§ 10) A. In general.[12]—Power to make needful police regulations is a proper legislative delegation, but authority to regulate does not give power to suppress.[13] A municipality cannot by affirmative action, or by inaction, permanently divest itself of the authority and right to exercise its police power.[14] In the enactment of ordinances under this power, municipalities are accorded a large discretion, and such ordinances will not be declared void unless unjustly discriminative, oppressive, or unreasonable.[15, 16]. And the restriction as to reasonableness has no applica-

3. A board of public service, where required by a street improvement ordinance to choose one of three materials after bids were received, performs only a ministerial act, and, as the agent of the city council, executes its legislative command. Scott v. Hamilton, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 493.

4. See ante, § 7. Surveillance of liquor store. McGorie v. McAdoo, 113 App. Div. 271, 99 N. Y. S. 1107. And see 6 C. L. 725, n. 74. The discretion of the board of public service is not to be interfered with in the matter of awarding the contract to another than the lowest bidder except for fraud or its legal equivalent. Scott v. Hamilton, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 1.

5. See post, § 14. See, also, 6 C. L. 725, n. 75.

6. Bye v. Atlantic City [N. J. Law] 64 A. 1056. Cf. Siegel v. Chicago, 223 Ill. 428, 79 N. E. 280, and see 5 Mich. Law Rev. 485.

7. People v. Common Council of Troy, 114 App. Div. 354, 99 N. Y. S. 1045.

8. He may be compelled to pay for water and light furnished to his tenant. City of East Grand Forks v. Luck, 97 Minn. 373, 107 N. W. 393.

9. Angle v. Stroudsburg Boro., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 601.

10. See 6 C. L. 726. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 115-139.

11. See Buildings and Building Restrictions, 7 C. L. 507; Exhibitions and Shows, 7 C. L. 1636; Health, 8 C. L. 36; Intoxicating Liquors, 8 C. L. 486; Licenses, 8 C. L. 734, and like topics.

12. See 6 C. L. 726.

13. Billiard and pool room. State v. McMonies [Neb.] 106 N. W. 454; In re McMonies [Neb.] 106 N. W. 456.

14. State v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 269; State v. St. Paul, M. & M. R. Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 261.

15, 16. Reasonable regulation: Ordinance prohibiting infants or females from remaining in saloons over five minutes. Commonwealth v. Price, 29 Ky. L. R. 593, 94 S. W. 32. Prohibiting any person other than proprietor and his family from entering saloon during closed hours. State v. Calloway, 11 Idaho, 719, 84 P. 27. Forbidding the operation of a merry-go-round within one thousand feet of any public park in the city. Scranton City v. Straff, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 258. Limiting speed of automobile to six miles per hour between crossings, and four miles at crossings. Eichman v. Buchheit, 128 Wis. 385, 107 N. W. 325. Regulating trading on streets. State v. Barbelais, 101 Me. 512, 64 A. 881. Ordinance making it unlawful to leave horse unhitched in street. Rowe v. Reneer [Ky.] 99 S. W. 250. An ordinance providing for the separation of races upon street cars, sustained, the design of such ordinance being to safeguard the peace and good order of society within the city. Patterson v. Taylor [Fla.] 40 So. 493. The exception of nurses in charge of children and invalids from operation of such an ordinance does not render it invalid. Crooms v. Schad [Fla.] 40 So. 497. Prohibiting excavation in highway without permit. Edgewood Boro. v. Scott, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 156.

Oppressive regulation: Ordinance prohibiting the burial of bodies within the limits of an entire county. Hume v. Laurel Hill Cemetery, 142 F. 552. Prohibiting the keeping of dogs, whose barking disturbs persons in ill health. Heylman v. District of Columbia, 27 App. D. C. 563. Ordinance relative to trading stamps held unreasonable. City & County

tion to an ordinance passed pursuant to a specific power.[17] The reasonableness of an ordinance is a question of law for the court,[18] and, in determining this question, the legislative expressions of public policy upon the subject sought to be regulated may be considered in connection with the ordinance.[19]

(§ 10) B. For public protection.[20]—If power to legislate upon the subject has been granted, a municipality may regulate or prohibit gaming, and the keeping of gaming places or implements,[21] sale of intoxicants,[22] the conduct of billiard and pool rooms,[23] use of fire arms,[24] regulate the height of buildings,[25] provide against their becoming a menace to life,[26] and forbid structures or practices causing danger of fire [27] or explosion,[28] provided the regulation goes no further than is required by the reasonable necessities of the occasion.[29]

(§ 10) C. Health and sanitation.[30]—Anything which from its nature or surrounding is, or is liable to become, a menace to the public health is a proper subject of police regulation. Thus quarantine regulations may be imposed,[31] the location of of Denver v. Frueauff [Colo.] 88 P. 389. An ordinance requiring saloonkeepers to pay a license fee of $500 held oppressive as to saloonkeepers not engagsd in selling intoxicating liquors (Kenaston v. Riker [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 709, 109 N. W. 278), and an ordinance prohibiting the possession of carcasses to be manufactured into fertilizer, but not otherwise, held invalid for unjust discrimination (Town of Fulton v. Norteman [W. Va.] 65 S. E. 668). An ordinance requiring that sign and billboards shall be constructed not less than ten feet from street line is a regulation not reasonably necessary for the public safety. City of Passaic v. Paterson Bill Posting, Advertising & Sign Painting Co., 72 N. J. Law, 285, 62 A. 267.

17. Ligonier Valley R. Co. v. Latrobe Borough [Pa.] 65 A. 548.

18. Flynn v. Springfield, 120 Ill. App. 266; Hume v. Laurel Hill Cemetery, 142 F. 552. The legislative body of a city being the sole judge of the necessities of a regulation, the same being reasonable on its face, will be so presumed by the courts. In re Newell, 2 Cal. App. 767, 84 P. 226.

19. City of Chicago v. Slack, 121 Ill. App. 131.

20. See 6 C. L. 726.

21. City of Lake Charles v. Roy, 115 La. 939, 40 So. 362; Flynn v. Springfield, 120 Ill. App. 266; White v. Commonwealth, 28 Ky. L. R. 1312, 92 S. W. 285. An ordinance fixing a penalty for being an inmate of a gambling house is valid as an exercise of police power. Lane v. Springfield, 120 Ill. App. 5. See 6 C. L. 726, n. 93.

22. City of Liberty v. Moran [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 948. Entering saloon during closed hours. State v. Calloway, 11 Idaho, 719, 84 P. 27. Allowing females and infants in saloons. Commonwealth v. Price, 29 Ky. L. R. 593, 94 S. W. 32. Requirement that applicant for license procure written assent of majority of property owners in immediate vicinity sustained. City of Baton Rouge v. Butler [La.] 42 So. 650. Ordinance relative to sale of liquors held to apply to restaurant keepers. Scanlon v. Denver [Colo.] 88 P. 156. A physician is within the terms of an ordinance prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors by a pharmacist not having a permit to do so. Braisted v. People [Colo.] 88 P. 150. Ordinance held to be a police regulation and not a revenue measure. Wells v. Torrey, 144 Mich. 689, 13 Det. Leg. N. 378, 108 N. W. 423. See 6 C. L. 726, n. 94.

23. In re McMonies [Neb.] 106 N. W. 466; City of Burlingame v. Thompson [Kan.] 86 P. 449.

24. Police regulation prohibiting discharge of firearms. District of Columbia v. Lewis, 26 App. D. C. 133.

25. Williams v. Boston, 190 Mass. 541, 77 N. E. 509; Welch v. Swasey [Mass.] 79 N. E. 745.

26. Greater New York charter, conferring upon the department of buildings power to render a building temporarily safe, does not authorize contract for storage of materials taken from collapsed building. People v. Metz, 100 N. Y. S. 913. And a contractor employed by the commissioner of buildings to remove an unsafe building, acting under a precept, cannot recover until the precept has been returned by the commissioner and an adjustment made. Parker Co. v. New York, 97 N. Y. S. 200.

27. Ordinance forbidding repair of wooden building damaged to the extent of twenty-five per cent. of its value sustained. Ironside v. Vinita [Ind. T.] 98 S. W. 167. Ordinance prohibiting construction of house nearer than seventy feet to another building, though wholly outside fire limits, exceeded charter powers. Town of Blackshear v. Strickland, 126 Ga. 492, 54 S. E. 966. A municipality having authority to fix fire limits and direct manner of constructing buildings may, by ordinance, declare building not so constructed a nuisance and authorize its abatement. Micks v. Mason [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 472, 108 N. W. 707. It may make it unlawful to erect or maintain tents or movable structures in fire limits. In re Newell, 2 Cal. App. 767, 84 P. 226. See 6 C. L. 727, n. 96.

28. See 6 C. L. 727, n. 96.

29. While a city may destroy buildings maintained within fire limits in violation of an ordinance, it is liable for needless damage. Wheeler v. Aberdeen [Wash.] 87 P. 1061. See 6 C. L. 727, n. 97.

30. See 6 C. L. 727.

31. Liability of borough for food supplied to inmates of quarantined house considered. Borger v. Alliance Boro., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 407.

morgues determined,[32] and burial permits issued.[33] The keeping of hogs may be prohibited,[34] the operation of slaughter houses supervised,[35] and the disposition of garbage provided for.[36] The emission of dense smoke may be prohibited.[37]

(§ 10) D. Regulation and inspection of business.[38]—Regulations restrictive of the conduct of business are justified only by considerations of public comfort, health, or safety.[39] A power usually conferred on municipalities is that of licensing occupations for the purpose of regulation;[40] but license fees must be reasonable,[41] and not unjustly discriminating.[42] Various cases dealing with the subject of licenses are given in the notes.[43]

(§ 10) E. Control of streets and public places.[44]—Paramount authority over municipal streets resides in the state, which may delegate such powers as it sees fit.[45] Under a delegated power to regulate the use of streets, a municipality may regulate the operation of automobiles therein,[46] regulate railroad street crossings,[47] and limit

32. Koebler v. Pennewell [Ohio] 79 N. E. 471.

33. Meyers v. Duddenhauser, 29 Ky. L. R. 393, 93 S. W. 43.

34. But ordinance providing that hogs may not be kept in the city, irrespective of whether such keeping constitutes a nuisance, is invalid. Comfort v. Kosciusko [Miss.] 41 So. 268. Ordinance forbidding keeping hogs within one mile of court house sustained. Ex parte Glass [Tex. Cr. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 877, 90 S. W. 1108.

35. City of Portland v. Cook [Or.] 87 P. 772.

36. Contract for removal of garbage sustained as properly authorized. Detroit Reduction Co. v. Blades, 143 Mich. 591, 13 Det. Leg. N. 73, 107 N. W. 286. An ordinance which limits the use of the public streets for the collection of garbage to a duly authorized contractor is valid as an exercise of police power, if passed in good faith to safeguard the public health. Atlantic City v. Abbott [N. J. Law] 62 A. 999.

37. Palmer v. District of Columbia, 26 App. D. C. 31. See, also, 4 C. L. 739, n. 55.

38. See 6 C. L. 727.

39. Ringing of locomotive bells within city limits. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Whiteaker, 122 Ill. App. 333. Requiring street railway to furnish sufficient cars to prevent overcrowding. City of Chicago v. Chicago City R. Co., 222 Ill. 560, 78 N. E. 890. Penny arcade prohibited from doing business on Sunday. Fichtnberg v. Atlanta, 126 Ga. 62, 54 S. E. 933.

40. A municipal corporation has no inherent power to grant licenses or to exact license fees. Wells v. Torrey, 144 Mich. 689, 13 Det. Leg. N. 378, 108 N. W. 423. In regulating public markets city cannot prevent lessee of stall from employing telephonic service. Swayze v. Monroe, 116 La. 643, 40 So. 926.

41. Grocer selling liquors in quantities less than one gallon may be required to take out license notwithstanding no bar is kept. City of Chicago v. Slack, 121 Ill. App. 131. Mandamus lies to compel common council to revoke liquor license in a case where, upon complaint, the facts requiring the revocation are established beyond dispute. State v. Curtis [Wis.] 110 N. W. 189. License of saloonist may be revoked upon hearing and determination by village council of violation of ordinance. Langan v. Wood River [Neb.] 109 N. W. 748. Subjection of express company to license fee sustained. City of Topeka v. Jones [Kan.] 86 P. 162.

42. An ordinance which imposes a license fee of $300 on temporary stores and transient dealers is invalid, because prohibitive as to some classes, unreasonable as to others, and in restraint of trade. Uhrlaub v. Cincinnati, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 505. Ordinance relative to bill posting held class legislation. City of Watertown v. Rodenbaugh, 112 App. Div. 723, 98 N. Y. S. 885. Ordinance prohibiting delivery of intoxicants by common carriers without obtaining license of $1,000 held invalid. Southern Express Co. v. Rose Co., 124 Ga. 581, 53 S. E. 185.

43. Public vehicles: Ordinance forbidding any person to hire, or offer for hire, rolling chairs on the Board Walk in Atlantic City held valid. Harris v. Atlantic City [N. J. Law] 62 A. 995. Prohibiting hacks and other public vehicles from being kept on streets at places other than public stands. Barnes v. District of Columbia, 27 App. D. C. 101.

Trading stamps: Ordinance held unreasonable. City and County of Denver v. Frueaut [Colo.] 88 P. 389.

Pawn brokers: Power to regulate pawn broking does not authorize permission to charge usurious rates. Lockwood v. Muhlberg, 124 Ga. 660, 53 S. E. 92.

Junk shops: City of Chicago v. Reinschreiber, 121 Ill. App. 114.

Hawkers and peddlers: City of New Orleans v. Fargot, 116 La. 369, 40 So. 735; City of Buffalo v. Linsman, 113 App. Div. 584, 98 N. Y. S. 737; City of Shreveport v. Dantes [La.] 42 So. 716.

44. See 6 C. L. 729.

45. Under the New York constitution (art. 3, § 18), the legislature may not grant a franchise to lay railroad tracks in the streets of a municipality without first obtaining the consent of the local authorities. Wilcox v. McClellan, 186 N. Y. 9, 77 N. E. 986, afg. Id., 110 App. Div. 378, 97 N. Y. S. 311. The control of the streets of the city of Washington for the purpose of protecting them from unlawful encroachment is vested in the commissioners of the district. Bill to enjoin maintenance of show window projecting over building line of street. Guerin v. Macfarland, 27 App. D. C. 478.

46. Eichman v. Buchheit, 128 Wis. 385, 107 N. W. 325; Brazier v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 64 A. 508; City of Bellingham v. Cissna [Wash.] 87 P. 481; Gassenheimer v. District of Columbia, 26 App. D. C. 557. See 6 C. L. 729, n. 30.

47. Borough, under Pennsylvania Act 1851 (P. L. 320), cannot require railroad company at its own expense to maintain safety the speed of railway trains,[46] require precaution in the operation of street cars,[49] limit the speed of teams,[50] require overhead electric wires to be guarded,[51] and prevent the running at large of horned cattle.[52] No use of streets or public places inconsistent with the public easement therein can be authorized.[53] Though a council has power to enact regulations for the moving of buildings through the public streets, that power should not be set in motion in each individual case by resolution,[54] and, where an ordinance prohibits the suspension of a sign across a street, a permit so to do furnishes no justification.[55] A power to regulate the movement of teams in the streets does not authorize exclusion of teams from certain streets.[56] A municipality has the right, and it is its duty, in the exercise of its police power, to supervise and control the introduction and maintenance upon and under the surface of the streets, of the various appliances which subserve the several urban uses to which the highways of a municipality may lawfully be subjected.[57] Among such uses may be enumerated the placing of telegraph and telephone lines,[58, 59, 60] water, gas, and heating mains,[61] lighting wires,[62] and the operation of street [63] and steam gates. In re Pennsylvania R. Co., 213 Pa. 373, 62 A. 986. The power given to cities by the Illinois City and Village Act, to authorize the crossing of a railroad track over a s eet by a street railroad, is not affected by the act creating the state railroad and warehouse commission. East St. Louis R. Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 159. See 6 C. L. 729, n. 31.

48. State v. Atlantic & N. C. R. Co., 141 N. C. 736, 53 S. E. 290; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Dillard [Tex. Civ. App.] 94 S. W. 426; Texarkana & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Frugia [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 724, 95 S. W. 563. City can only regulate; it cannot defeat the right of eminent domain by refusing consent. Memphis & S. L. R. Co. v. Union R. Co. [Tenn.] 95 S. W. 1019.

49. Ashley v. Kanawha Valley Traction Co. [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 1016. Ordinances forbidding street cars to cross railroad track until conductor goes ahead and signals is valid. Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. v. Romans [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 1068.

50. Ordinance limiting driving of teams to six miles an hour admissible in action for injury to a child. Star Brewery Co. v. Houck, 222 Ill. 348, 78 N. E. 827.

51. See 6 C. L. 729, n. 32.

52. City of Paducah v. Ragsdale, 28 Ky. L. R. 1057, 92 S. W. 13; Thomason v. Brownwood [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 418, 98 S. W. 938. See 6 C. L. 729, n. 35.

53. See post, § 11. Commercial trading in the public streets may be prohibited. State v. Barbelais, 101 Me. 512, 64 A. 881. Granting use of street for "carnival" purposes is not an inconsistent use (State v. Stoner [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 399), nor is the construction of a "watch-box" by a railway company leaving ample room for pedestrians (Pickup v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 631). See, also, post, § 11.

54. Hinman v. Clark, 51 Misc. 252, 100 N. Y. S. 1068.

55. Hearst's Chicago American v. Spiss, 117 Ill. App. 436.

56. Peace v. McAdoo, 110 App. Div. 13, 96 N. Y. S. 1039.

57. Quo warranto is a proper remedy to declare a forfeiture of the franchise of a corporation, and of its right to exercise such franchise in the streets of a city under an ordinance. People v. Chicago Tel. Co., 220 Ill. 238, 77 N. E. 245.

58, 59, 60. Keystone State Tel. & T. Co. v. Ridley Park Boro., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 635; People v. Chicago Tel. Co., 220 Ill. 238, 77 N. E. 245; Village of Carthage v. Central New York Tel. & T. Co., 185 N. Y. 448, 78 N. E. 165; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Visalia [Cal.] 87 P. 1023; City of Lancaster v. Briggs, 118 Mo. App. 570, 96 S. W. 314. But a company cannot be compelled to place its wires underground in the same streets in which a like company enjoys open air construction. Village of Carthage v. Central New York Tel. & T. Co., 48 Misc. 423, 96 N. Y. S. 917. Where a telephone company has a right to use any of the streets of a city for its lines, mandamus will not be to compel city to designate the streets to be so used, but only to designate where poles shall be placed. State v. Red Lodge, 33 Mont. 345, 83 P. 642.

61. Anderson v. Fuller [Fla.] 41 So. 684; Scranton Gas & Water Co. v. Scranton [Pa.] 64 A. 84. Water pipes may not be laid in street for private use only. Van Duyne v. Knox Hat Mfg. Co. [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 149. A water pipe under the road bed of a public street cannot be said to be an appendage to or part of the lands abutting on the street in such sense that a police regulation may require the abutting owner to lay the pipe. Doughten v. Camden, 72 N. J. Law, 451, 63 A. 170.

