§ 2. The defense of usury.[96]—Only parties to the usurious contract may set up the defense of usury thereto,[97] and a prior mortgagee cannot set up a defense of usury against the prior mortgage where the mortgagor had not the right to do so,[98] but the defense is available to the debtor's trustee in bankruptcy.[99] Usury cannot be urged as a defense to a note in the hands of a bona fide purchaser.[1] The wife of a mortgagee, to whom the property is conveyed without consideration to prevent her husband from dissipating it, is not estopped to set up usury as a defense to the mortgage;[2] and the doctrine of equitable estoppel cannot be invoked to prevent an inquiry into an usurious transaction.[3]

Pleading and proof.[4]—A plea of usury must set forth the facts and the terms and nature of the contract with certainty.[5] The burden of proving usury is on the party alleging it.[6]

§ 3. The effect of usury.[7]—Where the lender sues for the amount of usurious interest he forfeits all interest under the Missouri statutes.[8]

Forfeitures.[9]

Application of usurious payments.[10]

§ 4. Affirmative relief and procedure.[11]—Equity will grant relief against any form of usurious contract either to the debtor or to one not a party to the contract who has been injured thereby,[12] and will set aside a conveyance of land made to induce a loan on which the full legal rate of interest is charged.[13] One seeking

96. See 6 C. L. 1778.

97. A defense that a contract for the sale of land and the giving of a mortgage for the purchase price was tainted with usury cannot be set up by one who, on taking from the purchaser an assignment of the contract, and assuming to pay the purchase price named therein to the seller, executed a mortgage for the amount to the seller as a defense on a scire facias on the mortgage. Industrial Sav. & Loan Co. v. Hare [Pa.] 65 A. 1080. Purchaser of mortgaged land who assumes the mortgage cannot claim as against the mortgagee that the mortgage was tainted with usury. Stuckey v. Middle States Loan, Bldg. & Const. Co. [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 996. One who owes salary which has been assigned as part of a contract for an usurious loan cannot set up that defense in an action agaist him by the assignee. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Ryan, 126 Ga. 191, 55 S. E. 21.

98. Under a statute providing that no corporation shall plead usury in any action to recover damages, or enforce a remedy on any obligation executed by said corporation, a holder of a mortgage subsequent to the bonds issued by a corporation cannot urge that under the usury act the bond holders are entitled only to the amount, less than par, which they paid for them. Lembeck v. Jarvis Terminal Cold Storage Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 126.

99. In re Stern [C. C. A.] 144 F. 956.

1. Wood v. Babbitt, 149 F. 818.

2. First Nat. Bank v. Drew, 226 Ill. 622, 80 N. E. 1082.

3. A debtor who gives to his creditor a security deed which has the taint of usury may at any time thereafter repudiate the fiction that the relation of landlord and tenant exists between them without first yielding possession of the premises described in the deed, notwithstanding an agreement to attor to his creditors as landlord and to pay him rent therefor. Brown v. Bonds, 125 Ga. 833, 54 S. E. 933.

4. See 6 C. L. 1778.

5. A plea containing no distinct statement of the terms and circumstances of the contract, and no allegation of a corrupt intent, was held to be defective. Wood v. Babbitt, 149 F. 818. An affidavit that the consideration mentioned included both the purchase money and interest thereon for a term of years, but not showing the proportions of each, nor the rate of said interest, and not showing affiant's inability to procure such information, was insufficient. Industrial Sav. & Loan Co. v. Hare [Pa.] 65 A. 1080.

6. Wood v. Babbitt, 149 F. 818; Reich v. Cochran, 102 N. Y. S. 827; Citizens' Bank v. Murphy [Ark.] 102 S. W. 697.

7. See 6 C. L. 1779.

8. By so doing he waives his right to claim legal interest under Rev. St. 1899, § 3705, providing that creditors are entitled to interest of six per cent. per annum on contracts where no rate is agreed upon, "and on accounts after they become due and demand of payment is made," and that "the commencement of a suit is a sufficient demand." Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Donnell, 195 Mo. 564, 94 S. W. 516.

9. See 4 C. L. 1768.

10, 11. See 6 C. L. 1779.

12. Bill by indorser of numerous notes, some alleged to have been discounted at usurious rates, to compel accounting and to enjoin actions at law on the notes. Horner v. Nitsch, 103 Md. 498, 63 A. 1052. Neither the borrower nor one who, without receiving any portion of the usurious charges, procures the discount of notes at usurious rates, is in pari delicto with the lender, so as to deprive him of the right to equitable relief. Id.

13. Plaintiff will not be limited to a recovery of the money value of the land at the time of the conveyance, even under a statute which nullifies a contract only to the extent of the interest taken in excess of the legal rate, nor will the court treat the con-

affirmative relief against an usurious mortgage, who admits some uncertain sum be due thereon, must tender some safe sum to cover the amount due;[14] but a borrower seeking to redeem an usurious mortgage need not tender interest at the legal rate, under a statute providing that no such borrower shall be required to pay more than the principal sum.[15] A suit in equity to cancel a conveyance tainted with usury is not barred by the statute of limitations.[16]

Recovery of usury.[17]—Payments made on a contract, void for usury, may be recovered back unless voluntarily made.[18] In Maryland, usurious interest paid on a mortgage cannot be recovered after the mortgage has been paid and released.[19]

Actions under statute.[20]

Crimes and penalties.[21]—The action to recover the penalty for receiving usury is one of debt, not tort, and must therefore be brought in the county of defendant's residence,[22] and the petition must state when and to whom the payments of usurious interest were made.[23] The penalty may be recovered against one who purchases a note with knowledge that it is usurious,[24] but not against the lender where the usury is collected by an assignee of the note.[25] In Alaska double the amount of the entire interest paid may be recovered when the rate was usurious.[26] An averment in an indictment that defendant, as agent of a corporation, exacted interest at a usurious rate, is a sufficient allegation that the corporation violated the usury law.[27]

VAGRANTS.[28]

Where power is given to a municipality to define vagrancy and punish "vagrants," the power to punish follows the power to define and is not limited to those who were vagrants at common law.[29] Vagrancy ordinarily consists in habitual idleness and want of visible means of support,[30] and is not inconsistent with a fixed veyance as a payment on the principal, and the subsequent payments made to discharge the loan as the payment of the usurious interest. Davisson v. Smith [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 466.

14. Suit by second mortgagee against first mortgagee for an accounting of indebtedness due under first mortgage alleged to be usurious, and for a resale of the mortgaged premises, the allegation being that repeated demands for an itemized account had not been complied with. Crittenden v. Ragan [Miss.] 42 So. 281.

15. The provision so construed was an amendment to Code 1896, § 2630, declaring that contracts for the payment of usurious interest cannot be enforced except for the principal, passed after the supreme court had decided that under such section a borrower seeking affirmative relief in equity must tender interest at the legal rate. Barclift v. Fields [Ala.] 41 So. 84.

16. Nor will three years' delay constitute such laches as against the lender as will bar a suit to cancel a conveyance made to induce a loan at the full legal rate of interest, where the increase in the value of the land was not due to any expenditure or effort on the part of the lender. Davisson v. Smith [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 466.

17. See 6 C. L. 1780.

18. Collections made on collaterals given to secure the usurious loan, made after the receiver of the debtor had demanded the return of the collaterals, cannot be considered voluntary payments. Murphy v. Citizens' Bank [Ark.] 100 S. W. 894.

19. Where the mortgagor, under a mortgage to a building and loan association, at the time he made his last payments asked for a release, which was later mailed to his wife and received by her, and never returned to the mortgagee, although not recorded, the mortgage was held to be released and "redeemed or settled for by the obligor" within the meaning of the statute. Lovett v. Calvert Mortgage & Deposit Co. [Md.] 66 A. 708.

20, 21. See 6 C. L. 1780.

22. This was held to be especially true under a statute providing that if usurious interest is paid, the person paying the same "may by action of debt" recover double the amount so paid. Wartman v. Empire Loan Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 499.

23. Western Bk. & Trust Co. v. Ogden [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 594, 93 S. W. 1102.

24. Schlesinger v. Lehmeier, 102 N. Y. S. 630.

25. The action was brought under a statute providing that where usurious interest is collected the person paying it may recover "from the person receiving the same" double the amount of the interest. Western Bk. & Trust Co. v. Ogden [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 594, 93 S. W. 1102.

26. A statute providing that if "usurious interest" is received the person paying the same may recover "double the amount of the interest so received or collected" was so construed. Hemple v. Raymond [C. C. A.] 144 F. 796.

27. State v. Wickenhoefer [Del.] 64 A. 273.

28. See 6 C. L. 1780.

29. Nichols v. Salem [Or.] 89 P. 804. See 6 C. L. 1781, n. 56.

30. One who wanders and strolls about in idleness, with no lawful purpose or ob-place of abode.[31] A minor is not without a means of support unless his parents are unable to support him.[32] Various acts such as desertion of family [33] and being a common gambler [34] are specially denounced as vagrancy by some statutes. Conclusions of witnesses as to defendant's occupation and status are inadmissible.[35]

VALUES; VARIANCE; VENDITIONI EXPONAS, see latest topical index.

VENDORS AND PURCHASERS.[36]

§ 1. The Contract for the Sale of Land (2216).
A. General Nature, Requisites and Validity (2216). Form of Contract (2217). Certainty and Definiteness (2217). Offer and Acceptance (2217). Mutuality (2218). Construction (2218).
B. Reformation and Cancellation (2218).
C. Statute of Frauds (2218).
D. Options to Buy or Sell (2218).
§ 2. Condition, Quantity, and Description of Lands (2220).
§ 3. Title, Deed, and Incumbrances (2220).
§ 4. Price and Payment (2222).
§ 5. Time (2223).
§ 6. Conditions, Covenants, and Warranties (2224).
§ 7. Demand, Tender, and Default (2225).
§ 8. Forfeiture, Rescission, and Waiver (2225).
§ 9. Interest in the Land Created by, and Rights and Liabilities Under the Contract (2228). Taxes (2229). Interest, Rents, and Profits (2229). Standing Timber (2229).
§ 10. Liability Consequent on Breach (2230). Rights of the Vendor (2230). Rights of Vendee (2230). Measure of Damages (2231). Deficient Quantity or Other Partial Failure of Consideration (2232).
§ 11. Rights After Conveyance (2232).
§ 12. Vendor's Liens and Their Enforcement (2234).
A. Express (2234).
B. Implied (2234).
C. Remedies (2235).
§ 13. Enforcement of the Contract of Sale (2235).

§ 1. The contract for the sale of land. A. General nature, requisites, and validity.[37]—A contract of sale transfers for money the right to the title of the land, and therein is distinct from an option,[38] an agreement for brokerage,[39] an exchange,[40] ject whatever, as an habitual loafer, idler, and vagabond, who is able to work, has no property, no reasonably continuous employment, and no regular income, is a vagrant under the Georgia statutes. Especially when his loafing and loitering is about poolrooms, barrooms, dives, lewd houses and the like. Carter v. State, 126 Ga. 570, 55 S. E. 477. One who is an habitual loafer and loiterer, both morning and evening, in the "tenderloin" district of a city, who is able to work and has no property, no reasonably continuous employment, and no regular income, is a vagrant within the Georgia statutes. Darby v. State [Ga.] 56 S. E. 91. Evidence that defendant, a woman, was frequently seen loitering at all hours and in the company of lewd persons held sufficient. Glover v. State, 126 Ga. 567, 55 S. E. 403.

31. Carter v. State, 126 Ga. 570, 55 S. E. 477.

32. In Georgia the inability of the parents to support their child, over sixteen and under twenty-one years of age, is essential to the validity of a conviction of the child for vagrancy. Collins v. State, 125 Ga. 15, 53 S. E. 809.

33. Remaining away from one's wife and children after having left them without means, prior to the passage of the Alabama statute, declaring one who quits his house and leaves his wife and children without means guilty of vagrancy, is not such a continuing offense as to fall within the statute. Crawley v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 175.

34. Where defendant was charged with vagrancy and in another count with being a professional gambler living in idleness, the refusal of a request to charge that under the law of vagrancy the gist of the offense is the failure, or refusal of the offender to work when work is necessary to support himself was not erroneous. Simmons v. State, 126 Ga. 632, 55 S. E. 479.

35. Testimony that defendant "was a professional gambler" held inadmissible on a prosecution for vagrancy in that defendant was a professional gambler. Leatherman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 75, 95 S. W. 504.

36. Scope of title is confined to contracts for sale of land and excludes Notice and Record of Title (see 8 C. L. 1169) and Deeds of Conveyance (see 7 C. L. 1103).

37. See 6 C. L. 1781.

38. An option contract is distinguishable from a contract of purchase and sale, in which a vendor is bound to convey and the vendee is bound to pay the purchase price. Hanschka v. Vodopich [S. D.] 108 N. W. 28. After negotiations a deed was deposited in escrow to be delivered to the purchaser on payment of notes given by him to the vendor. Held, a contract not a mere option. Bonanza Min. & Smelting Co. v. Ware [Ark.] 95 S. W. 765.

39. A contract for the sale of lands at an agreed price is not a mere brokerage contract by reason of a clause providing that the purchaser should plat and sell the land and giving him an opportunity for profit above the stipulated price to the vendor. Whirple v. Lee [Wash.] 89 P. 712.

40. A contract to "sell" lands and to accept other lands "as part payment," both at an agreed price, is an exchange, not a sale. Steere v. Gingery [S. D.] 110 N. W. 774.

a mortgage,[41] or a lease.[42] Like other contracts [43] it must be on consideration [44] and free from fraud [45] or inherent illegality, such as secret usury.[46]

Form of contract.[47]—The contract may be various in form [48] subject to the necessity of a writing,[49] and may be in several parts or papers;[50] but if a formal contract be contemplated the contract is to be found therein.[51] Other agreements may be incorporated in the same writing.[52] A modification does not destroy the original contract.[53]

Certainty and definiteness.[54]—A contract must be definite and certain as to time of performance and the amount to be paid,[55] and must definitely bind some person to sell.[56]

Offer and acceptance.[57]—The offer must be accepted without modification,[58] and acceptance is not presumed.[59] The acceptance of an option may be also the acceptance of the contract of sale tendered thereby.[60]

41. Facts held to show an absolute sale with option to repurchase, and not a mortgage. Jeffreys v. Charlton [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 711.

42. An agreement for the rental of land with a provision that if the rent is paid when due and, also, any other sums which may be agreed upon by the parties, the vendor will convey the land, is a lease and not a contract of sale. Thomas v. Johnson [Ark.] 95 S. W. 468.

43. See Contracts, 7 C. L. 761.

44. An agreement to reconvey expressing no consideration was held valid in spite of an expressed consideration in the deed, where the transfer was intended to be temporary and both instruments were part of the same transaction. McAllen v. Raphael [Tex. Civ. App.] 96 S. W. 760.

45. A contract between the owner and brokers, with whom he has listed property for sale, for the sale of it to them, may be enforced if there is no fraud. Woodward v. Davidson, 150 F. 840.

46. A contract for the sale of land, in the usual form, contained this clause: "The parties of the first part agree to sell the within described land at a net profit of $500 for the party of the second part * * * and if not sold the parties of the first part agree to refund the down payment of $1,000 and $500 additional to the party of the second part." Held, on its face the agreement appeared to be a contract for the sale of land and not an attempt to evade the usury laws. Heinrich v. Jenkins, 98 Minn. 489, 108 N. W. 877.

47. See 6 C. L. 1782.

48. Executed contract of sale embodied in a bond for a deed. Abercrombie v. Shapira [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 864, 94 S. W. 392. A lease provided that in case of renewal, according to the terms of the lease, and on full payment of the rent, the owner would convey to the lessee. Held, on completion of the payments this became a sale. Heard v. Heard [Ala.] 41 So. 827. An agreement signed by the vendor acknowledging the receipt of earnest money to be applied to the purchase price of certain lots, the price to be $150 per lot, and conditioned on furnishing a good title within thirty days, is a contract to convey. Newell v. Lamping [Wash.] 88 P. 195.

49. See post, § 1 C.

50. A deed to be delivered on payment of a note placed in escrow and a memorandum of the agreement for sale of the land, with a prior mortgage referred to in the deed, held to constitute the contract. Ditchey v. Lee [Ind.] 78 N. E. 972. Written instructions to bank by vendee at time of payment became, on acceptance of its conditions by vendors, merged in contracts between parties, and contracts so merged and modified were to be construed as a whole. Hunt v. Capital State Bank [Idaho] 87 P. 1129, modifying [Idaho] 86 P. 786 [advance sheets only].

51. Letters held to show that parties intended not to be bound until a formal contract was executed. Scott v. Fowler [Ill.] 81 N. E. 34.

52. Whippee v. Lee [Wash.] 89 P. 712.

53. Contract remained binding although modified. Husted v. Insley [Ark.] 94 S. W. 708.

54. See 6 C. L. 1782.

55. Statements of plaintiff's father that the land in controversy was his, that it would be his when he the father, got through with it, and that he intended him to have it, if disputed, are not sufficient to establish a contract to convey it. Watson v. Watson, 225 Ill. 412, 80 N. E. 332. Contract held definite as to time and amount; the amount depending on commissions susceptible of computation, and the time being on delivery of deed. Whittier v. Gormley [Cal. App.] 86 P. 726. An offer to sell land "to be paid for in either cash or commissions within three years from the date hereof, you to obtain purchasers for such of our lands as we place at your disposal, this agreement to sell to others, except yourself, to remain in force for twelve months," held unambiguous as to price. Guillaume v. K. S. D. Fruit Land Co. [Or.] 86 P. 883.

56. Agreement to furnish a deed, etc., held bad. Kingsbury v. Cornelison, 120 Ill. App. 495.

57. See 6 C. L. 1782.

58. Where an offer is accepted with modification, the party making the offer must accept the modification before the contract can become binding. Sharp v. West, 150 F. 458.

59. Sennett v. Melville [Neb.] 107 N. W. 991.

60. Such acceptance is binding, though made after the execution of the option by the vendor and not in his presence. Goldberg v. Drake, 145 Mich. 50, 13 Det. Leg. N. 383, 108 N. W. 867.

Mutuality.[61]—A contract may be mutual though signed only by the vendors,[62] and not every person interested in the title must sign the contract of sale.[63] It must run to the purchaser or some legal successor to his right.[64]

Construction.[65]—The contract may be interpreted by parol evidence,[66] and the price and conditions may be supplied by extrinsic evidence.[67] When the agreement is bilateral in form this will be done only on the clearest proof.[68]

(§ 1) B. Reformation and cancellation.[69]

(§ 1) C. Statute of frauds.[70]—The statute covers all contracts for the sale of land;[71] but the authority of an agent who executes the contract need not be in writing.[72] In those states which require such agent to have written authority, a verbally authorized agent can not delegate it.[73] To fulfill the requirements of the statute the land must be sufficiently described to be identified.[74] A memorandum of sale if signed suffices,[75] but its acceptance may be oral[76] unless it is sought to enforce it against the vendee.[77] Execution of the statute by part payment or entry and possession or both will take the contract out of the statute.[78] Damages for fraudulent failure to perform a contract may be recovered in spite of the fact that the statute has not been complied with.[79]

(§ 1) D. Options to buy or sell.[80]—An option is a contract whereby one purchases the right for a certain time, at his election, to make a contract for the sale of lands at a certain price,[81] but which passes no interest in the land;[82] hence, a

61. See 6 C. L. 1783.

62. A contract reciting that the vendors agree to convey in consideration of certain sums paid, and to be paid, and signed only by the vendors, is binding on both parties. East Jellico Coal Co. v. Carter, 30 Ky. L. R. 174, 97 S. W. 768.

63. A contract with a clause for the conveyance of vendor's homestead may be enforced by him, even though not signed by the wife, provided the wife is ready to join in the deed. Johnson v. Higgins [Neb.] 108 N. W. 168.

64. When a corporation purchaser has become dissolved before the performance by it, the contract is not enforceable by another corporation for the same purpose but not a successor. Seven Mile Beach Co. v. Dolley [N. J. Err. & App.] 66 A. 191.

65. See 6 C. L. 1783.

66. A contract providing that part of the price shall be secured by a mortgage or mortgages may be interpreted by parol evidence to show details of mortgages agreed upon by the parties. Portman v. Oppenheim, 50 Misc. 614, 99 N. Y. S. 537.

67. Landvoigt v. Paul, 27 App. D. C. 423. If necessary, evidence is admissible to explain recitals in a title bond as to consideration. Scranton v. Campbell [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 285.

68. Foster v. Lowe [Wis.] 110 N. W. 829.

69. See 6 C. L. 1783. See, also, Reformation of Instruments, 8 C. L. 1708; Cancellation of Instruments, 7 C. L. 517.

70. See 6 C. L. 1783.

71. A contract to convey land for a railroad right of way is within the statute. Cape Girardeau & C. R. Co. v. Wingerter [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1113.

72. Whitworth v. Pool, 29 Ky. L. R. 1104, 96 S. W. 880.

73. Husband who has no written authority from wife to sell her land can give none in writing to an agent to do so. Kirkpatrick v. Pease [Mo.] 101 S. W. 651.

74. Whitworth v. Pool, 29 Ky. L. R. 1104, 96 S. W. 880.

75. Under the New York Real Property Law, Laws 1896, p. 602, c. 547, § 224, a signed memorandum stating that part payment had been received, with a description of the land and the price is sufficient. Boehly v. Mansing, 102 N. Y. S. 171.

76. If vendor executes a memorandum sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds, purchaser may make the contract mutually binding by an oral acceptance. Boehly v. Mansing, 102 N. Y. S. 171.

77. Kingsbury v. Cornelison, 122 Ill. App. 495.

78. Under Ala. Code of 1896, § 2152, both payment and possession are necessary in order to fulfill the requirements of the statute of frauds, but they need not be contemporaneous. City Loan & Banking Co. v. Poole [Ala.] 43 So. 13. An oral agreement to purchase land in addition to that covered by a prior agreement, followed by possession for more than a year, is binding on the purchaser. Urich v. Watts [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 432. Taking possession of land and making lasting and valuable improvements upon it under a parol agreement of sale takes the case out of the statute. Abrams v. Abrams [Kan.] 88 P. 70.

79. "A party to a parol contract which would ordinarily fall within the statute of frauds, who has so far performed the same as to render it a fraud for the other party to repudiate the agreement, is not prevented by the statute from recovering damages for its breach." McLeod v. Hendry, 126 Ga. 167, 54 S. E. 949. See, also, post, § 10, as to measure of damages.

80. See 6 C. L. 1784.

81. Evidence held to show option. Seidman v. Rauner, 99 N. Y. S. 862; Murphy v. Hussey, 117 La. 390, 41 So. 692. A receipt on account of the purchase price of land, describing it, and stating the time within which the deal was to be closed, is an oplessee with an option to purchase does not on exercising the option, acquire the rights of an innocent purchaser.[83] A contract to purchase options is not itself optional.[84] The option must have a consideration like other contracts [85] and may be lost by default in payments agreed.[86] Upon the acceptance of the option both parties are bound by it as a valid contract.[87] A junior option holder cannot complain that an option to which he was subject was closed on better terms than the buyer was entitled to.[88] The option must be accepted according to its terms [89] and within the time specified.[90] If, however, no time is specified, it is terminable at any time on reasonable notice by the vendor,[91] or the option may be withdrawn by a sale to a third person,[92] or by an action to recover the property.[93] In case of an option contract, refusal of vendor to perform before any demand is made by the vendee is not a renunciation or effective to determine vendee's rights to require performance.[94] It can be accepted but once [95] and if the acceptance be broad enough a contract of sale may be made thereby.[96] A deposit under the option contract may amount to a tion and not a contract. Indiana & Arkansas Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Pharr [Ark.] 102 S. W. 686. A contract of exchange giving the purchaser an opportunity of rejecting vendor's title because of bay window encroachments, in which event the deposit money should be returned, will be construed as an option. Hough v. Baldwin, 50 Misc. 546, 99 N. Y. S. 545.

82. An agreement that owners of mining lands would procure a patent and then on demand and the payment of $100 convey the property created merely an option and gave purchasers no equitable interest. Stevens v. McChrystal [C. C. A.] 150 F. 85.

83. Storms v. Mundy [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 258.

84. An agreement to pay a certain price for options held by the vendor within nineteen months from the date of the contract, the vendor to cause a deed to be delivered to purchaser who was to assume all liabilities on the options, is a contract to purchase the option and not an option to do so. Baraboo Land, Min. & Leasing Co. v. Winter [Wis.] 110 N. W. 413.

85. A mere offer to sell which is without consideration has no binding force until accepted. A gratuitous option is a mere nudum pactum. Kirby-Carpenter Co. v. Burnett [C. C. A.] 144 F. 635. A consideration of $1 for an option to purchase coal being merely nominal is not sufficient to prevent option from being withdrawn before acceptance. Murphy, Thompson & Co. v. Reid [Ky.] 101 S. W. 964. The expense incurred by a possible purchaser in obtaining information about land offered to him is not good consideration and will not give a mere offer the character of an option. Comstock Bros. v. North [Miss.] 41 So. 374.

86. In an option contract upon failure to make payments at the time or times specified, the contract is terminated and the rights of the party holding the option at an end. Hanschka v. Vodopich [S. D.] 108 N. W. 28.

87. Boston & W. St. R. Co. v. Rose [Mass.] 80 N. E. 498; Murphy, Thompson & Co. v. Reid [Ky.] 101 S. W. 964.

88. Where lease gave lessee preference right to purchase property at price offered by any third person, fact that terms of final contract of sale to lessees differed somewhat from provisions of the option was immaterial so far as rights of third person making offer to purchase subject to prior option was concerned. Slaughter v. Mallet Land & Cattle Co. [C. C. A.] 141 F. 282.

89. Unless one or more of the conditions are waived. Fulton v. Messenger [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 830. Terms must be exactly complied with by the vendee. Trogden v. Williams [N. C.] 56 S. E. 865. If an option provide that unless it be accepted and payment made within a certain time it will be void, it must be accepted according to its terms before an executory contract is consummated. Pollock v. Brookover [W. Va.] 53 S. E. 795.

90. Time is of the essence of an option contract even if not expressly made so by its terms. Hanschka v. Vodopich [S. D.] 108 N. W. 28. A letter stating that the purchaser would "be ready to close the option" after the time limited by the agreement is not such an acceptance as will bind the vendor. Indiana & Arkansas Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Pharr [Ark.] 102 S. W. 686. An option with an agreement to convey coal within eighteen months, payment to be made at the rate of one-third in nine months and the balance in eighteen months, must be exercised within nine months. Weaver v. Sides [Pa.] 65 A. 666. An option in a lease gave lessee the privilege of purchasing within a certain time. The lessee gave notice of his desire to purchase one day after the time had expired, held, notice too late. Frey v. Camp [Iowa] 107 N. W. 1106.

91. Stone v. Snell [Neb.] 109 N. W. 750.

92. Sprague v. Schotte [Or.] 87 P. 1046.

93. It is proper to terminate an indefinite extension of an option by an action to recover property. Beckman v. Waters [Cal. App.] 86 P. 997.

94. Solomon Mier Co. v. Hadden [Mich.] 111 N. W. 1040.

95. In a contract for supplying a city with water was a clause giving the city the right to purchase the waterworks at an appraisal value. The city gave notice within the stipulated time that it would purchase but refused to appoint appraisers or carry out the contract. Held, the city had but one option and, having exercised it, was bound by a valid contract. Castle Creek Water Co. v. Aspen [C. C. A.] 146 F. 8.

96. If an option have added to it a clause signed by the vendee agreeing to the terms mentioned and promising to pay for the premises within the time limited by the op-

payment on account of the purchase price if so intended.[97] An option will not be specifically enforced if such action will produce an inequality not foreseen by the defendant.[98]

§ 2. Condition, quantity, and description of lands. What land.[99]—The contract will be construed to include only those lands and appurtenances as were intended to be included by the parties or reasonably to be inferred from the contract itself.[1] Mere convenience will not establish an easement.[2]

Description.[3]—The description must be sufficient for identification.[4] A description may be controlled by a map annexed to the deed[5] or by reference to a certain block on a map in the vendor's office.[6] The purchaser according to survey takes what was intended to be included, though the description by mistake will not include all.[7] A notice of boundary lines may be given by fences[8] or by plans and deeds.[9]

What acreage or quantity.[10]—If the sale is by the tract no deficiency in acreage justifies a reduction from the price,[11] also if the statement of the quantity of acres is mere matter of description,[12] and, even where land is described as containing an exact number of acres, there is no implied warranty of quantity.[13]

§ 3. Title, deed, and encumbrances. What title was sold.[14]—The rights which the purchaser acquires depend upon the terms of the contract,[15] and accordingly he tion, it becomes a binding contract. Goldberg v. Drake, 145 Mich. 50, 13 Det. Leg. N. 383, 108 N. W. 367. For form of an agreement which was originally an option but subsequently modified into a contract see Libby v. Parry, 98 Minn. 366, 108 N. W. 299.

97. Moore v. Beiseker [C. C. A.] 147 F. 367.

98. Starcher Bros. v. Duty [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 524.

99. See 6 C. L. 1785.

1. A contract for the sale of a "plant used for the collection and disposal of garbage, including the crematory, buildings, wagons or other appurtenances thereto," will not cover articles not part of the plant and used only in emergencies. City of Waterbury v. Rigney [Conn.] 63 A. 775.

2. The right to take water from a pond on land adjoining that described in a deed, though it be more convenient so to take it than from brooks and springs on the land conveyed, will not pass as an appurtenance to that land. City of Waterbury v. Rigney [Conn.] 63 A. 775.

3. See 6 C. L. 1786.

4. Description sufficient: "The property and all improvements thereon situated in square bounded by St. Louis, Toulouse, Rampart and Basin streets, and known as Nos. 500 to 506 Basin street." Girault v. Feucht, 117 La. 276, 41 So. 572. A description of land for a railroad right of way in the terms "one hundred feet wide, the centre line thereof to be the center line of the roadbed as the same may be finally located," is adequate. Cape Girardeau & C. R. Co. v. Wingerter [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1113. All that owned by defendant lying on the waters of Long Fork of Miller's Creek in Pike County, Ky., "which lies back of the land of said B." Cox v. Burgess, 29 Ky. L. R. 972, 96 S. W. 577.

Description insufficient: "All that certain tract or parcel of land situate in McDowell county, West Virginia, on Rings Branch, Peggy's Fork and Laurel Creek, all tributaries of the Dry Fork of Tug river supposed by estimation to contain one hundred acres, be the same more or less." Webb v. Ritter [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 484.

5. Railsback v. Leonard [La.] 43 So. 548.

6. Guillaume v. K. S. D. Fruit Land Co. [Or.] 86 P. 883.

7. In order to reconcile or make clear the calls of a survey or to more nearly harmonize the quantity of land with that called for in the grant, the calls may be reversed and the lines run in the opposite direction. Newbold v. Condon [Md.] 64 A. 356.

8. The location of a boundary line by the building of a fence will be binding on the parties establishing the line and notice to an intending purchaser of the land on one side that the fence may be the boundary line. Adams v. Betz [Ind.] 78 N. E. 649.

9. If a lot of land is shown on a recorded plan and deeds as part of a public way, the purchaser will be held to have notice of that fact though he have no notice of any use by the public. Street v. Leete [Conn.] 65 A. 373.

10. See 6 C. L. 1786.

11. A deed describing land as "all that tract" in a certain location "containing 320 acres more or less and bounded as follows" is a conveyance by the tract and not by the acre, and in the absence of fraud no recovery may be had for deficiency in acreage. Goette v. Sutton [Ga.] 57 S. E. 308. A sale of land described as containing a certain number of acres with a further description by metes and bounds, is a sale by the tract and not by the acre, and in the absence of fraud a deficiency in the number of acres is no ground for a deduction from the price. Kendall v. Wells, 126 Ga. 343, 55 S. E. 41. See further infra, § 10; Deficient quantity or other partial failure of consideration.

12. Whenever it appears by definite boundaries, or by words of qualification as "more or less" or as containing by estimation, or the like, that the statement of the quantity of acres in the deed is mere matter of description, or not of the essence of the contract, the buyer takes the risk of the quantity, if there be no intermiture of fraud in the case. Cohen v. Numsen [Md.] 65 A. 432.

13. Winton v. McGraw [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 506.

14. See 6 C. L. 1787.

15. Under an agreement to sell "all the may become liable for incumbrances.[16] No greater title can pass than the vendor has,[17] but what he has from a former vendor may be claimed by any subsequent purchaser though not in the deeds.[18]

Sufficiency of title tendered.[19]—If there is no express or implied warranty the purchaser gets what title the vendor has and may not complain thereof, and a sale avowedly of just what the vendor has implies no warranty that he has a good title.[20] But ordinarily the purchaser is entitled to a marketable title, that is to say one free from incumbrance of a character detrimental to the salability of the land[21] from lis pendens[22] and from outstanding claims of title or right casting doubt on that offered.[23] If fixed beyond a doubt title by adverse possession is good.[24] The burden premises" and to execute a quitclaim deed therefor, vendor may be required to give a title free from incumbrances. Wallach v. Riverside Bk., 104 N. Y. S. 661. Facts held to show that an agreement by a married woman to convey all her interest in land owned by her and her brother jointly was understood by the purchaser to include her husband's interest and, therefore, that it must be so construed. Noecker v. Wallingford [Iowa] 111 N. W. 37. A reservation by the owner of land of the use of a railroad siding in a lease with an option of purchase, the title to be "clear of all incumbrances," will not justify him in reserving the use of the siding in the deed to the lessee. Holmes v. Dowler [Pa.] 65 A. 1088.

A contract to give a buyer a title satisfactory to him makes the buyer the sole judge of the reasonableness of his refusal to carry out the agreement. Liberman v. Beckwith [Conn.] 65 A. 153.

16. Vendee held liable to the payee of a note signed by the vendor and secured by a deed of trust of the land which he has agreed to pay. Hastings v. Pringle [Colo.] 86 P. 93. The failure of a recorded mortgage to show the maturity of the debt and the rate of interest will not justify vendee's failure to perform under a contract stating that the mortgage was at the rate of five per cent. and due in about five years. Halpern v. Fisch, 101 N. Y. S. 1019. Vendee is bound by the terms of a mortgage to which his purchase is subject. Feist v. Block, 100 N. Y. S. 843.

17. If the grantor of land has no title he can convey none, and the purchaser cannot claim as a purchaser for value without notice. Lindblom v. Rocks [C. C. A.] 146 F. 660.

18. An agreement between owner and purchaser of land, imposing restrictions thereon, may be enforced by subsequent purchasers, though no deeds contain any reference to it. Boyden v. Roberts [Wis.] 111 N. W. 701.

19. See 6 C. L. 1787. Necessity of furnishing abstract see post, § 6.

20. Norton v. Stroud State Bank [Okl.] 87 P. 848.

21. Delinquent water charges not an incumbrance. Linne v. Bredes [Wash.] 86 P. 858. An annual charge on lands known to the purchaser is not such an incumbrance as to render the title unmarketable. Ditchey v. Lee [Ind.] 78 N. E. 972. A judgment entered subsequent to the conveyance in question, followed by the discharge of that judgment in bankruptcy, constitutes no defect in the title. Russell v. Wales, 104 N. Y. S. 143. If regular proceedings in bankruptcy were had against a former owner within a month from the recovery of a judgment against him, and the premises were sold by trustee, no objection to title. Kennedy v. Holl, 103 N. Y. S. 231.

Held an incumbrance: Mechanics' liens. Sands v. Stagg, 105 Va. 444, 64 S. E. 21; Davis v. Roller [Va.] 56 S. E. 4.

22. If a lis pendens to compel observance by the vendor of municipal regulations is canceled before the date for closing the contract, the purchaser cannot object to title. Kennedy v. Holl, 103 N. Y. S. 231.

Proceedings by a railway company to condemn part of the premises are a defect such as justifies refusal to take title. Miller v. Calvin Phillips & Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 264.

23. Evidence that grantor had a wife two years after the conveyance is no ground for the assumption that he had one at the time. Russell v. Wales, 104 N. Y. S. 143. Mortgagees in possession after time for redemption has expired have a marketable title, although they might be subject to ejectment based on the disability of insanity or imprisonment. Messinger v. Foster, 101 N. Y. S. 387.

Encroachments which are merely the ornamental parts of a stoop and removable may, under the N. Y. Code, be regarded as existing by leave and constituting no defect in the title. Van Horn v. Stuyvesant, 50 Misc. 432, 100 N. Y. S. 547. The projection of a step, four inches beyond the building limits prescribed for streets, continuing for twenty years without objection on the part of city officials, will not be held to be such an incumbrance as will make the title unmarketable. Van Horn v. Stuyvesant, 50 Misc. 432, 100 N. Y. S. 547. A clause in a contract that "vendee has the privilege of a party wall as per agreement now in possession of A" indicates an addition to the contract and not an incumbrance. Samuelson v. Glickman, 113 App. Div. 654, 99 N. Y. S. 886.

Held to show doubt: Evidence showed that premises were incumbered by a bad foreclosure, a doubtful quitclaim deed, and a possible escheat, hence vendee should not be obliged to take them. Lowenfeld v. Ditchett, 99 N. Y. S. 724. The act of a broker having an option to purchase land in filing his contract for record creates such a cloud on the title as will justify one having a contract directly with the owner in refusing to perform and, also, deprives the broker of any right to a commission which he might otherwise have had. Woolf v. Sullivan, 224 Ill. 509, 79 N. E. 646.

Conveyance of infant's land by special guardian to his mother will create a doubt as to validity of title. Feller v. Mitchell, 103 N. Y. S. 269.

Lease expiring after date for delivery of is on the one who objects to the title.[25] Defects in title may be supplied by the vendor at any time before conveyance is required.[26]

The deed tendered should be a good legal conveyance free from patent defects [27] and with such covenants as are stipulated or impliedly promised.[28] It must be properly signed [29] and acknowledged, [30] but the recording of the deed is not necessary to give grantee a good title.[31] If the purchaser has actual or constructive notice of defects in the title, he cannot hold the vendor responsible,[32] which notice the deed or contract may impart,[33] but the defects may be waived.[34] In proper cases the purchaser may have reformation of the deed.[35]

§ 4. Price and payment.[36]—If it is stipulated by the parties that time shall deed held an incumbrance. Sugarman v. Goldberg, 100 N. Y. S. 1012. The right of a tenant to occupy premises from year to year constitutes such an incumbrance as will justify the purchaser in refusing to perform a contract for the sale of the property free from incumbrances. Eppstein v. Kuhn, 225 Ill. 115, 80 N. E. 80. A title will be held unmarketable where the owner's rights depend upon a decree rendered in a suit in which the rights of unborn children were not considered. Downey v. Seib, 185 N. Y. 427, 78 N. E. 66.

Violation of building restrictions such as apartment houses, prohibited. Altman v. McMillin, 100 N. Y. S. 970. Purchaser's covenant that he will not carry on upon the premises any noxious, offensive, or dangerous trade or business is restrictive and amounts to an incumbrance. Dieterlen v. Miller, 99 N. Y. S. 699. A covenant not to use any offensive business on the premises in question and not to place on the land anything which might be objectionable to a neighbor is such a restriction as will justify a refusal to perform a contract to convey free of incumbrances. Goodrich v. Pratt, 100 N. Y. S. 187.

24. Twenty years uninterrupted possession of land under a mortgage gives a good title to convey. Ocean City Ass'n v. Cresswell [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 454. A title resting on the statute of limitations will support an action for specific performance if it is so clearly established as to be matter of law. Greer v. International Stock Yards Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 672, 96 S. W. 79. A continuous, notorious, adverse, and uninterrupted possession of land for forty-three years by the trustees of a church gives them such title as a purchaser is bound to accept. Dickerson v. Franklin Street Presbyterian Church Trustees [Md.] 66 A. 494.

25. A purchaser who rejects a title on the ground that a lease of the premises had not been properly terminated has the burden of proving the irregularity. Weintraub v. Weil, 103 N. Y. S. 229.

Evidence held sufficient to prove a lost deed necessary to complete title. New Orleans Real Estate Mortg. & Security Co. v. Carrollton Land Co. [La.] 43 So. 641.

26. Thompson v. Hoppert, 120 Ill. App. 588.

27. A deed requiring judicial construction is not a "proper deed" as stipulated by contract. Wadick v. Mace, 103 N. Y. S. 889.

28. If contract reads "to be paid when deed is made," a warranty deed will be presumed in Kentucky. Whitworth v. Pool, 29 Ky. L. R. 1104, 96 S. W. 880.

29. A signature by initials will be held sufficient where grantor's christian name is set out in the body of the deed in full. Woodward v. McCollum [N. D.] 111 N. W. 623.

30. Moran v. Stader, 103 N. Y. S. 175.

31. Levi v. Mathews [C. C. A.] 145 F. 152. The possession of a valid deed, with valuable consideration, gives a title superior to one without valuable consideration, although the latter is recorded first. Deen v. Williams [Ga.] 57 S. E. 427.

32. See, generally, Notice and Record of Title, 8 C. L. 1169.

33. As to notice of defects to be had from deeds see Schmidt v. Olympia Water, Light & Power Co. [Wash.] 90 P. 212. A deed conveying only the grantor's interest is insufficient to bring the purchaser within the protection of Texas Rev. St. 1895, art. 4640, making a prior unrecorded conveyance void as to subsequent purchasers for value without notice. Woody v. Strong [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 801.

Purchaser under a quitclaim deed takes subject to all equities against his grantor. Reed Co. v. Klabunde [Neb.] 108 N. W. 133. An agreement to convey by a good and sufficient quitclaim deed means that vendor is to convey only his interest in the land. McNellis v. Hilkrowski, 98 Minn. 127, 107 N. W. 965. The use of the word "quitclaim" in a deed does not restrict the conveyance if other language shows an intention to convey the land itself. Allen v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 343, 96 S. W. 54. Under statutes of Indiana a quitclaim deed is notice to a purchaser that he is accepting a doubtful title. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Stryker [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 245.

34. Hayward v. Campbell [La.] 43 So. 910. It is a good defense to an action for the purchase money of real estate, under an agreement to convey free of all easements, that the property is subject to easements, even though they were known to the defendant at the time of purchase. Patterson v. Freihofer [Pa.] 64 A. 326.

35. Purchaser entered on property pointed out by vendor's agent and made improvements. Held, he might have the deed offered by the vendor so corrected as to cover those lots. Wright v. Isaacks [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 991, 95 S. W. 55. Vendors are relieved from performance of a promise to do certain work required by tenement house regulations if they are subsequently so modified as to require less. Rogers v. Wilkenfeld, 102 N. Y. S. 637.

36. See 6 C. L. 1789.

be of the same essence of the contract, payment must be made within the time specified, but where there is no stipulation that time shall be of the essence of the contract the purchaser has a reasonable time for payment.[37] If part of the consideration was the transfer of other property, it must be transferred as agreed.[38] When release of obligations is a consideration the time of their actual surrender is not essential.[39] Payment may be made independent upon the happening of various conditions making it absolute.[40] It is frequently stipulated that the purchase price may be deposited in a bank pending the examination [41] or perfecting of the title,[42] during which time it is not subject to exclusive control of either party.[43] A note given as part payment for incumbered land is due at maturity only if the incumbrances have been removed.[44] The payments cannot be withheld for defect in title which the vendor is not yet bound to make good.[45]

§ 5. Time.[46]—Time is not of the essence of a contract to sell land unless expressly so stipulated by the parties,[47] but the contrary is true of an option.[48] Where time is of the essence of the contract, the terms must be literally complied with [49] unless waived.[50]

37. Montgomery v. Montgomery [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 1145.

38. Facts held to show that the promise of the vendee to furnish certain vehicles to the vendor was part of the agreement for the sale of land. Newburn v. Hyde [Iowa] 107 N. W. 604.

39. An agreement entered into at the time of a contract of sale, whereby a note against the seller and held by the purchaser was to be surrendered as a part of the payment to be made at that time, may be treated by the court as fully executed, notwithstanding the note was not as a matter of fact surrendered until the day the deed was delivered. Warns v. Reeck, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 401.

40. Plaintiff agreed to purchase claim from intervenor, paid part of purchase price in cash, and agreed to pay $7,000 on certain date, together with cost of securing patent. Deed was deposited with bank in escrow to be delivered if payment was made on specified date, time being of essence of contract. $7,000 was deposited on date specified but, obtaining of patent having been delayed, vendee instructed bank in writing to hold it until receiver's receipt was issued. Held that payment was absolute, and, on production of receiver's receipt by vendors, bank was justified in paying money to them. Hunt v. Capital State Bk. [Idaho] 87 P. 1129, modifying [Idaho] 86 P. 786 [advance sheets only].

41. Money for the purchase price of land, deposited in a bank pending the examination of the title, may be paid out only by direction of both parties. Holliday v. Hammond State Bk., 116 La. 890, 41 So. 198.

42. Money deposited in a bank for the purchase of land, the title to which is defective, cannot be withdrawn by the purchaser until the vendor has had a reasonable time to cure the defect. Holliday v. Hammond State Bk., 116 La. 890, 41 So. 198. The deposition of the price agreed upon for a mining claim with the bank specified by the parties held to be sufficient payment, although the purchaser instructed the bank not to pay the money over until it had received a patent to the claim. Hunt v. Capital State Bk. [Idaho] 87 P. 1129.

43. See preceding two notes.

44. Neely v. Williams [C. C. A.] 149 F. 60.

45. He may perfect it at any time till conveyance is due. Thompson v. Hoppert, 120 Ill. App. 588.

46. See 6 C. L. 1790.

47. Kaufmann v. Brennan, 103 N. Y. S. 912. That part of the contract specifying the time within which the deed should be delivered is within the ordinary rule that time is not of the essence unless expressly made so, or unless circumstances show that it was deemed important by the parties and was intended to be made the subject of a stipulation to be performed literally, or unless there is such change of conditions after the time fixed for performance that the enforcement of the contract would be inequitable. Boston & W. St. R. Co. v. Rose [Mass.] 80 N. E. 498. If in a suit to compel specific performance of a contract to convey land the complaint is verified eight days after the date of the contract, and service made four days later, the court will not infer that a reasonable time for the delivery of the abstract has expired. Cummings v. Wilson, 99 Minn. 502, 110 N. W. 4. Where conveyance depends upon the procuring of a patent to lands, and no time for demand and tender is specified, purchaser may have a reasonable time after issue of patent within which to make demand. Stevens v. McChrystal [C. C. A.] 150 F. 85. Time will not be regarded of the essence in regard to contracts for the actual sale and purchase of land. Hanschka v. Vodopich [S. D.] 108 N. W. 28.

48. See ante, § 1 D.

49. Contract of purchase and sale contained an express condition that a single failure to pay the amounts due under the option of purchase at the dates named therein should render the same absolutely null and void. Collins v. Delaney Co. [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 107. A contract dated April 15, 1903, for the payment of a sum "at the end of three years" on delivery of a deed, is satisfied by delivery on April 14, 1906. Ayars v. O'Connor [Wash.] 88 P. 119. The doctrine that equity will not permit parties to stipulate respecting the time of performance, so as to fix their respective obligations, has never been adopted in New Jersey. Collins v. Delaney Co. [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 107.

50. Where vendor delivers an abstract twenty-one days after the expiration of the § 6. Conditions, covenants, and warranties.[51]—There is no right to an abstract implied from an agreement to give a good title,[52] but, when required, the abstract furnished must show the character of title bargained and sold.[53] Nor does an incomplete abstract eked out by the vendor's conclusions that the title is good constitute "satisfactory evidence" of title.[54] In case of a discrepancy between abstract and contract which the seller does not remedy, the abstract will be taken as correct,[55] but defects in the abstract furnished may be waived by retention.[56] A contract may be made subject to the approval of the title,[57] or the vendor may bind himself by warranty[58] or representation,[59] or by agreement as to the specific terms of the deed or purchase-money mortgage,[60] or concerning the time and terms of incumbrances assumed.[61] A covenant of a railroad company to maintain a ditch to prevent the overflow of land, the owners of which agreed not to claim damages for the diversion of a creek, is binding and runs with the land.[62] A covenant forbidden by the contract of sale may not be inserted in the deed.[63] Covenants are not superseded by later agreements unless so intended.[64] Whatever conditions were in the agreed time for the completion of the contract, the purchaser is not in default if he tenders the price seven days later. Newell v. Lamping [Wash.] 88 P. 195. A clause in a contract for the sale of land providing that time is of the essence of the contract is waived by the vendor's waiting for payments of interest and rent thirteen days after they are due. The vendor must then allow the vendee a reasonable time within which to comply with the terms of the contract. Keator v. Ferguson [S. D.] 107 N. W. 678.

51. See 6 C. L. 1791.

52. An agreement to give a good and perfect title does not require the vendor to furnish an abstract. Smith v. First Nat. Bk. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 729, 95 S. W. 1111.

53. An obligation to furnish an abstract of title showing marketable title in complainant is not performed by tendering an abstract showing outstanding judgment liens against the land, though at the time of its delivery complainant's agent informs defendant that they are satisfied. Russell v. Wales, 100 N. Y. S. 785. A purchaser under a contract requiring the vendor to give him an abstract showing good title may refuse to buy if the abstract shows unsatisfied judgments against the premises, though they have in fact been paid. Id.

54. A contract providing that the vendor shall furnish the purchaser "satisfactory evidence" of his title is not fulfilled where he furnishes an incomplete abstract and affidavits based on information and belief and stating conclusions without the facts. Clark v. Jackson, 222 Ill. 13, 78 N. E. 6.

55. Variance in the description of lands between the abstracts furnished and the contract. Moore v. Beiseker [C. C. A.] 147 F. 367.

56. Failure of vendor to deliver an abstract of title within specified time is waived by its acceptance and retention for months without complaint. Kentucky Distilleries & Warehouse Co. v. Blanton [C. C. A.] 149 F. 31.

57. If a contract for the sale of land is subject to the approval of the title by the vendee's solicitor, and the solicitor in good faith refuses to accept the title, the vendor may not enforce specific performance. Greer v. International Stock Yards Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 672, 96 S. W. 79. An agreement by the vendor to refund the deposit in case the title is insufficient is valid and enforceable in case he has no title. Board of Directors of St. Francis Levee Dist. v. Myers [Ark.] 94 S. W. 716.

58. Olschewske v. King [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 635, 96 S. W. 665. A contract with the words "title guarantied" must be taken to mean that vendor will convey all his interest in the land in question. Goldstein v. Hensley [Cal. App.] 88 P. 507.

59. Representations made by the vendor that land near that purchased would be kept open as a park are binding on him. Marshall v. Columbia, etc., R. Co. 73 S. C. 241, 53 S. E. 417.

60. Under a contract providing that vendee shall execute a second mortgage with "all usual clauses," he cannot be required to execute one with the condition that the mortgagor shall pay all taxes assessed on the mortgage, otherwise that the debt shall immediately mature. Feist v. Block, 100 N. Y. S. 843. A clause in an agreement for sale of land for the securing of part of the purchase price by mortgage with an allowance to the mortgagor of seventeen per cent discount for prepayment provides for a voluntary anticipation of the payment, and not for payment enforced because of default in the terms of the mortgage. Industrial Sav. & Loan Co. v. Hare [Pa.] 65 A. 1080.

61. A purchaser who agrees to take property subject to a mortgage which he may pay off at any time on thirty days' notice cannot be compelled to take it if the mortgage gives the mortgagee the privilege of demanding payment, on a certain contingency, in thirty days. Oppenheim v. McGovern, 100 N. Y. S. 712.

62. Withers v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 34.

63. A contract providing for certain covenants "which do not prevent the erection of stores" is violated by the insertion in the deed of a covenant against the erection of a building less than two stories in height, or without a cellar, or costing less than $2,500. Levin v. Hill, 102 N. Y. S. 690.

64. Evidence held to show that an escrow agreement was not intended to supersede the contract [65] must be exactly performed.[66] When performance is become impossible through no fault of either party, it may be excused.[67] The remedy on the warranty is against the warrantor alone.[68]

§ 7. Demand, tender, and default.[69]—Either party who seeks to enforce a contract must prove performance of its conditions [70] or offer or tender of performance.[71] A qualified or conditional tender is insufficient,[72] but a tender may be made in court,[73] and when tender has been excused by the conduct of a defendant in an equity proceeding, plaintiff's offer in his bill to bring the money into court is sufficient.[74] It will be excused if unavailing and futile, or if the other party refuses to perform,[75] or if otherwise waived.[76] The bond for title should be surrendered or its nonenforceability shown.[77]

§ 8. Forfeiture, rescission, and waiver. Forfeiture.[78]—It is not a forfeiture of vendee's rights to contract with claimants, adverse to vendor's title.[79] The right of forfeiture must be found in the contract [80] and does not arise on mere default,[81]

prior agreement between the parties as to payment of interest. Womble v. Wilbur [Cal. App.] 86 P. 921.

65. A promise by the vendor at the time of payment that if the place was not right he would make it so cannot be construed to mean that he would repair damage due to animals. Riley v. Stevenson, 118 Mo. App. 187, 94 S. W. 781. Whether later contracts were modifications or substitutes for the original option so as to include or exclude, a condition held for the jury. Tallman v. Edwards, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 273.

66. An agreement to convey land on condition that the purchasers would conduct a bona fide summer school for three years, and erect such buildings as would be required, will not be enforced if no buildings are erected. Seven Mile Beach Co. v. Dolley [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 991.

67. Delay of officials and litigation which prevent vendor from procuring patents to the land sold will excuse him from furnishing such to the purchaser. Cook v. Southern Pac. R. Co. [Cal. App.] 88 P. 1100. A contract for the conveyance of land and buildings, the latter constituting a large part of the value of the whole estate, the premises to be conveyed in the same condition in which they were at the time the contract was made, has an implied condition that performance is excused in case it becomes impossible through no fault of either party. Hawkes v. Kehoe [Mass.] 79 N. E. 766.

68. Land subject to annuities created by will was sold in separate parcels by warranty deeds to different purchasers. Held the last grantee, who has paid the proportion of the annuities chargeable on his land, cannot collect from prior purchasers, but has his remedy against the grantor on his covenant. Neely v. Williams [C. C. A.] 149 F. 60.

69. See 6 C. L. 1792.

70. If vendor fails to pay rent, as agreed, for part of the land, he cannot enforce a cancellation for vendee's failure to pay interest on deferred payments. Womble v. Wilbur [Cal. App.] 86 P. 916.

71. To enforce a contract vendee must show performance of conditions not in dispute and readiness to perform those in dispute. Cook v. Dane [Wash.] 86 P. 947. An agreement to furnish an abstract and, if the title is good, the vendor to execute a deed, gives the purchaser an opportunity of demanding a good title before tendering payment. Bowles v. Umberson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 842. If purchaser agrees to pay absolutely in consideration of vendor's promise to convey, the former's liability is absolute, and no tender of conveyance need be made in order to entitle the vendor to recover. Foster v. Lowe [Wis.] 110 N. W. 829.

72. It is not a sufficient tender for the vendor's agent to say to the purchaser that the deed has been signed and is in the agent's pocket. Lefferts v. Dolton [Pa.] 66 A. 527.

73. Tender of deed of reconveyance in suit to rescind, where plaintiff was mentally deficient, might be made at trial. Owings v. Turner [Or.] 87 P. 160.

74. Sharp v. West, 150 F. 458.

75. Landvoigt v. Paul, 27 App. D. C. 423; Sharp v. West, 150 F. 458. If the agent of the vendor refuse to deliver the deed, the purchaser need not tender the money. Douglas v. Hustead [Pa.] 65 A. 670. The repudiation of an obligation before tender can be made excuses tender. Sharp v. West, 150 F. 458. Tender of performance by vendee in contract for conveyance of land held not condition precedent to suit for specific performance. Guillaume v. K. S. D. Fruit Land Co. [Or.] 86 P. 883.

76. Facts showing waiver of condition as to tender of purchase price. Moore v. Beiseker [C. C. A.] 147 F. 367. The purchaser who does not say he will not accept a deed for the property, and does not in terms refuse to pay the balance of the purchase price, will not be held to have waived a tender of the deed. Lefferts v. Dotton [Pa.] 66 A. 527.

77. A bond to secure the execution of a deed must be surrendered by the vendee or shown to be unenforceable before he can demand his deed. Hardin v. Neal Loan & Banking Co., 125 Ga. 820, 54 S. E. 755.

78. See 6 C. L. 1793.

79. Cook v. Dane [Wash.] 86 P. 947.

80. See 6 C. L. 1793, n. 33, 34. If time is of the essence, vendor may cancel the contract for failure of the purchaser to furnish him with a power of attorney, to accompany a mortgage executed under the power, within the time specified. Sleeper v. Bragdon [Wash.] 88 P. 1036.

81. Failure of purchaser to pay the bal-but will be sustained if clearly stipulated, even though no notice be given.[82] It is always possible for the vendor to waive his right to regard the contract as forfeited,[83] and equity may relieve against a forfeiture on protection of the other party.[84] The exclusive privilege of deciding whether the vendee has lost his rights by default may be reserved to the vendor,[85] but he cannot claim that his assignment of his contract to sell operates to make the contract void.[86]

Rescission.[87]—A contract may be rescinded for material misrepresentations which amount to statements of fact as distinguished from expressions of opinion, on which the party had a right to rely,[88] and even though the truth was of record, but where there was fraud in concealing the fact.[89] A full disclosure of facts materially affecting the value of the property sold is required of the vendor,[90] and the buyer will not be prejudiced by his delay in discovering facts which were concealed from him at the time of making the contract.[91] A trivial defect or irregularity in the title tendered, but which is not a doubt thereon, is not a ground for rescission,[92] nor is ignorance of conditions chargeable to the party's notice.[93] Entire or partial failure of title is sufficient ground.[94] The purchaser may hold the vendor to a literal compliance with the terms of the contract,[95] and is held to a reasonable degree of accuracy in describing the premises when they are conveyed.[96] The discovery of a very old in-ance due on a contract does not terminate it if there is no forfeiture clause and no action by the vendor. Norris v. Hay [Cal.] 87 P. 380.

82. Vendor in granting purchaser an extension of time for payment stipulated that if payment were not made as provided the contract would be canceled. Held that on expiration of the time limit the contract was canceled without further notice. Sleeper v. Bragdon [Wash.] 88 P. 1036. A contract providing that time shall be of its essence, and that on default the land shall be forfeited, will be enforced unless grossly inequitable. Cue v. Johnson [Kan.] 85 P. 598.

83. Norris v. Hay [Cal.] 87 P. 380. The acceptance of payments made not according to contract prevents the vendor from declaring a forfeiture under the terms of the contract, except by notice that the balance must be paid within a reasonable time. Barnett v. Sussman, 102 N. Y. S. 287.

84. A bond executed by the owner of land provided that on the failure of the purchaser to perform certain conditions in regard to the payment of interest and taxes the owner might take possession. Held, on compensation being made to the owner within a reasonable time, equity would give the purchaser relief against the condition. Mead v. Morse [Mass.] 80 N. E. 513.

85. A contract providing that if payments are not made as stipulated it shall be void and all payments forfeited, subject to be revived in writing by the vendor, gives the vendor the right to say whether it shall be void or not. Foster v. Lowe [Wis.] 110 N. W. 829.

86. Foster v. Lowe [Wis.] 110 N. W. 829.

87. See 6 C. L. 1794.

88. Reilly v. Gottlieb [Wash.] 85 P. 676. Not for false representations as to janitor's salary, and payments of gas bills by tenants. Kranz v. Lewis, 100 N. Y. S. 674. Not for misrepresentations as to the rate of interest in a mortgage on the property. Id.

89. Fraud in concealing fact of sale of coal rights, though the deed thereof was ascertainable of record. Vernam v. Wilson, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 257. An agent's statement that the land to be conveyed is twenty-five feet wide and sixty-five feet deep, and that there is a five-year lease upon it, when in fact the dimensions are twenty-three feet by sixty feet, and but four months of the term have expired, is not ground to attribute fraud to him. Kafka v. Grant [N. J. Law] 63 A. 900.

90. Burrows v. Fitch [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 283.

91. Purchaser who is delayed for three months, on account of the weather, in having her land surveyed, and then discovers that she was deceived as to the boundaries, may then rescind her contract. Freeman v. Gloyd [Wash.] 86 P. 1051.

92. Rescission will not be permitted because the deed does not specify the source of title as required by statute. McPherson v. Gordon, 29 Ky. L. R. 826, 1073, 96 S. W. 791.

93. Ignorance of unusual conditions in a mortgage, the existence of which mortgage the buyer knew. Schnitzer v. Bernstein, 103 N. Y. S. 860.

94. The purchaser is entitled to the bargain which he supposed he was getting and is not to be put off with any other, however good. Mather v. Barnes, 146 F. 1000. Rescission shown by refusal of vendee to pay on ground of want of title in the vendor. Milby v. Hester [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 495, 754, 94 S. W. 178. A contract for the conveyance of all the coal in certain land may be rescinded by the purchaser on his learning that the vendor has only an undivided interest. Farber v. Blubaker Coal Co. [Pa.] 65 A. 651.

95. Where the time within which the deed must be deposited is made of the essence of the contract, the purchaser is entitled to rescind for failure of the vendor to do so, although he has suffered no damages. Boulware v. Crohn [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 796.

96. Rescission by the vendee is permitted if the premises described in the deed are not cumbrance, unknown to either party, is not ground for rescission till reasonable opportunity to clear it.[97] A purchaser may not rescind if he has not availed himself of the opportunities for examination,[98] provided he is not prevented from doing so by the vendor.[99] If rights of third parties have intervened, rescission may not be permitted.[1] An express repudiation of the contract by one party excuses the other from making a formal tender, and entitles him to rescind.[2] A rescission must be clear,[3] prompt,[4] and the burden is on the party rescinding to prove it.[5] An agreement for the rescission of a title bond is valid, though not in writing.[6] A mere refusal to receive payment is not a cancellation which must be more formal and accompanied by a return of the purchase money.[7]

Rights of vendee after rescission.[8]—Each party must be placed in the position in which he was before the contract was made.[9] If security has been given it must be returned before the holder may recover his payment on account of the price.[10] After a breach of the contract by either party and rescission, the court will seek to restore each to his original position.[11] the same as those in the contract, and the bounds given in the deed are so complicated as not to be located without a surveyor. Shaw v. O'Neill [Wash.] 88 P. 111.

97. Ground rent 140 years old and unpaid for 55 years, and which vendor took immediate steps to discharge. Hausman v. Johnson, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 339.

98. A misrepresentation with regard to material facts by which the purchase of property is induced vitiates the transaction; but purchaser must avail himself of means of knowledge which are at hand, and he cannot complain if he has undertaken an independent investigation of the property. Mather v. Barnes, 146 F. 1000. One who knows that land is in the possession of heirs is not subsequently estopped from rescinding for breach of warranty. Olschewske v. King [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 635, 96 S. W. 665.

99. An investigation of property by an intending purchaser if perverted by the fraud or concealment of the vendor amounts to no examination at all. Mather v. Barnes, 146 F. 1000.

1. Held that a contract with one who had an interest in land owned by an insolvent firm, whereby part of the land was to be conveyed to him, should not be rescinded after all of the land had been mortgaged, but the land sold to pay the sum due on the mortgage. Bray v. Carroll [Ark.] 100 S. W. 744. Evidence held to show that vendors could not enforce reconveyance of all of certain tracts of land acquired under an agrement with the purchaser. Clutter v. Strange, 41 Wash. 86, 82 P. 1028.

2. Armstrong v. Ross [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 895; Johnson v. Higgins [Neb.] 108 N. W. 168.

3. Vendee's apparent rescission may simply amount to a request for further negotiations. A letter from the vendee stating that he thereby rescinded the contract declared it no longer in force and demanded return of the guaranty payment and that he should hold the vendors responsible for all damages, is to be regarded simply as a notice that further negotiations would be necessary, and not as a rescission. Moore v. Beiseker [C. C. A.] 147 F. 367. Vendor and purchaser conducted oral negotiations for the sale of land which were consummated by a vote of the board of directors of the vendor corporation sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds. The purchaser then requested a confirmatory vote. Held, this action not a rejection of contract. Western Timber Co. v. Kalama River Lumber Co., 42 Wash. 620, 85 P. 338.

4. Seven months delay in rescinding a contract voidable for fraud will prevent purchaser from recovering back his payment on account. Mestler v. Jeffries, 145 Mich. 598, 13 Det. Leg. N. 600, 108 N. W. 994. After a delay of six months vendee may not rescind a contract voidable by reason of vendor's misrepresentations as to his title. Annis v. Burnham [N. D.] 108 N. W. 549. Delay of purchasers in giving notice of rescission for five months after the discovery of alleged fraud in the sale of mines, with their operation of the mines for two years, and long after the beginning of a suit to foreclose a mortgage given as part payment, will be such laches as will deprive them of their rights to rescind. Richardson v. Lowe [C. C. A.] 149 F. 625. A vendee who tries to sell after failure of vendor to furnish an abstract of title within the prescribed time loses his right to rescind on that ground. Boulware v. Crohn [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 796.

5. In an action to recover back a deposit on account of the purchase price of land, the burden is on the plaintiff to prove that on the day set for the sale he was dissatisfied with the title and demanded the deposit. Saldutti v. Flynn [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 246.

6. Asher v. Helton [Ky.] 101 S. W. 350.

7. Crawford v. Meyrovitz [Ala.] 48 So. 789.

8. See 6 C. L. 1796.

9. Where a contract is to be set aside for fraud, it is sufficient that each party gives up what he got unchanged, even though the purchaser has been to considerable incidental expense. Mather v. Barnes, 146 F. 1000. If there is no forfeiture clause in a contract for the sale of real estate, the party who rescinds must place the other in statu quo, the vendor must return payments made. Frederick v. Davis [Iowa] 110 N. W. 611.

10. McLean v. Wedell [Utah] 88 P. 414.

11. Rights of joint purchasers, in a suit to set aside a sale for fraud as to the value of an option, considered. Lazier v. Cady [Wash.] 87 P. 344.

Abandonment [12] is a question of fact to be determined by the acts of the parties and the circumstances surrounding the transaction.[13]

§ 9. Interest in the land created by, and rights and liabilities under the contract.[14]—Except where the terms of the contract are impeachable for fraud [15] or mistake, it is the measure of the parties' rights, and on fulfillment by one side the other's obligation is complete.[16] A complete new contract is necessary to cover extrinsic matters.[17] An agreement to pay charges means only such as are lawful.[18] The rights of strangers to a contract for the sale of land or an option are governed by the date on which the actual transition of the property occurred.[19] But in dealing with a third person a vendor may not assume that a prior contract for the sale of the same land has been abandoned unless it has in fact been terminated.[20] Unless his rights are limited by agreement, the purchaser is entitled to complete possession of the premises [21] and to all fixtures thereon.[22] Creditors of the vendor are not to be entitled to precedence unless they have a lien on the land.[23] The rights of a lessee on purchasing are limited by his knowledge of adverse equities,[24] but he may keep continuous possession under two contracts.[25] The legal title remains in the vendor till conveyance and if vendor assigns his contract he holds the land in trust for the two parties to the contract, and such trust continues until the land is conveyed to a purchaser for value without notice.[26] The vendee who is bound to purchase is in equity regarded as the owner,[27] and loss as in case of fire, occurring after the exe-

12. See 6 C. L. 1796.

13. Abandonment found. Hanschka v. Vodopich [S. D.] 108 N. W. 28.

14. See 6 C. L. 1797.

15. Where vendor is deceived by vendee as to the contents of the contract, he is bound by his understanding of the agreement and not by the contract as recorded. Brock v. Tennis Coal Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 1283, 97 S. W. 46.

16. See ante, §§ 7, 8; post, §§ 10-12. If a joint contract to reside with the owners of land and work for them is fulfilled by one of the parties, the liability of the owners is complete. Reilly v. Reilly [Iowa] 110 N. W. 445.

17. After the sale of a farm, a promise to repair damages to the land must be supported by a new consideration. Riley v. Stevenson, 118 Mo. App. 187, 94 S. W. 781.

18. Vendor who agrees to pay water bills may make against the purchaser the same defenses that he might have made against the water department. Williams v. Fraade, 102 N. Y. S. 806.

19. Evans v. Crawford County Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Wis.] 109 N. W. 952. A vendee who accepts an option indeterminate as to time takes the land subject to the rights of a tenant who has been let in while the option continued. Stone v. Snell [Neb.] 109 N. W. 750. A railroad company upon purchasing a right of way across leased premises cannot enter upon the same without first compensating the tenant. Ft. Smith Suburban R. Co. v. Maledon [Ark.] 95 S. W. 472.

20. Norris v. Hay [Cal.] 87 P. 380.

21. "To deliver such ranch" to the vendee means to turn over the actual physical possession to him. Pierce v. Edwards [Cal.] 89 P. 600.

22. A heating plant with boilers and pipes, intended to be the only method of heating a building, may by agreement of parties and as to themselves remain personalty until paid for, but as to a bona fide purchaser it becomes part of the realty. Kirk v. Crystal, 103 N. Y. S. 17.

23. As against a grantee who has been in possession under claim of ownership, purchasers under an execution sale on a claim not a lien on the land have no rights as bona fide purchasers. Chandler v. Dixon [Ky.] 101 S. W. 939. "Attaching creditors, even without notice of the equitable claims of third parties, who, in the transactions in which the debts sought to be collected were incurred, gave no credit to and had no knowledge of the apparent or record title of the debtor to the property attached, do not, as to the equitable owners of such property, stand in the position of bona fide purchasers for value, unless by force of some statute law to that effect." Waterman v. Buckingham [Conn.] 64 A. 212. Where a creditor obtains judgment and levies execution on property of the debtor, during the interval between a sale of the property by the debtor and execution of a deed and its delivery, the purchaser will be entitled, on distribution of the fund arising from the sale on execution, to the protection of the court to the extent of the amount he paid down at the time the contract of sale to him was made. Warns v. Reeck, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 401.

24. See Notice and Record of Title, 8 C. L. 1169.

25. One who is in possession under a contract to purchase land and who enters into a new contract whereby he surrenders all rights under the old and becomes a tenant of the owner is not obliged to make a physical vacation, under the former contract and a re-entry under the contract of lease, in order to enter into the new relation. Chambers v. Irish [Iowa] 109 N. W. 787.

26. Foster v. Lowe [Wis.] 110 N. W. 829.

27. Majors v. Maxwell, 120 Mo. App. 281, 96 S. W. 731. A purchaser who is in possess-cution of the contract and before the passing of title falls on the purchaser.[28] The rights remaining in the vendor are subject to the lien of a judgment.[29]

Taxes.[30]—A purchaser is liable for taxes from the beginning of his possession [31] or from the time he was entitled to a conveyance.[32] The vendor may recover taxes paid which were assessed against him after contract of purchase, though no seizure of his goods was made or demand on the purchaser.[33]

Interest, rents, and profits.[34]—A vendee who enters before the price is paid or a sufficient deed tendered is liable for interest,[35] but if he pays a deposit he is in equity entitled to interest on his deposit and to a lien on the land for both, whether vendor is solvent or bankrupt.[36] When the purchaser agrees to pay interest on advances to be made for construction, he is not in default until the former makes demand for an accounting.[37] On finally accepting a deed once refused, the purchaser who has had possession must pay interest on the unpaid purchase money from the first tender.[38]

Rents and profits belong to the purchaser who is in possession of the premises unless the contract is repudiated.[39]

Standing timber.[40]—On a sale of land with standing timber, all rights of the vendor to the trees ceases.[41] Under a contract for the sale of standing timber, if purchaser refuses to pay the instalments of purchase price when due, vendor may, in equity, hold the manufactured product remaining on the premises;[42] but if the vendee's title is defective he is liable to the true owner for the trees which he has cut.[43]

sion under a bond and who has been making payments on the purchase price has an equitable title unless a forfeiture has been declared. Fitzgerrell v. Turner, 223 Ill. 322, 79 N. E. 76. The vendee's equitable interest in lands on which he has paid part of the purchase price descends to his heirs. In re Grandjean's Estate [Neb.] 110 N. W. 1108. A promise of sale which is duly recorded gives to the purchaser such a real right as is prior to that acquired by a subsequent deed. Lehman v. Rice [La.] 43 So. 639.

28. Where vendor agrees to convey a title clear of all incumbrances and a loss by fire occurs before he can do so, the loss must fall on him. Eppstein v. Kuhn, 225 Ill. 115, 80 N. E. 80. After the execution of the contract, vendee has the equitable title and, although he may not be in possession, loss by fire falls on him. Manning v. North British & Mercantile Ins. Co. [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 1095. The loss due to the burning of a barn on the land to be conveyed, after the execution of the contract, where neither party is in fault, must fall on the purchaser. Woodward v. McCollum [N. D.] 111 N. W. 623.

29. Assignment by him of purchase money for benefit of his creditors held to extinguish all lienable interest. McCleery v. Stoup, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 42.

30. See 6 C. L. 1799.

31. Spies v. Butts, 59 W. Va. 385, 53 S. E. 897.

32. On the theory that it was held by the vendor in trust. Seven Mile Beach Co. v. Dolley [N. J. Err. & App.] 66 A. 191.

33. Mangold v. Isabella Furnace Co., 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 276.

34. See 6 C. L. 1800.

35. Hatcher v. Fitzpatrick [Ky.] 101 S W. 933. Where a purchaser of real estate goes into possession and enjoys the rents and profits during a period of several months while the title is being perfected, he is liable for interest on the purchase money from the time of going into possession until the delivery of the deed. Carey v. Taylor, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 198. If purchaser had reasonable ground to defend a suit for specific performance, he should pay interest only from the date of judgment. Fluker v. DeGrange, 117 La. 331, 41 So. 591.

36. Everett v. Mansfield [C. C. A.] 148 F. 374.

37. Mead v. Morse [Mass.] 80 N. E. 513.

38. Kearney v. Kane, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 236.

39. Rent received by an intending purchaser in possession must be accounted for on rescission of the contract. Moline Plow Co. v. Bostwick [N. D.] 109 N. W. 923. Rents and profits may not be set off for the benefit of a vendor except by authority of statute. Murray v. Murray, 30 Ky. L. R. 586, 99 S. W. 301. On accounting for rents collected after conveyance should have been made, the vendor must render not only the ground value but also the rental value of buildings thereon which were the purchaser's. Naughton v. Elliott [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 858.

40. See 6 C. L. 1800.

41. Vendor who cuts trees on land after selling it is liable to vendee under Miss. Ann. Code 1892, § 4412. Smith v. Forbes [Miss.] 42 So. 382.

42. Spies v. Butts, 59 W. Va., 385, 53 S. E. 897.

43. A grantee who holds under a void deed and cuts timber on the land cannot compel the true owner to take payment for the timber and give him a deed to the land. Lodwick Lumbr Co. v. Robertson [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 141.

§ 10. Liability consequent on breach. Rights of the vendor.[44]—The vendor may sue on the contract for damages due to the failure of the purchaser to perform.[45] The vendor must, if the contract requires it, show a clear title to the premises, but he need meet only such objections as the purchaser makes where the latter specifies them.[46] The vendor may maintain a bill to cancel the contract of sale and quiet his title where the purchaser has no right in law or equity to enforce it.[47] In an action to set aside the sale, all interested persons must be parties,[48] and this action, when brought by the vendor after repudiation of the contract by the vendee, is in the nature of one to quiet title.[49]

Rights of vendee.[50]—If the vendor is unable to give a good title,[51] or conveys the wrong property,[52] or deceives the vendee as to the values,[53] the vendee may recover back any payments which he made,[54] and in some cases has a lien;[55] but such lien does not coyer all expense incurred[56] and may be barred by laches.[57] Though the right to rescind be lost, the defense of fraud may remain.[58] The purchaser may refuse to perform because of unreasonable conditions imposed by the vendor,[59] or in case there is a defect in grantor's title.[60] A wife's failure to join in a conveyance may subject the husband to a liability for damages.[61] The purchaser may re-

44. See 6 C. L. 1800.

45. A vendor who sues for a payment due on a contract must regard the contract as still in force. Norris v. Hay [Cal.] 87 P. 380. Vendor who covenants that land is free from incumbrances and agrees to give a warranty deed cannot demand payment or declare the contract forfeited while a mortgage remains on premises. Bartlett v. Smith [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 713, 109 N. W. 260.

46. Vendor to defend suit by vendee need meet only the objections to the title which the vendee points out. Cowdrey v. Greenlee, 126 Ga. 786, 55 S. E. 918.

47. Whiteford v. Yellott [Md.] 64 A. 936.

48. In an action to dissolve a sale of community property for nonpayment of the price, after the death of the vendor, both widow and children are necessary parties, and the action will not be allowed if the widow is estopped by her admissions or if the result will not be to restore both sides to their original position. Bankston v. Owl Bayou Cypress Co., 117 La. 1053, 42 So. 500.

49. Beckman v. Waters [Cal. App.] 86 P. 997.

50. See 6 C. L. 1801.

51. Plaintiff not allowed to recover liquidated damages on the exchange of property because he could not show an unclouded title. Denser v. Gunn [Kan.] 87 P. 1132.

52. If vendor sells that which he did not intend to, vendee may rescind contract and recover his payment. Lee v. Laprade [Va.] 56 S. E. 719.

53. A mere opinion, as to value, by the vendor, if purchaser may investigate for himself, is not ground for an action of deceit. Long v. Kendall [Okl.] 87 P. 670. Evidence insufficient to show that purchaser was entitled to recover his deposit. Kroshinsky v. Klein, 101 N. Y. S. 13.

54. Frederick v. Davis [Iowa.] 110 N. W. 611. If vendor has no title, vendee may sue at any time to recover the price paid. Bonvillain v. Bodenheimer, 117 La. 793, 42 So. 273. When the contract is unenforceable and the vendor refuses to convey, the purchaser may recover whatever he has paid on account. Larson v. O'Hara, 98 Minn. 71, 107 N. W. 821. A deposit made to bind a bargain which was subsequently to be embodied in a written contract may be recovered when parties fail to agree on terms. Morris v. Lurie, 103 N. Y. S. 213.

55. Selkir v. Klein, 50 Misc. 194, 100 N. Y. S. 449. Where deed of vendor is void and the consideration is given to her husband, vendee has no lien. Wright v. Begley [Ky.] 101 S. W. 342.

56. Vendee has an equitable lien for his deposits on account of the price, but may not include in the lien cost of examination of the title. Occidental Realty Co. v. Palmer, 102 N. Y. S. 648.

57. A delay of more than three years after the alleged contract is made is unreasonable and will justify the court in refusing equitable relief to the vendee. Sharp v. West, 150 F. 458.

58. A purchaser who has lost, by laches, right to receive a contract for the sale of land, may still set up the fraud of the vendor as a defense to an action for part of the purchase price if he has himself fully performed his part of the contract. Richardson v. Lowe [C. C. A.] 149 F. 625.

59. If vendee is entitled to refuse to execute a mortgage because of unreasonable conditions therein, he is not bound to tender a mortgage which he will execute before refusing to complete the sale. Feist v. Block, 100 N. Y. S. 843.

60. If there is a tax against the land, vendee need not offer to perform, and may have relief in equity against the vendor who contracts to sell to another. Lese v. Lawson, 103 N. Y. S. 303. The incorporation of vendor's grantor was void; hence, vendee was justified in rejecting the title and might maintain a lien on the land for his deposit and expenses. Selkir v. Klein, 50 Misc. 194, 100 N. Y. S. 449.

As to what is a defective title see supra, § 3.

61. In the case of a contract binding a husband to convey the homestead during the life of the wife. Krebs v. Popp [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 658, 94 S. W. 115.

cover for expenses the seller caused him by violation of building laws.[62] The vendee may waive his rights by dealings inconsistent therewith,[63] as where he continues in possession after the vendor fails to perform,[64] or may lose them by a premature refusal to perform,[65] for in order to recover damages the purchaser must be able to show compliance with the terms of the contract.[66] On a contract for exchange, neither party may recover unless he can show ability to perform, but this rule does not apply where a contract is given in exchange for an option.[67] Sums expended by the purchaser to remove incumbrances, which the vendor refused to remove will be allowed him on account of the purchase price.[68] The purchaser is not subrogated to incumbrances discharged with the purchase money.[69]

Measure of damages.[70]—The measure of damages on failure of vendor to perform is the difference between the contract price and the market value,[71] taking into consideration the reasonable value of improvements made and use of the premises,[72] and reasonable expenses for examination of title,[73] but not of securing title.[74] In Pennsylvania there may be recovery for vendor's breach of a parol contract, but unless there is fraud in the breach the damages are limited to the purchase money

62. In order to recover for repairs required by a tenement house violation, purchaser must show that the requirements of the tenement house department had not been modified or the violation dismissed within the time allowed the vendors to make the repairs. Vucci v. Pellettieri, 103 N. Y. S. 104.

63. Vendee's attempts to sell property of which he receives an insufficient abstract are not sufficient to show a waiver of his right to demand a perfect abstract. Lillienthal v. Bierkamp [Iowa] 110 N. W. 152. If purchaser is to have possession before completion of the contract, the fact that he enters and remains in possession after receiving an abstract which is defective does not estop him from refusing to pay the price. Id.

64. If vendor fails to perform his contract to deliver a perfect abstract and purchaser continues in possession, the latter cannot recover of vendor the penalty imposed by a bond for the faithful performance of the contract. Lillienthal v. Bierkamp [Iowa] 110 N. W. 152.

65. A contract was made subject to the determination of a cause relating to the title; if adversely to the vendor, purchaser to be entitled to the repayment of all sums paid. Held, that purchaser could not recover unless his payments had been regularly made. Jennings v. Dexter Horton & Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 576.

66. An agreement to surrender the land if the purchase-money was not paid is binding, and vendee may not compel vendor to give him a deed after the time for paying the note has expired. Poteet v. Miller [Ky.] 101 S. W. 360. Purchaser cannot recover deposit made under a preliminary agreement for the execution of a formal contract when he fails to appear at the appointed time and place for the execution of the contract. Roth v. Goodman, 102 N. Y. S. 683.

67. Where plaintiff made two contracts with defendant, one for a conveyance to him and the other for an option for reconveyance to defendant, and he is obliged to sue, the fact that he has no title to the land will not defeat his right to maintain his action. Curtis v. Sexton [Mo.] 100 S. W. 17.

68. Whittier v. Gormley [Cal. App.] 86 P. 726.

69. Where the purchase price has been used in the payment of pre-existing mortgages, which were extinguished and canceled on the record such payment gives no right of subrogation to the purchaser or his assigns, since the price thus used was the money of the vendor. Abbeville Rice Mill v. Shambaugh, 115 La. 1047, 40 So. 453.

70. See 6 C. L. 1801.

71. Cowdrey v. Greenlee, 126 Ga. 786, 55 S. E. 918; Whitworth v. Pool, 29 Ky. L. R. 1104, 96 S. W. 880. Relying on defendant's false representations, plaintiff orally agreed to purchase of defendant a farm for $1,200, giving him in payment a mortgage for $1,200 which the defendant sold and from the proceeds retained $600 on account of the purchase price of the farm. To satisfy plaintiff, defendant then promised to give him all he could get for the farm above $1,350, besides the $600. Defendant sold the farm for $1,500. Held, plaintiff entitled to recover the $750. Schamper v. Ullrich [Wis.] 111 N. W. 691.

72. After breach of a contract for the sale of land, the measure of damages is the payments made and the reasonable value of the improvements made in good faith less the value of the use of the premises. Bartlett v. Smith [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 713, 109 N. W. 260. In making a decree setting aside a sale, the court will consider the value of the property, the amounts paid on account of the price, and the value of the improvements made by the purchaser. Owings v. Turner [Or.] 87 P. 160. A purchaser who is induced to enter into a contract by fraud may have the contract rescinded in equity, and may recover back his deposit, less an allowance for the use of the premises. Pedley v. Freeman [Iowa] 109 N. W. 890.

73. Measure of damages, no bad faith of defendant, payment on account, and reasonable expenses for examination of title. Blate v. Clarry, 50 Misc. 668, 99 N. Y. S. 463; Samuelson v. Glickman, 113 App. Div. 654, 99 N. Y. S. 886.

74. Under Montana Civ. Code, § 4806, in absence of bad faith on part of vendor. Willard v. Smith [Mont.] 87 P. 613.

paid and actual damage.[75] In both written and oral contracts free from fraud, this is the measure.[76] On rescinding, the measure is the price paid with the value of improvements made before discovery of the fraud.[77] Installments paid under an option contract cannot be recovered back in case of default by the vendee.[78] If the vendee fails to perform, his deposit may be forfeited under the contract.[79] If a sale be of options and, if they be exercised, a profit to be paid to the seller of the options, his recovery will be according to whether they were exercised.[80] Money deposited by the vendor to cover the cost of work made necessary by violation of the tenement house law may be recovered by the vendee only on his showing compliance, and then only to cover expense incurred in removing the violation.[81]

Deficient quantity or other partial failure of consideration.[82]—If the amount of land is expressly stated in the deed, the purchaser may recover the excess of purchase price where the land in fact falls short of the amount stated,[83] but not in case the vendor agrees to convey an approximate amount;[84] but the fact that a sale of land is in gross and not by the acre will not prevent the purchaser from having an abatement of the purchase price.[85] Vendee is entitled to a deduction from the agreed price equivalent to the loss caused by the existence of an unexpired lease,[86] and, in case of a partial ejection, the relative value of the part from which the purchaser has been evicted should be considered.[87] If buildings are destroyed by fire and purchaser insists on deed, he may have no reduction from the price.[88] The fact that consideration was not entirely adequate is not sufficient to set aside sale.[89] The right to complain for deficiency in quantity may be waived,[90] and may be lost by delay.[91] The burden is on the purchaser to prove deficiency.[92]

§ 11. Rights after conveyance.[93]—The general rule is that the rights of the

75. Stephens v. Barnes, 30 Pa. Super Ct. 127. Nonperformance in such case by reason of a husband's refusal to join is presumptively free from fraudulent motive. Id.

76. Glasse v. Stewart, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 385.

77. Vernam v. Wilson, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 257.

78. Hanschka v. Vodopich [S. D.] 108 N. W. 28.

79. Pinkston v. Boyd [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 759, 97 S. W. 103. If time is of the essence of a contract, a provision that on forfeiture by the vendee the vendor may retain payments made is binding. Palmer v. Washington Securities Inv. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 640. An agreement for the sale of land in the future, accompanied by a payment on account, may be receded from by either party, he who has paid by forfeiting it and he who has received the earnest by returning its double. Smith v. Hussey [La.] 43 So. 902.

80. The owner of coal land agreed to sell "all the coal and land owned and optioned by him," the purchaser to pay the difference between the optioned price and $40 an acre to the seller, and to the farmers the prices stipulated in the options. The purchaser accepted the option but failed to exercise his right to purchase from the farmers. Held, the agreement was a contract for the sale of options, and the seller should recover the difference between the option price and $40 an acre. Strasser v. Steck [Pa.] 66 A. 87.

81. Rogers v. Wilkenfeld, 102 N. Y. S. 637.

82. See 6 C. L. 1802. See, further, supra, § 2, What Acreage or Quantity.

83. Where land is sold by the acre, a deficiency of 6.49 acres will entitle purchaser to recover the excess of purchase price. Rathke v. Tyler [Iowa] 111 N. W. 435.

84. A contract to sell 171.25 feet "more or less" is not broken by a vendor who has record title to 170 feet and probably right by adverse possession to 1.25 feet. Beardmore v. Barry, 103 N. Y. S. 353.

85. Helden v. Reed [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 288.

86. Eppstein v. Kuhn, 225 Ill. 115, 80 N. E. 80.

87. Bonvillain v. Bodenheimer, 117 La. 793, 42 So. 273.

88. Purchaser took possession of property, insured it, and gave a note for the price. Before the note was paid or the deed delivered to him the building was destroyed by fire. Sutton v. Davis [N. C.] 55 S. E. 844.

89. Shepherd v. Turner, 29 Ky. L. R. 1241, 97 S. W. 41.

90. After payment with knowledge of deficient quantity, vendee may not recover damages from vendor. Fields v. Fields, 105 Va. 714, 54 S. E. 888. Where evidence shows that parties have agreed that the deed shall be the final agreement between them, the purchaser cannot recover or the original contract for a deficiency of land in the deed. Hampe v. Higgins [Kan.] 85 P. 1019.

91. If grantee's attorneys have seen the deed and it has no warranty of acreage, grantee may not set up partial failure of consideration when the last notes for the price are due, because of deficient quantity. Latta v. Schuler [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 166.

92. Ward v. Moore [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 743. Vendor's remedy in case land conveyed is in excess of that sold, see infra, § 11.

93. See 6 C. L. 1803.

parties are governed by the deed. The original agreement may, however, continue to govern their rights.[94] The grantee is not charged with latent defects of title of which he has no notice, actual or constructive,[95] but, if the purchaser has knowledge of defects in title, he succeeds to the position of his grantor,[96] and the same rule applies if the grantee takes in trust for the grantor.[97] Subject to the foregoing, the title of the purchaser depends not upon his knowledge but upon the title of the grantor.[98] The purchaser may waive his right to take advantage of defects in the title offered him,[99] or he may perfect his title by taking advantage of the statute of limitations.[1] He may be held to hold the land in trust,[2] or if the evidence shows that a conveyance was made to secure a debt it is a mortgage.[3] If the land conveyed be greatly in excess of that intended to be sold, the vendor may not rescind but must sue for the additional price.[4] A sale will not be set aside at the suit of a grantor who acted intelligently, advised with her son and son-in-law, and had a chance to withdraw from the trade.[5]

94. For construction of a deed to give effect to the true meaning of the parties see Bergeron v. Daspit [La.] 43 So. 894, 1023. If necessary to do justice between the parties to an agreement for the sale of land, the actual transfer will be held to relate back to the date of the agreement, as far as the parties themselves are concerned. Evans v. Crawford County Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. [Wis.] 109 N. W. 952.

95. Vendees are protected against an equitable claim of which they have no notice. Green v. Clyde [Ark.] 97 S. W. 437. The grantee under a deed of general warranty who has no knowledge of fraud practiced upon the wife of the grantor, by which she was induced to sign the deed, and whose record title is good, is fully protected. Causey v. Handley [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 578, 98 S. W. 431. A husband sold community property after the death of his wife. Held, purchasers would be protected from claims of heirs of the wife in absence of evidence that they had notice of the character of the property. Milby v. Hester [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 495, 754, 94 S. W. 178. A purchaser is not chargeable with the notice that his grantors had, in the absence of evidence tracing to him a knowledge of some fact calculated to put him upon inquiry as a purchaser for value without notice of his grantor." Kendrick v. Colyar, 143 Ala. 597, 42 So. 110. A purchaser is not chargeable with notice of defects in his title because he is a joint tenant or tenant in common with his grantor. Id.

96. Lufkin Land & Lumber Co. v. Beaumont Timber Co. [C. C. A.] 151 F. 740. In the case of an easement. Rittenhouse v. Swango, 30 Ky. L. R. 145, 97 S. W. 743. Purchaser had notice of a trust. Latham v. Scribner [Wash.] 88 P. 203; Mead v. Chesbrough Bldg. Co. [C. C. A.] 151 F. 998. Under statutes of Alaska the record of a deed which is not entitled to record is not constructive notice to a subsequent purchaser. Alaska Exploration Co. v. Northern Min. & Trading Co. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 145. A quitclaim deed, given to secure part of the purchase price, which was furnished by a third party, amounts to a mortgage as to all persons having a knowledge of the transaction. Texas Southern R. Co. v. Harle [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 878.

97. Black v. Skinner Mfg. Co. [Fla.] 43 So. 919.

98. "A purchaser of land from one who was a bona fide purchaser without notice acquires all the title held by such bona fide purchaser, regardless of what notice the second purchaser may have." Laffare v. Knight [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1034. A purchaser from a bona fide purchaser for value under a warranty deed is entitled to claim the bona fides of his vendor and have the same protection he would have had if he had not sold. Allen v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 343, 96 S. W. 54. A purchaser from a vendee who is bound to make certain payments or lose his rights under his contract must show that the price has been paid. Davis v. Ragland [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 615, 93 S. W. 1099. A covenant in a lease to return the premises in as good condition as received is enforceable by the purchaser. Knutsen v. Cinque, 113 App. Div. 677, 99 N. Y. S. 911. One who takes a quitclaim deed of land and redeems it from a foreclosure holds it free from the claims of the owner of the foreclosed mortgage who continues to hold a second mortgage. Henry v. Maack [Iowa] 110 N. W. 469. A county held a lien on land sold by it for which it had taken a note in payment. The county court then unlawfully reduced the rate of interest on the note and the vendee sold to a third party with a general warranty. Held, the land was liable for the full rate of interest, and the third party on payment might recover the difference between the two rates from his grantor. Delta County v. Blackburn [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 908, 93 S. W. 419.

99. The fact that a purchaser knew of one defect in a title of which he took no advantage does not justify those having a claim on the land constituting another defect in claiming that as to them he was not a purchaser in good faith. Allen v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 343, 96 S. W. 54.

1. Having done so he cannot then refuse to pay the purchase price on the ground that his vendor's title was bad. Overby v. Johnston [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 766, 94 S. W. 131.

2. If title is taken by the assignee of one of several persons having a contract for the purchase of land, he will be held to hold in trust for himself and the others. Ocean City Ass'n v. Cresswell [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 454.

3. See Mortgages, 8 C. L. 1022.

4. Citizens' Bk. v. Lenoir [La.] 43 So. 385.

5. Thurman v. Ellinor [Ark.] 101 S. W. 1154.

§ 12. Vendor's liens and their enforcement. A. Express.[6]—The form of expression reserving the lien is not material so long as the intention is evident.[7] All of the land need not necessarily be covered.[8] While vendor's lien continues, vendee has right of possession as against a stranger.[9] The statute of frauds does not cover an agreement to release a vendor's lien.[10]

(§ 12) B. Implied.[11]—A lien is implied in every case where the full consideration has not been paid,[12] unless the lien is waived either expressly or by the taking of other security for the price.[13] If there is no money consideration there is no lien,[14] neither is there any where one without authority buys land in the name of another and gives his own note in payment and where there is no ratification by the third party.[15] The payment may, however, be made indirectly.[16] The lien may exist in spite of the nonperformance of conditions by the grantor.[17] The lien may continue against the land in the hands of a third party.[18]

6. See 6 C. L. 1803.

7. A deed providing that the grantee shall not encumber the property during the five years following its execution gives the grantor a lien for the unpaid purchase price. Portland Chem. & Phosphate Co. v. Blodgett [C. C. A.] 152 F. 929.

8. A vendor may specify in his deed what part of the land is to be covered by his lien. Broom v. Herring [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1023.

9. Mason v. Bender [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 715.

10. McKinley v. Wilson [Tex. Civ. App.] 96 S. W. 112.

11. See 6 C. L. 1804.

12. "A vendor's lien is that lien which in equity is implied to belong to a vendor for the unpaid purchase price of land sold by him, where he has not taken any other lien or security for the same, beyond the personal obligation of the purchaser." Rewis v. Williamson [Fla.] 41 So. 449. Part of the consideration for a deed was $2,500 to be paid from the first gross profits of a stone plant which the vendees expected to erect. Held, there was a lien on the land for the $2,500, although no plant had been constructed. Burroughs v. Gilliland [Miss.] 43 So. 301.

13. Eubank v. Finnell, 118 Mo. App. 535, 94 S. W. 591. Where contract is executory, the superior title remains with the vendor, and in default of payment he may recover the land. Smith v. Owen [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 521. A vendor's lien arises from the fact that a vendee has received from his vendor an estate for which he has not paid the full consideration and it is not dependent for existence on the expressed agreement of the parties. Eubank v. Finnell, 118 Mo. App. 535, 94 S. W. 591. A vendor does not waive his lien by taking the unsecured note or bond of the vendee to evidence the deferred payment. Id. The taking by a vendor of an independent security for the payment of the purchase price is prima facie evidence of a waiver of his lien. Griffin v. Smith [C. C. A.] 143 F. 865. There is no lien on land for the purchase price if vendor takes personal collateral security as a pledge or mortgage. Spears v. Taylor [Ala.] 42 So. 1016. Vendee who gives a chattel mortgage as part payment for land is entitled to have the security afforded by the mortgage exhausted before the vendor proceeds against the land. Gates v. Green [Cal.] 90 P. 189.

14. If a lost deed is shown not to have been made for a money consideration, the vendor has no lien on the land for the consideration named therein. Shugars v. Shugars [Md.] 66 A. 273. Vendor may claim a lien only when the amount remaining to be paid is a liquidated sum. Ross v. Clark, 225 Ill. 326, 80 N. E. 275. Vendor who deeds to a railroad company a right of way for a nominal consideration, and relying on the promise of a third party to pay, has a lien for the price. Matthews v. Delta Southern R. Co. [Miss.] 43 So. 475.

15. Jones v. Laird [Ala.] 42 So. 26.

16. A vendor who pays part of a mortgage which was to be assumed by the purchaser as part of the price for the surveyance has a lien on the land sold for the payment. Bach v. Kldansky, 186 N. Y. 368, 78 N. E. 1088.

17. Vendor who agrees to convey land and erect a house thereon has a lien for the balance of the purchase price, although he conveys before he erects the house. Shaw v. Tabor [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 856, 109 N. W. 1046.

18. A vendor's lien which is not waived continues against the land in the hands of a purchaser with notice from the original vendee. Rewis v. Williamson [Fla.] 41 So. 449. Burden is on purchaser from vendee to show that he had no notice of the vendor's lien. Bates v. Bigelow [Ark.] 96 S. W. 125. Plaintiff sold to K. who assigned the contract to M. K. assigned to plaintiff M.'s check given in part payment. The check was not paid in full and a note was given for the balance. Held, plaintiff continued to hold the lien acquired from K. Majors v. Maxwell, 120 Mo. App. 281, 96 S. W. 731. A remote purchaser of premises, subject to a vendor's lien of which he has no notice, is not personally liable on the note; but the land may still be held. Malone's Committee v. Lebus, 29 Ky. L. R. 800, 96 S. W. 519. If a purchaser knows that a debt forming part of the consideration for a prior conveyance has not been paid, he cannot complain of the creditor's enforcing his lien against the land. Eisman v. Whalen [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 514. After bankruptcy the vendor's lien on timber contracted for by the bankrupt and to be paid for as fast as cut continues against the trustee. In re Muncie Pulp Co. [C. C. A.] 151 F. 732. A creditor having a lien on land is not estopped from enforcing his claim by the bankruptcy of his debtor and a compromise entered into between the (§ 12) C. Remedies.[19]—A vendor's lien may be transferred to a third party and by him enforced,[20] if his position is such that equity can grant him such relief.[21] The sale provided by statute for the enforcement of a vendor's lien must be made exactly as provided,[22] and the superior title of the vendor passes to the purchaser.[23] After the sale the vendor still retains his original contract rights.[24] In an action to enforce a vendor's lien, plaintiff may show title by adverse possession.[25] A vendor's lien is prior to the rights of an execution creditor of the vendee.[26]

§ 13. Enforcement of the contract of sale.[27]—If a valid contract for the sale of land has been entered into by both parties, the purchaser is entitled to specific performance.[28] In this connection it is important to distinguish between contracts which are executory and executed.[29] The purchaser may not have a decree for specific performance of a contract requiring the defendant to select a lot belonging to the plaintiff as part of the consideration.[30] Only the strongest reasons will justify the invalidating of a long recognized title,[31] and even when time is not of the essence a default with circumstances of abandonment will deprive the purchaser of his equity to specific performance.[32] Third parties are bound by the contract if they have notice of it,[33] but a grantee with notice is bound only to the extent of what he took.[34] One who is in possession under a contract of sale is a trustee for trustee and the debtor's wife to which he was not a party. Eisman v. Whalen [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 514. A tenant in common who, for convenience only, conveys his interest to his cotenant, who contracts for its sale to a third person, may enforce in equity his lien for the price, and must join the cotenant in the suit. Wood v. Schoolcraft, 145 Mich. 653, 13 Det. Leg. N. 655, 108 N. W. 1075.

19. See 6 C. L. 1805.

20. Malone's Committee v. Lebus, 29 Ky. L. R. 800, 96 S. W. 519. The owner of notes secured by a vendor's lien on lands may foreclose his lien when owner of equity acts in fraud of his rights. Jones v. Byrne, 149 F. 457.

21. One who holds unpaid purchase-money notes does not thereby become a privy of either the vendor or vendee. Mason v. Bender [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 715. A third party to whom a vendor's lien note has been transferred and who has notice that the premises are subject to homestead rights takes it as a mortgagee of the homestead. Adams v. Bartell [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 779. One who pays vendor's lien notes with the understanding that he is to have the same right as the vendor is subrogated to the latter's rights. Mergele v. Felix [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 709.

22. Gauley Coal Land Ass'n v. Spies [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 903.

23. Flack v. Braman [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 537.

24. Under Idaho statutes, vendor of mining claims who retains title until payment is fully made stands as a mortgagee, and on failure to get full satisfaction from sale of the property may have a deficiency judgment for the balance due. Ferguson v. Blood [C. C. A.] 152 F. 98.

25. Bradbury v. Dumond [Ark.] 96 S. W. 390.

26. Leak v. Williams, 30 Ky. L. R. 782, 99 S. W. 630.

27. See 6 C. L. 1806.

28. A contract signed by the vendor only and valid under the statute of frauds may be enforced against him. Caren v. Liebovitz, 113 App. Div. 674, 99 N. Y. S. 952. Payment of $7,000 not being payment of full sum due when it was made, receipt and acceptance by vendors of that sum and their refusal to return or surrender same entitled vendee to deed, and legally relieved him from payment of cost of procuring patent. Hunt v. Capital State Bk. [Idaho] 87 P. 1129, modifying [Idaho] 86 P. 786 [advance sheets only]. Entry under oral contract, seven years' possession and making of improvements held sufficient. Evins v. Sandefur Jullan Co. [Ark.] 98 S. W. 677. Evidence held to show the precedent making of improvements and performance of a contract relative to advances of the purchase price. Scott v. Boen [Ky.] 101 S. W. 917.

29. An agreement reciting that "I have this day sold my house for the sum of $2,300, ten per cent. paid, balance when act of sale is passed," is only a promise of sale and will not be specifically enforced. Capo v. Bugdahl, 117 La. 992, 42 So. 478. Where the parties enter into an agreement providing that the plaintiff shall secure the title to certain land, and that then they will make a contract for its sale on certain terms specified, the original agreement will not be construed as a contract for the sale of land, and in order to entitle himself to any part of the price the plaintiff must show that he has title and has delivered the new contract to the purchaser. Stammer v. Harmon, 112 App. Div. 794, 99 N. Y. S. 519.

30. Freeburgh v. Lamoureux [Wyo.] 85 P. 1054.

31. Warner v. Hamill [Iowa] 111 N. W. 939.

32. Whiteford v. Yellott [Md.] 64 A. 936.

33. Payment under an escrow agreement entitles the purchaser to a deed which relates back and cuts off any rights of an intervening third party with notice. Whitmer v. Schenk, 11 Idaho, 702, 83 P. 775. After the death of a husband who has contracted to sell land his widow and children, who on his death take their respective interests in fee, cannot be compelled to convey. Free v. Little [Utah] 88 P. 407.

34. Specific performance may be enforced against a purchaser from the vendor, but if the vendor, and if he acquires an adverse title he may be compelled to transfer it to the vendor.[35] The rights under the contract may be enforced only by the real parties in interest,[36] and the rights cease entirely if the vendor's title is fraudulent or otherwise defective.[37] The bill for specific enforcement must not show on its face a default under a contract of which time is of the essence.[38]

VENDOR'S LIENS, see latest topical index.

VENUE AND PLACE OF TRIAL.

§ 1. The Proper Venue (2236).
A. The Nature of the Action (2236).
B. Local or Transitory Actions (2236).
C. Special Actions and Proceedings and Equitable Proceedings (2238). Actions for Penalties (2238). Injunctions (2239).
D. Suits Against Corporations (2239).
E. Effect of Improper Venue and Taking of Objections (2240).
§ 2. When Change Is Allowable, Necessary, or Proper (2240). On Appeal From Inferior Courts (2242).
§ 3. Procedure for Change (2242).
§ 4. Results of Change of Venue (2244).

§ 1. The proper venue. A. The nature of the action.[1]

(§ 1) B. Local or transitory actions.[2]—The principal question involved in a case is the one which determines whether the action is local or transitory.[3]

Actions regarding real estate, such as actions to set aside mortgage foreclosure on sale and to redeem,[4] or forcible entry and detainer suits,[5] or an action for damages from trespass to real property,[6] or for damages to land from closing a drain causing an overflow,[7] or to enforce a vendor's lien,[8] or an action by subcontractors, on a bond given by a contractor for a public building,[9] should be brought in the county where the land is situated. A suit to have property of a railroad, situated in different Federal districts, administered for the benefit of all creditors, is local and may be brought in either district.[10] In an action on a note given for a deficiency on foreclosure, a counterclaim seeking to set aside the foreclosure for fraud does not necessitate the trial of the action in the county where the land is situated.[11] he obtains a quitclaim deed he cannot be compelled to convey by warranty. Peterson v. Ramsey [Neb.] 110 N. W. 728.

35. Patroski v. Minzgohr, 144 Mich. 356, 13 Det. Leg. N. 241, 108 N. W. 77.

36. One who as an alleged agent of a corporation contracts for the sale of property to be used as a factory cannot compel the vendor to convey it to him without disclosing the purchaser. Balkwill v. Mohr [Wash.] 88 P. 938. A corporation having the same name and same president as another but which assumes none of the latter's obligations is not liable for the price of land sold to the president in his capacity as an officer of the latter. Bonanza Min. & Smelter Co. v. Ware [Ark.] 95 S. W. 765.

37. A defect on which purchaser relies for refusing to take title must be proved by him. Baecht v. Hevesy, 101 N. Y. S. 413. It is no defense to a suit on notes for the purchase of land that a suit has been brought to try title. Broocks v. Lee [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 777. In order to recover the purchase price of land sold to the plaintiff, it is necessary for him to show that he was in no default and that the defendant was to blame. Cave v. Osborne [Mass.] 79 N. E. 794. The burden of showing that a conveyance to one in a confidential relation with the grantor is fair is on him who claims title under such conveyance. Jackson v. Grissom, 196 Mo. 624, 94 S. W. 263. The purchaser of an equity who has not paid the purchase money has no right to call for the legal title when he has notice that his vendor's title was got by fraud. Wasserman v. Metzger, 105 Va. 744, 54 S. E. 893.

38. Collins v. Delaney Co. [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 107.

1. See 6 C. L. 1806.

2. See 6 C. L. 1807, 1808.

3. Columbia N. S. D. Co. v. Morton, 28 App. D. C. 288.

4. Casserly v. Morrow [Minn.] 111 N. W. 654.

5. Municipal court has no jurisdiction over such suit involving land lying partly outside the county where the court is situated. Bunker v. Hanson, 99 Minn. 426, 109 N. W. 827.

6. City of Baltimore v. Meredith's Ford & Jarrettsville Turnpike Co. [Md.] 65 A. 35.

7. Such being a trespass, and an act of commission rather than omission, need not be brought where defendant corporation is domiciled. Brown v. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co. [La.] 42 So. 656.

