The Tobacco World

Vol. XXXII. PHILADELPHIA AND NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 1, 1912. No. 17.

First Report Under New Tobacco Law, Causes Doubt As To Interpretation

Cigar Manufacturers and Leaf Dealers Uncertain As To What the Government Wants—Classification Schedule of Tobacco
On Hand Sent Out to the Trade

EDANA DURAND, Director of the Census, Department of Commerce and Labor, on August 22, forwarded to the cigar and tobacco manufacturers of this country blank forms, on which the manufacturers are to make their first reports under the new law which requires dealers and manufacturers to report the quantity of stemmed and unstemmed leaf tobacco in their possession. One report slip, which is to be filled out and returned at once, provides for a report of the names and locations of the places where leaf tobacco may be stored to the account of the manufacturer on October 1, 1912. It also provides a separate report for tobacco warehouses which are storing tobacco for manufacturers.

Enclosed with Mr. Dana's letter is a schedule card, another copy of which but slightly modified, will be sent to the manufacturers on or about September 17, to enable them to make their report for October 1.

Several points already have arisen among the manufacturers as to the interpretation of the new law. Some manufacturers, knowing that the Internal Revenue Department does not permit them to enter on their books tobacco, which, although bought, is not actually in their possession, are in doubt whether to report such tobacco to the Census Department. They are also confused relative to several other provisions of the new law and are seeking light on it.

The reports which are to be returned at once relative to the warehouses, are simply preliminary statements, which will enable the bureau to prepare a list of names and addresses of the persons to whom the schedule cards should be mailed on September 17.

The schedule card provides for every type of tobacco, there being two lists. Cigar types: New England, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Georgia and Florida, Porto Rico tobaccos, also the imported types. Under the heading of chewing, smoking, snuff and export types, are given the Burley district, the dark districts of Kentucky and Tennessee, under which are included the following sub-divisions: Dark fired, as grown in Clarksville and Hopkinsville and Paducah Districts; Henderson and Green River District; one sucker. The other districts include Virginia Sun-Cured District, Virginia Dark District, Bright Yellow District of Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, Maryland and Eastern Ohio Export, Perique-Louisiana, all others domestic.

Ready for Cigarmakers' Convention in Baltimore

ARRANGEMENTS for holding the National Convention of the Cigarmakers' International Union, the first meeting of its kind held in sixteen years, are going forward. The convention will be held in the Maennerchor Hall, Baltimore, September 16, and will continue in session for several days. About 400 delegates from all parts of the country are expected. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, will likely attend.

Albert Breitung, One of "Big Five" Opens Twelfth Chicago Store

Leases Fine Location in the Loop District, Which He Will Make His Headquarters—Will Open About November 10

CHICAGO, August 29.

ALBERT BREITUNG, who owns eleven cigar stores in the Loop, and is therefore known as one of the "Big Five," has just closed a long-time lease for the corner store in the Monadnock Building, Jackson Boulevard and Dearborn Street. This is a choice location, and the store will be fitted up in the very latest fixtures.

The premises are 52 by 28 feet and there will be 95 lineal feet of window space, which is the largest amount of display space possessed by any cigar store in the city. If the store possessed an entire city block its access could not be much improved upon, as this store will have four entrances, one on Jackson Boulevard, another in Dearborn Street, and two in the Building Arcade.

Mr. Breitung, who has just returned from Europe, will make this store his executive office, and provision is made in the lease for a vault in the basement, where reserved stock can be stored. The store will be opened about November 10.

Connecticut Tobacco Damaged by Hail Storms

NEW MILFORD, CONN., August 27.

ASERIES of severe hail storms which swept the Housatonic Valley caused damage to full-grown tobacco in the fields estimated at between $80,000 and $100,000. The storms covered an area of thirty-five square miles, the principal damage being done in the vicinity of Kent, Northville, Gaylordsville, Hawleyville and Sherman. About half the crop which had not yet been cut and placed in the sheds was damaged by the storm. The losses are reported to be quite heavy among some of the larger tobacco growers.

The tobacco shed on the Adams-Crockett tobacco farm in Agawam was struck by lightning and twenty farm hands who were working in the sheds were stunned. The tobacco was not damaged.

The four-story stock barn of the Cuba-Connecticut Tobacco Company, situated one mile south of Feeding Hills village, was destroyed by fire.

Revenue Districts Merged--Four Abolished

FOUR Internal Revenue Districts have been abolished by legislation just passed by Congress. They are the First New Jersey District, which will be consolidated with the Fifth New Jersey; District of South Carolina, consolidated with the Fourth North Carolina District; District of Oklahoma, consolidated with the District of Kansas. First and Second Districts in Wisconsin are consolidated into the District of Wisconsin.

A reduction in the appropriations amounting to $100,000 will also necessitate the dropping of one Deputy Internal Collector in each district throughout the country.

The First Internal District of New Jersey comprises the lower counties of the state, with headquarters at Camden. Under the new arrangement, this entire state will now be in one district.

Future Jobber Must be Big Factor in Economy

By Anderson Pace in "Trade Exhibit"

THERE'S just one answer to this question.

The jobber's business is to shorten the journey between maker and retailer. His purpose in life is, or should be, to build a more and more direct line between the man who makes the goods and the man who sells them to the consumer.

The jobber of the present will not be the jobber of the future unless he buckles down on this identical job. Future profit and growth will come only to him who aids in making distribution more efficient.

The ideal, logical and economical chain of distribution is maker-to-jobber-to-retailer-to-consumer, but this chain can also be the most wasteful method of getting goods to the user.

Wastefulness usually begins after goods leave the maker's hands, when this chain is an inefficient one. The reason why the maker often has no hand in the inefficiency of distribution lies behind the fact that production is no longer the economic problem of the day.

Cutting the cost of production was the work of yesterday.

Today's problem involves cutting the length of the trip from manufacturer to consumer. All energies are, or should be, concentrated on making the jump from producer to user quicker and more economical.

The efficient jobber can do this, but no other agency can.

The efficient jobber, or the jobber of the future, as we shall call him, will grow and thrive because he is a factor in economy. He will help to save. The inefficient jobber, who is nothing more than an expense-adder, will gradually become extinct, because he really renders no service that cannot be dispensed with.

The wholesaler of the future must be a gigantic centralizer. His warehouses must contain literally the concentrated essence of the world's market places. A single order sent to him must be able to levy toll on all countries and all makers.

The efficient wholesaler must be the doorway to ten thousand factories. Only thus can he save his patrons the waste involved in scattered buying and many small shipments.

He must enable his trade to concentrate a host of lines in one bill. He must be able to buy in trainloads and sell by dozens. The first will give him bedrock prices; the latter will spare his trade the danger of overstocks and stickers.

The retailer of the future must buy small and often. He must cover great variety, turn stock quickly and earn a maximum profit on a minimum investment. He must be freed from advance-buying.

The dollar he pays the wholesaler must buy more than goods. It must pay for protection against risks, overstocks, stickers and the like.

The wholesaler of the future must be big enough to leap over all middlemen. He must be able to go to the headwaters of merchandise and study the elements before they are combined in the goods.

None of the money he receives from his patrons must be spent for something that does not eventually get back to the man who paid it in.

The wholesaler of the future must be able to dictate styles and create goods. Only thus can he adequately cater to the people who buy his goods. For the wholesaler of the future will be the servant of the retailer, not a dictator.

Continental distribution must also be a feature of future wholesaling. A jobber's warehouses must so completely cover the country that he can bring goods almost to the counters of his customers.

When he buys, however, the wants of all his branches must be lumped into one, so that costs may be battered down to a dead level. Thus they will buy as a whole and sell as individuals.

The lines of the efficient wholesaler must be so varied that his overhead expense will be distributed among the greatest possible number of departments, making the burden on each as small as possible.

His open stocks must constantly be kept at so high a point that the instant demands of any customer or any number of customers may be met. The future wholesaler cannot possibly confine himself to order taking. He must be able to shoot back the goods the moment the order arrives.

But stock keeping and buying facilities are merely one side of the question, since a wasteful selling system can neutralize buying economies of all kinds.

As long as men compete for the trade of the retailer, it will cost money to sell goods. The wholesaler who leads will be he whose selling cost is nearest zero; who spends the smallest sum to gain the attention of the dealer and to excite desire and action.

That the outlines given above are not the vision of an unpractical dreamer is proved by the fact that few wholesalers today can say with truth that their methods closely coincide with those of the jobber of the future.

They are aiming at efficiency, not only because it will be helpful to the retailer, but also because it will pay a bigger profit than any other system.

What can the merchant do to further wholesaling efficiency? He will eventually have to patronize the efficient jobber, so that the day of perfectly economical distribution will merely be hastened by any encouragement given now.

The efficient jobber aims to be a perfect servant for the retailer, and self interest should cause the latter to help reach the goal.

France Questions President's Smoking

"Should the President of our republic smoke?" is a question the French people are now debating. The question is raised as President Fallières has been seen smoking a pipe in the Elysée. More than one President in the past has given up the smoking habit on his accession to presidential dignity. M. Thiers asked the members of his suite to adjure tobacco, the effect of which, he said, was to dull the mind. Marshal MacMahon, at one time an inveterate pipe smoker, could not tolerate the smell of tobacco after coming into office. His successor, M. Jules Grévy, held that money was not made to end in smoke, and was a non-smoker on economic principles. The ill-starred President Carnot abhorred tobacco, while M. Casimir-Perier considered smoking unesthetic. Shades of Napoleon Bonaparte!

The fellow who can't keep a job might try working in a glue factory. He ought to stick there.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

The Value of Enthusiasm

A MAN who believes with his whole heart and soul that his business is the best business on earth, and proves that belief in every word he says about it, is sure to make good, even although he be a plodder. In these days of keen competition and wonderful activity it is necessary for the business man to have enthusiasm. Enthusiasm fuses all a man's business qualities into one effective whole.

No one can be truly enthusiastic who does not believe in his business. There are hundreds of business men who complain that fate is against them, their surroundings are poor, or their business is at fault. They are fooling themselves and their friends. They lack the spark of real, vital enthusiasm, and will always remain indifferent merchants.

Where Knowledge is Power

Knowledge of the thing you handle is necessary to good salesmanship. Some clever fellows I know get by without much knowledge, just as some men can make a stirring speech who would think it time wasted to read one of Emerson's Essays. To know your business keep one word in your mind and let that word be "Why." Why do we have to get more for this than we get for that? "Why" is the basis of knowing. "Why" starts you thinking. When you place before a man several boxes of cigars with a difference in price of each smoke of from five to ten cents, and then in a lazy way tell him you guess one is made of better tobacco, you are a "WHY" man.

Another thing—the more you know about difference in quality the more quality stuff you'll sell, and that's what builds business.

Are You Above Rules?

No matter how big you are, no matter how long you've been connected with the firm, keep faithfully to the simple rules of that firm. By ignoring them, by thinking them above you, you make little of the man that wishes them carried out and you show your own weakness besides. Never brag about not conforming to "new-fangled" ideas. Because some day you may have to be whipped into line. Being a disorganizer, a rulebreaker, a sorehead, is a very, very bad spirit to cultivate. You may think it smart. It is stupid. You may flatter yourself that you're an impossibility. That won't get you anything—except one thing, a chance some day to look for another job.

Don't Emulate Rip Van Winkle

If there's one thing that upsets a manager more than anything else, it's a sleepy worker. Many faults can be overlooked, but may the Powers deliver us from the dead one back of a counter. Go at things lively. Get the quick habit. If you have health in your veins and hope in your heart show it up. Express yourself. Get out some good lively energy, and make room for a fresh supply of that health and that hope. The other fellows have got it all over you. Wake up or something will be written in your envelope one of these days.

Advertisements Create Confidence

The whole business world rests on a foundation of confidence. When confidence is gone, business is gone.

Individual salesmanship depends upon confidence as much as any other transactions in business. If a man has confidence in you and in your goods you can sell him. You cannot make any sales where confidence is lacking.

If your prospect lacks confidence in you, then your entire efforts must go to building up in his mind a feeling of confidence.

The greatest builder of confidence is publicity—advertising. Lack of confidence is usually due to ignorance. Unless you know a man well, you haven't confidence in him. Unless you know a business house well, you haven't confidence in that house.

The greatest foe of ignorance is publicity. The saying that "publicity corrects all abuses" is a true one.

Advertising makes you acquainted with the public. It gives people knowledge about you and your goods, and knowledge is absolutely essential to confidence. Big advertising makes people familiar with you; it unconsciously creates confidence.

Without a doubt, the greatest force today in the interest of confidence—in the interest of credit, if you will—is advertising.—Hugh Chalmers.

A man, like a cigar, is sooner or later pretty sure to meet his match.

Too many call downs won't help a young man to rise in the world.

Some people have an idea that a little truth goes a long way, if you stretch it.

Of course, you have read Ellis Parker Butler's funny story "Pigs is Pigs"? This was the query propounded by a prominent salesman to me recently.

"It reminds me of an old fellow who believed a 'cigar store was a cigar store' and nothing else. We will call this man Eb Green, although that is not his real name. I first ran across Eb in Kansas City, Missouri, when I was making that territory. It was some years ago and Eb had a cigar store on one of the main streets and was doing a big business. The town was just beginning to boom and was not the metropolitan city it is now.

"Eb had the worst junk shop of a store you ever saw. Honestly, he had cigars in there that must have been made before the war. Every time you smoked one of these Roman candles it looked like a miniature Fourth of July celebration. He had peculiar ideas, too, and refused to take a chance on purchasing any new brands of cigars or tobacco. The front windows of the place were streaked and begrimed with the dust and dirt of years. Advertising never occurred to Eb and he wouldn't have known how to have gone about it, anyhow.

"Everything went along all right until the street began to build up. Other cigar men came in—students of the modern school who had been taught the value of attractive displays, good goods and hustle.

"But Eb never batted an eye-lash. He saw to it that his place of business was opened at seven o'clock in the morning and every evening at six he turned the key in the rusty lock.

"Little by little Eb's business began to melt away. These newcomers on the street did not believe in sitting calmly back and waiting for Dame Fortune to enter the door. No, indeed. They ran hastily out of the store and grasped 'Opportunity' by the wrist and hauled her into the place bodily.

"They adopted every modern convenience consistent with their means and location, and their stores always looked like a beehive in honey time.

"And meanwhile the Rip Van Winkle of the cigar business next door looked blankly on and muttered:

"'Drat it all; some folks is jest naturally lucky.'"

The following excuse received by the superintendent of schools, Province of Abra, Philippine Islands, may probably be one of the reasons why Manila cigars are not popular in some cities.

"We, the undersigned, to prove: That on Thursday past, Maximo Rojas was absent on account of sickness; that his sickness were itches insofar that he were unable to wear trousers. Therefore he were absence."

The fashionable method of serving a cigar in vogue in the large restaurants did not appeal to a breezy looking New Mexican, who was seated in one of the White Way palaces the other evening. From the attention which was being given him by two dapper companions, it was evident that they were trying to put one over on him, and lest his brain become too befogged, in the rapid procession of drinks, he decided to switch to smoking, and ordered a cigar. The cigar was served to him standing on end, in an ordinary whiskey glass. When it was placed before him, he looked at the waiter and asked, "What's that there?" "The cigar you ordered, sir," said the waiter. "Eh," replied the man with the sombrero, "but, lad, I ain't agoin' to drink it."

They were on the sofa in the parlor. The lights and conversation both were low. Presently a female voice was heard to say:

"You are not a broken reed, are you, George?"

"What a question, dear. What do you mean?"

"Why, papa said he'd hate to have me lean on a broken reed."

"Well, here's a broken Perfecto cigar you've been leaning on. Go and give that to your papa with my compliments."

Don't talk about a man behind his back. That's the place to kick him.

"Mail order competition is assuming grave proportions in the cigar trade," said a prominent Chicago jobber the other day. "Retailers everywhere have been too prone to look upon this class of competition as more or less of a joke, but I have had occasion to look rather deeply into the matter, and the results are astounding. Every large magazine, and small ones for that matter, are carrying numerous advertisements of 'direct to the smoker' brand. That this trade is gaining ground is evidenced by the number of large, handsome offices now to be found for the carrying on of this trade. One or two concerns have found it advantageous to run their own factories, on account of the volume of business, and every day the list of new entries into this field of merchandising is growing. The dealer with the right kind of stuff in him can combat this trade very successfully, since the merit of the mail order product is usually very mediocre, but the 'dead ones' in the retail cigar business are catching—well, what Sherman said war was. It is possible that an organization properly conducted would do much to combat this growing evil."

As a courier of good news, THE TOBACCO WORLD takes pride in pointing out the fact that it was the first trade journal in this country to announce the official report on the tobacco industry for the fiscal year ending June 30. These figures, published in our last issue, reveal a prosperous condition of the four principal branches of the tobacco manufacturing business, namely, in cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, which includes chewing and smoking and snuff.

Each one of these branches shows an increase, although the combined increase of the other three is eclipsed by the tremendous gain in the production of cigarettes. There have been numerous straws noted in these columns indicating the direction of the trade winds in the tobacco business, and all have pointed to an amazing increase in the production and consumption of cigarettes. These predictions are confirmed by the 2,000,000,000 increase for 1912—nearly 22 per cent. gain over 1911, the largest percentage of increase in recent years.

Those who have been complaining that the tremendous gain in the popularity of the cigarette would seriously curtail the production of cigars, will find an answer to their claims by examining the increase in the production of cigars which this year amounts to nearly 5,000,000.

Although the gain in cigars is negligible compared with that of cigarettes, it is significant, because in face of adverse business conditions, which usually first affect the consumption of cigars, the smokers of this country have held tenaciously to their favorite brands of cigars, and as a result, the total for 1912 has reached the enormous figures of 7,256,390,303.

The year of 1912 would have closed with a much better showing had it not been for the unexpected slump of production during June, when the production of cigars fell off over 41,000,000. Up to June the industry was showing steady gains, but the slump which hit the manufacturing trade during that month pulled down the figures to the very conservative gain of less than 5,000,000.

Summarizing the annual report we fail to see anything discouraging in it, but on the contrary we see every indication of a condition that is satisfactory, considering the general business conditions, and pregnant with hope for even greater strides in 1913.

The superior quality of the 1912 Havana crop should prove an impetus to high-class retailers to feature these goods more strongly than ever, as a means of building up high-class trade. The sale of Havana goods, whether they be made in Tampa, Key West or Cuba, should receive the full benefit of the exceptional crop conditions. Whenever there is a bad crop, and there have been several mediocre, not to say abnormally poor crops in recent years, this condition had been reflected in a slump in the sale of Havana cigars. Now that the 1912 crop is being made up into cigars, and everyone admits the superior quality of the leaf, there is no reason why the manufacturers and retailers of this class of goods should not get behind them and take advantage of this propitious condition.

Unfortunately, the sales departments of many of the Havana manufacturers are lacking in the aggressiveness which would enable them to use every ounce of advantage. Havana cigars, in many instances are advertised in a haphazard way and not along the most profitable lines. Comparatively few are placed before the readers of trade papers and little effort is made to educate the dealers to the merit of these goods.

If the manufacturers would take up the selling and trade advertising problem as earnestly as they have their manufacturing end, they would find many opportunities opening up to them. The distributors and retailers in turn can do their share by displaying Havana goods in their windows and featuring them on their counters and display cases.

The United Cigar Stores struck the right idea this week when there appeared in many of their windows throughout the United States the following sign: "1912 Havana crop the best in years. Fresh shipments of cigars received daily from Tampa and Key West." If other retailers handling Havana goods, and there should not be a high-class store that has not a liberal stock of them, would follow this example, or improve upon it, they would find their efforts rewarded with a big increase in their box sales and also a notable improvement in the class of their customers.

Thus it will be seen that the situation demands quick action on the part of the manufacturers; first, in exploiting the goods to the retailer through trade papers and other media; and, second, in enlisting the co-operation of the live retailer and distributor in pushing the goods to the consumers.

Will they take advantage of it?

Havana Unable to Handle Goods Expeditiously

Late Strike of Cartmen, Which Was Declared Off, and Accumulation of Shipments of Tobacco From Country Causes Delay—Leaf Market Booming

HAVANA, August 26. THE principal event, during the past fortnight, was the strike of the cartmen, which lasted from August 15th to the 20th inst., when fortunately the same was declared off, and business could proceed again on its natural course. A great deal of harm was done during the six days that it lasted, as no tobacco could be hauled from the railroad stations or the docks of the coastwise steamers that bring tobacco from the interior of the island. Buyers were handicapped, as while they could register vegas, they could not cart them away, nor were our exporters able to ship goods on Friday by the Saturday's Ward Line boat. Some of them that had commenced already to do so on Thursday happened to have a part of their orders go forward by the Saratoga, and the balance was left behind until the next Saturday, as the following steamer on Tuesday, the Monterey, had to leave in ballast from here.

Through the accumulation of bales from the country we are still suffering from the impossibility to handle all the goods as promptly as heretofore, and we learned today that the S. S. Havana, which left here on the 24th inst., shut out about 2,000 bales of leaf tobacco, and some cases of cigars, and which will go forward tomorrow by the S. S. Morro Castle.

Cigars.

The official figures, from our custom house returns, for the second half of July, as regards our exports of cigars to all countries, show the following disheartening figures, viz.:

|---|-------------------|
| From July 16, 1911, to July 31, 1911, | 7,193,031 cigars. |
| " " 16, 1912, " " 31, 1912, | 5,099,787 " |
| Decrease in 1912, | 2,093,244 " |
| From January 1, 1911, to July 31, 1911, | 103,376,584 " |
| " " 1, 1912, " " 31, 1912, | 89,233,020 " |
| Decrease in the first 7 months of 1912, | 14,142,964 " |

At the moment, however, our factories, at least the principal of them report a better state of business, as orders are plentiful, the principal complaint consisting only in the scarcity of wrappers, not alone that clean, uniform colors this year do not exist, but that also even the spotted wrappers are no longer easy to find, so the outlook is by no means very bright. The supply of old wrappers, which formerly were not looked at, have also all been sold. Little faults of not burning perfectly have been overlooked in the anxiety to secure at least clean colors.

The question is now to find out, whether the connoisseurs of Havana cigars may upon trial prefer the ugly looking, good tasting and burning cigars to the cigars with the old wrappers, which are handsome looking, but cannot taste as sweet, and possibly may not burn as freely? When the first shipments of new cigars, wrappers and fillers arrived in Germany, and other countries, the importers cabled at once, cancelling orders and stopping future shipments, but of late fresh cables have arrived, stating to continue shipments. This confirms what we have been arguing about, that the fine, sweet and aromatic flavor of the new cigars, in conjunction with the excellent burn, will overcome the prejudice of the bad-looking wrappers.

It remains to be seen yet, what the Americans are going to do in this matter. As there is no special news to be gleaned from a visit to our factories, as they all report to have either added to their forces of cigarmakers or completed their full seating capacity, thus indicating that orders at last are plentiful, from all the chief consuming countries of the world, we repeat the names of them herewith, as follows, viz.: Romeo y Julieta, Partagas, H. Upmann, Sol, the Elite factory, Eden, Castañeda, the principal factories of the Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd., and Hoyo de Monterey.

Notwithstanding the partial interruption, our leaf market has been booming, as the total sales reached the enormous quantity of 32,000 bales of all kinds of leaf, and prices have stiffened more yet for nearly all grades. The receipts from the country were over 68,000 bales, but as quite a quantity of them consisted of country purchases to our factories, and to Messrs. Sylvester & Stern, as well as some American buyers, therefore not all the bales are for sale. It is said now that the majority of the escogidas in the Santa Clara province will finish their labors by the end of the month of September. One logical reason why the reporters from the country making such exaggerated reports, as to the immense crop of Remedios were not based upon facts, consists of the lighter quality of this year's growth, as a matul this year did not weigh from over 3 to 4 pounds, while in ordinary seasons such a bundle weighed from 7 to 8 pounds, so it can be seen at a glance that our informants must have based their calculations upon the former accustomed number of matules to make a bale of tobacco, and which in reality would cut down the estimates to perhaps nearly one-half, or thereabouts. Furthermore the calculations may have counted in the tobacco still in the fields in the month of March, which, however, through the drought in the month of April did not mature, and was dried up and lost. To about the same extent the crops in the Vuelta Abajo, Semi-Vuelta and the Partido have suffered, and have reduced the actual crop in the number of bales. Undoubtedly the buyers of the Trust have been aware of these facts when they started in to buy heavily, and thus changed the aspect of our market like magic, creating a big demand through the following of the other independent buyers.

Sales for the last fortnight totaled 32,083 bales, or, divided by its component parts, were: Vuelta Abajo, 13,693; Partido, 5,328, and Remedios, 13,062 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 10,286; exporters to Europe, 7,797; shippers to South America, 450, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, including the deliveries to Sylvester & Stern, 13,550 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco, from the port of Havana, from August 5th to August 17th, were:

|-----------------------------------|-------------|
| To all ports of the United States | 5,415 bales |
| To Germany, Bremen and Hamburg | 7,168 " |
| To Austria | 463 " |
| To Amsterdam and Rotterdam | 166 " |
| To Buenos Aires and Montevideo | 450 " |
| To Algiers | 50 " |

Total 13,712 bales

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country Were:

| | For the two weeks ending August 17th, 1912. | Since January 1st, 1912. |
|--------------|---|--------------------------|
| Vuelta Abajo | 29,109 bales | 110,306 bales |
| Semi Vuelta | 2,813 " | 12,802 " |
| Partido | 2,823 " | 14,809 " |
| Remedios | 33,519 " | 128,242 " |
| Mayari | 90 " | 1,566 " |
| Total | 68,414 bales | 267,725 bales |

Principal shippers from the port of Havana, during the past two weeks ending August 17, were: J. F. Bernides & Co. 2,019, Adolfo Moeller 1,830, H. Upmann & Co. 1,036, Leslie Pantin 765, Silveira & Co. 755, Gutierrez & Diehl 717, Sylvester & Stern 657, José Suarez 387, Ernest Ellinger & Co. 365, Garcia & Co. 348, Mark A. Pollack 308, J. Bernheim & Sons 249, and Bridat & Co. 229 bales.

According to reliable reports, we learn that the firm of Heinrich Neuberger has had various escogidas in the Santa Clara province, which will yield 6,000 bales at least.

PETERSBURG, VA., August 27.

REPRESENTATIVES of the American Tobacco Company are negotiating with property owners on Lombard Street, near the A. C. L. crossing, for the purchase of one or two big blocks of property, on which it is proposed to erect a big tobacco factory. Options have been secured on several lots, and it is expected the deal will be concluded in a few days. The plant will be for the manufacture of smoking and chewing and snuff, it is understood, and will be one of the largest plants of the American Tobacco Company in the country.

Lose Suit Against Burley Tobacco Company

What is said to be the last chapter in the suit instituted in the United States District Court, at Cincinnati, by the E. O. Eshelby Tobacco Company, of Covington, Kentucky, against President Clarence Lebus and other officials of the Burley Tobacco Society under the Sherman anti-trust law, has been closed by the payment of the costs in the case, approximately $600, by the Eshelby Company.

The court, during the trial, decided virtually all of the law points presented in the case in favor of the Eshelby Company, but when the question of damages was presented to the jury, it decided that the complainant had not sustained damages as it alleged in its petition.

Commission to Consider U. S. Monopoly for Handling Export Tobacco Business

Will Investigate Foreign Governments' Methods of Buying American Leaf—Speaker Clark Appoints House's Representatives to Serve

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 28.

FOLLOWING the passage of a bill authorizing a commission to investigate the conditions under which foreign governments purchase American-grown tobacco, Speaker Champ Clark today announced the appointment of Representatives Flood, of Virginia; Stedman, of North Carolina, and McKinley, of Illinois, as the three members of the House to act on a commission with three Senators yet to be chosen by Vice-President Sherman. When this commission is completed they will proceed at once to ascertain whether there is a combination or understanding between the representatives of foreign governments with a view to depressing the price of American-grown tobacco.

It is also proposed that the Secretary of State shall confer with the governments of Austria, Italy, France, Spain and Japan, which governments have a monopoly of the tobacco industry in their respective countries, for the purpose of ascertaining whether they will purchase their supplies from a bureau of tobacco industry to be established in the United States to provide them with their supplies of American tobacco.

The similarity in conditions with regard to the growers of tobacco in America and the coffee growers of Brazil is pointed out in the report of the foreign affairs committee as follows:

"The situation of American tobacco planters is analogous to that which existed in Brazil in the coffee industry prior to the establishment of the government monopoly of that business. The condition of the coffee planters was formerly one of hardship and poverty, but since the arrangement has been perfected through the intervention of the Brazilian government, in conjunction with certain foreign bankers, to market the coffee crop, prices have advanced very materially and the condition of the coffee planter has been immensely improved.

"It is proposed to have the State Department ascertain if some similar arrangement cannot be devised by which the American tobacco farmer will be placed upon a plane of equality with the purchasers of his product.

"Those who have studied the question say that the American tobacco planter finds, when he comes to sell his product as an individual, that he is confronted with the agent of either a foreign government or a foreign tobacco monopoly, which amounts to a combination on the part of the buyers without there being any combination on the part of the American sellers.

"The purpose underlying this proposition of establishing a bureau of tobacco industry is to place the export tobacco business in the hands of the United States government, so that foreign governments, in seeking their supplies, would have to deal with a factor as concentrated and powerful as themselves," says the report.

"It is assumed that the federal government, in the operation of this bureau, would be reasonable and conservative and not undertake to oppress or exact unreasonable tribute from foreign governments, but it is likewise to be assumed that it would not stand idly by and permit these governments to exact from the hands of the American toiler a tribute, thus unloading upon our people the burden of foreign governmental taxes.

"Tobacco is grown in practically every country of the globe except Great Britain, but the products of these countries cannot in any true sense be said to be competitive with that of America.

"It is not the purpose of this resolution to propose a plan of unreasonable exaction by which America could impose upon her neighbors, but the purpose is to establish a system under which fairness can be expected by the tillers of the soil of America.

"If the arrangement proposed by this resolution could be perfected, it would at once remove all opportunity for oppression and place in the hands of the American government the power to protect the interests of its citizens against invasion by foreign governments.

"Much of the tobacco raised in Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and other states is bought by the governments of Italy, Austria, France, Spain and Japan. There is nowhere any competition between these governments for the purchase of this tobacco. Whether it is accidental or pre-arranged is a matter that is disputed. At any rate, all growers of tobacco who raise the class of leaf that is bought by these foreign governments, know that the price paid the producer has steadily declined, and unless some relief is afforded these men will be forced to give up raising a crop, which for years has been the moneyed crop of their communities.

"On the other hand, the governments that buy, manufacture and sell this tobacco, derive enormous revenues from it. Italy received as revenue on tobacco last year $34,000,000, Austria more than $85,000,000, France one-fifth of her entire revenue, Japan and Spain have large revenues, while the American farmers who grow this tobacco did not get the cost of production."

"Bakelite", a New Demuth Pipe Material

New York Firm Introducing a Superior Chemical Composition Which is Said to Be an Improvement on Amber

A new material now being used for the stems of pipes and one which is bound to create unusual interest in the trade, has been introduced by William Demuth & Co., of New York. This material is called "Bakelite." It is an American invention which may cause a sensation in the technical world. It is now being used here and in Europe for the most varied purposes, as a general heat-proof plastic and as an insulator in the electrical industry. One of its striking applications is its use as an inside protective lining for pure food containers, thus demonstrating its sanitary and hygienic properties.

Before offering "Bakelite" to the trade, William Demuth and Company conducted a series of experiments covering a long period, and it was subjected to the most severe tests. These experiments proved that although "Bakelite" is in many respects like amber, it has greater strength, better wearing qualities, superior brilliancy, and furthermore, is lower in cost. Its makers also claim for it a superior lustre, it being non-inflammable and odorless, and can stand a high temperature. It does not melt nor catch fire as amber will. This makes it more desirable for stems of pipes than either amber, celluloid or the other various compositions now in use.

The DeNobill Cigar Company has applied for a charter in Albany, New York, to cultivate, manufacture and sell tobacco. The capitalization of the concern is $1,300,000, and the incorporators are P. R. DeNobill, of Spezia, Italy; E. J. Esselstyn and J. A. Haughwont.

KEY WEST, August 25.

LOCAL manufacturers all appear to be in a more optimistic frame of mind. This is due to the fast filling order files and to the reports from their representatives, the tone of which indicates a good fall business. In view of these reports the factories are fast turning out goods, resolved to be ready for the pre-holiday rush.

The Martinez Havana Company report a favorable outlook and expect the fall season to be earlier than usual. They are now using their new-crop leaf and report satisfactory results.

The Havana-American Company is working hard on stocking up for the fall season as well as for immediate orders.

The Ruy Lopez Company are kept bustling and report a run on the "Ruy Lopez Smoker." They have a separate room for the manufacture of this brand and have been taxed to their utmost to supply the demand.

The E. H. Gato factory is another busy one in town, and they are turning out their goods as fast as possible. They report some new orders in addition to their regular ones.

The Key West Cigar Company reports a healthy demand for their goods. They are now busy turning out goods for incoming orders as well as for the coming fall trade, which they believe will be unusually good.

The Key West Baseball Club left last night for a series of games with the Miami team. The Key West team outclassed the Miami boys during the gala week at Miami and won the series of games played.

On the trade of his house Manager A. W. Arnold, of the Ferdinand Hirsch Company, said: "We are going along all right. Business continues fair for summer. Trade will double when smokers generally get to using the new crop. I am very favorably impressed with the qualities of the new leaf and consider it just right for American smokers."

Imports of tobacco have increased largely this week, as have the withdrawals, which would seem to indicate some improvement in the local situation.

The S. & F. Fleitas factory reports a healthy demand for their "Homerica" brand, which they have been pushing aggressively the past month.

Geo. W. Nichols & Co. are optimistic as to the fall outlook. Artistic sample trays, with complete lines of the well-known "Solace" brands, have been sent out to a number of their customers.

The reports of the M. Perez Company are good. Manager Menendez predicts a good fall season, foreshadowed by the heavy calls for fine sizes. Shipments are better both by freight and express. A strong demand is setting in from the Coast, including futures running into the fall.

TOO LATE FOR CLASSIFICATION

FOR SALE.—Good registered brands, well advertised through 14 states: "Perkiomen," "Queen of the Valley," "American Hustler," "Union Call," "Union Claim," "What," "El Libera." Also moulds and presses for sale. Reasons: Quit business on account of sickness. Box P, "Tobacco World."

The Drummer Cigar Store, 615 Edmond Street, St. Joseph, Mo., suspended business several days ago. It is not yet known what the assets and liabilities of the concern were.

TAMPA, August 26.

THE new bond issue of $1,700,000, which the citizens of Tampa voted to pass, will mean much to this city, and, of course, will materially affect the cigar manufacturing industry. The first improvements will be in the sewage system, which will be beneficial in many parts of the city, particularly in some residential portions, where sanitary conditions are now far from satisfactory. It is expected that every street will be paved before long, either with asphalt or vitrified brick. Other improvements will be in the water-service pipes and in gas mains, which will be carried to all parts of the city.

Getting down to the cigar situation, the shipments have been well up to the usual standard, and judging by incoming orders, the Tampa factories will have plenty to do ere long.

An unusual situation confronted the factories several weeks ago. Some of the manufacturers used up their stocks of leaf tobacco so that a scarcity in the article caused several of them to close up their places for a time. Had it not been for the fact that incoming steamers failed to bring the expected lots of leaf, this shortage would not have occurred, even though the old stocks were low. The steamship "Olivette" relieved things when it arrived with 1400 bales.

Antonio Rocha opened his new factory the other week, and is now well under way. The plant is at Thirty-first Street and Third Avenue, and was moved from Jacksonville. Mr. Rocha stated that he shortly expects to increase his force of cigarmakers. His leading brand is "El Ramo."

Berriman Brothers are one of the busiest plants in town. The demand for the "José Vila" has been enormous, and they have been compelled to add to their force of workmen. Even so, they are more than busy.

Sanchez y Haya report a file full of orders. Simon Gonzalez, who had been in Cuba, and who came back for a week to assist at the local factory, has again gone to the Island.

The new factory of Quiros, Villazon & Co., reports an encouraging outlook. J. J. French is now on a trip through the South and Southwest, and has surprised local headquarters with the size and quantity of his orders. He has placed their goods with a number of desirable jobbers.

Perfecto Garcia & Bro. are securing their share of the volume of orders now pouring in this city. They are running a full force of hands.

Cuesta, Rey & Co. report an encouraging increase for their goods. Since using their new X-ray machine on their cigars, thus killing any animal life which may destroy the goods, there has been a healthy increase for their products. This innovation is being watched with interest by manufacturers all over the country.

Mr. Bridges had been a resident of Louisville for more than fifty-five years, and at the time of his death was seventy-three years of age. He entered the leaf tobacco trade in 1855, and in 1881 entered the firm of C. A. Bridges & Co., which conducts the Pickett Tobacco Warehouse in that city. Mr. Bridges is survived by six children, three sons and three daughters.

Retail Association Denounces United

THE regular semi-monthly meeting of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association was held at Terrace Garden Hall, Fifty-eighth Street and Third Avenue, on Thursday, August 22nd. The extremely hot weather kept a good many of the members from attending the meeting, but the lack in attendance was made up by the enthusiasm of the members who were present, and a number of instructive discussions took place.

The matter of the United Cigar Stores Company leasing the cigar store at present conducted by W. W. St. John, brought forth a resolution, which was adopted, as follows:

"Resolved, that we denounce the methods pursued by certain interests to acquire stores as a high-handed, un-American procedure, and respectfully call the attention of the Department of Justice to these acts, and ask if there is no relief for the individual."

The next meeting of the association will take place on September 12th, and at this meeting the election of officers of the association for the ensuing year will occur.

Big Demand for "7-20-4" Cigars

Ruth & Driscoll, of 168 Water Street, New York, who are the agents for the "7-20-4" cigar, manufactured by Roger Sullivan, in Manchester, N. H., report a very active demand for this popular brand all over the East, but particularly along the seacoast resorts. The annual sojourn of a great many Western people at the New England resorts creates a demand for this cigar which necessitates increasing the factory output by nearly 50 per cent. The original output of the factory was 700,000 per week. But at present over 1,000,000 cigars a week are being shipped from the factory.

New Schulte Store Opened

A new cigar store was opened by the Schulte Company at the northeast corner of Bowery and Canal Street, New York, this week, next door to a store occupied by the United Cigar Stores Company. The store is located at the terminal of the Manhattan Bridge and is passed by thousands of Brooklynites and New Yorkers daily.

Al Zeiling has purchased the cigar store of J. Cahn on Ninth Avenue, near Forty-third Street, New York, and after remodelling the same will stock it with an up-to-date line of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco.

E. G. Perez & Company to Make Havanas

E. G. Perez & Company, of 67-69 Front Street, New York, heretofore manufacturers and distributors of high-grade Porto Rican cigars, notably the "La Solera" and "Dianita" brands, are soon about to enter in the manufacture of Havana cigars as well. In this line their two special brands will be "Juan y Julia" and "Don Julian." Mr. Perez states that, after considerable experimenting, he has accomplished a blend of Havana tobacco for the "Juan y Julia" which will make that cigar a contender for first place among the most prominent Havana brands. Labels and bands, as well as the boxes which will contain the cigars, are extremely artistic, and the firm will leave nothing undone to make their Havana goods a standard in their field.

Quaker City Trade Outlook

WITH the advent of cooler weather and the return to the city of the vacationists, tobacco men are looking ahead to an increase in sales. To be candid, taking the retail end as a whole, it is quiet, about as dull as one cares to see it. But no one is out after any records just yet, so no one is kicking.

Leaf men report numerous inquiries, particularly by manufacturers who earlier in the summer appeared inclined to wait until prices on the raw material dropped. And since no lowering of prices was in order they are now scouring the warehouses.

The wholesale trade shows an improvement. Retailers have been ordering just enough the past month to keep up with immediate needs and now are beginning to stock up for the customary brisk fall trade.

Local manufacturers all report satisfactory orders and are busily turning out their goods. While these are not all for immediate shipment, the incoming orders warrant having a full stock on hand for the pre-holiday rush. Last year a number of local manufacturers were embarrassed by late hurried orders, and they are determined not to repeat their experiences. The only drawback at present is the scarcity of cigarmakers. The majority of the factories are now carrying "Help Wanted" signs, in addition to carrying standing advertisements in the daily newspapers.

Roig & Langsdorf's Addition Nearly Completed

The new two-story addition built adjoining Antonio Roig & Langsdorf's factory, on North Seventh Street, is nearing completion, and the firm expects to occupy it about the middle of September. The new building will be used exclusively for the general offices of the firm and the second floor will be used as a humidor for storing the finished goods. The removal of the offices to this new building will give them much more room in their old building to devote to manufacturing and shipping purposes.

What "Sig." Saw in the West

Sig. C. Mayer, the energetic head of Sig. C. Mayer & Co.'s factories, returned to Philadelphia this week, after a five-weeks' tour of the Middle West, which took him as far as Colorado. Asked his opinion of fall trade prospects in the West, Mr. Mayer replied laconically: "Everything looked good to me, out there. I did not find a 'gloom' on the whole trip. Everyone seemed to radiate optimism. Business on the 'El Wadora' and 'Rey-Oma' was very gratifying."

He will vacate the Chestnut Street front of his store and concentrate his packing and shipping facilities on the Sixth Street side. Mr. Grauley reports a very gratifying business on his "Orange Flower," "Lord Caspar" and "Golden Rule" nickel brands.

Acker's Take On "La Vertura"

The Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store of Finley Acker & Co. has taken on a new line of five cent cigars made by the Standard Cigar Company, Norristown, Pa., under the name "La Vertura." This is a line of clear Havana cigars, made in several small sizes, and the results obtained thus far indicate that this nearby brand will receive well-deserved popularity.

The 44 Cigar Company report a heavy fall business, incoming orders keeping the factory taxed to its limit. C. D. Ogden, of Rochester, N. Y., and G. Adlof, of Dallas, Tex., were recent visitors at local headquarters.

Quaker City Items

Mr. Lennox, of Garcia, Pando & Co., was a recent visitor in the Quaker City.

Owing to a strong demand for their "Chicos" brand the Juan F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company have been compelled to add a number of cigarmakers. This brand has a wide distribution in the West and South West.

Lockett, Luchs & Lipscomb are kept busy turning out enough "Reynaldos" to meet the demand for these goods. This brand has taken a strong hold in Chicago and the Middle West, where it is being taken care of by Monroe Luchs.

The Baum-Jaffe Company are greatly pleased on the outlook for the "El Jaffe," "A. J. Cassatt" and "Coiner" cigars. The first named brand has taken a strong hold locally. Several new salesmen have been added to the sales force and are now covering their territories. J. Murphy and J. Mathews are covering New Jersey and Pennsylvania in the interests of the concern.

An attractive and useful accessory to bring their "El Confido" brand to the attention of the consumer is the change tray which Speed Goodloe is distributing in connection with this brand. This cigar is made in several sizes, and ranges in price from ten cents to two for a quarter. Jose Lovera & Co. are the manufacturers.

Reports received from the T. H. Hart Company, Twelfth and Walnut Streets, show conclusively that the nickel cigar made by this firm under the brand "Five of Harts" and the ten cent cigar known as "Heartsease" have secured a very large share of patronage in the West and Middle West and the territory adjacent to Philadelphia.

George H. Valentine, of A. S. Valentine & Son, has so improved in health that he is able to leave the Atlantic City hotel, at which he has been staying, for short pleasure trips.

Wm. R. Veith, for the past three years with M. Melachrino & Co., under the direction of Wm. J. Noonan, district manager of Philadelphia and vicinity, has been appointed manager of the central New Jersey territory, with headquarters at Trenton. The appointment of Mr. Veith becomes effective September 2nd, and his many friends in the trade will be glad to learn of his new position.

J. V. Flanigan, general representative for the "Por Larrañaga" factory, Havana, was in Philadelphia last week calling on the trade. The "Por Larrañagas" have a big sale in this city among the select clubs and cafes and are handled largely by M. J. Dalton & Company.

A. M. Schwartz and Mr. Walters, of the Bobrow establishment, have been covering the coal regions the past week, doing missionary work on the "Bold" and "Discriminator" cigars. A number of good accounts have been taken on, and at last reports Wilkes-Barre and Scranton were taking hold of these popular Philadelphia brands in great shape.

Ed. M. Davis, the New England representative of Roig & Langsdorf, with headquarters in Boston, stopped off in Philadelphia a short time ago en route to Atlantic City and other shore cities. He was accompanied by F. H. Young, a Providence, R. I., wholesaler, and gave a glowing account of the success which has crowned his efforts in placing the "Girard" in first-class New England stores. Mr. Davis is an enthusiastic motorist, and made the trip from and to Boston in that manner.

Freak Summer Hurts Chicago

Numerous Conventions in City do Little to Better Trade--"Made in Chicago" Week Proves Successful--"Flor de Jaitles" Doing Well

CHICAGO, August 26.

STANDING on the threshold of another season, a retrospect of the one just passed does not cause Chicago tobacco dealers an unlimited amount of joy. First of all it was what might be termed a "freak summer." With the exception of a week the early part of July and a few days in August, the weather has been opposed to the best interests of the trade. Most of the time chill winds blew from the lake, and summer assumed the aspect of fall. Unseasonable weather at any time is a detriment to business.

During the summer there were numerous conventions in Chicago, including two gatherings of national political parties. These, however, were disappointments as far as helping trade in general was concerned and only the stores in the immediate vicinity of the scene of battle obtained results. The recent water carnival did not bring in as many outside people as was anticipated, and bad weather hampered conditions locally.

Yet, in spite of all this, business has been very good in spots, and for many the summer has compared favorably with that of 1911. However, all thoughts now are centered upon the future and with a mammoth crop yield a certainty, money should be plentiful this fall and bring back a golden harvest of dollars to the man who sells cigars and tobacco.

Officials of the United Cigar Stores Company announce their organization plan, which calls for an exchange of each share of old stock for three shares of new common stock of the United Cigar Stores Company of America.

Thomas Slader, the South Ashland avenue jobber, has taken on the brand "Van Lo," made by the Friedlander Cigar Company, of Clinton, Ill. Slader has the southside territory for this brand. He has also added the "Havana Principe," 5-cent brand of Storm, Fisher & Co.

The Greeters' Club of Chicago, composed of the assistant managers and clerks of hotels, have decided to open club rooms either in the downtown district, or on the south side.

John Rakhes, owner of several restaurants and cigar stands, has been made the defendant in a $25,000 breach of promise suit, filed in the superior court by Mary Serfel, 20 years old. The girl was employed in one of Rakhes' restaurants.

To deal in wines, liquors and cigars is the purpose of George F. Pfeiffer, Inc., organized in Chicago recently. The incorporators are: George F. Pfeiffer, H. M. Goldsmith and Benjamin P. Ruchling.

The New Stockyards Inn, replacing the historic Transit House, is to be opened early in October.

New Sign Advertised "La Soneda" Cigars.

The Animated Advertising Service, 1504 Steger Building, flashed a new style sign on the walls of the Chicago Business College, advertising two brands of "La Soneda," of Storm, Fisher & Co., and the "Owl" cigar of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company. The sign is a 48-foot clock, with the hands moving every minute. The ads. are on the dial. This clock is flashed by an electrical device and is the newest thing out in the sign line. It attracted much attention.

South Side Café on the Market.

It is rumored that the Drexel Café, Thirty-ninth Street and Cottage Grove Avenue, is on the market. This place is owned by Theodore Oehme, formerly of the Seipp Brewing Company. The ground is under lease and owned by Mrs. Houston, whose husband, Al Houston, a man well known in sporting circles, started the place some twenty-five years ago. The lease on the ground is $12,000 per year. The location is one of the best on the south side, being the end of the "wet" district. They do a big cigar business. It is known as a "dice" place, but the cigar end of it suffers from the dice play, inasmuch as 85 per cent. of the dice checks are consumed at the bar and restaurant.

August H. Kropp has just built a new building at 4649 North Robey Street, using the first floor as a cigar store. He manufactures a line of five-cent goods, and carries a line of popular brands. Mr. Kropp has just added a line of "Sonedas" and "Havana Splits," of Storm, Fisher & Co.

He is featuring "Flor de Balano" in both places—also has a window display of "Sofina" 5-cent cigars and "Havana Splits," 10 for 15 cents, both made by Storm, Fisher & Co., of New York.

John Morrison, manager for Ryan & Raphael Cigar Co., Steger Building, says he looks forward to an excellent fall business. They are placing their "Lucius" brands in many loop drug and cigar stores. When this brand was first put on the market, it was featured by the cafes and buffets and was known as a good saloon cigar, but Morrison is changing public opinion and is gradually getting foothold with the cigar stores.

That a man never becomes too old to smoke is evidenced by the fact that when William Henry Harbaugh, of Danville, this state, celebrated his 107th birthday anniversary on August 27th, he smoked his first cigar, and judging from the way he took to the weed, will become an inveterate smoker for the rest of his life.

Why when I came over from Belfast I could make more money than I do now."

HARRY E. RODENBAUGH.

Hustling to Supply Demand for "Havana Ribbons"

DESPIITE the fact that increased facilities for production are being installed at all of their plants, Bayuk Bros. Co., of Philadelphia, are having trouble to secure sufficient cigars to meet the demand for their "Havana Ribbon." The extreme South lately opened up by Lyle T. Shacklett, is proving a most fertile field for "Ribbon" sales, repeating business of a most satisfactory nature being reported by all of the jobbers there. The Smith Bros. Company, Limited, of New Orleans, are securing an excellent distribution on the brand and are perfecting lines for an immense business in their territory.

Greenwood & Co., distributors for Savannah, Ga., have found the duplicate orders so satisfactory that they decided to place orders for regular stated shipments, so as to insure prompt delivery.

Mr. Shacklett will presently visit the Hix-Gravely Cigar Company, distributors for Montgomery, Ala., where "Havana Ribbons" have proven immensely popular from the start.

O. H. Porter, who controls the distribution for Logansport, Ind., territory, was a recent visitor at Philadelphia headquarters.

Fire in the factory district of Winston-Salem, N. C., August 25th, caused a total loss of approximately $100,000 among the tobacco manufacturing plants of the Osborne-Hill Company, the Gorrell Tobacco Company and the J. G. Flint Tobacco Company. The losses are said to be covered by insurance.

Tobacco Prices Since the Dissolution

COMMENTING on the condition of the tobacco market, resulting from the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, the Springfield, Mass., Morning Union makes the following observations:

"While Colonel Roosevelt continues to sneer at President Taft's prosecution of the tobacco and Standard Oil trusts and to assert that not one particle of benefit to the community at large has resulted from the dissolution of these trusts, the tobacco growers of the Connecticut Valley are experiencing the benefits of competitive buying and receiving the highest prices for their crops since 1892. There is real competitive buying this year, for the first time since the organization of the tobacco trust in 1904. Representatives of the former subsidiaries of the American Tobacco Company have been in keen competition among themselves and with the independents. The buying started almost a month earlier this year than usual, and the best prices in twenty years have been paid for the tobacco in the field, although the crop is an unusually large one. These are the facts. Now as to what they imply.

"It is true that there was a binder shortage last winter, due principally to the failure or partial failure of the Wisconsin crop, and that January prices began to pick up a bit, growers who had not sold their 1911 crops being offered an advance of three to six cents on the prices paid last fall. Similar conditions previously had lifted prices temporarily, but the improved state of the tobacco market was not permanent. Since the dissolution of the tobacco trust, however, the market has grown steadily stronger, and with a large crop being harvested the buyers have been falling over one another to contract for the tobacco in the fields. It is the first time in the history of the New England tobacco-growing industry that practically the entire crop has been sold in August. In all the seven years that the tobacco trust was in existence this competitive buying never occurred. At no time in those seven years were such prices paid. If this does not prove that there has been a real dissolution of the trust it does at least show that competition has been restored, and it certainly seems to refute Colonel Roosevelt's assertion that 'not one particle of benefit to the community at large was gained by President Taft's prosecution of the tobacco trust.'"

Daniel Frank & Co., Boston jobbers and retailers, will shortly open a new store at Milk and Congress Streets.

Geo. E. Murphy, of Grand Rapids, Mich., has one of the most up-to-date cigar stores and billiard rooms in that section. He carries a large line of cigars and tobacco and has a finely equipped pool room.

Wm. Ganse, a resident of Lancaster, Pa., has purchased the cigar store and pool room of Charles Nester, 421 De Kalb Street, Norristown, Pa., and took possession immediately.

Cleveland Blames It On Weather Man

Shields-Wertheim Company Very Busy—Fred. G. Gollmar Company Refits Stand in Ratskeller

CLEVELAND, O., August 28.

THIS city has again been going through a rainy period. The merchants report business good, but could be a great deal better, if the weather was more normal for this time of the year. Somehow or other we seem to have been hoodooed by Mr. Weatherman. One day you come downtown, complain of the sweltering heat of the city and decide to go out and take a dip in old Lake Erie to get cooled off. The next day the weather has changed and you go home and build a grate fire and try to keep warm by conjuring up visions of the day before.

Mr. Dillingham, of the J. A. Rigby Company, Mansfield, O., was in the city the past week. All the boys were very anxious to shake hands with Dill.

The Shields-Wertheim Company have only one complaint to offer, and that is they can't make goods fast enough. The "La Saramita" is going by leaps and bounds. The "La Saramita 5's," their new creation in five-cent goods are running them a close second.

Mr. S. S. Stein, whose headquarters are in Chicago, is preparing for a trip through to the Coast for them.

Mr. Bert Smith is making things hum in Indiana.

Mr. Fred Shields just returned home from his Pennsylvania trip, and told the writer that everything was booming in the territory.

Mr. J. C. Leverance, after a short vacation, is preparing himself for a real long trip through the Middle West.

Mr. Bill Balasky, the city man of the S. & W. Co., is certainly getting his share of the business in Cleveland. Nothing seems to escape him.

Louis B. Shields, the Grand Old Man, is still the hard hitter as of old. He certainly gets the business.

A. C. Wertheim, the factory man, hasn't got much breathing time. The factory is rushed to its utmost.

James B. Shields is about ready to make his annual fall trip over the entire territory, building up the fences and inspecting things in general.

The S. & W.'s West Virginia man, Mr. W. R. Stevenson, reports a steady increase on "Saramitas."

George Bassett is in Green Springs for a couple of weeks for his health. The trade is anxious to see his smiling face behind the counter again.

Mr. McGuire, in charge of Stranahan's retail stand in the Old Arcade, reports a nice increase in business.

Fred Dewear, the manager of the Standard Drug Company's Euclid and 105th Street store, is on his vacation this week.

Harry Fagin manager of R. & W. Jenkinson's Ninth Street store, just returned from a two weeks' trip up the Lakes.

I. J. Mittelberger is out on a short Western trip and reports business booming.

Mr. Halper, the Ohio Tobie man, is certainly enjoying a big business on the "Uncle Joe" and "Ohio Tobies." Reports from him state that he can't fill his orders.

The Fred G. Gollmar Cigar Company has just refitted the cigar stand in the Ratskeller with very handsome fixtures. The cigar end of the business is increasing. Mr. Jared, who has charge of this stand for the Gollmar Company, is offering the glad hand to all of his friends.

A steady increase in business is reported from Mr. Ben Englander, who has charge of Morris Glickman's Euclid Avenue store.

Mr. Nate Gleichman tells me he, too, is on the outs with the weatherman and could handle a lot more business, if he would be favored with better weather.

Mr. Max Mendelsohn, president of the E. A. Kline Cigar Company, is out West at present, traveling through Kansas City, Des Moines, Minneapolis and Chicago. He expects to return in about ten days. Business is steadily increasing and things look very good for this fall with them.

Business is constantly improving with the London Whiff factory. They report that their "Moses Cleveland" is taking quite a hold in the Middle West. The have started to figure on a new brand, called the "Flora Venice," under eight sizes.

Among the salesman in town the past two weeks were the following: Mr. H. R. Harner, selling "Oxford" cigarettes for the Khedival Company, of New York City; Mr. P. Dolbey, the B. B. B. pipe man, of New York; Mr. Nat J. Rice, general representative of the "Theocaris Egyptian Cigarettes," of New York; Mr. Goldsmith, representing pipes for the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, of New York; Mr. Harry Boston, representing the Wm. Demuth Company, of New York, and Mr. Baurer of the Surbrug Company, M.

The Home Tobacco Warehouse Company has been organized in Lexington, Ky., to deal in tobacco. It will have a capital stock of $25,000 and the incorporators are James N. Kehoe, James W. Fitzgerald, John C. Everett and John E. Bouldin.

UNSEASONABLE WEATHER HURTS TRADE

Customs Service At Lake Ports to Be Reorganized—Large Sales of Revenue Stamps Show Good Manufacturing Conditions

DETROIT, August 24.

WHILE we have enjoyed one or two fairly warm, seasonable days of late, the prevailing weather of the past fortnight has not varied greatly from that with which we have been handicapped since early spring. The temperature has been uniformly cool, sometimes cold, and showers have been frequent and abundant. This city and surrounding territory has experienced an unusual number of violent storms, some of almost cyclonic fury.

Unfavorable and unseasonable weather naturally has a bearing on trade. I understand that the harvest of the majority of our farmers has been delayed from three to four weeks beyond the usual period, which means, of course, a corresponding delay and loss in other fields of industry.

K'chew! The poor hay-fever victim is "getting his'n" now; also one month behind time. K'chew! And for relief he is fleeing to Mackinac, Petoskey, Charlevoix and other Northern resorts. The inflow of the hay-fever brigade will stir the hearts of resort proprietors, whose fortunes, owing to cold weather, have fared illly thus far this season. The volume of cigar and smoking business at the Michigan resorts has been disappointing. With the arrival of the hay-fever hordes a demand might arise for cubed cigarettes. If this weather continues I expect we'll get our summer next winter.

A recent petitioning letter from the employees of the Customs Department in Detroit to Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, seeking a re-classification and increase in pay for clerks and inspectors, many of whom have been years in the service with no raise in salary, seems not to have been altogether without result. Announcement was made on the twentieth inst. of the reorganization of the customs service at Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee and other ports. The net increase in salaries allowed here is slightly over $2,000 per annum. This applies to the customs service only.

Revenue stamps, representing probably the largest shipment of cigars ever made in the history of the Eastern District of Michigan, were purchased Tuesday, August 20, by the Spitz & Worch Company, of Detroit. Stamps for 1,075,000 cigars were bought by that company, and shipment of the goods has already been started. The cost of these stamps was $3,225.

The total sales at the Internal Revenue Office on that day represented 2,690,250 cigars, the revenue to the Government being $7,888.35. This is the second largest day in the history of the district, the largest day's receipts being slightly over $8,000.

If the cigars represented by the sales at the Internal Revenue Office on that day were stretched out end to end, they would cover a distance of 101 miles.

The Gustav A. Moehs Cigar Company are now manufacturing a Londres size of their well-known "King Albert" cigar, which is put up in an attractive, 13 top, package. The "King Albert" is one of the most meritorious five-cent cigars made in this district. It is in the hands locally of the Cadillac Cigar Company.

The recently established factory of Jno. McNee, at Windsor, Ont., is fairly under way, but it does not appear that a startling number of Detroit cigarmakers have been drawn thus far to cross the river in search of employment in Windsor.

Our old friend, Mose Eisenberg, formerly of the Surety Cigar Company, is developing a nice trade in the Canadian provinces through his Windsor factory. Mr. Eisenberg has been, since August 15, on a trip to Winnipeg and Northwest.

Ed Lichter, representing Phillip Morris & Co., left this week on another special mission, this time to Cincinnati. Ed is getting so he isn't a bit afraid of the cars.

Claude E. Howell and "Ted" Briody returned this week from their fishing trip up in Canada. I am told they brought no trophies with them. Their fish they ate and swallowed their bait. Both are down to brass tacks again, pushing "Royal Circle," "El Mosico," and other leaders.

Aug. Huperz, accompanied by his wife and daughter, is enjoying a well deserved ten days' outing up the Lakes. Meanwhile all orders for Pennsylvania, Broadleaf, Zimmer, Spanish, etc., will be promptly cared for by brother Fred. Mr. Huperz has been in the leaf jobbing business here for some years in a modest way. His have made hosts of friends for him and have been instrumental in building up a tidy jobbing trade.

The office and cigar stand of Hotel Sibley, corner of Woodward Avenue and Sibley Street, present a vastly better aspect since the removal of the bar and bar entrance to the rear some time ago. Any one passing by the front can now have an excellent view, through the window, of the cigar case, which is placed very advantageously, facing the front. Among good sellers at the Hotel Sibley are: "First Consul," "Charles VIII.," "Julia Marlowe," "Pastora" and "Judge Durand."

Payette-Walsh Co. continue to sell the "R. B." cigar with much success here and throughout the state. Frequent "R. B." displays are seen in shop windows.

C. H. Brockway, 743 Woodward Avenue, evidently conceived the idea the other day of a cigarette display that would prove a free-for-all with no favorites. The result was a really attractive and well dressed window that included "Piedmont," "Turkish Trophies," "Milo," "Melachrino," "Omar," "Luxury," "Nebo," "Felmor," "Tokio," "Phillip Morris," "Fatima," etc., and then some. "Judging from all those pills," said a party, gazing into the window, "you'd think it was a drug shop instead of a cigar store." At present Mr. Brockway has a varied smoking tobacco display along the same line; that is, a variety display.

Wherever there is a demand for high-grade Havana goods, it is a reasonably safe assumption that among others on sale will be found the cigars of the Sanchez y Haya factory. Probably no cigar enjoys a wider, more substantial popularity here than this well known brand.

While touching on Sanchez y Haya, I am reminded that Bert Johnson spoke recently of the "Orientals" size of that brand which he tells me is one of his best sellers. It is a ten cent straight, four and one-half-inch perfecto, and he has the exclusive sale for this city, making a ten cent leader in a way.

In addition to regular line of Sanchez y Haya heretofore carried at the McMillan Company stand, Bert Johnson has only lately ordered the Rothschild, "Extra Finas," in 10ths, to retail at ten cents. The initial shipment is expected at an early day.

He likewise made the addition to his Havana sizes lately, the Reina Victoria Extra of the "Tival," made by Marcelino Perez & Co.

Ed Heinemann, manager of O'Brien & Co.'s cigar department, is rapidly developing into a nifty two-handed man, playing cash register and cigar stand at one and the same time. He also covers considerable ground with his feet (not while standing). This week has kept him continuously on the jump, as his young and handsome blonde clerk is away on his (this is no chicken) vacation. Frank Beckhold is the aforementioned y. and h. b. c.

I have learned of but a few travelers being here recently, there being Jacques Planco, Rey, Suarez & Co.; Caspar del Pino, M. P. Lopez & Co.; Frank Horning, H. Anton Bock & Co.; John McBlair, Marcelino Perez & Co.; John G. Spatz, John G. Spatz & Co.; Wm. W. Higgins, Park & Tilford; H. G. Rand, Pollack Stogie Company; Wm. H. Terrill, Balbin Bros., and Carl Kaffenburgh, I. Kaffenburgh & Sons. Today the sun shines brightly. There is a rustle in the trees, a wine and sparkle in the air that speaks of summer weather. Maybe we'll get it after all.

S. F. HEAVENRICH.

Clay Pipe Industry Dead in British Isles

The clay-pipe industry is among those which have been practically killed by the fastidious taste of today. Several Irish centres and the town of Birstall, in Yorkshire, formerly sent clay pipes to all parts of the world. Scores of people were formerly employed in the industry; now employment is found only for two or three at the most. The clay pipe has been superseded by the more elaborate briar or calabash, the lordly cigar, and the more dainty cigarette, one or other of which is indispensable to the modern man. The day of the clay pipe has gone, probably never to return.

Tobacco in East Africa

Referring to the progress of tobacco cultivation Sir Percy Girouard, Governor of the British East Africa Protectorate, stated to a Financial Times (London) representative that everything possible is being done in that region to make tobacco growing a permanent crop. But to avoid disappointment, reasonable care must be exercised in the selection of the locality, which it is proposed to put under this crop. "Is not a considerable amount of tobacco already grown by the natives themselves?" "Yes, it is under native cultivation in many districts, and it has, of course, the advantage of being both an inland and a sea-coast crop." For the future of the industry high hopes are entertained, a tobacco expert having now taken up his duties in the Protectorate.

M. A. La Fond & Co. Coming Along Fast

Detroit House Pushing "Pinzon" Cigar of M. Perez & Co.

MA. LA FOND & CO., of Detroit, which just broke into the wholesale business in that city, report an excellent outlook and state that it will only be a matter of time before they "will be along with the best of them."

Van Miller, a representative of A. Valentine & Son, of Philadelphia, was a recent visitor at their offices, and they anticipate shortly taking on the "Flor de Valentine" to add to their seed Havana line.

They are now pushing the "Pinzon" cigar of M. Perez & Co., of New York, and the "Malco Perfecto," Gans Bros., New York, which Charles La Fond predicts will be "their big five-cent noise." He reports a weekly distribution of 20,000 cigars on this brand, not a bad record for a new house. They also handle the lines of H. Anton Bock & Co., and report good returns on these goods.

Pixely to Push Krinsky Cigarettes

W. I. Pixely, the pioneer Pacific Coast agent, has been appointed as representative in that territory for I. B. Krinsky, of Brooklyn, the well-known cigarette manufacturer, and will push the "Lotus" and "Turkish Student" brands of this concern.

I. B. Krinsky reports business as being very good and states that his plant is taxed to its utmost. The "Fifth Avenue" cork tip cigarettes are said to be having a heavy run.

New Jobber for "Flor de Valentine"

The Stickney Cigar Company, of Denver, has taken on the "Flor de Valentine" cigar of A. S. Valentine & Son, of Philadelphia, after it had been handled by a number of jobbers in that city. The Metropolitan Cigar Company wholesaled this brand for several months, and previous to that Harryman & Son were the distributors.

Ehrman Brothers, of San Francisco, are getting things in shape for the regular fall campaign. A special drive will be made on the "Havana Ribbon" five-cent line, manufactured by Bayuk Brothers Company, of Philadelphia, which has been one of the best summer sellers of the house this year. Gus Orser, one of the live outside men of this house, has just returned from a good trip to Los Angeles and other points in Southern California. He reports that Los Angeles is as live as ever.

Creditors of Archie Horwitz, doing business as the Majestic Cigar Company at 2308 East Fifty-fifth Street, Cleveland, O., filed a petition in bankruptcy in the federal court last week. It is alleged that Horwitz has made a general assignment for the benefit of creditors.

Receiver Asked for Pierson Cigar Co.

A receiver for the Pierson Cigar Company, of Indianapolis, Ind., is asked by the Hershheim Company in a suit in superior court, that city. It is alleged that the defendant's debts amount to $60,000, and that its assets are worth about $61,000. It is charged that the Pierson Company owes the plaintiff $364.17.

The Pierson Company, it is alleged, agreed to settle with its creditors, saying that it would pay the creditors 25 per cent. of their claims. Such a settlement would be unfair, it is alleged. The plaintiff asks that the receiver keep the company in operation and dispose of it as a going concern.

"Girard" Going Well in Providence, R. I.

F. H. Young, 780 Potter Avenue, Providence, R. I., has taken on the "Girard" cigar of Roig & Langsdorf, of Philadelphia, and will soon inaugurate an aggressive selling campaign on these high-grade goods. The cigar was placed in Providence by Ed. Dan Wolf Pushing the "El Wadora"

CINCINNATI, August 27.

WITH the return of the summer vacationists and the resumption of normal business conditions, cigar manufacturers are preparing for an active fall and winter. Retailers report trade as being good.

The "Made-in-Cincinnati" celebration the past ten days has been a great success. The idea originated with the Home Products Committee of the Cincinnati Commercial Association, and consisted, in the main, of exhibiting locally made goods in the prominent down-town windows for the benefit of the many visitors who come to Cincinnati in August. The exhibits of locally made cigars were numerous, and included the "Utopia," "Standard" and "Rochelle" of J. S. Hill & Co., "Slim Jim" and "Prudencia" of Peter Ibold Company, "True Ribbon" and "Sonada" of M. Ibold, "Lygia," "Lafayette Hall" and "Marquis de Lafayette" of Rhode & Co., and "Lucke's Rolls," made by J. H. Lucke Company. The tobacco brands of the Eight Hour Tobacco Company, Lambert Rother's Sons, E. O. Eshelby and Lovell & Buffington were also in evidence.

W. D. Spalding, the well known burley tobacco dealer, was called to Louisville the past week to attend the funeral of his brother, Richard S. Spalding, who for many years represented prominent tobacco manufacturers on the Louisville and other Kentucky markets, and who passed away at Knoxville, Tenn., on August 24th at the age of 73.

Good-sized offerings prevailed in the Cincinnati burley market last week, 916 hogsheads being sold at an average of $8.87, as against $8.21 for the previous week, and $8.63 the corresponding week last year. HULL.

Tobacco Trade in Germany

CIGARETTE making is one of the chief industries of Dresden, Saxony. In all Saxony there were 204 cigarette factories in 1911, of which 58 operated without hired labor, 73 with less than 5 employees, and 73 with 5 or more workers, several factories employing over 1000 hands each. There were 26 factories working exclusively with machines, 44 with machine and handwork, 134 with handwork only. The output in 1911 was 4,441,000,000 cigarettes, 568 metric tons of cigarette tobacco, 515,000,000 cigarette papers, and 187,000,000 cigarette covers. Of the nearly $50,000,000 worth of cigarettes consumed in Germany each year, 90 per cent. are of German manufacture, and half of these are produced in Dresden. The past year was very favorable for this industry, despite the advance in the price of raw tobacco. The exports of German cigarettes are small, but are gradually increasing. The 1911 tobacco crop was large, but of poor quality, and prices of the raw tobacco are expected to advance still further.

For the cigarmakers 1911 was a poor year. They complain that the new revenue taxes on cigar tobacco are too heavy and that it is impossible to bring new brands on the market without large selling and advertising expenses, etc., and also that it is impracticable to lower the quality of the present brands without losing customers. The payment of import duties when supplies of tobacco are imported also causes a large loss of interest on the capital tied up.—Deputy Consul-General Ulysses J. Bywater.

New Issue of Reynolds' Stock

Stockholders of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C., have ratified a plan for the issue of the remaining $2,475,000 of authorized capital stock. From the Land of Dixie

Arnold Falk, of New Orleans, a Well-Known Independent Cigar Manufacturer

THE truth of the adage "great things from small beginnings grow" can well be said of the independent cigar factory of Arnold Falk, of New Orleans, La. Twenty years ago Mr. Falk started to manufacture cigars with just two cigarmakers, and today he has over one hundred and twenty at work and continues yearly to enlarge his factory. Mr. Falk is not only an experienced cigarmaker, but is considered one of the best judges of tobacco leaf in the South. Being affable and considerate towards his employees, he is held in high esteem by every man working for him. He employs only union labor.

Occasionally he tires of the sedentary life of his factory and takes a selling trip to the nearby towns. Whenever he goes his leading brands of "Alisa," ten and fifteen-cent Havanas and his five-cent brands, "Olena," "El Ferdie" and "Tulane College" are very much in evidence. The "El Ferdie" has not been on the market for very long, but has proven a decided favorite with the trade where it has been placed.

Bavarian Regiment Manufactures Cigars

Reporting on the tobacco trade of Bavaria, Mr. L. Buchmann, the British Consul for that country, states that the Prussian Minister for Commerce and the Bavarian War Office have, owing to peculiar circumstances prevailing in Metz (Alsace-Lorraine) sanctioned the manufacture of cigars by a Bavarian infantry regiment, quartered in that town. The cigars are for the exclusive use of the regiment, and it is not contemplated to extend this special permission for the manufacture of cigars to other troops, as the representatives of the trade protested against this innovation, as they considered that it would interfere with their interests. It is complained that Bavarian cigarettes cannot be exported to Austria-Hungary on account of the high duty, while the cheap Austro-Hungarian "Sport" cigarette is still imported into Germany, and more especially into Bavaria, in considerable quantities. With regard to this matter it may be stated that whilst cigarette smoking is increasing in Bavaria the pipe is more and more declining in popularity, a fact of which certain tobacco manufacturers complain bitterly. Compared with former years palatable tobacco was now exported only in small quantities, chiefly to the German colonies. Snuff production in Bavaria amounted in round numbers to about 30,000 cwts. There were five large factories, about sixty smaller ones and from 800 to 1,000 small works engaged in the trade. Altogether the consumption of tobacco and snuff has decreased in Bavaria since the introduction of higher taxation, that of Austro-Hungarian cigars by over one-half.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

The wholesale and retail trades also look bright, and have more than reached their normal state.

The factory of Herman Warner & Co., which was purchased several months ago by B. S. Taylor, of Yoe, has been sold by him to Robert Granat & Co., of Lancaster, who will use it as a leaf warehouse. Some of the fixtures and show cases will be re-arranged, allowing for more room on the first floor, which will be especially appreciated by those patrons who have been in the habit of meeting their friends at this deservedly popular smoke shop. These improvements will give them one of the best locations for any business in York, and should soon prove itself in an increased business. Young & Busser report conditions as very favorable, there being a pronounced improvement in August over the same month last year.

The hailstorm which visited this locality the other day did little damage.

Both the wholesale and retail branches also show encouraging progress and with the advent of cooler weather should reach their normal condition.

P. H. Hildebrand Buys Eshleman Factory

READING, August 20.

READING tobacco men, whether they be manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers or leaf men, all give more promising reports of local conditions and forecast a prosperous fall season, possibly the best in years. This bustling little city has not been overburdened with trade, in this line of business at least, for several years, and as one man put it, "it's about time it's coming to us."

P. H. Hildebrand, who, it was announced exclusively in the last issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD, had resigned as manager of the Porta Vana Cigar Company, the manufacturers of the "Sheik" cigar, will go into business again, but not in Reading. Mr. Hildebrand had made preparations to open up in the same building in which the Porta Vana factory is located, but later decided to purchase the John J. Eshleman factory in Mohnton. This he did last week, and the plant is now running under his supervision. His brother, who was with Mr. Hildebrand in the Porta Vana plant, is foreman of the newly acquired establishment. The Eshleman brands will be manufactured as before, he having purchased those also, and in addition several other cigars, among them the "Minority Stockholder."

Wm. Yocum has gone on a motoring trip north as far as New York State, and will be gone for about a week. Mr. Yocum's time is taken up very closely in supervising operations at the factory and he has been unable to take any extended trips. In about a month he will make his annual journey to Cuba, at which time he looks over the leaf market and selects tobacco for the Yocum products.

Charles Yetter is busy at his plant filling orders for the fall trade. He is much pleased with the Universal tobacco stripping machines he installed in his factory last spring, and reports excellent results.

The E. E. Kahler factory reports a run on the "Tannhauser" cigar, a nickel piece of goods, which is finding its way to the hearts of Middle Western smokers.

W. W. Stewart is working a strong and persistent campaign on the "John Hay" cigar. This has been pushed aggressively in this territory by means of street-car advertising, posters and window displays, and now Mr. Stewart is looking for new increased results from other regions, in which it has recently been introduced. He has negotiations under way now which will be announced when the plans have been completed.

John J. Spatz is on a boosting expedition in the Middle West on the "Heidelberg" and other Spatz brands. He will go as far West as Michigan, returning in about three weeks.

Tobacco Improvement By the Department of Agriculture

WASHINGTON, August 19, 1912.

ALTHOUGH the average annual production of tobacco in the United States reaches nearly one billion pounds, for which the farmer receives about $100,000,000, the net profit to the farmer is much smaller than it should be. Among the principal causes for small profits from such an important crop are failure to follow sound cultural methods, use of unadapted varieties or strains, damage by insects and diseases, and imperfect knowledge of the principles that apply to the processes of curing, fermenting and handling the leaf. To remedy these conditions the Department of Agriculture in 1898 began to investigate the improvement of tobacco production.

Cultural Methods.—The early work of the department with tobacco was confined almost entirely to the cigar types, but since 1905 investigations have been in progress in the manufacturing and export districts. In most of these districts the average yield has been much less than could be obtained by better cultural methods. In the Connecticut Valley, where the soils are maintained in a high state of fertility, yields of 2000 pounds and over to the acre are common, while on similar soils in many of the manufacturing and export districts the average yield is scarcely one-third of what it should be. One of the improper cultural methods to which this lack of yield is largely due is growing tobacco on the same land year after year instead of practicing rotation of crops. The work of the department along this line has been to correct this one-crop system of farming whereby the fertility of the soil is exhausted. These efforts have succeeded so well that the production in Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina has greatly increased, and the Virginia legislature has made an annual appropriation of $5000 in support of this work.

Breeding and Selection.—In developing acclimated strains of Sumatra and Cuban tobaccos by systematic seed selection it was found that the old standard types could be greatly improved in productiveness and other characteristics, and several desirable types were produced. A large quantity of tobacco seed is grown directly under the supervision of the department's tobacco specialists located in the various tobacco producing centers, and is annually distributed. Supplies of seed of the new and improved types are also distributed to those desiring to grow these types.

Scientific and Technical Investigations.—Efforts to introduce the growing of a high-grade cigar filler leaf from Cuban seed in the Southern States have demonstrated that this industry can be made a success. A satisfactory substitute for the imported Sumatra wrapper leaf has resulted by growing Sumatra and Cuban types under artificial shade, and in 1911 over 2000 acres of such tobacco (worth $2,000,000) were grown under shade in the Connecticut Valley. The Cuban bulk method of fermenting has been successfully introduced into Northern cigar-tobacco districts, resulting in a more uniform and better product. Substantial improvements in the methods of curing are now being introduced, notably in the use of artificial heat in curing cigar tobaccos, thus eliminating the loss from pole-sweat, which is estimated to have caused losses in some years amounting to $1,000,000 in the Connecticut Valley alone. Poor burning quality in cigar tobaccos renders them of little value. This subject has been thoroughly investigated and the principal influencing factors have been worked out. A somewhat unique feature of the laboratory methods was the development of the department's automatic cigar smoker, a device for smoking or burning under uniform and controlled conditions a large number of cigars used in the tests. This device has eliminated the necessity of the actual smoking of cigars by those conducting the tests, except for the final test of aroma. The necessity for such a device can only be appreciated by those who have been called on to try smoking a few hundred cigars made from raw tobacco in an effort to find the one good plant needed as the foundation for developing a type satisfactory to the exacting consumer.

Insects and Diseases.—Satisfactory methods have been devised for controlling most of the important insects that attack tobacco, particularly those damaging the crop during the growing period. Tobacco is also subject to a number of destructive maladies, such as the Mosaic disease, which occurs throughout the world, and the root-rot, a disease particularly troublesome in the Connecticut Valley. In 1906 the department perfected a soil-sterilizing device, which has been used very successfully wherever root-rot is prevalent.

Considerable Improvement Noted in San Francisco

Bercovich Company Takes Over Dignan Store—Steamer Manchuria Brings Four Million Manila Cigars

SAN FRANCISCO, August 21.

THE city cigar trade has picked up a little within the last week or two, due to the ending of the vacation season and the return of absentees to town. In most country districts, there is also an improvement in business. There is still a good deal of talk about the spread of the temperance movement and the closing of saloons in a number of good country communities. In the larger towns where there are regular cigar stores, the shutting up of the saloons does not affect the trade so much, but in the smaller places where the cigar and tobacco business is identified with the saloons the effect is decidedly bad for the time being. Doubtless, when the change is actually and permanently made, the selling of cigars will pass into other hands and the trade as a whole will not suffer permanently, but in the meantime nobody is happy. In fact, the agitation of the dry or wet question is bad, even if the dries win in the end. Wholesalers as a rule are not anxious to sell to a saloon man who may be closed out within a few weeks, and they are naturally more particular as to credits.

The biggest deal in retaildom for some time was the buying out by the Bercovich Company of the Dignan Cigar Company's store, at the corner of Market and Powell Streets. This store is in the very center of the theatre and hotel district and has one of the best night trades in the city. The Bercovich Company already had one of the three corners at the junction of Market, Powell and Eddy Streets, and the new acquisition gives them a long lead with the trade of that section of the city. The store will be conducted for the company by Mark Jacobson. Mr. Dignan, who has long been identified with the cigar trade of San Francisco, will now abandon it and devote his attention to the café business.

H. Bercovich has been spending most of the time this week at San José, where he owns one of the leading stores.

It is hard to realize that there was ever a slump in Manila cigars when, in spite of the receipt of about four million cigars by the steamer Manchuria this week, the distributors assert that there is still a scarcity of the popular makes of Manilas in the hands of the San Francisco jobbers. M. A. Gunst & Co., the Edward Wolf Company, E. M. Elam, and most of the other leading jobbing houses got in good big shipments on the Manchuria.

The hot weather in the interior and the fine cool weather on the Coast has been bringing a number of interior cigar merchants to the city within the last few days. C. Rothholz, of Sacramento, and Max Fleischmann, of Bakersfield, two of the best known men in the trade of the state, are here on business and pleasure this week. Another visitor is P. Appel, of Cheyenne, Wyo., who reached town about a week ago.

The Boquet-Cohn Cigar Company has completed the remodeling of their fine store at the corner of Fifth and Market Streets. A change was made necessary by the withdrawal of the license of the saloon which had formerly occupied the rear of the room, and the saloon has now been replaced by a candy store. The Boquet-Cohn Company reports a good trade, with a steady improvement from week to week.

F. W. Spencer, who has now returned from a trip to Eureka and other points in Humboldt County in the interest of the Tobacco Company of California, says that he found the cigar men very generally discouraged by reason of the county's going dry at the recent election. Of course, there were important exceptions, and Mr. Spencer is inclined to think that in the end Humboldt County will consume as many good cigars as ever.

The feature of the Gunst business this week was the arrival by express of the first shipment of "Little Bobby" cigars since the supply was shut off by the recent strike. A hundred thousand of these cigars came in by express and efforts are being made to get out others at once, as there are a lot of accumulated orders to be filled. Fred Welch, of the Gunst office force, is taking a vacation this week. He will spend his time in the wilds of Mendocino County, where the game is most plentiful.

The well-known stand of George Walker, at Los Angeles, Cal., has been sold to Harry Beck, who was formerly manager of the cigar department of the wholesale house of Mason, Ehrman & Co., at Portland, Ore.

O. K. White, Coast representative of the Compeer Cigar Company, of Indianapolis, is now in the Pacific Northwest, doing missionary work in the interest of the "Plantista" cigar. This line is distributed locally by Hoffman & Robinson.

T. Cohn, Western representative of the American West Indies Sales Company, has left San Francisco for a trip through his extensive northern territory. Somewhere in the North he will meet M. J. Levy, president of the company. Mr. Cohn does not expect to get back to San Francisco before the latter part of October.

All Lines of Tobacco Business Fair—Flynn & Crulin Purchase Pittfield Store

BOSTON, August 24.

THE tobacco industry in Boston and vicinity is fairly good considering the people being away to summer resorts, but the tobacco leaf trade has never been better than the last month.

At the Boston Tavern trade and business has been more than good. Havana and domestic cigars being about even in the demand.

At the United Cigar Stores business has been very good. The marked-down prices has caused a large trade in tobacco goods, cigars, cigarettes, &c.

At Daniel Frank and Company's store business is very good and fair for the summer months.

At Young's Hotel business is good, but the call is for the highest grade cigars and of the finest flavor.

At Hamillburg's Cigar Box on Essex Street business is good, the box trade growing every day. The people seem to be finding out where they can get a good cigar at a moderate price.

At the Castle Square Hotel foreign and domestic cigars, cigarettes, &c., have a large sale. The "O. C." ten cent cigar, and the "Flor De Capilaro," Key West, seven cents straight, are favorites.

Thos. F. Flynn and Chas. H. Crulin have purchased the drug store belonging to Edward F. Fahey in Pittsfield, Mass., and will have a large stock of cigars and accessories for sale at reasonable prices.

Felix J. Holden Cigar Company, Incorporated, was organized in Bristol with a capital of $10,000. A fine grade of Havana and domestic cigars will be carried.

Messias, the Dover Street tobacconist, wholesale and retail dealer, reports business as good for the summer months.

At the Farmers on Tremont Street more "Bull Durham" smoking tobacco is sold than all the other brands put together.

At Holland Bros.' wine, cigar and cigarette store, 45 Boylston Street, business in the cigar trade is good. Havana and domestic cigars are about even in the demand for smokers by the people.

L. Jeselsohn, 128 North Street, wholesale tobacconist, says that business is good and "B. L." tobacco has the call, there being more demand for that brand than any other.

At Maxim's Hotel, Harrison Avenue, trade in the cigar and cigarette business is good, large demands being made for domestic cigars at a fair price.

The new store of George L. Storm & Co. on Federal Street was opened last week, being on a street where people have to go from the South Station to the postoffice. They will have a good business on the "Bank Note" cigar.

"St. Leger" little cigars, which are given gratis with "Between the Acts" little cigars, have a most novel insert in the shape of a miniature rug of high coloring and very attractive.

During the last month the "Sovereign" cigarettes have taken on quite a boom and the jobbers are being pressed with orders.

Ed Davis, who has made the "Girard" cigar famous in New England, is on an auto trip through New York, Atlantic City, Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia.

"La Integridad" cigars were used by the "Ancients" last week at the banquet held in honor of their safe arrival at Faneuil Hall.

J. F. Callahan & Co. on Federal Street has just received a full line of sizes of N. Guerra, Diaz & Co.'s clear Havana cigars.

The Copley-Plaza Hotel on Copley Square, the finest and most luxurious hotel in New England, and under the management of New York parties, will be opened August 19th. The cigar stands, three in number, are finished in oak and will be operated by the S. S. Pierce Company on a grand scale, and will be appreciated by the ones that know a good cigar.

Wm. T. HENDERSON.

The Miles Guarantee Cigar Company will erect a concrete factory at the corner of Mineral and Jasper Avenues, Joplin, Mo.

John Bean has succeeded to the cigar business of Bean & Brown, at Lewistown, Mont.

James Thompson has opened a cigar store at Albion, Neb.

Price Limit for Wisconsin Binders Probably Reached So Much Being Paid in Some Localities That Small Operator Has No Show

(From Edgerton Reporter of August 23.)

The buying of the new crop in the fields goes on apace though to many it seems that the limit for the price for Wisconsin binder leaf has about been reached. The effect of boosting the prices in some localities has been to drive out of the field all but the representatives of the large manufacturing firms who buy from first hands. The small operator certainly has no chance for his "little white ally" if he stays in the game. Much of the tobacco contracted for since the market opened has been on a basis of 20 to 21 cents cost a year, hence without any profit or some of the carrying charges added. It is possible that the figures paid in the northern sections may have the effect of blocking the market for the time being, at least some of the conservative tobacco men consider the entire movement the wildest gamble ever undertaken in this state. Some, however, undertake to account for it on the theory that the firms interested are taking a long bet that not over 25 per cent. of the crop would ever reach a satisfactory harvest, in which event outside figures might be justified. Certainly the prices being paid growers are the highest ever handed out for the choice selections in Wisconsin.

The bitter experience with the 1906 crop is not so far away that dealers have entirely forgotten it, and yet the average prices paid for this season's crop are higher than those that prevailed that year when the entire crop looked promising. Neither is the craze of field buying confined to Wisconsin. Already the bulk of the New England crop is under contract at higher prices than any crop in recent years has brought. It requires no astute reasoning to foretell what might happen if things do not turn out well before delivery day. If for any reason the crop does not come up to expectations there will be a surprisingly large number of sick buyers or disgruntled growers, according to whether the former carry out or repudiate their contracts. At least it is the farmer who is not taking the long chances on the gamble, for he cannot lose so very much is compelled to take low grade prices for his crop if it does not come up to contract requirements, while if he makes the promised delivery he is sure of fat returns. Trust the Wisconsin tobacco grower to know when his best interests are concerned.

Unique Souvenir of Detroit Retailer

S. CAPEN, who conducts three high-class cigar stands under the euphonious title, "Smok-Boutique," in Detroit, Mich., is presenting to his customers interesting advertising souvenirs in the shape of booklets entitled "The Presidency of the United States." These booklets contain a vast amount of information in regard to the presidential elections of other years and give the vote for each president from Washington down; also interesting information in regard to the various presidents and their idiosyncrasies. The booklet is particularly timely during the campaign months and should prove a helpful advertisement for the Capen business.

Among the leaders of the Capen cigar stands are the "Don Antonio," "Lozano," "Webster," "Solace," "Ruy Lopez," "Sanchez y Haya," "Pastora," "El Verso," "William Penn," "Robert Burns" and "Royal Banner." In addition to these Mr. Capen handles a big line of imported goods and a large assortment of cigarettes and smoking tobacco.

TOBACCO CROP OF 1912 IN FINE SHAPE

Florida Has Highest Condition, 94 Per Cent.—Acreage for Cigar Leaf Shows Slight Decrease Over 1911

In his report to the Department of Agriculture on the domestic tobacco crop for 1912, J. P. Killebrew, special tobacco agent for the department, states:

The 1912 area of cigar-leaf tobacco is 172,400 acres against a final estimate of 177,400 in 1911, a decrease of 5,000 acres, or about 3 per cent.: Pennsylvania and the Miami Valley each show a decrease, while every other district shows an increase, the largest being 20 per cent. in Georgia and Florida. The highest condition (94 per cent.) is reported in Georgia and Florida, while the lowest (88 per cent.) is in New York. The average for the cigar-leaf territory is 91.4 per cent., compared with 93 in 1911.

Of the chewing, smoking, snuff, and export types the acreage is 1,012,300 acres, compared with a final estimate of 819,500 in 1911, an increase of 192,800 acres, or 23 per cent. The largest increase (30 per cent.) is in the Henderson or Stemming district. All districts show an increase except the Perique—Louisiana—and the Maryland and Eastern Ohio Export, each of which has the same area as last year. The average condition is 87 per cent. A full acreage was planted on an average a week or 10 days late.

The following table shows the 1912 area, by States, with the condition for July 1, 1912, 1911, and the 10-year average:

I. CIGAR TYPES. NEW ENGLAND.

The acreage is 3 per cent. larger than that of last year. Plants were plentiful and early, and transplanting was accomplished in good time. More than usual damage was done by cutworms, and cool, dry winds caused many plants to die, thereby necessitating heavy replanting. A good stand was finally secured, but growth has been slow; cool weather and lack of rain has retarded the progress of the crop a week or ten days, and the growing condition is not so good as at the same date last season. The area of shade tobacco is smaller than last year.

NEW YORK.

The acreage shows an increase of 4 per cent. over that of 1911. Cold weather in May and early June in the Onondaga district made plants scarce and late, and transplanting was from one to two weeks later than usual; in fact, the plants were not all in the field when reports were sent to the bureau. Continued cool, dry weather destroyed many plants in the field and made it difficult to get a stand. In the Big Flats district conditions were more favorable; the crop was planted in good time, and a good stand secured. The prospect in this State, as a whole, is not so good as in 1911.

PENNSYLVANIA.

A decrease in price and slow sales during the winter and spring have caused a decrease of 4 per cent. in the acreage. The spring was cold and backward. Plants in the beds made slow growth and were not ready for the field until a week or ten days later than usual. Transplanting, favored by good weather, went forward rapidly. Some damage was done by cutworms, but a good stand was eventually obtained. The condition on July 1st indicated a good crop.

OHIO, MIAMI VALLEY.

The area is 10 per cent. less than in 1911. Dry weather during early June prevented proper preparation of the soil and delayed transplanting. Favorable conditions expedited planting, and the crop went into the field in good time. The stand is excellent, growth uniform, and condition July 1st better than in July, 1911. The promise is for a good crop.

WISCONSIN.

There is an increase, compared with 1911, of 3 per cent. in the area. Planting, though later than last year, began about the usual time, was carried on under satisfactory conditions, and completed in ample time. With but little insect damage a good stand was secured. While the condition on July 1st was not so high as last year, a good crop is indicated.

GEORGIA AND FLORIDA.

A more active market and higher prices have induced a 20 per cent. increase in acreage. Unseasonably low temperatures followed by heavy rains delayed planting two or three weeks. The work, however, was eventually effected under favorable conditions and the stand is good. Harvesting began in June and crop promises to be good.

II. CHEWING, SMOKING, SNUFF, AND EXPORT TYPES.

BURLEY DISTRICT.

The acreage is 20 per cent. larger than last year. Plant beds were prepared late on account of cold weather followed by excessive rain. While the planting was late in some sections, it began, as a rule, about June 1st and was completed about the usual time. The plants have made rapid growth. No unusual damage has been done by cutworms and the stand is good. The condition, higher than that of the same time last year, indicates a better crop.

DARK DISTRICTS OF KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE.

Paducah District.—The expansion in acreage, compared with the previous season, is 25 per cent. Cold weather and subsequent heavy rains caused plant beds to be prepared late. The plants grew rapidly, however, and auspicious weather conditions enabled transplanting to be done about the usual time and a good stand was secured. Heavy rains in June did some damage in low lands, but this is thought not to be serious. The condition on July 1st indicated a good crop.

Henderson or Stemming District.—The increase in acreage over that of last season is 30 per cent. Plant beds were prepared and sown late because of unpropitious weather at the usual time of sowing. The plants developed rapidly and, being ready for the field early, a larger per cent. than usual of the crop was planted in May. Transplanting was finished early. The crop has been cultivated and, in general, has made uniform growth. The condition is much higher than last year and the promise is for good results.

Upper Green River District.—The acreage is 19 per cent. larger than in 1911. Plants were plentiful and although planting began early, dry weather ensued and about 25 per cent. was planted late. The stand and growth are satisfactory and, if favorable conditions prevail until harvest, a good crop is promised.

Upper Cumberland District.—The acreage has been increased 24 per cent. About half the crop was set early, but the remainder, because of the stoppage of planting operations by dry weather, was not set until after mid-June. The stand is good; growth and condition on July 1st indicated a good crop.

Clarksville and Hopkinsville District.—The acreage has been increased 25 per cent. Plants, though scarce in some localities, were, on the whole, sufficient to plant the intended acreage. Wet weather during the first ten days in May interrupted the preparation of the land; at that time only about two-thirds of the intended acreage was ready, but about May 20th an improvement in the weather permitted that part of the crop to be set. Wireworms and cutworms did more damage than in years, and dry, cool weather killed many plants, making a bad stand. After good rains, about mid-June, the remainder of the acreage was set, the earlier fields replanted and a good stand secured. Because of extensive replanting the early planted fields are irregular in growth, and the crop as a whole, while in better condition than last year, is not so promising as in average years.

VIRGINIA SUN-CURED DISTRICT.

An addition of 20 per cent. has been made to the acreage. Cool weather retarded the growth of plants in the beds and dry weather prevented planting at the proper time, so that the crop was set late. Wireworms and cutworms seriously injured the stand in some fields. While the condition does not indicate a fine crop, it is better than last year.

VIRGINIA DARK DISTRICT.

An increase of 15 per cent. in the acreage is reported. Plants were plentiful but, planting having been delayed by dry weather, the crop was set unusually late. Cutworms and wireworms did considerable damage in some localities, and a bad stand resulted. Excepting 1911, the condition on July 1st is the lowest reported in several years.

BRIGHT YELLOW DISTRICT.

Old Belt, Virginia and North Carolina.—The acreage is 19 per cent. larger than last year. A part of the area was planted in May, but the plants made slow progress on account of dry weather, which also prevented the full area being planted early. Conditions in June were more gratifyng. The remainder of the crop was planted and the early plantings were much improved by copious rains. Damage by insects on a limited area has been a source of some complaint, but the general stand is good. The condition on July 1st was much better than at the same date last season.

New Belt, Eastern North Carolina and South Carolina.

—A 55 per cent. increase in acreage is recorded. Plants were plentiful but late. Transplanting, though begun about ten days behindhand, progressed rapidly and was finished about the usual time. In some localities heavy rains and cool weather in June damaged the growth and caused plants to have small leaves and to bloom low. In other places the present promise is for a fine crop. The condition on July 1st was much better than a year ago.

MARYLAND AND EASTERN OHIO EXPORT.

The acreage is about the same as last year. Plants being plentiful and the weather favorable for transplanting, the crop in Maryland was set in good time. In Eastern Ohio planting, delayed by drought, was two weeks late. Some damage in the field has been done by cutworms. As a whole, the stand is good and the condition better than at the same time in 1911.

PERIQUE, LOUISIANA.

The acreage is the same as last year. The stand is good and condition better than at the corresponding date last season.

Valloft & Dreux Company Reorganized

Will Again Do Business With Increased Capital—L. E. Valloft, President—Old Officers Retained

NEW ORLEANS, August 21.

THE firm of Valloft & Dreux Company, for whom a receiver was appointed some six weeks ago, has been re-organized with increased capital, retaining the brands that they formerly had the agency for. The new company will have a working capital of $150,000, of which $75,000 is represented by preferred stock and $75,000 common stock. L. E. Valloft is president, and the officers of the old company will serve in the same capacity with the new company. All of the employees have been retained.

T. G. Thompson, receiver for the Valloft & Dreux Company and the Independent Cigar Stores Company, has filed his final account with the court. The assets of the Valloft & Dreux Company are given as $77,846.13, liabilities the same amount. The sale to L. E. Valloft netted $36,464.13 and two notes for $18,232.06, due in three and six months, paying the creditors twelve and one-half per cent. of their claims. The receiver's fee and court costs amounted to $4,917.87. The assets and liabilities of the Independent Stores Company are shown to be $78,684.86.

PELICAN.

Retail Trade Notes

John J. Bagley, tobacconist, Milwaukee, Wis., has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy with assets amounting to $394 and liabilities $200.

Thomas B. Sutliff, who conducted a retail cigar stand at Fifteenth Street and Broadway, Oakland, Cal., has disposed of it to Joseph Croter. This is considered one of the best locations in the city. Mr. Croter has been in the cigar business for fifteen years.

Brady & Oliver, who have a retail stand in the Yeon Building, Portland, Ore., have opened another in the new Journal Building, that city. The first cigar sold was a "Webster," Y. Pendas & Alvarez.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Manufacturers Scouring New York Market—Growing Weather Good in Pennsylvania—Buying of Wisconsin Crop Under Way

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, August 26.

THE leaf market is beginning to take on its customary fall appearance. Many manufacturers are in town and scouring the warehouses for desirable stock, which it is reported is none too plenty. A number of large purchases were noted, principally in Sumatra.

The inquiries have been chiefly for binders, the supply of which is sadly depleted. Dealers are looking forward to the new Wisconsin tobacco, and the scramble out there for good leaf shows that a number of them are determined to procure a large supply. Sumatra also, which was slow in taking hold, is selling very well as is the shade grown wrapper leaf. There has been quite a bit of sampling on New England broadleaf, and judging by the hurried buying of the crops in the field, it is of a very good quality. There has been some activity in Pennsylvania, but as there are three crops of this leaf on the market and plenty of it in sight in the fields, manufacturers are not worrying much about being able to get any amount of this tobacco when needed.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, August 24.

LOCAL leaf dealers are all doing a fair amount of business, but of course at this time cannot expect to be breaking records. There are a number of out-of-town manufacturers now in Philadelphia and the dealers are kept busy showing them their goods.

There are inquiries for all lines of leaf, the new Sumatra appearing to move nicely, as is the new Pennsylvania. Havana is also doing well, as is Connecticut. The manufacturers are all working hard now on incoming orders, which will be reflected in increased business before long in the leaf market.

LANCASTER, August 23.

Conditions in local leaf tobacco circles are the same as they have been for some time past—dull—and there has been nothing doing so far as trade in old goods was concerned. The tobacco in this and neighboring counties is doing extremely well.

The growing weather the past week has been ideal. There has been plenty of rain, the nights have been warm, and as one grower remarked, the tobacco has grown more since last Saturday than it did in the two weeks previous. There was more cutting this week in different sections and some pretty nice tobacco was harvested. The bulk of the Havana leaf has been cut.

The hail storm of Monday afternoon did some damage to the tobacco crops in the vicinity of the city, but the damage was not so great.

The cigar business continues to improve and all the factories are running full-handed.

YORK, August 23.

Growing conditions have been ideal the past two weeks. There has been a fair amount of rain and the plants are fairly shooting up. The growth in some districts is rather irregular, yet even the backward plants will grow to a good size.

There has been a little cutting, but it has not yet become general in this locality. The tobacco experts have been cautioning the growers in York County about this, claiming that too many growers, in a desire to have their crops under cover before frost, were harvesting it too early and were getting a poorer leaf than they should have.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, August 20.

ACCORDING to estimates, this year's tobacco crop will be the largest ever raised in the town. There are about 3600 acres cultivated, an increase of over 200 acres over that grown last year. Of this about 800 acres are being picked or primed, and the amount of outside help required to do this is nearly double that of last year, when less than 500 acres were picked. Growers this year are raising but little under cloth, with the exception of W. S. Pinney, who is raising 25 acres of Cuban tobacco under a tent and 65 acres of Havana in the open fields, all of which will be picked.

At present Mr. Pinney is experimenting with a curing system which he has installed in one of his buildings, the building being 90 feet long by 36 feet wide. Two hot air furnaces were built in the ground, one at each end of the shed, from which large galvanized iron pipes run on each side of the building. The fuel used is soft coal and the hot air is drawn through the pipes with a suction blower run by a gasoline engine, which keeps the heat at an average temperature, regardless of weather conditions. The work of installing the plant, which is the only one of its kind in this section, was under the supervision of Mr. Pinney and E. G. Reinhardt, of the Bureau of Plant Industry at Washington, D. C., it being the intent of the government to perfect a flue system using soft coal for fuel that would be inexpensive and get results which will do away with pole sweat, which for many years has been a serious drawback to the growers.

At present the results obtained are better than expected, the building has been filled sixteen days and the new system has cured the leaves almost perfect in regard to color and quality, and the crop is ready to take down and the building filled again. A building of this size will hold five acres of picked tobacco and with Mr. Pinney's new system could be used for hanging three different pickings or fifteen acres of tobacco. The work in regard to curing was started during the season of 1905 by Dr. W. W. Gainer, of the Agricultural Department at Washington, and the work until this year has been under his supervision. Mr. Pinney stated that next season he would equip all his buildings with the present system and increase his acreage, especially that raised under cloth.

WINDSOR, August 20.

It is estimated that fully 90 per cent. of this year's crop of tobacco has been bought in the field, which is unprecedented in the history of tobacco culture in this place. The reason for the brisk demand has not been explained. The prices at which the crops have sold have averaged between 18 and 21 cents a pound in the bundle, which is considered a fair selling price for crops of late years. The first tobacco to be sold was the Havana seed leaf tobacco, but it was reported that the buyers were looking for the crops of Connecticut broadleaf which have not been sold.

The tobacco harvest is now at its zenith and all the help which can be had for miles around is being sought in order to harvest the crop.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, August 23.

THE buying of the new crop in the fields has gained considerable headway in the southern growing sections during the week where the large operators have their men posted, and contracts for a good many hundred acres of the most promising crops have been made. Prices range largely from 12 to 13 cents for bundle delivery, which growers quite generally are willing to accept. We possibly might fill a column with sales, but the following will show about the range taken:

Atwood Bros., 16a at 13½¢&3c.
Lars Lien, Jr., 10a at 13¢&4c.
Elmer Thorson, 9a at 12¾¢&4c.
Thos. Houfe, 8a at 12¢&4c.
Ed Smithback, 8a at 13½¢&3c.
Martin Halverson, 7½a at 13¢&4c.
Eph. Hippe, 10a at 12¢&3c.
Spaf. Allen, 8a at 12½¢&3c.
E. Haylack, 6a at 12½¢&3c.
Phil. Ullius, 14a at 10¢&3c.

The harvest is just fairly under way, but we are told that considerable tobacco recently contracted is being hurried to the sheds rather prematurely. The first hail storm of any moment this season covered quite a portion of the best growing districts of Crawford County on Sunday last, causing a good deal of damage to the crop in the path of the storm. Weather conditions of the week have been favorable for the growth of the later tobacco which is making a satisfactory sized leaf and needs only a late fall to bring to maturity. The return of warm weather has sent forward the late tobacco fields amazingly during the week, and if such conditions continue there is an excellent chance for the development of plenty of fine, medium late tobacco. A very small fraction of the crop is now about ready for the harvest. The market for old leaf has developed but little news.—Reporter.

VIROQUA, August 23.

Really chilly atmosphere for two weeks, with almost daily showers or downpours of rain, has retarded tobacco development, continued uneven conditions of growth and delayed operations in the fields. The showers have not been so detrimental as has the coolness. The effect is to delay harvest a fortnight, or later than anticipated. In many fields there is remarkable growth and fine outlook, but as a whole, is uneven and apparently stunted. Ten days of bright and hot weather would perform miracles in the tobacco fields. Regardless of the unevenness, topping is proceeding rapidly.

Leaf News of Interest

Suffield Tobacco Shed Burned

A LARGE tobacco shed 35 x 400 feet on the farm of W. S. Pinney, of Suffield, Conn., was burned to the ground about five o'clock, August 22. The shed was filled with primed tobacco that was nearly cured, and was equipped with furnaces for regulating the curing in the experiments conducted by the government here. The loss is estimated at $17,000—$7,000 for the building and heating system and $10,000 for the tobacco. The building and its contents were partially covered by insurance. One of the gasoline engines used in operating the suction blower was destroyed and the other taken out and saved. The large tent which covers the shade-grown tobacco close by caught fire and quite a portion was burned before the workmen could put out the blaze.

The origin of the fire is not known, as there had been no fire in the furnaces during the day and the shed was closed by one of the men about an hour before the fire was discovered.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of Todd County tobacco growers was addressed at Elkton, Ky., last week by General Inspector Radford, of the Planters' Protective Association. At the close of his speech many took advantage of the occasion to sign the three-year pledge, and it was announced that a house to house canvass would be made for other signatures.

At the regular annual meeting of the Tobacco Board of Trade, of Rocky Mount, N. C., on August 16, held at the office of the secretary, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term:

Mr. C. W. Lea, president; Mr. C. C. Cooper, vice-president, and Mr. E. W. Smith secretary and treasurer. It was decided to begin sales at Fenner's warehouse on the 20th of August, and to put on double sales as soon as necessary, certainly by September 1. It is thought that the bulk of the crop will be cured by the 20th of August, the date of the opening, and that sales will be full from the start.

Preparations are being made to erect two loose leaf tobacco warehouses in Augusta, Ky., for the handling of the 1912 crop of tobacco. Both are incorporated for $15,000 and one will be controlled by Augusta business men and farmers, while the other will be under the management of North Carolina people.

The American Tobacco Company bought of Timothy Geary on Thursday the last remaining crop of tobacco near Poquonock, Conn., the price paid being twenty-one cents in the bundle. The highest price paid this year was twenty-three cents, this being obtained by two planters whose names the purchasers refused to disclose.

Shipments of Porto Rico-American Tobacco Company to the United States are averaging 8,000,000 big and 2,000,000 little cigars a month. This represents the entire output of the company's factories, except a comparatively small local consumption. Plans have been perfected whereby area to be planted under shade in 1913 will be increased 15 per cent. over 1912. This means planting 2500 acres in all.

At a meeting of merchants and citizens of Centerville, Miss., on August 19, George Howard, of Kentucky, a tobacco expert, addressed a large audience on the subject of devoting a good acreage next year to growing tobacco. From an analysis of the soil, Mr. Howard says that tobacco can be profitably raised at Centerville. A number of farmers were pledged to plant tobacco in 1913.

The Frankfort Tobacco Warehouse Company, of Frankfort, Ky., which has been operating in that city the past year under the above title, will dissolve by agreement and do business as heretofore, as two firms. They are the Geary Tobacco Warehouse Company and the Farmers' Tobacco Warehouse Company. Their sales last year amounted to several million pounds.

The members of the Baltimore Leaf Tobacco Association have not been meeting during the summer months, but they have kept in touch with all matters of interest to the body and will hold a meeting in October to elect officers. It is reported from that city that the French buyers who have been purchasing the leaf for that government are taking things easy by reason of a strike in France on several steamship lines which has affected prompt shipments of their goods.

It is intended to shortly open another large tobacco factory in Winston-Salem, N. C., for the manufacturing of plug and twist tobacco. The organizers of the movement are J. L. Casper and J. T. Smithdeal, who now have a large building in readiness in Winston-Salem.

Many handlers of the weed have been traveling over the growing districts, taking observations of general conditions, but we have not learned of a crop having been contracted for. That field buying will soon follow seems but natural, if past custom prevails. The Hillsboro Sentry tells that an inspector went through that region offering a shilling straight for weed.—Censor

KENTUCKY.

LEXINGTON, August 18.

TOBACCO growers in Kentucky this year can buy automobiles and run them, according to a report of the Department of Agriculture at Washington. This shows that on July 1, 1912, there was a total tobacco acreage of 431,000 in Kentucky, or one-fourth again as much as the acreage of 1911. Its condition was 88 per cent. compared with 69 per cent. on July 1, 1911, and with 83 per cent., the ten-year average. The total acreage in chewing, smoking, snuff and export types throughout the United States is 1,012,300 acres compared with 819,500 (final estimate) for 1911, an increase of 192,800 acres, or 23 per cent. The largest increase, 30 per cent., is in the Henderson, or stemming district. All districts show an increase except the (perique) Louisiana and the Maryland and Eastern Ohio export.

The total of cigar leaf tobacco is 172,140 acres as against a final estimate of 177,400 in 1911, decrease of 5000 acres, or 3 per cent.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI, August 22.

ABOUT $2,000,000 is now being apportioned as a final payment to some 30,000 members of the 1909 Burley pool. The new Burley Society is pushing the erection of its plant at Lexington, Ky., and the general development of the system which it is thought will be fully able to cope with the American Tobacco Company, alias the four divisions decreed by the supreme court. The outcome of this will determine, to a large extent, prices for years to come.

The Department of Agriculture reports tobacco prospects at 82.2 per cent. of normal compared with 87.7 last month, and 63 the same time last year. The indicated yield per acre is 820.6 pounds, compared with 893.7 last year and 828 as normal. Kentucky places the acreage at 91.9 per cent. of normal and condition at 73.3. Tobacco harvest has begun in the South, where one reporter states that "a little of the crop is good and much is bad in quality." In Virginia drought has injured the crop.

Reports From Foreign Tobacco Centres

Machine-Made Cigarettes Replacing Hand-Made in South Africa—English Industry in Good Condition

Cigarette Making in South Africa

THERE was a time in Johannesburg, says the Johannesburg Sunday Times, when a skilled cigarette maker could make his £6 per week regularly. There was a time in Johannesburg when there were at least half a dozen schools of ten to fifteen workmen earning an average of £5 per week per man, making Transvaal cigarettes by hand.

Again, there was a time in Cape Town when about 150 cigarette makers—skilled men and women—were earning from £4 to £6 per week making Turkish (Egyptian) cigarettes.

Today the sale of Transvaal cigarettes in South Africa has increased twenty-fold, and the sale of Turkish cigarettes has also increased wonderfully, thanks to the many uses of advertisement. But the schools of cigarette makers have dwindled and deteriorated.

Where men were working four years ago for 7s. 6d. and 8s. 6d. per 1,000, girls are now working for 3s. 6d., and some few men for 4s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. per 1,000.

Answering the question why this state of affairs has come about, the writer says that a state of disorganization brought about industrial troubles and a necessary change. The founder manufacturers had accumulated the necessary capital to enable them to take a bold step—the introduction of the best machines in the world to do the work which was formerly done by hand. Their example was followed by the representatives of the tobacco kings, and within a few months Cape Town—in 1906—was stocked with cigarette machines as few towns in the world are stocked. Transvaal tobacco, Blantyre tobacco, Rhodesian tobacco, Turkish tobacco and Virginian tobacco went to the machines. A few manufacturers of all sorts struggled on with the hand work, and are still struggling, in all the South African towns; but the blow has fallen.

The argument is used that the hand-made cigarette is superior to the machine-made. Undoubtedly, for the skilled hand packs better and cannot work the dust. But two things militate against the hand work asserting its supremacy here. One is that the average South African smoker has become accustomed to the machine-made cigarettes, and the other is that most of the really skilled and expert workers have gone back to the Greek, Turkish and Jewish centres of the industry.

Another argument raised is that the Customs rates are unfair, and that the duty on imported cigarettes should be raised. But the effect of this would be to increase slightly the output of the South African machines, and possibly lower the output of the oversea cigarettes, for there is no duty on Transvaal tobacco or cigarettes. It is further argued that the duty on imported leaf should be lowered, the effect of which would be also good—namely, to increase the profits and output of the South African machines and bring foreign tobacco within the reach of the small manufacturer who employs hand workers.

Growing Tobacco in Ceylon

In Ceylon there are, approximately, 15,000 acres under tobacco. The yield per acre in cwt. could not be ascertained but on an average one acre will bear 4,000 plants, yielding about 40,000.

Samples of the tobacco were submitted to two firms of manufacturers in 1906. One of these, describes the tobacco as of a very low type, of a nondescript character, and hardly of any commercial value for the European market. The other firm reported that, "This tobacco is of excellent flavor and burns well with a white ash. The strength of the flavor, however, is a little too pronounced and the colors of the leaf are blotchy and uneven, so that the appearance of the cigar is prejudiced. A little care in cultivation and curing should enable the district from which these samples were taken to produce a really high-class tobacco, which would compare in quality with almost any other growth."

Various kinds of cigar tobaccos, i. e., Sumatra, Java, Cuba, etc., were cultivated at Peradeniya twenty-five years ago. The Ceylon Agricultural Society in 1910 instituted a series of experiments at Maha Huppallama. Twenty acres were planted with Sumatra and Java tobaccos on soil where a preliminary experiment with an acre of land had shown that tobacco grew well. The experiment was carried out under expert supervision and, although the growth of the tobacco was satisfactory, the crop obtained was stated to be insufficient in amount for proper fermentation, and in the end the tobacco was imperfectly fermented.

France Rewards Humane Drivers With Cigars

Members of societies formed in France to prevent cruelty to animals, have hit on a happy means of lightening the burdens of the horse. A special brand of cigars, known as "Caballos," and having on the band a horse's head, together with an inscription to show the object of the cigar, is carried by members of the societies, and is given away to cab and truck drivers as a reward for the apparent good condition of the animals in their charge. The smokers are of good quality, and the drivers of vehicles in Paris are more than pleased to obtain the reward.

Growth of Industry in Russia Interesting

The growth of the tobacco industry and cultivation in Russia, says a recent foreign report, presents a very interesting study in the life of the country. The imposition of an excise on the products of the tobacco factories constitutes a valuable contribution to the national treasury. There is a growing demand for the superior sorts of Russian tobacco, both in Russia and abroad, so that the planters have been constrained to increase the area of land put under the plant. The area under tobacco of various kinds in the year 1906 was 53,703 dessiatines, and in 1910 it was 66,809 dessiatines. The increase in the area put under tobacco is devoted entirely to the growth of the superior sorts—that is, cigarette tobaccos. The quantity of such grown in the year 1906 was 1,391,117 poods; but in 1910 it was 2,410,775 poods—a pood weighs 36 pounds. Of cigar leaf and machine (low quality) gathered in 1906, the respective quantities were 231,380 and 2,803,985 poods, and in 1910 192,305 and 2,800,683 poods.

The leading district for the production of the cigarette tobacco is Kuban with its 983,634 poods in 1910, against 597,556 poods in 1906. During the last few years large quantities of Kuban tobacco have been exported, the last three years accounting for the value of 5,000,000 roubles in exported tobacco from that region. Still, although there is this progress to be noted, the later tendency is for the cultivation of tobacco in the Kuban Province to decline, due, it is said, to the lack of technical knowledge on the part of the growers, who do not manage to keep up the progress of the growers in other countries. Presumably the decline is only felt in the export movement. Want of money is one of the reasons given, but this appears a poor reason for the decline of a prosperous industry. A similar tendency is observed in the foreign demand.

It is with peculiar satisfaction that the better demand for Russian tobacco on the foreign markets is observed. We find that in 1906 the quantity of leaf tobacco made 507,222 poods, and in 1910 578,510 poods, of the respective values of 2,132,105 roubles and 3,363,610 roubles. Russia easily supplies her own needs in tobacco, except, of course, in the exceptional sorts.

Industry in England Growing

The completed figures for the first half of the year show that the tobacco industry in England is making satisfactory progress, notwithstanding the unprecedentedly heavy duty of 3s. 8d. per pound. The deliveries for consumption at home during the six months, according to the Standard, total 50,876,598 pounds, which compare with 49,090,443 pounds in the preceding corresponding period, and 46,517,711 pounds in the corresponding period of 1910. The improvement has been progressive, and continued down to the end, June alone showing an increase over the corresponding month of 415,000 pounds. The proportion of leaf to strips being used is very much larger than in 1910, the consumption of the former being 36,869,000 pounds to 14,007,000 pounds of the latter. The imports of unmanufactured tobacco during the six months total 52,079,529 pounds, as compared with 50,532,420 pounds in the corresponding period of the previous year, and 48,360,664 pounds in the first half of 1910.

The United States continues to supply by far and away the greater portion of the raw material, and the only feature outside of the steady increase in the total imports is the greater proportion of strips being used. In 1910 the strips imported totalled only 12,595,000 pounds, as compared with 20,854,000 pounds in the corresponding period of the current year, while the imports of leaf have fallen from 35,765,000 pounds to 31,224,000 pounds. It is noteworthy, however, that whereas the leaf imports from the United States have declined from 31,836,000 pounds to 25,479,000 pounds, those from other countries have increased from 3,928,000 pounds to 5,744,000 pounds. Notwithstanding the larger consumption, the stocks continue steadily to decline, the total in hand being now 190,726,000 pounds, as compared with 195,906,000 pounds at the corresponding date of last year, and 199,578,000 pounds in 1910.

The Austrian Tobacco Monopoly

The number of employees of the Austrian Tobacco Monopoly in 1910 was 40,339, less than 10 per cent. of whom were under twenty years old. The average wage was $143 per annum. In 1890 there were 33,296 employees receiving an average wage of $70. The low wages are explained by the fact that many factories employing large numbers of laborers are situated in the country districts, in small towns where wages are very low, and to the fact that nearly six-sevenths of the employees are women. Of the total number of employees in 1910, 38,525 worked in factories and the balance in offices and stores.

Death Takes Leonard H. Neudecker, Veteran Baltimore Tobacco Manufacturer

Founder of Well-Known Concern Drops Dead From Heart Trouble.
Aged 75 Years—Had Sold Out His Interests to the American Tobacco Company

(Special Despatch to The Tobacco World.)

BALTIMORE, MD., September 12.

Leonard H. Neudecker, founder and former president of the Neudecker Tobacco Company, of Baltimore, and one of the oldest tobacco manufacturers in the country, died at his home in this city today, as the result of heart trouble. Although not confined to his bed, Mr. Neudecker had not been in good health for some time. While combing his hair today and talking to his wife, he suddenly swayed and fell to the floor dead.

Mr. Neudecker had not been actively identified in the tobacco business for the past seven years. He had sold out his property to the American Tobacco Company and retired from active business.

He was born in Bavaria 75 years ago, being brought to this country when only four years old by his parents, who settled in St. Louis. It was in St. Louis that he opened his first tobacco factory, at the age of twenty-one. He prospered so fast that he branched out in other cities, where he established other factories. Ten years after starting in St. Louis he went to New York, where he established the central office for the L. H. Neudecker Company, of which he was president.

In 1872, he went to Baltimore, where he opened his factory at Marsh Place and Lombard Street, which was regarded as one of the largest tobacco plants in that city.

Upon his selling his interest to the American Tobacco Company, Mr. Neudecker moved to Lockport, N. Y., where he resided several years, but afterwards returned to Baltimore. He held interests in several tobacco factories and was a personal friend of James B. Duke, former president of the American Tobacco Company. He was a member of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Baltimore, Tobacco Board of Trade and President of the Central Business Men's Association.

Besides a widow, he is survived by one daughter and a brother. His funeral will take place Saturday, September 14, interment being private.

Storm Damages Connecticut Tobacco

$100,000 Loss Sustained by Farmers from Rain and Hail

NEW HAVEN, CONN., September 11.

EASTERN Connecticut was swept this afternoon with an unusually heavy hailstorm, accompanied by severe thunder and lightning. In the tobacco growing districts damage so far estimated at nearly $100,000 has been done to full grown tobacco in the fields.

The principal damage done was at Windsor Locks and Warehouse Point. A score of barns and houses were struck by lightning and burned to the ground.

Veteran Salesmen of Patterson Organization Suddenly Dropped

Well-Known Men Let Out By Big Tobacco Manufacturers to Make Way for New Men and New Policy—
A List of the Men Affected

RICHMOND, VA., September 13.

As a result of the change in policy in the marketing of their brands, which has been in the process of evolution for some time, the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company, manufacturers of "Lucky Strike" and "Tuxedo," of this city, have just dismissed a number of their best known salesmen; in fact, they have completely wiped out their old sales organization to make way for new methods.

The change will cause a sensation among the many friends of the head salesmen of this company, who have come to regard the salesmen and the brands as one.

Among those affected by the change are E. E. Steeves, who for fifteen years represented the Patterson line in New England, with a branch office in Boston; B. W. McIntosh, who for eleven years served the Patterson Company on the Pacific Coast and was there regarded as the dean of their sales force; Mr. Harris, who served about the same length of time and held a similar position in the Chicago territory; J. W. Timberlake, representative in Pennsylvania and New Jersey for about eight years; W. H. O'Keefe, who covered Tennessee, the Gulf states, and E. R. Patrick, who made his headquarters at Kansas City and traveled Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. All of these salesmen are regarded as "top-notchers" in their line and are well-known and well-liked in their fields.

About the only one of the old Patterson sales organization to remain is W. W. Moss, the New York City repre-

Heavy Hail Damage in Pennsylvania

York County Tobacco Farmers Sustain $50,000 Loss on Crops
From Severe Storm

NOT since tobacco has been grown in York County have farmers sustained such a great loss to the crop as was experienced on Saturday afternoon, September 7th, when a severe hail storm wrought havoc, causing at the least $50,000 worth of damage. A prominent tobacco buyer estimates that a loss of fully $30,000 will be sustained by the farmers in Druck Valley and Smyser's Valley.

This locality is the best tobacco section in the county, and many of the farmers have made the assertion that they will not trouble to harvest the crop, as it is not worth the while. The hail was so large and fell in such quantities that the leaves were stripped clean, only the bare stems standing up to show where the plant had been.

In many respects the storm showed peculiarities, for while one field was practically cut to pieces, probably a short distance away another field was barely touched by hail.

HOW TO HELP THE DEALER HELP HIMSELF

Much Wasted Money and Energy of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturer—Improved Methods of Store Keeping and Accounting the Real Need

By James M. Fordyce

FROM all sides nowadays one hears the cry of the cigar manufacturer, "How long will this continue? How much must I do before the retailer and jobber are satisfied?"

Looking at it from a purely disinterested standpoint one is impressed with the enormous outlay now appropriated by cigar and tobacco manufacturers upon introducing any new goods or on exploiting old brands. Is this not being overdone? Will it not go on until a number cannot stand the pace and must drop out?

Take a cigar manufacturer for instance. He introduces a new brand. First there is a heavy outlay for labels, bands and the other preliminaries. Then if he wants to get his goods well distributed among the really worth-while retailers and jobbers he does some extensive advertising, both in the trade papers and the dailies. To reach the consumer he must again reach into his pocket and put out more money for bill posters, expensive signs, perhaps also some electric sign advertising. He puts it up to the wholesaler, induces him to take on his goods, promises to scatter signs around the town and sends a missionary to assist the jobber to popularize the cigars or cigarettes or tobacco. He next tackles the retailer. We will not go into any detailed description of the various methods now in vogue to induce this important link in the chain to do his part, but it is sufficient to say that in their endeavors to reach him many manufacturers are going the limit, particularly in the gratis deals, which are ridiculous not to say suicidal in many cases.

So between the money needed for advertising, for bill posters, expensive signs, premiums, high salaried missionaries, and the thousand and one other incidentals necessary to the successful introduction of new brands, the manufacturer is in many cases hard put to figure it out just where he is going to get off. It is doubtful whether the manufacturer is earning a fair dividend on his capital—or whether he is only in business nowadays for the fun of it.

A certain retailer in a Western town was persuaded by a big manufacturer, a national advertiser, to stock up heavily on his cigars. This dealer carried a fairly good line at the time, but was prevailed upon to sell the goods because of the window cards and displays, and upon the promise of a campaign in the newspapers of the city to help push the cigars. On the strength of these inducements the dealer stocked up heavily on long time credit.

The advertising was good, up-to-date methods were used, methods which had been in practice in other places and had made good, and everything went lovely for a time. But before the bills came due, the dealer found himself financially embarrassed. Being unable to get further credit or to borrow from his bank, he went broke.

Now here was a case of a manufacturer doing everything within reason to assist the retailer in distributing his products—and much perhaps which was beyond reason. He had co-operated with him in every way possible and had gone to a heavy expense. In spite of this the dealer had failed to make good and the manufacturer had come out a heavy loser.

It wasn't window displays, free advertising, nor demonstrations, however, which this dealer needed most. What he needed was better methods of knowing the condition of his business. He needed to be educated into being a merchant who knew just how he stood in his business each day, how to sell goods, how to exploit them—not the man who is merely a distributor of other men's products.

Another retailer, who was doing a fair business, but was far from satisfied with his progress, got to thinking about his business and of the reason for his poor progress in comparison with a number of his strongest competitors. He didn't try to attribute it to conditions of the trade, nor to luck, as so many merchants do at times. He knew there was something radically wrong.

He got as far as finding out that he knew little or nothing about his store—or just how he stood.

This retailer handled the goods of a large national advertiser. He knew that this firm was up-to-date or they would never have attained the position they then held in the business world. After sounding a salesman of this house he got in touch with the head of the establishment which resulted in the manufacturer sending him one of his expert accountants, who assisted the dealer in every way possible and installed an entirely new system. They got the system into operation at last, and the dealer had accounts that did account.

Dealers are not incompetent as a class. On the contrary most of them are shrewd, sensible, able fellows. The trouble is that they don't know how to apply their efforts. They waste their energy. They work in a circle and never get anywhere—except in a rut.

If the manufacturers and wholesalers would give the dealer a real business service, they would get more co-operation from him. He would push their goods with all his might and he would be in a better position to push them. Dealers do not need tailor-made window displays, premium inducements and all the various methods practiced so much nowadays as they need co-operation in pushing the goods. In other words they need to be educated into doing the thousand and one things which the manufacturer thinks it incumbent upon himself to carry through.

Why don't the manufacturers' association either as a national organization or as state or district organizations maintain some sort of service department to educate the dealer into helping to find himself—to educate him to a point where he is not only a small link in the chain, but where he is a strong link and can do his part.

Will not a system of educating the retailer to find himself do a great deal toward solving the great problem now before the cigar manufacturer? Will not this do away with the immense amount of money now expended on signs, missionaries, window display material, premium inducements and the score or more other methods the manufacturer is now using to get rid of his loose change?

What do you think about it, Mr. Manufacturer?

Over 17 Per Cent. Increase in Tobacco Acreage

THE Agricultural Department at Washington reports the United States tobacco crop on September 1, as being 99.4 per cent of the average condition of the same date of recent years.

The acreage of tobacco this year, according to the latest figures, is 1,194,200, representing an increase of 17.9 per cent. over 1911 acreage. The estimated yield this year will be 817.1 pounds per acre, compared with 893.7 in 1911 and 828 pounds per acre in 1906. The total production of tobacco this year has been estimated at 976,000,000 pounds, compared with 995,000,000 pounds in 1911.

Use Distinctive Stationery

A PROPOS an article which recently appeared in these columns calling attention to the poor business stationery now in use by many cigar firms, we wish to again emphasize this phase of business. Much of the correspondence now reaching this office is poor in every sense of the term—poor paper, inferior printing, badly written and, we regret to say, in most instances makes a bad impression indeed.

No one realizes it more keenly than a hustling newspaper scribe how valuable time is to many an overworked tobacco man, whether he be retailer, jobber, leaf dealer or manufacturer. But that does not excuse him from putting it up to the printer, and telling him that he wishes something good—stationery which is head and shoulders above the ordinary run in universal use.

As an example of a letter head, which is original and one which we take pleasure in reproducing, we illustrate one recently received in "The Tobacco World" office. This is printed in two colors, a dark brown and dark red on India tint (pale yellow) paper, and is a good instance of up-to-date typographical work. The cut is centered at the top of the sheet.

The next time you need more stationery, and feel that you can use another style for it, call in the printer, ask him what he can do, put it up to him, and if he is not a "dead one," but one who is alive to the interests of his patrons, your new stationery will be an improvement over old, no matter how good that may have been at one time.

The fellows that pull together get the best results. No good comes from pigheadedness. Get on the right side. That side is easily decided. It's the side that shows the store's interest. All arguments should be settled on that basis. The bigger and broader and better natured the man, the quicker he is to see that point. There is a certain grocery store in Asbury Park, where the pull-together spirit is beautifully and profitably exemplified. The fellows act like brothers. There's no quarreling; no jealousy. Same conditions may exist in your store.

Suppose you paste this paragraph on a piece of cardboard and tack it up somewhere in the rear—away from the general public eye.

Neglecting Small Bills

THAT many persons neglect the prompt payment of small bills is true, but few realize the suffering that is caused thereby. This is especially the case at the vacation and holiday seasons. As the summer approaches, people make ready to go away for trips of various duration, and often either forget to pay small accounts or else neglect them intentionally, thinking that the money may be needed for their own expenses while away; and, after all, the amount is too small to inconvenience their creditors, so they say to themselves. It is surprising that many are saddened by those who selfishly defraud others in so thoughtless a way. It may seem hard to use the word, but it fits the case well; for those who are generous before they are just use other people's money which they have no right to do. Those who use their position to neglect small bills are entitled to be termed tyrants, for they would not delay the payment of bills to larger creditors—they would thereby risk suits to enforce payment; but the minor creditors, who are afraid to lose custom, must be humble and wait the convenience of patrons for payment. These people who procrastinate in meeting their financial obligations are not really bad at heart; they are thoughtless, and something should be done to cause a moment of thought and give them a correct idea of their duty.

Grievances to Be Aired At Baltimore Convention
Delegates to Cigar Makers' Union to Discuss Working Problems—
Three Weeks' Session Likely

BALTIMORE, MD., September 14.

DELEGATES to the first convention in sixteen years of the Cigarmakers' International Union, are arriving in this city from all parts of the country. The convention will begin in Maennerchor Hall, Monday, September 16, and it is likely that the sessions will last for three weeks.

George W. Perkins, international president, is on the ground, and when interviewed by "The Tobacco World," stated that he expected the convention to develop a very lively discussion of some important trade matters, and he also looked for a good representation of delegates from all sections of the country.

"I anticipate," he said, "that this will be one of the most interesting conventions we have ever held."

From other sources, it was learned that a number of delegates are coming prepared to force some of their grievances before the convention and, unless cooler heads prevail, some radical and menacing action affecting the cigar manufacturers is likely to be taken.

President Perkins is just about finishing his report, which he will submit at the opening of the convention.

'Frisco Retailers Launch New Association

SAN FRANCISCO, September 9.

At a meeting of a number of prominent retailers, held in Eagles Hall, a new organization was launched under the name of the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association. The following officers were elected: Dan P. Carter, president; Robert Donahue, vice-president; A. A. Knox, second vice-president; Fred N. Prince, secretary and treasurer, and James Byrne, financial secretary.

The work of increasing the membership will be started at once under the direction of President Carter.

Fire in Winston-Salem Factory District

Fire in the factory district of Winston-Salem several weeks ago for a time seriously threatened that section of the city. The loss was estimated at $100,000 largely covered by insurance. The principal damage was sustained by the Ogburn-Hill Company, The Gorrell Tobacco Company and the J. G. Flint Tobacco Company, all tobacco manufacturers or leaf tobacco dealers.

Thaddeus Graves, New England Grower, Dead
One of Best Known Tobacco Men Down East, Succumbs
At Age of 77

THADDEUS GRAVES, former president of the New England Tobacco Growers' Association, and one of the best known tobacco growers in New England, died at his home in Hatfield, Mass., September 11th, at the age of 77.

For nearly half a century Mr. Graves has been engaged in tobacco farming having relinquished his law practice in New York because of his health. He began the culture of tobacco at an early age and soon became one of New England's prominent and most successful growers. He served six terms as president of the New England Association. In 1892, the banner year in the history of the New England tobacco growing, Mr. Graves was accredited with raising the most profitable crop in the Connecticut valley.

He was regarded as an expert in tobacco growing and also in tobacco matters and has always been a staunch advocate of high tariff on wrapper tobacco. Frequently he was called for expert testimony by the government.

Liggett & Myers to Open Factory in New York

LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO COMPANY have just leased a six story and basement building, Seventh Avenue and Sixteenth Street, New York City, which they will convert into a cigarette manufacturing plant. The main office of this company is located in St. Louis, and it has other branch factories in Richmond, Va., Durham, N. C., New Orleans, La., and San Francisco, Cal.

The rapid growth in the brand of "Fatima," "Piedmont," "Clix" and other brands of cigarettes manufactured by this company, has necessitated the quick enlargement of their facilities. It is understood that the company proposes to establish a distributing depot at their new New York factory, where, in addition to cigarettes, they will carry a big stock of plug and smoking tobacco for the convenience of patrons in the Metropolitan territory.