62. United Electric Co. v. Bayonne [N. J. Law] 63 A. 996. Permission to erect poles in streets carries no exclusive right to maintain the same in the original positions. Merced Falls Gas & Elec. Co. v. Turner, 2 Cal. App. 720, 84 P. 239. The right by a public lighting company to maintain its wires on municipal poles cannot be acquired by estoppel, where the company claiming such right has been charged from the beginning with full knowledge that whatever rights it might acquire to the use of such poles must be through strict legal contract with the municipality. City of Columbus v. Columbus Public Service Co., 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 329.

63. Dulaney v. United Rys. & Elec. Co. [Md.] 65 A. 45; Kuhn v. Knight, 101 N. Y. S. 1. Permission to construct subways held to have elapsed. People v. Ellison, 101 N. Y. S. 55. The question of the reasonableness of restrictions in an ordinance granting a location of street railway tracks is one of fact, with the burden on him who asserts railways.[64] The power to regulate carries with it the power to impose a money charge or other obligation as a condition to the enjoyment of the right.[65] While a municipality may, by ordinance, grant to individuals and corporations the privilege of occupying the streets and public ways for the uses specified,[66] such rights are at all times held in subordination to the superior rights of the public.[67] A city may not, however, take away vested rights without notice and an opportunity to be heard.[68] Quo warranto is a proper remedy to declare a forfeiture of privileges exercised in the streets of a city.[69]

(§ 10) F. Definition of offenses and regulation of criminal procedure.[70]—Incident to the power to make police regulations is the power to punish their breach,[71] and, in the exercise of such power, acts made penal by the state law may be punished,[72] but such ordinances are justifiable only by express legislative authority.[73] In defining offenses,[74] or prescribing procedure,[75] a municipality cannot the unreasonableness. Borough of Rutherford v. Hudson River Traction Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 84. Paving a portion of the street, as between the tracks, may be imposed as a condition to the use of the street. Inhabitants of Trenton v. Trenton St. R. Co., 72 N. J. Law, 317, 63 A. 1; Uhlich's Estate v. Chicago, 224 Ill. 402, 79 N. E. 598. Mandamus is the proper remedy for enforcing performance by a traction company of its duty to pave a street pursuant to the terms of the ordinance granting to its predecessor the right to locate tracks in such street. Borough of Rutherford v. Hudson River Traction Co. [N. J. Law] 63 A. 84. Where a contractor for street improvements sues a street railway and a city, on certificates of a city engineer that such railway owed certain amounts for paving, and no ordinance is shown authorizing the transfer of such certificates to the contractor, his alternative demand against the city will be dismissed as in case of nonsuit. Louisiana Imp. Co. v. Baton Rouge Elec. & Gas Co., 114 La. 534, 38 So. 444.

64. Edwards v. Pittsburg Junction R. Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 798. Ordinance granting use of streets and alleys to railway company held not to vacate such streets or alleys so as to allow land to revert to abutting owners. Tonkawa Milling Co. v. Tonkawa, 15 Okl. 672, 83 P. 915. A municipal council is without power, under existing laws, to authorize a railroad company to occupy a street or public landing with an overhead structure, resting upon fixed permanent supports of the character shown in this case and necessarily involving the exclusive use of the grounds so occupied, and an ordinance granting the right to erect such a structure is void. Louisville & Nashville R. Co. v. Cincinnati, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 497.

65. City of Lancaster v. Briggs, 118 Mo. App. 570, 96 S. W. 314. The smallness of a money charge is ineffectual to invalidate an ordinance in the absence of a showing of bad faith. Dulaney v. United Rys. & Elec. Co. [Md.] 66 A. 45. For failure to perform the condition precedent, the city may treat poles and wires in the streets as a nuisance and cause them to be removed. Keystone State T. & T. Co. v. Ridley Park Boro., 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 635. Upon condition broken, a company is without further right and its occupancy constitutes a nuisance which may be enjoined. Edwards v. Pittsburg Junction R. Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 798.

66. Anderson v. Fuller [Fla.] 41 So. 684.

67. Thus a water company placing its pipes in the streets under a franchise contract does so subject to the right of the city to construct sewers wherever the public demands (Anderson v. Fuller [Fla.] 41 So. 684), and a gas and water company is not entitled to recover for damages through removal of pipes on account of change in street grade (Scranton Gas & Water Co. v. Scranton, 214 Pa. 586, 64 A. 84).

68. United Elec. Co. v. Bayonne [N. J. Law] 63 A. 996; Evans v. Boston, 190 Mass. 525, 76 N. E. 905.

69. People v. Chicago Tel. Co., 220 Ill. 238, 77 N. E. 245.

70. See 6 C. L. 729. Procedure on summary trials, see Indictment and Prosecution, 8 C. L. 189.

71. See 6 C. L. 729, n. 40.

72. Brazier v. Philadelphia [Pa.] 64 A. 508. Ordinance proscribing assaults, affrays, and the use of blasphemous language, sustained, though same penalties were provided in state statutes defining same offenses. Town of Neola v. Reichart [Iowa] 109 N. W. 5. See 6 C. L. 729, n. 40.

73. Ordinance punishing gambling. Blodgett v. McVey [Iowa] 108 N. W. 239.

74. See 6 C. L. 729, n. 42.

75. A conviction for violation of a borough ordinance had before a justice of the peace, who is described as acting recorder of the borough, is void for want of jurisdiction. Borough of Vineland v. Kelk [N. J. Law] 63 A. 5. Defect in summons charging violation of ordinance may be amended. Commonwealth v. Price, 29 Ky. L. R. 593, 94 S. W. 32. In Missouri no information is required to be filed in an action arising in a municipal court for violation of ordinance. City of Kirksville v. Munyon, 114 Mo. App. 567, 91 S. W. 57. Under the Mississippi Const. § 26, providing that an accused shall have the right to demand the nature and cause of the accusation, an affidavit, alleging that accused violated an ordinance designated by section and number, is insufficient. Telheard v. Bay St. Louis, 87 Miss. 580, 40 So. 326. A city council cannot by an order necessarily obtain the dismissal of a penal action (Flynn v. Springfield, 120 Ill. App. 266), nor can it by ordinance regulate appeals (City of Paducah v. Ragsdale, 28 Ky. L. R. 1057, 92 S. W. 13). Sentence in the alternative is authorized by Georgia Pol. Code 1895, § 712. Leonard v. Eatonton, 126 Ga. 63, 54 S. E. 263; Shuler v. Willis, 126 Ga. 73, 54 S. E. 965. See 6 C. L. 729, n. 43.

depart from the established meaning of words and the settled rules of procedure. In a trial before a municipal court, the recorder may take judicial notice of the ordinance of the city defining offenses.[76] The Georgia constitution does not guarantee trial by jury to one charged with violation of municipal ordinance.[77] Equity will not interfere to enjoin the prosecution of a violation of a city ordinance,[78] but the validity of an ordinance may be drawn in question by motion to quash the summons.[79] It is not fatal to a judgment upon conviction that it did not recite that respondent be put at labor upon public streets, the ordinance under which conviction was had providing therefor.[80] Where a prosecution results in acquittal, it is improper to render judgment for costs against the city.[81]

§ 11. Property and public places.[82]—The law upon this subject is fully treated elsewhere,[83] only a few cases based on the peculiar status of municipalities being here treated. It is competent for the state when creating municipal governments to retain to itself some control over the state's property situated within the territory of the municipality.[84] It may exercise this control directly or through the medium of other selected and more suitable instrumentalities.[85] Unless otherwise provided a city may acquire and hold land or other property [86] and may devote the public property to any use consistent with its position as trustee for the benefit of its inhabitants,[87] but it cannot sanction a use inconsistent with the public use [88] or amounting to a public nuisance.[89] Streets being held and controlled by a municipality for the 76. Hill v. Atlanta, 125 Ga. 697, 54 S. E. 354.

77. Pearson v. Wimbish, 124 Ga. 701, 52 S. E. 751.

78. City Council of Montgomery v. West [Ala.] 40 So. 215.

79. City of Richmond v. Lynch & Duke [Va.] 56 S. E. 139.

80. Bartlett v. Paducah, 28 Ky. L. R. 1174, 91 S. W. 264.

81. City of Chicago v. Reinschreiber, 121 Ill. App. 114.

82. See 6 C. L. 730. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 717-834.

83. See Parks and Public Grounds, 6 C. L. 885. See, also, Highways and Streets, 8 C. L. 40.

84. Control of buildings for school of the blind in Kentucky. Kentucky Inst. for Education of Blind v. Louisville [Ky.] 97 S. W. 402.

85. Police juries of Louisiana have plenary powers with respect to establishment of public ferries, bridges, and roads. Police Jury of Lafourche v. Robichaux, 116 La. 286, 40 So. 705. Under the "Court House Acts" of Kentucky, the duty of maintaining the court house buildings at Newport devolves upon the commissioners of the district. Commissioners for Court v. Newport, 29 Ky. L. R. 649, 94 S. W. 629.

86. Authority of city over tide water lands. City of Providence v. Comstock, 27 R. I. 537, 65 A. 307. All real estate owned by the city of New Orleans in 1880 and 1884 and not at that time dedicated to public use passed to the board of liquidation. Board of Liquidation of the City Debt v. New Orleans, 116 La. 417, 40 So. 781. Batture property is under the control and administration of the municipality. City of Shreveport v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co., 115 La. 885, 40 So. 298. A power in a city to acquire land to protect the view oceanward from a sidewalk is power to acquire land under water. Power given the city of Long Branch by Pub. Laws 1903, p. 318, § 53, amended by Pub. Laws 1904, p. 347, §§ 4, 8. Murphy v. Long Branch [N. J. Law] 61 A. 593. Certificate of corporation counsel not necessary to enforcement of agreement for purchase of land. Lighton v. Syracuse, 112 App. Div. 589, 98 N. Y. 792.

87. Polling booths may be placed in traveled portion of street. Haberlil v. Boston, 190 Mass. 358, 76 N. E. 907. See 6 C. L. 730, n. 49.

88. Enclosed structure on wheels but unmoved for long periods held an obstruction to proper use of street. Spencer v. Mahon [S. C.] 55 S. E. 321. In Ohio there is an entire absence of power in council, under the statutes as they exist today, to authorize the erection of any structure, abutment, or support in a public way which will necessarily prevent a joint use by the public of the part so occupied. City of Cincinnati v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 217. New York Building Code, § 144, has no application to ordinary commercial signs fastened flat against the outside of a building wall. People v. Schmidt, 51 Misc. 258, 100 N. Y. S. 1094.

89. Outside stairway held a nuisance. McCormick v. Weaver, 144 Mich. 6, 107 N. E. 314. Building used by municipality as hospital for treatment of contagious diseases is not per se a nuisance. State v. Inhabitants of Trenton [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 897. Whether an awning over sidewalk constituted a menace to public safety was question of law for the courts; city had no authority to declare same a nuisance and abate the same summarily. Brown v. Carrollton [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 37. A bill board standing upon private ground, but used by public, and which is blown down, injuring a passer-by, does not constitute a nuisance rendering the city liable. Temby v. Ishpeming [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 667, 108 N. W. 1114.

use of the general public, it may not grant an exclusive use of them for private purposes.[90] The general power over streets, their grades and maintenance, and over bridges and the manner in which they shall be constructed, which is usually possessed by cities, must be considered with reference to, and is limited by, the purposes and uses of public ways.[91] Permits may be authorized by ordinance,[92] and are revocable.[93] The statute of limitations as to adverse possession does not run against a municipal corporation in respect to public property.[94] The doctrine of equitable estoppel, however, is applicable to municipalities in respect to such rights.[95] Equity has jurisdiction to enjoin a municipality from opening and using as a public street, without owners' consent, land which has not been condemned nor dedicated to public,[96] and a court of equity may restrain the illegal use of a street where such use if permitted would constitute a purpresture or public nuisance.[97] A municipality may maintain a suit in equity to prevent encroachment upon and obstruction of highways by land or water under its care and charge.[98]

§ 12. Contracts.[99]—Contracts by public governmental bodies are fully treated in a separate article.[1] Practically the only questions arising upon such contracts which are peculiar to municipalities and proper to be here treated are those relating to unauthorized contracts and the implications and estoppels resulting therefrom. It results necessarily from the limited and delegated character of municipal authority that a municipality can contract only to the extent and in the manner expressly authorized,[2] and contracts for an unauthorized purpose [3] or not executed in

90. City of Chicago v. Verdon, 119 Ill. App. 494; Kansas City v. Hyde, 196 Mo. 498, 96 S. W. 201. Use of street by railway for frog on switch-plate. Morie v. St. Louis Transit Co., 116 Mo. App. 12, 91 S. W. 962. Ordinance granting railroad use of street for yards, switch tracks, and depot grounds, held void. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. People, 120 Ill. App. 306, afd. in 222 Ill. 427, 78 N. E. 790.

91. Construction of approaches to bridge. Ranson v. Sault Ste. Marie, 143 Mich. 661, 13 Det. Leg. N. 113, 107 N. W. 439; Morris v. Sault Ste. Marie, 143 Mich. 672, 107 N. W. 443.

92. An ordinance authorizing inspector of buildings to permit erection of awning covered with wood, iron, tin, or brass, does not cover an awning with iron frame and covered with iron and luxfer prisms. Preston v. Likes, Berwanger & Co., 103 Md. 191, 62 A. 1024. Prior to the adoption of New York City charter of 1897 the board of aldermen and not the board of electrical control was the body competent to grant consent to the laying of electric wires in a subway. People v. Consolidated Tel. & Elec. Subway Co. [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 892.

93. Permits, under N. Y. Gen. Ordinance 1303, § 1, for projection of bay windows, are revocable. Williams v. Silverman Realty & Const. Co., 111 App. Div. 679, 97 N. Y. S. 745. License to construct stone steps and railed areaway extending into sidewalk may be revoked. City of New York v. U. S. Trust Co., 101 N. Y. S. 574.

94. City of Peoria v. Central Nat. Bank, 224 Ill. 43, 79 N. E. 296. Victoria County, Texas, held to have occupied the square upon which its court house is situated adversely to the city of Victoria. City of Victoria v. Victoria County [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 873. 94 S. W. 368.

95. City of El Paso v. Hoagland, 224 Ill. 263, 79 N. E. 658. A municipality may be estopped by its own acts; it cannot deny the existence of facts which, by the action of its duly authorized officers, have theretofore been declared to exist when such facts are necessary to authorize the doing of some other thing which has misled another to his prejudice. Raynolds v. Cleveland, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 278.

96. McGourin v. De Funiak Springs [Fla.] 41 So. 541. See, also, Eminent Domain, 7 C. L. 1276; Injunction, 8 C. L. 279.

97. Use of street by railway. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. People, 120 Ill. App. 306. Section 3337-1 is a statute penal in its nature, and the maxim expressio unius est exclusio alterius cannot be invoked in order to derive therefrom power vesting in the municipal corporation the right to grant to railroads the exclusive use of the public streets. But even if the power were lodged by the statutes in council to grant some use of the city streets to railroads for placing piers, posts, or supports therein, the power could not be abused by council, and if it is abused in such a way as to interfere with the ordinary rights of the public in and to the ordinary use of such streets, a court of equity will interpose by injunction. City of Cincinnati v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 217. Injunction to prevent city from maintaining public dump. Shreck v. Coeur d' Alene [Idaho] 87 P. 1001.

98. City of Milwaukee v. Gimbel Bros. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 7.

99. See 6 C. L. 731. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 246-299.

1. See Public Contracts, 6 C. L. 1109.

2. Under the Detroit charter a contract for the destruction of garbage to be collected by the city may be made by the council without previously submitting it to the commissioner of public works and obtaining an estimate from him. Detroit Reduction Co. v. Blades, 143 Mich. 591, 13 Det. Leg. N. 73, 107 N. W. 286.

3. Contract with water company for ex-the prescribed manner [4] are invalid.[5] But a contract irregularly made or made without authority may be ratified so as to impose liability upon the municipality.[6] Where benefits have been received under an invalid contract, it has been held, on principles of implied contract or estoppel,[7] the municipality is liable, but on the other hand it has been held that neither implied contract [8] nor estoppel will arise.[9] Persons dealing with a municipal corporation are presumed to know the extent of its powers.[10] In the exercise of legislative powers a city council may make no grant or contract which will bind the municipality beyond its term of office, since they may not lawfully circumscribe the powers of their successors,[11] but in the exercise of business powers so called the municipality and its officers are controlled by no such rule, and they may lawfully exercise these powers in the same way, and in their exercise the city will be governed by the same rules which control an individual or a private corporation under like circumstances.[12] A municipality acting through its clusive franchise held ultra vires and void. Water, Light & Gas Co. v. Hutchinson, 144 F. 256. So of a contract for purchase of gas property at appraised value. City of Indianapolis v. Consumers' Gas Trust Co. [C. C. A.] 144 F. 640. The fact that public policy and good business judgment favor an advantageous contract by a city for the joint use of city poles by an electric lighting company furnishes no warrant to a court to assist in a continuance of such use, where the entering into such a contract is manifestly ultra vires on the part of the municipality. City of Columbus v. Columbus Public Service Co., 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 329. A thirty year contract between a city and a water company, the city having no authority to contract beyond twenty years, is valid at least for the lesser period, the contract being separable by years. McGonigale v. Defiance, 140 F. 621. Contracts by which the police power is attempted to be forever abdicated are ultra vires and void. State v. St. Paul, M. & M. R. Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 261; State v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 269.

4. Contract to lowest bidder. Anderson v. Fuller [Fla.] 41 So. 684. But contracts within ordinary corporate powers of the city, though not in writing nor evidenced by resolution or ordinance, are binding in the absence of statutory mode of procedure. City of Decatur v. McKean [Ind.] 78 N. E. 982. A charter provision requiring a public work to be submitted to lowest bidder does not apply to contract for supervision of its construction. City of Houston v. Potter [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 691, 91 S. W. 389. It is competent for a municipality to award a contract for a public work as an entirety rather than to parcel it out, where it is evident that the entire work can be done with greater expedition and better results than under a single contract. Bye v. Atlantic City [N. J. Law] 64 A. 1056. The provision of section 143 of the Ohio Municipal Code that the board of public service shall make a contract with the lowest and best bidder, or may reject any and all bids, does not limit the board to a mathematical computation as to who is the lowest responsible bidder, but permits the board to go beyond the price bid and the character of the bidder and to accept the best proposition offered, considering quality, feasibility and efficiency of the thing to be furnished, the qualifications and responsibility of the bidder, and the price proposed in view of all the other considerations. Yaryan v. Toledo, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 1.

5. A contract to donate a specified sum in consideration of the establishment of a factory being invalid, a city can not recover on a bond given to secure the performance of the contract on the part of the company. Collier Shovel & Stamping Co. v. Washington [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 122. See 4 Mich. L. R. 405. See 6 C. L. 731, n. 58.

6. A contract entered into in violation of a mandatory charter provision can only be ratified by an observance of the conditions essential to a valid agreement in the first instance. City of Plattsmouth v. Murphy [Neb.] 105 N. W. 293.

7. A contract to which a municipality is a party, executed and acted upon for thirty years, is entitled to the presumption of regularity. Marklove v. Utica, C. & B. R. Co., 48 Misc. 258, 96 N. Y. S. 795. One who has performed work for a municipality in accordance with his contract and has not been paid therefor, has a right to a judgment at law for the contract price, and he cannot resort to mandamus to compel the levying of an assessment of tax to pay his judgment until it appears that it cannot be enforced by execution. State v. Mt. Vernon, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 317. See 6 C. L. 731, n. 59.

