Jacob Labe, of Benjamin Labe & Sons, leaf tobacco brokers, is now in Amsterdam attending the Sumatra inscriptions. He will be there until all the inscriptions are over, coming home in the autumn. Irvin Labe is now on an extended trip through Canada and is doing very well.

Thomas J. Daly was recently appointed local manager of the A. Hussey Leaf Tobacco Company, with offices and warehouse at 223 North Third street. Mr. Daly has been connected with Dohan & Tait, the local leaf concern, for more than ten years, and with his knowledge of leaf tobacco should more than make good in his new venture.

A late cablegram from Jacob Labe, of the leaf firm of Benjamin Labe & Sons, states that he has purchased at the April 25th Amsterdam inscription, fifty bales of tobacco for that house.

The retail cigar department of Mitchell, Fletcher & Co., in the Twelfth and Chestnut streets store, has been moved from the front of the store to the rear, next to the corner entrance. The cigar stand now adjoins the wine and liquor department.

The sign "Help Wanted" on the Bobrow Bros. factory, on South Second street, testifies to the activity of this enterprising concern. The "Bold" cigar is being heard from in every section of the country and is coming up strong.

The new store of the United Cigar Stores Company on Main street, near Armat street, Germantown, was opened on Saturday, April 27.

The newly organized Baum-Jaffe Co., of Philadelphia, have taken over the H. B. Grauley factory, at Souderton, Pa., and started operations this week.

The Pennsburg factory of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., which has been remodeled into a modern, up-to-date plant, is now under operation with a limited number of hands. The building was formerly used by them as a leaf warehouse.

Philadelphian Locates In Los Angeles

J. E. Tuck, Formerly of Tuck Cigar Co., Now With J. J. Gans & Co.

Members of the tobacco trade were surprised recently to learn that J. E. Tuck, formerly of the Tuck Cigar Company, located at 12 Market street, this city, had decided to remain in Los Angeles. Mr. Tuck left Philadelphia for the West last September, but it was not generally known that he intended to make that section of the country his permanent home.

He started the "Tuck" cigar in 1895 as an individual and later formed the Tuck Cigar Company. The company had three retail stands at one time, in addition to doing a wholesale trade. The business is now being carried on by James Graham and Jesse Groves, who were associated with Mr. Tuck and who have purchased his interest in the firm.

Philadelphia tobacco men will remember him as being instrumental in forming the Retail Dealers' Association, of which he was president two terms. During his second term the Tobacco Show was held in Horticultural Hall and proved to be a big success, due, in part, to Mr. Tuck's efforts. He was also president of the Camac Building and Loan Association, which office he resigned upon leaving the city. Another company which he organized and was president of was the Liberty Coupon Company.

Mr. Tuck is now in business at 231 E. 2nd street, Los Angeles, and is working through J. J. Gans & Co., representative in that section for Bondy & Lederer, of New York, who are distributors for the "Tom Keene" and "Lawrence Barrett" cigar. His many friends in Philadelphia wish him a bright future in the West.

Bobrow Bros. Celebrate Anniversary

BOBROW BROTHERS, manufacturers of the "Bold" and "Discriminator" cigars, are celebrating the fourth anniversary of the founding of this enterprising concern.

It was on April 18, 1908, that Harry and Charles Bobrow, both practical cigarmakers, formed the firm of Bobrow Brothers. A small building, at 1911 S. Eighth street, was secured and the manufacturing of cigars was started.

Two years ago, they moved their factory to Second and Arch streets. But they soon outgrew these quarters and about eight months ago they moved into their present factory at 114 South street. This is a six-story building, and is adequately equipped for such an aggressive and hustling concern.

Bobrow Brothers have, through persistent work and up-to-date methods, placed their cigars among the leaders. They have a reputation which is the envy of much older houses, and are to be congratulated at this their fourth anniversary, on their success.

The United Cigar Stores Company, of Montgomery, Ala., have entered the State of Arkansas, and have appointed J. W. Blackwood, of Little Rock, as State agent. It has $50,000 capital, of which $12,500 is subscribed.

Tobacco Company of California Re-organized Firm

A FURTHER development in the re-organization of the American Tobacco Company's business in California took place the first of the week, when the Tobacco Company of California, Inc., was officially formed, with a capital stock of $25,000, by W. R. Heyneman, L. S. Greenebaum and M. Ratigan, president, vice-president and secretary, respectively. The personnel is the same as that of Herman Heyneman & Son, Inc., since the resignation of Mr. Heyneman, Senior, and the entire business of the latter firm has been taken over by the new corporation, which represents the American Tobacco Company in this State. In connection with this change it is announced that Leon S. Greenebaum, the vice-president, owing to his work in this corporation, has given up the brokerage business which he has been conducting under the name of L. S. Greenebaum Company.

Wood & Bray Featuring "La Saramita"

Wood & Bray, prominent Indianapolis jobbers, who, a short time ago, announced their advent into the cigar game as distributors, are meeting with success far in excess of all expectations. The "Royal Banner" and the "E. B. Banner" cigars, products of the Royal Banner Cigar Co., have been given considerable attention by them. Another brand which they were very fortunate in securing is "La Saramita," made by the Shields-Wertheim Co. It is becoming quite popular with their customers, especially the Triangulares size. J. B. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Co., visited them recently. In addition to being jobbers they operate a retail store on Jackson Place and have the cigar privilege in the Colonial Café.

Manila Cigars Popular in Spokane

C. W. Schnech, manager of the cigar department of Schwabacher Bros. & Co., jobbers of Seattle, Wash., recently stated that this firm's Spokane branch had unfilled orders for between 150,000 and 200,000 Manila cigars. The first shipment of cigars from the Philippines arrived on April 23. The Manila cigar, which at one time was not held in high esteem in the Far West, is now becoming one of the best-selling kinds.

Hoffman-Moore Co. Secure New Store

The Hoffman-Moore Company, a local jobbing firm which started business a couple of years ago on Mission street, near First, San Francisco, have secured a much larger and better store at 145 Second street, just above Mission, which was occupied about ten days ago.

Beiringer Bros. Co., the hustling Boston jobbers, have come out with a new 5c. brand called "Union League." It is a Sumatra wrapped cigar, and goes to the trade for $35 per thousand with 100 free to a thousand. Maurice Honauer, of the firm, stated recently that the brand caught on well from the start.

Wertheimer's "El Dallo" Coming Fast

E L DALLO," the new product of Wertheimer Bros., is being placed in practically all of the large stands as well as a number of the smaller ones in the large cities of the East. F. A. Davis, the Baltimore distributor of "El Dallo," is featuring the brand in that city. The factory is kept busy handling duplicate business.

Stone-Ordean-Wells Branch House Burned

The Butte, Montana, branch of the Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, of Minneapolis, Minn., was totally destroyed by fire recently. The company had only taken possession of the premises a short time ago.

The Marx Mercantile Co., of Denver, Colo., has recently added a couple of brands of high-grade Manila cigars to its stock, and find them good sellers. It is buying them from Carlos, Fernandez & Co., of New York City.

The Imperial Pipe Co., of Chicago, identified with I. Briskin, the wholesale cigar dealer, has opened up its offices and salesroom at 516 South Halsted street, that city. F. Hitschmann, formerly with the Star Pipe Works, of Chicago, is manager, and he will be assisted by a corps of ten salesmen, who will solicit the trade of the city and its suburbs. A complete line of pipes and smokers' articles is handled.

Rosenfeld-Smith Co. to Open Branch

The Rosenfeld-Smith Co., of Portland, Ore., is getting ready to open a house in Seattle. The firm is said to have leased quarters in the cigar jobbing district on Fourth avenue, between James street and Yesler Way. Augustus Pearsons, formerly with the American Tobacco Co., will have charge of the Seattle branch. No fewer than eight cigar jobbing firms are now established in that district.

Schwarz & Son, 72-74 William street, Jersey City, say that the sale of José Lovera, of José Lovera Co., and the Hershheim cigars, of Hershheim Co., Ltd., New Orleans, since the first of the year has been phenomenal. Schwarz & Son are the largest wholesale confectionery house in New Jersey and went into the cigar end only a few years ago. Since that time they have increased the cigar sales to such an extent that they are now classed among the largest cigar distributors.

Southern Distributors For "Five of Harts"

A E. RUSSELL has just completed a trip through Virginia and the Middle South in the interests of T. H. Hart & Co. introducing the well-known brands of "Five of Harts" and "Heartsease." The manner in which Mr. Russell introduced these goods in the South convinced the firm that they have big opportunities in that section of the country. The Hart factories are sold up to capacity at present and exerting every effort to fill their orders in time.

Jobbing Trade Items

W. I. Pixley, Pacific Coast distributor, with headquarters in San Francisco, has taken on the I. B. Krinsky line of cigarettes, made by that firm in New York City.

Mr. Rosenberg, of Ellenville, N. J., is one of the coming jobbers in that section. Mr. Rosenberg was formerly a retailer at 1098 Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn.

Rosenthal Bros. & Bendetson, of Boston, North street jobbers, have placed a new cigar, the "Wunderbar," on the market. These cigars are Broadleaf and Havana, a ten-cent proposition.

Reymer Brothers, prominent jobbers of Pittsburgh, have appointed James McClements as manager of their retail and wholesale cigar department. Reymer Brothers do a large business in "Melachrino" cigarettes.

E. F. Murphy, manager of the cigar department of Lang & Co., a Portland, Ore., jobbing concern, reports that the "Rey-Oma," Sig. C. Mayer & Co.'s latest ten-center, is meeting with much success, it having taken hold in nearly every town of importance in Oregon, Washington and Idaho, which States are supplied by Lang & Co.

Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Ltd., will soon wage a carefully planned selling campaign through North America on all the brands manufactured by the company.

Francis Wilson, deputy chairman of the company, is expected to take charge, with headquarters in New York. Mr. Wilson has been in Havana most of the winter at the Henry Clay & Bock & Co. factory.

Willard W. Goldsmith has succeeded Mr. Goodloe as president of Dusel, Goodloe & Co., Philadelphia jobbers and distributors. Mr. Goldsmith has been connected with the American Tobacco Co. for many years and is regarded as a very able man. Mr. Goodloe intends to take a rest before again going into business.

The Wm. A. Hoelscher Cigar Co., a prominent St. Louis cigar firm, has added the "William Penn, Jr." of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., to its lines. This firm reports an excellent trade on the "Havana Ribbon" nickel brand, made by Bayuk Bros.

Bethlehem Jobber Sells Out to Wholesale Grocery

W M. APPLGATE, one of the oldest and best-known jobbers and distributors of cigars and tobacco in Bethlehem, Pa., has disposed of his business to the J. A. Eberts & Co. Wholesale Grocery House and will retire from active work. Monroe Lynn, who has been with Mr. Applegate, goes with the Eberts Co. to act as manager of the cigar and tobacco department. Several other Applegate salesmen have also followed Mr. Lynn.

Warren Wyman, who has been with the Ricksecker Cigar Co., of Kansas City, for a number of years, has resigned and has purchased the Hall Building stand in that city from J. C. Clifford. He is assisted by Fred Doniphant, who was also of the Ricksecker force.

More Fetters For The Tobacco Business

Alleged Pure Food Law Will Impose Rigid Regulations—

Manufacturers Yet to Be Heard

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30th.

UNLESS the cigar and tobacco manufacturers of this country take immediate steps to defend themselves they are likely to find their businesses saddled with another rigid governmental regulation. The Richardson bill, now before the House Committee on Interstate Commerce, aims to put cigar and tobacco products under the Food and Drugs law as enacted in 1906.

The Richardson bill, if enacted, would make Section Six read as follows:

"That the term 'drug' as used in this act shall include all tobacco, snuffs, tobacco substitutes, and all tobacco products. This means that all the poisons relating to the branding of drugs, will apply with equal severity to tobacco products."

The bill also provides a special section relating to cigars and tobacco as follows:

"If tobacco, snuff, or tobacco products contain any added poisonous or deleterious ingredient which may render such article injurious to health; or if any substance has been mixed or packed with these products so as to reduce or lower or injuriously affect their quality or strength; or if any substance has been substituted in whole or in part for the articles, or if they be mixed, colored, powdered, coated, or stained in any way whereby damage or inferiority is concealed; or if they consist in whole or in part of filthy, decomposed, or putrid animal or vegetable matter."

Cigar manufacturers say that at the present time they are obliged to comply with the United States internal revenue regulations and with the State factory laws, and that they would strongly object to being forced to come under the control of the pure food bureau of the Department of Agriculture.

House Likely to Pass Dissolution Appeal

Cummins Bill to Reopen American Tobacco Co. Case Now

Before Judiciary Committee

(By Special Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 29th.

THE Cummins bill, authorizing Attorney-General Wickersham to make an appeal on behalf of the Government from the decree entered in the United States Circuit Court in the Southern District of New York on the dissolution plans of the American Tobacco Co., is now in the hands of the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives.

Much to the surprise of everyone, including its most ardent supporters, the Senate passed the Cummins bill, on April 22nd, without a roll call. The bill provides for an appeal to be taken within sixty days from the time the Act becomes effective. The appeal is to be taken solely by the Attorney-General but when the case comes up for argument before the Supreme Court, counsel for the States, Organizations and Associations which sought to intervene in the suit in the Circuit Court have the right to file printed arguments and to be heard orally on behalf of the United States.

If the Cummins measure now passes the House, and it seems reasonably certain that it will, the case will be reopened and all the interests opposed to the dissolution plan will have an opportunity for joining in the appeal.

Ohio Tobacco Growers Form Association

The tobacco leaf growers in the vicinity of Troy, Ohio, have organized and formed a union. They intend to either rent or buy the Henne brewery, in Troy, to use it as a warehouse.

There are forty-one unions in the Miami Valley, with warehouses at Miamisburg, West Alexandria, Franklin, Union City, Greenville and one will be built at Covington. The Troy union will operate in co-operation with the National Cigar Leaf Growers' Union, which is a farmers' organization organized for the protection of the farmer. Competent men will have charge of the re-handling and selling of the tobacco placed in the warehouse.

Death Lays Heavy Hand on Firm of M. J. Dalton & Co.

Chestnut streets store and opened another at 5th & Chestnut streets, on the present location of the Lafayette Building.

The business of Dalton & Mahn grew to be the biggest factor in high class cigars in Philadelphia. Upon the dissolution of this firm, Mr. Dalton took over the store at 5th & Chestnut streets and Mr. Mahn that at 11th & Chestnut streets. In 1903 Mr. Dalton acquired the store at 13th and Chestnut streets, which has been one of the principal distributing points for his business.

Taken Ill in Havana.

While visiting Havana, in February last, Mr. Dalton became quite ill from ptomaine poisoning but he recovered sufficiently to return to his home apparently improved. However, his health in recent years has not been all that could be desired and this latest attack weakened him so, that he never fully recovered from it.

The funeral was held on Monday morning, April 29th, from the Church of Our Lady of Mercy, Broad street and Susquehanna avenue. The honorary pall-bearers were Godfrey S. Mahn, Charles W. Boger, Charles T. Moxie, Dr. E. E. Ervin, William H. Curtis, Augustus Beitney, A. Smith and George Allen. The employees of the Dalton stores were the active pall-bearers. Among the out-of-town members of the trade who attended were Henry Kraus, of Baltimore; H. C. Ansley and Dave Echemendia, both of New York.

Prominent Leaf Man Takes Bride

One of the latest weddings of a prominent man of the trade was that of Henry Duys, of the large New York leaf house, to Miss Adele Gordon, of Montclair, N. J., on April 17th.

The marriage took place at the home of the bride's parents in Montclair. The matron of honor was Mrs. John B. Nippen, sister of the bride. Mrs. Duys' bridesmaids were Miss Mary Wilson, of San Antonio, Tex., and Miss Marjorie Cameron, of Montclair. Albert S. Ward, of New York, was best man; and the ushers were Alfred Ogden, of New York City, and Godfrey M. S. Taft, of Montclair. After the wedding a reception was held at the Gordon home.

Mr. and Mrs. Duys left on an extended wedding trip on April 20, from New York City on the S. S. Lapland, through Europe.

Late Retail Trade Notes

J. A. Dauntler & Son, of Dixon, Ill., moved their cigar store into the basement of the opera house block, where they will be located until the new Warner-Brookner Building is completed.

J. H. Frey, of Grand Rapids, Mich., having sold his cigar and tobacco stores on Ionia and Pearl streets, will become a traveling salesman for Bondy & Lederer, New York cigar manufacturers, taking territory east of Chicago, except the extreme south.

Charles Davis and Edward Gould, of Liverpool, Ohio, who for the past few years have operated two of the city's most prominent cigar stores, have dissolved partnership. Mr. Gould will take the new store in the Little Building, while Mr. Davis will become proprietor of the store at the corner of Washington and East Sixth streets. The latter store will be known as Heimie's Place.

O'Donnell's "Cigar Box," the well-known tobacco establishment on Atlantic avenue, just below Tennessee, in Atlantic City, N. J., has been reopened. The store has handsome mahogany fixtures, a tiled floor and is finely illuminated. It is one of the best known in the city. Mr. O'Donnell, who has a branch store at Atlantic and California avenues, that city, has opened a brand new stock of cigars and tobacco.

its best known cigar men. He was regarded as an expert judge of tobaccos and a merchant of exceptional ability. Indeed, it has been frequently stated that the Dalton stores were the heaviest importers of Havana cigars in the Philadelphia market.

As a frequent visitor to Havana, he became quite a figure in the Cuban trade and made scores of social and business acquaintances who will join with his friends in Philadelphia in mourning his loss. Locally, Mr. Dalton was very well known and exceedingly popular. He was a member of the Columbia Club at Broad & Oxford streets. A widow and son, Stanley J. Dalton, survive.

Mr. Worthington, who had been ill for several years, was born in Philadelphia in 1872, but spent his boyhood in New Castle, Del. At the age of seventeen he came to Philadelphia and secured employment with Charles G. Artz, at 204 S. 4th street, where he made a large circle of friends among the bankers and brokers of that section. He was connected with this concern for twelve years, when he entered the service of M. J. Dalton, at the 5th & Chestnut streets location. He has been connected with this store ever since as manager, and until several months ago, took active part in the business.

Mr. Worthington died on Saturday, April 20th, and the funeral was held from his home, 4951 Pulaski avenue, Germantown, the following Wednesday afternoon. He was a Mason and a member of other lodges, the members of which attended his funeral.

Mr. Worthington is survived by a widow, Kate Benner Worthington, and one son.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

"Real Salesmanship"

NOT so very long ago a friend of the writer defined real salesmanship as "selling a man something he doesn't want." "Anyone can sell a cigar to a man who knows what he wants, but it takes an artist to sell him something he doesn't want," he added.

Salesmen are very often inclined to think that they have covered themselves with glory if they succeed in selling a customer something he did not want. Some seem to think this is all there is to salesmanship and put all their efforts in this direction.

It may be well to remember that it is always a mistake to sell the customer something he does not want, for he will never forgive the offense. He will not only hold a grudge against the salesman, but also against the house.

Still, the salesman cannot be contented to quietly tell the customer that the house is out of that particular brand and let him go out without buying. That is not salesmanship, either. The only course open to the salesman in such cases is to cause the customer to really want the thing he can sell him instead of that which he was in search of. He must be so well acquainted with the merchandise in hand that he can show up the weak points of one and the strong points of the other so plainly that the customer will revise his judgment. Do not try to force him to buy, but give his judgment plenty of reasons to change, and if successful in this direction he goes home a friend to the store, feeling that he has learned something to his own advantage and is not "sore" because he purchased something he did not want.

Believing in One's Goods

EVERY retailer should have confidence in his own goods. For his confidence in turn results in the confidence of the customer. And only so long as the customer has your confidence will he be your customer.

By surrounding himself with a class of cigars, pipes, cigarettes, etc., in which he believes and which he should see that every employee of his believes in, the retailer places himself in a position where his customers can place their trust and come for advice on purchasing.

This confidence that the goods will back up every claim for them, and that in case of error it will be cheerfully rectified; is what makes them sell so easily. And care should be taken to never make a claim that cannot be substantiated in every particular, for that is one of the greatest factors in business building.

If your customer is never misled as to quality he is pleased with his purchases, for he is not expecting too much. If he has been made thoroughly acquainted with the merits of his purchases he knows exactly what to expect, and does not stop short of realizing the full value. He is consequently satisfied, and one satisfied customer is worth more to any business than a dozen dissatisfied ones, for the satisfied customer is a sticker. He will always be a good customer as long as he is satisfied, and he will draw his friends to you. If the goods you have to offer are not worthy of your own confidence, you cannot inspire the confidence of others, and should not try. Better sell them for a makeshift than misrepresent them, for the dissatisfied customer can do your business more damage in a week than you can repair in months.

Let Your Show Windows Talk

A glance at an attractive show window conveys more and much better ideas of the quality and extent of the stock of any retailer in cigars and tobacco than a man can tell another in an hour. An artistic and catchy display will sell goods not only to those who intended to buy, but also to those who did not think of doing so, and it is therefore advisable not to allow your energy to relax along this line, or to be affected when warm weather comes as so many business men do.

"Any old thing" seems to answer the purpose of a good many in decorating the window. Do not make this mistake for that window is your salesman in many cases, and you do not want your salesman behind the counter to be behind the times with a lot of old arguments and methods. So why let a lot of old stuff in your window to impress the prospective customer unfavorably. Many a man is walking along the street when he suddenly finds that his stock of cigars is low and in many cases he will go to the nearest clean, prosperous looking store to stock up. And he also will pass the store by which has a dusty, dirty looking appearance. Many a cigar man can attribute a loss of sales to just this reason.

A good many people who make their living by selling goods seem to have absorbed the idea that they must entertain customers with a line of small talk, and keep their tongues so busy that they do not give their own minds a chance to think or the customer time to express his own ideas.

Possibly it will help the over-talkative salesman if he will remember that his duty is not only to entertain the customer, but to entertain him with information about the goods he has to sell. Give him information all the time. His mind will take it in, and this will give him ideas upon which to base his judgment.

Marked Gain in Detroit Cigar Output

New Hemmeter Building Nearing Completion—Charles Gauss to Erect Three-Story Concrete Structure—Fred Hayes Sells Out to Francis Beaubien

DETROIT, April 25. MY failure to mention in the last letter the sales of cigar and tobacco stamps in this district for the month of March, as compared with last year, seems to have inspired the belief on the part of some outside interests that the omission was due to a falling off in cigar production. As a matter of truth there has been no falling off. It is the other way around; there has been a marked gain. It is gratifying to be enabled to state that only once within the past fifteen months have the monthly sales of cigar stamps in this district failed to show an increase over the corresponding month of the preceding year. Herewith are the comparative sales for the month of March:

| | Cigars. | Tobacco. |

Considerable remark has been aroused by THE TOBACCO WORLD'S review of the Detroit Sumatra situation in the last issue, and the general expression is that it states conditions clearly and accurately. Sumatra representatives have been in much evidence here of late, yet I know of very little business being placed to date. Our manufacturers are not strongly enraptured with the new Sumatra, so the cost per thousand fails to give them an awful jolt. It is safe to declare there will be no sales in this market of any magnitude until prices recede. There has been a slight drop of prices in Holland, and it is believed prices will go still lower. The crop contains abundance of light tobacco, so nobody is worrying overmuch in that direction, nor for fear there will not be sufficient to meet all requirements.

Building operations and realty investments of our cigar and tobacco trade continue in such number and volume as to almost make one think of opening a real estate section in these columns. The recent investments of Oscar Rosenberger and the approaching completion of the handsome structure erected by him at the corner of Woodward and Canfield avenues has been noted. This is one of the most imposing and substantial commercial structures in the North Woodward section. In the near future Mr. Rosenberger will pursue further building operations on additional ground owned by him in the immediate neighborhood.

Mention was also made of the row of nine stores being built at the corner of John R. street and Adams avenue by C. J. Holton.

The new Hemmeter Building is rapidly nearing completion and preparations are under way for the removal of the Hemmeter plant at an early day. In architectural beauty, in finish, equipment and embodiment of utility and good taste, the Hemmeter Building ranks among the very best in the city of structures designed for manufacturing purposes.

Within a stone's throw of the Hemmeter Building, on Broadway, Ike and Sam Goldberg, of the Lilies Cigar Company, will erect a modern four-story, fire-proof building, which they have already let on a long term lease to a prominent firm of dealers in building and household fixtures.

Bernard Schwartz, manufacturer of "Red Bell" and "R. G. Dun" cigars, bought the property, seven years ago, running from Nos. 355 to 363 Russell street opposite the Eastern Market. The purchase price was $21,500; some months ago Mr. Schwartz refused an offer of $60,000. He is now razing the old buildings and will put up a fine two-story block of five stores facing on Russell street and two on Napoleon street. The whole will represent an investment valued at $100,000. A part of the upper floor will be devoted to the cigar factory. Mr. Schwartz started in business with a shoestrapping about fifteen years ago. His success is deserved.

Next we have Chas. Gauss, another earnest young man, who sixteen years ago ventured in the tobacco and cigar distributing business at No. 189 Grand River avenue. It was a modest venture and, with quiet persistence, Mr. Gauss has "stuck to his knitting" ever since, accumulating a nice surplus and developing a fine business. Monday, April 29th, he will be thirty-seven years of age, and expects to commemorate the day by turning the first shovelful of earth on the vacant lot at No. 179 Grand River avenue, on which he will erect a three-story reinforced concrete building at once. This is to be the initial unit of a six-story structure of similar construction facing 112 feet on Grand River avenue and 100 feet on Second street, the entire building to cost in the neighborhood of $100,000. Mr. Gauss expects to relinquish his retail trade altogether. The jobbing establishment will be moved to the first section of the block as soon as completed. The buildings now occupied by him will then be demolished to make room for the remainder of the new block.

Almost opposite Gauss' is the magnificent plant of the Calvert Lithographing Company. In a few years they have outgrown the quarters it was believed would be ample for their needs for many years to come. Consequently they are making a two-story addition over the entire plant, which gives them an added area of 40 per cent, or a total of 175,000 square feet.

Turning aside from real estate to retail sales, let me say reports from dealers are quite cheerful, indicating that business is improving notwithstanding a dilatory spring. Incidentally I am told Harry Watson has "copped" another stand. This time it's Hotel Fairfax, on Bagley avenue.

Fred Hayes, 20 Monroe avenue, has sold his interest to Francis Beaubien and has accepted a position as manager of Donovan & Heston's Billiard Parlors, above Berghoff's Cafe, where he is prepared to make it merry for all comers. Mr. Beaubien, who had clerked for Fred for some time, is familiar with the requirements of the cigar stand and will maintain substantially the same line as heretofore.

About the busiest spot in town, normally, is the Hotel Metropole stand. Manager J. R. Girard recently added to their brands H. Traiser & Co.'s "Traico" in four sizes, which he reports as selling well. He also carries the well-known "Pippin" of the same concern, one of the most favorably known union made nickel cigars in the land.

Speaking of nickel goods, I wonder if there is a stand in town that doesn't carry either "Cinco" or "San Felice," or both.

M. A. La Fond & Co. have just added the junior size of the Judge Durand Cigar Company to their regular line. Since moving to Detroit from Flint, Mich., one year ago, this factory has doubled its output with practically no road work in its behalf. Lilienfeld Bros. & Co., of Chicago, have recently taken the factory line, and it is meeting with success in their hands.

G. L. Caverly, detail man for G. J. Johnson Cigar Company, Grand Rapids, Mich., has done some good work about town with "Gee Jay" and "El Portana." Marcero Bros. have been acting as local distributors since January 1st.

Among the twenty-six thousand and some odd at the dedication of Navin Field last Saturday was David Edward Levyn, of J. Levyn & Son, manufacturers, Alpena, Mich. Mr. Levyn was a real sport and stuck from Wednesday on, through rain and slush, to see that opening game.

Among those who have recently visited us, I take pleasure in mentioning Alfred R. Schmid, son of Mr. L. Schmid, of the well-known Sumatra house, L. Schmid & Co. Mr. Schmid spent several days here and I trust his welcome was of a sufficiently cordial nature to encourage his frequent return.

Among other representatives of leaf tobacco interests were Henry Fisher, of A. Cohn & Co.; Howard Kinney, Duys & Co.; H. Goldsmith, E. Rosenwald & Bro. Other salesmen were Mr. Meyer, Jettles & Blumenthal, Philadelphia; Victor Thorsch, T. J. Dunn & Co.; W. B. McBirney, V. Mancebo Munia & Co.; Chas. L. Staples, P. Verplanck & Co., Tampa; Walter James, Cuesta Rey & Co.; Geo. Becker, Calixto, Lopez & Co.; Alb. Kalin, C. H. Spitzner & Son, New York; Ben Lesser, F. Lozano Son & Co., New York; Willis Andrus, F. Garcia & Bro. Also, "Doc" Easton, Falk Tobacco Company, Richmond, and Howard J. Ayres, Kraemer Manufacturing Company, New York, manufacturers of cigar lighters. S. F. HEAVENRICH.

Henry Strater

Henry Strater, one of the best-known tobacco manufacturers in Kentucky and president of Strater Bros. Tobacco Co., died at his home in that city, on April 17, at the age of sixty-one years. His death was due to heart failure. Mr. Strater was one of the founders of the Strater Bros. Tobacco Co., organized in 1891, and until recently had taken an active part in the business. He is survived by a son and a brother, both associated with the Strater firm.

Charles H. Roberts

Charles H. Roberts, well-known in tobacco circles of New York and Havana, died at his home in Pawling, N. Y., April 22d. Mr. Roberts had been a director of the Havana Tobacco Company and of Henry Clay and Bock & Co. He was fifty-four years of age at the time of his death and leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters.

William Kohlhepp

William Kohlhepp, one of the best-known manufacturers, jobbers and retailers in Louisville, died of asthma on April 16. He was fifty-seven years old and was president of the William Kohlhepp Cigar Co. For twenty-two years he was connected with the C. C. Bickel Co., and for sixteen years he was in business for himself at 308 West Main street. For the past four years he has been in ill health and during that time the business has practically been conducted by Fred Hammerer, secretary and treasurer of the company.

William G. Hills

William G. Hills, seventy years old, of St. Louis, died, in that city, on April 18th, of diabetes, after an illness of a year. Mr. Hills had been a resident of St. Louis since 1866, and was the senior partner in the firm of Hills & Fritz, tobacco manufacturers. He was a veteran of the Civil War, a participant in more than a hundred engagements, and received a medal of honor from Congress for distinguished service. He is survived by a widow and one son.

M. L. Greider, who will be remembered by Pennsylvania tobacco men as having been in charge of the Government experimental station in Lancaster County for a number of years, died recently at his home in Mt. Joy, Pa., at the age of seventy-one. He was president of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association for several terms.

Jacob Fransen, a retired cigar manufacturer, died recently at his home, 284 East Sixteenth street, Brooklyn, of pneumonia. He was born in 1828, and is survived by a widow, four sons and one daughter.

Eugene A. Gerard, widely known throughout the Bushwick section, Brooklyn, N. Y., as a cigar manufacturer, passed away at his residence, 18 Suydam place, recently.

Charles Barber, a well-known jobber in cigars and tobacco, located on the South Side, Chicago, died on April 15 from blood poisoning. He started at his present stand twenty-one years ago and had built up a large trade. He leaves a widow, son and daughter.

Clifton C. Whiting, father of D. C. Whiting, a cigar manufacturer of Manhattan, New York, died suddenly in Atlantic City recently. Apoplexy was the cause of death. He was seventy-four years of age.

Henry Keller, for a number of years a member of the firm of Keller & Kline, cigar manufacturers of Wrightsville, Pa., died at his home in that town at the age of eighty-three years.

Burley Company Purchases Strater Plant

RECENT news dispatch states that the Burley Tobacco Society, which has been looking for a convenient location for some time, has purchased the tobacco manufacturing business of the Strater Bros. Tobacco Co., in Louisville. The price paid is believed to be about $500,000. The recent death of Henry Strater, head of the firm, may delay final settlement for a time.

The Burley Tobacco Society aims to manufacture tobacco and to use all the output of Burley raised in Kentucky. The growers in that region claim that the prices they have been receiving for their tobacco are too low, and that by taking up manufacturing they expect to realize more for their product.

The Strater Brothers' Tobacco Company has been in business, in Louisville, for more than twenty-two years. They have built up a large business on their brands, which will be continued by the Burley Company. It is expected that the Strater plant will be used until the new factory, at Lexington, has been completed.

Southern California Association Prospering

The Southern California Tobacco Men's Association, which was formed several months ago, held a banquet in Brink's cafe, in Los Angeles, on April 19th. The dinner, at which about two hundred tobacco men were present, was voted a huge success.

The Association was formed to get the members of the trade in Southern California in personal touch with each other and from all appearance it will soon be a live, prosperous body.

During the course of the banquet the members were entertained by a number of speakers. Harry Gadekey, president of the Association, made a short opening speech and was later followed by J. R. Blanchard, the oldest cigar and tobacco man on the Pacific Coast.

Late Retail Notes

E. A. Richardson, of Grand Island, Neb., has sold his cigar store located in the Post-Office to Postmaster Deffenbaugh.

Shagrin & Roseman, cigar dealers, of Youngstown, Ohio, have opened a stand in the Wick Building, Youngstown. The locality is an admirable one in the heart of the business section.

M. Glucksman vacated his two stores at 522 Superia avenue, Cleveland, and the corner a few doors east, owing to the tearing down of the buildings to make room for a new structure. He removed part of his stock and fixtures to 609 Superia avenue, N. E., and the rest he distributed among his other stores. He has the cigar privileges of the new building, and will move in there so soon as it is finished, which will be some time in 1913.

Chicago--The Great Central Market

United Opens Two More Stores; Best & Russell Expanding;
Grommes & Elson in New Building; Greenbaum Sells Out

CHICAGO, April 27.

ACCORDING to reports, United Cigar Stores Co. will retain their old stand in the Bay State Building, at State and Randolph streets, having bought the lease from H. M. Schermerhorn, Incorporated. The bonus paid Schermerhorn is said to be $6000. The Bay State Building stand is possibly the oldest cigar store in the city, having been first opened by Jas. P. Dwyer.

The United had it for a number of years at a rental of $7000 per annum, and this year while dickering with Jones, Linich & Schafer, the new owners of the Bay State Building, for a renewal of the lease for a period of ten years, lost out. H. M. Schermerhorn, Incorporated, quietly leased the site over their heads, paying the $3000 per year additional rental without parley. The United were trying to get it at the former rental or thereabouts. They felt the loss keenly, as it was the first time since their invasion in Chicago that they had lost one of their locations.

The United Cigar Stores Co. just opened two new stands, one in the old Hamilton Club Building, corner of Monroe and Clark streets, where they took a ten-year lease, and the other in the Beachey & Lawlor Building, Washington and Dearborn streets, opposite John J. Dolan's stand.

H. M. Schermerhorn, Incorporated, have rented the corner store of the Stratford Hotel, Michigan and Jackson Boulevards, formerly occupied by Fifeid & Stevenson, exclusive haberdashers. The store will be remodeled and fitted up with the latest improved fixtures. This firm also has the privilege of the Stratford Hotel, which stand was formerly run by the hotel company. It will be opened about May 1st.

This same firm has leased the cigar privilege in the New Continental & Commercial National Bank Building. They will retain the cigar privilege in the old bank building under the Edison Company ownership.

John J. Dolan's headquarters for the past twenty years, at Washington and Dearborn streets, is with the rest of the building being remodeled, and the store in the future will be on a level with the street. Heretofore it has been two steps down. During the alteration the store will be closed and Mr. Dolan will make his headquarters in the new Hamilton Club Building, where he just opened a stand. Mr. Dolan has leased the cigar privilege in the new Goodard Building, the erection of which will be started May 1st.

Rutherford B. H. Cooke is putting in a café in the rear of his cigar store, 117 South LaSalle street, and Mr. Cooke has the downtown ticket privilege for the local National League ball team.

Best & Russell Lease Cigar Privilege

The Best & Russell Co. have leased the cigar privilege in the Pullman Building, southwest corner of Michigan Boulevard and Adams street, for a period of five years. They secured this site in view of the fact that the Illinois Central contemplate consolidating their two depots, and the proposed erection of the new Field Museum. It is rumored that the old Montgomery Ward Building will be torn down and an up-to-date hotel erected on that site, which will greatly improve the location.

Simon Lichtenstein, whose headquarters are at 186 North Fifth avenue, will be compelled to give up the store at 230 North Fifth avenue, as L. Jacobs has taken the corner store which is next to his, and rented his store to parties in another business.

The Best & Russell Co. would like to have had this site, but did not want to take it over Lichtenstein's head. He had offered $1200 rental and Jacobs gave $1800.

H. Greenbaum & Son, corner Lake and LaSalle streets, sold out their store to Roseman & Strippelman, who take possession May 1st. The senior member of the firm died about a year ago, and young Mr. Greenbaum is going into some other business.

Evidently the difficulty that Tom Murray and real estate agent Thorp are having in leasing the small Murray corner opposite the United stand at Clark and Madison streets, is not discouraging them in the least, inasmuch as they are now asking $500 per annum more than they did a month ago. It is understood that Best & Russell Co. offered $7000 for the site, but $8000 was then demanded, and a still later inquiry regarding the location revealed the fact that $8500 was the least the agent would consider.

The cigar privileges for the new Mallers Building, Wabash avenue, corner of Madison street, and the New York Life Building, in LaSalle street, have not yet been leased. The space in the latter building is 23½ by 21, and is held at $8500 per annum. The principal objection is that there is no Sunday, holiday or night trade at this point.

At the instigation of a number of far-sighted cigar manufacturers and dealers, Mayor Harrison recently sent out personal letters to the proprietors of all the downtown cigar stores requesting that in those of their stores employing lady clerks, dice shaking for cigars be discontinued. The Mayor also stated that unless his request was complied with, he would be compelled to prohibit dice shaking altogether. The Mayor's suggestion is being carried out. Recently there was a noticeable increase in the number of female clerks who seemed to feel it their duty to encourage dice shaking, and it was feared that complaints would be made which would necessitate discontinuing the practice altogether, and to avoid this it was thought best by some in the trade to discontinue the game where women clerks were employed.

L. H. Work has given up his stand in the Emil Kuehn restaurant, at 186 South Clark street, and Mr. Kuehn will run the cigar business himself in the future.

Albert Breitung has opened up his stand in the new Harris Trust & Savings Building, and H. M. Schermerhorn, Incorporated, in the McCormick Building.

Hannah & Hogg have sold all their saloons with the exception of one in the Adams Express Building, and have also given up their cigar jobbing business. In the future they will confine their efforts to wholesale liquors.

Sam Marco takes possession of the new corner store in the Textile Building, Adams and Fifth avenue, on May 1st. This building was erected by Joe B. Moos.

The Best & Russell Co. recently secured one of the best locations in Chicago, the corner store of the Otis Building, southwest corner of Madison and LaSalle streets, at $10,000 per annum. They take possession May 1st. This firm has also the cigar privilege in the new Rand McNally Building.

Grommes & Elson Occupy New Building

Grommes and Elson, makers of the "Ben Bey" and other well-known cigars, will move from the northwest corner of West South Water street and Franklin street, to their new building at Robey street and Belmont avenue, May 15th. The building will be called the Grommes & Elson Building, and will have a street frontage of 150 feet. The structure is three stories high with a well-lighted basement, 100 by 50 feet square, with a total floor space of 20,000 square feet. They expect to manufacture from 60,000 to 70,000 cigars a day in the new factory. A room will be devoted to a free reading and rest room, another room will be devoted to an employees' dining hall.

The building, without furnishings, cost approximately $40,000, and is thoroughly modern and fireproof. The floors and ceilings are of concrete. There is no plaster work or other decorations of that kind in the building, the outer wall is of red clay brick with an inner wall of white brick with white enameled sides facing inward, and the interior of the building is decorated in white. The proprietors claim there is not a cigar factory in the United States that has a degree of sanitation equal to their new factory. The benches will be whitewashed, and the owners declare strict rules will be made which will require cleanliness of every employee. The factory, when working full capacity, will employ from 350 to 400 people.

"Big Five" Control the Loop

That the rental for cigar stores in the loop is increasing beyond all bounds is the opinion of many manufacturers and dealers in Chicago. With the erection of numerous new office buildings and the general improvement in the business center, rents have increased from fifty to one hundred per cent. As a matter of fact, it is next to impossible for a new man to lease a good site, as the "Big Five," namely, John J. Dolan, The Best & Russell Co., Albert Breitung, H. M. Schermerhorn, Inc., and the United, watch the desirable locations so carefully and lease the stores and building concessions often before they are erected. The contests for these sites are so keen that the winner frequently pays several thousand per year more than the price originally asked by the owner or agent.

Besides the competition among themselves, the dealers are now experiencing the opposition of a number of New York and Eastern firms, who are scouring this city and are bidding against them for choice locations for their hat or shoe stores. Truly Warner, of New York, just bought two leases at Washington and Dearborn streets, which was the site the cigar dealers had had their eyes on a long time.

And not only are the dealers compelled to pay more rent, but their profits for cigarettes and tobaccos—most of which is in the hands of the trust—is considerably less.

Some dealers really believe that the time is not far off when the loop corner sites will be too expensive for the merchandising of cigars, and that they will have to be content with locations in the middle of the block and the second floors of office and bank buildings.

Want Coupon System Abolished

The bill now in Congress for the abolition of coupons or presents given away with cigars, cigarettes, stogies and tobacco, is being commented upon by Chicago dealers considerably. The Traders' Exchange, generally thought to be representing the Tobacco Leaf Merchants' Association, are mailing thousands of letters asking the tobacco merchants of the country to co-operate with the association in abolishing the coupon system. They also request the recipients of the letters to communicate with the representatives of their districts in Congress, asking their support of the bill. In the letter are the names of the members of Congress, copies of the coupon bill, and a suggested form of letter to mail to the Congressmen. Part of the form of letter to be mailed the Congressmen reads as follows: "The undersigned respectfully and earnestly request that you support Senate Bill No. 6103 and House Bill No. 22,766. It is my belief that the coupon now in use was the means of creating the tobacco trust."

Considerable Objection to Cigar Cutters

It seems to be the general desire of the dealers to do away with the cigar cutters, and it is possible that this unnecessary "tool" will be barred by the legislature at the next session. At the last session, when the drinking cup and towel was legislated against, the cutter came up for discussion, but there was not sufficient pressure brought to bear to get it included. Inasmuch as many men wet the end of the cigar before cutting it off, it is considered equally unsanitary as the cup and towel.

I. Cohn, of the Manila Cigar Import Company, speaking of the cigar trade, said: "Tobacco and cigar men have no reason to complain. We imported 2,000,000 Philippine cigars from Manila last week, and already orders for nearly half of them have been received. The domestic and Havana cigars which the Cohn Brothers Company, of which concern I am also a member, carry, are selling very good. I think there is a larger percentage of tobacco smokers who smoke cigars of quality in Chicago than in any other city in the United States. And I have heard the pipe sales are correspondingly low."

H. Cohn and Jarvis Trapp are traveling through Illinois and Wisconsin, and are expected to return to Chicago next week.

According to Manager Hamann, of the Albert Breitung Company, he has received a cablegram from Mr. Breitung, announcing his projected visit to Naples and Monte Carlo. Mr. Breitung left Chicago the early part of March, and is expected to return to this city about the first part of August.

Manager Julius Altman, of the Hannah & Hogg Company, was visited by the stork the middle of April and was presented with a six pound baby boy.

E. P. Spangler has been appointed the Wisconsin field representative of the J. B. Moos Company to succeed Edwin Burkhardt.

The offices and salesrooms of the Imperial Pipe Company have been opened at 516 South Halsted street. F. Hirschman, formerly of the Star Pipe Company, has been chosen as manager of the concern in this city.

Strong Competition for Corner Store

There is much competition for the corner store in the new building, southwest corner Monroe and Dearborn streets, which is now in course of construction. It's a daytime store in a very good corner to advertise factory goods. It is rumored that Chas. H. Storm, of Storm, Fisher & Co., has the first chance on renting same.

Louis Schrapp, former cigar manager of Sheppard, Strassheim & Co., is now with Chapin & Gore.

Fred C. Bauer, of Best & Russell Co., with headquarters in the Fisher Building, who has charge of their pipe department, states that their pipe business has increased very much over last year's sale.

Fred Streiblein, who travels for Guedalia & Co., of New York, has placed the "La Simpatia" brand with Rothenberg & Schloss, of Kansas City. Streiblein makes his headquarters in Chicago, and is trying to develop the "El Salero" brand, which is handled by Best & Russell Co.

C. H. Gore, the West Side jobber, filed a petition in bankruptcy last week.

Storm, Fisher & Co., of New York, have placed their all-Havana wrapped 5-cent cigar called "El O'Roy" brand, with Best & Russell Co. As an introductory inducement, the consumer received a $1 fountain pen for the "El O'Roy" bands.

Thos. Slader, the South Ashland avenue jobber, moves from his present quarters on May 1st, one block south on the same street, into a new building which he built himself, as he says, "me own landlord."

Herschman Bros. are jobbing the "Judge Kavanagh" cigar, marked success. The brand is named after one of our able jurists, Judge Marcus Kavanagh, who is very popular with the people, as indicated by the number of votes he received at the last election.

The American Cigar Co. are having bulletins painted advertising the "Permit" 5-cent cigar, which is distributed by J. B. Moos & Co.

Wohl & Comstock, manufacturers of the "Evangeline Cisneros" cigar, at 1507 West Madison street, have taken a 99-year lease on Nos. 1462-66 West Madison street, and on May 1st start the erection of a building to be named after their cigar. Barring strikes, the building will be completed early in the autumn.

Situation in Key West Shows Improvement

E. H. Gato Factory Working Full Force of Employees—Juan Cobo, Leaf Dealer, Moves His Quarters—Fernandez

KEY WEST, FLA., April 24.

DURING the last two weeks a slight improvement has been noted in the cigar situation in Key West and the manufacturers are correspondingly pleased. The increase in the demand for Key West cigars has not been great, but it has been perceptible nevertheless.

Some of the factories are working with the same force which has been maintained for the last several weeks, but others have seated a few men and it is understood that more will be seated in the next few days. As far as could be ascertained, none of the local factories are entirely idle, true, some of them are working with but few men, but they are in operation. None of the factories are making cigars in anticipation of future orders and there is a demand for all that are made at this time. Shipments are going forward on all of the transportation lines.

The imports of tobacco from Cuba are growing larger and it was stated at the custom house that the withdrawals were more promising during the last week than at any other time since the dull times started.

President E. M. Phillips, of the Key West Cigar Factory, who is now in New York in company with Mrs. Phillips, writes that the outlook is very good and he has sent in several very good orders. The factory is one which has felt the depression less than many others and they have maintained a good force throughout. Mr. Phillips will remain in New York for two or three weeks longer and will combine pleasure with business.

Florelle, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aurelio Torres, died here last week and Mr. Torres, who is the president of the Principe de Golfo factory, has the sympathy of all of the manufacturers in his bereavement.

Good orders have been received in the last few days by the R. Fernandez Havana Cigar Company, from Mr. Fernandez, who is now in the Middle West.

The Cortez factory is still maintaining the same number of cigarmakers that has been employed for the last several weeks. There is a steady demand for the output of this factory.

The E. H. Gato Cigar Company is still working over 500 men and while they could not state when the number would be increased, it is expected that they will be seating more men in a short time. This firm received 118 bales of tobacco from Cuba on the P. & O. steamship "Mascotte" last night.

Juan Cobo, the well-known leaf dealer, has been forced to move his quarters owing to the fact that he has not had sufficient room in his old location. This is a good indication that business is picking up. Mr. Cobo enjoys a good trade here and has been growing rapidly since he started business.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Optimistic Spirit in York District

YORK, April 26.

A MORE optimistic spirit seems to pervade the tobacco trade in this vicinity. A number of the factories that had been closed down are again running, and others which were working on short time are running with full forces again. Several new factories are to be opened in the near future.

The leaf men, the majority at least, say they are loaded up to the limit of their capacity, although a good deal of the leaf is still in the growers' hands. The 1911 crop, said one man, has been picked over pretty thoroughly and the remainder, which has been estimated at from 10 to 20 per cent. of the new crop, is being bought very slowly.

In Dallastown, Red Lion, Windsor and Hanover, business appears to have improved considerably. The Myers and Adams factory at Dallastown is again running, as is also the C. W. Minnich plant at that place.

The new factory of H. F. Kohler at this place was opened on April 15th with a force of fifty men. Mr. Kohler has disposed of his other factories and will do all his business in the future from the York plant.

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, at Columbia, of which Harry O. Kauffman is local manager, has leased additional space in the Columbia Baking and Manufacturing Company's building, and will operate a second factory there, in addition to their other one on Market street.

The D. K. Cigar Company expects to occupy its new factory in Dallastown in a few days. The Gallagher stogie plant at that place was reopened last week after a short shut-down.

Daniel Spangler, the cigar manufacturer, of Red Lion, who had been ill from an attack of quinsy, is reported to be improving.

The Plitt cigar factory appears to be busy and they expect even better things in the near future. The "20th Century" cigar, as usual, is doing very well.

LANCASTER, April 27.

CONDITIONS seem to be slowly, but surely, improving in this district. The majority of the factories are doing a fair amount of business, but things are far from satisfactory.

The leaf market appears to be quite active. Some of the dealers are enthusiastic over the new crop, the majority of which seems to be of an exceptionally good quality.

John F. Nissly and Company have purchased a large lot of the new crop, which in texture and quality of the leaf appears to be very good. A cigar was rolled in the warehouses in the presence of the writer, and the manner in which it burned and the flavor of the cigar after it was lit, testified to the quality of the tobacco. That particular consignment of tobacco came from the Manheim region.

Wm. Levy, leaf merchant and superintendent of the S. R. Moss cigar factory, intends leaving shortly for an extended trip to Europe. Mr. Levy has been very busy lately and thinks a vacation would do himself a great deal of good.

C. E. Whisler, until recently a member of the firm of the "Our Principle" Cigar Company, 106 East King street, this city, died on Saturday, April 13th, at his residence, from a complication of diseases. Mr. Whisler resigned from the firm a short time ago on account of ill health, and has been quite ill since that time. He was buried on April 17th from the residence of his brother in Hanover. Mr. Whisler's death will be greatly regretted among the tobacco trade, as he was very well known and respected in this section.

Mr. J. W. Brenneman, leaf merchant and member of the "Our Principle" Cigar Company, will move his office to Millersville in a short time, where the "Our Principle" factory is located. Mr. Brenneman is having a residence built in Millersville, to which he will move his family from this city. He is still spending several hours in Lancaster until he occupies his new quarters and closes up his business here.

It is expected that the new Eisenlohr factory at Manheim will be completed in a short time, as the work is being pushed rapidly. The building will be 40 by 125 feet and three stories in height. It is to cost about $17,500.

L. A. Rich, of M. Rosenthal, returned recently from a trip through New England.

D. N. Beit, Max Levy and S. E. Samuels, of the American Tobacco Company, have been working this region on the "Tokio" cigarette.

Charles A. B. Zook, leaf tobacco dealer, purchased the building located at 4 East King street, from Wm. Pirosh, for $70,000. This has been known as the Rhoads Building.

S. R. Moss, of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, is back again at his desk, after a much-needed vacation at Atlantic City.

R. M. Gravat Company are now in their new home on North Queen street, where they moved a short time ago from York. They have leased a large warehouse in this city.

The Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association have been discussing a new plan for disposing of their tobacco. They expect to secure a number of warehouses, well scattered through the tobacco region, where growers can bring their crops for grading and packing.

The idea is to have a committee of local competent men to pass on the leaf. Each planter is to receive from three to six cents on delivery at the warehouse and the balance when the goods are sold from the warehouse. The money to finance the proposition, it is intended, will be secured from trust companies.

The following delegates and alternates have been elected by the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade to the convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, to be held in New York City, on May 13th and 14th: Delegates, H. P. Taylor, J. Goldberg, M. Rosenthal, L. A. Kramer, J. F. Heiland; alternates, Wm. De-Haven, Roy Nissly, Samuel Siesel, B. F. Hoffman, A. H. Sondheimer, A. B. Hess, president; Charles Emory Long, secretary, and I. H. Weaver, director, are delegates ex-officio.

Recent visitors noted were the following: M. C. Myers, of E. Spingarn & Co.; Adolph Meyer, of F. Miranda & Co.; A. Hartman, of A. & S. Hartman, of Hartford, Conn., and F. A. Palmer, of the Lovell & Buffington Co.

Reading Manufacturers Complain of Dulness

READING, April 26.

THE manufacturers are almost all complaining of the dulness. One prominent man, who travels extensively, said he did not think things had been at such a standstill for the last ten years. Others were more optimistic, but admitted there was room for a great deal of improvement.

A force of men has been in this territory recently working the "Tokio" cigarette. The "Fatima" is also being pushed hard in this region.

Harry Mohn, well known in cigar circles in this city, has left for Houston, Texas, where he will open a cigar factory.

Chas. Y. Yetter, of Reading, returned several weeks ago from an extended trip through the Middle West. He placed his cigars with a number of jobbers and stated that conditions were very satisfactory out there. He has just equipped his factory with a battery of five of the latest stemming machines, manufactured by the Universal Tobacco Stripping Company, Newark, N. J., and reports very satisfactory results with them.

Breiser Sons are doing a good business at their two stores considering the state the trade is in just now. They are doing very well in the jobbing line, particularly on their own brands.

The Spatz factory is doing a good business at present, although the trade in general is dull.

The retail trade appears to be very dull at present, although it is expected to improve as the weather is better.

Manufacture "20th Century" Cigars

The C. H. Plitt Cigar Company of York, Pa., announce that they are the sole owners and makers of the "20th Century" cigar. They had the title registered June 30th, 1893, and they also patented it in the U. S. Patent Office, May 2nd, 1906.

This company recently discovered that another manufacturer was making a cigar under this title, a cigar retailing three-for-five-cents, whereas the "20th Century" is a small, clear Havana filler cigar, retailing at a nickel.

The Plitt Company states that the only genuine "20th Century" cigar is made by them, and every box is stamped with factory No. 1909, 9th District, Pa. Any box not stamped in that manner is an infringement and the manufacturer making the same will be prosecuted.

Pushing the "Old Chatsworth" Cigar

THE recently organized Luxfer Cigar Co., of Hellam, Pa., are pushing a brand of nickel cigars the "Old Chatsworth" which promises to make a big hit among jobbers and distributors.

Special attention has been given to the blending of this cigar to bring it up to a standard that would appeal to the critical smoker of popular-priced cigars. The new management of the Luxfer Co. is making every effort to extend the sale of those goods and reports indicate that "Old Chatsworth" is destined to be a tremendous success.

The fixtures are of mahogany and the latest humidior cases have been installed. Mr. Beer for several years has been salesman for the Surbrug Company in Montana and other Coast States.

Robert Hehl had his formal opening at the new store in the Avenue Theater Building, Louisville, recently. The store has been remodeled and completely done over, so that he now has one of the most attractive stands in Louisville. A new feature is a balcony smoking room, which will provide a place to lounge without interfering with other customers. His stock is a comprehensive one.

R. B. Marshall, of Bluffton, Ind., and Fred Ardner, of Fort Wayne, that State, have formed a partnership and will embark in the cigar business at Laporte, Ind. They have rented a three story building. The first floor will be used for the billiard and pool room with a cigar stand. The two upper stories will be used for the manufacture of cigars. They are opening for business about May 1st.

Franks & Randall, who conduct the cigar and tobacco store on West State street, Jacksonville, Ill., have closed a deal whereby they come into possession of the cigar stands at the Pacific and Dunlap hotels. These stands will be operated under their supervision and they will place in charge of them clerks who will take every care to see that those who smoke are served with the same quality of cigars that are sold at their store on West State street.

Hopeful Situation Now Confronts Tampa

Manufacturers Subscribe $75,000 Toward Two Club Houses for Cigar Workers—Jose A. Escalante, Well-known Cigar Man, Dies—Trying to Settle Tobacco Appraisalment Question

TAMPA, FLA., April 26.

PRACTICAL settlement of municipal political conditions, assurance of protection from irresponsible agitators, better feeling existing between manufacturers and workmen, prospects of an excellent crop of tobacco and gradually brightening trade prospects throughout the country, feature the hopeful situation which confronts Tampa cigar circles at present.

Last Tuesday, the second municipal primary was held, completing the personnel of the new city administration which takes charge in June, and further insuring municipal authority in sympathy with the industry and determined that manufacturers shall not be molested in the operation of their factories by troublemakers and malcontents, ever engaged in stirring peaceful cigarmakers to disturbance.

There is ample evidence of a more cordial feeling between workmen and employers. Manufacturers have, within the past few months, shown their desire to make life in Tampa enjoyable to the cigarmakers by subscribing $75,000 to a building fund for the erection of the two handsome club houses of the Centro Español, one in Ybor City, the other in West Tampa, to which cigar workers are eligible as members and in which they will find the comforts and entertainments afforded by the best and most exclusive clubs of the city. These buildings cost $100,000 each, the cigar manufacturers contributing $75,000 and the remainder being realized from the sale of bonds.

Shipments for the past week totaled 5,535,000 cigars and for the week previous 5,550,000, showing that the factories are working steadily, without unusual increases, it is true, but with a regularity that indicates the stability of the present demand.

Collections at the Tampa custom house for the past week were $39,312.49, an increase of over 50 per cent. over the week preceding.

For the benefit of the sufferers from the Moroccan war, which movement was inaugurated by the Queen of Spain, some of the leading Spanish-American ladies of the city gave a unique entertainment at the Centro Asturiano. The club rooms presented a scene in old Spain, beautiful and distinctly charming. The patronesses who took the lead in arranging the entertainment were Mrs. Joaquin Lopez, Mrs. Celestino Vega, Mrs. Peregrinó Rey, Mrs. Salvador Ybor, Mrs. Haya, Mrs. D. B. McKay, Mrs. V. Martínez Ybor, Mrs. W. D. Davis, Mrs. Maximo Diaz, and Mrs. Salvador Rodriguez. A great many Americans attended and the ladies realized a large sum for the benefit of the sufferers.

José A. Escalante, formerly one of the best-known cigar manufacturers of the city, died a few days ago at his home in this city. He had been a resident of Tampa fifteen years and leaves a widow, daughter and son. Mr. Escalante had been ill only two days, a victim of brain fever, which is believed to have been partly brought on by business cares and continued illness in his family. The funeral was held from the Sacred Heart Catholic Church and the interment was in Woodlawn cemetery.

Alejandro Nistal, former Spanish Consul, has returned to the city after a prolonged absence in Spain, much improved in health and prepared to resume active business.

The Lozano factory is working a full force, having recently received some gratifyingly large orders.

The Cigar Manufacturers' Association has determined the vexed tobacco appraisalment question by deciding, whenever there is a protest on an appraisalment, to ask the Government to send an appraiser to this city to hear the appeal, thus avoiding the necessity of sending the tobacco to New York, which practice has been found very expensive. It is not known if the authorities will grant this request, but it will be urged by the manufacturers in the interest of justice and fair play.

Harry Culbreath has returned home from the Pacific Coast, where he secured some valuable business for V. Guerra Diaz & Co. Mr. Culbreath has now developed into a full-fledged politician, incident to the candidacy of his father for Clerk of the Circuit Court, and his presence here at this time is in order that he may assist his father in the race for this office.

Manuel Lopez, Jr., has returned from a trip over the Southern territory where he met personally the many dealers who have been patronizing his house.

Mr. and Mrs. José Lovera have left for Hot Springs, Ark., where they will spend a month. They will then return to Tampa and make a trip to Cuba.

A. L. Sylvester, general manager of the Havana-American Company, spent a week in Tampa, accompanied by W. O. Griffin, assistant auditor for the company. They were here in connection with the change which has taken place in the management of the local factory, H. E. Mahoney succeeding J. J. French. Messrs. Sylvester and Griffin went to Havana from this city and spent several days there.

Edgar Stachelberg is spending a few weeks in New York, taking in the latest productions in the theatrical world, and, incidentally, attending to the affairs of his firm in that city.

A. A. Martínez, of the famous "La Norma" factory, is visiting Cuba, making an inspection of the crop and arranging for his supply of leaf.

Celestino Vega has been devoting much of his time to the plans for the new Centro Español club houses, being the president of the local branch of that great organization. Mr. Vega, however, has not neglected the affairs of his factory and reports a fine lot of orders which keep his force busy.

Chief political interest here at present centers in the race for Representative in Congress from this district, to be decided in the Democratic primaries of next Tuesday, April 30. Representative Sparkman, who occupies the important position of chairman of the Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House, is opposed by Herbert S. Phillips, State Attorney, who is making the campaign on a progressive platform. Colonel Sparkman has always been a friend of the cigar manufacturing interests at Washington and the local manufacturers are doing all in their power for his reelection.

Atlanta Trade Shows Encouraging Activity

"Henry The Fourth" Cigars in Brisk Demand—What the Leading Houses are Featuring

Atlanta, April 24.

YOUR correspondent, calling on the local cigar trade, finds a very brisk business. Jobbers and retailers alike report an increased activity for their lines and predict a fine business.

The old, established house of Thos. H. Pitts Co., report a very unusual run on their "Henry the Fourth" brand from the Bustillo Bros. factory of Tampa. This brand has been featured by Mr. Pitts for a number of years and has grown with surprising rapidity. "Mi Rey," "Charles the Great," "El Briche" and other well-known clear Havana brands have great prominence at this house. "Norma Martínez" smokers continue to please the trade.

J. H. Hirsch tells me that his "C. H. S." (Val M. Antuono) business multiplies each year. His yearly consumption of this brand of Tampa nickel cigars is considerably over the million mark, and every representative Atlanta cigar store has them in stock.

Mr. Patterson, representing the C. H. S. factory, has just returned to town after a very successful trip through his territory. Brown & Allen, who conduct a big retail business across the viaduct on Whitehall street, say that their "Cuesta-Rey" trade was never better. Mr. Brown claims that a better value than Flor de Cuesta-Rey & Co. "Diplomatics," retailing for ten cents, is not made anywhere.

Tumlin Bros. Co., are literally hauling in the dimes at their busy stand in the Elkin Drug Co. store. This is one of the four "busy corners" of Atlanta, and high-grade cigars are continually in demand. José Vila sizes of Berriman Bros. "Blue Ribbon" factory are strongly featured.

De-Lameter-Lawrence Drug Co. have one of the busiest retail and box-trade locations in the city. Situated, as they are, in the first floor of the Equitable Office Building, they cater to the most discriminating class of smokers. "Cuesta-Reys," "Cortez," "Solace" and several other high-grade clear Havanas are featured. This firm have recently added the line of cigars made by the "Druggists' Cigar Factory," at Tampa, and propose to put a very strong effort behind the "Flor de Tampa-Cuba" brand particularly.

Matthew W. Berriman, senior partner of Berriman Bros., Tampa, is in town for a few days in conference with his local selling representative, Mr. Patterson. Mr. Berriman reports a very active business at his Tampa headquarters.

Thomas Connor, representing F. Garcia & Bros., Tampa and New York, is calling upon the local trade. "Tom" has some good accounts here, and reports that "F. Garcia" are growing in popularity each year.

During the week, A. M. Goehring, travelling for the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Co., of Tampa, has been visiting the Atlanta retail drug trade with marked success. Mr. Goehring states to your representative that his co-operative cigar factory, at Tampa, although only permanently organized in September, 1911, has accounts in forty-six States of the Union, and his company's products are making good wherever placed. E. Berger, president of the Florida Board of Pharmacy, is secretary of this flourishing factory and Don Emilio Pons, a veteran of Tampa's clear Havana industry, treasurer. Harry B. Guilford, ex-president of the National Association of Retail Druggists, residing in Rochester, N. Y., is president.

Good weather prevails locally, and the outlook for a brisk summer trade is favorable.

San Francisco Trade at Height of Season

S. Bachman & Co. to Distribute Two New Lines—A. L. Hall Opens Fine Retail Stand—Several Changes in Oakland

San Francisco, April 20.

THE California cigar business is now about at its height for the season, as men have not yet commenced to leave the city for long vacations, and local stands are still well patronized, while retailers through the country are buying more freely in anticipation of the usual large demand when the fruit and outing season opens. The outside people, whether in the fruit country, lumbering towns, or summer resorts, always use a lot of goods during the summer, but after the middle of May, when the hot weather commences, they buy in very small lots to avoid the drying out of the goods. To increase the general activity, many retailers are finding new openings in the smaller towns, and the majority of stores opened in such places have very good prospects for success. The retail business in some parts of the country was slightly upset by local option elections, which will compel a good many saloons which have handled cigars to close. Many such places, however, will be converted into cigar and soft-drink houses, while the cigar trade of others will fall to the regular cigar dealers, the only effect on the jobbers being a temporary rush in the bookkeeping department.

S. Bachman & Co., the large local wholesalers, have just acquired two new distributing agencies for New York lines: one a 5-cent line made by Rosenthal Bros., the other a clear Havana made by J. Sirod & Co.

H. L. Judell, agent for the "Elisardo" and several other lines, is now in Fresno looking after a big meeting of the California Commercial Travelers' Organization, of which he is a leading member.

C. J. Michaels, an Eastern man, is now in charge of the cigarette department of the Tobacco Company of California. A new salesman for this firm is B. Spencer, formerly with W. I. Pixley.

Geo. Ilyrne, representing W. I. Pixley, is now handling quite a lot of lines of pipe tobacco, cheroots, etc., has further rounded out his agencies by taking up the L. B. Krinsky line of cigarettes, made in New York.

The "La Sinceridad" cigar, which had a large vogue in this city a few years ago, but has had no effective distribution for some time past, has been taken up by the wholesale grocery firm of Haas Bros., who are arranging for an energetic campaign among the retailers.

F. A. Torre, of the Sanchez & Haya firm, was a recent visitor to the Coast trade.

Sello Blumenthal, long prominent in the sales force of M. A. Gunst & Co., is now sales manager of the outside wholesale business in California, having as his personal territory the principal towns of the interior. H. W. Frey has been transferred from the Nevada and Sacramento Valley district to the Bay country, his former territory being taken by W. S. Crane. H. Walters will make the San Joaquin Valley run.

Several changes are reported in Oakland, where M. A. Gunst & Co. have left their stand at Broadway and Fourteenth street, and which will be occupied by the United Cigar Stores Company, and have bought out the "City of Havana," at Broadway and Twelfth street, from B. Berceovich. Both of these corners are among the busiest in Oakland.

W. J. Epes, Coast manager of the plug tobacco end of the Liggett & Myers business, has just returned from a flying trip East, where he went on account of his mother's illness.

Dave Erderich, representing Sam I. Davis & Co., returned the first of the week from a trip through the North Coast States. Arnold Pollak, the local cigar broker, is back at work after a few weeks' vacation in the country.

F. C. Dana, representing the J. M. Martínez Company of Tampa, was a recent visitor to the local trade.

Ted Cohn, California representative of the American West Indies Sales Company, will leave next week for Los Angeles, where he expects to meet Morris J. Levi, head of his firm. Mr. Levi expects to make a complete tour of the entire Coast territory.

A. L. Hall has just opened a fine retail stand at 490 Sutter street, this city.

J. Gerdt, of Frankel Gerdt & Co., local cigar manufacturers, is attending the grand convention of Knights Templar at San Diego, and will incidentally call on members of the Southern trade.

Philip Verplanck, of the Tampa firm of Philip Verplanck & Co., is visiting the San Francisco trade this week.

M. Dench, a prominent country retailer, has purchased an interest in a local stand on Fillmore street.

Ed McIntosh, a cigar dealer of Northern California, came in this week to buy an automobile.

L. J. McKinnon, representing E. P. Cordero & Co., of New York, arrived in San Francisco a few days ago.

Conrad & Dresbach have bought out a cigar stand at 230 Market street.

Two new firms have been organized at Seattle, Wash.: the J. R. Smith Cigar Company, with a capital stock of $25,000, by O. M. Olsen, J. R. Smith and E. L. Skeel; and the Spring Cigar Company, with a capital stock of $50,000, by S. G. Spring, J. C. Bridgman, et al.

It will issue 6,000,000 common shares of $5 each, and 1,999,995 preferred shares.

Mr. Mortimer B. Davis, the president, stated that the company was under the necessity of procuring additional capital to take care of its increased business, which was due to the general prosperity of the country.

In all probability the additional capital will be taken on a pro rata basis by the present shareholders.

For some years the 6 p. c. preference shares have been quoted on the London and Bristol Stock Exchanges at a high premium. These shares are very largely and widely held in England, at the present moment the shareholders numbering over two thousand.

St. Paul Retailer Fails

He puts his liabilities at $5,309.13 and his assets at $1,103.36. With the exception of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., of Minneapolis, who have a chattel mortgage on the billiard tables for $3700, the creditors are all wholesale cigar dealers.

Harry Robare, who has been connected with the Niles & Moser Cigar Co., in Denver, for a number of years as salesman, has resigned and will accept a position with V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., of Tampa, to act as their representative on the Pacific Coast.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau
Neptuno 24
Alto

HAVANA, April 23.

SINCE the last report the dry weather has continued and has played havoc with the vegeros and our leaf dealers, as virtually operations in the country have come to a standstill, the new tobacco being in such a dry condition that it could not be touched without crumbling to pieces. Apparently there is no hope of seeing any changes in our temperature this month, and how soon the rainy season might set in next month is also uncertain, therefore we will have to have patience and not look for any receipts of new tobacco of any amount until the month of June.

Of course, the growing season has come to an end with this month, as the drought in combination with the terrific heat that has been experienced all over our island has virtually stopped the growth of the few remaining plants in the fields.

The small lots of new Vuelta Abajo and Partido which have arrived, and which were all more or less precipitated, or consisted of the very early temprano part of the crop that had withstood the destructive November rainstorms, give no true indication of the bulk of this year's crop, although the leaf was in instances quite fair and fit to be used in a short time.

The receipts from the Santa Clara province have been more numerous, but were almost exclusively of a very light nature, consisting of the temprano growth, which had suffered less from rains and therefore has proved acceptable for the German market, as well as being suitable for the American clear Havana cigar manufacturers, who are making cheap five cent cigars. As the prices opened high our packers may have escaped to pocket any loss on their first ventures, but the riddle how to proceed in the future; that is to say, what figures might be safely paid to the vegeros, in order to have a living margin to make an escogida, has not been solved yet. The farmers' views are still way above those of our packers, and as the crop is at all events larger in quantity than it has ever been before, and with only a proportionate smaller amount of a medium heavy quality, fit for the American market (to make mixed cigars), there is a momentary standstill in making operations in the country. If the buyers only continue their present policy to make no offers, the time is bound to come when either the vegeros come down from their present pretensions, or that they will commence to make their own packings, as soon as the rainy season begins, to be able to manipulate the dry tobacco upon a larger scale.

Our leaf market during the first half of this month has been more active than was expected, as the three American leaf dealers from New York and Chicago showed a fair disposition to increase their stocks of heavy-bodied tobacco of last year's crop by making additional purchases of same. Our principal shipper to South America also continued to operate upon a moderate scale, while the German exporters did their share in taking hold of the new Remedios leaf as soon as the bales arrived from the country. Our local cigarette manufacturers invested in old Vuelta Abajo colas, and the cigar manufacturers appeared fairly disposed to buy up a few small new lots of Vuelta Abajo that arrived, in order to make some trials with the leaf to find out the quality of their future blends. As far as prices were concerned the same had ruled quite strong on last year's crop, while on the other hand the figures for the 1912 leaf are a good bit below those of the previous year.

Sales for April 1st to April 13th, inclusive, amounted to 3,843 bales, or, divided, consisted of Vuelta Abajo, 915, and Remedios, 2,928 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 1,518; exporters to Germany, 739; shippers to South America, 635, and our local cigar and cigarette manufacturers, 951 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for fortnight ending April 13th were: To all ports of the United States, 6,331; to Europe, 422; to Buenos Ayres and Montevideo, 219; thus making a total of 6,972 bales.

Cigars.

Contrary to all expectations when the figures of the second half of March were published, by our custom house authorities, the exports showed a decided poorer condition than had been looked for, as can be seen by the following statement, viz.:
Exports from March 16th to March 31st, 1911, 11,229,314 cigars
Exports from March 16th to March 31st, 1912, 7,005,470 do

Decrease in 1912, 4,223,844 cigars

This shows indeed a deplorable state of our cigar industry, as the total decrease during the first three months of this, compared with last year, make the shrinkage in our export amount to 5,517,400 cigars. Our two principal customers, England and the United States, have imported almost five million cigars less from us during the first three months, while Germany has taken about half a million less. The losses to other countries were made up by increases in our exports to France and Canada.

Well, it is no use to cry over spilled milk, and the only consolation is, that we may make up this present deficiency through heavier shipments, as soon as the new crop cigars will come upon the market, and through their excellent taste result in increased orders. It will be, however, August, or at best July, before we can expect to see the turn of the tide this year.

There is only one drawback about the 1912 crop, and this will consist of poor colors of the wrappers. Nature has not seen fit to grant us this additional boon, therefore we will have to make the best of it under the given circumstances, and go to work in initiating an educational campaign from our side with the importers, leaving the further task of explaining matters verbally to the retailers to the former, while the latter will have to enlighten the smokers, that still cling to the fad of thinking, that only light colored cigars are mild. Owing to the preponderance of all kinds of spots on the wrapper leaves of light colors, it will be perhaps impossible to find any uniform clean colors this year, excepting in the darker shades, but as the quality of the crop is of a mild nature throughout the Vuelta Abajo, the dark colored cigars will be as mild as in former years the real, natural, light leaf was.

The question for the smoker in future will be, either to be satisfied with the spotted light wrapper cigars, or to switch off to darker colored ones. As the spots do not affect the quality or burn, it really does not make any difference, excepting that it might offend the eyesight, which had not been accustomed to uniformly brilliant colors, but as we do not smoke with our eyes, and it is the palate that gives us the pleasure, it seems absurd to lay much stress upon the appearance of a cigar, when it has a fine taste and a high aroma.

H. Upmann & Co. report, that they have good orders on hand, and that their factory is working with good forces.

Romeo y Julieta is also doing a good enough business, considering that this is the dull season of the year. Don Pepin Rodríguez has taken passage by the French liner (from here) "Espagne," which will leave on the 28th inst., for Spanish and French ports, in order to see the European customers of Romeo y Julieta, as well as taking a rest during the summer months.

Partagas reports no change in its previously stated activity. Sol is receiving orders all the time from various countries, and Behrens & Co. are more than satisfied with the present state of affairs.

Castañeda is considerably ahead in its output, as compared with last year, and while Messrs Cardenas & Co. admit, that they could do more, they are willing to bide their time, as Rome was not built in one day.

La Diligencia had little of any special interest to say, except that business is picking up gradually.

The Elite Factory is now in charge of Don Pancho Herrero, since the departure of Don Felipe Rodríguez, and is as busy as ever. Eden is getting its full share of the business that is to be had at the moment.

Mr. Francis A. Wilson, deputy chairman of the Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Ltd., left by the "S/S Havana," for New York, after having had a strenuous time in attending to the numerous visitors all this past winter and spring. He will now be in full charge of all the sales of the diverse brands of the Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Ltd., throughout the United States, and with headquarters at 111 Fifth avenue, New York. Don Francisco Arango, the resident manager of the Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Ltd., returned from his short trip to Tampa, and is now on deck again at Zulueta 10. The principal factories are working with the same force as ever.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Mr. Max Stern, who returned here last Wednesday, April 17th, by the "S/S Havana," accompanied by Mrs. Stern, from their four months' sojourn in Europe, narrowly escaped being caught in the Titanic disaster, as they had intended to return by her, but fortunately changed their plans by leaving one week earlier. The friends of Don Maximo will be glad to learn, that he is enjoying his former good health again.

That Mr. Allie L. Sylvester never likes to lose a day, if he can possibly help it, has served him well this time, as otherwise he might have been one of the victims of the ill fated Titanic. He had made his plans to leave by her, but as fortunately there was no need of his staying any longer at Amsterdam, attending the inscriptions, he took passage by the Dutch S/S Rotterdam instead, thus arriving safely three days earlier in New York, than the Titanic could have reached there, if nothing should have happened. He must have left today by the Pennsylvania Railroad in order to arrive here on the 25th inst.

S. Ruppin was quite a heavy buyer again upon his second trip this year, as his purchases summed up 800 bales of leaf, the best of old, heavy quality goods he could find in our market.

Herrera, Calmet & Co., closed out their holdings of old Remedios, 630 bales, and for which they obtained full prices.

Sylvester & Stern were buyers of 650 bales of leaf for their customers.

August Kuttner also invested in some old, heavy quality goods for the sterling house of Rothschild, Sons & Co., of Chicago, amounting to 400 bales.

A Spanish house, that particularly requested not to have its name published, sold 700 bales of old Vuelta Abajo to their customers.

Menéndez & Co. sold 300 bales of new Remedios during the past fortnight.

Diego Montero was a big buyer again during the past two weeks, picking up 600 bales of old, heavy Remedios and Vuelta Abajo for his South American customers.

José C. Puente turned over 282 bales of old and new Remedios. H. Upmann & Co. purchased 300 bales during the first half of this month for export to Germany.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez were sellers of 270 bales of leaf. Aleck Goldschmidt invested to the extent of 250 bales of heavy quality goods in our market, in order to be able to tide over some of the customers of his firm of A. Blümlein & Co.

Miguel Gutierrez disposed of 250 bales of old Remedios. Adolfo Möller bought 200 bales of new Remedios for German account.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons sold 248 bales of new Remedios to their customers.

J. F. Berndes & Co. purchased likewise 200 bales of new Remedios.

Mr. Leslie Pantin left with his family, on the 16th inst., via Key West, for New York, and might go later on to Europe eventually, as this is his annual vacation trip, after having worked so hard with his customers last winter.

Mr. Mark A. Pollack had previously sailed on the 13th inst., per S/S Saratoga with his family, but this time it is no pleasure trip for him, as unfortunately his youngest son was suffering from a sickness, that the doctors here could not cure, and therefore he wished to consult a specialist in New York. We sincerely hope that he may be successful in finding the right physician, who can restore his loved child to perfect health again.

Don Antonio Calzada is a very busy man, as without a previous appointment it is hard to find him in his office, but we learned, that he had done some business, although we could not get the exact particulars in time for this mail.

Principal shippers from the port of Havana, during the fortnight ending April 13th were: Leslie Pantin, 987; Sylvester & Stern, 924; J. Bernheim & Sons, 855; Ernest Ellinger & Co., 563; I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, 473; M. Suarez, 285; Monroe Commercial Co., 260, and Diego Montero, 231 bales.

Foreign Tobacco Notes

England.

THE ruling prices for tobacco leaf practically constitute a record for dearthness, and, notwithstanding the temptation which they would seem to hold out to growers to increase their acreage, there is very little prospect of expansion of production. This is attributable to the increased cost of production, and particularly of labor. In the United States the increase in this respect has been very substantial. For several years past cotton has been offering superior inducements to the grower, with the result that considerable areas previously devoted to tobacco are now planted with cotton.

Last year's severe drought, which was practically world wide, had an inimical effect on the supply as well as the quality, while the consumption continues to increase in practically every quarter of the globe. Even in England there are signs of a recovery from the effects of the increase in the duty of 8d (16 cents) per pound in 1909. In 1911 the consumption of unmanufactured tobacco was 101,110,000, as compared with 96,184,000 pounds in 1910 and 94,557,000 pounds in 1909. The current year has not made such a promising start, as the consumption of unmanufactured tobacco in January was 7,933,000 pounds, a decrease of 480,000 pounds from the same period in 1911.

The annual report of the Imperial Tobacco Co., recently issued, would appear to afford conclusive evidence of a strong recovery in the consumption, but possibly the success of that great combine has been attained at least partly at the expense of its smaller competitors. At any rate, during the past two years no fewer than 43 tobacco manufacturers have disappeared from the trade, and in well-informed quarters it is believed that this process of elimination is not yet at an end.—London Financial Times.

France.

AS the sale of tobacco and its products is a Government monopoly in France, permission must be obtained from the director general of State manufactures for the introduction of foreign cigarettes for public sale in that country. Two models of cigarettes and two packages of each model must be presented by each maker desiring admission. The applicant must agree to furnish to the regie (the Government monopoly) specified quantities of cigarettes annually, state the price and give a description of each model of cigarette, the style of packing, number of cigarettes in a package, etc., and submit samples. The retail selling price is calculated on the basis of the weight and wholesale price of the cigarettes by a formula established by the Government regulations. All cigarettes containing substances detrimental to the public health and all those whose packing does not conform to certain rules are refused admission.

After being admitted, each manufacturer is required to deposit a guarantee fund of 20,000 francs ($3,860) in currency or Government bonds, which sum is returned at the end of three years or whenever the profits of the brand exceed triple the annual minimum exacted by the State, unless the brand is suppressed within that time, when the guaranty is retained by the State. Upon receiving an order from the regie, the manufacturer is required to ship the goods promptly, freight prepaid, to the Manufacture des Tabacs de Paris-Reuilly, where they are stored at the manufacturer's risk until verified and accepted by the regie. In case the sale of the various types of a certain brand fail to return an annual profit of 40,000 francs ($7,720) to the regie during the first three years of sale, the brand is suppressed.

In October, 1911, the administration of the State manufactory was authorized to negotiate contracts for the trial introduction of self-lighting cigarettes, subject to indorsement by the public-health officers. Up to March 15, 1912, no foreign manufacturers of such cigarettes had availed themselves of the new regulation.—From Consul-General Frank H. Mason, Paris.

India.

ONE of the most marked successes of the Agricultural Department has been its recent tobacco experiments, both in culture and in manufacture, which have given noteworthy results. The prices realized for the first year's crop, $20 for Sumatra variety, have been quite eclipsed by last year's result, viz., $40 per maund (82.27 pounds) for the same variety. The crop was some 1,476 pounds per acre and the cost of production was low, leaving a substantial profit on cultivation and curing.—From Consul-General William H. Michael, Calcutta.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Sales Running Along Smoothly in New York City---Little Buying in New Pennsylvania New Crop---
Majority of Connecticut Warehouses Closed for Season

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY.

CONSIDERING the lassitude in the cigar manufacturing trade at this time, the local leaf market is doing a fair volume of business. It does not appear to have felt the severity of the reduced cigar output very much, and sales are running along smoothly.

All dealers are unanimous in the opinion that the high price of all types of leaf accounts in part for the quietness. The transactions in the New England leaf show a fair demand, both in prime and shade-grown tobacco, and it has been predicted that before very long it will be hard to secure.

Although all agree on the general excellence of the new Sumatra, dealers have not sold it very largely as yet. The buying has been in limited quantities. Much is expected of the new Havana crop, for the earlier reports are being confirmed and the dealers feel sure they will have no trouble in securing a good amount and also a tobacco of excellent quality.

Very little improvement has been shown in the cigar market during the last two weeks. The demand for nickel brands is fair, as is the trade on seed lines. The showing on clear Havana cigars is about the same as at this time last year, making a fairly good showing. The new spring offerings are of a less number than last year, attributed to the caution usually shown in a presidential year. Box manufacturers and lithographic houses are doing a fair amount of business, but are far from satisfied.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA.

THERE has been very little change in the local leaf tobacco market within the last fortnight. Many of the dealers are pretty well stocked up in the 1911 Pennsylvania crop and the majority are enthusiastic over the quality of the leaf.

Binder, it has been stated, is extremely scarce and dealers are looking ahead to the Pennsylvania crop for new good binders. A number of the larger houses have representatives in Amsterdam attending the Sumatra inscriptions, who are buying largely of that tobacco, although they all consider the price far too high.

The manufacturers in this vicinity appear to be very wary about investing much money in leaf tobacco at this time, and as a result the market is quiet. This has been accounted for by the fact that they consider the leaf too high in price at this time and are waiting for a drop in prices. The dullness has also been attributed to the general condition of the trade here. The manufacturers with a large Middle Western trade are the heaviest purchasers just now.

Nevertheless, the leaf dealers are all expecting their usual business and are not complaining. They have the stock and, as usual, will easily dispose of it, if not at this time, at a later date.

LANCASTER.

THERE has been very little buying in the new crop during the past two weeks. It has been estimated that from ten to fifteen per cent. still remains in the growers' hands. The leaf dealers claim that some of the planters have demanded too much for their tobacco, and especially so in view of the present state of the trade. In consequence some of them are having difficulty in disposing of it at this date. There are some districts in this locality where much of the new crop remains unsold.

While undoubtedly much of this balance contains tobacco of a good quality, it is certain that quite a bit of it is of an inferior grade, and some which has been carefully inspected and not been purchased. The remainder will possibly bring not more than seven or eight cents.

The wet weather has considerably hampered growers in preparing their fields and this work has been progressing slowly. Judging the acreage for 1912 by the number of seed beds, it will be at least as large as last year, perhaps larger.

The leaf market continues dull, in sympathy with the manufacturing trade. The 1910 tobacco has been bringing from 16 to 19 cents, and the 1909 goods from 14 to 17 cents. There appears to be considerable 1909 goods in the local warehouses.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD.

THE majority of the warehouses at this point have closed for the season. Several are still sorting some shade-grown tobacco. All the tobacco men pronounce it one of the most successful seasons they have ever had. Throughout the winter all the packing houses have been busy handling the 1911 crop of shade-grown Havana seed and the broadleaf variety, which has necessitated the hiring of much outside help.

The American Cigar Company, of which Matthew Leahy is the local representative, was the largest buyer of tobacco in this section. They bought early and secured the best tobacco in town, taking the prime tobacco first.

The farmers have had seed sprouting in pans indoors, and as the weather permits, are transferring it to the beds. Many of the growers have sterilized their beds, a method used by the larger planters. This system was first introduced some years ago and is becoming quite prevalent. It heats the beds, a process which tends to develop the plants rapidly.

The Bissel-Graves syndicate, in West Suffield, will increase its acreage about 20 acres, using in the neighborhood of 190 acres this year. Many growers, just as this syndicate is doing, are expecting to raise more primed tobacco, as the prices received for this year's crop encouraged many of them to adopt this method of harvesting, rather than the old way of spearing the stalk, and then stripping the leaves from the stalk later in the fall.

WISCONSIN.

EDGEMONT.

FARMERS and dealers in this vicinity have been greatly inconvenienced by the lack of easing weather. It has been comparatively dry for over four months, and as a result much of last season's crop is still hanging in the sheds. Farmers are feeling uneasy, for the work of preparing for the new crop is now at hand and when good easing weather is at hand they may have little time to spend on preparing the tobacco for market.

There is very little doing in buying on an export basis, though there is more of the new crop unsold than was at first expected. A number of the warehouses, which were early purchasers, have closed, while the remainder are well along in their work.

The majority of the sales in old leaf are of a limited quantity, usually of a nature to meet the immediate needs of the manufacturers. With the arrival of warmer weather the growers are busy hauling fertilizer and preparing their fields for the new crop. The beds have all been sown.

KENTUCKY.

LEXINGTON.

ACCORDING to all appearances, the largest crop of Burley tobacco ever handled in Central Kentucky will be set out this year. Reports from the country are that plant beds are to be seen on every side, and indications all point to an immense acreage.

The farmers of Central Kentucky have grown to depend chiefly upon their tobacco crop for annual profits on their farms, and the high prices received this year have given a boom to Burley tobacco raising which it has not had before in many years. Many of the farmers attribute the good prices received to the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company.

The Burley Tobacco Society's ten-year pool, under which forty or fifty million pounds will be annually manufactured by the Society, and this amount, therefore, to be kept out of the leaf market, will undoubtedly help a great deal.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI.

THE offerings in the local Burley market have been considerably less the past two weeks than for some time. Most of the tobacco was of a low grade and ruled at the same prices as have been prevailing.

The Burley Tobacco Society has announced that it would start to dispose of its pooled holdings on May 1st. This news has been received with considerable interest by local buyers. It was stated that all tobacco in storage here would be offered, and should the prices secured warrant the Society in so doing, more tobacco will be shipped to the local breaks from other points to be disposed of.

Raising Tobacco in Canada

Canada is now raising a great deal of tobacco. The improvement of the quality may be imagined when it is stated that some fifteen years ago samples of the tobacco then grown by the Quebec farmer for his own use, upon being submitted to several of the leading tobacco manufacturers in England was pronounced to be of a quality quite unfit for their purpose; that in their opinion a use for it might be found for fumigation purposes, as an insecticide for greenhouses, and that its commercial value was about one-half cent a pound. Tobacco is at present raised almost entirely in Quebec and Ontario. The total crop last year was 20,000,000 pounds.

Boston Tobacco Dealers Not Complaining

Spring Trade Better Than Last Year—Several New Cigar Companies Are Incorporated—"Girard" Cigar Well Liked In "Hub" City

Boston, April 24th.

THE cigar and tobacco business in Boston and vicinity is good. Why shouldn't it be, with the enormous amount of capital invested in the trade. Just double the amount of business is done this spring in comparison to last year.

The State Street Smoke Shop, 144 State street, Boston, J. H. Rankin, proprietor, is meeting with wonderful success, on high grade goods such as "Charles the Great," "Flor de Mendel," "Girard" and Langsdorf goods. The brokers on State street and merchants go out of their way often to get some of his Havana cigars.

Harry Williams, of Langsdorf Sales Co., the popular old scout, is still doing it. "Langos Perfecto" is selling better than ever. They cannot stop him now, as he has a fine trade established, and where he has placed the cigars he can always sell again. For fine flavor they cannot be excelled.

E. A. Kline, of Cleveland, Ohio, has discharged some men and expects the cigar to sell on its merits hereafter. His brands take favorably in Boston.

E. M. Davis, the well-known salesman of Roig & Langsdorf, Philadelphia, is showing a nice increase on "Girard" cigars. They duplicate; that is what a live dealer is looking for. A good many of the Boston dealers handle the "Girard" cigar.

James Pink, the veteran of cigar salesmen, just returned from Maine, reports a large sale on "Charles the Great" Havana goods, and "Flor de Mendel" seed Havanna. Most of the hotels and cigar dealers keep them in stock.

Hanover Cigar Co., Boston, incorporated April 9, 1912, with a capital of $5000, 50 shares at $100 each. The directors are: Elmer E. Greenwood, president; John G. Reidt, Boston, treasurer, and Dominick Valcanick.

Red Dragon Cigar Co., Haverhill, filed articles of incorporation April 15, 1912, with a capital of $10,000, 2000 shares at $5 each. The directors are: Trefle J. Robitalilli, president; Fred W. Burrill, treasurer, and Mary Robitalilli.

Frank Swick, Philip Morris' representative in New England, is doing fine work on "P. M. Little Brown Box" and the new "Unis." He is one of the most popular and conscientious salesmen ever sent to this territory.

J. C. Dill & Co., of State street, Boston, manufacturers of "Dill's Best Tobacco," say that spring trade is booming and that their customers are well satisfied with the quality of the goods, being kept up to a high standard.

Rosenthal Bros. and Bendelson, jobbers, on North street, report a fine sale on "Havana Ribbon" 5-cent cigar, "La Famosa" 5-cent cigar, and also "Grant City Club," high grade goods, made by Mendel Bros., of New York.

The Nagle Cigar Co., 280 State street, Boston, manufacturers of fine grade cigars, say that business is improving and will compare favorably with any spring trade during the last five years.

Larus & Bro. Co., agents for E. M. Harrington, Richmond, Va., say that business is so good that the firm cannot find goods enough to fill orders. The brands they handle are the "Sensible," "Oboid," "Gold Bond," "Golden Sight," "Edgeworth" and Richmond best Navy tobacco.

"Hoffman House Bouquet" cigars are selling well at the Milk street cigar store. They say that business is fair and general trade is about normal.

The United States Tobacco Co., of Richmond, Va., store at No. 10 Milk street, Boston, report business as fair. When the weather settles they expect it will improve greatly.

At Woodbury's cigar store they are having a fine display of Havana cigars. "El Plano," "Webster," "Earth Cigar," "Lovera," are the leading features and brands that have the call.

G. Frank Davenport, for fifteen years at 422 Washington street, now at 235 Third street, manufacturer of the "Annie Pixley" cigar, is now having a fine box trade, selling to jobbers and the general trade and building up a fine business. The cigar is well known in this locality.

W. P. Kittridge & Co., 232 Milk street, dealers in leaf tobacco, say that business is good and improving. They have received large orders weekly throughout the New England States.

WM. T. HENDERSON.

Best & Russell Introducing "Week End" Cigars

The Best & Russell Co. are coming out with a new Saturday and Sunday cigar called the "Week End." It is not known yet who will manufacture these cigars. This company does a big business with their "Potter Palmer" cigar, which is only sold on the last and first day of the week, manufactured by Storm, Fisher & Co., of New York and Chicago.

Factory Notes

J. Varno & Co., of Houlton, Me., have put a new cigar on the market, called "The Club," the label bearing a picture of the Elks' Home, in that city.

Fred Mickey, of Dubuque, Ia., has started a new cigar factory in that city near the Allawakee Hotel. His brands will be "K. Boy" and "Doc's Leader."

Joseph Dollinger, of Suffield, Conn., has rented a building owned by Mrs. Mary Atwater, of that place, and will remove his cigar factory to the new location.

Charles Blesse, of Jacksonville, Ill., has purchased of Ed De Baerinfeld his share in the business of the Co-operative Cigar Company and will run it under the same name.

C. E. Hixson, who formerly operated a cigar factory in Lenton, Mo., has just established a factory in Macon, Mo. The firm will be known as the Hixson Cigar Manufacturing Co.

Robert and Fred Northey have engaged in the cigar manufacturing business at Negannee, Mich. They are both practical cigar makers and will make at first the "May Flower," a ten cent cigar.

The Grand Rapids Cigar Box Company, of Grand Rapids, Mich., has moved into its old quarters on Ellsworth avenue and is working a force of thirty hands. The company was burned out March 5 and the plant has been remodelled since then.

Chambersburg, Pa., is to have a new cigar factory. John A. Forbes, who has been working in that place for thirty-five years with various firms, will open a plant at 335 East Queen street. He will make six brands, the leaders being the "Shamrock" and "The High Line."

Bids for the construction of the new building of the Bloch Bros. Tobacco Company were opened recently in Wheeling, W. Va. The new plant will have four stories and a basement. The building will be of reinforced concrete, with pressed brick inside and out, making it strictly fireproof.

The O. K. Tobacco Company, of Glasgow, Ky., has purchased two lots in that city, and is now erecting a temporary building until the larger building is completed, which will be about September 1. They will manufacture smoking tobacco and will start in their temporary plant about May 1.

Grommes & Elson, the manufacturers of "Ben Bey" Havana cigars, who are now located at 304 North Franklin street, Chicago, will move into their new factory building soon after the first of May. It is on Robey street, near North avenue, and is a three-story-and-basement affair, constructed according to the latest approved standards of modern cigar factory requirements.

The B. F. Adams Cigar Manufactory is now well settled in its new quarters at 34 Mercantile square, Bangor, Me., they having recently removed from State street, that city. The Adams factory comprises three floors of the building. On the second are the office, sorting, branding and shipping departments; on the third the cigar makers' and strippers' rooms and on the top floor the storage and sweat rooms.

Elect Officers for R. J. Reynolds Co.

The board of directors of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company held its annual meeting in the office of the company at Winston-Salem, N. C., on April 9 and elected the following officers: R. J. Reynolds, president; W. N. Reynolds, Bowman Gray and P. R. Masten, vice-presidents; W. R. Reynolds, general manager department of manufacture; Geo. W. Coan, secretary; D. Rich, treasurer; M. E. Motsinger, assistant treasurer; James Sloan, auditor.

R. J. Reynolds, the founder of this large concern, has been at its head since its establishment. His two brothers, Messrs. W. N. and W. R. Reynolds, have been associated with him since the beginning of this enterprise.

The United Cigar Stores Company have filed papers of incorporation with the Secretary of State of Vermont to do business in that State. The capital stock is to be $50,000 and the first retail store will be opened in Burlington.

The Kind on which to Build
Your Business

MADE BY
Allen R. Cressman's Sons, Philadelphia

Short
to Dealers

Many cigarette smokers have been smoking Fatimas for years. Business and professional men who received their first introduction to Fatimas in their College days still cling to their old favorite—

FATIMA
CIGARETTES

A cigarette that can hold men that way for years has something more behind it than mere price or fancy package. It has quality—the quality that makes men go out of their way to get Fatimas in preference to any others.

Such a cigarette not only attracts customers but it holds them. And such a cigarette is the one you should make your leader.

Fatimas are already in the front rank—our 1912 advertising campaign will make them more popular than ever.

A Customer Leaving Your Store Must Have Done One of Five Things

1. Bought Goods for Cash

A National Cash Register insures the merchant that all cash will be accounted for and handled correctly.

2. Bought Goods on Credit

A National Cash Register benefits the merchant by preventing loss through failure to charge goods sold on credit or through lost charge slips.

3. Paid Money on Account

A National Cash Register enforces a correct record and this insures the merchant that he gets all money received on account.

4. Collected Money

A National Cash Register benefits the merchant, by preventing anyone paying out money without leaving a record of the amount. This enables him to balance the cash quickly and prevents bills being paid twice.

5. Change a Coin or Bill

A National Cash Register protects the merchant against loss in making change and furnishes the means of advertising to those who ask to be accommodated.

A National Cash Register benefits merchant, customer and clerk on all of these transactions.

Mild yet full-flavored

There is the slogan — our slogan — that is waking up a big army of smokers and sending them to you.

Are you getting your share?

Here is exactly the kind of cigar that the great majority of smokers want. And we send them to the dealer to get it.

We do not carry on a mail order business.

Who ever writes us for a sample-box of the Girard cigar must send the full retail price and give us his dealer's name. And that dealer gets his profit on our sale — if he will arrange to supply his customers with the Girard cigar.

We have no prize scheme to spoil your trade. We help you to build it up. This high-grade cigar, our square selling policy, and our strong consistent advertising all work directly for you.

Do you read our regular announcements in The Saturday Evening Post — with its two million copies every week?

NATIONAL LEAF ASSOCIATION SWINGS THE CLUB

Delegates Condemn Taft Administration and Wire Endorsement to Colonel Roosevelt
Anti-Coupon Bill Approved—Resolution To Lower Wrapper Duty
Defeated—Dayton Gets Next Meeting

THE fourteenth annual gathering of the members of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association which closed at New York on the night of the 14th inst. indicates clearly that the Association is a more potent factor in the affairs of the leaf trade than it has ever been heretofore. The principal work accomplished by the Convention may be summarized as follows:

First.—Condemnation of the attitude of the present national administration toward the interests of the tobacco industry at large.

Second.—Endorsement of the candidacy of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

Third.—Unqualified endorsement of the Cummins Bill now before Congress and instructions to the officers of the Association to exert special efforts to have the bill passed.

Fourth.—The change in the rules of the Convention whereby only a two-thirds vote instead of a three-fourths vote of the delegates assembled in annual convention should be binding on the officers in giving them instructions concerning tariff legislation.

Fifth.—The defeat of the proposed resolution offered by the Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade advocating the passage of a measure instructing the officers of the National Association to secure from Congress of the United States a reduction in the rate of duty on wrapper tobacco.

The present board of officers and directors were unanimously re-elected with the exception of Felix Eckerson, the treasurer for some years past, who positively refused re-election. In his stead, Ferdinand Crazz, the well-known New York Sumatra importer and a member of the firm of F. & E. Crazz, was elected treasurer.

Upon invitation of the Dayton Delegates it was voted that the next meeting of the Association should be held next year in Dayton, Ohio.

The First Day's Proceedings.

Through the courtesy of Joseph Cullman, Jr., the owner of the Metal Exchange Building, southeast corner of Pearl street and Burling Slip, the convention was able to hold its business sessions directly in the center of the leaf district and this added greatly to the interest and convenience of the delegates.

The delegates and visitors commenced gathering early, and it was just a few moments after ten in the morning, when president A. B. Hess, of Lancaster, rapped for order. Seated on the platform with him, were Charles Emory Long, secretary, and Fred. B. Griffin, vice-president. First in order was the report of the credential committee, which was accepted without debate, and showed presence of fifty-one delegates.

Following this, President Hess presented his report and the work accomplished, during the year just closed, a condensed summary of which is appended herewith.

The results attained by our Association during the year and the vision of possibility of attainment, by uniting our influence with that of associations of kindred lines, emphasizes the wisdom of the founders of our Association, as has the events of no other year in its history.

Shortly after the last Annual Convention a portion of our membership became very aggressive in declaring for a reduction in the duty on wrapper leaf tobacco. This proposition was indorsed by a scant majority at our last Convention after a very thorough discussion. The vote by which it was indorsed was so close, however, as to prove that the sentiment in favor and against it was very evenly divided. A resolution giving definite instructions to the officers of your Association was lost. The personal interest and preference of your officers is in favor of a reduction, if it can be secured without concession of compensatory measures, to enable the government to get the same amount of revenue from tobacco, that would be more disastrous than the present high rate of duty on wrapper tobacco. In view of the evenly divided sentiment and in view of the possibility of having other legislation fastened upon us, that would be more irksome than the present rate of duty on wrapper tobacco, your officers considered it a wise policy to be conservative, not to follow a sudden impulse, but to give due thought and study to the entire tariff question, so as to be able to defend and maintain our new position, if taken, and to be reasonably sure of attaining what we set out to do. In this spirit we felt a keen interest in the aggressive work done by our friends, who so ardently championed this cause.

On June 17, 1911, while your officers were in the midst of this study and investigation the Honorable Mr. Warburton introduced a bill in the National House of Representatives providing for additional revenue by increasing the internal revenue tax on cigars and by placing it upon an ad valorem basis. On cigars weighing more than three pounds per thousand and selling at wholesale for less than $40 per thousand the internal revenue tax to be paid by the manufacturer was proposed to be raised from $3 per thousand to $6 per thousand. On cigars selling at wholesale at from $40 to $110 per thousand, $8 per thousand. Those selling from $110 to $160, $12 per thousand, and on cigars selling at wholesale for more than $160 per thousand he proposed an internal revenue tax of $16 per thousand. It requires no argument to prove that if this bill had become a law it would not only have led to gross deception and misrepresentation, but a minimum internal revenue tax of $6 per thousand would have done more to exterminate the small manufacturer and to drive the business into the hands of a few concerns than any other single piece of legislation that could have possibly been enacted. The excuse for this bill was that it was for the purpose of securing additional revenue. In view of this it seemed to your officers to be very unwise to attempt to defeat this bill and to attempt at the same time to secure a reduction of

TAMPA, FLA., May 13.

THE Clear Havana Cigar Manufacturers' Association, of Tampa, at a meeting held last week, decided on a plan which should insure peace and harmony between the employers and their employees. The meeting was attended by a delegation representing the cigarmakers.

A system of inspection of the factories was adopted to see that all manufacturers are fully complying with the scale of sizes and prices. The scale has been under discussion since the last big strike, which so demoralized the cigar industry in this city. The association of manufacturers had the plan as agreed upon printed in pamphlet almost one-half in the rate of duty on wrapper leaf tobacco. As a result your officers became active in protesting against the Warburton bill, with the result that the bill is still in the keeping of the Ways and Means Committee of the House, to whom it was referred. This issue is now in the hands of this Convention and we trust that before we adjourn you will leave no doubt as to your position upon it.

Action on American Tobacco Company Dissolution.

The event of the year of greatest moment not only to every member of our organization nor to everyone interested in the tobacco industry, but to every American citizen came during the closing days of September, when the American Tobacco Company, who by a decree of the Supreme Court of the land were declared to be an illegal combination operating in restraint of trade, presented to the Circuit Court of Southern New York a petition containing a plan of re-organization. This issue is not a mere business proposition; not a mere circumstance. The principle involved is an issue that has defied the genius and manhood of civilizations. When the provisions of the plan itself became known a meeting of the Board of Directors was called to be held in New York, in conjunction with a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the New York Tobacco Board of Trade. This meeting was held in the Tobacco Board of Trade Rooms on October 3, 1911, and was attended by almost every member of your Board of Directors, as well as by almost all of the Trustees of the New York Tobacco Board of Trade. After a full and complete discussion of the proposed plan suitable resolutions were carefully prepared and adopted. Among their provisions was one authorizing our organization to employ counsel so that we might be intelligently represented, if a public hearing were accorded us by the court. Another provision authorized your officers to appoint a committee to be composed of members from every leaf tobacco district covered by our membership, whose duty it was to raise funds to defray the expenses made necessary by the plan of action determined upon. Another provision of the resolutions adopted authorized your officers to appoint a committee of three, who would at all times be promptly available and who could act in conjunction with your officers and counsel in all matters involving the interest of our members and the trade in general. This committee was composed of Joseph Cullman, Jr., A. Bijur and Charles Fox.

On October 19, 1911, another meeting was called to be held at the same place. This meeting was attended by your officers and numerous members of our Association, also by the officers and numerous members of the Manufacturers' Association of America, also by the officers and numerous members of the Retail Tobacconists' Association of New York City. The National Cigarmakers' Union was represented by its officers, as well as numerous Growers' Associations scattered through the various tobacco growing centres of the country and by officers and representatives of numerous local boards of trade and individual concerns located in all the tobacco centers of the land. It was unquestionably the most imposing array of tobacco interest ever assembled in the history of our business. As a result of that meeting eminent attorneys were employed and the Attorney Generals of four States of our Union became interested in our cause, and then, during the closing days of October, came the hearing. Suffice it to say that even though the parent company was dissolved and divided into four corporations; even though the business and brands were allotted to the segregated parts in such a manner as to allow no one of them to control over 20 per cent. of the entire business, which under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act constitutes a monopoly, when we learned that the plan would be adopted without containing any provision that would guarantee the Independents against one group of men, controlling the four companies by stock ownership, we went back to our homes with a feeling of keen disappointment, and not far removed from actual discouragement. There were those who whispered failure, but fellow-members of the National Leaf Tobacco Convention, allow me to declare to you most emphatically we brought better than we knew. I have an abiding faith in the sincerity, patriotism and the wisdom of the American people. No issue in this home of the free will ever be finally settled until it is settled right. Might may have its day, but right will eventually triumph. This principle is eternal, and nowhere in human history has it been so sacredly guarded as in this land of liberty.

Demands New Law as to Monopoly.

How can this be accomplished? By placing on our statute books just laws that will fix definite limitations not only as to what shall constitute a monopoly or what shall be in restraint of trade, but that will fix definite legal business practice and make all forms of dishonesty amenable to the law—such laws as are based upon the principle that in all fair bargains both parties profit, and society does not suffer in consequence!

Above everything else we need to elect men to enforce the laws, who will not be so much concerned about how their action will affect them politically, but how will it affect society eternally. Men who are concerned about their own welfare only, and the compliance with the letter of the law, can no longer satisfy the American people. They demand men who conscientiously follow the spirit of right and the law. What are the signs of our efforts not having failed, you ask? My reply is that in spite of our repeated petitions, to the Attorney General, to grant us an appeal from the decision of the Circuit Court, being denied us, on April 22, 1912, the Cummins' Bill directing the Attorney General to appeal from the decision of the Circuit Court passed the Senate without a dissenting vote, and every indication points to the fact that it will pass the House with as little opposition. Another provision of this bill is that the independent tobacco interests shall be accorded a hearing and allowed to present argument in the proceedings. The indisputable fact is that our loyalty, our enthusiasm, and the fact that we were in the right, has awakened a public interest from ocean to ocean, which cannot subside until great good, not only for us as tobacco men is accomplished, but for every American citizen, and ultimately for humanity. Its results have been apparent in recent elections.

Allow me to say further that whatever we accomplished was done without a dollar of expense to the Association, and it affords your officers pleasure to advise you that our Association is in a thoroughly healthy condition, financially, numerically and from the standpoint of interest and enthusiasm.

Suggests a Credit-Saving Plan.

In reading through a copy of the Constitution and By-laws of our organization, a new edition of which your officers have recently had printed, I encountered the following language in its object:

"To investigate and disseminate valuable commercial and economic information; to secure and make available to the trade information as to the standing of merchants."

It so frequently occurs that when one of our members learns that he has placed upon his books a worthless account, he soon discovers that numerous other members have the same account on their books. In view of this, we believe it would be profitable for the Convention to endeavor to arrange through the medium of a Bureau or a Committee some plan that would be useful to our members in avoiding these pitfalls. We submit this for your consideration.

The deeply respected treasurer of the Association, Felix Eckerson, of Philadelphia, presented his report which showed a comfortable balance in bank and no liabilities.

The Afternoon Session.

The first session adjourned at 12 o'clock for luncheon. The second business meeting of the convention met promptly at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Hall was crowded to its limit, and every resolution offered or suggested made, brought forth most interesting and earnest consideration.

Roosevelt Is Endorsed.

One of the most notable events of the afternoon, was the attack on the part of the convention on the present national administration, and the signing of two telegrams, one to the President of the United States voicing the convention's views and the other to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, expressing their belief on the part of the convention in his ideas in as far as they affected the interests in the tobacco industry at large.

William Taussig, of Chicago, offered a resolution with a view toward the organization of a National Anti-Coupon Association.

In the motion the judiciary committee of the convention was instructed to watch carefully the Cummins Bill, now before the House of Representatives, and exert special efforts to have the bill enacted.

Lively Tilt Over the Tariff.

The liveliest debate of the afternoon occurred when John R. Young, of Philadelphia, offered a resolution on behalf of the Philadelphia Tobacco Leaf Board of Trade, the purpose of which was to rescind the action of the convention held in Baltimore three years ago, at which time the resolution was adopted, making it compulsory upon the officers of the board, not to enter into any tariff legislation, unless so instructed by a three-fourths vote of the assembled delegates in convention. After much debating this resolution was finally past rescinding the previous action, and immediately thereafter Mr. Haas, of Hartford, offered a new resolution making it compulsory, that tariff legislation can only be effected by the officers of the association of a two-thirds vote of the convention, it was instructed. The debate on this resolution was spirited, but it was finally carried by a close vote.

The Second Day Session.

The second day of the session was called to order promptly at 10 o'clock and opened with a report from the Resolutions Committee. Included in these resolutions was one from the Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade presented by the veteran, John R. Young, who is Chairman of the Resolutions Committee of the Philadelphia Board, and which read as follows:

Whereas, The conditions now existing in the Tobacco Trade are such as to not only cause serious apprehension as to the future of the business, but demand that this Association, composed of representative men of all sections and branches of the industry, shall at this session,

Delegates Lavishly Entertained by Hospitable Gothamites

The Social Side.

All the delegates, alternate and visitors to the convention came to New York as the special guests of the New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade and of which Charles Fox was the Chairman of the Entertainment Committee, especially appointed to look after the comfort and happiness of the visitors. This committee certainly did its work well and remembrance of the royal time accorded them will linger many a day in the memories of those who were fortunate enough to be present.

With excellent foresight the committee secured some weeks ago 300 orchestra seats for Ziegfeld's "Winsome Widow" show at the Moulin Rouge. This is a stunning entertainment and the reigning theatrical success in New York City at the present time, so that the visitors were treated to the very best in this line which the city afforded.

After the performance, a smoker was held at the magnificent new Elks' Club House, on W. 43d street, just around the corner from the theatre, and some hundred or more visitors dropped in there, where they found a royal entertainment of singing, good stories and lots of after-theatre food were abundantly on tap.

Of course, the big feature of the whole convention was the banquet, at the Waldorf Astoria, on the night of Tuesday the 14th. The class of this dinner can be well estimated from the character of the menu which was Tiffany product. The menu was printed in gold on leaf shaped brown leather which had been grained to almost the exact representation of a tobacco leaf. That this souvenir was costly, was apparent to the most ignorant, but the effect was striking and rich and gave promise of the delicious viands which followed.

The dinner was served under the famous Oscar's special direction and it showed the Waldorf management at its best when it comes to a function of this kind. During each course, a rattling fine male quartette sang the up-to-date songs and it is needless to add that the choruses were not neglected by the diners. After the last cork had popped the Entertainment Committee provided an especially attractive bill of vaudeville entertainment gathered from the best sources in New York. Included in this was a quartette from the "Rose Maid" Company, one of the big Broadway successes which was personally directed by the musical director of that company.

Appended herewith is the official list of the diners and the tables at which they were located.

not only carefully consider existing conditions, but adopt measures which will be in the interest of a majority of the membership; and

Whereas, The rapidly decreasing number of customers of every leaf tobacco dealer is evidence of the fact that there must be a basic cause for these existing conditions, and, in the opinion of many who have studied the question carefully, this basic cause is the existing rate of duty on wrapper tobacco, together with the high cost of domestic tobacco; and

Whereas, The Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade at its last meeting, after a full discussion of the above conditions, instructed its delegates to this convention to advocate and endeavor to secure the passage of a measure instructing the officers of the National Association to secure from the Congress of the United States a reduction, not only in the rate of duty on wrapper tobacco, but also a uniform rate of duty on all tobacco imported from Cuba. In view of these facts and complying with the instructions of their local board the Philadelphia delegation offer the following resolution:

Resolved, It is the sense of this convention, that in the interest of the greater number of growers of and packers, importers and dealers in cigar leaf tobacco, there should be a decided decrease in the existing rate of duty on leaf tobacco imported into the United States and a uniform rate of duty on the leaf tobacco imported from Cuba; and further be it

Resolved, That the incoming executive officers and the board of directors be and are hereby definitely instructed to immediately adopt measures to secure this reduction; and further be it

Resolved, That the executive officers shall be given the right to use the funds of the Association and to solicit subscriptions from the members and also from the cigar manufacturers to assist in carrying out the instructions of this convention.

This brought once again to the front the agitation which the Philadelphia members of the National Convention have been carrying on for four years past concerning a reduction on the duty on wrapper tobacco.

The rest of the morning session and the better part of the afternoon session were taken up in a discussion of this resolution. Such men as Benno Neuberger, Julius Lichtenstein, William Taussig, B. L. Haas, F. R. Hoisington, E. A. Calves, and John R. Young, who vehemently spoke to the resolution, for and against, and when the votes were called for on an aye and no vote, the volume of ayes led one to believe that the Philadelphia delegation had finally carried their point. On a detailed count of the vote, however, the resolution was lost by a vote of 28 to 22.

The Convention instructed their officers to assist all that they possibly could in the passage of one of the bills now pending before Congress "to allow the cigar manufacturers the use of free smokers for their workmen without the payment of Internal Revenue Tax."

The next in order was the election of officers which had been postponed from its regular course from the day previous. The following gentlemen were proposed to serve for the ensuing year which was the old board intact, with the exception of the treasurer, Felix Eckerson, who has, for several years past, been desirous of relinquishing his position. In his stead Mr. Ferdinand Cranz, one of the most popular of the New York coterie of Sumatra importers, was elected. Mr. Cranz's election met with universal approbation as he is rated as one of the most honorable and able business men in his line in New York City.

Before adjournment, the delegates from Dayton, O., presented a most cordial invitation to the Association to hold their meeting there next year, and this invitation was accepted.

A strong resolution was passed, endorsing the Mott Anti-Coupon Bill now before Congress. The resolution favoring the enactment of a law which would classify all leaf tobacco imported from Cuba as filler tobacco was unanimously adopted as follows:

Whereas, It is the consensus of opinion of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association that tobacco coming from the Island of Cuba is known as, and literally is, filler tobacco, over 98 per cent. of it being used for that purpose; therefore be it

Resolved, That this association favors the classification of all Cuban leaf tobacco as filler tobacco, and will use all fair means to bring about such classification.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

Giving the Jobber a Fair Show

MISTAKES are bound to occur, even in the business houses which have the best systems possible to secure.

So when an error has been made by the jobber, the retailer should not fly off the handle and take it out on the house. Look upon the salesman as your friend, see that he gives you a square deal, that he attends to your complaints in respect to goods opening up wrong, that he notifies the house and finally adjusts your complaint. That is the only, and by far the easiest and most equitable, way to adjust claims.

Give your house a fair show and they will make good. They have every reason for satisfying you and none whatever for creating dissatisfaction. Often business men fly in a rage when an error has been made, and promptly throw their trade to another house. The other fellow may not be able to handle your goods to suit you—and then it may be a question of going back to the first man, a humiliating experience which more than one merchant has undergone.

If you decide to change houses, do so after your grievance has been settled, either one way or the other, and then you are in a better position to make a proper selection.

Every retailer makes mistakes, not intentionally, and he feels that his customer is unreasonable if an opportunity to adjust the mistake is not given him. And the retailer should accord the wholesaler the same opportunity to make good.

The man who is in the retail end of any business has the opportunity of examining the goods before they go out to the customer, but the jobber, who sells in original packages, does not have that chance, and often goods which he has paid a high price for, and which he purchased after seeing a fine sample line, may not be in the best of condition. The retailer should take that in consideration and if he shows the goods to the salesman, who in turn informs the house, the matter will be adjusted to his entire satisfaction.

Study the Customer

It is a mistake to try to lead public opinion when keeping a retail store. A better way is to be a shrewd follower of it. Fill your stocks with things the people want to buy, and do not run after a will-o'-the-wisp hobby trying to induce your customers to take what you think they ought to have. They know what they want, and if you do not have it they will go where they can get it. Very few persons can set styles. You are in business to make money, and not to work a reform in regard to tastes and appetites. You can't please all the people all the time, but you can please most of them a great part of the time if you study their inclinations and desires.

Some people read their trade paper with a chip on their shoulder, and look only for things they can object to or take issue with; some swallow whole any and everything they see printed. But the man who gets the most out of it is the one who reads for ideas, and then, armed with these, does some thinking for himself.

Advertising an Investment—Not Charity

MANY business men seem to have formed the opinion that the advertising appropriation is one which is nothing but a charity fund, a sort of necessary evil.

Those men want to get over the idea that it is a fund set aside to give away, and awake to the fact that it is something with which to build up the "good will," something which is considered by many people, when buying a business, to be of even greater value than the stock on hand. And when they give the spending of that appropriation the proper attention, the idea in regard to it being a charity fund will soon fade away.

It is the ambition of every retailer, and every wholesaler also, to build up a regular patronage, get a regular following, which can be depended upon year in and year out. Every name added to that list is one more addition to the value of the "good will" of the business.

Good advertising is not the scattering of the advertising appropriation upon the waters. It is the spending of that appropriation, be it large or small, to the best possible advantage, always bearing in mind the two main objects, the desire to get customers and the necessity of holding them. Do not neglect your advertising, for no man can neglect building up this "good will" value. That man may at some time find out that a business which has no valuable "good will" is usually not worth buying, and in most cases is sold through the bankruptcy court.

New Cigar Store for Fastidious Dayton Smokers

Eisenberger Bros. Open New Stand at Third and Main Streets

Take 10 year lease at $8,000 per annum

AN opening of unusual importance to the tobacco smokers, of Dayton, Ohio, was that recently of the "Cigar Store Beautiful," operated by Morris and Sidney Eisenberger, of that city. The first stand of these ambitious brothers was started twelve years ago, at 33 South Jefferson street. They made such a pronounced success that three years ago they opened another store at 14 South Main street. But they were not satisfied to stop there, and their latest ambition was fully realized, when they secured a ten-year lease on their present store at $8,000 per year. Judging by their past achievements, the new establishment will, before long, be a Mecca for many Dayton smokers.

This new venture of these enterprising men, which is in the Conover Building, Third and Main streets, is the culmination of twelve successful years in the cigar business, and testifies the latest ideas in modern appointments. It is conceded by everyone to be one of the finest in the Middle West, a region having numerous first class stands.

Possibly the best reason for the success of this concern can be ascribed to the wide range and assortment of their stock. They are importers, jobbers and retailers of the following lines of cigars:

In clear Havanas, "Cuesta Rey" (Cuesta, Rey & Co.); "Julia Marlowe" (Corral, Wodiska y Ca.); "Garcia" (F.

Garcia & Co.); "La Venga" (Celestino Vega & Co.); "Henry the Fourth" (Bustillo Bros. & Diaz) and "Lozano" (F. Lozano).

In Broad Leaf, "La Saramita" (Shields-Wertheim Co.); "Royal Laird" (Jos. Weinreich) and "Benedicto" (T. J. Dunn & Co.).

In Porto Rico cigars they feature the line of Cayey Caguas, their "Savorona" being the leader.

Other of their high-grade imported cigars are, "Hoyo De Monterrey," "La Carolina," "Romeo & Julieta" (Rodriguez, Arguelles & Co.) and "Bock y Ca." (Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd.)

Their five-cent leaders are the "Bachelor" and "Little Benedicto" (T. J. Dunn & Co.)

In connection with the above mentioned brands, of which they have control in their territory, they carry a complete assortment of cigarettes and tobacco, carrying hundreds of different brands. In pipes they handle the makes of William Demuth & Co. and Kauffman Bros. and Bondy, in addition to the imported lines, Peterson, B. B. B. and G. B. D.

The accompanying illustrations give an idea of the beautiful exterior of the new store and the luxurious appointments installed inside to meet the demands of the discriminating smokers.

The visitors and delegates to the Convention were liberally provided at all times with a bountiful supply of cigars. The Cayey-Caguas Company sent over a number of boxes of "Savoronas," John W. Merriam & Company furnished an adequate supply of their "Baron DeKalbs" and at the banquet "Hoyo de Monterreys" and S. Fernandez & Company's "Admirations" were largely in evidence. Philip Morris & Company were the official purveyors of cigarettes, and in addition to these a number of packages of "Milos" were offered the delegates.

SOMETIMES," said a friend of mine several days ago, as he stroked his chin reflectively, "it doesn't pay to be too keen after the almighty dollar. You think so, too? Well, I am sure of it. One of my friends is an inveterate cigarette smoker, and like most smokers he sometimes runs short of matches. One day as he was walking along the street he discovered that he had nothing to light up his "coffin nails." He reached a cigar store and took advantage of the lighter which is to be found in every smoke house.

"I like your monumental nerve," growled the proprietor of the place, as my friend murmured his thanks and started for the door.

"My nerve!" cried the smoker, "why do you say you like it? What's the matter?"

"Matter!" shouted the cigarman, "Matter? Why, you wander in here as if you own the place; you help yourself to a light—gas costs me money—and you walk out without spending a cent. And then you wonder why I talk about your nerve."

"Out my friend walked with a great desire for revenge in his heart. What he wanted was a chance to get even, so we fixed upon a plan. The next night I sauntered in the place and said I wanted to buy some cigars. I needed half a dozen boxes of the best, I explained and I didn't care a rap what they cost. Immediately the proprietor became obsequious. He showed me a lot of cigars, and picking out seven of the most expensive, I told him I would take them and I pulled out a comfortable looking roll of bills.

"Then I walked over to the lighter and lit a perfecto. That was the signal. As I turned away my friend put his head in at the door. I called to him to come in.

"No," he said, "I won't go into this place; I was here last night and I'll never enter the store again. Come here, I want to tell you something."

"I went to the door," continued my friend, "and we had a short whispered conversation."

"Are you sure this is the place?" I asked loud enough for the proprietor to hear me.

"Yes," declared my friend, "and that's the man who said it."

"Well!" I exclaimed, "I am surprised. I am glad you told me."

"Then turning to the cigar dealer I told him in my iciest tone that he need not wrap up the cigars, and before he got a chance to say a word I took my friend's arm, walked out, and banged the door. I bet that fellow didn't talk about nerve when the next visitor got a light without buying anything."

"How in the world did you ever manage to sell that lot of vile cigars at such a good price?" asked the proprietor of a clerk.

"Hush," returned the clerk cautiously. "I told the man that they were smuggled, and he never asked another question."

Did you ever see Neil Brien, the minstrel man, in his surpassingly funny burlesque fire department scene? If you did, you would appreciate the doings several nights ago in the righteous village of Zion City, Illinois.

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, like Simon Legree, owns Zion City "body and soul," that is we should say he nearly owns it. In fact, did until a few weeks ago, when a host of unbelievers started a manufacturing plant within the smokeless domain. Voliva caused great sign boards to be erected, terming the newcomers "tobacco skunks" and other terms far from complimentary.

One set of sign boards has been burned by the insurgents, but the dauntless Voliva and his cohorts immediately erected two more, larger and more pronounced than before. It was too much for human nature, so while a big prayer meeting was in progress the other evening, the followers of "Goddess Nicotine" started a little bonfire of their own. They soaked the sign board with cotton waste and applied thereunto a match.

Voliva immediately notified the fire department, which same organization was in sympathy with the rebels.

"Can it be possible that there is a conflagration in fair Zion?" asked the fearless fire chief of his sturdy henchmen.

"The royal courier has come into our lines with sealed despatches to that effect," was the reply of his henchmen.

The face of the intrepid fire fighter showed the terrible strain under which he was laboring.

"Very well, men, haste away to supper that you may be refreshed in body and mind to combat with the fire fiend," spoke the chief. After which the department ambled leisurely down the street and sat on the fence until the fire was out.

Nothing daunted Voliva says he will erect steel sign boards, that the devil himself can't burn down.

Hearing two red hot socialists discussing their belief on a street corner the other day, reminded me of a story a friend told me, alleging that many socialists professed belief in a theory of which they had neither understanding nor sincerity.

It appears that two casual acquaintances were discussing politics. One announced that he had turned socialist.

"I don't know what a socialist is," said the other.

"A socialist is one who believes in dividing up with the other fellow."

"Does that mean that if you had two houses you would give me one?"

"Sure I would."

"And if you had two automobiles?"

"I would give you one."

"And," said the one, with a twinkle in his eye, looking at the other's waistcoat pocket, "that if you had two cigars, you'd give me one?"

"Ah, gwan!" said the would-be socialist, "you know I have two cigars."

The defeat of a motion to have the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association take legal action to revoke the licenses of the small soda water and fruit stands of New York City selling cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, suggests a topic for live discussion among the trade in every part of the country. Individually, these stands do not have any appreciable effect on trade conditions, since the volume of their business is negligible; but, taken as a whole, they provide a tremendous outlet for the cheaper grades of "smokes," especially for cigarettes.

It seems unfair to the legitimate tobacco dealer who pays a heavy rent, provides modern facilities for the display and protection of his products, and hires expert clerks to serve his customers, that he be compelled to compete for trade with the low-rent fruit stands, which handle cigars and cigarettes only as a side line.

But the same argument could be applied in the case of the legitimate fruit-stores versus the fruit peddler, and the whole question is one which dealers affected should weigh carefully before proceeding to legal action.

While Mr. Retail Cigarist righteously resents the invasion of his field by fruit peddlers, the question of how best to remedy this question should be taken up on a broad scale, based on the legal rights of all concerned. The problem is one that is bound to force itself to the front from time to time and ought to be solved once and forever, if such a thing is possible.

The agreement just concluded by the Tampa Cigar Manufacturers' Association and the cigarmakers promises to go far towards insuring industrial peace and harmony.

The terms agreed upon are eminently fair to the cigarmakers and give them every protection against violation that might work injury to them. On the other hand, the manufacturers' interests are safe-guarded by having local disputes as to sizes, prices and other conditions, handled by a joint committee instead of by hot-headed individuals. The system of inspection should solve the many perplexing problems that are daily arising between the employer and the employe and obviate such misunderstandings which would lead to a complete paralysis of the Tampa industry such as occurred last year.

Peace Pact in Tampa

If the cigarmakers live up to the terms of the agreement, they can be reasonably sure that the manufacturers will do the same. After all, the interests of the two parties are so closely allied, that one cannot be harmed without injury to both.

It is to be hoped that time will prove the wisdom of this agreement and the word "strike" will never again be found in the vocabulary of the Tampa cigarmakers. Let the slogan be "a million a day every day."

Cigar manufacturers in the First District of Pennsylvania are to be congratulated on the showing made for the month of April. There were more cigars manufactured in that month than in any April in the history of the Revenue Office, the nearest approach being in 1907, when the figures were within 2,000,000 as large.

In view of this showing it would seem that the tide of trade has set in a favorable direction, and that many of the idle hands who have been seeking work in the First District will now find themselves steadily employed.

The gain for April of 3,045,580 reduces the deficit for the first four months of this year to 1,411,390, and, according to reports received so far during May, it is very likely that this deficit will be wiped out entirely when the returns for May are tabulated.

What "The World" Thinks

Now that the Iowa State Penitentiary intends to use dried peaches in the manufacture of smoking tobacco, it will be up to some bob-haired convict to register the title "Peacherino" as the leading brand. Alas! We doubt whether he could get this title, since we know of some "peaches" that are already on the market in this line.

The shipment of Manila cigars to the United States dropped from 83,931,000 to 22,974,000 in the year 1910-1911. This is not surprising when you consider the amount of "junk" that was dumped into this market when the tariff was first lifted. The Philippine manufacturers have learned the lesson that if you want the business you must have your product right, and the shipments now being received are living up to this standard.

Beginning October 1st of this year, manufacturers making more than 50,000 pounds of tobacco, 250,000 cigars and 1,000,000 cigarettes annually, will be asked to make semi-annual reports to the Government of the amount of unmanufactured tobacco on hand. This is provided by the Cantrill bill, which has just been signed by President Taft. Another evidence that the Government is aiming to convert the tobacco trade into an industry of bookkeepers!

Imported Price Cut Has Little Effect

Some Retailers Taking the Added Profit—One Manufacturer Announces Defiance

THE reduction in price of imported cigars, made by certain Havana manufacturers, on the two popular sizes, "Perfecto" and "Puritan," has so far had no appreciable effect in increasing their business in this country. Some retailers and jobbers openly resent the new scale of prices and are taking advantage of the situation to maintain their retail prices and garner the increased profit.

The profits on imported cigars have not been excessive, and if the retailers find that a reduced cost to the consumer will not increase the volume of their box trade, they would be foolish not to take their added profit.

One manufacturing firm who have refused to meet the cut is Calixto Lopez & Company, who have notified their distributors that the prices on all sizes of "Elen" cigars will be sustained, and that they are prepared to fight the issue to a finish.

Consolidated Cigar Co. Have Fine Stand

The first store of the Consolidated Cigar Co., located at Seventh avenue and Forty-seventh street, was opened on Saturday, May 4th, and proved to be one of the best appointed stands in this city. All the arrangements have been under the personal direction of Manager A. B. Woythaler.

Mr. Woythaler recently stated that they expected to close the leases for several more desirable locations, negotiations being now under way.

Miltiades Melachrino, head of M. Melachrino & Co., who has been in Egypt for more than a year, arrived in this city on Tuesday, May 7th. Mr. Melachrino appeared to be in the best of health and spirits, and spoke glowingly of the cigarette business, particularly of the prosperous condition of his firm's trade.

"Quevedo Cigar" in Large Demand

The Tampa Co-operative Company, Tampa, Fla., which has recently opened a branch office, at 23 Duane street, New York, is reporting a marked improvement in orders, on their main product, the "Quevedo" cigar.

Their brand is much in evidence in Brooklyn, and a number of dealers in that borough are making it their leader. Many attractive window displays of the "Quevedo" have appeared lately, and their sales are reported to be steadily increasing as the brand is making friends wherever it is introduced.

Leo F. Weiss Entering Business

UNDER the name of L. F. Weiss & Company, Leo F. Weiss and Eugene Levy have formed a partnership. Mr. Levy has been identified with the cigar manufacturing business for a number of years. He is a man of wide experience and a good judge of leaf tobacco. He is well posted on all the details of the manufacturing end, and will look after the factory interests exclusively.

Mr. Weiss has been for the past ten years connected with the selling staff of the American West Indies Sales Company. He has proven himself a worthy representative and salesman, and has travelled over nearly every part of the United States establishing a very large following from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Congratulations and good wishes were sent to him from his large number of friends.

The firm will manufacture mild Havana cigars of the highest quality. The location of their factory is 212-214 99th street, New York. Their leading brands are the "Wanda" and the "Fidelia" packed under very handsome labels. The company have already on hand, a large number of advance orders, and with the active support of their friends, should have a very prosperous future before them.

The Cuba Cigar Co. have removed their offices from the fourth floor of 4 Park Row and leased the entire floor of that building.

D. M. Frank & Co. are introducing a new five-cent cigar to the trade. It is styled the "Marconi" and will be made in all the popular shapes and sizes.

H. J. Rose, who gave up his position with Max Gans & Son last year, owing to ill health, is again with this concern acting as their general manager in Porto Rico.

Al Zielsing, well-known to the city trade, recently took over the cigar stand in the drug store, 46th street and Broadway. Mr. Zielsing is carrying almost everything in clear Havana cigars, in addition to a large assortment of cheaper lines.

Joseph Frankfort, of Calero & Company, is using glass humidors for the packing of fifty cigars. A small moistening appliance is attached to the metal cover. Mr. Frankfort says, that this device for packing, keeps the cigars in perfect condition, and they do not require any attention whatsoever. He has been experimenting with these humidors for several months.

New York City Items

H. Straus has removed his office from 1 Liberty street to 36 Gold street, this city. Mr. Straus' new telephone number is John 2492.

George L. Symons, of Symons-Krausman Company, has returned from the West after an extended trip calling on most of their trade. He finds business conditions out there in fine shape.

M. W. Berriman, of Berriman Brothers, has returned from Tampa, on a three weeks' visit. Mr. Berriman did not continue on to Havana, as he originally intended, but now plans to visit the Island some time in June.

Sol. Gans left New York, last Saturday, for Porto Rico, for the purpose of bringing home Mrs. Max Gans. On account of the lateness of the crop, Max Gans, who is down there in the interest of the firm has decided to extend his trip.

The Republic Tobacco Company has been incorporated in Jersey City. They intend to buy, cure, treat, manufacture, and sell tobacco. The capital stock is $375,000, and the incorporators are C. F. Haight, Jersey City; W. E. Hayatt, New York City, and R. B. Nicholas, Brooklyn.

The strike at the cigar factory of F. D. Graves, at New Haven, Conn., has been adjusted and the employes have again gone back to work.

A committee was appointed by the Cigarmakers' Union No. 39, of New Haven, after the men walked out on Tuesday, May 7th, and asked for an interview with Mr. Graves. Mr. Graves granted a conference last Thursday, at which time the trouble was settled. The differences were largely the result of a misunderstanding.

Zionists Have Cure for Tobacco Habit

WHAT is hoped will prove a sure remedy for the tobacco habit has just been found. Its discoverer is Wilbur Glenn Voliva, self-appointed successor to John Alexander (Elijah) Dowie, of Zion City, Ill. "My Lady Nicotine" is to succumb to the power of prayer, according to the deep laid plans of Wilbur Glenn.

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, he it known, is everlastingly opposed to smoking and chewing in Zion City, and as he has pretty completely conducted the destinies of the town heretofore, his wishes were law.