8. Jones v. Byrne, 149 F. 457.

9. Code 1897, § 3098, providing for such venue in actions to enforce mechanic's liens, held to apply to such claims. Thompson v. Stephens [Iowa] 107 N. W. 1095.

10. Horn v. Pere Marquette R. Co., 151 F. 626.

11. Although Rev. St. 1899, § 564, requires suits whereby title to real estate may be effected, to be brought where land is situated. Hewitt v. Price [Mo.] 102 S. W. 647.

A court having acquired jurisdiction over a suit concerning lands in two counties does not lose it by dismissal as to the land in the county where the court sits.[12] An action for specific performance of contract to sell land and an accounting as to payments on purchase price and to recover excess payments must be brought where the land is situated,[13] but in Georgia may be brought in a county where any necessary defendant resides.[14] A constitutional provision that all civil and criminal business arising in any county must be tried in such county does not change the common-law rule in regard to transitory actions.[15] An action in assumpsit for trespass on lands [16] or a suit to cancel contract for sale of land is transitory,[17] and so are suits arising under copyright laws.[18] An action to recover possession of personal property,[19] or on a fidelity bond,[20] or an action by state to recover money received by the medical superintendent of the state insane asylum, may be brought where defendant resides.[21] In Texas an action for fraud may be brought in the county where the fraud was committed,[22] and an action for injury from drugs sold by defendant to plaintiff, in the county where the drugs were received,[23] and an action on a contract to execute a note payable in a certain county, may be maintained in such county.[24] A statute localizing actions for killing livestock, to the county where the killing occurred, does not apply where the stock was killed in another state.[25] A suit involving less than $50,[26] or an action by a nonresident of New York City, who has a place of business within the city, need not be brought in the district where defendant resides.[27] An action, not local, against codefendants, can be brought only in a county where one of the defendants resides,[28] and may be brought in a county where only one of them resides,[29] or, if a corporation, 12. Suit by administrator to set aside conveyance made by decedent. Long v. Garey Inv. Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 26.

13. Held to be an action for recovery of interest in real estate within Code Civ. Proc. § 392, subd. 1, but not an action "for the recovery of the possession of a quieting title to real estate" within Const. Art. 6, § 5. Grocers' Fruit Growing Union v. Kern County Land Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 120. Held not to be action "for the recovery of possession of land within Const. Art. 6, § 5, question as to its being action for recovery of interest in real estate, under Code Civ. Proc. § 392, not being raised. Wood v. Thompson [Cal. App.] 90 P. 38.

14. In suit by certain substituted heirs of joint purchaser, the other heirs were held to be necessary parties. Jackson v. Jackson [Ga.] 56 S. E. 318.

15. Sanipoli v. Pleasant Valley Coal Co. [Utah] 86 P. 865.

16. Under statute providing that owner may waive the tort and bring assumpsit. Watkins Co. v. Kalamazoo Circuit Judge, 144 Mich. 142, 13 Det. Leg. N. 166, 107 N. W. 875.

17. Jones v. Byrne, 149 F. 457.

18. Act September 24, 1879, § 11, and not Act March 3, 1897, § 1, applies. Lederer v. Ferris, 149 F. 250.

19. Though joined with cause of action affirming a trade of said property and seeking to recover tort money, and another alleging fraud in obtaining such property. Edgerton v. Games, 142 N. C. 223, 55 S. E. 145.

20. Continental Life Ins. & Inv. Co. v. Jones [Utah] 88 P. 229.

21. Although Pol. Code § 433, provides that in suits by the controller against person who has become possessor of public money the courts "of Sacramento county have jurisdiction, without regard to the residence of defendants." State v. Campbell [Cal. App.] 86 P. 840. Code Civ. Proc. § 395, relating to place of trial of civil actions controls over Pol. Code, § 433, relating to duties of controller, and fixing jurisdiction of actions brought by him. State v. Campbell [Cal. App.] 86 P. 840.

22. Under express provisions of Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 1194. Karner v. Ross [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 737, 95 S. W. 46; Winter v. Terrill [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 62, 95 S. W. 761.

23. Under Rev. St. 1895, § 1194, providing that an action for trespass may be brought in county where trespass was committed. Winter v. Terrill [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 62, 95 S. W. 761.

24. Held to be contract to pay the money in such county. Parr v. McGowan [Tex. Civ. App.] 98 S. W. 950.

25. Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. Ingram [Ark.] 97 S. W. 65.

26. Hackney v. Asbury & Co., 124 Ga. 678, 52 S. E. 886.

27. But a nonresident merely working at a place in the city has not a place "for the transaction of business therein" within the meaning of the statute. Schiller v. Hardenburg, 102 N. Y. S. 529.

28. Goldberg v. Harney, 122 Ill. App. 106; Mills v. Starin, 104 N. Y. S. 230.

29. Hudgins v. Low [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 845, 94 S. W. 411; Myrick Bros. Co. v. Jackson [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 143. Action for damages for trespass on land and to enjoin further trespass. Master ordering servant committing trespass, held properly joined. Evidence held sufficient to show residence of servant in county where sued.

operates or has an agent;[30] but an unnecessary party cannot be joined for the sake of giving the court jurisdiction over a nonresident of the county.[31] Such an action cannot be maintained, in a county where plaintiff only resides, against a defendant residing in the state.[32] When defendant in a transitory action dies pending the action, his legal representatives may be brought into the action, although they live in another county.[33]

(§ 1) C. Special actions and proceedings and equitable proceedings.[34]—An action against an administrator by a creditor of decedent for alleged wrongful payment of assets must be brought where defendant qualified,[35] and an action against a succession for slander of title may be brought in the county where the land is situate,[36] but a demand for damages cannot be coupled with it unless brought in the county where the succession is being administered.[37] An action against an administrator individually for damages must be brought in the county of his domicile.[38] A suit to annul a marriage must be brought in the county where defendant resides unless the right to annulment is based on fraud committed in another county.[39] Interpleader may be filed in the county of residence of any claimant.[40] A petition for habeas corpus should be addressed to the judge of the division in which is located the prison in which petitioner is confined,[41] and a petition for return of stocks in the hands of receivers must be made to the receiver in the state where the stock was purchased.[42]

Actions for penalties.—An action to recover a penalty for usury may be brought in the county where defendant resides.[43] The municipal court in New York has jurisdiction of an action for a penalty if either party resides in the district although the transaction occurred in another district.[44]

Baker v. Davis [Ga.] 57 S. E. 62. Acts 1905, p. 597, § 4, dividing U. County into two districts and providing no citizen or resident of one should be liable to be sued in another, must be construed with § 6, providing that to determine which district the suit is triable in, the districts are to be considered as counties and place of trial determined by "the general law applicable to different counties." Pryor v. Murphy [Ark.] 96 S. W. 446. Drawer and drawee of draft held properly joined as defendants in suit thereon by one who discounted it and drawee is therefore, not entitled to be sued in county of his residence. Provident Nat. Bank v. Hartnett Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1024.

30. Action for injury to passenger carried over two connecting lines held properly brought against both carriers jointly. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Marrs [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1177.

31. Gilvin v. Missouri, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 766, 94 S. W. 130; Marshall v. Saline River Land & Mineral Co. [Kan.] 89 P. 905. In action by materialman, nonresident contractor cannot be joined with owner of property in district where latter resides. Mauck v. Rosser, 126 Ga. 268, 55 S. E. 32. Where the action is dismissed as to the resident defendant, it must also be dismissed as to the nonresident. Louisville Home Tel. Co. v. Beeler's Adm'r [Ky.] 101 S. W. 397. In action on promise to execute a note jointly with another, such promisor cannot be joined in a county other than that of his residence, in a suit on the note, executed by the other defendant. Adams v. Williams, 126 Ga. 430, 54 S. E. 99.

32. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 1194, subd. 3, authorizing suit against nonresident, in county where plaintiff resides, and subd. 4, providing that where defendants reside in different counties suit may be brought where one defendant resides, an action against a resident and nonresident of the state cannot as against former be brought in county where he does not reside. Hudgins v. Low [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 845, 94 S. W. 411.

33. Nixon v. Malone [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 278, 490, 98 S. W. 380; Id. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 715, 95 S. W. 577.

34. See 6 C. L. 1809.

35. Civ. Code, §§ 65, 66, providing that actions to settle or distribute estates of deceased persons must be brought where representative qualified, held to govern, and not § 78, providing that actions not regulated by foregoing sections may be brought in any county where defendant resides or is summoned. Dinning v. Conn's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 855, 99 S. W. 914.

36, 37, 38. Williams' Heirs v. Zengel, 117 La. 599, 42 So. 153.

39. Schneider v. Rabb [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 163.

40. Bank of Tifton v. Saussy [Ga.] 56 S. E. 513; Nixon v. Malone [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 715, 95 S. W. 577.

41. Under Code 1896, § 4817, providing that such petition must be addressed to judge of city court, or nearest circuit judge, or chancellor. State v. Fuller [Ala.] 41 So. 990.

42. Bowker v. Haight & Freese Co., 140 F. 797.

43. Held to be action of debt and not action of tort, which Rev. St. 1895, art. 1585, subd. 6, requires to be brought in county where injury was inflicted. Wartman v. Empire Loan Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 499.

44. Municipal Court Act, Laws 1902, p.

Injunctions.[45]—An action for injunction against closing of an undergrade crossing of railroad is transitory.[46] Suit to enjoin an execution on a void judgment may be maintained in a county where the execution is sought to be levied,[47] and a suit to restrain a sale under a judgment foreclosing a mechanic's lien may be brought where the levy on the real estate is made and one defendant resides,[48] but a petition to join the levy of an execution until the judgment could be set aside must be brought in the county where the judgment plaintiff resides,[49] and a suit to enjoin foreclosure sale may be brought in the county where the agent of nonresident plaintiff resides.[50] A suit to restrain by trespass upon land where the title to such land is in issue, must be brought in the county where the land is situated.[51]

(§ 1) D. Suits against corporations [52] are regulated by statute and may usually be maintained in any county where it has an agency on a cause growing out of the business of such agency,[53] or where it is required to hold its directors and stockholders' meetings,[54] or in any county in which the cause of action arose [55] and in which plaintiff resided,[56] or in which an executory contract was to be performed.[57] An action against a railroad company for negligence may be brought in any county through which it operates its road and has a place for transacting business [58] unless its charter limits suits to the county of its domicile.[59] An action against a domestic 1496, c. 580, § 20, held to govern over Code Civ. Proc. c. 10, tit. 1, art. 2, § 983. Gormley v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 102 N. Y. S. 692.

45. See 6 C. L. 1809.

46. Held not to be for recovery of interest in land nor for determination of right therein. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v Wynkoop [Kan.] 85 P. 595.

47. Rev. St. 1895, art. 2996, requiring suits to restrain execution to be tried in court where judgment was rendered, held not to apply. Ketelsen v. Pratt [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1172.

48. Although the judgment was rendered in a different county. Kinsey v. Spurlin [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 122.

49. Under constitutional provision that equity cases shall be tried in couty where defendant, against whom substantial relief is prayed, resides. Malsby & Co. v. Studstill [Ga.] 56 S. E. 988.

50. Such agent being a defendant against whom substantial relief was sought. Sellers v. Page [Ga.] 56 S. E. 1011.

51. Cannot be maintained in another district where defendant resides, notwithstanding principle that equity acts in personam and not in rem. Columbia, etc., Co. v. Morton, 28 App. D. C. 288; Irrigation L. & I. Co. v. Hitchcock, 28 App. D. C. 587.

52. See 6 C. L. 1809.

53. Mitchell v. Lang & Co. [Iowa] 112 N. W. 87. Coal mining and shipping corporation with principal place of business in W. county, held to have an agency in A. county where its secretary resided, the contract for purchase of coal by it being negotiated in the latter county and the coal to be delivered there, although payments were to be made in W. county. Thistle Coal Co. v. Rex Coal & Min. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1094. Transaction through traveling purchasing agent who remained in county for week or two during rice purchasing season, held not to be maintaining of agency. Mangum v. Lane City Rice Mill. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 739, 95 S. W. 605.

54. Under Rev. Laws 1905, § 424, providing for suit in county of defendants' residence, and § 422, making principal place of business of corporation its residence. Garrett & Co. v. Bear [N. C.] 56 S. E. 479.

55. Action for breach of contract to sell rice for plaintiff held to arise in county where defendant's traveling agent made the negotiations with plaintiff. Mangum v. Lane City Rice Mill. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 739, 95 S. W. 605. An action against a railroad company for illness of a passenger resulting from failure to heat the car could be brought when journey was begun under allegation that plaintiff suffered from the cold while still in said county; the statute of Georgia providing that railroad company may be sued in any county where it may tortiously injure person or property of another. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Powell [Ga.] 56 S. E. 1006.

56. Under Act 27th Leg., p. 31, c. 27. Residence held to mean fixed and permanent abode as distinguished from place of returning to former domicile. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Elder [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 856.

57. Need not be brought where defendant is domiciled and where contract was entered into. Houston Rice Mill. Co. v. Wilcox [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 204.

58. Mole v. New York, etc., R. Co., 102 N. Y. S. 308. Evidence held sufficient to show that defendant had an agency in the county where it was sued. Southern Pac. Co. v. Craner [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 534. Corporation, having agents in a county to solicit business but with no power to bind it, held not to be doing business so as to subject it to suit in such county, its line not being situated therein. Abraham Bros. v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 42 So. 837. A statute providing that actions against a railroad company "may be brought" in any county through which the road passes is mandatory and excludes the right to bring in other counties authorized as to corporations generally. Spratley v. Louisiana & A. R. Co., 77 Ark. 412, 95 S. W. 776.

59. Special charter provision to that effect held not repealed by general act. Hayes v. Morgan's Louisiana, etc., S. S. Co., 117 La. 593, 42 So. 150.

insurance company must be tried in a county where it has its office,[60] and against a foreign beneficial association in any county in the state.[61] When a corporation is situated in one county, has its principal office in another, and its chief officer resides in a third, it may be sued in either.[62] A statute authorizing suits against certain corporations in certain counties is not affected by a subsequent charter to such a corporation providing for suits in different counties.[63] The right to sue nonresident corporations in any county of the state exists only when there are no resident defendants joined.[64] A municipal corporation may be sued in a local action in a court other than its own.[65]

(§ 1) E. Effect of improper venue and taking of objections.[66]—Objection that a motion or a proceeding in a case was had in the wrong county may be waived by acquiescence,[67] and the statutory right to be sued in a certain district is waived by appearance and answer to the merits [68] or by filing a general demurrer,[69] but not by a motion to dissolve a temporary injunction which was not acted upon at the time the plea of privilege was filed,[70] nor by filing an answer both to the jurisdiction and to the merits.[71] Under a statute providing that an action for removing mortgaged property may be brought in the county where it was situated, the question whether a nonresident defendant could be so sued is on the jury where it is a question of fact whether such defendant assisted in the removal of the property.[72]

§ 2. When change is allowable, necessary, or proper.[73]—The granting or refusing of a change of venue rests in the discretion of the trial court when the determination of a question of fact is involved,[74] but when defendant is entitled to a change as of right,[75] or where a party has brought himself within the statute, the court has no discretion in the matter but must grant the applicaion, based on prejudice.[76] A change should not be granted on the motion of one nonresident defendant when the other who was a resident did not join [77] unless the statute author-

60. Nixon v. Piedmont Mut. Ins. Co., 74 S. C. 438, 54 S. E. 657.

61. Loyal Mystic Legion v. Brewer [Kan.] 90 P. 247.

62. Under Kirby's Dig. § 6067. Spratley v. Louisiana & A. R. Co., 77 Ark. 412, 95 S. W. 776.

63. Civ. Code 1895, § 2004, authorizing suits against express companies in counties to which or from which lost goods were consigned, not affected by charter provision of Southern Express Co. that it may be sued in any county where it may tortiously injure property of another or where its contracts are made or to be performed. Southern Exp. Co. v. B. R. Elec. Co., 126 Ga. 472, 55 S. E. 254.

64. Ludington Exploration Co. v. La Fortuna Gold & Silver Min. Co. [Cal. App.] 88 P. 290.

65. City of Baltimore v. Meredith's Ford & Jarrettsville Turnpike Co. [Md.] 65 A. 35.

66. See 6 C. L. 1810. For questions as to taking objections to venue by motion to dismiss or plea in abatement, see Jurisdiction, 8 C. L. 579, and Pleading, 8 C. L. 1407.

67. Motion to pass accounts of receiver made in county other than where action was pending. People v. Anglo-American Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 101 N. Y. S. 270.

68. Horn v. Pere Marquette R. Co., 151 F. 626.

69. Ballard v. American Hemp Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 1080, 100 S. W. 271.

70. Schneider v. Rabb [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 163.

71. Louisville Home Tel. Co. v. Beeler's Adm'r [Ky.] 101 S. W. 397.

72. American Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 569, 92 S. W. 439.

73. See 6 C. L. 1811.

74. Multnomah County v. Willamette Towing Co. [Or.] 89 P. 389; Rand, McNally & Co. v. Turner, 29 Ky. L. R. 696, 94 S. W. 643. Local prejudice. Warden v. Madisonville, etc., R. Co. [Ky.] 101 S. W. 914.

Prejudice of citizens: On affidavits of defendant's attorney and seven citizens, and counter affidavits of plaintiff's attorney and fourteen citizens, refusal to grant application held not abuse of discretion. Croft v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 723. Convenience of witnesses. Bird v. Utica Gold Min. Co., 2 Cal. App. 672, 86 P. 509; Garrett & Co. v. Bear [N. C.] 56 S. E. 479.

75. A statute permitting suit on note in county where payable will not prevent change to county of defendant's residence where county where action was brought was not where note was payable. Ashton v. Garretson [Colo.] 85 P. 831. Removal to county where land involved is situated. North Shore Industrial Co. v. Randall, 108 App. Div. 232, 95 N. Y. S. 758.

76. Affidavit for change in suit against county for local prejudice need only show that suit is against county, and, by oath of affiant, that local prejudice exists, and need not satisfy court that such prejudice exists. Little v. Wyoming County, 214 Pa. 596, 63 A. 1039; Brittain v. Monroe County, 214 Pa. 648, 63 A. 1076; State v. Dabbs, 118 Mo. App. 663, 95 S. W. 275.

77. Action against parents to compel support of child. Paxton v. Paxton [Cal.] 89

izes a change on the application "of either party," [78] and then not if the removal is opposed to the codefendant,[79] and a second removal might be had on application of another defendant.[80] Change of venue is proper in proceeding for incorporation of a drainage district [81] or in mandamus proceedings,[82] but cannot be had pending a motion for a new trial as of right.[83]

When a cause is not brought in the proper county the court, independent of statute, may transfer the cause.[84] A belief in the dishonesty of defendant so general that he cannot obtain a new trial is ground for a change,[85] and so is prejudice or interest of the judge,[86] but mere apprehension that a judge is prejudiced is not sufficient.[87] A change of venue should be granted when a large number of the inhabitants of the county in which such cause is pending have an interest in the question involved therein adverse to the applicant,[88] but the mere fact that the recovery would be for the benefit of the county does not constitute such interest.[89] Convenience of witnesses is a ground,[90] and a change may be had therefor to a county other than where the cause of action arose.[91] A second charge for prejudice of the judge will not ordinarily be granted to the same party [92] even though the first charge was on other grounds,[93] but, after a change taken by defendant to the county of his residence, plaintiff is entitled to another change for convenience of witnesses.[94]

P. 1083. The change should be granted when all the defendants are nonresidents of the county where the action is brought, although one opposes it. Ludington Exploration Co. v. La Fortuna Gold & Silver Min. Co. [Cal. App.] 88 P. 290.

78. Dill v. Fraze [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 1147; Id. [Ind.] 79 N. E. 971.

79. Diamond State Tel. Co. v. Blake [Md.] 66 A. 631.

80. Although the statute provides further that only one change shall be granted to the same party. Dill v. Fraze [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 1147.

81. Held to be "civil suit" within meaning of Rev. St. 1899, § 818. State v. Riley [Mo.] 101 S. W. 567.

82. Held to be "civil action" within meaning of statute providing for change of venue in civil actions. Woodworth v. Old Second Nat. Bank, 144 Mich. 338, 13 Det. Leg. N. 174, 107 N. W. 905.

83. Bonham v. Doyle [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 458.

84. Transfer of cause and not dismissal should be remedy. Sanipoli v. Pleasant Valley Coal Co. [Utah] 86 P. 865.

85. Trimble v. Burroughs [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 753, 95 S. W. 614.

86. Under Rev. St. 1887, § 4125 providing for change when "from any cause the judge is disqualified from acting." Day v. Day [Idaho] 86 P. 531. Interest of county judge as material witness in application to sell real estate to pay debts of decedent is ground. Roberson v. Tippie 126 Ill. App. 579. That the presiding judge is a property owner in defendant county does not make him "personally" interested. Within meaning of act March 30, 1875, § 1, par. 1. Brittain v. Monroe County, 214 Pa. 648, 63

87. It must appear that prejudice actually exists. In re Smith [Kan.] 85 P. 584.

88. Showing that persons confined to a particular locality are interested held insufficient. Everson v. Sun Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 365.

89. Action on bond given for benefit of schools of county. Graziana v. Burton, 30 Ky. L. R. 180, 97 S. W. 800.

90. Particularly when the cause of action arose in the county to which change is sought. Lutfy v. Sullivan, 104 N. Y. S. 177. An order that plaintiff admit signatures to certain documents held by defendants did not justify a denial of the motion for a change of venue. Nichols v. Riley, 112 App. Div. 102, 98 N. Y. S. 346. Convenience of witnesses in employ of party is not given same consideration as that of other witnesses. Hays v. Faatz Reynolds Felting Co., 112 App. Div. 487, 98 N. Y. S. 386. But in absence of showing as to convenience of plaintiff's witnesses, the fact that most of defendant's witnesses are in his employ should not defeat the motion. Rieger v. Pulaski Glove Co., 99 N. Y. S. 558. Venue should be changed to county where defendant resides, where contract for sale of goods was made, where goods were received and examined, and where witnesses as to condition of goods reside. Shaff v. Rosenberg, 101 N. Y. S. 892. Where both parties to contract reside in the county where transaction took place, and plaintiff, assignee of one of them, is in business there but resides where action was brought, motion to change should have been granted. Brady v. Hogan, 102 N. Y. S. 962.

91. Supreme Court Rule No. 48, that place where transaction arose must be taken into consideration and if it arose in New York City must be regarded as potential, may be overborne where showing is that convenience of witnesses will be subserved by disregarding it. Lewis Co. v. Phoenix Car Co., 100 N. Y. S. 669.

92. American Car & Foundry Co. v. Hill, 226 Ill. 227, 80 N. E. 784; State v. Dabbs, 118 Mo. App. 663, 95 S. W. 275; Priddy v. Boice [Mo.] 99 S. W. 1055.

93. Under Pub. Acts 1905, p. 483, § No. 309, authorizing change of venue on affidavit showing one or more specified causes. Schmid v. Wexford Circuit Judge, 144 Mich. 679, 13 Det. Leg. N. 267, 108 N. W. 355.

94. Mills v. Starin, 104 N. Y. S. 230.

A suit to cancel a mortgage should be changed to the county where the land is situated on motion of the mortgagee, although another defendant has not yet appeared or been given notice of the application.[95] A statute providing that a change may be had as of right where plaintiff instituted the suit in a county other than that of his residence, or of the county where the occurrence took place, does not state two distinct grounds, and, where the suit is brought in either of such counties, the right to change does not exist.[96] A corporation may take a change of venue in a local action to the county where the land involved is situated, although it was properly commenced in another county.[97] Another judge has "attended," within a statute providing for attendance by another judge within the term as an alternative to change of venue, where he presides and hears a motion in the case which prevents a trial at that term.[98]

A change to the county where the cause of action arose or for convenience of defendant's witnessess will be denied where by reason of his poverty plaintiff's cause of action would be defeated thereby.[99]

Right to a change of venue is waived by stipulating to set the case for trial,[1] or that the hearing should be adjourned to a future day before a certain court,[2] or by entry of appearance and participation in the trial without objection after denial of a change of venue,[3] or by an agreement extending time to answer,[4] but not by answer to the merits where the court has no jurisdiction of the subject-matter;[5] and a stipulation to waive challenges to jurors for implied bias from financial interest does not waive a right to apply for a change of venue for such cause on a second trial.[6]

On appeal from inferior courts.[7]—Venue by appeal from the justice court to the county court may be changed to the district court where the county judge is disqualified.[8] The Michigan act of 1905 applies to appeals from justice courts.[9]

§ 3. Procedure for change.[10]—In Minnesota change of venue in municipal courts in cities of over 2,000 inhabitants must be according to practice in the district court.[11] The statutory demand for removal of the action to the proper county is essential to a compulsory change,[12] and a motion for change can be had only on

95. North Shore Industrial Co. v. Randall, 108 App. Div. 232, 95 N. Y. S. 758.

96. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Furlow [Ark.] 99 S. W. 689.

97. Under Const. art. 12, § 16, providing that corporation may be sued where particular business thereof is situated, "subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial as in other cases." Grocers' Fruit Growing Union v. Kern County Land Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 120.

98. Odegard v. North Wisconsin Lumber Co. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 809.

99. Mole v. New York, etc., R. Co., 102 N. Y. S. 308; Bird v. Utica Gold Min. Co., 2 Cal. App. 672, 86 P. 509.

1. Held waived in case commenced by writ of capias which was placed on April and November 1905 dockets, and by stipulation continued over term, to be set as first case on following term. No excuse for delay given except that necessity for change was not known earlier. Peterson v. St. Clair Circuit Judge, 143 Mich. 79, 12 Det. Leg. N. 923, 106 N. W. 394.

2. People v. State Racing Commission, 103 N. Y. S. 955.

3. Phoenix Indemnity Co. v. Greger [Colo.] 88 P. 1066.

4. Under Revisal 1905, § 425, requiring motion for change as matter of right before expiration of time to answer. Garrett & Co. v. Bear [N. C.] 56 S. E. 479.

5. Court held to have no jurisdiction over subject-matter of suit against insurance company in county where it had no office. Nixon v. Piedmont Mut. Ins. Co., 74 S. C. 438, 54 S. E. 657.

6. Multnomah County v. Willamette Towing Co. [Or.] 89 P. 389.

7. See 6 C. L. 1812.

8. Mills' Ann. St. § 1092, providing venue shall be changed from county court to district court, not being repealed by § 2679, providing that no appeal shall lie from the justice court to the district court, nor by Laws 1899, c. 91, authorizing county judges to interchange. Town of Del Norte v. Weiss [Colo.] 88 P. 581.

9. Moreland v. Lenawee Circuit Judge [Mich.] 107 N. W. 873.

10. See 6 C. L. 1812.

11. Laws 1899, c. 143, p. 146, held to repeal by implication. Gen. St. 1894, § 5191. Clark v. Baxter, 98 Minn. 256, 108 N. W. 838.

12. Under Rev. St. 1898, § 2621, providing that defendant may demand that trial be notice;[13] but members of a corporation are not entitled to notice in receivership proceedings.[14] A petition for change of venue, not verified as required by statute, is of no effect,[15] and, on a motion to change the venue of an action, transitory in its nature, to the county of defendant's residence, plaintiff must bring his case clearly within the statute authorizing a different venue.[16] An affidavit for change for convenience of witnesses must state that the facts can be proven by the said witnesses or disclose grounds showing that they can probably be so proven.[17] The affidavit may be made by the attorney for the party.[18] The petition must show diligence in making application for change,[19] and a motion for change as of right must be made in them and in the district where the action is pending,[20] and in Michigan must be entered within ten days after the cause is at issue.[21] An application made after the jury is sworn to answer as to their qualifications is too late,[22] but, where a case is not brought in the proper county, the court may change the place of trial although the motion therefor is not made within the statutory time.[23] Where the last day for entering the motion is on Sunday, a motion entered the following day is in time.[24] The motion may be made after a reversal and order for a new trial.[25] An application may be made when the case is at issue as to all defendants who have been brought in.[26] A notice of motion, motion, and affidavit filed on the same date are one proceeding although bearing different dates.[27] A stipulation made after the motion that the case might be tried by another judge operates as a withdrawal of the motion.[28]

Application for change for convenience of defendant's witnesses may be met by affidavits showing that the change will inconvenience plaintiff's witnesses,[29] but not had in proper county, that plaintiff may consent to change, or, if he do not consent, that a motion may be made to change place of trial. Anderson v. Arpin Hardwood Lumber Co. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 788. Such demand must show that county where action is brought is not proper county and state, which is the proper county, and, when action against corporation may be brought in one of several counties, a demand that the trial be had in a certain county because the corporation and its principal place of business is located there was insufficient. Id.

13. Under statute requiring application for change, and court rule requiring notice of motions to be given. Peterson v. St. Clair Circuit Judge, 143 Mich. 79, 12 Det. Leg. N. 923, 106 N. W. 394; State Road Bridge Co. v. Saginaw Circuit Judge, 143 Mich. 337, 12 Det. Leg. N. 1015, 106 N. W. 394.

14. Held impracticable to give notice where there were 9,000 members. Nichol v. Murphy 145 Mich. 424, 108 N. W. 704.

15. Rand, McNally & Co. v. Turner, 29 Ky. L. R. 696, 94 S. W. 643.

16. Mills' Ann. Code, § 27, providing that actions for tort may be commenced in county where tort was committed. Plaintiff must show that tort was committed in county where suit was brought. Byram v. Pigott [Colo.] 89 P. 859.

17. Mole v. New York, etc., R. Co., 102 N. Y. S. 308.

18. Affidavit by attorney held sufficient, although motion stated that it was based on files and affidavit of party. Moreland v. Lenawee Circuit Judge [Mich.] 107 N. W. 873.

19. Where delay is apparent on face of petition, it must show when knowledge of alleged prejudice of judge was received. Hunt v. Pronger, 126 Ill. App. 403.

20. Garrett & Co. v. Bear [N. C.] 56 S. E. 479.

21. Filing of demurrer to information in quo warranto held to bring cause at issue within court rule requiring motion within ten days after issue. State Road Bridge Co. v. Saginaw Circuit Judge [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 232, 111 N. W. 1084.

22. McArthur v. Kansas City El. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 62.

23. State Board of Pharmacy v. Rhinehardt, 101 N. Y. S. 769.

24. Moreland v. Lenawee Circuit Judge [Mich.] 107 N. W. 873.

25. Where the act specifying the grounds for change was passed after judgment rendered in original action, and, pending appeal, a court rule was adopted that motion must be entered within ten days after case is at issue. Detroit Nat. Bank v. Brooke [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 937, 110 N. W. 137.

26. But on showing that steps are being taken to bring in other defendants, no laches being shown, the court properly declined to order the change at that time. Detroit Portland Cement Co. v. Genesee Circuit Judge [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 82, 111 N. W. 744.

27. Moreland v. Lenawee Circuit Judge [Mich.] 107 N. W. 873.

28. Although the stipulation afterwards fails because the judge refused to try the case. Leslie v. Chase & Son Mercantile Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 523.

29. Such affidavit must give the names, addresses, and occupations of individual witnesses, and the particular members of partnerships who are to be used, and must al-

when the change is asked on other grounds.[30] The place of trial should not be changed upon an answer which does not state a defense or counterclaim.[31] When the petition or affidavit contains a statement of facts, the court may take testimony to determine their truth,[32] and the burden is on applicant to prove facts entitling him to a change of venue for local prejudice.[33] A clear showing must be made to warrant a change on grounds not provided by statute,[34] but it need not be conclusively shown that a fair trial cannot be had in the county where the suit is brought.[35]

Where there is more than one judge in a district, the cause cannot be removed to another district on affidavit of prejudice of the judges.[36]

Where a change is by operation of law, the statute relating to costs does not apply.[37] A condition to the denial of a motion in a jury case that plaintiff consent to a reference is improper.[38] Error in refusing to change venue cannot be raised by appeal from a default judgment.[39]

§ 4. Results of change of venue.[40]—After granting a change of venue court has no further jurisdiction in the case,[41] and transfer of a cause over defendant's objection to a district other than that in which it was properly brought loses the court its jurisdiction.[42] After a motion filed for change of venue for interest of the county judge as a witness, such court cannot enter any other order.[43] The court to which the cause is removed may vacate an injunction granted before the removal.[44] A change of venue granted by a judge having jurisdiction is not a nullity, although made without cause, and the court to which the case is sent cannot dismiss it.[45] An order changing venue in receivership proceedings can only be questioned in a direct proceeding,[46] and an irregularity in proceedings for change of venue is waived by appearance before the court to which change is had and application for a continuance and new trial.[47]

VERBAL AGREEMENTS, see latest topical index.

lege that plaintiff is advised by counsel that certain expected testimony is material and necessary. Ritger v. Pulaski Glove Co., 99 N. Y. S. 558.

30. Mills v. Starin, 104 N. Y. S. 230.

31. Hurley v. Roberts, 102 N. Y. S. 963; Lewis Co. v. Phoenix Car Co., 100 N. Y. S. 669. Action against police officer for false arrest. Application made under Code Civ. Proc. § 983, subd. 2, providing that action against public officer for act done by virtue of his office must be tried in county where cause of action arose. Philips v. Leary, 100 N. Y. S. 200.

32. That many inhabitants of defendant county have an interest in the question involved. Brittain v. Monroe County, 214 Pa. 648, 63 A. 1076; Everson v. Sun Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 365; Presbyterian Church v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co. [Pa.] 66 A. 652. Motion based on prejudice and undue influence. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Furlow [Ark.] 99 S. W. 689; Leslie v. Chase & Son Mercantile Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 523.

33. Trimble v. Burroughs [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 753, 95 S. W. 614.

34. Prejudice of judge. Refusal held proper where application was supported only by affidavit of defendant's attorney that judge was prejudiced against affiant. State v. Smith [Neb.] 110 N. W. 557.

35. Showing that practically whole town is arrayed against defendant on question of ownership of land, that struggle has been bitter and subject of public meetings, and comment and agitation in newspapers, held sufficient. Jacob v. Oyster Bay, 104, N. Y. S. 275.

36. Under Acts 1879, p. 80, § 11 (Guy v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 197 Mo. 174, 93 S. W. 940), and under Laws 1901, p. 120 (State v. Dabbs, 118 Mo. App. 663, 95 S. W. 275; American Car & Foundry Co. v. Hill, 226 Ill. 227, 80 N. E. 784; Leslie v. Chase & Son Mercantile Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 523; Priddy v. Boice [Mo.] 99 S. W. 1055).

37. Robertson v. Tippie, 126 Ill. App. 579.

38. Lewis Co. v. Phoenix Car Co., 100 N. Y. S. 669.

39. Schiller v. Hardenburg, 102 N. Y. S. 529.

40. See 6 C. L. 1814.

41. Priddy v. Boice [Mo.] 99 S. W. 1055

42. Federal Sign System Elec. v. Bloyen, 103 N. Y. S. 205.

43. Robertson v. Tippie, 126 Ill. App. 579.

44. It is not necessary to apply to the court granting the injunction for leave to make the motion to vacate it. McGorle v. McAdoo, 49 Misc. 601, 99 N. Y. S. 1107.

45. Coffey v. Carthage [Mo.] 98 S. W. 562.

46. Question cannot be raised in action by receiver against stockholder to collect assessment. Nichol v. Murphy, 145 Mich. 424, 108 N. W. 704.

47. Tammen v. Schaefer [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 468.

VERDICTS AND FINDINGS.

§ 1. Definitions and Nature (2245).
§ 2. General Verdicts (2245).
§ 3. Special Interrogatories and Verdicts (2246). When Proper (2246). Request for and Submission of Special Issues or Interrogatories (2246). Form and Requisites of Special Interrogatories (2247). Form and Requisites of Special Verdict (2247). Interpretations and Construction (2248).
§ 4. Conflicts Between Verdicts and Findings (2249). General Verdicts (2249). General Verdicts and Special Findings (2249). Between Special Findings (2250).
§ 5. Separate Verdict as to Different Counts, Causes of Action, or Parties (2250).
§ 6. Submission to Jury, Rendition, and Return (2251).
§ 7. Amendment and Correction (2251).
§ 8. Recording, Entry, and Effect of Verdict (2252).
§ 9. Findings by Court or Referee (2252). Referee (2252). Findings by the Court (2252). Interpretation and Construction (2253). Signing, Filing, and Entering (2254). The Amendment of Findings (2254). Conclusions of Law (2254). Propositions of Law Under the Illinois Practice (2254).
§ 10. Objections and Exceptions (2255).

§ 1. Definitions and nature.[48]—A verdict is the decision made by a jury and reported to the court on the matters lawfully submitted to them in the trial of a cause.[49] In some states a verdict may be rendered by nine jurors.[50] It should be in writing and signed by the foreman if unanimous [51] and by the concurring jurors where a majority verdict is authorized.[52]

§ 2. General verdicts.[53]—A verdict must be responsive to the issue [54] and authorized by the pleadings,[55] and must be determinative of all the issues submitted [56] and sufficiently definite that judgment thereon can be enforced.[57] If upon direction, it must conform thereto.[58] Informal verdict will stand if reference to the pleadings and record will cure the deficiency.[59] It must also be sustained by the

48. See 6 C. L. 1814.

49. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Connolly [Neb.] 109 N. W. 368.

50. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Lucas' Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 359, 98 S. W. 308.

51. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Connolly [Neb.] 109 N. W. 368; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Lucas' Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 359, 98 S. W. 308. Texas statute requiring signature of foreman is directory only. Dunlap v. Raymond Rice Canal & Mill. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 86, 95 S. W. 43.

52. A verdict signed by nine jurors, the first of whom attached "foreman" to his name, is sufficient. Peterson v. St. Louis Transit Co., 199 Mo. 331, 97 S. W. 860. A verdict by less than twelve must in Kentucky be signed by each juror making it. Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Lucas' Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 359, 98 S. W. 308.

53. See 6 C. L. 1815.

54. Anderson v. Wood, 50 Misc. 595, 99 N. Y. S. 474; Deaner v. O'Hara [Colo.] 85 P. 1123. In case involving counterclaim, general verdict irresponsive to issue is unsustainable. La Rosa v. Wilner, 101 N. Y. S. 193. Instruction that plaintiff was not entitled to recover larger amount than that claimed in petition held proper where evidence would have authorized larger verdict, though jury allowed plaintiff all that he claimed. International, etc., R. Co. v. Slusher [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 518, 95 S. W. 717. A verdict for a greater sum than claimed is erroneous. Dick v. Biddle Bros. [Md.] 66 A. 21. One cannot complain that he was not granted relief not asked for in his pleadings, though evidence might otherwise have authorized it. Harris v. Cain [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 327, 91 S. W. 866.

55. Martin v. Nichols [Ga.] 56 S. E. 995. A general verdict for plaintiff, in an action to recover goods by assignee for the benefit of creditors, concludes the question of assignment. Reddy v. Raymond [Mass.] 80 N. E. 484.

56. A general verdict for plaintiff in a personal injury case implies a finding of absence of contributory negligence. Grass v. Ft. Wayne & W. U. Trac. Co. [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 514. Verdict should in terms dispose of all issues submitted. Woods v. Latta [Mont.] 88 P. 402.

57. So, in an action for the recovery of the furniture in a barber shop including four barber chairs "all of the value of $59.70," a verdict in plaintiff's favor for three barber chairs or $59.70" is sufficiently definite. Phoenix Furniture Co. v. Jauden [S. C.] 55 S. E. 308. Judgment for foreclosure may be rendered on a verdict for mortgagee, though the verdict fails to state the amount of the debt, where such amount is shown by the uncontroverted evidence. Roche v. Dale [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 832, 95 S. W. 1100. Sufficiency of verdict "we, the jury, find the defendant guilty." Upton v. Santa Rita Min. Co. [N. M.] 89 P. 275. A verdict that "we the jury in the above case sustain the validity of the contract sued upon and fix the damages at ten dollars" is fatally defective. Pressed Steel Car Co. v. Steel Car Forge Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 182.

58. Where the court directs a verdict in favor of individuals sued with a city and the verdict was "for the plaintiff," judgment against the city would be reversed. Dailey v. Columbia [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 954.

59. Did not alone identify the land awarded. Cohues v. Finholt [Minn.] 112 N. W. 12. Verdict in action of dower sufficient though the words used might be sufficient to confer a fee, since the nature of the estate given is fixed by statute. McFadden v. McFadden, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 534. An objection to the verdict based on an un-evidence and must not be contrary to law.[60] The rule of idem sonans is applicable to the form of a verdict.[61]

§ 3. Special interrogatories and verdicts. When proper.[62]—In some states the parties in certain suits are entitled upon request to special findings on relevant questions,[63] while in other states it is within the discretion of the court to deny requests to submit a case on special issues.[64] Matters not in issue should not be submitted,[65] nor those regarding which there is no conflict of evidence.[66] A refusal to propound special interrogatories which are covered in substance by others submitted is not improper.[67] Where a general verdict is returned on several issues submitted, the court may interrogate the jury to specialize the verdict and state on what issues it is based.[68]

Request for and submission of special issues or interrogatories.[69]—As a general rule it is not obligatory upon the court to submit special issues in the absence of a request therefor[70] in writing;[71] but under some statutes the court may, in its discretion direct a special verdict on its own motion, though no request is made by substantial discrepancy will not be sustained. During pendency of proceeding by adminstratrix, substituted administrator appointed, and verdict for "plaintiff," naming former adminstratrix. Gibson v. Swofford [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 1007.

60. Hesselgrave v. Butler Bros. Const. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 103. Verdict contrary to the law of case as stated in court's charge is erroneous. Paine v. Geneva, etc., Trac. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 204; Van Alstine v. Standard Light, Heat & Power Co., 101 N. Y. S. 696. As to review and setting aside for lack of evidence to support, see Appeal and Review, 7 C. L. 128.

61. The fact that defendant's name is spelled "Brown" instead of "Braun" in the verdict does not vitiate. Braun & Ferguson Co. v. Paulson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 564, 95 S. W. 617. So, in an action by J. M. Sims, a verdict for Jas. M. Sms is sufficient. Colorado Canal Co. v. Sims [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 944, 94 S. W. 365.

62. See 6 C. L. 1816.

63. Upton v. Santa Rita Min. Co. [N. M.] 89 P. 275. In action for price of cattle sold, where dispute exists as to number, special interrogatory proper as to whether one of them has been turned from sale yard before bid. Curkeet v. Steinhoff [Wis.] 109 N. W. 975.

64. In Texas the court may submit such request in general charge. Ross v. Moskowitz [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 381, 95 S. W. 86. Under the Kentucky statute, where only one issue before jury, it is no abuse of discretion for the court to refuse to submit special interrogatories. Jones & Co. v. Moore, 30 Ky. L. R. 603, 99 S. W. 286; Holcomb-Lobb v. Kaufman, 29 Ky. L. R. 1006, 96 S. W. 813. Where parties agree on single issue no error to refuse to submit case on special issues. Johnson v. Scrimshire [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 949, 93 S. W. 712. Where, in an action for injuries to an employe for alleged failure to equip cars with automatic couplers, the evidence as to whether he was injured in the course of employment or while acting under orders of a superior was conflicting, the issue was properly submitted as a separate question. Hairston v. U. S. Leather Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 847.

65. In trespass for removal of wall and no issue as to license to use same, questions as to license improper. Howle v. California Brew. Co. [Mont.] 88 P. 1007. Issue of settlement cannot be submitted when not pleaded. Clark v. Patapsco Guana Co. [N. C.] 56 S. E. 858. Finding no consideration for a release is outside of the pleadings when denial of same is only made to support charges of fraud in procurement. Probate Court v. Enright [Vt.] 65 A. 530. An alleged variance consisting of a finding that a fire started in a manure pile instead of in an adjoining barn cannot be raised in an answer to interrogatories. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Ford [Ind.] 78 N. E. 969.

66. Bereiter v. Abbotsford [Wis.] 110 N. W. 821. Not objectionable for failure to include admitted facts. Chicago Title & Trust Co., v. Core, 223 Ill. 58, 79 N. E. 108. Evidence undisputed as to retention of title to goods shipped, error to submit same for adverse finding. Cragun Bros. v. Todd [Iowa] 108 N. W. 450. Findings are not necessary in relation to separate defenses in support of which no evidence was offered. Moneta Canning & Preserving Co. v. Martin [Cal. App.] 88 P. 369.

67. Party not prejudiced. Chicago City R. Co. v. Foster, 226 Ill. 288, 80 N. E. 762; Oolitic Stone Co. v. Ridge [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 441. Refusal to question as to unavoidable accident covered by other questions. Hocking v. Windsor Spring Co. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 685. As to defective condition of highway. McGowan v. Watertown [Wis.] 110 N. W. 402. Refusal to submit issue of easement vel non, when under another issue jury found there was no easement. Clark v. Patapsco Guano Co. [N. C.] 56 S. E. 858.

68. Where verdict is for plaintiff in an action on note, he is not injured by submission of issue as to misrepresentations. Rockefeller v. Wedge [C. C. A.] 149 F. 130.

69. See 6 C. L. 1817.

70. Gans & Klein Inv. Co. v. Stanford [Mont.] 88 P. 965; Upton v. Santa Rita Min. Co. [N. M.] 89 P. 275; Kohl v. Bradley, Clark & Co. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 265; Plyer v. Pac. Portland Cement Co. [Cal. App.] 87 P 395.

71. Gans & Klein Inv. Co. v. Stanford [Mont.] 88 P. 955; Edelstein v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 95 S. W. 1126.

either party.[72] After a case is submitted with special issues, a charge calling for a general verdict is improper.[73] Only material,[74] ultimate[75] questions of fact[76] should be submitted.

Form and requisites of special interrogatories.[77]—Special interrogatories should be clearly and concisely stated so that the jury can give a direct answer thereto,[78] and should not be propounded in a negative or leading,[79] double or misleading[80] form. But as a general rule, if the issues submitted present the material matters in dispute, they need not be in any particular form.[81] Only a sufficient number of questions to single the material matters in controversy should be submitted.[82]

Form and requisites of special verdict.[83]—The verdict must be explicitly responsive to the questions submitted.[84]

72. Rev. St. 1898, § 2858. Howard v. Beldenville Lumber Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 48.

73. Bridgeport Coal Co. v. Wise County Coal Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 409. A party desiring a general verdict as well as special findings must ask for it before the jury is discharged. Smyser v. Fair [Kan.] 85 P. 408. General instructions should not be given where a case is submitted for a special verdict. Howard v. Beldenville Lumber Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 48.

74. Drumm-Flato Commission Co. v. Edmisson [Okl.] 87 P. 311; City of Indianapolis v. Keeley [Ind.] 79 N. E. 499; Hart v. Brierley, 189 Mass. 598, 76 N. E. 286.

75. The court is not required to submit a special interrogatory unless it relates to ultimate facts of such character that it would control a general verdict. Springfield Coal Min. Co. v. Gedutis [Ill.] 81 N. E. 9; Grace & Hyde Co. v. Sanborn, 124 Ill. App. 472. Whether negligent act sued on was in violation of "well known rule" of defendant. Chicago & Alton R. Co. v. Seevers, 122 Ill. App. 558. They must also be material and pertinent and relate to ultimate rather than evidentiary facts, so as to involve legal consequences and have a controlling force in reaching a conclusion. Should ask a response as to the existence of some particular fact, and not embrace a series of facts not necessarily included in the determination. City of Stillwater v. Swisher, 16 Okl. 585, 85 P. 1110. In an action where issue was whether plaintiff's injuries were proximately caused by incompetency of defendant's engineer, the question whether the injury was caused by "incompetency or want of skill" is erroneous; the proper inquiry being whether the injury was proximately caused by incompetency, and if the words "want of skill" meant "incompetency" they were surplusage, otherwise they rendered the question double. Nor is a question accurate which inquires whether the majority of owners would have foreseen that the engineer's incompetency would be likely to cause injury to plaintiff; the proper question being only whether they would have foreseen that it would be likely to cause injury to any one. Odegard v. North Wisconsin Lumber Co. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 809. In action by servant for injuries claimed to have been caused by negligence of master in allowing hole to remain in floor after it should have been discovered and repaired, special interrogatories as to whether the hole existed and if so whether the defendant could have known of it and should have repaired it should have been submitted, instead of the general question as to whether defendant was negligent. Howard v. Beldenville Lumber Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 48. In action for injuries from fall alleged to have been caused by smoke and absence of guards, special issues under the California statute should refer to the combination of the two dangers, and not limit the cause of injury to them separately. Plyler v. Pacific Portland Cement Co. [Cal. App.] 87 P. 395. Interrogatories not calling for findings of essential facts properly rejected. People's State Bank v. Ruxer [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 337. A question as to whether principal would have sustained loss had agent not been negligent is rendered immaterial by findings to other questions, that agent was not negligent. McKone v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 472.

76. Matters of law should not be submitted. Erie Crawford Oil Co. v. Meeks [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 518.

77. See 6 C. L. 1817.

78. Drumm-Flato Commission Co. v. Edmisson [Okl.] 87 P. 311. Susceptible of affirmative or negative answer. Howard v. Beldenville Lumber Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 48.

79. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Lost Springs Lodge No. 494 [Kan.] 85 P. 803.

80. Gronlund v. Forsman, 124 Ill. App. 362.

81. Clark v. Patapsco Guano Co. [N. C.] 56 S. E. 858. Sufficiency of application for finding In re Clark [Conn.] 64 A. 12. Submission requiring joint findings as to interest of several, on representation made to them separately and not jointly, not erroneous where, at their instance, separate findings as to each were required and not returned under special issues. Bridgeport Coal Co. v. Wise County Coal Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 409. In action by one of several persons, jointly liable on a contract for the support of a third party, against the others for contribution, a question requesting a finding of the reasonable value of the support of the third party, over and above the services received by him, is not objectionable as covering two separate issuable facts. Payne v. Payne [Wis.] 109 N. W. 105.

82. Howard v. Beldenville Lumber Co. [Wis.] 108 N. W. 48.

83. See 6 C. L. 1818.

84. Submission of question of what amount will compensate for personal injuries does not necessitate itemizing for nursing, medical attendance, etc. Johnson v. St. Paul & W. Coal Co. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 722. Where in an action on a note the answer alleged that defendant became liable to a third party at plaintiff's instance, a finding that under an agreement between the third

Interpretations and construction.[85]—A finding by the jury upon a specific and controlling question is deemed to be as full and definite an answer as the testimony will warrant.[86] Findings of fact, to which no amendments are proposed and no alleged defects called to the attention of the court, will be aided by all reasonable intendments.[87] Generally an answer "Do not know" is construed as showing that the party having the burden of establishing the fact involved has failed in his proof.[88] So a special finding which is silent on a material point is deemed to be found against the party having the burden of proof.[89] The failure to find on an allegation, the truth of which is established, will be regarded on appeal as equivalent to an affirmative finding.[90] Where special interrogatories are to be submitted to party and defendant, made in plaintiff's presence, a certain sum was to be paid when defendant was able, is not erroneous as being outside of the pleadings. Ruzeoski v. Wilrodt [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 783, 94 S. W. 142. In an action to restrain defendant from interfering with a pipe line or the water therein, a finding that plaintiff had an interest in line for purpose of conveying water, in connection with a finding as to the extent of such interest, constitutes a sufficient finding that plaintiff had an easement and ownership in same to extent claimed. Collins v. Gray [Cal. App.] 86 P. 983. Verdict held not to so present the facts that only an issue of law remained. Coburn Cattle Co. v. Small [Mont.] 88 P. 953.

85. See 6 C. L. 1819.

86. Where a finding is too indefinite, and the jury is required to answer more specifically but fails to do so, it is not to be presumed that a still further effort will obtain any better results. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Dorr [Kan.] 85 P. 533.

87. Scheleske v. Orange Tp. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 988, 110 N. W. 506. A finding as to the customary flow of water without specifying any standard of measurement is not fatally defective, since it would be construed according to the customary measurement of the locality. Collins v. Gray [Cal. App.] 86 P. 983. A finding that a testator died possessed of a will which was afterwards mislaid or destroyed without referring to any particular will, though there were apparently two wills in existence, is not res judicata of an issue to determine whether one of the wills had been destroyed by testator. In re Lappe's Estate [Pa.] 64 A. 607. In an action for injury on any alleged defective highway, a finding that it was dangerous should be treated as including a finding that there was an unwarranted obstruction, and that it was not reasonably safe. Schelske v. Orange Tp. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 988, 110 N. W. 506. Where the issues were whether a deed was a mortgage, and if not whether an agreement to purchase existed, and the jury found that it was not a mortgage but an agreement to purchase, the court may consider all the findings in rendering judgment. Beale's Heirs v. Johnson [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 1045. A question not uncertain because referring to a fact set out in an amended answer, though the case was tried on a second amended answer, when the same fact was set out in both. Wallace v. Skinner [Wyo.] 88 P. 221. After a party's request to submit cause on special issues was granted, a request by the other party to submit whole cause upon general charge involving general verdict is not a request for the submission of issues within the issues. Moore v. Pierson [Tex.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 191, 94 S. W. 1132. Where nothing to the contrary appears, it will be presumed in the support of findings on an amended complaint that the original complaint presented the same issues, and that the findings answered the questions put in the original complaint. Collins v. Gray [Cal. App.] 86 P. 983. An affirmative answer to an interrogatory asking whether an accident would have happened simply on account of the condition of a highway should be construed to mean that it would have happened on account of the condition without reference to other circumstances. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Gallion [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 547. Where jury found on every allegation of negligence contained in the first paragraph of a complaint except one, the verdict was based on such paragraph, though there were additional findings on allegations of the second paragraph. Bedford Quarries Co. v. Turner [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 58. Finding that insurer had "information" of certain facts not stated in the application is a sufficient finding of notice. Metcalf v. Mutual Fire Ins. Co. [Wis.] 112 N. W. 22. A finding that no consideration was ever paid does not fully negative a consideration, since there may have been one other consideration than by a payment. Probate Court v. Enright [Vt.] 65 A. 530. A special question submitted to the jury whether a person fraudulently induced plaintiff to sign a release does not call for a conclusion of law. Wallace v. Skinner [Wyo.] 88 P. 221.

88. But the construction of such findings depends upon the form of the question answered. Croan v. Baden [Kan.] 85 P. 532; Wichita R. & Light Co. v. Lippincott [Kan.] 85 P. 1135.

89. Donaldson v. State [Ind.] 78 N. E. 182. A finding that a contract was substantially complied with, though to questions twice thereafter submitted the jury replied "not to the letter," amounts to a finding of substantial compliance. Carnegie Public Library Ass'n v. Harris [Tex. Civ. App.] 97 S. W. 520. Where questions submitted required findings of amount of crops actually raised, and amount that would have been raised had defendant complied with contract to furnish water, a finding merely as to cost of raising and harvesting crop is insufficient to base amount of damages on. Dunlap v. Raywood Rice Canal & Mill. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 86, 95 S. W. 43.

90. Allen v. Bryant [Cal. App.] 88 P. 294.

the jury, counsel may read and comment on them and array the evidence necessary to be considered in answering them.[91]

§ 4. Conflicts between verdicts and findings. General verdicts.[92]—Where a special verdict only is called for, a general verdict, returned with the answers to questions submitted as special issues, should be ignored.[93]

General verdicts and special findings.[94]—Special findings should always be reconciled with the general verdict where possible; but if there be necessary inconsistency the special findings prevail, and on proper application the general verdict must be set aside.[95] Inconsistency will only overthrow the general verdict when it is so direct that no state of facts provable under the issues could remove it,[96] and the evidence actually received will not be looked to.[97] Failure to answer special interrogatories material to the conclusions of the general verdict is not ground for rendering judgment non obstante[98] the general verdict controlling as to all matters not specially found.[99] Presumptions and intendments should be indulged in favor

91. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033.

92. See 6 C. L. 1819.

93. Dunlap v. Raywood Rice Canal & Mill. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 86, 95 S. W. 43.

94. See 6 C. L. 1819.

95. Awde v. Cole, 99 Minn. 357, 109 N. W. 812; City of Roswell v. Davenport [N. M.] 89 P. 256; Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Taylor [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 436; Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Brough [Ind.] 81 N. E. 57; National Biscuit Co. v. Wilson [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 33; Wichita R. & Light Co. v. Lippincott [Kan.] 85 P. 1135; Inland Steel Co. v. Smith [Ind.] 80 N. E. 538; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Findings as to public highway. People v. McCue [Cal.] 88 P. 899. Negligence in operation of saw. Tucker & Dorsey Mfg. Co. v. Staley [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 975. Special finding that defendant did not know of defect does not overthrow general verdict for plaintiff, if defendant could have known of it. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Allen [Kan.] 88 P. 966. Special findings only override special verdict when both cannot stand, and the antagonism is apparent on the face of the record beyond the possibility of removal by legitimate evidence. Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. v. Kidd [Ind.] 79 N. E. 347; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Gallion [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 547; Kafka v. Union Stock Yards Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 672; Oolitic Stone Co. v. Ridge [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 441. If reconcilable upon any supposed state of facts, general verdict prevails. Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. v. Richey [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 170; Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co v. Rose [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 1094. Special verdict not showing contributory negligence so as to render same inconsistent with general verdict for plaintiff. Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Lawrence [Ind.] 79 N. E. 363. Findings reconcilable with verdict that plaintiff was a passenger. Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. v. Romans [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 1068. In action by passenger of street car for injuries, no conflict between general verdict and certain findings. Louisville & S. I. Trac. Co. v. Leaf [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 1066. Special answers not equivalent to finding of no negligence, in action for fire set by locomotive. Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Hayes [Ind.] 79 N. E. 448. Special finding sustained by evidence is sufficient to justify verdict. Nicholls v. American Steel & Wire Co., 102 N. Y. S. 227. General verdict for plaintiff in action for injury while obeying special orders of superior, though special verdict was that he was working under "the general order" of superior. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Kane [Ind.] 80 N. E. 841. Special finding, in action by distributee for bank deposit of his intestate, that latter's debts were paid, amounts to finding that no liabilities existed, and supports general verdict for plaintiff. Merchants' Nat. Bk. v. McClellan [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 854. Special finding that plaintiff could have discovered danger if he had looked in certain direction at certain time does not overcome general verdict that he exercised due care, since fact specially returned does not exclude existence of circumstances warranting general conclusion. Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Rosborough [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 869. Irreconcilable conflict. Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Stewart [Ind.] 79 N. E. 490; Crowley v. Northern Pac. R. Co. [Wash.] 89 P. 471; Hardy v. Curry [Kan.] 89 P. 19. General findings in nature of conclusions contradicted by special findings of fact in detail. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Laughlin [Kan.] 87 P. 749. A general verdict that plaintiff recover under common law is in such conflict with a special finding that sole cause of injuries was defendant's violation of statutory duty as to entitle defendant to judgment. Bemis Indianapolis Bag Co. v. Krentler [Ind.] 79 N. E. 974. Special finding of facts showing contributory negligence control general verdict for plaintiff. American Smelting and Refining Co. v. Hoke [Kan.] 85 P. 804. Remedy where court sets aside special findings inconsistent with general verdict, and entitles judgment on latter, is by motion for new trial. Martin v. Butte [Mont.] 86 P. 264.

96. Grass v. Ft. Wayne & W. Valley Trac. Co. [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 514.

97. Only pleadings, verdict, and answers to interrogatories. Grass v. Ft. Wayne & W. Trac. Co. [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 514. On appeal the court can only look to the complaint, answer, general verdict, and the interrogatries and findings, in determining whether the special findings are in irreconcilable conflict with the general verdict. Bemis Indianapolis Bag Co. v. Krentler [Ind.] 79 N. E. 974.

98. Connell v. Keokuk Elec. R. & Power Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 177.

99. So a general verdict is controlling as of general verdict, but none can be indulged in favor of answers to special interrogatories.[1]

Between special findings.[2]—Conflicting special findings by the jury nullify each other and will not overthrow the general verdict if the findings are not inconsistent with it.[3] But where findings upon two special issues are clearly contradictory, a judgment dependent on the verdict upon either issue cannot be sustained.[4]

§ 5. Separate verdict as to different counts, causes of action, or parties.[5]—Where two defendants are sued jointly, a verdict that only one is liable, is not without the issue, but sustains a judgment against him.[6] Nor does a verdict in favor of one sued as joint tort feasor relieve the other defendant of such liability as the evidence might establish against him.[7] But a verdict for a specified sum against one of two joint defendants should be construed as a verdict in favor of the other.[8] Where only one defendant has been served with process, and he alone appears and defends, the verdict in plaintiff's favor should be construed against him, though not specifically named.[9] In an action by a husband claiming in his own right, and also for himself and wife for injury to latter, a verdict for a single sum cannot stand, it being impossible of application or appropriation.[10] A verdict against two to any issue of fact properly submitted, and not covered by special findings. Connell v. Keokuk Elec. R. & Power Co. [Iowa] 109 N. W. 177. Assault by servant. General verdict controlling. Goodwin v. Greenwood, 16 Okl. 489, 85 P. 1115. All facts in issue which are not specially found should be presumed to have been determined by the jury in accordance with their general verdict. Omitted facts. Samson v. Zimmerman [Kan.] 85 P. 757; Webb v. National Bk. of Republic [C. C. A.] 146 F. 717.

1. Finding of negligence in not instructing employe of danger. Inland Steel Co. v. Smith [Ind.] 80 N. E. 538; Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Hobbs [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 90. Answer to ambiguous question. Burke v. Bay City Trac. & Elec. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 974, 110 N. W. 524. Answers must be construed in favor of the general verdict. Erie Crawford Oil Co. v. Meeks [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 518. No inferences can be drawn against the general verdict. Hence, in action for injuries for defective elevator, a special finding that it was furnished with usual safety appliances does not form basis for inferences that verdict for plaintiff did not rest on negligence, the condition of the appliances not being shown. National Biscuit Co. v. Wilson [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 251. In California it is held that a finding of ultimate fact prevails in support of judgment, notwithstanding a finding of probative fact tending to show ultimate fact against evidence. Forsythe v. Los Angeles R. Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 24.

2. See 6 C. L. 1821.

3. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Fearnaught [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 217; Oolitic Stone Co. v. Ridge [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 441; Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Bishop [Kan.] 89 P. 668; Inland Steel Co. v. Smith [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 538. So if they are inconsistent or so uncertain that their meaning cannot be ascertained, they antagonize each other. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Lightheiser [Ind.] 78 N. E. 1033. Special findings that there is no evidence denying the administration of an estate, and that no administrator had been appointed, are so inconsistent as to have no effect on general verdict. Merchants' Nat. Bk. v. McClelland [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 854. Consistency of special verdicts in action alleging libel, slander, false imprisonment, and negligence, in examination for insanity. Lufkin v. Hitchcock [Mass.] 80 N. E. 456. Consistent answers as to knowledge by boy of peril, and exercise of ordinary care. Horn v. La Crosse Box Co. [Wis.] 111 N. W. 522. As to wanton negligence. Foot v. Seaboard Air Line R., 142 N. C. 52, 54 S. E. 843. Affirmative answer to question whether contracting party was afflicted with "any" weakness of mind does not conflict with finding upholding the contract. Haight v. Haight [Cal.] 90 P. 197.

4. Appellate court will remand such case for new trial. Brown Hdwr. Co. v. Catrett [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 559.

5. See 6 C. L. 1822.

6. Mckee v. Cunningham, 2 Cal. App. 684, 84 P. 260.

7. Chambless v. Melton [Ga.] 56 S. E. 414.

8. James v. Evans [C. C. A.] 149 F. 136; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Huber [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 154, 95 S. W. 568. A railroad company codefendant with its engineer cannot complain of a verdict for the plaintiff fixing damages only against the company, where evidence sufficient to warrant judgment against both. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Murphy's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 93, 97 S. W. 729. In action against hospital and its manager for negligence, verdict against hospital and in favor of manager cannot be regarded as a general verdict inconsistant with special finding. Hewett v. Woman's Hospital Aid Ass'n, 73 N. H. 556, 64 A. 190. But under the Missouri Statute, where the verdict is in favor of one defendant without reference to the other, the court should require a verdict as to both. Crow v. Crow [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 1123.

9. Thomas v. Clarkson, 125 Ga. 72, 54 S. E. 77.

10. Spencer v. Haines [N. J. Law] 62 A. 1009.

defendants sued jointly should not assess several damages.[11] If different causes of action are pleaded in separate counts, there should be a separate finding on each count, but, if all the count present only one cause of action, a single finding is sufficient.[12] If there be separate findings on several counts, they must be consistent.[12a]

§ 6. Submission to jury, rendition and return.[13]—Forms of verdict submitted to the jury must not be misleading or disguised to control their design.[14] A verdict arrived at by the "quotient process" is void[15] if an agreement was made to abide the result so obtained, but the presumption is that there was no such agreement.[16] The verdict must be declared on its return.[17] The court may in the absence of counsel receive a verdict[18] or authorize the return of a sealed verdict.[19]

§ 7. Amendment and correction.[20]—As a general rule a fatally defective verdict is incapable of amendment after the separation of the jury.[21] But where an error in a verdict is attributable to a mistake of the jury, the court may correct it without ordering a new trial.[22] In some states the court may correct the verdict so as to conform to the real determination of the jury, though they have been discharged, if motion is made at the same term.[23] The court has power to instruct the jury before dismissal to make necessary formal corrections in verdict,[24] and on opening a sealed verdict, the court may send the jury out to make it definite as to amount.[25] In some states, a jury may be recalled and sent back by the court to correct a manifest error in form, or supply an omission of matter necessary to the verdict.[26] A verdict cannot be reduced by the court without the consent of the party

11. But the court may grant new trial to one and render judgment against the other. Nashville R. & Light Co. v. Trawick [Tenn.] 99 S. W. 695.

12. Sain v. Rooney [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1127. There may be a single verdict on a declaration in several counts on the same transaction. Shearer v. Hill [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 673. An entire verdict may ordinarily be rendered on several counts. Mercantile Trust Co. v. Hensey, 27 App. D. C. 210.

12a. Verdict for plaintiff on count for negligently signing a certificate whereon plaintiff was committed to the insane asylum held not inconsistent with verdict for defendant on counts for libel, slander and false imprisonment based on the same transaction. Lufkin v. Hitchcock [Mass.] 80 N. E. 456.

13. See C. L. 1822.

14. Where defendant's plea admits owing part of amount sued for, there is no error in giving to the jury a form of verdict adapted only to finding some amount for the plaintiff. Howard Supply Co. v. Bunn [Ga.] 56 S. E. 757.

15. Williams v. Dean [Iowa] 111 N. W. 931; Ward v. Marshalltown Light, Power & Ry. Co. [Iowa] 108 N. W. 323.

16. State v. Cowell [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 573; Birmingham R. Light & Power Co. v. Moore [Ala.] 42 So. 1024.

17. Paper purporting to be verdict, in a package delivered by foreman after jury dismissed without rendering verdict, cannot be considered as a verdict, there being no opportunity to poll jury and determine whether it was the unanimous decision. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Connolly [Neb.] 109 N. W. 368.

18. Kuhl v. Supreme Lodge [Okl.] 89 P. 1126.

19. Grace & Hyde Co. v. Sanborn, 124 Ill. App. 472.

20. See 6 C. L. 1823.

21. Pressed Steel Car Co. v. Steel Car Forge Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 182.

22. Misapprehension as to amount. Richardson v. Agnew [Wash.] 89 P. 404. Verdict incorrect in form for failing to directly decide issue, may be corrected by court in entering judgment. Kebabian v. Adams Exp. Co. [R. I.] 66 A. 201.

23. But it is improper to amend a verdict by adding interest when there is nothing to show from what time the jury intended to allow it. Schnaufer v. Ahr, 103 N. Y. S. 195. Verdict for full amount of claim should be construed as including interest from the date of demand, but cannot be corrected after term ended. Fleming v. Jacob, 103 N. Y. S. 209. In Wisconsin it is held that a verdict on its face contrary to the undisputed evidence may be changed to correspond to the state of the case. Hay v. Baraboo, 127 Wis. 1, 105 N. W. 654. So a verdict may be amended by the addition of interest where the affidavits of all the jurors show conclusively that such was their intention. Elliott v. Gilmore, 145 F. 964. Where the value of property sued for is fixed by the pleadings at a certain sum, a finding in the verdict of a different sum is surplusage and may be struck out. Frank v. Symons [Mont.] 88 P. 561. Effect of rule. McKone v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 472. "De minimis lex non curat" on amount of verdict.

24. Verdict for plaintiff in action against two defendants corrected by the addition of words "and against the defendants and each of them." Lacey v. Bentley [Colo.] 89 P. 789.

25. King v. McKinstry, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 34.

26. Where jury returns general verdict for defendant on plea of counterclaim, court should require them to determine and state the amount thereof. Oxford Junction Sav. Bk. v. Cook [Iowa] 111 N. W. 805. Under the Texas Statute where a verdict is in-

in whose favor it was rendered, but, if injustice has been done, it may be set aside.[27] It is not error to refuse to require more specific answers to interrogatories which are fully covered by other answers.[28]

§ 8. Recording, entry, and effect of verdict.[29]—A clerical error in copying a verdict does not invalidate the judgment.[30] If a juror cannot sign his name the court may write his name to the verdict and cause him to make his mark.[31] After a verdict of the jury, determinative of the issue and adopted by the court, there is no necessity for a further finding by the court.[32] Where a statute allows a successful party to recover a sum which is determined by multiplying the actual damage sustained a specified number of times, it is immaterial whether the jury return in their verdict the sum which plaintiff is entitled to recover by virtue of the statute or whether they returned the actual damage, and the court directs the judgment to be entered in accordance with the statute.[33]

§ 9. Findings by court or referee. Referee.[34]—Findings by a referee must be explicitly made in his report.[35]

Findings by the court.[36]—Findings by the court must be within the issues raised by the pleadings and must cover all of them that are material,[37] but where the admitted facts establish a defense no finding thereon is necessary,[38] and where the primary facts found lead to but one conclusion the court is not required to make a specific finding of ultimate fact.[39] In an equity suit the court may disregard a special verdict of the jury and make its own findings of fact and conclusions of law.[40] formal and not responsive to the charge, the court may decline to receive it and direct a correction. Roche v. Dale [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 832, 95 S. W. 1100. Before acception of a verdict the court may give charge covering different phase of case, and send jury back for further consideration. Cockrell v. Egger [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 568. Substitution by consent of jury of proper verdict for one returned by mistake where latter not filed and jury not discharged. Hary v. Speer, 120 Mo. App. 556, 97 S. W. 228. Application to rectify appeal by making changes in findings. McCarthy v. Consolidated R. Co. [Conn.] 63 A. 725.

27. Isley v. Virginia Bridge & Iron Co. [N. C.] 55 S. E. 416. Accepted reduction. Vlou v. Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co., 99 Minn. 97, 108 N. W. 891; Phoenix Assur. Co. v. Maryland Gold Min. & Devel. Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 501. When erroneous verdict not cured by remitting part. Connelly v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 120 Mo. App. 652, 97 S. W. 616.

28. Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Taylor [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 436.

29. See 6 C. L. 1824.

30, 31. Moore v. Woodson [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 116.

32. Hoyt v. Hart [Cal.] 87 P. 569.

33. Richards v. Sanderson [Colo.] 89 P. 769.

34. See 6 C. L. 1825.

35. Holmes v. Seaman, 102 N. Y. S. 616, citing Elterman v. Hyman, 102 N. Y. S. 613. And see Reference, 8 C. L. 1702.

36. See 6 C. L. 1825.

37. Whether arising on allegations and denials in answer, or on affirmative defense, or on counterclaim. Dillon Impl. Co. v. Cleveland [Utah] 88 P. 670. A failure by the court to find on all the material issues made by the pleadings is reversible error, unless findings upon such issues would not affect the judgment. State v. Baird [Idaho] 89 P. 298. There must be a finding on every material issue. Bell v. Adams [Cal.] 90 P 118. In suit for specific performance, findings giving plaintiff right to conveyance by verbal gift and possession are irresponsive. Price v. Lloyd [Utah] 86 P. 767. No judgment can properly be rendered until there is a finding on all material issues. Dillon Imp. Co. v. Cleveland [Utah] 88 P. 670; Wood v. Broderson [Idaho] 85 P. 490. It is error to refuse a request to make findings on a material issue which are sustained by undisputed evidence to or by such a preponderance thereof that findings to the contrary cannot stand. Turner v. Fryberger, 99 Minn. 236, 108 N. W. 1118, 109 N. W. 229. Under the New York statute a refusal to make findings of fact for the defendant is not equivalent to a finding against the fact, but it results in a mistrial. Morehouse v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 185 N. Y. 520, 78 N. E. 179. In an action for sale and partition of land where the court found no partnership existed in relation to the land, it is not necessary to find whether there was a business partnership. Contaldi v. Errichetti [Conn.] 64 A. 219. In action by tenant against a cotenant for improvements to property, a finding that the relation between them did not include the ownership and management of the property is sufficient to dispose of the difference, without a finding as to whether a copartnership existed. Contaldi v. Errichetti [Conn.] 64 A. 211. Finding that plaintiff's services were of a specified value held to dispose of an affirmative defense based on their lack of value Prince v. Kennedy [Cal. App.] 85 P. 859.

38. Bell v. Adams [Cal.] 90 P. 118.

39. Mount v. Montgomery County Com'rs [Ind.] 80 N. E. 629.

40. Suit for specific performance. Ostrom v. De Yoe [Cal. App.] 87 P. 811. The adopt-

Where a Federal court tries a case without a jury by consent, whether special findings shall be made rests in discretion,[41] and, generally, where a jury is waived, the court is not called upon to make special findings in the absence of a request therefor.[42] Where a case is tried on an agreed statement of facts, it is not necessary that the court should make separate findings of fact and law.[43] Where several actions are consolidated, a single set of findings is sufficient,[44] though one of the findings was general on a fact which some of the complaints did not allege.[45] Findings should be positive and definite,[46] and of ultimate [46a] facts rather than mere conclusions.[47]

Interpretation and construction.[48]—Findings by the court must be construed so as to uphold rather than defeat the judgment rendered thereon, and, for the purpose of supporting the judgment, they must be liberally construed, and any ambiguity must be resolved in favor of the judgment;[49] and when from the facts found other facts supporting the judgment may be inferred, the inference will be presumed to have been made by the lower court.[50] In the absence of specific findings of facts to the contrary, it must be presumed that the trial court found those facts which are responsive to the issue and essential to the judgment.[51] A finding of fact by the court should stand unless inconsistent with other facts found.[52] A failure to find in accordance with an averment of the plaintiff is in legal effect a finding to the ing or disregarding of the findings of the jury is in the discretion of the court. Wisdom v. Nichols-Shepherd Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 1128, 97 S. W. 18.

41. Rev. St. § 649. School Dist. No. 11, Dakota County v. Chapman [C. C. A.] 152 F. 887.

42. Bank of Commerce v. Baird Min. Co. [N. M.] 85 P. 970. Where no declarations of law are asked or given and the case submitted to the court on agreed statement of facts, such agreed case occupies the same footing as a special verdict, and the trial court should give judgment on the facts so found or agreed upon. Graham v. Ketchum, 192 Mo. 15, 90 S. W. 350.

43. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Hansford & Son, 30 Ky. L. R. 1105, 100 S. W. 251.

44, 45. Union Lumber Co. v. Simon [Cal. App.] 89 P. 1077.

46. Sufficiency of finding as use of water claimed to have been acquired by prescription. Bartholomew v. Fayette Irr. Co [Utah] 86 P. 481. The term "continuing contract" in a finding by the court is not objectionable for indefiniteness. In re Myer [N. M.] 89 P. 246. A remark, in the opinion of the trial judge, to the effect that a contestee was born in a foreign jurisdiction, "if the fact of the nativity of contestee can be definitely found from the evidence," is not a finding of fact that he was so born. Buckley v. McDonald, 33 Mont. 483, 84 P. 1114. Construction and sufficiency of findings as to tax sale. Cantwell v. Nunn [Wash.] 88 P. 1023.

46a. A finding that a grantor was in full possession of his faculties necessarily implies a finding that he was not "entirely without understanding." Ripperdan v. Weldy [Cal.] 87 P. 276.

47. A finding that excessive fees were collected and taxed is a finding of fact and not a mere conclusion of law. State v. Williams [Ind. App.] 77 N. E. 1137. A finding that certain resolutions were passed should be regarded as a finding of fact rather than as conclusions of law. Pacific Pav. Co. v. Diggins [Cal. App.] 87 P. 415. A finding that there was no evidence showing residence of mortgagee, where there is substantial evidence from which it may be inferred that he resided in county where mortgage recorded, must be treated rather as conclusion of law than issue of fact, authorizing appellate court to assume that mortgagee lived where mortgage recorded, in accordance with judgment. Kansas City Wholesale Grocery Co. v. McDonald, 118 Mo. App. 471, 95 S. W. 279.

48. See 6 C. L. 1828.

49. Leist v. Dierssen [Cal. App.] 88 P. 812. To be liberally construed to support the judgment. Haight v. Haight [Cal.] 90 P. 197.

50. Griffin v. Pacific Elec. R. Co., 1 Cal. App. 678, 82 P. 1084; Treadwell v. Clark, 114 App. Div. 493, 100 N. Y. S. 1. Finding that claim had been due forty years and was never before prosecuted held sufficient finding of bar by limitations. Marshutz v. Seltzor [Cal. App.] 89 P. 877.

51. Deaner v. O'Hara [Colo.] 85 P. 1123. Where, under a contract, a contractor cut certain lumber for the plaintiff and other lumber for himself, it will be presumed that lumber sold by him was his own, in the absence of findings to the contrary. Rice v. Knostman [Wash.] 88 P. 194.

52. A finding that a person killed in collision with a street car could have remained where he stopped his horse, some distance from the track, is properly drawn from a finding that he was driving at a walk when he stopped. McCarthy v. Consolidated R. Co. [Conn.] 63 A. 725. Bill charging building of double track to irreparable damage, and answer admitted building but denying irreparable damage, do not warrant finding of fact that track was a turnout. Borough of Bridgewater v. Beaver Valley Tract. Co., 214 Pa. 343, 63 A. 796. A finding that there was no "adequate" consideration for a transfer will not be construed as finding that there was any consideration, when by so doing it would be brought into conflict with another finding. Haight v. Haight [Cal.] 90 P. 197. A finding that an ordinance granting a privilege created a "franchise" construed to mean contrary.[53] After sustaining a demurrer to plaintiff's evidence, special findings by the court are surplusage.[54] A recital, where the facts are agreed, the court finds the issues with the defendant, shall be construed to refer to the issues of law.[55]

Signing, filing, and entering.[56]—A statute providing that findings of fact by the court shall be in writing and filed contemplates that they shall also be signed.[57] Under the New York statute in an equitable action to enforce an attorney's lien, the court should sign and file a decision as a prerequisite to entering judgment.[58] In equity the findings were embodied in the decree, and this practice prevails in several states.[59] In Pennsylvania requests for findings need not be entered of record.[60]

The amendment of findings.[61]—The court findings of fact may be amended so as to conform to the facts stipulated by the parties.[62] The court is not, however, usually authorized to modify its findings in substance [63] or restate its conclusions of law,[64] and cannot, after entering a finding, set it aside and make a different one.[65]

Conclusions of law.[66]—By statute in some states, conclusions of law and findings of fact are required to be separately stated.[67] A finding considerd as a conclusion of law cannot aid the findings of fact, and it is often difficult to determine what are findings of fact and what conclusions of law.[68] The conclusion of law need not be stated in any particular form.[68a]

Propositions of law under the Illinois practice [69] need only be presented where a jury trial is of right and has been waived.[70] operated as a franchise only. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Visalia [Cal.] 87 P. 1023. Inconsistent findings as to seepage of water cannot be implied. Beaverhead Canal Co. v. Dillon Elec. Light & Power Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 880. Inconsistency between special findings as to lack of notice of mortgagee. Hamilton v. Fleckenstein, 103 N. Y. S. 631. Special findings made by the court, stating certain allegations of the plaintiff's petition are not sustained by the evidence, do not warrant a reversal of the judgment for the plaintiff where there are allegations of fraud in the plaintiff's petition not negatived by the special findings and supported by the general findings. Smith v. Smith [Kan.] 89 P. 896. Where there is an inconsistency between the findings and decision of a court and its written opinion, the findings and decision control. Opinion that each party pay own costs, but findings and decision that plaintiff recover costs. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93. Where the court has made a separate special finding of facts upon which judgment has been rendered, the recital of facts in the opinion constitutes no part of the finding, and cannot be invoked to assail it. Webb v. National Bk. of Republic [C. C. A.] 146 F. 717.

53. Soule v. Soule [Cal. App.] 87 P. 205.

54. Darlington v. Cloud County Com'rs [Kan.] 88 P. 529. Ruling on demurrer to petition after hearing evidence. Thompson v. Mills [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 560.

55. The agreement of facts being equivalent to a finding thereof by the court. Anderson v. Messinger [C. C. A.] 146 F. 929.

56. See 6 C. L. 1829.

57. Wisconsin Rev. St. 1898, § 2863. Sackett v. Price County [Wis.] 110 N. W. 821.

58. Wise v. Cohen, 113 App. Div. 859, 99 N. Y. S. 663.

59. Not altered by Rev. St. 1899, par. 695. Patterson v. Patterson, 200 Mo. 335, 98 S. W. 613.

60. Commonwealth v. Monongahela Bridge Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 909.

61. See 6 C. L. 1830.

62. Burgi v. Rudgers [S. D.] 108 N. W. 253.

63. It is held in Indiana that there is no rule of practice authorizing a motion to modify special findings, and find other facts and other conclusions of law; nor is an assignment that certain findings are not sustained by sufficient evidence a proper one. In motion for new trial. Scott v. Collier [Ind.] 78 N. E. 184.

64. The Indiana Code of Procedure does not recognize a motion that the court restate its conclusions of law. Merica v. Burget, 36 Ind. App. 453, 75 N. E. 1083.

65. Beard v. American Type Founders Co., 123 Ill. App. 50.

66. See 6 C. L. 1830.

67. Findings of fact and conclusions of law clearly segregated by separate statement and paragraph are separately stated, though written on the same page. Pierce v. Wheeler [Wash.] 87 P. 361. In New York judgment is reversible unless the trial court complies with Code, § 1022, as amended by Laws 1903, p. 237, c. 85, providing that the decision of the court upon trial of the whole issues of fact must state separately the facts found and the conclusions of law. Wander v. Wander, 111 App. Div. 189, 97 N. Y. S. 586. The statute requiring findings of fact and conclusions of law to be separated does not apply to equitable actions. Pierce v. Wheeler [Wash.] 87 P. 361. Under Equity Rule 62, findings of facts and law need not be set forth in separate numbers. Zebey v. Allen [Pa.] 64 A. 587.

68. Lupton v. Taylor [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 689; Dillon Impl. Co. v. Cleveland [Utah] 88 P. 670.

68a. Conclusion "That plaintiff recover $100.00" is sufficient. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Sanders [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 406.

§ 10. Objections and exceptions.[71]—An objection to the form of a verdict,[72] on its failure to find as to parties or issues,[73] must be taken on the coming in of the verdict. Exceptions to findings must be specific and to the precise point.[74] A motion for a new trial is the proper remedy where special findings are contrary to, or not sustained by, the evidence.[75]

VERIFICATION.

Necessity.[76]—Statutes in many states require a verified denial to put in issue the genuineness of the instrument sued on,[77] and most of such statutes apply equally to instruments set up by answer.[78] Failure to deny under oath ordinarily admits the execution and genuineness of the instrument sued,[79] though under some statutes such failure merely admits the instrument in evidence and does not preclude its impeachment,[80] and though the effect is to absolutely confess execution, it does not preclude a showing of want of consideration,[81] nor conclude the defendant as to the damage resulting from breach of the contract.[82] The failure to deny the execution of an administrator's deed under oath does not admit the validity of the court proceedings on which it is based.[83] A statute requiring each pleading subsequent to a

69. See 6 C. L. 1831.

70. Christy v. Christy, 125 Ill. App. 442.

71. See 6 C. L. 1831. See, also, Saving Questions for Review, 8 C. L. 1822.

72. Unsigned verdict. Dunlap v. Raywood Rice Canal & Mill. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 86, 95 S. W. 43.

73. Agreement by jury as to one defendant without agreeing as to other, and jury dismissed before verdict received without objection by counsel. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Connolly [Neb.] 109 N. W. 368. Error if any waived. Objection to failure of jury to answer interrogatories must be made below. Bauman v. National Safe Deposit Co., 124 Ill. App. 419. Failure of jury to make specific answer to interrogatories must be objected to when the verdict comes in. Kuhl v. Supreme Lodge [Okl.] 89 P. 1126. But after an unsuccessful attempt to obtain a more specific answer to a question, a party does not waive his right to object to the finding by failure to request a repetition of the effort. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Dorr [Kan.] 85 P. 533.

74. In the absence of objection, exception, or request for declaration of law, an exception "to each, all, and every one of said findings, conclusions, and judgment" is futile. Webb v. National Bk. of Republic [C. C. A.] 146 F. 717. Following exception sufficient: "each of the findings proposed by defendant and given by the court was excepted to by plaintiff, and each of the findings proposed by the plaintiff and given by the court was excepted to by defendant." Smith v. Glenn, 40 Wash. 262, 82 P. 605.

75. Omission to find the facts on all the issues, and refusal to sign special findings tendered, as ground for new trial. Walters v. Walters [Ind.] 79 N. E. 1037.

76. See 6 C. L. 1832.

77. An averment that one is the owner of premises in controversy "under a valid and legal deed of conveyance duly executed" describes no writen instrument whose execution is admitted unless denied under oath. O'Keefe v. Behrens [Kan.] 85 P. 555. Signature to receipt, indorsed on contract sued on, held not part of such contract so as to require to be denied by verified pleading. Bateman v. Ward [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 933, 93 S. W. 508.

78. A statute declaring that all allegations of the execution of written instruments shall be taken as true unless denied under oath applies to a contract set up in an answer, the execution of which is not denied by a verified reply. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Phillips [Okl.] 87 P. 470. The Alabama statutory provision that defendant need not prove the execution of a contract set up by plea in bar unless its execution is denied by verified replication applies to a plea relying on a contract averred to have been executed by plaintiff's agent. Alley v. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. [Ala.] 42 So. 623. An answer in an action on a life insurance policy referring to the application therefor, wherein the defendant pleads a breach of warranty in the application as a defense and sets up provisions of the application purporting to make the medical examiner or persons writing the answers agents of the insured must be met by verified denial. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Jay [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 545. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 2479, providing that an administrator need not plead defensively in any action against the estate, dispenses with verified plea of non est factum by him. Digan v. Mandel [Ind.] 79 N. E. 899.

79. Contract signed by one as "President of Board of Control" held admissible in action against the Supreme Lodge of Knights of Pythias. Kennedy v. Supreme Lodge, K. of P., 124 Ill. App. 55. Contract of jointer with city held conclusively established by failure of city in action thereon to deny its execution on oath. Van Camp v. Huntington [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 1057. In Missouri an exhibit which is the foundation of the plaintiff's action and which contains what purports to be the defendant's signature stands confessed unless denied under oath. Brown Mfg. Co. v. Gilpin, 120 Mo. App. 130, 96 S. W. 669.

80. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Smith [Ark.] 100 S. W. 884.

81. Johnson v. Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World [Mo. App.] 95 S. W. 951.

82. Van Camp v. Huntington [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 1057.

83. O'Keefe v. Behrens [Kan.] 85 P. 555.

verified one to be verified does not apply when the plaintiff files a verified complaint, but thereafter serves an unverified amended complaint.[84] Requirement of verified denial of a verified account does not apply where petition, not verification, avers the correctness of the account,[85] and only when defendant seeks to dispute its correctness.[86] Under some statutes matters peculiarly within the knowledge of defendant, such as agency for or partnership with him, must be denied on oath.[87] The verification of the complaint in divorce proceedings is jurisdictional in North Carolina.[88]

In equity.[89]—Bills in chancery must be verified if they seek discovery or interlocutory relief,[90] but otherwise verification is unnecessary.[91] Pleas or answer by way of denial [92] need not be verified in the absence of rule or statute so requiring,[93] and the provision of the Illinois practice act that no person shall be permitted to deny on the trial the execution of any instrument in writing upon any "action" which may have been brought in the absence of verified plea does not apply in equity cases.[94] The procedure obtaining in chancery courts relative to the verification of pleadings is not in vogue in Texas.[95] In Texas the procedure relating to the verification of pleadings is purely statutory, and unless required by statute a pleading in chancery need not be verified.[96]

Form and positiveness.[97]—Verification must be direct and positive,[98] but may in the absence of statute to the contrary be aided by the affidavit of a third person.[99] Where the affidavit is not by the person primarily bound to verify, the facts entitling another to do so in his stead must appear.[1] The jurat imports signature and oath

84. Answer held not required to be verified. Brooks Bros. v. Tiffany, 102 N. Y. S. 626.

85. Sawyer & A. Lumber Co. v. Champlin Lumber Co., 16 Okl. 90, 84 P. 1093.

86. Where defendant in an action on a verified account admitted the correctness of the account and set up by way of counter claim a demand for damages, his answer was not required to be verified. Sawyer & A. Lumber Co. v. Champlin Lumber Co., 16 Okl. 90, 84 P. 1093.

87. In an action against a railroad for injuries to a servant, answer of defendant held insufficient to entitle defendant to prove that persons alleged in petition to be its superintendent and foreman were not such. McCabe & Steen Const. Co. v. Wilson [Okl.] 87 P. 320. In Texas the failure of defendant to deny under oath allegations of agency and partnership is an admission of the allegations. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Carter [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 657, 94 S. W. 205.

88. Suit for annulment of marriage held a suit for divorce requiring a verified complaint in the absence of which a decree rendered therein is void. Johnson v. Johnson, 142 N. C. 462, 55 S. E. 341.

89. See 6 C. L. 1832.

90. A bill for injunction must be verified (Godwin v. Phifer [Fla.] 41 So. 597), and where any of the material allegations of the bill are stated on information, there should be annexed to the bill the additional affidavit of the person from whom the information is derived, verifying the truth of the information given (Id.).

91. When no relief is asked except by judgment at the end of trial, the bill need not be verified. Nixon v. Malone [Tex. Civ. App.] 95 S. W. 577. A pleading calling in parties at interest and praying that they be required to litigate their conflicting claims need not be verified. Id.

92. An answer in denial in a suit, to set aside a judgment on the ground that it was procured by purjury, need not be verified. Lee v. Hickson [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 91, 91 S. W. 636.

93. Town of New Decatur v. Scharfenberg [Ala.] 41 So. 1025. Under the statutes of California pleas in equity must be verified as "true in point of fact." Turpin v. Derickson [Md.] 66 A. 276.

94. The term "action" is never properly applied to an equity suit. Clokey v. Loan & Homestead Ass'n, 120 Ill. App. 214.

95, 96. Nixon v. Malone [Tex. Civ. App.] 95 S. W. 577.

97. See 6 C. L. 1832.

98. Bill for injunction. Godwin v. Phifer [Fla.] 41 So. 597.

99. A plea in abatement otherwise sufficient, verified by the party swearing to the best of his knowledge and belief as to the facts relating to a previously dismissed action for the same cause, the costs in which were unpaid, is sufficiently verified by an affidavit of a deputy clerk of the court swearing positively and directly that the costs had not been paid. Dougherty v. Dougherty, 126 Ga. 33, 54 S. E. 811.

1. When a complaint is verified by a person other than the party himself without showing why the party himself did not make the verification, judgment cannot be entered thereon as by admission of the defendant on proof that the party resided in another county, under the New York statute permiting judgment to be entered as on admission of the defendant for his failure to answer a verified complaint. Boyce v. Dumars, 99 N. Y. S. 769. In Ohio when a pleading is verified by an agent or attorney, the affiant must in all cases state in the affidavit that the case is one included in one or more of the classes of conditions under which an agent or attorney may verify a pleading (Bullock Beresford Mfg. Co. v.

before the officer,[2] but when no oath is in fact administered and the officer's jurat is merely attached to the purported oath by the typewriter without being signed by the officer, there is no sufficient verification of a pleading.[3]

By whom.[4]—Verification by one of several joint parties is ordinarily sufficient.[5] Absence of the real party in interest entitles an attorney to verify, though a nominal party is within the jurisdiction.[6]

Defects, objections, and amendments; waiver.[7]—The objection that a bill for injunction is not sufficiently verified to warrant the issuance of the injunction cannot be raised for the first time on appeal.[8] In Texas the objection of want of verification of a pleading can only be raised by special demurrer or exception.[9] A party present in court at the time of a ruling against the sufficiency of the verification of his pleading to raise an issue who fails to ask leave of court to make a proper verification, waives his right.[10] Where verification of the complaint is prerequisite to the right to make a default judgment without proof, a judgment on an insufficiently verified complaint must be set aside.[11]

VETO; VIEW; VOTING TRUSTS; WAIVER, see latest topical index.

WAR.[12]

The existence of war is to be determined primarily by the political department of the government,[13] but the actual existence of a state of unsolemn war will be recognized by the courts.[14] Though held in trust for the benefit of its inhabitants by the United States, the Island of Cuba during the period of its military occupation by the United States was foreign conquered territory, hence the power to levy custom's duties was determinable by the laws of war.[15]

French spoliation claims.[16]—The liability of the United States depends upon the primal and original liability of France,[17] and defenses which would have been available to France at the time of the seizure are available to the United States.[18] Where the prize court established the illegality of the seizure of a vessel and the captors appealed, it was the duty of the owners to stand by the appeal to protect their rights.[19] The seizure by France must have been unlawful[20] and proved by Hedges [Ohio] 81 N. E. 171), and if the case is one within his personal knowledge, he may add in his affidavit the statement that he believes that the facts stated in the pleading are true (Id.).

2. Such facts need not otherwise appear. Lord v. Rowse [Mass.] 80 N. E. 822.

3. Answer in action on note held not properly verified so as to put in issue the execution of the note. Betz v. Wilson [Okl.] 87 P. 844.

4. See 6 C. L. 1833.

5. In Michigan the verification of a bill by one or more of the complainants, though not by all, is sufficient. Ewing v. Lamphere [Mich.] 111 N. W. 187. A bill by a corporation and a person claiming to be its treasurer for injunction is sufficiently verified by the oath of the alleged treasurer. First Baptist Soc. in Brookfield v. Dexter [Mass.] 79 N. E. 342.

6. Arkansas Southern R. Co. v. Wilson [La.] 42 So. 976.

7. See 6 C. L. 1833.

8. First Baptist Soc. in Brookfield v. Dexter [Mass.] 79 N. E. 342.

9. Nixon v. Malone [Tex. Civ. App.] 95 S. W. 577.

10. Defendant in action on note held to have waived his right to verify his answer so as to put in issue the execution of the note. Betz v. Wilson [Okl.] 87 P. 844.

11. Boyce v. Dumars, 99 N. Y. S. 769.

12. See 4 C. L. 1818.

13. Warner, Barnes & Co. v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 1.

14. Opposing armed forces in the field resulting in numerous engagements, treating captives as prisoners of war, the concession of belligerent rights, and the application of the laws of war to the conflicting forces, are facts sufficient to establish the existence of war. Conflict between the United States and the Filipinos subsequent to the ratification of the treaty with Spain held to constitute war. Warner, Barnes & Co. v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 1.

15. Galban & Co. v. U. S., 40 Ct. Cl. 495. See, also, Territories and Federal Possessions, 8 C. L. 2121.

16. See 4 C. L. 1819.

17. Schooner Maria, 40 Ct. Cl. 72.

18. The Ship Hiram, 41 Ct. Cl. 12.

19. Where a vessel was seized and upon an adverse decision by the French prize court the captors appealed, a compromise between competent [21] and sufficient evidence,[22] and the acts of the captors subsequent to the seizure must not have been such as to work a forfeiture.[23] Neither search nor seizure are necessarily illegal, the presumption being that the right of search followed by seizure were rights lawfully exercised.[24] The admissibility of evidence is determinable by the rules of law municipal and international and the treaties applicable thereto;[25] and where the decree of the French prize court was destroyed by fire, secondary evidence is admissible;[26] but a newspaper clipping published at the time is not admissible for that purpose,[27] nor is such a clipping admissible on an ancient writing to prove the illegality of the seizure by the French.[28] The record title to a ship and its cargo must control in the absence of evidence to the contrary,[29] and where the title to a vessel appears to have been in a firm and an individual, the presumption is that each owned an undivided half.[30] Where a vessel was seized in Swedish waters by the French, the United States has the right to present a claim for its wrongful seizure to Sweden, who owed the vessel protection or to France,[31] and the action of the master of the vessel, and a United States consul, in endeavoring to secure the intervention of Sweden to procure the restoration of the vessel was not an election to hold that government responsible;[32] but where a claim filed in the department of state by the owners shows a clear intention to hold Sweden, it will be considered an election,[33] and the claim being filed against Sweden and not against France will not by implication alone be held to have been one of the claims relinquished by the United States to France in consideration of the latter's relinquishment of its claims against the United States.[34] Rule 26 of the court of claims allowing persons having a common interest in a French spoliation claim to unite in one petition does not extend to an individual owner where a partnership title is set up in the petition,[35] and where such owner did not present his claim within the two years jurisidictional period, he cannot set up an adverse personal title under the partnership petition.[36]

WAREHOUSING AND DEPOSITS.

Definitions and elements.[37]—A carrier is usually held to become a warehouseman of goods which the consignee has failed to remove within a reasonable time,[38] the owners and the captors whereby in consideration of the payment of a certain sum the appeal was abandoned by the latter relieved France from liability. Schooner Maria, 40 Ct. Cl. 72.

20. The captor has a right to suppose that property consigned to a belligerent port is the property of a belligerent and hence subject to seizure. None of the papers on board the vessel showed the cargo to be the property of a citizen of the United States and not that of a British subject, the goods being consigned to a British port. Held a seizure by France was lawful. The Ship Hiram, 41 Ct. Cl. 12.

21. Where a vessel seized by a French privateer was recaptured by a British warship which proceeded against it by libel for salvage, the decree of English court of admiralty is not competent evidence against France except on the measure of damages. The Ship Hiram, 41 Ct. Cl. 12.

22. A ship's manifest being a mere declaration of a general character and a summary of what the cargo consists without showing the particulars is not sufficient evidence of the ownership of neutrality of the cargo. The Ship Hiram, 41 Ct. Cl. 12.

23. Where a prize master was placed on board a vessel with instructions to take it to a certain port in France, directions that if compelled to put into a port in Spain he was to choose the port of passage did not work a forfeiture of the right of detention. The Ship Hiram, 41 Ct. Cl. 12.

24. The Ship Hiram, 41 Ct. Cl. 12.

25, 26. The Brig Juno, 41 Ct. Cl. 106.

27. Clipping from a paper published in Boston in 1798 showing the seizure, that the captain's papers were in the hands of the privateersmen for some time, and that the role d'equipage was missing, is inadmissible. The Brig Juno, 41 Ct. Cl. 106.

28. The Brig Juno, 41 Ct. Cl. 106.

29, 30. Brig Sally, 41 Ct. Cl. 431.

31, 32. Schooner Reliance, 41 Ct. Cl. 67.

33. A claim after reciting the facts of the illegal seizure concluded: "We believe that according to the treaty between the King of Sweden and the United States it is in the power of our government under these circumstances to obtain satisfaction from the Swedish Government and are fully assured that the proper officers will readily surrender to us and to every injured citizen that assistance which they have the right to claim." Schooner Reliance, 41 Ct. Cl. 67.

34. Schooner Reliance, 41 Ct. Cl. 67.

35, 36. Brig Sally, 41 Ct. Cl. 431.

37. See 6 C. L. 1834.

38. Brunson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co.

though it is said in Georgia that the liability as warehousemen begins from the time the goods are put into the freight house at destination.[39] The landlord cannot by notice make himself a warehouseman as to goods left on the premises by a departing tenant.[40]

Licensing and public regulation.[41]—A railroad storing only goods uncalled for by the consignees is not subject to warehouseman's license law,[42] nor can such part of its business be segregated by a municipality not authorized to tax railroads.[43] The police power to regulate in the interest of purity and just weight of commodities extends to their regulation in storage,[44] but interstate commerce cannot be burdened under guise of such regulation.[45]

Warehouse receipts.[46]—Though statutes in many states make warehouse receipts negotiable,[47] such statutes not only carry all the exceptions relating to other negotiable instruments,[48] but are said not to annex to such negotiation all the consequences which follow the endorsement of a note.[49] Thus the warehouseman is not entitled to deliver without quesiton to anyone presenting the receipt,[50] and a custom to treat receipts as to bearer will not avail where the warehouseman had notice that the receipts were pledged to another.[51] A purchase of warehouse receipts for produce must take notice of a recorded crop mortgage given by the depositor.[52]

Contracts of warehousing in general.[53]—A warehouseman cannot by contract exempt himself from liability for his own negligence,[54] and an exemption in case value is not stated in the receipt is unavailing where the value is plainly marked on the goods.[55] A contract for storage in a particular room is broken by the warehouseman's removal of the goods to another room without the bailor's consent.[56] A

[S. C.] 56 S. E. 538; Kressin v. Central R. Co., 103 N. Y. S. 1002.

39. Kight v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 363.

40. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. v. Murphy [Miss.] 42 So. 288.

41. See 6 C. L. 1835.

42, 43. Town of Arlington v. Central of Georgia R. Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 1015.

44. The ordinance of the city of Chicago providing for the inspection of food products in storage and authorizing summary seizure and destruction of putrid, decayed, poisoned, and infected food is valid. Within the police power and hence not repugnant to the 14th amendment of the Federal constitution. North American Cold Storage Co. v. Chicago, 151 F. 120. The Wisconsin statutes of 1905, as amended, creating the Superior Grain & Warehouse Commission, have been held not to deny the equal protection of the laws (Globe El. Co. v. Andrew, 144 F. 871), nor to be violative of the Wisconsin constitution prohibiting the grant of corporate power by special act (Id.).

45. In so far as the Wisconsin act of 1905 requires all grain sold, delivered, stored, or reshipped, at Superior to be in accordance with the weights and grades established by the commission, it is void as a burden on interstate commerce. Globe El. Co. v. Andrew, 144 F. 871.

46. See 6 C. L. 1835.

47. Citizen's Bk. v. Arkansas Compress & Warehouse Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 997. In Tennessee warehause receipts are by statute placed on the same footing as negotiable instruments. National Bk. v. Chatfield, Woods & Co. [Tenn.] 100 S. W. 765.

48. Burden of proof held to be on bank as holder of warehouse receipt to show that it was holder in good faith without notice of fraud in purchase of the property. National Bk. v. Chatfield, Woods & Co. [Tenn.] 101 S. W. 765.

49. Citizen's Bk. v. Arkansas Compress & Warehouse Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 997.

50. A warehouseman is protected in taking up receipts issued by him in favor of a particular person only by delivering the property to the owner unless the owner consents to the use of the receipts by another. Citizens' Bk. v. Arkansas Compress & Warehouse Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 997. Evidence held to sustain finding that owners of receipts did not consent to their use by another in obtaining the property represented thereby from the warehouseman. Id. The fact that a warehouse receipt is made out in the name of a person other than the bailor is no justification for the warehouseman's delivery of the goods to the person named in the receipt unless the warehouseman is induced thereby to make such delivery. Evidence held to show that warehouseman was not induced by erroneous name in warehouse receipt to deliver goods to person other than the owner. Schroeder v. Reinhardt [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 538.

51. Warehouseman is by statute forbidden to remove or allow to be taken from him property for which he has given his receipt without the written assent of the person holding the receipt. Citizens' Bk. v. Arkansas Compress & Warehouse Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 997.

52. Haynes v. Gray & Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 615.

53. See 6 C. L. 1836.

54. Herzig v. New York Cold Storage Co., 100 N. Y. S. 603.

55. Gannon v. Seehorn [Wash.] 86 P. 1116.

56. McRae v. Hill, 126 Ill. App. 349.

warehouseman is estopped to deny the title of his bailors when no paramount title has intervened.[57]

Care and protection of goods stored.[58]—A warehouseman is bound to the exercise of due care,[59] and damage or loss casts on him the burden of explanation.[60] A warehouseman falsely representing the character of his building is liable for the damage caused by the deceit.[61] Where the right to compensation exists, the warehouseman cannot claim the status of a gratuitous bailee, until it has disclaimed the right to charge.[62] Where the depositor retains any rights of access and control, he must likewise exercise ordinary care.[63]

Insurance.[64]—An agreement to effect insurance on goods stored being incident to a contract for storage is within the apparent authority of an agent authorized to receive for storage.[65]

Damages.[66]—Where a bailor contracted for storage in a particular room, but his goods were without his consent removed to another room, and were subsequently destroyed by a fire, whilst had they remained in the room contracted for they would have been but slightly damaged, the fire and not the removal was the proximate cause of the loss,[67] and the warehouseman is not liable for the loss.[68] The general rules as to measure of damages apply.[69]

Charges and lien therefor.[70]—A carrier holding undelivered goods for the consignee is entitled to compensation [71] and lien [72] as a warehouseman, but a landlord cannot by notice make himself a warehouseman as to chattels left on the premises by a departing tenant so as to have a lien thereon.[73] A warehouseman cannot sell for charges until the expiration of a reasonable time, if no time is fixed by statute or contract,[74] and is usually required to give notice to the depositor if his address is known [75] of the time and place of sale. He may sell no more than is necessary

57. Barker v. Lewis Storage & Transfer Co. [Conn.] 65 A. 143.

58. See 6 C. L. 1836.

59. Brunson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 538. Railroad Company holding to await delivery. Kight v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 363. Whether warehouseman was guilty of negligence in failing to take proper care to prevent the destruction of his warehouse held a question for the jury. Clifford v. Universal Storage Warehouse & Exp. Co., 102 N. Y. S. 460. Evidence held to show exercise not only of ordinary care but extraordinary care as well by safe deposit company. Bauman v. National Safe Deposit Co., 124 Ill. App. 419.

60. Where plaintiffs in an action against a railroad for failure to deliver goods on arrival showed that they were the owners of the goods and that defendant failed to surrender to them the actual possession thereof after arrival at destination, it was then incumbent on defendant in order to escape liability as a warehouseman to show that it had exercised ordinary care. Brunson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 538. Evidence held insufficient to exculpate warehouseman. Herzig v. New York Cold Storage Co., 100 N. Y. S. 603.

61. Whether a warehouseman was guilty of deceit in falsely and fraudulently representing the warehouse to be a fireproof building, whereby plaintiff, the same believing, was induced to store his goods therein, held a question for the jury. Clifford v. Universal Storage Warehouse & Exp. Co., 102 N. Y. S. 460.

62. Carrier holding for consignee. Brunson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 538.

63. Whether plaintiff in action against a safe deposit company for loss of deposit exercised ordinary care in the premises held a question for the jury. Bauman v. National Safe Deposit Co., 124 Ill. App. 419.

64. See 2 C. L. 2031.

65. General Cartage & Storage Co. v. Cox, 74 Ohio St. 284, 78 N. E. 371.

66. See 4 C. L. 1822.

67, 68. McRae v. Hill, 126 Ill. App. 349.