8. See 6 C. L. 731, n. 60.

9. Sale by member of council to town. Bay v. Davidson [Iowa] 111 N. W. 25. Municipality not estopped to deny validity of contract. People v. Voorhies, 114 App. Div. 351, 99 N. Y. S. 918. Performance of unauthorized contract does not entitle one to audit of claim. Niland v. Bouron, 113 App. Div. 661, 99 N. Y. S. 914. See 6 C. L. 731, n. 61.

10. Bloomsburg Land Imp. Co. v. Bloomsburg [Pa.] 64 A. 602. Dock master under Greater New York charter has no power to bind the city to pay for work done by his direction. Sheridan v. New York, 145 F. 835. Compensation for extra time by city employe. May v. Chicago, 222 Ill. 595, 78 N. E. 912.

11. Board of aldermen cannot make contract for legal services for an unlimited period and irrevocable by their successors. City of Wilmington v. Bryan, 141 N. C. 666, 54 S. E. 543.

12. Lackey v. Fayetteville Water Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 622. Suspension of power by contract to regulate water and gas legislative body has no power to enter into contracts which curtail or prohibit an exercise of its legislative or administrative authority.[13] It, however, may be the depository as trustee for its citizens of a contract obligating a railroad to locate and maintain general offices and shops within the city.[14]

§ 13. Fiscal affairs and management.[15]—Municipal bonds are treated in a separate topic,[16] and such questions as the consent of electors to an indebtedness, which arise usually with special reference to bonded indebtedness, will be found more fully treated there. The power to issue bonds is only given for particular purposes and the municipality has no power to use the proceeds for other purposes.[17] As a safeguard against official improvidence, it is frequently provided by charter that no indebtedness shall be incurred unless provision for its payment be then made[18] or until an appropriation has been made for unpaid liabilities,[19] or to an amount exceeding the current revenues,[20] and to the same end is a common provision that no extraordinary expense[21] shall be incurred unless authorized by popular vote[22] at an election duly held. Proceedings for an examination into fiscal affairs are sometimes provided.[23]

Funds and appropriations.[24]—Public funds can be devoted only to public purposes,[25] and money appropriated for a specific purpose will be regarded as still in the treasury applicable to such purpose, notwithstanding the fact that it has been diverted to other purposes.[26] Contracts divisible into annual periods and therefore within annual appropriations and limitations upon indebtedness are not invalid, although the aggregate amount may exceed the limit.[27] That the estimated cost of rates. Omaha Water Co. v. Omaha [C. C. A.] 147 F. 1.

13. State v. Minneapolis Park Com'rs [Minn.] 110 N. W. 1121.

14. City of Tyler v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. [Tex.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 839, 91 S. W. 1.

15. See 6 C. L. 732. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 410-495.

16. See Municipal Bonds, 8 C. L. 1046.

17. Owensboro Waterworks Co. v. Owensboro, 29 Ky. L. R. 1118, 96 S. W. 867. See 6 C. L. 732, n. 74.

18. A resolution to maintain a free public library and to provide a suitable site for the same sustained, such resolution not involving the expenditure of money within the inhibition of a statutory provision requiring that there shall be filed a certificate of the clerk that the money required is in the treasury to the credit of the fund. Smith v. Evans, 74 Ohio St. 17, 77 N. E. 280. The New Jersey Garbage act of 1902 (P. L. p. 200), making provision for raising the necessary funds during the continuance of a contract made in pursuance of the act, an ordinance directing the mayor and clerk to execute such contract without a previous appropriation to meet the expense, is valid. Townsend v. Atlantic City, 72 N. J. Law 474, 65 A. 509.

19. Where a municipal board is independent of and has entire control of funds in its hands, it can enter into contract relations without an appropriation. Saltsman v. Olds [Pa.] 64 A. 552. An appropriation for "salaries and labor of police department" held to cover a deficiency in an appropriation specially intended for the clerk of the board. Smith v. Lowell, 190 Mass. 332, 76 N. E. 956. See 6 C. L. 733, n. 80.

20. City of Providence v. Providence Elec. Light Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 1015, 91 S. W. 664. See 6 C. L. 733, n. 81.

21. See 6 C. L. 733, n. 82.

22. McNutt v. Lemhi County [Idaho] 84 P. 1054. Under a constitutional provision prohibiting incurrence of debt except by a majority vote of the electors of the city, a majority only of the electors voting is not sufficient. Williamson v. Aldrich [S. D.] 108 N. W. 1063.

23. The New Jersey act (P. L. 1879, as amended, P. L. 1898), providing for a summary investigation of county and municipal expenditures held constitutional. City of Hoboken v. O'Neill [N. J. Law] 64 A. 981. See 6 C. L. 733, n. 86.

24. See 6 C. L. 733.

25. Buying and selling coal, even under the exigency of a coal famine, is not a public purpose. Baker v. Grand Rapids, 142 Mich. 687, 12 Det. Leg. N. 879, 106 N. W. 208. A contract for the donation of a sum of money as an inducement to the establishment of a manufactory being void, an action on the bond given by the company for faithful performance cannot be maintained by the city for breach of contract. Collier Shovel & Stamping Co. v. Washington [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 122. Illinois Laws 1893, p. 136, authorizing city treasurer to retain certain portion of the interest on funds under his control, not violative of the constitutional provision against donating public money to an individual for private use. City of Chicago v. Wolf, 221 Ill. 130, 77 N. E. 414.

26. So held where the amount of a draft held by a village was included in a tax levy and the money raised for the payment of the draft came into the hands of the village treasurer. People v. Owens, 110 App. Div. 30, 96 N. Y. S. 1054.

27. Toomey v. Bridgeport [Conn.] 64 A. 215.

an improvement was not made a part of the first resolution, the final resolution containing all the elements required by statute, is not material.[28] Under New Orleans charter judgments are payable in the order in which they are filed and registered, and out of money appropriated for that purpose.[29] Equity will interfere at the suit of a taxpayer to restrain the misapplication of funds.[30]

Warrants.[31]—General warrants issued on judgments awarded against city by collusion with its officers, [32] or county warrants in payment of indebtedness unlawfully incurred, or void.[33] An ordinance providing for city improvements being invalid, as were subsequent reassessment ordinances, the holder of warrants given in payment for the improvement is entitled to have a proper reassessment ordinance passed,[34] and mandamus will lie to compel such reassessment;[35] but mandamus will not lie to compel payment of an order or warrant based on an illegal contract.[36] In a proceeding against a county treasurer to pay warrant, he may retain an amount equal to relator's taxes.[37] Though a warrant is not negotiable unless made so by statute,[38] it may be such evidence of indebtedness as will support an action by the payee.[39] In the absence of prohibitory restrictions, a municipality may provide for the payment of interest on its warrants.[40] Town warrants held not to have been canceled and reissued at time of their deposit in a bank.[41]

Limitation of indebtedness.[42]—Almost without exception, municipalities are prohibited from incurring indebtedness above a certain sum usually fixed at a percentage of the assessed valuation.[43] Such a limitation, unless otherwise stated, has only a prospective operation, and indebtedness created or assumed prior to the passage of an act may not be considered in ascertaining whether the prescribed limit has been reached.[44] In determining whether a city's limit of indebtedness has been reached, money in sinking fund and applicable only to payment of bonded indebtedness not yet matured is to be deducted from its debt.[45] Further cases illustrative of the restriction in question are given in the notes.[46]

28. Heiple v. Washington, 219 Ill. 604, 76 N. E. 854.

29. State v. City Council, 116 La. 851, 41 So. 115.

30. Allen v. Milwaukee, 128 Wis. 678, 106 N. W. 1099. But equity will not enjoin a municipality from breaking a contract it has entered into, since, if it does, it may be sued at law for damages. Cox v. Jones, 73 N. H. 504, 63 A. 178.

31. See 6 C. L. 734.

32. State v. Tanner [Wash.] 88 P. 321.

33. McNutt v. Lemhi County [Idaho] 84 P. 1054.

34, 35. Waldron v. Snohomish, 41 Wash. 566, 83 P. 1106.

36. People v. Grout, 111 App. Div. 924, 98 N. Y. S. 185.

37. Funk v. State [Ind.] 77 N. E. 854.

38. See 6 C. L. 734, n. 8.

39. Coleman v. New Kensington, 140 F. 684.

40. State v. Stout [Wash.] 86 P. 848.

41. Town of Manitou v. First Nat. Bank [Colo.] 86 P. 75.

42. See 6 C. L. 735.

43. City of Mankato v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 329.

44. City of Tiffin v. Griffith, 74 Ohio St. 219, 77 N. E. 1075.

45. Williamson v. Aldrich [S. D.] 108 N. W. 1063.

46. Street improvements, a portion of the cost of which is to be defrayed by special assessment on abutting property, will not create an indebtedness within the meaning of such limitation. Corey v. Ft. Dodge [Iowa] 111 N. W. 6. An ordinance for the levy of a one per cent tax for fifteen years for the payment of water bonds to be issued, and providing for the issuance of such bonds for the payment of which the tax so levied and the income of water works was pledged, offends the constitutional limitation in question. Village of East Moline v. Pope, 224 Ill. 386, 79 N. E. 587. New York Const. (Art. 8, § 10), requiring an act authorizing the issuance of bonds to provide for a sinking fund, has no application to a case where the ten per cent limit of indebtedness fixed by the constitution has not been reached. City of Rome v. Whitestown Waterworks Co., 113 App. Div. 547, 100 N. Y. S. 357. Bonds may not be antedated and thereby made to realize more than they were worth on the day of sale which would operate as a sale not only of the bonds but of the accrued interest, thereby increasing the city's debt limit. Owensboro Waterworks Co. v. Owensboro, 29 Ky. L. R. 1118, 96 S. W. 867. In Pennsylvania the bonded indebtedness of a borough, made by vote of the electors, is to be deducted in computing the indebtedness which may be incurred. Coleman v. New Kensington, 140 F. 684. Missouri constitutional amendment (Art. 10, § 12a), permitting a further indebtedness not exceeding an additional five percentum for the purpose of purchasing or constructing waterworks or light plants, does not

§ 14. Torts and crimes.[47]—A municipal corporation exercises functions of two classes, private and governmental.[48] In respect to matters of the former class, it is liable for the negligent acts of its officers and employes in the due course of duty to the same extent as a private corporation.[49] In the exercise of its governmental functions, the municipality possesses the attributes of sovereignty and is not liable in tort in the absence of statute imposing such liability.[50] Under this rule a municipality is not liable for negligence connected with the operation of its fire,[51] health,[52] and police departments,[53] or the maintenance of its school system,[54] nor the erection and maintenance of its public buildings,[55] unless the same are so maintained as to constitute a nuisance.[56] Nor is liability incurred by a city for failure to pass or enforce ordinances,[57] or for failure to furnish protection against mob violence.[58] Neither is a city liable for destruction of property by fire through failure to furnish adequate water supply.[59] With respect to facilities designed for the use and benefit of the public, the municipality is not liable for any matter growing out of the plan of the work,[60] but is liable for failure to keep such facilities in repair,[61] or for negligence in the actual execution or construction of its public works.[62] admit of a proposed bond issue for sewers (State v. Wilder, 197 Mo. 1, 94 S. W. 495), and, while under this amendment a city may bond to erect or construct a waterworks or lighting system, it may not do so to maintain and operate the same. State v. Wilder [Mo.] 98 S. W. 465.

47. See 6 C. L. 735. See also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 950-1066.

48. MacMullen v. Middletown, 112 App. Div. 81, 98 N. Y. S. 145.

49. A municipality operating an electric light plant is not exercising governmental functions and hence is liable for negligence of employes. Davoust v. Alameda [Cal.] 84 P. 760.

50. A city engaged in repairing its streets by means of a steam road roller held not liable for fire originated by sparks emitted from the engine. Alberts v. Muskegon [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 735, 109 N. W. 262. City not liable for negligence of public servant in removal of ashes from dwelling house. Haley v. Boston, 191 Mass. 291, 77 N. E. 888.

51. Flushing hydrant frightening horse. Brink v. Grand Rapids, 144 Mich. 472, 13 Det. Leg. N. 306, 108 N. W. 430. Trespass by fire department horse. Cunningham v. Seattle, 42 Wash. 134, 84 P. 641, 82 P. 143. See 6 C. L. 735, n. 22.

52. Beeks v. Dickinson County [Iowa] 108 N. W. 311.

53. Municipality not liable for injuries occasioned by unsanitary condition of prison to one incarcerated therein. Shaw v. Charleston, 57 W. Va. 433, 50 S. E. 527. Failure to keep jail properly warmed. Jones v. Corbin [Ky.] 98 S. W. 1002.

54. No liability for injuries to child by falling of plaster from the ceiling of schoolroom. Rosenblit v. Philadelphia, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 587. Contra. Wahrman v. New York, 111 App. Div. 345, 97 N. Y. S. 1066.

55. Liability denied where injury resulted from careless elevator service in county building (Moest v. City of Buffalo & County of Erie, 101 N. Y. S. 996); but the operation of elevator in a police station is not the exercise of a governmental function and does not relieve from liability (Wilcox v. Rochester, 114 App. Div. 734, 99 N. Y. S. 1020). See 5 Mich. L. R. 136.

56. A municipality, even in the performance of its governmental functions, may not perpetuate a nuisance. Violation of smoke ordinance. Palmer v. District of Columbia, 26 App. D. C. 31. City held liable for fire arising from negligent deposit of refuse on public dumping ground (City of Denver v. Davis [Colo.] 86 P. 1027), likewise for death caused by horse frightening at pile of rubbish in street (Board of Councilmen v. Fain [Ky.] 99 S. W. 275).

57. Riding of bicycles on sidewalks. Millett v. Princeton [Ind.] 79 N. E. 909; Hull v. Roxboro, 142 N. C. 453, 55 S. E. 351.

58. Long v. Neenah, 128 Wis. 40, 107 N. W. 10. See 6 C. L. 735, n. 21.

59. Nor is a company under contract to furnish water to the city liable. Peck v. Sterling Water Co., 118 Ill. App. 533. Contra. Guardian Trust & Deposit Co. v. Fisher, 200 U. S. 57, 50 Law. Ed. 367; Mugge v. Tampa Waterworks Co. [Fla.] 42 So. 81. These cases were actions ex delicto and liability was placed upon the ground of negligence in performing a duty owed the public. See, also, 5 Mich. Law Rev. 362. Guardian Trust & Deposit Co. v. Fisher, 200 U. S. 57, 50 Law. Ed. 367. See 4 Mich. L. R. 540. The principle of the Peck case was applied to a case where a company under contract with city failed to properly light streets and injury resulted. City Council of Montgomery v. Halse [Ala.] 40 So. 665. See 6 C. L. 736, n. 33.

60. Fall from viaduct stairway. Watters v. Omaha [Neb.] 107 N. W. 1007. Sewer backing up. Davis v. Bangor, 101 Me. 311, 64 A. 617. Not liable for injury to property by deficiency of sewer due to defects in original plan of construction (Robinson v. Everett, 191 Mass. 587, 77 N. E. 1151), and it is immaterial that the sewer was constructed before the city was incorporated (Id.).

61. Escape of water from reservoir. Wiltse v. Red Wing [Minn.] 109 N. W. 114. Flooding by defective water main. Kirk & Co. v. Cunningham & Kearns Contracting Co., 99 N. Y. S. 879.

62. Construction of sewer. City of Louisville v. Hess' Adm'x [Ky.] 99 S. W. 265. Defective water main. Morgan v. Duquesne

With respect to street lighting,[63] and the construction and operation of sewer systems,[64, 65] and the casting of water in altering street grades,[66] the cases are not in unison. A municipality in maintaining and repairing a highway, acts as agent of the state, and is not responsible for injury to persons [67] or property,[68] in the absence of a statute creating liability. But municipal immunity from liability does not extend beyond the governmental duty imposed by the state.[69] It has been held that an abutting owner claiming to be injured must resort to an action at law,[70] but that a proposed change of grade of a street, seriously injuring abutting property and uncompensated, may be enjoined.[71] A municipality is liable for the consequences of an unlawful use of its streets sanctioned by its permit,[72] and dangerous places in grounds or ways for public use must be guarded with reasonable prudence.[73] To charge a municipality

Boro., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 100. Death from broken electric wire. Aiken v. Columbus [Ind.] 78 N. E. 657.

63. Liability imposed for injuries from wires. Fisher v. New Bern, 140 N. C. 506, 53 S. E. 542; City of Richmond v. Lincoln [Ind.] 79 N. E. 445; Eaton v. Weiser [Idaho] 86 P. 541. But city not liable for failure of company, under contract with city to light streets, to properly light the streets. City Council of Montgomery v. Halse [Ala.] 40 So. 665.

64, 65. Liability imposed: Construction of sewer causing walls of building to settle. Johnson v. St. Louis, 137 F. 439. Insufficient drainage of surface water flooding cellar. City of McCook v. McAdams [Neb.] 106 N. W. 988. Filling up of drain pipe throwing surface water onto abutting land. Town of Central Covington v. Beiser, 29 Ky. L. R. 261, 92 S. W. 973. Deposit of filth from sewer causing sickness. City of Madisonville v. Hardman, 29 Ky. L. R. 253, 92 S. W. 930. Nonaction by city, where private sewer connects with gutters depositing offal in such wise as to cause injury, renders city liable. City of Vicksburg v. Richardson [Miss.] 42 So. 234.

Liability denied: Backing of water into cellar during unusual rainstorm. Ebberts v. New York, 111 App. Div. 364, 97 N. Y. S. 833. Flooding cellar. Watson v. New York, 99 N. Y. S. 860. Unprecedented rainfall. Holzhausen v. New York, 102 N. Y. S. 145.

66. A municipality has no right to collect surface water in an artificial channel and cast it upon an abutting owner. City of Valparaiso v. Spaeth [Ind.] 76 N. E. 514; City of Valparaiso v. Spaeth [Ind.] 74 N. E. 518; Cromer v. Logansport [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 1045; City of Houston v. Richardson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 107, 94 S. W. 454. Injunctive relief denied. Penfield v. New York, 101 N. Y. S. 422.

67. City liable for faulty operation of drawbridge. Naumburg v. Milwaukee [C. C. A.] 146 F. 641. See note in 5 Mich. L. R. 218.

68. Defective condition of street delaying fire department in responding to call does not renler city liable for the loss of property. Hazel v. Owensboro [Ky.] 99 S. W. 315. Injury to abutting owners through grading of street, reasonable care and skill being exercised, is damnum absque injuria. Davis v. Silverton, 47 Or. 171, 82 P. 16. Though in opening streets the change of rural lands to urban property results in some injury to abutting owners, the municipality incurs no liability. Strauss v. Allentown [Pa.] 63 A. 1073. Erection and maintenance of approaches to bridge to injury of abutting owners. Sadlier v. New York, 185 N. Y. 408, 78 N. E. 272. No liability for injuries to abutting owner by original establishment of street grade, the grade being reasonable and the work properly done. Fletcher v. Seattle [Wash.] 86 P. 1046.

69. Town held liable for injuries from surface water. Rudnyai v. Harwinton [Conn.] 63 A. 948. Measure of damages stated for lowering grade of alley. McMillen v. Columbia [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 953.