Then came the upheaval. A few weeks ago Cook's electrical plant was established in Zion. The employees of this concern, were, in the main, from Chicago, and they were firm disciples of "Lady Nicotine." They refused to respect the laws of Zion and Voliva went to and from work with cigars and pipes, smoking vigorously.

There could be but one result. Voliva called upon his cohorts to drive the "tobacco skunks" from the smokeless precincts of Zion. Pitched battles resulted with first a victory on one side and then another.

Long bearded "Elders of the Church" went about nursing bruised optics and the invading electricians did not escape unscathed.

Then Voliva caused huge signs to be erected which were far from complimentary to tobacco users. The latter retaliated by making night raids with buckets of black paint.

Riot followed riot, men were injured by flying bricks and stones. The local police were powerless and Mayor Miller threatened to call out the State troops.

This contemplated procedure awed the pugnacious Voliva and he announced that he would call off the "minions of war" and that he would conduct prayer meetings morning, noon and night in the hope of converting the tobacco users of the plant.

Meanwhile the case has been taken to the Circuit Court of Lake County, Illinois, and a legal decision of the matter is expected any day.

Paris, Tenn., Warehouse Burned

Fire of an unknown origin destroyed the large loose-leaf tobacco warehouse of Eaker-Ezell & Company, of Paris, Tenn., on the morning of May 2nd. The building contained nearly three-quarters of a million pounds of tobacco, valued at from 7 to 14 cents per pound, and approximating in value $65,000, which is partly covered by insurance.

Charles A. Sperry, 39 years of age, a cigar merchant, of Nephi, Utah, died in Salt Lake City recently, following an operation for appendicitis. He was well known among Mormon circles, having served on the Australian Mission Board of that church.

form and it has been widely circulated among the cigarmakers. It appears to have met the general approval of the men.

The circular reads in part as follows:

"The prices, sizes and thickness adjusted by the cigarmakers and manufacturers of Tampa, will be maintained in accordance with the equalization of 1910.

"The cigarmakers will appoint a representative from each factory in the following manner: They will nominate different candidates from the shop, out of which, by a secret ballot, they will elect one, and he will be the representative. If neither of the nominees should draw a majority of votes, or better stated, one-half plus one vote of the votes cast, the other two obtaining the most votes will again be voted on. The representatives, in this manner elected, will meet within seven days after having been elected, and will nominate candidates, of which five representatives will be elected by a secret vote, they constituting the vigilance committee.

(1) This committee of cigarmakers will cease every six months, at which time new elections shall take place and the new committee will act in the same manner as the former one.

"This committee will meet with that of the manufacturers; they will decide on what date they will begin to act, which date will be not later than seven days after their election. They will obtain information from the factories existing in this city and its surrounding territory, and will start with the general scale of prices of 1910, to revise the sizes comparing them with the private list of each factory which was adjusted in 1910, estimating the new sizes which may be in each one of them, and the sizes in general in those factories in which they were not examined in 1910, binding them to the general scale of prices.

"The operatives, cigarmakers, who may have any complaint to make about the lack of enforcement of said adjustment, will go to his representatives and explain to them the reasons of their complaint. The representatives, if they find the complaint is just, after investigating and finding signs of veracity, they will call on the manufacturers' committee and they, together with the said representatives, will form a commission which will go to the factory in question and will investigate the case.

"The manufacturer will present to the joint committee the total amount of cigars made of the size or sizes in litigation, made the day before, together with the pay roll book and the list of prices of the factory. If the amount of cigars made is not complete, the manufacturer will show them the size or sizes on the picking table. The proven fact that a size exceeds the length stipulated will be considered a decrease in the price, and the manufacturer incurring in this fault will pay for the cigars made during the last seven days at the rate paid for the similar size and of a higher class than the one the manufacturer is considered to have wanted to substitute, or has substituted, plus two dollars extra per thousand. The manufacturer who may consider the decision of the joint committee unjust will appoint a member of the Manufacturers' Union to represent him and will proceed to the investigation of the truth with the said committee.

(2) But, in the meantime, the size or sizes will be discontinued until duly adjusted.

"The size not adjusted to the number of thickness marked by the scale of prices of each house, will be considered out of order, not taking into consideration the exceptions that may exist, but considering the average of the size as a whole.

"The shortage which the cigars may suffer, according to the opinion of the manufacturer (in case of litigation), will be verified by the committee, comparing the measurement of the average boxes of this size with those of the same size in the factories where the committee found the said size correct.

"No factory or firm shall make at a branch factory, or branches, which they now have or may have in the future, any size which does not conform to the list of prices, thickness and sizes adjusted in Tampa."

First District Shows Big Gains

3,000,000 More Cigars Made in April Than Last Year

REVENUE returns from the First District of Pennsylvania for April show a gain of 3,045,580 cigars over the same month of last year. This gain is very gratifying in view of the fact that the production of cigars in the First District for the first four months of this year showed a deficit of 4,456,907. The gain of April reduces this deficit to 1,411,390. The figures for April, compared with last year, are as follows:

| | April, 1912. | April, 1911. |
|--------------------------------|--------------|--------------|
| Large cigars | 59,742,900 | 56,696,320 |
| Little cigars | 14,540,000 | 26,900,000 |
| Cigarettes at $3.60 | 20,700 | 20,600 |
| Cigarettes at $1.25 | 8,623,600 | 7,864,000 |
| Snuff at 8c. | | 1,200 |
| Manufactured tobacco at 8c. .. | 87,223 | 86,342 |

Joseph W. Levy & Co. Open New Store

Joseph W. Levy & Company, for the past two years Philadelphia distributors of the well-known "Vasko" cigars, have moved their office from the Central Trust Building to 1536 Market street, where they have opened a retail store in connection with their jobbing business.

May 4th was opening day, and to properly celebrate the event, pocket lighters were given away with each purchase of $1.00 or over. A complete line of local nickel cigars are on display, as well as the higher priced Key West, Tampa, Havana, Porto Rico and Manila cigars, as it is the intention of Mr. Levy to cater to all classes of smokers.

Fifteenth "Cinco" Factory in Operation

THE constantly growing demand for their famous "Cinco" brand of cigars has made it necessary for Otto Eisenlohr & Bros. to open another factory for the production of this popular piece of goods.

This new factory, which is the fifteenth in which "Cincos" are produced, is a three-story brick building and basement, located at the corner of Fourth street and Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, Pennsburg, Pa.

Extensive alterations have been made, and this factory, like all of the other Eisenlohr plants, is thoroughly up-to-date in the way of equipment, sanitation and arrangements for the comfort of the employees.

About two hundred hands will be employed.

George Edward Spotz Dies Suddenly

Former President of Theobald & Oppenheimer Co. Succumbs at Atlantic City

GEORGE EDWARD SPOTZ, who was well known to the cigar manufacturing trade for the past thirty years, died at Atlantic City, Saturday evening, May 11th, as the result of heart failure which seized him while he was walking on the Boardwalk. Mr. Spotz had gone to Atlantic City several months ago to recuperate and seemed to be steadily improving. On Saturday evening he was walking with a friend when he suffered the attack and before he could be removed to a hospital he died.

Mr. Spotz was 62 years old and is survived by a wife and one daughter, Mrs. James Lallou. He was the son-in-law of Adam Theobald, one of the founders of Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., Philadelphia, and was connected with that firm, first as a salesman and later as president of the company, which position he resigned in 1908 when the corporation was reorganized.

Mr. Spotz was quite popular, not only in Philadelphia, but on the road among the cigar trade. His many friends in all parts of the country regret to hear of his sudden death.

The funeral services were held Tuesday evening, May 14th, at the residence of the deceased's brother-in-law, B. Frank Raule, 3536 N. Broad street, Philadelphia, and interment was made the following day in West Laurel Hill Cemetery. Among the mourners who attended the funeral was J. A. Rigby, of Mansfield, O., a life-long friend and associate of Mr. Spotz.

Doings of the Bayuk Men

BUSINESS on "Havana Ribbons," for the first half of May, is running considerably ahead of the expected figures, and indicates that this will be Bayuk Brothers' banner month on the brand. Orders are arriving from the Western and Coast trade with pleasing regularity and increased shipments to the jobbers in those sections are convincing evidence of the "Ribbons'" duplicating qualities.

Local sales are showing a steady increase, and Frank B. Stanton, who has charge of the local force, predicts that his showing for May will cast all previous figures in the shade. Mr. Stanton, in company with George W. Pruitt, South Jersey representative, is at the present time in Atlantic City looking over conditions. K. E. Rockefeller, who has control in "The City by the Sea," claims that he will show an increase of over one hundred per cent. over last season.

Quaker City Briefs

John King, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, Tampa, Fla., was booking orders in Philadelphia recently.

Mr. Charles spent several profitable days in Philadelphia recently in the interest of G. S. Nicholas & Company, New York.

Albert R. Clayton, Philadelphia representative of the Cuba Cigar Company, New York City, makers of the "Kings Club" Havana cigars, paid a flying visit to headquarters last week.

"Doc" Ansley, of the Peabody Importing Company, was showing some unusual qualities in "High Life" cigars to the trade in Philadelphia this week.

Jacob Labe, of the large importing and packing leaf house of Benj. Labe & Sons, informed that firm by cable last week that he had purchased 75 bales of Sumatra tobacco at the May 10th inscription in Amsterdam.

L. M. Walters, formerly of the G. H. G. Cigar Company, is now assisting in the sales of the "Bold" and "Discriminator" cigars, for Bobrow Bros. He will cover Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey and Maryland.

E. C. Howlett, who has charge of the advertising in the United States of the "Tom Keene" cigar, with headquarters in Chicago, was a recent visitor in Philadelphia. H. N. Goldsmith & Company are the local distributors of the "Tom Keene."

F. J. Donnelly, retailer and jobber, 4225 Germantown avenue, is enlarging his business and will hereafter pay more attention to the wholesale side. Mr. Donnelly is pushing the "Bold" cigar as his 5-cent leader and is enthusiastic as to the outlook for this well-known brand.

The Rey Oma Base Ball Club, composed of workers in the Sig. C. Mayer establishment, will shortly play what should be one of the most highly interesting and entertaining ball games of the season with the Sheip & Vandegrift Base Ball Club. The event is scheduled for Saturday, May 18th, and will be played at Twenty-second and Tioga streets.

Mr. Watson, of Sig. C. Mayer & Company, will captain the Rey Oma team, and under his able management they should make the boxmakers hustle if they expect to win. Sig. C. Mayer, it has been announced, will be one of the umpires, and his friends and well-wishers are hoping Mr. Mayer will lose none of his popularity in filling that difficult position to every one's satisfaction.

TOO LATE FOR CLASSIFICATION.

Benjamin Labe & Sons, large packers and importers of leaf tobacco, 236 N. Third-street, recently received a cable from Jacob Labe, of that firm, stating that he had purchased 100 bales of tobacco at the May 3rd, Amsterdam inscription. They also bought 50 bales of tobacco at the Rotterdam inscription, on April 25th.

The "Counsellor" cigar, made by Allen R. Cressman's Sons, is on the upward trend and going fast, according to its sponsors. The coal strike does not appear to have materially affected this popular brand in that region, and sales are up to their usual standard. Harry Larish, a recent addition to the sales force, is doing excellently in the local territory.

M. S. Frechie, of 507 Arch street, has been in the cigar manufacturing business, in this city, since 1857, and in his present location since 1900. The leading Frechie brands are "Flor de Frechie" and "Exquisites," ten-cent cigars, and "Phil-Avana" and "The Economist," nickel goods. He does a large business in the Eastern and Southern States on his own brands of cigars.

A new cigarette manufacturing company to be known as the Supreme Manufacturing Company have opened temporary offices, at 1034 Real Estate Trust Building, Philadelphia. The company is composed of B. R. Mahn, son of Godfrey S. Mahn, and L. W. Harrington, both young Philadelphians. They will manufacture 25c. goods under the brand of "Vogue Supreme."

The affairs of the M. J. Dalton Co., which lost the two active heads by death recently, have not been completely settled, but it is stated on good authority that the several retail stores will continue under the control of Mrs. M. J. Dalton, who, in conjunction with the son, control practically all the shares of the company.

It is believed that the present managers will still continue as the active heads of the several stores, making their reports to Mrs. Dalton or her representative.

Willard W. Goldsmith, who recently took charge of the selling end of the business of Dusel & Goodloe, is doing very well in pushing their brands. Mr. Goldsmith has a reputation as a first-class salesman and, as president of the local concern, should infuse new life into it. He was formerly vice-president and sales-manager of the Federal Cigar Company, of New York. Mr. Goodloe, who retired from the concern when Mr. Goldsmith took charge, is now on a pleasure trip to his former home in Kentucky, and will join the forces of the Havana-American Company about June 1st.

Mr. Ostrow stated to a TOBACCO WORLD representative that when he takes over the new store, on June 1st, he intends making numerous changes.

The Chestnut street store will be Mr. Ostrow's headquarters, although he will retain the Diamond street location, of which his brother will have charge.

Chicago--The Great Central Market

United Secures Choice Site—Monroe Company Celebrate 30th Anniversary
Jacob Goodman Dies as a Result of Injuries; His Assailant Confesses

CHICAGO, May 11.

THE continued mild weather has proved of material benefit to the retail tobacco trade. The open door of the various shops offers a silent invitation to enter and dealers appear to be more satisfied than in several months past.

Attendance at the ball games has a marked effect on the afternoon trade, but this is counterbalanced by increased business in the hours after supper.

Jobbers report collections better and money much easier since the first of the month, and the volume of business has taken a jump upward. Everything points to a splendid May and June in tobacco and allied lines.

United Secures Another Choice Site

The United Cigar Stores Co. have secured the lease of the old Hannah & Hogg saloon, S. E. corner of Clark and Randolph streets, and will open up a store there this month. They have leased the entire corner, and will sublet the other stores. They have already leased one of these stores, and it will be turned into a saloon. The United have also leased the corner and adjoining stores in the new Mallers Building, S. E. corner of Randolph and Wabash, and will open up this month at that corner. According to reports, this company has lost their lease on their store in the middle of the block directly opposite the Mallers Building. Another location just taken by the United is S. W. corner Fifth avenue and Jackson Boulevard. Heretofore, this location was not considered particularly good, but is considered valuable now as traffic will be increased from the Aurora and Elgin line to the New Insurance Building, S. W. corner Jackson Boulevard and Sherman street. The United will lose their lease on their present stand on Jackson Boulevard, between LaSalle street and Fifth avenue, next May. The United store, at the S. W. corner State and Harrison streets, was destroyed by fire recently. The store is being remodeled and made smaller and will be opened this month. The United store, at 168 W. Adams (old Rand-McNally Building) has been closed and another opened at 159 W. Adams street.

Thirty Years at One Address

The W. F. Monroe Cigar Co. celebrated their thirtieth anniversary May 1st. Mr. Monroe, who was at one time an employe of the Best & Russell Co., opened up at his present location 30 years ago, and has been there ever since with the exception of one year a decade ago when the Tribune Building was rebuilt, at which time he was located in Monroe street. The company was incorporated three and one-half years ago, at which time George A. Renaud was admitted as secretary, and is in charge of the store. The company signed a ten-year lease beginning with May 1st at an advance rental. In addition to looking after the interests of the store, Mr. Renaud is building up a live jobbing business.

Powers & Gilbert, proprietors of the buffet and cigar store south of the Planters' Hotel, in Clark street, will, this month, dissolve partnership, and Mr. Powers will continue in business at 162 W. Washington street, where he will open up on or about June 1st. It is reported that Mr. Gilbert will also locate in the Loop shortly. The firm's old stand will be turned into a motion picture house, conducted by Harry Moir, of the Morrison Hotel.

Punch Boards Stimulate Trade

The Star Gum Co., of Chicago, are offering a line of punch boards, which greatly stimulate the sale of cigars and other goods. The boards are of all sizes, ranging from 25 to 1,000 holes, and are priced at 30c. to $1.60 each. This price includes punches and boards complete; that is, labelled and filled with paper slips containing serial numbers, which prevents the slips being carried from one board to another. The company carries stock labels, also labels having blank headings, and makes special labels for quantity orders. As this company owns the patent on the boards, no other company has the right to make them.

Female clerks are being replaced by male clerks in a great many of the stores since Mayor Harrison ordered dice shaking discontinued in the stores where women were employed. A few of the dealers thought that the mayor's order would be forgotten in a few days, but on learning that this would not be the case, promptly made the change.

John J. Dolan has leased the store in the new City Hall Square Building from John Righeimer, who some time ago leased the entire ground floor, and will open a buffet next door. It was at first reported that Righeimer would open a cigar store himself. This building is directly opposite the City Hall and is considered an excellent site.

"Billy" Maas Heads Chas. Barker Co.

Contrary to previous reports that the business of the late Charles Barker would be continued by the heirs, it was learned this week that Billy Maas, with others, had secured an interest in the firm, which will be continued along the same lines under the old title: namely, Charles Barker Co. Mr. Maas when seen by your representative stated that no radical change would be made in the business and said that he could not, at this time, give the names of the other parties interested. This move was a complete surprise to many as Mr. Maas had been with Clarence Hirschhorn & Co. for more than thirteen years as city salesman.

Local detectives, this week, arrested Louis Hammerman and A. Zuekerberg, in Indianapolis, for distributing cigars in that city which are thought to be part of a $75,000 loot stolen by a gang of men, since last January, from the cars in the Northwestern, Grand Trunk and B. & O. freight yards, in this city. Dealers in Indianapolis bought about 15,000 cigars at greatly reduced prices, but became suspicious and reported the matter to the police. Most of the stolen property belonged to J. & B. Moos, of this city.

Since W. G. Anderson has taken charge of the cigar department of The Fair, he has cleaned out all the old time stock and taken up the brands of the day such as "La Venga," "La Soneda," "Conexo," "Sanchez," "Hermanos," "Lucius," "Robert Burns," "Tom Moore" and "Tom Palmer." The Fair still continues many private brands especially featuring "Eniolo Lopez," "Monteza," "Josetta" and "Palacio."

It looks very much as though the smokers in this section are becoming more and more in favor of the pipe and the homemade cigarette. Comparing cigar and tobacco stamp sales, as given by the district collector of internal revenue, there is shown a constant increase in tobacco sales while cigars and cigarettes occupy very much the same position now as they did two years ago, in corresponding months.

A study of the following receipts for April, in this district, during the past three years will furnish much food for thought.

|-----------------------|--------------|--------------|-------------|
| Tobacco | $121,891.91 | $108,978.82 | $85,877.94 |
| Cigars and Cigarettes | 56,014.19 | 51,406.51 | 56,582.16 |
| Snuff | 31,445.82 | 36,329.49 | 24,076.21 |

George C. Knight, with E. A. Condaz, is booming the "Frat," 20 for 15c. cigarettes, by the use of slide advertising in motion picture and vaudeville theatres and by effective window displays.

George Yocum, of Yocum Bros., Reading, Pa., was in the city this week. He appointed Rubstrat-Cowley Co. distributors for their "Spana Cuba," 5c. cigar.

A. J. Knepley, of Louis Ash & Co., New York, has returned from an eight weeks' business trip, covering territory from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Knepley makes Chicago his headquarters, having moved here from Minneapolis the first of the year.

Both looking and feeling fine, William Best, Sr., president of the Best & Russell Co., returned to Chicago this week from an extended pleasure trip through the South.

Kraus & Co., of Baltimore, have placed the "Rob Roy," 5c. cigar, in both stores owned by W. R. Eagle.

The lure of the country proved too strong for Joseph Swatek and he has closed out his store in North Clark street.

Reiss Bros. & Co., dealers in paper and smokers' articles, have just purchased the John V. Clarke property, at Rush and Erie streets, and will erect thereon a four-story building for their own use.

E. B. McKenzie, in charge of the "El Roi Tan" distribution campaign here, made a pleasure trip to French Lick, Ind., last week.

Attractive window displays are proving a great asset in the boosting of the "New Abbey" cigar now featured by Best & Russell Co. The "New Abbey" is a ten-cent smoke manufactured by Theobald & Oppenheimer, a branch of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia.

Although it was stated at the time of the severance of the United Cigar Stores Co. from the American Tobacco Co., that the United would install brands of independent cigars, "Gato" and "Optimo" seem to be the only makes of the latter kind that are carried on the United shelves.

Roseman & Strippelman, new owners of the store at the Southwest corner of Lake and La Salle streets, are featuring Lipschitz "44," a Philadelphia cigar. The new owners took possession May 1st and have installed a nice, clean lot of new goods.

Franklin McVeigh & Co. are pushing the "Diamond Crown," a five-cent cigar, manufactured by the United Cigar Manufacturing Co.

The United Cigar Stores held their double certificate day, Saturday, May 11th.

Dealers Not Pulling Together

Independent cigar dealers, of Chicago, seem to be doing but very little toward assisting in the passage of the bill now in Congress for the abolition of coupons or presents now given away with cigars, cigarettes and tobacco. The only active work done thus far in the matter has evolved upon the Anti-Coupon committee of the Chicago Leaf Tobacco Merchants' Association who have sent out personal letters urging those interested to take the question up with their representatives in Congress and the United States Senators.

Wohl & Comstock Co. have torn down the old building and broken ground for their new factory at 1462-64 West Madison street. The structure, barring accident and strikes, will be completed in the early part of autumn. It will be three stories in height, and in the basement will be provided quarters for the storage of tobacco. The main floor will be divided into six stores, which are already rented. Two of the floors will be used by the company for its offices and factory.

Albert Falk, of the Falk Tobacco Co., was in town the second week of the month, at which time he called on J. A. Anderson, manager of the cigar department of Grommes & Ullrich.

In the last issue I stated that L. Jacobs had leased the corner store next to Simon Lichtenstein's present stand at 230 North Fifth avenue, but have since learned that the owner of the new store is Charles R. Joseph. Mr. Joseph has fitted up the store with the latest improved fixtures, and is carrying a strictly high-grade stock. As Mr. Lichtenstein's lease expired May 1st, No. 230 store has been taken by a firm in another line of business.

The arrival of the moving season made little or no difference with the Loop cigar dealers. A few of the old buildings will be torn down this summer and dealers having leases in these buildings, of course, had to vacate. Spector Bros., who were for the past four years at 119 West Madison street, were for the above-mentioned reason compelled to vacate and moved to 107 South Clark street, in the Rector Building, where they took an eight-year lease. It is not known what rental they are paying, but $5,000 per annum was asked for the location. Spector Bros. manufacture the "Queen Carolina" cigar at 1141-43 West Jackson boulevard, which brand they feature in their retail store.

Perfecto Garcia & Bros. vacated their plant at 136 West Lake street and are now located in the Northwestern Building, in Fifth avenue, between West South Water and Lake streets. This firm manufactures a high-grade line of Havana cigars, which are big sellers in Chicago and elsewhere.

Newmann & Gach, leaf tobacco people, have moved from 175 North Franklin street to 315-17 West Randolph street, where they occupy three floors and basement.

The "Peerless," a new store in the coming Logan Square section, has just been opened by C. A. Paulson, at 2457 Dedzie Boulevard. The location of the store at the terminal of the "L" makes it a logical winner.

The latest, outside the loop, addition to the chain of United Cigar Stores will be opened some time this month, on North Clark street, a short distance from the Clark street bridge.

The effect of the freight handlers strike is being felt here to a considerable extent. Many dealers state that they have shipments from Tampa and the East now in the yards and are unable to secure the goods which in some instances are badly needed.

Clarence Hirschhorn & Co., featuring "Bank Note," 5c. cigar, made by the United Cigar Manufacturing Co., has been successful in securing a number of prominent window displays. Certificates are given away entitling the holder to a free cigar in all stores having these displays.

Saturday, May 18th, will be opening day at the enlarged establishment of M. H. Weiss, 3125 Logan Boulevard, who now has one of the best equipped cigar stores in the city. The Kadison Cigar Co., of which Joseph Kadison, a well-known cigar salesman is at the head, is located at 417-18 Ashland block. The leading brands handled will be those of the Persevero Cigar Factory, New York.

W. J. McAttee opened a buffet in the new Insurance Building this week. The cigar supplies were all purchased from Best & Russell Co. Leather pouches advertising the "El Geneo" cigar, manufactured by P. Verplanck & Co., Tampa, were given away as souvenirs.

Charles Pennell, formerly with the Fair cigar department and now manager of Hillman's, has increased business in his department materially. All the popular brands are carried and some cuts are made on the 5- and 10-cent brands sold by Chicago distributors. They are featuring the "La Somo," made by Storm, Fisher & Co.

J. Sniperfine, who has had charge of the Best & Russell Co.'s stock for some years, was placed in charge of the new Best & Russell store, in the Otis Building, which opens next week. In all probability the inside stand will not be open until about June 1st.

"Uncle" George Anderson, of Reid, Murdock & Co., is pushing the "El Roi Tan" cigar, manufactured by Seidenberg Bros.

The ocean steamer "Carpathia," which recently came into prominence through the "Titanic" wreck, will have a namesake in the form of a cigar and cigarette, manufactured by the Irving Halpern Cigar Co., with offices in the Hearst Building, Chicago.

The week end cigar which I spoke of in the last issue, in connection with Best & Russell Co., will be made by Grommes & Elson, of this city. The cigar will be made in one size only, and will sell two-for-a-quarter.

Retailer Shot and Dies from Wounds

Jacob Goodman, proprietor of a cigar store at 426 S. Clark street, was probably fatally shot by a hold-up man who entered his store about 6:30 o'clock, Sunday evening, May 5th. Two guests of the Mayflower Hotel, which is directly across the street, heard the shots and rushed to Goodman's assistance and found him lying in a corner back of the showcase with a bullet wound in his right temple. Scattered over the floor was a number of small coins, nickels, dimes and quarters, which had been dropped by the fleeing bandit. About $20 in the cash register remained undisturbed.

Mr. Goodman, unconscious, was removed to St. Luke's Hospital, where he died on Sunday, May 12th, just a week after the shooting.

Robert Schultz, aged 22, was captured, after a struggle, by the police on suspicion of being connected with the crime and was locked up on the charge of carrying concealed deadly weapons. Later the police produced witnesses who identified Schultz as one of the men seen running from the store after the shooting, and Schultz upon being confronted with this evidence weakened, and his confession of the crime followed.

Jacob Goodman was married and leaves a widow and four children. He resided at 555 West Taylor street.

Claude Howell Absorbs Salomon Cigar Co.

THE E. Salomon Cigar Company, Detroit jobbers and distributors, have passed into the hands of Claude E. Howell, of that city. During the brief years of the life of the Salomon Cigar Company the boys labored faithfully and conscientiously to gain a foothold, but they lacked the necessary capital to swing successfully a jobbing business. Mr. Salomon will retire from the cigar jobbing business altogether. His associate, William Thornton, has joined Claude Howell's staff of salesmen and will cover the east side of the city. The only brands of the former firm which Howell will continue to exploit are "Savarona," "Richard Mansfield," and "Bella Mundo."

Bier, Saalberg & Co. Pushing "Ruy Lopez"

A lively campaign is being waged by Bier, Saalberg & Co., of San Francisco, on the "Ruy Lopez" clear Havana cigar, which they took up about a month ago. Although the brand is known among the Coast trade, they are not satisfied with the past records, and are working hard to establish new ones. Window displays are being used extensively in the work.

Wayne Tobacco Co. Receives Large Order

The Wayne Tobacco Co., of Fort Wayne, Ind., recently received the largest shipment of pipes ever sent to that section. It was the result of a trip by Albert H. Bunck, of the firm, to New York, at which time he placed the order with the Manhattan Briar Pipe Co.

The Wayne Tobacco Co. was founded in 1908 by Mr. Bunck. Under his management it has shown a large dividend from the start, and is today recognized as one of the largest wholesale tobacco houses in the Middle West.

Brannon-Signaigo New Texas Jobbers

A new wholesale cigar firm has been formed at Dallas, Texas, which will do business under the name of the Brannon-Signaigo Cigar Co. They will handle only the better grade goods.

J. Harper Brannon, one of the partners, will have charge of the selling end. He was formerly with the American Tobacco Co. for sixteen years. George Signaigo, the other member of the firm, will be the office executive.

Harry Karger, Baltimore Distributor, Fails

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by Harry Karger, retailer and jobber, of West Baltimore street, Baltimore. F. A. Davis & Sons, the Karger Cigar Co. and the Neudecker Tobacco Co. are some of the creditors named. Mr. Karger has given bond and G. Ridgely Sappington has been named as receiver.

The Richard Rassfeld Cigar & Tobacco Company, in business for many years in St. Louis, as jobbers, are retiring from the field and their affairs are being wound up.

Deiches & Co., large distributors of Baltimore, Md., are featuring the "Havana Ribbon," made by Bayuk Bros., in that city, and report increased sales on this brand.

The Straus Cigar Co., of Richmond, Va., report a record-breaking business on the "Rey Oma" and "El Wadora" cigars, of Sig. C. Mayer & Co., of Philadelphia.

Dan Wolf, 407 Main street, Cincinnati, Ohio, reports a fine business for "El Wadora," made by Sig. C. Mayer & Co., of Philadelphia. Mr. Wolf has had the agency for three years and has been very successful with the Mayer lines.

The E. A. Saunders' Sons Co., of Richmond, Va., have installed a new up-to-date humidifier in their store. They have added another wagon to handle their increased trade. All wagons used by this firm carry signs advertising the "Cinco" cigar. Another big seller with them is the "El Verso," made by the Deisel-Wemmer Co., of Lima, O.

Hershberger & Sloan, a jobbing concern, of Kansas City, recently dissolved. J. M. Hershberger sold his interest in the firm to H. E. Sloan, which went into effect May 1st. Mr. Hershberger, who was formerly a salesman, has not announced his future intentions. Mr. Sloan, the remaining partner, who purchased his interest in the firm several months ago, will run the business alone.

A new wholesale concern was recently organized in Newark, N. J., to distribute cigars under the name of Jeffreys Bros. The organizers, Edwin J. Jeffreys and William Jeffreys, were formerly salesmen and have had a wide experience.

They will make the "Optimo," clear Havana cigars, manufactured by A. Santaella y Ca., and the "Five of Hearts" and "Hearts Ease," cigars of T. H. Hart Company, of Philadelphia, their leading lines. A new automobile has been purchased to deliver their goods.

Salt City Cigar Company Organizes

The Salt City Cigar Company is the name of a new concern in Hutchinson, Kansas, which will manufacture cigars and also do a wholesale business. The manager is D. N. Kelly, an experienced cigar man, who has been representing the Parker-Gorden Cigar Co., of that place. The executive offices have been placed in the Hoke Building in Hutchinson.

Lang, Jones & Co., New Portland Jobbers

A new jobbing firm has been organized in Portland, Oregon. It is Lang, Jones & Co., who formerly did a brokerage business in that city. They have been made the Oregon distributors of the "Bold" cigar, made by Bobrow Bros., of Philadelphia, and expect to take on several Havana accounts shortly.

H. Grinberg Cigar Company Moves

The jobbing firm of H. Grinberg, of Pittsburgh, announce to the trade that they are now occupying their new quarters, at 817 Fifth avenue, that city. They are distributors of cigars, pipes, smokers' articles and general merchandise.

J. B. Moos Co. Introducing New Cigar

A new nickel cigar, styled the "Contrivo," is being introduced to the trade by the J. B. Moos Company, of 240 Fifth avenue, Cincinnati. It is made in the Ninth Pennsylvania District and sells to the retailer at $35 per thousand.

Increased Demand for "London Trophies"

The Wabash Cigar Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., have been compelled, on account of their increasing business, to utilize an additional floor at their factory, 48 Miller street. They are a live, up-to-date concern handling a complete line of 2 for 5c. and 3 for 5c. stogies, and will send samples of their goods to any interested jobber or broker.

The Hancock Cigar Co., of Richmond, Va., has moved its headquarters to 1319 Main street, that city. They recently added two wagons to care for their increased business. One of them bears the advertisement of the "44" cigars, which are among their best sellers.

Chicago Jobbers Go Under

Credit System Brought H. W. Wagner to Grief.

With liabilities of $9,985.25 and assets of $8,520.63, the schedule in bankruptcy, filed May 8th, by Henry W. Wagner, cigar jobber, 186 S. LaSalle street, showed a number of outstanding accounts, there being something like 300 in all. The debts due amounted to $5,060.88; ranging from $1.75 to $100.00, and some of them dating as far back as 1906. A receiver will be appointed by Referee Eastman next week.

The list of creditors comprises firms in the East, no Chicago houses being hit by this failure. Wagner listed real estate at $4,000, secured, however, by a claim of $3,833.75 held by Luckett, Luchs and Lipscomb, of Philadelphia. Here are the figures in the failure:

Jeitels & Blumenthal, Philadelphia, $900.00; M. Steppacker Cigar Co., Reading, Pa., $2,727.50; M. Steppacker Estate, Reading, Pa., $600.00; Henry Traiser & Co., Boston, Mass., $525.00; J. A. Poist Co., McSherrystown, Pa., $399.00; C. E. Wagner, 3002 N. Kedzie avenue, Chicago, (Note) $1,000.00; Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, Philadelphia, $383.75. The assets include Stock, $937.25; Household Goods, $95.50; Machinery, $27; Debts Due $5,060.88; Property Claimed Exempt, $400.

Order Files in Factories Show Trade Improvement

Large Plants are Hiring Additional Cigarmakers — Steamships Bringing Larger Quantities of Leaf Tobacco with Each Shipment

KEY WEST, FLA., May 7.

THE past two weeks have shown some slight improvement all along the line in the cigar situation, and it is fully anticipated by the manufacturers that the increase in the demand will be steady from this time on. Several of the factories have seated additional cigarmakers, and it was stated that more would be given work next week.

The order files also show the improved conditions. There are several new customers on the list, and those who have been ordering small amounts as fillers have increased the size of their orders for the different sizes and have also added some which have not been handled for some time.

Another indication of the improved conditions is the increased shipment of leaf from Cuba. The P. & O. steamers are bringing larger quantities of tobacco with each shipment, and the withdrawals at the Custom House have been heavier.

While the manufacturers of Key West have naturally been inconvenienced by the slump in the business, they have none of them been hurt to any appreciable extent, and if the present increase continues, it is fully expected that the year will measure up favorably with former years in point of output.

For the past few days a representative of a well-known factory, who would not allow his name to be used, has been in Key West and has been making a thorough investigation, with a view of establishing a large branch of his factory here. This gentleman stated to THE TOBACCO WORLD representative that he was not in a position to make any statement at present, as he had not completed his investigation.

The Ruy Lopez Co. continues busy, and satisfactory progress has been made for several days past. This firm has not felt the depression to any appreciable extent and has been working with a good force throughout.

The E. H. Gato factory still maintains the working force of over 500, and the demand for their goods continues satisfactory.

At the Ferdinand Hirsch Co. a good force of cigarmakers is constantly employed, and the output has increased.

The Cortez factory is one of the busiest shops in the city. They have increased their force considerably during the last few days, and orders in large quantities are coming in by every mail.

President Luis Martínez, of the Martínez-Havana Co., is now in New York, and he writes that conditions there are very promising for his factory. He has had a talk with the New York representatives and has forwarded some very good orders. The force in this factory has also been increased, several cigarmakers having been seated today and more will be seated next week.

Boston Tobacco Trade Continues Steady

Dealers in "Hub City" Optimistic as to Outlook Despite Unfavorable Weather Conditions—Chas. T. Ellis Opens New Offices for "Nestor" Cigarettes

BOSTON, May 7th.

THE cigar and tobacco industry, in Boston and surrounding towns, remains steady. More than $3,000,000 will be paid out this year for wages alone. All the wholesalers are working their factories to full capacity, including H. Traiser & Co., Inc., manufacturing the "Traico" in four popular shapes, which can be found at all clubs, cafes, and hotels. Waitt & Bond, Inc., who manufacture the famous "Blackstone" and the "Totem," 5c. cigars; A. B. Smith & Co. the popular "3-20-8"; Goldsmith, Silver & Co., the "M. C. A."; Altes & Fisher, the "J. A."; and Breslin & Campbell, the "Quincy."

Fred Suss, with R. Steimecke & Co., who has been in Boston for the last few weeks, started on his Western trip this week. He ranks as one of the best salesmen in this locality.

Estabrook & Eaton are having a brisk demand for their "Lords of England," a 15c. cigar, straight Havana "El Principe de Gales," selling from 15c. to 40c. straight, and their popular "Rockefeller" perfectos, three for 25c. size, which are used extensively among brokers and State street business men.

W. S. Lockett, of Lockett, Luchs and Lipscomb, manufacturers of the "Luxello" cigars, was in town this week looking over trade conditions, etc.

S. S. Pierce Co., one of the largest importers of clear Havanas in the world, are enjoying a normal amount of activity in such well selling brands as "J. A. Mendendez y Cia," "J. Valley y Cia," "Alvarez y Garcia," and "Fernandez y Menendez." Their line of "Overland" cigars is very popular with those who prefer domestics. "Las Perlas" (F. L.) Fabulosos Havanas retailing at one dollar a piece, and packed in individual boxes, are much used in payment of base ball bets.

Charles T. Ellis has opened new offices, at 88 Broad street, Boston, Room 420, where he will make his headquarters for the sale of "Nestor" cigarettes.

The United Cigar Company will open another store near the South Station, on Federal street, very soon. Their business in all the stores now running is very good. They keep every brand known to the trade and suit everyone.

C. H. Wright, formerly New England representative with E. A. Kline, "Rigolito," has taken charge of the cigar department of E. G. Hall Co., Brockton, Mass.

Hamillburg, of 7 Essex street, Driscoll and Fitzgerald, manufacturers of the "Elcho" cigar, Clark's Hotel, American House, Young's Hotel, Boston Tavern, Essex House, and all the retail cigar stores on Washington street, Milk street, Broad street, Federal street, and Bowdoin square, report business as very good considering the weather.

The leaf tobacco business is normal. The manufacturers on State street, Milk street, Atlantic avenue, Long Wharf, and Broad street, say that business is steady and improving and with the demand constantly increasing will give them all they can do to fill orders.

One reason why Boston is not a better market for five-cent cigars, is that the Boston-made cigars intended to be sold at three-for-a-quarter are sold so low at the cut-priced stores that the demand for the cheaper cigar has changed to that of the cut-priced ten-cent cigar. Outside of Boston there is a large demand for Boston-made five-cent cigars and the manufacturers have increased their sales on these cigars each year.

Charles Rowley, with the "Havencia" Cigar Co., spent a few days in Boston last week.

There has been some shortage on "Perfection" cigarettes during the last few weeks, due to the popularity of the motto buttons enclosed in each package.

WM. T. HENDERSON.

Retail Trade Notes

J. J. Dauntler & Son, of Dixon, Ill., have moved their cigar store at that place to the Opera block.

The retail cigar business of the late Herman Jaedecke, of Islipening, Minn., has been disposed of at auction.

The Stanley Cigar Company, of St. Louis, have taken the cigar privileges at Fontaine Ferry Park, that city, which opened May 12th.

R. F. Burnham has rented a store in the Hotel Schnyder, Rushville, Ill., and is making plans to open a cigar stand there. The place will do business under the name of The King B Smoke House.

The cigar stands at the Dunlap and Pacific Hotels, Jacksonville, Ill., have been bought by Messrs. Franks and Randal, owners of the Drexel Hotel.

Henry R. Ackermann, of Louisville, has taken a lease on the cigar privileges in the Realty Building, that city, which was completed recently. "Romeo y Julieta" and "La Preferencia" are some of his higher grade lines of goods.

San Francisco Trade Not Up to Mark

Business Expected to Improve as Exposition Work Progresses—Death of Lem Peiser—Bier, Saalberg & Co. Waging Lively Campaign on "Ruy Lopez"

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.

WHILE the Coast business has been gradually improving for the last two months, a good many local retailers say that the spring trade is not turning out as well as they expected. As far as the retailers are concerned, this might be accounted for by the fact that many of them have gone to considerable expense in improving their stands, or are paying more rent than is justified except in unusually good times; but the jobbers also notice a rather quiet tendency to the city trade. Of course there are a number of quiet brands struggling for recognition, but the real difficulty seems to be more fundamental, and little real improvement is looked for until the present building activity has continued several months. Just now many business men are rather sparing in their cigar purchases, while the working people are taking strongly to cheaper classes of smokes. A strong element of encouragement is found, however, in local building records, the contracts recorded in April being the largest in over a year, though the Exposition work has hardly started.

The trade was shocked this week by the announcement of the death, on May 1, of Lem Peiser, who has been prominent in the cigar business here for the last twenty-five years. Much of this time Mr. Peiser spent on the road for the Wm. Cluff Company, a local wholesale grocery house, though for a number of years he was in business for himself as the Lem Peiser Cigar Company, representing several well known lines of cigars. Mr. Peiser was a native of Stockton, Cal.

Emil Judell, of Emil Judell & Co., is calling on his numerous Nevada customers this week, and will remain in that territory until about the 10th.

A. I. Esberg, of M. A. Gunst & Co., who has been active in the work of the Panama-Pacific Exposition from the start, has been appointed a member of the Exposition Committee having charge of exhibits. M. A. Gunst & Co. last week opened their new retail stand at Broadway and Twelfth streets, Oakland, which they have remodeled on their own characteristic lines.

I. I. Hess, Coast representative of the "Optimo" cigar, of A. Sautella & Co., returned a few days ago from an extended trip through the outside territory, and reports a good business in most sections.

The United States Tobacco Company, Richmond, Va., has placed its agency for the Northern part of the State with C. A. Scott, formerly with the Pacific States Tobacco Company.

The Lovera base ball team, conducted by men connected with Wellman, Peck & Co., distributors for the "Lovera" line, is distinguishing itself this season, having won victories over some of the best amateur teams in this vicinity.

Arthur Meyer, Pacific Coast agent for Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, has just returned from a long trip through the Northwest.

J. Auerbach has taken over the stand formerly conducted, at 249 Montgomery street, by M. Ascheim, who recently failed.

A. H. Wagner, the well-known retailer of the Russ Building, on Montgomery street, has started a branch on Market street, near McAllister. This part of town is proving rather attractive to the trade, being only a block from the Postoffice and near the new Civic Center, on which work will begin this summer.

John C. Connor, the retailer, at California and Davis streets, who has built up a fine business with the fastidious business men of that vicinity, is again improving his stand. The place is being completely remodeled, the principal feature being the large display windows, which Mr. Connor expects to put to good use in the exhibition of favored lines.

C. L. Richards now has the agency for the Pacific Coast for the East Tennessee Tobacco Company, and is giving special attention to their granulated tobacco under the "Gold Leaf" brand. John Gerdtz, of Frankel, Gerdtz & Co., the local manufacturers of clear Havana goods, has returned from a two weeks' tour of the Southern part of the State, stopping in on his return trip at several towns along the Coast.

Mr. Nelson, who has been looking after the "Schinasi" cigarette interests on the Coast, is now on his way to New York.

The United Cigar Stores Company opened its new store in the Hotel Sutter, at Sutter and Kearny streets, a week ago, and has had a lively business at that place ever since. This is one of the busiest corners in the city away from Market street, and with several new office buildings going up in that vicinity the indications are for a great increase of trade.

I. Mendelson, formerly a retailer of Oakland, has taken charge of the pipe department of Horn & Co., the local wholesalers, and will look after this end of the business throughout their territory.

Bier, Saalberg & Co., who took up the "Ruy Lopez" clear Havana last month, have lost no time in starting a lively campaign. The line is not unknown to the local trade, but this firm is determined to increase the sales above former records, and has not only made sales to the best dealers all over the State, but has taken particular pains to have fine displays made wherever possible.

It is reported that a distributing agency will soon be placed here by the George A. Kent Company, Binghamton, N. Y., whose representative, Mr. Willard, is now in the city.

Old Timer Registers Kick

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD.

Dear Sir: Regarding your request for opinions to the Richardson bill, and the allegation referring to the drugging of smokers' materials, allow me to reply as follows:

First, The manufacturer of high-grade cigars is successful only by using and blending the best tobacco the market affords. No drug will improve the quality of a good tasting cigar. The smoker, be he whom he may, would tire and throw aside any drugged cigar after smoking it once or twice. As a manufacturer of cigars for forty years I know of my own personal knowledge that a drugged cigar would make my head ache and could be instantly detected. There is no chemist in the government employ who has the knowledge and educated taste of a smoker of good cigars of twenty-five years' standing. Any manufacturer of good cigars positively knows it would not aid the sale of his cigars.

Now allow me to divert this article into the present burden imposed on modern cigar manufacturers, not alone that by the United States Government, but conditions forced upon him by the present state of the market.

The government employs many people who have no knowledge of actual experience of manufacturing, and they impose endless, useless labor and annoyance to men who follow this business. An inspector who is employed by the government for monthly returns to wait on cigar manufacturers ought to have been connected with the cigar manufacturing business beside being an accountant.

Take for instance the buying of leaf tobacco from dealers of that article. The government allows 25 pounds of tobacco for 1,000 cigars, but time and again the manufacturer buys 100 cases of tobacco. When that is used up he has lost 10 pounds on the case, because wood was marked up on each case, and he is charged 1,000 pounds tobacco, part of which was wood instead of tobacco.

The government allows 13 pounds tare on Havana when the bales of Havana are used up. The average tare was 15 pounds.

When he has spent the best part of his life building up good cigars the cigarmakers strike and his profit is gone. Who is the cause of this strike? Some walking delegate who wants to make a showing. The consequence is the manufacturer must reduce quality or raise the price of cigars.

Take the new men as collectors and deputy collectors, who have absolutely no knowledge of this business, and if we move a case of tobacco over the dead line (description in the bond) this unfortunate is fined from $50 to $100.

I am in favor of a law that all tobacco should be sold on the scale. Then the victim of the market weight system would get something for his money—it is not uncommon for a leaf dealer to charge a manufacturer 60 cents a pound for market weight tobacco costing 30 cents a pound.

Is there any other business where a manufacturer must give up $1,000 to $5,000 each year for free smokers—it depending upon how many men he has—and pay them besides? I believe that the average cigar manufacturer is as honest in his methods as in any line of merchandise known to man, and with the expenses constantly increasing to run modern business we should have only practical men in the saddle—men who can successfully guide and protect the interests of the United States Government.

OLD CIGAR MANUFACTURER.

Weather in Hustling Detroit Retards Trade

Ollesheimer Brothers Amalgamate with H. B. Cigar Co.—Central Cigar Store Announces Opening

THE weather has not been altogether to the liking of shopkeepers and has probably retarded sales. Retail cigar stands report a fair trade nevertheless. Jobbers report local sales satisfactory. The cigar and tobacco factories have maintained uninterrupted progression, and once more the labor problem confronts the overworked factory superintendent. The sale of cigar and tobacco stamps for the month of April, as compared with last year, is as follows:

| | Cigars. | Tobacco. |

These figures show a big gain in both divisions. I have heard it stated that Detroit is the only large center in the country that has shown an uninterrupted gain in tobacco products since the first of the year.

Ollesheimer Bros., cigar manufacturers, have amalgamated with the H. B. Cigar Co., 719 St. Antoine street. With this change Louis Ollesheimer withdrew from the manufacturing field, and will seek other lines of endeavor. In the new combination Marks Horwitz, of the H. B. Cigar Co., will continue to look after factory and city trade, while Theodore Ollesheimer will devote his attention mainly to outside sales.

Charles Holton, failing to find a suitable down-town location (for the price) prior to May 1st, was forced to seek temporary shelter where best he was able to find it. Hence he is camped, with part of his wares piled up about him, in the partially completed building which he is erecting on the corner of John R. street and Adams avenue. In response to some display advertising which he perpetrated some weeks ago, Charlie had nearly all the real estate men in town trying to lasso a central location for him, but they captured nothing that didn't have a rental attached that looked bigger than the City Hall to Charlie. Now he solemnly declares it was his intention all along to move into his own building, right where he is now, and that the place was built to fit his fixtures. But then Charlie is quite a "Kiddler."

Announcement is made by the Central Cigar Co. of the opening of their "up-to-the-minute" cigar shop, at the corner of Broadway and Gratiot avenue. The location is splendid and the store, stock and fixtures are all of the most pleasing appearance. The partners in this new endeavor are Henry Lucking and Julius Robinson. Mr. Lucking was for seven years with Jno. P. Lieberman, No. 92 Gratiot avenue, and more recently with Dietsche, corner Woodward and Larned streets.

Alterations at Café Grande, 150 Woodward and Larned streets, the cigar stand double the space formerly allotted it, and also more and better window space. Today a hand lettered card in the window draws the attention of passers-by to the fact that the well-known "Webster" cigar is carried inside in twenty-four sizes.

Fred Harris, of the Best & Russell stand, has been visiting in Chicago for several weeks, taking a well-earned vacation. James Broder is temporarily in charge and Fred will be on the job again about June 1st.

Frank M. Knott, whose connection with Jno. T. Woodhouse & Co. of this city, covered a period of eight years, is now in charge of the sales department of Messrs. H. Traiser & Co., Boston. Mr. Knott is now covering his firm's various centers of distribution. He advises that their "Traico" is being extensively featured in New England and elsewhere, and that results have been exceptionally gratifying. A campaign in this section is planned for the near future.

A very handsome show case, of the elbow type, has just been placed in the G. & R. McMillan Company's cigar department by the Detroit Show Case Co. The case, which is a "Silent Salesman," embodies some novel features suggested by Bert Johnson. The doors at the rear are a succession of panels of prism glass, each about 14 in. x 14 in. This arrangement effects a fine distribution of light throughout the case, showing the back rows as clearly as those further to the front. To further heighten the back row display there is a slight pitch to a false bottom, or rack, that sets in the case. Between this and the real bottom is ample space for moistening cans. Anyone contemplating an order for cigar cases in the near future might profit by taking a look at this one.

Among good sellers at Kinsel's, corner Michigan and Griswold streets, is Surety Cigar Company's "Charles VIII," which is carried in three sizes. This excellent cigar is steadily growing in favor with smokers of Havana goods.

A recent addition to Kinsel's five-cent line is "Nickel Value," made by L. S. Kent Cigar Co., South Bend, Ind., and distributed through the A. D. S.

Richard Helms, of San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Co., and Charles Davison, superintendent of Banner Cigar Manufacturing Co., are with the Detroit party of Shriners that left here May 1st for Los Angeles. They are having one grand good time. When they return next week they will probably be able to write another story entitled "Three Weeks," but of a different variety, of course, than the famous original.

Collector McLeod left for Washington on the 7th inst., on business connected with the Department of Internal Revenue. Conrad Bettinger, the veteran deputy clerk under Collector McLeod, who suffered a slight stroke of apoplexy early in April, is once more at his desk.

About May 20th, the Superior Cigar Co. expects to begin moving into their new building, 684-690 Hendric avenue, between DuBois and Chene streets.

George H. Mahon, to whom M. Melachrinio & Co. assigned the job, last June, of following in the path of Archie Hiscott, has done effective work in this section. Mr. Mahon covers all of Michigan and part of Ohio.

Joseph Duys, the well-known Sumatra importer, spent several days here in company with Howard Kinney, the representative of H. Duys & Co., who had been paving the way for several deals. It was a safe bet that before Mr. Duys left the city something would be put across, and I hear it reported that he took with him an order from one prominent manufacturer for 125 bales.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Ettlinger have returned from their honeymoon and taken up their residence here. "Vic" declares he is ready and fit for work.

Iowa Convicts to Manufacture Tobacco

ACCORDING to a western newspaper, orders will shortly be issued for the establishment of a soap factory and tobacco factory at the State Penitentiary at Fort Madison, Iowa. Hereafter prisoners will be given a chance to learn the art of soap and tobacco making.

Warden Sanders, who has been conducting a series of experiments at the prison in the manufacture of all kinds of soaps and of smoking and chewing tobacco, has found that he can make them so much cheaper than these articles can be purchased that the Board of Control has decided to go into the business. Warden Sanders was before the State Board of Control recently explaining the results of his experiments.

His experiments in making plug and smoking tobacco prove that the State can save large sums of money in them. A grade of tobacco, which usually sells at 39 cents, he can make for 12 cents for use at the penitentiary. When it is made for other State institutions there will be a revenue tax of 8 cents per pound, making the extreme cost 20 cents as against 39 cents, the regular price.

He has compounded a smoking tobacco of unusually fine quality, although very strong. The stems of the tobacco plant are ground up and other ingredients added. A new ingredient, never before found in tobaccos, is used. That is dried peaches. One-sixth of the weight of the tobacco is dried peaches. The sacks for the tobacco will also be made at the penitentiary. He will also make a pure plug tobacco which has a finer odor than any found on the market at the present time.

The prisoners who learn the soap and tobacco trades will receive a small pay, which will go to their families after the new prisoners' wage system has been worked out in that State.

Boston Retail Notes

The United Cigar Stores Company have leased the store on the corner of Federal and High streets, Boston, and will open up there shortly. It is considered a very desirable location, being close to the South Station.

I. H. Goldsmith, who operated a retail store at Washington and Dover streets, Boston, for a number of years, recently made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors.

Charles S. Perkins, retail cigar dealer at Boston, is opening a cigar and news stand in the Wendell Hotel, that city. A Miss Hale and Miss Kelly will have charge of the stand.

St. Louis Jobbers and Retailers Optimistic

The New "Mazda" Cigar Being Introduced by Stickney is Making Headway Fast

St. Louis, May 11.

LOUIS P. SUTTER, of the Louis P. Sutter & Bros. Co., leaf tobacco dealers, sailed from Amsterdam on May 7th for this country. Mr. Sutter has purchased extensively for his firm in foreign markets, and part of his purchases have already been received here.

F. P. Baldwin, who represents the American Cigar Company in Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, came in on May 6th from Joplin, Mo., after making the rounds over his territory. He reports a successful trip, and good prospects throughout the section of the country visited by him.

Mr. Garewicz left here Monday, May 6th, with his crew of men who cover the State of Missouri, for another vigorous campaign. Mr. Garewicz and party arrived here a couple of weeks ago from his trip and covered the city. He says he is very well satisfied with the work done here on the "Egyptian Prettiest."

Al. Alcorn succeeds Mr. A. B. Scott as representative of the Blackwell-Durham Tobacco Co. in this territory, to which has been added Southern Illinois.

Eduard A. Sutter, who has charge of the Chicago house of Louis P. Sutter & Bros., will visit the St. Louis office next week.

"Bill" Nye, the Kansas City broker, who represents several eastern cigar factories in this section, was calling on the trade in St. Louis this week.

The William A. Stickney Cigar Co., of this city, put on the market recently a new 5c. cigar, called the "Mazda." It is made in two sizes, Brillants and Electrics, and the cedar boxes in which they are packed bear a plain but striking and attractive label of a dark blue background, with white lettering. The new cigar will undoubtedly prove a worthy addition to the Stickney line.

Julian Garrene, representing the William A. Stickney Cigar Co., and C. P. Stein, representing the F. R. Rice Mercantile Cigar Co., will attend the State Convention of Elks at Joplin, Mo. They leave Tuesday, May 14, and expect to put in four strenuous but pleasant days with their antlered brothers.

Mr. Harms, of the Peter Hauptman Tobacco Co., says that business with his concern started out well this month and has been increasing daily. He remarks that "it begins to look like old times again."

Mr. Sheldon, of the F. R. Rice Mercantile Cigar Co., reports business quite satisfactory. The office and salesrooms of the Rice establishment were in the hands of the painters and decorators this week, receiving their spring renovation.

Mr. Curtis, of the Fred Opp Leaf Tobacco Co., says that business conditions are very favorable and that trade is quite satisfactory.

The cigar store of George F. Hurlington, No. 412 North Seventh street, was entered by burglars early Tuesday morning, and $50 taken from the cash register. A large quantity of high-grade cigars were also stolen.

Manager Mitchell, of the A. J. Mitchell Cigar Co., is conducting an extensive advertising campaign on the "New Bachelor" cigars, which is booming the sales of the well-known brand and living up to business all over the city.

Mr. Julius Swartz, of New York City, on May 1st was made manager of the newly created division of the United Cigar Stores Corporation, with headquarters at 612 Olive street, St. Louis. This new division is known as the Southern Division, and includes the stores as far north as Burlington, Ia., and south to and including Atlanta, Ga. Handsome offices have been fitted up at the above location for the accommodation of the force in charge of the work of the new division.

Mr. Taussig, of the American Leaf Tobacco Co., says that both sales and collections are especially good with his concern, and the future outlook is most encouraging.

Colonel Nicholas M. Bell, president of the Christian Peper Tobacco Co., says that his company is doing a fair business and trade is up to that of last year and getting better right along. Colonel Bell has always been a prominent figure in politics, having been superintendent of foreign mails at Washington during Cleveland's administration, and takes a lively interest in public affairs. He has no patience with calamity howlers and says, "they ought to be shot" for the good of the country. He also sees no reason why the election of a president should in any way affect business. He is big enough and broad enough to believe that the people of this country can be absolutely trusted to select a man for that high office who will always have the best interests of the people at heart and will see that our institutions are not menaced nor destroyed. A bond brokerage firm of this city had written Colonel Bell a letter, in which the expression "The Presidential campaign is now the principal thing hanging over us," to which the Colonel took exceptions and replied in his characteristic vigorous style as follows: "I have to differ from you in this, as that is part of our institutions and system of government, and in my judgment an exaggerated mythical compound.

"God reigns and the people rule, and the gray matter of the American people is not going to destroy integrity and fair dealing. And gentlemen, in your line of business, who prate questions of this kind for political effect, do great harm to commercial development and, in my judgment, if this talk was stopped all advocations of business would be materially benefited."

Hearing on Free Smoker Bill

The Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives gave a hearing to everyone interested in the Reilly, Griest and Sparkman Free Smoker Bills, on May 1st. Internal Revenue Commissioner Cabell was one of those who spoke against the bills. A number of representatives of cigarmakers' unions spoke for the measures, and letters were filed from a number of manufacturers. The National Cigar Leaf Association also filed a brief.

Some of the employees' representatives argue that the use of the smokers, free of charge and tax, was recognized by custom and should not be interfered with at this time. Commissioner Cabell calling attention to the revenue lost that way, said that the cigars not taxed should be consumed on the premises. The employees in turn claimed that their smoking in the factories was unsanitary and should not be allowed.

W. D. Sharpe Cigar Co. Changes Name

Sharpe Company will be paid by the Pittsburgh Cigar & Stogie Company.

The new corporation will be under the same management as was the partnership and its best efforts will be devoted to the continuance of the trade.

A. O. Mesiter is doing a nice business at East Water and Mason streets. When the new First National Bank Building, now being erected directly opposite him is completed his trade should increase considerably. He is featuring the "San Felice" in his display window.

On May 9th the Rexall Club, composed of Wisconsin members of the Rexall United Drug Co., held their meeting with one hundred members present. Thomas E. On May 16th, an order will go into effect prohibiting smoking on the city street cars. Heretofore smoking was permitted on all open platform cars, but these are rapidly being supplanted with the "Payne" type on which smoking is barred.

The defeat of the socialist administration last April by a non-partisan ticket has finally reached the cigar industry. The names of Bading, Carney and Kotecki, who were elected, will be used as part of a label for a cigar which will be manufactured by a proposed non-partisan cigar company.

Harry Vedder, assistant secretary of the Burley Tobacco Company, is in charge of the Louisville plant.

In taking over the establishment the Burley Society also purchased the rights on the following brands of smoking and chewing tobacco: "Kismet," "Index," "Helmet," "Strater's Natural Leaf," "Natural Leaf Twist," "Roll Call Smoke," "Hindoo" and "City Club."

Los Angeles News of Interest

Blanchard & Lippert, New Firm of Tobacco Brokers—Klauber-Wangenheim Move into New Quarters—Oscar Baer Sells Factory

LOS ANGELES, CAL., May 4.

JR. BLANCHARD and C. H. Lippert, two veterans of the tobacco business on the Pacific Coast, have formed a partnership and will be known to the trade in the future under the name of Blanchard & Lippert, tobacco brokers and manufacturers' agents, and have secured offices in the Bryson Block, 145 South Spring street, Los Angeles, Cal. While they intend covering the entire Pacific Coast, their main offices will be at the above address.

While one could go on at length regarding the admirable qualities of both men, it is sufficient to say that J. R. Blanchard, for a number of years, was a member of the firm and director of J. B. Bagley & Co. Since severing his connection with this firm he has devoted his time and attention to independent brands of tobacco. It would be hard to find a cigar and tobacco dealer on the Pacific Coast who does not know Col. Blanchard.

C. H. Lippert was connected with the F. R. Penn Tobacco Co. for 10 years previous to January 1, 1912, severing his connection with this firm, owing to the fact that they were taken over by the American Tobacco Co. Mr. Lippert is equally as well known to the cigar and tobacco dealers of the Coast. They number their friends by the thousands, and a concern with such a personal following should prove a factor in the cigar and tobacco business on the Coast.

Klauber-Wangenheim Co. have moved into their new home and are now settled in these line quarters, of which they can certainly feel proud. As an exclusive cigar and tobacco concern, there is perhaps no finer establishment in the West. Everything has been carefully considered and the convenience of their customers has been tactfully and splendidly taken care of. One of the features is a salesroom in which are to be shown samples of all goods carried by them. This firm reports a very big demand for all their leading brands, particularly "Post Dispatch" and "Pippins" in the 5c. cigars and "Chancellors" and "Optimus" in the higher priced lines.

Ed. G. Hookstratten Cigar Co. are having elegant window displays of the Klingenstein Company's cigars, "Y-B," "Admiral," "Webster" and "The American," and featured for a center piece, "Milo M. Caprice Cigarettes," which are undoubtedly the most beautiful windows seen. This firm operates six stores. Eisenlohr's "Cinco" is their 5c. leader here, and in Porto Rico their 10c. leader is the "La Turina" and 5c. is the "El Proviso," manufactured by the American West Indies Cigar Co.

The following circular has been issued by the Klingenstein Co.: "Office of the Klingenstein Co., Incorporated. On the twenty-ninth of April, 1912, by an order of Court, duly made and entered, the name of the Kingsbaker-Klingenstein Co. was changed to 'The Klingenstein Co., Inc.' We will continue to do business at the same old stand, where we will at all times be happy to meet you. The officers of our Corporation will be the same as heretofore. Yours very truly, The Klingenstein Co., Inc. I. Klingenstein, President."

The Klingenstein Co. has a very handsome display in the Owl Drug Co., at Fifth and Spring Streets, of the "American Havana" cigar.

The above firm are agents for "The American," "Webster," "Y-B," "Admiral" and Eisenlohr's "Cinco," 5c. cigar, and exclusive agents for the Surbrug's cigarettes and tobaccos. C. W. McCormick, representing Y. Pendas & Alvarez, who has been with the Klingenstein Co. for the past ten days, just left for San Francisco.

Oscar Baer, of the Baer Cigar Co., after having been in the cigar business for the past 20 years manufacturing the "El Templo" cigars, has sold his factory to Mr. A. Kloeb. It is Mr. Kloeb's intention to manufacture union made cigars only, and as he is very well known in the city, it is positive that his brands will be a success.

Morris Burke, representative of Eitel & Casselholm, Louisville, Ky., has just returned from a business trip to San Diego, and has the suburban towns in that territory well placed with the "Post Dispatch" cigars. Many windows in San Diego are dressed with the "Post Dispatch." This cigar is moving right along and is making a big hit for the short time that it has been on the market.

W. F. Engel, formerly manager of the M. A. Gunst Cigar Company's Fourth street store, has now gone into business for himself, having bought out Harry F. Gadeky, at 218 West Fourth street. Mr. Engel is quite popular, and success looks bright for him.

The Morgan Cigar Co. have a window display this week which certainly stops the traffic. It is of "Oxford" cigarettes and particularly attractive. It was fixed up by John Morgan.

E. M. Vallens, for the past six years connected with Fred Barman, has just purchased two of Mr. Barman's stores, one at Second and Spring streets and the other at 223 West Fourth street. Mr. Vallens will continue handling the same lines as before.

Ike Wentworth, representative of Jose Villa, of Tampa, Fla., reports a steady increase on "Lovera" all over the country and has the cigar well placed in the city.

"Lawrence Barrett," manufactured by Bondy & Lederer, of New York, and distributed by J. J. Gans Bros., is very well placed in this market, especially in the clubhouse size. Gans Bros. are also distributors of the "Tom Keene," "La Natividad" and "Imp" cigars, and are doing a big business in all their lines.

The Southern California Tobacco Association held their first monthly banquet on Wednesday evening, April 17th, at the beautiful

Factory Notes

Two large concrete warehouses will soon be built at Tenth avenue and Harrison street, Nashville, Tenn., by the Weyman-Bruton Snuff Company, to cost about $40,000.

The Chester Cigar Factory, of Elkhart, Ind., has just introduced a new cigar which has been styled the "Kiss." The company is owned by Mayor E. M. Chester, of that town.

S. Joseph & Co., cigar manufacturers, at 218 East Court street, Cincinnati, whose building has been acquired as part of the new Court House site in that city, will vacate the property within six months. No definite location for their new factory has as yet been decided upon.

A fire starting in Augustus Schoenbacher's cigar factory, on Eleventh street, Astoria, Ore., destroyed the building. The damage was estimated at $15,000, partly covered by insurance.

Walter Linder, of Merrill, Wis., has purchased the interest of his brother, Arnold, in the cigar manufacturing establishment formerly run by both.

Robert Schuster, of Lincoln, Ill., has retired from the cigar manufacturing business, and has left the plant in charge of his son, Paul Schuster. The factory was started in 1877 and has been operated continuously ever since.

Active Demand for "La Tonia"

The "La Tonia" cigar, manufactured by John Steigerwald & Co., of Philadelphia, is one which is winning favor with jobbers and retailers everywhere. It is a clear Havana, Sumatra wrapped cigar, made in fifteen sizes and is an attractive seller.

The Steigerwald nickel brands "Walmetha" and "El Bonita," well-known through the East, through the large advertising campaign waged by the manufacturers, are two of the Steigerwald "best sellers" and are deserving of their widespread popularity.

Middletown, Conn., Retailer Fails

Paolo Gervasi, who conducted a retail tobacco store in Middletown, Conn., filed a petition in bankruptcy on May 6th. His liabilities are listed as $4175, and of this amount $4050 is unsecured. The available assets will be in the neighborhood of $1600, including stock, machinery and cash on hand.

Paul W. Cuisack, of Rochester, a Bankrupt

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed recently in Buffalo, N. Y., by Paul W. Cuisack, a cigar manufacturer, of Rochester. The liabilities stated were $2185, with assets of $1383.

Kadison Cigar Co. Secures Quarters

The Kadison Cigar Company, recently incorporated in Chicago to do a jobbing cigar business, have secured quarters in the Ashland Building, that city. Their leading lines are those of the Persevero Cigar Factory, New York.

new café, "Brink's," and it is needless to say that it was a "howling success" from start to finish. Several fine speeches were given, toasts tendered and covers were laid for 150. The association wishes to thank the banquet committee for their efforts in making this the success that it was.

R. F. Vogt, of San Diego, who recently visited Los Angeles, informs us that he has taken the lines of "Ponce de Leon," "Nolanco," "Waldolf" and "Jno. Brown," and is going into the jobbing business. He is at present looking about for a good auto delivery car. Mr. Vogt being well known in San Diego, we feel assured that as a jobber he will do well. M. B.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Reading Trade Improves Substantially

READING, May 13th.

THAT there is a substantial improvement in the cigar trade in this section is verified by the statement of a number of manufacturers who report that their sales are showing some gains as compared with last year.

Local dealers are showing their enterprise by some neat and attractive window trims. Among those especially worthy of mention is that of Charles Brenner's Sons, 7th and Penn streets, where the "Chief Joseph" is the centre of attraction this week.

The "Chief Joseph" is a nickel brand which the firm advertises as being the best 5c. smoke in the world. The line-up of customers in front of the counter, as noticed by the writer the other day, should convince even the most skeptical that the above statement has its virtue.

A steady progress is experienced by Henry Heymann's Sons, since they became domiciled in the new factory, at 3rd and Greenwicks streets.

The Fleck Cigar Co. is among the few factories which have found the sales of their product increasing thus far this year, and yet their energies are directed largely to the sale of a very few brands, viz.: the "Rose O'Cuba," a nickel cigar and the "Royal Bob," a 10-cent product. A healthy trade from the Middle West has much to do with the gain in volume of business.

The Porto Vana Cigar Factory is now working more steadily than they had been and sales of their "Sheik" brand are showing some gains.

The A. R. Orth estate is continuing the business of the late A. R. Orth and will keep the "Pompey" brand on the market.

H. G. Burkey, for the past few weeks, has operated his factory on full time. While he does not find the demand for goods particularly strong, orders are coming in at a rate that keeps his stock down to a moderate quantity.

Philip Pretzfeld, of Pretzfeld & Co., New York, was in this city, last week, showing a line of new Sumatras.

Frank Rader, of Ibach & Rader, Newmantown, left last week on a short business trip which may take him as far as Baltimore.

Klopp Bros., at Richland, have forged ahead steadily this year with their several factory leaders.

Despite the disturbances in the coal regions, which has, to some extent, affected business with local manufacturers, the Jacob B. Schoen Cigar Co., of Pottsville, makers of "Schoen Bros. Stag" and "Schoen Bros. No. 7" cigars are keeping well up to their average volume of business.

Quite an active jobbing business is being done, at Shenandoah, by A. Naum, at 239 E. Centre street. The fact that Mr. Naum has found it necessary to secure larger quarters is an evidence of progress. He will shortly remove to South Main street.

Stein's Drug Store is an important dispenser of standard cigars. The display included such brands as the "Havana Ribbon," "Schoen Bros. Stag" and other well known nickel and 10c. goods.

Lancaster Revenue Receipts Show Decrease

LANCASTER, May 13.

THERE was a brief misunderstanding between the management of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company and their employees last week. They have enlarged their plant on Elm street and it was their intention to transfer several of the employees to that location. The girls objected strenuously, particularly about working in another part of the city.

The Internal Revenue Tax report for this district gives the receipts on cigars in April as $162,348.90, being on the production of 54,116,300 cigars. The revenue receipts for March were $174,694.08, the tax on 58,231,360 cigars. This report shows a decrease in the April production as against March of over 4,115,000 cigars. Compared with April of last year, last month's output shows a decrease of 180,000 cigars.

The tobacco warehouse, on Elm street, owned by Morris Levy and occupied by the Lancaster Cigar Co., is being enlarged by the addition of a fourth story.

William Levy, the large leaf man and manager of the S. R. Moss Cigar Co., sailed from New York, on May 7th, on an extended trip through Europe. Mr. Levy has not been in the best of health lately, due to overwork, and felt that a rest at this time would be very beneficial.

The tobacco growers are fairly well along on growing their plants, but are anxiously awaiting warmer weather in which to transfer them to the fields. Owing to the continued rains all the crops will be late and it can be taken as a certainty that the 1912 tobacco crop will be a late one.

The stripping factory, at Paradise, occupied several years by Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., was destroyed last week by fire.

J. E. Sherriek, of the Our Principal Cigar Company, has returned from a trip through the coal regions of the State, looking after the interests of his firm.

YORK, PA., May 12.

The work of rebuilding the Myers & Adams box factory, on East Mason Alley, which was destroyed by fire, in January, will be started in several days. The plans and specifications are in the hands of the contractors and bids are being secured for the erection of the new plant. The factory will be built on the old site and is to be three stories high with basement. The walls which is all that is standing of the former concern will first be torn down. The new plant will be thoroughly equipped with all the latest machinery for the manufacture of cigar boxes and cigar labels.

G. W. Bowman, a former cigar manufacturer of Hanover, but for the past year located, at Portland, Ore., is in the city and will open a cigar factory on North Penn street in a short time. He intends to employ ten cigar workers at first and increase the force as his business warrants. Mr. Bowman left Hanover six years ago for the West, finally settling in Oregon, but wishes to again work in the East.

Letters of patent of the Eugene Gallagher & Bro. Company, of Dallastown, were entered for record there recently. The object of the company is to deal in articles of commerce manufactured from tobacco. William A. Miller, T. McChesney Miller and George S. Love are the incorporators. The capital stock was given as $12,500. The company at present occupies the building of Emanuel S. Seachrist, on West Maple street, Dallastown.

W. G. Krout, cigar manufacturer, who recently moved into the Seachrist apartment house, Franklin and Main streets, Dallastown, is removing to Glen Rock, where he will open a cigar factory.

The cigar factory of A. F. Fix & Co., at Dallastown, has been closed for a time.

The growers of Burley in York County until very recently had much of their 1911 crop on hand. Most of it has been sold at this writing, but at prices which made the planters feel as though they were giving it away. Many of the growers received from one-half cent to one cent a pound for it, and none got over three cents for wrappers. There is no likelihood of York County farmers again trying to grow Burley tobacco. Last year's experience was too costly.

MAHANOEY CITY, May 13th.

THERE is probably not another town in the entire anthracite region that is the size of Mahanoy City, that will compare with it in its importance to the tobacco trade. There are about two score of cigar stores in Mahanoy City and every one of them is apparently prospering.

It is estimated that at least 5,000 pounds of "Miner's Extra" tobacco is sold in Mahanoy City weekly, and "Hassan" are simply selling by the thousand.

The new "Zira," Turkish cigarettes, are now also being introduced and indications are that the brand will be a permanent feature.

Tom Ryan, well-known in the tobacco trade and a former American Tobacco salesman, now a district representative with Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, Philadelphia, is headquartered here, and does a fine volume of business on L. L. & L. brands.

One of the coming jobbing establishments, of this section, is the J. Ryan Co., who have the distributing agency for "Luxello" cigars and are doing well with them. This house has just added to an already large line of goods, the "Flor de Girard," of A. Roig & Langsdorf, the first shipment of which has just been received.

The house also has taken an active interest in the new "Zira" cigarette, and are pushing its sale vigorously. Of course they are friends of "Belt," of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

A strong newspaper advertising campaign is on on the "Luxello" cigars, and the daily announcements are being personally looked after by Mr. Ryan.

To show that the J. Ryan Co. is carrying an exceptional line of goods, we might mention "Win. the Fourth," (Gans Bros., N. Y.); "El Principe de Gales," (Havana-American Co.); "Flor de Girard," (A. Roig & Langsdorf); "Reynaldo," (Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb); "E. E. K." (E. E. Kahler Cigar Co.); "Rigoletta," (E. A. Kline Co.); "White Chief," (E. E. Kahler Cigar Co.) and others of higher grade products. Prominent among the brands of nickel cigars are, of course, "Cineos," "Luxellos," "Havana Ribbon," "El Rooco," "Vandalia," "Castle Hall" and others.

Linder Bros., well-known cigar manufacturers of Merrill, Wis., have dissolved partnership by mutual consent, Walter H. Linder purchasing the interests of his brother, Arnold, in the business. The change will not affect the business in any way.

Edward Manrara, Tampa Pioneer Manufacturer

Edward Manrara, one of Tampa's pioneer cigar manufacturers and influential citizens, died at his New York home, 511 East 72nd street, recently. He had been ill for several weeks and leaves a widow and four sons.

Mr. Manrara was 70 years of age. He was born in Camaguey, Cuba, and came to Tampa in 1885, after living in Key West for a number of years. He was associated in the cigar business at that place with the late V. Martinez Ybor. Later they went to Tampa and established the first cigar factory there, their special product being the "El Principe de Gales." It was their wish to make Tampa one of the big clear Havana cigar manufacturing centers of the country, and both Mr. Ybor and Mr. Manrara lived to see their hopes realized.

Mr. Manrara was connected with leading Tampa institutions and at the time of his death was vice-president and a director of the Exchange National Bank. His death is universally regretted, particularly in Tampa, where he was looked upon as being largely responsible for that city's present position in the cigar manufacturing trade.

William T. Barker

William T. Barker, of Baltimore, died, in that city, on May 4th, after a brief illness. Mr. Barker was considered an expert on snuff manufacturing and had been with R. Starr & Company for thirty-five years. When the Starr concern was taken over by the American Snuff Company, Mr. Barker stepped out, and in 1907, went in business for himself, at 323 West Pratt street, Baltimore. Cantrill Bill Becomes Law

The Cantrill bill, providing for the collecting and publishing of statistics in respect to the amount of tobacco leaf in factories and leaf houses was signed by President Taft last week, making it a law.

The bill compels reports regarding the stock of tobacco in bond and its publication twice a year, April 1st and October 1st. The first statement will be issued next October.

Tobacco growers claimed that they were selling leaf at a disadvantage, since the packers and manufacturers had a fair knowledge of the crops and their conditions, whereas the planters knew little or nothing regarding the amount of unused tobacco still lying in the factories and warehouses.

George H. Greenwood, Boston Dealer, Fails

George H. Greenwood, the Boylston street cigar man and one of the oldest dealers in Boston, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, on April 26, disclosing liabilities of $16,403 and assets of $2,204. Boston jobbers and New York cigar and pipe manufacturers are the principal losers.

Samuel Besuner in New Quarters

Samuel Besuner, a stogie manufacturer, formerly at 817 Vine street, Cincinnati, recently moved to his new factory, at 26 West Court street, that city. The old building was leased over his head and he moved to larger and more commodious quarters.

Keiser & Boasberg, leaf dealers of Buffalo, N. Y., have purchased the northwest corner of Chippewa and Franklin streets, that city. It is said they have no immediate plans concerning the site, but have bought the property as a likely corner for future improvements.

The Cuban Market

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, May 9th.

WHILE during the first eight days of the past fortnight the weather continued dry, we have had some light rains in different parts of the country during the past week, but we cannot say that the rainy season has set in for good. Nevertheless owing to the anxiety of the vegineros to market their goods, some of them have started to handle their dry leaves, and throw them into piles, while others that had some tobacco previously piled, and which had undergone some fermentation, have commenced their packing operations. As the leaf this year is mostly of a very light nature it does not require so much time in the piles to ferment, which is certainly a saving of time. However, the majority of farmers of the old school will not take down their dry tobacco until we should have some heavy rains for a few days at least, and until the atmosphere has become thoroughly soaked with moisture, or what is called here until the true "bandara" has set in. Rains are predicted, and as the month of May is usually a wet one here it is to be hoped that we may not be deceived. Still before the bulk of the packings will be in operation it will be the month of June. This refers to Vuelta Abajo as well as Partido and Remedios.

The leaf, that has come to hand so far, indicates that the crop in general will be very good for clear Havana cigar industry, which always wants light fillers, that the burn is unexceptionable, and that the crop has a fine aroma. There may be hardly any heavy quality tobacco to speak about, and as far as the colors of the wrappers are concerned they will be either mostly dark, or, if light, they will have many spots and not of a clean texture, as in former years.

The above is about all that can be said for the present, and later on perhaps, when the bulk of the crop should arrive, we may either confirm our good opinion or possibly be forced to modify same in some particulars.

Our leaf market has been very dull from the American standpoint, as there were hardly any buyers, but the movement for Europe and also for home consumption, by our cigarette manufacturers principally, has been fairly active. Whether the German exporters will continue to pay the present ruling prices remains to be seen yet.

There is a great deal of uncertainty still on the part of our leaf packers with respect to the new Remedios crop, as to whether they will go in heavily this year, or let the vegineros do the bulk of the escogidas. Unless there should be a larger proportion of some heavier bodied leaf, in some districts, it almost looks as if it should be a very risky business to pack the light tobacco, as owing to the high charges of an escogida, and the probability of low prices for these classes, in consequence of the abundance of this year's growth, the preliminary calculations show a dead loss from the start. The farmers on the other hand have been complaining that the first figures of $8 to $10 per qq. do not leave them any profit at all, and they are now insisting upon $12 to $15 per qq., which unfortunately has been reported as having been paid by one house. Whether this report is correct, or whether possibly these vegas did contain a very heavy bodied leaf, and therefore may have been justified, we are unable to ascertain at this moment. In any event the situation is very mixed, but may clear itself when the vegineros should find out that our leaf dealers are not over anxious to buy in order to make an escogida.

Sales from April 15 to May 4, 1912, were 6191 bales in all, or divided by origin as follows, viz: Vuelta Abajo, 2880; Partido, 210, and Remedios, 3101 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 932; exporters to Europe, 2392, and our local cigar and cigarette manufacturers, 2957 bales.

Cigars.

It seems that we are still on the downward grade in our exportations, if we compare them with the same period of last year, as the following figures, taken from the official custom house returns, will demonstrate:

|---------------------------------|-------------------|
| From April 1 to April 30, 1911. | 14,694,037 cigars |
| From April 1 to April 30, 1912. | 12,794,245 |
| Total decrease in 1912 | 1,899,792 |

The two chief countries which have imported less from us were: England, 1,958,028, and the United States, 933,684 cigars. On the other hand the following countries have imported over 100,000 cigars more during the month of April, viz: France, 452,016; Canada, 149,977; Argentine Republic, 135,700, and Spain, 130,825 cigars.

The total exports during the first four months compare, as follows, viz:

|-----------------------------------|-------------------|
| From January 1 to April 30, 1911. | 59,116,066 cigars |
| From January 1 to April 30, 1912. | 51,698,874 |
| Total decrease in 1912 | 7,417,192 |

One reason of the present falling off in our exports may be that the importers, having learned of the excellent fine taste of the coming cigars from this year's crop, are now holding back their calls, and are only forwarding orders to supply the most pressing needs of their customers. This explanation sounds reasonable enough, and for want of a better one ought to deserve credit.

Our larger factories do not seem to complain, as we are now always in the dull season, and therefore they are prepared to look at matters philosophically, knowing that better times are bound to come around again.

H. Upmann & Co. have nothing special to say, except that their factory is working well upon a good order file.

Partagas has made its regular purchase of the four vegas in San Luis (Vuelta Abajo) of the four Plasencia Brothers, amounting in all, when packed, to about 2000 bales, and the reported contract in price is said to be from $90 to $100 per bale. These vegas are in the so-called crackerjack class, which they have been buying for the last twelve years.

Romeo y Julieta is working quite normally upon good orders. Don Pepin Rodriguez had the usual good send off when he sailed from here in the French liner "Espagne" on the 28th of April, as the number of his friends is legion, who are always sorry to see him leave, but do not fail to wish him bon voyage. The steamer had a rough trip, as known by aerograms, but had arrived safely at Coruña, Spain, on the 7th inst. Don Pepin stated he had left a little earlier this year, but he expected to return earlier also.

Sol is never without orders, although Behrens & Co. would not object if they were larger just now.

Castañeda is working along at a fair clip, considering the season. La Diligencia is getting its full share of business that is to be had at present.

Don Felipe Rodriguez has been hustling for orders in New York and sent some good ones for "Flor del Fumar" and "Elite" to the Flor de P. A. Estanillo Factory.

Mr. L. S. Houston, a director of the Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Ltd., sailed by the S. S. Esperanza on the 2nd inst. for New York in order to take the S. S. Victoria Luise for Hamburg and visit all the principal cigar centres of Europe. He expects to return here in July.

Mr. M. P. Troy, the representative of the Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Ltd., in London, left here on the 30th ulto. via the United States, for his post of duty.

José R. Sanchez, who represents the Romeo y Julieta Factory, as well as La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia, in the South American Republics, with headquarters in Buenos Aires, left on the first inst. per Spanish liner Alfonso XIII via Spain, for Buenos Aires.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

The widow of the late Don Luis Muñiz has issued a circular, under date of the 2nd inst., that she has formed a partnership, and will conduct a leaf dealers' business, at 102 Amistad street. The partners, with power to sign the firm name, of "Viuda de Luis Muñiz & Co., are Mrs. Maria Josefa Gonzalez (widow of Muñiz), Mr. Antonio Gonzales Rivero and Ramon Gonzalez Garcia. The latter is the father of the widow, and who was formerly connected with the firm of Muñiz Hns. & Co., while Don Antonio Gonzalez is the brother of Narciso Gonzalez, and his former partner in the firm of Sobrinos de Venancio Diaz.

The firm of Muñiz, Hns. & Co. had expired by limitation, and a new society had been formed, as per circular of the 28th of March, 1912, under the style of Muñiz Hns., and of which are the active partners: Don Manuel Muñiz and Diaz, and Hilario Muñiz and Diaz. Don Venancio Diaz and Muñiz is a silent partner, while Don José Muñiz and Diaz has an interest in the profits of the society, but without power to sign the firm name, or what is called here an industrial partner. This firm continues at the old stand of Reina 20.

Sylvester & Stern were large buyers, during the past three weeks, as they purchased 1812 bales of leaf.

Gonzalez & Benitez were sellers of 870 bales of old and new tobacco.

H. Upmann & Co. bought 913 bales of new leaf for export to Germany.

Camejo & La Paz sold 545 bales of Vuelta Abajo, since the last report.

J. F. Berndes & Co. operated to the extent of 777 bales of new Remedios and Vuelta Abajo, for account of their German customers.

José Menendez disposed of 423 bales of all kinds of leaf. The E. H. Gato Cigar Co. has been buying already some 500 bales of the new crop and is still on the lookout for further good suitable lots.

José C. Puento closed out 418 bales from his recent receipts of the new crop.

Adolfo Moeller was a buyer of 352 bales of new Remedios in our market.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez were sellers of 370 bales of old and new leaf.

Romeo y Julieta made several purchases of new Vuelta Abajo to the extent of 300 bales.

José F. Rochoa disposed of 300 bales of his old Vuelta Abajo holdings to his customers.

Leslie Pantin bought upon cable orders, for account of his customers, 300 bales.

Menendez & Co. sold 149 bales of their choice new Remedios packings.

Francisco Bolaño secured about 100 bales of tobacco for the immediate needs of his Tampa factory, and will be back here next month, as soon as there should be a larger selection of the new crop in our market.

Herrera, Calmet & Co. sold 120 bales of new Remedios, and among which there were some first capaduras already.

Silveira & Co. have come into our market again, as exporters of leaf tobacco, as they secured already about one hundred bales, for a trial shipment to Germany.

August Kuttmauer, who we thought had left for the Windy City last month, had made a flying trip to Porto Rico instead, and returned here by the S. S. Legazpi on the 3rd inst. However he did not tarry long, as he only picked up a few small parcels, and sailed finally for his home, on the 5th inst., by the S. S. Havana, via New York.

The pending strike here between the stevedores and lightermen is beginning to look ugly, as the cartmen threaten to strike likewise tomorrow, out of sympathy, and other labor associations may follow suit. In the meantime the steamers cannot discharge their incoming cargoes, being obliged to carry them to other ports, nor can they load their cargoes in Havana. Unless the question of higher wages is settled soon, there might be some bloodshed in store for us.

Gus Martinez made some purchases of old and new leaf for the J. M. Martinez Co.

A. M. Calzada has gone to the country to prepare the opening of his escogidas.

Suarez Hns. have not commenced their escogidas yet, waiting for blandura.

The principal shippers above 300 bales during the last three weeks were: Sylvester & Stern, 1339; J. Bernheim & Co., 1185; H. Upmann & Co., 1156; Leslie Pantin, 1060; J. F. Berndes & Co., 1076; Mark A. Pollack, 1037; Rodriguez, Menendez & Co., 636; M. Suarez, 407, and Adolfo Moeller, 352 bales.

American Tobacco Company Refused New Trial in Case With People's Tobacco Company—The "San Felice," Deisel-Wemmer Cigar Taking Well

NEW ORLEANS, May 10.

JUDGE RUFUS E. FOSTER, of the United States District Court, last week refused a new trial in the case of the People's Tobacco Company vs. the American Tobacco Company. Last month, after a trial lasting nearly a month, the jury awarded the People's Tobacco Company a verdict for $8,728.06. Judge Foster trebled the verdict of the jury awarding damages against the American Company of $26,184.18 with $5,000 additional for attorneys' fees. It was stated that an appeal would be taken to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. There is still another suit filed against the American Tobacco Company by the People's Company that has not yet been tried.

Sidney Leopold, representing A. Falk, reports a good business, in Texas, on the "Alisia" cigar.

The Englo, Garcia and Bachia brands controlled by Laz Michel, 117 Royal street, are meeting with favor with the trade. Mr. Michel says his business on these brands is increasing daily.

Mayer Bros., Canal & Rampart streets, have exclusive sale of the "Gato" cigar for this market and are well satisfied with the business they are doing on same. They are assisted in promoting the sale of the "Gato," by Meyer Gerson, a popular and well-known salesman.

C. S. Foster, with U. Koen & Company, has spent the past month in Georgia.

Charles Meyer, of Charles Meyer & Company, after several weeks stay out of the city for his health, has returned much improved by his trip.

The "San Felice" cigar, manufactured by the Deisel-Wemmer Co., of Lima, O., is taking well here; the sales of the Southern Cigar & Tobacco Company, agents for the brand, are far ahead in their business over last year.

L. M. White, State agent for Best & Russell, is in the city. He states that he has had an exceptionally good trade on "Owl" cigars.

J. M. McIntyre, a widely known cigar salesman in Mississippi, after a two months' journey through his territory, is in the city.

Juan M. Gonzalez has just received from Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez, of Havana, several bales of Havana tobacco of last year's crop. This shipment is a part of the tobacco purchased by Mr. Gonzalez on his last trip to Cuba. Other shipments will follow.

The continuous rains of the past month have made business rather quiet with the retail trade.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

New York City Conditions Show Improvement---Prices Drop Slightly on New Pennsylvania Crop--- 1911 Wisconsin Tobacco Being Absorbed Slowly

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY.

The situation in the local leaf market continues fair, although dealers admit conditions could show considerable improvement. Trading is going along in a fashion, with the larger sales not so much noticeable. There has been a brisk demand for the shade-grown and the primed Connecticut leaf, and as a result the supply has been pretty well overhauled.

Dealers show an active interest in the new Sumatra, although the trading has not been of a large volume. Buyers of Sumatra evidently have decided to take their time about purchasing, possibly owing to the fact that each succeeding inscription shows excellent leaf, a good supply and no increase in prices. Here, as at most of the other eastern points, the binders remain extremely scarce, and dealers are speculating as to whether they will be able to meet the demand, even at increased prices.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA.

The situation in the local leaf market remains about the same. The factories as a rule are not running with their full force of hands, and the majority are buying only for immediate needs. Binders at this time are very scarce and dealers are looking for good binders in the new crops. The local dealers are looking forward to the new Sumatra tobacco with interest. At the May 3rd inscription Otto Eisenlohr & Bros. purchased 692 bales, and Benj. Labe & Sons, 100 bales.

The following delegation attended the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, held in New York: Adolph Loeb, E. A. Calves, S. Weinberg and Samuel Grabowsky. Julius Vetterlein, who it was expected would attend as a delegate, was unable to go, owing to illness in his family.

LANCASTER.

The last two weeks have been extremely dull in the local leaf tobacco market, so far as sales in old grades were concerned. A number of sales were reported in 1909 goods, which were sold around 15 cents. But since few buyers come to pay that price for leaf, the sales were few and far between.

There appears to be quite a little new leaf left in the planters' hands, but there has been little buying. The packers are busy putting away what they have secured and many say they will purchase very little additional tobacco at this time. Prices as a rule are down a few cents, the farmers being apparently anxious to get the leaf off their hands, owing to the attention their farm work demands.

The farmers have been busy with their seed beds, and from different sources of information the acreage will possibly be increased this year.

YORK.

There appears to be much unsold tobacco in York county. The low prices which have prevailed have had little effect on hastening the sales to the packers. Growers have decided to give up Burley as a poor leaf for York county and will return to the old leaf. The prices which a few planters received for some of their tobacco, two cents per pound, were the lowest ever known here.

E. K. Hibshman and Otto Oslen, the government tobacco experimentalists, are planning their work for the summer. Mr. Oslen was only recently assigned to the station at Landisville and will assist Mr. Hibshman. The tobacco seed being sent out by the Federal Plant Bureau at Washington comes mainly from Lancaster county, and is of the Pennsylvania broadleaf variety.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD.

The tobacco growers in this section are beginning to feel discouraged by the unseasonable weather they have been experiencing. The plant beds are in nice shape, but the farmers have been tied up in their farm work, the soil being usually too wet to allow ploughing. The scarcity of tobacco plants last year has stirred some of the growers to double the size of their beds, and plants will apparently be plentiful.

The Florida Sumatra Company has a force of almost one hundred men with fifty horses and mules at work cultivating more than one hundred acres of land in the south part of Southwick and northerly part of Granby, which hitherto had been considered practically worthless. It is the intention eventually to have more than 500 acres in Southwick and Granby devoted to the cultivation of tobacco. For this year all the tobacco to be grown on the tract now being developed will be grown in the open, but it is the intention of the company eventually to have all of the tobacco under cloth. The grade of tobacco grown is to be as near the original Sumatra leaf as possible.

KENTUCKY.

LEXINGTON.

Indications point to slightly renewed activity in the leaf market at this place. Yet the demand has decreased somewhat and a number of the packers have quit buying loose leaf tobacco. Hoghead tobacco is now entering the "sweat" and will soon be ready for definite sampling as to its condition.

The recent rains through the tobacco growing districts of the State have added to the already unfavorable conditions. On account of the ground being so wet that cultivation is an impossibility the farmers are at a standstill. In many places large tracts of land were under water and some wheat fields were ruined. Only here and there has any farmer planted any corn or tobacco, and unless the rain soon stops the situation will be a serious one for the planter.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI.

The local leaf market has been fairly active. The new tobacco offered was principally of common grades and in some instances in soft condition. Bright tobaccos were very scarce. Anything bordering on color sold at good prices.

The Burley Tobacco Society began to dispose of the balance of its pooled 1909 holdings, offering 106 hoghead at the various local warehouses. These brought an average of $8.10. Unless there is a slump in the market it is understood that the Burley Society will continue its sale until the balance of its 1909 holdings is disposed of.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON.

The remainder of the 1911 crop is being absorbed slowly at prices considerably lower than have been prevailing. Much tobacco has been purchased near Sun Prairie, both for the account of the stemmers and for sorting purposes.

Considerable tobacco has been received by the Lorillard Company at Stoughton and the goods shipped to Madison for handling. The growers have been experiencing very poor casing weather and in some localities steaming has been resorted to, using threshing engines for the purpose.

The larger operators have been doing considerable warehouse handling, but the end of the work is soon expected. Seed beds have not been doing as well as desired, owing to the unseasonable weather.

Claims Remedy for "Black Rot"

James Johnson, an assistant horticulturist, attached to the government experiment station, at the University of Wisconsin, claims that the officials at the station have discovered a remedy for "black rot" which will save the tobacco industry millions of dollars.

"Our experiments," said Professor Johnson, "have brought some important results which will not be given in detail to the public until placed in bulletin form. Black rot can be controlled by proper sweating and curing. Our remedy when announced will not be in the care and growth of the plant, but in showing the proper methods for curing tobacco, so that this variable loss, reaching as high as $2,000,000 in 1902, can be eliminated."

A meeting of the tobacco planters, of that region, was held in the court house of Hopkinsville, Ky., on Monday, May 6th. The object of the meeting was for the growers to get together and discuss the present tobacco situation.

Mannel Suarez, the leaf man of Havana, Cuba, forwarded, on May 2d, on the S. S. "Esperanza," twenty-five bales and four barrels of Havana tobacco to Victor Fernandez, of Toronto, Canada. On the same steamer he shipped sixty-eight packs of Havana tobacco to Wengler & Mandell, of Chicago, Ill.

Leaf News of Interest

Pennsylvania Growers Victims of Swindle

TOBACCO growers of Pennsylvania were recently the victims of a swindler who was disposing of stock to them of the "C. & H. Co. operative Cigar & Tobacco Co.," of Allentown, Pa. P. A. Young, the alleged president of the concern, was arrested in New York, on May 1st, charged with selling the bogus certificates.

According to leaf growers, Young's scheme was an attractive one. He sold certificates of stock at $1 per share upon the company, which was supposed to have been incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania. He claimed that the concern already owned a number of factories and that another was to be established in Allentown. In addition to the dividends on their stock, the stockholders were to receive twelve cents a pound for their tobacco, unstripped.

From a book of stubs, found in Young's possession, it was learned that he had also been operating in Massachusetts and New Jersey, in addition to working the tobacco growing districts of Pennsylvania.

Fifth and Sixth Sumatra Inscriptions

Prices at the May 3rd Sumatra inscription, at Amsterdam, had become nearer to normal than heretofore. The Sumatra was of a fair quality and gave general satisfaction. Most of the best leaf was purchased by American buyers.

A number of the larger sales follow: E. Rosenwald & Bro., 750 bales; H. Duys & Co., 800 bales; G. Falk & Bro., 400 bales; S. Rossin & Sons, 200 bales; A. Cohn & Co., 170 bales; M. Rosenberg & Co., 100 bales; Pretzfeld & Co., 83 bales; Joseph Hirsh & Son, 75 bales; Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., 680 bales; American Cigar Co., 650 bales, and Benj. Labe & Sons, 100 bales.

At the sixth Amsterdam Sumatra inscription, held on May 10th, the bidding was fairly lively and was mostly among the American buyers who purchased over 4,300 bales. The tobacco continues to be of a uniformly good quality and prices ranged at the previous high levels.

The following were some of the largest American buyers and the number of bales secured. E. Rosenwald & Bro., 1,250 bales; A. Cohn & Co., 822 bales; H. Duys & Co., 450 bales; S. Rossin & Sons, 350 bales; Hinsdale Smith & Co., 150 bales; Joseph Hirsch & Son, 100 bales; Benj. Labe & Sons, 75 bales; and American Cigar Co., 400 bales.

March Exports of Tobacco

Exports for the month of March and the nine months ending with March, 1912, are given by the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Commerce and Labor, in its monthly statement issued the latter part of April.

The reports of tobacco for March, 1912, are given as 26,000,000 pounds, as against 25,700,000 pounds for the same month of 1911, an increase of 300,000 pounds. The exports for nine months ending with March, 1912, are given as 288,000,000 pounds, compared with 270,200,000 pounds for the same period in 1911, an increase of 17,800,000 pounds.

Philippine Tobacco Trade Situation

Explanation for Falling Off in Imports to the United States Given in Report by Bureau of Insular Affairs

IN a general review of Philippine commerce for the year ended June 30, 1911, the bureau of insular affairs of the war department says that the great export activity in the cigar trade that followed immediately upon the passage of the free trade legislation, and was continued in 1910, showed a sharp reduction, and exports to the United States that amounted to $3,931,000 in the first year of free trade declined to 2,297,400 in 1911. The report says that "an overstocked market" caused by undue eagerness to take advantage of the new field without a proper estimate of American taste, is an explanation for the decline. To overcome "an unfortunate impression concerning Philippine cigars, believed to have been created by the character of earlier shipments," the bureau says that measures were adopted for the limitation of the proportion of low grade goods destined for the American market. The figures for the year show a substantially higher price, and there are indications in the returns for the closing months of a recovery in trade. Continuing the report says:

"Cigar exports to other countries declined slightly, and was as heretofore chiefly to the nearby countries of the Orient and to Australia. Total exports for the year were 1,322,217,000, valued at $1,700,712, and though these figures are much in excess of those prior to free trade, the conditions of the American demand account for a smaller yield to the industry by $1,272,918 than in the previous year of maximum activity. In addition to shipments to the United States, there were consignments to Hawaii valued at $92,663, which, under free-trade conditions, is proving a market of some importance.

"Coincident with the reduced local demand for leaf in the export cigar trade, shipments abroad were larger and at a reduced price. Exports of unmanufactured tobacco increased about five million pounds, and amounted to 27,436,494 pounds, valued at $1,842,992, of which a value of $1,234,685 was credited to Spain, while almost the whole was taken by European countries. Exemption from the heavy American import duty was without result in developing a market, and shipments to the United States amounted to only $1,700.

"The following is a review of the import and export trade of the islands in tobacco in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911:

"Imports—Unmanufactured tobacco, 16,845 pounds, valued at $16,802 as against 100,819 pounds valued at $73,440 in 1910. The majority of this came from the Dutch East Indies, 10,380 pounds valued at $12,738. From the United States, 1,638 pounds valued at $1,318 was imported.

"Cigars—$8,175 worth, of which $8,167 worth came from the United States. The imports in 1910 were valued at only $159.

"Cigarettes—$13,753 worth, of which $13,720 worth came from the United States. In 1910 the imports were valued at $6,397.

"Plug tobacco—67,220 pounds valued at $27,038, all of which came from the United States. In 1910 the United States also furnished the entire amount, 96,535 pounds, valued at $36,044.

"Smoking tobacco—188,120 pounds valued at $22,487, of which 136,288 pounds valued at $61,900 came from the United States. No imports are given for 1910.

"All other manufacturers of tobacco—$2,245 worth, the majority of which came from China. The 1910 imports were valued at $91,535, of which $78,315 worth came from the United States.

"Total imports, 1911, $140,545, as against $208,475 in 1910.

"Exports—Unmanufactured, leaf—26,812,233 pounds valued at $1,794,480, an increase of five million pounds and $200,000 in value over 1910. To the United States 9,720 pounds valued at $1,700 were exported, and about the same amount the year before. The majority went to Spain, over eighteen million pounds.

"Other unmanufactured—624,261 pounds valued at $48,512, or double the exports of 1910. Only 28,000 pounds valued at nearly $32,000 went to the United States, Belgium receiving the majority, 330,115 pounds.

"Cigars—1,322,217,000, valued at $1,700,712, as compared with 196,192,000, valued at $2,973,630 in 1910. The United States received 22,974,000, valued at $625,254, as against 83,931,000, valued at $1,906,447 in 1910. The United States received the largest quantity of cigars, other countries receiving large amounts being Great Britain, China, Hongkong, British East Indies, and Australia.

"Cigarettes—33,662,000, valued at $36,132, as against 30,884,000, valued at $34,045 in 1910. Hongkong received the largest quantity, over $14,000 worth.

"Smoking tobacco—92,681 pounds, valued at $25,731. Spain received the greater part, 25,000 pounds, while the United States received the next largest, 22,161 pounds, valued at $6,772. No figures were kept for 1910.

"Total tobacco and manufactures of, in 1911, $3,605,567, as compared with $4,637,495 in 1910."

Most of the tobacco produced in Siam, about 3,000,000 pounds a year, valued at $500,000, is consumed at home, the exports last year amounting to only 10,267 pounds, most of which went to Hongkong. The tobacco leaf grown here is said to be of peculiarly fine texture and would probably displace foreign tobacco in the local markets if it were cured by modern methods. At present the leaves are kept in the dark until partly dry, then folded lengthwise one upon another, cut into cross sections, and exposed to the sun for a day or two, after which they are ready for consumption. One of the chief uses for tobacco here is for cigarettes. A considerable quantity of native tobacco is mixed with areca nut and betel leaf and used for chewing, the imported tobacco never being used for this purpose.

The imports of tobacco and its manufactures into Siam for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1911, amounted to $407,841, against $412,305 for the previous year. These imports consisted of cigars, $78,311; cigarettes, $159,760, and tobacco, $169,770. The United States supplied $96,942 worth of cigarettes and $726 worth of tobacco, and the Philippines sent cigars valued at $11,194, against $5,731 in 1909-10. Tobaccoists' stores to the value of $26,796 were imported in 1910-11, against $22,825 in the previous year, the United Kingdom and Austria-Hungary furnishing the largest shares.—From Vice-Consul-General Carl C. Hansen, Bangkok.

Short

Many a staid professional man smokes Fatimas—the cigarette he learned to like in his freshman days.

There is something peculiarly good about a cigarette that can hold the loyalty of such men for year after year.

FATIMA
CIGARETTES

A cigarette that can make and keep friends in this manner is a good one for the dealer to tie up to as a leader—for the brand you push should not only attract customers, but it should have the quality that holds them. For years Fatimas have demonstrated this holding quality with men who can and will pay any price for a cigarette that just suits them.

Our 1912 advertising campaign will add many new names to the already long list of Fatima smokers.

A Quality, Not a Quantity Journal

THE ordinary merchant's time is so well occupied and he is so absorbed in his business that he has a very limited time in which to scan his trade paper. We are building up an audience of readers who appreciate quality, brevity, authenticity and efficiency. When a busy man gets those qualities in his paper, he appreciates them. THE MEN BEHIND THE NEW COMPANY

THE Baum-Jaffe Company, which has just been organized in Philadelphia, is to be directed by business experts who have years of successful experience to their credit.

THE MANUFACTURER

THE manufacturing will be under the supervision of Isaac Jaffe, known from coast to coast as the best manufacturer of high-grade goods in America. For the past twelve years he was manufacturer with a large concern, which was recently bought out by another company. Mr. Jaffe is best known as an expert in broadleaf wrapped, Havana cigars and as manufacturer for the Baum-Jaffe Co. he will have better opportunity than ever before for producing high-grade cigars.

THE OTHER OFFICERS

NATHAN BAUM, the president, and Isidore Baum, the secretary and treasurer, are widely known as progressive business men, their house of Adam Baum & Sons, Philadelphia, having had a successful career of over fifty years.

B. H. Steifel, the sales agent has long been identified with the cigar interests throughout the country. His long experience and the facilities which the Baum-Jaffe Co. will provide will aid him to promote the most effective distribution, a feature of the business in which he is well qualified. Mr. Steifel will personally visit the trade in carrying out his selling-campaigns.

THE POLICY OF THE BAUM-JAFFE COMPANY

THE new concern will be a strictly hand-made "Uniform quality" house. The brands to be marketed will be superior in every way right at the start. The quality will never deteriorate as the new company will never resort to the frequently employed and much-to-be-deplored custom of cutting down quality as sales increase. The policy of the Baum-Jaffe Co. will be: The Greater the Sale, the Better the Quality. They will deal in high-grade, hand-made cigars, made in up-to-date and marketable sizes. The Philadelphia factory will be at 115 and 117 North Third Street, and other factories will be maintained in the same district. The new company begins business under the best auspices, with encouragement from the largest concerns in the United States.

THE company begins business with two brands that will retail at 10 cents and higher. The A. J. Cassatt, named for the late president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., and the El Jaffe, named for the manufacturer of the Baum-Jaffe Co. The cigars will be very choice grades of hand-made broadleaf-wrapped Havana goods.

THE 5-CENT BRAND

THE Coiner is a hand-made, long filler, Havana blended cigar of a quality that gives it pre-eminence over any five-cent cigar on the market.

All of the brands will be attractively packed under original designs that will give them identity.

The Baum-Jaffe Company is ready to submit samples and will be glad to do so, or to send salesmen on request

Financial Dream of Merging Independent Tobacco Manufacturers

Wall Street Report of Big $100,000,000 Consolidation Lacks Definite Confirmation—Aim to Make it Dissolution Proof

In the financial circles of Boston and New York a report was spread this week that a movement is being promoted to merge a number of prominent independent tobacco manufacturers into a giant corporation having a capitalization of $100,000,000.

The report does not give the names of the men behind the movement, but it is understood that prominent bankers and lawyers have been at work for some time in their attempts to get various manufacturers throughout the country to enter into a consolidation which would not be antagonistic to the Anti-Trust law and would be proof against dissolution.

It is stated that already manufacturers having a combined outlet for 40,000,000 pounds of tobacco have agreed to enter into the merger and that others are seriously considering it. The statistics show that the American Tobacco Company and its subsidiaries use about 300,000,000 pounds of tobacco each year in their factories as against 120,000,000 pounds used by their competitors.

No definite confirmation of the new enterprise could be obtained. A prominent Philadelphia tobacco manufacturer, when informed about the matter, stated his firm had not been approached by the promoters, and as far as he knew the movement was simply a financier's dream.

Smokers Must Vote Early and Often in Trolley War

You Can Ballot Just As Many Times As You Pay Fares in Kansas City Cars—Will be Big Day for Company

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 30.

To smoke or not to smoke—that is the question which will be put up to all passengers of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company's cars in this city within the next few days. An ordinance, just signed by Mayor Jost, permitting smoking on the three rear seats, has aroused a storm of protest among the non-smokers, and as a result the street railway company has decided to settle the matter by having a vote on the question.

Ballots will be printed and handed each passenger as he pays his fare. The ballots will be left with the conductor and totaled after the day is over. Every fare paid will carry with it a vote, and women and children, old enough to pay fares, have just as much to say about it as the men. There will be no restriction on repeating, as each person can vote just as many times as he pays a fare.

The day selected will no doubt see the street car company's revenue soar sky-high.

The tobacco dealers who were instrumental in obtaining the passage of the ordinance, it is expected, will spend the greater part of the day riding on street cars and urging their friends to do the same. In this they will find a counter-movement from the women's clubs and other anti-smoking bodies who will not hesitate to pay their nickels for their right of franchise.

Yes, it promises to be a merry war and a big fat day for the street car company!

Brooklyn Retailers Organize Association

First Meeting Well Attended by Tobacco Merchants

At a meeting of Independent Retail Dealers in Brooklyn Friday evening, May 24, the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association of Brooklyn was formally organized by the election of L. Harry Fisher, president; C. S. Freund, vice-president; H. Greenberg, treasurer; Nicholas Ehrlich, secretary, and Henry H. Hunter, legal adviser.

The meeting was held in the Johnston Building and was well attended by a representative number of Brooklyn merchants. Speeches were made by Attorney Hunter, who outlined the problem facing the independent retailers and urged their support of the Cummins bill and Anti-Coupon legislation, Oscar Veit, of the Independent Salesmen's Association of New York, who pledged the co-operation of his association, and the newly-elected president, Harry Fisher, who urged the retailers to adopt some co-operative buying system.

The meetings will be held regularly hereafter on the third Friday of each month and every effort will be made to extend the membership of the association.

Human Nature and the Way to Figure Profits

RECENTLY a business efficiency expert caused to be inserted in several national mediums, a little problem he had found that always agitated the minds of retail dealers wherever it was propounded. The problem was stated as follows:

Wholesale price of an article is.....$1.00
 Cost of doing business 22%
 Retailer's profit 10%
 What is the retail selling price?
 Remember, you are basing your percentages on selling price.

Some correspondents in their desire to contribute to the humorous rather than to the serious columns of the publications, have expended a prodigious amount of clumsy wit in making fun of the man who would compute profits with percentages figured on his selling price. They seem to think the "good old arithmetic" is the sole arbiter of the question.

They entirely eliminate the equation of human nature. I believe the writer has as much respect for the "good old arithmetic" as he has for the good old anything else, but he believes also that the world moves; that you can't stand pat on the methods of statement indulged in by the old arithmetics, any more than you can stand pat on anything else in the world.

Let us, for the sake of argument, suppose a man starts in the cigar business and in order to keep the problem in harmony with the one stated in the first paragraphs of this article, I shall assume a large expenditure for expenses, etc.

The amount of percentage, of course, has absolutely nothing to do with the principles involved in the computation.

Suppose our dealer buys his stock of goods and, as is usual in such cases, he prices them at what the wholesaler's salesman tells he ought to get for them.

At the end of the month he finds that he has done a business of a thousand dollars.

He has kept a close track of all the sales and finds the goods he has sold, at invoice cost, cost him $680.00.

He finds that his total selling expenses, etc., are $220.00, and thus he has $100.00 as a profit.

He does a little figuring.

He assumes that his cost of doing business is 22% of the total amount of business that he has done, that being the easiest way to figure it. He has made a profit of 10% of the total amount of business. This is quite the natural way for the average man to figure it. Let us suppose, therefore, that he proceeds to replenish his stock with exactly the same kind of merchandise that he had before, and he thus buys another $680.00 worth of goods. (We assume this simply for the sake of illustration.) He gets the goods in and he says: "I'll mark these to make 32% over cost, because I want to make 10% profit, and 22% will cover the cost of doing business, etc."

What does he get? He finds at the end of the month that he has sold the same amount of merchandise, but he has received only $897.60 for it. In other words, he hasn't made his $100.00 profit, but has actually paid out $2.40 more than he received.

Had the retailer's knowledge of percentage been more thorough he would have realized that while the $320 was 32% of his sales of $1,000, it would be necessary to add 47% to the cost of his merchandise to get selling prices to total the desired $1,000.

Briefly, could it be argued with success that because $320 was 32% of $1,000 it therefore was 32% of $680? But it is just there that our retailer fell down!

He has been guilty of two fallacies in his methods. In the first place he has based the percentage of profit and cost of doing business on his volume of business, but applied these percentages to his cost price when it came to making new prices; and in the second place, he is not trying to make any money on the amount of capital paid out for rent, clerk hire, advertising, etc. It is just as real capital that pays the clerk to hand out the merchandise, as is the capital which it takes to pay the wholesaler for the merchandise, and a man should make money on both, because both are part of the service which his capital procures for the purchasing public.

How should he have protected himself in the matter? Let us figure it out a moment.

Our dealer has found that his cost of doing business is 22%. He wants a profit of 10%.

We assume that 100% is what he gets for the article. Therefore, we deduct the 32% from the 100% to find out what per cent. of the total price, the cost price is, because the cost price will be that portion of the 100% which is left after deducting the percentage required to pay the cost of doing business and the profit. We find, therefore, 68% of any selling price, where the cost of doing business is 22% and the profit desired 10%, represents what any article costs. Suppose the article cost $1.00. We divide 68 into $1.00 after adding two ciphers, and get $1.47 plus as a result. Let's prove it. If a man sells the article for $1.47 and is allowing 22% for cost of doing business, he gets 32 cents plus, for expenses. If he has figured on 10% of his business as profit, he finds that he gets 14 7/10 cents or 15 cents profit. Deduct your 32 cents cost of doing business from your $1.47, and you have $1.15. Deduct 15 cents profit, and you have the $1.00 left.

So we have proven that it works.

After all, therefore, it comes down to the question of the policy of figuring profits on selling or cost price. We know, what I believe all our readers will admit, that we can get very sadly tangled up sometimes. I know from a pretty wide investigation that many a retailer is today figuring in the dark with a result that is unfortunate, because he does not keep the percentages of profit from his cost prices.

This is the day of scientific management.

This is the day when we are trying to consider things from a practical standpoint. The advantages of figuring your percentage of profit on the selling price and not on the cost, are obvious, if we will consider them open minded and dispassionately, and leave the good, old arithmetic—for it is a "good old one"—and while being profoundly reverent of the ancient problems yet know how they work in our everyday lives.

Thus, because a problem is stated in one way, doesn't mean that it can't be stated in another and the last be a better way of stating it. The following reasons for handling profits on a basis of selling price, are paraphrased from Thomas A. Fernley's book "The Right Way to Figure Profits," which will be mailed to anyone requesting it from the Burroughs Adding Machine Company, Detroit, Michigan.

1. The remuneration of salesmen, for instance, is figured on a percentage of the selling price, and is not figured on the cost price. Therefore the selling price plan works in harmony with that.

2. The percentage of expense of doing business is based on the selling price.

If you talk and think of your percentage of profit on cost and your percentage of expense on selling price, nine cases out of ten you will lose money before you get yourself untangled.

3. Because the mercantile and other taxes are invariably based on the percentage of gross sales. Therefore, it is important if you are figuring in your mercantile and other taxes in your expenses, to figure them in the same way in which you are figuring your anticipated profits and making your selling prices.

To Go on Anti-Trust Lecture Tour

JAMES O. GRISWOLD, a prominent Connecticut tobacco grower, announces his intention of joining forces with Frank I. Cohen, Honorary Master of Works in the Corporation of Glasgow, Scotland, in making a lecture tour of the United States promoting a movement opposing the monopolistic combination of the retail and manufacturing tobacco interests. Mr. Cohen recently arrived in this country and is at present in Havana studying conditions. He expects to return to New York shortly to begin his independent operations by first starting a retail store and then going on tour.

Storm Damages Connecticut Tobacco

A storm which passed through Connecticut recently was the cause of thousands of dollars damage to the tobacco growers. Two large tobacco barns belonging to Henry Adams were unroofed and considerable damage was done to the tobacco plants, as well as the destruction of much cloth in the shade grown fields.

4. Because the sales totals are always given in books of records. Cost totals are seldom if ever shown.

5. Because a profit must be provided for two items of capital. On the capital invested in merchandise and on the capital necessary for operating expenses and other expenses not properly chargeable to merchandise account. This is only possible by figuring a profit on the selling price.

6. Because it indicates correctly the amount of gross or net profit when the amount of sales is stated. If you are figuring your percentage of profits through the selling price, a statement of gross sales for the day, or month, or year would be a pretty accurate indication of what you should expect in the way of profit. The percentage of profit on sales is indicative of result of a year's business—percentage of profit on cost is not.

7. Because allowances in percentage to customers for cash discounts and otherwise, are always from the selling price. Therefore, you can figure more accurately in taking your cash discounts into consideration if all your percentages are based in the same way.

8. Because no profit is made until the sale is actually effected.

9. Because by harmonizing your entire plan of figuring your percentages relative to profits in business, etc., with the entire plan on which your merchandising is harmoniously developing, you will not consider your selling price, percentage of profit and expense, etc., entirely different from anything else.

W. D. Simmons, of the Simmons Hardware Company, of St. Louis, recently wrote an article in which he called attention to the one great difficulty with the retail business, that retailers' accounting did not account; that in some of the fundamental methods of figuring they were incorrect; that in too many cases their books of account did not show their expenses or their gross profits for comparative purposes, and if the testimony of the great firms of public accountants was concentrated in on expression, it would be to the effect that more business goes wrong by poor accounting methods than poor salesmanship or buying methods. For this reason, this little problem is an important one, and it should be carefully considered by every business man who desires efficient accounting.

Dismisses Injunction Against Voliva

United States Judge Landis dismissed the injunction petition of Frank B. Cook against Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, and his aids, recently, declaring he had no jurisdiction. Cook sought to restrain Voliva and his constituents from the application of such terms as "stink-pots" and "beer guzzlers" from the pulpit of Zion Temple. Judge Landis declared he did not feel possessed of jurisdiction, as Voliva has a similar petition pending at Waukegan against Cook and his employees. The Court held the proper way for Cook to proceed is to file a cross-bill at Waukegan.

The City of Tullahoma, Tenn., will hold a tobacco celebration on Independence Day in honor of the one hundred tobacco growers who have located in that district within the past five years. Governor Ben. W. Hopper and a number of State officials will attend the event.

The closing down of the six large tobacco warehouses at Maysville, Ky., has thrown out of employment over 2000 hands.

Taking that Vacation

THE time has come when young and old alike are thinking of summer and the good old vacation time. Staid business men stop at their work and look out of the window, with their thoughts drifting back to the old swimming hole and fishing pond.

Many business managers feel that they cannot possibly take time enough from business for a vacation. Right there they make a bad mistake. Not only because he may become a physical wreck, but because a manager can in this way get better acquainted with the ability of those who are assisting him.

You can be the first one at work in the morning and perhaps the last to leave at night as long as you live, and thus set "the boys" a good example. But in doing that are you really finding out what "the boys" are worth to you, whether they have any initiative, or whether they are only units of a well-oiled machine.

Determine to leave the business for two weeks or a month. Let your assistants take charge of things. In doing that you will soon discover whether they have any "get-up-and-git" in them, so that if you are ever laid up you won't worry to death about the place going to the dogs. The business cannot be crippled in that time, and if it runs smoothly you will feel much safer either at home or away in the future.

No manager can make a success of anything without competent and intelligent assistants. And there is no better test of these very necessary qualities in a business man than going away and leaving everything in his hands. If he is competent, the right man for the place, he will show it. If he is incompetent you will soon find it out and can make a change. You will then know what you are up against in case some day you are temporarily put out of commission, and you can make your arrangements accordingly.

The "Open Door" Policy

The time of year has arrived when every retail tobacco man should avail himself of the open door advantage. By keeping the store door open and showing an attractive appearance to the passerby there can certainly be nothing lost, and on the other hand many men may be attracted by the appearance of your store, and seeing the door invitingly open will step in and secure a smoke. The writer was pleased to note that this policy had been followed by the majority of tobacco men, but there are many more who have old-fashioned ideas about opening the door in a case like this, just as many persons have a prejudice against fresh air and seldom or never have the doors and windows of their homes open.

As the warm weather approaches and doors are more generally opened retailers should see that their goods are protected in a proper manner. All cigars shown on the outside of the case should be covered with netting to keep the flies off. People are beginning to think about such matters and do not relish the idea of smoking a cigar which has just recently been the roosting place of numberless germ and disease carrying flies.

The cut price war on imported cigars seems to be a "tempest in a teapot." Few dealers have taken advantage of the cut to reduce the price to consumers, and the only ones affected so far are the manufacturers.

Don't "Knock" Your Competitor

ONE of the points a business man should not make a habit of is that of speaking slightly of his competitor down the street. For in so doing you are doing nothing more or less than advertising him.

This is a funny old world and one of the oddest things in it is human nature. The average human being is a queer mixture and has some queer ideas. The majority of them will take privileges themselves that they will not accord to others. Take, for example, a customer of yours who can come in your store and tell you all kinds of mean tricks your competitor has been playing, also the different kinds of prices he may be making. Perhaps you know that at least half what he tells you is untrue. Yet at the same time if you say something to that identical customer about your competitor he will probably resent it, for, he reckons, are you not talking about another, and behind his back, when he has no opportunity of defending himself.

If persons like that customer resent the idea of your criticizing your business rivals, how much less do you imagine a man will like it who never says anything about your competitor. In such an instance he will no doubt look upon you as a variety of "squealer" who has got all that is coming to him.

The best way for anyone to show up the bad points of a competitor, if he has any, is to let his customer do all the talking, even though you may be told that rival has been making uncomplimentary remarks in reference to you.

Sprague, Warner & Co. Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Within half century firm becomes one of the largest wholesale grocery and tobacco houses of Chicago—Employees and Associates present Mr. Sprague with Loving Cup

JUST fifty years ago, this month, Albert A. Sprague, established, in Chicago, a grocery store with a fourteen foot frontage. From this small beginning grew the present great wholesale grocery and tobacco firm of Sprague, Warner & Co, an institution with a national reputation.

It was on this occasion of the arrival at the half century mark, that associates and employees, presented to Mr. Sprague a handsome silver loving cup. Taken completely by surprise Mr. Sprague expressed his sincere appreciation of the gift and of the men who have assisted in the upbuilding of the house of Sprague, Warner & Co.

Established in 1862, when the Civil War made prices the very highest, the small institution under the capable guidance of Mr. Sprague outgrew its swaddling clothes. After the close of the war more commodious quarters were found necessary. The year 1870 found them at 62 Michigan avenue near Randolph street. A year later came the great fire and the firm was burned out. Quarters were immediately established however at 20 Canal street. Another move was made in 1873 to 53 Michigan avenue and two years later a greater volume of business compelled the firm to locate at Randolph street and Michigan avenue.

But Sprague, Warner & Co. had only started on its growth, until a few years ago the final change of location was made to Erie and Roberts streets. The present structure has a frontage along the Chicago river of nearly 400 feet and varies from 100 to 300 feet in width. The building is seven stories high and contains over one-half million feet of floor space.

Where fifty years ago there were six employees, today there are more than 1,000 and the business now amounts to millions of dollars annually.

Sprague, Warner and Co. are distributors for a large and extensive line of cigars, handling many well-known brands of national manufacturers.

Zion City Alarms Dove of Peace

After battle, in which eyes were blackened and whiskers torn out, it flies to parts unknown

By The Tobacco World Philosopher

THE white winged dove of peace, that bird of brotherly love and good will, absolutely refuses to make a permanent home in Zion City, Ill. Once upon a time, which is the way all stories are begun, a dove of spotless purity roosted along the outer walls of the little town and sang a song of contentment. But alas and alack! those days are gone and the bird has flown. In its place sits a coal black crow calmly smoking a pipe filled with tobacco from Chicago. After much trial and tribulation, internal dissension, riots, bonfires and sign board slander, the tobacco war broke out with renewed vigor in that saintly city the other day.

It all happened at Zion City's big hotel—a three hundred room institution built by John Alexander Dowie. Here was held the monthly meeting of two hundred members of the Zion Church led by the indomitable opponent of nicotine, Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva. Mustered on the hotel veranda were a dozen "independents" calmly wafting clouds of blue smoke to the skies.

"Brethern," spake Wilbur Glenn, "we must carry on this fight peaceably until we have driven all the 'tobacco skunks' out of Zion by sheer power of prayer."

The dove of peace came to rest on the window sill. "Now we will sing hymn number 13," continued the leader.

The dove ventured a little further into the room. The first few strains of the doxology were started with vim and vigor. The dove circled slowly about looking for a permanent resting place—when through the open windows there wafted thin clouds of pipe and cigarette smoke. It was too much. With one mad yell the meeting broke up and the congregation rushed en masse to the veranda and started hostilities anew. Other smoke lovers joined the fray and the conflict waged fast and furious. Eyes were blackened, whiskers were plucked out, faces were scratched and finally victory perched on the banners of the Army of the Pipe.

And far out over the waters of Lake Michigan could be seen the retreating form of the white-winged dove flying to parts unknown.

Corner Store Chat

THE man who gave utterance to the time-honored remark that a new "sucker" was born every minute surely knew what he was talking about, because that axiom is just as applicable today as when it was first promulgated.

In Chicago, one Alexander Passen was pursuing the even tenor of his way. By dint of hard work and much economy he had accumulated 1,159 good dollars of United States coinage. Alexander had a little cigar and tobacco store and his wisdom and sagacity were of neighborhood recognition. Then the tempter came and Alexander forgot that this was the year of our Lord 1912 and that the days of miracles were beyond recall. When the curtain had been rung down Alexander had lost his hard earned wealth and was shorn as completely as a lamb of its wool.

It all happened in this wise:

A few weeks ago there came into the life of Passen, one Abraham Frank, a smooth-tongued individual who carried under his arm a queer black machine. Frank looked cautiously about and then told Alexander that the machine hatched money,—that it was, in fact, the incubator of currency. Alexander asked for a demonstration and Frank took the victim to his rooms. Taking three one dollar bills the Thomas Alva Edison of our monetary system spoke a few words of magic, pressed a button, and instantly the room was filled with a blinding smoke. When this cleared away, Frank took from the machine five one dollar bills, where but three had been before.

Passen proved to himself that the "newly laid" bills were perfectly good because they passed like "greased lightning." For nights Alexander could not sleep. Visions of wealth, of untold luxury, of Europe, of automobiles, of indolence and unlimited pleasure; all played tag in his mind. He could not rest. He must see the modern Alladin and purchase the machine.

Yes, Frank would sell it. How much did he have? Alexander knew his bank balance by heart and informed his benefactor that $1,159 represented the amount of money on hand. For that consideration, Frank said, all the right, title and interest in the aforementioned contraption would be handed over.

Thus Alexander Passen, the modern pursuer of the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, carried the machine to his store and set about to manufacture money. He followed directions carefully; there was a blinding smoke, but alas!—and alack!—no money came forth. In consternation Alexander peered into the depths of the mysterious machine and all he found was twenty one dollar bills.

Then to the mind of Passen came a great vision. He had been duped! The green grass of the springtime was as of driven snow, and the birds had ceased their cheerful chirping, for all the world was dark and joy had gone.

As I was coming across from New York several days ago I noticed a man getting on at Trenton and meeting an old pal of his, who was seated across the aisle from me.

After exchanging greetings and felicitations, one of them remarked:

"Say Bill, when I was over in Phillie the other week I—"

"You went to a ball game at Shibe Park, didn't you?"

"No, sir."

"You went to City Hall?"

"No, sir."

"You called on Mayor Blankenburg?"

"No, as I started to say when I was in Phillie, I—"

"You went to League Island?"

"No, sir."

"You saw the new Parkway?"

"No, sir."

"Then what the deuce did you do?"

"That's what I've been trying to tell you. When I was in Phillie, I found the best nickel cigar I ever smoked for the money. Wait 'till we get to Broad street station and I'll get you one."

Who says that it doesn't pay to advertise? The United Cigar Manufacturing Company, through Best & Russell Company, of Chicago, have been doing a great deal of advertising on their latest 10c. cigar, the "Abbey." Every store handling this brand has an attractive window display. Prominently displayed is a card reading:

The Abbey
10c.
A Revelation

The other day a native of Old Erin, who had a drop too much and had read as he ran, came into the Best & Russell Company's stand, in the Insurance Building, Chicago, and after looking in the cigar case, said:

"Me bye, here's tin cints. Give me one of those cigars which started the revolution."

After spending an evening with convivial friends, a friend of mine came home rather late. He entered the house as quietly as he could, turned up the reading lamp in the library and settled himself as if perusing a massive, leather-bound volume. Presently his better half entered the room, as he knew she would, and asked what he was doing?

"Oh," he said, "I didn't feel like turning in when I first came home, and I've been reading some favorite passages from this sterling old work."

"Well," said his wife, "it's getting late now. Shut up your valise and come to bed."

The latest reports from Cuba on the Vuelta Abajo crop for 1912 confirm the early predictions made by "The Tobacco World" that the clear Havana cigar manufacturers at last are to have a bumper crop of high-class tobacco and at more reasonable prices. In quantity and quality 1912 Vuelta Abajo promises to be the best in many years, it being estimated that the yield will be approximately 95,000 bales more than last year and of a uniform and highly aromatic quality.

The only apparent drawback to the crop is the scarcity of light wrappers, not only in the Vuelta Abajo district, but in Partido and Remedios as well.

The wrapper situation will be a cause of concern to manufacturers who have specialized on light colors, but it may be said that smokers have gradually become educated to understand that the color of a wrapper is no indication of the intrinsic strength of the cigar. However, anticipating the scarcity of light wrappers, manufacturers would do well to prepare their customers to order more freely the darker colors.

Summarizing the Havana crop outlook as it appears today, we would say that it holds propitious promise to clear Havana cigar manufacturers, and they should bestir themselves to take full advantage of a situation which has not existed for many years.

A press dispatch from the West a few days ago detailed the death of D. W. Stockwell, of Aurora, Ill.—"The man who stood still."

The Man Who Stood Still Fifty years ago this dear old character had one of the finest general stores in Northern Illinois, stocked with everything from a package of tobacco to a suit of clothes. During the Civil War he made quite a snug fortune, not from his ability, but from special opportunity, and owing to his integrity and high sense of honor.

At the close of the war he became set in his ways, refused to replenish his stock or take note of the change in popular demand. He had about $10,000 worth of stock, including hoop skirts, old striped hosiery, jet jewelry, and he settled down to wait for customers to come in as in days of yore. He boasted that he never spent a cent for advertising. He went to his store at 7 in the morning and remained until 6 in the evening. With these methods he made his store a curiosity shop instead of a mercantile establishment, and when he died last month, nearly eighty years of age, he was advertised throughout the length and breadth of the land as the "Man who stood still" and the man who never advertised.

The selection of Dayton, Ohio, for the next annual convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, is a fitting recognition of the importance of Ohio as a tobacco producing State. Tobacco men of Ohio have long since earned the respect

All Hail Dayton as Convention City and admiration of the entire country because of their progressive and aggressive methods of raising tobacco and marketing it. Some of the oldest and best known packers and dealers claim the Buckeye State as their home.

As for Dayton, it personifies the last word as a progressive municipality, and all who attend the convention are assured a hospitable welcome and a royal good time, as well as an opportunity to see how an American city dominated by an earnest and aggressive citizenship has thriven and expanded.

What the World Thinks

¶The nickel cigar, as the "smoke for the masses," seems to be gaining in popularity everywhere. Nothing cheaper or nothing costlier seems to hit the spot for Mr. Common-People.

¶Nevada's first cigar factory has been opened at Carson City. For advertising purposes it would have been better to have started this factory at Reno. Just think of the possibilities of the brand "Reno's Rumor" among the divorce colony which annually migrates to the land of quick separation!

¶Grumbling among leaf importers and cigar manufacturers against the government's method of appraising imported Havana tobacco has grown to a roar of protest. If the tobacco interests want relief they are big and strong enough to demand it. Shooting peas instead of cannon balls at the abuses will never accomplish this. Let all the interests who have grievances get together and put their cause in as strong a manner as possible up to the government. Then, and only then, will there be a solution of the inconvenience and the gross injustice that are being done to the importers by the government's free and easy policy of appraisal.

Salomon Bros. & Stern to Open Chicago Office

IT has been about decided by Salomon Bros. & Stern, the New York manufacturers of "Aplomo" clear Havana cigars, that they will in the near future open a branch office in the city of Chicago. This decision comes after the last trip of Jackson H. Kelley, their representative, who is reported as having done the best business there during the past month that the firm has ever enjoyed.

Mr. Kelley returned to New York last week after a three-months' pilgrimage, which took him as far West as Omaha, and he says that he considers it the banner trip of his career, everything considered. Mr. Kelley will probably make his headquarters in Chicago when the new office is opened this fall. He is at present away on a ten-days' trip up New York State.

"Aplomos" have recently been brought out in a new two-for-a-quarter shape, which promises to be a very popular addition to the line.

Cafe Failures Have Hurt Cigar Stands

THE Broadway cigar stands in the "Lobster Lairs" have had a rough winter, all told, in a business way, and this privilege does not appeal so strongly today as it did a year ago.

The passing of Considine's Cafe Metropole into a receiver's hands marks the sixth Broadway fiasco during the past twelve months, and in each instance a splendidly equipped cigar stand suffered from the immediate loss of business following the failure.

The American Exchange Cigar Company operated the stand in the Metropole, and they, of course, are not affected by the troubles of the hotel proprietors otherwise than by diminished patronage.

D. Jacobs, who owned the cigar stand in Churchill's, it is stated, disposed of his interests there during the past two weeks.

Fleischman's, at Forty-second street; The Folies Bergere, at Forty-eighth street; the "Madrid," at Forty-sixth street, have all experienced changes as far as the cigar end is concerned.

W. E. Waterman, president of Waitt & Bond, Inc., the Boston manufacturers of "Blackstone" cigars, was among the prominent trade visitors to New York during the past fortnight. Mr. Waterman says the contractors are making splendid progress on their new factory in Boston, which, when completed, will be the finest cigar factory in New England.

Big Doings with the "King's Club" Cigar

BUSINESS on the "King's Club" cigar for the month of May has cast all previous figures in the shade. Especially in New York City, Philadelphia and up New York State sales are showing a steady increase, and orders from these sections are noted with pleasing regularity.

At present the "King's Club" is one of the most popular sellers in New York. The goods are running extra fine, and the company is sparing no effort in advertising them. Window displays can now be noticed at Oscar Schein's Cigar Store, 43rd street and Broadway; the James Drug Store, 46th street and Broadway, and L. Maskoff's store, at No. 48 Nassau street.

E. P. Oakes, president of the company, is exceedingly well liked in the cafes and hotels on Broadway, not only by the dealers, but also by clerks and managers of the popular places in the city, and his goods get the benefit of this to the limit.

Mr. Oakes, who is not a pessimist, said the other day, "Our cigar will not be one of the big, but the biggest seller, because we have the price and the goods and that is what the public wants."

"Milo Violets" Cigarettes

The Surbrug Company, makers of the "Milo" cigarettes, have been featuring the "Milo Violets" during May with good results. These cigarettes are a daintily scented brand exhaling a violet perfume and should appeal particularly to the feminine consumers. Several very ornate window displays of these brands have been put around in New York City, with artistic violet decorations and the attractive packages as main features. One of these, which attracted much attention, was in Oscar Schein's Broadway store at Forty-third street.