A large tobacco barn owned by Charles Austin, of Springfield, Mass., was destroyed about ten days ago in that town. The loss was placed at $3500. The shed contained a quantity of fine quality tobacco.

The Nelson Cigar Company, of Denver, which recently sustained a heavy loss in the floods in that city, is now located at Nineteenth and Welton Streets. They are now campaigning on their well known "Mile High" cigars, for which brand they predict a bright future.

representative, who will have charge of a special campaign on "Lucky Strike" roll-cut tobacco. It will be remembered that Captain John Landstreet retired as sales manager of the Patterson Company several months ago to engage in the spring water business in Virginia.

These men constitute what is regarded as the finest tobacco sales organization in the United States. Most of the men are of the highest type and experience.

While no official statement has been issued by the Patterson Company explaining this move, it is said to indicate that the company intends inaugurating a new sales policy, which finds its basis in publicity rather than in personality, and calls for utilizing signs, window work and newspapers and a few men of the canvasser type, rather than the experienced salesman, the day for whom seems to be rapidly passing.

ON THE ROAD

One of New York's Best

One of the best known salesmen around New York, and one who has served his time in that calling from A to Z, is William Catlin, a representative of the old established firm of T. J. Dunn & Co.

WM. CATLIN

Mr. Catlin has been a member of the traveling fraternity for more than twenty-four years, and can give many other men in his line of work pointers on the art of salesmanship. He has been with T. J. Dunn & Co. for the past seven years and has earned a reputation for square dealing, aggressive and up-to-date methods of business, and, for the crowning climax of every good salesman, a reputation as an order getter. He covers New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey for his firm and takes occasional trips further South.

While Mr. Catlin is proud of his record in business life, he is equally proud of his wife and two children who live with him at their cosy home in Flatbush.

We extend our greetings to one of the best and trust he will remain so for many years.

William Frisch, who has been connected with A. Santella & Co. for some time, is now representing Gans Brothers, of New York, and will work on their "William the Fourth" and "Gansbro" cigars. Mr. Frisch has a host of friends in New York, who wish him success in his new venture.

Gordon Bailey, of the John Surbrug Company, is now working in Detroit, Mich., pushing "Milo" cigarettes. He has had a number of attractive window displays around town and says he will not be satisfied until every worthwhile stand in that city is carrying "Milos."

Steve Herz, the popular representative in New England of Bustillo Bros. & Diez, has been covering that region with great success lately. Mr. Herz expects soon to take a short time off from his strenuous duties to become a benedict.

A. A. Ruen, of the Patterson Tobacco Company, of Richmond, Va., is working on "Tuxedo" tobacco in Detroit with splendid results. He has paid special attention to a number of window displays around that town in this brand.

Frank Maisonville, formerly connected with Spaulding & Merrick, of Chicago, is now assisting Harry W. Watson & Co., of Detroit, in the capacity of salesman.

Tex Hamilton, a representative of the P. Lorillard Company in Detroit, has been transferred to Philadelphia, which will be his headquarters hereafter.

Edward Lichtig, Detroit representative for the Philip Morris cigarette, is again back at his desk in that city after a three weeks' trip to Indianapolis. He expects to leave for Cincinnati in a few days.

Rain Interferes With Business, Being Heaviest Downpour in Twenty Years—News From the Different Factories

TAMPA, September 11.

IT has been raining steadily here for four days, with the biggest continuous downpour in twenty years. The suburbs are flooded, and the damage to date has been placed at $300,000. The rain will probably do more damage before it abates, but at this writing there has been none sustained by the cigar-manufacturing firms. Unless it soon stops the stocks will be too damp to work.

Everyone, as usual, took a day off on Labor Day. The cigar factories were not running with their full complement of hands, a number of them closing up altogether. The parade of workers was a fairly large one, the cigarmakers as usual taking a leading part. There were about 4,000 men in line.

The manufacturers are all busy as far as can be seen. If there are any exceptions, we have not noticed them. The volume of business is increasing every day and there is no doubt that the fall season will be a good one. One thing which is troubling the factories is the scarcity of hands. There are cigarmakers to be had, or as one factory man put it, "alleged cigarmakers," but expert workers are a rarity. A number of factories are trying to secure men from Cuba, but have not had any great success.

V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., are busy at present filling orders for all sizes, although the finer sizes have more call now than usual.

Calls to the larger factories show them all busy. The Berriman plant is one of the busiest, and so is the Sanchez & Haya establishment.

Sanchez & Haya report having secured an unusually fine assortment of tobacco for their goods, the best in years, and are well pleased with the shipments already received. Simon Gonzalez, of the firm, has been in Tampa, and is soon leaving for Spain, where he will visit his friends and relatives.

Things at the "Charles the Great" factory are moving along in great shape. Don Salvador Rodriguez is supervising operations, which should insure everything going along right. There is no occasion for commenting upon the hustle around this establishment, for one finds it almost always the same. The people who smoke the "Charles the Great" are the kind who smoke it the same the year around, so the trade never changes to any extent.

B. J. Mays, the office manager of Cuesta, Rey & Co., has gone for a two weeks' vacation. He has gone to Florida.

Odet Grillon, the veteran customs house storekeeper, has resigned after a service of nineteen years. Mr. Grillon has received a letter from Collector M. B. MacFarlane, speaking highly of his services and expressing regret at his resignation.

Frank H. Scoby, a district sales manager in New England for the Melachrino Company, has succeeded Mr. Fishack, who was transferred to southern territory. Mr. Scoby will have charge of Massachusetts and most of New England.

H. Upmann, of the well known clear Havana cigar house, was a recent visitor in the Pacific Coast cities with his general representative, Charles Landau. Mr. Upmann expects to make an extensive tour through western Canada before his return to the Havana factory.

Joe Landfeld, the popular representative of Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., of Philadelphia, is working an active campaign in Chicago on the "William Penn" cigar.

First Fall Inscription Not Very Lively

At the first fall inscription held at Amsterdam on September 13th the American buyers took about 600 bales. The tobacco did not appear to attract them and as a result they bought lightly.

Among the American firms purchasing leaf were: H. Duys & Co., 300 bales; Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, 100 bales; L. Schmid & Co., 200 bales.

I HAVE heard of cigars that "soothed the nerves and knit up the ravelled sleeve of care," but the "Atwar" cigar does this and more. It collects bills.

The "Atwar" is made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipsecomb, of Philadelphia, and is distributed exclusively by Terry & Duncan. It is a fine piece of goods, but I did not know its true merit 'till I learned of the following incident:

It appears that an insurance man, a personal friend of Mr. Luckett, bought his first "Atwar" the other day, and with two in his pocket he called to collect a delinquent account from a fellow insurance man. The bill was $83.76, and the debtor disavowed the bill, saying that he did not owe it and did not intend to pay it. "Very well," said the insurance collector, "I'll sue you for it, but before I bring suit I want you to think the matter over carefully and give me your final answer." As he departed, he pulled out an "Atwar" cigar, saying, "Here is a new cigar which I just bought today. It is called the 'At War.' Smoke this and think over what a law suit means and then let me know whether you want war or peace. I'm going to get the money."

So saying the insurance collector departed leaving the debtor smoking his "Atwar" cigar.

A few hours later the collector happened to pass the door of the man who owed the money and was greeted with "Hello! Come in here a minute; I have been smoking that cigar you gave me and thinking over whether I want to fight you or not, and I have concluded that any one who would give me such a good cigar ought to be treated right. Just wait a moment and I'll write you that check."

Needless to say the insurance collector is now a steady smoker of "Atwars."

He wondered miserably why such a fate should have lain in wait for him. He felt that it was out of proportion; that he did not deserve it; that it was more than a just retribution for any wrongdoing of his own.

The longer he thought of it the greater grew his wretchedness. And it was so commonplace, almost fatuous! He felt so futile. With all the culture of centuries of civilization, he was more helpless than the veriest savage. His aeons-dead barbaric ancestors could have confronted—had confronted—some such problem and solved it with primeval ingenuity. His civilization bound him hand and foot. He was helpless in the face of an archaic triumph.

At this thought the self-control gave way. "X—X?—X 7#?—" he shrieked to the listening forest. "The dumbest aborigine can start a conflagration, even if he has forgotten his match box, but I can't light my cigar!"

I noticed an interesting account in a newspaper recently, of conditions during the Civil War in Louisville, Ky., written by a private soldier. Among other matters he spoke of the scarcity of tobacco. He said:

"Most of the recruits had lots of money, while we old vets had only our $13 per month to get along on, and we did not lay awake nights because of a guilty conscience whenever an opportunity arose for us to get the better of these bounty jumpers.

"I invested $10 of my share of this money in 'Navy' tobacco, which I took down to Corwin later, to Company B, and gave it to the boys. They were then paying $2.50 per pound for this tobacco at the sutlers. I gave my tent mate, Twain Marcella, of Ansonia, a one-pound plug and he was the happiest man in the regiment, as he had not had a bite of tobacco for over two weeks. I did not at the time use tobacco, but those who did appeared to feel very lonesome when they were deprived of it, and would spend their last cent for a taste of it. The sutlers took advantage of this and charged the boys about three times what it was worth, but it is only fair to say that the boys generally got even, as to cheat a sutler was not looked upon as being a very heinous crime."

"I'll soon be able to show you some of those lemon pipes," said a tobacconist the other day, to a regular patron of the place. "More properly, they are lemon-skin pipes. They are a fad in London now, and I've sent for some. They are made of the rind of a lemon, carefully dried, in the proper shape and lined with fine clay.

"The best of them, indeed, have meerschchaum linings, the rind being coaxed around it before it has dried out. They say these pipes are sweeter than any other, and that those who have smoked them once will use no other. In London such a pipe is called a 'lembash.'"

Wife—"So you really imagine smoking is beneficial to you."

Husband—"Imagine? I know it is. Your mother leaves the room every time I light my pipe."

I saw two cigar men dining the other day who asked for a certain two for a quarter brand. Instead, the waiter handed them the three for a quarter size, expecting to drop the odd cigar in his jeans. Nothin' doin'. The mistake was rectified and the tray pusher hung around looking for a tip. One of the cigar salesmen, noticing the waiter's apparent anxiety, told him to go on the river and get tipped by a motor boat. Not bad. This is a practice that is worked daily, and more smokers should demand what they order and pay for.

One of the notable features of the statistics of the tobacco industry for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, has been the increase in the quantity of manufactured tobacco. At first glance, the increase of more than 2,000,000,000 in cigarettes looks to be of overshadowing importance, and as a matter of fact it is, but the gain in smoking tobacco in that period should not be overlooked because of its significance.

The figures for 1912 show the production of 392,785,146 pounds, as against 380,794,673 pounds in 1911—a clean gain of 12,990,473 pounds—which is three times as many pounds of tobacco as there was a gain in the number of individual cigars.

The gain in manufactured tobacco is primarily in smoking tobacco and not in plug nor chewing. This is due in a large measure to the educational advertising that has been used during the past year, and by some of the leading tobacco manufacturers. This publicity campaign has stimulated the demand for smoking tobacco, especially in the popular-priced packages and has converted many smokers, heretofore exclusive users of cigars or cigarettes, to the virtues of pipe smoking, and the rolling of their own cigarettes.

Besides the educational advertising, there have been other contributing causes which have led many to use the pipe this year, notably the business depression in many sections of the country and a lack of the wherewithal to buy the usual package of cigarettes or box of cigars. This, no doubt, has been one of the big factors in the situation, but by no means been the predominant one.

The increased use of smoking tobacco has also had a very noticeable effect in the increase of the manufacture and sale of pipes. While we have no figures at hand to indicate the growth of the pipe industry, we are certain that it has kept pace with the growth in the use of smoking tobaccos.

The deduction that the retailer should draw from this increase is that he should devote more time and attention than ever before to his smoking-tobacco department, since in that end lies a great opportunity for the development of his business.

When the Census Department sent out its first lot of forms to gather statistics on stemmed and unstemmed tobacco, as provided by the Cantrill law, many cigar manufacturers and leaf dealers were taken by surprise. In fact, many of them were entirely ignorant that such a law had been passed, and this in spite of the fact that "The Tobacco World" and other leading trade papers had printed the bill and all the news relating to it while it was pending in Congress.

The circulars had scarcely reached the trade when this office was called upon by dealers and manufacturers, asking for information and assistance in making out their reports to the Government. The Editor of "The Tobacco World" immediately wrote to Director of the Census Durand and explained the dilemma of the manufacturers and dealers and asked for light on certain questions. Mr. Durand's reply is printed in full elsewhere in this issue. It will, no doubt, clear up many hazv points.

As to the merits of the law itself, it is too early to pass judgment, but we believe that many loop holes will be discovered, which it will be necessary to stop up with amendments. Besides, the manufacturers and leaf dealers, who are jealous of the innermost secrets of their business, will be anxious lest their reports of tobacco on hand, may be used to their disadvantage.

Certain it is, that the Government intends to enforce the new law, dating the first reports from October 1, and manufacturers and dealers had better take immediate steps to comply with the new provisions and fight out the objectionable features later.

The decision of a chain-store drug company, with headquarters in New York, to cut loose from its alliance with a company operating a chain of cigar stands, and to hereafter buy and sell brands which the public demand is significant.

The scheme to control the cigar business in certain drug stores has been an experiment that has been looked upon with much apprehension by independent manufacturers in cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos. These stands have been selling almost exclusively cigars manufactured under the private brand of the chain company and while business has grown from time to time, it was found impossible to confine the stock entirely to brands of this factory.

No favorites, by reason of corporate affiliations are to be played in the future, but the goods are to be sold entirely on their merits, and only those lines for which there is a demand will be handled. This is one of the first evidences throwing open a wider market for the cigar manufacturers and as such is full of hope and promise.

W. W. St. John Secures New Location

W. W. St. John, the prominent retailer who was compelled to remove from his stand at Madison Avenue and 22nd Street, when it was leased by the United Cigar Stores Company at a larger rental, has leased the store at 26 East 42nd Street, where he will move about October first. The new store has a floor space of 14 by 22 feet.

Mr. S. Hamberger, of Hamberger Bros. & Co., the Havana tobacco importing house, sailed for Havana on Saturday, August 31st, where he will look over the market with a view of buying leaf for his house.

Salesmen's Association to Use New Scheme

THE Independent Tobacco Salesmen's Association met in the Hotel Marie Antoinette on Friday, September 6th, and decided upon an entire change of policy in their dealings with their employers. The plan, which has not as yet been adopted, will consist of the appointment of a committee or board which will assist salesmen to get in touch with manufacturers who desire their services, and the board will also help the manufacturer to get the particulars regarding any salesman who wishes to connect himself with the firm.

This scheme should assist both the salesman and the employer, and judging by the reception it received, will be adopted at the next meeting. The association is also considering the advisability of holding two meetings a month, instead of one, as heretofore. The plan is to transact business at each alternate meeting and to have a general good time at the other.

The following officers were nominated for the ensuing year: Oscar Veit, for president; William Frisch, for secretary; Sig. Weil, treasurer; Jesse Powell, vice-president. The Board of Directors also includes Joseph Dublin, Albert Scholz, Sydney Powell, C. E. Bernd and W. H. Norden. The election will take place in October.

Riker-Hegeman Stores Discontinue Brands

Considerable surprise was manifested recently when it was learned that the Riker-Hegeman Drug Stores Company had withdrawn its patronage from the National Cigar Stands Company. This withdrawal has not been the result of a hasty determination, but has come after a thorough weighing pro and con of the advantages to be gained by so doing. The Riker-Hegeman Company has decided that by breaking away from the National Cigar Stores Company that it will have a wider scope for its business than ever before, thereby enabling them to operate on broader and more extensive plans.

A look at cigar cases and show windows will give one an idea of what the company intends doing in the future. House brands consisting of clear Havanas and domestic goods, made at the Jaynes factory in Boston, will be featured as well as a number of other high-class clear Havana brands including "Jose Vila," "Optimo," "Kings Club" and others.

J. Wald has taken over the cigar and stationery store at 2861 Eighth Avenue which was formerly owned by Morris Cohen.

New York City Items

Dave Eschmendis, of the Cardenas Co., left on Saturday, 7th inst., for Newport News, Virginia. He will be gone for about two weeks, and will make a number of stops on the way back, at trade centers on behalf of the "Castenada" cigars.

Joseph A. Cervieri, a confectioner and cigar dealer of Suffern, New York, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are placed at $10,000, with assets of $5,500.

Arthur Bettner, 17 South Avenue, Rochester, N. Y., has disposed of his cigar store to Arthur Thompson.

B. Blumenthal has opened a new and up-to-date cigar store at 1757 Southern Boulevard.

R. Peck, who already has a stand at Seventh Avenue and 117th Street, recently opened another at 3570 Broadway, where he is carrying a complete line of smokers' requisites.

L. H. Fisher, formerly of Fisher y Glecia, manufacturers of cigars at 122 Livingston Street, is now located at 367 Fulton Street, where he carries on a business in equipment for cigar stores, under the name of the Fisher Equipment Company. Mr. Glecia is conducting the business of the Danton Cigar Company, at 122 Livingston Street, Brooklyn.

Albert Terbuin, a cigar dealer of Brooklyn, has purchased the cigar stand in the Silversmith Building, 17 Maiden Lane, New York, which has been operated by William P. Dodd. Mr. Dodd expects to shortly travel for one of the big cigar manufacturers.

The schedule in bankruptcy of John J. O'Connor, the former cigar manufacturer at 202 E. 27th Street, New York, was filed in the United States Circuit Court, on September 9th. It shows liabilities, $33,137, of which $26,000 secure, and assets of $10,203. Assets comprise $1,000 in stock, $1,700 in machinery and book accounts of $5,000.

A cigar war is now on in Waterbury, Conn. As a result of the reductions smokers are now able to get three tenths cigars for twenty cents, and at some stores four tenths for a quarter. Some of the stores in the war are the United, Rikers, Apothecaries Hall and the Brown drug stores. Much window space is being devoted to advertising the cut throat bargains.

E. M. Loeffler, manager of the La Rosa Cigar Factory Manufacturing Company, 445 Broome Street, made a brief trip to Chicago last week, looking to the introduction of "La Rosa" Manila cigars.

The Interstate Tobacco Company, 1397-1399 Avenue A, have increased their capital stock from $1,000 to $50,000. They are doing a large business at present and call the attention of the trade to the fact that they are always in the market for cuttings, scraps, siftings and dust, for which they pay promptly.

P. A. Becker, 132 Cumberland Street, manufacturer of humidors and other patented cigar appliances, reports a very thriving business.

F. Francisco and Mr. Duttleson, representatives of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, were recent visitors on the Denver trade, looking up their many distributors. Mr. Francisco, who has a wide acquaintance throughout Colorado, has turned over this territory to Mr. Duttleson, and will hereafter have charge only of the region east of Chicago.

Albert Zielsing, who is conducting several cigar stores in New York City, has opened another at 589 Ninth Avenue. This is a first class location, and Mr. Zielsing states that it will be one of the best stores in that locality, both in appointments and in stock. His headquarters are now at his stand in the S. K. James Drug Store, Forty-sixth Street and Broadway.

"La Rosa," a Leading Manila Smoke

EVERY one who is at all in touch with the trade will remember the unfavorable reception the Manila cigar first met in this country as compared with the domestic and Cuban goods. Taking this question up thoroughly and noting the reasons for this condition of affairs, the La Rosa Cigar and Cigarette Factory of Manila discovered that the dissatisfaction on the part of the American smokers was due to the fact that too little attention was paid to the proper curing of the tobacco, almost none to the blending nor to proper workmanship.

This firm is said to be the only factory in Manila under American management. In 1910 a reorganization of the concern took place and their goods are now among the best coming out of the Philippines. They manufacture three grades of cigars, which retail at five cents, ten cents and two for a quarter. The New York office of the firm is at 445 Broome Street.

Salvation Match Sales Company Incorporates

A charter of incorporation has been issued to the Salvation Match Sales Co., with headquarters at Passaic, New Jersey, who intend to manufacture matches and match selling devices.

The new concern has a capitalization of $100,000 and the incorporators are A. S. Corbin, Edward S. Sackett and Robert B. Kent.

Committee to Probe Tobacco Customs

A special committee appointed by Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, to investigate and improve the methods of appraising imported tobacco, will shortly make a tour of the United States starting at the Pacific Coast and returning through the South, covering such important points as Tampa, Key West and New Orleans. Mr. Halstead, Chief of the Customs Divisions, recently investigated conditions at Detroit and Chicago and reported them quite satisfactory.

Dates for Fall Inscription

The dates for the fall inscriptions of Sumatra tobacco in Amsterdam are as follows: September 13th and 20th and October 11th and 18th. In Rotterdam, the only inscription announced is for October 5th.

"Pure Gold" Man Visits Philadelphia

TR. DAILY, chairman and general manager of the Pure Gold Tobacco Company, of Greeneville, Tenn., which company has succeeded the Merchants' Tobacco Manufacturing Company, and manufacture the one-ounce granulated smoking tobacco "Pure Gold," was in Philadelphia during the past week on business. Mr. Daily states that the sale of "Pure Gold" is increasing at a surprising rate wherever it has been introduced, stating that the merit alone has done this and not missionary work and extensive advertising.

On the Pacific Coast, where "Pure Gold" has obtained a strong foothold, there is scarcely a retail or jobbing house that is not selling this brand. In other sections of the country where the goods have been placed, repeat orders tell the tale of its success.

Mr. Daily has in contemplation an unique sales scheme which he is working out and which he hopes to announce in the near future. It promises to be different from anything ever proposed in the tobacco trade and will be well worth the watching.

Theobald & Oppenheimer Opening Reading Factory Will be Twelfth Plant For This Concern — To Employ About 200 Hands

THEOBALD & OPPENHEIMER COMPANY has leased from Samuel D. Diebert, of Reading, the factory at the corner of Washington and Thorn Streets, that city, for a term of years. After a number of alterations, the factory will be opened with a force of from 150 to 200 hands. The building is admirably suited for a cigar manufacturing plant. It is three stories in height and should the business warrant it Theobald & Oppenheimer will, before long, lease the adjoining property.

They are now operating eleven factories and the Reading plant will make the twelfth. They have two in Philadelphia, one each in Quakertown, Trumbauersville, Milford Square, Telford, Pottstown, Pennsburg, Shelly, Coatesville and Perkasio. Their business is enormous and is constantly growing. The T. & O. brands are especially strong in the Middle and Far West. It has not yet been definitely decided, but the Reading factory will probably manufacture nickel brands.

The liabilities of the firm are said to be about $8,000 with assets of $750.

Ed Marshall, the Pacific Coast representative of Sig. C. Mayer & Company, of this city, is now opening up a campaign in Seattle after a long stay in Los Angeles and San Francisco. He is working on the "Rey Oma."

Cincinnati Manufacturers Advertise for Cigar Makers

Large Increase in First Ohio District for August—George A. Voige Company Featuring, "Cubalettes," S. R. Moss Brand

CINCINNATI, September 11.

MANY of the local cigar manufacturers are advertising in the daily press for cigar rollers and other factory hands, which is a sure indication of accumulating orders.

The Campbell Cigar Company, of Akron, Ohio, was incorporated at Columbus a few days ago by John T. Campbell, Thomas W. Quirk, E. W. Brouse, L. H. Smith and L. J. Oswald. The concern will do a wholesale and retail cigar and tobacco business, and it is understood that a number of former employes of large tobacco corporations will be interested in it.

The internal revenue collections in the First Ohio District for August were the largest thus far this year, amounting to $300,045.94. The cigar production was 18,308,500, being an increase over the corresponding month of 1911 of 271,700, or about two per cent. The smoking and chewing tobacco output was 3,063,956 pounds, a decrease of 165,612 pounds, or five per cent.

The George A. Voige Cigar Company is featuring "Cubalettes" cigars, which are of triangular shape, packed five in a bundle, which retails at twenty-five cents. The brand is manufactured by S. R. Moss & Co., of Lancaster, Pa. Another excellent seller with the Voige Company is the "Sales Agent," which is made of Havana clippings.

Sales in the local burley tobacco market were held on two days only last week, when 736 hogsheads were sold at an average of $9.10 per 100 pounds, as against $8.56 for 768 hogsheads the previous week and $7.12 for 500 hogsheads the corresponding week last year. Trashes, lugs and colory leaf were in good request, while bright red grades, selling at over 10 cents, were firm. Rejections totalled twenty-three per cent. of the offerings.

The cigar leaf market on Saturday disposed of only nineteen cases, all being seed of rather low quality. An average of $4.81 was obtained.

Isaac Keilson, the cigar jobber of 1519 Central Avenue, reports business as being excellent and predicts a busy fall season for the local trade.

Julius Brinkman, city salesman for the Pinkerton Tobacco Company, met with a painful accident last week, when he slipped and broke his knee-cap. He will be confined to his home for at least a month.

W. H. Leonard, local representative of the Climax plug department of the P. Lorillard Company, has just returned from a successful business trip to Dayton and Springfield, Ohio, and reports Climax, Union Leader and the other brands made by his concern to be enjoying a good sale in that section.

"El Dallo" for Dusel & Goodloe

Philadelphia House Takes on Popular Baltimore-Made Cigar—Will Also Push "Earl Marshall"

DUSEL & GOODLOE, the prominent Philadelphia wholesalers, have taken on the "El Dallo" cigar of Wertheimer Bros., of Baltimore, and will soon open up a wide campaign in that city and vicinity on these popular goods. The first shipment of the cigars arrived in that city last week and with them was also sent a fine assortment of window cards and hangers. The "El Dallo" has taken a strong hold on thinking smokers and is making great headway wherever it has been placed. The wrapper which is put around each cigar, prevents anyone handling the smoke before it reaches the consumer and the fact that it costs no more than bands is strongly dwelt upon by the makers in pushing these goods.

Dusel & Goodloe have also received another cigar from Wertheimer Brothers which is manufactured for them alone. This is styled the "Earl Marshall" and like the "El Dallo" retails at five cents. It is also a wrapped cigar. The makers sent some attractive advertising material with this smoke also, which should greatly assist in putting it before the eyes of the consumer.

Delavina Company Celebrates "44" Anniversary

The Delavina Cigar Company, of Portland, Me., is celebrating their first anniversary on taking on the "44" cigar of the 44 Cigar Company, of Philadelphia, by opening up a campaign in that city on the brand. They claim that the sales of the cigar have been enormous. They are now carrying retail advertisements in the Portland dailies.

The Rothenberg & Schloss Co., of Denver, Colo., is working a strenuous campaign in that city on the "Charles Denby" cigars, for which nickel brand they are the distributors. They have had some very beautiful window displays all over that city on this popular brand.

The Nave-McCord Grocery Company, of Denver, may soon be compelled to change their quarters as this progressive firm has been doing such a large business that they are hard put to take care of their customers in a way satisfactory to themselves.

The Cordove Cigar Company, leading wholesalers of Denver, report a shortage in many of their brands of cigars. Many of their goods are manufactured for them by Seidenberg & Co., who are hard put to supply the demand for the Cordove brands in Denver.

Some fine window displays of the "San Felice" cigar, made by the Deisel-Wemmer Company, of Lima, Ohio, are being shown in Denver. This cigar is being jobbed in that city by the Niles & Moser Cigar Co.

"Henry the Fourth" Brand for Michalitschke Bros.

An announcement of considerable interest is to the effect that Michalitschke Bros. & Co., of San Francisco, who have for many years had the distribution in the San Francisco territory of the "Alexander Humboldt" brand, made by Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, and have handled it with great success, have taken the agency for the same company's "Henry the Fourth" cigars, which has so far been known better in the East than on the Coast. The standing already enjoyed by the "Alexander Humboldt" assures a warm welcome for the other brand. The first shipment is expected in about a week. Arthur Meyer, Coast representative of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, is now in Washington on another tour of his territory.

Campaigning On the "Reynaldo" in Louisville

The Robinson-Pettet Co., Louisville, Ky., have just taken on the "Reynaldo" cigar, made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia. Mr. Luchs, of the firm, recently visited Louisville where he succeeded in placing the "Reynaldo" in some of the best stands of the city.

The Rey Moore Co., of Altoona, have taken on the "Coiner" brand, made by the Baum-Jaffe Company, of Philadelphia.

The William Hoelscher Cigar Company, of St. Louis, report a fast growing business. This jobbing house is now handling the "San Telmo Record," "Pastora," Lipschitz's "44," "Havana Ribbon," and "William Penn" cigars with splendid results.

Only Exclusive Jobber of Manila Cigars in Country

Woolley & Company of Seattle, Founded in 1910, Who do Large Business on Philippine Products, a Coming Concern

QUOT on the Pacific Coast is to be found one of the youngest wholesale houses in the country and one which also has the distinction of being the only concern of its kind in the country to do an exclusive Manila cigar and cigarette business. It jobs and retails the Philippine goods only.

This house, Woolley and Company, of Seattle, Washington, went into business on July 1, 1910, and was incorporated a year later. From a very small beginning they have grown until Woolley and Company are now handling the products of six Manila factories. These brands are "La Insular," "Flor de Mananga," "La Maravilla," "La Prueba," "El Tamarinda" and "Los Angeles." They control their distribution in the states of Washington, Montana, Idaho and of Alaska. In connection with the Murray Commercial Company they control the "Los Angeles" brand in the entire United States. Five salesmen are employed at present by this hustling house.

H. S. Woolley, manager of Woolley and Company, has great faith in his goods and predicts a bright future for the Manila cigar. He broke into the cigar game at a time when the Philippine smoke had received a black eye everywhere, but Mr. Woolley felt sure that the setback was only temporary and the fast strides made with these goods within the past year has borne out his predictions.

He came to the Coast several years ago and saw an opportunity to get a shipment of 45,000 Manila cigars which were lying on the dock at Seattle. They were a drug on the market in the estimation of many cigar men, and although Mr. Woolley was derided and informed that they would be a white elephant on his hands, he took the shipment, and within two weeks had taken orders for 100,000. That was the beginning of a business which now extends from Portland, Maine, to Los Angeles, California.

"Everybody laughed at me when I first started handling Manila cigars," said Mr. Woolley. "Now there is not a house in town which does not sell them. The Manila cigar business is just a question of educating the people. They grow just as good tobacco in the Philippines as in other places, and discriminating smokers are beginning to find that out. Charles Jaynes, Drops Dead in Boston

Charles Jaynes, the founder of the Jaynes Drug Stores, in Boston, dropped dead, in that city, on Saturday, September 7th. He had not taken any active part in business since 1907, at which time he sold out his holdings in the stores to the Riker-Jaynes Company. The Jaynes stores were among the first cut-price stores in that city, selling many of the best known cigars and cigarettes at much below regular prices.

President Hill Talks On the Cigar and Tobacco Situation

Optimistic Over Trade Outlook Upon Return From the West—
His Opinion of Havana Cigar Conditions

UPON his return from a Western trip during which he visited Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, and other prominent cities in the West, Percival S. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, expressed himself as being optimistic over the trade outlook.

"The most impressive fact in regard to the tobacco trade," said Mr. Hill, "is the serious effort that is being made by all manufacturers, including the tobacco companies, growing out of the disintegration of the former combination, to advance their own brands. Merchants and dealers throughout the country say that there never have been before competitive conditions such as exist now. Manufacturers are advertising extensively, and are canvassing for business with the greatest energy."

"So far as increased profits are concerned," said he, "it is not yet established that profits have been increased. All the companies are spending more money in advertising and pushing the sale of their respective goods. This has undoubtedly resulted in an increased consumption of tobacco, and the volume of business is considerably greater. Whether this will mean increased profits or not cannot be determined until there has been time for the effects of this increased activity to show itself. It is a fact, however, that more business is being done and there is consequently more opportunity for profits. I attribute the growth in the business entirely to the increased activity and expansion."

Speaking of the cigar business, Mr. Hill said, "I am glad to report that we are progressing at a substantial rate, both in this country and in Cuba, and this, in spite of the fact that the consumption of cigars as a whole in this country seems to be standing still. It is remarkable that while all other tobacco manufactured products should increase so tremendously in output, that cigars should not keep the pace. The population is constantly increasing and it would seem that the increase in the use of cigars should be proportionate, but this is not the case. It is undoubtedly a serious matter and one that contains food for thought for everyone in the industry."

Questioned about the securities market Mr. Hill said: "The higher prices of the securities representing the property formerly owned by the American Tobacco Company, including that retained by it, are due chiefly to the fuller public realization of their value. Another influence is the removal of the cloud that hung over the old securities because of the Government prosecution. The American Tobacco Company merger was effected in October, 1904, and in 1905 the Government litigation began, so that practically throughout the life of the merged American Tobacco Company its securities sold in the shadow of that lawsuit."

Mr. Hill said he had heard nothing of any plans for the formation of a new tobacco company to compete with the old ones. Reports that one was to be organized by James B. Duke, former president of the American Tobacco Company and new chairman of the British-American Tobacco Company, and the First National Bank interests, were recently denied by both Mr. Duke and Francis L. Hine, president of the First National, New York.

Walter Heyneman has resigned as president of the Tobacco Company of California and has been succeeded by T. W. Harris of the same concern. Mr. Heyneman has accepted a position with the American Tobacco Company.

Milwaukee Dealers Enjoy Fine Trade

H. W. Lewis, of Fay Lewis & Brother Pleased with Cuban Crop—
The Bever Cigar Company, Marshfield, Incorporated—Many Changes Through the State

MILWAUKEE, September 12.

MILWAUKEE retailers are enjoying a very good business in spite of the excessive heat, which has continued for some time. Many thousands of visitors are in the city to take in the Wisconsin State Fair, which lasts from September 10th to 14th. Next week more visitors will arrive to take in the Vanderbilt Cup races, which are run September 17th and September 20th and 21st.

The F. E. Adams Company, which has operated as a Wisconsin corporation for years, manufacturing Peerless, Nigger Hair, Excelsior, etc., has filed notice with the Secretary of State dissolving the corporation. The president of the firm could not be met by the writer, but it is learned that the business will now be operated as the Milwaukee branch of the American Tobacco Company.

The death of Bernard Liedersdorf, the pioneer tobacco manufacturer, has caused great regret among his friends and acquaintances in the trade. There is an account elsewhere in this issue of THE WORLD.

Another new building, which will affect one of the large retail stores in the center of town, is being planned. Negotiations are under way to erect a twelve story building on the site of the Merrill Building, the ground floor of which is occupied by the United Cigar Store.

At the annual meeting of the National Association of Retail Druggists, which was held here last month, and which was largely attended, Mr. Henry W. Merritt, of Plains, Pa., was elected president. Mr. Sol A. Eckstein, president of the Wright Drug Company of this city, was elected first vice-president.

Harry W. Lewis, of Fay Lewis & Brother Co., who has just returned from Cuba, states that the Cuban tobacco this year will have a better flavor and that the yield is much larger than for many years past. He states the new crop will be mixed gradually with the tobacco of the last year.

The Cuba Rica Cigar Stores Company are doing their usually good business, all lines moving well. A display is being made of "El Planco Secundos." The Wright Drug Company are doing a nice business with the "Robert Burns," "La Violetta," "Jose Vila" and other brands handled by them. A large display is being made of the "Jose Vila," a picture of Berriman Brothers factory being part of the display.

Leo Abraham continues to do a good business. The "Van Dyke," "Rosa de Mayo," "Lovera" and "Don Corello" are moving well in ten cent goods, while the "Charter," "El Werth" and "Emseco" hold up well in five cent lines. Pipes, which are marked at reduced prices, are moving especially well. The firm did an immense business with the "Sport," a small briar wood pipe, which sold at ten cents. It is believed more women entered the Caswell Block store during the past few weeks buying this article than usually enter a cigar store in over a year. Eddie McKecher, the genial clerk at the Caswell Block store, is becoming better acquainted with the Cream City, and is now almost willing to admit that Milwaukee is as good a place as Des Moines, Iowa, from which place he came a short time ago. Wm. Hanauer, of DeMuth & Co., and Sam Mannheim, of Kaufman Bros. & Bundy, were recent callers on the firm. Joe Feiger has again recovered sufficiently from his ailment to take his regular turn at the Caswell Block store.

John J. Bagley, a small dealer in cigars and tobaccos at 312 Chestnut Street, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities, $304.53; assets, $200.

Dadds are doing a nice business in the cigar department of their store. The display window features the "Betsy Ross," made by Valentine & Son.

Fay Lewis Bro. & Co. report an active business both wholesale and retail. A new salesman has recently been put in Illinois, L. F. Webster, who will make his headquarters at Springfield.

J. F. Pendergast, of Galesburg, Ill., and J. Eder, of Aurora, Ill., were recent callers at headquarters, being in conference with heads of departments.

The Pabst Building store is making a display of the "Tom Moore" and the "Harvester." Mr. Gilbert Smith, of Y. Pendas y Alvarez, was a caller during the past week. The sale of the "Webster" in this territory must be very gratifying to Mr. Smith.

The Bever Cigar Company, of Marshfield, has been incorporated as a partnership under the laws of Wisconsin, to continue the cigar manufacturing business left by the last Peter Bever. The members are Mrs. Peter Bever and her three sons, Arthur A., John and Arnold Bever. Several new brands will be added, including the "Royal Bond," a five cent cigar.

Chas. Hutchinson, cigarmaker at Wausaukee, Wis., sold out to Knute Anderson. The N. E. Murphy cigar business at Eau Claire, Wis., has been purchased by S. Hulwi. Albert Seidenkranz has opened a cigar factory at Marion, Wis., and J. M. Vanderhoof has resumed business at Darien, Wis.

J. A. Zilles, at Green Bay, Wis., has moved his cigar factory to larger quarters at 1260 Main Street, where he will operate a retail business in connection. Hilgenberg Brothers have installed a modern store at Kaukauna, Wis. Constance Wiggenhorn, a pioneer cigarmaker at Watertown, died aged eighty-four years.

H. L. Meyer, of Milwaukee, went to Edgerton, to conclude arrangements for the distributing agency for C. L. Culton's cigar factory, manufacturers of the "Judge Karel" and "El Insisto" cigars.

REVENUE RECEIPTS SHOW ENORMOUS INCREASE

San Telmo Company to Install Cigar Manufacturing Exhibition At State Fair--S. N. Greding Opens Stand

DETROIT, September 10.

SINCE my last writing the weather has relaxed from its ungracious character to a genial, sunshiny, summery nature. We could hardly ask for anything better, yet perverse human nature inevitably asserts itself, and the blessed who were yawning all summer because it was so confoundingly chilly and wet are now howling because it is so warm. 'Tis true it could well be written of him:

"Alternate change of climate has he known,
And felt the fierce extremes of either zone."

But when you get it as it should be, what is the use of kicking?

The splendid weather, the many conventions, the recent fall meet of the Canadian Racing Association across the river, the return of the (somewhat battered) Tigers, the impending elections, etc., etc., all have a favorable bearing on retail trade. This week the American Bankers' Association is in session here, bringing approximately 3,500 delegates from all parts of the country. It is an recognized fact that these men of finance and brains are partial to good weeds. The Hotel Cadillac, Pontchartrain, Wayne, and all leading hotel and down-town stands will profit by their sojourn.

Next week the Michigan State Fair will be held here, which means a tremendous boost in large size nickel goods; the kind on which our friend from the four corners and the village farm loves to puff luxuriously, after his ham sand and pie at the Baltimore Lunch parlors.

Taking it by and wide, as somebody used to say, our retailers have no cause for complaint. At the same time our wholesalers are all busy, while the manufacturers of cigars and tobacco are under such pressure they dare not stop an instant. The Spietz-Worch Company, San Telmo, Lilies, Tegge & Co., Hemmeter; in fact, every one of the large plants and dozens of smaller ones, are so overwhelmed with business that were it possible to obtain the necessary labor their production could be immediately increased about fifty per cent. to safely provide for orders and a little accumulation of stock. Some have been driven to the extremity of cutting off jobbing accounts here and there from sheer necessity. Subterfuge, apologies and explanations of short shipments to clamorous customers are recognized as part of the daily torment of this hades of successful cigar manufacturing.

An example of the increased production here is shown in the following sale of revenue stamps for the month of August as compared with last year:

| | Cigars. | Tobacco and Snuff. |
|--------------------------|-------------|--------------------|
| 1912 | $80,660.52 | $196,063.63 |
| 1911 | 71,786.46 | 172,371.65 |
| Gain for the month | $8,874.06 | $23,691.98 |

This is equivalent to an increase of three million cigars and three hundred thousand pounds of tobacco for the month of August alone.

For the benefit of industrial advancement and the enlightenment of those who have never seen a cigar factory in operation, the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company propose to install a small shop at the State Fair grounds, showing the entire process from soup to nuts—that is from kasing to packing. "Court Royal" and "Pastora" are the two brands selected for the demonstration, and the finished product will be sold on the grounds.

W. D. C. Moehs, the indefatigable, has added the property at 20 Monroe Avenue to that now under control of the Berghoff hotel and cafe corporation. The lease runs for twenty-five years. This is the old Considine saloon, which in former years figured extensively in police, political and sporting circles. The present lessees, Hall & Henry, will vacate October 1st. On that date work will be started on a new, up-to-date cafe and rathskeller, which will, with present space, seat in the neighborhood of 600 persons.

Declaring that penny machines were one of the few courses open to attract trade and that they were just as lawful as remnant sales were with other merchants, the cigar dealers and owners of slot machines and gambling devices in Battle Creek, have organized to fight the crusade recently started by the Upton Methodist Church to have all machines thrown from the city.

Have the cigarists and gamblers of our neighboring town persuaded themselves that remnant sales are a legitimate fraud? Personally I fail to see the advantage of any "sure thing" gambling device in the establishment of any self-respecting merchant. Nothing will sooner callous the fine moral sensibility, which should be part of the equipment of every merchant who aspires to legitimate, substantial success, than the sustained practice of giving your friends and patrons nothing for something. Moreover, devotion to the slot machine, the dice game, the gambling card and kindred devices is more than likely to obscure the store-keeper's and clerk's vision of opportunities for progress and profit along other lines and practices. I believe some day merchants will recognize that a gambling device of any kind is, after all, a poor medium for business.

Claude Howell has also taken another vacation, which he found was absolutely necessary, after his ten days' rest up in Canada with Ted Briody.

Ed. Heineman, too, is off. Leastwise the boys at O'Brien & Co. insinuate that he is. He's bound for Pt. Hope, Mich., where he expects to do some fishing. The boys think he's headed in the wrong direction and want to know what's the matter with Lockport.

Frank N. Smith spent the first week of the month in New York on business. He has not yet announced definite plans for the future.

Ray MacDonald, formerly clerk at Hotel Metropole stand, has charge of cigar counter at Hotel Norton. Ray was out of the cigar line for six months, but the call of the weed was too strong to be denied.

S. N. Greding has opened a neat little shop at 69 Canfield Avenue, W., in the basement of the Tionesta Apts. He has a diversified stock of goods, including a fair representation of popular brands of cigars, etc. This is his first retail experience. For many years Mr. Greding has been in the wholesale meat business. But he knows a hank of tobacco when he sees one, for when a kid, he was wont to sit around his dad's shop in Milwaukee, watching the transition (probably) of Wisconsin "B'S" into ten-cent straight Havanas.

An interesting display in the Best & Russell Compay window shows the evolution of a briar wood from the rough block to the finished pipe.

Chas. J. Holton is felicitating himself on sales of "Bank Note," the five-cent cigar of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company. Sales are increasing here steadily.

Shields & Wertheim's "Saramita" is an old-time favorite with Robinson's, 11 Grand River Avenue. They have been selling it for the past seven or eight years. Recently they added to their line several sizes of "Savaronas," of the Cayey-Cagnez Tobacco Company.

Abe Davis, of the Davis Cigar Company, 185 Grandy Avenue, reports a steady trade. The "El Davo," a seed and Havana cigar of merit, is placed with a limited number of retail accounts locally; but the great bulk of the factory's output is sold through jobbing trade outside of Detroit.

Ben Crittenden, 54 Library Place, shows an entire window of "El Portana," made by the G. J. Johnson Company, Grand Rapids. The following clipping from the September number of "The Michigan Moose," shows what "El Minceros," brother, members of Lodge 160, L. O. O. M., think of him:

"Every time the writer takes a look at the impressive features of Brother Mincer, he wonders why Sol don't put his likeness on his cigar labels. Brother Mincer is a most versatile man, and can roll better cigars in his sleep than the average expert makes when wide awake. Sol also can roll the billiard balls to perfection, and is the champion cue manipulator of One-Sixty."

Chas. Spietz and Alb. Worch are in New York on business. Ditto Ike and Sam T. Goldberg.

Late last night, when the crowd poured forth from the Detroit Light Guard Armory at the conclusion of the big Progressive Party rally, a peddler stood at the entrance calling "Cigars, candy; cigars, candy." "I'll take a smoke," said an old lad, struggling against the outflow. "Phwat! foive cents! I thought yez said, 'cigars on the candidates,' and I wa-a-nted wan of thim." He didn't get it.

In town lately: Leo Scheineman, Celestino Vega & Co.; Mort Hamner, Ryan & Raphael Cigar Company, Chicago; Marcelino Perez, accompanied by Jno. McBlair; Chas. E. Gillman, Lowden & Co., New York and Key West; Chas. L. Staples, P. Verplank & Co.; Otto S. Murphy, Jos. Berran & Co.; Ben Lesser, F. Lozano Son & Co.; Abe Korn, Furgatch & Co., Frank Horning, H. Anton Boek & Co.; Willard Andrus, F. Garcia & Bro.; Fred Shields, Shields & Wertheim; M. Michaels, Cagney-Cagnez Tobacco Company.

Also Julius Fryer, Jaskulek & Fryer, Cleveland; Wm. Levi-sohn, J. Bernheim & Son; C. J. Waxelbaum, New York, S. F. HEAVENRICH.

Chicago Prepares For Busy Fall

August Revenue Receipts Show Falling off--Wm. Bartos Opens New Shop--Harry Smith Secures Choice Loop Site

CHICAGO, September 9.

AUGUST receipts for cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and snuff show a falling off in cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, with an increase in snuff revenue in this city. Cigars and cigarettes receipts were $58,897.21 as compared with $60,837.31 for July, a loss of $1,940.10; Tobacco dropped from $152,113.99 in July to $133,456.42 in August, being a difference in favor of last month of $18,657.57. However, the July record was abnormal. The government is richer by $250.35 in the snuff revenue, the August figures being $38,420.10 and those for July $35,899.75. The total revenue from tobacco products for the month was $230,773.73.

The 50th anniversary of the Steele-Weddes Wholesale Grocery Company, which maintains a large cigar department, 151 West South Water Street, was celebrated recently with a dinner and reception to officials and employees of the firm at the Bismark Garden.

A. Cohn, an old time cigar salesman, has joined the selling staff of the Kadison Cigar Company in the Ashland Building.

Seven year old Margaret Hirsch, daughter of Louis M. Hirsch, a cigar dealer at 712 South Wabash Avenue, exhibited such a degree of bravery that it resulted in the capture of a thief that tried to rifle the store cash register a few days ago. The thief asked the child, who was alone, to get him a certain brand of cigars. To get it she was compelled to go into a back room. Watching the customer through a glass paneled door she saw him run behind the counter and open the cash register. She screamed at the top of her voice and ran to the front door, locking it. Before the man, who gave his name as Joseph Branlon could escape, he was arrested.

Fine New Store in Loop.

William Bartos has opened a cigar shop at 107 West Madison Street which he says will be run "not only for profit, but for entertainment." It has handsome fixtures of the latest designs, a stock ticker, baseball scores, unlimited telephone service and other high class features. All demands of imported and domestic are handled. The place will be known as Bartos' Quality Shop and represents a fine location, being near one of Chicago's busiest corners.

Stay for the grand concert after the big show and see what happens. E. A. Conlax and Company, of Chicago, with offices at 220 North State Street, are putting out a new cigarette called "Gandax Petite," ten for ten cents. In each package is a one-cent uncancelled postage stamp, making the purchase nine cents to the consumer. It is well placed and looks like a winner.

Women Smokers Asked to Leave Hotel.

When three Chicago women essayed to smoke cigarettes in the Pompeian room of the Congress Hotel the other evening, they and their male companion were requested to leave by a house detective. The exit was made with becoming dignity and much hauteur on the part of the ladies. According to the waiter who served them the women pined the cigarettes, the man helped himself to one, lighted it and then held the sputtering match for the ladies to light their dream sticks. At this moment the house detective insisted on making himself a member of the party, with the result that the detective stayed in the hotel while the others made their getaway.

Hirschhorn Back from Europe.

Clarence Hirschhorn has returned from his stroll through Europe, more prepared than ever to push the sales of "Little Tom" and "Tom Moore."

Rudolph H. Massack, formerly in charge of the Ben Simpson cigar stand in the Singer Building, has opened a stand of his own in the Engineer Building.

John W. Merriam, of New York, head of the firm of John W. Merriam and Company, has been in Chicago. He came over to attend the opening of John D. Dolan's new store and has sent home some very satisfactory orders.

Samuel M. Chase is expected here about the 15th inst. to represent Benito Rovira Company, of 315 East Sixty-second Street, New York. He started on his western trip September 3, and took with him the best wishes of a host of friends. He will be welcomed here, where he is widely known.

Gardens and Parks Unprofitable This Year.

The summer gardens are beginning to advertise their closings. They have all had a bad season, having been the victims of weather unsuited to their needs. It has been too cool to attract crowds in sufficient numbers to the resorts to make business profitable. It is understood around the city that the Bismark Garden is the only one that shows a profit this year commensurate with the investment. It is also the only one where a 25c. admission is demanded. The garden caters claim to do a cigar and cigarette business of about $1000 a month during the summer season, sales falling away to much less in the winter.

E. Bolano & Co. have placed a large electric sign over the door of Thos. Dillley Curran, 1124 Bryn Mawr Avenue, advertising "Flor de Bolano" cigar. As it is a large sign it has shown results in doing both Curran and the brand of cigars much good.

John J. Dolan on September 2 returned to his old headquarters at the southwest corner of Dearborn and Washington Streets, which he vacated in the spring to allow alterations to be made in the building by the owners. The entrance is now on a level with the street, where it was formerly three steps down. Dolan has been making his headquarters during the summer at the Hamilton Club store, but has removed his executive offices to the old location, where he gave away souvenirs on the opening day.

William J. Porch and Company Lease Store.

William J. Porch and Company have leased from Cohn and Lovette the store at 174 North Clark Street, in the Astor Hotel, to James Roder, for a term of years, at a gross rental of $11,200. Mr. Roder, who was formerly connected with the Congress Hotel, will occupy the store as a restaurant. Cigars, of course, will be on sale.

"Sabah," another new cigarette of Turkish blend, has found its way into this market. It is imported by Drukker and Pelliven of New York and contains a blend of the choicest and most expensive Turkish tobaccos. The cigarette, which is mild and hand made, is on sale at many of the hotels, cafes and cigar stores.

John L. Corey, known to the trade as "Six Dollar" Corey, has associated himself with H. K. Sweezy, the well known tobacconist at 116 North La Salle Street. He is doing a fine business as a box salesman, making a specialty of "Francisco Payola" cigar. E. G. Bennet is also with Mr. Sweezy, the three forming a trio of cigar salesmen that is hard to beat.

Reports to the American Warehouseman's Association on the storage of tobacco show that cigars have been stored at a temperature of 26 degrees with good results. Another dealer reported that he had stored tobacco in bales successfully at a temperature of 38 to 40 degrees and Havana and Sumatra tobacco in bales at a temperature of 32 degrees. "At this temperature," says one, "there seems to be just enough moisture in the atmosphere to keep the tobacco in good shape and yet not enough to allow it to mold."

Frederick R. Barnheisel, president of H. H. Kohlsatt and Company, the big lunch people, has contracted for the erection of a ten-story mercantile and office building at 618-620 South Michigan Avenue, just north of the Blackstone Hotel. It is to have a frontage of 80 feet and will cost $350,000. As president of H. H. Kohlsatt and Company, Mr. Barnheisel is one of the best known restaurant men in Chicago and has built up a cigar trade in his places of business that might be the envy of many individual dealers. He has a constant demand for the finest imported brands as well as the cheaper goods and is wide awake enough to see that no cigar want of his customers goes unsatisfied.

Harry Smith Secures Choice Loop Site.

Harry Smith has leased from Edward Lamsberg and William J. Brown an L-shaped store space in the Delaware Building, Randolph and Dearborn Streets, for seven and one-half years at a total rental of $84,000. He will occupy it with a saloon and cafe, handling the highest grades of cigars and cigarettes.

William W. Cole, of the Cole Lithographing Company, manufacturers of labels, has given a trust deed on the property at 3029 to 3033 South Wabash Avenue to the Chicago Title and Trust Company as trustees, to secure a loan of $30,000 for five years at 6 per cent.

The Northwest Traveling Men's Association, David Clink, secretary, located at Dearborn and Randolph Streets, is making special four-months rates to the men who earn their living on the road. This is an old insurance company and has many cigar and tobacco men among its members. William Best, president of the Best and Russell Company, has just paid his one thousandth assessment, he being one of the charter members. It will pay the boys to drop a line to Dave Clink for particulars.

Walter Powers who has been in Cleveland attending the Eagles convention, has returned. His brother, Alderman John Powers, will be back from Europe about the middle of September.

Best and Russell Company are putting out a new Havana wrapped cigar called "Tuck Ends," which sells to the trade at $35 per thousand. It is made on the old fashioned style of a long tuck and, as they advertise it, is "a real Spanish smoke." It is made for them by Storm, Fisher and Company, of New York.

In looking over the show cases of The Fair cigar department one can see few standard brands like "Tom Moore," "Robert Burns," "Owl" and "Little Tom." Manager Andersen says anybody can sell advertised goods, but it is up to the clerks to sell the brands the house is interested in. "Take the higher grades of goods," said Andersen. "We can satisfy anybody with 'La Soneda,' 'La Primavera' and 'El Conexo.' When it comes to five-cent goods we believe we can satisfy the consumer with such brands as 'Comit Royal,' 'Morteza,' 'Emilio Lopez,' 'Josetas' and 'Palacios Operas.' When it comes to six cent cigars we have one all in a class by itself--'Palacio Perfecto Grande,' made by Storm, Fisher and Company, of New York."

George Yocum, of Yocum Brothers, Reading, Pa., makers of the "Y-B" cigar, was in the city on a return trip from the Pacific Coast. He went to Indianapolis and Cleveland, then to the factory and will be back to Chicago about September 15 to "again hike to the Coast," as he puts it. He is thinking of putting out a lot of Federal signs in Los Angeles, advertising the "Y-B" cigar.

Burns and Goldfuss, of 222 North State Street, have a new sign reading: "Your face looks good but we can't put it in the cash register."

William Best, Jr., of Best and Russell Company, has provided himself with a new desk tablet that says: "Take all the time you want, but not mine."

J. Z. Miller, representing Migul Atak and Company, of 3 Howard Street, New York, manufacturers of clear Havana goods, including the "Cuban Aster," "La Flor de Cantino," "La Intrepido," "La Prida," "El Carrot" and "La Rosa Cienfuegos" brands, was in the city recently, visiting the trade.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Adair, of Memphis, Tenn., were guests of William Best, Jr., spending a part of their vacation time in Michigan. Mr. Adair is manager of the Best and Russell Company in the Southern city.

Smoking Prohibited on New Cars.

There is to be no smoking on the new cars that will be introduced to Chicago patrons by the Chicago Railway Company. Exits and entrances will be at the front end under the eye of the motorman. No provision has been made to accommodate the smokers.

Heard in the Wellington Hotel lobby: Is that the umbrella you got with those cigar coupons?—It looks a little odd. Yes, it was made the year I started saving the coupons.

Frank Cawley, of Franklin MacVeagh and Company, says the cigar business is slow and that there is no life to it. He says he feels sorry for the cigar salesman who calls, as it means no buying of new goods and that it is hard enough to keep the old brands moving. Their big selling five cent cigar is the "Diamond Crown," made by the United Cigar Manufacturers Company.

Emil and Joseph Wedeles, comprising the firm of Wedeles Brothers, leaf tobacco dealers at 178 West Lake Street, have purchased from Royal W. Irwin the property at the southeast corner of West Sixty-third Street and Langley Avenue for $50,000, subject to an incumbrance of $10,000. The lot has a frontage of 130 feet on Sixty-third Street and 110 feet on Langley Avenue.

Every day I am asked what is the largest selling 5c. cigar in Chicago. After many inquiries and facts gathered I find it almost a dead heat between the "Little Tom," of Clarence Hirschhorn and Company (Michigan Avenue), and "The New Bachelor," of L. E. Newman and Company (Madison Street), "The Owl," handled by Best and Russell Company running third. In seed and Havana toe goods two brands have the call, "Robert Burns" and "Tom Moore." In clear Havanas no one brand has the edge, although "Tom Palmer" leads a little. Then come such brands as "Sanchez Haya," "Lovera," "Ben Bey," "La Venga," "La Cyrilla," "La Soneda," "Francisco Goya," "El Salero," "Websters," "Charles the Great" and "Bolano." In Connecticut wrapped cigars, "La Preferencia" or "La Azora."

A. J. Simpson, secretary of the Best and Russell Company, has returned from his vacation.

Froehling and Heppel have sold the bar in the Lakeside Building, Adams and Clark Streets, to Wm. J. Welch, alias "Billy" Welch. He will specialize with "Optimos" and "La Sonedas."

Al Kline, formerly of Manuel Vega and Company, of Adams Street, has sold his business to E. Bolano and Company and is now working the city trade for "Bolano."

Frank Smedberg has bought out the interests of the Joe Keene estate in King's restaurant, Fifth Avenue, near Madison. Mr. Smed-berg, who has managed the place a number of years and made a big success of it, will have entire control of the business.

Hillman's cigar department has a new brand of cigars on sale called "Etiquette," made by Storm, Fisher and Company, of New York.

United After Sam Marco's Stand.

The United Cigar Stores Company is trying to buy out Sam Marco's new store at Fifth Avenue and Adams Street. He has a ten year lease, the building being owned by Joe Moos, of J. and B. Moos. This location is jamming daily and will be especially good as the new Continental and Commercial Bank Building will be directly opposite. There is no chance for a cigar store on any of the other corners. It is rumored that Marco promised Billy Best first chance on a sell out, so it is not probable that the United will get the location.

The cigar department of the Boston Store is making a big drive on the job lots it bought at the Charles Baker Company auction sale.

I notice a new tin-can five cent cigar called "Rubini Smokers." The package is very attractive and should make a hit. It is put out by the Havana Importing Company, Lake and Fifth Avenue.

E. A. McCune, who is considered one of the city's best cigar clerks, has charge of the cigar stand in the Briggs House bar, Randolph Street and Fifth Avenue. McC. says he has a great dice play. You can eat, sleep, drink, smoke and shave on the checks.

Walter R. Eagle, 68 East Randolph Street, who has a branch on South Dearborn Street which his brother John runs, has added the "Chevalier de Leon" brand to his stock. He is working an extra run on "La Salora" and also handles a full line of "La Matilda," "La Venga," "La Soneda," "Alcazar," "Lon Temple," "Perfecto Garcia." Walter is always open for jobs if they are cheap. He has arrangements with Clarence Hirschhorn and Company for taking all their odds and ends, which keeps Hirschhorn stock close.

Leo Ziegler, a cigar manufacturer of 526 West Chicago Avenue recently identified two men under arrest at the Central Police Station as the ones who entered his place of business on May 8 and shot him when he resisted their demands for money. They are looked as Joseph Summary, 949 Grand Avenue, and Tony Rast, 906 Grand Avenue. They were arrested after having been betrayed by a jealous woman.

George F. Renaud, manager of the Monroe Cigar Company in the Tribune Building, has returned from a vacation in Michigan, bringing with him a crop of brand new fish stories for the regalement of his friends.

B. F. Levy has opened a cigar stand in the Federal Building at Dearborn and Adams Streets.

A bill for the appointment of a receiver and to compel foreclosure has been filed in the Circuit Court against Sans Souci Park. Jacob Kandlik is one of the petitioners and is owner of bonds valued at $1000. He alleges the company has defaulted in interest on $100,000 bonds that became due July 2. Sans Souci has been a very large user of cigars and cigarettes.

Another Plant for United Cigar Manufacturers' Company

THE United Cigar Manufacturers' Co. will soon open a large factory in Youngstown, Ohio. They have secured a building which is now used by the John H. Fitch Coffee Company in that city. It is expected that the plant will be running by October first.

The deal has been carried through by E. Wile, the Eastern representative of the company, assisted by M. Frankle, of the Frankle Bros. Company, a large distributor of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company. It is intended to completely remodel the building and when in condition to employ about 500 hands.

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company is doing an enormous business in the Middle West and in order to supply their numerous jobbers they considered it advisable to open another plant. They now have over forty factories scattered over the country, half of which lie in Pennsylvania. The Youngstown factory will be the first one to be operated in the Middle West.

The Lorain Cigar Company, of Lorain, Ohio, is said to have failed. The liabilities of the concern have been placed at $46,000 with assets of $7,000.

A. P. Seward, of Jackson, Mich., has taken over the Spencer-Cribb tobacco and cigar store at Grand Ledge, Mich.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau
Neptuno 24
Alto
Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, September 9. THE month of August has closed well for our leaf dealers, as we have had plenty of buyers from the United States, which have operated liberally, paying full prices, as the quality of the 1912 crop has met with their approval. The American jobbers of course were not quite so pleased, as the prevailing prices were too high to leave them a living margin on most grades, but as there is no prospect of seeing any lower prices ahead they will simply have to make their clients toe the mark by perhaps paying correspondingly higher figures for the goods which they have been accustomed to get heretofore at more moderate prices. The trend of all articles is to reach a higher level, owing to the increased cost of production, caused by the increase in wages to the laboring people, and tobacco forms no exception. This is the rule, and only if we should have an over-production from two or three successive crops, could we hope to find the exception in the tobacco trade. The only remedy for the manufacturers is to raise their prices, and to which no exception could be taken by the consumers, as they are earning more money, and therefore could afford to spend a little more money for their accustomed consolation by smoking cigars of merit.

The sales to the German exporters during the month of August almost reach in round numbers 19,000 bales, and the total exports this year cannot be far from 50,000 bales, although as we still lack the figures of last week we are unable to state the exact quantity. The demand in this direction does not seem to have abated in the least, therefore the light part of the Remedios crop must have been ideal for the German market, and prices also have not been too high to handicap the demand from this quarter.

A curious feature of the 1912 crop has been that it was greatly over-estimated at the beginning; then came the reports that the crop was short in the Vuelta Abajo and also in the Partido district. Prices, which had opened low, rose considerably, including the different styles of Remedios tobacco. Now comes the third period, that there are some people ready to bet that the 1912 crop is the biggest on record, since the famous year of 1900, when we have had a total crop of over 600,000 bales in our island, and it almost looks as if this is bound to come true. However, as the buyers from all parts of the world appear to be only too anxious to load up with this year's growth, there is no great likelihood that we shall see a reaction in prices; in fact, some particular styles may be even scarce this coming winter in our market.

Sales during the past fortnight amounted to 31,993 bales of all kinds of leaf, or, as represented by: Vuelta Abajo, 12,453; Partido, 6,584, and Remedios, 12,956 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 12,858; exporters to Europe, 9,944; shippers to South America, 115, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 9,076 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the two weeks from August 19th to August 31st were:

|-----------------------------------|---------------------|
| To all ports of the United States | 11,643 bales |
| To Germany, Bremen and Hamburg | 8,636 |
| To Austria | 746 |
| To Spain | 500 |
| To Holland | 38 |
| To Belgium | 24 |
| To Buenos Aires and Africa | 127 |
| Total | 21,714 bales |

Receipts From the Country Were:

| | For two weeks ending August 31, 1912. | Since January 1st, 1912. |
|--------------|---------------------------------------|--------------------------|
| Vuelta Abajo | 24,455 bales | 134,761 bales |
| Semi Vuelta | 2,544 | 15,346 |
| Partido | 2,805 | 17,644 |
| Remedios | 28,555 | 156,797 |
| Mayari | 482 | 2,048 |
| Total | 58,841 bales | 326,566 bales |

Cigars.

The official figures from our customhouse, for the first half of August in the exportation of our cigars, show the following result:

|------------------------------------|-------------------------|
| From August 1 to August 15, 1912. | 10,558,907 cigars |
| From August 1 to August 15, 1911. | 7,230,490 |
| Increase in 1912 | 3,328,417 cigars |
| From January 1 to August 15, 1911. | 110,607,074 cigars |
| From January 1 to August 15, 1912 | 99,792,527 |

Decrease in the first seven and one-half months 1912

10,814,547 cigars

The above result would be more encouraging if we could rely upon a continuance of a progressive march during the remaining four and one-half months of this year, but as the final figures for the second half of August have not been published yet we have to wait for the ciphers before crowing too loud. In fact, we have heard it stated, that perhaps the whole of the gain might have to be wiped out again, so that we would not be much better off at the end of August than we were at the end of July.

In visiting our large factories they seem to be quite busy, and they all claim to have sufficient orders on hand to keep them busy for the balance of the year, although the same does not hold true of the smaller factories; therefore there is only one conclusion to draw, that the large ones have received more than their share in proportion, while the smaller ones have lost more than they ought to have suffered.

Romeo y Julieta is working under full pressure, having filled up all the vacant spaces that had existed in their cigarmakers' galleries, and which naturally indicates orders to be plentiful from all sides.

H. Upmann & Co. are working with full steam in their famous H. Upmann factory for some time already.

Partagas has had to make some more new cigarmakers' benches, is turning out 70,000 cigars per day, and bought 2,000 bales additionally of lowland Vuelta Abajo vegas from the best districts. Among them was the coveted vega "El Corrojo," which is eagerly competed for every year, and therefore always commands an extra high price. The vega belongs to our friends, Messrs. Perez & Obeso.

Sol is quite busy likewise, having increased the number of their cigarmakers repeatedly, owing to the amount of orders coming forward in good shape.

Eden, under the management of Don Clinto Lopez, son of Don Manuel Lopez, is fully occupied on splendid orders from the United States, England, South America and Australia.

The Elite factory of F. Rodriguez & Co. continues to have no lack of orders for high-priced Regalia sizes, a proof that Don Felipe has been doing some hustling while in Europe, and that Don Pancho Herrero has not lost his cunning in turning out fine cigars that please the smokers of the aristocracy.

The principal factories of the Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Limited, are working upon excellent orders from the principal markets of the world.

Castañeda is steadily climbing up the golden ladder to success, as the business of this factory has more than tripled since Cardenas & Co. purchased this brand.

La Diligencia has been closed by the new owners, M. A. Gunst & Co., incorporated, preparatory to making the transfer.

Los Angeles, Sept. 6th.

THE retail tobacco business in this territory has greatly improved in the past few weeks, as the vacations are over and everybody is getting down to business again.

The Morgan Cigar Co., has bought out the E. D. Marshall Cigar Co., at 316 W. 6th Street, and are putting in new show windows and making a number of other improvements calculated to bring the store thoroughly up-to-date.

The Klingenstein Company are making a large campaign on "Admirations" cigars, manufactured by S. Fernandez & Co., of Tampa, Fla. They have Sydney Newman doing the missionary work and Mr. Klingenstein reports the cigar is taking well with the trade.

C. W. McCormick, representative of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, is calling on the Klingenstein Company and is very much pleased the way "Websters" are selling.

It is hard for the Klingenstein Company to keep up stock on "Cinco," their five-cent leader, and the goods go faster and faster daily. The firm also has at present, around town, "Lord Lytton" windows, the finest ever seen.

The "Chancellor" cigar has been making wonderful gains in the Los Angeles market. The Klauber-Wangenheim Company, have been distributors for this famous brand for the past twenty years and they expect to sell over two million "Chancellors" during 1912. Klauber-Wangenheim Company are particularly well pleased with their sales of "Optimo" and "Pippins" which are on sale with thousands of dealers throughout California. Mr. Marx, the genial representative of Klauber-Wangenheim Company is now in Arizona sending in his usual large orders.

Mr. Percy Dutton, representing Klauber-Wangenheim Company, in Inyo County, Cal., is again at work after a

B. G. Davis told us that he had bought 1,500 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Matt. Wengler has purchased 1,400 bales, principally Vueltas, but is trying for more.

Fred. Davis added another thousand bales of Vueltas to his former purchases.

Adolfo Moeller secured 2,025 bales of Remedios as his share during bales each of Vueltas.

Leslie Pantin has, from the best information, purchased for his customers up to the end of August 20,000 bales of all kinds of leaf already, and found his large warehouse at 142 and 144 Consulado Street too small to hold the stocks, therefore he rented the big "Hoyo Ingles" in Aguila Street besides.

Gutierrez & Diehl were buyers of 939 bales in our market.

H. Upmann & Co. bought 880 bales for export.

H. Rosenberg secured 459 bales of all kinds of leaf for his Northern customers.

Joe Mendlesohn left very well satisfied with the large purchases and contracts for future delivery which he made during his stay in town.

Max Schwarz added 400 bales to his previously reported purchases, and among the latter was one extra fine and large vega from Rio Hondo, which he secured through his broker, Mark A. Pollack, from the sterling house of Suarez Hermanos. He has been buying this vega for a number of years past already, owing to its fine aromatic quality.

Mr. A. M. Calzada has visited the Vuelta Abajo again, and as we hear he has made some extra fine purchases of renowned vegas.

Shippers above 200 bales from the port of Havana during the fortnight were: J. F. Bernides & Co., 3,305; Sylvester & Stern, 2,608; Adolfo Moeller, 2,025; Leslie Pantin, 1,669; Silveira & Co., 1,142; Gutierrez & Diehl, 939; H. Upmann & Co., 880; Sobrinos de A. Gonzales, 856; Ernest Ellinger & Co., 646; J. Bernheim & Sons, 564; Manuel Suarez, 542; Garcia & Co., 430; Mark A. Pollack, 422; Selgas & Co., 322; José F. Rocha, 256; Rodriguez, Menendez & Co., 256; Miguel V. Perez, 210, and Leonard Greenhall, 210 bales.

It is an open secret here that J. Bernheim & Sons shall have bought between 5,000 to 6,000 bales of this year's crop of Remedios, First and Second Capaduras, in our market, which sales have not been reported yet.

brief illness, and is landing a good business in his territory.

Mike Roth is doing some good work on "Monolite" self-lighting cigarettes. He has disposed of his first shipment of 50 thousand and has placed an order with Morris Burke, factory representative, for 100 thousand, to be shipped immediately.

J. B. Bonhaus, of Klauber-Wangenheim Company, is now in Bakersfield and the surrounding country and is sending in some good sized orders on their entire line, more particularly on "Post Dispatch," five-cent cigar.

Max Roth Cigar Company are well pleased the way the "Bachelor" cigar is selling in this territory. They complain that the demand is greater than the supply.

Several attractive "Counsellor" window displays are noted in the business district. This brand is distributed by George W. Walker.

The first shipment of 100 thousand "Havana Sticks," five-cent cigar, was received by the Klauber-Wangenheim Company. Morris Burke, the factory representative, is commencing a strong campaign, which will last six months, covering the entire territory on the above named brand.

Joe Goldsmith, of the M. A. Newmark Company, has just returned from a four weeks vacation at Catalina Island. He is telling a few fish stories to the trade, but Joe don't overlook to talk "Jose Vila" and "Pathfinder." He reports a splendid business on the above named brands.

Leon Wachs, general representative of the Emil Frank Cigar Company, is reporting a strong demand on "Bill Dugan" and "Big Bear."

Morris Burke has just returned from San Diego, after putting up a strong three weeks campaign on "Post Dispatch" for Klauber-Wangenheim Company, and is well pleased, as "Post Dispatch" is selling in all their territory.

Rob. Gans, of J. J. Gans Brothers, will leave for the Kite-Shaped track in a few days, looking after the interests of the "Lawrence Barrett" and "Tom Keene" cigars.

C. A. Barnes, of Klauber-Wangenheim Company, will leave on September 15th on his yearly vacation for Yellowstone Park. He expects to be gone about thirty days.

Information Regarding Cigar Manufacturing

ZIEGLERSVILLE, PA., August 28.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD.

Dear Sir—I would like to have this information about the cigar business: How much bond must a person give to manufacture cigars? Must a man pay license outside of the revenue stamps? What does a cigar sell to jobbers for, that sells to the hotel trade for thirty to thirty-five dollars? Please tell me the prices of the different kinds of tobacco, especially Sumatra, Binders, Havana and Pennsylvania. Who pays for advertising, the jobber or manufacturer?

I thank you very much in advance for information.

I remain, respectfully,

SUBSCRIBER.

We answer the questions in the order given. Regarding the amount of bond a cigar manufacturer must give: He must first furnish $500, if he intends to use only one man, and $100 additional for each hand employed. Very few manufacturers take out less than $1000 bond, because this entitles them to fifteen cigarmakers. You can see the wisdom of that move.

No license is required outside of the revenue stamps. A cigar which usually sells to the hotel trade for about $35 goes to the jobber around $30, less 4 per cent. The price of the different kinds of tobacco varies so much that we can only give approximate figures. Sumatra is sold anywhere from $1.25 to $2.50 per pound outside of the duty, which is $1.85 per pound. Binders 22c. to 35c. per pound. Havana 35c. to $1.00 in bond, and Pennsylvania 20c. to 25c. per pound.

When the manufacturer starts on an advertising campaign he usually pays all of the publicity expenses, but in many cases, when he works a certain territory, the jobbing house pays a portion of the advertising appropriation, although that is the exception, not the rule.

We had no record of this factory and inquired at the local revenue office. They informed us that this number, 1895, had not been used for some time, and unless they looked up their records for about five years back they could not give us the manufacturer.

To Prevent Worms Getting Into Cigars

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., September 6.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD.

Is there any known remedy to prevent worms getting into cigars? I have a large stock on hand and the worms have been in them and destroyed a number. Besides, the tobacco cannot be used on account of its bitterness.

Thanking you for this information, I remain, sincerely,
JOHN C. ALLEN.

We beg to say that if you will write to the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, they will give you the information concerning the handling of tobacco worms. This has been a serious problem for many years, and not a great deal of progress has been made in overcoming the plague.

Chicago Objects to Being Labeled

Writer From Windy City States Tobacco Men Take Exception to Article Referring to "Good Old Days"

CHICAGO, September 12.

Editor "The Tobacco World."

TOBACCO men of this city were much surprised to notice in a New York contemporary a signed article harking back to "the good old days" of gambling here, when everything was wide open and the gamster could always get a run for his money, even though the cash box held a sum no larger than 25 cents. An attempt was made to apply the changed conditions to the cigar business in this city, the following being an excerpt from the story:

"Today the cigar business of Chicago is bigger and better and cleaner than it ever was before and there is no public gaming, there are no gambling slot machines, and the people who at one time thrived on such a traffic are either forgotten or remain as a memory."

The statement is not only unfair to the cigar dealers, but is not altogether in accord with the facts. It is true there is no open and public gambling in the sense in which the word gambling is customarily used. It is also true that there are no slot machines in use, either of the money or trade paying kinds. It is also true that the concomitant evils of these things have been done away with and that the cigar business is healthy and on a firm basis. Yet the article tells only a half truth.

Dice shaking is prevalent in all cigar stores and is recognized as legitimate by the city laws and officials. It is a stimulus to business in a degree that would cause many small dealers to go into bankruptcy were it to be abolished. The subject is neither opportune nor one expedient for discussion, for agitation of such matters usually result in more harm than good, but it is better to tell all the facts than to tell only a part and conceal the others.

Chicago has gone through her slot machine period along with the other large cities of the country. There was a diversity of opinion, even among dealers, whether they were a benefit or detriment to business. However, there is no division as to the trade increasing value of the present allowable dice games. Nearly every man has stowed away somewhere within him a desire to take a chance in getting his cigars, and the hugeness of this desire can be learned at any time by spending a few idle moments where the dice games are played. They mean business, and the dealers know it, else they would abandon the games voluntarily as being bothersome and not profitable.

No games are allowed in any stores where women are employed, Mayor Harrison having issued such an order not long ago that is being strictly complied with. The system has been tried out on the Pacific Coast with success. Slot machines were once plentiful there, but were eliminated by city ordinances. A game known as "26" was substituted and has proved to be not only popular and money-bringing, but clean and wholesome.

It is to be hoped the subject may be allowed to drop. Continued discussion of it will bring harm rather than good and no one connected with the cigar trade would willingly want to do it harm. It can be taken as a certainty that dealers will be the first to abandon the use of the dice games when it appears that they either become unprofitable to maintain or bring with them conditions that would be deleterious to the trade as a whole. When a dog sleeps let him lie.

Sincerely yours,

R. & M.

San Francisco Expects Brisk Fall Trade

Thousands of Manila Smokers Arriving on Coast—H. Upmann, Havana Manufacturer, Visiting West with his Representative, C. Landau

SAN FRANCISCO, September 5. THE local cigar business is gradually improving, and all present indications point to an unusually busy fall. This, in fact, is what all local dealers are looking for, though their high hopes have been disappointed so often in the last few years that they are reluctant to make any prophecies. In the country, the harvest is gradually coming to an end, the hot weather is passing off, and dealers show a disposition to stock up rather more liberally, though the disturbance caused by the prohibition movement may keep business on a hand-to-mouth basis for a month or two more. This week has been especially good in the retail trade, as Labor Day is always a good time for smokers, and the primary election the day after caused a liberal investment in cigars by political campaigners and their friends.

The business of jobbers and brokers of Manila cigars has been quietly but gradually expanding, until this is one of the most important branches of the cigar trade in San Francisco. It is reported that the arrivals this month will beat all former records, and already some firms have been getting in well over half a million a month. Naturally, they will have to do some hustling to clean up these shipments, but are confident of their ability to do so. The bulk of the Manila goods, of course, goes to other parts of the country, but retail sales in San Francisco are a factor of some importance. In fact, some retailers out in the state carry more Manilas than anything else, and several brands are carried by nearly every stand in the city, having a moderate but steady demand.

Recent developments remind one of the times before the abolition of the slot machines. These machines were in a way replaced by dice games, but in connection with these there have grown up certain abuses similar to those which doomed the machines. Of late, reports have been circulated that the municipal authorities were keeping an eye on the conduct of such games and might take drastic action, and the better class of dealers are starting an agitation to correct the abuses. Two meetings have been held by retailers in the last two weeks, and it is reported that some sort of an association has been organized, or re-organized, but those interested have very little to say of what was accomplished. Among those most prominent in the get-together activity may be mentioned Dan P. Carter and John C. Conner, both of whom took a leading part in former association affairs.

I. Danziger, the Manila cigar broker, has been spending a few days with the Southern California trade, and before returning will make an extended trip through the mountain states.

E. M. Elam, who also represents a number of Manila lines, is now in New York.

Sello Blumenthal and Sam Kirschmer, associated with the San Francisco and Los Angeles houses of M. A. Gunst & Co., have returned from a long trip through Cuba and the Atlantic Coast, where they went to get a better knowledge of the company's affairs and of the cigar manufacturing business generally. M. A. Gunst & Co. are now getting in good supplies of their popular "Little Bobbie" brand, but are still having difficulty to keep all orders filled, the demand being as great as ever. They are beginning to handle in a jobbing way the "La Entrada" Porto Rico cigar, which they have sold at retail for some time. M. A. Gunst & Co. have secured a big bargain in a large purchase of calabash pipes, and expect to get a big share of the business this fall. All the pipe stock is being largely replenished in preparation for the holiday season.

Geo. K. Coleman, the cigarist, of Eureka, Cal., came down in his motor last week and has been visiting friends in San Francisco and San Mateo County. He looks for a rapid growth in Eureka as soon as the new railroad into that district is completed.

J. A. Thomas, of the British-American Tobacco Company, passed through last week on his way back to China from England, where he has been for a visit. He was accompanied by P. C. Cheung, a Shanghai merchant, and Wu Ting Seng, who is connected with the company.

According to a recent report from Los Angeles, John N. Drummond, of San Diego, is preparing to purchase a large tract near Culiacan, Mex., for a tobacco plantation.

Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Co., has just returned from an outing in Southern Oregon, accompanied by Mrs. Judell. During their absence their house was broken into and some jewelry taken.

H. Upmann, the prominent Havana cigar manufacturer, has been spending a few days in San Francisco, accompanied by his representative, C. Landau. Mr. Upmann will return East by the Canadian route.

Archie McKillop, for some time associated with the local wholesale department of M. A. Gunst & Co., has left to go into business for himself at Santa Rosa, Cal., where he has purchased the stand and billiard room of J. L. Mercier. His place at the Gunst store has been taken by Edw. Bernard, who has been in charge of one of the retail stores.

Dave Ederich, representative of Sam I. Davis & Co., has returned from a trip through Southern California.

Mr. Frankel, of Frankel, Gerdtz & Co., the local manufacturers of clear Havana goods has been for some time at Havana, buying tobacco. He writes that he is having some difficulty in getting what he wants, and has to pay a lot more for Vuelta filler than last year.

Has First Class White Plains Store

ONE of the leading cigar stands in White Plains, N. Y., is that of Salvatore Lifreri, which is located at 7 Orawaupum Street. Mr. Lifreri carries a complete line of both imported and domestic cigars, tobaccos and cigarettes and makes it a point to keep his stock fresh and in the best of condition.

Salvatore Lifreri

Mr. Lifreri is agent in White Plains for "De Nobilli" cigars and tobaccos, and is pushing at present one of his own brands of cigars, "Lifreri's Special Five Cent Smoke." In connection with his cigar business he also operates a pool room.

Houston, Texas, Does Large Tobacco Business

TOBACCO and cigars are handled in large quantities in this city, both wholesale and retail, says a writer in a Houston, Texas, paper. It is estimated that approximately the wholesale trade in the weed that soothes for the past year rounded out the rather handsome figure of $1,350,000. This is an increase of $100,000 over the year 1910-1911. The wholesalers have done an excellent business the past year, and many of the consuming centers of Texas look to this city for supplies. Houston's nearness to Key West and Tampa, both large manufacturers of clear Havana cigars, and its enjoyment of direct water rates from those points via Mallory Line, makes this city an important jobbing point for clear Havana goods. Smoking tobacco, cigarettes, etc., coming from Atlantic seaboard points arrive by water also. Again the advantage of the water rate is Houston's.

Retail Trade Items

A. Phillips, proprietor of two retail stores in Spokane, Wash., has sold his cigar stand, at 5 Post Street, to Wm. W. Griffith, of Spokane.

Hamilton, Jackson & Co., wholesale and retail tobacco dealers, of Indianapolis, are looking for a site in Fort Wayne, Ind., at which to locate a new store.

The Wolverine Cigar Store, of Battle Creek, Mich., operated by John Hamilton, has been sold to Joseph Boaz, of Port Huron, that state.

The cigar store at 254 Hamilton Avenue, Trenton, N. J., conducted by Albert Gold, will be removed to 476 Hamilton Avenue.

H. A. Peyton has disposed of his cigar store to John W. Dye, Los Angeles, Cal.

Clarence Ahmstead has purchased the cigar business of James McKiever, at Nebraska City, Neb.

The cigar store operated by H. A. Damares on Third Street, Sunbury, Pa., has been closed, and its stock sold at public auction.

Harry Haslitt, Pasadena, Cal., has disposed of his cigar business to Tomlinson & Dix.

A. Nathan, formerly in charge of the cigar department at the Prager department store, is now manager of the Bereovich store at Powell and Market Streets, succeeding Ellis Abel, who is taking charge of the Bereovich Company's store at San Jose, Cal.

Sol Arkush, specialty man for the "Luis Martinez" cigar, who has been in Southern California for some time, is again visiting H. Bereovich in this city.

J. J. Hoffman, of the Hoffman-Moore Company, is spending the week around Eureka, Cal.

Daniel Frank and Company to Open Another Store—Cobb Aldridge and Company Move to Old Location

BOSTON, September 7.

THE business conditions have changed but very little in the retail trade since the last writing. The principal large stores report business as good. The wholesale trade in cigars and tobacco never was better this time of the year.

Tom Mulvany, manager of the cigar department at the Adams House Drug Company, says that business is good. Their show window has a fine display of imported cigars and cigarettes.

Notice has been received from the Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company that it will give gratis one pound free with each fifteen-pound butt of "Every Day Smoke," and with each seven and a half pound box, it will give one-half pound free.

Daniel Frank and Company, of Washington Street, will open another store, corner Milk and Congress Streets, about October 1st. I see in Epstein's Drug Store large portraits of all the Presidential candidates and other celebrities smoking popular cigars. They draw considerable attention as it is something new in show windows.

The Boston jobbers have received notice that with each 150 pounds (Drop Shipment) of "Peace and Good Will" and "Sickle" they will receive seven and one-half pounds of "Sickle" free, and with each 110 pounds of "Spear Head" they will receive five and one-half pounds of "Sickle" gratis. "Sickle" is a new one in this market.

"Turkey Red" cigarettes (S. Anargyros) have advanced twenty-five cents and at present forty "Turkish Trophies" are given free with each carton.

At the American House, F. W. Morris, of the cigar department, says that business is good, having large sales of the "El Rio Partagas" and other Havana cigars, but the domestic cigars have their friends, with the "Laurens" cigarettes. Their show window is as good as any in the city, and I think a little better than a great many.

M. Roitman, of 21 Dock Square, says that business is very good. He had good sales of the cigar named "El Roi Tan," a cigar of fine flavor. He also makes a cigar named the "Havana Smoker" four for twenty-five cents. Sales continue good in tobacco and cigarettes, pipes, etc.

At the Arcade Cigar Company, 3 Dock Square, the call is mostly for domestic cigars. The fancy pipe trade is very good, ranging from 5 cents to $10 and $15 dollars.

Ed Solomon, the efficient manager of the branch store, 12 Dock Square, of Bieringer Brothers Company, says that business never was better, their store being in the central part of the Square near the markets and the elevated stations. He handles all kinds of Havana and domestic cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and all accessories in the business.

On State Street, Broad Street, and Atlantic Avenue, where the large leaf tobacco trade is carried on, they all report business as fair and as the fall trade is now commencing, they will have all they can do later on.

"Shag," a new smoking tobacco in ten cent packages, is soon to make its appearance in this market.

The first shipment of the "Mascot" smoking tobacco (American Tobacco Company) in bags selling at five cents, has arrived and is being distributed.

The sale of pipes has increased in Boston and greater Boston more so than some of the inland cities, whole rooms being filled with high and low priced pipes. The high cost cigars are out of the reach of a great many people.

The Liggett Drug Store sell a good pipe for twenty-five cents, and give free a package of "Burlan" smoking tobacco.

There are a large number of handsome displays of the "Unis" cigarette, (Philip Morris and Company) around the city. Frank Swick, the New England representative, reports sales on the increase in this line.

A. C. Hovey, of Lynn, has added some new sizes of "La Integridad" cigars to his cases before he left for his summer vacation.

Cobb Aldridge and Company are moving back to their old stand on Washington Street.

"Tuxedo" smoking tobacco is now being packed in sixteen ounce glass jars. The jobbers expect shortly to receive their first shipments of this packing.

"Piccadilly," a new small cigar made by the American Tobacco Company, is to make its appearance in Boston and vicinity very soon.

The Massachusetts Elks held their annual outing or picnic last week at Parago Park, Nantasket Beach. The "Girard" cigar was the only cigar smoked.

Bernard Leidersdorf, Milwaukee Wholesaler, Passes Away

BERNARD LEIDERSDORF, for many years one of Milwaukee's most widely known wholesale tobacco dealers, died at his home in that city on September 2nd, aged seventy-five years. Mr. Leidersdorf underwent an operation for stomach trouble one week before his death and failed to rally from the shock of the operation.

He was born in Hanover, Germany, in 1837, and arrived in New York in 1858, coming directly to Milwaukee. He entered the wholesale tobacco business at that time under the firm name of Helmholz & Leidersdorf at Reed and Lake Streets. In 1864 he purchased the tobacco factory of Strohn & Reitzenstein. The firm was afterward changed to B. Leidersdorf & Co. His factory was destroyed shortly afterward by fire, but a new plant was erected at South Water and Reed Streets.

Mr. Leidersdorf retired from active business in 1903 after selling his interest to the American Tobacco Company. He was one of the last independent tobacco men to sell out. Mr. Leidersdorf had always taken an active interest in public affairs. He was public debt commissioner in Milwaukee from 1905 to 1906. He was an active member of the South Division Civic Association and was also a Mason and a member of the Milwaukee and Deutscher Clubs. Besides his widow, Mr. Leidersdorf is survived by two sons and three daughters.

Thomas Meininger

Thomas Meininger, a retired wholesale leaf tobacco dealer of St. Louis, Mo., died in a hospital in that city on August 24th, following an operation. Mr. Meininger was born in Illinois in 1840. He came to St. Louis at the age of eighteen, and after clerking for grocery and tobacco firms for a number of years embarked in the leaf tobacco business for himself in 1868. He retired in 1910 because of ill health. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Lena King Meininger.

S. S. Pierce and Company Open Two More Stands

S. S. Pierce & Co., of Boston, recently established two of the most up-to-date cigar stands to be seen in that city. They are located in the Copley Plaza, Boston's new hotel. S. S. Pierce & Co. conduct a chain of cigar stands in a number of "Hub City" hotels, at which they handle a fine assortment of high-grade brands of clear Havana and domestic cigars, as well as a large assortment of cigarettes and tobacco.

Winston-Salem Has Large Increase

The stamp sales at the U. S. internal revenue office at Winston-Salem, North Carolina, during the month of August amounted to $447,501.88, which means that 5,593,773 pounds of tobacco were shipped by the tobacco manufacturers last month. This is an increase over the corresponding month of last year of 630,822 pounds of tobacco and $50,465.79 in the amount of revenue paid to the government.

Says Porto Rican Will Replace Havana Cigar

Secretary of Hemsheim Company, Limited, Predicts a Wonderful Growth for First Named Product

IN the course of a very short time the Porto Rican cigar, both the high and low grades, will outgrow the popularity so long enjoyed by the Havana cigar," is the opinion of R. B. Rogers, secretary and treasurer of the Hemsheim Company, Ltd., of New Orleans, Louisiana, extensive manufacturers of Porto Rican cigars.

"There is not the least doubt in my mind but that the increase in the consumption of Porto Rican cigars will be enormous in the next couple of years," continued Mr. Rogers. "We now have a daily output of about 50,000 cigars, both the fine and the cheaper grades of cigars, but in order that we may continue to supply the steadily growing demand from this character of smokers, it is necessary for us to have a daily capacity of 75,000. We employ more than 400 men and women and stand ready now to put on 150 in addition. In fact it will be absolutely necessary for us to make this addition to our force owing to the very rapid growth in the demand for our cigars.

"We not only supply the local market, but we ship our product over the whole United States," added Mr. Rogers. "We are shipping more of the finer grade of cigars, which are in greater demand now than ever before, since the introduction of Porto Rican tobacco in the American market.

"The cigars we are now making are of the very finest tobacco that can be procured, and yet at the same time is mild and of a most pleasant flavor. Our experience is that there is a greater demand for the higher priced goods than for those of popular price."

Mr. Rogers repeated the assertion that he believed the Porto Rican cigar will soon outclass the heavier grade of goods.

Stogie Manufacturing in Wheeling Increasing

The month of August was another record-breaker at the Wheeling, West Virginia, United States internal revenue offices and total sales of stamps exceeded the next highest month by about $1,300. July of this year broke the records and another jump was taken last month that scored a new high mark.

The total sales of stamps amounted to $114,008.93 against $112,701.41 for July, this year, the high month, and $108,003.78 for the corresponding month of the preceding year, August, 1911.

Stamps were sold for stogies during the month to the value of $38,587.35, indicating the manufacture of 12,865,783 torches. This greatly exceeded the sale of stamps for the same purpose during August, last year, amounting to $35,335.98 for 11,788,660 stogies. However, the record for the manufacture of stogies was not broken as during August, 1910, stamps to the amount of $40,736.10 were sold to manufacturers of the smokes who turned them out to the number of 13,545,367.

So far this year every month in total sales of stamps has exceeded the total sales of the corresponding month in 1911, and already the sales are a million more or half again as much as at this period last year. Sales to the end of August, 1911, amounted to $2,643,112.52; while this year stamps to the value of $3,792,325.94 have already been sold.

Last year was a record-breaking year as regards total sales of stamps, but this year already promises to exceed it by a million and a half. It indicates a wonderful increase in the tobacco business in this section.

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

York Cigar Manufacturers Rushed With Orders

YORK, September 7.

THE present fall season will be one of the best in years, say local manufacturers, and that in spite of the fact that this is a presidential year. All the factories have been working a full quota of hands and some of them are now operating overtime.

The factory of Otto Eisenlohr and Brothers, South George Street, was one of the first to begin night work. The employees started on extra time last Monday evening and several hundred cigarmakers and men and women in the other departments have been working every evening until about eight o'clock. This firm is one of the largest in this section and operates a chain of factories in York, Lancaster and Berks counties.

The York factory of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, North Penn Street, has been turning out thousands of cigars within the past several months. This firm has large orders booked for the fall and winter trade, enough to keep its plants busy until late in the fall.

Preston C. Young, who swindled a number of cigar manufacturers in this locality last April and was arrested shortly afterward, was tried in the county court here on August 28th and found guilty. There were ten indictments against him for false pretense and upon each he was sentenced to two months in jail, though the sentences run concurrently. He had been in prison since his arrest in April.

Mr. Plitt, Jr., of C. H. Plitt and Company, is on a trip of several days' duration through Pennsylvania and New Jersey, acquainting dealers in those sections with the splendid qualities of the "20th Century" and "Liar" cigars.

The tobacco planters in this region are in a very light frame of mind. The prospect for a heavier production than last year is encouraging. The Pennsylvania seed leaf tobacco is the only leaf variety which is mostly used for plug tobacco, is not being raised on account of the low price it brings in the market. The former variety is used for cigar purposes and is a better investment for the producers. The last few cool evenings have been a great help to the growing and maturing of the tobacco, which is now developing rapidly. The crop has made more progress the last few weeks than it has any time thus far this summer.

The heavy wind and hail storm of a few weeks ago that did considerable damage to the tobacco crop at Stony Brook, did very little damage in other places. The tobacco worms appear to be very scarce this year, although a keen watch is being kept for them. With a few more cool nights and rains, and a little sunshine, the growers will be able to harvest their tobacco in a period of two to three weeks. Local growers are expecting to receive from 7½ to 10 cents per pound for their product this year.

Cigar manufacturers at Hellam are at present rushing with orders. This borough at present has six factories that are operating regularly. These employ nearly 100 hands. The W. W. Mundis cigar factory, which employs 20 hands, is being rushed at present, being more than a month behind with orders. The W. U. Blessing and Company factory is also rushed. Other manufacturers are: The J. D. Dehuff factory; Luxfer Cigar Company, Gable and Gilbert, and F. E. Lehman.

A number of York County tobacco growers attended the inspection on the state experimental plot at Landisville, Pa., last Monday, which was held under the auspices of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association. Efforts were made to find the best varieties suited for the respective farms. An interested member was Dr. William Pear, of the Pennsylvania State College, who instructively discussed matters pertaining to the plant. The general idea was to assist the farmers to increase the yield by planting the best seed from that already established.

LANCASTER, September 7.

THE Ninth District manufactured more cigars during the past month than for any August since 1907, and all the factories are now working with full forces. There were opened fourteen new factories in the district during the past month, which is only one indication of the prosperous condition of the trade.

The weather here has been excellent for the past week and tobacco growers report their crops in fine condition. It is expected that in a short time harvesting of the crops will be in full swing.

E. L. Nissly & Sons, of Florin, have just completed one warehouse, 116 x 30 feet, and are erecting another four story brick building, 50 x 140 feet. The Pennsylvania Railroad has built a siding between the two houses which will give E. L. Nissly & Sons fine shipping facilities. These two buildings will give a storage capacity of 12,000 cases. This enterprising leaf house has also three warehouses in this city. They have just started to sample 6000 cases of 1911 Pennsylvania and find the tobacco is coming out far above their expectations. They consider the quality of the leaf to be fine and very aromatic.

The Booth Tobacco Company, of Columbia, has purchased the Herald Building, in that place, from the Conestoga Traction Company, and after some extensive alterations will occupy it for their jobbing business.

The five story brick warehouse on North Prince Street next to the S. R. Moss factory, belonging to the estate of the late M. H. Engle, was sold by the sheriff last week to A. K. Mann, of this city, for $12,000, subject to a mortgage and interest of $17,175.

Michael Myers, connected with E. L. Nissly & Sons, the leaf packers, narrowly escaped serious injury when a team he was driving was struck by an automobile, taking off a wheel. Mr. Myers sustained several bruises.

Among the recent visitors in town were Benj. J. Leonard and P. J. Wemyss, of W. Duke, Sons and Company. They were working on "Clix" cigarettes.

W. L. Uhler, of H. Days and Company, was another caller.

The Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association held its regular September meeting in the Board of Trade rooms, 10½ East Orange Street, on Monday, September 9th, at two o'clock, p. m., when different topics of special interest to the tobacco growers were taken up for discussion.

E. M. Cohn, of E. M. Cohn and Company, is again home after a three weeks' trip to the Middle West.

Latest Doings in Reading and Vicinity

READING, September 6.

WITH many Reading manufacturers at present it is not a case of securing orders, but one of filling them as best they can. "I need cigarmakers more at present than I do orders," said one big factory man, "and if any one can get them it will help me considerably." The leaf trade and retail lines also show an improvement.

P. H. Hildebrand has opened local offices at 610-612 Court Street.

Chas. Breneiser Sons, Seventh and Penn Streets, had an attractive window display of Heidelberg cigars, from the Spatz factory this week.

E. E. Kohler is again at his desk after several weeks' vacation at a resort on the Delaware Bay.

J. G. Spatz is expected home from his Western trip in a short time. He finds conditions out there very good for his brands.

The Fleck Cigar Company report increasing business on their "Rose O' Cuba" and "Royal Bob" cigars. D. D. Sulkis, who has been touring the western part of the state, has sent in some very good orders.

J. U. Febr and Son, leaf tobacco packers, are slow showing their 1911 Pennsylvania to the trade. Their business on Ohio and Pennsylvania at this time is excellent.

Geo. J. Yocum, of Yocum Brothers, is again home after a long stay in the Middle Western and Coast States. He has been booming the "V-B" and "Spana Cuba" cigars along the Pacific Coast for several months, where they are up with the best known brands. He expects to leave again for his old hunting grounds westward in some weeks, at which time Wm. Yocum will possibly accompany him.

Large Increase in 9th District August Output

LANCASTER, SEPT. 8.

The tobacco business is booming all along the line at present. With the August revenue report before them, manufacturers should realize that they certainly are hustling, for during that month they manufactured 67,701,000 cigars, an increase over the same month last year of more than four million cigars.

The following are the figures for August for the past seven years:

|--------------|------------|
| July, 1912 | 66,232,400 |
| August, 1912 | 67,701,000 |
| August, 1911 | 63,551,070 |
| August, 1910 | 64,403,720 |
| August, 1909 | 59,323,340 |
| August, 1908 | 58,503,600 |
| August, 1907 | 60,288,500 |

Barkley & Mahoney have succeeded to the cigar business of Woollems & Barkley, Whittier, Cal.

The "Den" cigar store, operated by Harry O. Young on West Philadelphia Street, York, Pa., has been sold to M. P. Berkstregser.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Cleaning Out New York Market---1910 Pennsylvania Selling Well--- Competition Sharp in Wisconsin District

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, September 10.

THERE has been slight change in the leaf market within the past fortnight. There have been a number of buyers in town, but their presence did not seem to enliven things.

There is little old stock worth mentioning on the market, and the new leaf has not come along far enough so as to allow one to venture an opinion on it. Dealers are eagerly watching the Connecticut and Wisconsin fields and expect the tobacco from those regions to relieve the situation ere long.

The new Havana is now the principal subject of discussion. It gives entire satisfaction as far as burn and aroma are concerned, but the retailer is going to have his troubles explaining the black and green spots on the wrappers. The public will probably soon appreciate the extraordinary high quality of the clear Havana and forgive its appearance, which is anything but prepossessing.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, September 9.

THERE has been a slight but noticeable change for the better in local leaf circles. Indications point to renewed activity. There is a healthy demand for all kinds of tobacco.

Possibly the 1911 Pennsylvania is selling best at present. There have been several large sales reported, and it is moving nicely. The Sumatra and Havana are moving along well, but nothing of any importance was noted.

LANCASTER, September 6.

There is no reason for complaint at this time, report a number of leaf men. The market is again more active, and 1911 appears to be the best seller. The stock of 1910 is said to be going rapidly, and 1909 has also been moving in a fair fashion. Quite a bit of 1911 has been taken up by the leaf dealers, who are anticipating a good fall business.

The weather in Lancaster County the past two weeks has been extremely good, and it certainly can be noticed by the appearance of the plants. The growers say that the entire crop will, in all likelihood, be off the fields long before frost comes. Some planters expect to start cutting before long, but the bulk of the crop will not be harvested until the latter part of September.

YORK, September 8.

The growers of this region have been favored by excellent weather, and the tobacco is coming along in fine shape. There has been some cutting, and in another week this work will probably be well under way. Although a number of the plants show irregular growth, the growers expect to have the tobacco harvested well before frost arrives. That tobacco this year will surpass that of 1911 by weight is the general belief. The growing conditions have been ideal, and many farmers expect to be compensated this season for the poor success of last year.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, September 6.

BUYERS are still thoroughly canvassing the growing districts, but transactions have declined somewhat for the simple reason that the more promising crops are already under contract which includes about everything attractive likely to reach the sheds within the next two or three weeks. Competition is sharp and prices are well maintained for none of the large operators seem to have their orders filled as yet. The following are sample sales showing the trend of prices:

Geo. Grady, 25a at 12½¢
Otto Olson, 17a at 13¢
Lars Hoiby, 9a at 12½¢
Ed Winegar, 8a at 12½¢
Geo. Wentworth, 4a at 12¢
Frank Patterson, 7a at 14¢
H. Halverson, 12a at 13¢
T. Femrite, 10a at 12½¢
Willard Doty, 3a at 12¢
C. G. Biederman, 12a at 13¢
Con McCarthy, 14a at 12½¢
C. J. Downey, 8a at 13¢
Geo. K. Strummond, 12a at 12¢
Shinn & Sibell, 16a at 13½¢
Bert Palmiter, 5a at 12½¢
Elias Saunders, 9a at 12½¢
Budd Hill, 4a at 11¢

The harvest is proceeding with all possible dispatch with the help at command, for the fields have ripened very fast of late. A warm week is bringing along some of the later fields remarkably fast, while others are afflicted with a root disease that puts them entirely out of the reckoning. A few days this week have brought weather conditions that lead to shed burn in the harvested leaf, which growers should watch their sheds closely to avoid.—Reporter.

STOUGHTON, September 4.

Tobacco sales are onward the same as for the past few weeks, contracting of fields that look promising to the dealers. Topping is being done by those who have late growths and it may be the latter part of the month before these crops can be shedded. Meanwhile weather conditions must continue favorable or there will be too many odds and ends for satisfactory prices.

GAY MILLS, September 3.

Buyers are still riding in the tobacco growing districts, some buying is being done but there is still a big percentage of the crop that has not been contracted for. Late tobacco is doing well and if the present growing weather continues the late fields promise to become valuable. A good portion of the haulcut has been picked up at 5½¢ and 6¢, but not all are willing to accept these prices. A number of hail-cut crops near Soldiers Grove were not considered worth harvesting and some have been plowing them under. Some of the slightly damaged crops are bringing better than the prices mentioned, while others are harvesting without making a sale.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, September 6.

THE tobacco farmers were forced to keep their charcoal fires going for several hours today, and some continued the work of watching the charcoal fires tonight in order to keep away pole sweat, which is liable to show. If this cool weather continues it is feared that the charcoal supply will give out again this year, as it did last season, when the charcoal supply in this section was exhausted for nearly three weeks. One West Suffield farmer said that he had already taken down several acres of his picked tobacco and this had cured excellently with only two charcoal fires in the barns this season, but he feared before he took down the second picking he would be forced to build charcoal fires for several days more before the danger point had been entirely passed. He also stated that he would have to be up the larger part of the night tending the charcoal fires in his tobacco sheds.

Many of the tobacco growers, who have tobacco standing in the fields spent last Sunday harvesting the crop for fear of a frost this week. Saturday morning the thermometers about town registered anywhere from 45 to 38 degrees above zero mark, which means that if the tobacco is not cut and housed before many days, it is liable to get nipped by the frost.

A West Suffield tobacco farmer recently lost two men who were sent out by a free employment bureau. The hands were directed to a certain spot in the west side, where the Suffield farmer was to meet them and give them a carriage ride to their destination. While they were roosting on a fence rail waiting for their employer another farmer drove up and carried them away. Ten minutes later the man who had made arrangements to engage them drove up to find nothing in sight but the birds and the trees. It is understood that he is not the first victim and also that he is not likely to be the last. The farmers are so busy that they will do anything short of shanghaiing to secure hands.

Wisconsin in Midst of Tobacco Harvest

Crops Said to be the Finest in the History of the State—Leaf Free from Blemishes

UR growers are now in the midst of the heavy week of the tobacco harvest and the crop in many localities is one of the finest ever housed in this state so far as soundness and size of leaf are concerned. Outside of a few hail and storm sections covering possibly about 2,000 acres of the crop and rust that has appeared in some localities, the leaf is unusually free from any blemish that is likely to detract from a perfect binder tobacco. The more forward crops promise also an extraordinarily heavy yield in pounds, making quite certain some fat returns when delivered at the going prices. The warm days during the latter part of August have ripened the leaf very rapidly and it is crowding the growers to the employment of long hours in their efforts to keep pace with the work in hand. The scarcity of help is also proving quite a drawback where farmers have large acreage to secure. The late fields are making such a remarkable growth the past ten days that a much larger percentage of the crop will reach maturity than looked possible a month ago. With a late fall most of the acreage will be harvested. It will then be up to the shed curing to fully determine the real merits of the crop and also the money returns that the growers are most interested in.—From "Edgerton Reporter" of September 6.

Record Shipment of Leaf Tobacco

Hernsheim & Company, of New Orleans, Receive Shipment Valued at Over $50,000

The largest single shipment of Porto Rican tobacco ever brought to New Orleans, Louisiana, arrived by the steamship Pathfinder on August 31, when 1,400 bales of the highest grade Porto Rican weed, consigned to Hernsheim and Company, was unloaded. The shipment represented a cost value of more than $50,000, and was taken by tobaccoists as meaning that in future New Orleans will come in for a big share of the Porto Rican goods.

A portion of the tobacco in the shipment was grown on the lands in Porto Rico controlled by the Hernsheim Company, and the remainder purchased by the company directly from farmers for use in the manufacture of the "Insurgent" and other well-known brands of cigars which Hernsheim and Company make to supply their American trade.

Burley Society to Erect Carlisle, Kentucky, Warehouse

The Burley Tobacco Society will erect a $35,000 tobacco saleshouse on the property recently purchased in Carlisle, Ky. H. S. Weaver and U. S. G. Saunder, who have been appointed as a committee to let the contracts for the building of the warehouse, are preparing to begin work immediately. Fred C. Manley, architect for the Burley Tobacco Society, was in Carlisle making a survey of the lot preparatory to drafting the plans and specifications for the building.

The building will be a two-story brick, with a basement. It will be one of the most complete plants in Kentucky and will have a sales capacity of about 200,000 pounds per day.

Large Increase in Missouri Tobacco Yield

IN 1911 Missouri marketed 11,340,305 pounds of tobacco, valued at $1,360,836, which was nearly twice as much as was ever marketed in the state in any other year, according to a bulletin issued by Commissioner Austin W. Biggs of the Missouri bureau of labor statistics.

"The tobacco production of Missouri during the past few years has more than kept pace with the increase in other farm crops of the state, no other crop having shown such a marked increase in acreage, production and value.

"The figures given are based on returns received from railroad and express companies and does not take into account the thousands of pounds produced in the state and used locally. "The effort on the part of the manufacturers to encourage the growing of tobacco in Missouri has met with splendid success and it is predicted that within a few years the production of the state will increase many times over, as the crop is a highly profitable one and there are yet thousands of acres of land in the state capable of producing a high-grade tobacco which are waiting the coming of the experienced tobacco grower.

"At present most of the tobacco-growing territory of the state is north of the Missouri River, although in 1911 considerable tobacco was grown in the counties of Bates, Cape Girardeau, Cass, Cooper, Lafayette, St. Francois, St. Louis and in a small way in other counties south of the Missouri River.

"The number of pounds marketed annually for the past five years follows: In 1907, 609,000; 1908, 1,012,253; 1909, 4,425,000; 1910, 6,653,728; 1911, 11,340,305. A close estimate shows that there were from 8,000 to 10,000 acres in tobacco in this state in 1911, many acres producing from $100 to $250 worth of this crop."

Tobacco Growing in Ontario Province, Canada

THE raising of tobacco is proving a formidable rival to corn, which formerly led in Essex County, says Consul Harry A. Conant, writing from Windsor, Canada. Nearly every farmer on Pelee Island planted 5 to 12 acres last year as a measure of self-protection, and had it not been for this crop many a farmer would have suffered financially owing to the exceptionally dry weather.

In Mersea township, Essex County, fields of 10 to 40 acres are grown. In the vicinity of Blenheim, in Kent County, there are 40 and 50 acre farms of tobacco. Large fields are also encountered along the shore of Lake Erie as far as Elgin County. A farmer in Walkerville claims the distinction of cultivating in one field the largest crop of tobacco in the world. It is a plantation of 250 acres, containing 1,250,000 plants.

The tobacco plants are set out in May, sprayed and cultivated until September or October, when the tops are cut off, which widens and lengthens the leaf. The sprouts are "suckered" once or twice, and in October the harvesting begins. This operation consists in cutting the leaves, placing them upside down in the sun for half a day or so to wilt, after which they are stacked in piles, "lathed," and then cured.

During the 1911 season there were 12,500 acres under tobacco in the Windsor district. The average yield was 1,137 pounds per acre, for which was paid an average price of 12½ cents per pound. The quality of last year's output was below that of the previous one on account of the lack of moisture during July and August, and the excessive moisture from September to December, and the price paid for last year's crop was less than for the previous one. The entire crop is used by Canadian factories. About 80 per cent. of it is best adapted for the manufacture of chewing tobacco. Burley is the only variety grown to any extent in this part of the Province.

An American firm has leased a factory building in Windsor with a view to manufacturing high-grade Havana cigars.

New Leaf Tobacco Law Explained

In Answer by The Tobacco World, E. Dana Durand, Issues Lengthy Statement to Trade, Making Doubtful Points Clearer

IN reply to the request of the editor of "The Tobacco World" asking for the publication of a statement concerning the provisions that have been made by the Bureau of Census for carrying into effect the new tobacco law which requires dealers and manufacturers to report the quantity of stemmed and unstemmed leaf tobacco in their possession, E. Dana Durand, the Director of the Bureau, has the following to say:

The Act of Congress approved April 30, 1912, provides that the Director of the Census shall collect statistics of leaf tobacco from any manufacturer of tobacco who, "in the preceding calendar year, according to the returns to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, manufactured more than fifty thousand pounds of tobacco, and every manufacturer of cigars who, during the preceding calendar year, manufactured more than two hundred and fifty thousand cigars, and every manufacturer of cigarettes who, during the preceding calendar year, manufactured more than one million cigarettes, and every dealer in or manufacturer of leaf tobacco who, on an average, during the preceding calendar year, had more than fifty thousand pounds in stock, at the ends of the four quarters of the preceding calendar year, shall, under oath, make written reports of the amounts held by them."

The Bureau of the Census has obtained from the records of the Bureau of Internal Revenue the names and addresses of practically all dealers and manufacturers of tobacco, and cigars and cigarettes, who are affected by this law, and in order to acquaint them with the provisions of the law, and also to obtain suggestions and criticisms of the forms that have been provided for the collection of the statistics, a sample schedule card, covering the data required by the law, has been distributed. This card requires each dealer and manufacturer to report the quantity of tobacco on hand October 1, 1912, provided it has been entered on his internal revenue books by that date. This arrangement for the report of tobacco entered for internal revenue purposes and not for the quantity owned was made in order to avoid the confusion that would arise in cases where tobacco is bought by the manufacturer and held subject to delivery in the warehouse of a broker. In such cases, if the tobacco has not been charged to the manufacturer for internal revenue entry, it will not be reported by him, but will be reported by the dealer or broker. However, all tobacco held in the United States bonded warehouses on October 1 and April 1 of each year should be reported.

Many manufacturers have limited warehouse facilities, and therefore carry a large quantity of their stock in the houses of their leaf dealers or brokers. Each of these leaf dealers or brokers who comes within the provisions of the law will receive a copy of the regular schedule card, and will be required to report all of the tobacco on hand October 1, 1912, that has been charged to them on their internal revenue books prior to and on that date. The internal revenue entry has been accepted as the line of demarcation, in the case of dealers, brokers and warehousemen in order to avoid the duplication that would arise if they reported all tobacco in their possession, otherwise it would be practically impossible to obtain accurate statistics. All of the dealers and manufacturers are familiar with the requirements of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and keep books that enable them to make the reports required for internal revenue purposes. The Bureau of the Census has endeavored to conform its work to these requirements, and thus facilitate the preparation of the statistics.

The law provides that "in securing reports by types, the Director of the Census shall follow substantially the classification of general types as recognized and adopted by the Department of Agriculture." The types specified on the schedule card are substantially those used by the Department of Agriculture. Only a few modifications were made to conform with suggestions made by some manufacturers and dealers. It is believed that with but few exceptions it will cause very little inconvenience to furnish separate totals for the types specified. It is the desire of the Director of the Census to arrange the forms upon which the statistics will be collected so as to cause the dealers and manufacturers the least degree of inconvenience and with this end in view the schedule card directs that either the "marked weight" or the "actual weight" of the tobacco can be reported. A number of the dealers and manufacturers have contended that it would cause a hardship for them to be required to report the actual weight of all tobacco on hand October 1 and April 1. In such cases the marked weight will be accepted.

The regular schedule card, when corrected in conformity with the suggestions that are being received, will be mailed to the dealers and manufacturers with a proper letter of transmittal on or about September 17. This will be in conformity with the requirements of the law, which directs that the Director of the Census shall prepare appropriate blanks upon which such reports shall be made and shall send a copy of same to any person subject to make reports under this act, not more than fifteen nor less than ten days prior to the first days of October and April in each year, together with a written or printed demand that such person make the report required.

The law also requires that all persons subject to the provisions of the act shall, within ten days after the first of October and the first of April of each year, make written reports to the Director of the Census of the pounds of tobacco of each of the several types of tobacco owned by him as of the said dates, respectively. The law further directs that any person who fails to comply with these requirements shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than three hundred dollars or more than one thousand dollars.

The law also provides that the Director of the Census shall make a demand in writing by registered mail upon the persons who neglect to furnish the statistics within ten days after October 1 and then if such person shall fail to make such report within twenty days after such demand he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be imprisoned for not more than six months in the discretion of the court.

A considerable number of dealers and manufacturers of tobacco store tobacco at different points throughout the country, this tobacco having been passed to their credit on their internal revenue books. While the names of all these various places were obtained from the records of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, it was impossible, in many instances, to identify the ownership, and therefore a preliminary circular has been sent to each dealer and manufacturer, requesting them to furnish the Bureau of the Census with a list of the names and locations of all places where leaf tobacco may be stored to their account for internal revenue purposes on October 1, 1912. The names furnished in reply to this schedule will be compared with the records thus far prepared in the office, and will assist in eliminating duplication in the statistics.

The statistics required by the Act of April 30, 1912, are very simple, and from the correspondence thus far had by the Census Bureau with dealers and manufacturers it is believed that the preparation of the data will cause very little inconvenience.

It is the intention to publish the statistics as soon as possible after October 1 and April 1 of each year so as to place in the hands of all persons interested authentic statistics of the stocks of leaf tobacco.

Maysville to Have Another Warehouse

All the stock has been subscribed in the new tobacco warehouse to be erected at Maysville, Ky. The principal stockholders are Louis T. Gaebke, John C. and James M. Raines. The capital stock so far is $10,000 and work on the building is now under way. It will be on Front Street from Poplar to Lexington Street.

Short talks to Dealers

We realize that what smokers get out of cigarettes depends entirely on what we put into them.
And you probably realize that to get smokers to your store and to keep them coming you must give them cigarettes that are worth coming for—even walking out of their way for.
So it will pay both you and ourselves to make Fatima our leader.

FATIMA TURKISH BLEND CIGARETTES

We make the package plain and put the value into the cigarettes. In every 15-cent package there are twenty mild, mellow, Turkish Blend cigarettes of finest quality. And it is this quality, not the price, that makes smokers like and recommend Fatimas. You needn't be ashamed to sell Fatimas to anyone, no matter how much he may have been paying for cigarettes heretofore.

College men and others who have smoked Fatima Cigarettes for years have given them the strongest kind of endorsement by spreading their use among their friends.

Our 1912 advertising campaign will increase the demand.

Enormous New Cigarette Combine Said to Have Been Formed in New York

Investigation Discloses That Aside From Acquisition of Controlling Interest in Surbrug Company, Nothing Definite Has Been Accomplished---Independents Deny Being Purchased

THE press of the country has been flooded during the past two weeks with press dispatches, more or less authentic, concerning the formation of a new $50,000,000 corporation, to be known as the Tobacco Products Corporation, which has intended to absorb several prominent independents and become at once a tremendous competitive factor with the American Tobacco Company, Liggett & Myers and P. Lorillard & Co. in the cigarette business.

Options on certain factories running until October 15, have been obtained by the interests behind the merger, according to J. D. White, of White & Case, New York, the legal advisers for the new combine.

Mr. White recently confirmed the report that Daniel G. Reid, of the Rock Island, was behind the new syndicate. The new company will be incorporated this week, although the place for incorporation has not been decided.

The first big blast concerning this combination came from an article printed in the "Evening Telegram" of New York on the 21st ult. This article stated that Daniel G. Reid, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Rock Island Railroad, and himself a member of the Morgan group of financiers, was back of the new Tobacco Products Corporation, and that the company would have $30,000,000 common stock and $20,000,000 preferred stock. This announcement followed an authentic notice of the sale of the controlling interest in the Surbrug Company to William H. Butler, formerly of the Butler & Butler Co., who manufactured "Pall Mall" cigarettes, and who were absorbed from the American Tobacco Company.

The Surbrug Deal.

The representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD called on Mr. Surbrug, of the Surbrug Company, whose factory is at Fourth and Jefferson Streets, Hoboken. He explained the sale of his company's stock as follows:

That the Surbrug Company was a New Jersey corporation, capitalized at $500,000, and that William H. Butler had purchased all the remaining treasury stock of the company which had not previously been issued, and that this stock gave him a majority interest in the concern. Mr. Butler thereupon became chairman of the Board of Directors of the company, while John W. Surbrug remained president, and Walter H. Jones, secretary and treasurer. This move was acceptable to Mr. Surbrug, as he stated for these reasons, namely:

That it was necessary for the company to have additional capital with which to exploit some of their brands, and it was necessary for them to become more aggressive in the field because several of the great tobacco corporations had put new brands on the market and were pushing them very vigorously. His company was by no means in any financial difficulties, and the sale was purely considered a good business move.

The principal brands manufactured by the concern are "Milo" cigarettes and "Arcadia" and "Zig Zag" smoking mix-

Wide-spread Strike of Cigar Makers Threatens Entire Philippine Industry

Twelve Hundred Workers Walk Out and 14,000 Others Expected to Follow---Enforcing New Registration Law of Operators Causes Trouble

MANILA, P. I., September 24.

THE Philippine cigar industry at this writing is menaced by a widespread strike. Six hundred of the higher grade workers and 1200 other workers have walked out and have threatened a strike which would involve more than 14,000 operatives in the Island. The walkout was orderly, but it is feared that trouble will arise before long, as the cigarmakers appear to be determined to win. The authorities state that they are not expecting any violence, but nevertheless they are taking every precaution to safeguard the different plants.

The main cause of the agitation is the enforcement of the registration law, against which the workers strongly protest. The government, through the Secretary of Finance, the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the factory owners' conference with the unions, has endeavored for several weeks to demonstrate to the workers the advantages and protection of registration, but the professional agitators and labor bosses have frustrated the government's efforts, owing to their complete control of the ignorant and easily led native operatives.

The heads of the cigar trade declared that the general tie-up, which will be inaugurated Wednesday, September 25th, will not become serious for a month at least, owing to the large stocks of cigars which are now available for trade.

W. T. Nolting, Collector of Internal Revenue at Manila, states that the law for the registration of all the cigarmakers has never been enforced, and it is believed that it would be beneficial to the cigarmakers as well as the cigar manufacturers, to have a register of all the cigarmakers.

The result of the registration would show what class of work the cigarmaker is working on or has worked on, and the manufacturer would have the benefit of the knowledge, the same as the cigarmakers' unions which are organized in the United States and whose work is inspected by the officials of those organizations as well as by internal revenue inspectors.

The regulations have been published in the form of a circular by the Department of Finance and Justice through the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and are addressed to all provincial treasurers and internal revenue agents. The circular reads in part:

1. Paragraph 11 of section 68 of Act No. 1189 provides: "That every person who is employed to make cigars for others, either for pay, upon commission, or shares, or otherwise, from material furnished by others shall be regarded as a cigarmaker and not as a manufacturer of cigars, and every cigarmaker shall cause his or her name and residence to be registered, without previous demand, with the provincial treasurer of the province within which the cigarmaker shall be employed."

2. On and after October 1, 1912, the above quoted provisions of the Internal Revenue Law will be strictly enforced by this office.

3. The following rules and regulations shall govern the registration of cigarmakers and apprentice cigarmakers:

(a) In order to facilitate the initial registration of cigarmakers and apprentice cigarmakers under these regulations the owner or manager of each registered cigar factory shall on September 20, 1912, transmit to the Provincial Treasurer (in Manila to the Collector of Internal Revenue) a complete certified list of cigarmakers and apprentice cigarmakers in his employ on that date.

SHOULD THE SHOW WINDOW BE SOLD?

Scheme to Charge Cigar Manufacturers and Others for Use of Chicago Drug Store Windows Arouses Renewed Discussion

By James M. Fordyce

THE proposed scheme to have the retail drug stores of Chicago combine in a window display syndicate is certainly unique. According to a report they are to charge a rental for their windows, which will average $7 per week for each store. By this method the syndicate states that it can put a brand of cigars in 500 places in short order.

One of the first cigars to be pushed in that city as an experiment of this plan was a brand manufactured by a large factory in Lancaster, Pa. Reports state that this cigar has taken a good hold there. This may be due in great part to the window advertising which the syndicate has given it. Or it may be due more to the up-to-date methods of selling and the merits of the cigar itself.

This syndicate plan of advertising, it is said, will cost the manufacturer approximately $3500 a week. In return for this, he will receive each dealer's co-operation in that he will dress the window in any way desired and will feature the cigar during the week in which it is being displayed.

The manufacturer has many expenses nowadays, and it is problematical whether this scheme will make a hit with him, and especially since he has never paid for window display space. In his desire to boom business and have as many displays as possible, is it not likely that the drug store man will forget the cigar as soon as the brand is out of the window, a case of, "Off with the old and on with the new?" Furthermore, what will the returns be in a week of rainy, unseasonable weather, when no one carries on the street to watch the windows. And will it cost the manufacturer $3500 every time he wants to repeat his display?

We are inclined to think that this method of advertising is likely to fall flat. The manufacturer already has too many places to put his loose change—entirely too many outlets—and this latest one may be the straw that breaks the camel's back. Yet these same factory men are continually looking for something new, and the mere fact that the expense will be so large may convince some of them that the plan necessarily is a good one. At any rate, if the projected syndicate gets to going, it will be watched with interest by retailers everywhere.

This is one side of this question which will bear a little discussion. Retailers are often heard to make the complaint that many manufacturers use their windows to boost their brands, while they (the retailers) receive no benefit from it. They claim that the man who makes the goods is reaping the profits and, therefore, he should pay for it. And many of these same retailers belong to that army which allows the dust and spider webs to collect in the window, so that it resembles an antique shop. These men have no right to complain whatsoever—they are the kind that need taking care of.

On the other hand, the man who puts some thought on his window, the one who realizes its value and makes an intelligent effort to benefit by it, rarely registers this kick. He is usually in a receptive mood when a manufacturer approaches him, and is willing to co-operate with him in pushing his goods. This may seem strange, but it is a fact.

The one and only solution to this problem will be reached when the manufacturer and retailer get together and work in harmony, not being at loggerheads most of the time. The retailer should realize that in assisting the manufacturer to display his goods, he is helping himself to increased profits. Unless he assists the factory man, he is nothing more than a very unimportant unit in the system, a distributor for the maker of the goods. He should not take the stand-offish attitude that so many do—lean back on their oars and expect the manufacturers to do all the work—and then expect them to also pay them for their window space. At least not in the manner some appear to expect it.

When a retailer assumes this stand—and refuses to do his part—he will before very long fall to the fact that there are many other dealers—in the same town, perhaps not far away, who are willing to be more than distributors—men who can mold the minds of their customers, in a fashion and who have an influence in the sales.

Look around you and you will see many such. They are the big men. And they are big because they have done their part—perhaps much more than was expected of them.

Manila Strike Threatens Industry

The list to be submitted as provided for herein shall be on a form provided by the Collector of Internal Revenue and shall contain the following information: the name of each employee in full; date of original employment; his or her present residence; age; sex; number of 1912 cedula if employee is a male.

(b) On receipt of the list required in sub-section (a), the Collector of Internal Revenue will issue a certificate of registration to each cigarmaker and apprentice cigarmaker certified to as such on list submitted. The cigarmaker's certificate shall be in the form of a booklet, on the inside front cover of which shall appear the certificate proper, which shall set forth the fact that the holder has been certified as a qualified cigarmaker by the factory in which he is then employed, and all other information required in sub-section (a) hereof. The balance of the booklet shall be so ruled as to enable the keeping of a consolidated, continuous service record of the periods of employment of the holder and show the following: date of employment, name of the factory by which employed, signature of the owner or manager, and the date of leaving the employ of the factory.

The apprentice cigarmaker's certificate shall state that the holder has been certified as an apprentice in a given factory, and shall have appended thereto a certificate in blank to be filled out and signed by the owner or manager of the factory upon the expiration of the period of apprenticeship. Upon the termination of the period of apprenticeship the certificate must be presented to the Collector of the Internal Revenue for cancellation and issuance of the regular qualified cigarmaker's certificate.

(c) Any qualified cigarmaker or apprentice cigarmaker not employed by any manufacturer on October 1, 1912, may be registered at any subsequent date upon the presentation of a certificate from the owner or manager of any registered cigar factory, stating the fact that he is a qualified cigarmaker, or is entering the employ of the factory as an apprentice, as the case may be.

(d) The certificates of registration prescribed in sub-section (b) of this section shall be kept by the manufacturers employing the persons to whom same are issued during the period such persons are in the employ of the factory, and shall be open to inspection at all times by any internal revenue officer; and when a holder of a certificate leaves the employ of a factory his employer shall return the certificate to him, with the prescribed service record duly accomplished. At the time of issuance of a cigarmaker's certificate of registration, either to a qualified cigarmaker who has not been previously registered, or to a cigarmaker who has just completed his term of apprenticeship, the manufacturer employing said cigarmaker shall fill out the first line of the service record, with the exception of the last column, which shall be left blank until such time as the cigarmaker leaves the employ of the factory.

(e) On Tuesday of each week every manufacturer shall submit a report to the Collector of Internal Revenue giving the following data relative to any cigarmaker or apprentice cigarmaker who may have entered or left the employ of the factory during the last preceding week: Name of employe, number of certificate, and date of entry or leaving, as the case may be. In case there have been no changes during the week reported the words "no changes" will be written across the face of the report and the report then submitted.

Office form prescribed above will be serially numbered in duplicate before being issued to a manufacturer. The original shall be submitted to the Collector of Internal Revenue and the duplicate retained by the manufacturer.

tures. The business of the concern is being continued and the factory working full time, just as though there had been no changes whatever.

As to what the intentions of the new purchaser were Mr. Surbrug disclaimed any knowledge, and he didn't know whether his concern was to be included in the Tobacco Products Corporation or not.

The Surbrug Company is said to manufacture about 250,000,000 cigarettes a year, in addition to a large amount of smoking tobacco. Its outstanding capital stock is $200,000 common and $100,000 7 per cent. preferred. Dividends on the common have been paid for several years at the rate of 6 per cent. and in some years at 8 per cent.

The Butlers have been out of the cigarette field since they sold out to the American Tobacco Company, as there was an agreement made at that time that the former manufacturers would not again engage in business. The Circuit Court in this city, however, lately ruled that any such provision was in restraint of trade, and hence the abrogation of the contract by the Butlers.

This ruling has made possible the taking into the new company of a number of practical tobacco men who were previously identified with concerns which sold out to the American Tobacco Company between 1900 and 1910.

Independents Make Denials.

Inquiry by "World" representatives at the headquarters of Schinasi Brothers on West One Hundredth Street, New York, brought forth formal denial to the effect that they were interested in any way in the new combination. They furnished the trade press with the appended: "We, the undersigned, wish to emphatically deny that we are in any way connected with any corporation. We are strictly an independent firm, and any reports to the contrary are unfounded. Respectfully yours, Schinasi Brothers, manufacturers of the 'Natural' and 'Egyptian Prettiest' cigarettes."

Philip Morris & Co., through their secretary F. S. Lucey, state that they were not in any wise interested in the new combination, and a similar denial has been issued by the Nestor Company, of Boston; by M. Melachrino & Co., who are at present reported to be forming a private corporation of their own for the perpetuation of the individual business, by E. A. Condax & Co., through Mr. Paul Condax, and by Stephano Brothers, of Philadelphia, the manufacturers of "Rameses" cigarettes.

Reid Expected Home.

Inquiry from intimate sources in Wall Street failed to disclose any pertinent facts concerning the new corporation, and as a matter of fact two or three of the leading financiers, who are very close to D. G. Reid, state emphatically that they have no knowledge what his plans might be.

Mr. Reid sailed from England on the Kron Prinzessin Cecile on Wednesday, September 28th, and should reach New York today or tomorrow, when further authentic information will probably be issued.

One person connected with the proposed new corporation said yesterday:

"I think the success of the new company is assured. There are few who realize, with all the talk about the tobacco trust, just how many independent firms are putting out various forms of tobacco. By taking over these companies we are assured of securing a number of brands of a very valuable character. Of course, it will take some time to complete the arrangements, but we have secured options on enough companies to make certain a good start.

"All efforts will be made toward building up a big tobacco business. We are not talking about competing with any companies or fighting any of the present tobacco concerns.

Cigar Makers Argue New Principle of Expansion

Efforts Being Made to Induce Other Branches of Trade to Join International Union—Adopting New Constitution

BALTIMORE, September 25.

THE twenty-second convention of the Cigarmakers' International Union of America, which has been in session in this city since September 16th, has occupied most of its time in routine business. This week the delegates have been voting upon and adopting a new constitution, taking it section by section. There have been some heated arguments, but the work is going along in a satisfactory manner.

In his report, delivered the first day, President Perkins stated that of the 110,000 cigarmakers in the country about 45,000 are in the union. He gave many figures to prove the steady growth of the body, even through the business depression of 1907, which increase he attributed to the system of high dues and the various benefits.

One matter he dwelled upon at great length was the question of the union label. He quoted instances where he alleged the union-made cigar was discriminated against. He presented figures to show that the number of union labels issued in the last eleven years since 1901, the date of the last complete report, averaged 28,901,422 annually, compared with an annual average of 18,308,680 in the five-year period previous to 1901, indicating an average yearly increase of 10,592,742 since 1901.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, was one of the delegates from New York, he being a cigarmaker by trade. He was appointed on the Committee on Resolutions, which will attend to the matter of increasing the membership.

The subject which will probably receive the most attention and perhaps will provoke the most discussion, is the new principle of expansion. Heretofore the cigarmakers have stood aloof from other branches of the trade. This has been a palpable mistake in the estimation of many of the most prominent delegates, and when this matter is taken up tomorrow it will in all likelihood cause a stir. The idea is also to include stemmers, strippers, etc., in the membership. They have not been eligible previous to this. A committee of stogie makers from the Stogie Makers' League, Wheeling, W. Va., will be received tomorrow, and efforts be made to have them amalgamate with the International Union.

Means of organizing the women cigarmakers were also discussed. Delegates pointed out that women were being employed more and more in the business and that they should be urged to join. This movement has received some opposition from different quarters, where the women claim that they were never considered until the cigarmakers feared the growth of female labor.

This is the first convention that the cigarmakers have had in sixteen years, and the sessions will continue until October 5th, for the many matters of importance which have come up are receiving careful attention.

A fire recently in the Paterson factory of the American Cigar Company caused a loss of about $1,000. All of the 400 employees of the establishment were in the street within two minutes after the alarm of fire was sounded.

That is because we feel that there is room in this country for another tobacco company and that the consumers can support a company manufacturing all grades of tobacco goods."