70. De Lucca v. North Little Rock, 142 F. 597.

71. Hart v. Seattle, 42 Wash. 113, 84 P. 640.

72. City held liable for permitting "slide for life" wire to be stretched across street whereby pedestrian was injured through fall of performer. Wheeler v. Ft. Dodge [Iowa] 108 N. W. 1057. A municipality is liable for damages to one injured from contact with a telephone or telegraph pole, which has been so placed in a public street as to become a nuisance or dangerous, and the municipality has knowledge thereof or in the exercise of ordinary care and prudence should know of its existence. City of Norwalk v. Jacobs, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 229. Whether or not such a pole is dangerous to the public or a nuisance is a question for the jury, to be determined under proper instructions from the court and all the circumstances of the case. Id.

Contra: Discharge of fireworks. De Agramonte v. Mt. Vernon, 112 App. Div. 291, 98 N. Y. S. 454. And where the city allowed the construction of a "Ferris Wheel" in a street whereby horse became frightened, liability was denied because the driver deliberately chose the street in question when a safer street was at hand. Bechtel v. Mahanoy City, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 135. Under the New York Code defendant, in an action for personal injuries on public street, cannot raise question of muincipal permission under general denial. Blake v. Meyer, 110 App. Div. 734, 97 N. Y. S. 424.

73. Municipality liable for permitting pool of water impregnated with acids to continue along edge of street and without intervening fence or barrier, and child of tender years strays in and is killed (Welda v. Hanover Tp., 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 424), and for escape of water from reservoir constructed and separated by it (Wiltse v. Red Wing

pality with liability for the defective condition of any of its public places or facilities, it must have had actual or constructive notice thereof,[74] the question of constructive notice being for the jury.[75] A municipal corporation is liable for the acts of its officers, servants, or agents, done within the scope of their authority.[76] A city is not liable for the acts of an independent contractor engaged in the construction of a public work,[77] unless the matter involved is one of positive duty to an individual, in its nature non-delegable,[78] or unless the work is intrinsically dangerous or liable to create a nuisance.[79] The liability of city for tort, where it embarks in the management of any utility for profit, is to be determined by the same tests that apply to individuals or private corporations.[80] A contractor or third person, even in the absence of express contract, may be answerable to a municipal corporation for negligence in executing a public work or keeping a street in repair;[81] but, where a bond has been given to indemnify the city, the respective rights and liabilities of the parties is determined by such bond.[82]

§ 15. Claims and demands.[83]—Statutes usually require that notice be given to municipalities within a limited time of demands for injuries received by reason of defective streets, sidewalks, or otherwise.[84] The provisions of these statutes or-[Minn.] 109 N. W. 114). Also for allowing manhole to project above surface of street. (City Council of Montgomery v. Reese [Ala.] 40 So. 760), but not to one fording a creek and falling into hole formed at the mouth of a sewer emptying into the creek (Zehe's Adm'r v. Louisville, 29 Ky. L. R. 1107, 96 S. W. 918), nor for death caused by the falling of a water pipe attached to the side of a building unless city had notice (Mitchell's Adm'r v. Brady [Ky.] 99 S. W. 266), nor for injury to passerby by falling of a bill board in wind storm (Temby v. Ishpeming [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 667, 108 N. W. 1114).

74. Mitchell's Adm'r v. Brady [Ky.] 99 S. W. 266. Actual notice not necessary. Dinsmore v. St. Louis, 192 Mo. 255, 91 S. W. 95. A city permitting the obstruction of a street by stretching of a "slide for life" wire across it held chargeable with notice from moment of its erection. Wheeler v. Ft. Dodge [Iowa] 108 N. W. 1057. Presence of mortar boxes in street for three or four weeks held constructive notice. Munley v. Sugar Notch Borough [Pa.] 64 A. 377. Where the dangerous character of an obstruction on the sidewalk is the graveman of a petition for damages on account of injuries sustained in walking thereon, the testimony must establish that the city had notice actual or constructive of the dangerous condition of the walk in time to remedy it, and that the obstruction was one it was the city's duty to remove, and, having received such notice, it failed to remove it. An allegation of notice does not under strict rules of pleading support proof of constructive notice, and constructive notice cannot be based upon temporary conditions of recent operation. Schneider v. Cincinnati, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 57. Performance of a condition with respect to actual notice to a city of snow and ice on walks must be both alleged and proved. MacMullen v. Middletown [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 863.

75. Goff v. Philadelphia, 214 Pa. 172, 63 A. 481. Where the testimony goes to show that a plaintiff was injured by a fall in the nighttime upon a sidewalk on which ice had accumulated, and that the condition was peculiar to this place in the sidewalk and not general throughout the city, and that the city, through its officers, had knowledge of the condition of the walk while he was ignorant of its condition, a case is presented for the jury. Barry v. Akron, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 575.

76. Barree v. Cape of Girardeau, 197 Mo. 382, 95 S. W. 330. Falling of sand tub because of improper fastening by city employe. McMullen v. New York, 110 App. Div. 117, 97 N. Y. S. 109. Improperly guarded trench across sidewalk. Bennett v. Everett, 191 Mass. 364, 77 N. E. 886. While a municipality is liable for the negligent failure of its council or engineer with reference to the repair and keeping of a street or sidewalk open and safe, no liability attaches on account of errors of judgment on the part of these officers in the performance of these duties in good faith. Schneider v. Cincinnati, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 57. Board of health of Yonkers not an agent of the city so as to impose liability for negligence on the part of the board. Prime v. Yonkers, 102 N. Y. S. 118.

77. Street grading. Calvert v. St. Joseph, 118 Mo. App. 503, 95 S. W. 308.

78. See 6 C. L. 737, n. 41.

79. Depression in street by sinking of earth in trench recently dug and filled up. Goff v. Philadelphia, 214 Pa. 172, 63 A. 431.

80. Yazoo City v. Birchett [Miss.] 42 So. 569.

81. City of Pawtucket v. Pawtucket Elec. Co., 27 R. I. 130, 61 A. 48.

82. City of Pawtucket v. Pawtucket Elec. Co., 27 R. I. 130, 61 A. 48. See 15 Yale L. J. 149; 19 Harv. L. R. 138.

83. See 6 C. L. 737. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 484-495.

84. See Highways and Streets, 8 C. L. 40, for rulings under statutes relating wholly to streets. In Kentucky cities of third class have no power to enact ordinance requiring presentation of claims before commencement of suit. City of Bowling Green v. Duncan, 28 Ky. L. R. 1177, 91 S. W. 268. Under Wisconsin mob violence act, notice by employer does not inure to benefit of employe. Long v. Neenah, 128 Wis. 40, 107 N. W. 10.

dinarily do not extend to claims for injuries to realty,[85] but do apply to claims arising under contract.[86] These notices must be sufficient in point of contents,[87] and presented to the proper officials [88] within the prescribed time.[89] Recovery cannot be had in excess of the amount named in the notice,[90] and notice by the wife does not support an action by the husband.[91] In the absence of prohibitive enactments, claims against municipalities are the proper subject of assignment.[92] Claim of a physician for care of a person quarantined held to have been properly before the board of supervisors for action by it.[93] A city cannot avoid the payment of interest upon a completed bridge contract through the refusal of its engineer to furnish the required certificate to the contractor.[94]

§ 16. Actions by and against.[95]—In the absence of statutory limitation municipal corporations in exercising their general corporate power may sue and be sued,[96] and the power conferred to sue and be sued carries with it power to compromise and settle suits.[97] The corporate name should be used.[98] A statutory provision that no action for negligence is maintainable against a city unless begun within one year after the accrual of the right of action does not bar the right of action of a minor.[99] A city may be sued for trespass to real estate in a court other than its own.[1] A light company which has furnished light to a city in consideration of a void agreement of the city to exempt the company from taxation may recover on the quantum meruit,[2] and a claimant is not bound to obtain a warrant in order to entitle him to maintain suit against the city on his claim.[3] One whose

85. Chap. 248, Laws 1897, of Minnesota, has no application to realty damaged by defective water pipes. Megins v. Duluth, 97 Minn. 23, 106 N. W. 89.

86. Minnesota Gen. St. 1894, § 687, has no application to a claim for damages occasioned by the city's failure to perform a statutory duty. City of Mankato v. Barber Asphalt Pav. Co. [C. C. A.] 142 F. 329.

87. Defect in sidewalk sufficiently described and located. Mulligan v. Seattle, 42 Wash. 264, 84 P. 721. Notice held sufficient with respect to description of place of injury. Town of Waterford v. Elson [C. C. A.] 149 F. 91; Blount v. Troy, 110 App. Div. 609, 97 N. Y. S. 182. Notice sufficient as to statement of city's default. Davis v. Adrian [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 1023, 110 N. W. 1084.

88. City auditor held to be a proper officer under North Dakota statutes. Pyke v. Jamestown [N. D.] 107 N. W. 359.

89. Blount v. Troy, 110 App. Div. 609, 97 N. Y. S. 182. Notice of claim served within specified time after removal of mental incapacity held sufficient. Forsyth v. Oswego, 114 App. Div. 616, 99 N. Y. S. 1022. Notice by filing claim "thirty days before commencement of suit." Foley v. Cedar Rapids [Iowa] 110 N. W. 158.

90. Van Camp v. Keokuk, 130 Iowa, 716, 107 N. W. 933.

91. Nothdurft v. Lincoln [Neb.] 105 N. W. 1084.

92. Kansas City Ordinance No. 11,125 does not forbid assignment of claims against city for wages. Kansas City Loan Guarantee Co. v. Kansas City [Mo.] 98 S. W. 459. Claim of contractor for money due. Dickson v. St. Paul [Minn.] 106 N. W. 1053.

93. Dawe v. Board of Health of Monroe [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 741, 109 N. W. 433.

94. Roebling's Sons Co. v. New York, 97 N. Y. S. 278.

95. See 6 C. L. 738. See, also, Abbott, Mun. Corp. §§ 1107-1168.

96. Town of Beloit v. Heineman, 128 Wis. 398, 107 N. W. 334. A municipality ousted from possession of land owned by it may maintain trespass and ejectment to establish title and recover possession. City of Providence v. Comstock, 27 R. I. 637, 65 A. 307. But a city, in the absence of express statutory authority, cannot maintain an action to collect a tax due it. City of Rochester v. Bloss, 185 N. Y. 42, 77 N. E. 794. Gen. St. Conn. 1902, § 2020, conferring a right of action against municipalities for injuries by reason of defective highways, is not a penal statute in such sense as to prevent the survival of the action in case of death. Elson v. Waterford, 140 F. 800. A municipality has not such legal interest in the relations of a water company and the individual consumer as warrants a suit to test the reasonableness of the rates imposed. City of Mount Vernon v. New York Interurban Water Co., 101 N. Y. S. 232.

97. A city council may, when acting in good faith, accept a less sum in settlement of a litigated case than is claimed to be due. Farnham v. Lincoln [Neb.] 106 N. W. 666.

98. Town of Mt. Pleasant v. Eversole, 29 Ky. L. R. 830, 96 S. W. 478. Ownership of fire department property having been reinvested in the city, the Fulton Fire Department had no legal capacity to sue with respect to the property. Fulton Fire Department v. Fulton, 61 Misc. 242, 100 N. Y. S. 816.

99. McKnight v. New York [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 676.

1. City of Baltimore v. Meredith's Ford, etc., Turnpike Co. [Md.] 65 A. 35.

2. Board of Councilmen v. Capitol Gas & Elec. Light Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 1114, 96 S. W. 870.

3. Kansas City Loan Guarantee Co. v. Kansas City [Mo.] 98 S. W. 459.

land has been taken by a city in an action brought by it cannot recover the land after its sale to a third party.[4] Contents of the journal of a charter convention cannot, in the absence of express provision, be received in evidence.[5] In the absence of statutory inhibition an execution may issue against a city, and while on the ground of public policy it cannot be levied on any of the general revenues of the city, either before or after their collection,[6] or upon any property real or personal reasonably necessary for government purposes,[7] still, if the city is possessed of any property held for pecuniary benefit, such property may be taken.[8] Mandamus lies to compel levy of taxes to satisfy judgment.[9]

MUNICIPAL COURTS; MURDER; MUTUAL ACCOUNTS; MUTUAL INSURANCE, see latest topical index.

NAMES, SIGNATURES AND SEALS.

§ 1. Names (1082). Idem Sonans (1082). Business and Corporate Names (1083).
§ 2. Signatures (1083).
§ 3. Seals (1083).

§ 1. Names.[10]—The middle name or initial is deemed no part of the name,[11] and likewise the word junior, or words of similar import, are mere matter of description,[12] but a transposition of initials may work prejudice from the nature of the transaction.[13] One may acquire by assumption and use a name other than his true name,[14] and if one be as well known by one name as another either may be used.[15]

Idem sonans.[16]—Absolute accuracy is not essential in the spelling of names in legal documents or proceedings either civil [17] or criminal.[18]

4. Metz v. Dayton, 28 Ky. L. R. 1053, 91 S. W. 745.

5. People v. Lindsley [Colo.] 86 P. 352.

6. Upon dissolution of a school district, held that its indebtedness could only be liquidated by taxation. In re Abolishing of School Districts, 27 R. I. 598, 65 A. 302.

7. Beadles v. Smyser [Okl.] 87 P. 292; City of Gibson v. Murray, 120 Ill. App. 296.

8. Beadles v. Smyser [Okl.] 87 P. 292.

9. Graham v. Tuscumbia [Ala.] 42 So. 400.

10. See 6 C. L. 739.

11. Letters of administration held not vitiated by insertion of middle initial in name of decedent whereas he had no middle name. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. v. Griffin [Ala.] 42 So. 1034. Patentee's claim of title held not affected by use of middle initial in name of his grantor sometimes and its omission at others. Taulbee v. Buckner's Adm'r, 28 Ky. L. R. 1246, 91 S. W. 734. Mistake in middle initial of purchaser in school land certificate held immaterial. Trimble v. Burroughs [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 753, 95 S. W. 614. Variance in an indictment for disorderly conduct in a house alleged to be owned by Sam McReynolds and proof that it was owned by S. C. McReynolds held immaterial. Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 687, 96 S. W. 29.

12. Indictment for assault held sufficient as against motion to quash for failure to add "junior" to name of person alleged to have been assaulted. Teague v. State, 144 Ala. 42, 40 So. 312.

13. A writ of sequestration against J. M. Peters is void as against M. J. Peters (Watt v. Parlin & Orendorff Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 154, 98 S. W. 428), as is also a judgment on citation issued against M. J. Peters (Id.).

14. May be indicted by assumed name. Stallworth v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 184. Assumption cannot be proved by hearsay. Id. Description of woman by her maiden name good though she had been secretly married. Palmer v. Baum, 123 Ill. App. 584.

15. In an action to foreclose, a mortgage executed by one "Henry Bethan" held admissible though there was evidence that the mortgagor was as well known by the name of "Henry Bethel" as by the name of "Henry Bethan." Roche v. Dale [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 832, 95 S. W. 1100. A release from liability as to transactions carried on under an assumed name when executed and delivered by the releasor in his own proper person and as and for contracts made by himself personally with the releasee and so taken by it is operative also as to transactions carried on by releasor in his own name. Klopot v. Metropolitan Stock Exch., 188 Mass. 335, 74 N. E. 596. See 19 Harv. L. R. 66. One who has sued in an assumed or trade name is estopped to deny in his own name the validity of an adverse judgment. Clark Bros. v. Wyche, 126 Ga. 24, 54 S. E. 909.

16. See 6 C. L. 740.

17. Notice of redemption from tax sale in name of James Karney, while the affidavit as to publication was in the name of James Carney, held immaterial variance. McCash v. Penrod [Iowa] 109 N. W. 180.

18. Roland commonly pronounced Rolin idems sonans with Rawlin. Roland v. State [Ga.] 56 S. E. 412. Rigley and Rigby. State v. Pointdexter, 117 La. 380, 41 So. 688. Vister and Vester. Gaither v. Commonwealth, 28 Ky. L. R. 1345, 91 S. W. 1124. Morris and Maurice. Thompson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 175, 97 S. W. 316. An indictment for robbery is not vitiated because the name of the prosecutor is variously spelled

Business and corporate names.[19]

§ 2. Signatures.[20]—Signature may be with lead pencil,[21] and a signature mechanically affixed may be adopted.[22] Illiterate persons are generally permitted to sign by making their marks near their names written by others, the marks being witnessed by persons who write their own names as witnesses.[23] Authority to sign one's name in one's presence may be conferred by parol.[24] One bound personally by the condition of an instrument is not relieved of personal responsibility by signing in a representative capacity.[25]

§ 3. Seals.[26]—A statute abolishing the distinctions between sealed and unsealed instruments does not militate against the effectiveness of another statute limiting to different periods the time in which actions may be brought thereon.[27] It is held in Georgia that a seal is not necessary to the validity of a mortgage.[28] A writing actually sealed and delivered is held in some jurisdictions to be a specialty though no mention of the seal is made in the body of the writing,[29] but the contrary is held in Georgia.[30] The absence of a seal from a contract not required, otherwise than by a recital in the attestation clause, to be sealed is immaterial on the question of its validity.[31] In some states it is statutory that a scrawl or scroll, printed or written, affixed as a seal to any written instrument shall be as effectual as a seal.[32] Where there is no dispute as to the character or device used in the execution of a written instrument, it is for the court to determine whether the device as used constitutes a seal,[33] but whether a device was adopted by the maker as a seal is for the jury.[34]

NATIONAL BANKS; NATURAL GAS; NATURALIZATION, see latest topical index.

NAVIGABLE WATERS.

§ 1. What are Navigable (1084).
§ 2. Relative, Public and Private Rights (1084). Right of Access (1085). Rights of Wharfage and Reclamation (1086).
§ 3. Regulation and Control (1086).
§ 4. Remedies for Injuries Relating to (1088).

The rights of riparian owners,[35] the ownership of subaqueous lands,[36] consuming uses of water,[37] and matters relating to navigation[38] are treated elsewhere.

therein as Dorgan and Durgan. O'Donnell v. People, 224 Ill. 218, 79 N. E. 639.

19. See 6 C. L. 740. See, also, Corporations, 7 C. L. 866, as to corporate names; Partnership, 6 C. L. 911, as to firm names; Trade Marks and Trade Names, 6 C. L. 1713, as to imitation of names as unfair competition and as to statutes relating to misleading trade names.

20. See 6 C. L. 741.

21. Drefahl v. Security Sav. Bank [Iowa] 107 N. W. 179.

22. Signature by stencil must be accompanied by proof of adoption. Bell Bros. v. Western & A. R. Co., 125 Ga. 510, 54 S. E. 532. Lithographed signatures may be adopted by the persons whose names they purport to be. Hewel v. Hogan [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1002.

23. The question as to whether an illiterate made a mark on a contract purporting to be signed by his mark, as provided in Cutt. Comp. Laws Nev. § 2734, held one of evidence merely. Kessel v. Austin Min. Co., 144 F. 859.

24. Husband held to have authority to sign wife's name to mortgage. Hawes v. Glover, 126 Ga. 305, 55 S. E. 62.

25. Appeal bond signed by surety as cashier. Northup v. Bathrick [Neb.] 110 N. W. 685. Addition of matter descriptio personis to signature, see Agency, 7 C. L. 61; Corporations, 7 C. L. 862; Negotiable Instruments, 6 C. L. 777.

26. See 6 C. L. 741.

27. Rev. Civ. Code, § 1243, and Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 58, construed. Gibson v. Allen [S. D.] 104 N. W. 275. Evidence held to show an instrument to have been a "sealed" instrument. Id.

28. Hawes v. Glover, 126 Ga. 305, 55 S. E. 62.

29. Wenchell v. Stevens, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 527. When the statute declaring what shall be a sufficient seal is silent as to reference in the instrument to the fact of its being a sealed instrument, no such reference is required. Langley v. Owens [Fla.] 42 So. 457.