Judge Hand has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy on March 7th against Louis Jacoby, trading as Herman Jacoby, manufacturer of cigars, at 333 Bowery, on application of Mandelbaum Bros., his attorneys, who said that he had made a settlement with creditors at 35 cents on the dollar on three notes. The liabilities were $70,000.

Schedules in bankruptcy of Samuel Golkin, dealer in cigars and stationery, at No. 140 Ludlow street, show liabilities, $6,672 and assets, $2,360, consisting of stock, $1,500; fixtures, $575; accounts, $242; rent deposit, $40, and cash, $9. He also had 29 shares of stock of the Wegler Gents' Furnishing Co., and a claim against the company for $1,115, money advanced, value unknown.

Failure of Wm. J. Seidenberg

WILLIAM J. SEIDENBERG, of No. 149 West 45th street, formerly president of the Meerscham Company of America, at No. 33 East 32d street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $134,058 and assets $2,000 in real estate, consisting of 10 acres of land in Dade County, Florida, deeded to George Mulligan to secure a loan of $2,107, and 30,000 shares of stock of the Meerscham Company of America, of no value, as the company is in the hands of a receiver. Among his creditors are the Havana Tobacco Co., $62,963, secured by life insurance policies; Jeannette M. Schwab, $12,500, secured by income from a trust fund; Stadler & Stadler, $1,172 for clothes, and the following for loans: Louis Marx, Havana, $25,000; Max Blumenthal, $8,900; James L. Hill, $5,000; George Mulligan Co., $6,114; George Mulligan, $2,107, secured; Rebecca P. Ellis, New Bedford, $4,000; George Kessler, $1,000; H. H. Osterheld, $2,000; T. W. Osterheld, $1,300, and M. J. Seidenberg, $1,400. The petitioner has a life income of $100 a month from a trust fund from the estate of Joseph Seidenberg, but he has assigned the income to Jeannette M. Schwab. Mr. Seidenberg was formerly a cigar manufacturer and for several years was vice-president of the Havana-American Co.

Ernest Ellinger & Company have moved to their new location, 133 to 137 Front street, where they report a very good outlook.

Dave Echemendia, of the Castaneda (Havana) factory, and E. P. Oakes, of the King's Club factory, made a successful invasion of the Boston territory last week, and neither of them returned empty handed.

Gustav Bunzl, one of the founders of the firm of Bunzl & Dormitzer, tobacco merchants, succeeded by J. Bunzl & Sons, died last Saturday, at his home, 175 West 72d street, after an illness of more than two years. He was born in New York City, September 19, 1854.

S. Rotschild, of Montevierno & Company, has returned from a brief vacation in the Catskills. He has not been in the best of health recently, but the change in climate enabled him to regain his full strength. He is expecting to start on a trip early next week. Charles Winterburg, of same firm, is at present in the Middle West.

Leo F. Weiss, of L. F. Weiss & Company, a firm recently formed, will leave for the West next week on an extended business trip. Owing to the failure of the lithographers to deliver the labels and bands for their "Wanda" and "Fidelia" brands on time, Mr. L. F. Weiss was compelled to postpone his first trip.

Cigar Makers Plan National Convention

A referendum vote will be taken among the International Cigar Makers' Union to consider the advisability of holding a national convention in Baltimore next September. If they decide to hold this convention it will be the first in sixteen years.

Manufacturers Plan Havana Appraisalment

A REPRESENTATIVE gathering of clear Havana cigar manufacturers assembled in the Astor House, New York, May 24, to take up the matter of appraisements of Havana tobacco. For some time the manufacturers have been complaining about the unfair conditions imposed upon them, and this meeting was called to devise some plan for their relief.

On the same day in New York a meeting was held at the New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade by the Havana Importers' Association to consider the advisability of making a test case in determining the legality of the payment of wrapper duty on an entire bale of tobacco which contains in reality only a small percentage of wrapper.

A committee consisting of Ernest Ellinger, B. G. Davis and Joe Mendelsohn was appointed to confer with a committee of Tampa manufacturers to take up this subject.

A Busy Packing House

Don Manuel Alvarez of Manuel Alvarez & Co., Superintending the Baling of His Porto Rican Leaf

The above picture shows the interior of the packing and baling department in the warehouse of Manuel Alvarez & Co., at Cayey, Puerto Rico. Mr. Alvarez is seen superintending the work to the left in the photograph. He makes it a point to look after the packing personally, although he has one of the best trained staffs on the island. During the regular season over one hundred workers are employed in preparing for the trade the leaf handled by this firm. The product is exclusively from the Cayey and Plata sections of Puerto Rico, which is known as the garden tobacco belt of the island.

The New York offices of the firm are located at 178 Water street, where some of the choicest samples of the best Puerto Rico grown tobacco can always be seen.

Edward Fritchie, Jr., of Leavenworth, Kan., who has had charge of the cigar department of the Fritchie Drug Co., of that city, has accepted a position as salesman in Kansas City for the Niles & Moser Co.

Ed. Forsythe, who has been behind the counter of the Ricksecker Cigar Co., of Kansas City, has resigned to take a position with the Parker-Gordon Cigar Co., of that place, as city salesman.

T. J. Hogan, a popular representative of the American Tobacco Company, has been transferred from the Oklahoma division, with headquarters in Oklahoma City, to the Texas territory with Dallas as his base of operations.

PHILADELPHIA.

Quaker City Trade Outlook

BUSINESS conditions in Philadelphia, at the present writing, speaking from a tobacco standpoint, are far from satisfactory. This is more true in regard to the retail and jobbing trade than relating to the manufacturing end. Retail stores in the centre of town noted an improvement immediately upon the putting into practice of the open door policy. And if the weather we have been having will continue there is no doubt it will increase sales materially.

The larger manufacturers are busy at present, many of them having great difficulty in securing enough cigarmakers. A skilled artisan in this line will experience no difficulty in finding employment.

The inquiry for leaf tobacco is fairly good, but high prices tend to restrict extensive sales. There was a healthy demand for Connecticut. There has not been any pronounced activity in Sumatra, although all sources of information are enthusiastic as to its high quality. Many buyers are only making purchases for immediate needs, and appear to be of the opinion that the Dutch leaf will drop in price ere long.

M. J. Dalton & Co. Reorganized

Under New Arrangement, Widow of Founder of Firm is President—
Raymond M. Crane, Secretary.

AT a recent conference of the stockholders of M. J. Dalton & Co., large importers and retailers of cigars in this city, new officers were elected. Mrs. M. J. Dalton, who it is understood has a controlling interest in the business is, the president. W. R. Taylor, a brother of Mrs. Dalton, is the vice-president and Raymond M. Crane, who, since Mr. Dalton's death, has been actively in charge of the Fifth & Chestnut streets store, is secretary.

It is understood that there will be no radical changes at present. James L. Flannigan is now in charge of the Thirteenth street store and Mr. Crane at the Fifth street address. Mr. Taylor is making the latter store his headquarters.

Theobald & Oppenheimer Company have just opened a stripping plant at Coatesville, Pa., where they will strip the tobacco for their branch factories. The building obtained is sufficiently large to accommodate 400 hands, and 150 are already at work.

Welcome to a New Philadelphia Enterprise

Baum-Jaffe Co. Joins the Ranks of Successful Enterprises in the Quaker City

UNDER circumstances that augur well for their future, the Baum-Jaffe Company have launched into the business of manufacturing cigars, and judging by the success which has crowned their initial efforts, this firm is destined to take a place in the foremost ranks of Philadelphia manufacturers, a roll of honor which bears many distinguished names, known and respected from coast to coast.

The men behind this company have the advantage of many years' manufacturing and merchandising experience, and linked with this, they have the capital and energy sufficient to give the widest scope to their ideas. Such a combination cannot fail to win.

It is their plan to equip and conduct their factories along modern lines that will tend not alone to volume of production, but which will insure the sustained quality of their products, something absolutely essential to a permanent business success.

They have evolved a very definite policy along quality lines. Their leading brands will be retailed at five cents and ten cents and more, and it is the aim of the firm to give the smoker the very best cigar that can be produced for the money. This policy will prevail, not only now while the company is impressing itself upon the public notice, but will be maintained without deviation year in and year out.

The first formal announcement of the firm appears on page 9 of this issue of "The Tobacco World," and we commend it to the careful perusal of all our readers. It tells in detail of the men who make up the Baum-Jaffe Company, of the policy which will actuate the enterprise, and announce some of the leading brands.

Although this company have started in business only recently, they have already established a large volume of production to take care of the many orders which have been received from large concerns.

In addition to their factory at Souderton they have just leased 115-17 North Third street, Philadelphia, where they expect to open another factory.

Mr. Sheridan, of Park & Tilford, New York, was a recent caller in the local field. Mr. Mohnheimer, of Kaufman, Bros. & Bondy, the well-known pipe concern, was also calling on the trade. He has just shortly returned from an extensive trip through the West.

Quaker City Briefs

Benjamin Labe & Sons, the well-known leaf dealers of this city, were informed last week by cable that Jacob Labe, their representative at the Dutch inscriptions, had purchased seventy-five hales of tobacco at the May 24th inscription held in Amsterdam.

The new location of the United Cigar Stores Company at Eleventh and Chestnut streets is being overhauled and will be occupied in the near future. Edw. Fay & Sons have the contract. The upper floors will be rented, as will also several small stores on Chestnut street, while the corner store will be occupied by the United.

The Bobrow factory, on South Second street, is now one of the busiest in Philadelphia. Owing to the increased demand for the "Bold" cigar, the employes have been working until 7 P. M. each day. L. M. Walters, Eastern representative, is now on an extended trip through his territory and is reporting excellent sales.

The Rey Oma Base Ball Club, of the Sig. C. Mayer establishment, went down to defeat at the hands of the Sheip & Vandegrift aggregation of ball tossers on Saturday, May 18th. The final score was 9 to 7, but the Rey Oma adherents stated that the game was even closer than the score would indicate, and are looking forward to a return battle, when they expect to have revenge.

Under the able management of Willard W. Goldsmith, Dusel & Goodloe are pushing matters and getting a good share of trade. To increase their sales even further, they have, in addition to their regular salesmen, added two more "knights of the grip" to the sales force.

They are Edward Chevalier, who will cover the local territory, and Arthur Popper who will work outside of Philadelphia. C. M. Pleasants has been campaigning on the "La Preferencia" and "Principe de Gales" in the local field and Atlantic Coast points and secured gratifying results.

In spite of the recent depressing business conditions in the coal regions, where they have an exceedingly large demand for the "Counsellor" cigar, Allen R. Cressman's Sons are experiencing no difficulty in disposing of their well-known brand. They report a large increase and are now working hard to fill incoming orders. D. A. Gallagher, their Cleveland representative, was a recent visitor to the Philadelphia headquarters and was enthusiastic as to the outlook in Ohio and the Middle West for the "Counsellor."

Banner Month for "Havana Ribbons"

MAY sales of "Havana Ribbons" amply justified Bayuk Brothers' expectations for a banner month. Local sales have shown a material increase over any previous month's business while the increase on the outside territories has been phenomenal.

Distribution in the middle and far West and the Pacific Coast is rapidly increasing, the demand showing a permanent and healthy growth. Ehrman Brothers, distributors for Frisco and Klauber-Wangenheim, at Los Angeles and San Diego, are very enthusiastic over the repeating qualities of the "Havana Ribbon" and are forced to send numerous special orders in addition to regular weekly shipments.

LUCKETT, LUCHS & LIPSCOMB are now comfortably quartered in their new offices in the Bulletin Building, corner Juniper and Filbert streets, Philadelphia, having moved from their old location on North Third street during the past week.

In their new quarters they will have unsurpassed facilities for the handling of their out-of-town business and being located conveniently both to the Pennsylvania and Reading railroad stations, will be much appreciated by visiting buyers. They will carry a small stock of cigars in their offices but will ship most of their goods direct from their factory at Gilbertsville, Pa.

Speaking of business, Mr. Luckett, of the firm, states that their "Reynaldo" brand is coming fast to the front and is repeating most encouragingly wherever introduced. Mr. Luckett recently completed a successful trip through New England and New York. Mr. Luchs is reporting good business from the West.

General Gomez Co. Leases Another Site

The General Gomez Cigar Company, which has been manufacturing and retailing cigars at 1229 Chestnut street for over six weeks, have leased another location, the Northwest corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets, which will be operated on the same lines as the first store. They will sell only their own brands of cigars, the "Gen. Gomez" and "Wag" and are handling neither cigarettes nor smoking tobacco.

Michael Horn is the manager of this concern, and stated to a "Tobacco World" representative several days ago that other sites were under consideration in which new stores would be opened. The Sixth and Chestnut streets stand will be ready for business in about ten days.

To Perpetuate Sulzberger & Oppenheimer Co.

Application for a charter under the laws of Pennsylvania will be made, on June 3d, by Maurice Wertheim, John T. Dee and Walter J. Schloss for the incorporation of the Sulzberger-Oppenheimer Co., Inc., succeeding to the business of Sulzberger & Oppenheimer Co., Ltd. It will be remembered that upon the death of Mr. Oppenheimer, recently, the business was sold to the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, who now, through their representatives, incorporate the new company to take the business and perpetuate in a general way the old firm name and its brands.

"Bold" a Pronounced Success in Colorado

Loritz Brothers, prominent Denver, Col., wholesalers of cigars and tobacco, are securing excellent results on the "Bold" cigar, made by Bobrow Brothers. They have handled this popular nickel cigar in Denver and surrounding territory since March of this year and are more than pleased with the results. Their sales have run over 50,000 in this short time and are rapidly increasing in volume.

The S. & S. Cigar Company, a recently formed firm, located at 116 South 6th street, is handling a fine line of Philadelphia-made goods. Among them are the "Bold," Bobrow Bros.; "Cinco" and "Henrietta," Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., and "44" cigars, 44 Cigar Company. This firm is composed of D. Saffer, a practical cigar man, and S. Silverman, who, until a short time ago, managed the "United" store at Ninth and Market streets.

Mr. Samuel Bayuk has returned from the inscriptions and has secured a purchase of the finest quality Sumatra, light colors predominating.

Glaser Bros. Take on "Kings Court"

Glaser Bros., an old San Francisco jobbing firm, are giving more attention to the wholesale business than for some time past. They have just taken up a new clear Havana cigar, the "King's Court," made by the Hershheim Company, New Orleans. The agency was placed by D. Froelichstein, who is establishing connections for the Hershheim Company throughout the Coast. Glaser Bros. are going actively after the trade with this line, as well as the "John Drew," 5c. cigar, another recent acquisition of theirs.

Grandazo Segar Co. New Detroit Distributor

Rumor has it that a new cigar jobbing enterprise, to be known as The Grandazo Segar Co., is in process of formation in Detroit, Mich. The purpose of the new organization will be to distribute medium and high-grade cigars throughout Detroit and neighboring territory. Further details will be available later. One of the moving spirits is Archie Hiscott, former representative of M. Melachrinio & Co. Mr. Hiscott will be sales manager of the new organization.

Boosting Hershheim Goods in West

Dave Froelichstein, representative of the Hershheim factory, of New Orleans, left San Francisco recently for Salt Lake City, Denver, Fort Worth and New Orleans, after placing his products in many places on the Coast. During his three months' stay in Frisco Mr. Froelichstein sold 500,000 "Kings Court" Havanas and 500,000 Hershheim Porto Rican cigars. He will return to San Francisco with his wife and family and intends to make it his future home.

Arnold Pollak Distributes Manila Line

Arnold Pollak, the San Francisco wholesaler, returned last week from a very successful trip through the Northwest in the interest of the Manila product of Germann & Co., for whose goods he has secured the Pacific Coast distribution. Horace P. Kelly & Co. will cover the Eastern territory while Mr. Pollak takes west of the Rocky Mountains for these goods. Since the Manila cigar appears to be coming into its own, the Germann brands should soon make their presence felt.

Wooley & Co. Take on Manila Cigar

The importing and distributing house of Wooley & Co., of Seattle, Wash., have taken on a new brand, the "Flor de Moringa," made by the Flor de Intal factory, of Manila. The Seattle firm has placed an order for 100,000 of the new brand. They report excellent results on other Manila cigars, particularly the "Los Angeles" and "La Insular."

W. A. Kennedy, New Jobbers

The latest organized wholesale firm in Chicago is W. A. Kennedy & Sons. The elder Mr. Kennedy was for a number of years with the Charles Barker Co., and is therefore well known to the trade.

Daniel A. Wolf, 407 Main street, Cincinnati, has just had a new sign made for "El Wadora" cigars, manufactured by Sig. C. Mayer & Co. It is done in red and gold and suspended just outside his main entrance.

The J. B. Moos Co., of Cincinnati, has just put out a new pennant for the "Permit" cigar, done in red cloth with gold border. It is decidedly attractive in appearance and will doubtless prove a good advertiser for the brand.

Mr. Burrwell, buyer for the Cotton Belt Candy and Cigar Company, Charlotte, N. C., was a recent visitor to the Philadelphia market. This concern are large wholesale distributors for a number of Philadelphia-made cigars, including Theobald & Oppenheimer's products and Sig. C. Mayer & Co.'s goods.

E. P. and William Jeffreys, of Newark, N. J., who only recently went into the wholesale business, left last week for a trip by automobile through the Atlantic Coast towns booming the "Optimo" cigars, A. Santaella y Ca. and "Five of Harts" cigars, T. H. Hart & Co.

Schwarz & Son, large distributors of Newark, N. J., have equipped several of their salesmen with automobiles. L. A. Schenkin and Hermann Ross, two of their auto men, as a result are turning in good orders on "Charters," E. M. Schwarz & Co.; "Lovera," José Lovera & Co., and Hershheim cigars, Hershheim Co.

G. Roitman has opened a wholesale and retail store at 21 Dock square, Boston, right in the heart of the market district. The store has changed hands lately, but Mr. Roitman feels confident that he is in the right locality and will make good.

Julius Jacobs has gone into the cigar jobbing business at 222 Washington street, Newark, N. J. Mr. Jacobs is well-known to the trade in his district, which awaits with interest the announcement of the brands he will handle.

New Philadelphia Home of "Cinco" and "Henrietta"

THE illustration herewith is that of the new headquarters of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., at 932-34 Market street, Philadelphia. The building is all that could be desired in the way of equipment, convenient arrangement of space and up-to-dateness in every detail and is in accord with the well-known policy of this firm to have only the best and latest.

The arrangement is to some extent similar to that in the former store at 940 Market street. The first floor is used as a salesroom and offices for the cashier and assistants. The second floor is finished in mahogany and fitted up in a fine manner in regard to offices, lockers, etc. This floor contains the executive office and private offices of the members of the firm, Otto, Louis H., and Charles J. Eisenlohr, with a large staff of assistants.

With this latest improvement in facilities for the production of their goods, Otto Eisenlohr & Bros. should be able to meet the constantly growing demand for their widely known brands. The "Cinco" is known among all classes of smokers from Coast to Coast and it requires fifteen factories to keep up with the orders. The latest addition to the "Cinco" factories is the Pennsburg plant, which was opened about three weeks ago. It is the intention to employ two hundred hands in that establishment alone.

The sales of "Havana Ribbon" cigars show a nice increase in Buffalo according to Blakeslee-Snyder Company, the distributors for Bayuk Bros. in that territory.

The "Frat" cigar, manufactured by Jettles & Blumenthal, of Philadelphia, is creating quite a sensation in Chicago, where its distribution is in the hands of George C. Knight. The "Frat" is a fine piece of goods, handsomely gowned and takes hold everywhere.

"San Felice" cigars are rapidly coming to the front as one of the big five-cent cigars in New Orleans. The Southern Cigar Company, of that city, is the distributor. Nick King, of the Deisel-Wemmer Company, of Lima, O., which manufactures the "San Felice," was recently in New Orleans looking after the interests of the brand.

The Haas Tobacco Company of Buffalo, N. Y., job a long list of nickel cigars, including "Hoffman House," American Cigar Co.; "James G. Blaine," Federal Cigar Company, and "White Indian," their own brand. The new automobile of this concern is attracting much attention in Buffalo. Conspicuous signs advertising "Fatima" cigarettes and "Velvet" tobacco are displayed on the machine.

Edward Wolf Co., San Francisco jobbers, received, in the month of April, more than 500,000 Manila cigars. They recently were in receipt of a letter sent to the Insular factory by William Nolting, Collector of Internal Revenue, at Manila, in which the factory was notified of the transfer of two of the sizes from the third quality group to the second group, owing to the excellence of the tobacco and the workmanship of the goods.

This will mean an increase in authorized preference stock from £2,100,000 to £4,500,000.

Tampa Manufacturers Worried by Cuban Uprising Employers to Meet Within Two Weeks to Renew Pledge Known as Equalization Agreement of 1910—Production up to May 25 is 90,000,000 Cigars

TAMPA, FLA., May 27.

CIGAR manufacturing circles have been much exercised the past few days by the news of a threatened uprising in Cuba. It is natural that the manufacturers should feel deeply concerned in this regard, because of the havoc which would be wrought with their business should there be any interruption in the wonted course of industry in Cuba. A revolt would call into requisition many of the workmen of the island and would result in the cessation of operations in the tobacco fields. Just at the time when the new crop is beginning to be handled and when there is a heavy demand for the leaf here, trouble of this sort would bring on most serious consequences to the factories. Latest advices do not bring any hope of an immediate adjustment and travelers passing through here from the island, while they differ as to the extent of the uprising, agree that it is fully as serious as has been represented by the press dispatches. The interference of the United States, it is believed by the manufacturers, will complicate rather than relieve the situation. Anything that will tend to stop operations in the tobacco fields will prove disastrous, for a time at least, to the cigar manufacturing industry.

Within the next two weeks a meeting of all cigar manufacturing firms doing business in Tampa will be held in this city, the purpose of which is to bring a renewed pledge on the part of all manufacturers to abide strictly by what is known as the equalization agreement of 1910. This agreement was reached near the end of the big strike of that year, and was effected through the intervention of the Board of Trade of Tampa and the Tampa Citizens' Association, the latter organization having been formed for the purpose of bringing about a settlement of the strike and, at the same time, protecting the property of the manufacturers and the peace of the city generally against agitators and disturbers connected with the strikers. The agreement was signed up at that time by practically all the manufacturers represented here. It provided for what was deemed a fair and just equalization of sizes and prices, equitable alike to workmen and employers, and met the favor of both. Of late, there have been complaints that some of the manufacturers have not been living up to the letter of their agreement and, as the organizations of business men above mentioned stood practically in the attitude of sponsors for the good faith of all the manufacturers in dealing with the workmen, these organizations were appealed to and determined to take hold of the matter. Accordingly, one meeting of the representatives of the organizations and the manufacturers has been held at which a tentative form of agreement and pledge has been drawn up and this is to be submitted to a meeting, at which it is desired that each manufacturing concern operating here be represented by one of its responsible members or officials. Each firm or company is to be put directly on its pledge to live up to the agreement, and it is hoped that there will be a full attendance. The business men realize that the only way peace can be preserved in the industry is by a strict compliance with the terms of agreements entered into by manufacturers and men, and they fear that the violation of these terms by a number of manufacturers will precipitate further trouble.

The form of renewed agreement provides for the appointment of two inspectors, one a person thoroughly conversant with the manufacture of clear Havana cigars but not interested in any manufacturing concern, the other a cigarmaker not affiliated with any union or labor organization. These inspectors are to visit every factory in the city at least once every thirty days, and see to it that the equalization agreement is being observed in each factory. Penalties are provided and other details will be incorporated before the agreement is finally adopted. Notice of this meeting, which will be held under the auspices of the Board of Trade and the Citizens' Association, will be sent out in a few days and, unless there is a full representation of the manufacturers, serious results may follow.

A committee of manufacturers, accompanied by the attorney of the association, appeared before the Committee on Ways and Means at Washington the past week, and argued for the bill introduced by Representative Sparkman, of this district, which exempts from payment of the internal revenue tax such cigars as are distributed by the manufacturers among the employees for their own consumption. This is the measure intended to settle the "free smoker" question which has been agitating the industry here for some time. The manufacturers who appeared before the committee state that they anticipate the bill will be favorably reported and that it will be passed before the close of the present session.

John H. Boltz, one of the leading manufacturers of the country, has been spending two weeks here looking into the affairs of the local factory. Mr. Boltz laughs at the idea that the presidential campaign is hurting general business conditions throughout the country. He says he notes no bad effects and finds that the campaign, as is usually the case, helps the cigar trade.

The final retirement of Edgar J. Stachelberg from active connection with the business of M. Stachelberg & Company, one of the oldest concerns in the business, was announced the past week. When the Esberg-Gunst interests withdrew from the firm, or rather, when Mr. Stachelberg severed connections with the Esberg-Gunst people, the Stachelberg concern was taken over by the American Cigar Company. Mr. Stachelberg continued as manager. Mr. Stachelberg has now sold all his interests to the company, including the well-known Stachelberg brands, "La Fama Universal," "Rafael" and others. Immediately following the change, A. L. Silvester, one of the head men of the American Cigar Company, came to Tampa and his arrival was followed by the dismissal of the entire office force of the Stachelberg concern, including one employee who had been with the Stachelberg house for more than thirty years. The Stachelberg business is now being moved into the factory building occupied by the M. Valle Company branch of the trust, and the M. Valle Company will move into the Stachelberg factory, which is one of the newest and largest in the city. Mr. Stachelberg states that he will engage in the leaf business at Havana.

Henry Esberg and Preston Heribert, who have just bought the Diligencia factory at Havana for the M. A. Gunst Company, have not yet announced whether they will transfer the business to Tampa. They left Saturday night for New York.

A. L. Cuesta has returned from an extensive trip over the country and his smiling countenance is welcomed by many friends, in and out of the trade. He found general business conditions satisfactory, but is much concerned about the threatened uprising in Cuba.

José Loyera, who has been taking the baths at Hot Springs, Ark., will return in a few days and will go at once to Cuba. He has been greatly benefited by the treatment and the rest.

Emilio Pons, of the Tampa-Cuba Company, is buying tobacco in Cuba, additional purchases having been made necessary by the recent increase in orders.

Harry B. Roberts, of the mail order house of J. W. Roberts & Son, has been attending the national convocation of Mystic Shriners at Los Angeles, Cal., as a representative of Morocco Temple, of this State.

Jerome Regensberg, who is spending two weeks here, reports an excellent outlook for business throughout the country.

The statement in a recent issue of the TOBACCO WORLD that José Escalante was dead caused some confusion and embarrassment to the family and friends of the well-known cigar manufacturer of that name. The deceased had not been engaged in cigar manufacturing for years, but was engaged in the drug business. Mr. Escalante, the cigar manufacturer, is in his usual good health.

J. R. Burns, covering Southern territory for F. Lozano Sons & Co., was a recent visitor here.

Y. R. Robson, who sells "Mi Rey" cigars in Florida, has been a visitor at the factory recently and reports business very satisfactory.

Perfecto Garcia has gone to Cuba for another inspection of crop conditions. This firm has moved its Chicago office to 208 North avenue, where it will have more room.

An interesting marriage last Monday was that of Miss Consuelo Eugenia Rey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peregrino Rey, and Benjamin Campillo, which took place at the residence of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Osterhaus. Miss Caroline Fernandez was the ring-bearer and Misses Valentine Bustillo and Sylvia Morgan the flower girls. The wedding was attended by prominent manufacturers and their families. The bride's father is a member of the firm of Cuesta, Rey & Company, and Mr. Campillo is a nephew of those well-known manufacturers, José and Benjamin Cosío.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mrs. Casilda Diaz Haya and Mr. Baptiste Solar, which was solemnized May 15, at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church by Rev. Father Navin. The only attendants were M. Bustillo and Mrs. Fannie Haya, aunt of the bride. For the present year, up to Saturday, there has been shipped from Tampa a total of 90,000,000 cigars.

The appraisement question remains in statu quo. After the making of a test case by Berriman Bros. the manufacturers have been waiting for a decision from the authorities as to whether or not the Board of Appraisers will send an appraiser to Tampa when called for to pass upon disputed importations. The Treasury Department has written local manufacturers that it will be necessary only to send sample "carrots" of the disputed tobacco to New York, but the manufacturers do not regard this as a satisfactory solution of the difficulty. They insist that an appraiser be sent to Tampa to settle such disputes.

E. R. Tomez, manager of the Sanchez & Haya factory, has, since my last letter, returned to Tampa from an extensive trip, on which he covered the entire country from San Francisco to New York. Mr. Tomez had the pleasure of meeting personally many of the jobbers and retailers who handle the famous Sanchez & Haya line and the acquaintanceship is sure to result in better business relations and increased demand for these goods.

Francis Bolano, on a recent trip to Cuba, contracted for 1000 bales of choice tobacco to be forwarded as soon as it is ready for use.

Among recent orders received is one for 250,000 cigars from San Francisco by Balbin Bros. PERFECTO.

Mr. Sopher manufactures among his other brands the "Honest Tom" five-cent cigar, which is well-known all over Baltimore. His goods are manufactured at the Pennsylvania avenue address.

Tobacco Sales in Amsterdam

From a report published by an Amsterdam broker comparing the first five tobacco auctions of 1911 and 1912, crops 1910 and 1911, it appears that the prices of the Dutch East India tobacco were much higher for the Sumatra product this year than in 1911, and for the Borneo product they were lower. This is owing to the better quality of the Sumatra tobacco, together with a greater demand, while the Borneo tobacco was of inferior quality, bad color, and bad assortment.

At the five auctions for 1912 held up to May 3 in this city, 82,433 bales of Sumatra tobacco were sold at an average price of $6.92 per pound, against 73,476 packages at an average of $6.79 in 1911. Of the Borneo product, 1,369 packages were sold at an average of $6.65 a pound, against 3,407 packages at an average of $6.82 in 1911.—From Consul Frank W. Mahin.

George L. Storm & Co. Open More Stores

Start a Retail Stand at Boston and Another at Buffalo

GEORGE L. STORM & CO., of New York, are arranging for another store in Boston and one in Buffalo. The Boston branch will be managed by A. H. Hall, former distributor in the "Hub City" for the Storm brands. This stand has just been incorporated for $100,000.

The Buffalo store will be located at 656 Main street and has been leased for a long term of years starting on June 1. This is a very good location and should prove to be an advantageous point for the Storm concern.

To Build Tobacco Warehouse

Burley Society Plans Another Structure at Frankfort, Ky.

FRANKFORT, KY., May 28.

Plans for a large loose-leaf tobacco warehouse, in Frankfort, to be owned and operated by the Burley Tobacco Society, were perfected at a meeting of the officers here, when it decided to build a steel and concrete structure, covering an acre and a half, at a cost of $50,000.

Work will begin at once and next season the society will conduct sales on a larger scale. The new warehouse will have a capacity of 200,000 pounds of tobacco as against 35,000 pounds now.

J. W. Greeves, Bankrupt, Missing

THE creditors of the J. W. Greeves Company, tobacco manufacturers of Rochester, N. Y., which failed almost a month ago, are searching for James W. Greeves, who has mysteriously disappeared. When the creditors held their meeting, over a week ago, and Mr. Greeves failed to appear, they became alarmed and reported the matter to the police, who are now looking for the missing man.

When the J. W. Greeves Company failed it had debts totaling almost $70,000, with assets of $30,000; $18,000 of the assets is claimed by two Rochester banks, who hold liens on tobacco. The stock will be appraised before long.

M. Valle y Ca., Move to New Factory

M. Valle y Ca., the Tampa branch of the Havana Commercial Company, of Havana, who manufacture in Tampa for the United States market exclusively the "La Flor de Cuba," "La Flor de A. Murias," "La Trinidad" and other well-known brands, moved last week into the Seidenberg Building, which is considered one of the largest and best equipped factories in Tampa. This has been the second time within two years that this concern has been compelled to secure larger quarters.

Tobacco Manufacturer Arrested

Because he is alleged to have failed to keep account of tobacco purchases made by him Joseph J. Lewis, a cigar manufacturer near Madison, Wis., was arrested and arraigned before Court Commissioner Francis Bloodgood at Milwaukee. The case was transferred to the District Court at Madison, Wis.

John F. Jones, who is regarded as one of Wilmington's (Del.) leading retailers, has just leased a new store at Sixth and Market streets, that city, and after extensive alterations, which will make the stand the most attractive in that city, he expects to move into it. This will be Mr. Jones' second store in Wilmington.

Detroit Trade Improves with Better Weather

John J. Bagley & Co., Make Hit with "Old Colony Mixture"—New Cigar Factory of Henry Petit

It was probably fortunate that during the past fortnight the Taft-Roosevelt fight, Ty Cobb's onslaught in New York, the Tigers-Ban Johnson incident and other exciting events were sufficient in number and public interest to divert the thoughts of jobbers and retailers from unfavorable weather and diminished sales. Miss Spring has been most dilatory in assuming her proper garb and showing herself in friendly mood. One wet, cold, cloudy day followed on the heels of another with such regularity and persistence as to become almost discouraging. But since Friday all is changed. The sun is shining bright, the sky is clear, the weather perfect—as though hand-made—and everyone is happy. Business is good.

I am told that John J. Bagley & Co. are making a pronounced hit with their recent brand, "Old Colony Mixture." Beside its success in remoter fields, it is fairly well placed among local dealers and is well regarded by those whom I have questioned as to its merits. It is designed for both pipe and cigarette and is mild and pleasant in taste. Here's something for our local dealers to forward. Boost home product, especially when its merit deserves recognition.

Who sells the "Girard" cigar here? Twice I have been asked that question within the past ten days by parties who read the advertisement of Antonio Roig & Langsdorf in THE TOBACCO WORLD. The reputation borne by this firm would almost seem warrant enough of the excellence of its product. If any local jobber has the brand I am not aware of it. Good jobbing connections for new brands are not the easiest things in the world to secure, but doubtless the "Girard" will be seen in this market ere long if it has not already been introduced. If the cigar ranks with the merit of its advertising "copy" it will prove sufficiently good to win and hold hosts of friends.

Articles of incorporation were filed May 13th by the Ritter Cigar Box Company, 606 Chene street, Detroit, with capital stock of $15,000; all paid; $10 per share. The stockholders are Henry G. Ritter, 718 shares; Harry W. Buckley, 718 shares; Wm. F. Ahrens, 64 shares.

Another association that is of some trade interest is the incorporation, May 15th, of The Detroit Matchless Stove Lighting Company, with a capital stock of $10,000, of which Nate and Sol Van Vliet, of the wholesale leaf tobacco house Van Vliet Bros., are half owners. The company will manufacture electric devices for igniting gas stoves and all manner of vapor burners. Offices of the company are at No. 150 St. Antoine street. Louis V. Rautlet is president; Nate Van Vliet, secretary and treasurer.

As illustrating the exasperating freight conditions confronting Detroit merchants for so long, Mr. Van Vliet cites a carload of tobacco delivered by the Pennsylvania R. R. to the Michigan Central R. R., which arrived here April 13th, almost six weeks ago. The company has been unable to make delivery or get the goods to warehouse, as the car is hopelessly involved among miles of other freight cars lying idle on sidings for lack of equipment or facilities to move them.

The Central Cigar Company, corner of Broadway and Gratiot, have had a very nice business thus far. Their corner is a much-used street railway transfer point. It is reported there will be two additional cigar stands in their immediate neighborhood in the near future. This is not to be wondered at, for the opening of the Broadway Market this summer, the building of a new theatre and other changes on that square are sure to draw heavily increased traffic and more competition.

The Hemmeter Cigar Company expect to be in full operation in the handsome new building just off Broadway by June 1st or before.

The rapid transition of the Peltz-Hill section of Woodward avenue, from its atmosphere of complacent respectability to one of bustling activity and business enterprise, is almost disconcerting to older residents. The Home Savings Bank, Detroit Savings Bank and Dime Savings Bank have secured quarters only recently for branches in the district lying between High street and Canfield avenue on Woodward avenue. To make room for the Dime Savings Bank, Sam Whited, dealer at corner of Woodward and Willis avenues, is required to move. For a time he will share a part of the store of the Phillips Grocery Company, just north of the present location.

Gram & Co., 812 Woodward avenue, start off nicely in their new store. Two pool and one billiard tables help to keep things moving and draw a nice class of neighboring patronage.

C. H. Brockway, 743 Woodward avenue, has just added several pool and billiard tables to his well-equipped store and there is little danger of his getting lonesome.

Frank Smith, manager of Hotel Pontchartrain cigar department, occupies odd moments devising new and novel packings for the "Count Pontchartrain." His latest is the "Triangulares" in 40's, thirteen top row, which makes an effective appearance.

George W. Becker, the general cigarist of Marine City, was seen in town this week. As there was no game on at Navin Field it is presumed he was here on business.

A busy spot of a Saturday night, or any evening for that matter, is the Fairview store of the Meloche Drug Co. Mr. Meloche has an excellent cigar trade, numbering among best sellers: "Romeo y Julieta," "Carolina," "Pastora," "Detroit Opera," "Cinco" and "R. B."

A new cigar factory is that of Henry Petit, 1547 Mack avenue. Mr. Petit commenced operations May 10th.

Harry Farbstein returned Wednesday, 22d, inst., to his desk at the San Telmo, after an absence of some six weeks spent for the most part in Amsterdam. While his trip was primarily for pleasure, and to visit home folks, yet he was an interested visitor at the Sumatra markets and kept his firm advised regarding various markets that came under his inspection. At the New York pier, on the return trip, he got that rare smile through without payment of duty, declaring it to be "Detroit-Made." It originated a couple of years ago with the advent of the "Pastora" and has been growing in warmth and lustre ever since.

Business in the cigar department of Harnett, Hewlett & Co., Toledo, O., is evidently good. George St. Clair, manager of the department, was over here this week and was seen regarding a Chalmers 40 with much earnestness.

A good sized Sumatra deal involving some two hundred or so bales was put through this week, one of our big factories taking the goods. Doubtless Mr. Sam Bijur, of E. Rosenwald & Bros., ate his dinner with keen relish the same day. Mr. Bijur is again here today and has other deals pending.

Another visitor this week was Alfred R. Schud, of L. Schud & Co.

Also Jesse Falk (from Chicago) with his green tie and Nestor Schloss.

Fred Singer, of Rosni & Co.; Julius Lichtenstein, of the American Sumatra Tobacco Co.; Henry Fisher, of A. Cohn & Co.; William Van Baalen, of Ernest Ellinger & Co., and A. Hirsch, of Dayton, representing Joseph Hirsch & Son, N. Y., are other leaf salesmen who were recently with us.

Among cigar salesmen were the following: C. D. Cameron, Waldorf-Astoria Segar Co.; Jacques Planco, Ruy, Suarez & Co.; Lee Cahn, E. Regensburg & Son; Lee Schoeneman, Celestino, Vega & Co.; J. M. Gans, Gans Bros.; Harry Mills, Arguelles, Lopez & Co.; William Best, of Best & Russell Co., Chicago, and Frank Francisco, United Cigar Manufacturers Co.; Harry Altes and M. Goldberg, of Simon Batt & Co.; Frank Horning, H. Anton Bock & Co.; G. C. Ernst, Graham-Ernst Co.; Mr. Schaefer, Jr., of Joseph J. Schaefer, Dayton.

Also the representative of The Manchester Cigar Manufacturing Co., Baltimore, and of William Glacum & Sons, N. Y.

S. F. HEAVENRICH.

Convention Visitors in San Francisco Benefit Trade

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.

THE local business has fluctuated greatly this month, but aside from a little spurt last week has been rather below expectations. The Los Angeles retailers, on the other hand, have had a lively time, due particularly to the convention of Shriners in that city. One or two State trade conventions were held there about the same time, and for a week or more the city was thronged with merry-making visitors, most of whom spent money freely and smoked good cigars.

The wholesalers here are giving more attention to the outside than to the local trade. The fruit season is now starting in many places, and dealers there note a materially increased demand, running largely to cigarettes and staple lines of smoking and chewing tobacco. A demand for more expensive classes of goods is coming from outside hotels and summer resorts, which are already well patronized, and distributive business is in good shape.

Interest in Manila goods has been revived on account of the upward tendency of prices. Manufacturing costs in the islands have increased greatly of late, and local handlers state that nearly all Manila lines will soon be much higher than in the past. They show no fear of a resulting curtailment of demand, however, and are constantly reaching out for the exploitation of more territory for their products.

A matter which may be interesting to the tobacco trade is the destruction, a few days ago, of narcotic drugs and opium outfits of enormous value. This was done at the order of the State Board of Pharmacy, the goods being burned in a huge bonfire in a street of Chinatown. The fire, which blazed an hour and a half, was so great that the fire department was called to keep it in control. The pile was composed largely of opium, with more or less cocaine, morphine, etc., and was surrounded by hundreds of opium pipes and other paraphernalia, being the material confiscated in about 1500 arrests. Many of the pipes destroyed were valued at $500 each.

M. A. Gunst & Co. have had the retail department of their main headquarters at California and Front streets torn up for the last week, and the place is being completely remodeled. The principal feature of the store will be a huge humidor for their fine lines of imported cigars. M. A. Gunst & Co. have for some time had a good-sized humidor, one end of which was enclosed by the front window, giving a view of the interior. The new space, however, will be 15 by 21 feet, and will be paneled throughout with Spanish cedar, the display feature being maintained. The humidor will be the finest in the city, and will be a great attraction to the people who buy fine cigars by the box.

H. J. Hamlin, formerly in the retail business, is now with the Hoffman-Moore Company, working on a special campaign in the local trade. Chas. S. Morris, manufacturer of "La Integridad," the Hoffman-Moore Company's leading line, spent last week in San Francisco, having visited the North Coast on the way from the factory, and returned by way of Los Angeles.

Boltz, Clymer & Co. are experiencing an unusually heavy movement of their "El Palencia" clear Havana line. This cigar received quite a boost on the occasion of the recent visit of Secretary of State Knox, the "El Palencia" being the cigar used at the banquet tendered him by the California Development Board. J. D. Waterman, Coast traveler for Boltz, Clymer & Co., is making a visit to the trade at Salt Lake City, an will tour the Northwest before returning.

H. B. Kelly, a prominent Eastern cigar man, was in San Francisco a few days ago, renewing old acquaintance with his former agents, Arnold Pollack and Michalitschke Bros. & Co. Mr. Kelly is now giving his attention to some high-class Manila brands, the leading line bearing his own name. It is understood that Mr. Kelly has made arrangements for the handling of his goods here, and he is now calling on dealers in the North Coast cities.

Ehrman Bros. & Co. received some big shipments of Manila goods early this month, but practically everything was needed to fill advance orders, and they are still short of goods.

E. Regensburg & Sons' "American" brand, handled here by Chas. Mattheas & Co., is receiving some strong display advertising at present, the local agents having employed the Black-Crane Company, window artists, to put displays in a number of retail windows.

Morris Lesser, representing the Juan Portuondo cigar, is calling on the Coast trade this week.

M. Ascheim, a local retailer who failed about a month ago, made an attempt at suicide May 6, but is expected to recover.

The store of Rinaldo Bros. & Co., which has been for some time on Market street near Front, has been moved to Davis street, just off Market.

W. I. Pixley, the prominent smoking tobacco representative, has spent considerable time in the North of late, and has become convinced that that territory deserves continuous attention. He has accordingly established headquarters at Seattle, Wash., and will remain in that part of the Coast for several months, leaving his local business in competent hands.

Arnold Pollack, the well-known cigar broker, is in Portland, Ore., this week.

H. and S. C. Bercovich have bought the lease of I. Mendelson, a retailer of Washington street, Oakland, who failed recently. The stock, etc., was sold to other parties.

The Japanese steamer "Canada Maru," leaving Tacoma, Wash., May 14, is said to have taken enough cigarettes to supply every inhabitant of the City of Shanghai, the destination, with 38 smokes.

H. L. Judell, of this city, Imperial Ruler of the Bagnem of Baghdad, spent the early part of the month at Los Angeles for the Shriners' convention, returning a few days ago.

Clarence E. Saunders Quits Road

One of the Most Successful Cigar Salesmen in the Northwest Retires after Twenty-six Years of Successful Work; Longs for Home Life

CLARENCE E. SAUNDERS, alias "Razzle-Dazzle," the oldest and one of the best known traveling men in the Middle West, has finished his last trip through the Great Desert and says he will quit the road for a greater share of home life than a traveling man usually gets. He has had twenty-six years of pioneering through the Northwest, working for a number of different concerns.

"Razzle-Dazzle" has been a "knight of the grip" since 1886. In 1889 he made his first trip to Buffalo, Sheridan and Northern Wyoming. And every year since, twice a year until the railroad came, bringing with it increased population and trade, and later four times annually, he has made his rounds.

Mr. Saunders was, until 1886, a newspaper man, being a reporter on the St. Joseph "Gazette." There was a shake-up on the staff at that time, not to "Razzle-Dazzle's" liking, and he turned his attention to other lines.

The grocery house of Steele & Walker said he might try out as a cigar salesman. It was new work to Saunders, but he had the energy and determination to win. And he did win.

His territory was the broadest and most unpromising visited by St. Joseph "drummers" being through Northwestern Nebraska and Wyoming, which was a wild country in those days, most of it without railroads. But Saunders "made good." After eight years with Steele & Walker he served two years as manager of the C. D. Smith Drug Company's cigar department. Later he sold for Reid, Murdoch & Co., of Chicago, remaining seven years with that firm. Finally eight years ago he went with Niles & Moser, of Kansas City. While with that enterprising concern, he made a selling record on "La Saramita" cigars, manufactured by the Shields-Wertheim Company, of Cleveland, which still remains unbroken. Now, after twenty-six years of hard, successful and remunerative work, he announces his retirement from the road.

Mr. Saunders was a general favorite in his territory. A choice stock of rare stories on many occasions has aided him to corner the friendship market. The smile that never wears off has been another valuable asset. "Razzle-Dazzle" was his nickname among the trade and his many acquaintances. And when he made his farewell tour recently, it was the occasion for gatherings and banquets all along the line, at which time they all extended their best wishes for his continued health, happiness and success.

F. X. La Fond Dies in Detroit

F. X. LaFond, father of M. A. and Charles LaFond, of Detroit, and of Mrs. Charles Rousseau, died suddenly, in that city, several days ago. Mr. LaFond, Sr., though well advanced in years, was active and about and was busily employed until recently showing no symptoms of illness. Interment was held Tuesday 28th, inst.

Change in Flint, Mich., Concern

Announcement was made a few days ago of a change in the firm of Classen & Street, one of the oldest and best established cigar manufacturing firms of Flint, Mich. Mr. Classen retires and Frank R. Street continues the business.

Roberts, of Springfield, Mass., who has four cigar stores in that city and one in Worcester. Mr. Cox had a wide acquaintance among Hartford smokers and baseball fans, who made his store their headquarters for many discussions.

Cigars and cigarettes are part of a restaurant business, according to a decision recently handed down by Judge Foran of Cleveland, O. He refused an injunction asked by Pyle & Allen, cigar dealers in the Hippodrome Building, to prevent Stone & Stern, proprietors of the Hippodrome Inn, from selling cigars. Pyle & Allen claim exclusive sales right in the building.

On account of the wrecking of its location at 210 Sixth avenue, Des Moines, Iowa, to make room for the Polk-Hipper Building, the Rex Cigar Store is going temporarily out of business. Upon the completion of the new building the Rex store will occupy a new stand in it. New fixtures and stock will make it one of the finest stores in Iowa. They have occupied their former stand for eighteen years.

Launch "Sintoma," New High Grade Brand Noteworthy Addition to Ten Cent Line of the Juan Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Co.

A CIGAR which is bound to make a hit with discriminating smokers has just been introduced by the Juan Portuondo Company, of Philadelphia.

The title is Spanish, "Sintoma," meaning in English, "a token," and was decided upon as a fitting tribute to the memory of the firm's founder, Mr. Juan Portuondo. The "Sintoma" is also being put out as a tender of thanks and appreciation by the company to their many patrons of forty years standing.

"Sintoma" Cigar, showing attractive box and packing

The label bears an artistic reproduction of Mr. Portuondo's portrait in rich, true-to-life coloring, with a facsimile autographic signature beneath. The title and decorations are in embossed gilt. The boxes are trimmed with a unique green and gold edging and the bands are specially designed in heavy gold and red. The illustration shown will give a partial idea of the attractive way in which it is being put up.

The special "Sintoma" shape is a five and one-half inch panatela and will easily take a prominent place with the aristocrats of their fifteen- and ten-cent grades, "Preferidos," "Perfectos" and "Reina Victorias," in all of which sizes the new brand will be furnished.

The "Sintoma" is a strictly hand-made piece of goods, Sumatra wrapped. It has the popular, mild Portuondo-standard blend Havana filler, with the best smoking qualities in burn, taste and aroma to insure immediate and lasting success.

The Portuondo Company are supplying neat, attractive window displays and signs to the trade which will materially assist in booming this new high-grade product.

Strike at Bondy & Lederer Factory

To the tune of "Everybody's Doing It," five hundred girls employed at the cigar factory of Bondy & Lederer, at Nanticoke, near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., went on strike last Saturday. Their strike may cost the town the largest factory it now has, for the employers have declared that unless the girls are back at work within a week they will pack up the machinery and move the plant to Northampton, Pa.

The girls have asked for an increase in wages and for shorter working hours. When they presented their demands their employers flatly refused to make any agreement.

Hearing on Free Smoker Bill

Florida Manufacturers Give Argument in Favor of Measure—Underwood Promises Immediate Consideration

A HEARING on the Sparkman or "Free Smokers" bill was given by the Ways and Means Committee, at Washington, on May 22d, in which a number of New York and Florida cigar manufacturers took part.

This bill provides, among other things, that a manufacturer of cigars shall be permitted to use for experimental purposes in conducting his business and for the personal use of himself and his employes, but not for sale or profit, a number of cigars each year not exceeding 5 per cent. of the total number produced in his factory without being required to pack the same in boxes or to stamp or pay any internal revenue tax thereon.

Also, that every manufacturer of cigarettes shall put up all the cigarettes he manufactures and has manufactured for him, and sells or removes for consumption or use, in packages or parcels containing ten, twelve, fifty or one hundred cigarettes each, and shall securely affix to each of such packages or parcels a suitable stamp denoting the tax thereon and shall properly cancel the same prior to such sale or removal for consumption or use, under such regulations as the commissioner of internal revenue shall prescribe, and all cigarettes imported from a foreign country shall be packed, stamped and the stamps cancelled in like manner, in addition to the import stamp indicating inspection at the custom house before they are withdrawn.

Among those present were: A. Santacla, Jose Diaz, Mortimer Regensberg, Samuel I. Davis, M. W. Berriman and Kenneth McKay, all of Tampa, and T. G. Thompson, J. D. Connors and Asa Lemlein of Key West.

Chairman Underwood gave the manufacturers a careful hearing, and promised to take the bill under immediate consideration. Mr. Sparkman, the sponsor for the bill, is home on account of illness in his family.

Bannigan Cigar Store New Hartford Concern

LAST week there was opened, in Hartford, Conn., one of the most up-to-date retail stores in the State. That was the Bannigan store operated by T. J. Bannigan, executive sales manager of George L. Storm & Co., of New York, who was only recently promoted to that position from New England representative. The store is located at 436 Asylum street, opposite Bushnell Park.

The interior of the store is carried out in Crafts effect. One of the features is a large glass humidor, which occupies the west side of the main room. It has a capacity of 50,000 cigars. On the opening day each person making a 25-cent purchase was presented with an ash tray; to the amount of 50 cents, an imported tray; on a $1 purchase, a leather cigar case; to the amount of $2.50 a briar and amber pipe; on purchase of $5 a meerschaum pipe and to the amount of $10 a cigar chest.

The Bannigan Company is catering to all classes of trade. W. W. Foster, formerly of the Allyn House, of Hartford, has been employed as manager.

M. A. Gunst & Co. have purchased the "Diligencia" factory of Pedro Moreda, in Havana, Cuba. Mr. Gunst recently stated that the factory may be moved to Tampa where M. A. Gunst & Co. are now operating a plant, one of the oldest and most substantial in the city.

Chicago—The Great Central Market

Bad Weather, Freight Strikes and Slow Collections Affect Trade Unfavorably—J. & B. Moos Introduce New Cigar—New Downtown Hotel

BETWEEN bad weather, freight strikes and the slowest collections known in years, Chicago business has been in bad shape the past ten days. Everybody is complaining. Weather was such that the retailer had nothing much to do but keep the cobwebs brushed down from the front door—freight conditions tied shipments up so it was next to impossible to secure any merchandise within ten days of its arrival.

Outgoing consignments were equally as slow, and then to add the last straw, the jobber and manufacturer found that there was only a "trace" of money in the hands of the trade and collections received a severe jolt that brought them down for the "count of nine."

Yet, despite all these depressions and discouragements, Chicago cigar and tobacco men are inclined to look at prospects from the sunlight side, and there is every hope that better weather will soon cause the gloom of May to disappear in the brightness of June prosperity.

Clarence Hirschhorn Off for Europe.

Clarence Hirschhorn, of 174 North Michigan avenue, leaves for Europe, sailing tomorrow, June 1st, from New York City. His uncle, "Tom Moore," and son, "Little Tom," who helped plan this trip, will be looked after by Mr. Carl Sanders during his trip abroad. Mrs. Hirschhorn accompanies him. They will go direct to Berlin and visit gay Paree and all points of interest before returning.

Fred Streiblin, formerly with The United Cigar Manufacturers, and recently with Guedalia Company, of New York, succeeded "Billy" Maas, who resigned from Clarence Hirschhorn & Company to buy out Charlie Barker's—covering Bill's old South Side territory. Fred has a good start, as he inherited about $80,000 of business annually, having done missionary work on the "El Salero" for Best & Russell Company. He has quite an acquaintance in his new field.

Chas. E. Way, who has a cigar store at 1460 East Fifty-seventh street, where he caters to the students of the Chicago University, is secretary and treasurer of the Motor Sales Company, agents for the Flying Merkel Motor Cycle. Way makes his own brands of leaders, and pushes the "El Pendes," "La Soneda," "La Dulce" and "El Bertino." He also sells a lot of cigarettes.

The "Foneda" cigar, controlled by Best & Russell Company, which was formerly made for them by Gonzales, Mora & Company, is now being made by Phil Verplanck & Company, of Tampa, makers of the El Genio factory, in which Joe Diaz is interested.

The United Cigar Stores are featuring a new Manila 5-cent cigar called "La Constancia." I notice Franklin McVeagh & Company are jobbing a cigar made by E. M. Schwanz & Company, of New York, with same title but higher in price. "Who & Who," and "What's What."

Tom Duffley Curran has a very neat store at 1124 Bryn Mawr avenue, in which he has just put a new show window. He handles all the popular brands, but makes his leaders "El Tortan" and "La Soneda." In 5-cent goods, his standby is Curran's "Factory Smokers," made by Storm Fisher & Company, of New York. Tom wears a broad smile nowadays and his chest stands out like a poisoned pup when he says: "Wait until fall, when I change my sign to, — & Son."

Ernest Adams, manager of The Tom Jones Cigar Store, 162 W. Jackson Boulevard, has just put in the "Navarez" brand of Lozabo, Son & Co. He also makes his leaders the "Webster," "La Venga," "Wall's Court," and "La Soneda." Ernie has just changed his name to Ernest Ford Adams, the Ford having been added since he bought a new Ford runabout. He is getting all kinds of dope on motoring, and says he understands motoring is bad for the eyes, therefore, he has bought an extra pair of glasses, which will better enable him to see the bills for gasoline and other joy ride trimmings.

The Kiessling Cigar Co., who have three places in this city, are quite successful with their own brand, "The Vanderbilt Cup," which they job. This clear Havana, 10c. and two-for-a-quarter cigar, formerly made for them by Phil Verplanck & Co., is now being made by Guerra, Diaz & Co., of the LaMega, Tampa factory. George Kiessling formerly worked for the Colbert Cigar Co. selling the city trade.

William A. Howe, who was formerly secretary of the Cole Lithographing Co., manufacturers of cigar box labels and bands, is now located at 372 E. Colorado street, Pasadena, California. Any of the cigar boys when out that way are invited to drop in and see Bill.

Dick Wells, who keeps a joy place on Wabash avenue, near Monroe street, is featuring cigars more than ever. I notice his window has a full line of "La Soneda," "Sanchez & Haya," "El Rio Tan," and his private brand "Dick Wells." By the way, the famous race horse, "Dick Wells," was named after "Dick" by Rome Respass when "Dick" was head bartender at the Palmer House.

Fred Harris, who has charge of Best & Russell Co.'s Detroit store, has returned to Detroit after spending three weeks' vacation here. Fred Bauer, manager of the pipe department of Best & Russell Co., showed him Chicago.

"The Tobacco World"

There have been no further development in the bankruptcy cases of Charles H. Gore and Henry Wagner outside of the fact that the Central Trust Company have been appointed receivers for both petitioners. No date has been set, as yet, for a creditors' meeting.

The principles of reciprocity are taking hold here. Albert Breitung is featuring "Robert Burns" in his eleven loop stores while Best & Russell Co. have placed Breitung's pet brand, "La Venga," in their cases.

Heitel Bros. Contemplate Improvements.

If they can secure a lease extension, Heitel Bros., Randolph street and Fifth avenue, expect to make a number of improvements in their store. This firm also operates a factory on the north side, manufacturing one brand, Edward Gibbons, in two sizes, 10c and two-for-a-quarter.

Henry Kahn, well-known cigar man and for many years with Barley & Co., calling on saloon trade, has been compelled to go to a sanitarium. Mr. Kahn is said to be suffering from a nervous collapse. His many friends in the cigar trade are hoping for an early recovery.

W. E. Ward, 23 East Van Buren, successor to M. W. Duffley, is doing a nice, healthy business. He has just added a new 5-cent brand called "Ward 23." Cuban smokers made for him by Storm, Fisher & Co., New York.

The Fair have a new brand of cigars, in fourteen sizes, called "La Premura," made for them by Berriman Bros., Tampa.

In remitting for a year's subscription to THE TOBACCO WORLD, F. C. Bauer, manager of the pipe department for Best & Russell Co., said: "If future issues of your journal are as good as the one I last received, I will certainly enjoy reading them."

The Makaroff Cigarette Company, manufacturers of a Russian cigarette, with headquarters in Boston, have an attractive display in Jevne & Company's, Wabash avenue, near Monroe street. This company is packing coupons with their cigarettes, and for a given number are offering high-class initial stationery.

Fred Bauer, Jr., is selling Perry pipes to the city trade.

Walter Powers, formerly of Powers & Gilbert, together with his brother, Alderman Tom Powers, will open a buffet and cigar store next week at 162 W. Washington street. Tom Gilbert is still looking for a site.

The United Cigar Stores Company opened their store, southeast corner Clark and Randolph streets, Saturday, May 25th. This company has a number of new sites in view, but withhold the locations until leases are signed.

R. F. Peyton & Sons have moved their brokerage office to 508 Tacoma Building, where they will have more room to take care of their rapidly increasing trade.

Harvey Vreeland, of Surbrug & Co., left last week for Iowa where he will remain a couple of weeks.

Harry Jensen recently opened a cigar store in the Early Buffet, in LaSalle street. He was formerly clerk for John J. Dolan.

Francisco Bolano y Ca. have increased their space at 187 N. Clark street, and now have four large windows in which they attractively display their "Flor de Bolano" Havana cigars.

Aaron Straus, president of Celestino Vega & Co., recently announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Myrtle Straus, to Jonas L. Pfaelzer, of this city.

Phil Garber, a loop cigar dealer, has returned from a stay at French Lick Springs.

J. & B. Moos Offer New Brand.

The "La Contrivo," made by the American Cigar Manufacturers, is a new brand of cigars which J. & B. Moos are now endeavoring to popularize in this territory. The cigar is being advertised by electric signs and bill board locations have been leased all over the city.

The tobacco and cigarette department of J. & B. Moos a few days ago distributed the following circular, effective at once and for a limited time for delivery from our stock any of the following brands in 30-pound lots or over:

"American Navy," "Battle Ax," "Big Four," "Black Diamond," "Root Jack," "Brandywine," "Corker," "E. Rice," "Greenville," "Gilt Edge," "Gold Rope," "G. O. P.," "Jolly Tar," "Keystone," "Newboy," "Nobby Twist," "Old Kentucky," "Parrot," "Piper Heidsiek," "Scrapple," "Spear Head," "Square Deal," "Standard Navy," "Tenpenny," "Towntalk," "Whites Special," "Pigtail Twist," and providing retailers include with each 30-pound order box of either "Spear Head" or "Old Kentucky." The American Tobacco Co. will send retailer their check for 1c. per pound on "American Navy," "Battle Ax," "Square Deal" and "Towntalk" included in order 1½c. per pound on all other of the above brands of plugs and twists included in order, 2c. per dozen on "Scrapple."

Elliot G. Ahern, manager of the tobacco and cigarette department of J. & B. Moos, is again able to attend to his duties after an illness which detained him at his home nearly three months.

The Best & Russell Co. will open their inside stand in the new Otis Building next week. This company has abolished their Hamilton bond coupons in all their stores.

Herman Rieser, secretary and treasurer of J. & B. Moos, sailed from New York last Saturday for Mediterranean points accompanied by his wife and daughter.

The Steuben County Wine Company are offering a new brand called the "La Flora de Garcia & Vega," a clear Havana product. This cigar is being manufactured by the same firm who make the "General Shield" cigar for Chapin & Gore.

Speaking about jobbing houses opening branches—it looks as though the times demand same, so that deliveries may be made closer to the retailer, especially the smaller one. Not many years ago, houses like Best & Russell Company operated throughout the South, shipping direct to this city. Now they have established branches in Memphis, New Orleans and Nashville. In former years jobbers wanted the map to control brands—now it is the State in which they are located. In territories, which no longer are tributary to Chicago, houses are selected to cover the business locally, or branch houses are given the distribution. Another new way of shipping to small dealers is the drop shipment plan, which is used largely by the United Cigar Manufacturers, American Cigar Company, Sanchez & Haya, of Tampa.

This gives the dealer a direct shipment from factory, he is billed through his jobber, and insures him fresh goods, advertising matter and a better price. A good many factory salesmen claim it kills off the small manufacturer who caters direct to the retail trade, as it enables the dealer to buy at factory prices, and these drop shipments are always accompanied by a check so much per M. from the manufacturer, besides the lower price from the jobber.

John Morrison, manager for Ryan and Raphael, the Lucius jobbers, is pushing a 5-cent cigar made by L. Newburger & Company, of Cincinnati, called "Picadura Import." They have put on three additional men to sell this brand.

H. M. Schemerhorn, Inc., Give Up Store.

H. M. Schemerhorn, Inc., have discontinued their business at 33 West Monroe street, the building having changed hands, and that location in the future will be occupied by Berry's Candy Company.

Wm. Best, Jr., spent Saturday and Sunday, May 18th and 19th, in Detroit, looking over the Best & Russell Company branch and arranging with George Meigs, representative for Sanchez & Haya, in regards to the latter's goods.

Louis Lehnard, of 326 West Sixty-third street, who bought out J. C. Hackland, is building up a big trade since purchasing the place. Besides his billiard room, the cigar department has shown a marked increase. His leaders are: "La Soneda," "Bolano," "La Venga," "Optimo," "Robt. Burns," "Tom Moore"; and in 5-cent cigars, his leaders are: "El Pendes," "El O'Roy," "Josettas" and "Half Dimes."

M. Herschman, of Herschman Bros., cigar jobbers, was laid up at home with rheumatism recently. Herschman Bros. expect to take in a partner—a Mr. Isaacson.

Geo. L. Storm & Company, distributors for "Owls" and "Robert Burns," have opened a branch at 656 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y., under the charge of Henry Marks. They will also open a branch in Boston in June.

P. J. Bauer, 83 West Randolph street, was presented with a daughter last week. Pete's first offense. He has just placed a fine electric "El Roi Tan" sign over his door.

Wm. Best, Jr., of the Best & Russell Company, served on the jury the last two weeks of this month.

May Continue to Smoke on Surface Lines

An ordinance prohibiting smoking in the motorman's compartment of the pay-as-you-enter street car, was defeated last week by a large majority. The alderman who drafted the ordinance claimed that he had been requested to do so by a number of motormen who deemed the smoking in the front part of the car unsanitary and unhealthy, as the compartment is closed except when an occasional passenger leaves via the front door.

George Knight recently opened a stand in the Karpen Building, 900 South Michigan Boulevard.

Billy Munson, of Melachrinio & Company, whose headquarters are in this city, spent a few days here recently.

The Sieverts Cigar Stores Company have opened a store at Lake street and Fifth avenue, where they are featuring "Sievert's Sox's" and "Sievert's Cubs." This company has another stand at 245 South Market street, and, according to reports, will form a chain as fast as locations can be secured.

Weil & Wilkus, wholesalers of cigars, have taken larger quarters at their old address, 186 North LaSalle street.

Nathan Reiss, of Schroeder, Reiss & Company, has started on his regular Western trip, which will take him through to the Pacific Coast. He will possibly get back by June 15th.

Joseph B. Moos, of J. & B. Moos, has returned from a trip to the Panama Canal.

A new addition to the loop cigar stores is at 225 North Fifth avenue, owned by Adam J. Amberg, formerly a cigar salesman. Wm. Peterson, formerly with Col. M. W. Duffley, is chief clerk.

Garcia & Vega, cigar manufacturers, of Tampa, recently appointed Frank M. Lopez as their general representative in the Middle West, with headquarters in this city.

Propose New Downtown Hotel.

Immediately upon the announcement a new large hotel was about to be erected, the larger loop dealers began to make negotiations for the stand. In all probability the privilege will be let before ground is broken for the building. The hotel will be a fifteen-story fireproof building, to cost about one million dollars, and will be erected at the southeast corner of La Salle and Van Buren streets by the La Salle Terminal Syndicate, which only last week secured a long term lease of 100 by 101 feet of ground at that location. It will contain about 500 guest rooms, and is to be completed May 1st, 1913.

Charles R. Horrie, proprietor of the Randolph Market, has leased a new site 222-24 West Madison street for a term of years and will, in the future, handle cigars in both of his stores.

Among the out-of-town salesmen who called on the trade here the past two weeks are: A. H. Gregg, of S. W. Fabre, New York; George Krause, representing Roy Lopez & Co., Key West; Al. Korn, of S. H. Furgatch, New York; L. W. Bancroft, of American Tobacco Co.; Walter E. James, of Cuesta Rey & Co.; A. Oppenheimer, of A. Oppenheimer Co., New York; T. H. Coll, of H. C. Nolan Co.; F. J. Edgar J. Stachelberg Retires from Tampa Firm

Edgar J. Stachelberg has disposed of his interest in the firm of M. Stachelberg & Co., located at Tampa, which is a branch factory of the American Cigar Company.

The firm of M. Stachelberg & Co. was founded about forty years ago in New York City by Michael Stachelberg, and upon his death, fifteen years later, the business was carried on by his two sons, Charles G. and Edgar J. Stachelberg. Charles died within several years and Edgar was left in charge. The factory was moved to Tampa and was continued by him until two years ago at which time the American Cigar Company bought an interest with the understanding that Mr. Stachelberg was to remain as the active manager of the plant. This last sale will wipe out one of the pioneer clear Havana houses in the United States. Mr. Stachelberg states he will leave Tampa shortly to engage in the leaf tobacco business in Havana.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Conventions Benefit Business in Reading

READING, May 22.

TRADE conditions are slowly improving, although they leave much room for improvement. A number of the larger places around town are busy, several running with full forces on full time, yet others are doing virtually nothing.

The Penn Cigar Company is introducing a new cigar to the trade, the "Iron Prince," named after Bismarck, the German statesman.

The Flick Cigar Co., Ltd., is doing a good business on their brands. They are running a full force of hands and on full time. Another busy plant in town is that of the Porto Vana Cigar Company.

The conventions in Reading appear to have boosted the retail trade to a certain extent. This city has been the mecca this week of the "three links" fraternity, and it has been overrun with Odd Fellows. The Rebekah Assembly were also meeting here. They are the women's branch of the order.

Fred Becker and Archibald Keller, under the firm name of Becker & Keller, have opened a tobacco store and pool room in the P. O. S. of A. Hall at Bladen.

One of the busiest places in town is that of Charles Brenciser's Sons, Seventh and Penn streets. They have been pushing the "Chief Joseph" cigar, a nickel brand, by means of window displays and are having unusually good sales.

Yocum Bros. are kept busy on their orders. The demand through the Middle West and extreme West, where the Yocum brands are very well known, is on the increase.

The worst fire in the history of Nashville occurred last week when four buildings were destroyed and others damaged. The fire was first discovered in the factory building formerly used by H. F. Kohler, the cigar manufacturer now located in this city, but lately occupied by Wm. Shooks, who opened a cigar factory, employing twenty hands. Mr. Shooks lost between $700 and $800 on his stock and fixtures, he having leased the building from William Spenkle, whose loss is $10,000. The fire has been estimated to have caused damage amounting to over $12,000.

Lancaster Trade Slowly Improving

LANCASTER, May 24.

RETAILERS in the city report a gradual improvement in business as the weather moderates, but can handle a great deal more trade than is the case just at present.

The leaf dealers, while hopeful as to the future, are slightly reticent under the dullness among manufacturers. Lancaster buyers who have been in York County inspecting the crops, experienced no difficulty in securing tobacco, but many of them balked at the quality and purchased very little. Prices went as low as three cents in some instances.

Manufacturers are complaining about the stagnant condition of the industry and are fervently hoping for an improvement. In addition to the dullness they complain of collections and are wary about filling new orders, except to old and well-known customers. The concerns with a Middle West trade are busier than others.

Charles F. Shultz, who has been in the cigar and tobacco business for over twenty years, at 10 East Chestnut street, has sold his business to C. B. Goodman, who took possession immediately.

According to reports received at the meeting of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Society, the planting this year will be about two weeks later than in former seasons.

The disagreement between the United Cigar Manufacturers Company and their employes at the local plants has not as yet been settled. The employes recently drew up a petition with the object in view of settling the trouble. About 350 hands are affected.

Simon Shissler has taken on another salesman, E. Herr, who will work in the interests of the "Simon Pure" nickel cigar.

John Down, of Robert M. Granat & Co., leaf dealers, is now on a trip through the Middle West.

The Empress Cigar Company, of Kleinfeltersville, is again working after a shut down of several weeks.

The American Tobacco Company is waging a lively campaign on their "Tokio" cigarette, and retailers and jobbers report a brisk demand for this lately introduced product.

Some recent visitors to Lancaster were the following: William Lewis, of H. Duys & Co.; D. W. Mushnell, Scotten & Dillon Co.; C. E. Martinez, of E. A. Calves & Co.; F. M. Jacoby, of Meyer & Mendelsohn, Abraham Blum, of Jonas M. Rosenthal & Co.

Perceptible Improvement in York District

YORK, May 25.

THE cigar business has shown a decided improvement in this region within the past fortnight. Manufacturers state that orders are arriving more regularly than they were a short time ago and are looking forward to busier times. A number of York county factories which were on short time, have now full forces and are running full time. A recent trip through Dalls-town, Red Lion and Windsor gave signs of this improvement.

Preston A. Young, who was arrested a short time ago on a charge of swindling tobacco farmers by selling them stocks in an alleged "C. & H. Co-operative Cigar and Tobacco Co." of Allentown, was given a hearing before Magistrate Owen, of this city, who held the case under advisement. Most of the victims were on hand, and testified regarding their negotiations with Young. Young was held pending bail.

A more recent case of swindling in this vicinity was that of a man claiming to be R. I. Kemp, of Frederick, Md. He made large purchases of cigars from Henry F. Kohler and the C. H. Pitt Cigar Company. Kohler shipped the goods, but secured them through a replevin after they arrived at Frederick. The Pitt Company had not yet made the shipment when the deception was discovered. The man was later arrested in Washington by the Federal authorities. It appears that Kemp was not the swindler's name, he having assumed the name of Rhodes R. Kemp, a prominent citizen of Frederick.

W. E. Washbaugh, for the past eighteen years proprietor of the tobacco store in the Wernier Hotel, Waynesboro, Franklin County, has sold his business to W. H. Powell, of this city. Mr. Powell took possession last week.

Harry Petrow is constructing a residence and cigar store at 1031 North George street. The foundation is of concrete and is almost completed.

The factories of Mr. Raab and Park Shaw, at Dalls-town, are again running on full time, as is the factory of A. F. Fix & Co. J. C. Heckert & Co., of the same place are advertising for hands, which would seem to indicate an improvement in that section.

Fifteen new cigar factories were opened in this district during the past month, affording employment to about 100 hands. The plant of Emory A. Bollinger, McSherrystown, and the Shook Cigar Company, Nashville, York County, each employing twenty hands, were the largest opened during the month.

The D. & K. Cigar Company, recently organized in Dalls-town by Fred E. Druk and Harry E. Keener, are expecting to do business on a large scale in the near future. They are manufacturing only high-grade goods. A recent news item regarding Mr. Keener had his name as Keeser, which was an error.

One of the busy factories in Dalls-town is that of Eugene Gallagher & Bro. Company. This company was recently reorganized and are now very busy turning out their well-known line of stogies at the former Seachrist Building on West Maple street.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., May 27.

HENRY J. VALLOFT, vice-president and manager of the Independent Stores Company, leaves the city next week on his annual visit to the numerous factories in the North and East, with whom his company does business.

President H. W. Cobb, of the Hershheim Company, has returned after an absence of a month in Porto Rico in the interest of his factory.

The "Field Club" cigar, for which I. L. Lyons & Company are distributors, is steadily gaining favor with the trade. The out-of-town demand continues to increase for the brand.

J. Grossman Sons, who have been featuring the "Bull Durham" cigar, report business satisfactory on same.

Armand Quere, city salesman for the "Owl" and "General Arthur," says the approaching summer months has not affected the demand for his brands.

Valloft & Drexel have started another advertising campaign on the "Round-Up" cigar.

Juan Gonzales has disposed of his store at 140 Royal street to his brother, Jose Gonzales. The location is one of the best in the city, and the business receiving the personal attention of Jose Gonzales, who is a practical cigarmaker, having recently managed his brother's factory, will no doubt do a good business.

"Gollmer's Special," a small five-cent clear Havana cigar manufactured for C. J. Gollmer, 418 St. Charles street, is meeting with favor. They are manufactured by the Hershheim Company.

S. H. Marks, manager for U. Keon & Company, St. Charles and Canal streets, has quite a handsome window display this week of "Flor de Vega," "Webster," "Idols" and "La Giralda," a Philippine cigar.

Mr. Gibbs aims to have one of the best stores in Pittsburgh and with his wide acquaintance in that city and his experience, should make a pronounced success of his venture.

HAVANA, May 24th.

AS there have been almost general rains throughout the island of Cuba during the last eight days, we can now say that the rainy season has commenced for good, even if this does not exclude that there are a few places in the Vuelta Abajo particularly, which have not yet been blessed with sufficient showers. In the Partido region and the Santa Clara province there are enough escogidas going already, and the balance of them will be in working order during the month of June, so that henceforth the receipts of bales from the country will commence to grow rapidly. By the end of June Northern buyers ought to be able to find quite a selection of the new crop in our market, although for Vuelta Abajo it might be more prudent not to look for large receipts until the month of July eventually.

Some people here claim that, owing to the long continued drought, from the latter part of March up to this month, the quantity of the crop may be somewhat smaller, but even if this should be true there will be no scarcity of tobacco this year, as far as fillers are concerned, while wrappers of light, clean colors will undoubtedly be in small supply. Prices are bound to rule moderately, although heavy, quality styles may command relatively higher figures, as they will be missing to a large extent.

Our leaf market has been quiet, as with the exception of the demand, on the part of the exporters to Germany, which has continued strong for the light, new Remedios, there has been only very little business done for the American market, as well as by our local manufacturers. The Tampa manufactory, principally coming with the object to study our market situation. They complain that the zeal of the custom house authorities in the classification of tobacco is hurting their business materially, as the government is exacting full wrapper duties on styles, that formerly passed as fillers, or with only a small percentage of wrapper duty. It seems incomprehensible how the American government should injure the clear Havana cigar industry at the present time, when it had built up the same through a liberal construction of the existing laws. However, it is the opinion that policies are responsible for the present state of affairs, and that after the election has been decided the former harmonious relations will be re-established.

Sales from May 6th to May 18th total 3,108 bales, consisting detailed of: Vuelta Abajo, 636; Partido, 201, and Remedios, 2,271 bales. Buyers were: Americans, 773; exporters for Germany, 1,351, and our local manufacturers, 784 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco, from the port of Havana, during the same period, were:

|-----------------------------------|--------------------|
| To all ports of the United States | 5,832 bales |
| To Europe, Bremen and Hamburg | 1,121 |
| To South America | 663 |
| To Mexico | 50 |
| Total | 7,666 bales |

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country Were:

| | For two weeks ending May 18th, 1912. | Since January 1st, 1912. |
|--------------|---|-----------------------------|
| Vuelta Abajo | 1,464 bales | 7,252 bales |
| Semi Vuelta | 299 | 813 |
| Partido | 461 | 1,005 |
| Remedios | 2,698 | 11,316 |
| Mayari | 42 | 1,024 |
| Total | 4,967 bales | 21,410 bales |

According to "El Tabaco" the whole growth of the 1911 crop of the island of Cuba that arrived at Havana has been, from April 28, 1911, to April 1, 1912, as follows:

|--------------------|----------------------|
| From Vuelta Abajo | 135,630 bales |
| " Semi Vuelta | 12,322 |
| " Partido | 97,999 |
| " Matanzas | 52 |
| " Remedios | 105,474 |
| " Puerto Principe | 27 |
| " Santiago de Cuba | 1,601 |
| Total | 353,195 bales |

"El Tabaco" also publishes the following eleven-crop years thus:

|------|---------------|
| 1901 | 424,747 bales |
| 1902 | 370,955 |
| 1903 | 318,087 |
| 1905 | 464,757 |
| 1907 | 468,716 |
| 1909 | 503,282 |
| 1911 | 353,195 |

From the above figures it can be seen that the years 1908 and 1909 furnished the largest crops, while of Vuelta Abajo the two smallest crops grown were those of the years 1906 and 1911.

Cigars.

Our export statistics have not improved during the first half of this month, as shown by the following custom house returns, viz:

| From May 1st to May 15th 1911 | 6,651,797 cigars |
| From May 1st, 1912 to May 15th, 1912 | 6,013,360 |
| Decrease in 1912 | 638,437 |
| From January 1st, 1911, to May 15th, 1911 | 65,767,863 |

Our lesser exportations during the first half of May were to the following countries: Great Britain, 767,906; United States, 208,113; Chile, 123,641; Germany, 117,648, and to Peru, 95,000 cigars. To the following countries we exported more during the same period: France, 154,850; Austria, 125,700; Australia, 120,616; Panama, 120,000; Canada, 119,150, and Portugal, 38,650 cigars.

There is little to be said as regards business in our factories in general. There are some orders to be filled all the time and some new ones are coming forward, but the volume is more or less limited, and business must be termed a hand to mouth one, which for later on is bound to result in increased orders as a natural sequence of stocks being kept low.

The event of the past fortnight has been the sale of the well known "La Diligencia" factory, which was acquired by the strong house of M. A. Gunst & Co., of San Francisco, New York and Tampa, at a very moderate figure considering that this factory has a very large clientage in the Southern States of the American Union, besides enjoying a well-earned reputation in the East and West, as well as Canada, Great Britain, Germany, Belgium, the Canary Islands, South Africa, South America, Australia etc. Messrs. Herbert Preston and Henry Esberg completed the purchase upon their arrival here and left again for their homes as soon as their task was completed. Don José A. Lozano, who is the leaf buyer for M. A. Gunst & Co. for their famous Van Dyck Tampa factory, with offices and a leaf warehouse at San Miguel 58, took charge of the La Diligencia factory upon the 21st inst. and is working upon quite a large order file on hand. With the vast resources of M. A. Gunst & Co. a brilliant future might be predicted, without making any mistake, as regards this factory.

Don Bernardo Moreda confessed that only on account of being all alone, not enjoying good health, he accepted the offer below his expectations, and he intends to retire to Spain, with his family, during the coming month.

H. Upmann & Co. are working quite steadily in their H. Upmann factory.

Romeo y Julieta reports a normal business at this season of the year.

Partagas had a flying visit from their United States and Canadian representative, Robert E. Lane, the upshot being, that the retail price of 25 cents for Perfectos shall be strictly adhered to, and that Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. will not sell to any house that does not agree to uphold this price in future. Don Ramon Cifuentes, the senior partner, sailed for Spain with his family on the 19th inst. by the S. S. Kronprinzessin Cecilie for a well-earned vacation.

Don Ramon Fernandez (Chocolate), of the "La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia," is booked to sail by the S. S. Saratoga on the 26th inst. Don Felipe Rodriguez, of the Elite factory, is expected to return here before the end of this month.

Henry Clay & Boek & Co., Ltd., have nothing of any special interest to report, but state that they have no lack of orders.

Sol is doing a regular business with the United States and Canada, while for Europe Behrens & Co. have already quite a long list of orders on hand for new cigars.

Castañeda is way ahead of last year, and while business might be better just now, the owners, Cardenas & Co., are looking ahead for a splendid fall trade.

Eden is expecting its senior partner, Don Manuel Lopez, here this week. Don Calixto Lopez, the son of Don Manuel, reports a steady trade in consonance with the epoch of the year.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Don Antonio Quesada and Gonzales, a member of the great firm of Sobrinos de A. Gonzales, left on the 20th inst. by the S. S. Alfonso XII, with his family, for Spain. After thirty years of hard work here he retires from the firm, as an active partner, although he retains an interest as a silent partner, and will in future reside at Rivasdelle, Asturias.

Gutierrez & Diehl is a new firm at Estrella 53, being in reality successors to Miguel Gutierrez at the same address. The members are Miguel Gutierrez Jr. (or according to the Spanish custom, retaining both parents names, Miguel Gutierrez and Sanchez), and Hermann Diehl, the latter having been formerly in charge of Mr. Heinrich Neuberger's office here. They have the largest packing house in the town of Remedios, facing three streets, thus enabling them to receive bundles of tobacco from the country carts at three different doors simultaneously, which is certainly a great advantage. They will make their usual escogida of their farm "La Luz" in the "Las Vueltas" district, and which always has had a well-earned reputation.

Walter J. Kaffenburgh, junior partner of I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, of Boston and Havana, arrived here on the 15th inst. and left on the same evening by the night express train of the Cuba R. R. for Santa Clara, in order to inspect the purchases made already, as well as to supervise the various packings which this firm is always making for their extensive clientage that only uses the finest class of leaf.

Adolfo Moeller is credited with having purchased 850 bales of Remedios for Germany.

Planas & Co. disposed of 340 bales of leaf.

J. F. Berndes & Co. have purchased 575 bales for export to Germany.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales were sellers of 250 bales of Remedios and Partido.

L. W. Scott, after having bought some 300 bales of old Vuelta Abajo and Remedios in town here, went to Manicaragua to inspect the packing of his farm there.

Menendez & Co. closed some 212 bales of their fine new Remedios packings.

Leslie Pantin executed cable orders for his customers to the extent of 250 bales.

Herrera, Calmet & Co. turned over 184 bales of new Remedios.

Hija de José Gener acquired some 200 bales of new Vuelta Abajo.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons sold 145 bales of new Remedios from their escogidas.

Behrens & Co. were buyers of 150 bales of leaf.

M. Abella & Co. disposed of 109 bales of new leaf.

Emilio Pons is credited with having purchased 100 bales of tobacco.

José C. Puente reports sales of only 105 bales during the past fortnight.

Allones, Ltd., bought 100 bales of new leaf for their factory.

Camejo & La Paz were sellers of 103 bales of new Vuelta Abajo.

Don Antonio Galzada has returned from his trip to the Santa Clara province, but finding the asking prices of the vegeros too steep, he concluded to quietly wait, as with the immense crop of tobacco this year he is sure that he can buy to better advantage later on.

Fortunately the strike of the stevedores and lightermen has been settled, but there is some question pending still between the firemen and seamen, which, however, is of no great importance, as there are enough non-union workers to be had.

The crazy movement of the colored people to try and raise a revolt, because a few of the leaders have not obtained offices, seems in reality not to deserve much attention, as it would have the overwhelming mass of the white people opposed to it, all the political parties having buried the hatchet for the time being, besides the sensible colored element has not joined at all.

The principal shippers above 200 bales from the port of Havana during the last two weeks were: Sylvester & Stern, 1,449; Diego Montero, 585; Leslie Pantin, 564; J. F. Berndes & Co., 451; Adolfo Moeller, 428; J. Bernheim & Sons, 360; Böning & Co., 349; H. Upmann & Co., 239; M. Suarez, 235, and Menendez & Co., 214 bales.

Drought Affects Philippine Tobacco Crop

The market for the principal Philippine staples, rice, hemp, sugar and tobacco, may be affected by a report by the Governor of the Philippine Islands to the effect that due to an almost continuous eight months' drought there will be a shortage in all of these products. It is stated that the tobacco crop will show a shortage of from 15 to 20 per cent.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

New York City Shows Nothing Startling---New Pennsylvania Crop Fairly Well Cleaned Up--- Wisconsin Tobacco Being Taken At Lower Prices

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY.

The local leaf market, while having a certain amount of business, is doing nothing startling. The leaf convention created a little stir, but naturally had slight effect on business.

Trading has been going along in a general, monotonous fashion, with all dealers doing a little business and causing stocks to gradually dwindle.

The binders are still extremely scarce and the stock of the good, available portion of the domestic wrapper leaf, both primed and shade-grown, is being thinned out, too.

Sumatra is selling well, and from all appearances seems to give satisfaction. The trade in Havana leaf has changed little in the past fortnight.

Notwithstanding the high price of the new Sumatra there has been considerable activity in that line of goods. The manufacturers are all high in praise of the leaf and are investing more each week. Cuban leaf is quiet and steady.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA.

THE conditions in the leaf district at this writing are quiet. The inquiry for leaf tobacco is good, but the high prices asked seem to be having a tendency to restrict extensive buying. One leaf dealer ventured the opinion that if the 1912 tobacco crops were as large as those of 1911, prices were bound to drop considerably, which in turn would give the manufacturer a better opportunity to realize on his investment, and would allow him to pass some of the benefit on to the consumer.

The demand for Connecticut was better and a number of large sales were reported. Samples of the new Sumatra came up to expectations and quite a little buying was done in it.

LANCASTER.

Buying of what remains unsold of the 1911 crop has been proceeding slowly, but at this writing very little appears to be in the hands of the growers. One prominent leaf man stated recently that from what he had seen on a trip through the county he could safely state that the new crop is virtually cleaned up.

The local dealers are becoming a little dissatisfied under present conditions, for they have had a pretty quiet time of it this spring. Those dealers who are holding 1910, and who also have some 1909 on hand, in addition to the 1911, are beginning to feel that it is high time for a boom in the tobacco industry.

An improvement cannot arrive too soon to suit them. Usually at this time of year the different branches of the tobacco business are on the jump and dealers are hoping this will soon arrive to relieve them of their large stocks on hand.

Yet with all the prevailing dullness, an optimistic spirit pervades the leaf district, and leaf men figure out that if they do not catch the business now, it will come before very long. They know they will get it, so they are worrying little about when the boom arrives.

YORK.

The majority of the growers in this section have disposed of their tobacco and are now turning their attention to preparing the fields for the new crop. Although the season will be somewhat later than usual, conditions are gradually improving as the weather becomes warmer.

There are still a number of York County growers who have not yet sold their 1911 tobacco, and the feeling seems to be general in this region that it will be a "white elephant" on their hands. Many of them sold their crops at from one-half to two cents a pound and few got over three cents. Buyers are still in the field here, but they are not purchasing in any large quantities. The tobacco can be bought at almost any price and farmers are regretting that they did not take the prices offered them earlier in the season.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI.

Reports from all sections seem to indicate a fine prospect for a Burley crop. The usual spring months have been unknown and the late frosts have not as yet occurred. The weather has been warm, making the plants grow rapidly. The plowing has been slightly hindered owing to rains, but as much of the land is not level this work is further advanced than at other points. With the production of another large crop the farmers are fearing that prices will decline to a ruinous point, but this is a rather early date to worry on that score.

There have been very few sales of tobacco in the country, shipments consisting principally of stock bought some time ago and held by dealers who have put same in keeping condition.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON.

The 1911 crop is being absorbed very slowly, and it is estimated that the balance is a very small portion of the whole crop. The prices have been low, for much of the tobacco was taken on an export or stemming basis. This has been coming in at the receiving points pretty freely within the last two weeks.

The majority of the warehouses have closed down, but there is some work still in sight for others.

The market for old goods is unusually dull, buying being on a small scale. H. T. Sweeney recently secured about 25,000 pounds of the new crop, to be shipped out of the State unassorted.

The wet spell of the last two weeks has at last produced the necessary casing conditions and enabled the belated tobacco growers to take down and strip the last of their hanging tobacco. It has happened very rarely in the history of this State that the farmers who missed the first casing spell in fall, have been compelled to wait until May to remove their crop from the sheds.

The farmers have learned a lesson and will in the future take down the crop from the curing sheds at the first casing spell after the tobacco is thoroughly cured out. They have also learned that leaf which has hung in the sheds through a cold, hard winter and the drying spring winds is not only considerably broken, but much of the life and elasticity of the leaf is gone. And the finish never comes back after it is packed into cases and passed through the sweat. The deterioration has been so marked this year that but few deliveries of the late hanging crops have been accepted at the contract prices. The artificial means used by some growers, steaming or sprinkling, has in some instances almost ruined the tobacco.

Although the weather until very recently has been cool, the plant beds are reported coming along very satisfactorily. The young plants have grown nicely and continued warm weather is now needed to bring them to the transplanting period.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD.

These are busy days for the tobacco farmers and all agree that the season is from a week to ten days late. The weather has in a large measure tended to retard the growth of tobacco plants, and consequently transplanting is somewhat later than usual.

It is a question whether the acreage of tobacco harvested by the priming method will be greatly increased this year. Some of the growers that talked favorably, early in the season, of picking this year, have changed their minds owing to the increased cost of lumber and other materials. There is also a doubt in the minds of some of the growers as to whether at the prices paid last year there is enough profit in picking the leaves from the stalk.

Some of the growers near Poquonock, complain that the condition of the young plants in that section is worse than at the same period in forty years, which they attribute to the unseasonable weather.

The farmers who have been clamoring for warmer weather seem to have had their wish granted at last and the work of transplanting is well along.

Charles Soby, secretary and treasurer of the Connecticut Tobacco Corporation, which has large plantations in Rainbow, Tariffville and East Hartford, reports that their work is well advanced considering the weather. Quite a bit of transplanting is being done at this writing.

The corporation has over 660 acres under cultivation. At Tariffville, 300 acres of tobacco will be raised; 250 at Rainbow and 110 at East Hartford, all under cover. It has been estimated that about 2,000,000 yards of cloth will be needed to cover this area.

KENTUCKY.

LOUISVILLE.

In most localities tobacco plants are sufficiently advanced for transplanting and the farmers have been busy preparing the ground. Some transplanting has already been done, but the work is not general.

All farm work has been greatly delayed on account of the frequent rains, and the proportion of tobacco put in the field in May is much smaller than in other years. The Hopkinsville district is probably further ahead in this respect than any other region.

Night Riders Scrape Beds

Night riders resumed operations in Lyon County, Ky., several weeks ago when they scraped fifteen tobacco beds belonging to tenants on the large farm of Colonel James F. Ramey. The outbreak has caused a great deal of excitement. Colonel Ramey's farm lies near Paducah, Ky.

Leaf News of Interest

Seventh Amsterdam Inscription

AT the seventh Sumatra inscription, held in Amsterdam on May 24th, American buyers were in the majority. Sharp competition was the rule and the tobacco was generally of the high quality shown at previous sales.

American concerns purchased over 3,000 bales, the following being some of the larger buyers, with the amounts purchased:

Cincinnati Warehouse Co. Reducing Capital

The retirement by the Cincinnati Tobacco Warehouse Company of $100,000 of its outstanding capital reducing it to $1,200,000, has materially strengthened the position of that company. A Western man recently stated the company is following the policy of buying in its own stock at $50 a share whenever offered and canceling it. In this way it has reduced its capital from $1,600,000 or $400,000, through investment of its surplus. As the stock pays 4 per cent, through this retirement operation the company has also reduced the dividend requirement from $64,000 to $48,000 a year, or $16,000. The resumption of activity on the "breaks" since the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company has stimulated business, the report of the company for the first quarter of this year showing net profits of $37,000.

Storm Ruins Connecticut Tobacco Plants

Farmers throughout Connecticut sustained considerable loss by reason of a wind and electrical storm which swept that part of New England last Friday. Through Enfield, Thompsonville and Suffield much damage was done to tobacco by hail, especially in Suffield where 300 acres were cut to pieces. Fortunately it is not too late in the season to reset more tobacco plants and raise other tobacco.

L. Gershel & Bro. Dissolve

L. Gershel & Bro., of 191 Pearl street, New York City, was dissolved by mutual consent of Leopold Gershel and Maurice L. Gershel, the two members of the firm. Leopold Gershel had been in the leaf tobacco business for over fifty years. Maurice L. Gershel, his son, is to remain in the business.

According to reports at New Orleans, La., leaf tobacco amounting to 6,467,442 pounds, valued at $837,899, was exported from that city during the month of April, being an increase of 2,500,154 pounds over the month of April, 1911.

The tobacco warehouse of Bud. Bushart, at Ronton, Tenn., was destroyed by fire on May 14. The loss is estimated at $20,000, covered by insurance to the extent of $3,000. The fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin.

What the Boston Tobacco Men are Doing

Trade in Hub City Improving with Coming of Better Weather—
Several Concerns Incorporate—S. S. Pierce Co. Advertising Imported Cigars at Reduced Prices

Boston, May 24.

The cigar and tobacco business in Boston and vicinity is improving, and as summer is coming on, it will boom right along. The opening of the summer resorts, beach houses and parks will take place on Decoration Day. The large manufacturers of cigars are doing a thriving business. Orders are coming in regularly.

Frank Crosby has purchased the cigar store of W. W. Adams at Los Angeles, Cal.

John J. O'Flaherty has opened a drug store at the corner of Dwight and Walnut streets, Holyoke.

The American Tobacco Company has advanced the "Three Feathers" tobacco seventy cents per gross.

P. Lorillard & Co. have withdrawn the drop-shipment of plug tobacco during the week ending May 20, 1912.

E. F. Geppert is the sole agent in Boston and vicinity for the "Tuxedo," "Patterson H.," and "Patterson Leaf."

At the Boston Cigar Factory, on Blackstone street, business is good. They manufacture the "Londres Perfecto Ponies."

The "Egyptienne Straights" have been advanced twenty-five cents. This cigarette is very popular and one of the best sellers here.

One of the very attractive show windows in town is that of Dickey & Hodgden, showing a window of "Bank Note" nickel cigars in pyramid form; and they look very attractive.

The Delavina Cigar Company, Portland, has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000. Henry N. Taylor is president; Grace E. Urbano, treasurer, and Maurice E. Rosen, clerk; all of Portland.

Last week the S. S. Pierce Co. advertised 1,150,000 imported cigars at reduced prices, causing considerable surprise among the smokers of imported cigars. Price lists will be sent by them on application.

McGreenery & Manning, of Fulton street, have removed all of their offices down stairs, which can accommodate twelve to fifteen desks. They state business is very good, but the rainy weather is detrimental to the trade.

Louis Jeselsohn, of 128 North street, wholesale dealer in cigars, tobacco and pipes, says that business is improving every day. He has a large trade with seafaring men, they generally stocking up here before going on a voyage.

G. W. Thompson, the wide-awake and jolly veteran salesman representing the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, was a busy man last week, taking orders from a great many retailers in Boston and various parties out of town.

Louis Paster, 15 Dock square, Boston, manufactures the "Paster Smoker," a very popular cigar. His box trade in Havana and domestic cigars is good and improving every day. He has a very large trade in the provinces and Northern Maine.

River James Drug Company, Boston, filed incorporation papers May 2, 1912. Capital, $10,000; 200 shares $50 each. The directors are: Chas. Leibel, president; Martin M. Leibel, 49 West Cedar street, Boston, treasurer, and Eugene Levitan.

Ben Straus, of Rey, Straus & Co., was in Boston during the week past calling on his old customers in the retail trade. He is well satisfied with the way things are looking in the business, and says that Boston is doing as well if not better than other cities.

The "Georgian," Boston's latest hotel, carries a full line of domestic and Havanas up to one dollar each. They handle a very popular brand of clear Havana cigars. The "Girard," made by Antonio Roig & Langsdorf, of Philadelphia, is meeting with a healthy demand.

William N. McGreenery, of 2 South Market street, corner of Merchants row, says that general business is good. He has a very fine window display, as have Thomas H. Moffatt, 141 Hanover street; Samuel Banard, 121 Hanover street, and John F. Callahan, Federal street.

Tracy Bros. have been awarded the contract for the alterations to the first and second floors of the block at the corner of West Main street and Exchange place, Waterbury, Conn., which is being remodeled for the United Cigar Stores. New plate glass fronts will be put in, tile floors laid, and heating and plumbing installed.

Frank W. Morris, general manager of the cigar department at the American House, Hanover street, Boston, Mass., says that business is very good. Sales on cigars by the box are increasing, especially on the "Blackstones" and "Panateles," a local brand. Easterbrook & Eaton's "Marguerites" are having the call, his window display being one of the best in the city.

Abe Shadoff, the Boston representative of Rosenthal Bros & Bendetson, 122 North street, who represent the "La Famosa" and "Lord McCauley" cigars, reports that the sale of these cigars is increasing steadily. Abe is going to sign up with a Chelsea girl for life, and will call on his Philadelphia friends a little later on. The ceremony will take place June 17 in Boston, Mass.

Recent Consular Reports ENGLAND.

A GAIN in 1911 as in 1910, the position of the tobacco trade in the United Kingdom was exceedingly unsatisfactory. In 1910 the number of manufacturers' licenses issued was 383, as compared with 407 the previous year. In 1911 there was a further falling off of 10, making a total number of licenses issued of 364, so that within the last two years 43 tobacco factories have been closed in the United Kingdom. The tobacco trade section of the London Chamber of Commerce presented a memorial, which bore the signatures of many thousands of licensed members of the trade, to the Government, petitioning for a modification of the duties on tobacco. The high cost of all descriptions of leaf tobacco in 1911 was also an adverse influence in the trade. Prices have been steadily advancing for some time past in consequence of an increased consumption that has not been fully met by an increased production.

In a review of the tobacco trade in 1911 the chairman of the tobacco trade section of the London Chamber of Commerce stated in part:

The position was considerably aggravated last year, owing to the disastrous results of the severe drought, which seems to have been prevalent not only in the United States but in every tobacco-growing country of the world, the effect of which not only curtailed the quantity produced, but in many instances affected the quality as well. Nyasaland tobacco is steadily growing in favor with British manufacturers. Last season's import showed considerable improvement both in quality and in the important matter of packing and handling. The tobacco produced in this part of the world has great merits and competes more favorably with the best growers of Virginia and Kentucky than any leaf hitherto imported from British possessions or elsewhere.

British Colonial Supplies.

According to the Colonial Office returns, Canada produces annually about 10,000,000 pounds of tobacco, while in 1910 5,500,000 pounds were produced in the Transvaal. The Cape Province is estimated to produce, in addition to small crops of Virginian and Turkish tobacco, about 1,000,000 pounds of "Boer tobacco," while Southern Rhodesia in the present year is expected to produce about 500,000 pounds. In 1910 Nyasaland exported about 1,700,000 pounds, and in 1909 the quantity for Australia is given as 1,400,000 pounds.

The total quantity of unmanufactured tobacco imported into the United Kingdom last year was 118,870,060 pounds, valued at $10,565,427, compared with 111,257,544 pounds, valued at $16,719,311 for 1910. The entries for home consumption were 33,409,545 pounds against 40,333,739 for 1910. The total imports from the United States were: Stemmed, 33,546,812 pounds, value $6,227,490, compared with 27,475,502 pounds, value $4,578,072 in 1910; unstemmed, 70,782,570 pounds, value $9,486,511, against 71,475,847 pounds, value $8,817,645, in 1910. The total quantity of tobacco exported from the United Kingdom last year was 15,532,678 pounds, valued at $10,473,263, and snuff offals 8,985,095 pounds, valued at $95,047.

PANAMA.

The La Perla Cigar Co. (Ltd.) expects to move into its new factory, now in course of construction, by June 1, 1912. This factory is built of concrete and will be the finest cigarmaking plant on the Isthmus. The general manager of this company, Charles Klinkert, is an American, as are a number of the stockholders. At present the cigars of this company are all hand-made, but as the demand for its product is steadily increasing, it will soon be compelled to install cigarmaking machinery. American manufacturers of such machinery are advised to get in touch with this company.

CHINA.

The use of cigarettes in China is increasing rapidly among the natives, according to a late consular report, and it is possible that if the same methods were used to introduce chewing gum it would have a similar success. The British-American Tobacco Company entered this field several years ago. With headquarters in Shanghai, it has established large houses in each of the treaty ports, from which travelling men are sent through the cities and towns of the interior placarding the walls with huge illustrated posters printed in Chinese. These salesmen distribute sample packages of cigarettes on the streets, giving away many thousands with some native merchants to carry a stock of their goods. By these effective and energetic methods they have built up an enormous traffic, which is steadily growing.

are "satisfied customer" makers. They are repeat sales cigarettes. They have a quality not easily forgotten.

Years ago they won a reputation as the College Cigarette, and many of the men who made that name for them on the campus are still smoking them.

Make Fatimas your leader. Go into partnership with them for satisfied customers.

The package purposefully has been made inexpensive, so that the cigarettes might be given that "extra" quality.

Questions—and the Answer

Are you, Mr. Jobber, distributing a nickel cigar that you know, beyond a question of doubt, is the best quality and workmanship that can be produced to retail for 5 cents?

Are you concentrating your valuable time and energy on a fast repeating proposition?

Have you the brand that is leading all nickel sellers in your territory?

The Bold is the answer to all these questions. Distribute the best, concentrate your time, centre your energy on the Bold. Your reward will be the leading nickel cigar in your territory. It will make or sustain your reputation as a dispenser of Quality Cigars.

THE MEN BEHIND THE NEW COMPANY

THE Baum-Jaffe Company, which has just been organized in Philadelphia, is to be directed by business experts who have years of successful experience to their credit.

THE MANUFACTURER

THE manufacturing will be under the supervision of Isaac Jaffe, known from coast to coast as the best manufacturer of high-grade goods in America. For the past twelve years he was manufacturer with a large concern, which was recently bought out by another company. Mr. Jaffe is best known as an expert in broadleaf wrapped Havana cigars and as manufacturer for the Baum-Jaffe Co. he will have better opportunity than ever before for producing high-grade cigars.

THE OTHER OFFICERS

NATHAN BAUM, the president, and Isidore Baum, the secretary and treasurer, are widely known as progressive business men, their house of Adam Baum & Sons, Philadelphia, having had a successful career of over fifty years. B. H. Steifel, the sales agent has long been identified with the cigar interests throughout the country. His long experience and the facilities which the Baum-Jaffe Co. will provide will aid him to promote the most effective distribution, a feature of the business in which he is well qualified. Mr. Steifel will personally visit the trade in carrying out his selling-campaigns.

THE POLICY OF THE BAUM-JAFFE COMPANY

THE new concern will be a strictly hand-made "Uniform quality" house. The brands to be marketed will be superior in every way right at the start. The quality will never deteriorate as the new company will never resort to the frequently employed and much-to-be-deplored custom of cutting down quality as sales increase. The policy of the Baum-Jaffe Co. will be: The Greater the Sale, the Better the Quality. They will deal in high-grade, hand-made cigars, made in up-to-date and marketable sizes. The Philadelphia factory will be at 115 and 117 North Third Street, and other factories will be maintained in the same district. The new company begins business under the best auspices, with encouragement from the largest concerns in the United States.

The cigars will be very choice grades of hand-made broadleaf-wrapped Havana goods.

THE Coiner is a hand-made, long filler, Havana blended cigar of a quality that gives it pre-eminence over any five-cent cigar on the market. All of the brands will be attractively packed under original designs that will give them identity.

Receiver For Valloft & Dreux and Their Chain of Stores

Well-Known New Orleans Jobbers and Retailers
Become Involved—Friends Express Regret

NEW ORLEANS, June 11th.

IN the petition of Augustus Craft and the Ruy Lopez Company, of Key West, made to the Civil District Court yesterday Judge Skinner appointed Thomas G. Thompson receiver for the tobacco firm of Valloft & Dreux Company, Limited, fixing his bond at $10,000.

The petition recites that the Valloft & Dreux Company are indebted to the above parties in the sums of $39,000 and $19,000, that the board of directors of the company by resolution have declared that they can not meet their obligations and that the appointment of a receiver is necessary.

Just after the filing of the above petition L. E. Valloft, president of the Valloft & Dreux Company, applied for the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of the Independent Cigar Stores Company, Limited, as also for judgment against that company for $1,500 with interest. By resolution, the board of directors of the independent company have stated that the corporation is unable to meet its obligations.

Mr. Thompson was also appointed receiver of the latter company, the bond being fixed at $10,000.

The Independent Store Company control leases in the principal part of the retail section of the city and operated twelve stores. Both of the above firms did a large business, Valloft & Dreux being one of the largest and best known cigar distributors in this State. Individual members of the companies were very popular. Much regret was expressed in tobacco circles at the trouble into which these companies have become involved.

Tampa Factories Forced to Close

TAMPA, June 11.

TAMPA presents the unusual condition this week of an entirely suspended cigar manufacturing industry, and not due to labor troubles. Rainfall, which is unprecedented in duration, if not in volume, has put the tobacco in all the factories in unworkable condition, and, one by one, the houses have been forced to shut down and await the return of dry weather. Rain began falling last Thursday, and since that time there has been an entire absence of the genial sunshine which is characteristic of Florida at all seasons.

At this writing there is not a factory in operation in the entire city, and the probability is that not one cigar will be made in Tampa this week. That this will have a very perceptible effect not only on local business, but also on the records of the city for the month and year may be readily understood. The Weather Bureau says today that the rainfall will continue about thirty-six hours longer. It is due to unusually low pressure on the middle gulf, and such continuous precipitation has been known in Tampa but once before—in 1902.

Tampa Manufacturers Sign Agreement; Elect Inspectors

They Will Have Power to Call Upon Employers and Settle Any Disputed Points

TAMPA, June 12.

FOLLOWING a meeting of the Tampa cigar manufacturers on Saturday, June 1, another was held on June 8, at which the inspectors provided for in the agreement of June 1 were elected. They are: Antonio Fernandez, a former manufacturer, and Jose Caras, a practical cigarmaker, who is not a member of any organization of workmen. Both are experienced men and it is believed that they will discharge the duties of their positions with satisfaction to all concerned.

Several weeks ago a joint meeting of the cigar manufacturing firms, the Citizens' Association of Tampa and the Board of Trade was held for the purpose of making some arrangement for an enforcement of the equalization agreement of 1910. Complaints were numerous regarding the old agreement and the Citizens' Association and the Board of Trade took the initiative in calling a meeting for the purpose of effecting a more definite understanding. One proposed form was drawn up, but this was not satisfactory, as it was regarded as a partial affair, favoring the union idea, and a meeting of all the manufacturers was then called to discuss the question. This meeting was held Saturday, June 1, and resulted in the adoption of an agreement, in effect, as follows:

The appointment by the manufacturers of two inspectors, one to be a person not engaged or interested in the manufacture of cigars, but thoroughly conversant with the business, the other a cigarmaker not affiliated with or a member of any union or labor organization. These inspectors are to visit the factories of the city, not less than once every thirty days, for the purpose of inspecting the sizes, shapes and prices of the cigars manufactured, and to determine whether or not the agreement of equalization of 1910 is being carried out and adhered to. If the inspectors find that cigars are being made which are not scheduled, listed or provided for in the 1910 agreement, it will be the duty of the inspectors to fix a price for such size. In the event the regular inspectors fail to agree upon any matter, they are to call upon the Board of Governors of the Board of Trade of Tampa to appoint a special inspector to settle the point in dispute. The inspectors shall have the power to call upon any manufacturer found not to be living up to the agreement to reimburse employees or workmen to the full extent of the difference between the price paid and the price fixed by the agreement of 1910.

The agreement and the work of the inspectors should do much toward preventing labor troubles, because the cigarmakers will have always a "court of appeal."

Eighth Amsterdam Inscription

Prices were extremely high at the eighth Sumatra inscription, held in Amsterdam on June 7. The leaf was of a uniformly good quality. American concerns purchased about 2700 bales of the tobacco.

Among the larger buyers were: H. Duys & Co., 1000 bales; E. Rosenwald & Bro., 800; A. Cohn & Co., 371; Deisel-Wemmer Co., 311; Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., 179; S. Rossin & Sons, 65.

How I Would Run a Retail Cigar Business

Written For The Tobacco World by "A Mere Smoker"

I HAVE been a user of tobacco for ten years and do not claim to be an expert judge of the finest grades of goods, but I will endeavor in this article to give a smoker's opinion of how I would go about establishing the ideal tobacco and cigar store. This plan, if strictly adhered to, I firmly believe would establish my store on a paying basis in a comparatively short space of time.

In the first place (granted the fact that sufficient capital is at hand for putting the venture through) I would, as nearly as possible, secure the ideal location, in a fairly large town. It would also be a good idea to watch, for a time, the methods of men who have been successful in the retail sale of tobacco. I would see what class of customers they catered to and then dope out my idea on what I should do. It would also be well to watch the number of people who would pass in a certain time the locations I had in mind, before selecting mine.

It has been said that men smoke more heavily in summer than in winter. We instinctively seek the shady side of the street in summer. So a store on the shady side of the street would be a good plan as it would materially help to secure the heavier summer trade. Certainly it would be hard to secure a location combining all the mentioned advantages, but a little forethought and brain effort will accomplish marvels in bringing most of them in the range of the possible. All these matters, small though they seem, are really very important in the long run to the future of a successful business.

Next I would do a little "ciphering" on what my monthly expense account would be in the location selected. I would take into consideration rent, lighting, salaries of help, etc., and find out definitely how much business I had to do to cover my expenses and also make a reasonable profit.

Let us say I am now well located in the business part of town. The stand has been fitted out neatly, but not necessarily expensively, using, say, a wood trimming finished and stained in a mission effect, which gives an odd yet rich appearance. The display windows could be finished in a lighter hard-wood to produce an attractive contrast. Now, a few words about this window. I will plain its style to attract the attention of the passerby. The side glass can be placed at such an angle that people turning a corner a square away will be confronted by my sign, which can be attractively lettered thereon. It will immediately "hit them in the eye" without even the necessity of turning the head. Then when they come up to my store they will turn and see what such an attention-compelling window contains of interest to a "smoke-hunter." I will take up the matter of window display later.

In selecting my original stock I would sell the brands that had "made good." By this I mean those that were the best sellers by virtue not only of judicious advertising, but those that had the inherent good qualities to back up the advertising. I would carefully watch the tastes of my various customers and not hesitate to order, even if only in small quantity at first, a certain brand which had been called for, as one good customer will often influence many others to use his favorites.

Now, I have my own idea on what constitutes the ideal smoking mixture and I would have such a mixture made up under my own brand and personal supervision and push it for all it was worth, selling it at as low a profit as possible. Thus I could establish a reputation, the glory of which would soon be reflected in rapidly increasing sales of my other goods. If my mixture did not happen to satisfy the palate of a certain particular smoker I would modify it for him, even if it put me to some little trouble. For it is on such principles as these that the most successful businesses are founded.

In selecting a stock of pipes, I would carry all grades, of course, but would make a point of not carrying much "junk." It cheapens a store and the percentage of profit, besides, is too small. I would push the sale of the better grades of pipes, not only because there is more profit in their sale, but because there is more enjoyment to the smoker in their use.

In point, I would here give an experience of my own. I well remember the first good pipe I ever purchased. I had owned and discarded many before this, as the men who sold me pipes usually knew even less than I about real enjoyment in pipe-smoking. A friend of mine "put me wise" to a tobacconist who catered to pipe-smoking cranks and I went to his store—a veritable smoker's Paradise. That man sold me a pipe which was far better than any I had ever used. He also gave me a few valuable pointers about the care of a pipe which I would impart to my customers, as they are not common knowledge. I never knew real pipe enjoyment until he showed me the way. I think this little story makes my idea plain—that for real pipe-smoking one must have a real pipe—and they do not sell at 25c, either.

I would also carry only a very carefully selected assortment of the best brands of cigarettes, as there are only small profits in their sale also. Not every one will agree with me on this.

My main effort would be in my line of cigars. There would be no "ropes" in my stock, even in the cheaper grades. When I see some of the very cheap cigars that are sold and smoked, I confess I feel ashamed of some of my fellow-smokers who put quantity before quality, though I really think the majority of smokers are beginning to know a really good smoke when they strike one. Those are the men I would go after and I would go after them hard, giving the very best brand I could secure for their money.

Most important of all in the establishing and holding of my trade, I would insist on courtesy and consideration on the part of my clerks to all my patrons, from the man who bought a five-cent bag of tobacco to the man who regularly purchased the very best cigars by the box.

In waiting upon customers I would try in a diplomatic way to educate their taste in what constitutes a good cigar, cigarette or tobacco. I could easily learn in time to differentiate between the man I could teach to use good tobacco and the one who "wants what he wants when he wants it" and thus not "get in wrong" with any of them. This can be done in such a way that no offence can be taken—just show him that you have discovered a good thing and want to put him next.

Such conveniences as a 'phone, some comfortable lounging and smoking chairs, a city directory and a few good sporting periodicals would be appreciated by all of my customers and I would see that they were embodied in the regular features of my place.

I would have my lighter arranged conveniently so any passerby could stop in and use it, for the chances are that the next time that passerby enters the store he will be a customer.

And now another important item—window display and advertising cards. I would utilize all my spare moments to evolving ideas for these cards and displays. I do not claim to be connoisseur on art or the harmony of colors, but I feel sure I could point out glaring errors in the arrangement of 75 per cent. of the displays I could pick out in a short walk in the business section of any large city.

These displays should be changed continually. How many windows we see that have the same stereotyped arrangement often fly-specked and garnished with dead flies of a previous summer! They give an infallible index of how live the man inside is! The display would not necessarily be expensive or large and crowded, as all their effect would thus be lost. Some neat and out-of-the-ordinary always attracts most attention. Window cards could also be lettered

French Supervision of Tobacco Industry

THE French Government keeps a pretty close watch on the tobacco industry as a foreign periodical notes in a recent issue. In the French Ministry of Finance there is a class of officials whose activity is little known to the outer world. These men are the official tobacco testers, and they pass judgment on every kind of tobacco manufactured in France.

They consist of a chairman and five assistants, and from morning to evening they have nothing to do but smoke cigars, cigarettes and pipes, in order to arrive at an estimate of the different kinds of tobacco submitted to them.

It is not only the products of home industry that come before them for judgment, but the cigars and cigarettes that are sold in France have also to make their appeal to the decision of their palate, and the pleasantest part of the day's work comes when it falls to their lot to test the high price Havana cigars sold by the State.

The officials who undertake this difficult and responsible duty are ex-inspectors of tobacco manufactories, who have passed a certain number of years in the State's service and have given proof of their capability for this peculiar kind of work. Their by no means light duty consists in smoking from 9 in the morning to 5 in the evening, and very often it is by no means the best kinds of tobacco with which they have to deal. The injurious influence of this tobacco debauch, which produces great dryness of the mouth and throat, and might easily lead to nicotine poisoning, they endeavor to combat by drinking great quantities of black coffee, which acts as an antidote to the effects of the nicotine imbibed. And it is only black coffee that renders it possible for them to distinguish between and estimate the value of the various kinds of strong tobacco.

The successful merchants of today place their faith in honest, common sense, persistent publicity. They know that advertising is simply news—news of merchandise, and prices, and store service, and so on. And the advertiser who gives the people the news they want to read has the only sort of power over pocketbooks that is fundamentally sound.

in spare time. I would utilize the baseball fan's love of the great game to have him buy my goods and also appeal to the football "bug" and the theatregoer. As a prominent advertising man said recently: "Don't overlook that sympathy thing in advertising, for it's one of the best assets the ad writer has." So why not put it to use—for the window display is the best medium a retail tobacco merchant has.

Regarding lighting, cleanliness and the arrangement of my stock I would accomplish the very best possible. The effect of a bright attractive store on the patron is too well-known to require much attention here.

I would carefully watch my record of sales and expenses and keep continual tabs on all my profits, so I would know whether my business was on the boom or needed added ginger for an uplift. I believe more businesses fail because the manager knows too little about figuring profits than for any other reason.

As I stated at the beginning, I am but a humble smoker—one who, I fear, is looked down upon by retailers as a harmless lunatic, and inconsistent crank, to be humored at all times, yet I feel sure that there are many essential truths in these statements, and if the opportunity presented I would stake a great deal that my theories would work out to a successful conclusion.

"Physiology of the Pipe"

MWATTVILLE, the well-known French scientist and amateur collector of pipes, who possesses the finest existing collection of pipes of all nations, publishes the following curious set of reflections, which he calls "The Physiology of the Pipe":

First—While the cigar and cigarette are cosmopolitan, the pipe is characteristic of a race.

Second—The activity of a race is in proportion to the length of the stem of the pipe.

Third—The shorter the pipe the more laborious the nation.

Fourth—Inversely the longer the pipe the lazier the race.

Fifth—The more frugal the nation the smaller the pipe it affects.

Sixth—On the other hand a large pipebowl is a sign of a wasteful and sensual nation.

Seventh—The mind of a race may be deduced exactly from its way of smoking.

Eighth—Tell me what you smoke and I will tell you what you are.

"Blushing Bride" was Society Man

George L. Storm, treasurer of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company together with Frank Patterson, prominent New York lawyer and counsel for the company, played a practical joke on a Connecticut Justice of the Peace recently. The Justice had expressed an aversion to marrying anybody at any time and while at supper the J. P. was hurriedly called by Mr. Storm, who with tears in his voice pleaded with the Justice to overlook custom and marry his friend Patterson, who had just eloped with a society belle of Gotham.

When the Justice stopped at Mr. Storm's house and found the participants had failed to secure a license he rose in arms and flatly refused to perform the ceremony. Then the "blushing bride" removed a wig and disclosed the person of Colby N. Chester, Jr., a prominent New York society man.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

Warm Weather Advertising

MUCH can be learned of the science of advertising for the average merchant, by studying the methods of the great department stores. These emporiums have been built up to their present prominent position in the business world solely by advertising, and they pay high salaries for the best brains in the advertising business. Their conclusions, as may be seen in the methods actually employed, represent the results of exhaustive experiments in the art of selling goods through newspaper space, and no one can deny the fact that they get results.

One of the significant features of this publicity is that they spend so much money through the summer in advertising. One reason for this policy is the conclusion that a steady trade is the best, and even though prices are slashed widely in that time it is economical in the long run. Where advertising is allowed to drop, or to be cut down, trade drops, too. As a result the force of clerks is not profitably employed and a loss, or either a large decrease in revenue follows.

A merchant in advertising now days, aims above all things to impress upon the public that he has enterprise and intelligence. And if he spends a great deal of money on publishing that fact, and then cuts down on his appropriation, so that his name appears in the advertising column only at intermittent periods, the impression of previous advertising is largely effaced.

The public must consume your goods in summer just as well as in winter and it is up to the progressive merchant to get on his toes and take that trade. You will find many competitors who are slackening up in the race and becoming listless at this period so get busy and secure that business Mr. Cigar Store Man.

Pointers For the Clerks

The bigger a man grows the smaller a dollar looks to him.

The world hasn't much use for a man who puts himself to little use.

In order to be a success in business it is first necessary to be a success as a man.

Many a man has been patted on the back so much that it has stunted his growth.

Don't wait for the time to come when you need friends to make them. Make them now and let them use you first.

The man who asks for a raise in salary on the strength of what he is going to do for the concern is trying to sell a pig in a poke.

The man who thinks that he knows it all stands very little chance beside the man who wants to know it all.

You may be right in thinking that you know more about the business than the boss does, but be careful about how you assert the fact.

The Policy of Courtesy

THE student of modern business methods often pauses and wonders whether in the hurry and scurrying after profits and large dividends we are not losing sight of the fact that we are forgetting how to be courteous in our relations with our business associates. Between the systemitizing and the rush for increased trade, he argues, we are becoming boors.

While the argument just given may possibly be too far-fetched there is a tendency abroad which undoubtedly works toward that end. A public service corporation in this city recently ordered its employees not to say "please" to their patrons on the ground that much valuable time was lost each day in the use of this pleasing little word. They also requested their patrons not to say "please" to the employees.

A prominent magazine writer wrote a short time ago of a well-known American in the courtyard of a Swiss hotel commenting on the charming courtesy which pervaded the place, and saying that he would give $10,000 if that courtesy could become the habit in his home office and salesrooms. He added that his foremen were much more inclined to swear than say "good morning." It is just barely possible that those particular employees might usually be in better humors if they were not compelled to produce certain results and had little time for the niceties of business.

The courtesy which at one time used to be shown in some stores is, alas, a thing of the past. Then one felt almost like an honored guest when he made his purchase. That in too many places has been succeeded by a smirk politeness which almost changes to open scorn if the customer happens to have simple tastes and does not care to invest largely. The clerk who tries that method on anyone with the least sense of perception will never see that customer again.

A "Bold" Salesman

THE above caption can be applied in its best sense to a description of G. McConnell Palmer, the star local salesman for Bobrow Bros. When Mr. Palmer took up the exploitation of the "Bold" cigars two years ago, Philadelphia dealers were just beginning to recognize the merits of this smoke. Mr. Palmer, knowing the intrinsic value of the cigar started out on a "Bold" campaign among his old friends in the northwestern and northeastern sections of the city and today he has more than 800 retail stores, all of them live ones, pushing the "Bolds" across the counter. Mr. Palmer is an optimist as to the future of this cigar. His optimism is based not on fancy but on the volume of his repeat orders. That is the test of a "Bold" salesman.

Herbert Solomon, who formerly traveled for J. Bamberger & Company, is now working the Nevada territory for Ehrman Bros. & Company, of San Francisco, who have taken over the Bamberger business.

George Cacematis, who has been covering the San Francisco district for the "Nestor" cigarette, is now campaigning on that popular product in Los Angeles and adjoining territory.

Harold Flammer, representative for Benson & Hedges, of New York, has been working the Coast States in the interest of his firm.

Hank Gleason, an old-time and popular traveling cigar man, is now manager of Emil Griefen's Randolph street cigar store in Chicago.

Al Meyer, formerly city salesman for Shepard & Strassheim, of Chicago, is now connected with Ruhstrat, Crowley & Company in the same capacity.

John A. Lapkan, the genial salesman of A. B. Smith & Company, of Boston, has been working the cities of Middle New England on "3-20-8" cigars with splendid results. Joseph McDowell is a recent addition to the Smith selling force and is doing good work.

Gilbert Smith, the well-known Y. Pendas & Alvarez salesman, is covering the Middle West pushing his firm's lines.

Joseph Carrigan, the popular New England representative for Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, of the Quaker City, recently returned to his headquarters in Boston after an extensive campaign through his district on the "Wm. Penn" and "Royal Lancer" cigars. Mr. Carrigan will next tackle Vermont and impress on the dealers in that section the merits of his goods.

Wm. Brinkman, who is traveling for the Minneapolis Drug Company, recently covered the Cincinnati trade, where he called upon the Geo. Voige Cigar Company. Mr. Brinkman has a brother who is also a knight of the grip for a plug tobacco concern.

Charles J. Castillo, sales manager of the large Tampa firm of P. San Martin & Leon, has been covering the Eastern cities looking after the interests of the Martin & Leon brands.

One of the best known and popular New York salesmen is Charles Bernhardt, who is now covering the New England States for Schinasi Bros., pushing "Egyptian Prettiest," "Superfine" and "Natural" cigarettes. His traveling experience dates from 1906, and since that time he has been connected with the American Tobacco Company and Butler & Company, Inc., assisting the latter concern to popularize "Pall Mall" cigarettes.

M. Landau, the Canadian representative for Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., left a short time ago for a trip through Europe.

L. G. Atkinson, representative for the "Melachrino" cigarette in the Middle West, with headquarters in St. Louis, has severed his connection with his firm, his resignation taking effect June 1.

G. L. Marion, the popular representative of Antonio Roig & Langsdorf, of Philadelphia, is now covering the Pacific Coast States, where he reports smokers are beginning to realize the merits of his products, particularly the "Girard" cigar, which is more than coming up to expectations.

Horace Gladstone, the hustling Bondy & Lederer representative on the Coast, after an extensive campaign in Southern California, is now covering Portland, Ore., and adjacent districts, where he is working shoulder to shoulder with Rosenfeld & Smith, of Portland. He expects to arrive in the Golden Gate City in several months, at which time he will wage a campaign on the "Watt" cigar.

J. J. French Opening Factory in Tampa

Former Manager of Havana-American Company Has Leased a Building—Fixtures Being Installed

TAMPA, June 12.

J. J. French, former manager for the Havana-American Company here, who recently resigned with the intention of locating elsewhere, has decided to engage in cigar manufacturing in Tampa and has leased a factory building at Fourteenth street and Twelfth avenue, which is being rapidly fitted up for factory purposes.

Mr. French has already had installed the fixtures and furniture, but declines, as yet, to make public the names of his associates in the new concern. He has gone so far, however, as to order labels, which are now on the way.

WHILE strolling along one of the prominent streets near the center of the town several days ago I suddenly decided that a smoke would taste mighty good. I came to a place where a sign, "Cigars," attracted my attention, and I lifted the latch and entered.

It was a very warm day and I left the door open and waited for a clerk to wait upon me. Presently the owner, a man of possibly sixty years, entered, and before asking what I wanted, softly slipped behind me and carefully closed the door. After he had waited upon me I asked him how he found conditions in the trade. "Rotten," he replied, and went off in a tirade on modern business methods and the present condition of the tobacco trade. "Surely," I thought, while strolling back to the office, "that man is far luckier than he deserves to be."

Upon inquiring I had discovered that this man, the founder of the firm, doing business for over fifty years in a good location within eight squares of City Hall, on a prominent street, had never advertised. He had his cigars placed in a number of neighboring cities and sold only his brands in his retail store.

His store was dusty, unattractive looking. I found the door closed on one of the warmest days of spring, and one small weather-worn sign and a pile of dirty cigar boxes in the windows was all that showed to the passerby the kind of business being carried on.

This cigar manufacturer during his career had seen firms springing up and branching out into prominent, progressive concerns, doing an enormous country-wide trade. He had seen them use modern, legitimate, aggressive publicity methods, and refused to recognize the signs of the times. Is it at all strange then that in the year of our Lord, 1912, he stands and rails at the condition of the trade? Verily, verily, a man who is blind as all that gets all that is coming to him!

A California story about Mark Twain in the days when he was not overburdened with profitable employment has it that a woman of his acquaintance met him one day on the sidewalk with a cigar box under his arm.

"Mr. Clemens," she said, knowing he was an unusually heavy smoker, "whenever I see you, you're carrying a cigar box. Aren't you smoking too much?"

"It isn't that," replied Clemens, "I'm moving again."

Not so very long ago a drummer alighted from a small town in Northern Pennsylvania, and started down the main, and apparently the only street in the place.

He looked up and down the street, then hailed Lee Bung, who was going past with a bundle of soiled wash, with, "Say, John, how much of a place is this?" "Stleet ca' ev'ly forty minute," replied the Chinaman.

When I bought four cigars in a retail store the other day, I pushed them across the counter for the salesman to put in a paper bag, not having my cigar case with me. He said, "do you want to carry these cigars with you all afternoon?" and receiving my affirmative nod he proceeded to explain, "If I were you, I would not put them in a bag. They would keep better if you would stand them erect in your coat pocket."

"Why?" I queried.

"Well, the nearer you can keep these cigars to your body, the better they will keep, since the heat and moisture from your body acts as a humidifier and prevents them from becoming dry and brittle. This is especially true in the summer time. If it were cold and wintry I would recommend your putting them in a bag, but during these hot days, you will find that they keep much better by being kept as close to your body as possible."

"All right, old Scout," I said as I put the cigars in and tested his new theory. He was right. I had learned something, which I gladly pass on to other retailers who can impart it to their customers and at the same time save the cost of buying bags.

Not very long ago a New York man puts it, J. Pierpont Morgan was feeling uneasy about his health, and upon going to his physician was ordered to quit smoking cigars. Several days later his secretary, upon entering his private office, was surprised to see the noted financier and art connoisseur blandly puffing away on a pretty "hefty" looking cigar and blowing out thick clouds of smoke.

"Why," exclaimed the secretary. "I thought—I thought the doctor said—"

"I'm not using tobacco," exclaimed Morgan, testily. "This is merely a cigar that Tom Ryan gave me."

While not vouching for the truth of the following story overheard recently which caused me to raise my eyebrows slightly, I pass it on as a fairly good one:

The elevator conductor of a tall office building, noticing that the colored janitor had ridden up with him several times that morning, remarked:

"Sam, this is the fifth time I have taken you up, but you have not come down with me."

"Well, you see," Sam replied, "Ah been washin' windows on de 'leventh flaw, and every now and agin Ah misses mah hold and falls out."

The analogy between the oft-quoted saying that the "Stars of Empires move westward in their course" and the more modern interpretation that "Stars of Industry are moving in the same direction" is shown by the latest reports on the tobacco industry of Michigan. Statistics, compiled by 1909 census, and just made public, present a forcible illustration of the remarkable growth of Michigan, and more particularly Detroit, as a tobacco manufacturing center. Three-fourths of the total product of the State is manufactured in Detroit, which is literally the working hive of the State's industry.

The total value of the products, which includes cigars, cigarettes, chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff, increased from $9,245,000 in 1899 to $11,864,000 in 1904, and to $16,179,000 in 1909, making a gain of $6,934,000, or 75 per cent. for the decade.

Of the 729 establishments reported in that State, all but 14 are engaged in the manufacture of cigars and cigarettes, but the value of their output formed only three-fifths of the total shown by the entire industry. This indicates that the tobacco-manufacturing industry, including chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff, has reached tremendous proportions considering the comparatively small number of factories.

The statistical development of Detroit is especially interesting. Although the number of factories increased only six from 1899 to 1909, the value of the products in that time grew from $6,536,000 to $12,773,000, representing also an increase in capitalization from $1,930,000 to $5,486,000. During that time the number of persons engaged in the industry grew from 4,037 to 6,544. These figures confirm the general tendency of the industry everywhere, that the larger factories are growing larger and the small ones are becoming smaller and gradually passing out of existence.

When it is considered that these tremendous gains represent only an increase of six factories in ten years, the significance of this concentration of the industry is quite evident.

The increased importance of Detroit as a cigar manufacturing center is being recognized everywhere, especially in the Middle West, where Detroit-made cigars have found a growing market. At its present rate of progress Detroit is becoming eligible to a prominent place in the list made illustrious by the fame of Tampa, Key West, Havana, Philadelphia and New York.

Greetings to the new Tampa of the West!

"Suppose you owned a department store in New York or Chicago, with annual sales of from twenty to thirty millions. For years your expenditure in the metropolitan dailies in advertising your store, your name, your brand had amounted to perhaps $250,000 annually. This being your store, your tradition and your investment in good-will, would you not carefully scrutinize a line of merchandise that some one attempted to force you to carry by exploiting it in the national magazines?"

The above query has been raised by one of the great national weekly magazines in discussing the attempt of certain manufacturers to force the retail trade to handle their goods. It is quite pertinent to the cigar and tobacco trade, and emphasizes the truism that national advertising without national distribution is money wasted.

Manufacturers who have attempted to force the retail and wholesale trade to handle their goods without first enlisting their co-operation, and taking the dealers into their confidence, have run against the snags of faulty distribution, repeatedly and have found their thousands and thousands of dollars sinking into the bottomless pit of wasted effort.

After all, any selling plan, however brilliant, is fundamentally weak if it overlooks that strategic link between the factory and the consumer, the retailer, and no manufacturer ever attained permanent success who ignored this important factor. This truth is beginning to dawn on many of the so-called advertising experts who have at last learned that it is impossible to force any cigar, cigarette or smoking tobacco down the throats of the retailer simply because it is advertised. As the result of seeing the retailer's position in its newest and truest light the advertising experts have been forced to recognize the importance of trade journals in any selling campaign.

The trade journal, if it be worth anything at all, provides the vital connecting link between the manufacturer and the dealer. By constantly keeping before the dealer through trade papers and enlisting his good-will through personal solicitation and trade-paper advertising, the national advertiser creates for himself that feeling of interest and co-operation which is sure to keep open the channel of distribution.

A big national advertiser who has always used trade papers hit the nail squarely on the head when he said:

"Trade papers are undoubtedly the cheapest and most authoritative means of getting at the right class of retailers. We believe in them as a means of reaching the people we are aiming at, namely, the progressive and intelligent merchants. They are the men who take trade journals and recognize more and more every day that nationally advertised products are almost self-selling over the counter. We do not regret a single dollar we have ever spent in trade-paper space. It has repaid us indirectly many fold by preceding the salesman and making additional national distribution easier for them."

A. T. Co. Declares Quarterly Dividend

Former Subsidiary Companies Also Vote Earnings to Stockholders

THE American Tobacco Company declared the regular dividend of 1½ per cent. on its preferred stock on June 5th. No action was taken on the matter of declaring an extra dividend, which had been rumored. The company holds $16,000,000 stocks of other companies which it must dispose of within three years. One plan of disposition is that the securities be sold, but how the proceeds are to be divided remains undecided.

Three of the new companies formed out of the old tobacco combination also declared initial dividends on their common stock. The George W. Helme Company and the Weyman-Bruton Company, both engaged in the snuff trade, declared their first common stock dividends of 2½ per cent. quarterly each. This is in addition to the regular dividends they have been paying of 1¼ per cent. each on the preferred stock, which were also declared June 5th. The dividends are payable on July 1 to stock of record June 15.

The P. Lorillard Company declared similar dividends.

To Manufacture "Melachrinos" in South Africa

M. Melachrino & Company gave out a report from their New York office last week that they intended to open a cigarette factory in South Africa, which would be located at Cape Town, and probably start operations August 1.