The United Cigar Stores Company is expected to be greatly benefited through the formation of this new concern, although in just what way the officials will not say. It is understood, however, that the two concerns will work in harmony, the United handling the products of the new company.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

RETAIL RINKLES

Plans Used Successfully by Thinking Retailers to Improve Their Business.

A Cleveland (Ohio) retailer who was forced to give up a corner-stand which he occupied for many years, because of the erection of a new building, on the site, moved to the opposite side of the street in temporary quarters and put up the following sign: "The right store on the wrong side of the street." The sign was emblazoned in red letters on a white background and extended across the entire front of the new quarters. Customers looking for the new location could not fail to see the big red sign across the street and as a result this store has been holding its trade, pending the erection of the new building. When the proprietor moves back he ought to show a sign "The right store in the right place."

The retailer is none other than M. Gluckman, one of Cleveland's oldest and best known cigar distributors.

The Voegeli Drug Company of Minneapolis have adopted a unique selling scheme which goes a step farther than ordinary price cutting methods in vogue in so many drug store cigar stands to-day. On Saturdays, they conduct a one-cent special sale, which means that one cent added to the regular cost of a cigar will give you two cigars instead of one.

For instance: A cigar selling regularly for 10c. will be sold on Saturday at the rate of two for 11c. Just where the drug company gets off on this scheme it is difficult to say. The cheapest standard 10c. cigars cannot be bought for less than 5½c. apiece and to sell two for 11c. is simply exchanging goods for money.

On 5c. brands, two cigars sold for 6c., the store is apt to lose money on each sale.

In trade letters and sales talks, the makers and the jobbers of exclusive or superior lines are often tempted to use the "steam-roller" argument. They are inclined to tell unresponsive dealers that unless this opportunity to put in their line is accepted with docile alacrity, the rival store will be given the whole strength of the line, with such prestige, sales helps and the like, as will make it the leading establishment of the town.

But the dealers may have a far better perspective on the local situation than the maker's or the jobber's man. They may see at once that the "steam roller" is an over-valuation of one item. And they are sure to have a spark of independence that will not allow them to push a line which they have been forced to stock.

There are two rival brands of cigars in hot contest for a certain southern market. One is made by a home manufacturer who builds his local campaigns upon that fact. It is extensively advertised and has a distinctive merit that is valuable. But a salesman for an eastern cigar found an easy customer in one town near this manufacturer and after securing the order, fell into intimate conversation with his dealer.

"I want you to keep me on your list for every possible sales help," said the dealer. "I'm out to beat the— (he named the rival brand). Their salesman came in here and said if I didn't take his line he would make the grass grow in the street before my store."

"Of course I know that he has a good cigar, and that he had to find a representative for it in town or lose his job. But I figure that when any one line is important enough to run my whole business, it's time for me to step down and out. And I don't intend to do that for a while yet."

A New York firm which advertises extensively by means of slides in motion picture theatres, checks up its advertising twice each week by telegraph messenger boys throughout the country. Each local manager gives a messenger admission fees for the shows to be visited and a blank postal card report. This report shows the number of times a slide was exhibited at a performance, whether it was cracked, thumb-marked or upside down and if any slide advertising of similar products was shown, also whether the slide was shown long enough to be read.

Showing the goods is what sells them. The more you show the more you sell.

DISAGREES WITH CHICAGO WRITER.

DETROIT, September 24.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD.

Recently I took a fall out of slot machines, dice games, and kindred gambling devices in cigar stores. I note in your last issue a vigorous plea from some Chicago writer, wherein he takes a view directly opposed to mine. However, he seems nervous about the matter and closes with the words, "When a dog sleeps let him lie."

I hold the worthy gentleman is wrong. A dog asleep is a dog nevertheless and, sooner or later, he wakes up.

Truly yours,

The officers of the firm now are Fred E. Barnes, president; M. G. Schneider, vice-president, and F. H. Cuykendall, secretary and treasurer.

"La Diligencia" Factory to be Moved to Key West

The final details for taking over the La Diligencia factory in Havana were attended to on September 16, at which time Lawrence B. Gunst and Jaime Pendas, of M. A. Gunst & Co., closed the deal. It is intended to move the plant to Key West as soon as possible. Bernardo Moreda, former owner of the factory has left for Spain with his wife and family. After making the arrangements Messrs. Gunst and Pendas sailed for Key West, where they announced that a building had been secured, which would be used, pending the erection of a new plant.

IT is remarkable in these days of advertising, when so many new brands of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco are coming in the market and shouldering the old ones out of existence, how some old smokes still have their hold on the customer. Take, for instance, the cigar "Golden Crown," at one time a big one in the seed and Havana field in Chicago. This brand was originated by Lorin Palmer in 1857 and distributed by John Partridge & Co. Mr. Palmer was a member of that firm.

When this concern was succeeded by Best & Russell they made the "Golden Crown" their leader, it being manufactured at the time by the old house of Straiton & Storm, and being now put out by their successors, the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company.

During the past six years this firm has been pushing the "Robert Burns" and naturally the "Golden Crown" has taken second place. But this brand had taken such a strong hold on the consumers by that time that it is said it could again be pushed with fine results. Not so many years ago, Best & Russell sold more than two million in Cook County, Ill., alone, in one year. The label is one of the good old ones which appeals to the smoker.

This brand has been sold continuously since 1857 and Mr. Best, Sr., of the well-known Chicago house, says he has some smokers who started with this cigar when it was first introduced and who still stick to their old favorite. This only goes to prove that if a cigar is kept up in quality the consumers will back the maker up. Mr. Lorin Palmer, who started the "Golden Crown," is still living in Middle Hadden, Conn.

I heard a Turkish cigarette man spiel off a pretty good one the other day: "The fellow who pays compliments seldom pays the bills."

Smoking 300 cigarettes in twenty-four hours, Miss McKenzie, that breezy daughter of a Colorado mine owner, who blew into New York for a good time, soon landed in the hands of the police. According to the newspaper accounts, Miss McKenzie set out for New York to study the women of the metropolis under the bright lights of Broadway. She was curious to know whether the New York ladies smoked cigarettes, and if they did, whether they could keep up with her. She bought 500 cigarettes and began puffing them before breakfast, and kept up the performance for nearly twenty-four hours, when she became unconscious, being found on the steps of a church mumbling incoherent nothings. If the smoking sisters of her sex want to find a horrible example of the overdoing of a good thing, they need not go any farther than the record of Miss Pauline.

But—why blame the cigarettes?

Cigar—Why do you look at that old match on the floor?
Cigarette—It was an old flame of mine at one time.—
Lippincott's.

"It is all very well for you to lecture economy," said his wife, "but I notice whenever I cut down expenses, you smoke better cigars, and squander more coin for your own pleasure, than at any other time!"

"Well, confound it," retorted the young husband, "what do you think I want you to economize for, anyway?"

They are taking straw ballots on the possibilities of the three candidates for President in various theaters, and, at the end of the performance, post the results. A Chicago theater was the first to start this idea. Wilson and Roosevelt lead pretty even so far. The moving picture shows are flashing pictures for Taft, saying: "Leave well enough alone."

Reports have been coming from Cleveland the past two weeks, referring to the discriminating taste of a burglar who has been making depredations through a fashionable section of the city, called Cleveland Heights. It seems the usual thing for this Jimmy Valentine was to go to a house, which he knew was vacant for the summer. He would look around the place, and if it suited him would stay for a time, never hesitating to use the wine, cigars, and anything else which he took a fancy to. One thing which one householder objected to was the appropriating of a lot of good imported cigars, while the second-story man never touched some cheaper ones. Before leaving, the burglar, who had a fine sense of humor, would leave a note, calling attention to repairs needed, or he would criticize the liquors and smoking material. One man, who had lost some food and cigars, refused to make any complaint, saying that anyone who had such cultivated tastes deserved to go free.

A painstaking newspaper reporter, who waded through the recently issued Chicago city directory, found that there is a Dub in that town who smokes a pipe also a Pickle who smokes cigarettes. Upon further searching he discovered a Rainbow who chews tobacco, and one Maiden who is a crank about her cigars.

I saw a good card on the desk of a man I called on the other day that caught my eye. It read: "Thou shalt not be afraid to blow thy own horn, for he who faileth to blow his own horn at the proper occasion findeth nobody standing ready to blow it for him." Those cigar manufacturers nowadays who do not advertise should digest it. A hen has sense enough to advertise the fact when she lays an egg. Do these men have less sense than a hen?

A dearth of expert cigarmakers and apprentices is reported from nearly all the leading manufacturing centers, especially in the eastern and middle western states. In such centers as Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Cincinnati, manufacturers are in desperate need of more cigarmakers. Signs appear in front of nearly all the factories, and in spite of advertisements and other appeals, most of the factories seem unable to recruit their forces to a sufficient size to cope with their present orders.

The scarcity of labor is becoming a very serious problem among the manufacturers, and if our factories are to grow, it will have to be solved very soon. It is useless for the individual manufacturer to approach the solution alone. It is a problem which the manufacturers in each center ought to face together and with a united front.

For one manufacturer to take untrained help, school them in the craft of cigarmaking and then find that they go to other factories just as soon as they become useful, is very discouraging. But such is usually the case, where the individual manufacturer attempts to supply his own needs.

In recent years, the number of learners has noticeably fallen off, while the ranks of the expert cigarmakers have not grown. As a result, there is a gap between the supply and the demand which is growing wider daily. Now, it seems that if the manufacturers in each center were to form an association and establish a school, bearing the cost and responsibility pro rata with their production, they would find that they would soon attract a better class of help and always be able to fill their benches when trained workers were most needed.

The cigar manufacturing business is not a seasonal business, and while most factories fluctuate to some extent in the number of workers, there is always a steady and consistent demand for the better class.

If the manufacturers were constantly to have a new set of learners at work, they would find that the scarcity of labor would soon disappear.

Such a plan may seem Arcadian, but in our opinion it is the only practical one to meet the present situation. We would like to hear expressions of opinion from the manufacturers on this point.

It is a question that concerns you all and one that must be met on a broadminded basis.

The grievance of the Connecticut Valley tobacco growers against the Department of Agriculture, because of the juggling of figures, on the tobacco crop, which renders them valueless, draws attention to the general question as to the real value of government statistics.

While Secretary Wilson's department has rendered a service to the tobacco growers, and to everyone in the tobacco trade, by giving us a comprehensive report on conditions, the figures in which we are all interested, namely, what each type of tobacco brings to the farmer, are not to be had.

It is known that tobacco from various sections of the country brings different prices, and that a general average of these prices sheds no light whatever on what Connecticut brought and what the farmers of Pennsylvania and Wisconsin received.

As now constituted, the government reports confuse the situation and stir up a lot of mud that renders the figures very hazy. If we are to have government reports, why not have the kind that are really useful to the trade?

What the World Thinks.

¶Denver papers tell of a movement among Colorado retailers to reduce the cost of high living by selling the raw tobacco leaf to the consumers instead of the finished products, on which they claim the government levies such an exorbitant tax and the manufacturers reap such a profit. The idea of letting each smoker roll his own cigars, prepare his own chewing and smoking tobacco, and make his own cigarettes exclusively, is a relic of the era when tobacco was first discovered. How would you like to walk into a tobacco field, snatch a tobacco leaf from the growing plant and chew it, smoke it, or snuff it?

Our Colorado friends may be justifiable in their fight to lower the cost of living, but they have started along the wrong line. It's too antique!

¶Cigarette smoking among women has increased more than 100 per cent. in America during the past five years. One of the evidences of this is the fact that many of the leading New York hotels and restaurants, which only a year or so ago absolutely forbade women smoking, now either wink at the custom or openly permit it. Probably this explains part of the two billion gain in cigarettes last year.

¶The retailer who is so self-satisfied with himself that he will not read trade literature in search of new ideas, might as well close up shop. He is hopeless.

Friendly Dissolution of J. S. Gans & Company

Receivers Appointed to Bring About Satisfactory Settlement—Firm is Solvent

ON Wednesday, September 25th, Joseph F. Gans and William C. Duncan were appointed by Justice Dugro of the Supreme Court temporary receivers of the assets and effects of Joseph S. Gans & Co., wholesale leaf tobacco dealers at 150 Water Street, pending a suit brought by Joseph S. Gans against Edward I. Alexander, Jerome Waller and Moses J. Gans, his partners, to wind up the affairs of the concern. Partnership was formed on January 2, 1907, to continue until September 2, 1912. The action is merely to bring about a satisfactory settlement for each of the partners, the firm being entirely solvent.

Messrs. Waller and Alexander desired to retire from the firm, Mr. Waller having arranged to connect himself with the firm of A. Cohn & Co. Joseph S. Gans has taken up his quarters at the firm's place of business, to wind up its affairs, assisted by M. J. Gans.

The firm has large crops of tobacco, both in Florida and Connecticut, as well as more than $50,000 worth of leaf stored in his warehouse in New York. M. J. Gans left on Sunday, September 29th, for Connecticut, where he will sort out the crop which the firm has there, and he will leave later for Lake Jackson, Florida, to sort and bale the crop grown on their Southern plantations.

M. J. Gans, when interviewed, took particular pains to state "that all tobacco already sold, and held by them in storage, will be shipped immediately on request to those who have purchased it from them."

S. Monday & Sons Buy Cigarette Plant

The Turkish cigarette manufacturing plant of Antonides & Co., has been purchased by S. Monday & Sons, of Brooklyn, who have moved it to the Monday establishment at 34-40 South First Street, Brooklyn. This move has caused surprise among the trade, who are wishing the old and well-known concern luck in their new undertaking. They are operating a cigar factory in Brooklyn, in addition to doing a large jobbing business.

New Stand for Acker, Merrill & Condit's

The Acker Merrill & Condit Co. is opening a new store at 878 Park Avenue, corner of Seventy-eighth Street, which will be in operation about October 1st. It will carry a complete line of both domestic and imported smokers' requisites such as are sold in the other stands of this firm. They will shortly start to push their new nickel cigar, the "Piquant," a nicely blended smoke.

William F. King Dies at Home in Brooklyn Well-known Official of Philip Morris & Company Passes Away After Week's Illness

William F. King, assistant treasurer of the Philip Morris Company, died on Friday, September 20th, at his home, 1452 East Ninth Street, Flatbush, Brooklyn. He was buried on Monday, September 23d, in Greenwood Cemetery. The pall bearers, all members or employees of the firm, included F. S. Lucey, C. H. Sotcliffe, Benjamin Wachner, N. B. Haskins, W. R. Litell and George W. Kelpley.

Floral pieces were sent by William Curtis Thompson, the president of the company; F. S. Lucey, secretary, and Alec Herbert, the treasurer. A large piece also was sent by the office and factory employees and another by the Philip Morris & Company Birthday Club, of which the deceased was secretary. A pillow of flowers was sent by the Greenpoint Lodge of Masons.

Mr. King was born in London fifty-three years ago, but came to this country when a young man and became an expert accountant, in which capacity he worked until about five years ago, when he became connected with the Philip Morris Company. His death was due to pleural pneumonia, which he contracted exactly one week, almost to the hour, before his death. He is survived by a widow, two sons, and two daughters.

Brooklyn Independents to Hold Meeting

The independent retailers of Brooklyn expect to hold a mass meeting there on October 20th, at which time Judge Lewis L. Fawcett, a candidate for the New York State Supreme Court, will address the tobacco men. He will speak on "The Trust Problem." Secretary Nicholas Erlich has been working hard for some time getting the different trade organizations interested in the movement to consolidate the various bodies and has received a number of favorable responses. L. H. Fisher, president of the Brooklyn Association, is attending to the details of the proposed meeting.

New Western Representative for George Schlegel

J. N. Widdifield has been appointed as the new Western representative of George Schlegel, to succeed E. E. Thatcher. Mr. Widdifield's office will be located at 160 North Fifth Avenue.

Emile Bondy, of the firm of Bondy & Lederer, manufacturers of the "Tom Keene" cigar, returns October 1st from a business trip through western territory.

New York City Items

Justin Seubert, Jr., returned on Monday, September 30th, from a trip on the road for "Vicar" cigars.

He will spend about two weeks in London and Hamburg, in the interests of the "La Rosa" Manila cigars, and expects to return in about four weeks. The "La Rosa" brand is meeting with very encouraging success.

These packings run all the way from fifty to five hundred cigars, which consists of English cabinets, which are similar to a small standing closet with double doors, on the front and standing upright. Flat cabinets, which when closed, look like a large cigar box, but which when opened contain other boxes, containing various styles of cigars. Besides these, there are shown what are termed the "Royalty" packings, one for "Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany," and another for the "Prince of Monaco," the sovereign of the far-famed Monte Carlo.

The company have leased the first loft in the Marlbridge Building, at Thirty-fourth Street, Broadway and Sixth Avenue, and are now having it handsomely fitted up for the counting room and general office purposes. These magnificent offices in New York are a splendid adjunct to the wonderful Regensburg factory, which the company built four years ago in Tampa, at which time they transferred their manufacturing business to that point.

Quaker City Trade Outlook

WITH the approach of cooler weather and the holiday season, the dealers and manufacturers around town are in better spirits.

Calls at the large factories all elicit the same response, an optimistic outburst as to the business they contemplate doing this fall. Many of them have their time so well occupied that they are reluctant to discuss the situation, except to state conditions as being excellent. It would appear at times that there is more discussion during the duller months than now. At any rate they are now saying little and just saying wood.

The retail and wholesale lines show about the same condition of affairs. Retailers state that sales, both box and transient have shown a decided improvement, and one which fortells a brisk holiday trade.

Leaf dealers all are doing well. The call has been most insistent for 1911 Pennsylvania, Zimmer, or any stock that will do 155 for a thin binder. Havana and new Florida are also receiving their share of attention. Several fair-sized sales of the new Florida and Connecticut have been reported within the past few days.

Another Location for United

The Southwest corner of Fourth and Market Streets has been leased by the United Cigar Stores Company, who will open up there when the place has undergone the usual alterations. This is considered to be a good location. The ferry passengers pass the door and they are bound to get some of the trade enjoyed by stores near by.

Steigerwald & Company to Get Another Building

News from Steigerwald & Co., is that they have received so many orders on their "La Tonia" 10 cent cigar, and the "El Borita" nickel cigar that they are compelled to work nights to catch up with orders, the majority of which were secured from the Pacific Coast. They need a larger building which they hope to occupy by January 1st.

The Bohrow plant on South Second Street is going full tilt. L. M. The Ogburn-Hill Company has been in the tobacco business for more than thirty years. They made high-grade goods and had a large trade. It will be remembered they had a large loss by reason of a fire a short time ago.

After the fire, Charles J. Ogburn, senior member of Ogburn-Hill Company, decided to retire from the tobacco manufacturing business. C. D. Ogburn, junior member, also decided not to purchase the interest of his associate and negotiations followed with the R. J. Reynolds Company to take over the stock and good will of the firm.

Mr. R. J. Reynolds says that he has decided to establish a high-grade department for his plug business. It will be in the large new brick building now in course of construction, fronting on Church and Chestnut Streets, between Fourth and Fifth. Full Order Files for Baltimore Manufacturers

Wertheimer Brothers Oversold on "El Dallo"—Both Wholesale and Retail Lines Prosperous

BALTIMORE, September 26.

WITH the approach of fall everyone in the cigar business in the Monumental City is on the jump. The manufacturers are doing a business trade at this time which is most encouraging. There is not a factory around town which is not working to its capacity. Several of the largest are hard put to keep up with the demand and others have said that were it not that they had anticipated a good fall and holiday season, and had stocked up during the summer months, it would have been out of the question to fill the orders at this stage. These men had faith in the future and builded wisely. They are now reaping the fruits of their foresight. The only complaints to be heard are in regard to the scarcity of hands, especially cigarmakers.

Perhaps the busiest of the factories around town is that of Wertheimer Brothers. Mr. Wertheimer, Sr., stated recently that they are at this time more than 750,000 oversold and will be compelled to keep their salesmen home after October, at which time they will again be back at local headquarters after a campaign. They usually make another trip before the holidays, but will forego it this year. They are shipping a consignment of 50,000 "El Dallos" to Dusel & Goodloe, of Philadelphia, today, which house has taken on this brand and also the "Earl Marshall," another Wertheimer cigar.

Elliott, Ottenheimer & Elliott, since moving out to their new factory on East Olive Street, report business as improving each week. The workmen are still in the building and conditions are unsettled. They are looking forward to a brisk holiday trade.

A visit to the different large wholesale and importing houses shows plainly that there are few who have time to discuss the boom. "Yes, things are fine at present, but we are almost too busy to discuss them at this time," they say. Wm. Deiches & Son can be included among these firms. They state that sales on the "Fatima" cigarette have almost trebled within the past six months.

Lilly, Dungan & Co. report that there is no reason in the world to be anything but satisfied at this time. They are showing attractive window displays on the "Reynaldo" cigar, a product of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia.

Heineman Brothers are having a run on the "Salome" cigar. This brand has taken a strong and lasting hold on smokers everywhere and the makers declare that after the brand is once placed they have no misgivings about it repeating. It will take care of itself, they say.

The Manchester Cigar Company is busily turning out orders for their customers. Benjamin Paris, proprietor, stated that the "Bar None" and "Empire Whiffs" are selling in fine shape everywhere. The "Match-It" cigar is now in the oversold column. They are sending a large shipment of their goods today to the wholesale house of Narrigan & Co., of Philadelphia. J. F. D.

DISTRIBUTORS

More Floor Space for Schwarz & Sons

SCHWARZ & SONS, the large wholesale house of 72 William Street, Newark, N. J., have acquired the three story building next to their place of business in that city and have cut through the buildings using both places. They have been so crowded lately, that this move was absolutely necessary to accommodate their increasing trade. Schwarz & Sons have arranged to distribute the "Lord Stirling" cigar made by the Enterprise Cigar Company, of Trenton, N. J., and have already placed it in a number of good retail stores in Newark.

Popularizing "La Saramita" in Dayton

Eisenberger Bros., wholesalers and retailers, Dayton, Ohio, are featuring successfully the "La Saramita," made by Shields-Wertheim Co., Cleveland. They are well placed, and dealers frequently complain that they cannot get them fast enough. The Detroit factory, where they are made, is shipping the Best & Russell Co. 30,000 every day by express. Considering the fact that the cigar has only been in that market seven months the present sale is phenomenal.

"Lozano" for Lang and Company

The "F. Lozano" cigar, of F. Lozano, Son & Co., has been taken on by the well-known wholesale house of Lang & Co., of Portland, Ore. The first shipment of these smokes came in seven sizes. Cassatt" is considered to be a first-class piece of goods and should make a good impression on the smokers of the Monumental City. F. A. Davis & Sons will have exclusive control of the brand.

Shattle, the other member, has been a representative of the Philadelphia house, Bayuk Brothers Company, makers of the "Havana Ribbon," which cigar was widely distributed in Southern New Jersey through his efforts. Some of the brands for this house will be the "Charles Lamb," and "American Duchess" cigars, Martin Kinports Cigar Company, the "Spana-Cuba," Yocum Brothers, Reading, Pa., and several of their own brands.

Many Manilas for Pacific Coast

San Francisco is certainly receiving her share of Manilas these days. Several weeks ago the steamer "Mongolia" arrived from the Philippines with more than 3,000,000 of these imported goods. Among the large Pacific Coast firms to share in these cigars were: Henry W. Peabody, 96 cases, 960,000; the Edward Wolf Company, 650,000; E. M. Elam & Co., 750,000; and shipments for Ehrman Bros., M. A. Gunst & Co., took more than a million cigars from this shipment.

One characteristic of the goods in this lot was the different packings, many of which were gotten up for the holiday trade. There has been a steady improvement at all times within the past year in the appearance of the Philippine cigars, which is having a good effect on their sales.

Albert Bejach to Distribute "El Borita"

Albert Bejach, the Cincinnati wholesaler and retailer, has arranged to distribute the "El Borita" cigar, made by John Steigerwald & Co., Philadelphia. Henry Straus, the Cincinnati dealer, is much pleased with the returns he is receiving on the "Bank Note" cigar, manufactured by the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, and used a clever advertising scheme recently to boom this brand. In order to get the tenants of the Union Trust Building acquainted with the cigar, he gave away an imitation banknote, which was good for one smoke. Needless to say, he lost nothing on this clever advertising stunt.

Grommes & Elson Now in New Chicago Factory

Recently Finished Plant One of the Latest And Most Up-to-date in the Country

OUT at Robey and Wilmot Streets, Chicago, on the West Side, is what is probably the finest and most modern cigar factory in the United States. It has just been completed and is the home of the famous "Ben Bey" Havana cigars, made by Grommes & Elson. The proprietors are as proud of the factory as they are of the cigar, and that is about as strong as the matter can be put in words. It incorporates every sanitary and utilitarian feature that the needs of cigar manufacturing have suggested, and any one who walks through its three stories of clean lofts, filled with sunshine and fresh air, will agree with the estimate put on it by its owners. It is everything a cigar factory should be and is a fitting home for the splendid "Ben Bey," that is a leader with all Chicago lovers of good cigars.

It was built after designs thought out and prepared by Grommes & Elson and represents every good feature that has been learned by them in their years of experience in the cigar manufacturing business. Both are young men, but each has spent the most of his life amid the odors of fragrant tobacco. Mr. Grommes, being a son of the senior member of the old firm of Grommes & Ulrich, and Mr. Elson has spent his working life in the cigar making business.

They formerly had a factory at Tampa, Fla., and in that center of cigar manufacturing in the United States they learned the need for factories so built as to afford the maximum of health, comfort and contentment to employees. They then determined that when they built a factory it should be a model for others and they have done just that in the building just completed.

The first floor is occupied by the beautiful offices and the employees of the packing department. It is light and airy, the ceilings are high and working conditions are ideal. On the second floor is the factory, where a present force of 108 cigarmakers are contentedly at work making by hand the famous "Ben Bey" and the few other brands turned out by the firm. Each workman has plenty of "elbow room" and all the light and air that is desired. Modern lavatories, steel clothes lockers and a lunch room are provided, and during the lunch hour the firm furnishes free of cost hot coffee to those who do not care to leave the building for their lunch.

Employer and employee work hand in hand in this factory and each constantly studies the interests of the other. The members of the firm study as carefully the social and character qualities of their employees as they would those who are taken into their own household. There are no discords nor quarrels in the factory, and every employee

The cigar factory of Samuel Cohn, of Peoria, Ill., was slightly damaged by fire recently.

The stripping and sorting rooms are on the top floor and the shipping room is in the basement. All the walls are tiled, the ceilings are of steel, as are the stairways, and the floors are made of a composition that is both fire proof and germ proof.

The force now employed in all departments numbers about 150, but this will be increased to 200 when everything is in place just as Messrs. Grommes and Elson want to have it, which will be within a short time. Both gentlemen are unique in the business, in that they say they are less troubled about the problems of growth and expansion than they are to keep their product at its highest level of quality and still promote the welfare of those employed by them. There is nothing of altruism about this idea, or at least both gentlemen disavow the idea. They say it is only their conception of good business methods. They are both hustlers, but neither wants their output to grow to a point where the individuality of their product will be lost through lack of personal attention and inspection. Each is content not to despise the day of small things and on this foundation their business is built.

The "Ben Bey" cigar, which is both their pride and hobby, is a smoke for connoisseurs and has come to be one of the oftenest called for in Chicago shops. The firm covers the local field thoroughly and also has a representative on the road, who attends to the business outside of the city.

A large barn, belonging to Walter E. Allen, of Agawam, Mass., was burned to the ground about two weeks ago. The loss was placed at $6,000, partly covered by insurance. A large amount of tobacco was stored in the barn.

Our fall weather is really here and business conditions and the outlook for fall business never were any better. At least that is the general comment all over town. No one has any cause for complaint.

The Joseph T. Snyder stores here have been doing quite a business on the "De Luxe," "Blenheims," "Antonio and Cleopatra," "Cuesta Rey," "Solace" and "Van Dyke." In the cigarette line their "De Luxe" and "Pappas" have been going big.

Mr. Snyder, Mr. Mathias and Mr. Cummings, at the Buffalo end of the concern, were in town September 22 and 23 taking inventory, and were very much elated over the amount of business that had been done.

R. C. Heaney, the manager of the local Joseph T. Snyder stores, was in Buffalo in the interest of the concern. Vacations are only talked about in whispers around the Snyder stores. They sure are scarce. However, Earle Fairbanks, of the 523 Euclid store, was the lucky one, for he just returned from a vacation in Detroit.

Mr. Morton was in town this week placing "Antonio" and "Cleopatra."

The Fred Golmar Cigar Company report good business at present, and are looking for still more of an increase. They have control of most all of the brands they feature and have worked up an elegant box business on their brands. Their best sellers are the "La Saramita," of the Shields-Wertheim Company, and many special brands of clear Havanas. They are featuring the "La Lita," of Corral-Wodiska, in fifteen sizes, also many sizes of "Somella," of Andres-Diaz & Co., "El Modelo," of Jose Escalante, "Henry the Fourth," of Bustillo Bros. y Diaz. In the cigarette line the main sellers are the "Phillip Morris," "Melachrino," "Milo" and "Don Antonio" little cigars.

Mr. Herbert was in town the past week placing "Phillip Morris" cigarettes.

At the Rathskellar stand of the Fred Golmar Cigar Company, business has been improving constantly the past few weeks.

Mr. Dillingham, of the Rigby Company, Mansfield, O., is doing a wonderful business on the "Little Penn." At the present time he is 150,000 behind on the goods.

The factory of the Shields-Wertheim Company is overrun with orders. All their men are on the road and are getting good results all along the line on "Baby Saras" and "Saramitas." Mr. James B. Shields, the president of the concern, is taking a swing around the territory with good results.

B. Moos Company, paid the local people a visit this past week. Horace R. Kelley, the Manila importer, dropped in town to pay us a visit the other day.

Wilfred Perry, of the "Nebo" department of P. Lorillard Company, just returned from a trip through his territory, and reports a tremendous growth on his five-cent seller "Nebo."

W. F. Orth, the "Piedmont" representative, reports that "Piedmonts" are enjoying a very nice business throughout the state.

At the Pyle & Allen Co. vacations seem to be over and the store managers are back in harness again. The retail business has picked up with them and the wholesale department is having a great deal of trouble filling orders. The "New Bachelors" are enormous sellers, and the factory has been unable to supply the demand for the past three weeks. In fact there has been a great increase in both the wholesale and retail departments, and the prospects for fall business are very flattering. The company has just finished an advertising campaign on the "New Bachelor" and the results are very evident, as shown by the increased demand for the goods. An advertising man accompanied their salesman through the state.

Amongst the ten-cent goods they are featuring the "Sanchez y Haya," "Bachia," of the R. A. Bachia & Co., "Tadema," of Arguellez Lopez Company, "Liederkrantz," of R. In the five-cent goods the features are "New Bachelors," "Solent," "El Wad-ora" and Sanchez y Haya "Segundos."

Leaf Men Up in Arms Against New Schedule. New Yorkers Claim that Proposed Classified Freight Rates Will Be Serious Burden—Jump from 35c Per Hundred Lbs. to 65c.

THERE has been much agitation among the New York leaf trade over the proposed changes in the classified freight schedules, which will be considered by the Official Classification Committee of all the railroads, when it meets in that city on October 15. It is intended to place leaf tobacco in a double classification, instead of the straight rate as at present on carload lots or broken shipments.

Leaf tobacco in any quantity is now carried in the fourth grade classification, the rate being 35 cents a hundred between New York and Chicago. Under the proposed change all shipments under carloads, or 20,000 pounds, will be advanced to 65 cents a hundred between the above named cities, and proportionate rates to other points.

The change, it is said, would be a serious burden to the small manufacturer and even the large ones, while the commission man would be in danger of being driven out of business. The only advantage now enjoyed by the large shipper in New York is the free lighterage given him around points in the harbor.

Carl W. Wobbe, of 158 Water Street, New York, President of the Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, was surprised when informed of the proposal contained in the secret schedule of the Official Classification Committee.

"We shall certainly oppose any such drastic change in classification, and I shall present the subject to the Board of Trade for its official action next week," said President Wobbe. "Instead of higher classification, the trade should have lower rating. For instance, where there were 30,000 cigar manufacturers in the United States two years ago, we now have only about 20,000. The small dealer and manufacturer is being gradually eliminated and the business concentrated in larger holdings and control."

"If placed in the second class, tobacco leaf, both cast and west-bound, will be forced to pay approximately 100 per cent. more in freight, which will come out of the pockets of the small dealer and manufacturer; they cannot afford to do this and compete with the larger trader. The cigar trade in the United States has certain fixed prices, unlike the trade in Germany. Here the trade is usually a nickel or ten cents as the cheapest. In Germany the price advances from a nickel to six cents, and so on up to the highest grades."

While, as above stated, the objects of the organization are numerous and will, no doubt, increase as the association ages, but the first all-important subject is to arrange a new scale of wholesale prices by joining together and buying in larger quantities and distributing the stock among themselves. Havana says 1912 was largest crop since 1900

First three weeks of September fine for leaf dealers.—Further rise in prices of some grades indicates bright future.

HAVANA, September 25.

IF the month of August had closed well for our leaf dealers the first three weeks of the present month have even been better still, as can be seen by the volume of the transactions accomplished. The prices have not alone been fully sustained, but they experienced a further rise for several grades, and the outlook for the future is flattering. We have received in round numbers from the country 82,000 bales of all kinds of leaf, while the sales according to the different reports, furnished to us by the leaf dealers, have reached 53,000 bales, thus leaving an apparent excess of 29,000 bales of accumulated stock during the first three weeks of this month. In reality, however, there is no such quantity for sale, as the bulk of this amount consists of purchases made previously in the country, direct from the farmers, and is simply arriving for home consumption, or destined for export to the United States, or elsewhere.

Of course, there is tobacco to be had yet for some time to come, but if we should continue at the present gait, then we should soon arrive at a point, where all the good vegas will have changed hands. As the escogidas are on the point of terminating, the receipts from now on are bound to be smaller during the coming month. Therefore with large sales we would have to draw upon the stocks on hand.

While there is no longer any doubt, but that the 1912 crop in its totality has been the largest since the year 1900, the demand, however, has been such that it appears as if we have had a small crop. The beauty and fitness of all kinds of this year's leaf has been so universally recognized, that the majority of the buyers which have come here have stocked up with nearly double the quantity of leaf, which they have been buying in former years. Prices are not too high for manufacturers, as the yield is larger in the manufacturing of cigars, and owing to the excellent taste, it is expected that the consumption of cigars from this crop will materially increase all over the world. Of course, there is one dark side, and this is the scarcity of good wrappers, but this affects our manufacturers more than the Americans, as the latter can help themselves with other kinds of leaf, such as Porto Rico, Sumatra or Mexico.

Thanks to the enterprise of one exporter to Germany, who has sent some 1200 bales of Remedios, first and second capaduras, to that country, it almost looks as if we have a new customer for these two grades, and this in conjunction with the growing demand from the Argentine Republic and Uruguay, our dealers will henceforth not be alone dependent upon the American trade for these styles in future. It will affirm our market, and as the available quantity in this crop is small in reality, it seems as if the hopes of our dealers in seeing considerably higher prices this winter might be realized, and this notwithstanding the fact that the quality is not as heavy as in former years. On the other hand the flavor of the 1912 Remedios is far superior to anything, which we have had for a number of years.

We have heard of one serious complaint from some exporters to Germany, that some dealers here have refused to carry out their contracts on goods to arrive at a certain figure, because the market went up on the grades. This is a custom in Mexico "en vogue" among the Vagueros, that will sell their crops three or four times to different buyers, each time at a higher figure, but making some excuse to the first buyers that they could not deliver the tobacco at once. This same custom has been adopted by a few farmers here in Cuba, when they saw the market rising, and some dealers here complained to us, how they had to be obliged to raise their bids three or four times, before they finally were able to receive the vegas, or that they lost the same, because another buyer had still raised the ante. That our dealers here in the City of Havana should, however, try to lose their honor, by going back on their word for the sake of getting a few paltry dollars more, is certainly contemptible, and for the sake of the good reputation enjoyed by the majority of our leaf dealers, we trust that the cases cited to us have been isolated.

Sales from September 2, to September 21, totaled 53,051 bales, or divided were: Vuelta Abajo 21,381, Partido 8,966, and Remedios 22,704 bales.

Buyers were: Americans 20,008, one Canadian concern 5,000, exporters to Europe 14,303, shippers to South America 562, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes 13,178 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the Port of Havana, during the same period were: To all ports of the United States in bales: 19,150, Bremen and Hamburg, 11,479, Spain 2,150, Austria 570, Antwerp 19, Gibraltar 85, Oran 30, Mexico 59, South America 653; totaling 34,195 bales.

Cigars.

Unfortunately, the rumor only proved too true, that during the second half of August our cigar industry lost almost all again, that it had gained during the first half of that month, and which the following official figures from our custom house are proving, viz.:

| Export of Cigars from the Port of Havana. | Cigars. |
|--|-------------|
| From August 16th to August 31st, 1911 | 10,686,787 |
| From August 16th to August 31st, 1912 | 7,477,560 |
| Decrease in 1912 | 3,209,227 |
| From January 1st, 1911, to August 31st, 1911 | 121,293,861 |
| Decrease in the first 8 months of 1912 | 14,023,774 |

As we learn, the first half of this month shall, however, have commenced better again, although the official figures have not been published yet, and we hope, that at last the tide may have turned in reality, and that henceforth we can report more cheerful news from here as regards our cigar industry.

There are apparently good sized orders from the United States and England, while the demand from Germany is mixed, some factories claiming to have good orders, while others say the demand is not what it ought to be, at this season of the year. The calls from Canada are very good, and there is also more demand from the South American republics and Australia again.

H. Uppmann & Co. have purchased in all 9000 bales of this year's Vuelta Abajo crop for their H. Uppmann factory.

Romeo y Julieta added another 2000 bales of Vuelta Abajo to their previous holdings, so that the same reach over 10,000 bales in all, which include some choice stock of the 1909 and 1910 crops, but none of the 1911 growth.

Partagas also bought 2000 bales of Vuelta Abajo additionally, during the last fortnight, thus being fully provided for any emergency.

Mr. Allie L. Sylvester, president of the American Cigar Company, of New York, and chairman of the Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Ltd., paid us a flying visit from the 12th to the 18th of this month. Mr. W. A. Millett, a director of the latter company, left on the 14th for New York upon a two weeks' vacation. He could not be spared any longer, as business is rushing in the principal factories.

The new blend of the Castaneda factory has been approved by the critical importers of New York, and in consequence orders have arrived in big quantities.

Sol is in receipt of splendid orders from the United States, England and elsewhere.

Eden reports a very flourishing state of affairs, as far as orders are concerned.

Don Felipe Rodriguez arrived from New York to-day, by the Steamship Saratoga. The Elite factory continues to be filled with orders from all parts of the world, high priced regalia sizes predominating.

Don Bernardo Moreda left with his family for Spain on the 20th inst., in order to enjoy a complete rest for a couple of years in his mother country. Quite a number of friends wished him "bon voyage," and a speedy recovery from his ailment.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

The sterling house of Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez had a banner three weeks, as their sales reached the big quantity of 9,547 bales of all kinds of leaf, and which included 2,150 bales shipped to the Spanish Regie.

Muniz Sons also had some good business during the same period, as they closed transactions amounting to 2,730 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Don Ramon Arguelles, of the Romeo y Julieta factory, became the lucky father of a bouncing girl baby, on the 14th inst., and all of his friends in congratulating him wished him a repetition in due course of time, in the shape of a baby boy in 1913.

Don Eustaquio Alonso, of Partagas fame y nada mas, celebrated his saint's day on the 20th inst., receiving the felicitations and presents of his friends. One of them sent him a goat.

Mr. Ernest Ellinger showed us his cartage bill for the month of August, and which was presented the moment the World correspondent called to make him a visit. It showed that his firm had handled very close on to 4700 bales, going in and out, in that time. This is surely a sign that Don Ernesto is hustling when here. He left on Sunday last by the Steamship Havana for a short respite in God's country.

Mr. H. H. Strater also was one of the passengers by the Steamship Havana for Philadelphia, via New York, being accompanied by Mrs. Strater. His object is to have a rest although he would not neglect to see his customers at the same time. His large packing of genuine Manicaragua, and from the best vegas, is still in progress at San Juan de las Yeras and will yield around 4200 bales.

New Equalization Agreement Working Well—Cuesta, Rey & Company Discontinue Use of Electric Machine, Pending New Improvements to Apparatus

TAMPA, FLA., September 25.

THE rush of the holiday season finds the cigar manufacturers of Tampa in excellent shape to meet the big demand expressed in teeming orders from hustling salesmen. There is but one un-ward circumstance which is militating against the full tide of prosperity and activity in the factories at this season. This is the shortage of skilled cigarmakers. The manufacturers are non plussed as to the reason for this condition. Hitherto the cigarmakers who went north for the summer have been returning, ready for work, long before this time of the year, and there has been no difficulty in filling all the available benches. At present, however, there is an urgent need here for more men. Of course there are some idle cigarmakers in Tampa, but they are not of the class employed in the making of high-grade goods. It is hoped that, by the end of another week, the manufacturers will be enabled to obtain all the men they need, but just now there is room for three or four hundred additional workmen.

For the first time since the spring, the output is now over the one million a day mark, the shipments for last week being slightly in excess of 6,000,000 cigars.

The industry has been gratifyingly free of troubles all summer. The happy idea of the Citizens' Association in cooperating with the Manufacturers' Association in the employment of inspectors to visit all factories and see that the equalization agreement of 1910 is being lived up to, seems to have been the means of avoiding the usual kicks and clashes. The inspectors have been diligent and have quickly adjusted all differences that have arisen. They have encountered several puzzling problems recently, and appealed to the association for further instructions, which were given at a joint meeting of the Manufacturers' Association and the Citizens' Association, held last week.

The manufacturers have experienced two serious obstacles recently. The quarantine which was maintained for about ten days, incident to the bubonic plague scare at Havana, prevented the shipment of tobacco, and many of the factories which had not taken the precaution to stock up ahead, were obliged to shut down several days. Fortunately, the quarantine was brief and the shipments of tobacco were immediately resumed. Another shutdown was caused by the record-breaking rainfall of ten days ago, when rain fell almost incessantly for four days and made it impossible to work the tobacco and, in some cases, owing to flooded conditions, to even reach the factories.

M. W. Berriman recently returned from Cuba, where he spent some time with his factory manager, Manuel Sanchez. Mr. Berriman proceeded in a few days to New York.

A. A. Martinez, of the J. M. Martinez Company, is spending a vacation in New York City. He will remain for the world's championship baseball series.

Jose de la Campa, the agitator, who has just finished a term of one year in the convict camps, under a sentence of local courts for conspiracy in connection with the big strike, has made his reappearance in the city, but, from all accounts is very conservative and docile in his conduct. He was one of the speakers at the Tampa celebration of Labor Day, speaking in Spanish, but making none of his usual appeals to passion and prejudice. He is said to be employed by the International Cigarmakers' Union as an organizer.

Frank R. Diaz, of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., reports fine conditions at this factory and many large holiday orders for "La Mega." Harry Calbreath, the popular traveling man of the firm, is on the Coast again, after a brief visit to headquarters. This firm is making some very attractive holiday packages.

W. I. Webb, of the J. M. Martinez Company, has returned from his vacation, spent principally in the White Mountains.

B. J. Mays, of Guesta, Rey & Co., has returned from Hampton Springs, Fla., where he spent two weeks for rest, but he was unfortunately attacked with severe illness upon arriving there and spent most of the time in bed. He is now slowly recovering and catching up with the office work of the big concern.

The much-vanited electric machine for exterminating bugs in cigars, which has been given a thorough test in the factory of Cuesta, Rey & Co., has not done the work promised for it, and its use has been abandoned by the firm. The promoters of the apparatus state that they will have certain defects in the machine corrected and that it will then do what is claimed for it. Manufacturers here were watching the test with keen interest as the success of the process would have meant much saving to them as well as a higher quality of cigars.

The Jose Lovera Company has just shipped a carload of cigars to Seattle, consigned to Schwabacher Bros. & Co. The shipment was of the finest sizes and the car was appropriately labeled, attracting great attention en route.

J. J. French, formerly of the Havana-American Company, who recently embarked in a new concern, known as Quiros, Villazon & Co., has returned from his first road trip and reports business excellent.

Celestino Vega has been making frequent trips to Cuba, buying tobacco.

Val. M. Antuono, of "C. H. S." fame, finds his orders sufficient to tax the capacity of his factory. His "Duke of Belcourt" is also in great demand.

The clubhouse of the Centro Asturiano, which was badly damaged by fire a few months ago, will be entirely removed and a new structure erected. Permission to do this work was obtained by Mariano Alvarez, vice-president of the local branch, on a recent visit to the headquarters of the parent society, Havana.

The Sanchez & Haya Company succeeded in getting an unusually fine lot of tobacco from the new crop. Simon Gonzalez, manager of the factory has gone to Spain to visit his relatives there and will spend about four months abroad.

Levy Joseph has resigned as local factory manager for Leopold Powell.

Lawrence Gunst is in Havana on business connected with the M. A. Gunst Company. This firm, it is reported, is soon to open a factory at Key West.

The business of the Tampa Box Company is breaking all records this season. The company is rebuilding, on a larger scale than before, the mill portion of its plant recently destroyed by fire.

Improvements at the factory of the Boltz-Clymer Company are very noticeable. The front of the building has been repaired and re-decorated and broad concrete walks built from the entrance of the factory to the car tracks.

Fernando Rodriguez, of the "Charles the Great" factory, is expected here daily from New York.

New Orleans to Have New Pipe Factory

John Hoffman Leases Building for That Purpose—John P. Gaspard, Pioneer Cigar Manufacturer Dies—Many Pipe Salesmen in Town

NEW ORLEANS, September 25.

IT so happened that three pipe salesmen were here one day last week. The trade were inquiring if a pipe sellers convention was to be held. W. H. Lewis, of Adolphus Frankau & Co.; Ed. Sickles, with Kaufman-Bros. & Bondy, and C. H. Schlichter, representing Wm. Demuth & Co., were the smokers article travelers on hand.

The United Stores have fine window displays this week of "Cuesta Rey" and "Uppmann's Baby Bouquet."

J. Barzana, manufacturer of "La Dancita" and "8-20-6" cigars that have an excellent local sale, as well as a number of private brands manufacturer for the trade, has been kept so busy that he has had to increase his force of cigar makers.

Odenwald & Bros., Canal and Exchange Place, who specialized Pendas & Alvarez "Webster" cigars, state that they have regular customers whom they have been supplying "Websters" to for fifteen years.

John Hoffman has leased the building, 232 Royal Street and will devote the ground floor to the manufacture of meerschaum and briar pipes. Mr. Hoffman is one of the few men in the South who has mastered his trade in Europe, and has installed in his factory all the machinery necessary for the manufacture and repair of pipes of all kinds.

In the death last Sunday of John P. Gaspard, 537 Decatur Street, there passed away one of the pioneer cigar manufacturers and dealers. For the past thirty years he has conducted the tobacco store at the Decatur Street stand, and was well known and universally esteemed.

News has been received here of the death of Walter Metzler, of the firm of Metzler Bros., Dallas, Texas, prominent cigar merchants of that city. Mr. Metzler has many friends here who learned the sad news with much regret.

Juan M. Gonzalez has just returned from his annual trip to Cuba. Mr. Gonzalez has purchased a large quantity of Havana tobacco to be used in the manufacture of his "Lacoya" and "Flor de Gonzalez" cigars.

Havana Letter

Don Antonio Calzada, after his return from the Vuelta Abajo, has gone to the province of Santa Clara, in order to pick up some good vegas for his customers.

Sylvester & Stern received on account of previous contracts, and some new purchases, 8000 bales of all kinds of leaf during the last three weeks.

J. F. Bernides & Co. had bought for their customers, up to the 21st inst., 26,000 bales of all kinds of leaf, a large part of which is still stored here in their several warehouses.

ORETANIV.

George M. Pruitt, Popular "Havana Ribbon" Salesman

George M. Pruitt, popular South Jersey booster for Bayuk Brothers Company's "Havana Ribbon," is said to be one of the ranking members of that hustling staff of salesmen. He has been covering that territory for more than two years, and the large distribution the brand enjoys in the land of the mosquito amply proves his ability to produce results. Any doubting Thomases who are skeptical as to these statements have only to look around when they get to the shore towns for their annual respite from business life.

Mr. Pruitt is a resident of the City of Brotherly Love and votes from an address in West Philadelphia—he has not told us who for, as yet. He joined the army of married men less than a year ago, and with his wife takes great pleasure in showing his friends that the wedded state has single blessedness beaten fifty ways.

Mr. Pruitt, we extend to you our earnest solicitations and trust your endeavors will be as fruitful in the future as they have been in the past.

Sam Jeitles, of Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., of Philadelphia, has a great many accounts in the Middle West. His "Frat" brand, sold by Geo. C. Knight, and "Havana Merits," by Albert Breitung, both of Chicago, are big sellers. When Sam's around he has all the boys goggle-eyed by showing the orders he takes from the W. A. Stickney Cigar Company, of St. Louis, for the "Tungsten" tin can brand.

Charlie Zeller, representative for the "Philip Morris" cigarette, has moved his office from the Colonial Theater Building Chicago. Dealers say it is a stand-off whether this brand of "Pall Mall" leads in Chicago as the 25c. cigarette. Zeller was formerly a jockey, but lost one of his arms in a race. The Philip Morris concern has a live wire in Zeller.

Nate Sampliner, who is doing yeoman work pushing the "Scribner" cigar, made by Bucher & Bucher Co., Dayton, Ohio, is again on a Western trip after a brief visit to the factory.

Arthur Meyers, factory agent for Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, has gone to San Francisco, where he will assist Michalitschke Bros. to place the "Henry the Fourth" among the leading dealers.

J. J. Hess, Coast agent for A. Santaella y Ca, makers of the "Optimo" cigar, has been in Seattle working hand in hand with the National Grocery Company helping them to push this brand.

J. A. Snyder, formerly representing the Blakslee-Snyder Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., is now connected with the Haas Tobacco Company, of that city.

Sanchez y Haya have put another representative on the Pacific Coast in the person of O. J. Lansing, who has been campaigning in Seattle on the Sanchez y Haya goods. Mr. Lansing will make San Francisco his headquarters.

William H. Curlett, a traveling representative of the American Cigar Company, has been campaigning in Buffalo, N. Y., where he has been popularizing the "Hoffman House," "Chancellor" and "Cremo" cigars.

Want More Enlightening Tobacco Reports

Connecticut Growers Say That Government's Figures on Sales Are Useless

A DESPATCH from Suffield, Conn., relates how the Connecticut Valley tobacco growers are nursing a grievance against the Agricultural Department at Washington, because of the recent statistics announced for the 1912 crop.

According to these statistics the average price paid farmers for tobacco in August was 11.7 cents a pound, as against 9 cents and a fraction a year ago. Except for the short crop years of 1874, 1865, 1864 and 1863, the department states, the 1912 average price is the highest on record. This is decidedly news to the New England farmer. The average price of tobacco, growers are informed, has not reached 11 cents a pound until this year, since the close of the Civil War.

New England farmers grow the great bulk of the fine domestic wrapper tobacco. Prices paid for this year's crop have ranged from 17 or 18 cents a pound to 35 cents for Havana seed and broadleaf strains. Only damaged tobacco has sold below the minimum price named. Moreover, after making due allowance for the fact that the New England tobacco grower is an intensive farmer and raises more pounds of tobacco per acre than the tobacco farmers of any other states, the fact remains that he cannot grow tobacco for 11.7 cents a pound, the "average price" which the Department of Agriculture mathematicians have arrived at.

The farmers of Wisconsin, the great binder State; of Ohio and Pennsylvania, which produce medium grades of tobacco, and of Kentucky and Tennessee, which raise burley leaf, can sell their crops profitably at prices below the cost of production in the Connecticut Valley. The comparison is particularly striking in the case of Connecticut shaded tobacco, for which the planter receives close to $1 a pound.

The Connecticut Valley tobacco planter is unable to comprehend why the Department of Agriculture should lump the price paid for tobacco in a score of States and then promulgate an average price for the country's entire crop.

Tobacco growers say that the preparation of statistics of this nature is waste of time. The only figures bearing on prices that would be of value to the tobacco farmer or the tobacco trade in general would be the average price paid for each strain of tobacco.

All Lines of Trade Hustling—Rosenthal Brothers & Bendetson
Pushing "La Famosa" and "Havana Ribbon"

Boston, September 23.

THE cigar and tobacco industry in Boston and greater Boston is good. Fairs and conventions are being held, large quantities of cigars and cigarettes are bought, sold, and smoked. Sailors coming into the port of Boston, generally stock up here with plug tobacco and incidentals.

Wait & Bond, Inc., report business as good, repeating orders on "Blackstones" are very satisfactory.

H. Traiser Company, Inc., say that business and trade is brisk, orders on the "Harvard" and "Pippin" with other cigars, coming in every day.

Goldsmith & Silverman report that the trade on the "M. C. A." cigar is growing stronger every day. Their box trade with retailers is increasing rapidly.

G. Frank Davenport, manufacturer of the "Annie Pixley" cigar, will need more help if orders keep coming in, as his cigars are well liked and smoked in hotels and club rooms.

At the principal cigar and tobacco stores on North Street, Atlantic Avenue and the Hanover Street Bazaar business is good, and growing better every day.

In Charlestown all the retail cigar stores report trade as fair, being about the same the year round, with the exception of "Bunker Hill Day."

On Federal Street leading from the Post Office to the South Station, the cigar and tobacco dealers say that business is very fair for this time of the year.

On Essex Street, starting at Hamillburg's "Cigar Box" to the South Station, trade with the cigar, tobacco and cigarette men is considered very good; cigars by the box are being bet on the election.

At the picnic or outing of the "United Commercial Travelers" the "Arab" cigarettes were the only ones used.

At the State Street smoke shop trade is very good, the demand for Havana and domestic cigars is about equal. All kinds are kept to suit everybody in all goods appertaining to the business.

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company is giving gratis an extra large pipe with each eight ounce tin of "Prince Albert" smoking tobacco.

Hull's Pharmacy, New Haven, has installed a large window display of "Hoffman House Bouquet" cigars, distributed by Hyneman Brothers.

John J. Keirnan, V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., was in town the last few days, taking orders and placing the firm's "Artemo" brand.

Klein's Drug Store, at Tremont and Boylston Streets, has just installed a fine and large window of popular smoking tobacco, advertised at ten cents, and three packages for twenty-five cents.

Mr. Newman, Federal Cigar Company, was in the city last week calling upon the jobbing trade.

Frank H. Scobey has been appointed the successor to Mr. Fishbach as the representative for "Melachrino" cigarettes, in New England.

Steve Hertz and J. M. Diaz, Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, are in town this week calling upon the trade. Mr. Hertz will soon take his Southern trip.

At Lynn the "La Integridad" cigars are finding considerable favor. H. E. Pearce, on Market Street, has added this brand to his window and cases.

Rosenthal Bros. & Bendetson are distributing a great amount of advertising matter, featuring their leading five-cent brands, the "R. R. Special," "La Famosa" and "Havana Ribbon," and in consequence these lines are growing in popularity.

A. Wingersky, of T. Rosenbaum & Co., has just returned from his eastern trip.

Dickey & Hodgdon, tobaccoists, 27 School Street, opposite City Hall, Boston, report business as fair, but collections slow on box trade. Their trade through the summer has been good, as all the School Street cigar dealers have had a good business.

I see our old friend, Geo. Beach, who has been with the Riker-Jaynes cigar department for many years, is again back of the counter at 143 Summer Street. George has been changed around a great deal of late and is glad to get back to 143, where they always need a good man, and he is all that.

"Pat" Neeson is working as hard as ever with "Capulets" and "Jaynes" perfectos. He is noted for his "plugging" of these brands, and says box trade was never better.

At the Holland Wine, Cigar and Cigarette Company, Boylston Street, business is picking up, as "Young Charlie" Holland has just returned from two weeks spent up at Laconia, N. H., and is ready for the fall trade. They carry a first class line of imported and domestic cigars and cigarettes, and are agents for "La Mega," a Havana cigar.

Chicago Office for Sargent Humidor Company.

The Sargent Humidor Company has opened a Western office at Monroe and State Streets, Chicago. The business of this concern has been increasing at such a fast rate that to facilitate matters they have been obliged to establish this branch, to take care of the Western field. Their representative in that district will be John L. McKay, who will make the above address his headquarters.

Jeremiah J. Kelleher, who has been conducting a retail store in Fitchburg, Mass., for a short time, has taken over the cigar factory of Daniel W. Teehan, at 155 Main Street, that city, and will continue to make the "Monogram," "Fay Club" and other brands which Mr. Teehan has been manufacturing. The business was established thirteen years ago.

Samuel Traub, a retired cigar manufacturer of Brooklyn, N. Y., died in that city last week. He had lived in Brooklyn for many years, having come there at an early age from Germany. He was 85 years of age.

Birmingham One of Important Tobacco Centers of South City Does an Enormous Business, Which is Rapidly Increasing—R. D. Burnett Cigar Company, Large Wholesalers, to Move to New Home Early in 1912

THIS hustling city smokes fifty million cigarettes and about twenty-five million cigars in the course of a year, according to local wholesale tobacco dealers. They say a tobacco business of two million dollars a year is done here. Birmingham has two of the largest jobbing houses in the state and supplies virtually all the tobacco used within a hundred miles of this city or the northern portion of Alabama.

The two large wholesalers are the R. D. Burnett Cigar Company and C. C. Snider. In addition to these firms a number of the wholesale grocers and jobbers carry big stocks of tobacco, and do no mean business. Several of the large industrial companies which run strings of commissaries, buy direct from the factory. The estimate on the amount of tobacco handled by these concerns is hard to get.

It is surprising to hear of the amount of snuff consumed in this region. It is said to be over $150,000, a figure all out of proportion to the population. A large part of this is used outside of the city.

The sales of plug tobacco are very heavy indeed. One estimate placed the amount of plug tobacco sold in Birmingham at 250,000 pounds while another estimate placed the sales on this article at between four hundred thousand and five hundred thousand pounds a year.

The amount of granulated smoking tobacco has been estimated by one dealer at 300,000 pounds a year, while another dealer estimated that Birmingham sells more. Of the plug cut pipe tobacco it is estimated that Birmingham sells about 75,000 pounds a year.

Estimates on the increase in the sales of cigarettes were hard to secure. One dealer stated that it was a hard matter to estimate the increase while another hazarded an estimate that the increase would run almost forty per cent.

Greater Birmingham uses a large percentage of the cigars and cigarettes sold here each year. The estimates run almost as high as eighty per cent. on the cigarettes.

Birmingham's wholesale tobacco houses, C. C. Snider and the R. D. Burnett Cigar Company, are enjoying good increases in their business and the trade territory is broadening from Birmingham.

On the first of January the R. D. Burnett Cigar Company will go into its new home on Second Avenue, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth Streets. The new building is 50 by 140 feet and five stories high. It is of reinforced concrete and one of the most modern buildings in the city. Most of the first floor and the basement will be occupied by the Burnett Cigar Company, while the upper floors will be leased by a well known concern. The most modern humidors will be installed and the building will be thoroughly equipped as a wholesale tobacco house.

The American Tobacco Company's representative, "Dick" Buckman, is again in town, having been in New York and Chicago for the past two months. He reports good sales with the "Piccadilly," a small cigar packed ten in a box.

The windows at No. 50 Washington Street always look good for Geo. Hennessey, who is in charge of the cigar counter, has some clever schemes for dressing them. A cigar called "Jaynes Limited" is being featured at six cents straight, and is meeting with success.

WM. T. HENDERSON.

RECENT CONVENTIONS PROVE HARVEST FOR CIGAR MEN

Charles Richter, Old-time Restaurateur Dies in Germany—New Stands Around Broadway Market—
La Fond's Lease Store for Retail Business

DETROIT, SEPT. 25. STATE Fair week, September 16 to 21, brought multitudes hither who left copious change in the coffers of the Detroit United Railway and the tills of the cigar merchant, hotel man and lunch counter magnate. Several recent large conventions, with their concomitant banquets, receptions, side trips, etc., are local incidents from which large sales of cigars and cigarettes have sprung. Manager Al Thornberg, of the Pontchartrain Cigar department, states that recent gatherings have proved a harvest for his department, the sale of banquet sizes of high class brands, in addition to excellent business on regular sizes, being most gratifying. The lobby of the Pontchartrain was so packed yesterday with Republican politicians attending the state convention that, at times, it was almost necessary to light one's way through. Of course, the Cadillac, Griswold, Wayne, and other leading hotels profit greatly by these gatherings, but none to quite the same degree as the Pontchartrain.

Two of our most urgent needs are a convention hall and additional hotel service. Of the two, the latter is the more insistent want. Every few months we are cheered by press stories (sometimes illustrated) of "another" modern, fire-proof, fifteen-story or so hotel to be erected at a cost of a million dollars or two when all details are perfected and leases arranged, etc., etc. Such tales doubtless spring mostly from the fertile imagination of some embryonic Napoleon of finance or realty. Thus far they have proved unreal and unsubstantial. The latest fact, however, involving the Hotel Cadillac, has some foundation in fact. But even this gives forth no promise of increased accommodation or new building for two years at least. Then it is projected to erect a fifteen-story, 750-room hotel on the present site, strictly high-class and up-to-date in all respects. The Messrs. Swart Bros., present lessees of the hotel, will retire November 1st, having sold the equipment and good will for $275,000. The Cadillac has, for twenty years, been one of the best known and most liked hotels with the traveling public. For the past fifteen years it has been under the Messrs. Swart Bros.' management. Their retirement is a great surprise to many. No immediate change in policy or staff is announced. Whatever changes may develop, it is hoped Detroit will not lose the agreeable presence of Clerks Purtscher and Carson.

The hosts of friends of Chas. Richter, old time restaurateur and founder of the Hotel Richter, will be grieved to learn of his death, September 15th, at Stuttgart, Germany, whither he had gone last spring in search of health. Mrs. Richter was with him at the time of his death. Mr. Richter moved to this country with his parents in 1852. He served for three years as a private in the Civil War, previous to which he worked as a blacksmith in Newark, N. J. In 1866 he came to Detroit, and two years later started in the restaurant business. At different times he had restaurants at Marquette, Mich., New York and Hoboken. He played an important part in the affairs of the Harmonic Society, which, in his days, was the leading musical organization of the city, as also the centre of social activity among the Germans.

In keeping with the State Fair, was a window carried last week by the Central Cigar Company, corner Broadway and Gratiot Avenue. Most in evidence was a scare-crow artistically created out of one of "Jim" Robinson's old hand-me-downs. This was aided and abetted by diverse and sundry pumpkins, squash, oats, straw and other agricultural details. Incidentally, a few boxes of "Court Royal" and "San Telmo Record" sprang into view here and there. The window was unusual (for Detroit) and effective.

As forecasted in THE TOBACCO WORLD several months ago, more cigar stands are gathering about the new Broadway market. Jesse Rothschild opened some time past, and now J. S. McDonnell is just opening in the immediate neighborhood, at 85 Broadway.

Another new stand is that of Lester Wanamaker, at 63 Michigan Avenue. This will be operated in addition to the present stand at 14 Michigan Avenue.

There is a handsome display of "Bellino" this week, in the Woodward and Clairmont Avenue store of the Detroit Drug Company. This is a seed and Havana cigar distributed by the Jackson Company of this city. Other displays of the same cigar are noted at Marvin Preston, Jno. Ford, Temple Cigar Store, Ben Crittenden, Art Klotz and Blessed's Grocery.

The La Fond Cigar Company, aided by a vigorous campaign in the local press, have done a big business in a comparatively short time with the "John Ruskin" five-cent cigar, made by F. Lewis Cigar Company, of Newark, N. J. Owing to a shift in the La Fond organization, a rumor was started that the recently established wholesale division would be discontinued. This report is entirely unfounded. The sales for August show an increase of nearly 80 per cent. over July. I do not feel warranted in disclosing the gross amount as given to me by Chas. La Fond, but it runs into good sized figures and is highly flattering to a three months' old concern.

Another move of the La Fond's that has stirred great interest is the leasing of the store at 127 Woodward Avenue at a high rental, for the purpose of opening a retail stand. Within a few yards, on the same side of the square, this is flanked by Bert Johnson, O'Brien & Co., E. M. Harris and Robert Schram, while directly opposite is the Hotel Pontchartrain, The Metropole and United Cigar Stores, and Louis Schneider. Faith must be strong in the La Fond boys, but there are doubting Thomases who say they can't make good. Yet the same was true when they took the Majestic stand at what was then regarded as an enormous rental. They made good in the Majestic with a vengeance. The new store will embody some novel ideas in arrangement and fittings.

Both M. A. and C. A. La Fond are now in the East, adding business to pleasure.

Ed. Heinenan is looked for Thursday from Pt. Hope, Mich. Al. Neff forsook Gittneyville a few days ago and, between sales at McMillan's, is reminiscing about pleasant times with the village lads. European tourists are returning, among them Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hemmeyer, Chas. Eichhorn, of the Victor Jar Company, and Jno. P. Lieberman and family.

Detroit manufacturers are a unit in lamenting the want of cigar-makers. They are watching one another jealously. Under present pressure it would take very little to "start something." How supremely envious they are, one of the other. They know how to get rich, but have not learned how to get together.

The Superior Cigar Company, not yet four months in their new plant on Hendric Avenue, are already planning to start, at an early date, the erection of an annex that will give them room for 150 additional help. This firm's recent expansion has been remarkable.

Lee O. S. Rinkle is not given to saying much about business, but the smile that lit his handsome (ahem!) features was sufficient assurance that things are moving along beautifully. Mr. Connor is on the job all the time, and keeps the factory end occupied.

Henry Mazer, of Mazer Cigar Company, has been in Iowa for some time superintending special work on "Miss Detroit" for the Western Grocery Company, of Marshalltown, Ia., and its branches. The brand has proven a big hit with these people, who have the distribution for the state.

Traveling men are thicker than fleas on a dog. Everyone is out hustling for holiday orders. Here are some familiar names:

J. M. Logan, Logan Tobacco Company, makers of "Crownlet" and "Luriana," Porto Rico and New York; H. Anton Bock, also Frank Horning, H. Anton Bock & Co.; Jos. Carlisle, A. "All Lines Improving," Says San Francisco

Many Changes in Different Concerns—Bier, Saalburg & Company Popularizing "Ruy Lopez"—Sanchez & Haya Representative on Job

SAN FRANCISCO, SEPT. 20. LOCAL retailers and wholesalers alike say that business is improving, and in the distributive trade the last week has been one of the best on record for this time of year. An unusually heavy rain occurred early in the month, and for a time buying on the part of country dealers was interrupted by fear of heavy damage to dried fruits and late crops, the reaction helping to make this an unusually busy week. Since the rain it is found that little damage and considerable good was done, and delayed orders are coming in rapidly. In some sections conditions are still unsettled on account of the prohibition movement, but on the whole the disturbance on this account is subsiding. A good many new stands are getting under way, and the initial orders help to swell the volume.

Los Angeles retailers had quite a rush last week during the G. A. R. convention, the veterans forming only a small part of the crowd that visited the city on that occasion. A good many of the visitors from the east and north are spending this week in San Francisco, and dealers in the downtown streets manage to keep pretty busy.

Mr. Frankel, of Frankel, Gerds & Co., the local manufacturers, who has been in Cuba for the last month, is expected home about the end of the month. He will probably spend a day or two in New York on his way home.

Arthur Meyer, Pacific Coast representative of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, is spending the week in Southern California, having returned from his northern trip a few days ago. He is now working in the interest of his company's "Henry the Fourth" cigar, which promises soon to become as popular on the Coast as the old Alexander Humboldt line. The first shipment of the "Henry the Fourth" to Michalitschke Bros. & Co., the distributors in the San Francisco territory, arrived only a few days ago, and the goods are well received by the trade.

M. A. Gunst & Co. are introducing, through their chain of retail stores, a new Porto Rico line, "La Entrada," which is already finding a good demand. Some changes have been made in the local stores, M. Lindner being transferred from Powell and O'Farrell Streets to the Ferry stand at the foot of Sacramento Street, succeeding J. Heiman, who is now in charge at Third and Mission Streets, while the Powell Street stand has been turned over to M. Joseph. I. Falkenstein, of the local force, is spending the week on vacation in Southern California, and Gus Simon, the Portland manager, is visiting the San Francisco office.

Edward Wolf, of the Edw. Wolf Company, says: "Business is better in every way than it has been for some time past, and we are all looking for better times this fall." Mr. Wolf reports a continued growth in the sale of "Nestor Gianacis" cigarettes, though his own time is largely occupied with the Manila importations. He has just employed Fred Unger, a well known cigar man of Los Angeles, to represent his lines in that part of the state, the territory extending over into Arizona. Hackfeld & Co., Ltd., have taken up the "Nestor" cigarette agency for the Hawaiian Islands.

J. G. Stickley, special representative of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, Lancaster, Pa., and S. Graf, of H. L. Judell & Co., agents for the Moss line are calling on the trade in the central valley district.

Mr. Lachman, of Lachman & Meyer, leading cigar men of Reno, Nev., has returned home after spending a couple of weeks in this city.

I. Danziger, who has been calling on the trade in the mountain states in the interest of his Manila lines, is expected at his office in about a week, being now in the north.

Jesse Rich, a prominent retailer of Portland, Ore., has just returned from a visit to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

S. Bachman & Co. are mailing to their customers a 16-page pocket catalogue of their numerous cigar lines, designed for the convenience of retailers in placing orders. S. Bachman & Co. are making a number of improvements in the arrangement of their store, which will give more room for the offices.

"Milo" Adams, representing the Surbrug Company on the Coast, stopped in the city this week on his way back to Los Angeles from a northern trip.

Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Co., has returned to his favorite fishing grounds in Oregon, his former outing having been cut short by bad weather.

Sol Arkush, specialty man for the "Luis Martinez" cigar, who has been in San Francisco for a couple of weeks, has left for Portland, Ore., and will spend some time with the trade in the north Coast cities.

I. Wentworth, who has been boosting for the "Flor de Lovera" at Los Angeles, is now working the San Francisco trade for Wellman, Peck & Co., the distributors.

P. M. Crane, now in charge of the Durham tobacco department of the Tobacco Company of California, was formerly at Denver, Colo., and prior to that had charge of the Boston office of the American Tobacco Company. J. J. Donovan and T. A. Baird, also formerly of Denver, are now with the California Company.

H. H. Manley, representing the American Cigar Company on the Coast, who has been spending some time in Southern California, is now visiting the north Coast cities.

O. J. Lansing, special representative of the Sanchez & Haya line, arrived here the first of the week, and is starting a strong campaign in

Seattle Retailers Complain of Five Cent Brands

They Claim Profits are too Small—J. A. Gibson Moves to Larger Stand—"Pure Gold" Tobacco Proving its Merits

SEATTLE, SEPT. 17. BUSINESS, while not booming, is showing a big improvement. People are back from their vacation and the state from one end to the other is in fine condition, the fruit crop is one of the largest in years, and lumber is bringing better prices than for some time. Mills that have been shut down or running on half time, are now working at full capacity night and day.

T. E. Snyder, of the United States Tobacco Company, is working their several brands, and in this territory "Epicure" and "Central Union" are both good sellers.

The Turco American Tobacco Company are making great strides with their new ten-cent brand "Turkey Land" cigarettes. They have some very attractive windows in the downtown section.

Mr. Carlston, representing the Melachrinio Company, was in the city last week doing some nice work on their different cigarettes. Their No. 9 is one of the leading fifteen-cent sellers on this market.

F. B. Bourk, Inc., the popular Third Avenue jobber, reports a big increase on their leading five-cent cigar, the "44," which is new in this market, but is making a strong bid for the business.

Wooley & Co., importers and jobbers of Manila Algars, report business unusually good, they have a large business in Alaska and are the pioneers in the Manila game here.

The retailers are complaining of the great number of five-cent brands that they are being forced to handle through the sampling that is being done. One concern gave away 500,000 of one brand, and the retailer that would not buy was made a present of a box. Of course, they understand they will have to pay for this method of doing business, and the profit has been small enough in the past on five-cent brands.

J. A. Gibson, who has had the stand on First and Madison Avenues, has moved to a larger stand in the same block. As he has been in this block for several years he will no doubt carry his trade with him and do a larger business.

George Leghorn, of Juan De Fuca, has just returned from a business trip to Portland. He seems to be more than pleased with the trade outlook.

A. G. Bradbury, who has charge of this territory for Mason Ehrman Company, reports a big sale of "Flor de Moss." Mr. Cincheimer, the factory representative, is covering the territory with him.

The Merchants Tobacco Company, are getting nice results on their "Pure Gold" tobacco. It is proving its merit, as the retailers all report it the largest selling brand of a new granulated ever placed on this market. Buck.

Late Jobbing Notes

M. J. Schwab, The Dayton, Ohio, distributor, has struck a popular chord in his new five-cent brand "Fighting Jimmy," named after James Cox, the Democratic candidate for Governor. Berning Bros., Cincinnati, are the makers.

Ehrman Bros. & Co., the San Francisco jobbers, report receiving large lots of "Optimos," made by A. Santaella y Ca, which are in the light colors so much in demand in that territory. The "Havana Ribbon" is also a big seller with them.

The "La Confession" cigar, made by Benito Rovira Company, 315 East Sixty-second Street, New York, is being distributed in Chicago by Morrison, Plummer & Co., the wholesale druggists. This cigar sells extremely well in Denver and Los Angeles.

the interest of the "Sanchez & Haya," which already has a high reputation in San Francisco. Mr. Lansing expects to spend some time in various parts of the Coast.

Bier, Saalburg & Co. have been extremely active of late in working up new business for their leader, the "Ruy Lopez." The line is being extensively advertised, and the results during the last month or so have been extremely gratifying.

The Retail Cigar Dealers' Association of San Francisco, now has its organization complete, and within a few weeks has gained a comparatively large membership, having the majority of first-class independent dealers enrolled, though no jobbers are admitted. The officers are: Dan P. Carter, president; Robert Donahue, first vice-president; A. A. Knox, second vice-president; Fred Prinz, secretary-treasurer, and James Byrne, financial secretary. Messrs. Jones, Gabe Cohn, Marks and Dwyer form the executive committee.

Scarcity of Help Cripples Pittsburgh Factories

Stogie Manufacturers Unable To Fill Rush of Orders—New Acker, Merrill & Condit Stands Opened—Other News From Smoky City

By Special Correspondent.

PITTSBURGH, September 23. RAYS of prosperity have at last penetrated the smoky pall, that imaginative writers say hangs over this city of steel and stogies. Faint signs of the aforesaid rays have been visible for the last three months, but it was not until September that they burst through in full radiance. This applies to business in general and the tobacco trade in particular.

The best evidence of the new era is the "Help Wanted" signs displayed at nearly all the stogie factories. Help is not only wanted, it is needed very badly. Oversold and unable to increase the capacity because of the lack of stogie-makers is the universal report. Some factories have been working at night to keep up with orders and then fall short; others have been compelled to refuse new business. As a result, the labor scarcity has become a very serious problem. Added to this is the apparent unrest among the workers which has manifested itself in several strike outbreaks. Stogie-makers have not been slow to take advantage of the situation to demand increased wages and cause the factory owners other inconveniences. So the manufacturers find themselves facing the paradoxical situation of "hard times" caused by too much business.

Local jobbers and retailers report good business—a decided improvement over September of last year. Such representative houses as Jenkinson's, Reymer's, Zimmerman's, Goldsmit, Moyer's and others look upon fall prospects through rosy glasses.

One of the most notable changes in the cigar trade has been the opening of the new Acker, Merrill & Condit stands in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Sherman Coe, of this company, came from New York this week to inspect the new quarters, which, by the way, are the finest in this section. The main stand is in the lobby and is fitted with marble, mahogany and plate glass fixtures made by Frober Bros., New York. Downstairs in the hallway leading to the pool room and restaurant has been built a very attractive humidor, equipped with an up-to-date ventilation system and electric humidity regulators made by the Humidity Regulation Company, of Traverse City, Mich. A retail stand has also been opened in front of the humidor and it is here that K. U. Dahlgreen, the local manager, makes his headquarters. Mr. Dahlgreen is a veteran A. M. & C. man, having had charge of some of the most prominent stands of this firm in various sections of the country. He has made a close study of the Pittsburgh situation and as a result has a stock of fine cigars unsurpassed anywhere. From stogies at 2 for 5, to fine Pedro Murius at $1.25 each, his stock runs the whole gamut of popular high class brands. Prominent in the cases are noticed "Don Antonio" (H. Anton Bock); "Lovera" (Jose Lovera & Co.); "La Carona," "Carolina," "Henry Clay," "Van Dyck" (Esberg-Gunst Co.); "Solace" (G. W. Nichols) and, of course, the "Graham Courtney," the special A. M. & C. favorite in a big assortment of sizes. Cigarettes include "Philip Morris," "Melachrino," "Pall Mall," and others. Mr. Dahlgreen expects to cater largely to high-class box trade, for which there is a splendid opportunity in this city of millionaires. He is assisted by two New York men, Hugh H. Carter, formerly of the Nassau Hotel, Long Beach, and Chris. Winther, formerly of the Ritz-Carlton stand.

S. B. Goldsmit, of Goldsmit Bros. & Co., has returned from a two months' tour of Europe, accompanied by his family. He found things humming upon his return—a fact that added to the pleasure of his home-coming.

"Nebo" cigarettes are being featured in this section through newspaper ads and window signs. Some of these signs shown in the foreign quarters are in Italian and Yiddish—a clever scheme of the Lorillard Company to build trade among foreign smokers. The "Nebo" is a five-cent, cork tip, piece of goods.

G. P. Waidely, vice-president of the Union-American Company, spent a few days in New York last week. J. M. Philbin, secretary, has just moved his family here from New York.

To aid in the quick distribution of "Cincos," Reymer & Bros. have recently added an auto to their delivery service. A special "Cinco" window display this week attracted much attention and big business.

The Eagle Cigar Company are now occupying their new four-story brick factory building at Second and Middle Streets, Allegheny. Manager Hargrave states that business is brisk.

The Penn Cigar Company have moved their factory from their newly-erected building on Bedford Avenue to Ironton, Ohio. Scarcity of labor in this market is said to be the cause.

Hannan Bros. have increased the capacity of their factory by erecting a four-story addition, 40x66 feet.

Leonard Wagner, one of the oldest and best known stogie manufacturers in this section, has returned from a three-months' trip to Europe. He was accompanied by his wife, daughter and two sons and visited his native home in Germany.

A new-style package with unique sanitary features is being marketed by the Pittsburgh Stogie & Cigar Co. The cigars are banded and sealed in an air-tight dust-proof gelatine-covered package, four to a pack which is opened by a string. Manager Sharp has patented the idea—it looks like a winner. The brand is called "Puro Panatella Cigars," and the cigars sell four for ten cents.

C. H. Gibbs Company, one of Pittsburgh's newest cigar firms, had a clever window display of "Luxury" cigarettes this week at their store, 440 Wood Street.

W. L. Flagg, general manager of Duquesne Cigar Company, reports his "Red Devil" stogies constantly oversold. He, too, is up against the scarcity of labor.

"Seinbad" is a new brand of stogies being made by Standard Cigar Company.

The Wabash Cigar Company is quite busy on orders for "London Trophies."

The Enelow Cigar Company are finding new markets for their big seller, the "Zig Zag" stogie. It's repeat orders are larger than ever—a convincing sign that dealers do not keep them very long on their shelves.

"Tabakose," a New Preparation for Leaf

Its Makers Claim it Will Prevent Wrappers From Becoming Brittle and Will Flavor Cigars

Cigar manufacturers who have had considerable difficulty in keeping their wrappers from drying out and becoming brittle, should be interested in a new preparation "Tabakose" now on the market, which is guaranteed to do away with much of this annoyance. Furthermore, it is said to also improve the burn and the flavor of the tobacco. The makers claim for their article all these things and are willing to prove that it contains nothing deleterious to the smoker.

The solution has been tried by a number of manufacturers throughout the country, and the users are said to be entirely satisfied with it. It is made by the Tabakose Company, of 135 Front Street, New York, who have so much confidence in their product that they are willing to send a trial order to any manufacturer, who may return it if it is not all that the makers claim for it.

Springfield, Mo., Dealer Fails

Guy R. Minto, who has been conducting a cigar store and pool room at 298 St. Louis Street, Springfield, Mo., has filed a petition in bankruptcy. According to the petition the liabilities are $4987.34, with assets of $3772.27. Several large Eastern firms are involved in the failure.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Lancaster County to Have New Factories

LANCASTER, SEPT. 24.

THERE have been rumors within the past two weeks referring to a number of factories opening up in this county which at this writing appear to be a certainty. According to the latest reports the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company will soon be operating two more. They are to be at Terre Hill and Brownstown. This same source of information stated that the American Cigar Company would shortly open a factory in Reinhold's Station. It will be located in the old canning plant at that place and will accommodate about 200 hands.

The cigar business is certainly on the jump in this region. Every factory in town is working, and some of them at night also. The last revenue reports give every assurance of a fine fall trade and the leaf men are beginning to share in the prosperity. They state that the Pennsylvania tobacco is selling well. One man said that by the time the new crops are ready to be worked, the old leaf will be pretty well disposed of.

The S. R. Moss cigar factories are running overtime in an endeavor to catch up with orders. There has been a heavy demand for the "Flor de Moss" and the Moss "Cubalettes." Albert Moss is again home after a trip to the Southwest.

J. K. Leaman is well pleased with his new location at 110-112 West Walnut Street. Mr. Leaman is optimistic as to a good fall season and says it will be one of the best in years.

Taken as a whole the new crop, which is now being harvested, will be a good one. There is not likely to be any laying on the fields this year. Some of the tobacco has only been topped and it is feared that perhaps a number of crops will be frosted unless they come along faster than they have been doing. But they are the exceptions. The hail storms have scared some of the growers and the packers now say that some of them are cutting tobacco which is unripe.

Walt R. Kendig, of the Imperial Cigar Company, is on a trip for his firm. Daniel Manheimer is also on a Western trip which will keep him away for about three months. The "Havana Masters" are taking a strong hold in the West and Mr. Manheimer expects to come home with some especially good orders.

A. F. Keighly, of W. Duke, Sons & Co., was a recent trade visitor as was Luther M. Case, a tobacco man of Hartford, Conn.

Revenue Figures Encourage York Cigar Manufacturers

YORK, SEPT. 24.

WITH the coming of fall there is every indication that York is coming into her own. The last revenue statistics of the Ninth District give every evidence of an increasing output and manufacturers are optimistic. The output of cigars for August was the largest since the August of 1907. The increase over last July was almost a million and a half.

Every factory in town which does any business worth noting is working hard in an endeavor to supply the demand. The Plitt plant, the factory of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., and the one of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company are going full time and some of them over time. Inquiries at the leaf warehouses also are encouraging. They are doing well and expect to report an added improvement ere long.

The tobacco growers are hustling to get their crops under cover. The hail storm of several weeks ago did considerable damage and they don't care to take any needless risks. There is good reason for thinking that the farmers will harvest fine tobacco. Later reports on the storm state that the loss will not be as large as was at first expected.

The work is well under way for the alterations at the new addition

New Germinal Factory in Manila

Erecting Modern Three Story Building of Concrete—To Have a Second One Soon

On September first the Germinal Company, in Manila, began the construction of what will probably be the largest concrete building in that city. The new plant is to be erected on land which the company recently purchased in Manila and will be three stories high. It is to be fitted with electric elevators, overhead conveyors, and many more modern appliances for the facilitating of the employees' work. It will be modeled after the finest and most up-to-date factories in other countries.

It is expected to shortly begin operations upon another factory in Malabon, in which nothing but cigars are to be manufactured. These moves have been imperative, as the output of the Manila factory has been far behind the demand for the to the store of Young & Busser. This firm claims that when the annex is finished the smokers of York will be getting conveniences which few cities of its size enjoy. The fixtures inside will be moved around considerably so as to arrange the stock more conveniently.

The Gallagher stogie factory at Dallastown is doing a big business. They recently got out a special small cigar for a distributor in Harrisburg which made a hit with the smokers in that city. E. S. Seachrist, a cigar manufacturer of wide experience, personally supervises the work.

Manufacturers down Red Lion way are also sharing in the wave of prosperity which is coming to us. One of the busiest factories is that of T. L. Adair & Co. They have been receiving very good results on the "Sporty King," a cigar which they have been featuring. Inquiries at the other plants elicit the same reports. Kaltreider & Neff are erecting a building which they will use to manufacture scrap tobacco. A part of the market house there has been secured by the C. O. Meads Tobacco Company for their business. The Monarch Cigar Company is another busy plant.

What The Reading Men Are Doing

READING, September 24.

THERE has been little of moment happening in the tobacco trade within the past fortnight. Manufacturers are hustling on orders and the hum and bustle around the different factories is a welcome sound to ears which have been hearing complaints for several months. The retail end of the trade appears to be the duller, if it can be called dull. The leaf men are receiving a fair amount of orders and it takes no prophet to forecast a great deal more for them.

Charles Y. Yetter reports a fine outlook for his brands and says he expects to do one of the best fall trades in years. His factory is now running with a full complement of hands.

Jaech & Rader, cigar manufacturers of Newmans town, who have factories in Lebanon and Newmans town, will shortly open another in Strouhsburg, near Myerstown. It is expected that about twenty men will be employed at first and the force be increased as conditions warrant. Frank S. Rader, the junior member of the firm, who resides at Newmans town, is one of Lebanon county's Republican nominees for the Legislature.

The recent hail storm did considerable damage in this region. Luckily the loss was only in a few sections or it would have been a great deal worse. Reports from Spring Grove state that several fine crops were completely destroyed.

J. U. Fehr & Son, leaf dealers, have an unusually fine assortment of Pennsylvania tobacco which they have been showing to the manufacturers around here with fine results. They expect to do a heavy fall business.

Things are booming as usual around the Yocum factory. Little need be said at this time about the "Y B" and "Spana-Cuba" except that they are as popular as ever.

The Fleck Cigar Company have had D. D. Sulkis, their traveling representative, on the road, where he is doing very well. He was last heard from in the west, Ohio, where the Fleck cigars are well known.

Calls at the other larger factories all called forth the same comments, "Business fine, best for some time." This can be said of the Julius B. Hansen factory, also those of E. E. Kahler and the Empire establishment of John Spatz.

A visit to Newmans town shows the cigar manufacturers of this hustling town all on the jump. The Witter factories are all working hard as is the plant of F. P. Shanfelder. The latter factory reports a run on the "Guide Post" and "Lucy Forrester" cigars.

goods. San Francisco is securing thousands of the "Germinal" cigars each month.

Manuel Vega Opens Chicago Factory

Manuel Vega, formerly of Manuel Vega & Co. (Vega and A. M. Klein), opened up a factory and office of his own on September 16th, at 157 West Randolph Street, Chicago. Mr. Vega will make the well-known clear Havana brand, "Rosa y Yo," which is being distributed by Dettelbach & Beckman, Chicago jobbers. A. M. Klein, who was formerly connected with Mr. Vega, has gone with Francisco Bolano.

One of the best known cigar dealing houses of Dallas, Tex., Metzler Bros., has leased the cigar stands in the new Adolphus Hotel in that city and will install a fine line of goods.

William C. Schutz Dies in St. Louis

Well-Known Member of Rice-Mercantile Cigar Company Passes Away From Heart Trouble

William Charles Schutz, one of the best known men in St. Louis tobacco circles, and a man who has a record in the business which any one might feel proud of, died in St. Louis on Friday, September, 13th, from heart trouble, after a week's illness. He was vice-president of the Rice-Mercantile Cigar Company and had worked himself to that position after years of service, during which time he showed his capability in many capacities.

Mr. Schutz was born in St. Louis in 1856 and entered the cigar business as a messenger boy with the firm of Rice & Byers, which concern later became the Rice-Mercantile Cigar Co. He was connected with this house for more than twenty-five years and worked himself upward until he became a director and vice-president. He had not taken any active part in its affairs for the past seven years, although he still retained the vice-presidency.

Mr. Schutz had always taken a lively interest in public affairs and was a member of the City Council for several years, during which time he worked zealously for the good of the city and was instrumental in the passage of progressive legislation. He resigned after serving some time owing to the passage of some measures over his head which he considered bad for the welfare of St. Louis.

A widow and three daughters survive Mr. Schutz. He was a member of the Lutheran Church in St. Louis and also was connected with the Mercantile and City Clubs.

John G. Boess, a well-known figure in leaf circles in the East and Middle West, died in Chicago several weeks ago after an illness of long standing. Mr. Boess was manager of the leaf house of Crump Bros. and later became connected with A. Cohn & Co., of New York City. He was well liked by all and his death is regretted by many who had come to know him well. He is survived by a widow and three children.

Henry W. Latus, at one time connected with Weleher Bros., the New York cigar manufacturers, died recently at his home in Brooklyn. Mr. Latus came to this country from Germany at an early age. He was forty-three years of age and is survived by a widow and three sisters.

William A. Dooley, late of the wholesale drug house of Dooley & Bro., of Toledo, Ohio., and at one time a cigar manufacturer, died in Brooklyn several weeks ago. He leaves a daughter, two sisters and a brother.

Edward Vogelsang, long in the cigar manufacturing business in South Brooklyn, N. Y., died recently at his residence, aged fifty-eight years. He is survived by a son and four sisters.

F. M. Edmondson, proprietor of a cigar and pool room in Wichita, Kans., died in that city recently, aged fifty years. He is survived by a widow and six children.

Joseph Plant, for a number of years in the tobacco business in Seattle, located at 5414 Ballard Avenue, died in that city recently.

William Fitzpatrick, for many years in the wholesale and retail tobacco business at Woodward Avenue and Larned Streets, Detroit, died at a hospital in that city as the result of a fall. Mr. Fitzpatrick was fifty-four years of age and leaves a widow and daughter.

Charles L. Joel, head of J. Joel & Son, of Fitchburg, Mass., cigar manufacturers and dealers, died at his home in that city last week from heart trouble. He was a member of many lodges.

Naval Men in Philippines Want Cigars at Cost

Authorities at Washington Asked to Allow Commissaries to Secure The Weed

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 22.

THE high cost of living has caused the marine corps in the Philippines to plead with the Comptroller of the Treasury Tracewell to permit the naval commissaries to sell cigars, tobacco and other supplies of a similar nature to the officers and enlisted men of the navy and marine corps at cost, as is done in the army. This matter Comptroller Tracewell has not as yet decided, for he states that it can only be authorized by Congress.

The brigade quartermaster of marines at Cavite made the request because of the general high cost of provisions in the Philippines. Such a course, he declared, would result in great benefit to the enlisted men in their messes as they would be enabled to purchase these articles from their pays, which, as is well known, are not large. The appeal, he said, was particularly urgent from expeditionary sources, who wanted cheaper cigars and cigarettes and tobacco to while away the hours on the field.

Manufacturers Around Cincinnati All Hustling

Burley Tobacco Trade Attends Falmouth Fair—Albert Bejach Leases Another Location. George A. Voige Cigar Company to Introduce "Handspun Brevas" and "Topaz" Cigars.

CINCINNATI, September 26.

CIGAR manufacturers throughout the First Ohio District are working full time and in many instances are advertising for additional help, and there is a pronounced feeling of optimism in the trade. The annual Falmouth (Ky.) County Fair was held last week, and on Friday the Burley tobacco trade of Cincinnati attended in a body. Prizes were given by The Farmers' and Shippers' Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Company, W. D. Spalding, W. D. Collins & Bro., and other members of the local trade. W. C. Ridgeway, a prominent shipper of Burley tobacco to this market, is president of the Fair Association.

Dan A. Wolf, the Main Street cigar distributor, last week featured the "El Wadora" brand of Sig. C. Mayer & Co., of Philadelphia, which has an excellent sale in this city.

Albert Bejach, who recently opened a well equipped store at 435 Main Street, has leased another location at 707 Vine Street, in the heart of the retail district, and expects to have the latter ready for business within ten days.

A trade visitor during the week was Mr. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, whose "La Saramita" and "Little Sara" brands are distributed locally by G. W. Bickett.

R. S. Strohfeld, of 1351 Main Street, is ranked among the leading sub-jobbers of this city. He does a large business on a number of private brands of cigars.

The Brunhoff Manufacturing Company, which specializes in cigar cutters, change trays and other novelties, reports the receipt of many orders for these articles, thus indicating a favorable condition of affairs among the cigar manufacturers.

The George A. Voige Cigar Company, of the Pickering Building, is about to introduce to the trade the "Handspun Brevas" of Victor Thorsch Company, and the "Topaz" brand of the Standard Cigar Company, of Canton, Ohio. William J. Brueckner, the popular secretary and treasurer of The Voige Company, reports business as being excellent with the concern. President Voige is now devoting two-thirds of each day to calling on the retail trade.

The Burley tobacco market last week showed little change over the previous week. A total of 671 hhd., were disposed of, at an average of $8.18 per 100 lbs., as against $8.52 the week of September 13th and $9.38 for 543 hhd., the corresponding week last year.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Slight Change in New York Market--Hail Storms Scare Pennsylvania Planters to Early Harvesting--Wisconsin Situation Almost at Standstill

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, September 25.

THERE has been no perceptible change in the leaf market within the past two weeks. No complaints are heard and everything appears to be moving along as usual. There have been many buyers in town, but as far as could be learned they have not purchased in any large quantities. Dealers seem to take little interest in the Sumatra inscriptions. The quantities purchased at Amsterdam have been lower than was at first expected. Prices as a rule are lower than at previous sales.

The Connecticut crops have taken the most attention. This leaf is not scarce, but prices could be much lower, say the manufacturers. The other tobaccos are all selling well. Pennsylvania is moving well as is the Ohio, although there is still much of this on hand. And from reports coming from these sections, the 1912 tobacco will be good. Havana is receiving its share of attention. Leaf men are pleased with the tobacco, as are the manufacturers, although some of them are grumbling at the lack of good wrappers. Yet these same men admit that the flavor and burn are all that can be desired.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, September 25.

A GRADUAL improvement can be noted in the local leaf market. The inquiries are more in number and sales also show a tendency to be larger in volume. Within the past two weeks dealers report a number of large sales in Pennsylvania, which at this time is selling very well.

There has also been a fair run on Havana, which is moving very nicely. In the Connecticut and Dutch leaf there is not much change, the demand for this being about the same. It has been brisk for over a month now. Leaf dealers are all in a more contented frame of mind and expect good things for the fall trade. They will not be disappointed, judging by the hum and bustle around the different factories.

LANCASTER, September 24.

The hail storms have thrown quite a scare in the ranks of the tobacco growers and harvesting of the crops is going along at a great rate. Much of the tobacco is in a good condition, yet some of it could stand a great deal more good growing weather than it will get. There has been so much damage that the growers are not disposed to take any chances. Of course the growth in many cases is very uneven, but the tobacco as a whole is heavy and the packers think well of it.

The 1911 crop is moving along very well. Many men predict that by the time the 1912 crop is in the hands of the packers the old leaf will be pretty well disposed of. Sissel & Tole recently disposed of several hundred cases and Schreiner Bros. are also reported to have sold a large amount. The other tobacco is being sold in a fashion, but not in large quantities.

YORK, September 24.

The tobacco growers are all harvesting their crops just as fast as the condition warrants. The tobacco as a rule is in good condition and the growers expect good prices. The hail storms have done so much damage that the leaf is being put under cover as soon as possible.

The sales in old leaf are going along in a fair fashion. The majority of the factories are all doing well and this is beginning to have its effect on the leaf men.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, September 24.

THE hail storms within the past two weeks have done so much damage in this section that the growers are losing no time in getting their crops under cover. It has been estimated that the damage will total $75,000. The loss at first reported was even larger, but later figures place it at the above figure. The story was almost all confined to northern Connecticut. These losses were in part covered by insurance.

There is still some tobacco left in the fields. The scarcity in help has been remedied and the work is pretty well finished up. The Springfield bureau furnished a large number of the helpers this year, while the Hartford supply has been rather scarce on account of the distance from that city to this place. The tobacco hands are paid anywhere from $2 to $2.50 a day at this time of the season, when harvesting is on the rush. During the season the majority of the help receive anywhere from $1.50 to $1.75 a day.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, SEPT. 20.

IT would seem that for the present buying was at a standstill in this as well as other tobacco growing sections in the state. And yet it is probably only a lull, for a considerable portion of the later fields has not been bargained for and the recent cool, damp weather has not aided in bringing them to maturity.

Wednesday afternoon a hail storm passed through a section of Dane county, covering a strip about a mile and a half wide from Cottage Grove to Deerfield. The damage, of course, will be comparatively small as the earlier and best crops have been harvested.

The volume of transactions have materially declined over that of the past two weeks. The large operators are taking things more leisurely indicating that their orders are nearly filled, while no new men have taken the field so the excitement of the first buying is gradually subsiding. Up to date prices have been quite generally maintained. The following are a few sales showing the range of prices:

McGinnis Bros., 14a at 12 3/4 & 4c.

And Doldad, 10a at 12 & 4c.

Henry Duxstad, 5a at 13 & 3c.

Fred Nelson, 8a at 13 & 4c.

Gus Schultz, 3a at 10 & 3c.

L. Sherman, 1 1/2a at 12 & 3c.

The harvest is being pushed along as rapidly as possible until the bulk of the early fields are well nigh secured. The later tobacco has been coming forward to maturity very fast of late and some excellent leaf will be harvested should frost hold off.

No news of importance has come to the surface in the old leaf market. Sampling of last season's packing has commenced in a limited way, but the tobacco has not dried off as well as it ought yet.

The shipments out of store reach 700 cases from this market for the fortnight to all points.—Edgerton Reporter.

KENTUCKY.

HOPKINSVILLE, SEPT. 21.

FOR the past two weeks, and the last week especially, the cutting of tobacco has been rushed at a great rate throughout this region.

The farmers found much trouble at times in securing labor and wages ranged from $1.50 to $2.00 per day with board. Even then many of the negroes preferred to remain in town and work on the public works, jobs being plentiful. But at the close of the week it was estimated that fully three-fourths of the present crop was in the barns and the curing process was well under way. The tobacco has suffered greatly from the burning weather that has prevailed. It was unusual to see two and three and four leaves left on a stalk on account of the extent to which they had been injured. Much of the tobacco was cut green in order to save it at all. Both the quality and the quantity has suffered considerably from the dry, hot weather and the crop, as a whole, is expected to be much below the average.

In Todd county it is reported they have a fine crop, in the northern portion of this county same report is made, but taking the district generally the report is anything but encouraging. The farmers are busy keeping the fires going under their tobacco to cure it. Generally several barns are burned at this season by reason of the tobacco catching fire from some one of a number of accidents that are liable to occur. Already one farm, that of Stegar Brothers, containing 16,000 pounds of tobacco has been thus consumed.

There was little doing on old tobacco on this market last week, the demand being light and prices low considering the excellent quality and condition of the old tobacco and the bleak prospects for the new crop.

Large Barn in Scantic, Conn., Burned Down

A fire in Scantic, Conn., last Monday night caused the loss of a tobacco barn belonging to H. W. Talcott. The loss will approximate $20,000, with insurance of about one half. The barn was considered one of the largest in the Connecticut Valley, being 400 feet in length by 40 feet wide. The contents were entirely destroyed.

The Proudfit Loose Leaf Company, of Grand Rapids, Mich., has leased the Michigan Tool Building in that city, and as soon as minor alterations are made, will occupy it. They have been compelled to seek new quarters owing to increasing business. They will employ about 100 people in their new plant.

The executive committee of the Burley Tobacco Company, of Lexington, Ky., has let the contract for the construction of a steel and concrete warehouse at Carlisle. The building is to cost $20,000.

Dissatisfied With American Packing

Algerian Purchasers of Our Tobacco Say It Often Arrives in Damaged Condition

ALGERIAN purchasers are dissatisfied with the condition in which American leaf tobacco is delivered. It is shipped in wooden casks, weighing from 1500 to 2200 pounds, and the casks, owing to their weight, are subjected to rough handling and nine times out of ten arrive in a more or less damaged condition. As a general rule, there is a loss of 7 to 10 per cent. in the weight of tobacco contained.

Owing to a loss of moisture in transit it is natural that there should be a certain decrease in the weight of tobacco shipped considerable distances, and it is difficult to ascertain just what loss is due to defective packing; but it would appear obvious that considerable tobacco may be lost when casks are broken.

That American tobacco can be packed satisfactorily is shown by the fact that complaints are not heard regarding shipments from other countries. Algerian importers prefer that tobacco be shipped in casks not weighing more than 600 pounds, which are much less liable to be broken and are more easily handled. If American shippers are not willing to change their practice in this respect, it has been suggested that they strengthen the casks by iron bands.

It is estimated that about two-thirds of the American tobacco exported to Algeria is shipped direct, and the other third is transhipped from German or Belgian ports. It is not known in this country where the American casks are broken; but it is believed that they should be made smaller or stronger to stand ocean transportation. The casks are stored in warehouses and covered with tarpaulin at the docks of Algiers, and it cannot be ascertained that they receive any unusually rough handling at this port.—From Consul Dean B. Mason, Algiers.

Marking of Genuine Cuban Tobacco

In a law of July 16, 1912, the Cuban Government has provided for the use of an official stamp, to be issued by the government, on the boxes or packages of all tobacco manufactures exported from Cuba. Each box or package of cigars or other manufactured tobacco must be so sealed that the contents can not be removed without tearing the stamp. It is intended that this stamp or label should be a guaranty of genuine Cuban tobacco. The law is to go into effect ninety days from the date of publication in the Gaceta Oficial, i. e., on October 23, 1912.

Cudahy Denies That He Is Backing Merger of Alabama Tobacco Interests

Chicago Packer in Statement to Tobacco World, Makes Emphatic Denial--Reorganization Under Way
Through Chicago Capitalists

A RE-ORGANIZATION of the Alabama Sumatra Tobacco Company, which it is predicted will re-establish that corporation firmly in the tobacco field of Alabama, is now in progress. From the Chicago offices of the company S. W. Ham, brother of the late founder of the company, Thomas B. Ham, states that affairs are progressing nicely and, although no definite plans can as yet be announced, it is hoped to have matters in hand by November 1st.

The announcement in the various newspapers throughout the country that John Cudahy, the wealthy Chicago packer, was to become president of the Alabama Tobacco Company, a new corporation recently chartered in Alabama with $600,000 capital, is emphatically denied. In a letter to the TOBACCO WORLD, Mr. Cudahy states his position as follows:

CHICAGO, ILL., October 10, 1912.

The Tobacco World Corporation,
102 S. 12th St.,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Gentlemen:—

Replying to your favor of the 8th inst., I wish to say that I am not now, nor have I ever at any time acted as President of the Alabama Tobacco Company, nor have I held any other office or directorship in the above concern, and you will oblige me very much by giving this denial as much publicity as you can.

As to any facts in connection with this incorporation, I am unable to furnish you with any, but if you will address your communication to S. W. Ham, in the Heyworth Building, Chicago, he will no doubt give you the desired information.

Yours very truly,

JOHN CUDAHY.

From Mr. Ham, mentioned in the above letter, it is learned that the tobacco crops on the company's lands in Alabama total more than 200,000 pounds. Some 47,000 acres of land in Baldwin County on which is raised principally shade-grown tobacco are involved. Owing to a disagreement the company has given up the warehouses to the growers, who are now curing the tobacco and offering it for sale. There has apparently been a conflict of interests between the original Alabama Sumatra and Havana Tobacco Company and the new company, which is known as the Alabama Tobacco Company. The old company, it is understood, guaranteed to purchase the tobacco from the growers who had purchased the land from them, and the new company, which was organized to take over the first one refused to recognize this agreement, resulting in much dissatisfaction among the growers.

Tobacco men in general throughout the country who appreciate the high quality of the Alabama tobacco will watch with interest the untangling of the situation, now that the new company is taking shape to readjust its affairs.

Tobacco Trades' Alliance Formed to Provide Credit System and Help Trade

Movement, Launched by Prominent Manufacturers in New York, Aims to be National in Scope--
Advisory Board is Named

STEPS for the formation of an organization to be known as the Cigar and Tobacco Trades' Alliance, Inc., were taken at a meeting of representatives of nearly all the leading cigar and tobacco manufacturers in New York, held in the Hotel Victoria of that city, Friday evening, October 11th.

It was the second meeting in the interest of this organization, the preliminary one having been held a week previous at which the foundation for the association was laid.

The chief object of the association will be the maintenance of an efficient system of credit protection operated and controlled from a central bureau which will gather and distribute information to the members concerning the history, financial status, changes in the firms of the retail and jobbing trade, provide a method of collection of claims, as well as foster fair trade methods, the prevention of frauds, and raising the standard of business to a higher level.

Asa Lemlein, General Manager of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, one of the promoters of the movement, presided as chairman of the meeting and representatives were present from the following manufacturing firms: Berriman Bros., Gans Bros., M. A. Gunst & Co., E. Kleiner & Co., Jose Lovera & Co., the E. H. Gato Cigar Co., E. Regensburg & Sons, A. Santaella & Co., E. M. Schwarz & Co., Lincoln & Ulmer, Carl Uppmann, Salomon Bros. & Stern, Charles Schaverin, Mendel & Co., P. Pohalski & Co., the Cosio Cigar Co., Dresner Bros., John W. Surbrug, Louis Ash & Co., S. Monday & Sons, George L. Storm & Co., Marcelino Perez & Co., Rey Straus & Co., Carlos Garcia & Co., R. Epstein & Co., Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., Jacob Stahl & Co., Max Schwarz, Tunis Bros., the Hudson County Tobacco Co., the Cuba Cigar Co., Cane Bros., the Waldorf-Astoria Segar Co., S. I. Davis & Co. and the Martinez Havana Co.

The objects of the association were discussed and sufficient encouragement was received to warrant the promoters in predicting that the success of the movement is assured.

Advisory Board Named.

In compliance with the by-laws, representatives of the following firms were appointed as an Advisory Board: Berriman Bros., E. Kleiner & Co., E. M. Schwarz & Co., Charles Schaverin, George W. Faber Inc., Salomon Bros. & Stern, E. H. Gato Cigar Co., A. Santaella & Co., Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, American Exchange Cigar Co. and Lincoln & Ulmer.

At Friday's meeting there was an open discussion as to the best method of conducting the association and a plan for the by-laws was presented by Mr. Stern, of Salomon Brothers & Stern, who acted as temporary chairman. This preliminary plan recommends that the Association cooperate with the Hotel Purveyors' Alliance, and by affiliating with that association, get the benefit of their organization at comparatively small cost.

THE TALKER AND THE CLAM

Extreme Types of Cigar Salesmen Analyzed

By James Fordyce

NO two cigar salesmen have the same method of making a sale, some men coax, cajole and talk the prospect into signing, while others say very little and yet succeed in attaining the same end. Which method is better, and which is easier, is difficult to say, each has its own merits.

Take, for example, a salesman of the kind first named; he opens up with his heavy artillery of sales talk, as soon as he has a buyer's attention and does not cease until he either sells or sees no sale is possible.

The second salesman lets the other fellow do the talking and injects a pithy word or two when the psychological moment arrives.

The talkative salesman always faces the danger of saying too much, or the wrong thing at the right time, while the other, in direct contrast, must run the risk of having the buyer think him a dolt or not well versed.

The best method is to be prepared to follow either course, according to the prospect or buyer one is talking to. All salesmen know the type of buyer that allows a salesman to talk and talk and who hardly lets on that he hears. This buyer is one that much talk does not affect, as the more a salesman talks the less tighter mouthed he becomes, until, at the last, in sheer desperation, the salesman packs his cigar sample case and departs vowing never to visit that man again.

The salesman who talks very little, permitting his goods to talk for him, makes a better impression on this type of buyer, for he, as a rule, admires a man of little speech. Analyze the man you are about to sell and adapt your selling talk to his personal mood; by all means don't make the fatal mistake of talking in a rapid fire manner to the man who knows he resents this selling patter.

There is good in each system, somewhat like the work of the poet who asked the critic for an opinion of his poems and was told:

"I have read your work, and find much therein that is new and good, but the good is not new, and the new is not good."

So it sometimes is with salesmen of the talking type, their selling arguments often are good, but not new, while at other times their talk is new but not entirely good. It's something like a bet without odds.

Elaborately Carved Pipe

The illustration here shown is that of a pipe, being exhibited in the store of Gustav Fischer, 268 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

The pipe is copied after the famous picture of Bunker Hill, by the artist, Doolittle. It is two pounds in weight and took four years of Mr. Fischer's spare time to carve. He has been carving pipes for forty-five years, and is considered an expert in the art.

To glean good from both types, that's the secret. Listen to both, gather the best of each, and combine them, and there is a combination hard to beat. Look up these two types and learn from each and you can go forth prepared to meet customers of any type or class. But you must do it, not think of doing it, for

"Between the great things we cannot do and the small things we will not do, the danger is we shall do nothing."

For He Who Hits the Pipe

Consumer of Tobacco Gives Advice Cautioning Users of Weed to Smoke Slowly

SMOKE a pound of tobacco a week and a number of cigars thrown in, and I don't feel any ill effects from it," says a writer in a foreign daily. "Another gives up smoking because it upsets him."

No single reason can be given for this because a number of important factors exert their several influences. Susceptibility is, no doubt, one of them, and this phenomenon of the individual is the cause of so much uncertainty whenever an attempt is made to apply generalities.

Another factor is the temperament of the individual apart from his susceptibility. The man who smokes a great deal unharmed is usually of a placid nature; the other is generally nervous. This does not alone mean that he of the stronger physique resists the bad effects of tobacco smoke better, but that he smokes more slowly. The result is that he gets a different collection of substances into his mouth, on the whole less powerful in their action than those received by the fast smoker. In addition to this, there is the opportunity for increased condensation of the more liquid portions of the destructive distillation of the tobacco in the butt end of the cigar or cigarette or in the mouthpiece of the pipe, so that here again less noxious bodies reach the mouth.

The word "nicotine" covers a multitude of sinful substances. Chemically regarded, it is a definite, excessively poisonous body; but a smoker usually means by it the collection of substances constituting the acrid oil which dribbles from a pipe.

MEN WHO MADE GOOD

SIDELIGHTS ON INTERESTING TRADE PERSONALITIES

THERE is something inseparably connected in thought between a cigarette and a fez. No matter if you never saw the Turkish flag, you have seen many fezzes and perhaps drank many fizzes, the latter guaranteed to whistle a quarter from your pocket at any time for a package of the finest pills that are rolled. There is a general belief that no self-respecting cigarette factory would even try to do business without a cross-legged Turk recumbent outside the door, with perhaps a more active one inside the door and certainly no Turk of class—that being the only kind that comes to America and goes into the cigarette business—would be seen in public without his fez, which is in the way of saying, he thinks more of his Kelly than some affinities do of their divinities. As a matter of fact there has been some thought of escaping the anathemas of reformers and bachelor women by discarding the name of the little round soother and rechristening it fez-arette, but the movement has not gained much headway, although it has hopes.

One does not have to be an eater of figs to know where Smyrna is any more than one has to be a consumer of tar to know something about South Carolina, but pictures in the public prints have shown some of its inhabitants to be addicted to the fez habit, which is still all the more reason for drawing a relationship between cigarettes and fezzes, particularly in view of the fact that Basil—get that name Basil—very Hellenic and very Romanoffish—Basil Condax was born in Smyrna, Asia Minor, something like three dozens of years ago, and he is the real, bright, shining, scintillating, great-white-way light in the Chicago cigarette world, although he does not wear a fez during business hours and, for all the writer of this wots, never has since he threw the last one on the floor of his Smyrna home in Asia Minor and dared his mother to find it for him. This is not to say he could not wear a fez if he wanted to, for he has a fezzed face that would look well surmounted by one of those red contraptions, with fancy embroidery just above the forehead, but he prefers a Shayne just as a matter of taste and not as one of environment.

Fez or no fez, this Basil Condax knows something about the cigarette business, and every dealer in Chicago is wise to it. He came from Asia Minor to Chicago about ten years ago and at once took charge of the western department of E. A. Condax & Co., the offices and salesrooms being at 220 North State Street, in the Hampdon Building. Asia Minor must be a nice place to be born in, for Condax came to the United States loaded with ideas for the improvement of the cigarette business, most of which he has put into practical operation with benefit to himself, his firm and the trade.

BASIL CONDAX

He noticed shortly after coming to Chicago that there were no really mild nor really heavy cigarettes on the market—there were plenty of the paper smokes, but they were just cigarettes, with nothing to distinguish them. Mr. Condax set about to remedy this condition and put on the market the "Condax Very Mild" in plain and cork tips. They were an immediate success and are particularly attractive in their handsome boxes, the design of which is patterned after a wonderful Turkish rug.

The firm, which has justly won the esteem and consideration of the trade for their originality and resourcefulness, manufactures the "Condax Petite," "Royal Ascot," "Condax Straw Tips," "Condax Very Mild" and "Condax Radishah." All the boxes in which the goods are packed are extremely attractive, being entirely different from all others, and have had much to do with the great sales of the Condax cigarettes. A large campaign of publicity has been undertaken recently in Chicago and vicinity and many of the largest cigar shops contain displays of the Condax goods that cause the passerby to stop and admire.

Mr. Condax is proud of the fact that his firm is one among the few others in this country that gives personal attention to the growing, buying and blending of tobaccos. This insures a uniformity of output that can be obtained in no other way. Mr. Condax knows the cigarette business at its every angle. He is a live, wide-awake, cultured, educated gentleman, whom it is a pleasure to know and never a satisfaction to leave. His English is perfect, with just the tiniest of accents, he having been taught English in Asia, in anticipation of his residence in America. His business ability is marked to a degree that has caused the Condax goods to be not only the well-known, but the demanded in many markets.

Basil Condax is the youngest of six brothers, all of whom are in the cigarette business. A few years ago he decided it was not good for a man to live alone and took unto himself a wife, who now awaits his homecoming each night. At the present writing, Mr. Condax is in New York, where he goes frequently to confer with his brothers, as they all believe, like the Irishman, "that in onion there is strength," and rely on each other for suggestions.

Tobacco Trades' Alliance

The Plan of the Association.

Some of the principal points in the proposed by-laws are as follows:

I. PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERSHIP.

All members shall be entitled:
First: To receive an association book containing forms as follows:

- Blank requisitions for credit reports.
- Forms to be used by members in reporting to the central office information concerning the credit standing of customers. Members will be obliged to send down information concerning the credit standing of any of their customers whenever requested so to do by the central office, this information to be kept on file, for use in compiling credit reports.
- No. 1 and No. 2 forms of dunning letters, which shall be printed on letterheads of the association, and to which all members shall be authorized to sign their names. No member shall in any case, change or add to the form of said letter. These forms shall request payment to be made direct to members. Attached to these forms there shall be two coupons. Whenever dunning letter No. 1 is sent to a delinquent account a coupon advising the central office of the fact must be forwarded. Whenever and as soon as payment is received the member shall forward coupon No. 2 advising the central office of that fact. These matters will be tabulated in the central office and will be used in compiling the credit reports.
- Blank forms for forwarding claims to the central office for collection on the basis of the following charges: 10% up to $300; 5% on the excess up to $500; 2% on the excess up to $1000; 1% on the excess above that amount. Minimum collection charge being $2.

Second: Members shall be entitled to two hundred special credit reports on customers within the Metropolitan district of the City of New York, which district shall include the five boroughs of the City of New York, Jersey City and Newark; also on customers outside of the Metropolitan district when the information is obtainable from local sources. Reports in excess of the number specified shall be supplied at twenty-five cents apiece. Requisitions for reports shall be made to the central office on forms contained in the association book.

Third: There shall be a system of interchange of ledger experience among the members through the central office as a clearing house; forms for this purpose will be contained in the association book and members will give their experience on designated accounts when requested to do so by the central office. The experience of the members will then be compiled in the central office, and the results will be communicated; but in no instance will the source of the information be divulged. Each member will receive a number which he will use in communicating credit information to the central office.

Fourth: All members shall forward to the central office a list of the delinquent accounts which appear on their books during the period of one year immediately preceding the beginning of their membership in this association.

Fifth: Members will be supplied with a rubber stamp, stating substantially as follows:

"We are members of the Cigar and Tobacco Trades' Alliance.

Under its rules all inquiries for credit information in the trade are referred to the central office, at 261 Broadway, New York City."

Sixth: The committee has conferred with the management of the Hotel Purveyors' Alliance, an association of hotel and restaurant supply dealers, of which a number of tobacco manufacturers are members, and appreciate very much the suggestions received from this source. This association, which has been in existence for many years, has a thoroughly equipped plant and excellent facilities for carrying out the plans above suggested, or such other plan as may be decided upon by this meeting. The committee has taken it upon itself to enter into tentative negotiations with the management of the Hotel Purveyors' Alliance, and after careful consideration have agreed to recommend that the management of the Hotel Purveyors' Alliance take charge of the management of our proposed association. It is agreed that a charge for the service above mentioned shall not exceed $125 per annum per member. By affiliating itself with this credit association of recognized standing, our association will at once have the proper facilities and will be enabled to start operating immediately along the lines suggested, without the necessity of raising a large capital and making a large investment. The work of organizing and putting into operation and maintaining such system of credit protection as is adopted by this association is to be placed in their hands subject to the approval of this meeting and subject to the following provisions:

Seventh: There shall be a committee of twelve members of our association to be known as the Advisory Board of the Cigar and Tobacco Trades' Alliance. This Advisory Board will meet monthly or whenever called together by the executive vice chairman, and the officers and executive officers shall hold office for one year.

Eighth: The officers of the Advisory Board shall consist of a chairman, executive vice chairman, a secretary and an executive secretary. The members of the Advisory Board shall be designated by the chairman to act on the following sub-committees:

- Committee on Credits and Collections.
- Committee on Adjustments, Reorganizations and Insolvencies.
- Committee on Laws and Legislation.
- Committee on Organization and Membership.

Manila Strike Virtually at End

Out of 350 Workers Who Walked Out in One Factory, Almost all Are Back Again at Benches—Labor Agitators
Keep Things Stirred up

MANILA, October 7.

THE strike among the cigar and cigarette makers in the factories in this city, which looked as though it might tie up the entire industry in the Philippines, is virtually broken. The employees, 350 in number, of the Flor de Intal factory, are almost all at work again. The others are gradually drifting back.

One reason for the strike was the enforcement of the new registration law. In addition the workers demanded a wage increase. The increases asked for ranged from 25 to 100 per cent., which the factory operators positively refused to grant. This matter, it is understood, has to an extent been adjusted.

The strike would not have lasted as long as it has were it not for the discontent the labor agitators have caused among the easily led natives. The government had intended to make arrangements for a conference between the unions and the factory owners in order to explain the registration law, pointing out its advantages, but the strike had already been declared.

Cigarmakers Settle Many Questions

Samuel Gompers as a Delegate From New York, Virtually Dominates Convention in Baltimore

THERE was little of great importance in the proceedings of the International Union of Cigarmakers in Baltimore during the third week of the convention.

A number of questions came up which were acted upon satisfactorily. The one which probably caused the most discussion was that of determining who should have the power to grant strikes. This was finally allowed to remain with the local unions.

A resolution, which passed after hot debating, was the one providing for the organization of cigar workers in union factories and the admittance of these persons on a half due basis, but with fewer benefits. They are to receive benefits in case of a strike, but not for sickness.

A measure which was fought hotly was one stating that any member of the International Union who became a member of the National Civic Federation forfeited his membership in the union. This resolution, fostered by J. Mahlon Barnes, of Philadelphia, was opposed by Samuel Gompers, a delegate from New York, and after a strong appeal to the convention it was defeated. A resolution was also passed which called for the publication of a notice in the papers for three months warning the Eastern workmen from going to the Pacific Coast, as there were already more men there than were needed.

Mr. Lemlein's Views.

Speaking of the movement Mr. Lemlein gave his views as follows:

"The Cigar and Tobacco Trades' Alliance is going to be national in scope, and to judge from the large amount of favorable replies that I am receiving from manufacturers in all parts of the country it will be a great success. They believe that the time for organizing such an association is now at hand and that the epigram of Benjamin Franklin made at the time of the Declaration of Independence that 'unless they hung together they would be hanged separately' applies with equal force to the wholesale cigar and tobacco manufacturers in their credit relations to the retail and jobbing trades. The alliance will be conducted along somewhat novel lines and not in the way as is usually done by other trade organizations. It will not have any officers, and will conduct its business through committees. The members of the executive committee will serve as chairman of the other committee."

Watch Your Accounts Carefully

The ordinary retail cigar store man nowadays spends too little time altogether on the question of his accounts. Not one out of ten, probably, of the smaller men, can state positively just how he stands in regard to his stock and what his profits have been in the past year. No large business house today can take those chances with its business—why, then, should not the retailer, who has much less capital to fall back upon than the large house, keep his accounts so straight that he knows just how he stands?

The average United cigar store, for instance, does perhaps eight times as much business as the average cigar store. That means 800 per cent. in favor of them and in favor of scientific retailing. If every retailer would provide himself with as much information about his sales, expenses, purchases, etc., as the United Cigar Stores provide themselves with, there would be a wonderful awakening in the retail business.

And the United Company is in a position to dictate to its many stores, and goes a little further than "suggesting" methods. If any United Store does not keep proper records there is "something doing" from the home office. They know just how they stand and have records to prove it. And the dividends paid by this company prove that this method must pay. On the contrary, many retailers are going out of business every day and cannot even tell just why they failed. They cannot put their fingers on the weak point, but put their failure to any one of a thousand reasons, none of which is right.

The dealer who knows the exact amount of each day's efforts soon eliminates the unscientific methods, the inefficient clerks, the goods that won't sell, and stops the leaks. He is soon able to direct his energies in the right channels—those that make for success—and also for the success of the manufacturers who put out his goods.

Have you ever thought about this, Mr. Retailer?

Pertinent Pointers For the Clerk

Customers dislike to be told that you "are just out" of things. Make it a part of your work to inspect the shelves every morning. You will find things you didn't know were there.

The clerk who is successful is the fellow that makes customers want to come back to his store.

If a man expects to get a bigger job than the one he has he must first outgrow his present position.

Salesmanship is merely making the customer think as you think about the goods you are trying to sell. But be sure and think right.

Play no favorites. The number of customers you wait upon is just as important as the amount you sell. It is the many little profits that count.

Dealers should now take advantage of the foot-ball season, which is upon us, and trim their windows accordingly. The large cigarette manufacturers are not overlooking this. Liggett & Myers are pushing the "Fatima" cigarette by means of college displays in many places, which are attracting much attention. They use numberless arrangements of the cigarettes and in making up the display utilize flags from the different colleges in a lavish manner around the window.

If Advertising Was Prohibited

Even in these enlightened days, one hears of the man who does not believe in advertising. "I have no use for it," he tells you. "MY goods will sell themselves."

To take him literally, let us for a moment imagine that all advertising were suddenly prohibited. What would that mean?

In the first place it would mean the absence of advertising in periodicals of all kinds, whether newspapers, magazines or trade journals. It would also mean that the business man would not be allowed to have his name over the door, for is not that advertising?

The drug store would not display the globes of colored water. The minister would not announce the topic of his next sermon, nor the mid-week meetings, from the pulpit. There wouldn't even be signposts at country crossroads, nor on the street corners in towns and cities.

If you should visit a strange community where there was no advertising whatever you would realize how absolutely dependent you are upon advertising. If you wanted to go to a store, particularly the best store, no one could direct you, for that is advertising—word of mouth advertising—which is sometimes as important and valuable as any other.

Frankly, you would find it practically impossible to live without advertising, although you might manage to exist after a fashion.

The question now before all up-to-date dealers is to work up catchy schemes for the holiday trade. A number of good ideas will be published in this department from now until Christmas, which the merchant should study carefully. Many of them can be applied to your business with advantage. Watch for the "Retail Rinkles."

NEW YORK CITY has been much interested during the past few weeks in the visit of the eccentric genius, Pierre Loti, who has come to the United States with his brilliant reputation as a dramatist, orientalist and writer, to stage his new play, "The Daughter of Heaven."

Loti is strong on friendships with reigning sovereigns, and among the first visits he made in the States was on President Taft, who quizzed him about Turkey, which country Loti knows well, and loves deeply.

The author was a great friend of Abdul Hamed, the former Sultan of Turkey, and received from him many wonderful and rare gifts. Included in these presents, was a gold smoking set inlaid with jewels forming the Sultan's name and also two superb cigarette cases. One of these cases Loti always carries with him, and tells the following incident concerning its presentation:

One day when he was received in audience by the Sultan, Abdul Hamed offered him a cigarette. The French writer took the cigarette, but placed it in his pocket.

"Why do you not smoke it?" asked the Commander of the Faithful.

"It is to remember you by, sire," Pierre Loti answered.

So pleased was Abdul Hamed, with the graceful response of his friend that he took from the table the gold cigarette case, set with diamonds that spelled, in Turkish characters, his name. "Then take this, too," he commanded.

I have many friends, who are constant smokers, and spend few of their waking moments without a cigar or cigarette in their lips. The question has often arisen in my mind, what their attitude would be if constant smoking was compulsory.

As a matter of courtesy, I have on several occasions smoked a number of cigars to test wrappers. After six or seven trials the task became very arduous, if not repugnant. These thoughts arise from the remarks of an observant Frenchman who was dilating recently on the peculiar and unhappy lot of the official tobacco testers of the French Regie. This board of testers is composed particularly of old men, who were formerly inspectors in tobacco factories, and they are employed by the Ministry of Finance, to test and report on all kinds of tobacco, that are to be sold in the French Republic. They work eight hours a day solid, and smoke indiscriminately, cigars, cigarettes and pipe tobacco made by the French Regie as well as all the imported goods the sale of which is permitted by the government.

A curious practise among this board of men is the consumption of numerous drafts of strong black coffee, which the inspectors claim not only off-set the dangers of constant use of all grades of bad tobacco, which they must test, but also assist them in differentiating the taste of the various grades to be reported upon.

At the meeting of the cigar salesmen on Friday evening, October 4th, Abe Lyons of Durlach Bros., 181 Water St., New York, that young man who has been selling cigars for thirty-five years, told a good one on himself.

He was making towns in Ohio, in company with a whiskey salesman. They had had rather poor luck and at the town of Washington Court House, outside of Columbus, his travelling companion suggested that they go off the train and see a friend of his, named Pat Lyons. Abe insisted that he had never known any one but a Jew by the name of Lyons, and doubted if there could be a man by the name of Pat Lyons.

However, he was persuaded, when above the door of a respectable looking saloon, appeared the sign Patrick Lyons, and on entering he met a jovial-looking Irishman with a brogue that could have only been manufactured in County Cork, Ireland. Pat Lyons had never met any one but an Irishman named Lyons.

The two Lyons were discussing their name when Abe espied "a cul'd gem'man" with a suit case, containing the initials "C. L." and asked him what the initials stood for, whereupon the nigger came back with "Clarence Lyons, sir."

Abe immediately fainted.

"Try one of these cigars, old man. I am sure you can't get better."

"No thanks, dear boy. I tried one last week and am not better yet."

The good ship Dinsdalehall, reached the port of New York a few days ago, after a long voyage from Spain, with a wonderful story of an electric storm, which had played pranks with them.

It seems that the boat was loaded with iron pyrites, when she ran into a thunder storm off the Azores. The lightning and electricity played around her, like a school of porpoises. During the midst of the disturbance, the captain stood out on the after deck, smoking his briar pipe. Some forty feet away was the man at the wheel. Suddenly a bolt of lightning flashed from the clouds and struck the foretopmast of the vessel. According to the yarn, which the seamen told, it ran down the mast, along the deck to the wheel house, where it knocked the man at the wheel down unconscious, and then made a bee-line for the captain. It ran up through his body, and went out by way of the briar pipe, which he held in his teeth, smashing his pipe in little pieces, and scattering it over the deck. The hearty old sea-dog was slightly dazed by the shock, but was not injured. All of which is faithful and true, according to maritime veracity.

Moral: When in a thunder storm smoke a briar pipe.

RAWLINS D. BEST, Covington, Ky. Secretary-Treasurer

A movement both timely and practical, which if it be developed, promises to be a tremendous factor in the tobacco trade of this country, has been started by the preliminary formation of the Cigar and Tobacco Trades Alliance, Incorporated.

This organization, fostered by a group of manufacturers known nationally for their progressive methods, is the concrete expression of a sentiment that has long existed for the bringing together of the leading factories into a working body, intent upon the improvement of conditions.

Although the movement has started in New York, the men behind it aim to make it national in scope, including everybody in the trade who is willing to share the expense of its up-keep as well as in its benefits. It will embrace every cigar, cigarette and tobacco manufacturing concern that desires to join, and will be conducted along novel lines, not having any officers, but managing its affairs entirely through an advisory board and special committee.

Manufacturers have long since recognized the necessity of combined action for the promotion of their general welfare, as well as meeting their individual needs along the lines of credit protection.

The alliance aims to establish a system elastic and comprehensive, controlled by a central bureau in New York, with branch offices in the principal cities of the United States, which will receive, gather, compile and distribute information to the members concerning the history, financial status and changes in existing trade conditions in the retail and jobbing trades with which its members are doing business.

The proposed system, if worked impartially and for the general good, should provide real credit protection helpful to the manufacturers and the legitimate retailers and wholesalers because it specializes on a particular line of trade. By eliminating the cheats and crooks it will prevent to a large extent unfair competition and help the dealers that aim to live and let live. By establishing a method for the collection of claims, free to its members, it will provide a smooth working clearing house, which should be at once economical and effective.

One of the objects of the association (and a very commendable one) is to foster fair trade methods, prevent fraud, and protect and bring its members together on a higher plane.

With such aims and its destinies directed by men of unimpeachable character and unquestionable ability, the Tobacco Alliance starts its career under favorable circumstances. But its ultimate success depends on you, MR. MANUFACTURER. If you want such an association, if you endorse its platform and realize the need for such co-operative work, now is the time to speak. One ounce of practical support NOW is worth tons of lip praise. Make your money talk.

THE TOBACCO WORLD heartily endorses the alliance's platform and stands ready to uphold it with all the force and vigor at its command.

May it prove just the very thing for which the trade has been seeking.

First signs of the holiday rush are apparent among the manufacturers of cigars and tobacco. The tide of business seems to be rising with accelerated force, and by the middle of November will be at its highest point.

This means that there will be a tremendous pressure upon the facilities of the manufacturers to meet the demands, and it also means that those jobbers and retailers who have sent in their orders early will receive the first consideration.

Many a cigar store has found itself handicapped December 15th or thereabouts for the lack of goods, simply because of the procrastination of the buyer in placing his orders.

The capacity of any cigar factory is not elastic enough to turn out double the normal output in a limited time. Cigar makers are becoming very scarce in all sections of the country and manufacturers are finding it more difficult every day to fill their benches. For that reason, it is impossible to speed up the output during October and November to fill the tardy orders.

Added to this is the congestion of freight that always occurs early in December, due to the holiday demands and the shortage of freight cars. Some of the leading railroads have warned shippers of the shortage in freight cars and the resultant delays in shipments. This condition is likely to be aggravated rather than improved when December 1st rolls around.

The moral to the jobbing and retail trade is evident. If you want your goods for holiday trade, place your order now with instructions to ship at once, if you have not already done so.

Readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD are invited to write to the Editors, expressing their opinions on trade matters. All communications to receive attention must be signed.

E. P. Cordero Reorganizes Business

Under New Management, J. Fred Wilcox Becomes Associate With Office in Chicago

REOrganization of the business of E. P. Cordero, which promises to prove a great factor in its expansion, has just been effected through the formation of the firm of E. P. Cordero & Co. For the past thirty years Mr. E. P. Cordero has held an enviable position in the clear Havana industry, and his brands "Mi Hogar" and "La Superior" became strongly entrenched in many sections of the country.

Under the new arrangement Mr. Cordero will have associated with him J. Fred Wilcox, who for many years has been identified with the Chicago jobbing and importing business. Mr. Wilcox, who makes his headquarters in Chicago, will look after the selling end, in which he will be ably assisted by L. C. Dupee. Mr. Cordero, Sr., will continue to look after the New York factory end, in which he will be assisted by his son, Harry E. Cordero, and his son-in-law, Leo G. Steiner.

They expect to push aggressively not only their old brands, but their new brand, which will be known as the "Cordero," and also the favorite "La Matilde."

The alliance of Mr. Wilcox with this well-known firm should prove mutually beneficial, as he is favorably known in the West, and brings to the business a ripe experience in the sales end.

Two More Stands For United

The United Cigar Stores Company have acquired two more valuable sites for their stores. One of them is the northeast corner of Broadway and Forty-second Street, on which they have taken a lease for fifty years. The other, which is rather unique in its selection, is at the northwest corner of Twentieth Street and Sixth Avenue, and is a small store cut out of the corner of the O'Neil and Adams department store.

Mr. Straus, of Rey Straus and Company, 136 Liberty Street, and Tampa, manufacturers of "Mi Rey" cigars, left early in this month for a trip through the Middle West. He expects to return about the 20th.

A. Garcia, of the firm of Garcia and Vega, 97 East Houston Street, manufacturers of "Duquesita" cigars, is spending a few weeks in Cuba, selling tobacco stock. He is expected to return about November 1st.