69. See Damages, 7 C. L. 1029; Conversion as Tort, 7 C. L. 856.

70. See 6 C. L. 1837.

71. Brunson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. [S. C.] 56 S. E. 538.

72. In New York a carrier as to baggage of a passenger, who has taken his baggage with him on the trip and on arrival at his destination left it with the carrier is entitled to the benefit of the statute giving warehousemen a lien for storage. Kressin v. Central R. Co., 103 N. Y. S. 1002.

73. Brunswick-Balke Collender Co. v. Murphy [Miss.] 42 So. 288.

74. On undisputed facts the question whether a passenger has had a reasonable time to remove his baggage from the possession of a carrier on completion of the journey is one of law. Kressin v. Central R. Co., 103 N. Y. S. 1002. Evidence held to show that passenger had reasonable time to remove baggage. Id.

75. A statute requiring notice by a warehouseman to a bailor of the time and place of sale of goods for storage "if his address to pay the charges, and to that end he should furnish to prospective purchasers reasonable opportunity to examine the property.[78] Where the warehouseman acts also as factor, he may be entitled to commissions as such,[77] and whether he is chargeable with samples used for purposes of sale depends on statute or custom.[78]

Trover and conversion.[78]—Sale of more than is necessary to pay charges is a conversion as to the excess[80] and no demand is essential to the maintenance of trover.[81] Disclaimer of intention to claim for the conversion may work an estoppel if it induces one to act to his detriment.[82] An attempt by the depositor to purchase the goods of a third person into whose hands they have come does not affect his right against the warehouseman for conversion.[83] A warehouseman's admission of a joint delivery of the goods to him by plaintiff in trover for conversion thereof authorizes a joint recovery on proof of the conversion.[84] Plaintiff in trover against a warehouseman for the conversion of the goods need not aver ownership,[85] and an unnecessary averment thereof need not be proved.[86]

Actions and procedure.[87]—A trust company renting safe deposit boxes may, under the District of Columbia Code, be required to answer in attachment or garnishment proceedings as to whether it has such box rented in the name of the defendant,[88] or any alleged fraudulent transferee of the defendant.[88] In Georgia a petition for loss of goods by a gratuitous bailee must aver the particular facts constituting negligence to render it sufficient as against special demurrer, though it is otherwise as to a bailee for hire in a suit for failure to deliver the goods on demand.[91] A special contract or arrangement for warehousing must be pleaded.[92]

Crimes and penalties.[93]

WARRANT OF ATTORNEY; WARRANTS; WARRANTY, see latest topical index.

WASTE.[94]

Waste consists in any unauthorized act of one whose estate is less than of inheritance[95] which works injury to the inheritance,[96] and whether particular acts is known" means "if known or could be ascertained by reasonable inquiry." Ward v. Morr Tranfer & Storage Co., 119 Mo. App. 83, 95 S. W. 964. Evidence held insufficient to show knowledge of bailor's address by warehouseman at time of sale of goods for storage charges so as to require notice under Rev. St. 1899, § 10,571. Id.

76. Ward v. Morr Transfer & Storage Co., 119 Mo. App. 83, 95 S. W. 964.

77. In Kentucky a tobacco warehouse is entitled to commissions on sales of tobacco for its customers. Orr v. Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 457, 99 S. W. 225.

78. In Kentucky a tobacco warehouseman is not liable for the value of samples taken out of its customer's tobacco sold by it. Orr v. Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Co., 30 Ky. L. R. 457, 99 S. W. 225.

79. See 6 C. L. 1837.

80, 81. Ward v. Morr Transfer & Storage Co., 119 Mo. App. 83, 95 S. W. 964.

82. Whether plaintiff in an action to recover the value of goods delivered by warehouseman to deliver to a third person made statements such as to induce defendants to believe that he would not seek to recover the goods or their value from defendants held a question for the jury. Schroeder v. Reinhardt [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 538.

83. Schroeder v. Reinhardt [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 538.

84. Marriage relation of plaintiffs impertinent. Barker v. Lewis Storage & Transfer Co. [Conn.] 65 A. 143. The admission of a joint delivery carried with it an estoppel against a denial of a corresponding title and a concession of a joint right of action if any there was. Id.

85. The present right of possession is sufficient to sustain the action. Barker v. Lewis Storage & Transfer Co. [Conn.] 65 A. 143.

86. Barker v. Lewis Storage & Transfer Co. [Conn.] 65 A. 143.

87. See 6 C. L. 1838.

88. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Susquehanna Coal Co., 26 App. D. C. 149.

89. His wife or son. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Susquehanna Coal Co., 26 App. D. C. 149.

90. Petition held subject to special demurrer on the ground that it failed to set forth any act of negligence. Kight v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 363.

91. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 2930. Kight v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 363.

92. Barker v. Lewis Storage & Transfer Co. [Conn.] 65 A. 143.

93. See 6 C. L. 1838.

94. See 6 C. L. 1838.

95. Tenant for years, no matter how long his term, may not commit waste. Moss Point Lumber Co. v. Harrison County Sup'rs constitute such an injury is to be determined according to conditions at the time of their commission.[97] Likewise, it has been held that a remainderman is liable for cutting of trees where the life tenant's right of estovers is thereby impaired.[98] By statute in many states, and in some independently of statute,[99] a tenant in common may recover against his cotenant for waste.[1] There is some conflict as to whether the provision of the statute of Gloucester forfeiting life estates for waste is in force as part of the common law,[2] but such rule in a modified form has been enacted in many states.[3] The remedy is either by injunction, which will lie though the damage is not irreparable,[4] or by action for damages the measure thereof being the difference in value of the premises before and after the waste.[5]

Instruction that "detriment to land" might be recovered is not misleading, though the waste complained of consisted in removal of fixture.[6] The owner of a contingent interest may enjoin waste but cannot recover damages.[7] Equity will not take cognizance to prevent waste by an executor, the remedy being by proceedings for his removal.[8] On a bill to foreclose, recovery may be had for waste by the mortgagor's receiver.[9] An action by a devisee to enjoin waste is not one for the construction of the will, and a copy thereof need not be set out.[10]

WATERS AND WATER SUPPLY.

§ 1. Definition and Kinds of Waters (2263).
§ 2. Sovereignty Over Waters and Lands Beneath (2263).
§ 3. Rights in Natural Watercourses (2264). Interference and Obstruction (2265). Nuisance and Pollution (2267). Diversion (2268). Bridges and Culverts (2269).
§ 4. Rights in Lakes and Ponds (2270).
§ 5. Rights in Subterranean and Percolating Waters (2270).
§ 6. Rights in Tide Waters (2271).
§ 7. Rights in Artificial Waters (2271).
§ 8. Ice (2271).
§ 9. Surface Waters and Drainage or Reclamation (2271). Common-Law Rule (2271). Civil-Law Rule (2272). Railroad Companies (2273). A Landowner Has No Right to Collect Surface Water in a Body (2274). Storm Sewers (2275).
§ 10. Lands Under Water (2275).
§ 11. Levees, Drainage, and Reclamation (2275).
§ 12. Milling and Power and Other Nonconsuming Privileges; Dams, Canals, and Races (2276).
§ 13. Irrigation and Water Supply; Common-Law Rights and the Doctrine of Appropriation (2278).
A. Rights in the Water (2278). Common-Law Rule (2278). An Appropriation (2279). What May Be Appropriated (2279). Method of Appropriating (2280). Right to Sup-

[Miss.] 42 So. 290, 873. Removal of timber by a life tenant is waste. McCartney v. Titsworth, 104 N. Y. S. 45. Cutting of timber by life tenant who was also executrix held waste. Linzy v. Whitney, 110 App. Div. 462, 96 N. Y. S. 1075. Failure of life tenant to keep up taxes is waste. Magness v. Harris [Ark.] 98 S. W. 362.

96. Moss Point Lumber Co. v. Harrison County Sup'rs [Miss.] 42 So. 290, 873, discussing at great length the common law of waste.

97. Cutting of timber for commercial purposes by tenant for 99 years held waste. Moss Point Lumber Co. v. Harrison County Sup'rs [Miss.] 42 So. 290, 873.

98. Cutting of timber needed for current repairs. Brugh v. Denman [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 349.

99. See Tiffany, Real Prop. p. 579.

1. Sinking of oil or gas well by tenant in common is waste for which recovery may be had in West Virginia under Code 1906, § 3390. Dangerfield v. Caldwell [C. C. A.] 151 F. 554.

2. Magness v. Harris [Ark.] 98 S. W. 362. See, also, as to operation of other provisions of such statute. Moss Point Lumber Co. v. Harrison County Sup'rs [Miss.] 42 So. 290, 873.

3. Kirby's Dig. § 7132, forfeiting life estates if the land is allowed to be sold for taxes and is not redeemed in one year, superseded the common law. Magness v. Harris [Ark.] 98 S. W. 362. Under the New York statute where waste by a life tenant exceeds the value of the life estate, forfeiture is properly ordered. Code Civ. Proc. § 1655. McCartney v. Titsworth, 104 N. Y. S. 45.

4. Brigham v. Overstreet [Ga.] 57 S. E. 484.

5. McCartney v. Titsworth, 104 N. Y. S. 45. The measure of damage to a mortgage is the diminution of the security measured by value at time of sale on foreclosure as compared with value at such time had waste not been committed. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Guild [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 694. Evidence held to show diminution of security by removal of fixtures. Id. Not the price received for what was removed, nor the cost of replacing it. Id.

6. Erbes v. Smith [Mont.] 88 P. 568.

7. Pavkovich v. Southern Pac. R. Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 1097.

8. Clark v. Peck [Vt.] 65 A. 14.

9. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Guild [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 694.

10. Cross v. Hendry [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 531.

ply From Water Companies (2281). Limit, Measure, and Extent of Right (2282). A Water Right May be Acquired by Adverse User or Prescription (2285). The Right of Appropriation Can be Lost Only by Abandonment or Adverse Possession (2285).
B. Right in Ditches and Canals (2285).
C. Remedies and Procedure (2287).
§ 14. Irrigation Districts and Irrigation and Power Companies (2289).
§ 15. Water Companies and Water Supply Districts (2290). Water Companies (2290). Water Franchises (2291). Water Boards and Districts (2292). Public Ownership (2292). Contract for Public Supply (2294).
§ 16. Water Service and Rates (2295). Service Contracts (2295). Injuries From Deficient Supply or Equipment, and Negligence (2296). Rules and Regulations of Service (2296). Water Rates (2296).
§ 17. Grants, Contracts and Licenses (2298).
§ 18. Torts Relating to Waters (2300). Damages (2300).
§ 19. Crimes and Offenses Relating to Waters (2301).

The scope of this topic [11] includes the general law of waters and the use and supply thereof except as other topics below cited [12] cover necessary exclusions.

§ 1. Definition and kinds of waters.[13]—The elements of a watercourse are well defined banks,[14] an obvious bed or channel,[15] and a permanent source of supply,[16] but great age [17] and length are not essential, nor is the outlet of controlling importance.[18]

§ 2. Sovereignty over waters and lands beneath.[19]—The use of water in navigable streams is subject to legislative control [20] in states where the common-law doctrine of riparian rights has been abrogated and the doctrine of appropriation introduced.[21] The control of fresh water running in streams and in lakes and ponds having outlet in streams subject to the interests of riparian owners, resides

11. See 6 C. L. 1840.

12. See Bridges, 7 C. L. 460; Ferries, 7 C. L. 1655; Navigable Waters, 8 C. L. 1083; Shipping and Water Traffic, 8 C. L. 1903. Wharves, 6 C. L. 1879.

13. See 6 C. L. 1840.

14. Where water runs in a well defined channel, with bed and banks, made by the force of the water, and has a permanent source of supply, it is to be regarded as a natural watercourse though small and short. Rait v. Furrow [Kan.] 85 P. 934. The overflow waters of a stream, especially where they run in a well defined course and reunite with the stream at a lower point, must be regarded as part of the watercourse and not as surface waters. Brinegar v. Copass [Neb.] 109 N. W. 173. Whether a slough was a natural watercourse, held for the jury. Webb v. Carter [Mo. App.] 98 S. W. 776. Pleading for obstructing a slough alleging that it was a swale or ditch which received overflow water from a creek held insufficient to raise an issue as to whether it was a natural watercourse. Id. In an action to enjoin construction of certain dikes, evidence held sufficient to show that certain sloughs which constituted a natural watercourse had sufficient capacity to carry the water off. Wills v. Babb, 222 Ill. 95, 78 N. E. 42. Where water flowed through a slough having well defined banks, such slough constituted a watercourse though at some points the channel spread out and the water was quite shallow. Cederburg v. Dutra [Cal. App.] 86 P. 838.

15. In its more restrictive sense a "watercourse" is such a waterway as gives rise to riparian rights in the flow of water, and excludes a depression which merely carries water in rainy seasons. St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal R. Ass'n Co. v. Schultz, 226 Ill. 409, 80 N. E. 879. Land forming part of a wide bottom extending between higher lands on either side of a stream and underlaid by a flow which is part of a surface stream is not a part of the bed of the stream, nor is it nonriparian where it has been irrigated for several years. Anaheim Union Water Co. v. Fuller [Cal.] 88 P. 978. A depression or slough separating an island from the Mississippi River so that in time of high water it became an arm of the river is a natural watercourse. St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal R. Ass'n Co. v. Schultz, 226 Ill. 409, 80 N. E. 879.

16. The source of supply may be springs, surface water, or a pond, but whatever the source, if it has an element of permanence, it becomes a natural watercourse where it flows in a well defined channel. Rait v. Furrow [Kan.] 85 P. 934.

17. While the element of permanence is necessary, great age is not an essential attribute. Rait v. Furrow [Kan.] 85 P. 934.

18. A stream may be a natural watercourse though its outlet be over the unchannelled surface of low land and not into another watercourse. Rait v. Furrow [Kan.] 85 P. 934.

19. See 6 C. L. 1841.

20. Under the Mexican Laws the use of water of navigable streams was subject to legislative control which right was transferred to the United States, which could confer upon one holding under a Mexican grant common-law riparian rights or might establish the doctrine of appropriation. Boquillas Land & Cattle Co. v. Curtis [Ariz.] 89 P. 504.

21. The common doctrine that only riparian owners may divert water from a stream for irrigation purposes is repugnant to the statutes of Arizona and was not adopted by that state. Boquillas Land & Cattle Co. v. Curtis [Ariz.] 89 P. 504. If the provision of the Arizona Code adopting the common law could be construed as adopting the common-law doctrine of riparian rights, any right granted by the statute was not intended to become property in the sense that it could not be abrogated by statute before use was made of the water. Id.

in the state for the benefit of the people, and the legislature may prohibit the abstraction of such water saving for riparian uses and for authorized purposes.[22] The legislative policy of New Jersey is to preserve and administer water rights for the benefit of people of the state to whom by right of proximity and sovereignty they naturally belong.[23] The state or people of New York have no inherent right to withdraw a supply of water from New Jersey by artificial means.[24] The state may authorize improvement of a stream.[25] The legislature cannot impress on a nonnavigable stream the character of navigability.[26]

§ 3. Rights in natural watercourses.[27]—A riparian proprietor is entitled to the natural and unobstructed flow of the stream,[28] unimpaired in quantity[29] or quality[30] except by reasonable use by upper proprietors, but he has no property rights in the water itself.[31] The primary right of each proprietor to the natural flow of the stream is modified by the right of every proprietor to make reasonable use of it.[32] What is a reasonable use depends on the nature of the stream, the customs and uses of the community, and other surrounding circumstances.[33] The

22. Act May 11, 1905, forbidding transportation of such water, does not violate the commerce clause of the Federal constitution. McCarter v. Hudson County Water Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 489. Act May 11, 1905, making it unlawful for any person or corporation to transport through pipes the water of fresh water lakes or streams to a point outside the state, is constitutional. Id. Lakes and ponds covering more than ten acres are "great ponds" under the ownership and control of the state for the benefit of the public. The state can authorize division of their waters for public purposes without providing compensation to riparian owners. American Woolen Co. v. Kennebec Water Dist. [Me.] 66 A. 316. Where the state grants such authority the grantee may commence diversion of water at once, and such diversion will not be enjoined though no provision has been made for compensating riparian owners. Id.

23. McCarter v. Hudson County Water Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 489. The general corporation act of 1896 does not authorize the incorporation of companies for the purpose of diverting water from the streams and storing and selling it. Id. A charter granted under the general corporations laws of a state for the purpose of damming rivers, and storing, transporting, and selling water, does not authorize the depletion of streams of the state for the purpose of conveying water beyond its borders. Id. If such right was acquired under such laws it was repealed by the act of May 11, 1905. Id.

24. McCarter v. Hudson County Water Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 489.

25. Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. § 938, authorizing cities of the third class to improve rivers flowing through or adjoining the same, authorizes condemnation of land within or without corporate limits for the purpose of straightening a stream. City of Puyallup v. Lacey [Wash.] 86 P. 215. Under Rev. St. 1887, § 5210, the power of eminent domain may be exercised for the purpose of improving the floatability of streams. Potlatch Lumber Co. v. Peterson [Idaho] 88 P. 426.

26. Potlatch Lumber Co. v. Peterson [Idaho] 88 P. 426.

27. See 6 C. L. 1841.

28. A riparian owner has a right to reasonably use the water of a stream, but he cannot deprive his coriparian owners of like use. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423. Where an upper owner constructs a reservoir for use during the dry season, the additional quantity which comes during the day in the in the dry season is to be regarded as part of the natural flow as to a lower owner, but the owner of the reservoir is not required to hold back water during the night so that lower owners may use it next day. Mason v. Whitney [Mass.] 78 N. E. 881.

29. A riparian owner may have wrongful diversion of the water of the stream enjoined though plenty remains for his own use. Anaheim Union Water Co. v. Fuller [Cal.] 88 P. 978. Such relief will be granted to prevent the use from ripening into a right. Id. A lower owner has the right to the natural flow of a stream which originates on the land of an upper owner, and the latter has no right to deprive him of such flow in the absence of prior appropriation. May not divert the water from a stream by an irrigation ditch which is so porous that none of the water is returned to the stream. Nielson v. Sponer [Wash.] 89 P. 155.

30. A riparian owner is entitled to the natural and unpolluted flow of the stream. City of Durham v. Eno Cotton Mills, 141 N. C. 615, 54 S. E. 453. A riparian proprietor is entitled to the natural flow of the stream, unimpaired in quality except by reasonable use. Brown v. Gold Coin Min. Co. [Or.] 86 P. 361. See post, this section, Nuisance and Pollution.

31. Limited to reasonable use of the water. City of Durham v. Eno Cotton Mills, 141 N. C. 615, 54 S. E. 453.

32. Mason v. Whitney [Mass.] 78 N. E. 881 The fact that reasonable use by an upper owner leaves the flow of the stream more beneficial to those on the stream below may be considered in determining what is a reasonable use for an intermediate owner in reference to those further down. Id. The rights of lower owners against an upper owner are not enlarged by their suing jointly the upper owner, and the question as to each lower owner is whether the upper owner is making a reasonable use of the water. Id.

33. Each riparian proprietor has the right to a reasonable use of the stream determined by a consideration of its nature, the several legislature has no power to deprive a riparian owner of his rights.[34] He may lose them by prescription [35] but not by mere disuse.[36]

Only owners of land which is riparian are entitled to riparian privileges,[37] and land once divested of its riparian character cannot again be invested with it.[38] The state as owner of the bed of a navigable stream is entitled to riparian rights.[39] Indians never had riparian rights, and one claiming under them acquires none as against prior appropriators.[40]

Interference and obstruction.[41]—A lower riparian proprietor may not obstruct the flow of the stream to the injury of an upper proprietor.[42] Nor may he con-mill privileges, the wants of the community, the customs and usages of the people and hours of labor; and the fact that owners have for many years used water in a certain way does not enlarge the right. Mason v. Whitney [Mass.] 78 N. E. 881. Where use of a proprietor's reservoir on a stream was a part of his use of the stream, his entire use should be considered in determining its effect on the natural flow of the stream to lower proprietors. Id. Riparian proprietors may divert water from its channel for any lawful use provided it is not unreasonably detained, does not overflow land of an upper owner, and is returned to its channel in substantially the same condition before it reaches the land of the next lower owner. Roberts v. Claremont R. & Lighting Co. [N. H.] 66 A. 485. The reasonableness of the detention of running water by dams by a riparian proprietor depends on the nature and size of the stream as well as the use to which it is subservient. A use followed by detention which would be reasonable in a pond which would fill in one day would not be reasonable in one where it would take days or months to fill. Oakland Woolen Co. v. Union Gas & Elec. Co., 101 Me. 198, 63 A. 915.

Held reasonable: Use for mill power. Henderson Estate Co. v. Carroll Elec. Co., 99 N. Y. S. 365.

Use during the nighttime of water stored in a reservoir, held not unreasonable. Mason v. Whitney [Mass.] 78 N. E. 881. It is not unreasonable to use the water during the nighttime so long as the nautral flow is not interfered with during the daytime. Id. It is not unreasonable for a mill owner, though water above him is used during the day, to use a part of it in his business at night if he leaves as much as the natural flow of the stream pass during the day. Id.

34. 1 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 4114, providing that one on whose lands spring or seepage water rises has a prior right to its use, is unconstitutional in so far as it affects rights of a lower riparian owner to the use of the water of the stream. Nielson v. Sponer [Wash.] 89 P. 144.

35. Evidence insufficient to show that one had acquired the right to use all the water of a stream by adverse user. Burson v. Percy [Neb.] 110 N. W. 544. The right of a riparian owner to the natural flow of the stream may be lost by prescription. Marshall Ice Co. v. La Plant [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1016.

36. A riparian right to use the water of a stream is not acquired nor lost by mere disuse. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338. The fact that lower owners have enjoyed for many years the gratuitous benefit of an upper owner's dam does not give them a right to future use. Mason v. Whitney [Mass.] 78 N. E. 881.

37. Land not within the watershed of a stream is not riparian thereto though it may be part of an entire tract which does extend to the stream. Anaheim Union Water Co. v. Fuller [Cal.] 88 P. 978. The fact that land lies contiguous to a subterranean flow connected with the surface stream does not give riparian rights in the surface stream. Id. A city located seven miles from a stream, from which a portion of its water supply was taken by a water company, but owning no land abutting on the stream, is not a riparian owner. City of Durham v. Eno Cotton Mills, 141 N. C. 615, 54 S. E. 453. Where two streams unite, each is considered as a separate stream in so far as concerns riparian rights of lands abutting thereon above the junction, and land lying within the watershed of one stream above the junction is not riparian to the other though both lie in one drainage basin and are separated only by low tableland. Anaheim Union Water Co. v. Fuller [Cal.] 88 P. 978.

38. Where an owner of land abutting on a stream conveys the portion not contiguous to the stream, he thereby deprives such portion of riparian rights which can never be regained though it is subsequently purchased by the person who owns the portion adjacent to the stream. Anaheim Union Water Co. v. Fuller [Cal.] 88 P. 978.

39. The state of New Jersey, as owner of the bed of Passaic River where flowed by the tide, has a proprietary right to the continued flow of the stream paramount to the rights of upper riparian owners to withdraw water except for riparian uses. McCarter v. Hudson County Water Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 489.

40. Appropriations can be made of water running through a reservation, which rights are superior to rights of persons who subsequently become riparian owners. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423.

41. See 6 C. L. 1843.

42. One may not obstruct the flood channel of a river by a dam which throws water back and breaks another dam which has been constructed by another owner to keep waters off his land. Clark v. Patapsco Guano Co. [N. C.] 56 S. E. 858. Where the act of one in constructing a dam across the flood channel of a stream concurs with other causes in producing an injury, he is liable as though it was the sole cause. Id. On the question of whether the construction of one dam was the cause of the breaking of another, evidence that it had never broken before such later dam was constructed is struct dams in such manner as to turn the current of the stream against another owner's bank.[43] But an upper owner may by his acts be estopped to object to the maintenance of a dam,[44] and precluded from obtaining injunctive relief.[45] The right to maintain a dam and flood lands of an upper proprietor may be acquired by prescription.[46] One who asserts a prescriptive right to flow lands has the burden to prove it.[47] In many states it is provided by statute that railroad companies in constructing their roadbeds provide sufficient drainage facilities[48] and are liable for obstructing a watercourse, regardless of the question of negligence.[49]

admissible. Id. Where a lower owner erects a dam which backs water and debris upon the premises of an upper proprietor and prevents him from discharging debris from his mine into the stream, he may enjoin maintenance of the dam. Kane v. Littlefield [Or.] 86 P. 544. Where a railroad in constructing its roadbed along a canal tore down the tow path and constructed an embankment with the dirt. The embankment narrowed the canalbed near where a stream entered but provision was made to care for the stream, a freshet occurred and the bank gave way and flooded lands. Held, the company was not liable as the injury resulted from a lawful use of his own property. Gordon v. Ellenville & K. R. Co., 104 N. Y. S. 702. Damages may be recovered for the obstruction of a natural watercourse regardless of the care with which the work was done. Webb v. Carter [Mo. App.] 98 S. W. 776. The mere establishment of a ditch through a channel between a shore and an island which did not make the place a channel of the river gives no right to erect a dam in the other channel to the injury of upper riparian owners. Mindnich v. Kline [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 86. Whether a roadbed was negligently constructed, held a question for the jury. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Saunders [Ark.] 94 S. W. 709. An ordinance under which a street railway constructed its tracks required it to provide for the flow of water under the same. The company built its road across a depression without putting in a culvert and this forced more water into a creek which passed under a bridge which partially obstructed the flow in the creek. It was further obstructed by brush and dirt, and during a heavy rain overflowed and damaged a building. Held, the company was liable as it having altered the flow of water it was bound to see that the creek was not further obstructed. Ft. Smith Light & Trac. Co. v. Soard [Ark.] 96 S. W. 121. A purchaser of the railroad assumed the burden of complying with the ordinance and was bound to see that the proper openings had been constructed and that they were not allowed to become obstructed. Id. Where in constructing an embankment over a stream sufficient culverts were not put in, the fact that the embankment had afforded protection to the land prior to the time the plaintiff purchased it, and that he relied on the fact that it would continue to do so, would not defeat his right to recover for injuries to his crops resulting from negligence in the construction of the embankment. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Dickson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 51, 93 S. W. 481. Under Rev. St. 1887, § 835, the construction of any boom or dam in any creek or river that will unreasonably delay or hinder floating of timber down the same is prohibited. Potlatch Lumber Co. v. Peterson [Idaho] 88 P. 426. Obstruction of natural watercourse gives right of action without regard to the source from which the waters therein came. Slough collecting surface water and flowing it into stream. St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal R. Co. v. Schultz, 126 Ill. App. 552.

43. Where a riparian owner's land was washed away by deflection of water by wing dams erected by an opposite owner, successive actions may be maintained for successive injuries. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Mosely [Ind. T.] 98 S. W. 129. Where land of a reparian owner was washed away because of the erection of wing dams by the opposite owner, interest may be recovered on the amount of damages from date. Id. Where a railroad company obtained the right from an owner to construct jetties into the river and after the channel of a river was changed by a freshet constructed another jetty, the effect of which was to cause the water to flow against the land of the licensor at right angles. Held, the jetty was an unlawful obstruction which could be abated. Morton v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Or.] 87 P. 151. The order for abatement could be modified where it appeared that demolition of the entire jetty was unnecessary. Id.

44. An upper owner who acquiesces in the building of a dam by a lower owner, and states to such owner that he will "wait and see" what he would do in case of overflow, is estopped to enjoin the maintenance of the dam which would result in stopping operation of manufacturing plants. Andrus v. Berkshire Power Co. [C. C. A.] 145 F. 47.

45. Where an upper owner made no objection to the erection of a dam below his property but refused to discuss the amount of damages until after the dam had been built and they could ascertain the extent of injury, and the dam was completed without notice that he intended to enjoin its construction, held that his acts amounted to an election to accept damages for injuries sustained and was not entitled to an injunction. Andrus v. Berkshire Power Co. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 76.

46. A prescriptive right to flood lands is acquired only where they have been flooded for the limitation period adversely with the knowledge of the owner. Wills v. Babb 222 Ill. 95, 78 N. E. 42. A mere notice of an upper by a lower owner of a claim to maintain a dam at a certain height, or even actual maintenance at such height, does not give a prescriptive right; limitations run only from the commencement of overflow. Dutton v. Stoughton [Vt.] 65 A. 91.

47. Dutton v. Stoughton [Vt.] 65 A. 91. Evidence insufficient to show that one owner had acquired a prescriptive right to have the flood waters of a stream flow over the land of another person. Wills v. Babb, 222 Ill. 95, 78 N. E. 42.

Nuisance and pollution.[50]—An upper owner may not deposit in a stream refuse matter which renders the water unfit for domestic uses by a lower proprietor.[51] This rule applies to municipal corporations which deposit sewage in a stream,[52] unless they do so by virtue of statutory authority.[53] The pollution of a watercourse may be enjoined by a lower owner[54] though he sustains no injury because of such pollution,[55] and though the pollution does not amount to a nuisance;[56] and an action for damages may be maintained for injury suffered.[57] An injunction

48. See post, § 9, Surface Waters and Drainage or Reclamation.

49. Under Rev. St. 1895, Arts. 4426, 4436, the obstruction of a watercourse by a railroad embankment is unlawful per se, and negligence in the work need not be shown. International etc., R. Co. v. Walker [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 268, 97 S. W. 1081.

50. See 6 C. L. 1844.

51. The upper proprietor may not discharge into a natural drain the waste oil and salt water proceeding from wells sunk on his premises. McFarlain v. Jennings-Heywood Oil Syndicate [La.] 43 So. 155. A riparian proprietor has no right to pollute the water and make it unfit for domestic use by a lower owner. Parker v. American Woolen Co. [Mass.] 81 N. E. 468. Where the upper owner divests the mixed oil and water into a natural drain closed by a dam, for the purpose of saving the oil, it is liable for damages caused by the escape of oil and salt water over or through the dam. Id. Where a mine owner deposited polluted water in a ditch from which it flowed naturally into a stream, and rendered the water of the stream unfit for domestic use, and injurious to the boilers of the mill of a lower owner, he was liable for damages caused though such disposal of the water was essential to the operation of his mine. Bowling Coal Co. v. Ruffner [Tenn.] 100 S. W. 116. A mining company which deposits refuse into a stream, which is carried by the water onto the land of a lower owner to his damage, is liable. Day v. Louisville Coal & Coke Co. [W. Va.] 53 S. E. 776. Such cause of action accrues at the time the material is deposited on the land. Id. Where refuse was deposited in a canal, the water of which was discharged into a river the unnecessary discharge of the water from the canal into the river and not the deposit of refuse into the canal was the proximate cause of the pollution of the waters of the river. Morris Canal & Banking Co. v. Diamond Mills Paper Co. [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 746. The injury to a lower owner, caused by an upper owner's acts in depositing refuse in the stream, is to the possession; but an allegation of ownership and permanent injury to the fee does not render the complaint demurrable. Tutwiler Coal, Coke & Iron Co. v. Wheeler [Ala.] 43 So. 15. In an action for damages for pollution of a stream, a release of other damages than those claimed is not admissible. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Moers [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 400, 97 S. W. 1064. Evidence held sufficient to show pollution of stream by dumping residuum from stone quarry. Bricker v. Conemaugh Stone Co., 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 283.

52. A municipal corporation which deposits sewage in a stream and creates a nuisance which injures a lower riparian owner is liable in damages. Markwardt v. Guthrie [Okl.] 90 P. 26. The use by a city of a sewer emptying into a creek, for sewage purposes, as distinguished from the draining of surface water, even in a slight degree, would be in derogation of the rights of an abutting landowner whose property would be traversed by the stream into which the sewer empties; and unless the right has been acquired by appropriation, such use may be enjoined by a landowner thus situated without waiting until the threatened injury has resulted in material damage. Whitney v. Toledo, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 577. Evidence that there had been numerous cases of typhoid fever in a building, the drainage of which was conducted into the filtration beds, was admissible in connection with evidence that the stream continued to be contaminated after the filter was installed. Gorham v. New Haven [Conn.] 66 A. 505. An action against a county for polluting a stream by constructing a dam whereby cattle became infected with a disease held to state no cause of action against the county. Howard v. Bibb County [Ga.] 56 S. E. 418. Pollution caused by leakage of sewer pipe held negligent. Connolly v. New York, 100 N. Y. S. 673.

53. Chapter 41, Laws 1899, authorizing the board of health to enjoin the pollution of potable waters, was repealed by Laws 1900, c. 73, in cases where pollution occurs by reason of operation of a municipal sewer system. Board of Health of New Jersey v. Vineland [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 174.

54. A lower riparian owner may sue to enjoin several upper proprietors acting independently from polluting a stream where the acts of all concurred in creating a nuisance. Warren v. Parkhurst, 186 N. Y. 45, 78 N. E. 579. An injunction restraining pollution of a watercourse will not be denied because other causes contributed to the pollution. Parker v. American Woolen Co. [Mass.] 81 N. E. 468. Nor because of the magnitude of defendant's business and importance of his interests. Id.

55. Where an upper proprietor pollutes the waters of a stream, a lower owner was entitled to enjoin such act in order to prevent the acquisition of a prescriptive right, though such pollution did not interfere with any use to which he put the water. Parker v. American Woolen Co. [Mass.] 81 N. E. 468.

56. The pollution of streams is sometimes enjoined, when the pollution does not constitute a nuisance, to prevent the acquisition of an adverse right. Kenilworth Sanitarium v. Kenilworth, 220 Ill. 264, 77 N. E. 226.

57. A complaint for pollution of a stream which states fully and concisely the nature and amount of damage, and that it was caused by the unlawful and negligent acts of a party, is sufficient. Hill v. Standard Min. Co. [Idaho] 85 P. 907. One who purchases riparian land with knowledge that the stream was polluted by sewage is not pendente lite will not issue when it appears that no material injury is being suffered, and that the evil is about to be abated.[58] The state may in the exercise of the police power prohibit the discharge of sewage into a stream from which a public supply of drinking water is taken.[59] A lower owner may be estopped to object to the pollution of a stream,[60] but the fact that he also deposits refuse material into it or is negligent is no defense.[61] An action for polluting a stream must be commenced within the limitation period.[62] All actual damages sustained may be recovered [63] and punitive damages may be.[64]

Diversion.[65]—The common law recognizes no right in the riparian owner, as such, to divert water from the stream for mercantile purposes.[66] Co-owners of a estopped from suing therefor. Virgina Hot Springs Co. v. Grose [Va.] 56 S. E. 222.

58. Where a city was sued for polluting a watercourse by draining sewage into it, an injunction pendente lite would not be awarded where it appeared that the sewage was not overtaxing the stream, and that the city had nearly completed a sewer system which would prevent drainage into the stream. Penfield v. New York, 101 N. Y. S. 442. Evidence insufficient to warrant the granting of an injunction pendente lite in an action to restrain pollution of a stream where it did not clearly appear that the water was polluted at the intake pipe of the plaintiff. City of Durham v. Eno Cotton Mills, 141 N. C. 615, 54 S. E. 453.

59. A statute prohibiting the discharge of sewage into any stream from which a public supply of drinking water is taken without reference to the distance from the place of such discharge to the place of intake is a valid exercise of the police power, and not a deprivation of property of a riparian owner without due process. City of Durham v. Eno Cotton Mills, 141 N. C. 615, 64 S. E. 453. Laws 1903, c. 159, providing that water companies which take their supply from lakes or small streams not more than fifteen miles long shall provide for specified sanitary inspection, and that sewage shall not be discharged into any river from which a public supply of drinking water is taken unless it shall have passed through some system of sewage purification, held, the latter provision prohibited the discharge of sewage into such a stream above the point of intake regardless of distance therefrom. Id. Dyestuff and feculent matter from open waterclosets washed into a river by surface drainage do not constitute sewage, within Revisal 1905, § 3051, prohibiting discharge of sewage into a stream from which a public supply of drinking water is taken. Id. Injunction will not issue to enjoin such deposit unless it appears that water was contaminated at the point of intake. Id.

60. Where a lower owner was employed in an upper owner's quartz mill and made no objection to his preparations for dumping tarling into the stream, held to estop him from restraining such deposit. Brown v. Gold Coin Min. Co. [Or.] 86 P. 361. A plea that one was estopped by his acquiescence in the construction of a sewer system which polluted a stream from maintaining action which fails to allege duty on his part to interpose objection is bad. Virginia Hot Springs Co. v. McCray [Va.] 56 S. E. 216.

61. Where an upper proprietor pollutes a stream by depositing refuse in it, the fact that the lower owner has also cast foul matter into the stream during the same period is no defense to his recovery against the upper owner for the injury occasioned by his acts. Bowman v. Humphrey [Iowa] 109 N. W. 714. A city which discharges sewage into a stream without statutory authority is liable to a lower riparian owner who suffers material injury regardless of the care exercised or the contributory negligence of the lower owner. Vogt v. Grinnell [Iowa] 110 N. W. 603. All damages sustained for the five years preceeding the action could be recovered. Id. Contributory negligence of the lower owner is no defense to his action for the pollution of the stream by an upper owner. Vogt v. Grinnell [Iowa] 110 N. W. 603.

62. One who sues for injuries incurred because of pollution of a watercourse by sewage, which nuisance was created more than the limitation period before action brought cannot avoid the bar of the statute by asserting that he did not discover the character of the injury, nor its cause, within the period. Virginia Hot Springs Co. v. McCray [Va.] 56 S. E. 216. A plea of limitations. In an action for polluting a stream by depositing sewage therein, which alleges that the sewer system was established at great cost, that its use was indispensable to the enjoyment of the defendant's property, and that it had been constructed for more than the statutory period, warrants a finding that the injury was permanent from the date of construction. Id. A plea of limitations, in an action for polluting a stream by depositing sewage therein, that it had existed for five years, the sewer system had been constructed at great cost, held proper as raising the issue as to whether the injury was of a permanent character, resulting from a permanent structure. Id. A verbal protest against discharging refuse into a canal is insufficient to arrest limitations for the purposing of acquiring such right by prescription. Morris Canal & Banking Co. v. Diamond Mills Paper Co. [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 746.

63. In an action for polluting a stream, evidence of the extent of the dairy business of the person injured was held admissible on the question of damages. Gorham v. New Haven [Conn.] 66 A. 505.

64. In an action for pollution of a watercourse, the record of a former injunction suit brought to restrain the same acts, and the judge's testimony respecting the efficiency of certain filters installed after commencement of the first action, were admissible on the question of punitive damages. Gorham v. New Haven [Conn.] 66 A. 505.

65. See 6 C. L. 1846.

66. McCarter v. Hudson County Water right to divert water from a stream may have it divided and their share assigned in severalty where such partition is possible.[67] The diversion of a water course from its channel and causing its waters to flood adjacent property is a tort for which the person whose property is injured may recover.[68] A watercourse may be diverted when so authorized by statute.[69] Where a freshet caused a stream to form a new channel, a riparian owner may within a reasonable time restore the flow to its original bed.[70]

Bridges and culverts.[71]—A railroad company in constructing its embankment across streams must construct bridges and culverts sufficient to accommodate the waters which flow through them at ordinary flood or high water,[72] and in some states

Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 489. This rule is not changed by statutes in New Jersey except for a limited class of purposes beneficial to the public. Id.

67. Roberts v. Claremont R. & Lighting Co. [N. H.] 66 A. 485. Where, in an action by a riparian proprietor to enjoin his co-owner of the right to use the water of a stream and to have the extent of his right determined, the other party filed a petition for partition and it was determined that the latter had received a certain benefit from the use of the former's right, he was bound to account for it at such price. Id.

68. Where a railroad company digs a ditch along its right of way leading into a creek, and, in times of high water, water from the creek flows up it and, through openings in the embankment, floods adjacent land, the company is liable regardless of negligence in making the excavations. Lindsey v. Southern R. Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 139. Complaint held sufficient though not alleging that the excavations were negligently constructed, nor was it objectionable because alleging that the injury occurred during high water as the company would be liable for damages done by ordinary floods. Id. A complaint in an action for negligent diversion of a watercourse should state explicitly how and where the diversion occurred, the injuries caused, and damages sought. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 29, 94 S. W. 394. One action can be prosecuted against a railway company for the wrongful construction of a ditch involving diversion of a creek, and also for the negligent manner in which the ditch was maintained. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Whitsell [Ky.] 101 S. W. 334.

69. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, §§ 3598, 3606, providing that when it is necessary for the successful drainage of a city to construct an inlet or outlet, etc., held to authorize diversion of a natural watercourse so as to constitute an inlet or outlet. City of Huntington v. Amiss [Ind.] 79 N. E. 199.

70. Morton v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. [Or.] 87 P. 151. Where a railroad company built jetties into the river from the bank of a riparian owner with his consent and thereafter a freshet caused a new channel to be formed, the licensor being a riparian owner on the new channel, the company had the same right to change the flow of the current that his licensor had. Id. Courts will take judicial notice of the effect of waters of a stream during a flood turned nearly at right angles to the land of a riparian owner. Id.

71. See 6 C. L. 1847.

72. A railroad which constructs a bridge over a stream though not liable for damages caused by overflow of surface water is liable for obstructing the stream causing it to overflow and become surface water. Standley v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 244. Instruction that the company was not liable for damages caused by surface water should have been modified so as to apply to surface water not caused by the act of the company. Id. Where one conveyed to a railroad a strip of land together with the right to alter watercourses thereon, and the company constructed an embankment through which it placed a culvert, and constructed an embankment along its right of way at the lower end of the culvert, held, if such embankment was so negligently constructed that water broke through and flooded plaintiff's land, he could recover Gebhardt v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 773. In an action for damages caused by an insufficient culvert through a railroad embankment, a plea that the injury resulted from water and debris from the streets of a certain town was objectionable as not showing that the ditch was not the natural outlet for such water, and that the culvert was sufficient to carry off the natural flow of water. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Keyton [Ala.] 41 So. 918. In an action for injuries from overflow resulting from an insufficient culvert under a railroad embankment, a plea that the flood was caused by a town turning water into the ditch held demurrable because not showing that the culvert could not reasonably have been enlarged. Id. Complaint alleging that because of insufficiency of a sewer under a railroad embankment the water rose in the open ditch and overflowed plaintiff's land sufficiently alleges that water was diverted from its natural course. Id. Where a sewer under a railroad embankment was insufficient to carry off the water likely to be in it so that the water would dam up and spread from its natural course, and with knowledge of such fact the railroad maintained it, it was immaterial to the liability of the railroad that it did not construct the sewer. Id. If a railway company in bridging a stream fails to leave ample passageway for the water and it is dammed back and floods land, the company is liable. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Herman [Kan.] 85 P. 817. An instruction requiring the company to provide for such unusual and extraordinary freshets as might be expected to flow held not erroneous when taken in connection with other portions of the charge. Id.

this duty is imposed by statute.[73] But they are not required to provide for unusual or unprecedented floods.[74]

An action for injuries must be brought within the limitation period.[75] The measure of damages recoverable depends on the nature of the injury sustained [76] and the cause of action alleged,[77] but only such injury as was occasioned by obstructing the natural flow of the stream can be recovered.[78]

§ 4. Rights in lakes and ponds.[79]

§ 5. Rights in subterranean and percolating waters.[80]—The law of correlative rights applies to the use by adjoining landowners of waters drawn from an artesian basin.[81] The extent to which landowners may use subterranean waters depends on the nature and necessities of the environment.[82] Waters from beneath arid lands may be taken to supply the needs of a city [83] where there is no subterranean connec-

73. See Post, § 9, Surface Waters and drainage or reclamation.

74. Where a railroad constructs its embankment across a stream, it is not liable if injuries result from flooding caused by extraordinary rains and high water. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 29, 94 S. W. 394. One who constructs a fence, gate, and culverts over a watercourse in such manner as not to obstruct the natural flow of the stream, including times of usual high water, is not liable for injuries caused by backwater during an unprecedented flood. American Locomotive Co. v. Hoffman, 105 Va. 343, 54 S. E. 25. Instruction disapproved as imposing too high a duty. Id. Nor is he liable where an unusual flow caused by the breaking of an upper dam over which he has no control causes the flooding. Id.

75. Where a railroad constructs an embankment across a stream and land is injured by flooding, the negligent construction was a continuing wrong an action for which might be maintained more than six years after it was constructed and damages recovered for the preceding six years. Lawton v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [S. C.] 55 S. E. 128.

76. Evidence of the rental or market value of the land just prior to the overflow is admissible. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Keyton [Ala.] 41 So. 918. The measure of damages is the rental value and not the value of a probable crop if the flood had not occurred. Where land is damaged by overflow the proper way to prove damages sustained was to show usual rental value of land overflowed for similar years, and not by proof of what the crop might have been. Standley v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 244. In an action for damages caused by overflow of drains, evidence of other overflows before suit brought, but after defendant commenced to maintain the drains, was competent to prove consequences of the overflow under similar circumstances. Central of Ga. R. Co. v. Keyton [Ala.] 41 So. 918. Evidence that after the overflow subsided a stench was left in the houses was admissible. Id. Where because land was overflowed its value of $20 per acre was reduced to $5 per acre, the difference was the measure of damages though the owner abandoned the land. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 29, 94 S. W. 394. In an action caused by overflowing lands resulting from obstruction of a stream, it was error not to permit the defendant to show on cross-examination of plaintiff that at the time that the lands were filled up and rendered useless the conditions were general throughout the county. Southern R. Co. v. Ward, 125 Ga. 361, 54 S. E. 151.

Evidence that the effect of the overflow was to damage the property a very great deal was objectionable as an opinion. Central of Georgia R. Co., v. Keyton [Ala.] 41 So. 918. A question asking a witness to state the effect of an overflow on premises did not call for an opinion. Id.

77. Damages caused by other overflows than the one set up in the complaint cannot be recovered. Central of Ga. R. Co. v. Keyton [Ala.] 41 So. 918.

78. Where evidence showed that the actual capacity of a stream had been diminished by construction of a bridge, and that the overflow was more extensive than it would have been had the bridge not been constructed, an instruction limiting the recovery to damages occasioned by the negligence of the defendant, though the flood causing the overflow was extraordinary. Standley v. Atchison, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 244.

79, 80. See 6 C. L. 1848.

81. Such proprietors must use their wells so as not to unreasonably injure their neighbors. Erickson v. Crookston Waterworks, Power & Light Co. [Minn.] 111 N. W. 391.

82. The fundamental principles upon which the common law is founded, and which its administration is intended to promote, leads to the adaption of rules concerning the use of subterranean waters to the nature and necessities of environment. Erickson v. Crookston Waterworks, Power & Light Co. [Minn.] 111 N. W. 391. A water company acquired title to lands on which wells were flowing from an underground basin which supplied many wells in the vicinity. Held, the water company could not pump water to supply a neighboring community to the injury of the owners of other wells. Id. The circumstances may render it unlawful for such landowner to make merchandise of such supply in a particular manner. Id.

83. Mandatory injunction will not issue to prevent taking water from beneath arid land to supply the needs of a town. Newport v. Temescal Water Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 372. Evidence sufficient to show that the land from beneath which water was drawn was arid. Id.

tion between such land and other arable lands.[84] Wells bored by prospectors on the public domain and abandoned by them revert with the land to the government.[85]

§ 6. Rights in tide waters.[86]—The condemnation and opening of a street and public wharf and the payment of substantial damages to the owners gives the city riparian rights to land which abutted on the street side of the harbor.[87] The rights of one who plants oysters on state tide lands may be settled in an action to quiet title.[88]

§ 7. Rights in artificial waters.[89]

§ 8. Ice.[90]—A right under a parol license to take ice from a pond is an easement in gross or a profit a prendre.[91]

§ 9. Surface waters and drainage or reclamation.[92]—A landowner may convert to his own use all surface water which flows naturally onto his land.[93] The owner of an easement to discharge surface water through a ditch may not increase the amount of water so as to increase the burden on the servient estate.[94] Where flooding is caused by the acts of public officers in an effort to protect public roads,[95] or where a freshet is an apparently adequate cause,[96] proof of negligence must be clear.

Common-law rule.[97]—Under the common-law rule surface water is regarded as the common enemy of mankind and each owner may protect his land therefrom.[98]

84. Evidence in an action to enjoin pumping and carrying off waters of a valley held sufficient to show that there was no subterranean connection between such valley and another. Newport v. Temescal Water Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 372.

85. Where an oil company bored two artesian wells on the public domain and abandoned them, the wells reverted with the land to the government. Wolfskill v. Smith [Cal. App.] 89 P. 1001. Where an oil company bored wells on the public domain and abandoned the land its rights terminated when it ceased work, and its deeds to the wells or water passed no title. Id.

86. See 6 C. L. 1848.

87. City of Baltimore v. Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Co. [Md.] 65 A. 353. The right of a riparian owner to wharf out to the deep-water line must be exercised with side lines at right angles to a straight line shore, or, if the shore be concave, with converging lines. Id.

88. Under Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 738, and Act Cal. March 30, 1874, one who plants an oyster bed on state tide lands and marks its extent may maintain action to quiet title to his rights. Smith Oyster Co. v. Darbee & Immel Oyster Land Co., 149 F. 555.

89. See 4 C. L. 1831.

90. See 6 C. L. 1848.

91. Carville v. Com. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 735. Where one had acquired a right by oral permission to take ice from a pond but had not exercised the right for the statutory period before the pond was taken for a public use, he had not acquired a right to adverse possession. Id.

92. See 6 C. L. 1849.

93. Pohlman v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 107 N. W. 1025. The overflow from a stream which can be stepped over in dry weather is surface water. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Reuter, 223 Ill. 387, 79 N. E. 166. Since no distinction is made between surface waters and running streams, in the rights of dominant and servient owners, as to the obstruction of the water, no distinction can be drawn in such connection as to flood waters. Id.

94. Where a village has an easement to discharge surface water through a ditch, it could not increase the amount of water so as to increase the burden on the servient estate. Elser v. Gross Point, 223 Ill. 230, 79 N. E. 27.

95, 96. Taylor v. Canton Tp., 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 305.

97. See 6 C. L. 1849.

98. An owner of land may protect himself against surface water by obstructing its flow. Darlington v. Cloud County Com'rs [Kan.] 88 P. 529. An owner may protect his land from surface water diverted onto it by artificial means. Matteson v. Tucker [Iowa] 107 N. W. 600. Where waters of a stream are diverted from their channel and cast onto the land of an owner, he was entitled to repel the same by the construction of levees in such manner as to divert them into a slough on his own land as against the rights of adjoining owners. Wills v. Babb, 222 Ill. 95, 78 N. E. 42. May construct drains which do not change the course of surface water over the lands of others but bring it to such lands by a shorter route and in increased volume though damage results therefrom. Fenton & Thompson R. Co. v. Adams, 122 Ill. App. 234. May construct a levee which will drain his land into a natural watercourse though quantity of flow on land of others is increased. Wills v. Babb, 123 Ill. App. 511. Where a lower owner by means of drains accelerates the flow of surface water so that more soil is carried away from the land of the upper proprietor than would have occurred otherwise, and the acceleration resulted in the formation of a ditch on the higher land, the lower owner is liable in damages. Pohlman v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 107 N. W. 1025. Railroads may construct barriers against the flowage of surface water onto or across their right of way. New Jersey, etc., R. Co. v. Tutt [Ind.] 80 N. E. 420.

He may rid his land of it by causing it to flow off in the natural course of drainage,[99] but such right is inferior to the right of an adjoiner to lateral support.[1] A landowner has the right to construct a drain to carry water from his land in the natural course onto the land of another unless the quantity is increased.[2] He may not, however, remove natural barriers.[3] Cities and towns may in the construction of streets erect barriers to prevent surface water coming onto them, and may turn it from such streets onto abutting lands if unreasonable injury is not thereby done,[4] but may not do so to the unnecessary and unreasonable injury of abutting owners,[5] or change natural channels.[6]

Civil-law rule.[7]—Under the civil law an upper proprietor is entitled to have surface water flow uninterruptedly onto the land of a lower proprietor,[8] but he may do nothing to render the servitude more burdensome[9] except that he may accelerate 99. Shaw v. Ward [Wis.] 111 N. W. 671.

1. One adjoining owner's right to lateral support is not subordinate to any right of the other to repel surface water from the land. Where one digs a ditch so near the boundary for the drainage of surface water, in such manner as to cause his neighbor's land to cave in, he is liable. Simon v. Nance [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1038.

2. Sheker v. Machovec [Iowa] 110 N. W. 1055. Chapter 70, p. 75, Laws. 30th Gen. Assem., providing that owners may construct dralns into natural watercourses. Held, where a landowner constructed a ditch for drainage purposes and acquisced in its use for eight years, it became a watercourse to which the owner of adjoining land might conduct surface water from his own land. Id. Where one's land contained a natural depression which collected surface water from a draw flowing from another's land and a town drain was constructed along the old course so as to drain the depression, but during the following season the servient estate was damaged by the flow, and a year later the action of the town was declared void, if the person on whose land the depression existed was liable, an action for damages could not be enforced in an equitable proceeding independent of one to compel restoration of former conditions. Shaw v. Ward [Wis.] 111 N. W. 671. Where the person whose land was injured assisted in the construction of the drain, he was estopped to assert an action for relief. Id.

3. Owner of dominant land may not remove natural barrier or watershed Hickory Grove Drainage Dist. v. Mason & Tazewell Special Drainage Dist., 125 Ill. App. 548.

4. Daley v. Watertown [Mass.] 78 N. E. 143. Where in opening streets and building houses there is an increased flow of surface water, the city is not liable to a landowner whose property is injured. Strauss v. Allentown [Pa.] 63 A. 1073.

5. Evidence sufficient to show such deflection of surface water unreasonable. Daley v. Watertown [Mass.] 78 N. E. 143.

6. Owner of dominant lands cannot change natural channels. Taylor v. Canton Tp., 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 305.

7. See 6 C. L. 1849.

8. The owner of upper land is entitled to have surface water flow uninterruptedly onto the land of a lower proprietor. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Keyton [Ala.] 41 So. 918. The owner of upper land has an easement over lower land to discharge surface water over the same as it is accustomed naturally to flow. Cederburg v. Dutra [Cal. App.] 86 P. 838. A landowner is required to receive on his land water which naturally flows there from the land of an upper proprietor. Pohlman v. Chicago, etc., R. Co. [Iowa] 107 N. W. 1025. Evidence sufficient to show that the owner of the dominant estate had not materially increased the flow of surface water onto the servient estate. Wirds v. Vierkandt [Iowa] 108 N. W. 108. Const. § 242, providing that corporations and others vested with the power of eminent domain shall make just compensation, etc., does not relieve corporations not authorized to exercise such power from liability to the owner of a dominant estate where surface water is backed up onto it. Pickerill v. Louisville, 30 Ky. L. R. 1239, 100 S. W. 873. A cause of action for flooding lands because of negligent construction of levee accrues when the overflow occurs. Barnett v. St. Francis Levee Dist. [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 583. Where a levee did not cause a continuous or even periodical overflow of lands, the fact that it had been maintained for ten years did not give a prescriptive right to flood lands. Id. Where a railway embankment becomes a nuisance only at intervals by diverting water from rainfalls from its natural course, the cause of action arises upon receipt of each injury, and successive actions may be brought. International, etc., R. Co. v. Kyle [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 272. Must be brought within two years. Id. A complaint for diversion of surface water alleging that the water was concentrated as a result of building a railroad, in consequence of which land was injured, states a cause of action. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Terhune [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 16, 94 S. W. 381. Two railroads and a city who jointly contribute to detain surface water so as to flood land are joint tort feasors and may be joined in a suit for damages under Civ. Code Proc. § 83. Pickerill v. Louisville, 30 Ky. L. R. 1239, 100 S. W. 873.

9. An upper owner can do nothing whereby the servitude of natural drain is rendered more burdensome by diverting the waters of one drain into another. No prescription is applicable. Savoie v. Guillory [La.] 43 So. 49. A municipality has no right by artificial drains to divert surface water from the course it would otherwise take and cast it in a body of sufficient volume to do injury on land where it would not otherwise go. Kehoe v. Rutherford [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 1046.

the flow.[10] The owner of the servient estate is bound to receive the natural flow of surface water from upper land.[11] An owner who has for thirty years maintained an embankment to prevent surface water from flowing onto his land may continue to maintain it.[12]

Railroad companies[13] in constructing embankments must provide culverts to carry off the natural flow of surface water,[14] and may be enjoined from maintaining an embankment not provided with culverts.[15] In some states it is required by statute that the embankment be provided with such drainage facilities as the natural lay of the land requires,[16] but they need not provide against extraordinary rainfalls.[17]

10. The owner of lower land must receive the natural flow of surface water from upper land. The upper owner may accelerate the flow but cannot divert it. Where one owned land on both sides of a railroad embankment and surface water flowed from the north side of the track towards it and, side ditches being filled up, the track was flooded and ponded on the south side of the track, held, the owner had no cause of action against the railroad company. Greenwood v. Southern R. Co. [N. C.] 57 S. E. 157.

11. The owner of a servient estate may not fill up his lot in order to fit it for occupancy if the effect of such act is to retard the flow of surface water and cause it to flow back on upper ground. Pickerill v. Louisville, 30 Ky. L. R. 1239, 100 S. W. 873. An easement consisting of a right to water naturally issuing or flowing from the servient land may not be impaired or cut off by constructions on the servient estate. Johnson v. Gould [W. Va.] 53 S. E. 798. A natural watercourse or artificial drainage channel which exists upon the land when condemnation proceedings are commenced cannot, after the land has been taken, be closed to the injury of the person who owns the remainder of the tract. Reed v. Winona Park Com'rs [Minn.] 110 N. W. 1119. If such channel is allowed to become obstructed, the owner of adjoining land who is entitled to have the channel kept open may enter upon the land for the purpose of removing the obstruction. Id.

12. Matteson v. Tucker [Iowa] 107 N. W. 600. Maintenance for such period is a defense to an action for its removal by an adjacent owner. Id. An owner who sues for the removal of an embankment on his neighbor's land has the burden to show that his land is the highest and that surface water will naturally flow over such adjacent land. Id.

13. See 6 C. L. 1850.

14. In constructing an embankment a railroad company must provide culverts to carry off the natural flow of surface water. Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Keyton [Ala.] 41 So. 918. A railroad may not by its embankment obstruct the flow of surface water to the injury of a higher owner. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Prouty [Ala.] 43 So. 352. A railway company may not in the use of its right of way injure lands of upper owners by flooding them with surface water which had previously passed over the right of way when by reasonable care a free passage for the water might have been constructed. Little Rock & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Wallis [Ark.] 102 S. W. 390. Where a railroad company in constructing its road fails to put in sufficient culverts, an adjacent owner whose land is flooded may recover damages though he has also recovered for the location of the road, as the damages then recovered were based on the theory that the road would be constructed in a skillful manner. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Ely [Neb.] 110 N. W. 539. Where a railroad company in constructing its road diverts surface water, it is a question of fact under the circumstances whether a new permanent outlet should be provided. Block v. Great Northern R. Co. [Min.] 112 N. W. 66. Whether the act of a railroad company in diverting the flow of surface water was the proximate cause of injury to crops was not established where it appeared that another had constructed a ditch which carried the water so diverted, together with other water, onto the land injured. Id.

15. Injunction will lie to restrain the maintenance of a railroad embankment which obstructs the flow of surface water permanently and continuously. Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Prouty [Ala.] 43 So. 352.

16. A statute requiring the construction of such culverts as the natural lay of the land requires for necessary drainage applies not only to surface water but to flood water of a stream during an ordinary rise. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Pearce [Tex. Civ. App.] 95 S. W. 1133. A railroad which constructs ditch and excavations which collects surface water is liable where such water escapes by percolation and injures adjacent land. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Slusher [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 518, 95 S. W. 717. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 4436, a company constructing an embankment and switchtracks without providing such drainage facilities as the natural lay of the land requires is liable for damages resulting. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Barr [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 437. A railroad which by constructing its embankment obstructs the natural flow of surface water is liable for injuries resulting. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Arey [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 963. An instruction which only requires that a railroad constructing its embankment provide such drainage facilities as the natural lay of the land requires is correct. Id. Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4436, requiring a railroad in constructing its embankment to provide for the natural flow of surface water, renders the company liable where if the embankment had not been constructed the water would not have reached the land injured. Id. In an action against a railroad for causing surface water to flood adjacent land because of failure to provide necessary drainage facilities as required by statute, where it appeared that a third person cut a ditch so as to turn water onto the right

If such statute is violated the question of negligent construction is immaterial.[18]

A contract to construct and maintain a ditch to prevent overflow of adjacent lands runs with the land.[19]

An action for damages must be brought within the limitation period.[20] Such an action does not involve title to land.[21] The complaint must describe the land damaged.[22] The general rules of precedure apply.[23]

A landowner has no right to collect surface water in a body[24] and cast it in undue and unnatural quantities upon the land of another.[25] Injunction will issue of way, but it did not appear that the water would not have reached the right of way regardless of the ditch, an instruction that the railroad was liable if the water would not have reached the right of way except for the ditch was erroneous. Id. It may be shown that the land overflowed frequently after the construction of the road and that it did not overflow prior to that time. International, etc., R. Co. v. Foster [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1017. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 1110, requiring railroad companies to construct drains along their roadbeds to connect with drains or watercourses so as to afford outlet for water obstructed, it is immaterial whether the outlet be a stream, another ditch, or lake, if it is adequate to receive the waters to be drained. Cooper v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 494. A complaint under such statute that the company did not construct a ditch to convey surface water to a natural water drain which was sufficient to carry off the water shows that there was a drain into which obstructed water could have been carried by ditches. Id. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 114, requiring a railroad to construct necessary culverts through its embankment, a transferee of a road which rebuilt an embankment with knowledge that the culverts were insufficient is liable for damages caused by flooding though not notified by adjacent owners. Tetherington v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 226 Ill. 129, 80 N. E. 697. Where a railroad constructs an embankment without constructing sufficient culverts, as required by statute, and transfers to another company which maintained the embankment with knowledge of the deficiency, the transferee has the burden to excuse noncompliance with the statute. Id. Under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 5153, authorizing construction of railroads across watercourses, a drainage ditch fed by no spring or course and used exclusively for draining off surface water is not a watercourse which the company is bound to preserve. New Jersey, etc., R. Co. v. Tutt [Ind.] 80 N. E. 420. Where a railroad company has been notified that outlets through its embankment are insufficient to care for surface water, each overflow is a separate nuisance though the company did not construct the embankment. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Reuter, 223 Ill. 387, 79 N. E. 166.

17. Whether a flood was caused by an unprecedented rainfall, held for the jury, in an action against a railroad for failure to construct necessary drainage facilities. Baugh v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 958. Whether an overflow was an act of God or should have been foreseen is a question of fact. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Reuter, 223 Ill. 387, 79 N. E. 166.

18. Under a statute requiring a railroad in construeting an embankment to provide such culverts as the lay of the land requires for necessary drainage, if an embankment cause adjacent land to be overflowed the company is liable regardless of the question of negligence. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Crow [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 839, 95 S. W. 743. Where a railroad in constructing its embankment failed to provide for the unrestricted flow of the flood waters of a stream, as required by statute, it was liable for damages regardless of negligence. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Dubose [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 714, 95 S. W. 588. The question of negligence is immaterial if the statute is not complied with. Baugh v. Gulf, etc., R. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 958.

19. Withers v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 34.

20. Where injury results from flooding because of failure to remove debris accumulated under a trestle, the cause of action accrues at the date of the damage. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hoshall [Ark.] 102 S. W. 207.

21. An action for damages for breach of contract to construct and maintain a ditch to prevent overflow of lands does not involve title to land. Withers v. Wabash R. Co. [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 34.

22. Where a rice crop was injured by overflow from a canal, complaint held not uncertain or indefinite as to the manner of destruction or damages. Colorado Canal Co. v. Sims [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 944, 94 S. W. 365. Held also to sufficiently describe the land. Id.

23. Under a complaint for obstructing the natural flow of water westerly, it may be shown that its natural flow was in another direction, as the direction of the flow was immaterial. International, etc., R. Co. v. Foster [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1017. Where there was no evidence that the overflow resulted from water brought down by artificial drains, such fact need not be made the subject of an instruction. International, etc., R. Co. v. Stewart [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 282.

24. See 6 C. L. 1851.

25. Under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 47, a city may be restrained from doing so until damages are ascertained and paid. Elser v. Gross Point, 223 Ill. 230, 79 N. E. 27. A railroad acquiring a right of way by condemnation may not collect surface water by the construction of a solid bed and discharge the same onto adjacent land. Albright v. Cedar Rapids, etc., R. & Light Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 1052. The owner of the dominant estate may not collect it and cast it upon the servient estate in a different manner from which it naturally flowed. Wirds v. Vierkandt [Iowa] 108 N. W. 108. One who diverts surface water from the natural course of drainage and by ditching casts to restrain the accumulation of surface water and its discharge onto adjacent land, though an action for damages may also be maintained.[26] It is no defense to an action for damages that the person whose land was injured was negligent.[27] Where a city constructs streets in such manner as to cause surface water to accumulate which would otherwise escape, it must provide an outlet for it.[28] And the duty is not obviated by a statute which imposes upon towns the duty of building and repairing highways.[29]

Storm sewers[30] must be of sufficient capacity to carry off the ordinary flow of surface water.[31]

§ 10. Lands under water.[32]—A riparian owner takes all accretions whether the water course be navigable or not.[33] His title extends to the thread of a non-navigable stream and to high-water mark of a navigable one.[34] A riparian owner on an inland lake, the water of which alters with the seasons, takes only to high-water mark.[35] Whether title to the soil under the bed of a lake or stream passes to a grantee of the shore land is to be determined by the laws of the state where the land lies.[35, 37]

§ 11. Levees, drainage, and reclamation.[38]—The formation of levee districts[39]

it upon the land of his neighbor is liable in damages. Nye v. Kahlow, 98 Minn. 81, 107 N. W. 733. Surface waters may not be collected and thrown onto lands of a private owner in unnatural and unreasonable quantities. Dennis v. Osborn [Kan.] 89 P. 925. The owner of the dominant estate may not divert the flow of surface water so as to cause it to flow onto the servient estate at a different point, nor can he collect in one channel water which naturally flows onto the servient estate by several channels. Pickerill v. Louisville, 30 Ky. L. R. 1239, 100 S. W. 873.

26. Albright v. Cedar Rapids & I. C. R. & Light Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 1052. Evidence insufficient to warrant the granting of an injunction to restrain the casting of surface water on the land of another. Perry v. Reed [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 979, 110 N. W. 529. Where one's property was injured during each recurring rainfall by the accumulation of surface water because of street improvements, he was entitled to enjoin future recurrence of such injury. Cromer v. Logansport [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 1045

27. Where one's property is injured because of the accumulation of surface water, the fact that his own negligence aggravated the injury may be considered in mitigation of damages, but is no defense. Cromer v. Logansport [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 1045.

28. A city which so constructs its streets as to accumulate surface water which would otherwise escape without doing injury is in duty bound to provide an adequate outlet for it. City of Houston v. Richardson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 107, 94 S. W. 454. Where surface water was collected and precipitated against a wall, failure of the contractor to so build the wall as to withstand the action of the water is no defense to an action for damages. Id.

29. Statutes imposing on towns the duty of repairing and building highways do not authorize them, for the purpose of protecting highways from surface water, to turn accumulated surface water onto private property. Rudnyai v. Harwinton [Conn.] 63 A. 948. Where owners of property are injured because of accumulation of surface water caused by street improvements, in a suit to enjoin such injury, it was improper to allow the city eight months to remedy the defect. Cromer v. Logansport [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 1045. A city is liable for failure to provide an outlet for surface water accumulated through its street improvements from a larger extent of territory, where it would not in the natural course of things have accumulated there. Id.

30. See 6 C. L. 1852.

31. A city is liable for injuries resulting where it constructs drains insufficient to carry off surface water and an owner's property is overflowed, unless such overflow is the result of extraordinary rainfalls. Campbell v. Vanceburg, 30 Ky. L. R. 1340, 101 S. W. 343. Evidence insufficient to show that overflow of property was caused by failure of a city to provide adequate facilities to carry off surface water. Id.

32. See 6 C. L. 1853.

33. In Arkansas. Harrison v. Fite [C. C. A.] 148 F. 781. Evidence sufficient to show that land had been formed on the bank of a river by imperceptible accumulations and rescession of the river. Hattom v. Gregg [Cal. App.] 88 P. 592.

34. Harrison v. Fite [C. C. A.] 148 F. 781.

35. State v. Thompson [Iowa] 111 N. W. 328.

36. Harrison v. Fite [C. C. A.] 148 F. 781.

37. See 4 C. L. 1836.

38. See 6 C. L. 1854.

39. An order of the county court establishing a levee district which is regular and contains necessary jurisdictional recitals prima facie shows the validity of the establishment of the district. Overstreet v. Conway County Levee Dist. [Ark.] 97 S. W. 676. Act Feb. 15, 1893, p. 34, creating a levee district to reclaim swamp lands, and providing for the acquisition of land by condemnation does not violate the constitutional provision against taking private property until compensation is first paid. Board of Directors of St. Francis Levee Dist. v. Redditt [Ark.] 95 S. W. 482. A complaint, in an action to recover a de-

and the extent of its powers are governed by statute.[40] In assessing land within a levee district for benefits, statutory requirements must be complied with.[41] All lands benefited may be assessed therefor.[42] An assessment cannot be vitiated by a false statement of one of the directors of the district at a meeting regularly called.[43] The board of equalization in raising an assessment acts judicially.[44] One who asserts that an assessment is excessive has the burden of proof.[45] Delinquency in payment of such assessments may be penalized.[46] Owners of a private drainage ditch are entitled to have the waters thereof protected from pollution.[47]

§ 12. Milling and power and other nonconsuming privileges; dams, canals, and races.[48]—The owner of the dam controlling the water must not only see existing conditions but he must foresee probable consequences.[49] The owner of a dam linquent levee assessment, alleging generally that land was duly assessed as provided by statute, and taxes were duly extended, is sufficient, in the absence of a demurrer or other objection that it did not allege that an election of land owners was held before the levee, and a majority voted in favor of the project. Jonesboro, etc., R. Co. v. St. Francis Levee Dist. Directors [Ark.] 97 S. W. 281. Commissioners forming a drainage district may include benefited lands not described in the petition and exclude described lands which are not benefited. Barnes v. Divernon Drainage Com'rs, 123 Ill. App. 621. That the clerk did not in person mail the notice for the formation of a drainage district is immaterial. Id.

40. Under the statutes of Arkansas a levee district created by special act may contract debts in excess of $300,000 in the construction of a levee and execute evidence of indebtedness bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. Altheimer v. Plum Bayou Levee Dist. [Ark.] 95 S. W. 140.

41. Where a statute requires that the board of inspectors ascertain what lands would be benefited, and to cause a descriptive list thereof to be filed with the clerk of court, an attempted ascertainment and extension of taxes by the clerk on failure of the inspectors to comply with the statute was void. Redford Levee Dist. v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 117. Acts 1905, p. 543, providing for the assessment of railroad lands within a certain levee district, held not to apply to the Redford district of Disha County. Id.

42. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 8441, requiring the assessment of all lands in a levee district benefited by a levee, an assessment is not void because it does not cover land in the district which in the judgment of the assessor were not benefited. State v. Three States Lumber Co., 198 Mo. 430, 95 S. W. 333. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 8437, providing for the assessment of land in a levee district for benefits, an assessment is not void because land within the district not benefited is not assessed. The statute implies that there may be lands in the district not benefited. Id. The fact that all lands benefited are not assessed does not ipso facto render the assessment void as against lands legally and properly assessed. Id. Under Kirby's Dig. § 6873, declaring all property except that exempted subject to taxation, and Act Feb. 15, 1893, p. 29, creating the St. Francis levee district, and providing that all lands therein shall be subject to taxation, unsurveyed lands within such district are subject to taxation for levee purposes. Buckner v. Sugg [Ark.] 96 S. W. 184. Under the statutes of Missouri, lands within a levee district and benefited by the levee are subject to taxation therefor at the first annual assessment after the levee district is formed. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 8441, where a district was organized in 1892 and was assessed in 1899, the assessment was valid. State v. Three States Lumber Co., 198 Mo. 430, 95 S. W. 333.

43. A director of a levee district cannot vitiate an assessment by misrepresentations to one of the landowners at a meeting called according to statute as to the amount of assessment against the land owner. Overstreet v. Conway County Levee Dist. [Ark.] 97 S. W. 676. Where, at a meeting of the directors of a levee district, a director informed a landowner that the cost of the proposed work would be a certain amount and it afterwards proved to be greater, held the statement if binding on the levee district could not be material, in so far as it influenced the vote of the landowner, where his vote was not essential to a majority, and the statement did not affect the validity of the assessment. Id. The fact that the landowner to whom the misrepresentation was made was not present at a meeting to correct assessments did not avoid the assessment. Id.

44. The board of equalization in equalizing and raising assessments on land in a levee district benefited by a levee as authorized by statute acts judicially, and its act in raising an assessment is not subject to collateral attack. State v. Three States Lumber Co., 198 Mo. 430, 95 S. W. 333.

45. One who asserts that a levee assessment on his land is excessive has the burden of overcoming the prima facie fairness of it, established by the returns of the assessors. Overstreet v. Conway County Levee Dist. [Ark.] 97 S. W. 676. The records of a board of directors of a levee district reciting that a meeting to revise and adjust the assessments made and reported to the board was duly held after notice given establishes a prima facie case. Id.

46. Where a statute imposes a penalty if assessments of a levee district are not paid within a specified time, equity may enforce the penalty in a suit to recover assessments. Overstreet v. Conway County Levee Dist. [Ark.] 97 S. W. 676.

47. Kenilworth Sanitarium v. Kenilworth, 220 Ill. 264, 77 N. E. 226.

48. See 6 C. L. 1854.

49. He must not lower the water in the dam so that in order to give lower owners the natural flow he must deprive grantees lawfully maintained across a river to raise a head of water for generating power has the exclusive right to the use of such head for that purpose, but for no other.[50] The right of any other person to draw water from a lawful dam for power purposes is derived solely from grant and is defined and limited by the terms of such grant,[51] but he is not precluded from exercising his right because of the fact that a lower owner is a public service corporation charged with the performance of public duties.[52] Under a grant of the use of water, unlimited as to the number of hours used, the grantee may use the water as many hours a day as he pleases.[53]

The rights of flowage in one claiming under a grant rests in the terms of the grant.[54]

If a right to use power from a dam has been acquired and affixed to a particular mill or parcel of land, it passes with a grant of such land as an appurtenant; but if it is not an appurtenance it will not pass though the grantor had a right to use it at the time of the grant.[55] A right to discharge waste water from a canal into a tailrace does not authorize it to be turned on in such abundance as to flood the building and premises of the owner of the tailrace.[56] A court of equity has jurisdiction to determine the respective rights of the owners of water power developed by a dam.[57] A mill owner whose rights are not adjudicated in a proceeding determining rights in a stream is not bound by the decree.[58] of water from his own dam of what they are entitled to. Oakland Woolen Co. v. Union Gas & Elec. Co., 101 Me. 198, 63 A. 915. Under Priv. Laws 1903, p. 277, c. 174, §§ 10 15, the method of determining the amount of water the owner of a dam was required to let go, determined. Penobscot Log Driving Co. v. West Branch Driving Reservoir Dam Co. [Me.] 66 A. 542.

50. Union Water Power Co. v. Lewiston, 101 Me. 564, 65 A. 67. Where it has been determined that a certain amount of extra water in a reservoir belonged to a certain person to be used by him whenever he pleased, he was entitled to withdraw it at any time, or permit it to remain there to maintain a desired head at certain dams. Hutchins v. Berry, 73 N. H. 611, 63 A. 787. Refusal to limit the discharge at a particular point to sixty-nine cubic feet per second is not erroneous as a matter of law where it cannot be said that such limitation is necessary for the protection of the mill owner's rights. Id.

51. Union Water Power Co. v. Lewiston, 101 Me. 564, 65 A. 67. Contracts for water for power purposes construed, and rights of parties determined. Id. Grants of water rights construed and rights thereunder determined. Oakland Woolen Co. v. Union Gas & Elec. Co., 101 Me. 198, 63 A. 915. Grants construed and held not of water power but only of water for power, and the grantee was entitled to draw a certain fixed quantity of water and not a certain amount of power. Union Water Power Co. v. Lewiston, 101 Me. 564, 65 A. 67.

52. Where upper proprietors had the rights under grants from the owner of a lower dam to use water for operating a mill, they were entitled to such use though the riparian proprietor below, also owner of a dam, was a public service corporation charged with the performance of public duties. Oakland Woolen Co. v. Union Gas & Elec. Co., 101 Me. 198, 63 A. 915.

53. Oakland Woolen Co. v. Union Gas & Elec. Co., 101 Me. 198, 63 A. 915.

54. Evidence sufficient to show a grant of the right to overflow lands by the maintenance of a mill dam. Schlag v. Gooding-Coxe Co., 98 Minn. 261, 108 N. W. 11. Evidence sufficient to show that the owner of a dam and mill pond was entitled to maintain it free from obstructions. Sebranke v. Kohlmeyer [Wis.] 110 N. W. 224.

55. Muscogee Mfg. Co v. Eagle & Phenix Mills, 126 Ga. 210, 54 S E. 1028. Where a city under statutory authority laid off water lots and sold them, and a water lot company was incorporated with power to hold and sell the lots, such statute did not restrict the right of the purchaser of all the lots or the corporation from covenanting as to the rights purchasers under them should have in the water or water power to be used by each purchaser from a race running through the lots. Id. Water rights running in favor of some of the lots in a subdivision for the benefit of others held merged when one person purchased all the lots. Id. Where owners of a dam with a perpetual right to maintain it sold land bordering on the stream for use in connection with the ice business, which was dependent on continuance of the dam, and received the enhanced value of the property, the conveyance was held to imply an easement in the continuance of the dam. Marshall Ice Co. v. La Plant [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1016. The grantees did not part with such easement by granting away an equal right in common in the dam and the right to enter and repair it. Id.

56. Colonial Woolen Co. v. Trenton Water Power Co. [N. J. Law.] 63 A. 759.

57. Oakland Woolen Co. v. Union Gas & Elec. Co., 101 Me., 198, 63 A. 915.

58. Where a mill owner had a prior right to use waters of a stream which had been improved with a reservoir, and was not before the court when an order was made as to the use of water by other owners of water rights, his rights were not subject to such order. Hutchins v. Berry, 73 N. H. 611, 63 A. 787.

To acquire a prescriptive right of flowage it must appear that the land was flooded for the statutory period,[59] continuously,[60] and to the injury of the owner of the land flooded.[61] A prescriptive right of flowage does not entitle the owner to raise his dam and cause flowage of a greater area.[62]

One who constructs a dam which results in the flooding of upper land is liable in damages whether the flooding occurs during high or low water,[63] but the owner of a dam is not liable where, because of unusual floods, a bridge is swept away, though the dam is one of the contributing causes of such loss.[64] The question of negligence in constructing a dam is immaterial where it is constructed under statutory authority rendering the builder liable for all damages caused.[65]

Legal rights of the parties may be determined in ejectment where one claims a perpetual right to maintain a dam.[66] Where owners of a mill site and flowage leased the property to a corporation in which they were stockholders the owners and corporation could recover jointly for obstruction of the flowage.[67] Where one owner of rights in a millrace diverts water from another race to the injury of other rights, other proprietors need not be joined in an action for damages where it does not appear that they assisted in the wrongful act.[68] Equity has concurrent jurisdiction with courts of law to protect a landowner against frequent recurring injuries from the wrongful diversion of water without regard to ability to respond in damages.[69]

§ 13. Irrigation and water supply; common-law rights and the doctrine of appropriation. A. Rights in the water. The common-law rule.[70]—Each riparian proprietor has an equal right to the natural flow of the stream,[71] unimpaired in quality.[72]

59. In an action for damages caused by flooding, evidence held insufficient to shew that a prescriptive right had been acquired to the extent of territory damaged, and that the water had been raised twenty inches above its usual height Reason v. Peters [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 275, 112 N. W. 117. Under the circumstances of this case a delay of three years in enforcing lowering of a dam held not to bar the right to have it lowered where a suit had been commenced and dismissed pursuant to agreement to lower the dam, and a waste gate had been put in. Miller v. Bank of Belleville [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 191, 111 N. W. 1062. One is not barred from enjoining maintenance of a dam except by lapse of the limitation period. Cobia v. Ellis [Ala.] 42 So. 751.

60. In order to acquire a prescriptive right of flowage the use must be continuous but not necessarily constant in the sense of daily occupancy. Reason v. Peters [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 275, 112 N. W. 117.

61. Unless use of water for power is in excess of right and is continuous for twenty years, and is adverse, and is shewn to have occasioned actual injury, no prescriptive right arises. Oakland Woolen Co. v. Union Gas & Elec. Co., 101 Me. 198, 63 A. 915.

62. Miller v. Bank of Belleville [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 191, 111 N. W. 1062. Evidence sufficient to show that a later constructed dam was higher than ones formerly maintained. Id. One who has maintained a dam at a certain height for several years does not acquire such a prescriptive right as entitles him to raise it. A prescriptive right can be acquired only where the increased height has been maintained for ten years. Cobia v. Ellis [Ala.] 42 So. 751.

63. Allen v. Thornapple Elec. Co., 144 Mich. 370, 13 Det. Leg. N. 263, 108 N. W. 79. In an action for flooding land by obstructing a watercourse, the proof was held to correspond to the allegations of the complaint. St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal Ry. Ass'n v. Schultz, 226 Ill. 409, 80 N. E. 879.

64. Inhabitants of Palmyra v. Waverly Woolen Co. [Me.] 66 A. 646.

65. Under 23 Stat. at Large, p. 207, authorizing a power company to dam a certain navigable stream provided it should be liable for all damages caused by building such dam, it is liable for injuries caused to a riparian owner, whether negligent or not. Sutten v. Catawba Power Co. [S. C.] 66 S. E. 966. Question of damages held for the jury where it appeared that, because of the dam, flood waters were precipitated against the bank. Id.

66. An action in ejectment for the purpose of determining the legal rights of the parties may be maintained for land overflowed by the erection of a dam in the river adjacent to the land, where the defendant claims a perpetual right of flowage. Reynolds v. Munch [Minn.] 110 N. W. 368.

67. Andrews v. Weckerman, 144 Mich. 199, 13 Det. Leg. N. 163, 107 N. W. 870. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 448, owners in severalty of water rights on a millrace have such a common or general interest as authorizes one to sue for all where water is cut off. Climax Specialty Co. v. Seneca Button Co., 103 N. Y. S. 822.

68. Climax Specialty Co. v. Seneca Button Co., 103 N. Y. S. 822.

69. Cobia v. Ellis [Ala.] 42 So. 751.

70. See 6 C. L. 1856.

71. Where parties acquired their respec-

An appropriation[73] consists of the diversion of water and its application to some beneficial use.[74] Mere permissive use of water does not constitute an appropriation.[75] An assertion of water rights by appropriation is not antagonistic to and a waiver of rights arising out of riparian ownership.[76]

What may be appropriated.[77]—All waters not subject to prior appropriation may be appropriated,[78] but water subject to vested rights in another may not be,[79] nor is water which escapes from an irrigation ditch on the land of another subject to appropriation.[80] The Federal Desert Land Act authorizes appropriation only tive tracts of land from the Federal government before any attempt was made to acquire rights in a stream running through the land, their rights in the stream are common-law ones, and where each owns the same area of practically the same character of land they are entitled to equal distribution of the water remaining after each has used what is necessary for domestic purposes. Nesalhous v. Walker [Wash.] 88 P. 1032.

72. Where because of the insufficiency of an upper owner's dam the dumping of tailings from a quartz mill into the stream during irrigation season would destroy the crop, held the lower owner was entitled to enjoin such deposit during the irrigating season. Brown v. Gold Coin Min. Co. [Or.] 86 P. 361. Evidence held to show that pollution of a watercourse was caused by the closing of a head gate of a dam when the water was not needed for irrigation. Id.

73. See 6 C. L. 1856.

74. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423. Evidence that one diverted waters of a stream into a ditch which had a twenty year old growth of brush in it is not evidence that his predecessors in title had ever divested water from the stream for irrigation purposes. Rogers v. Overacker [Cal. App.] 87 P. 1107.

75. Where one had mere permission to use a water right on his land, a conveyance by him of his land does not pass the water right. Pew v. Johnson [Mont.] 88 P. 770. A settler on land of another took possession of a ditch constructed by a third person and divested water to land occupied by him. No consent to divert water was ever obtained. Held a grantee of the settler and owner did not acquire any water right by appropriation. MacRae v. Small [Or.] 85 P. 503.

76. Nesalhous v. Walker [Wash.] 88 P. 1032.

77. See 6 C. L. 1857.

78. The right to appropriate water under the Civil Code of California exists wherever water can be found which has not been appropriated and is not confined to streams running over the public domain. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338. Where as soon as a grantee of riparian lands commenced to use waters of a lake notice was served on him of a claim to the water under a deed from his grantor, such notice was effective to prevent any estoppel arising because of subsequent improvements. Id.

Water flowing from artesian wells on the public domain is subject to appropriation under Civ. Code, § 1410. Wolfskill v. Smith [Cal. App.] 89 P. 1001. Under Mill's Ann. St. § 3177, providing that water flowing from mines into any natural water course may be appropriated, one who conducts water from mines to a natural stream with intent to and who does actually appropriate it is entitled to it. Ripley v. Park Center Land & Water Co. [Colo.] 90 P. 75. Such right relates back to the time when he first sought to utilize the water, though it became necessary from time to time to construct new drainage tunnels. Id.

A lake which with its tributaries and outlet constituted a running stream during the rainy season is a "running stream" subject to appropriations for irrigation purposes though it did not continue to flow to the sea. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338. Under B. & C. Comp. § 5019, providing that one on whose land spring or seepage water rises has the right to use it, where a spring has its origin on land its waters may be appropriated there. Morrison v. Officer [Or.] 87 P. 896.

79. An appropriation merely vests in the appropriator such rights as have not previously become vested in another by some riparian right or appropriation. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338. A subsequent appropriator who makes his diversion under the belief that a senior appropriator will continue to use the water as at the time the later appropriation was made acquires a vested right to insist on the continuance of such conditions. Baer Bros. Land & Cattle Co. v. Wilson [Colo.] 88 P. 265. A lower owner cannot acquire a right to water of a stream either by prior appropriation or adverse user as against an upper owner whose rights antedated such appropriation and user. Rogers v. Overacker [Cal. App.] 87 P. 1107. The volume of water and visible supply is notice of all waters appropriated and a subsequent appropriator cannot invoke the doctrine of estoppel as against a prior one on the ground that he has stood by and permitted him to make improvements on strength of the diversion. Id. One who diverts water from a stream must take notice of all prior appropriations whether made pursuant to statutory notice or otherwise. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423. Evidence sufficient to show violation of an injunction restraining one from interfering with the flow of water in a stream. State v. Frost [Or.] 86 P. 177. Where one appropriated water under Act Cong. July 26, 1886 (14 Stat. 253), and the land was subsequently granted to the state which sold a lot which was overflowed by the dam, held the rights of the successors of the original appropriator were protected though a patent did not reserve any water right. Parkersville Drainage Dist. v. Wattier [Or.] 86 P. 775.

80. Where one collects in a ditch and uses for irrigation water brought by another onto his land which escapes onto the land of the of waters of the United States.[81] Water rights reserved to the Indians by treaty are not subject to appropriation.[82] The rights of an irrigation company which constructs a ditch on government land after the filing of a homestead entry but before patent issued are not superior to the rights of the patentee.[83]

Method of appropriating.[84]—Appropriation may be made either by common law or statutory method,[85] and where the statutory method of appropriation is not exclusive, an appropriation may be made in a different manner.[86] If appropriation is made by a statutory method, statutory requirements as to posting [87] and recording notice,[87a] and prosecuting the work, must be complied with.[88] Statutory requirements as to person who constructs the ditch, he makes no appropriation as against the person who fetches the water though done with his consent as he is entitled to intercept such water. Burkart v. Melberg [Colo.] 86 P. 98.

81. Desert Land Act (Act Cong. March 3, 1877, amended by Act Cong. March 3, 1891), authorizing appropriation of water by holders of land acquired under such acts, applies only to waters of the United States. Winters v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 143 F. 740.

82. The Indian Treaty of May 1, 1888, making the northern boundary of the Ft. Belknap Reservation the middle channel of Milk River, by implication reserved to the Indians the right to a portion of the water of such river for irrigation purposes, which right is superior to the rights of persons who subsequently took desert claims adjacent to such river. Winters v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 148 F. 684. Indian Treaty construed and held that it reserved a portion of the water of Milk River for the use of the Indians where the land bordering on such river reserved for them was arid and useless without irrigation. Id. A portion of the waters of Milk River having been reserved for the benefit of certain Indians, grantees of land outside the reservation had not the right to appropriate all of the water of such river under the Desert Land Act. Id.

83. Under Rev. St. U. S. §§ 2339, 2340. Atkinson v. Washington Irr. Co. [Wash.] 86 P. 1123. The fact that a homestead entryman made no objection to the construction of an irrigation ditch until after he obtained his patent did not estop him to assert that his patent was not subject to the company's rights. Id.

84. See 6 C. L. 1857.

85. An appropriation is shown where one made a cut in a levee and diverted water into an excavation along the outside of the levee and made use of the excavation to conduct water to his land. Lower Tule River Ditch Co. v. Angiola Water Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 1081. An appropriation and the damming of a stream so as to overflow public lands of the United States in 1849 for manufacturing purposes was an appropriation within Act Cong. July 26, 1866 (14 Stat. 253). Parkersville Drainage Dist. v. Wattier [Or.] 86 P. 775. Courts will take judicial notice of a custom of appropriation. Id. One appropriated water from a stream for irrigation purposes and also for the purpose of drawing flood water off other land owned by him. Held the purpose to drain one tract did not destroy his appropriation. Lower Tule River Ditch Co. v. Angiola Water Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 1081.

86. Lower Tule River Ditch Co. v. Angiola Water Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 1081. Where a resident of Wyoming without complying with the statutes diverted water from a stream and the statute precluding the giving of evidence in a proceeding to enforce such claim was repealed, held the effect of the statute was not to deny the right to appropriate and its repeal removed the only obstacle to the assertion of his rights in the courts. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423.

87. Where notices of appropriation were located within 500 feet of each other and were identical, it was not necessary to record more than one of them. Wolfskill v. Smith [Cal. App.] 89 P. 1001. Where three artesian wells were driven within 500 feet of each other, notices of appropriation posted at the wells describing them sufficiently designated the point of diversion. Id. Under the statutes of California and Federal laws where a person posted notices of appropriation of water from abandoned artesian wells on the public domain and within 60 days commenced to dig ditches, her rights to the water were superior to one who entered the land as a homestead after the notice was posted. Id. A posted notice of a claim to the waters of a lake for irrigation stating that the water claimed was to be used on the land of a certain person describing it was sufficient, though it was also stated that it was also to be used on other land not described. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338. Where notice of appropriation stated that the water was to be conveyed to the place of use by a "6 inch pipe or pipe of other dimensions," it was sufficient to authorize diversion of a quantity that could be carried in a six inch pipe. Id.

87a. Under Civ. Code, § 1415, the copy of the notice of appropriation intended for record need not be signed by the appropriator but may be filled out by a stranger. Wolfskill v. Smith [Cal. App.] 89 P. 1001. Such copy need not be acknowledged. Id.

88. Where one who had posted notice and commenced work on ditches in appropriating the water from abandoned artesian wells on the public domain but was prevented from continuing work by one who entered the land as a homestead, such entryman was estopped to claim that the work was not prosecuted with sufficient diligence. Wolfskill v. Smith [Cal. App.] 89 P. 1001. Where an act of congress giving an irrigation company the right to take water from a navigable river provided for forfeiture if the ditch was not completed within five years, a forfeiture was properly declared where more than five years elapsed after dissolution of an injunction restraining prosecution of the work. United States v. Rio Grande Dam & Irr. Co. [N. M.] 85 P. 393.

posting notice do not preclude the acquisition of rights by another method.[89] In making an appropriation any natural or artificial channel or ditch may be used,[90] and it is not essential that a headgate be constructed at the point of diversion.[91] In the absence of statute, if the work is prosecuted with reasonable diligence, the right of the appropriation relates to the beginning of the work.[92]

Right to supply from water companies.[93]—An irrigation company can excuse failure to furnish water according to its contract only by showing that it was due to inevitable accident which could not be foreseen,[94] and if it willfully fails to furnish water it is liable for resulting damages.[95] Where a company is entitled to notice, it is not liable if injury results because of failure to give such notiec,[96] nor is it liable for injuries resulting from failure of the user to perform other conditions required of him.[97] The delivery of water in accumulated quantities may not be enforced by mandamus.[98] Where several parties unite in interest and apply as one applicant for water to use in rotation, the facts of joinder and rotation are not grounds upon which the water company may refuse to supply them with water.[99]

89. Where appropriation is under a statute, the recording of the claim is constructive notice, but such statutes do not preclude the taking of water for beneficial uses by other methods than those prescribed. Their effect is to preclude an appropriator from claiming by relation to the time work was commenced as against one who complies with the statute and prosecutes his work in accordance therewith. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423.

90. Ditch or pipe line constructed solely for that purpose is not essential. Lower Tule River Ditch Co. v. Angiola Water Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 1081.

91. If a simple cut will answer the purpose it is sufficient. Lower Tule River Ditch Co. v. Angiolo Water Co. [Cal.] 86 P. 1081.

92. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423. Where a person in 1899 settled on unsurveyed public land and opened an old ditch which had been constructed by a prior settler, put in a head gate and conveyed water 150 feet to his land, and the following year extended the ditch, the water right so acquired is entitled to date from the time it was delivered on the ground. Brown v. Newell [Idaho] 85 P. 385. Where the area of land for the irrigation of which water has been appropriated varies with the lapse of time, the additional application of water to meet the augmented demand, provided the appropriation is completed within a reasonable time, causes the appropriation to relate back to the time of its inception. Seaweard v. Pacific Live Stock Co. [Or.] 88 P. 963.

93. See 6 C. L. 1858.

94. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 848, 94 S. W. 400. In an action for breach of contract to furnish water for irrigation, evidence as to the amount of depletion of water by evaporation in the fields held admissible on the amount of water required to be furnished. Id.

95. An irrigation company which willfully fails to furnish water according to its contract is liable for resulting injuries to crops. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 848, 94 S. W. 400. In an action for injury to crops because of failure of an irrigation company to furnish water according to its contract, evidence as to what other lands similarly situated yielded is admissible. Id. In an action by a landowner for breach of contract to furnish water for irrigation of land in possession of a tenant, where the owner was chargeable with expense of horses, feed, etc., in estimating damages, the total expense should be deducted from his share of the crops after division with the tenant. Barstow Irr. Co. v. Cleghon [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 218, 93 S. W. 1023. For breach of contract to furnish water for irrigation damages for crops lost because of inability to plant through failure to furnish water as well as for injury to crops may be recovered. Id. Where an irrigation company contracted to furnish water to a landowner and the owner contracted to furnish it to his tenant the tenant is not a necessary party in an action by the owner for breach of his contract. Id.

96. Where a contract for water for irrigation required five days' notice when water was desired, the company is not liable where injury occurs to a crop because of failure to give such notice. Gravity Canal Co. v. Sisk [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 984, 95 S. W. 724.

97. Where at the time a contract to furnish water for irrigation was made it was understood that the company was not to furnish means of conveying water to the land, but that it was to be carried through a lateral owned by the user's landlord, evidence that failure to furnish water was due to the landlord's failure to keep the lateral in repair did not vary the contract to furnish water. Gravity Canal Co. v. Sisk [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 984, 95 S. W. 724.

98. Under a contract with an irrigation company for a certain amount of water during a given period and providing that the flow might be accumulated at any one month or more of the period, mandamus will not lie to compel the delivery in accumulated quantities twice a month, mandamus lies only to compel performance of acts specifically enjoined by law. Perrine v. San Jacinto Valley Water Co. [Cal. App.] 88 P. 293.

99. Helphery v. Perrault [Idaho] 86 P. 417. The times and order of use and application of water by several owners under the same lateral to their respective tracts are matters of no concern to the water company where such owners have agreed among themselves as to the use of the water. Id.

They may join in an action to compel the company to deliver to them the quantity applied for.[1]

The right to water from an irrigation company follows a transfer of the corporate stock [2] but a purchaser of land who does not obtain such transfer is not entitled to the water.[3] A stockholder is entitled only to his share of the water represented by the stock held by him.[4]

A purchaser of the rights of a colonization company which is under contract to supply purchasers of land with water may be enjoined from shutting off water in violation of the contract.[5]

Jurisdiction of a district court to appoint a distributer in partnership ditch does not depend on consent of the parties but on the filing of a petition alleging the required facts.[6] A water distributer acts officially and until removed from office has exclusive control of the ditch.[7] One who alleges that he is deprived of water by collusion between a distributor and others has the burden of proving joint action.[8]

Limit, measure and extent of right.[9]—The general doctrine of appropriation applies regardless of state lines.[10] The rights of an appropriator are governed by the laws of the state where the appropriation is made.[11] No person can acquire a right to more than he can beneficially use,[12] nor may he impede the flow of the

1. Where several owners contract among themselves to construct their own ditch and lateral and make joint application to the ditch company for sufficient water for all their lands, they may join in an action to compel the company to deliver the quantity applied for. Helphery v. Perrault [Idaho] 86 P. 417.

2. Where irrigation stock was transferred on the books of the corporation under a deed of trust and the purchaser at foreclosure of the trust deed sold to one who gave a trust deed back for the purchase price, the stock remaining in the name of the trustee, no further transfer was necessary to entitle the last purchaser to rights of a stockholder. Oligarchy Ditch Co. v. Farm Inv. Co. [Colo.] 88 P. 443. Though a deed of trust conveying stock of an irrigation company was a chattel mortgage and was not foreclosed within five years, it was good as between the parties and the corporation could not question its validity without showing that it had in some way been injured. Id. Where land of an owner of stock in an irrigation company was sold in foreclosure proceedings but the stock was not transferred, the grantor in the trust deed foreclosed and the present owners of the stock are necessary parties in an action to enforce stockholders' rights of the original grantor. Id.

3. Where a ditch company owned a main ditch and an extension company an extension from which only stockholders in such extension were entitled to draw water, and land of a stockholder in both companies was sold under a deed of trust, and stock in the ditch company was transferred but not stock in the extension company, the latter company could not be compelled to furnish water to the purchaser. Oligarchy Ditch Co. v. Farm Inv. Co. [Colo.] 88 P. 443.

4. Where one was by contract entitled to so much water as twenty shares of corporate stock represented, subject to be prorated in case of shortage, and thereafter the company acquired other water rights, held that the contract did not entitle its holder to a portion of the water rights subsequently acquired, and that in case of shortage he was required to prorate with other stockholders. True v. Rocky Ford Canal Reservoir & Land Co. [Colo.] 85 P. 842.

5. Where a colony association sold land and water rights and agreed to furnish water at a certain price, and thereafter sold all its remaining land and water rights to another, held the purchaser took with notice of the covenant to furnish water at specified rates and could be enjoined from shutting off water in violation of the contract. Hunt v. Jones [Cal.] 86 P. 686.

6. Mau v. Stoner [Wyo.] 87 P. 434. In a proceeding to appoint a distributor under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 908, 916, amended by Laws 1903, p. 122, denial of joint ownership will not oust the court of jurisdiction, nor will the determination of the question adjudicate titles and rights. Id.

7. A distributor of water appointed under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 908, 916, acts officially and has exclusive control of the ditch for the division of water until removed from office. Mau v. Stoner [Wyo.] 87 P. 434.

8. Mau v. Stoner [Wyo.] 87 P. 434. That persons entitled to water from a partnership ditch received what was apportioned to them does not import knowledge that the distributor was acting unfairly to others. Id.

9. See 6 C. L. 1858.

10. A citizen of Wyoming sued in the Federal circuit court in Montana to enjoin citizens of that state from diverting water from a stream rising in that state and flowing into Wyoming. Held that citizens of Montana could not justify their acts on the ground that the laws of Montana authorize appropriation of water, also that the general doctrine of appropriation applies regardless of state lines. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423.

11. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423.

12. In Idaho appropriators are required to divert use and apply waters so as to secure the largest duty and greatest service. Van surplus to the injury of lower owners.[13] The extent of his right is measured by the extent of his appropriation[14] and the amount of water in the stream.[15] If, however, the water is used for irrigation, the amount is not limited to that used at the time of the appropriation, but extends to such other amount within the capacity of the ditch[16] as may be required for the improvement and cultivation of lands for which the appropriation was made,[17] unless he is precluded by estoppel from asserting his rights.[18] One who appropriates water is entitled to the full amount appropriated to the exclusion of all subsequent appropriators,[19] and his rights may be

Camp v. Emery [Idaho] 89 P. 752. An appropriator acquires a right to water only to the extent to which it is applied to a beneficial use and cannot claim more than is necessary for the purpose of his appropriation. Where during a portion or all of the mining season there was more water in the creek than a prior appropriator could use, but during the remainder of the season there was not enough, held the taking of a small quantity of water from the stream during the spring and flush season did not injure him. Mann v. Parker [Or.] 86 P. 598.

13. A prior appropriator may divert and use the amount of water to which he is entitled but may not impede the flow of the remaining water to the injury of a lower owner. Van Camp v. Emery [Idaho] 89 P. 752.

14. The fact that a landowner has for years used water beyond the limits of a district under a claim of right to do so gives him no right to continue such unwarranted use. Jenison v. Redfield [Cal.] 87 P. 62. Extent of water right held not to have been formerly adjudicated in a prior proceeding to foreclose a mortgage on the land. Schmidt v. Olympia Water, Light & Power Co. [Wash.] 90 P. 212. In an action to determine rights to water alleged to have been appropriated, evidence held to show the appropriator entitled to 184 inches. Twaddle v. Winters [Nev.] 89 P. 289. Evidence sufficient to show that one was entitled to divert 25 inches of water for irrigation of his land. Pew v. Johnson [Mont.] 88 P. 770.

15. Where it was admitted that an upper and lower owner had equal rights to the use of waters of a stream, the latter could restrain the former from using all the water at times when there was not sufficient quantity for the needs of both. Rogers v. Overacker [Cal. App.] 87 P. 1107. Where a tunnel was driven into a mountain for the purpose of increasing the volume of water in a stream, the water inured to the benefit of all appropriators and one whose point of diversion was thirty miles below the point of inflow who had not assisted in building the tunnel could not segregate from the stream a volume of water equal to that flowing from the tunnel and assert exclusive right to it. Farmers' Union Ditch Co. v. Rio Grande Canal Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 1042. Where spring and surface water flowed with the waters of a creek at all times above the head of a canal, the prior right of the owner of the canal to a certain amount of water from the river did not entitle him to the spring and surface water as against a subsequent appropriator in case the creek became dry below the spring and above the head of the canal. Beaverhead Canal Co. v. Dillon Elec. Light & P. Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 880. In a suit to restrain interference with waters of an irrigation ditch where it was found that plaintiff was entitled to a certain amount of water and was awarded the right to carry it over land of another, and the landowner was given a right to use the ditch subject to such use, held that the owner was entitled to use the water only to such extent as would not deprive plaintiff of her share. Hoyt v. Hart [Cal.] 87 P. 569. Provisions of a decree restraining interference with waters of an irrigation ditch held not inconsistent, and sufficient to protect an easement. Id.

16. Where in a suit to establish water rights it was alleged that a ditch could at no time carry more than 600 inches per second and that the excess had been abandoned, a complaint previously filed containing a statement that the ditch could carry 800 inches was admissible. Boulder & White Rock Ditch Co. v. Leggett Ditch & Reservoir Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 101.

17. The fact that a stream in its native condition is so dammed as to cause water to percolate through and sub-irrigate meadow land will not justify the owner of the land in maintaining such condition to the injury of other appropriators but may be sufficient to initiate a right for a quantity of water sufficient for irrigation of the surface of the lands sub-irrigated. Van Camp v. Emery [Idaho] 89 P. 752.

18. Where an appropriator for five years made no attempt to extend the area of his cultivated land, whereby his purpose to expand the appropriation might have been disclosed, and no cause for such delay is apparent, he could not thereafter extend the use of the water to more of the land as against intervening appropriators. Seaweard v. Pacific Live Stock Co. [Or.] 88 P. 963. In such case where it appeared that a trespasser made an appropriation and thereafter sold his right to one who secured a lease from the owner of the land, the use of the water was properly allotted to him. Id.

19. Equity will not deprive him of his rights by distributing the water among subsequent appropriators though the general benefits would be thereby increased. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423. Where one purchased a squatter's claim and the water rights used with it, paid the purchase price and took possession which he held for two years when he received a deed from the squatter, his claim of title was not broken so as to allow an intervening appropriator of water a priority over his water right. Brown v. Newell [Idaho] 85 P. 385. Where prior to posting notice of appropriation of water from abandoned artesian wells on the public domain another had taken steps to obtain a pipe line right of way to such wells, and the boundaries of the right of way included the wells, such acts did not confer any rights preserved and protected by injunction,[20] if definitely established [21] and it appears that he is equitably entitled to such relief.[22] An appropriator's right can be disputed only by one who has or claims a superior right, and then only to the extent to which such rights conflict.[23] Neither a riparian proprietor nor an appropriator has title to the waters of a stream before it reaches his land or point of diversion;[24] and where a stream which forms the outlet of a lake becomes dry, he is not entitled to water standing in the lake or in pools above his land.[25] The right of an appropriator of water for irrigation purposes to have the water flow in the river to the head of its ditch is an incorporeal hereditament to the ditch and coextensive with the right to the ditch itself.[26] An appropriator of the water of abandoned artesian wells on the public domain acquires no right to enter the land to bore additional wells.[27]

An appropriator may change the point of diversion if in so doing the rights of others are not injured.[28] In some states the method by which such change may be effected is prescribed by statute.[29] to the water. Wolfskill v. Smith [Cal. App.] 89 P. 1001. A prior appropriator of a certain amount of water is entitled to such quantity or so much thereof as naturally flowed in the stream, unimpaired by subsequent changes therein by spring or seepage water finding its way into a tributary of the stream in the course of nature unaffected by artificial works constructed by a subsequent appropriator. Beaverhead Canal Co. v. Dillon Elec. Light & Power Co. [Mont.] 85 P. 880.

20. Application by owner of a dam for an injunction held to show that irreparable injury would result if a subsequent appropriator carried out his plans. Trade Dollar Consol. Min. Co. v. Fraser [C. C. A.] 148 F. 585. The fact that the defendant who claimed a right to take water in accordance with plans approved by the state would be compelled to condemn right of way for a ditch over complainant's land does not bar injunctive relief. Id. Where a prior appropriator has made an appropriation in accordance with the laws of the state and has built a dam so that he may utilize his water for power, he may enjoin a subsequent appropriator from ditching so as to carry water below his dam for power purposes, where the effect would be to lessen his head and endanger his dam by the proximity of the ditches. Id. Where a lower owner sued an upper proprietor to restrain him from using all the water of a stream but alleged no priority of user for domestic purposes, it was not necessary for the court to find on the allegation in the answer that it was necessary for the upper owner to use the water for irrigation and if it was not used to a reasonable extent defendant would suffer irreparable injury. Rogers v. Overacker [Cal. App.] 87 P. 1107. An original settler on land in 1868 appropriated water of a stream flowing through it which he used continuously. In 1905 owners further up constructed a dam for the purpose of storing water which they claimed was waste or seepage. The court found against these contentions. Held the lower owner could enjoin the maintenance of the dam. Desmond v. Sander [Wash.] 89 P. 179.