Mr. Melachrino stated that owing to the demand for their cigarettes in that country it had been considered advisable to establish a factory there to care for that trade alone. All other points are to be cared for from the main factory in Cairo, Egypt. The employes for the new plant will probably be secured in this country.

Tampa Co-operative Co. Move New York Office

DURING the past fortnight the New York headquarters of the Tampa Co-operative Cigar Company, which have been heretofore on Duane street, have been removed to more commodious offices at 136 Water street. D. Gonzales, the treasurer of the company, reports that the sales on their "Quevedos" are growing with a steadiness which is gratifying in the extreme.

This company adopted originally as their motto "Quality," and they have staked their entire future on the production of goods which were just a little above the highest standard of clear Havana goods. The result has been that each sample order of "Quevedos" has meant duplicate sales and a permanent new account for their books.

"Clix" a New Duke Cigarette Product

THE W. Duke, Sons & Co., branch of Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., are now busily engaged in marketing a new brand of popular priced oval cigarette, which they have named "Clix." These goods are blended of Turkish and American tobacco and packed in boxes of 10's, 100's and 500's, and are offered to the trade at $3.90 per thousand, subject to the usual cash discount. The "Clix" cigarette will be packed with coupons, which are redeemable in either one of the company's decorated satin ribbons or a half cent in cash, or in the premiums which the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. are offering their customers.

Considering the tremendous competition at the present moment in the making of 5 cent oval cigarettes, it is almost needless to say that the quality of "Clix" is worthy of attention.

Diehl's Havana Tobacco Cable Code

The office of the "Tobacco World" has been favored with a copy of one of the most useful publications which we have ever seen, Diehl's Havana Tobacco Cable Code. This Code book is the result of several years' work of Herman Diehl of Havana, who is a member of the firm of Gutierrez & Diehl, 53 Estrella, Havana, and there is not a phase of the tobacco industry, leaf or cigar, which is not carefully and intelligently covered for use with code words, and for use in sending cablegrams not only to Cuba but all over the world.

We feel confident, that if merchants were acquainted with the extraordinary scope of this book of over 200 pages, that its adoption and use would be universal throughout the industries.

Merchants who are interested at all, can inspect a copy of the work at the office of the "Tobacco World," or by addressing the compiler direct from Havana or A. B. Bornholdt, 142 Maiden Lane, New York.

Making a Hit with the "Marconi" Cigar

D. M. Frank & Co. report a strong demand on their "Marconi" cigar, which they have pushed lately on account of the Titanic disaster. Orders are coming in from all sections of the country, keeping the factory working full time.

M. Winkelstein, the leaf tobacco dealer of Syracuse, New York, has just taken more commodious quarters in that city, and is now located at number 230 E. Water street.

New Ruy Suarez Product of Merit

VINCENT M. PLANCO, of Ruy Suarez & Co., the New York clear Havana manufacturer, sailed for Cuba on Saturday, June 9th, on his regular purchasing trip, which he makes annually. Mr. Planco will be gone about a month, and is prepared to buy more heavily of leaf than on any previous trip he has made.

Ruy Suarez & Co. have just been awarded a patent on a new form of packing their El Planco clear Havana goods, which they have named "Nested Triangulars." The cigars for this particular brand, are made in triangular form, and are packed in 5's, 10's and 50's. The 5's and 10's are put up in a very unique imitation cedar carton, and the goods rest completely and neatly in triangular cardboard holders.

The top of the box, as shown, displays a miniature representation of the well known Planco label, done in brown and gold, and the whole packing is as unique and inviting a one as you have seen for a long time.

Boxes of 5's are offered to the trade, so that they can retail them for 65c., and the 10's are priced so that they can be retailed for $1.35.

Making It Hard for the Smoker

The non-smokers in many of our cities certainly are trying hard to make it unpleasant for the poor, harmless puffer of tobacco. The ladies, usually society women, are now waging crusades, so-called anti-street car smoking campaigns particularly. They speak of the "ashes from cigars blowing in people's eyes," etc., etc.

In commenting on these puritanical efforts a contemporary recently stated that he humbly wished to suggest to these women patriots to first banish long hat pins, hobble skirts and cheap perfumery. Possibly if they did that it would leave their husbands enough money from their pay so they could buy decent cigars, the kind that hold their ashes, instead of the "two-for" which many of them are obliged to buy now.

And if a lighted cigar in close proximity on a crowded street car is unpleasant to non-smokers in the rear seats, it is not dangerous, which is more than can be said regarding the long hat pin which many a poor unfortunate has been obliged to carefully watch and dodge at times while riding on a crowded public vehicle.

The Tin Decorating Company has taken over the tin department of the American Tobacco Company in Baltimore, Md. The former a subsidiary of the tobacco company is capitalized at $2,000,000. The plant employs about 1000 persons.

President A. D. Bendheim of the Metropolitan Tobacco Co. when interviewed by a WORLD man stated that the withdrawal of the Liggett & Myers account was yet in an unsettled condition, and that his company were unprepared to make any definite statement, in the matter just at this moment.

Their plans for the future will be more definitely formulated within the next ten days, and they will then be in shape to make a statement to the trade.

Copenhagen Snuff

Attention is directed to the initial announcement on page 5 of the Weyman-Bruton Co.'s Copenhagen snuff. This concern, since their severance from the A. T. Co. have specialized in the snuff business to a marked degree, and their progress in the short time of their individual existence has been most noteworthy.

Knowing better than the consumers themselves, the care which must be exercised in properly manufacturing and merchandizing of such a perishable article as snuff, the Weyman-Bruton Co., have thrown every precaution possible around the distribution of their goods, so that the consumer might receive his box of snuff, in the freshest possible condition.

This company were among the first to plainly stamp on each box, the date on which the goods were packed, and they have always urged jobbers and distributors to keep their stocks, down to a minimum so that the consumers would be able to get the benefit of fresh goods in every instance.

Copenhagen snuff is guaranteed to be absolutely pure, made from specially selected rich leaf tobacco by an exclusive process, which retain all the good of the leaf and expels all the acid qualities. The company invite inquiries from any and all dealers, who have had difficulty in obtaining a satisfactory supply of Copenhagen chewing snuff.

Henry Deisel, of Deisel-Wemmer Co., Weds

Henry Deisel, of the well-known cigar firm of Deisel-Wemmer, of Lima, Ohio, was married to Miss Gladys E. Alderman, of Marietta, that State, on June 3rd. Mr. Deisel has entered the wedded state with the heartiest congratulations of his friends.

Speed Goodloe Again in Wholesale Field

Former Member of Dusel, Goodloe & Co., Opening Jobbing House At 1203 Cuthbert St., On July 1st.

SPEED GOODLOE, who recently retired from the firm of Dusel, Goodloe & Co., on N. 7th street, is now making arrangements to open a new jobbing house at 1203 Cuthbert street, which building was, until lately, occupied by the Brown-Bucher Company, cigarette manufacturers. The last named concern will be remembered as starting business at the above address last fall and going exclusively in the manufacturing of cigarettes. It is said they dropped $17,000 in the venture and the final closing out of the business took place several weeks ago, at which time they disposed of an expensive cigarette making machine.

Mr. Goodloe stated to a TOBACCO WORLD representative several days ago that he will handle a full line of domestic and imported cigars. His domestic brands will be his own, manufactured by independent concerns. He will carry a complete line of imported goods, including those of Henry Clay and Bock & Co. He has not completed his final plans as yet, not having decided on the personnel of his sales force, but he stated that he will be ready for business on July 1st. On the 25th of this month, he will issue a circular to the trade, announcing his policy and brands.

The building Mr. Goodloe will occupy, at 1203 Cuthbert, is an almost new two-story and basement affair and is admirably suited for a wholesaler of tobacco and its branches. The alterations, which are now under way will include the installation of a large humidor, the length of the first floor, with a capacity of over one million cigars. The location is also a central one, which is an added advantage.

Mr. Goodloe will enter the wholesale field anew with a vim, and his friends are all wishing him a pronounced success at his new location.

Terry & Hogan Take Over Fischler Stand

THE change in ownership of the cigar stand in the Real Estate Trust Co. Building, until recently conducted by Herman Fischler, who died a short time ago, went formally into effect on last Monday.

The stand will be run by Charles Ferry, formerly with the Sulzberger-Oppenheimer Company, and Miss A. M. Hogan, who was employed in the packing department of the same concern. Both have had a practical experience in the manufacturing of cigars which should be of great benefit to them. They will do business under the firm name of Terry & Hogan.

Baum-Jaffe Co. Open Philadelphia Factory

A crew of workmen have been busily engaged for the past two weeks getting the new Philadelphia factory of the Baum-Jaffe Co., at 115-17 North Third street ready for occupancy. On the floors that have been already renovated cigarmakers have been set to work and this force will be increased as soon as alterations are completed.

Following the announcement of this firm in the last issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD, numerous inquiries have been received from live jobbers and retailers who have been anxious to make connections with this enterprising firm. The demand for their 10c. cigars "A. J. Cassatt" and "El Jaffe" has been phenomenal, while their nickel cigar, the "Coiner" is making friends wherever introduced.

Isidore Baum, secretary and treasurer, states he expects to have 100 hands soon at work in the Philadelphia factory, which, together with the production from their Souderton factory, will bring the capacity up to a point where they will be able to take care promptly of all of their orders.

Park & Tilford to Have Ritz-Carlton Privileges

It is reported that the cigar stand privileges of the new Ritz-Carlton Hotel, Broad and Walnut streets, Philadelphia, have been leased by Park & Tilford of New York. This hotel, which is now nearing completion, will take its place alongside the Bellevue-Stratford as a high-class hostelry. The cigar stand privileges should be quite valuable.

Wm. H. Rhoads Purchases Another Stand

Kline & Co., retailers of Broad and Ridge avenue, have disposed of their cigar store to William H. Rhoads, 1433½ Filbert street, who will take charge of the new location after extensive alterations have been made. The Kline location is an old one and was known years ago as the Silver Dollar store.

D. B. Mayer, a prominent Ocean City wholesaler, is much elated over his prospects on the "Bold" cigar. He took on this popular Philadelphia product recently, and had a number of calls for the brand before he was able to supply the demand.

David Kaufman, of Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice, New York lithographers, called on the Philadelphia cigar manufacturers during the past week after which he left for Lancaster. Mr. Kaufman reports that the month of May was the biggest in the history of his firm.

Quaker City Briefs

Samuel Jacobs, of Hilbronner & Jacobs, has returned from a brief though successful tour of the South and Southwest.

Dusel, Goodloe & Co. report an increased demand on Porto Rican cigars. Mr. Cole, of their salesforce, has been working the local field on their Porto Rican brands.

Louis Klein, of the Louis Klein Cigar Co., Cleveland, O., stopped off in Philadelphia last week to visit some of his friends in the trade. He was a welcome visitor at the factory of Antonio Roig and Langsdorf whose lines he represents in Cleveland.

At the new drug store just opened at 8th and Arch streets, Philadelphia, by the Central Drug Company, a full line of the popular brands of cigars is carried, including "Roigs," "Cincos," "Havana Ribbons," "Marcellos" and other well-known brands. The store is in charge of Mr. J. Shenkin, M. D.

Sig. C. Mayer & Co. are far from making complaint regarding conditions at this writing. The "Rey Oma" and "El Wadora" are meeting with repeated success wherever they have been introduced. Westerners have taken a particular liking for the Mayer goods and show their appreciation in the increased sales.

C. A. Rossman, of 681 N. Broad street, who is situated right in the heart of "Automobile Row," is well pleased with the outlook in that location. He recently stated that the "Bold" and "Discriminator" cigars, of Bobrow Bros. have taken quite a hold among the automobile enthusiasts, and reports increased business on these brands.

The Rey Oma base ball team, composed of employes of Sig. C. Mayer & Co., secured ample revenge for their defeat at the hands of the Sheip & Vandegrift aggregation of ball tossers some time ago and beat them recently to the score of 15 to 5. This now makes a tie and another game should settle the rivalry between the fans of each establishment.

The new United Cigar Stores stand at the southwest corner of 12th and Chestnut streets was opened for business on Wednesday morning last. The formal opening has been announced as Saturday, at which time a premium and double certificates are to be given away. Any customer making a purchase of $10 or more will receive as a premium a handsome cigar humidor.

Allen R. Cressman's Sons May Open Another Plant

The home of the "Counsellor," Allen R. Cressman's Sons, is a hustling one at present, the Philadelphia factory being pushed to the limit. The other two up-state factories are also working to their full capacity to supply the demand. Allen R. Cressman's Sons are seriously considering the establishing of another plant and the trade need not be surprised to hear this announcement ere long. The "Counsellor" is very popular in the Pennsylvania coal regions and in New Jersey. With the resumption of activities in the coal mines the sales have risen until a new record has been tacked up. The sales for May, as reported from the Philadelphia office, have risen higher than for any month in the firm's history.

Havana Ribbon Salesmen on the Jump

Bert Thompson, Western representative of Bayuk Brothers, is at present on a visit to the Philadelphia office and gives a glowing account of "Havana Ribbon" sales in his territory. Mr. Thompson's statement is verified by the large increase in weekly and special shipments to the central and far West.

From the South J. C. Revercomb is sending big orders for "Havana Ribbons," some of his most active accounts being William Deiches & Co., distributors for the Baltimore territory; W. H. Harris Grocery Co., Richmond; E. F. Beale & Sons, Norfolk; Wood-Nickels Grocery Co., Roanoke, and Cole Tobacco Co., Newport News, Va.

The Pennsylvania-New York territory, under the control of Dave S. Achenbach, is steadily growing in distribution and duplicate business.

Samuel, Max and Meyer Bayuk, comprising the firm of Bayuk Brothers, have stated their intention of applying to the Governor of Pennsylvania for a charter to do business under the title Bayuk Brothers' Company. The business will be carried on along the same lines as heretofore.

In order to meet the increased demand for their "El Borita" cigar, John Steigerwald & Co. have been forced to consider the opening of another factory. They have under consideration several desirable sights including Norristown, Sunnyside, Pennsburg and Green Lane, Pa. It is likely that they will locate in one of these and open up a branch factory in order to increase their production of nickel cigars and obtain a better class of workmanship, than if they would concentrate their manufacturing all in one town.

Manager Batroff reports that business is showing very satisfactory gains both locally and through the Middle West.

Tuckett Tobacco Company Reorganizes

Will Apply for Charter to Increase Its Capital to $5,000,000

THE Tuckett Tobacco Company of Hamilton, Ont., have applied for a charter to increase their capital stock to $5,000,000. The plant in Hamilton will be doubled. Under the new organization more shareholders will be taken in and the present stockholders will be given a chance to get in on the ground floor. The board of directors will be increased from three to five and although there will be a number of changes, there will be none in the staff or management.

The rumor that the Tuckett Company would shortly be merged with the MacDonald Tobacco Co. of Montreal, in order to better compete with the American Tobacco Company in Canada was vigorously and emphatically denied by both concerns. A later rumor put it that the MacDonald Company had purchased a controlling interest in the Tuckett Company through intermediaries, but this report could not be confirmed.

Tobacco Manufactures in Minnesota

According to the last census, in 1909, there were three hundred and thirty-nine establishments in Minnesota engaged in making tobacco manufactures. They employed 2,130 persons, and capital invested was $1,718,309, while expenses totaled $2,851,870. The value of products was $3,364,792 of which $2,108,842 was value added by manufacture.

Ehrman Bros. Take Over Bamberger & Co.

ONE of the important changes on the Pacific Coast in a jobbing line within the past fortnight is that of the sale of J. Bamberger & Company, of San Francisco, to Ehrman Bros. & Company, the transfer to be made during the present month.

Julius Bamberger founded the Bamberger Company about twenty-eight years ago and was one of the best known "long shot" jobbers in that section of the country. He has announced that he intends to plan a long vacation after the business has been closed up, which will include a trip to Europe.

Ehrman Bros. & Company will continue the Bamberger brands of cigars, among them being "J. B.," "El Bambo" and "Don Riccato." They will also take over the present stock of the firm. The Bamberger establishment will be discontinued and the business concentrated at Ehrman Bros. & Company, at 134 Front street.

Strause & Co. Hustling Peorians

E. A. Strause & Co., of Peoria, Ill., are recognized as "the" jobbers of that city. They operate seven retail stands besides their jobbing business. The business is in the hands of Abe Strause, brother of Ed, who formerly was vice-president of the Prize Cup Cigarette Co. They make as their leaders the "Webster," "Robert Burns," "Corina," "La Venga," "La Soneda," "Lord Temple," "Westmoreland Club," "Owl," and "Bachelors." Ed. Strause travelled Illinois for a good many years for Best & Russell Co., of Chicago, before going into business for himself and when with the Best & Russell Co. was Charlie Storm's searchlight. Ed is now president of the State Trust & Banking Co., of Peoria and gives up all his time to the bank and has his brother Abe and Hugh Miller take care of the "smokes." Wonder if Ed would discount a few cigar flaps and bands for his old friends?—guess so.

Two new sizes of the "Romeo y Julieta" have been placed in the East by Rodriguez, Arguelles & Company. One of them, the "Romeo Damitas," a small smoke, will sell at twelve cents each, while the larger size, the "Romeo Finos," will retail at a quarter.

Sidney Cahen, the Middle West representative of E. Regensburg & Sons, of Tampa, returned to New York recently. While in his territory he assisted in a strong campaign on the Regensburg brands, principally the "American" cigar, which enjoys a wide popularity in the Middle West and Coast States.

William Pearce, the Lynn, Mass., jobber and retailer, has opened his new store at the corner of Munroe and Market streets, that city. The store is handsomely furnished and every up-to-date device for the proper care and handling of cigars has been installed.

"Made in Chicago" Being Introduced

ONE of the new brands recently announced is one styled "Made in Chicago," which will be manufactured by the La Espera factory of Fromberz, Berlzheimer & Company of Chicago. The labels and bands have lately been received and the new cigar will soon be on the market.

A. D. Berlzheimer, a member of the firm, is now in Milwaukee assisting the sales force of C. B. Leedersdorf & Company, who are distributing the "La Espera" in Wisconsin, where it is well known among discriminating smokers.

Reymer Bros. to "Handle Solace" Brand

Reymer Bros., Inc., the well-known Pittsburgh distributors, have taken on the "Solace" brand of cigars, manufactured by Geo. W. Nichols & Company, of New York. Their territory will include Western Pennsylvania and part of West Virginia. The makers declare there has been a healthy demand for their product in that section, which accounts for the new connection.

Watson Company Take on "Don Antonio"

The Harry W. Watson Co., of Detroit, Mich., have secured the distribution for Michigan (exclusive of Detroit) of the "Don Antonio" cigar, made by H. Anton Boek & Co., New York. Claude E. Howell, of the concern, has the Detroit distribution and has made the brand popular there among discriminating smokers.

The "Omar" a New Cigarette

The American Tobacco Company will shortly put on the market a new cigarette to be called the "Omar." It will be packed twenty to the box and will retail at 15 cents. It is understood that the cigarette will be introduced throughout the country and that artistic advertising matter has been prepared for window display purposes.

H. T. Deane, the Everett, Mass., distributor, has added three auto trucks, which will enable him to cover everything within a radius of fifty miles of his establishment.

Bernard Lett, of the jobbing firm of Bernard Lett & Company, of Boston, returned recently from a trip through Southern New England. He worked principally on the "Sanchez & Haya" and his own brands, "Lett's 88" and "Lett's Londres."

H. L. Judell & Company, of San Francisco, report a good trade on their newly campaigned five-cent cigar, "A Good Cigar." Another of their brands doing satisfactorily is the "Watt." The Judell Company are now making a drive on Manila goods, which are coming fast in popularity on the Pacific Coast.

Jobbing Trade Items

H. Lowenhaupt, of the Moss & Lowenhaupt cigar firm, of St. Louis, Mo., recently returned from a long trip through Illinois and Indiana, where he has accomplished good results on the "Tadema" cigars.

The Perego & Moore Cigar Co., of St. Joseph, Mo., have removed to 714 Francis street, that city, where they will conduct a wholesale business exclusively. The new address is a much more convenient location both for the firm and its customers.

The Lawrence Cigar Co., of Denver, Colo., have taken on E. M. Schwarz & Co.'s "Inventors" and "Little Inventors" cigars and will start a wide campaign in that territory on these goods.

Jobbers of Syracuse, N. Y., report a splendid year for the cheaper lines of cigars. The five-cent cigar is a popular product in that section, the factory of Justine Seubert, of that city, Binghamton and New York, supplying the trade. Other good sellers among nickel brands are the "Silent Salesman," Jettles & Blumenthal; the "Cinco," and "La Dola," American Cigar Co.

Seattle wholesalers have been very busy the past month in preparing shipments for the Alaskan trade. The fleet of small trading vessels bound for the North has been unusually large this spring and many of the traders have stocked up on tobacco, which they recognize as one of the most valuable commodities which can be taken to that country.

Col. T. Jefferson Sweeny, for the past twelve years the representative of the American Tobacco Company in St. Joseph, Mo., has been transferred to Denver following the dissolution of the company, as ordered by the Supreme Court decision. Col. Sweeny is now general representative of the Liggett & Myers Co. at Denver. He was very well known and liked in St. Joseph and left for his new field of endeavor with the best wishes of his host of friends.

Tobacco Manufactures in Virginia

According to the last census, in 1909, the manufacture of tobacco in the State of Virginia includes the production of chewing tobacco, smoking tobacco, cigars and cigarettes, and snuff. The 104 establishments reported for the industry in 1909 gave employment to 7.5 per cent. of the total number of wage earners in all manufacturing industries in the State and reported 11 per cent. of the total value of manufactured products and 15.1 per cent. of the total value added by manufacture. The industry shows an increase of 51.4 per cent. in value of products and 49.5 per cent. in value added by manufacture from 1904 to 1909, as compared with an increase of only 7.8 per cent. in the former and a decrease of 1.7 per cent. in the latter for the preceding five years.

Original Richardson Bill Not to Pass

Sub-Committee Decides Not to Include Tobacco Under the Terms of the Pure Food Law

THERE will hardly be any legislation during the present session regarding more strict regulation on tobacco. Internal Revenue Commissioner Cabell wrote a letter to Chairman Richardson, of the sub-committee, objecting strongly to the present measure and as a result the sub-committee decided not to include tobacco under the pure food law regulations.

The letter of Mr. Cabell, which followed a request of Mr. Richardson to him for suggestion on weights and any injurious ingredients which may be used in the manufacture of tobacco, is in part as follows:

"With respect to weights and measures, as applied to tobacco, alcoholic liquors, and other articles on which an internal revenue tax is collected, I beg to suggest that the matter is already sufficiently covered by existing internal revenue laws. The manufacture of tobacco can take place only on Government bonded premises. The tobacco can be packed only in packages approved by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and to every package containing tobacco is affixed a stamp which is a receipt for the collection of the tax due on the contents, and which indicates the amount of contents of the package.

"Under internal revenue laws the tax must be collected on the entire amount in the package, and a package of tobacco which contains more than what is indicated by the stamp affixed is immediately liable to forfeiture, and the manufacturer who sends out such package is liable to prosecution. On the other hand, the internal revenue tax itself, which is much higher than any possible profit that could arise from short weight, is absolute insurance against the package containing any appreciable amount less than the stamp indicates. At infrequent intervals we find packages on the market over-weight. Rarely, if ever, do we find packages appreciably under-weight. Of course, the tax is collected before the package is removed from the bonded premises, and in certain classes of tobacco, and other internal revenue articles, there will be a normal shrinkage. This, however, is slight.

"With respect to prohibiting the use of licorice in manufacturing tobacco the proposition seems to be altogether absurd. Licorice is one of the recognized ingredients which enters into the manufacture of chewing tobacco. A proposition to prohibit manufacturers of ice cream from using sugar, or flavoring, and limiting them solely to the use of cream, would be exactly analogous. Or the proposition to limit a manufacturer of cake to use only flour. The use of licorice, molasses, rum, alcohol, and certain flavoring matters, is as essential in the manufacture of tobacco as is the use of eggs, sugar and flavoring matter in cake or the use of sweetening and flavoring in ice cream, etc. Such a provision would completely annihilate the manufacture of chewing tobacco, with a consequent loss to the Government in revenue of from twelve to fifteen millions of dollars, and seriously affect all other kinds of manufactured tobacco, from which source at present fifteen millions of dollars per annum additional are collected."

Retail Trade Items

Robert Fell and Walter Pierce, of Wilmington, Del., are opening a cigar store in the old police station at Front and French streets, that city.

A new smoke house will be opened in the Stewart Hotel building, San Bernardino, Cal., by Frank Rathbun, where he expects to have the finest cigar store in that section.

The cigar business of D. K. McMillan, Sacramento, Cal., has been purchased by A. Rickard.

Krinsky Factory Rushed with Orders

Cigarette Concern Compelled to Work from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. to Satisfy Demand

THE well-known cigarette concern, I. B. Krinsky & Co. are now working their full force of employes from seven o'clock in the morning to seven at night in an endeavor to catch up with orders. The "Fifth Avenue" cigarette is now making especially big strides and it is largely upon this brand that the hands are now working overtime. The "Egyptian Lotus" and "Egyptian Heroes" are also doing very well.

The Chicago representative, D. Levin, reports large gains as does their Boston man, B. Silverstein. In Philadelphia, E. B. Bowen & Co. are sending in increased orders and state that the Krinsky goods are becoming more popular every day among Quaker City smokers.

W. Detterman, United States representative for the "La Yebana" cigar of Manila, announces the removal of his office from 172 Water street to 76 William street.

I. Shiller, of 2957 Broadway, on July 15, will move up town one block, bringing him three doors south of 116th street. The new location is a more commodious one and will enable him to carry a larger stock.

At a banquet given by the American Iron, Steel and Heavy Hardware Association, at the Somerset Hotel, in Boston, on June 6, the Castañeda cigars were featured most prominently. Dave Echemendia, their hustling representative, landed the order.

Theodore Werner, of T. J. Dunn & Co., sailed for Europe last Tuesday on the New Amsterdam and after looking over the Sumatra tobacco situation in Amsterdam pretty thoroughly will make a long trip through the Continent, to last about three months. Mr. Werner feels that he has earned a vacation and expects to thoroughly enjoy himself while away.

S. P. Coc, head of the cigar department of Acker, Merrill & Condit, is now on a trip through the Middle West. He will visit St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago and Indianapolis, before returning to headquarters in New York. He expects to be back about July 2nd.

Max Schatz, representative for Behrens & Co., of Havana, accompanied by Mrs. Schatz and his daughter, Miss Lucia, sailed last Tuesday for an extended trip through Europe. They expect to be gone several months and will visit London, Paris, Berlin and the summer resorts on the Continent.

E. Regensburg & Sons are much elated over the progress made within the past six months on the "American" cigar and are receiving orders from many out-of-the-way points which they have not made any special effort to reach. They recently were the recipients of a letter from the United States Consul-General of Japan, asking for information regarding the Regensburg products, which is a good indication of the wide-spread reputation of this progressive concern.

Quaker City Notes

Obtains Cigars by Forging Orders

Identified by six tobacco men as the man they claimed obtained large numbers of cigars from them under false pretence, Melvin Pettit, Hancock street, above Girard avenue, was held under $800 bail for court.

He was arrested in the cigar store of A. C. Hutton, 435 Market street, where he presented an order for 500 cigars, with the name of George Parker signed to it. He took 200 cigars with him and when he returned later for the remaining 300, the suspicions of Mr. Hutton had been aroused and he had Pettit arrested.

George Parker, a tobacconist at 165 W. Girard avenue, declared at the hearing that the order was a forged one. It developed at the hearing that Pettit has obtained over 2000 cigars from the other dealers in the same manner.

W. D. Duncan, of Terry & Duncan, 10th and Chestnut streets, has returned from a campaign along the Jersey Coast resorts. He was accompanied by David H. Mousdale, the representative of Sanchez & Haya and they report gratifying results in placing the cigars in high-class seashore cigar stores. Mr. Duncan is now using a Ford motor car in his travels and is very much pleased with it.

Morris D. Neumann, of the Neumann-Mayer Company, is again in town after a long trip through the West. He is very much pleased with the prospects on the "Bella Mundo" and "El Tello," cigars.

Calixto, Lopez & Co., Tampa, are represented here this week by their traveling salesman, C. L. Patterson.

C. Mendez, of the firm of Gomez & Mendez, Porto Rico and New York, has arrived here to join their salesman, E. B. Mayer, in a trip through his territory.

Cuban Uprising Topic of Interest

Clubhouse of Centro Asturiano Badly Damaged by Fire; two fatalities occurring—Peregrino Rey Elected Councilman in West Tampa

TAMPA, June 11. HE rebellion in Cuba is the principal topic of interest in cigar circles here. Manufacturers who have just returned from the island differ in their estimates of the seriousness of the trouble. Some think it will assume the proportions of a revolution and will necessitate the armed intervention of the United States, while others put it on the basis of a mere uprising of blacks, which will be speedily quelled. Reports are that the negroes of Havana are rapidly leaving that city for the rural regions, where they are joining the forces of the rebels. The manufacturers agree, however, that the trouble will interfere with the tobacco crop, and, therefore, will militate against the best conditions in the manufacturing industry.

The handsome clubhouse of the Centro Asturiano, one of the finest buildings in the city, was partially destroyed by fire Saturday night last. Fire was discovered on the stage, where a rehearsal for an amateur theatrical production had just been concluded, and spread so rapidly that before the firemen arrived it had enveloped the top part of the structure. Two fatalities occurred at the fire—H. D. Bassett, of Jacksonville, a traveling man for the Standard Oil Company, volunteered to assist the firemen and was instantly killed by the falling of a heavy piece of cement coping. J. H. Tucker, a former member of the fire department, who was also assisting the firemen, was fatally injured by the fall of the same coping, dying the following day in the City Hospital. When the bodies of the victims were shipped to their respective homes Monday morning, committees of the Centro Asturiano acted as escorts to the train and the Centro sent handsome floral tributes. Secretary James Fernandez, Jr., of the Centro Asturiano, says the clubhouse will be restored at once.

Arguelles, Lopez & Bro. are using some of the new leaf to advantage in filling their present orders.

A. L. Cuesta leaves tomorrow for Cuba to arrange for immediate shipment of tobacco. His firm will use the new wrapper entirely after July 1.

J. R. Burns, of F. Lozano & Sons, after several weeks in the city has started out again on the road and will go direct to New York City.

W. H. Streeter, of Streeter, Fernandez & Company, has returned from a trip through the Middle West.

Manuel and Jesus Rey, brothers of Ramon Rey, of Rey, Strauss & Company, are here from Spain for a visit to relatives, and may decide to remain.

Harry Roberts, who is one of the most prominent Mystic Shriners in the country, has returned from Los Angeles, where he attended the national convocation of the order. He had a very enjoyable trip, going with the Savannah, Ga., Temple on its special train, and returning with the Philadelphia Temple.

Peregrino Rey, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, was elected a councilman of West Tampa at the election held in that city last Tuesday. Mr. Rey led the ticket.

Manuel Lopez, Jr., of Lopez, Hermanos & Bro., is enjoying tarpon fishing at Pass-a-Grille, a famous resort near here.

Samuel I. Davis closed down one day last week for taking inventory, re-opening the following day.

A. A. Martinez, of A. I. M. Martinez Company, has gone to Cuba to look into crop conditions.

In the regular city election last Tuesday Mayor D. B. McKay, who was nominated in the municipal primaries, was elected, defeating the Socialist candidate overwhelmingly. The primary ticket for council was elected.

Manuel Campo, leaf dealer of Chicago, was a recent visitor to Tampa.

Francis Bolano & Company have been working capacity in their factory up to this week, when the damp tobacco required their suspension, with the other factories of the city.

Salvador Rodriguez remains at the local factory, giving the business his close, personal supervision.

Manuel Sanchez, local manager for Berriman Bros., believes the new tobacco will result in large increases in the demand for Tampa cigars. He predicts an increase of at least 25 per cent. in the output of "Jose Vila" when the new tobacco can be used.

Arturo Manrara, son of the late Edward Manrara, has made his home in Tampa to take charge of the interests of the estate, and was elected president of the Ybor City Land and Improvement Company, one of the big concerns which was conducted by his father.

Frank Royal Struss, bookkeeper for Samuel I. Davis, and Miss Corinne Lawrence, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Lawrence, were the parties to a notable wedding which took place last Wednesday.

First Penna. District Gains Over Five Millions

Production for May Far Overshadows April—Deficit for Year Nearly Wiped Out

THE increase in the production of cigars for the First District of Pennsylvania which started with the month of April was continued during May with surprising steadiness. The revenue returns show that the increase of May, 1912, over the preceding month was 5,374,700 cigars. Compared with May, 1911, the month showed a gain of 1,377,640 cigars. The latest figures reduce the deficit for the first five months of this year, compared with 1911, to almost nothing. At the end of April the deficit was 1,411,390 which is virtually wiped out by the latest figures.

The revenue returns for May, 1912, compared with May of the preceding year, are as follows:

| | May, 1912. | May, 1911. | Increase and Decrease. |
|----------------------|------------|------------|------------------------|
| Cigars at $3 | 65,116,700 | 63,739,060 | 1,377,640 I |
| Cigars at 75c. | 21,612,000 | 33,212,000 | 11,600,000 D |
| Cigarettes at $3.60 | 27,900 | 35,700 | 7,800 D |
| Cigarettes at $1.25 | 11,363,040 | 9,629,400 | 1,733,640 I |
| Tobacco at 8c | 98,652 | 92,928 | 5,724 I |

Those Alleged Anti-Smoking "Crusades"

Editor of "American Medicine" says scents which contrary sex use are worse than Tobacco Smoke

Relative to the crusades that appear against smoking in public places, and these crusades are periodical, we notice that "American Medicine" speaks adversely. The editor of that learned publication can easily understand how tobacco smoke is disagreeable to some women, but he is confident that the scents with which many females besprinkle themselves are more disgusting to the average male than tobacco smoke can be to anybody. He is against all scents in public places, and sees no reason why one scent should be given greater consideration than another. There is logic in that conclusion.

There is an argument in the smoker's favor that has not yet been advanced, so far as we know. It is this: Since man learned to smoke the world has progressed more than in all the previous centuries. There were no great inventors before tobacco came in general use. Science and knowledge have seemed to advance along with the cultivation of the weed. It is a well known fact that nearly all of the greatest lawyers in our history chewed tobacco, and it is said that a majority of the members of the Supreme Court chew tobacco, among the number being the chief justice. No one can say of his own knowledge that tobacco is responsible for our great progress, but it and progress have gone hand in hand.

Articles of incorporation have been filed by the Ben. F. Shearer Cigar Co., of St. Joseph, Mo. The capital stock of the new concern is $20,000 and the stockholders are Ben. F. Shearer, James A. Hughes and Eugene Silverman. Mr. Shearer owns 98 per cent. of the stock.

May Revenue Receipts Show Enormous Increase

Opening of Excursion Season Expected to Boom Cigar Trade—James C. Wheeler, Former Deputy Revenue Commissioner, Buried in Arlington Cemetery

DETROIT, June 10. TODAY marks what may be virtually designated as the opening of the excursion season. Perhaps it would be more correct to say that yesterday was the opening day, being Sunday, which is always a big excursion day throughout the season. But the Sabbath excursionists have no opportunities to shop, and leave little money here except with the street car company, the roller-coaster man, and the pop-corn and peanut vendor.

Downtown merchants have been eagerly awaiting the excursion season. The influx of thousands of visitors daily from nearby cities and rural districts means increased sales to them. The spring season, owing to cool weather, has not thus far been fully up to expectations, and cigar store sales have doubtless proven a barometric index to general shopping conditions. With added patronage and increased sales all up and down the shopping district, cigar dealers are looking hopeful and some of them are already wearing their new Panama lid or have ordered their new summer suit, while all expect soon to join in singing, "Oh, You Beautiful Doll-er!"

This town is the real thing, too, as a convention city. No day in the year fails to see its delegates hurrying to beautiful Detroit to participate in some gathering of State, national or international importance. The advertising value and commercial advantages of these gatherings is inestimable. That the cigar and tobacco lines participate largely in these advantages goes without saying. For instance, the State Conclave of Knights Templar brought some two thousand or more persons here last week, who are known to be liberal spenders and who for the most part know no prejudice against "My Lady Nicotine." They left many dimes and dollars at various stands.

Our cigar factories and tobacco manufacturing plants maintain a dizzy pace. The sale of revenue stamps in May, as compared with last year, shows an enormous increase. The first district produced last month 2,110,576 pounds of manufactured tobacco and 25,397,000 cigars. And all good ones. The sale of stamps was as follows:

|------------|-------------|--------------|
| May, 1912, | $76,191.00 | $168,847.00 |
| May, 1911, | 66,905.00 | 152,407.00 |

The Spietz-Worch Co. are exceptionally rushed. They are planning to increase the capacity of their building to the utmost, as they haven't room for the labor their business demands.

San Telmo Cigar Company are bending every effort. Mr. Rosenberger tells me, to keep pace with orders. The same story is true with other plants.

The Superia Cigar Company's former plant at No. 10 Selden avenue is now occupied by the Detroit Cigar Manufacturing Company, who took possession immediately the former firm had removed to their new plant at No. 684-600 Hendrie avenue. The Detroit Cigar Manufacturing Company (often known as the Green Seal Factory, after one of its earliest and most popular brands), is one of the oldest cigar manufacturing concerns in the city, having been located at No. 50 Congress street, East, for at least a quarter century.

For some months the Detroit Cigar Manufacturing Company have been preparing to launch a new Havana cigar, the "Catiline." Now that they are settled in their new home they are about ready to place the goods with the trade, and samples will go forward to agents within a day or so.

Rich. Helms, San Telmo Cigar Company, returned June 3rd from the Shriners' meeting at Los Angeles, after a five weeks' absence. Chas. Davison, of the Banner Cigar Manufacturing Company, who was also on the pilgrimage, returned a week earlier. Rich. managed to turn his trip somewhat to a business advantage, swinging through quite a northern sweep on his return and shaking hands with quite a few prominent distributors to whom "Pastora" and other famous San Telmo brands are well known.

Geo. L. Gross, former Detroit cigar manufacturer, has been in the city several days. Mr. Gross was for many years associated with his father, Geo. C. Gross, on Jefferson avenue. Later he operated alone in a small way, but found such little promise in the venture that he gave it up and drifted West. About three years ago he entered Bridgeport, Ill., and narrowly missed making a clean-up in the old business. As it was, a real estate speculation netted a tidy amount. He is at present engaged in the retail cigar and tobacco line there. The purpose of Mr. Gross' return here was to place Mrs. Gross in a hospital to undergo an operation of a somewhat serious character.

Jas. C. Wheeler, Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue, died at Washington, D. C., a week ago and was buried with honors at Arlington Cemetery on June 5th, the sixty-ninth anniversary of his birth. The entire Bureau of Internal Revenue was closed at Washington on the day of his burial, as a signal mark of the esteem and respect in which he was held by the service. Mr. Wheeler was an officer of the 18th Michigan Volunteers and rendered gallant service in the army. For five years he served as Chief Deputy Collector of the First District of Michigan, removing to Washington twelve years ago. Probably no individual in the internal revenue service was better posted and more familiar with its details and regulations than he.

Miss Amy Wheeler, a member of the local office force here, is a daughter of the commissioner. She with other Michigan members of the family were hastily summoned to Washington, as the commissioner's illness was of short duration and his death sudden and unlooked for.

Earl Saxton, recently representing Carpenter, Cook Co., of Menominee, Mich. (wholesale grocers), has signed with Harry W. Watson Co., Detroit, to cover all of the Upper Peninsular and part of the Lower.

"Jack" Abland has Ty Cobb's "Honey Boy" Evans—$500 trophy—in Cafe Grande cigar window. Few "fans" fail to pause to inspect it. The trophy was presented to Cobb as the World's Champion Batsman for the season of 1912.

Francis Taylor, representing the Rey del Mundo factory, Havana, who has been to the Los Angeles Shriners' gathering, paused here a day on his return eastward.

F. E. Cranz, of New York City, is here today accompanied by his salesman, C. S. Sarlin.

Alb. J. Kuepely has been doing some quiet work here for the "Ashwine" and other cigars of Louis Ash & Co.

Other visitors are: S. Bijur, E. Rosenwald Bros.; Howard Kinney, Duys & Co.; Izzy Mayer, Jettles & Blumenthal, Philadelphia; N. B. Shapera, M. A. Gunst & Co., Tampa; Julius B. Amis, sales manager Sola Cigar Company, New York; Leo Weiss, Leo F. Weiss & Co., New York; L. J. McKinnon, Cordero & Co., New York; W. D. Walker, S. S. Pierce Co., Boston; Wm. Charles, G. S. Nicholson & Co., S. F. HEAVENRICH

Moore Company Changes Name

The J. A. Moore Cigar Co., of Hannibal, Mo., have reorganized and will hereafter be known as the Red Star Cigar Company. F. C. Harrom and D. L. Holcomb, members of the concern, have purchased J. A. Moore's interest and will continue the business along the same lines as heretofore.

The J. A. Moore Co. has been doing business in Hannibal, Mo., for a number of years and is one of the well-known tobacco concerns of that State.

Stewart Bros., cigar manufacturers of Ludington, Mich., have sold out their business to William Wallace and Joseph Cartier, of that place. Both Mr. Wallace and Mr. Cartier are practical cigar men and state they will continue the reputation built up by Stewart Bros. on their brands.

The Thalheimer cigar box manufacturing plant at Cedar and Walnut streets, Reading, Pa., has closed down and is going out of business. The closing down of this concern threw out of employment 75 hands. The Bucks Cigar Box Company, of the same city, has leased part of the Thalheimer building and will use it in connection with its other factory.

The contract for the Farmers' Loose Leaf Warehouse in Cincinnati, Ohio, has been let to Adolph Dietz & Co., of that city, for $25,000. The building is to be of concrete and steel, with fireproof doors. The warehouse will have a capacity of 300,000 pounds of tobacco and when completed will be one of the most up-to-date in the city.

W. A. Stickney Company Take on "H. Upmann" Cigar—"Tungsten" Cigar in Great Demand, Dealers Having Difficulty in Securing Enough

JUNE 12.

THE W. A. Stickney Cigar Co. has taken on the "H. Upmann" cigar, which will be offered to the trade in six sizes, viz.: "Perfecto," "Czar," "Stickneys," "Minicrvas," "Majors" and "Sarosos," and which will retail at three for 50 cents and three for $1.00.

Geo. W. Krebs, vice-president of the Van Noy Railway News Company, of Kansas City, was in the city the 10th of this month buying cigar and tobacco stock.

David Chalmers, Western representative of the Havana-Tungsten Company, spent several days the first of the month in this city, leaving on the 10th for Chicago. Al. Kelly, their local representative, is carrying samples of "Little Perferencias," getting a good distribution on the above size, and wherever placed it is duplicating nicely.

E. A. Sutter, of L. P. Sutter & Bros., Chicago, was in the city the first of the month, visiting the St. Louis house of his company.

A circular received by the trade here on June 10th announces the withdrawal by the Havana-American Company of their 10 per cent. gratis on "Perferencia Operas." This is the staple 5 cent size of the above-mentioned cigar.

Philip Morris & Co.'s "Little Brown Box" is getting to be one of the largest selling brands in this territory, showing a big, healthy increase in the past six months. There is no cause for alarm on the above statement, as W. H. Wolfson, familiarly known as "Billy," is on the job both during the sunlight and moonlight.

Amos Smith, proprietor of the "Buzzard's Roost," Litchfield, Ill., was a caller at the W. A. Stickney Cigar Co.'s place last week and placed a generous order for goods.

Preston Herbert, vice-president of the Esberg-Gunst Co., accompanied by his wife, passed through this city the first of the month on their way to Hot Springs, Ark.

William A. Stickney, wife and daughter, Miss Mildred, departed June 8th for New York, where they took the North German Lloyd Steamship Princess Cecile on the 11th for Europe. They go direct to Baden-Baden and will spend a greater part of their time there while abroad. Mr. Stickney will probably be absent all summer, returning to this city early in the fall.

H. A. Terry has joined the forces of the Streeter, Fernandez & Co., manufacturers of the "La Rama." Mr. Terry has the best wishes of his numerous friends in the trade in his new connection.

H. A. Bischoff arrived here last week from Kansas City, where he went to introduce himself to the local branch of the W. A. Stickney Cigar Co. "La Garnita" is the brand on which he especially made the trip. Mr. Bischoff was immensely pleased with his initial performance at that point.

C. E. Terry reports an excellent business on "La Mega" cigars, having introduced the "Lord of England" size to quite a number of the best retail dealers in this city.

Stuart G. Stickney left on the 9th for Kansas City, where he was to participate in the golf contest given by the State Association of Golf Players. Before departing he received the hearty good wishes from the boys in the store and admonished that he was expected to capture the first prize. From Kansas City Mr. Stickney will go to Denver and Salt Lake City to visit the branch houses of his concern.

Lee Atkinson, local representative of M. Melachrimo & Co., of New York City, resigned his position the first of June and departed for the East. As yet there has been no one appointed to the vacancy.

E. W. Marlin, of Celestino, Vega & Co., of Tampa and Chicago, although having no connection with the W. A. Stickney Cigar Co. in a business way, can generally be found around that place. The firm's brands are on sale in the finer sizes at Ernest Raul's, who is located in the Wright Building. Mr. Marlin expects to spend two weeks in this city on this trip.

Business on the "Tungsten" cigar is reported to be enormous, the only fault that the Stickney people find is that the manufacturers are unable to keep pace with the demand. Complaints are being received from all quarters through the necessity of reducing retailers' orders to make the supply reach all around. They hope to be able to meet the demand in a week or so.

The store of the Charles P. Stanley Cigar Co., 702 Olive street, was entered by burglars on the night of May 12th. Ten dollars was taken from the cash register and two thousand cigars were missing.

Information, under the provisions of the Child Labor Law, has been issued against Jos. R. Cugizzi, a cigar dealer at 110 North Fifteenth street, for employing two boys under legal age.

Dan. Liddy, W. A. Stickney Cigar Co.'s Western Missouri and Northern Kansas representative, will attend the Missouri State Druggists' Association Convention at Warrensburg on June 11, 12 and 13. Those who know Dan and his entertaining ways, say that the convention would be rather dull without his enlivening presence.

F. P. Baldwin, general Western representative of the American Cigar Company, with headquarters in St. Louis, left on the 7th for a swing around the circle. In his travels he will make Joplin, Kansas City, St. Joseph and Omaha, expecting to be absent about two weeks.

Moreda Factory to be Moved to Tampa

Branch Will Also Be Maintained in Havana, Where Foreign Goods Will Be Made

THE factory of Pedro Moreda, of Havana, which was recently purchased by M. A. Gunst & Company, of New York, will be removed to Tampa shortly, according to Henry Ensburg, who recently returned to New York from Tampa and Cuba.

This well-known concern, whose most famous brand is the "La Diligencia" Havana cigar, will distribute its products to the United States from the Tampa factory and it is intended to maintain a branch in Havana, where the cigars will be made for exportation to foreign countries.

Baker Brothers, well-known distributors of Boston, report a run on the "San Felice" cigar, manufactured by the Deisel-Wemmer Co., of Lima, O. MAY CIGAR SALES BREAK RECORD

Business Improves in Past Fortnight--Gas Kills Isidor Latzar--S. R. Moss Cigar Co. of Reading Rents Druggist's Windows for Display During Convention Week

CHICAGO, June 12.

Cigar men are whooping it up for "Teddy" and shouting aloud for "Bill." There is no division in political sentiment as far as the dealers are concerned, because the coming of the Republican National Convention will mean a big stimulation in business, and if the delegates get into a deadlock and have to remain here for an unlimited period, these same cigar men will be all the more enthusiastic for G. O. P. Big crowds of visitors are expected here convention week and will help swell sales.

Business has been much better the past fortnight. Cigar manufacturers have been hard at work and jobbers likewise. Tobacco leaf men are also greatly satisfied with the trend of affairs and the outlook was never brighter.

Cigar Sales in May Break Record.

According to figures supplied by the Collector of Internal Revenue, cigars made in this district broke all records for May. As a contrast, tobacco production was the smallest in three years for the corresponding month.

Here are the figures:

Cigarette Sale Increased.

City Collector Edward Cohen today announced that the smoking of cigarettes in Chicago is increasing. As proof he offered his records showing the increased number of licenses taken out. During the twelve months of 1911, 1,334 dealers applied for licenses to sell cigarettes, while so far this year 1,548 licenses have been issued, and more applicants are looked for.

Nearly $1,000,000 more has been paid to the city collector to date than had been collected at the same time last year. The payment and comparisons are:

The United Cigar Stores Company has leased from Patrick White the premises, 126 South Canal street, opposite the Union Station, a four-story brick building on 22 by 75 feet of ground, for ten years from May 1, 1912, at a term rental of $50,000. This is said to be a record price for rental space outside of corners on the West Side. Thos. J. Cochrane & Co. represented both parties to the transaction.

Some comments have been made in regard to Best & Russell Co. taking on a factory brand, which they have done recently, the "Mi Hogar," made by E. P. Cordero, as this factory has always confined their product to Grommes & Ulrich, making their "El Emporio" brand for a number of years. L. J. McKinon, who represents E. P. Cordero, was formerly with Theobald & Oppenheimer, of Philadelphia. Later with Sam Gessler, of the Rubini factory. Started a factory in South Bend, Ind., making a 5 cent cigar called "Bond-Quality." Unfortunately the brand fell down. He placed it with Best & Russell Co. and did a lot of plugging, but the brand wound up in the department stores at two for 5 cents. Bill Best, Jr., felt sorry for Mc. who is a pretty good chap, and gave him a small initial order for "Mi Hogar," which he will sell in their stores. If Mc does any missionary work and turns in orders Best & Russell will fill them. This answers why Best & Russell put in the brand.

The new hotel to be erected on the southeast corner of Van Buren and La Salle streets has been leased by the Hotel Sherman Company.

Collins Invented New Display Rack.

W. G. Collins, who formerly traveled for Best & Russell in the South, is covering Indiana for this firm, with Chicago as headquarters. Mr. Collins is pushing "Sanchez & Haya" and "Hand Made" 5 cent cigars. "This," says he, "brings home the bacon." Mr. Collins has just invented a display rack for retailers to place on top of the case for tin can goods. This device will be introduced soon with the "Hand Made" cigar.

Manuel Garcia, a member of the firm of Perfecto Garcia & Bros., who resides in Cuba, and does the buying for the house, was a recent visitor here. Angel Garcia has left town on a trip to the Pacific Coast.

The exclusive cigarette privilege in both the ball parks has been let to E. A. Conday & Co.

A. M. Tobias & Co., of Fifty-fifth street and Calumet avenue, have added some new brands—"Dulce" and "El Genio." They also have in stock "Websters," "Charles the Great" and push their own brand "Battenberg," made for them by Lozano & Son, of Tampa, being one of Ben Lesser's star customers. Tobias has another place on Forty-seventh street, near the L Station; in his Fifty-fifth street place he has a large card room in the rear.

Best & Russell Co. are selling in all their stores a new all Havana cigarette, ten for 15 cents, called B. & R. Co. "All Havana Splints." They advertise it "mild for cigarette smokers." It is made for them by Storm, Fisher & Co., New York.

The United Cigar Stores Company are offering straw hats claimed to be valued at $3 for 150 certificates.

Many, Blanc & Co., 164 W. Kinzie street, wholesale liquors, have added a cigar department to their business.

Gas Kills Tobacco Broker.

The accidental opening of several gas jets caused the death of Isidor Latzar, a leaf tobacco broker with offices at 317 West Lake street. Mr. Latzar had gone into the basement of his home, 1142 Fullerton avenue, to repair a leaky pipe and pushed a table against a gas range, opening the valve. The deceased is fifty-three years old.

Schonaefner-Collins & Co., who operate the cigar department of Central Drug Store, will give it up August 1st. The stand is for rent at $300 per month.

There is merry competition here in the sale of pipes. All the better class "loop" stores are boosting their sales by giving a can of Tuxedo with every pipe purchased. A 10 cent can is given with a 25 cent purchase; 20 cent can with a 50 cent pipe; 40 cent can with a pipe costing $1, and a 75 cent can with a $2 purchase.

The latest big loop site leased is in the Westminster Building, Monroe and Dearborn streets, by Best & Russell Co., who have taken a Dearborn street store, next to the corner, for a period of five years.

Mr. Geo. Alces, of Simon Batt & Co., of New York, was in town this month. He has his "La Verdad" brand placed with P. J. Bauer, Sherman House, Rubovitz Bros., J. Berlzheimer, W. F. Monroe Cigar Co. and C. Jevne & Co.

Walter H. Creutzburg has a good cigar stand at 319 S. LaSalle street and has quite a following from the Open Board of Trade. His principal business is on "La Soneda," "Sanchez & Haya," "La Molesta," "La Monte" and "La Reba."

S. P. Doyle, manager for the Home Drug Company, 65 W. Monroe street, is working some window displays for cigars. He says his principal leaders are "Sanchez & Haya," "Foneda," "La Soneda," "El Genio," "Lovera," "Francisco Goya" and "El Salero." He sells all popular 5 cent brands at three for 10 cents. Doyle was formerly assistant manager of The Fair Cigar Department.

Wengler & Mandell, who are the makers of the "Tom Palmer" cigar, which is very strong locally, have a retail store in the Hartford Building (Madison and Dearborn streets), which is kept open day and night and considered by many as the best cigar corner in Chicago. In clear Havana cigars they only handle their own brands, "Tom Palmer" and "Tropics," but they handle a full line of cigarettes of all brands and pipes and smoking tobacco. In five cent goods they handle a few popular brands besides their own, "The Yale Seconds" and "El O'Roy," of Storm, Fisher & Co.

Carl Von Hermann, of the Lexington Pharmacy, Michigan avenue and Twenty-second street, has a cigar department in which he carries all the leading well known brands. His leaders are "La Soneda," "Vanderbilt Cup," "La Cyrill," "Flor de Cuba," "Sanchez & Haya" and "Lovera." In five cent goods he pushes private brands.

Moss Leases Druggist's Windows During Convention.

Three thousand five hundred dollars is to be paid 500 Chicago druggists by the S. R. Moss Cigar Co., of Lancaster, Pa., for the privilege of window displays of their "Flor de Moss" cigar to be made the week of June 28th to July 5th. The Moss Company have rented the windows exclusively for that week, and it is the first time that such an advertising campaign has been made in Chicago.

The American Briar Pipe Company, 170-172 W. Randolph street, are showing many new novelties in their very attractive and up-to-date display room. Among their leading sellers is the "Black Diamond" line. This business was established by Simon J. Levey and Harry S. Levey, his son, twenty-five years ago, and the latter now conducts the business with his two brothers.

The out-of-town visitors include Ben Lesser and Sig. Mayer, of Lozano Son & Co., Tampa; Phil Verplanck, of P. Verplanck & Co., also of Tampa; S. R. Moss, Lancaster; F. E. Francisco, New York; Fred Suss, of the R. Steinecke Co.; Fred R. Charles, of Martinez-Charles Co., and W. A. Charles, of G. S. Nicholas & Co.

The Boston Store has quite a cigar department under the capable management of Louis Marks. They handle all the popular brands at cut prices and sell a great many jobs. They operate a small factory in their building, making six brands, which they push in their departments.

Herschman Bros., formerly at 186 N. LaSalle street, have moved to 71 E. Forty-third street, corner Michigan avenue, where they will be closer to their customers.

Wm. Best, Sr., president of Best & Russell Co., spent Decoration Day in Indianapolis taking in the auto races.

Tom Foster, of 5917 Prairie avenue, who was formerly with the American News Company, has established a cigar and news depot at the above address.

I notice a clear Havana cigar called "Iliad" in all of Best & Russell Co.'s stores. They are made by Grommes & Elson, of the "Ben Bey" factory.

John A. Lorimer, of Fifty-fifth street and Prairie avenue, has quite a place. In connection with his cigar store he has a billiard room, barber shop, and news depot. He carries a big assortment of cigars and cigarettes in his store. "Johnnie" is very popular, belongs to all the neighboring clubs, accommodates all the salesman with a chance on new goods, and has made his place headquarters for the Sox rooters.

Interested with Billy Mass in the Charles Barker Co. is Louis Newman, who is president of the new corporation.

A gentleman selling mineral water for a Waukesha concern called on a local dealer and presented his card which read: U. P. Moore, with _____ Company. Perhaps the next salesman will be "Duke's Drew Good," with British-American Tobacco Company.

The new Western representative for Fritz Cros. Co., cigar manufacturers of Cincinnati, Ohio, is Max S. Austrian.

Edward A. Kraussman, the New York leaf tobacco merchant, stopped off recently on his way home from Los Angeles, where he attended the Imperial Council of the Shriners.

E. P. Prickett, sales manager of J. & B. Moos, has returned home from his annual vacation, which was spent at Virginia Hot Springs.

The cigar store in the rotunda of the Rookery Building, which is conducted by Albert Breitung, has been extensively renovated and presents a more pleasing appearance.

A. J. Myers, of Salvador Sanchez y Co., has returned from an extended Southern trip, on which he did an excellent business.

José Lovera, accompanied by Mrs. Lovera, spent a couple of days in this city recently, having stopped off on their return home from Hot Springs.

Peter A. Krusing, of 3859 Cottage Grove avenue, who made the Kirby House in Milwaukee famous, is giving his cigar department special attention. His leaders are "La Soneda," "La Natoma," "Cyrilla," "La Veiga" and "General Shields."

Simon Lichtenstein, who has two loop stores and makes his headquarters at 186 N. Fifth avenue, is looking for another location. He has just added the "El O'Roy" brand of Storm, Fisher & Co. His son is working the retail trade for F. Bolano & Co., so he has window displays in both stores of the Bolano brand, as Jim Blaine would say—"Patting on the back."

Mrs. Frank E. Scott (Miss Florence Couthou) controls the cigar privilege in the Congress Hotel, the Railway Exchange and Peoples Gas Building. Miss Couthou's father, Joe Couthou, started the business and was assisted by his daughter for many years. While imported cigars and high-grade cigarettes predominate, brands like "Roi Tan," "Henry the Fourth," "Tom Moore" and "Robert Burns" sell well. It is rumored she wants to dispose of the business, and, like Margaret Illington, remain at home and darn socks, but knowing ones state the bonus and good-will is "some" price.

Griff Walton, of 1015 E. Sixty-second street, has been the South Side man for Best & Russell Co. a great many years, and from all reports is a hummer. He makes his leaders "Sanchez-Haya," "Lovera," "Robert Burns," "San Marco," "Potter Palmer," "Owls" and "Palmer House."

Geo. Anderson, who represents Reid Murdoch & Co. cigar department, has been selling cigars in Chicago since "Heck was a pup." He formerly pushed the "Rubens" and "Juliana" brands, but now it is "Roi Tan" across the board. He has put this brand in every first-class shop in the loop, and it is today the best seller in the loop saloons. Uncle George has a way of doing things, and when he does not get away with his side-kick, McKenzie, the representative of Seidenberg & Co., makers of "Roi Tan," does. They travel together constantly and lots of people think they are a couple of plain clothes men from Chief McWeeny's office.

Additional Windy City Briefs.

The United Cigar Stores Company has opened their store in the Mallers Building, southeast corner of Wabash avenue and Madison street.

John W. Walters, who makes his headquarters at the Hamilton Hotel, Wichita, Kan., and travels for Best & Russell Co. in Kansas and Oklahoma, stopped off here en route for New York to visit his family, as his daughter is studying for the operatic stage in that metropolis.

Lilienfeld Bros. Co., Grand Pacific Hotel Building, have their windows full of "La Azores" in tins, twelve for $1, convenient pocket size for the summer tourist. They also job the "Corina" cigar, which Tom Dean Branyan made famous, just as credit for the popularity of "La Azora" is given Dick Congdon.

The cigar privilege at Riverside Park has been secured by D. W. Faber, incorporated.

The factory of B. Martinez & Co. is now installed in new quarters at 333 West Madison street.

Billy Baxter, at one time partner of the firm of Roper & Baxter, the house that put "Figaro" on the map, is the city star of Grommes & Ulrich. His stronghold is the retail druggist. While he takes orders for "Olanda" and "Emporia" cigars he always finds time to buzz a case of bottled goods in the order.

W. A. Vorhauer, who lives at 3238 Beach avenue, is Best & Russell Co.'s representative on the North Side and has built up a very large business; in fact, is one of the Best & Russell stars. "Billy" glides around in his Cadillac and the other day caromed on a drunk, who pretended he was badly hurt and is trying to trim "Billy," but he says "Nothing doing."

HAVANA, June 8.
DURING the last eight days we have had heavy showers of rain all over the island, so that now even the few places that had not received any benefit previously from rains, can bundle the remaining dry leaves and throw them into piles, in order to commence the escogidas in due course of time. The receipts of new tobacco from the Santa Clara province are beginning already to be heavier, while up to now those from the Vuelta Abajo and Partidos have been but moderate. As previously stated, by the end of this month we ought to have enough stocks on hand to make it worth while for northern buyers to come here and find some selections of suitable leaf.

Our leaf market has been quiet, as the principal demand has been on the part of the exporters for Germany, although there has also continued to be some call for the South American markets. Americans have only operated sparingly, as well as our local manufacturers, principally because there has not been enough new tobacco in our city. All this is bound to change, as we are advancing in the season.

Sales during the past fortnight amounted to 3,689 bales, or divided representing: Vuelta Abajo 840, Partido 374, and Remedios 2,475 bales. Buyers were: Americans 603, exporters to Germany 1,538, shippers to South America 921, and our local manufacturers 567 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from May 20th to June 1st, were:

|-----------------------------------|-------------|
| To all ports of the United States | 4,675 bales |
| To Bremen and Hamburg | 1,772 " |
| To Buenos Aires and Montevideo | 921 " |

Total 7,368 bales

Receipts of Tobacco from the Country were:

|-----------------------------------|-----------------------|
| For two weeks ending June 1, 1912 | Since January 1, 1912 |
| Vuelta Abajo 1,240 bales | 8,492 bales |
| Semi Vuelta 455 " | 1,268 " |
| Partido 1,218 " | 2,223 " |
| Remedios 4,119 " | 15,435 " |
| Mayari | 1,024 " |

Total 7,032 bales Total 28,442 bales

Principal Buyers of Leaf Tobacco That Come and Go.

Cigars.

Our export statistics show no improvement during the second half of May, as per Custom House returns, as follows, viz.:

|------------------------------------|------------------|
| From May 16 to May 31, 1912, | 9,456,742 Cigars |
| From May 16, 1911, to May 31, 1911 | 10,661,535 " |

|--|-------------------|
| From January 1, 1911, to May 31, 1911, | 76,429,398 Cigars |
| From January 1, 1912, to May 31, 1912, | 67,168,976 " |

Total decrease in 1912, 9,260,422 Cigars

The principal decreases by countries were: United States 604,847, Great Britain 404,514, German 238,931, Australia 194,870, and France 144,000 cigars.

The following countries show increases: Argentine Republic 217,449, Canada 101,139, Spain 81,651, and British Africa 41,500 cigars.

The above figures appear rather disheartening as even the United States, which ought to be our best customers, are showing the worst falling behind during the past fortnight. It is to be hoped, however, that we have arrived at the point, where the tide is bound to turn, and that before long we shall see an increase again in our exports to the principal countries, owing to the fine quality of this year's crop of tobacco. As regards wrappers, however, one manufacturer, who has been in the habit to buy a certain vega of tobacco every year, and which has yielded from 50 to 70 per cent. of wrappers each time, he found that this same vega this year will only yield 20 per cent, and that even these will not be clean in colors, but contain many bad spots. For this reason importers and retailers in the United States ought to do all in their power to post smokers in time and call their attention to this defect, although the smoking and burn are excellent, and far superior to former crops.

H. Upmann & Co. continue to be busy in their celebrated H. Upmann factory, and have enough orders on hand to keep their cigarmakers employed.

Romeo y Julieta is also well supplied with orders and working normally.

Partagas does not complain, as according to the season, it is doing as well as any of our factories.

Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd., report no change in their previously stated activity.

La Diligencia, under the new ownership of M. A. Gunst & Co., is quite busy upon a good order slate.

Castañeda is working along steadily, keeping up its reputation as the favorite at all banquets in the North.

Sol is doing well considering the epoch we are passing through at the moment.

Flor de P. A. Estanillo has received quite some good orders with the return of Don Felipe Rodriguez from the United States.

Eden, Don Manuel Lopez, the senior partner, has been delayed in coming here, through the happy occurrence of having become a grandfather. The factory is working quite strong for the South American markets.

Excessive rains and humidity have curtailed the output in our factories during the past eight days, as the material has been too moist to be workable upon some days.

Buying, Selling, and Other Notes of Interest.

Contrary to expectations, the revolt of the colored people has not been subjugated yet, and it seems that the ramifications had extended further than was believed at first. However, through the acts of the leaders, in trying to make a race war against the white people, they have raised such a storm of indignation throughout the whole island, that all the white people, irrespective even of nationality, have combined to defend themselves against such African savages. And while the end cannot be foreseen, how soon the latter will be exterminated, it is bound to lead to a better state of affairs in the future. President Gomez's allocations to the people to arm themselves for self-defence has had the desired effect, in increasing the army and creating enough volunteer forces, so that finally the colored bandits will not escape their deserved fate. The latter have hidden themselves in the wildernesses of the mountains and virgin woods of the province of Santiago de Cuba, and are being helped by spies about the movements of the troops. They are enabled to fly upon the approach of the army, being even too cowardly to accept a battle, leaving a majority of men, and which happened at the burning and pillaging of the defenceless village of La Maya, as soon as a small contingent of troops returned. The violations of white women by negro brutes has capped the climax. Fortunately, through the establishment of military law, the spies can be summarily dealt with and shot upon the spot when caught. Even here in Havana there has been some excitement, and quite a number of colored people have been arrested upon suspicion to be concerned in this uprising, and they have been government employees in a great majority, thus showing that the better they were treated by the whites, the more ungrateful they became, and were trying to conspire against their benefactors. The time, however, has not come for Cuba to be a second Haiti, as fortunately the whites outnumber the colored people by over double the figures, or in other words not quite one-third of the whole population is colored. The assistance by the United States in landing marines to protect American property has been gratefully accepted by our government, as the latter will thus be enabled to devote all its soldiers to the prosecution of the black miscreants.

Gonzalez & Benitez were sellers of 795 bales of leaf during the past fortnight.

L. Kaffenburgh & Sons were sellers of 185 bales of new Remedios from their escogidas.

Manuel Rodriguez, of Rodriguez & Tejeiro, of New York, selected some 263 bales of choice vegas of Vuelta Abajo, old and new crop.

Latest Doings of Milwaukee Tobacco Men

Leo Roth, in Wholesale Business for 46 Years, Dies After Lingering

Illness—Edgerton Cigar Co. Erects Storage Warehouse—

Many Changes in Tobacco Circles

MILWAUKEE, WIS., June 10.

LEO ROTH, for forty-six years engaged in the cigar and tobacco business at 296 East Water street, died June 8th at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Max Perceles, 603 Hackett avenue, after a lingering illness, at the age of sixty-five years. Mr. Roth was one of the well known wholesale dealers of this city. He was prominent in Jewish circles and was a member of Temple Emanu-El. He is survived by his wife and four children.

The American Tobacco Company, a New Jersey corporation with a capital stock of $93,788,700, of which $238,826.65 is invested in Wisconsin, filed a statement to do business in this State with an office in Milwaukee.

Following the suggestion of H. Walton Heegstra at the recent convention here of the Rexall Drug Store Club of Wisconsin, in regard to the most successful ways in attracting the public to unique window displays, the A. Spiegel Drug Co., West Water street and Grand avenue, recently arranged a novel way to advertise the "Black and White" cigars. In the center of the main window, which was filled with boxes of "Black and White" cigars, Sambo, a colored man, sat leisurely smoking a large corncob pipe (filled with "Black and White" smoking tobacco) and whitewashed pieces of coal. Large crowds were attracted by this novel sight. It is said the display will be made at each of the 5,000 Rexall stores in the United States.

The B. Fernandez Co., makers of the "Harvester" cigar, suffered somewhat through the freight handlers' strike, a consignment of twenty-five barrels of loose Havana leaf being spoiled in transit owing to the delay caused by the strike.

Business with the local retailers has been quite good, no complaints being heard.

Steve Surman, manager of the Cuba Rica Cigar Company, has made a display of the "El Baton," which is moving quite well.

Fay Lewis & Bro. Co. report an active business both wholesale and retail, all lines moving well. This company has recently put on a new man in the State, Alex Arkins, who will make in between districts, not now covered by the older men. The city districts have also been re-arranged. Mr. Pieler putting in all his time in the downtown district, Mr. Zorger taking the entire north side, and Arthur Roelke, a new man, the south side. Edgar Hoe, secretary of the company, recently took a short vacation at French Lick Springs, Ind. He was accompanied by Mr. E. T. McGuire, manager of the pipe department.

Leo Abraham is doing his usual business. The "La Verdad," "Rosa de Mayo," "Tadema" and "Lovera" are moving very well. The "Charter" also continues to move nicely. His private brand, the "Don Corrello," is taking hold nicely and sales are increasing. Abraham has adopted a black and white design in making display windows of this brand, the Third street store having a large black sign covering the entire space with white lettering. It is very noticeable, the contrast standing out plainly. The third street window is being used to display "La Verdads" in all sizes.

Otto Krohn, of the pipe repair department, recently joined the ranks of the other Benedicts. He has moved his own store which he opened a few months ago, to his home. Joe Feiger still finds it necessary to use a cane to get about, but takes his regular turn at the store, relieving Sam Bach.

A. O. Meister continues to enjoy his usual business at Mason and East Water streets. He is displaying the "Equity" in his windows at present.

Ralph Wettstein, the Grove street cigarist, is enjoying a nice trade. He recently added several new brands to his large assortment. The candy business, which he established next door to his store some time ago is also doing well.

A. S. Goodrich & Co. are doing very well with the "Cinco" and "Equity." Collections are also reasonably good.

Quite a number of changes have occurred throughout the State. At Wausau, Wis., a new cigar factory has been established by Gust. Krueger.

J. C. Harer, a former cigarmaker at Beaver Dam, who a few years ago sold out to Carl Haertl, has re-purchased the business. He has been engaged in the cigar business in that city for the greater part of the past 25 years.

At Green Bay, Wis., Gustav A. Schmidt, cigar manufacturer, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities $2166.19, assets $721.30.

A new cigar factory has also been opened at that place by Frank E. Ambach.

Fred A. Ruplin, formerly a salesman of the P. & W. Cigar Co., has contracted for the northwest agency of the Nicholas Kuhnen Cigar Co., of Davenport, Ia. His headquarters will be at La Crosse, Wis. Among the brands he will handle are the "Dulce Maria," a ten cent cigar, and the "Pappoose," a nickel smoke.

A. W. Nehls, of Ripon, has closed out his retail business, and will devote his attention to the manufacturing of his "Blue Bird" and "Royal Seal" cigars.

The Edgerton Cigar Co., Edgerton, Wis., has begun the erection of a storage warehouse for their manufactured tobacco business. The building will be 60 x 22 feet, one story, fire proof on the outside. This company is now doing a large business in that section.

M. S. Park and Ralph E. Smith formed a partnership in the cigar business at Evansville, Wis.

John McArthur has engaged in the cigar business at Oconto, Wis. Chas. Hutchinson will open a cigar factory at Wausaukee, Wis., and Amil Scantland has engaged in business at Washburn.

At Kaukauna, Wis., Dick Shobliske and Will Kappel have opened a cigar store, and Knute Anderson moved his cigar factory from Wausaukee to Iron Mountain.

Sanford Soverhill lost a carload of tobacco by fire, while in transit. The loss was about $4500. Fred Guene, formerly of the Guene Tobacco Co., Janesville, has entered the employ of C. L. Culton, Edgerton, and will have charge of the tobacco department.

George W. Lentz, a well-known Baltimore leaf dealer, died in the Church Home Infirmary, that city, after an operation. Mr. Lentz was head of G. W. Lentz & Company, with offices at 502 East Lombard street. He was born in Baltimore, sixty-two years ago, and leaves a widow, a daughter and a son, G. Howard Lentz, who will probably continue the business.

Abraham Goldstein, a prominent Baltimore cigar manufacturer and retailer, was run over by an automobile in that city recently and sustained injuries which resulted in his death. No Pessimists Among Boston Retailers

Trade Improving Steadily—M. Roitman Opens New Stand; Gus Hall to Open Another—National Theatre to Allow Smoking During Performance

BOSTON, May 8th. THE cigar and tobacco business in Boston is advancing every day. Retail trade particularly is showing new life.

M. Roitman has opened a cigar, cigarette and tobacco store at 21 Dock Square, in the center of the market district, where he will sell wholesale and retail.

S. Adler, of the "Union American Cigar Company," is in Boston this week working on the "Rocky Ford" cigars. Reports a fair trade.

The new National Theatre on Tremont street, Boston, is to be turned into a Cabaret house this summer. Smoking will be allowed during the show.

John Kroog (Wm. Demuth & Co.) is in town this week with a full line of pipes. Boston pipe smokers like a good looking pipe.

The jobbers here who have a park and summer hotel trade report business is coming ahead in good shape—the Norembega, Lexington and Paragon Parks. At the summer hotels, Point of Pine, Reven, Winthrop and Nantasket beaches, everything is moving forward rapidly. New cigar stands are being built and the owners expect a large trade.

At the Summer street store of Cobb, Bates & Yerck is a very fine window display of cigars and tobacco which has drawn hundreds of summer tourists.

Gus Hall is soon to open a new store on Federal street, very near the South Station, where thousands pass every day. He will handle the best Havana and domestic cigars.

A. S. Hovey, of Lynn, carries a fine stock of Havana cigars. The leader is the famed "La Integridad," which holds the center of the window display. Mr. Hovey says that the Havana cigars are in more demand than domestic just now.

At the drug store of Paul C. Klein, corner Boylston and Tremont streets, can be found a fine assortment of Havana and domestic cigars, cigarettes, etc. His window display has a fine assortment of the best known brands of all kinds of cigars, cigarettes and accessories.

Pillsbury & Co., of the "Pelham," 76 Boylston street, says that business is good and growing better every day. Distributors of "Ponce de Leon" clear Havana cigars and domestic cigars, Boston-made.

At the Hollis Hotel, 249 Tremont street, where C. H. Knapp is manager of the cigar department, business is very good.

John Cimerblatt, 209 Tremont street, makers of the "Tremont Smokers," "J. C. B.," "West End D. C.," "Havana Panatelas," "Maximo Gomez," says that their box trade is improving.

In the Charlestown district, Boston, Mass., trade is fair through the different stores. B. O. Churchill, Main street, right under the historical shaft of Bunker Hill Monument, says that business is good and the call for domestic cigars is greater than for Havana.

At the "Waverly House Cigar Store," City Square, business is satisfactory.

At the Henly street cigar store, also the store of A. H. Gilbert, 294 Main street, Charlestown, and the store of D. Gallagher, 340 Main street, "Bull Durham" tobacco, light and dark; "Mecca" cigarettes and the cigars named the "Poet," "Marksman" and "Worker" have the call, and are largely patronized by the Navy Yard employes.

At Green's Pharmacy, corner of Eliot and Tremont streets, business is fair; so many cigar stores in the vicinity and all trying to sell make the business lighter for some of them.

The "Chesterfield Cigarette Company," "J. B. Cherry & Co.," "Copenhagen Cigar Company," on Shawmut avenue; the "Berkeley Cigar Store," the "Sawyer Drug Company," "John E. Jacobson" and "Glick Cigar Store" all report business as fair and improving every week.

The lease is for five years and work has already been contracted for looking to the elaborate reconstruction of the store, which will be finished in the usual "United" manner.

Shortage of Manila Cigars on Coast

San Francisco Distributors Handicapped by Tardy Arrival of Goods Bouquet-Cohn Co. Absorbs Stand of V. E. Stein

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8.

CONDITIONS in California have not been conducive to much activity in the cigar business for the last week, as the weather suddenly turned hot, and for a few days the temperature in San Francisco came near breaking the record. This tended to curtail the retail demand to some extent, but the principal effect was to limit the placing of orders by retailers, who do not like to keep much surplus stock during the dry weather. The vacation season has started in the city, and things will doubtless be a little quiet for the next few months, but jobbers anticipate rather more trade in the country than usual. Fruit and other crops are turning out above expectations, and will require many people to handle them, while in some parts of the country new towns have been springing up, with their natural accompaniment of smoke shops.

Handlers of Manila cigars are still having trouble in getting enough goods. The manufacturers find it impossible to get sufficient skilled labor to take care of their increasing business, and the distributors in this country, notwithstanding frequent heavy arrivals, find themselves short most of the time. On the Manchuria, which arrived a few days ago, there were 150,000 of the "Maria Cristina" and "Perla del Oriente" brands for Michalitschke Bros. & Co., and a large lot of "Insulators" for the Edward Wolf Co., all of which were badly needed.

I. Danziger, broker for prominent Manila factories, who suffered a severe illness last month, has recovered and has been looking after the business for the last couple of weeks.

Edw. Wolf, of the Edward Wolf Co., says he has found his retail store in connection with the wholesale headquarters a great help. The retail windows have been effectively used for display work, one of the most telling displays of late being of the "El Infinito" cigar. This brand was shown in many different sizes, with a booklet issued by the factory describing its manufacture. Mr. Wolf is well satisfied with the trade in "Nestor" cigarettes, and has noted considerable improvement from the work of Geo. Cacematis, the specialty man sent out some time ago by the Nestor Gianaclis factory. Mr. Cacematis left about a week ago for the Southern California cities, where he will follow out the same lines of work as in San Francisco.

Gabe Cohn, operating a chain of retail stores under the name of Bouquet-Cohn Company, has annexed the stand of V. E. Stein on California street. The place will be under the personal charge of Leo Gans.

A. F. Franks, head of a prominent factory at Jacksonville, Ill., has been in the city for several days. Another recent visitor was T. Leach, representing the Rice Mercantile Company, of St. Louis, Mo.

Arthur Meyer, Western representative of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, has left for another tour of his large territory. While in the city he made arrangements to have the leading brand, "Alexander Humboldt," prominently exhibited in a number of display windows.

M. A. Gunst is again in the city, after an extended tour of the East. The new Gunst humidior is now practically complete, and is something entirely unique on the Coast. The front of the store has been rebuilt, the entrance being moved from the corner to the California street side, and the plate glass windows are set off with a handsome base and trim of verd antique marble. The humidior occupies the corner, with fine display windows on both front and California streets, the other walls being lined with natural Spanish cedar, which is also used for the beamed ceiling and shelving, while the floor is of brick. This leaves somewhat less floor space in front of the regular retail counter, but really gives more space to retail purposes, as the humidior will be used as a salesroom on occasion.

I. I. Hess, Coast representative of A. Santaella & Co., is visiting the trade in the north Coast cities.

Horace Gladstone, representing Bondy & Lederer, is spending some time with the trade at Portland, Ore.

Milo Adams, representing the Surbrug Company, has been calling on the local trade for the last week.

Arnold Pollak, one of the old-time cigar brokers of San Francisco, has at last taken up the Manila business, securing the agency in the Western States for the Heloise brand.

Irving Pollak, who operates the cigar stand in the Merchants' Exchange, is well satisfied with his business at present. He has built up a large regular patronage among visitors to the Exchange, and gets a good transient trade as well.

Major F. S. Burrows, representing the "Lovera" factory on the Coast, states that the distributors of his line in other parts of the Coast have followed the lead of Wellman, Peck & Co., of this city, in organizing Lovera baseball teams among their employes. Major Burrows has been introducing a small size Lovera cigar, to retail at 5 cents, in the Coast market, and is having great success with it.

E. E. Klauber and G. W. Walker, prominent cigar men of Los Angeles, are visiting San Francisco at present.

Frankel, Gerdt & Co. are feeling some anxiety over the Cuban situation. They are about the largest consumers of Havana leaf on the Coast.

Gus Orsor, Ehrman Bros. & Co.'s traveler east of the Bay, who was badly injured recently in an automobile wreck, is again making his rounds of the trade.

Emil Judell, of H. L. Judell & Co., is calling on the Oregon trade at present. This house has been working for the last month on the introduction of a new 5 cent line, under the brand of "A Good Cigar," on which they are having a very satisfactory sale.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Lancaster Tobacco Men Growing More Optimistic

LANCASTER, June 11.

TOBACCO men, whether retailers, jobbers or manufacturers, are unanimous in the opinion that there has been a decided improvement in the Lancaster district within the past two weeks. The cigar manufacturing trade was rather dull early in May, but since then it is gratifying to note that things warrant an optimistic feeling as to the future. The reports from the West, where Pennsylvania-made cigars have a brisk call, are more encouraging than they have been for some time and everyone believes it is only a question of a short time before all the factories will again be pushed to the limit.

The local leaf trade is rather slack at present. There has been some business done in old goods, but the packers are more interested just now in the condition of the new crop. They report that it is sweating nicely and that it will be a money maker for them.

There has been virtually nothing doing as far as buying of new goods was concerned. The dealers are still on the outlook for more desirable leaf, but purchases have been very few. The crops unsold are of a fairly large acreage and some of these growers claim they will do their own packing before they sell at the low prices the packers are willing to pay.

W. E. Morrow has purchased the cigar store of William McLaughlin & Son, at Prince and Orange streets. He says he will handle a representative line of goods including the products of the 44 Cigar Company and the Eisenlohr brands the "Cinco" and "Henrietta."

Edmund A. Schneck, a cigar manufacturer of Womelsdorf, Pa., dropped dead while on a business trip in Rohensonia, Berks county, recently.

William Reese, who, until recently was steward of the Citizens' Republican Club, has purchased the cigar store of Jacob Isenberg, at 255 N. Queen street. Mr. Isenberg has been in business for more than thirty years. Mr. Reese is well-known around town and has the best wishes of all his friends in his new venture. He says he will conduct one of the best stands in town.

S. R. Moss, of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, recently returned from a trip to the West. He is enthusiastic over the outlook in that part of the country and backs up his enthusiasm with liberal orders for the Moss goods.

Robert M. Granat & Co., leaf dealers, have leased a building on West Lemon street, lately used by Morris Levy, which they will utilize as a warehouse. They will move their office to that building on July first.

The lockout at the Elm street factory of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company still continues. The former employees of the plant have been trying to come to an understanding with the company, but with no results. They have stated their case to the New York headquarters in an endeavor to settle matters, telling of the conditions under which they had been working. The strikers are being assisted financially by the local Cigarmakers' Union, until an agreement is reached.

Among the recent visitors in the local field were noted the following: E. M. Koser and H. M. Snyder, of the P. Lorillard Co., working "Tomahawk" scrap; R. Murdock and H. H. Gordon, of Bloch Bros. Tobacco Co.; Benjamin Grabowsky, of the G. H. P. Cigar Company, of Philadelphia, and M. C. Myers, of E. Springarn & Co., New York.

Reading Trade Shows Upward Trend

READING, June 11.

WHILE the cigar business has shown a decided improvement for the better in this territory, all the important factors in the trade admit they are not being overworked. The factories are all running with a fair number of orders.

The Penn Cigar Company reports a brisk demand for their newly introduced cigar, the "Iron Prince," and are looking forward to even larger orders as the cigar becomes better known.

Yocum Bros. are kept busy supplying the calls for the "Y.-B." cigars. The "Y.-B." is a widely known product and smokers are beginning to appreciate the smoking qualities of this Reading-made piece of goods. The brand is particularly well known on the Pacific Coast, Los Angeles supplying many of the smokers of this cigar. Yocum Bros. have had several fetching displays of their cigars in local retailers' windows, one of the best being that of Chas. W. Potteiger, who does quite a retail and jobbing business on the Yocum products.

The Fleck Cigar Company is one of the busiest factories in town at the present time. They are confining their efforts principally to two brands, the "Rose O'Cuba," a 5 cent smoke, and the "Royal Bob," which retails at a dime. They have a brisk call for their products in the Middle West at this time, where conditions in the trade appear to be improving more noticeably.

The Porto Vana is another of the busy factories. They report an increasing demand for the "Sheik" brand.

Charles Brenceiser's Sons, Seventh and Penn streets, are well pleased at the progress made within the past two weeks. They have been pushing the "Chief Joseph," a 5 cent cigar, claiming that it is the best 5 cent smoke sold anywhere. And judging by results there are a number of people who agree with them on that point.

Receipts at York Revenue Office Show Large Increase

YORK, June 11.

THE receipts at the York office of the Ninth Internal Revenue District established a record for 1912 during May, when a total of $99,367.62 was taken in for the sale of stamps. This amount is $6,038.83 in excess of the receipts for May, 1911, and $12,535.06 more than for the preceding month, April. Fourteen new cigar and tobacco factories were opened in York City and county during the month, furnishing employment to 240 hands.

The big increase in receipts and the size of the factories launched during May indicates a healthy condition of the cigar and tobacco industry in York and York county. A majority of the plants are working full time, many overtime, and all seem to be fairly well supplied with orders. The past was the biggest May business for several years.

Of the new factories opened the largest was that started in this city by Chester G. Myers, which employs 50 hands. The Costa Rica Cigar Company also begun operations during the past month in this city with 40 hands and the plant of the Dover Cigar Company, this city, was opened with 35 hands at work. Thirty hands are employed in the Eugene Gallagher Cigar Company's plant in Dallastown, which was another cigar industry to begin.

The growers have disposed of most of the 1911 crop and are now busily preparing for the coming season. They were rather late in starting, being delayed by the inclement weather and continued rains, but the farm work is now well under way. The planters are non-committal as a rule on the coming season, but it is a pretty safe guess that the Burley grown in this region in the future will be almost a rarity. "Never again" appears to be the general verdict.

Young & Busser, owners of the Central Square cigar store have made application for a State charter and will soon be known under the name of the Young & Busser Company. It is their intention to enlarge the business. The incorporators will be Charles P. Young, George T. Stallman, and Charles H. Sieker. Mr. Sieker will succeed Mr. Young in the active management of the concern.

The C. H. Plitt Cigar Company is securing splendid results on their "Liar" cigar, which was recently introduced to the trade. They are doing some extensive advertising on this brand, both in trade journals and the local newspapers, and the "Liar" should before long be one of the best known nickel smokes. There are over fifty retailers in York alone handling the "Liar." Young & Busser supply the trade in this region and are more than pleased at the outlook for this new York piece of goods.

The Merchants Cigar Box Company is at present working on full time, which would seem to indicate the improvement in the local field.

Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., of Philadelphia, through their representative in this section, Albert Lehman, have been large purchasers of York county leaf. Mr. Lehman has been very successful in securing desirable tobacco in this region and has purchased hundreds of thousands of pounds.

H. L. Pue, of Bardstown, Ky., will shortly open a cigar factory in Glasgow, that State. Glasgow is at present a large loose leaf tobacco center, having sold 12,000,000 pounds of tobacco the past season.

Max Joseph, who opened a stogie factory at 1505 Bremen street, Cincinnati, a short time ago, has discontinued operations. Charles L. Bose, another Cincinnati manufacturer, located at 1408 Pleasant street, has also gone out of business.

Dignan Cigar Company Reorganizes

The J. J. Dignan Cigar Company, of San Francisco, recently incorporated with an authorized capital stock of $25,000 and will succeed the Dignan Cigar Company. The only retail store is at Eddy and Powell streets, but it is intended to establish a chain of stands in the near future. Mark E. Jacobson and J. J. Dignan are the incorporators.

Hygiene Cigar Co. New Tampa Concern

Tampa is to have a new cigar manufacturing firm. It will do business under the name of Hygiene Cigar Company and will be operated by E. M. Andrews and W. M. Lamb.

A building on Nebraska avenue, that city, is now in course of erection and will furnish seating capacity for fifty workmen. Their leading brands will be "Andrews Hygiene" and "Tampa."

The idea of the new concern is to have the cleanest plant possible, and they expect to fulfill all that the firm name implies in manufacturing their product.

Alabama Tobacco Co. Pushes American Havana

CIGAR manufacturers' attention is called to the announcement of the Alabama Tobacco Company appearing on page 46 in this issue of the TOBACCO WORLD.

This concern, with offices in 1305 Heyworth Building, Chicago, is submitting to the trade all grades of wrappers, consisting of a fine line of lights, mediums and darks, the fanciest, they claim, ever offered to manufacturers. They also sell direct from their warehouse high grade fillers and binders which should command the attention of leaf tobacco purchasers.

The product the Alabama Tobacco Company handles is American-Havana. It is raised on their plantations in Baldwin county, Ala., grown under shade and in open field by their experts and then prepared in their large curing plant at Summerdale, that State.

To manufacturers interested in American-Havana, and there are undoubtedly thousands of such, the proposition of this progressive company should be of especial interest.

Hull, Grummond & Co. Extending Business

Hull, Grummond & Company, a recently organized cigar manufacturing firm of Binghamton, N. Y., purchased about a fortnight ago the Joseph V. Brown Building at 215 Washington street, that city, and will occupy the premises about July 1.

Hull, Grummond & Company was organized during January of the present year with a capitalization of $1,000,000. John Hull, Jr., is the president; Adolph Whitelaw, vice-president, and Herbert S. Vance, secretary and treasurer of the concern. This firm is now using in Binghamton a large factory on Water street, part of the Rogers Building, a basement on State street, and is also using considerable space outside the city for storage purposes.

C. Lauber Opens New Smoke Shop

C. Lauber, one of the oldest and best known tobacco merchants of New Haven, Conn., recently admitted his son, Clarence, into the firm. And to fittingly celebrate the change he started another stand at 5 Church street, that city, and put his son in charge. The firm is now C. Lauber & Son.

The interior of the new store is finished in oak, with wall humidors and silent salesman. They will carry a high grade line of goods, featuring "Charles the Great," "Webster" and "Sanchez y Haya."

Justin Seubert Absorbs Guilfoyle Cigar Co.

The Guilfoyle Cigar Company, of Binghamton, N. Y., was recently purchased by Justin Seubert, one of the largest New York State cigar manufacturers, with a factory in Syracuse. It is said that the factory will be continued at Binghamton with the regular force of employes, now numbering one hundred and twenty hands.

Bondy & Lederer Removed to Northampton

The cigar factory of Bondy & Lederer at Nanticoke, near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., where four hundred girls struck for higher wages and shorter hours, has been dismantled and removed to Northampton, Pa., where they will locate in the future. The girls were first notified that their requests would not be granted and that the plant would be removed if they did not return to work. Upon their refusal the declaration was carried into effect.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

New York Leaf Trade Dull---Planters Working Hard Setting Out Plants--- Little Buying In Edgerton Market

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY.

THE local leaf tobacco market is virtually doing nothing at present, and dealers are reporting few sales of substantial amounts. Binders at this writing still remain very scarce and manufacturers are experiencing trouble in securing enough. Connecticut and Florida shade-grown tobacco are moving along at a brisk rate, and several good sales have been reported within the last few days.

Dealers are not doing very much in the new Sumatra, the manufacturers evidently being fairly well supplied at present. The old Sumatra, being inferior to the new is now not selling as well as the 1911 goods, even though it is far cheaper. Manufacturers appear to prefer the newer leaf, owing to its superior quality.

The business in Cuban leaf is at a low point, no sales of any size being reported. Dealers are greatly interested in the rapidly with which the new tobacco is being cured and packed. Owing to the continued rains in Cuba the planters have been enabled to take down a large portion of the crop. According to the present outlook the tobacco will more than come up to expectations as far as quantity, burn, aroma and quality are concerned. The wrappers, as previously reported, will possibly be a great deal darker and of poorer quality, some of them being spotted badly.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA.

THE past fortnight has shown a slight change for the better among leaf tobacco dealers. While many of them are far from being embarrassed with too many orders, no complaints are heard, as sales are going on at a steady rate. There has been a healthy call for all kinds of leaf, with possibly the exception of Havana, which is moving slowly.

The inquiries for Connecticut are more numerous than heretofore, but the brokers state that manufacturers are balking at the advanced price on this variety of leaf. The new Sumatra, while meeting with the approval of all authorities on Dutch leaf, is not selling as fast as could be expected.

The new Pennsylvania is being disposed of in a fashion, and would possibly sell faster were it not that a number of manufacturers are said to have quite an amount of the 1910 Pennsylvania still on hand.

The leaf market reflects fairly well the condition among manufacturers, who are reporting increased orders. The retail trade is rather dull at present, compared with this period in former years.

LANCASTER.

The planters in this district have been hard at work the past two weeks and they have been transplanting at a great rate. The warmer weather and the rains assisted them materially so that the pessimists who were already predicting misfortune are feeling better. By the middle of June the fields will have been planted almost at all points.

There still remains a fair portion of the 1911 crop, but it is being absorbed pretty rapidly. Some of the larger growers have been packing their leaf this year, more than was ever the case before in this district. The prices have been ranging from seven cents up to eleven, although some growers with extra good crops have refused to sell even at the higher price.

The leaf dealers are all unanimous in the opinion that conditions in the leaf market could not possibly be duller. They report numerous inquiries but at prices which they state would be ruinous to them.

YORK.

The 1911 crop has been almost cleaned up in this section. The Lancaster buyers have been quite numerous here but have not purchased as largely as in former years. The Eisenlohrs have possibly been the heaviest buyers having taken large portions of the crops in Druck and Smyser valleys. Prices, the last two weeks, have been ranging from four to nine cents, much of it bringing the lower quotation.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI.

TRANSPLANTING has been going on in a lively manner in the Burley section, timely rains following several days of sunshine. It is now conceded that the acreage will not be as large as was thought early in the season, owing to the disappointing price of the lower grade crops and scarcity and high price of grains, many preferring to raise the latter. In some districts the acreage will be 25 per cent. less than last season.

Burley markets are about the same, the color grades continuing in special demand.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON.

THE trade in tobacco leaf within the past fortnight clearly indicates a falling away in buying. There is so little of the 1911 crop left in the hands of the growers that virtually no buying is being done. Only widely scattered lots remain and these are being thoroughly hunted. For all practical purposes the crop has been absorbed.

Warehouse handling is still continuing in a desultory manner and stemming operations are being pushed with the released help.

The business in old leaf continues dull. No sales of any amount have been recorded.

A wet May has put the growers behind with their work. The weather has been more favorable the past week and the preparing of the soil for the new crop is under full way. The plants have been doing finely and in many instances have grown so large that they are crowding. Although most farmers think the week of June 15 to 22nd is early enough for planting in this State, it now looks as if some of them would be compelled to get the crop in the fields to use the plants at the proper size.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD.

ALTHOUGH transplanting was about ten days late, the growers are now fairly well under way. A number have been working on Sunday, taking advantage of favorable weather. Even with the difficulties encountered, the young plants in the field are looking extremely well. The planters are now hoping that the fair weather will continue, so they can rush their work. Thousands of acres of land still remain unplowed.

The hail storm several weeks ago, compelled many farmers to reset much of their acreage. Several farmers received hail insurance, and others are becoming interested in the proposition.

The binder situation has no equal in the Connecticut valley. In former years growers had their crops assorted and cased and held them for prices, but last winter's prices caused many of them to dispose of all their holdings. Under those circumstances there is very little of the 1911 crops unsold in the valley. Meanwhile the 1911 packings are moving along to market at a great rate.

Taylor Bros. to Erect Factory

W. B. and J. P. Taylor, tobacco manufacturers of Winston-Salem, N. C., purchased from the Norfolk and Western Railroad a lot on Depot street in Winston-Salem recently, where it is reported they intend shortly to erect a large tobacco factory.

About a month ago they purchased a large leaf warehouse which was shortly afterward destroyed by fire. The Taylors now own an entire city block, they having secured the lot adjoining their last purchase from the American Tobacco Company.

Frye & Feiock Stogie Company is the firm name of a new stogie manufacturing concern recently launched in Dayton, O. Lynn Beach, formerly connected with the Augustus Pollack factory in Wheeling, W. Va., is superintendent of the plant.

It has been rumored that the cigar manufacturing firm of Kelly & Company, of Valdosta, Ga., expects to shortly move their factory to Savannah. They are said to be treating with the Savannah Board of Trade for a good location.

August Thielman, formerly manager of the Pittsburgh Cigar Company, has purchased the cigar stand in Newell's Hotel, that city. This hotel is the headquarters for many of the sporting fraternity of the "Smoky City."

Leaf News of Interest

Burley Tobacco Society to Close Out 1909 Pool

The district board of the Burley Tobacco Society, in Lexington, Ky., has voted to put the tobacco in the 1909 pool on the markets of Cincinnati and Louisville, and if it is not all sold by July 1, then the Burley Tobacco Company will buy in what remains and make a distribution to growers who pooled their crops.

It is reported that there are about 5,900 hogsheds of the 1909 pool to be disposed of.

Richmond Leaf Tobacco Season Closes

The leaf tobacco season has virtually closed in Richmond, Va. The winding up sales were held last week on the warehouse floors and the auctioneers have gone on their summer vacations. It will probably be the latter part of September before the sales are again commenced.

The reports from the sun-cured tobacco territory in Virginia would seem to indicate that great preparations have been made for a big crop, and also a good crop the coming season.

Cuban Filler Leaf Grown in Gulf States

The Department of Agriculture at Washington reports that within recent years cigar filler tobacco of the Cuban type has been successfully grown on the Orangeburg fine sandy loam, in the Atlantic and Gulf coastal plains from North Carolina to East Central Texas, with yields ranging from 500 to 1200 pounds per acre.

A new leaf tobacco concern, the Stivers Tobacco Warehouse Company, has purchased a location in Lexington, Ky., where they intend to erect one of the largest sales floors in that city. The establishment will be fitted out with every up-to-date appliance for the expeditious handling of tobacco.

Julius Frei, at one time a partner in the firm of Daly & Frei, Cincinnati leaf merchants, with a large warehouse at Front and Vine streets, is now in business for himself alone at Plum and Court streets, that city.

Gains in Lancaster District on Cigars

Out of the total of $256,894.34 collected in the Ninth Internal Revenue District of Pennsylvania, for the month of May, which includes the city of Lancaster, $183,191.67 represents the tax on 61,638,900 cigars, the amount of the latter item showing a healthy improvement in the cigar industry over the month of April when the revenue receipts were $162,348.70, representing the tax from 54,116,233 cigars.

The city of Lancaster has shown a decided improvement within the past six weeks and the above figures would seem to indicate that an era of prosperity is upon the manufacturers of that district.

John McNee & Sons to Open Branch

One of the large cigar manufacturing firms of Canada, John McNee & Sons, recently bought a five-story building on Sandwich street, Windsor, Ontario, where they expect to open a branch factory employing one hundred hands. The main plant in London, Ont., has four hundred employes and is one of the largest in that section of the country.

Columbus United Sales Company

Stock in New Concern Distributed Among One Thousand Representative Business Men of Columbus, O.—Will Save Salesmen's Commissions

UW. COMMAGER, general manager of the newly organized Columbus United Sales Company, Columbus, Ohio, was in Philadelphia during the week of June 3 calling on some of the cigar manufacturers. He also visited some of the principal manufacturing centers in the Ninth Pennsylvania Revenue District and placed liberal orders for the private brands of his concern.

When interviewed by a TOBACCO WORLD representative Mr. Commager outlined in a very interesting manner the organization and purpose of his company. He explained that they have sold one thousand shares of stock, at $10 each, to one thousand persons living in and around Columbus. With this capital they propose to put on the market a number of private brands of cigars and stogies which they will sell to the retail trade at a very close figure. They aim to save the salesmen's commission by having the dealers order direct, the demand being largely created by the influence of the one thousand stockholders and their friends, who are being constantly solicited by the company to boost the company's private goods.

In allotting the stock Mr. Commager states that it was distributed with the idea of taking in the representative men from each of Columbus' industries, thereby distributing the influence and making it a powerful factor in the creation of sales.

It is the purpose of the company also to engage in other lines, they having already built up a large business on private brand soap. The Ohio United Sales Company has just been incorporated by the men interested in the Columbus United Sales Company, who aim to work out the same plans broadcast through the State of Ohio. The men behind the project have ambitious plans for the expansion of their business and it will be interesting to observe whether they can put their co-operative idea into successful operation on a large scale. The scheme certainly is unique and its progress will be watched with interest everywhere.

At this time of year many salesmen use more brains in arranging to see the ball game than they do in selling their goods.

Now, Fatima advertising is good—it has made thousands of first sales. And the Fatima package, although inexpensive, is neat and attractive. But better than either of these first package sellers, the cigarettes have that holding quality that makes men come back for the second package.

A cigarette like Fatima, that can make repeat sales on merit alone—that can hold smokers year after year—is a good one to use for a leader—for nothing increases business so well as satisfied customers.

The big sale of Fatimas among business and professional men is a strong endorsement for them.

We declare the Bold not the equal, but the peer of any cigar selling to-day for 5c.

A Quality, Not a Quantity Journal

THE ordinary merchant's time is so well occupied and he is so absorbed in his business that he has a very limited time in which to scan his trade paper. Taking that into consideration "THE TOBACCO WORLD" is giving its readers a quality, and not a quantity magazine. We are building up an audience of readers who appreciate quality, brevity, authenticity and efficiency. When a busy man gets those qualities in his paper, he appreciates them. The special articles, letters and news stories, are all prepared with that end in view. If you are a busy man and are not a subscriber of ours, send in your $1.00 to-day to THE TOBACCO WORLD, 102 South 12th Street, Philadelphia and receive 24 copies of the best tobacco journal published.

On the train, the other day,
I met a salesman who traveled from Chicago to the Pacific Coast in the interest of a certain cigar manufacturer. Because of the wide area this salesman covered he could see his customers not oftener than twice a year. Some of them he sees only once a year and some dealers he visits once—never again.

The manufacturer who hires that salesman could lighten the salesman's work and increase his efficiency by the use of the advertising pages of The Tobacco World. The World would hunt out some new dealers and jobbers really worth a visit; and in its twenty-four calls during the year, (to the salesman's one or two), if the manufacturer use the advertising space at all wisely, the salesman would develop an appreciation of the merits of his cigars impossible to create through infrequent, widely separated, personal visits.

The cost would be a fraction of the salesman's railroad fare.

Three Retailers Arrested In Box Stuffing Crusade

Internal Revenue Office Makes Serious Charges Against Philadelphians—Other Dealers
Being Watched

THE crusade against box stuffing which was begun in Philadelphia several months ago, and which served for a time to scare off violators of the law, has been revived, owing to the discovery of a number of additional cases.

As a result of the secret investigations conducted by the Internal Revenue men, three prominent Philadelphia retailers were arrested during the past week and additional arrests are expected momentarily. The dealers accused have been under surveillance for some time and Chief Wilkes, of the Internal Revenue Office, is confident that he has sufficient evidence to convict them.

Harry and Louis Petroskey, proprietors of the Independent Cigar Stores, at 9 South and 107 North Thirteenth street, were the first arrested, being charged with stuffing "Cinco" cigar boxes with other brands and selling them for the genuine articles. They were arraigned in the U. S. Circuit Court and were held under $1,000 each for trial.

Simultaneously with the arrest of the Petroskeys was that of a relative, Louis M. Brown, who conducts a retail store at Fourth and Pine streets. Brown was accused of a similar offense.

The Petroskeys are well known in the tobacco trade circles of Philadelphia as chronic price cutters. Frequently they have been selling the standard nickel cigars at 7 for 25c. and their business on cut-price cigarettes has grown tremendously.

Other manufacturers than those making "Cincos" have been sending complaints recently to the Internal Revenue Office in regard to box stuffing, and it is the intention of the Government authorities to make renewed efforts to stamp out the illegal practice.

Gustav Jacoby Passes Away

Well-known Cigar Manufacturer Dies as Result of Surgical Operation

GUSTAV JACOBY, one of the veteran cigar manufacturers of New York, died while being operated upon in a local hospital. Mr. Jacoby had been hurried there on the advice of his physician, who said an operation was the only possible way of saving his life.

Mr. Jacoby had been an active factor in the trade for more than forty years. He came from Germany to America at the age of eighteen, learned his trade, and afterward went into business for himself. He was 68 years old and leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters. One of the sons is now a salesman with the Waldorf-Astoria Cigar Co.

A. L. Sylvester Now President of American Cigar Company

Succeeds Percival S. Hill, who Becomes Chairman of Board of Directors—Has had Remarkable Career

ANNOUNCEMENT was made on Wednesday last that P. S. Hill, the president of the American Tobacco Co., had resigned his subsidiary position as president of the American Cigar Co., and been elected to the newly created chairmanship of the board of directors of the cigar company. A. L. Sylvester has been elected to succeed Mr. Hill as president of the American Cigar Co.

In discussing this change Mr. Hill stated, that he considered Mr. Sylvester a logical successor to the presidency of the cigar company, owing to his thorough knowledge of all branches of the business from the leaf to the finished cigar.

The general duties of the presidency of the American Tobacco Co. have become so heavy that Mr. Hill stated that he felt that he would be unable to give the American Cigar Co. the necessary attention as president, but that in accepting his newly created office and in the elevation of Mr. Sylvester to the presidency, the progressive policy of the cigar company would be maintained to the uttermost.

The newly chosen head, A. S. Sylvester, is a born New Yorker and is recognized everywhere as an authority on tobacco. Although only in the early forties, he has been in the tobacco trade since he was fourteen years of age, at which time he was credited with having sold tobacco on the road.

He was for a number of years connected with the big Havana and New York house of Sylvester & Stern, who are today one of the most important factors in their line. But in the fall of 1909, Mr. Sylvester received a flattering offer from the American Tobacco Co., to become the chief of their cigar and leaf tobacco business, and since that time he has devoted himself exclusively to the service of the American Tobacco Co. That he has made good step by step is easily shown by his election to the presidency of the largest subsidiary company now controlled by the parent concern.

The first intimation which the trade might have had, of Mr. Sylvester becoming the leading factor in the American Cigar Co., was his recent election to the presidency of M. Stachelberg & Co., in Tampa, upon the retirement of E. J. Stachelberg.

He is a man of decided personality, an indefatigable traveller and a glutton for work.

The American Cigar Co. have chosen well.

How to Hold the Vacationist's Trade

Timely Suggestions for Stocking Up the Smoker Before He Leaves Town

NOW that warm weather, with its discomforts is upon us, and the resultant scurrying for the mountain, country or sea-shore by everyone is at hand, it behooves every tobacconist to cast around for ideas and means of securing the summer trade which does not naturally drift his way and also the trade of the vacationist. The latter usually has quite a bit of money and he intends stocking up before he leaves, so why not make him an attractive offer and even though the profit on your sales is small, you may secure his good-will, which may mean largely increased sales during the fall and winter. Do not allow him to leave town with money which rightfully should be invested with you. Do not wait for the smoker to come to your store. Go after him. The mammoth stores of today do not wait for trade. They use every means in their power to secure it, by circular, catalogue or newspaper—and they generally get it.

A prominent Philadelphia tobacco retailer secured a profitable summer business last year by mailing to his regular customers and others who rarely came to his place, an attractive circular giving some of his off-season offers. The circular was printed on a light brown paper, using red ink. The introductory was short and to the point and then it launched in on prices and special inducements for purchasing.

One particular which he laid special stress upon was the first-class condition of his goods. No smoker wants to take with him on his vacation an assortment of smoking material and then when he finds himself fifty miles from nowhere, enjoying a fine camping trip, discover that his tobacco and cigars are in an almost unsmokeable condition. The goods may have been fresh when they left your establishment, but the point is to sell them to him in such a packing that they stay fresh.

One of his offers comprised a pipe smoker's outfit. This consisted of several pounds of his leading mixture. With each package of a pound or more he gave away a pipe, the purchaser having the choice of a variety of styles. Many men state that they enjoy a pipe more while on their vacation than at any other time. There's no question that a pipeful of good tobacco tastes better while one is living next to nature than at any other time. And then there is the further advantage of having a smoking commodity which will stay in better condition than the more bulky cigar. This is especially true of the camper who must at all times economize on space. The tobacconist who keeps in touch with the smoker can avail himself at this season of any number of opportunities of securing this business by timely suggestions for camping outfits.

Many users of tobacco, who find that they always smoke more heavily on their vacations than at any other period, have formed the practice of stocking up on stogies before leaving for the annual recreation. There appears to be a prejudice in the minds of many men against the stogie as a street smoke. There's no denying the fact that for appearance the humble, Plebeian-looking stogie does not put up the front that his more expensive Havana or domestic cousin does, yet when a man goes out in the country or on a camping and fishing trip he never thinks of appearances and takes a keen pleasure in burning up any number of these smokes as he patiently waits for his fish to bite.

The stogie is put up in various packings and provided the can or jar is fitted with a moistener top, they stay in good condition. Do not keep them virtually hidden on your shelves and expect your customers to call for them. There are many towns where the stogie is almost unknown, yet in summertime they are among the "best sellers." Many men who rarely, perhaps never, smoke a pipe, are open to argument when you put the stogie up to them as a satisfying smoke while roughing it.

The man who will have nothing but the "coffin nail," consumes them almost by the wholesale in the "good old summer time." Make him an interesting vacation offer and he will "fall for it." Give him a neat cigarette holder or case free with a certain number of cigarettes. No specific offers are given here, but any wide-awake tobacconist can reckon pretty closely what he can offer on a certain deal and can make his offers accordingly.

Finally we come to the ever-popular domestic and imported cigar. Many men stick to this way of smoking as a drowning man does to a straw and with this class lies the best opportunity of large sales and correspondingly large profits.

Take, for instance, your banker or broker customer, or the prosperous business man, doctor or lawyer. To many men in either of these classes price is almost immaterial, provided you give him the quality. He may go away for several months at a time, and to a place where the imported cigar is at a premium. It borders on a calamity, in his mind, if he is caught with his supply of Perfectos exhausted.

Emphasize the superior quality of your goods, give him an attractive offer, and urge upon him the prime necessity of keeping his cigars in condition. When he purchases hundreds of cigars, the humidior as a premium, or at a discount, should never fail to interest him. To this kind of smoker a dollar does not look as large as a cart-wheel and if he secures a cigar of quality, he rarely grumbles about the price. And the added advantage of possessing something with which to keep them in condition will get him every time.

One scheme for boosting summer sales has been tried out by a prominent New York store and found to be an excellent one. It is nothing more nor less than supplying some of the customers with addressed postal cards when they leave for out-of-the-way vacation places. Many smokers do not wish to take a large supply away with them and naturally feel distressed if they run out of tobacco. With an addressed postal conveniently at hand the first impulse will be to fill out one side and mail it. Any keen customer will realize that a house of any reputation will doubly strive to fill a mail order with entire satisfaction and will doubtless take advantage of the opportunity.

It matters little what your customer uses, be it the cigar, cigarette or tobacco, you should make it a point to interest him before he migrates and get some of that loose change he would otherwise carry away with him and spend elsewhere, perhaps in an out-of-the-way summer resort, where he may not be able to secure the smoke he longs for.

In working up this vacation business work your window for all that's in it. Change it frequently. Use a good line of talk and it surely will bring results. The following should give ideas on the vacation window bulletin:

THIS MEANS YOU,

MR. VACATIONIST!

Have you ever gone to some out-of-the-way place, ten miles from nowhere, to fish or camp, and run out of smoking material? Almost like being cast away on a desert island, wasn't it? Well, don't let it happen again. There's no excuse.

We handle the most representative line of smokers' materials in the city (we show only a few in this window), and can give you helpful suggestions as to purchasing, packing, means of keeping your stock fresh, until you will consider purchasing here, keen enjoyment.

Where is the Old Fashioned Cigar Salesman?

Written for The Tobacco World by a Has Been

WHAT has become of the old-fashioned salesman who called on all the jobbers, shook hands with all the clerks—including the office towel—asked some of the insiders to have a smile, some lunch, came back the next day—little more sociability—new goods shown and got his order? Those were the days of no missionary work, no billboards, no gratis deals and no subsidies on retail stores. The salesman landed his goods on friendship and personality and the jobber was always glad to see him again on his next trip.

Years ago we had the 24-karat men, like Ferdinand Hersch (prince of good fellows), J. H. Davis (Pop), who is still living; Frank Ruffner, John Ladd, John Straiton, Lee Harburger, Sam Austin (still living in Philadelphia), Billy Marburg, Fred Simmons and R. C. Brown, still living at Staten Island, N. Y.

Now conditions have changed. Today it is all you can get, and the jobbers hollering for more; and the cigar business going to the big ones and the smaller man becoming smaller. Because he cannot market his product, his channels of distribution are becoming less and less. Years ago we had no United Cigar Stores, everybody was independent, no trusts to combat, and when a brand was placed it had some "show" of being featured and displayed by the jobbers and salesmen.

Today the jobber has no independence, no private brands, no trade-marks. He is simply a clearing house for the big factories, compelled by their big output to see that their factories are kept busy. Everything is done today to secure a volume, regardless of expense. Gratis deals, advertising and mailing thousands of certificates to consumers to get free cigars.

No one twenty years ago would have ventured to predict that jobbers would have the volume of business they have today.

Did any one dream that M. A. Gunst & Company, of California, would touch the four million dollar mark, or Best & Russell Company their three million dollars of business, or Geo. L. Storm & Company, of New York, their four or five million, and the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., of New York, over thirty million dollars?

Cigars today are sold on the basis of "what can you do to introduce the brand, how much money can you spend to notify the consumer and what can you do to interest the retailer?" The salesman working for the jobber claims he does not have time to sell anything new, he must pound on the old brands, but he forgets that some of the old brands are becoming weaker in spots and some other house is putting in new stuff. He forgets that the more brands of his the retailer has, the more likelihood of increased orders; and he is bound to be short of something.

Some contend that they cannot afford to spend their own money introducing new brands, hence the missionary man is created as a "developer," to boost the game along and spend the money essential to being a good fellow.

But Mr. Jobber-Salesman takes all this, and when Mr. Developer is through, does he follow up the work of the missionary man? I should say, nay, nay. He goes along the lines of least resistance, plugging the old brands and forgetting the new.

It was J. B. Duke who once said, when he was selling Cameo cigarettes (and we knew him when he was poor), that "you can't do business with the jobber and you can't do business without him." The cry of today is how can a brand be successfully introduced so that the manufacturer can give the consumer a real good cigar without all this circus work? Prizes have been given for the best names for plays, stories and buildings.

Why don't some kind-hearted manufacturer offer a substantial prize, say $1000, for an idea of this kind? This would give everybody in the trade a chance to compete. I heard a big jobber say the other day that inside of ten years the $18 to $25 a week man would be the selling end of the cigar business, and the gold-plated man would supplant the present 18-karat agent.

What is to become of the latter?

Austria Heavy Buyer at Ninth Inscription

At the ninth Sumatra inscription held in Amsterdam on June 28th the largest buyer was the Austrian Regie, which purchased 4,000 bales. The Americans, who heretofore had been the heaviest buyers, acquired but 1,100 bales. The bidding was brisk.

The following firms report having purchased the following quantities: E. Rosenwald & Bro., 300 bales; H. Duys & Co., 110 bales; Deisel-Wemmer Co., 400 bales; American Cigar Company, 205 bales; W. K. Gresh & Sons, 156 bales; F. & E. Cranz, 108 bales; Benj. Labe & Sons, 125 bales.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

New Idea for Boosting Cigar Sales

IN describing one of his original ideas in boosting his cigar sales, a Detroit merchant gave the following, which should be food for thought for many retail tobacco dealers.

"I've always tried to boost my cigar sales by selling in box lots," said this enterprising business man. "I would argue the saving in price and at first I made a few sales, but invariably these men returned to their old habit of buying a half dollar's worth at a time. The box purchases hadn't proved a saving after all. When they bought in box lots they smoked more, gave away more and it really cost them more for smokes than it ever had before. That's what they all told me. So I decided I had been working on the wrong tack and abandoned the quantity scheme.

"Still I wanted to get the cigar trade of the town and sell even more cigars than I was selling, so I kept hunting for a plan that would sell the quantities and yet be of real advantage to the consumer. Finally I found it—and I got the inspiration from a lunch counter. I noticed that a restaurant sold meal tickets for 21 meals at a reduced price. You paid for the 21 meals in advance and got a discount by so doing. It is an old scheme in the restaurant line, but it was new in the cigar business, and I grabbed at it immediately. I had smoke-tickets printed—fifty stars on the outer margin, green stars for the five-centers, red for the tens. Then I pointed out to the men who had told me of their objections to the buy-a-box plan that they could now buy a box at the box price and leave it with me. They would simply bring along their tickets and get one cigar or a dozen as suited their fancy.

"This was a new one to all of them and the novelty of the plan combined with the saving has been a wonderful trade puller. I now sell three-quarters of the cigars smoked in this town and I'd rather sell them this way than by the box, because a customer comes into the store every day for his daily supply and very often sees some other article that attracts his fancy and loosens his purse strings."

There are evidently many retailers who have been afflicted with their usual attack of spring fever, but if they will only throw aside their lethargy, put on their thinking caps and spruce up on the general appearance of their stores, they will not have so much reason to complain of the dulness of business.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," is an old and perhaps often overworked saw, yet it still holds true. It is well for a man to take a day off occasionally, go away on a fishing trip or some other form of recreation. He will come back refreshed and tackle his work with renewed vigor the next day.

Study your customers as they come in through the day. You are selling something that is a pleasure for the average man to come in and buy. See to it that your manner does not detract from that pleasure. With one man you must be quiet and unobtrusive; he has something on his mind, you can see it from his abstracted air. Another enters who is jubilant over something; he has done a particularly good piece of business, possibly. You can even crack a joke with him, and no matter what the point is, he will, in all likelihood, laugh for a minute, and go out thinking you are one of the brightest young men in town.

Use Good Stationery

The old saying of "Fine feathers make fine birds," is just as true today as it ever was, and people would much prefer to look at a peacock than an ugly buzzard. In looking over several thousand letters received from retail cigarists in our office, we are deeply impressed with the apparent carelessness on the part of many retailers in the matter of business stationery.

Probably seven out of the ten letters received in our office are either typewritten or hand written on cheap, poorly printed writing paper, with an equally inferior envelope to match. If dealers would stop to think a moment, they would quickly recognize that the use of poor business stationery is a very expensive economy.

A carefully written letter, on good stationery, will always receive attention and respect, when received in a business office. We have heard a clerk say often times: "These people do not amount to much, because their letter heads are so wretched."

With the modern day advancement in the printers' art, a cigar merchant, no matter how small, should transact his business on dignified, well-printed stationery, and the additional expense for obtaining this is so trifling that no dealer who has any ambition can afford to use anything else.

Understand, also, that good stationery is an index to the type of the business firm which sends it out. Many a small bill of goods has been checked by a manufacturer and credit established, because the order was sent in a business-like way, on excellent stationery, and thereby a fine impression created.

MEN WHO MADE GOOD

SIDELIGHTS ON INTERESTING TRADE PERSONALITIES

STARTING his business career as an office boy when sixteen years old, and from this small beginning rising to a position of wealth and influence in the world of tobacco, tells in brief of the success of William Best, Sr., jobber and importer of cigars and cigarettes. It is the oft repeated story of progress made by perseverance, untiring energy, square business dealings, inherent ability and business foresight.

Born in Canterbury, England, August 29th, 1841, Mr. Best came to the United States with his parents eleven years later. After a common school education, the young man entered the employ of the Chicago tobacco house of John C. Partridge & Co. Once there, Mr. Best set his whole heart and soul on acquiring inside knowledge of the business, with such remarkable success that a few years later he was made a partner in the firm.

Following the death of Mr. Partridge in 1876, Mr. Best became the head of the firm of Best, Russell & Co., which became Best & Russell Co. on its incorporation in 1891. As president of this concern, Mr. Best has made it a power in the cigar field, which is constantly increasing and becoming more and more diversified.

But Mr. Best has not confined his energies to business matters alone. He has taken an active interest in politics and was elected south town collector on the Democratic ticket in 1883. He was also nominated for Sheriff of Cook County by the Democrats the year of the Haymarket Riots

WILLIAM BEST, Sr.

—but refused to run after his name was chosen, as he was afraid it would interfere with his business. In 1885 he was appointed a member of the South Park Commission and held this position continuously until 1911, his term being the longest ever served by a commissioner in the city of Chicago. During this time he held the positions of president and auditor of the board. Mr. Best is prominently identified with club life and is a member of the Chicago Association of Commerce, Mid Day, South Shore, Iroquois and Illinois Athletic Clubs. He is a thirty-second degree Mason.

Best & Russell Co. are distributors for such firms as United Cigar Mfg. Co., Sanchez & Haya, P. Verplanck & Co., Lovera & Co., Guedalia & Co., Storm, Fisher & Co., and the products of the American Tobacco Co.

When Mr. Best was in active service his firm represented such good old houses as Straiton & Storm, P. Lorillard & Co., Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Co., Old Judge Cigarette Co. The old brand "Golden Crown" is still selling. It was originally made by Straiton & Storm and now by their successors the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co.

When in town he can be found at the office every morning opening the mail and usually with a smile, as his business is a success and he has "made good." The product of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company is a big factor in the company's business and possibly the one point which has helped them to the volume of their business. They also have branches in the South with headquarters at Memphis under same firm name, but one-half interest is held by Arthur B. Adair.

CHICAGO judges hold that a woman's character does not suffer through smoking. These comments come as an aftermath of the decision just handed down by the Supreme Court of New York, declaring it is neither extraordinary nor immoral for women of refinement to smoke. The contest resulted in the case of one Richard Thorne, who sued for divorce on the grounds that his wife smoked. The court decided that the cause was not enough for separation. Here is what some of the ablest Chicago judges have to say:

Judge Jesse A. Baldwin: "I believe men of the East are far readier to overlook the morals of women than we of the West. I do not believe we Westerners would like to see our sweethearts go around the house puffing a cigarette. I do not think it is any more proper for a woman to smoke in private than in public. I recognize, however, that the modern woman has taken more or less to smoking. In a suit for divorce, while I would not say that it would necessarily reflect on a woman's character to have it stated that she smoked, it would at least lessen the respect of the court for her."

Judge Theodore Brentano took a very liberal view of the question. He said: "I do not think that a woman can be condemned in any sense merely because she smokes. I believe many Chicago women smoke cigarettes and their moral character is beyond question. In many countries of Europe women smoke with the men and it is not considered bad taste. In a case such as has been decided in New York, I would agree with the decision of the New York court."

Judge Charles M. Walker: "No reflection can be cast upon a woman because she smokes. Although I am personally against the idea of women smoking, in no legal sense can this fact be held against her. However, it would in a sense lessen my respect for her."

My friend George Randolph Chester, who has given to the world of literature, one of the most famous characters of the decade in "J. Rufus Wallingford," returned from Europe recently after an extended visit to the other side, and of all the trinkets which he brought home he is particularly proud of a silver-headed cane, which is his constant companion. This cane is a Parisian product, and while talking with Chester the other day, he suddenly threw it up at me, pressed the spring and a cigarette presented itself, in a manner similar to the old sword cane idea.

The case in the cane is capable of holding one dozen cigarettes and Chester says that he thinks more of this novelty than he does of many a novel which he has perpetrated.

Lit the Weed and Lit Out

"Give up the weed and I will marry you!"
But that was rather more than he could do,
So, when his lady brought him to the scratch,
He lit the weed, and threw away the match.

L. T. H.

The smokers and "antis," of Kansas City, have been having it hot and heavy the past month. The victory at present appears to lie with the non-smokers, but the final decision is not yet at hand. The press of Kansas City are opposed to the smoking and a recent editorial pertaining to the discussion stated: "In New York, Philadelphia and other large cities there is no such thing as smoking on street cars. Why should Kansas City be an exception?"

We respectfully call the attention of the writer of that article to the fact that smoking is allowed on street cars in the above-named cities and there is no evidence of any great distress or suffering on the part of passengers. Of course there are always persons who care little for the comfort of fellow riders, but the average smoker in New York or Philadelphia has never been so inconsiderate as to even raise the question of discontinuing the practice.

The smokers do not have this privilege in winter, when closed cars are used; and they have never expected it, but they have been accustomed to "litting it up" on the summer cars, which are open on all sides and there is no reason for stopping it.

The tragic death of A. L. Seligman in an automobile accident on June 24th, was a personal blow to "The Onlooker" and removed from the world at an apparently untimely season, one of the kindest and most lovable characters I have ever known.

Mr. Seligman's philanthropy was as wide as his culture, and his genial smile and beneficent help will be missed by thousands in New York City and elsewhere, irrespective of creed or race.

Incidentally Mr. Seligman was an ardent admirer of the "Hoyo de Monterrey" cigar, and it was my delight on numerous occasions to hand him a cigar of another brand, to hear his kindly criticism and final endorsement after comparison of his own weeds.

It was only three days before his death that I proffered him a well-known Cuban brand—saw him light it—and then under some pretext leave his seat and slyly substitute a "Hoyo" for a really excellent cigar I had given him.

His death leaves a void which will be hard to fill.

THE ONLOOKER.

The importance of properly conditioning cigars, and other tobacco products, is frequently overlooked by retailers who pride themselves on being up to the minute in their business methods. Some retailers think that all that is necessary to keep cigars in condition is to install modern show cases and keep a sponge well-moistened in each case. They do this, season in and season out, regardless of local weather conditions and the constant change in the natural humidity.

Others, who pride themselves on being more painstaking, install costly humidors and then fail to test these humidors from time to time to find whether they are doing their work satisfactorily.

No amount of science or money will keep cigars in condition unless it is rightly applied and at the proper time. Methods which are effective in such hot months as July and August cannot be applied in the same measure during the severer months of December and January, and yet, some merchants overlook this very important fact.

We know of a prominent retailer of cigars who handles largely, high-class imported and domestic goods who has never used moisture in a single cigar show case. He keeps his goods conditioned by letting the fresh stock impart their moisture to the other goods which have been standing in the case. This natural moisture is probably the most desirable, but of course, this scheme has to be watched very closely and it is not always practical to put it in force.

Every retailer should study local atmospheric conditions and watch his goods closely to see that they are kept in the best condition conducive to bring out the true quality of the tobacco and insure a free and easy burn.

Many a good cigar has been spoiled after it reached the retailer's case.

The action of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association of New York in suspending all dues until January, 1913, is a step which shows the sincere efforts of the men behind this movement to enlist the full membership of the trade in building up an association of strength and character.

With the bars let down, there is no good reason today, why New York retailers, who have been complaining so long, and so loudly, about the lack of opportunity, should not get together and form an association which would be a model and an example for other cities.

The officers of the association are men of standing and aggressiveness and the high purpose of the body is such that should attract the very best retailers in the metropolis. United action is needed and this can only be effective when the leaders are backed by force of numbers and a unanimous sympathy.

This is the time and the opportunity for New York retailers to get together, and if they neglect it, they will have only themselves to blame in the future.

The report that Philippine tobacco growers intend to offer their tobacco to American cigar manufacturers is received with considerable speculation. Although this tobacco can be imported duty free, less than one hundred pounds have been received in this country since the free trade arrangement with the Philippines has been in effect. This has been due, no doubt, to the fact that Manila manufacturers know that they can manufacture Manila cigars cheaper in their own country than in America. For this economic reason we do not see how it will be possible for cigars made from Manila tobacco in this country to compete with the native manufacturer.

If, however, the tobacco is to be blended with Cuban or American leaf, the case presents another phase. In our opinion this will be the use to which the Manila leaf will be put if it is ever used to any extent in this country.

What "The World" Thinks

¶ That enterprising New Yorker who advertised "Paradise" cigarettes by displaying a poster, "If you don't like them, go to Hell," certainly struck an original note. Probably, some who smoked them, wished that the maker was at the same place.

¶ It remains for some original cigar manufacturer to bring out the new brand of cigars under the much-talked-of label, "Third Term." Why not the slogan, "One Good Term Deserves Another."

¶ A Roosevelt booster who sought to popularize the people's idol and himself by naming his cigar "T. R." finds the practical joker asking whether "T. R." does not now read "Taft Rooter."

T. J. Donigan Dies in Brooklyn

Once Well-known Figure in Retail and Jobbing Circles, in Poor Health for Several Years, Passes Away

THOMAS J. DONIGAN, a well-known figure in retail and jobbing tobacco circles of New York for a number of years, but not actively associated in business recently, died at his home in Brooklyn several weeks ago. The announcement was made at a meeting of the Brooklyn branch of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, on June 21st, by Robert E. Lane, United States representative of the Partagas factory, of Havana, and a life-long friend of the deceased. Mr. Donigan, who had been in poor health for several years, was sixty years old at the time of his death. He leaves a widow and a daughter.

Mr. Donigan was widely known among tobacco men for years. He at one time operated a number of retail cigar stores, and was also one of the large wholesalers of New York. At another period he was engaged in the manufacture of cigarettes, being in business with others in the Nile Tobacco Works.

Whenever the formation of any association was under way Mr. Donigan was ready to assist. He was a member of the first jobbers' association in New York and also of the retail organization formed later. He was instrumental in forming a coupon scheme for retailers of New York about six years ago, but dropped the attempt when he received insufficient support.

Mr. Donigan sold his last retail store on Center street, known as the Annex, several years ago to Pattee, Underwood & Daboll, and took no active part in business since. His death is greatly regretted among the retailers of New York, who found in him a willing ally in any method promulgated for bettering conditions in the trade.

Steiner's German Process Bands Make Hit

Since putting their new German Process bands on the market, William Steiner, Sons & Co., lithographic specialists, in New York, have met with remarkable success. The beautiful colorings of the bands and their artistic designs and clever execution, have combined to put them in a class that should command the consideration of every cigar manufacturer who wants to add distinction to his goods.

The facilities of the house of Steiner enable them to turn out these bands on quick notice and to give the trade the most satisfactory service. Sample books containing a fine assortment of German Process stock bands, will be mailed to the trade upon request. All communications should be addressed to the New York office, at Nos. 257-265 West Seventeenth street.

Prizes For Phillip Morris Workers

AT the annual outing of the employees of the Phillip Morris Co., Ltd., held at Donnelly's Grove, L. I., New York, June 15th, Secretary Frederick S. Lucy presented a number of gold watches and rings to employees as a reward for their long and faithful service. A letter received from Curtis Thomson, of London, president of the company, offered prizes to the veteran employees of the company and a similar offer was received from Mrs. Thomson to the women employed by the company.

"Tom" Allen Again in the Harness

Thomas Allen, the veteran tobacco man, has re-entered the tobacco business by organizing the Allen-Warfield Co., a New Jersey corporation with $100,000 capital. The officers are: Thomas F. Bowers, president; Thomas Allen, vice-president; Harry N. Konwiser, treasurer, and J. Edward Smith, secretary. The new company have opened a cigar factory at No. 236-40 Bank street, Newark, N. J. They will principally manufacture "Graustark" brand clear Havana and the "Allen Old-Fashion" cigars. They will also put out a number of other brands.

Will Organize Jersey Retailers

E. E. Jaffin, New Jersey representative of D. M. Frank & Co., New York, has been delegated by the New York Association of Retailers to organize the cigar dealers of New Jersey. Mr. Jaffin has engaged a hall in Jersey City where he expects to hold the first meeting in the near future. He has been promised the assistance of such well-known organizers as H. H. Hunter, counsel for the New York Association, Ike Ochs, president, and Otto Jonas, secretary.

The American Cigar Lighter Company has been incorporated, in Manhattan, to manufacture cigar cutting and lighting devices. The capital stock is $500,000 and its organizers are: R. M. Bauer, R. C. Wyvell and O. V. Schrenk, all of New York City.

Judge Hand has appointed John L. Lyttle receiver for the Hamilton Cigar Stores Co., of Nos. 2209 and 2905 Broadway, and No. 3210 Third avenue, against which a petition in bankruptcy was filed on January 19th, and fixed his bond at $2,000.

A Clever Pinkus Idea

The firm of Pinkus Brothers, New York cigarette manufacturers who specialize in cigarettes sold to the consumers, have built up their business by more than ordinary cleverness in originating ideas and convincing their customers, that they are alert and careful business folk.

We were impressed recently with a novel set of stationery which the firm gets out, covering the various phases of the sale of their goods. Upon receipt of a request for samples on one of the firm's self-addressed postal cards which are widely distributed, they mail out the specimen cigarettes in an envelope which is ornamented with a very neat plate of an English butler serving cigarettes on a salver, and the heading, "Samples—From Pinkus Brothers." When an order is received, they have another envelope with an acknowledgement of an order printed in the upper left corner, and a characteristic drawing accompanying. When the goods are finally shipped, they have also another form of envelope showing a neat express package of cigarettes on the inside of the label, "Memo of Shipment—From Pinkus Brothers, New York."

This firm are also large distributors of their own packet of individual matches and attribute much of their success in business to a constant watchfulness for ideas, which will enable them to prove to the individual the merit of their wares.

"United" to Erect Six Story Building

In connection with the lease by the United Cigar Stores Company from the New York Central Railroad of the block front on the west side of Vanderbilt avenue, between Forty-second and Forty-third streets, it is now planned to erect a six-story building on the plot, which is 200 by 70 feet. The United will join with the railroad in bearing the expense of erecting the building. The lease, it is understood, will be for ninety-nine years.

The United will use only a small part of the building for its own purposes. The remainder will be sub-let, and officials of the company, in view of the excellent location, are confident that this can be accomplished without difficulty and at highly profitable rentals.

The latest stand of the United Cigar Stores Company, in the Wilson Building, 33rd street and Broadway, Manhattan, was opened under favorable circumstances a short time ago. The usual souvenirs were given away. Elton M. Shattuck is the manager.

The third "United" store, in Staten Island, was opened recently at West New Brighton. The other stores are at Stapleton and St. George.

H. Gutentag, of 140 Lenox avenue, the well-known retailer, has acquired the stand of Max Hirsch, at 125 Fifth avenue, and after having had it refitted in the latest manner, opened it as one of the best in that district.

Harry S. Bunce, until recently with A. Schulte, is now connected with the Consolidated Cigar Stores Co. He is assisting Mr. Woythaler in the management of the Forty-eighth street store.

H. S. Ansley has recently removed his New York headquarters from their old location on State street to 3 Park Row, where the full line of C. E. Beck & Co. clear Havana made goods are to be seen. Mr. Ansley is taking a brief vacation on his farm during the present month.

Nulomoline For Cigars and Tobacco

For several years past, the Nulomoline Company, of New York, have been selling the plug tobacco manufacturers of the United States their exclusive product Nulomoline, which has been used with excellent results in the manufacture of plug tobacco.

Within recent weeks, this company have had several calls from cigar manufacturers for their product, who have utilized it in stiffening soft wrappers with decided success. Such cigar manufacturers as have found it necessary in their business to use glycerine in any form, think they have discovered in Nulomoline a much desired substitute.