30. A promissory note is not rendered a sealed instrument by the addition after the signature of a device usually purporting a seal. Burkhalter v. Perry [Ga.] 56 S. E. 631.

31. Sale contract held valid without seal. Noel Const. Co. v. Atlas Portland Cement Co., 103 Md. 209, 63 A. 384.

32. Under Acts 1893, p. 72, c. 4148, "L. S." in parenthesis held a sufficient seal. Langley v. Owens [Fla.] 42 So. 457.

33. Langley v. Owens [Fla.] 42 So. 457.

34. Wenchell v. Stevens, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 527.

35, 36. See Riparian Owners, 6 C. L. 1313.

37. See Waters and Water Supply, 6 C. L. 1840.

38. See Shipping and Water Traffic, 6 C. L. 1464.

§ 1. What are navigable.[39]—In England only waters in which the tide ebbs and flows are navigable, but this test has been rejected by most of the American states and that of navigability in fact substituted.[40] A stream is navigable in fact when capable of some substantial use as a highway of commerce[41] in its natural state.[42] It is not necessary that it be capable of continuous use throughout the entire year, provided it be capable of such use periodically and with such regularity as to serve some beneficial purpose.[43] Navigable waters of the United States are those which form in their ordinary condition or by uniting with other waters a highway over which commerce between the several states or with foreign countries may be carried on in the ordinary modes in which such commerce is conducted.[44] Though a stream cannot be made navigable by legislative action,[45] the fact that it was meandered by the government surveyor is evidence of its navigability.[46]

§ 2. Relative, public and private rights.[47]—Navigable waters are held in trust for the public,[48] and every citizen has a natural right to use the same as highways of commerce.[49] This public right of navigation includes the right to operate ferry-boats,[50] to float logs, timber, etc.,[51] and, as incident to the latter, the right

39. See 6 C. L. 742.

40. The words "navigable stream" as used in Laws 1899, c. 284, p. 492, relating to bridges and their maintenance, means a stream navigable in fact, one of sufficient capacity to float saw logs during the spring or permit the passage of small boats. Village of Bloomer v. Bloomer, 128 Wis. 297, 107 N. W. 974.

41. Harrison v. Fite [C. C. A.] 148 F. 781. A theoretical or potential navigability, or one which is temporary, precarious, or unprofitable, is not sufficient. Id.

Non-navigable: Depth of water sufficient for pleasure boating and to enable hunters and fishermen to float skiffs is insufficient. Harrison v. Fite [C. C. A.] 148 F. 781. Small by-waters and mere rivulets held not navigable. Burns v. Crescent Gun & Rod Club, 116 La. 1038, 41 So. 249. A lagoon having no fixed channel, the bed of which is covered with grass, and which will permit of boating only with difficulty, held not navigable. Id. A meandered slough, dry during the greater portion of the year, except during high tide at which time it would float small boats and logs for a short distance from its mouth is not navigable to such an extent as to require the consent of the Federal government for the construction of a dam at its mouth. State v. Superior Court for Skagit County, 42 Wash. 491, 85 P. 264. Evidence held to show that Big Lake, and Little river passing through it, are not navigable. Harrison v. Fite [C. C. A.] 148 F. 781.

Held navigable: A lake having an average depth of sixteen feet and floating a small steam pleasure boat and numerous rowboats is navigable. Kalez v. Spokane Valley Land & Water Co., 42 Wash. 43, 84 P. 395. Irish Bayou, two hundred feet wide and at least fifteen feet deep, which is capable of receiving large boats, held navigable. Burns v. Crescent Gun & Rod Club, 116 La. 1038, 41 So. 249. The Allegheny river is a navigable stream, having been declared such by the legislatures of Pennsylvania and New York, over which the Federal government has assumed jurisdiction, having included it in plans for the improvement of interstate water ways. United States v. Union Bridge Co., 143 F. 377.

42. Harrison v. Fite [C. C. A.] 148 F. 781.

43. Harrison v. Fite [C. C. A.] 148 F. 781. The mere fact that a bayou may be used during high water by fisherman does not make it navigable. Burns v. Crescent Gun & Rod Club, 116 La. 1038, 41 So. 249. A stream is a floatable one if by the rise due to the periodical melting of snow it will be capable of substantial commercial use, such periods occuring with reasonable certainty and regularity. Hot Springs Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Revercomb [Va.] 55 S. E. 580.

44. People v. Board of Sup'rs, 122 Ill. App. 40.

45. Act of the territorial legislature approved Feb. 14, 1879, declaring the Palouse river navigable, held not to make it so in fact. Potlatch Lumber Co. v. Peterson [Idaho] 88 P. 426.

46. Not conclusive. Harrison v. Fite [C. C. A.] 148 F. 781.

47. See 6 C. L. 742.

48. A state holds navigable waters within its boundaries as a quasi-trustee for the public benefit and to support the rights of navigation and fishery, to which state grants of privileges or interests in such waters are subject. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co. [Md.] 65 A. 353. Although the state has dominion over and power to regulate the use of the waters of navigable streams, it has no property right in them, within Const. art. 3, § 20, prohibiting the appropriation of public property to private use without the assent of two-thirds of the members of the legislature. Niagara County Irr. & Water Supply Co. v. College Heights Land Co., 111 App. Div. 770, 98 N. Y. S. 4. The power and control of the state over lands under tide water is limited to acts which will not impair the public interest therein, and subject to the right of congress to control navigation where necessary for regulation of commerce among the states or with foreign nations. City of Providence v. Comstock, 27 R. I. 537, 65 A. 307.

49. Warner v. Ford Lumber & Mfg. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 527, 93 S. W. 650; Powell v. Springston Lumber Co. [Idaho] 88 P. 97.

50. The owner of a ferry franchise has the same right to use a navigable stream as every other person has, and the right canto employ reasonable means of intercepting the same;[52] but, while the right of navigation extends to the full width of the stream,[53] it does not authorize the use of the banks.[54] The right of navigation being common to all, one exercising it must have due regard for the equal right of others,[55] but, so long as one is using it for a legitimate purpose, no liability exists for resulting injuries in the absence of negligence.[56]

Since navigable waters are public highways, one must not so occupy them as to obstruct free navigation,[57] or render them unsafe for travel.[58]

The rights of an assignee of an oyster bed in Virginia being by statute subject to previously acquired rights of others, no recovery can be had for injury resulting from dredging by a dock and ship-building company as authorized by a charter granted prior to the assignment.[59]

Right of access.[60]—The public generally,[61] and riparian owners in particular,[62] are entitled to access to navigable streams for proper purposes, and it is not within the power of a municipality in Louisiana to so dispose of a batture as to destroy public access.[63] Riparian rights[64] do not attach to lands which do not extend to the water.[65] A public landing being for the use of the public in reaching the water, not be made subservient to the right of a riparian owner to maintain booms. Warner v. Ford Lumber & Mfg. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 527, 93 S. W. 650.

51. Mitchell v. Lea Lumber Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 405. Hence, a riparian owner whose land has been injured by careless log driving is not entitled to an injunction totally restraining the use of the river. Id.

52. Powell v. Springston Lumber Co. [Idaho] 88 P. 97. The use of a navigable stream by a riparian owner for maintaining booms cannot be exclusive or inconsistent with the public use. Warner v. Ford Lumber & Mfg. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 527, 93 S. W. 650. Under the express provisions of Rev. St. 1887, § 835, it is unlawful to construct a dam or boom without connecting therewith a sluiceway, lock, or fixture, sufficient to permit logs to pass without unreasonable delay. Powell v. Springston Lumber Co. [Idaho] 88 P. 97; Potlatch Lumber Co. v. Peterson [Idaho] 88 P. 426. Laws 1889-1890, p. 470, § 1, giving boom companies the right to acquire property for carrying on their business by purchase or condemnation, does not give them the right to interfere with navigation or the use of abutting lands by the owners, especially in view of Laws 1895, p. 130, c. 72, § 4, providing that nothing shall be constructed that will interfere with navigation. Burrows v. Grays Harbor Boom Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 937.

53. Warner v. Ford Lumber & Mfg. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 527, 93 S. W. 650.

54. Where the license granted by a riparian owner to a mill company to use the banks along his premises in floating shingle bolts is revoked, injunction will lie to restrain further threatened use. Mitchell v. Lea Lumber Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 405.

55. Riparian owner maintaining a boom. Powell v. Springston Lumber Co. [Idaho] 88 P. 97.

56. Mitchell v. Lea Lumber Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 405. Evidence held to show negligence in permitting shingle bolts cast upon plaintiff's land to lie there an undue length of time and in failing to break jams, etc. Id. One floating logs is not liable for injuries to riparian owners from the piling up of logs on their lands, causing an overflow in the absence of negligence. Hot Springs Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Revercomb [Va.] 55 S. E. 580. The defense that the injury is the natural result of a legitimate use of the stream is not applicable where there has been an actual invasion of plaintiff's rights, as where defendant's boom caused the water to back up, overflowing plaintiff's lands and casting logs thereon. Burrows v. Grays Harbor Boom Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 937.

57. The rights of a street railway company in a tunnel under a navigable river, arising from its ownership of the fee in the bed, are subject to the paramount right of navigation. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People of State of Illinois, 201 U. S. 506, 50 Law. Ed. 845.

58. A railroad company maintaining a bridge across a canal under authority from the state is liable for injuries due to concealed cribs extending beyond the piers. The Nonpariel, 149 F. 521.

59. Code 1904, § 2137. Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. v. Jones, 105 Va. 503, 54 S. E. 314.

60. See 6 C. L. 744.

61. The right of access does not prevent the board of park commissioners from exercising jurisdiction for park purposes over the bed between high and low water mark as provided by Acts 28th Gen. Assem. c. 179 (Acts 1900, p. 131). Board of Park Com'rs v. Taylor [Iowa] 108 N. W. 927.

62. Board of Park Com'rs v. Taylor [Iowa] 108 N. W. 927.

63. City of Shreveport v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co., 115 La. 885, 40 So. 298. City of Shreveport held not to have surrendered right of access by cross streets to the river in granting the right to defendant railroad company to lay tracks on what was formerly a batture. Id.

64. The rights of riparian owners in tide lands within the town of Providence is regulated and controlled by the town government and not by the general custom of the state, and the owners have no right of occupation by virtue of their ownership. City of Providence v. Comstock, 27 R. I. 537, 65 A. 307.

65. City of Providence v. Comstock, 27 R. I. 537, 65 A. 307. Nor do they necessarily a city cannot authorize any occupation thereof inconsistent with its primary purpose.[66] A prescriptive right to obstruct a landing with a building may be acquired in Massachusetts by forty years of adverse user.[67]

Rights of wharfage and reclamation.[68]—The right of reclamation incident to the ownership of littoral land will be determined by the natural shore line, unless the artificial conditions are definite, substantial, and permanent.[69] The right of wharfage is controlled by statute in many states.[70] The right of a riparian owner to wharf out to the deep water line must be exercised within side lines at right angle to a straight shore, or, if the shore is concave, within converging lines which proportionately divide the tide water shore among the riparian owners.[71] A grant of a right of wharfage carries as an appurtenance a right of way over lands under water of the grantor necessarily crossed in reaching the same.[72] Where a street was condemned and opened as a highway and public wharf, the city acquired the wharfage and riparian rights of the former owners of the land abutting on the harbor,[73] and, where such street is widened on the harbor side, the city has the same wharfage and riparian rights in front of the widened streets as it had in front of the old street.[74]

§ 3. Regulation and control.[75]—Congress has power to determine what shall be deemed obstructions of interstate navigable water,[76] and, having enacted that certain obstructions shall be removed, it may leave it to one of the administrative departments to determine whether such obstruction exists, and if so to abate it.[77] A state may authorize the building of structures in the navigable waters within its borders, subject to the power of the United States to remove or alter them if they obstruct United States waters.[78] The Federal government may abate an obstruction without compensating the owner,[79] unless it was constructed under an act of attach to a state grant of lands lying below tidal highwater mark. Id.

66. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. People, 222 Ill. 427, 78 N. E. 790. An ordinance granting a railroad company the right to occupy a public landing place with tracks and sheds is void. Id.

67. A prescriptive right to maintain a building on a public landing may be acquired by occupation for forty years under Rev. St. 1836, c. 24, § 61 (substantially embodied in Gen. St. 1860, c. 46, § 1; Pub. St. c. 54, § 1; Rev. Laws, c. 53, § 1). Gifford v. Westport, 190 Mass. 323, 76 N. E. 1042. No right acquired where the building was permitted to fall into decay for eight or nine years of the required time. Id.

68. See 6 C. L. 744.

69. Moran v. Denison [Conn.] 65 A. 291.

70. Owners of shore land on the San Francisco Bay in the city of Oakland are expressly granted right of access for wharves, etc., over the state land below the line of low tide, subject, however, to the declared policy of the state, as set out in § 2, art. 15, Const. 1879, that they shall not exclude a right of way to the waters when wanted for a public purpose nor obstruct free navigation, and subject also to the right of the state to make improvements to promote commerce. Southern Pac. Co. v. Western Pac. R. Co., 144 F. 160. Hence, a railroad, otherwise entitled to reach the water, may condemn a right of way thereto. Id. Where the owners of land abutting on a street adjoining a harbor fill out beyond the street, as authorized by Acts 1796, c. 45, Acts 1801, c. 92, and Acts 1805, c. 94, they acquire the right to construct wharves and to moor vessels in the waters in front of the wharves. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co. [Md.] 65 A. 353. The right conferred upon the riparian owners upon Light Street, Baltimore, to extend their lots beyond the street out into the harbor by Acts 1796, c. 45, Acts 1801, c. 92, and Acts 1805, c. 94, did not give exclusive rights in the water as against those who had previously filled in from Pratt Street, a cross street. Id.

71. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co. [Md.] 65 A. 353.

72. In re Water Front of New York, 113 App. Div. 84, 98 N. Y. S. 1063.

73. Opened as authorized by Acts 1817, c. 71, and damages awarded. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co. [Md.] 65 A. 353.

74. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co. [Md.] 65 A. 353.

75. See 6 C. L. 745.

76. United States v. Union Bridge Co., 143 F. 377.

77. Secretary of war. United States v. Union Bridge Co., 143 F. 377.

78. Especially in the absence of congressional legislation. United States v. Union Bridge Co., 143 F. 377. A state has complete power over navigable water courses within its boundaries, and may authorize the construction of bridges, subject to the power of the Federal government, to remove unreasonable obstruction to navigation. The Nonpariel, 149 F. 521.

79. Especially a bridge built under a state charter containing no specifications as to its character, but expressly providing that it shall be so constructed as not to interfere with free navigation. United States v. Union Bridge Co., 143 F. 377. Act March 3, 1899,

Congress containing no provision for alteration or abatement in case it becomes a nuisance.[80] Likewise, a city may require a street railway company to lower its tunnel under a navigable river which has become an obstruction, where the ordiannce under which it was built contained no stipulation to the contrary,[81] and at its own expense.[82] Where, however, a bridge is constructed according to the authorizing statute, the courts cannot abate it as an obstruction and a nuisance.[83] The replacement of the superstructure of a railroad bridge is not the building of a bridge so as to require a permit from the Secretary of War.[84] The Federal and state government have power to control the management of a draw bridge by requiring it to be kept open at all proper times, etc.[85] The Federal statutes regulating harbors used in interstate commerce are merely restrictive of certain acts and do not prevent the states from policing to prevent the obstructing of the same,[86] nor is the decision of the Secretary of War, permitting the construction of a bridge, conclusive upon the state that it will not interfere with navigation.[87] In Louisiana special legislative authority is prerequisite to the right to construct a pontoon bridge across a navigable stream.[88] The statute, granting the city of Yonkers the title to the lands under the waters of the Hudson river opposite the mouth of the Nepperham, and providing that the same shall be kept free from obstructions, does not obligate her to remove obstructions not placed therein by her.[89] The right to construct piers under a city permit is limited by restrictions contained therein and limitations imposed of law upon the city's power to grant permits or inherent in the nature of its title in the water.[90] The fact that the government permits an obstruction interfering with navigation to remain does not prevent it from objecting to the placing of a greater obstruction in the same place.[91] The drainage commissioners of Wisconsin have no power to destroy a navigable meandered lake.[92] It is competent for the the state, acting through the counties, to protect a harbor therein, if it does not interfere with the control of the Federal government.[93]

c. 425, § 18 (30 Stat. 1153 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3545]), providing that upon determining that a bridge is unreasonably interfering with the free navigation of the waters of the United States, the secretary of war may require the same to be altered, etc., is not unconstitutional as failing to award compensation. Id.

80. United States v. Parkersburg Branch R. Co. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 224.

81. Does not impair the obligation of a contract. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People of State of Illinois, 201 U. S. 506, 50 Law. Ed. 845.

82. Is not a taking of property without just compensation. West Chicago St. R. Co. v. People of State of Illinois, 201 U. S. 506, 50 Law. Ed. 845, afg. Id., 214 Ill. 9, 73 N. E. 393.

83. United States v. Parkersburg Branch R. Co. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 224.

84. As required by Act March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. 1151 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3540]). United States v. Parkersburg Branch R. Co. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 224.

85. Pedrick v. Raleigh & P. S. R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 877.

86. City of Milwaukee v. Gimbel Bros. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 7.

87. Pedrick v. Raleigh & P. S. R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 877.

88. Blanchard v. Abraham, 115 La. 989, 40 So. 379 The power to permit such obstruction has not been vested in the police juries as to navigable streams. Id.

89. Laws 1899, c. 562, p. 1153; Ben Franklin Transp. Co. v. Yonkers, 102 N. Y. S. 1060.

90. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co. [Md.] 65 A. 353.

91. Proposed to extend a building to the outer line of an encroaching dock. City of Milwaukee v. Gimbel Bros. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 7.

92. The power conferred upon the drainage commissioners, under Rev. St. 1898, §§ 1379-11 to 1379-31, does authorize the establishment of a drainage system to the destruction of a navigable river and a navigable meandered lake. In re Dancy Drainage Dist. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 202.

93. Policed the harbor to prevent deposits from being made therein. Board of Com'rs of Escambia County v. Port of Pensacola Pilot Com'rs [Fla.] 42 So. 697. Rev. St. 1892, § 950 (Gen. St. 1906, § 1302), which requires the board of pilot commissioners of each port to take steps to detect violations of the laws for the protection of harbors, etc., and charging the expense to the counties, is valid. Id. The legislature may provide for the exercise of police protection by the counties through officials other than the commissioners. Id. The duty of determining the necessity of protecting the harbor, under Rev. St. 1892, § 950 (Gen. St. 1906, § 1302), is vested in the board of pilot commissioners and not in the county commissioners. Id. Where a harbor lies in two counties, the state may provide for the protection of the portion in one county and to charge the same thereto. Id.