21. Where after one commenced to divert water a prior appropriator objected but offered to sell him the water, the prior appropriator was not entitled to enjoin the later one on the theory that it was necessary for all the water of the stream to flow through his ditch at all seasons in order to keep it open to carry the flush waters of the spring season. Mann v. Parker [Or.] 86 P. 598.

22. Where in a suit to enjoin diversion of water the injury sustained by plaintiff would be hardly appreciable in comparison with that suffered by defendant if the injunction was granted and defendant was able to respond in damages, an injunction would not issue. Mann v. Parker [Or.] 86 P. 598.

23. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338. Where a water company was using water of a lake not as riparian proprietor but as an appropriator for the irrigation of nonriparian lands, it was not concerned with the disposition of surplus water so long as a reasonably ample supply remained in the lake throughout the season. Id.

24. Therefore a riparian owner on an outlet to a lake has no title to the waters of the lake. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338.

25. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338.

26. Rickey Land & Cattle Co. v. Miller [C. C. A.] 152 F. 11.

27. One who appropriates water from abandoned artesian wells on the public domain acquires the right to enter the land only to avail himself of the water and not to bore additional wells. Wolfskill v. Smith [Cal. App.] 89 P. 1001.

28. One entitled to divert water from a stream may change the point of diversion where rights of others will not be injured. Baer Bros. Land & Cattle Co. v. Wilson [Colo.] 88 P. 265. Where there is a several user of an appropriation by the owners, the water to which either is entitled may be changed both in point of diversion and place of use unless it injures rights of the others. Hallett v. Carpenter [Colo.] 86 P. 317. The pro rata interests of the owners of a mutual ditch using the water severally and the right to change the point of diversion may be determined in one proceeding. Id. It is no objection to a decree authorizing change of point of diversion of a portion of an appropriation that the amount adjudicated to be transferred was a definite quantity be-

A water right may be acquired by adverse user or prescription.[30]—A prescriptive right is limited to the extent of the use during the limitation period.[31]

The right of appropriation can be lost only by abandonment or adverse possession,[32] the elements of which must be clearly established.[33] Mere nonuse of the water by an upper owner and the fact that he permitted it to pass down the stream cannot make a lower owner's use adverse or strengthen his claim of appropriation or prescription.[34] The Wyoming statute providing that failure to use water for two years is an abandonment applies only to voluntary and not to enforced discontinuance.[35] Gradual and imperceptible encroachments by subsequent appropriators upon the rights of a prior appropriator will not permit the working of prescription against the latter.[36]

(§ 13) B. Rights in ditches and canals.[37]—A right of way for an irrigation ditch is an easement[38] which may attach to other lands as an appurtenant[39] and cause if the supply became deficient the decree would be construed as permitting the transfer of the appropriator's proportionate share only. Id. A stockholder in a mutual ditch company may change his point of diversion if rights of others are not injured. Wadsworth Ditch Co. v. Brown [Colo.] 88 P. 1060. An application for a change of point of diversion which shows that the water is to be applied to a greater acreage does not establish that more water will be diverted, and hence does not show an injury to vested rights of others. Fulton Irr. Ditch Co. v. Meadow Island Irr. Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 748.

29. Laws 1899, p. 235, and Laws 1903, p. 278, prescribing the procedure where an owner desires to change point of diversion is not void though applying to a point of diversion already changed. Ashenfelter v. Carpenter [Colo.] 87 P. 800. Under Laws 1899, p. 235, the owner of a water right may not change the point of diversion until the provisions of the statute as to notice to other parties interested have been complied with. New Cache & La Poudre Irr. Co. v. Arthur Irr. Co. [Colo.] 87 P. 799. In a proceeding by an owner under Laws 1903, p. 278, to change the point of diversion, owners below the point of original intake cannot object that owners between the original and new point of diversion will be injured. Crippen v. Glasgow [Colo.] 87 P. 1073.

30. See 6 C. L. 1859. A finding that one had used a pipe line for more than five years as often as it was necessary for conveying water for irrigating purposes is a sufficient finding as to continuous use. Collins v. Gray [Cal. App.] 86 P. 983. A finding that a pipe line had been used for more than five years to carry water necessary for irrigation purposes and that the customary flow was 40 inches was not defective for failing to state the standard of measurement. Id. Where for 8 years a water company pumped sufficient water from a lake to irrigate certain gardens, a finding that it had never exercised water rights derived by certain deeds was erroneous. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338.

31. Adverse use of waters of a lake for watering stock do not carry right to use water for irrigating purposes. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338. Evidence insufficient to show that an adverse right to use waters of a lake for irrigation purposes had been acquired. Id.

32. See 6 C. L. 1860. Where one had never abandoned his prior rights under a decree awarding him a certain quantity but for several years had not used all of the water, a subsequent decree confirming his right to the entire amount was not objectionable as conferring a greater right than he had appropriated as against junior appropriators. Boulder & White Rock Ditch Co. v. Leggett Ditch & Reservoir Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 101. On an issue as to abandonment of water rights, evidence as to intent or purpose to abandon is admissible. Id. Evidence sufficient to show that owners of a water right did not relinquish it. MacRae v. Small [Or.] 85 P. 503.

33. A prior appropriator of all the water of a stream can be deprived of his right by adverse user only where such user is established by clear evidence. MacRae v. Small [Or.] 85 P. 503. Evidence sufficient to show adverse user as against a portion of the water right of a prior appropriator. Id.

34. Rogers v. Overacker [Cal. App.] 87 P. 1107. Under Civ. Code, § 1411, the rights of water of a lake for irrigating purposes acquired by appropriation depends on use and ceases with disuse. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338.

35. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423. One is not guilty of laches where he complains of diversion hostile to his rights and receives water when it is turned down to him, or who is prevented from using the water by gradual diminutions through hostile diversion, unless such diversion continue with his consent. Id.

36. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423.

37. See 6 C. L. 1861.

38. Blake v. Boye [Colo.] 88 P. 470.

39. A right of way for an irrigation ditch, and to receive water from or discharge it upon land, are easements which may attach to other lands as appurtenances. Jones v. Deardorff [Cal. App.] 87 P. 213. A provision in a deed that the grantee should not use an irrigation ditch except to convey water to the north half of a certain section for use thereon is an easement which by use became appurtenant to such section. Id. Laws 1889, p. 116, providing that none of the parties interested in a ditch constructed by mutual consent or agreement shall without consent of the others cause the same to be filled or obstructed, converted parol licenses for the maintenance of drains into a perpetual easement if not revoked within a limited period, and secures joint owners of such constitutes realty within the statute of frauds.[40] It may be acquired by adverse possession.[41] A right to use a ditch may be acquired by prescription though the owner of the land also uses the ditch for his own benefit.[42] The fact that a ditch is supplied with water from another ditch does not preclude the acquisition of a prescriptive right.[43] Where rights in a ditch depend on contract, the limits of the right must be found in the terms of the contract.[44] Where joint owners of a ditch incorporate, the corporation cannot impose extra burdens upon an owner who did not participate in the organization of the corporation.[45] Owners of a canal may be estopped to object to the deposit of refuse material therein.[46] In Ohio, county commissioners may not convert a living stream into a ditch.[47]

In many of the western states the power of eminent domain may be exercised in requiring ditch rights of way,[48] especially if the parties cannot agree as to the ditch individual rights for the protection of such easement. Snyder v. Baker, 221 Ill. 608, 77 N. E. 1117. Such act has no relation to ditches controlled by drainage districts, and the landowner's right of action if any for filling the ditch under control of such district was against the drainage commissioners. Id.

40. A right of way for a ditch is real property within the statute of frauds. Bashore v. Mooney [Cal. App.] 87 P. 553.

41. Where one constructed an irrigation ditch across lands of another and used it adversely for sixteen years, when he made a slight change in it and used it for eight years longer, he acquired a prescriptive right to maintain it. McEwen v. Preece [Wash.] 88 P. 1031. One who constructs a ditch on land of another may acquire a right to it by adverse possession. Bashore v. Mooney [Cal. App.] 87 P. 553. A finding that one has been in actual adverse possession of a ditch for the statutory period, and had paid all taxes levied against it, and the right of way shows a prescriptive right. Id.

42. Such right may be acquired though another had the right to use the ditch for his own purposes to the extent of the remaining capacity. Bashore v. Mooney [Cal. App.] 87 P. 553. Evidence sufficient to show a prescriptive right to a ditch. Id. Evidence that the owner of land over which a ditch was constructed was asked concerning it, and made no claim to it, is admissible. Id. It is also admissible to show attempts to sell the ditch to the owner of the land. Id. One who constructs a ditch over land of another may acquire a prescriptive right to maintain such ditch for conveying a certain quantity of water, though the owner of the land was also using the ditch to carry water to his own land. Smith v. Hampshire [Cal. App.] 87 P. 224.

43. The fact that a ditch is supplied with water from another ditch instead of from a stream does not preclude the acquisition of a prescriptive right to maintain it. Bashore v. Mooney [Cal. App.] 87 P. 553.

44. In ejectment to recover possession of a ditch, evidence held insufficient to show a right granted to plaintiff's grantor to use the ditch and water without limit as to time, place, and quantity, but to show an agreement that defendant might use the water for specified purposes. Dondero v. O'Hara [Cal. App.] 86 P. 985. Where one was entitled to use another's ditch on condition that he enlarge it, in the absence of proof of noncompliance with the condition, it is presumed that his acts of shutting off the water in order to repair the ditch were reasonable. Mau v. Stoner [Wyo.] 87 P. 434. In an action for trespass on a ditch, a contract between plaintiff and defendant relative to enlarging the ditch was admissible to show plaintiff's title and the extent of it. Id. Where one bore part of the expense of constructing a drain on land of another, as well as the entire expense of constructing it on his own land, he acquired the right to have it kept open in the absence of proof of a violation of the contract between the parties. Thompson v. Normanden [Iowa] 108 N. W. 315. A finding that there was no prescriptive right to maintain an irrigation ditch across the land of another is not necessarily inconsistent that a right existed to maintain it during the existing irrigation season. Tew v. Powar [Colo.] 86 P. 342.

45. Where landowners constructed a ditch and, by custom prior to the formation of a corporation to operate the ditch, contributed to cost of maintenance above but not below the point of diversion, the corporation could not compel an owner not a member to contribute to the cost of maintenance below his point of diversion. Arroyo Ditch & Water Co. v. Bequette [Cal. 87 P. 10. Where in an action to recover entire cost of improvement there was no evidence of his share of cost above his point of diversion, judgment was properly rendered for him. Id.

46. The owners of a canal who stand by for several years and see refuse thrown into the canal, and permit the expenditure of large sums of money in reliance on the right to do so, are estopped to object to the deposit in the canal of a much less quantity of refuse. Morris Canal & Banking Co. v. Diamond Mills Paper Co. [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 746.

47. The word "watercourse" as used in the county ditch law is synonymous with "drain," and the county commissioners are without authority to convert a living stream into a ditch by proceedings for locating and constructing a ditch. Greene County Com'rs v. Harbine, 74 Ohio St. 318, 78 N. E. 521.

48. Plaintiff in a suit to condemn a ditch right of way cannot be required to pay defedant's attorneys fee. Schneider v. Schneider [Colo.] 86 P. 347. In proceedings to condemn a right of way for an irrigation ditch, a complaint alleging that plaintiffs were owners of certain agricultural lands in a certain county, range, and township, and compensation.[49] Statutes providing for such right must be complied with.[50] It is no defense to a proceeding to condemn a ditch right of way that plaintiff has no vested right to the water which the ditch was intended to carry.[51]

(§ 13) C. Remedies and procedure.[52]—A suit to determine a landowner's right to divert water from a stream for irrigation purposes, and to quiet title thereto, is in the nature of a suit to quiet title.[53] A citizen of one state may maintain suit in a Federal circuit court in another state to enjoin the unlawful diversion of water in the state, where suit is brought which prevents its flowing into his lands in the state where he resides,[54] or to quiet his title thereto.[55] A Federal court sitting in Nevada which acquires jurisdiction of a suit to quiet title to an appropriation of water from a stream in that state as against a resident of California, will maintain such jurisdiction against subsequent similar actions brought for the same purpose in California by defendant.[56] The district courts of Colorado have general jurisdiction of proceedings to adjudicate water rights.[57] Owners of several water rights may not join in an action to enforce them.[58] A complaint to restrain unthat the water of a certain river which the proposed ditch was intended to carry were necessary for the irrigation of such land, is sufficient under Sess. Laws 1899, p. 261. Fulton v. Methow Trading Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 117. Under Alaska Code, c. 22, § 204,. providing that land may be condemned for canals, flumes, etc., for mines and farms, land may be condemned for the ditch to carry water to work mines. Miocene Ditch Co. v. Jacabsen, 146 F. 680. Where a person acquired certain water rights and commenced construction of ditch in 1901, its right to acquire a right of way over mining claims located in 1902 was not affected by the fact that the ditch was not completed over such claims until after such location. Id. See, also, Eminent Domain, 7 C. L. 1276.

49. An allegation that the parties have been unable to agree as to the damages for the reason that the owner of the land will not make a stated demand, nor allow the use of his land for a ditch, sufficiently shows inability to agree. Fulton v. Methow Trading Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 117.

50. A complaint which describes a definite route and the dimensions of the ditch sufficiently describes the quantity of land, within Act 1899, p. 262, § 6. Fulton v. Methow Trading Co. [Wash.] 88 P. 117. Any informality, in a decree in proceedings to condemn a ditch right of way, not exactly conforming to Acts 1899, p. 262, requiring that the damage be paid to the clerk of court before work was commenced is cured by a supplemental transcript showing that it had been paid. Id. In a proceeding to condemn a ditch right of way to convey waste water from defendant's to plaintiff's land, the statute relative to enlarging ditches and their use by others than the owner does not apply. Schneider v. Schneider [Colo.] 86 P. 347. Mills' Ann. St. §§ 2256, 2257, relative to the use of water for irrigation and the securing of ditch rights of way, do not apply. Id.

51. Schneider v. Schneider [Colo.] 86 P. 347. Failure to prove that he was the owner of a water right did not require a nonsuit. Id. In a proceeding to condemn such a ditch, the fact that plaintiff may not be entitled to appropriate the water, that there may not be sufficient water for his use, or that his plan for using it is impracticable, is not of importance. Id.

52. See 6 C. L. 1863.

53. Rickey Land & Cattle Co. v. Miller, 152 F. 11.

54. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423.

55. A prior appropriator of a certain part of the flow of a river to irrigate land in Nevada who claims that his rights are being interfered with by an appropriator in California who resides in such state may sue in a Federal Court sitting in Nevada to quiet his title. Rickey Land & Cattle Co. v. Miller 152 F. 11. The jurisdiction of the Nevada court is not defeated by the fact that the defendant set up in his cross bill that it had an appropriation from the same stream in California for the purpose of irrigating lands in that state. Id. In a suit to quiet title to a prior appropriation in Nevada against an appropriator from the same stream in California, a codefendant who does not deny the priority of complainant's appropriation, but prays that his priority over other defendants be settled, is defensive as to such defendant, and not objectionable as not germane to the original bill. Rickey Land & Cattle Co. v. Wood [C. C. A.] 152 F. 22. Cross bills between defendants in a suit in the Federal court to determine rights of appropriators of which the court has jurisdiction because of diversity of citizenship between complainant and defendants are ancilliary, and the court has jurisdiction regardless of citizenship. Miller v. Rickey, 146 F. 574.

56. Rickey Land & Cattle Co. v. Miller, 152 F. 11. Where a Federal court has obtained jurisdiction of a suit to determine rights of appropriators, it is its duty to protect such jurisdiction, and it will enjoin a defendant from prosecuting a later suit in a state court. Miller v. Rickey, 146 F. 574.

57. The district courts of Colorado have general jurisdiction of procedings to adjudicate water rights, and, where a decree recites that statutory notice was given, mere absence from the judgment roll of proof thereof which should have been included does not affirmatively show absence of jurisdiction. Farmers' Union Ditch Co. v. Rio Grande Canal Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 1042.

58. A complaint by fourteen owners of water rights to compel a water company to deliver to them sufficient water to irrigate their lands, pursuant to the several contracts of each party with the water com-lawful diversion should state facts showing the complainant's prior appropriation.[59] A cross bill setting up only matters of defense and praying affirmative relief is demurrable.[60] Where various persons along a stream divert water in violation of the rights of a prior appropriator, without any community of action, nothing more than nominal damages can be awarded in a suit in equity to restrain them from diverting the water.[61] In a suit by a prior appropriator to restrain diversion of water by others above him where no damages are claimed it is no defense to one defendant that others who have rights inferior to his are diverting more water than is claimed by plaintiff.[62] A statute prescribing a general chancery procedure may be enforced in a Federal court of equity.[63]

In Colorado the procedure by which a change in point of diversion may be obtained is prescribed by statute.[64] A mutual ditch company is entitled to institute such a proceeding.[65] Only the right to change the point of diversion can be determined in such proceeding,[66] but the decree may be made on such conditions as will prevent injury to other users.[67]

In statutory proceedings only the rights contemplated by the statute can be adjudicated.[68] A decree determining water rights should be definite.[69] Except as pany, is demurrable for misjoinder of parties and causes of action. Creer v. Bancroft Land & Irr. Co. [Idaho] 90 P. 228.

59. A complaint by a senior appropriator to restrain unlawful diversion must state facts showing plaintiff's appropriation and its priority; it is insufficient to merely allege that he was a prior appropriator and that his rights were being interfered with. Carroll v. Vance [Colo.] 88 P. 1069. A complaint by a prior appropriator to restrain unlawful diversion, though demurrable for uncertainty, was held cured by the answer raising issue as to priority, and alleging that plaintiff used the water wastefully or there would be sufficient for both. Id.

60. In a suit to enjoin diversion of water, a cross bill alleging priority of right and praying affirmative relief sets up only matter of defense, which may be taken by answer, and is demurrable. Miller v. Rickey, 146 F. 574.

61. Morris v. Bean, 146 F. 423.

62. Miller v. Rickey, 146 F. 574.

63. Civ. Code Mont. § 1891, providing that in actions for the protection of water rights all persons who have diverted water may be joined and the rights and priorities settled by a single judgment, establishes a procedure consistent with genral chancery proceedings, and may be enforced in a Federal court of equity. Ames Realty Co. v. Big Indian Min. Co., 146 F. 166. In a suit to protect certain rights in a stream against other proprietors residing in different states, cross bills by all of such owners may be entertained regardless of citizenship. Id.

64. Sess. Laws 1903, p. 278, prescribing procedure in a proceeding to obtain a change in the point of diversion, requiring notice of the proceeding to be published in a newspaper "in such county into which such water district may extend," means the county of the court in which the proceeding was instituted, and where the district extends over two counties it must be published in the county in which the proceeding was instituted. Wadsworth Ditch Co. v. Brown [Colo.] 88 P. 1060. One who contracts to purchase stock in a mutual ditch company upon condition that he obtain a decree changing the point of diversion, and the contract requires him to institute such a proceeding, is within Sess. Laws 1903, p. 278. Id. A motion to dismiss a proceeding to change a point of diversion, based on a question which has been met by legislative enactment since the initiation of the proceeding, will not be ruled upon. Roberson v. Wilmoth [Colo.] 90 P. 95.

65. Sess. Laws 1903, p. 278, giving the right to change the point of diversion from a natural watercourse, gives such right to mutual ditch companies and shareholders who are consumers. Wadsworth Ditch Co. v. Brown [Colo.] 88 P. 1060.

66. In a proceeding under Sess. Laws 1903, p. 278, to change the point of diversion from a natural stream, only the right to such change can be determined a decree in a former proceeding as to the right to the water is conclusive on that point. Wadsworth Ditch Co. v. Brown [Colo.] 88 P. 1060.

67. Under Sess. Laws 1903, p. 278, providing that where the point of diversion from a stream is changed in proceedings under such statute the court may decree the change upon conditions which prevent injury to other users, it may provide in a proceeding by a stockholder in a mutual ditch company that the stock of the petitioner should still be subject to assessment, and that he should also be subject to all the liabilities of a stockholder. Wadsworth Ditch Co. v. Brown [Colo.] 88 P. 1060.

68. The irrigation statutes of 1879 and 1881 do not contemplate a determination of of the rights of the different owners of the ditch as between themselves to any particular quantity of water, the object being to determine priorities, therefore a decree under such statutes cannot be made to quiet title to any certain amount of the aggregate quantity of water in a ditch. Evans v. Swan [Colo.] 88 P. 149.

69. A judgment in a suit by a lower owner against an upper restraining the latter from using all the waters of a stream should fix the amount that should be permitted to flow down to the lower owner. A judgment restraining the upper owner from diverting such water in a manner that provided by statute, or in case of fraud, decrees establishing water rights in statutory proceedings are conclusive [70] and are not subject to modification for the purpose of establishing an additional priority which could not be established at the time of the original proceeding but to which it subsequently became entitled.[71] A commissioner may be appointed to carry a decree into effect.[72] A water commissioner is not an officer of the court, and it is not contempt to interfere with him in the performance of his duties.[73] One not a party is not bound by a decree determining water rights.[74] In Montana a decree rendered in one county may be enforced in another where the boundaries of an irrigation district have been changed.[75]

§ 14. Irrigation districts and irrigation and power companies.[76]—Irrigation districts may be formed under various statutes prescribing the method of formation and the powers and duties of officers.[77] In the organization of irrigation districts, statutes prescribing the procedure must be complied with.[78] Where statutes conflict the latter one controls.[79] Statutes providing for the organization and government of irrigation districts impose special burdens and are to be strictly construed and, in cases of doubt, in favor of the taxpayer.[80] A landowner within one dis-would prevent sufficient water flowing down to supply the lower owner's needs is fatally defective. Rogers v. Overacker [Cal. App.] 87 P. 1107. Such judgment did not constitute a complete determination of the rights of the parties, and could not be pleaded as an estoppel. Id.

70. Farmers' Union Ditch Co. v. Rio Grande Canal Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 1042. Where a decree under Sess. Laws 1879, p. 99, and Sess. Laws 1881, p. 142, relating to adjudications concerning priority of appropriations has been rendered, distribution of water cannot be made otherwise than under the decree, and a party thereafter receiving water cannot claim that he did not recognize the decree. Combs v. Farmers' High Line Canal & Reservoir Co. [Colo.] 88 P. 396. A decree in proceedings under such statutes is conclusive on the person receiving water from the company organized to carry water for hire. Id.

71. Farmers' Union Ditch Co. v. Rio Grande Canal Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 1042.

72. A decree determining the rights of parties to water of a river, appointing a commissioner to distribute the water, and authorizing him to enter on canals, dams, etc., and make rules as to distribution, held the appointment of the commissioner was a proper method of carrying the decree into effect, and his discretion in the matter was administrative and not judicial. Montezuma Canal Co. v. Smithville Canal Co. [Ariz.] 89 P. 512.

73. A decree adjudicating priority of rights, under Mills' Ann. St. §§ 2403, 2408, being in rem and containing no order to any one to do or refrain from doing any act, and the water commissioner not being an officer of the court, it is not contempt of court to interfere with him in the discharge of his official duties. Roberson v. People [Colo.] 90 P. 79.

74. Where the rights of all parties in waters of a creek are determined by final decree, and all parties enjoined from interfering with the rights of others, the court is without jurisdiction in a summary proceeding on less than twenty-four hours notice to enjoin a person not made a party, whether he be a trespasser or claim an independent right from using waters of the creek. State v. District Ct. of First Judicial Dist. [Mont.] 85 P. 525.

75. Where, after a decree enjoining interference with water, the county in which the water was situated and the decree rendered was made a part of another county and judicial district, the court of the new district has jurisdiction to enforce the decree by contempt proceedings. Sess. Laws. 1897, p. 48. State v. District Ct. of Ninth Judicial Dist. [Mont.] 86 P. 798.

76. See 6 C. L. 1865.

77. Irrigation district law (Laws 1901, p. 198, c. 87) is not repugnant to the constitutional provision requiring bills to contain but one subject which shall be clearly expressed in the title. Anderson v. Grand Valley Irr. Dist. [Colo.] 85 P. 313. Irrigation district law (Laws 1901, p. 198, c. 89) does not violate the due process clause of the constitution. Id. Nor does it violate the constitutional provision that waters of streams are property of the public, subject to appropriation. Id.

78. Published notice of time and place of first meeting held insufficient because not signed. Ahern v. High Line Irr. Dist. Directors [Colo.] 89 P. 963. Notice held defective because misleading. Id. Where, in special proceedings by the directors of an irrigation district to determine the validity of its organization, an issue is made as to the qualifications of the signers of the petition, the board must prove their qualifications. Id.

79. Where statutes creating irrigation districts conflict as to the territory included therein, the later statute controls and a water commissioner having no jurisdiction outside his own district cannot claim compensation for services performed in the territory within the lapse. Fravert v. Mesa County Com'rs [Colo.] 88 P. 873.

80. Ahern v. High Line Irr. Dist. Directors [Colo.] 89 P. 963. Under St. 1897, pp. 254, 272, where an irrigation district publishes notice for bids for construction work, such notice must describe the work substantially according to the plans and specifications. Healy v. Anglo-Californian Bk. [Cal. App.] 90 P. 54.

trict has no right to use water beyond the limits of the district.[81] In changing the boundaries of a district, statutory requirements must be complied with.[82]

Where a major portion of the tenants in common of a water right incorporates, such corporation cannot control the distribution of water without the consent of owners not joining in the organization of such corporations.[83] What property is taxable for benefits depends on the statute authorizing taxation.[84] Irrigation companies authorized to exercise the power of eminent domain are quasi public corporations and cannot limit their liability to the public by contract.[85] The power of an irrigation company to levy assessments on stock depends on statute or by law of the company.[86] An assessment not regularly levied may be ratified.[87]

§ 15. Water companies and water supply districts. Water companies.[88]—A corporation formed for the purpose of supplying water or water power is a quasi public corporation and is bound to serve the public without unjust discrimination.[89] A clause in a contract of a corporation of that character which would prevent such service to the public is void.[90] Its rights and duties under its franchise or contract must be determined from the entire contract and not from any particular portion of it.[91] It possesses such powers as are conferred by statute.[92] As a taxpayer, 81. Under St. 1887, p. 29, providing for the organization of irrigation districts, the object of which is to enable owners whose lands are susceptible of irrigation from a common source to form a district, a land owner though part of his rights are as assignee, has no right to water for use beyond the limits of the district. Jenison v. Redfield [Cal.] 87 P. 62.

82. Laws 1901, p. 199, providing that county commissioners may modify the boundaries of a proposed district, but shall not exclude territory susceptible to irrigation by the system of works, does not give the commissioners power to refer requests for the exclusion of land to a committee of petitioners and act on their determination without investigation. Ahern v. High Line Irr. Dist. Directors [Colo.] 89 P. 963. Laws 1901, p. 199, providing that county commissioners may modify the boundaries of a proposed irrigation district as described in the petition, held the action of the board in excluding certain lands could be reviewed in special proceedings by the directors of the irrigation to determine the validity of its organization. Id.

83. Where persons owning in common a right to use a certain quantity of water agreed among themselves as to the manner of use, and owners representing the major portion of the right incorporated, held such corporation had no right without the consent of other owners to control the distribution of the water. Bartholomew v. Fayette Irr. Co. [Utah] 86 P. 481.

84. Poles and wires of a telegraph company placed in railroad land under a contract reserving them as personal property cannot be assessed by an irrigation district under St. 1887, p. 29. Not real property. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Modesto Irr. Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 190. Nor can they be assessed under Pol. Code, §§ 3617, 3663, and St. 1897, p. 267. Id.

85. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 848, 94 S. W. 400.

86. In an action to recover assessments on fully paid irrigation stock, evidence held to show that statutory notice of the meetings at which the assessment was levied was given. Callahan v. Chilcott Ditch Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 123. A stockholder cannot object to assessments on fully paid stock which he either voted for or paid, though it is provided by statute that such assessments may be levied only where stock has been fully subscribed, and this requirement had not been complied with. Id. Both by by-laws of an irrigation company and by 3 Mills' Ann. St. Rev. Supp. § 481, public and personal notice was required of stockholder's meetings. A stockholder ratified a meeting by paying an assessment levied on fully paid stock. Held that no notice of an adjourned session of such meeting was required to render the stockholder liable for another assessment levied at the adjourned meeting by paying an assessment levied on by an irrigation company to defray expenses for a season was held excessive and partially void because to be used in part in carrying out an illegal contract, the action of the directors in reducing the assessment was in effect the making of a new one not effected by the judgment holding the first one void. Grand Valley Irr. Co. v. Fruita Imp. Co. [Colo.] 96 P. 324.

87. Payment of an assessment levied on fully paid stock of an irrigation company, as authorized by 1 Mills' Ann. St. § 569, is ratification of the meeting levying the assessment. Callahan v. Chilcott Ditch Co. [Colo.] 86 P. 123.

88. See 6 C. L. 1866.

89. Sammons v. Kearney Power & Irr. Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 308. A water company is bound to comply with its duty under its franchise and contract to furnish water, though its supply is from a source different from that originally contemplated. People v. New Rochelle Water Co., 104 N. Y. S. 92.

90. Sammons v. Kearney Power & Irr. Co. [Neb.] 110 N. W. 308.

91. People v. New Rochelle Water Co., 104 N. Y. S. 92.

92. Act June 26, 1895, is supplemental to Act April 29, 1874, and authorizes water companies organized thereunder to lease their property to each other. Moore v. Chartiers Valley Water Co. [Pa.] 65 A. 936.

it has all the rights of one.[93] A water company may not, without first obtaining proper authority, lay its mains in the streets.[94] Where a water company acquires property in consideration of its agreement to make certain improvements, it is bound to make such improvements [95] or other equitable compensation.[96] The necessity of resort to condemnation proceeding for the acquisition of land is a question for the court.[97] Public use and necessity are elements to be considered in condemning land for the purpose of increasing the water supply of a city.[98] A water company's contract rights under the franchise and enabling ordinances are covered by a mortgage on its general property.[99] Such rights pass to the purchaser on foreclosure, or pass under a quitclaim deed of all its property.[1]

Water franchises.[2]—A franchise to construct waterworks is quasi public and can be conferred only through authority delegated from the state.[3] The mere grant of a franchise raises no implication that the municipality will not construct a competing plant.[4] A water company placing its pipes in the streets under a franchise does so in subordination to the superior rights of the public to construct sewers in the same streets whenever public interests so demand.[5] A requirement in the fran-

93. A private waterworks company which is a taxpayer may maintain a suit to restrain the diversion of funds raised by the taxation for the specified purpose of constructing a waterworks plant. Owensboro Waterworks Co. v. Owensboro, 29 Ky. L. R. 1118, 96 S. W. 867.

94. Under the statutes and general policy of the state of Maryland, a water company may not lay its pipes in the highway without first obtaining the consent of the authorities controlling the highways. Baltimore County Water & Elec. Co. v. Baltimore County Com'rs [Md.] 66 A. 34.

95. Where a water company desiring to lay a main through certain land contracted to grade the strip as a highway, and two of the deeds recited that they were made in consideration of the contract and others recited a nominal consideration and the advantage to be derived from the main. The company opened the strip for part of the distance, held, on its acquisition of land through which the way was not opened, it was required to open it. Bell v. Louisville Water Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 866, 96 S. W. 572. Where a water company received a strip of land in consideration of opening a way over it and part of the way was opened, but several years later the grantors learned that the company was about to build a permanent structure at a place where the way was not opened and brought suit, held not barred by laches. Id.

96. Where a water company acquired a strip of land for a main in consideration of opening it as a way, and erected on the way a permanent structure obstructing travel, held the removal of the structure would not be enjoined but the company would be required to pay the difference in the value of the land opened as a way and closed. Bell v. Louisville Water Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 866, 96 S. W. 572.

97. Under Acts 1889, p. 1371, authorizing the city of Rome to increase its water supply, and declaring that condemnation proceeding may be resorted to if land cannot be acquired by purchase, the necessity of resort to condemnation proceedings is a question for the court. City of Rome v. Whitestown Waterworks Co., 113 App. Div. 247, 100 N. Y. S. 357. Acts 1899, p. 1367, c. 624, authorizing the city of Rome to increase its water supply by taking water from Fish Creek, operated to give the city a preference right to such waters so that the filing by another of a map and survey of a location, as required by Laws 1880, p. 1151, prior to an election by the city, did not give it a prior right to the waters of the stream. Id.

98. City of Rome v. Whitestown Waterworks Co., 113 App. Div. 247, 100 N. Y. S. 357. In proceedings to condemn land to increase the water supply of a city, evidence held sufficient to show a necessity. Id. Where land was appropriated by a municipality for water supply purposes, it was proper to admit evidence showing that the land at the time of the appropriation was burdened with an easement in the city to dig ditch, and lay pipes. Creighton v. Charlotte Water Com'rs [N. C.] 55 S. E. 511.

99, 1. City of Vicksburg v. Vicksburg Waterworks Co., 202 U. S. 453, 50 Law. Ed. 1102.

2. See 6 C. L. 1866.

3. Washburn Waterworks Co. v. Washburn [Wis.] 108 N. W. 194.

4. A company organized subsequent to Act June 2, 1887, has no exclusive privilege to the use of the streets in the absence of agreement, and the mere grant of a right to lay pipes does not prevent the city from thereafter installing its own waterworks. Hastings Water Co. v. Hastings Borough [Pa.] 65 A. 403. Where a water company was incorporated as provided by St. 1882, p. 101, c. 142, it enjoyed no vested rights giving it immunity from competition by the construction of a municipal plant as authorized by statute. Revere Water Co. v. Winthrop [Mass.] 78 N. E. 497. A statute authorizing a town to construct a waterworks system is not a taking of the property of an existing water company without due process. Id. A contract between a city and water company by which the latter is granted a franchise to lay pipes and furnish water to the inhabitants does not by implication preclude the city from constructing a system. Tillamook Water Co. v. Tillamook City [C. C. A.] 150 F. 117.

5. If as a consequence of such improvement the water company is required to relay its pipes, it may not recover the ex chise that water be furnished free of charge to certain public institutions is based on a consideration.[6]

Water boards and districts.[7]—A water district is a public municipal corporation.[8] A board of water commissioners which acts wholly independent of the municipality is not subject to the statutory regulations relative to debts of municipalities.[9] A board of waterworks with authority to own stock of water companies, and to take possession of and operate their properties, is not a corporation created to carry on private business.[10] A sewage board with exclusive control over ponds and reservoirs may prohibit anything which is likely to pollute the water supply.[11] Statutory grants to water districts are subject to general rules of construction.[12]

Public ownership.[13]—Whether public interests would be served by conferring on towns authority to furnish their inhabitants with water is a matter for the exclusive determination of the legislature.[14] A city exercises its business or proprietary function in purchasing waterworks or contracting for their construction or operation.[15] A city owning and operating a waterworks system may supply water outside the city if there is sufficient water to do so after supplying the inhabitants,[16] but may not contract to extend its waterworks system to an adjoining city.[17] The requirements of a statute authorizing a municipality to lease or purchase a water plant must be substantially complied with.[18] A municipality in purchasing a waterpense from the city. Anderson v. Fuller [Fla.] 41 So. 684.

6. Where the grant of a waterworks franchise required the company to furnish water to schools and churches free of charge, held the agreement to furnish such water was based on a consideration. Independent School Dist. v. Le Mars City Water & Light Co. [Iowa] 107 N. W. 944.

7. See 6 C. L. 1867.

8. The Augusta water district is a public municipal corporation, and by virtue of Rev. St. c. 9, § 6, its property, appropriated to public use, is exempt from the taxation. City of Augusta v. Augusta Water Dist., 101 Me. 148, 63 A. 663.

9. Act April 4, 1867 (P. L. 768), creating the commissioners of the city waterworks of Erie, makes them wholly independent of the city authorities, and they may contract to improve the waterworks to be paid out of their own funds without regard to the constitutional provision requiring an appropriation before incurring a liability. Saltsman v. Olds [Pa.] 64 A. 552.

10. Acts 1906, p. 52, creating a board of waterworks with authority to own all the stock of waterworks companies, and to take possession of property and franchises and operate them for the benefit of the city, did not create a corporation to carry on private business contrary to the constitutional provision forbidding creations of such corporations by special acts. Kirch v. Louisville, 30 Ky. L. R. 1356, 101 S. W. 373.

11. Under a statute providing for the appointment of a sewerage board to operate a system of waterworks and protect purity of the water and have exclusive control over ponds and reservoirs, the board may prohibit boating on a great pond which is part of the water supply system, though boating might have been conducted without injury to the water. Sprague v. Minon [Mass.] 81 N. E. 284.

12. Acts 1902, c. 486, authorizing the South Deerfield water district to take water from Roaring Brook and its tributaries, construed, and held to authorize the taking of all the waters of the brook except a certain portion described. McLeod v. South Deerfield Water Supply Dist. [Mass.] 78 N. E. 764.

13. See 6 C. L. 1868.

14. Revere Water Co. v. Winthrop [Mass.] 78 N. E. 497.

15. Omaha Water Co. v. Omaha [C. C. A.] 147 F. 1. The legislature authorized the city of Omaha to contract for the construction and operation of waterworks on such terms and regulations as could be agreed upon. The city by ordinance offered the contract for the construction of the works and their operation for twenty-five years at such prices as the company should make with consumers. Such ordinance was accepted. Held it was a contract and the city could not reduce the rates. Id.

16. Rogers v. Wickliffe, 29 Ky. L. R. 587, 94 S. W. 24.

17. Dyer v. Newport, 29 Ky. L. R. 656, 94 S. W. 25. Under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 739, a city of the first class has authority to supply water to its own citizens, but not to another municipality. Farwell v. Seattle [Wash.] 86 P. 217. A borough may construct a reservoir and furnish water to its inhabitants, but not to persons outside the borough limits. Stauffer v. East Stroudsburg Borough [Pa.] 64 A. 411. In assessing damages for the taking of water from a stream for a borough reservoir, they are to be assessed as to the date of appropriation. Id.

18. Act June 19, 1893, authorizing towns to purchase or lease waterworks, and providing that before a contract shall be binding the council shall pass an ordinance including its terms, is sufficiently complied with by an ordinance for the leasing of a system setting forth the lease in the preamble and referring to it in the body of the ordinance. Gault v. Glen Ellyn, 226 Ill. 520, works plant takes it subject to the burdens upon it [19] and cannot discontinue to supply water to persons entitled to it.[20] A statute authorizing a city to purchase a water plant authorizes the company to sell.[21] A completed contract for the purchase of an equity of redemption of a water plant is not invalidated by the execution by the grantor of a warranty deed to a third person.[22] Where the grant of a franchise reserves to the city the option to purchase at the end of a certain period, an election to exercise the option constitutes a complete contract.[23] If the measure of compensation is fixed by statute it must be determined by a construction of such statute.[24] A statute authorizing a town to construct an independent system or requiring it to purchase the plant of an existing company if it desired to sell, upon conditions which can come into existence only on the initiative of the town, is valid.[25] Where the town accepts such statute and the existing company gives notice of its desire to sell, the town must act on such offer within a reasonable time.[26] After the offer of the company has been accepted, specific performance of the contract may be decreed.[27] As a general rule a proposition to purchase a water plant must be submitted to the voters.[28] The vote of a town rejecting a water company's offer to sell its 80 N. E. 1046. Under such statute an ordinance authorizing the leasing of the waterworks was not void because it contained an option from the water company to the village to purchase the plant. Id.

19. Where a city purchases land and water rights previously reduced to private ownership, the property is not relieved from the burden upon it by virtue of the appropriation of the water to public use to which it was subject at the time of the purchase. Fellows v. Los Angeles [Cal.] 90 P. 137.

20. A city after acquiring a water system cannot discontinue its operation, cease to furnish water to persons entitled to it, retain title and control of the property, and permit water previously devoted to public use to go to waste unless circumstances absolve it from the duty to furnish water. Fellows v. Los Angeles [Cal.] 90 P. 137.

21. Rev. St. 1898, §§ 951-959, authorizing a city to purchase a water plant, authorizes the corporation to sell and so disable itself from performing the service. Connor v. Marshfield, 128 Wis. 280, 107 N. W. 639. Contract for purchase of an equity of redemption in a water plant, construed. Id.

22. Connor v. Marshfield, 128 Wis. 280, 107 N. W. 639. Under Rev. St. 1898, §§ 951-959, the purchase by a city of the equity of redemption in a water plant is not void for want of popular vote. Id.

23. Under a franchise to construct and operate waterworks for twenty years, but giving the city the option to purchase at the end of fifteen years, the price to be determined by the court if it could not be agreed upon, where the city elected to exercise its option to purchase, the contract was complete from such date, and rights of the parties should be adjusted as of that date. Galena Water Co. v. Galena [Kan.] 87 P. 735. In determining the price in such case, the fact that the system is established, in operation, and has an unexpired franchise, is to be considered. Id.

24. Under St. 1887, p. 715, providing that a town might buy the plant of a water company by paying the total cost, including interest on each expenditure from its date, and that the excess of expenditures over income for any year should be added, and vice versa, held the company's investment as decreased or increased in any year was the basis for computing interest for the next year. Inhabitants of Tisbury v. Vineyard Haven Water Co. [Mass.] 79 N. E. 256.

25. A statute authorizing the construction of an independent system in towns supplied by private corporations, and also providing that the supplying company shall be left unrestricted in its business, or sell to the town which is required to purchase under certain conditions which can come into existence only in the initiative of the town, is valid. Revere Water Co. v. Winthrop [Mass.] 78 N. E. 497. Where a water company elected to sell its plant to the town, as authorized by St. 1905, p. 488, and the town voted to purchase, the elements of compensation to be considered in determining the price should not be estimated until title passes. Id.

26. Where, after acceptance by a town of a statute authorizing it to establish an independent water system, the existing water company notified the selectmen of its desire to sell, the town was required to act on such offer within a reasonable time. Revere Water Co. v. Winthrop [Mass.] 78 N. E. 497. Where a town accepted St. 1905, p. 488, authorizing towns to establish an independent water system in July, 1905, and an existing water company immediately offered to sell its plant but its proposition was rejected on Sept. 25, 1905, but was accepted on Nov. 23, 1907, held the last vote constituted an acceptance within a reasonable time. Id.

27. Where a water company's proposition to sell to a town had been accepted under St. 1905, p. 488, c. 477, requiring the town to purchase within thirty days, specific performance of the contract could be decreed at the suit of either party. Revere Water Co. v. Winthrop [Mass.] 78 N. E. 497. Specific performance will not be denied because there exists an adequate remedy at law for damages. Id. St. 1905, p. 488, c. 477, providing that after acceptance by a town of a water company's proposition to sell its plant to the town the company shall complete the conveyance within thirty days, only provided a minimum limit of time, and did not preclude a transfer subsequent to that period. Id.

28. Under Rev. Laws, c. 25, § 31, providplant did not exhaust the town's right to vote again on the proposition.[29] Under a statute providing that a town cannot purchase the plant of a waterworks company without the consent of a majority of the selectmen, the assent required is the affirmative act of the selectmen acting as a board.[30] A city is entitled to compensation where its waterworks property is taken in condemnation proceedings.[31]

Contract for public supply.[32]—Municipalities may be authorized to contract for a water supply [33] and, in the exercise of its police power, may contract for a supply for fire extinguishment purposes.[34] An ordinance under which a water company is to furnish a supply is a contract,[35] and if unreasonable and oppressive and passed in the interests of the company may be set aside,[36] but not if it appears fair [37] and does not render the city liable for acts of the company.[38] A taxpayer ing that a town, by action of its selectmen, ratified by a majority of the voters, may purchase a water supply or plant, a proposed contract to purchase a water company's plant must be ratified by the voters before it is enforceable. Revere Water Co. v. Winthrop [Mass.] 78 N. E. 497. Where voters were called upon to vote on a proposition to purchase a water plant, the warrant of the town meeting was the only authorized source the voters could look to to ascertain what subjects were presented for their decision, and no action could be taken by them in the absence of an article covering such proposed purchase. Id. Where the vote was void, and the town thereafter refused to ratify the action of the selectmen, the fact that it accepted a deed and took possession did not estop it to deny that title passed. Id. Where the vote of the electors was void, subsequent acts and acceptance of deed and possession did not pass title nor obligate the town to pay the purchase price. Id.

29. Revere Water Co. v. Winthrop [Mass.] 78 N. E. 497.

30. Revere Water Co. v. Winthrop [Mass.] 78 N. E. 497. Such assent is not to be implied from a recital in the contract authorizing selectmen to execute a contract on behalf of the town, the board in existence at the time it is made having declined to assent. Id. Where the vote of selectmen of a town to purchase a waterworks plant was void because of failure of a majority of the selectmen to assent as required by statute, it was ineffective as foundation for a bill for specific performance by the water company. Id. Rev. Laws, c. 25, § 31, providing that a town by action of its selectmen, ratified by the voters, may purchase a waterworks system, contemplates that the question of initiative public policy of such purchase shall have first been passed on by the selectmen. Id.

31. Under Laws 1901, p. 423, where city waterworks property is taken for a street, the city is entitled to an award of damages to the same extent as other owners. In re Van Cortlandt Ave. [N. Y.] 78 N. E. 952.

32. See 6 C. L. 1868.

33. Act Ohio May 12, 1886, authorizing cities of the fourth grade of the second class to contract for water supply, superseded all prior legislation on the subject and rendered inapplicable 82 Ohio Laws, p. 11, requiring such contracts to be submitted to the voters. City of Defiance v. McGonigale [C. C. A.] 150 F. 689.

34. A city in the exercise of its police power may contract for a supply of water for fire extinguishment to be furnished either by the municipality or by another under contract with it. Dyer v. Newport, 29 Ky. L. R. 656, 94 S. W. 25.

35. Lackey v. Fayetteville Water Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 622.

36. An ordinance contracting for a water supply showing on its face that it is unreasonable and passed in the interest of the grantee of the franchise will be set aside. Lackey v. Fayetteville Water Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 622. Court will inquire at the instance of a taxpayer whether there has been actual or intentional fraud in the enactment of an ordinance contracting for a municipal water supply. Id. The fart that the president of a water company seeking to obtain a franchise held various interviews with members of the council, endeavored to procure as an advantageous contract as possible, employed counsel and told the council that they did not need any, does not show fraud. Id. A contract by a city for a water supply provided that the company should supply the streets, alleys, and public squares with water, enlarge the capacity of the plant to meet growing demands, water should be the purest obtainable, with provisions as to pressure, afforded the city ample protection as to quality and quantity. Id.

37. It is presumed that in contracting for a water supply a city council made proper investigation to determine what would be reasonable hydrant rentals. Lackey v. Fayetteville Water Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 622. The fact that the amount a city contracted to pay for hydrant rentals, with other expenses, would absorb all the current revenues at the time, is not objectionable on the ground that it appropriated all revenue of the city in advance of levy. Id. The fact that a contract by a city for a water supply netted the company a profit of $25 for furnishing additional hydrants does not show that the charge was so exorbitant as to avoid the contract. Id. An annual rental of $35 per hydrant is not so excessive on its face as to render the contract void. Id. Where a contract for water supply provided that if the supply should at any time cease, the city might take temporary charge of the plant and make the expense incurred a lien on the earnings of the company, a contention that the city was at the mercy of the water company as to the amount of water to be supplied was untenable. Id.

38. Taxpayers may not enjoin enforcement of a contract for a water supply on may sue to enjoin the execution of a contract on the ground that it is ultra vires.[39] The contract may be made for a reasonable term.[40] A contract by a water company to furnish a town with water for domestic and fire purposes and other lawful uses does not authorize the company to furnish water for power purposes to the prejudice of the town for domestic and fire uses.[41] A succeeding municipal corporation which uses the water contracted for by its predecessor is bound by its contract.[42] A contract to furnish water free of charge for fire extinguishment purposes does not require the company to furnish water free of charge in a private system of fire protection.[43] A company is entitled to compensation for services rendered,[44] and, when it complies with its contract to furnish a certain number of free taps,[45] it may make a reasonable charge for other taps installed.[46] The mere receipt and consumption of water by a city does not show acceptance of such service as performance of the contract.[47]

§ 16. Water service and rates.[48] Service contracts.[49]—A statute giving a city power to authorize the construction of water works and fix rates by contract makes every consumer privy to the contract to such extent as enables him to enforce his rights under it.[50] the ground that it required the construction of a dam and that, no right of way having been obtained, lands of private owners would be flooded and the city liable, as the city would not be liable in such case. Lackey v. Fayetteville Water Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 622.

39. A taxpayer may sue to enjoin a city from executing a contract for a water supply on the ground that it is ultra vires. Dyer v. Newport, 29 Ky. L. R. 656, 94 S. W. 25.

40. An ordinance by which a city contracted for a water supply was not unreasonable or unjust on account of the term of the franchise where the ordinance merely extended the term of the franchise for nine years. Lackey v. Fayetteville Water Co. [Ark.] 96 S. W. 622. An ordinance fixing hydrant rentals for ten years, and the minimum charge to consumers, does not violate Kirby's Dig. §§ 5445, 5447, authorizing the council to reduce exorbitant rates by tying the hands of future councils, as the ordinance was passed after the statute took effect. Id. Power in a city to contract for the construction and operation of waterworks "on such terms and under such regulations as may be agreed upon" constitutes authority to the municipality to agree with the contractor upon the rates to be collected from consumers during a reasonable term of years. Omaha Water Co. v. Omaha [C. C. A.] 147 F. 1. The legislature may empower a city by contract to suspend for a reasonable term its power to fix or regulate rates which a water company may collect from consumers. Id. Neither the power of a municipality to contract with a third person for the construction and operation of a system of waterworks, nor the rights of the latter under the contract, constitutes a special privilege or immunity within a constitutional provision prohibiting any irrevocable grant of special privileges or immunities. Id.

41. Town of Boonton v. United Water Supply Co. [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 1064.

42. Under the statutes of Wisconsin it was held, where a town contracts for a water supply and was subsequently merged into a city, the inhabitants of which continued to use the water, that the city or later municipal corporation was liable on the contract for the water. Washburn Waterworks Co. v. Washburn [Wis.] 108 N. W. 194.

43. A contract by which a water company agrees to furnish water free of charge for the purpose of extinguishing fires does not require the furnishing of water free of charge to be used in a private system of fire protection instituted by a private corporation for protection of its own property. Cox v. Abbeville Furniture Factory [S. C.] 54 S. E. 830.

44. Where a contract with a water company for use of a fire hydrant provided for an annual rent to be paid semi-annually on May first and November first, life of contract to be one year commencing January first and thereafter until the expiration of thirty days' notice, the cutting off of water for default in payment of rent did not estop the company to sue for rent due up to the time water was cut off. Bienville Water Supply Co. v. Hieronymus Bros. [Ala.] 43 So. 124.

45. Contract between a municipality and water company construed, and held that the water company had complied with its provisions as to furnishing certain free taps. Public Works Co. v. Old Town [Me.] 66 A. 723.

46. Where a city under its contract with a water company had the right to a certain number of free faucets but used more and refused to elect which should be free ones, the water company had a right to make the election and charge for the others. Public Works Co. v. Old Town [Me.] 66 A. 723. There being no contract to the contrary, the company was entitled to put on meters and charge fair meter rates. Id.

47. The mere receipt and consumption of water, under a contract by which a water company agrees to furnish a municipal corporation with a sufficient supply of potable water for domestic and fire purposes, does not conclusively show acceptance of the service as performance of the contract, as considerable time might be required to ascertain whether imperfect service was the result of unavoidable accident excepted in the contract. Skowhegan Water Co. v. Skowhegan Village Corp. [Me.] 66 A. 714.

48. See 6 C. L. 1869.

49. See 6 C. L. 1870.

50. Independent School Dist. v. Le Mars City Water & Light Co. [Iowa] 107 N. W.

Injuries from deficient supply or equipment, and negligence.[51]—It is generally held that a water company which contracts to furnish a supply of water for fire protection is not liable to a citizen whose property is destroyed because of its failure to do so,[52] though a different rule prevails where such damages were contemplated by the parties,[53] and in Florida it is held that a taxpayer may recover in tort for such injury.[54]

Rules and regulations of service.[55]—A water company may preserve reasonable rules and regulations of service.[56]

Water rates.[57]—Water companies are entitled to charge just and reasonable rates for their services,[58] which they may fix or change within prescribed limits.[59] Where it is provided by statute that water rates shall be reasonable, a consumer is not bound by a contract between the municipality and the water company fixing rates alleged to be unreasonable.[60] Where water is furnished for use in a special private system of fire protection, a reasonable rate may be charged though water is not used.[61] The published rate will be read into an application for a supply of water.[62] The legislature has general power to provide for the regulation of rates [63]

944. Where the grant of a franchise required the company to furnish water free of charge to an independent school district, such district may maintain mandamus to enforce the company to furnish the water. Id.

51. See 6 C. L. 1870.

52. A water company supplying water to a city under an ordinance which requires it to provide a sufficient supply for fire purposes is not liable to an owner whose building is destroyed because of its negligent failure to do so. Metz v. Cape Girardeau Water Works & Elec. Light Co. [Mo.] 100 S. W. 651. A water company is not liable to a resident for loss by fire, though it had agreed with the township to and was negligent in not providing an adequate supply of water for fires. Thompson v. Springfield Water Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 521. A resident of a city cannot recover for loss by fire occasioned by failure of the company to furnish a supply of water for fire extinguishment according to its contract. Lovejoy v. Bessemer Waterworks Co. [Ala.] 41 So. 76.

53. Under a contract for water service for fire purposes, loss by fire as a consequence of the breach of such contract may be reasonably supposed to have been within the contemplation of the parties. Hunt Bros. Co. v. San Lorenzo Water Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 1093. Under the circumstances of this case, damages caused by fire prior to installation of the hydrant held not within the contemplation of the parties. Id.

54. Where a water company by the terms of its contract enjoys extensive franchises and privileges, and assumes the duty of furnishing water for the extinguishment of fires, it is liable to a taxpayer whose property is burned because of its negligence in not furnishing water according to its contract. Mugge v. Tampa Water Works Co. [Fla.] 42 So. 81.

55. See 6 C. L. 1871.

56. Where a city owns and operates a water plant, a regulation that where two or more persons use the same tap the supply may be shut off for nonpayment, notwithstanding some of the parties have paid their proportion, is reasonable. Cox v. Cynthiana, 29 Ky. L. R. 780, 96 S. W. 456. In such case it is immaterial to the parties who paid whether the city offered to the others a printed contract or application stating its scheme of furnishing water. Id.

57. See 6 C. L. 1871.

58. A rate of $2.25 per thousand cubic feet against boarding house keepers is not unreasonable, nor is it a discrimination against such users where it appears that such rate is about equal per capita with the rate of private consumers. Woodruff v. East Orange [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 466. A borough having a water system of its own can impose reasonable charges for supplying water to residents. Jolly v. Monaca Borough [Pa.] 65 A. 809. The term "minimum charge" in water supply contracts where a meter system is used usually signifies rate of compensation for expense of being ready to supply water at the will of the consumer, though the supply is not used at all. Cox v. Abbeville Furniture Factory [S. C.] 54 S. E. 830.

59. Under Laws 1890, p. 1150, providing that water companies shall supply water at reasonable rates, held, where an agreement between the city and a corporation prescribed maximum and minimum rates, the city could not maintain an action to reform the contract by striking such provisions on the ground of ultra vires. City of Mt. Vernon v. New York Interurban Water Co., 101 N. Y. S. 232.

60. City of Mt. Vernon v. New York Interurban Water Co., 101 N. Y. S. 232.

61. A water company which furnishes water for use in a special private system of fire protection without a contract fixing liability therefor is entitled to reasonable compensation whether the water was used or not. Cox v. Abbeville Furniture Factory [S. C.] 54 S. E. 830. A property owner who has installed such a system and connected it with the water mains, although he may not take water except in case of fire, enjoys a beneficial use of the water not common to the general public. The water board may make a reasonable charge for such special privilege. Gordon v. Doran [Minn.] 111 N. W. 272.

62. Where a consumer has applied for and received water from a borough, the water rates are the price paid for the water on the terms and conditions made public by the city, which by his application the consumer but may not enforce an unreasonably low rate.[64] The water board will not be permitted to enforce illegal rates by severing connection with a fire sprinkling device.[65] In the absence of statutory authority, a city may not compel a subsequent owner or occupant of premises to pay delinquent water charges which he did not contract to pay.[66] A municipality authorized to contract for a water supply may require water to be furnished free for public purposes.[67] Where a city is authorized by statute to fix water rates, rates establishd cannot be controlled by the courts except for inequality or some similar reason.[68] The power of a city to regulate water rates partakes of the nature of a governmental power, and also of the nature of a business power.[69] A city may suspend its power to regulate rates for a reasonable period.[70] A contract for a specified rate will not be required during the term of the contract.[71] The discretion of the board of supervisors in refusing to fix or add to an established water rate until future action cannot be controlled by mandamus.[72] Water users may be classified according to their lines of business.[73] Dwelling houses may be classified according to the number of rooms.[74] A specified rate for dwellings does has agreed to pay. Jolly v. Monaca Borough [Pa.] 65 A. 809.

63. Under the constitution of California, declaring that use of all water for sale or distribution is a public one, and providing that the board of supervisors may fix water rates where it is furnished in counties, other than cities, held to apply, where the place of distribution was outside any city, though the supply was obtained from a natural source within a city. Fellows v. Los Angeles [Cal.] 90 P. 137.

64. The enforcement of a water rate fixed by county commissioners which was so low that the water company could make no profit may be enjoined. Water company held not precluded from maintaining proceedings to restrain enforcement of such rate because of delay in petitioning. Board of Com'rs of Montezuma County v. Montezuma Water & Land Co. [Colo.] 89 P. 794.

65. Gordon v. Doran [Minn.] 111 N. W. 272. Rules of a water board, giving credit for water consumed through small pipes supplied with meters upon charges for unmetered connections of a building using an automatic sprinkling device with mains, held discriminatory because lacking uniformity in principle and operation. Id. Injunction will issue to protect the public and individuals entitled to water service against unreasonable charges or discrimination. Order granting injunction affirmed. Id.

66. Linne v. Bredes [Wash.] 86 P. 858. A vendor who has agreed to pay water bills is liable only for legal bills, and may make the same defense against his purchaser, who has paid an improper bill, that he could against the water department. Williams v. Fraade, 102 N. Y. S. 806.

67. Under Code 1873, § 471, giving a municipality power to construct waterworks or authorize the construction by another, and § 473, authorizing it to make the grant of the right inure for a term, and authorize the grantee to charge such rates as may be agreed upon, a municipality may contract for the water supply and the rates to be charged, and require the grantee of the franchise to furnish water to schools and churches free of charge. Independent School Dist. of Le Mars v. Le Mars City Water & Light Co. [Iowa] 107 N. W. 944. Under a franchise requiring the company to furnish water at specified rates, and to schools free of charge, subsequent to the grant of which a sewer system was constructed, held the company was bound to furnish water for the sewer system at the specified charges, and to furnish water for the water closets at the schools free of charge. Id.

68. Woodruff v. East Orange [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 466. The reasonableness of rates could be questioned in the supreme court only in the exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction by means of writ of certiorari. Id.

69. Omaha Water Co. v. Omaha [C. C. A.] 147 F. 1.

70. The making of a municipal contract to suspend for twenty-five years the power of a city to regulate the rates a water company can collect in consideration of construction of the waterworks system is not unreasonable. Omaha Water Co. v. Omaha [C. C. A.] 147 F. 1.

71. An accepted ordinance providing for such rates as may be agreed upon between the water company and consumer is a contract that the city will not reduce the rates during the term of the contract. Omaha Water Co. v. Omaha [C. C. A.] 147 F. 1. Foreclosure of a mortgage on the rights of a water company passes its contract right to collect rates specified in a contract between it and the city. Id.

72. Berger v. Justice [Cal. App.] 88 P. 591.

73. A city authorized to fix water rates may classify water users with reference to their lines of business. Woodruff v. East Orange [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 466. Where a city maintaining a waterworks system supplied water at a rate determined by the quantity used, furnished water to one who owns several buildings within one inclosure, and put in several meters for the convenience of determining the quantity of water furnished, held that the charge must be made as if all water had been supplied through one meter. Scovill Mfg. Co. v. Kilduff [Conn.] 64 A. 218.

74. Where a company was required to furnish water at specified rates per dwelling, determined by the number of rooms, in computing the number of rooms it was not entitled to count reception halls. City of Birmingham v. Birmingham Waterworks Co. [Ala.] 42 So. 10. Where a single house was divided into apartments occupied by different families, a water company entitled to not include water for sprinkling lawns[75] or gardens.[76] Under the charter of Greater New York, the measurement of water used as shown by meters is conclusive in the absence of fraud, mistake or accident.[77] Rates specified in a contract are applicable to extension of the city.[78] A municipal corporation has not such an interest in the relations of a waterworks company and a consumer as warrants it in bringing action to determine the reasonableness of rates charged.[79] A municipality has no sufficient interest to maintain an action to determine the reasonableness of rates charged to individual consumers.[80] Payment of an unjust rate under threat of shutting off supply is not voluntary,[81] and the amount paid may be recovered back in assumpsit.[82]

§ 17. Grants, contracts and licenses.[83]—Contracts relating to water rights are within the statute of frauds when such rights are classified as realty.[84] The usual rules of construction apply to grants of and contracts pertaining to water and water rights.[85] A water right, if appurtenant, passes with a conveyance of the land.[86] Effect will be given to the intention of the parties as determined from the terms of the instrument and surrounding circumstances.[87] The rights and charge for each dwelling according to the number of rooms was not entitled to treat each separate room as a dwelling. Id. Where a water company was entitled to charge rates for dwellings according to the number of rooms, it is entitled to charge for a single house as two or more dwellings where it was occupied by several families occupying apartments separated by partitions without common halls, entrances, or exits. Id. Where a water company was entitled to charge a specified rate for dwellings according to the number of rooms, it could include servants' houses within the curtilage in determining the number of rooms, though there were no hydrants in such houses. Id. Where a contract authorized the water company to charge for water closets in private families, it is entitled to charge each family occupying an apartment house for use of a closet whether they used one used by another family or not. Id.

75. Where a water company was authorized to charge specified rates for dwellings and meter rates for other purposes, the rate for dwellings did not include water used for sprinkling lawns, etc. City of Birmingham v. Birmingham Water Works Co. [Ala.] 42 So. 10.

76. Under a contract between a city and a water company prescribing specified rates for domestic uses, and authorizing the company to charge meter rates for other purposes, the company was not required to furnish water at domestic rates for use on vegetable gardens. City of Birmingham v. Birmingham Water Works Co. [Ala.] 42 So. 10.

77. Pabst Brew. Co. v. Oakley, 100 N. Y. S. 794. Evidence insufficient to justify disturbing the record of water used as shown by a meter installed, under Greater New York Charter, Laws 1887, pp. 164, 165. Id.

78. Persons residing beyond the city limits at the time the contract with the water company was made, but who subsequently are brought within city limits by extension, are entitled to water at the rates specified in the contract. City of Birmingham v. Birmingham Water Works Co. [Ala.] 42 So. 10.

79, 80. City of Mt. Vernon v. New York Interurban Water Co., 101 N. Y. S. 232.

81, 82. City of Chicago v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 120 Ill. App. 497.

83. See 6 C. L. 1873.

84. Though by statute water rights are classified as realty, an oral agreement relating thereto may be performed to such an extent as to be enforceable. Bree v. Wheeler [Cal. App.] 87 P. 255. An agreement settling water rights which is carried into effect and acquiesced in for a considerable period is not within the statute of frauds. Id.

85. Grant construed and held to pass certain rights of flowage. Grothe v. Lane [Neb.] 110 N. W. 305. Where a grant is made of the right to draw water from a dam for the purpose of carrying on a certain business, in the absence of recitals in the grant or other explanatory conditions it should be held that a definite head of water was to be maintained and that it would be sufficient for the purposes of the grant. Oakland Woolen Co. v. Union Gas & Elec. Co., 101 Me. 198, 63 A. 915. A grant of a right to take water from a flume "for carrying on every branch of a tannery business" is not a grant of an indefinite quantity of water, but only a grant of enough to carry on the business as it existed at the time or was then contemplated. Id. A contract by which the owner of waters of a creek sold a portion of them to another and made the right appurtenant to his land construed and held not to limit the use of the water to such land, and that the purchaser was entitled to sell the surplus. Calkins v. Sorosis Fruit Co. [Cal.] 88 P. 1094. Where one was under contract to furnish water, evidence that the grantor of the seller had cut off the water so that it could not be furnished held insufficient to show damage to the full amount of the contract price. Id.

86. A mortgage on land and appurtenant water company stock conveys the stock. San Gabriel Valley Bk. v. Lake View Town Co. [Cal. App.] 89 P. 360. A covenant to supply a residence with water for domestic purposes runs with the land. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. McKinney, 124 Ga. 929, 53 S. E. 701.

87. A grant of a lot with an undivided third part of a mill dam and a right to use one-third of the water after deducting the right to use water for a certain enterprise was not also subject to the deduction of the water used by a mill on the ground that the liabilities of the parties rest in the terms of the contract,[88] and one who asserts rights under a contract cannot acquire a right by prescription.[89] All grants of water power are subject to the right of lower riparian owners to have the natural flow of the stream transmitted to them after reasonable use or detention.[90] When the owner of a dam and water privileges grants a portion of the water power thereby developed, the right of the grantee to the extent of the grant is superior to the rights of the grantor.[91] But if the grantee is not using the water, the grantor or those holding under him may use the entire flow or permit it to flow down stream.[92] A riparian owner may not as such convey to another the right to use water on any land except that to which the right originally attached as against third persons also entitled to use the water.[93] Rights may be acquired by prescription [94] but not mill was excepted from the conveyance. Oakland Woolen Co. v. Union Gas & Elec. Co., 101 Me. 198, 63 A. 915. A grant by the owner of a dam of the right to use 500 inches of water as a substitute for a prior grant in which the head was not mentioned carried by implication the right to draw water from the dam at the head at which water was ordinarily taken under the prior grant. Id. When the amount of water in an ancient grant was measured by the power required at its date and there remains no evidence of the power then required, the continued use by the grantee for a long period of time of a certain amount is sufficient evidence of the extent of the grant. Id.

88. A landlord who agrees to furnish water for irrigating a crop of the tenant or so much water as can be furnished from a well on the premises is not unconditionally bound to furnish sufficient water to irrigate the crop, but if the well supplied enough he was bound to furnish it. Duson v. Dodd [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1040. A contract by which an owner granted the right to erect and maintain a dam on a river for irrigation purposes to constitute an easement so long as the grantee should desire to use it held not to create an exclusive right in the grantee to the waters impounded by the dam. Metcalfe v. Faucher [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 1038. There was reserved a right to use impounded water for irrigation purposes subject to an equitable apportionment as between the owners and holders of the easement. Id. A deed by a riparian owner of all water and riparian rights pertaining to certain land did not limit the rights of the grantee to water then standing in the lake. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338. The privity with a deed of one who holds land adjacent to a lake, the water rights to which had been conveyed to another by his grantor, does not estop him from making an appropriation of water in the lake subject thereto, nor from demanding that the grantee of the riparian rights should not make greater use of the water than his deed entitled him to. Id. Where a riparian owner conveyed his water rights in a stream reserving sufficient amount for domestic purposes and afterwards conveyed the land, the grantees could not object to the use to which the owners of the water right applied the water. Id. A grantee of water rights which belonged to or in any manner pertained to certain land except water enough for domestic purposes and for watering stock passed the right to use all the waters of the lake except sufficient for the purposes excepted. Id. Under a deed of the right to the unobstructed use of the waters of certain springs and a pond, with the right to maintain a ditch across the grantor's land, the grantee has the right to so locate his ditch as to draw all the waters from the springs or pond but cannot require the grantor to maintain the pond in the condition it was at the time of the grant nor store water in the pond for his use, and the grantor may use only the surplus water after the grantee has used what he wants. Royster Guano Co. v. Fowles [S. C.] 56 S. E. 11. In a suit to restrain diversion setting forth means of diversion and also further threatened diversion in violation of the grant, held that the court might consider acts done after the action was brought by extending a ditch referred to in the pleading as a method of diversion and grant complete relief. Id. Where parties agreed on a division of water rights, one who was forced to defend his rights could rely on his original claim and also upon the agreement. Bree v. Wheeler [Cal. App.] 87 P. 255. Where parties agreed as to water rights and one put in a measuring box which was twice taken out by the other after which the latter used all the water, such subsequent use did not affect the rights under the agreement. Id.

89. The holder of a contract easement for taking water from a stream for irrigation purposes who always asserts his rights under his contract cannot acquire a right by prescription. Metcalfe v. Faucher [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 1038.

90, 91, 92. Oakland Woolen Co. v. Union Gas & Elec. Co., 101 Me. 198, 63 A. 915.

93. Duckworth v. Watsonville Water & Light Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 338. A conveyance by an owner whose land abutted on a stream which formed the outlet of a lake of all riparian and other water rights which he possessed passed only the right to use water when it flowed in the stream and not to take water as against third persons having rights in the water of the lake. Id.

94. Where a deed reserved an easement of flowage and improvements in the method and extent of the use were made for 43 years without objection, its continued use in the same manner will not be enjoined. Henderson Estate Co. v. Carroll Elec. Co., 99 N. Y. S. 365. Evidence sufficient to show a prescriptive right to use water of a spring located on land of another and flowing through a pipe to claimant's land. Higuera v. Del Ponte [Cal. App.] 88 P. 808.

by permission [95] or interrupted use.[96] An easement of flowage is not lost by mere nonuser.[97] A license to drain onto the land of another may be revoked at the pleasure of the licensor.[98] It is a personal privilege and does not run with the land.[99]

§ 18. Torts relating to waters.[1]—A water company is liable in damages for its breach of duty in cutting off the water supply from a patron.[2] One who releases water from its channel and causes it to flood adjacent property [3] or who fills a drain [4] is liable. A contractor who negligently constructs a water main is liable where water escapes and floods a cellar.[5] One who deposits waste material into a ditch constructed to drain land, and thereby injures crops on adjacent land is liable.[6]

Damages.[7]—Where land is flooded by the overflow, the principle of actual compensation governs.[8] If the injury to the land is permanent, the measure of damages is the depreciation in the value of the land.[9] If temporary the measure is the decreased rental value or decreased value of use and occupancy.[10] Other special 95. No prescriptive right to drain land onto the premises of another is acquired where such use is permissive. Jones v. Stover [Iowa] 108 N. W. 112.

96. Bree v. Wheeler [Cal. App.] 87 P. 255.

97. A reservation in a deed to riparian lands if the right of flowage "as heretofore" is sufficient to reserve a privilege in the nature of an easement which is not lost by mere nonuser. Henderson Estate Co. v. Carroll Elec. Co., 99 N. Y. S. 365.

98. A gratuitous license to drain land onto the land of another may be revoked at the pleasure of the licensor. Jones v. Stover [Iowa] 108 N. W. 112.

99. Jones v. Stover [Iowa] 108 N. W. 112.

1. See 6 C. L. 1875.

2. A private corporation in the exercise of its franchise conferring upon it the right to lay mains in the streets and furnish water at fixed rates, which engages in the business of furnishing water to the general public, becomes liable as a public service corporation for its wrongful act in cutting off the water supply which it is under duty to furnish to a patron as a member of the public. The fact that there was sickness in the family from whom the water was cut off cannot be considered on the question of damages unless the agents of the water company had knowledge of such fact. Freeman v. Macon Gas Light & Water Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 61.

3. Mere trespassers who release water from a ditch and cause overflow of lands are liable though they did not own the land on which the ditch was maintained nor have an easement therein. Reams v. Clopine [Neb.] 110 N. W. 550.

4. Evidence sufficient to show one liable who filled up a drain and caused water to be turned down into a basement. Mulrone v. Marshall [Mont.] 88 P. 797.

5. Where owing to improper calking of joints, a water main leaked and flooded a cellar, the owner was entitled to recover from the contractor who constructed the main. Kirk & Co. v. Cunningham & Kearns Contracting Co., 99 N. Y. S. 879.

6. Discharge of acids and waste from an oil mill into a ditch originally constructed to drain land and extending through land of an adjoining owner, by which he suffers injury to his crops and from unwholesome odors, constitutes a private nuisance. Exley v. Southern Cotton Oil Co., 151 F. 101.

7. See 6 C. L. 1876. See, also, Damages, 7 C. L. 1029.

8. Evidence insufficient to show total destruction of the land. Young v. Extension Ditch Co. [Idaho] 89 P. 296. The rental value is the measure where land is not injured, but the owner is prevented from raising a crop. Id. If land is temporarily injured, the amount necessary to repair the injury with interest is the measure. Id. If totally destroyed, the measure is the value at the time with interest. Id. If permanently injured but not totally destroyed, the measure is the difference between the value immediately prior to and immediately after the flood. Id. Treble damages cannot be recovered for flooding land. Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Grant [Kan.] 89 P. 658.

9. Where land is injured by overflows occuring from time to time and in washing Johnson grass seed into plaintiff's land, the measure of damages is the depreciation in value of the land from the time of the wrongful act to date of trial. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Terhune [Tex. Civ. App.] 94 S. W. 381. Damages for permanent injuries to land caused by negligence in constructing ditches and in allowing roots and seeds of Johnson grass to be washed onto the land may be recovered. Id. The measure of damages for injuries resulting from flooding because of defective culverts on the land of an adjoining proprietor if the injury is permanent is the depreciation in the value of the land. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Green [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 573. In an action against a railroad company for maintaining a ditch along its right of way where the court instructed that the measure of damages was different if the injury was permanent instead of temporary, it was not proper to refuse to instruct the jury to state in their verdict whether damages allowed was for permanent or temporary injuries, since the right to maintain future actions depended on the character of the verdict. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Whitsell [Ky.] 101 S. W. 334. A claim for damages for permanent injury to land by overflow is inconsistent with a claim for loss of annual crops or rents. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Terhune [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 16, 94 S. W. 381.

10. If the injury is permanent the measure is the depreciation in value of the land, if temporary it is the decreased rental value, damages may be recovered [11] if not too remote.[12] Punitive damages may be recovered in case of gross negligence.[13] Where crops are injured or destroyed, the measure of damages varies.[14]

§ 19. Crimes and offenses relating to waters.[15]—In Washington it is a crime to cause an aperture to be made in any structure erected to conduct water for irrigating purposes.[16] Some cities in the exercise of the police power make it an offense to permit water mains to be out of repair for more than a specified period [17] regardless of the cause of such condition.[18] or decreased value of use and occupancy. Pickerill v. Louisville, 30 Ky. L. R. 1239, 100 S. W. 873. The measure for injuries caused by obstructing the flow of surface water where the owner is in possession is the diminution in the value of the use together with cost of repairing the same. Id. The measure of damages where ditches, culverts and grades constructed by a city causes land cisterns and cellars to overflow is the depreciation in rental value, or use and occupancy together with the cost of cleaning out and repairing the property after each flood. Hutchison v. Maysville, 30 Ky. L. R. 1173, 100 S. W. 331. The measure of damages for flooding a mining claim which lessees were working is the value of the use of the claim during the time work therein was prevented. Dalton v. Moore [C. C. A.] 141 F. 311.

WAYS, see latest topical index.

11. Where a railroad embankment caused overflow of adjacent land and the landowner was compelled to wade through it and contracted rheumatism, each issue together with contributory negligence in wading through such water should be submitted. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Stewart [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 282. An action for permanent injuries to land by flooding and for special damages in that the flood plaintiff was required to travel by a circuitous route to reach his land may be joined. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Walker [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 268, 97 S. W. 1081. An instruction that the cost of extirpating Johnson grass, the seed and roots of which were washed on land held not erroneous as allowing recovery for the cost of removing such foul grass as was not the result of the flooding. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Merritt [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 151.

12. Damagee resulting from obstruction and concentration of the flow of water over a railroad right of way causing an overflow of adjacent land and the deposit thereon of Johnson grass seed are too remote. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Ondrej [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 176.

13. Punitive damages may be recovered where a railroad is grossly negligent in obstructing the flow of surface water. Central of Ga. R. Co. v. Keyton [Ala.] 41 So. 918.

14. The measure where matured or nearly matured crops are destroyed is the market value at the time the overflow occurred. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Foster [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1017. An instruction that the measure of damages was the difference between what was produced and what would have been produced had the flood not occurred, less the difference in cost of producing what was and what would have been produced is not so far variant from the rule that actual value of the crop destroyed can be recovered, ae to require reversal where no other instruction was requested. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hoshall [Ark.] 102 S. W. 207. Where crops are flooded the measure is compensation with interest. Little Rock & Ft. Smith R. Co. v. Wallis [Ark.] 102 S. W. 390. Instruction though not clearly expressed held equivalent to one that the measure of damages for flooding a rice crop was the difference in value of the rice in good condition and its value in its injured condition. Colorado Canal Co. v. Sims [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 944, 94 S. W. 365. In an action for injuries to a rice crop by overflow from a canal, it was error to submit the reasonableness of expenditures made in protecting the crop where there was no evidence that the sums paid were reasonable. Id. Where a rice crop was flooded by overflow from a canal, the measure of damages for the rice destroyed was its market value less cost of threshing. Id. Measure of damages is the value at time it was destroyed. Id. The measure of damages for flooding growing crops is the value of the crops at the time together with the value of the right to gather them when matured. St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal R. Ass'n v. Schultz, 226 Ill. 409, 80 N. E. 879.

15. See 6 C. L. 1876.

16. An indictment under Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 7154, making it a crime to "willfully or maliciously" cause an aperture in any structure erected to conduct water for agricultural purposes, is sufficient where it charges that the act was done "unlawfully and willfully." State v. Tiffany [Wash.] 87 P. 932. An information is sufficient which charges that the structure was erected to conduct water for irrigation purposes. State v. Tiffany [Wash.] 87 P. 932. Such statute includes a dam constructed for storing water for irrigation purposes. Id.

17. An ordinance prohibiting any person or corporation operating a waterworks system from permitting its pipes to be out of repair for more than two days in succession is valid. Crumpler v. Vicksburg [Miss.] 42 So. 673. Such statute was based on a valid classification and was not objectionable for nonuniformity. Id. In a prosecution for violation of such ordinance, evidence as to the condition of the street in which the leaky pipe was located, prior to the date prosecution was commenced, was admissible. Crumpler v. Vicksburg [Miss.] 42 So. 673.

18. In such a proceeding it was no defense that the leaky condition was due to vibrations caused by locomotives passing over the streets. Crumpler v. Vicksburg [Miss.] 42 So. 673.

WEAPONS.

§ 1. The Crime of Carrying or Pointing Weapons (2302).
§ 2. Other Police Regulations Concerning Weapons (2303).
§ 3. Indictment and Prosecution (2303).
§ 4. Civil Liability for Negligent Use of Weapons (2304).

§ 1. The crime of carrying or pointing weapons.[19]—Failure of the legislature to regrade the offense pursuant to constitutional mandate did not invalidate the Louisiana act of 1906.[20] It therefore repealed all former acts [21] and, being without a saving clause, terminated pending prosecutions thereunder.[22]

The offense is statutory and the statutes prescribe what weapons may be carried,[23] and in some states prohibit only the carrying of concealed weapons,[24] carrying on or about the person,[25] or carrying at certain places of public resort,[26] or the display of weapons to the public terror.[27] Statutory exceptions are often made in favor of officers,[28] persons threatened with violence,[29] or travelers,[30] or authorizing mere transportation with no view to use.[31] To be within the last mentioned exception, one must ordinarily proceed to his destination with reasonable dispatch and

19. See 6 C. L. 1876.

20. The failure of the legislature of 1902 to regrade the offense of carrying concealed weapons pursuant to Const. art. 155 did not render the act of 1906 unconstitutional. State v. Robira [La.] 42 So. 792.

21. Act No. 61, p. 86, of 1902, Rev. St. 932, and Act No. 107, p. 163, of 1902, held repealed by inconsistency with Act of 1906. State v. Smith [La.] 42 So. 791; State v. Dueffechaux [La.] 43 So. 60; State v. Robira [La.] 42 So. 792.

22. State v. Smith [La.] 42 So. 791.

23. The Georgia statute of 1898 amending the law relating to carrying concealed weapons so as to include any kind of metal knucks is valid. Not repugnant to constitutional provision requiring act to distinctly describe the law amended. Cunningham v. State [Ga.] 57 S. E. 90.

24. A pistol is concealed if it is so wrapped in a bundle that it cannot be seen and recognized. Edwards v. State, 126 Ga. 89, 54 S. E. 809. Whether a weapon is carried in such manner as not to be discernible by ordinary observation is a question for the jury. Hainey v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 968. Evidence held to sustain a verdict finding that defendant carried a weapon concealed. State v. Miles [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 671; Millner v. State [Ala.] 43 So. 194.

25. A pistol carried under the seat of a buggy in which one is driving, from whence it is taken and pointed at another, is carried "on or about the person." Hill v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 384. The act of a hack driver in carrying a pistol under the driver seat of his hack is a violation of the law. Kendall v. State [Tenn.] 101 S. W. 189.

26. A statute forbidding the carrying of a pistol into a social gathering is not violated by carrying a pistol into the bar room of a social club adjacent to the club's ballroom, in which a ball or social gathering is taking place. Schroeder v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 99 S. W. 1003.

27. Evidence held to warrant conviction for exhibiting a deadly weapon in a rude, angry, and threatening manner. State v. Heffernan [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 618. Evidence held insufficient to make out a case of rudely displaying a pistol in a manner calculated to disturb the inhabitants residing along or upon a public road. Taylor v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 102 S. W. 409.

28. An exception in favor of officers' right to carry concealed weapons while discharging their official duties does not attend them while not in the actual performance of the duties of the office. Game warden held not to have any right to carry concealed weapon while not in actual performance of his duties. State v. Simmons [N. C.] 56 S. E. 701. One cannot justify carrying a pistol as a deputized arresting officer in a special case when he is found in possession of the weapon while on a different mission. Brown v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 102 S. W. 406.

29. Threats against one's life communicated to him justify him in carrying a concealed weapon. State v. Kelly [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 155. If threats were made it is immaterial that there was in fact no danger. State v. Venable, 117 Mo. App. 501, 93 S. W. 356. Defendant must have believed himself in danger. State v. Casto, 119 Mo. App. 265, 95 S. W. 961.

30. An exception of travelers, as entitled to carry concealed weapons, protects only while they are in pursuit of their journey or some business connected therewith. Evidence held to show loss of defense by stopping or turning aside of journey. Navarro v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 86, 96 S. W. 932. One cannot claim the defense of being a traveler through the state as justifying the carrying of a concealed weapon unless he is traveling peaceably. Evidence held insufficient to show defendant to have been traveling peaceably (State v. Miles [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 671), nor will a deflection from the journey to procure medical assistance for members of one's family have that effect (Irvin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 779).

31. It is not unlawful in Texas to purchase and carry home a pistol. Granger v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 781, 98 S. W. 836; Cordova v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 90, 97 S. W. 87. One carrying concealed a pistol while looking for some one to fix a broken mainspring, which renders it useless as a deadly weapon, is not guilty of the crime of carrying concealed weapons under the Missouri statute. State v. Casto, 119 Mo. App. 265, 95 S. W. 961.

directness,[32] but reasonable stops en route for a lawful purpose do not deprive him of the benefit of the statute.[33] Carrying of weapons at one's place of business is sometimes permitted [34] but, in the absence of an exception in the statute, one may not carry weapons on his own land.[35] As in other statutory offenses, criminal intent is not ordinarily essential unless the statute makes it so,[36] nor does the erroneous advice of the clerk of the court that one has the right to carry a weapon excuse the criminality of the act.[37] One who has used a weapon in self defense is guilty of unlawfully carrying the same if he unnecessarily pursues his assailant therewith.[38]

§ 2. Other police regulations concerning weapons.[39]—The Charleston, South Carolina, ordinance prohibiting the firing of arms within the city limits,[40] the District of Columbia police regulation prohibiting the discharge of firearms in the District without a special permit from the superintendent of police,[41] and the Washington statute inhibiting the organization, maintenance, or employment of an armed body of men by individuals or corporations, have been held valid.[42] It is not essential to conviction under the last mentioned statute that the relation of master and servant existed between defendant and those he was charged with having employed.[43] A statute denouncing the crime of shooting at random in a public highway is not violated by shooting at a mark.[44]

§ 3. Indictment and prosecution.[45]—An indictment describing the weapon as a "firearm" is sufficient.[46] An exception in the enacting part of the statute must be negatived by the prosecution.[47] Where intent is essential, the burden is on the

32. Cordova v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 90, 97 S. W. 87. He would not have the right to make unnecessary departure from his direct route (Id.), or to visit places with his pistol not necessary to be visited (Id.). There may be a degree of delay in pursuit of the journey which does not deprive one of the defense. Irvin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 779.

33. Merely stopping at a lunch counter to eat a meal is not such a deflection from one's journey as to deprive him of the defense that he was merely carrying the weapon home. Mays v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 233. One believing his wife has been insulted by a third person held to have the right to stop and demand of the latter an explanation and defend himself with the pistol if attacked (Quinn v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 687, 96 S. W. 33), and this is no less true if the wife has told him that she has been insulted when in fact she has not. (Id.).

34. In Texas one has a right to carry a pistol at his place of business, but not elsewhere. Evidence held to show a carrying of a pistol elsewhere than at defendant's place of business. Hutchins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 795. One's right to carry a pistol while at his place of business does not, when he has separate places of business, make lawful the carrying of the pistol while going from one to the other even though he uses the public road in so doing. Banks v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 387, 98 S. W. 242.

35. State v. Venable, 117 Mo. App. 501, 93 S. W. 356.

36. Criminal intent is not an essential element of the offense of carrying a pistol. Cordova v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 90, 97 S. W. 87. Instruction on theory of innocent purpose to transport held properly refused. Edwards v. State, 126 Ga. 89, 54 S. E. 809. Evidence that defendant did not intend to conceal weapon held inadmissible. State v. Simmons [N. C.] 56 S. E. 701. But see Huff v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 102 S. W. 407, holding that absence of criminal intent is fatal to conviction, and Schroeder v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 99 S. W. 1003, holding that absence of criminal intent is a defense on a prosecution for carrying a pistol in a social gathering.

37. State v. Simmons [N. C.] 56 S. E. 701.

38. Evidence held to show unnecessary pursuit. Woodroe v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 682, 96 S. W. 30.

39. See 4 C. L. 1860.

40. Within charter power of city (State v. Johnson [S. C.] 56 S. E. 544), and not discriminatory in favor of coopers (Id.), but assuming it void in part in that respect, such invalidity does not affect its enforceability as to firing within city limits (Id.).

41. It is not an attempt to delegate legislative powers (District of Columbia v. Lewis, 26 App. D. C. 133), but is a reasonable exercise of the right of the municipal authorities to delegate their administrative functions (Id.), nor does the fact that the discretion of the superintendent may be arbitrarily exercised render it unreasonable (Id.).

42. Not repugnant to Const. art. 1, declaring the right of the individual citizen to bear arms in defense of himself or the state shall not be impaired. State v. Gohl [Wash.] 90 P. 259.

43. State v. Gohl [Wash.] 90 P. 259.

44. Callahan v. Com., 30 Ky. L. R. 596, 99 S. W. 296.

45. See 6 C. L. 1877.

46. Hughes v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 427.

47. Under the Arkansas statute making it an offense to wear or carry any weapon except an army or navy pistol, the burden is on the state to show that a pistol alleged to have been unlawfully carried was not an army or navy pistol. McDonald v. State [Ark.] 102 S. W. 703. Obiter, it is also said that when it appears that the weapon prosecution to show it,[48] and to that end it may prove that accused had been shortly before engaged in an altercation;[49] but evidence of defendant's intoxication is inadmissible.[50] Proof that defendant armed himself after the communication of threats to him is prima facie sufficient that he in good faith believed himself in danger.[51] Admission of carrying the weapon coupled with a claim of right as a peace officer is not a "confession" in open court which will support a conviction without proof of the corpus delicti.[52] Every defense which there is evidence to sustain must be submitted by appropriate instructions.[53] Instructions must not invade the province of the jury.[54]

§ 4. Civil liability for negligent use of weapons.[55]

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.[56]

It is within the police power of a state to adopt and compel the use of a uniform system of weights and measures[57] and to regulate weighing in industries where employes are paid by weight of product.[58] A petition by a public weigher in Texas for statutory penalties and damages for defendant's weighing cotton for others in plaintiff's territory and charging fees states no cause of action where it fails to allege that defendant was a commission merchant or engaged in a similar business.[59] A statute making it a penal offense to sell provisions or produce for a weight "less" than the true weight is not violated by a sale for a weight greater than the true weight.[60]

WHARVES.[61]

There being no common-law right in a riparian owner to extend wharves into a navigable water,[62] a municipality, though it owns but an easement in a street intersecting a navigable stream, invades no right of the fee owner in extending a public wharf therefrom,[63] and, for a like reason, a right to wharf not granted in connection with a conveyance of riparian lands is limited to the terms of the grant.[64] carried was an army or navy pistol, the burden is on the state to show that it was not carried in the hand. Id.

48. Schroeder v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 99 S. W. 1003. Evidence held to show lack of criminal intent. Huff v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 102 S. W. 407.

49. To rebut testimony of accused that he was about to go on a journey. Irwin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 779. One's conduct in another state prior to reaching the state where he is prosecuted for carrying concealed weapon is admissible in the issue whether he is traveling peaceably through the state. State v. Miles [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 611.

50. Harnez v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 968.

51. State v. Casto, 119 Mo. App. 265, 95 S. W. 961.

52. State v. Abrams [Iowa] 108 N. W. 1041.

53. Threats against defendant. State v. Venable, 117 Mo. App. 501, 93 S. W. 356.

54. Instruction on prosecution for carrying a pistol as to what constitutes a place of business held properly refused as on the weight of the evidence. Hutchins v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 795. Instruction on prosecution for carrying a pistol as to defendant's apprehension of danger to his person held erroneous as invading the province of the jury. Christian v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 275, 97 S. W. 694.

55. See 6 C. L. 1878.

56. See 6 C. L. 1879.

57. McLean v. State [Ark.] 98 S. W. 729. Held proper to reduce a verdict in favor of a plaintiff who had not had his weights and measures tested in accordance with the law. Carter v. Pitts, 125 Ga. 792, 54 S. E. 695.

58. Laws 1905, p. 558, forbidding owners or operators of mines where ten or more men are employed under ground and mining by quantity to screen the coal before it is weighed and credited to the employe, is valid and constitutional. McLean v. State [Ark.] 98 S. W. 729.

59. Gray v. Eleazer [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 13, 94 S. W. 911.

60. Sale of chickens weighing only six pounds for eight pounds not violative of Act Cong. June 20, 1906, amending § 10 of Act March 2, 1895. District of Columbia v. Gant, 28 App. D. C. 185.

61. See 6 C. L. 1879.

62. Western Pac. R. Co. v. Southern Pac. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 151 F. 376.

63. Williams v. Intendant & Town Council of Gainsville [Ala.] 43 So. 209, citing Backus v. Detroit, 49 Mich. 110, 43 Am. Rep. 447, where the authorities are exhaustively discussed.

64. Limited right given in conveyance of shore lands by municipality to which general right to wharf was given by statute. Western Pac. R. Co. v. Southern Pac. R. Co. [C. C. A.] 151 F. 376.

Public wharves are under the control of appropriate officers, whose powers and duties are elsewhere treated,[65] and, like all property charged with a public easement, cannot be devoted to a use inconsistent therewith.[66] A wharfinger must use reasonable care to avoid injury to a vessel being unloaded.[67] There is no implied assumption by the lessee of a wharf of the owner's obligation to repair appurtenant docks.[68]

WHITE-CAPPING, see latest topical index.

WILLS.

§ 1. Right of Disposal and Contracts Relating to It (2305). Contracts to Devise or Bequeath (2306).
§ 2. Testamentary Capacity, Fraud, and Undue Influence (2307).
A. Essentials to Capacity (2307).
B. Constituents of Fraud, Mistake, and Undue Influence (2311).
§ 3. The Testamentary Instrument or Act (2314).
A. Requisites, Form, and Validity (2314).
B. Execution of Will (2315).
1. Mode of Execution (2315).
2. Nuncupative and Holographic Wills (2316).
C. Revocation and Alteration (2316).
D. Republication and Revival (2317).
§ 4. Probating, Establishing, and Recording (2318).
A. Place of Probate and Jurisdiction and Powers of Courts (2318).
B. Parties in Will Cases and the Right to Contest (2318).
C. Duty to Produce Will (2319).
D. Probate and Procedure in General (2319).
E. Burden of Proof on the Whole Case (2321).
F. Establishment of Lost Will (2322).
G. Judgments and Decrees (2322).
H. Revocation of Probate (2323).
I. Suits to Contest (2323).
J. Suits to Establish (2323).
K. Suits to Set Aside (2323).
L. Appeals (2324).
M. Costs (2325).
N. Recording Foreign Wills (2325).
§ 5. Interpretation and Construction (2326).
A. General Rules (2326). As to Time (2327). Extrinsic Evidence (2327).
B. Of Terms Designating Property or Funds (2328)
C. Of Terms Designating or Describing Persons or Purposes (2329).
D. Of Terms Creating, Defining, Limiting, Conditioning, or Qualifying the Estates and Interests Created (2330). Particular Words and Forms of Expression (2330). Gifts by Implication (2331). Quality of Estate, Whether Legal or Equitable, Use, Trust, or Power (2331). Estates or Interests Created (2332). "Interest" and "Income" (2335). Legacies (2335). An Annuity (2336). Advancements (2336). Support (2336). Release of Debts (2337). Cumulative Legacies (2337). Vesting (2337). Possession and Enjoyment (2338). Individual Rights in Gifts to Two or More (2338). Conditions (2339). Intent to Require Election (2340). Charges, Exonerations, and Funds for Payment (2340). Trust Estates and Interests (2341). Powers of Appointment and Beneficial Powers of Sale (2342). Lapse, Failure, and Forfeiture (2342). Partial Invalidity (2343). Residuary Clauses (2343). Property not Effectually Disposed of (2343).
E. Of Terms Respecting Administration, Management, Control, and Disposal (2344).
F. Abatement, Ademption, and Satisfaction (2345).
G. Proceedings to Construe Wills (2346).
§ 6. Validity, Operation, and Effect in General (2346). What Law Governs (2347).

§ 1. Right of disposal and contracts relating to it.[69]—Any interest or estate which is or may become one of inheritance,[70] belonging to testator at the time of his

65. See Officers and Public Employes, 8 C. L. 1191.

66. Ordinance granting right to construct railroad tracks on public landing held void. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. People, 222 Ill. 427, 78 N. E. 790. While from the purposes of its creation and dedication a public landing includes the free and unobstructed passage of travelers and vehicles, its function is much broader and more important than that of a mere street, and considerations which would forbid the occupation of a street by a railway structure are of commanding application in the case of such a landing. Louisville & Nashville R. Co. v. Cincinnati, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 497. Ordinance granting right to maintain viaduct over public landing held void. Id.

67. Evidence held to sustain finding that sinking of vessel was due to its unseaworthy condition. Bush Co. v. Central R. Co. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 734.

68. Haley v. American Agricultural Chem. Co. [Pa.] 66 A. 559.

69. See 6 C. L. 1880.

70. A spendthrift trust entitling beneficiary to corpus on marriage or in case of becoming competent gives a devisable estate. Bransfield v. Wigmore [Conn.] 66 A. 778.

71. Devisees held to take no title to land under will where testator's rights therein death [71] and not given by statute to his surviving spouse,[72] is subject of testamentary disposition. Where a married woman may hold a separate estate, she may dispose of it by will.[73] Where property belonging to a devisee is attempted to be disposed of or dower rights are impaired, the devisee or surviving spouse may be put to an election.[74] In the absence of statute there is no limitation on the power to dispose of property for charitable purposes,[75] except such as may rest in the corporate power of a beneficiary to take,[76] and want of power to take can be urged only by the state.[77] Statutes in some states, however, limit the right of gift for religious or charitable purposes [78] by one who leaves dependents or near relatives surviving him,[79] and the right to attack a will for violation of such a statute is not limited to the descendants named therein.[80] In many states a share of the estate is given to children of testator who are not mentioned [81] or provided for [82] in the will, or where the omission to provide is unintentional,[83] but except as limited by such statutes the testator has full power of disinherison.[84]

Contracts to devise or bequeath.[85]—One may by contract bind himself to a particular disposition of his property,[86] and such an agreement, if fair and on consideration,[87] mutual,[88] and sufficiently definite,[89] will be enforced in equity [90] by were barred by limitations at time of his death. Dangerfield v. Williams, 26 App. D. C. 508.

72. A statute providing that the homestead of a married man shall not be subject of devise is valid. Saxon v. Rawls [Fla.] 41 So. 594.

73. Under Code 1860, §§ 2, 3, held that married woman could dispose of after-acquired separate estate, though she had no separate estate when will was made. Tarrant v. Core [Va.] 56 S. E. 228.

74. See post, § 5 D, as to intent to require an election; Estates of Decedents, 7 C. L. 1386, as to operation thereof.

75. Only limitation is statutory right of surviving spouse. Hubbard v. Worcester Art Museum [Mass.] 80 N. E. 490.

76. Charitable corporation held not restricted in power to take. Smith v. Havens Relief Fund Soc., 103 N. Y. S. 770.

77. A devise to a charitable corporation of a sum greater than it is legally entitled to hold is valid except as against the state. Hubbard v. Worcester Art Museum [Mass.] 80 N. E. 490.

78. Laws 1903, c. 623, p. 1412, continued in force the rule against bequests to charity by will executed less than two months before testator's death. Pearson v. Collins, 113 App. Div. 657, 99 N. Y. S. 932.

79. A statute forbidding gift of more than a moiety to charity by one "having" a wife, applies only where the wife survives testator. St. John v. Andrews Institute, 102 N. Y. S. 808. One seeking to avoid a will for violation of a statute forbidding gift of more than moiety to charity by one having a wife surviving him has the burden of proving that the wife survived. Id.

80. Moser v. Talman, 100 N. Y. S. 231.

81. Where a life estate to testator's wife was limited to her "issue," an after-born child of testator and his wife is "mentioned" in the will and not entitled to take as on intestacy. Stachelberg v. Stachelberg, 101 N. Y. S. 178.

82. The New York statute as to rights of pretermitted children has no application to a child provided for by settlement. Cushman v. Cushman, 102 N. Y. S. 258.

83. Mention of testator's deceased daughter held to show that pretermission of child of such daughter was not unintentional. Fugate v. Allen, 119 Mo. App. 183 95 S. W. 980. Whether omission to provide for a child of testator was intentional is a question of fact. Woodvine v. Dean [Mass.] 79 N. E. 882.

84. The fact that a testator having several children devises and bequeaths all his property to one son cannot defeat or invalidate the will, if the testator had the necessary mental capacity, and was free from undue influence, when he executed it. Kelly v. Kelly, 103 Md. 548, 63 A. 1082.

85. See 6 C. L. 1882.

86. Contract of adoption making adopted child heir of the foster parent is valid. Fugate v. Allen, 119 Mo. App. 183, 95 S. W. 980.

87. A provision in a formal marriage settlement whereby the groom's father agrees to devise certain property to his son rests on a sufficient consideration. Phalen v. U. S. Trust Co., 186 N. Y. 178, 78 N. E. 943. Conveyance by husband to wife is sufficient consideration for her promise to will the property to a third person. Mueller v. Batcheler [Iowa] 109 N. W. 186. Compromise and termination of family controversy held sufficient consideration. Belt v. Lazenby, 126 Ga. 767, 56 S. E. 81.

88. Contract adopting child and agreeing to him as equal heir held lacking in mutuality because parent of child did not join. Fugate v. Allen, 119 Mo. App. 183, 95 S. W. 980.

89. Contract to bequeath something to a niece because she was named after the promisor is too indefinite to be enforced and a revoked bequest of a specific sum does not make it definite. Freeman v. Morris [Wis.] 109 N. W. 983.

90. Oral contract to devise in consideration of services may be specifically enforced after performance by the promisee. Berg v. Moreau, 119 Mo. 416, 97 S. W. 901. May be enforceable in equity though it would not support an action at law. Phalen v. U. S. Trust Co., 186 N. Y. 178, 78 N. E. 943. See, also, Specific Performance, 8 C. L. 1946.

charging property agreed to be devised with a trust,[91] but cannot be enforced at law [92] or in probate,[93] though services rendered under promise to compensate by will may sometimes be recovered for in assumpsit.[94] The cause of action accrues on the death of the promisor.[95] Since a contract to devise can only be specifically enforced by fastening a trust on the property in the hands of the persons receiving the same, it is essential that the will violating such contract be first probated,[96] and a contract to bequeath is not waived by failure to object to the probate of a will in violation of it.[97] Possession under contract to devise gives an equitable ownership.[98] If the agreement is within the statute of frauds, it must be in writing [99] or must have been partly performed.[1] One who has as survivor received the benefit of an agreement by which joint wills were made cannot avoid the effect by voluntary conveyance of property during his life.[2] In an action on a promise by husband and wife that the survivor of them should make a will in favor of plaintiff, failure of proof that the husband agreed thereto is immaterial where the wife was survivor.[3] A conveyance before death to one whom grantor had promised to compensate by will is presumptively payment pro tanto.[4] If oral, the contract must be established not merely by a preponderance but by clear and cogent evidence.[5]

§ 2. Testamentary capacity, fraud, and undue influence. A. Essentials to capacity.[6]—In order to have testamentary capacity the testator must have sufficient

91. Agreement to devise is enforceable against sole heir at law by treating him as trustee and compelling him to convey property in accordance with contract. Belt v. Lazenby, 126 Ga. 767, 56 S. E. 81. Where contract is entire and embraces both realty and personalty, and there has been no administration on decedent's estate, estate owes no debts, and heir is in possession of all said property, is not necessary to have administrator appointed and make him party, but, equity having obtained jurisdiction over subject-matter and over heir for purpose of enforcing contract as to land against him, will enforce whole contract. Id. Allegation that decedent gave direction regarding turning over property to petitioner held not demurrable for failure to state to whom direction was given, nor because such direction would not authorize recovery or justify representative in turning over property to plaintiff, it being wholly immaterial as pleading. Id. Petition held not demurrable for failure to attach copy of or set out substance of destroyed will of defendant's deceased husband, compromise of controversy over which was consideration for contract sued on, right sought to be enforced being based on compromise agreement solely. Id.

92. An action at law will not lie on a contract to bequeath. In re Peterson [Neb.] 111 N. W. 361.

93. In re Peterson [Neb.] 107 N. W. 993. Where a will made in performance of a contract to devise is revoked by a later will, the agreement cannot be enforced by setting aside the probate of the later will and probating the former. Allen v. Bromberg [Ala.] 41 So. 771. The probate court in Kansas and the district court on appeal from refusal to probate has no equity power to relieve one who by contract was entitled to have the rejected will made in his favor. Ross v. Wollard [Kan.] 89 P. 680.

94. Recovery may be had by a daughter for services rendered to her parent under an express promise to pay for them by will. Griffith v. Robertson [Kan.] 85 P. 748. See, also, Implied Contracts, 8 C. L. 155.

95. Where decedent promised his daughter that if she would live with him and keep house for him he would leave her certain property, it was held that he had the whole of his life in which to perform and there could be no breach until after his death. Lawson v. Mullinix [Md.] 64 A. 938. Limitations do not run against an action on a contract to compensate by will until promisor's death. Chambers v. Boyd, 101 N. Y. S. 486.

96. Allen v. Bromberg [Ala.] 41 So. 771.

97. Phalen v. U. S. Trust Co., 186 N. Y. 178, 78 N. E. 943.

98. Entitled to possession as against executor subject to any debts of decedent whose equities are precedent. Koslowski v. Newman [Neb.] 105 N. W. 295.

99. Not necessary to plead that contract was in writing, as law will presume that it was if necessary for it to be. Belt v. Lazenby, 126 Ga. 767, 56 S. E. 81.

1. Performance of agreement to support. Russell v. Sharp, 192 Mo. 270, 91 S. W. 134. See, also, Frauds, Statute of, 7 C. L. 1826.

2. Bower v. Daniel, 198 Mo. 289, 95 S. W. 347.

3. Mueller v. Batcheler [Iowa] 109 N. W. 186.

4. McNamara v. Michigan Trust Co. [Mich.] 111 N. W. 1066.

5. Berg v. Moreau, 199 Mo. 416, 97 S. W. 901.

Evidence held insufficient. Russell v. Sharp, 192 Mo. 270, 91 S. W. 134; Ostrom v. De Yoe [Cal. App.] 87 P. 811; Smith v. Humphreys Md.] 65 A. 57. Evidence of contract by wife to make irrevocable will in favor of husband held insufficient. Lipp v. Fielder [N. J. Err. & App.] 66 A. 189. Evidence held insufficient to establish contract to bequeath in compensation for services to testator. Murphy v. Murphy, 102 N. Y. S. 1117. Contract in connection with adoption of child. In re Peterson [Neb.] 107 N. W. 993.

6. See 6 C. L. 1884.

mind and memory to intelligently understand the nature of the business in which he is engaged, to comprehend generally the nature and extent of his property and to recollect the objects of his bounty.[7] Capacity to contract is not the test.[8] Capacity may exist notwithstanding great age and feebleness [9] or extreme illness,[10] and is consistent with the utmost eccentricity.[11] Belief in spiritualism is not of itself sufficient to show incapacity.[12] Delusion to render one incompetent must be insane and the will must be affected by it.[13, 14] There being no fixed test or certain indicia, the question is ordinarily one of fact to be determined according to the circumstances of each case.[15]

Admissibility of evidence.—On the issue of capacity, insanity of testator's ancestors may be shown,[16] as may his history, including past illness or injury [17] and financial condition,[18] if not too remote,[19] and, under the same limitation, his condition after the making of the will.[20] That the disposition made is unreasonable or unnatural is relevant on capacity,[21] and likewise every circumstance tending to vindicate its reasonableness is admissible,[22] as are the circumstances attending exe-

7. Archambault v. Blanchard, 198 Mo. 384, 95 S. W. 834; Dowie v. Sutton, 126 Ill. App. 47. Person has capacity who understands nature of a will, viz., that it is disposition of property to take effect after death, and who is capable of remembering generally property subject to disposition, and persons related to him by ties of blood and affection, and also of conceiving and expressing by words, written or spoken, or by signs or by both, any intelligible scheme of disposition. Slaughter v. Heath [Ga.] 57 S. E. 69. Is sufficient if he has sufficient intellect to enable him to have decided and rational desire as to disposition of his property. Id. Disposing mind and memory defined. In re American Board of Com'rs [Me.] 66 A. 215.