This product is made from cane sugar, and is free from all injurious substances. It can be stored by manufacturers, and although it becomes opaque, it will retain all its qualities of softness, sweetness and fresh appearance, when put to use.

The Nulomoline Company are headquartered at 111 Wall street, and will be glad to furnish cigar manufacturers with a sample of their product upon request.

James Burns, the capable representative of the F. Lozano & Company for the Southern territory, has been visiting the firm's headquarters for the past ten days and expressed himself as delighted with the new office at 39th street and Fifth avenue, he says that the location and furnishings are now fully in keeping with the exclusive character of the goods which his house turns out. Mr. Burns leaves in a day or two to go back over his territory.

Harry Roberts, of J. W. Roberts & Son, the leading Tampa Mail order house, was in New York last week for a ten days' stay. He left for Tampa last Sunday.

Dave Echemendia, who looks after the output of the Castenada Havana factory in the United States, has been doing yeoman work at the leading seashore resorts during June, with excellent results.

John W. Merriam, of J. W. Merriam & Co., returned last week from a ten days' trip out through Ohio. Mr. Merriam stated that while he had done a comfortable business with all his regular customers, he noted but slight elasticity in trade, and a thinness in the size of orders which dealers placed, which is not particularly promising for the time being.

S. M. Frank, of S. M. Frank & Co., the leading pipe house, returned last week from a month's trip out through the Middle West. The Frank Company have done much during the past year to assist in popularizing the South African Calabash pipe and their sales on these pipes especially have increased many fold during the past six months.

A. D. Benheim, president of the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., sailed for Europe, on a vacation trip, on Saturday, June 22d.

Trade Outlook in Quaker City

CONSIDERING the universal quietness in tobacco circles throughout the country, few factors in the Philadelphia trade are finding cause for complaint. The retailers state that box sales are fair and will undoubtedly increase as the vacation season approaches. The larger central stores are showing some attractive window displays and are making special offers, which should open the purse of the tobacco consumer.

Leaf houses are doing a goodly amount of business and while not taxed to the limit are satisfied with conditions. The new Sumatra is fulfilling expectation and a number of sales have been reported.

Incoming orders are keeping the majority of the factories hustling. A number of the larger ones report being oversold and expect to be very busy all summer keeping up with the demand. This is particularly true of one firm which has been conducting an aggressive campaign in trade journals and in one large national weekly.

Conditions as a rule in jobbing circles are quiet. Yet those concerns having men out on the road hustling for business are securing enough orders to keep them on the jump. The firms which are willing to go out and secure the business are at the present time, as at any other, the concerns who are giving the best reports.

Bayuk Bros. Change Title of Firm

Bayuk Brothers, manufacturers of "Havana Ribbon" cigars will incorporate their business on July 1st. The new concern will be known as Bayuk Brothers Co., the officers to consist of Samuel Bayuk, president; Max Bayuk, vice-president; Meyer Bayuk, secretary and treasurer, and A. M. Thompson second vice-president.

They announce that the policy of the new firm will be exactly similar to the old, no changes being made unless such as will work out to the interest of their host of customers.

Bobrow Brothers, who are attracting the attention of the trade all over the country by their extensive and timely advertising, are experiencing difficulty in manufacturing sufficient cigars for their patrons. They admit that much of their success in distributing the "Bold" is due to publicity. A recent letter from San Diego, Cal., written by a subscriber of the TOBACCO WORLD, who asked for quotations and samples would seem to prove that statement.

Speed Goodloe Announces Brands

Speed Goodloe, who is rapidly completing the refurnishing and fitting of 1203 Cuthbert street, expects to open up at that location in a very short time. The humidor has been installed, office fittings have been placed and the whole building fitted up in an up-to-date manner. The circular which he is having printed will soon be in the hands of the trade.

In cigars the Goodloe Cigar Co. will handle a complete line of imported goods. Among some of his goods will be those of Henry Clay and Bock & Co., the "El Confido," of Jose Lovera, in twenty sizes ranging in price from $35 to $175 per thousand; the "La Devisa" in ten sizes, manufactured by E. M. Schwarz of New York. In Porto Rico goods he will distribute the "El Aspecto," which will sell at $55 to $100 and come in three sizes.

The leading nickel brand which will be pushed hard in this territory will be the "Goodloe," made by Boltz, Clymer & Co., which will go to the retail trade at $35 per thousand.

M. Zifferblatt to Soon Discontinue Store

M. Zifferblatt, 13th street near Filbert, retailer and manufacturer, has an optimistic view for the future. The retail store will probably be discontinued in the near future and the efforts of the firm concentrated on the manufacturing end. The "El Vendura" and "Emze" brands are now being pushed in the local field, a number of window displays on the former brand being now shown in prominent West Philadelphia stores.

Mr. Zifferblatt sustained a small loss last week as a result of a fire in his store. Some stock was damaged, but is reported to have been covered by insurance.

Benj. Labe & Sons, leaf importers and packers, 230 North Third street, purchased 125 bales of Sumatra tobacco at the inscription held in Amsterdam on June 28th. Jacob Labe, of this firm, is doing the buying, having been in Europe all spring.

Allen R. Cressman's Sons announce that the local Cressman factory is being pushed to the limit. The "Counsellor," as a good nickel smoke, is being recognized more and more every day, which leaves its impression in the form of increased orders. W. H. Poreh has been added to the sales force and will assist in keeping the Cressman products before the eyes of the trade.

Quaker City Notes

L. G. Haeusserman, of L. G. Haeusserman and Sons, leaf dealers, has been on a trip through Pennsylvania, particularly the coal regions, where they do an extensive leaf business.

Terry & Duncan, 10th and Chestnut streets, are showing several tasty displays in their 10th street windows on "Sanchez y Haya" goods. Mr. Duncan has recently been on a trip to the Jersey Coast resorts where these high-grade Tampa cigars have been well placed by his firm.

J. G. Bagley & Co. are introducing their "Old Colony" smoking mixture to Philadelphians through a number of leading retailers. A special offer has been made by which a 10c tin of the tobacco is given away with each 25c pipe purchased. This is an attractive bargain and should bring good results.

Joseph W. Levy & Co., who opened a retail store at 1536 Market street a short time ago, are giving six premiums away each week. Each purchaser is given a numbered receipt and at the end of each week six are selected and the numbers posted on the show window. The lucky owners of the pasteboard must only call to secure the premium. Six boxes of cigars were given away last week in this manner.

T. H. Hart & Co. are now pushing with renewed vigor the sales on "Five of Harts" and "Heartsease." They are well placed in all the large cities and it will be noted by the observing that they are usually in the most progressive and well-paying stands where as a rule the customers are men who know a good smoke and see that they get it.

Since moving into their new building at 932 Market street, Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers are more than pleased with the facilities and ease with which they can dispatch orders. The "Cinco" and "Henrietta" are in such demand from all parts of the country that the matter of expeditious handling of orders and shipping of goods are ones of extreme importance.

The Juan F. Portuondo Company are putting out window display cards and posters on the "Sintoma," their newly introduced cigar. Considering the short time in which this high-grade product has been on the market the sales have risen to an unprecedented extent. The Middle and Far West are particularly partial to the Portuondo brands and consume them in enormous quantities.

Colonel Robinson Off For Shore

Joseph Robinson, the genial manager of Thomas Martindale & Company's cigar department, left town last Saturday for a two weeks' rest at his boat house in Ventnor. N. J. Col. Robinson is an enthusiast on fishing and yachting, owning a sailboat, and will spend much of his vacation period on the water.

Regarding conditions in the trade as affecting Martindale's, he stated that the firm now had twenty men on the road, all of whom carried the cigar lines in addition to those pertaining to the grocery end of the business. In high-grade goods they are now campaigning on the products of E. Regensburg & Sons, Sanchez y Haya and Cuesta, Rey & Co., all of Tampa.

What Tobacco Men Are Doing in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 26.

THE cigar and tobacco business the past ten days has been much better than in a number of weeks, according to the local trade. George Schulten, the West End jobber, has purchased a large auto delivery truck, his business having grown to such a large volume as to require this. Mr. Schulten's son, John, has been of great help to his father in increasing his trade.

Local Manager Fred Bernard, of the Pinkerton Tobacco Company, of Toledo, Ohio, states that the demand for "Red Man" scrap is constantly showing an increase throughout Cincinnati territory. A new premium office has been opened on Seventh avenue, near Walnut street, where the many premiums given for coupons are attractively displayed.

George A. Voige, of the cigar company of that name, is kept busy these warm days filling orders for "Plantista" cigars, manufactured by the Compeer Cigar Company, of Indianapolis. Mr. Voige, by the way, has almost entirely recovered from his painful accident of last month.

The Booker Tobacco Company, of Lynchburg, Va., is distributing locally a new piece of advertising in the form of a cardboard puzzle. Its "Barley Cubs" little cigars have a large sale throughout Ohio, according to State Manager David Fribourg.

W. D. Spalding & Son, leaf brokers of 12 East Front street, report business as being very satisfactory. This concern buys leaf for some of the largest tobacco manufacturers in the United States and Canada.

F. W. Gallbraith, Jr., of The Western Paper Goods Company, has just returned from a successful business trip in the East. This concern specializes in wax-lined paper bags for the scrap tobacco trade.

Isaac Keilson, who conducts a prosperous wholesale and retail cigar business at 1515 Central avenue, now has associated with him his son, Daniel, a promising young man who has just graduated from Hughes' High School—the alma mater of President Taft.

H. Krull, who has done excellent work in this territory on "Derby" little cigars, left on Wednesday for New York, where he and his three assistants will spend two weeks sightseeing.

A trade visitor of yesterday was C. H. Deming, who has succeeded Mr. Mickey as division manager for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. Mr. Deming is new to this territory, but is making many friends rapidly.

Margaret Meldahl, owner of a 500-acre farm near Vanceburg, Ky., sold 4,000 pounds of tobacco at the Cincinnati breaks on Tuesday. Miss Meldahl has entire supervision of her farm.

Business is good with the J. B. Moos Co., the largest local jobbers. Charles Carter, the "inside" salesman, is probably one of the most valuable employes of the company, inasmuch as he is familiar with all branches of the business, and whenever any other employe is temporarily incapacitated, Mr. Carter is impressed into the breach.

HULL.

Nat J. Rice Now With D. Theocaridis

Since opening a factory in the United States for the manufacture of their cigarettes, D. Theocaridis have had an immense sale for their goods. Indeed so high have their sales gone that the concern has taken on Nat J. Rice, a well-known salesman, who will become general sales representative in this country.

Mr. Rice has a large acquaintance in tobacco circles and should do splendid work for the firm. He intends to soon start on an extensive trip through the East and Middle West.

T. C. Charles, an old-time cigar manufacturer, died at his home in Columbus, Wis., last week. He was eighty years of age at the time of his death. Mr. Charles, years ago, manufactured cigars in Binghamton, N. Y., and later was a jobber in Herkimer and Mohawk, that State. He was the father of Fred Charles, of the Martinez-Charles Co., of Jacksonville, Fla.

United States Snuff Co. is the name of a new company organized in Boston recently. It will manufacture "Young Leaf" (Stockholm), "North Star" (Guttenberg), and "North Star" (Copenhagen), snuff.

The George L. Storm & Co.'s new retail and wholesale store was formally opened in Buffalo on June 22d. Henry Marks, secretary of the concern, is in charge of the establishment. A complete line of George L. Storm & Co.'s goods are carried, both retail and wholesale.

Fancy-Sized Cigars Causing Discontent On the Coast

Retailers Say Profit Is So Small As Not to Warrant Handling Them—Conditions Attributed to Competition; Others Place Responsibility On Retailing Wholesalers

A LEADING New York cigar manufacturer received a letter a few days since from his sales representative on the Pacific Coast, suggesting that he employ immediately for the Western slope a missionary, to boost their goods at the modest salary of $700 a month and expenses. The manufacturer wrote his salesman, declining to consider the arrangement and suggested that he take the job himself, as the salary demanded was considerable more than the regular salesman for the firm was drawing.

This incident calls close attention to some remarkable methods of merchandising cigars which are at present in vogue, more especially west of the Rocky Mountains, and it also indicates one of the reasons why certain dealers are dissatisfied with the conditions, under which they are distributing several brands of goods in the Far West.

About four months ago the TOBACCO WORLD received a letter from Los Angeles, in which a hint was dropped, that several dealers in that city, had been compelled, through the zealous work of a manufacturer's missionary, to push certain brands in certain sizes, in which there was positively no margin of profit, for either the jobber, the maker or the distributor, and that the results promised to be serious unless quick action was taken.

From investigation we find that this complaint is not at all local, but is spreading over the entire Pacific Coast.

As is well known our consumers of the Far West like big fat cigars, and there is no gain-saying the fact that manufacturers have recognized this, and have given the Pacific trade what they wanted.

The present condition of affairs, however, is attributable to the stress of competition, not only on the part of Tampa manufacturers of clear Havana goods, but by makers of other sections, in bidding for the choice of far western trade.

Certain large sizes have been put out and offered the jobber and the retailer more as leaders, to obtain orders on the full line, than in a desire to establish the particular size of the brand, but unfortunately, through the over zealous work of the missionary, the special attention of the consumer has been directed towards the consumption of these specialty sizes, which our manufacturers can ill afford to make as a steady diet, if they desire to make any money on them, and at the same time these goods are being retailed at such a close figure, that the dealer is not making any money also, and the sale on other shapes in which there is more profit, is being largely curtailed.

A well-known Tampa manufacturer stated in New York, recently, that he had purchased within a short time since clear Havana goods in San Francisco, which the jobber had sold him at the rate of $105 per thousand, which goods he could not possibly produce in his factory in Tampa at very much less. These goods measure 5 5/8 inches long, and according to the tables he had before him, the cost of their manufacture must have been so close to the selling price that there could be no hope for any one obtaining a profit in handling these goods. The working margin between cost price and selling price, when divided among three, maker, jobber and retailer becomes so insignificant as to be really dangerous to general prosperity. There used to be some business on 3 for 50c. domestic cigars on the Coast, but owing to these conditions, there is very little left today.

What San Francisco Has to Say

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20.

One of the apparent causes of unsatisfactory conditions which have prevailed for some time in the San Francisco retail trade, and a matter which is regarded by independent retailers as a legitimate ground of complaint, is the introduction of large and fancy sizes, retailing at 12 1/2c., into this market by manufacturers who are endeavoring to gain a foothold here, and by their jobbing and retail connections. Such sizes as are complained of cost the retailer over $100 net, and with overhead expenses running at the minimum about seventeen per cent. of the gross receipts it is evident that the profit on such goods is altogether inadequate. Some fancy sizes were introduced here years ago by some of the old-time houses, and have gained permanent popularity, but as these goods do not cost over $95 net, the retailers are willing to handle them. Opinions differ as to the reason for the larger fancy sizes, but the complaint is quite general. Some place the blame on competition among the retailers themselves, while others place the responsibility on the combined retailer and jobber, stands either owned or controlled by jobbers having become extremely numerous of late years. The fancy sizes do not seem to be in response to any popular demand, but rather an effort to force goods on the market by offering bargains.

In this connection, John C. Conner, the California street retailer, says: "Some of the dealers are selling cigars at two for a quarter that ought to sell at three for a half, and that are costing the retailer as high as $115. There is no objection to a reasonable fancy size, but some people lately have been getting out a regular stovepipe to retail at 12 1/2c. The retailer should not carry any cigar selling at this price which costs more than $100 gross. I wouldn't stock any cigar that cost more than that. It is impossible, I believe, to get out cigars of these large sizes and maintain the quality. The man who specializes on such goods can't last. I believe in a small, fancy size, and the dealer who handles such a size, of first-class quality and workmanship, is the boy that's going to win out in the long run."

Sam Newmark, proprietor of the Crystal Palace stand on Kearny street, says: "The introduction of these large sizes has caused a confusing situation. It looks to me as if some dealers are pushing something that is not demanded by the consumer. This is well demonstrated by the fact that the two brands of clear Havana cigars which enjoy universal popularity and are big sellers everywhere are sold principally in the Reina Victoria size. The independent dealer is, of course, compelled to carry the fancy sizes, but he is not putting them forward, and the real demand for them is rather small. In carrying the large sizes, however, the dealer has to give up a part of his legitimate profit, and in such a business as this everything counts. There are few smokers who really want the large sizes, and I can not see that the brands made in such sizes have gained much ground."

Irving I. Pollak, of the Merchants' Exchange cigar stand, says: "We should not have any sizes costing over $90-net to retail at two for a quarter. It is the goods that cost $110 or more that cause the hard times in the retail trade. Their introduction is due to competition, and is really the fault of the retailers themselves, not the manufacturers."

HAVANA, June 22.

It is about time to stop speaking about the new crop, as in two months from now the throwing of the seeds upon the ground will commence, again to raise a new growth of tobacco for the coming year. All the packings in the country are in full blast and the weather is seasonable, with a good shower nearly every day.

Our leaf market has been more animated, as the sales have nearly doubled during the past fortnight. The demand from Germany has not alone kept up, but has been increasing, and this notwithstanding that reports had been circulating that the German manufacturers were unwilling to pay the hitherto ruling prices. Evidently there must be a nigger in the woodpile somewhere, as surely our exporters would not continue to buy and ship goods if they could not dispose of them in Germany without a loss. While the demand from the American market has not been active, yet it has improved and there are more buyers coming from the North. Our local manufacturers are on the lookout for suitable vegas and are willing enough to invest their money, even if business is still very dull with them. The outlook for the future is undoubtedly getting brighter from day to day, as the present crop, as regards quality, is all that could be desired. Even the feared but color question of the wrappers could be overcome successfully, if the importers and retailers would only follow the advice given to them, in letting the smoker decide this matter, whether he prefers a cigar with a poor looking wrapper, which, however, is tasting excellently, than an apparently fine looking cigar with a beautiful wrapper, but which has no flavor whatever, or might, perhaps, be bitter in the bargain. There is only one consolation for our manufacturers, or, for that matter, for all the clear Havana manufacturers in the United States likewise, that the evil, if it could by rights be so called, is uniform, and that nobody will have any advantage in offering to the trade, or smokers, any spottish cigars this coming fall or winter. If Nature has not seen fit to give us fine looking wrappers, and it is impossible to change the colors, we must "moleus volens" accept the verdict, and conform with the attainable, and not banker after the impossible. This is logic and commonsense; therefore, let us be satisfied with what we have to offer, or can get.

Sales during the past fortnight ran up to 6850 bales in all; or, according to origin: Vuelta Abajo, 3155; Partido, 938, and Remedios, 2757 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 1595; exporters to Europe, principally Germany, 2430; shippers to Buenos Aires, 50, and our local cigar and cigarette manufacturers 2766 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from June 3, 1912, to June 15, 1912, were:

To all ports of the United States (in bales), 5607; to Bremen, Hamburg and Amsterdam, 2508; to Buenos Aires, 66; to the Canary Islands, 8; making a total of 8279 bales.

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country Were:

| | From June 2, 1912, to June 15, 1912. | Since January 1, 1912. |
|--------------|--------------------------------------|------------------------|
| Vuelta Abajo | 1,813 | 10,305 |
| Semi Vuelta | 496 | 1,764 |
| Partido | 1,170 | 3,393 |
| Remedios | 8,372 | 23,807 |
| Mayari | 41 | 1,065 |
| Total | 11,892 | 40,334 |

Cigars.

Not having received the official custom house returns, as regards the exports of our cigars for the first half of June, we have to leave this in blank until our next correspondence, and then we hope we can give the figures, not alone for what is missing today, but can give also the figures for the whole month of June.

Business in general is rather dull, as always at this season of the year, and none of our factories are working with full forces. Some factories say they have enough orders on hand, but not having the right material to execute them, as the new tobacco is still too young to be workable, so they are compelled to wait.

There is hardly any news of interest to be gained by making the rounds of our factories, at this epoch of the year, as the almost stereotyped reply is, we have no news, or they will answer, that they are working regularly, or normally; therefore, we are giving this time only the names of our principal factories, which are working the most, viz.: Romeo y Julieta, H. Upmann, Partagas, Sol, Castañeda, the principal factories of the Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Ltd., La Diligencia, Flor del Pinar and Eden.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

The uprising of the colored element in the Oriente province seems to be dying out, according to the reports given out by the government to our press, although the two leaders, Estenoz and Iveton, are still at large, but they shall have but few followers, and which are split up into small bands of bandits of from ten to twenty men. The rest of the island is perfectly quiet, and nobody seems to bother about the final outcome of this affair.

Sylvester & Stern figure as the biggest buyers during the fortnight, having accumulated 1500 bales of various kinds of leaf.

Cardenas & Co. were the biggest sellers, having disposed of 800 bales of old Vueltas.

Manuel Garcia, of Perfecto Garcia & Bro., was the largest purchaser of old and new Vueltas, as also some Partido, to the extent of 891 bales for their Tampa factory.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez sold 550 bales of all kinds of leaf to their customers.

J. F. Berendes & Co. were the largest buyers for Germany during the past fourteen days, as they had registered in all 766 bales.

M. Abella & Co. turned over 473 bales of Partido and Remedios tobacco.

Adolfo Moeller came next as a heavy buyer for Germany, having bought 764 bales.

Gonzalez & Benitez disposed of 415 bales of Remedios and Semi Vuelta.

Sidney Goldberg had collected for his firm, S. Batt & Co., of New York, 300 bales of the best vegas he could find in our market.

José F. Roelia was a seller of 320 bales of Vueltas and Partido leaf to his customers.

Hija de José Gener purchased 300 bales of fine Vueltas for her factory.

Gutierrez & Diehl sold 275 bales of leaf during the past fortnight.

H. Upmann & Co. were buyers for export to the extent of 275 bales of tobacco.

Menendez & Co. disposed of 250 bales of their fine packings of Remedios leaf.

La Moda, cigarette factory, acquired 235 bales of old Vueltas, colas.

José C. Puente closed some deals amounting to 225 bales of Remedios from his packings.

Bridat & Co. purchased 211 bales for their customers in Europe.

Camejo & La Paz were sellers of 224 bales of new Vueltas during the past fortnight.

M. A. Gunst & Co. were in our market selecting some 200 bales of choice Vueltas for their factories.

Muñiz Herms. & Co. delivered some 200 bales of their prime Remedios packings.

Behrens & Co., of the celebrated Sol factory, purchased in the neighborhood of 200 bales of extra fine new Vueltas.

Herrera, Calmet & Co. turned over 200 bales of their Remedios escogidas.

Gutierrez & Diehl were buyers of 200 bales of leaf for export to Germany.

José Menendez was not very busy during the past fortnight, as he only disposed of 120 bales of leaf, but there is no doubt but that his time will also come when he can report larger deals.

Angel L. Cuesta, of the big firm of Cuesta, Rey & Co., of Tampa, is in town looking over our market, although up to now we have only heard that he has purchased 150 bales of choice goods for the truly Spanish house.

A. M. Calzada & Co. have concluded several operations, both buying and selling; the former in the country and the latter to their customers in town.

Late New York News

Maurice Winter, of M. Perez & Co., is at present in Cuba looking over the leaf market. He is expected to return in about two weeks.

It is reported that H. M. Miller has secured a lease on the cigar store in the building at 36 Wall street, which he will occupy when the alterations are completed. This makes Mr. Miller's fourth store.

The Edwin Cigar Co., which has been operating the cigar store in the Gaiety Theatre Building, has sold out to M. A. Gunst & Co., who will run it in the future. This is considered a very good location.

The United Cigar Stores Company have leased the four-story building, at the southeast corner of Dey and Church streets, for a period of twenty-one years, from the Astor estate.

They will take possession next February and open one of their retail stores at that point.

M. H. Stein, the progressive retailer, who has been for eleven years past at 535 Broadway, is just occupying an excellent new stand at 905 Broadway, near Twentieth street. The "United" leased the building in which Mr. Stein was formerly located, at 535, and he was compelled to make this move.

A clever little sign, on the window of his new store, reads as follows: "Everybody's doing it. Doing what? Moving up! M. H. Stein, long at 535 Broadway, is now located here."

Late Jobbing Items

Henry G. Wemmer, of the Deisel-Wemmer Co., of Lima, Ohio, was a recent visitor in Cincinnati, where he discussed an aggressive campaign on the "El Verso" and "San Felice" brands, handled in that district by Charles Krohn, a prominent jobber, who has been pushing this popular product for several years.

The George B. Scrambling Co., successor to the wholesale department of the R. & W. Jenkinson Co., of Cleveland, report conditions in that vicinity as very promising. Some of their leading cigars are the "Robert Burns," "General Arthur," "Owl," "Henry George," "Bank Note" and "Abbey" of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company. They also handle the M. A. Gunst brands and also those of E. M. Schwarz & Co., of New York.

The big jobbing firm of Klauber-Wangenheim Co., of Los Angeles, Cal., who probably sell as many clear Havana cigars as any one in that territory, report a marked increase in the sale of the finer 2 for 25c. sizes. The manufacturer and jobber, according to this firm, have not forced these sizes. They were originally introduced by some of the larger retailers in order to give the consumer better value than their competitors. In this way the sale of Havana cigars costing the dealer $100.00 and $105.00 per thousand gradually grew, until today, the consumer has become educated to certain fine sizes and calls for them constantly.

Coast Retailers Kick on Fancy Sizes

Regarding the present condition of affairs on the Coast the Los Angeles correspondent of THE TOBACCO WORLD has the following to say:

LOS ANGELES, June 25.

MY interviews with the smaller retailers do not vary much, learning from practically all of them that they handle the fancy sizes but keep them "under cover" and hand them out only when demanded by the customer, claiming that the profit is very small and their expenses are very high, but they are forced to carry the fancy sizes in order to keep up with the larger dealers.

Certain jobbers who control retail stores in the city, are making a feature of putting all these fancy sizes out which cost from $100.00 to $105.00 per thousand, over their counters at a price of 2 for 25c. in order to create a great demand for the goods through their smokers and in this way the retailers are forced to put in fancy sizes, by the consumers, on which no profit is made.

Mr. Guy Yonkin, one of the most prominent retail cigar dealers here says, that by offering the consumer the best for their money, he gets the best business and makes a customer out of him at the same time. His business is nothing less than $100.00 size goods in clear Havana line. "R. V." is "a thing of the past" at his place.

Woodworth & Payne, retailers, give the following statement: "We are compelled by the consumer to handle the fancy sizes for which we pay $100.00 and $105.00. We do not care to put these goods out, but they are greatly in demand and the sales are increasing each day, especially on the 'Queens and Staples.' Our last month's sales show fore fancy size goods sold over our counter than the 'R. V.' but our profits show smaller in comparison with the sales we made with the $90.00 goods."

John Morgan, president of the Morgan Cigar Company informs us that he handles his own line and all fancy sizes under his own label and which he calls "Virginia." The cheapest size he handles cost him $97.50 and states that he believes he has his trade educated up to the fact that "R. V." is almost a thing of the past at his place of business. The demand for fancy sizes and shapes is growing each day.

Mr. Willard, manager of the cigar department of George W. Walker Cigar Company, advises us that his "Humboldt's Imperial" size which goes to the retailer for $105.00 and the "Queen" for $100.00 are selling right along and that sales show as much on this size as they do on the $90.00 sizes. He also claims that the consumers are becoming educated up to better varieties, but at the same time there is no profit for the wholesale or the retail trade.

Bob Gans, of the J. J. Gans & Bros. Cigar Co., says: "Our Natividad 'R. V.' is our best seller, but we are compelled to sell a few Imperiales sizes which goes to the trade for $100.00, but at the same time we do not average twenty thousand of this size a month and would be far better off not to sell them at all as the profit is very small on same."

Havana Letter

There is a project on foot to prohibit the exportation of Havana seed, through a special law, to be passed by our Congress. It is claimed, that by exporting our seed to other countries, they are trying to injure our reputation of being the only country on the face of the globe that raises the finest kind of tobacco, and while we are not afraid that any other piece of ground can ever reunite the same conditions of soil and climate, we wish to stop the bragging of being able to produce a substitute.

The principal shippers from the port of Havana, above 200 bales, were: Sylvester & Stern, 968; J. F. Berides & Co., 766; Adolfo Moeller, 764; Mark A. Pollak, 686; J. Bernheim & Sons, 533; Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez, 422; H. Upmann & Co., 275; Leslie Pantin, 268; Silveira & Co., 225; Suarez Herms, 224; M. A. Gunst & Co., 223; Rodriguez, Menendez & Co., 212; Bridat & Co., 211, and Gutierrez & Diehl, 200 bales.

ORETANIV.

A "Havana Ribbon" Hustler

The likeness shown above is that of Clem Wasleski the second oldest salesman, in point of service, now selling "Havana Ribbons" for Bayuk Brothers, of Philadelphia.

Mr. Wasleski joined Bayuk Brothers' selling force some eight years ago and has been very successful from the start. He is a tireless worker and conditions must be extremely poor when Clem does not succeed in procuring his usual bunch of orders. On the re-arranging of territory in January, 1911, Mr. Wasleski was placed in charge of the West Philadelphia and Main Line territory. The manner in which "Havana Ribbons" are distributed in those sections is ample proof of his ability as a "knight of the grip" and justifies in a marked degree his firm's confidence in giving him jurisdiction over such a responsible field. He is immensely popular with the trade, his co-workers and employers. And Clem's clean-cut method of doing business warrants all the esteem he enjoys.

T. Leach, a special representative of the F. R. Rice Mercantile Co., of St. Louis, is working a "drive" on the Rice Mercantile brand of goods in the Northwest and reports excellent results.

Doc. Straus, the old and well-known Pacific Coast cigar salesman, is again in harness, this time making a hit with the Coffin-Reddington Company of San Francisco, on the Cuesta-Rey brands.

Clarence Saunders, known to the traveling fraternity through the Middle West as "Razzle Dazzle," who recently retired from active work with Niles & Moser, of Kansas City, is reported to be trying his luck at farming. He retired after twenty-five years on the road to get a larger share of home life.

Dan Wharton, the genial and popular traveling man of Rothenberg & Schloss, of Denver, will soon sever his connection with that firm and on August 1st will join the sales force of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz. He will cover Utah, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington and Alaska.

Ed. Marshall, of Sig. C. Mayer & Co., of Philadelphia, is one of the best known and liked traveling cigar men in tobacco circles of Colorado and Utah. The Metropolitan Cigar Co. are the distributors of "Rey-Oma" and "El Wadera" in that region of the West.

S. C. Johnson, a popular traveling man of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, with New Orleans as his centre of operations, has joined the ranks of the farmers. It is reported that Mr. Johnson has a fine farm near Nacogdoches, Texas, and that he will soon retire there permanently.

Leon A. Stowell, who has been campaigning in San Francisco for the Surbrug Company, is visiting his old home in Minneapolis.

N. Greenblat, who has had charge of the cigar department of the Haley & Lang Co., of Sioux City, Ia., has resigned to accept a position on the road for the Niles & Moser Cigar Co., of Kansas City, and will cover a territory in Nebraska and Eastern Wyoming. He had been with Haley & Lang for eight years.

R. L. Olive, the well-known representative of the Moser Cigar Manufacturing Co., with headquarters in Kansas City, has gone on an extended tour through Kansas, Oklahoma and Northern Texas in the interest of the "La Cavalerie" brand.

Dan Lamont, of the S. R. Moss Cigar Co., of Lancaster, Pa., has just completed a campaign in Milwaukee on the "Flor de Moss" and "Prefect" cigars. He worked through the Yahr & Lange Co., distributors for the Moss products in that section.

O. C. Schneider, the popular M. Valle y Ca representative, has been covering the Middle West in the interest of the "Flor de Cuba" cigar. This brand is a well-known one among club and café circles in the larger towns in that region.

C. M. Abney, who, for the past twelve years has been the representative of the Strater Bros. Tobacco Co., in Seattle, recently resigned and will go to Florida, where he owns some farm lands, and will raise grape fruit.

T. W. Allen, formerly covering Illinois for the Parker-Gordon Cigar Co., of St. Louis, has accepted a similar position with the Smith & Smith Cigar Co., of Peoria, Ill. L. F. Webster will cover Mr. Allen's former territory with the Parker-Gordon Company.

Frank Sigler, one of the old time cigar salesmen, of Kansas City, has taken the management of the cigar department of the Lincoln Drug Co., in Lincoln, Neb.

Oscar Banghart, representing T. J. Dunn & Co. and Heyman Bros. & Lowenstein, of New York, is on a trip through the Middle West and reports excellent progress.

W. B. Wellman, of Wellman, Peck & Co., distributors, of San Francisco, is on an extended vacation in Europe. He is expected back the latter part of the summer.

Jack Lachman, formerly a road man for J. Bamberger & Co., of San Francisco, is now covering Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys, in California, for Edward Wolf & Co., "Frisco" wholesalers.

W. H. Munson, the genial and well-known traveling man of M. Melachrino & Co., has been visiting in the East and has again gone to his headquarters in Chicago. He has charge of the Middle West distribution.

New Distributors For The "El Dallo"

THAT unique cigar the "El Dallo," which has just recently been put on the market by Wertheimer Brothers of Baltimore, seems to have struck the popular fancy. This cigar is a high quality, long filler proposition, containing a desirable amount of Havana and put up in a manner that is decidedly unusual and attractive. Each cigar is wrapped in tinfoil which is covered by transparent tissue paper bearing the name of the brand. This insures the cigar being kept in perfect condition, avoiding unsanitary handling and prevents breakage to which cigars packed in the ordinary way are subjected. There are many other unusual features about the "El Dallo" which commend themselves to discriminating buyers.

Among the new distributors who have recently taken on this brand are Berdan & Co., Toledo, O.; Daniel Laughlan, of Washington, D. C.; U. Koen & Co., New Orleans, and F. A. Davis & Sons, Baltimore.

The Wertheimer factory is being taxed to its capacity to meet the growing demand for the "El Dallo" and it is the intention of the manufacturers to concentrate almost exclusively on the production and exploitation of this brand. They know that they have a good thing and they intend to push it.

To Handle "Bank Note" Cigar

The Metropolitan Cigar Co., of Denver, have taken on the "Bank Note" cigar, made by the United Cigar Manufacturers Co., of New York. This brand has been handled by the Niles & Moser Cigar Co., of that city, for the past six months. The transfer of the stock took place last week, and the Metropolitan Company promise to make this cigar an equal seller with the other well-known United Cigar Manufacturers Co.'s brands.

New Lines for Lang, Jones & Company

The wholesale firm of Lang, Jones & Co., of Portland, Ore., are one of the leading cigar jobbing houses of that section. This concern, which is composed of F. A. Jones and Harry Lang, are handling some of the most widely known brands in the country.

Some lines, of which they recently secured the control for the State of Oregon, are those of Francisco Bolano, the "La Famosa," of E. Kleiner & Co., and "Yale Club," Sam Harris, both of New York City.

Toledo, Ohio Jobbers in Happy Mood

The jobbers and retailers of Toledo, Ohio, state that their May business has been the largest in years, and from present indication the June figures will soar ahead of those of May. The increase is not on any particular brands, but some cigars which have done exceptionally well are "San Felice," Deisel-Wemmer Co., Lima, O.; "Havana Ribbon," Bayuk Brothers, and "New Bachelor," T. J. Dunn & Co., New York.

A. C. Gibbs, New Pittsburgh Wholesaler, Opens

The formal opening of the A. C. Gibbs Company store, at 440 Wood street, Pittsburgh, took place several weeks ago without a flourish of any kind. A. C. Gibbs, head of the firm, is so well known and liked in that city that the trade came just the same. Those associated with Mr. Gibbs are H. C. Baird, treasurer of the company; C. L. Lee, formerly with Reymer Brothers, and Edward Detweiler.

This new concern will do both a retail and jobbing business and will handle in clear Havana cigars such goods as: "Tuval" (Marcelino Perez & Co.), which is being featured, "La Mia" (Y. Pendas & Alvarez), "Infinito" and "Mi Cara" (Arguelles, Lopez & Bro.) and "Sevilla" (Lopez, Hnos. & Co.). In imported goods the following brands are carried: "Henry Clay," "Romeo y Julieta," "Carolina," "Partagas," "Hoyo de Monterrey," "Eden," "Figaro," "Garcia," "Bock," "Villar y Villar," "Por Larranaga," "Cabanas" and "Corona." The domestic line includes "El Remarko," "Indefencia," "Cuballets" (S. R. Moss Cigar Co.), "Rugby" (Sig. C. Mayer & Co.), "El Cado" and "La Preferencia" (Havana-American Co.). In Porto Rican goods they handle "Crownell" (Logan Tobacco Co.) and "La Flor de Alfonso" (American West Indies Trading Co.). The cigarettes include such brands as "Pall Mall," "Philip Morris," "Rameses," "Deities," "Melachrino," "Helmar," "National," "Fatima," "Mogul" and others.

M. A. Gunst & Co. in New Quarters

The local jobbing business of M. A. Gunst & Co., at Seattle, Wash., has been concentrated on their new place of business in the Phinney Building, where they are now firmly established. The offices were moved several weeks ago from the Butler Hotel Building and the stock has been moved the past week.

C. B. Poar, the Seattle manager of M. A. Gunst & Co., denied the rumor that his concern contemplated opening twenty stores in Seattle and were later to enter the Tacoma field. In reply, he stated that the fifth Gunst store would shortly be opened at the Clemmer Theater, in Seattle. Regarding the Tacoma rumor, he said his firm did not expect to enter that city at present, unless it opened a wholesale house.

Watt Cigar Co. To Handle "Wanda"

One of the new cigars to break in the Minneapolis market is the "Wanda," made by L. F. Weiss & Co., of New York. Mr. Weiss was a recent visitor in that region and placed his brand with the Watt Cigar Co., which will, for a time, handle it in four sizes.

Reymer & Bros., of Pittsburgh, are doing a good trade on small cigars. They are now making a drive on the "Solace" cigar, the distribution of which they took on recently for this territory. They have several displays of the brand in the "Smoky City." Reymer & Bros. expect to open their new retail stand in the First National Bank Building about July 1st.

National Grocery Co. to Handle Manilas

That the Manila cigar is coming up stronger every day, particularly in the West, is shown by the number of firms taking on these smokes, who heretofore did not handle them. One of the latest is in Seattle, the National Grocery Co., who will carry the "Alejandria," a first-class piece of goods, made in the Alejandria factory in Manila.

I. M. Cohen, manager of the cigar department, stated that the cigar, tobacco and pipe section of the business would soon have special quarters. Extensive alterations are now being made to the building.

The Mosher Cigar Co., of Omaha, Neb., is reported to have taken the distribution of the "La Cavalerie" brand of the Moser Cigar Manufacturing Co., of Detroit, Mich.

The "New Bachelor," cigar of T. J. Dunn & Co., is one of the most popular pieces of goods with the A. J. Mitchell Cigar Company, distributors, of St. Louis.

Sidney Cahen, the hustling traveling man for E. Regensburg & Sons, has completed a trip through Pennsylvania and New Jersey and is now on a trip through New York State pushing the "American" cigar. The "American" is a popular seller at the summer resorts.

The Lawrence Cigar Company, of Denver, recently received their first shipment of "Charter," 5c. cigars and "Inventors," selling at a dime, which lines they took on a short time ago. They are made by E. M. Schwarz & Co., of New York City.

Lane & Connelly, cigar wholesalers of San Francisco, formerly at 26 Front street, are now located at 58 Pine street.

Edward Wolf & Co., large jobbers of San Francisco, are enjoying an excellent trade on their Manila brand, "Insular." Jobbers on the Coast are surprised at the increased demand for the Philippine product and are experiencing difficulty in securing frequent enough shipments.

The Rosenfeld-Smith Co., of Seattle, Wash., recently purchased a new automobile for delivery purposes in that city and adjacent territory. Gus Parsons, manager of the company, states that the demand for their brands is rapidly increasing.

Baker Brothers, the Boston jobbers, report a growing demand for the "San Felice" cigar, the well-known Deisel-Wemmer product. During 1911 this concern distributed over one million of these popular smokes around Boston and in a recent statement, one man, prominently identified with their trade, said he would not be surprised to see them job twenty million in the next five years.

Best & Russel, of Chicago, are doing an extensive window display campaign in all their stores on the "Abbey" cigar, of Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., Philadelphia. They have distributed it through the "Windy City" until it is known as one of the largest sellers.

Glaser Bros., of San Francisco, are kept hustling on orders for the "King's Court" and "Hernsheim" cigars of the Hernsheim Co., of New Orleans.

Col. Steere, Assistant Collector of Internal Revenue at Manila, recently arrived in San Francisco for a short stay. He stated that the Philippine cigars are arriving in this country at the rate of 7,500,000 a month. Labor conditions on the Island are far from satisfactory.

Niles & Moser, of Kansas City, are doing an excellent trade on "La Saramita" cigars, manufactured by Shields-Wertheim Co., of Cleveland, and report that the smokers in the Middle West are realizing more every day the worth of this piece of goods. The Cleveland company have been working an aggressive campaign on the "La Saramita" and the results are a natural sequence of the up-to-date methods employed.

The Walding, Kinnan and Marvin Co., of Toledo, Ohio, have taken on the distribution of the "Sight Draft" cigar, made by W. K. Gresh & Son, of Norristown, Pa., and will open up a big campaign on them in that territory.

May Merge Lexington, Ky., Warehouses

The Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Association about ten days ago secured options on the following tobacco warehouses, of Lexington, K. Y. The Lexington, Shelburne's, the three controlled by the Growers' Warehouse Company and the new house of Luther Stivers & Co., in course of construction. The cost of swinging the deal is said to have been above $250,000.

The deal which is being negotiated for the Louisville people by A. P. Bernard, of that city, will give the Louisville people practical control of the loose leaf as well as the hogshead market of Kentucky. The option expires July 1.

Commemorate 25th Wedding Anniversary

Samuel Levy, president of the Enterprise Cigar Company, Trenton, N. J., was delightfully surprised on June 13th to receive a magnificent candelabra set of three pieces from the employees of his factory in commemoration of his 25th or Silver wedding anniversary. The presentation was made by a committee of employees and Mr. Levy was so overcome by the mark of their affection and esteem that he was at a loss for words to express his gratitude and appreciation.

May Close Down New Brunswick Plant

One thousand employees of the New Brunswick Cigar Company, of New Brunswick, N. J., made a demand at the close of work on June 24th, for an increase in wages. The company notified them that it could not agree to the increase asked for and rather than have any trouble it is expected that the factory will be closed for a time pending adjustment of the wages. The closing of the plant will throw out of employment nearly 2000 hands.

Elmira, N. Y., Retailer Makes Assignment

A general assignment for the benefit of his creditors has been made by Arthur F. Wiegand, who conducts a cigar store at 109 East Water street, Elmira, N. Y., to Burton C. Meeker, of that city. The assignment is made in return for valuable considerations given by Mr. Meeker.

June Prosperous Month in Chicago

American Retail Cigar Dealers Co., New Company
 ---Schroeder & Co., Distributing "Plantista"---Frank
 Dager to Open Jobbing House

CHICAGO, June 25.

JUNE brought prosperity to Chicago tobacco dealers. The Republican National Convention proved a boon to hotel stands, and stock of high-priced cigars were completely cleaned out in the largest hotels of the city. Three for a half and three for a dollar smokes were sold over the counter like the nickel article in ordinary times, and delegates consumed thousands in the long, bitter battle on the convention floor. Cigar stores along Michigan and Wabash avenues, etc., in proximity of headquarters, were also heavily taxed, and all stands in the "loop" profited more or less. Good weather helped local trade, and the month did much to overcome some of the dullness prevalent earlier in the season.

The American Retail Cigar Dealers' Company, capital $5,000, is a new Chicago incorporation. Harry J. Lurie, F. L. Clarke and John L. Anderson are the names appearing on the articles.

L. F. Weiss, of L. F. Weiss & Co., makers of the "Wanda" brand, was in town en route to Pennsylvania, where he has placed the brand with E. A. Strouse & Co.

Graham Davis, of Bondy & Lederer, is in town. Their brand, "Tom Keene," is distributed by Steele, Wesles & Co. Graham's father, "Pop Davis," has been selling goods for Bondy & Lederer for 40 years. He has an office in the Fine Arts Building.

Jim Courtney, headquarters at Madison, Wis., Best & Russell Co.'s representative for Wisconsin, who has been in their employ covering the same territory for the past 15 years, has opened a cigar store in Madison, near the "Square," and is looking for another location near the University. He has just finished a campaign with Mr. J. Bauer, on the "Abbey" cigar. Mr. Bauer is general sales agent for this brand.

Marcelini, Perry & Co., of New York, are now making the "General Shield" brand for Chapin & Gore.

Best & Russell Co. have placed the "Van Dyck" cigar, of M. A. Gunst & Co., in their retail stores. This cigar is also on sale at the Congress and Sherman hotels.

Schroeder & Co. Distributing "Plantista."

O. Schroeder & Co. are the distributors for the "Plantista" cigar, made by the Compeer Cigar Co., of Indianapolis. They are giving out a leather cigar case in exchange for "Plantista" bands.

Morrison, Plummer & Co., wholesale druggists, have the distribution of the "La Confession" cigar, made by Benito Rovira Co., of New York.

Hillman's, Washington and State streets, are building up a nice department under the supervision of Charles Pennell. They cut prices on all the popular brands, but have a good many private brands made up for them.

Ed Moser, of Niles & Moser Cigar Co., of Kansas City, now in Europe, is expected in Chicago early in July on his way back to Kansas City. Niles & Moser are the largest cigar jobbers in Kansas City. They also have branches in Denver, Omaha and Dallas.

John P. Harding, of the Postal Building, La Salle & Van Buren streets, has a big cigar business. He carries all the leading brands, besides several private ones. Mr. Harding is also president of the Planters' Hotel Co.

The United Cigar Manufacturers have a very large electric sign at Oakwood Boulevard and Cottage Grove avenue, which also shows from Drexel Boulevard. This is a good auto location and "auto" increase sales on the brand it advertises, "Robert Burns," during the summer months.

The Union News Co. has a corner retail store in the La Salle Street Station (corner Van Buren and La Salle streets), in which they have a big cigar department which is under the management of Mr. Johnson, who worked for Best & Russell Co. for many years. They carry a full line of imported brands; also popular brands of local fame like "La Soneda," "Optimo," "El Pendas," "Lovera," "Sanchez y Haya," "Tom Palmer," "Robert Burns," and "Tom Moore." In five-cent goods their big sellers are "La Calzada," (Geo. L. Storm & Co.), "El O'Roy," "Lord Temple," "Soneda," and "Half a Dime."

Since Best & Russell Co. have taken charge of the Congress Drug-store department, Van Buren and Wabash avenue, the business has increased rapidly. Best & Russell Co. have many popular brands such as "Sanchez y Haya," "Robert Burns," "Owl," "Palmer House," and many others, which enable them to increase the retail business. They also operate the cigar departments in the Consumers' Drug Co., State and Randolph streets; Buck & Rayner, State and Madison streets; Buck & Rayner, La Salle and Madison streets; Buck & Rayner, Northwest-ern Depot, and Auditorium Pharmacy, Wabash and Congress streets. At these stands they also carry popular brands (where the demand justifies it) of other houses' brands that are not jobbed by them, such as "Tom Palmer," of Wengler & Mandell.

The cigar stores on the south side are all putting in the new style National cash registers—those throwing out a ticket, which the customer is encouraged to retain for rebates and premiums. Goldwin Smith, who lives at 550 Oakwood Boulevard, and represents the National Cash Register Co., has just sold one of this type to Joe Lawler, at Thirty-ninth street and Indiana avenue, and three to the Drexel, Thirty-ninth street and Cottage Grove.

John F. Doyle, proprietor of two places, with headquarters at State and Lake streets, has built up an excellent business. He handles all lines of popular brands such as "La Soneda," "Sanchez y Haya," "Lucious," "Lovera," "Robert Burns," "Tom Moore," and "Tom Palmer." Recently he had a very fine window display of "Optimo," being a very close friend of Ed Morgan's, who sells "Optimos" for Clarence Hirschhorn & Co., the distributors of that brand.

The store at La Salle and Monroe streets (Borland Building), owned by Best & Russell Co., is in charge of Charlie Isitt, who has been with them for a number of years. Charlie got his training at Buck & Rayners when Tom Ledward owned the place. They sell a great many imported cigars at this store; also, package goods, the leader being the "Java," 5 for 20c, made by Storm, Fisher & Co.

Best & Russell Co. are popularizing two new brands, "San Marco," Sumatra wrapped, made by United Cigar Manufacturers, and "Potter Palmer," Havana wrapped, made by Storm, Fisher & Co., of New York, which they sell only on Saturdays and Sundays at 5c each, and job at $38 per thousand. For those two days the above brands get all the preference in all their stores, and both sell well and are gaining every week. In jobbing these brands they compel their customers to sell them on the last and first day of the week also.

H. M. Schermerhorn, Inc., have put in the "Java" package of Storm, Fisher & Co., which is put at 5 for 20c, in a very handy and attractive box, besides being a "full grown" cigar.

New Manager for Best & Russell Store.

Ralph Hamburger, formerly of the United Cigar Stores, as district manager, now has charge of Best & Russell Co.'s store, at Dearborn and Randolph streets. Ralph was formerly of the old house of Clayton & Hamburger, who were the first ones to sell out to the United. Clayton is still with the United.

Richard Davis is now traveling for Storm, Fisher & Co., through Ohio, Michigan and Indiana.

I noticed a large bulletin board on the Michigan Boulevard side of the Lexington Hotel, reading:

"La Soneda,"
 Havana Splits, 10 for 15c.
 Mild for Cigarette Smokers.

And upon inquiry, find it a new package—in fact, "all new," ten small smokes, Havana wrapper and filler, no binder, cigarette shaped, for 15 cents. They are made by Storm, Fisher & Co., of New York, and are well placed in this town and St. Louis.

Harry Herring, formerly cashier of the Milwaukee Avenue Bank, of Stensland notoriety, is selling the "Lady Palmer" cigar, which is the product of a local factory.

The South Side is looked after for Wolf & Comstock by James Pfont, of 334 East Thirty-sixth street. "Jimmy," as everybody knows him, was formerly with E. H. Gato, made good and is still doing it. He has put "Evangeline Cisneros" in every first-class store on the South Side, except "Joy Parlors," as Jim does not like the saloon game.

A visitor from Boston, who comes to Chicago semi-annually, made a remark at the LaSalle Hotel the other day that he did not like Chicago for the reason that the men all blew their smoke in his face at the cafes, restaurants and theatres in winter and in the summer time did the same thing in the summer gardens and cars. Evidently this man was not selling tobacco, probably was one of those kind who say: "Let's do something devilish; let's ride in the smokes with the men."

Tunnel Sends Rents Skyward.

Fred L. Wells, the Jackson Boulevard (Royal Insurance Building) cigarist, has just signed a five-year lease for a new store, 167 West Washington street, next door to the Record-Herald building, and is to open same August 1st. This is an old street in Chicago, which for years was never considered much as a retail street, but the new tunnel has changed some of the traffic. The United have a store on this block, also Leopold & Mergentheim.

Thad Howe is remodeling the building on the Fifth avenue and Randolph corner and is trying to rent the corner for a cigar store, but is holding the rent at $300 per month, which is considered too high. Powers & Gilbert have just opened a new cafe in this block, and this is the street where the Elks have a club house. The State Bank, on the corner of Washington and LaSalle streets, will shortly move into the new Otis Building, Madison and LaSalle streets, which will change this location again by throwing a lot of small stores in the old quarters of the bank. Geo. H. Mayr has a cigar department in his drug store on the other corner. His lease is up next May and the owners are trying to lease the entire ground floor for nineteen years at $24,000 per year; "some rent."

These raises in rents are all on account of a mere tunnel—no night or Sunday business. With City Hall on one corner, Sherman House on the other, and thirty-seven cafes and fourteen cigar stores surrounding it, I can't see where that excess of trade is coming from to pay the rents on Washington street, between Clark and Fifth avenue. Looks like a pipe dream of the "real estate brokers," watch and see a bubble burst.

The Best & Russell Co. opened their Michigan avenue store in the Pullman Building. The corner was remodelled and has been fitted up with the latest fixtures. All the "big five," with the exception of the United, now have stores in this promenade street.

A delivery boy in the employ of G. W. Faber, in his desire to make an extra dime, was robbed of over $100 worth of merchandise which he was delivering by a trick perpetrated by a crook, who offered him a piece of change to deliver a hurry-up message to his girl in the Republic Building manicure parlor. The boy hesitated on account of the package which he was carrying, but readily consented when the stranger offered to watch his bundle. He returned a few moments later to find both watchman, package and two bits vanished.

Frank Dager to Open Jobbing House.

Frank Dager will shortly open a cigar jobbing house on the South Side and has engaged Frank Klym, formerly with Clarence Hirschhorn & Co., to assist him. Mr. Dager is in New York this week buying goods.

A new cigar store has been opened in West Madison street, between Jefferson and Union, by John Heiland & Co.

Victor Reimach has just returned from Buffalo, where he met his father, Oscar Reimach, who is with George L. Storm & Co. Mr. Storm placed the "La Venga" brand in his retail stores in Buffalo and Boston. Victor Reimach travels for "La Venga" factory; headquarters in Chicago.

Leopold & Mergentheim have rented the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and Jackson Boulevard for a term of years, and expect to put in a fine cigar store.

George Renaud, secretary of W. F. Monroe Cigar Co., has returned from a fishing trip. Says the only bait he used was a "Cuban Smoker."

Happened to be walking along Wabash avenue the other day and saw Meyer rubbering at some new signs in C. Jevne & Co.'s window. Sig. just put the "Lozano" brand in with "Jevne" in 12 sizes.

The cigar privilege at Riverview Park is now held by Ramon Suarez & Co. They are pushing their own brands, "Lady Ramon" and "Durbar."

The new three-story building of Gronnes & Elson, at Robey and Wilnot streets, will be ready for occupancy about the first of July.

Thomas McEldowney will open a cigar store in Chicago Heights, June 25. He has just moved from Harvey, where he had been in the retail business.

The Hotel La Salle roof garden is now open for the summer. All guests have free access to it, but only such of the general public who have been furnished with admission cards. Mr. Hasley has a cigar stand in the corridor. His leader is the "Hotel La Salle" brand.

J. S. Kimmelstiel was here recently in the interest of the Key West cigar factory.

William Best, Jr., of Best & Russell Co., has just returned from Memphis, where he attended a meeting of the Best & Russell Co. branch and took up current matters with A. B. Adair, manager of the Memphis branch.

The cigar store of Charles R. Joseph, at Fifth avenue and South

Water street, is now in full swing. Mr. Joseph is carrying a splendid line. Some of the brands are: "Webster," of Y. Pendas & Alvarez; "Flor de Bolano," of Francisco Bolano & Co.; "Jose Vila," of Berri-man Bros.; "Henry the Fourth," of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, and "La Venga," of Celestino Vega & Co. Also, "Sola," of the R. Fernandez Cigar Co., and "Optimo," of A. Santaella y Ca. His leader is "Mi Rey," in 22 sizes. Besides he carries a full line of cigarettes. Among them noticeably are "Murad," "Melachirino," "Deities," "Milo," "Nestor," and "Schinasi." He has the equipment for doing a large and lucrative business.

Bob Brunton, who is with the "Nestor" factory, is introducing a new Quaker cigarette called "Ras-Eltin," made by Nestor Gianacles Co., of Boston. Bob, who was formerly an inside man, has developed into a good outside man for the "Nestor" factory. The only thing against Bob is he lives in Bowmanville, where they all smoke stogies (cheap ones) to kill the "Butterflies."

Charles L. Miller Has Fine Store.

One of the classiest cigar stores in Chicago is that of Charles L. Miller, 225 West Jackson Boulevard. A very high-grade line of cigars are carried including such brands as "Partagas," "Romeo y Julieta," "Bock," "Corona," "Cabanas" and "Hoyo de Monterrey" in the imported brands and "Tasso," "Wall's Court," "James Stuart," and "Miller's 225" in the domestic article.

Frank Johnson, vice-president of the American Cigar Co., visited Chicago recently. He made his headquarters at J. & B. Moss.

H. L. Judell, of H. L. Judell & Co., San Francisco cigar jobbers, stopped a few hours in Chicago en route to the convention of the Travelers' Association at Columbus.

William F. Datz, who has a drug store at Vincennes avenue and 39th street, has a good cigar department. He does quite a business with the priests of the Holy Angels Parish. His principal selling brands are "Tom Palmer," "Cyrilla," "El Euponia," also carrying "La Soneda," "Sanchez & Haya" and "Optimo." His assortment of five-cent cigars and cigarettes comprise most standard brands. His leader in five-cent Havana goods is the "Datz Prescription," made by Storm, Fisher & Co.

Michael Richman & Co. is a recent Springfield, Ill., incorporation. Capital $1,000. They will deal in cigars and tobacco. The incorporators are M. H. and L. Richman.

Joseph Stasny and Frank Caul, marriage license clerks in the county clerk's office, were made the victim of the loaded cigar joke last week when Frank Panee handed them the smokes on the occasion of his prospective marriage. The clerks suffered no damage although their feelings were badly lacerated when the cigars blew up.

In walking along Dearborn Street, I happened to look in a cigar store and saw a sign reading: "A Havana Leaves for 5 cents." Went in and bought one. Guess the Havana must have left before I got it.

There were a lot of disappointed dealers among the tobacco trade of the delegates had shaken the dust of Chicago off their shoes. Of course the hotel stands and dealers close to the field of battle were entirely satisfied, but the stands outside the circle of convention traffic, had but little additional business from the delegates. According to some dealers these delegates bought stogies and package goods (the more in the box the better), and "Home Runs" and "Fatimas" were the popular sellers. The dusky delegates from the South brought their "makings" with them and borrowed a Northern light.

As one cigar dealer said: "The Republican delegates came to Chicago with a clean shirt and a five spot and did not change either one."

Dettelbach & Beckman are hustling South Side jobbers, located at 813 East 39th street. They job many well known brands, but specialize in a private brand of their own called "Rosa v. yo."

Gore and Creditors Agree on Settlement.

The bankruptcy petition recently filed by creditors of C. H. Gore has been dismissed, the creditors agreeing to accept 35 cents on the dollar.

Albert Breitung is retailing in his chain of stores a new brand called "St. Andrew," made for him by Fromherz-Berlitzheimer & Co.

Two members of the Government Bureau of Entomology are now in Chicago studying the tobacco bug. The little insect has been known to get into cigars after they were manufactured and destroy thousands of smokes. The Government is seeking something to offset the damage done by the bug.

A number of Chicago jobbers have already closed leases for window displays, to be used in the exploitation of cigars during the "Made-in-Chicago" exposition, to be held in this city during October.

Louis Neuman and Billy Maas, new owners of the Charles Barker Co., now incorporated, auctioned off a lot of odds and ends and old stock in taking hold of the concern.

Among the trade visitors in town the past ten days were noted: Leo F. Weiss, of Leo F. Weiss & Co.; L. C. Comoy, of H. Comoy & Co., London, England; W. M. Freeman, of Symons-Kraussman & Co.; F. E. Barnes, Barnes-Smith Co.; S. M. Frank, of S. M. Frank & Co.; S. C. Jettles, of Jettles & Blumenthal.

Action of Chicago Convention Arouses Little Enthusiasm

Detroit Prepares to Entertain Cadillaqua Visitors--Custom Inspectors Sign Petition Asking for Increase in Pay

DETROIT, June 24. THE proceedings of the Chicago Convention proved the all-absorbing topic of conversation last week. Taft's nomination meets with little enthusiasm among the tobacco trade here.

Very favorable comment was heard respecting the editorial published in the June 15th TOBACCO WORLD, under the heading, "Detroit, the New Tampa of the West." The article was reprinted in full by "The Detroit Free Press" on June 10th. "The Detroit News" referred to the editorial in both its morning and afternoon editions of the same date. It is probable, too, that reference will be made to the article in the next number of "The Detroitier," the official organ of the Detroit Board of Commerce.

Enterprising sales managers are beginning to scout around for window display space for Cadillaqua week, which begins July 22nd. The Cadillaqua fête will be the biggest and most brilliant civic jubilee ever attempted by any American city. Detroit's fame has spread over land and sea to the far corners of the earth. This fête, which is to become an annual affair, is designed to preserve the history and traditions of our beautiful city and to further its commercial and industrial greatness. It is altogether appropriate, therefore, that none but Detroit-made goods should be seen in our cigar store window displays during Cadillaqua week. We've got the factories. We've got the goods. And there'll be one hundred and fifty thousand strangers here that week to look at them. Come on you Detroiters! Get together!

A petition has recently been circulated among the seventy-five customs inspectors employed at the port of Detroit to secure an increase of pay. When completed the petition will be forwarded to Washington in the hope of its being approved by the Secretary of the Treasury. Most of the customs officials here have been in the Government service over a score of years, and with living expenses increasing yearly and salaries remaining stationary, the customs men have been experiencing trouble in making both ends meet.

Jas. McNee, prominent cigar manufacturer of London, Ont., is here on business.

The McHie-Scotten Tobacco Company are leading, for the present, on "Union Scout Scrap" and "Union Scout Plug." They are also doing nicely on several other types of smoking and chewing.

Oscar Rosenberger providentially escaped arrest for exceeding the speed limit when he responded to a hurry call Friday night, to get to a fire in the Oakland garage, 808 Woodward avenue. Oscar owns the building, which was damaged to the extent of $5,000, well covered by insurance. Oscar's great hurry was to prevent anyone's saving his old Peerless, which has been in the garage, unused, for the greater part of three years. The Peerless was also insured.

Gram & Co., 812 Woodward avenue, came near suffering serious damage from the Oakland fire. Firemen attempted to run a line of hose through the store, which would have about ruined everything in the place. Emil Jacobs, who was on duty at the time, locked front and rear doors and windows, thus effectually keeping out both smoke and water.

Quite an extensive cigar business is done at Goldman Bros' Pharmacy, 418 Hastings street. Conspicuous among ten-cent goods is the "Pastora," which seems to enjoy ever increasing favor in Detroit, its home city. Among other cigars that are popular at Goldman Bros', are B. Schwartz's "R. G. Dun" and "Red Bell." "The Detroit News," made by David Segan, has a good sale. "Old Tag" and "Francisco Goya," made by Randall-Landfeld Co., Chicago, are among the best sellers. "Cinco" and "San Felice" are also carried.

Central Cigar Company showed a neat display of "La Resta," one of the classiest nickel packages ever turned out by the San Telmo, and a corking good smoke for the money.

One seldom hears of Frank R. Burdick. His plant is a small one; but in his factory, at 267 Gratiot avenue, he is busy six days of the week, without interruption, manufacturing just one cigar, the "Heralda de Cuba," and the merits of this cigar have built for Mr. Burdick a clientele that is distributed over nearly two-thirds of the United States. Occasionally Mr. Burdick receives export orders, as, for instance, 250 "Club Perfecto" to Charlottenburg, Germany, some time ago, followed by an additional 250 to Dresden. Mr. Burdick has been manufacturing in Detroit for thirty years; the past nineteen years under the present style.

Ed Lichtig has been, for three weeks, making a thorough canvass of the State for Philip Morris cigarettes, with good results.

Wm. Lichtig is so busy at Surety Cigar Company's factory he scarcely knows which way to turn. The local sales of their Havana cigar, "Charles the Eighth," through the Harry W. Watson Co., are steadily gaining.

At the recent annual meeting of The Adcraft Club, composed of Detroit's leading advertisers and ad specialists, Mr. Chas. Hughes, the newly-elected president, was loudly called on for a speech.

"Gentlemen," said he, "brevity and action shall be the keynote of my administration. I thank you for the honor you have done me. Mr. McGee (to the steward) kindly pass a box of "Charles the Eighth."

Eugene Lilienfeld, of Chicago, spent a part of last week here overlooking the various Lilienfeld interests and discussing plans for the future. The Lilies cigar factory is exceptionally busy and advertising for cigarmakers in the daily papers of Cincinnati and elsewhere.

A. B. Heaverich, well-known leaf salesman and tobacco broker of Detroit, who, since January 1st of this year, has been with the firm of Charles J. Waxelbaum & Co., of New York, announces that his connection with that firm will end July 1st. For six years, prior to joining Waxelbaum & Co., Mr. Heaverich represented the Sumatra house of L. Schmid & Co., with headquarters at Cincinnati. He is not yet prepared to announce definite plans for the future.

Fred Harris, manager of the Best & Russell Co. store, is impatiently awaiting the electric sign that is to dazzle the corner of Woodward and Jefferson avenues.

Art Gram has just added the 5-cent "Triangulares" size to his stock of "El Sidelito," a nifty package of five for a quarter.

Lee & Cady's cigar department is very busy. Mr. Higgins reports, "Pastora" is a big feature in their sales. In nickel lines "Cinco" and "San Felice" lead.

Alexander Gordon finds a ready demand for his most recent five-cent cigar "Canadian Club," and also reports good sales of his broadleaf wrapped "Othman," ten cents.

Victor Eitlinger, representing Emanuel Hoffman & Son, with headquarters at Detroit, departed on the 17th inst. for a trip of several weeks to the West and Northwest.

Mr. Michaels, of the Cayey-Cagnas Co., has been here some days assisting Claude E. Howell in special work on "Savanna."

Among the pilgrims are: Thos. Branyan, José Escalante & Co.; Mort. Hammer, Garcia, Vega & Co.; H. Hammer, Corral, Wodiska & Co.; A. Shapiro, M. A. Gunst & Co.; G. R. Conover, E. A. Calves & Co., Philadelphia; S. Bijur, E. Rosenwald & Bro.; Howard Kinney, Duys & Co.; Fred Singer, Rossin & Co.; Henry Fisher, A. Cohn & Co.; Ernest Hatliaway, Hathaway & Steen, Hartford, Conn.; Richard Baum, J. Cohn & Co., New York; E. A. Jandorf, Keiser & Boasberg, Buffalo; Harry Nathan and Harry Spingarn, E. Spingarn & Co.; (Max Kaufman, A. L. & M. L. Kaufman, makers of "Smokecraft" cigars); Walter Eisenmann, Eisenmann Bros., leaf tobacco, Cincinnati; Edgar Pretzfeld, Pretzfeld & Son, New York; "Doc" Easton, Falk Tobacco Co., Richmond.

Increased Tobacco Imports Into Liverpool

The imports of American merchandise into the English port of Liverpool were greater last year than ever before in the history of the trade, according to a consular report of April 10, 1912.

No imports showed a larger proportional increase than unmanufactured tobacco which is as follows, compared with 1910:

| | 1910 | | 1911 | |
|-----------|-------------------|-------------|-------------------|-------------|
| | Quantities Pounds | Values | Quantities Pounds | Values |
| Stemmed | 21,437,233 | $3,356,332 | 23,270,265 | $4,121,502 |

The imports of manufactured tobacco show a slight falling off, being valued at $223,575 in 1910 and $205,232 during 1911.

A campaign for the promotion of the sale of Holyoke, Mass., cigars, has been inaugurated by the Holyoke Cigar Makers' Union, who will try to interest the army of cigar smokers in that city into purchasing home products. The union members are meeting the Board of Trade of that city, who have agreed to listen to their arguments in favor of the scheme.

Demand for Seed Havana Cigars in Los Angeles Englander & Osburn Open New Store—Klauber-Wangenheim Co. Add Two Salesmen

THE firm of Klauber-Wangenheim Co. have re-organized part of their territory and have put on two additional salesmen. Mr. O. S. Treadwell will hereafter cover the entire San Joaquin Valley as well as the Coalinga district, including the oil well districts, which were formerly covered by Joe Bonhans. Mr. Percy Dutton will cover the Owens River country and all of Inyo County.

Both Mr. Barnes and Mr. Bonhans report a splendid sale for Klauber-Wangenheim Co. in their territory on "Optimos," "Post Dispatch," "Chancellor" and "Pippins." These four brands are prominently displayed all over Southern California.

Fred H. Austin reports "Pure Gold" sales increasing and expects to ship another carload of "Pure Gold" into this territory July 1st.

Snyder reports to the United States Department of Commerce and Labor that the imports into Panama City during 1911 of manufactured and unmanufactured tobacco were as follows: leaf tobacco, United States, $24,000; manufactured tobacco, England, $79,000; Latin-American countries, $16,000; Belgium, $9,000; United States, $4,500.

Valloft & Dreux Creditors Appoint Committee

Will Look After the Interests of Affected Firms.—Will Probably Continue Concerns.

ALL the creditors interested in the bankruptcy of Valloft & Dreux, the well-known New Orleans, wholesale cigar and tobacco firm, met on June 21st to decide upon their future action in the matter regarding the adjustment of their claims. Some of the firms represented at the meeting were the Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., of Philadelphia; the Ruy Lopez Co., of Key West; the American West Indies Sales Co.; the West Indies Cigar Co.; Kraus & Co., of Baltimore; Carl Upman; Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, and Durlach Bros. Mr. Thomas G. Thompson, the receiver for Valloft & Dreux and its affiliated concern, the Independent Cigar Stores Co., arranged for the meeting.

According to a statement regarding the condition of the two firms, the following are the largest claimants: Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., $13,000; the Ruy Lopez Co., $19,000; the American West Indies Sales Co., $8,000; the West Indies Cigar Co., $2,000; Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, $4,500, and Durlach Bros., $4,000.

After some discussion, Receiver Thompson outlined a plan for the creditors to pool their interests and appoint a committee to attend to their affairs, which they agreed to do. It is expected that the concern will be reorganized under a different management. Mr. Valloft, who managed both the retail and jobbing houses pleaded for a continuation of the business under plans suitable to the creditors.

The West Indies Cigar Co., of New York, withdrew their intervention suit and agreed to act with the other concerns interested. Much credit was given to Mr. Thompson, the receiver, for his efficient management and it was voted to retain him as permanent receiver.

New Porto Rico Leaf No Lower in Price

According to Fred R. Hoisington, of the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, in a recent interview in New York, the new Porto Rico leaf is one of the best in years. The wrappers are said to be cleaner than usual and there is also a larger proportion than formerly.

Continuing he says:

"Some damage was done by too much rain early in the season, and we had prepared ourselves for a crop not quite up to the standard, but in this we have been most agreeably disappointed. It is a little too early to say much about fillers, yet, and I ought to state that only the flimsier portion of the crop has been packed. But it is generally true that good quality fillers go with a crop that produces good wrappers. We are anticipating no difficulty in disposing of the crop, although it is large, the acreage being larger and the yield per acre heavier than usual. The demand for Porto Rican tobacco far exceeds the supply.

"About the price I cannot speak at this time, so far as the general crop is concerned, except to say that there is no reason to look for cheaper tobacco this year than we got last year. The sugar is bidding against tobacco in Porto Rico, both for labor and land. The consequence is that the cost of raising tobacco has increased. However, this year's crop is being graded more carefully than in the past, although there is probably room for improvement yet. Even if prices should be higher than last year, which is highly probable, the manufacturers will get a very desirable class of goods and will be able to manufacture a quality product."

Greensboro Tobacco Warehouse Co. Organized

At a meeting of a number of business men of Greensboro, N. C., recently, the Greensboro Tobacco Warehouse Company was organized and it was decided to erect at once a $15,000 tobacco warehouse in that town. The building will be approximately 100 by 187 feet in size and will be up-to-date in every way. The company has been capitalized at $15,000.

Canadian 1911 Crop the Largest on Record

In the Province of Ontario a smaller acreage will be under tobacco this year than in 1911, but as this will probably result in more attention being given to the crop, a better quality is expected. The tobacco crop of 1911 was the largest on record (more than double the yield of any previous year), and is estimated to have amounted to 15,000,000 pounds, for which the farmers received $1,700,000. Some cultivators received 12½ cents a pound, which figure the farmers say means a profit. Tobacco culture in Canada is confined almost wholly to the Province of Ontario, but in parts of the Province of Quebec the plant is grown, mostly for home use. In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1912, the Dominion exported 58,809 pounds of Canadian-grown leaf tobacco, valued at $25,944. These shipments were divided, 8,761 pounds to Great Britain, 40,856 pounds to the United States, and 9,192 pounds to other countries, with respective values of $1,320, $22,521, and $2,103.—Consul F. S. S. Johnson, Kingston, Ont.

He was 71 years of age and became connected with the Atlantic Snuff Co. after being with E. W. Garrett & Sons until 1893. He retired in 1900 and devoted his time to buying and selling real estate. He leaves a widow, three sons and a daughter.

George Strohuber, a widely known cigar manufacturer of Allegany, N. Y., died at his home in that town recently. He was born in Bavaria in 1845 and came to the United States in 1859. He leaves a widow and three children.

J. C. Miller

J. C. Miller, a well-known cigar manufacturer and tobacco jobber of Columbia City, Ind., died at his home in that city on June 15th, at the age of 65 years, as the result of a stroke of paralysis with which he was stricken several months ago.

Mr. Miller, who was one of the most highly respected business men of his town, was born in Germany. He came to America with his parents and learned the trade of cigarmaker in Pittsburgh. In 1863 he went into business in Fort Wayne and removed to Columbia City in 1879. There he opened a factory and later a tobacco jobbing house. In 1884 he built a place for his business, where it is still conducted. He is survived by a widow and three children.

Prohibition Movement Affects California Factories

Concerns Furnishing Saloon Trade Losing Ground—Lane & Connelly Move Office—J. Lachman Now With Edw. Wolf Company

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.

THE prohibition movement in California is still in evidence, another town going dry only a few days ago. Most of the large jobbers handling advertised brands have not been affected by this movement, and may ultimately benefit to some extent, but there have been a good many small cigar factories here and scattered through the country which furnished unknown brands especially for the saloon trade, as well as some jobbers in the same line, all of whom have lost considerable trade. The soft-drink places and billiard rooms which are replacing the saloons naturally prefer to handle well known advertised goods, and many such places are opening accounts with local wholesalers. The hot weather is on in the country, however, and dealers are keeping their stocks rather small.

Henry Muller, head of a Manila factory, stopped in San Francisco a few days this week, and it is understood that his goods will soon be introduced in this market. He is now on his way East, and will proceed to Europe.

Milton Esberg, of M. A. Gunst & Co., is back at the local office after a trip East. This house is at present concentrating its window work on the "Van Dyck" cigar, particularly in some of the special sizes, in line with its policy of finding the size of cigar best adapted to the taste of each customer.

J. Lachman, formerly with J. Bamberger & Co., is now on the road for the Edward Wolf Company, covering the interior valley district. Mr. Bamberger has not yet been able to get out of the business altogether, and will occupy an office with Ehrman Bros. & Co. until his old business has been settled.

H. L. Judell, head of the order of Bagmen of Bagdad, has just left to attend a convention of the order at Columbus, O., leaving Emil Judell in charge of affairs here. Emil has just returned from the Rose Festival at Portland, Ore., which he says was a great thing for the cigar trade in that city.

Lane & Connelly, local cigar manufacturers, have moved their office from 26 Front street around the corner to 58 Pine street.

I. J. Hess, Coast representative of the Optimo factory, has just returned from a visit to the Seattle trade.

George Cacematis, specialty man for the Nestor Gianaclis cigarette factory, has returned from a visit to dealers in the interior of the State.

Lex Ehrman, of Ehrman Bros. & Co., distributors of the "Optimo" cigar, is spending a few days at Portland, Ore. His work there, however, is mainly on the Manila goods, for which this house has built up a large business all over the country.

Paul Rosen, of Newark, N. J., has opened his second stand in that city in the Union Building, 9 Clinton street. His other store is in the Essex Building. Both places have been fitted up in the latest manner regarding fittings, conveniences, etc.

One of the latest members of the gentle sex to enter the retail field in an extensive manner is Miss Lenora Walker, proprietor of a stand in the Court House at Peoria, Ill. Miss Walker has purchased a second location in the City Hall Building and has taken possession.

Strike on Elevated Railroad Not Conducive to Large Trade—A. B. Smith & Co. Placing Number of Attractive Electric Signs

THE strike on the Boston Elevated Railroad has not improved the business in this locality, as a great many feared the mobs and the rioting hoodlums. So the summer resorts were not so well patronized, as one business helps another. At the present writing things are looking better and trade will improve.

At all the United Cigar Stores business is reported good. The Essex House, "Boston Tavern," Clark's Hotel, Parker House and Adams House say that business never was better. Louis Paster, 15 Dock street, says that trade is good and expanding every day.

The new store of George L. Storm & Co. on Federal street is nearing completion. "Bank Note" and "Robert Burns" cigars are shown in the window.

Mark Abraham (D. M. Frank & Co.) is showing "La Aromadad" clear Havana in this locality. Mr. Abraham reports a growing demand for the cigar named the "Rotten."

The "Red Cross Pharmacy," Moody street, Waltham, has been sold to Thomas Dangelmayr.

Dr. A. G. Gigger, of Abington, Mass., has removed to Chatham. He has purchased an established practice and will open a first-class drug store there.

H. A. Dupree Drug Company, Bridgeport, Conn., has been organized with a capital of $20,000.

Manning Bros. have opened a new store in Haywood Block, Milford, Mass.

The P. Lorillard Co. is placing a new plug smoking tobacco, "Defiance," in this market. The tobacco comes five packages to the pound.

Julius Barden (Surbrug Company) is working the trade here on the "Harem" cigarette.

The American Tobacco Company has notified the trade here that "Honest Long Cut" has been advanced thirty cents per gross.

The Turkish cigarette deal of S. Amargyros, in which they gave twenty-five cents with each 1,000, has been withdrawn.

Last week the Woodcock Hotel opened a new rathskeller. The management is making "La Integridad" its leader, handling eleven sizes.

A. B. Smith & Co., makers of 3-20-8 cigars, have placed a number of handsome and attractive electric signs in various parts of Greater Boston, which are attracting a great deal of attention.

Frank Swick (Philip Morris & Co.) reports a large advance in the sales of that concern's cigarettes.

Morris Winter, of the M. Perez Co., visited the trade here last week.

J. Mahony (of Park & Tilford) spent a few days in Boston last week looking after trade.

The latest cigarette is the "Clix," of W. Duke & Sons Co. Each package contains a coupon worth 1/2 cent. The "Clix" has not been shown on many stands as yet.

There is a shortage on the "Perfections" cigarettes in this market.

Bernard Hyneman reports a fine business on his "Lord Rector" and "Old South" cigars. He has just received a shipment of "Floreal" from Manila.

Massachusetts and Rhode Island dealers have received notice from the "Diamond Match Company" of an extra deal, one case free with five cases bought.

Leveson Bros., manufacturers of the "Boston Smokers," report a big demand for their cigar at the new baseball park.

TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from

Lancaster, York, Reading

Lancaster Industry Awaiting Improved Trade

LANCASTER, June 25. THERE is every reason for thinking that the cigar business and other tobacco industries are soon to have a decided uplift in this section. One of these reasons is the last revenue report, which shows a gain of more than 7,500,000 cigars in May over the month of April. The factories also are having difficulty in some instances in securing enough employees.

The situation here is pretty near akin to reports from Reading, where the larger factories having representatives on the road are kept busy, while the smaller concerns are doing very little.

The packers are viewing the situation with interest, for any increase among the manufacturers means a corresponding increased demand for leaf. They claim that at present there are many inquiries for goods, but as the manufacturers almost demand a heavy cut in price, there is less trading done than would otherwise be the case.

There is quite a bit of 1909 leaf on hand, which is being slowly absorbed. The prices on 1910 tobacco have been ranging from 18 to 21 cents, and as the leaf appears to be scarce there is no likelihood of a reduction in price.

As far as can be ascertained the 1911 crop is sweating nicely. It has been estimated that less than 5 per cent. of this still remains unsold.

C. F. Schultz, who sold his cigar store at 10 East Chestnut street to C. B. Goodman a short time ago, is again in charge, Mr. Goodman having decided not to retain the stand. Mr. Schultz, with his father, have had the place for twenty years and did a good business.

Louis N. Kramer, the leaf dealer, who sailed recently for Europe from the port of New York, expects to spend several months on the other side.

M. Michaelis & Son, the leaf concern, has installed a scrap machine and expect to carry on that business also in addition to the leaf business.

The S. R. Moss factory at this writing is one of the busiest places in town. The "Flor de Moss" is widely known out through the West, and since conditions are reported to be in a good state there the Moss factory naturally reflects this prosperity.

The Chicago correspondent in the last issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD comments on the publicity given to this Lancaster-made piece of goods, and states that the Moss Company paid out $3,500 to 500 druggists in that city during the recent Republican convention week, having rented the windows for exclusive displays of their products. It is such methods as these which make the modern, prosperous business house.

Daniel Manheimer, of the Imperial Cigar Company, is on an extensive trip through the West, looking after the interests of his firm. He expects to be gone several months.

George E. Wisner was a recent visitor to New York, having gone to select machinery for his cigar box factory.

E. F. Mowery, representing I. H. Weaver & Co., has been in Ohio attending to the large packings of his firm in that section. C. M. Whittaker, of New York, of the P. Lorillard Co., was married to Miss Gertrude S. Siegler here several weeks ago and is now on a trip to Atlantic City with his wife.

Some of the recent callers among the tobacco trade in this locality include: F. L. Rubican, Jr., Pinkerton Tobacco Company, with crew; W. L. Uhler, Schmid & Co.; A. W. Penner, A. Cohn & Co.; H. E. Stevenson, E. Rosenwald & Bro.

Reading Retailers Complain of Conditions

READING, June 25. THE cigar factories in this prosperous and hustling city are again showing a gradual increase. The manufacturers, who have a heavy Pennsylvania and local trade, have been slightly discouraged during the past two months, but they state that there is reason now for thinking that trade will soon be in its usual booming state. The majority of the factories are again working full time with their regular complement of hands.

Perhaps the busiest typical Reading plant is that of Yocum Bros. They have not been satisfied to try for trade in the East, but have broadened their field of endeavor until the Yocum brands, particularly the "Y-B," are known from coast to coast. George J. Yocum, who is covering the Middle and Far West much of the time, is shortly expected to arrive in Los Angeles, a "Y-B" stronghold, and co-operate with the Klingerstein Company there, the Los Angeles distributors of their brands, on an aggressive campaign in that territory.

Charles Breneiser, who some time ago took on the distribution of the "Bold" cigar of Bobrow Bros., are making a campaign on this popular smoke and backing it up with an attractive window display. Another brand which is a prominent seller with them is the "Little Win, Penn," of Theobald Oppenheimer & Co. They always give their private brands, "American Empire" and "Chief Joseph" a good chance to make good, which they have been speedily doing.

The employees of the local branch of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros. had their annual outing on Saturday, June 15, which was voted by all a huge success.

The Fleck Cigar Company, possibly one of the busiest in town, is working a full force of employees filling the demand for their "Rose O'Cuba" and "Royal Bob" cigars. The "Rose O'Cuba" particularly has had a wide distribution, and Reading traveling men who visit other cities have commented on its widespread popularity.

All the smaller factories about town are doing a fair amount of business, although they are far from being overworked. The chief complaint at this time appears to be among the retailers. The other branches of the trade, dependent upon the cigar stores, naturally suffer in sympathy.

The United Cigar Stores stand on Penn street reports business fair. This is the only branch in Reading and appears to be doing a prosperous business, particularly among the traveling contingent, who are always in Reading, and who have become accustomed to purchasing at the "United" stands in other cities.

York Manufacturers Claim Increased Orders

YORK, June 25.

THERE has been a perceptible change for the better in this district within the past two weeks. Manufacturers state that orders are arriving more regularly than they were some time ago and are looking forward to a boom in the industry.

The fact that quite a number of factories have been opened within the past month should prove that every one is recognizing better times and wish to profit by them.

A number of the factories at Dallastown, Red Lion and other outlying towns are advertising for hands and seem to have a little trouble securing them. "We have to take green hands and teach them the business," said one manufacturer. "We have too much difficulty in importing them."

Work of erection on the new cigar box factory of the Myers & Adams Co., East Mason alley, that was destroyed by fire several months ago, was started last week. All the debris has been cleared away and carpenters are putting down the first floor and window frames in the portions of the walls that had not been destroyed. The bricklayers will start work shortly. The building is being erected on the site of the old factory.

The Monarch Cigar Company of Red Lion report an especially good outlook for their brands. They are now waging a particularly active campaign on their "Lord Northcliff" cigar, which they advertise in one of the large trade journals as "the real goods." Taking into consideration the reputation of this factory for a first-class piece of goods, it is not surprising that smokers are beginning to appreciate the superior smoking qualities of the Monarch products.

One of the coming firms in the York district is that of the Luxfer Cigar Company, of Hellam. This firm was reorganized a short time ago by H. S. Dietz and W. H. Wolf. They are pushing the "Old Chatsworth," a nickel product, at this time as their leader and report excellent results on it. One of the reasons for their success is that they did not wait for trade to come to them, but got out and secured it. By means of advertising and aggressive salesmanship on the part of Mr. Wolf, who handles that end of the business, they have placed "Old Chatsworth" and "Luxfer" their ten cent goods, among some of the best jobbers in Pennsylvania. Mr. Dietz has charge of the manufacturing end of the concern.

The C. H. Plitt Cigar Company are to be congratulated on the hit made in this locality on their newly introduced product, the "Liar" cigar, which is now placed with over ninety retailers in this city and adjacent towns. The "Liar" is a first-class piece of goods and deserves its success.

H. F. Kohler, who consolidated his Jacobus and Nashville factories sometime ago and moved them to this city, is kept hustling on orders for the "El Sayon," his nickel product. It is a fine piece of goods for the price and is becoming more widely known than ever by reason of Mr. Kohler's publicity methods.

J. T. Reichard, the well-known leaf dealer, announces that he has secured the best and most representative line of tobacco he has ever been able to offer to the trade. He has a complete line of Pennsylvania, direct from the grower; Wisconsin, Connecticut, Ohio and Sumatra, including a fine assortment of Havana and Florida leaf.

Retail Trade Items

J. J. Hawkins has disposed of his interest in the Dillard-Hawkins Cigar Company of Carthage, Mo., to his partner, L. H. Dillard.

Edward Everett and J. L. Brown will shortly open a cigar and confectionery store at 1146 Broad street, Columbus, Ga.

The Kirk cigar store of Rochester, N. Y., was opened to the public on June 22nd. The new store is situated in front of Moder Bros.' restaurant at 12 South avenue, and is operated by Arthur Bettner, who also operates a stand at 17 South avenue.

Action of Chicago Convention Arouses Little Enthusiasm Detroit Prepares to Entertain Cadillaqua Visitors—Custom Inspectors Sign Petition Asking for Increase in Pay

DETROIT, June 24.—THE proceedings of the Chicago Convention proved the all-absorbing topic of conversation last week. Taff's nomination meets with little enthusiasm among the tobacco trade here.

Very favorable comment was heard respecting the editorial published in the June 15th Tobacco World, under the heading, "Detroit, the New Tampa of the West." The article was reprinted in full by "The Detroit Free Press" on June 19th. "The Detroit News" referred to the editorial in both its morning and afternoon editions of the same date. It is probable, too, that reference will be made to the article in the next number of "The Detroit," the official organ of the Detroit Board of Commerce.

Enterprising sales managers are beginning to scout around for window display space for Cadillaqua week, which begins July 22nd. The Cadillaqua fête will be the biggest and most brilliant civic jubilee ever attempted by any American city. Detroit's fame has spread over land and seas to the far corners of the earth. This fête, which is to become an annual affair, is designed to preserve the history and traditions of our beautiful city and to further its commercial and industrial greatness. It is altogether appropriate, therefore, that none but Detroit-made goods should be seen in our cigar store window displays during Cadillaqua week. We've got the factories. We've got the goods. And there'll be one hundred and fifty thousand strangers here that week to look at them. Come on you Detroiters! Get together!!

A petition has recently been circulated among the seventy-five customs inspectors employed at the port of Detroit to secure an increase of pay. When completed the petition will be forwarded to Washington in the hope of its being approved by the Secretary of the Treasury. Most of the customs officials here have been in the Government service over a score of years, and with living expenses increasing yearly and salaries remaining stationary, the customs men have been experiencing trouble in making both ends meet.

Jas. McNeer, prominent cigar manufacturer of London, Ont., is here on business.

The McHie-Scotton Tobacco Company are leading, for the present, on "Union Scout Scrap" and "Union Scout Plug." They are also doing nicely on several other types of smoking and chewing.

Oscar Rosenberger providentially escaped arrest for exceeding the speed limit when he responded to a hurry call Friday night, to get to a fire in the Oakland garage, 808 Woodward avenue. Oscar owns the building, which was damaged to the extent of $5,000, well covered by insurance. Oscar's great hurry was to prevent anyone's saving his old Peerless, which has been in the garage, unused, for the greater part of three years. The Peerless was also insured.

Gram & Co., 812 Woodward avenue, came near suffering serious damage from the Oakland fire. Firemen attempted to run a line of hose through the store, which would have about ruined everything in the place. Emil Jacobs, who was on duty at the time, locked front and rear doors and windows, thus effectually keeping out both smoke and water.

Quite an extensive cigar business is done at Goldman Bros'. Pharmacy, 418 Hastings street. Conspicuous among ten-cent goods is the "Pastora," which seems to enjoy ever increasing favor in Detroit, its home city. Among other cigars that are popular at Goldman Bros', are B. Schwartz's "R. G. Dan" and "Red Bell." "The Detroit News," made by David Segan, has a good sale. "Old Tag" and "Francisco Goya," made by Randall-Landfeld Co., Chicago, are among the best sellers. "Cinco" and "San Felice" are also carried.

Central Cigar Company showed a neat display of "La Resta," one of the classiest nickel packages ever turned out by the San Tchno, and a corking good smoke for the money.

One seldom hears of Frank R. Burdick. His plant is a small one; but in his factory, at 267 Grand avenue, he is busy six days of the week, without interruption, manufacturing just one cigar, the "Heralda de Cuba," and the merits of this cigar have built for Mr. Burdick a clientele that is distributed over nearly two-thirds of the United States. Occasionally Mr. Burdick receives export orders, as, for instance, 250 "Club Perfecto" to Charlottenburg, Germany, some time ago, followed by an additional 250 to Dresden. Mr. Burdick has been manufacturing in Detroit for thirty years; the past nineteen years under the present style.

Ed Lichtig has been, for three weeks, making a thorough canvass of the State for Philip Morris cigarettes, with good results.

Wm. Lichtig is so busy at Surety Cigar Company's factory he scarcely knows which way to turn. The local sales of their Havana cigar, "Charles the Eighth," through the Harry W. Watson Co., are steadily gaining.

At the recent annual meeting of The Adcraft Club, composed of Detroit's leading advertisers and ad specialists, Mr. Chas. Hughes, the newly-elected president, was loudly called on for a speech.

"Gentlemen," said he, "brevity and action shall be the keynote of my administration. I thank you for the honor you have done me. Mr. McGee (to the steward) kindly pass a box of "Charles the Eighth."

Eugene Lilienfeld, of Chicago, spent a part of last week here overlooking the various Lilienfeld interests and discussing plans for the future. The Lilies cigar factory is exceptionally busy and advertising for cigarmakers in the daily papers of Cincinnati and elsewhere.

A. B. Heavenrich, well-known leaf salesman and tobacco broker of Detroit, who, since January 1st of this year, has been with the firm of Charles J. Wesselbaum & Co., of New York, announces that his connection with that firm will end July 1st. For six years, prior to joining Wesselbaum & Co., Mr. Heavenrich represented the Sumatra house of L. Schmid & Co., with headquarters at Cincinnati. He is not yet prepared to announce definite plans for the future.

Fred Harris, manager of the Best & Russell Co. store, is impatiently awaiting the electric sign that is to dazzle the corner of Woodward and Jefferson avenues.

Art Gram has just added the 5-cent "Triangulares" size to his stock of "El Sidelito," a nifty package of five for a quarter.

Lee & Cady's cigar department is very busy, Mr. Higgins reports. "Pastora" is a big feature in their sales. In nickel lines "Cinco" and "San Felice" lead.

Alexander Gordon finds a ready demand for his most recent five-cent cigar "Canadian Club," and also reports good sales of his broadleaf wrapped "Othman," ten cents.

Victor Ettlinger, representing Emanuel Hoffman & Son, with headquarters at Detroit, departed on the 17th inst. for a trip of several weeks to the West and Northwest.

Mr. Michaels, of the Caye-Caguas Co., has been here some days assisting Claude E. Howell in special work on "Savarona."

Among the pilgrims are: Thos. Branyan, José Escalante & Co.; Mort. Hammer, Garcia, Vega & Co.; Hi. Hammer, Corral, Wodiska & Co.; A. Shapiro, M. A. Gunst & Co.; G. R. Conover, E. A. Calves & Co., Philadelphia; S. Bijur, E. Rosenwald & Bro.; Howard Kinney, Duns & Co.; Fred Singer, Rossin & Co.; Henry Fisher, A. Cohn & Co.; Ernest Hathaway, Hathaway & Steen, Hartford, Conn.; Richard Baum, J. Cohn & Co., New York; E. A. Jandorf, Keiser & Boasberg, Buffalo; Harry Nathan and Harry Spingarn, E. Spingarn & Co.; (Max Kaufman, A. L. & M. L. Kaufman, makers of "Smokecraft" cigars); Walter Eisenmann, Eisenmann Bros., leaf tobacco, Cincinnati; Edgar Pretzfeld, Pretzfeld & Son, New York; "Doc" Easton, Falk Tobacco Co., Richmond.

Increased Tobacco Imports Into Liverpool

The imports of American merchandise into the English port of Liverpool were greater last year than ever before in the history of the trade, according to a consular report of April 10, 1912.

No imports showed a larger proportional increase than unmanufactured tobacco which is as follows, compared with 1910:

| | 1910 | | 1911 | |
|-----------|----------------------|-------------|----------------------|-------------|
| | Quantities Pounds | Values | Quantities Pounds | Values |
| Stemmed | 21,437,233 | $3,356,332 | 23,270,265 | $4,121,502 |
| Unstemmed | 48,517,631 | $,923,264 | 45,474,487 | 6,161,232 |

The imports of manufactured tobacco show a slight falling off, being valued at $223,575 in 1910 and $205,232 during 1911.

A campaign for the promotion of the sale of Holyoke, Mass., cigars, has been inaugurated by the Holyoke Cigar Makers' Union, who will try to interest the army of cigar smokers in that city into purchasing home products. The union members are meeting the Board of Trade of that city, who have agreed to listen to their arguments in favor of the scheme.

The Klingenstein Co. is making displays on Eisenlohr's "Cincos" and report quite an increase on the brand.

Geo. Yocum is expected to arrive in the city daily and expects to remain here in the interests of the "Y-B" and "Spana Cuba."

"Ready Rubbed Edgworth" seems to be making quite a hit in the Los Angeles territory. It is reported also that Mr. Gibbs, Larus & Bros. company's agent, will be in town in a few days.

Fred H. Austin reports "Pure Gold" sales increasing and expects to ship another carload of "Pure Gold" into this territory July 1st.

Englander & Osburn are about to open a new cigar store at 315 South Spring street and will carry all the leading brands, featuring all of the Klingenstein Co.'s brands. These gentlemen were formerly connected with the Hookstratten Cigar Company.

His sales this month show an increase over last month of 50 per cent. on "Turkish Trophies," "Egyptian Diaries," "Mogul," "Murad" and "Turkey Red" cigarettes.

The Morgan Cigar Company have a display this week on "Post Dispatch" in their window which was very artistically made up by Morris Burke, better known as the "Post Dispatch King."

Ike Wentworth, José Lovera C. Tampa, and the most popular salesmen in this territory, is introducing a new cigar called "Calallero" in fourteen sizes, which is already showing good results with the trade.

Scott G. Turner, representing Boltz-Clymer Co., has his "El Palencia" cigar so well placed that he is thinking seriously of taking a trip to the mountains. This cigar is wonderfully well distributed, especially in apartment houses and hotels, it being shown in more than thirty hotels and apartment houses now.

Valloft & Dreux Creditors Appoint Committee

Will Look After the Interests of Affected Firms.—Will Probably Continue Concerns.

ALL the creditors interested in the bankruptcy of Valloft & Dreux, the well-known New Orleans, wholesale cigar and tobacco firm, met on June 21st to decide upon their future action in the matter regarding the adjustment of their claims. Some of the firms represented at the meeting were the Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., of Philadelphia; the Ruy Lopez Co., of Key West; the American West Indies Sales Co.; the West Indies Cigar Co.; Kraus & Co., of Baltimore; Carl Upmann; Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, and Durlach Bros. Mr. Thomas G. Thompson, the receiver for Valloft & Dreux and its affiliated concern, the Independent Cigar Stores Co., arranged for the meeting.

According to a statement regarding the condition of the two firms, the following are the largest claimants: Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., $13,000; the Ruy Lopez Co., $19,000; the American West Indies Sales Co., $8,000; the West Indies Cigar Co., $2,000; Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, $4,500; and Durlach Bros., $4,000.

After some discussion, Receiver Thompson outlined a plan for the creditors to pool their interests and appoint a committee to attend to their affairs, which they agreed to do. It is expected that the concern will be reorganized under a different management. Mr. Valloft, who managed both the retail and jobbing houses pleaded for a continuation of the business under plans suitable to the creditors.

The West Indies Cigar Co., of New York, withdrew their intervention suit and agreed to act with the other concerns interested. Much credit was given to Mr. Thompson, the receiver, for his efficient management and it was voted to retain him as permanent receiver.

New Porto Rico Leaf No Lower in Price

According to Fred R. Hoisington, of the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, in a recent interview in New York, the new Porto Rico leaf is one of the best in years. The wrappers are said to be cleaner than usual and there is also a larger proportion than formerly.

Continuing he says:

"Some damage was done by too much rain early in the season, and we had prepared ourselves for a crop not quite up to the standard, but in this we have been most agreeably disappointed. It is a little too early to say much about fillers, yet, and I ought to state that only the flimsier portion of the crop has been packed. But it is generally true that good quality fillers go with a crop that produces good wrappers. We are anticipating no difficulty in disposing of the crop, although it is large, the acreage being larger and the yield per acre heavier than usual. The demand for Porto Rican tobacco far exceeds the supply.

"About the price I cannot speak at this time, so far as the general crop is concerned, except to say that there is no reason to look for cheaper tobacco this year than we got last year. The sugar is bidding against tobacco in Porto Rico, both for labor and land. The consequence is that the cost of raising tobacco has increased. However, this year's crop is being graded more carefully than in the past, although there is probably room for improvement yet. Even if prices should be higher than last year, which is highly probable, the manufacturers will get a very desirable class of goods and will be able to manufacture a quality product."

Greensboro Tobacco Warehouse Co. Organized

At a meeting of a number of business men of Greensboro, N. C., recently, the Greensboro Tobacco Warehouse Company was organized and it was decided to erect at once a $15,000 tobacco warehouse in that town. The building will be approximately 100 by 187 feet in size and will be up-to-date in every way. The company has been capitalized at $15,000.

Factory Notes

The King Cigar Company is a new manufacturing concern recently launched in Kansas City.

The tobacco firm of Wallace & Waltzer, of Mt. Clemens, Mich., in existence in that city for two years, was recently dissolved by mutual consent.

A new cigar manufacturing plant is being opened in Alma, Ill., by M. Kenzie Bros., of Urbana, Ill., who are now operating a factory in the latter town.

Edgar J. Stachelberg who recently retired from the firm of M. Stachelberg & Co., of Tampa, has been in Cuba making arrangements for opening a leaf house in Havana.

J. J. French, who is opening an independent factory in Tampa, has not yet disclosed his complete plans for the new establishment. He will have an independent concern.

A cigar factory has been opened at Gadsden, Pa., near the city of Scranton, by Manuel F. Rodriguez, of Tampa, Fla. The concern is located in the Kyle Building. They will manufacture Havana and domestic goods.

One of the really up-to-date and cleanest factories in New Jersey is that of the Enterprise Cigar Company, of Trenton, who manufacture the "Lord Sterling," a ten-cent piece of goods, and the "Taking," a nickel product.

A recent statement issued by Manager Joseph Gollner, of the Marsh stogie manufacturing concern of Wheeling, W. Va., stated that the stripper boys of the factory, of which the Marsh plant employs 150, will work on an increased wage scale.

Union cigarmakers working in the factory of B. Fernandez & Co., of Milwaukee, walked out several weeks ago, demanding better working conditions. Their employers arranged a meeting the following day, at which the misunderstanding was speedily adjusted.

Fire of unknown origin partially destroyed the tobacco plant of E. K. Victor, in South Richmond, Va., on June 14th, entailing a loss of approximately $30,000. Considerable tobacco was stored in the building, which was completely destroyed. The entire building was gutted, leaving nothing but the walls intact.

Trinitario Vila, New Cuban Exporter

Trinitario Vila, who is well-known in Havana leaf circles has opened a place of business at Santa Clara, Cuba, where he will act as a broker and exporter of Remedios tobacco.

He was, at one time, connected with Sylvester & Stern, of New York, and also Rodriguez, Bautista & Co. He announces that he has a large staff of experienced workers and is prepared to handle a large trade.

Canadian 1911 Crop the Largest on Record

In the Province of Ontario a smaller acreage will be under tobacco this year than in 1911, but as this will probably result in more attention being given to the crop, a better quality is expected. The tobacco crop of 1911 was the largest on record (more than double the yield of any previous year), and is estimated to have amounted to 15,000,000 pounds, for which the farmers received $1,700,000. Some cultivators received 12½ cents a pound, which figure the farmers say means a profit. Tobacco culture in Canada is confined almost wholly to the Province of Ontario, but in parts of the Province of Quebec the plant is grown, mostly for home use. In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1912, the Dominion exported 58,809 pounds of Canadian-grown leaf tobacco, valued at $25,944. These shipments were divided, 8,761 pounds to Great Britain, 40,856 pounds to the United States, and 9,192 pounds to other countries, with respective values of $1,320, $22,521, and $2,103.—Consul F. S. S. Johnson, Kingston, Ont.

Philip Deter, a cigar manufacturer and retailer of Canastota, N. Y., passed away there several weeks ago after an illness of three months. He was 31 years old and leaves a widow and two sons.

Frank F. Ray, President of the Cigarmakers Union of Providence, R. I., died recently at his home, in that city, at the age of 43 years. He is survived by a widow and two daughters.

William Katschke, one of the oldest and best known men in cigar manufacturing circles in St. Louis, died in that city on June 15th. He was actively interested in the cigarmakers' unions.

L. W. Bosart, of near Springfield, O., died there recently, aged 71 years. He was a veteran tobacco merchant of Springfield.

Captain William C. Kimball, who was formerly a member of the firm of Kimball Bros. & Co., of Tiffin, O., tobacco importers and wholesalers, died there a short time ago at the age of 75 years. He was a Civil War veteran.

Charles Kornfeld, a cigar manufacturer of New York City, died at his home at Edgmere, Long Island, on June 16th, at the age of 87. Mr. Kornfeld had not taken any active interest in business for some years. He is survived by six children.

George Wilson, late president of the Atlantic Snuff Co., of Philadelphia and for many years in the snuff industry, died there June 17th, after a short illness. He was 71 years of age and became connected with the Atlantic Snuff Co. after being with E. W. Garrett & Sons until 1893. He retired in 1900 and devoted his time to buying and selling real estate. He leaves a widow, three sons and a daughter.

George Strohuber, a widely known cigar manufacturer of Allegany, N. Y., died at his home in that town recently. He was born in Bavaria in 1845 and came to the United States in 1859. He leaves a widow and three children.

J. C. Miller

J. C. Miller, a well-known cigar manufacturer and tobacco jobber of Columbia City, Ind., died at his home in that city on June 15th, at the age of 65 years, as the result of a stroke of paralysis with which he was stricken several months ago.

Mr. Miller, who was one of the most highly respected business men of his town, was born in Germany. He came to America with his parents and learned the trade of cigarmaker in Pittsburgh. In 1863 he went into business in Fort Wayne and removed to Columbia City in 1879. There he opened a factory and later a tobacco jobbing house. In 1884 he built a place for his business, where it is still conducted. He is survived by a widow and three children.

Prohibition Movement Affects California Factories
Concerns Furnishing Saloon Trade Losing Ground—Lane & Connelly Move Office—J. Lachman Now With Edw. Wolf Company

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.

THE prohibition movement in California is still in evidence, another town going dry only a few days ago. Most of the large jobbers handling advertised brands have not been affected by this movement, and may ultimately benefit to some extent, but there have been a good many small cigar factories here and scattered through the country which furnished unknown brands especially for the saloon trade, as well as some jobbers in the same line, all of whom have lost considerable trade. The soft-drink places and billiard rooms which are replacing the saloons naturally prefer to handle well known advertised goods, and many such places are opening accounts with local wholesalers. The hot weather is on in the country, however, and dealers are keeping their stocks rather small.

Henry Muller, head of a Manila factory, stopped in San Francisco a few days this week, and it is understood that his goods will soon be introduced in this market. He is now on his way East, and will proceed to Europe.

Milton Esberg, of M. A. Gunst & Co., is back at the local office after a trip East. This house is at present concentrating its window work on the "Van Dyck" cigar, particularly in some of the special sizes, in line with its policy of finding the size of cigar best adapted to the taste of each customer.

J. Lachman, formerly with J. Bamberger & Co., is now on the road for the Edward Wolf Company, covering the interior valley district. Mr. Bamberger has not yet been able to get out of the business altogether, and will occupy an office with Ehrman Bros. & Co. until his old business has been settled.

H. L. Judell, head of the order of Bagmen of Bagdad, has just left to attend a convention of the order at Columbus, O., leaving Emil Judell in charge of affairs here. Emil has just returned from the Rose Festival at Portland, Ore., which he says was a great thing for the cigar trade in that city.

Lane & Connelly, local cigar manufacturers, have moved their office from 26 Front street around the corner to 58 Pine street.

I. I. Hess, Coast representative of the Optimo factory, has just returned from a visit to the Seattle trade.

George Cacematis, specialty man for the Nestor Gianaelis cigarette factory, has returned from a visit to dealers in the interior of the State.

Lex Ehrman, of Ehrman Bros. & Co., distributors of the "Optimo" cigar, is spending a few days at Portland, Ore. His work there, however, is mainly on the Manila goods, for which this house has built up a large business all over the country.

Paul Rosen, of Newark, N. J., has opened his second stand in that city in the Union Building, 9 Clinton street. His other store is in the Essex Building. Both places have been fitted up in the latest manner regarding fittings, conveniences, etc.

One of the latest members of the gentle sex to enter the retail field in an extensive manner is Miss Lenora Walker, proprietor of a stand in the Court House at Peoria, Ill. Miss Walker has purchased a second location in the City Hall Building and has taken possession.

Strike on Elevated Railroad Not Conducive to Large Trade—A. B. Smith & Co. Placing Number of Attractive Electric Signs

THE strike on the Boston Elevated Railroad has not improved the business in this locality, as a great many feared the mobs and the rioting hoodlums. So the summer resorts were not so well patronized, as one business helps another. At the present writing things are looking better and trade will improve.

At all the United Cigar Stores business is reported good. The Essex House, "Boston Tavern," Clark's Hotel, Parker House and Adams House say that business never was better. Louis Paster, 15 Dock street, says that trade is good and expanding every day.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Lancaster Industry Awaiting Improved Trade

LANCASTER, June 25. THERE is every reason for thinking that the cigar business and other tobacco industries are soon to have a decided uplift in this section. One of these reasons is the last revenue report, which shows a gain of more than 7,500,000 cigars in May over the month of April. The factories also are having difficulty in some instances in securing enough employees.

The situation here is pretty near akin to reports from Reading, where the larger factories having representatives on the road are kept busy, while the smaller concerns are doing very little.

The packers are viewing the situation with interest, for any increase among the manufacturers means a corresponding increased demand for leaf. They claim that at present there are many inquiries for goods, but as the manufacturers almost demand a heavy cut in price, there is less trading done than would otherwise be the case.

There is quite a bit of 1909 leaf on hand, which is being slowly absorbed. The prices on 1910 tobacco have been ranging from 18 to 21 cents, and as the leaf appears to be scarce there is no likelihood of a reduction in price.

As far as can be ascertained the 1911 crop is sweating nicely. It has been estimated that less than 5 per cent. of this still remains unsold.

C. F. Schultz, who sold his cigar store at 10 East Chestnut street to C. B. Goodman a short time ago, is again in charge, Mr. Goodman having decided not to retain the stand. Mr. Schultz, with his father, have had the place for twenty years and did a good business.

Louis N. Kramer, the leaf dealer, who sailed recently for Europe from the port of New York, expects to spend several months on the other side.

M. Michaelis & Son, the leaf concern, has installed a scrap machine and expect to carry on that business also in addition to the leaf business.

The S. R. Moss factory at this writing is one of the busiest places in town. The "Flor de Moss" is widely known out through the West, and since conditions are reported to be in a good state there the Moss factory naturally reflects this prosperity.

The Chicago correspondent in the last issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD comments on the publicity given to this Lancaster-made piece of goods, and states that the Moss Company paid out $3,500 to 500 druggists in that city during the recent Republican convention week, having rented the windows for exclusive displays of their products. It is such methods as these which make the modern, prosperous business house.

Daniel Mauheimer, of the Imperial Cigar Company, is on an extensive trip through the West, looking after the interests of his firm. He expects to be gone several months.

George E. Wisner was a recent visitor to New York, having gone to select machinery for his cigar box factory.

E. F. Mowery, representing I. H. Weaver & Co., has been in Ohio attending to the large packings of his firm in that section.

C. M. Whittaker, of New York, of the P. Lorillard Co., was married to Miss Gertrude S. Siegler here several weeks ago and is now on a trip to Atlantic City with his wife.

Some of the recent callers among the tobacco trade in this locality include: F. L. Rubican, Jr., Pinkerton Tobacco Company, with crew; W. L. Uhler, Schmid & Co.; A. W. Penner, A. Cohn & Co.; H. E. Stevenson, E. Rosenwald & Bro.

Reading Retailers Complain of Conditions

READING, June 25. THE cigar factories in this prosperous and hustling city are again showing a gradual increase. The manufacturers, who have a heavy Pennsylvania and local trade, have been slightly discouraged during the past two months, but they state that there is reason now for thinking that trade will soon be in its usual booming state. The majority of the factories are again working full time with their regular complement of hands.

Perhaps the busiest typical Reading plant is that of Yocum Bros. They have not been satisfied to try for trade in the East, but have broadened their field of endeavor until the Yocum brands, particularly the "Y-B," are known from coast to coast. George J. Yocum, who is covering the Middle and Far West much of the time, is shortly expected to arrive in Los Angeles, a "Y-B" stronghold, and co-operate with the Klingerstein Company there, the Los Angeles distributors of their brands, on an aggressive campaign in that territory.

Charles Breneiser, who some time ago took on the distribution of the "Bold" cigar of Bohrow Bros., are making a campaign on this popular smoke and backing it up with an attractive window display. Another brand which is a prominent seller with them is the "Little Wm. Penn," of Theobald Oppenheimer & Co. They always give their private brands, "American Empire" and "Chief Joseph" a good chance to make good, which they have been speedily doing.

The employees of the local branch of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros. had their annual outing on Saturday, June 15, which was voted by all a huge success.

The Fleck Cigar Company, possibly one of the busiest in town, is working a full force of employees filling the demand for their "Rose O'Cuba" and "Royal Bob" cigars. The "Rose O'Cuba" particularly has had a wide distribution, and Reading traveling men who visit other cities have commented on its widespread popularity.

All the smaller factories about town are doing a fair amount of business, although they are far from being overworked. The chief complaint at this time appears to be among the retailers. The other branches of the trade, dependent upon the cigar stores, naturally suffer in sympathy.

The United Cigar Stores stand on Penn street reports business fair. This is the only branch in Reading and appears to be doing a prosperous business, particularly among the traveling contingent, who are always in Reading, and who have become accustomed to purchasing at the "United" stands in other cities.

York Manufacturers Claim Increased Orders

YORK, June 25. THERE has been a perceptible change for the better in this district within the past two weeks. Manufacturers state that orders are arriving more regularly than they were some time ago and are looking forward to a boom in the industry.

The fact that quite a number of factories have been opened within the past month should prove that every one is recognizing better times and wish to profit by them.

A number of the factories at Dallastown, Red Lion and other outlying towns are advertising for hands and seem to have a little trouble securing them. "We have to take green hands and teach them the business," said one manufacturer. "We have too much difficulty in importing them."

Work of erection on the new cigar box factory of the Myers & Adams Co., East Mason alley, that was destroyed by fire several months ago, was started last week. All the debris has been cleared away and carpenters are putting down the first floor and window frames in the portions of the walls that had not been destroyed. The bricklayers will start work shortly. The building is being erected on the site of the old factory.

The Monarch Cigar Company of Red Lion report an especially good outlook for their brands. They are now waging a particularly active campaign on their "Lord Northcliff" cigar, which they advertise in one of the large trade journals as "the real goods." Taking into consideration the reputation of this factory for a first-class piece of goods, it is not surprising that smokers are beginning to appreciate the superior smoking qualities of the Monarch products.

One of the coming firms in the York district is that of the Luxfer Cigar Company, of Hellam. This firm was reorganized a short time ago by H. S. Dietz and W. H. Wolf. They are pushing the "Old Chatsworth," a nickel product, at this time as their leader and report excellent results on it. One of the reasons for their success is that they did not wait for trade to come to them, but got out and secured it. By means of advertising and aggressive salesmanship on the part of Mr. Wolf, who handles that end of the business, they have placed "Old Chatsworth" and "Luxfer," their ten cent goods, among some of the best jobbers in Pennsylvania. Mr. Dietz has charge of the manufacturing end of the concern.

The C. H. Plitt Cigar Company are to be congratulated on the hit made in this locality on their newly introduced product, the "Liar" cigar, which is now placed with over ninety retailers in this city and adjacent towns. The "Liar" is a first-class piece of goods and deserves its success.

H. F. Kohler, who consolidated his Jacobus and Nashville factories sometime ago and moved them to this city, is kept hustling on orders for the "El Sayon," his nickel product. It is a fine piece of goods for the price and is becoming more widely known than ever by reason of Mr. Kohler's publicity methods.

J. T. Reichard, the well-known leaf dealer, announces that he has secured the best and most representative line of tobacco he has ever been able to offer to the trade. He has a complete line of Pennsylvania, direct from the grower; Wisconsin, Connecticut, Ohio and Sumatra, including a fine assortment of Havana and Florida leaf.

J. J. Hawkins has disposed of his interest in the Dillard-Hawkins Cigar Company of Carthage, Mo., to his partner, L. H. Dillard.

The Kirk cigar store of Rochester, N. Y., was opened to the public on June 22nd. The new store is situated in front of Moder Bros.' restaurant at 12 South avenue, and is operated by Arthur Bettner, who also operates a stand at 17 South avenue.

Lee Cahn, who has a cigar stand in the Union Trust Building, in Cincinnati, has been in the retail cigar business for 52 years, 42 of which were spent in Cleveland. During the Civil War he sold many smokes to Union army officers, being located at that time in Louisville. His location in Cleveland is considered one of the best in the city.

Democrats Boomed Baltimore Tobacco Trade

Retailers, Hotels and Restaurants Did Big Business During Convention Week

BALTIMORE, Md., June 26.

WITH the city full of good Democrats smoking perfectos, cigarettes and pipes, the tobacco business of Baltimore has been on the boom. In fact, many retailers who had ordered liberally, anticipating a rush for smokes, found their stocks depleted the first few days of the convention, and have been crying for more goods ever since. The trade in the hotels and restaurants particularly has been far beyond expectations, and everyone is happy. This wave of prosperity set in several weeks before the National Convention, but reached its climax this week.

In addition to good local business, all the leading jobbers report an increasing volume of orders from their out-of-town salesmen. F. A. Davis & Sons, with a staff of twenty-four salesmen covering the South; William Deiches & Co., with fifteen salesmen; Lilly, Dungan & Co., with a big staff, and other big factories in the trade, have experienced very gratifying results within the last fortnight.

The "El Dallo" cigar, that unique and clever brand that has recently been put on the market by Wertheimer Bros., is taking hold in great shape. Mr. Sam Wertheimer, who recently returned from the South, and Ike Wertheimer, who has returned from the Northwest, report that the "El Dallo" has made a tremendous hit. Locally, this brand is being distributed by F. A. Davis & Sons and is having a big sale throughout the territory covered by their salesmen. In Baltimore proper the "El Dallo" has caught on quite freely and promises to be one of the cigar sensations of this market.

Lilly, Dungan & Co. have had a clever window display of their "L. L. D." brand of popular nickel cigar, made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia. The "Reynaldo," made by the same factory, is also a big seller with them. Sanchez y Haya goods, as usual, are selling at the top notch with this firm.

William Deiches & Co., distributors for "Havana Ribbons" (Laynk Bros.) are particularly enthusiastic over the manner in which these goods have been duplicating among their trade, not only in Baltimore, but throughout the Middle South, covered by their salesmen. No brand that this firm has ever handled has repeated better.

The Birnbaum Cigar Company are featuring the "Don Marino," made by the Kraus factory.

B. H. Elliott, of Elliott, Ottenheimer & Elliott, has returned from a trip through the Middle West and reports gratifying sales on their "Carbellos" and "Cardenas" brands. He arrived in time to assist in the moving of their factory from their old home on Lombard street to the northeast section of the city, where they are occupying a handsome new building.

E. Ashbury Davis, of F. A. Davis & Sons, states that their business so far for June has run far ahead of last year. They are particularly well pleased with their sales of the "El Dallo" cigar, made by Wertheimer Bros., and their business on "F. A. D.," "Permits," "Club House" and "Gato" brands.

Mortimer Heinemann, of Heinemann Bros., speaks enthusiastically over the sales which their "Salome" brand has been attracting recently in the Middle West and South.

Raymond A. Heiland, of Lancaster, Pa., representative of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, motored to this city recently to call on the trade. On his way back to Lancaster he touched such points as Littlestown, York and Harrisburg.

Mr. Paris, of the Manchester Cigar Manufacturing Co., states that their sales on "Bar-None" and "Match-It" little cigars have been keeping up their gratifying steadiness. Usually at this time of the year the sales of such goods fall off, but June, 1912, has shown a complete reversal of the old conditions. These little cigars have made friends everywhere they have been introduced. Their duplicate business, which is being booked daily, indicates that the Manchester Company realizes the importance of keeping their goods up to the highest point of quality.

M. Kemper, of M. Kemper & Sons, is again at his desk after having been confined to his home for more than three weeks through illness.

CALVERT.

The tobacco of the J. W. Greeves Company, of Rochester, N. Y., which concern filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy on April 4, will be sold at auction on June 28. The assets of the firm had been scheduled at $54,768, but the total valuation will not exceed $15,000.

A deal was consummated recently by the Farmers' and Shippers' Tobacco Warehouse Company of Cincinnati, O., whereby they became the owners of the Independent Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse of Maysville, Ky. The Independent is capitalized at $50,000 and is one of the largest warehouses at that point.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Gradual Lull in New York--New Pennsylvania Crop Sweating Nicely-- Wisconsin Planters Busy Transferring Plants

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY.

THERE has been a gradual lull in the leaf market within the past two weeks and dealers are doing virtually nothing. There have not been any large number of sales and those reported were of a moderate size. The prices remain about the same.

Sales in the new Porto Rico wrappers were few, owing to the demand for the leaf exceeding the supply and hoisting the prices almost out of reach.

Although there has been no startling demand for Sumatra, it is selling better than heretofore. The manufacturers evidently see that there will be no reduction in the prevailing high prices and are beginning to buy. The buying of the Dutch leaf has not really started as yet, but from all reports they have sampled it pretty thoroughly and will buy in larger quantities later.

The trade in Cuban leaf has almost dropped to nothing. From late reports the situation in Havana is also at a standstill, the sales being much smaller than usual. The Havana dealers are watching with interest the arrival of the 1911 crop, which is all that has been predicted for it. The dearth of good wrappers is even more pronounced than at first reported. Over 37,000 bales of the new tobacco are reported to have been delivered in Havana up to June 18th.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA.

THERE have been no startling reports as to extraordinary activity in the leaf market. Some dealers report a fair amount of business, while others state that the present condition is almost like the midsummer dullness.

Several hundred cases of Zimmer are reported to have changed hands the past week. There has also been a little activity in Sumatra, one firm reporting having disposed of 58 cases. Manufacturers are sampling the Dutch leaf, but few show any inclination to invest largely.

There has been little movement in Pennsylvania, either in new or old leaf. No one appears to want 1909 goods and there is very little 1910 left.

The manufacturers all appear to be fairly busy, several of the larger firms being pushed to the limit. They are complaining of no lack of orders, but of the difficulty in securing hands.

LANCASTER.

The Lancaster leaf dealers report trade dull, although there has been considerable improvement in the cigar ranks within the past two weeks.

The new tobacco appears to be sweating nicely and with few exceptions no goods have been reported damaged. There is very little of the 1911 leaf still in the planters' hands, and that is being absorbed slowly.

There has been no movement of note in 1910 goods, last quotations on this article ranging from 18 to 21 cents. Regarding 1909, one estimate a short time ago placed the amount of this leaf still in the packers' hands as being close to 30,000 cases. And as there is little activity in this tobacco, many are curious as to the ultimate outcome as to its disposal.

Planters are extremely busy on their farm work, and from the latest reports appear to have most of the plants in the fields. They complained at first of the inclement spring weather, but admit now that there was little time lost, since the planting conditions have been ideal recently.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON.

THERE has been a busy week in the tobacco growing sections of the State, where the new crop is being transferred to the fields with all the help growers are able to command, says the "Edgerton Reporter" of June 21st.

The weather conditions, too, have been especially favorable to securing a good stand in the fields—cool with occasional dashes of rain and with little or no hot sun to wilt or burn the plants. Appearances indicate the crop will be transplanted at a somewhat earlier date than usual in this State.

Only a few straggling sales of last year's crop are reported and these at a low level in prices.

Nothing has transpired in the old leaf market worthy of note. A representative of Swisher Bros., Ohio manufacturers, has been in the State during the week looking the market over for suitable stock.

The shipments out of storage reach 625 cases from this market to all points for the two weeks past.

One indication that the tobacco crop the coming season will very nearly reach the normal acreage is the fact that the manufacturers of transplanting machines have this early sold out their entire supply. Even as early as June 1st it was impossible to purchase transplanters from many of the local dealers in implements in this State. Whether the usual output has gone to tobacco growers or to the truck gardeners of the South it is hard to tell, but the fact remains that the growers who neglected to order a planter early will go without one this season. As it is an indispensable machine to the tobacco grower, there are destined to be some disappointed farmers when they try to canvass the dealers with a view of buying this implement.

Kentucky

THE weather conditions in the past ten days have been favorable to the transplanting of tobacco in all the sections of the burley and dark tobacco districts of the Ohio Valley, including Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana and Ohio. A week ago it was not favorable for getting out the crop owing to dry weather, but that has all been changed. The crop is practically all set out, and the conditions are very favorable to giving it a good start. The getting of the crop into the field is in line with about the same time last year. It is too early to make a guess or approximate the burley acreage of 1912, and it is generally believed that the acreage of dark tobacco will be somewhat lower than was thought it would be in the beginning.

Lancaster Growers Have Interesting Meeting

At the regular meeting of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association, held in Lancaster, Pa., the growers and packers had some interesting discussions, which should prove beneficial to both.

I. H. Weaver, Charles E. Levy and Wm. H. De Haven, Lancaster leaf men, were present by request and advised the farmers to get in better touch with the packers, who were well qualified to give advice, for in so doing they were serving the interests of both.

One of the first speakers, Mr. Weaver, cautioned the planters regarding pole-burn, and gave a method of overcoming it. He also condemned the practice of packing in fillers with wrappers so as to secure the higher wrapper price.

Mr. De Haven's remarks were somewhat along the same lines, and on behalf of the leaf men he asked for a square deal by the planters. The "get together" policy is expected to materially help both factions in the leaf business.

Reynolds Tobacco Co. Plans Re-Drying Plant

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, of Winston-Salem, N. C., has bought the big loose-leaf tobacco warehouse in Lexington, K. Y., from the Farmers' Tobacco Warehouse Company, and will convert it into a re-drying plant for the tobacco which the Reynolds Company buys each season in Lexington.

The property is at 662-676 S. Broadway, and is in the heart of the tobacco district. The purchase price was said to be $40,000. This summer new machinery and other improvements will be installed which will probably cost $20,000.

Consular Reports of Interest to Tobacconists

LARGE number of the tobacco manufacturing companies in Sweden (more than 60 per cent, it is reported) have combined under the name of Aktiebolaget Förenade Svenska Tobaksfabriker. The new corporation is to have a capital of 17,000,000 kronor ($4,556,000), including both preferred and common stock. The stock was oversubscribed more than three times, and at par value. The managing director of the new company is Theodore W. Jeansson. The combination includes all kinds of tobacco factories. Some of the large concerns, however, have not taken part in the formation of the new company, notably one of the most important snuff manufacturers, which has an output equal to one-twelfth of total output in the country.

The thirty-five factories in the combination have an aggregate annual output of about $3,300,000. Among numerous reasons given as a cause for the formation of the new corporation, one of the most important is the rather unsatisfactory condition of the business generally in recent years. It is also pointed out that the combination will be in a position to reduce greatly the operating expenses, and, if need be, close down and abolish entirely certain plants. Reductions in selling costs and freights are also anticipated.

VANDY:—34,564. June 22, 1912. Registered December 14, 1906, by Nashville Cigar Co., Nashville, Tenn. Transferred May 8, 1908, to Geo. E. Harris, Nashville, Tenn. Transferred to the Wiedman-St. Louis Cigar Box Co., St. Louis, Mo., June 12, 1912. Re-transferred June 22, 1912, to Vanden, Broeck & Heidingen, Mt. Olive, Ill.

The formation of this so-called "trust" has been the subject of much discussion in the Swedish newspapers. It is the third to be formed in this country, the sugar and cement combinations being the preceding ones.

The tobacco industry is not subject to any special form of taxation in Sweden—such, for instance, as the revenue-stamp tax in operation in the United States. Recently, however, the Government has had the question of a special tax in the form of an excise duty under consideration. In fact, the taking over of the tobacco industry entirely by the Government has been advocated in some of the newspapers and by certain public men.—From Consul Douglas Jenkins, Gottenborg.

While the total trade for 1911 is above the general average for the last ten years, it is below the returns for 1910. This is said to be due to the revolution. One-sixth of the exports was made up of tobacco leaf, which goes to China abroad. The Formosa tobacco monopoly contracts for large quantities each year and in the vicinity of Siokhe, in the interior of this Province, a large two-story building has been erected by Japanese capital, to which the tobacco leaves are brought, assorted, and packed for shipment to Formosa.

to Dealers

Profits come from repeat sales. Very few dealers could pay rent if they never sold goods to a customer the second time. And that brings us to

FATIMA

Fatimas are strictly repeat sales cigarettes. They are the rent-paying, profit-paying kind—because, once a man tries them, he goes on smoking them year after year. They have that satisfying quality that holds customers. The Fatima package is purposely inexpensive, so we may put better tobacco into the cigarettes.

Many dealers have told us that the 1912 Fatima advertising is the greatest cigarette publicity ever published.

A

NOMINATION

We nominate the BOLD cigar for a leader in your territory, and a rattling good leader of nickel cigars the BOLD will make. The BOLD is a man's candidate. It will win in any territory, as it has won in every territory where it has been placed. A successful leader of men must get the most votes. A successful leader of cigars must get the majority of smokers, and that is what the BOLD will do, because it has the quality and the workmanship to win favor with any and all smokers. Place the BOLD before your contingent; let them decide; you will then realize what the power of a leader means.

Mr. Jobber, get the right candidate and get him quick, or your opponents will have him.

Spending Money Like Water To Get Trade In Los Angeles

Free Case of Cigars Offered for Showcase Display—Keen Competition Leads to Unheard of Liberality Among Manufacturers and Jobbers

(Special Dispatch to "The Tobacco World.")

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 13.

SO KEEN has become the competition among cigar manufacturers to gain a foothold in this market, that some are resorting to unheard of liberality in introducing their goods.

Los Angeles has become a very important cigar distributing centre and Eastern manufacturers have been quick to appreciate this fact. A tour of the leading retail cigar stands in this city reveals that a considerable sum of money is being spent by the manufacturers and their jobbers in this territory to secure representation for certain of their brands, in the show-cases of the retailers.

In some instances, these arrangements are made by the retailers themselves to push the goods, while other retailers refuse to assume any obligations whatever, except to agree to display the goods in their show-cases.

It is learned from a prominent cigar man that a well-known jobber has offered him one case of clear Havana cigars, if he will display them in all the cigar stands in the hotels under his control. The gift of a whole case of cigars for such a privilege is regarded as setting a fast pace for the competing jobbers, who are finding themselves called upon for more favors all the time.

Such examples as this have added considerably to the selling cost of cigars in this market and unless a halt is called to this kind of competition the manufacturers will soon find that doing business in Los Angeles, is all glory and no profit.

George H. Valentine III at Seashore

George H. Valentine, of A. S. Valentine & Son, Philadelphia cigar manufacturers, was taken suddenly ill while visiting Atlantic City last week, and since has been confined to his room in Young's Hotel, attended by a physician and nurses. At first the illness was regarded as quite serious, but the latest reports from the shore are that Mr. Valentine is improving slowly, and his ultimate recovery is expected. This hope is shared by his many friends in the trade.

Death Takes Marcus Schwarz, Pioneer Cigar Manufacturer

Founder of Great Factory Succumbs Suddenly—Industry Loses One of Its Notable Figures

NEW YORK lost one of its revered pioneer cigar manufacturers and the industry at large, one of its notable national figures in the death of Marcus Schwarz, founder of the great business of E. M. Schwarz & Co., which occurred in his home at Far Rockaway, Tuesday, July 9th.

Although Mr. Schwarz had been seriously concerned over his heart which developed signs of weakness a month or so ago, neither he nor his children thought the illness fatal. For a time he rallied and it was hoped that his robust constitution would soon overcome his illness and that he would be spared to his family and to his business for many years to come. In spite of this he grew suddenly weaker and the end came peacefully and with a resignation which was heroically beautiful.

Born in Southern Germany seventy years ago, he came to America in 1856 when a mere boy. After learning the cigar-making trade and gaining experience in several of New York's leading factories, he launched out for himself in 1862, being senior partner of the firm of Schwarz & Spor. This business was continued until 1895, when Mr. Schwarz took into partnership his son, Edwin M. Schwarz, and the firm became E. M. Schwarz & Co., under which title the firm is doing business today.

The sudden death of Edwin M. Schwarz in 1901, proved a great blow to his father, but nevertheless, he continued his indefatigable work in the upbuilding of the business in which he was ably assisted by his son-in-law, D. Emil Klein. As the years advanced Mr. Schwarz gradually withdrew from the active management of the details of the business, although he always kept in intimate touch with his employes and his lieutenants.

It is no exaggeration to state that his gentle manners and kindly interest in the welfare of his workmen resulted in his being idolized by them and it is they, above all, who will mourn the passing of a true friend who understood them thoroughly and was always ready to lend a sympathetic ear to their cause.

Among the jobbing and retail trade Mr. Schwarz was known as a man of sterling honesty and clever business ability. He held his trade friends with bonds of steel which neither time nor death can sever.

"NO TIME TO READ"

Many Reasons Given Why Merchant, Who Gives Above Excuse, Should Find Time To Peruse His Trade Journal

ONE of the striking features of the proceedings at a number of the recent trade conventions has been the appeals to members to subscribe to trade journals and read them carefully as the only means of keeping in touch with the modern trend of thought in their lines. A particular effort was made to interest those men who were in the class which "have no time to read." This subject has been broached by many trade papers, but coming as it does from a source as this it should carry more weight as it comes from disinterested persons.

"No time to read." Can anyone in this time of printing presses and newspapers, with almost everyone being able to read imagine a weaker excuse? Can you imagine a merchant today, depending as he must on the patronage of the public, yet blindly ignoring what this same public most admire and demand—up-to-date methods and progressiveness? Can you imagine anything more distressing than a struggling dealer, toiling and slaving from morning to night, a lingering plodder of the past, so out of touch with the spirit of the times that he not only never reads, but actually resents advice, suggestion or innovation?

Just think of it! We live in an age when education is almost a necessity of existence, when the printing press is the greatest force in the land, when publicity is the recognized motive power of successful merchandising, yet there are those, and many of them, who will tell you in seeming sincerity, that they have "no time to read." Stalled in a rut and "sot in their ways," they are blind to the fact that this little phrase spells either the success or the failure of many a business man. It might well be put on the tomb of many a business failure as an appropriate epitaph to one who was too near-sighted and too pig-headed to want to see aright.

And this man who has "no time to read." What kind of fellow do we usually find? We know him—perhaps you do also—a man who has not gumption enough to keep his store looking neat and up-to-date. "Things are not what they used to be," he laments as he looks across the way to the establishment of his successful rival, a merchant who perhaps takes and carefully reads the very same paper which he "has no time to read." He refuses to believe that the public nowadays thinks more on the subject of buying, that they are educated to knowing what they are getting and that if the merchant does not follow the modern taste he might as well close his shop and go home. This poor deluded creature pathetically looks at the attractive window of his competitor, scans his catchy ad and speaks of the "good old times" when trade came to a merchant without any solicitation or effort whatsoever. Poor fellow, he invariably fails to realize that the world of today has no consideration and very little patronage for the man who stands still, who refuses to keep abreast of the times.

The most distressing feature of all is where he really deceives himself. "Yes, I received your paper," he tells you as you inquire his opinion on a certain matter, "but I have not had time to read it. Over there are two numbers with the wrappers still uncut." After a time he will remark about the attractive display in a competitor's window and bewail the fact that he has no one to fix up his window as Jones or Smith does. "Oh, yes," he tells you, "one of his clerks is a crack on window dressing and he does the work." It never occurs to him that that clerk does not allow the trade paper to lie around unopened, but scans it for new ideas each time it arrives and then puts them into effect. That same thing is true of advertising. I know a cigar firm in a large Eastern city which is doing some extensive advertising. Their ads are attracting attention by their timeliness and originality—and they are bringing results. The man who writes the ads for this firm is not a high-salaried advertising man, but a salesman for the firm. I do not know whether his efforts are appreciated, but I do know that he was one who studied advertisements and looked for ideas and embodied them in his ads, which are unquestionably good. "Oh, yes, I did some plugging at home on them," he said, "but it was almost fun, and I am pleased that I did it now, because it has opened up a field which I might find of use to me sometime." That fellow is a hustler who thinks for himself. He called up the office of a paper he was subscribing to when a copy failed to arrive on time and was very anxious to secure one. "I go through them every time, read them from cover to cover," he said upon inquiry, "and get all my ideas from them. I often see something which may not apply in my case, but it suggests something else which I can put in practice with profit."