Improvements.[94]—The "burnt district commissioners" of Baltimore have power to construct new wharves.[95] The city of Chicago has authority to require the lowering of a tunnel under the Chicago river preparatory to deepening the same.[96] The constitutional right of congress to improve harbors of the United States carries the right to deposit removed materials in any part of the harbor she chooses.[97] The right to take water from a navigable stream for irrigation purposes is inferior to the right of improvement,[98] and hence a state may improve the same [99] without liability for the resulting injury,[1] which immunity she may grant to a private corporation.[2] Where land of a riparian owner is taken in improving a navigable stream, compensation must be made.[3]

§ 4. Remedies for injuries relating to.[4]—The fact that the Federal government made no objection to the construction of a bridge pursuant to a state charter does not preclude it from requiring its alteration without compensation to permit of free navigation.[5] Under Federal statute a vessel used [6] in depositing refuse in any navigable water of the United States is liable for the prescribed penalty irrespective of the owner's knowledge of such use.[7] The power conferred by the Michigan statute upon county supervisors to remove obstructions arising from the erection of booms, or the collection of logs, does not authorize them to contract for the removal of ancient obstructions arising from other causes.[8] One [9] negligently exercising the right of navigation, or maintaining an obstruction in a navigable stream, must use due

The fact that a greater part of a harbor is within a municipality and under its police protection does not relieve the county of its duty to protect the same. Id. A harbor is a public highway and of such value to the people of the county in which it is situated, that money spent in protecting it from being filled is for a county purpose for which county funds may be expended under the constitution, though such harbor is used for foreign commerce. Id.

94. See 6 C. L. 746.

95. The power conferred upon the burnt district commissioners by Act of March 11, 1904 (Laws 1904, p. 141, c. 87), "to lay out additions and extensions to be made to the public wharves and docks," etc., is not limited to building additions to existing wharves, but includes power to make new ones. Dyer v. Baltimore, 140 F. 880.

96. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1903, p. 292, c. 24, giving the city of Chicago authority to deepen or change the channel of water courses. West Chicago Street R. Co. v. People, 214 Ill. 9, 73 N. E. 393. The city of Chicago was empowered without the approval of the secretary of war to require the lowering of a street railway tunnel under the Chicago river so as to give a clearance of twenty-one feet, by Act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. at L. 1156, c. 425), declaring that all work of removing tunnels necessary to permit a navigable channel with the prescribed "project" of twenty-one feet in the Chicago river should be done by the city. West Chicago Street R. Co. v. People of State of Illinois, 201 U. S. 506, 50 Law. Ed. 845, afg. Id., 214 Ill. 9, 73 N. E. 393.

97. Southern Pac. Co. v. Western Pac. R. Co., 144 F. 160.

98. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 440, 91 S. W. 848. The taking of water from a navigable stream for irregation is not a natural use giving the riparian owner an absolute right to so use. Id.

99. A canal forming a deep water connection between a navigable stream and the sea is a practical improvement of the stream. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 440, 91 S. W. 848.

1. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 440, 91 S. W. 848. A company constructing a canal in the improvement of the navigability of a stream will not be required to put in locks to keep back salty water so as not to destroy irrigation rights, where it would interfere with free navigation and increase the cost of maintenance. Id.

2. Under Rev. St. 1895, arts. 722, 723, subd. 6, the Port Arthur Canal & Dock Company has all the rights and immunities in carrying on its improvements of navigation that the state possesses. Bigham Bros. v. Port Arthur Canal & Dock Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 440, 91 S. W. 848.

3. A person whose land has been flooded by the construction of a levee is entitled to damages irrespective of negligence. Lewis Tp. Imp. Co. v. Royer [Ind. App.] 76 N. E. 1068.

4. See 6 C. L. 746.

5. United States v. Unfon Bridge Co., 143 F. 377.

6. Where a person is placed in charge of a scow to unload, the dumping of the refuse within the harbor is within the scope of his employment so as to render the vessel "used" within Act March 3, 1899, c. 425, §§ 13, 16 (30 Stat. 1152, 1153 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 3542, 3544]), though done contrary to orders. Scow No. 36 [C. C. A.] 144 F. 932.

7. Boat held liable under Act March 3, 1899, c. 425, §§ 13, 16 (30 Stat. 1152, 1153 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 3542, 3544]), though used contrary to orders. Scow No. 36 [C. C. A.] 144 F. 932.

8. Comp. Laws, § 2494. Gainer v. Nelson [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 983, 110 N. W. 511.

9. Where the stock of a boom company was owned by a mill company and its employes were paid by the latter, and, in an care [10] and give proper warning,[11] and is liable for damages proximately resulting from his negligence.[12] The usual rules of pleading [13] and evidence [14] apply to actions for damages.

Injunction will issue to restrain an unauthorized obstruction of a navigable stream [15] at the instance of a municipality if the stream is under its charge,[16] but, such impairment of navigation being a public nuisance, a private party cannot enjoin the same unless specially injured.[17] But injunction will only lie in the absence of other remedy.[18] The Idaho statute giving a boom owner thirty days after notice, within which to construct sluiceways before abating the obstruction, is only applicable to booms constructed prior to its passage.[19]

While the courts will take judicial notice that the more important rivers of the country are navigable,[20] such action is exercised with caution and denied in doubtful cases,[21] thus leaving navigability a question of fact for the jury.[22] Where action against the mill company for damages due to careless floating of shingle bolts, the answer alleged an agreement with plaintiff justifying the use of the banks, etc., held that the boom company was the agent of the mill company for whose acts it is liable. Mitchell v. Lea Lumber Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 405.

10. Evidence held to show that the damage to the scow was due to the negligent operation of the tug and not to the negligent opening of the draw bridge. Dunbar-Sullivan Dredging Co. v. Troy & West Troy Bridge Co., 145 F. 428. Evidence held to show that injury to the canal boat was due to the projecting submerged cribs of the railroad bridge pier and not to the negligent operation of the boat. The Nonpariel, 149 F. 521.

11. The positive testimony that warning lights were placed on a sunken dredge and were burning a few minutes before the accident held to warrant a reversal of a finding that there were no lights, notwithstanding the negative testimony of four witnesses that they did not see any lights. The Fin Mac Coal [C. C. A.] 147 F. 123.

12. Proximate cause held to have been the suction of a passing vessel which forced libellant's boat onto the projecting timbers and not the absence of warning signals, the existence of the timbers being known to the master. Kelley Island Line & Transp. Co. v. Cleveland, 144 F. 207.

13. A complaint alleging that defendant carelessly and negligently permitted logs to pile up in jams on plaintiff's premises, thereby causing an overflow, held insufficient for failing to allege the facts of negligence. Hot Springs Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Revercomb [Va.] 55 S. E. 580. A complaint alleging that defendant has constructed a boom "across" the stream so as to effectually "prevent" the floating of logs past, etc., makes a prima facie case for an injunction, though it does not allege that there are no sluices, etc., as required by statute. Powell v. Springston Lumber Co. [Idaho] 88 P. 97.

14. Where, in an action for damages for injury by careless floating of shingle bolts, the evidence shows the amount of land cut away and the value thereof, it is sufficiently definite to authorize damages. Mitchell v. Lea Lumber Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 405.

15. An injunction restraining a boom company from obstructing the river navigation in front of complainant's property, and from sorting, holding, or rafting logs at such place, or from operating any boom so as to interfere with navigation, from operating artificial means of increasing the flow of water past plaintiff's premises, or occupying or damaging his premises, is proper. Burrows v. Grays Harbor Boom Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 937. An obstruction to constitute a nuisance must materially interrupt general navigation. A drawbridge held not necessarily a nuisance. Pedrick v. Raleigh & P. S. R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 877. Evidence held insufficient to show that a proposed drawbridge would so interrupt and interfere with navigation as to justify an injunction restraining its construction. Id.

16. City of Milwaukee v. Gimbel Bros. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 7.

17. Insufficient interest: Owners and operators of sailboats on a river to restrain the construction of a bridge. Pedrick v. Raleigh & P. S. R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 877. Citizens of a town adjoining a river to restrain the construction of a bridge. Id.

Sufficient interest: An owner of a sawmill located on a river above a proposed bridge, who procures from above and below the bridge site, and who ships his lumber in barges which must pass such place, has a sufficient special interest as to maintain an injunction. Pedrick v. Raleigh & P. S. R. Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 877.

18. Under Laws 1901, p. 98, c. 62, an order of the state land commissioners, canceling a lease of harbor area, is appealable, hence, injunction will not issue to enjoin its enforcement. Seattle Wharf Co. v. Callvert, 42 Wash. 390, 85 P. 16. An immemorial-custom entitling littoral proprietors to wharf out to the navigable channel may be interposed as a defense to ejectment by a city to recover possession of the shore, as may also, the fact that the rights of the city in the shore have been vested in a commission. Murray v. Barnes [Ala.] 40 So. 348.

19. Rev. St. 1887, § 3836. Powell v. Springston Lumber Co. [Idaho] 88 P. 97.

20. Harrison v. Fite [C. C. A.] 148 F. 781. Kentucky river. Warner v. Ford Lumber & Mfg. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 527, 93 S. W. 650. Tennessee river. Terrell v. Paducah, 28 Ky. L. R. 1237, 92 S. W. 310.

21. People v. Board of Sup'rs, 122 Ill. App. 40.

22. Whether a stream is navigable is a the court does not take judicial notice, the burden of proving navigability rests upon the party alleging the same.[23]

NE EXEAT.

The common-law scope of the writ has not been enlarged in Wisconsin,[24] and it will issue only against a debtor.[25] Does not lie in favor of a defendant against the complainant.[26] In Illinois the demand must be reduced to judgment unless the facts shown raise a clear presumption of fraud.[27] Ne exeat, being an extraordinary writ, should not issue when legal process can afford as ample and efficacious relief.[28]

NEGLIGENCE.

§ 1. Definitions (1090).
§ 2. Acts or Omissions Constituting Negligence (1092).
A. Personal Conduct in General (1092).
B. Use of Property in General (1093). Dangerous Machinery and Substances (1094). Liability of Manufacturers (1095).
C. Use of Lands, Buildings and Other Structures (1095). Liability to Trespassers and Licensees (1096). Liability for Injuries to Children (1098).
§ 3. Proximate Cause (1099).
§ 4. Contributory Negligence (1101). Children (1104). Comparative Negligence (1104). Last Clear Chance Doctrine (1105). Imputed Negligence (1105).
§ 5. Actions (1108).

Scope of title.—This topic treats generally of the subject of negligence, and includes only such specific applications of the general principles as are not covered by other topics[29] or such as it has been deemed advisable to retain for the purpose of illustration. The subject of damages recoverable for negligent injuries is also excluded.[30]

§ 1. Definitions.[31]—Negligence is the failure to exercise such care as an ordinarily prudent person would exercise under the same circumstances,[32] or, in other question of fact to be determined by the jury from the evidence. People v. Board of Sup'rs, 122 Ill. App. 40.

23. Harrison v. Fite [C. C. A.] 148 F. 781.

24. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 2784-2786, merely regulate the practice of the issuance of the writ and do not enlarge its scope. Davidor v. Rosenberg [Wis.] 109 N. W. 925.

25. Rev. St. 1898, § 2784, authorizing the writ to prevent "any person" from leaving the state, etc., held not to justify its issuance against one to whom the debtor had transferred property, since § 2785 limits it to its common-law scope. Davidor v. Rosenberg [Wis.] 109 N. W. 925.

26. A defendant in an accounting who merely alleges that complainant is indebted to him without setting up a counterclaim is not entitled to the writ under Rev. St. 1898, § 2785. Davidor v. Rosenberg [Wis.] 109 N. W. 925.

27. Allegations of mere conclusions of fraud are insufficient. Brophy v. Sheppard, 124 Ill. App. 512. The mere fact that defendant is about to leave the state with all his property, exempt and nonexempt, does not raise such a presumption of fraud as will authorize the writ. Id.

28. Capias ad respondendum held adequate. Brophy v. Sheppard, 124 Ill. App. 512.

29. See agency, 7 C. L. 61; Animals, 7 C. L. 120; Bridges, 7 C. L. 460; Banking and Finance, 7 C. L. 358; Building and Construction Contracts, 7 C. L. 480; Buildings and Building Restrictions, 7 C. L. 507; Carriers, 7 C. L. 522; Corporations, 7 C. L. 862; Counties, 7 C. L. 976; Death by Wrongful Act, 7 C. L. 1083; Electricity, 7 C. L. 1258; Explosives and Inflammables, 7 C. L. 1637; Fires, 7 C. L. 1657; Highways and Streets, 8 C. L. 40; Independent Contractors, 8 C. L. 176; Inns, Restaurants and Lodging Houses, 8 C. L. 317; Intoxicating Liquors, 8 C. L. 486; Landlord and Tenant, 8 C. L. 656; Master and Servant, 6 C. L. 521; Medicine and Surgery, 6 C. L. 622; Mines and Minerals, 6 C. L. 644; Municipal Corporations, 6 C. L. 714; Negotiable Instruments, 6 C. L. 777; Nuisance, 6 C. L. 827; Parks and Public Grounds, 6 C. L. 885; Party Walls, 6 C. L. 950; Pipe Lines and Subways, 6 C. L. 1007; Poisons, 4 C. L. 1060; Railroads, 6 C. L. 1194; Sewers and Drains, 6 C. L. 1448; Shipping, 6 C. L. 1876; Wharves, 6 C. L. 1879. See, also, Torts, 6 C. L. 1700.

30. See Damages, 7 C. L. 1029, and Water Traffic, 6 C. L. 1464; Street Railways, 6 C. L. 1556; Telegraphs and Telephones, 6 C. L. 1665; Warehousing and Deposits, 6 C. L. 1834; Waters and Water Supply, 6 C. L. 1840; Weapons, 6 C. L. 1876.

31. See 6 C. L. 748.

32. Heidelbaugh v. People's R. Co. [Del.] 65 A. 587; Garrett v. People's R. Co. [Del.] 64 A. 254; Robinson v. Huber [Del.] 63 A. 873; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Lucas' Adm'r [Ky.] 98 S. W. 308. See post, § 4, Contributary Negligence. "Negligence is the failure to observe * * * that degree of care which the circumstances justly demand." Fisher v. New Bern, 140 N. C. 506, 53 S. E. 342.

words, it is a failure to use ordinary care,[33] or, as it is sometimes called, due care.[34] Degrees of negligence are sometimes recognized by the courts,[35] and where they are recognized or created by statute [36] they cannot be ignored by the courts.[37]

To be actionable, negligence must constitute a violation of a legal duty [38] and must proximately [39] result in injury.[40]

Willful or wanton negligence.[41]—While wantonness usually implies willfulness,[42] it is not necessarily inconsistent with negligence,[43] and one may be guilty of wanton or willful misconduct without any actual intent to do wrong,[44] and though the word "wanton" is not an apt adjective in describing negligence, when so used the expression imports both wantonness and negligence.[45] The distinction between

33. Ordinary care is the care which an ordinarily prudent person would exercise under the same circumstances. McMahen v. White, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 169; Lovell v. Kansas City Southern R. Co. [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 193; Louisville R. Co. v. Esselman, 29 Ky. L. R. 333, 93 S. W. 50. Ordinary care is not the care of a "prudent" man but that of an "ordinarily prudent" man. City of Paris v. Tucker [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 240, 93 S. W. 233.

34. Due care is such care as a reasonably prudent and careful man would use under similar circumstances. Robinson v. Huber [Del.] 63 A. 873.

35. Use of term "slightest negligence" in instruction in action by passenger, approved. Chicago City R. Co. v. Shaw, 220 Ill. 532, 77 N. E. 139. Term "slight negligence" used in ascertaining that one may recover though not entirely free from fault, if he was in the exercise of ordinary care. Malott v. Schlosser, 119 Ill. App. 259. See post, § 4. Contributory Negligence.

36. Rev. Laws, c. 171, § 2, providing for recovery for death caused by gross negligence. Manning v. Conway [Mass.] 78 N. E. 401. Gross negligence is highest degree of neglect recognized by Texas statutes. Pendley v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 28 Ky. L. R. 1324, 92 S. W. 1.

37. Ordinary and gross negligence. Pearlstein v. New York, etc., R. Co. [Mass.] 77 N. E. 1024. One who commenced to jump and dance and jerk rope atached to heavy machine being loaded on car, but who desisted when warned, held not guilty of gross negligence though he did not thereafter pull as effectively as he might have done. Id.

38. Chroust v. Acme Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 214 Pa. 179, 63 A. 595; Prosser v. West Jersey & S. R. Co., 72 N. J. Law, 342, 62 A. 494; Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Hennessey [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 670; Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. v. Pressell [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 357; Shaw v. Goldman, 116 Mo. App. 332, 92 S. W. 165; Walker's Adm'r v. Potomac, F. & P. R. Co., 105 Va. 266, 53 S. E. 113; Bannon v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 231. See post, § 2. Acts Constituting Negligence. Violation of legal duty is essence of actionable negligence. Wilmot v. McPadden [Conn.] 65 A. 157. Even a recklessly negligent act is not actionable unless it constitutes a violation of duty. McAndrews v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 222 Ill. 232, 78 N. E. 603. Shipper owes carrier and its servants no duty to tie bales or bundles with cords strong enough to move them by. Cronin v. American Linen Co., 147 F. 755. Duty may arise out of contract. Flint & Walling Mfg. Co. v. Beckett [Ind.] 79 N. E. 503. Duty arising out of contract to excavate lot and place underpinning under house. Olson v. Goerig [Wash.] 88 P. 1017. Servant of railroad company, working under superintendent, whose duty was to keep watering tanks in repair, held not liable for injury due to negligent placing of tank too near track. Dudley v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 1029, 96 S. W. 835.

39. See post, § 3. Proximate Cause.

40. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Des Moines Nat. Bank [C. C. A.] 145 F. 273; Sineone v. Lindsay [Del.] 65 A. 778; Brewster v. Elizabeth City, 142 N. C. 9, 54 S. E. 784; Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. v. Pressell [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 357; Deschner v. St. Louis & M. R. R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 737; Fanizzi v. New York & I. C. R. Co., 113 App. Div. 440, 99 N. Y. S. 281; Morhard v. Richmond Light & R. Co., 111 App. Div. 353, 98 N. Y. S. 124; Libby, McNeill & Libby v. Kearney, 124 Ill. App. 339. Evidence insufficient to show that negligence of the state in failing to maintain discipline in reformatory caused fire which resulted in loss of contractor's property. Mills Co. v. State, 97 N. Y. S. 676. Fact that defendant took possession of plaintiff's lumber did not render him liable for its depreciation by rotting where it did not appear that the rotting occurred while lumber was in defendant's possession. Deitz v. Lensinger, 77 Ark. 274, 91 S. W. 755. Violation of municipal ordinance relating to care is not actionable unless it was proximate cause of injury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 170, 90 S. W. 918.

41. See 6 C. L. 749.

42. "Wantonness is a conscious failure to observe due care, a conscious invasion of the rights of another, an intentional doing of an unlawful act, knowing such act to have been unlawful." Bussey v. Charleston & W. C. R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 163.

43. Kramm v. Stockton Elec. R. Co. [Cal. App.] 86 P. 903.

44. Birmingham R., Light & Power Co. v. Ryan [Ala.] 41 So. 618; Ambroz v. Cedar Rapids Elec. Light & Power Co. [Iowa] 108 N. W. 540. Gross negligence may amount to wantonness or willfulness. Kramm v. Stockton Elec. R. Co. [Cal. App.] 86 P. 903. Recklessness may be the equivalent of willfulness or intentional wrong. Bussey v. Charleston & W. C. R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 163.