8. Barnes v. Waterman, 104 N. Y. S. 685.

9. Finding that woman 82 years old and seriously ill had testamentary capacity sustained. Hill v. Boyd, 199 Mo. 438, 97 S. W. 918. Aged and infirm man held incompetent. In re Rogers' will, 103 N. Y. S. 423.

10. Evidence of capacity held sufficient. In re Muellenschlader's Will, 128 Wis. 364, 107 N. W. 652. That testator by reason of illness could not make himself understood except to a few persons familiar with him does not impair his capacity where those who prepared his will understood him. Bradshaw v. Butler, 30 Ky. L. R. 1249, 100 S. W. 837.

11. Old and eccentric man generally regarded as irresponsible held competent. Wood v. Salter [La.] 43 So. 281. Mere eccentricities, prejudices, or resentment against one or more relatives, without more, cannot invalidate the will. Robinson v. Duvall, 27 App. D. C. 535.

12. In re Dunahugh's Will, 130 Iowa, 692, 107 N. W. 925; Steinkuehler v. Wempner [Ind.] 81 N. E. 482.

13, 14. Johnson v. Johnson [Md.] 65 A. 918. If it appears that there is a real controversy as to the fact which is alleged to be the subject of an insane delusion, a mere preponderance against its existence will not support a finding that testator's belief therein was delusory. Opinion of testators as to son's lack of affection. Bean v. Bean, 144 Mich. 599, 13 Det. Leg. N. 355, 108 N. W. 369. Evidence of delusions of persecution admissible. Dowie v. Sutton, 126 Ill. App. 47. Belief in spiritualism not ipso facto insane delusion. Steinkuehler v. Wempner [Ind.] 81 N. E. 482.

15. See post, this section, Sufficiency of Evidence.

16. Insanity of relatives may be shown without proof that it was of a hereditary type. Dillman v. McDanel, 222 Ill. 276, 78 N. E. 591. The fact of a father's mental vigor is admissible to rebut evidence of hereditary insanity. In re Dolbeer's Estate [Cal.] 86 P. 695.

17. Evidence of injury to testator eight years before making the will and resulting impairment of mind is admissible. In re Wharton's Will [Iowa] 109 N. W. 492.

18. In proceedings to set aside probate, plaintiffs' evidence as to testatrix's financial condition when she married defendant, 17 years before execution of will, held properly stricken as having no bearing on issues. Smith v. Ryan [Iowa] 112 N. W. 8.

19. Evidence of illness ten years before too remote. Sibley v. Morse [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 878, 109 N. W. 858.

20. Evidence of testator's condition after execution of will relevant on issue of capacity. Trubey v. Richardson, 224 Ill. 136, 79 N. E. 592.

Suicide may be considered on the question of sanity at a prior time. In re Dolbeer's Estate [Cal.] 86 P. 695.

21. Reasonableness or unreasonableness of disposition of property may be considered as evidence bearing on question of capacity. Slaughter v. Heath [Ga.] 57 S. E. 69. Evidence as to advancements made to children before execution of will held admissible as tending to show that will was unnatural. Meier v. Buchter, 197 Mo. 68, 94 S. W. 883. Absolute disinherison of testator's children is to be considered on the issue of capacity. Hardenburgh v. Hardenburgh [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1014.

22. That the will made reasonable provision for all the natural objects of testator's bounty and that it executed an expressed purpose of long standing are strong circumstances in favor of his capacity. Bradshaw v. Butler, 30 Ky. L. R. 1249, 100 S. W. 837. The correspondence of the disposal made to the testator's situation and cution which tend to show comprehension of the testamentary act or lack of it.[23] Except as affected by the rules previously stated, the evidence as to capacity must be addressed to the time of making the will.[24] Opinions of experts are admissible,[25] and nonexperts acquainted with testator may state their opinions in connection with the facts on which they are based.[26] Entries in the account book of an attending to his express designs is admissible. In re Shapter's Estate [Colo.] 85 P. 688. Where will assigned as reason for small bequest to daughter that her husband had not treated testator justly, evidence to show transaction between them, or conduct of son-in-law in respect thereto, in so far as it was known to him, was admissible as tending to show what operated on his mind. Slaughter v. Heath [Ga.] 57 S. E. 69. If son-in-law withheld money from him and this was known to him, such fact was admissible as throwing light on reason assigned in will. Id. For same reason evidence that testator asked son-in-law for bond, to which he claimed title, and that son-in-law replied, with an oath, that he would give it to him when he pleased, was admissible. Id. Evidence of intemperance of a legatee, without showing testator's knowledge thereof, irrelevant. Sibley v. Morse [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 878, 109 N. W. 858. Testimony of testatrix's husband as to his own embarrassed financial condition, ill health, and expenditures on his wife's property, held admissible as tending to show reasonableness of disposition of her property. Smith v. Ryan [Iowa] 112 N. W. 8.

23. Reading of will and intelligent comment thereon held to show capacity of a blind and enfeebled testator. In re Pickett's Will [Or.] 89 P. 377. Statements, declarations, or conduct of testatrix tending to throw light on her mental condition at time will was executed may properly be considered by jury on issue of capacity and undue influence, in connection with other facts and circumstances attending or surrounding execution of will. Smith v. Ryan [Iowa] 112 N. W. 8. Possession of the draft of the will and his calling for witnesses shows knowledge or opportunity for knowledge of its contents. In re Shapter's Estate [Colo.] 85 P. 688. Where female witness had testified that testator had applied to her to write his will and she had refused, held competent to show that she had drawn other wills, if that fact had been communicated to him, but not for her to state generally that that fact was known to him. Slaughter v. Heath [Ga.] 57 S. E. 69.

24. The want of testamentary capacity must when urged as a ground for the invalidity of a testamentary act in a given case, relate to the time of the act. Baughar v. Gesell, 103 Md. 450, 63 A. 1078. Unless want of capacity, permanent in character, be established by proof as existing at a time prior to the act called in question, the presumption of capacity attends the act and must be overcome by evidence that affords a rational basis for an inference of the want of it at the very time of the execution of such act. Id. Evidence held insufficient to afford a rational basis for an inference of the want of testamentary capacity at the time of the execution of a will. Id. On a caveat to a will, evidence as to the capacity of the testator is inadmissible if it is not limited to the question of capacity at the date of the execution of the will. Kelly v. Kelly, 103 Md. 548, 63 A. 1082. The presumption of law being in favor of sanity and testamentary capacity, the evidence to support a caveat on the issue of insanity must ordinarily tend to show either that the testator was of unsound mind at the time of the execution of the will or that he was affected with permanent insanity prior to the execution. Id.

25. Opinion cannot be asked on capacity to make will. In re Cheney's Estate [Neb.] 110 N. W. 731. Questions to experts as to testator's capacity "to transact business" properly excluded. Trubey v. Richardson, 224 Ill. 136, 79 N. E. 592. Upon the question of a testator's testamentary capacity, a hypothetical question propounded to an expert was held not to be admissible where it recited as a basis of the opinion to be given evidence which was legally insufficient to be submitted to the jury for the purpose of showing testamentary incapacity. Baugher v. Gesell, 103 Md. 450, 63 A. 1078. Evidence held not to warrant assumption in hypothetical question as to administration of opiates to testator. Robinson v. Jones [Md.] 65 A. 814. On the subject of testamentary capacity a hypothetical question asked a medical expert, which contains assumption of facts founded upon hearsay testimony, assumes other facts not supported by the evidence, and also contains the conclusions and inferences of witnesses, is inadmissible. Kelly v. Kelly, 103 Md. 548, 63 A. 1082.

26. May give opinion as to condition of man's mind but not as to his capacity to make will. Opinion evidence held proper. Goodfellow v. Shannon, 197 Mo. 271, 94 S. W. 979. Opinion of nonexpert that testator was easily influenced held inadmissible without stating facts on which it was based. Slaughter v. Heath [Ga.] 57 S. E. 69. Is not competent to ask nonexpert to state whether, in his opinion, decedent had a decided and rational desire, or whether his desires were like ravings of madman or pratings of an idiot, or a childish whim. Id. Nonexpert may state all facts known by him in relation to testator bearing on state of latter's mind, and on this basis may give his opinion of condition of testator's mind. Id. Nonexpert may state his conclusions as to capacity only as based upon facts of his own knowledge detailed by him in evidence. Questions held proper. Smith v. Ryan [Iowa] 112 N. W. 8. Held competent for proponent to show by witnesses intimately acquainted with testatrix, and familiar with her conduct and habits, how she talked and acted in particular respects, as tending to show that she was not afflicted with senile dementia when will was executed, as claimed and attempted to be shown by plaintiffs. Id. Where upon a caveat to a will a sheriff, who it did not appear had any personal knowledge of testatrix, testified that from the evidence adduced at a lunacy inquisition he believed that she was then a lunatic with physician are admissible to show the disease for which testator was treated.[27] On the question of capacity of one who later committed suicide, the coroner's verdict is inadmissible;[28] likewise a verdict on the suicide of testator's mother.[29] Declarations of a legatee are inadmissible on capacity.[30] The mere fact that a person present expresses an apprehension that testator will die before signing the will does not tend to prove mental incapacity.[31] An adjudication as to the sanity of testator at another time or with respect to other acts is admissible[32] but not conclusive.[33]

Sufficiency of evidence.—Insanity of testator's ancestors,[34] or the provisions of the will itself,[35] may afford evidence of incapacity but are never sufficient alone to establish it. The standard of capacity is a question of law, but whether capacity exists is for the jury,[36] and the finding will not be disturbed unless clearly against the weight of the evidence.[37] The testimony of the subscribing witnesses as to lucid intervals, it was not error for the court to refuse to allow the further question to be asked him: "Now what did you consider her?" Packham v. Glendmeyer, 103 Md. 416, 63 A. 1048. Lay witness not entitled to state whether acts of testator narrated by him were rational or irrational. In re Small's Will, 103 N. Y. S. 705. Intimate acquaintance may testify generally to opinion that testator was of sound mind, but contrary opinion must be based on facts observed and narrated. In re Wilson's Estate [Neb.] 111 N. W. 788.

27. Knapp v. St. Louis Trust Co., 199 Mo. 640, 98 S. W. 70.

28, 29, 30. In re Dolbeer's Estate [Cal.] 86 P. 695.

31. On issue of devisavit vel non on petition for probate, evidence that wife of testator, while will was being executed, ran into kitchen where witness was and got some water for deceased, and stated that she was afraid her husband would die before they could get the business fixed, held inadmissible as declaration against interest, it not appearing that will had been executed when declaration was made or that any person in interest was claiming under wife, since deceased. In re Murray's Will, 141 N. C. 588, 54 S. E. 435. Unsworn declaration of one of several caveatees as to testator's incapacity held inadmissible except for purpose of impeaching him as witness. Robinson v. Duvall, 27 App. D. C. 535. Nor was it admissible as part of res gestae, it not being made in presence of testator or any person connected with will or its execution. Id.

32. Decrees setting aside for incapacity deeds executed at about the same time as the will are admissible though proponent was not in priority. In re Hendershott's Estate [Iowa] 111 N. W. 969. The finding of a jury upon a caveat to a will that the testator was without testamentary capacity at the time of making the will is not admissible upon a caveat to a prior will made by the same testator to show want of testamentary capacity at the time of making such prior will. Packham v. Glendmeyer, 103 Md. 416, 63 A. 1048.

33. Inquisition of lunacy and return that person sought to be declared insane or an imbecile was not so, with entry of ordinary confirming such return, is not conclusive evidence against third persons not parties to proceeding, though notified thereof as next of kin. Slaughter v. Heath [Ga.] 57 S. E. 69. Adjudication of insanity is only presumptive evidence of incapacity. In re American Board of Com'rs [Me.] 66 A. 215. A finding on an inquest of sanity that insanity antedated the time of beginning the proceeding is unauthorized. In re Preston's Will, 113 App. Div. 732, 99 N. Y. S. 312.

34. Proof of ancestral insanity without any showing of irrational conduct of testator is insufficient. Pringle v. Burroughs, 185 N. Y. 375, 78 N. E. 150.

35. Horner v. Buckingham, 103 Md. 556, 64 A. 41.

36. Johnson v. Johnson [Md.] 65 A. 918.

37. If there is substantial evidence of capacity, the finding will not be disturbed on appeal. Hill v. Boyd, 199 Mo. 438, 97 S. W. 918. Evidence held to raise such doubt as to surrogate's ruling on capacity as to require a reversal that the question may be submitted to a jury. In re Finch's Will, 101 N. Y. S. 135.

Held sufficient to sustain or require finding of capacity. McGown v. Underhill, 101 N. Y. S. 313; In re Winne's Will, 50 Misc. 113, 100 N. Y. S. 376; Trubey v. Richardson, 224 Ill. 136, 79 N. E. 592; Cheney v. Goldy, 225 Ill. 394, 80 N. E. 289. Finding that testator was not incapacitated by administration of opiates sustained. Armstrong v. Armstrong [N. J. Err. & App.] 66 A. 399. Evidence held to sustain a finding that will was executed during a lucid interval. In re Brannan's Estate [Minn.] 107 N. W. 141. Testatrix aged and of impaired mind, but knew what she wanted done with her property. In re Mulholland's Estate [Pa.] 66 A. 150. Finding on conflicting evidence that aged and infirm woman had testamentary capacity sustained. In re Parker's Estate [Neb.] 111 N. W. 119. Evidence held insufficient to sustain finding that elderly man of strong mentality but who had latterly manifested much eccentricity had not testamentary capacity. Archambault v. Blanchard, 198 Mo. 384, 95 S. W. 834. No evidence legally sufficient to show that testator was mentally incapable of executing a valid will at the date of the execution thereof. Kelly v. Kelly, 103 Md. 348, 63 A. 1082.

Sufficient to sustain finding of incapacity. Leonard v. Burtle, 226 Ill. 422, 80 N. E. 992. Evidence held sufficient to authorize submission of issue of capacity to jury. Cowan v. Shaver, 197 Mo. 203, 95 S. W. 200; Goodfellow v. Shannon, 197 Mo. 271, 94 S. W. 979; Meier v. Buchter, 197 Mo. 68, 94 S. W. 883. Evidence held sufficient to show want of capacity. Dillman v. McDanel, 222 Ill.

capacity, other things being equal, is entitled to more weight than that of witnesses not present at the execution of the will.[38] Opinions of persons acquainted with testator will ordinarily prevail over those of experts testifying on hypothetical questions,[39] and opinion evidence will yield to proof of facts indicative of understanding.[40]

Instructions[41] should state the test of competency,[42] define insane delusion,[43] and confine the jury to the issues without entering into a discussion of the validity of particular provisions of the will.[44]

(§ 2) B. Constituents of fraud, mistake, and undue influence.[45]—The influence to invalidate a will must be such as to destroy the free agency of testator.[46] Neither kindness and affection[47] nor resentment, though unfounded,[48] is sufficient; nor is it sufficient that the will is different from what is would have been but for interested advice,[49] or but for a promise to a deceased person.[50] The undue influence need not be exerted at the time of the execution of the will if it was then operative,[51] nor need it be exerted by the beneficiary.[52]

276, 78 N. E. 591. Evidence that testatrix being of an advanced age had a stroke of paralysis and symptoms of senile dementia; working a radical change in her appearance and habits, held to make a case for the jury. Knapp v. St. Louis Trust Co., 199 Mo. 640, 98 S. W. 70. Evidence of extreme illness held to make a case for the jury as to capacity. In re Willsey's Will [Iowa] 109 N. W. 776. Evidence held to show incapacity by enfeeblement and great age. In re Wetmore's Estate [Wash.] 87 P. 1151.

Insane delusion: Evidence of insane delusion as to illegitimacy of children held sufficient. Johnson v. Johnson [Md.] 65 A. 918. Instruction that there was no evidence justifying finding that will was result of an insane delusion held proper. Robinson v. Duvall, 27 App. D. C. 535. Evidence held to show insane delusion of testator as to the unchastity of his daughters. Hardenburgh v. Hardenburgh [Iowa] 109 N. W. 1014. Evidence held for the jury on issue whether testatrix had an insane delusion that she had personally made a gift to her daughter of a just share in the estate. Knapp v. St. Louis Trust Co., 199 Mo. 640, 98 S. W. 70. Evidence held insufficient to show that testator who was separated from his wife was under insane delusion as to attitude toward him of children whom he disinherited. Reichert v. Reichert, 144 Mich. 295, 13 Det. Leg. N. 234, 107 N. W. 1057.

38. Instruction approved. Robinson v. Duvall, 27 App. D. C. 535.

39. Opinions of many persons who knew testator opposed to opinions of experts on hypothetical question. In re Isaac's Estate [Neb.] 107 N. W. 1016. Weight of expert opinions discussed, particularly in view of failure to discriminate between legal and medical standards. In re American Board of Com'rs [Me.] 66 A. 215.

40. A physician's opinion as to capacity based only on the probable result of a disease with which testator was afflicted held insufficient against evidence of apparent competency. Horner v. Buckingham, 103 Md. 556, 64 A. 41. Where the overwhelming weight of the testimony as to facts shows testamentary capacity on the part of a testator, it cannot be overcome by the opinions of persons who did not know testator, who undertake to testify as experts. In re Draper's Estate [Pa.] 64 A. 520.

41. Instructions on testamentary capacity approved. Dowie v. Sutton [Ill.] 81 N. E. 395.

42. Instruction that if jury found that testatrix, at time of executing will, was so completely prostrated in body and mind by wasting effects of fatal illness as to be unable to understand business in which she was then engaged, they should find that she was not of sound mind and disposing memory, held proper. Goodfellow v. Shannon, 197 Mo. 271, 94 S. W. 979.

43. Court should define insane delusion and instruct as to conditions under which it would invalidate will. Johnson v. Johnson [Md.] 65 A. 918.

44. On issue as to capacity, held not error to refuse to instruct that as matter of law children of deceased niece were not entitled to any portion of the estate under the will, and that if they were natural objects of testator's bounty, and he did not have mind sufficient to recall them, and for that reason alone refused to provide for them, will was invalid, court not being called upon to construe will and inform jury as to legality of its provision, only issue being whether paper was will of testator and requested instruction also being misleading. Robinson v. Duvall, 27 App. D. C. 535.

45. See 6 C. L. 1889.

46. In re Miller's Estate [Utah] 88 P. 338.

47. Influence secured by kindness and affection is not "undue." Waters v. Waters, 222 Ill. 26, 78 N. E. 1.

48. Will is not invalidated merely because testator was led to cut off legatee through resentment, whether well or ill founded. Robinson v. Duvall, 27 App. D. C. 535.

49. Hayes v. Moulton [Mass.] 80 N. E. 215.

50. That testatrix disposed of her property in a manner other than she desired, in performance of a promise made to her husband on his deathbed four years before, is not sufficient to invalidate the will (Henderson v. Jackson [Iowa] 111 N. W. 821), though coupled with a belief that she would in some manner suffer from his displeasure in future life if she broke the promise (Id.).

51. Wales v. Wales, 30 Ky. L. R. 948, 99 S. W. 969.

52. Cheney v. Goldy, 225 Ill. 394, 80 N. E. 289.

Fraud and mistake.—Testator's knowledge of the contents of the will is presumed from execution,[53] but if he did not know what he was signing or was misled as to its contents the will is avoided,[54] unless the will as executed conformed to his intent.[55]

Indicia of influence and admissibility of evidence.[56]—On an issue of undue influence the reasonableness or unreasonableness of the will [57] and its conformity or lack of conformity to previous testamentary design [58] are material, as are testator's health and condition of mind,[59] and his relations with the persons disinherited [60] and with the person by whom the influence is alleged to have been exerted,[61] the surroundings and circumstances under which the will was executed,[62] and the subsequent conduct of the parties.[63] Where persons are alleged to have conspired to influence testator, facts showing such conspiracy and acts of conspirators pursuant to it are admissible.[64]

53. If person of sound mind executes will, and same is his voluntary act, law presumes knowledge on his part of its contents, even though he is unable to read or write. Lipphard v. Humphrey, 28 App. D. C. 355. Refusal to direct verdict for caveators on ground that will was not read to testatrix at time of execution and attestation held proper. Id.

54. If testator, who was illiterate and feeble, told scrivener to write will one way and he wrote it another, and it was signed under belief that it was written as directed, held that it was not testator's will. Cowan v. Shaver, 197 Mo. 203, 95 S. W. 200. Evidence held to justify submission of question whether such was fact to jury. Id. Evidence that testator did not know the contents of the will when he signed it is not admissible under averments of undue influence and want of capacity. Waters v. Waters, 222 Ill. 26, 78 N. E. 1. Where mental capacity was clearly proved, declarations of testatrix as to its contents, made after its execution, and which had no tendency to show want of capacity, held inadmissible to show that she did not know its contents at time of execution. Lipphard v. Humphrey, 28 App. D. C. 355.

55. Will signed by testator under assurance that it would accomplish a certain disposition is valid if the will in connection with the statute of descents accomplishes such purpose. Residuary clause directed by testator, but omitted, gave residue to the person who would inherit it on intestacy. In re Brannan's Estate [Minn.]107 N. W. 141.

56. See 6 C. L. 1890, n. 71 et seq.

57. Testimony of testatrix's husband as to his own embarrassed financial condition, ill health, and expenditures on his wife's property, held admissible as tending to show reasonableness of disposition of testatrix's property. Smith v. Ryan [Iowa] 112 N. W. 8. In proceedings to set aside probate, plaintiffs' evidence as to testatrix's financial condition when she married defendant, seventeen years before execution of will, held properly stricken as having no bearing on issues. Id. Evidence as to advancements made to children before execution of will held admissible as tending to show an unnatural will. Meier v. Buchter, 197 Mo. 68, 94 S. W. 883. Unjustness and unreasonableness of provisions may be considered. Id. Slight inequalities in disposition of property held not to show undue influence. Armstrong v. Armstrong [N. J. Err. & App.] 66 A. 399.

58. Similarity or dissimilarity between wills is material on issue of undue influence. Johnson v. Johnson [Iowa] 111 N. W. 430. Held negatived by the fact of a formed scheme of disposal in testator's mind before he came in contact with the chief beneficiary. In re Pickett's Will [Or.] 89 P. 377.

59. Physical condition may be shown. In re Wiltsey's Will [Iowa] 109 N. W. 776. Mental and physical condition of testator may be considered by jury on issue of undue influence. Linebarger v. Linebarger [N. C.] 55 S. E. 709.

60. Friendly relations between testator and disinherited relatives admissible on issue of undue influence. Cheney v. Goldy, 225 Ill. 394, 80 N. E. 289.

61. Conduct of the influencing person is admissible when tending to show opportunity. In re Miller's Estate [Utah.] 88 P. 338. Admission of evidence that testatrix's husband, by whom undue influence was alleged to have been exerted, had been divorced from the other wives for cruelty held harmless in connection with evidence of cruelty to testatrix. Livering's Ex'r v. Russell, 30 Ky. L. R. 1185, 100 S. W. 840.

62. Making of will at time and place remote from beneficiary. In re Rathjens' Estate [Wash.] 87 P. 1070. That the subscribing witnesses were friends of the person alleged to have exerted undue influence, and strangers to testatrix. Livering's Ex'r v. Russell, 30 Ky. L. R. 1185, 100 S. W. 840. Officiousness of the beneficiary is an unfavorable circumstance. Dictating is as bad as writing the will. In re Miller's Estate [Utah] 88 P. 338. Evidence that will was drawn by one in confidential relation to testatrix, making him executor without bond and with extensive powers, and that it was executed at his home in the absence of testatrix's husband and relatives, and with an appearance of haste, held to throw on him the burden of rebutting undue influence. In re Marlor's Estate, 103 N. Y. S. 161.

63. That will was immediately delivered to friend of person exerting influence. Livering's Ex'r v. Russell, 30 Ky. L. R. 1185, 100 S. W. 840.

64. Will of testator's wife leaving bulk of property left her by testator to her daughter held admissible as tending to show result, and therefore motive, of alleged conspiracy between wife, daughter, and another, to divert property from testator's family to that of his wife. Cowan v. Shaver, 197 Mo. 203, 95 S. W. 200. Where conspiracy between beneficiaries was alleged, state-

The finding of a jury upon a caveat to a will that there was fraud in respect to the execution thereof is not admissible upon a caveat to a prior will made by the same testator, for the purpose of showing fraud in a similar transaction, where the parties to the two proceedings are not the same.[65] Declarations of testator are not admissible as evidence of the facts stated or an issue of undue influnce,[66] at least in the absence of direct testimony of undue influence,[67] but if material they may be admitted to show the state of testator's mind;[68] and declarations of inconsistent testamentary intent are likewise held inadmissible.[69] Declarations or implied admissions [70] of a legatee are inadmissible if made before the execution of the will [71] or if there are several legatees,[72] but admissions of a sole legatee after the making of the will are admissible.[73]

Sufficiency of evidence.—The burden is on one asserting undue influence,[74] but confidential relations between testator and one substantially benefiting by the will is prima facie evidence thereof.[75] Undue influence may be shown by circumstantial evidence,[76] and the sufficiency of the proof is ordinarily for the jury.[77] ments and admissions of one held admissible after introduction of evidence tending to show privity of design. Meier v. Buchter, 197 Mo. 68, 94 S. W. 883.

65. Packham v. Glendmeyer, 103 Md. 416, 63 A. 1048.

66. Wetz v. Schneider [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 660, 96 S. W. 59. Declarations of testator prior to execution of will and tending to show undue influence held admissible. Linebargar v. Linebarger [N. C.] 55 S. E. 709.

67. Johnson v. Johnson [Iowa] 111 N. W. 430.

68. Wetz v. Schneider [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 660, 96 S. W. 59.

69. Cheney v. Goldy, 225 Ill. 394, 80 N. E. 289; Waters v. Waters, 222 Ill 26, 78 N. E. 1.

70. Silence of beneficiary under declarations of testatrix that the will was made to please him and not as she wanted it held inadmissible. Johnson v. Johnson [Iowa] 111 N. W. 430.

71. Not declarations against interest if made before he becomes legatee. Linebarger v. Linebarger [N. C.] 55 S. E. 709.

72. On issue of devisavit vel non, where there are several devisees. Linebarger v. Linebarger [N. C.] 55 S. E. 709. Are, however, admissible where special issue is submitted as to validity of will as to particular devisee. Id.

73. In re Miller's Estate [Utah] 88 P. 338.

74. Hoffman v. Hoffman [Mass.] 78 N. E. 492.

75. Undue influence in nuncupative will is shown prima facie by confidential relation between testator and beneficiary. Isham v. Bingham, 126 Ill. App. 513. Bequest of slight value to one in confidential relation raises no inference of undue influence. Trubey v. Richardson, 224 Ill. 136, 79 N. E. 592. The presumption from the fact that the will was drawn by a legatee who stood in a confidential relation to testator is not rebutted by the fact that testator read the will before signing and was then in possession of his senses. In re Thompson's Will, 50 Misc. 222, 100 N. Y. S. 492. That a legatee was testator's partner, and that he saw him several times the day the will was made, raises no inference of undue influence. In re Muellenschlader's Will, 128 Wis. 364, 107 N. W. 652. That one who was named as executor was testator's advisor and accompanied him on the occasion of making the will, held not to show undue influence. Sibley v. Morse [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 878, 109 N. W. 858.

76. Hoffman v. Hoffman [Mass.] 78 N. E. 492; Meier v. Buchter, 197 Mo. 68, 94 S. W. 883; Walls v. Walls, 30 Ky. 948, 99 S. W. 969; Livering's Ex'r v. Russell, 30 Ky. L. R. 1185, 100 S. W. 840.

77. Evidence of undue influence sufficient. Cheney v. Goldey, 225 Ill. 394, 80 N. E. 289; Leonard v. Burtle, 226 Ill. 422, 80 N. E. 992; Steinkuhler v. Wempner [Ind.] 81 N. E. 482. Evidence that will was drawn pursuant to alleged communication received the night before from a spiritualistic medium held to make a case for the jury. Testator was 89 years old, intemperate, and eccentric. About eight weeks before his death he went to proponent's house and remained there until he died, proponent acting as his nurse and adviser. Two days before testator's death a man unknown to him, at proponent's request, drew up a will which was executed by testator. The will made proponent sole executor and the residuary legatee after a bequest of $5 to contestant, testator's nephew. Contestant's relations with testator had been pleasant but not intimate. It was held that these circumstances raised a presumption of undue influence by proponent, and that it was for the jury to determine whether such presumption had been overcome by counter proof. In re White's Will, 78 Vt. 479, 63 A. 878. Will unjust to children held obtained by undue influence of wife. Hoffman v. Hoffman [Mass.] 78 N. E. 492. Acquiescence of beneficiary and her daughter, in purpose of another, to exercise undue influence over testator, and their assistance in his efforts, held sufficient to invalidate will, though they thought such beneficiary was entitled to more than others. Cowan v. Shaver, 197 Mo. 203, 95 S. W. 200. Evidence held sufficient to authorize submission of question of undue influence to jury. Cowan v. Shaver, 197 Mo. 203, 95 S. W. 200; Linebarger v. Linebarger [N. C.] 55 S. E. 709. Evidence held not to justify direction of verdict in favor of will. Meier v. Buchter, 197 Mo. 68, 94 S. W. 883. Evidence of undue influence against

Instructions should define the proof required [78] and apprise the jury of the presumptions arising as a matter of law on the evidence.[79] A special issue may be submitted as to influence by one of several legatees.[80] While the question of undue influence depends largely on the capacity of testator, an instruction that the questions of influence and capacity "cannot be separated" is properly refused.[81] Contestant is not prejudiced by instruction requiring fraud "and" undue influence,[82] and error in submitting undue influence is harmless where want of capacity is found.[83]

§ 3. The testamentary instrument or act. A. Requisites, form, and validity.[84]—A will is a declaration of the maker's intention with respect to his property which he wills to be performed after his death.[85] It must be complete in itself and cannot be aided,[86] nor is it invalidated [87] by subjoined non-testamentary writings. A will may be conditional but an intention to make it so will not be inferred.[88] Whether an instrument in the form of a deed,[89] contract,[90] direction,[91] deposit in children of testator, who was ill and much exercised in mind over divorce obtained by his wife, held sufficient to sustain finding against will. Walls v. Walls, 30 Ky. L. R. 948, 99 S. W. 969. Evidence held sufficient to sustain finding that will was procured by undue influence of testatrix's husband, exerted through cruelty and violence. Livering's Ex'r v. Russell, 30 Ky. L. R. 1185, 100 S. W. 840. Evidence of importunity and extreme illness of testator held to make a case for the jury. In re Wiltsey's Will [Iowa] 109 N. W. 776.

Evidence insufficient. Waters v. Waters, 222 Ill. 26, 78 N. E. 1; Robinson v. Duvall, 27 App. D. C. 535; Baugher v. Gesell, 103 Md. 450, 63 A. 1078. Finding against undue influence sustained. Trubey v. Richardson, 224 Ill. 136, 79 N. E. 592. Testator on bad terms with collateral relatives left his property to one who had for many years been manager of his farm. In re Isaac's Estate [Neb.] 107 N. W. 1016. Will of person found to be possessed of sound mind and memory is not to be set aside on evidence tending to show only possibility of suspicion of undue influence. Robinson v. Duvall, 27 App. D. C. 535.

78. Instruction that before caveators could recover they must prove that undue influence was in fact exerted upon testator by other evidence than his own declarations approved. Linebarger v. Linebarger [N. C.] 55 S. E. 709.

79. Where in proceedings to establish a will the court charged the jury that under the circumstances of the case the law raised the presumption of undue influence by the proponent, who was the residuary legatee, and that such presumption was evidence and established prima facie the fact of undue influence, it was not error to refuse to charge that the jury were at liberty to infer that the proponent had practiced fraud and exercised undue influence, or either, to procure the execution of the instrument. In re White's Will, 78 Vt. 479, 63 A. 878. Where in proceedings to establish a will the circumstances were such as to raise a presumption of undue influence on the part of the proponent, and it was a question for the jury to determine whether or not such presumption had been overcome by counter proof, it was not error to refuse to instruct the jury that the facts and circumstances constituted fraud and deception, in law, on the part of proponent, and that therefore the instrument was not the last will of testator. Id.

80. Where evidence was sufficient to present issue as to exertion of undue influence by one devisee, but not by others, held special issue could be submitted as to validity of will as to him. Linebarger v. Linebarger [N. C.] 55 S. E. 709.

81. Hayes v. Moulton [Mass.] 80 N. E. 215.

82. In re Parker's Estate [Neb.] 111 N. W. 119.

83. In re Wharton's Will [Iowa] 109 N. W. 492.

84. See 6 C. L. 1895.

85. In re Beaumont's Estate, 214 Pa. 445, 63 A. 1023.

86. Instrument executed with testamentary formality providing that property shall be disposed of as provided in a certain trust deed is insufficient under Gen. St. 1902, §§ 392-317. Hatheway v. Smith [Conn.] 65 A. 1058. Testator directed his executors to pay all his debts outstanding at a certain date without naming the persons to whom payment was to be made, but merely referring to "a list of all debts I wish paid" inclosed with the will. Hartwell v. Martin [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 754.

87. Matter not testamentary following signature does not invalidate will. In re Beaumont's Estate [Pa.] 65 A. 799.

88. Recital of perils of intended journey held not to make will conditional. In re Forquer's Estate [Pa.] 66 A. 92.

89. Held testamentary: Instrument in form of deed executed by an old man shortly before his death. Aldridge v. Aldridge [Mo.] 101 S. W. 42. Instrument designated a "deed" but passing no beneficial interest during the lifetime of the grantor. In re Beaumont's Estate, 214 Pa. 445, 63 A. 1023. A deed by wife to her husband deposited with her husband's will in her favor and to take effect at her death (Sappingfield v. King [Or.] 89 P. 142), nor are the deed and the husband's will mutual and reciprocal so as to be irrevocable (Sappingfield v. King [Or.] 90 P. 150). Instrument in form of deed to be placed in escrow and delivered on grantor's death. Wilson v. Carter [Iowa] 109 N. W. 886. Instrument in form of deed in terms effective on testator's death and not until then to be delivered. Leonard v. Leonard, 145 Mich. 563, 13 Det. Leg. N. 612, 108 N. W. 985. Deed accom-bank,[92] or declaration of trust[93] is in fact testamentary depends on whether it is designed to pass a present interest or to take effect only on the death of the maker and be revocable until then. The burden is on one claiming that an instrument in form of a deed is a will,[94] and an instrument will not be held testamentary and thereby invalidated unless such interpretation is imperative.[95]

(§ 3) B. Execution of will. 1. Mode of execution.[96]—The requirements are statutory and vary in the different states, the more common being that the will must be signed by the testator or some one for him at his discretion[97] in the presence of[98] the statutory number of disinterested and competent witnesses,[99] who must panled by directions for disposal after grantor's death under which grantee claimed no title. Oswald v. Caldwell, 225 Ill. 224, 80 N. E. 131.

Held not testamentary: Freeman v. Jones [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 158, 94 S. W. 1072; Venters v. Wickens, 224 Ill. 569, 79 N. E. 946. An instrument in form a deed but becoming operative three days after grantor's death. Pentico v. Hays [Kan.] 88 P. 738. An instrument in form of a deed to be delivered on grantor's death held not testamentary, though grantor told the draughtsman that he wished to make a will. Griswold v. Griswold [Ala.] 42 So. 554. Deed on valuable consideration to take effect on grantor's death. Rogers v. Rogers [Miss.] 43 So. 434. Instrument in form of absolute deed presently effective. Jones v. Jones [S. D.] 108 N. W. 23. Deed conveying fee in presenti but with reservation to grantor for life. Anspach v. Lightner, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 218. Revocable deed with power of attorney back to the grantor to collect and use rents and profits. Stamper v. Venable [Tenn.] 97 S. W. 812. An instrument executed as a deed and containing operative words of present conveyance will not be held testamentary because the phrase "I will" is used therein in limiting a remainder. Brinson v. Sandifer [Miss.] 42 So. 89.

90. Instrument of form of contract whereby son was to work farm during his mother's life and receive it on her death held testamentary. Williams v. Claunch [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 813, 97 S. W. 111. An agreement whereby an adopted child is given full right of inheritance is not testamentary. Chehak v. Battles [Iowa] 110 N. W. 330.

91. A signed statement "to be seen when I am gone" that one should be paid for work according to agreement is not testamentary. King v. McKinstry, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 34. Writing ordering maker's executor to pay plaintiff certain sum one year from maker's death held testamentary in character and void for want of proper execution as a will. Haines v. Rogers [N. J. Law] 62 A. 272.

92. Deposit in bank in joint names of depositor and another held not a gift but an invalid attempt at testamentary disposition. Turnbull v. Turnbull, 103 N. Y. S. 499. Testatrix who was a depositor in a bank left a paper writing, signed, sealed, and delivered which read as follows: "This is to certify that, in case of my death, any money in the bank (naming it) at the time of my decease, standing in my name, shall be the sole property" of a person named. It was held insufficient as a testamentary disposition. White v. Crossman [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 168.

93. Declaration of trust to be executed after maker's death held to vest in the beneficiaries from delivery of the deed, and according need not be executed with testamentary formalities. Robb v. Washington & Jefferson College, 185 N. Y. 485, 78 N. E. 359.

94. Fellbush v. Fellbush [Pa.] 65 A. 28.

95. A provision that it shall not take effect till death will ordinarily be referred to the enjoyment of what was conveyed and not to the validity of the deed, and it will not be assumed that conditions precedent to delivery were intended to make the deed testamentary if they might have performed during life. Nolan v. Otney [Kan.] 89 P. 690.

96. See 6 C. L. 1897.

97. "I cannot write, you will have to sign it for me," held sufficient direction. In re Isaac's Estate [Neb.] 107 N. W. 1016. Is not necessary to validity of will executed by illiterate person that he should sign it by his mark, but is sufficient if he authorizes and directs some other person to sign his name in his presence. Civ. Code 1895, § 3272, and hence absence of cross mark between words "her mark" does not necessarily show failure to execute. Robertson v. Hill [Ga.] 56 S. E. 289. Blindness alone will not invalidate a signature made at testator's direction and in his presence. In re Pickett's Will [Or.] 89 P. 377.

98. A will was executed in the presence of a witness where he was in an adjoining room separated only by a railing and actually saw the testator sign. Bogert v. Bateman [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 238.

Acknowledgment of signature out of presence of witnesses: Not sufficient acknowledgment of signature out of presence of witnesses where testatrix was silent when scrivener stated that signature was hers. Manners v. Manners [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 583. Where testator did not sign in the presence of the witnesses and was silent when the scrivener stated the nature of the instrument requested the witnesses to sign, there is no sufficient publication. Id. Immaterial that signature of illiterate was affixed out of presence of witnesses where he made his mark and adopted the signature in their presence. Robinson v. Jones [Md.] 65 A. 814. Where the will is not signed in the presence of the witnesses, it must be published and the signature acknowledged in their presence. In re Rogers' Will, 103 N. Y. S. 423.

99. Signature of a testamentary instrument in form of a deed by the maker's husband as joint maker and by a notary at the end of a certificate of acknowledgment is not an attestation by two witnesses. Gump v. Gowans, 226 Ill. 635, 80 N. E. 1086. The incompetency of husbands and wives be informed that the instrument is the will of testator [1] and who must thereupon [2] sign in his presence [3] and in some states at his request.[4] Attestation is not impaired by witnesses' testimony that he believed testator was at the time unconscious.[5]

(§ 3 B) 2. Nuncupative and holographic wills.[6]—Nuncupative wills will be closely scrutinized and statute authorizing them strictly construed.[7] A holographic will is one entirely written by the testator, attestation being in some states dispensed with as to such wills.[8] A holographic codicil good as such and written on the back of a will not a legal holograph so incorporates the will as to validate both.[9]

(§ 3) C. Revocation and alteration.[10]—A will is revocable at pleasure [11] unless the testator be estopped,[12] contracts against revocation being generally ineffective in probate,[13] though enforceable in equity.[14] Express revocation can only be made in the manner provided by statute,[15] and a writing purporting to revoke a will on account of the existence of a certain fact does not release if there be no such fact.[16] Whether cancellation was made animo revocandi is ordinarily a ques-

as witnesses for and against each other applies to the attestation of wills. Rev. St. ch. 51, § 8, expressly provides that the relaxation of the rule in some cases shall not apply to the attestation of wills. Id. The person named as executor is a competent subscribing witness. Davenport v. Davenport, 116 La. 1009, 41 So. 240. Only direct and beneficial interest will disqualify a subscribing witness. Dowie v. Sutton, 126 Ill. App. 47. A beneficiary may be a competent subscribing witness if so at the time of attestation, but by statute in Montana he cannot take if he was then a contingent beneficiary and is a necessary subscribing witness. In re Klein's Estate [Mont.] 88 P. 798. A direction to the executor to advise with an attorney named does not constitute a beneficial appointment of the attorney disqualifying him to attest. In re Pickett's Will [Or.] 89 P. 377.

1. It is sufficient publication that the will was read aloud to testator in the presence of the witnesses and that he then expressed his satisfaction therewith. Bogert v. Bateman [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 238. Is not necessary that will be read to testator or by him in presence of witnesses. Code, § 3274. Smith v. Ryan [Iowa] 112 N. W. 8.

2. Witnesses must sign after testator has signed and not before. Smith v. Ryan [Iowa] 112 N. W. 8. Contra. In re Shapter's Estate [Colo.] 85 P. 688.

3. Whether will signed by witnesses in the same room with testator was in fact signed in his presence held a question of fact. In re Brannan's Estate [Minn.] 107 N. W. 141. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4604, subscribing witnesses must sign in testator's presence. Cowan v. Shaver, 197 Mo. 203, 95 S. W. 200.

4. Declaration and request immediately before signing by testator held good. In re Gambler's Will, 104 N. Y. S. 476.

5. In re Shapter's Estate [Colo.] 85 P. 688.

6. See 6 C. L. 1901.

7. Isham v. Bingham, 126 Ill. App. 513. Statutory requirements as to nuncupative wills must be followed to validate verbal deathbed bequests which have not the essentials of a gift causa mortis. Godard v. Conrad [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 1108.

8. Letter to wife written in contemplation of suicide held a valid will. Arendt v. Arendt [Ark.] 96 S. W. 982. Testimony held sufficient to establish under statute requiring testimony of three unimpeached witnesses to handwriting. Id.

9. In re Plumel's Estate [Cal.] 90 P. 192.

10. See 6 C. L. 1901.

11. In re Beaumont's Estate, 214 Pa. 445, 63 A. 1023. Testamentary instrument, though in form of contract, is subject to revocation. Williams v. Claunch [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 813, 97 S. W. 111.

12. Where joint wills provide for distribution on the death of the survivor, such survivor, having received the benefits of the agreement, cannot revoke his will. Bower v. Daniel, 198 Mo. 289, 95 S. W. 347.

13. Revocation by a later will is none the less effective because the revoked will was in performance of a contract to devise which the later one violated. Allen v. Bromberg [Ala.] 41 So. 771.

14. See ante, § 1.

15. Under a statute declaring that revocation can be accomplished only by destruction or by a writing executed with testamentary formality, an endorsement signed by testator is ineffective. In re Miller's Estate, 50 Misc. 100 N. Y. S. 344.

Proof of express revocation: On issue as to whether purported written revocation was in fact made by testator, evidence of testator's declarations as to how he was going to leave his property, made after execution of will and before alleged revocation, held inadmissible, there being no question of fraud in factum of will itself. In re Shelton's Will [N. C.] 55 S. E. 705. Declarations of testator, made after date of purported revocation, tending to show that he did not execute or write alleged revocation appearing on margin of will, held admissible, particularly in view of Revisal 1905, § 3115, requiring written revocation to be entirely in testator's handwriting unless attested by witness. Id. Verdict answering "yes" to issue whether writing propounded for probate, and every part thereof, was testator's last will, held not ambiguous, though will bore purported revocation on margin, revocatory words not being part of writing as introduced by proponent. Id.

16. Appeal of Strong [Conn.] 63 A. 1089. It is immaterial whether the mistake under which the act of revocation was done was one of fact or law. Id.

tion of fact.[17] At common law a woman's will was revoked by marriage,[18] and a man's by marriage and birth of issue,[19] and statutes in some states have extended these rules.[20] A subsequent will does not work revocation in the absence of a revocatory clause or an inconsistent disposition.[21] One seeking to show revocation by a lost subsequent will must show not only its execution but its contents.[22] A power of attorney respecting the testator's estate being revoked by his death does not revoke his will.[23] Where a lost will was last seen in the possession of the testator, the presumption arises that it was destroyed by him animo revocandi.[24] In Wisconsin a will is revoked if the testator knowing of its loss or destruction fails after reasonable time and opportunity to reproduce it.[25] At common law a conveyance of devised lands operated as a revocation but this rule is changed by statute in most jurisdictions.[26]

(§ 3) D. Republication and revival.[27]—Destruction of will does not revive former one in the absence of circumstances showing such intent.[28] Verbal declara-

17. Whether provisions are revoked by the drawing of a line through them by testator depends on his intent. Home of the Aged v. Bantz [Md.] 66 A. 701. Cancellation of signature and inscription "Am going to make a new will" held to show revocation. In re Miller's Will, 51 Misc. 156, 100 N. Y. S. 849. Pencil interlineations in holographic will apparently made to indicate changes intended on preparation of new will held not to show intent to revoke. In re Raisbeck's Will, 102 N. Y. S. 967. After testator's death a typewritten will was found torn in two, with the words in testator's handwriting at the top of the first page, "Superseded by written one." In the same envelope was an unsigned draft of a will in testator's handwriting. It was held that the will was not revoked, the attempted act of revocation being evidently made under a mistake of law as to the effect of the unsigned draft. Appeal of Strong [Conn.] 63 A. 1089.

18. The rule that a woman's will is revoked by marriage applies, though the will was made in contemplation of marriage and provides for her intended husband. In re Mann's Estate, 51 Misc. 315, 100 N. Y. S. 1100.

19. Implied revocation of will "of testator's whole estate" by marriage and birth of issue is not affected by the lapse of certain legacies in testator's lifetime. In re Rossignot's Will, 50 Misc. 231, 100 N. Y. S. 623. Such lapse could not in any event be proved for that purpose in view of the statute prescribing what evidence may be received on the issue of revocation. Id.

20. By statute in South Dakota marriage revokes a will not providing for the wife. Griffing v. Gislason [S. D.] 109 N. W. 646. Under Revisal 1905, § 3116, will of married woman held revoked by her remarriage after death of first husband, notwithstanding constitutional guaranty of right of married woman to make will. Means v. Ury, 141 N. C. 248, 53 S. E. 850.

21. In re Dunahugh's Will, 130 Iowa 692, 107 N. W. 925. The rule in the construction of wills that, if a testator makes a testamentary disposition of the whole estate in any property, a devise over of any remainder in that property is inoperative, because nothing is left which can be the subject of a devise over, is not applicable when the inconsistent devises are contained one in the original will and the other in a subsequent codicil, as then the testator is presumed to have changed the intention which he had at the time of making the first testamentary disposition of the property in question, and his last will, that is the codicil, will take effect. Williams v. Dearborn, 101 Me. 506, 64 A. 851. In such case the insertion in the codicil of the words "hereby confirming my last will" will not be construed as showing an intention on the part of the testator to confirm the will in full, but only an intention to confirm it except as modified by the codicil. Williams v. Dearborn, 101 Me. 506, 64 A. 851, overruling in part Pickering v. Langdon, 22 Me. 413.

22. In re Dunahugh's Will, 130 Iowa, 692, 107 N. W. 925.

23. In re Kilborn [Cal. App.] 89 P. 985.

24. In re Fallon's Estate, 214 Pa. 584, 63 A. 889. This presumption is strengthened where it is shown that testator's habits were methodical. Id.

25. Rev. St. 1898, § 3791. Parsons v. Balson [Wis.] 109 N. W. 136. Knowledge by testator for three years and change in his circumstances. Id.

26. Conveyance of land held a revocation of a testamentary disposition in the form of a contract. Williams v. Claunch [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 813, 97 S. W. 111. In view of Code, § 1626, subsequent conveyance of land devised does not operate to revoke will. McGowan v. Elroy, 28 App. D. C. 188. The doctrine of implied revocation that existed at common law prior to the English Wills Act of 1837 does not obtain in Ohio as to after-acquired property devised by will, or to devised specific property conveyed by a testator after the execution of the will and reconveyed to him before his death. Ridenour v. Callahan, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 585. Where R. made a will in 1900, devising specific real estate, and thereafter conveyed such real estate to another, and later and before the death of R. the same was reconveyed to the testatrix, said devise passes under the original will and is not revoked. Id.

27. See 6 C. L. 1904.

28. In re Moore's Will [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 447. Facts held not to show intent to revive. Id. In Kansas the revocation of a tions will not ordinarily republish a will revoked by operation of law.[29] Republication of a contingent will after contingency has failed re-establishes it as an unconditional will.[30]

§ 4. Probating, establishing, and recording. A. Place of probate and jurisdiction and powers of courts.[31]—The jurisdiction of courts of probate attaches when the will is filed for probate [32] and terminates with distribution.[33] It extends to all matters relating to the factum of the will,[34] and, as incident thereto, the standing of contestants,[35] but not to issues arising from breach of a contract to devise.[36] The primary jurisdiction of probate is at the domicile of the testator,[37] which domicile the court, where the will is offered, must primarily determine.[38] A court of ancillary probate may enjoin one from prosecuting a suit in the domicile to contest the will.[39]

(§ 4) B. Parties in will cases and the right to contest.[40]—Any person who under a prior will [41] or under the statute of descents [42] would take a share of the later will does not revive an earlier one revoked by the later. Gen. St. 1901, § 7976. Ross v. Wallard [Kan.] 89 P. 680.

29. Where will of married woman was revoked by subsequent remarriage after death of first husband, held that her verbal declaration that it was her last will and testament, without anything further, did not constitute re-execution and republication. Means v. Ury, 141 N. C. 248, 53 S. E. 850.

30. In re Forquer's Estate [Pa.] 66 A. 92.

31. See 6 C. L. 1905.

32. Orphans' Court has no jurisdiction under will until it is presented for probate. Cannot until then send issue of fact as to testator's residence to law court. Bridge v. Dillard [Md.] 65 A. 10. When caveats are filed against the probate of a will, service of citations upon the caveators and upon those propounding the will for probate vests in the orphans' court of the proper county complete jurisdiction over the question of probate. In re Myers' Estate [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 138.

33. A will had been admitted to probate, and the executors, after payment of debts, had passed the estate over to trustees, and it was ready for distribution. It was held that prior to a decree of distribution by the probate court the court of chancery had no jurisdiction, under the Vermont act of 1896, of a bill filed by legatees praying for a construction of the will. Harris v. Harris [Vt.] 64 A. 75.

34. Whether erasures were with animo revocandi relates to the factum of the will not to its interpretation and are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the orphans' court. Home of the Aged v. Bantz [Md.] 66 A. 701.

35. The probate court may decide whether a contestant has aliened his interest. In re Edelman's Estate, 148 Cal. 233, 82 P. 962.

36. See ante, § 1.

37. Evidence held sufficient to show that the residence of testatrix, as fixing the jurisdiction of the court to admit her will to probate, was in Baltimore County and not in Baltimore City. Oberlander v. Emmel [Md.] 64 A. 1025. Domicile is not changed by mere absence, however long, without intention to remain. Absences of 3 and 12 years held not a change. Pickering v. Winch [Or.] 87 P. 763. Under the Maryland statute, Code Pub. Gen. Laws, Art. 93, §§ 14, 334, making the right to admit a will to probate depend upon the residence of the testator at the time of his death, the orphans' court of Baltimore City has jurisdiction to determine the preliminary question of residence of testator in order to determine whether it has jurisdiction to admit a will to probate. Oberlander v. Emmel [Md.] 64 A. 1025.

38. In Pennsylvania the orphans' court has jurisdiction to determine the domicile of the testator notwithstanding the action of the probate court of another state in admitting his will to probate and granting letters testamentary. In re Dalrymple's Estate [Pa.] 64 A. 554.

39. Will of testator domiciled in Oregon was admitted to probate in Washington, one of the executors being a resident of the latter state and the other two residents of the former. Widow, who had moved to Washington, made no objection to probate proceedings, accepted her legacy under the will, and for an additional valuable consideration released all claims against the estate. All the property was in Washington except one tract of realty. Held that Washington courts had jurisdiction to enjoin widow from prosecuting suit in Oregon courts attacking the will and the probate proceedings and seeking to have will probated in that state. Rader v. Stubblefield [Wash.] 86 P. 560.

40. See 6 C. L. 1906.

41. Where a will with erasures is probated without contest one who would take under an erased provision has sufficient interest to file a caveat for the revocation of probate. Home of the Aged v. Bantz [Md.] 66 A. 701. One to whom nothing is left by an earlier valid will is not entitled to contest a subsequent one. Cowan v. Walker [Tenn.] 96 S. W. 967. Proponents are not estopped to rely on an earlier will to debar the contestant. Id. Next of kin who in no event can take have no standing to attack the validity of a trust for the purpose of establishing an intestacy. McClellan v. Weaver [Cal. App.] 88 P. 646.

42. Widow may contest will where there are no children, since renunciation of will would not, in such case, give her same interest as successful contest. Freeman v. Freeman [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 292. Code 1899, c. 78, § 11, relating to right of widow to renounce will, held not to change rule, estate if the will presently propounded were set aside has interest sufficient to contest. Invalidity for violation of a statute providing that no person leaving a wife, child or parent, shall bequeath more than one-half his estate to charity may be asserted by any heir.[43] One who has taken under the will [44] or has entered into an agreement not to contest [45] is precluded from attacking the will. A transfer in anticipation of heirship may be valid and cut off the right.[46] Where a contest is pending, all persons desirous of contesting should be required to join therein and not file separately.[47] In Montana a special provision for representation of minors by guardian ad litem exists which is exclusive of any other such representation.[48]

(§ 4) C. Duty to produce will.[49]

(§ 4) D. Probate and procedure in general.[50]—In the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary there is no limit upon the time after a testator's death within which a will may be proven.[51] Though a will does not operate to pass title until proven according to law, when so proven it relates back to the death of the testator so as to vest title from that date as between the parties who claim under it.[52]

since it presupposes a valid will which has passed through and survived ordeals of probate and contest. Id. The widow and sole legatee of an heir is a person interested and entitled to contest. Rainey v. Ridgway [Ala.] 41 So. 632. The son of a direct heir of testator who died after him but before probate is a person interested. Henry v. Wert [Ala.] 42 So. 405. The public administrator is not one interested in the estate. State v. District Court of Second Judicial Dist. [Mont.] 85 P. 1022.

43. Robb v. Washington & Jefferson College, 185 N. Y. 485, 78 N. E. 359.

44. Lanning v. Gay [Kan.] 85 P. 407; Rader v. Stubblefield [Wash.] 86 P. 560. One accepting a devise cannot attack another devise on the ground that he and not testator owned the property thereby disposed of. Beetson v. Stoops, 186 N. Y. 456, 79 N. E. 731. By permitting his creditors to levy on and sell devised lands, devisee held to have accepted under the will. Torno v. Torno [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 789, 95 S. W. 762. Joinder by an heir in a conveyance of property devised to his wife estops him to attack the will. Starkey v. Starkey [Ind.] 76 N. E. 876. Acceptance of a voluntary conveyance from a devisee of lands acquired under the will precludes contest. Holland v. Couts [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 254, 98 S. W. 233. Party to suit to recover land claiming under deed of devisee cannot question validity of probate. Steadman v. Steadman [N. C.] 55 S. E. 784.

45. A promise in consideration of an agreement not to contest rests on a sufficient consideration (Grochowski v. Grochowski [Neb.] 109 N. W. 742), and where no rights of others than the contracting parties are involved violates no rule of public policy (Id.). A settlement agreement precluding heirs from contest may be asserted in proceedings for probate and resort to equity is not necessary. Bean v. Bean, 144 Mich. 599, 13 Det. Leg. N. 355, 108 N. W. 369.

46. Though law did not give effect to transfers, releases, or extinguishments of heirship, they were always cognizable in equity, and in proper cases afforded a complete defense by way of estoppel, and such equitable defense is cognizable by the court of probate. In re Edelman's Estate, 148 Cal. 233, 82 P. 962. Where heir seeks to transfer his interest to third person, latter is bound to show the good faith and fairness of the transaction, but this rule does not apply in case of a release made directly to the ancestor by the heir. Id. Proof of fairness is even less necessary in the case of a separation agreement between husband and wife whereby they mutually release all property rights and rights of succession and inheritance, mutually lived up to during the wife's lifetime, and sought to be questioned by the husband after her death when set up as a defense to his right to contest her will. Id. Agreement held to bar husband's right to contest will. Id.

47. Rainey v. Ridgway [Ala.] 41 So. 632.

48. The general procedure does not apply to probate. State v. District Court of Second Judicial Dist. [Mont.] 85 P. 1022.

49. See 4 C. L. 1890.

50. See 6 C. L. 1907.

51. Steadman v. Steadman [N. C.] 55 S. E. 784. While statutes regulating probate provide no time within which probate shall be applied for, yet they contemplate that this shall be speedily done. Code §§ 1635a, 830. McGowan v. Elroy, 28 App. D. C. 188.

52. Steadman v. Steadman [N. C.] 55 S. E. 784. An unprobated will is capable of conveying an interest in property devised, and if a conveyance be made under a power in the will before probate, subsequent probate will validate the conveyance. Mackey v. Mackey [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 984. Unprobated will made after Act June 8, 1898, is inadmissible in evidence to show title to realty. McGowan v. Elroy, 28 App. D. C. 188. Where a will has been probated in common form, and the sole heir at law, by petition to the court of ordinary, has called upon the executor to probate it in solemn form, and has filed a caveat, a suit by the executor against such heir to recover property devised may in proper case, be enjoined until the issue devisavit vel non has been determined. Foster v. Case, 126 Ga. 714, 55 S. E. 921. Not an arbitrary rule, but matter resting in discretion of court in view of particular circumstances. Id. Held not an abuse of discretion to refuse injunction, and instead to enjoin executrix from paying out or disposing of assets un-

The fact that an executor is appointed is sufficient to authorize the admission of a will to probate if properly executed, regardless of whether there is any beneficiary named therein, or any person who can take under it.[53] The husband's consent that the wife may dispose of all her estate need not be probated with the will.[54] Judicial annulment in independent proceeding of letters of administration previously granted on the supposition of intestacy is not a necessary prerequisite to the subsequent admission of a will to probate and the grant of letters testamentary.[55] In some states a formal probate is made on examination of the subscribing witnesses only,[56] and the will authenticated thereby is then eligible to record,[57] and the probate is conclusive of due execution until set aside [58] by appeal or suit to contest or revoke.[59] The application for probate is by petition [60] on notice.[61] An ineffectual attempt to probate a will does not in any way affect a subsequent probate in all things complying with existing law.[62] Where contest in the first instance is permitted, it is usually instituted by the filing of objections [63] within the time limited by statute,[64] whereon testimony is taken [65] or an issue at law ordered.[66] The right of the til further order. Id. Act Cong. June 8, 1898, § 8, re-enacted in D. C. Code § 141, providing that parties interested in any will filed in office of register of wills prior to June 8, 1898, may offer same for probate as will of realty, held permissive only, and not mandatory, so that act does not prevent admission in evidence of will of one dying before that date to show title to realty in action of ejectment, after proof of due execution, though same has not been probated as will of realty. Young v. Peters Co., 27 App. D. C. 140.

53. In re Murray's Will, 141 N. C. 588, 54 S. E. 435.

54. It is no part of the will. Keeler v. Lauer [Kan.] 85 P. 541.

55. Probate operates as revocation of administration. In re Mears' Estate [S. C.] 56 S. E. 7.

56. In Illinois no evidence can be heard on application for probate except that of the subscribing witnesses. Stuke v. Glaser, 223 Ill. 316, 79 N. E. 105. Under Rev. Code 1856, c. 119, § 15, held that proof of will signed by testator's mark by one of subscribing witnesses, without more, was invalid. Steadman v. Steadman [N. C.] 55 S. E. 784. The execution need not be proved solely by the attesting witnesses. In re Shapter's Estate [Colo.] 85 P. 688. Where a subscribing witness signs a name slightly different from that by which he is described, parol evidence is admissible to show identity. Davenport v. Davenport, 116 La. 1009, 41 So. 240. A subscribing witness who does not remember the circumstances of execution cannot state that he would not have signed except in presence of testator (Greene v. Hitchcock, 222 Ill. 216, 78 N. E. 614), nor that in his judgment the requirements of the attestation clause were complied with (Id.).

57. Certified copy of records of ordinary is only proper evidence of contents of will duly probated and admitted to record in court of ordinary. Smith v. Stone [Ga.] 56 S. E. 640. Is no ground of objection to admission in evidence of certified copy, in due form, that original will is different therefrom. Id. See, also, Robertson v. Hill [Ga.] 56 S. E. 289. Since will cannot be legally recorded by ordinary until it has been duly probated, exemplified copy of will from ordinary's office is presumptive proof of due probate. Robertson v. Hill [Ga.] 56 S. E. 289.

58. Probate of will is conclusive that it was duly executed, until such probate is set aside by direct or appellate proceeding. Code, § 3296. Smith v. Ryan [Iowa] 112 N. W. 8.

59. See part of this section as to appeals and suits to contest or revoke.

60. Liberality should be exercised in allowing amendments to petitions for probate. Refusal to allow amendment as to residence of testator held error. In re Rubens' Will, 102 N. Y. S. 795.

61. The proceeding being in rem any reasonable constructive notice is due process of law. Goodrich v. Ferris, 145 F. 844. The enacting of a law for probate on only ten days' notice does not lack due process because of the impossibility of an appearance by nonresidents in that time. In re Davis' Estate [Cal.] 86 P. 183. The Danish consul is not authorized to waive citation for an infant subject of his sovereign. In re Peterson's Will, 101 N. Y. S. 285.

62. Proof of will in 1906 in compliance with Revisal 1905, § 3127, cl. 3, held not affected by attempt in 1857 to prove same will which was invalid for failure to comply with Rev. Code 1856, c. 119, § 15. Steadman v. Steadman [N. C.] 55 S. E. 784.

63. Objection to probate for want of capacity held too indefinite. Henderson v. Jackson [Iowa] 111 N. W. 821. Demurrer to objections to probate held sufficiently specific. Henderson v. Jackson [Iowa] 111 N. W. 821.

64. Time to institute contest is governed by law in force when contest is filed, not that in force when will was probated. Clowry v. Nolan, 123 Ill. App. 562.

65. Evidence taken in writing on contest may be used by surrogate's successor to whom the decision of such contest is submitted. In re Nolan' Will [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 618. The Kansas statute permitting the examination of witnesses against the will by the opponent of probate does not change the proceedings into a contest. Wright v. Young [Kan.] 89 P. 694. The extent of examination in opposition allowable in Kansas on common probate is in the discretion of the court. Id. A contestant who caveator to dismiss is not absolute.[67] It has been held that a special law curative of defects in probate is valid.[68]

(§ 4) E. Burden of proof on the whole case.[69]—Some courts presume, on presentation for probate, the capacity of the testator and freedom from undue influence,[70] the attestation clause being said to be prima facie evidence of due execution;[71] while in other jurisdictions the burden is on the proponent,[72] but the testimony of the subscribing witnesses is at least prima facie sufficient.[73] Where there has been great delay in presenting the will for probate increased certainty of proof is requisite.[74] The rule that a prima facie showing suffices in the probate court was not abrogated by the Kansas statute allowing the calling of witnesses in opposition.[75] The effect of adjudications on inquest of sanity[76] and of confidential relations between testator and beneficiary[77] to create presumptions are treated in another section. An adjudication of insanity after execution of the will does not change the burden of proof.[78] Slight interlineations not altering the disposition of property will be presumed to have been made before execution.[79] The burden of proving failed to call his own witness cannot contend that he was surprised by proponent's failure to call the witness as contestant expected. In re Dolbeer's Estate [Cal.] 86 P. 695.

66. An issue as to the genuineness of a will is of right when subscribing witness testifies to due execution. Crawford v. Schooley [Pa.] 66 A. 743. A statute requiring an issue at law as to whether the will is in fact that of testator is complied with by submission of that issue together with that of capacity. Leonard v. Burtle, 226 Ill. 422, 80 N. E. 992. Evidence to prove that the first page or pages of will had been destroyed and a page substituted after the will had been signed, considered, and held not sufficient, as against the presumption of innocence, to warrant the court in granting an issue devisavit vel non. In re Keil's Estate [Pa.] 64 A. 638.

67. Dismissal after issues had been sent to the Circuit Court denied where a new caveat was immediately afterward filed and an intention to ask issues thereon announced. Bennett v. Bennett [Md.] 66 A. 706.

68. Priv. Laws 1885, p. 892, c. 52, curing defects in probate of will of John Strother, and ratifying and validating orders of probate courts in regard thereto, held valid and effectual for that purpose. Vanderbilt v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 370, 54 S. E. 298.

69. See 6 C. L. 1909.

70. Sanity of testator presumed on presentation for probate. In re Dunahugh's Will, 130 Iowa, 692, 107 N. W. 925; In re Preston's Will, 113 App. Div. 732, 99 N. Y. S. 312. Code Civ. Proc. § 1312. In re Dolbeer's Estate [Cal.] 86 P. 695. The burden of proof of incapacity is on caveators. Johnson v. Johnson [Md.] 65 A. 918. An unnatural will throws on the proponent the burden of explanation. Walls v. Walls, 30 Ky. L. R. 948, 99 S. W. 969. In an action to contest a will after probate, the burden is throughout upon proponents to show proper execution and attestation, and that testator was of sound mind. Burden is not shifted by practice requiring contestants to put in their case after proponents of will have made out prima facie case. Goodfellow v. Shannon, 197 Mo. 271, 94 S. W. 979. The burden is on one seeking to set aside a will because the universal legatee was a minister of religion in attendance on testator in his last illness must negative that he was related to testator. Succession of Herber, 117 La. 239, 41 So. 559. Where undue influence and testamentary capacity are the only issues submitted, contestant is entitled to open and close. In re Wharton's Will [Iowa] 109 N. W. 492.

71. Manners v. Manners [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 583; In re Robertson's Estate [Neb.] 109 N. W. 506; Bogert v. Bateman [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 238.

72. Burden of proving sanity rests on proponent. In re American Board of Com'rs for Foreign Missions [Me.] 66 A. 215; In re Small's Will, 103 N. Y. S. 705; Steinkuehler v. Wempner [Ind.] 81 N. E. 482. Upon trial of an issue arising upon propounding of a will and caveat thereto, burden in first instance is upon propounder to make out prima facie case by showing factum of will, and that at time of its execution testator had sufficient mental capacity to make it, and in making it acted freely, and, when this is done, burden shifts to caveator. Slaughter v. Heath [Ga.] 57 S. E. 69. The burden must be sustained by proponent though there is no opposition. In re Hayden's Estate [Cal.] 87 P. 275.

73. Probate allowed though subscribing witnesses failed to testify directly that testator declared instrument to be his will. In re Moore's Will, 46 Misc. 537, 95 N. Y. S. 61. Certificate of the oaths of the subscribing witnesses makes a prima facie case. Waters v. Waters, 222 Ill. 26, 78 N. E. 1.

74. Probate denied where will was offered many years after testator's death and the evidence as to its custody and discovery is of a suspicious character. In re Duffy's Will, 101 N. Y. S. 974.

75. Probate should be granted unless conclusively shown to be improper. Wright v. Young [Kan.] 89 P. 694.

76. See ante § 2 A.

77. See ante § 2 B.

78. In re Mulholland's Estate [Pa.] 66 A. 150.

79. Jersey v. Jersey [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 906, 110 N. W. 54.

revocation is on the contestant.[80] After probate the burden is ordinarily on the contestant [81] though there are contrary holdings.[82]

(§ 4) F. Establishment of lost will.[83]—Proof of the contents of a lost will and of the testator's signature thereon is not sufficient, but there must be proof of due execution and of the signatures of deceased subscribing witnesses.[84] The contents of a lost will cannot be proved by one witness who is interested.[85] Under the Wisconsin statute, a destroyed will cannot be established if testator knew of its loss in time to have reproduced it.[86, 87] A lost codicil will not be established which if it did exist was revoked by a later one.[88] A finding that there is no will concealed need so state to a reasonable certainty only.[89]

(§ 4) G. Judgments and decrees.[90]—The judgment should not go outside the issues tried.[91] An order of probate becomes conclusive of execution and validity by failure to contest within the time limited,[92] and it cannot be collaterally attacked [93] by one in privity,[94] and a foreign will when admitted to probate has the conclusiveness which it had in the domicile, and if no longer contestable there is not contestable where recorded.[95] By statute in Pennsylvania, probate without caveat or action at law for five years is conclusive.[96] Revocation of probate once become

80. The burden is on a contestant claiming revocation by a subsequent will. In re Dunahugh's Will, 130 Iowa, 692, 107 N. W. 925. Burden held on contestant to prove that written revocation and signature thereto were in testator's handwriting and that revocation was in secure place, though writing appeared on margin of will offered by proponent, offer of will in evidence by latter not being necessarily or in fact an offer of revocatory words on margin. In re Shelton's Will [N. C.] 55 S. E. 705. Placing burden on proponent held not prejudicial to contestant. Id.

81. Steinkuhler v. Wempner [Ind.] 81 N. E. 482. Burden of showing incapacity is on one suing after probate to set aside the will. McGown v. Underhill, 101 N. Y. S. 313. Testimony of subscribing witnesses denying due execution held insufficient to overcome presumption from probate. Wyman v. Wyman, 103 N. Y. S. 64. Since, under Code § 3296, probate of will is conclusive that it was duly executed until such probate is set aside by direct or appellate proceeding, in action to set aside probate burden is on plaintiff to prove allegations that will was not properly executed. Smith v. Ryan [Iowa] 112 N. W. 8. Issue as to due execution held properly withheld from jury where there was no evidence tending to support allegation that it was not properly executed. Id.

82. In an action to contest a will after probate, the burden is on those seeking to maintain it to prove every affirmative fact essential to the execution of a valid will, even though contestants offer no evidence at all. Must prove due execution and mental capacity, though they are not required to prove a negative, as that there was no fraud or undue influence. Cowan v. Shaver, 197 Mo. 203, 95 S. W. 200. Hence if, in their efforts to prove due execution, proponents themselves show that the paper offered is not what testator was made to believe it was when he signed it, it cannot be adjudged to be his will, even in the absence of any averment to that effect in the petition of the contestants. Id. Instruction that if testator signed will with understanding and belief that it gave wife only a life estate, with remainder to his children in equal parts, then it was not his will, held proper. Id.

83. See 6 C. L. 1911.

84. In re Halstead's Estate, 101 N. Y. S. 971. Its execution, substance, and that it was not revoked, must be clearly established. Bradshaw v. Butler, 30 Ky. L. R. 1249, 100 S. W. 837.

85. In re Fallon's Estate, 214 Pa. 584, 63 A. 889.

86, 87. Rev. St. 1898, § 3791. Parsons v. Balson [Wis.] 109 N. W. 136.

88. Pardee v. Kuster [Wyo.] 89 P. 572.

89. In re Hayden's Estate [Cal.] 87 P. 275. Finding that "F nor W" concealed held good. Id. It suffices to find that proponent's "allegations [that the will was concealed] are untrue." Id.

90. See 6 C. L. 1911.

91. Verdict that will presented for probate was not last will, but that one probated elsewhere was, will be amended by eliminating reference to other will. Rhome v. Morris, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 254.

92. Keeler v. Lauer [Kan.] 85 P. 541. Judgment conclusive as to factum after seven years unless appears on face of will that it was not executed pursuant to law. Absence of cross mark between words "her mark" in signature in handwriting of person other than testatrix held not to render instrument nullity on its face, and hence judgment admitting it to probate was not open to collateral attack after seven years. Civ. Code 1895, § 3283. Robertson v. Hill [Ga.] 56 S. E. 289.

93. An opposition to distribution of the estate based on an allegation that the will was forged and the probate fraudulent is a collateral attack. In re Davis' Estate [Cal.] 86 P. 183. It is presumed that proper continuances of hearing for probate were made. Id.

94. A stranger to a will contest and to the compromise thereof is not bound. In re Dominici's Estate [Cal. App.] 87 P. 389.

95. State v. District Court of Twelfth Judicial Dist. [Mont.] 85 P. 866, construing statutes of Montana and California, and the "Full faith and credit" clause.

96. Cannot thereafter be impeached because testator was not of age. Stout v. Young [Pa.] 66 A. 659.

a finality does not divest rights thereunder acquired in good faith.[97] In Montana, when probate has become final as to all but an infant whose right to contest is saved, his successful contest does not reopen the matter as to those others who are concluded.[98]

(§ 4) H. Revocation of probate.[99]—Revocation is not ordinarily allowed for mere errors,[1] but will be allowed where a later will is found [2] or at the instance of an infant whose guardian failed to protect his rights,[3] and it has been held that want of jurisdictional facts may be shown on petition to revoke.[4] A statutory proceeding to revoke probate of a will "of personal property" may be maintained against a will disposing of both real and personal property.[5] Where the original petition for revocation was sufficient to give jurisdiction, an amendment setting up additional claims may be allowed.[6]

(§ 4) I. Suits to contest.[7]—Suits to contest a will when authorized must be brought within the time limited.[8] Contestants are not foreclosed of their remedy in equity by the judgment admitting to probate.[9] Complainant is not confined to one ground of contest,[10] but the facts constituting the grounds alleged must be specifically averred.[11] It is not a fatal defect in a bill to contest that it alleges that there were not two subscribing witnesses, while the copy of the bill attached showed signatures of two.[12] The Illinois statute limiting contestant's proof to the subscribing witnesses applies only to proceedings to admit to probate.[13] The proceeding to contest is in Missouri an action at law, and where there is substantial, though conflicting, evidence upon a proposition, it should be submitted to the jury, and its finding will not be disturbed on appeal.[14]

(§ 4) J. Suits to establish.[15]

(§ 4) K. Suits to set aside.[16]—In Utah a suit to revoke probate is a suit at law.[17] Equity has no jurisdiction to set aside probate except in an extraordinary case of fraud extraneous to the proceeding.[18] The provision that in an action to try the validity of probate the surrogate shall transmit a certified copy of the record is not jurisdictional, and where both parties aver the admission of the will to pro-

97. Sale by a devisee is not impaired by a subsequent revocation of probate. Geary v. Rumsey, 30 Ky. L. R. 86, 97 S. W. 400.

98. Spencer v. Spencer, 31 Mont. 631, 79 P. 320.

99. See 6 C. L. 1912.

1. The proceeding before a surrogate to open a decree by him does not lie to correct mere errors. In re Gaffney's Estate, 101 N. Y. S. 882.

2. Where an alleged later will is produced on appeal from probate the appellate court will open the decree of probate and remand the whole matter to the registrar. Will not allow issue on alleged lost will. Crawford v. Schooley [Pa.] 66 A. 743.

3. Failure of the guardian ad litem of an infant next of kin to show in his behalf a revocation of the will held to entitle the infant to have the probate set aside. Parsons v. Balson [Wis.] 109 N. W. 136.

4. Judgment of court of ordinary admitting copy of lost will to probate may be contradicted, in proper proceeding instituted for that purpose by heir, in court which rendered it, as to facts necessary to give court jurisdiction on ground of fraudulent misrepresentations as to residence of testator by party obtaining judgment, and judgment will be set aside if it is shown that necessary jurisdictional facts did not exist, though it recites that they did exist. Davis v. Albritton [Ga.] 56 S. E. 514.

5. In re Mann's Estate, 51 Misc. 315, 100 N. Y. S. 1100.

6. Parsons v. Balson [Wis.] 109 N. W. 136.

7. See 6 C. L. 1913.

8. The jurisdiction of suits to contest being statutory, commencement within the time limited is jurisdictional and cannot be waived. Waters v. Waters, 225 Ill. 559, 80 N. E. 337. That some of the heirs were minors without guardians does not prevent the running of limitations against heirs able to contest. Ellis v. Crawson [Ala.] 41 So. 942.

9. Stuke v. Glaser, 223 Ill. 316, 79 N. E. 105.

10. Ellis v. Crawson [Ala.] 41 So. 942.

11. Averment that will was procured by fraud, without stating any facts constituting same, is bad. Ellis v. Crawson [Ala.] 41 So. 942.

12. Ellis v. Crawson [Ala.] 41 So. 942.

13. Stuke v. Glaser, 223 Ill. 316, 79 N. E. 105.

14. Question of capacity. Goodfellow v. Shannon, 197 Mo. 271, 94 S. W. 979.

15. See 6 C. L. 1914.

16. See 6 C. L. 1915.

17. In re Miller's Estate [Utah] 88 P. 338.

18. Goodrich v. Ferris, 145 F. 844.

bate the action will not be dismissed.[19] Undue influence as a ground must be pleaded by constituent facts and not by conclusions.[20] The person named as executor is not a proper party where he has not qualified.[21] Where property is devised to the head of a voluntary unincorporated association and his successors, the association need not be made a party to a bill to set aside.[22] Any person who would take a share of the estate had testator died intestate may sue.[23] The complaint must show his interest.[24] Leave to amend must be seasonably sought.[25]

(§ 4) L. Appeals. Appeals from probate courts.[26]—Appeal is usually allowed from final orders,[27] notice, bond, etc., being usually required as on other appeals,[28] and the time for taking being limited by statute.[29] Except where trial de novo is authorized, the usual rules as to saving questions for review,[30] restriction to the record [31] and to the scope of the order made below [32] and appealed from,[33] and as to reversal for immaterial errors,[34] obtain on such appeals. On a further appeal from an order in an appeal, the record must contain copies of the papers in the first appeal.[35] Contest of a will disposing of realty in a manner other than it would have gone by the statute of descents involves a freehold.[36] In Illinois on

19. Code Civ. Proc. § 2653a. Smith v. Holden, 102 N. Y. S. 366.

20. In re Sheppard's Estate [Cal.] 85 P. 312.

21. Simpson v. Lorsch, 50 Misc. 398, 100 N. Y. S. 535.

22. Dowie v. Sutton [Ill.] 81 N. E. 395, afg. 126 Ill. App. 47.

23. Moser v. Talman, 100 N. Y. S. 231.

24. Complaint not alleging absence of all relatives nearer in degree than plaintiff held insufficient. Moser v. Talman, 100 N. Y. S. 231. Averment that plaintiff was "heir," mere conclusion. Id.

25. Fifteen months after probate and five after filing petition for revocation too late. In re Sheppard's Estate [Cal.] 85 P. 312.

26. See 6 C. L. 1915.

27. Refusal of probate by probate court is appealable to district court. In re Paige's Estate [Idaho] 86 P. 273. Issue may be joined on the interest of a contestant and an appeal taken from the order thereon before hearing of the contest. Cowan v. Walker [Tenn.] 96 S. W. 967. Order vacating probate and setting the matter for hearing at a future date is not final. Schofield v. Thomas, 226 Ill. 631, 80 N. E. 1085.

28. The notice of appeal being required to state the reasons thereof, reasons not assigned cannot be urged. Jersey v. Jersey [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 906, 110 N. W. 54. Undertaking from probate to district court must be conditioned among other things to pay damages and costs awarded against appellant "on a dismissal thereof." In re Paige's Estate [Idaho] 86 P. 273. While technical precision of statement and pleading are not required in probate appeals to the same extent as in actions at law, two things are indispensable: First, the appeal must show what order, sentence, decree, or demand of the judge of probate is appealed from. Second, taking all allegations in the appeal and the reasons therefore to be true, it must appear that there was error. In re Gurdy, 101 Me. 73, 63 A. 322. Under the New Jersey statute §§ 201, 202 (P. L. 1898, p. 799), an appeal from the surrogate's order of probate must be taken by a petition filed with the surrogate, and not in the orphans', court. Waldron v. Layton [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 1105.

29. Leave to appeal after time may be allowed in Massachusetts. Leave denied to one claiming under deceased heir. Cawley v. Greenwood [Mass.] 78 N. E. 304. Must be taken within time limited. In Indian Territory under Act Cong. March 3, 1905, c. 1479, § 12, and Act Cong. March 3, 1891, c. 517, § 11, must be taken within six months. In re Terrell's Estate [Ind. T.] 98 S. W. 143. An unexplained delay of more than two years in prosecuting an appeal from an order of probate constitutes such laches as will justify dismissal of the appeal. Waldron v. Layton [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 1105.

30. Objection that probate proceedings were continued without appointment of an administrator, on death of the beneficiary who was proponent, cannot be raised for the first time on appeal. Jersey v. Jersey [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 906, 110 N. W. 54. A trial de novo on appeal being provided, failure to object to probate below does not preclude an heir from contesting on appeal. Bovee v. Johnson [Wis.] 110 N. W. 212.

31. On appeal no extraneous matter of explanation can be considered but what the record shows. McClellan v. Weaver [Cal. App.] 88 P. 646.

32. The district court in Kansas on appeal has no greater powers than had the probate court. Ross v. Wollard [Kan.] 89 P. 680.

33. An appeal from a judgment refusing to set aside probate brings up the whole matter, and it is not necessary to appeal from the order assigning real estate. Parsons v. Balson [Wis.] 109 N. W. 136.

34. Unauthorized finding of want of capacity not ground for reversal where finding of undue influence is supported by evidence. In re Wiltsey's Will [Iowa] 109 N. W. 776.

35. Notice of appeal, judgment appealed from, and papers used at hearing of first appeal. Rev. St. 1887, § 4819. In re Paige's Estate [Idaho] 86 P. 273. Minutes of court of first appeal should not be returned. Id.

36. Gottmanshausen v. Wolfing, 224 Ill. 270, 79 N. E. 611.

appeal from grants of probate, both parties are confined to the subscribing witnesses,[37] while, on appeal from refusal of probate, proponent is not so confined but contestant is,[38] except as to the statutory exception of fraud or compulsion, which does not include like of testamentary capacity.[39] Where taking of additional testimony is permitted, the court will not allow testimony on appeal as to additional ground of contest which was deliberately withheld below.[40]

Appeal from decree on bill to contest [41] a will disposing of realty lies directly to the supreme court.[42]

(§ 4) M. Costs.[43]—In the absence of statute [44] it is discretionary to allow costs out of the estate to an unsuccessful proponent [45] or contestant.[46] Costs and attorney's fees of a successful defense of the will should usually be allowed.[47] Fees of an attorney employed by a legatee defending a contest are not ordinarily payable from the estate,[48] The power of the court to set aside an adjudication charging costs against the estate and charge them against contestant may be exercised on motion to retax costs.[49]

(§ 4) N. Recording foreign wills.[50]—Statutes usually provide for the recording of foreign wills admitted to probate in the state of testator's domicile,[51] and filing in counties other than that where probate is granted is sometimes authorized.[52] It

37. Stuke v. Glaser, 223 Ill. 316, 79 N. E. 105. On appeal from an order admitting to probate only the testimony of the subscribing witnesses can be considered, and if it does not meet the requirements of the statute the order must be reversed. Greene v. Hitchcock, 222 Ill. 216, 78 N. E. 614.

38, 39. Stuke v. Glaser, 223 Ill. 316, 79 N. E. 105.

40. Bogert v. Bateman [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 238.

41. See 6 C. L. 1918.

42. Dowie v. Sutton [Ill.] 81 N. E. 395.

43. See 6 C. L. 1918.

44. Action to annul will disposing of realty is not one in which a claim of title to real estate arises on the pleadings, within Code Civ. Proc. § 3228, regulating costs. Larkin v. McNamee, 109 App. Div. 884, 96 N. Y. S. 827.

45. Where probate is refused for incapacity, costs may be taxed against proponent. Unsuccessful party under Code, § 3853. In re Hendershott's Estate [Iowa] 111 N. W. 969. Estate should be charged with attorney's fees of executor in defending will set aside for incapacity. Succession of Morere, 117 La. 543, 42 So. 132. Where a will is set aside, costs should be awarded against the executor. Dowie v. Sutton [Ill.] 81 N. E. 395. Where a will is set aside for undue influence of the executor, he may be charged individually with the costs. Leonard v. Burtle, 226 Ill. 422, 80 N. E. 992.

46. Where an unsuccessful appeal by contestants is prosecuted in good faith and presents questions worthy of consideration, costs will be allowed from the estate. In re Bierke's Will [Wis.] 111 N. W. 1128; In re Davis' Will [Wis.] 111 N. W. 1129. Costs from estate were denied to defeated contestant who had propounded a different will from that probated. In re Rathjen's Estate [Wash.] 87 P. 1070.

47. Decedent's estate is properly chargeable with fees paid counsel for services rendered in successfully defending the will against attack, and this rule should not ordinarily be departed from in a case where the contest is instituted by the person named in the will as executor, and the defense is conducted by counsel employed on behalf of the legatee. In re Creighton's Estate [Neb.] 107 N. W. 979. After an execution has been discharged and distribution of the estate made, proctor's fees in proceedings to open the probate of the will cannot be imposed by the orphans' court upon property remaining in the hands of the executor as trustee under the will. In re Meyers' Estate [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 137. Under the New Jersey statute, P. L. 1898, p. 789, the orphans' court was without jurisdiction to order proctor's fees to be paid out of testator's estate, where after admission of the will to probate the proctors procured an order, afterwards reversed, to show cause why the probate should not be opened, on the ground that some of the next of kin or heirs at law had not been cited upon the application for probate, and that the withdrawal of caveat had been induced by fraud. Id.

48. In re Creighton's Estate [Neb.] 110 N. W. 626.

49. Coulton v. Pope [Neb.] 110 N. W. 630.

50. See 6 C. L. 1918.

51. Foreign will made in accordance with the law of Missouri need not be proved anew, but a certified copy may be recorded. Stevens v. Oliver, 200 Mo. 492, 98 S. W. 492. It is not necessary to prove that the will was not probated in accordance with the law of testator's domicile, proof of execution according to such law sufficing. In re Coope's Will, 103 N. Y. S. 431. Certified copy of foreign will and probate thereof in foreign state held to comply with Code, § 1071, and to be admissible in evidence. Scott v. Herrell, 27 App. D. C. 395.

52. Rights of parties claiming title under wills held not prejudiced by failure to file same in county where land was situated, they having legal title and there being no adverse possession. Hunter v. Hodgson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 110, 95 S. W. 637.

is not necessary in Washington that a nonresident's will have been first probated in the domicile.[53] Neither the admission of a foreign will to record nor the foreign judgment admitting it to probate is open to collateral attack.[54] In the absence of statute, filing of a foreign will is not essential to its use as muniment of title.[55]

§ 5. Interpretation and construction.[56]

Scope of section.—There are numerous rules applicable to interpretation which may be called general. To them the first subsection applies. The four subsections following indicate four general classes of objects to which the terms of a will are addressed.

(§ 5) A. General rules.[57]—The purpose of interpretation is to effectuate if possible the expressed intent of the testator[58] as gathered from the whole will,[59] which is to be if possible effectuated as a whole,[60] but in case of repugnancy of provisions the last controls.[61] The will and the codicil in that they respect the same property must be construed in pari materia.[62] The heir must not be disinherited unless it is done by the express terms of the will or by necessary implication,[63] but where a son is expressly disinherited, the will must if possible be so construed as to avoid any part of the estate falling into intestacy.[64] A will cannot be construed on mere conjecture as to testator's intention,[65] and an indefinite general intent cannot change or control a devise express in its terms and without doubt as to its meaning,[66] nor can the court make a new will for testator.[67] Substitution of words will not be resorted to unless clearly required.[68] Where precatory words must necessarily be followed to carry out the testator's intent, they will be regarded as words of command.[69] Unless a contrary intention appears,[70] words are to be given their ordinary meaning and technical words a technical meaning.[71] A gift clearly made will not

53. Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 6087. Rader v. Stubblefield [Wash.] 86 P. 560.

54. Stevens v. Oliver, 200 Mo. 492, 98 S. W. 492.

55. The various sections of the Tennessee Code relating to registration of wills outside the state apply only to wills executed in other of the United States, and a foreign will need not be probated in Tennessee to be used there as a muniment of title. Kiernan v. Casey [Tenn.] 93 S. W. 576.

56, 57. See 6 C. L. 1919.

58. King v. Savage Brick Co., 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 582; In re Duckett's Estate, 214 Pa. 362, 63 A. 830; Perry v. Hackney, 142 N. C. 368, 55 S. E. 289; Richards v. Morrison, 101 Me. 424, 64 A. 768; Williams v. Dearborn, 101 Me. 506, 64 A. 851; In re Reed's Estate [Del.] 64 A. 822.

59. Rogers v. Highnote [Ga.] 56 S. E. 93.

60. Operation to be given to, every part of will taken as whole, if this can be done without violating its terms or intention of testator. Rogers v. Highnote [Ga.] 56 S. E. 93; Tooker v. Tooker [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 806. Repugnancy not to be raised by construction. Martley v. Martley [Neb.] 108 N. W. 979.

61. Rogers v. Highnote [Ga.] 56 S. E. 93; Martley v. Martley [Neb.] 108 N. W. 979. Clause for distribution held to control one violative of rule against perpetuities. Foster v. Stevens [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 742, 109 N. W. 265. Clause that realty was to be divided among sons, excepting one, held not to be a mere reiteration of a previous disinherison of such one but to be repugnant to a previous provision for division among sons and daughters. Martley v. Martley [Neb.] 108 N. W. 979.

62. In re Noon's Estate [Or.] 88 P. 673.

63. Realty not mentioned held to descend under intestate laws. Coberly v. Earle [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 336. At common law the heir at law is not to be disinherited except by express words in the will, or by necessary implication arising from them. In re Reed's Estate [Del.] 64 A. 822.

64. In re Arensberg's Will, 102 N. Y. S. 971.

65. Coberly v. Earle [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 336. Inquiry is not what testator meant to express but what do words used express. Wills v. Foltz [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 473.

66. Steadman v. Steadman [N. C.] 55 S. E. 784.

67. In re Pearce's Estate, 104 N. Y. S. 469.

68. Held that word "and" would not be substituted for "or" in provision for disposition of estate in case son should die "without leaving a wife or child," whole context of will not requiring it in order to effectuate intention. Travers v. Reinhardt, 205 U. S. 423, 51 Law. Ed. 865.

69. Wolbert v. Beard, 128 Wis. 391, 107 N. W. 663.

70. Where in two different clauses of a will the testator uses the words "issue" and "children" interchangeably, and it is clear that in both instances he means children, the word "issue" again used in the residuary clause should be construed to mean children, in the absence of anything to show that other meaning was intended. In re Duckett's Estate, 214 Pa. 362, 63 A. 830. Fact that will was drawn by testatrix, evidently an unskilled person, may be given limited weight in its construction. Atkins v. Best, 27 App. D. C. 148.

71. Jacobs v. Prescott [Me.] 65 A. 761. Ordinary meaning to be given to language be impaired by subsequent ambiguous disposition.[72] In case of conflicting provisions a bequest on consideration prevails over one by way of gift,[73] and likewise the primary purpose of testator will, if possible, be effectuated though a secondary intent is thereby impaired,[74] and where the general and particular intent are inconsistent, the latter must be sacrificed to the former.[75] Where two interpretations are open, that should be adopted which prefers those of testator's blood to strangers,[76] though the upholding of charitable bequests is likewise favored.[77] Interpretation acted on by mutual assent will ordinarily be adopted,[78] and one who has received a substantial legacy under a certain construction of the will is estopped to assert a different construction.[79] The statute of distribution governs, in all cases where there is no will, and where there is one and the testator's intention is in doubt, the statute is a safe guide.[80]

As to time.[81]—A will is to be construed as speaking from the time of testator's death.[82] Words relating to time of payment or distribution are, if possible, to be so construed as to effectuate all provisions relating to the property.[83]

Extrinsic evidence [84] is not admissible to explain the language used except in case of latent ambiguity,[85] but all the circumstances and conditions surrounding the testator at the time of making the will may be shown.[86] Declarations of testator as to intent are not admissible [87] unless part of the res gestae[88] unless context shows that such meaning was not intended. Wood v. Schoen [Pa.] 166 A. 79.

72. Ballantine v. Ballantine, 152 F. 775; In re Teller's Estate [Pa.] 64 A. 525; Hurley v. Rosensteel [Md.] 64 A. 1041.

73. Legacy in lieu of dower. Ballantine v. Ballantine, 152 F. 775.

74. Bequest of half of income to wife held paramount to provision for payment of part of principal to son on attaining majority so as to postpone such payment during life of wife. Ballantine v. Ballantine, 152 F. 775.

75. Davison v. Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 103 Md. 479, 63 A. 1044.

76. In re Edie, 102 N. Y. S. 424.

77. St. John v. Andrews Institute, 102 N. Y. S. 808.

78. Will was ambiguous as to whether trust was intended, but it was assumed that such was the intent and trustee was appointed. Held that after his death on application to appoint successor that the same interpretation would be given. In re Oltman's Estate, 104 N. Y. S. 472.

79. In re Marx, 103 N. Y. S. 446.

80. Where under a will it was doubtful whether testatrix's intention was to give per capita or per stirpes. Sipe's Estate, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 145.

81. See 6 C. L. 1923.

82. Ridenour v. Callahan, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 585. Wills of realty and personalty, under Code 1887, § 2521. Kent v. Kent [Va.] 55 S. E. 564.

83. Bequest remainder "subject to" legacies held to make legacies payable on death of life tenant. Newcomb v. Pine Grove Cemetery Trustees [Mass.] 78 N. E. 125. On a bequest to be paid to the legatees when they reach a certain age if males or when they marry if females, a female legatee reaching the specified age is entitled to her share though she has not married. May v. Walter's Ex'rs, 30 Ky. L. R. 59, 97 S. W. 423.

84. See 6 C. L. 1924.

85. Parol declarations of testator held inadmissible to show intention. App v. App [Va.] 55 S. E. 672. Parol evidence is admissible to show that a devise of a lot includes a contiguous lot enclosed with it. Clark v. Goodridge, 51 Misc. 140, 100 N. Y. S. 824. Bequest to "legal heirs in Germany" when it appeared that only one heir resided in Germany and testator believed that all resided in Switzerland. Giger v. Busch, 122 Ill. App. 13. Bequest of income only to one child and absolute bequests to all others does not suggest any such intention to make a spendthrift trust that extrinsic evidence is admissible to support it. Shoup's Estate, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 162. Oral evidence to identify bank in which money was deposited, there being no such bank as that named in will. In re Snyder's Estate [Pa.] 66 A. 157. Parol evidence is admissible to identify object of testator's bounty. Jordan's Adm'x v. Richmond Home for Ladies [Va.] 56 S. E. 730. Cannot under guise of explaining ambiguity change disposition by parol. Succession of Quinlan [La.] 43 So. 249. Parol evidence is admissible on the issue whether a bequest was intended to forgive a debt due from the legatee: Bromley v. Atwood, 79 Ark. 357, 96 S. W. 356.

86. Evidence of such extrinsic circumstances as testator's relation to persons, or the amount, character, and conditions of his estate, is sometimes admissible to explain ambiguities of description, but never to determine construction or extent of devises. Atkins v. Best, 27 App. D. C. 148. Relation of testator to beneficiaries to be considered. Grace v. Perry, 197 Mo. 550, 95 S. W. 875. Parol evidence to show the situation and surroundings of testator and the objects and persons with whom he was familiar, and upon whom his affections were resting, is competent to show what testator understood to be signified by the words used in his will. German Pioneer Verein v. Meyer [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 835.

87. Lowe v. Whitridge [Md.] 65 A. 926.

88. Declarations of testatrix, made at time

(§ 5) B. Of terms designating property or funds.[89]—Words will carry any property which in common use they import,[90] and either real or personal property will pass by an inappropriate word of designation or gift if such an intent is apparent.[91] Likewise, property within the terms of a gift may be deemed excluded if it clearly appears that such was the intention.[92] All that is incident to a thing goes with it,[93] but gift of an incident will not carry another analogous incident.[94] While the will speaks from testator's death, conditions at the time of its execution may be looked to in aid of interpretation.[95] A gift of specific property may carry that into which it is converted in testator's life.[96] Particular description may be rejected if erroneous where the general description is adequate.[97] Gift of residuum to several in the proportion which specific legacies to them bore to each other is not void for uncertainty because such proportion is difficult of ascertainment.[98] Quantity, although less reliable and last to be resorted to of all descriptions of boundaries, of giving money to her son and shortly thereafter, that it would be deducted from his share of her estate at her death held part of res gestae, and hence admissible on question whether legacy to him was thereby adeemed. Miller v. Payne, 28 App. D. C. 396. Testator's written statement of the condition of his business may be admitted when relevant. In re Palnter's Estate [Cal.] 89 P. 98.

89. See 6 C. L. 1925.

90. Devise in will duly probated and recorded, of "all of my lands" held to contain sufficient description to operate as color of title to lands in county of testator's residence to which he had recorded deeds and which formed part of plantation known by his name and of which he died in possession. Harriss v. Howard, 126 Ga. 325, 55 S. E. 59. "Wearing apparel" construed not to include jewelry. Dox's Estate, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 393. Bequest by manufacturer of product "on hand" includes that in hands of a selling agent in another city. Brown v. Clothey [Mass.] 79 N. E. 269. Provision that all testators' "belongings should belong to" his wife for her use held a devise of all his property to her in fee. Lee v. Moore's Ex'r, 29 Ky. L. R. 495, 93 S. W. 911. Bequest of a specific part of income to one purpose and "a part" to another imports that all that remains from the first purpose is to be devoted to the latter. Welch v. Caldwell, 226 Ill. 488, 80 N. E. 1014.

91. Word "property" includes real property where there is no indication of its use in a restricted sense. Held to do so in residuary clause. Young v. Norris Peters Co., 27 App. D. C. 140. Residuary disposal of "personal property, money and effects" does not carry land. Andrews v. Applegate, 223 Ill. 535, 79 N. E. 176. Where words of inheritance are dispensed with by statute, "bequeath" will carry fee of land. Centenary Fund & Preachers' Aid Soc. v. Lake [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 601. "Bequeath" is a word naturally applicable to the transmission by will of personal property, but when it is associated with the word "give" it may be capable of transmitting real property. Campbell v. Cole [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 461. In the absence of a manifest intention to the contrary, the word "lend" will pass the property to which it applies in the same manner as if the word give or devise had been used. Word "lend" held equivalent to devise. Sessoms v. Sessoms [N. C.] 56 S. E. 687.

92. Lot containing building at each end held so divided that one building passed by residuary clause and not by devise of other building and land appurtenant. Smith v. Metzger, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 596. Two lots held to be devised as separate though jointly occupied by one building. Clark v. Goodridge, 51 Misc. 140, 100 N. Y. S. 824.

93. Bequest of "glue" on hand by manufacturer thereof held to include "gelatine." Brown v. Clothey [Mass.] 79 N. E. 269. Profits from carrying on by executor of business of deceased partner held to pass by bequest of testator's share of firm assets. In re Marx's Estate, 49 Misc. 280, 99 N. Y. S. 334. Devise of lots held to carry wharfage and bulkhead rights. Ennis v. Grover, 103 N. Y. S. 1088. Devise of real estate and all personalty thereon, excepting notes and securities, does not carry notes and mortgage received on subsequent sale of part of the devised land. Chase v. Moore, 73 N. H. 553, 64 A. 21.

94. Surplus and undivided profits apportioned to shares of corporate stock do not pass as "income" thereof. Tubb v. Fowler [Tenn.] 99 S. W. 988.

95. Bequest of all personal property on land of testator carries personalty on the land at the time of executing the will, but stored elsewhere on the sale of the land. Chase v. Moore, 73 N. H. 553, 64 A. 21.

96. Widow held entitled to proceeds of sale by her as committee for her husband of land devised by him to her. Brandreth v. Brandreth, 103 N. Y. S. 1074. Where testator makes a subsequent contract to sell devised lands, which is not performed during his life, the purchase price goes to the devisee. Van Tassel v. Burger, 104 N. Y. S. 273. Where testator after making a specific bequest of property puts it into a corporation, receiving stock therefor, the stock passes by the bequest. In re Moran's Will, 104 N. Y. S. 473. Realty directed to be converted into money is to be regarded as if it were money at time of testator's death. Vogt v. Vogt, 26 App. D. C. 46; Iglehart v. Iglehart, 26 App. D. C. 209. Sale of devised land held to work a conversion so that proceeds passed by the residuary clause and not by the devise. In re Bernhard's Estate [Iowa] 112 N. W. 86. Devise of land subject to a contract of sale is a gift of the purchase price due under said contract. Covey v. Dinsmoor, 226 Ill. 438, 80 N. E. 998.

97. "My Kansas City property at No. 705 Olive Street," the number being wrong. Methodist Episcopal Church Trustees v. May [Mo.] 99 S. W. 1093.

98. Leask v. Hoagland, 188 N. Y. 291, 80 N. E. 919.

may, nevertheless, in doubtful cases have weight as a circumstance in aid of other descriptions, and in the absence of other definite description it may have a controlling force.[99, 1] A bequest of dividends or income does not ordinarily carry that accruing in testator's life.[2] Bequest of dividends "as declared" does not give dividends earned but not declared.[3]

(§ 5) C. Of terms designating or describing persons or purposes.[4]—The intent governs precise means in ascertaining what takers were meant [5] and as of what date the members of a designated class are to be ascertained,[6] if such intent is expressed with sufficient certainty to be ascertained,[7] and particular liberality is exercised in determining the taker of a bequest to charity,[8] or the nature of a charitable purpose annexed to a gift.[9] Names used merely as description and repugnant to other certain particulars of description may be disregarded.[10] The words heirs, issue, children, and the like may be used as words of purchase, but more often the question is whether they are words of limitation. To avoid confusion and unnecessary repetition the cases construing them have been collected elsewhere.[11]

99, 1. Where a testator having 12,600 square feet of land at or near the corner of B. and C. streets, that directly at the corner being leasehold, devised to S. his "real estate" corner of B. and C. streets, and added the words "containing about fifteen hundred square feet of land and the buildings thereon," it was held, construing the devise in connection with all the facts and circumstances of the case, that a part of the leasehold property containing 1,534 square feet and containing buildings was intended. O'Brien v. Clark [Md.] 64 A. 53.

2. Bequest of income does not carry that which accrued before testator's death. Tubb v. Fowler [Tenn.] 99 S. W. 988.

3. Howell v. Westbrook [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 417.

4. See 6 C. L. 1928.

5. Division of residue among beneficiaries "named" held inclusive of those described as well as those named by name. In re Klein's Estate [Mont.] 88 P. 798. Devise to the heirs of specified persons construed to mean to such persons "or" their heirs. Edmonds v. Edmonds' Devisees & Heirs [Ky.] 102 S. W. 311.

Employes: "Who shall have been in the employ * * * one year or more previous thereto" held to designate only those in service at testator's death who had been so for a year or more previous. In re Klein's Estate [Mont.] 88 P. 798. Employes of the firm of G. & K. at several named places held to mean a partnership by that name and also the corporation formed to succeed a different partnership of nearly the same membership. Id. One who had been employed regularly, then intermittently, and who later served as manager for a corporation in which testator was interested, was held not an employe of testator's firm. Id. A piece worker held not in the "employ" of testator's firm. Id.

6. Gift to grandchildren held to be such as were living at testator's death, including one born after the will was made. In re Butler's Estate, 50 Misc. 229, 100 N. Y. S. 487.

7. A devise to the person who should take care of testator during his last illness is invalid for indefiniteness. Harrington v. Abberton, 100 N. Y. S. 681. Evidence held insufficient to bring claimant within terms of will even if it was valid. Id.

8. Bequest to Iowa institution conducted by the state held not to pass to the state of Iowa. Catt v. Catt, 103 N. Y. S. 740. Charitable institutions intended will be ascertained from language used and extrinsic evidence where designation was inaccurate. In re Pearson's Estate, 102 N. Y. S. 965; In re North, 103 N. Y. S. 574. Bequest to "Diocese of New York," which is not incorporated but whose temporalties are held by a corporation of another name, held to go to such corporation. Kingsbury v. Brandegee, 113 App. Div. 606, 100 N. Y. S. 353. Bequest to a named hospital will pass to the charitable corporation which owns and conducts such hospital. Johnson v. Hughes, 187 N. Y. 446, 80 N. E. 373. Bequest to charitable corporation, sufficiently identified and having valid charter, held sufficiently definite to be enforced in equity. Jordan's Adm'x v. Richmond Home for Ladies [Va.] 56 S. E. 730. Bequest to "the Trustees of the Presbyterian Home for Old Ladies situated in Richmond, Va.," held intended for the "Richmond Home for Ladies." Id. Inaccuracy in designation of beneficiary will not cause bequest to fail if the intention can be gathered with reasonable certainty from the instrument aided by extrinsic evidence. Bequest to convent. McDonald v. Shaw [Ark.] 98 S. W. 952. The misnomer of a corporation will not defeat a devise or bequest to it, if its identity is otherwise sufficiently certain. Doan v. Vestry of Parish of Ascension of Carroll County, 103 Md. 662, 64 A. 314. Parol evidence held sufficient to prove that a legacy to the "German Turner Home Jersey City" was intended to be given to the German Pioneer Verein of Jersey City. German Pioneer Verein v. Meyer [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 835. A bequest to the pastor of a church for a specified continuing purpose is a bequest to the pastors of the church in succession. McDonald v. Shaw [Ark.] 98 S. W. 952.

9. Trust for education of poor white children in certain county held sufficiently definite to be sustained as charity. In re Murray's Will, 141 N. C. 588, 54 S. E. 435. See, also, Charitable Gifts, 7 C. L. 624.

10. To S's "sister my niece whose name is Marie K.". In re Dominici's Estate [Cal. App.] 87 P. 389.

11. See § 5 D post, Particular Words and Forms of Expression.

(§ 5) D. Of terms creating, defining, limiting, conditioning, or qualifying the estates and interests created. Particular words and forms of expression.[12]—The words "heirs," [13] "right heirs," [14] "bodily heirs," [15] "children," [16] "issue," [17] "lawful issue," [18] "brothers," [19] "nephews and nieces," [20] "representatives," [21] will be given their ordinary meaning unless a contrary intention appears. Bequest to two or survivor of them is referable to condition at testator's death,[22] as is limitation over on death of devisee without issue,[23] unless a contrary intent appears,[24]

12. See 6 C. L. 1929.

13. When used in gift of personalty should primarily be held to refer to those who would be entitled to take under statute of distributions. Vogt v. Vogt, 26 App. D. C. 46. "Heirs" or "heirs and assigns" are words of limitation and not of substitution and do not prevent lapse. Farnsworth v. Whiting [Me.] 66 A. 831. "My heirs by my family" does not include relatives by marriage. Jacobs v. Prescott [Me.] 65 A. 761. Where a remainder is given to certain persons or their heirs if deceased, "heirs" is a word of limitation and not of purchase. Ortmayer v. Elcock, 225 Ill. 342, 80 N. E. 339. Bequest over to "heirs" on termination of trust is to those who are heirs of testator at the time of such termination. In re Southworth's Estate, 102 N. Y. S. 447. On a bequest in trust for a term of five years and absolute to the beneficiary's heirs if he die during the term, his heirs are to be determined as at the date of his death. Holmes v. Holmes [Mass.] 80 N. E. 614. In provision for distribution among heirs of testator's children, "heirs" held to mean children. Kalbach v. Clarke [Iowa] 110 N. W. 599. A bequest to the relatives of testator and wife according to "heirship," means according to kinship. Bowser v. Mosier, 125 Ill. App. 565. In a remainder to one and his heirs, "heirs" is a word of limitation and not of purchase and the remainderman takes in fee. Underwood v. Magruder, 27 Ky. L. R. 1165, 87 S. W. 1076.