Common sense should convince a merchant that if he has no time to read his trade journal, it would pay him to take time. He must read the daily paper to be able to talk intelligently on the topics of the day, which only indirectly affect his business, yet he neglects to read his trade journal which will keep him posted on his own business, something upon which his daily bread depends. The last-minute success of any business depends upon the ability of its members to adapt themselves to changing conditions. They must make a study of the public and its needs and tastes. They must follow up what their competitors are doing and adopt what they see is making a success. There are many old business houses today which are right up to the minute in their methods, yet if the man who knew them in the old days would take the time to think on the subject he would easily see that those firms though old in years, are young in spirit, and are not doing as they did years ago. They have followed public opinion and thought and tastes.

The business man of today, to be a successful merchant, must read. We live in an age of scientific progress and commercial innovation. Every day there are new goods and new inventions; every day there are developments in the methods of storekeeping. To keep in the race in such a competitive age, an acquaintance with these is absolutely necessary; and how can a merchant make such an acquaintance if he does not read; and how else, if he does read, than by reading his trade journal?

"No time to read." What a pity it is that the dealer does not realize the seriousness of this confession. "He doesn't read nor subscribe for a trade journal," wrote the traveling salesman, when sending in his order to his house. Many of these salesmen are told to send in a report in this respect because the credit man of the firm, who is a shrewd judge of people and human nature, finds this information useful in sizing up a man. He knows what the usual man is like who has "no time to read."

The foregoing article by A. Frank Meddill in "The Retailers' Journal" was referred to by the same publication in the following manner:

In Smokeland

Written for The Tobacco World By EVADNA FRIEDBERG, of J. G. Cohen Cigar Co., Inc., Seattle, Wash.

Our good friend Rudyard Kipling,
Thus very wisely spoke,
"A woman is only a woman,
But a good cigar is a smoke."

Some say he's right, others, wrong,
But men both near and far
Will all agree, naught can compare
With just a good cigar.

So why not smoke a "Counsellor"
Or a "Little William Penn"?
The "5 of Harts" or "El Dallo"
Will please the best of men.

The "Fernside" and "New Bachelor"
Are always treats for me.
The "El Jaffe" and "El Sayon"
Are as fine as they can be.

"La Altoona" and "Old Chatsworth"
Each for a five cent piece.
But prince among five cent cigars
Is always "San Felice."

But let us turn to better things
To clear Havana row.
The "Henry Clay" will head the list,
For that's the best I know.

The "King's Club" is a goodly puff,
And so is "Charles the Great."
"La Tonia" and "Rey Oma"
Are ever up to date.

"Girard," "La Mego," "Partagas,"
A host of treats for all.
Fastidious tests are suited with A clear Havana "Sol."

"Quevedo" and "H. Upmann's" brands
Are good puffs after dinner.
And fifteen cents will buy a treat
"Webster," it's a winner.

All ye who'd have the merits of
These different brands unfurled,
Will find such information in
"The Tobacco World."

Increase In Tobacco Acreage and Production

(Special Dispatch to "The Tobacco World.")

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 13th. The Department of Agriculture announces that the acreage of this year's tobacco crop in the United States is 17.9% larger than last year, being 1,194,000 acres. The condition of the crop as reported July 1, is 87.7%, compared with 72.6% for July, 1911. This represents an improvement of 15.1% in the condition alone. The yield per acre this season is estimated at 844.9 pounds, compared with 893.7 pounds last year. The average yield per acre for a number of years has been 82.8 pounds. The total production is estimated at 1,009,000,000, compared with 905,000,000 in 1911.

It is only within a comparatively short period that we have had class or trade papers. They sprang into existence in answer to a demand. Men interested in a particular calling had a desire to communicate with men of their kind. They wanted to know the news and gossip of the thing in which they had a vital interest. They wanted to know more of the literature of the things that held for them a peculiar interest, and so to answer this demand the trade journal was born.

In the beginning the class paper was created for sportsmen. The early sporting papers covered the whole range of sports. In the course of a short time this was not deemed satisfactory, so the field of sportsmanship was divided into several branches, each branch having a paper of its own.

Then came the commercial class paper. This group has continued to grow until at the present time there is scarcely a branch of business which does not have one or more trade papers to chronicle the news and promote the industry represented.

Under present day methods a particular business class could hardly be expected to thrive without the aid of its trade paper. The thing is so common today that we wonder how a business could succeed in the past without a trade paper.

And the power of the trade press for promoting the particular kind of business for which it stands is growing and it may be added the character of the trade press is constantly improving. There are a few, it is true, trade papers which do not deserve the smallest recognition, but there are enough good ones to fairly represent the thing for which they stand.

The merchant today who does not read his trade paper is behind the age.

There is no law against a man's refusing to read and keep up with the times. But in this rushing age, in this period when thinking men have the best of mere machine men, those who do not keep in close touch with affairs are certain to lag behind in the struggle for business.

Death Takes Marcus Schwarz

Upon the reorganization of the firm, a few years since, he retired from the presidency, being succeeded by Mr. Kline and retaining for himself the nominal position of assistant secretary, Mr. Louis Cahn being the active secretary of the corporation.

One of the pleasant recollections of Mr. Schwarz in his connection with the trade was the golden jubilee celebration of the firm which was held in January of this year, when the sales representatives of the factory and friends of the house participated in a banquet in honor of the distinguished founder.

In his early youth Mr. Schwarz married Miss Zurlina Lambert from which union five children were born, four daughters, Mrs. Sadie Klein, Mrs. Marcus M. Pleschner, Mrs. E. J. Wile and Miss Daisy Schwarz and a son, the late Edwin M. Schwarz. His wife died about a year ago.

The funeral of Mr. Schwarz, which took place July 11th, was attended by the officers and the heads of the firm and by many prominent manufacturers who loved and respected him.

It is curious to find that there is a country in the world in which it is considered a crime to smoke. Abyssinia is the region, and the law forbidding tobacco dates from the year 1642. It was at first merely intended to prevent priests from smoking in the churches, but it was taken too literally, and nowadays even foreigners are forbidden to use the weed while sojourning in that country.

Dayton Holds Novel Window Trimming Contest

Retailers of Progressive City, at Suggestion of Chamber of Commerce Have First of Events Another Arranged for Later in Year

WHAT has been considered as one of the greatest window trimming contests ever participated in by the merchants of one city has just closed at Dayton, Ohio. It proved an event of such far-reaching importance and productive of so much good that it is hoped that other cities will be quick to follow Dayton's example.

The event was notable not only because of the large number of windows entered (247), but also because the cash prizes amounted to the largest sum ever offered for the purpose. Five hundred dollars was divided among fifteen winners.

Dayton retailers are like other good retailers in a live city. They work hard, think hard, and play hard. However, their attention is generally so wrapped up in their own businesses they scarcely have the time to think of other retailers' interests. In these days of "team play" and co-operation, the retailers' committee of the Dayton Chamber of Commerce thought it would be a pretty good plan to have a majority of the retailers of the city in all lines get together at the new Hall of Industrial Education of the National Cash Register Company to plan and learn from each other how best to advance retail interests in Dayton.

That started the ball to rolling. There was a banquet, talks, stereopticon lectures, moving pictures, and, in fact, everything that goes to make up a good meeting.

Mr. Van Horn, manager of the Window Advertising department of the National Cash Register Co., gave an instructive talk on window trimming and illustrated his remarks in closing by showing a window trimmed in very bad taste and then transforming it into a thing of beauty. Those present showed such keen interest that Mr. Patterson was tempted to offer five hundred dollars in prizes for the best dressed windows in the city.

It was done in this fashion: Two judges were chosen for the contest, both men widely known as authorities on matters pertaining to show windows: George J. Coan, of Chicago, manager of the store equipment section of the Dry Goods Reporter, and Thomas Bird, also of Chicago, editor of the Merchants' Record and Show Window. The report of these gentlemen contained many helpful suggestions. It pointed out many of the common faults of the average window trimmer and showed how they might be overcome.

The score system used was as follows: Color effect, 20; lighting, 10; merchandise, 10; show cards, 5; arrangement, 15; fixtures, 10; background, 10; window shades, 5; floor, 5; cost, 10. Total, 100 points. It emphasizes the relative importance of the different fixtures in a window trim. It is easy to imagine the benefits a trimmer would receive by subjecting each of his windows to this sort of a test.

The most common fault, it was pointed out, constructively, was in the lighting. Few windows were lighted to their best advantage. In some there was not enough light; in others there was wasteful extravagance. It was clearly shown that it is poor economy to refrain from buying good reflectors and then use two or three times more light in order to get proper results. Many windows failed through misguided economy. By saving a few cents the whole effect of the display was cheapened. Lack of care in detail was another criticism.

Special remarks were made by the judges in regard to the careless treatment given to the plain wood-backs commonly used by small stores in outlying districts. These were poorly painted, oftentimes covered with tacks and tack marks and were unsightly in general.

All the above criticisms, said the judges, would apply to any other cities where they had studied windows, and were not peculiar to Dayton. On the whole the trims were of unusual excellence and many deserved prizes but could not have them because the number of awards was limited.

As a fitting close to the event a dinner was given the contestants in the dining room of the National Cash Register Company's Officers' Club and followed by a meeting in the Hall of Industrial Education. This hall is a beautiful structure which was dedicated last January as a "big schoolroom where employees of The N. C. R. Co., merchants' organizations and similar groups could meet from time to time for education and pleasure."

President John H. Patterson awarded the prizes. Each was in gold tied in a chamois sack. The winner also received a handsomely engraved certificate of award.

Mr. Van Horn, who was with Marshall Field & Co., for four years, showed colored slides of the prize-winning windows, those which won honorable mention and a number of others. He took up each subject in detail and answered questions as to the various defects and good points of the trims shown. He explained what could be done for comparatively little expense to increase the value of window space, and showed how certain trims could easily be changed and made more effective.

Among the many good things he brought out were: "One need not sacrifice selling value for beauty. Most windows are too crowded. A window trim is not necessarily good because it attracts attention. Simplicity is the keynote of art and advertising." It was clearly brought out in discussion that the entire effectiveness of what would otherwise be a most excellent window is often lost because of some little technical error like a bad show card or none at all, or the introduction or lack of some object or color which has no proper part in the scheme of display.

A canvass among the merchants since the contest brings out much evidence that the event was of far-reaching importance. Dayton merchants were brought together in a spirit of friendly rivalry. They were awakened to the greater possibilities of their windows, and learned that the public is keenly appreciative of all effort on their part along this line.

President Patterson announced late in the evening that another contest would be held later in the year, at which time five hundred dollars would again be distributed. It is quite safe to predict that Dayton's window trimmers will do some great practicing this summer, and the citizens of that beautiful city will be given a constant treat to the eyes.

MEN WHO MADE GOOD

SIDELIGHTS ON INTERESTING TRADE PERSONALITIES

WITH an inherent modesty as regards publicity, preferring to accomplish by deeds rather than by words, there is a figure of commanding personality and power at the head of the largest exclusive cigar jobbing concern in the world. Printers' Ink and he are strangers. Aggressive, resourceful and shrewd where business dealings are concerned, this captain of the cigar industry has evaded publicity so successfully, that he has been the least "written up" man of prominence in the cigar world.

This man is George L. Storm, president of Geo. L. Storm & Co., treasurer of the United Cigar Manufacturing Co., and interested in a number of other cigar concerns.

Mr. Storm was born in Lafayette, New Jersey, October 11, 1875, and is the son of Henry Storm of the old house of Straiton & Storm. Starting the cigar business in a very small way in East Twenty-seventh street, New York City, next to the Straiton & Storm factory, George in a short time joined the selling staff of R. C. Brown & Co., cigar jobbers of that city. Shortly after this he opened a retail store and jobbing house in East Forty-second street, opposite the Manhattan Hotel, where he remained until June, 1907, when he succeeded R. C. Brown & Co.

About this time, the old firm of Straiton & Storm sold their business to Kerbs, Wirtheim & Schiffer. The R. C. Brown & Co. branch was a part of the Straiton & Storm business, and Jake Wirtheim turned this concern over to Charles H. Storm, who at that time was vice-president of Best & Russell Co.—in lieu of the fact that it was Charlie Storm who managed the deal, and the same could not have been consummated without him—as the Best & Russell Co. were the largest customers of the old house of Straiton & Storm and could have swung the business to any house they chose.

Charlie Storm got his brother George L. to take the R. C. Brown & Co. business over. The Forty-second street and Murray street stores were then consolidated and the firm of

GEORGE L. STORM

George L. Storm & Co. started. In February, 1901, George L. Storm incorporated his business, retaining one-half interest and selling the balance to the United Cigar Manufacturers, thus placing the house on a factory basis.

The firm today is located at 409 Lafayette street, and has recently opened branches in Buffalo and Boston and contemplate opening others in the next few months. They job principally the product of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company and "La Calzada" cigar, made in Porto Rico. Tobacco or cigarettes are not handled. One hundred and twenty salesmen are employed by the company covering the New England and Atlantic Coast States.

George L. Storm has a vast number of friends. He has "made good," because he is a good merchant—never gets ruffled—and is shrewd in business dealings. He has a national reputation for making friends and keeping them—is a good judge of human nature in selecting his cabinet and salesmen, and is either "wid yer" or "agin yer"—never half way.

Mr. Storm belongs to a number of clubs, and is a director in various companies. He resides at Greenwich, Conn., with his wife and two children.

While some say that the backing of the United Cigar Manufacturing Co. made George L. Storm the prominent figure he is today; yet the fact remains that he had the "stuff" in him as he started as a minor in major league company, winning, after many battles, his way to the head of the world's largest exclusive cigar jobbing house. And with it all he is just plain George, and wears the same size hat today as in years gone by.

It is whispered that before long the name of George L. Storm will appear as president of one of New York's largest banks. He is amply qualified to fill the position, and that he will "make good" as a banker there is no doubt.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

Getting Pointers From Cranks

MANY a business man or clerk nowadays can learn a great deal from the chronic "crank" who infests many stores.

Too many business men are today looking for the easy side of business so hard that they overlook great opportunities to add to their business knowledge. The effort to dodge a "cranky" customer is probably as great a mistake in this direction as could well be made, for this same "crank" gets his reputation because he feels sure he knows something well and persists in displaying his knowledge in that particular direction.

Give this kind of a customer a chance and he is liable to impart a line of information to you which may be of great benefit, and certainly cannot harm, for if you get no further benefit from the conversation than his good will you will find that it is well worth having, for if you must have cranks for customers, and we all must, you should make them the best of customers by having their good opinion.

A close inspection will convince you that a "cranky" customer is not a fool, so do not make the mistake of treating him as such. He is probably a long ways from it. He has a few queer notions, and may have a mighty good reason for having them. If you will try to get at these reasons you will find that you are not wasting any of your time in so doing, for the information you imbibe is very likely to be worth far more than the time spent in getting it.

Do not permit yourself to think that because many of your customers are out of town and business is not up to the usual standard that you can afford to neglect your window display, for if you do you will make a sad mistake. Of course, many people are out of town, but at the same time do you realize that many of the people who are out of other towns and cities are passing through and stopping in your city and that this is the transient trade you are after at this season of the year? The transient customer sometimes buys a very neat little bill of goods—a nice pipe, cigar case, box of cigars or something like that for a friend, or possibly may lay in a good stock of cigars and tobacco for his own use, not having had sufficient time to supply his wants at his regular dealer's in the hurly-burly of leaving home. Every retailer is certainly after this trade, and therefore should keep his window up-to-date in every way. When you go fishing bait your hook, and make the bait as attractive as you can.

Most cigar stores look alike to the average person. Therefore it is most desirable for you to introduce special attractions into your windows and earn a reputation for getting up novel window displays, something which is sure to lead many people to enter your store, who might otherwise not do so. Strive to have your windows the latest—follow the modern trend of political or business events and utilize them—it will cost you very little when you take into consideration the increased benefits which will accrue.

Who Are You Buying For?

ARE you one of those merchants who buy goods because they appeal especially to you and not because they appeal to your customers? You may give an emphatic "No" to that question, yet there are many such buyers.

Too many buyers are today buying the quality of goods they like best, regardless of the likes of their customers. It is admitted that any retailer can get more pleasure out of selling the goods that he likes best and that the retailer can largely cultivate the tastes of his customers. At the same time many customers have ideas of their own, and when this is the case it is always policy to let them have their own way.

From past experience as a buyer, it is safe to advise any buyer to be very careful in ordering the particular things which he likes best, for in about nine times out of ten he will unconsciously over-stock his store on that class of goods. It is hard to keep from it. Buyers naturally feel that all their customers who have good taste will like the kind of goods they like, and the real experience does not always bear out this idea.

A good rule is to always buy sparingly of the class of goods he likes best, for even what seem to be spare purchases at the time often turn out to be large enough to keep the sales force busy for a good while to prevent their becoming stickers, and possibly requiring a cut price to finish them out.

Despite all that has been said about overcrowding a window display, many window dressers overlook the danger of this, tending to show as much as possible. As a result the window is so crowded that the onlooker fails to take it all in. It is a great deal like going to a tailor and being shown so many different varieties of clothes that you don't know which to select. The wise tailor shows you only two or three samples at a time.

One of the Top Notchers

To be able to call all his customers his friends, falls not to the lot of every traveling man, he he a topnotcher or merely an order taker.

Yet this can truly be said of Oscar S. Veit, whose likeness is shown above. Mr. Veit is a dyed-in-the-wool enthusiast, he believes thoroughly in his goods, and as a result the "Mi Rey" clear Havana cigars, manufactured by the house of Rey, Strause & Co., of Tampa, Fla., are known wherever men know a good smoke and demand it.

We have known Mr. Veit as an all-around good fellow, a hard worker, a friend to many, and wish him continued success in his chosen work.

J. S. Manning, of Richmond, Va., is selling the "Stratford" cigar, made by the El Draco Manufacturing Co., of Philadelphia. Although Mr. Manning has just taken over this account, the business which he has done has been most gratifying to both the manufacturers and himself. He believes that the sale of this cigar can be extended considerably in his territory.

Carl Koenig, a "Natividad" salesman, has been in Portland, Ore., attending the National Convention of the B. P. O. E. Mr. Koenig is said to be the biggest Elk in the United States and owing to his jovial disposition is very popular with his fellow Elks throughout the country. His headquarters are in San Francisco.

Clem Fox, who has been secretary of the Wayne Tobacco Company, of Fort Wayne, Ind., for over three years, has purchased an interest in the F. G. Schneider cigar factory at that place and has assumed the management of the concern. Mr. Fox has been calling on the Fort Wayne trade for years and has received the well-wishes of his many friends.

A. J. Lynch, the popular salesman of the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia, has finished a campaign in New England with much satisfaction.

Ed. Davis, a hustling salesman on the "Girard" cigar, made by Roig & Langsdorf, of Philadelphia, has been working the Boston territory and reports many duplications on this popular brand.

Dan McAdams, of the P. Lorillard Co., who has lately been promoted to sales manager, was a recent caller on the Pennsylvania trade working in the interest of their "Pan Handle" scrap. Mr. McAdams expects to do some novel advertising in Lancaster shortly.

Guy Hewett, an old time cigar salesman, has accepted a position with the Peglar Cigar Company, of Denver, Colo., to act as one of that firm's city men.

J. M. Berkley, who has been representing Larus Bros., of Richmond, Va., in Denver for some time, has resigned his position. Mr. Berkley was a hustler and did much to popularize the Larus products.

The first annual outing of the Philip Morris Birthday Club was held recently by the boosters of the Little Brown Box in New York. They went to Mount Beacon on the Hudson. An informal luncheon was served during the day after which a lot of merry-making was indulged in. Frederick F. Lucey is president and William King, treasurer of the club.

A. B. Heavenrich has severed his connection with the firm of Charles J. Waxelbaum & Co, New York. He has not stated his future intentions.

H. M. Hughes, president of the Blair-Hughes Co., of Dallas, Tex., is covering the East and Middle West for his concern. While usually an optimist as to the future he stated that conditions in the tobacco trade in his region are very quiet.

A. J. Lachman, of the West Indies Cigar Co., of New York City, recently returned from a two months' trip to Porto Rico. Mr. Lachman was enthusiastic as to the quality of the crop. He said there would be a scarcity of good wrappers and prices of the tobacco would be very high.

T. R. Smith, of Hinsdale, Smith & Co., of New York City, has been on a trip to this part of the country. He is manager of the Havana branch of the firm, where he is a popular and well-known figure.

One of the best known and liked Detroit salesmen is Robert L. Olive, who travels for the Mazer Cigar Manufacturing Company. He has been a life-long cigar man and is now on a trip through the Middle and South West.

W. W. Martin, a traveling man for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, was badly hurt recently in New Orleans. He was leaning against a gate on a street car, which gave way, precipitating him in the street and dragging him some distance. He is now in a hospital.

S. S. Sachs, the New Jersey representative of A. B. Smith & Co., of Boston, has been waging a campaign on the "3-20-8" in Hudson County, that State, with marked success. Mr. Sachs is a hustler and deserves credit.

AT a recent conference of one of the leading churches in the United States the members resolved that any person using tobacco was not eligible to office in the conference; and they passed a resolution to that effect.

This body of clericals has shown itself as positive in its convictions against tobacco. But when one gets down to the real gist of the matter, what is there about tobacco which makes it more immoral than coffee, tea or any other strong foods? Tobacco does not lie or steal or break any of the Ten Commandments. Medical opinion, as well as lay, continues to differ on the subject of its physical effects. It may be the cause of an odor which is not agreeable to a non-smoker (yet that applies to limburger cheese just as aptly), yet we hear of no instances where it induces crime or encourages vice.

Quite a number of good churchmen have in their time used tobacco, among them many philosophers and philanthropists and men whom the world has held in the highest esteem. Its use by anybody is generally regarded not as a matter of conscience, but of personal judgment based on individual views of the degree of self-indulgence involved. To disqualify members of a church from holding office in the organization on this ground is, of course, the concern of the denomination and not of the public. But with so many real evils in the world is it worth while to waste time on such a debatable question of immorality?

"George," said her husband's wife, "I don't believe you have smoked one of those cigars I gave you on your birthday."

"That's right, my dear," replied his wife's husband. "I'm going to keep them until our Willie wants to learn to smoke."

Chicago cigar men are "game." This was demonstrated last week when a well-dressed individual came into a United Cigar stand and asked for a well-known three-for-a-half cigar. The clerk placed the box upon the counter and the customer helped himself to three.

"Do you take chicken feed?" asked the man as he jingled some coins in his pocket.

"Certainly," said the obliging clerk in his most polite manner.

Whereupon the customer drew from his vest pocket, a handful of wheat and laid it upon the counter. Gravely and without a smile the clerk scooped up the feed and as he rang up fifty cents, dropped the wheat into the register. Meanwhile bystanders were laughing themselves sick and the "chicken feed" customer had departed.

While sitting in the corridor of a hotel the other evening for about an hour, I saw seven or eight men light and smoke their cigars. Having nothing especially pressing in the way of an engagement, I decided to study them for a time.

Over in one corner an old white-haired man was seated; he must have been 70 years of age, and apparently a man in good circumstances. He sat there thinking, and by and by drew a very long cigar from his pocket, and holding it up before him scrutinized it very carefully. He then drew a penknife from his pocket and punched three little holes in the tip of the cigar, and having carefully lit it sat back in his chair and fell again into his reverie.

In another part of the room sat a middle-aged man with a cigar held in his mouth in a beautiful clear amber holder. In all the time he was smoking it I did not once see him remove the cigar and holder from his lips.

In another seat was a spare, thin man about 30 and of very nervous temperament. His cigar was one moment tightly clenched in his teeth, and the next would be nervously trembling in his fingers. He would at times emit great clouds of smoke and then furtively examine his cigar to see how much progress he had made. Here in another place was seated one of those men who always chew one end all up while the other is fuming—apparently trying to get through it as fast as possible.

The last smoker I particularly observed was a young fellow about 18, who was seemingly struggling with one of his first cigars. He drew a smallish cigar from his pocket, examined it as though he was afraid of it, and having gnawed the end off, lit it with trembling hands and sat back to enjoy (?) his smoke. I watched him for half an hour, and during that time his cigar was lit and relit a dozen times, but he bravely persevered, and I left him, though with a somewhat paler countenance, still struggling.

A woman prominent in letters was observed recently in the act of smoking a cigarette. She was in Chicago at the time, and by the fuss made over the affair one might suppose that never before had a woman been caught smoking there.

As a matter of fact, that this woman smokes is less a surprise than would be the circumstance that she did not smoke. Many other literary women smoke. Many who are not literary have the smoking habit.

Smoking is at best a practice not altogether pretty. Happily any person of either sex is at liberty to refrain. When, however, a woman who earns her own money chooses to invest a trifle of it in cigarettes, the matter seems to be at least as much her own concern as the cigar of a man would be his.

No longer will the passengers on the street cars and elevated trains of Chicago be confronted with the gaudy and screaming advertisements which usage has made an integral part of the interior decoration.

Chicago Ban on Street Car Ads The City Councils have passed an ordinance prohibiting any advertising matter being displayed other than that which is necessary to conduct the actual business of the railways. This is a knockout blow to the street car advertising men, who have been getting fancy prices for display space, and not a small proportion of which comes from the cigar, cigarette and tobacco interests. If such ordinances be enforced in other cities of America it will stop a tremendous waste of money which has been going on for years.

In the opinion of many experts, advertising in street cars is not effective for the exploitation of articles meant strictly for consumption by men. It is stated by these experts that the average man when he lands on a street car is either reading a newspaper or magazine, or else conversing with his friends. If he is not doing any of these things, his mind is intent on reaching his destination to keep a business engagement or something of that sort, and for that reason is not open for impressions from the advertisements which are placed there to catch his eye. With a woman, bent on shopping, the exact reverse prevails and she is always looking for ads.

We have seen many attempts to advertise cigars and cigarettes in street cars, and it has been quite noticeable that with few exceptions manufacturers have abandoned this scheme after a thorough try-out. Of course, new ones are found almost every day to take their places and for that reason new accounts have been poured in the top as fast as the old ones fall out of the bottom.

Street car advertising is one of the many phases of publicity into which national advertisers have sunk thousands of dollars. It is difficult to measure the direct returns from advertising of this character and for that reason its value has been dubious. We venture to say this, however, that should every city in the country follow Chicago's lead, prohibiting cigars and cigarettes from being advertised with other merchandise in the street cars, we have no fear that the factories would be compelled to shut down for lack of orders.

From the Pacific Coast comes the suggestion that the various branches of the tobacco industry should have a special exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915.

A National Tobacco Show So far there has been no apparent effort on the part of the industry to take up this suggestion, but it presents possibilities which are well worth the thoughtful consideration of our leading manufacturers. If the Exhibition aims to be comprehensive it should include, not only the manufacturers from such centres as Tampa, Key West, New York, Philadelphia, Detroit and other prominent market points, but also representative factories from Cuba, Puerto Rico and the Philippines.

There are so many branches of the tobacco business, from the grower to the retailer, that it would be a difficult matter to obtain united effort. If anything is to be done at all, the initiative must come from the leading manufacturers.

One Way of Stopping Cigarette Cutting An unique method of counteracting the baneful effects of price-cutting on cigarettes has been adopted by a prominent New York retailer, who for the past two years has not carried a single cigarette in stock. In spite of this, the retailer has been successful and has built up a big trade of cigars and little cigars. He avers that he has made up for the loss of customers by concentrating his energies on lines on which the prices are better maintained and on which he can make bigger profit.

This certainly is a radical cure. It is negative, however, and it is doubtful if it would prove a panacea for the cigarette business at large.

Although price-cutting is still annoyingly prevalent in many cities, there are signs that retailers are getting tired of selling their goods for nothing, and are awakening to the fact that to run their business successfully they must maintain prices and get a living profit. This is the surest cure.

Education after all is the sole remedy.

Marcus Schwarz

All of the qualities that combine to make for the ideal type of American citizenship were exemplified in the life and works of Marcus Schwarz. A true friend, a devoted husband, a loving father, a hardworking, conscientious business man, a thoughtful and sympathetic employer, a manufacturer who loved and lived for his business; in a word, a real man; that was Marcus Schwarz. "United" Loses Half Million in Checks

Blacksmith in Albany Discovers Leather Bag, Stolen by Messenger—
Boy Arrested in Buffalo, Admits Guilt

ALBANY, N. Y., July 13.

AS Thomas O'Brien was leaving his blacksmith shop this afternoon he noticed a half-opened red leather bag lying behind an iron fence. He picked it up and found it contained checks totalling half a million of dollars. O'Brien at once notified police headquarters.

The checks, which aggregated $538,113.45, proved to be the property of the United Cigar Stores Company, of New York. The company, when notified by telephone, told the police that the checks, with $222.34 in currency, had been sent by a messenger to the National Bank of Commerce in New York today for deposit. The company supposed the deposit had been made until informed that the bag and its contents had been found in Albany.

The detectives learned from the company's auditor that the checks, indorsed for deposit, were entrusted to the care of a fifteen year old boy, known to the auditor as "Joe," who was to take them to the bank. The boy had not reported back to the company's offices after leaving with the satchel shortly before noon.

ALBANY, July 15.—A boy, Joseph Killen, was arrested in Buffalo this morning and confessed to the theft of over half a million dollars from the United Cigar Stores Company. He was on his way to Denver and had about $100 of the cash still with him, having thrown the checks away.

Independent Dealers of Bronx Form Association

On Tuesday night, July 9th, the retail cigar and tobacco men, of the Bronx, held their first meeting with the object of organizing a branch of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association.

Charles Hess gave an interesting talk in which he told how he was handling only independent goods in his store. Another speaker of the evening was G. W. Smith of the Eastern Novelty Company, followed by Otto S. Jones, secretary of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, A. B. Woythaler, Henry H. Hudson and B. Saphir.

Judge Hunter, who has been instrumental in assisting the independent retailers of New York and New Jersey in forming associations, was extended a vote of thanks for his work.

Before the meeting adjourned Charles Hess was elected temporary chairman, B. Saphir temporary secretary and Charles W. Schlenoff temporary treasurer. It was decided that the date for the next meeting of the association should be selected by the chairman.

Jersey City Tobacco Men Organize

J. Baum Elected President of Hudson County Retail Tobacconists' Association

AT a meeting held at Teutonia Hall, 576 Newark avenue, Jersey City, Friday, June 28th, the independent tobacco men got together and formed an organization which will be known as the Hudson County Retail Tobacconists' Association.

After addresses by many men prominent in the trade, including Emanuel Jaffin, Henry Hunter, an attorney; Oscar Veit, vice-president of the Independent Tobacco Salesmen's Association; Robert E. Lane and others, the officers were elected, as follows: J. Baum, president; E. W. Jaffin, vice-president; L. Schlein, treasurer, and F. H. Westerman, secretary.

After a short address by Mr. Baum, the dealers discussed a scheme for co-operative buying. A Ways and Means Committee was appointed, after which the following resolutions were adopted:

"Resolved, That we call ourselves the Hudson County Retail Tobacconists' Association;

"That we believe in the competitive system in the tobacco trade, and that we condemn any illegal combination on the part of any men to destroy the competitive system;

"That we commend Senator Cummins for his efforts to obtain an appeal in the matter of the Government versus the American Tobacco Co.;

"That we invite the co-operation of all independent dealers in Hudson County to unite with us in forming a strong retail association for the betterment of the tobacco trade."

"Hathor" New Cigarette

The Sterling Tobacco Co., with headquarters at 347 Fifth avenue, New York City, have just placed on the market a new high-grade Turkish cigarette which they have named the "Hathor." The goods are packed in a strictly high-class manner and are put out to retail at 25 cents for a package of ten.

Daniel Campbell, who is a veteran in the cigarette trade, is largely interested in the new company.

Ben B. Hampton Now With R. A. Patterson Co.

Ben B. Hampton, at one time head of the Ben B. Hampton Advertising Agency, and later with Hampton's Magazine, it has been reported is to succeed Captain John Landstreet as sales manager of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Co. Captain Landstreet resigned this position last week.

New York City Items

Schedules in bankruptcy of the Hamilton Cigar Stores Company, of 3210 Third avenue, show liabilities $3,676 and assets $1,640, consisting of stock $1,500 and cash $140.

M. H. Stein opened his new establishment at Broadway and Twentieth street recently. The window display was a good one and showed a representative line of goods. Mr. Stein is to be congratulated on his new venture.

One of the recent visitors in New York was J. A. Burns, general manager of the United Cigar Stores in the extreme West. He makes his headquarters in San Francisco.

An especially tasty display of "Kings Club" cigars was shown in the windows of Louis Martin's cafe, Broadway and 42nd street last week. This cigar, which is being pushed hard by its makers, the Cuba Cigar Company, is becoming one of the best selling propositions in this locality.

The new Beltz stand, at 942 Broadway, was opened last week and proved to be an attractive and up-to-date store. The opening had been slightly delayed by the builders.

D. Levin, Chicago representative of I. B. Krinsky, Brooklyn, is visiting their factory there. He has brought many good orders with him, and succeeded in establishing a number of new and desirable accounts. The present big demand for the "Fifth Ave." and "Turkish Student" brand from all sections of the country, is keeping the factory working full time.

The Carmen Sylvia Cigarette Company has been organized in Manhattan with a capital of $20,000. A. Calligari, E. Calligari and W. P. Mitchell are the organizers.

One of the most attractive window displays noticed around Brooklyn within the past week has been that of "Milo" cigarettes in one of the windows of the Acker, Merrall and Condit Co.'s stores at the Hoyt street station of the subway.

Mr. A. H. Bock, of Anton H. Bock & Company, returned from Europe, on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, last Friday.

Mr. Isadore Mendel, of Mendel & Co., returned last week from a trip through the Middle West. Orders which he has booked have necessitated an increase in the force of cigarmakers. The "La Flor de Mendel" is getting especially popular in that section.

The cigar stand at the St. James Building, 1123 Broadway, has passed out of the hands of the Havana Consumers Co. into that of the St. James Cigar Co. The owners of the building refused to renew the lease to the Havana Consumers Co. and rented it to the other firm. The trouble is said to have been occasioned by a law suit which the former tenants won from the landlords.

"Quevedo" Cigar Gaining Ground in Brooklyn

The "Quevedo" cigar, product of the Tampa Co-operative Cigar Co., 136 Water street, New York, is reported to be gaining with surprising rapidity in the preference of smokers. Some new and attractive advertising materials are being used for this brand and many effective displays can be noticed in Brooklyn, by leading cigar and drug stores.

Remmer & Harvey, of Utica, Dissolve

The firm of Remmer & Harvey, of Utica, N. Y., composed of Louis Remmer and John F. Harvey, tobacco manufacturers and merchants, has been dissolved by the retirement of Mr. Remmer. The business will be conducted at the old location, 325 Varick street, by Mr. Harvey, who solicits the continued patronage and good will of the trade.

Sig. Meyer Ill in St. Paul

Sig. Meyer, a salesman for F. Rosano, Son & Co., who is on a trip to the Coast in the interests of his firm, became suddenly ill in St. Paul and was removed to a hotel in that city. Although the attack is said to have been caused by the rupture of a blood vessel, his doctor stated that it would be only a short time before Mr. Meyer would be able to resume his journey.

Antleps Company a New Concern

The Antleps Company has been organized in Manhattan. It will deal in cigars, etc. The capital is $10,000. The incorporators are: Philip Wirth, 247 Harman street, Brooklyn; Frank Ruscher, 305 Ovington avenue, and George D. Edenbaum, 702 Willoughby avenue, Brooklyn.

Stripping the Leaf

The picture shows Don Manuel Alvarez, head of Manuel Alvarez & Company, of Cayey, Porto Rico, and 178 Water street, New York, supervising the strippers in his warehouse on the Island of Sunshine, and the growingly popular cigar leaf. Of course, only a section of the large stripping department has been taken by the camera.

The warehouse is a very commodious one, and is just now brimming with industry preparing leaf for this market. All hands are kept busy to meet the demands of the firm's increasing trade.

Levis Balistocky Dies Following Operation

Levis Balistocky, for a number of years a well-known cigar manufacturer of Philadelphia, died on June 26, 1912, at his late residence, 704 Green street, Philadelphia, after a prolonged illness following an operation.

He was well known among the cigar dealers and his death was very much regretted by his very numerous friends and by the members of the trade. He is survived by his widow and three children. Meyer Balistocky, one of his sons, who has been associated with him in the cigar business for several years, will continue the business under the firm name of L. Balistocky and Son.

J. G. Atherholt, who has been sojourning at Wildwood, is again back at his store. He has no complaint to make as the Atherholt store with its good location and first-class line of goods is always one of the busy retail stores around town.

Plan To Organize Philadelphia Retailers

A MOVEMENT to organize the retail cigar and tobacco dealers of Philadelphia is being promoted by a number of prominent Philadelphians, who have secured the assistance of the men who have been successful in marshaling the retailers of New York and vicinity into a strong organization. It is the purpose of the organization to call a meeting in this city in the near future, which will be addressed by a number of prominent New Yorkers, including Otto S. Jonas, Col. Henry H. Hunter, and others. Details of the proposed organization will be announced later in THE TOBACCO WORLD.

General Gomez Company Seeks Other Quarters

THE General Gomez Cigar Company, which has been doing business at 1229 Chestnut street, manufacturing and retailing cigars, principally the "Wag" and "General Gomez," have been compelled to vacate that location and have gone to 1309 Drury street. They had under consideration a site at 6th and Chestnut streets, but decided to remain in the central section of the town.

The cigar department of Boothby's was also compelled to move for the same reason on account of the building of the new Boothby establishment, and are now located at 1225 Chestnut, a few doors below.

Charles Eisenlohr in Europe

Mr. Charles Eisenlohr, of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., has gone to Europe for a short pleasure trip of about a month's duration. He sailed on July 2d on the S. S. Rotterdam for Rotterdam. Although Mr. Eisenlohr was in good health, he felt that at this time a short trip during the hot spell would do him an immense amount of good.

The Baum-Jaffe Company are now firmly established in their new factory and are kept hustling on incoming orders. Several additions have recently been made to the force, both in the office and factory, which has materially assisted in the work of filling and dispatching orders.

Bobrow Brothers are one of the busy factories at present, working up to their capacity on their brands. Loritz Brothers, their distributors in the Denver territory, have been receiving some heavy shipments on the "Bold" cigar and report a splendid outlook for the cigar in that State.

"Havana Ribbon" Sales Increase

HAVANA RIBBON" sales and the material increase in same for first half of July over a similar period in 1911, are a cause of much satisfaction to Bayuk Brothers. All of the firm's factories are running full handed and working overtime in an effort to meet the increased demand. Reports from the various territories are very encouraging and indicate a banner year's business for 1912.

A. M. Thompson, Western representative, is preparing for an extended trip through the Northwest in order to close some large deals that have been pending there.

J. C. Revercomb, Southern representative, is visiting Baltimore where Wm. Deiches & Co. still continue to distribute "Havana Ribbons" with decided success.

Dave S. Achenbach, Pennsylvania and New York representative, called at the Philadelphia office on Wednesday last on his way to New York territory and anticipates some live business before his return.

A. J. Lynch recently returned from a successful trip in New England in the interest of the "Stratford" cigar, manufactured by the El Draco Manufacturing Co., of Philadelphia.

Roig & Langsdorf have leveled the building adjoining their factory and will soon start on the construction of the new two-story office building on the site. It will be the same length as the factory building and will be constructed so substantially that additional stories can be added when desired. It is expected to be completed by September.

The factory of John Steigerwald & Co. is one of the busy ones around town at present. There has been an especially lively demand for the Steigerwald brands, particularly the "Latonia" in the Pacific Coast States and it is these orders which materially contribute to the activity.

Henry Weiss, who on the 1st of June rejoined The American West Indies Sales Co.'s traveling forces, made his first trip to Philadelphia last week. Mr. Weiss had been connected with this company for four years prior to taking up some other lines, and his return to his favorite will be gratifying news to his many friends in the trade.

To be able to say at this time that they are several millions oversold is a statement which perhaps few local factories can say. But this can truly be said at this time of the firm of Jeitles & Blumenthal, who are experiencing difficulty in producing their "Flor de Jeitles" and "Masterpiece" cigars fast enough. "We are not in the habit of boasting nor in giving out exaggerated statements," said a member of the firm, "but you can say at present that we are several millions oversold."

Joseph S. Gallagher, of Allen R. Cressman's Sons, returned last week from an extended trip through the South, Southwest and Middle West. He covered the Southern States first, going as far as Texas, then came home by way of the Middle West. He was pleased at the prospects in that section for his firm. Speaking of the condition in those sections, Mr. Gallagher said that looking at it from a crop standpoint, the Southern and Western States should be very prosperous in the fall.

"El Dallo" a Pronounced Success

JOSEPH W. LEVY & CO., of Market street near 16th, recently took on the "El Dallo" cigar, manufactured by Wertheimer Bros., of Baltimore, and pronounce it one of the best sellers they have ever handled.

In speaking on the success they have achieved a member of the firm said recently, "The sanitary packing, attractive appearance, and high quality of the "El Dallo" are a combination which are making a big hit with our smokers. We have only had them a short time and will have to repeat on a large order we placed several weeks ago."

They are now showing an excellently trimmed window on "El Dallos" and the unusual packing of the cigars with the neat boxes are attracting much favorable comment.

Mr. Mittelberger Gets Neumann & Mayer Line

J. MITTELBERGER, one of Cleveland's best known cigar brokers and salesmen, has just made connections with the Neumann & Mayer Co., of Philadelphia, to represent their lines in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. Mr. Mittelberger was in Philadelphia during the past week and starts out July 15th with Mr. Leo Mayer, of the firm, on his first trip. Mr. Mittelberger will make his headquarters at 326 Garfield Bldg., Cleveland, O., but will be on the road most of the time. He is quite enthusiastic over the "Bella Mundo" brand which this firm is featuring, and believes that this cigar has great possibilities in his territory.

L. M. Walters, the hustling knight of the grip for the Bobrow house, has been visiting Western Pennsylvania, and reports many duplicate orders for the "Bold" cigar.

Yahn & McDonnell report a healthy demand for the "San Martin y Leon" cigars, which they are handling in ten sizes. Mr. Yahn, of this firm, expects shortly to take a trip to the Maine Coast, upon his annual vacation.

E. A. Russell, representing the T. H. Hart Co., in the West, was a recent visitor in this locality paying his respects to his firm. He has been working the Middle West and Coast in an aggressive manner on the "Five of Harts" and the "Heartsease" brands.

The Speed S. Goodloe Co., the newly formed wholesale house at 1203 Cuthbert street, is making itself felt in the local trade. Mr. Goodloe has been calling on the dealers about town and has placed the "El Confido," Jose Lovera Co.; "La Devisa," A. M. Schwarz & Co., and the "Goodloe," this firm's nickel product, with many prominent dealers. Mr. Fink, formerly of Dusel & Goodloe, is now with Mr. Goodloe, acting as inside man.

The Louis Halpern Cigar Company, of Seventh above Filbert streets, is being pushed to the limit on the "Halpern" and "After Dinner" goods. Mr. Halpern is a manufacturer of experience and ability and should more than make good as a producer of high-grade goods. The only complaint he has to make at present is the difficulty in securing cigarmakers, the demand in Philadelphia, at this time, exceeding the supply.

Cigar Output At Five Million Mark

Custom House Figures Show Increase Over Last Year—Petition Filed Asking for Dissolution of Tampa Club Cigar Co.

TAMPA, July 9.

WHILE the cigar output for the local manufacturers is still hovering around the five million mark, there is every indication that the production will soon increase. They have been very busy at the different factories going over their figures and the checking up for the past half year. Considering that there was a holiday last week, the Fourth, the week's output of five million is considered very good.

From all appearances the manufacturers expect to increase their output the last half of the calendar year. This prediction is based on the advance orders now on file at the different plants, orders which will keep the makers busy for some time to come.

J. J. French, formerly of the Havana-American Company and now manager of the clear Havana house of Quiros, Villazon y. Ca. states that they expect to open up shortly. Senor Quiros is now in Cuba and reports having acquired several fine vegas grown on the island.

The custom house figures for this port at the close of the fiscal year, June 30, are extremely gratifying. The receipts show that only once in the past five years has there been a larger production. At the present rate of increase it is safe to predict that the end of the year 1912 will show a total of $2,000,000 in receipts. The figures for the last year were $1,867,736.84. For the past five years they were:

|------|----------------|
| 1907 | $1,722,551.43 |
| 1908 | 1,570,383.36 |
| 1909 | 1,756,057.20 |
| 1910 | 1,939,316.53 |
| 1911 | 1,721,360.76 |

Jose Lovera returned last week after an absence of several months. He had been to Hot Springs for the baths. After leaving there he went to New York and came from there to Tampa. Mr. Lovera stated that he felt much improved in health and after looking over the local situation would make a trip to Cuba to inspect the new crop.

H. S. Foley, of the F. Lozano & Son's factory, is on a vacation to New York City and other Eastern points.

Senor Cuesta, of the "Truly Spanish House," is again at his desk after a trip to Cuba where he attended to the tobacco interests of the firm. A rapid and large accumulation of orders at the factory has made it necessary for them to fill all the available space for workmen and at present all departments are pushed to their limit.

It is expected that the alteration and reconstruction of the Spanish Club, which was badly damaged by fire a short time ago, will soon be under way.

In the new Hillsboro Hotel, Tampa now has one of the most up-to-date houses in the South. It was opened on July 5th and from the volume of business already done has amply found that it will be a lasting success. It is a seven-story, reinforced concrete building and embodies all the latest ideas in modern hotel building.

Petition has been filed in the Circuit Court at Tampa, Fla., asking for the dissolution of the Tampa Club Cigar Company, the petitioners being the Esberg-Gunst Company, of New York; A. G. Turner and C. Fred Thompson. The Esberg-Gunst Company being represented in the company by Henry Esberg.

Allegation is made in the petition that an unanimous vote of the stockholders was cast August 13, 1910, to dissolve the company. Peter O. Knight represents the petitioners.

Decrease In Ninth District Production

A DECREASE of nearly 4,000,000 cigars is shown by the revenue reports of the Ninth District of Pennsylvania for the month of June, the production being 59,357,500, compared with 63,568,700 for the same month of 1911.

"United" Leases Building in Asbury Park

The United Cigar Stores Company has leased of Henry Steinbach, of Asbury Park, N. J., the three-story Steinbach Building, in that city. The consideration was not given, but is understood to be in the neighborhood of $10,000 a year. The "United" will probably use only the corner store of the building, sub-letting the other parts of the building. The Palace Cigar Store Company is one of the occupants. The United Company already have a store in Asbury Park, located at Main street, near Corkman avenue.

Tobacco Manufactures of Ohio

STATISTICS recently given by the Director of Census at Washington relating to the manufacture of tobacco in Ohio states:

The figures include those for the establishments engaged in the manufacture of chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff, as well as the cigar and cigarette factories. The industry in the State, if measured by number of plants, seems to be very largely confined to the latter class of establishments, for of the 1,146 reported for the entire industry in 1909, 1,124 were cigar and cigarette factories, but the value of their output represented only about half of the total.

For the industry as a whole, the total value of the product in 1909 was $28,907,000, an increase over 1904 of $8,418,000, or 41.1 per cent., the absolute gain being more than double that for the preceding five-year period. Ohio ranked fifth in 1909, when measured by value of products, among the States of the Union in this class of manufacture.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 5.

The Burley Tobacco Company has definitely decided on the erection of a mammoth loose leaf warehouse here, which will be one of the largest in the entire Burley district, and on Friday commissioned engineers to prepare the plans and specifications.

The building will be 600 feet long by 100 feet wide, constructed of brick, stone and mill work, and will be thoroughly modern in design and equipment. The basement will be used for storage purposes and the main floors for sales.

It is planned to have it ready for business by the time the tobacco season opens this fall.

Trade in Milwaukee Holding Its Own

Piehler Cigar Co. New Concern—Estate of Leo Roth Estimated at $100,000—Frank Garcia Enjoined From Using Firm Name, Garcia Bros.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 10.

BUSINESS with the local dealers has been fairly good, though more quiet than in other years. Fay Lewis & Bro. Co. reports a good business on all their leading lines, including the "Savarona," "Webster" and "Tom Moore." Harry Lewis is spending a pleasant vacation on a fishing trip to Northern Michigan. Floyd Byron, of the Pabst Building store, is also fishing at Eagle River, Wis. However, none of the fish have as yet arrived here.

J. J. Mallon, formerly at the Pabst Building store, has been sent on the road to cover Southwestern Wisconsin. Leonard Baker of the Grand avenue store, has been transferred to the Pabst Building store, while John Anderson has been moved from the pipe department to take Baker's place. John Howard, a new man, takes Anderson's place in the pipe department. A new electric cash register has been installed at the Pabst Building, which adds to the appearance of the place.

A. W. Barto, who for some years operated a store on Third street, next to the Gilpatrick Hotel, has finally closed out his stock, and discontinued business.

The Dadd drug store is doing a nice business on all lines. The "Jose Vila" is prominently displayed in their window.

Leo Abraham reports business fairly active. Mr. Abraham has just returned from a trip to Hot Springs. Sam Bach has resigned his position at the Caswell Block store to accept a road position. He has been succeeded by E. A. McKercher, who was formerly at the Pfister Hotel stand. A special sale on pipes is being featured at the Caswell store, while the "El Werth" is prominently displayed at Third and Grand.

The northwest side has a new store, conducted under the name of the Piehler Cigar Company, at Nineteenth and Fond du Lac avenue. Mr. Rudolph Piehler, formerly of Yahr-Lange Drug Company, is the main party at interest.

Business with the A. S. Goodrich Company has been quite good. The "Cinco," "Equity" and "San Felice" are moving very well. The tobacco business of this State exceeded the previous year by 16,369 pounds. Internal revenue taxes on 2,001,380 cigars and cheroots and on 14,160 pounds of tobacco in the Western District of Wisconsin were paid during May. The tobacco products increased by 517 pounds over the preceding month, by 1368 pounds over May, 1911, and by 16,369 pounds for the eleven months of the fiscal year over the same period of 1910-1911. The output of cigars was larger by 183,970 for May, 1912, than May, 1911.

The Hascall billiard parlor and cigar store was destroyed recently by fire with a loss of $10,000.

The will of Leo Roth, tobacco merchant, filed for probate, disposed of an estate valued at about $100,000. Stanley Roth was made manager of the business at a salary of $75 per month and one-fourth of the profits. Mr. Roth directed that the business should be sold when it ceases to earn 10 per cent.

Steve Surman, manager of the Cuba Rica Cigar Company, reports business quite good at this time. The "El Planco" continues a good seller at the Wells Building store.

Frank Garcia, 463 Broadway, was enjoined by Federal Judge F. A. Geiger from using the firm name of Garcia Bros. or any other combination of the words "Garcia" and "Brothers," because it is an infringement on the name "F. Garcia & Bro.," which is used by Francis and Jose Garcia, who have cigar factories in Tampa, Fla., and Havana, Cuba, with headquarters in New York. Frank Garcia began making cigars in Milwaukee in 1905, before which he had at one time been employed by F. Garcia & Bros. When he came here he was accompanied by his brothers, Arthur, Manuel and Raymond, and their firm name was A. Garcia Bros. Subsequently the brothers sold out to Frank, he continuing under the name "F. Garcia & Bros." The eastern firm, which dates back to 1886, contended that the Milwaukeean imitated their labels and the shapes of their cigars, thus making big inroads on their business in this vicinity.

Sol A. Eekstein, president of the Wright Drug Company, jobbers of various well-known brands, including the "Robert Burns," "Little Bobbie" and the "Violetta," has been re-elected president of the Wisconsin Pharmaceutical Association, at their annual meeting, which was recently held at Delavan, Wis.

The Mi Lola Cigar Company, not content with the business they are doing with the "Mi Lola," are bringing out another cigar, to be named the "Bulit," after Ramon Bulit, manager of the company. This firm has also appointed Dr. A. J. Heller as medical inspector, who is to inspect each of the employees for symptoms of contagious diseases.

Ralph Wetstein, the popular Grove street cigarist, continues to enjoy his usual good business. With a revival of business on this southside thoroughfare, Ralph is in a fair way to do a very large business.

At Hudson, Wis., D. Williams, who conducted a cigar store, has been succeeded by Lewis Williams. A cigar store de luxe will shortly be opened at 1020 Tower avenue, Superior, Wis., by Ed. Emis. According to plans the store will be the most elaborate establishment of its kind at the head of the lakes, and will be as "swell" as anything in the Northwest. The quarters are being thoroughly remodeled, and the latest in fixtures will be installed.

The Star Tobacco Company to Handle Pipes

Maurice Ziegler, Well-Known Retailer, With E. A. Stroud, Will Handle New Department

ONE of the largest transactions in a jobbing way in the Pennsylvania anthracite region within the past fortnight, is a deal by which the Star Tobacco Company, of Wilkes-Barre, will handle the lines of one of the leading American pipe manufacturers. This will make the Star Tobacco Company one of the important factors in the pipe business of the country.

One of Wilkes-Barre's best-known retailers, Maurice Ziegler, will manage this new department in connection with E. A. Stroud. Mr. Ziegler's business will be managed in the future by a brother, William G. Ziegler. In E. A. Stroud, Mr. Ziegler has an associate who is known as a hustler, a hard worker and a popular tobacco man in that region. Since Mr. Stroud has had charge of the Star Tobacco Company that concern has become one of Pennsylvania's most progressive jobbing houses.

The new department will enter the field with a manufacturer's complete line, and their buying power will enable them to meet all competition in the Wilkes-Barre field. A special and finely equipped pipe room is being erected in which will be displayed everything from a humble clay to the aristocratic meerschaum. Mr. Stroud will attend to the inside details of the concern and Mr. Ziegler will look after the outside business.

With this new line of smokers' articles the Star Tobacco Company should jump to the front even more than in the past as one of the leading Pennsylvania distributors.

RICHMOND, July 7.

RUMORS that a number of former officials of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Co., among them James T. Patterson and John Landstreet, Jr., were to form an independent plant to manufacture tobacco and "fight the trust" were vigorously denied by those men yesterday.

Mr. Landstreet stated that he had resigned his position in order to live in Richmond. He is now with the Broad Rock Springs Co. As an official of the Patterson Company Mr. Landstreet would have resided in New York City.

Mr. Patterson stated when interviewed that although he had intentions of engaging in the manufacture of tobacco, his relations with the Patterson Company had always been of the most pleasant and cordial nature. He said he had no intention of fighting anybody, but only to run a business in a business-like manner.

Quiros, Villazon y Ca., New Tampa Firm

J. J. French Goes Into Partnership With Two Well-known Figures In Tobacco Field

TAMPA has another firm manufacturing clear Havana cigars. The new factory is that of Quiros, Villazon y Ca., Twelfth avenue and Fourteenth street, that city. The men who are entering the field are not new figures to cigar manufacturing, excepting as owners and proprietors of their own company. They are J. J. French, Ramon Quiros and José Villazon, three men who have been in the business for many years.

Mr. French was for eleven years associated with the Havana-American Company and was business manager for three years preceding April 30th of this year. Senor Quiros was foreman of the Ybor-Manrara branch of the Havana-American Company. Senor Villazon is a packing room superintendent, and expert at it. He held for many years a position as superintendent in one of the best known factories in the world, the Cabanas y Carabajal, of Havana, Cuba.

Mr. French, telling about his cigars, said that the company was specially favored by the fact that they are working with the only good tobacco crop since 1905. They have an experienced buyer in Cuba, a brother of Senor Quiros of the firm, and are getting choice lots of the leaf. They will soon send out their brands, of which "La Docilla" will be their finest, and make a bid for the trade.

Tuckett Companies Reorganized

Announcement is made from Montreal of the organization of the Tuckett Tobacco Company, Limited, which takes over the George E. Tuckett & Co., Limited, the Tuckett Cigar Company, Limited, and Tucketts, Limited. The new company is capitalized at $4,500,000, $2,000,000 of which is 7 per cent. cumulative preferred. The stock will be placed on the market shortly at $95 for the preferred and $40 for the common, instead of issuing stock as a bonus, as is usually the case in the reorganization of commercial enterprises of this kind in Canada.

Independents Plan Lexington Warehouse

Since the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company has secured control of the Lexington loose leaf market by the deal which was consummated, plans are being made by a number of local capitalists to erect an independent warehouse. Silas Shelburne, who was one of the principal stockholders in the plant of Shelburne & Son, which went into the merger, said today that if present plans, which he and others are considering materialize, he will establish another loose leaf warehouse in this city.

Mr. Shelburne said that the deal through which his house was acquired was consummated during his absence from the city, the Louisville and Lexington people buying up a controlling interest in the stock, leaving him, he claims, only a third interest. Under these circumstances he says he concluded that it was best to sell, which he did. The promoters expect to have the new warehouse open in time for business next fall.

Patrick E. Malone, of Fort Wayne, Ind., has opened a cigar store at 1416 Calhoun street. Mr. Malone is a former railroad engineer, and having lost his arm in a wreck, has been compelled to try another means of livelihood.

The new store of John F. Jones, of Wilmington, Del., was opened recently at Sixth and Market streets, that city. The store, which is located in the Kleitz Building, will be one of the best appointed in the city. The interior is finished in hardwood and very well lighted.

Late Trade Jottings

Henry Doll, of North Adams, Mass., has opened a retail tobacco store in that town where he will handle a first-class line of goods.

The J. S. Pinkussolm Cigar Company, of Charleston, S. C., have rented a store on Clayton street, Athens, Ga., to add to their chain of establishments.

William Edelstein has rented the corner store in the new building at 31st street and Indiana avenue, Chicago, for a term of ten years. He intends to conduct a buffet and cigar store.

The cigar store and billiard hall of M. M. Bull, of Eugene, Ore., was recently opened and is considered one of the best in that section. The inside finish is of mahogany and the draperies of velvet.

C. D. Ripley, who for two years has been with the Martin cigar store in the Manhattan Building, Duluth, has leased part of 421 W. Superior street, that city, and will open a store about July 15th.

The Read Drug Company, of Baltimore, Md., have leased a stand at 423 South Broadway, that city. This concern sells cigars at cut rates and will be closely watched by other tobacconists in that section.

Through the efforts of the Commercial Union of Gulfport, Miss., Hawkes & Dahin, of Nashville, Tenn., will shortly establish an up-to-date cigar factory at Gulfport. Local support is assured and the new factory will place their output in the Coast towns and along the line of the Gulf and Ship Island road. W. R. Shern represented Hawkes & Dahin at the meeting of the Commercial Union. Gulfport is midway between New Orleans and Mobile and has an excellent territory to draw trade from.

Many Manila Cigars for the Coast

Japanese Liner Tanyo Maru Brings Three Million Cigars for United States Smokers

As an example of the increasing popularity of the Manila cigar with American smokers, a recent report from San Francisco gives the arrival of the Japanese liner Tanyo Maru with nearly three million cigars.

Many wholesalers on the Coast were in sore straits for these goods, as they were thousands oversold and needed them badly. One firm had ordered sixty thousand Manilas, and was badly disappointed because there was several days delay in transferring them through the custom house. One of the largest of the shipments came from the Flor de Intal factory. Their representatives in San Francisco, Henry W. Peabody & Co., state that this concern is now in a new factory which enables them to manufacture two million and a half cigars a month. Other Coast wholesalers who shared in the shipments were: M. A. Gunst & Co., the Edward Wolf Co., and several of the smaller wholesalers.

According to all reports there will shortly be an increase in the price of Manilas. There is said to be a shortage in the 1912 tobacco crop which may materially increase the price of the leaf.

New Wholesalers in Price-Farr Co.

One of the latest jobbing houses to enter the field in Minneapolis, Minn., is that of the Price-Farr Co., which will also sell at retail. It started business on July 1st. The two heads of the concern are N. R. Price, who had been managing the cigar department of the Powers Mercantile Co., of that city, and Ira Farr, who was in the retail cigar business at 1217 Nichollet avenue.

The business of the two concerns will be concentrated at the Powers Mercantile Co. store, the Nichollet avenue stand being discontinued. Mr. Farr will have charge of the wholesale branch and Mr. Price will take care of the retail end of the firm.

Parker-Gorden Co. to Handle the "Rey Oma"

The Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, of St. Louis, one of the well-known wholesale houses of that region, have taken on the "Rey Oma" cigar, made by Sig. C. Mayer & Co., of Philadelphia. They will distribute it in five sizes and will make a special effort within the next few months to make this high-grade product more widely known in that part of the country. It is a fine piece of goods, broadleaf wrapped and should be a pronounced success.

Fred. Crombie, of Milwaukee, has been doing an exceptionally good business on the "Flor de Jaitles" cigars, manufactured by Jaitles & Blumenthal, of Philadelphia.

Dix & Mathis, Denver Jobbers, Fail

One of the prominent wholesale firms in Denver, Colo., Dix & Mathis, have gone into liquidation and the affairs of the concern are now being wound up for the benefit of the three creditors, Bondy & Lederer, Eitel & Cassebohm Co., and F. Garcia & Bros. Representatives from each of these firms decided to close the business after having held a conference.

The jobbing firm of Dix & Mathis was organized over three years ago. They were well known and popular salesmen and their failure to keep the concern on a paying basis has caused much regret among their friends. Mr. Mathis will again go to selling, working for F. Garcia & Bros. in that district.

Horn & Co. Open Two Branches

Horn & Co., the large San Francisco wholesale firm, have opened jobbing branches at San Jose and Hanford, Cal., the business at each place being conducted as a separate corporation. The branch at San Jose, Cal., succeeds the business of J. L. Holtum, who will remain in charge, and a similar deal was made at Hanford, where J. F. Johnson is in charge.

Hass, Baruch & Co., in New Building

Haas, Baruch & Co., wholesale grocers and cigar merchants of Los Angeles, Cal., are now in their new five-story concrete building, where they have the finest facilities for handling cigars in Southern California. They had built in the building a humidor to accommodate a large stock, lined with tile, and equipped with the most modern ventilating and moistening apparatus.

Hemenway & Moser to Distribute "Carabana"

Hemenway & Moser, of Seattle, one of the leading jobbers of that section, have taken on the distribution of the "Carabana" cigars for the State of Washington and will shortly make an extensive campaign on them. This line of goods has been handled by Mason, Ehrman & Co., of Portland, who are no longer in business. The cigar was placed with Hemenway & Moser by Harry Erlich, of the Erlich Manufacturing Company, the makers, while on a recent trip to the Coast.

The "La Sucrena" cigar, of Luchs, Luckett & Lipscomb of Philadelphia, has been taken on by the William A. Hoelscher Cigar Company, of St. Louis, and will be pushed aggressively in that territory. The manufacturers have a reputation for a fine piece of goods and it should have no difficulty in taking a strong hold on the smokers in St. Louis and vicinity.

Jobbing Trade Items From All Parts of the Country

M. Fritz & Sons, of St. Louis, are now distributors for the "Rio Vista" brand of cigars, made by Calero & Co.

The wholesale house of Wooley & Co., of Seattle, who are one of the largest importers of Manila cigars on the Coast, have moved to their new location near Third avenue and Madison street. They consider this a much better location, especially for the retail end of the business.

The progress made by Bier, Saalberg & Co., of San Francisco, in the distribution of "Ruy Lopez" clear Havanas, is even more than was first wished for. By means of aggressive salesmanship and attractive window displays, this high-class product is more popular than ever.

Frankel, Gerdtz & Co., of San Francisco, have secured Fitzpatrick Bros., of Honolulu, as distributors of "Natividad" in the island. They are experiencing great difficulty in filling the demand for some of the sizes on these goods.

H. Berceovich, the San Francisco tobacconist, who recently took up the distribution of the "Webster" cigar of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, in addition to the Martinez line, reports an excellent sale on this famous brand.

Boltz, Clymer & Co., of Philadelphia, are meeting with great success through the Northwestern States on their "Palencia," a clear Havana cigar. Their representative in that region, J. D. Waterman, has opened a number of new accounts and is much pleased at the outlook.

The Edward Wolf Company, of San Francisco, have taken on the agency for the La Prueba cigar factory, of Manila, and is now awaiting shipments on the new line.

The Struby-Estabrook Mercantile Company, of Denver, Col., have recently issued their new yearly Price Current, which shows pictures of every one of their twenty-four salesmen. It is an attractive booklet and has caused much comment.

Wooley & Co., of Seattle, Wash., are making a heavy drive on Manila smokes. One shipment of cigars recently received consisted of 100,000 of the "La Flor de Minanga" brand, which they will distribute on the Coast and in Alaska.

The firm of George A. Kent, of Binghamton, N. Y., has placed the distribution of the "Cuban King," one of their nickel smokes, with R. Kuerzee, of Oakland, Cal., and G. L. Holtum, of San Jose, that State. Mr. Willard, their representative in the West, handled the deal.

M. Blaskower, a San Francisco jobber, has taken on the "El Salto," a Porto Rico brand, and reports excellent results.

Glaser Bros., of San Francisco, report that upon the arrival of Dave Froelichstein, the Pacific Coast representative of the Hensheim Co., of New Orleans, from that city, they will open a big campaign on the "King's Court" cigar, a Hensheim product. They are now pushing the "John Drew," a nickel smoke.

One of the latest wholesale cigar houses to start on the Pacific Coast is that of the West Coast Cigar Company, of Seattle. They are located at Fourth and Cherry streets.

Walter Jackson, Albany, Ore., is one of the progressive jobbers in his section. He handles "Charles the Great," "Webster" and "Vassa" cigars, which are shipped to him direct from the factory. He, at one time, was with the Rosenfeld-Smith Co., a large tobacco concern in that region.

Sig Sichel & Co., of Portland, Ore., recently received their first shipment of a new Manila cigar, made by E. A. & Otto Weber. The shipment consisted of 110,000 of these smokes, which were manufactured in eight sizes.

Wildman & Co., of Portland, Ore., have been experiencing great difficulty in supplying enough of the "44" cigar, made by the Lipshutz factory of Philadelphia, to their patrons in that territory. This is due in part to the great demand and also to the delay in the shipments.

One sign of the increasing popularity of the Manila cigar, on the Pacific Coast, has been the taking on of the Helios line by the National Grocery Co., of Seattle, Wash. This firm, like many others on the Coast, has hardly been able to supply the demand for Manilas, which at one time were almost a drug on the market in that section.

The A. S. Goodrich Company, of Milwaukee, have been compelled, by reason of their increased trade, to inaugurate an auto delivery service, which has been a great success. This progressive firm has been featuring the "San Felice," made by the Deisel-Wemmer Co.; the "Cinco," Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., and the "Equity" cigar, manufactured by W. K. Gresh & Sons, of Norristown, Pa.

J. J. Gans & Bros., the large jobbing house of Los Angeles, has been compelled, within the past month, to nearly double their force of salesmen. This has been caused by the enormous business they have been doing on the "Tom Keene" and "Lawrence Barrett" cigars. Bob Gans, of this firm, who is one of the best-known salesmen on the Coast, has been covering the San Joaquin Valley. J. J. Gans & Bros. claim to have sold over 300,000 "Tom Keenes" during the month of June.

The J. B. Moos Company, of Cincinnati, will shortly have new quarters. President G. J. Brown, of the firm, recently entered into a ten years' lease for a new building at Sycamore street and Fifth avenue, which will be ready for the new occupants in several months. The rental is said to be $9000 a year.

The Peglar Cigar Company, of Denver, Col., are growing faster than any one of the younger wholesale cigar and tobacco houses in that section. With six men selling goods for them, they are making a feature of the "Judge Temple" cigars in three sizes of the ten-cent ones, and one in the five-cent size. These goods are made for them by the Spietz & Worch branch of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company. The Peglars are also pushing the "Dave Warfield" cigar in two sizes, which they distribute for Tietig & Son, of Cincinnati.

June Big Month for Chicago

Large Increase in Tobacco and Snuff Output—G. W. Peterson & Son Incorporate—Max Rabbin Opens Buffet and Cigar Store.

Chicago, July 12.

BUSINESS in Chicago has been very good the past two weeks, and there is a better feeling apparent now than at any time in the past two months. Practically all the downtown stores reported a constantly increasing volume of trade, and the outlook for the rest of the summer is excellent. With all these favorable conditions, the retailer is feeling pretty good. Retail activity, of course, stimulated the business of the jobber and everybody concerned has felt its beneficial effects. Outlying stores, also, stated that business was considerably in excess of the corresponding period a year ago.

The Best & Russell Company is negotiating with E. F. Keobler & Co., real estate agents, for the corner store at Van Buren and State streets. The deal has not been closed yet on account of the high rental asked. The corner in question is one of the best in Chicago, and opposite a United cigar stand.

Big Month for Tobacco Manufacturers.

According to figures obtained from the Collector of Internal Revenue June, 1912, proved a record breaker for the sale of tobacco stamps. Snuff, also, exceeded all previous receipts. Cigars and cigarettes, however, did not come up to the average. Here are the figures for June, with comparative statement for three years.

| | Cigars and Cigarettes. | Tobacco. | Snuff. |
|------|------------------------|--------------|-------------|
| 1912 | $58,334.70 | $137,171.35 | $43,713.75 |
| 1911 | 60,196.13 | 123,855.57 | 32,138.18 |
| 1910 | 63,954.70 | 124,351.70 | 25,006.23 |

Among tobacco salesmen in this city recently were: Val G. Keogh, of John W. Merriam & Co.; N. B. Shapira, of M. A. Gunst & Co.; John H. Boltz, of Boltz, Clymer & Co.; M. J. Levi, American West Indies Trading Co.; John Glossinger, president Manhattan Briar Pipe Co.; William Phillips, of Corral, Wodiska y Ca.

W. G. Anderson, cigar buyer for the Fair, is in New York. L. J. McKimmon, of E. P. Cordero & Co., New York, was in Chicago the first week in July, leaving for St. Louis on July 8. He placed the "Mi Hojar" brand with Best & Russell Co. Mac says: "Just wait until September and see my new brand, 'El Cordero.'" Then watch my smoke—all rings.

The cigar privilege in the Central Drug Store, State and Washington streets, has been leased to Garcia, Puente & Candia, cigar manufacturers, located at 167 North Franklin street. This was formerly controlled by the Schaffner-Collins Co.

S. R. Moss Co. Pushing "Flor de Moss."

The big advertising campaign made by S. R. Moss Co., of Lancaster, Pa., on their "Flor de Moss" cigar, was inaugurated recently. Five hundred window displays appeared simultaneously, the company paying a handsome sum for the privilege. That the campaign was effective is attested by the fact that more than a quarter million cigars were sold to retailers the first week. Dan Lamont, the factory representative, and known as a hustler, was in charge of the campaign. Manny Blanc & Co. are the Chicago distributors.

Frank Bowden, Cottage Grove avenue and Thirty-ninth street, reports business good. This is the old Captain Fowler place, which did a big business during the slot-machine period. Bowden carries a full stock of all popular brands of cigars and cigarettes.

The North American restaurant, Monroe and State streets, opened July 6. They have a large cigar department. The opening order of this department for cigarettes and tobacco was given to Best & Russell Company.

With the purchase of the property at 1205 Milwaukee avenue, by Bernard Weinstein from Frank Kenziora, the rent on the two-story frame building occupied by the United Cigar Stores Company, at that location, was increased two and one-half times the figure they had been paying. This block is regarded as one of the busiest on Milwaukee avenue.

T. E. Remy, wholesale cigar dealer of Dallas, Texas, was in Chicago on a business trip last week.

Sam Arndt, who formerly had five cigar stores in Rock Island and Moline, Ill., is now with the Sol Kohn Cigar Company, of Coffeyville, Kansas.

Ruth Elizabeth Armstrong, daughter of Wm. F. Armstrong, manager cigar department of Sprague, Warner & Co., was married a few weeks ago to Lionel G. Tompkins.

G. W. Peterson & Son Incorporate.

G. W. Peterson & Son is a recent Chicago incorporation. They will deal in cigars and tobacco. Capital stock is $1,200, and the incorporators are: Carl T. Chimlund, Nels J. Johnson and Joseph I. Simon. F. E. Johnson, vice-president of the Havana-American Co., was in Chicago recently.

Burglars seem to have a fondness for the store owned by A. M. Carroll, 720 North State street. At any rate, it has been robbed no less than thirteen times in the past eleven years. Six months ago about $200 worth of cigars were taken. Last week robbers came again, and this time took only $100 worth of cigars and $12 in cash. In all the raids it seems that the robbers have been most discriminating, taking only the select brands of smokes.

William Masover has just established a cigar store at 3906 Ellis avenue. The place is well located and all the leading brands of cigars are carried.

San Senci Park, for many years a "white elephant," is said to have been leased to a syndicate for a term of twenty-five years and will be converted into a place of amusement similar to the Bismark Garden on the North Side. It is said a Chicago brewery paid $100,000 for the privilege of selling beer in the park.

Geo. Wieslow, Western and Southwestern representative for Rosenthal Bros., has recovered from an operation for appendicitis. Several weeks ago Mr. Wieslow was compelled to return from his trip and undergo the operation, which, I am happy to say, was a success.

A new member of the La Salle Hotel cigar department is Otto Schaeffer, formerly manager of the tobacco department of Steele-Wedele Co. and of the cigar department of Shepard, Strassheim & Co.

Best & Russell Co. have put a new man on in Indianapolis, A. T. Parrish. Mr. Parrish works locally and also conducts a retail store in his own name.

The Harmonica Hotel Company, a subsidiary of the Auditorium Hotel Company, has leased from the Bradford Hotel Company the seven-story brick building at 39th street and Indiana avenue, which will be remodelled at the expense of $50,000 and opened as a European and American family hotel September 1st. The Bradford Company formerly occupied this building, but have moved over to their new building at 39th street and Michigan avenue, where they have an attractive cigar stand.

Max Rabbin Opens New Stand.

Max Rabbin has opened a new buffet and cigar store at 31st street and Cottage Grove avenue. The fixtures alone cost approximately $10,000, and special attention will be given to the cigar department.

L. E. Santos has returned to his old love, namely, the Havana-American Company and is again selling "La Preferencia" and other brands well known to the smoking public.

Manuel Vega, of the firm bearing his name, has gone to Cuba to make the necessary purchases of tobacco for his factory.

Albert Breitung, one of the "Big Five" of this city, will return from Europe the latter part of the month.

Friends of Congressman Mott, of New York, entertained him at the Congress Hotel during convention week. It will be remembered that it was this Congressman who had charge of the anti-coupon legislation in the House of Representatives.

G. W. Faber now has his Chicago office at 75 East Harrison street, where he has a large van to keep cigars and cigarettes. Among the imported goods he carries are "Balmoral," "Aguila de Oro," "Corona," "Manuel Garcia," "Alonso," "Villar y Villar" and "Rosa de Santiago," and some of the American cigars are "Flor de Cuba," "Wetroy" and "La Fama Universal." Prominent among the cigarettes are "Schimasi," "Fatima," "Murad" and "Nestor."

Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Co. Absorbs Concerns New Deal Will Make Lexington the Largest Loose-Leaf Market in the Country—Pay $108,000 for Two Plants

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 6.

A BIG tobacco warehouse merger, by which the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company secures a large share of the capital stock of three loose leaf warehouses, was closed ten days ago. The combine paid $48,000 for the Shelburne and $60,000 for the Lexington Warehouse.

The Fayette Warehouse Company was not taken over as the directors of that company have not yet decided to join the working agreement.

The houses to enter the agreement were the Central Tobacco Warehouse, the Growers' and Stivers' Warehouse. This will make Lexington the largest loose-leaf market in the country and its facilities for selling, re-drying, hauling and shipping unsurpassed. The price for selling will be fifteen cents per hundred pounds and two per cent. commission, the same as have prevailed in the past.

The Sanitary Cigar Salesman Company has been incorporated in St. Louis, Mo. The incorporators are G. H. McClain, R. H. Natrons. They will manufacture, buy, sell and deal in automatic cigar vending machines. The capital stock is $10,000 common and $10,000 preferred.

Smallest Retail Cigar Store in the World

Possibly the smallest building in the world devoted exclusively to the sale of cigars, is located at 316 South Michigan avenue, Chicago. The store, which is shown below is one of the Albert Breitung "chain," is one story in height and covers a ground area of about 12 by 20 feet. The interior is handsomely finished in mahogany. The building, situated as it is, in the heart of Chicago's hotel and fashionable shops section, attracts many visitors. It occupies the highest priced realty in the city.

One of the Albert Breitung Stores in Chicago, said to be the Smallest Tobacco and Cigar Building in the World

S. D. Otis has purchased the cigar business of Ethan Myer at 502 East 31st street, the former owner having gone to Wyoming. Grommes & Elson have vacated their old stand at Franklin and West South Water streets and now occupy the new building at Wilnot and Robey streets. Their well known "Ben Bey" brand will now be pushed more extensively. The full description of this plant was told in these columns a month or six weeks ago.

Harry Looker, traveling city trade for Clarence Hirschhorn & Co., is wearing a blue tie. Says no vacation this year. Reason—can't get enough "Little Toms" to fill orders on account of the strike at the United Cigar Manufacturers Company's factory.

Tom Slader, the South Side jobber, is now in his new building, 5034 South Ashland avenue. Tom is very proud of his skyscraper, and has increased his business materially in the new location. He is featuring a new brand, "Josetta," a 5 cent Havana, made by Storm, Fisher & Co., New York.

The Central Drug Company, on Evanston avenue, who recently had a fire, are rebuilding the place and putting in a large cigar department.

An attractive cigar store, which has been named "The Mascot," has just been opened at 26th street and Indiana avenue by Messrs. Fred and "Bud" Fogg. The new owners are young, aggressive men, and have installed the latest zinc-lined wall cases and most up-to-date show cases. They are carrying all the leading brands and there is every indication that they will develop an excellent business in Automobile Row.

Wm. Best, Jr., has returned from an extended Southern trip. Quarter and half page advertisements, exploiting the merits of "Neblo" cigarettes, have been appearing in the local dailies. This brand is now well placed with the dealers.

It is nothing unusual to see even a druggist with 12 or 15 different cans on his show case; almost looks like a delicatessen shop. Best & Russell Co. puts out "Hand Made," "San Marco," "Potter Palmer" and "Palmer House" brands; Breitung features "Havana Merits," Geo. Knight has his "Frat," Monroe pushes "Elcado," and there are a number of brands not so well known.

It is hard sometimes, no matter how you try, to kill off an old brand, as somebody will want some. I noticed in Best & Russell Co.'s stock the brand "Yellow Kid," which was the first brand Kerbs, Wertheim & Schiffer sold to Best & Russell Co., about fifteen years ago. It was advertised at that time in a rather unique way and made quite a success.

For the fourth time in two years burglars entered the cigar store of H. R. Sweezy, 116 North La Salle street. This time but $4 or $5 in cash was taken and $60 in stock; also, revolver belonging to Mr. Sweezy, Jr. The cigar store is directly opposite the City Hall and visible from Chief Schuetzler's office. The burglars entered by unlocking the lock with a skeleton key and jimmying the bolt. The next day two men were arrested while in the act of breaking into a place in West Lake street. The police believe they captured the parties who entered Sweezy's store.

An unusual method of advertising was used by W. Kirkebusch, representative of Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., at the Republican convention. Immediately after the nomination of President Taft he had distributed to all the delegates a booklet of political information containing a picture of President Taft and carrying their advertisement.

C. H. Storm, of Storm, Fisher & Co., New York City, has returned from a trip to St. Louis and Kansas City.

The United Cigar Manufacturers are shipping 15,000 Palmer House "Invincibles," 5 cent cigars, daily to Best & Russell Co. "Some" business on a private brand.

Bill Bailey is now working the city trade for Franklin McVeagh & Co. Bill is the man who put the "Frat" cigar for George Knight on the Chicago map.

A big city campaign is being made by Chas. Donovan on the "R. B." nickel cigar. A number of displays were noticed all over town and some newspaper advertising was indulged in.

Wm. Green has bought out Nathan Myer, 330 North 35th street, and will conduct the stand at that place in the future. Mr. Green is studying for the stage.

The brand "Artensa," made by Theobald & Oppenheimer, of Philadelphia, and jobbed by Best & Russell Co., is gaining in sales monthly. The label is a portrait of a Chicago belle, friend of Charles Storm's, who started the brand.

The sympathy of the trade is expressed to Wm. Best, president of Best & Russell Co., on the death of his sister, Mrs. Mary Lytle, who was buried from his residence, 4616 Ellis avenue, on Sunday, June 30th.

Howard Miller has opened a cigar store at No. 1169 South Wabash avenue.

The cigar department shared in the benefits of the complete renovation of the Grand Pacific Hotel to the extent of $300. It now has a 25-foot cigar case and a new humidifier that holds 150,000 cigars.

L. O. Rand, 4802 Sheridan road (Chicago headquarters) is traveling for E. M. Schwarz & Co. and Jose Lovera & Co.

Among the out-of-town visitors noticed among the trade were: A. Guedalia, president of Guedalia & Co.; Dan Lamont, of S. R. Moss & Co.; doing work for their distributors, Manny Blanc & Co., on the "Flor de Moss," C. E. Gilman, of Lowden Cigar Company, Key West; A. Boyd Wilson, of the P. C. Fulweiler & Bro. Co.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, July 9.

THE improvement in our leaf market has continued, although while the sales have shown a larger volume, they consisted of low grades to more than one-half of the total quantity for export to Germany, and what is the worst feature, prices for them have declined on the 8a and 6a; only the loose leaves have maintained their former figures. Our packers and dealers state that the prices which they can only obtain for the former classes barely cover the cost of making the bales, therefore the Remedios tobacco has to be given away virtually. The outlook for the future is indeed very gloomy for all packers of Remedios tobacco, as they can hardly expect to reimburse themselves sufficiently later on, this coming fall or winter, on the first and second capaduras for the North. Some farmers that refused to accept the offers made to them for their bundled tobacco are now packing on their own account, but perhaps they may find out later on that they have been foolish in doing so, as they may encounter the same difficulties in disposing of their escojidas at prices to leave them anything above the cost of the making of the bales. Therefore it seems that the big crop of Remedios this year has been no blessing to the farmers that have not sold their crops yet, or to the packers that paid too high prices, nor to the exporters to Germany, which have been shipping for their own account, as we understand the markets in Germany have declined to such an extent that all late shipments will leave a heavy loss. The only people that may be benefited are the German manufacturers, which may be able to buy Havana tobacco at exceedingly low figures, below the cost of production. In reality, the large crop has proven to be a calamity to most people interested in the growing, handling and exporting capacities.

The American manufacturers from Tampa and Key West have individually operated only to a moderate extent, thinking perhaps that there is no hurry to lay in big stocks, when the crop is large, although the aggregate will figure up to a fair extent. Our local manufacturers have also purchased sparingly so far in the Havana market, while a few of our large ones have however acquired larger quantities in the Vuelta Abajo direct from the vegueros, that are known to raise a superior crop.

As the receipts from the country have been very heavy already, averaging close on to 15,000 bales per week during the last three weeks, we shall have sufficient stocks in Havana for our summer customers that like to spend their vacations in our beautiful tropical climate.

Sales during the past fortnight totaled 8,467 bales, or detailed consisted of: Vuelta Abajo, 1,749; Partido, 2,034, and Remedios, 4,684 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 2,935; exporters to Europe, 4,380, and our local cigar and cigarette manufacturers, 1,152 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from June 17th to June 29th, were:

|-----------------------------------|---------------|
| To all ports of the United States | 5,438 bales |
| To Bremen and Hamburg | 4,356 |
| To London | 24 |
| To Buenos Aires and Montevideo | 202 |
| Total | 10,020 |

Receipts of Tobacco From the Country Were:

| | For three weeks ending June 29, 1912. | Since January 1, 1912. |
|--------------|---------------------------------------|------------------------|
| Vuelta Abajo | 15,971 bales | 26,276 bales |
| Semi Vuelta | 2,462 | 4,226 |
| Partido | 3,758 | 7,151 |
| Remedios | 22,287 | 46,094 |
| Mayari | 12 | 1,077 |
| Total | 44,490 bales | 84,824 bales |

Cigars.

While the statistical position of the industry, as regards the exports of cigars from the port of Havana during the first half of the month of June, gave us hopes that we had rounded the corner, and that henceforth we should be gaining again, we were however badly deceived, as soon as we looked at the figures for the second half, as the resume of the whole month indicates a further shrinkage of over one million and three hundred thousand cigars. During the first six months of this year we have fallen behind over ten and one-half millions, as compared with the year 1911. This is indeed a truly disheartening outlook, and it will perhaps not be such an easy matter to regain our losses during the remaining six months of this year, although we fervently hope so. There have been causes that explain this shrinkage, the frequent strikes of the laboring classes in Great Britain and the Presidential election in the United States have been the principal drawbacks in the lesser exports to our two chief customers, and with a termination of them we may eventually regain our dwindling trade. Whatever the outcome of the coming election might be in the United States, we hope that the next Congress may reduce the duties on cigars to such a figure which would give us a chance to increase our exports materially, as it seems impossible to make any reciprocity treaties with other countries that would be approved by the American Government, therefore our only hope of expansion lies in the good will of our sister republic.

The official figures of our custom house returns are as follows, viz.:

|--------------------------------------|------------------|
| From June 1, 1912, to June 15, 1912 | 5,480,910 cigars |
| From June 1, 1911, to June 15, 1911 | 4,096,583 |
| Increase in 1912 | 1,384,327 |
| From June 16, 1911, to June 30, 1911 | 9,015,895 |
| From June 16, 1912, to June 30, 1912 | 6,297,628 |

H. Upmann & Co. report that they have enough orders on hand in their celebrated H. Upmann factory, corresponding to the season of the year we are in, and they have been making some fair-sized purchases in the Vuelta Abajo, direct from the farmers, amounting to around 2,200 bales. Among them we have heard that they acquired the famous vega of "Manuel Valle" of San Juan y Martinez, the no less celebrated vega "La Luisa" of Rio Seco. The former will yield about 1,200 bales when the packing shall have finished and the latter 500 bales. Besides they have secured another vega in Rio Hondo of about 550 bales.

Romeo y Julieta are normally busy, and have also secured a little over 2,000 bales of choice lowland Vuelta Abajo vegas already, but being still on the lookout for more. Some of the names of the vegas are "Chavez," "Geronimo Lazo" and "La Leña."

Partagas is working steadily on a good order slate for all the principal countries of the world with the same force of cigarmakers. They might increase them already, but Don Enstaquio prefers to wait until August before doing so in order to find out two things, whether the new leaf will be in an advanced enough condition to work heavier and whether the orders may continue to come forward as they have been doing of late.

Sol is receiving orders right along, as the new blend of its cigars, some old and some new fillers, has given great satisfaction and have been universally approved of by its customers.

Castañeda reports a very satisfactory state of business, as the owners did not have the number of their cigarmakers reduced since the beginning of January, a fact which perhaps no other factory could boast of.

The principal factories of the Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd., continue to work with full force.

La Diligencia has enough orders on hand to be kept busy.

The Elite factory of Felipe Rodriguez & Co. cannot complain, as the calls for their "Flor del Fumar" are fully in keeping to the season. Don Francisco Herrero has purchased already above 250 bales of the very best Vuelta Abajo, lowland vegas, and is actively searching for similar vegas.

The Eden factory states that business has improved, as orders are arriving more freely.

Other factories are complaining, however, that business has not improved with them yet.

Buying, Selling and other Notes of Interest.

Since the death of Evaristo Estenez, the pretended President of the to be established negro republic in this island, the rebels have been so actively persecuted that there are only a few bandits left dispersed in small groups of from two to four men, and it is said that the former general-in-chief, Ivonet, shall have been wounded and is in hiding in some cave with only one companion.

The bulk of the American men-of-war have left the island, and a part of the regular troops and volunteers have been retired or disbanded from the infected district in the province of Santiago de Cuba. So this disturbance is fortunately over.

The appearance of one case of the bubonic pest has alarmed some people considerably, but as our health board is taking active steps to prevent the spread of the same, it is to be hoped that we shall be spared a serious epidemic of this character.

Gonzalez & Benitez were the biggest sellers during the past fortnight, to the extent of 890 bales.

Adolfo Moeller was the largest buyer and shipper to Germany, having dispatched 1,699 bales of tobacco.

Herrera, Calmet & Co. sold 500 bales of Remedios during the last two weeks.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales made sales amounting to 450 bales of all kinds of leaf.

Prices Soar at Tenth Amsterdam Inscription

At the last spring inscription sales, held in Amsterdam on July 5th, prices went up to an unprecedentedly high level, so much so that the United States, formerly the heaviest buyers, were purchasers of but fourteen hundred bales.

Among the heavy purchases of the American firms were: A. Cohn & Co., 895 bales; A. Blumlein & Co., 163 bales; E. Rosenwald & Bro., 135; American Cigar Co., 135, and Otto Eisenlohr & Bro., 88.

Frank Comstock Acquires Two Stores

Frank Comstock, of Denver, Colo., who has been operating a cigar stand in the Gas and Electric Building, that city, has purchased two more stores from the William A. Stickney Cigar Company, one at 1027 Fifteenth street and another at 1529 Curtis street. He is making a number of improvements in the new locations.

One of the latest Ohio companies to organize is the Brooksville Leaf Tobacco Company, with a capital of $10,000. Arthur J. Schaffer is the incorporator.

J. F. Berndes & Co. were very large buyers of Remedios in our market, having acquired and shipped 1,111 bales.

Albert W. Kaffenburgh, senior partner of the great house of I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, of Boston, New York and Havana, returned from the country on the 27th ulto, and sailed for his home in Boston on the 2nd inst., per S. S. Morro Castle; told us that their house had already six escojidas going in the Santa Clara province, having bought enough bundles of leaf to make about 15,000 bales of leaf. It is known that they have paid full prices, but also that they have secured the pick of this year's crop. Any bales that bear the mark of I. K. & S. are a guarantee of being packed as clean as corresponds to the class, and to contain the choicest part of each year's growth. They sold 300 bales during the last two weeks.

M. A. Gunst & Co., Inc., bought 500 bales of new Vuelta Abajo and Partido, through their local representative, José A. Lozano, for their famous Van Dyck factory.

José C. Puente disposed of 400 bales of Remedios and Partido. H. Upmann & Co. bought for export 456 bales of leaf during the past two weeks.

Rz. Bautista & Co. closed transactions amounting to 300 bales of old leaf.

Cuesta Rey & Co. added 350 bales to their previous purchases. Menendez & Co. sold 280 bales of their fine Remedios packings. The E. H. Gato Cigar Co. were buyers of 350 bales of leaf.

Camejo & La Paz turned over 282 bales of their choice Vuelta Abajo holdings.

Leslie Pantin operated in our market to the extent of 350 bales of tobacco for account of his customers.

José Menendez was a seller of 237 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Vincent Planco bought, previous to his departure from here, 300 bales of extra fine, new Vuelta Abajo and Partido leaf for his firm of Ruy Suarez & Co.

Gutierrez & Diehl sold 200 bales of leaf during the past fortnight.

José Otero acquired 200 bales of new lowland Vuelta Abajo vegas.

Muñiz Hnos closed sales of 175 bales of Remedios to their customers.

H. H. Strater was a buyer and shipper of 101 bales of Remedios to Germany.

José F. Rocha disposed of 100 bales of Partido and Remedios.

Mr. Max Stern returned on July 3rd by the S. S. Saratoga from New York, and we are exceedingly glad that Mrs. Stern has entirely recovered from her late illness.

Mr. Hermann Prasse, of the firm of Michaelsen & Prasse, returned on July 2nd by the S. S. Corcovado in the best of health.

Mr. Ernest Ellinger had gone to the Vuelta Abajo to look over the ground, but finding the prices too high he only selected one vega of 300 bales from San Juan y Martinez.

Principal shippers above 200 bales from the port of Havana during the last two weeks were: Adolfo Moeller, 1,699 bales; J. F. Berndes & Co., 1,111; Sylvester & Stern, 732; H. Upmann & Co., 664; J. Bernheim & Sons, 594; Silveira & Co., 343; Bridat & Co., 286; Leslie Pantin, 255; Manuel Suarez, 221, and Ernest Ellinger & Co., 206 bales.

Pittsburgh Has Another Fine Russell Store

One of the finest and best equipped stores in Pittsburgh was opened there last week. It is the new establishment of R. Russell and Co. and is located at Federal street and Penn avenue. The store is fitted up in the best possible manner and has attracted much favorable comment. It is the last and admitted to be the best of a chain of stands operated by the Russell Co. in the "Smoky City."

Among the many brands carried are the "Ruy Lopez," Ruy Lopez Co.; "Partagas," "Romeo y Julieta," "Bock," "Manuel Garcia," "Henry Clay," "Sol," and many others.

$25,000 for Collection of Tobacco Statistics

Senator Bradley, of Kentucky, recently introduced an amendment to the Smudry Civil Bill appropriating $25,000 for the collection of statistics of the quality of leaf tobacco in all forms in the United States. This is in accordance with the provisions of the Cantrill Bill.

A. N. Franklyn, who recently arrived in Lewiston, Mont., from Goodland, Ind., has opened a cigar factory in the former town. His leading brand will be known as the "Judith Basin."

Booming Tampa-made Cigars

Manufacturers Will Advertise Extensively—Funds for Publicity to Be Derived from Sale of Special Stamps

BERRIMAN BROS., cigar manufacturers, with their principal factory at West Tampa, Fla., and their head office in New York, are taking the lead in a movement to organize the large manufacturers of clear Havana cigars of Tampa into an association which will advertise the cigars and guarantee their quality to the smoker. Their plan, as explained by one of the Berrimans, is to get in the association a dozen or more large factories, with a total output of 100,000,000 cigars a year.

The association will, by means of a stamp, similar to a revenue stamp in some respects, guarantee the box to contain nothing but clear, all-Havana cigars, Spanish hand-made. The stamps will sell for $1 a 1000, which will give the association from the sale of the stamps to its members $100,000, which is to be used in advertising the stamp as the mark of the quality cigar.

The project has many good points, and some such association comprising every Tampa factory, and advertising all Tampa cigars, would doubly assure Tampa's supremacy in the cigar manufacturing field. Whether Mr. Berriman's idea is restricted to a few, or whether it can be broadened to include the entire field, is not known as yet. The idea of a Tampa association to advertise the Tampa cigars, each member paying proportionately to the number of cigars he manufactures, has been advocated before Mr. Berriman began his plans for an association, and it is certain to take a hold some of these days and produce results for every Tampa manufacturer.

Mr. Berriman was accompanied to Tampa by Mr. Kastor, of the firm of Kastor & Co., an advertising agency with headquarters at Chicago, who, working with and under the instructions of Mr. Berriman and other manufacturers in the Tampa clear Havana industry, has perfected a plan for a campaign of advertising of considerable magnitude. The plan is to use the leading periodicals and conduct a campaign of education based upon the superiority of the clear Havana cigar, as made in Tampa. The advertising will not attempt to specify any particular brands, but will cover all brands produced under the guarantee of the factories that join in the movement. It is said the campaign for the first year will carry an expenditure of approximately $100,000.

STIFLING HUMIDITY DULLS TRADE

Moisture in Air Affecting Cigar Stocks—Lillienfeld Bros. & Co. Withdraw Exclusive Distribution of "Corina" Brand From E. M. Harris Cigar Co.

DETROIT, July 9.

IN looking over my notes and jottings of what's doing among the local trade, it occurs to me that the present letter is fitted for the society page of a Sunday paper rather than a trade journal. With the approach of the heated term, members of the fraternity are seeking leisure and diversion and possibly comfort abroad, on the lakes, at their country homes or summer cottages; and some right here on the river, at the ball park, or one or more of the many spots hereabout where a fellow can so easily forget his troubles.

Within the past few days the stifling humidity has taken the ginger out of everybody and out of trade. "Business? Lord, it's too hot to try to do anything." Thus answered one sweltering chap yesterday. And he about expressed the sentiments of the trade in general.

In the humid atmosphere of the past week some pretty good cigars have been spoiled by absorbing too much moisture. Failure to withdraw moistening devices, and lack of circulation are responsible. Good smokers are sensitive creatures. Hot, humid weather can mar the disposition of a fine cigar as well as that of the man who smokes it. A palm leaf fan waved vigorously before the open show case several times a day will do no harm.

Much comment has been aroused by the action of Lillienfeld Bros. & Co., of Chicago, withdrawing the Detroit exclusive sale of their "Corina" brand, made by José Escalante & Co., Tampa, from the E. M. Harris Cigar Company, with whom it has long been a leading feature. So much so in fact, that among smokers "Corina" and "Harris" were closely identified. This action was taken during the recent visit of Eugene Lillienfeld, he offering the brand to other leading cigarists, thus making it an open brand for this market.

A member of the Lillienfeld firm, when questioned about the matter, made the following significant reply: "No man can expect to hold the exclusive sale of any brand of cigars, unless he puts some push and energy behind it."

Although the Harris cigar store is one of the best known in the State, parties long familiar with the methods of merchandising and general atmosphere prevailing there, profess not to be surprised at the jolt administered by the Lillienfelds.

Leaf tobacco sales have been rare during recent days, stocks at factories being apparently provided for. The big plants are very busy, a tale bearing constant repetition. The oncoming of summer and hot weather aggravates the labor situation. Hundreds of operatives fail to appear daily. They stay at home, go picnicing, seek employment at one or other of the hundred neighboring resorts, or find some justification for absence. The poor factory superintendent, trying to wade through a stack of orders, damns everything in general and cigar-makers in particular.

Louis Peters & Co., the old established firm of leaf dealers and packers, expect their Connecticut superintendent and buyer, J. M. McHugh, to be in the city within a few days. Mr. McHugh is a packer of wide experience, and is thoroughly reliable. The purpose of his visit is to report on crop conditions in Connecticut and discuss plans for the forthcoming season.

Louis Peters & Co. have sold their warehouse at Covington, O., to one of the several growers' associations that have lately been organized, in the hope of disposing of tobacco crops to better advantage than selling direct to packers. Poor deluded mortals.

F. C. Gardner, of the F. C. Gardner Company, Fargo, Dakota, stopped on his way home from Florida, to visit the San Telmo factory. Mr. Gardner has considerable property interests in the South and spends the greater part of winter there. The F. C. Gardner Company are very large Western distributors of the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company's "White Beauty," a leading nickel cigar; also of the "Pastora."

Oscar Rosenberger leaves to-morrow night for a ten days' trip, calling on a number of the leading Western distributors of San Telmo products. He expects to spend every night of the ten on the cars, making a record for distance and execution that will far out-class Jack-the-Giant Killer and his seven-league boots.

C. J. Holton, in the new block erected by him at John R. and Adams avenue, concluded building operations had progressed sufficiently to warrant a formal opening of his retail department July 1st. The store presents an attractive appearance, both within and without. Though somewhat removed from the business center of the city, Mr. Holton confidently expects to profit thereby eventually. He declares that his sales equal in volume those made when he first moved into his former location on Woodward avenue, thirteen years ago, and his annual rental is figured now on the basis of $900 as against $3600 then. The bar and liquor business has been discontinued.

Charles Hawkins, until recently head bar man with C. J. Holton, is now manager of Cafe Grande, a position of responsibility and trust which his many friends feel he is eminently fitted to fill.

Tommy Burns has succeeded in temporarily separating himself from the confusion and distraction incidental to the changes and alterations being made at the greatly enlarged Berghoff. As part of the change, the cigar department will have new fixtures, the show case extending to the front window, and more sales space, light and display will be provided.

Tommy is visiting all the principal points at Belle Isle this week, and is having a real good time, 'gosh!

Geo. Sharpe, 18 Michigan avenue, has opened a new stand before McIntosh's Cafe, 55 Gratiot avenue, an excellent location.

Thompson's cigar stand is a new one; in lobby of the Scherer Building, 27 East Grand River avenue. Mrs. Thompson is in charge, carrying no special favorites of her own, but just what her patrons demand of her.

Vic. Ettlinger, Western representative of Emanuel Hoffman & Son, and residing here, will spend the greater part of July and August at New York headquarters.

Sam T. Goldberg, of the Lilies Company, when rigged in baseball raiment, is a noble spectacle. Sam blushing refuses to permit us to publish his portrait, thus arrayed. He is some ball player, too; believe us. A home run, with the sacks loaded, was one of his recent achievements. They say the ball is going yet.

Metropole stand is having a good sale of "Pippin" and "Traico," made by H. Traiser & Co., Boston. In a letter received by J. B. Girard from Frank Knott, recently appointed sales manager for Traiser & Co., he speaks with genuine satisfaction of the work and results thus far accomplished.

Julia Van Vliet, wife of Moses Van Vliet, manager of the Loyal American Cigar Co., and mother of Nate and Sol Van Vliet, wholesale leaf dealers of this city, died July 2, aged 68 years, at the family residence. Mrs. Van Vliet was born in Holland, but has lived in Detroit many years. She married Mr. Van Vliet in New York City, 44 years ago.

A recent wedding, in which a host of acquaintances feel a friendly interest, was that of Miss Frances Marriott, of Windsor, Ont., to Jno. Campbell, genial sales manager of The Western Cigar Box Co., of this city. The happy event occurred June 16. John is all smiles, even though he has to spend most of his leisure time in Windsor. We are not personally acquainted with Mrs. Campbell, but wish to felicitate her on having won the esteem and affection of so worthy a young man as Mr. Campbell.

T. A. Wadsworth, of the Western Cigar Box Co., sailed for Europe June 25, accompanied by his wife and son, Harold. They will be gone four months, during which they expect to visit Germany, France, Italy, Spain and England.

J. P. Lieberman and wife and family sailed for Europe the same date as Mr. Wadsworth, but not on the same steamer. They will be back about October 1.

J. C. Eichorn, of the Victor Jar Co., is another trans-atlantic tourist; sailing July 2, to be gone till late in September.

Harry W. Watson and family are touring Maine and the New England States in his 90-horsepower Oldsmobile. Happy journey and safe return!

Carl Schott, shipping clerk of Rothschild & Bro., has an eye to business. Recently he acquired a corner on Dietsche's cigar checks, buying them at 50% discount from winners at the counter. He sells them to consumers at a tidy profit. No flies on Carl.

Ben Lesser, of Lozano & Son, was here a few days. It is reported the "Lozano" brand is to be made "open" for this territory.

Ed. Lichtig, Philip Morris representative, returned Saturday after a six weeks' trip through the State. He canvassed leading summer resorts thoroughly.

There have not been many traveling salesmen this way since July 1. A few visitors are Mike Rosenfeld, Salvador Rodriguez & Co.; Willis Andros, F. Garcia & Bro.; Ed. Smerring, S. G. Brown, N. Y.; A. Boyd Wilson, P. C. Fulweiler & Co., Phila.; M. H. P. Heigham, Benson & Hedges, London, N. Y., and Montreal (cigarettes).

Conditions in Trade Fair Considering Strike—E. J. Cauley Opens New Stand—Jeremiah Kelleher Acquires Teehan's Cigar Store

Boston, July 8.

THE cigar industry around Boston is good considering the conditions, the railway strike being about the same, not settled. The weather is good and beach house and summer resort trade is booming.

A. B. Smith & Co. report business as good, "3-20-8" cigar being in good demand. The Wait and Bond "Blackburn" cigar, H. Traiser & Co., Inc., "Traico" and "Harvard" 10-cent cigar; also the "Quincy" 5-cent cigar, report business as good.

The leaf tobacco men say that business is good, but the collections come in slow. McGreenery & Manning, of Filton street, Boston, say that the demand for good cigars and accessories was never better.

The Aviation Meet opened last Saturday at Squantum, and thousands crowd that place every day, as the flyers are the best in the country (men and women). Daniel Frank & Co. have the cigar rights at the Aviation Meet and Park.

Hyneman Bros., Milk street wholesalers and retailers, have a very attractive window display of "Hoffman House Bouquets," for which they are distributors in this district, Suffolk County.

The trade here has received notice from S. Anagyros that with every shipment of 1000 Turkish cigarettes, of which 500 are "Ziras," a check of twenty-five cents will be given.

Maurice J. Hamillburg, of 2 Essex street, has the exclusive rights and sale of cigars and accessories at the new and popular cafe near South Station. The "Emino Londres," a fine flavored cigar, seems to have the call there. The "Fraternal Order of Eagles" has placed an order for 50,000 "Erie 45," and 25,000 "Emino Londres" from Mr. Hamillburg.

C. C. Dula, president of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., was in town last week.

The local salesmen of the American Tobacco Co., the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. and W. Duke, Sons & Co., have been given a vacation for seven or eight days.

L. D. Mayhew, American Tobacco Co., was in town last week.

The new store of E. J. Cauley, on Boylston street, was opened today. Although a small stand, it is one of the brightest and most attractive on this busy thoroughfare.

Ed Davis has just returned from an Eastern trip and reports business good and growing. He has had large orders on "Girard" cigars.

The new cigarette, "Clix," (W. Duke, Sons & Co.), has arrived, and is being distributed by the jobbers.

A. J. Lynch (El Draco Cigar Manufactory) spent a few days in Boston last week.

Rosenthal Bros. & Bendtson report a fine beach and summer resort trade up to this writing.

Notice has been received here that "Five Brothers" chewing tobacco in five-cent plugs, has been advanced thirty cents per gross.

The Scotten-Dillon Co. has sent to the trade here notice of crop shipment "J," (three pounds) or one butt of "Peachey" plug tobacco, or of "Yankee Girl," will be given gratis for each order for ninety-six pounds of any three of their brands of plug, smoking tobacco, scrap or snuff, not including "Tamarack."

L. E. Scheibe (Ruy Lopez Co.) was one of the trade visitors last week here in Boston and vicinity.

Jeremiah Kelleher, cigarmaker, has purchased Teehan's cigar store, Prichard and Main streets, Fitchburg, Mass.

The new drug store of Gardella & Toohy, 184 Main street, Milford, has been opened.

The W. B. Hunt Co., druggists, opened their fourth store last week. They have one in Malden, one in Cambridge and two in Boston. The new stand is on Union street. Cut prices will prevail. On the opening day cigars were given to purchasers.

The Liggett drug stores made a popular offer last week. In the cigar department one of the features was "El Pristino" 10-cent cigars, which were sold at the regular price, and for one cent more the purchaser received two cigars.

The American Tobacco Co. is out with a profit-making offer to the trade. With Mayo's cut plug, "Fore and Aft" Slice, "Winner," "Patterson's Seal," etc., each carton of five-cent packages contains three ten-cent tins of "Tuxedo," and each carton of the ten-cent size contains three ten-cent packages of "Tuxedo."

Each carton of "Perfection" cigarettes (Wm. Duke & Sons Co.) contains two packages of the new "Clix" cigarettes.

The Nester Giannacis Co. is introducing its "Ras-Eltin" cigarettes, a 25-cent proposition.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Lancaster County Crop Growing Nicely

LANCASTER, July 10.

FARMERS are pleased at the progress made by the tobacco plants. They say that with the weather as reasonable as it has been the past two weeks, the crop should do splendidly. The plants are in fine condition, and with the exception of a few districts are having no trouble with the usual nuisance, the cut worm. There has been some hail, but it did little damage.

There has been but a slight improvement in the leaf and manufacturing ends of the trade. Leaf men are doing a fair trade, and the majority of the factories are running. Some of the latter are now advertising for hands, which would seem to indicate a slight betterment.

W. S. Gressit, of W. Duke, Sons & Co., and Mr. Palmer of the Scotten-Dillon Co., were recent trade visitors.

The Internal Revenue figures for the Ninth Pennsylvania District, while below the average for June of other years, are what many persons familiar with the situation in this region expected. The statistics show total sales of $178,072.70, which represents the tax on 59,357,560 cigars, a decrease of 5 million as compared with June of 1911. The figures for the past five years are as follows:

|------------|------------|
| May, 1912 | 61,063,890 |
| June, 1912 | 59,357,560 |
| June, 1911 | 64,234,110 |
| June, 1910 | 63,568,700 |
| June, 1909 | 58,413,960 |
| June, 1908 | 62,401,460 |

R. L. Thornton, who has been connected with the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co., has severed his relations with the concern and will hereafter put his entire attention in his new store at 107 West King street.

One of the late trade visitors in the town was Dan McAdams, who was recently elevated to the position of sales manager of the P. Lorillard Co. He had a crew of men with him, and they made their presence felt in this community by their progressive methods.

Another of our visitors was Daniel J. Simpson, a member of the firm of the Dana-Cates-Simson Cigar Co., of Ironton, O., who stopped in Lancaster for a short time. Mr. Simpson will be remembered by the tobacco trade as having been at one time bookkeeper of the S. R. Moss Cigar Co., which firm he left about ten years ago.

S. R. Moss, of the S. R. Moss Cigar Co., leaves shortly for a trip to Europe. Mr. Moss has not been feeling particularly well lately and will possibly be gone until the fall months. Mr. Ryder, of the Moss Company, reports a splendid outlook for their brands. This is especially the case in the Middle West, a territory they have recently been actively campaigning.

The regular monthly meeting of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association was held last Monday afternoon in the rooms of the Lancaster County Fair Association, with a fairly good attendance of the members. Edward K. Hishman, of Ephrata, field agent of the tobacco experimental stations of the county, made an address.

The members reported the tobacco crop in good condition, but added that it now needed rain. The Association has offered a prize of ten dollars to members of their body for the best type of cigar filler tobacco on the stalk (four stalks to constitute an exhibit). The exhibits are to be made at the Lancaster County Fair in the fall.

The tobacco warehouse of Adam Myers, at Lincoln, this county, was destroyed by fire on Friday night, June 28, entailing a loss of over $7,000. There were 170 cases of leaf in the place, and this was practically ruined. The tobacco was the property of Amos L. Risser. The loss is partly covered by insurance in a stock company.

Little Change Noted in Reading

READING, July 9.

THERE has been but little change either way in the tobacco and cigar business within the past two weeks. Things appear to have settled down quietly to the customary mid-summer dullness and nothing new has been reported.

The larger factories are all doing a fair volume of business. Yocum Bros. are working with their customary force of hands and have enough orders on hand to keep them hustling for some time. The Pacific Coast gets much of the Yocum output, particularly on the "Y-B" brand.

Another busy plant is that of John G. Spatz & Co., who reports a goodly amount of orders for the "Heidelberg." That is a deservedly popular brand and is a fast-selling proposition.

The "Royal Bob" and "Rose O'Cuba" Fleck Cigar Co. goods, are finding a brisk call in the West, according to their makers, and are duplicating nicely. Several nice accounts were recently opened in that section of the country.

The other factories, including the Penn Cigar Co., Porta Vana, and others, are working with their usual force of hands and make no complaint, although conditions in many cases are far from satisfactory.

Charles M. Yetter & Co. are more than pleased with the outlook for that firm. Mr. Yetter stated recently that considering the universal dullness in tobacco and cigarettes, they were getting along very well.

York Revenue Receipts Show Increase

YORK, July 10.

THE cigar factories in this district all report a fair amount of business. While there have been times when prosperity was more noticeable in the trade, there is no complaint, as many of the manufacturers realize that conditions are far from bright in other sections, in fact, less so than in our own city.

One of the encouraging signs in the trade is that of the increase of several thousand dollars in the receipts at the York office of the Ninth Internal Revenue District in June, as compared with June, 1911. The amount, however, was slightly less than the receipts for May last. The receipts at the revenue office last month were $98,000. In June, 1911, the amount was $94,873, and in May last they were $99,367.

Nine new cigar factories were opened in York county during the past month, affording employment to 180 hands. The latter showing was considerably better than for the preceding month, although more factories were opened in May. However, the number of hands employed in those starting in May was 40 less than for last month.

The factories of the Enterprise Tobacco Company, Windsor, and the Eagle Tobacco Company, Mt. Wolf, are the largest opened during June. Each employs 50 hands. The factory of Jerome B. Ness, Craley, and C. M. Barnhart, Red Lion, each employs 30 hands.

S. R. Koehler, of Wrightsville, reports an encouraging outlook for the "Office Smokers," "Little Yara," "Daily Smoked" and "1-4-5" brands. This old established concern, which went into business in 1870, is pushing its goods in an aggressive manner and should reap good results.

According to all indications the 1911 York county crop is pretty well cleaned up. This tobacco has been lying on the planters' hands an unusually long time and, now that they have been relieved of it, the growers are concentrating all their attention on the new crop, which is coming along very nicely.

The C. H. Plitt Cigar Company is doing very well on their "Liar" cigar, and from all indications it should soon be the best-selling five-cent proposition in this region. The daily newspaper advertising this concern has been doing has materially benefited its popularity.

W. U. Blessing & Co., of Hellam, are reporting a fine business on their "Peale" cigar. This is their leading five-cent goods, and the sale of the brand for the past three months far exceeds all their previous records. They are also doing a nice business in ten-cent goods with their "Lux" brand as a leader. Both of these brands are the very best quality that it is possible to produce for the price at which they are sold, and the smokers are appreciating them. They are large manufacturers in that section and at present are employing all the hands they can secure.

Close New Brunswick Factory

The factory of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, in New Brunswick, N. J., which has been closed down on account of a strike, has been closed indefinitely. The hands, numbering over a thousand, quit work recently because they were refused an increase in wages.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Pronounced Dulness in New York---Pennsylvania Planters Jubilant Over Seasonable Weather--- Connecticut Growers Need Rain

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY.

THE conditions in the local leaf market show a pronounced dulness, which is what many dealers expect at this season, or at least a slackening in the volume of business transacted. Prices as a rule still remain high, with binders at a premium. Dealers report activity in Zimmer, a number of large sales having been made recently. The dealers have been investing largely in the balance of the 1911 crop and paid as high as nine cents for good leaf.

There has been quite a bit of Sumatra purchased. The local leaf circles were surprised at the results of the latest Amsterdam inscription, where the Austrian Regie outbid the American buyers. The prices seem to have been very high.

Very little Cuban leaf exchanged hands. Dealers are greatly interested in the new crop. They learn from many authorities, who are returning from the Island, that outside of the spottiness the leaf is the best in years and they expect to see a crop that is all that can be desired.

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER.

THE planters are jubilant over the seasonable weather enjoyed for the past two weeks. The new tobacco crop is coming along nicely and the progress made has been entirely satisfactory. The plants, while in a few instances affected by the cut worm, are in splendid condition. The cut worm has been reported in several districts, but the reports are not general. Hail did some damage several weeks ago, but the loss was very small.

According to present indications the growers are looking forward to lower prices for this year's crop. There is no doubt that such will be the case, unless the now overstocked packers are relieved of their packings which have been accumulating for several years. Of course a great deal can happen within the next six months, and both the planters and packers are looking to a revival in trade which will be of wonderful benefit to both.

The general belief is that this year's acreage will be considerably smaller than last year's, which was 16,000 acres. Many of the large planters are shortening their tobacco crop in favor of potatoes. Quite a number of farmers, well known to the trade as successful tobacco growers, have dropped its culture altogether this year, while others have reduced their acreage a half or a third. At the present time the plants have been in the ground long enough to take hold well and only need warm weather to grow rapidly. The local packers are using every endeavor to persuade the growers to give more care to the cultivation of the crop, in order to develop its best qualities.

The dealers state that trade taken as a whole is slightly better. Yet it is far below normal. The larger factories are busy and very few of the smaller ones are idle. The cigar industry in York from all reports appears to have taken a spurt and manufacturers are encouraged. A number of factories were started there within the past six weeks.

PHILADELPHIA.

The local leaf market now appears to have taken on its usual midsummer dulness. Sales, of course, of fair amounts are reported here and there, but everything is running along in a monotonous fashion.

Connecticut has the call just now, several large sales having been noted recently. Zimmer is moving along in a fashion, as is Pennsylvania tobacco, usually 1910. Philadelphia manufacturers, taken as a whole, refuse to use the 1909 leaf.

Sumatra is being sold steadily, but sales are not large enough to warrant much comment. The high prices and quietness in the trade easily account for this.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON.

THE heated spell of the past two weeks has interfered considerably with the transplanting of the new crop, which it was hoped would be completed by July 1st, says the "Edgerton Reporter." In quite a few sections the dry weather has interrupted this work completely as it was of little use to set the plants in the field only to be burned up later. Under such circumstances the planted crop can hardly do well and many uneven fields can now be seen in traveling through the growing districts. In a few localities, too, a shortage of plants is reported. General rains must come before all the intended acreage will be out.

The transplanting, which started in under most excellent conditions, has been interrupted by hot, drying weather that prevented the planting on very many of the farms so that even at this writing there is still considerable acreage yet to be set and the soil so completely dried out that it is impossible to secure a good stand in the fields until rains supply the necessary moisture. The more forehanded growers completed this work while conditions were favorable and the plants became well rooted and have come through the hot spell and the fields are showing up fine. At all events there will be considerable late set tobacco and much variation to be seen in the size of the growing plants as the season proceeds.

An occasional lot of last season's crop is yet delivered in the local market at a trifle better than stemming prices, but very little remains in the country districts.

The business in cured leaf continues in a hand-to-mouth trade, meeting the pressing needs of manufacturers. No transactions of any moment are reported.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD.

CONSIDERABLE complaint is heard among growers as to the warm weather and the lack of rain. The farmers are beginning to have fears as to the result. The late tobacco is the kind most seriously affected. The earlier plants, put in the ground when conditions were better for the growth, are growing fairly well. Another source of complaint is the cut worm, which is said to be the worst in years. In some places almost entire fields have been reset.

There have been a number of buyers in Suffield the past month trying for options on the new crop. The growers have not taken advantage of the offers and few deals were transacted. Thus far efforts to buy in the field were confined to primed Havana.

The Hartford Tobacco Corporation will raise about 100 acres of tobacco at its Hazardville and Poquonock plantations this year. Half of it will be shaded and the balance primed Havana.

MASSACHUSETTS.

SPRINGFIELD.

ALTHOUGH not much growth has been made by tobacco plants in New England within the past few weeks, the crop is practically all set in the field. The rains have helped plants somewhat, but more is needed. The severe winds the past few weeks dried out the top soil so plants did not hold readily after they were set in the fields. In some instances fields were set with plants two to three times before a good stand was secured. With the warm weather enjoyed the past week the progress of tobacco should be very rapid, as soon as moisture is available. Cut worms and wire worms are doing lots of damage. Otherwise plants are doing well.

OHIO.

CINCINNATI.

THERE is yet much of the crop of 1911 in the hands of growers, huge bulks being found in thousands of barns. There is little demand and no country buyers for this tobacco, and unless some mishap should befall the crop of the present year the same may not soon find a remunerative market. Possibly it would be best for holders to place this tobacco on the market without further delay as it is generally poor policy for producers to hold an article so long after it is ready for market. It is a tabulated fact that such a course is unprofitable fully nine-tenths of the time. If properly marketed this tobacco would realize the shipper about $1 per cwt. less than city market quotations.

An interesting feature of the Cincinnati market was the sale recently of 5 hhds. of tobacco which had been lost on the railroad since 1908. It was probably of the crop of 1907, and was in excellent condition.

Sell Stock of J. W. Greeves Co.

An appraisal of the stock of the J. W. Greeves Company, tobacco dealers, of Rochester, N. Y., who filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy on April 4th last, was made several weeks ago by the trustee and the goods sold at auction. The total amount of the appraisal was $9992.80. Rochester banks holding claims of $21,000 bid in the stock.

Leaf News of Interest

Turkey Crop Largest Since 1903

The 1911 Turkish tobacco crop was the largest gathered since 1903 and of average quality. Prices, however, were not high enough to satisfy the growers, who incurred unusual expense in planting, owing to the scarcity of labor. It is believed that the plantings for 1912 will show a decrease and that prices will probably rise. In consequence of the restrictions imposed by the tobacco monopoly, Turkish planters started the industry in the Caucasus, and Egypt now receives large supplies from Russia. The abolition of the present monopoly in 1914 is expected to increase the production here. The exports of tobacco from Turkey totaled 69,822,826 pounds during the fiscal year 1909-10 and 54,468,034 during 1910-11. The decrease was largely accounted for by a drop from 34,619,017 pounds in 1909-10 to 21,879,363 pounds in 1910-11 in the exports to Austria. These figures do not cover the 1911 crop. In 1909-10 the exports to the United States amounted to 8,633,570 pounds and in 1910-11 to 12,035,977. The value of the exports of tobacco to the United States increased from $3,902,643 during the calendar year 1910 to $8,620,324 in 1911. One American company spends over $10,000,000 a year in Turkey in buying and preparing tobacco.

Tobacco in New England Needs Rain

Tobacco planters of Suffield, Conn., are despairing of a profitable crop this season, and unless there is rain shortly they estimate that the entire crop may be a failure.

Old growers say that the crop this year is more uncertain than at any time within the past twenty years. The early plants set out in the latter part of May are spindling and will bud prematurely, yielding perhaps half a crop. The plants set out early in June stand the weather best, because they are firmly rooted, and if an early rain comes will be up to the average. The late plants, set out toward the end of June, suffered a disadvantage on account of the dry winds, and plants in some of the fields are barely perceptible. An immediate rain would benefit these, but an early frost would neutralize the benefit obtained.

Independent Factory to Build Addition

The directors of the Fayette Tobacco Warehouse Company, of Lexington, Ky., have let a contract for building an addition to cost $50,000 to the present warehouse. The Fayette was the only warehouse in that city which was not included in the recent deal by which the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Association secured control of the other Lexington warehouses.

Carl Wobbe, of Rose & Wobbe, the large New York leaf concern, announced that his firm has secured a large warehouse in Dayton, O., adjoining that of their Ohio representative, Harry S. O'Neil. Mr. Wobbe has been visiting the trade in the Middle West.

The Lynchburg, Va., tobacco market has closed for the summer, to reopen in September. From September 1, 1911, to July 1, 1912, the sales amounted to 17,404,100 pounds, an increase of 2,320,600 pounds over the preceding year. The season was satisfactory to the sellers and buyers. The average price was good.

Latest Doings in New Orleans Market

Best & Russell Pushing "Abbey" Cigar—Hernsheim Co. Extensively Advertise "Insurgent", a Nickel Smoke.

NEW ORLEANS, July 10.

THE value of advertising in periodicals has been demonstrated in the increased demand for "La Preferencia" cigars in this territory.

Best & Russell, of Memphis, Tenn., are making a vigorous campaign introducing the "Abbey," a broadleaf wrapped ten cent cigar. They call it a "revelation."

New weather proof packages of Surbrug's "Milo" cigarettes have been received here and are favorably commented on.

The trade are complaining of the shortage in the deliveries of "Portina" cigars. Jobbers seem to be unable to keep retailers supplied with them.

Hernsheim Company are extensively advertising the "Insurgent," a new brand of Porto Rican five cent cigar they placed upon the market last week.

J. D. Russ, representing Jettles & Blumenthal, Philadelphia, was a recent visitor here.

Leon Patty, Vice-President of U. Koen & Co., left the city last Tuesday for a month's trip, visiting the factories of the North and East.

Phil D. Mayer & Son, manufacturers of the "El Cuba" five cent cigar, have appointed distributors for the brand at Memphis, Tenn., and Dallas, Tex. Their factory is far behind in their deliveries. The "El Cuba" has made a decided hit with the trade.

Juan M. Gonzales left last week for Cuba on his annual purchasing trip. Mr. Gonzales selects his own leaf, doing his buying through the old established firm of Sobrinos de A. Gonzales, of Havana.

Before leaving Mr. Gonzales leased the building adjoining his present location and will enlarge his factory.

W. W. Martin, local salesman for the Reynolds Tobacco Company of Winston-Salem, N. C., met with a very serious accident the other day that may cost him his life. Mr. Martin had given his seat to a lady in a crowded street car and gone to the front platform. In leaning against the gate the car lurched, the gate flew open and Mr. Martin was dragged for nearly a block. He is confined to the hospital, and if he recovers he may be crippled for life.

PELICAN.

C. B. Oury Urges Passage of Bill

Member of People's Tobacco Co., Which Brought Suit Against A. T. Co., Agitates for Passage of Anti-Corporation Measure

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 6.

C. B. Oury, of the People's Tobacco Company, who were recently awarded a verdict in the United States District Court against the American Tobacco Company for $24,000 damages and $5,000 attorneys' fees and have other suits pending, has written a long letter to every member of the Legislature, in that State, now in session, urging the passage of the Anti-corporation bill that has been introduced. Mr. Oury cites at some length in his letter the great advantages the Anti-trust laws of Texas have been in encouraging the establishment of independent manufacturing enterprises in the Lone Star State. Notwithstanding the strong influence exerted in favor of the bill it will possibly lay over for action until the next session of the Legislature.

W. M. Parker, of Montgomery, Ala., trading as the Pastime Soda and Cigar Company, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. He lists his debts as $3443.70 and his assets at $2350.

The imports of tobacco into Bombay in the year 1910-11 were valued at $340,351. In the previous year the imports were valued at $490,796, and the decline was due to the increase of duty on tobacco. Unmanufactured tobacco disappeared entirely from the imports from the United Kingdom, although 5,610 pounds came from the United States. A low-priced grade of cigarettes had been supplied by the United States, and the higher duty caused a decline in these from 62,181 pounds of American cigarettes to 1,327 pounds in 1910-11.

San Francisco Dull Week of the Fourth

Many People Leave Town for Rose Festival and Elks' Convention—
The Chappelle Cigar Company Are Bankrupts

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.

INDEPENDENCE DAY is a prosperous time for the cigar dealers of country towns, but in the city trade something of a "holiday atmosphere" prevails. Everybody who could do so, got away from the city on the Fourth, and more than a few of them are staying away the rest of the week. Counting the number of people who are out on their regular vacations, and the number who went north a couple of weeks ago to attend the rose festival and the Elks' convention at Portland, a good many thousand people have been away in the last few weeks, most of them men who smoke good cigars. The downtown stands feel this condition most severely, and a good many in the retail as well as the wholesale tobacco business are managing to get a little outing. The stands farther from business centers are doing relatively better, feeling the effect of the recent building activity. The announcement that some thousand of men will shortly be put to work on the Exposition causes a better feeling all over town.

The demand for smoking and chewing tobacco is a stronger feature here this season than for some years past, owing to the large number of laborers employed all over the State. The wholesale trade is especially good in this line, as several large construction camps have been started in the mountains this year, many old mines are resuming operations, and new timber belts are being opened up, each place where such work is in progress affording a good market for these lines of goods.

San Francisco appears to be well supplied with cigar stands, but new places are still being opened with some frequency. A good many of them belong, openly or otherwise, to chains of stores, and the growth of several chain-store firms, with comparatively powerful organizations and the ability to offer special inducements, tends to increase the difficulties of the single-store dealer who wants to paddle his own canoe. One of the most notable of the new stores is that of the Bonquet-Cohn Cigar Company at Market and Fifth streets, which opened about a week ago. The place has been handsomely fitted up, and being in the centre of a department store district should be well patronized.

L. Chapman, who has been with H. Bercovich for some time, has bought out a stand on California street near Montgomery, where he is now ready for business.

The Bonquet-Cohn Cigar Company has taken on the "Red Devil" stogie line, made by the Duquesne Cigar Company, represented on the Coast by Major Burrows.

Harry Jonas, in charge of the local wholesale business of M. A. Gunst & Co., returned the first of the week from a vacation, and some of the other men in this department, as well as a number in the Gunst retail stores, are getting a couple of weeks' outing. Mr. Claraty, manager of the retail section of the main store at Front and California streets, has left for New York. Phil Neuman, manager of the Gunst retail stores in California, is well satisfied with local conditions for this time of year.

Small cigars, both in regular sizes and in special packs, appear to be gaining a little more popularity locally. M. A. Gunst & Co. have recently had a large call for the "Van Dyck Junior," a 10c. size of their popular line. "Lovera" cigars in small sizes, also, are selling unusually well, according to Major Burrows, the factory representative, and S. Bachman & Co. are having great success with their line of little cigars made by I. Lewis & Co. Another interesting feature is the increasing demand for cigarettes both of the more expensive brands and in extra large sizes.

The Bercovich Company is having a large electric sign installed over the prominent stand at Powell and Market streets, in the Flood Building, showing the company's trade-mark and the names of its leading lines, "Martinez" and "Webster." These lines are featured in special sizes, and the campaign is being kept up as strong as ever.

The Edw. Wolf Company is now getting large results from the systematic campaign on "Nestor" cigarettes which has been under way for some time past. The company is now showing a new 25-cent package of these goods, which promises to become very popular. The display work is being kept up, one of the most striking displays yet shown being made last week in a stand at Ellis and Powell streets, in the form of a tower. Mr. Wolf has arranged to take up another Manila cigar, "La Prueba," the first shipment of which is expected in about a week.

The Chappelle Cigar Company, a local retail firm, has gone bankrupt, the liabilities being stated at about $4,000, with assets of $250.

M. Feder, representing a stogie line made at Cleveland, O., spent a few days with the local trade this week.

H. L. Judell & Co. have taken up the distributing agency for the line of cigar store accessories made by the Milwaukee Novelty Co.

Herman Moss, representing the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, Lancaster, Pa., is arranging for a lot of special display work for his line. Mr. Moss has been calling on the northern trade, returning a few days ago.

E. M. Elam, the Manila cigar man, is now in the East, having started after a vacation at Lake Tahoe a week ago.

The Ellis Cohn Cigar Company, of Los Angeles, has leased a store at 535 South Spring street.

The Vairance & Woodworth Cigar Company has been incorporated at Los Angeles, with a capital stock of $50,000, by W. G. Vairance, O. E. Woodworth, C. D. Collins and C. Lebowitz.

There was much rioting at a recent strike at the Perth Amboy Cigar factory, Perth Amboy, N. J. The girls who struck made an attack on some of their number who returned to work and when policemen interfered, they attacked them also, using bricks and stones. Several girls were arrested and sent to jail.

Declaring that they were being cheated by a system of over-weighing, a number of girls employed in a Steelton cigar factory recently went to the City Sealer of Weights and Measures, Harry A. Boyer, with their scales and asked that they be tested. The matter was finally adjusted. The girls claimed that the scales would register only ten pounds for sixteen pounds of tobacco which they had stripped.

The work of altering and improving the Tobacco Production Company's plant in New Milford, Conn., has been steadily progressing for several weeks. The machinery is now being installed. The company will start the wheels and begin operations as soon as they can. They have already received several carloads of tobacco stems. The product of the factory will be a fine quality of cigar binders, cigarette wrappers and fine cut tobacco for pipe and cigarette, made from the stems by a secret process.

Pennsylvania Produces Eighth of All Tobacco Manufactures

Value of Cigar and Tobacco Manufactures Shows $10,000,000 Gain,
Despite Decrease in Number of Factories—Wages
Higher Than Neighboring States

PENNSYLVANIA'S prominence as a center for cigar and tobacco manufacture is emphatically established by the statistics compiled in the thirteenth census just announced from Washington by the Department of Commerce and Labor. Pennsylvania produces one-eighth of all cigars and tobacco manufactured in the United States.

The tobacco industries of this State are confined chiefly to cigar manufacture, which is numbered 2,379 out of 2,432, the total establishments reported. The annual output of cigars is valued at $46,124,300, or 92 per cent. of the total tobacco manufactures valued at $50,161,300. Pennsylvania ranks second among the States in the total value of its tobacco manufactures.

Although a number of establishments have decreased from 2,808 to 2,432, from 1904 to 1909, the number of employees have increased 2,315, and the value of the yearly production has increased more than $10,000,000. These figures indicate that although there are nearly 400 establishments less than the previous report, those which have survived, have more than made up this deficiency in the increased value of the product and in the number of employees. They also confirm the trend of modern business, in which the survival of the fittest is the keynote.

This truth is further emphasized by the statistics which reveal that although there are only eighty-eight establishments conducted as corporations, representing 3.6% of the total number of factories, they employ 12,846 of the wage-earners, or 38.7 per cent. of the total, and produce goods valued at $19,970,270, which represents 39.8 per cent. of the total.

Comparing the wages received by the Pennsylvania cigarmakers and those received in Ohio and New York, Pennsylvania is found to have paid the best wages, the comparison being as follows:

| | Per Cent. of Total Expenses Reported. | | | |
|------------------------|---------------------------------------|--------|------------|------------|
| | Salaries. | Wages. | Materials. | Exp. Misc. |
| Pennsylvania | 4.1 | 26.4 | 47.0 | 22.6 |
| New York | 4.9 | 20.8 | 47.6 | 26.7 |
| Ohio | 3.8 | 17.6 | 47.3 | 31.3 |

The 33,188 employees were divided as follows: Males over the age of 16, 14,934, or 45 per cent. of the total number employed, and 17,390 females, or 52.4 per cent. of the total. Of the three leading tobacco manufacturing States New York is more evenly balanced in its proportion of male and female wage-earners, as follows: Males, 48 per cent.; females, 50 per cent. Pennsylvania follows with males 45 per cent., females 52 per cent., and Ohio last with males 32 per cent. and females 66 per cent. There were only 862 children employed in Pennsylvania under the age of 16 years, or a percentage of the whole number employed equal to 2.6.

Independents Try To Stop United Buying Valloft & Dreux Chain

New Orleans Merchants Seeking to Prevent Absorption of Fifteen
Prominent Stands In That City

(Special Dispatch to "The Tobacco World.")

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 30.

AROUSED by the report that the Independent Cigar Stores Company, controlled by Valloft & Dreux, now in bankruptcy, will sell their fifteen stores to the United Cigar Stores Company, a number of prominent local cigar dealers are preparing to prevent this action by legal proceedings.

It is feared that should the United absorb the Valloft & Dreux stores the United would gain such a strong foothold in this city that it would stifle competition and drive a number of the independent dealers out of business.

To forestall this condition, a number of prominent independent merchants here have consulted lawyers, and are endeavoring to invoke the law to prevent this sale.

The fifteen stores which are conducted by the Independent Cigar Stores Company are located principally in the central part of the city, and occupy some of the best corners. They comprise the largest independent chain of stores in the South, and should they be merged with the United, it is feared that this action would prove a blow to the independent retailers in this section.

A tentative plan for the reorganization of Valloft & Dreux has been arranged, whereby the creditors are to receive 50 per cent. of their claims, one-quarter being paid in cash and the remainder in notes maturing in three and six months. The business will be continued under the guidance of the principal creditors and Messrs. Valloft & Dreux.

United Cigar Stores Company Elects Officers

George J. Whelan Again President—Listing Committee of New York Curb Market Admits New Stock

THE United Cigar Stores Company of America, the new $35,000,000 corporation organized to consolidate the various companies owned by the corporation of United Cigar Stores, has elected these officers: George J. Whelan, president; C. A. Whelan, Edward Wise, W. T. Posey and Louis Biel, vice-presidents; Elliott Averett, secretary and treasurer; R. B. Wattley, assistant secretary and treasurer.