45. Campbell v. Western Union Tel. Co., 74 S. C. 300, 54 S. E. 571.

negligence and willfulness or wantonness, however, is not without importance,[45] especially as regards the amount of damages recoverable.[47]

§ 2. Acts or omissions constituting negligence. A. Personal conduct in general.[48]—The standard of personal conduct is ordinary care,[49] which is such care as an ordinarily prudent person would exercise under the same circumstances.[50] Due or ordinary care, however, is not an absolute term and varies with the circumstances.[51] It is correlative with the duty owed [52] and proportionate to the probability of injury,[53] and involves some knowledge or notice of circumstances or conditions from which injury might have been anticipated.[54] It is not necessary, however, that the exact consequences of an act should or could have been anticipated.[55] The probability of injury is sometimes treated as an element of probable cause.[56] Failure to take precautions which would not have prevented the accident is not negligence.[57]

As a general rule specific acts do not of themselves and considered without their 46. Error to instruct on negligence in action for wilful violation of statute. Consolidated Coal Co. v. Stein, 122 Ill. App. 310.

47. See Damages, 7 C. L. 1029.

48. See 6 C. L. 750.

49. Baird v. Chambers [N. D.] 109 N. W. 61.

50. McMahen v. White, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 160; Lovell v. Kansas City Southern R. Co. [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 193; Louisville R. Co. v. Esselman, 29 Ky. L. R. 333, 93 S. W. 50; City of Paris v. Tucker [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 240, 93 S. W. 233. Duty to exercise care which ordinarily prudent and intelligent men exercise in their own affairs does not call for "extraordinary" or "very high" degree of care. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Des Moines Nat. Bank [C. C. A.] 145 F. 273.

51. Southern R. Co. v. Stutts [C. C. A.] 144 F. 948; Robinson v. Huber [Del.] 63 A. 873; McMahen v. White, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 169; Weldon v. People's R. Co. [Del.] 65 A. 589. Care of bank as to safety deposit boxes and vaults. Masonic Temple Safety Deposit Co. v. Langfelt, 117 Ill. App. 652. Ordinary care in crossing steam railroads and street railroads. Kramm v. Stockton Elec. R. Co. [Cal. App.] 86 P. 738. Acts constituting due care to workmen above ground do not necessarily constitute due care as to workmen under ground. Williams v. Sleepy Hollow Min. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 337.

52. See Carriers, 7 C. L. 522; Inns, Restaurants, and Lodging Houses, 6 C. L. 31; Landlord and Tenant, 6 C. L. 345; Master and Servant, 6 C. L. 521; Railroads, 6 C. L. 1194; Street Railroads, 6 C. L. 1556; Warehousing and Deposits, 6 C. L. 1834; Wharves, 6 C. L. 1879. See, also, post, this section, subsection C. Use of Lands, Buildings, and Other Structures. Rule as to care required of one crossing railroad not applicable to one acting as a carrier. Parmelee Co. v. Wheelock, 224 Ill. 194, 79 N. E. 652.

In dealing with children greater care may be required than in dealing with adults. Indianapolis Water Co. v. Harold [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 542. In determining what is ordinary care in reference to children their apparent age, size, and inability to protect themselves should be considered. Southern R. Co. v. Chatman, 124 Ga. 1026, 53 S. E. 692. The youth of plaintiff, however, will not supply defendant's lack of negligence. Belt R. Co. v. Charters, 123 Ill. App. 322.

53. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Farrow's Adm'x [Va.] 55 S. E. 569. See Electricity, 7 C. L. 1258; Explosives and Inflammables, 7 C. L. 1637; Fires, 7 C. L. 1657; Highways and Streets, 8 C. L. 40; Medicine and Surgery, 6 C. L. 622; Parks and Public Grounds, 6 C. L. 885; Poisons, 4 C. L. 1060; Weapons, 6 C. L. 1876. See, also, this section, subsection B. subd. Dangerous Machinery and Substances, and subsection C. Use of Lands, Buildings, and Other Structures. An act is negligent only with relation to its reasonable and probable consequences which might have been anticipated by a person of ordinary prudence. Snyder v. Arnold, 28 Ky. L. R. 1250, 92 S. W. 289; Mailliefert v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 50 Misc. 160, 98 N. Y. S. 207. That which has never happened before and which is not of such a character that prudent men ought naturally to guard against it cannot, when it does happen, be the basis of a charge of negligence. Martin v. Niles-Bement-Pond Co., 214 Pa. 616, 64 A. 370. Act of owner in putting oil in fuel tank under course of construction by an independent contractor without notifying workmen, and with knowledge that holes had to be drilled and bolts inserted, held negligence. McGill v. Michigan S. S. Co. [C. C. A.] 144 F. 788.

54. One opening enclosure not liable for escape of and injury to stock where there was nothing whatever to charge him with notice that stock were within such enclosure. Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Christian Moerlein Brew. Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 17. One is charged with having seen what he could have seen by exercise of reasonable care. Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. v. Presseli [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 357.

55. Kimberly v. Howland [N. C.] 55 S. E. 778. Injury from wire stretched by a stranger from guy wire post, electric current being communicated to such way from defectively insulated electric wire. Wilbert v. Zurheide Brick Co. [Wis.] 106 N. W. 1058. Reasonable care requires one to anticipate what might naturally result from his conduct, as that horse left untied in ferry area-way might run away and injure someone. Koontz v. New York Mail Co., 72 N. J. Law, 530, 63 A. 341.

56. See post, § 3, Probable Cause.

57. Failure to have guard at entrance to temporary bridge onto which plaintiff knowingly went and from which he fell. Bell v. New York, 114 App. Div. 22, 99 N. Y. S. 684.

attending circumstances constitute negligence,[58] though certain acts or omissions are sometimes declared to be negligence per se,[59] or the circumstances may be such as to raise a prima facie presumption of negligence.[60] The foregoing general principle and the two exceptions stated usually involve merely the question as to when negligence is for the jury and when for the court.[61] A more distinctive doctrine, though also probably a mere phase of the same question, is that the violation of a statutory duty [62] or a duty created or declared by a municipal ordinance [63] is negligence per se. Otherwise expressed, it is declared that the violation of such a duty raises a rebuttable presumption of negligence.[64]

Act of God and unavoidable accident.[65]—One must provide against such acts of God as may be reasonably anticipated,[66] and one may be liable for the results of his negligence notwithstanding an act of God concurred in producing them,[67] though he may not be liable for the total resultant damages.[68] An inevitable or, as it is sometimes called, a pure accident is not actionable.[69]

Joint and several liability.[70]—As in the case of other joint torts,[71] joint negligence gives rise to a point and several liability.[72] Some sort of community in the wrong is essential to joint liability,[73] but the negligent acts need not be concerted.[74]

(§ 2) B. Use of property in general.[75]—One furnishing property for the use of others is bound, irrespective of any privity of contract, to use reasonable care to see that it is in a safe condition for the use for which it was intended.[76] Such duty is not confined to the construction or manufacture of the property,[77] but one

58. Rate of speed in driving at night, or pulling horse suddenly to other side of road. McMahen v. White, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 169.

59. Failure to use any spark arrester on a stavemill engine held negligence per se, there being buildings near by. Dodd & Co. v. Read [Ark.] 98 S. W. 703.

60. See doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, post, § 5, subd. Presumptions and Burden of Proof.

61. See post, § 5, subd. Questions of Law and Fact.

62. Schutt v. Adair [Minn.] 108 N. W. 811.

63. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Ordinance relating to insulation of electric wires. Clements v. Potomac Elec. Power Co., 26 App. D. C. 482. Speed ordinances. Stotler v. Chicago & A. R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 509; Campbell v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 58.

64. Failure of owner of apartment house to furnish operator for electric elevator. Shellaberger v. Fisher [C. C. A.] 143 F. 937.

65. See 6 C. L. 751.

66. Building must be constructed so as to withstand ordinary storms. Uggia v. Brokaw, 102 N. Y. S. 857.

67. See post, § 3, Proximate Cause.

68. One whose negligence, concurring with act of God, caused flood, held not liable for such damages as would have accrued irrespective of his negligence. Carhart v. State, 100 N. Y. S. 499.

69. Simeone v. Lindsay [Del.] 65 A. 778. Purely accidental discharge of gun. Siefker v. Paysee, 115 La. 953, 40 So. 366. Where each party is using due care and an accident occurs, it will be held to be an enevitable accident. White v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del.] 63 F. 931.

70. See 6 C. L. 751.

71. See Torts, 6 C. L. 1702.

72. Joint negligence of owner of building and of janitor in charge of elevator. Ferguson v. Truax [Wis.] 110 N. W. 395. Joint negligence of owner of coal barge and owner of steamer being coaled. Strauhal v. Asiatic S. S. Co. [Or.] 85 P. 230. Joint negligence of driver of bus and those in charge of street car. Parmelee Co. v. Wheelock, 224 Ill. 194, 79 N. E. 652. Recovery against one defendant guilty of negligence jointly with another defendant not dependent on recovery against latter. Ferguson v. Truax [Wis.] 110 N. W. 395. See Code Civ. Proc. § 578. Fowden v. Pacific Coast S. S. Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 178. Defendant in such case cannot complain of striking out name of codefendant. Olwell v. Skobis, 126 Wis. 308, 105 N. W. 777. Verdict against one not affected by new trial as to other. Fowden v. Pacific Coast S. S. Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 178. Plaintiff may dismiss as to one and proceed against other. Fowden v. Pacific Coast S. S. Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 178; Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Baron, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 633. One defendant jointly liable with another defendant for negligence is not entitled to reversal for error in favor of latter, though it tends unduly to prejudice former. Denver City Tramway Co. v. Norton [C. C. A.] 141 F. 599.

73. Strauhal v. Asiatic S. S. Co. [Or.] 85 P. 230.

74. Negligence of barge owner in furnishing unseaworthy barge and of steamship owner in loading and unloading barge. Strauhal v. Asiatic S. S. Co. [Or.] 85 P. 230.

75. See 6 C. L. 752.

76. City furnishing appliances for use of employes of independent contractor. McMullen v. New York, 110 App. Div. 117, 97 N. Y. S. 109. Refrigerator car company liable to brakeman injured through a defect in a car furnished to the railroad. Leas v. Continental Fruit Exp. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 859.

77. Refrigerator car company furnishing cars to railroads liable for defects therein at time it is furnished, though arising after original construction. Leas v. Continental Fruit Exp. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 859.

is not liable for defects arising while the property is in the exclusive custody and control of another.[78] Where the seller of an article not inherently dangerous is not the manufacturer thereof, he is not liable for injuries caused thereby in the absence of knowledge of the danger attending its use, or negligence in failing to discover such danger.[79]

Dangerous machinery and substances.[80]—In the use of intrinsically dangerous articles the care required is proportionate to the nature of the article and the circumstances under which it is used,[81] so also one must use due diligence to ascertain the competency of an agent intrusted with dangerous substances.[82] One using a manufactured article purchased in open market will not be charged with negligence on account of its inadequacy unless he knew or ought to have known of its inadequacy.[83] The seller of a dangerous article must give notice of its nature and qualities,[84] and if he fails to give such notice he will be liable to persons injured irrespective of any privity of contract.[85] A shipper of a dangerous substance is not an Complaint construed as charging negligence in permitting car to remain in defective condition as well as negligently constructing it in the first instance. Id.

78. Railroad employe injured while working on oil tank car owned by oil company but in control of railroad company. Finan v. Valvoline Oil Co., 51 Misc. 292, 100 N. Y. S. 1087.

79. Bottles and carbonic acid gas to be used in aerating liquids. Bruckel v. Milhau's Sons, 102 N. Y. S. 395. Mere ignorance of the seller will not render him liable unless his ignorance is due to negligence. Id.

80. See 6 C. L. 752.

81. See Electricity, 7 C. L. 1258; Explosives and Inflammables, 7 C. L. 1637; Fires, 7 C. L. 1657; Weapons, 6 C. L. 1876. Electricity. Wood v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del.] 64 A. 246; Fisher v. New Bern, 140 N. C. 506, 53 S. E. 342; Wilbert v. Zurheide Brick Co. [Wis.] 106 N. W. 1058; Morhard v. Richmond Light & R. Co., 111 App. Div. 353, 98 N. Y. S. 124; Goddard v. Enzler, 123 Ill. App. 108; Byron Tel. Co. v. Sheets, 122 Ill. App. 6. Blasting with powerful explosives. Page v. Dempsey, 184 N. Y. 245, 77 N. E. 9. Blasting with dynamite in populous neighborhood. Kimberly v. Howland [N. C.] 55 S. E. 778. Landlord who furnishes automatic electric elevator for use of tenant and family owes higher duty to tenant's children as regards protecting them from injury than railroad company does to protect trespassing boy from injury from turntable. Shellaberger v. Fisher [C. C. A.] 143 F. 937. Engineer of crane running on track upon which persons are licensed to walk and work must keep constant lookout for persons on track. Allis-Chalmers Co. v. Reilley [C. C. A.] 143 F. 298. Negligence to leave in only passage way from house to street a portable charcoal furnace with fire in it and molten lead on top. Rosenberg v. Zeitchik, 101 N. Y. S. 591. Testing room of firearm factory held reasonably safe as regards injury from bullets to person passing by on outside. Church v. Winchester Repeating Arms Co., 78 Conn. 720, 63 A. 510. Bale of merchandise tied with rope sufficient to secure it but not to move it by cannot be classed as an inherently dangerous thing. Cronin v. American Linen Co., 147 F. 755.

Liability to trespassers is treated elsewhere. See post, this section, subsection C. Use of Lands, Buildings and Other Structures.

82. Agent of shipowner intrusted with filling tank with crude oil. McGill v. Michigan S. S. Co. [C. C. A.] 144 F. 788.

83. Adequacy of insulation of electric light wire. Mangan v. Hudson River Tel. Co., 50 Misc. 388, 100 N. Y. S. 539.

84. Illuminating oil containing gasoline. Standard Oil Co. v. Parrish [C. C. A.] 145 F. 829; Ellis v. Republic Oil Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 20; Nelson v. Republic Oil Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 24.

85. Seller of kerosene containing gasoline liable for injuries from explosion. Ellis v. Republic Oil Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 20; Nelson v. Republic Oil Co., 110 N. W. 24. Seller of kerosene containing gasoline held liable for death of purchaser's child caused by explosion. Standard Oil Co. v. Parrish [C. C. A.] 145 F. 829.

Note: Seller of intrinsically dangerous articles, such as gun powder, nitro-glycerin, naptha, poisonous drugs, etc., who delivers them without notice of their character to persons ignorant thereof, are liable for injuries caused thereby without regard to any privity of contract. Davidson v. Nichols, 11 Allen [Mass.] 514; Carter v. Towne, 98 Mass. 567, 96 Am. Dec. 682; Wellington v. Downer Kerosene Oil Co., 104 Mass. 64; Norton v. Sewall, 106 Mass. 143, 8 Am. Rep. 298; Boston & Albany R. Co. v. Shanley, 107 Mass. 568; Turner v. Page, 186 Mass. 600, 72 N. E. 329; Ouilghan v. Butler, 189 Mass. 287, 75 N. E. 726; Flynn v. Butler, 189 Mass. 377, 75 N. E. 730; Thomas v. Winchester, 6 N. Y. 397, 57 Am. Dec. 455. A similar liability attaches where a caterer furnishes impure or unwholesome foods, or where a manufacturer sells for general use defective mechanical implements or other articles with knowledge of such defects. Bishop v. Weber, 139 Mass. 411, 1 N. E. 154, 52 Am. Rep. 715; McDonald v. Snelling, 14 Allen [Mass.] 290, 92 Am. Dec. 768; Flynn v. Butler, 189 Mass. 377, 75 N. E. 730; Lewis v. Terry, 111 Cal. 39, 43 P. 398, 31 L. R. A. 220, 52 Am. St. Rep. 146; Huset v. Case Threshing Machine Co. [C. C. A.] 120 F. 865, 61 L. R. A. 303; Clarke v. Army & Navy Co-operative Soc. [1903] 1 K. B. 155, 167. See Lebourdais v. Vitrified Wheel Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 482.

insurer of the safety of persons who may handle it, and his duty is performed if he employs well known and reasonably safe methods.[86]

Liability of manufacturers.[87]—As a general rule the manufacturer of an article not imminently dangerous is not liable to strangers for injuries caused by defects therein of which he did not know and could not have known by the exercise of ordinary care.[88] There seems to be some conflict as to whether failure to exercise ordinary care to discover the defects will render him liable to strangers.[89]

(§ 2) C. Use of lands, buildings and other structures. In general.[90]—Negligence cannot be predicated upon one's lawful and ordinary use of his own premises,[91] and, as in the case of negligence in general,[92] negligence in the use of such premises must be predicated upon the violation of a legal duty [93] and the probability of injury therefrom.[94] On the other hand one must use his property so as not to injure adjoining property or persons thereon.[95] And so also one in control of premises must give proper warning of hidden dangers to persons rightfully thereon.[96] In determining whether a certain act or omission constituted negligence, the purpose for which the premises were used and the business of the occupant will be considered.[97] Ownership of the premises or property is not essential to liability,[98] nor is responsibility for the erection of a structure essential to liability for injuries caused thereby,[99] but the owner of premises occupied by another is not liable for

86. Method of shipping sulphuric acid. Reddick v. General Chemical Co., 124 Ill. App. 31.

87. See 6 C. L. 752.

88. Heindirk v. Louisville El. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 193, 92 S. W. 608. Maker of support for sign not liable to purchaser for whom it was made for injuries caused by falling of sign, by reason of defective fastening, though he voluntarily assisted in fastening the sign to the support under direction of plaintiff's clerk. Hyman v. Waas [Conn.] 64 A. 354.

Note: Manufacturer not usually liable in absence of privity of contract. Davidson v. Nichols, 11 Allen [Mass.] 514; Clifford v. Atlantic Cotton Mills, 146 Mass. 47, 15 N. E. 84, 4 Am. St. Rep. 279; Glynn v. Central Railroad Co., 175 Mass. 507. See Lebourdais v. Vetrified Wheel Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 482.

89. Manufacturer of defective emery wheel held not liable to employe of purchaser though defendant could have discovered the defects by exercise of reasonable care. Lebourdais v. Vetrified Wheel Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 482. Manufacturer of separator cylinder cap so defective as to charge him with notice of the defects held liable for injuries to employe of vendee caused by breaking of cap. Holmvick v. Parsons Band Cutter & Self-Feeder Co. [Minn.] 108 N. W. 810.

90. See 6 C. L. 753.

91. Bannon v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 231.

92. See ante, § 1, Definitions.

93. Lot owner owes no duty to public to place railing on top of retaining wall lawfully constructed by him along side of highway. Schimberg v. Cutler [C. C. A.] 142 F. 701. Owner of unfinished building not liable to one injured by its collapse while taking shelter therein from unusually severe storm. Glennon v. Everson [Mass.] 80 N. E. 476.

94. Proprietor of baths held not liable to patron who cut his hand on bar glass left on shelf in bathroom, where it was custom to serve drinks in such room, and it did not appear how long glass had been left there. Jones v. Levy, 50 Misc. 624, 98 N. Y. S. 206. Contractor not liable to pedestrian who fell from temporary bridge, not intended for his use, while attempting to recover a coin which he had dropped and which rolled onto the bridge. Bell v. New York, 114 App. Div. 22, 99 N. Y. S. 684. Proprietor liable for injury from hole in carpet in aisle of theatre. Nephler v. Woodward [Mo.] 98 S. W. 488.

95. Common way used jointly by abutting owners held adjoining property within this rule. Cavanagh v. Block [Mass.] 77 N. E. 1027. One backing water up against a roadway so as to make travel thereon dangerous must do whatever is reasonably necessary to protect the public (Strange v. Bodcaw Lumber Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 152), notwithstanding he was given permission by the county judge so to do (Id.), and if guard rails are reasonably necessary, it is no excuse for failure to erect them that he had no authority to do so, at least where he has never asked for such leave (Id.). Property owner liable for injury from ice falling from roof. Cavanagh v. Block [Mass.] 77 N. E. 1027.