New Cigarette Merger in Statu Quo.

Mr. Reed and Associates Plan to Have New Organization Kill Price-Cutting

THERE has been little to report since our last issue in regard to the development of the newly organized Tobacco Products Corporation. It is understood that the new enterprise will concentrate exclusively on the cigarette business and will be entirely independent of any connection with the American Tobacco Company. So far the only independent concerns to be taken over by this corporation are the Surbrug Company and the Khedival Company, although it is hinted that other cigarette factories are likely to be absorbed.

Daniel G. Reed, chairman of the Rock Island Railroad, is looking after the financial end of the new enterprise and associated with him are Norman B. Ream, a director in the United States Steel Corporation, and Judge William H. Moore and Francis L. Hine, a New York banker.

One of the policies of the new corporation will be the stopping and prevention of price-cutting, both for the jobber and retailer.

Liggett & Myers Distribute Interesting Booklet

Liggett & Myers are distributing through the retailers a catchy little advertising booklet, called "Official, Political and Other Valuable Information—1912." Besides containing colored illustrations of a number of the firm's products, such as "Fatima" cigarettes, "Star Plug Chewing Tobacco," "Piedmont" cigarettes, "Horse Shoe Plug" and "Velvet" smoking tobacco, together with other valuable information, the books and summary of the Electoral and Popular votes of all the presidential elections from 1840 on, as well as the vote by States of the Democratic, Republican, Socialist, Socialist-Labor, and Populist and Independent League candidates for President in 1908. It also gives biographical sketches of President Taft and Governor Wilson, as well as a list of all the Governors of the various States of the Union at the present time. It is a valuable little pamphlet for persons prone to political argument.

New Cigarette For Stephano Brothers

J. M. Dixon, who recently took the position of sales manager of Stephano Brothers, of Philadelphia, is now in New York pushing a vigorous campaign on their new cigarette, the "Afros." This should be a pronounced success, judging by the wide distribution the other Stephano cigarettes enjoy.

New York City Items

Another cigar stand has been opened by William Hollingsworth, the proprietor of the stand in the King Edward Hotel. It is located in the U. S. Rubber Company Building, Fifty-sixth Street and Broadway. Everything connected with the store is of the latest and most up-to-date pattern.

Sam H. Harris, 422 East 53d Street, manufacturer of "Sir Rahmas" cigars, started early this month on a four weeks' trip through the West and South.

M. J. Levy, of the Montclair Bels Cigar Company and the Mt. Vernon Specialty Company, No. 6 Church Street, is making a trip through the West.

Nicholas F. Reiner, of the Reiner Drug Company, Providence, R. I., was recently elected a director of the National Cigar Stands Company, at a convention held in New York recently.

Mr. B. Lowenthal, the Chicago representative of S. Lowenthal & Sons, is spending a few weeks in New York. Mr. Harry Lowenthal has just returned from a trip through the South.

Mr. Wildernauer, of the house of William Demuth & Co., manufacturers of pipes and smokers' articles, 507 Broadway, has returned from a Western trip.

Mr. Richard Gordon, of the Pera Cigarette Company, 333 Fifth Avenue, New York, reports a healthy growth of the firm's business in this country. The cigarettes are now on sale in nearly all the leading hotels, cafes and clubs in New York, and the sales are constantly increasing.

Philip Morris & Co. have undertaken a campaign of street car sign advertising for the "Philip Morris" cigarette. The signs show a map of the western part of South America and the western part of Europe, with the cities of New York, Montreal, London and Cairo, seemingly banded together by a series of cigarettes.

Melachrino's Incorporate Under New York Laws

Have Authorized Capital of $3,500,000, Which Affords Ample Means For Pushing Firm's Products

As indicated in the last issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD the cigarette business heretofore conducted by M. Melachrino & Co., at 214-216 West 47th Street, New York, has been incorporated under the law of New York State, a charter having been issued last month. The following officers were elected at the first meeting of the new concern: Miltiades Melachrino, president; R. M. Ellis, R. B. McKittrick and W. H. Munson, vice presidents. The office of secretary and treasurer will be combined and this official is to be chosen shortly.

The corporation has an authorized capital of $3,500,000, which will give them ample working capital to greatly enlarge the scope of their business in many directions.

As is well known, Melachrino cigarettes are perhaps as widely known throughout the world as any brand of cigarettes made. The head office and factory of the parent concern is located in Cairo, Egypt, and they have large factories and warehouses in London, Hamburg, Germany; Bombay, India, and elsewhere. Perhaps the first and most popular introduction of the goods in the United States, came through the medium of American naval officers, and for a number of years the Melachrino cigarette has been the leading cigarette smoked by all our fleet officers.

It has only been a few years since the American factory was established in New York City. Their head office being located for a long time at 28th Street and Fifth Avenue. About two years ago the present beautiful ware-rooms, 214 West 48th Street, off Broadway, where they have been in the past few months, the company found it necessary to enlarge the building at number 216.

The president of the corporation, M. Melachrino, came to this country for the express purpose of establishing this plant, and he has largely been aided in the work by the gentlemen who have been named as vice presidents in the new corporation.

Messrs. Ellis and McKittrick are known the country over as men of undoubted efficiency in the cigarette field, and it is largely through their efforts that the widespread distribution of the goods through the United States has been accomplished.

Liggett Stand in Buffalo a Fine One

What is considered to be one of the best equipped cigar stores in Buffalo, was opened in that city several weeks ago. It is the new stand of the Liggett Company, and is located at 533 Main Street. On the opening day souvenirs, in the form of cigar lighters and cases, were given away to customers.

The stand, which is under the management of Frank Eagen, is finished in a fine manner inside, having mahogany fixtures and showcases. There are fine windows for display purposes and the stand is in the heart of the shopping district, which should insure a good trade.

Large Increase in U. S. Imports

According to one of the latest bulletins issued by the Department of Agriculture the imports of the United States on tobacco, cigarettes, etc., has increased wonderfully within the past year. The percentage of increase for the first eight months of 1912 over the same period last year is more than fifty per cent.

Lewis Brothers, leaf tobacco brokers of New York, recently purchased about 75 acres of Connecticut broad leaf tobacco, and plan the erection of a large packing warehouse in Manchester in the near future.

September Output Shows Large Cigar Increase

Production So Far This Year Ahead of Same Period in 1911—
Little Cigars and Cigarettes Decrease

JUDGING by the returns of the First Pennsylvania Internal Revenue District the manufacturers are doing a land office business. The output has continued to increase and the present indications point to a greatly enlarged increase in production in 1912 over 1911. The figures for September are as follows:

|----------------------------|-------------|-------------|

The production of cigars for the first nine months of this year is 551,171,350 compared with 545,485,010 during the same period last year, an increase which should grow even larger during the remaining months of 1912.

Trying the Coupon Scheme Among Retailers

Louis Zifferblatt, of the Emze Cigar Company, of Thirteenth Street, below Filbert, has introduced the coupon-giving practice in the retail store of the firm. It is his intention to try to interest a number of the central cigar retailers in the scheme and thus to divide the cost of the plan. Coupons have been printed which are given away with all purchases. The premiums, such as the United uses, run from cigar-cutters to safety razors.

New Retail Store For West Philadelphia

J. C. Smythe, connected with the cigar department of Mitchell, Fletcher & Co., who is proprietor of the cigar store at 1214 North Fifty-second Street, West Philadelphia, is opening another stand at 5536 Spruce Street, where a complete line of smokers' requisites will be carried in stock. W. H. Smythe, father of Mr. Smythe, will have supervision of both stands. The latest location is in a new and fast growing community and under able management should make a first-class smoke shop.

Balis Bros., of 1645 Passyunk avenue, have taken a store on Second Street below Market, where they will run a retail stand in connection with their other business.

Speed Goodloe & Company Take On "Argood"

THE Speed, Goodloe Cigar Company has taken on a new cigar which they state will be introduced around this section without delay. It is styled the "Argood," and is manufactured by E. Renninger, of Denver, Pa., who is one of the leading lights among the factory owners in that section of the State. It is a nickel proposition and is packed in boite nature boxes in a very attractive manner.

Mr. Brown, one of the Goodloe missionaries, is back at the office after a trip through Delaware and Maryland, where he was convincing retailers of the merits of the "Goodloe" cigar, a nickel brand which has met with a good reception. H. H. Ellis, of Delmar, Md., who took on this brand, has one of the most up-to-date stores in that town. He is installing new showcases of the latest sliding top variety, which is greatly improving the appearance of his store. Another retailer to handle the "Goodloe" brand is Paul Watson, of Salisbury, Md., who took on the "La Devisa" cigar, manufactured by E. M. Schwarz, of New York.

T. & O. Distributors Call At Factory

The continued increase for the Theobald & Oppenheimer brands is starting to embarrass the factory. This could be easily handled were it not for the inability of the firm to secure the needed additional cigarmakers. The traveling representatives have been notified not to take any more orders for new sizes, as the delay in filling the orders would be too great.

A number of T. & O. distributors have been calling at local offices, among them being: D. C. Glasser, of Dubuque, Iowa, one of the largest jobbers in that section, and a heavy handler of "William Penn" and "Little Wm. Penn" cigars; B. S. Bissinger, of Bissinger Bros. Co., of Pittsburgh, another big T. & O. jobber, and Mr. Jones, of Jones & MacIntosh, a leading tobacconist of Ogdensburg, N. Y.

The "Quaker" a New Representative Philadelphia Smoke

T. H. Hart & Co. are working their factory full blast these busy days. They are now introducing a new cigar, which should be one of their strong brands. It is styled the "Quaker" and is put up in a very attractive manner. They were compelled to defer putting this latest smoke on the market until now, due to the activity on the other brands, which occupied their time completely.

Quaker City Items

The Tenth and Market Streets store of Thomas Martindale & Co. is featuring the products of E. Regensburg & Co. and showing "The American" cigar in "La Favorita," "Diplomatico" and "Conchas Especial" sizes.

The present plant of John Steigerwald & Co. has become too small for this firm and they now have several locations under advisement at which the new factory will be located. An announcement will soon be made to the trade advising them as to the new home of the "La Tonia," "El Borita" and the "Wahnetah."

Jeitles & Blumenthal have rented the building next to their present quarters at 123 South Eleventh Street, and will occupy it as soon as the necessary alterations have been made. It is expected that the new accommodations will allow them to add one hundred more cigarmakers to their forces.

Monroe Luchs, of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, is in Philadelphia, looking over local conditions and getting in touch with affairs here. He is the Chicago representative of the firm and wished to be quoted as an optimist regarding the fall trade for the L., L. & L. brands.

T. H. Hart Company, Twelfth and Walnut Streets, reports that business is on the increase on their "Five of Harts" and "Heartsease" brands.

A new size of the "Heartsease" which has found a ready sale is the "Petit Opera," and on the "Corona" size the factory is oversold. This condition also exists on some of the smaller sizes of the "Five of Harts."

The new smoking tobacco recently introduced in this market by the United States Tobacco Company, "Hugh Campbell's Shag," has met with a cordial reception. All the larger dealers around town have taken it on and report good sales. The advertisements appearing in the daily papers have assisted them materially. "Jack" Fowler, the representative of the United States Tobacco Company in Philadelphia, is now on a trip through the Middle West pushing this mixture.

The factories of the Baum-Jaffe Company are all working full time on the many orders arriving for the holiday trade. The "Coiner" can now be found at many of the first-class stands around town. A heavy campaign was recently waged on this brand locally. The "A. J. Cassatt" and "El Jaffe" are also receiving attention, particularly in other cities, where they are receiving a wide distribution. These brands will soon be worked locally harder than they have been heretofore.

The general air of prosperity around the Dusel & Goodloe establishment is a good indication of the wholesale business around town. They have been specializing on "Little Chancellor," "Principe de Gales" and "La Preferencia" and are doing an immense business around town as well as among the larger retailers in the up State towns, where they do a heavy business. Their quarters are now becoming too small for them and they have a plan under consideration for securing a larger building.

Sig. C. Mayer, of Sig. C. Mayer & Co., has again gone West after a short stay in the city overlooking local conditions. He reports satisfactory progress on the "Rey-Oma," a cigar which the Mayer factory has been pushing heavily.

There is no indication of a let-up in the bustle around the Bobrow plant. L. M. Walter has been on a journey to New York and Brooklyn, where he secured some very satisfactory orders for the "Bold" and "Discriminator" cigars. The factory is now working until 7 o'clock each day in order to keep the supply up to the demand.

One of the best window displays around town recently in the point of high-grade goods was that shown in the Mint Arcade store of Godfrey Mahn. It showed only clear Havana goods and attracted quite a bit of attention. The "Romeo y Julieta" was in a handsome case, showing thirty-two sizes. Other brands were the "Casteneda," "Partagas," "Upmann" and the "Hoyo de Monterey." Any one looking for fine holiday smokes need go no further than these.

The cigar department of the Mitchell-Fletcher store at Twelfth and Chestnut Streets has received advices that a shipment of ten cases of imported goods will reach them within a short time. The shipment comprises such well-known brands as H. Upmann & Co., Henry Clay & Bock & Co., F. Garcia & Bro., Partagas and Romeo & Juliet.

Record-Breaking Fall Trade For Cressmans

Reports from the Cressman factory indicate a record-breaking fall business. The "Counsellor" has been making big headway in the extreme West, among the Pacific Coast retailers and jobbers, which activity is beginning to make the local headquarters hustle.

Joseph Gallagher, vice-president of the firm, is again back at his desk after an enjoyable European trip.

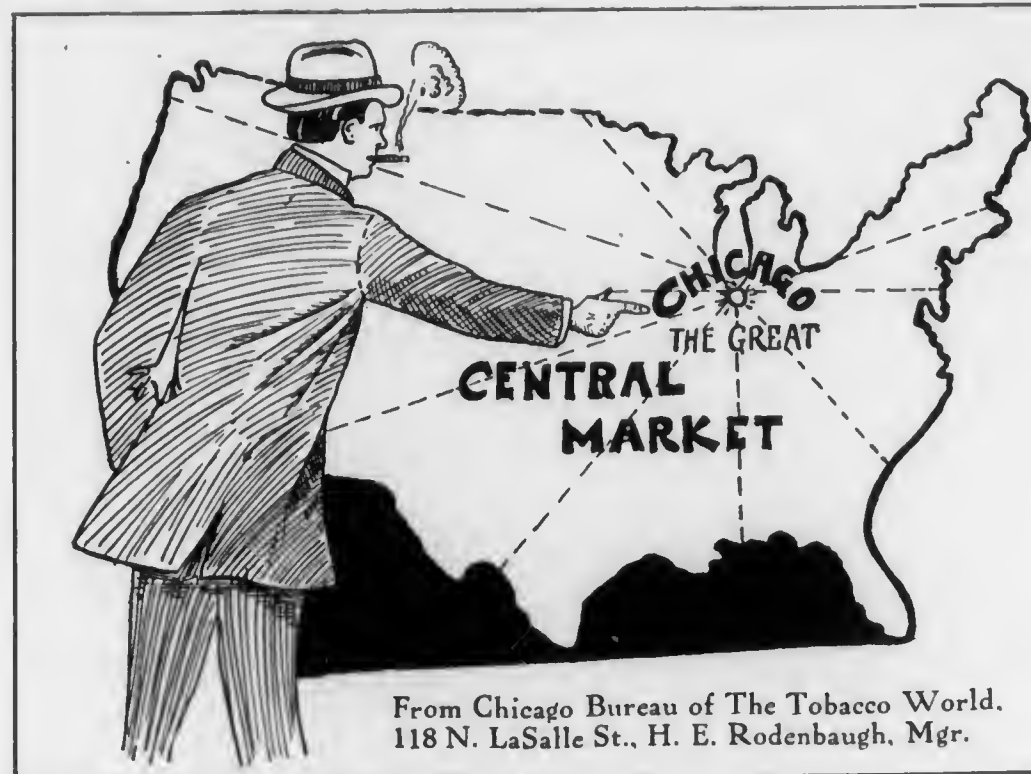

W. F. Renninger to Marry on Wednesday

W. F. Renninger, assistant secretary of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, is one of the latest recruits among the ranks of the younger cigar men around town to become a benedict. When informed of the rumor Mr. Renninger smilingly admitted the fact and said the lady in the case was Miss Olive Kahler, of Reading, Pa., a relative of the Reading manufacturer of that name. The wedding will take place in this city on Wednesday, October 16th.

Mr. Renninger is well known among cigar circles around the Quaker City and Ninth District, and is receiving heartiest congratulations from his many friends. He is a son of E. Renninger, the Denver, Pa., cigar manufacturer.

Boltz, Clymer & Co. have prepared for distribution among the trade a new catalogue showing the assorted shapes and sizes illustrated in colors of their "El Palencia" cigars. This catalogue is handsomely printed and shows an excellent picture of the factory on the first page, and the coat of arms is also shown in an embossed effect. The illustrations printed are from actual photographs.

J. G. Atherholt, 111 South Broad Street, is giving away a silver-plated combination electric cigar lighter and ash tray with every order of 100 cigars sold during the week of October 14th. The lighter is detachable from the tray, and of guaranteed make, which usually sells for $1.00, thus reducing the actual cost of the cigars that amount.

From Chicago Bureau of The Tobacco World.

CHICAGO, October 12.

NOT a little excitement has been created by an article published in one of the city papers, purporting to describe the methods of the American Tobacco Company and giving alleged inside information in regard to prices of tobacco and its products. The figures presented pertained to matters and conditions, the facts concerning which were supposed to be in the list of the inmost secrets of the business. On the part of those directly interested, it is asserted that the article was not based on facts, and that the alleged information was grossly incorrect. And there the matter rests, and the flurry is ended.

Reports concerning the condition of trade in high-grade cigars vary widely. Some of the dealers assert that business is very dull; others express greatest satisfaction. However, the manufacturers report heavy orders and none of the dealers are giving any evidence of lessening trade. Some of the jobbing houses report considerable increase in business over last year.

The week's returns on the leaf tobacco trade show a very large business, with prospects of still greater demands. Here and there a dealer reports rather discouraging prospects, but the general tone of trade is highly encouraging.

Every now and then there is a revival of popularity for the meerschaum pipe. Not that the meerschaum was ever unpopular, but there seem to be times when a new demand springs up for the old favorite and business increases. We seem to be in the midst of such a period just now. Orders for meerschaums are heavy and increasing.

For Chicago's Finest Hotel.

Plans are announced for the construction of a magnificent new hotel; larger, finer and more splendidly furnished than any now in existence in the city. The reported contemplated cost is to be $5,000,000. The location selected is the site of the present Stratford Hotel, on Michigan Boulevard—with the addition of the land on which the McCormick Building stands, if that land can be secured, making a total frontage of 220 feet on the Boulevard.

The southeast corner of Van Buren Street and Western Avenue and the southwest corner of Adams and Market Streets have been leased by the United Cigar Stores Company.

In connection with the thirty-seventh anniversary celebration of the founding of the Fair department store, special and noteworthy attention is given to the display and the trade in the cigar and tobacco department. The management is pushing the sale of the "Andero," a new brand of clear Havana cigars, which proves popular. One of the special attractions is the opportunity to secure a 16-ounce glass jar of "Prince Albert" smoking tobacco and a 50-cent briar pipe, silver mounted, the jar and pipe being sold together for 90 cents. The Fair's cigar and tobacco trade is reported by Mr. Anderson to be highly satisfactory.

Charles Parker, who runs a cafe in the Douglas Arcade, Thirty-sixth Street and Cottage Grove Avenue, is building up quite a cigar business by selling the popular brands all at cut prices. He takes the brands like "Tom Palmer," "La Cyrilla," "Sanchez & Haya," "La Venga," and "Ben Bey," and sells the two-for-a-quarter size at 10 cents and gives an additional 5 per cent off on box prices for cash.

Charles E. Way has put in the Bolano clear Havana line in his Fifty-seventh Street store.

Manager C. A. Paulson, of the Best & Russell Company's chain of stores, says the two Saturday specials, which they retail for five cents straight, "San Marco" and "Potter Palmer," both are big sellers.

Louis Lehnhard, of 263 West Sixty-third Street, has a large window display of the new "Osceola" five-cent cigar. He is selling also a big quantity of "Ciseneros," the clear Havana brand of Wahl & Constock Company, Chicago.

The Tom Jones Cigar Store, 163 West Jackson Boulevard, has a large window display of "Ben Bey," the brand that made John Grommes famous.

P. J. Bauer, of 83 West Randolph Street, has added the "Flor de Diaz" brand, of A. Diaz & Co. Mr. Cuygar, of this firm, was in town recently, placing the brand.

Best & Russell Company have put on sale in their stores the brand of "Donna Ganda," George Knight's cigar.

Plans Announced For Fine New Hotel—Best & Russell Issue Clever Booklet—Racing Renewed At Mineral Springs

Best & Russell Company Issue Booklet.

"Smoke Talks" is the name of a clever little booklet issued by the Best & Russell Company, of this city, to boost their "Robert Burns" cigars. The booklet purports to be advice administered by physicians and is illustrated by several dozen appropriate cuts well executed to illustrate the contentions of the advertisers. Special attention is called to the mildness of the blend and the effect of the heavy Havana cigar smoking on the nerves of the business man. The wording is snappy throughout and catchy so that a reader will be interested on the jump and read it through before discarding it. It is full of such words as "jump" your nerves, "drive" your heart and brain "jiggers" which compel attention. On the whole it is as clever a piece of advertising as has appeared for some time.

Label Blumenthal, of 219 Whiting Street, a salesman for a cigarette company, was fined $10 and costs by Municipal Judge Hopkins recently for tacking signs on private property without consent of the owners. L. A. Damon, 4203 Oakenwald Avenue, secretary of the Municipal Art League, caused the arrest.

Boys stole cigars valued at $25 from an automobile owned by Joseph Bartowiak, 4934 South Paulina Street, when he left the machine unguarded at West Superior and Noble Streets. A half hour later detectives found the boys at West Chicago Avenue and North Paulina Street in various stages of nausea produced by smoking the cigars. They confessed the theft of the cigars, the remainder of which were found at the home of one of the boys, who, although only nine years old, is said by the lads to be the leader of the band. They were turned over to the Juvenile Court authorities.

John Ruhe, a Philadelphia cigarette maker whose death was reported here a few weeks ago, left his fortune of over one million dollars to a brother, Fred Ruhe, of Freeport, near this city, whose occupation has been for years that of a stock food peddler. Will Merchants Patronize Parcels Post?

"Merchants, will you patronize the parcels post system to be established by the government on January 1, 1913?" This is the question Postmaster Campbell is asking the business men of Chicago in order to acquire an idea as to the popularity of the new institution. Letters were sent out to the business men asking their views and asking if they intended to avail themselves of the service. Attention is called to the provisions raising the weight of mailable merchandise to eleven pounds; rate for local delivery, which will be 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent each pound additional up to the eleven pound limit; and the fact that the department will not issue receipts for this matter nor provide indemnity therefor except for such as will be registered.

Bert Christian Some Plugger.

Bert Christian, one of Best & Russell Company's star men, is strongly boosting the United Commercial Travelers organization. Bert is a member of Northwestern Council No. 72, which enrolls such other well-known men as Al. Breitung, Billie Best, Clarence Hirschhorn, Joe Werthlheim, Geo. Mayr, Chas. Miller, Jno. Grommes, Jno. Thompson and Jno. Morrison.

A boosters' plan has been started among them which is called a 1-4-all and all-4-1. It is a reciprocal idea in which members buy only such goods as are handled by other members when such grades of goods are to be bought.

The membership is limited to traveling representatives, such as salesmen, buyers, collectors, auditors, adjusters, members of firms or heads of departments of jobbing houses or manufacturers' brokers or city salesmen for wholesale houses and professional men. The membership is over 65,000 and is made up of the liveliest bunch in the country.

The beneficial part of the order, taken together with the social side where the boys enjoy seeing each new member "ride the goat," accounts for its marvelous growth among the most sociable class of men in the world.

H. R. Swezy, 116 North La Salle Street, has added the "Van Dyck" line. Mr. Swezy's wholesale business has greatly increased and with the two box salesman, Messrs. Bennett and Corey, booking their Xmas orders, it keeps Dad and Lew on the jump. This is, without doubt, one of the busiest stores in the loop.

A. J. Crouch, B. S. Tabler and Carl Hendrix were named as incorporators in the Momenec Drug Company, of Momenec, Ill. The capital stock is $20,000.

The Krost Cigar Company, of this city, took out incorporation papers, capitalizing at $2,500, to manufacture and deal in cigars. John C. Farrell, Andrew W. Little and Lee Cohn registered.

Burns & Goldfuss, proprietors of a live buffet at 220 North State Street, issued some clever advertising cards boosting the "La Soneda" cigars, made by Storm, Fisher & Company, of New York. Each of the cards has a short story on it which, after the customer reads and laughs, he passes on to another, so, in this way, the company gets its customers to help advertise for them.

Sol Levi, one of the oldest and best-known leaf salesmen in the business, has become connected with the leaf house of Newmann & Gach, and will make Indiana and the South for them. Mr. Levi's friends wish him the best of success with his new house.

Years ago department stores sold a large quantity of cigars, but while figures are not at hand to back up the statement, yet it is noticeable that each year shows a falling off in the trade which the department stores do in this line. It is easy to see the reason for the sale of tobaccos requires a highly specialized selling force and adequate equipment to place them before the public in the most enticing manner. The department store trade at the present time seems to be limited to the distribution of job lots which in themselves cause a suspicion when they are placed on the market for sale, as the better grade lines are handled by private distributing agencies and care taken with them which could not possibly be received when handled in the manner they must be, when offered for sale by the department houses.

Racing Renewed Near City Limits.

Mineral Springs race track was opened October 12, and while not yet completed, gave some idea as to the possibility of the place. The grandstand was only about half completed but the paddock and garage were ready for occupancy. Twenty-six stables, capable of holding eight horses each, were rushed through in time for the opening.

The management is looking to Chicago patronage to support the undertaking. Gary and Hammond also have a number of enthusiastic track men. The tickets, sold in Chicago for $2.00, include car fare both ways and an admission to the track. Purses averaging $3,000 per day were placed in banks at Gary as an inducement to horsemen. The financial success of the venture will be determined by the possibility of "oral betting" satisfying those who go to the track only for the purpose of betting, and whether that kind of betting can get by Indiana authorities.

Harry Linden, proprietor of a cigar store at 514 North Clark Street, took unto himself a wife a few weeks ago.

I learned last week that L. J. McKimmon has resigned his position with F. P. Cordero, now F. P. Cordero & Co., the Company being according to reports, J. Fred Wilcox, of this city.

The Gold & Oppenheimer have been working on their "Royal Lancer" brand, erecting window displays. They are giving special deals for windows in the Loop and secured many valuable spaces.

Bob Brunton is getting the "Nestor" cigarettes well placed all over town. The Nestor people are putting out a new 25 cent package called "Ras-Eltin" and Bob has succeeded in getting them in most of the Loop stores and hotels. Bob is kidded by his friends about the name of the cigarettes, which he claims means "Peer of All"—not the kind of piers they tie boats to though.

Ed Morgan, who has been developing the "Optimo" and "Tom Moore" brand for Clarence Hirschhorn & Company, has resigned and the position has gone to T. L. George, formerly of J. & B. Moos.

Offers have already been made for the corner and inside stand for the new building to be erected at the northeast corner of State and Lake Streets. This site has just been leased for a period of 99 years and a bank now being organized to occupy the bank floor.

M. Cortelyou resigned his position as manager of the National Cigar store, at 34 South Dearborn Street, to take a position as city salesman with Berriman Brothers. His place has been taken by Ralph M. Hamburger.

In the first district of Illinois, which takes in a part of the northern part of the State there are 1,400 cigar factories, of which 1,079 are located in Chicago. This shows that the cigar industry has been prospering in this territory in the increased number of factories.

What promises to be a wonderfully successful campaign was started in "Afros" cigarettes, under the direction of J. M. Dixon. The article is from the house of Stephano Brothers, of Philadelphia, and sells in packages of ten for fifteen cents retail.

J. Fred Wilcox recently became associated with the firm of E. P. Cordero & Company, in the position of general sales manager, with offices at 14-16 North Franklin Street, from which the future selling agency of the Cordero products will be carried on. E. P. Cordero & Company are successors to the old firm of E. P. Cordero, who have manufactured high grade clear Havana cigars for many years. "La Matilda" is to be a new brand placed on the market by this house in connection with their other line, "Mi Hogar," "La Superior" and the "Cordero." On the last brand one of the features is the label carrying a picture of E. P. Cordero, head of the factory.

Harry Cordero, son of the founder of the factory, will be supervisor of the manufacture, having learned the business under the instruction of his father, who is considered one of the best judges of Cuban leaf tobacco in the business. Leo G. Steiner, son-in-law of Mr. Cordero, will be in charge of the business department and the office work of the firm.

The success of the firm from the jump is undoubted, as all are men of experience and standing in the tobacco business. These men will be assisted also by Le Roy C. Dupre. Nothing, it seems, now stands in the way of this concern taking its place as the foremost tobacco house in this part of the country.

A. S. Fink will start January 1 with Solares & Company, of this city, to represent them as salesman, leaving F. M. Lytzen & Company, of Muscatine, with which house he has been connected for five years.

Joseph A. Moos will have charge of the tobacco department which will be opened up on the seventh floor of the new Rothschild department store at State and Van Buren Streets.

Federal Cigar Company Takes Over Manila Cigar Business of Former Firm

THE Manila cigar business of the E. M. Elam Company, of San Francisco, which has for some time handled the agency for a number of Manila manufacturers, covering the United States, has been taken over by the Federal Cigar Company. The deal was closed last week by D. H. Ball, vice-president of the P. Lorillard Company, who left for the East last Sunday.

Mr. Elam, under the new arrangement, will be Coast representative of the Lorillard Company's cigar and tobacco lines. He has long occupied a prominent position in the Coast trade, and the present arrangement is expected to work greatly to the advantage both of himself and of the Lorillard Company. Mr. Elam returned a few days ago from an extended Eastern trip.

New Wholesale House For Little Rock, Arkansas

Henry Loeb, a representative of the Niles & Moses Cigar Company, of Kansas City, is opening a second store in Little Rock, Ark. He already has a stand in the New Capital Hotel, which is considered to be a well-paying venture. Mr. Loeb stated that the store, which is at 404 Main Street, will be remodelled entirely, and when completed will do a wholesale and retail business. He intends to place a stock of smokers' articles in the store valued at $50,000.

Seattle Takes to "El Wadora"

Ed Marshall, the factory representative of Sig. C. Mayer & Co., of Philadelphia, is now working hand in hand with the wholesale houses jobbing the Mayer goods in the West. When last heard from he was assisting the National Grocery Company, of Seattle to boost the "El Wadora" by clever salesmanship and attractive window displays. Sig. C. Mayer, the head of the Philadelphia firm, is also on a trip through the Middle and Far West.

Apte Cigar Store Takes On "Moses Cleveland"

The "Moses Cleveland" cigar, made by the London Whiff Cigar Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, has been taken on by the Apte Cigar Store, of St. Louis, who will push it heavily in that territory. They will also distribute the "Losnovios" cigar of Boltz, Clymer & Co., handling it in five sizes. The Apte store are moving to their location at Pine and North Third Streets.

C. V. Barnes, Cincinnati Jobber, Fails

C. V. Barnes, jobber, of 1011 Central Avenue, Cincinnati, made an assignment last week for the benefit of his creditors. His assets are estimated as of the value of $1500, while liabilities total about $5000.

"Havana Ribbon" and "Pippin" Being Campaigned

EHRMAN BROTHERS & COMPANY, of San Francisco, are about ready to start a more aggressive selling campaign in the interests of "Havana Ribbon," Bayuk Brothers Company, of Philadelphia, and "Pippin," Traiser & Co., of Boston, cigars. These two cigars are moving nicely, and it is felt that they can profit by a lot of special publicity work. The same company is featuring Benson & Hedges cigarettes in their cigarette line.

Lang & Co., the Portland, Ore., jobbers, have started to handle Manila cigars and recently took on the account of the "La Alejandria" cigar for Oregon, Northern Washington and Idaho.

E. G. Bennett, cigar broker, No. 116 North La Salle Street, Chicago, has just taken on the Pinkus Bros. line of "Monogram" cigarettes—made to order. Mr. Bennett says he is doing a good business, selling in 500 and 1000 lots.

One of the coming new wholesale houses of Pittsburgh, the C. A. Gibbs Company, will distribute the "Lozano" cigar in that territory. This brand is used in a number of clubs around Pittsburgh and with a live house behind it should be one of the big sellers of the Smoky City.

Donahue & Eaton, wholesalers, of Indianapolis, have taken on the account of the "Idol Cigar," made by the Havana-American Company.

The "Cuesta Rey" brand is being widely distributed by the St. Louis house of Wm. Stickney & Co., which city is one of the strongholds of the "Truly Spanish" house.

Jeffreys Brothers, the Newark, N. J., jobbers, have changed their address in that city to 174 Washington Avenue. They are large distributors of the "Five of Harts" and "Hearts Ease" cigars of T. H. Hart & Co., of Philadelphia.

The Southern Cigar Company, of New Orleans, reports a continued heavy demand for the "San Felice" and the "El Verso" cigars of the Deisel-Wemmer Co., of Lima, Ohio.

The "Havana Ribbon" has been taken on by the L. Singer Cigar Company, of Newark, N. J., who have already placed it in a number of leading stores in that section.

The Feilbach Company, distributors of the "John Ruskin" cigar, made by the I. Lewis Manufacturing Company, Newark, N. J., recently conducted an aggressive newspaper advertising campaign on the "Ruskin" cigar in the Toledo newspapers. They report that they have placed the brand quite generally throughout Toledo and are enjoying a brisk duplicate business.

A Coming Milwaukee Jobber

Jordan Company of Milwaukee Has Built Up Nice Trade Within Past Year

IT requires push and grit to establish a wholesale cigar house and put it up with the big ones within a year, yet the W. B. & W. G. Jordan Company, of Milwaukee, the grocery and cigar house, has accomplished this.

Up until a year ago this concern was not featuring cigars, although they had been enjoying considerable success for a number of years on two house brands, the "Dakomin" and "Jordan," both manufactured for them by T. J. Dunn & Co. Another brand, the "Iroquois Club," a brand of C. S. Abrams & Co., of Cleveland, was also jobbed quite extensively in the surrounding territory, although the salesmen were never urged to solicit trade in the cigar business outside of their own grocery houses.

The cigar department was practically created when they took on the "Reynaldo" and "Luxello" cigars of Luchs, Luckett & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia. Both these brands have taken exceptionally well and Jordans now enjoy a wide distribution on these goods. About this time they secured the service of Fred V. Milan, a cigar salesman, who has a wide acquaintance among the tobacco men of the Middle West and Northwest. He spent most of his time in Milwaukee and acted in an advisory capacity toward the other salesmen of the firm, who also carried the grocery lines. Mr. Milan showed them as much as possible the ins and outs of the cigar end and gave them pointers on methods of getting business.

Last fall Jordans took over the "Alcazar," made by Louis Kindling Co., of Milwaukee, a well-known brand in that section. This cigar has taken very well and particularly in the

"Reina Victoria" size, a two-for-a-quarter smoke. Last January more cigars were added to their stock, the more prominent being those of A. G. Kaufmann Co. and H. Anton Bock & Co. Both these brands had been carried by A. J. Hill & Co., of Milwaukee, but the Hill Company desired to confine their business more exclusively to the retail end. Not being equipped to solicit business in the surrounding territory as they wished, they were desirous of transferring their jobbing account, although they had been uniformly successful. These lines include the "Nestor," "Tuxedo Club," "John Drew," "Regent," "Don Antonio," "Bock Selected Smokers" and "La Nedra."

The addition of these brands necessitated increasing the sales force, which was accordingly done in the persons of J. M. Van Riper and S. E. McMahon, both experienced cigar salesmen, who have been covering the country territory for the firm.

This record shows a growth which surely portends a get-ahead spirit and one which is bound to make itself felt in the wholesale business in Minnesota. W. B. & W. G. Jordan expect a fine fall and holiday trade and state that they are well equipped to handle it.

C. W. Limroth, whose store at 1119 Broadway, Camden, N. J., is headquarters for a varied line of cigars and tobacco supplies, reports his jobbing business to be booming nicely. The Limroth business is confined principally to Southern New Jersey.

Rosenthal Bros. & Bendetson, the Boston wholesale house, are distributing a number of fine cards for display purposes on their five cent brands. They are now popularizing the "R B Special," "La Famosa" and the "Havana Ribbon."

Splendid Facilities of Los Angeles House

The other view depicts the immense humididor of the firm. It has a capacity of one million cigars. This is said to be possibly the largest humididor in the West.

Cuban Guarantee Stamps Being Prepared Government Ready to Protect Havana Cigars and Cigarettes Against Frauds

(Special Dispatch to The Tobacco World.)
HAVANA, CUBA, October 12.

THE first steps have been taken by the Cuban Government to enforce the recently enacted law aiming to protect Cuban tobacco products. In compliance with the law the government is now printing a new guarantee stamp, which will appear on each box of cigars, cigarettes or cut tobacco made in Cuba, as a guarantee to the smoker that he is buying the genuine Cuban-made products and as a protection against imitation.

These stamps will be exhibited in all the foreign consulates, being widely advertised through the press, so as to familiarize the smokers with their appearance and significance.

These stamps will be sold to the manufacturers at $2.00 per 1,000 boxes of cigars (there is no mention made as to the quantity of cigars each box might contain) and $1.00 per thousand packages of cigarettes or cut tobacco.

All violations of the new law through fraud will be punished severely by the courts of each country through the co-operation of the local Cuban consuls and the assistance of the Union of Cuban Manufacturers. The Manufacturers' Union will receive one-half of the proceeds from the sale of the stamps, thereby giving them ample funds for the prosecution of fakirs who attempt to palm off alien goods as Cuban-made.

Stringent rules are also to be enforced in the handling of these stamps by manufacturers. Strict supervision will be maintained by the customs houses over all boxes of cigars exported and heavy fines will be imposed upon all violators.

The new law takes the place of a previous Guarantee Stamp Act, and it is hoped to achieve the results which the first measure did not obtain.

John C. Krummel Leaves Lührman & Wilbern

John C. Krummel, assistant secretary of the Lührman & Wilbern branch of the P. Lorillard Company, of Middletown, O., severed his connection with that concern on October 1st. Mr. Krummel has been connected with the tobacco industry for the past twenty years, having gone with the Lührman & Wilbern Company when but a youth, shortly after the company was organized in Cincinnati. Later, when the American Tobacco Company absorbed the business and the plant was moved to Middletown, he was made assistant secretary of the concern, in which capacity he has since served. It is Mr. Krummel's intention to make no definite arrangements until he has taken a rest of a month or two.

Second Factory For Penn Cigar Company

The Penn Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa., report an increasing demand for their goods, so much so that they were compelled to open a branch factory in Ironton, O., recently. A news item appearing in the October 1st issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD stated that this firm had moved their main plant in Pittsburgh to Ironton, O., due to the scarcity of labor. The manufacturers wish to state that the correspondent was in error and that the last factory will be only a branch one.

The month of September was generally favorable for the maturing of the tobacco crops according to the general review of crop conditions published by the Department of Agriculture. The condition of tobacco on October 1st, as compared with the average of recent years, is given as 98.2. The percentage last year was 101.6.

Albert S. Schneider, a Utica, N. Y., manufacturer, has taken into partnership with him John T. Fredericks. The firm will do business as Schneider & Fredericks at 107 Eagle Street, Utica.

To Improve Burn of Tobacco

SCRANTON, PA., October 6.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD:
Will you please tell me how the burn of tobacco can be improved? I had a formula, but have lost it. Thanking you in advance for this information, I remain,

SMALL MANUFACTURER.

Poor burning tobacco is greatly improved by casing in a solution of crystallized saltpetre dissolved in the casing water. Use eight ounces of crystallized saltpetre to each gallon of water. The mixture is most effective when warm water is used. A mixture is now on the market, manufactured by The Tabakose Company, 135 Front Street, New York City, which the makers claim will make any piece of tobacco burn perfectly, with a solid ash and without flaking.

Late Trade Jottings

The cigar stand at the corner of Turk and Taylor Streets, San Francisco, has been purchased by A. H. Pearce, a tobacconist of Market and Drumm Streets. The stand was formerly operated by Parker Brothers.

Fire destroyed a tobacco warehouse on the farm of Mrs. D. W. Crittenden, Elton, Kentucky, together with about ten thousand pounds of tobacco which was in process of curing. The loss is estimated at $1200, with no insurance.

Fire caused a loss of about $3000 to the Columbus, Ohio, branch of the Union American Cigar Company, located at 338 West Broad Street. The Scioto Box Company, which occupied the basement, sustained a loss of approximately $2500.

How France Handles Tobacco Smugglers

Narrative of Exciting Encounter Between Officials and Violators of State Law

A DRAMATIC encounter between tobacco smugglers and French customs officials occurred recently near Lille. The officials stopped the automobile, which contained over a ton of tobacco, but the smugglers got away.

About 7 o'clock in the evening a huge car rushed by the customs post at Touquet, on the Franco-Belgian frontier, beyond Tourcoing, and made off on the fourth speed towards Tourcoing, in order to reach the Grand Boulevard a splendid motor road running from Tourcoing to Lille. The customs police immediately discharged their revolvers at the tires of the car, and then, springing on their bicycles, gave chase.

They were being fast outdistanced by the car, when a heavy dray, drawn across the high road, made the fugitives slow down. One of the excisemen leaped from his bicycle and jumped on the back of the car. The contraband runners drew their revolvers on him, but the plucky customs man ducking beneath the hood, avoided the shots.

The other excisemen pedaled on ahead of the car, and, barring the way, called on the smugglers to stop. For reply they drove the car straight at the man, but he jumped into the ditch and the car followed him. The smugglers then sprang out and fled, abandoning their machine and its contents.

Ninth District Cigar Output Shows Fine Gain

The internal revenue figures for the month of September show to a certainty that the cigar industry in the Ninth District is at the height of a boom. While the production for last month is not as large as for August, it can easily be accounted for by the fact that taking in consideration Labor Day, and September being a shorter month than August (three working days less), the production is really larger.

The cigar output for September was 65,571,426, as compared with 67,701,000 in August. The figures for September, 1911, were 63,751,180, and for the preceding year 67,416,520.

A. E. Nelson Leaves Hoffman-Moore Company

A. E. Nelson, who, since the Hoffman-Moore Company of San Francisco was reorganized some months ago, has been the secretary and treasurer, has left the company and will probably dispose of his interests in the concern entirely. J. J. Hoffman is at present taking full charge of the office and sales department.

John Rickes has purchased the W. C. Fear Cigar Store on Ninth Street, Anderson, Ind., from J. F. Darmody, of Indianapolis, Ind.

Cleveland Prepares for Big Convention

Should Boom Cigar Trade—R. J. Seidenberg & Company of Buffalo to Have Stand in New Statler Hotel

CLEVELAND, October 11.

THERE will be great doings hereabouts next week. The Knight Templars Conclave, with 66 Commanderies, will have the key to our city. The town has adorned itself once again in festive garb for the occasion. Work on the New Statler Hotel has been rushed in order to be open in time for the event to accommodate the visitors.

The hotel will have a grand Charity Ball to open up with on the 19th. A great part of the proceeds will be donated to the Babies' Dispensary. The various committees have been working for months in preparation for the ball.

The cigar stand in the hotel will be run by R. J. Seidenberg & Company, of Buffalo, N. Y., who also have the stand in the Hotel Yates, at Syracuse, N. Y. Mr. Parker will manage the new stand.

Visitors at the Joseph Y. Snyder cigar stands the other day all wanted to know why Mr. Robt. C. Heaney, the manager of the local stores, wore such a broad grin on his face. The occasion was that there's a dandy eight pound boy out at their house. Everybody says that Robert, Jr., is the image of his daddy.

Walter E. James, of the Gesta Key & Company, Tampa, Fla., is expected here the coming week.

Sam Feiman, of Canton, O., has been East in the markets visiting the factories.

Willis Andrus, of F. Garcia & Brother, Tampa, Fla., was in town the past week.

The stock of the Lorain Cigar Company, Lorain, O., which went into bankruptcy, has been closed out by the receiver.

Bert Keyes, formerly of the Hotel Euclid Cigar Company, has affiliated himself with the Campbell Cigar Company, of Akron, O. De Muth & Company's representative, Mr. Boston, was here the past week placing his line of pipes.

Mr. Allen, of the Pyle & Allen Company, has just returned from a fishing trip.

Charles Dryfoos, of Hamilton, O., was up to Cleveland a few weeks ago placing orders with the Shields & Wertheim Company, for "Saramitas," of which brands he is the distributor in his city. The writer had a personal interview with him and reports business good.

Morris Eisenberger, of Eisenberger Brothers, Dayton, O., is expected at the office of the Shields & Wertheim Company within the next few days. He distributes "La Saramitas" in Dayton, with which he is doing an exceptionally big business.

One of his cigar stores is called "The Cigar Store Beautiful," as it is supposed to be one of the handsomest stores in the United States. The firm is composed of Morris and Sidney Eisenberg. They are both young and very active, and their business the past year from a jobbing standpoint has grown by leaps and bounds.

Sig. Stein, the Chicago representative of the Shields & Wertheim Company, returned from a Northwestern trip ten days ago and was taken down with inflammatory rheumatism and has been very sick ever since. We all hope that he will be back on the job again very soon.

The Shields-Wertheim factory is oversold. All the salesmen are out on the job and, if the factory can't catch up with their orders in the next ten days, the boys will all have to be called in.

Mr. George Bassett, of the Osborn Building cigar stand, is back from a three weeks' vacation.

Mr. McGuire, the general manager of the Stranahan Company's little cigar stand, reports business going along very smoothly and he is anticipating a very big holiday trade.

Mr. Harry Fagin, of the Jenkinson Company's Scofield Building stand, reports business going big.

Jos. Levy, manager of the Jenkinson Company's Williamson Building stand, is looking forward to a big holiday business.

John Rolands, the general manager of the Jenkinson Company's stores, is too busy to talk to anyone nowadays, as his chain of retail stores is keeping him on the jump. Christmas orders are coming in big and fast.

Morris Glicksman, who has his store in the Masonic Building, is satisfied with business conditions and only hopes they will continue.

M. H. Kalfon representing the Ferdinand Hirsch Company, of Key West, was with us last week.

W. H. Munson, vice-president of the M. Melachro Company, was in town in the interest of his concern.

Charles P. Young Dies in York, Pa.

Charles P. Young, senior member of the wholesale and retail cigar firm of Young & Busser, of York, Pa., died several days ago at his residence in that city. He left for Southern Pines, N. C., last winter and was much improved in health when he returned, although he did not attend to many of the details of the business. Mr. Young was also president of the Dispatch Publishing Company, of York, publishers of the York "Dispatch," a daily newspaper. He was 54 years of age and is survived by a widow.

APPROACH OF FALL BOOSTS BUSINESS

Large Increase in September Production of Cigars--Sam C. Whited to Occupy New Stand

DETROIT, October 10. SO far as I have ascertained, the close of the excursion season, the advent of late fall, with its chill breath and misty days, and lessening number of travelers and tourists has had no marked effect on retail cigar and tobacco sales. The leading down-town stands report a steady volume of business. This may be accounted for from the fact that more people are on the streets, now that the season is unfavorable to those accustomed to the river and island boats and to the hundreds of nearby resorts.

Detroit's down-town business section, particularly Woodward Avenue, is an impressive sight on almost any evening; but particularly so on Saturday night. Strangers gaze at it in amazement and go away profoundly impressed. This is owing largely to the plan on which the city is built. It is laid out somewhat like a wheel, or rather like a cobweb, the main strands of which, or arteries of traffic, such as Woodward Avenue, Jefferson, Michigan, Gratiot, Grand River, Fort, etc., all converge from the outer circumference to a common centre, represented by a half mile circle, the heart of which touches City Hall, Campus Martius, Hotel Pontchartrain, and the Majestic Building. There is no regularly more animated place in the United States than this is on Saturday nights. If there is anything doing in town, the cigar dealers within this half mile circle almost invariably find it to their advantage.

In the first few days of the month we had with us a most notable gathering. It was the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce, comprising some four hundred and fifty delegates from the far corners of the earth, many with ladies and members of their family. During their stay much lavish entertainment was provided at various hands, in which fine cigars and choice cigarettes were by no means slighted.

Other important gatherings did their share, as well, in stimulating the consumption of fine goods.

The internal revenue returns for September, as compared with last year, show a decided gain, as will be perceived:

| Sept. | Cigars. | Tobacco and Snuff. |
|-------|-------------|--------------------|
| 1912 | $76,370.33 | $181,834.94 |
| 1911 | 66,844.70 | 124,004.30 |

The labor issue is still a serious problem. Not sufficient help is available. It is hoped and believed some solution of the difficulty will be achieved before the winter is over.

Lots of rumors are about town, and wild statements involving millions of dollars and the Melachrino, Milo and other cigarette and tobacco corporations. Here and there is found the wise guy who "has it straight." He unfolds the details to his credulous hearers, incidentally mentioning five, ten, fifteen or fifty million dollars as carelessly as though they were so many nickels.

Some weeks ago the firm of Smith & Krull, cigar brokers, was formed with offices at 29 McGraw Building. Frank M. Smith is well known as former manager of Hotel Pontchartrain cigar department. Bernard Krull was, until recently, with the A. T. Company. He is well regarded by his trade. The firm have control of the Starlight Brothers' line of cigars, for Michigan and the Central West. In addition, they have several other lines, notably the "Espina." Mr. Krull leaves tonight for a three weeks' trip that will take him as far westward as Denver.

The building at 32-34 Woodward Avenue, formerly the home of the Hemmeter Cigar Company, now presents an altered appearance. It, together with the adjoining place, No. 36, has been leased by Harry F. and Chas. L. Postal and C. H. De Witt, under the style of the Woodward Bowling Alleys. The two former are sons of Fred Postal, proprietor of the Griswold House. On the ground floor of No. 36 is a bar and cigar stand. The rest of the premises is used for bowling and billiards. There are twenty-six alleys and ten tables. The cigar privilege is in the hands of the Harry W. Watson Cigar Company.

Since October 1st, Jno. H. Pringle, of The Pall Mall Hotel, has put Vincent Belair in charge of the cigar counter with a view to developing it along independent lines rather than as an adjunct of the bar. The location, corner of Jefferson and Woodward Avenues, is one that draws almost entirely on transient trade. Renovations of the premises, made some months past, give a neat glass front and two entrances from outdoors direct to the cigar stand.

Sam C. Whited is patiently awaiting the installation of steam fixtures before opening the new store at 793 Woodward Avenue. Four months ago Sam moved from No. 789, where he had been six years, to No. 791. August 1st he had to move again to make room for a new building, and until now has been out of business. Now he's at No. 793, and says that's as far north as he's going, gosh ding it! He has a lease on the entire building and will occupy the upper floor with his family. On the lower floor, in addition to his cigar and news stand, he will run a barber shop, and also experiment with a pool table, to which he will add others in time, provided he finds it a good thing.

F. W. Clarke and H. J. Clarke are the names of two gentlemen who arrived here about October 1st with the expectation of making their home here for some time. These gentlemen, both of whom had extended experience with the A. T. Company, have been with the Larus & Brother Company, Richmond, Va., since January. Their territory embraces Michigan and part of Ohio and Pennsylvania. They are operating vigorously on the firm's two leading brands "Qboild" and "Edgeworth," both of which have long been accepted by smokers as tobaccos of great merit.

A representative of Messrs. A. L. and M. L. Kaufmann has been here some days and will remain for some time doing specialty work on their "Smokecraft" brand for the benefit of Lee and Cady, who are the distributors for this territory.

J. M. Feldstein, jobber of cigars, at 331 Warren Avenue, E., though operating in a very small way, informs me nevertheless that he enjoys a tidy business on "Slight Draft," which is his leading cigar.

A good many compliments have been passed on the appearance of the cigar stand in the recently rebuilt Downey House, at Lansing, Mich. The fittings harmonize beautifully with the dark gray walls and dark green marble of the lobby. The stand is operated by the Harry W. Watson Company, and is one of the prettiest of the many that this company controls.

The fixtures for the store of Sam C. Whited, 793 Woodward Avenue, will be of solid mahogany. They are from the Detroit Show Case Company.

Quite a few leaf salesmen have been here recently showing mainly Connecticut leaf and samples of the new Sumatra bought at fall inscriptions. Among them are:

A. G. Hiller, Hiller & Kallenberg, Chicago; Ray Sutter, Jacob Sutter & Son, Chicago; Stephen Friend, E. Friend & Sons, N. Y.; Jul. Marqusee, N. Y.; Alfred L. Schmid, also Wm. Hirsch, L. Schmid & Co.; Wm. Miller, Am. Sumatra Tob. Co.; Wm. Goetze, Jno. A. Goetze & Co.; Howard Kinney, H. Duys & Co.; "Billy" Levinson, J. Bernheim & Son; Jos. Cullman, Jr., Cullman Bros. & Co.; A. Hirsch, Jos. Hirsch & Son; R. C. Goldsmith, Goldsmith & Bloch, N. Y.

The following were also here: Sidney Caben, E. Regensburg & Sons; Chas. Baswitz, Gonzalez & Sanchez Co., Jacksonville, Fla.; Jose M. Cuyar, Andreas Diaz & Co., Tampa; F. W. Winter, The Winter Cigar Mfg. Co., N. Y.

Big Order For Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice Labels

The prominent New York lithographing house of Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice are making great headway in the Middle West with their goods. One example of this progress is typified in an order recently secured by their Western representative in Chicago, John B. Thatcher, who put through a deal whereby the cigar manufacturing house of Grommes & Elson, makers of the "Ben Bey" cigars, will take 250,000 sets of the labels for this clear Havana smoke. This order should be gratifying both to the label firm and the Chicago concern, which is doing a big business since moving to their new factory at Wilmot and Robey Streets.

The Imperial Cigar Company, of Scranton, Pa., has purchased the Everhart homestead in that city, located at 137 Franklin Avenue, and, it is said, will convert it into a business place. The cost was $10,000.

The Morrison Cigar Company is the name of a new concern to start business in Morrison, Ill., about October 1st.

Fred Kuehneisen, formerly of Melachrino's sales staff, is in charge of the newly opened cigar stand in the Farmers' Bank Building, at Pittsburgh, which is conducted by the Havana-Tampa Cigar Company. Kuehneisen is an experienced salesman and the stand over which he presides is the first ever opened in the Farmers' Bank Building. He carries a high-class line of Key West and domestic cigars and a full line of Pittsburgh's popular smokes—stogies.

W. C. Clark, Chicago representative of Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., Philadelphia, is giving the "Royal Lancer" 10c cigar a boost, through Ruhstrat, Cowley & Co., the distributors.

F. C. Swanson has been interviewing the Chicago trade and has met with success in placing "Zubelda," P. Lorillard & Co. Turkish blend cigarette, that is intended to compete with "Fatima" and the like brands for the favor of smokers. Mr. Swanson is located at 814 Wilson Avenue, that city.

M. Garcewich, the genial traveler for Schanisi Brothers, of New York, was recently pushing "Naturals" and "Prettiest" among Denver dealers, where these goods are very popular.

R. C. Hammond, the genial Cuesta-Rey Pacific Coast man, has been working hand in hand there with the San Diego distributor, R. F. Vogt. Mr. Vogt jobs the "Ponce de Leon" and does a large trade in this high-grade product.

L. O. Rand, formerly a traveler for Jose Lovera & Co., is now with the Fromherz-Berlizheimer Co., of Chicago, and has the states of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Iowa.

John G. Spatz, the Reading, Pa., manufacturer, was a recent visitor in St. Louis, where his brands have a good following.

Newsy Trade Notes

At the October 11 inscription at Amsterdam the Americans did not buy a bale. About 17,000 bales was sold.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau
Neptuno 24

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, October 9.

IN reviewing the last fortnight of our leaf market we can again report a very flourishing state of business. The principal sustaining power of prices were this time the American manufacturers and leaf dealers, although the large continued deliveries, on previous contracts, to Messrs. Sylvester & Stern, have swelled the amount of sales. Germany is commencing to decrease in importance for our leaf dealers, which in view of the large exports to this country, during the summer, is but natural. A couple of Canadian buyers have operated to some extent.

The receipts from the country have begun to show a falling off, and will become more marked yet during the balance of this year. This has been the first fortnight when the sales exceeded the receipts from the country. According to a calculation made up to date by taking the stocks on hand on January first of this year, adding thereto the receipts from the country, and deducting the sales, there ought to remain 150,000 bales on hand for sale in first hands. This includes all kinds of leaf of this present crop, as well as of the previous one. Unless there is some mistake, as we do not pretend to be infallible, it ought to be some consolation to the future buyers that intend to pay us a visit later on. However, the best vegas of factory styles are scarce stands to reason, while of heavier styles, for mixing purposes, there are some excellent grades to be found yet. Prices are stiffly held by the lucky holders, who expect to realize higher figures eventually later on. Of remedies, first and second capaduras, it is estimated that there are not over 20,000 bales of both kinds in first hands. This does not include the American, or Spanish houses here, which are looking out for their special manufacturing customers in the United States, and do not sell in our open market.

The following story was given to us from a reliable source, and may illustrate the trend of our market, as well as the difference of opinion held by two members of the tobacco trade here: Messrs. Sylvester & Stern had made a contract for future delivery of about 200 bales of second capaduras with the packers of Remedios, Messrs. Gutierrez & Diehl, at a reserved price. The date of the delivery was to be November first.

A few days ago Mr. Max Stern and Mr. Miguel Gutierrez met casually, and in the course of conversation, the latter, as a joke, remarked that he would lose $3000 upon the above cited transaction. Mr. Stern replied, that if he felt so bad about this contract, that he would release him from all responsibility by handing over a check for $1500. Don Miguel accepted the offer at once, and handed a check for the above named quantity. The question to be settled later on is, who has made the best bargain of the two parties. Messrs. Sylvester & Stern probably did not need the few hundred extra bales of Seconds, and receiving $1500, without having had to invest a cent, have certainly done a good business transaction, from a commercial standpoint, while Messrs. Gutierrez & Diehl have for the present increased the cost of their packings to the extent of $1500. However, the latter must know what they are about, and if the market should go their way they may perhaps duplicate the present outlay, as according to all appearances the market for good second capaduras is bound to advance materially yet this winter.

Sales, during the fortnight gone by, total 32,989 bales of all kinds of leaf, or split up into: Vuelta Abajo 16,749, Partido 5,537, and Remedios 10,703 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, including one Canadian firm, 14,242; exporters to Europe, 6,163; shippers to South America, 1,006, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, as well as their buyers, 11,578 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco, from the port of Havana, from September 23 to October 5, were:

To all ports of the United States (bales), 13,065; to Germany, Bremen and Hamburg, 6035; to South America, Buenos Aires, 1093; to London, 78; to Austria, 50; to Canary Islands, 11; making a total of 20,332 bales.

Receipts of tobacco from the country were:
From September 22, to October 5, 1912. Since January 1, 1912.

Cigars.
At last we may say that the dull period in the manufacturing line has come to an end, as not alone the first half of September has shown a surplus of over two million cigars exported, above the same period of last year, but the second half shall have even amounted to more, although we are unable to give the exact figures by this mail. We herewith submit the figures for the former period as follows, viz:

|--|--------------------------|
| From September 1st to September 15th, 1912 | 8,858,371 cigars |
| From September 1st to September 15th, 1911 | 6,581,593 cigars |
| Increase in 1912 | 2,276,778 cigars |
| From January 1st to September 15th, 1912 | 116,128,458 cigars |
| From January 1st to September 15th, 1911 | 127,875,454 cigars |
| Decrease in 1912 | 11,746,996 cigars |

The demand from England has been particularly heavy of late, while business with the United States has improved considerably, also Canada, the South American Republics, Australia and to a lesser extent Germany.

H. Upmann & Co. are working under a full headway at present. Don Alberto Upmann stated that wherever he had gone, in company of their representative of the United States and Canada, Mr. Charles Landau, and he had visited all the places in both countries from east to west, and from the north to the south, wherever only Havana cigars are smoked, the importers had expressed their delight with the new cigars of the famous H. Upmann brand.

Romeo y Julieta are so crowded with orders, that they had to seat more cigarmakers in their next door building, Belascoain 2, B., and which heretofore they had only rented with the idea to have a sufficiently large warehouse handy for storing their immense stocks of tobacco.

Partagas tells the same story of being busy with all hands upon a very large order file.

Mr. Francisco Arango celebrated his saint's day last week, having many visitors in the big Henry Clay & Bock & Co. building, at Zulueta No. 10, who came to congratulate him. In this country nobody seems to take any notice of the anniversary of a birthday, but the saint's day is taking its place. Wm. L. Millett returned in the nick of time, as his services were badly needed on account of the rush in the factories.

Castañeda is working with a full house upon good substantial orders from all parts of the world.

Behrens & Co., owners of the well-liked Sol factory, showed us some letters, where the writers in very flattering terms expressed their satisfaction with the new cigars. This factory is working the new leaf exclusively in the manufacture of its cigars, and this may be the reason that the smokers are so pleased, when smoking a "Sol" cigar.

The Elite factory has removed to San Miguel No. 85, lately vacated by the Diligencia factory, and the original building, where the late Herman Upmann founded the celebrated H. Upmann brand in 1844. Don Felipe Rodriguez was head over heels occupied, when we called upon him, and only stated, that all of their brands, "Elite," "Flor del Fumar" and "Flor de P. A. Estanillo" were crowded with orders.

Auto Races Help Milwaukee Dealers

Wholesale Druggists to Meet in City—"Pure Gold" Taking Good Hold—"The Town Boost," New Local Cigar—New Line Introduced in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Wis., October 12.

BUSINESS in Milwaukee during the past month has been good. The postponing of the auto races had it good effects, bringing many visitors to the city twice.

As reported last month the Merrill Building, the ground floor of which is occupied by the United Cigar Stores Co., has been leased by new parties and it is rumored that it will be converted into a new department store.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting of the National Wholesale Druggists' Association will be held in Milwaukee, October 14th to October 19th. Secretary Joseph E. Toms, of New York City, is already here.

The Sternberg Manufacturing Co., makers of cigar molds and also manufacturers of automobile trucks, have increased their capital stock from fifty thousand dollars to one hundred thousand dollars.

I. M. Lederer, some years ago owner of a retail store in this city, and since then connected with various cigar manufacturing houses, has become interested in the Congress Cigar Co., of Chicago, Ill., who, among other brands, are making the "La Palma" a clear Havana cigar in various sizes. The cigar is distributed locally through John Hoffman & Sons Co., wholesale grocers and cigar jobbers, and also through the larger cigar houses here. Mr. Lederer has succeeded in placing the "La Palma" in nearly every place of prominence in the city, and it is moving exceptionally well. He is feeling very proud these days, not only on account of his success in the new venture, but because his wife recently presented him with twin girls.

Steve Surman reports a gratifying business, for the Cuba Rica Cigar store. The "Tasso" is being featured at present and is moving very well.

The "Cinco" cigar, jobbed here by the A. S. Goodrich Co., continues to move very well. The "Equity" handled by the same firm also holds up nicely.

Leo Abraham continues to enjoy a very good business at all his retail stores, the wholesale department also reporting a good business. The Third Street store is making a showing of the "Charter" cigar, which continues one of the best five cent sellers. The Caswell Block store have just received a very "swell" line of pipes for the Christmas trade, and if appearances are an indication, the line will move very rapidly. Sam Bach, formerly clerk at this store, has just returned from a trip which included the Gulf States. He speaks highly of the country and may return there.

The Wright Drug Company are making a display of the "King Albert" five-cent cigar. All lines are moving well with them. Mr. Sol Epstein, president of the company, celebrated his birthday a few days ago.

Fay Lewis and Brother Company report a very good business. The "Webster," "El Sidelo," "Tom Moore" and "Savarona" being among the leaders in ten cent goods, while the "Masterpiece" continues a favorite in nickel smoke. The Pabst Building store is making a display of the "Masterpiece" and also the "El Sidelo Secundo." Mr. Fay Lewis, president of the firm, spent a few days here coming up from Rockford, Ill.

C. R. Daily of The Pure Gold Tobacco Company, is a visitor this week. Mr. Daily reports business quite good in this locality.

Don Calixto Lopez, of The Eden factory, was also very busy when we called upon our usual visit, and only stated, that as far as their factory was concerned that they had more orders on hand for immediate shipment, than they could fill in a hurry, but he hoped to do the best he could in pleasing everyone, with a little patience on the part of the importers.

Latest Happenings in Cincinnati Market

Cincinnati Tobacco Machinery Company Sues Hisey-Wolf Company For $20,000 Damages—Louisville Leaf Tobacco Exchange Protests Proposed Raise in Freight Rates

CINCINNATI, O., October 12.

LOCAL manufacturers report the receipt of money orders from their distributors throughout the country for holiday packings of cigars. It is believed that the demand will exceed that of the Christmas season of 1911.

One of the striking window displays of the week is that of S. Frieder & Sons, of 5 East Fifth Street, consisting of an artistic arrangement of meerscham pipes, resting on a black crepe paper background. The window is one of the largest of its kind in the city, and over 100 pipes were used in the display, which attracted much attention, and, incidentally, caused many sales.

The Cincinnati Tobacco Machinery Company yesterday filed suit for $20,000 damages, against the Hisey-Wolf Machine Company, in the Common Pleas Court. The action, it is understood, grows out of a claim for a patent tobacco stripping machine.

The Louisville (Ky.) Leaf Tobacco Exchange, on October 11th, adopted resolutions protesting against the proposed advance in freight rates by a change in classification of leaf tobacco in less than carload lots, now under consideration by the railroad authorities. It is asserted that the change would double the rates, and work a great hardship upon every interest connected with the tobacco industry. It is probable that the Cincinnati Leaf Exchange will take similar action shortly.

Charles N. Krohn & Company are meeting with much success in the introduction of their new brand of "John Ruskin," manufactured by I. Lewis & Co., of Newark, N. J.

The Cincinnati cigar leaf market disposed of 51 cases of leaf at the regular Saturday sale, consisting of seed and Dutel. The former brought an average of $4.52, while the latter averaged $4.30 per 100 pounds.

The "Information" brand of stogies, made by S. Besuner, of West Court Street, may be found on sale in the majority of cigar stores which specialize in this form of smokes, and Mr. Besuner reports that he has difficulty in keeping pace with the demand, although he recently enlarged his equipment.

"George the Fifth" is the name of a new brand of nickel cigars which is meeting with so much success with The George A. Voige Company that a duplicate order, to be shipped by express, was wired in to the factory the second day following the receipt of the first shipment. The cigar is a domestic, long filler piece of goods, wrapped in tin foil individually, and banded.

Cigarmakers Who Contemplated Striking, Vote to Stay at Work—Jaime Pendas to Have Charge of Esberg-Gunst Branch Factory

TAMPA, Fla., October 11. Reports current all of last week that the cigarmakers union had decided to call out the workmen in four of the larger factories this week, in order to impress, in the midst of the busy holiday season rush, their demands for a more strict compliance with the equalization agreement of 1910, created much uneasiness in the trade and among citizens generally. It was stated that this action of the union was taken at a meeting held Sunday, September 29, and that the order would be effective Monday, October 7. On Sunday, October 6, however, another meeting of the union was held at which it was voted to recall the order; and since that meeting, no further action concerning a strike, partial or general, has been taken. In addition to the general complaint of non-compliance with the agreement, it is alleged that the cigarmakers have certain minor complaints, one of which, directed at two or three factories, has to do with the alleged infrequent cleaning of cuspidors on the factory floor. The manufacturers assert that there is no just ground for complaint as to the equalization agreement, inasmuch as the employment of special inspectors has resulted in bringing into line the few concerns which were found to be deviating from the strict letter of the agreement. The inspector system, the manufacturers declare, has brought about thorough co-operation and uniformity and has removed the grounds for complaint on the part of the cigarmakers.

In connection with the rumors of a strike, it was learned that Jose de la Campa, the agitator, recently completing a term of one year in the convict gang of the county for his activities in the big strike, had departed from Cuba and that, if he had any connection with the strike agitation, it was by the medium of correspondence. Having been convicted of a crime, de la Campa cannot return to this country, under the immigration laws, and that is being hailed as a welcome piece of intelligence by the business community.

The holiday rush of orders has kept all the factories working at full capacity and the report at each of them is of extraordinary exertion to keep up with the demand for immediate shipment. Every good cigarmaker in the city is employed. The average shipment is 1,000,000 cigars per day.

Plans have been accepted for the new clubhouse of the Centre Asturiano, which is to replace the building partly destroyed by fire several months ago. The new building will be the handsomest clubhouse in the city. It will be 180 by 85 feet, three stories, the exterior walls of buff brick, terra cotta, limestone and marble. A grand marble stairway will ascend from the first to the second floor and there will be large assembly rooms, smoking, cafe and billiard rooms and a spacious and well-appointed auditorium. The cost of the building will be between $100,000 and $125,000.

The shipment of a carload of cigars to Seattle by the Jose Lovera Company was one of the most interesting recent events in the local industry. The car was elaborately decorated with banners advertising Tampa and the cigar industry. It goes to the Schwabacher concern and the shipment consists of the finest sizes only.

The box factories have been taxed to the utmost to satisfy the demand of local manufacturers for holiday boxes.

Charles Castillo, representative of San Martin & Leon, made a very successful Eastern trip for the manufacturers of "El Briche," and got his name in the big trade papers by reason of his rapidly won popularity with the dealers wherever he went. Jorge Leon, of the firm, is now in Tampa for a brief business visit.

Jack Gold, of S. Loewenthal & Sons, New York City, was a recent visitor and was entertained here by manufacturers at several informal affairs.

Sidney Goldberg, president of Simon Batt & Company, New York, stopped in Tampa a few days on his way home from Cuba.

Eli Witt, the leading local cigar distributor, who has been spending the summer at Saranac, for the benefit of his health, is expected to return home in a short time. He has recuperated wonderfully. During his prolonged absence, his several local establishments have been successfully handled by his capable assistants.

"La Mega," the leading brand of V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, is as usual in great demand among fastidious smokers and the holiday orders have exceeded all records.

J. J. French, whose new concern, Quiros, Villazon & Company, has already established itself among the leaders here, is on another trip, his second for his present firm. The leading brand of this house is "La Docilla," and it is claimed for the goods that they are handled only by the most expert men from the field to the box.

Edward Berriman, Jr., son E. C. Berriman, is here learning the business at the Berriman Brothers factory.

Rey, Straus & Company report record-breaking business for "Mi Rey." This brand is very popular in the Southern States especially, and Frank Robson, the traveling representative, has succeeded in making many new connections on his recent trip.

Jaime Pendas is to have charge of the branch factory which the Esberg-Gunst interests are to open at Key West. This is the former "Diligencia" factory of Havana. Mr. Pendas has had a long rest but expresses himself as glad to return to active work.

The Sanchez & Haya Company was never busier than now. The traveling men of this old established house are rushing in big orders and the factory force, which is a small army in itself, is working overtime to keep pace with the demand for the popular brands of the house.

Celestino Corral, of Corral, Wodiska & Company, will spend the rest of the year in Tampa, watching the progress of the "Julia Marlowe" brand, one of the most popular made in this city.

Col. Alvaro Garcia, of Garcia & Vega, after a brief visit to the factory here, has returned to Havana.

Harry M. Hunt, the genial office man, who has been connected with the Tampa cigar industry from its inception, has gone with Leopold Powell. He had been, for some time past, with the Exchange Cigar Company. Mr. Hunt is secretary of the Tampa Elks Lodge and one of the most popular men in the trade.

E. J. McGarry & Company Lease Store—Dealers Vieing With Each Other in Fine Window Displays

BOSTON, October 7.

THE cigar, cigarette with plug and leaf tobacco business is good. The retail business has been more than good, owing to the Masonic festivities, conventions, fairs and celebrations at Cambridge, President Taft being there to lay the corner-stone. Also the electric show, where thousands have looked on in wonderment. John F. Callahan & Co., Federal Street, has a very fine display of cigars and cigarettes.

At the South Shore Cigar Company all brands represented trade good. The demand is about equal in Havana and domestic. At the Cambridge carnival this week one of the leading tobacconists, Mr. Thomas Charak, was on the committee to wait on President Taft at the Industrial Exposition. Lafayette Square to Central Square has a holiday appearance or attire, and the streets are packed with sightseers and people from neighboring towns.

Follow the royal roaders and go to the Cigar Box, 7 Essex Street, and try one of Hamilburg's "Emino's" fine flavored cigars; selling rapidly (7 cents straight).

Jeremiah J. Kelleher has purchased the cigar manufacturing establishment of Daniel W. Teehan, at 153 Main Street, Fitchburg.

The new Brownie packages of Mayo's smoking tobacco have arrived in town. The package is one of the most unique ever shown here and is creating a large demand for the goods.

The Scottish Rite Masons are holding their hundredth session, consequently the streets are packed daily.

S. Anargyros is packing one package of "Nemo" cigarettes with every carton of "Zira." The "Nemo" is new in this district.

E. J. McGarry & Co., druggists, have leased a store on Massachusetts Avenue. Mr. McGarry will make his cigar department a big feature and will make "La Integridad" brand his leading Havana.

G. Fischer, of 268 Tremont Street, Boston, has a retail cigar and tobacco store. He, with his son, makes pipes of all kinds. This pipe on exhibition is 34 inches long, weighs two pounds only, and has the battle of Bunker Hill carved on it. It took four years to make it and carve the figures. Meerschbaum is the goods used in its construction.

Harry Wyman, of the American Tobacco Company, and L. D. Maghen were in town last week visiting the jobbing trade and getting orders.

At Cauley's Smoke Shop business is good. Cigars and cigarettes are in great demand. Buyers can not help but go in to such a fine display and buy. I suppose their window is as tasty and attractive as any in the city.

Klein's branch drug store, corner Essex and Washington Streets, has a well-stocked and attractive show window. Havana and domestic cigars, with different brands of cigarettes, fill the bill.

The Adams House drug store, Clark's Hotel and American House all have fine window displays of Havana and domestic cigars, with large pyramids of cigarettes and fancy boxes of tobacco, which make a fine drawing card. The Bowdoin Square tobacconists say that business is of the finest; booming style all that they could wish; only hope that it will keep up the gait.

WM. T. HENDERSON.

Arthur J. Dubreuil, who recently opened a cigar store in the Shea Building, at Union and Main Streets, Williamantic, Conn., has rented a larger store in the Central Building, and will move there about November 1st. A modern and up-to-date cigar store is promised.

The Krost Cigar Company was recently incorporated in Chicago, Ill., with a capital of $2500 for the purpose of manufacturing and dealing in cigars. The incorporators are John C. Farwell, Andrew W. Little, and Lee Cohn.

Industrial Conditions Improving on Pacific Coast

San Francisco Jobbers and Retailers as a Result Experience Good Business—New Store in Labor Temple Building

SAN FRANCISCO, October 5.

WITH the general improvement of industrial and commercial conditions on the Coast, the cigar jobbers and retailers are experiencing as good business as the average run, with prospects of steady improvement up to the holidays. The favorable crop situation in the country has done much to stimulate business with the towns in the interior and jobbers state that the demand for high grade cigars and smoking mixtures is growing about as fast in the larger interior towns as in the big cities of the Coast territory. The demand for high-class cigarettes is also increasing very satisfactorily. For the past few months there has been but little special campaigning by Coast jobbers, and now the time is about ripe for some big boosting propaganda.

The strike in Manila has, of course, not yet directly affected the supply of Manila goods here, but much apprehension is felt lest there will be a big shortage later on. It has always been difficult to get enough of the lower priced Manila cigars to supply the United States trade, and if labor troubles in the islands are to continue it is feared dealers will become out of patience and refuse to handle Manila goods as willingly as before. Already certain firms are making a strong effort to stimulate trade in the cheaper domestic cigars to offset the call for Manilas. It is the nice appearance of the recent Manila goods that has done so much for this line. Persons who do not especially like the flavor of Manila tobacco, smoke the cigars because they look well and burn evenly.

Herman Heyneman, who has been in Europe on a pleasure trip for the past seven months, has returned to the city feeling in first-class shape. Mr. Heyneman formerly handled the lines of the American Tobacco Company here, but upon the reorganization of the company turned over his business to the Tobacco Company of California.

Edward Wolf, of the Edward Wolf Company, is back from a trip to Sacramento, where he placed an unusually large order with Mebius & Drescher, the Sacramento wholesalers, for "Don Antonio" cigars. The Wolf Company is having splendid results from its specialty work in connection with "Nestor" cigarettes. George Cacematis, of the Nestor-Gianacis Company, is still in the city co-operating with the Wolf Company in the publicity campaign.

M. A. Gunst & Co. report the jobbing business fully up to normal for the early fall and are having fine results with their "Van Dyck" line, which they have been specially featuring for some time. The company is making alterations in the basement of the wholesale establishment at Front and California Streets in order to gain more space for storing stock.

Alfred I. Esberg, vice-president of M. A. Gunst & Co., left the first of the week for a trip to New York. Before returning he will also visit the company's factories in Tampa.

T. J. Brooke, manager of the credit department of Horn & Co., is taking a vacation in Los Angeles this week. Horn & Co. report good business in all three of their recently established branches in the South.

J. H. Nightingale, head of the plug tobacco department of the Tobacco Company of California, is this week visiting the Los Angeles trade.

Carl Koenig, of the traveling force of Frankel, Gerds & Co., is making a trip down the Salinas Valley.

Frank Boskowitz has left for a long trip through Nevada and Utah. He said the business prospects were much brighter in Nevada now than a few weeks ago, as the cattle industry is enjoying much prosperity. Utah has been improving steadily for several months.

A new cigar store has been opened in the Labor Temple Building at Sacramento, Cal., by Mr. Longton, a member of the Carpenters' Union.

Late Trade Items

George Giese has sold his cigar store in Alameda, Cal., to Isidore Cohan. The location is at 1207 Lincoln Avenue.

Fire in the cigar factory of Philip Miller, Ilion, N. Y., did considerable damage to the plant and surrounding property.

The cigar and tobacco store conducted by Roswell C. Coleman, Jr., at 120 Broadway, Newburgh, N. Y., has been sold to John J. Flynn, who has been in Mr. Coleman's employ.

William J. Swannell, who for the past four years has been conducting a cigar store in Red Bank, N. J., has sold his stock and is retiring from business on account of ill health.

J. H. Spitzer, a well-known tobacconist of Shamokin, Pa., has opened an attractive cigar stand at 314 East Sunbury Street.

Spence Brothers, the tobacco dealers, of Cincinnati, Ohio, are having the old National Theatre in that city remodeled and will soon occupy it. They have been using a portion of it for a warehouse.

How Europe is Advertising Cigars

President Brunhoff Found Many Cutters, Ash Trays and Novelties in Use

EDWARD BRUNHOFF, president of the Brunhoff Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of cigar cutters and other advertising novelties, for the cigar and tobacco trade, has returned to his home in Cincinnati, after eleven weeks' tour of Europe.

Speaking of the European market, Mr. Brunhoff said, "I found that cigar cutters are being used everywhere, and that their use in connection with the advertised brands of cigars is steadily increasing. Even in Italy, the use of advertising cutters is becoming quite general. It was in Belgium, however, that I found the merchants and manufacturers following more the American idea. They have ash trays of solid brass with price lists on the sides of the center piece, quoting the cost of the different brands of liquors and cigars and even edibles.

"There was one very attractive ash tray built like an obelisk and topped by a match stand. With the duty, these stands cost our Belgium customers about $3 each, but they do not hesitate to place them on all the tables of the cafes. They have gone quite extensively into this line of work and frequently spend as high as $10 each for cigar lighters to advertise their brands.

"In Belgium I found the most widely advertised cigar to be the 'Melior', made by Ernest Tinchant.

"In my trip through Europe I failed to find a single store where they had no cigar cutter. Even in the Azores, at Horta, and in Algiers I saw cigar cutters in all the stores. As already stated, at Milan, in Italy, and in some parts of Germany, and also in Belgium, cigar cutters are made. But for the same money much better ones are manufactured in America.

"Change trays, especially glass trays, are in use in all cigar, and most other stores in Europe. Most of them are very large affairs, but a good deal of attention has been paid to the display of the ad. Their trays are not nearly so practical as ours. One has to scrape the money from a big tray about 7 inches by 9½ inches, or from a round one, 9 inches in diameter, and pick it up piecemeal. They have not grasped the idea of making a tray like ours, where one can get all the change with one sweep of the hand, whether it is gloved or not.

"In Germany I noticed that the manufacturers had copied our advertising novelties, especially in the cheaper styles of cigar cutters, but when it came to the better class of articles, such as our Automatic and Pelican cutters, they were unable to compete with us, in spite of the duty.

"Since the duty on the tobacco and cigars has risen in Germany some time ago, a good many brands had to be abandoned and new brands of inferior quality, or of higher price, had to be substituted, for cigars are sold at a very small margin in that country. The popular price cigars range from 6 pf. to 10 pf., which amounts in our money from 1½ to 2½ cents. Anything above that is considered high priced. The regular customers of cigar stores get good value for their money, but when a stranger comes in and asks for a good cigar, even at a higher price, he is very apt to get some punk that tempts him to swear off altogether.

"In Belgium domestic cigars are unquestionably better than anywhere else. I smoked some cigars at 20 to 25 centimes (4 cents to 5 cents) that were pretty good. The only safe way to insure getting a good smoke in Europe is to buy imported cigars of such brands as are considered a guarantee of quality. The Cuban cigars are comparatively cheaper over there than here.

"I believe the European market to be an excellent field for the exploitation of American-made advertising novelties, as the manufacturers and dealers are quite alert to its promoting business along more progressive lines."

While abroad, Mr. Brunhoff toured Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium, Holland, and stopped off at the Azores and Algeria and at Liverpool and London, returning via Quebec.

William Gray has purchased an interest in the A. R. Lewis cigar factory in Morrison, Ill. They will employ about five hands.

Ornate Mahogany and Cedar Cigar Boxes Now in Use

Some of Them Highly Polished, Printed in Silver and Gold, and Lined With Silver Foil

WITHIN the past ten years there has been a wonderful improvement in the manufacture of cigar boxes. From the plain, varnished box the business has now grown, until there can be had the most ornate boxes which the heart of the smoker can desire. A few boxes of the more novel kind are shown here. They illustrate a few of the many kinds of fancy packages made by the Henry H. Sheip Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia.

Styles of Cigar Boxes Manufactured by the Sheip Company

These boxes are used by cigar manufacturers all over the country with whom there is always a demand for something new and attractive. Some of them are of mahogany and cedar, highly polished, printed in gold and silver, and lined with silver foil. One box shown is of curly poplar, stained green, and then polished. Another is finished in fumed oak. Probably the greatest demand is for Boite Nature boxes, which are a favorite with the Tampa cigar manufacturers.

The Sheip Company, with a plant covering an entire city block, are specialists not only on these fancy packages, but also on the regular cigar box universally used. They are the originators of the pocket box, reproduced here, which holds from five to ten cigars, and in the past few years have made hundreds of thousands of this one box alone. Anyone who has ever visited the cigar stands in hotels like the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, may have noticed beautiful large cedar cabinets with doors and sets of drawers inside, all filled with expensive cigars. These cabinets are the make of the Sheip Manufacturing Company, who are equipped to make anything from the cheapest imitation box to the most highly ornate cabinet that could delight a cigar connoisseur.

Late Reports from

Lancaster, York, Reading

York County Fair Benefits Tobacco Men

YORK, October 10.

WITH the approach of the holiday season the cigar business and its collateral interests are becoming more prosperous each week. There was an increase of more than $10,000 in the receipts at the York office of the Ninth Internal Revenue district in September, as compared with the same month last year. It was not quite as large however as last July. The revenue figures for the month of September were $112,022.44 and the same month last year $101,651.16. Last August they were $113,990.02.

During the month of September fifteen new cigar factories were opened in York county, employing more than 130 hands. The larger factories licensed, employing ten hands or more, were: Eugene Gallagher, Dallastown, 10 hands; Eugene J. Wilt, 315 West Princess Street, 10 hands; Dover Cigar Company, Dover, 10 hands; United Cigar Manufacturers Company, Jacobus, 50 hands; Blue Bell Cigar Company, Craley, 15 hands; Samuel Kling Cigar Company, Bittersville, 12 hands.

The activity in the tobacco trade is not confined to the cigar manufacturing lines. Cigar box factories are unusually busy at this time, large shipments being made daily to factories throughout the Ninth District. H. W. Hefner & Son, whose plant is one of the largest in York, stated recently that they are so busy that they have been compelled to work until 9 o'clock every evening in which it could possibly be done. They have added several hands to their forces, and some of the latest machines for grinding and staining the cigar boxes have been installed.

Myers & Adams, whose plant was destroyed by fire early in the year, will resume operations in about a week. The machinery and other equipment is now being installed and workmen are finishing up the interior of the building.

Celestino, Costello & Co. report a heavy demand for the "Barrister" cigar, their leading brand. This is one of the big cigars now coming out of York and is becoming more popular every day by smokers throughout the country. They expect to open up their factory in Red Lion before long, as the Beaver Street factory is becoming crowded.

The manufacturers at Red Lion are hustling about as hard as the York men; cigar makers there are becoming a scarce article. Night work continues at many of the factories, which are doing the best fall trade in years.

The partnership existing between T. E. Brookes and S. S. Sechrist, trading as T. E. Brookes Cigar Company, of Red Lion, has been dissolved. T. E. Brookes moved into his new building on South Pine Street, last Thursday, October 3. S. S. Sechrist, who has formed a partnership with H. L. Haines, will continue business in the present plant at Center Square. Mr. Haines was formerly bookkeeper and manager of the T. E. Brookes Cigar Company, and is well qualified for his new work.

The cigar factory of W. H. Raab & Sons, at Dallastown, is now working full time. Many other factories in that town are operating at night to fill immediate orders. The Dallastown Cigar Company, reports that they expect to lose no time on account of the York fair as the orders now on file necessitate running the factory every day.

The York Fair has certainly helped the retailers around the centre of town to boost their sales. The York fair attracts thousands of people and many of them are heavy smokers and good spenders, which is bound to help the cigar man. It is surprising that there were not more displays of cigars at the fair. There are as good cigars coming out of this district as from anywhere else, so why do not the manufacturers take advantage of such an opportunity. Any stranger who went through the Exhibition Building, would never have found out from the exhibits that this county is one of the large cigar producing centers of the state. The only manufacturer of York to be represented at the fair, as far as the Tobacco World Correspondent could ascertain, was that of Henry F. Kohler. This was an attractive display of the many Kohler brands and was arranged in a tasty manner. Several kinds of leaf tobacco were also shown at the bottom of the case. Prominent among the cigars were shown the "Judge Shepard," "El Sayon" and the "Mardonius."

Latest Happenings in Reading and Vicinity

READING, October 9.

BUSINESS in all lines of the trade continues brisk. The larger factories all have representatives on the road and report encouraging orders. From all indications the manufacturers are doing the best business since 1907. While the leaf end is not as lively, there is a fair amount of activity in this branch also. The retail shops are rounding up to their usual fall and holiday season.

Clarence Kutz reports an encouraging demand for the "Bard of Avon" cigar, which is finding a larger field of sale each month. Mr. Kutz has succeeded to the firm of Eline & Kutz. Mr. Eline has retired and Mr. Kutz purchased his interest in the firm.

The C. C. Roland Cigar Company, makers of the "Goose Bone" cigar, are now fairly well established in their new factory at Shielder and Division Streets. While they are as yet hampered in their operations, owing to the mechanics working around the plant, they are turning out the cigars as fast as they can make them.

P. H. Hildebrand, formerly with the Porta Vana Company, is now placing some of his cigars among the trade. One of his best known brands will be the "Port-O-Spain."

John J. Eshleman, the well-known cigar manufacturer of Mohnton, is reported to be insolvent. Mr. Eshleman has been in business there for many years and the news has caused considerable surprise in trade circles here, where it is hoped for a speedy and favorable adjustment of the difficulties. One authority said that 33 1-3 cents had been offered on the dollar.

Henry Heymann's Sons are doing a good business on their "Havana Consul," a high-grade proposition. This firm has been making big strides within the past year.

A representative of the Standard Vending Machine Company has been in town placing these silent salesmen. The first one was installed in the American House at Fourth and Penn Streets.

There have been a number of attractive window displays around town the past two weeks. The Moore store at Fifth and Penn Streets had an unusually fine showing of the "Heidelberg" brand of the Spatz factory. This was displayed in a number of sizes and grades. The Breneiser stand at Seventh and Penn Streets was displaying the "Bold" cigar, Bolrow Brothers, of Philadelphia, who have been doing a heavy business here since the cigar has been introduced. The "Havana Ribbon," another Philadelphia piece of goods, is another well selling nickel smoke of this store.

Full Order Files For Lancaster Manufacturers

LANCASTER, October 9.

THE cigar industry is booming all along the line at present. A number of the travelers for local firms are booking nice holiday orders and expect to do even better in the next few weeks. The leaf trade is also in a fair way, the sales, while not large, as far as could be ascertained were numerous enough to warrant the prediction that conditions are brightening considerably. The Lancaster County Fair last week helped the cigarists in the center of town and swelled sales, but not as much as might have been expected.

The Robertson Cigar Company report a constantly increasing business. All their factories in the Ninth District are working full time. Trade on the "La Vezina" is good, particularly in Boston and at Pacific Coast points.

S. R. Moss, of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, is back at his desk again after a several months' sojourn on the Continent. Mr. Moss says he again feels first rate—and he looks it. E. H. Briody, the Western traveler for the factory, is on a trip again after a short stay at local headquarters. Albert S. Moss is on a Southern trip, where he will boom the "Flor de Moss" until the holidays.

J. E. Ryder is expected home from his Western journey in about a week. He went as far as the Pacific Coast.

Steinfeldt's Cigar Store on Queen Street, near the Pennsylvania Railroad, is displaying a motor cycle in one of their windows, which will be given away free to the person securing the most votes in a contest now under way. Votes are given with every purchase of cigars. The winner will be announced on January 1, 1913.

A. B. Hess, of the A. B. Hess Cigar Company, is on a trip through the Middle West. When last heard from he was in Kansas City, calling upon the Hess jobbers.

The Imperial Cigar Company, the home of the "Havana Masters," reports increasing orders for this popular brand.

Menno F. Heiland, son of John F. Heiland, of the leaf house of that name, was married several weeks ago to Miss May R. Bucher, a Lancaster girl, daughter of Mrs. Ella Bucher.

The cigar store and pool room of Samuel B. Showers at Ephrata has been purchased by Henry Zudrell.

The announcement made recently that the Twelfth Revenue District, with headquarters in Scranton, would be consolidated with the Ninth District, with H. L. Hershey as the collector, caused considerable surprise in trade circles here. When this was first made public efforts were made to have the headquarters at Harrisburg, but the tobacco and cigar interests at this point were able to defeat this measure. The district as now made up covers thirty-five counties.

H. R. Troast, the tobacco sampler, has been examining a number of packings and reports them as excellent. He sampled the 1911 packing of E. L. Nissly & Sons, of Lancaster and Florin, and reported the burn and flavor as fine. He also sampled over 1,200 cases of the 1911 packing of John McLaughlin & Co., and gave pretty much the same report.

P. F. Sheehan, cigar manufacturer of Willimantic, Conn., is enlarging and remodeling his factory on Railroad Street to secure increased facilities to meet the unusual demand for his goods.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Slight Change in New York Market--Rainy Weather Delays Harvesting of Pennsylvania Crops--
First Frost Slightly Damages Wisconsin Tobacco

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, October 10.

THERE has been little of moment happening in the local leaf markets within the past fortnight. The manufacturing lines are fairly buzzing, and of course this is reflected in the leaf business, but not as well as it should. The growing activity in the cigar business cannot help but affect the leaf man, and with the stocks in the factory gradually lessening the leaf market will again be busy. There has been no particular demand for any kind of leaf, although Havana is selling well, as is Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, October 10.

The local leaf circles are much encouraged by the demand for all grades of leaf. The call the past week has been chiefly for 1911 Pennsylvania, although quite a bit of Havana has changed hands. While sales are not large, as far as could be ascertained they have been steady. Sumatra is also selling well, although not yet as brisk as the manufacturing activity would warrant. Several manufacturers stated that they have been unable to obtain the exact quality of leaf they desired.

LANCASTER, October 9.

The past two weeks have been very busy ones for the planters in this vicinity. They have had too much rainy weather, which hindered them in the harvesting. At this writing, however, the work has been almost finished. The growers, in an endeavor to get the crops under cover as soon as possible after the clear weather set in, came to town and offered as high as three dollars a day and board to any laborers. In some instances more was offered. In some places the farmers got together and assisted each other in the work, in that manner getting the tobacco in the barns before frost set in. With a few exceptions the frost which was noticeable on the first and second day of the month did little damage. Of course, much of the tobacco is being cut prematurely, but planters feel they are justified in their course, as many of them have already lost enough by the hail storms, and they are not disposed to have further inroads made on their profits by frost.

YORK, October 9.

Planters in this section with a number of exceptions have their crops under cover. The harvesting in some cases was done in a hurry, as the crops were threatened by frost, but when the work began it was finished with a rush. The farmers expect good prices for their leaf and unless something unusual turns up they will not be disappointed. With the majority of the growers the crop is a good one. In some sections, where the tobacco was damaged by hail, the second growth is irregular and poor.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, October 8.

THE farmers have all completed the harvesting of the tobacco crop untouched by the frost. Much of the primed tobacco has been taken down and some of it delivered. The weather has been exceptionally good and the amount of pole burn damage will be slight. It is safe to say that the tobacco industry in this town during the coming winter will be a busy one. Many of the growers have taken down the first picking and are waiting for a warm rainstorm, when the second and a part of the last pickings will be taken down and put in bundles ready for the warehouses.

It is estimated that nine-tenths of the entire crop has been sold, and the warehouses will open early. E. Weaver will open in a few days, with about fifty hands, and start sorting his tobacco. L. P. Bissell, the largest individual grower in this section, will also open his warehouse during the week, which will give work to about seventy-five men, and as soon as a good "damp" makes its appearance the other warehouses will be opened, and, when all are running, will give employment to between five and six hundred men for the winter. This is the first time in over twenty years that the crop has been sold so early.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, October 6.

THE first frosts to leave a scarring effect came during the week and as was expected caught a small percentage of the belated tobacco fields that might have been secured had not the previous rainy week delayed the harvest. Growers strained every effort to house the later fields, and had the frost been delayed a few days longer all would have been under cover. The main concern now will be the curing of the late tobacco, for which considerable warm weather is necessary to prevent fat stems.

Aside from some buying in the hail-cut districts and an occasional sale of better grades at somewhat under previous prices the market for new tobacco seems nearly suspended. There is but little riding in the growing districts and not much effort to increase the holdings of the large operators.

The usual amount of small business among packers in old leaf has taken place, but no large transactions have come to notice of late. O. H. Dahl sold 58 cases 1911 crop and Andrew Monson 47 cases 1911 to A. S. Flagg. The weather of the week has been favorable to shed curing, though plenty of warm days are needed for the late harvested. Sampling of last year's packings is proceeding moderately and generally the tobacco is found to be in excellent condition.—Reporter.

The quality of the tobacco crop in this State is the best since 1906, according to W. C. Carrier, of Edgerton, one of the leading tobacco buyers in the State. Mr. Carrier claims that more tobacco was grown this year than in many years previous. He estimates that eighty per cent. of the crop has already been sold.

"Wisconsin has the finest tobacco crop it has raised since 1906," said Mr. Carrier today. "The acreage in Wisconsin is greater and the quality of the crop is of a superior class. There will be three cases of binder tobacco to one case last year. I have traveled over the tobacco territory in the last two months, and I estimate that already sixty per cent. of the crop has been sold at prices ranging from ten to fifteen cents."

KENTUCKY.

HOPKINSVILLE, October 7.

THERE was a livelier interest taken in old tobacco on this market the past week, this being especially true of the better grades of leaf. This is taken as an indication that the buyers are satisfied that the new crop does not offer real high grades and that they are now filling in with the old tobacco.

The present crop is now housed and most of it is cured up. It grades from common to medium in most instances with scattering crops above the general average. The tobacco runs smaller in size than usual and is light in weight. The farmers are already beginning to wish for a wet spell of weather so that they may begin to strip and be ready for the opening of the market that is scheduled for November 12.

LEXINGTON, October 9.

Sales of loose leaf tobacco on the Lexington market will open Tuesday, October 29th, and continue practically without interruption until the following April. The opening of the sales are two weeks earlier than last year and two weeks later than in 1909. The work now in progress in the tobacco district which embraces the completion of the New Stivers, New Silas Shelburne and Burley Tobacco Society warehouses, the remodeling of the Shelburne and Fayette warehouses and the completion of four big mammoth re-drying plants, will be practically out of the way.

Lexington is now equipped with facilities for the selling of one million pounds of loose leaf tobacco per day and with re-drying and storing facilities to keep it out of the way. Increased stable capacity has been provided for farmers and every precaution that skill, judgment and money could provide has been put into effect to prevent a repetition of the congestion that affected the sales last winter when for weeks as many as a thousand loads of tobacco were standing on the streets.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI, October 8.

Frost that caused little damage and continued rains have delayed housing. Lack of labor has also delayed final operations. In Eastern Ohio most of the crop has been harvested. The Miami Valley is now through cutting, and it is thought that in yield per acre and quality of the tobacco the crop will be far above the average, there being a good percentage of high-grade wrappers and fillers. On the Burley market bright colory grades were in special demand.

The Commerce Cigar Company, of Kansas City, Mo., has opened a new factory at Main and Missouri Avenues, that city. They make the "Havana Straights," a five cent cigar. S. Huls is superintendent of the plant.

The Hanover Cigar Store in Syracuse, N. Y., owned until recently by Herbert F. Gladding, has been sold by him to Manahan & Gardner, retailers, of that city. The Hanover stand was started sixteen years ago and is considered a first-class location. This is the second store for Manahan & Gardner.

Late Leaf News

Sumatra Planters Giving up Tobacco For Rubber

Baron Autenried and W. Imhelder, who are managers of plantations in the island of Sumatra, were recent visitors in New York City. Upon being questioned about conditions in that country, Baron Autenried said:

"Our tobacco sold last year in Amsterdam at $2.10 a pound, and this was an exceptionally high price. The acreage in tobacco in the island is diminishing every year. The land which is not yielding the best crop is being turned over to rubber. For one thing, you can expect that the price of Sumatra tobacco will never go much lower than it is at present, because there is now no over-production. Tobacco land is very high now. When I went there you could pick it up for a song. But recently an estate of 15,000 acres was sold for $1,250,000."

Baron Autenried has been in the island for twenty years and has been growing tobacco, coffee and rubber all that time.

To Grow Wrapper Tobacco in Idaho

As the result of experiments which have been carried on in the State of Idaho, the culture of wrapper tobacco may be extensively developed there. It has been shown that the leaf can be grown in Idaho on a profitable basis and that excellent facilities for curing are offered by the dry climate. The work has been carried on in the Boise valley by a Minneapolis seed firm, a concern which has had much to do with the development of tobacco growing in Wisconsin in recent years. Under irrigation a fine field of tobacco has been raised this season in Boise Valley. State officials of the Department of Agriculture are convinced that the practicability of the crop there has been proved.

"The chief pest of the tobacco plant is the tobacco worm," says Prof. J. W. Jones, of the State Immigration Bureau, in speaking of the crop. "It is believed that the cool nights in Idaho will prevent pupation and there will be fewer worms to bother the plants. This fact has been demonstrated with other pests."

In the humid regions where tobacco is grown it is necessary to erect expensive drying and curing buildings. The building is opened during drying weather and closed during damp or rainy weather, which, of course, interferes with the process. In Idaho we can absolutely control moisture conditions, thus developing a uniformly high quality of leaf. With almost no humidity here, fungi will not thrive. Growth and ripening may be entirely controlled through methods of cultivation and by applying or withholding irrigation water."

Importation of Tobacco Into Dairen, Manchuria

Tobacco imported into Dairen (Dalny) during the first six months of this year was, in tons, as follows: Foreign, 5,434; Korean, 214; Japanese, 834; other, 88; total, 6,570. Of late Dairen has taken away a good share of the import trade in foreign tobacco from other ports in North China. This is chiefly due to the fact that the British-American Tobacco Company, which has a large factory at Mukden, has recently arranged with the South Manchuria Railway to handle large shipments of its tobacco through the port of Dairen.

Tobacco Growing in British Columbia

Experiments in tobacco growing have been carried on for a number of years in the Okanogan Valley in British Columbia, in the vicinity of Kelowna, which have been uniformly successful owing to the condition of the soil and climate.

Encouraged by these results, tobacco growing on a large scale was undertaken this season by the British American Tobacco Company, of Vancouver, which owns about 1,000 acres of land in the Okanogan Valley, of which about 100 acres, including shade tents for Sumatra wrapper, were planted this year, the principal varieties being Comstock Spanish and Habana. It is expected that the area will be considerably increased next year.

During the latter part of August the first cutting was made. The tobacco had made an exceptionally rapid and vigorous growth and the yield is expected to be above the average. The shade-grown Sumatra tobacco made a growth of 8 feet. It is estimated that about 100 tons of tobacco will be harvested this year. This company manufactures and disposes of, locally, several brands of cigars from its British Columbia product.

Late Trade Items

J. A. Moore, until recently head of the J. A. Moore Cigar Company, of Hannibal, Mo., has opened a cigar factory at Palmyra, that state.

Hickey Brothers, of Rock Island, Ill., are opening a fine retail cigar store in that town. They have four stores in Davenport, Ill., which they have operated for eleven years.

Durham & Wilcox, of Pittsfield, Mass., have sold their cigar and tobacco business in the Berkshire Life Building to F. T. Read & Son. Durham & Wilcox have been in business for more than ten years.

Heaviest Trade in Years, Report Seattle Jobbers

Ivers & Altshuler Take on "F. Lozano" Line—L. L. Phelps to Distribute "Governor," a Chicago Brand—Many Salesmen in Town

SEATTLE, October 8.

JOBBERS report the largest trade in years. This is no doubt caused from the large crops and excellent condition of the surrounding country; in fact, reports from the whole Northwest are good, and retailers are looking for a busy fall, as they are bound to be benefited by the farmers' prosperity.

Shippers are complaining of the car shortage, claiming that they cannot get half their requirements.

W. A. Ferguson, who represents Larus Brothers in this territory, says he is doing more business on "Edgeworth Ready Rubbed" than any brand he has ever placed. "Edgeworth" in the slice has always been popular in this section, and with the work and advertising they are doing on the new package both brands are bound to increase.

W. I. Pixley, representing J. G. Dill, has been working hard on their "Dill's Best" granulated, and is meeting with good success, as do all of Dill's brands.

The McHie-Scotten Company, of Detroit, while new in this market, are getting their brands well placed. Mr. E. H. Gerlach is very popular with the trade, having sold tobaccos for other firms in this territory.

J. R. Brewster reports a large demand for "Juan De Fucas" at both of his stands. "Turkey Land" cigarettes are being featured in his windows this week, with a center of the satin stamps packed in this brand.

Battersby & Smith, who feature the "Sanches & Haya" line, have no kick on their business. They have just added a new size of this brand and keep it well featured in their windows.

Ivers & Altshuler report business above the average with them. They have taken on the "F. Lozano" line in all sizes. As they are wide awake and occupy one of the busy up-town corners there is no doubt this brand will grow in popularity with the trade.

L. L. Phelps has been made distributor for the "Governor" cigar, manufactured by Randall-Landfield Co., Chicago. Mr. Phelps has already placed the brand with all of his customers and says he has several of the larger stands featuring this brand.

Mr. Hammond, representing Cuesta Rey Company, was a recent visitor in the city.

Clever Advertising Campaign for Los Angeles

"Tom Keene" and "Lawrence Barrett" Being Campaign—"Counsellor" and "Cinco" Cigars Selling Well
LOS ANGELES, October 6.

HGLADSTONE, factory representative of Bondy & Lederer, accompanied by Mr. Patillo, arrived in the city this morning from Portland. The above named gentlemen are well known to the trade here, and expect to put up a strong campaign on "Lawrence Barrett" and "Tom Keene" cigars. J. J. Gans Bros., local distributors of these brands, informed your correspondent that the sales of "Lawrence Barrett" and "Tom Keene" this year, will show an increase of 100 per cent. above last year's sales.

The Klingenstein Company have some very clever window displays of "Cinco" cigars.

The Max Roth Cigar Company is facing a shortage of "Bachelor" cigars and the shipment en route, is oversold.

Some very artistic and beautiful work, advertising "Havana Sticks," has been performed by Morris Burke, factory representative of Eitel & Cassebohm Company. He has displayed for the Lewis Drug Company, Seventh and Central Avenue, a guessing candle, the weight being twenty pounds. The person guessing the closest to the time the candle burns up will receive one hundred "Havana Sticks," the second nearest guess will receive fifty "Havana Sticks."

The A. B. Greenwald Company report a steady increase in sales of "Bingo" cigars. They have increased their sales force to three city salesmen to take care of the increase of business.

George W. Walker states the increase of sales on "Counsellor" is remarkable. The specialty work done by the factory representative is showing good results.

J. B. Bonhaus, representing Klauber-Wagenheim Company, and Morris Burke, the "Post Dispatch" booster, have just returned from a few days' trip, boosting "Havana Sticks." They met with good results.

C. A. Barnes, of the Klauber-Wagenheim Company, has just returned from his vacation and is on the job again, preaching "Chancellor" and "Post Dispatch" to the trade.

The Goodman-Kinstler Cigar Company reports a steady demand for "Sarzedas" Union Made Havana cigars. This cigar is made in six sizes. The "44" cigar is their leading seller in the 5-cent line.

Robert Gans, of J. J. Gans Bros., is sending in some good-sized orders from Bakersfield on "Lawrence Barrett" and "Tom Keene" cigars. He is also doing well with "La Natividad."

Key West Men Form Company in Butte, Mont.

Articles of incorporation have been filed by several cigar makers of Key West, for a charter to conduct a cigar and tobacco factory in Butte, Mont. The new enterprise is capitalized at $10,000 and will be known as Abbey, Torrey and Company, with headquarters at 922 South Main Street.

L. A. Abbey will look after the business end, and it is planned to open branches in all parts of the state, keeping the head office and factory in Butte.

Samuels Bros., of 221 West Fourth Street, this city, report that business is greatly improving and that they are selling more 12½-cent cigars than ever before. They carry a nice and large assortment of well-known brands. "Jose Vila" and "Optimo" are their leaders.

Los Angeles Dealers Hold Interesting Meeting

Get-together Spirit Insures Success of Southern California Tobacco Dealers' Association—Several Instructive Addresses Made
LOS ANGELES, October 6.

One hundred and ten members of the Tobacco Dealers' Association gathered at the regular monthly meeting of the organization held last night at the Jefferson Club, which was pronounced to be the most successful in the history of the association. President Anthony Schwamm presided as toastmaster and in his opening address urged every member to do his utmost in promoting the interest of the organization, declaring that by so doing the standard of the industry could be materially increased. J. Scott Allen, candidate for assemblyman, took for his subject, "Practicability," and declared that the formation of the association meant the ultimate conservation of the tobacco industry. Judge Robert Adcock, speaking on the benefits derived from a moderate use of tobacco, cited a number of notable instances in history and quoted several well-known medical authorities to bear out his statements. Following his address Judge Adcock was unanimously elected an honorary member of the Tobacco Dealers' Association.

In his remarks, based on the growth of the organization, H. D. McLean, vice-president of the organization, told of how the association was formed with just a few charter members, and has now reached the point where its membership totals over 150 names. Other speakers of the evening were S. P. Clark, the host of the evening; T. B. Harris, J. P. Viera and Richard S. Ledger, of St. Louis, who stated that the people in the tobacco trade in Los Angeles were the finest in the country. The officers of the association are Anthony Schwamm, president; vice-president, H. D. McLean; treasurer, D. H. Elmore; recording secretary, John P. Viera; financial secretary, Albert Finkelstein, and trustee, I. S. Finkelstein. T. B. Harris was appointed chairman of the ways and means committee.

Putting Finishing Touches to Wait & Bond Factory

Boston Firm has one of the most Modern Establishments of its kind in the East—Will Accomodate 1600 Hands

Members of the building craft in Boston are now putting the finishing touches on what will, in all likelihood, be the latest and most modern cigar manufacturing plant in this country. It is the new fireproof home of the "Blackstone" and "Totem" cigars, which have been manufactured by Waitt & Bond, of Boston, for more than forty years. It is the final phase in the evolution of a business, which started with one man, and which now will soon employ 1600 hands.

One of the Waitt & Bond theories regarding cigar manufacturing is that it should be surrounded by as sanitary and hygienic precautions as the preparation of food. Hence, the first considerations in planning the new factory were sunlight, air-space, ventilation and cleanliness.

The new building has a frontage of 141 feet on Columbus Avenue at its widest point directly opposite the baseball park and public playground. It extends back 136 feet on Burke Street and 152 feet on Benton Street.

Under the courtyard is the huge humidating apparatus for storing the enormous quantities of high-priced tobacco until it is required for manufacture.

Especial attention has been given to exterior finish and the structure will be a decided architectural ornament to the city. In the recreation rooms are provided facilities for rest and diversion, and in the lunch rooms ample apparatus are installed to enable the workers to heat coffee or tea and warm their luncheons.

The cigar-making rooms will be opened wide for window ventilation during the absence of the workers at noon, and at all other hours will be flooded with clean, fresh air from ventilating ducts. Every detail of construction is of absolutely fire-proof type.

The basement will be used for storing and casing or preparing the baled tobacco for the strippers. On the street floor will be located the offices and in the rear the shipping department.

The third and fifth floors will be devoted to the actual cigarmaking. The fourth, or so-called service floor, will contain lockers and the most sanitary and toilet features which can be designed for the male workers. Modern drinking fountains will be installed upon the floors occupied by the cigarmakers. On each floor will be benches for 550 cigarmakers.

In the branding room is installed an ingenious device perfected by the company for stamping the cigars with the familiar brand, "Waitt & Bond Blackstone." Girls feed the fresh finished cigars into an endless conveyor, which in turn carries them beneath electrically heated branding dies working on eccentrics and gently, but indelibly, pressing the stamp of quality on the wrappers. Each of these machines brands 10,000 cigars per hour.

President Waterman will continue to exercise personal supervision over the selection of the crops used in the factory. Every year he visits the Havana plantations and studies growing conditions carefully before contracting for the crops.

Running to its full capacity, and with the demand for its product increasing, in the near future the factory will employ 1600 hands.

War Now Raging in Balkans May Cause Famine in Turkish Cigarettes

"Situation Serious if War Continues After Next March" Says
M. Melachrino--Tobacco Has Already Advanced 25 per cent. in Price Owing to Shortage in 1912 Crop

Melachrinos Advance Prices of Cigarettes

(Special Bulletin.)

NEW YORK, November 1.

Among the first of the large cigarette manufacturers to announce an advance in price on their products is M. Melachrino, who under date of October 31st issued a circular to the trade giving the following prices, effective November 1st:
No. 9's, in plain and cork, packed in 10's, 20's, 50's and 100's, an advance of 50 cents per M.
No. 5's, in plain and cork, straw and gold, packed in 10's, 50's and 100's, an advance of $1.00 per M.
It is expected that other cigarette manufacturers will soon follow in announcing increases in prices.

THE effect of the present war in the Balkans on the Turkish cigarette market, is likely to prove very serious. In fact according to the latest reports from the cigarette manufacturers, Turkish tobacco has already advanced about 25 per cent. in cost and if the war is not stopped before next March, when the planting season begins, there will be an absolute dearth of this class of weed; a famine in Turkish cigarettes. As very few manufacturers are carrying a big stock of tobacco on hand, the seriousness of the situation is apparent.

Mr. Miltiades Melachrino, head of the firm of M. Melachrino & Co., of Cairo and New York, gave his opinion this week in New York as follows:

Mr. Melachrino's Opinion.

"If the war continues until next March when the new crop is planted, the situation will be serious," said Mr. Melachrino. The supply will then be practically nil.

"The present state is bad enough. The tobacco from which Turkish cigarettes are made is already twenty-five per cent. higher than usual.

"This is due to the failure of the crop this summer. Only about half a crop was raised, partly because of the continual fights in which the peasants were engaged. They could not fight and raise tobacco at the same time.

"The buyers of tobacco start out from the city of Cavalla, in Macedonia. This year many of them were afraid to go on account of the disturbed state of the country."

If the crop fails next year there is no saying how high Turkish tobacco will go.

What Mr. Schinasi Says.

"We cannot get letters or telegrams through on account of the war," said S. Schinasi, of Schinasi Brothers, New York. "We have not had any news of a rise from the other side since the war began, but we have had practically no despatches."

A great deal of tobacco comes from Asia Minor and is exported by Greek merchants. It is certain that the present enmity between these nations will hinder their usual business operations.

One of the worst features, from the point of view of cigarette manufacturers, is the general conscription in Turkey. This will cause a dearth of laborers in all lines of industry.

Proposes Heavy Tax on Tobacco
To Build Military Road Across U. S.

Congressman Warburton Wants to Squeeze the Money
Out of Consumers and Manufacturers of Tobacco Products by Enforcing Revenue Law of 1879.

ANOTHER blow to the already heavily-taxed and over-regulated tobacco trade, is proposed by Congressman Stanton Warburton, of the Second District of Washington. Warburton, whose particular hobby is good roads and poor tobacco, wants the tobacco industry of this country alone to pay for the building of a national military road. He proposes to squeeze the money for this enterprise out of the consumer and the manufacturer of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco by putting in force the high revenue law of 1879, which was enacted to pay off the war debts.

Warburton's proposed road is to be a paved highway connecting every capital in the United States. In addition to roads joining the capital cities, Congressman Warburton proposes to build several roads in the national parks.

Pay in Five Years.

It is declared that the government can raise the money for the road in five years, and probably can get it in four years. Fifteen thousand miles of paved highways are contemplated. The estimated cost would be from $20,000 to $25,000 a mile. The internal revenue tax on tobacco a year ago was $58,000,000 and would have been $138,000,000 if the law of 1879 had been in force.

In defending his plan, Warburton says that there never is a complaint of a tax on luxuries and that he does not believe the consumption of tobacco will be affected in any way by a heavier tax, although it would hurt to have the consumption lessened. He assumes, like a great many other "Antis," that tobacco should be classed alongside champagne as a luxury, little realizing that tobacco is long since recognized as a necessity by thousands of users.

Its Effect on Trade as He Sees It.

"Our tax on tobacco is very small," Congressman Warburton said in his statement: "Our tax on whiskey and beer and our tariff on woolen and cotton goods has not been reduced practically since the late war. The tobacco tax was reduced in 1873 because the government was getting more revenue than it was using. It was decreased again in 1879 for the same reason, and again in 1883. Our tax on tobacco is not one-fourth of what it was during the war. It was not taken off in 1879 because there was any demand for reduction by the consumer; it was removed simply because the government was getting more money than it needed.

"While the proposed increased tax on tobacco might seem heavy, yet as a matter of fact it will not even be noticed by the consumer. For instance, it would raise the tax on a 10-cent cigar three-tenths of one cent. The manufacturer of a 10-cent cigar would decrease the weight of tobacco one-thirtieth, and the consumer could not tell the difference in size. The manufacturer of smoking tobacco would likewise decrease the size of the package about a twelfth, and the consumer would not know the difference in the size of his package. During the Spanish-American war the tax on tobacco was increased to nearly the amount suggested, and I venture the assertion that not one consumer of tobacco out of a thousand who reads this article ever knew the tax was raised, and never knew when the tax was taken off. The raise in the tax on tobacco will not even affect the producer of tobacco."

THE TROUBLES OF THE CIGAR SALESMAN

As Told by G. J. Vitaich, the San Francisco Dealer, Proprietor of Vit's Little Cigar Stores Company

A LITTLE booklet has just been printed and published by G. J. Vitaich, the proprietor of Vit's Little Cigar Stores Company, of San Francisco, which has been a hit with his friends and customers. It is a "F. Cigar Business in a Book." Among other things, Vitaich soliloquizes on why the cigar dealer is a joke; why a cigar salesman is a "good fellow," "together with some of his remarks and reflections. It is written in a humorous, semi-cynical style and shows plainly that the writer is wise to a few of the tricks of the trade.

In speaking of the reason why a cigar salesman can't make good in San Francisco, he says:

To commence with, a Cigar Salesman as a rule, is a Gentleman, of good appearance, manner, dress and habits, liberal and intelligent, a member of many Clubs and Fraternities, and related by marriage, gratitude or debt to many people.

It takes a Gentleman to do business with Schnorers, Yokels, Schlameels, Ganefs, Mumsers and Unfortunates.

In order to sustain his own, as well as the dignity of his House, he is compelled to travel First-Class, sleep Pullman, stop at the best Hotels and Cafes, and therefore commands a large Salary, and for that reason is expected to get results.

To get results, he must be some wise Guy, and able to drink most anything, and smoke other Cigars besides his own, work at any and all hours, under any and all conditions—just like a Footpad.

He must be well able to listen to all kinds of Hard Luck Stories and Soras about Bad Colors, Poor Packings, Tight Ribbons, Loose Bands, Fresh Varnish, the Benefits and Follies of Bastard Shapes and Sizes, Sickness and Family Affairs.

He must be able to smile, and be very pleasant and optimistic at all times, no matter what happens.

He must be a fine Schmooser in order to get results.

The Salesman goes to work. He walks into the Dealer's Store, presents his embossed card, extends his manicured hand, lays a Blonde Coin on the Counter, buys the Boss, and all the Clerks, if any, and all those who happen to be around, such as conversation customers and the unemployed, a Cigar, of some one else's Brand.

He talks about the Beauty of the Store and the City, the Good of the Location, and of the Great Future that he and his Fair City has in store for them.

Plenty of Schmuss, and then the Salesman must get permission to be kind enough to waste a half a day and a few Dollars, and buy the Dealer his Lunch, and his Wife (all Dealers have wives—as two can live nearly as cheap as one) a Bunch of Orchids, and the Baby Boy a Box of Candy, and then show him his array of Samples.

Now we are in the best Hotel. He unpacks his full Line, of about One Hundred and Thirteen Boxes of Cigars, in all Popular and Unpopular shapes.

He starts with his small and Segundo Sizes and is told that this is not a Cheap Market. He grabs the Conchas and Puritanos, and is told that this is a High Grade Market. He digs madly into his Reina Vies and other old fashioned and ordinary Bit Sizes, and is told that these are only sold successfully in Saloons, News Stands, Ferry Boats and Grocery Stores, and in the Country. Then he flashes his Fancy Sizes, and must listen to a lot of criticism and comparisons, and is then told that his sizes do not come up to the "FLOR DE FUTZ" or the "EL YENTZO" Goods. Then he digs up a nice looking, well made Cigar, and is told that $120.00 per M for Bit Cigars is too much money—no profit.

He asks the Dealer what he wants, and the Dealer truthfully admits, that he don't know.

Three for a Half goods he is told, there is no sale for, and 25c sizes are sold only in $230.00 and $240.00 goods of Double Stamp and in certain Popular and Prominent Brands.

He uses his fine flow of Language, his ability and the reputation of his Factory all for nothing.

What the Dealer wants, is a Lot of Goods on Consignment, a couple of Salesmen to Boost, a Carload of Advertising Matter, some expensive Window Displays, Electric Signs, some Show Cases, Cigar Cutters, Paper Bags, 26 Sheets, and Matches, for nothing.

Inwardly disgusted, he packs up and has the same experience, over and over, and finally goes back to his home Town and his firm of "HAMAPPA, METSIA & CO.," and tells what a tough market San Francisco is.

After using his Personality, Ability and wasting his energy, and spends all the money that he is allowed, and all that he earns, and all that he can borrow, and uses up all the credit that he can get on the strength of his success—Twenty Years ago with the "CUCKOO"—he is forced to retire on the charity of his Friends to some Resort that can, or claims to cure Insomnia, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism and Lost Manhood, he finally lays back and croaks, happy to know that none of his competitors can make good either.

Manufacturing Cigars With Automatic Machinery

Baltimore Concern Now Demonstrating Practicability of Process—Cleanliness and Reduction in Cost of Production Insure Commercial Success, Say Makers—Use Unskilled Labor as Operators

By One Who Was There

THE writer has heard within a comparatively short time, a number of heated discussions, pro and con, relating to the manufacture of cigars by machine. He has heard experienced cigar makers state that it was an impossibility to make a cigar as well and as uniform as it is turned out by the hand process. "There's nothing like the touch of the human hand," they have said, "and the man who thinks he can make such a machine is either crazy or a fool."

The writer is not a practical cigar man, only a newspaper scribe, and when he heard of a concern which was turning out cigars by the thousands in a nearby city, entirely by machinery, he decided to investigate the rumor. The experiences he had can be digested by the reader, who is privileged to form his own opinion as to whether or not cigars can now be manufactured as well by machine as by hand.

The Cigar Wrapping Machine

The firm in question is located at 106 South Gay Street, Baltimore, Md., and is known as the Cigar Machine Corporation of America. I went to the building and asked for a Mr. Whitney, who, I had been informed, was the active and leading spirit in the enterprise. Mr. Whitney received me, and after a short interview, we made arrangements to look over the demonstrating plant.

The first stage of the process consisted of cutting the filler to length. The filler was then taken to an automatic bunching machine, which, Mr. Whitney explained, had a capacity of 10,000 cigars a day, and required only two comparatively unskilled hands to operate, one to feed in the filler and another to put the binder in place as the filler came through. This machine, it was pointed out to me, could be adjusted to any size cigar as well as the other machines in use. A traveling arrangement carried these bunches away.

Girl Operators Wrapping the Cigars

Following The Smoker's Taste Makes a Dealer Dizzy

The Soul Stirring Efforts of a Veteran Retailer Who Tries to Keep Up With The Whims of His Customers

By Frank R. Dornheim

I AM certainly up against it in the matter of my customers' tastes for this or that tobacco or his so-called 'favorite' brand of cigars or cigarettes," said a prominent and progressive retailer the other day. "I am often astonished by receiving a call from one of my most discriminating pipe-smoking customers for a brand of cheap tobacco for which you would never dream the man would ask if you knew him. He may have been a devoted slave to fancy mixtures for years and suddenly and unaccountably flop to a cheap straight cut plug or burley. There's no accounting for these fellows' tastes—they have me on edge all the time, keeping up with their quest for that elusive, unattainable 'ideal' in tobacco.

"For instance, I may have a steady patron who has been calling for a clear Havana cigar, giving me the impression that this is his permanent favorite, without warning change to a Porto Rican brand or even to a cheap domestic cigar. In the matter of their taste, it would seem, as the old farmer said, when he first saw a kangaroo in a circus, 'There ain't no such thing.'

"You may argue that the flavor of one variety of tobacco is bound to pall on the palate with continued use. This is probably the true explanation.

"Now an incident in point: I was strolling a few days ago with a friend who has always been an ardent devotee of the pipe. I knew that for years he had been smoking a mixture which I had made up for him at his special direction and it seemed to satisfy his taste perfectly. Sometimes I changed the proportions slightly, but the ingredients were always the same. We had been walking along and discussing some trivial matter when I imagine my surprise at getting from his pipe a pungent whiff of the purest burley.

"What are you smoking, Bill," I asked. "I said," he said, mentioning the name of a very popular brand, but lately introduced. I remembered that when it was introduced I had, more in joke than otherwise, got him to try it, knowing his decided views on the matter of his pipe tobacco. He expressed himself very freely at the time, and now seemed just a bit shame-faced at the memory of his caustic criticism.

"I know I knocked the stuff at that time, but I took that can home and the other night when I found that my stock had run out I tried it again and do you know, it didn't taste nearly so bad—and, well, I smoked it all up, and now I like it as well as that I have been smoking." Then he went on to give me an incident in his experience.

"Do you remember me telling you of meeting Professor G——— this summer? Well, he is a musical critic of international reputation and a very accomplished pianist. He has been a pipe-smoker for years. I got to be quite intimate with him. He has a large collection of fine pipes which he has picked up in various parts of the world, but he smokes the very cheapest cut plug tobacco, which he consumes in large quantities. I asked him how it was that he had acquired a taste for such tobacco. He smiled, and leaning forward, he tapped me on the knee with his huge meerschaum.

"I'll tell you, my boy, when I was your age I smoked such stuff as that too." (Here he indicated my pipe. I was smoking your 'Delight' mixture and had felt a little hurt the day before when he had politely declined my proffered pouch.) I went into shop after shop and tried tobacco after tobacco—mixtures, cut plugs, everything—trying to find the mythical "perfect" pipe-smoke. The result was that I now smoke this stuff. I know that it is miles removed from perfection, but it soothes my jaded nerves after a hard day and that, after all, is the effect we seek.

"I have often since pondered on his little lecture, and now I realize the truth of his statements."

Here the retailer paused to hand a customer a pack of cigarettes, and then concluded: "Even though these fellows are almost giving me gray hair, catering to their fickle tastes, they have in a way a good effect on me, as they force me to give constant attention to my stock and thus I am always up to date and my store is slowly but surely getting a reputation for carrying anything that may be called for."

Making Cigars by Machinery

The wrapping machine was, in my estimation, the most clever part of the whole process. These little devices, which at first glance, may be taken either for sewing machines or a small lathe, are so simple in construction that even the most uninitiated could easily catch the inventor's idea. As shown in the illustration the bed of the machine is hollowed out in such fashion that a cigar can easily be placed therein. The springs above the bed hold the cigar in place when it is being wrapped. The rough piece of goods is placed in the machine, then the end of the damp wrapper is placed over one end, and the spring arrangement gently, but firmly, holds the cigar down, the operator feeding the wrapper as fast as the cigar revolves. The spring, in addition to holding the cigar in position, molds and presses it fast to the binder. When the end of the cigar is reached the wrapper is trimmed with almost one motion of the hand, and after a little paste is applied is ready to be packed.

In summing up the whole method, Mr. Whitney stated that the bunching machine had a capacity of 10,000 perfect bunches a day, requiring two hands. The wrapping machine could wrap and finish 2,000 cigars a day, requiring one operator. Thus to have an output of 10,000 cigars a day, a manufacturer would need one bunching and five wrapping machines, requiring seven operators, who produced the same number of cigars as forty men now turn out by the hand method. One girl wrapping cigars was turning out seven per minute, so the estimate of 2,000 a day was moderate.

The inventor of the machine is said to have spent 45 years in perfecting this great labor-saving device. The company claims that there are no other machines in existence that manufacture a whole cigar. They claim that the saving in labor can be estimated when the cost of the popular price cigar, now manufactured at an average of $10.00 per thousand, can be reduced to $2.00 per thousand by these machines. The operation of the machines is so simple that girls at $1 per day can run them.

The Cigar Machine Corporation has now in active operation a complete demonstration plant at 106 South Gay Street, Baltimore, Md., where they are now showing this process to interested manufacturers. While inspecting the plant the writer and Mr. Whitney were joined by a number of Baltimore manufacturers, who had been invited to call and pass their opinion upon the plant. They were enthusiastic as to the future of the plan, and one man placed an order for a wrapping machine before he left the building.

The company will retain the ownership of all machines, installing them on a royalty basis, graded from $1.00 per thousand up on all cigars made on them, thus modeling its policy along the lines of The United Shoe Machinery Company.

RETAIL RINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Businesses . . .

A display in the window of the Lewis Drug Company, Los Angeles, several weeks ago was a clever means of calling attention to the cigar department and also to the enterprise of the manufacturers of a certain cigar and their factory representative in that section.

A Candle Guessing Contest That Pulled

In the center of the display of cigars was shown an enormous candle weighing 31 pounds, standing four feet in height, and five inches in diameter. The person guessing closest to the time required to burn up the candle received one hundred cigars, a well-known nickel brand in Southern California. The second nearest guess was entitled to fifty cigars.

The guessing was free, but the plan to confine entrants in the contest to only smokers it seems would be more desirable. In such event one guess, and only one, could be given to each person purchasing one cigar or more. This to an extent would keep out the undesirables.

R. B. Swope, enterprising and successful cigar dealer, on Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, has adopted a plan for securing popularity and business which is occasion for wonder to his rivals and admiration among his patrons.

Handles Theater Tickets as Convenience to Patrons

Mr. Swope is a veteran in the theatrical business. Like many other men in his line of trade, he adds dealing in theater tickets to his regular line of selling. But, he is able to make rates for the tickets at the regular prices, just as patrons would pay at the box offices. As a result, Mr. Swope's place is a popular station for buying theater tickets. He appears to care nothing for even a small commission, being content with his increase in the cigar trade.

And he is getting an immense amount of patronage.

A Philadelphia retailer used a good selling scheme recently which, while not new, is worth mentioning. He had opened a new stand and to call the attention of the smokers in that vicinity to it, many of whom were men with offices in the large office buildings, he gave away numbered coupons with every purchase of ten cents.

An Old Idea Which is Still Popular

At the end of each week he drew three numbers out of a hat, the holders of which were entitled to prizes. The owner of the first number drawn was entitled to a box of fifty cigars, the second a box containing twenty-five, and the third a cigar lighter, worth $1. The three numbers were shown in the show windows each Saturday morning at which time the winners would receive their prizes.

The idea of giving away cigar lighters, cigar cases and articles of a similar nature is still finding favor among many dealers. One merchant recently gave away a leather case, retailing at $1.50, with every box of 50 cigars, a well-known Porto Rican brand, which he sold at $3.50. The case was desirable in every way and was a good trade-catcher.

A new feature in cigar stores which would seem possible of development in many stores, something which may be a profitable side line, has recently been inaugurated by Park & Tilford, of New York.

This firm has placed in a number of cigar stores throughout New York a line of chocolates and bon bons in fancy half-pound, pound and two-pound packages, which are displayed in an attractive manner to the vision of all customers entering the store.

It can reasonably be assumed that many a smoker to whom it may never occur to enter a confectionery store, and who would be rather shy to do so, will thus be prompted to buy a box of sweets for the lady on whom he is about to call, or as a token to square himself with his wife when he arrives home. The margin of profit on candy is considerably larger than on tobacco or cigars and aided by a little suggestion on the part of the dealer, this feature may be a profitable addition to any retailer.

One of the most popular moves ever made by any Chicago Loop trader has been inaugurated by Peter J. Bauer, the energetic Randolph Street cigar dealer.

His latest hit is in line with furnishing advantages for customers and business for himself—and it is a winner in both respects. He is giving out cash register tickets, redeemable at 10 cents on the dollar in trade. Other dealers have various schemes to draw customers and hold their trade. Some give out tickets enabling holders to secure certain advantages of minor importance and lesser value.

It seems now that Mr. Bauer leads the Loop fraternity in popularity of advantage from dealings under his plan.

During the recent convention of the National Progressive Party in Chicago, the J. & B. Moos Company, manufacturers and jobbers of cigars, took advantage of the great public interest in the formation of the Bull Moose party by sending out to various cigar retailers who handle their goods a number of attractive signs and handbills which were clever advertising for this firm. They were shown in many windows. One of the cards read as follows:

Chicago Firm Uses Catchy Cards

"The Bull Moose party was not named after the bully moos cigar, because it is a stand-pat cigar. It has been, however, the standard of five-cent quality on the market for twenty years."

In addition to this selling talk the sign carried a handsome reproduction of a bull moose standing in his native haunts. In order to draw further attention to the Moos cigars, this company offered a reprint of the moose picture, 10 by 12 inches in size, in exchange for six Moos bands.

The dealers who watch for such opportunities as these, and without any hesitating, take advantage of them, are the ones who are up among the leaders.

New Method For Canceling Revenue Stamps

Order Issued By Commissioner Cabell Allows Perforation, Which Is Considered Improvement Over Present System

In a ruling just issued by Commissioner Cabell, of the Internal Revenue Department at Washington to collectors, manufacturers may hereafter cancel stamps by perforation instead of the several methods now allowed. This plan is considered an improvement over the stamping system, as the factory number and district is not made so indistinct as to be

"Brennig's Own" Cigarettes

Favorite Little Smokes Making Great Headway in New York Clubs, Cafes and Stores—Mrs. Brennig, Wife of Nobleman, Pushing Project

DURING recent months, the members of the smart set in New York, and exclusive club men, who are cigarette smokers, have been flashing a tin, containing twenty cigarettes, which they usually proclaimed the best smoke they had had for a long time.

The cigarettes were particularly noticeable owing to the fact that the strands of tobacco were not clipped on one end. These cigarettes which retail in a box of twenty for fifty cents, were marketed under the brand "Brennig's Own" being made by Mrs. A. C. Brennig with offices at 501 Fifth Avenue, New York.

The initiated were quite aware of the fact, that Mrs. Brennig was previous to her marriage Miss Amy Couder, a sister of the famous Couder brothers, lawyers of New York City. When a young girl, she was married to McKenzie Semple, once an Assistant District Attorney of New York City, and in 1894, after the death of Mr. Semple she married Baron B. Frederic Brennig, a noble-

"Batschari" German Cigarettes For American Trade

Famous Foreign Brand to be Marketed in This Country by New York Men Who Are Now Forming Concern for the Purpose

AMERICANS, who have visited Baden-Baden in years past have undoubtedly seen the superb show place of A. Batschari, who has long been known as the favorite cigarette maker for the German Emperor Kaiser Wilhelm.