The Listing Committee of the Curb Market Association of New York has admitted the $5,000,000 preferred stock and the $30,000,000 common stock of the company to trading in the outside market. The closing prices on Monday were 92 7/8 and 120 1/2, respectively, for the two issues.

E. A. Conдах & Co. Absorb Royal Ascot Co.

ACCORDING to a report coming from the New York office of E. A. Conдах & Co., the manufacturers of the well-known "Conдах" cigarettes, this concern has purchased the business of the Royal Ascot Company, which puts out the "Royal Ascot" brand of cigarettes.

E. A. Conдах & Co., it is said, have recently been considering the proposition of enlarging their plant, so as to have a larger output. This latest move is said to be done in accordance with that plan.

Japanese Tobacco Prices Almost Prohibitive

Government Has Monopoly and Charges Just As It Pleases—In Many Cases Duty Amounts To 350 Per Cent.—Comparatively Few Americans In Country

Written For THE TOBACCO WORLD By H. W. Dennie*

WHEN an American traveler—if he is a smoker or chewer—goes to Japan, he'd better remember one thing if he intends staying any length of time—to bring along his own tobacco supply. Otherwise, he will find out that he'll pay dearly for it in the land of the Rising Sun.

Wherefore? Because the Japanese Government has a monopoly with regard to all tobacco products, and consequently is in a position to charge what it pleases, and it pleases to charge enough, thank you. In some cases there is a duty of 350 per cent.; or, in other words, what is called "a prohibitive duty" by foreigners.

And that's just about what it's designed for. For the Japs, whose government owns the railroads, telephones, street cars, and many other things in constant use by the public, believe in giving all the preference and business to their own products. They have to, inasmuch as the people of that country are taxed almost one-third of the total value of what they eat, drink, wear and use. Consequently, still in process of recovery from the terrific financial strain of the Russo-Japanese war, the government inflicts taxes to an amount which hardly any civilized nation would bear, of which the tobacco monopoly is merely one integral part.

The writer of this article spent a couple of months in Japan last spring. He has been an inveterate smoker of Durham tobacco for many years. That brand retails in the United States for 60 cents per pound. In Japan all they ask is $2.60 per pound, and it is practically an impossibility to get it even at that extortionate figure, for the simple reason that virtually no dealer carries it. There are comparatively few Americans in Japan. The number is growing less every year, because the Japs are gradually forcing out foreigners in commercial lines as fast as possible by doing the work themselves, and the few Americans located in the ports of Yokohama and Kobe doubtless do as the writer did—go out on the Pacific Mail ships and buy a few sacks from some friendly engineer, fireman, or other employee, and run the risk of a heavy fine by carrying the stuff ashore in one's pockets. The number who resort to this is, however, small, because, of course, not all Americans use that kind of tobacco, and probably the entire number located in Japan permanently would be included by a thousand as far as the men are concerned.

Here are a few prices on cigars, cigarettes, cut tobacco, etc., as taken from the Imperial Government Monopoly price list, in comparison with those for the same articles furnished by several of the leading retailers of Portland, Oregon, a representative city of the United States. For convenience to readers, the Japanese prices have been translated into gold values, a simple process, as it is only a question of dividing by two, the Japanese "Yen," or dollar, being equivalent to half that sum in American money:

| Cigars. | | | |
|------------------------|-------------------------|-----------------|--------|
| Pcs. per Box. | Price per Box Japanese. | Ditto American. | |
| Imperiales | 25 | $4.37½ | $1.75 |
| Perfectos | 25 | 2.87½ | 1.00 |
| Regalia A. Lopez | 50 | 5.50 | 3.00 |
| Londres | 100 | 5.00 | 2.25 |

*Mr. Dennie is a Spokane, Wash., newspaper man, and while on a two months' trip in Japan studied the tobacco market in that country. He secured a copy of the Imperial Japanese Government price list during his travels, and, therefore, is in a position to give absolutely correct prices. The American prices are those now in force on the Pacific Coast.

The above are from the Compania Jeneral, Manila. From the Germinal Co., Manila, we have:

| | | | |
|----------------------|----|----------|---------|
| Perfectos | 25 | $2.62½ | $1.25 |
| Insular Co., Manila: | | | |
| Media Regalia | 50 | $2.75 | $2.00 |
| Petit Bouquets | 50 | 2.50 | 2.00 |
| Punch, Havana: | | | |
| Perfectos | 25 | $13.37½ | $5.00 |
| Partagas, Havana: | | | |
| P. Bismarck | 25 | $25.25 | $12.50 |
| P. Heliotropos | 25 | 16.25 | 7.00 |
| P. Perfectos | 25 | 12.62½ | 5.00 |
| Behrens, Havana: | | | |
| Puritanos | 50 | $11.25 | $7.00 |

Cigarettes.

| Pcs. per Box. | Price per Box Japanese. | Ditto American. | |
|---------------|-------------------------|-----------------|--------|
| Anubis | 100 | $3.65 | $4.25 |

| Carreras, Ltd., England: | | | |

| Craven Mix. | ½ | $3.25 | $1.60 |
| Do. Pat. Cart. | ¼ | 1.62½ | .80 |

Wills, England:

| | | | | |
|-----------------------|---|---------|-----------|--------|
| Three Castles | ¼ | $0.97½ | 3 1-3 oz. | $0.50 |
| Best Bird's Eye | ¼ | .75 | " | .50 |
| Smith's Glasgow | ¼ | .72½ | " | .50 |

French Tobacco:

Scaferlati Maryland, 40 Grams, $0.28 (about $3.17 per pound). $1.20 per pound.

Blackwell, U. S. A.:

Durham ¼ $0.65 or $2.60 per lb. $1.20 per lb.

By the foregoing it will be seen that one pays for the cigar brands quoted an average of double values and in some cases more than that. For the few brands of cigarettes, per contra, the American prices given the writer exceed those charged in Japan. However, there are no American cigarettes in the Japanese list, and the majority named in the Government list, consisting of Egyptian, Russian, Hungarian, Chinese, German and English brands, are apparently not carried in Portland, judging by the statements of the tobacconists interviewed. The only Manila brand mentioned is "La Rubia," for 25 of which 12½c. is charged. The writer has frequently bought standard packages of cigarettes, containing 30 in a packet, in Manila for 5c.

The cut tobaccos, English, French and American, will also be seen to be more expensive in Japan, Durham being the only American brand listed.

By way of contrast, showing the cheapness of Japanese brands, some of the principal items and prices, as taken from the monopoly list, are here given:

| Cigarettes. | | | |
|-------------------------------------|--------------------|-------------------|--|
| | Pieces per Packet. | Price per Packet. | |
| Kokka (with mouth pieces) | 20 | $0.07½ | |
| Nile (silver tipped) | 10 | .12½ | |
| Star (mouth pieces subjoined) | 10 | .04 | |
| Cherry " " " | 10 | .03½ | |

Cigars.

| | Pcs. per box. | Price per Box. |
|------------------|---------------|----------------|
| Imperiales | 25 | $3.25 |
| Londres | 100 | 3.00 |
| Perfectos | 25 | 1.87½ |
| Orientales | 25 | 1.25 |

Fine Cut Tobacco.

| | Wt. in a Packet. Momme. | Price per Packet. |
|----------------|-------------------------|-------------------|
| Suifu | 40 | $0.60 |
| Shiraume | 40 | .36 |
| Fuki-yen | 40 | .11 |

Forty momme is about equal in weight to two-thirds of a pound. Only three brands of plug chewing tobacco are mentioned in the list, naturally all American, but none of note, and none of which are carried in Oregon. The prices for these average 15½ cents for one-eighth of a pound, or $1.24 per pound, not considering any reduction.

And here's the difference between Japan and China or Manila. In China one may buy Durham for ten cents in their money; that is, a five-cent sack, according to American coin. This is really a little cheaper than in the States, or was last winter, for their money was not worth quite half as much as ours, on a gold basis. Nor are cigars expensive, while Chinese cigarettes are about as cheap as most of those in Japan. In Manila almost anyone knows that excellent cigars may be obtained for much less than is charged for the same goods in the United States, which means that they are very cheap. Durham and other goods imported from the United States sell as reasonably as long distance freights warrant; and, in fact, Durham itself retails at exactly the same figure as in America.

Motion Pictures As Advertising Mediums

STATISTICS recently compiled by expert authorities show that about one million people attend motion picture theatres every day. This vast daily attendance represents persons in every walk of life. The rich man and the poor man, the working woman and the lady of leisure, all find amusement and entertainment in the little playhouse of animated photography and pictorial portrayal of classical drama and wholesome comedy. The multitude that attends the picture theatre night after night represents the buying public. These are the very people that the national advertiser is desirous of reaching. Whether their expenditures are figured in pennies or in dollars per day, they are the backbone of the retail dealer that handles the widely advertised brands. These moving picture patrons are the main support of the store merchant who fills the created demand for advertised lines.

Excellent Publicity Medium.

The picture theatre offers an excellent opportunity for national and local advertisers. Many well-known houses have been furnishing their dealers and agents with slides advertising their line and showing dealer's name and address as local agent. This has proved to be an immense success and results have been direct and positive.

The great advantage of slide advertising is the fact that every "ad" is assured of being read. The slide projected on the moving picture curtain is positively read, there is absolutely no avenue of escape. Every eye in the audience is focused on the curtain; every thought is concentrated on the exhibition being displayed. The impression made upon the human mind under these conditions is lasting and effective.

Another important feature of this modern publicity medium is the trifling cost that this advertising entails.

Advertising slides can be secured from manufacturers at a cost of about 50c. or 60c., beautifully colored and including insertion of dealer's name; also including all packing and delivery charges.

Dealer Pays the Bill

Enterprising merchants all over the country have arrangements with their local theatres for the exhibition of these slides. Upon receipt of the slide from the manufacturer, they arrange for the exhibition of same entirely at their expense and this cost is entirely taken care of by the local dealer.

The entire cost of this highly valuable publicity is confined to the expense for the slides and in view of the small amount in question, it is no surprise that so many big houses are including this means of publicity in their regular advertising campaign.

A certain corset manufacturer supplies four thousand dealers every three months with these advertising slides and they have been doing so for the past three years. It goes without saying that if results have not warranted, this manufacturer would positively not continue to use advertising slides.

Prominent manufacturers of shoes, garments, candy, hats, clothing, pianos, tobacco, razors, have demonstrated the value of advertising slides and have found their sales materially increased.

Your Show Window as a Salesman

SHOW window advertising is receiving more consideration each day. The manufacturers are doing their best to get the retailers to display their goods, and are furnishing the finest lithographs and display materials that the advertising world has ever seen. Many manufacturers are publishing booklets, showing the best way to trim a window with their product. They realize the value of show window advertising and know that if the retailer makes the proper display of their merchandise their goods will be sold. By co-operating with the manufacturers, the retailer can increase the sales from his windows.

The retailers are becoming aware of the fact that their show windows are the most valuable space in their stores. The passer-by judges the store by its show window. It can do more than newspaper advertising, as it demonstrates the real value of the goods by showing their color and general attractiveness. The cigar merchant can follow up all the great newspaper and magazine advertising campaigns, and can get as much advantage from them as if they were published only for him.

But to get the best results from a window, its contents must tell their story, and tell it quickly and to the point. A simple background which forms a pleasing contrast to the goods displayed, whether cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, or smoking articles, forces itself upon the public eye and receives more consideration than any other form of advertising in use today.

In trimming your window, have consistent combinations, and do not have a conglomerate mass of everything in your store. Try one thing at a time. At this time of year, when many of your patrons are contemplating going away for a time, try an attractive vacation arrangement, using pictures or photographs which will carry the idea. Take cigars at one time, stogies at another, pipes and tobacco later, to be followed by an attractive display of cigarettes, keeping in mind simplicity at all times.

Let your window be a neat, chatty, cheerful one, one which almost appears to say to the onlooker: "Come in. We have even better things inside," and you will never regret the time you put upon it.

Association to Fight Pernicious Legislation

Southern California Tobacco Men, With Headquarters in Los Angeles, a Progressive Body—
Combat Efforts of Alleged "Reformers"

REALIZING that in union there is strength, both to assist each other and to fight the common foe, the tobacco men of Southern California came together recently and formed the Tobacco Association of Southern California, opening their ranks to wholesaler or retailer, clerk or salesman, bookkeeper or porter, cigarmaker or stripper.

The object of the association is also largely of a social nature. In addition they will take measures to combat the efforts of the reform-mad persons who have put the liquor business in that State almost out of commission, and are now after the scalp of the tobacco man.

Already petitions have been circulated to have the next session of the California Legislature add one more freak law to its present meshwork of statutes, which would prohibit cigarette smoking in that State. It hardly seems possible to some men in that State to stop cigarette smoking in California, a region which is said to be the original stronghold of the home-made "coffin nail," but the act in all probability will be passed.

In forming the association the organizers have stated their platform boldly and without equivocation. They have gathered together to watch and protect their businesses from unjust and discriminating laws. They condemn in strong terms the practice of selling or giving away tobacco and cigarettes to minors and urge more stringent laws for offenders.

The association is now holding monthly meetings, at which the members can get together, forget care and the long hours of toil, become better friends, and have interesting and instructive addresses on live topics by authorities, posted and successful men.

The majority of the members hail from Los Angeles, which is the headquarters of the body, but it is the desire of the association to embrace all the towns in Southern California until it is truly a sectional, not local affair.

Anthony Schwamm, President of Association

Anthony Schwamm, of 114 East Market street, Los Angeles, whose likeness is shown, is president and is proving a capable and popular officer. The other officers, all Los Angeles men, are: H. D. McLean, vice-president; J. P. Viera, recording secretary; A. Finkenstein, financial secretary; D. H. Elmore, treasurer, and J. C. Borton, sergeant-at-arms. The board of trustees is as follows: W. D. Newton, E. A. Campbell, Wm. Von Sick, I. Finkenstein and Charles Bennett.

Western Smoker Divulges Secret of Good Cigars

Buys Nickel Brands and Uses Sherry Wine in Humidor to Insure a Good Aroma

AKANSAS CITY man has lately gained a reputation among his friends for smoking cigars of high degree, and his friends have been wondering for months how he can afford the luxury of the type of cigars he smokes. Those who have sampled them say that they possess the most alluring aroma it is possible for a cigar to have, and that the most delicate Havana hasn't much on them. The wonder among his friends has increased when it is known that he has had no salary increases lately and that he belongs now, as heretofore, to that large class of smokers who do not feel justified in paying more than five cents for a cigar. He says himself that his cigars cost him only five cents apiece, and that bands that encircle those he has been giving away prove his contention. The other day he divulged his secret to a few of his friends.

"I have a humidor," he said. "The humidor contains a sponge designed to soak in water to keep the cigars in moist condition. But instead of soaking the sponge in water, I soak it in a fair grade of sherry wine, place it in the humidor with a dozen or so cigars, and leave them over night. The next morning I fill my pockets with five-cent cigars that it would require an expert to distinguish, so far as the flavor is concerned, from the finest product of Havana. The flavor of the sherry wine will, of course, disappear after a few hours, so that the cigars must be smoked within a reasonable time. This fact also makes it impossible for the dealer or manufacturer to take advantage of my discovery. A quart bottle of sherry wine for the humidor will last the smoker for months. Care should be taken to see to it that the sponge does not come in direct contact with the cigars, which are very porous and will absorb the wine rapidly and become wet and soggy. Smokers who prefer some other flavor than sherry wine, of course, are at liberty to flavor to taste."

This is, of course, a grossly exaggerated statement, but it is worthy of attention from many consumers of cigars, who purchase their smokes in large quantities. The idea of taking a nickel cigar and with but the aid of a little wine to equal the flavor of a Havana, is preposterous to say the least, yet many men use liquors in the manner above described and keep their cigars in excellent condition.

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

Care of Valuable Papers and Books

IT is a well-known and admitted fact by many tobacco men, whether retail, wholesale or manufacturer, that though many of them are scrupulously careful in every other way they are not as careful as they should be of their books and papers. Frequently the books represent thousands of dollars of credits which, if destroyed by fire or water or perhaps stolen, would be an absolute loss with no way of replacing them.

The man with valuable books or papers can have no better insurance than a good safe, not some which are often seen, farces as far as protecting the contents are concerned.

A safe should be able to resist fire, water and burglars. How many do that? Judging by the numerous robberies reported every day of cigar stores the so-called "safes" failed to do the work. They were not burglar proof, not even proof against the depredations of the ordinary petty thief who periodically relieves many retailers of their cash and many cigars.

Secure a "strong box" which will resist fire and water. Imagine it being in a fire and perhaps dropping several stories and then being flooded with water. Will your safe stand that? Is it so packed that the water will not seep inside.

The present year has been a disastrous one as far as fires are concerned. Look to the rubbish piles in your basement. Attend to the care of the matches. Allow no papers to be loose around the store and you will minimize the danger from fire to a very great extent.

During the hot spell, fly poison in saucers, sticky fly paper, etc., are frequently noticed in many cigar store windows, in an attempt to free the window from the pest. While at first sight this may appear commendable, one can not help but admit that such a display is far from attractive. A well dressed window, with a garnishing of dead flies scattered over boxes and the floor are enough to keep the customers out of the store, rather than attract them.

The remedy is simple and costs but little. In case the whole window is not enclosed, the problem can easily be solved by purchasing netting and covering the opening. The netting comes in various shades and widths and will add, rather than detract, from the appearance of the window if it is put on neatly.

It can also be used to cover chandeliers and brass work which is often soiled by the fly.

Let the other fellow have the customers who do not pay their bills.

You can get business by wishing for it if you give your wishes proper publicity and give good service.

Any dreamer knows what to do, but it takes a doer to do it. "Castles in the air can't be sold, rented or mortgaged."

Don't be a sheep and follow—be a shepherd and lead. That's the motto and marrow of sweeping ahead and keeping ahead in business.

Definition of a "Really Good Customer"

A GOOD customer is a man who buys what he wants at the same price and on the same terms as other buyers get, and who pays for what he has bought when he says he will. No customer is a good customer who is always seeking to beat down a price or to obtain an extra favor in terms. A good customer is not the man who is always seeking to claim allowances for errors or shortages that are partly or wholly fictitious, nor is he a good customer who mails his check on the twelfth day with cash discount taken out.

A good customer is not necessarily a man who buys the most goods. Such a man may be a big customer, but not necessarily a good one. What a good customer really is, is a buyer who gives and expects a square deal and no more.

Customers are human, and when a man happens to be a large buyer he is likely to be pursued and fawned upon. Quite naturally the average human being gets an inflated idea of his importance after a course of such treatment, and is likely to insist upon concessions that he is not entitled to. Thus it comes about that the smaller buyers, who expect and get no favors, oftentimes do not get even a square deal.—Carton's Magazine.

Price tickets are admitted to be invaluable aids to the success of the tobacconists' window. These may be purchased from a printer or can be neatly lettered. The latter method is by far the better if your window dresser is of an artistic bent of mind. The figures should always be plain and bold. But never make the mistake a prominent store in Philadelphia did recently when in an attractive window display, there was a card reading: "Oboid" smoking tobacco, 10 cents per can.

THE ATHLETICS AND GIANTS HAVE "SOME" TEAMS

But when it comes to being repeaters they have nothing on our _____ cigar. They've been right up front for ten years. Ask a user.

Three for a quarter.

IT'S odd the queer predicaments one gets into some times," said a small retailer to me the other day. "Not so very long ago, a man of about forty came in the store and wanted some three-for-a-quarter cigars. I carry several lines, but happened to be out of all of them. This man had only recently moved to the neighborhood and I knew his first impression of my store would be a lasting one.

"I looked around the case and at last in desperation picked up a box of Pennsylvania-made 3 for 10 cigars. It was about the only brand in the case which is not a familiar one with regular smokers. He looked at them closely and bought three.

"After he had gone I determined to steer clear of any more scrapes such as that. I hurried up my orders on the three-for-a-quarter's and have never been out of them since. I reckoned that the new customer would try another brand when he came again, if he did at all.

"Imagine my surprise when he pulled in the next night with the exclamation, 'That's a pretty nifty smoke. Let me have a half dollar's worth.'

"He kept on asking for that cigar until I determined to put a stop to it. I felt like a crook and yet I didn't see how I could have backed out after the first purchase.

"When he came in the next evening and asked for the cigar, I looked at him, shook my head and said: 'I'm very sorry, but I am not carrying those cigars any longer. The man who was supplying me, tried selling methods on me which I wouldn't stand for and we had a disagreement.'

"That man smokes a well-known three-for-a-quarter now and apparently enjoys it. Yet every little while he will say: 'If you ever get as good a cigar as that one you sold me some time ago, put me wise, will you?'

"A three-for-ten, too! Can you beat that?"

That the public at large frequently fails to grasp the true significance of a protective tariff and is always ready to squeal when it strikes its private pocketbook was illustrated recently by a letter received by Secretary of the Treasury McVeagh. This letter was written by a New York clerk, who was "fined" 60 cents by the Treasury Department for duty on a tobacco pouch and a few ounces of tobacco received by mail from abroad. The clerk demanded the return of the 60 cents because he was called an "importer" in the receipt which was given him by the Government.

"I have the honor to inform you," he wrote, "that I am no kind of a porter, neither ex, imp, hall or car porter, but a clerk employed by a New York stock exchange firm and as a consequence I object to having had to pay the fine." Will Uncle Sam give up the money? He will NOT.

Since the terrible holocaust in the Triangle Shirtwaist Factory several years ago, the cause of which fire was attributed to a lighted cigarette being thrown into some debris, the fire inspectors of Manhattan and Brooklyn have made life miserable for many of the foreign operatives who live perpetually with a cigarette in their lips.

A few days ago in a factory on Seventeenth street in New York, a fire inspector discovered a 55-year-old Polak calmly smoking in a room which was littered with all sorts of clippings and combustible material, and the foreigner absolutely refused to stop when the inspector ordered him to do so. The result was an arrest and three days' imprisonment in lieu of a $10 fine.

Mayor Harrison's order in Chicago prohibiting the shaking of dice at all cigar counters where women are employed as clerks, was carried out and customers are better satisfied. It is said, women cigar clerks encourage reckless expenditure by men anxious to appear as "good sports" in the eyes of the young woman, since hotels and other places employing female clerks see to it that as attractive a person as possible be secured.

"Jack" Merriam and Charles Snyder, who owns the Cadillac Hotel cigar stand, told me an amusing bit of inside information the other night, while dining at Rector's.

It seems that they were dining out at a prominent roadhouse just a few miles from one of the leading Middle West cities, as the guest of the superintendent of the electric light and street railway system of the town. Suddenly Mr. Merriam looked at his watch and recalled that he had an engagement at his hotel with a very particular customer at eleven o'clock. It was then twelve minutes of that hour and the streets were sure to be thronged with cars taking the theatre crowds home. Outside stood the big eighty-horsepower auto which had brought them to the dinner.

Mr. Superintendent grasped the situation and saw that the whole evening's pleasure was threatened. He walked to the telephone, called up the main power house, and said to the foreman: "Mike, cut off all the power from the cars of the city at once, and keep it off till I call you again."

The party jumped into the big auto, the high speed clutch was thrown in and they made a record-breaking trip back to the hotel; covering the nine miles in about as many minutes.

As they flashed by the stalled cars all along the route which enabled them to get a clear right of way, they knew that the straphangers were cursing the railway management, but the straphangers did not know that they were held up because "Jack" Merriam had a late appointment to sell some "Bull Dogs," which order he promptly and safely gathered in.

To our way of thinking, one of the most interesting developments of the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company in this country has been the actions of James J. B. Duke, Organizer. B. Duke, late president of the American-Goliath, and now head of the British-American Tobacco Company. Mr. Duke is essentially an American product, and an organizing genius. When he had exhibited his talents for organizing and combining in the United States to a degree which was considered impossible by the skeptical, he is reported by some to have lost interest in the great corporation because there were no more fields to conquer, and reports came out regularly that he contemplated retiring from business completely.

When the American Tobacco Company was dismembered here and the British Company cut loose by court action, Mr. Duke saw the opening he wanted and moved to London to become the president of the British Company.

He has been there only a short time now, but our British friends are gasping at his tremendous views, not only of the tobacco business, but of business in general.

Last week they added ten million dollars of new capital to the twenty-two million they already had, and on which 52 per cent, was earned last year. This means that the Duke brain is organizing again, and the result is sure to be interesting.

Solution of the difficulties arising from the Internal Revenue Commissioner's ruling last fall that cigar manufacturers must be taxed on all "smokers," appears to be found in the bill of Congressman Peters, which has just been passed in the Lower House. This bill is now before the Senate Committee, and unless its advocates have been deceived it is likely to pass in the shape it was approved by the House.

Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh has practically given approval to the Peters bill, although he has been holding out a clause which would confine the consumption of "free smokers" to the factory premises, and not permit cigarmakers to take them home. Opponents of MacVeagh's idea point out that it would be impossible to enforce this clause, since to do so would require a constant espionage of every employe as he left the factory at the end of each day's work.

The custom of giving free smokes has been in existence as long as the cigar industry itself, and we believe that any move to curtail it would be a serious mistake on the part of the Government. The contention that the revenues would be reduced by the giving of twenty-one free smokers a week for each worker is ridiculous. These smokers have always been given untaxed to the employes, and the Government has never derived any revenue from them, so that a continuance of this custom would assuredly not affect the volume of tax returns.

It is a rather late day for the Government to try to curtail this privilege. During the Civil War, and later during the Spanish-American War, when Uncle Sam needed every cent of revenue he could collect, the custom of giving free smokers was recognized and no effort made to forbid it. It is to be hoped that the Peters bill will be speedily passed and put in effect, thereby relieving the makers and manufacturers of the present unsettled and unsatisfactory conditions.

What the "World" Thinks

¶ A humane society in Wisconsin intends to shortly enter the cigar manufacturing field. Wonder if their object is to rescue the poor deluded smoker from the viles of some of the baneful "punks" now passing as cigars.

¶ A North Dakota dispatch states that farmers in that State are raising alfalfa, which is being shipped to tobacco manufacturing concerns in Virginia, where it is mixed with both chewing and smoking tobacco. Wonder what the consumers would say to that. Seems to us they would prefer to buy their alfalfa at the feed store by the bale, rather than securing it in small packages at the cigar stands.

¶ The news that tobacco growers near Suffield, Connecticut, are willing to swear that the rain of one day caused their plants to grow five inches over night, leads us to think that there are more "nature fakers" eligible for the Ananias Club than "Teddy" ever dreamed of.

¶ Joseph Killen, 15, messenger boy, and erstwhile millionaire on other peoples' money, when asked whether he was sorry he took the money and checks belonging to the United, said, "What I am most sorry about is that I didn't have more time to spend the money." What he needed most was a protracted session in the woodshed, which would possibly have brought him to a proper state of penitence.

New Cigarette-Making Machine by American

Is Being Manufactured in Switzerland and Is Said to Materially Lessen the Cost of Production

A NEW cigarette-making machine, invented by an American and constructed at Rorschach, Switzerland, is described by Consul D. I. Murphy, of St. Gall. It is said to surpass all similar machines in quickness of operation and quality of fill, and promises to materially lessen the cost of cigarette production. Because of its simple construction it can be put on the market at a price lower in proportion to the amount and quality of its output than other machines now in use.

Fitted with a simple filling device it is now turning out well-made cigarettes at the rate of 150 per minute, and with duplex and multiplex fillers it may be made to turn out 300 or 600 per minute. The high speed is obtained largely by the method of handling the cigarette paper, which appears to be on an entirely new principle. The paper is folded and closed mechanically around a rod, making a continuous tube of uniform diameter. While in forward motion on the rod the paper tube is cut into lengths for individual cigarettes. These lengths are then pushed along by the general forward movement of the entire tube. At the end of the rod each length is carried by a pair of friction wheels onto the filling tube, which is really a continuation of the rod.

The paper tube is pushed over this filling tube until in position for closing the end of the paper, as is customary in Manila and some other places, which is done by another small friction wheel and a revolving plate. The tobacco is then pushed from the compressing chamber into the filling tube, being held in check within the tube by a device which automatically controls the fill and may be adjusted to give any desired quantity. When the tobacco core has the right consistency the end check is released and the tobacco moves out of the filling tube into the paper wrapper which it carries with it.

The method of handling the paper prevents its displacement and permits the operation of the machine without fear of the wrappers being blown away by drafts of air. The machine is of strong and apparently simple construction, the various parts being easily and cheaply replaced. In case the compressing chamber becomes blocked or choked while the machine is running at full speed no damage ensues from the sudden stopping of the mechanism.

Porto Rican Tobacco Company Meeting

Stockholders Will Be Asked to Vote on Proposed New By-Law Also on Increase in Capitalization

The Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company has issued a notice of the annual meeting to be held in Jersey City on August 1st, for the election of directors and other business which may come before the meeting. Stockholders will be asked to vote on a proposed by-law providing for participation by certain officers of the company in profits, if any, earned by the company in excess of profits earned during the year 1910 on the brands and business now owned by the company, not exceeding in the aggregate 10 per cent. of such excess.

The directors also have a proposition to increase their capital stock from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 at the meeting. The company now operates five different factories in Porto Rico. They are said to have so far outgrown their capitalization that something must be done.

Officials of the International Cigarmakers' Union on Tuesday signed, before the Senate Committee, in favor of the new Peters "Free Smoker" bill. Sol Southheimer, of New Haven, Conn., and William McCabe, of Albany, N. Y., were heard. Commissioner Cabell, of the Internal Revenue Bureau, will be asked to appear before the Committee.

Elliot, Ottenheimer & Elliot Occupy New Plant

THE cigar manufacturing firm of Elliot, Ottenheimer & Elliot, of Baltimore, are now occupying their new factory at 2113-15-17 East Oliver street. The new establishment is one of the most up-to-date buildings South of Mason and Dixon's line and should, with its increased facilities, assist materially in the prompt manufacture and shipment of goods.

The new plant is of the most modern construction, well ventilated and lighted, and is in a convenient locality. The first floor is occupied by the offices and sample room. The second floor is occupied in manufacturing. The third floor is used for packing and for storage purposes, with additional space which can be used as the business expands.

The humidor, which is in the basement, is an enormous one having a capacity of 1,000,000 cigars. The curing rooms are also in the basement.

Elliot, Ottenheimer & Elliot are to be congratulated on their new home and their brands should soon be more widely known than ever. They manufacture the "Schuman" and "Tano," ten-cent brands, and "Carbellos," "Cardenas" and "Henry W. Longfellow" their nickel leaders.

Austrian Tobacco Monopoly

The number of employees of the Austrian Tobacco Monopoly in 1910 was 40,339, less than 10 per cent. of whom were under 20 years old. The average wage was $143 per annum. In 1890 there were 33,296 employees receiving an average wage of $70. The low wages are explained by the fact that many factories employing large numbers of laborers are situated in the country districts, in small towns where wages are very low, and to the fact that nearly six-sevenths of the employees are women. Of the total number of employees in 1910, 38,525 worked in factories and the balance in offices and stores.

Pennsylvania Produces Eighth of Manufactures

In regard to the hours of employment in the tobacco trade of Pennsylvania more than 90 per cent. work more than 48 hours per week. This is 25 per cent. greater than the record of either New York or Ohio, of which States only 66 per cent. work longer than 48 hours per week. The figures for Pennsylvania follow: 48 hours per week and under, 3,954; between 48 hours and 54 hours, 3,497; 54 hours exactly, 2,614; between 54 hours and 60 hours, 18,295; 60 hours exactly, 4,721; between 60 and 72 hours, 102; 72 hours exactly, 5; over 72 hours, no wage-earners.

Out of 2,432 tobacco manufacturing establishments 832 employed no wage-earners, as compared with 1,096 factories in New York and 352 in Ohio. Pennsylvania has the largest number of wage-earners employed in the tobacco industry of any State in the Union, but New York has the largest factories.

The tobacco trade is more widely distributed in Pennsylvania than in either New York or Ohio. In Pennsylvania 127 factories, or five per cent. of the total number of factories, employed more than half of the total wage-earners employed in the State, whereas in New York 56 factories employed more than half of the wage-earners, or less than one per cent. of the factories; in Ohio 32 factories, or less than three per cent. of the factories, employed more than one-half of the wage-earners engaged in the tobacco industry of the State.

One of the State's leading cigar manufacturing centres is Lancaster, where 1,453 wage-earners are employed, and the annual production is valued at $1,970,000.

Miles E. Stricker

We are pleased to give space in this issue to the photograph of Miles E. Stricker, of Grand Forks, N. D. Most people in the Northwest know him, but for the benefit of those who do not we will say he has represented the wholesale house of Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, at Grand Forks, for ten years.

Mr. Stricker, it is said, heads the list of topnotch cigar salesmen on the staff of the company, which has its headquarters in Duluth and branch houses in ten other cities. In summing up his success as a salesman Mr. Stricker said: "A cigar is the hardest thing in the world to sell the first time; after that it is the easiest." He is a member of the Elks and prominent in Shrine circles, but is best known as a charter member of the Lodge of Good Fellows.

Walter E. James, the hustling representative of Cuesta, Rey & Co., is now on an extended trip through the Middle West pushing this concern's brands. While in Toledo, Ohio, he assisted Mr. Sherwood, of the Walding, Kinnan & Marvin Co., local wholesalers for the Cuesta, Rey & Co., products.

A. J. Myers, of Salvador Sanchez y Ca., is attending the Elks convention at Portland, Oregon, and incidentally looking after the interests of the "Dulce" cigar on the Pacific Coast.

E. H. Briody, of the S. R. Moss Cigar Co., of Lancaster, Pa., has been doing some very successful work through Indianapolis, pushing "Cubalettes," the new 5-cent straight size of the Moss Company. Mr. Briody is also assisting in a campaign in Louisville on the "Cubalettes" and the "Flor de Moss."

Rothenberg & Schloss, of Kansas City, have added to their sales force John H. Campbell, formerly with the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Co., and prior to that with Scott & Dillon. Mr. Campbell succeeds Fred Burns as city salesman for the firm.

Walter E. Parker, well known throughout the Middle West as general specialty man for McCord, Brady & Co., of Omaha, Nebraska, has accepted a position as travelling salesman for the Sloan Cigar Co., of Kansas City. Mr. Parker will cover the Nebraska and Black Hills territory, which was formerly covered by Mr. Hershberger, late of this firm.

Ed Sachs, formerly with Balbin Bros., who a short time ago went to Los Angeles to recuperate, expects shortly to leave for Carlsbad, Austria, where he will remain for some time, after which he will go to Berlin to visit some of his relatives.

John Scott, formerly with Blakeslee-Snyder Co., of Buffalo, has become salesman for the Haas Tobacco Company, of that city. He will work only on high-grade cigars.

B. F. Alexander, the genial representative of the Partagas factory, of Havana, was a recent visitor in Louisville. This was Mr. Alexander's first trip to that city during a long connection with that establishment. During his stay there he called upon the Humler & Nolan Co., who are probably the largest dealers in this brand in Louisville and vicinity.

Dave Albert, who has been a hustling salesman with Skinner & Knecht, of Los Angeles, for more than three and a half years, has severed his connection with that firm and purchased an interest in the factory of the Valrance & Woodworth Co. Dave says that he will continue to work the same territory he has covered for the past five years.

George J. Yocum, the Western representative of Yocum Bros., of Reading, Pa., is now busily engaged in pushing that firm's products on the Pacific Coast. He recently placed his brands with the H. Bercovich Co., of Los Angeles, and will stay in that city for several months.

James Birdsall, for some time a representative of Berriman Bros., of Tampa, Fla., who opened a retail establishment over a year ago in Los Angeles, leased his store at that time for a term of five years. Mr. Birdsall featured chiefly his private brands. At a recent meeting of his creditors his liabilities were placed at $7,000 and his assets at $1,000.

I. J. Mittelberger, the genial Cleveland representative of the Neumann & Mayer Company, of Philadelphia, is making a trip through the Middle West with Leo W. Mayer of the Quaker City firm. From all reports the "Bella Mundo" is more popular in that section than ever before.

J. C. McCool, of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, has been given charge of the Wyoming, Idaho and Oregon territory in addition to Utah. Mac is a hustler and should make things hum in his new districts.

B. F. Alexander, the popular representative of Cifuentes, Fernandez & Company, of Havana, has been touring the Middle West with the clear Havana line of his firm. This is a much desired smoke in clubs along his route and he placed a large order with the Queen City Club of Cincinnati during his last trip.

Leo Rosenthal, the Chicago representative for A. S. Valentine & Son, of Philadelphia, was a recent visitor at the Quaker City factory. While in Philadelphia Mr. Rosenthal was entertained by Mr. Roy Valentine of the firm.

Retailers in Meeting Roundly Condemn Taft's Attitude

Commend Senator Cummins for Efforts in Behalf of Bill— Are in Favor of Plank in Democratic Platform Pertaining to Tobacco Interests

THE regular meeting of the Manhattan Independent Retail Tobacconists was held at Terrace Gardens last Friday, July 25th. The meeting was fairly well attended and some interesting discussions were listened to by the members.

In the course of the meeting the association passed resolutions which stated plainly their opinion regarding the present National administration in its attitude toward the tobacco trade.

The resolutions were as follows:

Resolved, That we commend Senator Cummins for his efforts in introducing and supporting the bill known as the Cummins bill in the United States Senate.

Resolved, That we urge Congress to pass the Cummins bill and thus afford the independent tobacco interests a chance to have their grievances passed upon by the Supreme Court of the United States, and have this contention of the tobacco question settled once and for all for the benefit of the retail tobacco interests throughout the country; and furthermore, have our highest Court determine whether an illegal tobacco combine exists today or not under the existing decisions of our Courts.

Resolved, That we appreciate the efforts of Theodore Roosevelt and others for their determined stand in opposition to the present form of illegal combination and for their assailing of the unfair business conditions that have existed in the tobacco trade, as promoted and maintained by the so-called trust.

Resolved, That we condemn President Taft for the stand he has taken in relation to the disposition of the tobacco litigation, and we call upon all independent dealers to thoroughly inform themselves as to his attitude and act for their interests accordingly.

We commend the Democratic party for its plank in relation to trusts and particularly that part of the platform that refers to tobacco interests, but before taking any positive action to endorse the same we will await the action of the House of Representatives, as to their disposal of the above mentioned Cummins bill, and thus judge said party by their acts and not their words.

S. H. Furgatch, of S. H. Furgatch & Co., has returned from a vacation spent in the Catskill Mountains. A. Korn, a representative of above-mentioned firm, arrived in the city a few days ago, after a trip through the Central West. He is now taking a long vacation, which accounts for the splendid business, which he has done on this last tour.

Merriam's Put Out "Fra" in New Packing

One of the latest packings appearing on the market has just been introduced by John W. Merriam & Company. It is a new arrangement of their "Fra" cigars. They come in tin cans, the idea being to keep them in good condition and to put them before the smoker as fresh as possible. To further insure this, each cigar is packed in separate paper wrappings.

This new packing has taken an immediate hold on the market and should be a large seller. Each can contains a coupon, a number of which entitles the holder to secure a leather cigar case or a King Lud tapestry.

Presidential Aspirants on Cigar Bands

In line with their policy to have only the latest and best in the way of cigar labels and bands, Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice, the lithographic house, have just issued an artistic set of campaign bundle bands.

The bands show reproductions of the leading Presidential candidates, and are most attractive, to say the least. Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice will willingly submit samples to anyone in the trade upon request to their office, Morton and Greenwich streets.

Enlarged "Peter Schuyler" Factory

G. W. Van Slyke & Horton, who manufacture the long established "Peter Schuyler" cigars, have just completed and occupied a big addition to their factory at Kingston, N. Y., which gives them one of the largest factories in that section. The factory is five stories high, of brick, slow burning mill construction, 160 feet long and 60 feet wide, and they can seat comfortably nearly 1000 cigarmakers. They specialize on one brand, "Peter Schuylers," at ten cents, and "Peter Schuyler Briefs," at five cents.

The company's main offices and local distributing station is at 471 Broadway, Albany, but their goods are in big demand all over New York State and New England.

C. J. Duddleston, who represents the house in the Middle West, with headquarters in Indianapolis, has been East during the past week, consulting with his chiefs preparatory to a fall campaign.

The Van Slyke & Gordon trade-mark of the man's head with the phrase "Get Back of a 'Peter Schuyler' 10-cent Cigar," is well blazoned on signboards and store fronts all through upper New York State.

Mr. C. Lopez, of Arguelles Lopez & Bro., is spending his vacation on his farm in Sparta, New Jersey.

The Garrison-Tichenor Company, of Peekskill, New York, one of the newest jobbing houses to enter the field in that district, expects to cover the territory throughout the Hudson River Valley. They are handling two nickel brands, and two leading Havana lines. They will do an exclusive jobbing business. Both members of the firm are well known in that territory.

H. M. Duys, of H. Duys & Co., the large importing house of Sumatra tobacco, is again home from a trip to Amsterdam, where he attended a number of the inscriptions for his house. Mr. Duys was highly pleased with the leaf which he secured for the firm, stating that it is some of the best this house has secured in years. H. Duys & Co. is possibly the largest Sumatra house in the country, and this year has secured thousands of bales for its United States and Canadian customers.

Tremendous Demand for the "La Famosa"

E. Kleiner & Co. are building a new factory to meet the demand on their leading brand, "La Famosa," which has been oversold for the past few months. This cigar is the brand which is getting most special attention, and it is proving itself the best seller that the house ever turned out. Wherever it has been placed it has given the highest satisfaction to the trade and the smoking public. It is a 5-cent cigar of extremely high quality, wrapped with high-grade Sumatra, and the filler is a choice blend that is smooth and mild, at the same time aromatic.

Lifting of Quarantine Restores Normal Conditions

TAMPA, July 27. LIFTING of the quarantine against Cuba, which for a few days threatened to cause the suspension of a number of the larger factories which has permitted their stocks of tobacco to run low, soon restored normal conditions here and there have been no interruptions in the smooth progress of the local industry since that time. Reports are uniformly gratifying, and at every office there is much the same story of good orders and additions to the working force.

Shipments have been close to 6,000,000 a week for the last two weeks. Importations have been unusually heavy.

Tampa's remarkable showing of an increase of 49.7 per cent. in maritime tonnage for the past fiscal year over the year previous has caused much good feeling here. The port is comparatively a new one and a fact of striking import is conveyed in the statement that Jacksonville's increase for the same period was only 1.5 per cent., while the value of Tampa's imports and exports for the year was three times that shown by Jacksonville.

The Tampa Box Company, which suffered a loss by fire of its sawmill plant, estimated at $45,000 in value, has been enabled to continue operations because of the large stock of material which had been laid in advance of the fire. A new milling plant will be built at once. The company carried insurance of $27,000 on the portion of the plant which was destroyed.

Val. M. Antuono is again having trouble with an imitator of his famous "C. H. S." brand. Casan, a Cuban, has prepared to put on sale cigars under that name, claiming that the letters stand for "Casan's Havana Smoker." He has been notified that an injunction will be asked for if he offers the goods for sale and, as Mr. Antuono's right to the letters has been maintained by the courts on several occasions, it is believed Casan will heed the warning.

Cuesta, Rey & Co. report that they are closely watching results in the use of the new electrical invention for destroying all germs or traces of insect life in cigars. A thorough test is being made of the machine at this factory and, if the results are as claimed by the inventors, the "Truly Spanish House" will apply the treatment to its entire output. Other manufacturers are watching the Cuesta-Rey test with marked interest.

F. C. Lozano, after a few days in Tampa, has returned to New York. H. S. Foley, local manager of this factory, spent two weeks in New York, returning with Mr. Lozano. The Lozano factory is to be enlarged by the building of an extensive addition.

E. C. Phillips, office manager for Corral, Wodiska & Co., has returned from a thirty-day trip in the West, a snowstorm on Pike's Peak July 4, being among the incidents of his tour.

J. M. Diaz, of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, was a recent visitor, coming from Havana, spending one day here and leaving for New York.

A. Santalla & Co. are shipping the first installment of an order for several hundred thousand "Optimos," coming from Alaska. This house is working a big force.

Francis Bolano came back from Chicago full of enthusiasm about the business prospects, and went at once to Havana for a week.

José Lovera has been in Cuba some time and reports at his factory are of the most encouraging sort.

Samuel L. Davis & Co. have been adding to their force every week and think it will be necessary to make another addition in a few days.

C. Menendez, local manager for Tornay, Fernandez & Co., has gone to St. Louis and will go thence to Omaha, Portland and other cities of the Northwest. M. Sachs, one of the salesmen for the house, accompanies Mr. Menendez.

Sello J. Blumenthal, of San Francisco, and Sam Kirshner, of Los Angeles, were visitors this week. They are connected with the M. A. Gunst interests on the Coast. After being entertained here by Lawrence Gunst, they left for Havana to study conditions there.

Balbin Brothers report some very fine orders from Montana.

Eli Witt, the distributor in this territory of some of the leading Tampa brands, has found it necessary to seek larger quarters for the wholesale branch of his business. He will occupy a building on Water street, in the jobbing district.

J. J. French is out on his first trip for his new firm, with a line of samples that has elicited much praise. Mr. French will go westward.

Harold McFall, of the Esberg-Gunst Company, is enjoying a vacation at Northern seaside resorts.

Tampa's favorable showing in the hot weather reports has been noted with pleasure by cigar men who have visited the city. While there have been many deaths from the heat in Northern cities, not one case of prostration has been reported here and, with an occasional exception, the days are pleasant and the nights comfortably cool.

PERFECTO.

PHILADELPHIA.

Frishmuth Bros. & Co. Deny Rumor of Merger

"There is Absolutely Not a Word of Truth in This, and We Ask You to Deny It", Says J. C. Whitney Frishmuth, Jr.

THE reported merger of the Frishmuth Brothers Co., Incorporated, Seventeenth street and Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia, the largest independent manufacturer of fine cut smoking tobacco in the United States, with the American Tobacco Company, existed only in the mind of some newspaper reporter in New York.

While there was prompt and emphatic denial at the office of the Frishmuth Company, there seemed to be some doubt expressed as to whether such negotiations had really come to a close, and in order to give the trade the positive assurance that there was really no foundation for such a rumor a WORLD reporter called at the office of the company recently, and J. C. Whitney Frishmuth, Jr., treasurer, stated "there is absolutely not a word of truth in this, and we ask you to deny it at once."

This statement, coming as it does from such a reliable source, should set at rest all doubts concerning any change in the policy or personnel of the firm.

Bobrow Brothers to Enlarge Quarters

Owing to the increased demand for the "Bold" cigar, Bobrow Bros. have under consideration plans for enlarging their building, so as to employ more cigarmakers. They have often been compelled of late to work overtime in an endeavor to keep their output large enough to fill incoming orders. L. M. Walters, after a trip through Maryland and Delaware, where he found the "Bold" as popular as ever, is again on the road.

Chas. W. Limroth Has Fine Establishment

ON a recent trip to Camden, a reporter was shown through the extensive establishment of Charles W. Limroth, at 1119 Broadway. Mr. Limroth carries a large stock of all kinds of tobacco goods and does a fine wholesale business. His salesmen cover nearly all of New Jersey and parts of adjacent States. He is fully equipped to handle a still larger business.

His receiving, shipping and sales rooms are models of convenience, and his garage contains several large delivery cars. The proprietor is a genial merchant, intensely interested in his work, the kind of man whom it is a pleasure to meet.

C. L. Martin Company Acquire Branch Store

THE C. L. Martin Co., which has been located at 1303 Columbia avenue for about two and one-half years, recently took over the stand at 1728 North Broad street, in the North Broad Grand Opera House, formerly operated by Cope Brothers, and will run it in the future. Edgar N. Floyd is manager of the branch store.

This concern, a comparatively new one, is making good at both locations, and with their progressive methods and high-grade line of goods deserve their success. Their brands include the "Girard," Antonio Roig & Langsdorf; "Jose Vila," Berriman Bros; "As You Like It," Godfrey Mahn; "Counsellor," Allen R. Cressman's Sons; "Havana Ribbon," Bayuk Bros.; "Cinco," Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., and their own nickel cigars, "Martin's Special" and "Martin's Havana."

"Lancer" Cigar Coming Up Strong

THEOBALD & OPPENHEIMER have been making an aggressive drive throughout Pennsylvania on the "Lancer" cigar, and judging by the incoming mail, their efforts were not in vain. L. M. Moore, their Pennsylvania representative, has been visiting factory headquarters after his strenuous campaign.

J. M. Friedman was another caller at the local office. He represents the Bissinger Bros. Cigar Co., of Pittsburgh, who distribute the Theobald & Oppenheimer brands in that region.

George H. Valentine, who was suddenly taken ill in Atlantic City several weeks ago, is reported to be much improved. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Sales on "Havana Ribbon" Mount Rapidly

July sales on "Havana Ribbons" were a pleasing surprise to Bayuk Brothers Company, as the final figures were considerably ahead of the expected increase.

Dave S. Achenbach has just completed a trip through New York State and found the "Ribbons" duplicating to the entire satisfaction of the jobbers there.

Dearstyn Brothers, who control the brand for the Albany territory, L. W. Killeen, who has jurisdiction at Schenectady, and J. P. Mericle, distributor at Rochester, have recently increased their regular shipments in order to take care of the growing demand.

Quaker City Items

Leopold C. Glass has been appointed receiver of the Marie Garden Cigar Company, which is reported to be in financial difficulties. His bond was fixed at $2000.

The Atherholt store on South Broad street has been featuring the "Stratford" cigar of the El Draco Manufacturing Company and is now showing an attractive window trim on this brand.

H. N. Goldsmith & Co. report an increased demand for the "Jose Vila." This has a large sale around town and recently made a great hit with the patrons of the cafe and roof-garden of the Hotel Bingham.

The Speed S. Goodloe Company, of 1203 Cuthbert street, which opened up for business at that address several weeks ago, was granted its charter at Harrisburg, which places the capital of the concern at $20,000.

Duncan & Moorehead, the large jobbing house, have taken on two new Porto Rican cigars, the "Bella Sola" and "Orpheus." Mr. Moorehead expects to leave this Friday for Maine, where he will take a three weeks' vacation.

Jeitles & Blumenthal are having a healthy demand for their "Flor de Jeitles," "Tungsten," "Royal Peer" and "Masterpiece" cigars. Their factories are kept busy filling incoming orders and are operating full forces on full time.

Daniel Ostrow, hustling reailer of Seventh and Chestnut streets, is showing an attractive window display on the Rothschild cigar of Sanchez y Haya. Mr. Ostrow has his window changed weekly and is doing an exceedingly good trade since taking hold of this new store.

Ike Steiner, of William Steiner, Sons & Co., New York lithographers, called on the trade in Philadelphia last week and was warmly greeted by his many friends. Needless to say he booked some business worth while. Mr. Steiner is particularly enthusiastic about the German Process Cigar Bands which his firm has been featuring.

The retail trade of Philadelphia is in as prosperous a condition as can generally be expected at this time of the year. Of course, some retailers complain of poor business, as they always do. But the progressive men of the trade make few complaints. Along Germantown avenue such retailers as Dear, Andrews, Reed, Sowden and Coupe evidently are busy. Is it a strange coincidence that they are subscribers of THE TOBACCO WORLD? If not on account of that fact, is it because the men who do the best business know the value of the WORLD?

Cigar Dealer and Barber Charged With Arson

William Hemmerle, a cigar dealer, and Gustave A. Maraeski, a barber, who occupy the premises at the north-west corner of Fifth street and Girard avenue, were arrested several weeks ago accused of arson on charges brought by Assistant Fire Marshal Glover.

Their hearing was held in City Hall, at which time witnesses were produced to show that Hemmerle and Maraeski were in a conspiracy to burn down the building they occupied. The alleged material used to start the fire was shown. They were held without bail on the charge of arson.

One of the neatest and most up-to-date cigar stores in the North-east is at 4304 Frankford avenue. Arthur F. Smith, the proprietor, is doing a constantly increasing wholesale and retail business there, as well as at his old stand, 4604 Frankford avenue.

A. Runge & Co., at their retail stores on Delaware avenue, near the Market and Chestnut Street Ferries, are doing a large summer business; in fact, on account of their location, the best of the year. And three neater stores it would be hard to find.

The LaFond Cigar Co. New Detroit Distributor

LAST week there was opened in Detroit a jobbing house to be known as the LaFond Cigar Co., with offices and salesrooms at 162 Jefferson avenue. The personnel of the new concern is Charles F. LaFond, M. A. LaFond and F. L. Snowhook. Mr. Snowhook assumes the office of vice-president and will be the general representative of the company.

They announce that they will carry only the finest goods of imported and domestic cigars and will operate the establishment in accordance with the policies of the largest houses in the country.

In clear Havana lines the LaFond Cigar Co will handle the "Pinzon," M. Perez & Co.; "Flor de Malco," Armada Cigar Co., and in broadleaf the "Cadillaqua," Lilies Cigar Co. Their leading nickel brands are: "Malco Perfecto," Gans Bros., and "Club," Graham Ernst Co.

The large retail output of this progressive firm puts them in the position to develop a very substantial jobbing business in time. They will add to their brands as fast as occasion demands.

Perego & Moore Move to New Location

The Perego & Moore Cigar Co., of St. Joseph, Mo., have removed to 714 Francis street, that city, where they will hereafter conduct a wholesale business exclusively. Ed. J. Earl is manager of the concern.

The Perego & Moore Company changed their place of business because the new location is more convenient to their customers and has more facilities for the conduct of the business.

Oppenheimer Cigar Co. Opens Chicago Office

Samuel Oppenheimer, of the Oppenheimer Cigar Co., which does an extensive jobbing business in Detroit, has opened an office in Chicago to supply the three retail stores of the firm located there. This concern also owns and operates twelve stores in Toledo, Ohio, one in South Bend, Indiana, one in Battle Creek, Mich., one in Bay City, Mich., and another in Saginaw. These stores are well-known throughout the West for the large stock carried and the well-chosen assortment of goods.

New Distributor for "Havana Ribbon"

Bayuk Brothers Company, of Philadelphia, recently placed the "Havana Ribbon" with the Smith Brothers Company, Ltd., of New Orleans, La., who intend making this brand one of their leaders. This fact should insure a large distribution in the Louisiana territory, as the Smith Brothers Company has all the facilities to handle the brand successfully and are widely known for their aggressive and up-to-date methods.

Rosenthal Bros. & Bendetson, the prominent Boston wholesale house, has taken on a new nickel cigar, the "Velvo." This cigar is manufactured by the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Co., of Detroit. They expect shortly to make a drive on this product in their territory.

Moreland Bros. & Crane Reorganized

By a reorganization which took effect recently, Moreland Brothers & Crane, one of the old business houses of Adrian, Mich., dealing as wholesalers in tobaccos, cigars and confectionery, was changed in its personnel. This house, which was formed in 1881, was originally a partnership between R. S. Moreland, J. H. Moreland and E. W. Crane. As J. H. Moreland died several years ago, his interest was taken up by the remaining partners.

The recent death of E. W. Crane made it necessary to again change the organization of the firm. The share belonging to the Crane estate is retired by the other partners and Robert T. Moreland becomes a partner. The new partnership is composed of the following men: Robert S. Moreland, Robert T. Moreland, Lewis S. Wilcox, Oscar M. Baker, Thomas R. Hall, Chas. L. Robertson and James E. Barnes.

Shortage on Manilas in Far West

There is no question that the Manila cigar is coming into its own on the Pacific Coast. In many of the larger towns in the West jobbers report a shortage. C. W. Scheuch, manager of the cigar department of Schwabacher Bros. & Co., of San Francisco, had this to say:

"We are continually short of Manila cigars. There is no question that they are selling like wildfire in this territory. We cannot obtain enough of them to meet the demand without solicitation, to say nothing of enabling us to have our salesmen get out and work up new business. I predict an enormous demand in good Manila cigars. Poor goods must be tabooed. The public will not use such cigars.

"Manila manufacturers are beginning to realize that the United States smoker wants a presentable, as well as a smokeable cigar, and we are not receiving the trash we used to. If they keep up the standard which has prevailed for the past six months, it will, I believe, seriously affect the sale of the cheaper domestic goods."

Horn & Co. Add to their Branches

Horn & Co., of San Francisco, who are leading wholesalers, have added to their chain of branches in the country. Their latest venture is at Bakersfield, which has been separately incorporated with a capital stock of $15,000, by B. H. Pendleton, T. J. Brooks and J. F. Marks.

It has only been a little more than a month ago that Horn & Co. opened up two branches in California, one at San Jose and another at Hanford, which are also to be run as separate corporations.

Will Distribute "El Dallo" in Rochester

Arthur Bettner, of 12-17 South avenue, Rochester, N. Y., has taken on the distribution of the "El Dallo" cigar of Wertheimer Bros., of Baltimore, and will soon push a heavy campaign on this brand in that territory. With the attractive packing and intrinsic quality of the cigar, he feels he has a strong asset for this work.

Jobbing Trade Items From All Parts of the Country

Frank Niles, president of the Niles & Moser Cigar Co., of Kansas City, has gone for a short trip to Europe.

The Kingsbaker Cigar Co., the progressive Kansas City concern, reports a shortage on the "Little William Penn" cigars, manufactured by Theobald, Oppenheimer & Co., of Philadelphia. They have been pushing this brand by means of aggressive salesmanship and attractive window trims throughout Kansas City, which accounts in part for the heavy demand on this smoke. Samuel Kingsbaker is now making a trip through the Southern part of Kansas pushing the Kingsbaker lines.

S. Bachman & Co., of San Francisco, the Pacific Coast agents for the "Gato" cigar and "Philip Morris" cigarettes, and distributors for Northern California, and the Northwest for "La Confession" cigars, Benito-Rovira Co., are experiencing difficulty in supplying the demand for these brands. Mr. Bachman, of the firm, recently paid his first visit in three years to the Northwest, taking in Portland, Seattle, and the larger towns in that region.

The "Reynaldo" cigar, of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, has become a staple fixture among discriminating smokers of Rochester, N. Y. This brand is handled in that territory by Jay P. Mericle, who is meeting with pronounced success in its distribution. He is jobbing it in four sizes.

The "Havana Ribbon" of Bayuk Bros. has taken a strong hold on Rochester, N. Y., smokers. J. P. Mericle, the distributor for that territory, recently disposed of 30,000 of this brand in one week, which testifies fairly well to the popularity of this smoke in that section.

On Saturday, July 13, the Wholesale Cigar Dealers' Association of Spokane held a smoker in honor of Lee Marx, who until recently was manager of the M. A. Gunst & Company branch house in that city.

The H. P. Brewster Company's establishment of Rochester, N. Y., is undergoing extensive alterations, which will make separate departments for the wholesale and retail branches of the business. This concern is the Western New York distributor for a number of high-grade brands, among them being the "Solace," Geo. Nichols & Co., and "La Mega," Garcia & Mega.

One of the coming wholesale and retail tobacco establishments in Northern Maine is the C. P. Hussey Cigar Co., at 14 Sweden street, Bangor. The cigars carried by this firm are the best foreign and domestic brands. The store has modern fixtures, with facilities for displaying merchandise in the best possible manner. Mr. Hussey, the founder of the firm, is a discerning purchaser, and is said to be the largest dealer in this kind of merchandise in his territory.

The Henry W. Peabody Co., of San Francisco, recently secured the agency for a new brand of Manilas, styled "La Princesa Filipina." M. C. Eisenschimmel, who has charge of their cigar department, reports very satisfactory progress on their "Flor de Intal" brand. Haas, Baruch & Co., of Los Angeles, are handling the "Flor de Intal" in the Southwestern part of the State.

The Crescent Cigar & Tobacco Co., of New Orleans, La., which recently took over virtually all of the jobbing business formerly conducted by G. Moroy, at Jackson avenue and Magazine street, that city, states that the concern is very well satisfied with the outlook. One of the leading salesmen of this firm, J. E. Luther W. Mott, of New York, has introduced another anti-coupon bill in the House of Representatives. This measure is similar to the one presented in the Senate by Senator Brown, of Nebraska. The act provides a penalty of not less than $5 and not more than $100 for each violation. The bill is now in the hands of the Ways and Means Committee. No action has been taken so far on the other anti-coupon bill, which is in the hands of the Finance Committee.

No More Free Lunch in Los Angeles Saloons

Dice Checks for Drinks Also Prohibited—Retail Trade Fair, Although Jobbers Find Collections Slow—Sam Foster Opens New Store

LOS ANGELES, July 23.

THE amendment to the liquor ordinance, abolishing the "Free Lunch" as a feature of saloons, was adopted by the City Councils today by a vote of 7 to 1. The action of the Councils was taken after a strong fight was made against its adoption by Attorney W. F. Haas, representing the butchers, produce men and bakers who have been selling the food to saloons for the free lunch. Haas declares that the business these people have been transacting amounts to between $500,000 and $600,000 a year, and declares also that the adoption of the ordinance would throw a number of men out of work.

Among the features of the ordinance, in addition to banishing the free lunch from saloons, are the prohibiting of the use of checks won at cigar stands in payment of drinks and the limiting of the amount of malt liquors sold at a retail store to four quarts to any one person at one time, and but one quart of vinous or spirituous liquors.

Retail dealers in Los Angeles report business only fair at present and do not expect an enormous "pick up" until September, owing to the hot weather and the considerable percentage of the smokers who are away on their vacations.

Robert Gans, of J. J. Gans Bros. Cigar Co., has just returned from a very successful trip to San Diego. He reports an enormous increase in sales on their "Lawrence Barrett" seed and Havana cigar.

M. A. Gunst Cigar Company are displaying their famous "General Arthur" at all their retail stores, which are especially attractive with special sized boxes of 12's and 25's.

The Hookstratten Cigar Stores are displaying very attractively in all their stores, their Yocum Brothers "Y. B's." An enormous increase on this brand in the last sixty days has been shown.

A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company have outgrown their old location at First and Spring streets and expect to be in their new home on Los Angeles street soon, handling wholesale cigars and tobacco exclusively. It is understood that they expect to give up their retail stores entirely.

One of the most attractive stores opened recently was that of Sam Foster, at Fifth and Main streets. Mr. Foster has been in the retail business for five years and has met with great success in his line, always carrying a complete line of all his brands required by the trade, and never sparing expense in getting up his window displays.

Klauber-Wangenheim Company have just completed one of the most successful campaigns ever worked by them on their "Post Dispatch" 5c. cigar. This brand is now selling successfully with more than five thousand retail dealers, and they have sold in the short space of time of four months, over one million and a quarter "Post Dispatch" cigars.

Mr. Hess, the genial "Optimo" boy, is now on the ground working the brand in conjunction with Klauber-Wangenheim's big selling force.

A big increase is noticeable in the sale of the "Chancellor" cigar. Here is a brand that has sold for the last fifteen years, and is perhaps today in heavier demand with the consumer than ever before. Klauber-Wangenheim are distributors of this brand also.

The Klingenstein Company is making a big advertising campaign on "Lord Lytton," their private brand, which is a 5c. cigar. They are putting out very attractive bulletins, painted in colors which are 10 feet high by 20 feet long.

George J. Yocum is at present in San Diego, assisting Mr. Weirich in placing Yocum's line. They report a good business on the "Webster," "American" and "Admiral" cigars.

The Klingenstein Company has a 10 per cent. deal on their "Arabs" and report the sales way above expectations.

Joe Goldsmith, of the M. A. Newmark Company, is working overtime now and making a strong campaign on "Don Remo." This cigar is placed in the most prominent cigar stores in the city.

Mr. Comparre, representing the "Counselor" cigar, jobbed by the Geo. W. Walker Cigar Company, has been waging an extensive advertising campaign on this brand, which is meeting with great success. He expects to remain here in the interests of "Counselor" for sixty days longer.

J. B. Bonhaus, of the Klauber-Wangenheim Company, has left for a vacation in Oak Glen Lodge, Beaumont, Cal., and will be gone about two weeks.

Ike Wentworth is still on the job boosting "Loveras," and can be found every day talking "Lovera" to the trade.

Max G. Samuels, of the Samuels Brothers' Cigar Company, on West Fourth street, leaves for Catalina Island for a four weeks' stay, and while on his vacation, expects to put a good deal of his time away by fishing.

Morris Burke leaves August 1st for San Diego, where he will devote a good deal of time in the interests of the "Post Dispatch" cigar, covering the entire territory of the Klauber-Wangenheim Company there. M. B.

WIDELY HERALDED CADILLAQUA BOOMS TRADE

Many Attractive Cigar & Tobacco Displays During Fete—Jacob Knapp, Cigar Manufacturer, Run Down by Joy Riders

DETROIT, July 24.

CADILLAQUA is here. The widely heralded fete is at its height. On land and water thrilling sports and gorgeous spectacles succeed one another in rapid succession. Upon the bosom of our beautiful river thousands and thousands of tiny craft of all description dance joyously and delightfully before, about and among their hundreds more stately craft, which, swarming with eager excursionists and sightseers, mingle with the mosquito fleet in one grand, joyous throng. Far out into the reaches of Lake St. Claire the spectacle extends. There is a quiver of excitement. The populace is awake and alert. With all the pride and consciousness of achievement the Twentieth Century welcomes the return of the heroes who laid the first courses of our success amid the suffering, privation and dangers of the wilderness.

This week Detroit acknowledges and honors the wisdom and courage, and welcomes the return of her illustrious founder, who, in the year 1701, with fifty soldiers, fifty artisans and one hundred Algonquin Indians, guided to this site by the evening star, disembarked on the banks of the beautiful stream from his birch canoes and at once proceeded to the erection of the village to be known as Fort Pontchartrain du detroit (the strait), from its location on the strait between Lake St. Claire and Lake Erie. Later the name Pontchartrain was dropped in referring to the place and the word Detroit was allowed to remain as the name of the post.

The village enclosure, prepared by Cadillac in 1701 for the protection of his colony, covered a square "arpent" of land. That is, the original village was in the form of a square one hundred and ninety-two feet and nine inches on each side. An humble beginning for a proud city that now numbers more than a half million and that yesterday disclosed to the astonished eyes of her founder an automobile parade (to say nothing of other marvels) that represented a valuation in cars somewhat in the neighborhood of twenty million dollars.

For many months the best efforts of Detroit's leading citizens have been directed toward the success of this undertaking. Our gates will be thronged this week with strangers numbering perhaps fully two hundred thousand. But it is not the commercial spirit that dominates this event. We are prosperous; we are happy and contented and we wish the world to share that feeling with us. This week is the reincarnation of the spirit of chivalry, romance and adventure that moved the brave Gascon and his intrepid followers through the thousand miles of wilderness to the gateway of a glorious domain.

It is hoped to make this fete an annual event and thereby perpetuate the chivalry, the poetry, the struggle of our early beginnings, and exalt the achievements of our founders, no less than the accomplishments and wonders of present-day effort.

Last week the running races at the Windsor (Ont.) track, across the river, drew hither a swarm of people, book-makers and others, interested in that form of sport. The Windsor races always bring to Detroit an influx of good spenders, as the visitors cross the river to see the ponies and return here to spend their money; this is if they are not broke. And they seldom are.

This week, coincident with Cadillaqua, the Blue Ribbon trotting meet is on at the Grosse Pointe track. The classic M. and M. stakes will be fought for today. The event is watched with interest every year by many thousands, to whom it is the most important event in their sporting calendar.

Thus it is seen there is every reason for Detroit merchants to be joyous. With the city overrun with strangers, all here for pleasure or excitement, and prepared to spend money, we should be grateful that we are identified with so beautiful and thriving a city, where, truly, life is worth living.

Many attractive cigar and tobacco displays are shown this week, and Detroit-made brands have not been overlooked, although they have not received the attention to which they are entitled. One interesting window is that of Gram & Co., 812 Woodward avenue. In the centre of a "Pastora" display is a large oil painting of historic interest. It is a beautifully executed representation of the seal of the city of Detroit, from the brush of Frederick Beyer, who died here some years ago. The picture was finished by Mr. Beyer in 1865. It was displayed at the Vienna Exposition of 1867, and was later hung in the council chamber of Detroit for a number of years.

For some weeks prior to Cadillaqua the "Detroit Journal" furthered a voting contest in its columns for choice of a popular citizen to represent Cadillac during the fete. Naturally, nominees of French descent met with much favor. Among those who ranked with the leaders was Albert de Montbellard, whose friends rolled up a total vote in the neighborhood of thirty thousand. Mr. Montbellard is a successful Detroit cigar manufacturer, of diversified talents, and reputed to have lived through some thrilling and romantic experiences.

Sidney Rothschild, one of the best known and popular of Americans on the Isle of Cuba, arrived here on the 13th inst. to spend a few weeks with his mother and family. He reports Havana conditions as far from satisfactory, owing to a succession of years of indifferent growths. The problem of the clear Havana manufacturer is to master the situation as he finds it and make the most of adverse circumstances.

Mrs. Kitty Gross, who was brought here recently to undergo an operation at Grace Hospital, died suddenly July 20th at her home in Columbus, Ind., aged fifty years. The body was brought here for burial. Mrs. Gross was the wife of Geo. Gross, who, until four years ago, was occupied in cigar manufacturing here for many years. Mrs. Gross had been discharged from the hospital, and two weeks before her death had left for Columbus apparently in the best of health and spirits. Her sudden end was a great shock to friends here.

Geo. W. Hill, head of the cigarette sales department of the American Tobacco Company, was here last week.

B. W. Frankel has been doing effective special work through Lee & Cady in behalf of "Smokecraft Segars" for some weeks past.

Fred Singer, of Rossin & Co., spent a few days here, accompanied by Mrs. Singer.

Phil Klastner, well known cigar jobber of Canton, Ohio, was with us for a short stay. Likewise Wm. Armstrong, of Sprague, Warner & Co. The latter's visit was purely for pleasure, Mrs. Armstrong being with him.

Jacob Knapp, cigar manufacturer, 918 Mt. Elliott avenue, was run down on the night of July 13th by a joy-riding couple on a motorcycle. He was carried into a drug store, where it was found he was seriously hurt about the head and shoulders. He was later removed to his home and is now recovering.

Sam Hanks, Western representative of Niles & Moser, Kansas City, has been spending part of his vacation here, the guest of Albert Worch, of the Spietz & Worch Co.

Under date of July 17th the local trade are notified by M. A. La Fond & Co. of the organization of a high-grade cigar jobbing house, to be known as The La Fond Cigar Company. Particulars appear elsewhere in this issue.

Retail Cigar Dealers' Association for Minneapolis

After discussing the topic for several months, the retail cigar men of Minneapolis have finally come together and formed an association. They met at the Nicollet House in Minneapolis several weeks ago, outlined their plans and elected officers as follows: Van B. Clark, president; Ira B. Farr, vice-president, and Wm. O. Goodman, secretary and treasurer.

Realizing that they had many problems to solve and that they could benefit greatly by the experiences of other associations throughout the country, the association would greatly appreciate any suggestions and information from similar bodies.

U. S. Tobacco Association Holds Convention

The Tobacco Association of the United States held its fourth annual convention at Old Point Comfort on July 9th and 10th. Over two hundred delegates were present from fourteen States. Very little business was transacted, as the convention was more of a social affair than otherwise.

"Business Only Fair" Reports Chicago

Zimmerman Cigar Co. Open Factory---George Gazley to Build New Hotel---Jack Johnson Now Selling Cigars in His Cafe

CHICAGO, July 27.

ONLY a fair amount of business was transacted by Chicago tobacco and cigar dealers the past fortnight. Mid-summer and its attendant lull, was more or less expected and the majority of merchants stated that considering the season of the year, there was little, if any, complaint to offer. Vacation time is now in full swing and business promises to be rather quiet for several weeks yet. Outlook for fall trade was never better; jobbers and manufacturers are looking for one of the best seasons in recent years.

The recent school census just published, shows that Chicago has made a remarkable increase in population the past two years. These figures give the Windy City 196,000 more people than two years ago. The total population is now in excess of 2,300,000.

Zimmerman Cigar Co. Open New Factory

A new cigar factory at 36 North Franklin street has been established by the Zimmerman Cigar Company. They are featuring the "King Phillip," a clear Havana cigar. A nickel brand, called "Tampa Rosa," is also manufactured. The firm reports a growing business.

J. C. Hackland, 643 Harvard avenue, who formerly conducted a cigar store at 236 West 63rd street, is now city salesman for F. Bolano & Co., pushing the "Bolano" brand. Mr. Hackland covers South Side territory mostly.

The Kadison Cigar Company are pushing with good success their new smoke called "Kelly's 1-2-3."

Griff Walton, the South Side salesman for Best & Russell Co., has left on his annual vacation at Yellowstone Park. No, Griff is not going alone; he is afraid of the "bears," not the "owls."

A large stock of cigars and tobacco was destroyed last week when the four-story structure at Madison avenue and Des Plaines street was burned to the ground. The place was owned by Mrs. Rose Gaden, who operated it as a resort for automobilists.

The Best & Russell Co. believe they have solved the problem of the perfect preservation of cigars by constructing their shelves and wall cases of lattice work, so as to allow additional air circulation. A humidifier placed on the top shelf distributes humidity evenly.

E. G. Wallace & Co. now have stands in the lobbies of three "loop" buildings, namely the Corn Exchange Bank, National Life and the Stock Exchange.

Forgetting caution in his desire to please a man claiming to be J. F. The tentative name of the hotel is the Gazley.

Frank B. Light, Chicago representative for the Federal Cigar Company, is in Kansas City boosting "Brod Vanas" with great success.

The retail cigar dealers (Independents) are all working for Wilson. A big cigar jobber told me the other day that he was out for Wilson and thought every man in the tobacco business ought to vote for him, after the way Taft and Wickersham "put it over" on the independents by allowing the American Tobacco Company to segregate in the manner they did. There are enough tobacco votes in Illinois to turn the State Democratic. Perhaps this big cigar jobber's work for Wilson will tell.

Frank Crowley, manager for Franklin McVeigh & Co., says business is quiet, with nothing stirring but the "soup ladle." He has given E. P. Andero several sizes of the "Odeon" brand to make.

The Tom Jones cigar store, of which Ernie Ford Adams is manager, has installed a novelty department, selling up-to-date jokes and catches. Mr. Schulten Takes Son in Partnership---P. G. Burkhardt Opens Store in Madisonville

CINCINNATI, July 27.

A SEASONABLE volume of business is being done by the local cigar and tobacco trade. Especially is this so of the retailers in the down-town section of Cincinnati, who are being liberally patronized by the usual summer visitors. The Burley Tobacco Society is about to make another 10 per cent. payment to its members for the 1909 pooled tobacco.

George Schulten, the West End jobber, has taken his son, John, into partnership, and the firm is now known as Schulten & Son. Young Schulten is very popular with his trade and his prospects are of the brightest.

The Brunhoff Manufacturing Company, of this city, which specializes in cigar lighters, cutters and other articles necessary in all up-to-date smoke shops, reports business as being excellent.

Offerings in the local Burley tobacco market totaled 793 hogshead the past week, which brought an average price of $9.48 per 100 pounds, as against $8.88 for 569 hogsheads the previous week, and $7.62 for 148 hogsheads the corresponding week of 1911.

Henry Rothenberg to Handle Manila Tobacco

Henry Rothenberg, leaf dealer, at 172 Water street, New York City, recently received a sample shipment of the finest types of Manila tobacco, which he states was grown in the best sections of the Island.

There have been numerous inquiries of late relative to dealers handling the Manila leaf, and until of late there were few houses handling it in this country. There has virtually been no importing of this variety of tobacco, although it comes into this country duty free.

Fourth "Free Smoker" Bill Introduced; Passes House Measure Presented by Representative Peters is Now Before Senate—Allows Each Employee of a Cigar Factory 21 Cigars a Week For Personal Use

The fourth "free smokers" bill to be presented in the present session of Congress was introduced in the House of Representatives on July 12 and passed by that body on July 16. Andrew J. Peters, of Massachusetts, was the sponsor of the measure and with Representative Reilly, of Connecticut; Griest, of Pennsylvania, and Sparkman, of Florida, was responsible for its speedy passage. The congressmen just named each introduced "smoker" bills in Congress, none of which passed. The present measure virtually embodies all the features of the former bills.

Mr. Peters, in arguing in favor of the bill, said:

Mr. Chairman, it has been the custom since cigars were first made in this country that the operatives should be allowed a certain number of cigars for their own use. Up until last September they have been allowed to take from the tobacco which they have given them to roll the cigars a certain amount to experiment with, to find out just the manner in which the cigars should be rolled which they are to make. They have also determined by smoking the tobacco whether it is of a proper strength and quality to use in the grade of cigars they are to make. The inexperienced employees are also taught how to roll cigars from this tobacco. On the tobacco so used no tax was paid.

It has grown up as a custom that the factories will allow their operatives to take out a certain number of cigars—about three each day and six on Saturdays. This was permitted because in certain factories there were rules prohibiting smoking, either for hygienic reasons or because women and children were employed there. This had been the universal custom from the time the industry started until last September, when the Treasury Department made a ruling that no "smokers" should be allowed. There was a ruling made September 1, 1911, and a later one on September 15, and one on December 30 of the same year—printed in the hearings—all having the same object in view, to curtail the use of "smokers." Immediately the operatives began to feel that they had been deprived of what custom had given them, which they had come to regard as a part of their daily wage. Therefore bills were introduced by several members having in view extending to the operatives by statute the privilege which had been enjoyed by them all along under the practice of the Internal Revenue Department up to last year.

Your Committee on Ways and Means gave an exhaustive hearing to the subject, and there appeared before it the representatives of the employees from many of our cities, and some of the manufacturers. It was agreed upon by all parties, by both the manufacturers and the employees, that this custom was so well established that both parties desired to see it continued. The only point which was made against it was made by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who objected to it because of the fear that continuing this exemption would enable a certain amount of tobacco to be taken out without paying a duty upon it; but after carefully considering the evidence your committee felt justified in reporting the bill which we now have before us. It was felt that the privilege had been in existence so long that its legal recognition was no more than fair to the men and to the manufacturer, and there was no reason to suppose that it would be abused by men of such high integrity as are found among those engaged in the manufacture of cigars.

Mr. Reilly, in speaking for the measure, said that the stocks used generally for the free smokers had been the tobacco which was not fit to be used for cigars that are offered for sale; or, in other words, the damaged stock. And since it could not be used for cigars from which a revenue could be collected the government lost nothing. The "smoker" custom, he said, had been in practice for over one hundred years and the present bill only legalized that custom.

The present measure simply amends an act passed August 5, 1909. The amended portion upon which the discussion hinged is the following:

Provided further, That each employee of a manufacturer of cigars shall be permitted to use, for personal consumption and for experimental purposes, not to exceed 21 cigars per week without the manufacturer of cigars being required to pack the same in boxes or to stamp or pay any internal revenue tax thereon, such exemption to be allowed under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe.

The measure now goes to the Finance Committee, and is expected to come before the Senate shortly, after which it must be signed by the President to make it a law.

Marcus Feder, of the London Whiff Cigar Company, and Moses Cleveland Cigar Company, of Cleveland, is home again after an extended trip. Mr. Feder, who is a well-known figure in the West, was very much pleased at the cordial reception he received from his many friends during the trip.

Fires, Supposedly Incendiary, Destroy Mayfield Warehouses

MAYFIELD, KY., July 23.

Three fires, believed to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed property valued at upwards of $100,000 here today. The tobacco warehouses of Gardner & Walker, buyers for the Italian Government, were the principal buildings burned. The fires were discovered in as many sections of the town within the same hour.

Convention Spirit Prevails in Cleveland

Preparing for Meetings of Lodges—Shields-Wertheim Factory Pushed to Limit on "La Saramita"—Fred G. Golmar Co. Adds Another Store

CLEVELAND, O., July 25.

WITHIN the past two weeks this city and its environs has been going through a very rainy spell. In fact, among the retailers the bad rains are one of the chief topics of conversation, because of the bad effect it has had upon business. However, conditions are improving and the retailers are looking forward to big business from now on. The Eagles will hold their convention here the week of August 4th. The city is beginning to take on the real convention spirit, as the buildings are starting to be decorated and a huge arch is being erected in the Public Square. As an added attraction, the auto races with Bob Burman will be held at the Randal Tracks. The Typographical Convention will follow the Eagles, so that Cleveland will, within the next thirty days, be a real convention city.

Mr. Edward Wodiska, of the firm of Corral-Wodiska Co., Tampa, Fla., with one of his men, Mr. Hammer, left Cleveland with an order pad filled to the brim, after two or three days' stay. An air of activity surrounds the plant of the Shields-Wertheim Company, manufacturers of the "La Saramita" cigar. After a two weeks' campaign in Cleveland by their city force, plus three of the hard hitters from the outside, they are busy trying to fill orders, but the outside men have scattered to the four corners of the Union. Mr. J. B. Shields, president of the concern, feels that it is not a case of selling goods for the balance of the year, but trying to get them made. The factory has been taxed to its utmost capacity all year.

George W. Bassett, cigarist in the Osborn Building, reports a steady increase on sales.

Nate Weisenberg sold out one of his stands on East Ninth street and bought the Euclid Arcade cigar stand, located in the new Euclid Arcade. He seems to be very much pleased with the way business has started out in the new location.

Morris Glicksman, who makes his headquarters at the corner of East Sixth street and Superior, has no reason for complaint. He states that his business is coming along very nicely and reports his other stores showing nice increases.

George B. Scrambling, of the George B. Scrambling Co., one of our new jobbers in Cleveland, has gotten his brands placed very thoroughly through this section, and feels very good over the volume of business received by that concern.

The Fred G. Golmar Co., with headquarters at 163 The Arcade, has just added another link to his stores. He has just showed the writer blue prints of some very beautiful fixtures which he has ordered to be put in the Rathskellar, which stand he takes over August 1st.

The writer just left a new, happy Dad, Mr. George Owens, vice-president of the Fred Golmar Cigar Co. All he talks about is his son. He says he is five months old and admits his weight to be forty pounds, but we have our doubts. Nevertheless, it is a prize and ought to be exhibited in a baby show.

Mr. Fred Singer, representing S. Rossin Sons, stopped in Cleveland on his way East to call on the trade.

Alfred Sorenson, formerly a traveling man for the Schollian Cigar and Tobacco Company, of Waterloo, Ia., is opening a retail cigar store in Cedar Falls, that State.

A mysterious explosion in the Eureka Cigar Store at Garrison and Easton avenues, St. Louis, blew out the glass front of the establishment and did damage to the amount of $1,500.

John DeJeager and Arthur Stitz, of Waterloo, Iowa, opened their new store in that city a short time ago. The interior woodwork is of quartered oak. With the other fittings, which are all up-to-date, this should be one of the good stores in that region.

The Majestique Cigar Store at Grand Junction, Col., a progressive retail firm, after having new stock and fixtures installed, opened recently and proved that there was a demand for a first-class store in that city. Sam Sturtevant is the proprietor of the stand.

One of the leading cigar and tobacco merchants in Bangor, Me., is W. H. McLoon. Mr. McLoon started his present store four years ago and has made a pronounced success of it. He manufactures cigars and also handles high-grade domestic and Havana lines.

L. L. Myers has sold his cigar store and building in Grundy Center, Iowa, to E. W. Fergeman, of Waterloo, that State. Mr. Fergeman formerly worked for Mr. Myers as a cigarmaker. Mr. Myers has also sold his residence and will shortly move to Moorhead, Minn., where he owns a farm.

Clarence Olmsted, a cigarmaker and retailer of Nebraska City, Neb., has purchased the cigar and tobacco stock of James McKeiver, of that city, and will conduct the business in the future. Mr. Olmsted is well known and liked in that vicinity and should make a success of his new venture.

Martin Bros., a well-known Waterloo, Iowa, concern, recently moved to their new location adjoining their former store. They claim to have one of the finest wholesale and retail stores west of Chicago. A large humidifier has been installed, tile flooring laid and fixtures of the most modern type put in place.

F. E. Roberts recently opened his new cigar stand in the Hotel Worthy, Springfield, Mass. This is Mr. Roberts' sixth stand in that city. He has been in business in Springfield for seven years, starting with one stand. Now he owns one at Hartford and another at Worcester, in addition to his Springfield stores.

Syracuse Noted for Retail Stores

SYRACUSE, July 26.

THIS city can easily boast of the largest number of first-class retail smoke shops of any city of its size in the country. The competition is keen, but it has proven healthy and the consumers have profited.

The people seem to like Connecticut wrapper goods particularly, but this is also a strong clear Havana market for both Tampa and Havana goods.

Charles D. Manning has a splendid stand at 107 Jefferson street, and is stocked with one of the most varied lines in the city. He specializes on fine box trade and tells me he has a big call for "La Vegas," "Websters," "Charles the Great," "Integridads," and "Lozanos," in Tampa made goods, and on "Romeos," "Hayas" and "Carolinas" in Cuban goods.

Adolph Osterloh, who represents Acker, Merrall & Condit in this section, has been in the city this week. Mr. Osterloh controls some of the best club and private trade in Syracuse and rarely leaves here empty handed.

As is now well known, the Onondaga Hotel here is one of the finest hostleries in America, and thoroughly metropolitan in every detail. The cigar stand is operated by Joseph T. Snyder as one of his chain stores, which extend from Cleveland to Syracuse, with headquarters in Buffalo. The stock is high grade in every particular.

The Eaton Company, who has a store at Salina and Jefferson streets, has been featuring the "Faraday" brand of Justin Seubert, Inc., during this week.

Whelen Brothers and the United Company all have choice locations in the city, and get a big share of the retail business.

J. A. Seubert, who is in charge of the New York City factory, made a quick trip to the company's headquarters here yesterday. This company has been practically driven from this city as a manufacturing centre by arbitrary labor demands.

New York City tobacco men have leased a factory at Fayetteville, on the outskirts of Syracuse, and are now making arrangements to manufacture their smoking tobacco on a large scale.

HAVANA, July 25.

THE overshadowing event in our leaf market has been the heavy buying of the great house of Sylvester & Stern, as the same, by competent judges, shall have purchased fully 50,000 bales of leaf of all kinds, in the country, in town, as well as to arrive, upon future delivery. In the Vuelta Abajo the purchases are estimated to amount to around 25,000 bales, while all the future deliveries may easily exceed even 25,000 bales, as it is current talk that Sylvester & Stern shall have almost acquired all of the Semi Vuelta crop, besides loose leaves of Remedios, as well as Partido. Naturally this has had the effect to stiffen our market not alone, but prices have risen for colas of Vuelta Abajo. The last paid figures in the country shall have been $20.00 per qq., and $12.00 is now asked for current loose leaves of Remedios and for heavy Partido, capadura styles.

The outlook for our cigarette manufacturers is disheartening, as the visible supply of Vuelta Abajo colas is at the utmost 40,000 bales, against a yearly consumption of 80,000 bales, and there are no old stocks in the hands of our dealers to fall back upon. Their only salvation may be the loose leaves of Remedios and Partido, as well as perhaps Manchados and tercercas of Remedios, and for which $18.00 per qq. are bid.

Vuelta Abajo fillers are in strong demand and are quoted at from $60.00 to $70.00 per qq., according to quality.

Partido wrappers are very much inquired for; clean ones without any spots can command fancy prices, but as the overwhelming majority have more or less spots, the buyers have no choice to be over particular, and must swallow the bitter pill.

Remedios fillers are in good demand by the clear Havana cigar manufacturers of the United States, as on account of the reasonable prices, in comparison with last year, they can be used to make cheap five cent cigars, or will answer for mixing purposes even, on account of the mild and pleasant aroma. The exporters for Germany have been very active in shipping large quantities of the low grades, but it remains to be seen whether the higher figures here may not possibly curtail this business in the future. There have been some sales made to Northern buyers of first and second capaduras, as a trial, while one large transaction of old first and seconds—1,215 bales—was made by the well known house of I. Bernheim & Sons, of New York.

As buyers are coming down here now from the North, we may confidently look forward to a good, healthy business, particularly as our escogidas are all working with full speed, and the receipts from the country are heavy each week, so there is no lack of a suitable supply.

Sales for the last three weeks, from July 1st to July 20th, amounted to 21,150 bales of all kinds, or divided, as follows, viz.: Vuelta Abajo, 5,786; Partido, 3,427, and Remedios, 11,937 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 6,447; exporters to Europe, 10,236; shippers to South America, 242, and our local cigar and cigarette manufacturers, 4,225 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco, from the port of Havana, for the three weeks from July 1st to July 20th, were:

|-----------------------------------|-------------|
| To all ports of the United States | 8,964 bales |
| To Bremen and Hamburg | 10,022 |
| To other ports of Europe | 227 |

Cigars.

It seems that the agony is not over yet with our cigar manufacturers, as the first half of this month has shown a further shrinkage of nearly one and one-half million of cigars, as compared with the same period of last year. Of course, the busy times do not commence, as a rule, until after the second half of August, but this is no reason why we could not reasonably expect to hold our own in the dull season. The following figures are taken from the official custom house returns of our exports of cigars during the first half of July, viz.:

|--|-------------------|
| From July 1st, 1911, to July 15th, 1911. | 6,641,677 cigars |
| From July 1st, 1912 to July 15th, 1912 | 5,186,319 |
| Shrinkage in 1912 | 1,455,358 |
| From January 1st, 1911, to July 15th, 1911 | 96,183,553 |
| From January 1st, 1912, to July 15th, 1912 | 84,133,833 |
| | 12,049,720 cigars |

H. Upmann & Co. have added another 1,200 bales of first-class Vuelta Abajo vegas, purchased in town, to their stocks of leaf tobacco, so this, in combination with their holdings of choice old goods, would keep the H. Upmann factory going for some time. The latter has quite a bunch of orders for later shipments and is busy executing the early orders.

Romeo y Julieta has purchased 4,000 bales more of Vuelta Abajo in the country, all of the lowland section, and among which we learned there are the vegas "San Vicente," "Artiga del Corrojo," "Carrillo de Paso Viejo" and la vega "de Angel Gonzales." The factory is working very steadily.

Partagas bought 2,000 bales additionally of Vuelta Abajo during the past fortnight of vegas from choice districts. Don Eustaquio Alonso states that they have more orders on hand than they had expected at this time of the year.

Sol is doing well, having also purchased several select vegas from the lowland section of the Vuelta Abajo, and Don Carlos Behrens says that orders are coming forward to his entire satisfaction.

Cardenas & Co., the owners of the Castañeda factory, bought some 2,000 bales of the very best vegas from the lowland district of the Vuelta Abajo, and this, in combination with their old stocks, is bound to make an excellent blend to satisfy all smokers of the different countries of the world. Business continues quite fair with them.

Felipe Rodriguez & Co., the owners of the Elite factory, have purchased 2,000 bales of the finest vegas from the Vuelta Abajo, to be received as soon as packed. Don Francisco Herrero reports that orders are coming forward in good shape.

The chief factories of the Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Ltd., are working with full forces, as heretofore, surely a proof, that the company must be receiving constantly large orders.

Other factories that are working well are: Eden, La Diligencia and C. E. Beck & Co.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

With the killing of Ivonet, the late general of the so-called reinvindicating army of the colored race, the revolt has been ended, and upon the return of the victorious general of our army, Montegudo, to Havana he received quite a welcome by the people.

Fortunately through the active measures taken by our health board the bubonic plague seems to have, not alone not spread any further, but appears to have died out.

The newly-established firm of Gutierrez & Diehl appears to be truly hustling, as it sold 2,057 bales of leaf tobacco during the past three weeks, a large part of which it shipped to Germany upon firm orders.

According to our information, the great house of Sylvester & Stern have received, on account their previously stated purchases in another part of our correspondence, about 5,000 bales of all kinds of leaf during the past fortnight.

Rodriguez, Menendez & Co. report sales of 1,500 bales of Vuelta Abajo to one of their customers during the past two weeks. Don Adolfo Moeller seems to be a phenomenon, as he purchased and shipped to Germany chiefly 3,749 bales of leaf tobacco during the last three weeks.

Muniz Hns disposed of 1,218 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios, but they beg to announce to their customers that they have been fortunate in closing transactions in the Vuelta Abajo, securing the whole crop of the famous Luis Lazo district, which when all packed will give them 3,000 bales to offer to their customers.

J. F. Berndes & Co. were large buyers and shippers to Germany and Austria, as they handled 2,150 bales of leaf.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales were sellers to the extent of 1,200 bales of all kinds of leaf to their large clientele.

Don Salvador Rodriguez, the veteran Tampa manufacturer of the famous brand of "Charles the Great," has been one of our large buyers in town, as his commitments on Vuelta Abajo chiefly amounted to 2,000 bales, and we heard it said that he expressed himself as stating that the 1912 Vuelta Abajo crop is the finest since the remarkable year of 1881.

Menendez & Co. closed transactions amounting to 900 bales of Remedios and some Vuelta Abajo.

I. Bernheim & Sons were buyers of 1,215 bales of the cracker-jack vegas from Santa Clara, consisting of first and second capaduras of the 1911 crop, and which generally commands $10.00 per qq. more than the market price of first capaduras.

José C. Puente turned over 865 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios.

Leslie Pantin was a buyer for his customers of 833 bales of all kinds of leaf.

Herrera, Calmet & Co. sold 705 bales of Remedios from their packings.

S. M. Wallach secured for G. Falk & Bro. 500 bales of choice leaf.

José F. Rocha was a seller of 575 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios.

Cardenas & Co. bought for account of one of their customers 420 bales of prime old Vuelta Abajo fillers.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons disposed of 570 bales of their select packings of Remedios and Manicaragua.

H. Upmann & Co. purchased for export 400 bales of leaf.

José Menendez closed out 548 bales of Semi-Vuelta and Partido.

Faustino Lozano was a buyer of 300 bales of choice Vuelta Abajo on this voyage.

Mr. Walter J. Kaffenburgh arrived here from the country on the 11th inst. to find out the situation of our market, and left again on the 21st idem to continue to supervise their numerous escogidas. He stated that all the good tobacco in bundles had been bought from the farmers, or that the vegueros were packing their crops themselves; there might be some poor stuff still in some isolated places, but this was of no account to take into consideration. The Havana packers of reputation had as usual purchased the cream of the crop, and for which they had paid full prices.

Don Antonio Calzada has been in the country for quite awhile, and undoubtedly made some good-sized purchases of leaf, but we could learn no particulars in time.

Principal shippers of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the last three weeks were: A. Moeller, 3,749; J. F. Berndes & Co., 2,150; Gutierrez & Diehl, 1,704; Sylvester & Stern, 1,503; Leslie Pantin, 1,033; Silveira & Co., 963; I. Bernheim & Sons, 866; H. Upmann & Co., 819; Rodriguez, Menendez & Co., 648; Selgas & Co., 419; M. A. Gunst Co., Inc., 349; Garcia & Co., 349; M. A. Suarez, 325; M. Abella & Co., 305; Ernst Ellinger & Co., 292; Bridat & Co., 281; José F. Rocha, 273; E. H. Gato Cigar Co., 270; Diego Montero, 242; Miguel V. Perez, 226, and Sobrinos de A. Gonzales, 202 bales.

"United" Reorganizes and Plans Stock Distribution New Corporation Will Have Capital of $35,000,000—Three Shares of New Concern for One of Old

ON July 25 the United Cigar Stores Company filed articles of incorporation at Trenton, N. J., for the United Cigar Stores of America, which will succeed the old concern. The object in reorganizing was to extend the business as tobacco dealers and also to develop and acquire real estate. Its authorized capital stock will be $35,000,000; seven per cent. cumulative preferred stock, $5,000,000; common stock, $30,000,000.

All of the stock of the United Land & Improvement Company, the new real estate concern recently formed with a capitalization of $10,000,000, will be held in the treasury of the new concern.

Some of the prominent features in the new financial plan are as follows:

"This company proposes to acquire the outstanding 50-year 6 per cent. gold bonds of the corporation of United Cigar Stores, organized under the laws of the State of New York, as well as the outstanding capital stock of that company.

"Arrangements have been perfected whereby the holders of the outstanding bonds of the corporation of United Cigar Stores, which amount to $3,600,000, have agreed to sell the same to this company at par with accumulated interest from June 30, 1912. To obtain the money to effect this purchase, this company has authorized the issuance of its preferred stock at par. Of the moneys received from the sale of preferred stock, $3,600,000, in addition to the accumulated interest on the bonds since June 30, 1912, will be used to acquire these bonds, while the balance of the moneys received upon such sale will be used for the further development of the business of the company.

"In order to assure the acquisition of the sum of money presently necessary for the purpose a committee has agreed to enter into an agreement with this company, whereby the members of the committee will subscribe for the necessary amount of preferred stock in this company, and will pay therefor at the rate of $100 per share in cash.

"It has been decided, however, that an opportunity shall be given to the holders of record of the stock of the Corporation of United Cigar Stores to acquire preferred stock of this company without any expense or premium to such stockholders or the company; the committee having underwritten the preferred stock at par and having agreed that it might be offered to said stockholders at par by the company. The underwriting of this preferred stock is without expense to this company or to the stockholders of the Corporation of United Cigar Stores, and without profit or commission to the committee.

"The company will make a proposition to the holders of the common stock of the Corporation of United Cigar Stores substantially as follows:

"On or before the 26th day of August, 1912, to purchase from each of the holders of said stock of the Corporation of United Cigar Stores all of the shares of stock of that company owned by and standing of record in the name of each of said holders respectively, and to pay therefor by issuing and delivering three shares of the common stock of this company, fully paid and non-assessable for each share of the stock of Corporation of United Cigar Stores.

"Upon the surrender of said certificates of stock of the Corporation of United Cigar Stores the holder of record shall be entitled to receive and this company will issue a purchase warrant, according to the terms of which such holders, upon the surrender of said warrant at any time and on any day before 12 o'clock noon on the 14th day of September, 1912, and upon payment of an amount equal to the par value of the shares of the preferred stock of this company, shall be entitled to receive certificates for the number of shares of the preferred stock of this company equal to one-half the number of shares of the stock of the Corporation of United Cigar Stores so surrendered.

It has been stated that it is the purpose of the new company, when all details for its organization have been completed, to make preparations for establishing a manufacturing department on a large scale. Several floors of the company's building at 44 West Eighteenth street, New York City, will probably be utilized as a manufacturing department. The company can at any time use three floors of the building for that purpose, according to present indications. As the rights to subscribe under the new plan will not expire until August 26, the organization of the new company, so far as election of directors and officers is concerned, will probably not take place until September.

Will Not Be Co-defendants in Suit

Liggett & Myers and P. Lorillard Company Not Parties to Damage Case Instituted by Locker & Co.

JUDGE LACOMBE, in an opinion handed down on July 18th, in the Federal District Court in New York City, denied the motion to make the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company and the P. Lorillard Company co-defendants in the Sherman Law suit for treble damages, aggregating $300,000, brought by Locker & Co., tobacco dealers, of Brooklyn, N. Y., against the American Tobacco Company, American Snuff Company, Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Company and the Metropolitan Tobacco Company. The damages are asked for an injury alleged to have been done by the defendants to Locker & Co.'s business as the result of a combination in restraint of trade.

In the opinion Judge Lacombe says, in part:

"The relief accorded to the individual is an action at law for treble damages when he can show that the act has been violated, and that such violation has injured him in his business or property. He cannot maintain such an action if his complaint fails to show that at or prior to the time when the action is begun defendant had done any act in violation of the statute. This analysis of the seventh section of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act sufficiently answers the present application. The action was begun June 10, 1910; the two corporations which plaintiff now asks to include as defendants were not incorporated until November, 1911. Since they were not in existence on or prior to June 10, 1910, it is impossible that they could by that time have done any act in violation of the statute. If subsequent to their creation they violated the statute and by reason of such violation plaintiff has been injured in his business or property, he may have a good cause of action against them for such tortious act, but that is a new and independent tort and a separate cause of action from the one declared here."

Miller Brothers in Fine New Establishment

ONE of the most up-to-date retail and wholesale tobacco stores in Southern Indiana was formally opened to the public on Saturday, July 15th. This is the Theodore Miller tobacco house in Princeton, Indiana, which moved across the street to its new location on North Main street.

The Miller Brothers have long been actively identified with the tobacco interests of Princeton. They opened up a store twelve years ago in that city, and since that time have built up a splendid trade, pushing chiefly their special brands of cigars, the "Collar Button" and others.

Recently Conrad Miller opened a cigar factory in the Ward Building, where he is turning out a line of cigars, including the "Havana Brown," "Town Boost" and others. These goods will be wholesaled and retailed by the new Miller store.

The business of Miller Brothers soon outgrew its original quarters, and Theodore Miller looked around for an ideal establishment, which he believes he has succeeded in finding in his new location. The fixtures are of mahogany and stained glass, with polished brass trimmings and superb showcases. They carry a choice line of domestic and Havana cigars; also a complete line of pipes, smoking tobacco and cigarettes.

Havana Satisfactory, But Not Porto Rico

WASHINGTON, July 22.

The officials of the public health and marine hospital service declared this afternoon the bubonic plague situation in Havana was satisfactory. The situation in Porto Rico was declared to be unfavorable, however.

Despite the best efforts of the sanitary officials in San Juan the disease continues to claim victims. The mortality has been exceedingly high, over 70 per cent. of the cases proving fatal.

John H. N. Schurman, of Worcester, Mass., a cigar manufacturer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. He places his liabilities at $1,190, with assets of $285.

NEW ORLEANS, July 26.

AUGUST GLAUDOT, 341 Chartres street, the oldest tobacco jobbing house here, who has been in business for forty years, has been liquidated, Mr. Glaudot entering the employ of U. Koen & Co. Mr. Glaudot has many friends among the retail trade who wish him success in his new field.

Sam St. Martin, 111 Decatur street, who two years ago purchased the store of J. B. Desangles, established for thirty years, died last Sunday at his residence in this city. Before embarking in the tobacco business Mr. St. Martin held several important political offices at Donaldsonville, to which city his remains were taken for interment.

Godfrey F. Boney, recently in the retail cigar business at Baton Rouge, who passed several worthless checks on merchants here, then fled to Texas, was brought back by the police, tried and convicted, and was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary.

The inventory of Valloft & Dreux Co., filed in court last week, shows property valued at $20,744.34. The merchandise was inventoried at $16,372.39, while the fixtures are valued at $194.50. The balance is represented by goods claimed by creditors of the firm. In the suit of L. E. Valloft vs. The Independent Stores Company, the inventory shows stock and fixtures in their fifteen stores valued at $9,205.

August Bloch, State representative for the Havana-American Company, is spending a deserved vacation here with his family.

M. Alexander, of Savannah, Ga., a veteran of thirty-five years as a dealer in cigars and tobacco, now a manufacturer of overalls, was at the Grunewald Hotel, Saturday, and renewed old acquaintances in the trade here.

R. L. Tallichet, representing the Porto Rican American Tobacco Company, is here calling on the trade.

Price Cutting War in Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La., July 24.

THERE is a price cutting war in full swing among the retail druggists, who are selling all of the popular brands of seed and Havana ten-cent straight cigars at three and four for a quarter. Miss Mollie Hall, the well known cigar dealer, is absent on a month's vacation.

The energetic wholesaler, George Hampton, reports the demand for "Square Deal" cigars to exceed the demand.

Mrs. Anna Evans, proprietress of the Caddo Hotel stand, says business has been quite satisfactory. Mrs. Evans carries one of the most complete assortments of high-grade cigars of any dealer in north Louisiana.

Ralph Kahn, of the Phoenix Hotel stand, has been creating a mild sensation with the traveling public by giving away on raffieboards diamond rings, scarf pins, ten dollar goldpieces, watch fobs and other articles of equally attractive value.

R. F. Donovan has had a steady increase in his jobbing business. His leading brands are "Solace," "El Genio," "Walls Court," "Van Dyke," "El Werth" and "Donovan's Club House."

F. G. Hudson, manager of the Shreveport Drug Company, which enjoys one of the largest retail cigar businesses in the State, has just returned from Chicago, where he was a delegate to the Republican National Convention. Mr. Hudson says he enjoyed the steam-roller while it was rolling, as he was riding by the driver.

C. S. Foster, with U. Koen & Co., New Orleans, who has many friends among the trade here, has been in the city for several days.

Cigar Industry Poor in Belgium

Speaking of the tobacco industry in Belgium a consular report states:

Tobacco manufacturers had a good year. In Ghent, however, the cigarmaking industry was poor and a large number were out of employment. From investigation made by the syndicate of cigarmakers of Ghent it was found that the average wages paid were only 15 francs, 80 centimes ($3.06) for 54½ hours per week. The syndicate has announced its intention to make a demand for higher wages. The exportation of cigarettes to the United States increased from $23,739 in 1910 to $62,131 in 1911.

J. W. D. Hill, of Paxton, Ill., has purchased a cigar factory in Gilman, that State, and expects to start up there shortly.

Factory Notes

Laurel, Del., is to have a new cigar factory, known as the Laurel Cigar Company. It will be managed by Fred Hive, who recently moved to that city from Nashville, Mich.

P. J. Bohner, of Marysville, Kan., has leased a floor in a building in Seneca, that State, and opened a cigar factory. He is an experienced cigarmaker, having been in business in Marysville for a number of years.

A. T. Moore, of Belvidere, Ill., has bought the cigar factory operated by Claude Buhmeyer in that city, and will remove it to 112 Logan avenue, where he will enlarge the factory and expects to occupy the entire second floor of the building.

George E. Hoffman, of Springfield, Mass., has moved his cigar factory from 98 Main street, that city, to his new building at Pleasant and Lamb streets. The new building, which is equipped with eleven benches, is longer and arranged more conveniently than the old one.

Thomas Evans, who has for fifteen years managed the paper box factory on Morgan street, Phoenixville, Pa., has added another line—that of wooden cigar box making—to his business, and has installed a complete and modern outfit of machinery for this line of work.

Albert Assna, who has been manager of the Aurora Cigar Factory of Aurora, Neb., has decided to enter business for himself and has secured rooms in that city. He will first employ four men and add to his force as his business grows. His leading brand will be "79."

Requiring larger quarters for workshop and storage, Otto Stein, the proprietor of the Bessemer Cigar Company, of Bessemer, Ala., has removed his establishment to Nineteenth street, near Sixth avenue, where he finds larger quarters and a dwelling. Mr. Stein manufactures for the jobbing trade and on special orders.

Joseph Hedrich, of Bangor, Me., is known as one of the leading manufacturers in his section. Mr. Hedrich also has a wholesale and retail business. Some of his best known cigars are "Home Trade," "Mic-Mac," "You Jay" and "Madine." His general manager is William McCarthy, who has charge of the manufacturing end of the firm.

Two cigar factories established in as many weeks is not a bad record, but that is what Arcadia, Fla., reports. J. V. Baker is a newcomer there from Tampa. Another is Esteban Alfonso, from Ybor City, who promises to open up for business shortly. He has leased the brick building near the Smith Drug Company, and will run his factory there for the present.

The Southbridge Cigar Company, of Southbridge, Mass., which has been manufacturing cigars in that city for a short time, has gone out of business. O. J. Paquette, business manager of the concern, recently handed to stockholders a check for $5.50 each, which represented all that will be paid to each of the 96 stockholders who contributed $50 apiece. The company started out with $4,800, but the venture was a losing one from the start.

St. Augustine, Fla., is soon to have another cigar factory in addition to the several now operating successfully in that city. Senior Mendez, a prominent Spaniard, at present residing in Atlanta, Ga., has purchased a home and a number of building lots in North City upon which he will erect a modern building for the manufacture of high-grade Havana cigars. The factory will be opened with moderate capacity, but so arranged that it can be enlarged from time to time as the growth of the business demands.

Realizing that cleanliness and sanitation are essential in cigars as in other present-day products, the officials of the Mi Lola Cigar Company, Second and Sycamore streets, Milwaukee, Wis., have appointed Dr. A. J. Heller, of that city, as their medical inspector. His duties will be to inspect each one of the employes for symptoms of contagious diseases and to report the suspects to the foreman, who will at once see that the patient receives medical attention. The company is believed to be one of the first in the country to take this step voluntarily.

Six of the largest cigar factories of Denver, Col., with an annual production of 12,000,000 cigars, threaten to quit that city unless the cigarmakers' and tobacco strippers' unions cease in their efforts to enforce the equalization plan. The membership in the unions is about 500. Three months ago the union introduced the equalization plan as a remedy for the so-called stock conditions imposed upon them. The manufacturers claimed that it increased the cost of their product over 20 per cent. and cut their force in two. As a result the men walked out and matters are at a deadlock.

Earnings of U. C. M. Co. Show No Falling Off
President Wertheim Says in Statement, That Despite Strikes, Profits for First Six Months of 1912, Will Compare Favorably With Same Period in 1911

NEW YORK, July 19.

EARNINGS of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company for first six months of 1912 were up to last year, despite the shutting down of two of the largest plants by reason of the strike. President Wertheim said of conditions in his company and in the tobacco trade generally:

"We have been considerably hampered during the last four or five weeks by the shutting down of our two large factories at New Brunswick and Perth Amboy. Until that time everything indicated that our earnings would be considerably above last year, as we were working at capacity and were booked far ahead with heavy contracts. But even with this shut-down, which has thrown about 20 per cent. of our employes out of work, I feel confident that we shall be able to show a statement that compares favorably with that of 1911.

"There is nothing to indicate now that there will be any immediate change in the dividend rate of 4 per cent. on the common stock, although continued cessation of work at our larger plants might make a difference. But with 75 per cent. of the New Brunswick employes back, and every indication that the Perth Amboy plant will shortly reopen, I feel confident that our report for the full year will be a satisfactory one to stockholders."

The United Company now has two factories in New York City, three in New Jersey and seventeen in Pennsylvania. When working at capacity, between 8,000,000 and 9,000,000 cigars are turned out weekly. The shut-down of the last few weeks reduced the output to approximately 5,000,000.

"The margin of profit in the cigar business," said Mr. Wertheim, "is much smaller than it was a few years ago, and it is necessary to do a much larger gross business to secure a return that compares favorably with that of ten years back on the same basis of sales. The labor cost has also shown such a decided advance as to hurt proportionate net profits. Of course, all this favors the larger companies, and we have reaped any benefit that is to be derived therefrom."

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company now has $15,600,000 common stock outstanding, and $5,000,000 preferred. The authorized issue of common is $20,000,000, but $4,400,000 is still unissued. The increased capitalization was authorized at the time of taking over of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., of Philadelphia. The directors of the United believe this acquisition will have a most important bearing on future earnings. The Philadelphia concern has always been a money-maker, and much of the expectation of a big increased business for the United this year came from the belief in the earning possibilities of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Co.

Manufacture Cigar Cutters and Box Openers

Brunhoff Manufacturing Company Has Been Producing Their Goods for More Than a Generation

ONE of the latest devices in the way of cigar cutters is one which the Brunhoff Manufacturing Company is introducing to the trade. It is a combined cutter and advertising agent, carrying a rotary sign. This concern also manufactures cigar box openers, which are turned out in several shapes and styles.

The Brunhoff Manufacturing Company is a Cincinnati firm, with headquarters at 113 Maiden lane, New York City. They have been manufacturing cigar cutters and other needfuls for the tobacconist for years, and have facilities for producing them excelled by none. Their advertisement, which appears on page 5 of this issue, calls attention to their goods. Any one interested will be quickly furnished information upon inquiry at either the New York or Cincinnati offices.

LXINGTON, KY., July 17.

The executive committee of the Burley Society met here yesterday and announced that it had sold the entire pool of the 1909 crop, amounting to 102,000,000 pounds. It was estimated that about $10,000,000 was received for the tobacco. This will now be divided among the members of the society in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

With the sale of this tobacco, the old Burley Society goes out of business and the new society, of which James B. Haggin, of New York, is the leading figure, will take hold under the contracts which bind all the members to the association for the next ten years.

Charles Lewellen, of Hartford City, Ind., has moved his cigar store from his former location to the premises formerly occupied by the Diamond Clothing Company.

Fine Retail Store for Shreveport, La.

SHREVEPORT, LA., July 24.

Moses Frank, manager of the cigar department of the Hicks Company, opened last week a handsome new stand in the lobby of the Opera House equipped with opal onyx hmgigars and will this week open in the entrance of the new Continental Bank Building another stand equipped with as fine humidors as are in the State. Mr. Frank is assisted in the business by handsome Norman Forcheimer. They will feature the brands controlled by the Hicks Company, particularly a full line of "Cuesta Reys," "Websters," "Cortez," "Americans," "El Principe de Gales," "La Preferencia," "Robert Burns," "General Arthur" and "Tom Moore," with a full assortment of smokers' articles.

N. D. Mills, one of the largest cigar manufacturers in Middletown, N. Y., who has also operated retail stands, has purchased the entire stock and fixtures of the cigar store of Geo. M. Miller in that city, known as the Pfaff store. J. D. Arthur, who has been a clerk in the place, will continue with Mr. Mills.

Local Option Disturbing Factor in San Francisco

Has Forced Over 500 Saloons Out of Existence Within Few Months—M. A. Gunst & Co. Pushing Manilas

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.

THE effects of the vacation season are still felt very strongly by dealers of the down-town district, though there is a little more activity around the cigar stands than at the first of the month. While many regular customers are out of town, there are a great many people from the country spending the summer here to avoid the heat of the interior, and their trade is an important factor in the hotel district. The fruit growers and country land owners have in recent years been the really prosperous people in California, and show an increasing tendency to visit the city during the summer months. Retail trade through the country is holding up unusually well for this season, however, and the jobbing trade would be good but for one disturbing factor.

This disturbing factor is the prohibition movement, elections under the local option law having forced nearly 500 saloons out of existence within the last few months. All of these saloons have considerable cigar stock on hand, and as they are not required to close until a month or two after each district goes dry, they are endeavoring to sell out and are buying nothing new. In fact, even if they wanted to buy few jobbers would sell them. Of course there will be no decrease in the number of cigars smoked—the number may even increase—and the place of saloons will be taken by billiard parlors, soft drink places and cigar stands, but until the saloons are finally closed these places are not starting up. Consequently the country trade is running along as much as possible on old stock, and while the opening of new places will bring out a big business when things settle down, the condition at present is very much unsettled.

M. A. Gunst & Co. have been giving special attention to their Manila cigars of late, making special displays of these goods in the windows of their large chain of retail stores. The display was up to the firm's usual high standard, and has already given good results. The new Gunst humidor has proved quite an attraction, and customers may be seen at all hours of the day inspecting samples of the fine lines of imported goods. Sello Blumenthal, of this company, is on his way East, and will make a trip to Cuba before returning.

Mr. Mendez, of Mendez & Gomez, the Porto Rico manufacturer, accompanied by Mr. Meyer, the traveling representative, is calling on the trade in San Francisco.

Dan Whelan, of the Gunst wholesale force, is on a vacation in the Santa Cruz mountains.

Emil Frank, distributor for S. Bachman & Co.'s lines in southern California, was a recent visitor in San Francisco. Mr. Regensburger, traveling for S. Bachman & Co., is taking a vacation in Canada.

Mr. Hoffman, of the Hoffman-Moore Co., has just returned from a visit to the trade in coast towns south of San Francisco.

Henry Meinecke, head of the cigar department of Wellman, Peck & Co., is on his vacation this week.

A new advertising campaign has recently been started on the "Silko" cigarettes of the Tobacco Company of California, in charge of Chas. I. Michaels. The line is a five-cent package, and the principal advertising is on billboards, with posters that are sure to attract attention.

E. S. Edwards, vice-president of the American Tobacco Company, spent several days in San Francisco last week, and is making a general tour of the coast. Another recent visitor was R. E. Christie, vice-president of the American Cigar Company.

D. Frohlichstein, representing the Hensheim Company, New Orleans, passed through this city a few days ago, and is now in Los Angeles.

E. C. Crane, the cigar window specialist, has returned from Sacramento, where he has been making some fine displays for leading dealers.

H. L. Judell, of H. L. Judell & Co., is again in the city after a trip to Ohio to attend the National Convention of Commercial Travelers. Emil Judell has just returned from a trip to Nevada, where considerable losses have been suffered lately from fires and floods.

Arthur Bachman, of S. Bachman & Co., has been calling on his Northern connections.

Carl Koenig, traveling for Frankel, Gerds & Co., has just returned from the Elks' Convention at Portland, Ore.

Joseph Michalitschke, head of Michalitschke Bros. & Co., returned the first of the week from an outing in the Sierras, near Yosemite.

Sam Zuckerman, of Linkman & Co., the Chicago pipe manufacturer, is now in Los Angeles, having spent last week in San Francisco.

W. I. Pixley, coast representative of the Frismuth & Dill tobacco lines, etc., is still at Seattle, Wash., but will probably return to Portland before long. He will be in the North until the end of the year.

R. V. Morrison, representing the Cayey-Caguas Cigar Company, spent last week with Chas. Mattheas & Co., of this city.

A. J. Meyer, representing Salvador Sanchez & Co., of Tampa, is in San Francisco this week.

Exploitation Work on Coast Often Falls Flat

Attributed to Ignorance of Conditions by Manufacturers and of Classes of Goods Demanded—Some Firms Very Successful in Same Scheme

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.

SOME of the special exploitation work undertaken within the last year seems to have fallen rather flat, and in some cases the results do not seem commensurate with the money spent. This may be attributed partly to lack of knowledge of Coast conditions, and of the classes of goods demanded in different localities. Many people in Eastern manufacturing centers do not seem to realize, in working for Coast business, how distinct and widely separated the centers of population are, and how much more time and money is involved in reaching a given number of people than in the older and more thickly settled parts of the country.

Some of the special campaigns, however, have been directed by people well acquainted with conditions, and are being continued with no little success. One of these is in the interest of Nestor Gianiclis cigarettes, in which George Caematis is working with the Edward Wolf Company. Large and striking tower displays of these goods have recently been made at a Gunst store in this city, and Bert Berovich's place in Oakland. Mr. Caematis is now at San Jose, Cal., arranging for a similar display with H. Berovich. Mr. Wolf reports an extremely heavy run on Manila goods. While he is preparing to do a lot of business with the new "La Prueba" line, his leader is still "La Insular." He received a big shipment on the 15th, and within six hours they were all shipped out. The next large lot is expected early in August. Mr. Wolf returned a few days ago from a vacation in the Sierras.

Martin Brothers Remove to New Quarters

Martin Brothers, a leading wholesale and retail tobacco firm, of Waterloo, Iowa, recently moved into their new quarters in that city. Workmen have been engaged in remodeling the new building, and have installed many new and modern devices needed to operate a first-class store.

Quarter-sawed oak has been used in the construction, together with plate and art glass. Tile flooring has been laid in the front room, which will be the retail section. To the rear of the retail department has been built a large humidor, which will be used to hold the stock of fine Havana cigars carried by the company.

On the second floor in the rear has been arranged a large display room for pipes and fine tobaccos. The working force of the company will be increased as conditions warrant. Nine people will be employed in the office and two in the retail department. Six traveling salesmen will handle the business on the outside.

Joseph T. Snyder Opens New Stand

The new cigar stand in the Dodge Drug Store, 279-281 Main street, Buffalo, was recently opened by Joseph T. Snyder, and has proved to be a success. There was an abundance of free cigar cases, carnations and other souvenirs, and a large staff of salesmen was needed to take care of the crowd. The men who will work permanently behind the counter will be Andrew Birtch and Adrian Keogh.

Edwin P. Dodge, proprietor of the drug store in which Mr. Snyder's new stand is located, was the originator of the Cahoon-Lyon chain of drug stores in Buffalo. Mr. Dodge, like Mr. Snyder, is a heavy advertiser.

Dealers in Hub City Doing Good Business—Rosenthal Bros. & Bendetson Add New San Telmo Cigar to List

Boston, July 24.

THE cigar and tobacco trade is now doing a good business. Summer hotels and park amusement places are giving large orders for Havana and domestic cigars, cigarettes, etc. The leaf tobacco trade is fairly good, the Sumatra leaf now used in large quantities at all of the large manufactories being in great demand.

G. Frank Davenport reports that the sale of the "Annie Pixley" ten-cent cigar is large, and he has to keep busy to supply the demand for jobbers. He has lately received an order for 10,000 at one of the popular summer hotels.

All the retail cigar stores on Bowdoin Square, Court street, Green street, Howard street and Cambridge street report business as good, Havana cigars having the call.

George L. Storm & Co., of Federal street, Boston, have secured the services of G. Ditman, formerly with Daniel Frantz & Co., and the popular salesman J. Taylor. They are working on the "Bank Note" cigar.

Wait & Bond have advanced their "Blackstone Perfecto" cigars from $60 to $65 per thousand.

L. B. McKitterick (M. Melachrino Co.) spent a few days in town last week visiting the trade. He says Boston is doing as well as any of them.

With each carton of 100 "Egyptian Luxury" cigarettes one package of "Turkey Red" cigarettes is given gratis, and with each 50 carton a silk college strip.

Boston is taking very kindly to the new "Philip Morris" twenty-two carat, gold-tipped cigarettes. Frank Swick reports conditions very satisfactory all over his territory and district.

At a cigar store on Salem street, Boston, kept by a Hebrew and his wife, there was quite a commotion and fire last week. While they were out sounding an alarm some enterprising boys were busy getting things out. One had the cash register, others were helping themselves to all the cigars and cigarettes they could get until the irate proprietor returned with policemen. The fire was soon put out by a chemical engine.

E. J. Rich, of the Theocaris cigarette concern, was in Boston last week showing a new style package.

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. has sent a notice to the trade here stating that twenty-four five-cent packages of smoking tobacco will be given free with each sixty pounds of their listed brands ordered.

H. L. Rogers, New England representative for the "Havana Ribbon" (Bayuk Bros. Co.), reports a steadily growing business.

Rosenthal Bros. & Bendetson, jobbers, have added a new nickel cigar to their list. The cigar is made by the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company.

H. H. Schonheit, of the "Twelfth Night" cigarette force, has secured a number of fine window displays for his goods in different parts of the city.

The Beiringer Bros. Co. has added another retail store to its string by securing the old stand of Samuel Barnard on Hanover street.

P. H. Morris will open a retail and wholesale cigar and tobacco store on Market street, Haverhill.

Frank Pearson, druggist, has sold his store at the corner of Grove and Main streets, Brockton, and has entered the employ of the O'Neil Pharmacy, Taunton.

Walter C. Taylor will open a new drug store at the corner of Woodlawn avenue and Tyler street, Pittsfield.

James F. Moriarity has resigned his position at the Maplewood Pharmacy, Pittsfield, and will become manager of the Morningside Pharmacy.

E. C. Weymouth (Wm. Duke & Sons Co.) called upon the trade here last week, visiting the jobbers and dealers. "Crema" cigars are receiving considerable advertising in the daily papers this last month.

The American Tobacco Company has notified the trade here that the gratis of two packages of (Sweet Caporal) little cigars, which were given with Dirby little cigars, is withdrawn.

Emil Abraham, representative of the American-West Indies Sales Company, came to Boston this week and reports business as fair.

The American Tobacco Company has removed the gratis on "Liberty" and "Veteran," beginning with last week, and (Wm. Duke Sons Co.) have withdrawn the gratis on "Richmond Straight Cut" cigarettes.

Wm. F. HENDERSON.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

Lancaster Manufacturers Jubilant as to Prospects

LANCASTER, July 24.

MANUFACTURERS are jubilant over the outlook for this district. After a careful canvass of the firms which produce the most cigars, the writer can state with conviction that the trade at this writing has more reason to be optimistic than for several summers previous.

Considering that conditions are as good as they are now, there is no reason at all why the fall business should not be the best in years. Many factories have already many orders on file for fall delivery, and in addition have good prospects for many more.

Of course there are manufacturers, here and there, who are still complaining of the dullness, but one will always find some kicking no matter how hopeful the outlook is.

The leaf men are not as optimistic as the manufacturers, yet they state that when the factories run on orders for a time their stocks will soon be depleted, which will mean to an extent a revival of business for them. Of course there are many leaf men whose business is chiefly on the outside and who are not materially affected by the local situation.

There has not been much doing in the 1911 leaf, although it is reported that some of it has been already worked into cigars. The leaf is sweating nicely and it will in all probability be all that can be wished for.

The recent rains have helped the tobacco in the fields immensely and in a way is making up for the continued dry spell, which was so pronounced that in some sections the plants were burned badly, necessitating replanting.

William Levy, the leaf man and manager of the factory of the S. R. Moss Cigar Co., is again home after a trip of two months' duration in Europe. Mr. Levy was accompanied by his wife. He was pretty well tired out when he left and the trip has been of great benefit in restoring him to good health.

Samuel B. Kellenberger has taken over the cigar store of Charles F. Schultz on East Chestnut street.

Robert Smith, who was connected with S. H. Wolf, of Brownstown, for over fifteen years, died there recently at the age of thirty-nine years.

Henderson's store is making an attractive display of "Little Brindle" cigars, manufactured by Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., of Philadelphia.

George S. Endslow, a Lancaster county tobacco planter, is trying an experiment on a farm he owns in Perry county, this State, which will be watched with interest. Mr. Endslow avers that the soil and climatic conditions in that county are favorable to the growing of tobacco, and he has set out 15,000 plants raised in this county to prove his statement.

The Shissler shop, which has possibly the most complete line of goods in the city, is featuring the "Fatima" cigarette. The Shissler brands of cigars are making good headway wherever they have been placed.

Frank B. Trout, of Everybody's Cigar Store, on North Queen street, has gone on a trip to Europe.

York Manufacturers and Cigar Box Men Busy

YORK, July 24.

FARMERS in this locality are certainly going the limit on their crops and tobacco appears to be taking up much of their time.

The tobacco is doing fairly well, considering the late start, which it has not quite made up. In some places it is very uneven, due in part to the hot and dry weather, which burnt up some of the plants. Green worms are numerous and in some places cut and wire worms are also found busily at work doing damage. The recent rains have been greatly needed and the crops fairly shot up after the moisture struck them.

H. F. Kohler, the cigar manufacturer and register of wills, who was also vice-president of the York Tri-State Baseball Team, has resigned his position and declares he is through with the game in this city. His many friends regret his stepping down, as Mr. Kohler has been an ardent fan and has materially assisted in every way to produce a winning team. He stated that the team has been grossly mismanaged, which accounts for its standing in the league race.

The several cigar box factories in York are unusually busy for this time of year and large shipments are being made to the different factories in the Ninth Internal Revenue District. The increase in the cigar trade the past month is given as the cause for the improvement. The months of June, July and August are usually dull ones, with many factories decreasing their forces, but this year all of these concerns are now working full time.

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, of New York, has leased the Newman Building at Hanover, formerly occupied by the Hanover Cigar Company, for a term of five years, and opened a cigar factory there. Only a limited number of hands will be employed at first, but the firm expects to put from 75 to 125 hands at the bench in a short time.

Cigar manufacturers in Red Lion and vicinity claim that unless there is decided revival in the cigar industry the crop of tobacco of 1912 will be wanted only by a few dealers, there being a large supply on hand of the crops of 1910 and 1911. Should the American Tobacco Company and the Eisenlohns stay out of the market for the 1912 crop there will be a big drop in prices.

A report from Red Lion states that J. T. Grove, messenger on the Maryland and Pennsylvania Railroad from York to Red Lion, purchased at the York revenue office for the factories of Red Lion and vicinity during the year, from July 18, 1911, to July 18, 1912, stamps amounting to $203,915, this being $67,658.25 in excess of the last year. From July 18, 1905, to July 18, 1912, Mr. Grove purchased stamps amounting to $1,398,618.01.

John Sheetz, of Dallastown, has gone to Mt. Carmel to take charge of a cigar factory located there.

Thieves appear to have taken a liking to the cigars and tobacco in the store of Peter McNamara in this city. One night last week they broke in and took away several slot machines and a large amount of cigars and tobacco. The place was also entered about three weeks ago, but at that time very little was taken, the thieves evidently being scared away.

Conditions in Reading Slowly Improving

READING, July 24.

THE manufacturers in this district are doing an increased business, although things are not near as promising as they could be. The improvement is more noticeable in the larger plants, and they are working usually with full forces. The smaller factories are also feeling a revival in the trade and are fervently hoping that conditions will soon warrant an increase in the forces of cigarmakers.

J. U. Fehr & Son, the prominent leaf dealers, have just completed packing 25,000 boxes of the best Pennsylvania tobacco they have ever bundled. They are now working on Ohio tobacco.

John G. Spatz, of John G. Spatz & Co., is on an extended trip through the New England States, where he reports conditions very favorable for his brands.

One of the recent trade visitors in Reading was H. F. Wint, of Allentown, a leading jobber of that city, where he is distributing the "Rose O'Cuba" cigar in that part of the State for the Fleck Cigar Co.

The Yocum factory as usual is possibly the busiest in town. This is not surprising, considering that the firm is pushing their products throughout the Middle West and Pacific Coast.

The Fleck Cigar Company reports a brisk business on their "Rose O'Cuba" and "Royal Bob" and shortly expect to wage an aggressive selling campaign on these brands.

Charles Brenciser Sons report a good business at their Seventh street store. The "Chief Joseph" is being pushed hard in Reading and is becoming a very popular smoke.

The retail trade shows the usual midsummer dullness and dealers do not expect any pronounced revival until cooler weather.

New Concerns to Fight Tuckett Cigar Co.

Two new cigar manufacturing concerns will soon be incorporated in Hamilton, Canada, whose object is to compete with the reorganized Tuckett Cigar Co., Ltd., of Montreal.

The new plant will be built by William Presnail, who at one time was connected with the Tuckett Company. The other concern, which will be backed by Hamilton capital to the extent of $25,000, started business July 8th.

James Logue has gone into cigar manufacturing, in Faribault, Minn. He was formerly connected with the Kasper cigar factory of that place.

"The Perego & Moore Cigar Co., of St. Joseph, Mo., has just closed a deal with C. W. Canfield, formerly secretary and Kansas representative of the Kansas City Cigar Co., who will in the near future represent the Perego & Moore Cigar Co. in Kansas, lower part of Missouri and Kansas City, Mo. In securing the services of Mr. Canfield this firm considers they are very fortunate.

S. Friedenthal is one of the latest entries in the jobbing field in New Jersey. He opened up in Newark on July first and will handle a line of domestic clear Havana and a wide assortment of Porto Rico brands.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

No Noticeable Change in New York--Pennsylvania Packers Show Little Interest in New Crop-- Wisconsin Acreage in Vicinity of 40,000

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY.

THE local leaf market appears to have settled down to its customary mid-summer monotony. While there has been little trading done, the leaf men as a rule are cheerful, arguing that the majority of the factories throughout the country are busy and that the activity will affect them ere long.

The chief demand recently has been for Sumatra, Wisconsin binders and Connecticut tobaccos. Importers of the Dutch leaf claim a number of sales of considerable size by prominent manufacturers. It is thought that others will soon follow when they see there is no indication of a drop in prices. The Havana market has been very quiet, no sales of any large amounts having been reported.

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER.

ACCORDING to present appearances the new crop will be all that can be desired. The farmers earnestly wished for rain several weeks ago, and when the showers finally arrived the plants lost no time in growing. Conditions have been favorable from the start and the rain of last week has been the final touch to make the plants grow nicely.

The packers show very little interest in the new crop. This should occasion no surprise. The warehouses in this vicinity are said to be so overstocked now that the leaf men are apprehensive as to its final disposal. With all of the 1911, over half of the 1909 and much of the 1910 crop on hand, it is not to be wondered that they show so little interest.

It was supposed that the acreage would be smaller this season than in former years, but such appears not to be the case. Growers evidently look for a pronounced revival in the market, which will relieve the packers. If this prophecy is not soon in evidence it can be put down as a sure guess that planters will receive a lower price for their next crop of tobacco than for some years past.

There have been a number of sales of 1910 goods to firms in Philadelphia and New York. The 1911 also has been selling well, but there has not been much doing in 1909, as naturally has been expected.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON.

THE tobacco growers of Wisconsin have succeeded in getting out about all the intended acreage, which is generally conceded to be a slight increase over that of a year ago—some-where in the vicinity of 40,000 acres in the State.

The tobacco crop is progressing under about as satisfactory weather conditions as could be desired. Recent rains covering nearly all sections of the State has given growers opportunity to complete the transplanting and resetting so that practically the intended crop is standing in the fields. The early set has a splendid outlook and is fully as forward as growers desire, while the later fields have a good start and a healthy growth. If the growers can afford time to keep the cultivators going and weeds down there is hope for a fine crop.

There is very little trading going on in the country districts and among the packers only usual small business is reported. The only transaction of importance of late is the sale of the balance of the A. N. Jones packing of '06 at Janesville of some 700 cases to G. W. Spitzer. This is the last lot of any size of that year's growth remaining in the State. The last season's packings are reported to be sweating satisfactorily.—Reporter.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD.

THE recent rains helped tobacco all through this section. In Windsor and Thompsonville the rain was heavier than in other places. Tobacco has taken a new start and the late tobacco will recover from the drought.

The rain gave new life to growing crops and while the rainfall was not great it will help to keep the tobacco along until more comes. The tobacco in some sections is suffering badly for the want of rain, while in other sections it seems to be standing the drought well. The late set tobacco is standing the dry weather better than that set out early, the latter having budded out rather low.

Tobacco under cloth will be able to pull through with very little rain from now on, but sun grown crops are less fortunately situated, and in many instances the drought damage has been extremely heavy. In some cases bottom leaves have turned yellow and plants are beginning to top out prematurely.

There have been several buyers through this section recently looking for old tobacco. Some has been found in the hands of the growers and some still remains, although the supply is diminishing. The dry weather will have a tendency to hold up prices on old goods.

Final certificate of dissolution of Avon Tobacco Company, Avon, has been filed with the Secretary of State, Julius Lichtenstein, Leonard A. Cohn and Gus Kahn, trustees, certifying that all the assets have been distributed to the American Sumatra Tobacco Company.

Some of the early set tobacco is about ready for the first picking and the growers who expect to harvest by the priming method are making preparations to begin the work.

NORTH CAROLINA.

WINSTON-SALEM.

THE tobacco crop in the Piedmont section is looking fine. Although it is pretty early to predict the yield, it can be said that, barring accidents and hard luck, the output will be a record breaker.

The Winston warehouses will open up for business on August 1st, but there will be little doing until later in the season, when primings are selling. The South Carolina markets opened up about July the 8th with good sales.

VIRGINIA.

DANVILLE.

THE crop is looking fine, but is irregular, some of the plants being large, while others are small. The weather, as a rule, has been good and there is no reason why the new crop should not be all that can be desired.

From present indications it is not probable that the yield per acre will be as heavy as last year, but owing to the increased acreage the average crop, as far as quantity is concerned, will be raised.