14. "Right heirs" does not include an adopted child. Brown v. Wright [Mass.] 80 N. E. 612.

15. The rule that "bodily heirs" is to be construed as words of limitation and not of purchase does not apply when a contrary intent is manifested. Held to create a life estate in first taker with remainder to heirs. Adair v. Adair's Trustee, 30 Ky. L. R. 857, 99 S. W. 925.

16. Is word of purchase and not of limitation unless different intent plainly appears. Wills v. Foltz [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 473. Devise to three named daughters "and their children," daughters having children at testator's death, held to give daughters and children joint estate in fee and not to vest fee in daughters alone. Id. Under Code 1899, c. 77, § 10, providing that will is to be construed to speak and take effect at testator's death, point of time for inquiry as to whether children are living, for purpose of determining whether devise to named person and his children gives such person fee, or gives joint estate to him and his children, is date of testator's death. Id. "Children" is primarily a word of purchase and is never to be construed otherwise except where the testator has clearly used it as a word of limitation. Hoover v. Strauss [Pa.] 64 A. 333. A remainder to "children" vested in the children as a class on the death of testator subject to open for afterborn children. May v. Walter's Ex'rs 30 Ky. L. R. 59, 97 S. W. 423. Remainder to "the children, the lawful heirs" of the life tenants, is not within the rule in Shelley's case, and the life tenants do not take an inheritance in remainder. Reilly v. Bristow [Md.] 66 A. 262. An adopted child is not a "lawful child" within a limitation over in event of the first taker dying without lawful children. Cochran v. Cochran [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1, 95 S. W. 731. In a bequest to one for life with remainder in fee to his children if he leave any, the word "children" is a word of purchase and not of limitation (King v. Savage Brick Co., 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 582), and the will does not give to the first taker a fee tail which the statute would enlarge to a fee simple (Id.).

17. "Issue" held not word of limitation but to have been used in sense of "children" so that rule in Shelley's case had no application. Fraison v. Odum [N. C.] 56 S. E. 793.

18. Children legitimatized by a marriage of their parents after a divorce of one of them valid where granted, but not in New York, are entitled to take as "lawful issue" in New York. Olmsted v. Olmsted, 102 N. Y. S. 1019.

19. Gift to brothers held to include brothers of the half blood. Watkins v. Blount [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 336, 94 S. W. 1116. Children of brothers who died before execution of will held not to come within terms of gift to testator's brothers and sisters. Id.

20. A residuary bequest to "nephews and nieces" in the proportion which specific legacies to them bore to each other includes grand nephews and grand nieces to whom specific legacies were given. Leask v. Hoagland, 188 N. Y. 291, 80 N. E. 919; Leask v. Richards, 101 N. Y. S. 652.

21. In bequest to "brothers and sisters and their representatives," the word "representatives" is substitutionary, meaning next of kin. Howell v. Westbrook [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 417.

22. Holmes v. Stanhope [Pa.] 66 A. 146. The rule of construction that where a devise is made to one, and in case of his death to another, the expression will be confined to the event of the death happening before the death of the testator, does not obtain when from the context of the will it can be reasonably ascertained that testator contemplated the contingency of death at a later period of time. Fisher v. Eggert [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 957.

23. Mull v. Mull, 50 Misc. 362, 100 N. Y. S. 523. Provision that should any of testator's children, to whom he gave property in equal shares, "die without leaving surviving children" his share should be equally divided among survivors held, under law of Pennsylvania, to refer to death during tesand a like interpretation has been given to a condition of marriage.[25] Provision in case legatee should die before testator or "at about the same time" is not applicable where he dies nearly six months after testator.[26]

Gifts by implication.[27]—While it is possible for testator to dispose of property not by any formal disposition in his will, but by necessary implication from the will taken as a whole, there is strong presumption against his having intended any devise or bequest not therein set forth.[28]

Quality of estate, whether legal or equitable, use, trust, or power.[29]—Full legal ownership may be implied from a gift with words ordinarily indicative of a trust or beneficial ownership,[30] and on the other hand a trust may be found without the tator's lifetime so that children surviving him took fee. App v. App [Va.] 55 S. E. 672.

24. Fact that testator was 84 years old and children were past middle age when will was made held not to change rule. App v. App [Va.] 55 S. E. 672. Remainder to those "who would be entitled thereto" under statute of descent held to go to heirs living at time of determination of particular estate not those living at testator's death. Wood v. Schoen [Pa.] 66 A. 79. Where a remainder over to heirs of testator is contingent on death of life tenant without issue, the heirs who are to take are to be determined as of the time of the life tenant's death. Brown v. Wright [Mass.] 80 N. E. 612.

25. To G. "if she remains unmarried" referred to her nonmarriage at testator's death; hence gift over did not take effect. In re Alexander's Estate [Cal.] 85 P. 308.

26. In re Redmond, 50 Misc. 74, 100 N. Y. S. 347.

27. See 6 C. L. 1933.

28. Coberly v. Earle [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 336. Necessary implication means so strong a probability of intention that contrary intention cannot be supposed. Id. A bequest to the relatives of testator and his wife according to "heirship" means according to kinship, which being ascertainable in the lifetime of the wife does not imply a life estate to her. Bowser v. Mosier, 125 Ill. App. 565. Bequest of life estate to wife in all testator's property, "except as otherwise disposed," negatives any implication of a life estate to her in the only tract specifically devised. Id. Expression of a desire for a speedy settlement of the estate negatives any implication of an intent to give a life estate in the entire property. Id.

29. See 6 C. L. 1934.

30. A bequest to the trustees of an institution for a certain purpose is to such trustees absolutely in their official capacity and not upon trust where the purpose stated is within the powers and purposes of the institution. Morgan v. Durand, 101 N. Y. S. 1002. A bequest to a charity for the benefit of a certain fund thereof is absolute to the charity where there is no such fund. Johnston v. Hughes, 187 N. Y. 446, 80 N. E. 373. Provisions respecting use and management following a bequest in fee held to create a trust, though that word is not used. Robinson v. Cogswell [Mass.] 78 N. E. 389. A provision following a gift absolute to testator's wife that at her death all real and personal estate belonging to her should go to her children does not impair the absolute character of the gift. Hume v. McHaffie [Ind. App.] 81 N. E. 117. Devise of "use" of land during life creates a life estate and not a trust (Little v. Colman [N. H.] 66 A. 483), and a like result follows a bequest of income of lands for life without naming a trustee (Id.). Gift of entire estate to widow to be used and managed by her for mutual benefit of herself and children, with provisions that should she remarry she should take only what law allows widow, that she was desired to make advances to children, etc., and that, after her death, what she had not disposed of was to be divided among children, held to give widow whole estate during life or widowhood, and that with respect to rents and income there was no trust in favor of children. Trout v. Pratt [Va.] 56 S. E. 165. Fact that will was an exact copy of another with construction of which testator expressed himself as highly pleased, and that he stated he desired his will to be construed in same manner, held no ground for giving different construction. Id. A testatrix devised land to the vestry of a church to be used for such church purposes as the rector should direct, stating that it was her purpose and desire that the property should be under the control of the rector and should be used for such church work as he might deem for the best interest of the church. It was held that no trust estate was created, but that the vestry took an absolute estate in fee simple, and that the power attempted to be conferred on the rector was a revoked collateral power repugnant to the fee and therefore void. Doan v. Vestry of Parish of Ascension, 103 Md. 662, 64 A. 314. A plenary power to sell on named conditions and to divide proceeds held a naked power and hence not creative of a trust. In re Campbell's Estate [Cal.] 87 P. 573. Perishable part of personalty held to have become absolute property of widow on bequest to her of all the personalty for life. Medlin v. Simpson [N. C.] 57 S. E. 24. Gift of "the use, and benefit, and profit of all my estate" held devise of land itself. Perry v. Hackney, 142 N. C. 368, 55 S. E. 289. Trust for investment and payment of income to one and his issue held not spendthrift trust. Kunkel v. Kemper, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 360.

Precatory words: Recital of confidence that wife as sole legatee would adequately provide for children held not to create precatory trust. Rector v. Alcorn [Miss.] 41 So. 370. Precatory words in bequest to wife as to disposition to be made by her of property on her death held not to create a trust. Hillsdale College v. Wood, 145 Mich. 257, 13 Det. Leg. N. 456, 108 N. W. 675. Language in bequest to widow indicating a desire for artificial words of one.[31] Bequest subject to trust becomes absolute when trust is performed.[32]

Estates or interests created.[33]—Words of inheritance are not necessary to pass a fee, but any words suffice which carry that intent.[34] So, too, no particular words sale and use for benefit of children when they reached their majority held to create no trust. Courtenay v. Courtenay [Miss.] 43 So. 68. Provision that testator wished all his property kept together and used as he had used it during life of his wife, she and executors to have privilege to set off parts of it to children as they became of age or married, held when construed, in light of agreed statement of facts as to testator's use to create estate during life of widow with title held by executors and with direction that property be cultivated as plantation for support of family living upon it. Toombs v. Spratlin [Ga.] 57 S. E. 59.

31. Bequest to executors absolutely held charged with trust by letter of instructions appointing a beneficiary. Erdman v. Meyer, 102 N. Y. S. 197. A bequest to one for life followed by directions to the executor for investment and management creates a trust for the life tenant. In re Freel, 99 N. Y. S. 505. The rule that a devise of land subject to a contract to sell makes the devisee a trustee to carry out such contract is not affected by the fact that the devisee is a corporation not authorized to sell its land. Edelstein v. Hays, 50 Misc. 130, 100 N. Y. S. 403. Bequest of personalty to wife for life with right to use of the principal if needed makes her trustee for the heirs of the residue. In re Trelease, 100 N. Y. S. 1051. Bequest of income to charitable purpose held to create a trust, though no trustee was named. Welch v. Caldwell, 226 Ill. 488, 80 N. E. 1014. Devise held to give the naked legal title to one, a life use to another, and her equitable fee to the issue of the latter. Clay v. Chenault, 29 Ky. L. R. 1085, 96 S. W. 1125. A charge on life tenant to be by him accumulated for children held to make him a trustee. In re Haines' Estate [Cal.] 89 P. 606. Devise held to pass entire estate charged with a trust to sell twenty acres and pay the proceeds to designated persons. Barksdale v. Capital City Realty Co. [Miss.] 42 So. 668. Devise in trust to wife for joint use of herself and children with power of sale, etc., held to create trust which was executory during wife's life so that, as she took no vested legal interest, she could not, in her individual capacity, convey any by deed. Middlebrooks & Co. v. Ferguson, 126 Ga. 232, 55 S. E. 34.

32. In bequest to daughter-in-law for support of her family, "family" means children by testator's son. Stone v. McLain [Me.] 66 A. 375.

33. See 6 C. L. 1936.

34. Devise of house for life, "and one-third of all other property," gives such one-third in fee. Stepheuson's Estate, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 97. Will held to give fee in tract to son and daughter subject to life estate given other children by subsequent clause, so that, on death of latter, property did not pass as intestate, particularly in view of Revisal 1905, § 3138. Steadman v. Steadman [N. C.] 55 S. E. 784. A testator devised land to two persons as tenants in common, subject to the condition "that in the event of the death of either * * * without heirs of their bodies begotten the survivor shall inherit the share of the one so dying." It was held that the entire estate in fee vested in the two tenants in common, and when one conveyed his whole interest to the other the latter would have the entire title. Benedict v. Zimmerman [Pa.] 64 A. 333. Devise to granddaughter for life, and to her issue in fee, in case she died leaving living issue, or, in case of her death without issue, to testator's son, with residuary devise in fee to son, held to vest in latter fee after life estate, with the contingent remainders limited thereon. McCreary v. Coggeshall, 74 S. C. 42, 53 S. E. 978. Gift to daughters equally held in fee despite a spendthrift restraint on alienation by one of them. Kinkead v. Maxwell [Kan.] 88 P. 523.

Rule in Shelley's case: Testator devised a house to his grandson A. for life, charged with a valuation of $1,200, and after his death to his "children, their heirs and assigns forever." In a subsequent clause of the will directing the division of the general estate, testator bequeathed one-fifth thereof to the children of his daughter, A. being one, but A "to have $1,200 less than the others, the amount I charged against him for the house and lot which I have given to him during his lifetime as before mentioned, their heirs or legal representatives." It was held that devise to A. did not come within the rule in Shelley's Case, and that he only took a life estate. Hoover v. Strauss [Pa.] 64 A. 333. Devise to one and the lawful heirs of his body forever held to give first taker an estate tail converted by Revisal 1905, § 1578, into fee simple. Sessoms v. Sessoms [N. C.] 56 S. E. 687. Limitation over to another and her lawful heirs in case first taker died without lawful heirs of his body held not qualification of estate of first taker, but separate estate which, on contingent event, would pass direct from testator under doctrine of shifting uses, and by way of executory devise. Revisal 1905, § 1581, merely establishes rule of construction whereby such limitations may be sustained, and does not change nature of first estate, or make second qualification of first.. Id. Devise to one for life "and to the lawful heirs of her body after her death" held to give fee to first taker. Perry v. Hackney, 142 N. C. 368, 55 S. E. 289. Both of the estates must be of same quality, that is both must be legal or both equitable. Vogt v. Vogt, 26 App. D. C. 46. Even if rule applies to personalty, held that it was inapplicable to case where will directed fund to be held in trust for one for life, the principal to be paid to his heirs after his death. Id. Rule is one of property and not of construction. Id. Though intention will be unavailing to exclude operation of rule where technical language used is directly within its application, yet, if there are explanatory and qualifying expressions from which it appears that import of technical language is contrary to clear and plain are necessary to create a life estate.[35] An express limitation to life cannot be en-intent, latter will prevail. Id. Bequest to he held in trust for one and his direct descendants does not create an estate tail in the first beneficiary entitling him to possession of the corpus. Ballantine v. Ballantine, 152 F. 775. Devise to one, with provision that the property should descend to her "bodily heirs," creates an estate tail which the statute will convert into a fee. Edwards v. Walesby, 30 Ky. L. R. 251, 98 S. W. 306. Devise for life with remainder to heirs gives fee. Pease v. Davis, 225 Ill. 408, 80 N. E. 249. A bequest of income to one for life, principal to be divided among his children on his death, gives him a life interest only. Xander v. Easton Trust Co. [Pa.] 66 A. 759. A devise to one for life with remainder to the "heirs of her body," notwithstanding a remainder over in event of her dying without children. Hastings v. Engle [Pa.] 66 A. 761. Where freehold estate is, either jointly, severally or successively given to two persons who are capable of having a common heir with remainder to their heirs, rule operates, and they take a joint inheritance in fee. Walker v. Taylor [N. C.] 56 S. E. 877. Devise to be held in trust for testator's three daughters for life, and for survivors or survivor for their or her lives, with remainder to their heirs at law, held to give daughters joint estate of inheritance in fee, and survivor was not entitled to entire tract. Id. Devise for life with remainder to bodily heirs gives a life estate only, and on death without bodily heirs the remainder passes by the residuary clause. Webb v. Sweet [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 1024. Rule in Shelley's Case does not apply to a bequest of personalty. In re Dull's Estate [Pa.] 66 A. 567. A bequest to several persons and their heirs, but with a provision that the share of one should vest in others in trust for his support during minority, does not as to such minor come within the rule in Shelley's case. Johnson v. Buck, 220 Ill. 226, 77 N. E. 163.

35. A devise followed by a direction for holding by the executor for the benefit of the devisee and his widow and heirs gives a life estate only. Mee v. Gordon, 187 N. Y. 400, 80 N. E. 353. Clause following bequest "after the decease of (the legatee) I will that" held an operative limitation over, and not a mere precatory phrase. Hume v. McHaffie [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 377. Income of lands is not an estate therein within a statute providing that a devise of any estate in lands if not expressly limited shall be deemed a devise in fee. Rev. St. 1874, C. 30, § 13. Pease v. Davis 225 Ill. 408, 80 N. E. 249; In re Vreeland's Estate [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 902. Devise to take effect on death of a certain person held not to give him a life estate. Devise held to give widow a life estate terminable by her remarriage, a life estate to a daughter thereupon, and a vested remainder in fee to the heirs of the daughter. Haab v. Schneeberger [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 13, 111 N. W. 185. Codicil held to give to son's widow his share in income of trust estate for life, instead of during widowhood as provided in original will. In re Davis' Will [Wis.] 111 N. W. 503. Bequest to "have and enjoy" for life with remainder over held to give life estate only. Scott v. Scott [Iowa] 109 N. W. 293. Civ. Code 1902, § 2483, held not to require gift to wife to be considered gift in fee where will showed intention that she should take only life estate. Joyce v. Bode, 74 S. C. 164, 54 S. E. 239. Will held to give wife life estate at most, bequests and residuary clause to become effective under administration of named executor on her death, as well as if she remarried, so that on her death without remarriage property did not pass to her heirs. Id. Gift of lands to have full control for life, but to put out a certain sum per year to accumulate, held a life estate subject to a charge. In re Haines' Estate [Cal.] 89 P. 606. Devise of equitable estate to one for life with equitable estate in fee "to his issue forever," with limitation over in default of issue, held to give first taker life estate only with remainder in fee to his children, word "issue" not being used in sense of "heirs," but as correlative term for children, and hence rule in Shelley's case having no application. Faison v. Odum [N. C.] 56 S. E. 793. Will held not to give wife absolute fee, but to vest in her life estate and to create trust in her as trustee for benefit of children, though giving her absolute power of disposal "for the benefit of the family." Newman v. Newman [W. Va.] 55 S. E. 377. Though simple devise, without any words of limitation or description of interest devised, creates estate for life only, any words sufficiently indicating intent to create greater estate will be given that effect, no matter what their form may be, and whole will may be looked to to ascertain such intention. Young v. Norris Peters Co., 27 App. D. C. 140. Even if devise without words of limitation did not pass fee, held that it passed under residuary clause devising to same person any other property not otherwise devised. Id. Tendency of latest decisions, in jurisdictions where rule has not been abrogated by statute, is to search entire will closely for sufficient indication of intention which will prevent operation of rule. Atkins v. Best, 27 App. D. C. 148. Will held to show intention to pass fee. Id. Devisee held to have life estate only in certain tract of land which he elected to take under will, and fee simple in balance which he elected to take at its appraised value as authorized by will. Fitzpatrick v. Wylie [S. C.] 56 S. E. 364. Item "I desire that all my negroes, as also other property, be appraised and equally divided among my sons, * * and at their death to go to their children," held to give sons life estate in whatever land testator died seized of, so that objection to its introduction in evidence on ground that it did not bequeath, or convey title to, any land, and was therefore irrelevant, was properly overruled. Hicks v. Webb [Ga.] 56 S. E. 307. Gift of money to daughter, and appointment of sons to purchase home for her therewith for her life, then over to her children, held life estate and remainder in fee. Lohmuller v. Mosher [Kan.] 87 P. 1140. In Delawaro, prior to the act of Feb. 20, 1849, a devise without words of limitation passed a life estate only, unless there was something in the will which clearly showed that it was the intention of the testator that a greater estate should pass. Such an intention was not clearly shown in this case.

larged by words of doubtful meaning.[36] Likewise, a fee clearly given will not be cut down by subsequent words of doubtful import,[37] and in such case a limitation over is void for repugnancy.[38] A limitation by an executory devise is valid,[39] and

In re Reed's Estate [Del.] 64 A. 822. Terms of will and codicil construed and held to give testator's wife a life estate with right to dispose of any portion of the property during her lifetime. Williams v. Dearborn, 101 Mo. 506, 64 A. 851. A testator gave the residue of his estate to trustees for certain uses, and provided that pending their settlement of the estate 10-27 of the income should be paid to his wife "during her lifetime," if the estate was not sooner settled, "to her sole use and benefit, and upon final settlement the same fraction of the corpus of the trust estate was to be delivered to her, she to have the "entire use and income during her lifetime of all said portion" of the residuary estate, with power of sale "for her sole use and benefit" of any part of the property. It was held that the wife took a life estate only in the 10-27 with power of sale for the purpose stated, and upon her decease what of it remained belonged to the estate of the testator to be held by his trustees. Richards v. Morrison, 101 Me. 424, 64 A. 768. All the provisions in a paragraph in a will construed together and held to confer upon testator's widow only a life estate in certain stock. Id. A testator devised certain real property to his daughter "during her lifetime," and provided that at her death it should be divided equally among her "children, should she have any living," and in case she should die without living issue that it should revert to his estate. It was held that the daughter took only a life estate. West v. Vernon [Pa.] 64 A. 686. Terms of will construed and held to confer on a devisee only a life estate, with a limitation over upon her death. Campbell v. Cole [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 461. Legacy substituted for life estate held to be of life interest only. Roats's Estate, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 521.

36. "In fee simple" for life with remainder over gives life estate only. Wallace v. Bozarth, 223 Ill. 339, 79 N. E. 57, afg. 123 Ill. App. 624. Power to dispose by will does not enlarge a life estate. Schoyer v. Kay [Pa.] 66 A. 141.

37. Held to cut down fee: Absolute devise to children held cut down by provision in following paragraph for joint use by them as a home and inhibiting sale until the minority of the youngest. Holden v. Rush, 104 N. Y. S. 175. Gift over of what may be left held to impart life estate. Grennwalt v. Keller [Kan.] 90 P. 233. Provision following absolute devise to children of testator held sufficiently definite to cut down the share of one of them to a life estate. Cochran v. Cochran [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 1, 95 S. W. 731. A power of disposition in fee is not repugnant to a gift of a life estate with remainder over. Grace v. Perry, 197 Mo. 550, 95 S. W. 875. Where in a will property was given to testator's brother and it was provided that at his death "what remains" should go to his children, it was held that the brother took only a life estate, the words "what remains" not giving him an unlimited power of disposition enlarging his estate into a fee simple. Tooker v. Tooker [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 806.

Held not to cut down fee: Bequest to wife for life with power of disposition held absolute and not cut down by provision for distribution of what remained at her death. Farney v. Weirich, 103 N. Y. S. 38. Expression of desire as to manner in which residue should be disposed of held not to cut down bequest with full power of disposition. Bennett v. McLaughlin, 103 N. Y. S. 256. Where a life estate is given in express terms, power of disposition annexed does not enlarge it to a fee. Cross v. Hendry [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 531. Gift over of what was left at death of wife held not to cut down absolute devise to her. Killefer v. Bassett [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 663, 109 N. W. 21; Conlin v. Sowards [Wis.] 109 N. W. 91. Devise of estate for life, coupled with absolute power of alienation, either express or implied, gives devisee the fee. Bing v. Burrus [Va.] 56 S. E. 222. Desire and direction that in case of sale certain persons should be given preference held not to deprive devisees of absolute power of sale. Id. Estate given in clear and decisive terms cannot be cut down or taken away by any subsequent words not equally clear and decisive. In re Pearce's Estate, 104 N. Y. S. 469. Where estate is conferred by plain words in one part of the will, it cannot be subsequently divested except by express words or necessary implication. Wills v. Foltz [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 473. "Power to use the principal" given a life tenant includes power to sell land where realty and personalty are blended in the devise. Kennedy v. Pittsburgh & L. E. R. Co. [Pa.] 65 A. 1102. Remainder over after life estate with power of disposition held to carry only what remained after the exercise of the power. Dodin v. Dodin, 101 N. Y. S. 488.

38. Gift over on death of legatee of a bequest declared by will to be absolute is null. Stimson v. Rountree [Ind.] 78 N. E. 331. Where estate is devised to one generally or indefinitely, devisee takes fee, and any limitation over is void as remainder or as executory devise. Bing v. Burrus [Va.] 56 S. E. 222. Power of disposition held so essential as to avoid remainder over. Young v. Robinson [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 20. A gift over of what should remain is not repugnant to a life estate with power of disposal. Reed v. Reed [Mass.] 80 N. E. 219. Under a will containing a devise to A generally, with no power of disposal expressed, but followed by a devise to B of what shall remain undisposed of at A's death, A takes an estate in fee simple and the attempted limitation over is void. Steuer v. Steuer, 8 Ohio C. C. (N. C.) 71. Remainder over of all that was undisposed of at the death of one to whom the property had been in a previous paragraph absolutely given held a nullity. Bernstein v. Bramble [Ark.] 99 S. W. 682.

39. A devise to one with a provision that it should vest in trust in another for the support of the devisee during minority gives a fee simple subject to a limitation by executory devise. Johnson v. Buck, 220 Ill. 226, 77 N. E. 163. An estate which can take effect as a contingent remainder will never be construed as an executory devise. Mca devise with gift over on death of the first taker without issue is usually held to create a defeasible fee,[40] though sometimes it is construed as giving a fee tail [41] or a life estate only.[42] Condition subsequent to a power of sale is inoperative against title arising under its exercise.[43]

"Interest" and "income." [44]—A bequest of income does not ordinarily carry other accretions to the corpus.[45] The rule that when time of payment is postponed by the will interest or other income will not be paid until the specified time may be departed from.[46] A gift of income ordinarily passes only a life estate.[47] A bequest of the income of an investment in United States bonds is not to be charged with deduction to the fund by shrinkage of premiums.[48] From and to what time the share of a particular legatee of income is to be computed depends on the intent.[49]

Legacies.[50]—A general legacy is one payable out of the general assets of testator's estate.[51] A specific legacy is a gift of a specific and identified part of testator's personalty.[52] A demonstrative legacy is a gift of a certain sum payable out of a particular fund.[53]

Creary v. Coggeshall, 74 S. C. 42, 53 S. E. 978. Devise to granddaughter for life, and to her issue in fee, in case she died leaving living issue, or, in default or issue, to testator's son, held to create a contingent remainder with a double aspect, and not an executory devise. Id.

40. Where a devise is limited to take effect on the death of one without issue it will ordinarily be construed to mean issue surviving him. In re Korn's Will, 128 Wis. 428, 107 N. W. 659. Devise held to give an estate in fee subject to be defeated by devisee dying without issue. Whalin v. Bailey, 29 Ky. L. R. 1048, 96 S. W. 1105. Devise to two, the share of either dying without issue to go to the survivor and gift over if both died without issue gives a fee subject to the divesting condition. Gannon v. Pauk, 200 Mo. 75, 98 S. W. 471.

41. A remainder to one and her heirs, subject to divest if she die without issue, gives a fee tail which the statute enlarges to a fee simple. Hannon v. Fliedner [Pa.] 65 A. 944. Devise to two the share of either dying without issue to go to the survivor and limitation over if both died without issue does not create a fee tail by implication. Gannon v. Pauk, 200 Mo. 75, 98 S. W. 471.

42. A devise to one and her children and to another if she died childless gives a life estate only, though such devise was limited on a precedent life estate. In re Williams' Estate [Pa.] 65 A. 757. Will held to give a life estate with remainder to children of first taker and not a fee deposible on death without issue. Reeves v. Morgan, 30 Ky. L. R. 1158, 100 S. W. 836.

43. Centenary Fund Soc. v. Lake [N. J. Eq.] 66 A. 601.

44. See 6 C. L. 1941.

45. Stock issued by way of dividend passes to a legatee of "income." In re Harteau's Will, 104 N. Y. S. 586. The use of $40,000, etc., and whatever is not used to go to children, held to mean a gift of the corpus and not only the use. In re Mayhew's Estate [Cal. App.] 87 P. 417. "Dividends, rents, and profits" bequeathed to life tenant do not include accretions to the corpus. Right to participate in new stock issues and increase in valuations go to remainderman. Boardman v. Mansfield [Conn.] 66 A. 169.

46. Income of bequest payable at maturity of legatee allowed for his support when no other provision therefor was made. In re Rafferty's Estate, 102 N. Y. S. 432. Bequest of income to widow held to include income of all of testator's property and to postpone distribution till her death. Mosier v. Bowser, 226 Ill. 46, 80 N. E. 730.

47. Stearns v. Stearns [Mass.] 77 N. E. 1154. Son held to take life estate only in income of trust fund set apart for his support, principal to be kept intact and pass, on his death, as part of residuary estate, so that principal could not be kept and maintained after his death and income arising therefrom applied to payment of his debts. Sherrard v. Western State Hospital [Va.] 54 S. E. 1001.

48. Lynde v. Lynde, 113 App. Div. 411, 99 N. Y. S. 283.

49. A bequest to children of proportionate share of a fund to be annually ascertained does not entitle the estate of a deceased child to the part of such share accruing since the last annual settlement. Green v. Bissell [Conn.] 65 A. 1056. Where a sum "with interest" is allowed the wife by agreement, and the will provides for an increased sum to be paid "as provided in said agreement," she is entitled to interest on the whole. In re Bostwick, 104 N. Y. S. 69. Bequest of income for life held to contemplate payment of entire income, so that income accrued and not paid over at the death of the beneficiary belonged to his estate. In re Hoyt, 101 N. Y. S. 557.

50. See 6 C. L. 1943.

51. A devise of "all the remainder" of testator's property is general, since it may carry after acquired goods. Cooney v. Whitaker [Mass.] 78 N. E. 751.

52. A bequest of all that is recovered in a certain action is specific and not subject to abatement for debts if the property bequeathed generally is adequate. Robinson v. Cogswell [Mass.] 78 N. E. 389. Legacy of bank stock held general so that legatee was entitled to value in money where stock was disposed of before death. In re Snyder's Estate [Pa.] 66 A. 157. A specific bequest is one which identifies the very property given from all others like it. In re

An annuity [54] is a grant of a fixed sum of money payable at the expiration of fixed consecutive periods.[55] They are frequently made by the will a charge on land.[56]

Advancements.[57]—The doctrine of advancements applies only in case of intestacy.[58]

Support.[59]—A large discretion is usually allowed in the making of trusts for support and there may, unless a contrary intent appears, be discrimination between beneficiaries,[60] and resort to the corpus in case of need.[61] Such bequests usually contemplate only present needs [62] and determine upon the death of the beneficiary.[63] A bequest to be paid over to legatee if he needed it for his own use is absolute, no given use being specified and no person designated to determine his needs.[64]

Noons' Estate [Or.] 88 P. 673. Gift of "all stock" of a named corporation is specific. Id. Gift of dividends of stock held not specific. Id.

53. While a demonstrative legacy will be more readily found than a specific one, it will not be found unless the legacy be charged on without being a gift of a fund. Nusly v. Curtiss [Colo.] 85 P. 846. Legacy of any insurance moneys to become thereafter payable held specific. Id. Legacies held to be payable out of proceeds of certain claim of testator against United States. Matthews v. Taragona [Md.] 65 A. 60.

54. See 6 C. L. 1943.

55. Property devised to son for life held to pass to trustee of second son, on death of life tenant without issue, subject to be administered on precisely same trusts as property originally given in trust for second son's benefit, so that latter's annuity was not increased by enlargement of fund from which it was to be paid. McCurdy v. O'Rourke [Va.] 56 S. E. 573. Period during which annuity was to be paid held limited to five year period allowed for sale of realty. Willcox v. Willcox [Va.] 56 S. E. 588. Interest held properly allowed on items composing arrears of annuity from end of year at which each was payable. Id. In an action for annuities against one who accepted a devise charged with their payment, interest on unpaid instalments is proper. Stringer v. Stephens' Estate [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 732, 109 N. W. 269.

56. See post, this section, Charges, Exonerations, and Funds for Payment.

57. See 6 C. L. 1943.

58. In re Hall's Estate [Iowa] 110 N. W. 148. An advancement is not to be charged against a devise in the absence of testamentary expression to that effect. Bowran v. Kent, 51 Misc. 136, 100 N. Y. S. 768. Where a will provides for a specific deduction on account of payments on an antenuptial contract, other payments on account of such contracts are not to be deducted. Sayer v. Gunn [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 899, 110 N. W. 63.

59. See 6 C. L. 1944.

60. Will held to give widow large discretionary power as to making advancements to children, and mere fact that she saw fit to make advancement to one child did not operate of its own vigor to create right in others to demand equal advancement which court of equity would enforce, but equity would not interfere in absence of showing of fraud or bad faith. Trout v. Pratt [Va.] 56 S. E. 165. Direction for use of income by executor for support of children held not to intend that they share equally but that it be applied as necessary. Pray v. Railer, 144 Mich. 208, 13 Det. Leg. N. 247, 107 N. W. 1076. Power of trustees to discriminate in exercise of power to use property for support of testator's children held not to be limited to the condition of such children at testator's death. Albert v. Sanford [Mo.] 99 S. W. 1068. Terms of a will creating a trust estate for the support and maintenance of a named beneficiary construed, and held to vest in the trustee the discretion of determining upon the amounts and times of the payments to be made to the beneficiary, and that the exercise of such discretion was not subject to revision by the court so long as he exercised it in good faith and according to his best judgment, and that such discretion had been properly exercised. Kimball v. Blanchard, 101 Me. 383, 64 A. 645.

61. The successor to a trustee to pay so much of the income as was needed for the support of the beneficiary cannot pay to him surplus income accrued during the administration of his predecessor. In re Harwood, 102 N. Y. S. 444. Gift of a sum sufficient for support and education and to set apart a sum certain for that purpose, the balance remaining therefrom to be turned back into the general estate, entitles the trustees to use the corpus. Trustees of Elizabeth Speers Memorial Hospital v. Makibben's Guardian [Ky.] 102 S. W. 820. Bequest to wife held to give her the income for her support with resort to the corpus in case of need, not support out of the corpus in addition to the income. In re Hibbard's Estate, 104 N. Y. S. 583.

62. Where testator charged estate with maintenance and support of widow, but fixed no specific sum which she should receive for that purpose, and court later decreed fixed sum as reasonable annual allowance, held that her right to such sum depended on her using it during her life, and it could not be charged against estate in favor of her devisee or personal representatives. Brown v. Cresap [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 603. Decree held to limit her to amount fixed thereby, but not to be an adjudication that such amount constituted debt against estate which she could accumulate. Id.

63. Charged for support of testator's daughters held to continue only during life estate created by previous item, so that estate was subject to division among remaindermen after death of life tenant. Rogers v. Highnote [Ga.] 56 S. E. 93.

64. In re Bouck's Will [Wis.] 111 N. W. 573.

Release of debts.[65]—Where a legacy recites that it is to satisfy all claims of the legatee for services to the testator, it is presumptively designed as a business settlement with the legatee and forgives a debt of legatee to testator.[66]

Cumulative legacies.[67]—Where two bequests are given by distinct instruments, as by will in one case and codicil in another, even if the amounts are alike, the presumption is in favor of both bequests and the burden of overthrowing the presumption is on the executor.[68]

Vesting.[69]—A legacy is vested or contingent, accordingly, as time is attached to the gift or to the payment of it,[70] and the interest of primary and secondary legatees vest simultaneously.[71] Except where a contrary result is necessary to save the bequest,[72] the law favors the early vesting of estates, and hence remainders will be held vested rather than contingent,[73] unless the language of the will clearly shows a different intention,[74] and to that end words of designation of the taker will if

65. See 6 C. L. 1914.

66. Bromley v. Atwood, 79 Ark. 357, 96 S. W. 356.

67. See 6 C. L. 1945.

68. In this case the will gave a certain sum to each of the children of a certain person and a codicil gave a like sum to one of such children and revoked the former legacy to another child who had since died. It was held that the bequest in the codicil was an additional gift. Hartwell v. Martin [N. J. Eq.] 63 A. 754. In a will was a bequest of a certain sum to each of the children of J. L. A codicil bequeathed to each of such children then living a like sum and revoked a number of legacies of a like sum to persons who had died since the execution of the will, and also bequeathed a like sum to other legatees named in the will. It was held that the bequest in the codicil to the children of J. L. was an additional gift to that contained in the will. Id.

69. See 6 C. L. 1945.

70. Ferguson's Estate, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 422. Remainder to designated devisees to take effect on the youngest of them reaching maturity held vested. Shafer v. Tereso [Iowa] 110 N. W. 846. Legatee held not to take until such time as a conversion directed by the will could be made and his share apportioned. March v. March, 186 N. Y. 99, 78 N. E. 704. Limitation to heirs at law of life tenant on death of his widow or on his death without wife or issue vests in such heirs on his death subject to be postponed in enjoyment by the survivorship of his widow. Gray v. Whittemore [Mass.] 78 N. E. 422. Remainder is vested where present interest passes to certain definite person, though enjoyment is postponed. Vogt v. Vogt, 26 App. D. C. 46.

71. Legacy in event of another dying before majority held to be vested. Ferguson's Estate, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 422.

72. In order to save bequest to charitable corporation to be formed by executors, the bequest will if possible be construed as providing for a vesting in the corporation, when formed, an ineffectual interest for vesting in presenti not being prevented. St. John v. Andrews Institute, 102 N. Y. S. 808.

73. Remainder to one and over in event of his death without issue is vested in the first remainderman subject to divest on his death without issue. In re Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 51 Misc. 162, 100 N. Y. S. 862. Remainder limited on devisees surviving testator held to vest absolutely and not subject to divest in case he failed to survive the life tenant. In re Allison, 102 N. Y. S. 887. A trust limited to the heirs of the beneficiary on his death before the termination of the trust gives him a vested interest subject to divesting by his death before such termination. In event of his death his heir takes free from assignments by him. Huntress v. Allen [Mass.] 80 N. E. 949. Bequest in trust for daughters held to give vested interest subject to be divested on death before marriage only in favor of a married daughter. Noble v. Birnie's Trustee [Md.] 65 A. 823. Where it is provided that at the termination of a life estate land shall be sold and the proceeds used in the payment of certain equalizing legacies, the legatees took at testator's death a vested interest in such proceeds. Miller's Ex'r v. Sageser, 30 Ky. L. R. 837, 99 S. W. 913. Under provision for distribution at termination of life estate, the legatees take a vested remainder. Tubb v. Fowler [Tenn.] 99 S. W. 988. Provisions for payment of distributive shares out of certain amounts as the same should be realized by sales under a power held to vest the interest at once. In re Campbell's Estate [Cal.] 87 P. 573. When a power but no trust is created, the shares may vest at once. Id. Law favors vesting of legacies and will not hold them contingent unless will shows testator intended to make them so. Stakely v. Executive Committee [Ala.] 39 So. 653. A will gave a life estate to A. with remainder to his children, but if he should die without issue one-half the property was to be divided between certain specified persons. It was held that such persons took a vested interest on the death of the testator subject to its being divested should the life tenant die leaving issue. Van Houten v. Hall [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 460. Rule same in case of personalty. Vogt v. Vogt, 26 App. D. C. 46.

74. Provision for life estate in lands and a conversion and distribution within a stated time from the life tenant's death does not give a vested estate in remainder in the lands. Darst v. Swearingen, 224 Ill. 229, 79 N. E. 635. Where will gave life estate in all testatrix's property, and certain specific sums out of bonds, notes, and money "should there be any remaining," and "the balance, if any," to plaintiff, held that plaintiff's legacy was contingent on there being any balance, and its right was that of a residuary possible be referred to the time of testator's death,[75] and where the persons who shall take in remainder are then certain subject to death or after the birth of persons entitled, the remainder will vest subject to divesting or opening.[76]

Possession and enjoyment[77] should not be found other than is appurtenant to the estate or interest given unless a contrary intent is plain.[78]

Individual rights in gifts to two or more.[79]—Right of survivorship will not be implied in a gift to several.[80] A gift to a class is a gift to those coming within that description at testator's death,[81] but if the time of distribution is postponed, only those answering the description at the time of diversion will share,[82] though a similar gift to named individuals vests on testator's death.[83] The law favors a construction which will give per stirpes [84] but where the devise is to children as inlegatee. Stakely v. Executive Committee [Ala.] 39 So. 653. Limitation over in event the remainderman should die without issue before determination of particular estate gives contingent remainder only. Schell v. Carpenter, 50 Misc. 400, 100 N. Y. S. 554. Life estate with remainder to be converted and divided among children and issue of deceased children gives contingent interest to remaindermen. Blaney v. Sin Clair [Pa.] 65 A. 662. Life estate to children with remainder on the death of the last survivor of them to grandchildren gives contingent remainder only, which will not vest unless there are grandchildren living at the death of such survivor. Reilly v. Bristow [Md.] 66 A. 262.

75. "Upon final distribution" stated as time of payment of a legacy, held referable to distribution after disposition of land and not to the distribution of personalty. McDevitt v. Hibben, 123 Ill. App. 438. Limitation of remainder to surviving children held referable to survivorship at testator's death. Runyon v. Grubb, 103 N. Y. S. 949. Designation of recipients of trust fund on a deferred distribution as a class, no vesting till time for distribution. Heirs. In re Lewis' Will, 104 N. Y. S. 480. Limitation of remainder on condition of death of remainderman without issue held referable to time of testator's death. Burton v. Carnahan [Ind. App.] 78 N. E. 682. Provision that on death of life tenant property should be divided between remaindermen held to refer only to distribution and not to defer vesting. Jonas v. Weires [Iowa] 111 N. W. 453.

76. On a devise to one for life and remainder to his children, the children living at testator's death took a remainder in fee subject to opening to let in afterborn children. Gilman v. Stone, 29 Ky. L. R. 591, 94 S. W. 28. Legacies of equal shares to children and grandchildren on maturity held to vest at death of testator subject to opening to admit after-born grandchildren, and not to divest by death of any before maturity. Irvine's Estate, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 614. Provision that at death of testator's wife property was to be equally divided among children, share of any children dying without children to revert to others, held to give children vested remainders subject to be divested as to any dying childless. Toombs v. Spratlin [Ga.] 57 S. E. 59.

77. See 6 C. L. 1952.

78. Gift of a homestead to daughter but with leave to testatrix's mother to live there free of all charge and care for family held to absolve mother from payment of rent, though her occupancy was not immediate on the death of testatrix. Clift v. Newell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 832. Where there is a specific bequest of money to one for life with remainder over, the principal should not be paid to the life tenant, unless the will shows with reasonable certainty a contrary intention, but the executor should invest it and pay over to him the interest only. Will held not to show contrary intention. Payne v. Robinson, 26 App. D. C. 283.

79. See 6 C. L. 1953.

80. Provision of trust fund for life of several held to make each one's share of the principal pass on his death to his legal heirs. In re Carter's Estate [Pa.] 66 A. 767. Devise held to give life estate in severalty to two with remainder for life to the survivor in the molety of the other, and remainder over if such survivor died without lineal descendants. Anderson v. Messinger [C. C. A.] 146 F. 929. Under a trust for two for a term of years providing for payments from the principal at certain intervals, and that the share of one dying go to the survivor, such survivor takes only such part of the share as remains from previous payments out of the principal. Holmes v. Holmes [Mass.] 80 N. E. 614.

81. In devise to children as a class by way of remainder, children in esse at death of testator take vested interests, and this rule is equally applicable to an executory devise, in which case class is fixed by conditions existing at testator's death, and interest of any dying before period of distribution passes to their heirs. Irvin v. Porterfield, 126 Ga. 729, 55 S. E. 946.

82. A gift in trust to pay income to one for life and the corpus to his children on his death is contingent on such children surviving him, failing which it passes as residue. United States Trust Co. v. Baker, 102 N. Y. S. 194. A bequest of income to several and on their death to the children of each gives to such children likewise an interest divested by death. Twaites v. Waller [Iowa] 110 N. W. 279. Will held to show intention that all of testator's children should share equally in enjoyment of property loaned widow on latter's remarriage or death. Willcox v. Willcox [Va.] 56 S. E. 588.

83. Erdman v. Meyer, 102 N. Y. S. 197. Gift to three named children held gift to them severally and not collectively or as a class, and on death of one of them before testator his legacy lapsed. Kent v. Kent [Va.] 55 S. E. 564.

84. Under a residuary bequest to heirs at law "to share equally," they take per stripes. Allen v. Boardman [Mass.] 79 N.

dividuals and not to a class, they take per capita.[85] On a devise to "children" they take distributively and not as a class and accordingly the issue of a deceased child takes his share.[86] Where a ratio of distribution is provided, it will so far as is consistent with the testamentary intent be brought into accordance with the statute of descents.[87]

Conditions.[88]—No precise words are necessary to create a condition,[89] but conditions are not favored and will not be implied unless the intent is clear.[90] A

E. 260. Under bequest indicating an intent of equality between brothers and sisters, heirs of one deceased take per stirpes. Erdman v. Meyer, 102 N. Y. S. 197.

85. Under devise to three named daughters "and their children," where daughters had children at testator's death, held that daughters and children took as joint purchasers and per capita, though one daughter had more children than others. Wills v. Foltz [W. Va.] 56 S. E. 473. Terms of will construed and held to require a per capita distribution among the children of testator's children. In re Duckett's Estate, 214 Pa. 362, 63 A. 830. A provision for division among the heirs of testator's children entitles them to take per capita and not per stirpes. Kalbach v. Clark [Iowa] 110 N. W. 599.

86. Schneider v. Heilbron, 101 N. Y. S. 152. Where will gave property in trust for daughters, share and share alike, "for and during their respective lives, and from and after their death in trust for the child or children of" said daughters in fee, children to take parent's share, and provided that if any daughter should die unmarried her share should pass to surviving daughters for life, etc., held not to create joint tenancy in daughters, or give surviving daughter property to exclusion of children of deceased daughter, but such children took mother's share. Cruit v. Owen, 203 U. S. 368, 51 Law. Ed. 227. Where an estate in remainder was to be divided between the brothers and sisters of testator, the issue of one dying during the life tenancy took by representation. Buckler v. Robinson, 29 Ky. L. R. 1174, 96 S. W. 1110. On devise of a remainder to children, the issue of a child dying after testator take his share. May v. Walter's Ex'rs, 30 Ky. L. R. 59, 97 S. W. 423. A will provided that upon the death of a life tenant without issue certain property should "be equally divided between Caty" and if she be dead, her children, and the child or children of George in fee." Caty died before the life tenant, who subsequently died without issue. It was held that the property should be distributed per stirpes between the children of Caty and the representative of the only child of George. Van Houten v. Hall [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 460.

87. Where certain land is specifically devised to one and the residue of testator's land to him and others to be equally divided, the land specifically devised is to be reckoned in computing the share of the devisee thereof, except that he must receive it all, though its value amounts to more than his equal share. In re Hall's Estate [Iowa] 110 N. W. 148. On sale by testator of the land specifically devised, the general devise is to be executed as if there had been no specific devise. Id. On a gift of residuum to several in the proportion which specific legacies to them bear to each other, the share of one to whom the income of a trust fund is bequeathed is to be computed on the basis of the principal. Leask v. Hoagland, 188 N. Y. 291, 80 N. E. 919. Residuary legacy to heirs of testator and of his widow according to their heirship, the heirs of each took a moiety divided as in case of intestacy. Mosier v. Bowser, 226 Ill. 46, 80 N. E. 730. Terms of a will construed and held to confer upon the children of testator's daughter three-fifths of the property passing under the residuary clause, and upon the children of his son two-fifths of such property, and the absolute estate so conferred was not divested and the whole property on the death of both children made equally divisible among all the grandchildren and their descendants by a clause in the will providing that if both children "leave children or descendants living, they are to take the property hereby devised and bequeathed to them in equal proportions, share and share alike." Hurley v. Rosensteel [Md.] 64 A. 1041. Bequest held to make division into three parts and division of one of them between two not division into four parts. In re Bouck's Will [Wis.] 111 N. W. 573.

88. See 6 C. L. 1955.

89. Performance or violation of conditions: Where bequest was on condition that legatee pay the funeral expenses of a third person, and such expenses were in fact paid by the executor of testatrix without notice to the legatee, legatee was entitled to the bequest on reimbursing the estate. Morath's Ex'r v. Weber's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 284, 98 S. W. 321. A condition of "reconciliation and amity" among beneficiaries imparts a mental state rather than an acute condition of association. Condition held performed. Alexander v. Page, 30 Ky. L. R. 1362, 101 S. W. 346. Devise on condition that devisee support testator's widow during her life becomes absolute on the death of the devisee before the widow. Wood v. Ogden [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 610. A testator gave $100 to a cemetery association, the income thereof to be expended, if needed, in caring for his burial lot. It was held that the legacy was absolute and it was the duty of the executors to pay it, although in their opinion the income would not be sufficient to take care of the lot. Harris v. Ingalls [N. H.] 64 A. 727. Violation of condition against remarriage held to throw devised lands into intestacy. Weyler v. Weyler, 30 Ky. L. R. 465, 99 S. W. 222.

90. Power of life tenant to dispose of remainder by will held not conditioned on his having issue. Preston v. Willett [Md.] 66 A. 257. That legatee should be in testator's employ at his death held not a condition. Lowe v. Whitridge [Md.] 65 A. 926. Gift of property to a church to be used as a parsonage and for nothing else held not condition is waived if it is inadvertently broken during the life of testator who, with knowledge of the breach, makes no change in the will.[91]

Intent to require election[92] may be found from gifts in the alternative,[93] or where property is so disposed of that statutory[94] or contract rights are necessarily cut off by taking under the will,[95] or where testator disposes of property not his own and also confers benefits on the owner thereof.[96]

Charges, exonerations, and funds for payment.[97]—Legacies are not a charge on the realty[98] unless an intent that they shall be is expressed or distinctly implied.[99] on condition. Adams v. First Baptist Church [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 111, 111 N. W. 757.

91. Donaldson v. Pettit, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 567.

92. See 6 C. L. 1956.

93. Where one of two bequests to the same person was conditional, the doctrine of equitable election was held not to apply. In re Appleby's Estate [Minn.] 111 N. W. 805. Provision that legacies to certain persons, who were also residuary legatees under will of testator's wife, should be in payment of distributive share to which such persons might be entitled in residue of life estate given testator by his wife's will, held to refer only to accumulation of testator's interest in such life estate, and not to require legatees to elect whether they would take under his will or that of his wife. In re Pearce's Estate, 104 N. Y. S. 469.

94. A testamentary allowance does not put the widow to an election between it and a statutory allowance of $500 unless the will expressly states that the allowance is in lieu of that given by statute. Bowman v. Olrick, 165 Ind. 478, 75 N. E. 820. Specific devise of certain realty and residue to wife held not to put wife to election but to entitle her to dower in the lands specifically devised. Casey v. McGowan, 50 Misc. 426, 100 N. Y. S. 538. Where there is no statement that a devise is in lieu of dower, the widow not put to an election. Devise of life estate in all property for life held not to put widow to election. Warner v. Hamill [Iowa] 111 N. W. 939. A widow is entitled to her statutory right to all exempt property without being put to an election against the will. Rowlett v. Rowlett [Tenn.] 95 S. W. 821. Acceptance of the statutory allowance of household goods to the amount of $400 does not preclude taking a bequest stated to be in lieu of dower. Ellis v. Ellis, 119 Mo. App. 63, 96 S. W. 260.

95. Devise held in lieu of rights under a contract whereby a policy held by testator on the life of devisee should be payable to his estate if he survived testator. Morath's Ex'r v. Weber's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 284, 98 S. W. 321.

96. Where the will attempts to dispose of property belonging to the devisees, they are put to an election. Will held to dispose of homestead which belonged to testator's children. Bonnie's Guardian v. Haldeman [Ky.] 102 S. W. 308.

97. See 6 C. L. 1957.

98. An annuity does not become a charge on lands merely because the personalty is insufficient to pay it. Robinson v. Kelso, 103 N. Y. S. 1098. When during life a beneficiary was entitled to the income from a portion of an ancestor's estate, but had no interest in the corpus thereof, her debts and funeral expenses cannot be charged against such corpus. Brown v. Castle, 118 Ill. App. 346. Real estate which passes under the residuary clause of a will is subject to payment of pecuniary legacies in case the personal estate is not sufficient. Reynolds v. Reynolds, 27 R. I. 520, 63 A. 804. Provision for deduction from share of one held to apply to specific legacy, and not to his share in residue. In re Shepard, 113 App. Div. 785, 99 N. Y. S. 377.

99. Condition as to payment of taxes attached to right to occupy certain premises held to apply to him to whom the right was primarily given, as well as those entitled on his election not to occupy. In re Sower's Estate [Pa.] 66 A. 318.

Held to charge realty: Annuity held charge on land though appropriation from personalty was also directed. Irwin v. Teller, 101 N. Y. S. 853. Devise "on condition" that devisee pay a certain legacy. In re Korn's Will, 128 Wis. 428, 107 N. W. 659. A devise "on condition" that certain debts be paid, without limitation over on failure, merely creates a charge on the land and is not a condition. Ditchey v. Lee [Ind.] 78 N. E. 972. Where the payment of annuities is charged on land sufficient thereto, and distribution of personalty is provided for, the personalty is exonerated from payment of the annuities. In re Boury's Estate, 49 Misc. 389, 99 N. Y. S. 511. All realty owned at testator's death is charged with legacies which are a lien on land. Irwin v. Teller, 188 N. Y. 25, 80 N. E. 376. Residuary devise of realty and personalty held to make an annuity a charge on the realty, notwithstanding a provision for the appropriation of a part of the personalty thereto by the legatee. Id. Where a residuary legatee of personalty charged with debts refuses to accept it so charged, the debts exceeding its value, the remainder of the debts after application of the personalty should be charged pro rata against all devises and bequest, not solely against a devise to the residuary legatee. Frost v. Wingate, 73 N. H. 535, 64 A. 19. A devise charged with a certain payment which should become part of the residuary estate makes such payment part of the residuum only for distribution, and not for the payment of debt. Monjo v. Woodhouse, 185 N. Y. 295, 78 N. E. 71. Sum which will provided should be paid to plaintiff monthly for life held charge on entire estate, so that, personalty and other realty having been exhausted, it was charge on lot in possession of stranger tracing title through remainderman and with constructive notice of will. Dixon v. Roessler [S. C.] 57 S. E. 203. Annuity held charge on entire estate, except that loaned by testator to his wife, to exclusion of all other objects of his bounty. Willcox v. Willcox [Va.] 56 S. E.

A blending of real and personal property in a general gift charges both with the specific legacies.[1] Where there is a general direction to pay debts, a devise of land without mention of a mortgage thereon is construed as free thereof.[2] Charges on devised land for the benefit of other heirs may be proportionately reduced where the widow elected to take against the will and the devise was thereby reduced.[3]

Trust estates and interests.[4]—The kind of a trust created,[5] its terms,[6] its duration,[7] the powers and duties of its trustees,[8] and the distribution to be made on termination,[9] are all questions of intention.

588. A legacy "reserved out of" a devise of both realty and personalty is a charge on the realty if the personalty is insufficient. Kettell v. Baxter, 50 Misc. 428, 100 N. Y. S. 529. A devise "provided" the devisee pay a certain sum makes the payment a charge on the devised land. Warner v. Bullen, 123 Ill. App. 138, collating many cases as to language making payment a charge. Certain money legacies held to be generally chargeable on whole estate and not alone on personalty. In re Ratto's Estate [Cal.] 86 P. 1107. "After payment of legacies" held to refer to both realty devised and personalty bequeathed. Id. Following devise of her half of the community realty to the wife, a devise of the "remaining half" and of all the residue of personalty after paying legacies was held general and not specific. Id. If legacies are made a personal charge on a devisee, an acceptance of the devise imposes a personal liability on him to pay them. Where will directed devisees to pay annuity to certain person for life, and devisees went into possession, held that annuitant could maintain bill in equity to compel payment, though will further provided that annuity should not be a charge on testator's realty or personalty. Spearman v. Foote, 126 Ill. App. 370. Where will gave son entire fee title to land in remainder subject to charge to pay daughter half appraised value thereof, held that latter, having no title or right to possession, was not entitled to an accounting for rents, but, son having gone into possession immediately on death of life tenant, and land being agricultural land, legatee was entitled to interest on legacy from first of year after son took possession, though there had not yet been an appraisement. Bowen v. True, 74 S. C. 486, 54 S. E. 1018.

Held not to charge realty: Realty specifically devised is never charged with the payment of legacies unless such an intention is expressly declared or is to be necessarily implied from the context of the will or from the facts and circumstances of the case. Morisey v. Brown [N. C.] 56 S. E. 704. Direction to legatee to pay debts held precatory and not to work a charge on his share. In re King's Estate [Pa.] 65 A. 942.

1. Where real and personal property are blended in a residuary clause, both are charged with the payment of a specific bequest. Lacey v. Collins [Iowa] 112 N. W. 101. Where realty and personalty are blended in a residuary clause, the whole is charged with debts and legacies. Todd's Estate, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 187.

2. Jacobs v. Button [Conn.] 65 A. 150.

3. McGuire v. Luckey, 129 Iowa, 559, 105 N. W. 1004.

4. See 6 C. L. 1958.

5. See ante, this section. Quality of estate, etc., as to whether trust is created.

6. Spendthrift trust held not restricted by its terms to "debts and liabilities," but to avoid an assignment in anticipation by the devisee. Hartman's Estate, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 152. Where a testator bequeathed his property to his wife in trust for her own use for life, with power "to use and to expend from time to time not merely the income, but any part of the principal, should she deem it for the best interest of herself and our children to do so," and after her death bequeathed the remainder to a trustee for the benefit of the children, it was held that the power given the widow did not authorize her to make absolute conveyances of substantial parts of the corpus of the estate to the children. Davison v. Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 103 Md. 479, 63 A. 1044.

7. A trust for one's life and then to be distributed according to the residuary clause is to be distributed at the beneficiary's death, though the residuary clause creates a trust for two lives in the property thereby disposed of. In re Title Guarantee & Trust Co., 46 Misc. 544, 95 N. Y. S. 59. Where all the purposes of a trust in personalty have ceased or are at an end, absolute estate is in person entitled to last use unless there is apparent intention to contrary. Vogt v. Vogt, 26 App. D. C. 46. Trust to pay income to certain person, principal to be paid to his heirs after his death, held to terminate at death of life beneficiary. Id. Direction to trustee to convey after termination of trust does not continue legal estate in them, or make them trustees of persons to whom they are directed to convey. Id.

8. Devise in trust for support of beneficiary from the income held to authorize trustee to mortgage part of land in order to make improvements which would increase income. In re Lueft [Wis.] 109 N. W. 652. A testator left property in trust during the lives of his two sons, and provided that if either of them died before the expiration of the trust leaving lawful issue the trustee should "in his discretion pay over to such issue, or any of them, or expend or appropriate for his or her use and benefit such sum or sums at such times and in such manner as he shall consider expedient and necessary for his or her support and maintenance during the remainder of the term of said trust. It was held that upon the death of one of the sons leaving an adopted daughter it was the duty of the trustee to provide reasonably for the support and maintenance of such child, with due regard both to the needs of the child and the condition of the estate. In re Olney, 27 R. I. 495, 63 A. 956.

9. Undisposed of income of property held in trust for life goes to the person presumptively entitled to the next eventual es-

Powers of appointment and beneficial powers of sale.[10]—Whether a life tenant has a power of sale,[11] and the extent thereof,[12] are questions of intention. Whether such a power is repugnant to a remainder over is elsewhere treated.[13] Bequest of the proceeds of the sale of testator's real and personal property does not authorize sale of land not disposed of by the will.[14]

Lapse, failure, and forfeiture.[15]—A gift may fail because of failure of the conditions on which it is predicated.[16] Ordinarily a legacy or devise will lapse by the death of the legatee or devisee during testator's life.[17] For the purpose of preventing such lapses, the statutes in many states give the share of one so dying to his heirs or issue,[18] and if the devise be to two as tenants in common, the heir substituted as devisee for one takes as a tenant in common with the other;[19] if he die without heirs within the statute, the devise lapses.[20] Unless so provided by the will a legacy does not lapse by death of the legatee after testator's death but before probate.[21] If the widow renounce the will, gifts to her lapse into intestacy.[22] A gift over in the event of the death of testator and the first taker "at the same time" contemplates only their mutual decease.[23] Where a testatrix adopts the course tate. St. John v. Andrews Inst., 102 N. Y. S. 808.

10. See 6 C. L. 1960.

11. Bequest to wife for life with gift over of what might remain held to give her power of disposition. McCann v. McCann's Ex'x, 29 Ky. L. R. 537, 93 S. W. 1045. Bequest for life with limitation over of "whatever remains" held to give no power to dispose of the corpus. Vanatta v. Carr, 223 Ill. 160, 79 N. E. 86.

12. Gift with full power of disposal and remainder over of residue gives power to dispose by will. Hayes v. Gunning, 101 N. Y. S. 875. Devise held to give life estate with power of disposition only in case of necessity for support. Offutt v. Beall, 30 Ky. L. R. 247, 97 S. W. 1113. Power of disposition for support with remainder over of all that might remain held not to give a power of disposition at will, irrespective of necessity. Embry's Ex'x v. Embry's Devisees [Ky.] 102 S. W. 239.

13. See ante, this section. Estates and interests created.

14. Andrews v. Applegate, 223 Ill. 535, 79 N. E. 176.

15. See 6 C. L. 1961.

16. A provision for distribution on the termination of a trust for the minority of the beneficiary does not fail because the beneficiary comes of age during testator's life. In re Arenberg's Will, 102 N. Y. S. 971. Bequest of annual sum to maintain a devised residence terminates on the abandonment of the residence. Clark v. Goodridge, 51 Misc. 140, 100 N. Y. S. 824. Failure of trust held to pass life estate and remainder freed from conditions. McClellan v. Weaver [Cal. App.] 88 P. 646. A bequest for the maintenance of a homestead conditionally devised lapses if the devise fails. In re Appleby's Estate [Minn.] 111 N. W. 305. The coming of age of sons held to abrogate a direction that testator's brother and sister should receive the income till sons were of age. In re Painter's Estate [Cal.] 89 P. 98.

17. Share of one of several residuary legatees without issue. Kent v. Kent [Va.] 55 S. E. 564. Legacy to sister who died before testator. Watkins v. Blount [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 336, 94 S. W. 1116. Bequest to one with limitation over on death without issue surviving does not lapse on death of first taker before testator leaving issue, but there is an implied bequest to the issue. In re Disney's Will, 103 N. Y. S. 391. Where the life tenant predeceases the testator, the remainder held to accelerate so that the remainderman took in fee. Farnsworth v. Whiting [Me.] 66 A. 831.

18. "Brother" in a statute providing against lapse of legacies to certain relatives includes a half brother. Gen. St. 1902, § 296. Seery v. Fitzpatrick [Conn.] 65 A. 964. A wife is not a "relative" within a statute preventing lapse of bequests to relatives who leave lineal descendants. Farnsworth v. Whiting [Me.] 66 A. 831. Rev. St. 1895; art. 5347, applies only to lineal descendants of testator, and does not prevent lapse of legacy to sister who dies before testator. Watkins v. Blount [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 336, 94 S. W. 1116. A statute of substitution in case of legatees dying before the testator applies to a legatee who died before the will was executed. Lewis v. Corbin [Mass.] 81 N. E. 248.

19. Schneider v. Heilbron, 101 N. Y. S. 152.

20. A devise to one who dies without issue before testator lapses. Howard v. Harrington, 27 R. I. 586, 65 A. 282. Where a trust fund is limited to the heirs of the beneficiary on his death without issue, it falls into intestacy. Grinnell v. Howland, 51 Misc. 132, 100 N. Y. S. 765.

21. Jersey v. Jersey [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 906, 110 N. W. 54.

22. Where a will containing a bequest in lieu of dower has a residuary clause and the widow renounces, only the interest assigned her under the will passes as in intestacy. Lewis v. Sedgwick, 223 Ill. 213, 79 N. E. 14. A sum devised in trust to pay income to testator's wife and at her death to be divided among children goes to the children direct on her renunciation of the will. Callicott v. Callicott [Miss.] 43 So. 616.

23. Gift is operative if first taker having survived testator thereafter dies. Sanger v. Butler [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 459.

of descent provided by the statute in so far as it coincides with her wishes, and then adds certain modifications for the purpose of carrying out her wishes, a testamentary disposition is made of her property and her heirs take nothing by descent.[24]

Partial invalidity.[25]—Valid gifts will if possible be preserved,[26] but where the provisions are so interdependent as to constitute one scheme of disposition, all must fall on the invalidity of an integral part.[27] Where the contingency specified in an invalid provision never becomes effective, the alternative provision is not affected.[28]

Residuary clauses.[29]—All property not otherwise given,[30] or as to which an invalid gift has been attempted,[31] passes by the residuary clause, but the presumption is toward a specific rather than a residuary gift.[32] Where a will contains two residuary clauses, one providing in detail for the disposition of the property except in certain remote contingencies and the other general, the latter will be deemed to apply only on a contingency unprovided for in the former.[33]

Property not effectually disposed of[34] passes as upon intestacy,[35] in the ab-

24. Huber v. Carew, 7 Ohio C. C. (N. S.) 609.

25. See 6 C. L. 1962.

26. Invalidity of a provision for accumulation of surplus income of a trust fund does not affect either the trust or the direction for distribution on its termination. Endress v. Willey, 102 N. Y. S. 71. A provision for accumulation of income to a trust fund being invalid, the income goes as it accrues to the persons appointed to receive the corpus. Id. Devise of fee held independent of attempted trust so as not to fall by reason of its invalidity. Johnson v. Preston, 226 Ill. 447, 80 N. E. 1001. Devise coupled with invalid prohibition against alienation held to give a life estate to the devisee with remainder in fee to his issue. Robsion v. Gray, 29 Ky. L. R. 1296, 97 S. W. 347. Bequest given effect according to intent, though invalid as made because providing for accumulation of income. Fischer v. Langlotz, 100 N. Y. S. 678. A testamentary appointment of a guardian for minor children with directions as to the custody and use of their shares is valid as a power in trust, though invalid as an appointment of a guardian because testator's wife survives him. Kellogg v. Burdick, 187 N. Y. 355, 80 N. E. 207. Direction to accumulate till youngest child was 20 years old, though invalid as to period when the others should have reached majority, was valid as to all till they came of age. In re Haines' Estate [Cal.] 89 P. 606. The invalidity of remainder over in default of issue does not affect the gift to such issue. Denison v. Denison, 185 N. Y. 438, 78 N. E. 162. Invalidity of trust for benefit of grandchildren held not to affect trust to pay niece income from specified piece of property excepted from general scheme, though trustees were directed to keep amount thereof up to certain sum from other property in their hands. Landram v. Jordan, 203 U. S. 56, 51 Law. Ed. 88.

27. Provisions for purchase of cemetery lot and the removal of testator's family dead thereto held to fail by invalidity of provision of care and maintenance of the lot. In re De Witt's Will, 113 App. Div. 790, 99 N. Y. S. 415. Where invalidity of certain provisions destroys testator's apparent plan of equality, the whole property involved falls into intestacy. Lepard v. Clapp [Conn.] 66 A. 780.

28. In re McCoy's Estate, 101 N. Y. S. 539.

29. See 6 C. L. 1962.

30. Plaintiff's legacy held contingent on there being any balance after payment of certain other legacies, and its right was that of a residuary legatee. Stakely v. Executive Committee [Ala.] 39 So. 653. Property devised for life without remainder over held to pass by the residuary clause subject to the life estate. Hinzie v. Hinzie [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 803. Charitable institution held residuary legatee. Jordan's Adm'x v. Richmond Home for Ladies [Va.] 56 S. E. 730.

31. In California by statute a void devise passes under the residuary clause. It is not limited as at common law to personalty. In re Russell's Estate [Cal.] 89 P. 345. Held to cover land attempted to be but not effectually conveyed to residuary devise and not mentioned in will. Ostrom v. De Yoe [Cal. App.] 87 P. 811. Code 1887, § 2524, providing that realty comprised in "any devise" which shall fail, etc., shall be included in residuary devise, held to refer to devises other than those contained in residuary devise itself, and not to change rule that subject of lapsed residuary devise passes as intestate property, particularly in view of § 2521 making wills of realty, as well as personalty, speak from testator's death. Kent v. Kent [Va.] 65 S. E. 564. Bequest of certain sum annually in perpetuity to care for cemetery lot. Jordan's Adm'x v. Richmond Home for Ladies [Va.] 56 S. E. 730.

32. Additional bequest "for life" in codicil without remainder over held to pass on beneficiary's death to her issue according to limitation of a bequest in the original will and not to pass by the residuary clause. In re Edie, 102 N. Y. S. 424. "Residuary" held not to mean the entire residue but only certain accretions thereto. In re Riley [N. Y.] 80 N. E. 944. Devise of "all the residue of my lands in S. county" held not a residuary devise but a specific one. Morisey v. Brown [N. C.] 56 S. E. 704.

33. In re Faile, 51 Misc. 166, 100 N. Y. S. 856.

34. See 6 C. L. 1964.

35. Void remainders fall into intestacy and vest under the statute at testator's death. Grant v. Stimpson [Conn.] 66 A. 166. Void remainder falls into intestacy and vests sence of a residuary clause, but if possible a construction will be adopted which will avoid partial intestacy.[36]

(§ 5) E. Of terms respecting administration, management, control, and disposal.[37]—Precatory words[38] and powers of administration[39] will be liberally construed to admit of the most advantageous administration. Where the method of partition provided by the will has become unjust or impracticable, the court will substitute the statutory method[40] and may appoint new trustees,[41] but the fact that at once in heirs. Harmon v. Harmon [Conn.] 66 A. 771. Where the will disposes of a portion only of a fund on the termination of a trust, the remainder falls into intestacy. In re Blake's Estate, 50 Misc. 672, 100 N. Y. S. 627. Realty not mentioned in will held to descend to heirs under intestate laws and to be subject to partition between them. Coberly v. Earle [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 336. Share of residuary devisee who died before testator. Kent v. Kent [Va.] 55 S. E. 564. Testatrix after bequeathing certain legacies gave the residue of her property to her executor in trust for the execution of her will with power to sell and dispose of the same. It was held that as to all her estate except the legacies the testatrix died intestate. White v. Crossman [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 168. In such case if the testatrix has sufficient personal property to pay debts and legacies and also real property, the fact that the executor sold part of the latter did not convert it into personal property or give the husband of testatrix any right thereto. Id.

36. Presumption against intestacy. Steadman v. Steadman [N. C.] 55 S. E. 784. That a bequest is stated to be the legatee's fair share does not show an intention not to die intestate as to any property so as to require a forced construction of another bequest to prevent it. Schell v. Schuler [Mass.] 80 N. E. 523. Where will disposes of all testator's personalty and specifically devises a single parcel of realty to one of his heirs, and makes no mention of several other tracts owned by him, is strong presumption that he intended latter to descend under statute. Coberly v. Earle [W. Va.] 54 S. E. 336. Bequests held not conditioned on remarriage of wife only, but on remarriage or death, so that there was no intestacy on her death without remarriage. Joyce v. Bode, 74 S. C. 164, 54 S. E. 239. Construction favors testacy. McClellan v. Weaver [Cal. App.] 88 P. 646. Where testator gave income from certain bonds to two legatees so long as they remained unmarried, and income of balance of property to third person for life, and provided that, on death of the three, income should be paid to charitable institution held that death of third person did not result in partial intestacy as to his share, but it passed immediately to charitable institution. Jordan's Adm'x v. Richmond Home for Ladies [Va.] 56 S. E. 730. Residuary clauses will be so construed as to prevent partial intestacy unless there is an apparent intention to the contrary. Young v. Norris Peters Co., 27 App. D. C. 140.

37. See 6 C. L. 1965.

38. Precatory words will not be given binding effect unless such an intent is apparent. In re Thistlewaite, 104 N. Y. S. 264. Precatory words as to the attorney who should be consulted by the executors held not to bind them. Id. A will gave all testator's estate to his wife absolutely, coupled, however, with precatory words, but coupled also with an express declaration that she was not to be fettered in her disposition of the estate given. A subsequent codicil provided that if she should die before making a will different from any already made, "then and in such case" certain additional legacies and bequests should be given. It was held that the widow could not be required to enter security for the protection of such rights, if any, as might be conferred by the codicil. In re Teller's Estate [Pa.] 64 A. 525.

39. Where will gave certain sum to testator's executor to be given to another when executor thought best, held that interest did not begin to run until date of demand upon him for payment of same. Harrison v. Watkins [Ga.] 56 S. E. 437. Trustee of farm property to support children from rents and profits held empowered to make necessary repairs from such profits. Berry v. Stigall [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 585.

Powers of sale and directions to convert: Will held to confer power of sale on executors. Trogden v. Williams [N. C.] 56 S. E. 865. Power of sale granted executors held not to give them power to execute contract giving one 90 day option on land. Id. Will held to give executor absolute power to sell or otherwise dispose of realty, and to invest or dispose of proceeds as to him seemed best for interest of devisees, so that his sale thereof by proper deed passed to vendee entire interest of devisees. Hagan v. Holderby [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 289. Discretion of executors as to advisability of sale cannot be collaterally questioned. Purchaser need not show that it was well exercised to recover possession from one entitled under the will to occupy until sale. Eisenbrown v. Burns, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 46. Power to executors to sell lands "as they shall deem best" gives them full discretion as to advisability of selling. Id. Where the purposes of the will can only be carried out by the exercise of a power of sale, an equitable conversion results. Keyser v. Mead, 103 N. Y. S. 1091; In re Tasker's Estate [Pa.] 64 A. 527. A legacy of a specified sum "when the property is disposed of" is payable when sufficient property has been disposed of to pay the debts and bequests. White v. Crossman [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 168. Use of terms "funds," "pay over," etc., in reference to distribution of devise in trust, held to imply a direction to convert. Burnham v. White, 102 N. Y. S. 717. Express power of sale and pecuniary legacies to which the personalty was inadequate held to work an equitable conversion. Boehmcke v. McKeon, 103 N. Y. S. 930. A direction in a will to sell real estate situated in another state works an immediate conversion of it into personalty. In re Dalrymple's Estate [Pa.] 64 A. 554.

40. In re King's Estate [Pa.] 65 A. 942.

41. Where will provided that if trustee named therein should die trustee should be the trustees named in a trust to invest for support do not qualify does not justify the court in nullifying the provisions for investment by a decree that the executor hold the fund and pay it over as the court may direct,[42] nor is such an order warranted because the purpose of support could thereby be better carried out.[43] The will may make a distribution of sole powers among several,[44] but a power conferred on several must be exercised by them jointly.[45] A provision for substitution of trustees does not apply to acts of administration preliminary to the trust.[46]

(§ 5) F. Abatement, ademption and satisfaction. Abatement.[47]—As a general rule, where the payment of debts is charged on the personalty either by the will or by operation of law, personal property at large must first be taken, then the residuary legacy, then general pecuniary legacies, then specific legacies, and lastly realty devised by the will.[48] Legacies in payment are generally exempt from proportional abatement.[49] Where several legacies are given from the same fund, no preference is presumptively intended in case of shortage thereof.[50]

Ademption.[51]—A legacy is adeemed if the testator during his life pays the full value of it,[52] or what is accepted as such,[53] to the legatee. Where mortgaged land is devised without mention of the mortgage, a conveyance of the land to the devisee does not adeem the implied bequest of a sum sufficient to satisfy the mortgage.[54]

Satisfaction of debts by legacies.[55]—Where a legacy was given to one who had rendered services to testator and for which he had promised compensation in his will, the will providing that it should be in full payment and discharge of claims appointed by court, so that trusts created should be at all times preserved and carried into effect, held that trust survived death of named trustee. Cruit v. Owen, 203 U. S. 368, 51 Law. Ed. 227.

42, 43. West v. Bailey, 196 Mo. 517, 94 S. W. 273.

44. Will held to show that defendant was to be executor alone and that he was to be trustee of portion of estate devised to himself and his wife, while plaintiff was to be trustee of portion devised to certain minors. Crawford v. Hord [Tex. Civ. App.] 14 Tex. Ct. Rep. 71, 89 S. W. 1097.

45. Power of sale conferred on two executors must be executed by them jointly. Trogden v. Williams [N. C.] 56 S. E. 865.

46. Trustee of fund not appointed to complete sale by executor. In re Walker [Cal.] 85 P. 310.

47. See 6 C. L. 1969.

48. Where realty has been specifically devised and personalty specifically bequeathed, both must contribute ratably to the payment of debts. Bashaw v. Temple, 115 Tenn. 596, 91 S. W. 202. Where all the realty is specifically devised and is not charged with payment of pecuniary legacies, latter abate ratably in case there is insufficient personalty to pay them in full. Morisey v. Brown [N. C.] 56 S. E. 704. Residuary legacy general. Lewis v. Sedgwick, 223 Ill. 213, 79 N. E. 14. Pecuniary legacies not made a charge on realty abate if the personal estate is insufficient for their payment. Shuld v. Wilson, 225 Ill. 336, 80 N. E. 259. Liability of a partner to contribution on account of a payment of firm indebtedness by his copartner is a "debt" within a clause making a charge for payment of debts. Schnell v. Schnell [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 432. Gift of described real estate held specific though coupled with gift of all other real estate and money at interest where personalty would pay all debts and legacies. In re Painter's Estate [Cal.] 89 P. 98. Unless a contrary intent is expressed, only the personalty can be resorted to for payment of legacies though it is inadequate thereto. Moerlein v. Heyer [Tex.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 164, 97 S. W. 1040.

49. To be entitled to immunity from a proportional abatement, legacies must be in payment of a legal and not merely a moral obligation of testator. Matthews v. Targarona [Md.] 65 A. 60. Evidence held insufficient to show that legacy stated to be in payment was such in fact. Id.

50. Matthews v. Targarona [Md.] 65 A. 60.

51. See 6 C. L. 1970.

52. Payment to legatee of amount of legacy, a receipt being taken by testator as in full of her share of the estate, held to adeem the legacy. Callicott v. Callicott [Miss.] 43 So. 616. A devise is not satisfied by conveyance of the devised property to devisee's wife. In re Hall's Estate [Iowa] 110 N. W. 148. Advancement of money to son by testatrix before her death held ademption of his legacy, whether Code, § 1630, was applicable or not, where she took no security or evidence of indebtedness from him, and stated to various persons at the time that money given him would be deducted from his share of her estate at her death. Miller v. Payne, 28 App. D. C. 396. Receiving an insurance benefit and commingling it with other moneys held an ademption of a specific legacy of such fund. Nusly v. Curtiss [Colo.] 85 P. 846. Provision creating a trust fund is not satisfied by deposit of bonds whose par value equals the stated fund but whose market value does not. In re Sandrock's Estate, 49 Misc. 371, 99 N. Y. S. 497.

53. Gift of $600 to purchase a piano held satisfied by purchase of piano for less which was accepted by legatee. Clift v. Newell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 832.

54. Jacobs v. Button [Conn.] 65 A. 150.

55. See 6 C. L. 1971.

of every kind the legatee might have against the estate, such legatee was held entitled to be paid in full as against ordinary general legatees.[56]

(§ 5) G. Proceedings to construe wills.[57]—Courts of equity may at the instance of a person interested,[58] and where there is no adequate remedy at law or in probate,[59] entertain a suit to construe a will so far as may be necessary to the interests of the parties.[60] A foreign ancillary decree of distribution is not controlling.[61] Delay does not bar a suit by an heir to determine the validity of a legacy if such legacy has, under the terms of the will, remained in the hands of a trustee.[62] Where a testamentary trust has been fully executed, the trustee is not a necessary party to a suit to determine its validity.[63] Action by remainderman against life tenant to enjoin waste is not one to construe a will so that a copy of the will must be attached to the complaint.[64] An appeal is permitted in Montana as to part of an order determining "the persons entitled to share" in the estate.[65] Costs rest in discretion[66] but should ordinarily be allowed against the unsuccessful party.[67] Where four persons whose interests are identical appear by separate attorneys, but one bill of costs will be allowed.[68]

§ 6. Validity, operation, and effect in general.[69]—As title is ordinarily held to pass by the will and not by any decree thereunder, it passes by an unprobated will,[70] but lack of genuineness or of testamentary capacity may be asserted against it.[71] Conditions in restraint of marriage are void.[72] An extravagant sum may be bequeathed for a monument to a third person.[73] Provisions designed to prevent a legacy from becoming available to the legatee's creditors are valid.[74]

56. Reynolds v. Reynolds, 27 R. I. 520, 63 A. 804.

57. See 6 C. L. 1971.

58. One who has purchased land from the executor and paid for it cannot sue to construe the will as to the power of the executor to sell. Clark v. Carter, 200 Mo. 515, 98 S. W. 594. A surviving spouse who has elected not to take under the will has not sufficient interest to sue for its construction. Clark v. Peck [Vt.] 65 A. 14.

59. On petition for probate of will, courts of probate have no other jurisdiction than to inquire into its execution, and cannot construe it, or determine validity of particular bequests. In re Murray's Will, 141 N. C. 588, 54 S. E. 435. Where the question may be determined in a suit by the executor against one devisee, a bill for interpretation should not be brought. Jacobs v. Button [Conn.] 65 A. 150.

60. Where devisees were living, and their estate for life at least was conceded, held that court would not decide whether they had life estate or fee. McGowan v. Elroy, 28 App. D. C. 188.

61. In re Campbell's Estate [Cal.] 87 P. 573.

62. Tincher v. Arnold [C. C. A.] 147 F. 665.

63. Miller v. Ahrens, 150 F. 644.

64. Cross v. Hendry [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 531.

65. Code Civ. Proc. § 2841. In re Klein's Estate [Mont.] 88 P. 798.

66. Suit for the interpretation of a will is an equitable proceeding, within a statute giving discretion in allowance of costs. St. 1898, § 2918. In re Davis' Will [Wis.] 111 N. W. 503.

67. Costs on appeal in suit to construe will taxed against unsuccessful appellants, where executor did not appeal. Iglehart v. Iglehart, 204 U. S. 478, 51 Law. Ed. 575. An heir who unsuccessfully sues wholly for his own interest, to have a charitable bequest in trust declared void, is not entitled to have costs allowed from the trust fund. Tincher v. Arnold [C. C. A.] 147 F. 665.

68. Brown v. Wright [Mass.] 80 N. E. 612.

69. See 6 C. L. 1974.

70. Smith v. Ryan, 101 N. Y. S. 1011. A devise of land under a will duly recorded may give color of title. Harriss v. Howard, 126 Ga. 325, 55 S. E. 59. Judgment on appeal held to so vacate probate that title to land cannot be claimed under the will. Overton v. Overton, 29 Ky. L. R. 736, 96 S. W. 469. But see as to an Indian will. Peters v. Tallchief, 102 N. Y. S. 972.

71. Where title is asserted in a real action under an unprobated will, lack of testamentary capacity may be shown. Smith v. Ryan, 101 N. Y. S. 1011. Code 1895, § 3628, providing that party against whom registered deed is offered in evidence may file affidavit that it is forgery, and that issue as to genuineness shall then be made up and tried, held not applicable to certified copy of a will, duly probated and admitted to record in court of ordinary. Smith v. Stone [Ga.] 56 S. E. 640.

72. Conditions in restraint of marriage are void, by statute in Massachusetts, whether realty or personalty be involved. In re Alexander's Estate [Cal.] 85 P. 308.

73. Direction to expend certain sum in erecting monument over grave of testatrix's husband in certain cemetery held valid, though amount was greater than ordinarily expended for such a purpose by those in same condition of life as decedent. Iglehart v. Iglehart, 26 App. D. C. 209.

74. A bequest of income for life with a provision that it should not be subject to the debts of the legatee, and that if any

What law governs.[75]—Statute in force at time of testator's death governs as to rights of pretermitted child.[76] As a general rule the law of testator's domicile governs as to gifts of personalty,[77] and the lex rei sitae as to devise.

WINDING UP PROCEEDINGS; WITHDRAWING EVIDENCE; WITHDRAWING PLEADINGS OR FILES, see latest topical index.

WITNESSES.

§ 1. Capacity and Competency of Witnesses in General (2347). Chinamen (2349). Children (2349). Deaf and Dumb Persons (2349). Persons Convicted or Accused of Crime (2350). Persons Acting in Official Capacity at Trial (2350). Insanity (2351).
§ 2. Disqualification on Ground of Interest (2351).
§ 3. Disqualification of One Party to Transaction or Communication, on Death or Disability of the Other (2351). The Adverse Party, or Party Against Whom the Witness is Offered, Must Ordinarily Represent the Decedent, or Derive His Interest From the Decedent (2351). Persons Disqualified (2353). Transactions and Communications to Which Disqualification Extends (2356). Waiver or Removal of Disqualification (2360).
§ 4. Privileged Communications and Persons in Confidential Relations (2362).
A. Attorney and Client (2362).
B. Physician and Patient (2364).
C. Husband and Wife (2365). In Civil Cases (2365). In Criminal Prosecutions (2367).
D. Miscellaneous Relations (2368).
§ 5. Credibility, Impeachment, and Corroboration of Witnesses (2368).
A. Credibility in General (2368). Impeaching and Discrediting in General (2370). A Party Cannot Ordinarily Impeach His Own Witness (2372). A Witness Cannot Ordinarily be Contradicted or Impeached as to Collateral Matters (2374).
B. Character and Conduct of Witnesses (2375).
1. In General (2375).
2. Accusation and Conviction of Crime (2376).
C. Interest and Bias of Witnesses (2377).
D. Proof of Previous Contradictory Statements (2379).
E. Foundation for Impeaching Evidence (2381).
F. Corroboration and Sustentation of Witnesses (2382).
§ 6. Privilege of Witnesses (2385).
§ 7. Subpoenas, Attendance, and Fees (2389).

The competency, materiality, and relevancy of testimony,[1] the manner of eliciting the same from witnesses,[2] and the qualification and examination of experts,[3] are treated elsewhere.

§ 1. Capacity and competency of witnesses in general.[4]—The competency of a witness in so far as fixed by statute is ordinarily a question for the court,[5] to be determined by an examination of the witness and any other available evidence.[6] court should hold it so subject, his interest therein should cease and another have the income, is valid. Bottom v. Fultz, 30 Ky. L. R. 479, 98 S. W. 1037.

75. See 6 C. L. 1975.

76. Saving clause as to impairment of "validity" of previously executed wills does not prevent application of statute. Obecny v. Goetz, 102 N. Y. S. 232.

77. Stock in foreign corporation deemed personalty, in the absence of proof that the bulk of its property was real. Putnam v. Lincoln Deposit Co., 104 N. Y. S. 4. Validity of particular bequests depends upon law of legatee's domicile, unless expressly prohibited by law of testator's domicile. Rule against perpetuities. Iglehart v. Iglehart, 26 App. D. C. 209. Laws of state where testator died and where his will was probated, his executors qualified, and his estate was distributed, held controlling in construing will. App v. App [Va.] 55 S. E. 672. Interest on legacies is governed by law of testator's last domicile. In re Kucielski's Estate, 49 Misc. 404, 99 N. Y. S. 828. Disposition of personalty construed according to laws of testator's domicile, unless contrary intent appears. Evidence held to show intent that trust should be executed according to lex rei sitae. Lanius v. Fletcher [Tex.] 101 S. W. 1076, rvg. [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 169. The law of the testator's domicile governs the construction of a disposition of personalty wherever situated. Lanius v. Fletcher [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 169. Requisites of will of personal property are determined by law of testator's domicile at the time of his death. In re Beaumont's Estate [Pa.] 65 A. 799.

1. See Evidence, 7 C. L. 1511.

2. See Examination of Witnesses, 7 C. L. 1598.

3. See Evidence, 7 C. L. 1511.

4. See 6 C. L. 1976.

5. Is question of law to be determined by trial court. State v. Simes [Idaho] 85 P. 914. Is for court and not for jury. State v. Cremeans [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 405. Is a preliminary question for the trial judge and rests largely in his discretion. Cleveland v. Rowe, 99 Minn. 444, 109 N. W. 817. Where witnesses called to testify to market value of goods showed sufficient familiarity in general with subject of market value of such goods so as to require court to decide as to their qualification, its decision that they were qualified will not be reversed on appeal. American Foundary & Furnace Co. v. Settergren [Wis.] 110 N. W. 238.

6. Court should himself examine the wit-

The competency of witnesses in the Federal courts is to be determined by the Federal statutes on the subject.[7] Possession or lack of personal knowledge of the facts in regard to which a person is called to testify is sometimes applied as a test of his competency.[8] One cannot contradict as a witness what he has certified to in his official capacity.[9] Objections on the ground of incompetency may[10] and must be made when the witness is offered.[11] As a general rule belief in God and in divine ness and may call and examine other witnesses. State v. Simes [Idaho] 85 P. 914. Refusal of court to examine witness held harmless where evidence in record clearly showed that she was competent. Id. Where party objecting to witness offers to show that he has been confined in asylum for insane and also put in jail on charge of lunacy, and has not been discharged from his lunacy, he should not be allowed to testify until court has made careful examination as to facts and the witness' condition of mind at the time. State v. Cremeans [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 405. Is duty of trial court, where infant of tender years is offered as witness, especially in criminal case, to examine him and ascertain whether he has sufficient intelligence and understanding of nature of oath to be competent, and such investigation should be carried far enough to make competency apparent. Clinton v. State [Fla.] 43 So. 312. Where competency of witness, whose testimony as to conversation was objected to on ground that defendant understood at time that witness was his attorney, was inquired into, passed upon, and his testimony admitted, held that it was discretionary with court to thereafter allow question to be reopened, and his refusal to allow further testimony on subject was not subject to exception. State v. Louanis [Vt.] 65 A. 532.

7. Competency of parties to be determined by U. S. Rev. St. § 858, regardless of state statutes. Huntington Nat. Bank v. Huntington Distilling Co. 152 F. 240. Competency to testify as to transactions with decedent. Smith v. Au Gres Tp. [C. C. A.] 150 F. 257.

8. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1845, providing that, with certain exceptions, witness can testify only to facts which he knows of his own knowledge, held that it was error to permit mother to testify that son had no knowledge of dangers of electricity, particularly where it appeared that she had no means of knowing his knowledge other than his silence. Sneed v. Marysville Gas & Elec. Co. [Cal.] 87 P. 376. Witness cannot testify that no administration has ever been had on particular estate until it appears that he has examined record. Wilson v. Wood [Ga.] 56 S. E. 457. Partial examination held insufficient. Id. Witness may testify to part of conversation which he heard, though he did not hear all of it. State v. Freddy, 117 La. 121, 41 So. 436. Witness held competent to testify as to lumber market at certain places. Cleveland v. Rowe, 99 Minn. 444, 109 N. W. 817. Though witness was incompetent to testify as average width of cars for lack of knowledge, held that his evidence as to his measurements of cars at place where injury occurred was admissible, in absence of knowledge on part of plaintiffs as to particular car on which deceased was killed. Charlton v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 529. Question whereby coroner was asked to describe duties of certain clerk, claimed to have been wrongfully discharged, held properly excluded, it not being apparent that coroner, who took office sometime after clerk's removal, had any knowledge as to duties performed by him. People v. Cahill [N. Y.] 81 N. E. 453. Where it was not shown that witness had any knowledge whatever of chattel mortgage records, or of any records of register of deed's office, except that he had inspected them, and he was not register of deeds or deputy, held not error to refuse to allow him to testify that certain mortgage was not recorded. Buxton v. Alton-Dawson Mercantile Co. [Okl.] 90 P. 19. Held not error to permit plaintiff to testify to performance of certain work about his place by his wife, though he may have been absent at times when she was performing it. Gulf, etc. R. Co. v. Booth [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 948, 97 S. W. 128. Witness who saw cattle weighed held qualified to testify as to their weight, though he did not weigh them himself. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Dodson [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 109, 97 S. W. 523. Testimony held to show that witness was sufficiently informed to testify as to authority of agent in certain particular. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1061. Testimony of motorman as to custom for trolley cars to stop to let funeral processions pass held inadmissible where he was not employed until year after accident, which was basis of action, occurred. White v. Wilmington City R. Co. [Del.] 63 A. 931. Testimony of cab driver as to such custom held admissible only when connected with time of injury sued for. Id. Witness not shown to be familiar with custom of particular business nor of the locality held not competent to testify thereto, it not being shown that alleged custom was universal as to both locality and business. Schultz v. Ford [Iowa] 109 N. W. 614.

General reputation of a person can only be testified to by member of community in which such person lives. Tingley v. Times Mirror Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 1097. Knowledge of witness as to plaintiff's reputation for truth and veracity held not shown to have been too imperfect to preclude court from considering his testimony. Spotswood v. Spotswood [Cal. App.] 89 P. 362. Witness cannot testify to general reputation of a person until he shows that he knows reputation of such person in the given community and as to trait or qualification in question. Tingley v. Times Mirror Co. [Cal.] 89 P. 1097. Testimony as to general reputation of witness for truth and veracity held properly stricken where it appeared that it was based on witness' own transactions with such witness. Carp v. Queen Ins. Co. [Mo.] 101 S. W. 78.

9. What he has officially certified to as a member of appeal tail court. State v. Baltimore [Md.] 65 A. 369.

10. State v. Simes [Idaho] 85 P. 914.

11. See, also, §§ 3, 4, post. Otherwise punishment is no longer requisite.[12] By statute in some states the relatrix in bastardy proceedings, if of sound mind, is made a competent witness.[13]

Chinamen are competent in the absence of statutory provisions to the contrary.[14]

Children.[15]—The law fixes no precise age at which children are absolutely incompetent, intelligence rather than age being the test,[16] and the matter being one largely within the discretion of the trial court.[17] The court also has discretionary power to permit an infant who does not sufficiently understand the nature and obligations of an oath to be properly instructed in that respect before being sworn, provided he is of sufficient age and intelligence to receive instruction.[18] Children of tender years are sometimes allowed to testify without being sworn,[19] but such a course is not permissible in the absence of a statute to that effect.[20]

Deaf and dumb persons[21] are competent if otherwise possessed of sufficient intelligence.[22]

waived. State v. O'Malley [Iowa] 109 N. W. 491. Objection that codefendant was not competent to testify for government held waived, when no objection on ground of incompetency was made when he was sworn or at any time during trial. Bise v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 144 F. 374.

12. Not under Const. 1885, Declaration of Rights, § 5, and Gen. St. 1906, § 1503. Clinton v. State [Fla.] 43 So. 312.

13. Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 992. Where relatrix is a married woman, she may testify to nonaccess of her husband when conception must have taken place. Evans v. State, 165 Ind. 369, 74 N. E. 244, 75 N. E. 651.

14. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 3161, providing that all persons, except those specified in next two sections, who, having organs of sense, can perceive, and perceiving, can make known their perceptions to others, may be witnesses, Chinaman held competent though unable to "tell the nature" of the oath administered to witnesses, there being no attempt to show that he did not understand obligation of his oath or penalty for perjury. State v. Lu Sing [Mont.] 85 P. 521.

15. See 6 C. L. 1977.

16. State v. Werner [N. D.] 112 N. W. 60. Where it appears that he had sufficient intelligence to receive just impressions of facts respecting which he is to testify, and sufficient capacity to relate them correctly, and has received sufficient instruction to appreciate nature and obligations of an oath, he should be admitted to testify. Clinton v. State [Fla.] 43 So. 312. Child twelve years old held properly allowed to testify, where her other answers showed sufficient knowledge of obligations of an oath, though she did not understand question whether she "knew the nature of a judicial oath." Gordon v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 847. Youth of child and memory of facts held to go merely to her credibility. Id. Boy seven years old held competent. Birmingham R. Light & Power Co. v. Wise [Ala.] 42 So. 821. Court held not to have erred in permitting witness twelve years old to testify. Gabler v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 428, 95 S. W. 521. In order to authorize child over nine years old to testify as witness, he must manifest sufficient intelligence to convince court that nature and obligation of oath administered is understood. Moore v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 96 S. W. 327. Failure of witness nine years old, who understood nature of an oath, to answer certain questions held not to have established his inability to make such coherent detailed statement of facts as disqualified him. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Kennedy [Tex. Civ. App.] 96 S. W. 653.

17. Birmingham R., Light & Power Co. v. Wise [Ala.] 42 So. 821. Ruling will not be disturbed on appeal except in case of manifest abuse of discretion, or where witness is rejected or accepted upon erroneous view of a legal principle. Clinton v. State [Fla.] 43 So. 312. Whether child eight years old possesses sufficient knowledge to comprehend nature of oath. State v. Werner [N. D.] 112 N. W. 60.

18. Clinton v. State [Fla.] 43 So. 312.

19. Code Cr. Proc. § 392, authorizing admission in evidence in criminal case of unsworn statement of child under twelve years of age, where court is of opinion that such child does not understand nature of an oath but is possessed of sufficient intelligence to justify reception of the evidence, but providing that no person shall be convicted on such evidence unsupported by other evidence, held not unconstitutional as depriving defendant of life or liberty without due process of law. People v. Johnson, 185 N. Y. 219, 77 N. E. 1164. Statute held not in derogation of any constitutional right of a citizen. People v. Sexton, 187 N. Y. 495, 80 N. E. 396. Statute applies to grand jury as well as to courts and magistrates, and it may make examination therein provided for, so that, where jury conducted examination strictly according to statute, it was no ground for dismissing indictment that children had not been examined by presiding justice before their unsworn evidence was received. Id.

20. Held error to permit child seven years old to testify without being sworn, there being no statute authorizing it, and if incompetent under Bail. Ann. Codes & St. § 5993, providing that children under ten who appear incapable of receiving just impressions of facts respecting which they testify, or of relating them truly, shall not be competent to testify, it being error to permit her to testify at all. Hodd v. Tacoma [Wash.] 88 P. 842.

21. See 2 C. L. 2165.

22. Deaf and dumb girl possessing intelligence of child about nine or ten years old held competent. State v. Smith [Mo.] 102 S. W. 526.

Persons convicted or accused of crime.[23]—The common-law disqualification for conviction of an infamous crime has been removed by statute in many states,[24] though it may still be shown as affecting credibility.[25] In jurisdictions where the disqualification still obtains it does not attach until sentence has been pronounced.[26] In some states persons convicted of felony are incompetent until they have been pardoned or punished.[27] As a general rule conviction can only be shown by the record.[28] In the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary, an accomplice, separately indicted and separately tried, after conviction is a competent witness either on behalf of the defendant or for the prosecution.[29] The matter is regulated by statute in some states.[30]

Persons acting in official capacity at trial.[31]—Attorneys[32] and jurors in the case at bar[33] are not necessarily incompetent. One is not disqualified by having been arbitrator concerning the dispute at bar[34] and a juror in another case may testify to facts coming to his knowledge while viewing, under order of court, the

23. See 6 C. L. 1977.

24. Mere fact that witness has been indicted for crime held not of itself sufficient ground to reject his testimony. Kincaid v. Price [Ark.] 100 S. W. 76. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4680, held that an accomplice not jointly prosecuted with defendant is competent witness for state, though he has previously been convicted of same crime, where no promise of lighter sentence has been made him to induce him to testify, even though he expects such lighter sentence by reason thereof. State v. Myers, 198 Mo. 225, 94 S. W. 242. Under Pub. St. 1901, c. 224, § 26, fact that plaintiff admitted committing, or was proved to have committed, perjury at former trial held not to render her incompetent, but merely to go to her credibility. Trafton v. Osgood [N. H.] 65 A. 397.

25. See § 5 B. 2, post.

26. One convicted of felony but not sentenced held not incompetent, though three days had elapsed since judgment of conviction and no motion for new trial had been filed. Rice v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 771.

27. Person who had been sentenced to be imprisoned and pay fine, had served sentence of imprisonment, and had been held in jail for an additional period on a capias pro fine, but had not paid fine or costs, held not to have been fully punished in view of Code 1904, § 4075, providing that imprisonment on capias pro fine shall not prevent issue of writ of fieri facias after release, and hence he was incompetent under Code 1904, § 3898. Quillen v. Com., 105 Va. 874, 54 S. E. 333. Code 1904, §§ 3879, 3903, construed, and held that offense of unlawfully shooting with intent to maim, etc., denounced by Code 1887, § 3671, Code 1904, p. 1965, is felony, so that one convicted thereof, though sentenced to imprisonment in jail and to pay fine, was within § 3898. Id.

28. In absence of statute cannot be shown upon witness' examination. Bise v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 144 F. 374; Thrash v. State [Ark.] 96 S. W. 360. Cross-examination of defendant to show conviction held properly limited to purpose of impeachment on objection that it was not best evidence, sufficient foundation not having been laid for introduction of secondary evidence as to contents of record. Grabill v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 374, 97 S. W. 1046.

29. Barbe v. Ter., 16 Okl. 562, 86 P. 61.

30. Held that person charged with misdemeanor may be used by state as witness against codefendant jointly charged with same offense, though latter has previously been convicted and has not satisfied judgment, Code Cr. Proc. 1895, arts. 771, 777, relating to testimony of codefendants and accomplices, applying only to testimony on behalf of defendant. Burdett v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 988. On prosecution for kidnapping held not error for court to refuse to discharge codefendants so that they might become witnesses for defendant, matter being one, based on sufficiency of evidence, within court's discretion under B. & C. Comp. § 1397. State v. White [Or.] 87 P. 137.

31. See 6 C. L. 1977.

32. Though it is professional impropriety for one to appear as both willing witness and as attorney for prosecution in criminal case, held that fact that he did so would not alone be ground for reversal. Wilkinson v. People, 226 Ill. 135, 80 N. E. 699. Witness held not incompetent to testify as to loss of certain books by reason of fact that he was attorney in case in connection with prosecuting witness. State v. Shour, 196 Mo. 202, 95 S. W. 405.

33. Fact that witness was one of jurors summoned to try case, and did not disqualify himself as juror, and defendant was required to exhaust a peremptory challenge upon him, held not to disqualify him. Bernal v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 581, 95 S. W. 118. When it is sought to use as witness juror who has not been summoned as a witness, it should be made to clearly appear that party offering him exercised proper diligence before he was impaneled, and was not appraised of fact that he knew anything material to case. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Foster [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1017. Refusal to allow defendant to have juror sworn as witness held not an abuse of discretion, where counsel merely stated that he did not know, and had no intimation, when juror was impaneled that he knew any fact material to issues, and it did not appear that any diligence whatever was used to ascertain what he knew about matter, and there were many other persons who could have been called to prove same facts, etc. Id.

34. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 29, 94 S. W. 394.

premises involved.[35] A judge having charge of the drawing of a jury may be called as a witness when a question as to the regularity of such drawing is presented by a challenge to the panel.[36]

Insanity is not necessarily a disqualification, the test being capacity to comprehend the obligations of an oath and to give a fairly correct account of things seen or heard.[37] Incapacity to give intelligent and legal consent to the commission of an act does not necessarily imply incapacity to thereafter correctly and truthfully narrate the facts constituting its commission.[38] The examination of such a witness for the purpose of testing his competency should be made with special reference to the scope of inquiry and subject-matter about which he is to testify.[39]

§ 2. Disqualification on ground of interest.[40]—The common-law rule disqualifying persons having any pecuniary interest in the result of the suit has been generally abrogated by statute.[41] A partner is a competent witness to prove the fact of partnership.[42]

§ 3. Disqualification of one party to transaction or communication, on death or disability of the other.[43]—The disqualification of a party or other interested person to testify as to conversations or transactions with persons since deceased, or who have become insane, is regulated entirely by statute and varies in the different states.

The adverse party, or party against whom the witness is offered, must ordinarily represent the decedent, or derive his interest from the decedent.[44]—Thus, the

35. Jurors in another case against same defendant for injury to another person who examined place where accident occurred held competent to testify as to condition of timber in trestle which fell. Hull v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. [S. C.] 57 S. E. 28.

36. State v. District Ct. of Silver Bow County [Mont.] 85 P. 870.

37. Under Rev. St. 1887, § 5957, providing that "persons of unsound mind at the time of their production" cannot be witnesses, one who can apprehend obligation of an oath and is capable of giving a fairly correct account of the things he has seen or heard is competent witness though he may be afflicted with some form of insanity. State v. Simes [Idaho] 85 P. 914.

38. Fact that state accuses defendant of rape, in having intercourse with female who was of unsound mind and incapable of consenting, does not per se establish incompetency of such female to testify against accused, but her competency is to be determined by court in same manner as that of any other witness. State v. Simes [Idaho] 85 P. 914.

39. State v. Simes [Idaho] 85 P. 914.

40. See 6 C. L. 1978.

41. Code Civ. Proc. § 1879. Ripperdan v. Weldy [Cal.] 87 P. 276.

42. Franklin v. Hoadley, 101 N. Y. S. 374.

43, 44. See 6 C. L. 1978. Code Civ. Proc. § 329, does not prohibit party from testifying unless his adversary represents a deceased person in issue that is being tried. Jacob North Co. v. Angelo [Neb.] 110 N. W. 570. In action against partnership on a contract held that plaintiff was not incompetent to testify as to conversations and transactions between herself and person since deceased who was member of firm when original contract was made, case having been tried on theory that liability of reorganized partnership depended solely upon contracts made by it since such reorganization, and that in order to recover plaintiff was bound to prove that she had entered into contract with firm as reorganized by which it made itself liable for her claim. Id. In action to recover land which plaintiff claimed under conveyance from her deceased father held that it was proper to permit her to testify as to transaction with him in regard thereto, where defendant had testified that he did not claim land as heir, devisee, or assignee of said decedent, Code Civ. Proc. 1902, § 400, being inapplicable to such a case. Brucke v. Hubbard, 74 S. C. 144, 54 S. E. 249. In action by heirs of husband and wife against certain other heirs and executor of wife to recover and have partitioned among plaintiff's husband's share of community property conveyed by wife, before her death and after husband's death, to one of the defendants, only issue being right of wife to convey more than her half of such property and plaintiffs claiming nothing as her heirs, held proper to permit defendant to whom conveyance was made to testify as to delivery of deed to her, particularly where delivery was otherwise sufficiently proven. Rev St. art. 2302. Jennings v. Borton [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 53, 98 S. W. 445. Where defendants claimed that wife had, by payment of community debts out of her separate means, enlarged her interest in community estate to extent of full value of property conveyed, and grantee set up no claim except under such conveyance, and wife's executor conceded grantee's right to entire tract, held that testimony of certain of defendants, called by plaintiffs, as to agreement made by wife and heirs after husband's death whereby she was to retain possession and control of community property for life in consideration of paying debts and keeping property intact, was not inadmissible. Id.

statutes are usually applicable in proceedings by or against executors or administrators,[45] heirs, devisees, or legatees,[46] or other persons who derive their interest in

In action on benefit certificate defended on ground of false representations, held that Pierce's Code § 197, Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5991, did not prevent beneficiary from testifying to transaction with insured tending to prove truth of such representations. Erickson v. Modern Woodmen of America [Wash.] 86 P. 584.