96. Party repairing public bridge charged with duty of protecting public from danger of loose planks. Burns v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. [N. J.] 65 A. 186.

97. Contractor not liable for failure to put barrier across entrance to temporary bridge where such barrier would have interfered with work. Bell v. New York, 114 App. Div. 22, 99 N. Y. S. 684.

98. Lessee of sign board with full control thereover held liable for injury caused by its fall. San Filippo v. American Bill Posting Co., 112 App. Div. 395, 98 N. Y. S. 661. See Landlord and Tenant, 6 C. L. 345.

99. Owner may be liable for injuries from a dangerous structure though neither he nor his servants constructed it, where he knew of its existence and allowed it to remain. Indianapolis Water Co. v. Harold [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 542.

defects of which he has no notice.[1] Duration of a defective or dangerous condition may charge the owner with notice of its existence.[2] The owner of premises is not ordinarily liable for injuries from the acts of trespassers,[3] or mere volunteers.[4]

Liability to trespassers and licensees.[5]—It is often declared broadly that one owes no act, duty of care to trespassers [6] or bare licensees,[7] liability to such persons being confined entirely to cases of wantonness or recklessness,[8] and it is certain that the owner is not ordinarily liable to either trespassers [9] or bare licensees.[10] There is another element, however, which should be considered, and that is the probability of injury,[11] a duty to exercise due care arising in many cases from the knowledge of the presence of the trespasser or licensee [12] or from circumstances rendering their presence probable,[13] and exemption from liability being based upon absence of such

1. Chroust v. Acme Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 214 Pa. 179, 63 A. 595. See Landlord and Tenant, 6 C. L. 345.

2. Supervisors charged with notice of defective condition of street. Milliren v. Sandy Township, 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 580. Gas plug in street. Perry v. People's Gas Light & Coke Co., 119 Ill. App. 389.

3. Owner of house not liable for injury from brick caused to fall from roof by trespassers who did not gain access to roof through his premises and of whose presence he was ignorant. Strasburger v. Vogel, 103 Md. 85, 63 A. 202.

4. Park owner held not liable for injury from fireworks in charge of independent contractor which was caused solely by negligence of volunteer assisting contractor. Noggle v. Carlisle & Mt. H. R. Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 547.

5. See 6 C. L. 755.

6. McLain v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 121 Ill. App. 614; Wilmot v. McPadden [Conn.] 65 A. 157; Krause v. Lewis, 144 Mich. 549, 13 Det. Leg. N. 385, 108 N. W. 417. Owner of vacant lot not liable to trespasser who deliberately left street and went into lot and fell into open vat four feet from street. Johnson v. Paducah Laundry Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 59, 81, 92 S. W. 330. Fact that persons frequently crossed track for their own convenience near place where boy was playing on track did not make him any less a trespasser. Elliott v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 99 S. W. 233.

7. Wilmot v. McPadden [Conn.] 65 A. 157; Brown v. Thomas Blackwell Coal & Min. Co. [Ky.] 99 S. W. 299; Shaw v. Goldman, 116 Mo. App. 332, 92 S. W. 165; Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Stegall's Adm'x, 105 Va. 538, 54 S. E. 19; McLain v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 121 Ill. App. 614. One going through premises to premises of another. Rosenthal v. United Dressed Beef Co., 101 N. Y. S. 532. Employer not bound to warn one visiting employes of obvious danger. Jenkins v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 124 Ga. 986, 53 S. E. 379.

8. Trespasser or licensee on elevator injured by negligent operation by defendant's servants cannot recover where injury was not wantonly or recklessly inflicted. McManus v. Thing [Mass.] 80 N. E. 487. Owner will be held liable for a wanton disregard of the safety of trespassers whom he has reason to believe to be on his premises and likely to be injured by his acts. Ambroz v. Cedar Rapids Elec. L. & P. Co. [Iowa] 108 N. W. 540.

9. Horse being driven through railroad stock yards frightened by collision between trains. Johnson v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 36, 91 S. W. 707. Lot owner not liable to trespasser who fell over retaining wall lawfully built by such owner at side of highway. Schimberg v. Cutler [C. C. A.] 142 F. 701.

10. Owner not liable to one who fell from platform in alley in rear of store. Krause v. Lewis, 144 Mich. 549, 13 Det. Leg. N. 385, 108 N. W. 417. Longshoreman injured by falling of warehouse door on dock where he was waiting for work. Oats v. New York Dock Co., 109 App. Div. 841, 96 N. Y. S. 813. Owner not liable for affirmative acts of negligence of persons not in his employ or even of employes unless act is within scope of employment. Illinois Steel Co. v. Zolnowski, 118 Ill. App. 209.

11. The rule that the owner is ordinarily not liable to trespassers is based on the general rule that one is liable for only such acts as are likely to produce injury, and the owner, in the absence of notice of the presence of trespassers or the probability of their presence, is not charged with any duty to them. Brown v. Rockwell City Canning Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 12. Owner is liable to bare licensee injured by his unnecessary affirmative acts creating dangers proximately resulting in licensee's injury, such as leaving dynamite on ground in lumber camp when presence of licensee was known. Hobbs v. Blanchard & Son Co. [N. H.] 65 A. 382.

12. Trespasser. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Farrow's Adm'x [Va.] 55 S. E. 569. Persons using railroad track with knowledge or acquiescence of railroad company. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Daniel, 28 Ky. L. R. 1146, 91 S. W. 691. Where the owner knows of the licensee's presence and his ignorance of danger. Hobbs v. Blanchard & Son Co. [N. H.] 65 A. 382. The duty to exercise care as to trespassers usually arises only after their presence is known. Southern R. Co. v. Chatman, 124 Ga. 1026, 53 S. E. 692.

13. Trespasser. Southern R. Co. v. Chatman, 124 Ga. 1026, 53 S. E. 692. Duty to keep lookout in operating trains in populous neighborhood. Johnson v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 36, 91 S. W. 707. Children playing with building material in street not trespassers so as to bar recovery for injury caused by negligent use of highway by owner of material in operating pile drivers. Compty v. Starke Dredge & Dock Co. [Wis.] 109 N. W. 650. Railroad company held liable to licensee at depot who was scalded by steam and water from engine. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Tullis [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 478, 91 S. W. 317. Where private property is habitually used by public as a pass-way with acquiescence of owner, one knowledge or circumstances.[14] One is not, however, generally required to anticipate the presence of such persons.[15] Absence of benefit to the owner or occupant from one's presence does not necessarily render such person a bare licensee,[16] but mere acquiescence or permission does not necessarily amount to invitation or inducement such as to give rise to any duty of care,[17] although it may do so in some cases.[18] One whose presence is required and authorized by contract is not a volunteer or bare licensee.[19] An owner or occupant, therefore, owes a duty of due care to an independent contractor, licensed to use the premises for the purpose of his work,[20] and to the employes of such contractor,[21] and the owner's liability in such case may arise from the negligence of his servants as well as his own.[22] As between a contractor and the employes of a subcontractor, the contractor stands in the place of an owner or occupant,[23] and his liability is not identified with that of the subcontractor.[24] In any case the owner or occupant is required to exercise only ordinary care.[25] A bare licensee is one who goes upon the premises of another without invitation, enticement, allurement or inducement from the owner or occupant.[26] Licen-

so using is not a trespasser so as to lessen care due him. Texarkana & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Trugia [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 724, 95 S. W. 563.

14. Boy entered defendant's engine room after being warned to keep out. Houck v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 116 Mo. App. 559, 92 S. W. 738. Owner not liable where presence of trespasser could not have reasonably been anticipated, as where traveler left road on account of snow block and drove into unprotected well over three hundred yards from highway. Flint v. Bowman [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 464, 93 S. W. 479. Railroad company owes no duty to keep lookout for trespassers, but is only required to use reasonable diligence to prevent injury after discovering his danger. Elliott v. Louisville & N. R. Co. [Ky.] 99 S. W. 233.

15. Trespasser. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Farrow's Adm'x [Va.] 55 S. E. 569; Southern R. Co. v. Chatman, 124 Ga. 1026, 53 S. E. 692. Railroad company not chargeable with probability of trespassers entering inclosed lot and climbing onto fence causing it to fall on plaintiff who was on street below. Bannon v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 231. Licensees. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Farrow's Adm'x [Va.] 55 S. E. 569.

16. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Slaughter [Ind.] 79 N. E. 186.

17. Shaw v. Goldman, 116 Mo. App. 332, 92 S. W. 165; Wilmot v. McPadden [Conn.] 65 A. 167; Rosenthal v. United Dressed Beef Co., 101 N. Y. S. 532.

18. Railroad crossing. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Connolly [Neb.] 109 N. W. 368. Permission long continued. Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Campbell, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 569. Injury to licensee by engine backing without light or warning signal. Id.

19. Party superintending work being done by independent contractor. Pickwick v. McCauliff [Mass.] 78 N. E. 730.

20. Allis-Chalmers Co. v. Reilley [C. C. A.] 143 F. 298.

21. Rink v. Lowry [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 967. Injury by reason of unsafe place to work. Power v. Beattie [Mass.] 80 N. E. 606. Injury from engine running without lights or warning signals. Caffi v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 49 Misc. 620, 96 N. Y. S. 835. City held liable for injury caused by defective appliances furnished by it to be used by plaintiff. McMullen v. New York, 110 App. Div. 117, 97 N. Y. S. 109. Injury from defective insulation of electric wire. Ryan v. St. Louis Transit Co., 190 Mo. 621, 89 S. W. 865.

22. Liable to contractor. Allis-Chalmers Co. v. Reilley [C. C. A.] 143 F. 298. Liable to contractor's employes. Rink v. Lowry [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 967.

23. Ryan v. Irons, 114 App. Div. 165, 99 N. Y. S. 590. Employe of subcontractor injured by reason of defective flooring in building wherein he was working, such flooring not having been constructed by the subcontractor. Steele v. Grahl-Peterson Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 882. Contractor held liable for injury from defective contrivance convenient and commonly used for purpose for which plaintiff was using it, though not built for that purpose or for plaintiff's use. Loehring v. Westlake Const. Co., 118 Mo. App. 163, 94 S. W. 747.

24. Steele v. Grahl-Peterson Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 882.

25. Duhme v. Hamburgh-American Packet Co., 184 N. Y. 404, 77 N. E. 386; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Jones [C. C. A.] 144 F. 47.

26. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Slaughter [Ind.] 79 N. E. 186.

Note: Where one has a license to go upon another's premises, he takes the premises as he finds them, but when the owner or occupant by enticement, allurement, or inducement, whether express or implied, causes another to come upon his lands, he assumes the obligation of providing for the safety and protection of such person, and is charged with the duty to exercise due care not to injure him or allow him to be injured. Indiana, etc., R. Co. v. Barnhart, 115 Ind. 399, 16 N. E. 121; Railroad Co. v. Griffin, 100 Ind. 221, 50 Am. Rep. 783; Sweeny v. Railroad Co., 10 Allen [Mass.] 368, 87 Am. Dec. 644; Smith v. Docks Co., L. R. 3 C. P. 326; Carleton v. Steel Co., 99 Mass. 216; Railroad Co. v. Grush, 67 Ill. 262, 16 Am. Rep. 618; Doss v. Railway, 59 Mo. 27, 21 Am. Rep. 371; Elliott v. Pray, 10 Allen [Mass.] 378, 87 Am. Dec. 653; Strocton v. Staples, 59 Me. 95; Railroad Co. v. Hanning, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 649, 21 Law. Ed. 220; Bennett v. Railroad Co., 102 U. S. 577, 26 Law. Ed. 235; Hayes v. Railroad Co., 18 Rep. 193. See, also, Leary v. Railway, 78 Ind. 323, 41 Am. Rep. 572; Railroad v. Bingham, 29 Ohio St. 364, 23 Am.

sees by invitation are not bare licensees, and from the invitation arises a duty to exercise due care to have and keep the premises reasonably safe for the use for which the invitation is extended,[27] and also a duty to give warning of any peculiar danger,[28] but the owner or occupant is not an insurer of the safety of such licensees,[29] and his duty of care extends only to the ways, places and contrivances which the licensee is invited to use.[30]

Persons other than the owner may be liable to licensees,[31] and a trespasser who injures another through negligence cannot raise the question as to what duty the owner of the land owes to trespassers.[32] The question of ownership, however, does not affect the probability of the presence of trespassers as bearing upon the negligence of one not the owner.[33]

The question of liability to trespassing children is treated elsewhere.[34]

Liability for injuries to children.[35]—The fact that a trespasser is a child will not necessarily render the owner or occupant of premises liable for injury to him,[36] but under the doctrine known as the "turntable doctrine" the owner or occupant must exercise due care to protect children from the consequences of their inexperience and their youthful inclination to play with dangerous and attractive appliances

Rep. 751; Railway v. Goldsmith, 47 Ind. 43; Hargreaves v. Deacon, 25 Mich. 1; Nicholson v. Railroad Co., 41 N. Y. 525; Durham v. Musselman, 2 Blackf. [Ind.] 96, 18 Am. Dec. 133; Haunsell v. Smyth, 97 E. C. L. 731; Gilles v. Railway Co., 59 Pa. 129, 98 Am. Dec. 317; Southcote v. Stanley, 1 Hurl. & N. 247; Bolch v. Smith, 7 Hurl. & N. 736; Legge v. Newbold, 24 Eng. Law & Eq. 507; Burdick v. Cheadle, 26 Ohio St. 392, 20 Am. Rep. 267; Hardcastle v. Railroad Co., 4 Hurl. & N. 67.—See Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Slaughter [Ind.] 79 N. E. 186.

27. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. v. Clements [Ala.] 40 So. 971. Persons in store for purpose of trade. Shaw v. Goldman, 116 Mo. App. 332, 92 S. W. 165. Owner of store held liable to customer injured by negligent opening of swinging door by owner's servant. Paine v. Armour & Co. [Mass.] 80 N. E. 500. Where engineer invited boy into engine room. Houck v. Chicago & A. R. Co., 116 Mo. App. 559, 92 S. W. 738. Smelter company owed duty of care to servants of railroad company taking cars off of smelter company's siding by latter's invitation. Anderson v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 884. Where railroad track is constructed through premises of smelting company for its benefit, it must exercise ordinary care to avoid injurying employes of railroad company rightfully thereon. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Ref. Co. v. Binkley [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 181. Person delivering goods to defendant's tenant. Hamilton v. Taylor [Mass.] 80 N. E. 592. Owner held liable to prospective tenant who fell through trap door while examining premises. Boyd v. U. S. Mortg. & Trust Co. [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 999. Prospective tenant fell into elevator shaft. Wills v. Taylor [Mass.] 78 N. E. 774. Construction of railroad crossing is invitation to cross. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Slaughter [Ind.] 79 N. E. 186.

28. Open elevator shaft. Wills v. Taylor [Mass.] 78 N. E. 774.

29. Bell v. Central Nat. Bank, 28 App. D. C. 580.

30. Customer injured while going beyond limits of storeroom. Shaw v. Goldman, 116 Mo. App. 332, 92 S. W. 165. Owner not liable for injuries sustained by plumber who went out of gateway which he was not authorized to use, climbed a ladder, and fell into well of ash elevator. Gilfillan v. German Hospital & Dispensary, 100 N. Y. S. 601. Injury caused by defective stairway which licensee was allowed but not invited to use. Ryan v. Irons, 114 App. Div. 165, 99 N. Y. S. 590. Defective ladder which licensee was allowed to use. Hotchkin v. Erdrich, 214 Pa. 460, 63 A. 1035. Contractor not liable to employe of subcontractor for injury caused by breaking of stairway which employe was allowed but not invited to use. Ryan v. Irons, 114 App. Div. 165, 99 N. Y. S. 590. In Hotchkin v. Erdrich, 214 Pa. 460, 63 A. 1035, the owner was held not liable for injury to employe of independent contractor caused by a defective ladder which such employe was allowed but not invited to use. The decision was based upon the doctrine of assumption of risk. Justices Elkin and Mestezolt dissented.

31. Defendant, the owner of electric plant, liable for injury to licensee on vacant lot, not owned by defendant, from live wire. Davoust v. Alameda [Cal.] 84 P. 760. One coming to see property owner on business by invitation stands in place of owner as regards injury from negligent management of adjoining premises. Cavanagh v. Block [Mass.] 77 N. E. 1027.

32. Plaintiff injured by live electric wire owned by defendant on vacant lot not owned by defendant. Davoust v. Alameda [Cal.] 84 P. 760.

33. Trespassing boy injured by electric wires strung on bridge pier. Graves v. Washington Water Power Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 956.

34. See next succeeding subdivision of this subsection.

35. See 6 C. L. 756, n. 34 et seq.

36. Brown v. Rockwell City Canning Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 12; Wilmot v. McPadden [Conn.] 65 A. 157. Owner not bound to anticipate presence of trespassing children. Southern R. Co. v. Chatman, 124 Ga. 1026, 53 S. E. 692.

and structures,[37] regardless of whether the children are trespassers [38] and of the legality of the contrivance or structure.[39] The "turntable doctrine" is an exceptional one and does not apply to all cases of injury to children by machinery.[40] It does not apply where the machinery is in an enclosed building,[41] or where the machinery is not left unguarded.[42] On the other hand it is not confined to injuries from any particular kind of machinery,[43] and its application in any case depends upon the circumstances.[44] It does not apply where the defendant is not responsible for the lure or attraction,[45] or where the attractive thing is not the proximate cause of the injury.[46] In some states the doctrine is absolutely repudiated.[47]

Reasonable means may be employed to get rid of trespassing children without incurring liability for injuries sustained by a child in attempting to escape.[48]

§ 3. Proximate cause.[49]—A proximate cause is that from which the injury complained of results in natural and continuous sequence [50] unbroken by the intervention of any independent cause.[51] The intervening cause need not be wrongful

37. Kreiner v. Straubmiller, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 609; Denver City Tramway Co. v. Nicholas [Colo.] 84 P. 813; McAllister v. Seattle Brew. & Malting Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 68.

38. Denver City Tramway Co. v. Nicholas [Colo.] 84 P. 813. Child who plays with attractive appliance being used in a street is not such a trespasser as will preclude a recovery if he is injured. O'Leary v. Michigan State Tel. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 752, 109 N. W. 434.

39. Denver City Tramway Co. v. Nicholas [Colo.] 84 P. 813.

40. Brown v. Rockwell City Canning Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 12.

41. Though no special guardman is provided. Brown v. Rockwell City Canning Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 12.

42. Brown v. Rockwell City Canning Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 12. Negligence held for jury where plaintiff, a child of seven, was injured while playing with snatch block being used by defendant in stringing telephone cable, defendant's servants being present and having notice of what plaintiff was doing. O'Leary v. Michigan State Tel. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 752, 109 N. W. 434.

43. McAllister v. Seattle Brew. & M. Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 68. Where defendant stacked iron beams in street. Louisville R. Co. v. Esselman, 29 Ky. L. R. 333, 93 S. W. 50. Pile of barrels on sidewalk. Kreiner v. Straubmuller, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 609. Street cars left standing in street. Denver City Tramway Co. v. Nicholas [Colo.] 84 P. 813. Foot log across defendant's bank near highway and used generally by public. Indianapolis Water Co. v. Harold [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 542.