The Batschari cigarette is typical of the goods which are usually credited as being favorites of reigning monarchs. They are blended from the finest Turkish tobacco, and made with the long stem mouth piece of card board.

A coterie of club men in New York, who have smoked these cigarettes, during visits to Europe, have just formed a little company backed up by ample capital, to market these goods in the United States. Their plans are just about completed for pushing the Batschari cigarettes in a very novel manner, and full announcement of these will be forthwith coming in a few days.

John E. Sutter, of L. P. Sutter & Co., New York tobacco importers, sailed for Havana, Cuba, October 25th, accompanied by his wife. Mr. Sutter is going on a business and pleasure trip and expects to be away about three weeks.

man of an old Austrian family. Not long since Baron Brennig's health failed, and his wife determined to engage in the cigarette business rather than become a pensioner on her relatives and friends.

As a result of this determination "Brennig's Own" cigarettes were put on the market, and the business has grown to such proportions, that it is now attracting the attention of prominent society and business men, who are seriously considering the investment of a large sum in pushing the cigarette, not only in New York, but throughout the country.

Harry Payne Whitney, is mentioned as one of the possible backers of the new enterprise. This gentleman is by no means a stranger to the cigarette and tobacco industry, as his late father was a holder of several million dollars worth of securities of the American Tobacco Company.

"Brennig's Own" cigarettes are to be found in nearly every leading club in New York, the "Union," "Lotus," "University," "Union League," and have been for months a special favorite of the Lambs Club, where during the months of September and August alone the sales were reported to have exceeded that of any other brand.

JOHN M. HOLTON,
Notary Public.
(My commission expires February 21st, 1915.)

Since the new management took hold of THE TOBACCO WORLD, some three years ago, the publication has more than tripled its circulation. This growth has been a natural one.

It has not been forced by artificial means, such as premiums, special-prize reductions, trial orders, or any of the "catch-penny" methods, often resorted to by circulation boosters. The gains have resulted alone from the fact that THE TOBACCO WORLD is just the kind of a paper that the trade has been seeking.

As evidence of this, THE TOBACCO WORLD has been receiving scores of letters from old subscribers, who have recognized the improvement in the paper, and from hundreds of new subscribers who, having seen a sample copy, have been quick to appreciate its many individual and distinctive features.

One of the letters which recently reached our office reads as follows:

SEATTLE, WASH., October 15.
THE TOBACCO WORLD,
102 S. 12th St.,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Gentlemen:
Enclosed please find our check for one year's subscription to THE TOBACCO WORLD.

We have intended to send in our subscription to your paper for the past six months, as we have read many issues and have classed it as one of the best Tobacco Publications issued. THE TOBACCO WORLD is a publication that every wholesale and retail tobacco dealer should read, as we find much in each issue that keeps us in touch with the tobacco market and that which is going on in the tobacco business throughout the country.

If you have six extra copies of the September issue, we would like you to send them to us with bill to cover same.

Yours very truly,
WOOLLEY & Co., Inc.,
Per H. S. Woolley, Sec'y & Mgr.

We do not know personally the writer, but we believe that he has struck a keynote that is worthy of the consideration of thousands of jobbers and retailers who have not yet joined THE TOBACCO WORLD family. At the present rate of growth, THE WORLD circulation will be the largest in the tobacco field within a short time.

While we are not prone to pin bouquets on ourselves, or to loll in the editorial chair, with smiles of self-satisfaction, we believe that the policy of the WORLD in throwing open its columns for the dissemination of unbiased news, about every phase of the trade, the publishing of spicy facts about the non-advertiser, as well as the advertiser, of devoting a large measure of its pages to educational articles of special interest and assistance to the live retailers and jobbers, is a policy that will win out in the long run.

It is certainly encouraging to know that this policy, inaugurated three years ago, is vindicating itself, not only in our gains in circulation, but in the corresponding gains in patronage from alert manufacturers, who want to reach an intelligent audience, such as THE TOBACCO WORLD commands.

Advances in price, forecasted by certain manufacturers of Turkish cigarettes, are simply the forerunners of other advances which must necessarily come if the present state of the Turkish tobacco market continues.

Famine in Turkish Cigarettes Not Improbable Turkish tobacco today is 25 per cent higher than it was a few months ago, and as the war in the Balkans is likely to continue for some time, not only upsetting the financial conditions, but seriously curtailing the production of tobacco, further advances can be expected. Indeed, manufacturers of Turkish cigarettes will be lucky if they do not find their supplies entirely cut off, and a resultant famine in the leaf of this character.

Turkish cigarettes have been sold at such a close margin by the retailers, that any advance in the price, will make their sale at the present figures almost impossible, and they will have to exact a proportionate advance from the consumer.

It is hoped that conditions in the Orient will adjust themselves before the manufacturers on this side find their present leaf stock exhausted.

It seems as if some of our Congressmen, having nothing else to do, are lying awake at nights dreaming of schemes to fetter business and impose new burdens upon the various branches of the manufacturing industries.

Another Burden Proposed For Tobacco Industry The latest evidence of such congressional meddling emanates from the fertile brain of Congressman Warburton, who says that he represents Washington in Congress. It is the plan of this dreamer to put the screws on the tobacco industry and the tobacco consumers of this country, and squeeze from them $138,000,000 within the next five years for the construction of a military road extending across the United States.

He proposes to get this money by putting in force the excessive Revenue Act of 1879, which was a temporary measure meant to raise money to pay off some of the debts which the country had incurred in the conduct of the Civil War.

In justification of his plan, Warburton says, and he does it without smiling, that the present tax on tobacco is too small, and he means to introduce a bill in Congress which will give him the money to build his road.

While we have no fears that Warburton's plan is likely to be enacted, we would warn the manufacturers of cigars, cigarettes and smoking tobacco to be prepared to combat this snake and scotch it as soon as it shows its head at the National Capitol.

Eugene Vallens Re-enters Cigar Field

New Factory at Third Ave., and Forty-ninth St.—Specialize on High Grade Goods Only

THE Gene-Vall Cigar Company, Inc., received a charter during the past fortnight, to engage in the manufacture of cigars in New York City. This new concern is organized by Eugene Vallens, J. M. Roeder and Reuben Grunauer, and marked the re-entrance in the cigar manufacturing field of a man who was for many years a leader in the production of high grade cigars in this country. It was from the Vallens factory it is recalled, that the "La Preferencia" originally came and won its way to the point of being among the largest selling brands in the United States. This brand was eventually purchased by the American Tobacco Company about four years ago, at which time Mr. Vallens withdrew from active business.

The Gene-Vall Company has leased a splendid factory at 801-803 Third Avenue, New York, northwest corner of Forty-ninth Street. Mechanics have now nearly completed the work of getting it ready for occupancy, so that they may commence manufacturing about November 10th.

Mr. Vallens informed THE TOBACCO WORLD that they will specialize in high grade goods only; basing their policy on quality rather than the quantity, for the success of the new venture. He has been in the leaf market for several months and has purchased already some splendid lots of Havana tobacco, as well as some Connecticut broadleaf. Their output will include two distinct types, clear Havana cigars and the Connecticut broadleaf wrapped piece of goods.

Mr. Vallens' ripe experience in the field, together with his personality and large circle of friends augers well for the immediate success of the new concern.

A bankruptcy petition, was filed on October 22d, against The Henry Spies Cigar Company, who had been conducting a retail shop at 705 Broadway, New York.

George and William Wolf, who, at one time, composed the firm of Wolf Brothers Cigar Company, manufacturers at 432 East 75th Street, have filed a petition in bankruptcy. The liabilities are placed at $1,732, with assets of $1,579.

What "Charles The Great" Boosters Are Doing

William C. Rosenfeld, one of the travelling staff of the firm of Salvador Rodriguez, who covers territory in the South and West for the "Charles The Great" cigar, has been in New York during the past ten days, and left for his headquarters in Chicago on October 26th.

Mr. Rosenfeld is the son of Mike Rosenfeld, who has been with the same house for over twenty-five years, and who has made "Charles The Great" one of the most popular clear Havana brands in the Middle West.

Claude E. Turner, of the same factory, left New York on Monday for a trip up the State, which will take him as far West as Buffalo. Mr. Turner is now covering New York State, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington for this house.

H. W. Peabody & Company Take "Petronia" Account

Arrangements have been recently concluded, whereby Henry W. Peabody & Co., the export and import house of 17 State Street, who are very large factors in the importation of Manila cigars, have assumed the American agency for the "Petronia" brand, made by Lopart & Co., in Havana.

This brand has been on the market for only a short time and the account was first handled here by Fernando Mesa, who relinquished the account last summer.

R. S. Toby, of the cigar department of Peabody, stated that they had a long time contract with Lopart & Co., and that the new goods showed much improvement. Quite some headway for a comparatively unfamiliar brand has been made.

Chas. H. Sutcliffe New Philip Morris & Company Official

Charles H. Sutcliffe, who has been superintendent and purchasing agent of the Philip Morris & Co. factory, has been appointed to succeed the late William King, assistant treasurer, who died of pneumonia. Mr. Sutcliffe has been connected with Philip Morris & Co. for over four years and in that time has been instrumental in the successful operation of the employes' Mutual Aid Association, having charge of the funds.

New Jobbing House For Brooklyn

J. B. Black, formerly connected with the firm of Suarez, Crespo & Black, manufacturers of clear Havana cigars, is making arrangements for opening a jobbing and retail business at 65 Court Street, Brooklyn. He expects to make a clear Havana cigar and to also go extensively into the handling of other brands.

Tampa Manufacturer Dies In New York

Espanislaui Ortiz, of Ortiz & Caras, Succumbs While On Business Trip

ESPANISLAU ORTIZ, one of the founders of the well-known Tampa cigar factory of Ortiz & Caras, died in New York City, October 30th, of pneumonia. Mr. Ortiz arrived in New York several weeks ago on a business trip and was taken ill at the Hotel America whence he was removed to Miss Alston's private hospital in 61st Street where he died. His wife was immediately notified in Tampa and arrived in New York to take charge of the body which will be sent to Tampa for interment.

Senor Ortiz was one of the old-time Spanish manufacturers who helped to make Tampa known for its high-class cigars. He was a gentleman of fine personality, high character and unimpeachable business probity. He was 62 years old.

Manila Cigar Strike Broken

LATE cable advices from Manila, state that the strike of the Manila cigarmakers has been broken. At one time there were 14,000 operatives idle and these are gradually returning to work. On October 28th 2,500 reported for work and it is expected that others will follow. The strike has lasted about a month having been brought about by the workers' objections to the registration law. Those who have returned to work have complied with the law. The supply of Manilas had not as yet been affected in this country.

Jac Wertheim Off For French Lick Springs

Jac Wertheim, president of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, has been out at French Lick Springs for the past fortnight taking a well needed rest after a strenuous summer's work. This is the first summer in several years, that Mr. Wertheim has omitted his annual European trip.

Robert E. Lane Comments Upon Outlook

Robert E. Lane, the general American, and Canadian representative for the "Partagas" cigar reached home last week from a quick trip out Chicago way.

Mr. Lane said that he found business in exceptionally good condition in the Middle West and that the year now closing would show that "Partagas" had made some very pronounced gains in the United States.

Many of the jobbers are featuring this brand as their leader in Havana-made goods, and the effects of this policy have been finely displayed, on Mr. Lane's order files.

Manuel Alvarez & Company To Branch Out

According to Manuel Alvarez, of Manuel Alvarez & Co., that concern will increase their acreage in the Porto Rico plantations and expect to raise more shade-grown wrappers than formerly. They have already made arrangements for the work, sending thousands of yards of the cheesecloth to be used in raising the leaf.

They report that the 1911 crop has been moving along very satisfactorily. They are now pushing some stripped fillers, which are sold in barrels. The barrels average 110 pounds and are selling at from 40 to 60 cents.

Harry Roberts, the Tampa manufacturer, reached New York on the 24th ult., and has been quartered at the Imperial for a week's visit. Mr. Roberts says that all Tampa manufacturers are well engaged at the present time, and that business looks to be in much better shape than it was a year ago this time.

Of the $50,000,000 authorized capital stock $5,000,000 preferred and $10,000,000 common have been issued up to the present time. The new corporation is backed by Mr. Reid and his associates.

All Lines Hustling in Quaker City

Ideal Weather Boosts Sales of Dealers—Leaf Market Takes Spurt

WITH the approach of the holiday season and its consequent rush the local factories are finding it a difficult matter to make good on promised orders. The "help wanted" signs are to be seen at all sides and a cigarmaker to be turned down on account of inefficiency at this time must be a poor hand indeed. The box factories are also working to their capacity in an endeavor to keep in step with the cigar men.

The retail trade is in an especially flourishing state. The weather has been almost ideal and October sales will probably reach a high water mark. Box sales around the central section are reported at every hand, which surely indicates that money is more plentiful than several months ago.

The leaf market has taken a spurt and most every kind of tobacco is finding ready purchasers. Havana and 1911 Pennsylvania have the lead at present, although Connecticut and Wisconsin binders would find buyers were this leaf not so scarce. Florida is selling evenly, although sales are said not to be large.

New Factory For Sig. C. Mayer & Company

Owing to the tremendous demand for their cigars within the past year Sig. C. Mayer & Co., have made arrangements to move to a new building they have secured in the wholesale leaf district. The final plans have not been announced as yet, but unless their present arrangements must be changed later they will occupy the new plant about the first of the year.

The factory at Fifth and Lombard Streets has become crowded as the Mayer business grew and at the present time is wholly undesirable for the firm. The new establishment, it is stated, will have a much larger floor space than the old one.

P. H. Gorman, vice-president of the Porto-Rican-American Tobacco Company, spent a few days in Philadelphia last week accompanied by his bride who was a former Philadelphian, Miss Craven. While in this city, he and his bride were royally entertained by friends.

Eli J. Paris, son of the Baltimore cigar manufacturer, B. Paris, proprietor of the Manchester Cigar Company, is calling on the city trade in the interests of the Manchester products. They specialize on small cigars. The wholesale house of Harry D. Narrigan & Co. are local jobbers of their goods.

More Dealers to Handle "Havana Ribbon"

THE increased demand for "Havana Ribbons" is severely taxing Bayuk Brothers Company's facilities for production, for while their Philadelphia plant and out-of-town factories are running full-handed and overtime, the unfilled orders continue to accumulate.

J. C. Revercomb, Southern representative, at the present time visiting Baltimore, where William Deiches & Co. are distributors, is accompanied by Joseph McFetridge, of the home advertising force, and has inaugurated an extensive advertising campaign on the "Ribbon" in the Monumental City.

Dave S. Achenbach, Pennsylvania-New York Representative, is covering the latter State and securing some large business there. He placed the "Havana Ribbon" with C. D. Manning for the Syracuse territory and with P. J. Wald for the Utica territory.

A. M. Thompson has just completed an extended Western trip and reports "Havana Ribbons" continually increasing in popularity.

Pushing "Satisfaction" in Philadelphia

Charles Buck, District Sales Manager for Strater Brothers Tobacco Company, Louisville, Ky., and a crew of five salesmen, have been working in Philadelphia during the past few weeks pushing a new brand of cut plug tobacco called "Satisfaction." This brand is put up in a neat red paper package and has taken a quick hold in this market. J. Harvey McHenry, the local sales agent for Strater's, expresses himself as well pleased with the progress of the campaign.

Terry & Duncan, 10th and Chestnut Streets, recently placed their order for holiday goods. Prominent brands included are those from such well-known factories as Sanchez & Haya, Cortez, Romeo y Julieta, Upman, Castaneda, and Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb.

Jerome H. Sheip, connected with the firm of Sheip & Vandergrift, celebrated the 25th anniversary of his wedding on October 11, at which time all his friends connected with the trade were present, and a most enjoyable time was had. This little celebration was also made to serve in part with the birthday of Mr. Sheip, which occurred about a week previous. Mr. and Mrs. Sheip were the recipients of many beautiful gifts of silver. The event throughout was most enjoyable.

Quaker City Items

Jacob Labe, of Benjamin Labe & Sons, is again home after being at the Amsterdam inscriptions for some time attending the sales for his firm.

William T. Taylor, United States representative of the Romeo y Julieta factory, spent several days among the local trade this week.

Mr. Dobler, of the V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., booked a number of desirable orders while in Philadelphia this week, including one from J. G. Atherholt, 111 South Broad Street.

"Benny" Falk, of the A. Falk Tobacco Company, New York City, was doing a nice business in Philadelphia this week.

Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, are working overtime in an endeavor to catch up with their orders on "Reynaldo," their 10-cent leader.

Sidney Cahen booked some attractive orders for E. Regensburg & Co., while in Philadelphia this week.

Dusel, Goodloe & Co., 112 North 7th Street, are seeking new quarters to accommodate their rapidly increasing jobbing business. Their "Earl Marshal" brand of nickel cigars, is meeting with undiminished popularity.

T. H. Hart Company, 12th and Walnut Streets, have just completed arrangements with a large jobbing house in northern New York, to distribute their "Five of Harts," and "Heartsease."

The sale of these goods has increased to such an extent that it was deemed advisable to establish a permanent distributor in the section.

The cigar department of the Mitchell, Fletcher & Co., 12th and Chestnut Streets store, has just placed an order for a new line of "Alma Mia" cigars, made by H. Anton Bock & Co., 1228 Second Avenue, New York City.

The old "Chicos" brand, made by the J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, is still enjoying an era of well-deserved popularity. This brand was at one time one of the most widely known brands manufactured by this firm.

News of the Burley Markets

Burley Tobacco Company To Contest Suit Filed By State of Kentucky—Light Offerings Continue To Prevail

CINCINNATI, Oct. 28.

THE cigar and tobacco factories throughout this section are working full time, and experienced help is in great demand. It has been many months since as favorable conditions existed in local tobacco circles as at present obtains.

In the Cincinnati cigar leaf market a number of important recent sales are reported. A total of 36 cases were disposed of at the regular Saturday auction on Saturday last. Although the average quality was very ordinary, prices were firm. Included in the lot were 23 cases Spanish, selling at an average of $5.07 per 100 pounds; 9 cases Dutch which brought $3.80, and 4 cases seed which sold at about $3.00.

From Lexington, Ky., comes the report that the Burley Tobacco Company will contest the suit filed against it by the State Auditor for $21,000 alleged to be due to the State because the company was alleged to have carried tobacco insurance risks and collected fees therefor from poolers.

Light offerings continue to prevail on the local Burley leaf tobacco breaks, a total of 316 hogsheads being disposed of the past week. The quality of the tobacco was slightly better than has prevailed in a number of weeks, and the market displayed a firmer tone

Scarcity of Hands Affects Baltimore Manufacturers Many Fine Window Trims—New Stand in Casualty Building

BALTIMORE, October 28.

THE manufacturers are certainly digging these days. This fall will probably go down in local cigar annals as one of the best summer they were doubtful whether conditions would improve with the approach of autumn, but even if this is a presidential year, it appears that if it has boosted business. The same thing holds true of the jobbing and retail ends.

There are some unusually attractive displays around town. Wm. Boucher & Son are now pushing the "Van Dyck" cigar, a brand which is popular in this city. They are showing a window display on the "La Mega," a cigar made by V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., of Tampa. The cigarette men have also been hustling and everywhere one sees "Fatima," "Tokio" and the many other cigarettes on the market here. Lilly, Dungan & Co. have been popularizing the "Plentius" cigar and have an attractive window trim on this brand this week.

Artistic Display of "Van Dyck" Cigars at Wm. Boucher & Son's Stand.

A new cigar stand will shortly be opened in the Maryland Casualty Building. It is understood that the same firm operating the stand in the Empire Theatre Building are behind the plan.

The lack of hands in this market has hit the Manchester factory hard. When seen a few days ago, Mr. Paris, the proprietor, stated that he could use at least fifty more. While this factory has always specialized on small cigars, they are now doing a nice business on large cigars, which they have been manufacturing for about six months. R. N. Paris, who has been doing the traveling, is away on a boosting trip through Boston and vicinity.

Wertheimer Brothers, who formerly made little effort to cater to the city trade, are now pushing the "El Dallo" and making a number of displays around the city. This cigar has taken a big hold at many points from one coast of the country to the other and the factory is now away oversold.

The building at 222 West Fayette Street, which until lately was occupied by John Dreves, the cigar manufacturer, is now vacant, Mr. Dreves having gone out of business.

A visit to the other factories around town, outside of those mentioned above, elicited almost the same replies, an optimistic view for the future and an earnest wish for more hands.

In consequence. Fancy color styles were an important feature, and sold at an advance over the previous week's transactions. The price range for the week was $2.80 to $19.75 per 100 pounds, with an average of $7.81, as against $7.44 for 301 hogsheads sold the preceding week, and $7.94 for 998 hogsheads received for the corresponding week last year.

From January 1 to October 25 there were offered 47,132 hogsheads of Burley tobacco on the local breaks. Of this number 8,332 were rejected, leaving actual sales of 38,800 hogsheads as against 36,687 offerings, 8,652 rejections and 28,003 net sales for the corresponding period of 1911. Of the total 1912 offerings to date the Farmers and Shippers Warehouse has disposed of 19,166 hogsheads; Globe Warehouse, 13,310; Bodmann House, 10,149, and The Buckeye Warehouse, 4,507.

Among the active members of the Cincinnati Burley Tobacco Dealers' Association may be mentioned W. D. Spalding & Son, T. H. Kirk, J. B. Heizer & Co., F. W. Dolermann & Son, E. W. Loudon & Co., J. A. Downard, C. MacIntyre, Hite & Hennessy and F. W. Joe Water, all of whom having, by their fair dealings and progressive business methods, made this market one of the most prominent in this section.

HULL.

"The Tobacco World," recognizing the increasing importance of the various Burley tobacco markets, will hereafter give full reports of same for the benefit of its many readers in this country and abroad.

Seattle Wholesalers Filling Alaska Orders

SEATTLE jobbers have been doing a land office business in the past month. Steamers from Seattle have been compelled to leave several shipments of cigars and tobacco behind on account of the heavy freight they have been carrying.

The cigar makers' strike in Manila, which it was thought might probably delay shipments from the Island, has not had any noticeable effect as yet on the Pacific Coast. Woolley & Co., of Seattle, recently received three large shipments consisting of "La Minangas," "Los Angeles" and "La Insulas." This concern expects shortly to receive some of the most expensive Manila cigars ever shipped to this country. In this lot will be cigars retailing at 75 cents each.

In speaking of the quality of the Manila cigars, Mr. Woolley stated that one reason for bringing these cigars to this country was to show the American smoker that there are as good Manila cigars as of any other kind.

The "Webster" Cigar in St. Louis

Humler & Nolan, of Louisville, have taken the exclusive agency in that city for Y Pendez & Alvarez' "Webster" cigar. They recently received a large shipment of imported cigars for the holiday trade, among them being the well known "Partagas" and "Romeo y Julieta" goods.

Gerhardt, of West Hoboken, who has been covering the state for Kleiner & Co., states that they are now on sale in every county in the state. After the first of the year Mr. Gerhardt proposes to make an extensive campaign on "Lord Macaulay" seed and Havana cigars throughout New Jersey.

"La Verdad" For Brewster, Gordon & Company

Brewster, Gordon & Co., the prominent wholesale house, of Rochester, N. Y., has taken on the agency of the "La Verdad" cigar of Simon Batt & Co., of New York. The deal was carried through by H. G. Alces, the factory representative of the manufacturers, who has been pushing the "La Verdad" aggressively in that territory.

"La Mega" For Sam Brust, San Diego Jobber

Samuel Brust, one of the oldest cigar jobbers in San Diego, Cal., has taken on the "La Mega" cigar of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., of Tampa, Fla., and expects to shortly have a wide distribution on this high-grade smoke in that part of California. Mr. Brust will be assisted in this campaign by Harry Robare, the factory man, who has been doing missionary work in the West with good results on this brand.

B. W. McIntosh Representing "Pure Gold"

B. W. McIntosh, a well-known tobacco man, is now representing the "Pure Gold" Tobacco Company, of Greenville, Tenn., and has taken the Western territory, including Salt Lake City, El Paso, Butte City and the Hawaiian Islands. He is now located at 24 California Street, San Francisco. "Pure Gold" is one of the latest independent brands of granulated smoking tobaccos to be pushed on the Coast, and in a comparatively short campaign is one of the leading ones.

Jerome Foley Leaves Brewster & Company

Jerome Foley, who has been connected with the wholesale house of H. P. Brewster & Co., of Rochester, N. Y., has resigned his position. Mr. Foley, who was formerly a member of Foley & Driscoll, of that city, has not as yet announced what line of business he intends to enter next, although a source of information states that he will travel for a well-known cigar manufacturer.

Cobb Cigar Co., New Atlanta Jobbers

The Cobb Cigar Company will shortly apply for a charter to do business as a wholesale cigar firm in Atlanta, Georgia. It will be open for business around the first of December. Among the lines already arranged for distribution are the "Cinco," Otto Eisenlohr & Bros.; "San Felice," Deisel-Wemmer Company, Lima, Ohio, and the Sanchez y Haya goods.

Wholesale Trade Items

Maurice Bernstein, the Boston sub-jobber, has moved from his old location at 2132 Washington Street, to Beach Street, near Harrison Avenue.

Robert H. Patterson, a factory traveling man for the Hemsheim Company, of New Orleans, has been working San Francisco with Glaser Brothers, the jobbers in that territory, for "Hemsheim" cigars.

The newly formed jobbing house, the Alkire-Naylor Cigar Company, of Salt Lake City, has taken on the entire line of the Hemsheim Company, of New Orleans, for the states of Utah and Idaho.

J. W. Blunn & Co., wholesalers, of Springfield, Ill., have taken on the account for the "London Whiff" cigars, manufactured by the London Whiff Cigar Company, of Cleveland, Ohio. They expect to make a whirlwind campaign in that section of Illinois on that brand.

Shibley, Massingham & Co., the Pittsburgh distributors, report an increased demand for the "A. J. Cassatt" cigar, manufactured by the Baum-Jaffe Company, of Philadelphia. A. E. Russell, the factory representative, has been assisting the salesmen of the wholesale house to introduce this brand.

The Tobacco Company, of California, will shortly open a branch distributing store in Portland, Oregon. It will be located at 129 North First Street.

The "Moses Cleveland" cigar of the London Whiffs Company, of Cleveland, has been placed with the Four States Grocery Company, of Texarkana, Ark., who are wholesale grocers and cigarists in that city. They will feature the cigar in two sizes.

The Wm. A. Stickney Company, of St. Louis, are introducing a new cigar to the trade in that city called the "Randolph." This is a brand made for them by the firm of John G. Spatz & Company, of Reading, Pa. The "Randolph" is a nickel cigar, made in the Londres shape and is packed 100 to a box, coming in two bundles of 50 each.

The Badger Tobacco Company, Milwaukee jobbers, are branching out in the cigar line, their latest acquisition being a Philadelphia brand, the "Coiner" cigar, of the Baum-Jaffe Company. This is a new nickel smoke and has taken a good hold in the East wherever it has been introduced. They expect to push it heavily. They are doing a heavy trade at present in that city on the "La Famosa" cigar of E. Kleiner & Co., of New York City.

The "San Felice" cigar of the Deisel-Wemmer Company is making a big hit with the customers of Lang & Co., of Portland, Oregon. J. H. Duncan, the manager of the cigar department of the Lang Company, recently stated that recent shipments of these goods approximating 100,000 cigars, lasted less than a week and they have wired to the factory for more. The last reports give it that orders on this brand cannot be filled in their entirety by the manufacturers, who are doing a heavy trade in the Middle West and Far West at this time, as well as in the South.

The Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, of Kansas City, have secured the services of D. Norgrove, who will attend to popularizing the "Rey-Oma," the "18 Caret" and "Salome" cigars. He will do sign work and trim windows on these goods.

The jobbing house of Goodrich & Co., of Milwaukee, report a heavy demand for the "Equity" cigar, made by W. K. Gresh & Sons, of Norristown, Pa. The run on the "San Felice" cigar of the Deisel-Wemmer Company has also caused a shortage.

The Wm. Steinmeyer Company, of Milwaukee, who are distributors for the "Rose-O-Cuba" cigar of the Fleck Cigar Company, of Reading, Pa., were recently visited by the factory representative, D. D. Sulkis. They are now handling a new size, the "Little Rose-O-Cuba," which has been taking well everywhere it has been introduced.

Paikopoulos & Ratat, cigar dealers, of Milwaukee, have added the "La Famosa" cigar of E. Kleiner & Co. to their many lines, as well as the "William Penn" and the "Little William Penn" of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, of Philadelphia. The "El Dallo" cigar was also taken on by them recently.

The "Charles Denby" cigar, manufactured by H. Fendrich, of Evansville, Ind., has been taken on by the wholesale cigar and liquor house of E. Eppstein & Co., of Dallas, Texas. This firm claims to have one of the finest humidors in the South, one which holds over one million cigars. They are jobbers of the "Cuesta-Rey" cigars and the "Charles the Great," of Salvador Rodriguez.

The Straus Cigar Company, of Richmond, Va., are one of the big jobbers in that city. At present they are doing an enormous trade on Porto Rican goods. Their leader in this line is the "Savarona" cigar of the Cayey-Caguas Company. They also do a heavy business on "Sanchez y Haya" cigars and on the "Charles the Great," Salvador Rodriguez.

One of the latest jobbing houses to enter the field, the Alkire-Naylor Cigar Company, of Salt Lake City, Utah, has taken on the "Flor de Baltimore" cigar, made by the Symons-Kraussman Company, of New York City. The place of business of this firm is at 42 Post Office Place. K. E. Naylor is president of the concern and A. A. Alkire vice-president. They are former salesmen for the Hemenway & Moser Co., wholesalers.

The Steffen-Woods Cigar Company, which was formed in Indianapolis several months ago to do a wholesale and retail business, has made application for a change of name. They will hereafter be known as the Woods-Bray Cigar Company. One of the founders of the firm, Charles Steffen, has sold his interest and will go into the manufacturing of cigars. They will continue to operate their four stands in that city and will confine their efforts to the retail business alone.

Branch Store For Geo. L. Storm & Company

George L. Storm & Company have rented a building at 1210 East Main Street, Richmond, Va., and will use it as a distributing center and as a display room for their goods. The building is four stories in height and will fill a long-felt need of this firm, which does a large trade in Virginia, Alabama, the Carolinas and Georgia.

Cigar Manufacturers Do Tremendous Business—Salvador Sanchez & Co. Working Sundays—Others to Follow—Tampa Box Company Again Operating

TAMPA, Oct. 27.

THE cigar industry and its allied lines has never had a more prosperous season of holiday orders. Every factory reports the best business in its history and the main obstacle, the short supply of cigar boxes, due to the crippling of the plant of the Tampa Box Company by the recent fire, has been largely overcome. The shipments are averaging 7,000,000 cigars a week and there is every prospect that the rush will continue into December.

Although every available cigarmaker in the city is at work, there is need just now for at least 1,000 more and every effort is being made to recruit the forces by securing men from other cities.

One factory, that of Salvador Sanchez & Co., began today Sunday operation, being compelled to adopt this step because of the rush of orders. Other factories have about decided to do the same thing and, next Sunday, it is expected a half-dozen or more of the larger houses will be in full operation.

Fred Dalton, traveling man for Berriman Brothers, is in the city for a brief visit.

Corral, Wodiska & Co. find it next to impossible to turn out the "Julia Marlowe" brand fast enough to meet the demand.

E. Ortiz, of Ortiz & Caras, is off on an extended road trip. His ultimate destination is Chicago.

Celestino Vega, Manuel Sanchez, Enrique Bendas, Jose Arango and Lawrence Gunst composed the committee of manufacturers which negotiated with the cigarmakers and brought about the amicable settlement of the inspectorship difficulty.

The "bug machine" is still awaiting the improvements which are promised. The machine was operated one day recently for the benefit of A. C. Morgan and G. A. Runner, agents of the Department of Agriculture of the United States, who were here on a visit of inspection.

Rafael M. Ybor, Cuban Consul in Tampa, has been spending his vacation at Havana.

Jose M. Lozano, Jr., of the Lozano firm, is to spend the winter here, in active service at the local factory. He finds business conditions excellent.

F. Garcia, of F. Garcia & Bros., spent last week in Tampa.

Edward Berriman, Jr. has begun the learning of the business in the local Berriman factory. He has started at the bottom and proposes to master every detail of the trade.

R. H. McArthur has been added to the traveling force of Salvador Sanchez & Co. He will cover the Southern territory.

On a recent visit to the city, Alfred Esberg, of the M. A. Gunst Company, spoke highly of the conditions in the trade throughout the country and was very much gratified at the share of orders received by the Tampa factory.

Cuesta, Rey & Co. announce that their October business has exceeded that of any month on their records. A. L. Cuesta has just returned from Havana, coming by way the East Coast and Jacksonville.

PERFECTO.

New Agreement for Tampa Manufacturers and Hands Board Appointed Which Will Consist of Two Men, Representing Firms, and Three Cigar Makers' Representatives, Hold Harmony Meeting

TAMPA, FLA., October 27.

FOR the first time since the big strike, the cigar manufacturers of Tampa believe that they have now reached a basis of amicable agreement with the cigarmakers which will enable them to maintain peace in the industry indefinitely.

The various differences which have arisen since the settlement of the strike could all be traced to the equalization agreement which was adopted in 1910 and which was supposed to bind all factories to the observance of certain prices and sizes. Repeated complaints were made that some of the factories were habitually violating this agreement and, in order to keep tabs on these factories, the appointment of a board of inspectors was some time ago agreed upon.

It was not long before complaints were made about the work of this board, although the inspectors appeared to be vigilant in their efforts and succeeded in bringing some of the offending factories to account. The cigarmakers insisted that they should have representation upon the board and the manufacturers finally adopted this view. The result was the appointment of a new board, on which are two men elected by the manufacturers and three by the cigarmakers, thus giving the cigarmakers a majority on the board.

At a meeting held last Friday night, the cigarmakers were represented by one delegate from each factory and the manufacturers by one representative or member of each firm engaged in the business. The meeting proved thoroughly harmonious and the cigarmakers present elected their inspectors by ballot. They are Claudio Diarmid, Mariano Armas and Cecilio Castillo. The manufacturers have not yet announced their selections. The meeting resolved itself into a harmony fest, manufacturers and workmen uniting in expressions of esteem and declaring that they believed all troubles were over and that the industry would proceed without further interruption or disturbance.

This happy outcome is especially gratifying to all citizens at present by reason of the fact that the industry has never had a more prosperous era.

Geo. Walker, Los Angeles Dealer Sells Out

George W. Walker, the well-known cigar and tobacco dealer of Los Angeles for the past thirty years in the wholesale trade, known all over the Coast, has sold his entire business to H. A. Beck. Mr. Beck was formerly connected with Ehrman & Mason, of Portland, Ore. He has been connected with this firm for the past twenty-six years as general manager of their cigar and tobacco trade. As Mr. Beck is an old hand at the trade and as George W. Walker's past experience in the line has been a success, there is no reason why Mr. Beck should not succeed.

Watson stores. It is the intention of the Booth Company to add more stores as the opportunities present themselves.

Review of Chicago Trade

Reid, Murdock & Company Purchase Property--
Rumor of Big Retail Combination Revived--William
F. Monroe to Open Not Later Than Nov. 15

CHICAGO, October 28.

IN common with practically all other lines of manufacturing and selling, the tobacco and cigar men of Chicago are pleased with the present condition of trade and with the prospects for the future. In practically every cigar factory in the city reports are given out that the demand is unprecedented. Tobacco men have their hands full of business in supplying the demands of the cigar dealers. On all hands collections are reported good. The importers and the wholesalers are exceedingly good natured over the calls made upon them and their resources by the manufacturers. Jobbers are doing an unprecedented business. There are no reports of unusually large deals. But the increased consumption of tobacco and cigars, coupled with excellent feeling in the financial situation, tends to make the run of business most satisfactory. Among some of the jobbers there is complaint because of lack of promptitude on the part of manufacturers in making shipments.

In the Retail Trade.

If even a shrewd, skilled reporter or correspondent were to go to the retail stores, big and little, with the most searching inquiry, he would be likely to fail in any attempt to find a dealer who had any complaint to make concerning the volume of business. Perhaps there are no shrewder observers of ordinary public affairs and of trade conditions than the cigar dealer. He has little chats with big men. He hears much wisdom expounded. Many times the store of the small dealer is the gathering place, the club house, for myriads of men who there discuss public events and political movements and even international affairs. As the result of all this, the dealer is in a way to secure an immense amount of information relating to the tendencies of current affairs on his own business.

Hotel Cigar Trade Booming.

The cigar dealers in all the hotels are becoming interested in a most practical way in the prospects for an immense trade in their goods during the holidays. On all sides the indications are unmistakable. As a matter of course, the general cigar and tobacco trade will be affected in tremendous proportions by what is assured to be an extraordinary demand for their goods.

But, to an unusual degree, the situation in the general trade will be reflected in the hotels. The men with the cigar stands in all the leading Chicago hosteleries are beginning to have an appreciative understanding of the situation.

Joe Moos, who was appointed manager of the cigar department for Rothschild & Co., has resigned owing to the fact that when the new store was dedicated the department was stationed on the seventh floor, which was not satisfactory to Mr. Moos.

Chas. R. Jacobs, who conducts an attractive store at Fifth Avenue and West South Water Street, secured a nice order for his "Mi Reys," which he handles in twenty-two sizes, from the committee in charge of the cold storage banquet given this week at the Sherman House by the National Poultry, Butter and Egg Association.

The "Lord Salisbury" cigarettes are being pushed to the front in a most skillful and successful manner by W. D. Flenk, who prophesies that the brand will be the largest seller for its price on the market.

Chapin & Gore have added the "Pandora," a high grade cigar in two sizes, made by the Erlich Manufacturing Company, to their offerings. Chapin & Gore's other leaders are: "General Shields," from Marcelino Perez & Co.; "El Gallo," of the Ruy Lopez Co., and "Atello," of the Ferd. Hirsch Company.

"Pera," a new brand of Turkish cigarettes, is making its appearance in plain, cork and gold tips. It is understood that the goods are to be energetically put before the trade.

W. W. Linn, assistant manager Bull Durham department American Tobacco Company, accompanied by his wife, recently passed through Chicago on a trip of inspection in all the prominent cities west of here. About the first of December they will return to New York. During the great review of the Atlantic fleet in the Hudson river recently the house with which Mr. Linn is connected successfully carried into effect a great advertising scheme. They presented one full size five cent package of Bull Durham tobacco to every one of the 38,016 men in the fleet.

Circulars to the Trade.

From the J. & B. Moos establishment have been issued circulars to the trade, which read as follows:

"Please note following new goods and price changes: St. Leger, little cigars, $8.00 per M; outside Cook County, Ill., $8.25; Tuxedo, 16 oz. glass humidors, per dozen, $8.40; Lucky Strike (roll cut), 16 oz. glass humidors, per dozen, $9.00; Lucky Strike (roll cut), 8 oz. glass humidors, per dozen, $4.50; Imperial Cubes, 16 oz. decorated porcelain jars, per dozen, $4.40; Luxury Cigarettes, per M, $10.95; Murad Cigarettes, per M, $10.70; Mogul Cigarettes, per M, $10.70; Liggett & Myers, new plug cut; Picks, 5 cents foil (4 dozen cartons), per dozen, 48 cents; 10 cent cloth pouch (1 dozen cartons), per dozen, 96 cents, for a limited time only we will give free two 5 cent packages of Dukes Mixture with each ten pounds of Liggett & Myers plug and twist delivered from our stock. This offer positively does not apply in drops. No limit to number of shipments a dealer may buy under free order.

"For a limited time Monopol Tobacco Works will make drop shipments for our account, consisting of ten pounds or more of their high grade smokings, all one brand, or assorted, which may be made up from the entire Monopol line, excepting following brands: Old English, Twin Oak, Maryland Club, Continental Cubes, Monte Cristo and Temple Bar.

"Monopol Tobacco Works will mail our customer check for $1.00 on every ten pounds included in the order; thus, an order of fifty pounds will bring a rebate check of $5.00, etc. All orders under this offer will be shipped direct from factory by express prepaid to destination, thus entirely relieving the dealer from any expense whatever in handling the shipment. 'Go to it'; we need the business."

Gilbert Smith, representing Pendas & Alvarez's "Webster" factory, with headquarters in Chicago, has resigned to take effect January 1st.

The rumor of the formation of a gigantic retail cigar store combination, to include Chicago, is revived with increase in seeming probability of its being well founded. It is supposed that Norman B. Ream, of Chicago, will be a leading, influential factor in the combination, which it is reported will include a large number of cities and be entirely independent.

The Sullivan & Shannon Cigar Company, with a capital of $3,500, has just been incorporated to do business in Chicago; incorporators, William M. Donkin, John J. Sullivan and John J. Shannon.

John H. Taylor, a cigar clerk in the establishment of W. E. Ward, 23 East Van Buren Street, is a candidate on the Progressive ticket for member of the State Legislature.

The Anchor line property, with a frontage of about 175 feet on LaSalle Street and 320 on the river, has been sold to Reid, Murdock & Co. The same company recently bought from Virgil M. Brand, president of the Brand Brewing Company, the property at North Clark Street and the river. They are planning the erection of an enormous tobacco warehouse building, extending from LaSalle to Clark Street. The concern does a large business in cigars.

W. H. Munson, one of the three vice-presidents of M. Melachrin & Co. has returned from New York to resume his place in the headquarters here.

Adolph M. Seckbach, president of Francisco Bolano y Ca, recently made a trip to Cincinnati and Dayton, where he started several promising accounts. Mr. Seckbach pronounces business in Chicago to be first rate and improving all the time.

Simon Lichtenstein, for the widow of I. Litzar, who at the time of his death by accident was a leaf dealer in Chicago, has begun suit against the Travelers' Insurance Company, of Hartford, to recover on an accident policy for $7,500. Other companies in which he held similar policies paid promptly.

Muftizadi Bey, representative of the Pera Cigarette Company, of London and New York, has been in Chicago recently introducing his wares. He reports that his success with leading clubs and hotels has been excellent and that he will have a large trade with some of the leading dealers.

The clerical force of Geo. C. Knight's store has been increased by the employment of David Bushnell.

Personals and Notes of the Trade.

William Kruger, 349 East Forty-third Street, a cigarmaker, has been fined $25 and sent to the house of correction for sixty days for stealing tobacco valued at $35 from his employer, James Isaacson, 71 East Forty-third Street.

B. Spector, of Spector Brothers, has gone to Cuba to lay in a stock of tobacco.

William F. Monroe's cigar store, 124 West Monroe Street, is advertised to be opened not later than November 15th. The fixtures will be ready to be put in place by that time. A fine stock of first-class goods will be found in the company's storage vault and show cases.

In the rotunda of the completed McCormick Building, 332 South Michigan Avenue, has been opened the store of H. M. Schermerhorn—a most elegant establishment with a very high class of trade, especially from tenants of the building.

Among the representatives of the trade a most popular gentleman from London, England, Harry Lederer, representing Oppenheimer & Company, has been showing some very attractive lines of English-made pipes.

J. M. Shea, 420 South Dearborn Street, Girard Building, has established a first-class trade, showing at once the results of his good judgment in the selection of a location, by handling popular brands of goods and by able personal attention to the affairs of his establishment.

In the store of H. R. Swezy, 116 North LaSalle Street, hangs a sign, on which are these words: "Business is good." Even a very brief visit in Mr. Swezy's store will prove to the visitor the truth of the assertion. Especially is the establishment driven with business at the noon hour, when the employees of the City Hall go out for lunch. When asked "How can you sell cigarettes so cheap?" Mr. Swezy replied, "We need the money."

The store at the northeast corner of Washington and Dearborn Streets has been leased to H. M. Schermerhorn, who will open up a fine stock in the cigar and tobacco business on New Year's day. This particular corner affords plenty of opportunity for patronage of men seeking tobacco and cigars—for Dolan's is over on the southwest side and one of the "United" on the northwest.

The "San-I-La-Cient Humidor" is coming to the front with great rapidity and popularity in the cigar stores of Chicago. Already the machines are found in the establishments of C. A. Paulson, H. Schermerhorn, J. J. Dolan and Best & Russell. This new humidifier is advertised as a really wonderful cigar show case moistener and air circulator. So far all the Chicago dealers using the machine are united in praising it. The establishment of the manufacturer is at 310 Randolph Street, with a New York office at 80 Front Street.

A large interest in the Wayne Tobacco Company of Fort Wayne has been sold to Hamilton, Harris & Co., of Indianapolis. The concern is one of the largest jobbing houses in the State. Albert Bunch will remain in his place as president and general manager.

The Educator Cigar Company, with $2,500 capital, is one of the latest business concerns to be incorporated in Chicago. The incorporators are Rudolph Frankenstein, John J. Lupo and Thomas J. Lynch.

Great sorrow is manifested among representatives of the tobacco and allied trades by the announcement of the death of Sig. Stein, who made his headquarters in Chicago, traveling for Shields, Wertheim & Co., of Cleveland.

Mr. Jacobs of Gonzales cigar factory, Philadelphia, is among the welcomed visitors in Chicago.

Harry Curry, the Missouri representative of the Best & Russell Co., who makes his headquarters in Kansas City, was in town recently.

J. B. Bauer, the "Abbey" man of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company, is making a stay in Chicago to develop trade in his brand.

Among the new charters granted for doing business in Chicago is the Benson Pharmacy, capital $9,000; incorporators, John W. Ledle, Charles A. Oswald and Louis C. Stephan.

Fine New Stand for Danville, Ill.

One of the latest up-to-date stores to open started up with a rush on October 21, in Danville, Ill. It is operated by C. F. Randolph and Glenn Greenwood, who claim to have one of the best appointed places of its kind in Eastern Illinois. Free smokes and souvenirs were given away on the opening day and a trio of colored musicians kept the crowd in good humor.

A large electric sign adorns the front of the store and care has been taken to have the interior looking as well. The inside is finished in mahogany. Both Mr. Randolph and Mr. Greenwood are experienced cigar men and with their wide acquaintance should make good in this fine establishment.

T. J. Osborn, Veteran Wholesaler, Dies in Illinois

T. J. Osborn, a well-known tobacco jobber of Decatur, Ill., died, in that city, recently, after a short illness. Mr. Osborn had been in business in Decatur for virtually forty-three years and until a week before his death had been in active charge of his retail store and factory. He was 64 years of age.

Won't Stir Up Free Smoker Question

Commissioner Cabell Abandons Activity in Enforcing Obnoxious Ruling in Cigar Factories

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.

THE free smoker's question is to be allowed to rest so far as Royal Cabell, Commissioner of Internal Revenue is concerned. When, last spring, it was announced at the Bureau of Internal Revenue that cigar manufacturers were permitting their workmen to smoke on the premises, and take home cigars, upon which no revenue tax had been paid and that thereby the Government was losing a large amount of revenue which it is entitled to, a wide protest was made by the workmen's unions, backed by the manufacturers themselves. Commissioner Cabell gave the trade to understand that if the workmen are to be permitted to smoke and take home cigars the internal tax must be paid on them and that the loss should be on the manufacturer, as the law could not be interpreted in any other way.

Congress took the matter up and various bills were introduced. One of these which found special favor with Congress was to provide that the workmen could each have a stipulated number of cigars or cigarettes a day, on which the Government would not assess a tax. Commissioner Cabell opposed this bill, as it would be too unwieldy to apply and would open the door to fraud.

The matter was dropped and the subject remained just where it was. Today it was learned that the Bureau of Internal Revenue does not desire to precipitate another such dispute and is willing that the matter shall remain just as it is.

Swint-Davis Leaf Company Moves to Atlanta, Ga.

The Swint-Davis Leaf Tobacco Company, which has been doing business in Newnan, Ga., have moved their plant to Atlanta, that State. They are jobbers of leaf tobacco and have been organized for two years. They have made a specialty of Georgia and Florida tobacco leaf for wrapper purposes.

"Made in Minneapolis" Week Now On

On October 28, the city of Minneapolis started a campaign on "Made in Minneapolis" goods. Dealers in that town have made arrangements to do a big week's business, and cigar merchants are taking full advantage of the event. The Powers-Mercantile Company's cigar department has a cigar making display showing the entire process from the leaf to the finished product. The cigars are made by the J. W. Pauly Cigar Manufacturing Company.

Third Factory for Standard Cigar Company

The Standard Cigar Company, of Cleveland, which operates two factories in that city, has acquired another, the Knorr-Knorr Cigar Company's plant, 4017 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh. S. B. Goldsmit, of Goldsmit & Brother, the Pittsburgh dealers, is president of the Standard Cigar Company. George Knorr, who has been managing the recently acquired factory, remains in his old position.

"Frisco" Retailers' Association Growing

At the regular meeting of the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, held in that city on October 18th, eleven new members joined that body. After several matters of importance to the retail trade had been discussed, a committee reported that the dealers had the "26" game situation well under control.

Wills Brothers, of Madera, Cal., whose cigar stand was burned out recently, have opened a stand in the B. McCluskey Building, on D Street. When the new Lacy Robertson Building is completed, they will go back to their old location.

MANY CHANGES AMONG CIGAR FIRMS

Spitz & Worch Company Open Factory in Toledo; San Telmo Selects Buffalo---Detroit Cigar Manufacturing Company Closing Up

DETROIT, October 25. THIS month marks the passing of one of Detroit's oldest cigar manufacturing concerns, The Detroit Cigar Manufacturing Company. The productive force has lately been much diminished and about a week ago manufacturing operations ceased altogether, and all efforts bent toward collection of accounts and disposal of stock and equipment. Geo. McLean, principal owner and manager, will henceforth devote his time to the Harrison Painting and Auto Trimming Company, a newly founded local enterprise that looks, to him, much better than the cigar industry.

The Detroit Cigar Manufacturing Company operated Factory No. 2, First District of Michigan, which would seemingly vouch for its antiquity. The business was founded in 1872, by John McLean, who removed here that year from Bay City. He died in May, 1908. Since that time the business has been under the active management of his son George. The organization, originally known as The Green Seal Cigar Company, was incorporated in 1880 under the present style. Although at one time one of the best known factories in the West, it has, in recent years, fallen back to secondary importance. Scores of men who to-day are successful manufacturers, saw part of their early training and service while working at the bench in the Green Seal factory, as it was always familiarly known.

Two Detroit firms have, within the past fortnight, taken radical steps to secure new sources of labor by opening branch factories in other cities. The Spitz & Worch Co. chose Toledo as their field, while the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company selected Buffalo.

Both will encounter a like difficulty. There is no present available supply of competent cigarmakers in either community. The help will have to be trained and developed to the degree of skill and expertness essential to the quality of goods made by these two firms. But necessity knows no law nor do Mr. Rosenberger and his associates, nor the Messrs. Spitz & Worch recognize any insurmountable difficulties.

The San Telmo firm have temporary quarters at 982-986 Broadway, Buffalo, and opened actively October 21. Mr. Helms is on the ground at present. January 1 they expect to remove to permanent quarters which are now being prepared for them.

The Spitz & Worch Co. opened their branch factory on the 24th ult., at 1147-1157 Doerr Street, Toledo. The plant is under the supervision of Clarence Burns, and as fast as help can be developed it will be devoted to the making of the firm's phenomenal success "Hand Made."

Frederick C. Toms, who for some twenty-four years, off and on, has been connected with the Green Seal factory, will shortly make capital of his experience by starting a little factory of his own. With the advantage of his many years' foremanship in the McLean factory, Fred should have small trouble in developing a tiny little plant.

Jas. J. Bagley & Co. report a satisfactory trade outlook. They are at present engaged in a vigorous canvass of Boston trade with "Old Colony" mixture. Their New York resident sales agent, Mr. Linabury, is giving his personal attention to the Boston campaign.

"Zubelda," announced as a "Turkish (blend) Cigarette," is the latest to make its debut here. It is a rather gaudy, but not altogether unattractive looking package, and is accompanied (each package) by a miniature on metal. The cigarette will doubtless prove an active competitor to "Fatima" and like brands. The P. Lorillard Company accompanied its introduction by some big display in the daily press, which for dimension though had nothing on the little fairy tale employed by the ad writer to interest his readers and coax their dimes. It was the kind of an ad that makes a fellow say, "Well, I'll try anything once." After that it's up to the cigarette.

Art Klotz, 28 Michigan Avenue, started in business two years ago, October 2. He celebrated discreetly, and profitably, by doing an unusually good day's business.

Glen W. and Floyd W. Schooley, under the style Schooley Brothers, opened October 8 with cigars, tobaccos and confections at 218 Randolph Street, in front of Mittenhall's cafe. One of the brothers was, until recently, in charge of the cigar department of Battle Creek's famous Post Tavern. They will feature as their leading five-cent cigar, "San Sara," made by F. C. Emery, Battle Creek.

With the change in ownership of Hotel Cadillac, Harry Zeese recently, with the Claypool Hotel, Indianapolis, enters as manager. Mr. Zeese is a former Detroitier, having been at different times, proprietor of the Hotel Brunswick, and manager of the Oriental Hotel. He is a capable gentleman of splendid personality.

Harry Elsey, formerly clerking at the Pontchartrain cigar stand, is now in charge of the Harry Watson stand at the new Downey House, Lansing, one of the neatest stands in the state.

"Jack" Wideman, salesman in the Middle West for the Spitz & Worch Company, recently left that firm and has connected with the L. S. Kent Company, of South Bend, Ind.

Thos. E. Humphreys, who has been working faithfully here since March last, in the interest of the Monopol Company, is at present doing some effective labor in behalf of "Twin Oaks" and "Old English Curve Cut." An elaborate and rather costly cut-out, representing a typical tavern scene of the early nineteenth century, is employed as an effective accessory in promoting sales of Old English.

Quite a number of salesmen have been in the city whose names have been repeated with such frequency in these letters that it occurred to me it might be refreshing to your readers were the names, for once, omitted.

Two Cigar Manufacturing Firms Consolidate

Surety Cigar Company and Lilies Cigar Company Find it Beneficial to Join Forces—No Change in Firm Name

A RECENT Detroit change that is practically in effect already is the amalgamation of the Surety Cigar Company with the Lilies Cigar Company.

A community of interests has always existed in these two plants since the very beginning of the Surety Cigar Company. The urgent need of the Lilies Company for more space and labor to care for the ever-growing sales of their "La Azora" cigar was the determining factor in this latest move. The Lilies people have long been considering a branch factory in some nearby city.

Such a move presents many difficulties, however, the greatest of which is to secure competent labor. By taking over the Surety factory they have the immediate advantage of a considerable group of skilled operators for their product.

For convenience in conforming to government regulations, there will be no change in the present style of the Surety Company until the close of the year. Wm. Lichtig will continue as the active manager of the plant, and the present leading brands of the company will be maintained vigorously regardless of the change.

New Head For Christian Peper Tobacco Company

Frederick C. Peper succeeds Col. Nicholas C. Bell as head of the Christian Peper Tobacco Company since a meeting of the stockholders on October 18. Col. Bell had been president of the concern for a number of years, during which time there had been a number of suits between him and the Peper family. Frederick C. Peper, who succeeds Col. Bell, was the predecessor of Col. Bell and had been in ill health for some time. He is said to have entirely recovered his health.

The following directors and officers were chosen at the stockholders' meeting; Frederick C. Peper, president; Christian Peper, Jr., vice-president and treasurer; Charles G. Peper, of Louisville, Ky.; Isaac H. Orr, representing the St. Louis Union Trust Company as executors of the will of A. S. Peper, and Paul Brown.

Many Rumors Rife as to New British-American Cigar Stores Company

Said to be Backed by "United"---Denied That James B. Duke, Supposed to be Interested, is in it---Tobacco Products Company, Recently Organized, Elects Officers

INCORPORATION of a $3,000,000 company under the laws of New Jersey to be known as the British-American Cigar Stores Company, last week, caused discussion in the trade as to the significance of this action and aroused curiosity as to the men who are actually behind it.

Inquiries made by THE TOBACCO WORLD in New York and elsewhere have brought about very little authentic information. Rumors that will not down state that it is a counter-movement undertaken by the interests controlling the United Cigar Stores Company to establish a second chain of stores throughout the United States. As the "United" now have close to one thousand retail stores, it can be seen that if the new company is fostered by them, to be in competition with their chain, it will give these interests a tremendous hold upon the distribution of cigar and tobacco products throughout the country.

It is variously stated that James B. Duke, former president of the American Tobacco Company, and now the dominant force in the British-American Tobacco Company, with headquarters in England, is behind the incorporation. This is denied emphatically at the executive offices of the British-American Company in New York. The fact that Mr. Duke has returned to America, and is at present in direct touch with the tobacco trade, lends color to the statement that he is in some way connected with the enterprise.

It is also reported, without confirmation, that George J. Whelan, who helped to organize the "United," is interested in the new corporation. Little light is shed on the question by the Articles of Incorporation which were filed at Trenton, October 17th. The incorporators named are three Newark lawyers: Frank Stuckey, Richard H. Rankin and H. L. Thawless. The fact that Mr. Stuckey is connected with the Bamberger Department Store of Newark, and that Mr. Bamberger, of this store, is related to the firm of Bamberger, Loeb & Co., the well-known New York investment brokers, who first handled the distribution of the new stock of the United Cigar Stores Company, tends to confirm the connection of the new corporation with the "United."

It is also significant that Bamberger, Loeb & Co. are now selling shares in the newly organized Tobacco Products Corporation, the enterprise which was organized to develop the cigarette business.

Whether there is any definite connection between the British-American Cigar Stores Company and the Tobacco Products Corporation, cannot yet be established, but it is stated by those who have investigated the movement, that they would not be surprised to learn that the Tobacco Products Corporation have organized the British-American Cigar Stores Company to act as a distributing channel for their goods.

It is singular that none of the men connected with either of the enterprises, speak with any definite authority as to who will control the business and what will be the policy.

Tobacco Products Company Elects Officers.

Since the last issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD, the National Tobacco Products Company has assumed definite shape by the election of temporary officers, as follows:

Joseph C. Taylor, President, Richmond; Leonard B. McKitterick, Vice-President, New York; Reuben M. Ellis, Vice-President, New York; Joseph A. Bennett, Vice-President, New York; Harry B. Watt, Treasurer, New York; Gray Miller, Secretary, New York; Directors: Joseph A. Bennett, Thomas Cochran, Jr., J. Horace Harding (who will represent Henry C. Frick); Francis L. Hine, Seward Prosser, Daniel G. Reid, John D. Ryan, Robert Walker and J. Dupratt White, all of New York; J. Randolph Tucker and John B. Lightfoot, Jr., of Richmond.

The authorized capital is divided into $30,000,000 common stock and $20,000,000 preferred stock, and the company is incorporated to build up a large cigarette and tobacco concern. George J. Whelan, formerly President of the United Cigar Stores Company, will not be an officer nor a director, but will be employed by the new corporation to give it the benefit of his experience and advice.

It is now definitely announced that the Tobacco Products Corporation has acquired the Melachrino Company. This is confirmed by the election of McKittrick and Ellis as officers of the new corporation. It is reported that Miltiades Melachrino will become factory manager directing the details of the manufacturing end of the cigarette business.

The absorption of the Melachrino Company in addition to the Surbrug and the Khedival companies, gives the new combination a number of well established brands which will enable them to get into the market more easily than they could with unknown brands. It is stated that the Surbrug Company is about to reestablish their old brand "The Duke of York" cigarettes under a new style of packing.

A report from New York state that the Narib cigarette Company is likely to be taken over by the new corporation. The price asked by the Narib Company is $2,500,000. Harry Payne Whitney is one of the prominent directors of the Narib Company.

It is not unlikely that the new corporation will take over several other companies before it actually starts business.

Among the cigarette factories which are mentioned as likely to be absorbed, is one located in Philadelphia and another in New England.

It is expected that the policy of the new company will be to maintain the individual factories which they absorb, as separate enterprises, managed and directed by the same men which now control them, but assisted and supervised by the main-holding company.

Newsy Trade Jottings from Here, There and Everywhere

C. W. Miller, a cigar manufacturer of Houston, Wis., has opened his new store in the Toupin Building, that place. He will have his factory in the same building.

F. A. Metzger, a tobacconist of Sixth and Hampshire Streets, Quincy, Ill., has had the entire front of his store reconstructed, making it one of the most attractive in the town.

William Vial, a cigar dealer at the Catawissa trolley station, near Bloomsburg, Pa., has sold it to Boyd Girton, of Bloomsburg.

The Gans Company has been reincorporated in New York, with a capital of $10,000. The men who compose the concern are Moses J. Gans, Joseph Joffe, and John J. Hogan.

C. A. Merritt, a cigar dealer of Danbury, Conn., has sold his store at 285 Main Street, that city, to Adolph Otto, who moved to the location from his former store, 291 Main Street.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau
Neptuno 24
Alicé
Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, October 26.

DURING the past fortnight business in our market has not kept up to its former mark of the previous one, but this could hardly be expected, as otherwise our stocks would be too soon exhausted. We are now drawing upon our surplus, as the receipts in future cannot be relied upon to give us further supplies of account. However, as long as the sales average 10,000 bales a week, we consider business as very good. There is no change in prices, as holders of good vegas still hold a big drawing card, and buyers are compelled to submit to their pretensions, or do without tobacco.

The year 1912 promises to go down into history as one of the most remarkable ones in the tobacco trade, as it has been full of contradictions from the time the first seedlings were put into the ground last fall, until the present time. The first part of the crop was lost through the heavy, unseasonable rainstorms from November 20th to 22nd, and everybody had the blues, thinking that the next crop would be exceedingly small not alone, but perhaps also unfit for clear Havana cigar manufacturers, as it would be a tardid growth. Now commenced the unexpected part, as instead of our usual dry season in winter, we were favored with sufficient rainfalls to create a splendid, rapid development of the plants, enabling the vegueros to make several cuts, when they had barely hoped to obtain one. The repeated frequent showers, during the ripening of the leaves, were the cause however that the wrapper leaves were all more or less spotted, and this has been the only serious drawback in the 1912 crop. As human nature is very apt to go from one extreme into the other, our early informants of the crop saw everything rose colored, and sent us reports that the 1912 crop would be the very largest that had ever grown in the island of Cuba. Under these circumstances everybody expected to see prices as low as never before, although the opening figures for the German market were fair ones, in view of the expected tremendous crop of Remedios. The unexpected happened again in this instance, as the Germans liked the crop, and under a heavy competition here prices went steadily up, instead of declining. At the same time reports arrived making the crop very much smaller than it has turned out to be so far. To a more or less degree Vuelta Abajo, Semi Vuelta and Partido only repeat the above illustration of facts, but with the difference that this time the buyers of the trust created the favorable impression of our crop, raised the prices, and that since then the American manufacturers followed suit, making our market not alone exceedingly active, but helping to bring the prices to a higher level still. In quantity the whole crop of the island of Cuba is above an average one, but it will never reach the exaggerated first figures published, while on the other hand it exceeds by a good deal the later extreme low estimates. Vuelta Abajo alone is below the average. As the proof of the pudding is in the eating of it, so the fine quality of the 1912 crop has been acknowledged by the verdict of the smokers, which have tasted the same, even being willing to overlook the ugly, spotted appearance of the wrappers.

The prospect is now, that every sprig of the 1912 crop will be sold before we can hope to see the first foremen of the 1913 growth. Some people pretend to say that if we would have had 50 per cent. more of stocks, they would have been sold also, or, in other words, that the demand has been strongly exceeded for the supply. Vuelta Abajo, particularly has been strongly inquired for, notwithstanding the very high prices. Even Mayari seems to be in good demand now by Germany, although the lower prices may perhaps influence its salability. There is a very great scarcity of second capaduras, and the supply of first capaduras may perhaps be too small for the coming demand this winter.

Sales during the fortnight aggregated 21,953 bales, or which divided consisted of: Vuelta Abajo, 7,544; Partido, 3,311; Remedios, 9,598, and Mayari, 1,500 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 10,915; exporters to Europe, 7,619; shippers to South America, 476, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 2,943 bales.

Cigars.

The showing of the exports of cigars, from the port of Havana, during the past thirty days, as per official custom house returns, is as follows, viz.:

|---|-------------------|
| From September 16 to October 15, 1912 | 19,777,356 cigars |
| From September 16 to October 15, 1911 | 14,659,593 |
| Increase in 1912 | 5,117,763 |
| From January 1 to October 15, 1912 | 135,995,814 |
| From January 1 to October 15, 1911 | 142,532,017 |
| Decrease in the first 9 1/2 months of 1912 | 6,626,203 |

Apparently the above statement ought to be pleasant reading to our manufacturers, but in reality it is not so, as with the exception of perhaps, at most, half a dozen factories of our largest ones, which might make some money eventually, the remainder are hand-capped, not alone by the higher prices of the raw material, fillers and wrappers, but also that the increase in the exports has mostly gone to the larger factories, while the smaller ones did not get their corresponding share. Unless our government should take the bull by the horns and make some reciprocity treaties with those nations that have raised their duties, or levy onerous protective ones, the outlook continues gloomy for the little ones. Whether the new tobacco law, that has gone into effect, will help us in increasing our exports remains yet to be seen. The cost of the guarantee stamp is small enough, 1/5 of a cent for each—therefore the additional cash outlay in fortieth boxes is only 8 cents per 1,000 cigars, and for a cabinet of 10,000 cigars for England only one stamp is needed—but the coming vexations by the government officials in trying to look for technical errors in the affixing of the stamps, clerical errors in the bookkeeping part, etc., in order to impose fines, and for imprisonment besides, is what is worrying our manufacturers most.

There is no particular news to be gleaned by visiting our factories, such as H. Upmann, Partagas, Romeo y Julieta, Castañeda, Sol, Flor de P. A. Estanillo, Eden and the Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Limited, as all are very busy just now in the execution of pending holiday orders, and confess that they have no time to hold any long conversations, or have any particular news to give to the readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD, merely stating that they are all working with full forces and that orders are plentiful.

In order to hammer the iron while it is hot, and in order not to lose time next week on account of our elections on the fifth of November, nearly all factories will work on Sunday, the 27th, and some may continue to do so during the following Sundays, until the holiday orders are out of the way. The demand from England and the United States is very strong, while Germany is still rather backward. France is beginning to order more, and above all Canada seems to be making rapid strides forward to capture the third place of importance in the export lists. The South American republics and Australia are ordering more lively again.

Buying and Selling as Well as Other Notes of Interest.

Sylvester & Stern purchased and received upon previous contracts during the past fortnight 2,150 bales of all kinds of leaf.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales had a banner two weeks again, as their sales figured up to 5,651 bales of all kinds, but which included 2,430 bales, shipped to the Spanish Regie on the 20th inst., per S. S. Alfonso XIII. They have reserved some stocks for their special customers that were unable to get here early this year.

Don Adolfo Moeller continued to be at the head of the shippers to Germany with 2,143 bales of leaf during the past fortnight.

José F. Rocha was a seller of 1,300 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios to his numerous clientele.

Silveira & Co. are the next important shippers to Germany from the port of Havana, as they forwarded 1,733 bales of Remedios during the past two weeks.

Herrera, Calmet & Co. disposed of 851 bales of Remedios from their packings, as well as of vegas purchased by them in the country.

Colonel Alvaro Garcia, of Garcia & Vega, of New York and Tampa, made good use of his time while here, as he collected some of the best vegas from the Vuelta Abajo, his total purchases running up to 1,575 bales.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons figured as sellers to the extent of 715 bales of Remedios and Manicargueta.

All Lines Moving Well in Cleveland Stace & Vincent Open Their Second Retail Store—Sig. S. Stein, Chicago Representative of Shields-Wertheim Company Dies in That City; Funeral in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, O., October 26.

THE main topic of conversation for the past week has been the opening of the Hotel Statler. It is one of the finest hotel buildings in this country, and this Sixth City sure has reasons to be proud of it. The hotel is located right in the heart of the shopping district and has every indication of being one of the most successful hostleries in this country. It is right up to the minute in its style, even to the smallest detail.

The hotel opened up on Friday evening, the 18th ult., with a Charity Ball for the benefit of the Babies' Dispensary and Hospital. A great percentage of the proceeds of the ball were donated to this worthy cause. The following evening was the real opening to the general public. This took place in the form of a dinner in which the dining rooms of the establishment were filled to overflowing. In fact ever since that evening one has a hard time to get into the dining rooms. At the present time the hotel has 800 guests and only open a week.

Mr. Seidenberg, the owner of the cigar stand, has placed Harry Parker (formerly of the Ellicott Square Store in Buffalo) in charge. Under Mr. Parker are seven employees. Business opened up with a flourish and has kept up all week. Mr. Parker says that the highest-priced goods have been moving the best. In fact the guests have not stopped to consider prices. Even their highest-priced novelties have gone very fast. The main sellers have been the "Jockey Club," made especially for the hotel, the Benson-Hedges cigarettes and "The Hotel Statler Special."

On account of the Knights Templar's Convention the week previous the retailers did quite a nice business. They all say, "Come again fellows."

Fred Singer, the genial, good-natured salesman of Rossin & Sons Co., spent a few days with the trade.

Julius Vetterlein, of the eagle eye, and who, we feared, had said good bye to Havana, as of late his sons came to do the buying for the sterling firm of Julius Vetterlein & Co., arrived here. Caesar did some 2,000 years ago in Gallia, and he might have called to his sons the same words, "Veni, vidi, vici." From a reliable source we learned that he only remained here three days, but in this time he purchased some 1,100 bales of prime leaf.

Suarez Hermanos closed several transactions of their extra choice Vuelta Abajo escojidas and vegas, amounting to 642 bales.

August Kuttner, the always jovial and youthful looking Andalusian (as his friends call him) spent quite some time here in the interest of his house, Rothschild Sons & Co., in order to make the most careful selection of vegas de fabrica, as well as other classes of leaf. He must have succeeded, as when he left here he had some 1,200 bales to his credit, so his customers may be sure that they will find only the cream of this year's crop.

José C. Puente sold 600 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios during the past fortnight.

August Sensenbrenner, owner of the Cabrillo cigar factory, of San Diego, Cal., arrived here with his son about ten days ago, in order to find out personally about the state of our market. Having an introduction to Mr. Leslie Pantin, he had one of the best guides, as well as judges of leaf tobacco in our market, and therefore it is almost needless to say that he got through quickly and obtained the choicest kinds of Vuelta Abajo vegas that he was in quest of. The Cabrillo factory is the most important one in lower California, and surely bound to expand still more with the 1912 Vuelta Abajo cigars. He purchased in all 650 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Don Miguel Gutierrez y Gutierrez must be in New York by this time, as he sailed from Cherbourg, with his family, on the 19th inst. by the S. S. La France.

Besides the Cuban, Spanish and a few American farmers, that own tobacco lands in the famous Vuelta Abajo region, we have heard the other day of one Englishman, Mr. William King Webster, who owns a plantation called "La Vigia," in Arroyos de Mantua, where an extra choice, heavy bodied quality of tobacco is grown, that is used in preference for mixing purposes in the United States. The administrator is Mr. William Dowell, and this year Mr. José Muñoz, of the firm of Muñoz Hermanos, was the lucky purchaser, although he was compelled to pay a stiff price for this packing of tobacco.

Other sellers were: Gutierrez & Diehl, 400; Cardenas & Co., 325; H. H. Strater, 300; José Menéndez, 256, and Muñoz Hermanos, 200 bales.

Other buyers were: Max Schwarz, 878; Frank Dominguez, 641 additional; H. Upmann & Co., 738, and J. F. Bernides & Co., 551 bales.

We omitted to mention that Mr. Sam Mendlesohn, of the important firm of Meyer & Mendlesohn, had purchased the respectable quantity of some 1,000 bales of all kinds of leaf, and from the very best districts, so the customers of this house in the United States can rely upon finding the best classes from this year's crop.

Shippers of tobacco from the port of Havana during the last two weeks were above 300 bales: Sobrinos de A. Gonzales, 2,539; Adolfo Moeller, 2,143; Silveira & Co., 1,733; Leslie Pantin, 1,663; José H. Cayro é Hijo, 1,245; Manuel Suarez, 998; J. Bernheim & Sons, 875; H. Upmann & Co., 777; Sylvester & Stern, 681; J. F. Bernides & Co., 551; Ernst Ellinger & Co., 507; M. Ahella & Co., 496; C. E. Beek & Co., 428, and José Menéndez, 306 bales.

ORETANIV.

J. W. Jenkinson, of Pittsburgh, was in town the past week looking over his retail interests.

N. Gleichman reports business only fair. He is selling a few pipes, but says there is nothing startling doing.

Calling on local people the past week was Mr. Heine, of Vadera & Co., also Mr. Hanover, of Kauffman Brothers & Bondy Co., New York City.

Mr. Brown, formerly of the Snyder cigar store at Niagara Falls, N. Y., has come to the Snyder store at 742 Euclid Avenue, this city.

John W. Merriam, owner of the "Baron De Kalb," was with us the past week.

The Pyle & Allen Co., reports: "The fall business up to date has shown a fine increase over last year, both in wholesale and retail. The 'New Batchelor,' our leader, is a five-cent cigar we are short on for the last three months, and find it impossible to catch up with our orders. With present conditions existing we predict a fine holiday business."

Clarence Saunders, after spending a week in New York and Boston, at the world's series, being an ardent admirer of the Boston Americans, dropped into Cleveland to visit with Mr. James B. Shields, the president of the Shields-Wertheim Company, a few days on his way West. Clarence is quite an American League booster and felt the Bostonians should have won four straight.

Sig S. Stein, northwestern representative of the Shields-Wertheim Company, died Wednesday afternoon in Chicago. His body was brought to Cleveland for burial Saturday the 26th ult., at 1 P. M. His death is felt by his host of friends not only in Cleveland, but throughout the country.

Stace & Vincent, formerly travelling salesmen for the R. W. Jenkinson Company, opened one store on Ontario Street near the Public Square, three or four weeks ago, and will open another store at Fifty-seventh and Euclid Avenue, Tuesday, the 29th ult. It will be souvenir day and every customer that calls will receive a handsome and useful article. These men have been very popular with the retail trade, and their hosts of friends wish them much success.

Shortage on Stogies in Los Angeles

Demands For Smokes Have Jobbers Guessing—E. C. Molen Opens Attractive Cigar Shop—Greenwald Cigar Company to Handle "Rotten" Brand

LOS ANGELES, October 23
BUSINESS continues to be good in Los Angeles. The retail trade has been unusually brisk during the past week. The jobbers report good business in the city as well as the country, and most of the jobbers are working the shipping departments nights to fill their orders. The jobbers have had a shortage in stogies for the past 30 days and in fact, there is not a stogie in town.

Marc A. Brunner, representing E. Regensburg & Sons, called on the Klingenstein Company, and was very much pleased with the way the "American" is selling. The Klingenstein Company are making window displays on "Admiration" cigars and report this brand gives elegant satisfaction.

Eisenlohr's "Cinco" is showing increased sales every day. Milo Adams, representing the Surbrug Company, is calling on his distributors, the Klingenstein Company, and doing missionary work with the company's salesman. He is working hard on "Milo," "Arcadia," "Golden Sceptre Floss Cut" and "Ziz-Zag" paper.

C. W. McCormick, representing Pendas & Alvarez Co., is expected here daily.

Sales of "Y B" and "Spana-Cuba," manufactured by Yocum Brothers, are increasing, from all reports.

Morris Burke, the well known cigar broker, has sold to-day half a million stogies for the Wabash Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa. The products of this well known reliable factory are satisfactory to the trade and are in great demand.

Benny Straus, vice-president of the Rey-Straus Company, will meet Mr. Rinaldo, their salesman, in Los Angeles, and will make a campaign on the "Mi Rey" cigar for the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company. Mr. Straus made a special trip for this purpose.

The A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company is expecting the "Rotten" cigar anytime, manufactured by D. M. Frank & Co. In advance of its arrival they have sold over 100,000 of these cigars.

John L. Friedman, salesman for the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company, has just started out on a sixty-day trip over his territory.

R. J. Gregg has just started on a trip with Park & Tilford's candies, for the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company.

Dave Frolichstein, manager of the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company, will leave about the first of November for a trip to San Diego.

Tilton & Crail are proprietors of the Colorado Barber Shop. Do you know them? You don't know Mr. E. M. Crail, the man with the ten thousand dollar smile? Shame on you! Well, listen. Go around and get acquainted. It's worth the price to see Mr. Crail smile, and if Mr. Crail cannot hold your trade with his smile, then go to Tilton and hear of some of the wonderful trips which everyone that has visited Southern California knows as Tilton's Trolley Trips. Tilton and Crail have one of the best up-to-date barber shops and cigar stands in the city. They carry every cigar ever heard of and then some more, and while their clear Havana leaders are the "El Palencia" and "Juan de Fuca," you can get any brand you call for.

Meet Scott Turner, that very astute young man (52 this month). Would you believe it, he presented me with a box of Turner's "Cherokee Creams." But what gets me is the fact that this young man (don't let me forget the 52 years this month) had, less than two years ago, broken into the cigar game as a novice, and has in that time placed three brands of cigars successfully on the market, namely, the "Gonzales Sanchez," "El Arabe" and last but not least, "El Palencia." Turner has a chain of hotel stands consisting of some thirty hotels, and also manufactures his own candy. Turner's "Cherokee Creams" are the best I ever ate. If you don't believe me try them and be convinced.

Ed. C. Molen, the hustling auto man, has opened a most attractive cigar store and barber shop at 614 South Hill Street. That Mr. Molen will do a large business goes without saying, as he is a man with a most pleasing personality, and has a host of friends. Mr. Molen carries a very large assortment of all the popular brands of cigars and cigarettes, as well as an elaborate assortment of pipes. Mr. Molen is showing over twenty sizes of the "El Palencia" (clear Havana, made by Boltz-Clymer & Co., Tampa, Fla.) and says his business has increased over 50 per cent. since making this brand his leader. He is also getting quite a trade on "Regencia," selling over one hundred of this brand per day.

Miss Minnie Creighthead, the very charming young lady that has the cigar stand in the Los Angeles Trust Building, reports that business is all that she could desire. While carrying all the popular brands of cigars, Miss Creighthead makes "El Palencia" her leader, and carries the brand in about twenty-five shapes and sizes, and says she could sell more if she had them. Miss Creighthead also carries several brands of imported cigars.

S. G. Bennet, the popular cigar dealer in the Orpheum Theatre Building, says that if he had about ten more feet of space he could do about 50 per cent. more business per day. Mr. Bennet reports that his business is good, and that the "El Palencia" is going big.

Geo. C. Hardin (or as Scott Turner would say, "the gentleman with the disappearing shape,") says his new Porto Rico "La Saradonia," is one of his big sellers, and is running head and head with the "El Palencia" and "La Bara," his two best sellers. George says that by December 1 he expects to see the "La Saradonia" around the "200 a day" seller. Hardin's five-cent "Special" cigar is taking hold so strong that he is buying in ten thousand lots now. "Slim," as everyone calls

Two Big Factors in Pittsburgh Trade

Seventh Avenue Hotel Stands Under Able Management Have Good Patronage

THE Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stands in Pittsburgh are becoming big factors in the retail trade of that city. They have one stand in the lobby of the hotel and another at 902 Liberty Street, and carry as representative a line of goods as any smoker could wish. A. J. Fleischauer, the manager, takes pride in the variety of the stock and stated that they were able to satisfy the most exacting customers any store ever catered to.

"Webster" Display in Stand at 902 Liberty St. Mr. Fleischauer is shown standing in the doorway of the stand.

In clear Havana goods these stores now carry Webster (Y Pendez & Alvarez), "Cortez," "Cuesta Rey," "Principe de Gales," "Tadima," "Gato" and "Duquesne Bouquet." In the standard imported brands their counters show "Romeo y Julieta," the "Bock" brands and those of "Garcia." The best selling domestic brands are "Baron de Kalb," "Girard," "Roi Tan" and "Adlon." And in nickel goods "Cinco," "Tom Keene," "Owl," "Cremo," "Little Bobbie," "San Felice" and "New Bachelor." They have not overlooked the popular Pittsburgh smoke, the stogie, of which they carry a number, in addition to a complete line of tobacco and cigarettes.

Adler & Cohn, the San Francisco retailers, with a store on Powell Street near Eddy, have had the entire interior of their place remodelled and now claim to have one of the best establishments of its kind to be found in the west. They specialize on pipes and have splendid facilities for displaying them, using the south wall of their store for cases.

Mr. Hardin, has a host of friends, especially among the traveling men, and they know that when he recommends a cigar it is likely to be the best that money can buy; hence his large business.

Morris Burke has just returned from Imperial Valley and wears a smile that won't come off. He gives as a reason for this that business was unusually good on this trip. He claims that "Post Dispatch," "Havana Sticks" and "Virginia Harned" can be found in the entire Imperial Valley territory now. The above brands are manufactured by Eitel-Cassebohm Company, of Louisville, Kentucky. Further proof of the success of these cigars can be readily seen when one is told that all shipments on the road at the present time are sold out. Local distributors of the above named brands are Klauber-Wagenheim & Co.

Chas. Smith, representing H. Manley & Company, of San Francisco, Cal., who is working in the interest of the well known old reliable "Chancellor" cigar, informs the correspondent that the sales on "Chancellor" this year will reach considerably more than the two million mark. Klauber-Wagenheim Company have been distributors for the above brand in Los Angeles and San Diego for the past 15 years, and have brought good results.

Sid Newman, with the Klingenstein Company, is doing some very effective work with the "Admiration" cigar.

This was the first large commercial crop of Hawaiian tobacco, and amounts to about $40,000, including 18,000 pounds belonging to another company. The company had about 100 acres under cultivation this year, and expected to double the acreage for next year.

Another Stand For H. M. Schermerhorn

Both Wholesale and Retail Trade Good—McGreenery & Manning Introduce "Beacon" Cigar

BOSTON, October 23.
THE cigar and tobacco business, wholesale and retail, take it all around, is good. The ball games took a great many men from their business, and the retailers profited by the immense throngs coming and going, buying cigars, tobacco and cigarettes.

The cigar dealers in the hotel and theatre districts sold a great many cigars by the box. The New York contingent had to buy a lot to pay off their bets on the ball games.

Estabrook & Eaton, 53 Boylston Street, have a fine display of Havana and domestic cigars. Their window display is as fine as any in the city. "Benefactor," "Orland," "Back Bay," "Nassau," "Palma De Cuba" and a great assortment of cigarettes, built up in pyramid form, look very attractive.

Ed. Solomon with Biering Brothers Company, 12 Dock Square, reports business as coming up brisk. His box trade is large, being acquainted with a good many sea-faring men. They stock up here for their voyages, as they carry a very large and varied assortment of goods.

Hanover Tobacco Company, wholesale and retail tobacconists, report business as good, and growing better every week.

The Quito Cigar Company, 326 Hanover Street, are making two very popular five and ten cent cigars, "Quito," five cents, and "Boston Dearo" ten cents. They have a large box trade, selling to hotels, club rooms and lunch places. Havana filler and Sumatra leaf are the only kinds of tobacco used.

At McGreenery & Manning's Fulton Street store a new cigar, named the "Beacon," ten cents, has been introduced. The sales in leaf and plug tobacco are good and general business brisk.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

All Lines of Lancaster Trade in Flourishing Condition

LANCASTER, October 22.
THE tobacco industry in this city and vicinity is in a truly flourishing condition. As far as THE TOBACCO WORLD correspondent could ascertain every factory is working, and many of them overtime. This optimism, which is contagious, is being shared by the leaf men and retailers, as well as by the manufacturers themselves. The cry now going the rounds is for more hands, a scarcity such as the present one not being experienced for some time.

The Steinfeldt cigar store is showing this week a fetching display on the "Bold" cigar. This was taken on by Mr. Steinfeldt simply to retail at first, but a representative of the Bobrow factory will soon cover this city to work with Steinfeldts to boom the brand in a jobbing way also. "The cigar has taken a good hold with my patrons," said the proprietor, "and it warrants me in pushing it hard."

J. W. Breneman, the leaf man and manufacturer of the "Our Principal" cigar, reports business good in both lines. Mr. Breneman is now spending most of his time at his Millersville factory, adjoining which he is having a splendid residence built. He expects to move his family there from Lancaster within a short time.

The Simon Shissler store is as busy as ever. Mr. Shissler reports his manufacturing endeavors to be receiving an encouraging reception. He is displaying smokers' novelties in his window this week which are selling well, particularly some pipes, the bowls of some of them being fashioned in the shape of a skull with long rubber stems, insuring a cool smoke. Mr. Shissler is an enthusiastic Woodrow Wilson supporter and predicts a clean sweep for the Princeton statesman.

Speaking for the wholesale trade, Jacob O. Shirk stated that there is no reason whatever for complaint. He expects to do a record breaking holiday business on his brands this fall.

L. E. Ryder is back on the job again, saying little, but "sawing wood." He traveled as far as San Francisco on his recent trip and secured so many orders as to embarrass him in filling the orders on time. "The Manila cigar is making big inroads on the domestic brands on the coast," stated Mr. Ryder, "and in places where it would not have been touched before."

The hum and bustle around the Sherts headquarters portends a nice trade for this concern. Mr. Sherts is rushing matters in the coal regions this week, where their brands are enjoying promising favor.

There has been quite a little flurry in leaf orders this week. John F. Heiland, of the local leaf house, stated that several recent sales on 1911 Pennsylvania would seem to indicate the much desired and predicted run on the above tobacco.

Usner & Son, of Rothville, are beginning to push their "King" cigar through Pennsylvania harder than ever. Joseph Usner has charge of the factory and takes great pride in the quality of this piece of goods, which he says is doing very well.

Among the representatives of large houses calling on the local trade we note Mark Abel, William Denuth & Co.; A. W. Penner, A. Cohn & Co.; Henry Springarn, of E. Springarn & Co.; Philip Pretzfeld, Pretzfeld & Co., and H. E. Stevenson, E. Rosenwald & Bro.

The members of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association met on Tuesday, October 15, with President J. A. Herr presiding. After a number of reports were heard from men growing leaf in different parts of the county, the majority of which were favorable, the discussion turned to the prices which planters were receiving. A. B. Landis, of Kohrestown, stated that many farmers who were taking nine and three cents would profit more by holding it until it is shipped. This was considered to be very good advice and many said they were doing just that. Much comment was given on both sides of the question when one member claimed that the planters should have displayed more leaf at the fair. There was virtually none shown.

York Manufacturers Driven Hard by Orders

YORK, October 23.
WITH the approach of fall and the holiday season local cigar manufacturers are all on the jump and turning out their goods as fast as conditions will permit. A number of them are unable to promise deliveries as promptly as desired, but they are reducing this difficulty to a minimum as far as possible and trying to suit everyone. The leaf business is also better than it had been and when the present supply of leaf is out of the hands of the manufacturer, which time will come before long if present conditions are any indication, leaf dealers are looking for a run on their tobacco.

H. F. Kohler has been the recipient of congratulations on the attractive display of his cigars at the recent fair. That this method of popularizing one's products is a good one has been proven by a number of inquiries Mr. Kohler received recently, the writers commenting upon the display. As is well known Mr. Kohler formerly had his factories at Nashville and Jacobus. Considerable delay has been occasioned customers by their addressing mail to the old Nashville factory. A circular was sent to the trade at the time calling attention to the change and stating that the business had been consolidated at the York address, 18 North Penn Street, where all mail, to receive prompt consideration, should be sent. Mr. Kohler is an optimist at the prospects for a heavy fall trade. "The Judge Shepard" has had an unusually big run recently among the Chicago customers, where it is well known.

The "El Dilo" is making a hit among discriminating cigar smokers according to Mr. Taylor, of the Merchants' Cigar Company. The junior size of this ten cent brand which retails at a nickel, the "Little El Dilo," is also doing very well.

C. H. Plitt, the local manufacturer, is putting a new cigar on the market which will be exploited under the title "Plitt's Dainties." This is a small nickel cigar and, speaking in the vernacular, is a "nifty little smoke." Charles S. Plitt, who is now doing the traveling for the factory, is on a tour of the coal regions covering Wilkes-Barre, Easton, Mahanoy City and smaller towns en route. He is doing missionary work on the new brand, "Plitt's Dainties," in addition to pushing the "Liar" and the "20th Century."

W. U. Blessing & Co., report a run on the "Peale" cigar. This is a strictly quality smoke and their efforts to impress it upon the public are becoming to be felt in the incoming mails.

The Luxier Cigar Company are doing very well on their "Old Chatsworth" brand, which is repeating wherever placed. They aim to make a cigar which will be uniform in quality and always be at a high standard of quality.

A visit to the George Parr factory in Littlestown found Mr. Parr busy and well pleased with present conditions. Mr. Parr's factory is as clean and sanitary a one as can be found in the Ninth District, and smokers of "Fernside" and "Lord Wharton," his leading nickel cigars, are insured a clean product.

A call at the Red Lion factories found them all busy. T. L. Adair is putting a cigar on the market which is doing well. It is packed twelve to a box and is gotten up to catch the holiday trade. The brand is termed the "Grace" and is attractively packed. The Monarch Cigar Company was also busy on holiday orders.

G. A. Kohler, proprietor of the Kohler & Co. Cigar Company, of Yoe, has returned home after a short trip through the Southern states. He went as far as Texas.

Eugene Gallagher, head of Eugene Gallagher & Bro., of Dallastown and Columbus, Ohio, died in the latter city last Friday. He had been ill for some time. The Dallastown factories, which will be closed until the day of the funeral, were in charge of a nephew of Mr. Gallagher and E. S. Sechrist, a well known cigar man of that town. They have been doing a heavy business on stogies, and only moved into their second factory in Dallastown about a month ago.

Several Failures Noted Around Reading

READING, October 22.
IT certainly is tough luck for the local cigar manufacturers after waiting all summer for the present rush to be unable to get all the cigar makers they wish. There is no factory of size in town which could not use more of these hands. They are all hustling and turning out the goods as fast as possible and sending part shipments on orders. The retail, wholesale and leaf trades are brisk with every indication of a fine fall business. One matter, which looks bad for this section, is the number of failures reported within the past two weeks. The dull summer may account for some of them, but four failures is too many in proportion to the number of factories.

According to J. U. Fehr, the leaf trade is more than holding its own. This old and well-known house have sold the 1911 Pennsylvania, in great shape. They account for it by the unusually good leaf they were able to offer to their customers. They have sold a large quantity of 1910 Pennsylvania also. This tobacco has not sold as well as that of other years, but it is finally getting on the market and selling better than it has been. Mr. Fehr also does a heavy trade on Ohio leaf.

John J. Eshleman, the Mohnton manufacturer, reported in the last issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD to have failed, is settling his affairs. Mr. Eshleman has been operating a knitting mill in Mohnton in addition to his cigar factory.

W. L. Uhler, who is well known in Lebanon and vicinity as a heavy dealer in leaf tobacco, has failed. The liabilities are placed at $25,000. It has not been estimated what the assets are.

C. C. Rowland, formerly working this city on the "Goosebone" cigar, who has not been in his factory at Shielder and Division Street very long, has had some trouble with his cigar makers all of whom belonged to the local union. Mr. Rowland says he will fill the places with non-union hands.

One of the latest tobacco men reported to be in financial difficulties is Louis Adler, who was adjudged a voluntary bankrupt in the Philadelphia courts. The liabilities are placed at $8728.06, with assets of $4848.09. The principal creditors named are J. G. Hansen, the local manufacturer, H. Duys & Co., the New York leaf house, the Barry-Corry Company, of Quincy, Fla., and Walter Steppacher.

John J. Moeckel, proprietor of the Lebanon Cigar Manufacturing Company, has had an addition built to his factory, to facilitate the making of his goods. Mr. Moeckel takes great pride in the "El Greeno," his leading cigar and says there is nothing on the market to-day which can compare with it in quality of the leaf used and the attractive green and gold packing. He attends personally to the selection of his tobaccos and so is able to insure the uniformity of his product. Mr. Moeckel reports a record-breaking fall business and is hard put to push out the "El Greeno" on time.

P. J. Steffy, the Sinking Springs cigar manufacturer, has failed and is settling up his affairs on a basis of forty cents on the dollar.

Clever Swindlers Working the Middle West

Crooks Claiming to Represent George L. Storm Company, of New York Selling a Cigar Under the Name of "Charles Russell"—United Cigar Manufacturers Company Replies to Inquiry

DEALERS in Ohio and the Middle West have recently been approached by representatives of a clever bunch of swindlers with a new cigar proposition, having to do with a brand which they called "Charles Russell." As will be seen, by the correspondence given below, they represent this brand to be one marketed by the George L. Storm Co., of New York, and manufactured by the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company.

They offered to deliver one thousand of these cigars to retailers at $70, less 10 percent, with five hundred cigars free, and to send out tickets by mail, good for one cigar each, which they are to redeem at 10 cents each.

It is needless to add that the cigars can not compare in quality with the brand they claim to equal, and no tickets have yet been coming in for redemption.

The concern fathering this scheme, goes under the name of Association Advertising Company, and they gave their address as 34th Street and Broadway, New York, but inquiry there shows that the mail sent to that address had been returned to the post office. This probably is another scheme on the part of a band of swindlers, who have used at various times, the names of such firms as Park & Tilford and others in the furtherance of crooked schemes.

Harry A. Crandall, of Elyria, Ohio, first called George L. Storm & Co.'s attention to this game in the letter herewith.

ELYRIA, Ohio, October 7, 1912.

The Geo. L. Storm Co.,
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

I wish to ask if you know anything about a company under the name of the Associated Advertising Co., who are working a proposition to advertise a cigar called the Chas. Russell.

They came to me with a proposition to deliver 1000 of these cigars @ $70.00 less 10% with 500 free and send out tickets by mail good for one cigar which they are to redeem at 10c. each.

They stated plainly that you were back of this proposition and that the Chas. Russell was your cigar.

The cigars have been delivered to us and we have paid for them, but upon opening them we do not find your name on the packages.

The cigars do not appear to be of good quality and do not compare with the other brands of yours. As yet there have been no tickets turned in and we have reason to believe that the transaction is not on the square. These parties mentioned your Robt. Burns and Little Bobbie cigars and said the Chas. Russell was the same stock and quality.

The Associated Advertising Co. give as their address 34th St. and Broadway, telephone 3606-7 Greeley, and the name signed to the order is Gilroy, while the one receiving invoice is R. M. Hart.

If this is a fake proposition we will be glad to have your assistance in running these people down.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) HARRY A. CRANDALL.

George L. Storm Company referred this letter to the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, who replied as follows:

Oct. 16th, 1912.

HBL/EEL

Mr. Harry A. Grandall,
Elyria, Ohio.

Dear Sir:

Your favor of Oct. 7th addressed to Geo. L. Storm & Co., has been referred to us, inasmuch as we are the manufacturers of Robt. Burns, Little Bobbie, and various other brands sold by Geo. L. Storm & Co. We note with interest what you say regarding the proposition made you by parties promoting the Chas. Russell Cigar. We have never heard of the Associated Advertising Company, neither do we know anything about the Chas. Russell Cigar, or the method which they have been following in promoting same. We have started an investigation of the matter and are informed by the parties occupying the premises at the address you gave us that they are likewise in ignorance of the affairs of the Associated Advertising Company. They state that mail has been addressed to that concern at the address given, but this mail has all been returned to the post office unclaimed. We are calling the attention of the postal authorities to the matter and will also give publicity to it through the trade papers.

We regret very much that our name should have been brought into a scheme of this kind and thank you for calling our attention to the matter.

Keen Competition Among San Francisco Distributors

S. Bachman & Company Complete Alterations—Tillman & Bendel Take on Manila Cigars—Dealers Beginning to Fear Shortage of Philippine Cigars as Result of Strike

FURTHER improvement is noted at some of the retail stands this month, especially around the downtown hotels, as a good many tourists and travelers are passing through, though among the general run of small stores the business shows little feature. The out-of-town trade is holding up extremely well, though competition among various distributing houses is as keen as ever, and the numerous special inducements offered in some lines create more or less dissatisfaction. Practically everybody, however, is getting better results than last year.

John C. Conner, the retailer at Davis and California Streets, has been ill for the last two weeks, but is expected back at the store next week. Notwithstanding his absence, the usual window display work is being kept up in first-class style.

Adler & Cohn, the Powell-Street retailers, are making a strong specialty of pipes this season. They are giving one entire side of the store to the pipe display, having put in glass wall-cases at a cost of about $1,000, where they show a large stock of all kinds and grades of pipes. They are getting quite a profitable business in this line, and expect a big run during the holidays.

Edward C. Houlette, advertising man for Pondy & Lederer, was a visitor with H. L. Judell & Co. in this city a few days ago.

A. Kapp, of Kapp & Peterson, pipe manufacturers of Dublin, Ireland is making a visit to M. A. Gunst & Co.

S. Bachman & Co., the large Front-Street wholesale firm, have about completed extensive alterations in their store. They have added a part of the stock room to their offices, which have been newly decorated, and also enlarged the shipping department, the facilities of which were beginning to prove inadequate for the increasing amount of goods handled.

T. G. Thompson, president of the Ruy Lopez Company, has just completed a visit to the principal Coast cities, his local agents being Bier, Saalburg & Co.

R. H. Patterson, representing the Hershheim Company of New Orleans, has returned east after visiting his various distributors on the Coast. He has made arrangements with Glaser Bros., who handle his lines here, to start some special advertising work on the "King's Court" line.

Tillmann & Bendel, the local wholesale grocery house, have gone into the Manila cigar business, taking up the "Lusiada" brand, made by the Urania factory, for which they have the Coast agency.

According to latest advices the strike in the Manila factories has not yet been broken, and dealers are beginning to feel some anxiety. One large cargo is still due, but it is not believed that the last steamer which left Manila was able to load any cigars.

M. A. Gunst & Co. are moving their wholesale pipe display, which has formerly been kept on the second floor, to the rear of the ground floor. The change was partly due to the increased stock, which required the room formerly used for display, and partly to the desire to have the samples in a more convenient place. The display now has plenty of room, and new fixtures show off the pipes to good advantage.

O. Banghart, representing T. J. Dunn & Co., has just left after a visit with Tillmann & Bendel. He expects to return in a few months, when this firm will probably take up some new lines made by his company.

D. Frankel, of Frankel, Gerds & Co., returned a few days ago from his trip to Cuba, and is now at the Paso Robles Springs recovering from an attack of rheumatism.

John E. Lowrey, a cigar manufacturer of Tampa, has been in the city for the last week.

E. I. Polster Moves Up The Street

Ed. I. Polster, the hustling Cleveland retailer, has moved his cigar store at 5519 Euclid Avenue, to Number 5507. The formal opening took place on October 5. The new stand has been finished in an unusually attractive manner and with its new appearance should materially brighten the business prospects of Mr. Polster, who has another well-paying store at East 55th Street and Euclid Avenue, not far from his latest location.

It would probably be of considerable assistance to us if you would advise us the factory number appearing on the bottom of the Chas. Russell boxes which you have, inasmuch as this will enable us to ascertain who is manufacturing these cigars.

Awaiting your further advice on the subject, and with best wishes, we are,

Very truly yours,

UNITED CIGAR MANUFACTURERS COMPANY.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Trade Going Along Evenly in New York—Considerable Activity in 1911 Pennsylvania—Richmond
Loose Leaf Market Slow in Opening—Fine Weather in Wisconsin

NEW YORK.

WHILE conditions in the local leaf market are far from rushing, business is going along evenly. There is a scarcity in a number of desirable types and it has now dwindled down to a point of selecting the best obtainable for the money. Wisconsin is moving well. The new crop is being looked over carefully, and that it will be scoured pretty closely for good binders goes without saying. Pennsylvania is having its inning now. It is surprising to hear of the number of sales of 1909 Pennsylvania, stuff which could hardly be sold at any figure before.

The Sumatra situation is about the same. Prices as a rule are very high, and the last reports from the Fall inscriptions are not going to make prices drop by any means. At the last sale, October 18, only 50 bales were taken by American purchasers, and at the previous sale none at all. Those persons who did not buy any Sumatra, expecting the Fall inscriptions to relieve the situation, have found out that their prognostications were off color.

The condition of the cigar industry is extremely good here at present, and from now on the leaf dealers are looking forward to a big harvest and demand for all sorts of the weed.

PENNSYLVANIA.

THERE has been considerable activity shown in the leaf market within the past two weeks. Dealers all agree on the growing demand for 1911 Pennsylvania and the Wisconsin tobaccos. The binder situation is not relieved to any extent, but everyone is looking forward to the new crops to fill this long felt want. Havanas have also been selling well, although not in large quantities. Sumatra, which has been quiet for some time, is again showing life and a number of sales were reported.

LANCASTER, October 22.

There has not been much doing here lately in old goods. One dealer was quoted as stating that more of the 1909 and 1901 leaf was changing hands than anyone dreamed of. He said that owing to the fact that purchasers wished their names not to be used in the transactions the sales never became public. Manufacturers who have contracts for using a certain amount of tobacco have quite a bit of it still lying in local warehouses. They are slowly having shipments of it sent along. Late sales of 1911 give the prices as ranging from six-teen to twenty cents.

Some 1912 tobacco was sold recently, but not in large amounts and there is no likelihood of the tobacco being bought generally until it is out of the barns. Dealers have been riding the country districts, but as far as could be ascertained very little business was done. It is now settled without a doubt that the new crop will be a very good one. It has been curing nicely, and evidences of pole-burn and stem rot are scarce. The leaf has plenty of gum in it and is coming along nicely, even that tobacco which was perhaps cut prematurely owing to the danger of frost.

VIRGINIA.

RICHMOND, October 20.

THE Richmond loose-leaf market has been a little slow in opening this year. There has been very little leaf offered for sale in local warehouses up to the present time. Farmers are evidently holding back for better prices.

Up to now there has been something less than 350,000 pounds of primings and lugs sold, but as far as the sales have gone, the price obtained have been entirely satisfactory to the sellers. But the time is near at hand when the farmers will be marketing their good sun-cured stock, the fillers and the wrappers and all of the better grades. All of the reports from the crop makers are rather interesting, and the most of them agree that notwithstanding certain drought conditions in some of the sun-curing counties, the yield this year will be pretty good, and the manufacturers who are in search of the sun-cured stuff will find a good deal of it on the market from now until about the first of March, next.

NORTH CAROLINA.

WINSTON-SALEM, October 19.

THIS year marks the era of the greatest period of prosperity known to the tobacco farmers of this section of the State in years. Thousands of dollars are being turned loose broadcast in the section and it will enable many farmers to pay off their obligations and to secure needed farm machinery and horses and mules. One million pounds of tobacco were sold here last week at an average of a fraction over 17 cents a pound. This means that last week alone, the sum of $170,000 was paid out to the farmers. The meaning of the high prices may readily be seen when it is known that the usual average price paid for tobacco is 10 cents a pound. This means that $70,000 more was paid out for tobacco last week than the same tobacco brought last year.

On the above basis, it is safe to assume that the farmers of this section of the State will realize something like $500,000 more from their tobacco crop this year than last. The bright grades are the ones that are selling so high. Some estimate the bright crop at about 33 1-3 per cent. of the total crop while others think it will run as high as 50 per cent. of the total crop due to the bright weather for the past two weeks.

WISCONSIN

EDGERTON, October 20.

AT last we are favored with some fine Indian summer weather which seems likely to prove the salvation of the late harvested tobacco. Warm days coming close after a long season of damp weather has started the curing rapidly and it needs only the continuation of such conditions to put even the later shedded portion of the crop out of danger of heavy freezes that might produce fat stems. The early harvested tobacco is already well cured out and is showing an unusually bright colored leaf with excellent texture and finish. It has been long years since the state has produced a sounder or finer looking tobacco than the samples that can now be secured from the sheds of the earlier crops, some of which might be stripped almost any time.

There is still a little scouting being done in the growing districts and an occasional sale is reported, but the movement has very little force behind it nor much organized effort noticeable to increase the holdings of the larger operators. Most dealers prefer to wait until the crop is more thoroughly cured before adding to their purchases. E. G. Iloveland is reported to have sold a 12a crop at 12 & 4c.

There is but little news to report in the cured leaf market. The only sale of importance coming to notice is of a 3000s lot of northern grown leaf to a St. Louis jobber. Otteson Brothers sold a 52c lot of '11.

Sampling of last year's packings is proceeding quite generally now and packers seem pleased with the result as the percentage of damage is below the usual average.—Reporter.

MASSACHUSETTS

SPRINGFIELD, October 20.

THE growers in this vicinity have been busy the past week taking down some of their tobacco. It has been estimated that about three hundred acres of the first harvested crops were taken down. The weather has been damp and the tobacco was easily handled.

There is little of moment happening in the market here now. Prices remain about the same. No reports have arrived as yet of sales on the new shaded crop.

CONNECTICUT

SUFFIELD, October 20.

THE farmers have taken advantage of the damp weather the past week and took down as much of their tobacco as possible. Most of that handled was picked variety. With a few exceptions the first picking of the 1912 crop has been taken down from the poles in the shed and is now huddled up. During the past two days the second picking has been taken down and now that work is almost half done also. The warehouses are expected to open up in a few days for the winter season for which the growers are well prepared.

It has been estimated that nine-tenths of the picked tobacco has already been bought by out-of-town buyers, who have been especially desirous of securing the picked tobacco this year. When the warehouses open here it is said at least 500 hands will be employed to do the work. L. P. Bissell's place takes ninety hands alone.

Ohio Growers Plan Selling System

Directors of the twelve warehouses under the control of the National Cigar Leaf Growers' Union held a meeting in Dayton, Ohio, October 14, and discussed ways and means of planning a uniform selling system. The tobacco planters claimed that they were receiving altogether too little for their crops and decided to hold on to them for some time until better prices were offered. In order to carry through their plans successfully it is said they will incorporate under the name, Farmers' Tobacco Sales Company. Men instrumental in this work are Phillip Spence, Lebanon; George W. Conrad, Troy; E. H. Graver, Dayton, and T. J. Shaffer, Brookville, all of Ohio.

Government Gives Result of Tobacco Beetle Investigations Many Preventative Measures Published in Report Are Recommended by Men Who Carried on the Work, A. C. Morgan and G. A. Runner

IN RESPONSE to the numerous requests for information in regard to the control of the cigarette beetle or "tobacco beetle," the government has prepared a circular which is being distributed to interested persons. The information given was obtained principally by an agent of the Department of Agriculture, G. A. Runner, who spent several months of this summer studying the problem at Key West, Fla. He spent much of his time at the factories located there. THE TOBACCO WORLD has received many requests for getting rid of this pest and publishes this circular in part for the benefit of those persons interested.

The principal sources of infestation in a cigar factory were found to be:

- (1) Infested tobaccos brought into the factory;
 - (2) Infested tobacco, refuse material, or cigars that have accumulated in the factory (beetles breeding in such material quickly spread to all parts of the factory);
 - (3) Proximity of the factory to tobacco warehouses or to other factories where beetles are present in large numbers.
- It is recommended:
- (1) That all worthless or infested tobaccos be destroyed or promptly fumigated;
 - (2) That all infested bales or hogsheds of tobacco be fumigated when brought into the factory;
 - (3) That doors and windows of storage rooms be screened;
 - (4) That the cigar makers' room be kept free of trash and refuse tobacco in which beetles may breed;
 - (5) That trays of newly made cigars be kept screened or covered;
 - (6) That cigars should be kept in tight storage compartments, and that they should not be left uncovered upon the sorting table over night. (It was found that the process leading up to and included in the rolling of the cigar killed practically all the stages of the beetle. It was also found that most of the eggs laid by the beetle were deposited late in the afternoon and at night.)

The foregoing recommendations may be considered as preventive, and they are just as important as the following direct methods of control:

METHOD OF COMBATING THE CIGARETTE BEETLE.

A. Trap lights.

Specially constructed trap lights may often be used to advantage. A very efficient trap light may be made by pinning together sheets of sticky fly paper in the form of a cylinder and suspending it around an electric light.

B. Fumigation.

Owing to the protection afforded the beetle by the tobacco it has been found necessary to use stronger dosages of the fumigants than are usually employed against other insects.

CARBON BISULPHID.

To be effective against all stages of the beetle, particularly when protected by tobacco, carbon bisulphid should be used at the rate of not less than 4 pounds to 1,000 cubic feet of space, with an exposure of 48 hours. A very tight fumigating box is absolutely necessary.

Directions.—Pour the carbon bisulphid into shallow pans which should be placed above the infested material, for this gas is heavier than air. The fumes of this liquid are inflammable, and great care should be exercised to keep all fire away from the vicinity of the fumigating box until it has been thoroughly aired.

HYDROCYANIC-ACID GAS.

Hydrocyanic-acid gas is made by the use of potassium cyanid, sulphuric acid and water. Use multiples of the following formula:

Potassium cyanid (98 per cent. pure)—1 ounce avoirdupois.

Commercial sulphuric acid—1¼ ounces (liquid measure).
Water—3 ounces (liquid measure).

For a generator use an earthenware receptacle of small diameter, so that all the cyanid of potassium may be covered by the water and acid. The receptacle should never be filled more than half full of water and acid, otherwise the action of the chemicals may cause the contents to boil over.

Directions.—First pour in the water, then the acid, last; just before closing the fumigation box, drop in the cyanid of potassium. For convenience the cyanid may be put into thin paper sacks and these dropped into the generator. However, if the paper sacks are rather thick they should be slit in several places so that the acid and water may quickly come in contact with the cyanid. An exposure of 24 hours should be given. Hydrocyanic-acid gas is lighter than air, hence the generators should be placed below the material to be fumigated. For general use 4 ounces of cyanid to 100 cubic feet will be found satisfactory, but for baled or closely packed tobaccos use 8 ounces to 100 cubic feet of space. Use a very tight box or closet for the fumigation. Avoid breathing the gas, for it is very poisonous.

EFFECT OF THE FUMIGANTS UPON TOBACCO.

Expert tobacco men examined the tobaccos and cigars treated with bisulphid of carbon and with hydrocyanic-acid gas and all were of the opinion that these fumigants had no effect upon the tobacco. After the fumigation the cigars should be aired thoroughly and all odors will disappear.

Although the foregoing information is based on investigations in a cigar factory, and although the recommendations are primarily for cigar manufacturers, similar conditions will undoubtedly be found in other branches of the trade, to which the foregoing remedies will readily apply.

Thompson & Hare Open Albany Store

A new cigar stand has been opened in the basement of the New Clinton Square Theatre, in Albany, N. Y., by Thompson & Hare, of that city, where a complete line of domestic and imported smokes of all kinds are being carried in stock. They are specializing now on the "Webster" cigar of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., and the "Gato" cigars with good results.

The Rhodesian Tobacco Industry

MR. J. STEWART RICHARDSON, who superintends the operations of several tobacco-growing estates in Southern Rhodesia, South Africa, contributes an article to the June number of the "Rhodesia Agricultural Journal," which appears to indicate that the culture of tobacco in Rhodesia, already a large and flourishing industry, is really only in its infancy. It is the rich low-lying portions of Rhodesia which, as railway communication is opened up with the markets, will furnish double, and even treble, crops with a minimum of trouble. Down on the low veldt, in the great sandstone belts that traverse the country from Wankies to Lomagundi, are valleys where tobacco can be grown under ideal conditions. The soil for many years running will, in places, produce crops ranging from 900 to 1500 lbs. per acre, without any fertilizer whatever. Eventually, no doubt, as settlement proceeds, the low veldt will be tapped by one or more railways, and when that occurs the industry should make giant strides.

English Tobacco Growing in 1655

In view of the revival of the tobacco-growing industry in Ireland in recent years, it is interesting to recall that during the seventeenth century tobacco was successfully cultivated in England, and according to W. A. Peim, the herb "was grown so largely in Gloucestershire that in 1655 the county hangman complained of unemployment, men being so busy cultivating tobacco that they had no time or inclination for sheep stealing, etc." The official authorities, however, frowned upon the experiment, and Charles II. prohibited the cultivation of tobacco in England and Ireland under a fine of 40 shillings for every rood, except "in any physick garden of either university or in any private garden for physick or chirurgery." The fine was subsequently increased to £10 per rood. Scotland, where tobacco was largely grown, was for some reason exempted from these penalties.

Crimean Tobacco Growing

A Russian correspondent in the "Financier," says:—"Reports from the Crimea say that the collection of tobacco has begun and that the condition of the leaf is excellent. The weather is favorable to the drying, under which the quality of the goods is improving. The plants this year have grown taller than usual. The planters are doing very well, as they are getting rid of all their ready leaf. Prices are, however, somewhat lower than they were last year. Fresh ground is being sown with tobacco, and the old plantation grounds are being sown with lucerne or grain, for the old Crimean tobacco-growing lands are quite exhausted for tobacco."

The English After-Dinner Cigarette

Sir Henry Thompson, of England, in his book, "Food and Feeding," writes as follows:—"The value of a cigarette at the moment a meal has been completed consists in the fact that after the first whiff or two of its fragrance the palate soon ceases to demand either food or wine. After smoke the power to appreciate good wine is lost, and no judicious host cares to open a fresh bottle from his best bin for the smoker, nor will the former be blamed by any man for a disinclination to do so. Moreover, tobacco is unquestionably an ally of temperance; certainly it is so in the estimation of the gourmet. A relationship for him of the most perfect order is that which subsists between coffee and fragrant smoke. While wine and tobacco are antipathetic, the one affecting injuriously all that is grateful in the other, the aroma of coffee 'marries' perfectly with the perfume of the finest leaf. Among the Mussulmans this relationship is recognized to the fullest extent; and also throughout the Continent the use of coffee, which is almost symbolical of temperate habits, is intimately associated with the cigarette or cigar."

German Manufacturers Claim Oppressive Taxation

A German tobacco manufacturer writes to a German paper stating that the effect of the taxation brought into force in 1909 in the fatherland has been, among other things, to reduce his income by one-half, and to bring down the value of his business from 30,000 to barely 20,000 marks. This sounds as if it might have happened in England. The set policy of modern Governments is to do the best for themselves in spite of traders. There are manufacturers on this side the North Sea who might give disastrous figures of the effect of the 1909 British tax. They have, indeed, done it, and it is no consolation to them to know that the German manufacturers are also hard hit. Examples in both countries, however, do make it clear that the present tendency of governments to legislate traders' businesses out of their hands should be rendered impossible. The only way which suggests itself in this country is the formation of a Ministry of Trade, one of whose functions would be the correlating of taxes with business necessities. At present Chancellors of the Exchequer pull their own way, and there is no one to effectively put them right. And traders suffer unnecessarily.—Tobacco, London, September 15.

Canada's Increased Tobacco Bill

Canada is smoking and drinking a good deal more in proportion to her population than she used to do. A year's increase of population in the Dominion is computed at 3 to 4 per cent. The percentages of difference over the figures of the previous year in the case of tobacco were: cigarettes, 33.1-3 per cent.; tobacco, 12 per cent.; cigars, 11 per cent. Canada is receiving from the United States and Europe a quarter of a million of new citizens. Most of these are smokers. Most of these European arrivals, too, are cigarette smokers.

Harvesting Russian Tobacco

A Russian correspondent of the "Financier," a London paper, writes:—"The favorable conditions under which, climatically, the tobacco was put out in Russia this year inspired expectations of an abundant harvest. When the alternating cold, hot and dry weather supervened, views were modified as to the prospects of the harvest in some districts. On the whole, however, the tobacco harvest is expected to be satisfactory. In respect of quantity the result in most districts will be over the average. Warsaw and Tabreez districts particularly will show increases, followed by Voronezh and Chernigoff. But in the Ryazam and Smolensk district the results will be under the average. Owing to the changes in the weather there are some districts where the quality will be inferior."

China to Suppress Cigarette Smoking

Reports from many parts of China—a British Attaché states—describe an agitation carried on, with varying degrees of success, for the suppression of cigarette smoking. In many cases this movement has been encouraged by Protestant missionaries, presumably on hygienic or ethical grounds, but the opposition on the part of the Chinese to the smoking of cigarettes seems to be chiefly based on the supposed economic disadvantages of consuming foreign goods in preference to native products, or even encouraging native industries nourished by foreign capital. The anti-cigarette campaign appears to have been most successful in Hangchow, the capital of Chekiang Province, where before it died out in the autumn, it was reported to have caused the sales of the British American Tobacco Company to fall off by 75 per cent., and to have brought the long stem native pipe into fashion again. On the other hand, the movement failed to reduce the growth of the cigarette habit in Nanking, Chefoo or Tsingtau, while at Chengtau a determined opposition by British and American missionaries in the early part of the year was more than counterbalanced by the increased sales to Chinese soldiers there ever since the troubles in September. The total import into China was 3,837,079 thousands in 1911, against 3,723,545 thousands in 1910.

Henry T. Offerdinger Holds "Open House"

Henry T. Offerdinger, the Washington, D. C., cigar manufacturer, opened his new factory in that city under novel and attractive auspices. The formal opening was held several weeks ago, at which time the factory was thrown open to visitors and the entire process of cigar manufacturing from the preparation of the leaf to the packing of the products was shown. Ladies were presented on that day with flowers. Mr Offerdinger's factory is all that could be desired in spacious, sanitary and fireproof construction.

Bower-Derry Company Dissolves; Reorganizes Again

A public statement has been issued by R. J. Derry and C. J. Bradfield, formerly of the Bower-Derry Company, of Grand Junction, Col., stating that the above named company has dissolved and that Mr. Derry and Bradfield have formed a new firm which will do business under the name of the Derry-Bradfield Company. The capital of the concern will be $50,000, which will be used to carry on the trade of the old business.

A. T. Burchart, a retailer, of Seattle, has opened a store at 430 Fifth Avenue, that city. He sold his store on Pike Street, Seattle, several months ago to the Hemenway & Moser Company.

One Thousand Live Men

UNDER the new management which took hold two years ago, The Tobacco World has been making quick strides forward in every department. The improvement in our reading pages, the enlargement of our correspondence staff and the distinctive style, have combined to place The Tobacco World in a class by itself.

Our method of building, has been first, to produce the best trade paper in the tobacco field, feeling sure that such a standard would be sure to win recognition in the form of thousands of new subscribers.

That this recognition is coming, is evident in the increase of more than 75% in our circulation, as well as substantial gains in our advertising accounts.

With the opening of the New Year, it is our ambition to extend this circulation in every State by an aggressive campaign for subscriptions. To that end, we have an excellent proposition for traveling salesmen who would wish to take subscriptions on a commission basis. Only men of high standing and unquestioned character are wanted.

At one dollar per year, The Tobacco World is the best trade journal proposition in the country to-day. In most cases, all that is necessary to get a subscription is to show a copy of the paper, and point out its distinctive features. Solicitors who have taken hold of our proposition are making a good side income from it.

Why not, Mr. Live Salesman, do the same?

☪ With seven operators these machines will do the work of forty skilled men.

☪ The cost to manufacture cigars under the hand method ranges from $4 per thousand for the cheapest grades to $18 to $40 per thousand for the higher grades. The cost to manufacture cigars on our machines is approximately $2 per thousand. And the work is done with greater uniformity and perfection than is possible by hand. The cigars cannot be told from the hand-made product. We are now proving it in our demonstration plant, 106 S. Gay Street, Baltimore, Md., where a million cigars have been made.

George L. Storm to Direct Sales End of Tobacco Products Corporation

Retires From United Cigar Manufacturers' Company and
Other Cigar Interests to Manage Big Cigarette
Merger--Has Had Fine Business Career

SIMULTANEOUS with the announcement that George L. Storm had severed his connection with the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, the jobbing house of George L. Storm & Company, and the cigar factory of the Spietz & Worch Company, of Detroit, comes the news that Mr. Storm has been elected a director and vice-president of the newly organized $50,000,000 Tobacco Products Corporation.

George L. Storm

The significance of this news will be interpreted in various ways by the trade.

Mr. Storm being primarily known as a cigar man, and having made a national reputation in that line, it was first rumored that the Tobacco Products Corporation wanted him to look after the cigar end of their business. This opinion seems to be controverted by the fact that the new corporation aims to deal exclusively in the manufacture and sale of cigarettes. It is learned from confidential sources that Mr. Storm's services were engaged primarily to build up the sales organization, in view of his remarkable success in the past along this line.

As at present outlined, Mr. Storm will become sales manager of the new corporation; William H. Butler and John W. Surbrug will look after the manufacturing end and Miltiades Melachrino will look after the purchase of the Turkish tobacco supplies.

Tobacco Trade Looks For Action
On Tariff and Monopoly Laws

President-Elect Wilson and Democratic Congress Likely To Get Busy--Domestic Interests To Resist Sumatra
Reduction--Revenue Meddling Feared

(Special Despatch to "The Tobacco World.")

WASHINGTON, November 14.

WITH every indication pointing to the probability of President-Elect Woodrow Wilson calling an extra session of Congress early next spring, to enact the tariff and anti-monopoly program of the Democratic party into laws, the prospects are that the tobacco trade will find much of interest in Washington during the coming year.

THE TOBACCO WORLD correspondent, in discussing the prospects of legislation affecting the tobacco trade, with a member of Congress who has been much interested in this phase, stated that he believed that President-Elect Wilson would neither be hasty nor radical in his request for new laws.

In line with the program of the Democratic party is certain to come a reduction downward of the tariff on leaf tobacco. It is confidently predicted by importers of Sumatra tobacco that the present duty of $1.85 per pound will be the first to be attacked. Many of the importers insist on this being cut at least into half. In this move, they will find opposition, and very strong organized opposition from the Connecticut and Florida tobacco growing interests.

It is significant that the Democratic party, in the last election, carried Connecticut, and are likely to elect a Democratic Senator, thereby robbing the tobacco-growing interests of that state of a local champion. A reduction in the duty on imported Havana cigars is also predicted.

Speaking of the probable attitude of the Wilson administration, towards the American Tobacco Company, the WORLD informant stated that he believed that the present status of the companies affected by the dissolution decision, would be thoroughly examined by the government agents before any recommendation would be made to Congress. It will be remembered that at the last session of Congress, the Cummins bill, which directed the Attorney General to make an appeal to the Supreme Court in the matter of the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, was passed by the Senate, but held up by the Committee on Judiciary in the House of Representatives, because it was believed that should the bill be passed, it would be vetoed by President Taft.

Now, that it is definitely assured that the next Attorney General will be a Democrat, in sympathy with Wilson's anti-monopoly views, early action on the Cummins bill is predicted.

As the government's income from tariff duties is sure to be curtailed by the general reduction of the tariffs, it would not be surprising to see the Democratic members of Congress turn their attention to the tobacco trade to squeeze out some of the lost revenue by increasing the internal tax on all forms of tobacco.

The first move along this line was revealed in the last issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD in the plan of Congressman Warburton to restore the Revenue Act of 1879, which calls for excessive revenue rates, so as to give the government money enough to build a military road across the United States.

If the new Congress makes any effort to increase the revenue tax on tobacco products, it is more than likely that it will

Offers Reward For Capture of "Kitty O'Hara"

Tacoma Cigar Dealer, Henry M. Prince, Great Believer in Newspaper Advertising, Takes Advantage of Contest Conducted by Local Daily and Boosts Cigar Sales

IN this present age of advertising the merchant who is always on the alert for opportunities to boost his sales and attract attention to his store is the man who invariably makes a success of his business. Many retailers often have such chances to make a hit and never realize the possibilities lying before them.

Recently there was conducted a contest by the "Tacoma Daily News," of Tacoma, Wash., which created so much excitement in that hustling town that an enterprising cigar dealer grabbed the chance to get his store in the limelight. This merchant was Henry M. Prince, with a store at 946 Pacific Avenue, and from the reports Mr. Prince gave on his increased sales he lost nothing by being in the thick of the excitement.

The "Tacoma Daily News" conducted this contest by offering $150 reward for the apprehension of a young lady named "Kitty O'Hara." She would appear in different costumes at specified corners at certain hours of the day. Mr. Prince is a great believer in newspaper advertising, or anything new that comes up, and he was right there and got in on it.

He inserted an ad. in the "News" stating that he would give $25 in gold, free, in addition to the prize to be awarded by the newspaper, stipulating certain conditions, which were as follows: "To any one capturing the young lady under the conditions required by the 'Tacoma Daily News' and having in their possession at the time of capture one of my cash register receipts, issued the day of capture and bearing such date, I offer $25 in cash." It can easily be seen how the sales increased for Mr. Prince as hundreds of people flocked to the store to obtain the necessary register checks.

Henry M. Prince

In speaking of the policy he uses in conducting his business and the "Juan de Fuca" cigar, which he has been featuring, Mr. Prince says:

"Advertising alone is not the road to success. It depends entirely on the retailer himself. I have taken the 'Juan de Fuca' cigar and featured it in thirty-two different sizes, advertised them, slept on them, and ate them for breakfast, lunch and dinner until I am now doing ninety per cent. of my entire business on this brand alone. In proof of the success of my store, I can easily say that my retail business is one of the largest on the Pacific Coast. I employ five clerks in my main store, all high-priced men.

"I merely mention all this to point out the fact that what retailers want to do to make a success of their businesses is to get a piece of goods with merit, get behind it and then advertise. Publicity, with merit and personal attention behind it, is the true road to success. The average retailer sells what the public demands. They are like a lot of automatons. Wind them up and they work all right. My idea is to sell your own brand in either cigars, tobacco or pipes. By this I do not mean that other goods should not be carried. I venture to say that I have about fifty different clear Havana brands on hand. We create a demand for our goods, making individuality our prime factor. I could dwell on this subject all day but do not want to take up more of your time."

RETAIL RINKLES

Plans Used Successfully by Thinking Retailers to Improve Their Businesses.

The retail cigar firm of Adler & Cohn, 35 Powell Street, San Francisco, has been working a stunt which brought in a lot of business and is believed to be new there if not elsewhere. The scheme needs at the outset, only a few personal friends, and enough cash or credit to get a lot of cards printed, though later on someone may have to be hired to look after the telephone.

Adler & Cohn had cards printed showing a lot of proper names, one for each playing-card in a deck, and distributed these among a few friends, with instructions. The holder of the card, while in conversation with one of his friends, mentions a wonderful mind-reader in the city, who can tell over the telephone the name of a card written by a stranger. This of course arouses curiosity, and the friend usually decides to give it a trial. The holder of the card offers to call up the "professor" and introduce his friend, meanwhile learning the name of the card written. He then calls up the store, and asks for Prof. Blank (giving the name corresponding to the card), and the clerk in the store promptly gives the name of the card. Thus, if the friend writes "deuce of hearts," this corresponds on the card with the name "Marshall," and "Prof. Marshall" is asked for, giving the key. The person in the store then engages the stranger in conversation over the phone and asks him to call at the address of the store for further particulars.

When this scheme was once started, the store was kept crowded with men to see the "professor." Of course most of them bought cigars, just to be good fellows, and a substantial amount of regular trade has been built up through the scheme.

An up-to-date merchant in a New York State city is using a novel plan to popularize his store. He is making Uncle Sam's dollars do advertising duty for him. He does it by handing out one silver dollar every time a large bill is changed. On one side of the "cart wheel" is a big red sticker just the size of the inside part of the coin down to the milled edge. On this sticker is printed, "Take me back to Jones' when you want to spend me; I am worth more there than anywhere else." In the course of a month the ordinary size store will use a number of these coins and of course every one of them is a good ad. for the fellow who puts them out.

Schemes of this sort, while they are novel and out of the ordinary, may be easily used to excess and react against the person using them. However when they are used with good judgment, they make excellent publicity builders and make a store talked about. The stickers used in this instance are easily purchased and are not expensive by any means.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

The Qualities of a Crackerjack Salesman

THE following quotation which was given as the true meaning of successful salesmanship sums up fairly well all the qualities a man requires to make good. They were given by one who had gone through the mill and for that reason deserve attention:

"To do the right thing, at the right time, in the right way; to do some things better than they were ever done before; to eliminate errors; to know both sides of the question; to be courteous; to be an example; to work for love of work; to anticipate requirements; to develop resources; to recognize no impediments; to master circumstances; to act from reason, rather than rule; to be satisfied with nothing short of perfection."

Enthusiastic interest is the most important quality in successful salesmanship, because the man or woman who possesses it will naturally acquire other helpful qualities. No person can hope to succeed as a salesperson unless he or she has a liking for the work, and the same rule applies as well to all other lines of business. Enthusiasm is half the battle in any undertaking.

Truthfulness and ability to obtain the confidence of customers are of vital importance. The merchandise handled may be everything that could be desired in quality and price, yet unless the salesperson gives out the impression that he is absolutely sincere in his statements concerning the goods, he may be unable to convince the prospective buyer.

One of the important things which the young salesman often finds hard to realize is the essential factor of courtesy. He will, by experience, learn that in a sense every person who enters the store or whom he goes to see is a guest and should be treated as such.

The successful salesman is careful not to make promises which cannot be fulfilled to the letter. It is far better to lose the sale than to make the positive statement that goods will be delivered at a certain time when there is no certainty that they will be. The best patronage comes from satisfied customers, and broken promises do not make satisfied customers.

How much goods would a peddler sell if he went around all the time with his pack on his back waiting for someone to ask to see what was in it? Don't wait to be asked to show your goods, show them anyway. In short use your show window. Don't be afraid of overworking it. It will easily stand it.

Give the man with a special aptitude for some line of work a chance to devote himself as much as possible to that work. This is a day of specialists and the man who makes good in a certain branch is given the opportunity to become a crack in it. He will not be satisfied anyway if he is put at anything else and knows he can do some other thing a great deal better.

aim to use the money for ordinary government expenses, rather than for a special visionary purpose for which Congressman Warburton intends it.

Manufacturers in the tobacco trade will do well to strengthen their lines of organization to resist any efforts that may be made to increase the revenue on all forms of tobacco. It is certain that an organized fight will be necessary to protect their interests.

"Nothing Ventured, Nothing Gained"

THE man who makes the greatest success of himself is not he who is afraid to do anything because it has never been done before. The man who never made a mistake comes from this rank—and have you ever noticed, they never got far either. The fellow who is not afraid to take a reasonable chance to back up his judgment is the one who gets there. He makes mistakes—but never makes the same mistake twice—and that's where he has it on the fellow who won't do a certain thing because he has never taken a chance and doesn't have the gumption to try for fear of what may happen. Many of the great merchants of the day have made big mistakes in their day, but they profited by them and are at the top now, while the men who derided them are still running their small stores on the corner—and barely making both ends meet.

How The Cigar Dealer Can Ginger up His Trade

Premium Methods, With Proper Thought and Attention, Are Helping Retailers Everywhere—Coupon System An Example of Good Schemes Practiced—Retail Rinkles, Novel Plans Successfully Carried Out

By James Fordyce

THE retail cigar dealer is up against a serious question when he decides to use premium inducements and contests. There are thousands of retail merchants in every line of business nowadays who are doing it with good results. And there are many more who have tried the plan and vowed to never venture in that field again. Hearing of the latter's experience other dealers, who would gladly try innovations such as these, are afraid of the breakers ahead. They realize that they are in business to make money and they speculate as to the advisability of putting a certain amount of money into a boosting campaign when the results may possibly be nil.

The merchant who is in earnest about this problem can solve it in only one way. Like advertising, these inducement methods require study, particularly of plans worked out successfully by others. By watching what another may be doing at the time, the dealer may see something which is the germ of a new scheme for him. The TOBACCO WORLD has been impressing upon retailers for some time the advantage of getting in the limelight with something new, and impressing upon the public the fact of their progressiveness. The Retail Rinkles Department was established for just this purpose.

Let us suppose the retailer has already decided to put a certain amount of money into premiums. Many merchants, who have made a success of selling plans, put aside two per cent. of the selling price of an article for the purpose. Of course the margin of profit on the merchandise must necessarily play an important part as to what percentage can safely be used. A number of the larger houses in the United States, who spend thousands yearly for premiums, figure on a basis of five per cent., sometimes as high as ten. But for the smaller merchant five per cent. should be the limit.

If you are thinking along the lines of giving coupons for premiums, do not lose sight of the fact that not all of these coupons will come back to you for redemption. It has been the experience of hundreds who issue coupons that only in rare cases have fifty per cent. of the coupons been redeemed. The average is nearer thirty per cent. than fifty. So in figuring this out the dealer should not estimate on a basis of a full return of the coupons.

In selecting your offerings use judgment. An article which may be a winner in one neighborhood, may never do in another. Some of the shrewdest premium users nowadays never purchase too heavily at first. It is always advisable to try out your trade and see what the tastes are. A short trial will suffice. No man can tell absolutely just what the public is after. A short time ago a dealer, who uses premiums in his business, in explaining his success, made a statement which showed plainly how carefully these men sound the tastes of their customers.

"After I feel that the premium is a first-class one," he said, "I put it before the women of my family and get their opinion. I know very well that women are more susceptible to the premium inducements and they often either make or break a plan. When I am satisfied with their opinion I give it a trial." This man only gave it a trial. The premium first had to make good. The tastes of the housewives are often so varied that this is the only certain method.

When the question of premiums comes up in certain quarters, some merchants argue that they prefer to give the benefit of the cost of the premiums in better values, or in the nature of a cash discount. They claim that it is the customer who pays for the premium. Therefore, why not let him have the money, when he may possibly again spend it in that store.