45. Under Mills' Ann. St. § 4816, in suit to cancel note as barred by limitations and trust deed given to secure it, and to remove cloud on title to which administrator of deceased payee was party defendant, held proper to refuse to permit plaintiffs, who were makers of note, to testify. Sartor v. Wells [Colo.] 89 P. 797. In action by legatee against executor and testamentary trustee and his grantee to compel them to account for securities, etc., alleged to have been fraudulently witheld and converted, testimony by plaintiff and defendants as to declarations and statements of deceased during his lifetime held inadmissible under Acts 1902, p. 718, c. 495. Gerting v. Wells, 103 Md. 624, 64 A. 298, 433. Testimony of plaintiff as to statements by and transaction with, decedent, in suit in which decree was sought against administrator and distributees, held inadmissible under Laws 1904, p. 1168, c. 661. Smith v. Humphreys [Md.] 65 A. 57. Action against administrator to enforce a trust in mining claim, it being alleged that plaintiff and decedents were tenants in common thereof and that decedent wrongfully procured patent therefor in his own name, held one to enforce a "claim or demand" against decedent's estate within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 3162, as amended by Laws 1897, p. 245, so that plaintiff was incompetent to testify as to conversations and transactions with decedent and other matters occurring before latter's death. Delmoe v. Long [Mont.] 88 P. 778. Under Laws 1900 (P. L. 362), in suit by husband against executor and devisee of deceased wife to enforce specific performance of alleged verbal promise made by him to her that on death of either of them certain land purchased by him in her name should become property of survivor, husband held not a competent witness; executor, who was made party in representative capacity both because he had power of sale under will, and because he might need proceeds of sale of land to pay debts, being a necessary, or at least a proper, party. Lipp v. Fielder [N. J. Err. & App.] 66 A. 189. Complainant held not entitled to testify against either defendant because record showed that on defendant side there was a party sued in representative capacity, so that it was unnecessary to determine whether devisee was sued in such a capacity. Id. In proceedings to surcharge account of executrix with money claimed by her personally, held that she could not testify as to statements by, and transactions with, testator in support of her claim. Carlin v. Carlin [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1018. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 3683, providing that party is an executor, but that rule shall not apply to actions involving the validity of a deed or will, and that when case is within reason and spirit of statute, though not within strict letter, its principles shall be applied, held that one seeking to establish parol gift causa mortis as against executor of deceased donor was incompetent to testify as to transactions with latter, there being marked distinction between deeds and wills and such gifts. Hecht v. Shaffer [Wyo.] 85 P. 1056.

Statute held inapplicable: In an action against administrator and purchaser of land at administrator's sale, in which plaintiff alleged that he had purchased said land from decedent, had paid debt secured by mortgage thereon as consideration for sale, and that note and mortgage had been assigned to him, and prayed that title be quieted in him or the mortgage foreclosed, held that he could testify as to assignment, suit being against purchaser. Strayhorn v. McCall, 78 Ark. 209, 95 S. W. 455. Where, in suit to enjoin obstruction of lane across defendant's land on ground that it was public highway in which title to land was involved, defendant died, pending new trial after reversal on appeal, and his surviving wife and children were made defendants, held that testimony of wife as to conversation between plaintiff and decedent before the obstruction as to ownership of land was admissible in so far as it affected her rights, land being community property in which she therefore had absolute half interest, and she not being sued as executrix, not asserting any right as heir of her husband, and not administering property as surviving wife, though inadmissible as to children under Rev. St. 1895, art. 2302, since their claim to land was as heirs. Evans v. Scott [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 885, 97 S. W. 116. Code Civ. Proc. § 1880, providing that parties or assignors of parties to action against executor or administrator on claim or demand against estate of a decedent cannot testify as to any fact occurring before death of such decedent held to apply only to actions upon such claims or demands against decedent as might have been enforced against him in his lifetime by personal action for recovery of money and upon which money judgment might have been rendered, and not to suit against executrix to have deeds given to decedent declared mortgages and to redeem therefrom. Wadleigh v. Phelps [Cal.] 87 P. 93.

46. Plaintiff held disqualified under Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 35, § 3, in suit against heirs of deceased husband to enforce claim for money advanced to him and used in purchasing land under oral agreement to convey part to her. Cross v. Iler, 103 Md. 592, 64 A. 33. Under Rev. St. 1895, art 2302, in action by plaintiff as sole heir of her deceased mother against sole legatee, devisee, and executor of her father to charge certain land with proceeds of mother's separate estate alleged to have been expended thereon and for value of certain community property, held that defendant could not testify as to statements made by mother in regard to ownership of property in question in conversations between herself and her husband. Tison v. Gass [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 751.

Statute held inapplicable: True criterion the action from the deceased.[47] One having a claim against another and seeking to recover thereon in an action against the estate of a third person, deceased, may testify as to transactions with the original debtor showing that his claim is just.[48] In some states the statute is held to apply to actions by or against corporations.[49]

Persons disqualified as witnesses [50] by statutes of this character are parties to the action, interested therein,[51] other persons not parties interested in the event of is whether judgment or decree asked for by plaintiff seeks to charge heir at law with personal liability by reason of his being heir at law, or whether he is made party simply because he is in possession as terretenant of land claimed by plaintiff, substantially as a grantee of original owner might be in possession claiming title. Cowdrey v. Cowdrey [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 98. In action by widow to establish her equitable title to land, which she claimed by virtue of instrument signed by her deceased husband, against heirs at law in possession, held that she was competent witness as to conversations and transactions with decedent, she not seeking to charge heirs with personal liability. Id. Even if Rev. St. 1898, § 3413, were applicable to will contest between heirs and devisees, held that it would not disqualify heir from testifying as to statements made by, or transactions with, sole beneficiary under such will, since deceased, or as to matters of fact equally within her knowledge, though her sole heir was party defendant and adverse to plaintiff in the action, such heir not being guardian, assignee, or grantee of such beneficiary whose estate was not involved. In re Miller's Estate [Utah] 88 P. 338.

47. In action to recover money alleged to have been delivered by person since deceased to defendant for plaintiff, held that defendant could not testify as to transaction with decedent or donee, being an assignee within meaning of Code § 4604. McAleer v. McNamara [Iowa] 112 N. W. 85. Where both parties in ejectment claimed under common deceased grantor, held that testimony of defendant as to acts and conduct of grantor at time of measuring off defendant's land was incompetent under Miller's Comp. Laws, § 10,212. Rix v. Smith, 145 Mich. 203, 13 Det. Leg. N. 508, 108 N. W. 691. Code 1881, § 389, held not to relate to or impair contractual or vested property rights but to relate merely to remedy and to declare rule of evidence, so that Laws 1800, p. 91 (2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5991), enlarging it so as to include persons deriving right or title through a decedent, is constitutional though it clearly applies to conversation had with decedent before its adoption. Samuel & Jessie Kenney Presbyterian Home v. Kenney [Wash.] 88 P. 108. Affidavit filed in county auditor's office alleging that affiant and decedent were partners, that certain property standing in decedent's name had been purchased with partnership funds, and that affiant owned undivided half interest therein, held a self-serving declaration, and inadmissible in favor of affiant in suit to quiet title to such land brought against him by one claiming under decedent's will. Id.

48. In action by creditors of corporation against estate of deceased stockholder to subject his unpaid subscription to payment of their debts, held that such creditors could testify as to validity and correctness of their claims against corporation. Williams v. Chamberlain, 29 Ky. L. R. 606, 94 S. W. 29.

49. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 867.

50. See 6 C. L. 1979.

51. Witness held incompetent: Under Code 1896, § 1794, in action to establish gift of note, plaintiff held incompetent to testify as to transaction between himself and deceased donor. Thomas v. Tilley [Ala.] 41 So. 854. In action against administrator to recover for services alleged to have been rendered decedent, testimony of plaintiff tending to show that it was within contemplation of parties that she should receive compensation held inadmissible. Patteson v. Carter [Ala.] 41 So. 133. In suit by lunatic by her guardian against administrators of her deceased husband for purpose of having resulting trust declared in certain lands alleged to have been purchased by decedent with her money, held that guardian was incompetent to testify as to transactions with or statements by decedent, since he would be liable for costs if unsuccessful and entitled to commissions in management of property if trust was declared. Holloway v. Wilkerson [Ala.] 43 So. 731. Executor held party to proceedings to contest probate of will and hence incompetent to testify as to communications made to him by decedent under 2 Mills' Ann. St. § 4816. In re Shapter's Estate [Colo.] 85 P. 688. Interested party held incompetent to testify in proceeding to contest probate of will. Id. Physician seeking to enforce claim for medical services rendered decedent against his estate held incompetent to testify at all over objection of administrator. Temple v. Magruder [Colo.] 85 P. 832. Claimant in proceeding for allowance of claim against estate of decedent being incompetent, self-serving declaration in form of letter written by claimant after death of decedent, in which he set forth amount and character of services for which he was seeking compensation, held inadmissible in his behalf. Butler v. Phillips [Colo.] 88 P. 480. Under Code, § 4604, no party to action against administrator, whether interested or not, is competent to testify as to transactions and communications with decedent. Culbertson v. Salinger [Iowa] 108 N. W. 454. In action on notes against maker and administrator of one who it was alleged had agreed to sign them as surety and ultimately to pay them in consideration of the transfer to him of certain property by the maker, in which plaintiff claimed that in reliance on representations of maker he had surrendered certain collateral, held that maker was party interested in the event and hence incompetent to testify as to agreement between himself and decedent. Id. Maker held also interested by reason of fact that certain of the property which was to have been transferred to decedent under alleged agree-the action,[52] and persons from whom a party derives his interest.[53] It is sometimes ment was held by plaintiff as collateral to renewal of notes in suit. Id. Witness being interested in action because if judgment was in favor of defendant administrator plaintiff would have right of action against him for value of certain collaterals obtained by him through false representations, held that fact that such right of action was barred by limitations did not render witness competent, court not being authorized to assume that nothing had been done to toll statute or that it would be pleaded. Id. In any event held not conclusive that action was barred since, if based on fraud or mistake, statute would not begin to run until it was discovered by injured party (Code, § 3448), and there was no evidence that plaintiff had notice. Id. In action against administrator and another, filing of stipulation for judgment against latter held to remove bar of statute as to him, he no longer being a party. Id. Cross petitioner held party to suit and hence incompetent. Id. Defendant held incompetent in action on notes by legatee of payee. Chapman v. Chapman [Iowa] 109 N. W. 300. In suit by wife of decedent to set aside deed made by him before his marriage, held that her testimony as to statements made by him at time of subsequent conveyance of other land was incompetent. Beechley v. Beechley [Iowa] 108 N. W. 762. In suit by receiver of bank against administrator to have title to certain land standing in name of decedent declared to be held in trust for said bank, one filing cross petition claiming that he was owner of land and had conveyed it to decedent as security for loan only held incompetent. McElroy v. Allfree [Iowa] 108 N. W. 116. In action by children of first wife of decedent against his second wife and her children to recover certain of his land, second wife held incompetent to testify as to conversations and transactions had by her with decedent. Moore v. Moore, 30 Ky. L. R. 383, 98 S. W. 1027. In suit by heir of deceased married woman against grantee of latter's husband to set aside commissioner's deed made to decedent's husband pursuant to assignment to him of her bid, held that husband was incompetent to testify as to verbal transactions between himself and decedent. Noel v. Fitzpatrick, 30 Ky. L. R. 1011, 100 S. W. 321. Widow suing heirs and administrator of deceased husband and seeking decree against them held incompetent under Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 35, § 3, to testify as to any transaction had with or statement made by her deceased husband. Cross v. Iler, 103 Md. 592, 64 A. 33. In suit to establish gift causa mortis against administrator of a decedent's estate, plaintiff held incompetent, under Revision 1900 (P. L. p. 363, § 4), to testify as to transaction between himself and decedent. Van Wagenen v. Bonnot [N. J. Eq.] 65 A. 239. In suit to quiet title to land for which plaintiff had executed deeds to her deceased husband which she claimed were never delivered, her testimony as to statements made to her by him respecting such conveyances held inadmissible under Code Civ. Proc. § 829. Hamlin v. Hamlin, 102 N. Y. S. 571. Executrix and sole legatee seeking to recover fund deposited by her testator's deceased father in his own name in trust for testator held incompetent to prove personal transactions with father showing that fact of deposit had been communicated to testator or her by him. In re United States Trust Co., 102 N. Y. S. 271. In action of trespass to try title brought by heirs of decedent against widow, held that, under Rev. St. 1895, art. 2302, one of the plaintiffs was incompetent to testify as to statement by deceased as to arrangement between himself and his wife as to descent of their property. Davis v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 286, 98 S. W. 198.

Witness held competent: Payee of note held not disqualified by schedule to const. 1874, § 2, from testifying in suit thereon by his assignee against administrator of deceased maker as to transactions with such maker. Collier v. Trice, 79 Ark. 414, 96 S. W. 174. Laws 1904, p. 1168, c. 661, does not except a nominal party. Smith v. Humphreys [Md.] 65 A. 57. Mother instituting will contest as next friend of her minor children held not a party. Johnson v. Johnson [Md.] 65 A. 918. In action against an administratrix, general manager of plaintiff corporation held not incompetent under Rev. St. 1906, § 5242. Cockley Mill. Co. v. Bunn, 75 Ohio St. 270, 79 N. E. 478.

52. Witness held incompetent: In action by administratrix for damages for unlawful killing of her intestate, decedent's son held incompetent, under Code 1896, § 1794, to testify as to any statement by or transaction with decedent. Cobb v. Owens [Ala.] 43 So. 826. On proceedings in probate for allowance of claim against estate of a decedent for money alleged to have been taken by him from bank, of which he was cashier, and to have been used and converted by him and a third person, notes for the amount thereof having been given to the bank of such third person, held that third person was incompetent under Code, § 4604. McElroy v. Allfree [Iowa] 108 N. W. 119. In action by administrator to settle estate of decedent, persons interested in claims against estate filed by administrator of another estate held incompetent under Civ. Code Prac. § 606, subsec. 2, to testify as to statements of and transactions with deceased. Owsley v. Boles' Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 1016, 99 S. W. 1157. In action by legatee against executor to recover legacy, held that residuary legatee being incompetent to testify as to declarations of testator tending to show that payment made to plaintiff by him was in satisfaction of legacy, her husband was also incompetent to testify as to such declarations. Bright's Ex'rs v. Bright's Legatees, 30 Ky. L. R. 834, 99 S. W. 901. In suit to contest probate of will, wife of caveatee held incompetent, under Revisal 1905, § 1631, to testify to declarations of decedent, since, if caveators succeeded in their contention, husband of witness would, as an heir of decedent, become owner of undivided interest in his realty in which wife would immediately become entitled to an inchoate right of dower. Linebarger v. Linebarger [N. C.] 55 S. E. 709. Where husband managed wife's business as if it was his own, title being in her name to evade payment to his creditors, held that, in proceeding to sell realty of a decedent to pay a note purporting to have been indorsed by him which was held by wife, husband could not, under Code Civ. Prac. § 829, testify as to circumstances attending alleged indorsement. In re Neufeld's Estate, 50 Misc. 215, 100 N. Y. S. 444.

Witness held competent: Husband held to have no estate by the curtesy in separate provided that a witness incompetent on the ground of interest may become competent by a release of that interest, made in good faith.[54] Other witnesses than property of wife, so that he had no such pecuniary interest in result of suit to subject it to payment of debt of grantee thereof under alleged void conveyance as would disqualify him. Harper v. Hays Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 360. Legacy designed to compensate legatee for services and to reimburse him for expenses incurred as executor held not to make him a beneficiary under the will so as to render him incompetent under 2 Mills' Ann. St. § 4816. In re Shapter's Estate [Colo.] 85 P. 688. Where joint obligor on promissory note gave mortgage to secure its payment, held that, in suit in nature of foreclosure of mortgage instituted after his death, surviving co-obligor was not incompetent under Civ. Code 1895, § 5269, to prove execution of mortgage where at time he testified note as to him had become barred by limitations, such testimony being against his own interest. Hawes v. Glover, 126 Ga. 305, 55 S. E. 62. In suit against remaindermen to quiet title and remove cloud, held not error to admit evidence of life tenant who was not party to the record or in interest in such sense as to render her incompetent, and who would not be bound by result, though persons alleged to have dealt with her were dead. Morehead v. Allen [Ga.] 56 S. E. 745. In suit by heirs of decedent to recover realty, brothers of defendant held not disqualified from testifying as to acquisition of land by their father, since deceased, where latter had before his death conveyed all such land to defendant. Blackburn v. Hail, 30 Ky. L. R. 134, 97 S. W. 399. Mere fact that defendant was named as executor in will held not to render him incompetent to testify in will contest. Rev. St. 1899, § 4367. Hogan v. Hinchey, 195 Mo. 527, 94 S. W. 522. In proceeding to compel former administrator to turn over to his successor money claimed by him as a gift from decedent, interest of former administrator's wife is not a direct legal interest within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 329, and she was not incompetent. Foster v. Murphy [Neb.] 107 N. W. 843. Husband held competent witness in behalf of wife in action brought by her in equity to establish ownership to property claimed by her and held in trust by administrator of his mother's estate. Bently v. Jun [Neb.] 107 N. W. 865. Where son, on receiving certain property from father as gift, agreed to pay his sister certain sum as her share of father's estate, but died without doing so, held that parent had no such direct legal interest in action by sister against son's estate on such promise as to disqualify him as witness for plaintiff. Fox v. Fox [Neb.] 110 N. W. 304. Husband's interest in his wife's property does not disqualify him from being witness in her favor, even when other party is administrator who does not elect to testify. White v. Poole [N. H.] 65 A. 255. True test of interest of witness is that he will either gain or lose by direct legal operation and effect of judgment, or that record will be legal evidence for or against him in some other action. Talbot v. Laubheim [N. Y.] 81 N. E. 163. Interest must be present, certain, and vested, and not uncertain, remote, or contingent. Id. In action to recover for goods sold and delivered in which administrator was substituted for one of the defendants who died pending suit, held that officer of corporation which acted for plaintiff's assignor in making sale was not disqualified by Code Civ. Proc., § 829, to testify as to conversation with decedent because if plaintiff failed to recover by reason of any mistake or fault on part of corporation resulting damage would be charged to it, where corporation had stopped business and its assets had been sold by sheriff. Id. Son of defendant in mortgage foreclosure suit brought by representative of deceased mortgagee has, by reason of his residing on mortgaged premises without payment of rent, no legal interest in event of action within Revisal 1905, § 1631, and may testify to transaction with deceased mortgagee. Bennett v. Best, 142 N. C. 168, 55 S. E. 84. In action against person adjudged insane, and for whom guardian ad litem was appointed, for damages for breach of covenants if deed to land, held that witness not interested in event of suit was not disqualified, though interested in land. Lemly v. Ellis [N. C.] 55 S. E. 629. Exclusion of minutes of defendant corporation on ground that secretary who produced them was a stockholder, and therefore interested, held improper. Morgan v. Lehigh Valley Coal Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 633. Wife of plaintiff held competent witness for him in action against administrator to recover money alleged to have been held by intestate payable to plaintiff on demand, she not being "interested in the subject of the action" within meaning of Rev. Code Civ. Proc. §486. Guillaume v. Flannery [S. D.] 108 N. W. 255. In action of trespass to try title by church corporation against executrix held that members of church were not disqualified to testify as to conversations had by them with decedent. Crosby v. First Presbyterian Church [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 684. Under U. S. Rev. St. § 858, officers, directors, and stockholders of plaintiff bank, who were not themselves parties to suit against administratrix but were interested in result, held competent to testify as to transactions and communications had by them with defendant's intestate. Huntington Nat. Bank v. Huntington Distilling Co., 152 F. 240.

53. In action against maker of notes and administrator of another who it was alleged had agreed to sign them as surety and ultimately to pay them in consideration of the transfer to him of certain property by the maker, in which it was sought to recover amount of notes from estate of decedent as damages for breach of such agreement, held that maker was not incompetent under Code, § 4604, on ground that plaintiff obtained his interest through him. Culbertson v. Salinger [Iowa] 108 N. W. 454.

54. Act May 23, 1887, § 6 (P. L. 160). Assignment by party to controversy made only for purpose of enabling him to sustain suit by his testimony is not made in good faith and is ineffectual to accomplish that purpose. Morgan v. Lehigh Valley Coal Co. [Pa.] 64 A. 633.

participants in the transaction between a party and decedent are not prohibited from testifying thereto.[55] Under some statutes parties to contracts with a decedent are incompetent to testify in regard thereto,[56] and an agent who makes a contract for his principal is incompetent to testify in regard thereto after the death of the principal.[57] The statute does not exclude the living party from testifying where the evidence relates to transactions and conversations had with others to which deceased was not a party, and with which he had no connection, and of which he had no knowledge.[58] The rule that if the transaction is had with an agent of the decedent, and the agent is still living, the other party may testify, has no application where the agent is himself, for any reason, incompetent to testify.[59]

Transactions and communications to which disqualification extends.[60]—The disqualification extends to all personal transactions between the witness and deceased,[61]

55. Questions asked third person as to where he had seen check drawn by plaintiff in favor of deceased, and as to whose indorsement it bore held not objectionable as calling for personal transactions between plaintiff and deceased. Campbell v. Collins [Iowa] 110 N. W. 435. Same held true as to questions as to who had check on certain day when he saw it, and as to whether he participated in any way in transaction between plaintiff and deceased on said day. Id. In action against administrator to recover overpayment alleged to have been made to decedent on note, question as to what third person said in presence of decedent on certain occasion held not objectionable as calling for transaction with decedent. Id. Code § 4604, does not prohibit introduction of any evidence of communications or transactions between party to claim of deceased and latter during his lifetime, but merely declares certain witnesses incompetent to make such proof. Id. In proceeding for settlement of executors' accounts, held not error to permit witnesses not parties to action to testify as to declarations of testator's widow, since deceased, in presence of her husband, to show her ownership of certain property included in executors' accounts. Medlin v. Simpson [N. C.] 57 S. E. 24.

56. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4652, in suit to set aside a sale of realty under a deed of trust given to secure an indebtedness to defendant, member of plaintiff corporation held incompetent to testify to conversations and oral agreements with manager of defendant company, since deceased, concerning the loan. Green Real Estate Co. v. St. Louis Mut. House Bldg. Co., 196 Mo. 358, 93 S. W. 1111.

57. Note presented against estate of deceased maker bore indorsement of part payment signed with name of maker by a third person as his agent and attorney in fact, who had written power of attorney. Held that, under Pub. Acts 1903, p. 36, No. 30, such third person was not competent to testify as to the collection and indorsement, since it operated as a continuation of the contract Locklund v. Burman's Estate [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 712, 109 N. W. 255.

58. Rev. St. 1899, § 4652, does not preclude living party to contract from testifying to transactions and conversations with assignee of deceased party in action by assignee against him to recover on same, it being only where administrator is party to action that surviving party is disqualified for all purposes until will has been probated or representative appointed. Weiermueller v. Scullin [Mo.] 101 S. W. 1088.

59. Rev. St. 1899, § 4652. In action on note by widow of deceased payee who had become owner thereof in course of administration, held that fact that agent of decedent, who transacted business in course of which note was given and took note for deceased, was living did not authorize defendant to testify where such agent had himself signed the note as surety and hence was himself incompetent because an interested party, though not a party to the action. Lyngar v. Shafer [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 630.

60. See 6 C. L. 1982.

61. Administrator seeking to enforce personal claim on promissory note against estate of his decedent held incompetent under Code 1896, § 1794, to give his opinion as to genuineness of decedent's signature on note. Ware v. Burch. [Ala.] 42 So. 562. Under Schedule Const. § 2, plaintiff in proceeding against administrator to recover on contract, express or implied, for services claimed to have been rendered decedent, held incompetent to testify in his own behalf as to rendition of such services. Williams v. Walden [Ark.] 100 S. W. 898. In action against administrator to establish gift inter vivos, held that plaintiff was incompetent, under Kirby's Dig. § 3093, to testify that decedent had given her package, stated that it was hers, etc. Wilson v. Edwards, 79 Ark. 69, 94 S. W. 927. In action by administrator to recover money of decedent alleged to have been converted by defendants, in which existence of such money was denied, held that, under Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 506, defendants could not testify as to habits, business methods, and possessions of decedent for purpose of showing nonexistence of money, that being "a matter involved." Zimmerman v. Beatson [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 518. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 606, plaintiff in suit for division of lands of decedent held incompetent to testify as to consideration which he agreed with decedent to pay for certain land deeded to him and his wife, and which defendants claimed was advancement to latter. Crafton v. Inge, 30 Ky. L. R. 313, 98 S. W. 325. In action against decedent's estate to recover for services rendered decedent in his last illness, plaintiff held incompetent to testify as to length of time he waited upon deceased, and character of his services. Green's Adm'r v. Teutschmann, 29 Ky. L. R. 1149, 97 S. W. 7.

but not to communications or transactions between decedent and a third person in which the witness took no part,[62] or between witness and a third person,[63] or between a party and a representative of a decedent who is also a party,[64] nor to facts occurring after decedent's death.[65] The presence of third parties at the time of the transaction does not render a party a competent witness.[66] In some states an interested party may testify as to conversations with a deceased party whose testimony given before his death as to such conversations has been preserved and can be produced.[67] Matters obnoxious to the statute cannot be proven by indirect means,[68]

Laws 1904, p. 1168, c. 661, does not make parties incompetent to testify as to all matters but expressly limits incompetency to statements made by, or transactions with, decedent. Smith v. Humphreys [Md.] 65 A. 57. In action to set aside deed to defendant's deceased husband, held that, under Revisal 1905, §§ 1629, 1631, plaintiff was incompetent to testify as to what was said to her by decedent's attorney in decedent's presence when he and decedent were present at her home for purpose of having deed executed and as to what was done at that time, particularly where attorney was also dead, statements of attorney being regarded as those of decedent. Smith v. Moore, 142 N. C. 277, 55 S. E. 275. Under Rev. St. 1895, art. 2302, in action by grantee in deed against heirs of deceased grantor for breach of warranty, held that one of the defendants could not testify that amount paid to decedent by grantee was not amount recited in deed, but less sum. Sachse v. Loeb [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 450. That witness proposed to testify from his own knowledge, and not from any statement made to him by decedent, held immaterial. Id. In action by children and heirs of married woman to recover her interest in certain community property, held that defendant was incompetent to testify that he was never married to deceased, never agreed to become her husband, etc. Edelstein v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 95 S. W. 1126, afd. [Tex.] 100 S. W. 129. Ball. Ann. Codes & St., § 5991, held not to disqualify party from being witness, but merely to prohibit him from testifying as to transactions had by him with, or statements made to him by, decedent. Kauffman v. Baillie [Wash.] 89 P. 548. In action by heirs to set aside deed executed by person since deceased, held that grantee could not, under Rev. St. 1898, § 4069, testify to private interview with grantor in which latter expressed wish to make arrangement consummated by deed, etc. Quinn v. Quinn [Wis.] 110 N. W. 488.

Statute held inapplicable: Heirs of grantor suing to set aside deed held not rendered incompetent by Burns' Ann. St. 1901, § 507, to testify to facts and circumstances in life of decedent from which they testified to their opinion as to unsoundness of her mind. Studebaker v. Faylor [Ind. App.] 80 N. E. 861. Rev. St. 1899, § 4652, does not render incompetent any person who would have been competent at common law. Jenkins v. Emmons, 117 Mo. App. 1, 94 S. W. 812. Hence in proceedings to procure allowance of claim on lost note against estate of a decedent held that, contents of lost note having been proved, plaintiff was competent to prove fact and circumstances of its loss. Id. In action by children and heirs of married woman to recover her interest in certain community property, held that a plaintiff could testify as to conduct of decedent and defendant tending to show that they were husband and wife, it not appearing that they received their knowledge from decedent. Rev. St. 1895, art. 2302. Edelstein v. Brown [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 338, 95 S. W. 1126.

62. McElroy v. Allfree [Iowa] 108 N. W. 116. Code, § 4604, held not to preclude one plaintiff from testifying to conversation between deceased and coplaintiff in which witness took no part. Powers v. Crandall [Iowa] 111 N. W. 1010. One prosecuting claim against estate of decedent held competent to testify as to conversations between deceased and third person in presence and hearing of witness. Griffith v. Robertson [Kan.] 85 P. 748.

63. In action against administrator and purchaser of land at administrator's sale, in which plaintiff alleged that he had purchased such land from decedent, had paid debt secured by mortgage thereon as consideration for sale, and that note and mortgage had been assigned to him, and prayed that title be quieted in him or the mortgage foreclosed, held that plaintiff could testify as to assignment of note and mortgage to him. Strayhorn v. McCall, 78 Ark. 209, 95 S. W. 455. Party may testify as to any communications he may have had before decedent's death with persons representing her. Guillaume v. Flannery [S. D.] 108 N. W. 255. In action against heirs, legatees, and executor to recover interest in certain lands from a decedent's estate pursuant to an agreement with decedent whereby plaintiff was to have certain share of profits resulting from sale of such land if he procured a conveyance thereof to decedent, testimony of plaintiff that he had had possession of contract since its date, and as to transactions between himself and original owner of land, in absence of decedent, to show services performed in securing conveyance of property, held admissible. Kauffman v. Baillie [Wash.] 89 P. 548.

64. Questions as to transactions between defendant and executor himself held not to come within purview of Revisal 1905, § 1631. Bennett v. Best, 142 N. C. 168, 55 S. E. 84.

65. Goddard v. Enzler, 123 Ill. App. 108. Under Hurd's Rev. St. c. 51, § 2, calling of interested person to testify in action by administrator as to possession of certain bonds of decedent sought to be recovered, held not to have made him a witness as to all questions. Merchants' Loan & Trust Co. v. Egan, 222 Ill. 494, 78 N. E. 800.

66. Smith v. Moore, 142 N. C. 277, 55 S. E. 275.

67. Rev. Laws 1905, § 4663. Plaintiff held properly permitted to testify as to conver-but evidence not itself obnoxious is not excluded because inferences may be drawn therefrom as to what was done between the parties.[69] Testimony negativing the existence of a transaction in issue is as much within the inhibition of the statute as testimony affirming its existence.[70] In some states evidence of facts which occurred prior to decedent's death,[71] or evidence as to matters equally within decedent's knowledge,[72] is excluded. In others only evidence in favor of the interested party or witness,[73] or against the interest of the decedent,[74] is incompetent.

sations with a deceased defendant who had testified to such conversations on former trial, issues on two trials being substantially the same. Myrick v. Purcell, 99 Minn. 457, 109 N. W. 995.

68. In action by administratrix for damages for unlawful killing of her intestate, held that, since under Code 1896, § 1794, defendant could not testify as to the difficulty between himself and decedent, it was improper to allow him to testify as to facts, the only purpose of which was to show that he was not the aggressor. Cobb v. Owens [Ala.] 43 So. 826. Code Civ. Proc. § 829 not only forbids direct testimony by a survivor that a personal transaction did or did not take place and what was said, but also any attempt by indirection to prove the same thing. Little v. Johnson, 102 N. Y. S. 754. In action on quantum meruit for services rendered defendant's testator in preparing preliminary architectural studies for a house, held that plaintiff was improperly allowed to testify as to fact of his having had certain consultations with decedent and his wife in regard to such studies, and as to the number of such consultations, a large part of the services for which compensation was sought consisting of such consultations, and his testimony therefore being an attempt to prove by himself facts as to personal relations between himself and deceased from which inference of employment and promise was to be drawn. Id.

69. In action against administrator to recover overpayment alleged to have been made to decedent on a note by mistake, plaintiff's testimony that note was in hands of decedent on certain date held not objectionable as involving personal transaction, though when coupled with other facts, personal transaction might have been inferred therefrom. Campbell v. Collins [Iowa] 110 N. W. 435. In action against administrator to recover overpayment alleged to have been made on note to decedent by mistake, plaintiff's testimony that he saw note at bank at same time he saw decedent there held not objectionable as showing personal transaction with decedent. Id. Objections to inquiries of plaintiff as to whose signatures were attached to note held improperly sustained. Id.

70. Under Const. Sched. 2, and Kirby's Dig. § 3093, in action against estate of decedent on lost note signed by decedent and executor but in which estate alone was sought to be charged, held that executor could not testify that he did not execute and deliver such a note, purpose being to negative existence of note sued on. Jarvis v. Andrews [Ark.] 96 S. W. 1064.

71. In suit by widow against heirs of deceased husband to set aside ante-nuptial contract, plaintiff held incompetent witness as to facts occurring before husband's death. Murdock v. Murdock, 121 Ill. App. 429. Under Burns' Rev. St. 1901, §§ 507, 510, in suit by one heir against another, who was also a devisee, to recover half interest in land of ancestor conveyed to latter by his wife but which it was alleged ancestor and his wife had agreed by post-nuptial contract should be held in trust for both heirs, held an abuse of discretion to require plaintiff, over objection, to testify as to contents of such contract, which was not produced, and circumstances surrounding making of it. Jonas v. Hirshburg [Ind. App.] 79 N. E. 1058. In action of ejectment defendant held incompetent to testify as to matters occurring in lifetime of decedent through whom plaintiff claimed title. Weaver v. Oberholtzer, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 425.

72. In suit against heirs of vendor of land for specific performance of contract of sale, persons who, as agents, negotiated with decedent for the contract held incompetent witnesses as to such negotiations, under Comp. Laws § 10,212, as amended by Pub. Act 1903, p. 36, No. 30. Detroit United R. Co. v. Smith, 144 Mich. 235, 13 Det. Leg. N. 228, 107 N. W. 922.

73. Under Civ. Code 1895, § 5269, subsec. 1, held not competent for plaintiff to testify as to transaction between himself and decedent, effect of which would be to impeach right of decedent to convey property in controversy to another, whose representative was party defendant. Hendricks v. Allen [Ga.] 57 S. E. 224. Where joint obligor on note gave mortgage to secure its payment held that, in suit in nature of foreclosure of mortgage instituted after his death, surviving co-obligor was not incompetent to prove execution of mortgage under Act Dec. 21, 1897 (Acts 1897, p. 53), providing that where suit is instituted against joint defendants, one of whom is representative of a deceased person, living party defendant shall not be permitted to testify as to any transaction or communication with decedent, where his evidence would tend to relieve or modify liability of witness and to make estate of decedent primarily liable for debt or default, particularly where limitations have run against liability of such co-obligor. Hawes v. Glover, 126 Ga. 305, 55 S. E. 62. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 606, no person will be permitted to give testimony in his behalf against estate of decedent which will have tendency to strengthen or make good his claim, or that will leave impression on court or jury that his demand must be just and reasonable. Northrip's Adm'r v. Williams, 30 Ky. L. R. 1270, 100 S. W. 1192. In action against administrator to recover on alleged oral contract for services rendered decedent, held error to permit plaintiff to testify as to decedent's poor health, nature, and character of her ailments, and amount of care which she required, though she did not testify directly to the services rendered. Id.

Fact that decedent's condition was known to a number of persons who could have described her condition held immaterial. Id. In action for specific performance of sale of land, an intervenor claiming title under same vendor, since deceased, held incompetent to testify as to transactions with such vendor. Jones v. Tennis Coal Co., 29 Ky. L. R. 623, 94 S. W. 6. In action by widow for allotment of dower in deceased husband's land held that she was incompetent to testify to marriage. Bartee v. Edmunds, 29 Ky. L. R. 872, 96 S. W. 535. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4652, held that widow suing estate of deceased husband on claim for services rendered him before marriage could not testify that note given by decedent for such debt was destroyed and had not been in her possession since date of appointment of administrator. Dawdy v. Dawdy's Estate, 118 Mo. App. 336, 94 S. W. 767. In suit against grantors to reform deeds, plaintiff claiming that conveyance was not intended to be made to grantee personally but to him in trust for her, and that provision creating trust was omitted by mistake, held that, grantee being dead, defendant grantors were incompetent to testify in behalf of plaintiff as to intended trust. Smith v. Smith [Mo.] 100 S. W. 579. In action on promissory note against living maker and executor of deceased co-maker, held that plaintiff was incompetent to testify that decedent had made partial payment so as to toll limitations, which was denied by defendant, or even to mere physical fact that indorsement of payment on note was made at time it purported to have been. Crow v. Crow [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 1123. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 829, in action against executrix and others to have will declared void, held that testimony of plaintiff as to transactions with decedent were inadmissible either on her own behalf or in behalf of defendants who also sought to have will declared void, though plaintiff claimed under former will and defendants under intestate laws. Pringle v. Burroughs, 185 N. Y. 375, 78 N. E. 150.

Statute held inapplicable: Rev. St. 1899, § 4652, does not disqualify witness to testify concerning matters about which he can have no interest, even though other party is dead. Thompson v. Brown [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 242. In action on note against estate of deceased payee, defendant pleaded limitations and plaintiffs sought to toll statute by payments made by indorser of note who was not a party to action. Held that such indorser was competent to testify that he signed as guarantor, he having no interest in outcome of action since payments would keep note alive as to him whether he was guarantor or co-maker, and since judgment could be recovered against him regardless of outcome of action, and since, even if he was guarantor, statute of limitations had run against his right to recover payments previously made by him from makers, and, as his payments as guarantor could not keep note alive as against makers, it was no longer subsisting claim against latter and hence he could not recover from them any payments he might make in future. Id. One having a direct legal interest, as one of several joint heirs or co-legatees, in action against representative of decedent, is not by Ann. Code 1901, § 329, rendered incompetent to testify as to transactions and conversations between deceased and an adverse party in whose right, claim, or demand witness has no interest. Hageman v. Powell's Estate [Neb.] 107 N. W. 749. In proceedings to surcharge account of executrix with money claimed by her personally, certain of her testimony as to statements by, and transactions with, testator held admissible as being against her interest and tending to reduce her claim. Carlin v. Carlin [N. J. Eq.] 64 A. 1018. 2 Bal. Ann. Codes & St. § 5991, held not to disqualify an interested witness on the part of the estate, so that, in action against widow as executrix of deceased husband on certain notes indorsed by him during his lifetime, she could testify as to what took place between decedent and plaintiff when indorsement was made. O'Connor v. Slatter [Wash.] 89 P. 885. Under Rev. St. § 858, trustee in bankruptcy being privy with bankrupt, held competent to testify, after death of bankrupt, as to admissions concerning his estate made by bankrupt while he was still its owner. Smith v. Au Gres Tp. [C. C. A.] 150 F. 257

74. Witness called on behalf of defendant administrator held not incompetent under Code, § 4604, to testify as to transactions with decedent. Dean v. Carpenter [Iowa] 111 N. W. 815. In action by executor against testator's grantee to recover purchase price of land, defended on ground of payment before delivery of deed, held that persons interested in estate could testify that decedent had sent oral messages by them to grantee to pay purchase price or return deed. Moore v. Moore's Adm'r, 30 Ky. L. R. 1370, 101 S. W. 358. A defendant called as a witness by plaintiff held called by "opposite party" and hence competent under Code Pub. Gen. Laws, art. 35, § 3, though her interest was identical with that of plaintiff, competency being determined in such case by her legal relation to the cause. Cross v. Iler, 103 Md. 592, 64 A. 33. Husband held competent witness in behalf of his wife in action brought by her in equity to establish ownership to property claimed by her and held in trust by administrator of his mother's estate, his interest not being adverse to administrator whether he was legatee or heir. Bently v. Jun [Neb.] 107 N. W. 865. On proceedings by executors for settlement of their accounts, held that one of such executors was not disqualified by Revisal 1905, § 1631, from testifying as to personal transactions and communications between testator's widow, since deceased, and such executors, where his testimony was not against her interest. Medlin v. Simpson [N. C.] 57 S. E. 24. Fact that an executor was also administrator of testator's widow held not to render him incompetent. Id. In action to enforce vendor's lien for unpaid purchase money where bond had been given to make title to realty on payment of purchase price, plaintiff owning debt and holding legal title as successor to rights of vendor, and defendants claiming under the vendee, held that testimony as to what plaintiff heard original vendee, since deceased, testify to concerning notes in suit on a trial before a referee was admissible. Worth v. Wrenn [N. C.] 57 S. E. 388. Rev. St. 1898, § 3413, held intended to protect estates of deceased persons from assaults and to relate to proceedings wherein decision sought by party testifying would tend to

In some states a party cannot testify as to conversations or transactions with the deceased agent of the other party,[75] though such testimony is admissible in others.[76] A transcript of the evidence of a party given at a former trial and relating to transactions with the adverse party is inadmissible on a second trial occurring after the death of the latter.[77] The fact that a party has testified in the case before his death does not render the other party competent, particularly where the former was called to testify for his adversary.[78] Where a wife elects to have her husband testify in her behalf in a suit to which she is a party, pursuant to a statute authorizing either, but not both, to testify in such case, he cannot testify as to transactions with a decedent as to which she would have been an incompetent witness.[79]

Waiver or removal of disqualification.[80]—The disqualification is waived where the adverse party fails to make proper or timely objections,[81] or himself calls[82] or reduce or impair estate, and not to relative rights of heirs or devisees as to distribution of estate in proceeding by which estate itself is in no event to be reduced or impaired. In re Miller's Estate [Utah] 88 P. 338. Held not to apply to action to revoke will on ground of undue influence which was contest between heirs and devisees or legatees, and hence all parties interested were competent to testify to any fact relevant and material to issue involved. Id. In suit by holder of note to set aside for fraud decree releasing deed of trust given to secure it, held that complainant, though note had been transferred to him by person since deceased, was competent to testify on issue whether he was in good faith the owner and holder of said note for value, the only question being whether note had in fact been paid to original holder. Morgan v. Booker [Va.] 56 S. E. 137.

75. Rev. St. c. 51, § 4. Admissions and conversations. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Young, 123 Ill. App. 628. Civ. Code Prac. § 606. Transactions. Loomis v. Mullins [Ky.] 101 S. W. 913. As to what was said when contract was made. Holcolmb-Lobb Co. v. Kaufman, 29 Ky. L. R. 1006, 96 S. W. 813. In action by corporation on note given for purchase price of goods sold, held that defendant could not testify that plaintiff's agent, who died before the trial, made false representations in effecting the sale. Comp. Laws 1897, § 10,212. Kessler & Co. v. Zacharias, 145 Mich. 698, 13 Det. Leg. N. 658, 108 N. W. 1012.

76. Under Hurd's St. 1903, c. 51, § 4, p. 935, party in interest may testify as to a transaction with defendant's agent since deceased, such as payment to him of premium on insurance policy, word "transaction" not appearing in such statute. Helbig v. Citizens Ins. Co. 120 Ill. App. 58. Code Civ. Proc. § 829, held not to prohibit party from testifying to personal transactions and communications with an agent in making or modifying a contract though principal and agent are both deceased. Warth v. Kastriner, 100 N. Y. S. 279. On scire facias sur judgment where both judgment plaintiff and defendant were dead, legatees and executor of judgment defendant held competent to testify to payment of judgment by executor of defendant to executor and testamentary trustee of judgment plaintiff after latter's death, though such executor and trustee was also dead, their interest not being adverse to judgment defendant, and deceased executor and trustee not being party to the contract and no right or interest of his, or derived through him, being involved if payment had been made to him as agent of judgment plaintiff. Norristown Trust Co. v. Lentz, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 408.

77. Under Code, § 4604. Greenlee v. Mosnat [Iowa] 111 N. W. 996. Acts 27th Gen. Assem. p. 16, c. 9 (Code Supp. 1902, § 245a), providing for admission of transcript of evidence given on original trial or retrial of any case when material and competent, held not to make transcript equivalent to a deposition and hence admissible under Code, § 4605, authorizing party to have his own deposition, or that of any other person, read in evidence in all cases where his evidence would be incompetent under § 4604, if taken and filed in prescribed manner. Id.

78. Under Code 1904, § 3346, held that where plaintiff in suit to enjoin sale of property under deed of trust, after giving notice to take depositions, called defendant to testify on his behalf and his deposition was accordingly taken, and at subsequent day plaintiff was introduced as witness in his own behalf, but defendant died pending plaintiff's examination in chief, plaintiff was incompetent, and his deposition taken after revival of suit against defendant's administrator, and over latter's objection, was incompetent. Puckett v. Mullins [Va.] 55 S. E. 676. Code 1904, § 3349, providing that where original party to contract or transaction with whom it was solely made or had, or his agent, has been examined as witness orally or in writing at time when he is competent to testify, and afterwards dies, his testimony may be proved or read in evidence, and adverse party may testify to same matters, held to apply where deceased party has been examined in his own behalf, or, in case of an agent, in behalf of his principal, and those representing his side of controversy prove his oral testimony or read his deposition in evidence, and not where decedent died after being examined on behalf of his adversary. Puckett v. Mullins [Va.] 55 S. E. 676.

79. Doty v. Dickey, 29 Ky. L. R. 900, 96 S. W. 544.

80. See 6 C. L. 1984.

81. General objection that defendant was incompetent, without stating specific grounds of objection, held sufficient to raise question that he was incompetent under Code § 4604. McAleer v. McNamara [Iowa] 112 N. W. 85. Exception to testimony of witness as a whole on ground of incompetency held not open to consideration, he examines [83] the interested witness, or goes on the stand himself [84] to testify to matters within the protection of the statute, or otherwise brings out such matters.[85] Vol-being competent for some purposes, and having testified as to some facts not within the prohibition of the statute. Smith v. Humphreys [Md.] 65 A. 57. Defendant held to have waived objection to plaintiff's competency by failing to interpose it when he was put on stand as witness, and by drawing out facts in regard to transaction with decedent on cross-examination. Stuyvaert v. Arnold [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 529. Incompetency of evidence held not so raised as to require reversal because of its admission. Hamlin v. Hamlin, 102 N. Y. S. 571.

82. Objection waived where witness was called to testify by persons to whom his interest was opposed. Harper v. Hays Co. [Ala.] 43 So. 360. In suit by administrator for an accounting between estate of decedent and defendant, etc., where plaintiff offered in evidence certain admissions of defendant in his testimony in another case which went to merits of entire case made by the bill, held that defendant might be examined on the whole case, and his complete testimony in other case was admissible, notwithstanding Comp. Laws 1897, § 10,212. Cady v. Burgess, 144 Mich. 523, 13 Det. Leg. N. 324, 108 N. W. 414. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 2709, where plaintiff was called as witness by administratrix in proceeding before surrogate to compel plaintiff to make discovery of assets of estate of a decedent in her possession, and was examined as to transactions between herself and decedent regard to certain property in her possession, held that administratrix thereby waived right to object, in subsequent action by plaintiff against her to compel specific performance of an alleged contract between plaintiff and decedent in regard to said property, to competency of plaintiff to testify as to transactions and conversations with decedent in regard to such property. Killian v. Heinzerling, 99 N. Y. S. 1036. Fact that in proceeding before surrogate particular questions eliciting proof of transaction with decedent were put by surrogate, and not by counsel for administratrix, held immaterial. Id. Where, in action by executor to compel defendant to account for moneys and property alleged to have been obtained by her from testatrix by undue influence and fraud, plaintiff read defendant's evidence, taken before surrogate on exceptions by residuary legatee to executor's accounts based on his failure to recover same money and property, held that he thereby waived right to object that under Code Civ. Proc. § 829, defendant was incompetent to testify as to whole of transaction to which her evidence related, residuary legatee being real party in interest. Cole v. Sweet, 187 N. Y. 488, 80 N. E. 355.

83. Party cannot object to witness testifying as to conversations where he himself brings out such conversations on cross-examination. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Young, 123 Ill. App. 628. Though in will contest on ground of incapacity and undue influence a contestant was incompetent under Code, § 4604, to testify in behalf of contestants as to conversations and declarations of testator, where effect of his cross-examination was to secure from him statement that he had conversations with testator in which latter "talked all right," held that on redirect examination it was competent, for purpose of overcoming effect of such evidence, for him to testify as to what testator said which led witness to testify that conversations were such as to indicate sound mind. In re Wharton's Will [Iowa] 109 N. W. 492. Cross-examination of administrator as to his accounts, etc., held to render him competent under Act May 23, 1887, § 7 (P. L. 158), to testify in his own behalf as to transactions with decedent. Yeager's Estate, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 202. Party called for cross-examination as to matters occurring in lifetime of a decedent becomes competent witness for other party as to other relevant matters whether occurring before or after death of decedent, though such examination was not very extended or important. Shadle'e Estate, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 151. Where judge reserved right to pass upon questions arising on objection to witness' competency, and both court and counsel examined her as to matters occurring before decedent's death, held that adverse party by cross-examining as to such matters did not waive objection. De Silver's Estate, 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 174. Cross-examination of plaintiff on presentation of claim in probate court, after objection to his competency had been overruled, held not waiver of right to object to his competency in subsequent suit on note between different parties. Crow v. Crow [Mo. App.] 100 S. W. 1123.

84. In action on notes by legatee of payee, mere fact that plaintiff testified as to how she obtained the notes and identified certain letters written by defendants held not to make defendants competent witness as to transactions with testator. Chapman v. Chapman [Iowa] 109 N. W. 300. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 606, permitting person to testify for himself as to transaction with decedent when some one interested in latter's estate shall have testified against such person with reference thereto, held that plaintiff could not make his testimony competent by bringing out testimony against himself as new matter on cross-examination of person interested in the estate. Crafton v. Inge, 30 Ky. L. R. 313, 98 S. W. 325. Where widow's only interest in estate was that given her by statutes of descent and those relating to dower so that her rights could in no way be affected by plaintiff's claim to share in estate, held that she was not a person interested in decedent's estate within meaning of statute, and hence fact that she testified that certain conveyance of land to plaintiffs was an advancement did not authorize one of them to testify as to agreement with decedent in regard to consideration therefor. Id.

85. In suit by infant heirs of decedent against his widow to establish parol trust in their favor in certain of his realty standing in her name, held that her deposition was in the main competent where it was for most part made up of denials and explanations in contradiction of evidence brought out by plaintiffs in respect to acts and statements attributed to her, though untary statements of the survivor as to transactions with decedent may be proved against him as admissions without waiving any right under the statute.[88]

§ 4. Privileged communications, and persons in confidential relations. A. Attorney and client.[87]—Confidential communications between attorney and client, and knowledge acquired by the attorney by reason of the relation, are privileged and cannot be testified to by the attorney without the client's consent.[88] The relation of attorney and client must, however, have existed when the communication was made,[89] and the communication must have been in fact confidential.[90] If the

she would otherwise have been an incompetent witness owing to infancy of plaintiffs. Nelson v. Nelson, 29 Ky. L. R. 885, 96 S. W. 794.

86. Cole v. Sweet, 187 N. Y. 488, 80 N. E. 355. Introduction by executor of defendant's testimony taken at hearing on citation in probate court in proceeding for discovery of property under Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, p. 118, c. 3, §81, held not calling him as witness by adverse party within meaning of Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 51, § 2, so that his incompetency as a witness, outside of admissions made on such examination, was not thereby affected. Merchants' Loan & Trust Co. v. Egan, 222 Ill. 494, 78 N. E. 800. Hurd's Rev. St. 1905, c. 51, § 2, refers only to calling by adverse party as witness in pending suit, and in any event proceeding under c. 3, § 81, is not a suit, nor is the executor a necessary party thereto. Id. Evidence taken in probate court should be classed and treated as mere admission, to which same rules of evidence would apply as to any admission made out of court. Id.

87. See 6 C. L. 1985.

88. Communications held privileged under Kirby's Dig. § 3095. Fox v. Spears, 78 Ark. 71, 93 S. W. 560. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1881, subd. 2, held that letters written by plaintiffs to attorney, pending negotiation for conveyance of land by them and in relation thereto were inadmissible over their objection in subsequent suit to set aside such conveyance though relation of attorney and client had ceased to exist when conveyance was made. Hardy v. Martin [Cal.] 89 P. 111. Information obtained by attorney from client as to purpose of entering judgment on note, held privileged so that its omission over client's objection was error. Holmes v. Horn, 120 Ill. App. 359. Witness held properly prohibited from testifying to contents of letter placed in his hands by plaintiff as her attorney. Lindahl v. Supreme Court I. O. F. [Minn.] 110 N. W. 358. Attorney employed by prosecuting witness to assist in criminal prosecution held incompetent, both under Rev. St. 1899, § 4659, and at common law, to testify against his employer in subsequent action against latter for malicious prosecution as to communication in regard to prosecution. Pinson v. Campbell [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 621. Under Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 538, in action by assignee of account against, and indorsee of notes executed by, defendant, held that plaintiff's attorney could not be required to answer question whether or not he had advised assignor and indorser, foreign corporations and his clients, to make assignment and indorsement for purpose of evading laws relating to foreign corporations. Dewey v. Komar [S. D.] 110 N. W. 90. Letter, in relation to issue arising at trial received by local counsel of defendant railroad from defendant's general counsel, who employed him, held privileged. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Williams [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 847, 96 S. W. 1087. Held proper to refuse to require attorney to testify as to conversation between himself and person who consulted him in regard to bringing an action against defendant, though plaintiff testified that he had never consulted such attorney, particularly where attorney did not identify plaintiff as party with whom he had such conversation. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Gibson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 153, 93 S. W. 469.

89. Communications to one who was merely acting as conveyancer or friendly advisor to defendant, and who had never been admitted as attorney in any court, and was not shown to have ever been employed by defendant as legal advisor in matter in controversy, held not privileged under Rev. St. 1887, § 5958, subd. 2. Later v. Haywood [Idaho] 85 P. 494. Attorney acting as mere scrivener in preparation of instruments under directions given him is not within scope of Code, § 4608. Mueller v. Batcheler [Iowa] 109 N. W. 186. Where attorney was employed merely as an attorney in fact to negotiate sale of realty to third person, and not in his professional capacity, held that letter and cablegrams sent to him by client showing extent of his authority were not privileged. Avery v. Lee, 102 N. Y. S. 12.

90. Attorney held not precluded from testifying that from his acquaintance with handwriting of plaintiff, he was of opinion that she signed certain deed, by reason of fact that he became acquainted with her handwriting through privileged communications from her. Dukes v. Davis, 30 Ky. L. R. 1348, 101 S. W. 390. One who had been attorney for defendant in other matters, but did not represent him in criminal prosecution, held competent to testify as to his knowledge of defendant's condition of mind, his testimony not relating to any matter growing out of professional relations, and being in no sense of confidential character. Bischoff v. Com., 29 Ky. L. R. 770, 96 S. W. 538. Statement made by attorney to client of facts testified to by third person at public hearing at which client was not present held not privileged so that attorney could testify as to what he told client in regard to such testimony. Temple v. Phelps [Mass.] 79 N. E. 482. Report of accident made by official of defendant company in course of his ordinary duty immediately after accident, and before any action had been brought or threatened, held not privileged though original or copy was afterwards sent to defendant's attorneys. Virginia-Carolina Chem. Co. v. Knight [Va.] 56 S. E. 725.

relation exists when the communication is made the privilege is not removed by its subsequent termination.[91] The privilege is not lost by reason of the fact that it is in regard to a suit which must be brought in a court before which the attorney to whom it is made is not authorized to practice.[92] Knowledge derived by the attorney from his own act in creating the fact sought to be disclosed is not privileged.[93] The rule of privilege is generally held not to apply to communications between a testator and the attorney employed to prepare his will in a subsequent suit between legatees and beneficiaries to test its validity,[94] nor to preclude an attorney signing a will, deed, or other instrument as an attesting witness from testifying as to the mental condition of the person executing it, and the facts and circumstances surrounding its execution.[95] The privilege does not ordinarily extend to communications made in the presence of a third person,[96] nor is a third person precluded from testifying as to confidential communications which he overhears either by accident or design.[97] Communications to an attorney employed by two or more persons for their mutual benefit are not privileged as between them[98] but are as to third persons.[99] The privilege has been held to extend to communications by a witness or friend of the client acting with the attorney for his benefit.[1] The burden is on the objecting party to prove that the relation existed when the communication was made.[2]

The privilege is waived where the client himself testifies to,[3] or otherwise publishes,[4] the communications, or fails to interpose a proper and sufficient objection

91. Hardy v. Martin [Cal.] 89 P. 111.

92. Attorney having license authorizing him to practice before justices of peace only held improperly permitted to testify as to confidential communications of client in regard to institution of suit beyond jurisdiction of justices. English v. Ricks [Tenn.] 95 S. W. 189.

93. Contract between client and attorney as to fee to be paid for professional services, and assignment of interest in judgment recovered in payment for services rendered, held not privileged. Strickland v. Capital City Mills, 74 S. C. 16, 54 S. E. 220.

94. Attorney held competent to testify, in suit to contest probate, as to directions given him by testator concerning will, so that it could be determined whether or not instrument presented was in fact his will. In re Shapter's Estate [Colo.] 85 P. 688.

95. Provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 333 may be waived, and party permitting attorney who prepares his will to sign it as an attesting witness thereto thereby impliedly consents that latter may disclose facts and circumstances attending its execution when it is offered for probate or subsequently. Brown v. Brown [Neb.] 108 N. W. 180. Attorney who drew deed and agreement and signed same as witness held competent to testify as to mental condition of person executing them at time of their execution. Boyle v. Robinson [Wis.] 109 N. W. 623. Fact that attorney was attesting witness to document executed contemporaneously with deed sought to be set aside, and stating terms of agreement pursuant to which deed was executed, held not waiver of clients' right to object to introduction in evidence against them of previous statements made by them to him as their attorney. Hardy v. Martin [Cal.] 89 P. 111.

96. Code Civ. Proc. § 853, construed. In re Simmons' Estate, 48 Misc. 484, 96 N. Y. S. 1103.

97. State v. Falsetta [Wash.] 86 P. 168.

98. Since to constitute privileged communication there must be some element of confidence imposed, or presumed to be imposed, in attorney himself. Mueller v. Batcheler [Iowa] 109 N. W. 186. Directions given attorney as to drafting mutual conveyances of property between husband and wife, and conversation between parties in his presence as to obligations thereby assumed, held not confidential communications within meaning of Code, § 4608. Id.

99. Held proper to refuse to compel attorney, who was retained by wife to procure divorce, but subsequently acted for both she and her husband in effecting reconciliation, and drew deed conveying certain of husband's land to her as part of means to that end, to testify as to writing of said deed and its delivery to him in action on insurance policy defended on ground that husband had conveyed property covered thereby to his wife. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Wintersmith, 30 Ky. L. R. 369, 98 S. W. 987.

1. On prosecution for perjury based on affidavit of defendant made for purpose of procuring new trial for third person who had been convicted of crime, held that testimony of attorney for such third person as to reading over and explaining to defendant such affidavit, which was signed by defendant with his mark, was inadmissible. Rosebud v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 98 S. W. 858.

2. Phelps v. Root, 78 Vt. 493, 63 A. 941.

3. Where client on cross-examination repeated confidential conversations with attorney. Pinson v. Campbell [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 621. Held not error to compel attorney for accused to testify as to what latter testified to at former trial, even though such attorney originally came to his knowledge of witness' statement by reason of relationship to him as attorney. Yardley v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 399.

4. Party to cause who voluntarily solicits and procures reading of his unfiled plead-to the testimony of the attorney.[5] It has been held that the privilege may be waived by the client's representatives after his death.[6]

(§ 4) B. Physician and patient.[7]—By statute in most states, information acquired by a physician in his professional capacity for the purpose of treating or prescribing for a patient is privileged.[8] The essentials of a privileged communication between physician and patient are the confidential relation of physician and patient,[9] the necessity and propriety of the information to enable the physician to treat the patient skillfully in his professional capacity,[10] and its acquisition by the physician from the patient during the existence of the relation, and while attending him professionally.[11] The fact that the relation is established at the instance of a third party is immaterial.[12] A physician signing an instrument as an attesting witness may testify as to the mental condition of the person executing it at the time of such execution.[13]

The privilege may be waived by the patient either expressly,[14] or by failure to interpose a timely and sufficient objection to the testimony,[15] or by himself voluntarily producing or introducing at the trial evidence of the confidential communi-ing by nonprofessional stranger, publishes its contents in newspaper interview, and spreads substance of it upon record of court of general jurisdiction in pleading filed against attorney who assisted in preparing it, thereby waives its privileged character, and such attorney may produce it for use as evidence in subsequent proceeding against him. In re Burnette [Kan.] 85 P. 575.

5. Objection to evidence as incompetent does not go to competency of witness. Brown v. Brown [Neb.] 108 N. W. 180.

6. On will contest, proponent held entitled to introduce evidence of attorney who prepared will as to mental capacity of testatrix. In re Parker's Estate [Neb.] 111 N. W. 119.

7. See 6 C. L. 1986.

8. Testimony of physician who attended deceased grantor in last illness that he did not have sufficient mental capacity to execute certain deeds held within prohibition of Code, § 4608. Long v. Garey Inv. Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 26. Family physician, who acquired knowledge while attending testator in professional capacity, held incompetent, under Code Civ. Proc. § 834, to testify as to his mental capacity to make will. In re Preston's Will, 113 App. Div. 732, 99 N. Y. S. 312.

9. Communication held privileged. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Thomas [C. C. A.] 152 F. 365. Testimony of physician as to communications with accused, who was not the patient, and which in no way disclosed information received from patient other than that to which she testified, held not barred by Code, § 4608. State v. Bennett [Iowa] 110 N. W. 150. Statement made by defendant to physician, who examined him on behalf of people at request of court, held not privileged. People v. Furlong [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 978.

10. Communication held privileged. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Thomas [C. C. A.] 152 F. 365. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4659, held that physician employed by defendant to whom it sent injured employe was incompetent to testify, in action by employe for such injuries, as to any statements made by employe to him in conversation in which physician sought to ascertain his condition for purpose of treating him, and also to obtain admissions from him that would be advantageous to employer. Obermeyer v. Logeman Chair Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 59, 96 S. W. 673. Code Civ. Proc. § 834 held not to render inadmissible testimony of physician that patient told him that she carelessly got her hand into machine, since such information was not necessary to enable him to treat injury. Travis v. Haan, 103 N. Y. S. 973.

11. Communications held privileged. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Thomas [C. C. A.] 152 F. 365. Permitting prosecution in criminal case to prove by physician a conversation between witness, defendant, and state's attorney, for purpose of showing admission of defendant that he had certain disease, held not to violate Rev. Codes 1905, § 7304, physician not being examined as to any information acquired while attending defendant professionally. State v. Werner [N. D.] 112 N. W. 60.

12. Obermeyer v. Logeman Chair Mfg. Co., 120 Mo. App. 59, 96 S. W. 673. Information which is necessary and proper to enable physicians of railroad company to treat an injured person, and which is acquired by them from her for that purpose while endeavoring to treat her professionally, though against her protest, is privileged under Neb. Comp. St. 1901, § 5907. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Thomas [C. C. A.] 152 F. 365.

13. Physician signing deed as witness, particularly where it did not appear that answers to questions asked him involved disclosure of any communications received by him while attending her as a physician. Boyle v. Robinson [Wis.] 109 N. W. 623.

14. Statement made by party during cross-examination, without opportunity to advise with his counsel, and without full understanding of his legal rights, that he had no objection to physician who had treated him testifying to his legal rights, should not be treated as waiver of his privilege which cannot afterwards be withdrawn after he has consulted and been advised by counsel. Ross v. Great Northern R. Co. [Minn.] 111 N. W. 951.

15. Where physician testified on two trials without objection, held that patient could not object to his giving substantially same testimony on third trial. Elliott v. Kansas City, 198 Mo. 593, 96 S. W. 1023.

cation.[16] But testimony that is not voluntarily given, and evidence that does not recite the communication, does not work a waiver,[17] nor does the commencement of an action, nor the voluntary testimony of the plaintiff as to his physical condition.[18] In the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary, the waiver may be made by contract before the relation of physician and patient arises.[19] In New York the privilege can only be waived in open court on the trial of the action or proceeding,[20] or by the stipulation of the attorneys for the respective parties before trial.[21] As a general rule the privilege may be waived by the representative of a deceased patient[22] and is usually held not to apply in the case of disputes between heirs and beneficiaries under the will of the decedent.[23]

(§ 4) C. Husband and wife. In civil cases.[24]—Confidential communications between husband and wife are privileged both at common law and by statutes in many states.[25] The privilege does not, however, generally extend to conversations in the presence of a third person,[26] and the latter may ordinarily testify as to communications overheard by him.[27] The competency of such evidence is of course to

16. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Thomas [C. C. A.] 152 F. 365. Where patient testified to suggestion of physician that she should go home, held that she thereby waived privilege to that extent. State v. Bennett [Iowa] 110 N. W. 150.

17. Privilege held not waived. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Thomas [C. C. A.] 152 F. 365.

18. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Thomas [C. C. A.] 152 F. 365.

19. Provision in application for life insurance whereby applicant waived for himself and beneficiaries privilege or benefits of all laws making any physician incompetent held valid, since Rev. St. 1887, § 5958, subd. 4, authorizes waiver, and fixes no specific time at which it may or must take place. Trull v. Modern Woodmen of America [Idaho] 85 P. 1081. Benefits of waiver held equally available to beneficiary, so that he could examine physician who attended deceased in his last illness as to matters which would otherwise have been privileged. Id.

20. Code Civ. Proc. § 836, as amended by Laws 1899, p. 69, c. 53, does not operate to prevent waiver by calling physician and examining him at trial or by not objecting if other party calls him. Clifford v. Denver & R. G. R. Co., 188 N. Y. 349, 80 N. E. 1094. Examination of physician under a commission which plaintiff caused to be issued after issue joined held waiver, it being part of trial within meaning of statute. Id.

21. Code Civ. Proc. § 836, as amended by Laws 1899, p. 69, c. 53. Where plaintiff, after issue joined, caused commission to issue to take testimony of physician, and her attorneys either signed notice of motion or stipulation for that purpose, and signed interrogatories, and cross interrogatories were prepared by defendant and annexed to commission, held that attorneys thereby stipulated waiver of privilege. Clifford v. Denver & R. G. R. Co., 188 N. Y. 349, 80 N. E. 1094. Stipulation waiving privilege should be signed by patient's attorney. Geis v. Geis, 101 N. Y. S. 845.

22. Administrator suing to set aside conveyances made by his intestate on ground of mental incapacity held to so far represent deceased that he could waive privilege of latter by calling physician who attended him in last illness to testify as to his mental capacity. Long v. Garey Inv. Co. [Iowa] 110 N. W. 26. Does not so represent deceased in so far as deeds are sought to be set aside for fraud. Id. Privilege given by Gen. St. 1894, § 5662, subd. 4; Rev. Laws 1905, § 4660, subd. 4. Olson v. Court of Honor [Minn.] 110 N. W. 374. Where bylaws of fraternal benefit society provided that benefits of members committing sucide would not be paid except in case of unintentional self destruction while under treatment for insanity held that beneficiary could prove by attending physician that insured was under treatment for insanity when she committed suicide. Id. On will contest, proponent held entitled to introduce evidence of physician who attended testatrix in her last sickness as to her mental capacity. In re Parker's Estate [Neb.] 111 N. W. 119.

23. 2 Mills' Ann. St. § 4824 construed and held that, on proceeding between beneficiaries and heirs to contest probate of a will, physician was competent to testify as to testator's condition, though he acquired his information while attending him. In re Shapter's Estate [Colo.] 85 P. 688.

24. See 6 C. L. 1988.

25. In action on life insurance policy, wife of deceased insured held competent witness in behalf of beneficiary to testify as to health of her husband or as to what he did, or as to any other matters not involving communications between herself and him growing out of the marital relation. Illinois Life Ins. Co. v. De Lang, 30 Ky. L. R. 753, 99 S. W. 616. In action on life insurance policy by beneficiary who was wife of deceased insured, held that she was incompetent to testify as to conversations with him in regard to payment of premiums. Dakan v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. [Mo. App.] 102 S. W. 634.

26. Testimony of defendant's wife as to conversation between herself, defendant, and deceased, in which she detailed to latter previous abuse by husband of herself, held not privileged under White's Ann. Code Cr. Proc. art. 774. Cole v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 218.

27. Commonwealth v. Everson, 29 Ky. L. R. 760, 96 S. W. 460.

be determined by the substance of the witness' answer rather than the form of the question.[28]

In many states neither spouse is competent to testify for or against the other,[29] the disqualification in such case terminating with the termination of the marriage relation.[30] In some states the husband may testify in all cases where the litigation concerns the separate property of the wife unless the wife is herself incompetent by reason of the capacity in which the opposite party sues or defends.[31] In others, either spouse is a competent witness for the other in proceedings growing out of transactions wherein he or she acted as the agent of such other.[32] In Kentucky,

28. In proceeding by widow to recover dower, held error to exclude question asked plaintiff as to whether she left her husband of her own volition; whether she left his home of her own volition or through compulsion, being an inquiry not necessarily involving a transaction or communication with her husband which disqualified her as witness under Revisal 1905, § 1631. Hicks v. Hicks, 142 N. C. 231, 55 S. E. 106.

29. Mills' Ann. St. §§ 4816, 4822, construed and held that wife was competent witness for husband in proceeding by him to enforce claim against estate of decedent, to which she was not a party and in which she was not directly interested. Butler v. Phillips [Colo.] 88 P. 480. In suit by transferee of note to foreclose deed of trust given by maker and his wife to secure it, wife held not a competent witness as to defense of payment by execution of another note and trust deed. Gemkow v. Link, 225 Ill. 21, 80 N. E. 47. In action against husband and wife to recover for household goods purchased by wife, wife held incompetent to testify in behalf of plaintiffs. Stoutenborough v. Rammel, 123 Ill. App. 487. Showing that wife wrote receipt for money paid, usually did her husband's writing, and sometimes did other business for him, held not sufficient to render her competent witness in action against her husband, to prove admission by plaintiff that money paid him by defendant was all that was due; it being necessary to render her competent by reason of acting as husband's agent to show that she was in fact engaged in settlement of accounts between parties, and had general or special authority, either express or implied, from him to do so. Gulliford v. McQuillen [Kan.] 89 P. 927. Maker of note, originally joined as defendant, held to have interest in outcome of action by payee against indorser, since if latter was held liable she could recover amount of note and costs of action from him, and hence his wife was incompetent as witness. Oexner v. Loehr, 117 Mo. App. 698, 93 S. W. 333. Act May 23, 1887 (P. L. 158, 1 Purd. Dig. P. 817), and Act June 8, 1893 (P. L. 345, 2 Purd. Dig. p. 1304), held not to make either husband or wife competent witness in suit in equity by wife against her husband to cancel a deed and compel a reconveyance of her separate property. Heckman v. Heckman [Pa.] 64 A. 425. Where trial took place before passage of Acts 1904, No. 60, p. 78, defendant's wife, who had acted as his bookkeeper during time items covered by his specifications in offset occurred, held incompetent to testify as to such item. Boyce v. Bolster [Vt.] 64 A. 79. Wife held competent witness in action by husband as administrator of son to recover for wrongful death, recovery in such case going equally to father and mother. Civ. Code, § 606. Mitchell's Adm'r v. Brady, 30 Ky. L. R. 258, 99 S. W. 266. For purpose of proving that she was in fact surety of her husband on a note sued on, husband and wife are each competent. Italo French Produce Co. v. Thomas, 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 293. Mere fact that husband and wife each claimed ownership of chattels in severalty held not to make him incompetent to testify in support of his claim of exclusive ownership, in action brought by him against third party to recover damages for an alleged tortious conversion thereof. Sayler v. Walter, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 370. Mere fact that defendant subsequently, and in development of his own case, testified that he took chattels by direction of plaintiff's wife, held not to render exclusion of husband's evidence harmless. Id.

30. Where defendant objected to one of plaintiff's witnesses testifying on ground that she was plaintiff's wife, held not error to admit in evidence decree of divorce for purpose of showing that marital relations had been dissolved, and that she was therefore competent. Easterly v. Gater [Okl.] 87 P. 853. Act June 8, 1893, § 4, P. L. 344, relating to competency of spouse who has been deserted, held inapplicable to proceeding to which only husband was party and in which no judgment could be rendered which could be pleaded as res adjudicata in subsequent controversy between them involving same subject-matter. Sayler v. Walter, 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 370.

31. Levine v. Carroll, 121 Ill. App. 105. Husband held competent, under Starr & C. Ann. St. 1896, p. 1837, c. 51, § 5, to testify in wife's behalf in suit to partition land in which wife claimed interest as her separate property. Linkemann v. Knepper, 226 Ill. 473, 80 N. E. 1009.

32. Wife may testify for husband as to her transactions as his agent, whole or some part of which took place in his presence. Bloch v. American Ins. Co. [Wis.] 112 N. W. 45. Husband held competent in action against his wife where knowledge of facts to which he testified came to him directly from his acts of agency in and about her business, and related to contract in dispute in such action, which was entered into by him as her agent. Thornton v. Muus, 120 Ill. App. 422. Husband who becomes tenant of house, with guaranty against vices and defects, does not act as agent of his wife within meaning of Act 1888, No. 59, p. 61, where she is not party to lease, and is not competent witness in action by her against lessor for damages for injuries due to latent defects which defendant had promised to repair. Bianchi v. Del Valle, 117 La.

in actions by or against the wife which might have been brought by or against her if unmarried, either she or her husband, but not both, may testify.[33] In Louisiana the husband cannot be a witness for or against his wife in matters affecting her paraphernal rights.[34] The statutes of South Dakota provide that no evidence shall be excluded merely because the witness is the husband or wife of a party.[35]

In criminal prosecutions[36] against one spouse the other is not usually a competent witness,[37] with certain statutory exceptions as in the case of crimes[38] or any bodily injury or violence inflicted by one against the other.[39] Requiring accused to identify a woman as his wife in the presence of the jury has been held not to be a violation of the rule.[40] In some states one spouse may testify for, but not against, the other.[41] In others the privilege extends to confidential communications only.[42] Where one spouse cannot be required to testify against the other, in case one calls the other as a witness in his or her behalf, the cross-examination of the witness must be strictly confined to his or her examination in chief.[43] The burden is on the accused to prove the existence of the relation.[44] Divorce operates to terminate the 587, 42 So. 148. Fact that husband acted as wife's agent in management of her farm and cattle, and had examined some of latter after they were killed, held not to render him competent witness in her behalf under Rev. St. 1899, § 4656, in action by her against railroad for killing cattle. Gardner v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 684. Evidence held not to show that plaintiff's wife acted as his agent in furnishing care and support to third person for which he claimed contribution from defendant. Payne v. Payne [Wis.] 109 N. W. 105.

33. Civ. Code Prac. § 606. In suit against corporation and married woman to cancel certain shares of stock in former held by latter, and compel issuance of stock to plaintiff, held that woman's husband could testify in her behalf where she did not testify. Taylor v. Johnson, 30 Ky. L. R. 656, 99 S. W. 320. If wife elects to have husband testify, he cannot testify as to transactions with decedent as to which she would be incompetent witness. Doty v. Dickey, 29 Ky. L. R. 900, 96 S. W. 544. In action by married woman to cancel note and mortgage on ground that another note and mortgage had been given as substitute therefor, held that, though both plaintiff and her husband could not testify as to same matter, she could testify as to all transactions had with her personally, and husband, in addition thereto, could testify as to those things which he did as agent for her and as to which she did not testify. Leigh v. Citizens' Sav. Bk. [Ky.] 102 S. W. 233.

34. Bianchi v. Del Valle, 117 La. 587, 42 So. 148.

35. Rev. Code Civ. Proc. § 486. Guillaume v. Flannery [S. D.] 108 N. W. 255.

36. See 6 C. L. 1991.

37. Letters written by husband to wife held inadmissible on prosecution of former for bigmay. Hearne v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 372, 97 S. W. 1050. On prosecution for murder, deposition of defendant's wife in his behalf held properly excluded. Joseph v. Com., 30 Ky. L. R. 638, 99 S. W. 311.

38. Bigamy held crime against marriage relation and not a crime committed by one spouse against other within meaning of 2 Ball. Ann. Codes & St. § 5994, so that it was error to allow first wife to testify against husband accused of that crime. State v. Kniffen [Wash.] 87 P. 837.

39. On prosecution of defendant for assault with intent to murder his wife, latter held competent, under statute, to testify against him. Purdy v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 295, 97 S. W. 480. In any criminal proceeding against the husband or wife for any bodily injury or violence inflicted by the one on the other, the latter is competent and may be compelled to testify. Husband held competent on prosecution of divorced wife for assault with intent to murder him. Williams v. State [Ala.] 43 So. 720. Under Civ. Code, § 331, wife may testify as to crime committed against her by her husband, and it is proper for her to state all of the facts relating to the commission of such crime, though evidence may tend to convict him of another and different offense committed at same time and in same transaction. Miller v. State [Neb.] 111 N. W. 637.

40. Held not error to have mother of prosecutrix come before jury and to have accused on cross-examination identify her as his wife. Barra v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 171, 97 S. W. 94.

41. Common-law rule forbidding husband or wife from testifying against each other held not modified to extent of permitting first wife from testifying against her husband, who has married another woman and is on trial for bigamy. State v. Bates, 4 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 502.

42. On prosecution for bigamy, letters written by defendant in which he called addressee his wife, coupled with testimony of witness who saw them delivered, held admissible to show relation of husband and wife, where they disclosed no fact of private or confidential nature. Caldwell v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 473.

43. Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 993. Held error to require wife to give certain testimony against husband on cross-examination in criminal case, it not being pertinent or germane to her evidence in chief. Id.

44. Objection by accused to witness testifying against him on ground that she was his wife held properly overruled, where there was nothing in record at the time to show that she was his wife and he offered

incompetency except as to confidential communications.[45] Evidence as to privileged communications is generally held to be competent if obtained from some other source than the testimony of one of the parties.[46] The privilege is ordinarily deemed waived by failure to interpose a proper and timely objection to the competency of the witness.[47]

(§ 4) D. Miscellaneous relations.[48]—Statements made to a clergyman are not ordinarily privileged unless made to him in his professional character in the course of the discipline enjoined by the rules of practice of religious denomination to which he belongs.[49]

§ 5. Credibility, impeachment, and corroboration of witnesses. A. Credibility in general.[50]—The credibility of witnesses,[51] and whether they have been success-no evidence to prove it, it not being incumbent on court to direct production of proof on the matter. State v. Frye [Wash.] 89 P. 170.

45. Witness who was wife of accused when crime was alleged to have been committed, but had been divorced before trial, held competent witness against him, notwithstanding provision of Code, § 4606. State v. Mathews [Iowa] 109 N. W. 616.

46. In criminal case where letter written and sent by defendant to his wife is not in custody or control of either defendant or his wife, or of any agent or representative of either, but is in custody and control of third person called as witness for prosecution, it may be used as evidence against defendant. Connella v. Ter., 16 Okl. 365, 86 P. 72.

47. Testimony given by defendant's wife against him without objection on trial for forgery held admissible against him on trial for perjury charged to have been committed by him in the forgery case, in so far as it tended to show materiality of his testimony which was basis of perjury charge, particularly where he made no objection thereto. People v. Chadwick [Cal.] 87 P. 389, afg. [Cal. App.] 87 P. 384. If defendant desires to object to witness testifying against him on ground that she is his wife, he must challenge her competency when she is sworn and try question out before court as an independent fact, so that where competency was not challenged it was not error to exclude evidence to show that prosecutrix in rape case was defendant's wife at time of trial. State v. Falsetta [Wash.] 86 P. 168. Where objection on ground that witness was defendant's wife was rightly overruled because there was nothing in evidence to show that such was the fact, held that on witness subsequently stating on cross-examination that she was his wife it was duty of defendant to move to strike her testimony, and, not having done so, he could not complain of her incompetency on appeal. State v. Frye [Wash.] 89 P. 170.

48. See 6 C. L. 1992.

49. Statement held not privileged under Rev. St. 1899, § 4659. State v. Morgan, 196 Mo. 177, 95 S. W. 402.

50. See 6 C. L. 1992.

51. After court has determined that person is competent to testify as witness. State v. Simes [Idaho] 85 P. 914. Whether parties, who were only witnesses, were of equal credibility. Murphy v. Hiltibridle [Iowa] 109 N. W. 471. Where is sharp conflict in testimony, is province of jury to give credence to those witnesses regarded by them as the more credible. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1013. Held that if jury disbelieved testimony of certain witnesses on account of inconsistencies and contradictions therein, they were warranted in disregarding it. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Hutchison, 79 Ark. 247, 96 S. W. 374. Mere fact that plaintiff positively identified wrong person as conductor on car on which she alleged she was hurt held not to necessarily prove that her testimony as to injury was false, question being merely one which affected her credibility, and hence for jury. Plattor v. Seattle Elec. Co. [Wash.] 87 P. 489. Question asked witness on cross-examination as to whether she told truth in making certain statement held improper, that being question for jury, and question also calling for conclusion. Wright v. State [Ala.] 43 So. 575. In determining weight to be given evidence, jury should consider interest of witnesses, opportunity to know facts, apparent fairness or bias, etc. Evans v. Barnett [Del.] 63 A. 770. On prosecution for homicide, held that requested instruction that if any of state's witnesses had exhibited malice or anger against defendant, or had testified to contradictory statements and thereby satisfied jury that they had not testified truly and were not worthy of belief, and jury thought that their testimony should, on those accounts, be disregarded, they might disregard it, should have been given. Hammond v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 761. Also instruction that, if upon all the evidence jury believed that testimony as to good character of two named witnesses was sufficient to overcome impeaching testimony against them, they should weigh their testimony in light of proof of good character along with all other evidence in case. Id. Also instruction that, if jury did not believe that a named witness made statements which another witness testified he made to him, then first witness was not impeached. Id. Court should not give instructions designed to influence jury as to credit to be given to particular witness. Instruction held erroneous. Godair v. Ham Nat. Bk., 225 Ill. 572, 80 N. E. 407. Requested instruction that jury should be very cautious and careful as to weight and credence given child's testimony held properly refused. Gordon v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 847. Instruction intimating that prominent and striking contradictions in testimony of different witnesses should be attributed to deliberate perjury, and that coincidence in all particulars in stories of two or more witnesses always casts suspicion upon their evidence, held erroneous. State v. Allen fully impeached,[52] are questions for the jury. The jury may disregard[53] the testimony of a witness who has willfully[54] sworn falsely[55] to a material fact,[56] except in so far as he has been corroborated by other credible evidence.[57]

[Mont.] 87 P. 177. Held error to direct verdict on ground that witness was not worthy of belief. Waters v. Davis [C. C. A.] 145 F. 912. Under Rev. Laws, c. 173, § 80, providing that court shall not charge with respect to matters of fact, held that judge has no right to tell jury that evidence of witness is open to the gravest doubt. Hayes v. Moulton [Mass.] 80 N. E. 215. Committing magistrate has sams right to judge of credibility of witnesses as jury would at trial, and, where thers is conflict of testimony, court cannot do so on application for writ of habeas corpus. Ex parte Vandiveer [Cal. App.] 88 P. 993. How far credibility of witness is affected by his interest held question for trial court, where case was tried to court without jury. Ripperdan v. Weldy [Cal.] 87 P. 276.

52. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Andrews, 125 Ga. 85, 54 S. E. 76. Whether statements of witness out of court as to her age, inconsistent with her evidence, tended to discredit her testimony, and, if so, to what extent testimony was discredited thereby. Instruction approved. Raymond v. People, 226 Ill. 483, 80 N. E. 996. Where witness is contradicted as to a material matter, or evidence is offered showing that he hae made statements at another time inconsistent with his testimony as to a material matter, he is not thereby impeached unless jury believe therefrom that he has wilfully sworn falsely as to such matter. Chicago City Ry. Co. v. Ryan, 225 Ill. 287, 80 N. E. 116. Instruction that if jury believed that any witness had been successfully impeached, or had sworn falsely as to any material matter, they were at libsrty to disregard his entire testimony except in so far as it had been corroborated, held improper under circumstances, as leading jury to believe that they might disregard uncorroborated testimony of witnesses who had been contradicted though they might not believe that they had wilfully testified falsely as to a material matter, or although contradiction was as to immaterial matter, there being no instruction defining "successfully impeached." Id.

53. Where witness is impeached in one particular, is within province of court or jury to disregard his testimony on that account on other points. Sebree v. Rogers [Ky.] 102 S. W. 841. Does not require jury to cut out of evidence everything that has been said by a witness who they believe has willfully testified falsely as to one fact. Shupack v. Gordon [Conn.] 64 A. 740. Instruction held not objectionable as not applying maxim to facts. Id. Rule only authorizes jury to disregard testimony and does not require them to do so. Commonwealth v. Ieradi [Pa.] 64 A. 889. Minot v. Boston & M. R. Co. [N. H.] 66 A. 825. Is not mandatory rule of evidence, but permissible inference. Addis v. Rushmore [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 1036.

54. Rule applies only where witness has knowingly and willfully given false testimony. Instruction held erroneous. Godair v. Ham Nat. Bk., 225 Ill. 572, 80 N. E. 407. Testimony must have been corruptly or designedly false. Instruction held erroneous. Gibson v. Yazoo, etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 43 So. 674; Bell v. State [Miss.] 43 So. 84. Instruction that if jury found witnesses false in one thing presumption was that they were false in everything testified held not error requiring new trial, where only testimony to which it could apply must necessarily be either true or knowingly false. Glenn v. Augusta R. & Elec. Co., 121 Ga. 80, 48 S. E. 684. Where witness testifies falsely as to fact in respect to which he cannot be presumed liable to mistake, courts are bound to apply maxim. Alexander v. Blackman, 26 App. D. C. 541. Fact that plaintiff in action on partnership notes alleged in sworn statement that firm was composed of certain named persons, and that he later presented verified petition based on later information asking for an amendment of his record did not warrant application of doctrine, partnership not having registered names of its members. Daniel v. Lance, 29 Pa. Supsr. Ct. 454.

55. Instruction approved. Alabama Steel & Wire Co. v. Griffin [Ala.] 42 So. 1034; Parham v. State [Ala.] 42 So. 1; Prior v. Territory [Ariz.] 89 P. 412. Code Civ. Proc. § 2061, subd. 3, providing that a witness false in one part of his testimony is to be distrusted in others, held not to require absolute rejection of whole of witness' testimony because certain facts testified to by her on cross-examination were apparently physically impossible. Ex parte Vandiveer [Cal. App.] 88 P. 993. Instruction authorizing jury to disregard testimony of witnesses who they believed had been guilty of willful or gross exaggeration as to any material thing held not reversible error, though not commendable. Sedoff v. City R. Co., 120 Ill. App. 609. Corroborated and uncontradicted testimony of plaintiff that he was refused transfer held not rendered improbable so as to authorize court to disregard it because he testified that he saw stenographer drawing up complaint which was in record, when in fact such complaint was mimeograph copy, mimeograph complaint being blank form which must be properly filled out before it can be used, and it being reasonably inferable and reconcilable with his testimony that he may have seen stenographer filling in blanks. Berus v. New York City R. Co., 101 N. Y. S. 748.

56. Testimony must be material. Instruction held erroneous. Gibson v. Yazoo etc., R. Co. [Miss.] 43 So. 674. Evidence held contradictory of testimony of witness on material point so that if jury believed it and found that witness was successfully impeached on such point they might disregard his entire testimony. Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Andrews, 125 Ga. 85, 54 S. E. 76.

57. Instruction that if jury believes any witness has willfully testified falsely in a material matter they may disregard his entire testimony need not make an exception in favor of such portion thereof as is corroborated. Burgess v. Alcorn [Kan.] 90 P. 239. Instruction authorizing jury to disregard testimony of any witness whom they

Impeaching and discrediting in general.[58]—The extent to which the cross-examination of a witness may be carried for the purpose of testing his credibility[59] or discrediting his evidence[60] is largely discretionary with the trial court. The more usual methods of impeaching or discrediting a witness are more particularly believed had willfully sworn falsely as to any material matter, except in so far as he had been corroborated by other credible evidence, "which they do believe," held prejudicially erroneous, since jury cannot disregard evidence of such a witness who has been corroborated by other credible evidence. Sedoff v. City R. Co., 124 Ill. App. 609.

58. See 6 C. L. 1993.

59. Regester v. Regester [Md.] 64 A. 286. Matters brought out on cross-examination, which are legitimate for purpose of enabling jury to determine credibility of a witness, are not objectionable, though they may relate to questions not in issue in the case. Vindicator Consol. Gold Min. Co. v. Firstbrook [Colo.] 86 P. 313. In action for damages for injury to realty resulting from grading of abutting sidewalk, where plaintiff testified that lot was worth certain sum before grading was done, held proper to ask him whether he had not offered to sell it to named person for less sum for purpose of testing accuracy of his knowledge, reasonableness of his estimate of value, and, in consequence, credibility of his testimony. Town of Eutaw v. Botnick [Ala.] 43 So. 739. On prosecution for homicide, held proper to allow state to cross-examine witnesses who had testified as to deceased's bad character as to particular instances within their knowledge. Weaver v. State [Ark.] 102 S. W. 713. Where accident resulting in injuries for which action was brought occurred in Nov. 1898, and action was not commenced until summer of 1899, and it appeared that plaintiff had not made any claim against defendant for the injury, held not an abuse of discretion to refuse to allow certain questions as to whom he first made complaint of his injury, etc. Chicago etc., R. Co. v. Steckman, 224 Ill. 500, 79 N. E. 602. Not improper to ask witness whether he realizes what will happen to him in another world if he testifies falsely, and whether he knows nature of an oath, and penalty for false swearing. State v. Armstrong [La.] 43 So. 57. In action for personal injuries received in railroad wreck, held proper to require physician who was witness for defendant, and who stated that he had examined plaintiff at place and time of wreck, to testify as to confusion existing at wreck and its effect upon witness, since it tended to prove conditions in which witness acquired knowledge of facts in regard to which he testified, and which would be liable to affect the fullness and accuracy of his observation and impressions. Southern R. Co. v. Lester [C. C. A.] 151 F. 573. See, also, Examination of Witnesses, 7 C. L. 1593.

60. On prosecution for homicide, question asked for purpose of showing enmity on part of witness for deceased, and thus contradicting his claim of special friendship, held proper. Glass v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 727. In action for breach of promise where defendant denied promise, seduction, etc., held proper to ask him whether he had received certain letter which plaintiff testified she wrote him, since fact that he received it and remained silent under charges which it contained might tend to contradict or discredit his testimony. Lanigan v. Neely [Cal. App.] 89 P. 441. On prosecution for murder, extent of cross-examination of witness as to what was said by members of decedent's family at a family meeting as to what their testimony would be. State v. Blee [Iowa] 111 N. W. 19. Refusal to allow certain questions asked prosecutrix in rape case as to her associations with other men held not abuse of discretion. State v. Gereke [Kan.] 86 P. 160. On prosecution for homicide, where witness testified to defendant's good reputation for morality and peaceableness, held proper to bring out, for purpose of discrediting him only, that he had heard of defendant drawing pistol on third person. Newton v. Com. [Ky.] 102 S. W. 264. Witness for defense may be cross-examined on all matters brought out on his direct examination, and it is no objection that his answers may affect his credibility and character, cross-examination being one of modes of impeaching credibility of witness. State v. Brown [La.] 42 So. 969. Defendant held entitled to ask witness for state as to an asserted offer by him to swear to anything which would be of benefit to his brother who had previously been charged with larceny. State v. Caron [La.] 42 So. 960. Where subscribing witness to will merely testified as to certain physical acts of testator and did not express any opinion as to his sanity and was not qualified to do so, held that court was justified in refusing to allow him to be asked whether he had not stated on day will was executed that it was a shame to make testator make a will, and that they might as well have a dead man, as being so vague and indefinite as not to have any tendency to contradict him. Gleason v. Daly [Mass.] 80 N. E. 486. On trial of policeman before police commission on charges of drunkenness and neglect of duty, held that it was proper to show that he had been previously tried several times for similar derelictions, as affecting credibility of excuse that he took whiskey because of disease which he claimed to be suffering from. People v. Lewis, 111 App. Div. 375, 97 N. Y. S. 1057. In action against carrier for injuries to passenger, held proper to ask motorman and conductor if they had not made certain statement as to how accident occurred, since, if it appeared that they had done so, it modified and discredited stories told by them on examination in chief. Sperbeck v. Camden & S. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 64 A. 1012. Question whether witness did not tell certain person, with whom he testified to having a conversation, that he did not know anything about certain occurrences to which he had testified, held proper, either as contradicting witness or as basis for impeachment. Earley v. Winn [Wis.] 109 N. W. 633. See, also, Examination of Witnesses, 7 C. L. 1593.

discussed in succeeding paragraphs.[61] In general the testimony of a witness may be discredited by proving facts contrary to those testified to by him,[62] or that he made statements which he denies having made,[63] or did not make statements which he claims to have made,[64] or by showing acts [65] or statements [66] of the witness, or other circumstances,[67] inconsistent with his testimony. Inconsistency between the 61. See § 5, subsecs. B, C, D.

62. Evidence held admissible: Evidence contradicting witness for defendant who denied that he had attempted corruptly to dissuade witness for prosecution from giving certain evidence. People v. Yee Foo [Cal. App.] 89 P. 450. State held entitled to contradict material statements of defendant with reference to alleged payment of money by him to third person to induce latter not to testify against him. Commonwealth v. Hargis, 30 Ky. L. R. 510, 99 S. W. 348. Where witness testified that defendant was member of firm to which he belonged, and that all of the members of said firm had signed certain mortgage given by it, mortgage which was not signed by defendant. Rector v. Robins [Ark.] 102 S. W. 209. Where defendant in murder trial claimed that killing was in self-defense, and testified that, before killing, he had heard that deceased who was a marshal had clubbed and seriously injured an old man in arresting him, and that he died shortly afterwards, but did not remember who told him, evidence that said old man died from senility and alcoholism, and that there were no bruises or marks on his person. Knapp v. State [Ind.] 79 N. E. 1076. Convictions of crime held provable in contradiction of answers of witness. State v. Griggsby, 117 La. 1046, 42 So. 497. Where witness testified that track was in same condition at time of accident as at time of trial, and that it had not been repaired, held that it was proper to allow opposite party to prove by certain witnesses that they had seen defendant making repairs. Schloemer v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 102 S. W. 565. Testimony by plaintiff that physician dragged her up and down hall of hospital, and that nurse told him to bring her to bed, etc., to impeach such physician who had testified to contrary. Stoebler v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 102 S. W. 651.

Evidence held inadmissible: In action against street railway for death of plaintiff's son, where motorman testified on cross-examination that he had been present at coroner's inquest, but had not testified, transcript of evidence at inquest showing that witness had been sworn but had declined to testify on ground that he might incriminate himself was inadmissible, witness' statement being substantially true, and plaintiff not being entitled to have jury draw inference to prejudice of defendant from his refusal. Masterson v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 98 S. W. 504.

63. State v. Darling [Mo.] 100 S. W. 631; Sperbeck v. Camden & S. R. Co. [N. J. Law] 64 A. 1012; State v. Sanders [S. C.] 56 S. E. 35; Myers v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 1000. Where witness testified that he had no recollection of making certain statement. Rector v. Robins [Ark.] 102 S. W. 209. Where witness in criminal case denied having made certain statements to prosecuting witness, held proper for state to show that he did make them for purpose of indicating his interest in case, though defendant was not present when they were made. State v. Mulhall, 199 Mo. 202, 97 S. W. 583.

64. Maxey v. Fairbanks Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 300, 95 S. W. 632.

65. Since, under Kirby's Dig. § 3138, where defendant in criminal case introduces an accomplice as a witness he subjects him to same rules for impeachment as are applicable to all other witnesses, held not error to admit evidence as to accomplice doing certain acts and making certain statements which he denied. Benton v. State, 78 Ark. 284, 94 S. W. 688. On claim by tenant against estate of deceased landlord for damages caused by collapse of leased building while in course of reconstruction followed by fire occasioned thereby, held that fact that claimant had previously sued insurance companies for loss could not be considered as bearing on consistency of his conduct and credibility of his testimony, in view of his testimony that such action was commenced merely to protect his interests at time when he did not know what caused building to collapse. Blickley v. Luce [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 121, 111 N. W. 752. In condemnation proceedings where witness, who had been one of the commissioners who had assessed damages, testified that in his opinion construction of railroad through defendant's property did not damage it to any extent, held proper to require him, on cross-examination, to state how much commissioners had awarded to owner of property near that of defendant for purpose of showing inconsistency of low estimate of defendant's damages with his own estimate of damage to other property. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Continental Brick Co., 198 Mo. 698, 96 S. W. 1011.

66. In action against railroad to recover value of cotton destroyed by fire which it was claimed resulted from negligent burning of ties by section foreman, held proper to show by such foreman on cross-examination that he had asked plaintiff not to refer to fact that ties had been set on fire near cotton if he could collect claim without doing so, as affecting credibility of his testimony that it was impossible for fire to have been communicated to cotton from coals left after ties were burned. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Clements [Ark.] 99 S. W. 1106. See, also, § 5 D, post.

67. Evidence held admissible: Where witness testified that defendant was member of firm to which he belonged, and denied that at time certain letter heads were printed for firm he gave printer names of members and told him how to print them, testimony of printer that witness gave him names to go on letter heads, and that defendant's name was not on list and letter heads themselves. Rector v. Robins [Ark.] 102 S. W. 209. here witness testified that certain notes were signed by all signers as members of firm, notes in which word "security" followed defendant's signature. Id.

testimony of a witness on direct examination and his testimony on cross-examination is not ground for excluding his evidence, but merely goes to his credibility.[68] Evidence that a witness has kept silence as to material facts which in the natural order of things he would have disclosed had he known of them is, if not too remote, generally admissible as being contradictory of his testimony as to such facts.[68]

A party cannot ordinarily impeach his own witness,[70] even though he is afterwards called by the adverse party,[71] except in so far as that result may be incidentally accomplished by proving a state of facts differing from that sworn to by him,[72]

Where witness testified that defendant told him that he was going into business with certain members of said firm and wanted his timber, and that witness subsequently entered into contract with him therefor, held that it was proper to cross-examine him as to contract, and to introduce contract which was signed by defendant as "security." Id. Where witness had testified that plaintiff made certain statements as to her injuries immediately after they occurred, that evidence of proprietor of store where she was at the time that he did not hear her make them. South Covington, etc., R. Co. v. Core, 29 Ky. L. R. 836, 96 S. W. 562. Where witness testified that he was able to tell cost price of certain goods in certain town from his general knowledge, independent of any marks thereon, evidence of certain other persons as to their ability as experienced merchants to tell cost thereof in absence of cost mark and invoice. Inlow v. Bybee [Mo. App.] 99 S. W. 785.

Evidence held inadmissible: Where fact that witness, by whom threats were proved, did not speak of them at coroner's inquest at which he was member of jury, was brought out, held not error to refuse to allow him to be asked on cross-examination if coroner's jury was not instructed to look up all evidence they could bearing on question. Parham v. State [Ala.] 42 So. 1. Evidence as to custom of police officers in examining and searching prisoners held inadmissible to affect credibility of state's witnesses who had testified as to examination and search of defendant. State v. Barrington, 198 Mo. 23, 95 S. W. 235. Disposition of charges made against certain other persons arrested at same time as defendant held inadmissible as tending to impeach testimony of officers who arrested defendant by showing that they made unwarranted arrests and did not know who was guilty, in absence of some admission by officer making arrest. People v. Way, 104 N. Y. S. 277.

68. Fact that on prosecution for homicide witness testified on direct examination that he saw cutting and on cross-examination that he did not see killing. Benjamin v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 739.

69. On prosecution for homicide, deceased having been killed in house by shot fired from outside, and sole question being as to identity of assassin, and witness for state having testified to seeing accused concealed with gun near house just before shot was fired, held competent to prove that witness, while speaking of murder on night of its occurrence, had not mentioned fact of having so seen defendant. State v. Armstrong [La.] 43 So. 57. Evidence that witness never told facts in regard to decedent to which he testified being admissible, held that evidence as to rumors, newspaper reports, and suspicions in regard to manner of decedent's death were admissible to strengthen inference that if witness had known facts he would have spoken of them. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Mathews [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 957, 93 S. W. 1068. Where witness claimed to have told certain person of facts to which he testified, held that evidence tending to show that he could not have done so was admissible to sustain defendant's contention that he had never told anyone, that fact being relevant. Id. Where defendant in criminal case testified in his own behalf, held proper to elicit from him on cross-examination that he had never before mentioned certain transaction in regard to which he testified. Henderson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 208.

70. See 6 C. L. 1995. Womble v. Wilbur [Cal. App.] 86 P. 916; Beier v. St. Louis Transit Co., 197 Mo. 215, 94 S. W. 876; Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 993. In action on contract where plaintiff called defendant's husband, who was alleged to have signed contract as defendant's attorney, held that he was bound by his testimony on direct examination that he had no authority to sign. Alcolm Co. v. Brenack, 96 N. Y. S. 1055. Question whether witness had not made certain statement held not objectionable as impeachment by party calling him. State v. Barrett, 117 La. 1086, 42 So. 513. Party who has cross-examined witness held not, by recalling him for purpose of asking impeaching questions, to have made him his own witness. Schultz v. Reed, 122 Ill. App. 420. Held discretionary with court to allow solicitor for state to recall witnesses for defendant for purpose of laying foundation for their impeachment by proof of contradictory statements, and, by so doing, state did not make them its witnesses. Hammond v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 761. Where plaintiff had not offered certain person as witness in case at bar, held that he could show by his deposition taken by plaintiff in another case that he had made statements contrary to his testimony. Carp v. Queen Ins. Co. [Mo.] 101 S. W. 78.

71. In absence of special circumstances. Johnston v. Marriage [Kan.] 86 P. 451. Plaintiff having called witness and elicited material testimony from him, held not entitled to impeach him as to evidence given by him when subsequently called as witness for defendant. O'Doherty v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 113 App. Div. 636, 99 N. Y. S. 351.

72. Chicago City R. Co. v. Gregory, 221 Ill. 591, 77 N. E. 1112. Party cannot impeach a witness voluntarily called by him, except as that result may be incidentally accomplished by proving a state of facts differing from that sworn to by the witness in question. Id. Though plaintiff made defendant her own witness, and hence could not impeach him by showing previous admissions or unless he has been entrapped or misled by some trick or artifice by the other party, or by the witness, into calling him and making him his own.[73] A party surprised by the evidence of his own witness, however, is generally allowed to interrogate him as to inconsistent statements previously made by him, for the purpose of refreshing his memory and inducing him to correct his testimony,[74] and, in some states, may, in the discretion of the court, be allowed to cross-examine him, and, after laying a proper foundation, show his previous contradictory statements.[75] Statutes in some states authorize proof of contradictory statements made by a witness giving testimony unfavorable to the party calling him.[76] The mere faliure of a witness to testify as expected will not, however, entitle the party introducing him to show that he stated out of court that such fact existed.[77]

at variance with his testimony, held that such admissions were competent evidence against him of facts contained therein. Gould v. John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co., 99 N. Y. S. 833. Plaintiff held not bound by answers of defendant's agent simply because he called him as a witness, but he could contradict him. Kohl v. Bradley, Clark & Co. [Wis.] 110 N. W. 265.

73. Mere fact that other party issued subpoena for same witness, whom he did not put on stand, held not such a trick or artifice. Beier v. St. Louis Transit Co., 197 Mo. 215, 94 S. W. 876. Where defendant made no affidavit of surprise, and did not show that, during long lapse of time between making of certain ex parte statements by witness and the trial, it had made any effort to ascertain whether such statements were remembered or would be sustained by witnesses under oath, and there was no attempt to show collusion between plaintiff and such witnesses to toll plaintiff into snare, held that defendant was not entitled to introduce such statements to impeach such witnesses. Id.

74. In prosecution for selling liquor without license, where witness for state was reluctant and testified that he was not certain that he paid for whiskey or whether it was purchased by him within a year preceding prosecution, held not an abuse of discretion to allow state's attorney to refresh his memory by asking whether he had not previously made certain statements to him and grand jury in regard to matter. Thomasson v. State [Ark.] 97 S. W. 297. On prosecution for assault with intent to kill, where prosecuting witness stated on cross-examination that he did not know who shot him, held not error to allow state to ask him on redirect if he had not stated to certain person that defendant shot him. People v. Smith, 113 App. Div. 396, 99 N. Y. S. 118. Held within discretion of court to allow prosecuting attorney to ask witness certain questions on direct examination. Territory v. Livingston [N. M.] 84 P. 1021. Where district attorney called father of defendant who had been witness for defendant at former trial, but not at trial in question, held that there was no justification for getting before jury his testimony on former trial and then subjecting him to severe cross-examination for purpose of discrediting him, even though fact that he was unwilling or adverse might have justified calling attention to his former testimony. People v. Dixon, 103 N. Y. S. 186.

75. Lindquist v. Dickson, 98 Minn. 369, 107 N. W. 958. Rule applies in criminal as well as civil cases. State v. Sederstrom, 99 Minn. 234, 109 N. W. 113. Held not abuse of discretion on prosecution for homicide to permit state to interrogate its witness as to his testimony at coroner's inquest, and to admit such testimony in evidence, for purpose of showing that state was taken by surprise. State v. Waldrop, 73 S. C. 60, 52 S. E. 793. Exception on ground of refusal to allow plaintiff to show that his witness had made contrary statements just before trial not passed on, but case affirmed. Pooler v. Smith, 73 S. C. 102, 52 S. E. 967. Though under Rev. St. 1887, § 6080, a party producing a witness may contradict him by other evidence and show that at other times he has made statements inconsistent with his present testimony, prosecutor in criminal case should not propound questions for mere purpose of discrediting him where he is not prepared to show such inconsistency. State v. Fowler [Idaho] 89 P. 757.

76. Under Code Civ Proc. §§ 2049, 2052, held that prosecution could cross-examine witness called by it as to previous contradictory statements, where she denied facts which she was called to prove. People v. Cook, 148 Cal. 334, 83 P. 43. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 596, where witness states fact prejudicial to party calling him, latter may show that fact does not exist by proving that witness has made statements to others inconsistent with his testimony. Dukes v. Davis, 30 Ky. L. R. 1348, 101 S. W. 390. Where, on prosecution for homicide, witness for state professed to narrate all facts which occurred at certain time and her testimony tended to corroborate that of defendant, held that state could show that she made different statements as to the matter to other persons just after the homicide. Garrison v. Com., 29 Ky. L. R. 411, 93 S. W. 594. Testimony of witness for state in criminal case being clearly prejudicial to theory of prosecution and affecting merits of case, held that, under B. & C. Comp. § 850, prosecution had right to show that witness had at other times made statements inconsistent with his evidence. State v. Jennings [Or.] 87 P. 524.

77. Garrison v. Com., 29 Ky. L. R. 411, 93 S. W. 594. Where state's witness testified to nothing against state's interest, but merely failed to tell facts as he had previously told them to other people, held prejudicial error to permit state to examine witness as to statements previously made

A witness cannot ordinarily be contradicted or impeached as to collateral matters,[78] though the court is sometimes held to have discretionary power to allow such a course.[79] by him, to prove such statements when witness denied making them, etc. Ozark v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 927. State held not entitled to impeach its own witness, where there was no claim of surprise, or that he gave testimony of an affirmative character hurtful to it, though he failed to testify to some facts it desired to prove by him. Quinn v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 248.