Buy Tobacco for French Monopoly

Two Agents in Baltimore Purchasing Leaf for Foreign Government
Which Controls the Business

TWO agents of the French Government are now in Maryland making purchases of leaf to be used by that monopoly. They are M. Giardville and M. de Monttravel and acquire annually 12,000 hogshead which means that they will leave about $800,000 in the hands of that State's tobacco growers and dealers.

Every year the French agents come to this country to buy Maryland tobacco. While they will also purchase a quantity in Ohio they secure a larger quantity in Baltimore. Napoleon the Great, early last century, made the tobacco trade in France a state monopoly and it has remained a state monopoly ever since. The Government operates the tobacco shops.

Many of these are used in providing pensions. For instance, a widow of an army man will be given the right to conduct a tobacco shop, which is worth so many francs a year. She will sub-let the privilege to a man and the profit in the transaction is hers. But the Government is in control of all establishments. The Maryland tobacco is very popular in France and there are many Frenchmen who will have no other kind.

Joseph Ferst, until a short time ago senior member of the wholesale house of M. Ferst Sons Company, of Savannah, Ga., now represents M. I. Stachelberg & Company, of Tampa. Mr. Ferst is now on a trip through the West and reports marked success with the Stachelberg brands.

Buys Interest in Haas Tobacco Co. of Buffalo

George Davis, Formerly With Spaulding & Merrick, of Chicago, now With Reorganized Firm

The capital stock of the Haas Tobacco Co., of Buffalo, has been increased to $100,000 and a number of other changes have also been made. George Davis, of Syracuse, at one time connected with Spaulding & Merrick, of Chicago, has acquired an interest in the concern and will act as its secretary. Samuel Brown, who has been manager of the company, will remain in charge and has stated that the firm will do business as heretofore with no change in its policy. To take care of their increasing trade they have been compelled to add another floor to their establishment and have made a few other changes, the principal one being the moving of the office to the second floor.

Another Store for Heegaard-Sloan Drug Company

The Heegaard-Sloan Drug Co., of Buffalo, New York, which has a large cigar department in each of its stores, held a formal opening of its sixth stand, 588 Main street, on July 12th. The concern now has six successful stores, and each carries a representative line of well-known cigars. H. C. Heegaard and H. A. Sloan, the proprietors, superintended the formal opening.

Tobacco Department in a Chinese Store

In speaking of the tobacco department in a Hong Kong store, a consular report states:

It is a large one, and one of its chief features is Manila cigars and tobaccos and the products of the Anglo-American Tobacco Trust, both imported and those manufactured in the Chinese factories of that organization. Dutch, Sumatra, Egyptian, Turkish, and other products are handled to some extent.

The Bourbon Warehouse Company of Paris, Kentucky, will erect a new factory on the site of the old Barns concern in that city. The new building will be 250 by 150 feet, will be two stories in height, constructed of brick and when completed will cost about $30,000.

A new corporation, to be known as the Goff, Way & Brand Co., has been organized at Elmira, N. Y., with $200,000 capital, by Herbert C. Way, W. W. Seely, George J. Vetter, Charles G. Brand and Gustavus A. Goff. They will grow and pack tobacco chiefly of the Connecticut and Big Flats varieties. They expect to have immense warehouse facilities.

The Edward J. Dray Co., of New London, Conn., a new wholesale and retail liquor and tobacco concern, recently filed articles of incorporation to do business in that State. The capital stock is $5000 and the incorporators are: Edward J. Dray, Walter E. Dray and Mary Dray, all of New London.

J. S. Young Company Declares Dividend

Stockholders to Receive 5 Per Cent. on Common Stock for Half Year Ending June 30th

The directors of the J. S. Young Company on July 18th declared a dividend of 5 per cent. on the common stock for the half-year ended June 30th. This company handles a portion of the business formerly under the direct control of the MacAndrews & Forbes Company, and bears approximately the same relation to that company as the Liggett & Myers Company bears to the American Tobacco Company. In splitting up the old tobacco combination, under the Supreme Court decree, the MacAndrews & Forbes Company sold about one-third of its business to the J. S. Young Company.

Tobacco Culture in Syria

The higher regions in this Province are well adapted for the culture of the tobacco plant, and this industry could be developed profitably in several localities were it not for the restrictions imposed by the Regie des Tabacs de l'Empire Ottoman (Government monopoly). Whereas in the bordering Province of Lattakea cultivation of tobacco is encouraged to the point of constituting one of the principal resources of the natives, the Vilayet of Aleppo produces only a portion of the tobacco needed for local consumption.

In the district of Aintab a very strong quality of tobacco is raised and exported to Egypt. Last year a shipment of this quality was made to the United States and there is some hope that this trial will attract further orders. It is said that the Aintab tobacco can be used advantageously for cigar filler.

The El Modelo Tobacco Company, of Summerdale, Baldwin County, Ala., has filed articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State. It has an authorized and subscribed capital stock of $75,000 and will grow fine tobacco. Incorporators are: J. J. Wood, H. A. Dehlinger and W. H. Krames.

During the year 1911 there were exported from Jamaica to the United States 5,372 cigars. During the year 1910-11 there were exported from Kingston, Jamaica, to the United States 874 cigars.

E. A. Kline & Co., of Cleveland, recently sent out circulars to the trade stating that E. A. Kline had retired from the concern. The new president of the firm is now Max Mendelsohn. Grover J. Mendelsohn is secretary and treasurer. It is expected that the firm name will soon be changed. Max Mendelsohn is calling on the trade in that territory and will soon make an extensive trip through the East.

The S. S. Pierce Co., of Boston, distributors for the "Overland" cigars, are advertising this brand in the daily papers of the Hub City.

Buys Interest in Haas Tobacco Co. of Buffalo

George Davis, Formerly With Spaulding & Merrick, of Chicago, now With Reorganized Firm

The capital stock of the Haas Tobacco Co., of Buffalo, has been increased to $100,000 and a number of other changes have also been made. George Davis, of Syracuse, at one time connected with Spaulding & Merrick, of Chicago, has acquired an interest in the concern and will act as its secretary. Samuel Brown, who has been manager of the company, will remain in charge and has stated that the firm will do business as heretofore with no change in its policy. To take care of their increasing trade they have been compelled to add another floor to their establishment and have made a few other changes, the principal one being the moving of the office to the second floor.

Another Store for Heegaard-Sloan Drug Company

The Heegaard-Sloan Drug Co., of Buffalo, New York, which has a large cigar department in each of its stores, held a formal opening of its sixth stand, 588 Main street, on July 12th. The concern now has six successful stores, and each carries a representative line of well-known cigars. H. C. Heegaard and H. A. Sloan, the proprietors, superintended the formal opening.

Tobacco Department in a Chinese Store

In speaking of the tobacco department in a Hong Kong store, a consular report states:

It is a large one, and one of its chief features is Manila cigars and tobaccos and the products of the Anglo-American Tobacco Trust, both imported and those manufactured in the Chinese factories of that organization. Dutch, Sumatra, Egyptian, Turkish, and other products are handled to some extent.

The Bourbon Warehouse Company of Paris, Kentucky, will erect a new factory on the site of the old Barns concern in that city. The new building will be 250 by 150 feet, will be two stories in height, constructed of brick and when completed will cost about $30,000.

A new corporation, to be known as the Goff, Way & Brand Co., has been organized at Elmira, N. Y., with $200,000 capital, by Herbert C. Way, W. W. Seely, George J. Vetter, Charles G. Brand and Gustavus A. Goff. They will grow and pack tobacco chiefly of the Connecticut and Big Flats varieties. They expect to have immense warehouse facilities.

The Edward J. Dray Co., of New London, Conn., a new wholesale and retail liquor and tobacco concern, recently filed articles of incorporation to do business in that State. The capital stock is $5000 and the incorporators are: Edward J. Dray, Walter E. Dray and Mary Dray, all of New London.

ABLIE:—ABBE is the corrected form—24,692. For cigars, cigarettes, cheroots, stogies, chewing and smoking tobacco. July 18, 1912. C. B. Henschel Manufacturing Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

TRANSFER.

LADY ABERDEEN:—24,676. For cigars, cigarettes, cheroots, stogies, chewing and smoking tobacco. July 15, 1912. Registered March 11, 1912, by Kaufmann, Pasbach & Voice, New York. Transferred to J. J. Rupp, Denver, Pa.

J. S. Young Company Declares Dividend

Stockholders to Receive 5 Per Cent. on Common Stock for Half Year Ending June 30th

The directors of the J. S. Young Company on July 18th declared a dividend of 5 per cent. on the common stock for the half-year ended June 30th. This company handles a portion of the business formerly under the direct control of the MacAndrews & Forbes Company, and bears approximately the same relation to that company as the Liggett & Myers Company bears to the American Tobacco Company. In splitting up the old tobacco combination, under the Supreme Court decree, the MacAndrews & Forbes Company sold about one-third of its business to the J. S. Young Company.

Tobacco Culture in Syria

The higher regions in this Province are well adapted for the culture of the tobacco plant, and this industry could be developed profitably in several localities were it not for the restrictions imposed by the Regie des Tabacs de l'Empire Ottoman (Government monopoly). Whereas in the bordering Province of Lattakea cultivation of tobacco is encouraged to the point of constituting one of the principal resources of the natives, the Vilayet of Aleppo produces only a portion of the tobacco needed for local consumption.

In the district of Aintab a very strong quality of tobacco is raised and exported to Egypt. Last year a shipment of this quality was made to the United States and there is some hope that this trial will attract further orders. It is said that the Aintab tobacco can be used advantageously for cigar filler.

The El Modelo Tobacco Company, of Summerdale, Baldwin County, Ala., has filed articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State. It has an authorized and subscribed capital stock of $75,000 and will grow fine tobacco. Incorporators are: J. J. Wood, H. A. Dehlinger and W. H. Krames.

During the year 1911 there were exported from Jamaica to the United States 5,372 cigars. During the year 1910-11 there were exported from Kingston, Jamaica, to the United States 874 cigars.

E. A. Kline & Co., of Cleveland, recently sent out circulars to the trade stating that E. A. Kline had retired from the concern. The new president of the firm is now Max Mendelsohn. Grover J. Mendelsohn is secretary and treasurer. It is expected that the firm name will soon be changed. Max Mendelsohn is calling on the trade in that territory and will soon make an extensive trip through the East.

The S. S. Pierce Co., of Boston, distributors for the "Overland" cigars, are advertising this brand in the daily papers of the Hub City.

Increase in Country's Production of Cigarettes of Almost 2,000,000,000

Annual Report of Commissioner Cabell Also Shows Larger Output in Cigars, Snuff and Manufactured Tobacco in 1912 Than in Previous Fiscal Year

DESPITE the general depression in other lines of business, which to a certain extent always leaves an impression on the tobacco trade, the annual statement of R. E. Cabell, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to the Treasury Department at Washington, for the fiscal year ending June 30 shows that in almost all the lines of the trade there was a decided increase over the previous year.

Perhaps the most noticeable feature in the report is that of cigarettes, which have an increase over 1911 of almost 2,000,000,000—a wonderful growth. Cigars also make a good showing, there being almost four and one-half million more manufactured than in 1911. The production of snuff and manufactured tobacco was also far ahead of the previous year. Small cigars and cigarettes at $3.60 show a decrease.

The figures for the past two years showing the comparisons are as follows:

| | 1911. | 1912. | Increase. |
|----------------------------|---------------|----------------|---------------|
| Cigars | 7,251,394,686 | 7,256,390,303 | 4,995,617 |
| Small Cigars | 1,223,059,000 | 1,032,728,800 | *190,330,200 |
| Cigarettes | 9,233,210,400 | 11,221,624,992 | 1,988,414,592 |
| Cigarettes at $3.60 | 21,141,322 | 17,911,819 | *3,229,503 |
| Snuff, lbs. | 28,146,832 | 30,079,482 | 1,932,650 |
| Manufactured Tobacco, lbs. | 380,794,673 | 392,785,146 | 12,990,473 |

The same report also gives the production for Porto Rico. In both cigars and cigarettes there was a decrease. The revenue collections were as follows:

| | 1911. | 1912. | Decrease. |
|---|--------------|--------------|-------------|
| Cigars weighing more than three pounds per thousand | $530,349.31 | $507,400.23 | $22,949.08 |
| Cigarettes weighing more than three pounds per thousand | 658.98 | 488.61 | 170.37 |
| Cigarettes weighing not more than three pounds per thousand | 15,259.50 | 15,191.10 | 68.40 |

The figures for the Philippines show an increase in cigars, but decreases in all other lines. The revenue collections were as follows:

| | 1911. | 1912. | Decrease. |
|---|-------------|--------------|---------------|
| Cigars weighing more than three pounds per thousand | $83,414.23 | $218,531.31 | *$135,117.11 |
| Cigarettes weighing more than three pounds per thousand | 31.11 | 21.21 | 12.90 |
| Cigarettes weighing not more than three pounds per thousand | 10,497.11 | 6,203.51 | 4,293.60 |
| Manufactured Tobacco | 1,650.80 | 1.96 | 1,648.84 |

The increase in cigars shown above is especially worthy of notice, there being an increase in production of more than 150 per cent. over 1911.

No Tobacco Legislation Likely

The several bills now pending in Congress will in all likelihood not be handled in this session. The "Free Smokers" bill is said to contain a "joker," which will prohibit cigarmakers from taking their smokes from the factory.

Interest in the Cummins bill is also falling off and nothing will be done this session. The Martin bill, relating to the foreign leaf trade, may possibly pass, but this also is problematical. Congress will adjourn in possibly a week, and the time now left will be put on other matters.

New Scheme For Selling Havanas in England Equalizes Discounts

Some of the Leading Manufacturers Take Steps to Give the Smaller Importers a Chance—Beneficial Results Are Anticipated by All in the Trade

(Special Correspondence)

LONDON, ENGLAND, August 2.

Changes in the arrangements under which many of the most important Havana brands are sold have just been announced. That the controllers of the brands in question have hit upon the right one there can, they consider, be little doubt. For at its base is an absolute equality of treatment. The brands referred to are those of the Henry Clay and Boek and Co., Ltd.; Havana Cigar and Tobacco Factories, Ltd.; H. de Cabanas and Carbajal; Havana Commercial Company, and J. S. Murias and Company.

Since 1908 the cigars of these companies have been sold here on a basis which was then considered fair, but which at the present time has proved unfair. Some buyers got five per cent., some two and one-half per cent., and some no discount, whatever the amount of their purchases. When a small buyer has grown and become a big buyer he has had a grievance. He has asked for a discount, but the arrangement then in force did not permit his reasonable request being complied with. To remove the manifest unfairness was essential.

It was ultimately decided that there was only one possible way, and that way has been adopted. It is briefly to place all buyers on a level, make it easy for the smallest dealers to get the goods at reasonable terms, and to make more advantageous buying solely dependent upon quantities purchased. No longer will a buyer have to press for a discount on a large quantity and go away disappointed. He.

Death Takes Arnold Tietig, Pioneer Manufacturer
Member of Cincinnati Cigar Firm Dies in That City After Long And Useful Career

CINCINNATI, August 10.

ARNOLD TIETIG, Sr., head of the firm of Arnold Tietig & Son, pioneer cigar manufacturers of this city, died suddenly of heart disease at his home here today. He was one of the pioneer cigar men of the Middle West.

Mr. Tietig was born in Bremen, Germany, in 1845, and came to this country in 1863, locating in Cincinnati, where he engaged in business as a cigar manufacturer in a small way, with his brother Henry, under the firm name of H. Tietig & Bro., which later was changed to Arnold Tietig & Son. The business met with success from the start, and at the present time the concern is established in its own modern concrete building (which was designed by one of Mr. Tietig's sons) and is doing a business of large volume.

Mr. Tietig was president of the Board of Trustees of the Bodmann German Protestant Widows' Home for many years. He is survived by his widow, three sons, Arnold, Jr., August and Rudolph, and a daughter. His funeral on August 12 was attended by many prominent cigar and leaf men.

SNUFF AS USED BY OUR FOREFATHERS

Practice Among Whites Dates From 1494—Rasps, Often Costly and Fine Pieces of Workmanship, Used to Powder Tobacco

THE practice of using snuff among the white race is said to date from 1494, the time of Columbus' second voyage to the New World. A friar accompanied the expedition, and it was he who first noticed the habit and made a note of it in his records. On the first voyage the smoking habit had been observed. Later, in 1502, the Spaniards saw that chewing of the weed was also indulged in, and since that time these three methods of using tobacco have prevailed wherever men congregate.

It has been said by historians that at the time tobacco was introduced in Europe, the middle of the sixteenth century, Europeans were subject to a disease, which probably would be diagnosed nowadays as catarrh. The physicians of that time, on the lookout for a remedy, experimented with tobacco, and it soon became a fad to use it as a curative measure for this troublesome disease of the olfactory nerves. This practice before long became general until all the countries of Europe were using the powdered tobacco, or "tabacca," as it was spelled at that time.

Snuff, as it is used nowadays, was unknown at that early period. Tobacco rasps or rasps were invented for the use of those persons who were addicted to the habit of snuffing the powder made from the tobacco leaf long before it became an article of such common use as to be ground and supplied in a commercial way in shops. For this purpose a small grinding machine was invented to be carried in the pocket. The tobacco leaves were bound together much as a cigar is nowadays, and the rasp applied to the end of the bundle thus tightly rolled up.

Tobacco at that period could be used only by the wealthy, the common people could not afford it, and naturally many of these earlier rasps were expensive and ornate in design. Tobacco was so expensive at this time that it was not until 1742, more than 150 years later, that it was manufactured for extensive commercial purposes. At that time the counter of every public house had a fairly sizable snuff box, which was placed there free for the use of its patrons.

It is interesting to note the evolution of these rasps, from the first plain steel ones used to the later more ornate ones, manufactured from ivory, silver and hard woods. The later specimens of metal were often elaborately engraved, and the wooden ones inlaid with precious metals and mother-of-pearl.

The rasp shown in Fig. I is one of the earlier type and was in use in England about 1650. It is made of steel, and it will be noted had no ornamentation of any kind. The larger part held the rasp, which reduced the leaf to a powder; the smaller chamber contained the ground snuff, the two portions being separated by a perforated partition which screened the snuff.

Ivory was also used in the more expensive rasps. The specimen, Fig. II, is a fine example of the engraver's art. It is beautifully carved and shows plainly that the artist was no mean workman. At the time this was made, the ground snuff was already appearing on the market, and it is an example, perhaps, of the highest type of rasp.

Figure III shows the back view of a public-house specimen of the usual type. As an inducement to help their custom, innkeepers often presented visitors with a pinch of snuff, a practice which probably has come down to us in the form of the free lunch. The proprietor of the inn or an assistant, would usually grind a day's supply, fill the box and then invite each customer upon his arrival, to take a pinch.

The specimen shown in Fig. IV is a specimen of the rasps used about 1757. It is of hard wood, inlaid with mother-of-pearl and fine lines of brass. The sliding lid shows the rasp and at the one end the cavity in which the ground snuff was kept.

The practice of selling snuff in ground form gradually became prevalent about 1760. The rasp was soon outclassed, and for the convenience of users the snuff-box came into use.

The earlier specimens ranged in style from the plain wood boxes to the more expensive patterns, made of gold, silver, shell and inlaid expensive woods.

Were some of these earlier users of the ground weed to go through some of our larger snuff factories, where it is manufactured by the ton, we venture the assertion that they would be of the opinion that wonders never cease. And it is quite a jump from 1494 to 1912—more than four centuries.

Tobacco Tester Smokes Eight Cigars At Once

Official Incumbent of Uncle Sam Has Nothing To Do But Consume Nicotine—Many Candidates for Job

UNCLE SAM'S chief cigar smoker, whose life each day is just one cigar after another, and sometimes eight at a lick, has had his identity revealed, and several candidates for his job are already in the field. They have little chance of usurping him, however, even should the administration change in November," says the "Boston Morning Herald."

The rush for his position was only to be expected after it was made known that its holder had nothing to do all day long but smoke cigars, and free cigars at that. True, the cigars are experimental ones and are manufactured by the Department of Agriculture; but despite these apparent drawbacks the health of the present incumbent has not suffered. His appetite, however, has been affected greatly, for since he took the position a decade ago, he has not been seen to eat or drink.

But tarry a while before you yourself make application for this job, for Uncle Sam's chief smoker is nothing more than a mechanical arrangement, the product of some hard-hearted inventive genius, who constructed it to take away from the department employes the joy and economy of smoking free cigars. Some of the employes bitterly assert that the inventor made the machine in spite, because he had been unable to secure a position for himself that would carry free smokes with it.

It is probable that the smoker would have enjoyed his position indefinitely and without the least interruption had it not been for a resolution introduced into the House recently by Representative Akin, of New York, who demanded information concerning "how much money was being spent manufacturing these cigars and who smoked them." The resolution has reached the Department of Agriculture, and Secretary Wilson in a few days will probably make answer to it. In the meantime, however, the secret has leaked out from employes of the department.

The experimental cigar-smoking plant has been in operation in the department since the first McKinley administration, and it is being continued, even working on August 1, in direct violation of law, because the continuing resolution had not been passed by the House and there is a law against any one working for the government without compensation. The cigar smoker in question, which has been at the mercy of the chief tobacconist of the department for years, is capable of smoking eight cigars at once. It is an arrangement of glass tubes with a water bottle attachment fastened to a spigot. As a bottle fills it overflows and the water siphons out, creating a partial vacuum that draws on the several cigars. Then there is a period of rest while the bottle is filling up, and then it takes another inhale.

Just what effect this continuous and excessive smoking has had on the apparatus has never been scientifically determined, that being a question that comes properly under Dr. Langworthy, in the office of nutrition investigations. It can be said, however, from general observation, that the glass tubes carrying the smoke have turned a sickly yellow from the deposit of nicotine. Probably the smoker has an acute case of tobacco heart. It certainly cannot run up a single flight of stairs, never having done such a thing since it has been in the department. It has no appetite either, for it has not been seen either to eat or drink for an indeterminate time.

In the early days of the tobacco experiments the clerks of the department were used in the smoking experiments. This plan was approved by their wives as leading to a great economy in food consumption, but the proprietor of the lunch room at the department complained to the secretary that the clerks who smoked the experimental cigars never bought any lunch. After that the machine was devised.

However, the secretary found that the earlier brand of smokes had their uses. Some of them he called Protectorinos. He always kept and still keeps a box in one side of his desk, and sometimes when he is busy and has a verbose caller he motions him to a chair that is fastened to the floor near the window, gives him a Protectorino and turns the electric fan pointing out of the window. It is said that this method is always effective.

So far as the machine-smoked brand is concerned, the employes of the department say that Col. Cosby, now superintendent of public buildings and grounds, really smoked the most of them. He was superintendent of the Washington aqueduct when the machine was first installed, and as it was run by hydrant power, it was always claimed that the colonel was really the vicarious smoker, as it were.

There was never any trouble about the cigar testing after the machine was put on the job, till one day the building inspector was sitting at the back window of the District Building when the wind was blowing from the Department of Agriculture. He called up Secretary Wilson on the 'phone and threatened to arrest him for violating the District smoke law. After that the draft from the smoking machine was turned into the sewer, and everything had gone with absolute smoothness until Representative Akin requested information. Well, if he does not get it officially from the department, he will find it all here. And some of it is true.

English Scheme for Selling Havanas

and every other house who buy in certain specified quantities, will get definite and stated terms, fair to all and therefore, presumably, satisfactory to all.

For the sake of example we will suppose a man wants the privilege of buying in bond. Before the innovation he would have had to require 5000 of one cheap size or 2500 of one fine size; now his order for 2000 of a cheap size or 1000 of a fine size carries the benefit of being filled from bond.

Under the old arrangement this was the limit of the benefit a dealer not on the specially favored lists could obtain. Under the new arrangement any dealer can earn two and one-half per cent. on the bonded price by taking the quantities formerly required to secure bonded prices net. Both in the case of bonded purchases and purchases carrying two and one-half per cent. discount the further provision is made for the dealer who does not find it convenient to reach the quantities specified. He can get these terms on smaller quantities of individual sizes by purchasing an assorted case of 5000 or 10,000 respectively. This is always easy to do as he has some 25 to 30 brands to choose from.

In addition to this immediate discount the wholesale dealer whose purchases aggregate considerable quantities during the year can earn an extra bonus, which is based on the quantity purchased during that period.

The principle underlying the new arrangements seems to be—after taking care of the large dealer, who, by the quantity of his purchase, can earn a larger discount than heretofore—to give the small man a fair chance.

Morris Burke

ALTHOUGH we have personally never met Morris Burke, whose picture is shown above, he comes highly recommended by the cigar men of Los Angeles, and having a high opinion of those hustling gentlemen, we take pleasure in introducing the aforesaid Morris Burke to our readers.

Mr. Burke, a cigar broker, "broke in" the trade by starting in the retail business in Los Angeles on April 1, 1900. Since that time he has purchased and sold cigars in twenty-six retail cigar stores in that city. During the past two years he has given much time to his brokerage lines, having sold two million stogies for the Wabash Cigar Company of Pittsburgh, and is also representing Eitel & Cassebohm, of Louisville, in that territory.

And Morris says he has just started. If that is the case, we will watch him with interest when he cuts loose. Guess we won't see him for dust. He also represents E. P. Gillespie of York, Pa., and we have good reasons for thinking his lines are far from unknown in that part of the country.

Warner Searle, one of the star salesmen of the Juan F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, left Philadelphia last week on a quick trip through the Middle West, during which time he will touch Chicago, Milwaukee and the principal cities en route. Mr. Searle has been quite successful in introducing the new "Sintoma" cigar and believes that it is destined to be one of the biggest sellers in the Portuondo line. He is backing up this belief with orders from the leading distributors in his territory. He will return to Philadelphia about the middle of September.

Sanford Goldberg, salesman for S. Ruppin, the Havana importer, recently called on the trade in New York after an extensive Western trip which extended as far as the Coast. He spent much of his time in San Francisco, which is his home.

Max Stern, of Sylvester & Stern, is paying a short visit to New York after a busy period in the Havana office. His firm has purchased an unusually large amount of Havana of the 1911 crop.

Eugene L. Butler, who was formerly connected with the Harry W. Watson Company, of Detroit, has resigned his position to go with Haas Bros., of Cincinnati. Frank Masonville, a former Spaulding & Merrick traveler, is covering the territory recently worked by Mr. Butler.

Archie Hiscopp is a new traveler for the Francis H. Leggett & Company cigar department of Detroit, and will cover the Ohio and Michigan territory of this company.

Jesse D. Newman, who has been assistant manager of the Seattle store of M. A. Gunst & Company, has been appointed manager to succeed Lee Marx, who resigned a short time ago, and who was given a farewell dinner by his many friends. Mr. Newman is well known and popular in the Northwest, having been with the Gunst concern for six years, and is bound to succeed in his new position.

The plans for the fall campaign on the "La Saramita" cigar of the Shields-Wertheim Company were formulated at the Cleveland office last week. The semi-annual gathering of the salesmen from all over the country was held and many ideas exchanged. Among the "La Saramita" hustlers present were: Sig S. Stein, J. C. Leverance, Fred P. Shields, Wm. Blasehke, Bert Smith and W. R. Stevenson.

Anthony Kleiner, of E. K. Kleiner & Company, has been visiting the Milwaukee trade, and from reports received from that territory has greatly assisted in further popularizing the "La Tampa." The Badger Tobacco Company has been pushing and distributing these goods in Milwaukee.

A. H. Caro, the genial and hustling traveler for Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, has been making the rounds of the Milwaukee trade and wearing the "Henry the Fourth" smile. He was working with the Yahr & Lange Drug Company, who job this high-class brand.

L. F. Webster, who had a wide acquaintance in St. Louis and vicinity, being connected with the Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, has resigned and will enter business.

Mr. Hammond, who has done much to push the "Cuesta-Rey" in the West, recently covered Salt Lake City, one of the strongholds of this fine smoke.

Paul Lindner, who has been the Utah representative for S. Anargyros, has been transferred to Chicago, which will be his future headquarters. Geo. Rottman, Louisiana representative, has been appointed to fill Mr. Lindner's place.

Leon L. Patty, vice-president of U. Koen & Company, New Orleans, and proprietor of the Southern Cigar and Tobacco Company, after an absence of over a month visiting the factories of the East, has returned.

J. N. Love, who has been connected with the American Tobacco Company for more than twelve years, has resigned. He has not stated as yet what his plans are for the future.

MORRIS BURKE

PROBLEMS of the RETAILER

Shouldering Burdens Broadens Subordinates

MANY young men who are working in cigar stores resent what they term the unloading of the bosses' burdens upon their shoulders, when in reality the cheerful shouldering of these burdens fits them for better things. Many lazy men, who want to shirk their own work, do shift their duties to other shoulders, and this same thing is often done by the hardest working and most competent managers, who want to bring out the strong qualities in the young men under their charge, and see what they amount to when weighed in the balance.

Those who have the assistance of young men can do them no greater favor in the battle of life than to gradually allow them to shoulder the mental burdens and responsibility which rightfully belong to the chief. Most young men will consider such responsibilities as compliments and will make themselves more valuable because of the trust, and these are the men who will eventually become leaders in their line of work, whatever it may be.

The young man's mind develops the same as his body, and in shouldering the mental burdens he broadens himself for better and greater things.

Much complaint is frequently heard from tobacco retailers at the methods used by manufacturers in using their window space. "Why, they come in, use my window to push their goods and what do I get out of it? Nothing." Yet this same man may allow a theatre lithographer to spoil a really attractive window display by hanging several unsightly bills in that window. Does he care more for two or three tickets to see some second-rate show than he does for his own business? Evidently so. It's a case of where he "gets something out of it." But what a small "something." By using that window himself and making attractive displays he will reap far greater dividends than by waiting for some enterprising manufacturer to come along and offer him a few dollars for it or to take theatre or lecture tickets for allowing some bill-hanger to make it look its worst.

Pertinent Pointers for the Clerk

The young man who thinks that physical condition has little to do with success, will find when his health is gone that opportunity has gone with it.

I don't care what man or what house is your employer, you, Mr. Seller of Goods, are working for yourself and the sooner you realize it the more it will be to your advantage.

It is cheaper to lose your argument than a good customer.

The first lesson in advertising should be what not to say. To get rich quick, teach the world what it wants, then stand in the path when it rushes for it.

If you keep both hands busy in patting yourself on the back, and your rival uses his in honest work, he will soon get ahead of you.

The salesman who thinks that it does not matter what he sells so long as he makes a sale, is not looking out for the best interests of the store, the customer or himself.

Use Schemes to Pull Trade

HAVE you ever stopped to consider why this customer or that one has been coming to your store for his daily smoke for years? You can't ask him, and yet you want to know.

By placing yourself in his position, you can think of numerous schemes to bring other men to your shop, perhaps for another reason, but for just as good a cause. The warm summer weather is giving many a merchant any number of opportunities to be of service to his customers, rendering them little courtesies which leave an impression on him and which cost barely else but the virtue of thoughtfulness.

One of the greatest discomforts in our cities just now is the heat. Several electric fans will do much to make your store a cool one, and a supply of small cardboard fans, containing your advertisement, will be appreciated by the man who is slowly melting down his linen collar. Ice water is inexpensive and will help to give all the impression that your store is the ideal hot-weather headquarters for tobacco users.

There are so many cigar stores now-a-days—and so many which carry any number of good, fresh, desirable smokes—that the man who appeals to and reaches the heart of the customer by his thoughtfulness for his comfort, will find that same man turning out of his way for the small personal services he appreciates so much.

The man who spends much time in wondering why he isn't promoted or why he doesn't get a raise might better be using it in making himself worth a raise.

OUR old friend Wilbur Glenn Voliva, of Zion City, Ill., always has something new up his sleeve. Now the latest announcement coming from Zion has to do with a country-wide crusade against tobacco. It is in fact Wilbur's great coup, and while it may be further courting of "Miss Notoriety," the Master of Zion says he is serious and intends to stomp the nation from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Needless to say he will hop on tobacco with much abandon, and there is no question but that Wilbur Glenn is some hopper. They do say history repeats itself, and if Voliva will think of the late John Alexander Dowie and his fate in the City of New York some years ago, he may hesitate. Anyhow, we are willing to wager a box of "two-fers" against a package of "makin's" that tobacco will be manufactured long after Voliva has made his trip and come home to roost.

An Indiana friend of mine related an amusing episode to me recently. He knew two brothers who were continually loaning each other their personal effects, and each one had considerable trouble in getting his stuff back again after it left his hands.

One day Fred loaned his suit case to Bill, who resides in a town about 50 miles away. The suit case was not returned as soon as Fred thought proper, Bill evidently forgetting about it. So he sent him a letter, reminding him of his absentmindedness and asking for the return of the grip.

It came all right, and also was sent collect. This was but a brotherly trick, and Fred would have thought nothing of it, but for the fact that the suit case was loaded down with four large, well-developed paving bricks. And paving bricks are pretty heavy. The charges on the package were seventy-five cents, but this was not all. Following the arrival of the suit case, Fred received a lengthy, anxious telegram from Bill, asking him whether the grip had arrived safely. This also was sent collect. That made seventy-five cents more. But the suit case was back at least, so Fred decided to forget it. He said that the next time he might as well buy another and save the worry.

"My dear," said an irate husband as he scanned his monthly bills, "you spend too much on false hair. Look at this item for puffs."

"Yes," replied the wife, "and you spend too much on cigars. Look what you spend for puffs."

"Consulted a physician this morning," said Smokem, "and he ordered me to give up my pipe."

"Give up your pipe, eh! What did he charge you for that?" said Chewen.

"Ten dollars. I guess he thought for the moment he was a plumber," retorted Smokem, as he refilled his briar.

A woman who had a rather hot head and was averse to letting her late henpecked hubby smoke in the house, went to a medium who produced to her entire satisfaction the spirit of her dead husband.

"My dear John," said the widow to the spirit, "are you happy now?"

"I am very happy," John replied.

"Happier than you were on earth with me?" she asked.

"Yes," was the reply. "I am far happier now than I was on earth. I can smoke here all I please."

"Tell me, John, what is it like in heaven?"

"Heaven," John replied, "I'm not in heaven."

"Talking about dry towns, have you ever been in Leavenworth, Kan.?" asked the commercial traveler in the smoking car. "No? Well, that's a dry town for you, all right."

"Can't they sell liquor at all there?" asked one of the men.

"Only if you have been bitten by a snake," said the traveler. "They have only one snake in the town, and when I got to it the other day, after standing in line for nearly half the day, it was too tired to bite."

That money cannot be both "present" and "absent" at the same time almost got W. M. Harris, formerly of The American Tobacco Co, in a heap of unexpected trouble. Mr. Harris wrote the little word "absent" on a check which he made out to a Miss Carrie Miller, public accountant of Chicago. Mr. Harris, furthermore, wrote that word as a "joke," but neither Miss Miller nor the Chicago banking officials were able to see it in that light.

The incident began when Harris became enthused over "absent treatments" for sickness, a school Miss Miller was enthusiastic about. Harris went to a number of meetings of the cult, and by dint of much faith and hard thinking soon found his health greatly improved. Then Miss Miller sent Harris a bill for $23 on account of these absent treatments. Mr. Harris considered the bill a joke and told a lawyer friend of the incident. The latter explained that a word written on a check would make it illegal. The lawyer was a joker, too. So Harris thought of the very appropriate word "absent" and gave Miss Miller a check for $23 with that word written thereon. The check was on the Corn Exchange National Bank where his account was conspicuous by its absence. A few days later Harris left Chicago on a pleasure trip. Meanwhile Miss Miller had deposited the check in her bank and it sailed through the Clearing House, but when it got back to the Corn Exchange National the "joke" check was no longer so humorous and when Mr. Harris returned to Chicago he had quite a little explaining to do.

Speaking of the new competitive conditions which have resulted from the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, a financial writer in the New York Times makes the following comment on the results they have worked out under the directions of Attorney-General Wickersham, who affirms that the dissolution plan which was approved by the court was the only feasible one short of absolute confiscation:

"Gradually, but surely, there begins to be understanding not only of the reasonableness of the attitude taken by the Attorney General, but also of the absolute sincerity with which those who were in control of the Standard Oil and of the American Tobacco Company complied, as they believe, with the mandate of the Supreme Court and the counsels of Attorney General Wickersham. Rapidly new interests are securing considerable holdings of the stock of the various corporations now independent but formerly subsidiary to the American Tobacco Company. One of the best illustrations of this is furnished by the recent reorganization of the United Cigar Stores Company. A careful study of the reorganization plan and of the methods adopted by this corporation since the dissolution of the old American Tobacco Company has served to convince business men here, the Administration at Washington, that this great corporation is not attempting by any subterfuge or indirect method to evade the mandate of the Supreme Court. The company has been buying very heavily wherever it could find the best market, and it has been buying without reference to any of the other companies which formerly, in association with it, were under the control of the American Tobacco Company. It is buying heavily of independent cigar manufacturers.

"There is, however, another very striking feature of the methods that have been adopted since the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company. All of the now independent companies have adopted very comprehensive methods of advertising. That certainly must be accepted as proof that the companies now purpose to get in all the business they can by strictly competitive methods. Before the organization of the Cigarette Trust, so-called, and also before the organization of the old American Tobacco Company, the competition between various corporations was so intense that it was necessary to spend great amounts of money in advertising.

"An officer of one of the largest of the lithographic companies of the United States said to the writer, shortly before the organization of the cigarette manufacturing combination, that the business furnished his corporation by the cigarette manufacturers of the United States aggregated about $800,000 in the previous year. Of course, after the combination was made and competition was ended it was unnecessary to expend money in this way. Great advertising, whether in publications or by means of posters, is always a certain proof of competition. And the return of the various corporations which were formerly subsidiary to the old American Tobacco Company to advertising methods, some of them on a vast scale, is proof which cannot be disputed that real competition has begun.

"Already these publicity methods of calling attention to the products of the various tobacco companies have resulted in an increase in business from 10 to 30 per cent., even more. Many of the companies are now pushed to their capacities. Probably competition will not be carried to the dangerous point which reckless cutting of prices involves, but there is to be real competition and there are to be ultimately new controlling interests in a majority, possibly all, of the corporations formerly controlled by the American Tobacco Company."

The month of August finds the vacation season at its height, with a corresponding lull in business in every branch of the cigar and tobacco trade. Retailers have long discounted this season, and the wise ones have used their idle moments to secure information and devise schemes which will enable them to increase their trade beginning September 1st.

Vacation has a double use to the retailer; not only does it give him an opportunity to go to the seashore and mountains for a deserved rest, but affords him leisure moments for a calm review of his business, and gives him a perspective that every one needs to rightly gauge conditions.

Merchants who use their vacation season for these ends will find it profitable.

What the "World" Thinks

¶Smokeless tobacco—chewing.

¶When they cut that tobacco melon last week did it flow tobacco juice?

¶A Toronto retail cigarist recently exhibited in his window the following letter attractively framed:

"Warning!—I have used tobacco all my life and am now 101 years old."

Here's a knockout for the antis.

¶By telegraph, long distance telephone, special delivery mail and plain every-day postage, one hundred requests for "Bull Moose" as a title for cigars, have poured into The Tobacco World Registration Bureau during the past fortnight. One hundred disappointed applicants! The title was pre-empted some years ago by some inspired and far-sighted manufacturer. What's in a name, after all?

Old Tobacco Stoppers Used by Beau Brummels

Were Invented At Time When the Weed Was Extremely Expensive and Every Available Particle Was Burned Up

THE old tobacco stoppers, without which no beau of times past would have considered himself socially equipped, were made in such numerous quantities, infinite variety, and were usually so beautiful and artistic in form that numbers of them have honorably survived and may yet be discovered by the diligent treasure hunter abroad.

Seen in the cabinet, hardly any little objects have a more persuasive charm and fascination. They lend themselves to display and have a quaintness and friendly intimacy lacking in articles of far more pretension. The tobacco stopper did not make its appearance at court, at any rate so openly as its more aristocratic cousins, the rasp and the snuff box. It must have been a masculine toy and its chief avenue the coffee house, the social tavern or some comfortable cranny of the private lodging.

The reason for the disappearance of tobacco stoppers is explained as we learn the use to which they were put. When, in early Jacobean days, the price of the recently introduced divine weed was eight shillings to ten shillings the pound, smokers necessarily burned their tobacco down to the very bottom of their pipes. The tobacco stoppers were then invented for pressing down the ashes in the bowl in order that no modicum of the fibre should be wasted and that the residuum of what was already smoked should, if possible, be smoked again.

This practice seems incredible in our present age of waste and cheapness and reminds one of the economies that were used upon the first introduction of tea. In the days of James I., as "tobacco drinking" became almost universal, gilded youths sat smoking on the stage at the comedies of Ben Jonson, pressing down the precious ash in their pipes as they criticised the humors of Epicene or the jealous Kiteley.

Then it was the fashion of the day to surprise one's neighbors with the unique and fanciful nature of one's tobacco stopper—its rare carving, its bizarre substance, its dainty shape—and to hand about the beautiful little object.

Wilson's Views and Gaynor's Chews

In The Live Tobacco News

TWO champions of the humble chewing tobacco have recently appeared for public notice, Woodrow Wilson, Democratic candidate for President, and Mayor Gaynor, of New York.

Speaking of the incident of tobacco chewing, Governor Wilson said:

"I once delivered an address, saying that public opinion was not developed in great congested communities where people read a newspaper going to work on a street car and experience a reaction which they think is opinion. I said that public opinion was developed in the crossroads store, where the farmers sit around, chew tobacco, spit into the sawdust and exchange ideas.

"Now, I said jokingly that no matter what might be said against tobacco chewing it must be admitted it made men think, and wherever you find men chewing tobacco together, you find the real public opinion of the country.

"Imagine my horror when the newspapers the next day ignored all the rest of my address, and featured what I said about tobacco chewing, declaring that I said tobacco chewing made thinkers. As I followed that story across the country, it got worse, until in a Dakota paper I was quoted to the extent of a column on the great advantages of tobacco chewing. A big chewing tobacco concern made a photograph of the newspaper reports and printed it in its advertising. I was stamped as a college professor who advocated tobacco chewing."

relating its history as they did so. It must be remembered, moreover, the tobacco stoppers were the work of both professional and amateur hands and from the latter we have some of the most singular specimens.

Adventurous men of Elizabethan and Stuart times as they journeyed in far corners of the world, lit upon all sorts of curious materials and precious fragments, which in the long evenings in the country or by the camp fire would recommend themselves to their owners as potential tobacco stoppers. Friends carved them for keepsakes, remembrances and souvenirs; famous relics of all sorts were converted into stoppers.

We know that that curious and remarkable man, John Taylor, the water poet, upon one of his itinerant excursions secured a dead branch of the miraculous Glastonbury thorn, and promptly made himself two or three tobacco stoppers out of it. Some of the most popular and famous stoppers were made from the Bosobel oak within which Charles II. concealed himself when the soldiers were searching for him after the battle of Worcester. These stoppers bore a silver effigy of the king's head above them, and were venerated as almost sacred relics.

Wood, bone, ivory, mother-of-pearl, brass, silver and gold were also used, while a more daring suggestion even yet was flung out when Mr. Spectator made his famous tour of Westminster Abbey in company with Sir Roger de Coverley. Sir Roger remarked of the coronation chairs: "If Will Wimble were with us and saw those two chairs it would go hard, but he would get a tobacco stopper out of one or the other of them."

QUEEN.

Cigar Dealer—"Didn't we have the kind of cigarettes that fellow wanted?"

Clerk—"No; our stock is pretty low; we are only carrying 499 brands at present."

A dispatch from New York tells a thrilling incident in regard to Mayor Gaynor:

Mayor Gaynor was about to enter his automobile in front of the City Hall sometime ago, when he noticed a laborer standing in a group of newsboys. The laborer held a paper package of chewing tobacco in his hand. He took a comfortable mouthful just as the Mayor turned and saw him.

"What's that, chewing tobacco?" asked the Mayor. "Er, I—I—I—" stammered the laborer, edging away.

"Let's have some," went on the Mayor, reaching for the package. "But, your Honor, you don't chew tobacco?" asked the laborer, regaining his composure.

"Don't I? Just watch me," replied Mayor Gaynor, stowing away a liberal supply and handing back what was left.

The Mayor thanked the laborer and climbed into his motor. The laborer, John Harnett, said he would keep the rest of the tobacco for a souvenir.

United Gets Five Good Stands in New Orleans; Independents Indignant

Dealers, Fearing New Chain Competition, Consider Legal Steps—Valloft & Dreux Wholesale Business to Be Reorganized

NEW ORLEANS, August 10.

THE taking over of the five principal stores of the Independent Cigar Stores Company (Valloft and Dreux's chain) by the United Cigar Stores Company has aroused the indignation of retail dealers in the city. The United has for some time been trying to get locations here, but due to the desirable stands all being occupied under long leases, they have up to this time been unable to accomplish their purpose.

The five stores that have just changed hands are located at Burgundy and Canal streets, Baronne and Canal streets, Decatur and Canal streets, St. Charles and Canal streets and St. Charles and Gravier streets. There were seven other stands operated by the Independent people in New Orleans, but they were not desired by the purchasers. The seven are located in leading hotels and other places, and while not wanted by the United, their leases will probably be renewed by Valloft & Dreux for the benefit of a few faithful employees.

It is known that several retailers have consulted attorneys to ascertain if there was any legal process that they could resort to, to prevent the so-called "trust" from entering this market. Max Guiraud, 826 Canal street, one of the most prominent tobacconists who has been established since 1890, said that it was a serious question in his mind as to the right of the United Stores Company to operate in this city under that name, claiming that he has a prior title to the firm name of United Cigar Stores Company, and that he has possessed that exclusive right for some years.

The trade does not object to legitimate competition, but they fear the price cutting and bargain sale days that the United have resorted to in other cities to monopolize the trade may be established here.

By some dealers the prediction is made that the business of the jobbing houses will suffer by the entrance of the new company, in so far as the handling of a great many brands they now carry in stock is concerned. This is due to a disposition on the part of many retailers to start at once to create a demand for their own private brands.

Arnold Falk, one of the largest independent manufacturers here, says: "This will result in the increased sale of local made goods and the elimination of many of the trust brands which independent dealers have in the past been compelled to carry in stock. Local manufactured products will be considerably exploited in the future. Retailers must do something to protect themselves, and the best course for them is to build up a business on their own brands."

To Reorganize Firm.

Thomas G. Thompson, receiver for Valloft & Dreux, left for New York, but will return in the course of the next few days. He will be released by the court on August 10, when plans for the reorganization of Valloft & Dreux will, no doubt, be announced. It is understood that the amount received from the United Cigar Stores Company will total nearly $25,000, and after the expenses of the receivership are deducted the creditors may get as high as 70 or 75 cents on the dollar.

It has been reported that Valloft & Dreux have been promised financial backing of the most substantial character, and that the concern will be reorganized as a wholesale house, with a capitalization of $150,000 common and preferred stock.

Six and Half Million Gain in 1st District

Remarkable Showing in Production of Cigars During July— Usually a Dull Month

AN increase of nearly six and one-half million cigars is shown in the production of the First Revenue District of Pennsylvania for the month of July compared with the same month last year—a remarkable showing, considering the season and general trade conditions. July's production is nearly one million less than June's.

A decrease in the number of little cigars is noted, while cigarettes and tobacco are approximately the same as last July. Collector McCoach's report reads as follows:

| | July 1912 | July 1911 | June 1912 |
|----------------------|------------|------------|------------|
| Cigars | 64,267,610 | 57,810,830 | 65,116,700 |

| Cigarettes at $3.60 | 34,756,800 | 34,207,920 | 41,800,216 |

Cigar Factory Near York Blown Up

Plant of Milton S. Sterner Completely Wrecked, Causing Loss of $15,000

YORK, Pa., August 12.

The cigar factory of Milton S. Sterner, at Pleasant Hill, this county, was dynamited last night.

The building was wrecked, the lower floor dropping into the cellar. The loss is placed at about $15,000.

The dynamite was put through the window. Mr. Sterner says that about 23,000 cigars and a lot of tobacco were ruined, together with a lot of machinery.

The factory was a substantial three-story frame structure about 32 by 36 feet in dimensions. The lower floor and its contents were thrown into a promiscuous mass in the cellar. The safe had been unharmed. It contained about $65 in cash. So far as known nothing was stolen. This indicates that the purpose of the explosion was not robbery and that it was probably a case of malice or wanton destruction of property, perhaps disregarding the probability of death or injury to persons.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterner with their two children, returning from a picnic, had just passed the factory when the explosion occurred. They were badly shaken up, but uninjured.

"44" Cigar Co. to Have Allentown Factory

Allentown, Pa., is to have a new cigar factory. It will be operated by the "44" Cigar Company, of Philadelphia, manufacturers of the "44" the famous nickel brand. Numerous alterations are now under way and when the building is ready about 300 hands will be employed. G. Goldsmith will be manager of the plant.

Late News Items

A new cigar store will shortly be opened on the corner of Benton and Main streets, Peru, Ind.

Maurice Crowley, of Meriden, Conn., will soon open a new cigar store at the corner of Pratt and East Main streets, that city.

George Weider, a pioneer cigar dealer of Woodland, Cal., has sold his business to Harry Aronson and Milan Weider, former employes of his. Mr. Weider will still continue his jobbing trade.

United Absorbs Proposed Rival Chain

Consolidated Cigar Company of New York, Bought Out By Big Competitor

ANOTHER chain of stores, whose promoters claimed their ambition to rival the United chain of stores, has been absorbed by the latter. The latest "victim" is the Consolidated Cigar Company, which was incorporated several months ago in New York, when it opened its first stores at Seventh avenue and Forty-seventh street. The United Cigar Stores Company has bought this store together with a number of other options on desirable retail locations in other parts of the city.

A. B. Woythaler, who has been prominent in the organizations of independent retail tobacconists, and was manager of the first stand opened by the Consolidated, announces that he will retire from the company to devote his time exclusively to his own store on Columbus avenue.

S. Lowenthal & Sons' Specialty

S. Lowenthal & Sons, 131 Maiden Lane, New York, have become exclusive distributors of the United States for "Des Parlardo" strip filler tobacco. This tobacco, which has been a standard for 25 years, is packed in barrels, ranging from 104 to 150 pounds to the barrel, and is sold at a very nominal cost.

The Kraus Cigar Company have removed to their new location, 1408-10 Avenue A, where they will be pleased to meet their customers and give them the attention they formerly have extended to them. Their new 'phone number is Lenox 5998.

Fire Does Damage in Maiden Lane

FIRE which started next door spread to the factory of John W. Merriam & Company, in Maiden Lane, New York, August 6, and caused considerable damage. A big stock of "Bull Dog" cigars was damaged by smoke. The cigars will be turned over to the insurance company, and none of them will be used for filling orders.

Fortunately, Mr. Merriam has a big supply of tobacco in other storage houses and will be ready to resume work quickly in order to fill his orders.

Sixty-five bales of Sumatra tobacco, belonging to Morris, Rosenberg & Company, were damaged in the same fire, and the furnishings of the New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade headquarters also suffered.

Metropolitan Receipts for July Show Increase

Returns Show Larger Output in Every Line Except Small Cigars and Cigarettes at $3.60 Which Have Slight Falling Off—

THE output of cigars, cigarettes and manufactured tobacco of the Metropolitan districts of New York for the month of July is as follows:

| | 1912. | 1911. |
|--------------------------------|-------------|-------------|
| Cigars | 57,392,860 | 50,204,160 |
| Little Cigars | 1,623,200 | 2,155,600 |
| Cigarettes | 466,903,520 | 300,100,985 |
| Cigarettes at $3.60 | 1,352,650 | 1,254,050 |
| Manufactured Tobacco, lbs. ... | 596,534 | 503,173 |

The output for the month of June was:

The July figures show an increase over June in every line except little cigars and cigarettes at $3.60; cigars showing an increase over the same month last year of over 7,000,000 and over June of about 300,000, a very encouraging report indeed.

Weyman-Bruton Co. Does Large Business

AS the result of charges and countercharges growing out of the patent rights affecting tobacco stripping machines, the Universal Tobacco Company, of 79 Fifth avenue, and Borgfeldt Stripping Machine Company, 1228-32 Second avenue, New York, have become involved in a legal battle. The Borgfeldt has sued the Universal for $50,000 damages, while the latter company has brought suit for the alleged infringement of patents.

Acker, Merrall & Condit's New Store

The Acker, Merrall & Condit Company, of New York, has a cigar stand privilege at the Fort Pitt Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa., formerly held by the R. & W. Jenkinson Company. The new lessees expect to install one of the finest humidors in the country.

THE reproduction shown here is one which has been a great factor in the publicity now being given the "La Famosa" Cigar. It is 22 inches by 12 inches in size, and printed in an artistic manner in four colors, a poster, which by its timeliness and appearance has attracted great attention. E. Kleiner & Company are working hard at present in an endeavor to catch up with orders on the "La Famosa" Cigar, which has been making splendid headway recently. The new factory which is now being constructed, will be devoted exclusively to the manufacture of the "La Famosa," and will be in readiness in several weeks.

New York City Items

The "Castaneda" imported cigar, under the clever guidance of Dave Echemendia, is one of the most popular imported smokes in the cafés and clubs of New York. One of the popular sizes, the "Excelentes," which goes to the trade at $180 per thousand, is one of Dave's special prides, as far as sales are concerned, and can be seen at all the city stands and nearby resorts.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against John J. O'Connor, cigar manufacturer, at 202 to 206 East Twenty-seventh street, by these creditors: Thos. B. Macaulay, $300; Harry C. Graham, $355, and Triangle Printing Co., $8. The liabilities are said to be $8000 and assets $1000. Mr. O'Connor has been in business for over a year.

Beltz' Smoke Shop, 942 Broadway, has a large water-colored picture in their display window, which attracts a good deal of attention from passersby. It represents an excursion boat on the Hudson River at West Point, with all the stock characters of the Sunday paper comic supplements aboard, as well as pictures of what would appear to be some of the ladies of the chorus at the Winter Garden, in anything but winter costumes.

The Manhattan Cigar Box Company has moved to its new location, 725-27 First avenue, corner of Forty-first street.

Mr. Lichtenstein, president of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, is at present in Connecticut, looking over the plantations of his firm.

F. S. De Vito, who is a native of Syracuse, N. Y., has taken over the cigar store at 136 Liberty street, formerly owned by Jacob Rawin. Mr. De Vito expects to carry a high-class line of goods.

C. E. Clark, American and Canadian agent for Carreras, Ltd., manufacturers of "Craven" mixture, and for Adolph Frankau & Co., manufacturers of "B. B. B." pipes, who has been in London, sailed from there on Monday, August 12.

Isadore Mendel, of Mendel & Co., returned last week from an extensive business trip through the Middle West. Mr. Mendel has as usual met with success in getting orders. "La Flor de Mendel" is gaining popularity in that section with surprising rapidity. Mr. Mendel says the outlook for the fall is very promising.

The firm of Salvador Rodriguez, of Tampa, Fla., has taken advantage of the location of their New York headquarters at 1600 Broadway, corner of Forty-seventh street, to display an attractive electrical sign, advertising their "Charles the Great" cigars. The sign is attached to the corner of the building facing south over Times Square, where it can be seen nightly by the theatre crowds. It is surely a good piece of advertising well placed.

Prominent Jobbers Take on "Sola" Brands

Well-known Porto Rican Goods Have Been Well Placed Around Town

THE Sola Cigar Company, manufacturers of high-grade Porto Rican Cigars, with factories in Caguas, P. R., and offices at 109 Liberty street, New York, have been placing their cigars around town with prominent distributors, and promise to make them well known in this market. Julius B. Annis, sales manager of the concern, has been calling on the trade and by reason of his efforts will return with the cigar well established here.

Among the firms now handling the Sola products are J. G. Atherholt, of 111 South Broad street, who will distribute the "Solarica," a five and ten-cent piece of goods, made in seven sizes. Duncan & Moorehead will job the "Sola Bella," going to the trade in four sizes and selling at 10c. two for a quarter and 15c., and the "Aguey Naba," a nickel cigar in two sizes. Yahn & McDonnell are handling the "Mi Creencia," a five and ten cent cigar, which should soon be popular among Quaker City smokers.

Mr. Annis has negotiations under way for pushing the Sola brands with unusual vigor in this market, and should more than make good. He has a pleasing manner, an aggressive selling spirit and faith in the quality of his products, which will carry him a long way.

Goodloe Company Takes on "Pippin" Cigar

THE "Pippin" cigar, a well-known nickel brand in New England, and made by H. Traiser & Co., of Boston, has been taken on by the Speed S. Goodloe Company, which will shortly inaugurate a wide selling campaign on these goods. A representative from the Traiser factory is expected in Philadelphia before long, at which time he will work hand in hand with the wholesaler to popularize the brand.

The "Pippin" is a Sumatra wrapped cigar, the name being branded on each piece of goods, thus effectually providing against box-stuffing. It goes to the trade at $35 less 2 per cent. and should soon be as popular a smoke here as in New England, where it is well up in front with the nickel leaders.

Hart Blumenthal, of Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., is spending several weeks motoring in the Berkshire Mountains. During his absence, Mr. Jeitles is on the job, looking after business and commuting each evening to Atlantic City.

Halpern, whose interests have been taken over by Samuel and Benjamin L. Grabosky, who originally promoted the enterprise. The business will be continued under the old name, being listed as S. and B. L. Grabosky trading as the G. H. P. Cigar Company.

Mr. Benjamin Grabosky, sales manager, is planning a vigorous fall campaign on their "Goodina" (five cent) and "Dakum" (ten cent) cigars, which have a wide distribution locally and are making good in new territory in the Middle Western and Rocky Mountain States.

Goldsmiths Drop Marcus Feder Line

H. N. Goldsmith & Co. report a fair trade on "Jose Vilas" and "Tom Keenes," which are more than holding their own in these warm summer months. The Marcus Feder line of stogies, formerly handled by this concern for Philadelphia and vicinity, has been dropped. Mr. Goldsmith recently stated to a TOBACCO WORLD reporter that the goods had been taken on as an experiment.

Distributes Coin Trays Among Retailers

Steigerwald & Company are distributing among larger dealers of the city unique coin trays, which are made of glass and contain numbers which can be used by the purchaser, throwing to decide the number of cigars he will get for a nickel.

Joseph Gordon Takes Over Steinberg Store

THE Harris Steinberg store, at 1631 Ridge avenue, which has been at that location for a number of years, was purchased last week by Joseph Gordon, who already owns a retail cigar stand at 2730 Glenwood avenue.

Mr. Gordon stated that he intended to renovate the store shortly. The corner which the stand occupies is a good one and should, under the new management, be a success. Among the brands now carried are "Henrietta" and "Cinco," the "Havana Ribbon," "44," "Tom Keene" and "Marcello." Duncan & Moorehead.

Joseph F. Gallagher, vice-president of the company, left last Saturday for a trip to Europe, taking the "S. S. Washington" from Hoboken. Mr. Gallagher expects to cover the principal cities of the Continent.

To Push the "Atwar"

Terry & Duncan expect shortly to open a campaign on their "Atwar" cigar, which is handled by retailers all over the city. It is manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb. One feature of the campaign will be the placing of electric globes at many retail stores, which will flash off and on at intervals, advertising the brand. The "Reynaldo" cigar, of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, which is also distributed by them, will be taken on in fifteen sizes. It is now jobbed by them only in several sizes.

Theobald & Oppenheimer Callers

Recent visitors at the Theobald & Oppenheimer factory were William Sternberg, of Sternberg & Sons, Memphis, Tenn., and Frank S. Keogh, of the Paxton & Gallagher Company, of Omaha, Nebraska.

Doings of the "Havana Ribbon"

The John Wahl Candy Company, of Duluth, Minnesota; the W. S. Fox Sales Company, of Shelbina, Missouri, and the Robinson-Pettet Company, of Louisville, Kentucky, all distributors for their respective territories, have recently increased their regular shipments to take care of increased business.

Have Fine Trade on Stogies

Mitchell, Fletcher & Co. are doing an unusually good business on a line of stogies manufactured by the Consolidated Cigar Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa. The stogie is a nice, satisfying smoke and retails three for a nickel. Since moving their cigar department to the rear of the store, their business has increased wonderfully. It was done in the nature of an experiment, but the move has been amply justified by the increase in sales, those of July being reported to be 25 per cent. more than the same month last year.

Albert Falk, of the Falk Tobacco Company, was making the rounds in town the past week.

Joseph H. Davis Dies

Joseph Hubbard Davis, a well known wine and tobacco man of Ashland, Mass., died at his home in that city last Thursday. Waging War On Tobacco Beetle

Expert Tells of Means of Checking Its Activities—Larvae Are Deposited in Cigars

DALLAS, TEX., August 12.

GOVERNMENT experiments to find means of checking the activities of the beetle that bores holes in tobacco and cigars have been successful, according to W. D. Hunter, of the Federal Bureau of Entomology. His report contains a list of precautions for cigar manufacturers and tobacco growers. Fumigation is recommended as an effective preventative.

Investigation of the beetle's activities shows the larvae are deposited in the open ends of cigars. When they hatch they eat their way out, generally boring the length of the cigar.

The Japanese Government was responsible for the Federal investigation. The manager of Japan's tobacco monopoly protested when he received a big shipment of leaves that were perforated. Investigation showed that the beetle was guilty and the war of extermination begun.

Report on Turkish 1912 Crop

U. S. Consul-General G. Bie Ravndal, at Constantinople, Turkey, states that the tobacco crop this year is apt to be a decreased one, and consequently prices will rule higher for the tobacco. He says: "The 1911 tobacco crop was the largest gathered since 1903 and of average quality. Prices, however, were not high enough to satisfy the growers, who incurred unusual expense in planting, owing to the scarcity of labor. It is believed that the plantings for 1912 will show a decrease, and that prices will probably rise. In consequence of the restrictions imposed by the tobacco monopoly, Turkish planters started the industry in the Caucasus, and Egypt now receives large supplies from Russia. The abolition of the present monopoly in 1914 is expected to increase the production here. The exports of tobacco from Turkey totalled 69,822,826 pounds during the fiscal year 1909-1910 and 54,468,034 during 1910-1911. The decrease was largely accounted for by a drop from 34,619,017 pounds in 1909-1910 to 21,879,363 pounds in 1910-1911 in the exports to Austria. These figures do not cover the 1911 crop."

Connecticut Growers Dispose of Crops

Prices Range From 16 to 22 Cents a Pound for Stalk-Cured and 25 to 34 Cents a Pound for Primed Tobacco in Bundles

SUFFIELD, Conn., August 12.

DURING the past week considerable activity in tobacco circles has taken place and hundreds of acres of the weed standing in the field have been purchased by the larger buyers, who were the first on the field this year to get a hold on the finest crops in town, which lie in the western part. The American Tobacco Company started the buying this season and was soon followed by the American Cigar Company, L. B. Haas, of Hartford; Hinsdale, Smith & Co., of Springfield, Mass., and others. In West Suffield the Havana Seed is pretty well picked up now, and large buyings have been made in Suffield, East Granby, Poquonock, Windsor Locks and a few of the larger crops outside of the above mentioned towns.

Prices range from 16 to 22 cents a pound for stalk-cured tobacco and 25 to 34 cents a pound in the bundle for the primed tobacco. It is said that this undue haste to purchase the 1912 crop shows the condition of the market. The crop at present looks good to the buyers and they want the best tobacco and are willing to pay for it.

According to Julius Lichtenstein, president of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, the Florida and Georgia wrapper crops will be among the best in years. Mr. Lichtenstein was in Florida a short time ago inspecting the firm's crops, and is in a position to give an authoritative statement. He thinks the same conditions prevail in the Connecticut fields, where his concern is now harvesting some fine tobacco.

Legislation for Clear Havana Manufacturers

E. H. Gato, of Well-known Concern, Says Law Should Apply to Cigars As Well As to Whiskey

THERE is considerable need for a law requiring domestic cigar manufacturers to indicate in some way the quality and kind of tobacco that enters into the making of their products, according to E. H. Gato of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company.

"The cigar business is generally good," said Mr. Gato yesterday, "but manufacturers of clear Havanas suffer a good deal from the competition of other manufacturers who wrongfully represent their cigars as such. These cigars, if they are any way mild at all, can easily be forced on the average smoker, and because of this and to protect the honest manufacturer of clear Havanas against unfair competition, I firmly believe that legislation should be enacted to make it obligatory for all manufacturers to indicate in some manner the quality and kind of tobacco contained in their products. This law, of course, would operate along the lines of the pure food law, and would benefit consumers and manufacturers alike.

"Such legislation might be ridiculed by non-interested parties on the ground that cigars are a luxury, but since there is a law requiring honest whiskey, why not one requiring honest cigars? Admitting that whiskey is considerably used for medicinal purposes, I believe that the luxury charge applies to it when used otherwise as much as it does to cigars.

"Another feature of the cigar business at the present time is the difficulty in convincing the smoking public that a light cigar is not necessarily mild. A cigar with a rich brown color is undoubtedly the best that can be found, but by this I do not mean cigars commonly classified as 'black.' A good part of the light tobacco used is immature and, consequently does not have its full quota of natural aroma and taste. All tobacco is brought in green from the plant and is then hung up to mature. As this maturing process or sweating goes on the leaves gradually assume a darker shade. As they are usually available in the various stages of maturity the color of the cigar can sometimes be governed by the selection of leaves that have reached the age sufficient to give them the desired color. Doing this, however, and making them up in this immature condition robs the cigars of a good portion of their quality and aroma. A cigar made of tobacco that is naturally light is necessarily mild and makes a very good smoke. Unfortunately, though, only a fair portion of the average crop is naturally light.

"According to recent report we have received from Havana, the plague scare in Cuba is considerably overrated. As far as we have heard the situation is not serious, and shipments of tobacco are coming forward from the island regularly."

R. J. Reynolds Co. to Issue New Stock

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company is out in a circular letter to shareholders announcing a plan to issue the remaining $2,475,000 of the authorized capital stock of the company. The amount of stock at present outstanding is $7,525,000 out of an authorized total of $10,000,000. It is proposed to offer this new stock at par to stockholders of record as of August 22, in proportion to the number of shares now held by them, with provision for handling fractional parts of shares. Stockholders have until October 1 to accept the offer and pay for the stock. Those who do not care to subscribe for additional shares may, within the prescribed time, transfer their rights to others.

"Pinzon" Boosters in the West

Members of "Pinzon" Boosting Gang of the Detroit house of La Fond & Co.

In two weeks they put the good ship "Pinzon" in seventy-three ports and unloaded their cargoes, a wonderful record indeed.

The members of the crew are Ted Snowbank, in the bow; Fred Bailey, of M. Perez & Co., of New York, and Charlie La Fond, of the hustling Detroit house.

Stickney's Success on the "La Invidia"

THE William A. Stickney Cigar Company, of St. Louis, are pushing, with much success, a new clear Havana cigar, the "La Invidia," which is being offered in eight sizes. One of the novel features of this cigar is that the name of the brand appears in the ash as the cigar is smoked. Not a bad idea for identifying absolutely the brand.

Charlie Frick, of the Robinson, Pettet Co., has just issued an advertising postal in behalf of the cigar department for his company. On the pages are printed the various brands in clear Havana and the cheaper goods. The returns up to date are satisfactory.

According to reports of Sales Manager Sheldon the F. R. Rice Mercantile Cigar Company, of St. Louis, have shown splendid gains in the cigar business for the last two months, their leaders being the "Mercantiles" and their "305's."

One of the large jobbers at the head of the Willamette Valley, Oregon, is Julius Goldsmith, of Eugene, that State. He has a number of salesmen out handling this trade.

J. J. Gans & Bro., of Los Angeles, Cal., are doing a fine business on "La Natividades," "Tom Keenes" and "Lawrence Barretts." Bob Gans, of the firm, has been instrumental in pushing their products.

The Morey Mercantile Co., of Denver, are putting out huge motor trucks to handle their increasing trade.

H. Fendrich Cigar Co. in New Building

Largest Cigar Factory in the World—Have Many Conveniences for Workers

THE finishing touches have been put on the new factory of the H. Fendrich cigar plant at Oakley and Pennsylvania streets, Evansville, Ind., which completes one of the largest establishments of its kind in the country.

At the outstart 1,500 people will be employed. As competent labor can be secured the number will be raised to 2,000 and possibly to 2,500. It is the prediction of John Fendrich, head of the company that 100 million cigars will be the annual output, when a full force is put at work.

The new factory is in three buildings which cover nearly every foot of the 241 by 448 feet, the company bought in the spring of 1911 following the disastrous fire of December, 1910, which gutted their five-story Main street building.

The buildings are of the slow burning type, brick being used and as little wood as possible. It has unusually massive foundations. The surroundings have been looked after carefully so that the sanitary conditions will be the equal of any cigar factory in the State of Indiana. Numerous windows will admit plenty of light. Three-fourths of the wall space in the two buildings will be glass.

Before planning the building the architect, Clifford Shopbell, visited many model cigar plants, and now he claims he has combined the desirable features of each of them in the new plant.

F. J. Kaiser, a retail cigar man, at Arch and State streets, Freeport, O., has discontinued his retail business and will do nothing in the future but a wholesale trade. He is now located on Croghan street.

The Peglar Cigar Company, of Denver, Col., have taken over the sole distribution in that city of the Cuban Cigar Company's well-known seed Havana brand of "M. & O."

Toby Rinaldo, of San Francisco, has sold his cigar stand at 709 Market street, that city, to Ralph Brown.

M. A. Gunst & Co. are displaying the "Van Dyck" cigars in all sizes and shapes. This display is being shown to a good advantage in all of their stores.

William H. Riley, a well-known retailer of Troy, N. Y., died in that city recently. He is survived by a widow and two children.

The death of F. A. Sisson in Denver has caused great regret among his host of friends. Mr. Sisson was division manager of Butler-Butler, Inc., and died from the effects of a dose of bichloride of mercury, which he took by mistake. He was thirty-six years old and leaves a wife and a fourteen-year-old son.

Frank Balin, a pioneer cigar manufacturer of Massachusetts, died at West Springfield, Mass., recently, after a long illness. He had been operating a small cigar factory in West Springfield for a number of years, which he ran until the time of his death. He leaves a widow and two sons.

Captain Joseph R. Herndon, one of the best-known leaf men of Danville, Va., died in that city last week. Mr. Herndon had been in the leaf business in Danville since the close of the Civil War, through which he had fought and made a splendid record. He is survived by a widow and two sons.

Meyer Jashulek, a member of the Cleveland leaf house of Meyer Jashulek & Co., died last week at his residence in that city, aged sixty-three years. A. T. Co., Distributes Stock of Subsidiary

Competition Among New Companies Leads to Surprising Action—Extra Dividend Declared

NEW YORK, August 10.

THE long-looked-for melon was cut by the American Tobacco Company this week, when the directors announced that in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. they had declared a cash payment of $20 a share and had also authorized a pro rata of distribution among the common stock holders of the 12,000 shares of the American Machine and Foundry Company stock, which was held by the old combination.

This distribution is another step of the American Tobacco Company's dissolution in conformity to the Circuit Court's decree which gave the company until 1915 to dispose of some of its securities. Other securities still remain to be distributed.

The special reason for the voluntary disposal of the stock of the Machine Company, as pointed out by one of those connected with the tobacco company, was that the minor company would have lost much of its prosperity if retained by the big company. The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company and the P. Lorillard Company, two of the four big companies-formed out of the old American Tobacco Company, refused to do business with it.

"Since the dissolution competition among the tobacco companies is so real and so vigorous," said one of the officers yesterday, "that the Liggett & Myers and the Lorillard companies would give their business to other machine and foundry companies rather than increase the earnings of the American Tobacco Company by dealing with a corporation it owned. Therefore this separation, we believe, will enable the Machine Company to retain the business of Liggett & Myers and the Lorillard companies."

The distribution of the special cash dividend amounts to a total of $8,048,480. This is part of the total of the proceeds of the sale of one-half of the American Tobacco Company's holdings of British-American Tobacco non-voting preference shares, practically one-half of its holdings of No. 2 ordinary shares of the Imperial Tobacco Company and all of its holdings of the bonds of the old corporation of United Cigar Stores. These securities were sold on order of the Circuit Court.

The cash dividend as well as the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. declared this week, will be paid on September 30 to stockholders of record August 15th. The distribution of the stock of the American Machine and Foundry Company will be made as soon as possible after September 1st, the stockholders to receive certificates for the new full shares and warrants for the fractional parts.

The Machine Company owns 98 per cent. of the stock of the Standard Tobacco Stemmer Company and 65 per cent. of the stock of the International Cigar Machinery Company. In the formal statement of the American Tobacco Company it is said that the annual profits of the Machine Company, taking the year ended June 30th as the basis, would be $100,520, or 8.37 per cent. on its stock.

San Francisco May Have Tobacco Exhibit

Arnold Pollak, of Coast City, Originates Plan for Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915

ARNOLD POLLAK, a tobacco broker of San Francisco, is pushing a plan to have a tobacco exhibit in that city at the time of the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915. Mr. Pollak has been feeling the pulse of the trade regarding the project and believes it will be generally favored.

It is planned to have a building spacious enough to exhibit the tobacco industry in all its branches from the time the seed is planted until the leaves become cigars, cigarettes, smoking and chewing tobacco. The exhibit is to be purely educational in character, and in order to bring about this end all advertising and vending devices are to be eliminated from the building.

The movement is yet in its infancy, but as soon as it his present position proves that he has not let opportunity knock at his door in vain.

After ten years' of service with H. Switzer & Co., during which time he absorbed the details and insights of the wholesale business like a sponge, and just as eagerly also, Mr. Earl considered a change and shortly afterward became connected with Niles & Moser, of Kansas City, having charge of the State of Missouri for five years with this large firm, an experience which has proven to be invaluable to him.

Mr. Earl's next connection was with the house of Wm. A. Stickney, another widely known Middle West distributor. He worked the city trade of Kansas City for this concern with marked success and left them to go with the Perego & Moore Cigar Co., and after one year with them as salesman was made manager of their branch house in St. Joseph.

The Perego & Moore Co. are distributors for the "Lawrence Barrett" and "Tom Keene," Bondy & Lederer brands; also, the Theobald & Oppenheimer lines of cigars. Others of their goods are those of Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, E. H. Gato, A. Santaella ("Optimo"), the Bolano line, Berriman Bros. ("Jose Vila") and many others. This is a representative line and one which any house may justly feel proud of.

Offices of Perego & Moore

has been approved by a majority of the large manufacturing tobaccoists, a subscription will be started throughout the United States, which will later extend to other parts of the world. Uncle Sam, who derives a healthy revenue from the tobacco interests, is expected to assist financially.

Employees of Enterprise Factory on Outing

The two hundred employees of the Enterprise Cigar Company's plant in Trenton spent their annual outing at Asbury Park on Friday, August 9. Samuel Levy, the proprietor, has long made it a custom to give his employees an outing each year. Every person employed in the big plant is taken to the shore and entertained at the expense of Mr. Levy.

As the result of his courteous treatment of his employees, Mr. Levy was presented with a large silver candelabra by his workmen on the occasion of his silver wedding anniversary, which occurred some weeks ago.

August Conventions Help Chicago

Revenue Receipts' Way Above Normal--All Lines of Trade Busy--City to Have "Made in Chicago" Exposition

CHICAGO, August 12.

THE advent of several conventions during the past two weeks helped tobacco business in Chicago somewhat. There was the "Bull Moose" gathering, which brought a big bunch of visitors also the Apple Shippers' Convention, Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, National Association of Window Trimmers and numerous other organizations. On August 10th the big international water carnival was formally opened here. This was without doubt the greatest affair of its kind ever held in the new world. There were races between power boats of enormous speed, yacht races between United States and Canada boats, sham naval battles by Government gunboats, naval drills and other spectacular features. The affair drew great crowds from the surrounding territory and of course cigar men in the down-town district were more or less benefited, as the carnival continued for eight days.

Business as a rule has been inclined to be quiet, but with the return of people from their vacations, trade is brightening up somewhat. Weather here has been extremely cold and unseasonable.

Jobbers report that fall trade looms up in excellent fashion. Salesmen are beginning to take the road, and those now out are sending in goodly sized orders, considerably in excess in fact of those taken a year ago at this time. Crop conditions have materialized and the fall and winter should be a big winner for both wholesalers and retailers.

Break All July Records.

Receipts for cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and snuff broke all July records, according to figures obtained from the Collector of Internal Revenue. Tobacco especially showed a wonderful gain of nearly fifty per cent. over that of July, 1911. Here are the figures, showing July receipts the past three years:

| | 1912. | 1911. | 1910. |
|-----------------------|-------------|-------------|-------------|
| Cigars and Cigarettes | $60,837.31 | $55,781.88 | $55,503.35 |
| Tobacco | 35,899.75 | 35,832.64 | 37,755.42 |
| Snuff | 152,113.99 | 111,401.58 | 114,523.44 |

Prefer Numbers to Names.

The talk relative to naming cigar sizes by numbers instead of names meets with approval among the majority of Chicago dealers. They say there are very few consumers who know the difference between various sizes under the present system, and that numbers, rightly arranged, would be much more easily memorized.

"It seems queer," remarked a Chicago cigar jobber, "how outside daily papers, both in the East and West, fasten Chicago as an address on most confidence men or crooks whose address is unknown. You read it every day, especially if you happen to be a traveling salesman (and I was for many years), how the Blinkville police have just rounded up John Doe, of Chicago, who attempted to swindle the local merchants by some smooth sort of game. Verily, Chicago has to stand for a great deal."

Gazley to Build New Hotel.

George H. Gazley, former manager of the Hotel La Salle, has organized a stock company for the purpose of constructing a modern and magnificent hotel on the borders of Lake Michigan. The hotel is to cost $1,500,000, will be twelve stories high and combine all the features of leading hotels in this country and Europe. Bids are being received for cigar privileges.

Fred Bauer, manager of the Fisher Building cigar store, has returned after a two weeks' vacation. Fred says they didn't bite very good—that is the fish—but he says look out for these country girls when they see a Chicago man.

Dick Wells, the Wabash and Monroe streets cream gin artist, has remodeled the interior of his place and spent over $5,000 in fixing up. It is "some" place now. The cigar end gets a better show.

Geo. Anderson, the Reid, Murdock & Co. crack cigar salesman, who put the "Roi Tan" cigar in the Loop, has just bought a "joy wagon," and it is some buzzer. George only uses it on the Boulevard; he says if he ever shows up in the Loop every customer will want a ride, which means work night and day.

C. Jevne & Co. have a window full of "Hotel Brunswick" cigars, selling them at 7 cents each as a special sale.

Best & Russell Co. are making a big drive in their "Hand Made" five cent brand, put up in tin cans. This cigar is made by the Spietz & Worth Co., of Detroit, branch of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company. Best & Russell are selling over half a million a month in Cook County (Chicago).

Charles E. Way, of 1460 East Fifty-seventh street, who has had a cigar store, billiard room and newsstand also, is deeply interested in the Motor Sales Company and is obliged to give up the cigar end of it. His place has been established a great many years, headquarters for the Chicago University students, and if some one is looking for a cigar store he can make good arrangements with Way.

New South Side Club.

They are organizing a club in Thirty-ninth street and expect to build near Ellis avenue (next to Wanban), to be called the "South Side Club," which will embrace social, business and politics. W. V. Thompson, of the Brunswick-Balke Co., is the prime factor. The club will rent out the bar and cigar privileges. The owner of the land will put up a building for the club on a twenty year lease.

H. R. Barker has opened a cigar stand in the entrance of the New York Life Building.

The "Childs Co.," of New York, are building a big restaurant on Monroe street, near Clark, having bought the lease of the "H of Bran." They expect to open in October. They will have a big cigar case, handling all the popular brands handled by the local jobbers.

Dick Peyton, of 5 North La Salle street, is one of the biggest cigar brokers in the West. He represents several large Eastern factories and has his brands well placed. His two big brands, "Francis Lewis" and "Certificate," are jobbed by the Best & Russell Co.

Carl Von Hermann, of the Lexington Hotel, has recently added the "El Sedelo" brand of Sam I. Davis & Co. in several sizes.

Tom Duffley Curran, of 1124 Bryn Mawr avenue, has just put in a new sealed show window in his store. This gives him a chance to display his goods, and he says he has increased his business. He has a big display of "Curran's Smokers," his nickel leader, made by Storm, Fisher & Co., of New York.

Solomon Kohn, cigar manufacturer, who conducted a store at Twenty-ninth street and Wentworth avenue, is facing a charge of arson. A few days ago Kohn's store was destroyed by fire. The circumstances looked suspicious, and Fire Attorney Sullivan began an investigation. The stock, it is declared, was over insured, and evidences of coal oil and gasoline were found by the firemen. The arrest of Kohn was ordered.

Nusser Bros. are to engage in the cigar jobbing business in Chicago, having opened offices in the Cambridge Building, at Randolph street and Fifth avenue.

This is vacation time, and it certainly looks it among the cigar and tobacco trades. So many dealers away—and the local salesmen taking theirs.

Cigar Man Robbed of One Thousand Dollars.

Attacked within a few feet of a large Socialist meeting, A. C. Thumm, a well-to-do cigar dealer, with several stores in Chicago and other cities, was dragged into an alley off Ontario street, near Clark street, last night and robbed of $1,115 in money and jewelry.

Arthur Smith, of St. Louis, who was charged with stealing $25 from the cash register and a box of cigars while Nathan Weinstein, owner of a cigar store at 2634 West Madison street, was in the rear getting him a piece of cloth to bandage a bleeding finger, was sentenced to serve ten days in the County Jail and fined $5 by Municipal Judge Dieker.

C. C. Paulson, manager of Best & Russell Company's Palmer House stand, is in Michigan on a vacation.

I was in a cigar store and asked the proprietor what made the place smell so rotten? "Business," he said.

A new Chicago factory is now being constructed at South Wood and East Twelfth streets by Alfonso Rios & Co. This concern manufactures the well-known "El Talento" and other brands.

George Meigs, of Sanchez & Haya, Tampa, Fla., was in Chicago a few days ago.

A. J. McBlair, of Marcelino Perez & Co., is expected back in town shortly from his vacation.

In town recently: Charles Jacobs, of Carlos, Fernandez & Co., and Dave Ehrlich, of Ehrlich & Kopf, Boston.

A. J. Simpson, secretary of the Best & Russell Company, left August 12 for South Haven, Mich., where he will spend a two weeks' vacation.

Burns & Goldfuss, 22 North State street, have remodeled their store. They have taken out the restaurant and installed a café and grill. They plan to rent the front of the store.

The penalty of doing business in the Loop is demonstrated by the failure of Ed. Dreifus, who had a fine café next to "The Colonial Theatre." He has been in business on Randolph street many years. Too much rent is the answer.

The Congress Hotel is regarded as the most valuable hotel property in Chicago, according to the figures of the assessor, the sum totaling close to $5,000,000. The next in line is the Hotel La Salle, with a valuation of $3,844,920.

DETROIT FACTORIES SHOW INCREASED OUTPUT

Frank N. Smith Leaves Hotel Pontchartrain—Berdan & Co. Featuring Wertheimer's "El Dallo"

DETROIT, August 10.

UNSEASONABLE weather has affected business somewhat. The summer has been so cold and wet that tourist business has fallen away very much, which means a considerable item to Detroit. Transportation companies, especially our lake and river steamer lines, have been hard hit. In view of prevailing weather, retail and jobbing cigar trade has held up satisfactorily. The manufacturing end shows every sign of activity. Herewith is appended the sale of cigar and tobacco stamps in this district for the months of June and July, as compared with last year:

| | Cigars. | Tobacco. |
|-----------------|-------------|--------------|
| June 1911 | $70,729.98 | $153,531.74 |
| July 1911 | 62,661.08 | 148,169.04 |
| June 1912 | 76,854.13 | 164,017.50 |
| July 1912 | 75,287.64 | 166,066.02 |

This shows an approximate increase of 14 per cent. in each division.

In addition to the foregoing $1,346.46 in stamps for snuff were sold at the local office during the two months this year.

Detroit is a good labor market, an advantage conceded by all our sister cities. Yet, for all that, cigarmakers cannot be plucked from bushes. The great source of supply is in our Polish wards. Race suicide, in those sanctuaries of procreation, is an unknown heresy. Nevertheless our sturdy and worthy Polish dames, notwithstanding their most amiable and amorous efforts, are in grave danger of falling far short in the coming year of supplying the insistent demands of our factories for cigarmakers. And now comes one Jno. McNee, of London, Ont., to Windsor, the little burg across the Detroit River, and starts a cigar factory of a couple hundred hands, with the frank expectation of drawing his labor from Detroit. His son, James McNee, is superintendent in charge. At the outset he offers from two to four dollars more per thousand than is paid here for similar work. It will be interesting to note developments.

A recent change that started many tongues wagging is the withdrawal of Frank N. Smith from the management of Hotel Pontchartrain cigar department, which happened July 27. In a letter sent to various concerns with whom they were doing business, Messrs. Chittenden and Woolley, proprietors of the hotel, explain that Mr. Smith resigned owing to a disagreement regarding the operation of the department. Mr. Smith is widely known to the traveling public. He has been with the Pontchartrain since its start, five years ago. The success of the "Count Pontchartrain" cigar, made by Marcelino, Perez & Co., is largely owing to his efforts, he having made frequent suggestions as to shapes, packings, etc, which added to its popularity. The department is at present in charge of Al. Thornberg, who was chief clerk under Mr. Smith.

Do you want to see a nice retail outfit? Take a slant at the Berghoff Café stand without; then drop inside and meet the boys face to face.

Changes will be made shortly at Harrison's, 54 Farrar street. A first-class café service will be installed in connection with the bar. The cigar privilege is in the hands of Ben Crittenden.

George Sharpe's new stand, 55 Gratiot avenue, is in charge of Larry Lawrence, who, until recently, operated the stand at 63 Michigan avenue. The latter was relinquished as the building was dismantled for improvements.

Central Cigar Store, corner Gratiot and Broadway, shows a window of "La Resta," a fine nickel smoke in a very classy package.

"Bellmo," a seed and Havana 5-in. Brevia, distributed by the Jackson Company, McGraw Building, is well placed in leading stands here. Bob Schram, 115 Woodward avenue, has shown a very attractive "Bellmo" window the past week.

Hart Brothers, 152 Gratiot avenue, are Detroit distributors for H. Traiser & Company's "Pippin," made in Boston.

Northwest Cigar Manufacturing Company reports steady progress. During Cadillac week, and since, there has been a window, at Central Drug Company's lower Woodward avenue store, of "De Vasto" and "Fambro," the Northwest's leading ten-cent and five-cent brands. O'Brien & Co. have a neat display of "Heidelberg," made by Jno. G. Spatz & Co., Reading, Pa.

"Jimmy" Sweeney, the genial little bookkeeper of the Northwest Cigar Manufacturing Company, who has been laid up since March 7, was operated on for a hip deformity, at Grace Hospital, July 29. He was removed to his home, 402 Trumbull avenue, a few days ago, but is making progress slowly.

Frank R. Burdick, 267 Gratiot avenue, has returned from a three weeks' trip to Duluth and other points. He was accompanied by Mrs. Burdick, thus joining pleasure with business.

"Parson" Claude Howell, accompanied by "Ted" Briody and a couple of boxes of "Howell's Howl," departed August 3 for Canada, and ten days of the simple life.

Jno. S. Capen reports very fair sales at his three stands, the Ford Building, Union Trust Company Building and Penobscot Building, respectively. Drawing his patronage largely from people who make a practice of going away in hot months, his trade is naturally affected somewhat in the summer season. Mr. Capen has recently added to his line a few sizes of "Lozano" and "Corina," also six sizes of "Elora," a seed and Havana cigar, made by H. C. Nolan & Co. of Philadelphia. All these are bought direct from the factory.

Mrs. Morris Pfau, of Minneapolis, arrived here August 5 to spend some weeks with her mother, Mrs. Kaufman S. Rothschild. Mr. Pfau will join her in a few days.

Miss Eleanor McCarthy, a private secretary of Messrs. Fritz Bros. Company, of Cincinnati, lingered here two days while on her way to Mackinaw Island. Miss McCarthy was charmed with Detroit.

Archie Hiscott, well known to the cigar and cigarette trade, has signed up with F. H. Leggett & Co., New York distributors, and will represent them here and throughout the State.

Walter James, representing Cuesta Rey & Co., arrived August 5 for a week's work with advanced trade. J. L. Marcero & Co. are distributors here.

Mr. Comary, specialty man for Lipschutz' "44" cigars, is out in the State working with J. L. Marcero & Co.

Mr. Greenwald will leave for New York City on the sixth of August, joining his manager with a view to assisting him in the many new lines which they are figuring on.

Mr. Frohluhstein was, up to March 1st, with Smith Bros., and afterwards with the Hensheim Company, being sales manager for the Coast on the "King's Court" cigar.

Klauber-Wangenheim Company have been unusually busy on country shipments for the past few weeks, sales on all their popular leaders exceeding all past records. They report a heavy demand on "Optimo," "Chancellor," "Post Dispatch" and "Pippin" cigars.

From Inyo County Mr. Percy Dutton is sending in good orders, and E. A. Nace, the firm's representative in Imperial Valley, has a splendid business over his entire territory.

Mr. Marx will leave shortly on his regular 60 day trip over Arizona and New Mexico, and Mr. Fisk will in the future cover the San Luis Obispo trade for this firm—he, by the way, has just started on his initial work. Mr. Barnes has just returned from his usual successful Santa Barbara trip. Mr. Bonhaus is again visiting his trade, after a brief illness, and is making things hum for his firm—at least it seems so, by the looks of his order book.

Dealers Doing Fair Summer Trade— Patrick Morris Opens Wholesale House in Newburyport

BOSTON, AUGUST 8.
 THE cigar and tobacco industry is about the same as last month. The jobbers are doing more business this year than last, but take it all round, both the wholesale and retail houses are having a good business.

As the Boston elevated railroad strike is at an end, the people are out more, the reports from the mountains and seaside resorts are favorable to trade, and many of the retailers report business as good.

"Twin Oaks" has been advanced two cents per dozen. Errlich and Kopf have installed a new window in which they are featuring "La Verdad" cigars; also a full line of pipes and smoking tobacco.

F. G. Rosendorf and A. W. Bosworth (Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company's "Fatima" staff) are working in the market at present and have secured a number of attractive window displays.

The "St. Ledger" little cigars have been advanced fifty cents per thousand.

M. M. Moore ("Lucky Strike") was here last week looking over the trade.

"Hustler" little cigars have a new novelty. To each box is attached a wooden domino.

Patrick Morris, formerly manager of Simon S. Beloff Tobacco Company, Amesbury, has opened a wholesale tobacco store on Water street, Newburyport.

The Holly Drug Store, corner Holly street and Acushnet avenue, New Bedford, has been purchased by Fred R. Brown, who will carry a full line of cigars, etc.

The Ricker-Jaynes Drug Company has opened its twelfth store in Boston. The public opening took place last week. The store is situated on Fremont street, between West and Mason streets, in the very heart of the shopping district.

Most all of the principal retail cigar stores have a fine window display of goods and accessories.

Lorenzo P. Bennett, aged forty-four years, a well-known cigar manufacturer, died Wednesday, at his residence, 28 Lebanon street, Winchester, Mass. He was born in East Boston and has been in the cigar business for twenty-five years in Boston.

The trade here has received notice this week from the American Tobacco Company that "Ivy" and "Eglantine" plug tobacco has been advanced one per cent. per pound.

Butler & Butler have begun an interesting campaign with Lauren's cigarettes. The jobbers are receiving a large number of calls for the goods.

Daniel Frank & Co. has a fine trade in both domestic and Havana cigars, but the "Flor del Mundo" cigar has the call at present.

W. E. Howard (R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company) has returned to town after an extended trip.

PENNSYLVANIA TRADE NEWS

Late Reports from Lancaster, York, Reading

All Tobacco Lines Busy in York

YORK, August 9.

THE cigar manufacturers, leaf men, jobbers, retailers and growers are all busy in this region at present and there is no indication of a let-up. Orders for the fall season are now coming in with pleasing regularity and the factories are usually working with full forces.

A total of $112,564.12 was taken in from the sale of stamps at the York office of the Ninth Internal Revenue District during July, the receipts being larger than for any previous month in a long time. They exceeded those of July, 1911, by $25,550.26 and were $17,508.73 greater than the receipts for June last.

Last month fifteen new factories, affording employment to more than 112 hands, were licensed in York County. The largest was that of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, Hanover, where more than fifty cigarmakers will be put at work. The plant of the Toomey Cigar Company, Dover, will employ fifteen hands. In June, last, but nine factories were opened in this territory. The larger factories licensed during July, their location and the number of hands each will employ follows:

Corra R. Heise, Yoe, five hands; Ruth Kinard, Yoe, five hands; F. E. Mimmich, Dallastown, five hands; William M. Figler, Dallastown, five hands; Norman L. Smith, Windsor, five hands; Edward Smith, Bittersville, five hands; Toomey Cigar Company, Dover, ten hands; K. W. Bremanan, five hands; United Cigar Manufacturing Company, Hanover, more than fifty hands.

D. Frank Kalreider, the Red Lion cigar manufacturer, has left on a business trip to the West.

The growers of tobacco in this county have been considering for some time whether they could not receive better prices for their leaf if they formed an association. With this end in view farmers in the lower end of the county gathered together at Chanceford and formed the Chanceford Tobacco Growers' Association. The prices received last winter and this spring for the Burley grown in this county has done much to cause the farmers to do some tall thinking on this question and it is hoped to boost prices considerably. William Wise was elected president; Kervin Beard, treasurer, and Neal Dougherty, secretary of the association. In outlining the plans for the future Mr. Wise urged all growers to hold their crops until matured, as this method of selling had much to do with the low prices.

A. F. Fix, the Dallastown cigar manufacturer, recently received a carload of tobacco from Ohio. Mr. Fix reports a brisk business at present.

George Richard, twenty-four years of age, who was arrested in connection with the robberies of the McNamara store, has confessed to his part in the affair.

The C. H. Plitt Company report satisfactory progress on the campaign being waged on the "Liar" cigar. This brand, which has only been worked locally so far, will soon be pushed on the outside. If the reception in other places can be judged by the results in York, it should soon be one of the best known nickel leaders in the East.

William Toomey has given up his cigar factory at Dover and has moved his business to this city. Mr. Toomey's father and a son, Charles, will shortly open the Dover factory after some arrangements have been completed.

Lancaster County Crop Very Irregular

LANCASTER, August 7.

THE 1912 crop of Pennsylvania, according to all indications, will be one of the most irregular in years. This is in part due to the late planting, to the recent cool nights, and also to the hail-storm which passed over this county several weeks ago. The harvesting in all probability will run on late in the fall until frost comes. Little of the tobacco is ready for topping and much of it is still quite small.

The Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Society, at its last meeting appointed a special committee, which will take up the question of prices at the next meeting. They are considering the building of warehouses in different sections to which they can take their tobacco and from which it can be sold in bulk.

Many of the leaf tobacco and cigar men are away on vacations or have just returned. Milton H. Ranck and wife have been on a trip to Atlantic City, where Robert M. Granat also rested for a time. Simon Shissler has also been to this popular Jersey Coast resort, and Samuel Giesel expects to go there shortly.

Among the recent visitors in town were noted the following: H. E. Stevens, E. Rosenwald & Bro.; W. H. Uhler, of Lebanon, Pa.; J. M. Jacoby, of Meyer & Mendelsohn.

F. Deubryger & Co. have taken over the cigar stand of the John Hart Cigar Co., in the Widmyer & Kinnard Building.

Daniel Manheimer, of the Imperial Cigar Co., is again home after an extended trip through the Middle West. Mr. Manheimer was much pleased with the results of his trip.

A. S. Gantz, who has been with the S. R. Moss Cigar Co. factory for a number of years in the capacity of floor superintendent, has severed his connections with that concern and will hereafter devote all his time to his store and factory. He will put out the "Lancaster Belle" and "Summons" brands, and with his son will do business as A. S. Gantz & Son.

E. M. Cohn, the leaf dealer, recently made a business trip to Ohio. L. R. Ryder, the cigar manufacturer, is on a business trip through the Middle West.

T. W. Mitchell and S. M. Ottinger, of Mitchell & Ottinger, are on a trip to Florida for several weeks.

Reading Trade Still Shows Upward Trend

READING, August 9.

THE improvement in local tobacco circles which began to be noticeable several weeks ago, shows no signs of slackening up. Jobbers and retailers, as well as the manufacturers, are all doing an increased business and are looking forward to a brisk fall season.

One of the most important happenings within the past fortnight is the change in the Porto Vana Company. P. H. Hildebrand, president, general manager and a director of the company, has resigned and will go into business for himself. Mr. Hildebrand has filed a $10,000 bond for the manufacture of cigars and will open a factory at 750-752 Penn street, on the second floor of the building occupied by the Porto Vana Company. One hundred hands will be employed. Mr. Hildebrand is a man of wide experience in the manufacture of cigars and enters his new venture with the best wishes of a host of friends.

Sides & Miller filed a $500 bond and will open a factory at 947 North Eleventh street. Good & Reminger filed a bond in like amount for the manufacture of cigars at Boyertown.

Deputy Cranston reports the cigar business to be very brisk over the entire district and predicts that the rush will continue until after the holidays.

William A. Romberger, a well-known Reading railroader, has been granted 90 days' leave of absence. He has purchased a cigar store at Tenth and Amity streets.

The cigar stand in the American House is carrying one of the most complete assortments of brands in the city. The stand is in charge of Schlapping & Eddy and is very convenient, both to the man on the street and the commercial men who patronize this popular hostelry. Some of the brands featured are the "Leda," T. H. Hart & Co.; "Y-B," Yocum Bros.; "El Proposo," Theobald & Oppenheimer; "44," 44 Cigar Co., and "Havana Ribbons," Bayuk Bros. Co.

The Fidler Cigar Co., of Womelsdorf, is doing an exceedingly good business at present. Mr. Fidler is now on a trip for the firm and is receiving good orders for their cigars.

W. W. Stewart & Sons, report a healthy demand for the "John Hay" cigar. This brand is now being pushed heavily by the Potteiger store and is making steady headway. A number of attractive window displays can now be noted around town.

There is no let up in the activity at the factory of Yocum Bros. Geo. Yocum is still in the West, working hand in hand with wholesalers on the Pacific Coast boosting the "Y-B" and "Spana Cuba."

Large Gain in Ninth District on Cigars

THE returns for the month of July in the Ninth Pennsylvania Revenue District show a gain over June of almost 7,000,000, being 66,232,400 cigars. These figures show the largest production for ten months and are especially remarkable for a supposedly dull summer month. Conditions as a whole are very encouraging, and would seem to predict one of the best fall seasons for years.

The output of cigars in this district for July of the past seven years is as follows:

|------------|------------|
| July, 1912 | 66,232,400 |
| July, 1911 | 57,762,990 |
| July, 1910 | 58,674,493 |
| July, 1909 | 57,326,140 |
| July, 1908 | 61,321,460 |
| July, 1907 | 72,041,760 |
| July, 1906 | 65,690,540 |

The output for June of this year was 59,357,560.

Ganzel & Blum will open a new cigar and pool stand in McIlenny Building, at Rochester, N. Y. Charles McGrath will run the cigar end. John Ganzel, of the firm, is well known in baseball circles, being manager of the Rochester League Team,

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau
Neptuno 24
Alto
Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, August 9.

ALTHOUGH we are in the midst of the dog days, the majority of our business people do not know what vacation or holidays in the summer time are, at least as far as the tobacco trade is concerned. Under the old Spanish regime we did not have even a free Sunday, as the afternoon was the only time that business closed down. Since the American intervention we have made some strides forward, and there is no business done any longer, although the cart men do bring tobacco from the railroad station still on Sunday morning, which obliges the help naturally to receive the loads in the warehouses. The Saturday half-holiday in the summer time North is also unknown here, with the exception of the Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd., which has inaugurated this custom here likewise. The Spaniards are very hard workers, at least as far as keeping late hours is concerned, but it is a question whether the American merchant that works less hours does not accomplish as much as the Spaniard by working longer. That time is money is not appreciated as such here, and a great many words have to be wasted to do business.

Our leaf market has been very active, a good many buyers have made their periodical visits to lay in stocks. There is some kicking about high prices this year, but this is always the case more or less every year, and we are getting accustomed to hear this talk. The fact is, that this year's crop has found a ready acceptance, the taste and burn are universally excellent, but there is the drawback of the unclean or spotted wrappers. This complaint is justified, only in the language of the late Bill Tweed: "What are you going to do about it?" People will have to get accustomed to these colors, as with the exception of the darker shades, there are no others, and the whole cigar-manufacturing world of clear Havana cigars is in the same boat. We must reckon with facts, and it is useless to talk of what might have been. The trouble is people have been spoiled with beautiful, light-colored wrappers, and now while there are none to be had they will kick for a short time, like a naughty child; but they will get over their temper and later agree that the taste is fine, no matter how ugly looking the wrapper may appear and offend their aesthetic eyesight. As our palate and nose have all to say, we ought to suppress the presumption of our eyes to dietate to us.

All leaf dealers are trying to make us believe, that the crop is only about half what has been published previously, and if this should be proven later on to have been the truth, then the present higher asking prices would be justified. The buyers here seem to have taken stock in these reports, and for this reason we have had quite heavy transactions in our market.

Sales for the last two weeks totaled 24,234 bales, or consisted by origin of Vuelta Abajo 8511, Partido 3507 and Remedios 10,216 bales.

Cigars.
The official figures of our exports from the port of Havana have not been published yet, but it is known that we have fallen behind over another one and one-half million of cigars, as compared with the previous year, in the second half of July, and manufacturers with whom we talked explained this that the new tobacco had not been in condition yet to be worked freely, and as the orders on hand called for new cigars they were unable to fill the orders on hand. If this explanation has been the real true cause, then we ought to see a decided improvement this month.

Our principal factories all claim to have enough orders on hand from the United States, Great Britain, Canada and Germany, while Australia, the South American Republics and some of the lesser countries have also called for cigars in proportion to their trade in Havana cigars, but as they have no particular news to give this time we simply mention their names, as follows, viz: H. Upmann & Co., Partagas, Romeo y Julieta, Sol, Castañeda, the principal factories of the Henry Clay & Bock & Co., Ltd., La Escepcion, the Elite factory, Eden, La Diligencia and C. E. Beck & Co.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.
Don Adolfo Moeller does not seem to stop to hammer the iron while it is hot, as he added 2,345 bales of tobacco to his list of exports to Germany during the last two weeks.

The old, sterling firm of Sobrinos de A. Gonzales heads the list of sellers of leaf tobacco during the past fortnight, with 1,750 bales of all kinds of leaf.

H. Upmann & Co. were buyers of 1,690 bales of leaf for their famous H. Upmann factory, for export to Europe, and also a part for account of their customers.

Gonzales & Benitez sold 1,555 bales of Semi Vuelta and Remedios to their customers during the above-named period.

Sylvester & Stern received 8,500 bales on account of their various previous contracts made in this city.

Don Maximo Stern left for New York on a short vacation last week.

José C. Puente closed transactions amounting to 1,345 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios.

J. F. Bernides & Co. were buyers of great importance in our market, as their shipments reached the respectable figure of 1,545 bales of leaf for Germany and Austria.

Muniz Hns disposed of 1,217 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Remedios and a small part of Partido.

Convention of Eagles Benefits Cleveland

Many Decorations and Window Displays in Cigar Stores for Event—
J. C. Leverance "La Saramita" Booster Home Again—
London Whiff Co. Pushes "Moses Cleveland"

CLEVELAND, O., August 9.

OF all the birds in Cleveland last week the Eagles were the most popular. We gave them the key to the city and more than welcomed all those who entered.

On Monday evening, August 5th, at 8 o'clock, the grand arch in the Public Square was illuminated and the festivities commenced. The decorations in the different cigar stores and the displays were especially attractive. Also they were very popular as our local dealers will all testify.

Two great attractions of the week were the record-breaking automobile races of Bob Burman at the Randal Tracks and the ball games at League Park. The electrical pageant in the evening attracted great crowds from all over. Wednesday evening, August 7th, was selected for the Grand Carnival in the downtown streets. A downpour spoiled part of the festivities, although it did not prevent the coronation of the Queen, Miss Elsie Cervenka. Money prizes were awarded that evening to the different divisions which took part in the Mardi Gras fete. Thursday morning, August 8th, the grand parade of the week took place. It proved to be the biggest, longest and the most representative parade the Eagles have held in the fourteen years they have been getting together for their annual celebration.

Nate Gleichman, the man with the smile in the Park Building, reports business good during the Eagles meet here.

George Bassett, the Osborn cigarist, is back in harness again after an illness of three or four days.

Nate Seidman, of the Century Cigar Company, has no reason to complain. Business is holding up nicely. He is featuring the "El Sidelo," of Sauml I. Davis y Ca, and the "Henry the Fourth." All his other brands are moving rapidly.

The Polster Cigar Company, One Hundred and Fifth street and Euclid avenue, reports a nice, steady increase.

J. C. Leverance, of the Shields-Wertheim Co., just returned from a trip through the West and reports "Saramitas" are big sellers on the territory.

Chas. Schutthelm, the good-natured cigar man in the Standard Drug Company cigar stand, in the Old Arcade, has got his hands full this week trying to get everything in readiness for his vacation. He leaves Saturday for a two weeks' stay along the lakes.

Mr. Teitelbaum is moving from Scoville avenue to new quarters, corner East Ninth street and Woodland avenue.

George Scrambling, president of the George B. Scrambling Co., is one of Cleveland's very busy men. "Montoro," their new broadleaf Havana cigar, is certainly finding favor with the retailers.

The R. & W. Jenkinson Co. report a steady increase on their "Duquesnes." Mr. George Scrambling took over their wholesale department May 10th. The stores were retained, as they were no part of the sale. At that time Mr. Roland was put in charge of the stores. He reports that business is excellent and has been stimulated this week by the Eagles.

Mr. Clark, the new representative of Larus Bros. & Co., Richmond, Va., was in town this past week.

The Eagles found Louis Stieglitz' store very convenient during their convention and he reports business booming.

The Louis Klein Cigar Co. report their business constantly improving. Louis Klein informed the writer that the smaller dealers are holding back and buying very little. He also tells me, as does every other dealer in town, that collections are very slow.

Among the salesmen calling on local trade this past week were Mr. Baurer, of the Surbrug Company, New York, and Mr. Lells, of the Melachrino Company.

Casper Rosenberg, of the "Ology" factory, tells me that business is improving, although collections are still very slow.

The London Whiff Cigar Company reports that business is on the increase in the last two months, especially on their "Moses Cleveland" five cent cigar and on their "London Whiff Windsors." Mr. Feder has just started on his Southwest trip and they expect some nice orders from his trade.

Prosperous Year For Porto Rican-American Company

THE report of the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company for the year ended June 30, 1912, shows gross sales of $4,887,913 and net earnings of $498,867. After deducting $319,904, the amount paid in four quarterly dividends, there was a balance of $381,689 applicable to the surplus.

There has been no change in the capital stock during the year; the total amount now outstanding being $1,999,400. In addition to the capital stock there are outstanding $1,000,000 in 5 per cent. serial gold notes issued on February 1.

Silveira & Co. continue to be actively engaged in filling orders for the German market, as their shipments amounted to 1,135 bales during the past two weeks.

José F. Rocha was a large seller, as he delivered 1,200 bales of leaf.

Adolph Kuttbauer secured some 800 bales of choice vegas for account of Rothchild, Sons & Co., of Chicago.

Gutierrez & Diehl sold 1,100 bales of their own stocks of tobacco during the past fortnight, and they purchased for export in the open market 552 bales. Mr. Hermann Diehl returned from a trip to the Santa Clara province, having inspected their various packings of Remedios, and he expressed himself as very much satisfied with the purchase made by their numerous contingent of country buyers that attended to the receipts of the green leaf in bundles from the farmers.

Menendez & Co. turned over 1,010 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo to their numerous customers, as they are known for their honesty of dealings and their word is as good as gold.

Henry Nichols was a buyer of 800 bales of Vuelta Abajo for their well known Solace factory at Key West. He, in company of his foreman, A. Artolozaga, selected the finest vegas from the lowland section.

Camejo & La Paz closed transactions of 908 bales of Vuelta Abajo to Northern buyers, as well as to local manufacturers.

Romeo y Julieta purchased 800 bales of some extra fine vegas from local dealers in this city, as they are always in the market for choice goods.

Herrera, Calmet & Co. sold 575 bales of Remedios from their choice packings in the Santa Clara province.

Leslie Pantin was a buyer of 766 bales of leaf for account of his customers by cable, as his total purchases during the past week would more than double this quantity.

Rz Bautista & Co. were sellers of 525 bales of their famous packing from their renowned farm "La Divina" at Wajay.

Don Marcelino Perez is still in town, examining and buying any choice lot of tobacco that he comes across. So far he has acquired some 500 bales.

Don José Menendez sold 521 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido to the large list of customers that appreciate his square dealings.

The Partagas factory secured some 500 bales of choice Vuelta Abajo fillers.

I. Kaffenburgh & Sons sold 500 bales of their fine Remedios and Manicaragua packings.

Don Antonio Calzada, of A. M. Calzada & Co., has been suffering for some time from an attack of bronchial trouble, and in order to get cured he went to the Trinidad Mountains, which might be compared to the Catskills of the United States, and we are glad to say that he has recovered from his ailings completely. Don Antonio is the president of the Moka Cuban Coffee Company, which possesses vast tracts of lands near Trinidad. He has not been buying any tobacco this year yet, as he holds the conviction that prices are bound to decline, and therefore is waiting for a drop in them.

Mr. H. H. Strater is getting along finely with his large Manicaragua packing, which he calculates to yield him about 4,000 bales when finished. He is turning out 35 bales daily, and is very much pleased with the fine quality of the goods received up to now. The low grades he has had no trouble to sell at top market prices.

Mr. Leslie Pantin returned, with his family, on the 7th inst., by the S. S. Havana, accompanied by three of his customers. He was warmly welcomed by the numerous friends that awaited him on the dock.

M. A. Basarrate, at Prado 123, told us that he had sold from June 1st to July 29th 701 bales of old and new Vuelta Abajo.

Principal shippers of leaf tobacco, from the port of Havana, during the last two weeks, above 200 bales, were: A. Moeller, 2,345; J. F. Bernides & Co., 1,545; Silveira & Co., 1,135; Sylvester & Stern, 1,060; H. Upmann & Co., 890; Leslie Pantin, 766; Gutierrez & Diehl, 551; Selgas & Co., 308; H. H. Strater, 272; Seeler, Pi & Co., 260; Garcia & Co., 256; M. Suarez, 246; I. Bernheim & Sons, 233; Diego Montero, 222; Menendez & Co., 219; Carlos M. Wintzer, Sr., 212, and Mark A. Pollack, 200 bales.

Wengler & Mandell to Erect Factory Building

The Wengler & Mandell Company, manufacturers of "Tom Palmer" and "Tropics," have purchased the leasehold, as told exclusively in last issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD, covering the northeast corner of West Madison and Robey streets, Chicago, the lot being 150 feet by 125 feet. The purchasers will immediately begin to erect a cigar factory building to cost $65,000, which will enable them to keep up with the demands.

The tobacco growers of Cynthiana, Ky., are rapidly subscribing for the stock of the new Cynthiana Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Company, and incorporation papers will soon be filed.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Only Routine Business in New York--Cool Nights Retard Growth of Pennsylvania Tobacco-- Connecticut Growers Harvesting Crops

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK CITY.

THERE has been slight change in the leaf market within the past fortnight. Many of the leaf men are out of town and only routine business is being transacted. There has been considerable buying of Connecticut and Ohio tobacco.

The New York leaf men are watching the Havana market closely. It has been estimated that about 225,000 bales of new tobacco have been received in the Island city. Many representatives from the large local houses are there now selecting choice leaf. Despite the very large Cuban crop prices are steady, in fact, almost high, a condition which has not been expected. It was thought prices would be reasonable at least, if not low.

The Dutch tobacco is selling steadily, faster than it appears at first glance. The manufacturers evidently see no indication of a break in prices and are selecting the better grades of leaf.

PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILADELPHIA.

LEAF men find trade in their lines considerably improved. Manufacturers are preparing for a large fall business, and although the recent sales have not been extraordinarily large, the inquiries being received would seem to indicate that the manufacturers will shortly stock up on their tobacco.

Connecticut and 1911 Pennsylvania have the call at present, although there has been a slight flurry in Sumatra and Havana; 1910 Pennsylvania is also selling well.

With all the large factories working with a full complement of hands and orders coming in with pleasing regularity, the leaf men are bound to reap their share of prosperity ere long.

LANCASTER.

Tobacco growers of Lancaster County are not quite satisfied with the crops. The cool nights within the past week have done much to retard the growth of the plants, which should be getting the best growth of the season in this month. The conditions of the crops throughout the county are varied, to say the least. Some tobacco has been cut, some has been topped and other plants are still quite small.

The hailstorm which swept the county several weeks ago left a trail of damage which will be a hard blow to many farmers. The loss is placed at from $75,000 to $100,000. Hundreds of acres of tobacco, much of it ready for topping, were utterly destroyed, in many instances nothing but the bare stalks being left standing.

The leaf dealers are not making much effort for new business. Many of them are sojourning at the mountains or shore where they are, according to all reports, enjoying themselves immensely.

The packers report a good deal of black rot and some must among the 1911 packing. Some dealers say they have very little, but on the whole the percentage is believed to be above the average. The local leaf trade continues dull and the cigar industry might be very much better.

YORK.

Tobacco planters report satisfactory progress with the new crop. Although there has been a heavy precipitation of rain, farmers state that more of it would be welcome. The cool nights have affected the growth of the plants, but taking everything in consideration, the outlook is favorable.

The growers in this section consider themselves fortunate in not being touched by the hailstorm which did so much damage in certain districts of Lancaster County and expect to receive some of the best prices of years. They have gone back to raising the old leaf, Burley being a thing of the past.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON.

WITH the return of warmer days the prospects of the growing tobacco crop are correspondingly improving. There is a healthy look to most of the fields and if the usual midsummer temperature and a chance to cultivate the late tobacco are forthcoming there is hope that the crop may reach a satisfactory harvest. However, little progress has been made the past two weeks and much small, late tobacco can be noticed in a ride about the growing districts. The weather conditions the balance of this month will be the crucial test.

What there is in the present prospects of the growing crop that might precipitate a field buying movement is very difficult to understand. Buyers are freely riding the growing districts, as is customary at this time of year, keeping tab on the promising fields as the season advances, and some growers assert that offers even of contracts have been made, but the general verdict of the best posted is that only the most reckless speculators would join any movement sprung at this time. A few weeks ago it looked as if there might be an early harvest, as the first planting had an excellent start and was progressing finely, but a couple of rainy weeks followed by unusually cool weather for the time of year has put an entirely different phase on the prospects.

The crop has made so little progress of late that at least two-thirds of the fields at this writing will rank much below the average condition the first week in August. Only a very small portion has been topped to date, and so large percentage is small that at least a whole month of the very best weather conditions is imperative to bring it to a satisfactory harvest. The small tobacco needs plenty of tillage and with the return of warm weather there is still hope of the making of the crop. But the temperature ranging around 40 or 50 even doesn't make tobacco or corn grow very fast.—Reporter.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD.

THE tobacco growers in this vicinity, who have started to harvest their crops, are so busy at present that a number of them worked last Sunday in order to keep up with the fast maturing leaf. The first picking has been virtually completed and the second picking is well under way. The tobacco is now being harvested by the primed or picking method, where the lower leaves on the plants are being picked. The first picking numbers five or six leaves, the second seven or eight and the last picking ten or twelve leaves.

There has been unusual activity among the tobacco buyers, they scrutinizing many of the crops closely and buying some of the best. The largest purchaser was the American Tobacco Company. The prices ranged from 18 to 22 cents in the bundle.

The crop, though lighter in weight than in former years, is exceptionally clean and free from defects. There is almost an entire absence of calico plants and mongrels so common in other seasons, and few green worms are found.

One of the busiest plantations in the Connecticut Valley is that of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, at Windsor Locks. This concern has now 100 acres under cloth and fifty acres in the open. They are employing at present over 200 men and women and are obliged to send busses daily to Windsor Locks and Suffield to transport employees who do not live on the plantation.

Large Increase in Philippine Cigar Exports

Eleven months' returns of the export of cigars from the Philippines shows that the total exports for that period of the fiscal year 1912 have amounted to 157,203,000, valued at $2,363,171, as compared with 122,130,000, valued at $1,460,739, for the same period of the fiscal year 1911. Of these exports the United States took 59,323,000 in the eleven months this year, as compared with 20,293,000 in the same period a year ago. The increase in the trade was especially marked in the later months of the fiscal year.

Mississippi Now Growing Tobacco

NATCHEZ, MISS., August 10.

It is almost a certainty that Adams county will raise tobacco enough next year to justify the building of a warehouse to store the crop.

W. G. Irvine experimented last year and again this season in planting six varieties of tobacco. The result has been so satisfactory that B. F. Keys, a Kentuckian experienced in tobacco culture, has interested a number of planters from that State who will locate here next year to engage in tobacco growing on a large scale.

A new leaf tobacco house has been organized in Milwaukee and will do business under the name, Borgwardt & Still. The offices and warehouse will be located at 612 East Water street. George W. Still is one member of the firm. The other member, John Borgwardt, has been with J. Wick & Company, and has had a wide experience in the leaf trade.

Leaf News of Interest

Harvesting California Turkish Crop

WORK has started on the harvest of the Turkish tobacco crop near Dinuba, Cal., the entire output being under contract to a local cigarette factory. While the production so far has been only on a limited scale, the crop is said to have been very profitable to the growers last year, and if the returns continue good the acreage will doubtless increase. An important obstacle so far is said to be the ignorance of California farmers as to the proper methods of handling the crop. The growing of cotton, from which little was first expected, now has an important position in Southern California, and if tobacco proves really profitable the production is sure to increase.

Stemmed Tobacco Supplanting Unstemmed in England

American tobacco, unmanufactured and unstemmed, was purchased by the British Isles during January to June, 1912, to the extent of 25,479,699 pounds, invoiced at $3,820,000. This was a drop, however, of over 6,000,000 pounds, as compared with 1911 and 1910 purchases. On the other hand, British purchases of American stemmed tobacco increased from 11,911,160 pounds, worth $1,840,000, in the first half of 1910, to 13,082,111 pounds, worth $2,243,000, in the 1911 half year, and to 20,210,757 pounds, worth $3,900,000, in the 1912 half year.

The Asia Minor Tobacco Company, Ltd., a British company, was incorporated in London in December, with $146,000 capital, fully paid up, to grow and export Turkish tobacco. Its place of business will be in Smyrna. It is the first British company to establish in this trade there. The chief influences in the market heretofore have been the Regie and the American Tobacco Company.

Benjamin F. Key, a former grower of tobacco of Mayfield, Ky., has canvassed a number of farmers near Natchez, Miss., and proposes to organize a tobacco growers' association in that county. Each man is asked, as an experiment, to first plant ten acres. Mr. Key expects to visit the farmers daily and give instructions in planting, cultivating and curing the crop.

George Bruce, president of the Texas Tobacco Growers' Association of Houston, Tex., recently stated that the growers in that State will receive as good prices for their leaf as any planters in the country. The crop was all contracted for before the seed was sown, and the farmers will get 17 cents per pound as soon as stripped from the stalk, which is as good as receiving 25 cents when dried.

The new building for the Jefferson Leaf Tobacco Co., of Sparta, Wis., is being built and is expected to be finished in several months. It will be a two-story and basement affair, 40 by 130 feet.

Independent tobacco buyers of Western Kentucky are organizing and will soon form an association. It is being pushed by men of Hopkinsville and Paducah, who claim that buyers have lost heavily the past two years.

Bill to Investigate Foreign Leaf Trade

Tobacco Men Say Proposed Measure Is of a Purely Political Nature
WASHINGTON, August 7.

WITHOUT debate and without recorded vote the Senate agreed today to the Martin bill, to investigate the alleged combination among the foreign governments which purchase American tobacco.

The bill provides for a "commission consisting of three Senators, to be chosen by the president of the Senate, and three members of the House of Representatives, to be chosen by the Speaker," which is "empowered to investigate the conditions under which the governments of foreign countries purchase American-grown tobacco, and whether there is any combination or understanding between the representatives of said foreign governments with a view of depressing the price of American-grown tobacco." To defray the expenses of the commission $10,000 is appropriated.

The bill is said to be aimed at Austria, Italy, France, Japan, Spain and all foreign countries which have a government monopoly of the tobacco business. It is asserted that these governments purchase most of their tobacco through the same agency in the United States, and where the agency is not the same, an understanding exists among the agents as to the price they will pay. The condition is considered very critical, as tobacco grown for the foreign trade is a different grade from that grown for domestic use and, consequently, the foreigners are the only people who will buy it.

The Martin bill was taken up today by the Committee on Foreign Relations and referred to a sub-committee. This sub-committee met immediately and Senator Lodge was instructed to report it to the Senate. It took less than five minutes for the Senate to agree to the bill. A similar measure has been introduced in the House by Representative Flood of Virginia. The House measure has been reported out of committee and placed on the calendar.

Dealers in domestic leaf tobacco operating in the New York market are watching with interest the efforts to have a commission appointed.

There was a belief held in certain quarters of the trade that an investigation of foreign purchasing methods would reveal some interesting conditions, but in the opinion of one of the best-posted men the attempt to have a commission appointed for the purpose was only a bit of political fireworks. As warranting this belief, it was pointed out that similar investigations have been made before and that no real good ever came from them. It is also asserted that an investigation is not needed at this time, as several French buyers now in Baltimore purchasing a part of this year's supply of Maryland tobacco are paying 13 cents a pound for it, a figure said to be equal to the highest ever paid.

May Not Purchase Alabama Crop

TOBACCO growers of Baldwin County, Ala., are much disturbed over a notice from the Alabama-Havana and Sumatra Tobacco Company to the effect that they will not purchase the crop grown this season.

Planters are given the privilege of using the warehouse of the company for storing their crop. The company is located in Chicago and many of the planters have purchased land and cultivated tobacco with the belief that their crops would be purchased by the company at market prices.

Last year's crop was taken by the Alabama-Havana and Sumatra Company and over $200,000 worth of leaf was marketed. It is said that efforts will be made to get other buyers interested should the Alabama-Havana Company not take over the growing crop.

Popular Brands Selling Well in Milwaukee New Stores Being Opened—Changes in Wisconsin Trade Noted —Twenty-six Dice Game Again Revived

MILWAUKEE, Wis., August 10. BUSINESS has been fairly good with the local retailers and jobbers, though continued rainy weather has had its effect during the past week.

Steve Surman, of the Cuba Rica Cigar Stores Company, reports a nice trade on all lines. The window has been given over to a display of "Surman's Havana Specials," which are moving well.

Fay Lewis & Brother Company report business as good as usual, the "Webster," "Harvester," "El Sidelo," "Tom Moore" and "Savanna" moving very well. They are featuring "Fay Lewis," "Limits" and "El Sidelo Smokers," at the Palast Building.

Mr. Francisco, of the United Cigar Manufacturers, was a recent caller.

A new cigar store has been opened at 220 Third street by Freitag Brothers, comprising George F. and Henry C. Freitag. For several years they conducted a store at 671 Third street, where they also operate a factory. This store is being continued by them. The new store is well stocked with popular brands, such as the "El Sidelo," "Tom Moore," "La Cenga," "Mi Lola," "Harvester," "Alcazar," and other well-known ice brands. In nickel goods they are showing the "New Bachelor," "Cinco," "Chancellor" and "Bank Note." They also carry their own make, the "La Arcadia," in five sizes. All popular brands of smoking tobacco and cigarettes are handled. A nice line of pipes will also be carried by them.

The Wright Drug Company is doing a very good business with their various lines. The display window has been given over to the "Piedra Imports," made in Cincinnati by Neuberger & Co., which are moving well.

A. S. Goodrich Company report that "Cinco" and "Equity" are moving well.

The twenty-six dice game has been revived at some of the local stores, under an arrangement of twenty-five shakes free with a purchase of three cigars of certain make. The stopping of this game some time ago by local authorities made a great difference in the receipts of local retailers.

Leo Abraham is doing a nice business at all retail stores. The "La Verdad" is still featured at Third and Grand avenue. Special bargains in pipes at the Caswell Block store have kept Eddie McKeercher and Joe Feiger busy. Ralph Wetstein continues to enjoy his usual good business, his big stock moving well.

The convention of the National Association of Retail Druggists will be held here this month. A great many visitors are expected, the Georgia delegation coming in a special train.

At Green Bay, Wis., E. J. Carlier and H. G. Anderson opened a cigar store and billiard parlor at 202 West Walnut street. The store has been called "The Mission."

E. S. Nelson, who has been manager of the Jenkins-Nelson cigar store at Antigo, Wis., has gone to Oshkosh, where he assumed the management of the Oshkosh stores of the firm and also took charge of the wholesale department. The Antigo store has been placed in charge of Harvey L. Finch and Otto Kielatz.

Several changes have been made in the cigar manufacturing field at Superior, Wis. George E. Rolph, who for years operated a factory, sold his labels to the Coleman Cigar Company. A new manufacturing firm was organized by W. B. Stiles and D. Macdonnell, under the style of Stiles & Macdonnell, both of whom have been connected with the Rolph factory. Stiles as foreman, and Macdonnell as salesman. They have opened up at 1102½ Tower avenue. The "Laxar" will be their leader.

Mr. Allie Sylvester, president of the American Cigar Company, is expected in the State soon to settle some matters regarding business changes in the Wisconsin field.

C. H. Eimerbrink, of Philadelphia factory of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., was at Edgerton recently, regarding the contract for the mammoth new warehouse to be erected by the firm.

At Chippewa Falls the Hussey Leaf Tobacco Company, of Chicago and New York, leased the farmers' warehouse. H. S. Edler, of Janesville, has been made manager.

A. W. Shaw, for the past two years manager of the American Cigar Company, Broadhead, Wis., branch, left recently for San Juan Porto Rico, where he accepted a position with a large tobacco company.

Cincinnati Retailers Note Improvement Braman Cigar Co. Takes on El Draco Account—Large Increase in Revenue Receipts

CINCINNATI, August 12. THE weather the past two weeks has been cool and comfortable, and the cigar and tobacco trade has prospered accordingly. Manufacturers continue to keep busy, and believe the fall season will be an active one.

The production of cigars and manufactured tobacco in the First Ohio Revenue District for July was more satisfactory than for some time, the total revenue collections for cigars amounting to $51,625.65, as against $48,040.86 in July, 1911, while manufactured tobacco stamps of the value of $240,980.00 were sold last month, as against $238,805.33 the corresponding month of the previous year.

The Green River (Ky.) tobacco growers on August 10, to the number of 600, assembled at the Owensboro (Ky.) courthouse and entered their protest against the establishment of a $40,000 loose leaf tobacco house in that city.

The Home Products Committee of the Cincinnati Commercial Association is completing the details for the "Made-in-Cincinnati" exhibit, to be held here from August 10 to 26, and the locally made cigars and tobaccos are to be given prominent display. President Gerson J. Brown, of the J. B. Moos Company, and George A. Voigt, of the Voigt Cigar Company, are prominent members of the association.

The Burley tobacco society is distributing 2000 checks a day for the final payment of the 1909 pool. The total amount involved is about $2,000,000.

Offerings in the Cincinnati cigar leaf market on Saturday last consisted of 20 cases of seed, which brought an average of $4.50, and 2 cases Pennsylvania selling at $5.57.

The local Burley tobacco breaks were less active last week than for some time, a total of 455 hogheads being up. These brought an average of $8.67, as against $9.63 the previous week, and $7.80 for the corresponding week of last year.

The leaf and cigar trade was cast in gloom last week owing to the death of one of its most prominent members, Arnold Tietig, Sr., notice of which appears elsewhere in this journal.

E. H. Berning & Sons report business as being excellent—the demand for their "San Vega" and "King's Herald" cigars showing a substantial increase.

The Braman Cigar Company has taken on the full line of the El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company of Philadelphia, and R. C. Fleming, who has recently associated himself with the first named concern, is placing "Stratford" and other brands with the high-grade cafes and clubs.

HULL.

Factory Notes

E. J. Miller has opened a factory at Manistique, Mich.

Paul Chamison is opening a cigar factory at Butte, Mont.

F. M. Yarrey is preparing to open a new cigar factory at Petersburg, Ill.

Manuel Casan has opened a cigar factory at Biloxi, Miss. He was formerly of Key West.

Peter Miller, of Grand Forks, Minn., has bought the George Booth cigar factory at Grand Forks, Minn.

A cigar factory has been opened in Rockville, S. C., by Narciso Palmeiro and Salvador Rico, of Tampa, Fla.

Charles Zeitlow has purchased the stock and factory of A. W. Klatt, a cigar manufacturer of Cedarburg, Wis.

Claude Buhmeyer, who has been operating a cigar factory at 112 Logan avenue, Belvidere, Ill., has sold it to A. F. Moore.

Frank E. Davis has acquired the Little Havana Cigar Factory, of 211 Sixth street, Cairo, Ill., and is now in his new plant.

The tobacco plant operated by T. H. Haynor, Norfolk, Va., was entirely destroyed by fire on July 29th. It is partly covered by insurance.

Property has been acquired on Grove avenue, St. Augustine, Fla., by Senor Mendez, of Atlanta, Ga., who will shortly open a cigar factory there.

A cigar factory was recently established in Gulfport, Miss., by M. R. Sheru and J. B. Dahin, Nashville, Tenn., men. They will manufacture both domestic and Havana goods.

The Bankable Cigar Factory, of Frankfort, Ind., was opened several weeks ago with a force of nineteen cigarmakers and twenty tobacco strippers. The new building of this progressive firm is well ventilated and lighted and of the most modern construction.

The loss on the Burns cigar factory, of Brooksville, Fla., which was recently destroyed by fire, has been placed at $30,000. Three companies were concerned in the loss—the Embrey Tobacco Company, which grew the tobacco used; the Burns Company, which manufactured the goods; and the Hernando Tobacco Company, which owns the 400 acres of tobacco land. Plans for the future have not been formulated, but the new factory may possibly be located in Tampa.

Many Dry Towns in California

Closing of Saloons Will Help Well Advertised Brands—Chas. Levy Opens New Stand—New Horn Branch Opened at Bakersfield

SAN FRANCISCO, August 5.

THE cigar trade remains quiet, both in the city and in such country towns as are preparing to put the saloons out of business, though in many parts of the country there is more life to the trade than usual at this season. Even in places which have lately gone dry there is a good retail movement, but the jobbers get no benefit from it. In fact, with prospects of still further spread of prohibition, jobbers are inclined to be very watchful of their accounts with outside liquor dealers, and the result is more or less dissatisfaction all around.

When the dry towns become well established in their dryness, conditions will not be so bad, and it is quite possible that the jobbers handling well-known and advertised goods may reap considerable benefit. The saloon trade, especially off in the country, has been an important factor in the marketing of obscure and unknown brands of cigars, many of them of local make. The Chinese are believed to be no longer of much consequence in the local cigar manufacturing industry, but there are a good many small factories scattered around the state, which have been among the first to suffer from the closing of saloons. When the business of the dry towns is finally placed in the hands of regular cigar dealers, the tendency will naturally be to put forward goods that are advertised and have an established reputation all over the country, and the local jobbers are keeping a sharp lookout for opportunities to place their goods wherever stands are opened by reliable people.

Notwithstanding the present dullness, general conditions are favorable for great activity in the fall. The July records of bank clearings and building permits in San Francisco are about the best in the last three years, and Los Angeles is breaking all records in building activity, while other towns of the state also make a very good showing. With the civic center work coming on, and more men being added to the working force of the Exposition every week, it is evident that more mechanics will find employment here than for several years past, and there is evidence of a greater demand for help in many industrial and commercial lines.

The movement of Manila cigars is keeping up on about the usual scale, the principal difficulty being that the local agents cannot get as many as they can sell. Large shipments came in last week for Michalitschke Bros. & Co., and H. Bercovich, and other dealers expect shipments on the next steamer.

D. Frankel, of Frankel, Gerdt & Co., the local manufacturers of "La Natividad" clear Havana cigars, is now on his way to Havana to look over conditions in the leaf market.

H. L. Judell & Co. have had some difficulty this week to keep up with orders for their popular 5-cent line, the "Watt" cigar. The "Watt" had quite an ad. a couple of weeks ago, being displayed on a stand which formed part of the stage setting in a local theatre.

R. E. Christie, vice-president of the American Cigar Company, has returned East after a long visit to the Coast trade. H. H. Manley, the Coast agent, went North with him, and has been calling on the trade up the Coast, but is expected back in a few days.

I. Winter, traveling for the "Pinzon" cigar of M. Perez & Co., has been on the Coast recently, and made a visit to Santa Cruz during the water carnival. Quite a lot of local cigar men were there at the same time.

Messrs. Mendez and Mayer, representing Mendez & Gomez, of Porto Rico, made only a short stay in San Francisco and are now in the Northwest.

Herman Moss, of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, has gone to Portland, Ore., after a short stay at his local office. J. J. Strickler is preparing to start a special campaign in the interest of the "Flor de Moss" cigar in this city shortly.

Edw. Wolf, of the Edward Wolf Company, spent most of the last two weeks on an outing in the Santa Cruz mountains and at the water carnival, but is now back at the store. Mr. Wolf has received his first stock of the new package of Nestor Gianachis cigarettes, the "Ras-Eltin," a 25-cent line, which is making a very favorable impression with the trade. Geo. Cacematis, specialty man for the Nestor line, has about completed his work here for the time being, and will probably go North in a week or two to work up trade in Portland, Seattle, etc.

Chas. Levy has started a new cigar stand on Laguna street near Grove.

F. Lewis, representing A. Frankau & Co., New York pipe manufacturers, is calling on the local trade. Another recent visitor was Mr. Luce, representing Acker, Merrill & Condit, of New York.

The new branch of Horn & Co., at Bakersfield, Cal., under the management of J. F. Merick, was opened last Thursday.

Frank Lopez, chief assistant to Herman Kieser, the local jobber, has just returned from a vacation.

The United Cigar Stores Company has taken a five-year lease on a stand at Fillmore and McAllister streets.

Morgan Gunst, of M. A. Gunst & Co., has taken up the supervision of the chain of retail stores centering at San Francisco, and Philip Neumann, who has had charge of this department for some years past, is looking after the company's general business in the territory across the Bay. Dan Whelan, who has been covering Alameda County, on returning from his vacation last week, took up the management of the company's lately remodeled stand at Fourteenth and Broadway, Oakland.