That is very true. The best answer to such a line of talk is that it will not turn the trick. These persons do not study the kinks of human nature. A housewife, and this applies to men in most cases, too, are not influenced in the least by the small cash discount. Yet when these persons receive a premium coupon it appears to represent some tangible value and is the means of bringing them back again, so they will not lose what was gained by the first purchase. That person will form the habit of always going to that store.

One of the best and least confusing ways of using premiums to get and hold a customer's trade is to specialize on just one article. The dealer who gives one premium to all his customers has the advantage over both the premium department and the clearing house methods, where a number of dealers co-operate to save expenses. He not only saves confusion in the minds of his customers, but if he has one good thing, people connect his name with it and the premium, provided it is a good one, is paralleled in the minds of people with the quality of the goods the merchant sells.

Just as soon as the retail cigar merchant realizes that catchy selling methods are perfectly legitimate, and are making business for merchants everywhere, so soon will he stimulate his trade to larger proportions. The increased business he will secure will more than pay him for the trouble and outlay. The great tea and coffee houses of the country, also chains of grocery and cigar stores, use selling schemes and coupons. Scores and scores of merchants have made a success of these sales-increasing plans, and have proven their practicability, which should surely show the beginner that it is not a hit or miss proposition.

The whole question, therefore, resolves itself into the best method of doing it. Study your customers, watch the papers, study your trade journal, read the Retail Rinkles, and unless you are either hostile to such ways of doing business or too busy to spend a little thought on it, you will surely find some plan which will fit your particular case. Outside of the larger volume of business you will secure the scheme is worth a trial, because other dealers, and your customers, will appreciate that you are alert and willing to give them the best store and service that you possibly can.

In enlisting the services of Mr. Storm in the new enterprise, the Tobacco Products Corporation executed a move which cannot fail to strengthen their organization. Mr. Storm has been identified with the cigar business all his life. He is the son of the late Henry Storm, of the old house of Straiton & Storm. He started his career in a small way in East 27th Street, New York City, and later joined the selling staff of R. C. Brown & Company, cigar jobbers. Later he opened a retail and jobbing store on East 42nd Street, where he remained until June, 1907, when he succeeded R. C. Brown & Company, which was a branch of the Straiton & Storm business.

About this time Straiton & Storm sold out to Kirbs, Wirthheim & Schiffer. When the George L. Storm & Company incorporated the Brown business, they sold a half interest to the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, for which factory, the house of Storm was one of the largest distributors.

Mr. Storm is an aggressive, resourceful, shrewd business man with a wide vision and unusual capacity. He cannot fail to make good in his new connection, if he is given the proper tools with which to work.

Store First Opened "Good Friday" Does Good Business

Louis H. Opperman of Johnstown, Pa., Operating Two Stands, One of Which is Oldest in the City—Gives Reasons For Success

There are many well managed and attractive cigar stores in Central Pennsylvania, but a dealer now operating several stores in Johnstown claims to be operating the best one between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. This man is Louis H. Opperman, who is running the oldest cigar store in the city, at 144 Clinton Street.

Louis H. Opperman

The Main Street building cost Mr. Opperman $75,000 and is finished up in the finest manner any dealer could wish. The fixtures are of solid mahogany, marble and French plate glass. It is shown in the cut and the size can easily be imagined.

Mr. Opperman started in business on April 8, 1898, at the Clinton Street store. The above date happened to be Good Friday, which he considers a good omen for his business. Since that time he has acquired two more stands, one at 223 Franklin Street, which he states is the largest cigar store and barber shop in Johnstown, and the last and finest stand at 411 Main Street, which was opened for business June 24, 1911.

The Main Street building cost Mr. Opperman $75,000 and is finished up in the finest manner any dealer could wish.

When asked what he based his success upon Mr. Opperman said, "The main thing is for the dealer to look after as much of the detail as possible. He should see that all customers are satisfied and be ready to stand behind any article sold; to make right the complaints. And the stock: Mine is always kept as fresh as it is possible to keep it, that should be a point for any dealer to spend his time and energy upon. I started in business before I was twenty-one years of age and had hardly enough to pay the rent, which I had to do a month in advance."

The lines of cigars carried by Mr. Opperman are as varied as could be wished. Starting with his nickel brands he features the "Cinco," "Roigs," the "Tom Keene" and the "John McCullough." The domestic ten centers show such cigars as the "Girard" in many sizes and "Robert Burns," with Havanas, the E. H. Gato full line, Regensburg "Americans," "Flor de San Martin y Leon," and the "Ruy Lopez." The imported brands include "Hoyo de Monterrey," "H. Uppmann," "Romeo y Julieta."

Anything in the tobacco line is on hand. The manufacturers represented are Falks Tobacco Company, Monopol Tobacco Works, R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company, American Tobacco Company, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and The Surbrug Company.

Cigarettes carried are, "Melachrinos," "Makaroff," "Phillip Morris," "Brennig's Own," "Khedival," "Stephano Brothers," and "Schinasi Brothers," while Mr. Opperman is considered to have one of the best lines of pipes throughout the State, handling a line of William Demuth & Co.

Ed J. Earl Opens Store in Kansas City

Another Perego & Moore store is shortly to be opened in Kansas City, Mo. It will be located at Eighth and Baltimore Streets, in the Massachusetts Building. The firm will be styled the Ed J. Earl Cigar Company. Edwin Turner, for many years manager of the N. Switzer Cigar Company, will have charge of the stand.

New Factory For Mt. Carmel Cigar Company

Owing to the necessity for increased floor space the Mount Carmel Cigar Company, of Mount Carmel, Pa., has let a contract for the erection of a new four-story factory building at Fifth and Hickory Streets, that place. The building will be 150 by 50 feet and four stories in height, accommodating several hundred hands.

IN the course of a chat the other day with a retailer the subject turned to the American "national" game—poker. Speaking of great games the retailer said: "A newspaper friend of mine told me of a game the boys on his paper used to play after they got the 'sheet' out. As a rule, play did not run very high, but one night after a few hands, in which nothing interesting turned up one of the fellows opened. The next man stayed, but the rest, with the exception of the last man, dropped out. He raised it and the opener came back strong. The other fellow, seeing that there was something doing, flopped.

"The opener raised again, seeing some soft money in sight. Nothing daunted his opponent raised again. Excitement meanwhile rose to fever-heat and the other fellows crowded around to watch. It was very apparent that someone would have to borrow carfare to go home. Side-bets were made as to who would be the winner, but the betting of the players still went merrily on.

"Finally, reaching the limit of his resources, but with unshaken confidence in his hand, one borrowed some money from a friend, and in a few minutes the other had to do the same. They borrowed every cent they could scrape up and at last, by mutual consent decided to call the game off until the following night, thus giving both an opportunity to get some more money. Each hand sealed in an envelope, and bearing the owner's name, was securely locked in the office safe.

"The next night the performance was repeated. By this time news of this record-breaking game had spread widely, and it was decided that the following night the hands would be opened in a cafe where the fellows were in the habit of congregating and the name of the winner announced. The pot by this time contained the respectable sum of $350, even.

"Well, the first envelope was opened and was found to contain a straight flush in spades, king high. Imagine the excitement that prevailed when the other envelope was found to contain a straight flush, king high, in diamonds! When the two 'winners' paid back the money they had borrowed, they split up the sum of thirty dollars between them,—twenty of which was their own money."

At a dinner given by Chicago physicians recently to visiting German doctors and their wives, the German women astonished the American diners by opening up cases of cigarettes after eating and proceeding, by special permission of the management of the La Salle Hotel, to light up their little smokes. This is the first time the privilege of smoking had been granted to women smokers in that well-known hostelry.

Mrs. Richard Mond, wife of one of the visiting M. D.'s said that in Germany only the married women smoke in public, the young women of this country having far more liberty than their fraulein sisters in the Vaterland. In that country, after a dinner, the ladies light their cigarettes first; this is an indication to the men that smoking is permitted, after which signal, they fire up also.

There are now 125 enlisted men chewing tobacco in the New York Navy Yard who will decide which of forty kinds of brands will be bought for the use of the Tars. They will be occupied six weeks and should be able to tell others by that time a few things about the practice. The bids were opened for 200,000 pounds which will be purchased, prices ranging from 32 to 42 cents for the various grades. After the Jackies have masticated to their fill and given their verdict the awards will be made. This is an annual event and the idea is to supply the tobacco which is best liked. The matter of suiting the different tastes is one which is regarded to be of sufficient importance to warrant the practice.

King William the old Holland monarch, who was known to his subjects as Vader Willem, was much prejudiced against smoking and the courtiers who indulged were very careful to keep it a secret from him. The court had one privileged character, nevertheless, who refused to give up the practice. This was Kuh, the royal portrait painter, who would fire up when and wherever he pleased. It was said that on one occasion he was commanded to paint a likeness of his royal master. Kuh prepared to do so, but a disagreement arose as soon as he started to smoke. He refused to paint the portrait unless the king gave away to his foible, claiming that he could work properly only when he was smoking, which was agreed to. The king had not been seated long before he fell asleep from the fumes of the pipe. Kuh continued for a time when he followed suit. Willem was the first to awake and upon seeing the painter indignantly exclaimed, "Why, sir, you are asleep." The painter, aroused from his slumbers, did not realize that he was in the presence of his superior and replied abruptly, "Yes, but you fell asleep first."

I heard a short time ago of the pranks of the wife of a salesman friend of mine which amused me greatly until the matter culminated in the Court of Domestic Relations. It seems that Jim, which by the way is not his right name, had been a little wild before he married. He had tried hard to settle down to a quiet married life, and was doing well. Though he thought a great deal of his wife, he wanted a night off occasionally. Now and then "the boys" would tip him off to a quiet little poker game where they had some fine time and yet never lost much.

But Mrs. Jim thought differently on this subject and berated Jim about going out once and sometimes twice a week. The "fireside for His'n" was her argument every time. I often teased Jim about his spouse and said that she would forget it before long. A few days ago I met him on the street carrying around a countenance which would have put a life-sentence prisoner to shame. It seems that to cure Jim of his naughty habits his better half had started to imitate him, thus showing a horrible example and shaming him to "reforming".

The matter has been settled, and Jim now pays $8 per toward the support of Mrs. Jim.

It appears that the announcement that Internal Revenue Commissioner Cabell, had decided not to enforce the collection of revenue on free cigar smokers in cigar factories, was too premature. Mr. Cabell is still on the warpath, loudly proclaiming that the law has not been rescinded, and he intends to see that Uncle Sam is not flim-flammed.

While the bellicose Mr. Cabell has no objections to the passage of a new law authorizing that smokers consumed in factories for experimental purposes, shall be exempt, he will insist that these free smokers shall not be taken from the factories, and until such an amendment is passed, the manufacturers will have to hand over the tax on all smokers consumed by the workmen, whether used for experimental purposes or otherwise.

It is estimated that there will be nearly $1,000,000 additional revenue collected this year by the government as a result of the enforcement of the tax on free smokers.

It is altogether likely that legislation will be enacted at the next session of Congress permitting the exemption of about two per cent. of the smokers from taxation, but rigidly enforcing the provisions against the removal of free smokers from the factory. Factory owners, as a whole, will have no objection to this, but what of the down-trodden cigarmakers?

What of the graft made by selling these free smokers?

Considerable dissatisfaction has already been aroused over the enforcement of the new Guarantee Stamp Act recently passed by the Cuban Government. Cuban manufacturers who have been doing a large export business to Buenos Ayres, complain that the new law is a hardship upon them. It has been the custom to ship the cigars to Buenos Ayres in a very thin cedar box, resembling cartons. This was done to save duties as the tariff is levied on the gross weight. Importers receiving cigars so packed, were accustomed to re-pack them in regular cigar boxes and throw away the thin coverings.

Under the new law, which compels all cigars for export purposes, to be stamped in Cuba, it is impossible to throw away the original thin boxes and substitute the regular boxes, since they will not bear the Guarantee Stamp. The old scheme of shipping cigars to Buenos Ayres is illegal since it is prohibited to attach the stamps to cigar boxes that have left Cuba.

The new conditions will necessitate a complete change in the method of shipping cigars to Buenos Ayres, unless the law is immediately amended by the Cuban Congress.

Press reports from Pittsburgh have it that the edict has gone forth from the headquarters of the United Cigar Stores, in that city, abolishing the cigar cutter. It is claimed, and justly, that it is a prolific source of infection from many diseases. Spittoons are also under the ban and will be no more in United stands.

Without doubt the cigar cutter, as now used, is a menace to health. Possibly seventy-five per cent. of cigar smokers who use the cutter wet the tip of the cigar before placing it to the cutter. The next man who inserts his cigar is taking chances of contracting contagious diseases previous users of the cutter may have. Doctors state that disease is spread more widely by persons expectorating than by any other source.

Be that as it may, the fact remains that the cigar cutter will be ostracized before long unless it is used differently. On many of these contrivances are the words: "Do not touch the cutter with the fingers." Why not make it: "Do not wet tip of cigar with lips before inserting it in cutter. That is a dangerous practice and a source of infection from disease."

Probably the education of the smoker to the proper method of using the cutter would go a far way toward remedying this detriment to health. The cutter has made such an important position for itself on the counter of the cigar dealer that its abolishment would be keenly felt.

Cigar manufacturers in the First Pennsylvania District are to be congratulated on the showing their factories made during October. For in that month there were made 79,014,020 large cigars, more than for any month in the annals of cigar manufacturing in that district. The only month which came close to these figures is October, 1911, at which time 77,351,780 cigars were turned out.

These are the only months during which the production figures have gone over the seventy million mark.

Congratulations! May there be many more months like October.

W. W. St. John Named As Head of British-American Stores

New York Retailer Elected As Temporary President—Men Behind Movement Still Unwilling To Be Revealed—Concern Will Do Retail and Jobbing Business

THE first apparently authentic news as to the men who will direct the affairs of the newly incorporated British-American Cigar Stores Company, is the statement issued by W. W. St. John, a well-known New York retail dealer, who has been elected president of the company, and by Richard H. Rankin, a lawyer, who has been chosen as secretary and treasurer.

According to Mr. St. John, a board of directors, consisting of eleven men, has been chosen, but their names will be withheld from publication for the present.

It is the plan of the new $3,000,000 corporation to embark at once, into the retail and jobbing business and eventually into the manufacturing end.

The two retail stores of Mr. St. John, one on 42nd Street, and the other at 225 Fifth Avenue, have already been taken over by the new corporation, and options on six other retail stores in New York City have been secured.

The operation of this new chain of stores will be along the lines of the "United," involving an extensive coupon system and other methods which have proven successful in retail chain stores.

Mr. St. John is quoted as denying that "there is any connection between the British-American Tobacco Company and the new enterprise," although it is hinted that such a connection may develop later. It is believed that the officers so far announced, are merely temporary selections and that when the hands of the men behind the movement are shown, the names of a number of very prominent cigar and tobacco men will be revealed.

U. C. M. Company and Liggett & Myers Declare Dividends

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of one and three-quarters per cent. on the preferred stock, payable November 30 to stock of record November 22.

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company has also declared a dividend of three per cent. on the common stock, payable December 1. Although no announcement had been made it was understood to be a quarterly dividend, thus putting the stock on a twelve per cent. basis.

Alexis Ehrman, of Ehrman Bros. & Co., San Francisco jobbers, was noticed in New York during the past week.

Another Store for Schulte Chain

Another link has been added to the chain of Schulte retail stores by the acquisition of a store in Smith, Gray & Company's building, Broadway and Warren Streets, New York. The store is 18x45 feet and has been leased for twenty-five years. It is an excellent location for retail trade. In connection with this news, it is reported that the Schulte Cigar Stores Company will be re-incorporated with a capital of $5,000,000 early next year.

"Heroes" Gaining Ground On Pacific Coast

W. I. Pixley, the Pacific Coast representative of I. B. Krinsky, the Brooklyn manufacturer, reports that the "Heroes," cork tip cigarettes, are doing exceptionally well on the Coast. His duplicate orders are keeping the factory hustling. Business with I. B. Krinsky is exceptionally good and they are working overtime to fill orders. "Fifth Ave." cork tips are steadily gaining ground everywhere.

W. H. Patterson, a cigar dealer of Fanport, N. Y., has rented a store in the Lucas block on Main Street, in that city, and will shortly remove his store to the new location.

Park & Tilford Buy Hirsch Factory

PARK & TILFORD, one of New York's largest wholesale grocery and cigar importing houses, have just consummated a deal for the purchase of the Ferdinand Hirsch Company's Key West cigar factory, which concern has been making the "Mi Favorita" brand for Park & Tilford for the past twenty years.

The factory will be operated under the name of the "Mi Favorita Cigar Company," with A. W. Arnold as president. Mr. Arnold is an acknowledged expert on tobacco and his twenty-six years' connection with the Hirsch factory, qualifies him admirably for his new position.

It is announced by Park & Tilford that under the new arrangement they will be able to offer "Mi Favorita" cigars to the trade at factory prices, and they will spare no effort nor expense to increase the sales of this brand throughout the United States.

A. Abrahams, who has conducted the big cigar stand in the Grand Central Station, New York, for many years, has renewed his lease.

Tobacco Alliance Acquiring Members

Promoters of the newly organized Tobacco Trades Alliance, New York, have issued forms for the exchange of information between members using the Central Credit Bureau. It is stated that the membership of the Alliance is growing fast.

Cleveland Dealers Talk Holiday Business

J. B. Shields, of Shields-Wertheim Company, Predicts Record Year for Firm—Pyle & Allen Take Over Stieglitz Store—I. Stern & Company a New Cleveland Cigar Concern

CLEVELAND, OHIO, November 10.

PEOPLE around these parts are starting to talk holiday business and beginning to prepare for the usual rush. It seems we never can prepare ourselves early enough. The Consumers' League in this city is trying to have a law passed to compel storekeepers, that is the large stores, to close the night before Christmas. They feel that a great many people neglect their shopping and let everything go to the last minute, making the already worn-out clerk much more fatigued. It certainly is a good thing from every point of view.

The Jenkinson Company report they are very busy getting their holiday goods out. H. K. Horner, the district manager, has increased his territory recently. It now includes Ohio and the surrounding territory.

Ben Bloch, of the Phillip Morris Company, was in town the past week.

Mr. Bauer, formerly of the Surbrug Company, is now the local sales manager of the George B. Scrambling Company. They are 'way oversold on goods at the present time and their business shows no let-up.

Leo W. Mayer, secretary and treasurer of the Neumann & Mayer Co., of Philadelphia, was in town this past week for a few days. Mr. Mayer, with his Cleveland representative I. J. Mittelberger, left on a two weeks' trip in the Middle West. They both report a splendid increase, with business bigger and better than ever.

Willis Andrus, of the Garcia Company, was with us this past week. The Scrambling Company are featuring the "Bank Note" cigar, made by the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company.

The Stieglitz cigar store, at the corner of Prospect and East Fourth Streets, has been taken over by the Pyle & Allen Co. Irving Barendt is the manager. Business is fine and they feel this corner location is a valuable acquisition for them.

The P. & A. Company report they are short on "New Bachelors" and business is better than ever, as they are many thousand oversold. The factory writes they are unable to supply the demand, but are doing their best to keep up with the orders. They are getting ready for their holiday business and their salesmen report a very nice advance trade. They are getting in fortieths packings, clear Havanas, and domestic goods.

The "Liedereranz" and "American Cabinet" brands were represented the past week by Fred Suss, of the R. Steinecke Company.

Victor Torsch, representing T. J. Dunn Company, makers of the "New Bachelor" cigar, was also with us.

"BATSCHARI" CIGARETTES MADE IN BADEN-BADEN, GERMANY

A. Batschari has long been the favorite cigarette maker for the Kaiser. A number of New York Club Men who have smoked this brand, have formed a company to push the goods. They are blended from Turkish tobacco and made with a long stem of cardboard

The Fred G. Gollmar Cigar Company report they are doing an increase in business and expect a big holiday trade. The brands they are featuring are the "La Lita," in sixteen sizes; "El Modelo," "Somello" and "Henry the Fourth." In broadleaf Havana cigars the "La Saramita" is the best seller they have and they carry that in all the leading sizes. The "S. G. Brown" cigar, of the S. G. Brown Company, New York, is also a big seller in domestic. They are carrying all the holiday cigars of the above brands in large quantities and expect a big business on same. Owing to the big business in the Arcade stand they had to add another man to their already large force. The Rathskeller stand has also been increasing in business and they carry the same brands as they do at their store in the Arcade.

Hi Hammer and his brother, Mort, from Chicago, who handle the "Lucia" cigar for the Coral-Wodiska, report a very big business. In nickel brands their best sellers are "Baby Saras," "Coral-Wodiskas," "Resagos," "Idolita," "Somello" and a good many special brands made by the Shields-Wertheim Company, and a full line of cigarettes, of which the Phillip Morris is their biggest seller.

J. B. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, is out in the Middle Western territory looking things over. The letters received shows he is doing quite some business and making some nice contracts for next year. Mr. Shields says he thinks it will be one of the biggest years in the history of the cigar game. Considering the crop conditions and conditions in the country from a financial and business standpoint at this time, Mr. Shields says there is no question but what next year will be the banner year in the cigar business. The factories as a whole have been pretty much oversold nearly all of the year, and they are going to meet the same good conditions at the beginning of next year. All in all, he says, it looks like the bumper year in the last ten.

I. Stern & Co., a new concern in the cigar game, will open up in the next ten days or two weeks, on Euclid, near Fifty-fifth Street, a high grade cigar and billiard parlor.

Stace & Vincent are well satisfied with their new location. Things are going along swimmingly with them. M.

Manahan & Gardner Store Changes Hands

The Hanover Cigar Store, of Syracuse, N. Y., owned by Manahan & Gardner, has been acquired by W. R. Dykeman. The new proprietor is an old hand at the cigar business, having formerly operated a store at Trenton and Onondaga Streets, Syracuse. This was the second store of Manahan & Gardner, who sold it because they considered their store on James Street would require their entire attention.

October Cigar Output Shows Enormous Increase

Production for First Ten Months of Present Year Far in Advance Over Same Period During 1911

THE revenue receipts at the local office show a continued and large increase in the production throughout the First Pennsylvania District. The increase in large cigars alone for the month of October over the same month last year is more than a million and a half and over last September more than thirteen million and a half. Cigarettes and manufactured tobacco also show steady increases. There is a decided falling off in little cigars and cigarettes at $3.60.

The figures for October, as compared with October, 1911, are as follows:

| | 1912. | 1911. | Increase. |
|--------------------------|------------|------------|------------|
| Cigars | 79,014,020 | 77,351,780 | 1,662,240 |
| Little Cigars | 28,315,000 | 30,055,350 | *1,740,350 |
| Cigarettes at $3.60 ... | 25,900 | 33,200 | *7,300 |
| Cigarettes at $1.25 ... | 8,752,600 | 8,487,840 | 264,760 |
| Mfg. Tobacco, lbs. ... | 105,707 | 86,634 | 19,073 |

* Decrease.

The figures for last September were:

|----------------------------|------------|
| Cigars | 65,235,370 |
| Little Cigars | 25,029,000 |
| Cigarettes | 8,827,400 |
| Cigarettes at $3.60 | 5,400 |
| Manufactured tobacco | 91,557 |

The production of cigars so far this year is far in advance of the same period last year. For the first ten months of 1912, 630,185,370 cigars were turned out, compared with 622,836,790 for that time in 1911. When the figures for the remaining months are at hand without doubt 1912 can be depended upon to exceed the 1911 cigar output by many thousands.

Joseph Guckenheimer Leaves Neumann & Mayer Company

Joseph Guckenheimer, a member of the firm of Neumann & Mayer Co., has retired from the concern. It is not known what field of activity Mr. Guckenheimer will next enter. There will be no change in the policy or personell of the concern. Leo W. Mayer is now in the West pushing their products, the "Bella Mundo," "El Tello" and "Little El Tello."

Joseph S. Vetterlein, of Vetterlein Brothers, has been under the weather for the past three weeks, but last reports give it that he is rapidly improving.

Quaker City Trade Outlook

THE present era of prosperity which has struck Philadelphia manufacturers should culminate in many of the factories chalking up new records for production. Could they only secure more hands there is no doubt that 1912 would be looked back upon in later years as one of the banner months in the local manufacturing circles. The revenue figures for October exceed those of any month in the history of the trade. The nearest approach to October's output is that of last year, which established a new record, and which is beaten this year by 1,662,240 more cigars. These two months are the only two in local cigar annals which have shown a production over the seventy million mark.

There is much speculation among leaf dealers regarding the probable attitude of the new Congress toward the trade and the duty on Sumatra in particular. As is well known Philadelphia leaf merchants favor a radical reduction in this duty, which they assert favors a certain few, at the expense of many.

Jobbing houses are all doing a heavy business. Not many new goods are being pushed at this time, they preferring to concentrate their efforts on getting their share of the trade on the better established brands. The holiday packings are beginning to come in, although the tendency this year is to avoid the special wrappings. Dealers claim that there is so much trouble in pushing out these packings after the holiday season is over, that they do not care to stock up any more than is absolutely necessary.

Warner Searle, After Short Stay, Leaves for West

Warner Searle, the popular representative of the Juan Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, after a stay of but a day at local headquarters, started for a trip of six weeks' duration through the West and Middle West. Mr. Searle has been uniformly successful on the Portuondo brands and in many sections of the West the quality of this long-established Philadelphia firm's products assures a year 'round heavy trade.

Thirty Per Cent. Increase for "Counsellor"

The repeating qualities of the "Counsellor" cigar have never been more exemplified than at present. The local factory of Allen R. Cressman's Sons reports an increase in business in the past month over the same period last year of more than thirty per cent. The out-of-town factories are all working with a full force of hands.

What "Havana Ribbon" Travelers Are Doing

"Havana Ribbon" sales are continuing to show a steady increase for Bayuk Brothers Company, and the firm is severely taxed to secure sufficient production to meet the demand.

Mr. E. C. McAllister, North Jersey representative, called at headquarters this week to urge more prompt shipments for his trade. Mr. McAllister recently placed the "Havana Ribbon" with Schwarz & Son, of Newark, N. J., for their territory and looks for a large distribution from that firm.

Lyle T. Shacklett, who covers the extreme South, has added Hill Brothers, Miami, Florida, to his list of jobbers, and anticipates some live business from the Florida east coast.

George Stallman, who controls the distribution at York, Pa., was a recent visitor to the Philadelphia office and reported "Ribbons" duplicating with the greatest satisfaction in his territory.

"Reynaldo" Cigar Heavily Oversold

Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb are much oversold on their "Reynaldo" cigar. Lilly, Dungan & Co., of Baltimore, who are featurig the brand, will soon have placed in front of their place of business an electric display sign advertising this smoke. The Wright Drug Company, of Milwaukee, is also doing extremely well on the "Reynaldo." They only took the cigar on a short time ago. Terry & Duncan wholesale the "Reynaldo" in Philadelphia.

Night Work at T. & O. Factory

The Theobald & Oppenheimer Company has been compelled to work at night to balance its output with incoming orders. They are handicapped, as are many other local manufacturers, by the shortage of hands.

B. Horwitz, Up-town Sub-jobber, Fails

B. Horwitz, a retail tobacco dealer and sub-jobber, located at 2608 Richmond Street, has called a meeting of his creditors. It is not known what his liabilities or assets are as yet. One of the large central jobbers is said to be in the failure.

Western Campaign Planned for "El Wadora"

E. D. Marshall, a road representative of Sig. C. Mayer & Co., has been at the local office planning another campaign for the "El Wadora" on the Pacific Coast. Mr. Marshall has been securing fine results in his district and plans to work some novel schemes for furthering the popularity of this brand. Sig. C. Mayer is now on a Western trip looking over the situation and will be back in about a week.

The T. H. Hart Company is having excellent results on the "Five of Harts" and "Heartsease" brands. The out-of-town trade is now sending for the holiday supplies, which are making the factory hustle to get them out on time.

Recent visitors among the retail trade were William Taylor, of the Romeo & Julieta factory, and J. W. King, Cuesta-Rey & Co.

A. Bolen & Son are opening a retail stand at 35 North Fifteenth Street, where they will manufacture their own brands of cigars.

What Philadelphia Leaf Dealers Are Doing

Julius Vetterlein, on his recent trip to Havana, purchased some 1,100 bales of the Cuban leaf. Mr. Vetterlein stated that while the new crop is good and very aromatic, he believes that in many respects it has been overrated. He purchased some Remedios, which, all things considered, is an all 'round good quality. This was Mr. Vetterlein's first trip to the Island for quite a while, his sons having attended to this branch of the business in the meantime. Herman Vetterlein made the journey in February.

Mr. Vetterlein expects to look over the field in Wisconsin in about a month, where they have warehouses and carry a heavy stock of tobacco.

E. M. Hubbell, one of the best known buyers of Edger-ton, Wis., sojourned in Philadelphia for several days, while on an Eastern trip. He was accompanied by his wife and took a flyer to Atlantic City and adjacent points. Mr. Hubbell stated that he had contracted for several hundred acres of the new Wisconsin crop, which could truly be said to be fine in every respect. While here he called upon his many friends in the local market.

The sterling house of John R. Young & Son report a growing and steady demand for 1911 Pennsylvania. This has sold well all summer and this fall is being sought more than was at first expected.

The "November" issue of "Hussey's Little Traveller," that breezy little house organ published every month by the A. Hussey Leaf Tobacco Company, has been mailed to the many customers of the firm. This is the Thanksgiving number and contains much matter of an interesting nature to the trade. The Thanksgiving "editorial" is especially good and will give every tobacco man who has a bad case of the blues a few minutes of cheerful entertainment. It advises the reader to:

"Get a big, fat turkey, feed the family all it can stand and then take a nice long nap. It's a great deal better than complaining. If you can't see anything to be thankful about, go to sleep and forget to be miserable.

"But better still, boost yourself a bit in spirit—fool yourself into believing that a lot of disagreeable things might have happened to you. You may have lost an eye or half a dollar since the last Thanksgiving went into the discard.

"Cheer up, life isn't half over!"

An article calling attention to the parcels post as an advantage to the small manufacturers and merchants is also given, as well as several newspaper ads, which, for timeliness and attractive arrangement, are hard to beat.

John Sutter, the local manager of the A. Hussey Leaf Tobacco Company, is now in Cuba looking over the market. He will be home in several weeks.

Roig & Langsdorf Occupy New Offices

Roig & Langsdorf moved into their new offices last week and are now settling themselves for a busy fall. The offices are far better than the old ones in every respect. The main handicap in the other building was the lack of elbow room. The space the office occupied was badly needed for shipping purposes. Progress on the "Girard" is reported to be excellent. The returns from New England are especially gratifying.

Ideal Weather Benefits Milwaukee Dealers

Cigar Stand Privileges in City Hall to Be Let to Highest Bidder—Wonder Smoking Pipe Manufacturing Company New Concern for Racine—Number of Changes Among Stores

MILWAUKEE, WIS., November 12. IDEAL weather has helped to keep the local retailers in good spirits and business is quite good. Christmas stocks are already being shown by a great many of the retailers and, judging from the advance sales, this year will be greater than ever.

A resolution has been introduced by Alderman Casey authorizing the Commissioner of Public Works to let the privilege for a cigar stand in the corridor of the City Hall to the highest bidder. The location is ideal and should be largely sought, as many hundreds of people have business daily in some part of the large structure.

November 15th an order went into effect discontinuing the privilege of smoking on all city street cars.

Arthur F. Raab, proprietor of the city news depot at Manitowoc, Wis., and also at Sheboygan, has taken over a new stand in the latter city. Mr. Raab will conduct the stand in the street car office after November 15th. It will be known as "The Terminal Cigar Company." He will install a complete set of new fixtures, consisting of large cases made of golden oak and based with marble. A complete line of cigars, tobacco, etc., will be carried.

The cigar store of Ernest Moyer at Janesville, Wis., was recently the scene of a robbery. Several dozen holders, meerschaum pipes, etc., were taken. The cash register was also rifled; about $100 in all was taken from the store.

A new pipe manufacturing concern has been established at Racine, Wis. The firm is named the Wonder Smoking Pipe Manufacturing Company, with a capital stock of $10,000 divided into 1,000 shares, at $10 each. The incorporators are Martin Rasmussen, Louis Rasmussen and Hans L. Larsen.

Representatives of the American Tobacco Company held a meeting at Chippewa Falls a few days ago. Among those present were Geo. E. Bow, of New York; S. M. Bennett, Milwaukee; W. Picott, Eau Claire; O. C. Krause and A. C. Hacker, of Milwaukee; R. C. Page, Jackson, Mich., and Charles Chisholm, Chippewa Falls, Wis.

The Cuba Rica Cigar Company in the Wells Building is doing a very good business. "Tasso" is the feature display.

A. O. Meister is making a fine display of "La Preferencia" cigars and reports a very good business on all lines, including the "Cinco" and "Equity."

Fay Lewis & Brother Co. continue to enjoy a good business at both retail stores. The "Webster," "Savarona," "Tom Moore" and "El Sidelo" are moving very well. The display windows are being used to feature the "Club Special" and a line of pipes. The wholesale department are also very busy.

Leo Abraham makes no complaint, all the retail stores doing a nice business. The "Lovera," "La Verdad," "Van Dyck," "Tadema" and "Don Correlo" are all moving well. The "Charter" also continues to hold its own.

Geo. Allanson Company are doing a very good business, as are also Ralph Wettstein and Freitag Brothers.

Among the manufacturers the Harvester factory continues very busy and are at present turning out many fancy packages for the Christmas trade. The Mi Lola Cigar Company are increasing sales right along and expect to do even a larger business next year.

Isidore Lederer reports a gratifying business from all sections on the "La Palina," made by the Congress Cigar Company, of Chicago. This brand has taken well with the trade and can now be had in all sizes from five cents up.

Frank Stockley sold his cigar business at Stevens Point, Wis., to Geo. J. Smalley.

Joe Gruetmacher bought a half interest in the cigar business of Herro Brothers at Columbus, Wis.

Last Minute Trade Notes From Seattle

SEATTLE, November 12. H. Gerlach (McHie Scotten Tobacco Company) spent last week in the Yakima Valley putting a special effort on "Union Scout" plug and scrap.

V. R. Gaspard (Liggett & Myers) is working hard on "Union Standard."

L. A. Sorg, Coast manager in the smoking department for Liggett & Myers, is now in Seattle.

H. M. Maxwell, of Wenatchee, just moved into his new place of business. He will also continue business at the old stand.

M. M. Schumer, E. A. Hall and Dr. Snyder just returned from a week's hunting trip. Schumer reports blue grouse, native pheasants and quail very plentiful, coming home with a full bag. Doctor Snyder is reported to be a terror on pheasants. E. M. Hall's portion of the game was very limited on account of selecting the difficult shots.

A. M. Nevin, of North Yakima, Wash., reports a very big business since he moved to his new location.

H. K. Goldberg, of North Yakima, will move into his new location about January 1st.

Paul Fein, an old-time Ellensberg tobacco dealer, died a few days ago. The business will continue under the management of his son, R. Fein.

Urges Burley Growers to Hold Crops

Silas Shelburne, Veteran Tobacco Man, Advises Against Selling on the Farm—Says High Prices Are Sure to Come

IN a recent statement in which he reviewed the burley situation thoroughly, Silas Shelburne, the well-known burley expert, advised growers to wait for a rise in prices and scouted the idea of cutting out the 1913 crop, as had been discussed by some growers. Mr. Shelburne said in part:

"Some of the planters seem to be of the impression that this year's tobacco crop will sell low; that there will be more of the bright grades than will be wanted, and that the red grade will be most in demand. No doubt the good red will be wanted and will sell well. But the bright will also be in demand and I believe it will sell high.

"This idea of low prices for the crop has caused some people to favor cutting out the next crop, and are probably advanced by parties holding old stock or by the country buyers and pin-hookers who are running over the country buying up all the best bright crops for from 9 to 9½ cents, which I think is much less than this class of tobacco is likely to sell for in the open market. I do not know how it will sell, but there is every showing for good prices. On the Eastern markets the competition is strong and the average prices for the new crop are higher than was ever known before.

"On some of the markets where sales last all day, their averages are reported to be from 16 to 20 cents. Now while we cannot expect such high prices for the burley crop, I do hope for some of this competition to reach us. The same buyers will be here. In fact, about every manufacturer in the world will have his order on the Lexington market—so many I can't name them—which will give us strong competition and the highest market in the country. So we take the liberty of advising our friends of the existing conditions so that they may not be picked up on their crops. No one can say what is in the future and I cannot guarantee prices, but must say that the outlook is good.

"Some of this tobacco is being bought by parties to resell on this market and some of it to be shipped out and it is not likely that they would go to the country to buy if they did not know that they were getting it cheaper than they will have to pay here on the market.

"It now looks as though all the best crops will be bought up before the market opens up and prices are fully established.

"I expect the common dark and slaty stuff to sell low, as there is an overstock of that, but the trade is short on the bright grades and on all good working stock, and all of this should sell well.

"There is an increase of acreage this year of about 10 per cent, but the crop is light in weight and the yield will be about 25 per cent less, which will give us about 15 per cent less tobacco in this crop. I advise all friends to put their crops on the open market where all the buyers can get a chance at them. This will force all the buyers to come on the open market for their stock and give us more competition and better prices.

"The private sales in the country for the last twenty years to one buyer have been low enough to show the people the need of a loose market when they can get the advantage of competition in the sale of the crops, and I believe it is to their interest to encourage and patronize the market that has brought them competitive buyers from all over the world for their crops.

"The crop last season made an average of over 10 cents on this market, and this being a much brighter crop should sell higher. Certainly the best crops that are now being bought up at an average of from 11 to 12½ cents per hundred are worth more and I feel confident will bring more when our markets open and prices are fully established."

Cole Tobacco Company, of Newport News, Reorganized

Alfred Thomas Purchases Interest in Concern Formerly Owned by the Late C. E. Cole

ANNOUNCEMENT was made last week of the reorganization of the Cole Tobacco Company, of Newport News, Virginia. The interest in the company formerly held by the late C. E. Cole, has been acquired by Alfred Thomas, who becomes president of the firm, and R. J. Charles and C. P. Brooks, vice-president and secretary, respectively. Mr. Thomas is the only new member of the firm, Mr. Charles and Mr. Brooks having been connected with the Cole Tobacco Company for a number of years.

It is understood that they will continue under the same name and at the same location, 2404 Washington Avenue, where they are doing a wholesale and retail tobacco business. They are the jobbers in that city for the "Havana Ribbon" cigar.

"El Dallo" Breaks Into New Orleans

Popular Baltimore Cigar to be Distributed by U. Koen & Company

UKOEN & CO., who are known through the South and Southwest as one of the biggest jobbing houses of New Orleans, have taken for distribution the "El Dallo" cigar, manufactured by Wertheimer Brothers, of Baltimore. U. Koen & Co. have excellent facilities for pushing this brand, and judging by the reception it has received in other parts of the country, should soon have it as one of their nickel leaders.

Wertheimer Brothers place great stress upon the unique packing of this cigar, and have advertised it extensively, and pushed it hard in all parts of the country. They claim it is made under ideal sanitary conditions, and are securing excellent results from their publicity campaign.

Quakertown Company Places Cigar in Buffalo

The H. Sommer Company, of Quakertown, Pa., recently closed a deal with the Holtz-Greib Company, Buffalo jobbers, to distribute their "Castillo de Oro Brevas." This is a five-cent cigar, and one million of them were sent in the first shipment. The Buffalo concern also wholesales the "King Clay" cigar, another Sommer piece of goods. Fred Sommer, of the Pennsylvania factory, carried through the deal.

The "Flor De Moss" in Indianapolis

The Mooney-Mueller Drug Company, of Indianapolis, are waging a heavy campaign, in that city, on the products of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, of Lancaster. The factory agent, E. H. Briody, is directing the work, and will push the "Flor de Moss" and "Moss Kids" cigars. The former brand has been well placed in that territory, but the "Moss Kids" has not been pushed as hard, although it has a fair local distribution.

Reid Tobacco Company Takes On "Bold" Cigar

BOBROW BROTHERS have placed their "Bold" cigar with the Reid Tobacco Company, of Altoona, Pa., a live jobbing house in that city, where a campaign on this popular Quaker City smoke will soon be waged with great vigor. They took on the brand as an experiment a short time ago and the rapid sales have warranted them in giving it all the opportunity possible to make a leading position in Altoona among nickel cigars.

The manufacturers of the "Bold" are rushed to the utmost in filling the demand. Night work has been the rule for some time. A number of "Bold" jobbers who are doing things with the brand are J. W. Killeen, Schenectady, N. Y., Loritz Brothers, of Denver, Col., and several others through the Middle West, where the "Bold" is coming along strong.

L. W. Walters is on a boosting trip to Washington, D. C., after which he will journey to York, Pa., and then take in Central Pennsylvania.

Pierson Cigar Company Dissolves

Business Taken Over By S. D. Pierson, Who Will Do Retail Trade

THE Pierson Cigar Company, of Indianapolis, Indiana, which, it was reported a short time ago, was involved financially, has been dissolved. This concern has been a prominent factor in the Indianapolis trade, and operated a chain of retail stores.

All the creditors of the firm have been paid off and the holdings of the company have been taken over by S. D. Pierson, who will confine his efforts to the retail end of the business. The quarters of the firm have also been removed from the South Meridian Street address to 27½ West Twelfth Street.

"Bolano" For Sol. H. Cohn Company

The Sol. H. Cohn Company, of Kansas City, who have just completed moving into their new home at 3527 Main Street, have taken on the distribution of the "Bolano" cigars of Francisco Bolano & Co. They will start to popularize this cigar among Kansas City retailers shortly after January 1st.

A new popular priced cigar being introduced to the Cincinnati trade is the "Deuce," put out by the J. B. Moss Company. It retails at three for five cents, and goes to the trade for $12.50.

A new auto truck has been added to those now in service by Thorwart & Roehling, Chicago jobbers. As usual a manufacturer has been given the privilege of using it for advertising purposes. The "La Famosa" cigar, from the factory of E. Kleiner & Co., New York, which is jobbed extensively by the Chicago house, has the privilege in this instance.

Wholesale Trade Items

The Neumann & Mayer Co., of Philadelphia, have placed their "Bella Mundo" cigar with Sam Dinkelspiel, of Louisville, Kentucky, also the "La Kota" a ten-cent cigar made by the same concern.

Hoffman & Robinson, jobbers, of San Francisco, have taken on the "Mi Rey" cigar put out by Rey, Strauss & Co., of New York. The deal was engineered by Charles Sichel, the factory representative.

George G. Edloff, a distributor, of Dallas, Texas, reports a fine trade on the "Gato" cigars, also the "44," manufactured by the 44 Cigar Company, of Philadelphia.

Niles & Moser, the Denver jobbers of the "El Verso" cigar of the Deisel-Wemmer Company, of Lima, Ohio, report a heavy demand for this popular ten-cent piece of goods. It is their ambition to make it as big a seller with them as the "San Felice" is in the nickel field.

The leading nickel cigar with the W. H. Harris Grocery Company, of Richmond, Va., is the "Havana Ribbon" of the Bayuk Brothers Company, of Philadelphia. By means of aggressive missionary work and advertising they are making it a big seller.

The "Plantista" cigar, made by the Compeer Cigar Company, is being jobbed extensively by A. Schrader & Co., of Chicago.

Straus Brothers, distributors, of Cincinnati, are heavy handlers of Tampa-made goods. Among their leaders are the "El Briche" goods of San Martin y Leon and "Cuesta-Rey" cigars.

The Smith Brothers Company, of New Orleans, report a constantly increasing fall trade. They do a heavy business in the state of Texas. This firm is now enjoying a fine distribution on the "Havana Ribbon" cigar.

Lang, Jones & Co., the large Portland, Oregon, jobbing house, has recently added to its sales force Ben Mitchell, who has been connected for years with J. B. Meyer of that city. Mr. Meyer will do some extensive traveling on the "Bolano" cigar, which Lang, Jones & Co., have been pushing heavily in Oregon.

The Apte Cigar Company, of St. Louis, has taken a lease on the store room at the northwest corner of Third and Pine Streets, that city, and will do a retail trade there as well as a wholesale business. This concern started in business at their Third and Chestnut Streets location six years ago and did nothing but a jobbing business, which has been constantly growing, necessitating the present change.

The auto delivery wagon is becoming more and more an advertising medium for many cigar manufacturers. The Lorber Cigar Company, of Kansas City, recently added an automobile delivery wagon to improve their service. The privilege of using the space on the side of the wagon was given to the Mazer Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Detroit, who featured their "Humo" brand.

A. R. White, a leading jobber of Camden, is making a big drive on the "Rose-O-Cuba" cigar, made by the Fleck Cigar Company, of Reading, Pa. This cigar is being popularized in that part of New Jersey by a window display campaign.

Ehrman Brothers, of San Francisco, report a heavy demand for "Optimos." The "Havana Ribbon" cigar, which is also distributed by them is one of their nickel leaders. Albert Ehrman expects to leave for a three months' tour abroad by way of Manila, starting about November 10th.

F. A. Davis & Sons Pushing "A. J. Cassatt"

FA. DAVIS & SONS, a Baltimore wholesale house that recently took on the "A. J. Cassatt" cigars, made by the Baum-Jaffe Company of Philadelphia, are placing it in a number of the best stands in that town. This jobbing house and the factory representative worked hand in hand and met with unusual success.

Among the larger stands that took on the cigar were the Hotel Emerson, Hotel Lexington, Hotel Kernan, C. S. Duer, H. P. Gross, M. F. Gebhardt, J. C. Roth, W. J. Richardson, and W. M. Fouch.

Late Trade Jottings

Ted Schmidt has purchased the cigar store in Nebraska City, Neb., formerly owned and operated by Howard Seymour.

The sixth United Cigar Store, in Washington, D. C., is being altered and will be occupied in a short time. It is located at Ninth and E Streets.

George M. Ashley, owner of the cigar privileges in Hotel Henking, Springfield, Mass., has purchased the retail cigar business of Cassidy Brothers at 459 Main Street, Springfield. The new owner is renovating the store, and will enlarge the stock.

L. H. Stieglitz, a Cleveland retail cigar dealer at East Fourth Street and Prospect Avenue for many years, has disposed of his store to Irving Barendt. Mr. Stieglitz, it is understood, has been in financial difficulties, which were adjusted at a meeting of the creditors.

E. H. Weiler, a St. Louis dealer, has just installed an up-to-date humidor in his store, with a capacity of 30,000 cigars.

George Farquhar, a well-known Suffield, Conn., tobacco grower, died recently. He was 59 years of age and is survived by a widow and five children.

Charles Miller of Monroeville, Ind., has purchased the interest of Stewart Brown in the Brown & Miller cigar factory of that town and will hereafter manufacture cigars in his own name at the old stand.

BIG INCREASE IN CIGAR OUTPUT

"United" Leases Grunow & Patterson Corner—Central Cigar Company to Open Second Stand January 1—Room For Much Sumatra in Market

DETROIT, November 10. WELL, it's all over now but the shouting, and in spite of campaign leaders and calamity howling newspapers, the day after the people so overwhelmingly voiced their confidence in the Democratic party and the principles of said party, with Woodrow Wilson as its standard bearer, was just the same as any other day, and there were no bank failures or earthquakes and even stocks went up, and so there you are.

Local manufacturers tell me that business is very good and the outlook for the future has a very rosy hue; in fact, the opening of manufacturing plants outside of Detroit, by two of our largest cigar concerns, is an indication of their faith that prosperity will continue irrespective of politics.

The Internal Revenue returns for this district continue to show an increase over the corresponding period of last year. Below are the figures for October of 1911 and 1912:

| | Manufactured Tobacco. | Cigars. |
|---------------|-----------------------|-------------|
| October, 1911 | $144,392.80 | $78,523.95 |
| October, 1912 | 201,923.61 | 81,551.79 |

On the evening of November 2nd Detroit was visited by a very disastrous conflagration in the establishment of T. B. Rayl & Co., hardware dealers, and in which fire the United Cigar Store, next door, at 116 Woodward Avenue, sustained a loss through fire, smoke and water, to the extent of 75 per cent. of stock carried. Michigan sales manager, Walter Scott, says the premises will be remodeled with as little delay as possible, and opened with a complete new equipment and stock.

December 1st, the United will fire its first gun in Flint, Mich., where a store has been leased and is now being renovated for them.

Another bit of "United" news is their lease in this city of the Grunow & Patterson corner, and they will open their eighth Detroit store there about November 16th. The corner is probably as good as any in the city, as the business development in that section has been little short of marvelous. There are few corners in Detroit where foot traffic is so heavy, and almost every car for the East Side or northeast section of the town, passes this corner. Grunow & Patterson have moved to 97 Gratiot Avenue, almost opposite the old stand, where they have been so long the writer cannot remember.

The cigar stand in the new Free Press Building will be run by one John Mangan, and opened in a few weeks with Mrs. Etta DeBoe, formerly of the Concrete Building cigar stand, in charge. Mrs. DeBoe is at present in charge of the Gilmore cigar store on Woodward Avenue, while Mr. Gilmore is out of the city.

At the cigar stand of Bert Johnson, in the G. & R. McMillan Building, a prominent display is made of "Recreation," a five-cent Sumatra-wrapped cigar from the factory of Joseph Schaefer, Dayton, Ohio.

Edwin Heineman, manager of the O'Brien & Co. cigar department, has been called to his home at Port Hope, Mich., on account of the serious illness of his sister.

One of the busiest little stands in the city is the one in the Whitney Building, and owned and presided over by C. J. Russell. "Russ" is some hustler and there with the hot stuff, and if there is any millionaire or merchant, bootblack or stenographer whom he does not call by given name, I never heard of it. Russell sells good Havanas and good domestics, and in the latter he is very loyal to the local brands.

M. A. LaFond Company have a feature display in the window of their Majestic Building store of "Pinzon" cigars, from the factory of M. Perez & Co., New York.

The Central Cigar Company will open its second store about January 1, 1913, at the corner of Woodward and Erskine, in the new concrete building of the Peninsular Engraving Company. A full line of the choicest cigars, tobaccos and smokers' articles will be carried, as this corner is on the very edge of Piety Hill, a fine residence section.

John P. Hemmeter, of the Hemmeter Cigar Company, has returned from a recreation trip to Europe much rested and in every way the picture of health.

We had the pleasure, during the past week, of a personal call from no one less than the amiable and always "dressed-to-the-minute" Adolph Froelich, of the firm of Samuel I. Davis & Co., of New York and Tampa, and who are manufacturers of the well-known "El Sidelo" cigars. Mr. Froelich made but a short stay in Detroit, as this territory is ably covered by Hornett, Hewitt & Co., of Toledo (formerly The Church & McConnell Co.), and they have placed this brand of clear Havana cigars in most of the best stands. The Pontchartrain Hotel stand is doing good business on the "Chesterfield" and the "Lily," both two-for-25-cent sizes, which represent a high type of tobacco and workmanship.

There seems to be room for the placing of a goodly quantity of Sumatra in this market, as the writer finds some large manufacturers not nearly stocked up, but hesitating about purchasing now, on account of the prevailing high prices. I have been informed that there has been some slashing of prices and the manufacturers seem to expect further reductions after January 1st. Well, I cannot see where the importer gets off, his 1912 bed has not been one of roses.

Doc. Rettick, the tobacco packer of Germantown, Ohio, breezed into town this week and, in company with Dick Tremblay, of the Hemmeter Cigar Company, is going up into the north woods on a hunting trip. It is hard to surmise what will happen when that reckless pair breaks loose, but at any rate, dear reader, we advise you to watch this page for news as to when to "omit flowers."

Cigar salesmen in town during the past few days were Jack McBlair, Marcellino Perez & Co.; Mr. Walker, S. S. Pierce Company, Boston; Mr. McFarland, of Bayuk Brothers, Philadelphia, and Leo Schoeneman, of Celestino Vega & Co., Tampa, Fla.

Leaf salesmen: Ray Sutter, Jacob Sutter & Son; Carl J. Kappenburgh, I. Kappenburgh & Sons; Ben Meyer, Meyer & Mendelsohn; Howard Kinney, H. Duys & Co., and Henry Fisher, of A. Cohn & Co. HEAVENRICH.

Maker of "Straight Cut" Cigar, I. Kohler, Yoe, Pa., Co-operating With Jobber to Push Brand

NEW game in the way of popularizing a cigar, which has caused great comment among the San Francisco trade, is now being carried through by S. S. Hirsch, the factory representative in San Francisco of I. Kohler, of Yoe, Pa., and the Petri Italian-American Cigar Company, which distributes the "Straight Cut" nickel cigar, manufactured by the Yoe factory.

The manufacturer and wholesalers contend that in order to meet the competition of the big premium houses, and in order to co-operate with the independent dealers, they are putting up a proposition which will allow the cigar bands to be redeemed to the value of one-half cent each. After these bands have been redeemed the amount can be used in merchandise orders at one of the largest San Francisco stores, the Emporium.

Meyer Jaskulek & Company Discontinue Cleveland Offices

Meyer Jaskulek & Co., of Dayton, Ohio, leaf dealers, have discontinued their Cleveland offices, which were moved to Dayton, where this firm operates several warehouses. It will be remembered that Meyer Jaskulek, of this firm, died a short time ago. This concern was established in 1891, and its retirement from Cleveland has caused great regret where Mr. Jaskulek was well known.

Open New Large Warehouse in Greensburg, Ky.

The new building for the use of the Loose Leaf Tobacco Company at Greensburg, Kentucky, has been completed and will have its first sale on November 18th. It is one of the large warehouses of Kentucky, consisting of a main building 210 feet by 125 feet, with two other buildings with a combined floor space of the main structure. The stock of the company has been taken by tobacco growers of that section of Kentucky.

Los Angeles Jobbers Pushing Many Brands

Many Attractive Window Displays Around Town—Klingenstein Company Featuring Goods of Surbrug Company

LOS ANGELES, November 5. THE Klingenstein Company is making a big campaign on Surbrug's line and are featuring "Arcadia," "Golden Sceptre," "Milo" cigarettes and "Zig-Zag." They have very attractive window displays all about town.

"Milo" and "Caprice" are increasing in demand daily, so Mr. Klingenstein reports, and they are also pushing the "Websters," which are manufactured by Y. Pendas & Alvarez. They received a very large shipment of "Websters" this week and they were of the finest colors which they ever received.

Otto Eisenlohr's "Cinco" is selling well and so are the "La Barcecia" (Manila) five cent cigars.

The Ed. G. Hookstratten Cigar Company have elegant displays in their windows on the Surbrug line also. This company is making a big showing by boosting the Klingenstein lines, which includes "Websters," "Admiration," "The American" five cent leader, "Cinco" seed and Havana, and Yocum Bros.' "Y-B."

John Morgan, proprietor of the John Morgan Cigar Company, declares that sales on the "Virginia Harned" clear Havana cigars have duplicated in the past sixty days. The retail stores of Geo. W. Walker will be taken over by the Morgan Cigar Company and will be known as the Morgan Cigar Company stores. "Johnnie" is very popular with the sporting element here and elsewhere, and we therefore see no reason why his new undertaking should be anything but a success.

Geo. W. Walker, who has been engaged successfully in the wholesale cigar business for many years here, has retired and with his wife and daughter leaves shortly for a trip around the world, which will necessitate their being abroad twelve months. Mr. Walker's friends, and they are many, all extend their heartiest wishes for good luck.

Marc A. Brunner, who represents E. Regensburg & Sons, has just left this city for New York, and while here did some wonderful work for the Klingenstein Company on the "American" cigars. He is very much pleased with the success he has met with this brand here and carried away with him a nice order for "Americans."

Milo Adams, the hustling representative of the Surbrug Company, is at present interesting the trade in the Kite Track Territory in campaigning with Mr. B. Connor, the vice-president of the Klingenstein Company. Much credit is due Mr. Adams on the wonderful increase in sales of the "Milo" cigarettes in this territory. Milo never fails to get an order wherever he goes and is known by all as "Milo Adams with the Ten Thousand Dollar Smile," and he is well proud of his nom de plume.

Harry Renaldo, the well-known cigar man of San Francisco town, arrived here a few days ago and is working with the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company in the interests of the "Mi Rey" cigars, and according to recent reports he has already succeeded in making things extraordinarily interesting.

That well-known firm of Klauber-Wangenheim Company has certainly been kept busy of late. They have taken on three new men in addition to the large force of salesmen which they have had right along for their city trade, and their country business is growing so rapidly that we wouldn't be surprised to hear of an extra force added to the already large one for their country territory as well. J. B. Bonhaus and Morris Burke are at present doing a wonderful amount of business in the Bakersfield territory on "Post Dispatch," "Havana Sticks" and "Virginia Harned" cigars.

E. A. Nance, the well-known broker of Imperial Valley and hustling representative for the Klauber-Wangenheim Company, arrived here yesterday and expects to remain about one week.

San Francisco Dealers Discuss Price Cutting

At a well attended meeting of the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers Association, held October 30th, a number of topics of importance to the trade were discussed. The cutting of five-cent straight cigars to six for twenty-five cents was held to be an extremely bad practice, and dealers were cautioned to do less price-cutting than had been done in the past. The "twenty-six" game was also gone over and according to reports from a committee, the complainants about this game had dwindled down to virtually none.

Cincinnati Street Car Riders Want Smokers

Cincinnati smokers, who use the street cars in that city, to the number of 15,000, circulated a petition asking that the new cars which were to be operated by the Cincinnati Traction Company, be equipped with smoking rooms. Officials of the street car company stated that while they were in sympathy with the smokers, and would hereafter consider their comfort in putting out new cars, the petition had arrived too late for changing the design of the new ones, as work had already been started on them.

United Cigar Stores Company Enters Moline, Ill.

Moline, Illinois, will soon have its first United Cigar Store. This concern has been awaiting an opportunity to locate in that city for several years, and after watching the situation carefully, located at the store formerly occupied by George S. L. S. Kent-McCarthy Cigar Company Changes Name

At a meeting of the directors of the L. S. Kent-McCarthy Cigar Company of Jacksonville, Illinois, to be held on November 25th, the name of the concern is to be changed.

It is rumored that the present factory of the Allen-Warfield Company will be sold to a large concern, and that the company will be re-organized to do business as a retail cigar store chain.

The Person Union Tobacco Company of Roxboro, North Carolina, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000 to manufacture tobacco.

Breaking Records in Chicago

Factories Doing Unprecedented Business--Rutherford B. Cooke Kills Hold-Up Man--Trade Jottings and Personal Mention

CHICAGO, November 12. It is putting the matter conservatively to say that the cigar and tobacco trade in Chicago has never known such a year as that now drawing to a close. All the factories are driven with orders. Increased forces of employees are being set to work. Jobbers and wholesalers are busy as never before. Shippers are forced to keep their departments working overtime. Traveling salesmen report heavy demands. Their reports are backed up by plentiful and generous orders. Retailers, from the largest down to the little fellows in small quarters, are doing a driving business and increasing their orders.

Large Increase in Pipe Sales. And, in connection with all this great rush of trade in tobacco and its manufactures, there is a big increase in the trade in pipes. Of course, along toward Christmas the demands for pipes increases. A fine pipe is regarded as a most timely and fitting Christmas present. Between seasons the calls for pipes are less. But as the holiday season approaches, these calls multiply. This season's sales of pipes bid fair to be the largest in the history of the trade in Chicago.

Attention has been called heretofore to the increased demands for cigars and tobaccos of high grades and high prices. That demand increases. Incidentally, it may be remarked as an interesting fact in connection with the general business of Chicago and the Middle West, the West and the Northwest, that almost all lines of trade present similar conditions. In other words, the financial resources and the tastes of the great body of the people have improved in a surprising degree. Consumers of tobacco and cigars share with all the great mass of buyers of goods in the conditions which enable them to gratify their tastes.

Factories Doing Unprecedented Business.

The situation of affairs in the factories is remarkable in its presentation of unprecedented conditions of demand and activity. Lately, shipments of tobacco have been coming in more promptly, adding a new degree of satisfaction to the manufacturers. At the same time, some of the local shippers report improved conditions in the matter of ability to send away goods with more promptitude. In the matter of both receipts and shipments some improvement is attributable to the enforcement of the new demurrage rules by the railroad companies. It has become a serious financial consideration for many consignees of goods in Chicago to be forced to pay the increased rates for delay in unloading cars. And the more promptly the unloading takes place, of course, the more readily cars can be secured for shipping goods to customers outside the city.

Specially attractive, beautiful and artistic are some of the devices in connection with the preparation of packages for the holiday trade. Artists of acknowledged ability are engaged on the designs and the result is a variety of beautiful, valuable coverings.

Storm, Fisher & Co. have made a decidedly popular move in increasing the size of their favorite "La Soneda All Havana Models." These delicious, mild little smokes are now on the market in lengths considerably greater than those in which they won their wide and deserved popularity. There is no least diminution in quality, and no advance has been made in prices. The simple condition is that users of the "Models" are furnished with a greater quantity of the high quality of enjoyment with no increase in cost.

Cigar Merchant Shoots Highwayman.

Rutherford B. Cooke, who has two cigar and tobacco stores in Chicago—one in the Kesner Building and the other at 117 South La Salle Street—was going home the other night, carrying a considerable amount of money. He had his revolver ready for any possible encounter with highwaymen. Two men in an automobile halted him and ordered him to throw up his hands. Instead of complying he immediately shot one of the men, who fell to the sidewalk and died in a short time. The other fellow hastened away in the machine before Mr. Cooke could give him attention. As the result of Bertillon measurements and other methods of securing identification, it was learned that the dead highwayman was John Himmig, an ex-convict. His companion was captured and made a confession. The automobile was a stolen machine.

A. M. Bloom, manager of the "Omar" and "Mecca" cigarette department, has been visiting among the jobbers and some of the large retail dealers, reporting most satisfactory business.

The New Breitung Establishment. Rapid progress on the new Breitung establishment, corner of Jackson Boulevard and South Dearborn Street, has furnished opportunity for judging what the place will be when finished, furnished and ready for business. The new establishment will be the ninth Breitung store in Chicago and will contain the headquarters for the company's extensive local business. The furnishings will be of the most elegant nature and the establishment will be the largest cigar store in the city. Seventeen hundred square feet of space in the basement will afford immense storage room and the floor will have 1,000 square feet, forty-seven feet of snowcases will be filled with some of the best and most attractive goods in the market. The place will be lighted by a twelve-foot window on Dearborn Street, another of eighteen feet on the Boulevard and three windows on the main corridor of the building. Mr. Breitung and his manager, Mr. Hamann, are receiving many warm congratulations.

Trade Notes and Personal Mention.

The building is a six-story store and office structure, with a net annual rental of $9,172.

By the lease of the Williams property on Wabash Avenue to members of the Spiegel House Furnishing Company, the United Cigar Stores Company will lose its store in the building and the quarters occupied for its premium department. The ground has been leased for 99 years; on it will be erected a great business structure, 160 feet on Wabash Avenue and 180 feet on Monroe, to cost $1,000,000.

Julius Lehmann, of Storm, Fisher & Co., is receiving the sympathy and condolences of friends in the trade because of the death of his mother.

How to Fight the Cut-Price Cranks

THE cut-price craze, which is supposed by many to be an evil resulting from too many cigar stores here in the East, is now becoming quite regular in a number of the West and Middle Western cities. Reports from Minneapolis give it that cigars like "El Roi-Tan," "Tom Moore," "Preferencia," and "Lawrence Barrett," strictly ten-cent brands, are being passed across the counter for seven cents. These sales were usually Saturday night "specials" and included such nickel brands as "Sight Draft" and "Tom Keene," which went at seven for a quarter.

The most injurious part of these "sales" is that they are being pulled off by the cigar stands of department stores and grocery houses. The idea is to get customers in the store to purchase cigars (on which they expect to make little or no profit) and then realize on the orders which may come on other articles. This in a way is good modern merchandising, methods which are being used more and more every day to make the people give up their shekels, but it is a pretty tough proposition for the strictly tobacco dealer to combat.

Perhaps if the cigar man were to carry a line of groceries and other jim-cracks, to pull people into his store, expecting, however, to make no profit on them and try this scheme out pretty thoroughly, the grocers, department store merchants, and cut-price druggists would conclude that the cigar business was not a paying venture, and leave it to the men who have invested a heavy outlay and who are putting their brains to the task.

Fine Modern Box Factory For Jacksonville

Within the past two weeks a new box factory was opened in Jacksonville, which is considered to be among the best in Florida. The owners of the plant are William A. and John R. Jack, both of Boston, and is situated at 715 Washington Street.

It has been the aim of the proprietors to secure the most modern and efficient machinery, which will be driven by power furnished by a gasoline engine. For the present the output of the firm will be cigar boxes only. The promoters have already received a number of orders from Jacksonville cigar manufacturers, as well as from surrounding towns. After the business is well established the concern will go into the manufacture of shipping cases also.

"Made in Minneapolis" Week Great Success

The "Made in Minneapolis" week has been a great success in that bustling Western city. In every window in the center of the town products of manufacturers of that city were displayed. Mr. Bachman came to this country from Bavaria while still a young man and had been engaged in the dry goods trade until he established the firm of Esberg, Bachman & Co., which, in 1894, was reorganized in the present concern, S. Bachman & Co. The business will be conducted as formerly, and will be under the management of Arthur Bachman, a son of the founder.

Lorin Palmer, a wholesale tobacco dealer for many years in New York and Chicago, died in Hartford, Conn., recently, aged eighty-five years. He is survived by a widow and four children.

William Lillie, who for years had been known as one of the largest tobacco growers of Suffield, Conn., died at that place on November 1. Mr. Lillie was 69 years of age and leaves a widow and son.

William H. Clark, a member of the firm of Clark & Show, of Scranton, Pa., died at his home in Brooklyn recently. He was 68 years of age and had been connected with Clark & Show since its establishment in 1863. He is survived by a widow and daughter.

Max Bamberger Bequeaths Thousands to Charity

The largest bequest of $400,000 will maintain a Jewish children's home at Atlantic City, N. J.

Election Excitement Over, "Frisco" Dealers Get Down to Business

Cigar and Cigarette Advertising Campaigns Unprecedented on Coast—Retail Dealers Association Makes Excellent Progress—United Said to Have Taken 50-Year Lease in Oakland

SAN FRANCISCO, November 6.

NOW that the excitement of the election is over, everybody feels somewhat relieved, though there has been all along a feeling that the result would not greatly affect this part of the country in any way or another. The only issue of any special interest to cigar men was a proposal to permit horse racing, under certain restrictions, which appears to have met defeat. Even in this the legitimate trade was not much interested, though some stands used to do a rushing business during the Emeryville racing seasons.

The retail cigar business has been rather quiet for the last fortnight, as the rainy season seems to have started in earnest, and the storm tends to keep people off the street. The early rain is welcomed, however, as the country suffered considerably from drought this year, and was badly in need of moisture. Jobbers are well satisfied with the volume of business, and with the approach of the holiday season all the wholesale houses are taking on a busier appearance. It is not expected that the cigar trade will run as strongly to special holiday packages as in former years, and while some such goods are being taken on most firms are handling only their regular lines. Great things are expected of the pipe trade, however, as this feature has been steadily gaining for the last few years, and the heavy advertising of tobacco manufacturers is certain to have its effect.

Cigar and cigarette advertising has probably reached a point never before equaled on the Coast. The cigar advertising has for some time been largely in the way of special displays placed by jobbers in retailers' windows, special artists being employed and the retailers well paid for the space used. Such space is in especially strong demand, as comparatively few retail stands have any display windows, and there is a good deal of competition among the various jobbers. For this reason only a few of the larger and more independent retailers are looking after their own window work.

H. L. Judell & Co. are carrying out an extensive window campaign on the "Watt" cigar. Good examples of the work done were recently shown in their own store window on Front Street and in Doctor Todd's drug store on Railroad Avenue, this city.

The local retailers' association is making excellent progress, now having upwards of eighty members, and is said to be the strongest organization ever formed in the San Francisco trade. A feeling of personal cordiality, as well as unity of interest, has been established among the members, which will tend strongly to overcome some of the troubles now prevalent. The officers are still very reticent regarding the nature of the definite lines of work undertaken, and only members are admitted to the meetings.

Edw. Wolf is well pleased with his present volume of business, not only in Manilas but in his older lines as well. He says he has plenty of Manilas just at present, but that only a few will come in on the next steamer. As the strike is said to be broken, however, he does not anticipate any prolonged shortage. Mr. Wolf is closing out his imported Havana lines, saying that the stock is too slow to turn over.

M. A. Gunst & Co. have completed the new sample room in the rear of their store at Front and California Streets. This section, which was formerly a part of the wholesale stockroom and shipping department, has been partitioned off, shutting out the noise and confusion, and handsome fixtures have been provided for the display of goods. This includes not only the pipe display formerly mentioned, but a complete sample assortment of all cigar, cigarette and tobacco lines carried by the house, conveniently arranged on shelves, tables and showcases.

The stock of cigars, etc., saved from the recent fire of the Yakima, Wash., Grocery Company, and said to amount to about $20,000, has been shipped to this city. Some of it was purchased by regular dealers, but the greater part was taken by the Weinstein and Prager department stores, and these houses have been advertising and displaying the goods at low prices.

It is reported that the United Cigar Stores Company has taken a fifty-year lease on the large lot of the Dunn estate, at the intersection of Fifteenth Street, San Pablo Avenue and the extension of Washington Street, Oakland. The rumor is that a $150,000 building will be erected on the lot. This will be one of the most prominent locations in Oakland, being within a few steps of the new City Hall.

The Public Utilities Commission, of Los Angeles, has started a campaign to prohibit all smoking on street cars in the Southern city. A similar effort was made here a few years ago, and succeeded in restricting smokers to the front platform of enclosed cars.

T. Devitt, Coast representative of Philip Morris & Co., was in the city last week, but has gone to Los Angeles, where he expects to meet Alexander Herbert, vice-president of the company. Mr. Herbert is on his regular tour of the Coast, and is expected in Los Angeles next Sunday.

Michalitschke Brothers & Co. last week received their first large shipment of their new line, the "Henry the Fourth" cigar. They had taken a large lot of advance orders, and have been very busy making deliveries all over their territory.

Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Co., has returned from his Nevada trip, and is now making a short run through Northern California.

Both Wholesale and Retail Trade Good—Many New Cigar Stores Being Opened

BOSTON, November 8.

THE cigar and tobacco business in Boston is in a very prosperous condition, especially in the retailing department. In the leaf trade business is about the same as last month.

Orville A. Gould is to open a drug and cigar store at 44 North Main Street, Gardner, Mass.

Hall's Cigar Store, 58 Main Street, Gloucester, Mass., is now managed by Aubrey J. S. James.

At the Navy Yard the authorities are not quite sure what kind of tobacco they will order for the year for the jolly tars, so six enlisted sailors are to have six weeks to test various kinds of tobacco, and do nothing else but chew and smoke, and they will abide with the decision of the sailors.

John O'Neil has purchased the Inman Square Drug Store of James R. McMinn, Cambridge.

Inter-City Cigar Company is now carried on by Edward M. Davis, James J. Farren, William A. Shea, Lewis Aarons Sons, Lewis, Frederick and Edward Aaron, 131 State Street, Boston.

The new stores of Daniel Frank & Company and the Liggett Drug Company will soon be finished and ready for occupancy. They are considered to be in the finest section of Boston.

John D. Ross, one of the largest jobbers in Denver, Col., was visiting the trade here in Boston last week.

The American Tobacco Company has notified the trade here of the advancement in price of the "Tolstoi" cigarette to $4.00 per thousand.

M. J. Ford, Martinez-Havana Company and Logan Tobacco Company, has just returned from Western Massachusetts and Connecticut, and had a very successful trip.

Maurice Bernstein has moved to Beach Street, near Harrison Avenue. He formerly had a store at 2132 Washington Street, Boston. The gratis offered by Anargyros on "Turkey Red" cigarettes has been discontinued.

John Rankin has moved from his old stand on State Street to his new quarters, corner Broad and State Streets. He has now a very fine and attractive store, and his window display ranks with any in the city.

John Kroog, William Demuth & Co., is in town visiting the trade here.

The American Tobacco Company is giving one-half cent coupons in packages of "Tokio" cigarettes, which will be redeemed by the jobbers, or retailers, with tickets to moving picture shows.

T. Rosenbaum & Co., of Federal Street, reports business as good. His box trade is increasing every day. His special cigar is the well-known 10-cent cigar, the "Rosewin."

The Diamond Match Company has notified the trade here in New England that it will give one case free with each five cases ordered and one-half case with each two and a half cases of their high-grade matches.

The American Tobacco Company has notified the trade here that "Tuxedo" smoking tobacco, in one pound humidior glass jars, and a Macintosh French briar pipe, with a sterling silver band, will retail at $2.25. The same tobacco is now being packed in twenty-cent airtight tins.

Frank Swick, Philip Morris & Co., has received additional territory to that covered by him last season. He will now have the whole of New England and the State of New York to test his salesmanship qualifications.

L. D. Mayhew (American Tobacco Company's plug department) was in Boston last week, calling upon the trade and jobbers.

Brooks Perkins, C. B. Perkins & Co., returned last week from an extended business trip and had good success.

Joseph D. Gernsheimer, F. Lozano Son & Co., and D. Emil Klein, E. M. Schwarz & Co., were in town last week and report holiday orders as excellent and many.

"Lucky Strike" roll cut, American Tobacco Company, has taken a sudden start during the past week, a large demand being made of the jobbers.

Meyer Yearstsky reports that some large shipments are being made of "La Integridad" cigars into Maine territory for the holiday trade.

There is a campaign on for the "Nehoi" cigarettes. "My" Taylor has charge of the crew of men employed, and is making things lively in the trade.

A "Greater Wilmington" for Hustling Delaware City

Getting Together to Boost Industries—Will Make It Convention City

WILMINGTON, DEL., November 9.

THE tobacco industry is in a more flourishing condition in this hustling little "burg" than it has been for some time. Retailers and the jobbing houses are all busy and with the coming of the holiday season should do a record breaking business in 1912. The manufacturers are also busy and optimistic as to the future.
There is a movement now under way which should make this city better known than ever among her sister cities of the East. The Wilmington Board of Trade recently appointed a Greater Wilmington Committee to devise ways and means for the development and advancement of this city. At a meeting of 250 business men, on October 16, a resolution was adopted recommending the Board of Trade to meet every week at a noonday luncheon, establish and maintain publicity, industrial and convention bureaus and employ R. J. McLean as director of these bureaus. This movement is certainly worthy of every citizen's support and it is hoped they will rise to the occasion and help to boost the town, to the position she rightfully deserves.

S. H. Durstein, the cigar manufacturer, reports a heavy increase on the "Sen Auben," his leading five-cent cigar since July first. If the increase continues at the rate it has been he will have the heaviest year's trade since he has been in business. He has been putting out the "Sen Auben" since 1891. He is now introducing to the trade a new five-cent brand through his four salesmen, which is going very well everywhere it has been placed. It is styled the "Elk," is a 4 7/8-inch club house size and goes to the trade for $35. Mr. Durstein is a member of the Board of Trade and is greatly interested in the "Greater Wilmington" movement.

The Johnny Jones stores, by reason of their attractive appearance and diversified stocks, are doing a splendid business. The Ninth and Market streets store is showing this week in the show windows two of the big sellers of these stands. The "El Palencia," Boltz, Clymer & Co., occupies a prominent place in one window while the "Cortez" cigars are shown attractively in the other. These stores are places of which any city may feel proud.

H. Kenyon is doing a good fall trade. He is having a heavy run on the "Havana Ribbon" cigar, made by the Bayuk Brothers Company, Philadelphia, which he wholesales extensively. He also handles the "Lord Casper" brand, put out by Grauley, the Philadelphia manufacturer. The "Wizard" cigar, of Kraus & Co., of Baltimore, is another of their good brands.

The cigar department of P. P. Freeman, retailers and distributors of the "El Wadora" cigar, of Sig. C. Mayer & Co., of Philadelphia, reports an encouraging improvement over business a short time ago.

A visit to the other central cigar dealers elicited the same optimistic view for a good holiday season. Judging by present conditions they are fully justified in their predictions.

John H. Tusch Moves to New Location

John H. Tusch, a Buffalo retailer, is moving into his new building at 65 West Tupper Street. Mr. Tusch has had the entire building improved, and new inside finishings placed, which should make it one of the best in that city.

Trade in Seattle and Puget Sound Country Good

Dealers Not in Favor of the Many Cigarettes Being Introduced—E. C. Hemphill Now With Burley Tobacco Company

SEATTLE, November 7.

BUSINESS is very good in Seattle and on the Puget Sound country all leading jobbers claim that conditions are better than they have been for a long time.

Retailers are not in favor of the amount of new brands of cigarettes that are being put on the market. The large manufacturers are sampling very heavy on 5c. cigarettes.

"Doc" Sorenson, one of the leading Everett dealers, reports a big business. "Doc" is featuring "Doc's Clondike" for a 5c. cigar. He also is getting a big business on "Winegold," a new fancy chewing tobacco he recently added to his stock, which is manufactured by the McHie, Scotten Tobacco Co.

William Haferkorn, Everett's popular dealer, will open his new place of business in about a week. Mr. Haferkorn expects to have one of the finest stands in Everett. He formerly conducted two stores and now will confine himself to one only.

Chris Culmbach, Everett jobber, reports a big business, especially on his leaders in 5c. cigars, the "Coupon" and "Red Wing," in Key West goods, and the "Jose Vila."

McHie, Scotten Tobacco Company's brands are getting to be very popular here on the Coast. They have only been out here for a short time. The brands they are marketing are "Winegold," "Union Scout Plug," "Union Scout Scrap," "Cadillac," "Nickel Twist," "Country Club Forex," "Royal Smoke," "Katahdin" and "Sweet Loma."

E. C. Hemphill, formerly with The American Tobacco Company, has accepted a position with the Burley Tobacco Company, with his territory Western Washington.

Addie La Voie, manager of the Donnelly Hotel cigar stand, at Tacoma, reports a fine trade.

Many dealers in Seattle have very attractive window displays on "Piper Heidsieck," giving away a leather pouch with every 10c. plug. Schwabacher Bros. Co., Inc., report increasing business on "Flor de Lovers" cigars, of which they recently received a carload.

Late Trade Items

W. A. Burton, a cigar manufacturer of Independence, Kan., has moved his factory to the Shulthis Building, that town.

Harry Mandell and Hyman Mandell, who have been conducting cigar stores at 112 Court and 22 Cambridge Streets, Boston, have assigned for the benefit of their creditors.

Ranney & Scallars recently opened a store in Grand Rapids, Ia., which from the point of fine furnishings is considered to be among the best in the State. The cigar stand is run with a billiard parlor containing thirteen tables. On the day the place was first open for business the proprietors arranged for a billiard match between Calvin Demarest, the well-known billiard champion, and Marcus Cattin, the amateur champion of Chicago.

Ninth District October Cigar Output Shows Large Increase

THE output of cigars in the Ninth District for the month of October is the largest for that month since October, 1907. The revenue receipts are given as $222,619.18, which figured out in the usual manner gives the production statistics as 74,206,393 cigars. This figure has been exceeded only twice in the past ten years, in 1907 and 1906. Of course the output given does not include the old Twelfth District, which according to a late ruling, is now included in the Ninth District. The total output of the district under the new arrangement is 87,602,989 cigars.

The production figures in October for the last ten years previous is as follows:

Lancaster Manufacturers Going Full Tilt on Orders

LANCASTER, November 9.

EVERYONE in the cigar industry in this region is going full tilt at present. Manufacturers are still crying for cigarmakers, with small possibility of their securing any more. Many of them are now working overtime and even then are unable to turn out cigars as fast as they wish. Several places state that even were orders to stop at this time altogether, they would have enough to keep them operating for some time.

L. E. Ryder is again home after a short trip through New York State. He reports conditions as very favorable at this time in that region.

Dealers are expecting big things from the new crop. The weather has been ideal for curing purposes. Very little of it has been contracted for as yet, as far as could be ascertained. Packers claim they are already stocked up and do not feel inclined to take any chances on the tobacco before it is further advanced than it is at present.

A number of inquiries are the rule with the leaf men regarding the 1911 tobacco, although sales are not large by any means. The price is one obstacle, prospective buyers claiming it is far too high. Packers are not taking less than the figures they quote, so little leaf all the way from fourteen to sixteen cents. From all reports there is not near as much 1910 left on the market as of 1909. The hail-cut tobacco is being sold at from three to five cents.

S. M. Ottinger, of Ottinger & Mitchell, has gone on a trip to Quincy, Fla., where he will look after the interests of the firm. They handle large quantities of Florida Sumatra from that section.

The New York Cigar Company has purchased a residence in Strinestown, which was converted into a factory for its use. This was opened last Monday, the fourth, with forty hands.

According to late reports from York County, seed leaf of a fair quality is selling there at nine cents a pound. The Tobacco Growers' Association is cautioning the growers to hold their tobacco, as they claim prices will be higher before long.

Simon Shissler is now handling a full line of cigars manufactured by Simon Batt & Co., of New York. This old house has a good reputation for putting out quality goods. "La Verdad" is their big brand.

E. J. Zudrell, the cigar dealer, of Ephrata, has made a number of improvements in his store and pool room. New showcases have been installed and the interior renovated in an attractive manner. An electric sign has also been placed in position. Mr. Zudrell carries a representative line of goods and takes pride in the freshness of the stock.

During the night of October 24th thieves broke into the cigar factory of E. S. Dornbach, in Denver, and stole about 3000 cigars, some of them stamped and others not yet stamped. No clue to the robbers has yet been found, although several men are under surveillance.

York on Top of Big Production Wave

YORK, November 9.

CIGAR manufacturers are now operating with a vim that has not been equaled for some time. Orders are coming in with pleasing regularity and overtime is beginning to be the rule. There is not a factory worth mentioning that is not going the limit. Predictions are freely made that this fall's business will be one of the best in the history of this section. Those factories catering to Western trade are jubilant as to the way things are breaking for them and worry about nothing but the necessity of getting the orders filled as near as possible on time. The leaf market is in a fair state, although it cannot be said to be humming. Jobbers and retailers all report increases over the same period last year.

The will of Eugene Gallagher was filed for probate in the Columbus, O., court on October 26th, leaving an estate of over $30,000. Sixty-one shares of stock in the Eugene Gallagher and Brother Company are given to a brother Ignatius, and sixty-one shares to another brother, D. A. Gallagher. The residue of the estate is bequeathed to relatives, nieces and nephews.

A visit to the different factories around town finds conditions about the same. Everything is on the jump and every one smiling. It is a pleasing contrast to the comments one heard during the summer months.

George Bowman, cigar manufacturer, in the rear of 33 North Penn Street, is so busy that he is putting on additional employees to get out the orders booked for the Christmas holiday trade. The owner of the building, John Strickler, has erected an addition, and Mr. Bowman now has a factory of three stories, 16 feet by 21 feet.

The cigar manufacturing industry is certainly increasing these days. Eighteen new factories, employing 184 hands, were opened during the month of October, as compared with fifteen new plants in September. The following are those plants opened with five or more hands:

Smith & Stables, Red Lion, 40 hands; The Original Cigar Company, Red Lion, 40 hands; Samuel Hermon & Co., tobacco factory, Red Lion, 30 hands; J. S. Shindler, York, 5 hands; Claude Stables, tobacco factory, Red Lion, 20 hands; Harry G. Eveler, Dallastown, 5 hands; P. C. Conway, Dallastown, 5 hands; F. O. Noel, Hanover, 5 hands; Harry B. Snell, Bittersville, 5 hands; Robert N. Miller, Red Lion, 5 hands; A. M. Grim, Red Lion, 5 hands; L. E. Ersenhart, Red Lion, 5 hands.

The factory of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, South George Street and Boundary Avenue, one of the largest cigar manufacturing firms in York County, is working to its fullest capacity on orders booked for the Christmas holiday trade. The plant has been operated at night for the past several weeks and the indications are that this will continue up until after Christmas. Additional cigarmakers are being put on and the facilities are being otherwise improved to handle the rush of business. Sixty benches are being installed on the third floor to accommodate additional cigarmakers. When these will be added over 300 cigar makers will be employed at the factory.

The W. C. Krout cigar factory, located in the frame building of the Enterprise Furniture Company, in Glen Rock, has been closed, awaiting further developments. W. C. Krout, the proprietor, disappeared last week and has not been heard from since.

Reading Factories to Chalk up Record Trade For Fall

READING, November 9.

WELL, now that the election excitement is over with its attendant discussions as to the calamities that are to befall the tobacco industry if this or that party came in power, manufacturers are getting down to business and trying by every means within their power to get orders out on time. Judging by reports from other sections and comparing them with conditions here, the local factory men were too busy to enter into the arguments. "Give us more cigarmakers," they say, "and we will not worry much about which way the election swings." The bustle is not confined to the factories and retailers look forward with glad hearts to an excellent fall trade. The leaf trade is good also, so no one need fear for the immediate future, at least.

A visit to the different manufacturing establishments elicits little else but optimistic reports and hopes that business will not take any decided slump after the holidays. Yocum Brothers are hustling on

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau
Neptuno 24

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, November 9.

BUSINESS during the past fortnight has shown a further slight retrograde movement, and if it had not been for some large transactions, made by a few big buyers, we might have been obliged to call our market as dull. This may be, however, the lull before the storm, as quite a number of important buyers have not made their appearance in our city yet. If the latter expect to delay their coming in the expectation of finding a lower market later on, they may be badly mistaken in their calculations, as according to the present outlook it does not seem likely that the holders will come down from their asking figures, even if there are sufficient stocks to be found in first hands.

The receipts from the country have fallen off greatly, thus indicating that we have nearly come to the end of this year's crop. This will, of course, not say that there may not come forward some tobacco which may have been stored in the country, on account of want of room here, or that there are not a few vegas held back by some obstinate vegueros, which have been holding their goods at figures above the market. Such occurrences take place each year, as, for instance, this year in the month of August one house had purchased several hundred bales of Vuelta Abajo, from the 1911 crop, in the country still, and we feel quite convinced that there may arrive some lots from the Vuelta Abajo of the 1912 growth, perhaps as late as the coming month of March. But as one swallow does not make the summer, so these few lots of tobacco will play no role to consider. Just the same way, a buyer might come here, that is not very exacting as to quality, and would be willing to overlook some minor defects, to find a seller of this class of leaf, who was rather anxious to realize his holdings, and therefore would let his goods go at a lower figure than his neighbors were asking. Such a single transaction would not indicate a break in the market, unless the other dealers should follow suit.

As far as the coming crop is concerned, all that we can report by this mail is that the temperature is favorable for transplanting and that the seedlings are plentiful and low in price. These are two good facts for a start, but this does not mean a great deal yet, as we are unable to forecast the coming temperature during the next three or four months to come.

Sales during the past fortnight totaled 17,086 bales, or split up into: Vuelta Abajo, 5,714; Partido, 1,743; Remedios, 8,412; Mayari and Yara, 1,217 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 10,540; exporters to Europe, 3,470; shippers to South America, 1,206; to Oran, 76, and our own manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 1,794 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco, from the port of Havana, for the two weeks ending November 2, 1912, were:

Cigars.
The exports of cigars, from the port of Havana, during the second half of October, as per official custom house returns, were as follows:
From October 16 to October 31, 1912 8,984,672 cigars
From October 16 to October 31, 1911 8,516,795

|---|--------------------|
| Increase in 1912 | 467,877 cigars |
| From January 1, 1911, to October 31, 1911 | 151,048,812 cigars |
| From January 1, 1912, to October 31, 1912 | 144,890,486 |

Decrease during the first ten months of 1912 6,158,326 cigars

The above figures are not very satisfactory, as we had expected to see a larger increase over last year, particularly as the larger factories are working under full steam, therefore the only supposition is that some of the smaller factories are not getting their full share.

Romeo y Julieta is turning out now 90,000 cigars per day and overcrowded with Xmas orders.

Partagas reports a daily output of 75,000 cigars, and Don Eustaquio Alonso hardly knows how to satisfy the customers that are clamoring for immediate shipments.

H. Upmann & Co. are working under a high pressure likewise, as they have orders galore from all countries of the world.

Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Ltd., are as busy as can be. W. A. Millet, a director, resigned his position on the 1st inst., and will leave here on the 16th idem to accept a position with the United Drug Company of Boston. He has our best wishes for the future.

The following four factories are also very busy and in receipt of plenty of orders from all countries, viz.: Sol Castañeda, Eden, and La Flor de P. A. Estanillo. Another factory that is steadily going ahead is La Flor de José Otoro. Their principal exports are to the United States, Canada and to the United Kingdom.

Buying, Selling, as Well as Other Notes of Interest.
Benito Rovira was a heavy buyer in our market, as he accumulated 3,500 bales of choice Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios leaf during his stay here. This is more than he has ever bought at one time, but he was charmed with the fine quality of the present crop of our leaf, and therefore thought he could make no mistake buying heavily.

Sobrinós de A. Gonzalez cannot complain of dull times, as their sales figured up to 3,970 bales of all kinds of leaf during the past fortnight.

Joseph Mendlesohn made good use of his time while here, although the 2,150 bales of all kinds of tobacco, which he registered this time, were

"Wheeling Delights" Making Headway Among Trade Long Filler, Hand Made Product, in Novel and Sanitary Packing, Filling Long-Felt Want

The Little Pet Stogie Company, of Wheeling, West Virginia, which has recently introduced to the trade a new piece of goods, the "Wheeling Delights" are working their two factories, in that city, with a full complement of hands. The second factory has only been opened comparatively recently, but the merits of this stogie has necessitated their using their full facilities. They use the best grade of tobacco and lay great stress on the fact that their stogie-makers are as skillful hands as can be secured, and that the sanitary features of their plants are ideal.

The manufacturers of the Wheeling stogie have been embarrassed by the demand at this season for several years and shipments were considerably delayed. Taking this in consideration the Little Pet Stogie Company opened a second factory and are now in a position to make prompt shipments on all orders.

"Wheeling Delights" go to the trade in sealed packages containing five stogies, and retail at ten cents.

Brunhoff's Always First With the Latest

The Brunhoff Manufacturing Company, of Cincinnati, claims the distinction of turning out everything up-to-date and modern in their line of business. "There is nothing new under the sun, unless it comes from Brunhoff" is one of the slogans of this enterprising concern.

A short time ago a Western correspondent of a trade journal gave a comprehensive account of a new device, a cigar cutter that "actually talks." The idea had been held under cover for some time the writer said and was to be used by a number of dealers.

The Brunhoff Manufacturing Company put a cigar cutter on the market more than ten years ago, which used the same idea. It was a machine with a phonographic attachment, first sounding a bugle call, followed by "Smoke the Owl Cigar, now 5 cents." Wherever these devices were placed they were played from early morn until late at night by customers. The cutter in the course of time almost drove the clerks frantic with the continual playing. And the continued operation before long affected the mechanism of the machine. Fearing dissatisfaction, and in fact getting complaints, the manufacturers discontinued them.

Nichols Drug Store Company Loses in Suit

After litigation which had lasted nearly a year in the Circuit Court of Peoria, Illinois, the suit by Nicholas H. Haberman against the Nichols Drug Stores Company, of that city, was decided in favor of the complainant.

The trouble arose over a deal which Haberman, who is a St. Louis cigar salesman, made with the Nichols Company, whereby he was to purchase a thousand dollars' worth of stock in the concern on condition that it handled the line of cigars sold by him. It was claimed by Mr. Haberman that this agreement was not lived up to by the Drug Stores Company, whereupon he brought suit.

Pekin, Ill., to Reduce Cigarette License Fee

The city council of Pekin, Illinois, is contemplating the passing of an ordinance reducing the license fee for the sale of cigarettes in the place. The present city code provides a fee of three hundred dollars, which tobacco dealers claim is prohibitive. They state that users of cigarettes are securing them from the nearby cities, thereby crippling the business of the Pekin dealers.

not all new purchases, as he had on his previous trip here, a little over two months ago, contracted for the major part already. He has a fine selection, and at the right prices, to offer to the many customers of Mendlesohn, Bornemann & Co.

Menendez & Co. report sales of 2,500 bales of Remedios and 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo during the last two weeks.

A. Bijur, of the great firm of E. Rosenwald & Bro., came here principally in order to examine their stock of goods bought previously in the country, and consisting of about 3,000 bales, but being so well satisfied with the superior quality of this year's growth he could not resist the temptation to add another 2,000 bales of prime Vuelta Abajo and Remedios to their stocks. It is a known fact that the firm of E. Rosenwald & Bro. only deal in the very finest grades of tobacco.

Don José C. Puente disposed of 895 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios leaf to their various customers.

Don Francisco R. Diaz selected about 1,100 bales of choice Vuelta Abajo vegas for the excellent "La Mega" brand, of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., of Tampa.

Gutierrez & Diehl had a good fortnight, as they sold 1,200 bales of their excellent escogidas of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo during the fortnight, but they have reserved some of their packings and vegas for their delayed customers. Don Miguel Gutierrez, Sr., returned with his family from his European trip, via New York, as he is no longer very fond of the extreme cold weather in Europe. Mr. Miguel Gutierrez, Jr., is soon to become a benedict, as his engagement to a beautiful young Cuban lady was announced.

Don Adolfo Moeller bought 1,616 bales of leaf in the last two weeks.

Cardenas y Cia disposed of 670 bales of all kinds of leaf. Sylvester & Stern were buyers of 750 bales of different kinds of tobacco.

José Menendez turned over 585 bales of Semi Vuelta and Partido leaf.

H. Upmann & Co. purchased 744 bales of tobacco for export. Herr Herman Upmann returned with his family from his European voyage, via New York, on the 6th inst. Herrera, Calmet & Co. sold 500 bales of their Remedios holdings. J. F. Bernides & Co. had bought and shipped to Europe 693 bales of leaf.

Our elections have passed off quietly and orderly here in the city of Havana, as well as in the country, and resulted in the victory of the conservative party. However, it seems that the defeated liberal party is not satisfied with the result, as it alleges fraud, and it will be discussed in the national assembly of the party on the 23rd of this month what steps ought to be taken to remedy the wrong, provided, of course, the latter could be proven. At all events, it is hoped, that no violent measures will be proposed and everything may pass off peaceably. If there should be any disorder the sensible people know that it would only spell the end of our independence, and another intervention of the American government that might prove to be final.

The victory of the Democratic party in the United States is looked upon here as beneficial to Cuba, but it remains to be seen yet whether in reality we shall have cause to be thankful for this coming change or not.

Other sellers were: José F. Rocha, 200; Manuel A. Suarez & Co., 167; J. Kaffenburgh & Sons, 130, and H. H. Strater, 125 bales.

Other buyers were: C. J. Joel, 894; Silveira & Co., 518; Romeo y Julieta, 500; B. Spector, 500, and the Partagas factory, 200 bales.

Shippers of tobacco, from the port of Havana during the past fortnight, were above 300 bales: Adolfo Moeller, 2,510; Sylvester & Stern, 1,491; Leslie Pantin, 1,049; Mark A. Pollack, 1,002; H. Upmann & Co., 993; J. F. Bernides & Co., 693; Garcia & Co., 602; J. Bernheim & Sons, 573; C. E. Beck & Co., 572; Silveira & Co., 518; Rodriguez, Menendez & Co., 469; Sobrinós de A. Gonzalez, 431; Ernest Ellinger & Co., 387; and Diego Montero, 364 bales.

Reading Factories to Chalk Up Record Trade

orders from the Far West. The boosts that "Y-B" and "Spana Cuba" have received in those sections during the past year from George Yocum have established these brands there as among the biggest sellers. The local factory is hard put to meet the demands upon it during the past month and expect to chalk up one of the biggest months in the history of the firm.

The Fleck Cigar Company is pushing the "Rose-O-Cuba" with undiminished vigor. This brand is meeting with excellent results wherever it has been placed and warrants the firm in placing it everywhere, the merit of the cigar after that proving its repeating qualities.

The same conditions prevailing in the above establishments apply to all the other factories about town.

The labor trouble recently in the Porta-Vana factory was easily adjusted and the hands are again back at work.

Sinking Spring is to have a new cigar factory, which will employ from 40 to 45 people. The H. C. Nolan Company, of Philadelphia, has filed a bond with Deputy Internal Revenue Collector Cranston in the sum of $3,000.

Burglars entered the cigar factory of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, Franklin Street, Boyertown, some time during last Saturday night and succeeded in getting away with $600 in cash. The Boyertown factory employs about 500 hands. The thieves were apparently acquainted with the layout of the building, judging by their methods of operation.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Demand for Old Tobacco in New York---Philadelphia Houses Invest in Havana---Balance of Wisconsin Crop Being Absorbed Slowly---Warehouses Open in Connecticut

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, November 9.

THERE has been little change either way in the leaf situation here. Trading has been quiet for the past two weeks. The election may have had something to do with it, but that is problematical. Dealers and packers are more interested in the reports from different curing centres than in anything else. According to reports from Wisconsin and Connecticut the stripping is well under way and the curing process is now taking most attention.

The demand for old tobacco is still fair, particularly in Pennsylvania. Havana is also finding ready purchasers. There appears to be a shortage in desirable Remedios tobacco. The better grades of leaf for the clear Havana manufacturers is plentiful, with, of course, the exception of wrappers. Manufacturers have reconciled themselves to the inevitable, though, and console themselves with the thought that they are all in the same boat.

The demand for Sumatra continues steady. Sales of the Dutch leaf are going along at a lively rate. Manufacturers complain that the lighter grades of leaf are scarce. This is only natural, as those who felt sure that Sumatra would not drop in price and bought earlier secured it. But the supply of the darker grades is still large and is finding many purchasers.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, November 11.

THE leaf tobacco market as a whole is far from brisk. A number of sales have been reported in 1911 Pennsylvania, but outside of that and a little flurry in Zimmer, there was nothing worth mentioning. Havana has been selling fairly well as has the Wisconsin. The 1912 Wisconsin made its appearance and caused favorable comment. A representative of a Wisconsin house on a trip showed the samples.

The local houses have been investing in the new Havana. Julius Vetterlein is again home after a week's sojourn in the Island. While there Mr. Vetterlein secured some desirable Remedios tobacco. He speaks highly of the aromatic qualities of the tobacco. Frank Dominguez, of E. A. Calves & Co., and Felix Eckerson were also down some time ago looking over the market.

LANCASTER, November 8.

The heavy business among the cigar manufacturers is beginning to have its effect on the leaf market. The 1911 packing is having the greatest call at present, but old goods are all having a spurt. It is surprising how some of the old leaf is selling, when it is taken into consideration that virtually none of it has been sold in any large quantities for some time. Reports from different quarters give it that the prices for the 1911 were around 18 cents. The activity has encouraged leaf dealers, who hope for a brisk winter's trade.

Some of the 1912 has been contracted for, but this practice is not as general as in other years. Buyers are going among the growers, who are not inclined to sell at the prices offered. Nine and three has been offered, but farmers state they will wait until the tobacco is stripped, as they anticipate better offers. Packers are not particularly anxious to stock up on the 1912. Yet if they can secure desirable leaf at their prices they are willing to take a chance. As far as can be ascertained the crop is curing nicely. The tobacco damaged by hail is being sold, in some instances for five cents.

TENNESSEE.

CLARKSVILLE, November 5.

THERE seems to have been a continuation of quietude upon tobacco prices, and no one seems to know or even guess what prices are to be offered by the loose leaf dealers when they start to the country.

Since the final curing it is found that there is some real fine tobacco. When speaking of prices the farmer and buyer seem to be considerably apart if the rumor is correct, as the seller thinks he should have as much for his crop as last season in proportion to quality. Some who are not members of the Tobacco Association have been told that there was no prospect of such prices if the association was dissolved, but if it was maintained there would be but little difference, as all considered that there would be had little, if any, more pounds than in the last crop.

The independent buyers still have a quantity on hand, but are gradually reducing their stocks and hope to be about empty-handed when the market opens for the new crop. Reports from the managers of the association indicate that there is nothing certain that the organization will be maintained. They are positive in their declaration that unless a majority sign the pledge the organization will be dissolved, and so far there is a considerable lacking. The Tennessee counties are in line, but Kentucky is lagging, and no one knows why. The farmers all admit that prosperity has followed the organization.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, November 8.

THE buying of the balance of the last season's tobacco is proceeding quietly, but the effort is mainly directed towards securing the late ends and low grade portions of the crop in the interests of the strippers at prices ranging around 7 cents straight. An occasional lot of better grades is also contracted for. A few sample sales will show the range taken:

Owen Boyle, 10a at 10&3c.

Ludden Bros., 5a at 9&3c.

E. L. Ladd, 6a at 7c.

M. Boyle, 8a at 7c.

L. K. Thompson, 7a at 7c.

The old leaf market has a very healthy tone and all goods of a binder nature are in demand. Sampling of last season's packings is now well along and the samples are being displayed in the Eastern centers where a ready sale is expected.

The first hard freeze of the season, severe enough to have injured uncured leaf hanging in the sheds, occurred during the week, but it is believed that no great amount of injury was done to the late portion of the crop which is not entirely yet cured. In some instances where growers were careless in not closing their sheds or where the curing houses were poorly enclosed fat stems may be found. The growers who took the precaution to close the doors and ventilators and nail up the exposed places so as to keep out the cold; their crops are safe. However, only a small portion of the crop stood in danger from this source, as the bulk of the tobacco is more thoroughly cured out than the average season at this date. It is a rare thing any crop does not contain a proportion of fat stems, especially a late crop.

MASSACHUSETTS.

SPRINGFIELD, November 7.

THE prediction made a few weeks ago that the lateness of the crop in the Connecticut Valley would delay warehouse operations appears at this writing to have been unfounded. Growers have been favored by damp weather and much of the leaf has been taken down and is now ready for the warehouses, where the work is well under way. It is expected that growers will lose no time in getting rid of their tobacco, as some of them fear a drop in prices.

The Connecticut Leaf Tobacco Association, at its recent monthly dinner in the Allyn House, in Hartford, discussed the marking and grading of shaded tobacco. The matter of adopting a general system is taking a great deal of attention and much agitation has been carried on by its sponsors. It is possible that the system will be in practice in the course of a year.

KENTUCKY.

LEXINGTON, November 7.

WITH the opening of the tobacco season in this city not two weeks off, the buyers are scouring the country and getting a line on the crops. While no one can predict at what price tobacco is going to sell for, the same situation that presented itself last year may be duplicated again this year. Those farmers who have already sold some of their tobacco may regret it, for prices may take the jump just as they did last year, when some growers sold crops which were resold on the market in about five weeks for twice the price they received in the field.

There has not been as much of the crops stripped as yet. The 1912 tobacco crop is a good one. It is either color, bright or red, sound and of good texture. If the farmer sells under the right competitive conditions he should receive good prices. Reports from different sources show that prices offered and accepted for tobacco are below the level of last year after the market was fully established by the loose leaf warehouses. The prices quoted range from eight to twelve cents.

The cut-out proposition, which caused quite a bit of discussion, appears to have died a natural death. Growers refused to take it seriously.

Everything is being prepared for the opening of the market on November 19th. Growers have been waiting for a spell of rainy weather to start stripping, and from different quarters this work is well started now. It is estimated by experts that from 60,000,000 to 100,000,000 pounds of tobacco will be marketed through the twelve large warehouses of Lexington this year.

HOPKINSVILLE, November 7.

Very little of the new crop has been sold as yet. This is due in part to the continued dry weather, which has delayed the stripping. Several large lots of tobacco have already been brought in town and before long it is expected there will be a general rush. The market for old tobacco is still steady in tone, with a good inquiry.

Tobacco buyers have been busy during the past week visiting the farmers' barns and inspecting the crop now waiting sale. Almost without exception they report it as one of the poorest crops.

Cuban Leaf Dealers and Growers Hold Annual Session

Issue Report, Which Sets Forth At Great Length, Problems They Have To Contend With

THE Association of Leaf Dealers, Packers and Growers of Tobacco of the Island of Cuba held its annual session on the 21st of October. The directors issued a memorial of their first year's work, which was submitted to the members for their approval.

The report is very interesting, as it describes at sufficient length all the different problems, which the directors were called upon to decide, or the means that were employed to appeal to the government to pass a law to prohibit the exportation of our tobacco seed; the association's report, as regards the advisability of the modus vivendi with Spain; the so-called petroleum law; the adverse decision against the levying of an export duty; the point gained in having a voice in the matter of examination of Cuban tobacco, that was re-imported; a plea to have the rates of contribution of taxes on leaf dealers reduced; the reduction of fire insurance rates obtained, as well as the still pending question to have the railroad rates reduced on fertilizers, etc. The memorial also contains a very interesting statistic of the crops of tobacco arrived at Havana in 1911, and compared with this year up to September 30, 1912, the detailed reports, by places, for the two years of "Vuelta Abajo," "Semi Vuelta," "Partido" and "Remedios." Also the total exports from Havana to all countries, as well as the importations of our leaf at the ports of Key West, Tampa and New York of unstripped and stripped Cuban tobacco.

Gulf Tobacco Association Incorporates

Alabama Concern to Take Over Crops of Plantations—Frank M. Staples is President

Articles of incorporation have been filed for the Gulf Tobacco Association, of Bay Minette, Ala., with the probate judge. The papers of incorporation show that Frank M. Staples is president, Clarence K. Chamberlain, vice-president, and John Alexander Cooper, secretary and treasurer, and John P. Metzger and C. Kier Davis, directors, all of whom are from Chicago and who have been interested in the tobacco business in that State for a number of years.

The plan of the new company is to purchase the tobacco from any one who grows it and take it to Chicago, where the large manufacturers will place it on the market after being properly cured and dried. The main tobacco company has this year declined to purchase the tobacco from the growers to whom they have sold land, and the new company is organized for the purpose of taking over the entire crop, if necessary, and handling it all independently.

taken as a whole, raised in years. Only a few sales have been made, and these range in price from $5 to $8 per hundred, the crop being bought as a whole. The farmers show a disposition to hold out for more money, yet they, too, realize the inferior grade of the tobacco. There is a small part of the crop, possibly ten per cent., that will grade up as first-class, and wherever this is found it will bring full prices. The loose sales floors have announced November 12th as their first sales and efforts will be made to have it a big offering.

Old tobacco showed a stronger tendency last week. All of this old tobacco is in good condition, and as a rule is better quality than the new crop. At the prevailing prices it is regarded as a good investment.

Prices ruled last week: Lugs, $5.50 to $8.50. Leaf, $8.50 to $14.

NORTH CAROLINA.

WINSTON, November 4.

TOBACCO sold on the local market averages about 19 1/4 cents per pound. This is almost equal to the big averages recorded about a month ago, and is probably the biggest average price

Review of Amsterdam Tobacco Sales

Crop of 1911 Sumatra Tobacco Amounted to 280,704 Bales As Compared With 234,209 Bales the Previous Year

ON October 22nd the official brokers' list, giving the results of the sales of Sumatra and Borneo tobacco during the year, appeared, and, as no more sales will be held before next spring, the figures are final, says the "Financial News" of London. The exceptionally large crop of Sumatra tobacco, amounting to 280,704 bales, has been sold at an average price of 142 Dutch cents per Dutch pound (1/2 kilo), which is most satisfactory, seeing that the crop of the previous year, which was smaller in size, say, 234,209 bales, fetched only 131 cents on average. With the exception of 1906, the average price which has been made this year has been the highest in the history of the tobacco trade, and the net proceeds have been about 15,000,000fl. higher than in 1910, when results were already quite satisfactory. Most of the big companies have had good luck. The United Lankat Plantations Company holds the record, having sold its crop of 16,890 bales at an average of 205 Dutch cents per pound, or more than 60 cents per pound above the average of the whole Sumatra crop. Last year the company sold 12,333 bales at 177 cents. This company is the only one that obtained more than 200 cents per bale for its whole production. The big Deli Maatschappij, which markets about one-fourth of the whole Sumatra crop, is a modest second, with 177 cents for 66,562 bales, which compares with 151 cents for 48,618 bales in 1911. For both companies the results in the present year are the best in their whole history.

The Amsterdam Lankat and the Rotterdam Deli also did very well. Both obtained 166 cents on an average, the former for 7,875 bales and the latter for 9,462 bales. These two concerns, however, did better still last year, when they sold respectively 5,941 bales at 212 cents and 7,303 bales at 181 cents. They are closely followed by the Tjinta Radja, which sold 3,428 bales at 165 cents per half-kilo, as against 4,371 bales at 145 cents in 1911, by the big Senenbah, which obtained 160 cents per half-kilo for 21,271 bales, compared with 138 cents for 18,977 bales last year. This company has to-day announced an interim dividend of 40 per cent., as against 25 per cent. last year. The whole dividend will probably amount to at least 90 per cent.

The Medan sold 17,115 bales at 150 cents (last year 9,175 bales at 88 cents). This company has now turned the corner, after having operated unfavorably in the last few years. The Amsterdam Serdang sold 3,759 bales at 87 cents (last year 3,871 at 72 cents), the Bah Lias Tobacco and Rubber Estates, Limited, 2,026 bales at 103 cents (last year 1,972 at 152 cents), and the Insulinde (Sumatra) Rubber and Tobacco Estates, Limited, 757 bales at the very bad price of 52 cents, compared with 349 bales at 71 cents in 1911. This crop must have given a very heavy loss.

The Serdang (Sumatra) Rubber and Produce Estates, Limited, also fared very badly, having fetched only 42 cents per pound for its 1,285 bales, compared with 84 cents for 917 bales last year. The Shanghai Sumatra Tobacco Company, Limited, made 118 cents on an average for 3,657 bales, as against 117 cents for 3,539 bales in 1911, the Toeraneic Rubber Company (Sumatra) Limited, 93 cents for 621 bales, the Wampoe Tobacco and Rubber Estates, Limited, 106 cents for 1,944 bales (last year 116 cents for 1,573 bales), and the London Langkat Syndicate, Limited, 90 cents for 1,720 (in 1911, 138 cents for 1,265) bales. The Societe Financiere des Caoutchoucs sold a small parcel of 337 bales at 82 cents, as against 558 bales at 62 cents the year before.

Borneo tobacco has not gone so well as Sumatra, the average price for 15,231 bales having only been 90 cents, as against 132 cents for 14,961 bales in 1911. The Batu Puteh sold 1,321 bales at an average of 132 Dutch cents per half-kilo (last year 1,323 at 124 cents), the New Darvel Bay Tobacco Plantations 5,457 bales at 120 cents (in 1911, 4,544 bales at 151 cents), the New London Borneo Tobacco Company 7,086 bales at 151 cents, the New London Borneo Tobacco Company 7,086 bales at the poor price of 65 cents (last year 7,673 bales at 125 cents), the Sapong Rubber and Tobacco Estates, Limited, 1,014 at the very bad average of 42 cents (in 1911, 1,304 bales at 113 cents), and the Borneo Proprietary Estates, Limited, 353 bales at 106 Dutch cents per half-kilo.

recorded at this time in the season on the local market for a considerable number of years.

Although the tobacco warehousemen stated a big percentage of the tobacco selling is of the dark red quality, this did not affect the jump in price. It is thought that this quality of tobacco brought the highest price that has been paid for it so far. Indications, however, point to a greater demand as the season advances for the dark common tobacco, and it is confidently expected that the price will continue to advance.

Thus far in the season prices have surpassed the most sanguine expectations of the farmers. There is happiness on the face of almost every one of them as they leave the city with their purses swelled to overflowing with the proceeds of their labor during the year. Many of them say that the big prices paid them for their tobacco more than balances their losses in the shortness of other crops.

DURHAM, November 3.

Much of the tobacco sold for the highest prices in the history of the market, thousands of pounds having sold for as high as 70 cents. The highest price paid for any of the tobacco reached 75 cents. Something like half of what was sold ranged around 50 and 60 cents per pound. The average for the entire sales are reaching above 30 cents.

The United Cigar Stores Company have leased another store in Brooklyn, N. Y., situated at 187 Havemeyer Street, which will soon be altered in the usual United style. The lease is understood to be a long one.

The M. Connors Cigar Company, at one time a well known concern of Holyoke, Mass., is going out of business. After the death of Mr. Connors the business was carried on by his widow, but the business declined rapidly. The plant at one time was one of the largest in New England, and manufactured the "Big Chief" cigar, which had a wide distribution in that section of the country.

New Moistener Device Claimed Far Superior to Old Style Ones

AS the winter months approach and the time arrives when cigar dealers must close their front doors, and heat their stores artificially, the question of keeping their cigar stock in proper condition becomes worthy of serious study. Thoughtful retailers are giving more attention to this question today than ever before. It is being recognized that many a good cigar can be spoiled by being poorly conditioned and many a mediocre cigar can be made to give very satisfactory results if it be carefully handled.

To accomplish the proper conditioning of cigars there are many ideas. One that has proven quite effective is the use of ventilating moisteners which have been invented to counteract the extremes of dryness and moisture by spreading a uniform, natural and non-odorous moisture throughout, which can be regulated in a very simple manner.

These moisteners are constructed with a hollow centre and breathe through pores. At the end of the moistener is a cork which can be extracted or inserted, thereby regulating the evaporation and checking or increasing the moisture.

The great value of this moistener is appreciated by those who have used this style. The manufacturer of this type asserts that the old style moistener, which is made solid, is no more valuable than a wet brick, for the reason that the evaporation takes place only on the outer surface, while the centre fills up with slime and vegetation from the water and breathes germs, thereby befouling the air and infecting the cigars.

The principle of the ventilating moistener can be demonstrated in a very simple manner. The inventor of the ventilating moistener, P. A. Becker, of P. A. Becker Co., Brooklyn, New York, describes same as follows:

"Take two sheets of paper of equal size and saturate them with water. Roll up one sheet which represents the solid moistener and hang up the other sheet loosely on a line, both in the same atmosphere. It will be found that the rolled sheet after a few days is still wet under the surface and has a most unpleasant odor. This is caused by the mildew resulting from the vegetation in the water. If this sheet were held under a microscopic lens, thousands of tiny germs would be observed. As the time passes, these germs breed faster and their presence is evident through the foul smell issuing from the sheet. Gradually, the fabric rots and deteriorates. This is because the air cannot be circulated inside.

"Next, observe the sheet that has been hanging up. After a few hours, this sheet is found perfectly dry, the atmosphere of the room having absorbed the moisture, leaving the sheet fresh and healthy. This experiment illustrates the difference between the solid and the ventilating moistener, and proves that the only sanitary way of moistening cigars is through the principle of the hollow centre. It also shows that the ventilating system gives a hundred times more moisture to the square inch than any solid form. The cork at the end of the device enables the user to increase or decrease the evaporation to suit the conditions of the cigar.

"Ventilating moisteners are made up in very attractive style and add to the beauty of show cases rather than detracting from them. They are finished in non-corrosive metal and are filled with evaporating mineral compositions or with the best absorbing clay, both of which have been proven scientifically to be the best adapted for the purpose."

Marshal Blucher Could Not do Without Pipe

LD Field Marshal Blucher, the doughty German warrior, was particularly fond of three things—a glass of wine, a game of cards and a pipe of tobacco. With the two former he was frequently obliged to dispense, but he could not and would not do without the latter, nor could he help indulging in smoking if it were ever so little, before he undertook anything serious. A few puffs at the spur of the moment would satisfy him, but to do without them at all was a matter of impossibility. For this purpose he had appointed as his pipebearer one of his "boys" (as he used to call his hussars), a fellow countryman from Bostock—Christian Hennemann—who had charge of a large box of common long Dutch clay pipes, all filled with tobacco and ready for use at a moment's notice. This box constituted the principal item of the marshal's field equipage. Hennemann was so devoted to his master and his charge that he would have killed on the spot any one who attempted to purloin a pipe from the box or bring the latter in danger of breaking some of the precious (to him sacred) contents.

On the morning of the memorable battle of Waterloo Hennemann had just handed his master a lighted pipe, when a cannon ball struck the ground close by, scattering earth and gravel in all directions and causing the white charger on which Blucher was mounted to spring aside—a maneuver that broke the pipe into a thousand pieces before the owner had time even to lift it to his lips.

"Just keep a lighted pipe ready for me; I shall be back in a few moments, after I have driven away the rascally French churls." With these words, Blucher gave the command, "Forward, boys!" and off he galloped with his cavalry. Instead, however, of a chase of a few minutes, it was a rapid march of nearly a whole hot summer day, as well known from history.

After the battle was over Blucher rode back with Wellington to the place where he first got a glimpse of the combating armies, and nearing the spot where Blucher had halted in the morning they saw to their surprise a solitary man, his head tied with a handkerchief, one arm in a sling and calmly smoking a pipe.

"Donner and blitz!" cried Blucher; "why, that is my Hennemann. How you look, boy; what are you doing here alone?"

"Waiting for your speedy return," was the grumbling answer. "You have come at last! I have waited for you here, pipe in mouth, for the whole long day. This is the last pipe in the box. The cursed French have shot away every pipe from my mouth. Have ripped the flesh from my head and shattered my arm with their d— bullets. It is well there is an end to the battle, or you would have been too late even for the last pipe." Saying which, he handed to Blucher the pipe, to enjoy the remaining fumes of the weed.

Wellington, who had listened attentively to the conversation, here remarked to Blucher: "You have just admired the unflinching loyalty and bravery of my Highlanders; what shall I say to this true and devoted soul?"

"But your Highlanders had no pipes to regale themselves with," said the old soldier.—Spofford's Library of Wit and Humor.

What Our Consuls Say About Foreign Tobacco Markets

Development of Rhodesian Tobacco Industry

TOBACCO growing is rapidly becoming one of the most important and profitable branches of agriculture in Rhodesia, South Africa. The type most largely cultivated is bright Virginia. At a sale held in Salisbury in January, 1911, an average price of 34 cents per pound was realized for 125,000 pounds of tobacco grown in Mashonaland.

Every facility is given to settlers to learn tobacco curing, and warehouses under expert management have been established at Salisbury and Bulawayo for the handling of the crops. At Salisbury two American tobacco experts, both from Virginia, are employed by the government to teach the best method of tobacco growing.

The Tobacco Company of Rhodesia, under agreement with the British South Africa Company, receives leaf from planters at the central warehouses, where it is graded, placed in proper condition, re-packed, and sold at public auction, a small charge being made to cover the cost of rehandling. When leaf tobacco is delivered at the warehouses it is appraised by the manager, and the grower is able to obtain from the company an advance of 50 per cent. of the estimated value when the leaf is ready for sale. The first auction sale of Rhodesian tobacco was held in 1909, and in the space of three years the amount of leaf has increased from 100,000 pounds to nearly 500,000 pounds, while the price realized is more than five times as much as at the initial sale. At the last sale, held at the Salisbury warehouse on January 31st and February 1st and 2nd, the crop amounted to 453,500 pounds, all of which, with the exception of 46,000 pounds, was of the Virginia type. The average price paid for Virginia leaf, exclusive of scrap, was 28.8 cents per pound, and for Turkish 51.7 cents per pound. The sales amounted to about $150,000. The crops have been sold to South African buyers for local manufacture and consumption as pipe and cigarette tobacco. The success of these sales has resulted in an increased attention to this crop and a desire on the part of a number of farmers to engage in its cultivation.

Tobacco Market in Trebizond, Asiatic Turkey

THE culture of tobacco, the most important article exported from Trebizond, Asiatic Turkey, occupies an area of 35,000 acres producing annually an average of 25,000,000 pounds. As the area of tobacco plantations in the whole Ottoman Empire is not more than 120,000 acres, and the total production of the Empire 75,000,000 pounds, the Trebizond consular district, made up of the Trebizond-Platana, Samsun-Bafra, and Erzerum sections, produces one-third of the total crop on less than one-third of the total acreage.

The United States buys tobacco from the Samsun-Bafra section, the declared exports from Samsun to the United States being $373,353 in 1907, $582,238 in 1908, $397,723 in 1909, $741,678 in 1910, and $1,709,575 in 1911. The Trebizond-Platana tobacco is light yellow, valued chiefly for its color, and is very strong, while Samsun-Bafra tobacco is darker, running from yellow to mahogany, and is milder and more aromatic. Both kinds are used entirely for cigarettes. The tobacco output of the Trebizond-Platana section in 1910 was 6,251,254 pounds. To this should be added 25 per cent. for unregistered tobacco, sold as a contraband.

Of the Trebizond-Platana output, 2,464,638 pounds were reported to Alexandria, Egypt, 516,336 pounds to Europe, about 1,100,000 pounds were used by the Regie, and the rest remained in stock. As this tobacco has only Egypt for a large customer, it is considered unsafe for speculation, for if Egypt should stop buying the price would go down 50 per cent.—Vice Consul I. Montesanto.

Tobacco Growing in Mexico

The State of Vera Cruz is becoming a large producer of tobacco of a fair quality, and the Pacific slope is now producing an excellent quality, which gives rise to the hope that Mexico soon may rival the most important tobacco-producing countries.

Mexico City possesses some of the largest and best-equipped cigarette factories in the world. According to the latest statistics available, these factories consume over 18,000,000 pounds of tobacco annually in the manufacture of cigarettes. As cigarettes are more generally used in Mexico than tobacco in other forms, these factories are of more commercial importance than the cigar manufacturers. According to the same statistics, the Mexico City factories use only about a million pounds of tobacco annually in the manufacture of cigars.—Consul General Arnold Shanklin, Mexico City.

Importation of Tobacco into Gibraltar

Although the importation of the different grades of tobacco into Gibraltar shows a slight falling off for 1911, this does not signify that the demand has been less. American tobacco continues to arrive in about the same volume as heretofore. The restrictions enforced there on the exportation of tobacco have caused manufacturers in Oran and Algiers to adopt the trade-marks of local manufacturers. A great deal of this so-called "Gibraltar manufacture" finds its way into Spain, where there is constant demand for it, as well as for other cheap classes of tobacco.—Consul Richard L. Sprague.

Tobacco Crop of Smyrna, Asiatic Turkey

The tobacco crop of Smyrna in 1911 was the largest since 1903, being estimated at 22,500,000 pounds. It was of about the usual quality, with light colored leaves, delicately veined. On account of scarcity of labor, planting was expensive, while the abundant crop brought about low prices. Higher prices on account of a smaller area planted were in prospect for 1912.—Consul General George Horton.

American Machinery Manufacturers Take Notice?

A number of requests have been received at an American consulate in South Africa for catalogues of tobacco manufacturing machinery, especially of twisting machinery for dealing with twisted plug tobacco. The consular officer submitting the report writes that duplicate sets of the catalogues and trade literature for his files will be appreciated. Requests have also been received for the names of American publications dealing with tobacco interests generally and carrying advertisements of American implements and machinery connected with the cultivation and manufacture of tobacco.

Inquiries for the address should be directed to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, referring to File Number 9725.

Tobacco Production in South Africa

THE output of South African tobacco is estimated as follows: Transvaal, 3,500,000 pounds, of which 5 per cent. is suitable for cigarette making; Cape of Good Hope, 1,000,000 pounds, of which 10 per cent. is suitable for cigarette making; Orange Free State, 250,000 pounds, of which 5 per cent. is suitable for cigarette making; Rhodesia, 200,000 pounds, of which 25 per cent. is suitable for cigarette making, and Natal, 3,000,000 pounds, none of which is suitable for cigarette making. In the manufacture of tobacco wages are stated to be 10 to 12 per cent. the value of the output.

A commission which investigated the tobacco industry was satisfied that most of the higher classes of tobacco can be grown in the Union, and that the reason why such a large proportion of the output is unsuitable for cigarettes, etc., is due to the lack of sufficient expert advice and experimental stations. The quantity of unmanufactured tobacco imported annually into the Union for consumption is about 1,000,000 pounds. This total would be greatly reduced if growers were instructed in the proper methods of cultivation, curing, etc. The commission recommended that experimental farms be established to the end that the growers may be given expert advice.

Tobacco Monopoly of Formosa

The Tobacco Monopoly of this Government will become a small grower of the plant in case its present plans are successful. It intends to cultivate Manila tobacco in Karenko, on the east coast, and already has dispatched an expert to Japan to secure farmers experienced in tobacco raising. Some officials are to be sent to Manila to study tobacco cultivation there for two years.

Interesting Trade Items

The "Buffalo Pipe Hospital," 184 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y., which has been run until recently by David Ellis, of that city, has been purchased by Arthur L. Haas. The business will be carried on along the same lines as heretofore by Mr. Haas, with Marcus Haas as manager.

The Cincinnati Tobacco Warehouse Company, of that city, met recently and elected officers for the new year. They are as follows: W. H. Whiteman, president; Bart Schmidt, vice-president, and Frank S. Albers, secretary-treasurer.

John Weige, who has constructed a building for the New Jersey Tobacco Company, of New Brunswick, N. J., has leased it to that concern for $900 a year.

The farmers of Stokes County, N. C., recently sold practically the entire crop of their 1911 tobacco to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company at a price which they claimed was much above the figure they were receiving for it last year, they having pooled their crops and waited until there was a raise in prices. This pool was almost the entire crop of last year and amounted to eight hundred thousand pounds.

Las Primas Manila Factory

Manila Cigars have been steadily coming to the front in the trade throughout the United States during the past few years, and after a careful investigation of the merits of the different manufacturers in the Philippines, we have secured the exclusive control of the product of Las Primas Factory. We carry these goods, retailing from five cents straight to three for a quarter.

And dealers everywhere like that straight price feature of Fatimas.
It assures them the maximum profit, and the attractive Fatima advertising that is regularly appearing in leading publications, keeps up the big demand for this cigarette, and emphasizes the one-price, 15 cents.

Another very pleasant fact in favor of Fatimas is their power to produce "repeat sales". Men will go out of their way for a package of Fatima Cigarettes, once they learn their matchless goodness.

Put the two together—standard price and staying quality. Then figure by any method you choose and

The Only Automatic Machines for Manufacturing a Complete Cigar

With seven operators these machines will do the work of forty skilled men.

The cost to manufacture cigars under the hand method ranges from $4 per thousand for the cheapest grades to $18 to $40 per thousand for the higher grades. The cost to manufacture cigars on our machines is approximately $2 per thousand. And the work is done with greater uniformity and perfection than is possible by hand. The cigars cannot be told from the hand-made product. We are now proving it in our demonstration plant, 106 S. Gay Street, Baltimore, Md., where a million cigars have been made.

The automatic bunching and binding machine shown below has a capacity of 10,000 perfect bunches a day, requiring two comparatively unskilled operators. The wrapping machine shown above will wrap and finish 2000 cigars a day, requiring one operator.

Which figured out, means considerably less than $2.00 per thousand, for a capacity of 10,000 cigars a day of eight hours. Can you beat it?

Write us today, before you forget it, for prices for installation.

Her Christmas Cigars

A Yuletide Episode Written for The Tobacco World

by S. Addison Wolf

(With Apologies to Kipling and Every Woman Who Reads It)

A wife there was, and she went dead broke,
(Even as yours and mine),
To buy a box of Christmas smoke.
And put her diamonds all in soak,
To cheer a doddering old bloke.
(Even as you and I.)

She shopped and shopped from morn 'till night,
(Even as yours and mine),
In search of labels fair and bright,
And golden bands that would delight
Her fancy and her Man of Might,
(Even as you and I.)

The wife, all worn and fit to drop,
(Even as yours and mine),
Slipped into Jones' old Smoke Shop,
And put it up to that old top,
To pick the best for her "dear Pop"
(Even as you and I.)

Now, Jonesy, knew a thing or two,
(Even as you and I),
He showed her fancy boxes, new,
Bedecked in colors, red and blue,
And gaudy shades of every hue.
(Even as yours and mine.)

"Here's one, from Pedro's cunning hand,
(Even as yours and mine),
"And one which 'Hub' can understand,
"The name's on each and every brand,
"Right off the boat from Cuba-land."
(Even as you and I.)

She bought the lot, two hundred all,
(Even as you and I),
Hung up the socks around the wall,
Filled each with brown Perfectos, small,
And waited Santa's morning call.
(Even as you and I.)

Ah! wasted love and wasted gold!
(Even as yours and mine),
Could she have all the pangs foretold,
She'd have her diamonds yet unsold,
And saved her cash, for one less cold,
(Even as you and I.)

Like Martyr led off to the block,
(Even as you and I),
He pulled a weed from purple sock,
Bit end, and thought he'd struck a rock!
Glanced sidewise, with an awful shock,
(Even as you and I.)

With face awry, the first he'd try,
(Even as you and I),
He set his jaws to do or die,
And cast his eyes up to the sky,
As if imploring aid on high,
(Even as you and I.)

He puffed and puffed, but ne'er a draft,
(Even as you and I),
Could he draw through that solid staff
Of what seemed hand-made punk and chaff,
He snickered, but he couldn't laugh.
(Even as you and I.)

Quick, ere her eager eyes could scan,
(Even as yours and mine),
He threw it in the old fire-can,
And slyly drew his own Havan,—
And lit it, that bold rascal man!
(Even as you and I.)

"'Tis great!" he vowed, with smile so bland,
(Even as you and I),
"How could you find a brand so grand?
"It hits the spot and beats the band,
"You've bought the very best in the land."
(Even as you and I.)

What though he suffer all Hell's fire,
(Even as you and I),
And bear the stigma of a liar,
All this, and more, could he desire,
Than to have 'roused his wife's ire!
(Even as yours and mine.)

CHRISTMAS SAMPLES

How A Lonesome Salesman Did A Little Boosting in the South

By Baynard H. Kendrick

THIS is supposed to be a Christmas story, so the casual reader who is a stickler for convention had better cease reading right now, if he expects to hear the jingle of sleigh bells, and see a soft blanket of snow covering the earth. The Christmas Day I am describing was blame hot, as it happened in a small town in the center of Florida.

Nobody ever denied the fact that Martin Herf was a good salesman. His being on the pay-roll of the Eastern Tobacco Company was ample proof of the fact, and nearly every retail dealer throughout the South clutched wildly at his bank roll, whenever he heard the soft southern drawl of Martin Herf in the front part of his shop.

Many people said that Martin Herf had a big heart, in everything that did not pertain to the filthy lucre. So when his trunk of samples was bounced roughly on the Lake Side Villa porch, the proprietor greeted him with a wide smile, for it was the day before Christmas, and company was always acceptable at that out-of-the-way hotel. The proprietor knew quite well that Martin Herf had an inexhaustible supply of stories and good cigars; but at this particular time Martin was in no mood to distribute these, for he was mad clean through, this being the first Christmas that he had ever spent away from New York.

Starts for General Store.

Greeting the proprietor in a curt manner, he opened his trunk and filled the small hand bag, which he carried with several samples of his cheapest grade of cigars, and started out on a slow walk for Dennings' Emporium, the general store of the town, if we may call the place a town.

The road was hot and dusty and by the time he reached the front of the ramshackle building he was very grimy and irritable. His temper was not improved, when upon entering the store, he found that there was no one to be seen. After banging on the counter impatiently for four or five minutes, he walked over to the cigar case and took a casual inventory of its contents, and then a slow smile spread over his face, and he chuckled to himself, for there standing in a row were the ten boxes of cigars which he had sold old Dennings a year before, and barring the fact that three of the cigars were missing from one of the boxes they were all intact.

His Goods Confront Him.

"Lands sake," he soliloquized, "I sure have a fine chance of selling any more cigars to this store," and with this he turned around and was about to go out, when the rustle of a dress in the back part of the store attracted his attention. Turning around, the white hair and sweet face of a very old lady met his gaze. It was evident that she had been crying. Although he had never seen the proprietor's wife, he knew that it must be she, and taking off his hat, he smiled at her in his fascinating way: "I suppose you-all don't remember me Mrs. Dennings, because I have not been here for a year or more, and I don't know as I saw you then, but I know your husband quite well, and it is he that I want to see now."

"Why haven't you heard Mr.——?"

"Herf," he volunteered.

"Mr. Herf," she went on, "my husband died just a few months ago. I've tried to run the store by myself since then, but it gets almighty lonesome here at times, and I don't seem to be having much success," and with a suspicious catch in her voice, she began to weep bitterly. Then Herf, with his slow Southern way, extracted the whole pitiful story from the little woman. How their business had become worse and worse, on account of the new store which had just gone up and was taking most of their old trade away from them. How her husband became heart-broken over this fact, and finally passed away, leaving the burden on her shoulders.

"If I could only get enough money to tide me over until the first of the year," she cried softly, "I think that the new store would buy me out, and I could live comfortably on the money, but I do not see how I am going to get enough to last that long, for nobody hardly buys anything here now."

An Investment in Samples.

Possibly because it was "Xmas," possibly it was because Martin Herf was just Martin Herf, but something seemed to swell up inside of him, and he felt that his eyes were moist. "Why, you keep cigars, don't you?" he asked.

"Yes," she replied, "but I don't know how much any of them cost." Herf crossed over to the cigar case again, and looking at them with another of his slow smiles, assured her, "Why these are mighty good cigars. Now, look here Mrs. Dennings, I'm a travelling man and I smoke a good deal. Now, I'll just tell you what I'll do. I'll buy those cigars from you, the whole ten boxes of them at $8 a box. I think that's about what they're worth to you," and he laid eight ten-dollar bills down on the counter and felt that it was well worth the money, when he saw the little lady's face light up with such a beautiful smile.

When Herf returned to the hotel with ten boxes of the Eastern Tobacco Company's product tucked under his arm, the proprietor looked at him in amazement.