78. See 6 C. L. 1996. Southern R. Co. v. Hobbs [Ala.] 43 So. 844; Moody v. Peirano [Cal. App.] 88 P. 380; Boles v. People [Colo.] 86 P. 1030; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Crosby [Fla.] 43 So. 318; French v. Com., 30 Ky. L. R. 98, 97 S. W. 427; State v. Freddy, 117 La. 121, 41 So. 436; State v. Caron [La.] 42 So. 960; State v. Valle, 196 Mo. 29, 93 S. W. 1115; State v. Murphy [Mo.] 100 S. W. 414; State v. Jones, 74 S. C. 456, 54 S. E. 1017; Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Carr [Va.] 56 S. E. 276; Brundige v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 95 S. W. 527; Barbee v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 377, 97 S. W. 1058; Prewitt v. Southwestern Tel. & T. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 812; State v. McLain [Wash.] 86 P. 390; Earley v. Winn [Wis.] 109 N. W. 633; Dunham v. Salmon [Wis.] 109 N. W. 959. Refusal to admit letter written by witness held proper. Brackett & Co. v. Americus Grocery Co. [Ga.] 56 S. E. 762. On prosecution for carnally knowing female under sixteen, fact that defendant, on cross-examination, and without objection, denied that he had ever been upstairs in restaurant where offense was claimed to have been committed held not to entitle state to prove by another witness that he had been up there with her. Dalton v. People, 224 Ill. 333, 79 N. E. 669. In action on case for negligence, statement of defendant's foreman, on cross-examination, that he had not requested newspaper not to publish account of accident held to have been in response to question involving a collateral matter. Finn v. New England Tel. & T. Co., 101 Me. 279, 64 A. 490. In action for damages for negligent killing of child by street car, location of wagon held material, so that evidence of contradictory statement of witness in regard to it was admissible. Mullin v. St. Louis Transit Co., 196 Mo. 572, 94 S. W. 288. Evidence that witness had previously stated that machine was fixed, etc., held inadmissible to contradict his statement on direct examination that nut was not off from bolt at time of accident or previously, such purpose being too remote to sustain statement otherwise incompetent and of character to be very influential with jury. Loughlin v. Brassil [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 854. On prosecution for homicide where deceased's wife testified that she had been sick and nervous, evidence of physician who had examined her that he did not consider her sick held inadmissible. Keith v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 516, 94 S. W. 1044. On prosecution for homicide, held prejudicial error to permit witness to testify that before homicide he had stated, in absence of defendant, that deceased would be killed within three days. Woodward v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 128, 97 S. W. 499. Where witness testified that there was no one keeping lookout on rear of backing train, evidence that on day of accident he had stated that it was railroad company's fault because it had no such lookout, and that plaintiff had good cause of action, held inadmissible. Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Adams [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 58, 98 S. W. 222. Question as to conduct of defendant's wife held collateral in prosecution for murder. Jones v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 993. Held proper to refuse to allow defendant to show that plaintiff had testified in another case that she only had one child while in one at bar she testified that she had four. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 1061. Evidence bearing upon story of a witness with sufficient directness and force to give it appreciable value in determining whether or not such story is true cannot be said to be addressed to an irrelevant or collateral issue. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Mathews [Tex.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 957, 93 S. W. 1068. Evidence that witness did not disclose facts when he naturally would have been expected to do so. Id. Whereabouts of third person held material on prosecution for homicide. Green v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 781, 98 S. W. 1059. Admission of evidence of contradictory statements held not objectionable. Stark v. Burke [Iowa] 109 N. W. 206. Testimony of witness on examination in chief to explain how he happened to be where he could hear conversation held not collateral, so that evidence tending to contradict it was improperly stricken. Levine v. Carroll, 121 Ill. App. 105. In action for criminal conversation where witness testified that she discovered plaintiff's wife and defendant in a compromising position, held that evidence of statements made by witness tending to show understanding between plaintiff's wife and herself to get money out of defendant was admissible, proper foundation having been laid. Smith v. Hockenberry [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 684, 109 N. W. 23. Motives, interest, or animus of witness are not collateral matters and may be shown and considered in estimating credibility. Pittman v. State [Fla.] 41 So. 385. See, also, § 5 C, post.

79. Where there is a direct conflict of testimony in criminal case, trial court may, within reasonable discretion, admit any declarations or matters otherwise collateral which would tend to characterize or corroborate credibility of either party. State v. Callahan [Minn.] 110 N. W. 342. On prosecution for rape alleged to have been committed in a boat, where defendant admitted that prosecutrix was with him alone in boat at night, but denied commission of crime, held proper, to lay foundation for impeachment, as well as to characterize subsequent conduct and test credibility of his denial, to ask him if he had not, two years before, made certain statements to third person in regard to getting prosecutrix out alone in boat, and, on his denial, to prove by such party that statement was made. State v. Callahan [Minn.] 110 N. W. 342. Question on cross-examination held proper in view

(§ 5) B. Character and conduct of witnesses. 1. In general.[80]—Proof of the general moral character of a witness is usually held incompetent,[81] though it is admissible in some jurisdictions.[82] When admissible it is usually confined to general reputation,[83] though in some states the witness may be asked as to the commission of particular crimes.[84] Attacks on the character of a witness must ordinarily be limited to his personal turpitude.[85] In some states the general character of a defendant in a criminal case, who testifies in his own behalf, cannot be attacked unless he first puts it in issue.[86] In others only so much of his moral character as reflects on his credibility as a witness is open to assault by its state in the first instance.[87]

The reputation of a witness for truth and veracity [88] may be shown,[89] though he cannot be himself interrogated in regard to it.[90] of Code Civ. Proc. § 3376. Mahoney v. Dixon [Mont.] 87 P. 452. How far party may go in contradicting witness as to collateral matter developed on cross-examination is within discretion of trial court. Salem News Pub. Co. v. Caliga [C. C. A.] 144 F. 965.

80. See 6 C. L. 1997.

81. Female witness cannot be impeached by an attack upon her chastity. State v. Romero, 117 La. 1003, 42 So. 482; Perry v. State [Ala.] 43 So. 18. Bad reputation, as a basis for impeaching testimony, must be limited to reputation as to truth and veracity. State v. Grove [W. Va.] 57 S. E. 296.

82. Evidence of general character of prosecuting witness held admissible. State v. Freddy, 117 La. 121, 41 So. 436. Where defendants offered themselves as witnesses, held that state had right to attack their general reputation for morality in neighborhood where they resided. State v. Barnett [Mo.] 102 S. W. 506. In action for damages for personal injuries, evidence that plaintiff's reputation for chastity was bad held admissible. York v. Everton [Mo. App.] 97 S. W. 604.

83. Under Civ. Code Prac. § 597, evidence of particular wrongful acts is inadmissible to impeach defendant, except that it may be shown that he has been convicted of felony, and hence on prosecution for homicide it was reversible error to examine accused as to his having killed a man in another state and fled from there to avoid prosecution after indictment. Britton v. Com., 29 Ky. L. R. 857, 96 S. W. 556. On prosecution for whipping certain persons, held improper to require defendant on cross-examination to answer questions as to whether he had previously belonged to certain lawless band, and whether he had not been shot while on raid with them. Hensley v. Com. [Ky.] 102 S. W. 268. Special instances of crimes attempted or committed cannot be proved against defendant in criminal case. Powers v. State [Tenn.] 97 S. W. 815. Rule is otherwise when defendant himself is asked on cross-examination as to independent matters of kind to impeach his character for truthfulness, or general moral character, or where any other witness is, upon cross-examination, asked such things for purpose of testing his own trustworthiness, such inquiry cannot extend beyond witness' denial. Id. Exclusion of question as to witness being dead beat held not error, particularly where other evidence tending to show that fact was admitted without objection. State v. Grubb [Mo.] 99 S. W. 1083. B. & C. Comp. § 852. Evidence that witnesses who were sailors had deserted from certain ship held inadmissible. State v. White [Or.] 87 P. 137.

84. Held not error to permit witness for defendant to be asked on cross-examination if he had not committed a detestable crime in a certain month, where he made no claim of privilege. State v. Long [Mo.] 100 S. W. 587.

85. Such as to indicate such moral depravity or degeneracy on his part as would likely render him insensible to obligations of an oath to speak truth. Miller v. Ter. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 330. On prosecution for cattle theft, questions whether witness had a sweetheart who was niece of fugitive from justice, and whether he had not at times consulted with persons reputed to be cattle thieves, etc., held improper, particularly where no foundation was laid. Id.

86. Though, when defendant offers himself as witness, he thereby puts himself on same footing as any other witness, and may be examined, cross-examined, and impeached in same manner. Clinton v. State [Fla.] 43 So. 312.

87. Though rule that witness may be impeached by assailing his general moral character applies. Powers v. State [Tenn.] 97 S. W. 815. On prosecution for homicide, held error to admit evidence tending to show defendant's reputation for violence, otherwise inadmissible, for purpose of impeaching him as witness. Id.

88. See 6 C. L. 1998.

89. Where accused in criminal case testified in his own behalf, held competent for state to introduce evidence as to his general character, and his character for truth and veracity, and hence not error to allow properly qualified witness to testify that he would not believe him under oath. Mitchell v. State [Ala.] 42 So. 1014. Rule applies to defendant in criminal case who takes stand. Maloy v. State [Fla.] 41 So. 791. Inquiry should be confined to general reputation as affecting defendant's testimony in any and all cases in which he may be called as witness. Id. On prosecution for crime, held that testimony as to credibility of defendant "as a witness in the case being tried" was properly stricken; that being question for jury. Id. Where witness had testified that he knew general reputation for truth and veracity of prosecuting witness in community where he lived, and

(§ 5 B) 2. Accusation and conviction of crime.[91]—The previous conviction of a witness of a felony[92] or infamous crime,[93] if not too remote,[94] may be shown as affecting his credibility, even though it does not render him incompetent as a witness.[95] In some states the crime must be one involving moral turpitude.[96] Proof of conviction of a misdemeanor is generally inadmissible,[97] though allowable in some jurisdictions.[98] Usually mere arrest[99] or accusation by indictment or otherwise[1] cannot be shown, though a contrary rule prevails in some states.[2] Conviction may that it was bad, held error not to permit him to answer question whether from such reputation he could be believed, and was entitled to credibility, upon oath. Douglass v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 817, 98 S. W. 840.

90. Glass v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 727.

91. See 6 C. L. 1999.

92. Conviction for crime made felony by statute, though not a crime at common law, may be shown under Code, § 1795. Fuller v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 774. Witness held properly asked whether he had not been convicted of aiding prisoner charged with murder to escape from jail, that being a felony under Code 1896, § 4711. Id. Where defendant in criminal case voluntarily testified in his own behalf, held competent for prosecution to show either by his cross-examination or the record that he had theretofore been convicted of felony. Code Civ. Proc. § 2051. People v. Soeder [Cal.] 87 P. 1016. Held proper to allow accused to be asked on cross-examination whether he had not previously been convicted of crime under another name, and why he used such other name. State v. Clark, 117 La. 920, 42 So. 425. Where defendant was witness, records to prove that he had been convicted of crime held admissible. People v. De Camp [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 862, 108 N. W. 1047. Questions asked witness as to whether he had not been arrested, tried, and convicted of assault and battery held proper. People v. Tubbs [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 959, 110 N. W. 132. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4680, where defendant in criminal case testified in his own behalf, held that state was properly allowed to introduce record of his previous conviction and sentence for felony. State v. Brooks [Mo.] 100 S. W. 416. Where defendant in criminal case took stand as witness, held competent to impeach him by showing that he had been charged with, and prosecuted for, felonies or misdemeanors involving moral turpitude. Turman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 409, 95 S. W. 533.

93. Gaming by any means is not such an infamous crime as may be shown in evidence to discredit witness. Mitchell v. State [Ala.] 42 So. 1014.

94. Evidence that witness has been prosecuted for crime should be limited to prosecutions of recent date. Casey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 169, 97 S. W. 496. On prosecution for homicide, evidence that defendant had been convicted of burglary four years previously held not too remote Hull v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 403.

95. See § 1, ante.

96. On prosecution for assault, held error to allow state to show by defendant on cross-examination that he had previously paid fines for fighting, that not being an offense involving moral turpitude. Pollok v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 231.

97. Not under Civ. Code Proc. § 597. Wells v. Com., 30 Ky. L. R. 504, 99 S. W. 218. On prosecution for misdemeanor, held error to allow state to show by defendant on his cross-examination that he had committed other misdemeanors. Ball v. Com., 30 Ky. L. R. 600, 99 S. W. 326. Record of plaintiff's previous conviction in federal court held properly excluded, where it showed that, though indictment contained count for felony and one for misdemeanor, former was dismissed and defendant pleaded guilty to latter. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Dumas [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 638, 93 S. W. 493.

98. State v. Griggsby, 117 La. 1046, 42 So. 497. May show that witness has been charged with, and prosecuted for, felonies or misdemeanors involving moral turpitude. Turman v. State [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 409, 95 S. W. 533. Carter's Code Alaska, p. 4, §§ 669, 675, held not to preclude introduction of record of previous conviction of witness of misdemeanor. Ball v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 32.

99. Witness cannot be asked whether he has ever been "arrested" or "indicted" for crime, but question should be asked as to his "conviction." State v. Barrett, 117 La. 1036, 42 So. 513.

1. Mere accusation or indictment is inadmissible. Glover v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 426. Question whether stolen property had not been found in witness' possession, which he had been forced to pay for, held improper. Miller v. Ter. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 330. Held not error to refuse to allow defendant to show that plaintiff had been indicted for perjury. Kansas City So. R. Co. v. Felknap [Ark.] 98 S. W. 366. Under Code 1906, § 1923, held prejudicial error to require defendant in criminal case to answer question whether he had ever been "charged" with any offense, where he answered that he had, but had not been convicted. Starling v. State [Miss.] 42 So. 798. Requiring witnesses to answer questions whether they had not been charged with crime, and if informations or indictments had not been returned against them, held error under Rev. St. 1899, § 4680. State v. Wigger, 196 Mo. 90, 93 S. W. 390. Defendant cannot be asked on cross-examination whether he has been indicted for crime, or whether he was tried, unless it appears that he was convicted or actually guilty. People v. Gascone, 185 N. Y. 317, 78 N. E. 287.

2. On prosecution for homicide, where witness testified that accused fired fatal shot, held that indictment against such witness charging him with the homicide, returned by same grand jury that indicted accused, was admissible to discredit witness, but for no other purpose, and it was not error to instruct jury that it was not to be considered for any other purpose. Hayes v. State, 126 Ga. 95, 54 S. E. 809. On prosecution for larceny, held proper to ask ac-

generally be shown by the record,[3] or on cross-examination,[4] and, as a rule, by one of these means only,[5] though this rule does not seem to be universal.[6] In some states the record is the only competent evidence for that purpose.[7]

(§ 5) C. Interest and bias of witnesses.[8]—Interest in the event of the action,[9] or in its prosecution,[10] or any facts tending to show bias or prejudice on the cused how many larceny cases there had been in the court against him, and whether one which he admitted having been brought against him was cotton stealing case. McCoy v. U. S. [Ind. T.] 98 S. W. 144. On prosecution for homicide, held proper to introduce evidence of former indictments for felonies against defendant and another, though as to one of the charges therein there was conviction of aggravated assault. Cecil v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 390.

3. Copy of judgment and sentence showing that witness had been convicted of felony held admissible. Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Gibson [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 153, 93 S. W. 469. Admission of record of conviction of defendant in Federal court of another district for different offense for purpose of affecting his credibility as witness held not objectionable, as giving extraterritorial effect and force to judgment of such court. Ball v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 32. Judgment of conviction of person of same name as witness is admissible without showing that witness was person so convicted, identity of names affording ground for prima facie presumption of identity of persons, which presumption may be rebutted, whether it has been rebutted being question for jury. Boyd v. State [Ala.] 43 So. 204. Record showing sentence on plea of nolo contendere held admissible, under Rev. St. c. 84, § 119, as showing a conviction, such a plea being an implied confession, and a judgment of conviction following it as well as plea of guilty, and it not being necessary that court should adjudge party guilty. State v. Herlihy [Me.] 66 A. 643.

4. Proof of conviction may be made by oath of the witness without production of record. Code 1896, § 1796. Fuller v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 774. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 4680, held proper, on prosecution for homicide, to ask defendant who had offered himself as witness, on cross-examination, as to his having been convicted of misdemeanor and sent to workhouse. State v. Barrington, 198 Mo. 23, 95 S. W. 235. Where defendant indicted for assault offered himself as a witness, held that he was properly required upon cross-examination to testify as to his previous conviction of similar crime, but further cross-examination as to particulars of offense upon which such conviction was based, tending to show propensity to acts of violence, was improper and prejudicial. State v. Mount [N. J. Err. & App.] 64 A. 124. Where defendant in criminal case offered himself as witness, held that he might be asked on cross-examination whether he had not been previously convicted of a certain other crime in different state, and under another name. Ball v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 32. See, also, cases previously cited in this section.

5. Fact that defense showed that witness was living in meretricious relations held not to authorize proof that defendant had caused her to live as a harlot. People v. Cascone, 185 N. Y. 317, 78 N. E. 287. Evidence that defendant told witness that he had been previously imprisoned for burglary held inadmissible as original impeaching evidence. Fanin v. State [Tex. Cr. App.], 100 S. W. 916.

6. Conviction proved by judge of city court. State v. Griggsby, 117 La. 1046, 42 So. 497.

7. Cannot be shown by parol. Green v. State, 125 Ga. 742, 54 S. E. 724; O'Donnell v. People, 224 Ill. 218, 79 N. E. Held error to permit defendant to show on cross-examination of plaintiff that he had been confined in jail on charge pending in Federal court, and had partially served a sentence on said charge. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Dumas [Tex. Civ. App.] 93 S. W. 493.

8. See 6 C. L. 2000.

9. In action by servant against master for personal injuries, where defendant pleaded a release which it appeared had been procured by agent of company which had insured defendant, and such agent was offered as witness to prove execution of release, and there was conflict of testimony with respect to circumstances under which it was obtained, held not error to permit plaintiff to bring out on cross-examination of agent that any judgment recovered against defendant would have to be paid by insurance company, to show interest of witness. Vindicator Consol. Gold Min. Co. v. Firstbrook [Colo.] 86 P. 313. Wide range of cross-examination is permitted as matter of right in regard to motives, interest, or animus as connected with cause or parties thereto, upon which matters witness may be contradicted by other evidence. Pittman v. State [Fla.] 41 So. 385. Rule applies to cross-examination of defendant in criminal case who voluntarily offers himself as witness. Id. In action to recover possession of mare, held proper to ask witness, who testified that he had purchased mare and sold her to plaintiff and that he had no interest in case, on cross-examination whether, if person from whom he purchased her turned out not to be owner, he would not have to make good to plaintiff. Frank v. Symons [Mont.] 88 P. 561. In action by railway mail clerk against railroad for personal injuries, held error to refuse to allow defendant to prove by plaintiff that, on former trial of case and while witness in his own behalf, plaintiff testified that he believed that any man working for corporation or interested in a matter would bend his testimony according to his interest. St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Sproule [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 268. Refusal to permit defendant to prove that witness for plaintiff, who was also one of his attorneys, was pecuniarily interested in suit, because employed on contingent fee, held prejudicial error, though jury knew that he was of counsel in case. Pecos River R. Co. v. Harrington [Tex. Civ. App.] 99 S. W. 1050. In criminal case, fact that defendant was interested in result held circumstance affect-part of a witness,[11] such as his relations with [12] or hostility toward a party,[13] may be shown and considered as affecting his credibility. Evidence bearing on the motives of the prosecuting witness in a criminal case is also admissible.[14]

ing his credibility which could be considered by jury. Shelton v. State, 144 Ala. 106, 42 So. 30. Instruction approved. Hammond v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 761; Prior v. Ter. [Ariz.] 89 P. 412.

10. Question whether witness had not advised plaintiff to bring damage suit against defendant held proper on cross-examination. Atlantic Coast Lins R. Co. v. Powell [Ga.] 56 S. E. 1006. Held competent for defense in criminal case to ask witness on cross-examination if he had not contributed money to aid in prosecution, and what his purpose was in so doing (Miller v. Ter. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 330), and to show that witness, who was an attorney, had received retainer to assist in prosecution, and to show in what capacity he was retained (Id.).

11. On prosecution for homicide, held proper to question witness who did actual killing as to conversation with third party in which he made threats against deceased. Morris v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 274. Where witness for defendant denied making threats against deceased, and testified that he and deceased were friendly, held that evidence that he made such threats long before homicide was admissible to show his hostility to prosecution and bias for defendant. Hanners v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 973. Evidence held immaterial on question of bias of witness. Parham v. State [Ala.] 42 So. 1. Refusal to allow defendant to prove by son of decedent that he had trouble with decedent's children on day of homicide held harmless, since jury knew that he was son of deceased and such trouble could not have added to bias growing out of his relationship. Gregory v. State [Ala.] 42 So. 829. Fact that witness was jointly indicted with defendant for killing deceased's brother held matter proper to be considered in passing on his credibility, deceased and his brother both having been killed in same difficulty with defendant, under same circumstances, and at almost same time, and it being impossible to develop circumstances of one killing without those of other. Smith v. State, 79 Ark. 25, 94 S. W. 918. Instruction that jury should receive testimony of defendant's employes same as that of any other witness, and determine their credibility by same tests and principles, held erroneous, and properly refused. Murray v. Llewellyn Iron Works Co. [Cal. App.] 87 P. 202. Fact that witness' employer had insured defendant, if admissible at all in personal injury case, held admissible only for purpose of showing bias, so that it was error to permit him to be cross-examined as to nature of insurance. Capital Const. Co. v. Holtzman, 27 App. D. C. 125. On prosecution for homicide where it clearly appeared that certain witnesses were holding county positions and were active and ardent supporters of deceased and engaged in political club election, at which homicide took place, as such, held not error to refuse to allow defendant to show that they were political henchmen of deceased, as county commissioner, and that one of them was retained in his position by deceased's brother, there being nothing to be gained by further investigation as to their interest or prejudice. Roberts v. People, 226 Ill. 296, 80 N. E. 776. Opposite party may, on cross-examination, show bias, prejudice, bad feeling, or hostility of witness who testifies to a controverted fact, but questions designed to impeach credibility are inadmissible where no attempt is made to contradict testimony, and facts necessary to make out prima facie case are admitted by pleadings. Regester v. Regester [Md.] 64 A. 286. Evidence offered by defendant, for purpose of showing that witness was partisan for plaintiff, that at former trial he had attended court only three days but had arranged with counsel for plaintiff to make claim for sixteen days attendance, held improperly excluded. Briscoe v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 668, 95 S. W. 276. Held proper to prove on cross-examination of witness in criminal case that he asked another witness what he swore to in grand jury room, as showing animus or interest in favor of defendant. Owens v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 685, 96 S. W. 31. Refusal to allow defendant to show that one of plaintiff's witnesses had suit against it similar to suit of plaintiff held error. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Cherry [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 29, 97 S. W. 712. Declarations of witnesses made out of court are admissible in criminal case to show their bias, prejudice, or favoritism, though made out of defendant's presence. Porch v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 99 S. W. 1122. In action for damages against carrier for assault committed on passenger by another passenger, held that, though it would have been proper to permit plaintiff to be asked on cross-examination whether he had not appeared as witness against other passenger on his prosecution for the assault, refusal to permit question was harmless under the circumstances. Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Birchfield, 105 Va. 809, 54 S. E. 879. May be shown that witness agreed to testify for money consideration. Routledge v. Rambler Automobile Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 386, 95 S. W. 749. Question whether witness had been paid by defendant for attending court held prima facie admissible, but when answer disclosed that defendant had done nothing further than to pay certificates formerly issued to him as witness in case, which was necessary under Code 1896, § 1341, in order to secure his attendance, motion to exclude should have been sustained. Southern R. Co. v. Morris, 143 Ala. 628, 42 So. 17. Plaintiff held properly allowed to ask witnesses of defendant railroad on cross-examination whether defendant had furnished them with free transportation. Kansas City So. R. Co. v. Belknap [Ark.] 98 S. W. 366. Where witnesses testified that plaintiff had offered them suits of clothes if they would testify in his behalf, provided he won his case, held that examination of such witnesses and plaintiff as to what was said, surrounding circumstances, and effect of what was said, tending to show that no harm was intended, and that testimony of witnesses was not influenced, was proper. Dupuis v. Saginaw Valley Trac. Co. [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 767, 109 N. W. 413. Testimony of witness for state that witness for defendant had attempted to induce him not to testify held admissible. State v. Cook [Idaho] 88 P. 240.

(§ 5) D. Proof of previous contradictory statements.[15]—Prior statements of witnesses inconsistent with their testimony [16] upon material issues are always competent as impeaching evidence when a proper predicate has been laid therefor.[17] Thus, oral [18] or written statements out of court,[19] statements in letters,[20] affidavits,[21]

12. Party on cross-examination should be allowed to show witness' relations with and disposition toward plaintiff or defendant, whether friendly or hostile. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Stevenson, 122 Ill. App. 654. On trial for homicide, evidence that female witness who testified in defendant's behalf was his paramour held admissible. Perdue v. State, 126 Ga. 112, 54 S. E. 820. On prosecution for homicide, evidence that witness for state was concubine of deceased, which fact she denied on cross-examination, held admissible to show animus, matter not being collateral one. State v. Craft, 117 La. 213, 41 So. 550. May be shown that witness has written letters to other party in interest of party for whom he testifies. Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Stevenson, 122 Ill. App. 654, and to prove which letter was not competent evidence, where court properly discriminated between its proper and improper use, and struck parts of it from record. People v. Thorne [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 66, 111 N. W. 741. Letter admitted to have been written to defendant by witness held admissible to discredit latter by showing his friendly relations with defendant even though it contained statements which were hearsay. In summary proceedings to dispossess tenant for alleged holding over, where there was sharp conflict in evidence as to term of hiring, held proper, on cross-examination of tenant and one of his witnesses, to attempt to show improper relations between them. Sakolski v. Schenkel, 50 Misc. 151, 98 N. Y. S. 190. On prosecution for homicide, objection to question asked state witness as to whether deceased was not father of an illegitimate child by daughter of witness held properly sustained on ground of irrelevancy and immateriality. Du Bose v. State [Ala.] 42 So. 862.

13. Accused may show feeling of hatred toward him on part of any of witnesses for prosecution. State v. Barber [Idaho] 88 P. 418. In action for assault and battery, evidence that witness had said that he would do everything in his power to ruin the father of defendants, and other testimony showing that witness was hostile to him, held inadmissible. McQuiggan v. Ladd [Vt.] 64 A. 503. Admission by witness of ill feeling toward party renders proof of circumstances tending to establish that fact unnecessary, and therefore inadmissible. Proctor v. Pointer [Ga.] 56 S. E. 111. Where witness admitted on stand that her feelings toward defendant were not good, held proper to exclude evidence that such witness first informed her of the slander for which damages were sought. Id.

14. Refusal to allow prosecutrix to be asked on cross-examination whether any inducement or threat had been held out or made to her to get her to sign complaint against defendant held error under Code Civ. Proc. § 1847. People v. Mitchell [Cal. App.] 89 P. 853.

15. See 6 C. L 2001.

16. Though declarations of a person be excluded as substantial evidence, yet this does not render them inadmissible to impeach such person who afterwards testifies. Hoyt v. Zumwalt [Cal.] 86 P. 600. Where witness denied knowledge of deed, evidence of contradictory statements held merely to discredit her testimony and not to be substantive evidence of existence of deed. Hutchins v. Murphy [Mich.] 13 Det. Leg. N. 901, 110 N. W. 52.

17. As to necessity of laying foundation, see § 5 E, post.

18. Evidence held admissible: On prosecution for homicide, that witness had stated after difficulty with deceased that latter had not hurt him, where he testified that deceased had knocked him down. Morris v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 274. As to statement made by witness to third person in conflict with his testimony. Bowen v. Sierra Lumber Co. [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1010. In action against administrators to recover for services alleged to have been rendered decedent, where witness testified that, so far as he knew, no services had been rendered, evidence that witness had stated to plaintiff that he would not object to her claim, etc. Leonard v. Gillette [Conn.] 66 A. 502. Where witness for state on trial for homicide testified that defendant did the shooting, evidence that she admitted that she herself did it. Perdue v. State, 126 Ga. 112, 54 S. E. 820. Statement made to police by one of several persons accused of murder. McCann v. People, 226 Ill. 562, 80 N. E. 1061. Where nonexpert had given his opinion as to defendant's insanity, proof that witness had previously expressed an inconsistent opinion. State v. Hogan, 117 La. 863, 42 So. 352. Where witness testified that he had transferred certain notes to plaintiff, evidence that he had stated to certain persons that he still owned them. Carey v. Nissle, 145 Mich. 383, 13 Det. Leg. N. 490, 108 N. W. 733. Held proper to ask motorman of street car if he had not made certain statements as to condition of track inconsistent with his testimony and to prove that he had made them. Schloemer v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 102 S. W. 565. Statement made by defendant to physician who examined him on behalf of people at request of court held admissible as an admission, or for purpose of showing that defendant's statements made at different times were contradictory and inconsistent. People v. Furlong [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 978. In action against railroad company for killing person walking on track, where engineer had testified that he did not realize deceased's peril, and proceeded on assumption that he would leave track in ample time, his declaration, immediately after accident, that deceased made him angry because he would not get off track. International & G. N. R.

pleadings,[22] and depositions,[23] and statements made under oath at a former trial,[24] or at a coroner's inquest,[25] have been held competent. Prior statements amounting merely to the expression of an opinion cannot ordinarily be shown.[26] Writings[27] or statements of third persons are not admissible unless the witness has in some manner authorized or adopted them as his own.[28] Failure to volunteer evidence cannot discredit a witness, particularly when such evidence would be irrelevant.[29]

Co. v. Munn [Tex. Civ. App.] 102 S. W. 442. State held properly allowed to impeach testimony to effect that another than defendant did shooting by showing contrary statements, etc. McIntyre v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 544, 94 S. W. 1048. In action for assault and battery, evidence that witness had stated that plaintiff's wife knew nothing and saw nothing of the affray in question, such witness having testified differently, and wife having testified that she did see it. McQuiggan v. Ladd [Vt.] 64 A. 503.

19. Written statement of witness as to how accident occurred. Miller v. Detroit United R. Co., 144 Mich. 13 Det. Leg. N. 140, 107 N. W. 714.

20. Letter written by witness to discredit his testimony that he had procured a certain contract, that defendants had agreed to pay him for his services, and that, so far as he knew, plaintiff had no part in the transaction and had not been promised any compensation by defendants. Richards v. Richman [Del.] 64 A. 238.

21. Stinson v. Com., 29 Ky. L. R. 733, 96 S. W. 463. Affidavit which witness admitted having made, though he claimed to have signed it while drunk. New v. Young [Ala.] 41 So. 523. Affidavit made by defendant in support of motion for continuance. Weaver v. State [Ark.] 102 S. W. 713. Affidavit which witness did not deny having made, though she denied knowledge of its contents. New v. Young [Ala.] 41 So. 523.

22. Answer which witness admitted signing and bill, the allegations of which were admitted thereby. New v. Young [Ala.] 41 So. 523. Petition in another suit in which witnesses had been parties plaintiff, it appearing that they had authorized such suit and were present at trial thereof, and that at least one of them had testified. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Moers [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 400, 97 S. W. 1064. Fact that, in suit by lessor of certain land to cancel lease, lessee admitted in answer lessor's ownership, held not to discredit his testimony as to previous execution of deeds to premises by lessor under agreement that they should not be recorded until his death in subsequent action in ejectment by grantee in deeds. Ranken v. Donovan, 100 N. Y. S. 1049. Summons out of small cause court held erroneously admitted, nothing appearing in bill of exceptions which it tended to contradict. Gunn v. Mumford [N. J. Err. & App.] 65 A. 989.

23. Where defendant on cross-examination stated that when a young man his hair was dark held proper, under Code Civ. Proc. § 2052, after showing him a deposition previously taken but which could not be used, to ask him whether he had not testified, when giving such deposition, that when young his hair was auburn. Lanigan v. Neely [Cal. App.] 89 P. 441. Agent sued on contract in his own name without disclosing that he acted as agent only. On appeal principals were substituted as plaintiffs. Held that agent's deposition used on trial in lower court had no tendency to contradict his deposition used on appeal, in which he stated that he acted as agent in making contract, merely because in first deposition he failed to state that he was so acting, and hence was inadmissible to discredit or contradict him. Chany v. Hotchkiss [Conn.] 63 A. 947.

24. Under Code, § 5258, relating to preservation of minutes of proceedings of grand jury, such minutes, when read over to and signed by witness, may be used at trial for impeachment purposes. State v. Hoffman [Iowa] 112 N. W. 103. Where stenographer who took testimony of witness at former trial swore to accuracy of his notes, held that he was properly allowed to read excerpts therefrom Casey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 169, 97 S. W. 496. Fact that plaintiff testified differently at former trial as to his physical or mental status at time of injury, or as making any statement as to cause or manner of receiving injuries, held not to affect competency of his testimony, though it might be matter for consideration of jury as to effect to be given it. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hugen [Tex. Civ. App.] 100 S. W. 1000. Transcript of official stenographer's notes of testimony at former trial held inadmissible to impeach witness who had not signed it or otherwise certified that it was correct. Prewitt v. Southwestern Tel. & T. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 101 S. W. 812.

25. Witness having denied correctness of statements contained in written notes of evidence given by him before coroner, introduced for purpose of impeachment, held that statement of coroner as to his testimony at inquest was admissible. State v. Jennings [Or.] 87 P. 524. Question asked stenographer to coroner as to certain question asked policeman at inquest held properly excluded as not tending to contradict his testimony at trial. People v. Way, 104 N. Y. S. 277.

26. Where witness had testified to facts tending to show that killing was in self-defense, held error to permit proof of his previous statements that accused had shot deceased for nothing. Watson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 587, 95 S. W. 115.

27. Entries in stock book showing that stock had been sold at par held not admissible to contradict witness who testified that in his opinion stock was not worth 50 cents on dollar, where he did not make them. Lemly v. Ellis [N. C.] 55 S. E. 629. Letter of third person which witness had never approved or even heard of held inadmissible. Virginia-Carolina Chem. Co. v. Knight [Va.] 56 S. E. 725.

28. Witness in criminal case cannot be impeached by showing statements made by third parties in his presence not shown to (§ 5) E. Foundation for impeaching evidence.[30]—A proper predicate must be laid for the introduction of impeaching evidence,[31] and this is usually done upon the cross-examination of the witness sought to be impeached.[32] A predicate for proof of inconsistent oral statements is usually laid by inquiring of the witness whether he made a certain statement,[33] specifying the time and place thereof, the person to whom made, and the language used.[34] If the witness then denies making the statement,[35] or makes an evasive answer,[36] it may be shown by other evidence have been authorized by him. Tucker v. Ter. [Okl.] 87 P. 307. Statement of government's attorney to court in which he asked leniency in sentence of person previously convicted, who was to be witness for government in another case, held not admissible in latter case as bearing on credibility of such witness, it not appearing that witness heard such statement. Thompson v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 144 F. 14.

29. Fact that, in suit by lessor of certain land to cancel lease, lessee did not testify that lessor had previously conveyed land to others under agreement that deeds were not to be recorded until grantor's death, held not to discredit his testimony as to such conveyance and agreement in subsequent action of ejectment brought by grantee. Ranken v. Donovan, 100 N. Y. S. 1049.

30. See 6 C. L. 2002.

31. Clinton v. State [Fla.] 43 So. 312; Opet v. Denzer [Tex. Civ. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 118, 93 S. W. 527; Earley v. Winn [Wis.] 109 N. W. 633. Impeaching question held properly excluded. Boles v. People [Colo.] 86 P. 1030. Sufficient foundation held to have been laid to entitle defendant to contradict testimony of witness as to how he described defendant to police. People v. Murphy, 113 App. Div. 363, 99 N. Y. S. 110. Memoranda in time books as to capacity and place where witnesses worked held not original evidence and hence inadmissible except in individual instances where attention of witnesses was directed to such memoranda and opportunity afforded them to explain or deny same. Eureka Hill Min. Co. v. Bullion Beck & Champion Min. Co. [Utah] 90 P. 157. Sufficient foundation held to have been laid. Maxcy v. Fairbanks Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 300, 95 S. W. 632.

32. Where accused in criminal case testified in his own behalf, held not error to allow state to recall him for purpose of laying predicate for his impeachment, though he had previously been cross-examined and excused as witness. Hays v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 926.

33. On prosecution for homicide, held proper to ask defendant on cross-examination if he did not state after difficulty with deceased that latter had not hurt him, where he had testified that deceased had knocked him down, etc. Morris v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 274. On prosecution for carrying concealed pistol, where accused denied carrying it, held that state had right to lay predicate to contradict him by proving admissions or confessions by him of having so carried it without showing that such confessions were voluntary. Burgess v. State [Ala.] 42 So. 681. Evidence as to statements held inadmissible where she was not asked whether she made them. Robinson v. Jones [Md.] 65 A. 814.

34. Before a witness can be impeached by proof of oral contradictory statements out of court, he must first be asked as to the time, place, and person involved in the supposed contradiction. Hirsch & Sons Iron & Rail Co. v. Coleman [Ill.] 81 N. E. 21. Otherwise declarations cannot be shown, even though he answers insufficient questions as to such statements without objection. Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Jennings, 120 Ill. App. 195. Must first be interrogated, with sufficient particularity of person, time, and place to call his attention thereto, as to whether or not he did make such contradictory statements. People v. Mallon, 101 N. Y. S. 814. Where witness understood circumstances of time and place of alleged conversation to which his attention was called, held that sufficient foundation was laid though his attention was not called to persons present. People v. Yee Foo [Cal. App.] 89 P. 450. Question held too indefinite, obscure, and vague, and not to have sufficiently informed witness as to time, place, and person involved. Clinton v. State [Fla.] 43 So. 312. Question whether witness had not made certain statement to named person at certain time held proper impeaching question. Bowen v. Sierra Lumber Co. [Cal. App.] 84 P. 1010. Witness' attention held not sufficiently called to occasion when statements were alleged to have been made. Loughlin v. Brassil [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 854. Sufficient foundation held to have been laid. Stoebier v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo.] 102 S. W. 651. New trial should not be granted solely because of admission of proof of contradictory statement without notice to witness of time, place, and person, where there was opportunity for witness to be recalled and explain contradiction. Newell v. Taylor, 74 S. C. 8, 54 S. E. 212. Where plaintiff brought out from his witness that he had not made certain representations, held not an abuse of discretion to allow defendant, on cross-examination of another witness whose evidence was taken before trial, to discredit first witness by proving that she said in his presence that plaintiff did make such representations. Id.

35. Where witness admitted having a conversation with another person in regard to contents of pocket on or about a certain date and explained same but denied making certain statement, held that such other person might be asked whether witness had met him on said date and made such statement to him, though he fixed date of conversation eleven days earlier. Evans v. Barnett [Del.] 63 A. 770.

36. Proof of contradictory statement, held competent where witness stated that he did not remember having made it. Campos v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 76, 97 S. W. 100. Cross-examination of witness in criminal prosecution as to whether he had testified to certain facts at the coroner's inquest which he testified to at trial, to which he answered that he did not remember, held improper where it was not pre-that he did make it. If he admits making it, however, other proof that he did so is usually inadmissible.[37] The proper way to introduce a writing containing a contradictory statement for the purpose of impeaching a witness is to present it to him and prove by him that he signed it and then read it to the jury.[38] The hostility of a witness toward a party against whom he is called may ordinarily be proved by any competent evidence without previous cross-examination of the witness upon the subject,[39] but this rule does not authorize proof of mere utterances of the witness to show hostility without previous cross-examination as to such utterances.[40] It is generally held that, where facts set forth in an affidavit for continuance are taken as the evidence of an absent witness, evidence of his previous contradictory statements is inadmissible,[41] though there seems to be some conflict of authority in this regard.[42] The impeaching testimony must be confined to the predicate laid.[43] The impeaching witness should be asked the precise question put to the principal witness,[44] and the exact words claimed to have been used by the latter should be incorporated in the question.[45]

(§ 5) F. Corroboration and sustentation of witnesses.[46]—Where no attempt has been made to impeach a witness, evidence which is merely corroboratory of his testimony is inadmissible,[47] even though other witnesses have testified to a different state of facts.[48] It has, however, been held that, where an attempt has been made viously shown that he was specifically interrogated as to such matters at the inquest, or that he was directed, invited, or given an opportunity to testify to them, and prejudicial error when taken in connection with remarks of counsel. Larrance v. People, 222 Ill. 155, 78 N. E. 50.

37. Refusal to allow witnesses to testify as to such statements held not error. Bice v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 949. Where prosecutrix in rape case testified that defendant had intercourse with her, and that she had made different statements to county attorney and grand jury because of threats to send her to jail if she did not, held prejudicial error to permit state to introduce her statements to county attorney and grand jury either for impeachment or as substantive evidence. Skeen v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 770.

38. Sufficient foundation held to have been laid for introduction of affidavit previously made by witness and inconsistent with his testimony. Stinson v. Com., 29 Ky. L. R. 733, 96 S. W. 463.

39. People v. Mallon, 101 N. Y. S. 814.

40. Admission of evidence that witness had stated that he would give false testimony held error where no foundation was laid. People v. Mallon, 101 N. Y. S. 814.

41. Since he has not been asked concerning it as required by Civ. Code Prac. § 598. Clay v. Goldstein [Ky.] 102 S. W. 319. Party who, for purpose of avoiding a continuance, admits that a certain witness would, if present, testify to matters stated in the affidavit, thereby waives his right to impeach such witness by a method which requires him to lay a foundation for such impeachment. Helbig v. Citizens Ins. Co., 120 Ill. App. 58.

42. Under Rev. St. 1899, § 687, where facts set forth in affidavit for continuance are read as evidence of an absent witness, opposite party may prove any contradictory statements made by such absent witness in relation to matter in issue. Beler v. St. Louis Transit Co., 197 Mo. 215, 94 S. W. 876.

43. Objection to impeaching question held properly sustained. Williams v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 992.

44. Hanselman v. Broad, 113 App. Div. 447, 99 N. Y. S. 404.

45. If it is sought to show that defendant, who testifies in his own behalf in a criminal case, has made statements out of court inconsistent with his testimony, statement supposed to have been made by him and to which his attention has been called must be incorporated in impeaching question so that question can be answered yes or no by impeaching witness. Haddix v. State [Neb.] 107 N. W. 781. Failure to object to question on that ground held waiver. Id.

46. See 6 C. L. 2003.

47. Evidence of previous statements consistent with his testimony. Turman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 409, 95 S. W. 533. Fact that state had offered other accounts given by defendant as to how defendant came by property alleged to have been stolen, as original and inculpatory evidence, and not for purpose of impeaching him as to his statements on stand, held not to authorize defendant to prove that he gave other accounts similar to his testimony. Welch v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 522, 95 S. W. 1035. Neither did fact that after his testimony state placed witness on stand who testified that account given by defendant as witness was untrue, it being merely evidence contradicting defendant's evidence on same subject. Id. On criminal prosecution, testimony as to account of transaction given to witness by person arrested for complicity in offense after such arrest held properly excluded where such person was present in court and defendant stated that he proposed to examine him about the transaction. Lewis v. State [Ala.] 39 So. 928. Objection to question as to what witness testified to on trial of one arrested with defendant for complicity in offense held properly sustained. Id.

48. State held not entitled to prove consistent statements by witness who was not to show that the testimony of a witness is false in certain particulars, evidence tending to show its truth in other particulars is admissible.[49] As a general rule a witness cannot be corroborated by showing previous consistent statements,[50] though there seems to be some conflict of authority in this regard.[51] Where, however, he is charged directly or inferentially with testifying under the influence of some motive prompting him to make a false statement, it may be shown that he made a similar statement when the imputed motive did not exist, or when motives of interest would have induced him to make a different statement.[52] So, too, where it is attempted to be established that his statement is a recent fabrication, evidence of his having given the same account of the matter at a time when no motive existed to misrepresent the facts is admissible.[53] impeached, though defendant testified in contradiction of testimony of said witness. McKnight v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 681, 95 S. W. 1056. Mere conflict between two or more witnesses does not authorize corroboration of one by his former statements. Inman Bros. v. Dudley & Daniels Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 449.

49. Where credibility of prosecuting witness was sought to be impeached by evidence tending to show that he had sworn falsely as to one of the articles taken at time of robbery, held that testimony tending to show that he was not mistaken as to other articles was admissible in rebuttal. State v. Easley [La.] 43 So. 279.

50. Evidence held properly excluded. People v. Wright [Cal. App.] 89 P. 364. Inadmissible where witness is shown to have made statements of fact contradictory to those made at trial. Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Stephens, 75 Ohio St. 171, 79 N. E. 235. Where witness has denied making statements contradictory of his testimony, and testimony tending to establish such statements is admitted. Burks v. State, 78 Ark. 271, 93 S. W. 983. Mere fact that admissions of party to suit may have been proved and that they do not accord with testimony given by him as a witness, examined by interrogatories, does not render such statements admissible. McBride v. Georgia R. & Elec. Co., 125 Ga. 515, 54 S. E. 674. Where witness on cross-examination denied that he had made certain statements to policeman, held error to allow him on redirect to state what he told such policeman. Zuckerman v. New York City R. Co., 102 N. Y. S. 641. Letter or report by agent to principal about latter's business held inadmissible to corroborate agent's evidence. Inman Bros. v. Dudley & Daniels Lumber Co. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 449. Fact that agent was stranger and surrounded by friends of defendants, and that latter used indefensible threats, and that it was claimed that they had conspired to testify as to what he did and said, held not to make report admissible, it appearing that threats were made long after transaction in controversy and to the principal. Id.

51. Where opposite party proves statements made by witness out of court contradictory to his testimony on trial, court may permit party calling him to prove that he made statements in line and in consonance with his testimony, provided said statements are contemporaneous. Rice v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 771. Accomplice stands in same position as any other witness in this regard, though conviction cannot be had upon his testimony unless corroborated. Id. Evidence of statements held admissible to corroborate accomplice. Id. Where state proved that witness had committed various offenses and had made contradictory statements, held that defendant could show that immediately after crime had been committed witness made similar statements to one he made at trial. Casey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 169, 97 S. W. 496. Where defendant on cross-examination of an accomplice who appeared as witness for state showed that such witness had for a time denied all connection with the crime, held error to admit evidence that, after inducements had been held out to him, he made statements admitting his complicity and incriminating defendant which was similar to his testimony on trial. Anderson v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 633, 95 S. W. 1037.

52. Commonwealth v. Miller, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 317. Statements of defendant showing knowledge of existence of deed to her from her husband held admissible. Davis v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 286, 98 S. W. 198.

53. Commonwealth v. Miller, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 317. Is not necessary that party directly charge that evidence is fabrication, but rule applies where by contradictory evidence, or from nature of case, testimony is indirectly claimed to be fabricated. In re McClellan's Estate [S. D.] 111 N. W. 540, modifying [S. D.] 107 N. W. 681. Letter written by witness and evidence of his statements to third person held admissible, it appearing that denial of claims of certain parties was based on theory that testimony of witness was recent fabrication for reason that he had motive for coloring or falsifying his evidence. Id. After introduction of impeaching evidence tending to show that plaintiff had been silent concerning his claims when most likely he would have asserted them had grounds existed, and leading to inference that they were of recent fabrication, held that he could be corroborated by proof of previous consistent claims and statements made and consistent conduct exhibited at time when their ultimate effect could not in nature of things have been foreseen. National Cereal Co. v. Alexander [Kan.] 89 P. 923. Statements of defendant showing knowledge of existence of deed to her from her husband held admissible. Davis v. Davis [Tex. Civ. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 286, 98 S. W. 198.

The subsequent acts or declarations of a witness are ordinarily inadmissible to fortify his testimony.[54] In prosecutions for rape, however, evidence that the prosecutrix made complaint after the commission of the offense is admissible.[55]

The party calling a witness sought to be impeached may re-examine him for the purpose of giving him an opportunity to explain contradictory statements or circumstances proved against him.[56]

Testimony to sustain the character of a witness is inadmissible unless he has been impeached,[57] but where his character has been attacked, proper evidence in rebuttal is, of course, admissible.[58] As a general rule a witness whose reputation has been directly assailed, or whose credit has been impeached by showing that he has made statements contradictory of his evidence, may be sustained by proof of his general good character for truth and veracity,[59] and such evidence may also be ad-

54. New v. Young [Ala.] 41 So. 523.

55. See, also, Rape, 8 C. L. 1667. In corroboration of her testimony. State v. Werner [N. D.] 112 N. W. 60. Particulars of complaint held admissible where her testimony has been attacked or her credibility questioned, and cross-examination aimed at impeachment of prosecutrix as to such statement entitles state to show all the particulars. Id.

56. Where impeaching conduct of a party, which might indicate long standing hostility against other party, was brought out on cross-examination, held error to refuse to permit him to explain conduct. Lenfest v. Robbins, 101 Me. 176, 63 A. 729. Where witness on cross-examination admitted giving inconsistent testimony on former trial, held proper on redirect to permit him to explain his motive in so doing. Hoggan v. Cahoon [Utah] 87 P. 164. Where witness' evidence as to facts surrounding injury sued for differed from previous written statement made out of court, held that he was properly allowed to explain how he happened to make such former statement. Hirsch & Sons Iron & Rail Co. v. Coleman [Ill.] 81 N. E. 21. Where state introduced part of witness' testimony at former trial for purpose of impeaching him, held that defendant was entitled to introduce any other part of such testimony which explained, modified, or contradicted part introduced by state. Casey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 169, 97 S. W. 496. Where witness for state was asked if he did not make certain statement on examining trial, which was reduced to writing and read to him and which tended to contradict his testimony, and he stated that he thought he did, held proper to permit state on redirect to read another statement to him, made and found in same examining trial evidence, in regard to same matter qualifying previous statement and tending to show that he was not entirely clear as to the matter. Lahue v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 1008. Witness who denies making contradictory statements cannot be asked what he did say until evidence that he did make such statements has been introduced. Cathcart v. Webb, 144 Ala. 559, 42 So. 25.

57. Mere fact that two witnesses differ in their statements as to any fact does not tend to impeach either. Southern R. Co. v. Hobbs [Ala.] 43 So. 844. Where reputation of witness for truth and veracity is not attacked, evidence to prove his good reputation in that respect is inadmissible. Casey v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex. Ct. Rep. 169, 97 S. W. 496.

58. On prosecution for homicide, though district attorney stated that he did not intend to attack defendant's reputation for peace and quiet, whereupon court limited number of defendant's witnesses to prove his reputation to eight, held not error to permit district attorney to cross-examine such witnesses as to their knowledge of defendant's reputation. People v. Wright [Cal. App.] 89 P. 364. Refusal to allow evidence that general reputation of witness for defense was good held not error though state had previously been allowed to show that it was bad, where her original testimony was inadmissible as hearsay. Clark v. People, 224 Ill. 554, 79 N. E. 941. Where effort is made on cross-examination to discredit witness, evidence of his good character is admissible in rebuttal. Minton v. La Follette Coal, Iron & R. Co. [Tenn.] 101 S. W. 178. Fact that defendant in criminal case claimed and undertook to show that charge was blackmailing scheme on part of prosecuting witness and her husband to get possession of defendant's property held not to authorize state to show that husband's reputation for honesty and fair dealing was good, as reputation in that respect was not in issue. Smith v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 924.

59. Harris v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 247, 94 S. W. 227. Where evidence of conflicting statements was introduced to impeach accused who testified in his own behalf. Dunlap v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 17 Tex Ct. Rep. 444, 98 S. W. 845. Where witness was contradicted by proof that he made statements which he denied. Myers v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 101 S. W. 1000. Where defendant introduced evidence to show that plaintiff had made statements at variance with his testimony, and evidence tending to show that he had simulated injury complained of. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Dumas [Tex. Cr. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 538, 93 S. W. 493. Where defendant showed that plaintiff had been confined in jail on misdemeanor charge and had partially served sentence therefor. Id. Where evidence was admitted to show that plaintiff had made statements and admissions in conflict with his testimony. Browning v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 118 Mo. App. 449, 94 S. W. 315. Where reputation of witness for truth and veracity has been impeached and it is sought to support his reputation by testimony of other witnesses, predicate must first be laid by showing that such witnesses are acquainted with his general reputation in neighborhood where he lives for truth and veracity before they can testify to what it is. Wolff v.

mitted in a criminal case on particular discrediting facts being developed against the witness in his cross-examination, particularly when he is in the situation of a stranger testifying to isolated facts.[60] In some states, however, general good reputation for truth and veracity is inadmissible in support of the testimony of a witness impeached by proof of conflicting statements.[61] There seems to be a conflict of authority as to whether a witness shown to have been convicted of crime may prove his innocence.[62]

§ 6. Privilege of witnesses.[63]—Under the Federal and state constitutions no person, in a criminal case,[64] may be compelled to give evidence against himself,[65] and no witness in any legal proceeding can be compelled to give evidence that will tend to incriminate him.[66] The privilege does not operate to excuse the witness from incriminating a corporation whose officer he is.[67]

Western Union Tel. Co. [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 420, 94 S. W. 1062. Question asking as to "character" of witness instead of his "general character" held improper. Southern R. Co. v. Hobbs [Ala.] 43 So. 844. Question whether witness "thought" character of another witness was good or bad held improper. Id.

60. As where state's witness was subjected to most rigid cross-examination, which tended to bring him into disrepute before jury, and indirectly seriously attacked his testimony. Harris v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 247, 94 S. W. 227. Where witness for state in criminal case has been attacked by laying predicate for his subsequent impeachment, or where his character has been assailed in any manner, state may introduce evidence sustaining that reputation before witnesses for defense have been placed upon stand directly to impeach. Id. In any event admission of sustaining evidence held harmless where witnesses for defense were subsequently introduced who seriously attacked his character. Id. Refusal to limit evidence of general reputation of state's witness to purpose of impeachment held not error where it was not calculated in any manner to affect merits of case or defendant's rights before jury. Id.

61. State v. Hoffman [Iowa] 112 N. W. 103.

62. Where witness admitted that he had been convicted of felony, testimony that he was not guilty held inadmissible. Fuller v. State [Ala.] 41 So. 774. Where defendant was erroneously allowed to show on plaintiff's cross-examination that he had been convicted of a misdemeanor, held not reversible error to permit plaintiff on recross-examination to give testimony tending to show that he was not guilty of the charge. Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Dumas [Tex. Civ. App.] 15 Tex. Ct. Rep. 538, 93 S. W. 493.

63. See 6 C. L. 2005.

64. Proceeding to punish one for contempt for violating injunction held not "a criminal prosecution" within meaning of Const. art 1, § 12, and hence B. & C. Comp. § 670, authorizing examination of defendant in such proceedings, is not unconstitutional, and defendant may be required to testify as to violation of injunction, subject to his right to refuse to answer questions tending in any manner to incriminate him. State v. Sieber [Or.] 88 P. 313. Proceedings to punish for contempt for disobeying injunction held not a criminal case within U. S. Const. Amend. 5, or a criminal prosecution within Pa. Const. art. 1, § 9, so as to preclude order requiring production of books and papers of organization enjoined. Patterson v. Wyoming Dist. Council, 31 Pa. Super. Ct. 112. Proceeding for deportation of Chinaman is a civil and not a criminal one so that defendant may be sworn and examined as a witness for the government and order of deportation based on his evidence against himself. Law Chin Woon v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 147 F. 227; Low Foon Yin v. U. S. Immigration Com'rs [C. C. A.] 145 F. 791.

65. Statement made by defendant to physician who examined him on behalf of people at request of court held not within constitutional prohibition. People v. Furlong [N. Y.] 79 N. E. 978. Order issued pursuant to Laws 1906, p. 79, no. 95, requiring corporation to produce certain books, etc., before grand jury, held violation of Const. art. 10, company not being a party nor charged with any crime, and having right to claim privilege after it had appeared with such books. In re Consolidated Rendering Co. [Vt.] 66 A. 790.

66. Persons voting illegally at an election are protected against disclosing for whom their illegal ballots were cast. Scholl v. Bell [Ky.] 102 S. W. 248. On examination of defendant before a referee before trial to enable plaintiff to prepare complaint in action to recover property of estate of a decedent alleged to have been fraudulently obtained and disposed of by defendant, held that, under Const. Art. 1, § 6, Code Civ. Proc. § 837, and U. S. Const. Art. 5, defendant was entitled to refuse to answer questions on ground that answer would tend to accuse him of crime. Chappell v. Chappell, 101 N. Y. S. 846. General manager for retail liquor dealer who was shown to have been present in saloon and saw bartenders under his control selling liquor on Sunday in violation of law held, under Const. art. 1, § 10, not required to answer question put to him by grand jury as to whether such bartenders were on duty and selling liquor on said day, since he could not have done so without making himself a principal in the transaction. Ex parte Merrell [Tex. Cr. App.] 95 S. W. 1047. Held that proceeding for punishment of defendant for contempt for violation of injunction would not be quashed because petition showed that many of the facts set forth therein were obtained from him while testifying in obedience to a subpoena in another case, and hence they should not be permitted to be used against him in violation of privilege

The statement of the witness that the answer will tend to criminate him is not necessarily conclusive, the question being one for the court, to be determined from all the circumstances of the particular case, and the nature of the evidence sought to be elicited;[68] but if the question has a possible incriminating tendency, the witness is the sole judge as to whether such is the fact.[69] The same rule applies to the production of books and papers in response to a subpoena duces tecum.[70]

The privilege is purely personal to the witness and he alone can claim it.[71] The time for asserting it is when the examination takes place,[72] and, since it is not violated by the mere summoning and swearing of the witness,[73] he must obey his subpoena and be sworn before he can claim it.[74]

The privilege is not violated by admitting the voluntary statements of one accused of crime,[75] and one charged with crime who voluntarily testifies to any secured to him by Rev. St. § 860, it not appearing that contempt might not be shown by other evidence. Hammond Lumb. Co. v. Sailors' Union of the Pacific, 149 F. 577.

67. Meade v. Southern Tier Masonic Relief Ass'n, 104 N. Y. S. 523.

68. In re Consolidated Rendering Co. [Vt.] 66 A. 790; Ex parte Butt, 78 Ark. 262, 93 S. W. 992. Witness examined before grand jury held not guilty of contempt in refusing to answer questions in regard to dynamiting of certain gambling house, where answers might have tended to incriminate him by showing that he himself did dynamiting or assisted others in doing so, or that he was guilty of criminal libel in accusing another of doing it, and it did not appear what crime jury was investigating. Ex parte Andrews [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 376.

69. Chappell v. Chappell, 101 N. Y. S. 846. If there is reasonable ground to apprehend that answer may tend to criminate witness. Ex parte Butt, 78 Ark. 262, 93 S. W. 992. If question asked witness is such that direct answer may or may not criminate him according to purport of answer, it must rest with him to answer such question or not, and if he says upon his oath that answer would criminate him, court can demand no other testimony of the fact. In re Mark [Mich.] 110 N. W. 61. Question held such that direct answer might criminate witness, so that his statement that it would was conclusive. Id. Rule that witness is sole judge is subject only to further rule that party aggrieved may prove, if he can, in an action for damages, that reason given was false and refusal to testify willful. In re Avery C. Lowe, 3 Ohio N. P. (N. S.) 641.

70. Mere statement of witness that books he is required to produce contain matter tending to incriminate him will not excuse him from obeying subpoena duces tecum, but court must be able to perceive that there is reasonable ground to apprehend danger to him. United States v. Collins, 145 F. 709, 146 F. 553. Mere fact that witness had been jointly indicted with his copartners and others for conspiracy to defraud government held not tantamount to showing that books of firm which he was required to produce were self-incriminating. Id.

71. In re Consolidated Rendering Co. [Vt.] 66 A. 790. Cannot be claimed for him by a party to the suit. Beauvoir Club v. State [Ala.] 42 So. 1040. Where witness claims privilege, but court rules he must answer, and he does so without further protest, evidence is not illegal as to defendant, and he cannot review action of court on appeal though he objects and excepts to ruling. Id. Motion to set aside information on ground that accused did not have statutory preliminary examination, because accomplice called as witness refused to answer certain questions on cross-examination that in her opinion would tend to criminate her, and that objection was made by counsel rather than witness, denied, there being sufficient evidence to authorize magistrate to hold defendant for trial. State v. Bond [Idaho] 86 P. 43. Is not duty of court upon interposition of party against whom he is called, and independent of any objection of witness, to inform latter of such privilege. State v. Mungeon [S. D.] 108 N. W. 552. Manner of examination of witnesses being largely discretionary with court, held not error to allow counsel to repeatedly request court to instruct witness that he need not answer incriminating questions unless he wished to do so, nor for court to so instruct witness. Lauchheimer v. Jacobs, 126 Ga. 261, 55 S. E. 55.

72. Hence order for examination of adverse party before trial should not be refused because witness may be privileged. Meade v. Southern Tier Masonic Relief Ass'n, 104 N. Y. S. 523.

73. Failure to produce books as required by subpoena duces tecum not excused by claim that they contain incriminating matter, it not being infraction of Const. Amend. 5, to merely bring them, and he not being in position to claim exemption until called upon to disclose incriminating evidence. United States v. Collins, 145 F. 709, 146 F. 553.

74. United States v. Collins, 145 F. 709, 146 F. 553. Cannot disobey a subpoena duces tecum, and refuse to produce books and papers called for, and still claim privilege that, if produced, they would tend to criminate him. In re Consolidated Rendering Co. [Vt.] 66 A. 790. Question of privilege cannot be raised by motion to dismiss petition for punishment of corporation for contempt for failure to obey order issued pursuant to Laws 1906, p. 79, No. 95, requiring it to produce certain books, etc., before grand jury, where petition contains no allegation relating to any claim of privilege or any testimony appearing to be incriminating. Id. Question could have been raised before grand jury and reported to court for its action. Id.

75. Testimony given by accused in his matter connected with the transaction may be fully cross-examined with regard to it,[76] but cannot be compelled to undergo experiments before the jury, even though he has offered himself as a witness.[77] The privilege is waived if not seasonably asserted,[78] and the question of privilege is not open to review where the witness answers.[79]

Statutes abridging the constitutional privilege against giving self-incriminating evidence are valid provided the immunity thereby granted is as broad as that granted by the constitution itself. In many jurisdictions it is held that the immunity granted by statutes providing that the witness may be compelled to give self-incriminating testimony, but that the testimony given by him shall in no case be used against him in any criminal prosecution, is sufficiently broad.[80] In others it is held that the witness cannot be compelled to give self-incriminating evidence unless the immunity granted is an absolute one from future prosecution for the offense to which the testimony relates.[81] own behalf on hearing of petition for writ of habeas corpus to secure his discharge from insane hospital, and after he had been informed by district attorney that he would be prosecuted for homicide if discharged, held admissible against accused on his subsequent trial for homicide, defended on ground of insanity, since it was voluntary and hence its introduction did not compel defendant to be witness against himself contrary to Const. art. 1, § 13, and U. S. Const. art. 5, particularly where there was nothing in such testimony which could be construed as a confession or admission of guilt. People v. Willard [Cal.] 89 P. 124. In criminal case held error to admit testimony as to what accused said under oath as witness before grand jury, where he was then in custody on charge of committing same crime, and there was evidence that he was induced to make statement by precedent undue influence. Cooper v. State [Miss.] 42 So. 601.

76. Defendant who takes stand is bound to answer any pertinent inquiry on cross-examination. State v. Heffernan [R. I.] 65 A. 284. On prosecution for practicing medicine without a certificate, held that defendant was properly required to answer question as to what was ingredient of nerve food used by him. Id. Where two parties are separately charged with a felony, and, upon preliminary examination of one, other is called as a witness by prosecution, he may refuse to answer any questions, either direct or cross-examination, that would tend in least to incriminate him, he not being voluntary witness. State v. Bond [Idaho] 86 P. 43.

77. Held error to require defendant to place cap on his head for purpose of identification by prosecutrix. Turman v. State [Tex. Cr. App.] 16 Tex. Ct. Rep. 409, 95 S. W. 533.

78. In re Consolidated Rendering Co. [Vt.] 66 A. 790. Fact that witness gave testimony on ex parte examination before justice which fully sustained charge against defendant held not a waiver of right to decline to answer questions on defendant's preliminary examination. In re Mark [Mich.] 110 N. W. 61.

79. Taylor v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 152 F. 1.

80. Kirby's Dig. § 3087, providing that in all cases where two or more persons are jointly or otherwise concerned in commission of any crime or misdemeanor either may be sworn as witness in relation to such crime or misdemeanor, but testimony given by such witness shall in no case be used against him in any criminal prosecution for same offense, is valid. Ex parte Butt, 78 Ark. 262, 93 S. W. 992. Statute protects witness against use of incriminating testimony only in prosecutions for offense of which defendant was accused and in relation to which witness was called to testify. Id. Under such statute participant can be compelled to testify as to facts tending to incriminate himself only to the extent of the protection thereby afforded him, and in cases in which statute does not provide for protection, he may refuse to answer all questions, the answers to which may criminate him. Id. Held error to require member of legislature to answer questions as to his acceptance and use of free railroad transportation, since such acceptance would have been misdemeanor under Kirby's Dig. §§ 6694, 6695, 6697, and answer might criminate him, and § 3087 would not prevent use if his testimony on prosecution therefor. Id. Witness before grand jury held properly required to answer questions purpose of which was to show that certain room was used as meeting place for purpose of bribery, since if answer would criminate him, he would be protected by § 3087. Id. Witness required to answer questions seeking information as to bribery of members of legislature, since, if he was concerned therein, it must have been in connection with others and hence he was within protection of § 3087. Id. Witness required to answer questions as to mileage books delivered to him, since if delivered to him as an inducement to commit a crime, and he committed it, he would be jointly liable with person delivering it and would be protected by § 3087, while if it was delivered to him for a lawful purpose, or if no crime was committed in consequence of such delivery, answer could not criminate him. Id. In form in which certain questions were propounded held that witness should not have been compelled to answer them. Id.

81. Held that even if Pen. Code, § 142, providing that in certain civil cases no person shall be excused from testifying to certain facts on ground that testimony might tend to convict him of crime but that his evidence shall not be received against him

The constitutional provision against unreasonable searches and seizures cannot ordinarily be invoked to justify the refusal of an officer of a corporation to produce its books and papers in obedience to a subpoena duces tecum[82], unless the subpoena is so sweeping in its demands as to be unreasonable.[83]

Refusal to answer proper questions renders the witness liable to punishment for contempt.[84] A witness is not excused from answering a question otherwise in a criminal prosecution, was applicable to case at bar, it did not deprive him of right to refuse to answer, since it did not grant him complete immunity. Chappell v. Chappell, 101 N. Y. S. 846. Statute held inapplicable to action by administrator to recover property of decedent alleged to have been fraudulently obtained by defendant. Id. Section 837 applies to civil as well as criminal cases and is controlling. Id. Acts 1903, p. 122, c. 94, § 15, providing that witness in proceeding before justice of peace for violation of anti-trust act may be compelled to testify and relieving him from prosecution, held not to apply to investigation by grand jury. Ex parte Andrews [Tex. Cr. App.] 100 S. W. 376. Witness held not guilty of contempt in refusing to answer questions as to boycott propounded to him by grand jury, where any knowledge he might have must have been acquired by participating therein, particularly where no immunity was offered him. Id.

Bankruptcy Act: Immunity granted bankrupt by Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 7, sub. 9; 30 St. 548, held to relate only to criminal proceedings arising out of bankrupt's conduct of his business, disposition of his property, and other past transactions, about which alone statute authorizes his examination, and not to protect him from prosecution for making false oath in giving his testimony. Edelstein v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 149 F. 636. Immunity given by said section is not sufficient to supplant privilege conferred by constitution if latter is claimed, but where bankrupt consented to answer an obviously self-incriminating question without objection, held that section was no defense to prosecution for false swearing in examination on objection to discharge. Id. Testimony given by bankrupt on his examination in bankruptcy proceedings cannot be admitted in a subsequent criminal proceeding against him if timely objection is interposed. United States v. Simon, 146 F. 89. Hence, though statute does not in terms grant immunity from prosecution, it does preclude conviction of bankrupt for perjury for false testimony given by him in support of claim filed against his estate. Id. Proviso of Rev. St., § 860, that such section shall not exempt any party or witness from prosecution or punishment for perjury committed in testifying as therein provided cannot be read into said section of the Bankruptcy Act. Id. Demurrer to indictment sustained, it being notice to court that defendant would not waive privilege. Id.

82. In aid of grand jury investigation. Santa Fe Pac. R. Co. v. Davidson, 149 F. 603. Laws 1906, P. 79, No. 95, requiring corporations, on notice, to produce before any court grand jury, etc., books, papers, etc., bearing on pending actions, inquiries, etc., held not in contravention of Const., art. 11, since it limits order to such documents as contain information concerning subject of inquiry, and is sufficiently definite and limited in its operation. In re Consolidated Rendering Co. [Vt.] 66 A. 790. Order made pursuant thereto held not an unreasonable search or seizure, it being sufficiently definite as to what was to be produced, requiring no undue and improper inquisition into company's affairs, and a compliance therewith involving no hardship or detriment to company's business. Id. Order provided for is, in effect, a subpoena duces tecum, except that it is addressed to corporation rather than to an officer thereof. Id. Statute is not in contravention of Const. art. 10, providing that no one can be compelled to give evidence against himself. Id. Not in contravention of U. S. Const. Amend. 14, as arbitrarily discriminating between artificial and natural persons, and denying the former the equal protection of the laws (Id.), nor as depriving corporation of its property without due process of law in that it authorizes fine for disobedience of order (Id.), or in failing to provide compensation for time, trouble, and expense in producing documents in other states, the statutes relating to fees and mileage being applicable and loss due to inadequacy is incidental to exercise of legitimate powers of government (Id.). Foreign corporation which has complied with state statutes and is doing business in state held amenable to statute. Id. Not excused from obeying order by reason of fact that it had sent books demanded to home office. Id. Corporation may be required by subpoena to produce within reasonable limits its books and papers before grand jury engaged in investigating its acts. United States v. American Tobacco Co., 146 F. 557.

83. Subpoena requiring production of minute books for three years and copy letter books for three months held not too broad, though not confined to documents relating to definitely specified transactions. United States v. American Tobacco Co., 146 F. 557. Subpoena held not unreasonable. Santa Fe Pac. R. Co. v. Davidson, 149 F. 603. Subpoena calling for production of books and papers admittedly in possession of witness held not a violation of 4th Const. Amend., there being nothing unreasonable in the quantity of books called for or the description of those wanted. United States v. Terminal R. Ass'n, 148 F. 486.

84. Is duty of witness examined before master to answer such questions as latter may direct after objections thereto have been overruled, and he may be punished for contempt for refusal to do so unless he himself interposes some personal privilege which would excuse refusal. Bowker v. Haight & Freese Co., 146 F. 256. Under Rev. St. § 1342, 86th Article of War, court-martial has no final jurisdiction over civilian witness and no power to punish him for contempt for refusal to answer questions, its authority being limited to certification of facts to U. S. district attorney. United States v. Praeger, 149 F. 474.

proper on the ground that he will thereby be required to violate the implied confidence of a private conversation,[85] or to disclose his personal affairs,[86] nor from answering a question as to the ingredients of a medicinal compound on the ground that it is his personal property,[87] nor does the fact that questions asked a witness are irrelevant prevent his commitment for contempt for refusal to answer them.[88] Where the secrecy of the ballot is held to be a personal privilege of the voter, he may, when examined as a witness, disclose how he voted or not, as he sees fit.[89] The right of a juror or others to testify as to the deliberations of the grand jury is treated elsewhere.[90]

§ 7. Subpoenas, attendance, and fees.[91]—A court of equity has power to compel the production of books and papers in virtue of its inherent and general jurisdiction, and this power is not confined to the parties to the suit but extends to third persons.[92] The manner of issuing [93] and serving subpoenas,[94] and the compensation of witnesses,[95] is regulated entirely by statute and varies in the different states. Since the service of subpoenas outside the jurisdiction of the court is without force or effect, a witness so served is not entitled to mileage though he attends the trial,[96] but this rule does not apply to a witness residing within the jurisdiction but outside the limit of distance within which attendance is compulsory.[97] It is the duty of a witness summoned on behalf of the state in a criminal case to appear according to the summons without a preliminary tender of his fees.[98] The Federal and state 85. Witness before legislative investigation committee. Ex parte Parker, 74 S. C. 466, 55 S. E. 122.

86. Complainant in suit in equity held entitled to require witness to disclose extent of his interest in another corporation which owned a controlling interest in the stock of defendant railroad company. Telier v. Tonopah & G. R. Co., 151 F. 607.

87. On prosecution for practicing medicine without a certificate, defendant held not excused from answering question as to the ingredient of a nerve food used by him. State v. Hefferman [R. I.] 65 A. 284.

88. Where court or officer has jurisdiction of subject-matter, fact that questions are irrelevant furnishes no reason for impeaching commitment of witness for contempt for refusing to answer them. Ex parte Butt, 78 Ark. 262, 93 S. W. 992.

89. Provision of primary election law (Del. Laws vol. 20, p. 357, § 393), for secret ballot held to give voter privilege of disclosing how he voted or not, so that voter's testimony as to how he voted was competent. State v. Matlack [Del.] 64 A. 259. Court held not required to instruct witness that he need not testify as to how he voted at primary election, it not being a criminal matter. Id.

90. See Grand Jury, 7 C. L. 1884.

91. See 6 C. L. 2009.

92. United States v. Terminal R. Ass'n, 148 F. 486.

93. Where no sufficient foundation was laid by plaintiff for reading under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 2904, 3149, from bill of exceptions of evidence of physician given for him on former trial, held error to refuse defendant's request for subpoena for such physician made at proper time. Doyle v. St. Louis Transit Co. [Mo. App.] 101 S. W. 598. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 854, subpoena for witness in supplementary proceedings must be issued by justice or other person before whom such proceedings are pending, and cannot be issued by attorney for judgment creditor. Lowther v. Lowther, 100 N. Y. S. 965. § 2444, providing that on such proceedings either party may be examined as witness in his own behalf, and may produce and examine other witnesses as upon the trial of an action, relates to manner of examining witnesses properly summoned and not to manner of summoning them. Id.

94. Under Code Cr. Proc. 1895, art. 515, subpoena cannot be served by reading it to person to whom it is addressed over telephone. Ex parte Terrell [Tex. Cr. App.] 95 S. W. 536.

95. Wife of a litigant is entitled to mileage and per diem same as any other witness would be for same travel and attendance. Anderson v. Ferguson-Bach Sheep Co. [Idaho] 86 P. 41. Witnesses residing in city where court was held, held not entitled to per diem allowances during periods of adjournment. Smith v. Smith [Mich.] 14 Det. Leg. N. 60, 111 N. W. 342. Proper allowance for per diem and mileage determined. Id. Statutes relating to fees and allowances of witnesses held applicable to corporation served with order to produce books, etc., before grand jury pursuant to Laws 1906, p. 79, No. 95. In re Consolidated Rendering Co. [Vt.] 66 A. 790.

96. Buckman v. Missouri, etc. R. Co. [Mo. App.] 98 S. W. 820. Under Rev. St. 1899, §§ 3259, 3260, witnesses served with subpoenas at their residences in foreign state held not entitled to mileage. State v. Wilder, 196 Mo. 418, 95 S. W. 396.

97. Though under Rev. St. 1887, § 6039, witness residing in adjoining county and more than 30 miles from place of trial is not obliged to attend in response to subpoena, privilege of disobeying it is a personal one, and if he sees fit to waive it and attend and testify, he is entitled to mileage for actual and necessary travel within the state same as any other witness who has attended under compulsory process. Anderson v. Ferguson-Bach Sheep Co. [Idaho] 86 P. 41.

98. Order issued pursuant to Laws 1906, constitutions give persons accused of crime the right to compulsory process to compel the attendance of witnesses in their behalf,[99] and statutes frequently provide for procuring the attendance of such witnesses at the cost of the county.[1] In some states the accused is not entitled to summon more than a specified number without making a prescribed showing.[2] Statutes authorizing the refusal of a continuance because of the absence of accused's witnesses, on the admission by the state that they would testify as claimed, are valid.[3]

When a witness has been duly summoned it is his duty to appear at the time and place named in the subpoena.[4] If he is required to produce documentary evidence by a subpoena duces tecum, it is his duty to produce what is called for if it is in his possession or under his control.[5] In Louisiana it is discretionary with the trial judge whether a witness shall be required to attend from another parish than that in which the trial takes place.[6] The failure to obey a valid subpoena[7] is, in the absence of a good and sufficient excuse,[8] a contempt of court and may be punished as such, the practice in such cases being largely statutory.[9] The Federal statutes

p. 79, No. 95, requiring corporation to produce certain books and papers before grand jury, and proceedings in contempt for violation thereof, held not an infringement of Const. art. 11, because no tender was made to company covering its fees and expenses. In re Consolidated Rendering Co. [Vt.] 66 A. 790.

99. Constitutional right of accused to compulsory process is right to demand issuance of subpoenas and their service, and he is entitled to have attachments issued to compel attendance of witnesses only when circumstances and conditions are such as to call legally for that writ. State v. Stewart, 117 La. 476, 41 So. 798. Held not error to refuse attachments where subpoenas had not to have been personally served. Id.

1. Laws 1903, c. 5132, p. 71, prescribing requisites to be complied with by parties charged with crime in applications for procurement of witnesses for their defense at cost of county, held not to violate Declaration of Rights of Const. 1885, §§ 11, 14, providing that accused shall have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses. Pittman v. State [Fla.] 41 So. 385. U. S. Const. amend. 6, held inapplicable, it having reference only to powers exercised by Federal government. Id. Applications under said statute should be seasonably made at earliest reasonable opportunity and not withheld until case is called for trial (Id.), and statutory requirements should be complied with (Id.). Is within sound judicial discretion of trial judge to determine whether statutory provisions have been properly complied with and the bona fides of the application, and his action will not be disturbed unless abuse is clearly shown. Id. Refusal to direct issuance of subpoenas for witnesses in behalf of insolvent defendant held not abuse of discretion under circumstances. Id.

2. Where accused has made required oath, he is entitled to summon witnesses beyond statutory six as a matter of right. State v. Freddy, 117 La. 121, 41 So. 436.

3. Where district attorney made admissions demanded by Acts 1894, No. 84, p. 117, held that court properly refused continuance because of abuse of defendant's witnesses. Statute held constitutional. State v. Stewart, 117 La. 476, 41 So. 798.

4, 5. In re Consolidated Rendering Co. [Vt.] 66 A. 790.

6. Under Rev. St. § 1036. State v. Romero, 117 La. 1003, 42 So. 482.

7. Subpoena reciting that magistrate issuing it had "reason to suppose an offense has been committed and for the purpose of investigating whether it has been committed," commanding witness to appear before him "for that purpose," but not naming or describing any person as defendant as required by Code Cr. Proc. § 612, and not stating what the crime was, but showing that it was issued solely for purpose of ascertaining whether crime had been committed or not, held void on its face and not sufficient to require obedience. People v. Wyatt, 186 N. Y. 383, 79 N. E. 330. Where magistrate was acting without jurisdiction in issuing subpoena, and subpoena was void on its face, held that witness was not bound to obey it, and any attempt to punish him for refusing to do so would be unlawful, and he would have absolute right to relief through writ of habeas corpus, so that he was not entitled to writ of prohibition to prevent magistrate from proceeding with examination. Id.

8. Court held justified in refusing to punish witness for failure to obey subpoena duces tecum where he was not afforded sufficient time in which to comply therewith. Consolidated Coal Co. v. Jones & Adams Co., 120 Ill. App. 139. Refusal of witness to produce books called for by subpoena held not excused by showing merely that they are books of partnership of which he is a member only, and that they are not under his control or in his custody except as one of the members of the firm. United States v. Collins, 145 F. 709. Secretary of corporation cannot be punished for contempt for failure to produce before grand jury certain of its books in response to subpoena duces tecum directed to him, where such books have never been in his possession or under his control, but are in exclusive possession of another officer, remedy in such case being to issue and serve subpoena on corporation. United States v. American Tobacco Co., 146 F. 557.

9. Under Code Cr. Proc. 1895, arts. 516-519, court held not authorized to in first instance render final judgment against witness for contempt in failing to obey sub-provide that a witness summoned before a general court-martial of the army who willfully refuses to testify shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.[10]

Neither the immateriality of the evidence to be elicited nor the insufficiency of the pleadings will justify a witness in disobeying a subpoena.[11] So, too, a witness is ordinarily not excused from obeying a subpoena duces tecum on the ground that the documents called for are immaterial and not proper evidence in the case,[12] or that they would tend to incriminate him if produced,[13] though a showing as to their materiality and propriety is sometimes required before he may be punished for contempt,[14] or on motion to quash the subpoena.[15]

The exemption of nonresident witnesses from service of process while in attendance upon judicial proceedings is treated elsewhere.[16] poena, but proper practice was to enter judgment nisi, and final judgment only after citation to the party and a hearing on evidence. Ex parte Terrell [Tex. Cr. App.] 95 S. W. 536.

WOODS AND FORESTS; WORK AND LABOR; WORKING CONTRACTS; WRECK, see latest topical index.

10. Act Cong. March 2, 1901, c. 809, 31 St. 950, providing that any civilian duly subpoenaed to appear as a witness before a general court-martial of the army, who "willfully" refuses to testify, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, but that no witness shall be compelled to incriminate himself, etc., construed, and held that refusal of witness to answer question and produce certain document would not be a violation of the act where he had reasonable grounds to believe that to do so would criminate him, though refusal was based on erroneous conception of rules of evidence. United States v. Praeger, 149 F. 474. Witness held not to have violated act where it appeared that he was not actuated by any evil motive or bad intent, that he acted under legal advice of reputable counsel, and that he had reasonable grounds to believe that answers would tend to incriminate him. Id. Where it appeared that documentary evidence which subpoena required witness to produce had been destroyed, held that his failure to produce it was not a violation of the act. Id. Decision of court-martial that answer to question would not tend to incriminate witness held not conclusive in prosecution of witness under Act March 2, 1901, c. 809, 31 St. 950, for refusal to answer. Id.

11. Suit in equity in Federal court. Fairfield v. U. S. [C. C. A.] 146 F. 508.

12. Question is one for court and not for witness. In re Consolidated Rendering Co. [Vt.] 66 A. 790; United States v. Terminal R. Ass'n, 148 F. 486.

13. See § 6, ante.

14. Must be a proper averment by affidavit of facts showing that the books and papers called for are material and proper evidence in the case. Consolidated Coal Co. v. Jones & Adams Co., 120 Ill. App. 139.

15. Is not necessary to satisfy court beyond any reasonable doubt that books and papers called for are relevant and material, but a showing that there is reasonable ground to believe that they may be relevant and material is sufficient. United States v. Terminal R. Ass'n, 148 F. 486. Showing held sufficient. Id.

16. See Process, 8 C. L. 1449.

TENNESSEE CITATION INDEX DIGEST.

FOR VOLS. 7 AND 8 CURRENT LAW.

Refers to volume (vol) page (p) and foot-note (n) of Current Law.

A

ACCORD AND SATISFACTION.

Fraud, mistake and duress. Vol 7 p 15 n 82; p 16 n 90,93, 95.
Pleadings, issues and proof. Vol 7 p 17 n 20.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

Operation and effect. Vol 7 p 27 n 56, 57.

ADVERSE POSSESSION.

Definition and essential elements. Vol 7 p 43 n 10.

AGENCY.

The relation. Vol 7 p 62 n 25.
Rights and liabilities, principal to third persons. Vol 7 p 83 n 71.

ANIMALS.

Estrays and impounding. Vol 7 p 124 n 42.
Regulations as to care; keeping, etc. Vol 7 p 125 n 54, 55.

APPEAL AND REVIEW.

Constitutional and statutory provisions; policy of the law. Vol 7 p 129 n 11.
What the record proper must show. Vol 7 p 164 n 85.
Sufficiency of entire record to present particular questions. Vol 7 p 184 n 3; p 185 n 3.
Transmission of proceedings and evidence to reviewing court. Vol 7 p 193 n 49.
Forming issues. Vol 7 p 198 n 93.
Review of discretionary rulings. Vol 7 p 227 n 83.
Review of questions of fact. Vol 7 p 228 n 92; p 231 n 94.
Remand or final determination. Vol 7 p 244 n 80.

ARGUMENT AND CONDUCT OF COUNSEL.

Curing objection. Vol 7 p 264 n 54; p 265 n 62.

ARREST AND BINDING OVER.

Necessity for warrant. Vol 7 p 266 n 71; p 267 n 73, 75, 76, 77, 81; p 268 n 82, 83.
Warrant and its issuance. Vol 7 p 269 n 98.
Making arrest; disposition of prisoner. Vol 7 p 270 n 18.

ARSON.

Indictment and prosecution. Vol 7 p 272 n 46, 47.

ASSIGNMENTS.

Rights susceptible. Vol 7 p 279 n 51.

ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELORS.

Admission to practice and license taxes. Vol 7 p 319 n 41.
Suspension and disbarment. Vol 7 p 321 n 64.

B

BANKING AND FINANCE.

Deposits and repayment. Vol 7 p 376 n 56; p 377 n 64.

BANKRUPTCY.

Property and rights passing to trustee; particular kinds. Vol 7 p 400 n 95; p 401 n 10, 11.
Nature of trustee's title in general. Vol 7 p 402 n 32.
The trustee takes title free from liens. Vol 7 p 403 n 45, 46, 47.
Protection of trustee's title and possession. Vol 7 p 414 n 83.
Liabilities released and use of discharge. Vol 7 p 429 n 27.

BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTS.

The contract, sufficiency and interpretation. Vol 7 p 481 n 76.

C

CARRIERS IN GENERAL.

Connecting carriers, draymen and transfermen. Vol 7 p 529 n 47.

CARRIERS OF GOODS.

Delivery to carrier and inception of liability. Vol 7 p 533 n 68.
Delivery by carrier and storage at destination. Vol 7 p 541 n 57.

CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS.

Who are passengers. Vol 7 p 558 n 65.
Rates and fares, tickets and special contracts. Vol 7 p 564 n 49.
Contributory negligence of passenger. Vol 7 p 572 n 44.
Operation and management of trains and other vehicles. Vol 7 p 582 n 59.
The duty to passengers. Vol 7 p 583 n 72; p 584 n 77, 78, 79.
Taking up or setting down passengers. Vol 7 p 587 n 12.
Remedies and procedure. Vol 7 p 592 n 67.

CAUSES OF ACTION AND DEFENSES.

Vol 7 p 604 n 59, 61.

CEMETERIES.

Vol 7 p 606 n 85, 86

Refers to volume (vol) page (p) and foot-note (n) of Current Law.

CERTIORARI.

Nature, occasion and propriety of remedy. Vol 7 p 609 n 3.

COLLEGES AND ACADEMIES.

Vol 7 p 658 n 3, 13; p 660 n 47; p 661 n 48, 49, 50.

COMBINATIONS AND MONOPOLIES.

Combinations violative of state anti-trust acts and of the common law. Vol 7 p 663 n 84; p 666 n 99, 1.

COMMERCE.

Regulation of commerce. The "commerce clause" and its application to particular regulatory measures. Vol 7 p 670 n 54.

COMMON LAW.

Vol 7 p 674 n 6.

CONSPIRACY.

Criminal liability. Vol 7 p 688 n 91, 95.

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.

General rules of interpretation. Vol 7 p 695 n 60; p 697 n 83.
Legislative functions. Vol 7 p 701 n 26; p 702 n 33; p 703 n 34, 35, 36.
Relative powers of federal and state or other subordinate governments. Vol 7 p 706 n 71.
Police power in general. Vol 7 p 706 n 76, 81; p 708 n 89; p 709 n 92.
Equal protection of the law. Vol 7 p 711 n 9; p 712 n 11, 13.
Privileges and immunities of citizens. Vol 7 p 714 n 23.
Grants of special privileges and immunities; class legislation. Vol 7 p 716 n 37; p 717 n 42.
Laws impairing the obligations of contracts. Vol 7 p 720 n 63.
Deprivation without due process of law or contrary to law of the land. Vol 7 p 727 n 13; p 728 n 35; p 730 n 56.
Taxation and fiscal affairs. Vol 7 p 740 n 54; p 741 n 65, 68, 70, 71; p 742 n 80, 84; p 743 n 85.

CONTRACTS.

Public policy in general. Vol 7 p 781 n 22.
Restraint of trade. Vol 7 p 787 n 83, 85; p 788 n 85.
Interpretation, general rules. Vol 7 p 792 n 20, 64, 65; p 804 n 65.
Character; joint and several; entire or divisible, etc. Vol 7 p 803 n.
Discharge by performance or breach. General rules. Vol 7 p 810 n 11.
Time and mode of rescission or abandonment. Vol 7 p 821 n 97.
Particular remedies on breach and election between them. Vol 7 p 826 n 37.

CONVERSION IN EQUITY.

How effected. Vol 7 p 855 n 80; p 856 n 82.

CORPORATIONS.

Dissolution; forfeiture of charter; winding up, etc. Vol 7 p 886 n 89, 92; p 888 n 21
Corporate meetings and elections. Vol 7 p 912 n 59.
Powers of directors or trustees. Vol 7 p 917 n 35, 36, 37

COSTS.

Procedure to tax costs; correction and review. Vol 7 p 973 n 63; p 974 n 69.

COUNTIES.

Officers; personal rights and liabilities. Vol 7 p 979 n 43; p 981 n 55; p 982 n 76; p 983 n 80, 81.
Public powers, duties and liabilites. Vol 7 p 984 n 7; p 985 n 23; p 986 n 26; p 988 n 42; p 990 n 72; p 991 n 78, 80; p 994 n 20; p 997 n 73.

COVENANTS FOR TITLE.

Making of covenants; persons and estate benefited or bound. Vol 7 p 1004 n 59; p 1005 n 64.

D

DAMAGES.

Kinds of damages. Vol 7 p 1031 n 96.
General principles for ascertaining. Vol 7 p 1035 n 46, 47.
Measure of damages for breach of contract. Miscellaneous contracts. Vol 7 p 1042 n 19, 20; p 1043 n 21, 26.
Liability of bailees, carriers and telegraph companies. Vol 7 p 1049 n 69, 70, 71; p 1050 n 73.
Personal injuries. Vol 7 p 1063 n 17.
Inadequate and excessive. Vol 7 p 1064 n 29.
Evidence as to damages. Vol 7 p 1074 n 74.

DEDICATION.

Effect of dedication. Vol 7 p 1103 n 82.

DEEDS OF CONVEYANCE.

Nature, form and requisites. Vol 7 p 1104 n 93; p 1106 n 19.
Interpretation and effect. Vol 7 p 1112 n 97, 98, 99; p 1117 n 58; p 1118 n 64, 65.

DEFAULTS.

Opening defaults. Vol 7 p 1125 n 51.
Operation and effect. Vol 7 p 1128 n 93.

E

ELECTION AND WAIVER.

Occasions for elections. Of remedies. Vol 7 p 1222 n 8.
Of rights and estates. Vol 7 p 1224 n 22.

ELECTIONS.

Legal authorization, time, place and notice. Vol 7 p 1232 n 10.
Official ballot. Vol 7 p 1240 n 7.

EMINENT DOMAIN.

Who may exercise the right; delegation of power. Vol 7 p 1279 n 52.
Purposes and uses of a public character. Vol 7 p 1282 n 98.
Property liable to appropriation; estate which may be acquired. Vol 7 p 1284 n 23; p 1285 n 31.
What is a "taking," "injuring," or "damaging." Vol 7 p 1289 n 78, 80, 81.
Conditions precedent; location of route. Vol 7 p 1291 n 6.

Refers to volume (vol) page (p) and foot-note (n) of Current Law.

Measure and sufficiency of compensation. Vol 7 p 1293 n 20; p 1294 n 24.
Actions for tort, damages or trespass; recovery of property. Vol 7 p 1317 n 98.
Ownership or interest acquired. Vol 7 p 1320 n 36.

EQUITY.

Occasions for and subjects of relief. Vol 7 p 1341 n 45.
Practice and procedure in general. Vol 7 p 1351 n 26.
Taking bill as confessed or on default. Vol 7 p 1370 n 19, 22, 24, 25.
Trial by jury or master, their verdicts and findings. Vol 7 p 1372 n 57.
Bill of review. Vol 7 p 1380 n 70, 79; p 1381 n 80, 88; p 1382 n 98, 2.

ESCAPE AND RESCUE

Vol 7 p 1383 n 23.

ESTATES OF DECEDENTS.

Jurisdiction and courts controlling administration. Vol 7 p 1389 n 29.
Procedure to obtain letters. Vol 7 p 1399 n 9.
Removals and revocation. Vol 7 p 1401 n 34.
Exhibitions, establishment, allowance and enforcement of claims. Vol 7 p 1423 n 54
Probate orders and decrees. Vol 7 p 1476 n 77.

ESTOPPEL.

Operation of doctrine of estoppel. Vol 7 p 1510 n 75.

EVIDENCE.

Best and secondary evidence. Vol 7 p 1531 n 54.
Parol evidence to explain or vary writings. Vol 7 p 1539 n 92.
Res gestae. Vol 7 p 1556 n 97.
Admissions or declarations against interest. Vol 7 p 1564 n 30.
Quantity required and probative effect. Vol 7 p 1598 n 53.

EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

Cross-examination. Vol 7 p 1604 n 18.

F

FIRES.

Rights and duties respecting fires. Vol 7 p 1658 n 58.
Remedies and procedure. Vol 7 p 1659 n 77, 78.

FORCIBLE ENTRY AND UNLAWFUL DETAINER.

The cause of action. Vol 7 p 1672 n 98.

FORESTRY AND TIMBER.

Protection and regulation of forests and trees. Vol 7 p 1739 n 83.
Logs and lumbering. Vol 7 p 1741 n 4, 5.

FORGERY.

Elements of offense. Vol 7 p 1745 n 48.

FORMER ADJUDICATION.

Doctrine in general. Vol 2 p 63 n 74, 79.
As bar of causes or defense. Vol 2 p 65 n 91.
As estoppel of facts litigated. Vol 2 p 68 n 20; p 69 n 21; p 71 n 38.
Pleading and proof. Vol 7 p 1769 n 28, 29.

FRATERNAL MUTUAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATIONS.

The beneficiary. Vol 7 p 1799 n 71, 72; p 1800 n 84, 85; p 1801 n 87; p 1802 n 99.

FRAUD AND UNDUE INFLUENCE.

Actual fraud. Vol 7 p 1815 n 8.
Remedies. Vol 7 p 1820 n 43; p 1821 n 49. 53.

FRAUDS, STATUTE OF.

Agreements not to be performed within one year. Vol 7 p 1827 n 82.
Trusts. Vol 7 p 1833 n 59.
Part performance. Vol 7 p 1836 n 1.

G

GARNISHMENT.

Claims or interventions. Vol 7 p 1872 n 93.

GOOD WILL.

Vol 7 p 1882 n 47; p 1883 n 54.

GRAND JURY.

Vol 7 p 1884 n 73; p 1886 n 90, 95; p 1888 n 18; p 1889 n 24, 29, 30.

H

HARMLESS AND PREJUDICIAL ERROR.

The general doctrine. Vol 8 p 1 n 1, 2; p 8 n 11.
Errors cured or made harmless by other matters. Vol 8 p 28 n 63; p 32 n 68.

HIGHWAYS AND STREETS.

Change of grade. Vol 8 p 51 n 76; p 52 n 87.
Fiscal affairs. Vol 8 p 59 n 71; p 60 n 78, 79.
Rights of abutters. Vol 8 p 71 n 62; p 72 n 63.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Contract and property rights and liabilities of wife as to third persons. Agency of husband for wife. Vol 8 p 144 n 49, 50.
Proceedings to compel support of wife. Vol 8 p 152 n 80; p 153 n 90; p 154 n 91, 1, 2.

I

IMPLIED CONTRACTS.

Work and labor. Vol 8 p 158 n 42, 50.
Remedies and procedure. Vol 8 p 165 n 13.

INCOMPETENCY.

Effect on contracts. Vol 8 p 170 n 92.
Remedies and procedure. Vol 8 p 171 n 98.

INDICTMENT AND PROSECUTION.

Finding and filing and formal requisites. Vol 8 p 194 n 95.
Requisites and sufficiency of the accusation. Vol 8 p 195 n 21; p 196 n 35.
Defects, defenses and objections. Vol 8 p 199 n 94, 2.
Joinder, separation and election. Vol 8 p 200 n 15.
Summary prosecutions and review thereof. Vol 8 p 266 n 49

Refers to volume (vol) page (p) and foot-note (n) of Current Law

INJUNCTION.

Enjoining public, official and municipal acts. Vol 8 p 289 n 83.

INSANE PERSONS.

Guardianship and support. Vol 8 p 323 n 17, 18.

INSOLVENCY.

Administration of insolvent estate. Vol 8 p 332 n 42.

INSPECTION LAWS.

Vol 8 p 333 n 52.

INSTRUCTIONS.

Province of court and jury. Vol 8 p 333 n 6.
Limiting number of instructions. Vol 8 p 344 n 97.

INSURANCE.

The contract of insurance in general and general rules for its interpretation. Vol 8 p 396 n 67, 68.
Premiums and premium notes, dues and assessments and payment of the same. Vol 8 p 401 n 7.
Warranties, conditions and representations. Fire insurance. Vol 8 p 404 n 36, 37.
The risk or object of indemnity. Fire insurance. Vol 8 p 412 n 89.
Options and privileges under policy. Vol 8 p 420 n 55.
Change or substitution of contract or risk or of conditions thereupon. Vol 8 p 424 n 97; p 425 n 97, 4, 5; p 426 n 6.
Rescission, forfeiture, cancellation, and avoidance. Vol 8 p 428 n 28, 29, 31; p 430 n 52, 56.
Estoppel or waiver of right to cancel or avoid. Vol 8 p 432 n 68; p 435 n 74.
Reinstatement. Vol 8 p 444 n 29.
Loss, its extent, and liability therefor. Vol 8 p 445 n 46.
Presumptions and burden of proof. Vol 8 p 466 n 55.
Verdict, findings, judgment. Vol 8 p 473 n 19.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

Licenses and license taxes. Vol 8 p 495 n 67.
Offenses and responsibility therefor in general. Vol 8 p 503 n 29; p 504 n 36.

J

JUDGMENTS.

Rendition, entry and docketing. Vol 8 p 540 n 25, 26.

JURISDICTION.

Legislative power respecting jurisdiction. Vol 8 p 582 n 68.
General or inferior, limited and special jurisdiction. Vol 8 p 595 n 46; p 596 n 46.
Appellate jurisdiction. Vol 8 p 598 n 60; p 599 n 66.
Objections to jurisdiction, inquiry thereof, and presumptions respecting it. Vol 8 p 617 n 27.

JURY.

Necessity or occasion for jury trial as "preserved" by the constitutions. Vol 8 p 617 n 33.
Jury trial as conferred where the common law did not give it. Vol 8 p 620 n 66.
Demand, loss or waiver of right to jury trial. Vol 8 p 621 n 79, 81; p 622 n 91.
The jury list and drawing for the term. Vol 8 p 627 n 66.
Examination of jurors and trial and decision of challenges. Vol 8 p 633 n 51.
Swearing. Vol 8 p 635 n 79, 80.

L

LARCENY.

Common-law larceny. Vol 8 p 700 n 60.

LIBEL AND SLANDER.

Evidence. Vol 8 p 726 n 85.

LIFE ESTATES, REVERSIONS, AND REMAINDERS.

Nature and definition. Vol 8 p 763 n 31.

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.

Accrual of cause of action and beginning of period. Vol 8 p 776 n 74.

M

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF.

Vol 8 p 797 n 10.

MANDAMUS.

Nature and office of remedy in general. Vol 8 p 812 n 21.
Jurisdiction and venue. Vol 8 p 825 n 40.
Pleading and procedure in general. Vol 8 p 827 n 67.
Trial and hearing. Vol 8 p 830 n 20.

MASTER AND SERVANT.

Termination of the relation. Vol 8 p 841 n 65.
Actions for wrongful discharge. Vol 8 p 845 n 4.
Master's liability for injuries to servants. Vol 8 p 854 n 83; p 859 n 10.
Tools, machinery, appliances, and places for work. Vol 8 p 870 n 52.
Methods of work, rules and regulations. Vol 8 p 879 n 99.
Fellow-servants. Vol 8 p 885 n 44; p 889 n 57; p 892 n 79.
Contributory negligence. Vol 8 p 914 n 69; p 919 n 81.
Liability for injury to third persons in general. Vol 8 p 945 n 32.

MORTGAGES.

Construction and effect of mortgages in general. Vol 8 p 1031 n 55.

MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.

Consolidation, succession and dissolution. Vol 8 p 1058 n 40
Police power and public regulations; control of streets and public places. Vol 8 p 1071 n 48.

N

NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

Liabilities and discharge of sureties, guarantors and other anomalous parties. Vol 8 p 1133 n 86.
Acceptance. Vol 8 p 1134 n 11; p 1135 n 14.
Indorsement. Vol 8 p 1136 n 36.

Refers to volume (vol) page (p) and foot-note (n) of Current Law.

O

OFFICERS AND PUBLIC EMPLOYES.

Definitions and classification. Vol 8 p 1193 n 9, 15.
Proceedings to try title to office. Vol 8 p 1199 n 96.
Resignation, abandonment, removal and reinstatement. Vol 8 p 1203 n 66.
Powers and duties. Vol 8 p 1211 n 80, 85, 86.
Civil liability of public officers. Vol 8 p 1213 n 18; p 1214 n 32.

P

PARENT AND CHILD.

Services, earnings and injuries to child. Vol 8 p 1232 n 57.

PARTITION.

Nature, right and propriety. Vol 8 p 1247 n 78, 79.
Scope of relief in partition. Vol 8 p 1253 n 77.
Mode of partition and distribution of property or proceeds. Vol 8 p 1256 n 16, 24, 25, 26.

PARTNERSHIP.

Firm name, trade-mark and good will. Vol 8 p 1264 n 66; p 1269 n 66.

PAUPERS.

Liability for support. Vol 8 p 1326 n 14.

PERJURY.

Prosecution and punishment. Vol 8 p 1346 n 47.

PLEADING.

The declaration, count, complaint, or petition. Vol 8 p 1379 n 48.
The plea or answer. Vol 8 p 1382 n 72.
Issues made, proof and variance. Vol 8 p 1424 n 46.

POWERS.

Execution of powers. Vol 8 p 1446 n 90.

PRISONS, JAILS, AND REFORMATORIES.

Custody, discipline, government and employment of inmates. Vol 8 p 1448 n 27, 28.

R

RAILROADS.

Route, location, termini and stations. Vol 8 p 1593 n 48; p 1594 n 52.
Accidents at crossings. Care required on part of company. Vol 8 p 1634 n 3; p 1635 n 9, 10.
Accidents at crossings. Contributory negligence. Vol 8 p 1640 n 45.
Actions for injuries. Vol 8 p 1664 n 30, 32, 34, 38.

RAPE.

Female under age of consent. Vol 8 p 1668 n 85.
Indictment or information. Vol 8 p 1670 n 13, 14.

RELEASES.

Defenses to or avoidance of releases. Vol 8 p 1716 n 62.

REMOVAL OF CAUSES.

Diversity of citizenship and alienage of party. Vol 8 p 1725 n 76, 77; p 1726 n 80.

S

SALES.

Contract requisites of a sale. Vol 8 p 1754 n 3.
Transition of title. Vol 8 p 1768 n 47.
Delivery and acceptance under the terms of the contract. Vol 8 p 1769 n 59.
Action by seller for breach. Vol 8 p 1798 n 30.
Rights of bona fide purchasers and other third persons. Vol 8 p 1816 n 64.
Conditional sales. Vol 8 p 1817 n 74; p 1819 n 5.

SAVING QUESTIONS FOR REVIEW.

Acquiescing in error. Vol 8 p 1827 n 11; p 1828 n 14.
Necessity of objection. Vol 8 p 1835 n 84.
Necessity of motion or request. Vol 8 p 1836 n 88; p 1838 n 1; p 1840 n 16.
Waiver of objections and exceptions taken. Vol 8 p 1850 n 98, 1.

SCHOOLS AND EDUCATION.

Funds, revenues and taxes. Vol 8 p 1860 n 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73.

STARE DECISIS.

Rules of property. Vol 8 p 1966 n 60.

STATES.

Action by and against. Vol 8 p 1975 n 92, 98. 99, 4.

STATUTES.

Enactment. Vol 8 p 1977 n 18; p 1978 n 33, 36.
Special or local laws. Vol 8 p 1980 n 63.
Subjects and titles. Vol 8 p 1983 n 92; p 1984 n 92; p 1986 n 15.
Amendments and revisions. Vol 8 p 1986 n 31; p 1987 n 34, 38.
Interpretation in general. Vol 8 p 1994 n 54.
Repeal. Vol 8 p 1997 n 85; p 1998 n 89, 92, 97, 99.

SURETYSHIP.

Defenses based on fraud or concealment by creditor of material facts. Vol 8 p 2056 n 56.

T

TAXES.

Corporations, and corporate stocks and property. Vol 8 p 2065 n 92.
Exemption from taxation. Vol 8 p 2068 n 35, 42.
Valuation of taxable property. Vol 8 p 2072 n 7.
Equalization, correction and review. Vol 8 p 2074 n 34; p 2075 n 38, 42.
Levies and tax lists. Vol 8 p 2076 n 59.
Relief from illegal taxes. Vol 8 p 2079 n 11.
Procedure in actions at law. Vol 8 p 2082 n 69; p 2083 n 98.
Conduct of sale. Vol 8 p 2085 n 16

Refers to volume (vol) page (p) and foot-note (n) of Current Law.

TELEGRAPHS AND TELEPHONES.

Franchises and licenses, property and contracts and corporate affairs. Vol 8 p 2096 n 95.

TENANTS IN COMMON AND JOINT TENANTS.

Rights and liabilities between tenants. Vol 8 p 2115 n 33; p 2116 n 34.
Rights and liabilities as to third parties. Vol 8 p 2121 n 25.

TRESPASS.

Criminal liability. Vol 8 p 2157 n 99.

TRIAL.

Joint and separate trials. Vol 8 p 2161 n 82.

TRUSTS.

Express trusts. Vol 8 p 2176 n 45.
The trustee. Vol 8 p 2187 n 66.
Sale of trust property. Vol 8 p 2192 n 57.

V

VERDICTS AND FINDINGS.

Separate verdict as to different counts, causes of action or parties. Vol 8 p 2251 n 11.

W

WAREHOUSING AND DEPOSITS.

Vol 8 p 2259 n 47, 48.

WATERS AND WATER SUPPLY.

Rights in natural water courses. Vol 8 p 2267 n 51.

WEAPONS.

The crime of carrying or pointing. Vol 8 p 2302 n 25.

WILLS.

Requisites, form and validity. Vol 8 p 2315 n 89.
Parties in will cases and the right to contest. Vol 8 p 2318 n 41.
Appeals. Vol 8 p 2324 n 27.
Recording foreign wills. Vol 8 p 2326 n 55.
Interpretation of terms designating property or funds. Vol 8 p 2328 n 94; p 2329 n 2.
Interpretation of terms creating, defining, limiting, conditioning or qualifying the estates and interests created. Vol 8 p 2337 n 73; p 2340 n 94.
Abatement, ademption and satisfaction. Vol 8 p 2345 n 48.

WITNESSES

Privileged communications. Attorney and client. Vol 8 p 2363 n 92.
Character and conduct of witnesses in general. Vol 8 p 2375 n 83, 87.
Corroboration and sustentation of witnesses. Vol 8 p 2384 n 58.