"Where did you get those Mart," he inquired. "I didn't see you have them when you went out."

"I didn't," replied Martin, "but I thought I needed a few more samples, and as these were cheap I bought them all."

"What did you pay for them?" the proprietor persisted.

"Eight dollars a box," responded Martin slowly.

"Why good lord man," gasped the proprietor, "I sell them same cigars at $2.50 a box retail."

"I know that," answered the salesman. "But you see these boxes I have are Xmas Samples. Won't you have a drink?"

Suggestion to the retailer. The Christmas poem on the reverse side of this page, would make an attractive poster for your Christmas window display. It might be well to add to it that "it is safe for wives and sweet-hearts to buy cigars at your store, as you give full value for the money."

POINTERS FOR CHRISTMAS WINDOWS

Suggestions For the Retailers On Trimming Displays For the Holidays

By James M. Fordyce

It is no longer a question before the progressive retailer as to whether his show windows should be specially trimmed during the Christmas season. Every live retailer knows that they should be.

The big question then is how to do the trimming? This involves the conception of an original idea for the scheme and originality in executing it.

Of course every window trimmed from now to Christmas should reflect the holiday season. This is the basis on which every window trimmer should begin his line of thought.

The hackneyed idea of putting a Santa Claus in the window has been overworked, but in truth, it could hardly be improved upon. The retailer has a chance to display some originality in the manner he uses the merry old fellow. Putting a box of cigars in Santa's extended hand offering them to prospective shoppers, adds a touch of human interest that catches the eye and enlists the attention of the passerby.

Get After the Box Trade.

In preparing your window, Mr. Retailer, always try to put some action into it. Get away from the old-style trim of tier upon tier of cigar boxes, and tier upon tier of pipes.

A touch of human interest or a poster having some pertinent thought bearing upon gift giving, will bring you more customers than showing thousands of cigar boxes.

This is the time of the year to develop your box trade, and every poster should try to lead the customer's mind in this direction.

If you have several windows, you might devote one to cigars exclusively and another to pipes. This is the season when pipes should be featured. It is often found advisable in presenting a big display of pipes to number each pipe shown, so that a customer seeing the display, may call for the style he wants by number.

Don't Overcrowd Your Window.

Whether you trim your window with pipes or cigars, it is always necessary to remember not to overcrowd it. A few goods tastefully arranged, with a fitting background, attracts more attention than a window overflowing with goods, scattered promiscuously.

Expert window dressers find it helpful to make a pencil sketch of the window, outlining how they wish to proceed with the trimmings. They then place in their backgrounds and add the stock at the points indicated. This leads to a more attractive and symmetrical trim than making up your composition as you proceed.

The color scheme for windows should be developed with discretion. It is not well to mix colors which clash in your background.

It is often found helpful to balance the window display by light colored cigars between heavier or darker ones, thereby giving a more harmonious color scheme to the window.

Red and green decorations on a white background, form an ideal setting for Christmas trims. This enables the decorator to introduce holly wreaths and other floral trims without clashing with the color scheme.

To Women Shoppers:

Why not buy him a box of our brand of cigars? Our reputation guarantees the value of every box. This is your protection. Special Xmas packings.

Get Him a Pipe:

Don't Forget The Cigars:

Mr. Busyman, be sure to take home a box of our Havanas. Don't depend upon Christmas gifts to keep your stock supplied. Our cigars are like dessert at dinner.

Well Have You Met This Man?

OH, don't you miss the fellow
With the disposition mellow
Who had one little trick that made the world go like a song;

No matter what his mission,
With his pleasant disposition
He bred a cheery confidence that nothing could go wrong,
For he'd bring to each occasion
Such a sociable persuasion

That your grouch, however mighty, could not carry very far;

For his way was so beguiling
That you'd soon reflect the smiling
He brought to bear as affably he said, "Have a cigar!"

The weed was often bitter
And you yearned to be a quitter;
But you puffed away and wouldn't hurt his feelings for the earth.

For the vapors upward flowing
Were like the clouds they're blowing
When Indians smoke the peace pipe and powwow for all they're worth.

His genial mood controlled you
And you listened while he told you
About his goods. At selling things he surely was a star;
And his powers energetic
And amazingly magnetic

Seem, largely, to arise from that one phrase, "Have a cigar!"
—Washington Star.

I HAVE seen some pretty amusing incidents in my time, but I saw a case the other day that certainly took the first prize for unadulterated idiocy. I had been talking to a dealer friend of mine, who at the time had gone to the back of the store, when a fellow strolled, or rather rolled, in. And he did it in such a precipitate manner that he brought up against the counter before my friend could get over in front of him to attend to his wants.

He had come right up to the counter near where the big cash register stands. He looked the machine over in a bleary, misty sort of way, and then began fumbling in his vest pocket. Pretty soon he clawed a nickel out and poked it through that little opening for sales checks in the back. Then he reached around and jabbed at the end key on the row. He made three or four lunges before he hit it, and when he finally did he rang up fifteen dollars at the rate of three dollars a punch. Of course, that attracted my friend's attention and he came around to see who was trying to tap the till. There the fellow was bending over the top of the register with his eyes fairly hanging out of their sockets. "I guesh I mush be drunk sure nuf," he muttered. "Seems to me I can see 'bout twenty starting levers on thish here ol' slot machine."

I found out afterward that he had been a fellow who had come from a part of the country where the slot machines were not as yet a thing of the past. But a man who can't tell a cash register from a slot machine ought not to be trusted abroad. Something is liable to happen to him. In one of his lucid intervals he should appoint a keeper.

He stuck the cigar in his face,
And applied a match to the end.
The smile that broke through the cloud of smoke,
Showed it wasn't a Christmas brand.

A Western woman recently had to pay over a large sum of money which she lost by a curious arrangement. It appears the lady under discussion was much opposed to tobacco and liquors in any and every form. In fact so much so that she offered a cool half-million dollars to the nineteen-year-old son of a sister several years ago if he abstained from the aforementioned "vices" until he became of age. If the strain proved too much for the youth he forfeited the half-million.

In commenting upon it a Western paper states that the young man was within a week of reaching his majority and had kept his promise, thus earning the money. Probably no one would have turned down such a proposition, that is, in his right senses, but the chances are that the young Croesus is going to make up for lost time now that he has the opportunity. There are many men who never smoked until they became of age, but to look at them now they did not lose any time consuming cigars and tobacco after they did get started.

Jimmy—Let me chew yer gum for a few minutes, will yer, Eddie? You know me?

Eddie—Yes, I knows yer; you're de guy wot had a whole cig'rette yesterday an' wouldn't gimme one inhale, G'wan and sell your papers.

Chimmie—Since I learned to love youse, Angelina, I almost wisht I'd never learned to smoke. It takes so much money to satisfy my craving for cigarettes dat I'm afraid I'll never save enuff ter git married.

A clever "robbery" scheme came to light in Hackensack several weeks ago, when the men dopping out the plot could not agree, and as a result came to grief. It appears that one of the men, a driver for a cigar firm, had arranged that he be "robbed." He carried over $300 of the company's money at the time. When they reported it to the police the driver and his assistant blamed the robbery on one of the participants who was to be the goat and, of course, got away in time. The plan failed when the man happened to be caught. And since he thought his accomplices were trying to double-cross him before he got an opportunity to get away, he "squealed."

As a consequence the driver of the wagon and his assistant are now in jail awaiting sentence, a jury finding them guilty.

He—Mary, here's a scientist who writes that smoking assists the circulation.

She—Yes; the circulation of cash.

Smoke from tobacco is a disinfectant, as has long been popularly held. It is curious to hear what some of the ancient writers had to say about the plant. It is recorded that during the great plague in Europe, hundreds of years ago, children were told to smoke in their school rooms. The idea was probably borrowed from the customs of the buriers of the dead on their way in charge of dead-carts to the burial grounds. In a book published about that time, entitled, "A Brief Abstract of the Virtues of the American Plant," it is learned that at first these persons only used tobacco as a deodorizer. "They little thought," the book says, "that what they used for momentary relief would prove a constant preventative. When the plague was happily stayed, the virtues of tobacco began to be investigated. It was found that those persons who plentifully used it, either in smoking or snuffing, had most wonderfully escaped the dire contagion. For though they visited the chambers of the sick, attended the funerals of cartloads of victims at a time, they unexpectedly avoided the contagion." The writer even claimed that since Europe took to smoking, epidemics had greatly decreased.

A. B. Smith & Company File Bankruptcy Petition, Showing Heavy Liability

Well Known Cigar Manufacturers of Cambridge Financially Embarrassed—Head of Firm Also Insolvent

(Special Dispatch to The Tobacco World.)

BOSTON, MASS., November 28.

A VOLUNTARY petition in bankruptcy was filed in the Federal Court yesterday by A. B. Smith & Company, Inc., cigar manufacturers of Cambridge. At the same time, Albertis B. Smith, treasurer of the company filed a personal petition in bankruptcy.

The liabilities of the firm are given as $37,887, and assets at $23,079. The personal liabilities of Mr. Smith far exceed those of the firm, being $208,167, with assets of $50,247.

A number of prominent leaf tobacco houses are among the heaviest creditors. The principal creditor is S. Rossin & Son, New York, who have a secured claim for $76,583.

The failure of this factory caused quite a sensation in the trade. The business of A. B. Smith & Company was founded a little more than two years ago, when Mr. Smith retired from the firm of Barnes, Smith & Company, of Binghamton, N. Y.

When Mr. Smith came to Boston he began the manufacture of the brand "3-20-8," which had considerable sale in this market. Recently, he erected a modern cigar factory in Cambridge, which he has occupied for the last six months. Mr. Smith has a large number of friends in the trade, who will regret to hear of the embarrassment of his business.

Sale of Henry Spies Cigar Company Declared Void

Attorneys for Cigar and Tobacco Trades Alliance Prove Proceedings Were Fraudulent and Transaction Is Set Aside

ONE of the first cases handled by the attorneys for the newly-organized Cigar and Tobacco Trades Alliance, Incorporated, was that in connection with the bankruptcy proceedings against the Henry Spies Cigar Company. Proceedings had been pending to set aside as fraudulent and void a certain transfer of the business and assets of the company, made to one Harry Schlesinger, on October 19th last.

At that time the consideration for the transfer of the lease, stock in trade, factory and outstanding accounts of the business, was said to be $200 in cash and undorsed notes of Mr. Schlesinger, the purchaser, running over a period of three years. The claims of the creditors amounted to about $7000.

These proceedings were brought by Yankauer & Davidson, attorneys representing John L. Little, the receiver, and as counsel for the Cigar and Tobacco Trades' Alliance. They contested the validity of the transfer and the matter was referred to Special Master John J. Townsend, who last week handed down an opinion after a number of hearings held before him, in which he held that the transfer was fraudulent and void. This decision was confirmed by the United States District Court in a declaration signed by Julius M. Mayer, the Judge, in which the transfer of the business is declared to be fraudulent and void, and the same will be set aside. The bill of sale is also declared null and void, and the property is to constitute the assets of the bankrupt estate, available to the creditors for the satisfaction of their claims.

Tobacco Bug Killing Machine Leads to Big Suit For Damages

Promoters of Sale of Electri-Sterilizing Method Sue Makers for Loss of Time and Money
---Legal Battle Likely

SUIT to recover approximately $20,000 has been brought in the Philadelphia Courts by Gillett & Son, of Tampa, Fla., against the Electri-Sterilizing Company, a Delaware corporation with headquarters in Philadelphia.

The suit brings to light a number of interesting facts connected with the process and the machine recently invented by Franklin S. Smith to kill tobacco bugs and sterilize their eggs, by a unique process of electrocution. Full details regarding this invention were published in THE TOBACCO WORLD about two years ago, since which time Mr. Smith has demonstrated his machines with apparent success in Cuba, Florida and in Pennsylvania.

Some time ago the Electri-Sterilizing Company was chartered in Delaware to take over the Smith patents and manufacture the machines. At that time Gillett & Son, well-known dealers in cigar-box lumber, of Tampa, Fla., made a contract with the corporation, to act as selling agents and promoters of the invention in Florida and in Cuba. Through Mr. Gillett's efforts, the machine was given a thorough trial in the factory of Cuesta, Rey & Company, Tampa, and Mr. Gillett avers that he spent more than $10,000 in introducing and exploiting the machine in cigar factories.

According to the complainant, he was to be reimbursed by the company, in the event of the machine failing to do the work for which it was intended. Mr. Gillett now states that experiments failed to prove the worth of the machine, and he seeks to recover, not only money which he actually spent, but damages to his good name and reputation.

Summons of the suit were served during the past week on Dr. Phillip Marvel, the well-known Atlantic City physician, who is president of the company, and George W. Coles, a Philadelphia lawyer, who is secretary.

The defendants have secured the services of Simpson & Brown, and Mr. Gillett retained Attorneys Wilson & Moise.

Carlton Joins Tobacco Products Corporation

DAYTON, O., November 29.

E. P. Carlton, formerly manager of the J. B. Moos Company, this city, has resigned to accept a position with the newly organized Tobacco Products Corporation of New York City. Just what his capacity will be, with the new concern, has not yet been announced. He is an experienced cigar and cigarette man and will, no doubt, occupy some important field in connection with this new $50,000,000 merger.

Seven Bills in House of Representatives

When Congress convenes on December 1, it will have before it a number of bills which are on the calendar of the House Committee on Ways and Means.

Four of these bills relate to taxing tobacco coupons. Another is to regulate the sale of unstemmed leaf tobacco. A measure by Representative Warburton aims to place sugar and molasses on the free list and to increase the internal revenue on tobacco products. The latter bill will arouse much discussion, it is predicted.

Weather Fairly Favorable For New Cuban Crop

Review of the Situation By Correspondent of The Tobacco World—
Latest Estimate on 1912 Growth is 550,000 Bales—
Americans and Germans Are Heaviest of Early Buyers

HAVANA, November 25th.

OUR leaf market during the past week has been dull, if we compare same with the activity that has prevailed here during the summer and early fall months. On the other hand prices have kept up wonderfully, as instead of a decline we have heard of a further rise for certain classes. The number of new buyers from the North has been smaller than we had expected, therefore it seems, that many of these that formerly came to see us after the first day of January have not been able to break themselves of this habit, and will only make their appearance in our city as usual. We heard of some commission merchants, that have urged their customers to come here earlier this year, to have been unsuccessful, but we fear that the latter will be sorry in not having heeded the advice given to them in their own interest. There may be enough tobacco to be found, but the prices will not be lower, unless something unforeseen should happen, and the selection of goods will be surely a poorer one.

Sales have been in reality somewhat heavier than the figures reported would show, but as the tobacco has not been registered yet, the sellers would not disclose such transactions. The receipts from the country on the other hand have been swelled by some parcels, that had previously been stored in Regla, the numbers of which it had been impossible to obtain earlier. It is believed that from the Partido section about 40,000 bales may have been received by carts, and which will be added to the total at the end of December. If we should make allowance for what still remains in the country, and what may have been shipped from other parts of the island of Cuba, besides Havana, also including the local consumption of leaf in the interior towns, the total crop from all sections ought to amount to around 550,000 bales of the 1912 growth.

What has been surprising has been the avidity with which American buyers have stocked up so early this year, thus showing that the quality has been universally approved of not alone, but also that manufacturers could not have carried large stocks from previous years. The demand from Germany has also been a prominent factor, as notwithstanding the rise in prices, it would have taken more, had the crop been larger.

The weather up to now has been favorable for the tobacco planted previously, as well as for the further setting out of seedlings all over the tobacco growing regions. Advices from the Vuelta Abajo state, however, that a little rain would do a great deal of good, and if the dry weather should continue it would retard the growth. Under these circumstances it is best not to be too sanguine in forecasting the future, as everything will depend on the coming temperature.

Let him prove he is too good to be left in his present place, then only will he be promoted.

Edgar J. Stachelberg Joins Sanchez & Haya Well Known Cigar Manufacturer Goes to Famous Tampa Factory As General Manager

TAMPA, FLA., November 28th.

AN alliance which promises to be mutually profitable and beneficial has just been formed by Edgar J. Stachelberg and the fine old cigar manufacturing house of Sanchez & Haya, whereby Mr. Stachelberg acquires an interest in the firm and becomes its vice-president and general manager.

There are few, if any, men in the clear Havana cigar industry, better known and more capable than Mr. Stachelberg. When he sold out his interests in the M. Stachelberg & Co. and Esberg-Gunst factories about a year ago he embarked in the leaf tobacco business in Havana. He now returns to

Edgar J. Stachelberg

Tampa to assume his new duties with the Sanchez & Haya factory and will devote his time and efforts, principally in the tobacco purchasing end of the business, in which branch he is rated as one of the best informed and cleverest men in the trade.

The house of Sanchez & Haya, is to be congratulated on its obtaining the services of so able a man, and Mr. Stachelberg, in turn, upon an opportunity to ally himself with a firm that has always had such a distinguished reputation, as makers of high class goods.

A regular quarterly dividend of four per cent. has been declared by the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company. Also a script dividend of twenty per cent. in script, bearing six per cent. interest, payable in July and January. This script is redeemable at par at the option of the company after three years from December 31st.

Whether or not one agrees absolutely with all the deductions drawn by President Percival S. Hill, in his statement regarding the condition of the tobacco business, since the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, and its subsidiaries, it will be conceded unambiguously, that this statement is remarkably frank, and marks the dawn of a new era in the conduct of the business of big corporations. As such, the statement is both unique and interesting.

Mr. Hill does not hesitate to turn the limelight of publicity on the newly organized companies, their methods of doing business, and in emphatically denying any collusion or illegitimate relationship. Indeed, his statement, of competitive conditions, is a challenge to anyone who would dispute the fact that the dissolved companies are not living up to the word and letter of the court's decree. If any one disbelieves this, let him put his grievance into action, instead of circulating rumbling complaints which are empty echoes of discontent and incompetency.

Mr. Hill's remarks on the part that advertising has played in the development of competition among the various companies, reveal startling figures as to the lavish manner in which money has been poured into printer's ink, during the past year. Evidently, the competing companies believe that advertising is one of the first essentials in developing new markets for their brands, but as Mr. Hill remarks, it remains to be seen, whether the increased volume of business, resulting from their advertising policy, will result in increased profits.

The statement of Mr. Hill, which is printed elsewhere in this issue, is worth reading. It constitutes a remarkable exposition of the tobacco trade, as viewed by one of its most powerful factors.

As a champion of sanitary methods in every branch of the tobacco business, "The Tobacco World" has been quick to indorse every movement that would bring about this end. We believe in making our cigar and tobacco factories more cleanly and sanitary, and in enforcing rules which would remove the manufacturer of tobacco products beyond the pale of possible censure, from even the most fastidious.

However, we cannot indorse some of the extreme measures that have been recently set forth in the public press by faddists and half-baked reformers who have no conception of the matters in which they are attempting to lead.

An example of the over-zealous reformer is the outcry that has been recently raised against cigar cutters in retail stores. It is claimed by faddists that disease is spread through the medium of cigar cutters. We do not believe this and we defy anyone to prove it. There are comparatively few smokers who place cigars in their mouths before inserting them into the cutters, and the points of contact in the cutter, are so small, and the cigars are held there for only such a short space of time, that we cannot conceive of any contagion resulting from this operation.

Moreover, scientists say that tobacco is a natural antiseptic and germicide, and whatever germ might be extracted from the cutter, would be promptly killed, when it finds lodgement in the cigar.

We believe that this crusade against cigar cutters will not be taken seriously either by the public or by the retailers, who have had cigar cutters on their counters for many years. However, we would advise retailers to keep their cigar cutters washed and clean, and to anticipate any of the objections which might be raised against it.

Cigar cutters are necessary and they are here to stay.

There is a notable scarcity this season in fancy and costly packings of imported cigars for Christmas trade. As a prominent importer remarked, "we are in the cigar business this year, not lumber business."

Last year a number of very expensive cabinets were put out by some of the leading importers of Havana cigars, and thousands of them were sold without additional profit to the retailer and even a loss to the importer and manufacturer. As a result there has been a reaction this season, and the fancy packings for holiday trade are fewer.

As usual there are many offerings of variety sizes in modest boxes, but as a whole, there is a disposition this season to give the consumer cigars, and not boxes, which idea is both sane and practical.

Make this a Merry Christmas, Mr. Retailer, by brushing the cobwebs off your window and letting the light of progressiveness in. In short, get busy and pull in some of that box trade.

Tobacco Alliance Elects Permanent Executives

Asa Lemlein Chosen as Chairman—Plans Made to Strengthen Service of Credit Bureau

AT the first regular meeting of the Advisory Board of the newly organized Cigar and Tobacco Trades Alliance, Incorporated, of New York, the following officers were elected: Asa Lemlein, permanent chairman; Mr. Baum, permanent secretary; Maurice P. Davidson, executive vice-chairman, and Alfred Yankauer, executive secretary.

The Credit Bureau of the Alliance was discussed and plans were laid to make its work more effective. A resolution was adopted directing the central office to send notices of all pending claims to all members of the Alliance whenever suit is brought, or when special circumstances render the giving of such notice a matter of general interest.

By keeping the members of the Association constantly in touch with the credit of uncertain accounts, it is hoped to prevent serious financial losses.

A steady increase in the membership of the Alliance was reported.

Among those present were: Messrs. Lemlein, Irving L. Stern, Kahn, Berriman, Balbin, Baum, Gans, Perez, Schavrien, Yankauer, Davidson, Hunter.

New York Retailers' Committee To See Wilson Will Lay Their Grievances Before President-Elect

In order to put themselves in the right light before the new administration at Washington, which takes hold next March, a committee of dealers was appointed at the last meeting of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association of New York, held on October 14. The committee was authorized to call upon President-elect Wilson, and to try to secure relief from the conditions now prevailing in New York. The committee is composed of Messrs. Rosner, Gompers, Erlich and Hunter.

More Hands Needed for Merriam Plant

John W. Merriam returned to New York recently from a quick trip to Chicago and brought back with him a fine batch of orders for Christmas business. Mr. Merriam says that right at this moment, that they could use fifty more skilled cigarmakers if they were able to obtain them, but New York City is once again suffering from a shortage of skilled labor. The Merriam output of "De Luxe" and "Baron De Kalb," and their other brands will show larger for this quarter of the year than for several years previous.

H. Table Porter Joins A. Kern & Company

Will Make New York his Headquarters—Is Vice-President and General Sales Manager

HTABLE PORTER, last Tuesday, entered upon his new official duties as vice-president and general sales manager of A. Kern & Co., manufacturers of the "Bernadotte" clear Havana cigar. Mr. Porter joins this company as a member of the firm, having severed his connections with the Surbrug Company, whose New York representative he has been for a considerable time. He will make his headquarters in New York City, at 109 W. 42nd Street, where he will be in close touch with the trade with which he has become so familiar.

There is no doubt that a great measure of success awaits Mr. Porter in his new venture for he is most capable and exceedingly well versed in his undertaking. He was for a great number of years with the American Tobacco Company, and later with the Philip Morris Company. He has a host of friends and acquaintances throughout the country, where he is well known and popular, as he has proven himself to be in the metropolitan territory. The "Bernadotte" cigar that he intends to popularize, is of the very highest grade of clear Havana goods manufactured in New York City, and there is no need of hesitancy in predicting for him his usual success.

Jac. Wertheim Heads Geo. L. Storm & Company

FOLLOWING the resignation of George L. Storm from the presidency of George L. Storm & Co.'s jobbing house, the board of directors met on November 18th and elected the following officers and directors for the ensuing year: Mr. Jac. Wertheim was chosen president and the other officers were as follows: First vice-president, Oscar Reinach, second vice-president, Homer B. Lyon; treasurer, Thomas Crosby; secretary, Henry Marks. The directors consist of Jac. Wertheim, Oscar Reinach, Maurice Wertheim, Homer B. Lyon and Thomas Crosby.

Starr Brothers, who have been doing a leaf tobacco trade at 161 Pearl Street, have discontinued business.

George Kober, of the leaf house of Kober Brothers, of this city, died about ten days ago, following an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Kober was thirty-six years of age.

E. Regensburg & Sons Move Uptown

Handsome Quarters in the Marbridge Building, 34th and Broadway, Formally Opened

ON Friday afternoon, November 22nd, the firm of E. Regensburg & Sons closed up shop down at their old quarters on Canal Street, and on Monday morning the 25th they re-opened for business in their magnificent new offices and salesrooms in the Marbridge Building at 34th Street and Broadway and were running along as smoothly as though they had been located there for several years.

The firm have leased splendid quarters on the first floor above the street, in this most desirable location, the entrance being at No. 47 West 34th Street, and the offices are situated directly on the corner of the great building, giving them some fourteen great display windows which must be seen by thousands of passers-by daily. These windows are most effectively used in display signs, which are made of imported cut glass, and on each sash some telling point concerning the Regensburg product is succinctly set forth.

Upon entering the showrooms, the first impression for the visitor is a most pleasing one. The high ceilings are impressive and a general air of spaciousness is everywhere apparent. On the left of the main entrance is a splendid humidor, tastefully built of dark oak and some thirty feet wide and over forty feet in length. The top of the humidor forms a gallery from which a fine view of the executive offices and shipping room can be obtained.

The private offices of the members of the firm are all arranged along the street side thus giving them splendid light and a general air of cheeriness and comfort. Needless to say they are splendidly furnished.

On opening day, hosts of friends of the firm took pleasure in sending flowers and messages of congratulation and good will. In the private office of Isaac Regensburg rested a superb floral horseshoe on Monday, the 25th and the proverbial spirit emphasized by this token was echoed by everyone who came into the new quarters.

With their magnificent factory in Tampa to supply the goods and with such splendid salesrooms in New York City from which to merchandize them, the fine old house of Regensburg should go on to even greater commercial success than that embraced in the wonderful record they have already made for the name and the cigars they produce.

Advance reports indicate that the earnings of the American Cigar Company for the year 1912 will enable the directors to declare a dividend of about thirteen per cent, as against ten per cent. of the preceding year. This prediction is made freely in Wall Street.

The real estate department of the United Cigar Stores Company has completed sub-leasing of the corner of Vanderbilt Avenue and Forty-second Street, lease of which was taken for one hundred years some time ago from New York Central Terminal, and the net result is a corner store for United Cigar Stores Company, rent free, but valued at about $20,000 per annum.

Jackson H. Kelley, the genial representative of Saloman Bros. & Stern, makers of the "Aplomo" cigars, returned a few days ago from an extended trip out through the West and states that he had the most successful trip of his career. Mr. Kelley obtained some splendid new accounts with the leading social clubs of the large cities of the Middle West where "Aplomos" have been received with the utmost appreciation.

The Inimitable George M. Cohan Advertises Concern Telephone Number of Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice Used in His Latest Success, "Broadway Jones"

GEORGE M. COHAN, the popular actor and playwright, now starring in his newest vehicle, "Broadway Jones," is giving the lithographic house, Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice, some excellent advertising. On several occasions during the course of the performance, the telephone number "Spring 444" is used.

This happens to be the number of the lithographic firm. Many cigar manufacturers have witnessed the Cohan play, and called this free advertising to the attention of Mr. Voice. Jokers have suggested that Mr. Cohan will probably send a bill for advertising to Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice in the near future for this excellent publicity work.

Death of George H. Valentine

Funeral of Well-Known Cigar Manufacturer Attended By Hundreds of Loyal Employees and Friends

IN the death of George H. Valentine, which occurred at his home in Womelsdorf, November 16, Pennsylvania lost one of its most respected and best known cigar manufacturers, and the firm of A. S. Valentine & Son, its senior member to whom is due largely the tremendous expansion of the business founded by his father, sixty-four years ago.

Mr. Valentine had been in ill health for some months, being stricken while visiting Atlantic City. For a time, however, he seemed to rally, and when he reached his home in Womelsdorf, he seemed to be convalescing. Later he had a relapse and, in spite of the best medical aid, he gradually sank and two days before his death lost consciousness. Death was primarily caused by Bright's disease.

The deceased was known in the cigar trade throughout the United States, having for twenty-nine years represented the house on the road. People with whom he came in contact, not only admired his business acumen, but were drawn to him by his magnetic personality and pleasing manners. He was known as a "hale fellow, well met," and his death will cause many an ache in the breasts of his legion of friends in the trade.

In recent years, Mr. Valentine had turned over the details of the management of the business to his son, Leroy R. Valentine. Mr. Valentine, Jr., has been actively identified with the business for more than fifteen years during which time he became the nominal head, and the mantle of the father could not have fallen on worthier or stronger shoulders.

Career of Mr. Valentine.

Mr. George H. Valentine was born in 1848, the year in which his father, Adam S. Valentine, began the manufacturing of cigars. At the age of twelve, George enlisted as a drummer boy in the Ninetieth Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers, being the youngest soldier in the field. In 1863, he re-enlisted in the Forty-second State Troops, under Colonel Hunter, and later joined the Fifty-fifth Pennsylvania, being honorably discharged at the close of the Civil War. Returning from the war, he for a time taught school at Pricetown, and when he became of age, his father took him into the business, and from that time the firm became known as A. S. Valentine & Son. Although the elder Valentine died many years ago, the title of the firm to this day, remains the same. Under his direction, the business grew rapidly, until today, the firm have factories in Philadelphia, Womelsdorf, Myerstown and Stouchsburg, with headquarters at Broad and Wallace Streets, Philadelphia.

It was during his regime that the "Betsy Ross," "Paul Jones," and "Tirador" and the "Flor de Valentine" brands developed tremendously and became popular national sellers.

Active in Financial Affairs.

The deceased had many financial and social interests outside of his business, being president of the Reading & Womelsdorf Railway Company, a director in the National Union Bank, Schuylkill Valley Bank, United Traction Company, Metropolitan Electric Company, and the Keystone Cold Storage Company, all of Reading.

Besides these interests, he was associated with a number of other enterprises, both in Womelsdorf and Philadelphia, and was an active member of the Masons and Knights Templar, as well as the Lulu Temple of Shriners in Philadelphia.

For more than forty years he took an active part in promoting the affairs of his home town, Womelsdorf, and in a quiet, unobtrusive way, did many charitable acts. Mr. Valentine's wife, Julia, nee Fidler, died about four years ago. In addition to his son Leroy, he is survived by four sisters.

Many Pay Last Tribute to Dead.

Associated with him in business was George A. Balsley, a nephew, who looked after the manufacturing end of the business, and George H. Valentine, a grandson of the founder of the business.

At the funeral, which took place November 21, at Womelsdorf, the Reverend C. E. Pflueger, of the Zion Lutheran Church of Womelsdorf, officiated. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Interment was made at the Union Cemetery.

A number of the old-time friends and business associates as well as scores of loyal employees, to whom he had endeared himself, attended the funeral.

Among the mourners were noticed: John Van Miller, L. C. Albertson, George A. Crossman, A. C. Fisher, representatives of the firm; Louis Bythiner, of Philadelphia; Howard Stevenson, of E. Rosenwald & Brother; Ralph Levine, of H. Duys & Company; Irwin Loeb, of Leopold Loeb & Company; George Newman, Philadelphia broker; Charles Williamson, of Williamson & Moyer; M. O. Myers, of E. Spingarn & Company; Adolph Meyer, of F. Miranda & Company; H. H. Hammer, of Johnstown, Pa.; Robert J. Orr, of Pittsfield, Mass.; W. B. First Report On Leaf Tobacco Under Cantrell Law Issued

Washington, D. C., November 25.

A STATEMENT of the quantity of leaf tobacco held on October 1, 1912, was issued today by Census Director Durand. The statement summarizes the data collected in conformity with the Act of Congress approved April 30, 1912. This Act directs that all manufacturers of tobacco, other than the original growers, who, according to the records of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, manufactured during the preceding calendar year more than fifty thousand pounds of tobacco, two hundred and fifty thousand cigars, or one million cigarettes, and all dealers who, on an average, at the ends of the four quarters of the preceding calendar year, had more than fifty thousand pounds of tobacco in stock, shall make a report to the Bureau of the Census of the quantity of leaf tobacco on hand October 1 and April 1 of each year. The first report relates to October 1, 1912.

The types of domestic tobacco for which separate amounts are given are substantially the same as those adopted by the Department of Agriculture. Some concerns were able to report the actual weight of the tobacco, after shrinkage, at the time of the canvass, but others could only report that weight as marked on the packages at the time of packing. The weight of the tobacco as marked on the packages at the time it was placed in the warehouses or factories of the establishments was reported for 578,468,729 pounds, and the actual weight on October 1 for 468,935,831 pounds. The combination of these two amounts, or 1,047,404,560 pounds of leaf tobacco, is the total quantity held by the classes of dealers and manufacturers indicated on October 1, 1912. In making this combination no allowance has been made for the shrinkage that has occurred in the tobacco for which the marked weight was reported.

The following statement shows the number of pounds of unstemmed and stemmed tobacco of each type reported as on hand October 1, 1912. In this statement the quantity reported on the basis of marked weight and the quantity reported on the basis of actual weight have been combined without allowance for shrinkage of the former.

Peruvian Tobacco Monopoly Increases Revenue

As a Result of Government Management, Receipts Jump From $875,000 in 1909 to $2,000,000 in 1911

A REPORT to the United States Department of Commerce and Labor from Consul-General William H. Robertson, stationed at Callao, Peru, states that the total annual production of tobacco in that country is about 2,200,000 pounds. In 1909 the Peruvian government created for itself a monopoly of the manufacture, importation and sale of tobacco and its products, and in March, 1910, fixed the price of all domestic cigarettes throughout the republic at one-half cent each.

The tobacco exported goes chiefly to Bolivia, Brazil and Chile. Tobacco, snuff, cigars and cigarettes are imported from France, Germany Spain and Cuba, the value being from $75,000 to $100,000 per year. The revenue to the government in 1911 from tobacco was about $2,000,000, as against about $875,000 in 1909, before the monopoly was created. It is said that 327,055,550 domestic cigarettes were manufactured in 1910.

The Weston Loose Leaf Tobacco Company, of Weston, Mo., has increased its capital stock from $10,000 to $30,000.

The leaf tobacco firm of Hoskins & Schwartz, of Janesville, Wis., is spending between $7500 and $8000 in remodeling their warehouse in that city. They are adding a wing to the building, which will be one story high, and be used as an assorting room, furnishing space for ninety sorters, the packing rooms and presses.

Charles S. Morton, fifty-nine years old, a retired cigar dealer, died recently at 731 North Linden Avenue, Oak Park, Ill.

Wholesalers Slashing Prices on Cigarettes

Situation Has Reached a Point, Says Prominent Jobber, Where Many Firms are Losing Money on it

ACCORDING to a prominent wholesale tobacco dealer who does a large business in Philadelphia, the cutting of prices on cigarettes has reached such a stage where many houses make no bid for the business. "There is absolutely no profit in it for us, and if others care to take the trade they are welcome to it," he said. "At the figures frequently shown to me by some of my customers," he continued, "those houses selling them their cigarettes are losing money by it. Where they come in on the deal is more than I can fathom. We are large and can afford to lose a little money, but where the smaller concerns expect to profit by such business methods is beyond my reasoning."

This is a cry which is being voiced by a number and is worthy of thought on the part of many jobbers. The cut-throat price cutting has reached a stage where a halt must soon be called. It the cigarette manufacturers expect to keep the co-operation of the dealers and wholesalers in the marketing of their goods some influence on their part to regulate the prices to a certain extent would not be amiss.

Wm. H. Roads, Local Retailer Fails

Operated Two Stores—Liabilities Said to be $2,000

Wm. H. Rhoads, the cigar dealer, with stores at 1411 Ridge Avenue and 1433½ Filbert Street, has failed, with liabilities approximating $2,000. The assets, including stock, it is said, will amount to about $300. Among the largest creditors is Harvey D. Narrigan & Co., of 118 North Twelfth Street, who are said to be losers to the extent of $972. Other wholesalers around town will also figure in the failure.

"Charles the Great" Boomer Visits Trade

Mr. Claude E. Turner, the energetic and affable representative of the "Charles the Great" factory of Salvador Rodriguez, Tampa, spent a few days in Philadelphia last week renewing old acquaintances among the trade, and incidentally, writing up some orders for dealers who know the selling value of his brands. Mr. Turner expects to make frequent visits to Philadelphia and his friends here will be glad to hear of this.

Pushing "Havana Ribbon" in City of Washington

HAVANA RIBBON sales for November are showing a healthy increase for Bayuk Brothers Company. The firm is badly handicapped in securing sufficient production to meet the increased demand and have a large number of orders on file unshipped.

Joseph McFetridge of the home advertising force is at the present time conducting an aggressive campaign in Washington, D. C., where William Deiches & Sons have jurisdiction. Mr. McFetridge reports the "Havana Ribbon" to be gaining in popularity and looks for the brand to be one of the retail leaders at the National Capital.

Emze Cigar Store Changes Hands

The Emze cigar store, at 34 North Thirteenth Street, has changed hands. The store has been purchased by Theodore Suderly, who will continue the business along the same lines as done before by the Emze Cigar Company, who will confine their efforts to manufacturing cigars at their factory, 221 North Twelfth Street. Their principal cigar is the "El Vendura," a nickel brand.

"Heartsease" Packed Differently for Holiday Trade

The T. H. Hart Company are showing their "Heartsease" brand, packed in fifties in boite nature boxes, especially gotten up for the holiday trade. It is attractively prepared and should fit in well when the Christmas rush for tasty cigar gifts is at hand.

"Counsellor" Representative Calls at Factory

Paul J. Eckenroad, a representative of Allen R. Cressman's Sons, covering Scranton and surrounding territory, was a recent visitor at the local factory. Mr. Eckenroad is known as a salesman who literally "eats, sleeps and dreams Counsellors," and naturally when it comes to booking the orders he is right on the spot. The northeastern part of Pennsylvania is one of the strongholds of the "Counsellor."

Among the Philadelphia cigar and leaf tobacco men now in the city of Havana are: Louis H. Eisenlohr and C. H. Eimerbrink, of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers; John H. Kolb, president of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company; Ventura Blanco and Leopold Loeb, of Leopold Loeb & Company.

Quaker City Items

Sig. C. Mayer has just returned from a trip through the South and Southwest.

Robert E. Lane, the "Partagas" representative, was among us last week calling on his many friends.

The Finley Acker stores are preparing for their usual Christmas rush. They promise some fine packings for the holiday trade. The "Reynaldo" cigar, made by Lockett, Luchs & Lipscomb, and jobbed in Philadelphia by Terry & Duncan, has been added to their lines of goods.

Ed Marshall, the Pacific Coast representative of Sig. C. Mayer & Company, has been in Philadelphia for the past three weeks, and expects to return to his headquarters in Los Angeles this week. Mr. Marshall reports that "El Wadoras" are selling well on the Coast, and that the new brand of "Reynold-Mas" are taking hold in a very satisfactory manner. The Max Roth Cigar Company are distributors of these brands in Los Angeles.

Leopold Loeb, president of the Loeb-Nunez Tobacco Company, sailed for Havana November 16th on a purchasing trip. The Loeb-Nunez Company is a new Pennsylvania corporation, capitalized at $50,000, with Mr. Loeb as president, and his son, Irwin Loeb, as secretary and treasurer. They will deal at wholesale in tobacco of all grades, having their offices at 306 North Third Street, Philadelphia.

A. M. Schwartz, advertising manager for Bobrow Brothers, is receiving congratulations upon his marriage to Miss Della Simon, an attractive Philadelphia girl, who became his wife on November 20th. After a week's honeymoon tour, spent at Atlantic Coast resorts, Mr. Schwartz returned to Philadelphia this week, and is again on the job directing the publicity end of the "Bold" cigars.

Holiday Orders for Thomas Martindale & Company

The retail trade is beginning to show a decided improvement according to Col. Robinson, manager of the cigar department of Thomas Martindale & Co. The holiday rush will soon be on them, for which they have carefully prepared. The Christmas orders for the firm were sent in some time ago and will soon arrive. In Havana goods they included such sterling brands as the "American," of E. Regensburg & Sons; the Cuesta-Rey line, and also that of Sanchez y Haya, which brands they handle in this territory.

John Kolb of T. & O. off for Cuba

John Kolb, of Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., is on a trip to Cuba looking over the market. He will be away about ten days.

A late visitor at the factory was M. Mendelsolm, of the Hudson Cigar Company, Hudson, N. Y.

D. C. Hermes, Denver Dealer, Drops Dead

D. C. Hermes, retail cigar dealer of Denver, Colo., dropped dead from an attack of heart failure in that city recently. Mr. Hermes was proprietor of the cigar stand in the Railway Exchange Building. He was forty years of age.

Cleveland Dealers Feel Brisk Holiday Rush

The J. T. Snyder Company to Open New Store in Toledo—Stern Cigar Company Open For Business

THANKSGIVING DAY was ushered in by our first fall of snow of the winter. Cigar merchants especially have every reason to be thankful, as the prospects never were better for a holiday season. The J. B. Moos Company report their special holiday packings and "La Preferencia" and "El Principe de Gales," "Permits" and other standard brands are selling rapidly, and their salesmen will soon be forced to stop taking orders, as they are not able to get goods fast enough from the factories.

J. T. Morton, of the Havana-American Company, and C. S. Berger were in town last week, looking after their respective brands.

W. A. Bonn, of the American Cigar Company, is doing some fine introductory work on "La Natoma" with the J. B. Moos Company salesmen.

The campaign on "Omar" cigarettes is still being carried on in this territory, and the brand is rapidly forging ahead.

Duncan Melliers is here in charge of the placing of the "Zubelda" brand of cigarettes of P. Lorillard Company, and is doing great work with the help of catchy ads in local newspapers. "Zira," the new five-cent cigarette, is also being introduced here.

The London Whiff Cigar Company report their factory very busy. They are doing exceptionally big business on their "Flor de Venise" and "Moses Cleveland" brands.

The J. T. Snyder Company will open a new store in Toledo, November 30. Joseph T. Snyder was in Cleveland this past week looking for new locations. Business is booming. The outlook is so good that if they can secure the proper locations, they will open several more stores in Cleveland. Immediately after Thanksgiving they will start making window displays of holiday packings, pipes, and fine imported tobaccos. Mr. Heane, the local manager for the company, looks for a tremendous holiday business.

Frank Horning, of the H. Anton Bock cigar factory, New York City, was in town this week.

The Pyle & Allen Company report business on all lines very big. The men are coming in with a stranger volume of business than last year. Many back orders are unfilled, and they are despairing of getting all their goods for holiday shipments.

Victor Torsh, representing T. J. Dunn & Company, who was here last Wednesday, says the factory is so far behind they can't give any encouragement on filling orders. They report they have never been in such bad shape for filling orders since they have been in business. The Pyle & Allen Company are two million oversold on "New Bachelors." The retail business is one week ahead of last year. People are putting in their holiday orders now. They are also having a big demand for "Sanchez & Haya" and "Bachias," and are doing a big business on the "C. A. C." brand of Key West goods.

Mr. Weideman, of the Kent factory, South Bend, Ind., was in town this week.

The twenty-seventh was the opening of the Stern Cigar Company, souvenir day brought them a crowd of people. Mr. Stern anticipates a very large winter business.

M. E. Loeb, formerly with the Ology cigar factory, has embarked in the jobbing business in Canton. He opens up December 1, with six good selling lines of cigars.

Canton and vicinity being his old stamping grounds for the past seven years, there is no doubt but what this will be one of the successful jobbing houses of this territory.

I. J. Mittelberger has returned home for the holidays after a very successful trip.

J. B. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, is home from a Western trip, with a stack of orders that will keep their factory busy for a while. The boys are all getting in for their December rest. The factory is working at its utmost capacity trying to keep abreast of orders on their "La Saramita" brand.

The Fred G. Gollmar Cigar Company are only sorry that their quarters are not twice as large to take care of their big assortment of Christmas cigars. They are coming in too fast to handle. Mr. Gollmar expects a very large holiday business.

Morris Glicksman has about given up hopes of moving into his new location, in the Leader Building, before the holidays. He is now making preparations in his other locations to handle the large holiday business there.

Manager McGuire, of the Stranahan Company, is about again after a brief illness. The improvements that he has made in the stand in the Arcade have caused much favorable comment.

Nate Seidman, president of the Century Cigar Company, has but one worry, and that is, that he is praying for the cigars he has ordered a while ago to arrive. Business is exceptionally good with him, and he will be found on the job every minute.

Nate Weisenberg, of the Euclid Arcade cigar stand, has certainly loaded up, and is looking for the holidays, but has no fear of carrying any stock over, as business conditions are improving in Nate's location.

Stace & Vincent's Euclid Avenue Store had a very beautiful show window this week. "Stivanas," their leading five-cent cigar, was very beautifully displayed, and they are doing a very big business on this brand.

Members of Reid Tobacco Company Tendered Banquet
Altoona Branch Acts As Host to Officers and Salesmen of Parent Concern in Milton, Pa.

SATURDAY, November 23rd, will be a long remembered day by the officers and salesmen of the Reid Tobacco Company, of Milton, Pa., whose branch house at Altoona is one of the largest wholesale cigar establishments in Western Pennsylvania. This day was the occasion of a visit of the officers of the concern located in Milton to the Altoona establishment, at which time they were tendered a banquet at the Logan House, following an inspection of the branch house on Green Avenue.

John F. Kauffman and his force of twenty-one employees formed a reception committee that received William W. Anspach, president of the Reid Tobacco Company; H. R. Karchner, first vice-president; J. C. Lindner, secretary and treasurer, and a number of accountants and salesmen.

The Milton visitors and the Altoona branch force met in the Logan House at eight o'clock, at which time the banquet was held. After the feasting had come to an end, Mr. Kauffman, manager of the Altoona branch, made an address. He was followed by Fred M. Kelly, and a number of others who spoke on selling and advertising.

The Reid Tobacco Company was founded by Marshall Reid thirty-one years ago, at Milton, Pa. Later he associated with him Charles Myers and Reuben Wilson, his brothers-in-law. The business grew and prospered, and twenty-six years ago W. W. Anspach and H. R. Karchner became affiliated with the concern. The company was incorporated as the Reid Tobacco Company in 1906, and since then it has enlarged its business and extended its territory until it does a very large wholesale business throughout Western Pennsylvania. The business of the Altoona branch of the concern has been well developed within recent years, and it is doing a business that ranks close to that of the Milton house.

Parker-Gordon Company Sued By Former Salesman

Andrew F. Griffith, formerly a tobacco salesman for the Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, of Omaha, Neb., has brought suit against that firm for $17,940. The salesman quotes a contract which he asserts was signed November 17, 1911, providing for his employment for three years, beginning January 1, 1912, at a salary of $135 per week, with a bonus in case of sales exceeding a certain amount. He claims that on November 19th last, he was dismissed without cause, and asks for the payment of the salary due him for the next three years, in addition to the bonus.

Mason, Ehrman & Company Take On "La Mega"

MASON, EHRMAN & CO., of Portland, Oregon, the large wholesale house, has taken on for distribution in that territory the "La Mega" cigar, manufactured by V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., of Tampa. The deal was put through by Harry Robare, one of the firm's travelling representatives. One of the first orders is for 250,000, which will be shipped out to the Portland house as soon as possible.

Wrappers of 1912 Havana Please Western Smokers

That the new 1912 wrappers on the clear Havana cigars are not causing the universal dissatisfaction that was at first predicted, has been proven by the statement of C. W. Schuech, manager of the cigar department of Schwabacher Brothers & Co., of Seattle.

This wholesale house recently received a carload of "Loveras" which included their holiday order. From Mr. Schuech's report, the smokers are beginning to realize the quality of the new tobacco and are buying accordingly.

The wholesale cigar house of Smith Brothers Company, of New Orleans, reports an increasing trade on "Havana Ribbons," Bayuk Brothers Company.

Among the big sellers of the trade in New Orleans are the "El Verso" and "San Felice" cigars, manufactured by the Deisel-Wemmer Company, of Toledo, Ohio. The jobbers in the city are the Southern Cigar Company.

Bondy & Lederer Pushing "Lawrence Barrett"

The "Lawrence Barrett" cigar, manufactured by Bondy & Lederer, is being pushed aggressively along the Pacific Coast by means of the liberal use of space in the morning newspapers in that section. This is true particularly of Seattle and Tacoma, where several of the Bondy & Lederer salesmen are following up this advertising campaign with good results. Harry Dalton and Henry Wood are the two representatives now covering that territory.

British-American Cigar Stores Company Opens Up

The first office of the British-American Cigar Stores Company has been opened in New York City in the Carlton Chambers at Madison Avenue and 47th Street. It is said that this locality is one which the United Cigar Stores Company had looked over carefully in deciding to place several new stores. The new chain stores will be distinguished from their American competitors by a blue and gold sign.

James Sears, of Lancaster, O., will shortly move to Bucyrus, O., where he intends to conduct a cigar store which he recently purchased.

An inventory of the estate of William A. Schutz, the late St. Louis cigar man, which was filed in that city recently, gives the value of his personal estate as about $34,000. He held stock to the value of $25,000 in the Rice Mercantile Cigar Company of which he was vice-president.

Western Cigar Dealers to Extend Association
Meet in Tacoma—Washington and Oregon Hope to Include California in Organization

SEATTLE, November 11. MEETING of the board of directors of the Washington Association of Cigar Dealers will be held Tuesday afternoon in the Tacoma Hotel. W. L. Alfred, of Tacoma, president of the association, will preside, and C. L. Nelson, of Seattle, state secretary, will be present. A large attendance is expected in view of the proposed extension of the Western Association of Cigar Dealers, of which the Washington Association is a member. The two states represented in the association so far are Oregon and Washington. The Washington Association was organized last January and the name changed to Western Association to permit Oregon dealers to come in. A separate set of officers was also chosen at the time of the consolidation.

Mr. Alfred and Mr. Nelson left for Portland, Ore., to take part in the meeting of the Oregon Association. The object of their visit is to pledge a large Southern representation at the second annual meeting of the association, to be held in Tacoma, January 14 and 15.

About two hundred cigar dealers, jobbers and manufacturers will participate in this meeting. A large delegation also being expected from California, where the cigar dealers are organizing. Both Los Angeles and San Francisco will be represented, it is known. The consolidation of the California organization with the Western Association and extension of the latter to all the Western states is being planned. The object of the association, according to Mr. Alfred, is the organization of the independent dealers against the alleged cigar trust.

A double election will be the feature of the Tacoma meeting in January. One election will be that of the state officers of the Washington Association, and the other that of officers of the general association. President Alfred, of the State Association, is being boomed by his friends for the Western presidency to succeed J. R. Brewster, of Seattle.

Both the business and the social session of the two days' meeting will be held in the rooms of the Commercial Club and Chamber of Commerce. In connection with the social phase of the meeting, a banquet will be held in the club rooms at six o'clock Tuesday night, January 15, with a ball following the banquet at nine o'clock.

Business in western Washington is not as good as it was a few weeks ago.

J. S. McCaughey, of Portland, is in the city working his new line. Mr. McCaughey has for many years been connected with the American Tobacco Company on the Pacific Coast. Number and Volume of Orders Never Before Exceeded—
Local Leaf Office of Jose Suarez & Company Closed

TAMPA, FLA., November 26.

NEVER before has the cigar industry of Tampa experienced such a remarkable holiday season as this one. It has been remarkable not only in the number and volume of the orders received but also in the duration of the rush period. Invariably, by this time of year, the holiday orders have practically ceased, and it became necessary to cut down forces and hours of work. At present, however, there is no apparent let-up in the rush of orders, and the factories are forced to keep up their extra force and extra time program. For the past month, the larger factories have been working all the men who could be induced to accept the employment, not only at night but on Sundays, and the regular pay day has been shifted from Saturday to Sunday afternoon. The business from the Pacific Coast especially has been unprecedented.

A leading manufacturer said yesterday that for the first time in the history of the Tampa industry it could be said that fully two thousand additional cigarmakers could be given work.

The manufacturers ascribe the unusual business of the season partly to the general prosperity, which has not been affected by the presidential election, and partly to the fact that the clear Havana cigar is regaining the prestige which it was attempted to deprive it of when a number of dealers began featuring cheaper cigars of other manufacture. Practically all of these dealers found, when the holiday season approached, that their trade called for clear Havanas and they were ready and anxious to send in their orders when the representatives of Tampa houses called. Among those ordering Tampa cigars this season are noted a number of firms which temporarily adopted other makes, and this greatly increased the demand on the local factories.

Jose Lozano, who is spending the winter at the local factory, assisting manager H. S. Foley in his arduous work, has become a popular resident of the city and has made many friends. This factory has been doing a record-breaking business.

A. L. Sylvester, of the Havana-American Company, was a recent visitor, on his way to Cuba.

J. J. French, of Quiros, Villazon & Co., has met with great success introducing the brands of his new house on the road. This firm had much trouble because of the scarcity of cigarmakers and boxes.

Edward Wodiska will remain in Tampa until after Christmas. He is especially proud of the handsome "Julia Marlowe" Christmas package, which is a work of art.

E. G. Hester, formerly manager of the Havana-American interests here, but more recently in the automobile trade, expects to return to the tobacco world before many weeks, but has not yet announced his definite intentions. Mr. Hester is here, after an extended stay in the East.

Since the death of Estanislao Ortiz, of Ortiz, Caras & Company, one of the pioneers of the local cigar trade, the business has been continued with Charles Monroe acting for the Ortiz estate. Mr. Monroe probably will remain with the house, and the business will be continued by himself and Mr. Caras.

Francis Bolano is spending his first season here and is delighted with the way things have been going.

Jose Garcia, of F. Garcia & Brother, is among the Tampanians who have recently returned from visits to Havana.

Lawrence Gunst, of the M. A. Gunst Co., reports that his house has on file many orders to be filled in 1913.

The local leaf office of Jose Suarez & Company is to be closed and the business transferred to New York. Ramon Menendez, in charge here, is to go to the Havana office and Emilio Suarez will have charge of the New York headquarters.

Robert Patterson, who sells "C. H. S." cigars for Val. M. Antuono, "worked himself out of a job" and is resting here while the factory catches up with his orders.

Harold McFall, office manager for the M. A. Gunst Company here, has been appointed office manager for the Diligencia factory, Key West, owned by this company.

Sanchez & Haya are sending out thousands of post-card sets, illustrating the process of cigar manufacture, which make a very neat and instructive advertisement.

"Charles the Great" in Attractive Holiday Attire
Salvador Rodriguez Issue Folder, Illustrating in Colors a Packing
Unusually Tasty and Appealing

THE standard old Havana and Tampa house of Salvador Rodriguez is sending out from its New York office an attractive folder, showing the holiday packings of the firm. The brand illustrated in the folder is of the "Charles the Great." It contains ten selected styles, tastily packed (twentieths) in as many separate compartments. Each cigar has a fancy ring. The box is in two parts, closes like a book and is sealed under a wrapper of transparent paper, through which can be seen the trade-mark, "Charles the Great." The combination presents a highly desirable and most attractive holiday offering in every way.

In putting their product in the right light before the dealer they state in part:

You will have as many calls for Havana cigars this season as ever.

Men are critical when they buy a Havana cigar. The quality, the shade, the weight—all are taken into consideration, and to a greater extent than with other cigars. They know more about Havana cigars, and expect more.

You'll not find a Havana cigar selection in the country like ours. It isn't possible to get better tobacco or better style and workmanship than we show. We have the buying wisdom of the highest tobacco authority in America; and in Havana cigars, as in Havana tobacco, the selection of leaf is the chief factor. It isn't knack—but knowledge, sound judgment and experience which enables us to serve you from the cream of the Cuban leaf market.

We control the product of entire plantations—none but the best. We know that our variety of styles, the whole year 'round, is the greatest stock of its kind in the country. We can serve you promptly and fill your mail orders at once.

See that your stock of Havana cigars is from accredited factories and ample. The height of Havana cigar demand will be with you quickly. Is your stock right?

Salvador Rodriguez cigars can make it right.

Ferdinand Hirsch Factory Starts Operations

Reports from Key West, Fla., state that the factory now known as the Ferdinand Hirsch, which was recently acquired by Park & Tilford, of New York, has started operations. A. W. Arnold, formerly manager of the plant, has been retained.

James M. Batterton, who has been general manager of the Fernando Hirsch Company's business, will no longer serve in that capacity. Mr. Batterton has been manager and president.

United Secures Location of Leo. Abraham & Company

The Caswell Building, store of Leo Abraham & Co., Milwaukee, will be discontinued by that firm at the end of this year. This has been one of the best locations of a string of stores operated by that concern in Milwaukee.

Following the vacation by Leo Abraham & Co., the place will be occupied by the United Cigar Stores Company, who, it is understood, have taken it for a term of years. Leo Abraham, head of the Milwaukee house, has announced that they have another location in view, and will probably open it before very long.

The new "Hoyo de Cuba" labels of the San Martin & Leon Company are both unique and handsome. They cover the entire box and are done up in the finest style of the art. Charles Castillo, of this company, has closed a number of important deals among them, with the Waldorf-Astoria Segar Company, of New York City, for which San Martin & Leon will make a special brand.

A. L. Cuesta is on an extended trip. The Cuesta, Rey & Company factory has been one of the busiest in the city, and the output for the past month has broken all records. The "White Heather" brand has proved very popular with the holiday trade.

Jorge Leon, of San Martin & Leon, is in Cuba, superintending the planting of the new crop on the various plantations owned by his firm.

HAVANA, November 25.

THE export of cigars, from the port of Havana, during the first half of November, as per official customhouse returns, were as follows:

|--------------------------------------|-------------------|
| From November 1 to November 15, 1911 | 13,498,087 cigars |
| From November 1 to November 15, 1912 | 7,567,459 |

|--|------------------|
| Decrease during the first half of November, 1912 | 5,930,628 cigars |
|--|------------------|

|--|-------------|
| From January 1, 1911, to November 15, 1911 | 164,546,899 |
| From January 1, 1912, to November 15, 1912 | 152,457,945 |

|---|-------------------|
| Decrease during the first ten and one-half months of 1912 | 12,088,954 cigars |

While we expressed our dissatisfaction in our last correspondence that the increase in the second half of October was below the expectation, we are now dumbfounded, what to say, about this terrible shrinkage in our exports during a short two weeks' time. It almost looks as if there was a conspiracy of all the Havana cigar consuming countries to curtail their imports as much as possible. That the threatening war cloud in the Orient might have influenced the calls from Europe temporarily, we can readily understand, but how can we explain in the face of good crops and good business, in nearly all branches of trade in the United States, a falling off in our exports of over three million cigars in two weeks time, when we ought to be at the height of the season? If our cigars had been poor we might be able to give this as an easily understood solution of the riddle, but the contrary is the case, as the cigars made from the 1912 crop are delicious and have never tasted as fine for a long number of years. Neither can we believe that the American smokers have resolved to quit smoking, as we know by experience that this is the habit which clings most tenaciously as long as we enjoy good health. We shall not ponder any longer over this subject until we shall know the final figures of the exports of the second half of this month, as the same might possibly turn the tables again in our favor.

The following factories are working strong and have all the orders they can take care of: H. Upmann, Partagas, Romeo y Julieta, Henry Clay & Co., Limited, Castañeda, Sol, Eden, Flor de P. A. Estanillo, La Flor de José Otero, Hoyo de Monterey and C. E. Beck & Co.

Don Manuel A. Suarez (and Codoves) had been elected as a member of the Cuban Senate during our last elections of the 1st inst., and as he is the president of the Association of Leaf Dealers, Packers and Growers of Leaf Tobacco of the Island of Cuba and a universal favorite in the leaf trade, his many friends organized a banquet in his honor. The same took place in the Hotel Inglaterra on the evening of the 14th inst. Covers had been laid for 150 persons. Besides almost the entire leaf trade, some manufacturers and our commission merchants, there were also present our Governor, General Ashert; the treasurer, Don Marceline de Villegas, now connected with the Territorial Bank, and other personal friends of Don Manuel A. Suarez. The utmost cordiality prevailed, and it was unanimously voted as one of the most pleasant social entertainments which had taken place. The dinner was excellent; the wines and cigars all that could be desired. The dean of the leaf trade, Don José Antonio Suarez, although now retired, notwithstanding his four score and more of years, was as jovial as any of the younger members. There was a flood of electric lights, flowers, music and singing, as well as some dancing in the wee sma' hours. The press had been attentively invited, and Don René Bernides deserves the thanks, how he managed to draw the three centenes for the cover, from all the leaf dealers that he had visited, there being not one that refused to contribute, besides attending to all the details in the arrangement.

Our old time friend, Mr. Walter Himmel, is again in business with Mr. Carlos Arnoldson, Consul-General of the Netherlands, and an opulent banker and commission merchant, under the style of Carlos Arnoldson & Co. Their leaf warehouse is situated at 55 Estrella Street, and Mr. Himmel is the moving spirit, as Mr. Arnoldson is not quite so conversant with tobacco. The firm has a good assortment of Vuelta Abajo, Semi Vuelta, Partido and Remedios tobacco, which it might be of interest to future buyers to look at, provided, of course, Mr. Himmel should not dispose of them in the meantime, as good tobaccos do not need to go begging this year.

Don Antonio M. Calzada is on deck again and intends to hustle in the leaf trade as formerly. Just previous to the election he had been an active campaign worker in the interest of his former comrade, General Menocal, during the three years' war, when Don Antonio was aide-de-camp to the general, with the rank of major. However, Don Antonio is no politician, but he could not refuse to help his friend as much as it was in his power to do so, even if thereby he was out of pocket to the tune of a fairly large amount. After all, the almighty dollar does not rule supreme everywhere and disinterestedness still exists.

Shippers from the port of Havana, during the last fortnight, above 300 bales, were: Sylvester & Stern, 1,774; Adolfe Moeller, 1,225; I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, 1,169; H. Upmann & Co., 943; Leslie Pantini, 939; J. Bernheim & Son, 887; Miguel V. Perez, 879; Garcia & Co., 873; C. E. Beck & Co., 776; Monroe Commercial Company, 603; Mark A. Pollack, 591; Manuel Suarez, 575; Selgas & Co., 414; Bridat & Co., 365; and Ernest Ellinger & Co., 349 bales.

Problem Regarding Cuban Guarantee Stamp Solved Under New Ruling, Havana Manufacturers Are Allowed to Put Stamps On Empty Boxes Going Forward With Shipment

THE problem among the Cuban cigar exporters regarding the trouble caused by their inability to comply with the new law about the guarantee stamps, has been solved by the government.

The dissatisfaction was caused by the practice of shipping cigars to Buenos Ayres in very thin cedar boxes resembling cartons. This is done to save expense, as the tariff is levied on the gross weight. Importers receiving cigars so packed, were accustomed to re-pack them in cigar boxes, and throw away the thin coverings. Under the new ruling the Cuban government allows the Havana manufacturers to put the stamps on the importers' empty boxes that are going forward with the shipment.

The German importers have asked for 150,000 stamps to be pasted on the stocks in bond, the stamps to be forwarded to the Cuban consuls in Germany. This latter matter is under advisement.

A cigar factory will be started at San Jose, Costa Rica, by the American Tobacco Company, who will also develop tobacco growing in that section.

Patrick H. Kelly, tobacco dealer of Pittston, Pa., died recently in that city. Mr. Kelly was sixty-seven years of age, and had been in the cigar and tobacco business in that city for more than a quarter of a century. He left two brothers and two sisters.

Election and Stormy Days Curtail "Frisco" Trade

Hesthal & Clark Open Cigar Stand On Ellis Street, Near Powell—
Frank T. Bishop Pushing New Line of Barnes-Smith Company
—M. A. Gunst Featuring "El Paxo"

SAN FRANCISCO, November 20.

THE first half of November was hardly up to expectations with local trade, the excitement of election combined with numerous stormy days tending to curtail business. A marked improvement is noted this week, however, and the majority of dealers feel much better satisfied with conditions than for a long time past.

Jobbers now report that the interior districts are showing more response to appeals and that the outlook is for a good normal holiday season in all lines. Cigarettes have been receiving the lion's share of big publicity work the past half year, and in consequence this line is making unusual progress just now. The volume of cigar sales, however, does not indicate that the cigarette is encroaching upon that line, and the increased popularity of pipes surely would not argue that pipe smokers are taking inordinately to cigarettes, so it must be that the general demand for all tobacco products is growing. It is said that the proportion of smokers who use alternately the cigar, cigarette and pipe is steadily increasing, but definite data as to this is hard to secure, as very few smokers in the city confine their trade to any one establishment.

H. L. Judell & Co. have been having a very satisfactory fall business and at present they are having fine results in developing their territory in Oregon and Nevada. In their show window on Front Street, Mr. Judell has just placed a very attractive special display, arranged by the Black-Crane Company, the local show window experts, of the company's three leading cigars: The "Elisardo," the "Watt" and the "Flor de Moss." In response to the specialty work accorded these brands recently, sales have increased steadily both in the city and in the country.

A new cigar stand is to be opened by the popular cigar merchants, Hesthal & Clark, on Ellis Street, near Powell, in the very heart of the cafe district. The original stand of the firm is located up the street at 80 Ellis Street.

Frank T. Bishop, a cigar broker located at 268 Market Street, who recently took on the line of the Barnes-Smith Company, of Binghamton, N. Y., has been calling on the trade in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys with his new line, and he reports a most favorable reception from dealers in the interior.

Morris J. Levy, president of the American-West Indies Sales Company, has just been in the city calling on the local distributors of his lines, Tilmann & Bendel. He is now in Seattle.

Edward Wolf & Co. are having a specially good business on their popular Manila brands in Northern California at present and also on their clear Havana goods and the "Nestor" cigarettes. The progress made by the latter in the last few months by reason of the specialty work of George Casematis, factory representative, is remarkable. The publicity work on this brand has not been sensational in any way, but steady and convincing.

Michaltschke Bros. & Co. are now featuring the "Henry the Fourth" Havana cigar in a number of prominent show windows, and with very encouraging success. The distributors have had to order shipments by express to keep up with the demand.

M. A. Gunst & Co. have begun to push on the market an attractive new cigar, "El Paxo." This cigar is described as "different" and as having exceptional value for its class. It is perfect size, with full Havana filler. The Gunst Company report a special activity on "Little Bobbies" and the staple "Van Dycks." Sello Blumenthal, sales manager for the company, is now back in the city after a Southern trip.

Frank Boskowitz is at present calling on the trade in the San Joaquin Valley in the interest of his "Porto de Oro" cigars.

S. London, who was formerly with M. A. Gunst & Co., is now on the city sales force of Edward Wolf & Co.

D. Frankel, of Frankel, Gerdis & Co., manufacturers of "La Natividad" cigars, is back in the city much improved in health after his vacation in the South. He has been taking the mud baths at Paso Robles for his rheumatism.

Alexander Herbert, vice-president of the Philip Morris Company, has just been here calling on the local agent for Philip Morris goods, S. Bachman & Co.

S. Bachman & Co. report a flourishing business this month on their principal lines and state that the holiday trade promises to be considerably better than a year ago. The company is not making any special campaign at this time, and does not contemplate such action until after the holidays.

A new cigar business and billiard parlor has been opened at Oroville, Cal., by Durren & Philes.

"Doc" Hoffman, of the Hoffman-Moore Company, is in Nevada at present in the interest of "La Integridads" and "AAA" cigars and his other lines.

Last week Charles S. Morris, of the Charles S. Morris Company, of New York, was in the city, but is now calling on the trade in the Northwest.

An Example of the Excellent Show Window Publicity the "Royal Nestor" Cigarette is Receiving. This Display was at the Emporium, San Francisco, and was Designed by the Edward Wolf Company. It Represents the Memorial Tower to be Erected at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in 1915. It is Made Entirely of "Royal Nestor" Cigarette Boxes.

Manila Manufacturers Want School for Cigarmakers Matter Under Discussion Before, Again Agitated—Claim Too Many Employees Are Inefficient

IN order to secure more cigarmakers, and more highly skilled hands than are usually employed in the factories, the Filipino cigar men are discussing the project of opening schools in which to teach learners the trade.

Acting Governor Newton Gilbert, of the Philippine Islands, stated that in case such a proposition were put before him in his capacity as Secretary of Public Instruction, he would take the matter up seriously and see what could be done.

One of the cigar manufacturers had the following to say: "The combined cigar factories require 16,000 good workers to do all the work. Out of the possible 12,000 at present available in Manila, only one-fourth are skilled hands. The other three-fourths are inferior. If the government would include cigar making in the curriculum of the trade schools, the factories would in time be able to secure a sufficient number of good capable workers."

Other manufacturers contend that the proposed scheme would be too difficult to be carried into practice. This plan has been broached before, but nothing came of it.

El Progreso Cigar Company Fails

The El Progreso Cigar Company, of Tampa, Florida, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in that city. The debts of the concern are said to approximate $5200, with available assets of $11,600.

ALL DEALERS NOW ENTHUSIASTIC OPTIMISTS

Broadway Supply Company Opens New Store—La Fonds to Enter New Stand December 1st— Many Representatives of Firm in Town

DETROIT, November 22.

IF you wish to see a real simon pure optimist, one spelled with a capital O, just walk into a Detroit cigar store and ask for the proprietor. There is a dash and swing to retail business in this Wolverine City that just takes your breath away, and there is no stop to it; it is just upward and onward all the time. Every night here is a Saturday night, to judge by the crowds that fairly elbow you off the sidewalk, and fifty per cent. of that crowd is made up of high-priced mechanics, with their wives or best girls, and every other mechanic being a smoker you naturally get my drift when I say the retail cigar stands are booming. And it is not only the cigar stands centrally located which are reaping a rich harvest, but those located at all distances from the city's center are keeping the jobbers busy supplying more stock.

A new store in the new Broadway business district is that of the Broadway Supply Company, located at the corner entrance to the magnificent new market building, and which is made up entirely of polished white tile and plate glass. Beside cigars and tobaccos, a line of fancy liquors is carried. In Havana cigars such brands as "Lovera," "Scarlet Shield" and "Charles the Great" are featured, and in seed and Havanas "General Arthur," "Tom Moore," "Swift," "Royal Banner" and "Smokecraft" are handled. The company is made up of Messrs. Nathan and Lowenthal.

There has been much speculation as to who will get the cigar privilege in the twenty-three story Dime Bank Building now nearing completion, and I have been informed that it will be rented to Mr. Soper, one of Detroit's oldest and best known cigar men, who has been for many years connected with E. M. Harris. The building, however, will hardly be ready for occupancy before April 1, 1913.

Bert Thompson, of Bayuk Brothers, Philadelphia, is in town, and with the sales force of the H. H. Watson Company is making a vigorous campaign for business on "Havana Ribbon," a Sumatra wrapped five cent proposition. The H. H. Watson Company controls the sale of this cigar in Wayne County.

A call by the writer to the establishment of Claude Howell, on Grand River Avenue, revealed a scene of great activity, and Mr. Howell assures me that such a scene is the rule and not the exception. His business has shown an increase of fifteen to fifty per cent. each week over corresponding weeks of last year. His city men are on the jump.

During the past week there has been a report circulated to the effect that Harry S. Rothschild, of Rothschild & Bro., is to form a partnership with Eugene Vallens and manufacture high-grade cigars in New York. To substantiate this report, I called at the office of Rothschild & Bro., but from the firm I could get neither a denial nor a confirmation.

A very interesting visitor to our fair city this week was Meinher C. L. Mayer, Amsterdam, buyer for the well-known leaf house of A. Cohn & Co., of New York. Mr. Mayer made the rounds of our cigar factories in company with Henry Fisher, of the firm of A. Cohn & Co., and finished off his visit with an auto ride about the city and parks. Mr. Mayer, before leaving, said that abroad one could hardly conceive of such magnificent factories for the manufacture of cigars as he saw here, and altogether our city and buildings were a most pleasant revelation to him.

I understand that there is now in process of formation a combination of three very large cigar manufacturing concerns, manufacturing high-grade cigars, in New York, Tampa and Havana. The details are now being attended by the brokers, who will underwrite and market the securities of the new company.

Among the names of prominent citizens drawn for service on the November term grand jury are those of William Scotten, John Bagley and Albert Montebeliard.

Friends and acquaintances of Edwin Heineman, of O'Brien & Co., will regret to learn of the death of his sister at Port Hope, Michigan.

A conspicuous window display during this week is that of "El Sidelo" cigars of Samuel I. Davis & Co., in the window of Ferd. Kuhn's place, next to the Majestic Building.

The Jackson Cigar Company have surely made a base hit in securing such a fine display in the left field window of Davy Jones' store at Adams Avenue and Brush Street.

Among the most catchy windows on Woodward Avenue are those of the Liggett (Rexall) stores, showing imported calabash pipes.

A very busy man indeed is Victor Thorsch, of T. J. Dunn & Co., who is doing absolutely nothing else than trying to square himself and the house for not shipping "New Bachelor" faster. Some fine jog that, nit!

In my letter of November 15th I suggested, dear reader, that you keep your eye on this page for news of a sudden injury or dire calamity befalling those doughty nimrods, Doc Rettick and Dick Gremblay, who had gone into the upper Peninsula in quest of game. I am happy to report they have returned safe and sound, Dick with a fine buck, and Doc, who is a lady's man, with a perfectly beautiful doe. Gremblay also shot a great big bear out of the top of a tree and then found it was a porcupine.

A. G. (George) Smith, of Rothschild & Bro., leaf merchants, has just returned from the best trip he ever had in the Northwest. George is an old cigarmaker himself and is an unassuming, likeable fellow, who makes and holds trade.

Two specialty men in this market this week are V. A. Bradbury, representing the Universal Tobacco Stripping Machine Company, and Mr. J. L. Goldsmith, of the Tabakase Company, and who have had very good success here.

Among the leaf tobacco contingent in this market lately are Mr. Sarlmy, of F. & S. Kraus, New York; Harry Nathan, E. Spingarn & Co., New York; William Levison, I. Bernheim & Sons, New York; Henry Fisher and C. L. Mayer, A. Cohn & Co., New York; William Hirsch, L. Schmid & Co., New York, and C. J. Waxelbaum, C. J. Waxelbaum & Co., New York.

The cigar and cigarette representatives were: Gaspard Pino, M. J. Lopez & Co., New York; Leopold Powell, Leopold Powell & Co., New York; William Higgins, Park & Tilford, New York; A. Boyd Wilson, P. C. Fulweiler & Bro. Co.; William Charles, G. S. Nichols & Co., New York; Mortimer Hamer, Ryan, Raphael & Co., Chicago; Mr. Vanderlip, Juan Dortmund, Philadelphia; Frank Hornung, H. Anton Bock Company, New York; Victor Thorsch, T. J. Dunn & Co., and Mr. McKitterick, of the "Melachirino" cigarette concern.

The beautiful, new cigar store of M. & A. La Fond Co., opposite the Pontchartrain, on Woodward Avenue, will be ready for business December 1st.

At the time the Superior Cigar Manufacturing Company moved into its new home on Hendric Avenue, Messrs. Bunting & Stewart thought they had enough factory space for some years, but now when they are just nicely settled in the new factory they are compelled to let contracts for a large addition to the present factory. HEAVENRICH.

H. H. Fetters, a cigar manufacturer in Fond du Lac, Wis., has moved his factory to Antigo, Wis. He is located at 825 Sixth Avenue.

Joseph Kronberg, of Napa, Cal., has sold his cigar store on First Street to Frank Arata.

Charles S. Morton, a retired cigar dealer of Chicago, died recently at the home of a daughter at 731 North Linden Avenue, Oak Park. He was fifty-nine years of age.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Several Lancaster Factories in Oversold Class

LANCASTER, November 22.

THE cigar business continues to increase at a surprising rate. The majority of the factories are oversold and have orders ahead for some time after the holiday season. The smaller ones are doing a much better trade than is customary at this time of year. Of course when the dull summer is taken into consideration the year will not be above the average, in fact may be possibly below normal.

The S. R. Moss factory is going full tilt. Mr. Briody came to town on Tuesday, and after a short look around will take a trip to Europe. Mr. Briody is one of the western representatives, and has been wonderfully successful in introducing the "Flor de Moss" in many sections. Sig. Moss has been laid up in the General Hospital by illness, but is said to be much improved.

A. B. Hess, president of the National Cigar Leaf Association, and head of the A. B. Hess Cigar Company, was re-elected to the Legislature after an interesting campaign in this district. Mr. Hess ran on the Republican ticket.

John Slater, of John Slater & Co., manufacturers of stogies, is expected at local headquarters in a week. Mr. Slater spends much of his time in the western part of the state, where many of his interests lie. The factory is managed by John F. Hare, who is an experienced stogie maker.

The warehouse at the corner of Duke and Chestnut Streets, owned by W. R. Martin, is to be sold at sheriff's sale on November 23. It is now occupied by M. H. Ranck & Co. and E. M. Cohn & Co., leaf dealers.

Eli L. Nissley, of E. L. Nissley & Sons, returned several days ago from a trip to the middle west. He was gone about three weeks.

The cigar store at 111 East King Street, owned by Levi M. Burkholder, has been sold to Mrs. S. Lillie Reidenbach. The stand will be managed by J. H. Reidenbach, husband of the new owner.

Among the trade visitors noted the past two weeks were: I. M. Jacoby, of Meyer & Mendelsohn; W. H. Uhler, of Lebanon; Leopold Loeb, of Philadelphia, and Philip Pretzfeld, of the New York leaf tobacco house of Pretzfeld & Co.

York County Cigar Business Booming

YORK, November 22.

REPORTS from all sections of the county give it that the cigar manufacturers are doing the business of their lives.

All the small factories employing several hands or more are filling the orders which usually come at this time of year. The Red Lion and Dallastown plants are proof of this. The leaf trade is going along steadily here, although sales are not large by any means. Retailers state that business has slowed up slightly within the past two weeks, but expect to do better now as the holiday season approaches.

Charles S. Plitt, of the C. H. Plitt Cigar Company, has been on a trip through Central Pennsylvania pushing the "Plitt" cigars. The "Liar" cigar has been taking a fine hold, and is placed in every worth-while stand in town. A window display of this brand was shown in Young & Busser's store this week, and attracted quite a bit of attention.

H. F. Kohler reports increasing business for his brands, particularly on the "Judge Shepard." This well known York brand is becoming better known than ever, and is the big seller of the Kohler factory. Mr. Kohler will shortly take up an extensive campaign with the jobbers handling his goods, to make them more popular than ever before. This applies particularly to the trade in the middle west, where "Judge Shepard" is sold with the big ones.

Wm. H. Wolf and Mr. Dietz, of the Luxfer Cigar Company, of Hellam, report a nice trade. This firm has been in business only a year, but has made good headway in that time. Their leading brand is "Old Chatsworth," a meekel smoke, upon which they are putting more time than upon any other. Mr. Wolf does the traveling for the concern, and has placed "Old Chatsworth" in a number of good places in the Central Pennsylvania coal regions. Mr. Dietz usually attends to the factory end of the business.

A trip to Littlestown shows the leading manufacturer, George W. Parr, doing a business above the average. Mr. Parr has been in the cigar business for years, and takes great pride in the sustaining quality of his brands. He centres his time on the "Lord Wharton" and "Fernside" cigars.

The box factories in this vicinity are hard pushed by the cigar people. There is not an idle plant, and they are finding trouble in filling the orders in time for the holiday demands.

Celestino, Costello & Co. are much oversold on their "Barrister" and "Little Barrister" cigars. Orders are being filled as promptly as possible, but they are hampered by the scarcity of good cigar makers.

Many Changes Noted in Reading Trade

READING, November 22.

CIGAR manufacturers are still filling orders to the best of their ability, cigarmakers are not to be had and from all reports there will be some disappointed jobbers and retailers, who depend for much of their goods upon Reading factories. There has not been any change in the wholesale and jobbing trade. Dealers state there is little call for holiday packings and do not expect to lay in stock of any account, for there is too much trouble getting rid of it after the holidays.

The many friends of George H. Valentine were much shocked to hear of his death last Sunday, in Womelsdorf. Mr. Valentine was one of the best known of the many cigar manufacturers of Berks County and had friends scattered throughout the entire country where he formerly traveled. He had a pleasing personality and made friends wherever he went. The funeral was held on Thursday morning.

Samuel F. Haller has filed a bond with the internal revenue collector in the sum of $500 to succeed his brother, Isaac F. Haller, in the manufacture of cigars, at 1050 Greenwich Street.

The H. C. Nolan Company has filed a bond in the sum of $3000 to succeed P. K. Steffy in the manufacture of cigars at Sinking Spring. Mr. Steffy will be the manager of the plant.

L. M. Stuber, a cigar manufacturer, has purchased the business of C. U. Gery, the dealer and manufacturer, with his place of business opposite Franklin Street railroad station. Mr. Gery has been making the "C. U. G." cigar and had built up a nice trade, which will be taken over by Mr. Stuber and consolidated with his business.

F. P. Shanfelder, who has been manufacturing cigars at Newmans-town for about five years, has sold the business to Zimmerman & Grimes, of that place, who will add the trade to their own. The Shanfelder factory will now be used entirely for mill purposes.

J. W. Newcomet, a cigar manufacturer, of 1906 Perkiomen Avenue, is in financial difficulties. A sheriff's sale, which was to be held on November 4, for the benefit of the creditors, was not held because an application had been made for the appointment of a receiver. The case is to be acted upon tomorrow.

John U. Fehr, of the local leaf house, has been appointed trustee in the bankruptcy proceedings of the Adler Leaf Tobacco Company. The liabilities are about $9000, with assets of about $600.

Visits to the larger cigar factories about town show them all busy. There is not any one worth mentioning at this time manufacturing cigars who cannot be included in this class.

George Lehr, Reading Pa, Manufacturer, Financially Embarrassed

George W. Lehr, the Reading, Pa., cigar manufacturer, called a meeting of his creditors on last Friday, the 20th, at the office of his attorney, Cyrus G. Derr, 542 Court Street, Reading, at which time he submitted a statement of his affairs, giving his financial condition, and inviting the creditors to give their views as to the best methods to pursue in securing a satisfactory settlement for all concerned.

Stoughton Plant of American Cigar Company Idle

Reports from Stoughton, Wis., state that there will be no assorting or packing of tobacco this year at the American Cigar Company's warehouse at that place. This is the first winter the plant has ever stood idle since it was built in 1903. It usually employs about two hundred persons. The operations of the American Cigar Company will be concentrated at their warehouse at Sparta, Wis.

Two More Links to Whelan Retail Chain

The two latest links to the chain of cigar stores being operated by C. A. Whelan & Co., of Syracuse, New York, will be opened early this month. One is located at 117 Lockhart Street, Sayre, Pa., and the second on Lake St. Elmira, New York. Both stores are said to be excellent locations, and bring the chain of stores up to twenty-two in number.

Chicago Prepares for Enormous Trade

Shipping Conditions for Cigar Manufacturers Considerably Improved--Cigarette Advertising Being Done To An Unusual Degree--Trade Notes and Personal Mention

CHICAGO, November 25.

A MOST significant feature of the cigar trade in Chicago, just now, lies in the fact that there is a scarcity of good efficient workmen. Business is going on with such a volume and such a rush that no good cigarmaker should be out of a job. As a matter of course, no inconsiderable degree of the present immense volume of business is the result of the approach of the holiday season. At the same time that season is bringing an unprecedented amount of orders, and all the indications point to highly successful trade after the closing of the year.

Just at present better conditions prevail in the matter of shipping goods. The fast freight companies have made special arrangements for accommodating cigar manufacturers. The strike of the teamsters came to an end so quickly that it had no appreciable effect on the interests of the shippers.

The retail men are receiving their supplies and putting them in stock and on display with rapidity rarely equalled. The displays of pipes and other smokers' articles continue to increase in greatness of volume and in beauty of finish.

The cigarete manufacturers and dealers are keeping up with the rush of business in other lines in the tobacco trade. The advertising of popular brands of cigaretes is carried on to an unusual degree. Especially is this the case with the "Fatimas," "Zubeldas," "Nestors," and "Royal Nestors," "Satin," "Prettiest" and the "Philip Morris." As a natural consequence of the activity in cigars, the leaf trade is most prosperous. Large shipments are being received, some of which have been sent to other large cities.

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company has sold to Alexander O. Mason the property at the northeast corner of North Clark and Maple Streets, 65 x 100 feet, with four-story and basement building, for $35,000.

The G. Heileman Brewing Company has sued Champion "Jack" Johnson for $1,150.25, alleged to be due for beer furnished the colored man's "cafe" during October.

Ed. Morgan, who was recently with Clarence Heischhorn & Company, boosting "Tom Moores" and "Optimos," has gone back with the Ryan & Raphael Cigar Company, and now swears anew by his first love, the "Lucius" cigar.

Hillmann's cigar department has a new size of "La Sonedas," especially packed for the store by Storm, Fisher & Company, which is selling at retail for ten cents straight.

The Fair cigar department has put on sale a new brand called "Cuban Smokers," made by Storm, Fisher & Company, which as W. A. Andersen, the manager, says, is "selling very large and well." This is the cigar with the brush effect.

The William F. Monroe Cigar Company has added the "Soneda Models," ten for fifteen cents, and will handle them in both stores.

The Home Drug Company, on West Monroe Street, is showing a big increase in its cigar department. It is featuring brands in its windows at cut prices, and in this way gathers in the office building trade. Manager Doyle keeps all the popular brands, but always carries a few in which he is interested and which his neighbors do not handle.

Max Schlesinger, who has been with Grommes & Ullrich, since he came over from Detroit thirty years ago, says he sells more "Olnidas," made by the "Charles the Great" factory, than all other brands combined. Mr. Schlesinger has recently taken his third degree in the Blue Lodge and has started golfing with such good players as John Amberg, of Cameron, Amberg & Company, and Judge Sabath.

The present lessees of the cigar department of the Central Drug Store, want to sublet the same. They state that they do not know how to handle the retail trade and would rather stick to the manufacturing end.

Burns & Goldfuss, in their new North State Street store are making an extensive display of the "Henry the Fourth" cigar.

Clarence Hirschhorn & Company are getting a lot of newspaper work on their "Bank Note" cigar, "the cigar with the guaranteed smoke." Mr. Hirschhorn says the brand is placed in about 400 stores and duplicating a good honest growth, and he believes that inside of a year, it will be a second "Little Tom," which is the undisputed leader in five-cent cigars in Chicago. He remarks further, that if he could reach the work of George L. Storm & Company, of New York City, who are selling 70,000 "Bank Notes" a day, he would feel easy enough to buy a Packard.

Plans have been prepared by Lilienfeld Brothers & Company for enlargement of their office space. Work on these improvements will begin immediately after the holidays.

Theodore Marburg, formerly of the Marburger Brothers Company, who sold out to the American Tobacco Company, makers of the "Yale Smoking Tobacco," formerly covered Chicago for his firm. Now his name appears in the list of our diplomats abroad, he having been appointed United States Minister to Belgium.

Among the recent visitors in Chicago was L. J. McKinnon, representing H. Anton Bock & Company. After spending a few days here he left for the South.

The new corner store of Albert Breitung, in the Monadnock Building, Dearborn Street and Jackson Boulevard, is nearly ready for opening. The store will be one of the largest and finest in the business center of the city.

Information comes from B. F. Alexander, now in Cuba, that he has resigned his place as representative of the Partagas factory for the Western part of this country. With the coming of the New Year, he will be the sole agent for the United States and Canada for one of the large cigar factories of Cuba.

Maurice Wertheim, of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company, who recently bought the Ernest Thompson Seton place, known as Wyndygoul, at Cos Cob, Conn., is in Chicago to take up the 1913 matters with the Best & Russell Company and Clarence Hirschhorn & Company.

J. F. Courtenay, of Madison, Wis., is in Chicago, making his headquarters with the Best & Russell Company. E. A. Strause, of Peoria, is also making his headquarters with that company.

William Best, Sr., states that the Memphis branch of the Best Company is billing over $2,500 drop shipments a day through the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company on "Owls," "Robert Burns" and "Hamilton Fish" brands. He states that the Detroit branch is increasing its business steadily, especially on "Little Bobbie" cigars.

Tom Murray, through Ben Thorpe, the renter, is trying to rent the store at the corner of Clark and Madison Streets for cigar privilege. Mr. Murray says you can meet him "face to face" with a check for about $9,000.

A lease of the stores at 11-15 West Jackson Boulevard, corner of Plymouth Place, in the new Sears Building, has been taken by the United Cigar Stores Company. The total rental will be $150,000 for a term of years.

W. E. Ward, 23 East Van Buren Street, familiarly known as "Billy," is building up a big business on his "Ward's Smoking Mixture," formerly known as "Duffley's Mixture." Mr. Ward carries a big line of cigars, including "La Soneda," "Bolano," "La Venga," "Sanchez & of cigars," "Charles the Great," "Websters," "Cohasset," "Artesa," "El Tarta." In five dollar goods, his leader is "Ward's No. 23," made by Storm, Fisher & Co.

Best & Russell Company are placing a new five-cent cigar called "Tuck Ends," made for them by Storm, Fisher & Co., of New York. The cigar has a flange broom style tuck. The package is very attractive, as it has a bright green edging; and, as Bert Christian, their loop agent, says: "It always cheers up the Irish."

Thomas Slader, a South Side jobber, was caught in the Kirby Bank failure for $1,500. Mr. Slader is putting out a new five-cent cigar called "Lopez's DaFydis," made by Storm, Fisher & Co.

Fred Vorhauer, brother of William Vorhauer, Best & Russell Company's crack North Side agent, is selling the match machine for the Northwestern Company, of Morris, Illinois, billing it through Best & Russell Company, the distributors. Fred formerly worked for the Best & Russell Company and afterward for the "Ben Bey" factory, so he has a line on the retail trade.

The switching of George L. Storm, of New York, from the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company to the Tobacco Products Company, has caused a lot of talk in Chicago. George is well known here by the big ones; one of them was heard to say he had never smoked a cigarette, but would start and smoke "Melachrimos," so as to show George L. he had a good friend. Mr. Storm is sure to make circles around some of his competitors.

Not the least interested business men of Chicago in connection with the proposed magnificent improvements on Michigan Avenue are some of the wideawake, progressive, cigar and tobacco men. It is the purpose of the permanent organization created in connection with the plans to make the avenue the most beautiful business thoroughfare in the world. The indications are that the completion of the plans will see started on Michigan Avenue a number of the most magnificent cigar and tobacco stores in the world.

Charles D. Altschul, formerly a cigar manufacturer in Chicago, but who left here to make his home in Florida about two years ago, has returned and will remain here permanently.

The wedding engagement is made public of William Taussig, of the house of Taussig & Co., and Miss Babette Levy, of Dallas, Texas. Louis Lenhard, 263 West Sixty-third Street, has added a smoking table in his billiard room and reports that it has paid him well. He still carries the old line of goods, making his leaders: "Bolano," "La Soneda," "La Mathilde," "Evangeline de Cisneros," "Tom Moore," "El Pendes," "Cuban Smokers," "El O'Roys" and "Josettes."

John Lorimer, Fifty-fifth Street and Prairie Avenue, is one of the busiest men on the South Side. His lease on the location next to the elevated road starts December 1, with ten years to run. The property was sold and the new buyer asserts that Lorimer has no lease. Lorimer made the lease three years ago and had it recorded at that time; so, it is asserted, the buyer had opportunity to know all about it. The indications are for a contest, but it is asserted that the United Cigar Stores men desire to secure the location, "but will have to see Lorimer first." John has a lot of good friends who are standing behind him, like Charles Storm, of Storm, Fisher & Co., and James Pfouts, of Wohl & Comstock, besides excellent legal advice.

Another extension of the business of the United Cigar Stores in Chicago is reported to come in the immediate future, with the transfer of the premium department from Wabash Avenue to the new place, 11-15 East Jackson Boulevard.

The Decator Cigar Company has planned for considerable extension of its business. The company has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000, with Fred Le Brun remaining as manager and filling the position of treasurer. The pushing of the "Decator" will continue one of the leading features of the concern's business. The officers, in addition to the treasurer, are: President, Ray J. Morgan; vice-president, Christopher J. Gaffney, and T. J. Lynch, secretary.

The engagement is announced of Miss Stella Berlau, of Paris, Illinois, and Leo Schoenenan, representing Celestino, Vega & Co.

Abe Caro, of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, "Henry IV" Tampa factory, has been doing some developing with Harry Looker, Clarence Hirschhorn and Company's loop agent.

A. J. McBlair, general Western representative of Marcelino, Perez & Co., is planning to make a pleasure trip to Cuba about the first of next month.

R. B. Cooke still offers his store, 117 South La Salle Street, for sale. Good judges regard the site as excellent for a successful cigar business for a man with a good list of friends on La Salle Street.

Thomas Curran, of Edgewater, has decided not to change his sign, "X Son," as he was presented with a fine little girl the other day.

The cigar store of Richard M. Berlzheimer, 22 North La Salle Street, has been sold to the Oppenheimer Cigar Company. Hereafter it will be used as headquarters from which the business of the other Oppenheimer places will be conducted. Mr. Berlzheimer has been in the cigar business for forty years and retires with the best wishes and the esteem of the community.

Minneapolis Cigar Dealers Elect Officers

Membership Now Close to Fifty--Annual Dues to Be $5.00

THE Minneapolis Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association, which for some time has been passing through the formative period, was fully organized at the Hotel Nicollet, of that city, on November 19th.

At this meeting the annual election of officers occurred. Louis Nathanson was elected president and E. S. Walters, George Boosalis and L. E. McLaughlin, vice-presidents. W. O. Goodman became secretary and treasurer. A Membership Committee was appointed, consisting of Fred. Milan, D. T. Hobson, L. E. McLaughlin, N. R. Price and J. S. Phalen. The other committees are to be announced at the December meeting of the association.

In outlining their plans the association stated their objects: "To promote fraternally, socially and commercially, the interests and welfare of dealers representing the independent tobacco interests. To cooperate with other similar organizations throughout the country, and to foster a feeling of friendship and good will among the trade."

The association has opened its ranks to any person engaged in the retailing, jobbing, manufacturing, or selling of tobacco products. This included retail cigar clerks as well as tobacco and cigar salesmen. The annual dues are $5. The membership is close to fifty.

Possibly the handsomest and best equipped cigar stores in the Loop was opened Wednesday, November 27, at 124 West Monroe Street, by the Mouroe-Renaud Cigar Company. Ever since Renaud, secretary of the W. F. Monroe Cigar Company secured this valuable site, a couple of months ago, workmen have been busy getting the place in shape. Shortly after securing the lease Mr. Renaud was offered a big premium for the document. In addition to an attractive street entrance between show-windows there is an outlet in the rear to the lobby of the New York Life Building, which the store adjoins.

Despite the fact that workmen were still setting up some fixtures, the doors were unlocked and the store thrown open for business at an early hour. Before noon Mr. Renaud was in receipt of a half dozen large bouquets of large chrysanthemums and many letters and telegrams from out-of-town friends.

The store is fitted up with a solid 20-foot glass case, which is filled with the choicest imported and domestic brands made, kept in the best possible condition by San-I-Fa-Cient humidors. No lights are visible, as the Barbo inverted fixtures, twelve in number, have been installed, which reflect a soft mellow light throughout the store. All the woodwork is mahogany. Unlike most stores, the space behind the case is roomy, so that several clerks can work with ease.

There is a store room along the entire length of the store behind the counter, which holds 225,000 cigars. This room is fitted out with one of the largest humidors ever made. John Maute is manager of the store.

Clarke Burt has charge of the Steger Building cigar store, controlled by the Best & Russell Company. Since he has been at the head of the establishment, he has built up a fine business. He remarks that he has only one bad habit--smoking the "Havana Splits."

Through a syndicate headed by John B. Fay, the property at 238 to 250 East Erie Street, 150 x 100 feet, has been bought for about $40,000. The corner of Fairbanks Court, adjoining, is being improved by Reiss Brothers & Co., with a four-story structure for the manufacture of pipes and smokers' articles.

The quarters recently occupied by Grommes & Elson, corner of South Water and Franklin Streets, have been secured by C. D. Altschul, who has returned to the cigarmaking business, with the "Ben Harib" as his specialty.

A. Ryan, formerly connected with the Steele-Weddes Company, has entered the employ of J. Fred Wilcox as salesman.

Eger & Co. have reopened their business--the new store in the big building at the corner of Wabash Avenue and Adams Street having been finished for their use.

E. M. Harnish & Bro., Freeport, Ill., jobbers and retailers, announce that they will open a new store in their city.

The entire top floor of the handsome three-story building, corner of Van Buren and Center Streets, is to be occupied by the Congress Cigar Company. The business of the company has grown to so large proportions, with assurance of continued increase, that greatly enlarged quarters are required.

The new place will give the management the use of some 3500 square feet of additional flooring space. At the same time, enlarged facilities will be afforded for many improvements in connection with business arrangements which the company has in contemplation.

Wengler & Mandell Erecting Chicago Factory

New Establishment Will Be Three Stories in Height

AT a cost of approximately $85,000, Wengler & Mandell are putting up a new cigar factory, corner of Robey and Madison Streets, Chicago, a short distance west of the firm's present factory, on Madison Street. Wengler & Mandell have secured a lease for 198 years on the lot for the structure, 55 x 135 feet. Adjoining property is under lease also, thus allowing for future extensions.

The building will have three stories and basement. It is of handsome architectural design and is being faced with white glazed terra cotta, giving it a most attractive appearance. It is expected to be ready for occupancy about the first of next March, and will be furnished and finished in every way in accordance with the most up-to-date requirements.

The erection of this building is regarded as sufficient answer to the rumors that Wengler & Mandell have sold out.

The Wing Cigar Company, of Columbus, Ohio, have purchased the cigar manufacturing business in the Ruggles Building, Circleville, Ohio, which has been operated for the past three years by J. D. Dunigan. The Wing Cigar Company employs about fifty hands.

President Hill Makes Remarkable Statement on Tobacco Affairs

Head of The American Tobacco Company Points Out How Dissolution Decree Has Been Complied With and Makes Interesting Comments On Trade Conditions

A STATEMENT, reviewing in detail the condition of the tobacco trade and the steps which have been taken to comply with the decree of dissolution and its effects, has just been issued by Percival S. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, and its former subsidiaries. Mr. Hill, frankly revealing many details of the inside workings of the American Tobacco Company and its former subsidiaries. As an example of the present tendency to do business, with competition and other phases of the business are both timely and illuminating. We append herewith, some of the most interesting points contained in his statement:

The Decree Itself.

There has not been a full understanding of the drastic and radical nature of the decree entered on November 16, 1911. The Supreme Court had declared that a condition of monopoly and restraint of trade existed, and remanded the case to the Circuit Court of New York with instructions to bring about at a date not later than February 28, 1912, a termination of this condition of monopoly and restraint of trade, and a condition honestly in harmony with the law.

The American Tobacco Company was the parent and dominant figure of the so-called tobacco combination, and the Circuit Court, carrying out the opinion of the Supreme Court, required the American Tobacco Company, as the very first step, to do a thing that has been highly noted in the public discussions of the decree, but that was of tremendous importance, viz.:

The American Tobacco Company was required to distribute among its stockholders securities that had produced an annual income of more than $9,000,000, and that therefore had a total value of substantially $100,000,000.

These securities were selected by the court itself, and this distribution took from The American Tobacco Company the very things, and almost all of things that had excited comment and criticism—those things that were said to have given to The American Tobacco Company power over other manufacturers, such as (a) business and (b) the unfair business; (c) the control of or connection with the licentia instrument which had, justly or unjustly, excited the complaint of many manufacturers and dealers, the United Cigar Stores Company, which operates a chain of retail stores; (d) the foreign alliance, or connection with, The Imperial Tobacco Company, Limited, and British-American Tobacco Company, Limited; (e) all relation of alliance with the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, a large and successful Southern manufacturer; (f) all relation to or alliance with American Snuff Company, a large snuff manufacturer.

Had The American Tobacco Company never possessed the things of which it has deprived itself, it is likely that it would never have been proceeded against as a monopoly.

Creation of New Companies to Produce Competition.

The next step ordered by the court was the disintegration of the very factories, brands and businesses that had theretofore been owned out-right by The American Tobacco Company. This was effected by the creation of two large manufacturing concerns called respectively Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company and P. Lorillard Company.

The American Tobacco Company made deeds and conveyances to these new companies of definite properties, brands and businesses with definite statements made to the court as to what these factories, brands and businesses had made during the year 1910, what their output of pounds was, and what their use of tobacco was.

The price to be paid by these companies was fixed by the court, and The American Tobacco Company used the purchase price in the reduction of its own outstanding securities. The Department of Justice, representing the Government, the prosecutor of the case, had the advantage of the expert knowledge of the Department of Commerce and Labor, which itself had been investigating the tobacco business for two or three years, and which reported, through the man who had made the long continued examination of the tobacco industry, that so far as brands, types of leaf tobacco used, territorial distribution of business and all other things the conditions brought about were in fact competitive.

Common Ownership of Stock.

This disintegration, and every disintegration of a so-called trust, which the Government has enforced, from the case of the Northern Securities Company to the present time, left the same body of stockholders in the various companies that were nominal competitors.

This feature of the matter received the careful consideration of the parties to the litigation and the court. The facts were that the common stockholders of The American Tobacco Company numbered more than 1100, and the decree provided that full voting rights should be given to the preferred stockholders, numbering more than 6000, who theretofore had had no votes, and there was thus added an even larger number to the body of controlling holders.

The disintegration, without this feature of common stockholding, was obviously impossible, unless property was to be absolutely confiscated or the creation of another so-called monopoly permitted.

Injunctive Features of the Decree.

In recognition of the possibility of a feigned and not a real competition, in view especially of the common stockholding, the decree of November 16, 1911, not only provided for a dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, but some perpetual and some operative during the time when the common ownership would likely obtain, most detailed and drastic injunctions. These injunctions provide that none of these companies shall directly or indirectly co-operate in the control or management of a corporation, or in fixing the price to be paid for leaf tobacco or other raw materials, or the prices to be charged for manufactured product, or for the apportionment of trade, either with respect to customers or locality; that none of them should convey businesses to another, and none of them should have the same clerical organization, or the same office or offices; that none of them should hold stock in a corporation in which another holds stock.

For five years none of them should have an officer or director who at the same time was an officer or director in another, and none of them should employ the same agent in the United States for the purchase of tobacco, or for the sale of tobacco, and none of them should acquire stock in any of the others, or make loans or otherwise extend financial aid to any of the others.

These injunctions, if obeyed, insure the reality of competition, and if disobeyed, then detection is certain and personal punishment is imminent. If there has been a claim made by a single individual that the injunctions contained in the decree of November 16, 1911, have not been obeyed in letter and in spirit, The American Tobacco Company has not heard of it. On the leaf market in Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina, the competition has been and is open, notorious and extreme. In the marketing of goods it has been equally so.

Course of Business Since the Decree.

Immediately after the entry of the decree the new companies provided for were established, the stocks directed to be distributed were distributed, the conveyances provided to be made were made.

Each new company began its business well equipped with factories, cash, leaf tobacco, and, above all, efficient and experienced tobacco men. The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, having, in fact, always operated independent of the control of The American Tobacco Company, continued its old management, with its factory and offices at Winston-Salem, N. C. The American Tobacco Company having no sort of interest in it.

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company was provided with a capable management with its offices and its largest factory in St. Louis.

The P. Lorillard Company was provided with a capable management with its offices and its largest factory in Jersey City.

The American Tobacco Company retained its offices, with a part of its old management, in New York.

Mr. James B. Duke, who had been president of the old The American Tobacco Company, resigned all connection in fact as well as in name, with any of the American companies, and became the principal executive officer of British-American Tobacco Company, Limited, with headquarters in London, to which place he had gone before February 28, 1912, and where he has certainly spent most of his time since that date. The change of stock ownership has undoubtedly progressed, as is very evident from the sales that have been reported on the exchanges in New York by the daily newspapers and the records of the Company's transfer books.

Effects of Competition on Raw Material.

So far as the experience of The American Tobacco Company goes, leaf tobacco, generally speaking, has brought very high prices since the disintegration. It is absolutely true that the decree has been obeyed in letter and in spirit, and that there has been competition vigorous and active. It is only fair to say that the high prices have not, in our judgment, resulted solely from the disintegration and the increased competition. The fact is that in some of the sections in which leaf tobacco grows, unfavorable weather conditions curtailed the expected crop. Undoubtedly different people connected with the leaf departments of the various companies have had different views as to the probable course of prices. This condition has resulted temporarily and so far in higher prices, although prices would have been higher even without this competitive condition. Of course, if the present high prices produce larger crops, as they will under an unalterable economic law, prices will fall by operation of the same law. When each competitor, acting independently of all other competitors, secures his requirements, the prices will decline just as certainly as if the purchasers were not in competition at all. Competition has been actual, though, and will continue, and up to this time competitive purchasing has been coincident at least with higher prices.

How the Consumer Controls the Tobacco Business.

The position of tobacco manufacturers differs materially from that of any other large corporation, in that the success of the tobacco manufacturer depends entirely on the attitude of the public toward his product.

Every jobber and every retailer knows the name of the manufacturer of every tobacco product that he handles. Every consumer knows the name of the manufacturer of every cigarette—or may learn simply by looking at the package or inquiring of the dealer—who makes each brand of tobacco product.

If the consumer is not pleased he can instantly change to a competitive brand. He is the arbiter, the court of final appeal. If his decision is against a manufacturer, that manufacturer will have to cease business.

In other industries, the manufacturer's product is reworked by middle men so that its identity is lost before it reaches the ultimate consumer; or the product is used in forms not easily observable by the general public; or it is marketed in bulk or in some form other than of easily distinguished brands.

In short, other manufacturers are not directly answerable to the public. The tobacco business is unique in that the manufacturer is always at the mercy of the ultimate consumer, who, by withdrawing his patronage, can crush him, no matter how large he may be.

Therefore, the success of The American Tobacco Company never did depend and does not now depend upon monopoly, but on the efficiency of the company and its ability to please the public.

Competition among tobacco manufacturers does not take the form of "price-cutting." The history of the tobacco business proves that price-cutting is not a desirable weapon to use against competitors.

Tobacco, candy, perfumes and other products which appeal to the sense of taste or smell, are purchased invariably because of the appeal of the specific article to the individual's taste.

About the only effect of cutting the price of a high-priced perfume would be to suggest to the consumer that the perfume had been deteriorated in quality. So it is with tobacco products. About the only effect of price-cutting is to remove a product from one class and put it in another, often with the result of destroying its value. Thus, persistent price-cutting, even by retailers on various well-known five-cent cigars, have driven them out of the five-cent class and into the three-cent class, just as soon as they reached the three-cent class, the five-cent smoker abandoned them and they died.

Manufacturers Cannot Control Retail Prices.

The retailer makes prices to meet local conditions, and the tobacco manufacturers have no power to regulate this situation.

In some cities retailers cut fifteen-cent cigarettes to twelve cents or eleven cents; ten-cent tobacco to three packages for twenty-five cents, etc., etc. The matter of prices to the consumer is entirely local, and no one but the retailer can regulate it.

Look at "Pall Mall" cigarettes as an illustration of the manufacturer's lack of control over prices. The American Tobacco Company advertises "Pall Mall" at twenty-five cents, and sells the cigarettes at such a price as to give the dealer an excellent profit. It is safe to assume that most "Pall Mall" cigarettes are sold at twenty cents, when, as a matter of fact, the retailer is supposed to charge twenty-five cents for them. However strong an old brand of tobacco may be, the manufacturer must be continually alert or his energetic competitors will take his business away from him. It is true that they will not do this by price-cutting, because that in itself will not damage his brand materially.

Consequently, there is a constant struggle among tobacco manufacturers to protect their old brands and to create business for the new brands, which the manufacturer who is successfully rival his competitors must introduce from time to time. These new brands are the result of new discoveries in the manufacture of tobacco, or a new application of some old principle in a more attractive form.

Competition in the tobacco trade, therefore, takes the form of vigorous advertising of old brands, the energetic introduction of new brands, and the devising of inducements to consumers to buy their old or new brands.

Every newspaper or magazine reader is impressed with the tremendous amount of tobacco advertising in the daily, weekly and monthly press, evidence enough to a thoughtful man that very genuine competition exists, or the manufacturers would be saving the money which they are now pouring out in printer's ink.

One method of creating new business recently employed by the former members of The American Tobacco Company, is the increase of quantity in a package of tobacco products. The results of this may be seen by any observer.

The old American Tobacco Company had a very heavy business on ten-for-ten-cent cigarettes. Competitive conditions have brought into large sale "Pittman" cigarettes, twenty for fifteen cents, by Liggett & Myers; and have created "Omar," twenty for fifteen cents, by The American Tobacco Company, and "Zubelda," twenty for fifteen cents, by Pierre Lorillard Company.

"Masot" smoking tobacco, a new creation of The American Tobacco Company to meet competitive conditions, is sold at one and one-half ounces for five cents, a price heretofore unknown for tobacco of such quality.

P. Lorillard Company have brought out "Star," a five-cent tin package of smoking tobacco, which bids fair to create a new element in the field.

Liggett & Myers have produced a new brand—"O. P."—to fight "Masot."

The American Tobacco Company has brought out "Red J" and "Black Eagle" plug tobaccos, which are fighting the products of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company on a quality-and-price basis.

"Between the Acts" and "St. Leger," well-known little cigar brands, became the property of the P. Lorillard Company. The American Tobacco Company has created "Piccadilly" and is fighting for the business of the Lorillard brands.

Coupons, Inserts, Etc.

Various inducements to consumers have proven effective methods of conducting business. One very well known scheme is to pack a cash coupon in cigarettes. To illustrate: Prior to dissolution, the "Lord Salisbury" cigarette was controlled (i. e., sold exclusively) by the United Cigar Stores. After dissolution it was made an "open brand" (i. e., sold to all jobbers and dealers). The American Tobacco Company places in a package four coupons, each redeemable at any tobacco store for one-half cent each. This serves as an advertisement for the brand, and at the same time reduces the price from ten cents to eight cents.

"Bedmont," a five-cent cigarette, by Liggett & Myers, and "Sovereign," The American Tobacco Company's competitive brand, are fighting a battle royal. Each is now carrying a one-half cent cash coupon. "Tokio," another American Tobacco Company brand, carries a one-half cent coupon and a "butter" as well.

The silk "insert"—tugs and other decorative designs—are greatly desired by women for use in pillow tops and other fancy needlework. They are expensive, so that when a genuine now connected with the Lorillard Company thought of the idea of packing them in cigarette boxes he found a thing which made business.

Silk inserts are so expensive that in the past they have never been packed in cigarettes selling at less than ten cents. Since the old members of The American Tobacco Company began fighting among themselves, the silk insert has been packed in five-cent cigarettes. The cost of silk inserts on only one five-cent brand of American Tobacco Company cigarettes amounts to $300,000 a year.

Any observer will find abundant evidence that the tobacco business in this country today is a competitive business, each manufacturer appealing to the consumer and so far as the products of The American Tobacco Company and the other companies that were carved out of the combination are concerned, with the consumer informed as to whose product he is buying.

Injunctions Preventing Secrecy or Restraint. Not only are there injunctions against The American Tobacco Company and the other companies that heretofore formed a part of the so-called tobacco combination in order to insure competition between them, but there are injunctions against the use of methods or instruments of monopoly, which, in effect, put The American Tobacco Company and the other defendants, including the new companies, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company and P. Lorillard Company, under really a different law from that that obtains against other concerns.

After the disintegration, each of the companies was left with a tobacco business actually and technically owned by a subsidiary corporation, as, for instance, The American Tobacco Company owned all the stock of Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Company, that makes the famous "Ball Durham" tobacco, and P. Lorillard Company was left with all the stock of S. Anargyros, a New York corporation, the manufacturer of "Egyptian Delicias."

By the terms of the decree, the products of these subsidiary corporations which bear the name of the manufacturer at all, must bear a statement showing the owner of their stock. Under these conditions secret ownership is impossible.

None of these tobacco companies are permitted to make it a condition, when supplying a jobber, that the jobber shall buy some other brand, thus effectually eliminating the so-called exclusive handling arrangement.

So far as The American Tobacco Company is concerned, these injunctions have been obeyed in letter and in spirit, and so far as we know they have been obeyed by everybody concerned.

Is it possible that sane men managing these various companies would contemplate collusion and feigned competition in the face of such an army of witnesses, and in the teeth of injunctive provisions of a decree disobedience to which would lead to condign punishment?

What will be the effect of the competition? No man can say, but this the competition is real and will continue to be real is absolutely true.

Market Value of Securities. The American Tobacco Company itself had outstanding six per cent. bonds, four per cent. bonds, six per cent. preferred stock and common stock. In view of the fact that it had been earning a large surplus and that the common stock alone had voting power, the real and ultimate ownership may be said to have been vested in the 1100 common stockholders.

The American Tobacco Company held in its treasury all, or a majority, of the shares of various companies whose stocks were not dealt in at all. Its securities that were outstanding at the time of the disintegration had only been issued in 1901, and Government proceedings were really instituted in the spring of 1905.

The common stock of The American Tobacco Company had always sold under the shadow of an impending Government litigation, but on account of its large earnings it had had an average price of substantially over 400.

In the court proceedings looking to the disintegration, there was a most detailed statement, given under oath, as to the earnings and profits of the various securities distributed, and the securities of the new companies formed. So that all men had an opportunity to learn for themselves the value of the properties.

After the disintegration, all of these securities sold from under the shadow of a Government suit for dissolution, and it is well known that securities whose market value is low compared with their par value, sell for nearer their real value than those whose market value is very high.

These things explain the difference in market values in the aggregate of what has come to the common stockholders of The American Tobacco Company, as compared with the market value of their stock before the disintegration.

The fact remains, though, that the disintegration, taking into account the necessity involved in paying off at cash and at high prices the six per cent. bonds and the four per cent. bonds of The American Tobacco Company, and taking into account the necessity of dividing on the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company preferred stock and the P. Lorillard Company preferred stock as compared with the old The American Tobacco Company preferred stock, entailed an actual penalty inflicted on the common stockholders of The American Tobacco Company amounting to many millions of dollars.

Buyers on the exchanges were unwilling to pay the full value, based upon income at least, of the old The American Tobacco Company's common stock, which sold at a very high price compared with par, and which was subject to the jeopardy of an imminent or pending suit by the Government, which had in it the threat of the possibility of a receivership.

They not unreasonably are willing to pay a larger amount in the aggregate, for the different things that now represent what this old stock did represent, when the imminence of the Government suit is at an end.

Undoubtedly, in the tobacco business competitive efforts do increase volume of business, and whether such increase of volume will serve to maintain or increase the amount of profits in the face of the additional expense in marketing goods, remains to be seen.

Naturally from such large bodies of men, individuals are constantly changing their employment, and they would carry with them the news of any attempt of collusion between the companies.

There are over five thousand jobbers dealing directly with The American Tobacco Company, and most of them undoubtedly deal with the other tobacco manufacturing concerns that have been cut off from and carved out of The American Tobacco Company, and they are familiar with all trade arrangements.

In buying the raw material the leaf buyers of the various companies buy at open auction in the presence of crowds of competing buyers, and collusion would be impossible under such conditions.

1912 Sumatra Prices Higher, Borneo Prices Lower

THE prices for tobacco realized in the public sales at Amsterdam from January first up to date (October 22, 1912) according to Consul Frank W. Mahin, Amsterdam, have averaged about 8.5 per cent. higher for Sumatra and 32 per cent. lower for Borneo tobacco than the prices in the corresponding period of 1911. This year 280,704 bales of Sumatra were sold at an average price of 142 Dutch cents per half kilo (51.8 American cents per pound), against 234,209 bales at 131 Dutch cents per half kilo (47.8 American cents per pound) in 1911. The total quantity of Borneo sold this year was 15,231 bales at an average price of 90 Dutch cents per half kilo (32.8 American cents per pound), against 14,961 bales yielding an average price of 132 Dutch cents per half kilo (48.1 American cents per pound) in 1911.

J. I. Thorp has purchased the Smoke House in Bloomington, Ill., which has been owned by L. H. Montgomery. He took immediate possession.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Leaf Changing Hands in Steady Fashion in New York---Buying of 1912 Pennsylvania Well Under Way---
Connecticut Growers Take Advantage of "Damp" and do Their Stripping---Buying Slows Down in Wisconsin

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, November 22.

ALTHOUGH the cigar manufacturers are all busy and doing the trade of their lives, the leaf market is not showing any special uplift. Goods are changing hands every day, but in a steady fashion. The Pennsylvania tobaccos and binders are having the most attention at present.

The new Havana crop is evidently a favorite, as the tobacco, especially the Remedios, is selling well. The New York houses are all securing it in large quantities and from all reports the supply will be very largely inadequate to the demand. Returning buyers state that there is comparatively little of it left on the market.

Sumatra is moving along nicely. The purchasers are picking it over carefully. No large sales have been reported. Connecticut and Wisconsin are just holding their own.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, November 22.

THE leaf market has not shown any decided change within the past two weeks. As usual, the 1911 Pennsylvania is finding the most purchasers. A considerable quantity of it has changed hands for this great nickel market, and from all indications the activity in local manufacturing circles will necessitate the demand for more before very long.

Havana is also selling well, although sales are not large. A number of the local leaf merchants have laid in large quantities and evidently propose to find a ready market for it, judging by the quantities purchased. There are now about six representatives of Philadelphia houses in Havana.

LANCASTER, November 22.

The buying of the new crop is going on merrily. The Lancaster packers were said to be so well stocked up that they were indifferent as to whether they bought the crop now or later. During the time they have been attending to other matters the larger interests have purchased large quantities of the new crop and some estimates have given the acreage purchased at 3000 acres. There is no question that the crop has been acquired more widely than local packers will admit.

The prices at first were around nine and three cents, but the activity has driven it up to as high as ten and three-quarters in some instances. It is said that many growers hesitate to sell at this price, claiming that it will go higher. Although the crop is good, the probability of the prices going any higher is remote. The tobacco is curing nicely, the weather within the past two weeks having been ideal.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, November 16.

ANOTHER tobacco "damp" this week has given the growers an opportunity to get down a large part of their tobacco, and they are now busy stripping the leaves from the stalks ready for delivery. Some of the warehouses have already started up for the season, and the balance will start next week, and it looks as though they would be busy all winter. The buyers have been through the tow in the past week looking over their purchases, and it is reported that in one or two instances the buyers have reduced the price agreed upon. One grower refused to be docked and still has his crop. Some of the buyers claim that the fear of tariff revision makes the price uncertain, but this seems a poor excuse, as with the present condition of the market the crop would be used up before any measure could be put into effect. It is said that the crop is not all that was claimed for it. The growers claim, however, that this is all talk and that this crop is one of the best raised in this section for several years.

The American Cigar Company's tobacco warehouse in the centre opened yesterday morning for the season with forty hands, and the number will be increased as the season advances. Matthew Leahy will have charge of the warehouse again this season. They have enough tobacco bought this year to keep them running until late in the spring.

MASSACHUSETTS.

SPRINGFIELD, November 12.

THURSDAY'S rain was productive of another tobacco "damp" in the Connecticut Valley and many growers worked until the early hours of Friday taking down the 1912 crop. A considerable number of growers now have their crops banded and ready for delivery.

Generally speaking, shaded and primed tobacco is ready for the warehouses and a large quantity of stalk-cured tobacco is also ready. Growers of stalk-cured tobacco are understood to be desirous of delivering their crops at an early date, and in view of the somewhat precipitate manner in which the new crop was brought in the fields there is widespread interest in the reception accorded the banded tobacco.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, November 22.

INFORMATION reaches us that only a very small fraction of the crop was removed from the poles during the casing spell of a week ago. The growers were too busy with other farm work to devote much attention to the tobacco crop at this time while the pleasant fall weather continues. The ordinary farm work is so well along now, however, that at the next damp spell a much larger portion of the crop will be taken down for stripping. Where the crop is thoroughly cured, as nearly all the early harvested tobacco must be at this time, nothing can be gained by allowing it to longer hang in the sheds subject to damage from driving storms or broken by the fall winds. Experienced growers always claim that when tobacco is once cured, early stripping is advisable. When so much of the crop has been sold, too, growers are naturally anxious to make deliveries at as early a date as possible, so there is another incentive for stripping as soon as circumstances will permit. The chances, too, are much more in favor of securing the proper degree of casing in the early fall months than later in the season when the danger of too high case comes in cold weather. In no event does their tobacco improve by allowing it to hang in the sheds during the long, cold winter months, while on the other hand it is generally conceded that it greatly deteriorates in quality. What the packers are most interested in, however, is that tobacco be not taken down in too high case, as wet tobacco is the hardest proposition the warehouse men have to contend with. Above all things, this is a matter the growers should be most careful about, for it causes more trouble on delivery than all other imperfections that might come to the crop.

There is some buying yet going on in many of the growing districts, mainly in the interests of the stemmers, but there is apparently no particular force behind the movement. A few sales of the better grades have also taken place sufficient to hold up the prices. Recent sales coming to notice are: Phil Riley, 14a at 8c.; And. Asperheim, 11a at 7 1/2c.; Frank Murray, 6a at 7 3/4c.

While no large sales of old leaf are reported, there is a healthy inquiry for suitable binder leaf or even B stock. Another week of delightful fall weather is assisting in the curing of the late harvested portion of the crop, which is now mainly beyond the reach of a heavy frost. Only a very small fraction of the crop was removed for stripping at the first casing spell a week ago.

TENNESSEE.

CLARKSVILLE, November 15.

THE past week was marked by no material change in the tobacco situation. A few small loads were delivered in the stalk to the house floor, where it is being stripped preparatory to a sale as soon as a sufficient quantity has been received. There still remains a doubt as to the prices, but as it has been announced, the association has pledged about sixty per cent. of the crop in twenty-one counties, those on the outside feel sure of getting better prices than if the association had dissolved. This may or may not be correct. There is no recourse except to sell to the independent buyers, and if they pay the prices equal to last year it will only be through their liberality and not because they have it to do. The association and independents are running low in their stocks, and it seems probable when the new crop comes in the warehouses will have been cleaned up. The farmers are anxiously waiting now for a season that will enable them to get their tobacco in bulk, as the quality will be injured if it hangs long in the barn. The work of the association will be better systematized this season than ever before, and therefore the business is expected to be more prosperous and satisfactory to all members.

Vol. XXXII. PHILADELPHIA AND NEW YORK, DECEMBER 15, 1912. No. 24.

After January 1st all Inserts Packed in Tobacco,
Cigarettes and Snuff Must be of Equal Cost

Commissioner Cabell Issues Important Decision—Held That it is in Violation of Law Relating to Lotteries—Manufacturers May Use Those Now on Hand

WASHINGTON, December 12.
A RULING has just been issued by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Cabell relating to the packing of inserts in tobacco products, which is bound to create widespread interest in the trade. It was addressed to all collectors of internal revenue and holds that the practice as now in vogue is in violation of the law. It is held that when a manufacturer packs inserts in packages, some of which cost more than others put in packages of the same brand and of the same weight, it violates section 3394 of the Revised Statutes. This practice is thus held to be a lottery. Mr. Cabell stated that the government had no intention of hampering the manufacturers in the conduct of their business and that the government was willing to allow them to pack those they now have in stock before January 1, 1912. After that date the manufacturer must pack inserts, all of the same value. Furthermore it is stated that if the manufacturer wished to increase the value of the insert he must put out another brand.

The decision reads in full as follows:

To Collectors of Internal Revenue:

On and after January 1, 1913, inserts of no redemption value packed in statutory packages of tobacco, snuff, cigars and cigarettes of the same size and of the same brand shall be of equal cost to the manufacturer. Such slight changes in design and appearance as are consequent upon the use of a series of flags, birds, baseball players, etc., are not prohibited provided the cost to the manufacturer of the inserts is the same.

Where a manufacturer packs inserts in statutory packages some of which cost the manufacturer more or less than other inserts used in the same sized statutory package of the same brand, such action constitutes a clear violation of section 3394 of the Revised Statutes as amended, the character of insert distributed to or received by the purchaser in such case depending upon the event of a lottery.

Where inserts or coupons possessing redemption value are used the equality or inequality of such redemption value determines whether or not the statute referred to has been violated; in the use of inserts of no redemption value the equality or inequality of the cost to the manufacturer is the determining factor.

ROYAL E. CABELL,
Commissioner.

Three-Fourths of Connecticut Crop Sold

Windsor, Conn., December 11.
Fully three-quarters of the 1912 crop of Connecticut tobacco has been sold by growers and most of it delivered to packers and tobacco dealers at a good price. There is still an active demand and the entire crop will be sold in good season. A few growers are holding their crops for a higher price than the thirty cents a pound which has been the average paid. It is believed that the best of what is still unsold may bring somewhat more than that.

Fire Damages Two Cincinnati Cigar Stands

A fire in the Gibson House, Cincinnati, last Thursday, destroyed the cigar stands of J. Stacy Hill, entailing a loss of about $4000. The same fire also damaged stock of the Henry Straus cigar stand in the Union Trust Building.

E. R. Dempsey Becomes Member of Firm of Duff Brothers and Company

Well Known Representative of Manufacturers of "Vesper" Cigar Purchases Interest in Concern—Are Putting Out a Number of New Cigars

DUFF BROTHERS & COMPANY, 435 Market Street, manufacturers of the well-known nickel cigar, the "Vesper," have sent announcements to the trade to the effect that E. R. Dempsey has been admitted to the firm. This concern has been operating a factory at 229 Elm Street, Lancaster, Pa., where S. D. Duff, superintends operations. It is understood that Mr. Duff will have charge of the manufacturing end of the business, while Mr. Dempsey will attend to the sales end. The old firm name, Duff Brothers & Company will be retained.

Mr. Dempsey is well known to the cigar trade of this and adjacent cities. He has served his apprenticeship in selling with some of the big ones of the trade. He was with the firm of Dempsey & Cook for more than seven years. He was also connected at one time with the firm of George Storm & Company and with Roig & Langsdorf. With such valuable experience and his knowledge of conditions and big factors in cigar selling, this connection should prove of great advantage to Mr. Dempsey as well as to his associates in the firm.

Although the "Vesper" cigar is the big seller of Duff Brothers & Company they have lately introduced other brands. Three of these cigars now selling well with them are the "Usactaba," selling six in a bundle for a quarter; the "Keystone Poplar," a straight five-cent cigar, wrapped in tin foil and tissue paper, and the "Val Rosa" another nickel brand. The ten-cent brand of the firm is the "Lord Lancaster," which enjoys a wide distribution in Philadelphia.

Stephano Bros. Deny Sale of Factory

The stories appearing in a number of New York papers, stating that the business of Stephano Brothers, of Philadelphia, had been or was about to be sold to the newly organized Tobacco Products Corporation, have been emphatically denied by the members of this firm. One source of information gave it that the price was approximately three million dollars.

This deal has been rumored for some time and it would not surprise many if it was finally consummated, as the concern has one of the largest and best equipped factories in the country for the manufacture of high-grade cigarettes. It would be admirably suited for the purposes of the Tobacco Products Company.

In making the denial to the TOBACCO WORLD, a member of the Stephano firm said:

"It has been rumored a number of times within the past ten years that we had been taken over by other concerns, and we have taken the stand that we will neither affirm nor deny any of them. It appears that some persons know more about our business than ourselves."

Why Some Cigar Dealers Failed in Business

By James Fordyce

A SHORT time ago I was asked by one of the larger cigar manufacturers whether I was able to account for the number of failures in the trade within the past year. He referred to retailers particularly, since he had lost considerable money through this channel, as well as from several jobbing and sub-jobbing concerns.

It is a general impression, and possibly very true, that there are more failures through poor management than through lack of capital, a commonly-believed cause. "There are too many persons in the retail cigar business nowadays," stated this manufacturer, "who should never have entered it. They had insufficient capital, and in addition no practical experience. If this combination doesn't spell failure I don't know what does." Anyone in the cigar business will agree that either of these handicaps is enough to hamper any newcomer, notwithstanding the fact that he may be clever enough in other matters.

In an article appearing a short time ago in the TOBACCO WORLD I stated that a large majority of the failures were due to the fact that the bankrupts had not known just what condition their businesses were in. I still believe that this cause in one of the biggest, if not the main reason for these men failing to make good. They did business along sane lines—and apparently were making money. But they did not realize that all that time they were living in part on their capital. That is, they did not know just what condition they were in financially. They failed to balance their receipts and expenses. As a result when the accounting was called they did not realize, until it was all over, that they had been declared insolvent.

Interviews from a number of tobacco retailers elicited some interesting replies as to the reasons for their failures. All these men were thoroughly honest, and went into business anew, determined to operate along different lines to benefit from former mistakes.

One merchant had failed, he stated, because he changed locations twice. He had been doing a nice trade in one town, but decided that another near-by afforded better opportunities. He left the former town where he had enjoyed a measure of success, because several large manufacturing plants had been closed and had thrown many persons out of employment, who left for other cities. He had carried a varied stock of cigars and other smokers' articles in the first place and stocked up heavily on them when he located again. Other brands, which had never sold in his home town, happened to be the big sellers in the second city, and before he had a chance to unload some of his big stock he had to dispose of it to a large jobbing house at a heavy loss. When he settled with his creditors, he had nothing left but a reputation for honest dealing, which is a good asset, but not sufficient to do business on.

Another prime reason for a merchant going into the hands of a receiver was his belligerent attitude toward salesmen. This policy drove him to the wall. After he had gone through a receiver's hands and made a fresh start he decided to change his tactics. He had turned down salesmen without giving them a chance to state their propositions. In several instances these men went to competitors, who took on the cigars and made a success of them. This man had several "friends" among the road men. They were good fellows and he liked their style. After the lull in the storm of bankruptcy, he did some quiet figuring and learned that "this friendship stunt" did not make for the best profits. He was paying too much for his stock, in view of expenses and competition. Now every salesman who goes into his store is given a chance. If this man needs the goods, and can get a reasonable price, he buys, regardless of whether he likes the man or not.

Overstocking or insufficient capital was given as another cause. When the manufacturer begins to press the dealer for his money and has trouble securing it, the crash often follows. One case such as this taught the merchant to have a carefully prepared budget with limited appropriations for each line. When he had reached that figure he stopped. Overstocks have never embarrassed this man since he learned his lesson.

The ignoring of the public taste has injured many a cigar man. One man I know of ignored it almost completely. He aimed to "educate" his customers—usually to smoking his own brands. He never advertised them and when a prospective customer entered the store and inquired for a well-known cigar and couldn't secure it, he left. This class of men cannot be "educated" very easily. They usually know what they want, and see that they get it. Had he carried the brands asked for, he might possibly have brought this class of smoker around to his brands later.

A bad mistake made by some cigar dealers is to get a line on some brands from traveling men. These men unquestionably are in close touch with the markets. But are their opinions unprejudiced? Many men are turning down representatives from different houses every day simply because they have heard certain things about them. It is always best to get a sidelight on a certain firm, if possible, but see that the report comes from the right source.

These are only a few of the many mistakes made by cigar merchants. They were made by men who are again in business, people of unquestioned integrity and can be made by anyone. Other reasons for failures, arising from sharp business practices, I have not enumerated. They would fill a book. No modern, up-to-date merchant resorts to them, so why touch upon them?

What Can I Call My Cigar?

By B. B. M.

I VE tried so hard to find a name to call my new cigar. I've looked in all the papers, and in all the books there are.

At first I sought a pretty name, but now I'd be content

To find one little unclaimed word, no matter what it meant.

But all the names of birds and beasts, and all the names of things,
And all the names of generals and actresses, and kings,
Yes, all the words that Webster knew, and some he didn't know,
Were claimed for other smokes than mine, so very long ago.

So I shall travel far away to some uncharted shore,
Where man, in all his journeyings, has never been before,
And in the unmapped wilderness, of that far distant land,
I'll find some strange new animal, for which to name my brand.

Tommy's First Smoke Throws Him

By St. John Bingham

TOMMY sidled in through the front door with an elaborate air of there being nothing unusual in his entry before 5.30 o'clock. Usually it took two maids, his mother and threats from his father to drag Tommy within the portals of his happy home in time to get ready for dinner.

"Nothin's the matter," he told Hetty, the second girl, defiantly. "I just don't feel well. I want to go lie down on mother's bed. Where's mother?"

Oddly enough he seemed relieved, instead of disappointed, when Hetty said that his mother was down town.

Hetty was anxious. Tommy usually had hysterics at the mention of a nap—and there he was suggesting, nay, demanding one!

"Do you ache anywhere?" Hetty asked. "I wish your mother was here. Is your head hot?"

"Naw!" Tommy said, edging away from her hand. "I just wanta lie down."

He clumped upstairs into his mother's room, and Hetty heard the springs groan as he threw himself upon the bed.

"I wisht his mother was here," Hetty told the cook. "I know he's sickening or something. And him lying right on that new spread she made, and him forbidden to get on the beds daytimes, anyhow! I wisht I knew what was the matter with him."

Every ten seconds or so Hetty paused at the bedroom door to gaze within. Tommy lay blinking at the ceiling. Every once in a while he would gulp and swallow hard. His face was pale.

"Tell me where the pain is, darlin'," Hetty begged. Only the wildest extreme would have led Hetty to address Tommy with pet names. Usually she referred to him as "that young limb!"

"You go 'way," was Tommy's fierce response to her distracted query.

Hetty met Tommy's mother before the latter was fairly up the steps. "My, I'm glad you've come!" Hetty gasped. "Tommy's on your bed—an' he's sick—an' he won't tell what's the matter with him!"

Tommy's mother apparently cleared the stairs with one bound, arriving at her son's side gasping and pale. Pale as she was, he excelled her in that respect. He edged away as she grasped his pulse and laid her hand on his forehead.

"Your pulse is fast and your head is cold—I don't understand; where do you ache? You aren't going to have anything awful like diptheria, are you? I must telephone the doctor."

"No-o-o!" Tommy roared violently and rolled over. Then he groaned and rolled back.

"You're white as a sheet," his distressed mother cried, wringing her hands. "My goodness, Tommy, I never saw you look so awful before! Where's your brother? Where's Jimmy?"

Jimmy had arrived by way of the back door some moments previously and now appeared on the scene with both grimy hands full of cookies. He gazed upon his prostrate brother with a singular absence of alarm and compassion, and sniffed at the queries as to where and with whom Tommy had been that day.

"Naw, he ain't goin' to be sick," Jimmy announced positively, taking another bite of cookie. "He's been smokin'—that's what!"

Grasping the foot of the bed, Tommy's mother stared first at her eldest son's calm cookie-filled countenance and then at the pale face on the pillow, now distorted with a mixture of wrath and physical agony.

"Tattle-tale!" Tommy groaned at his brother.

Is that so, then! Tommy's mother figuratively rolled up her sleeves. Had not this very question of boys smoking been discussed at the last club meeting? It had, and she knew precisely what to do. She turned toward the sufferer, who glared at her affrightedly. Just then it seemed to Tommy that he had enough to bear without the addition of chastisement. He blinked at the cooling tones that fell upon his ear.

"So, it's smoking that did it!" his mother said, not at all in anger, but with only polite interest. "I wish you had told me what you were going to do, Tommy. I don't like to have you smoking old cigars in the street and getting hold of germs and things, when there's a whole jarful of father's good cigars here at home. Get right up this minute and I'll help you to have a clean, sanitary smoke."

Feeble and terror stricken, Tommy sat up. He stared with piteous disfavor upon the rich, brown, fat cigar which his mother gave him. She struck a match. "Pull on it," she ordered.

Still terror stricken and bewildered, Tommy pulled. "Keep it up," said his parent, whenever he showed signs of weakening.

She caught him when he toppled over, the cigar falling from his lips. Then she and Hetty administered first aid to the injured.

"Anyhow," Tommy said triumphantly to Jimmy some hours later when, still pale, he rejoined the family circle. "you're another. You said I wasn't goin' to be sick, and Gee! I was awful sick!"

Cigar: Hullo, old man, you're looking very fine. How do you feel?

Pipe: First rate, my boy, getting stronger every day.

RETAIL RINKLES

Catchy Schemes Used Successfully By Thinking Men To Improve, Enlarge and Popularize Their Businesses . . .

In the window of the Charles L. Miller Cigar Company, Chicago, has been displayed a novel exhibition which has attracted great crowds of visitors and resulted in heavy increase in business. An electric light lamp and socket were attached to the top of an ordinary pane of window glass which was inserted in a slit in the top of a cigar box set upon the floor of the window. Glass, of course, is a non-conductor of electricity. Hence arose great public curiosity as to the reason why the light continued to burn.

In the window was displayed a handsome sign on which was asked the question, "What makes the light burn?" Then followed the injunction: "Come in and ask Miller!"

Crowds of curious folks obeyed the injunction, went into the store and asked Miller or one of his employes concerning the phenomenon. It turned out that two small and exceedingly fine copper wires were placed around the edge of the glass and held in position by some chemical preparation which made them invisible. These wires carried the electric current to the light on top and caused it to shine as brightly as if it were placed in some usual style of socket.

The device proved immensely successful.

A Louisville man recently purchased a site upon which he will erect a building which will undoubtedly attract quite a bit of attention. It is his plan to have a cigar store to be known as the "Log Cabin." The cabin is to be strictly what its name implies. It will be made of roughly hewn logs, but the interior is to be fitted up in the most approved manner. The interior is to be in keeping with the architecture of the cabin. Many novel little innovations are said to be in store for the devotees of the weed in that city. Retailers nowadays cannot make their stands too individual in appearance. Individuality is the keynote in many a successful cigar store.

John L. Corey, a Chicago tobacco dealer, specializes in high class cigars. Incidentally on the back of his card he issues a number of "Hints to Smokers." He advises them to buy none but new cigars. He would have the smokers leave the ashes on their cigars until they fall off. If a cigar light goes out, he says, the smoker should blow through the cigar immediately, driving out the dead smoke. Lighting a cigar thoroughly, he says, is absolutely necessary. He recommends that a good cigar should not be smoked out of doors; he suggests that before breakfast smoking by a dyspeptic is very injurious to health; "carry matches and peddle them out," he says, "but if a man wants a light from your cigar tell him that you would rather change cigars since yours would be much harmed if not ruined, by the crushing and mauling through which it would go." Finally, he insists, that there is no economy in smoking cheap cigars; "If you can't afford good cigars," he says, "smoke less."

A novel advertising scheme which was decidedly out of the ordinary was successfully carried through by a Western firm which had decided to install some new electric signs. Instead of adopting a permanent design for the display, it was determined to use movable letters, and to change these so that every time a special offering was put before their customers it would be possible to announce it in flaming letters, running the length of the store.

To start off in the most effective manner some one originated the idea of having the letters in the sign "pied," that is, the letters were all jumbled together. It was figured that the public would be interested at all events. On the first night the passers-by were astonished to see a sign reading something like the following:

SVRTGHUV $(#-$ TRYHTNMTEX MTRKVOFD

After the crowds had taken a good look at the sign they realized that the concern was not trying to talk in Sanskrit, but was trying to attract their attention. As a result people looked for the "pied" sign the next time they came in that neighborhood, when they saw in flaming letters a reason why they should purchase at that house.

The long winter evenings are now with us and give the dealer, who takes the time, plenty of opportunities for thinking up new ideas in developing his business. Is this or that line giving you enough profit?

Look Over Your Lines and Push the Best Ones

Which brand, taking price and quality in consideration, warrants you in pushing it to your utmost? If the brand has any distinctive feature, which is noticeable as compared with its neighbors in the case, try some catchy scheme to get it before your present customers as well as the prospective ones passing the door every day. The merchant who takes the stand that every man who passes his door should eventually come inside to purchase his cigars, tobaccos and cigarettes, and who uses every means within his power to reach that end, is the man who will make his business show a healthy increase from year to year.

Retailers Should "Swap" Ideas

Retailers should exchange ideas for building up their businesses. This co-operative method was frowned upon at one time. Merchants got the idea that in exchanging ideas with their fellow dealers they were giving away some of the secrets of their businesses. The numerous associations now being formed throughout the country, where retailers get together to fight the common evils and become better acquainted, are proving their necessity. Any merchant who has used any clever scheme for bettering his store and sales is invited to communicate with the Editors of THE TOBACCO WORLD. Your ideas may possibly be of use to others, just as their plans may be adapted for your store. These "Retail Rinkles" will appear from time to time in the WORLD and should be helpful to all retailers.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

Salesmanship, Not Mere Distributing

SALESMENSHIP of the Hundred Point variety does not confine itself to selling people just what they came to buy.

Some time ago I dropped in a cigar stand to buy an after luncheon cigar. I had nothing of importance to do, so watched the methods of one of the salesmen. He was one of the most listless articles I ever saw back of a counter. One man, a regular customer of that store, came in. "One of your ten centers," he said. The clerk reached for the box, and after some fumbling put it before the smoker, who took one, lit it up, and left. This employee never during the transaction looked directly at the man he was serving, but out of the window much of the time. Such a fellow in time will queer a business.

That afternoon while seeing a friend of mine in a neighboring store, I watched his methods of operation. He was the assistant in a store which did a heavy trade in imported goods. One man, evidently a lawyer with offices nearby, asked for a brand which he smoked regularly. He bought three boxes and the trouble my friend took to suit him during that time proved pretty well that the big business that firm did was not due to the goods alone. The same cigars could have been purchased in any one of a dozen better stores around town. He did not buy the same brand, but another which the salesman recommended to him as a milder cigar made by the same factory.

A comparison such as this should furnish food for thought for many clerks. They get in a rut and do not realize it until they are out on the sidewalks looking for another position.

The Word "Service" Defined

THE word "service" is a small word, but upon the true understanding of its meaning and influence hangs the success of every business. According to one of the latest standard dictionaries, the word means, "labor or effort for the benefit of another."

Every business man must work for the benefit of those with whom he deals. The competition of today demands it. He must take as much interest in his customer after the sale as before. The manufacturer, for example, must see that his product gives the service he has represented it would. And upon this depends his ultimate success.

The manufacturer must suggest new uses for the product, as well as ways of cutting upkeep expense, and reducing labor cost. In fact, he must put just as much effort into selling the service he gives as he does in selling his product. In return for his services he gets "good will."

The real end and aim of giving good service is to get the good will of his customers. "Good will" is the confidence his customers have in him, first, and his product, second. For, unless a man has confidence in the ability and honesty of the manufacturer, he cannot have faith in the product of that manufacturer.

To sum up, real service is giving the man who buys your product a first-class article, all the suggestions you can about its operation, and cheerfully repairing or correcting any defects that may appear, without complaining because you do it.—Berlin Quality.

A Merchant as Seen by Walt Mason

The merchant wrote a little ad
And put it in the Shrick,
And there it stood day after day,
And each succeeding week.
It told about his heating stoves,
He wrote it when the snow was piled
Upon the frozen earth
As high as it would go.
And in the sizzling August days,
When in the towns and groves
The people fried and sweated blood
They read about his stoves.
Years wore on,
The babes were born,
And grown up folks were pinched,
Some men were to the Senate sent
And other men were lynched.
And some were wed,
And some divorced,
And some were boiled in oil,
And some were loafing in the shade,
While others tilled the soil.
And some were on the briny seas,
A-hunting treasure troves,
And still that doggone foolish ad
Referred to heating stoves.
The type wore out,
The printer went to get another ad:
"I tried that graft," the merchant said,
"And found it very bad."
"No, advertising doesn't pay,
"Go chase yourself, my cove,
"I tried your sheet for seven years
"And never sold a stove."

THE black cigars of Joe Cannon, until recently "Czar" of the House of Representatives, have been the subject of much comment and many stories.

The latest one goes on to say that at one time Mr. Cannon was taking dinner at the home of one of the best known hostesses in Washington. The dinner was all that the palate of man could desire and after the guests arose the hostess passed around a box of cigars. Uncle Joe had a contempt for the majority of cigars his friends and acquaintances smoked and certainly had no intention in this instance of smoking a brand selected by a woman. He accordingly passed the box to his neighbor, and drew out his own cigar case, intending to smoke his favorite brand. His hostess, noticing the action, made a pleasant, but firm protest, against Mr. Cannon turning down the smokes, and after a sheepish smile the "Czar" took one from the discarded box and proceeded to light up. He was so pleased with the cigar that he asked his hostess when he left for home where she had secured such high-class goods.

"I can't tell you that, Mr. Cannon," she replied, "but I am sure you know now where you can get good cigars, if you wish some in the future."

There were a bevy of girls on the hotel veranda.

"Jim tells me he stopped smoking to please me," spoke up one miss.

"He tells me he stopped on my account," asserted another.

"Why he told me only this morning," said a third, "that he did it for me."

Silence for a few minutes.

"Never mind, girls," spoke up an elderly man in one corner, "if I could please a regiment of girls, I'd stop, too."

As a result of the campaign which has been carried on for some time by women agitators in Los Angeles against smoking in street cars, the smokers have turned their guns against the deadly saber-like hat pin which the majority of the female reformers compel them to dodge. They contend, and rightly, that it is dangerous, and argue that women should be compelled to wear corks on the points of the pins to make them harmless.

It's amusing how some women, being in the reform mood, look around to see where they can start a rumpus. They hear so much about the great "harm" of tobacco, and, being in a belligerent, world-reforming mood, open up on the smoker and his smokes. But when it comes to reforming them they loudly assert their right to dress as they please, even when the mere man is compelled to carefully watch the deadly contrivance they use in their hats, to keep from losing an eye or being badly scratched.

One of the first things that Geraldine Farrar, the grand opera singer, had to learn when she began to study her role in an opera recently sung in New York, was the art of smoking. The credit for teaching the star is given to her father, Sid Farrar. When seen recently in Carnegie Hall, in New York, Mr. Farrar said he might as well own up.

"Gerry never smoked in her life," declared the former diamond star, "and I only smoke cigars. But she's doing nicely now. She took to it naturally, like sucking lemonade through a straw. Only she had to think of her vocal chords. You see, it's this thing of a new opera they call the 'Secret of Suzanne,' and she has to learn to smoke and sing at the same time."

Physician—I don't believe you are carrying out my directions at all. I limited you to one ten-cent cigar a day.

Patient—That's all right, Doc; I smoke ten one-cent stogies. It's the same thing.

According to recent reports from Zion City, Ill., trouble is again brewing between Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer and president, and the unconverted employees of the Cook electrical works.

An ordinance of Zion City prohibits smoking in the confines of the town. When the employees of the Cook electrical works came to that place they ignored this ruling, which to a certain extent had been obeyed. Many signs erected by the Zionites opposite the electrical works were burned down at the time by the tobacco users in the war which followed.

The latest trouble arose when the Zionites gathered outside the factory gates as the workmen were leaving at night, and began singing their hymns and exhorting against the use of tobacco. From the top of the factory an immense searchlight threw its rays down upon singers. Guided by this light the workmen opened fire upon the zealous anti-tobaccoists, and hurled missiles into the crowd. Almost simultaneously the light was put out and the injured Zionites and the workmen had a virtual Kilkeny cat scrap. When peace was restored, and the belligerents pulled apart, four Zionites limped away, suffering from many bruises. Two of the injured persons were women.

There have been many amusing episodes of people who tried to convert tobacco users, but these disturbances at Zion City afford more real fun, possibly, than any other we have heard of for some time. The Zionites declare that they have just started. If this is only the beginning, we venture that the governor of Illinois will be compelled to call upon the militia ere long.

With the first of the year will be inaugurated the new Parcels Post System in this country. Just how this scheme will work out in the tobacco trade it is impossible to predict with any degree of certainty. It may be said, however, that it is sure to prove a big factor in the distribution of tobacco products, and as such, should be studied carefully by every one in the trade.

At first glance, it would seem that the new law would benefit most those houses doing a mail order business direct to the consumer, and thereby making further inroads on the local retailer's trade.

What benefit the retailer will receive will depend largely upon what methods he adopts to protect himself, as well as to take advantage of the new conditions of distribution. In the first place, he will be able to receive much of his goods by mail instead of express and thereby be insured of a prompter service at less cost. If he does more than a local business he will be able to supply his local customers through the mails, and thereby cut down his distribution expense.

It would be well for retailers to consider plans for the development of their mail-order business, through local advertising and other schemes, so that they may be able in a measure to counteract the aggressive movement which cigar manufacturers and mail-order houses, catering exclusively to the consumer, will be sure to put into force with the dawn of the new year.

The present scheme of Parcels Post is very limited compared with the privileges now in effect abroad, but it can be accepted as a fact that should the experimental system prove effective, that within a very few years the United States will have an extensive Parcels Post service.

Establishment of a medical inspection department by the United Cigar Stores Company, is another evidence of the progressiveness that goes far towards explaining the progress that this chain-store system has been making throughout the country.

Under the plan just recently put in force, the "United" requires that all applicants for employment, undergo a rigid medical examination and prove themselves physically fit and free from disease before their applications will be considered.

To enforce this rule, they have created a medical department under the direction of a well-known specialist. It is their purpose to enforce medical examination, not only to protect the public, but also to benefit the employees themselves, who are to receive free, medicine and hospital attention, should they become ill while in the service of the company.

Another feature of the plan is to put all employees passing the medical examination under the Civil Service rule. This will insure men positions for life as long as they make good, and eventually, will pass all deserving employees to the pension list. An organization managed under such conditions, is bound to prove both loyal and efficient.

Statistics, compiled by the Census Bureau under the newly enacted Cantrill law, and published in our last issue, have caused considerable discussion among the trade as to the accuracy of the government reports. The amazing total of 1,047,404,560 pounds of leaf tobacco supposed to be in hand October 1, 1912, among manufacturers and packers seems abnormally large, in view of the fact, that there has been a very active demand lately for Georgia, Florida, Wisconsin, Connecticut and other domestic types.

The census reveals 22.6% of the tobacco to be a bright yellow type, and next to it is the Pennsylvania type which comprises 11.3% of the total. The Ohio tobacco represents 8.6% and Connecticut, 4.2%, while the imported types comprise only 3.9%.

The very obvious discrepancy of the reports on some of the domestic types such as Connecticut and Wisconsin, as shown in the census reports, as against the conditions actually existing in the markets, has given rise to a doubt as to the authenticity of the government's figures. This discrepancy may be partly explained from the fact of the general misunderstanding among the trade, as to the exact scope and operation of the new law. It is hoped that the next figures, which will be announced in April, will be gathered with more care, establish greater confidence, and remove them beyond the pale of doubt.

That Philadelphia retailer who replenished his stock of cigars each week by breaking into the stores of his competitors, and taking home such brands on which he was short, had the right idea for establishing a price-cutting business. No doubt, he was selling nickel cigars eight for a quarter and making money without endangering his credit.

Nicholas Erlich Outlines Progress of Independent Advertising At Regular Meeting Plans Are Discussed For Extensive Publicity Campaign—Salesmen's Ass'n to Attend in January

THE regular meeting of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association was held Thursday evening, December 12, at Terrace Garden Hall. Owing to the rush of the holiday season there was a small attendance. No new business was placed before the association.

Nicholas Erlich outlined and detailed to the members present the progress made by the independent advertisers, whose intention it is to inaugurate a campaign having for its object the education of the public and the solidarity of the independent cigar and tobacco dealers of Greater New York. The committee, comprised of N. Erlich, S. Monday and H. H. Hunter, reported they were not in a position as yet to present to the association a letter they had drafted, but would do so on the occasion of the next meeting, which takes place the second week in January. The regular meeting of December 26 was postponed for the reason that it is the day following Christmas.

Notice was given that the Tobacco Salesmen's Association of America would attend the regular meeting of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association in January for the purpose of selecting a committee that would join forces with the committee already designated from the general association, whose duty it is to call on President Wilson, immediately previous to his taking office, asking his aid and assistance in the passings of the Cummins Bill.

Dorb & Neustadt File Bankruptcy Petition

A petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $10,662 and no assets, has been filed by Henry Dorb and Leopold Neustadt, who composed the firm of Dorb & Neustadt, formerly wholesale dealers in tobacco at No. 272 East Houston Street, this city. This concern began business in 1896, and was succeeded by a corporation in November, 1910. The liabilities of the concern are to three creditors, for deficiency upon foreclosure of mortgages on 217 and 219 Avenue C, and 331 East Twenty-fifth Street.

Creditors of Max Siegel File Petition

Creditors of Max Siegel, wholesale dealer in leaf tobacco at 261 Pearl Street, this city, have filed a petition in bankruptcy. Among them are Mayer & Company, with claims of $200; John Schlinger, $200, and B. Castellano & Company, $200. Judge Holt appointed Daniel Mayer receiver. The liabilities are said to be $3500, with assets of $1000. Mr. Siegel began this business on November 10. He had previously been doing business at other locations.

Schulte Stores Again Cut Imported Perfectos Dealers are Dumbfounded That Such a Move Should Have Been Made at This Time

THE Schulte stores have again cut the prices of imported perfectos to 20 cents. Dealers about town are in a quandary as to the object of this latest move. This is the time of the year when all dealers and merchants are securing a goodly amount of business and this scheme of cutting prices in this manner cannot be accounted for. This was tried some time ago, and discontinued owing to the fact that smokers became suspicious of the 20-cent cigar, arguing that since it was sold at a lower price it necessarily must be of an inferior quality. Sales, instead of increasing with the price cutting, dropped materially, and it was not long before the cigars were again selling at 25 cents.

Many merchants resort to this method of advertising. That is, they cut prices on several lines to get into the limelight, and make their profits on other cigars by reason of the popularity the store many enjoy by being known as a cut price stand.

Receiver Appointed For Alonzo P. Pandos & Company

EDWARD R. FINCH has been appointed receiver for Alonzo P. Pandos & Company, cigar manufacturers at Nos. 173 and 175 East Eighty-seventh Street, with a bond of $4000. Hill Schneider, president of the concern, consented to the receivership. The petition in bankruptcy was filed about ten days ago by Mandelbaum Brothers, attorneys for the creditors concerned. The indebtedness is about $12,000, with assets approximating $8000.

It is said by those in close touch with the affairs of the concern, that despite the fact that this petition has been filed, the concern has a considerable amount of good assets in the form of leaf tobacco, cigars and also personal property, and that when the exact situation has been found they will be able to continue business.

At the recent banquet and ball of the club, Des Jeunes, held at Louis Martins, Broadway and Forty-second Street, on Wednesday evening last, a most excellent menu was served, and was rightly topped off with "Castaneda" cigars, Perfectos, Excelente and Obsequios.

Noticeably featured at the Bazaar now being held at Broadway and Sixty-eighth Street, by the Professional Women's League, are "Charles the Great" and "Castaneda" cigars. It is needless to say that these cigars will meet with the approval and kind appreciation of all purchasers.

Revenue Figures Show Decreased Production

Falling Off in Every Line Except Cigarettes at $3.60—Combined Output for Eleven Months Also Behind Same Period in 1911

THE production of cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos for the New York District, as derived from the revenue receipts during the month of November, show a falling off in every line except cigarettes at $3.60. The output is as follows:

New York Retailers to Call on President-Elect

Immediately upon the return of President-elect Wilson from Bermuda, a committee of five from the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association of New York, will wait upon him, and inquire as to what are his intentions regarding the alleged tobacco monopoly which they claim exists in New York. This committee was appointed at a recent meeting of the association.

Abraham Vanderberg Gets Big Verdict

The jury in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, on Monday, the 9th, brought in a verdict of $10,000 damages in the suit of Abraham Vanderberg, cigarmaker, 242 Grand Street. He sued for damages sustained when he fell on North Seventh Street, Brooklyn, July, 1907, and crushed his hand. It seems that a flagstone was missing in the pavement, and Mr. Vanderberg stumbled in the rut, sustaining injuries which eventually, rendered three fingers of his hand useless, and prevented him from working at his trade. The jury in the case gave him every dollar for which he asked.

Tobacco Salesmen's Association Holds Meeting

Read New Amendments to By-Laws of the Body—Oscar Veit Makes Inaugural Address

AT the Tobacco Salesmen's Association meeting, on December 6, which was held as usual at the Marie Antoinette Hotel, Oscar Veit took the chair, and delivered his inaugural address. After matters of general interest to the members of the trade had been discussed, amendments to the by-laws of the association which were adopted a short time ago, were read. They were as follows:

"1. The officers and the Junior Past President shall form an executive board, of which five members shall constitute a quorum.

"2. Any member of this association can call a meeting of the aforesaid executive board upon demand to the president, who must call same within ten days.

"3. Members constituting this board, and anyone appearing before it will affirm that they will not divulge the proceedings.

"4. This board is empowered to expend the sum not exceeding $25 at its discretion. No part of this sum, however, to be used for the general expenses of the board."

Park & Tilford Issue Holiday Folder

It is Well Illustrated and is Published for Purpose of Catering to Discriminating Smokers

ABEAUTIFUL holiday booklet has been placed in the hands of the trade and their customers by Park & Tilford. It deals principally with the imported pure Havana cigars, and Key West and Tampa goods. Attractive illustrations are plentifully scattered throughout the booklet, showing the special holiday packings.

Among the cigars advertised are those put out by the Hoyo de Monterrey establishment, and those of the Por Larranaga. The latter cigar is put up in a cabinet, having a door with a lock and key, and is constructed of Cuban cedar. They are known as the "Columna Grand."

Park & Tilford have not overlooked their own brands in issuing this booklet. Their "Rey Eduardo" and "Mi Favorita" brands occupy a prominent place. They are shown fifty to the box.

Raffles Inaugurated Among Retail Dealers

As Saturday, December 7, was double certificate day in all the United Cigar Stores throughout the country, many of the small retailers in New York City, realizing the disadvantages which they would have to contend with on the day's business, contrived temporary schemes and new methods of doing business.

Noticeably amongst several small dealers were raffles which are becoming very numerous during the holiday season. They were held on such commodities as candies, cakes, puddings, etc. One dealer was asked his reason for inaugurating this new idea. His reply was: "Well, today is double certificate day, and many customers who want cigars will go to the United Cigar Stores. I can well afford to raffle candy, cakes and puddings, if it is going to be the means of drawing patrons to my store.

Senor Rufino Rodriguez, a native of Cienfuegos, Cuba, has purchased the cigar manufacturing plant of Vicenze Salia on Pearl Street, who has been at that location for several years.

1912 Cigar Production to Greatly Exceed that of 1911 Output for First Eleven Months, 700,007,380, Almost Ten Million More Than in Same Period Last Year—Decrease in Cigarette Production

THE production of cigars, during November in the First Pennsylvania District as compiled from the revenue receipts shows an encouraging increase over the same month last year. Both kinds of cigarettes show decreases, while there was an increase in manufactured tobacco.

The figures for November, as compared with November, 1911, are as follows:

| | 1912. | 1911. | Increase. |
|----------------------|------------|------------|-----------|
| Cigars | 69,822,010 | 67,511,440 | 2,310,570 |
| Little Cigars | 20,643,000 | 17,726,400 | 2,916,600 |
| Cigarettes at $3.60 | 14,500 | 17,800 | *3,300 |
| Cigarettes at $1.25 | 8,219,640 | 8,666,000 | *446,360 |
| Mfg. Tobacco, lbs. | 87,409 | 85,884 | 1,525 |

* Decrease.

The figures for October were:

|----------------------|------------|
| Cigars | 79,014,020 |
| Little Cigars | 28,315,000 |
| Cigarettes | 8,752,600 |
| Cigarettes at $3.60 | 25,900 |
| Mfg. Tobacco, lbs. | 105,707 |

The production of cigars so far this year is far in advance of the same period last year. For the first eleven months of 1912, 700,007,380 large cigars were manufactured in this district, compared with 690,348,230 for the same time in 1911. The entire output for the year of 1911 of large cigars was 742,186,520, so it can be readily seen that 1912 bids fair to exceed 1911 by at least ten to twelve million.

"Cinco" Factories Working Overtime

That the "Cinco" cigar is more than holding its own as a big nickel cigar is evidenced by the manner in which the factories of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers have been compelled to work within the past month or more. This is particularly true of the up-state factories, in a number of which the employees have been working until eight o'clock at night.

Otto Eisenlohr, of the firm, recently moved into his new home at 3812 Walnut Street.

Louis Eisenlohr is again back at his desk after a short trip to Havana. While there he purchased quite a bit of desirable leaf tobacco.

Hornstein & Breman New Cigar Manufacturing Firm Building at 6 N. Thirteenth St., Leased, Where 35 Cigarmakers are Already at Work—To Open Three Retail Stores

PHILADELPHIA has another cigar manufacturing firm. This concern opened for business last Saturday, the 14th, at 6 North Thirteenth Street, and will be known as Hornstein & Breman. They propose to manufacture and sell their own brands exclusively. Among them will be the "General Gomez," "B. & B" and "The Link."

The firm is composed of Samuel Hornstein, a newcomer in cigar ranks and B. N. Breman, well known among cigarmakers in this city as having been foreman for the Neumann & Mayer factory for a number of years. When interviewed by a TOBACCO WORLD representative, Mr. Breman stated that in addition to the manufacturing business, they propose to operate a chain of retail stores in this city. Last week they took over the stand at 26 North Eleventh Street, and on Saturday signed a lease for 15 North Tenth Street, which will be the third stand. This will be opened after the necessary alterations have been made. In addition to catering to Quaker City smokers, their brands will be pushed hard outside of the city.

The building at 6 North Thirteenth Street is admirably adapted for manufacturing purposes. It is five stories in height. The upper floors will be used for the work-rooms. Thirty-five cigarmakers are already at work there. It is expected that twenty more will be added within a week. The show window is now being used for a display of cigar-making under the most sanitary conditions. Three benches have been installed.

Estate of George H. Valentine Left to Son

The entire estate of the late George H. Valentine, with the exception of $1000, according to the will filed for probate recently, goes to his son, H. Leroy Valentine. The $1000 mentioned in the will is to be invested, and the proceeds used in keeping the deceased's monument in repair. H. Leroy Valentine, the beneficiary under the will, is named as executor. He is directed not to file an inventory.

Invitations were recently issued for the marriage of Robert Biddle Frismuth, member of Frismuth Bros. & Co., tobacco manufacturers, to Miss Theodora Eleanor Harding Townsend. The wedding took place on Wednesday, December 11th, at St. Thomas' Church, Glassboro, New Jersey.

Quaker City Items

Charles Donovan, of the Charles Donovan Company, wholesale cigar dealers of Chicago, Ill., visited the factory of Boltz, Clymer & Company during the past week.

A. J. Atherholt is displaying the "El Palencia" cigar of Boltz, Clymer & Company in a number of attractive shapes and packings. He is also featuring the "Condax" cigarettes.

Among those already in Philadelphia, who arrived within the past week, were noted Emory S. Reynolds, New York state representative; J. H. Corrigan, from New England, and L. H. Moore, of Pennsylvania.

Warner Searles, of the Juan Portuondo factory, is expected at the local offices within a few days. He is the Western representative and travels as far as the Coast.

The holiday season finds the old established house of Allen R. Cressman's Sons, manufacturing the "Counsellor" as fast as their facilities will permit. They report a substantial increase over the same period last year.

Although a number of dealers around town report stocking up lightly this year on cigars in elaborate packings, this cannot be said to be the case with the house of Yahn & McDonnell. They are showing some unusually attractive boxes of imported brands in the choicest arrangement the heart of the fastidious smoker could desire.

Announcement has been made of a Burlesque Jubilee that will be seen here the week of December 16, at the Gayety Theatre. This signal honor was tendered Al. Reeves, who will head a big organization, which will travel by special train. Reeves, who was at one time a cigar salesman, is still well known in the tobacco trade.

T. & O. Representatives Arriving in City

The many traveling representatives of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company are beginning to arrive at local headquarters. From this time until the closing of the year they come to make their reports and to gather for the dinner given them, at which time plans are discussed for future business and a general good time enjoyed by all.

Cigar Stand in Ritz-Carlton Hotel Opens

The cigar stand in the new Ritz-Carlton Hotel, Broad and Walnut Streets, was opened last Saturday under most auspicious circumstances. It is understood that it will be under the management of the Acker, Merrill & Condit Company, of New York City, which has the cigar stand privileges in a number of hotel stands throughout the country. The permanent manager has not yet been appointed. The brands carried show conclusively that they propose to cater to a good class of trade. The temporary manager stated, however, that all popular Philadelphia brands will be carried in stock when the final arrangements have been made. The stand is located in the café, which is fitted up in a most luxurious manner. The wood used in the decorations is a finely-grained Circassian walnut. The stand as now placed is only temporary. A larger and more commodious one will be placed later. A fine humidifier has been built in the basement.

Quaker City Trade Outlook

Christmas Spirit Pervades Shops—Dealers Begin to Trim Windows—
Imported Cigars Featured Widely

DESPITE the usual preparations for the holiday trade, dealers have been very slow this year in trimming their windows. Although many of them state that their orders were placed in good time, the shipments have in many cases been considerably delayed. But with few exceptions they are now at hand and from all indications and the size of the orders, cigar men expect to do a land-office pre-Christmas trade.

The Christmas spirit is certainly in the air. The shoppers fill the down town streets and a feeling of good cheer prevails. The tobacco men's windows are gradually beginning to take on a holiday attire. While the packings in imported and the higher priced cigars made in this country, it had been said, would be fewer in number this year, many of the larger importers have stocked up heavily on the more elaborate cases. Yahn & McDonnells have an especially wide assortment. The Dalton stores also report importing heavily, as have the T. H. Hart Company and Godfrey S. Mahn.

The cigar output of the First District for November shows an encouraging increase over the same month last year. The total production for November was 69,822,010 cigars as compared with 67,511,440 the corresponding month in 1911, an increase of 2,310,570.

While the leaf men state there has been a slight activity within the past fortnight, they do not look for much new business until after the end of the year.

Doddy Cigar Company, New Cigar Jobbing Firm

The Doddy Cigar Company is the title of a new cigar manufacturer's jobbing firm which opened up for business at 1001-1005 Ludlow Street within the past week. Samuel Doddy, who will have charge of the business, was formerly with A. S. Valentine & Son for more than eight years, and is well known in cigar circles here. Among the cigars already carried are the "Doddy," a house brand, the "Asyouwan," "Docico" and "Halpern's After Dinner," the three latter being manufactured by the Louis Halpern Cigar Company, 46 North Seventh Street.

Late Trade Paragraphs

A cigar factory is being built at Waterbury, Conn., by Armand Pons, an extensive raiser of tobacco, who, until a few years ago, resided at Harwinton.

A cigar stand in addition to other lines was opened a short time ago at Roseburg, Ore., by Ben Fenne and a partner by name of Dutley.

The Robertson Cigar Company, E. L. Robertson, manager, are now installed in their new store at 1613 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb. In addition to tobaccos and smokers' articles, a full line of the leading brands of cigars will be featured.

The American Tobacco Company has secured a plot of ground at 553-57 West Twenty-second Street, New York, whereon they expect to have erected a warehouse building adjoining their present quarters. The new building combined with the one now standing will give the American Tobacco Company a frontage of 400 feet.

Prominent Men Behind B-A. Chain Stores

FORMATION of the British-American Cigar Stores Company, in New York, has reached a definite stage through the election of permanent officers. As announced in our previous issue, W. W. St. John, a well-known New York retailer, is president of the company, and the vice-presidents are, Arthur W. Rankin, president of the National Surety Company, and John W. Brownrigg, president of the Pittsburgh Spring Steel Company. W. H. Field is secretary and Charles Francis Murphy, a nephew of Charles Murphy, the leader of Tammany Hall, is treasurer.

Besides these men interested in the company, there are other men very strong financially, including W. H. Neuman, former president of the New York Central Railway. It is also known that several cigar manufacturers are interested in the new chain of stores.

Besides the stores announced in our last issue, the British American Company have opened a new store at Forty-seventh Street and Madison Avenue and have taken over two stands in the Grand Central Station. They have also obtained options on other prominent stands in New York City, definite announcement about which will be made later.

The head of the new chain of stores denies emphatically that the company is being backed by the British American interests or by the United Cigar Stores Company.

The "Bernadotte" Strongly Indorsed in New York

It has been stated that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country." This, applied to prophets, may be very true, but it does not cover the case of the "Bernadotte" cigar, which being a New York product, won its first recognition at the very doors of the factory which created it.

Since introducing this brand, A. Kern & Company, Incorporated, have found that New York smokers have taken to it with amazing rapidity, and today the "Bernadotte" may be found in every leading cafe in the metropolis.

The "Bernadotte" is made of the best grade of clear Havana and in thirty-one sizes, from the modest perfecto up to the very attractive after-dinner sizes. Back of the success of this cigar, is both ability and progressiveness. Henry S. Susskind, president and treasurer of the company, has a host of influential friends among the trade, and T. Table Porter, recently elected vice-president and sales manager, knows the tobacco sales business from A to Z, having been associated with such leading houses as the Surburg Company, Philip Morris & Company and the American Tobacco Company.

A. Kern, who is secretary and general manager of the factory, has grown up in the cigar business, and is intimately familiar with every detail of the manufacturing of high-class cigars. With such an organization, the success of the "Bernadotte" is not to be wondered at.

Plans are now being made to place this cigar in other markets, and any jobbers and distributors, looking for a high-class brand of clear Havana, that has received the endorsement of critical Metropolitan smokers, should not fail to communicate with the factory at 109 West Forty-second Street.

Charles Frankenthal Dies in Germany

Charles Frankenthal, formerly connected with the old-established pipe house of William Demuth & Company, but in later years with several well-known European houses, died recently in Munich, Germany. Mr. Frankenthal was very well known on this side, having been at one time a member of the firm of Joseph Marks & Company. Within the last few years he represented such well-known European houses as Peterson, Loewy and Comoy.

House of Loewenthal Busy

EVIDENCES of brisk business are apparent to even the most casual observer who visits the salesrooms of S. Loewenthal & Sons, 131 Maiden Lane, New York. Just at present they are kept on the jump filling rush orders for their special packings of Florida and Georgia tobacco which is grown under shade on their Southern farms.

A big staff of salesmen are covering the country and keeping in close touch with the manufacturers. As a result their mail orders have been surprisingly large. In addition to packing Florida and Georgia, they are also big handlers of Connecticut shade-grown tobacco and importers of high-class Havana leaf.

Anyone in the trade wishing to get in touch with a live house striving to give the best goods and best service should address S. Loewenthal & Sons.

Griffin-Neuberger Company Issues More Stock

The Griffin-Neuberger Tobacco Company, of Windsor, Conn., has filed a certificate of additional shares of capital stock, through Fred B. Griffin, Moritz Neuberger and Fritz Lederer. This will empower them to issue 2990 shares of the unissued capital stock at $100 par value, making the amount of outstanding stock $300,000.

H. B. Oppenheim, formerly with S. M. Frank & Co. in a sales capacity, has left that concern and is now with the pipe house of William Demuth & Company.

The net profits for last year of the British-American Tobacco Company, according to a recent report, is $1,981,159, as against $1,655,880 for 1911.

A new cigar stand has been opened in Beck & McCarthy's Cafe, at Fulton and Nassau Streets, by H. R. Daniels.

The cigar stand in the Fleischmann restaurant at Forty-second Street and Broadway, has been reopened and will do business under the name of Michards.

Late New York Trade Notes

Two additional stores in the proposed chain in this city of the British-American Cigar Stores Company, were opened within the past two weeks. They are located in the Grand Central Terminal. This makes three branches for this concern, the first one being located at Forty-seventh Street and Madison Avenue.

Newsy Trade Notes

Locker Case Progressing Slowly

Suit of Brooklyn Jobber Against American Tobacco Company Brings About Hot Legal Battle

New York, Dec. 12th.

TRIAL of the suit of E. Locker & Company, tobacco jobbers of Brooklyn, N. Y., for $100,000 damages against the American Tobacco Company and several former subsidiaries, before Judge Mayer in the United States District Court which began last week, is still in progress.

The suit is brought under section 7, of the Sherman law, and if the jury should find a full verdict for the plaintiff, Locker & Company, they will be entitled to treble damages, which will amount to $300,000.

The plaintiff is represented by Charles Dushkind and John S. Wise, Jr., of New York, and C. C. Daniels, of North Carolina, while the interests of the American Tobacco Company are being looked after by Junius Parker, De Lancey Nicoll, ex-Judge William C. Cohen and Attorney Fuller.

At the outset Judge Mayer made it plain that it would not be necessary for the complainants to prove that the American Tobacco Company was a combination in restraint of trade, since this point was established by the recent decree of the United States Supreme Court.

This served greatly to expedite matters and Attorney Dushkind, chief counsel for the plaintiff, immediately began to build up his case by reviewing the birth and growth of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, which he averred, was the jobbing weapon which the defendants used to drive independent jobbers out of business.

A deposition from James B. Duke, former president of the American Tobacco Company, which was taken last February, prior to his going to Europe, was introduced as the first piece of evidence.

Another Jobber's Testimony.

Rudolph Epstein testified that his experience was very similar to that of John A. Locker, who claims that his business was ruined by the activity of the American Tobacco Company in buying up independent jobbers. Epstein said he had a prosperous jobbing business at 1517 Broadway, Brooklyn, until A. T. Benheim called a meeting of the Brooklyn jobbers and informed them that the American Tobacco Company was consolidating all the wholesale jobbers in New York. The witness said the agent proposed a plan by which each jobber coming into the combine was to receive 1,000 shares in common stock and 1,000 shares in the preferred stocks.

Several concerns, Epstein said refused to join the combine and agent Benheim told them that they would be driven out of business in consequence.

The witness said thereafter he was compelled to go to the Metropolitan Company for goods and finally even that concern refused to sell to him and he was then forced out of business.

Asa Lemlein, who was a tobacco jobber of New York, from 1882 to 1898, and is at present sales manager for E. H. Gato & Company, cigar manufacturers, testified that his jobbing business grew from $19,000 in 1882 to $319,000 in 1898, at which time Mr. Benheim, endeavored to induce him and other jobbers to enter into a scheme to control the trade of New York.

He stated that this proposition was later confirmed at a meeting with Mr. Duke and that the Metropolitan Tobacco Company was launched for this purpose. The new company took over the Lemlein business which firm retired from the field.

Tobacco Tariff Hearings Set For January 17

Ways and Means Committee Grant Very Little Time For Tobacco Interests

Special Dispatch to "The Tobacco World."

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 13.

IN arranging hearings for the new tariff law which the Democratic Congress expect to enact next spring, the Ways and Means Committee of the House, set aside Friday, January 17th, as the day for hearings on Schedule "F," covering tobacco and products.

Chairman Underwood states that the tobacco interests will have ample opportunity to present their cause at this hearing, although the arrangement to hear tobacco matters and the schedule on wood pulp, etc., on the same day, will necessarily cut down the time of the tobacco champions.

The committee have formulated strict rules, which will be followed in the hearing of testimony. Persons or firms desiring to be heard must apply to the clerk of the committee for time, giving his home address and where he can be addressed while in Washington. In making such application, the writer must indicate his connection with the trade, outline his attitude on the subject and indicate how long it will take to hear him. Many other requirements will be enforced.

Applicants are also requested to give any suggestions as to changes in the wording of the present law, or as to the betterment of the administration features. The committee hopes to have much of this data submitted in writing, so as to cut down the oral arguments to the minimum. It is believed that the tobacco trade will be represented by experts familiar with the appropriations and handling of such matters before the Congressional Committees.

Cigar Store to Open Lounging Room

What promises to be a decided innovation is the opening of the smoke shop on West State Street, Rockford, Ill., of a smoking, reading and lounging room, in the rear of the store, the space heretofore having been used as a stock room. A. E. Kate, the manager, states that it is his intention to make the room as inviting and cosy as possible, by the installation of rugs, chairs and tables, pictures, and the keeping on file of various magazines. Patrons will have free access at all times.

Arthur Rich, another Brooklyn jobber, told how the Metropolitan Tobacco Company had discriminated against him by refusing to sell goods.

A deposition from Joseph B. Manning, of the Boston jobbing house of McGreener & Manning, was read, showing that under the consignment plan, which restricted jobbers to sell only products of the American Tobacco Company, they received their cigarettes at $3.80 per thousand, and sold them at the same price, their profit being in the nature of a rebate of 35c. per thousand and 2% discount. Independent jobbers received only 2% discount.

Mr. Manning stated that their firm received $900 monthly from the American Tobacco Company in addition to their regular discount. This bonus was earned by pushing new brands.

Albert H. Hillman, formerly a well-known jobber in New York, testified that he always found the Metropolitan Company very fair and honest in their dealings with him.

The case is likely to go to the jury before next week.

Havana Firm Wins International Recognition

BELOW are presented three photographs of members comprising the firm of Gutierrez & Diehl, growers, packers and exporters of fine leaf tobacco, with headquarters at 53 Estrella Street, Havana, Cuba. The elderly gentleman is Don Miguel Gutierrez, who for a long time has been engaged in the tobacco business under his own name, having for many years owned large plantations of tobacco and sugar in the Santa Clara and Pinar del Rio provinces. He recently retired from active business, but remains as a silent partner in the newly-organized firm, which consists of his son, Don Miguel Gutierrez and Sanchez (in Spain as well as in Cuba, it is the custom to retain besides the father's name, also the maiden name of the mother) and Herr Herman Diehl, who was born and brought up in the tobacco business in Hamburg, Germany.

The new firm, composed as it is, of bright and well-educated men, with plenty of aggressiveness and progressiveness, has been forging ahead quite rapidly. Don Gutierrez, Jr., was educated in Baltimore, Md., and speaks English and Spanish fluently. He has been brought up in the tobacco business, having for many years looked after the plantations of his father and is well acquainted with all the intricacies of buying green tobacco, as well as knowing where to find the best vegas each year. He is fortunate in having associated with him, Mr. Diehl, who began in the tobacco business in Germany, spent three or four years in the United States in this line, and then finally settled in Cuba about eight years ago, where he was associated with prominent tobacco houses.

In addition to being an expert judge of tobacco leaf, he has had a wide experience in commercial life and is intimately acquainted with the large factors in the tobacco business in the United States and Europe. He is devoting himself principally to looking after the sales end and devoting particular attention to the German clients of the firm.

Gutierrez & Diehl have enjoyed a prosperous year, having just closed out the bulk of their holdings, but they still have some choice extra heavy bodied "Capaduras" and "Vuelto Abajo."

LATE NEWSY TRADE BULLETINS

The Interurban Cigar Store, Clinton, Ill., has been sold by Bert Taylor to W. H. Arthurs.

The cigar factory of Rau Brothers, Chilton, Wis., has been moved by them from the Schneider Building on Madison Street, to more commodious quarters in the Voigt Building on Main Street.

A cigar store has been opened up in Davenport Ia., by Alfred W. Wagner and Arleigh C. Ruckdeschel, formerly of Muscatine, Ia. The success of the venture is practically assured, Mr. Wagner having for many years been the proprietor of the "Smokehouse" in Muscatine, during which time he built up a large cigar and tobacco business.

Frank Ehlert, seventy years old, a veteran cigar manufacturer, of Milwaukee, Wis., died at his home in that city, December 7.

The United Cigar Stores Company have leased a building at the corner of Fifteenth Street and San Pablo Avenue, San Francisco, whereon they expect to erect a large office building and store.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed by Thomas Frawley, cigar manufacturer, at 80 Evergreen Street, Corona, L. I. The liabilities are estimated at $1100.

Cavan & Company have sold their cigar business located at Sheldon & Dakota Streets, Houghton, Mich., to W. J. Kelley & Brothers, who will conduct a modern cigar, tobacco and confectionary store on the premises.

Ninth District Output Near Eighty Million Mark This Includes Production of Former Twelfth District, Which is Now Part of the Ninth

THE output of cigars for November in the Ninth Pennsylvania District was close to the eighty million mark. These figures, of course, include the old Twelfth District, which is now part of the Ninth. The production as derived from the revenue statistics was 79,822,880 cigars. The figures for October were 87,602,990. While those of November are far behind those of the previous month, it should be taken in consideration that the heaviest business of the year is done by the manufacturers in October and there is always a falling off in production in November. The figures for November of 1911 were 67,900,310. That did not include the Twelfth District.

German Government Watching The American Tobacco Co. Economic Union Asks Imperial Chancellor What His Intentions Are Regarding Corporation

IT is reported in Berlin that the Economic Union, which now comprises the remains of what was once the anti-Semitic party, a few days ago requested the Imperial Chancellor as to the government's intention to fight the American Tobacco Company, which now appears to be making rapid progress in Berlin. The result is that its German competitors are quite agitated over the matter.

The Government, through the Secretary of the Treasury, gave the following written reply:

"The efforts of the American Tobacco Company to force its way into the German cigarette industry are known to the Imperial authorities. Events are being carefully watched in co-operation with various representatives of the tobacco trade. No attitude thus far has been adopted in regard to the question whether defensive measures are either possible or feasible."

The George A. Jasmatzki Company, which has a large factory in Dresden, is the source through which the American Tobacco Company operates in Germany.

Prices for Lancaster County Tobacco Soaring In Several Instances as Much as Fourteen and Four Was Paid— Average Will Probably be Around Ten Cents

Lancaster, Dec. 12.

PURCHASING by the buying that has been going on throughout Lancaster County, more than sixty per cent. of the 1912 crop has been purchased. The larger purchasers, as usual, are Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, who, it is stated, have purchased about 16,000 cases and the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, which has taken even more than this.

These purchasers were in the field early, and took over hundreds of acres quietly before local packers were aware of what was happening. With a few exceptions these extensive buyers did not pay more than ten and three. The buying has been going on so heavily that within the past week prices have risen as high as fourteen and four. These, however, are exceptionally high, and it is expected that the average price will not be much above ten cents.

The local packers state that these prices are much too high. That when the cost of putting the tobacco on the market is considered, they do not see the practicability of paying these prices. The Lancaster County farmers are to be congratulated on selling their tobacco at such figures, for there is much of the Pennsylvania tobacco still on the market. When the remaining forty per cent. of the crop is sought by the buyers, indications are that prices in many instances, will go even higher than those quoted.

Large Increase in Wheeling Stogie Output

The last revenue receipts paid in the district of Wheeling, W. Va., during the month of November, prove beyond doubt that stogies, the principal product of that region, are being smoked more heavily each year. The figures for the month of November totalled 11,650,000 stogies, as compared with 10,936,000 for the same month in 1911.

The three most prominent stogie factories in Wheeling have been working to full capacity for some time, and are even now many thousands oversold. These are the Little Pet Stogie Company, Marsh & Son, and A. Pollock.

"Havana Ribbon" Placed in Massachusetts

Several New Accounts Opened—1912 to be Banner Year for Concern

HAVANA RIBBON sales continue to show their regular percentage of increase for Bayuk Brothers Company, Philadelphia, they being assured of the fact that 1912 will be the banner year of their existence by a large margin. The local retail and outside jobbing business has never been in such flourishing condition.

M. M. Wilson, New England representative, is meeting with the most gratifying success on his initial trip, and has opened up some very attractive jobbing accounts. He recently placed "Havana Ribbons" with John Notini, of Lowell, and M. Casey Company, of Lawrence, Mass., for their respective territories, and has been assured of a liberal distribution from both points. Bert Thompson is producing some live business from his Western territory and at present is conducting an aggressive campaign in Detroit, where the Harry W. Watson Company has jurisdiction.

The entire force of "Havana Ribbon" boosters will visit the home office immediately after Christmas and be guests of the firm during the holidays.

San Francisco Jobbers Plan For New Year

A NUMBER of novel things in an advertising way are planned by the jobbers' and manufacturers' representatives, of San Francisco, for the early part of the new year, but for the time being most of the energies of the trade are being turned to the supplying of the growing seasonal demands. Major Burrows, Western representative for the Jose Lovera Company, who has been planning a big expansion move, states that the demands for the holiday trade are occupying all of his time and that he will not be able to get the advertising campaign under way before the first of January.

Bier, Saalburg & Co., California street jobbers, are doing some effective billboard work for their "Ruy Lopez" line, but will do still more after the December rush of business is over. For the remainder of the year, the publicity work will consist quite largely of window displays. A notable work of this sort was the "Ruy Lopez" window at the Market Street store of Krumb & Miersen recently.

In order to properly care for their constantly increasing business, William Deiches & Company, jobbers, of Baltimore, Md., have leased the large warehouse at 115-17 South Utah Street that city. It is planned to make the necessary alterations so that the new quarters will be ready for occupancy by January 1.

The Badger Tobacco Company, of Milwaukee, a large jobbing concern, reports having had the most successful holiday trade they have ever enjoyed. Among the best selling lines of this firm are the "Havana Ribbon," Bayuk Brothers Company, "La Famosa," E. Kleiner & Company, "Flor de Bolano," Francisco Bolano y Ca, and "La Fama Universal," M. Stachelberg & Company.

Little Pet Stogie Company Appoints Representative

Chas. T. Ellis to Start Campaign in New England—Midway Jobbing Company Takes on Two Lines

Charles T. Ellis, of Boston, has been appointed as representative of the Little Pet Stogie Company, of Wheeling, W. Va., for the following states: Maine, Vermont, Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire. Mr. Ellis has a wide acquaintance throughout the New England States, and this connection with one of the big Wheeling stogie factories, should prove of great benefit both to him and to the manufacturers.

One of the latest wholesale houses to take on the products of the Little Pet Stogie Company is that of the Midway Jobbing Company, of Shenandoah, Pa., who will distribute the "Pet Big Havana" and "Wheeling Delights."

American Merchants Syndicate May Continue Business

At a meeting of the creditors of the American Merchants Syndicate of Los Angeles and San Francisco, which is now in the hands of a receiver, it was learned that the total amount owing is in the neighborhood of $115,000. $100,000 of this is owing to Los Angeles grocers and cigar men. It is thought that when the receiver recently appointed, G. M. Babcock, has straightened out the affairs of the firm, it will be able to resume business. The stock on hand and money due the concern, it is said, will more than cover all liabilities.

"Cuban King" For Pacific Coast Jobbers

Polly Willard, Western representative of George A. Kent & Co., of Binghamton, N. Y., has succeeded in making some splendid wholesale connections in California. A few days ago he concluded arrangements for placing the distribution of the "Cuban King" for Northern and Central California with Horn & Co., one of the largest wholesale houses on the Coast; and now he has returned from Los Angeles after having lined up for his "Cuban King" brand, Haas, Baruch & Co., leading wholesalers of the Southern end of the State.

Hudson Cigar Company Moves to Albany

The Hudson Cigar Company, the well-known wholesale house located in Hudson, New York, has secured quarters on Market Square in Albany, New York, and will move their business to that location. They have been in Hudson for some time, but considered that a move to Albany would prove to be of advantage, particularly as this is a better shipping center.

H. E. Stamm Takes on "Charles Denby"

The "Charles Denby" cigar, manufactured by H. Fendrich, of Evansville, Ind., has been taken on by H. E. Stamm, a jobber and retailer doing business at 100 Michigan Avenue, Detroit. Mr. Stamm has been branching out recently on the jobbing business, which has increased to such an extent that he has been compelled to purchase an automobile delivery truck.

Wholesale Trade Items

The Cooley Drug Company have succeeded L. H. Ohldhoff as distributors in Toledo and vicinity for the "Salome" cigar, made by Heineman Brothers, of Baltimore, Md.

H. T. Cottam & Company, New Orleans jobbers for the "Salome" clear Havana smokes, manufactured by Heineman Brothers, Baltimore, Md., have greatly increased the distribution of this cigar throughout the South.

U. Koen & Company report a splendid business on "El Dallo" cigars, manufactured by Wertheimer Brothers, Baltimore, Md.

Dan Lamont, factory representative of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, has just conducted a successful campaign on the "Flor De Moss" Havana cigars, for Many, Blanc & Co., of Chicago, Ill.

"Jose Vila," made by Berriman Brothers and "La Famosa," made by E. Kleiner & Company, are being distributed throughout St. Louis by William A. Hoelscher Cigar Company.

The large wholesale tobacco business of Lee and Louis S. Cohen, Anaconda, Mont., has been sold by them to Lee Marx, Jesse Newman and George Symans, who took possession in the early part of December. The stock is composed of cigars, tobacco and smokers' articles.

O. McCaffrey, the wholesale tobacco dealer of Maquoketta, Iowa, has established a branch house in Mason City, that state. He has taken over the business in Mason City established there by J. L. Liesenberger. Associated with Mr. McCaffrey will be J. J. Wellman.

That Manila cigars are increasing in popularity in the Pacific Northwest section, is indicated by the heavy shipments of "La Calidads" for the Edward Wolf Company, and "Christinas," "Micosas," and "Orientes" for Michalitschke Bros. & Co., of San Francisco.

Wolley & Company, Seattle jobbers and retailers, and exporters of Manila goods, have been putting much attention this year on special packings for the holiday trade. Manila cigars and cigarettes heretofore have never been put up in holiday packages, and this innovation is bound to attract attention.

F. E. Gyory, factory representative for the "La Sinceridad," will shortly spend some time with the Rosenfeld-Smith Company, who are now occupying their new quarters at 4th and James Streets, Seattle, Wash. A campaign of publicity will be executed featuring the "American" and "La Natividad."

The "Havana Ribbon" cigar, of Bayuk Brothers Company, which was recently taken on by the Newark jobbing house of Schwarz & Son, will shortly be extensively pushed in that section of New Jersey. The big brand with this concern is the "Lord Stirling" cigar, put out by the Enterprise Cigar Company, of Trenton, N. J. This has been extensively advertised in Newark by the bill board method.

Cigar Shipments Average 1,350,000 per day—Increase in Custom Collections—Bids Opened for Club House of Centro Asturiano

TAMPA, Dec. 11.

WITH the holiday rush practically over, there is still, however, much work at the factories and orders are still coming in. For the past three weeks, the shipments have averaged 1,350,000 cigars per day and the night and Sunday work was kept up until the end of the past week. The shipments for the year will not quite reach those of 1911, which recorded an abnormal output, owing to the fact that stocks were depleted or wiped out entirely during the several months of the strike, which was not ended until early in the year. Optimism prevails among manufacturers as to the New Year, and among the bright prospects is that of the avoidance of any and all labor troubles, the new inspectorship working like a charm. Many factories have nice orders on file for January.

Customs collections for last week were $38,941.01, an increase of $5,326.13 over the corresponding week of 1911.

Publication in THE TOBACCO WORLD of a suit instituted by the Gilletts, of this city, against the owners of the tobacco bug machine, created much interest here, but some action of this sort has been expected since the test of the machine here failed to substantiate the claims made for it. The Gilletts undoubtedly spent much money in the endeavor to promote the invention and they feel that they ought to recover from the manufacturers of the apparatus, who claimed that it would positively destroy all germs in the cigars.

Bids were opened this week for the new club house of the Centro Asturiano, to replace the building partially destroyed by fire early in the year. T. A. McGucken was the lowest bidder, his bid being $94,260. The new building will be far more complete and elaborate than the old one.

Two children of Jose Escalante, the cigar manufacturer, fell from a second-story window at the Escalante home Saturday, and their lives were saved by a large cactus plant into which they fell. Fortunately, the spines of the cactus did not injure them. The children are five and three years old.

R. H. McClung, of the Monopole Tobacco Works, New York, is in the city.

Jerome Regensburg and wife are spending a week or more in Tampa, from New York.

Moe Schwartz, of A. Santaella y Ca., visited the factory for a few days and complained that everybody was too busy to talk to him.

J. J. French will be here until January 1, when he will start out into new territory. His firm, Quiros, Villazon & Company, is doing an excellent business.

Bolano & Company are contemplating building a larger factory. Francis Bolano is expected to make a definite announcement on his return from Chicago.

A. L. Cuesta, Jr., has returned from a trip through the East. Jose Lovens spent the entire holiday rush season at the factory, and has been watching every detail of the business, which has been very satisfactory.

PERFECTO.

An Attractive New Label For "Reynaldo"

Deciding That They Can Not Improve Cigar, Luckett, Luchs, & Lipscomb Get out Artistic Packing

INSPIRED by the remarkable success which the "Reynaldo" mild Havana cigar has achieved everywhere it has been introduced, Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb have been pushing this brand with much vigor. Dealers who have put in their first order of "Reynaldo" cigars find that they are excellent trade builders and that they repeat very freely. In certain sections of the Middle West and on the Pacific Coast, gains in the sales of "Reynaldos" have been particularly gratifying.

New Label for "Reynaldo" Cigar

Believing that they have got the cigars as nearly perfect as the human hand and good tobacco can make them, the firm decided that if they could not improve upon the cigar, they could at least give it a worthier and finer label. The result has been a label specially lithographed for them by the German process, handsomely embossed and embellished with gold leaf, which greatly adds to the general attractiveness of the "Reynaldo" package. The reproduction above is made from one of the new "Reynaldo" labels and it speaks for itself.

United Cigar Stores Company Takes Over Lease of Abraham Store in Caswell Block—Harry Ziegler Opens Stand in Merchants and Manufacturers Bank Building

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 12.

THE United Cigar Stores Company have taken over the lease of the Caswell Block cigar store of Leo Abraham, and take possession January 1, 1913. It is understood that Mr. Abraham makes a very substantial profit on the five years which his lease still has to run. This deal gives the United another established stand, as the Caswell Block store is one of the oldest in the city. Originally the location was occupied by Colonel Winckler. When the new Caswell Block was erected about five years ago Winckler retired and Leo Abraham opened a store which has been continued with pretty fair success. Business with the local retailers has been fairly good although the beginning of cold weather has had its usual bad effect.

Surman is enjoying a nice advance Christmas business at the Cuba Rica store in the Wells Building.

Harry Ziegler, who conducts the cigar stand in the Wells Building lobby, has opened a new stand in the new Merchants and Manufacturers Bank Building, on West Water Street. This building, containing something like two hundred offices, will prove a good location for him, and already business is brisk.

A. O. Meister continues to enjoy his usual business, and is selling a lot of "Cinco," "Equity" and "La Preferencia" cigars.

Allansons, in the Plakinton Hotel, are, as usual, doing a very good business on all brands. The travelling public, always good spenders, keep them from having any dull moments. Max Levenhagen, the genial clerk in the lobby stand, is the proud papa of a bouncing baby boy, which arrived December 10.

Leo Abraham is doing nicely at all stores. A special sale is being conducted at the Caswell Block store, where pipes and smokers' articles are being sold at a marked reduction. Eddie McKeecher visited the old homestead at Des Moines over Thanksgiving.

Otto Krohn, who is in charge of the pipe repair department, has been moved from the Caswell Block store to the Third and Grand Avenue store, where he occupies one of the windows.

Willibald Hoffman, of John Hoffman & Sons Company, wholesale grocers, has been elected president of the Integrity Savings Building and Loan Association, a new five-million-dollar company recently organized here.

The Pieper Tarrow Company, wholesale grocers, etc., have increased their capital stock from $25,000 to $50,000.

Fay Lewis & Brother Company continue to do a good business at the Pabst Building and also at Fifth and Grand Avenue. "Fay Lewis Perfectos" and the "Masterpiece" are being displayed.

The Wright Drug Company recently made a display of the "Mi Lola" cigar, which attracted considerable favorable comment. All sizes and shapes of this popular Milwaukee product were made at other stores in the city.

The city of Stoughton, Wis., passed an ordinance forbidding the sale of cigarettes to minors under seventeen years of age.

E. J. Steinmetz, of the firm of Stringer and Steinmetz, cigar dealers, at La Crosse, Wis., was married to Miss Mayme Hahn.

A new store has been opened at Green Bay, Wis., by Jones Prenevost. Arthur J. Zelles, of the same city, has made a number of improvements in his place of business.

H. H. Fetters has opened a new cigar factory at Antigo, Wis.

Ran Brothers, of Chilton, have moved their cigar factory into larger quarters.

J. L. Fields opened a cigar store at Plainfield, Wis. At Kaukauna, Wis., Farrell & Fien have put in a cigar store.

Stiles & McDonnell, makers of the "Lazar" cigar, at Superior, Wis., have moved into larger quarters. The firm has employed additional hands and will cover a larger territory hereafter.

The American Cigar Company will only operate their warehouse at Sparta this season. The Watertown, Stoughton, Brodhead and Edgerton plants have been closed.

The work on the Eisenlohr warehouse at Edgerton is being rushed with night and day forces. The contractors have experienced considerable delay in obtaining material. The brick work on the first floor has been completed.

Henry Sach, of New York; N. J. Bijur, of E. Rosenwald & Brother, New York, and George E. Gary, of P. Lorillard Company, Jersey City, were recent visitors in the state.

Haskins & Schwartz are building an $8000 addition to their warehouse at Janesville, Wis.

Plenty of Turkish Leaf on Hand, Say Manufacturers
Larger Concerns Have Several Years' Stock on Hand—Smaller Firms Are Ones Chiefly Affected

THE war in the Balkans has not affected the prices of either cigarettes or Turkish tobacco from what can be learned from the larger manufacturers of cigarettes and importers of leaf. While the trade in general does not hesitate to say that it is bound to affect conditions in the long run, there is no immediate prospect of this. It has been learned that large quantities of tobacco in Turkey have been shipped to places of safety. One optimistic correspondent, of a London paper, cabled that the very armies in the field have felt the solace of the cigarette too keenly to care to destroy any unnecessarily. It is said that the greatest injury which the war will cause, from a tobacco trade point of view, will be the far-reaching disturbance to the country generally, and more especially to the labor market.

That the next crop of Turkish tobacco will be a short one is taken for granted. Whether it will cause an increase in prices is uncertain. Reports from manufacturers, both on this side and in London, point to the fact that they are not worrying for the immediate future. Many of them are stocked up for a number of years, and it is problematical whether a short crop will stiffen prices to any extent. The next crop is due to be planted in February. At this writing it is questionable whether this can be done.

Stephano Brothers, of Philadelphia, manufacturers of the "Rameses" cigarettes, when interviewed, stated that they had such a large stock of Turkish leaf tobacco on hand that it had not affected them in the least. They carry thousands of bales of leaf in their building on Walnut Street.

In an interview with a London newspaper reporter, Graham D'Arcy, the manager of the New Bond Street branch of Messrs. Abdulla and Company, Limited, London, said: "Undoubtedly the small manufacturer is being badly hit, as the tobacco brokers on whom they rely will not be slow to take advantage of the circumstances. For the smaller firms the situation is undoubtedly serious, but Messrs. Abdulla are at present unaffected by the rise in the market, and there is no immediate prospect of any rise in our prices or decline in the quality of our goods. This is because we are independent of the broker. Our method of doing business is to send our representatives out to Turkey to inspect and buy up the tobacco plantations and crops on the spot. Early in 1911 we bought in this way some hundreds of tons of Turkish leaf, and this we have not yet touched. It is still maturing here. Altogether we have enormous stocks of tobacco in England; enough now to supply us at our present rate of consumption for the next four years. We deal directly with the growers in Turkey. We have no plantations, and therefore do not suffer when crops are bad. We just go to Turkey with the hard cash in our pockets and scour the country for the best crops. But, speaking generally of the effect of the war, undoubtedly the whole tone of the tobacco trade has been seriously affected."

Manufacturer's Convenient Pipe Cleaning Combination

The E. T. Gilbert Manufacturing Company, of Rochester, New York, inform us that the retail trade, are taking hold of their newly patented stem and bowl pipe cleaners with a vengeance, and that this novelty appears to be something long desired.

The company have put up a polished steel scraper, and twelve pipe cleaners in one package, and at a price which allows a splendid margin for every retail shop. They also manufacture the Gilbert "Trojan" pipe cleaner, which has been on the market for some time, and has made a name for itself.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau
Neptuno 24
Altoe
Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, December 7.

THE leaf market during the past fortnight has been better, owing to the presence of a few big buyers in town, as well through the purchases of a couple of commission merchants that had received cable orders from their northern clients. Prices remain very firm, as the stocks are not large, and also because the continued drought in the Vuelta Abajo might prejudice the chances of having a large and light crop during the coming year. However, there are some stocks left for sale yet. We are not looking for any buyers now until after the turn of the year.

As the weather has continued dry during the past fortnight, and there are no indications of a coming change, the situation in the Vuelta Abajo is getting worse from week to week, and unless we should have a good shower of rain during the next two weeks we can prepare ourselves for a short and heavier bodied growth, which would be a calamity indeed for the local, as well as for the clear Havana cigar manufacturers in the United States. In a small part of the Partido section they have had a little rain, and as irrigation is practiced more widely the future is less influenced by a continued drought, although the natural rainfall is always preferable. Advices from the Santa Clara province continue still more cheerful, as the season is generally a month later, than in the Vuelta Abajo region.

Sales during the past fortnight totaled 13,166 bales, which, divided, represented: Vuelta Abajo, 2,550; Partido, 606; Remedios, 8,081, and Yara and Mayari, 1,929 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 7,639; exporters to Europe, 2,600; shippers to South America, 1,486, and our local cigar and cigarette manufacturers, 1,441 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the two weeks ending with November 30th were: To all ports of the United States, 181; to Bremen and Hamburg, 1,587; to Spain, 857; to Austria, 1,081; to London, 100; to Rotterdam, 56; to Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Valparaiso and Arica, 1,225; thus making a total of 16,087 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country Were:

| | From November 17 to November 30, 1912. | Since January 1, 1912. |
|-----------------|---|---------------------------|
| Vuelta Abajo | 151 bales | 181,379 bales |
| Semi Vuelta | 385 | 23,179 |
| Partido | 11 | 22,860 |
| Remedios | 2,017 | 231,749 |
| Yara and Mayari | 938 | 15,522 |
| Total | 3,502 | 474,689 |

Principal Buyers of Leaf Tobacco That Come and Go:

Arrivals—From New York: Manuel B. and José M. Pendas, of Y. Pendas & Alvarez; Marcelino Perez, with his traveling salesman Mr. McBlair, of Marcelino Perez & Company; José Diaz, of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz; Manuel Lopez, of Calixto Lopez & Company; Richard Sichel, of B. Rosenblüth; Morris Rosenberg, of Morris Rosenberg & Company.

From Cincinnati: Charles Haas, of Haas Bros.

Departures—To New York: Manuel Lopez, Jacob A. Guedalia, Allie L. Sylvester, Manuel B. Pendas, José M. Pendas, David Simerman and Richard Sichel.

To Brooklyn: José Benite.
To Philadelphia: Louis H. Eisenlohr, C. H. Eimerbrink and John H. Kolb.

Cigars.

The exports of cigars from the port of Havana for the second half of November, as per our official custom house returns, were as follows: From November 16 to November 30, 1912, 8,872,276 cigars; from November 16 to November 30, 1911, 8,752,318.

Increase in 1912

119,958

From January 1, 1911, to November 30, 1911, 173,299,217 cigars
From January 1, 1912, to November 30, 1912, 161,330,221

Decrease during the first eleven months of 1912, 11,968,996

The above showing is not at all satisfactory, as we had fully expected to see a larger increase during the second half of November, but unless a clerical error in the summing up of the figures should have been committed it would indicate a retrograde movement in our cigar industry, notwithstanding the fine quality of this year's crop of leaf tobacco. The worst thing is that the United States has fallen behind more than England, as during the fifteen days we have lost in our exports in the United States 799,537 cigars, while Great Britain increased 306,636 cigars during the same period.

Our three greatest independent factories, H. Upmann, Partagas and Romeo y Julieta, are still working with all their forces, having large orders on hand, which they will be unable to fill this month, so there will be no slacking up for some time to come. The Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., is also as busy as heretofore.

Castañeda neither complains of not being fully occupied with orders on hand for the balance of this month and January.

Sol is perfectly satisfied with its order slate, as the same is constantly being filled up by fresh orders from England, the United States and Germany.

La Flor de P. A. Estanillo has many regalia orders yet to fill, besides receiving constantly fresh ones for its brands "Flor del Fumar" and "Elite."

La Flor de José Otero has been doing a very good business with Canada, England and the United States.

Don Manuel Lopez, of the Eden factory, who came here on a visit again from New York, stated that business in New York was quite active and that their factory was well supplied with orders.

Other factories that are working well are: Por Larrañaga, Hoyo de Monterrey, C. E. Beck & Company and Allens, Ltd.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Sobrimos de Gonzales sold 1,800 bales of all kinds of leaf during the past fortnight, but this does not include the large number of bales sold to Mr. John H. Kolb, president of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, as they did not wish to state them, owing to some lots needing registration yet. The exact quantity will be published in our next correspondence.

Louis H. Eisenlohr has bought, according to our information, 2,662 bales of second capaduras of Remedios, and very likely he would have purchased more extensively still if he had been able to find more of the prime qualities, which the firm of Otto Eisenlohr & Bro. is in the habit of buying only.

The Havana Tobacco Export Company turned over 1,250 bales of their Yara and Mayari packings to Don Adolfo Moeller, for export to Germany, and for sale to the smaller manufacturers in the country that are supplying the domestic demand.

Leslie Pantin was a buyer for his customers upon cable orders received by him to the tune of 1,575 bales of all kinds of leaf during the past fortnight.

Herrera, Calmet & Company closed out 1,029 bales of their Remedios holdings to buyers for the American market.

Mark A. Pollack had no customers in town, but was fortunate in having received orders to buy for his clientage, thus enabling him to register 1,200 bales of leaf.

José F. Rocha was a seller of 600 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios tobacco to his customers during the past two weeks.

Adolfo Moeller was again the heaviest buyer for the German market, with 1,390 bales of leaf during the past fortnight.

Gutierrez & Diehl disposed of 350 bales of their fine escogidas of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo to their customers in town.

Sylvester & Stern contented themselves with additional purchases of 800 bales of leaf.

Cleveland Stores Take on Festive Attire

All Hands Have Prepared For Prosperous Season—What the Big Selling Factors in the City Are Doing

CLEVELAND, O., December 12.

THE holiday season is now here for fair. The stores have all taken on a "Christmasy" air and the Yuletide spirit prevades everything. The dealers have "primed" up their stores and stands in great style, as is the usual custom.

The Snyder Cigar Company reports they are doing a big business on their holiday goods. Everything looks fine for them for a very prosperous season.

The J. B. Moos Company also report big business. They were advised by the "Preferencia" factory that they could fill no holiday orders this year. The Moos Company could not secure a sufficient supply of "La Preferencia," or "El Principe de Gales," in holiday packings. The company is way oversold.

H. A. Vaughn, the head of the salesmen department of the American Tobacco Company, stopped off in Cleveland for a few days to confer with Mr. Krull who is here with a crew of men doing some efficient work on "Piccadilly" little cigars, manufactured by the American Tobacco Company.

Frank Johnson, vice-president of the Havana-American Company, paid a visit to the Cleveland branch of the Moos Company, as did also G. J. Brown, president of the Moos Company.

Casper Rosenberg reports he is just as busy as he can be. The only trouble he is having is that he can't get his orders out fast enough.

L. J. McGuire, manager of the Standard's Little stand in the Old Arcade, is back on the job after a severe illness, which kept him in the house for the past two and a half weeks. He looks none the worse for the wear and is back grabbing off Christmas orders, and is anticipating a nice holiday business.

The Stace & Vincent Company are doing a big business on their brand "Stivanos" and reporting a nice retail business in both their locations.

The Stern Cigar Company, who opened up a few days ago on Euclid, near Fifty-fifth Street, are apparently satisfied with their new location.

The writer was surrounded with a bunch of good fellows at the "Saramita" cigar factory and had to join in the festivities. The whole selling force is in and they are only waiting now for samples and instructions to get busy in all parts of the United States, but from the bunch of orders on file it looks as though they will get a very late start in 1913.

Frank Gleichman, of the Boltz-Clymer Company, and Walter Jones, of the Cuesta Rey Company, were in town this week.

Nate Gleichman, the Parke Building cigarist, is displaying holiday goods and looks for a nice business Christmas week. His pipe business is exceptionally good now.

Henry Mandelbaum, near West Fourth Street on Superior, has had a nice increase in his business for the past six months, and is kept very busy looking after his retail trade. He is well stocked for the holidays and thinks this will be the busiest holiday season in several years.

Nate Seidman, of the Century Cigar Company, will commence to remodel his old building on the corner of West Ninth Street and Superior. He is letting contracts now and he expects to have one of the most beautiful fronts in the city by the time he moves into his new location across the street.

Charley Shuthelm has certainly got his store stocked with all the popular brands. He says that he will not lose any holiday business this year.

John M. Jenkinson, of the W. Jenkinson Company, has spent a few days looking after his retail interests in Cleveland.

M. Wormser, the European novelty man, spent a few days among the trade in Cleveland.

The Cuban Market

Muniz Hermanes sold 270 bales of their excellent holdings of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo factory vegas.

Don Ventura Blance is still here looking after the wants of his own factory, as well as to fill some orders for his particular friends who had entrusted him with them, and we have heard that he has selected already some 503 bales of choice Vuelta Abajo leaf.

Cardenas & Company turned over 240 bales of Partido and Remedios from their fine stocks of goods.

The Romeo y Julieta factory never lets an opportunity slip by to acquire an extra prime vega from the Vuelta Abajo, notwithstanding that their stocks are still immense, and in this manner they added 350 bales to their holdings.

Ernest Ellinger & Company were sellers of 226 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios to their customers during the past two weeks.

H. Upmann & Company purchased 208 bales of leaf for export to their European customers.

Carlos Arnoldson & Company sold 147 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Semi Vuelta, Partido and Remedios tobacco.

William Wicke Dies in Lawrence, L. I.

At the age of seventy-four years, William Wicke, president of the William Wicke Ribbon Company, died at his summer home in Lawrence, L. I., Saturday, November 30. Though the active management of the business had passed to his sons, George H. and William, Jr., Mr. Wicke still performed his duties as president at the company's office 36 East Twenty-second Street New York. Mr. Wicke accumulated a fortune as the head of one of the largest cigar box factories in the United States and was a trustee of the German Savings Bank, a member of the New York Peace Society, and the German Press Club, besides many charitable organizations. A daughter and another son, Carl, also survive him.

Charles Israel, father of Sam and Abe Israel, cigar jobbers, located on Jackson Street, San Francisco, Cal., died about the middle of November. Mr. Israel had been identified with the cigar business for many years being proprietor of a retail store in that city, before associating himself with his sons.

Two daughters and a son survive Charles Arthur Cox, a cigar manufacturer, of Brooklyn, who died at his home in that city, on Saturday, November 30, at the age of sixty-six years.

The death in Alameda, Cal., a short time ago, of Thomas Burton, at the age of seventy-six years, marked the passing of one of the first tobacco manufacturers of San Francisco, Cal.

Frank B. Mann, at one time connected with the Cincinnati Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Company, died recently at the age of sixty years in Morning View, Ky. His death followed an attack of heart trouble.

Henry E. Dressner, a member of the tobacco manufacturing firm of Dressner Brothers, 183 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., died in his home in that city recently, at the age of fifty years. He is survived by a widow, two sons and a daughter.

Celestine Cerral, the resident partner of Cerral, Wediska & Company, of Tampa, is always busy in our market hunting up extra fine vegas of Vuelta Abajo for their factory, and during the past fortnight he had managed to find 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo, just right in quality, although high enough in price. The latter, however, cannot be avoided.

José C. Puente had a rather quiet time, as he did not succeed in clinching operations for more than 100 bales of leaf.

Michaelsen & Prasse had been buyers of 600 bales of leaf for their customers during the past two weeks.

Although we had stated in our last correspondence that the crop of this year would very likely reach around 550,000 bales all over the island of Cuba, from later advices received we think now that the total may even exceed 575,000 bales. Evidently the growth in the interior of the island is larger than we expected.

Shippers of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from November 18 to November 30, 1912, above 300 bales, were: Sylvester & Stern, 1,569 bales; Adolfo Moeller, 1,407 bales; J. F. Berdes & Company, 1,381 bales; Sobrimos de A. Gonzalez, 1,230 bales; C. E. Beck & Company, 927 bales; H. Upmann & Company, 887 bales; J. Bernheim & Son, 828 bales; Leslie Pantin, 781 bales; Mark A. Pollack, 655 bales; Michael sen & Prasse, 600 bales; Ernest Ellinger & Company, 572 bales; Diego Suarez, 387 bales; Rodriguez, Menendez & Company, 326 bales; Diego ORETANIV, 308 bales.

Chicago Christmas Trade Immense

Retail Stores at Height of Holiday Business—John J. Dolan May Open Another Stand—Albert Cohn Starts Store in Hyde Park

CHICAGO, December 9.

THE rate of business marking the close of the year as described in this correspondence heretofore has continued and increased. All kinds of tobacco manufactures have continued to be in great demand, and the demand has continued to increase in volume. The cigar factories, especially those of larger size and greater importance, have been pushed about to the limit to meet the calls from customers. Manufacturer's agents, jobbers, wholesalers and retailers are all doing an unprecedented business.

The retail stores have been at the height of a rushing holiday business for the last two or three weeks. Several new establishments have been opened, some of them of large proportions, with elegant furnishings and fittings and great stocks of choice brands of cigars, tobacco and cigarettes and liberal displays of pipes and other smokers' articles. Very many of the stores, in fact nearly all of them, are dressed in elaborate and attractive holiday style.

So great is the present demand that, in spite of extraordinary efforts in the manufacturing line, the present indication is that stocks will be depleted to a very large degree by New Year's eve. Just at present there is very slight occasion for jobbers and wholesalers to have traveling men on the road, for every mail brings orders from all over the section of country supplied by the Chicago trade. Many of these orders are comparatively small, coming from dealers in little cities and towns and in the country districts. But, in the aggregate, they call for large quantities of goods.

Chicago Christmas Trade is Immense.

All the enthusiastic prophecies concerning Chicago's Christmas cigar trade bid fair to be realized. All the factories are busy. Jobbers and wholesalers are working overtime to fill orders. A large number of the retail stores already have taken on a holiday appearance with beautiful decorations and splendid displays of goods.

Although the Best & Russell Company have received very large consignments of cigars from Tampa within a few weeks, they will need all they can secure to supply the pressing demands upon their facilities. One of the novelties just received by the company is a consignment of the "Abbey" cigars in fortieths, packed in glass jars, with screw tops, which keep the cigars in excellent condition. The firm's "Flor de Loveras" and "Flor de Sanchez y Hayas" are proving very popular.

Great demands are made upon E. Hoffman & Company for their popular brands of cigars and the equally popular tobaccos and pipes. The "New Bachelor" continues to be one of the great favorites, as also do the "Stein Clubs." The pipe trade is excellent, with a very heavy holiday demand.

The cigar boys in general will be glad to learn that old Nic Carter (Fred. A. Carter) has been appointed manager of the Hagen Paper Company, with offices in 1212 Steger Building. Nic says he can supply the boys with all kinds of paper, except that on which writing is to be done.

Smilingly and with every evidence of feeling happy, Johnny Morrison asserts that he has made a fifty per cent. increase on the "Lucius" cigar. Morrison is manager for the Ryan & Raphael Cigar Company, the "Lucius" jobbers.

The Best & Russell Company is making a great push on its "Arteusa" brand, made for it by Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, of Philadelphia. The company is working an extra push on the "Epicure" size, packed twenty in a box and jobbing for $65 per thousand.

Harry J. Thurston has opened up the new Chateau Inn at 348 East Thirty-fifth Street, near Grand Boulevard. He was formerly at the Clarendon and is considered a good manager. He sells a great many cigars, and it is noticed that he hands out the "Havana Principes," made by Storm, Fisher & Company.

Harry A. Loker, of 818 East Fifty-seventh Street, who walks the South Side in the interest of "Tom Moore" and his son "Little Tom," says he is having a big holiday business in all of the United cigar goods.

Rothschild & Company's cigar department has added the "La Soneda Models," ten for fifteen cents, and reports they are "selling big." The management is also featuring a brand called "Havana Principes" for five cents.

S. P. Doyle, cigar manager for the Home Drug Company, 65 West Monroe Street, is filling up his holiday window in beautiful style. He has a big assortment, but favors "La Soneda," "Francisco Goya" and "Sanchez & Haya" brands.

The Palmer House cigar store, 111 South State Street, does a large transient trade. Brands of all popular cigars are carried, as well as business with its transient trade. Jacob Karpas is in charge and Thomas W. Walsh is his assistant.

Albert Cohn, for some time Western representative of the Lyons Manufacturing Company, has resigned that position and gone into business for himself, opening a cigar store and billiard parlor in the Hyde Park section.

E. Morgan, formerly with Ryan & Raphael Cigar Company, has resigned. It is understood he is going into business with David Williams, formerly with Couthouli & Company, Congress Hotel cigar stand.

The famous "Perkins" Cafe in the Rector Building has been sold to Jack Henry, for many years city salesman for Chapin & Gore. The price is said to be $40,000. The Perkins place was a great feeder for cigars for Grommes & Ullrich, but from now on it will be a Chapin & Gore outlet.

The City Hall Square Hotel has just been opened and will be conducted by Smiley Corbett and Thomas Hauton, who also own the Lambs Cafe, Randolph and Clark Streets.

George Yocum, of Yocum Bros., the Yocum Bros. factory, is interested in the portable garage, with offices at 312 West Madison Street.

It is reported that John J. Dolan, proprietor of many cigar stores in Chicago, will open another place within a few days at the southwest corner of Monroe Street and Wabash Avenue. The advantages of the location may be guessed from the fact that the stores and offices in the new building, where the new place is to be located, were rented before the foundations were laid, with six months' rent paid in advance.

A new cigar store is to be opened by Neuhauer & Weber, corner of State and Chicago Streets. The firm already has one store at 623 North Clark Street and another at 1202, same street.

Cohn & Nathan is the name of the new sub-jobbing firm, with store on the corner of Harrison Street and Wabash Avenue, where they are doing a general wholesale business.

Col. W. H. Munson, one of the vice-presidents of M. Melachrimo & Company, has arranged for a visit to St. Louis, Denver, Colorado Springs and Salt Lake City. L. B. McKittrick, another of the vice-presidents of the company, has been in the city for a few days, going hence to New York by way of Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. George W. Smith, the district manager for the company, has returned from an interesting and successful trip in the Northwest.

The Kline Company, of which E. Kline, the cigar man, is manager, has opened a new cafe at 330 West VanBuren Street.

Greenbaum and Secklack, executives of Francisco Bolano y Ca. are in Chicago with the expectation of remaining until after the opening of the New Year.

H. M. Phillbrook, C. A. Becker and I. S. Berkman have incorporated the VanBuren Cigar Company of Chicago; capital, $1,000.

Sometime ago J. A. Lorimer, proprietor of a cigar store at Garfield Boulevard and Fifty-fifth Street, declared he secured a lease of a place at 313 East Garfield Boulevard. Since that time the property has been sold and the new proprietor repudiated the contract. A bitter controversy arose and, to prevent Lorimer securing the premises, the proprietor ordered the building torn down. Lorimer says he will carry the matter into the court.

The cigar store in the rear of the home of Mr. Padgett, a cigar manufacturer of Clyde, N. Y., which was used for manufacturing purposes, was destroyed by fire last week. Mr. Padgett stated that he could not estimate the loss, though it would be large, there being in the building at the time of the fire an extensive stock including many manufactured cigars. There is very little insurance.

Wohl & Comstock Enter Ideal Factory

New Home of "Evangelina Cisneros" Built With an Eye to Sanitation And Also to Comfort of Employees

An ideal work room is that to be found in the new factory of the Wohl & Comstock Co., Chicago, into which the concern has just moved. While the structure is adapted in the most complete and admirable way for the purposes of cigar making on an extensive scale, for offices and other quarters for the company, with stores on the ground floor to be rented, the chief element of interest is the work room. Therein the Wohl & Comstock Co. has provided, not simply for an immense output of cigars, but for the convenience of the workmen and the best possible sanitary conditions. The entire third floor of the building, located at 1462-66 West Madison Street, is devoted to the manufacturing part of the company's business.

The building is three stories in height. The ground floor is occupied by three large stores, which rent at such figures as to result in a good income to the owners. The remainder of the building is occupied for the purposes of the factory, its offices, shipping rooms, accommodations for cigar banding and packing rooms. As the result of long experience, the company has arranged the basement in such manner as to make it a most complete storage place for tobacco stock. Concrete floors, separate clothes rooms for male and female employees, drinking fountains, handsome lavatories, and other fittings and furnishing abound throughout the structure. Rest rooms and lunch apartments are furnished for the employees and arrangements are made with a first-class cafe for serving lunches.

The Wohl & Comstock Co. was organized six years ago, for the purpose of making clear Havana cigars of high grade. Peter Wohl, a man of the best of training and long and successful practical experience as a manufacturer, was chosen president. Wilbur D. Comstock, a thoroughly experienced cigar man, especially in the selling department, who had served nine years with Ruhstrat & Curlett and with the Ruhstrat-Cowley Company, was selected as secretary and treasurer. Mr. Wohl started in the business sixteen years ago in the great Eugene Vallens & Co. factory. His experience in the manufacturing line, combined with that of Mr. Comstock in handling and selling goods, resulted in an ideal business arrangement.

The company's business was large from the very start and it has increased to immense proportions. It has devoted its equipment and its energies mainly to the production of the one big brand of the factory, the "Evangelina Cisneros." These are made in twenty-two sizes and shapes and are regarded as one of the very best brands in clear Havana cigars. The tobacco for their manufacture is selected by Mr. Wohl personally, who makes several trips to Cuba each year.

May Repeal Manila Registration Law

A bill has been introduced in the assembly at Manila, P. I., providing for the rescinding of the registration of cigarmakers. The new measure aims to make the factories responsible, instead of putting it directly in the hands of the authorities.

The bill also provides for the regulation of cigarmakers who manufacture cigars in their homes for the purpose of sale direct to dealers and consumers, and will compel them to pay an annual license, together with the regular internal revenue tax. Those who make cigars in their homes for delivery to the factories are to be exempt from this annual tax.

It is rumored that the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company will run its suburban station on North State Street, which will throw Lake Street into a retail thoroughfare again. The Marshall Field estate has bought property worth over a million dollars in that vicinity within four months. The estate is a holder of a large block of Northwestern stock. Mr. Burns, of Burns & Goldfuss, formerly paid $4,500 a year rental for his site; now he is called on for $9,000. His land is on the inside. If they raise again, Mr. Burns will be on the outside.

Julius Fernbach & Company, 203 East Thirty-first Avenue, are putting out a holiday package, called "Cyrilla-Innovation," in a cabinet style. Mr. Fernbach has these cigars placed well and expects that his display will prove a big "ad" for the brand.

Sam Marco, 149 South Fifth Avenue, has a window display of the "Marco" five cent cigars. He says he had the brand made up twenty years ago and just revived it, putting out a new red label. He intends getting out a new brand, "Saumarco," named after the opera singer.

George E. Johnson, vice-president of the Havana American Tobacco Company, has been in the city calling on the Chicago jobbers. Mr. Johnson is an old Chicago boy, formerly with J. & B. Moos, and before that with Carl Uppmann and Sprague, Warner & Company.

A. B. Cooke, who has two stands now, has rented the cigar privilege in the Advertising Building on Madison Street, near Clark.

P. Bauer, the "Abbey" of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, was here recently.

The United Cigar Stores Company has leased the corner store, 20 x 30 feet, in the new building at the corner of Halsted and Adams Streets.

The Standard Drug Company, in the Brevoort Hotel Building, 101 West Madison Street, has put in a cigar stand and is carrying many popular brands. The space is small, but the location is very good. The management is featuring some advertised brands at cut prices and are making a drive on "Soneda" and "Fastido" cigars.

A new cigar and tobacco store, one of the largest and finest on the South Side, has been opened at 522 East Forty-seventh street, by M. & J. Bernstein. The establishment also has a very fine billiard parlor and outfit. The Bernsteins will handle a large stock of standard cigars.

Jacob Bemer, one of the pioneer cigar dealers of Chicago, but for some years engaged in the coal business, died a few days ago at the age of eighty-five. He was the father of William and Jacob Bemer, owners of the Bemer Brothers business.

A. Dexheimer has bought out the cigar and tobacco business of S. M. Bernstein, 310 West Jackson Street. It is reported that Mr. Bernstein will continue in the cigar business, starting a new store on VanBuren Street.

Newsy Trade Jottings

The Valley Cigar Company, John T. Higgins, president, have leased a store in the DeMenil Building, at 117 North Seventh Street, St. Louis, Mo.

B. H. Holtschulte has purchased the cigar factory of James Stapleton, 25 South Fifth Street, Newark, Ohio, assuming control of the business. It is his intention to have the plant rank in the first class.

A new and up-to-date cigar stand was opened last week by Roy Larkin, in Dwight Block, Jackson, Mich. A stock, including all of the best brands and new fixtures throughout, combine to make it one of the finest in the city. This makes the second cigar stand that Mr. Larkin is operating in Jackson.

J. O. King, Helena, Mont., recently opened a store in that city. Tobacco will form a chief part of the stock.

The Fort Findlay Cigar Store, Findlay, Ohio, formerly owned by John Ritter is now being operated by Frank Yergler, who reopened the store in the early part of December. Each person visiting the store on the opening day was given a souvenir.

The building in the rear of the home of Mr. Padgett, a cigar manufacturer of Clyde, N. Y., which was used for manufacturing purposes, was destroyed by fire last week. Mr. Padgett stated that he could not estimate the loss, though it would be large, there being in the building at the time of the fire an extensive stock including many manufactured cigars. There is very little insurance.

COLD WEATHER ARRIVES WITH CHRISTMAS TRADE

New Store of LaFond Company Veritable Palace—Increase in Production of Cigars and Tobacco For Month of November

DETROIT, December 10.

WELL here we are, ten degrees above zero and a roaring wind from the northwest, and, whether you believe it or not, "Winter has come." Everywhere one sees the muskrat-lined ulsters, with the near Persian-lamb collars, and the smell of camphor and moth balls in the air.

Good, old Kris Kringle has ensconced himself at the street corner, and it's fun to see the kiddies go up and shyly, with finger in mouth corner, tell him what to bring them. I listened to one fine little fellow and heard him tell Santa to send a box of chocolate cigars. There is a Henry Deisel or Otto Eisenlohr in the embryo in that little fellow, sure.

An article of considerable interest to the leaf tobacco trade and cigar merchants in Detroit and Chicago appeared in a recent copy of the "International Moose," and I reproduce it here. "Brother Sol Mincer is about the best cue artist around the clubhouse. If you do not believe it, ask Buell or 'Bake' in fact, Sol admits it himself. One day recently a Mr. Roy Sutter, one of Chicago's crack billiard experts, sought Mincer and took him over to the Metropole to show him how a real good artist performs. They played four games, and to the surprise of the Chicago man Sol won in a walk. He finished his first game with a run of 42 and the second with a run of 62." Mincer is the manufacturer of the "El Mincero," a clear Havana cigar of high quality.

Mr. Otto Brenner, of Brenner Bros., cigar manufacturers of London, Ont., has just returned from a very successful trip to the Canadian northwest and the Pacific Coast in Canada and is headquartering at Detroit. Mr. Brenner's firm manufactures the celebrated "Lavera" and "La Preferencia" cigars in Canada and have them well placed throughout the Dominion.

The store on Woodward Avenue, opposite the Pontchartrain, which M. & A. LaFond Company expected to occupy by December 1st, has been much delayed and is not yet occupied. I managed today, however, to get a peek at its interior and from what I saw I venture to say Messrs. LaFond's customers have a surprise and a treat in store for them when they enter this new palace for tobacco devotees.

A cigar manufacturer who has made really rapid strides is Benj. Schwartz, manufacturer of the "R. G. Dum" and "Red Bell" cigars. A year ago Mr. Schwartz was making cigars in a frame barn in the rear of his house, but during the year 1912 he began the erection of a fine fire-proof structure at Russell and Napoleon Streets, facing the Eastern Market. The building occupies a frontage of 85 feet on Russell Street and is two stories in height, and Mr. Schwartz's factory occupies the entire second floor.

A very pleasant gentleman is Mr. N. B. Shapera, of M. A. Gunst & Co., of New York and Tampa, and whom I met in O'Brien & Co.'s cigar department a few days ago. Mr. Shapera is sponsor in this territory for the celebrated "Van Dyck" cigar from the Gunst factory, and reports a very satisfactory business. Mr. Shapera was en route for Minneapolis, his home city, where he will finish out the year.

Best & Russell's Detroit branch is being kept very busy these days trying to keep the local trade supplied with "Hand Made," a five cent cigar from the Spietz & Worch Co.'s factory, this city. The two city men are booking orders faster than the factories can supply the cigars. Best & Russell are doing a fine business, too, on the celebrated "Sanchez & Haya" cigars.

E. M. Harris & Co. are showing a fine window display of "La Flor de Jéites" from the factory of Jéites & Blumenthal, Philadelphia. There are also some very fine displays about town of "Havana Ribbon" from the factory of Bayuk Bros. Co., Philadelphia.

What a change there has been made in the manufacture of ten cent cigars in the past decade. It does not seem more than a dozen years that every high class cigar dealer carried such fine seed and Havana cigars as "Royal Banner," "La Flor de Moebis," "Ben Hur Perfecto," "Green Seal," "Phoenix" and "La Flor de Ortman," but today if you go into a cigar store, or to a stand in a hotel, and ask for a seed and Havana cigar, nineteen out of every twenty clerks won't know what you mean and the majority of them would not know what you meant if you asked for a Sumatra wrapped cigar. If you wish a "Banner" or a "Swift" you have to ask for a "domestic" cigar. The average hotel cigar stand clerk knows only Havana imported, Key West and domestic, and when they have mastered those three terms they are full-fledged cigar purveyors.

On a visit around to the many factories here, I find every one on the jump and as busy as one can be. All report a very satisfactory business for 1912 and splendid prospects for 1913.

Below I give you the Internal Revenue returns for the month of November, as compared with the same month last year in this district, a fine increase, indeed.

| | Nov. 1911. | Nov. 1912. |
|---------------|-------------|-------------|
| Cigars | $78,284.37 | $80,380.26 |
| Tobacco | 135,937.36 | 154,288.97 |

It being so near the end of the year, there have been very few "Knights of the Grip" with us during the past few weeks, but there are a few who stick everlastingly at it and seem to travel thirteen months a year, and they are: Leaf men, Fred. Singer, S. Rossin & Co., New York, and Stephen Friend, Friend & Co., New York. Cigar and cigarette men, Jack Mittelberger, Neumann & Mayer Company, Philadelphia; Al. Korn, S. H. Furgath & Co., New York, and Nate Hubert and John Schram, introducing "Lord Salisbury" cigarettes, of Butler & Butler, and J. M. Dixon, of Stephano Bros.

An item of considerable interest to Detroiters is an article appearing recently in financial papers, as well as in the daily press, to the effect that the United States Rubber Company will purchase or lease thousands of acres of land in the Malay group of islands, and in Sumatra in particular, on which to plant rubber trees, the finished product of which enters so largely into the manufacture of automobile tires and bicycle tires. As Detroit has among her many very large industries one of the largest, if not the very largest, tire factory in the world, and whose capacity is soon to be doubled, it will be seen that cigar wrapper leaf is apt to take a back seat as Detroit's most important trade commodity with the Island of Sumatra.

The premises now occupied by Selling & May, clothiers on Monroe Avenue, are to be reconstructed, Selling & May retiring from business, and the large floor space will be divided into several stores, one of which, No. 8 Monroe Avenue, the store nearest to Cadillac Square, will be occupied by the Central Cigar Company, notwithstanding a recent article in a competitive trade journal to the contrary. The Central Cigar Company is to be congratulated upon acquiring such a location, it being in the very center of retail activities.

On the evening of December 30th Julius (Jim) Robinson, of the Central Cigar Company, is to join in wedlock Miss Dorothy Katzenburg, one of Detroit's society belles and a young lady of great charm and accomplishment.

A late arrival in this market is Walter Eisenmann, of Eisenmann Bros., Cincinnati, Ohio. Mr. Eisenmann is Cincinnati's youngest leaf tobacco merchant and a great hustler.

Seidenberg Factory Supplies Music With Magnophone

Trenton Concern Installs System to Entertain Employees— Distributed to Four Floors

A new wrinkle in the effort to keep the employees of cigar factories entertained, has just been started by the Seidenberg Cigar Factory of Trenton, New Jersey. This consists of an electric magnophone system, which has been installed in the various departments. The apparatus is in the main office building, and wires run to horns on each floor, four in number. These distribute the music throughout the building.

This new idea in entertaining supplants the old one in the factory, in which music was supplied by a pianist, who played daily. Music, it is asserted, does not hinder the progress of the work. On the contrary, it has a tendency to expediate it.

Last week the employees were pleasantly surprised when Manager Albert Gold, of the factory, switched on the current from the main office. Immediately the instruments began to play popular songs. The instrument will be operated almost continuously. It will be used also during the noon hour recess, when the cigarmakers will have music for dancing.

San Francisco

Holiday Feeling Gradually Boosts Sales—Charles P. Sichel Dies in Hospital—Success of Anti-Saloon Movement Results in Opening of New Cigar Stores

SAN FRANCISCO, December 5.

THE weather has been very kind to the cigar men recently, the rains of the early part of November having been succeeded by several weeks of fine, clear, cold weather, just the sort that leads to a large consumption of cigars. The holiday feeling seems to be abroad early this year, and, even this early, a good deal of holiday buying is evident. As usual in this market, there is no great call for special holiday packings, these having been long frowned upon by the trade; but the demand for standard brands in popular sizes and in small boxes has begun earlier than usual and promises to be larger than in recent holiday seasons. Some of the down-town stores are already sold out of eightieths in their most popular lines, and dealers have sent in hurry orders for additional supplies. The box trade for larger boxes is also picking up and indications are favorable for one of the best Decembers in recent years.

Charles P. Sichel, one of the best known cigar salesmen on the Coast, who had been recently covering Northern California for S. Bachman & Co., of this city, died last week at the Wakefield Hospital after a protracted illness. Mr. Sichel was fifty-two years old and left no near relatives, but he is mourned by an unusual number of warm personal friends. His place with S. Bachman & Co. is being filled by Sam Dammensbaum of this city.

Now that December is well under way, the cigar men who have been away on business and pleasure trips are wending homeward, and the "personal mention" nowadays consists largely of notices of the return of prominent men in the trade. A. I. Esberg, vice-president of M. A. Gunst & Co., is back from a visit to the company's branches and allied concerns in Oregon and Washington; and M. A. Gunst, president of the house, is due in San Francisco from the East in a few days. Louis Erdi, traveling representative of Melachrino & Co., has completed his tour of Nevada and is again with the local trade. Arthur Meyer, who is in Southern California with the Bustillo Bros. & Diaz line, will be home before the end of the week. Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Co., returned from his Northern trip this week and will spend the remainder of the year in close touch with the San Francisco headquarters. W. H. McCorquodale, of the Ehrman Bros. traveling force, has completed a tour of Central California and Nevada and is again to the Front Street office. Mr. Galena, one of the outside men of the Edward Wolf Company, who has been out on a long trip covering a good portion of the North Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain regions, is back and will put in the next few days in helping get out the goods on the big bunch of orders that he brought back with him. Other absentees in the trade are due to return during the next week.

J. P. Soussens, formerly of Chicago, has secured a lease on a good location on New Montgomery Street, opposite the entrance to the Palace Hotel, and hopes to get things in shape for opening about a week before Christmas. The new store will be in line for a good run of trade from the start.

It appears that the anti-saloon people of California at the last election, while beaten at many places, were nevertheless able to put a good many saloons out of business, and this is expected to have some little effect on the cigar trade. At some places it will doubtless lead to the opening of new stores or to the strengthening of older ones. At Williams, Cal., Joseph Lanouette has taken a lease on one of the suppressed saloons and its fixtures, and will put in an up-to-date cigar store, with a billiard and reading room and a department for the sale of soft drinks.

A special advertising campaign in the interest of the "La Integridad" cigar of the Charles S. Morris Company is to be begun in and about San Francisco in the early days of January. The Hoffman-Moore Company, of this city, distributors of the "La Integridad," has been promised the assistance of a live specialty man from the factory. Mr. Morris, president of the company, was well pleased with the work done here by the distributors, and was convinced that an advertising campaign would be productive of good results. Mr. Hoffman, president of the Hoffman-Moore Company, is now on a short tour of the South.

Haas Bros., wholesale grocers and tobacconists of this city, will close the year with a new brand of Manila cigars—"La Flor de Intal"—a line of goods imported by Henry W. Peabody & Co., of this city.

The Dignan & Brachfeld Cigar Company has been incorporated in this city with a capital stock of $10,000 by K. M. Brachfeld, W. J. Lewis and others. The company has taken over the Pabst Cigar Store at the corner of Ellis and Powell Streets, and will devote its attention to the retail trade. J. J. Dignan, well known in the local trade, will be in charge.

Alexander Herbert, of the Philip Morris Company, spent the past week in San Francisco in the interest of the Philip Morris cigarettes.

According to reports from the South, the city council of Los Angeles has turned down hard the recommendation of the Public Utilities Committee that an ordinance be passed prohibiting smoking on street cars. By a practically unanimous vote the council informed the committee that its business was to regulate, not public morals, but the public utilities.

Germany Increasing Consumption of Cigarettes

THE consumption of cigarettes is rapidly increasing in Germany. In 1897 approximately one billion one hundred million cigarettes were manufactured in Germany, while the present production is about nine times as large. Cigarette cartridges and papers used by smokers who make their own cigarettes and which also pay a revenue tax in Germany must be added to cigarettes in order to show total consumption. The following figures are based on revenue tax returns and show cigarettes and cigarette envelopes (cartridges and papers):

| Year. | Cigarettes manufactured. | Excess imports over exports. | Envelopes. | Total. |
|------------|--------------------------|------------------------------|---------------|----------------|
| 1907 | 5,694,000,000 | 400,000,000 | 1,726,000,000 | 7,820,000,000 |
| 1908 | 6,024,000,000 | 430,000,000 | 2,244,000,000 | 8,698,000,000 |
| 1909 | 6,866,000,000 | 400,000,000 | 2,244,000,000 | 9,508,000,000 |
| 1910 | 8,361,000,000 | 438,000,000 | 2,272,000,000 | 11,071,000,000 |
| 1911 | 9,382,000,000 | 595,000,000 | 2,455,000,000 | 12,432,000,000 |

These figures show the phenomenal increase of the German cigarette industry. Output for 1911 shows an increase of 12 per cent, as compared with 1910 and 82 per cent, as compared with 1907, which means that production has almost doubled in five years.

The tremendous increase in output appears to be due to rapidly increasing consumption of cheap cigarettes. Of the 9.85 billion cigarettes taxed in 1911 (domestic and imported), 3.47 billion, or 35 1/2 per cent, were cigarettes which retail at 1 1/2 pfennings (0.357 cent) each, while 3.53 billion, or 35.7 per cent, belonged to the next cheapest grade, retailing at 2 1/2 pfennings (0.357 to 0.595 cent). It is estimated that German smokers spend about $60,000,000 annually for cigarettes and that some 20,000 Germans smoke an average of 620 cigarettes a year.

Germany imported 1,372,800 pounds of cigarettes in 1911, against only 1,075,140 pounds in 1910. Imports come chiefly from Austria-Hungary, as follows:

| | 1910 Pounds. | 1911 Pounds. |
|-----------------------|--------------|--------------|
| Austria-Hungary | 800,360 | 1,087,680 |
| Egypt | 157,080 | 169,400 |
| Great Britain | 42,680 | 38,940 |
| Russia | 34,320 | 34,980 |
| Other countries | 40,700 | 41,800 |
| Total | 1,075,140 | 1,372,800 |

Germany exports about one-fifth as many cigarettes as are imported. Exports go chiefly to Holland, Denmark, Norway, and Switzerland.—(From Vice Consul General William Dawson, Jr., Frankfurt on the Main.)

To stockholders on record December 14, the American Snuff Company has declared a dividend of 1 1/2% on preferred stock, and 3%, with 3% extra, on common stock, payable January 1.

A quarterly dividend of 1 3/4% has been declared by the United Cigar Stores on their preferred stock.

Holders of the preferred stock of the American Cigar Company, on record December 14, will receive a quarterly dividend of 1 1/2%, payable January 2.

A dividend of 6% has been declared by the British American Tobacco Company for the year 1912.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed by Alva Franklin, manager of two cigar stores in Portland, Ore. The assets are placed at $580 with liabilities of $1,245.58.

After extensive alterations have been completed, George Martin will open, about January 1, an up-to-date cigar store at the corner of Sixteenth Street and Fifth Avenue, Davenport, Iowa.

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Revenue Receipts Prove York Men Are Busy

YORK, December 9.

THE receipts at the local revenue office during the past week prove pretty decisively that the cigar manufacturers have been doing one of the best businesses of any month in the history of the trade. The receipts for the month of November at the York revenue office were $119,000, an increase over the same month last year of $13,000. The receipts for the month of October were $128,532.40, a record for this section. There is always a slight falling away during November, the high water mark of production being the previous month.

There were sixteen new factories opened during November. They will give employment to 210 hands. This is less than in October, when eighteen factories were started, giving employment to 184 hands. The largest of these plants to begin operations was that of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, which opened in Strinestown with a force of 50 hands. The new plants, starting, employing five hands or more, were: George W. Leber, Red Lion tobacco factory, Red Lion, 30 hands; William A. Dill, Windsor, five hands; Charles H. Knaub, Windsor, five hands; Folcomer & Gohn, Red Lion, 40 hands; Nettie I. Landis, Windsor, five hands; Eagle Tobacco Company, Mt. Wolf, 20 hands; United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, Strinestown, 50 hands; J. O. Olewiler, Windsor, five hands; L. O. Shellenberger, Red Lion, 30 hands; Preston B. Bear, Dallastown, five hands.

The branch factory of Celistino, Costello & Co. at Dallastown was opened in Dallastown last week, giving employment to eight hands. Arthur Smith is manager of the factory. This concern manufactures the "Barrister" and "Little Barrister" cigars and have a heavy trade in the Middle West. The main factory is located in York.

Reports from Yoe give it that the cigar industry at that place is enjoying a brisk era of prosperity. Many of the factories have been compelled to work at night to fill the orders. G. A. Kohler, one of the Yoe manufacturers, has established a store in Dallas, Tex., where he is doing a fine business. He is now shipping his cigars to all parts of the country.

Much surprise was occasioned by the report of the death of Howard Lee Kohler, the Dallastown cigar manufacturer. Mr. Kohler had been troubled for some time with a bad tooth, which later developed into a neuralgia attack. He went about his work as usual and was in the factory the morning of his death, on December 2nd. He felt bad late in the morning and rested for a short time. Later he was seized with convulsions and died from the attack.

Mr. Kohler's death was a shock to the community in which he lived and also to his many friends in this city. He was thirty-two years of age and since the death of his father, eight years ago, had managed the cigar manufacturing business in Dallastown. He had made a host of friends and was highly respected by all. Mr. Kohler was a member of a number of lodges and of the Dallastown Band. He is survived by four sisters.

In the activity in the cigar business in this district this fall the cigar box men did not fail to get their share of trade. Many of them have been working at night to get the boxes in the hands of the manufacturers in time. H. W. Heffener & Son report a record-breaking fall business. In common with cigar box makers in other parts of the country, they did little this year in fancy boxes for the holiday trade. The tendency this year among manufacturers has been to put out the different brands in their usual packings. This is as true of imported cigars as well as of those made in this country. H. W. Heffener, of this firm, is now on a hunting trip to North Carolina. This is an annual excursion of Mr. Heffener's, he usually staying for about ten days.

The Eisenlohr factory has been working until 8 o'clock for some time. This is the finest building in York devoted to manufacturing cigars.

Pennsylvania Planters Discuss Crop Conditions

At Regular Meeting of Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association, Members Present Reports From Different Sections—To Stop Rebate Practice

THE regular monthly meeting of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association was held on Monday afternoon, December 9, in the Board of Trade rooms, Lancaster, Pa. Among the addresses which were listened to with great interest was one by Amos Hershey, of Gordonville, who spoke on "How would you handle the 1912 crop of tobacco, from pole to bale, to the best advantage?"

In the course of his remarks, he claimed that tobacco should be very damp before stripping and that it should not be dampened by putting it in the cellar, as tobacco gets a musty smell from this cause. He also cautioned the packers to see that the tobacco is well shaken and is not packed too tightly. It should average seventy to eighty pounds

What the Reading Factors are Doing

READING, December 9.

THE Reading cigar manufacturers are still experiencing difficulty in securing the required number of cigarmakers, but they will have to get along as best they can, for from all indications there are no more to be had. There will soon be a lull in trade, which will enable them to catch up with orders. The retail trade is quiet at this writing. It will probably be a good fall, but little can be told regarding what the retail trade can expect at this time for the holiday business.

Leaf tobacco sold all the way from one cent to $2.30 per pound at the sale of the bankrupt stock of the estate of Louis Adler several weeks ago. The sale, held under the direction of Trustee Fehr, realized about $400. There were about fifty bidders. Some of the bids were so low that the trustee refused to sell a number of the cases of wrapper tobacco. The highest price paid was for Florida Sumatra, which went for $2.30 a pound.

The first meeting of the creditors of John Newcomet, the bankrupt cigar manufacturer, is to be held on Friday, December 13th, at the office of the referee.

Henry J. Yeager, a prominent cigar manufacturer of Manheim, died at his home at that place on December 3rd after a short illness of uraemic poisoning. He is survived by a widow and nine children. Mr. Yeager was forty-five years of age.

F. A. Steber, head of the cigar manufacturing firm of Steber & Co., of Warren, and his son, R. W. Steber, were recent visitors in Reading. Mr. Steber was looking for a location for a new factory. He employs about 125 hands in his factory at Warren, but because it is so far from the cigar centers he experiences difficulty in securing enough hands. His idea was to secure a building in Reading, where he could make his better grade cigars.

On behalf of the creditors of George E. Lehr, the local cigar manufacturer, attorneys will apply for the appointment of a receiver on December 11th. The application will be made to the judge of the United States District Court in Philadelphia. Mr. Lehr is engaged in business in this city at 1148 Perkiomen Street and 912 Penn Street.

Latest Doings Around Lancaster

LANCASTER, December 9.

THERE has been little of note happening in this district within the past fortnight. The leaf situation is receiving the most thought.

In my last letter on the leaf market I mentioned the fact that the new crop was being purchased more widely than was proven. This was scouted at by many, but later developments have proven that the facts were as stated. Little of this leaf has been taken by local packers as compared with the quantity purchased by outside parties.

Stauffer Bros., of New Holland, report a fine trade this fall on their leading brands. This is one of the best known factories in the eastern part of the county and has been turning out products second to none. Their big brand is the "S. B.," a seed and Havana cigar, retailing at five cents.

E. H. Briody, the Western representative of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, has gone on his European trip. He will join his daughter, Miss Marguerite, in England, and will return with her early in 1913. Mr. Briody will probably make his home in Detroit when he returns. He has been making that point his headquarters while in the West.

There appears to be a slight letting up in the cigar manufacturing hustle. Many of the factories are still working overtime, but not as many as several weeks ago.

Milton Ranck, the leaf man, was a recent visitor in Philadelphia. A number of the leaf houses report some good sales. E. L. Nissley & Sons made several shipments of 1909, 1910 and 1911 goods to Western concerns. 1911 seems to be selling well lately. William Levy sold over 500 cases of 1911 within the past two weeks.

per bale, and be thirty inches long. A. B. Landis, of Roherstown, spoke along the same lines, and advised growers to work their tobacco before it is frozen.

J. H. Pickel, who was on a committee to arrange for better prices for tobacco, made his report. One reason that some planters are not securing better prices, he asserted, was on account of their not growing tobacco properly. He stated that in some communities there are farmers who sell their tobacco every year at about the same prices. This, he claimed, looked as though these farmers were receiving rebates. He advised the association to get together and prevent this practice. This would be for the betterment of all concerned, Mr. Pickel declared.

Reports from Marietta, East Lampeter, Eden Township and Coleraine prove that tobacco has not been bought widely in those sections. The prices range as a rule from ten and three to eleven and four cents.

The annual meeting of the association will be held on the second Monday of January, at which time officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

New York Market Quiet--Casing Weather Helps Wisconsin Planters--Connecticut Warehouses Opened for Season--
50 per cent. of Pennsylvania Crop Sold

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY, December 9.

THE government's recent report on the stocks of leaf tobacco on hand has been the chief topic of leaf dealers. In the opinion of many they are so far from correct that discussions are plentiful. Trading has been going along in a quiet fashion, with the Pennsylvania tobacco and Havana receiving the most attention. Havana continues to interest the majority of the dealers. There has been a steady demand for the better tobaccos. There is no question that in the manner it has been received there will be no trouble in selling it. The other tobacco is selling quietly, there having been no change in the situation within the past two weeks. Binders continue to be very scarce.

ELMIRA, December 3.

Tobacco dealers report that the yield this year in Chemung County is the best in many seasons. Not since 1906 has the local crop been of so good quality and consequently the farmers have benefited financially.

All the tobacco grown in the Chemung Valley was bought up by local dealers two months ago. There are very few crops unsold. Asked the reason for the excellent condition of the tobacco this year, a local dealer stated today the abundance of late rains stimulated the growth and added to its value. The average price paid here was from 12 and 15 cents.

With the exception of a slight cold sweat, the local tobacco was harvested, kept in good condition and found a ready sale. The acreage in 1912 was larger than it had been in several years, due to almost ideal climatic conditions. Last year tobacco grown in the same fields brought only from 8 to 12 cents. The increase in price this year was due, of course, to the higher quality. Dry weather last season caused a short growth, while this year the weed was of uniform length.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, December 6.

THERE is but little change to note as regards the buying movement. Just about enough business is being done to hold prices steady both as regards the better and stemming ends of the crop, and apparently no special effort is being made to increase the holdings of the larger operators. The following are sample sales:

Arthur Herrick, 7a at 10¢3c.

Bert Palmer, 6a at 9¢3c.

J. Gauderson, 5a at 10¢3c.

A season of casing weather came during the week which made conditions favorable for removing the hanging crop from the shed and many growers improved the opportunity.

Interest in old stock was revived this week by the purchase of about 1,000 cases of '11, mostly B stock, from local packers at Staughton, Deerfield and Edgerton, made for the account of the Rosenwald firm of New York, through M. H. Bekkedal, the state representative. A good healthy demand prevails for all binder stock.

N. J. Bijur, of the firm of E. Rosenwald & Bro., New York leaf dealers, was in the state for a short time Saturday. M. H. Bekkedal, state representative of the firm, was also a visitor in the local market the same day.

The fifty girls employed in warehouse No. 4 at Staughton, stemming for T. B. Earle, of Edgerton, finished work Friday and after all had been paid they proceeded to make the foreman, Jacob Offerdale, some presents, including a gold watch, fob and a box of cigars.—Edgerton Reporter.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, December 6.

ALL the tobacco sorting and packing warehouses have now opened for the winter, and by the end of the month will be running full time with a full force of helpers. The large warehouse of E. A. and W. F. Fuller in Depot Street, the John F. Barnett, Jr., warehouse in West Suffield, who pack for Kutinski, Adler & Co., of New York, and the George Alderman warehouse in Main Street are all running. At the Alderman warehouse, A. C. Ludden will be the foreman, and at the Fuller warehouse Howard Pease has been engaged. Many of the growers, who sold to out-of-town firms, are now delivering their crops and those who have not finished stripping the leaves are rushing the work, so as to make early deliveries.

The American Cigar Company opened up several weeks ago at the Spencer warehouse in Main Street with a full force of helpers, and the Weaver warehouse in West Suffield has also been running for the past three weeks. Practically all the smaller growers sold their crops while they were standing in the fields. The opening of these warehouses means employment to several hundred persons. There are between 500 and 600 persons given employment each year in the Suffield warehouses.

One or two buyers have been through Suffield recently trying to shade the price on tobacco bought by them in the field. All they ask, as a rule, is to have the grower throw off from half a cent to two cents a pound on the crop. Some of the growers have stood for a reduction rather than to fight it out, while others have refused to lower the price a particle. Most of the buyers, however, are taking the crops at the contracted price unless the damage from pole-burn or hail is heavy.

EAST HARTFORD, December 5.

Local tobacco warehouses are opening from time to time for the winter, and in a few weeks all will be working with about the usual forces, packing and assorting the 1912 crop. Hunting Brothers are receiving broadleaf crops which they recently purchased in the vicinity of Broad Brook. Benjamin W. Ranney, the local agent for Rosenwald & Brother, has been active in buying lately, and the warehouse is running with a small force. He is reported as having purchased the crops of Harry F. Comstock, Thomas Johnson and Leon Brnham.

MASSACHUSETTS.

SPRINGFIELD, December 6.

ALL the tobacco warehouses are now running with full forces and will continue until well into the spring. It is said that there is something of a scarcity of good sorters owing to the open fall and the opportunity to continue the farm work. The syndicate farms are breaking up new land and getting out lumber for new sheds the coming season. Twenty years ago the farmer who raised ten acres of tobacco was considered a large grower, but today there are individual growers with from forty to seventy-five acres and the syndicates have three and four times as much. The growth of the shade-grown industry is not as rapid as would be expected in view of the high prices obtained, but the initial cost of starting and carrying a crop through deters most of the farmers from trying it.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA, December 7.

THE leaf market has not shown any unusual developments within the past two weeks. Dealers state that manufacturers have only been buying for immediate needs and when the stocks on hand, after filling holiday orders, are used up there will be a resumption of trade on a larger scale. Deals are being reported every day, but not of normal size. 1911 Pennsylvania is selling well, one of the older firms reporting that a great deal more of this leaf had been sold than was generally understood.

The binder scarcity continues to prevail here and will probably only be relieved when the new crop is in the hands of the leaf men. The prevalent opinion here appears to be that the government's late report on the leaf tobacco situation throughout the country has done little to enlighten either the packer, the farmer or the manufacturer. The figures appear far too large in many cases state men who are closely in touch with the leaf tobacco trade throughout the country.

There have been no sales of moment in either Havana or Sumatra, the latter especially being quiet at this writing.

LANCASTER, December 9.

As predicted in these columns a fortnight ago the local packers were not aware of the wide purchase of the new crop by the larger interests. The buying had been going along quietly. The United Cigar Manufacturer's Company and the Eisenlohr's started the buying movement and from all reports secured a goodly amount of the weed. When local men realized the purchasing which was being done they started also and had to pay prices which they considered far too high in view of the local situation.

From late reports it is learned that about half of the crop is now out of the planters' hands. The larger proportion of this has been taken by outside parties. Comparatively few of the local houses have purchased any tobacco, they claiming that there is still enough of the old crops on hand to keep them going for some time. As the report of the government, giving the supply of leaf tobacco in the country, stated that there were about 297,000 cases of Pennsylvania still in the hands of manufacturers and leaf men, perhaps they are wise in not stocking up so heavily.

While the trade is quiet at this time, leaf men predict a pronounced activity after the holidays. At that time they expect the supplies of surplus stock in the hands of the manufacturers to be depleted. The cigar trade is in a most flourishing condition and many plants have orders on hand which will carry them well over the rest of the year, with a good start in the new.

Will Investigate Foreign Leaf Tobacco Trade

Congressional Commission Will Look Into Conditions, Which Are Said to Keep Down American Prices

An exhaustive inquiry into the condition of the leaf tobacco trade in all important foreign countries, in its bearing upon the interests in this country, is contemplated by the Congressional Tobacco Commission which held its first meeting in Washington last week. Senator Martin, of Virginia, was elected chairman, and was instructed to organize a commission.

"We shall not leave a stone unturned to get at the conspiracy to keep down prices of American tobacco in the foreign market," said Senator Martin. "Farmers are satisfied that there is a combination to that end among all the great European nations. We intend to ask the assistance of the State Department, and the Department of Commerce and Labor.

Eastern Cuban Connecticut Tobacco Company Reorganizes

Eli Cohen Succeeds Nathan Starr as President—Concern to Move to Feeding Hills

The Eastern Cuban Connecticut Tobacco Company, of Thompsonville, Conn., has been re-organized. The company now expects to enlarge its facilities for growing and buying purposes. The meeting was held in Enfield several weeks ago, at which time Nathan Starr, of New York, who had been president and treasurer of the concern, was retired. Eli Cohen, of New Haven, succeeded to the position held by Mr. Starr.

The company has decided to remove its operations from Enfield to Feeding Hills, and has already secured nearly 200 acres of good tobacco land at that place. Thomas B. Carroll, who has had charge of the Thomasville plant, will supervise the business in the new territory.

Miami Valley Tobacco Growers Effect Organization

At a meeting held on December 2nd, at the Phillips House, Dayton, Ohio, the members of the Miami Valley Tobacco Growers' Association affected an organization whereby the body becomes a holding concern, and will conduct clearing house operations. It will be incorporated under the laws of the state, and while it will be allied with the Growers' Association, it will be conducted as a separate concern. Warehouses have either been built or taken over at West Baltimore, West Alexandria, Miamisburg, Lytle, Brookville, Covington, Troy and Greenville, Ohio, and Union City, Indiana.

Leaf Tobacco Market

KENTUCKY.

LEXINGTON, December 4.

A GOOD soaking rain fell last night throughout Central Kentucky, breaking the protracted drought and furnishing weather conditions favorable for the tobacco growers to handle their tobacco and get it in case. It is expected that the Lexington tobacco warehouse market, which has been dull since the opening two weeks ago, will boom from now on, and that hundreds of wagon loads will crowd the breaks here in the next few days.

This damp, soggy, warm atmosphere is just exactly what is needed to bring tobacco into that soft, pliable condition so that it can be handled, a condition which it has not been in since it was cured up. The farmers are glad because it will let them get the tobacco off of hand, the tobacco dealers are glad for it will put them to work, hundreds of people who work in the factories and prizing and stemming houses are glad because it means the beginning of a winter's employment for them.

Tobacco began to come in order nicely yesterday. Last night was very warm for the season and a heavy fog, which penetrated every nook and cranny that was not tightly closed and which was just what was needed for the ordering of tobacco, covered this region like a blanket. Today the clouds hang low and frequently send down a gentle rain and the warm temperature continues.

United States Said to Have Sufficient Turkish Tobacco

Although the Balkan war has virtually stopped the importation of tobacco from Turkey to this country, it is said there is no fear that the supply now on hand will soon be used up. Leaf tobacco importers, in New York, assert that they have prepared for such an emergency, and have thousands of bales piled up in bonded warehouses in that city.

$7500 is the price said to have been paid by Krueger & Moscow, 805 Fourth Street, Sioux City, Iowa, to the receivers for the cigar, tobacco and pipe repairing business of C. A. Kroon & Company, that city.

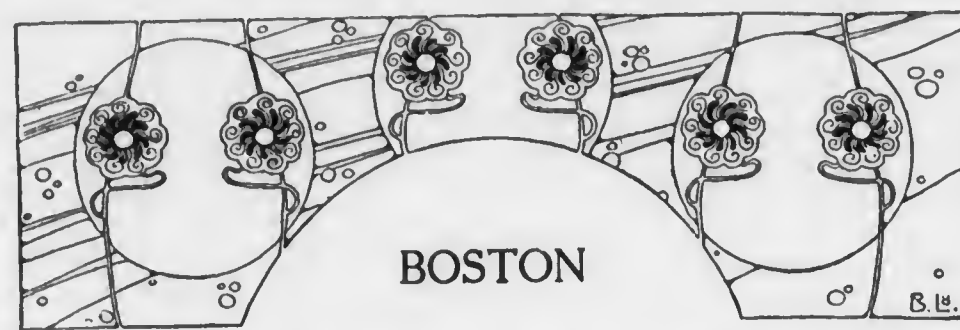

Farmers everywhere are in their barns with every able bodied helper they can get, taking the tobacco down and bulking it so as to begin the stripping process. This means that the market will open in earnest within the next few days, possibly with the first of next week, and that once begun the business will continue with a great rush until the crop is all disposed of. And every indication points to better prices than had been counted on.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI, December 4.

IT is said by many that Miami County produces the best cigar filler grown in the United States, yet the average price of the last decade is probably the lowest of all cigar leaf sections. It is well that growers are building warehouses and preparing to cut out middlemen as well as to regulate prices. The leading variety is Zimmer Spanish, some of which has been sold at $8@8.50. This price is for choice crops, an average crop being worth considerably less. Sellers are holding for better prices. Very little tobacco has been stripped.

Country sales in Southern Ohio lately are few except in near-by Kentucky points where one choice crop of 4,000 pounds sold at $13.25 and several at $10@12.50. Tobacco remains as dry as tinder, preventing handling or intelligent examination. The offerings on the city markets were curtailed in quality and quantity. A feature of note was the sale of a hoghead of fancy cigarette wrapper, grown in Adams County, at $25.75 per cwt.

Business Thanksgiving Week Good, But Christmas Trade to Exceed It
—Daniel Frank & Co. in New Store

Boston, December 7.
THE cigar, tobacco and cigarette business for Thanksgiving week was considered good, but the retailers had the call, as a great many people bought for their gatherings, parties, &c., as they had to have cigars to fill the bill.

Silva Bros., manufacturers of the "Alpine" cigar, have sold out their business to Anton Dewart, who will continue the business at the old stand. The manufacturing branch will be continued at the factory, 270 Main Street, Gloucester, Mass.

Edward Bailey, of Rowley, has purchased the stock and fixtures of the pharmacy of George W. Allison, Market Street, Ipswich, Mass. Alfred W. Sears has purchased the shop and stock of cigars, tobacco, &c., in the Collins block, Union Square, Gardner, Mass., of Pierre Trotter.

Speaking to a gentleman lately from Havana, he says that the tobacco growers have had wonderful fine weather and will have large crops of the finest tobacco ever grown there. Most of the tobacco will be stripped before sending to this part of the country.

Alford Bros., 216 Hanover Street, has window displays of nothing but pipes of all grades. They say business is very good and carry a very fine stock of cigars, tobacco and cigarettes.

T. Rosenbaum & Co. have just received a large and varied assortment of pipes, calabash, &c., from England. Some have cases and will make good holiday presents.

"Lucky Strike" tobacco is getting scarce, also "Tuxedo." The jobbers report that they cannot get enough to fill orders.

Frank Swick (of Philip Morris & Co.) has just returned from Western Massachusetts. He says business is very fair. He now uses an auto, for he can stop at more places than when he travels in a car or train.

Julius Weiss (of Kaufmann Bros. & Bondy) has returned from Hartford, New Haven and other towns in Connecticut.

At last Daniel Frank & Co. are in their new store, and if an old veteran like Daniel Frank does not know how a cigar store should be planned I do not know who does, for it is one of the finest in the city. The fixtures of mahogany are rich, two humidors will hold 1,000 cigars, has eight show windows, all finely laid out with the best stock in Boston. The firm started business twenty-eight years ago, succeeding the well-known tobacconist, N. Samuel, in Post Office Square.

Irvin Studwell was in our midst last week. He could not stay very long. He has lately connected himself with C. B. Perkins & Co.

Liggett's new drug store was opened last week, corner of Washington and School Streets. The cigar department is a commanding one, very attractive and inviting. Havana and domestic cigars, tobacco all makes and cigarettes to suit every taste are carried.

Ehrlich & Kopf has a fine window display of the "La Suprema" cigars from Joseph Berran & Co.

Charles Abraham, of the "United" pipe department, was in town last week. He will visit all the cities where the "United" has stores this side of New York City.

The "La Integridad" cigar is regarded here as a good smoker and is very popular. It is made in all sizes. Myer Yeretsky (Chas. S. Morris & Co.) is receiving orders daily.

The New England representative, Edward Davis, and Isidore Langsdorf (Antonio Roig & Langsdorf) were calling upon the jobbers lately. Mr. Davis is having a humidior installed in the Boston office, in the Board of Trade Building, that will hold 150,000 cigars.

The American Tobacco Company has notified the trade here that the gratis on "Tolstoi" cigarettes is withdrawn and that the cigarette has been reduced ten cents per 1,000.

WM. T. HENDERSON.

Charles Soby, treasurer of the Connecticut Tobacco Corporation and proprietor of a cigar manufacturing establishment, at Hartford, Conn., suffered a $15,000 loss when a building which adjoins his factory caught fire on December 1.

The new cigar factory which has been erected at 40-42 South Street, Baltimore, Md., for the manufacturing firm of C. C. Isaacs & Son, will be ready for occupancy within a short time. The building is a four-story brick structure, and will replace one formerly occupied by this firm prior to the fire which occurred some eight years ago when whole blocks of the city were destroyed.

Relights Cigar After Sixteen Years

Just after learning that McKinley had defeated Bryan for President, in 1896, E. V. McKee, of Clifton Heights, Pa., threw a lighted cigar to the floor in disappointment and Thomas Gaffney placed the cigar in an envelope advising Mr. McKee that he could finish his smoke when a Democratic president had been elected. On Thanksgiving Day Mr. McKee finished the cigar which had been kept for sixteen years.

Charles Humburg, the well-known wholesale liquor dealer and importer, has purchased the old established cigar factory formerly conducted by the Thies Mercantile Company, of Denver, Col. The "Blue Ribbon" and "Gold Ribbon" cigars are among the best known brands manufactured by this firm.

Re-Opening Comment on Lexington Market

E. T. Robards Gives Review of Past History in Growth of Loose Leaf Tobacco Centre

SUPERVISOR OF SALES E. T. ROBARDS, of Lexington, Ky., loose leaf warehouses recently wrote a short article giving some interesting information of that city as a tobacco centre. In commenting upon the establishment of the first warehouse for the sale of white burley tobacco, Mr. Robards said:

"Well may the citizens of Lexington point with pride to the marvelous achievements attained by their tobacco market. Only a few years ago, Louisville and Cincinnati reaped a harvest from this great product, and carried from our very doors the choicest of this commodity. With Lexington as the hub, from which radiates numerous railroads and a multitude of the finest pikes in the world, no less than one hundred millions of pounds of the weed can be easily marketed here during the usual handling season, and Lexington is likewise the center of the growth of the finest quality of high class and color produced. It is passing strange that in almost a half century no one seemed to master the situation by establishing loose leaf warehouses here. It was left to Mr. Chas. Bohmer to father this industry and to him history will point as the pioneer of this market."

"Only a few years ago with only a single warehouse, he launched out to blaze the way for the greatest industry in Lexington.

"It has only been about three years past that when our sales reached twenty millions did the citizens begin to generally comprehend the possibilities of what now is becoming a genuine reality. Along with the increase came the division of the American Tobacco Company and the withdrawal of its buyers from the country, and simultaneously came the plans and now execution of the building of mammoth re-driers for each of these divided interests so that today with eight driers every large buying interest covering the American and European manufacturers have access, a thing no other market for burley in America can claim.

"Beyond doubt the records for the past three years will show that the prices paid on the Lexington market are exceeded by none. There are a host of smaller markets scattered throughout the burley growing district, but they cannot secure the class of buyers, or as many as Lexington."

John P. Floros has sold his cigar store in Bristol, Conn., to Edward Pierfe, who will run the store hereafter.
